RESOLVED FURTHER, that at the time and place appointed in this resolution for sale of delinquent shares, _____ [designate officer or agent of corporation] is directed and authorized to sell, or cause to be sold, to the highest bidder for cash, as many shares of the assessed shares of each delinquent shareholder as are necessary to pay the assessment and penalty on the shares of that holder, according to the notice of assessment served pursuant to Corporations Code Section 423;

RESOLVED FURTHER, that the person who, at the sale of delinquent shares, offers to pay the assessment and penalty levied against a delinquent holder in return for the smallest number of shares shall be the highest bidder. Upon payment of the assessment and penalty, the shares purchased shall be transferred to the highest bidder and a new certificate issued for them;

RESOLVED FURTHER, that if no bidder at the sale of delinquent shares offers to pay the assessment amount due on any delinquent shares plus a penalty of five percent of that amount, the shares shall be forfeited to the corporation in satisfaction of the assessment and penalty imposed on them;

RESOLVED FURTHER, that on completion of the sale of delinquent shares, the Secretary [or Assistant Secretary] of this corporation is authorized and directed to execute and file the certificate described in Corporations Code Section 423(k) in the manner and form specified in that statute; and

RESOLVED FURTHER, that the officers of this corporation are authorized and directed to take any other actions that are necessary to carry out the purpose and intent of this resolution, including the execution, acknowledgment, and filing of any documents, certificates, writings, or book entries that may be required to carry out this resolution.

§ 9.241 Notice of Assessment

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice to the shareholders of the levy of an assessment on their corporate shares. It is designed for use by a corporation subject to the General Corporation Law [see Corp. Code §§ 100-2319] whose articles of incorporation authorize it to levy and collect assessments on any or all of its shares [see Corp. Code § 423(a); § 9.240]. For coverage of the applicable assessment requirements under the Nonprofit Corporation Law [see Corp. Code §§ 5351 (public benefit corporations), 7351 (mutual benefit corporations), 9351 (religious corporations)], see Ch. 13, Nonprofit Corporations .

For an example of the board resolution levying an assessment, see § 9.240[2]. For a notice that the corporation has extended the date of sale of delinquent shares, see § 9.242[2]. For the certificate of sale of delinquent shares, see § 9.243[2].

[b] Contents of Notice

On or before the date that an assessment is payable [see Corp. Code § 423(b) (board must set payment date); see also § 9.240], the secretary of the corporation must give notice of the assessment. The notice must state: (1) the corporation's name and the location of its principal executive office, (2) that the board has levied a specified amount per share on designated classes, (3) the delinquency date, (4) that delinquent shares will be sold, (5) the sale date, time, and place, and (6) the delinquency penalty [Corp. Code § 423(c)]. For coverage of the statutory restrictions on the payment, delinquency, and sale dates, and the required place of sale [see Corp. Code § 423(b)], see Section 9.240[1][d].

The notice must set forth the above information in substantially the form specified in Corporations Code Section 423(c). This form complies with that statutory format.

[c] Service of Notice

The notice must be personally served on each holder of record of shares assessed, or mailed and published [Corp. Code § 423(d)]. If the notice is mailed, it must be addressed to the shareholder at (1) the last address for that shareholder appearing on the books of the corporation, (2) the last address given by him or her to the corporation for the purpose of notice, or (3) if no such address appears or is given, the place where the principal executive office of the corporation is located [Corp. Code § 423(d)]. When the notice is mailed, it must also be published once in a newspaper of general circulation in the county where the principal executive office of the corporation is located. If there is no such newspaper in that county, the publication must be made in a newspaper of general circulation in an adjoining county [Corp. Code § 423(d)]. However, the assessment is not invalidated by a failure to publish the notice [Corp. Code § 423(l)].

PART IV. FORMS
D. Assessment of Shares

4-9 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 9.243

§ 9.243 Certificate of Sale of Delinquent Shares

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a certificate of sale of delinquent corporate shares, given by the secretary or assistant secretary of the corporation. When the board of directors levies an assessment on shares, and the shareholder fails to pay that amount by a specified date, the assessment becomes delinquent [see Corp. Code § 423(b)-(e)]. The sale or forfeiture of the shares is usually the sole remedy for the collection of an assessment on fully paid shares [see Corp. Code § 423(n); [b], below]. The secretary's certificate is prima facie evidence of the sale of those shares [see Corp. Code § 423(j); [d], below].

For a board resolution levying an assessment on corporate shares, see § 9.240[2]. For a notice of levy given by the corporate secretary to the shareholders, see § 9.241[2]. For a notice that the corporation has extended the date of sale of delinquent shares, see § 9.242[2].

[b] Sale as Remedy

The sale or forfeiture of fully paid shares subject to a delinquent assessment generally is the only remedy for collection of the assessment. However, a corporation is entitled to a remedy by action if (1) the original articles or an amendment adopted before August 21, 1933, or an amendment adopted by unanimous shareholder consent after August 21, 1933, expressly authorizes that remedy, and (2) a statement of that remedy appears on the face of any share certificate issued on or after August 21, 1933[Corp. Code § 423(n)].

[c] Sale or Forfeiture of Delinquent Shares

[i] In General

At the time and place of sale specified in the notice of levy [see Corp. Code § 423(b); § 9.241] or extension of sale date [see Corp. Code § 423(f); see also § 9.242], any officer or agent of the corporation must, unless otherwise ordered by the board, sell or cause to be sold to the highest bidder for cash as many shares of each delinquent holder of the assessed shares as necessary to pay the assessment and charges specified in the notice [Corp. Code § 423(h)]. The corporation is not required to accept an offer for a fraction of a share. The person at the sale who offers to pay the assessment and 5 percent penalty for the smallest number of shares is the highest bidder [Corp. Code § 423(h)]. The corporation must transfer the shares on the corporation's share register to the highest bidder when he or she pays the assessment and penalty [Corp. Code § 423(h)].

If no bidder offers to pay the amount due on the shares together with the 5 percent penalty, the shares will be forfeited to the corporation in satisfaction of the assessment and penalty [Corp. Code § 423(i)].

[ii] Surrender and Reissuance of Share Certificates

After a sale or forfeiture of shares for nonpayment of an assessment, the holder or owner of delinquent certificated securities [see Corp. Code § 156.1; Com. Code § 8102(a)(4), (15) (defined as shares evidenced by certificate)] must surrender the certificate to the corporation for cancellation [Corp. Code § 423(j)]. This duty may be enforced by court order or decree, and the holder or owner will be liable for damages to the corporation for failure to surrender the certification for cancellation upon demand without good cause or excuse [Corp. Code § 423(j)]. Any certificate not so surrendered becomes null and void, and ceases to be evidence of the right or title of the holder or any transferee to the shares purporting to be represented thereby. Neither the corporation nor the purchaser of those shares incurs any liability to any such transferee [Corp. Code § 423(j)].

The purchaser of any shares at a sale for delinquent assessments is entitled to the issuance of a new certificate representing the shares purchased [Corp. Code § 423(j)]. The corporation therefore must issue a new share certificate to him or her upon transfer of the shares on the corporate records [Corp. Code § 423(h)].

[iii] Surrender of Uncertificated Securities

After a sale or forfeiture of shares for nonpayment of an assessment, the holder or owner of delinquent uncertificated securities [see Corp. Code § 191.1; Com. Code § 8102(a)(18) (defined as shares not represented by certificate)], has no further rights with respect to those shares [Corp. Code § 423(j)]. The corporation is required to issue a new initial transaction statement [see Corp. Code § 171.1 (defined as written statement describing uncertificated securities)] to the highest bidder after transfer of the shares on the corporate records [Corp. Code § 423(h)].

For further coverage of uncertificated securities, see Ch. 6I, Issuance of Equity Securities, § 6I.20.

[iv] Securities Issues

The sale of assessable securities are subject to the same qualification and exemption requirements set forth in the Corporate Securities Law [see Corp. Code §§ 25000-25706] as any other sale of securities. For coverage of securities issues, see Ch. 6, Securities Regulation Issues .

[d] Certificate of Sale

A certificate of sale given by the secretary or assistant secretary of the corporation [this form] is prima facie evidence of all of the following [Corp. Code § 423(k)]:

- The time and place of sale and any postponement of that sale;
- The quantity and particular description of the shares sold;
- The person to whom the shares were sold;

- The price for which the shares were sold; and
- The fact of payment of the purchase money.

The certificate must be filed in the office of the corporation. Copies of the certificate, certified by the secretary or an assistant secretary, are prima facie evidence of the facts stated on that certificate [Corp. Code § 423(k)].

An assessment on shares is not invalidated by the corporation's failure to publish the notice of assessment [see Corp. Code § 423(d); see also § 9.241], nor by the nonperformance of any act required to enforce the payment of the assessment. However, in the case of any substantial error or omission in the course of proceedings for collection of an assessment on any shares, all previous proceedings other than the levy of the assessment are void as to those shares, and must be reinstituted [Corp. Code § 423(l)].

A party may not maintain an action to recover shares sold for delinquent assessments upon the ground of irregularity in the assessment, irregularity or defect of the notice of sale, or defect or irregularity in the sale, unless the party seeking to maintain the action first pays or tenders to the corporation or the party holding the shares sold: (1) the sale price, (2) all subsequent assessments paid, and (3) all interest on those amounts from the time they were paid. No such action may be maintained unless it is commenced by the filing of a complaint and the issuing of a summons within six months after the sale was made [Corp. Code § 423(m)].

4-10 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide Scope

Scope

Scope

This chapter discusses the statutory requirements and procedures for amending the articles of incorporation of a domestic corporation, including the power to amend, statutory and equitable limitations on that power, and alternative procedures. It discusses requirements for approval of amendments by the directors and the outstanding shares, and additional voting rights and requirements imposed by statute, by the articles themselves, and by the Commissioner of Corporations. It covers procedural requirements for filing the certificate of amendment, the certificate of restated articles, and the certificate of correction. It also discusses amendments that may require qualification by the Commissioner of Corporations.

The Transaction Guide includes procedural guides for obtaining the approval of the directors and shareholders, and for filing the amendment. Forms include certificates of amendment (both general forms and those affecting specific changes), restated articles of incorporation, restated and amended articles of incorporation, and certificates of correction. Also included are minutes, resolutions, and written consents approving amendments to the articles by the directors and shareholders.

Preincorporation planning is covered in Ch. 2, Formation of Corporations . Adoption of the articles generally is covered in Ch. 3, Articles of Incorporation . Directors' meetings and resolutions are further discussed in Ch. 5, Directors' Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions . Corporate records and reports are further discussed in Ch. 7, Corporate Records and Reports . Shareholders' meetings, voting, and agreements are further discussed in Ch. 8A, Shareholders' Meetings, Voting, and Agreements . Voting agreements and voting trusts are discussed in Ch. 8B, Voting Agreements and Voting Trusts . Close corporation shareholder agreements are covered in Ch. 8C, Close Corporation Shareholder Agreements . Corporate securities issues are covered in detail in Ch. 6, Securities Regulation Issues . Foreign, nonprofit, and cooperative corporations are discussed in Chs. 12B, Foreign Corporations and Associations , Ch. 13, Nonprofit Corporations , Ch. 14, Consumer Cooperative Corporations , and Ch. 14A, Agricultural Nonprofit Cooperative Associations , respectively.

CHAPTER 10 AMENDMENT OF ARTICLES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Power and Limitations on Power to Amend; Alternatives

4-10 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 10.10

§ 10.10 Amendment of Articles--In General

Amending a corporation's articles of incorporation is the statutory method to change, add, delete, or restate certain information contained in the articles [see Corporations Checklist (State of California, Office of Secretary of State, 1990, p. 37)]. After a corporation has been formed [see Corp. Code § 200 (corporate existence begins on filing articles of incorporation)], certain financial or operational changes, such as a modification of capital structure, changes in the corporate purposes or powers, the number of directors, the location of the principal office, or the corporate name, require amendment of the articles of incorporation in order to become effective [see § 10.20]. Fear of a hostile takeover may also prompt amendment of the articles. For example, an amendment to stagger the terms of the directors may preclude hostile persons from filling all of the vacant directorships at one time. Requiring a supermajority vote to approve a merger, or entering into transactions that will make the corporation unattractive to potential offerors are other devices that may require amendment of the articles.

An amendment cannot be filed unless the corporation is in good standing, except for filing an application for exempt status or amending the articles of incorporation as necessary to perfect that application or to set forth a new name [see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 23301, 23775].

DIVISION I: BUSINESS AND NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS
CHAPTER 10 AMENDMENT OF ARTICLES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Power and Limitations on Power to Amend; Alternatives

4-10 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 10.11

§ 10.11 Management Alternatives to Amendment of Articles

[1] In General

Several management alternatives exist that may affect some of the same financial or operational changes accomplished by amending the articles. These include:

- A voluntary share exchange plan [see Ballantine & Sterling, CALIFORNIA CORPORATION LAWS, Ch. 12, Corporate Acquisitions, Mergers, and Reorganizations , § 252.04 (Matthew Bender)],

- A merger or sale of assets [see Ballantine & Sterling, CALIFORNIA CORPORATION LAWS, Ch. 12, Corporate Acquisitions, Mergers, and Reorganizations , §§ 252.02, 252.03 (Matthew Bender)],

- A repurchase of shares [see Ballantine & Sterling, CALIFORNIA CORPORATION LAWS, Ch. 7, Issuance of Shares and Indebtedness , § 127.03[5] (Matthew Bender)], or

- A reorganization under the bankruptcy laws [see Corp. Code § 1400 et seq.; 11 U.S.C. § 1101 et seq.; Ballantine & Sterling, CALIFORNIA CORPORATION LAWS, Ch. 12, Corporate Acquisitions, Mergers, and Reorganizations , § 263 (Matthew Bender)].

In addition, bylaws approved by the shareholders [see Corp. Code § 212; [2], below], and various types of shareholder agreements, including a voting or pooling agreement [see Corp. Code § 706(a); see also [3][b], below], a voting trust [see Corp. Code § 706(b); see also [3][c], below], or a close corporation shareholder agreement [see Corp. Code §§ 186, 300(b); see also [3][a], below], may, in certain circumstances, be used instead of the amendment of the articles.

If a right is guaranteed by statute and, as a result, may not be modified by amending the articles, a shareholder agreement may be the only way to modify this right [see Sensabaugh v. Polson Plywood Company (Montana, 1959) 342 P.2d 1064, 1067 (although shareholders could not modify or eliminate constitutional right to vote cumulatively by amendment of bylaws, they could validly contract not to vote cumulatively)]. However, one commentator has noted that the California corporation statutes [see Corp. Code §§ 202-205] appear to have established a norm that certain changes in corporate structure should be accomplished by amendment of the articles, rather than by a private agreement or by provisions in the bylaws. This commentator recommends using the amendment process, provided the amendment is valid, if a shareholder agreement would substantially interfere with a statutory norm and is not specifically authorized by statute [see, e.g., Corp. Code §§ 158, 186, 300(b); see also Corp. Code § 705(e)(5), 706(a), (c) (pertaining to close corporations)]. For discussion of the validity of shareholder agreements outside the close corporation context, see [4], below.

[2] Bylaws

Bylaws (or amendments to bylaws) may contain any provision related to the management of the business or the affairs of the corporation that does not conflict with the law or the articles of incorporation [Corp. Code § 212(b)]. Within these parameters, the range of corporate actions that may be taken by bylaw or amendment of the bylaws is considerable [see Corp. Code § 212(b)]. For discussion of the statutes that may be varied by the bylaws, see Ch. 4, Bylaws .

[3] Statutory Shareholder Agreements

[a] Close Corporation Shareholder Agreement Defined

A shareholder agreement is a particularly useful alternative to amendment of the articles in a statutory close corporation [see Corp. Code § 158(a) (close corporation requires provision in articles limiting shareholders to 35 and specifically identifying corporation as close corporation)] because the close corporation statutes expressly sanction the use of shareholder agreements to implement changes in corporate structure that are generally accomplished by amendment of the articles [see Corp. Code §§ 158, 186, 300(b); see also Corp. Code § 705(e)(5), 706(a), (c)].

A statutory shareholder agreement is a written agreement among all of the statutory close corporation shareholders (or if a close corporation has only one shareholder, between that shareholder and the corporation), relating to the affairs and management of the corporation [Corp. Code §§ 186, 204(a), 300(b)]. No shareholder agreement that relates to any phase of the corporation's affairs will be invalid "as between the parties to it" on the ground that it [Corp. Code § 300(b)]:

- Relates to the conduct of the affairs of the corporation so as to interfere with the discretion of the directors,
- Is an attempt to treat the corporation as if it were a partnership, or
- Is an attempt to arrange relationships among the shareholders in a manner that would be appropriate only between partners.

Thus, in practice, a shareholder agreement permits shareholders to [see Corp. Code § 300(b), (e)]:

- Manage the close corporation informally, according to the provisions of the agreement, without observing corporate formalities related to directors and shareholder meetings, and
- Make decisions in areas usually reserved for the board of directors, such as dividend policy, distribution of assets on liquidation, selection of officers, and determination of their compensation and tenure.

For further discussion of close corporation shareholder agreements, see Ch. 8C, Close Corporation Shareholder Agreements .

[b] Voting Agreement Defined

The General Corporation Law [Corp. Code § 1 et seq.] also expressly authorizes shareholder voting agreements (and irrevocable proxies to effectuate those agreements) [see Corp. Code § 706 (applying to voting agreements entered into, amended, or extended after January 1, 1977); Corp. Code § 705 (proxies)]. A "voting agreement" is a written agreement between two or more shareholders of a corporation requiring that their shares be voted as provided in the agreement [Corp. Code § 706(a)]. The statute permits transfer of the shares covered by the agreement to third parties with the authority to vote them as provided in the agreement [Corp. Code § 706(a)]. It also provides for specific performance of voting agreements [Corp. Code § 706(a)].

The statute specifies that no voting agreement will be invalid because it fails to satisfy the statutory requirements of a voting trust [Corp. Code § 706(c); see Corp. Code § 706(b); see also [c], below] or because it is a proxy that does not satisfy proxy requirements [Corp. Code § 706(c); see Corp. Code § 705]. It also specifies that Corp. Code § 706(a) does not invalidate any voting or other shareholder agreement (or irrevocable proxy complying with statutory requirements [see Corp. Code § 705(e)]) that is not otherwise illegal [Corp. Code § 706(d); see [4], below]. For further discussion of voting agreements, see Ch. 8B, Voting Agreements and Voting Trusts .

A shareholder agreement sometimes takes the form of a voting trust. A voting trust is ordinarily created by a written agreement between two or more shareholders, irrevocably transferring title to their shares (for a definite period of time not exceeding 10 years) to voting trustees, who, in return, issue to the shareholders certificates of beneficial interest ("voting trust certificates"), and file a duplicate of the voting trust agreement with the corporation's secretary [see Corp. Code § 706(b).

Although in the classic voting trust, certificate holders retain a beneficial interest in the stock, voting trust certificate holders are not necessarily the beneficiaries of the voting trust. The trust may be created by common shareholders transferring their shares to the trustees in order to confer on them voting power for the protection of bondholders or holders of preferred shares [Mackin v. Nicollet Hotel (8th Cir. 1928) 25 F.2d 783, 787-788 , cert. denied 278 U.S. 618 (1928)] .

Voting trusts entered into, amended, or extended after January 1, 1977 are governed primarily by Corp. Code § 706(b). Voting trusted entered into before that date are regulated by prior law [see Civ. Code § 2331; Ballantine & Sterling, CALIFORNIA CORPORATION LAWS, Ch. 9, Shareholders' Meetings and Voting , § 174.02[2] (Matthew Bender)]. For further discussion of voting trusts, see Ch. 8B, Voting Agreements and Voting Trusts .

[4] Nonstatutory Shareholder Agreements

Shareholder agreements have been enforced outside the close corporation context. Corp. Code § 706(d) specifies that Corp. Code § 706(a) does not invalidate any voting or other shareholder agreement (or irrevocable proxy complying with statutory requirements [see Corp. Code § 705(e)]) that is not otherwise illegal [Corp. Code § 706(d)]. Corp. Code § 204(a) further provides that a court may enforce shareholder agreements (other than statutory shareholder agreements) among the shareholders who are parties to the agreement if the court does not find the agreement contrary to public policy [Corp. Code § 204(a)].

CHAPTER 10 AMENDMENT OF ARTICLES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Power and Limitations on Power to Amend; Alternatives

4-10 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 10.12

§ 10.12 Power to Amend Articles

[1] Statutory Authority

The amendment of articles of incorporation is governed generally by Corp. Code §§ 900 et seq.Corp. Code § 900(a) provides broad authority for a corporation to amend its articles, provided the amended articles contain only provisions that could be lawfully inserted in original articles on the date of the amendment, or provisions necessary to effectuate a change, exchange, reclassification, or cancellation of the shares or rights of shareholders resulting from the amendment [Corp. Code § 900(a); but see § 10.13[2]]. The statute further authorizes any amendment of the articles regardless of whether the amendment was permissible at the time the original articles were filed, if the amendment could lawfully be included in original articles on the date of the amendment [Corp. Code § 900(a)]. Corp. Code §§ 902-904 specify the votes required for certain amendments [see §§ 10.30-10.31].

Other sections of the Corp. Code also govern the amendment of the articles. Corp. Code §§ 202-204 specify required and optional provisions in the original articles; Corp. Code §§ 402-405 specify certain provisions related to classes and series of shares that may be included in the articles. In addition, the articles themselves [see Corp. Code § 204(a)(5); Ch. 3, Articles of Incorporation], or a close corporation shareholder agreement [see Corp. Code § 300(b); § 10.11[3][a]] may contain provisions governing amendment. A domestic corporation's power to amend its articles in connection with a reorganization under federal bankruptcy laws is governed by Corp. Code § 1400(b). For a corporation's right, by amendment of its articles, to avoid actions by the California Attorney General for involuntary dissolution based on acts or omissions curable by amendment, see Corporation Code § 1801(b) [see CALIFORNIA LEGAL FORMS, Ch. 12, Winding Up and Dissolution].

[2] Special Provisions Applicable to Corporations Existing Before January 1, 1977

[a] In General

Although the provisions of Corp. Code §§ 900 et seq. apply to corporations existing before January 1, 1977 [Corp. Code §§ 102, 162, 2301], certain other provisions of the Corp. Code regarding articles of incorporation (or bylaws) do not apply to pre-1977 corporations unless or until their articles are amended [see Corp. Code § 2302; [b], below]. These provisions include Corp. Code §§ 202 (required provisions in the articles), 204(b), (c), (d) (optional provisions in the articles), and 205 (par value) [Corp. Code § 2302]. In addition, Corp. Code § 204(a) (providing that specified provisions will not be effective unless expressly contained in the articles) does not apply to valid bylaws in effect on January 1, 1977, until the corporation files an amendment to its articles electing to be governed by all the provisions not otherwise applicable to it under the transition provisions [Corp. Code § 2302.1; see Corp. Code § 2303; [b], below].

Although Corp. Code §§ 206 and 207 (purposes and powers of corporations) are applicable to pre-1977 corporations, any statement in the articles regarding purposes and powers is not to be construed as a limitation [see Corp. Code § 204(a)(6)], unless it is expressly stated as such, until the articles are amended pursuant to Corp. Code § 2302 [Corp. Code § 2303].

A conflict between the articles and bylaws in the number of directors will not be governed by Corp. Code § 212(a) for a pre-1977 corporation. Instead, that corporation will continue to be governed by prior law, until the corporation elects to amend its articles pursuant to Corp. Code § 2302 [Corp. Code § 2304].

Corp. Code §§ 417 and 418 (statements required on share certificates) apply to share certificates of corporations existing on January 1, 1977, only if the shares are originally issued after that date. However, prior law continues to govern certificates representing shares originally issued before that date, until the articles are amended pursuant to Corp. Code § 2302, and the certificate is presented for transfer [Corp. Code § 2307].

[b] Amendment Procedure

The board of directors alone may approve an amendment, if the amendment makes a change in the articles [Corp. Code § 2302]:

- Conforming the statement of purposes and powers to Corp. Code § 202(b),
- Deleting references to par value and location of principal office, or
- Deleting any statement regarding the number of directors or conforming any statement to Corp. Code § 212 (subject to any shareholder approval required by Corp. Code § 2304 for changes in the makeup of the board).

However, if the amendment makes any other changes, it must be approved by the outstanding shares, if their approval is otherwise required [Corp. Code § 2302; see Corp. Code § 152 (approved by (or approval of) the outstanding shares defined)].

To make a Corp. Code § 2302 election (to be governed by all the provisions of the Corp. Code not otherwise applicable to a pre-1977 corporation under the transition provisions), language substantially similar to the following should be included in a separate article in the certificate of amendment: "This corporation elects to be governed by all the provisions of the General Corporation Law of 1977 not otherwise applicable to it under Chapter 23 of the new law" [see Corporations Checklist (State of California, Office of Secretary of State, 1990, p. 40)]. The Secretary of State takes the position that if the corporation is amending its articles to include the election, the articles must also be amended to conform their contents to the requirements of the present law [see Corporations Checklist (State of California, Office of Secretary of State, 1990, p. 40)]. As a practical matter, because of the extensive changes generally resulting from a Corp. Code § 2302 election, it may be advisable to make the election by amending and restating the entire articles of incorporation [see §§ 10.43, 10.221].

CHAPTER 10 AMENDMENT OF ARTICLES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Power and Limitations on Power to Amend; Alternatives

4-10 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 10.13

§ 10.13 Limitations on Power to Amend

[1] Statutory Limitations

[a] In General

Amended articles may contain only those provisions that could be lawfully included in original articles on the date of the amendment [Corp. Code § 900(a)]. The original articles may include any lawful provision for the management of the business or the conduct of the corporation's affairs [Corp. Code § 204(d)]. Amendments that are specifically required or prohibited by statute are discussed in § 10.20 and [b], below, respectively. For discussion of limitations that may be contained in the articles themselves, refer to § 10.32.

Courts may be willing to disregard inconsistencies between the law and article provisions that are imposed by the shareholders themselves, when those provisions deal with a shareholder's rights as an individual, including the transferability of shares, if it can be shown that the shareholder was a party to the adoption of the provision, or agreed to it [Note, Articles and Bylaws--Statutory Requirements of Consistency With the Law--Contractual Enforcement of Inconsistent Articles and Bylaws, 31 Notre Dame L. Rev. 699, 703 (1956)]. However, courts tend to give less weight to this contractual consent, and tend to enforce the law when the article provisions are imposed by the corporation and deal with the rights of shareholders as a group or with the management of the corporation [see Note, Articles and Bylaws--Statutory Requirements of Consistency With the Law--Contractual Enforcement of Inconsistent Articles and Bylaws, 31 Notre Dame L. Rev. 699, 705-706 (1956)].

Certain sections of the Corporations Code expressly prohibit their variation by specific provisions in the articles. Although not an exhaustive list, the examples discussed here illustrate a number of the significant statutory provisions that may not be varied in the articles. For example, a corporation may not amend its articles to alter the names and addresses of the first directors or of the initial agent for service of process, if any, in the original articles, except to correct an error or to delete the information after the corporation has filed the annual statement with Secretary of State required under Corp. Code § 1502 [Corp. Code § 900(b)].

Because the articles may not limit the rights of shareholders to inspect and copy the record of shareholders' names, addresses, and shareholdings [Corp. Code § 1600(c)] and the corporation's accounting books, records, and minutes [Corp. Code § 1601(b)], the articles may not be amended to impose any such limitations [see also Corp. Code § 1602 (directors' absolute right of inspection)].

Corp. Code § 307(a)(7) expressly prohibits the articles from providing that a quorum at a meeting of directors will be less than one third the authorized number of directors, or less than two, whichever is larger, unless the authorized number of directors is one, in which case one director constitutes a quorum. Therefore, an amendment to the articles may not contain such a provision [see Corp. Code § 900(a)].

Any corporation may elect voluntarily to wind up and dissolve by the vote of shareholders representing at least 50 percent of the voting power [Corp. Code § 1900(a)], and specified corporations may elect to do so by approval of the board of directors [Corp. Code § 1900(b)]. The vote required by these sections may not be decreased or (with one exception) increased by the articles because to do so would make the articles conflict with the law [Corp. Code § 204(a)(5); see Corp. Code § 900(a); see also Corp. Code § 402.5(b) (exception providing that rights of class or series of preferred shares may provide for voluntary dissolution only on vote of specified percentage not exceeding 662/3 of that class or series)].

Similarly, although corporations may provide in their original articles for one or more classes or series of shares with full, limited, or no voting rights, and may by implication amend their articles to provide for those voting rights [see Corp. Code §§ 202(e)(3), 400(a), 900(a)], a corporation may not completely eliminate share voting rights because the Corporations Code grants voting rights to nonvoting shares in certain circumstances, including approval of certain amendments of the articles [Corp. Code §§ 903, 904; see Corp. Code § 117 (vote of each class of outstanding shares defined); see also § 10.31]; reorganizations [Corp. Code § 1201]; and a plan of distribution of assets on dissolution [Corp. Code § 2007].

Since variation of the voting provisions discussed above may not be accomplished in the articles, a voting agreement among shareholders, an irrevocable proxy, or a close corporation shareholder agreement may be the only means to affect changes on those matters [see § 10.11[3]].

[2] Equitable Limitations

In addition to the statutory limitations on the amendment of articles [see [1], above] and any limitations contained in the articles themselves [see § 10.32], courts have imposed equitable limitations on the amendment of articles that change the rights of minority shareholders, even when the amendment is adopted by the requisite statutory majority of shares, together with any required class vote [see DeMello v. Dairyman's Co-op. Creamery (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 746, 750, 167 P.2d 226 ; see also Bixby v. Pierno (1971) 4 Cal. 3rd. 130, 93 Cal. Rptr. 231, 481 P.2d 242 ; Tu-Vu Drive-In Corp. v. Ashkins (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 283, 38 Cal. Rptr. 348, 391 P.2d 828 ; Silva v. Coastal Plywood & Timber Co. (1954) 124 Cal. App. 2d 276, 268 P. 2d 510] . In DeMello v. Dairyman's Co-op. Creamery (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 746, 751, 167 P.2d 226 , the court, quoting Ballantine & Sterling, CALIFORNIA CORPORATION LAWS, Ch. 11, Amendment of Articles and Bylaws , § 231.04[3] (Matthew Bender, 1938 ed.), held that:

> Changes in the rights of outstanding shares may be valid if they can be justified by an exercise of fair business discretion in meeting the needs and exigencies of the corporate enterprise. The more urgent the need or emergency, the more drastic the amendment or adjustments which fairness will permit, as in changing preferences and financial arrangements according to what the enterprise will carry. The facts and circumstances of each case will enter into the determination of the validity of the exercise of power in that case.

One commentator has argued that the rule enunciated in DeMello is too generalized, and that subsequent California decisions have turned on the balancing of several factors, in addition to the business need or exigency of the amendment. These factors include [see Halloran, Equitable Limitations on the Power to Amend Articles of Incorporation, 4 Pac. L.J. 47, 52-61 (1973)]:

- The degree of discrimination among or proportionate treatment of classes or groups of shareholders;
- The size of the vote approving the amendment and percentage of objecting shares;
- Available alternatives to the amendment that do less harm to minority shareholders; and
- Compensation (in terms of other rights) granted to shareholders whose rights have been diminished.

On the duty owed by majority shareholders to minority shareholders generally, see Jones v. H.F. Ahmanson & Co. (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 93, 108, 81 Cal. Rptr. 592, 460 P.2d 464 . For further discussion of this duty, see Ballantine & Sterling, CALIFORNIA CORPORATION LAWS, Ch. 11, Amendment of Articles and Bylaws , § 231.04[4], [5] (Matthew Bender).

B. Mandatory Amendments

4-10 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 10.20

§ 10.20 Mandatory Amendments and Corporate Acts Requiring Amendment of Articles

In certain instances, a corporation is required by statute to amend its articles. For example:

- An amendment to increase the number of authorized shares is mandatory if the corporation is not authorized by its articles to issue all the shares required to satisfy option or conversion rights, when the option or conversion rights are exercised [Corp. Code § 405(a)].

- An amendment to decrease the number of authorized shares is also mandatory if the corporation reacquires shares but is prohibited from reissuing them [Corp. Code § 510(b)].

- If the corporation reacquires all of the authorized shares of a class or series, the articles must also be amended to eliminate any statement of rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions relating solely to that class or series [Corp. Code § 510(b)].

- An amendment to the articles to delete the special provisions relating to a close corporation [see Corp. Code § 158(a)] is mandatory if the number of shareholders exceeds 35, the maximum number of close corporation shareholders permitted by statute [Corp. Code § 158(e)].

In addition to authorizing any amendment that is consistent with the law Corp. Code § 900(a) specifies that "if a change in shares or the rights of shareholders or an exchange, reclassification or cancellation of shares or rights of shareholders is to be made," the articles must contain the provisions necessary to effectuate that change, exchange, reclassification, or cancellation [Corp. Code § 900(a); see Corp. Code §§ 202-205, 402-405, 903, 904]. Examples of common changes in shares or the rights of shareholders requiring the amendment of the articles include assessments on shares [see Corp. Code §§ 204(a)(1), 423, 904], the elimination of preemptive rights or of a right of first refusal applying to all of the common shares of a corporation [see Corp. Code §§ 204(a)(2), 900(a)], or the creation or a change in the requirements for a supermajority vote [see Corp. Code §§ 152, 204(a)(5), 902(e)]. An example of a reclassification of shares is the division of a preferred class into series or the designation of an existing preferred class as a specific series of a new preferred class [see Corp. Code § 903(a)(6)].

In addition to mandatory amendments, there are certain corporate actions that can be accomplished only by amendment of the articles. For example, a stock split (a pro rata division, other than a share dividend, of all of the outstanding shares of a class into a greater number of shares of the same class) [Corp. Code § 188] or a reverse stock split (a pro rata combination of all of the outstanding shares of a class into a smaller number of the share of the same class) [Corp. Code § 182] is accomplished by an amendment to the articles stating the effect on the outstanding shares. An amendment to the articles is required to elect to be governed by the new General Corporation Law [see Corp. Code § 2300 (new law defined)], not otherwise applicable to corporations existing before January 1, 1977 under the transition provisions [Corp. Code § 2302; see Corp. Code § 2300 et seq. (transition provisions)]. Further, Corp. Code § 204 specifies actions that will not be effective unless expressly contained in the articles [see also Corp. Code § 202 (required article provisions)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Requirements for Approval

4-10 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 10.30

§ 10.30 Requirements for Approval of Amendments by Directors and Shareholders

[1] Before Shares Are Issued

Any amendment of the articles before shares are issued may be adopted by a writing signed by a majority of the incorporators, if directors were not named in the articles and have not been elected, or if directors were named in the articles and have been elected, by a majority of the directors [Corp. Code § 901]. The writing must be a certificate of amendment, signed and filed as provided in Corp. Code § 906 [see Corp. Code § 906; § 10.200], or, if the directors were named or have been elected, they may file a certificate of amendment as provided in Corp. Code § 905 [Corp. Code § 906; see § 10.201].

This approval procedure may be used only if no shares have been issued. Shares are probably issued, for the purposes of Corp. Code § 901, when the corporation receives payment for its shares [see Garretson v. Pacific Crude Oil Co. (1905) 146 Cal. 184, 188, 79 P. 838] .

[2] After Shares Are Issued

[a] By Directors and Shareholders--In General

After shares have been issued, amendments generally may be adopted only if approved by both the board of directors and by the outstanding shares, either before or after board approval [Corp. Code § 902(a)]. Certain amendments, however, may be adopted by board approval alone [see [b], below].

"Approved by (or approved of) the board" means approved by the vote of the board of directors [Corp. Code §§ 151, 155]. Except when a greater proportion is required by statute or the articles, or, if the articles so permit, by the bylaws, approval is indicated by the vote of a majority of the directors present at a meeting at which a quorum is present [see Corp. Code §§ 204(a)(5), 307(a)(8)], or by the unanimous written consent of the directors without a meeting [see Corp. Code §§ 194, 195, 307(b)]. When board approval alone of an amendment of the articles is permitted, that approval must be by the board as a whole, and not by a committee of the board [Corp. Code §§ 151, 311(a)].

"Approved by (or approval of) the outstanding shares" means approved by the affirmative vote of a majority of the outstanding shares entitled to vote; it includes the affirmative vote of a majority of the outstanding shares of each class or series entitled, by any provision of the articles or of the Corporations Code, to vote as a class or series on the subject matter being voted on, as well as the affirmative vote of any greater proportion (including all) of the outstanding shares of any class or series if a greater proportion is required in the articles [see Corp. Code § 204(a)(5)], a shareholder agreement [see Corp. Code §§ 154, 186, 300(b)], or the Corporations Code [Corp. Code § 152]. Nonvoting shares, or shares not permitted by the articles to vote on certain amendments, are not considered outstanding shares, and are not entitled to vote on amendments governed by Corp. Code § 902(a) [see Corp. Code § 112].

"Approved by (or approval of) the shareholders" means approved by the affirmative vote of a majority of the shares entitled to vote, represented [Corp. Code § 153]:

- At a duly held meeting at which a quorum is present,
- By the written consent of shareholders [see Corp. Code § 603], or
- By the affirmative vote or written consent of any greater proportion (including all) of the shares of any class or series, if a greater proportion is required for any specified shareholder action in the articles [see Corp. Code § 204(a)(5); § 10.32], or in a shareholder agreement [see Corp. Code §§ 154, 186, 300(b); § 10.11[3]] or in the Corporations Code [see Corp. Code §§ 194, 195].

"Vote" includes authorization by written consent subject to the statutory provisions relating to consent of directors [see Corp. Code § 307(b)] and to election of directors by shareholders [Corp. Code §§ 194, 195; see Corp. Code § 603(d)].

For discussion of voting procedures for shareholders, see Ch. 8A, Shareholders' Meetings, Voting, and Agreements . For discussion of voting procedures for directors, see Ch. 5, Directors' Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions .

[b] By Directors Alone

Amendments that may be adopted by the board alone include:

- An amendment to delete close corporation status when the number of close corporation shareholders exceeds 35 [Corp. Code § 158(e)].
- An amendment authorizing a change in the number of outstanding shares (if the directors are authorized by the articles to take this action [see Corp. Code § 202(e)]), after a certificate of determination has been filed as part of the restated articles, as provided in Corp. Code § 910 [Corp. Code § 401(c)].
- An amendment to increase the authorized shares to satisfy option or conversion rights, after the issue of options or convertible securities has been approved by the outstanding shares [Corp. Code § 405(b)].
- An amendment to reflect the reduction in authorized shares if the corporation has reacquired shares that may not be reissued [Corp. Code § 510(b)].
- An amendment to extend or to make perpetual the term of corporate existence of a corporation organized before August 14, 1929 [Corp. Code § 902(b)].
- An amendment effectuating a stock split [see Corp. Code § 188 (stock split defined)], including an increase in the number of authorized shares in proportion to the split, when the corporation has only one class of shares outstanding [Corp. Code § 902(c)].

- An amendment deleting the names and addresses of the first directors or of the initial agent for service of process after the corporation has filed the annual statement with Secretary of State required under Corp. Code § 1502 [Corp. Code § 902(d); see Corp. Code § 900(b)].

- An amendment changing the name of the surviving corporation in a short-form merger of a parent corporation and a 90 percent (or more) owned subsidiary [Corp. Code § 1110(a), (d)].

- An amendment accomplishing a reorganization when specified share ownership requirements are met [Corp. Code § 1201(b)].

- Certain amendments to the articles of a corporation existing on January 1, 1977 [Corp. Code § 2302; see § 10.12[2]].

Further, certificates filed with the Secretary of State that do not amend the articles, such as a certificate of correction [see Corp. Code § 109], a certificate of determination [see Corp. Code §§ 156, 401], or a certificate restating but not amending the articles of incorporation [see Corp. Code § 910], may be approved by the board alone.

In addition, certain amendments adopted to effect a reorganization under federal bankruptcy laws may be approved by appointed trustees, by designated corporate officers, or by a court-appointed master or other representative, rather than by the board and shareholders of the corporation [see Corp. Code § 1400].

[c] Additionally by Class or Series of Shares Affected

A separate vote of approval by a class or series of shares affected by a proposed amendment or supermajority vote is required only

- If required by the articles [see Corp. Code § 152; see § 10.32] or by shareholder agreement [see Corp. Code §§ 300(b), 706(a), (c); see also § 10.11[3]],

- Under certain circumstances enumerated in the Corporations Code, including, for example, Corp. Code §§ 903(a), (b), and 904 [see § 10.31], or

- If required by the Commissioner of Corporations [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. 260.140.63; § 10.33].

[1] Amendment Affecting Class of Outstanding Shares Under Corp. Code § 903(a)

In addition to approval by the outstanding shares [Corp. Code § 903(c)] and by the board [Corp. Code § 902(a)], a proposed amendment must be approved by the outstanding shares of a class, whether or not it is otherwise entitled to vote, if the amendment would do any of the following [Corp. Code § 903(a)]:

- Increase or decrease the number of authorized shares of the class, other than an increase required to satisfy option or conversion rights under Corp. Code § 405(b) or incident to a stock split [see Corp. Code § 902(c)].

- Exchange, reclassify, or cancel all or part of the shares of the class, including a reverse stock split but excluding a stock split.

- Exchange, or create a right of exchange, of all or part of the shares of another class into the shares of the class.

- Change the rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions of the shares of the class.

- Create a class of shares senior to the subject class, or increase the rights, preferences, and privileges of a class senior to the subject class.

- Divide (or authorize the board to divide) the preferred class into series with different rights, privileges, or restrictions.

- Cancel or otherwise affect accrued (but unpaid) dividends on the shares of the class.

[2] Amendment Adversely Affecting Series of Class of Outstanding Shares

If a series [see Corp. Code § 183 (series defined)] of a class of outstanding shares will be adversely affected by an amendment of the articles in a different manner than other outstanding shares of the same class, the proposed amendment must be approved by the series voting as if it were a separate class [Corp. Code § 903(b)].

[3] Amendment to Make Shares Assessable

In addition to the vote of outstanding shares and of the board, the unanimous vote of all the outstanding shares affected, regardless of limitations and restrictions on their voting rights, is required to amend the articles to authorize a corporation to make shares assessable or to authorize action for collection of an assessment on fully paid shares [Corp. Code § 904(a); see Corp. Code § 423(n)].

An amendment of the articles of a mutual water company [see Pub. Util. Code § 2705 (mutual water company defined)] to make shares assessable or to amend article provisions authorizing assessment of shares requires only a two-thirds vote of the outstanding shares [Corp. Code § 904(b)]. An amendment authorizing action against a shareholder for the collection of an assessment on fully paid shares, however, requires unanimous consent [Corp. Code § 904(b)].

[4] Amendment Classifying Board and Eliminating Cumulative Voting

A listed corporation may amend its articles to divide its board into two or three classes of directors, or to eliminate cumulative voting, or both, subject to certain limitations [Corp. Code § 301.5(a); see Corp. Code § 301.5(b), (c) (limitations); see also § 10.215]. A corporation is "listed" if it has outstanding shares listed on the New York Stock Exchange, the NYSE Amex, the NASDAQ Global Market, or the NASDAQ Capital Market [Corp. Code § 301.5(d)].

A corporation that has issued shares but is not yet a listed corporation may adopt an amendment for this purpose to become effective when it becomes listed [Corp. Code § 301.5(a)]. An amendment classifying the board and/or eliminating cumulative voting requires the approval of the board and the outstanding shares voting as a single class, notwithstanding the provisions of Corp. Code § 903 (additional shareholder approval of amendments) [Corp. Code § 301.5(a)].

[5] Amendment Electing or Terminating Close Corporation Status

A corporation may elect close corporation status [see Corp. Code § 158(a) (close corporation requires provision in articles limiting shareholders to 35 and specifically identifying corporation as close corporation)] and include the required identifying provision in an amendment to its articles of incorporation [Corp. Code § 158(b); see § 10.211]. After shares have been issued, however, such an amendment may be adopted only by the affirmative vote of all the issued and outstanding shares of all classes [Corp. Code § 158(b)]. The amendment must also be approved by the board [Corp. Code § 902(a)].

A corporation may terminate its close corporation status or change the number of shareholders specified in its articles of incorporation by an amendment to the articles [Corp. Code § 158(c); see § 10.212]. After shares have been issued, however, such an amendment may be adopted only by the affirmative vote of at least two-thirds of each class of outstanding shares, although the articles may reduce the required vote to not less than a majority of the outstanding shares, or may deny a vote to any class, or both [Corp. Code § 158(c)]. The amendment must also be approved by the board [Corp. Code § 902(a)].

An amendment reducing the vote required under Corp. Code § 158(c) requires the approval of two-thirds of each class of outstanding shares or of such other vote as specified in the articles of incorporation [Corp. Code § 902(f)]. Thus, unless the articles originally provided for a lower vote to approve termination of close corporation status or a change in the number of specified shareholders, the minority shareholders may not be deprived of the two-thirds vote requirement by a later amendment to the articles, unless that amendment is approved by a two-thirds vote. Such an amendment must also be approved by the board [Corp. Code § 902(a)].

[6] Amendment to Convert to Nonprofit or Cooperative Status

A corporation may convert to a nonprofit public benefit corporation, a nonprofit religious corporation, or a cooperative corporation by the amendment of its articles in accordance with Corp. Code § 911(a) [Corp. Code § 911(a)].

If shares have been issued, an amendment of the articles to convert to a nonprofit corporation must be unanimously approved by the outstanding shares of all classes, regardless of limitations or restrictions on their voting rights [Corp. Code § 911(c)], with one exception. If a corporation is a mutual water company [see Pub. Util. Code § 2705 (mutual water company defined)], an amendment to convert to a nonprofit mutual benefit corporation requires only approval by the outstanding shares, regardless of limitations or restrictions on their voting rights, if each outstanding share will be converted to a membership of the new nonprofit corporation [Corp. Code § 911(e)]. Approval by the outstanding shares can, but usually does not, require unanimous approval.

If shares have been issued, an amendment to convert to a cooperative corporation must also be approved only by the outstanding shares of each class, regardless of limitations or restrictions on their voting rights [Corp. Code § 911(c)].

[7] Amendment to Reduce Number of Directors to Less than Five

An amendment of the articles reducing the fixed number, or, in the case of a variable board, the minimum number of directors to a number less than five may not be adopted if more than 16 2/3 percent of the outstanding shares entitled to vote are voted against its adoption, either at a shareholders' meeting or by written consent [Corp. Code § 212(a)].

4-10 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 10.32

§ 10.32 Additional Voting Rights or Requirements Imposed by Articles of Incorporation

The corporation's articles may create additional voting rights or impose additional voting requirements [see Corp. Code § 204(a)(5), (9); see Corp. Code §§ 303, 402.5(b), 708(c), 708.5(b), 1900 (exceptions); see also Corp. Code § 300(c) (close corporation shareholder agreements)]. The articles may require a shareholder vote on any matter, ever though not otherwise required by the Corporations Code [Corp. Code § 204(a)(9)]. The articles also may require a larger portion of shares of any or all classes or series to take corporate action than is otherwise required by a particular statute [Corp. Code § 204(a)(5)], or may provide for supermajority votes by the corporation's directors or shareholders on various matters [see Corp. Code § 710]. A supermajority vote provision protects minority shareholders and holders of preferred shares from adverse action against their interests by the majority shareholders, and may protect against takeover attempts. For further discussion of supermajority voting, see Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Laws, Ch. 4, Close Corporations , § 61.03[2] (Matthew Bender).

An amendment to the articles is required to create or change requirements for a supermajority vote, and any change in those provisions must be approved by the required supermajority vote, unless the articles provide otherwise [Corp. Code §§ 204(a)(5), 902(e)]. Similarly, if a provision of the articles requires a shareholder vote on a matter that is not otherwise required to be voted upon by the Corporations Code, an amendment to the articles is required to change this requirement, and any change must be approved by the required vote, unless the articles provide otherwise [Corp. Code §§ 204(a)(9), 902(e)].

If a corporation has 100 or more shareholders, special requirements apply to an amendment of the articles or a certificate of determination [see Corp. Code § 156 (certificate of determination defined)], which include a supermajority vote requirement [see Corp. Code § 710]. The supermajority vote provisions may not require a vote greater than 66 2/3 percent of the outstanding shares or of a class or series of outstanding shares [Corp. Code § 710(b)]. Further, any change in the supermajority vote provisions must be approved by at least the required supermajority vote [Corp. Code § 710(c)]. These requirements, however, do not apply to a corporation filing an amendment or a certificate of determination on or after January 1, 1994 that has (1) outstanding shares of more than one class or series of stock; (2) no class of equity securities registered under Section 12(b) or 12(g) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934; (3) outstanding securities held of record by fewer than 300 persons [see Corp. Code § 605]; and (4) no supermajority vote provision, and has never had a supermajority vote provision, subject to the requirement of readoption [see former Corp. Code § 710(a); see also Corp. Code § 710(c)]. In 2002, this statute was amended to delete the fourth condition [see Corp. Code § 710(a)], but this amendment does not affect the existing rights of minority shareholders [Corp. Code § 710(d)].

§ 10.33 Greater than Statutory Vote Requirement Imposed by Commissioner of Corporations

Regardless of the statutory vote requirement for the approval of an amendment, in any proposed plan of recapitalization or reorganization, and the proposed issuance of qualified securities [see Corp. Code § 25122 (qualification of securities becomes effective on Commissioner issuing permit authorizing issuance of those securities)], the Commissioner of Corporations may impose conditions to ensure that the offering will be fair, just and equitable [Corp. Code §§ 25140(c), 25141]. These conditions may include a vote requirement greater than that imposed by statute [see Corp. Code § 25141]. For example, the Commissioner may condition the required permit on obtaining the affirmative vote of a specified percentage of the outstanding shares held by persons who do not have a conflict of interest in connection with the reorganization or recapitalization [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.63].

D. Amendment Procedures

4-10 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 10.40

§ 10.40 Procedures for Action by Directors

[1] In General

Action by the directors to amend the articles of incorporation may be taken at annual, regular, or special meetings of directors [Corp. Code §§ 307, 311; see [2], below], or by the unanimous written consent of the directors without a meeting [Corp. Code § 307(b); see [3], below].

[2] At Board Meetings

Directors may participate in meetings either in person or by conference telephone, electronic video screen communication, or electronic transmission by and to the corporation [Corp. Code § 307(a)(6); see Corp. Code §§ 20, 21 (definitions)]. Participation in a meeting through use of a conference telephone call or electronic video screen communication constitutes presence in person at that meeting as long as all members participating in the meeting are able to hear one another. Participation in a meeting through electronic transmission by and to the corporation (other than a conference telephone call and electronic video screen communication) constitutes presence in person at that meeting if both of the following are true [Corp. Code § 307(a)(6)]:

- Each member participating in the meeting can communicate with all of the other members concurrently.

- Each member is provided the means of participating in all matters before the board, including, without limitation, the capacity to propose, or to interpose an objection to, a specific action to be taken by the corporation.

Unlike shareholders, however, directors may not attend a meeting or vote by proxy [see Corp. Code § 307 (requiring physical or audio presence); see also Cavitch, Business Organizations, Ch. 125, Board Meetings, § 125.02[3] (Matthew Bender)].

In close corporations, directors may dispense with the corporate formalities relating to directors' (and shareholders') meetings, if so authorized by a close corporation shareholder agreement [see Corp. Code § 300(b), (e)]. Moreover, it has been held that the directors of small corporations may transact their business by conversation and without formal vote, especially when informality has become customary to the corporation [American Center for Educ. v. Cavnar (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 476, 491, 145 Cal. Rptr. 736] . Director action may also be taken by unanimous written consent without a meeting [Corp. Code § 307(b); see [3], below].

Formal meeting procedures, including persons authorized to call a meeting [Corp. Code § 307(a)(1)], the place of the meeting [Corp. Code § 307(a)(5); see Corp. Code § 212(b)(2)], notice [Corp. Code § 307(a)(2), (3)], quorum [Corp. Code § 307(a)(8)], record requirements (minutes) of the proceedings [Corp. Code § 1500], and the relaxation of rules related to directors' meetings for close corporations [see Corp. Code §§ 300(c), (e)] are discussed in Ch. 5, Directors' Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions . For a form for meeting minutes, see § 10.240.

[3] By Unanimous Written Consent Without Meeting

The directors may act by written consent without a meeting. However, an action by written consent requires the consent of all members of the board. In addition, the number of board members serving at the time of the action must constitute a quorum [Corp. Code § 307(b)].

For purposes of unanimous board action without a meeting, the term "all members of the board" includes an "interested director" [see Corp. Code § 310(a)] or a "common director" [see Corp. Code § 310(b)] who abstains in writing from providing consent, when [Corp. Code § 307(b)]:

- The disclosures required by Corp. Code § 310 (generally requiring full disclosure of the material facts regarding the transaction and the director's interest) [see Ch. 4, Bylaws, § 4.200[2], Section 2.23] have been made to the noninterested or noncommon directors, as applicable, before their execution of the written consent or consents;

- The specified disclosures are conspicuously included in the written consent or consents executed by the noninterested or noncommon directors; and

- The noninterested or noncommon directors, as applicable, approve the action by a vote that is sufficient without counting the votes of the interested or common directors.

If the directors give written consent in accordance with the preceding rule, but the disclosures made regarding the action that is the subject of the consent do not satisfy statutory requirements [see Corp. Code § 310], the action that is the subject of the consent will be deemed approved. However, in any suit brought to challenge the action, the party asserting the validity of the action has the burden of proof in establishing that the action was just and reasonable to the corporation at the time it was approved [Corp. Code § 307(b)].

The requisite consent may be in the form of individual consents or one collective consent, a facsimile of either type of consent, or by telegraphic or other electronic communication authorized by the Corporations Code [see Corp. Code §§ 195, 307(b)]. The consents must be filed with the minutes of the board's proceedings [Corp. Code § 307(b)]. For a form for unanimous written consent, see § 10.241. For further discussion and additional forms, see Ch. 5, Directors' Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions .

CHAPTER 10 AMENDMENT OF ARTICLES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Amendment Procedures

4-10 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 10.41

§ 10.41 Procedures for Action by Shareholders At Meeting or By Written Consent

Action by the shareholders to amend the articles of incorporation may be taken at a shareholders' meeting [Corp. Code § 600(b), (d)], or by the written consent of the shareholders without a meeting [Corp. Code § 603(a)].

Close corporations may dispense with the corporate formalities relating to shareholders' meetings, if so authorized by a close corporation shareholder agreement [see Corp. Code § 300(b), (e)]. Furthermore, in practice, small or medium-sized corporations often dispense with formal meetings and obtain shareholder consent in writing, without a meeting, since most amendments to the articles of incorporation are initiated by the board of directors, who then solicit shareholder approval, as required.

Unless otherwise provided in the articles of incorporation, action that may be taken by the shareholders at any annual or special meeting may be taken without a meeting and without prior notice, by a consent in writing [see Corp. Code § 603(a)]. This consent must set forth the action taken, and be signed by the holders of outstanding shares having at least the minimum number of votes necessary to take that action at a meeting at which all shares entitled to vote on that particular matter were present and voted [Corp. Code § 603(a); see Corp. Code § 604 (special rules applicable to form of written consent distributed to ten or more shareholders of certain corporations with outstanding shares held of record by 100 or more persons)].

Although there is no statutory requirement that all shareholders entitled to vote be solicited in writing for consents, if this is not the case, then the nonconsenting shareholders entitled to vote must be given [Corp. Code § 603(b)]:

- Notice, at least 10 days before the consummation of the approved action, of any shareholder approval without a meeting by less than unanimous written consent, related to:
  - Transactions in which a director has a financial interest [Corp. Code § 310],
  - Indemnification of corporate agents [Corp. Code § 317],

- Corporate conversions [see Corp. Code § 1152],
- The principal terms of reorganization [Corp. Code § 1201], or
- A plan of distribution of corporate assets, other than money, in specified circumstances [Corp. Code § 2007].

- "Prompt" notice of the taking of any other corporate action approved by shareholders without a meeting by less than unanimous written consent [see Corp. Code § 601(b) (notice procedure)].

The written consent may be revoked by the consenting shareholder, the shareholder's proxyholders, a transferee of the shares, a shareholder's personal representative, or their respective proxyholders. Any revocation must be in writing, and must be received by the corporation before the written consents representing the number of shares required to authorize the proposed action have been filed with the corporation's secretary [Corp. Code § 603(c)]. The revocation of consent is effective on receipt by the corporation's secretary [Corp. Code § 603(c)].

For a resolution amending the articles of incorporation to be adopted at a shareholders' meeting, see § 10.242. For a written consent approving the amendment of the articles for use by a corporation with fewer than 100 shareholders, see § 10.243.

For discussion of the statutory requirements and the procedures for holding shareholders' meetings, including the place [Corp. Code § 600(a)], date, and time [Corp. Code § 600(b) (annual meetings); Corp. Code § 601(a), (c) (special meetings); see 15 U.S.C. § 80a-16 (annual meetings of regulated management company)], notice requirements [Corp. Code § 601(a)], waivers of notice [Corp. Code § 601(e)], record date [Corp. Code § 701], and quorum requirements [Corp. Code § 602(a)], see Ch. 8A, Shareholders' Meetings, Voting, and Agreements . Unlike directors, shareholders are entitled to vote by proxy [see Corp. Code § 705(a)]. For discussion of voting by proxy, see also Ch. 8A, Shareholders' Meetings, Voting, and Agreements .

CHAPTER 10 AMENDMENT OF ARTICLES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Amendment Procedures

4-10 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 10.42

§ 10.42 Certificate of Amendment

[1] Before Shares Are Issued

A certificate of amendment sets forth the amendment and the facts showing that the amendment was approved as required [see Corp. Code §§ 905-907]. If the amendment is adopted before any shares are issued by the corporation, and no directors have been elected, the certificate must be signed by at least a majority of the incorporators and must state that [Corp. Code § 906]:

- The signers constitute a majority of the incorporators,
- The corporation has issued no shares,
- The incorporators adopt the amendment(s) set forth in the certificate, and
- The directors were not named in the original articles, and have not been elected.

For a certificate of amendment before shares are issued, see § 10.200.

If directors were elected by the incorporators or named in the original articles, the certificate must be signed by at least a majority of the directors, and must state that [Corp. Code § 906]:

- The signers constitute a majority of the directors,
- The corporation has issued no shares, and
- The directors adopt the amendment(s) set forth in the certificate.

In lieu of this procedure, a board adopting amendments before shares have been issued may file a certificate of amendment in accordance with Corp. Code § 905 [Corp. Code § 906]. For a certificate of amendment after shares are issued, see § 10.201.

The certificate of amendment filed by either the incorporators or the directors must be verified [Corp. Code § 906]. Verification may be by declaration under penalty of perjury, stating the date and place of execution [see Corp. Code § 193(b)]. Verification by declaration may be used both within or outside California [Corp. Code § 193(b)]. Verification may also be by notarized affidavit [see Corp. Code § 193(a)], but this procedure is less likely to be used, since it requires notarization.

[2] After Shares Are Issued

If an amendment is adopted after any shares have been issued by the corporation, the certificate of amendment must state the following:

- The wording of the amendment as required by Corp. Code § 907 [Corp. Code § 905(a)]; see §§ 10.200[1][h], 10.201[1][g]],
- That the amendment has been approved by the board [Corp. Code § 905(b)],
- If the amendment required shareholder approval [Corp. Code § 905(c); see §§ 10.30-10.31],
    - That the amendment was approved by the required vote [see Corp. Code § 194 (vote includes authorization by written consent)], in accordance with Corp. Code § 902 [see § 10.30[2][a]], Corp. Code § 903 [see § 10.31[1], [2]], or Corp. Code § 904 [see § 10.31[3]],
    - The total number of outstanding shares of each class (if there is more than one class) entitled to vote on the amendment,
    - The percentage vote required of each class (if there is more than one class) of shares entitled to vote [Corp. Code § 905(c); see Corp. Code § 111], and
    - That the number of shares (of each class) voting in favor of the amendment equaled or exceeded the required vote.
- If the amendment required only board approval, a statement of facts entitling the board alone to adopt the resolution [Corp. Code § 905(d)],
- If the amendment effectuates a stock split [see Corp. Code § 188] or a reverse stock split [see Corp. Code § 182] or reclassifies, cancels, exchanges, or otherwise changes outstanding shares, the change or effect on outstanding shares [Corp. Code § 907(b); see Corp. Code § 907(c), (d) (exceptions); § 10.201[1][g]], and
- If the corporation is a listed corporation [see Corp. Code § 301.5(d) ("listed corporation" defined)] and amends its articles to classify its board or eliminate cumulative voting, a statement of facts showing that the corporation is a listed corporation or a statement that the provision will become effective only when the corporation becomes listed [Corp. Code § 301.5(j); see § 10.31[4]; see also § 10.215].

The certificate must be an "officers' certificate," signed and verified by two officers (the chairman of the board, the president, or any vice president and by the secretary, the chief financial officer, the treasurer, or any assistant secretary or assistant treasurer) [Corp. Code § 173; see Corp. Code § 193 (verification); see also [1], above].

If the amendment is a result of a merger, then neither a certificate of amendment nor a certificate of restated articles should be filed [see Corp. Code § 905]. Instead, the filing of an officers's certificate and the merger agreement in accordance with Corp. Code § 1103 or, for a short-form merger, the certificate of ownership in accordance with Corp. Code § 1110(d) takes the place of any filing required by Corp. Code §§ 900 et seq. [Corp. Code § 905].

An amendment to convert to nonprofit or cooperative status must revise the statement of purpose, and delete the authorization for shares and any other provisions related to authorized or issued shares [see Corp. Code § 911(b)]. If shares have been issued, the amendment must also provide either for their cancellation or their conversion into memberships of the new nonprofit or cooperative corporation [Corp. Code § 911(b)]. If such an amendment is included in a merger agreement, the provisions for cancellation or conversion of shares must be included in the merger agreement, rather than in the amendment of the articles [Corp. Code § 911(d)].

Certificates of amendment adopted to effectuate a reorganization under federal bankruptcy laws are governed by Corp. Code § 1401.

For certificates of amendment for use after shares have been issued, see §§ 10.201 and 10.202.

[3] Filing Requirements

The certificate of amendment, signed and verified [see [1], [2], above], must be filed in the office of the Secretary of State [Corp. Code §§ 905, 906].

The Secretary of State must file the certificate on the date it is received, if the Secretary determines that the amendment conforms to the law, unless the filing [Corp. Code § 110(a)] or the effectiveness [Corp. Code § 110(c)] is delayed by the party submitting the certificate or by the Secretary of State [see Corp. Code § 110(a)]. The filing may be delayed no more than 90 days after its receipt [Corp. Code § 110(a)], and the effectiveness may be delayed no more than 90 days after filing [Corp. Code § 110(c)]. The requested filing day may be a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday [Corp. Code § 110(a)].

If the Secretary of State's office determines that the certificate of amendment does not conform to the law, it will return the certificate to the person submitting it [Corp. Code § 110(b); see Pratt-Low Preserving Co. v. Jordan (1933) 217 Cal. 292, 295, 18 P.2d 676 (in determining whether certificate conforms to law, inquiry by Secretary of State appears limited to ascertaining whether corporation complied with required formalities in adopting amendment)]. The certificate may be resubmitted, accompanied by the written opinion of a member of the California Bar stating that the specific provision objected to by the Secretary of State does conform to the law, and the points and authorities on which this opinion is based. With few exceptions, the Secretary of State must rely on that written opinion [Corp. Code § 110(b)]. The date of filing of a resubmitted certificate is the date it was received on resubmission [Corp. Code § 110(b)].

[4] Filing and Certification Fees

The Secretary of State's fee for filing a certificate of amendment is set forth in Gov. Code § 12186(p). Special handling fees, such as a fee when a customer waits at an office for immediate confirmation of filing, may also apply regardless of whether the documents are filed or rejected [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 21903(a)(1), (2)].

The Secretary of State will compare and certify up to two copies of the certificate without charge, provided the copies are submitted to the Secretary of State with the original certificate to be filed [Gov. Code § 12185; see Gov. Code §§ 12182, 12183].

[5] Effect of Filing; Proof

The articles are amended, and any stock split, reverse stock split, reclassification, cancellation, exchange, or other change in shares is effectuated on the filing of the certificate of amendment [Corp. Code § 908]. A copy of the certificate, certified by the Secretary of State, is prima facie evidence of the performance of the conditions required to adopt the amendment [Corp. Code § 908].

CHAPTER 10 AMENDMENT OF ARTICLES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Amendment Procedures

4-10 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 10.43

§ 10.43 Restated Articles

[1] Restated but Not Amended

A corporation may restate (without alteration or amendment), in a single certificate, its entire articles of incorporation, as amended to the date of filing of the certificate [Corp. Code § 910(a)]. Restatement is useful if the articles are poorly written, or if numerous amendments make their use cumbersome. A corporation may also restate and amend its articles [Corp. Code § 910(a); see [2], below].

Restated articles must set forth the entire text of the articles, as amended, except that the following must be omitted [Corp. Code § 910(a)]:

- The signatures and acknowledgments of the articles by the incorporators.
- Any statements of the effects of prior amendments on outstanding shares.
- Any provisions of agreements of merger, other than amendments to the articles of the surviving corporation.
- The names and addresses of the initial director and any initial agent for service of process (unless the corporation has not yet filed a statement under Corp. Code § 1502, in which case this information must be included in the restated articles).

The omissions listed above are not alterations or amendments of the articles [Corp. Code § 910(a)].

A certificate of restated articles that does not alter or amend the articles may be approved by the board alone, if the board has been elected, or by a majority of the incorporators if shares have not been issued and directors have not been elected [Corp. Code § 910(b)]. The certificate is subject to the statutory provisions governing an amendment to the articles not requiring approval of the outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 910(b); § 10.30[2][b]]. For a certificate of restated articles, see § 10.220.

[2] Restated and Amended

A certificate of restated articles may also amend, as well as restate, the articles [Corp. Code § 910(a)]. A certificate of restated and amended articles is subject to the statutory provisions related to the particular amendment(s) made [Corp. Code § 910(b); see Corp. Code § 905-907]. In addition, except for certificates approved by a majority of the incorporators, the certificate must also state that the board has approved the restated articles [Corp. Code § 910(b); see Corp. Code §§ 905(b), 906]. For a certificate of restated and amended articles, see § 10.221.

Certificates of determination (of rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions [see Corp. Code §§ 156, 401(a)]) are considered part of the articles of incorporation [Corp. Code § 910(c); see Corp. Code § 154]. Therefore, the provisions of any certificates of determination, designated as articles, must also be included in the restated articles [Corp. Code § 910(c)].

[3] Effect of Filing Restated Articles

Properly filed, restated articles supersede for all purposes the original articles and any previously filed amendments and certificates of determination [Corp. Code § 910(d)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Securities Considerations

4-10 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 10.50

§ 10.50 Amendments Requiring Qualification By Corporations Commissioner

[1] Qualification of Issuer Transactions

Any amendment to the articles increasing the authorized number of shares in order to sell more shares (an "issuer transaction") requires qualification by the Commissioner of Corporations before the shares are offered or sold, unless the offer or sale is exempt [see Corp. Code § 25110; 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.103.1]. In this case, qualification may be by [Corp. Code § 25110]:

- Coordination if a registration statement under the Securities Act of 1933 has been filed for the securities [Corp. Code § 25111(a)],

- Notification if any securities of the issuer are registered under Section 12 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 [Corp. Code § 25112(a)], or

- Permit [Corp. Code § 25113(a)].

Commonly used exemptions from the qualification of issuer transactions include the small [Corp. Code § 25102(h)] and limited offering exemptions [Corp. Code § 25102(f); see Corp. Code § 25102 (exempt issuer transactions)]. For further discussion of the requirements for exemption from qualification of securities as a small or limited offering, and appropriate forms, see Ch. 6B, California Limited Offering Exemptions , and Ch. 6C, California Small Offering Exemption .

[2] Qualification of Recapitalization or Reorganization Transactions

An amendment to the articles that would result in an offer or sale of securities in connection with a change in the rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions of or on outstanding securities (a "recapitalization or reorganization" transaction) also requires qualification by the Commissioner of Corporations, unless the transaction is exempt [Corp. Code §§ 25017(a), 25120]. Qualification must be by permit even if the transaction requires registration of the new security under the Securities Exchange Act of 1933 [see 15 U.S.C. § 77c(a)]. Qualification by coordination may not be used in connection with transactions subject to Corp. Code § 25120 [see Corp. Code §§ 25110, 25120, 25121]. The permit must be obtained before seeking approval of the amendment by the outstanding shares, but not before entering into negotiations or agreements that are subject to the shareholders' approval [see Corp. Code § 25103(a)]. Consequently, the qualification by permit must be obtained before the certificate of amendment can be filed.

Exemptions from this qualification requirement include the following transactions:

- All changes in rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions of outstanding shares, except those enumerated in Corp. Code § 25103(e) [Corp. Code § 25103(e); see § 10.51].

- All stock splits [Corp. Code § 188] and reverse stock splits [Corp. Code § 182], except those enumerated in Corp. Code § 25103(f) [see Corp. Code § 25103(f); § 10.52].

- Any changes in rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions of or on outstanding securities, or any entity conversion transaction, unless the holders of at least 25 percent of the outstanding shares or units of any class of securities that will be directly or indirectly affected substantially and adversely by that change or transaction have California addresses according to the issuer's records [Corp. Code § 25103(b)].

- All changes in the rights of outstanding debt securities, except those enumerated in Corp. Code § 25103(f) [see Corp. Code § 25103(g); § 10.53].

- Transactions involving specified types of securities of enumerated types of entities, such as governmental entities, national and California banks and similar financial institutions, common carriers, public utilities, and regulated railroads [see Corp. Code § 25100].

- Transactions exempted by the rules of the Commissioner of Corporations, such as shares in professional corporations, and pensions and profit sharing plans [Corp. Code §§ 25105; see 10 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 260.103(a), 260.105 et seq.].

The Commissioner of Corporations may refuse to issue a permit for the offer or sale of securities in connection with a proposed plan of recapitalization or reorganization unless he or she finds the proposed plan and issuance of securities are fair, just, and equitable to all affected security holders [Corp. Code § 25140(c); see § 10.33]. If the Commissioner's ruling is supported by substantial evidence and does not constitute an abuse of discretion, the courts will uphold it [see Bixby v. Pierno (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 130, 93 Cal. Rptr. 234, 481 P.2d 242 ; see also Western Air Lines, Inc. v. Sobieski (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 399, 12 Cal. Rptr. 719] .

For further discussion, and forms for a permit to issue securities in connection with a proposed plan of recapitalization or reorganization, refer to Ch. 6J, Issuance of Debt Securities.

§ 10.51 Amendments Changing Share Rights Exempted from Qualification By Corp. Code § 25103(e); Exceptions

Corp. Code § 25103(e) exempts from the qualification requirements any change in the rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions of or on outstanding shares (other than a stock split [Corp. Code § 188] or reverse stock split [Corp. Code § 182]), except the following enumerated changes, if they materially and adversely affect any class of shareholders [Corp. Code § 25103(e)]:

- Changes, additions, or deletions of assessment provisions.
- Changes in dividend rights.
- Changes in redemption provisions.
- Changes to make the shares redeemable.
- Changes in the amount payable on liquidation.
- Changes, additions, or deletions of conversion rights.
- Changes, additions, or deletions of voting rights.
- Changes, additions, or deletions of preemptive rights.
- Changes, additions, or deletions of sinking fund provisions.
- Rearrangements of the relative priorities of outstanding shares.
- Additions, changes, or deletions of share transfer restrictions in the articles of incorporation or bylaws.

- Changes in the right of shareholders with respect to the calling of special shareholders' meetings.

- Changes, additions, or deletions of any rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions of, or on, the outstanding shares or memberships of a mutual water company or other corporation organized primarily to provide services or facilities to its shareholders or members.

Changes in the rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions do not materially affect any class of shareholders if they arise from amendment of the articles to adopt or terminate close corporation status, involuntary cessation of close corporation status, or termination of a close corporation shareholder agreement [Corp. Code § 25103(e); see Corp. Code § 300(b) (statutory shareholder agreement)].

Corp. Code § 25103(f) exempts from the qualification requirements any stock split or reverse stock split, except the following [Corp. Code § 25103(f)]:

- Any stock split or reverse stock split if the corporation has more than one class of voting shares outstanding and the split would have a material effect on the proportionate interests of the respective classes related to voting, dividends, or distributions.

- Any stock split of a stock that is traded in the market if its market price on the date of the directors' approval of the split (adjusted to give effect to the split) was less than $2.

- Any reverse stock split if the corporation has the option of paying cash for any fractional shares created by the reverse split and, if, as a result, the proportionate interests of the shareholders would be substantially altered.

Any shares issued on a stock split or reverse stock split that are exempted from qualification are nevertheless subject to any conditions previously imposed by the Commissioner applicable to the shares with respect to which these new shares are issued [Corp. Code § 25103(f)].

A certificate of correction may be used to correct any misstatement of fact or other error, including a defect in execution, of a certificate of amendment [see Corp. Code § 109(a); see § 10.230]. A certificate of correction, however, may not be filed to alter the wording of any resolution or written consent that was adopted by the board or the shareholders [Corp. Code § 109(a)]. The only way to correct this type of error is to adopt a new amendment and file a new certificate [see §§ 10.200-10.202]. A certificate of amendment may also not be used to affect a corrected amendment of articles if the amendment, as corrected, would not in all respects have complied with the law in effect when the certificate being corrected was filed [Corp. Code § 109(a)].

The certificate of correction may be filed at any time after the original filing [see Corp. Code § 109(a)], and must be filed and verified in the same manner as the certificate of amendment [see Corp. Code § 109(b)].

§ 10.61 Exchange of Share Certificates

When the articles are amended in any way affecting the statements on the certificates for outstanding shares, the board of directors may, at its discretion, order that the old certificates be exchanged for new certificates [Corp. Code § 422(a)]. In practice, however, unless the exchange of certificates is required (for example, as in the case of an amendment adding or changing any required statement or legend on the share certificate [see Corp. Code §§ 417, 418]), alternative procedures that provide for the exchange of certificates on transfer of ownership may be more cost effective than requiring the all old certificates be exchanged for new ones. For example, if the amendment increased the number of shares outstanding, share certificates representing the additional shares could be issued, leaving the old certificates outstanding. New certificates could then be issued when those certificates were presented for transfer, in the normal course of business.

4-10 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 10.110

§ 10.110 Identifying Conflicts of Interest

NOTE:

When amending the articles of incorporation, an attorney may be asked to represent the corporation, one shareholder, some or all of the shareholders, or (in the case of a close corporation) a combination of these parties. Shareholders, especially institutional shareholders, are increasingly likely to retain legal counsel when asked to approve amendments to the articles, particularly amendments further limiting the liability of officers and directors, or extending the indemnification of these and other corporate agents. For further discussion of appropriate forms related to conflict of interest issues, see Ch. 1A, Role of Counsel in Starting a New Business .

1. Ascertain which party attorney represents.

NOTE:

An attorney representing an entity may also represent its constituents, provided the attorney makes a written disclosure to the client in accordance with the California Rules of Professional Conduct, Rule 3-310(B), and discloses his or her relationship to the entity [Cal. Rules Prof. Cond., Rule 3-600(E)]. Dual representation of clients whose interests conflict is permitted under certain circumstances if the attorney obtains the written consent of each client [Cal. Rules Prof. Cond., Rule 3-600(E)]. Caution should be exercised, however, in dual representation if an actual conflict of interest exists [see Cal. Rules *Prof. Cond., Rule 3-310; § 8*D.22]. Even without an actual conflict, under some circumstances, an attorney should not undertake multiple representation [see Cal. Rules Prof. Cond., Rule 3-310(A); § 8D.23].

a. Will attorney represent corporation [see § 8D.21[2]]?

b. Will attorney represent single shareholder?

c. Will attorney represent some or all shareholders?

d. Will attorney represent a combination of subsections a-c [see § 8D.21[2][b]]?

2. Ascertain whether attorney represents clients with adverse interests [see Cal. Rules *Prof. Cond., Rule 3-310; §§ 8*D.22-8D.25].

a. Does attorney have legal, business, financial, professional, or personal relationship with party or witness in same matter?

b. Does attorney know (or reasonably should know) that:
(1) Attorney previously had legal, business, financial, professional, or personal relationship with party or witness in same matter; and

(2) Previous relationship will substantially affect attorney's representation?

c. Does (or did) attorney have legal, business, financial, professional, or personal relationship with party or entity that would be substantially affected by resolution of matter?

d. Does (or did) attorney have legal, business, financial, or professional interest in subject matter of representation?

e. Has attorney obtained confidential information related to representation from client or former client?

3. Ascertain whether attorney has provided written disclosure, and obtained informed written consent from each client (or former client) whose interests actually or potentially conflict [see Cal. Rules Prof. Cond., Rule 3- 310; §§ 8D.22-8D.25].

1. Determine if amendment to articles is required to accomplish proposed corporate action [see § 10.20].

2. Determine if proposed amendment is lawful.

a. Is amendment expressly prohibited [see § 10.13[1][b]]?

b. If not prohibited, is amendment consistent with law [see Corp. Code § 900(a); § 10.12]?

c. Is amendment equitable to minority shareholders [see § 10.13[2]]?
(1) What is anticipated degree of discrimination of classes or groups of shareholders?

(2) What is anticipated size of shareholder vote approving amendment and percentage of objecting shares?

(3) Are there alternatives to amendment that are less harmful to minority shareholders?

(4) Will there be any compensation to shareholders whose rights have been diminished?

3. If amendment is not mandatory [see § 10.20], determine whether alternative procedures might better accomplish desired result, considering:

a. Bylaws or amendment to bylaws [see § 10.11[2]].

b. Shareholder agreements, including:

(1) Voting or pooling agreement [see § 10.11[3][b]].

CHAPTER 10 AMENDMENT OF ARTICLES
PART III. TRANSACTION GUIDE
B. Preliminary Determinations

4-10 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 10.113

§ 10.113 Requirements for Approval of Amendment

1. Determine whether shares have been issued.

NOTE:

The approval procedure for amendment to the articles differs, depending on whether shares have been issued [see Corp. Code §§ 901, 902(a)]. Shares are probably issued, for the purposes of Corp. Code § 901, when the corporation receives payment for its shares [see Garretson v. Pacific Crude Oil Co. (1905) 146 Cal. 184, 188, 79 P. 838] .

2. If shares have not been issued, determine whether amendment will be adopted by incorporators or by directors.

NOTE:

If the first directors were not named in the articles and have not been elected, any amendment must be adopted by a majority of the incorporators; otherwise, by a majority of the directors [Corp. Code § 901; see [4][a], below; § 10.200].

3. If shares have been issued [see P 1, above], determine requirements for approval of amendment.

a. May amendment be adopted by board of directors alone [see Corp. Code § 902(b), (d); §§ 10.30[2][b], 10.201]?

b. Must amendment be approved by both board and outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 902(a); §§ 10.30[2][a], 10.202]?

c. Must amendment also be approved by class of shares affected by proposed amendment or by supermajority vote [see Corp. Code §§ 152, 300(b), 706(a), (c), 903(a), (b), 904; 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.63; §§ 10.30[2][c], 10.202]?

4. Determine minimum number of affirmative votes required for approval of amendment by:

a. Incorporators or directors, before shares are issued [see Corp. Code § 901 (requiring majority of incorporators or directors)].

b. Board of directors, after shares have been issued.

NOTE:
The affirmative vote of a majority of the directors present at a meeting at which a quorum is present is sufficient to adopt an amendment to the articles [see Corp. Code § 307(a)(8)], unless a greater number is required by the articles themselves [see Corp. Code § 204(a)(5)] or by statute [see Corp. Code § 151]. If approval is to be obtained by written consent without a meeting, the approval must be unanimous [Corp. Code § 307(c)].

c. Outstanding shares [see Corp. Code §§ 152, 902(a); § 10.30[2][a].

d. Any class or series of shares, whether or not that class or series otherwise has voting rights [see Corp. Code § 903(a); § 10.31[1], [2]].

NOTE:
In this case, the amendment must also be approved by the outstanding voting shares [Corp. Code § 903(c); see Corp. Code § 902(a)].

4-10 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 10.116

§ 10.116 Filing Requirements Other Than Certificate of Amendment

1. Determine whether any certificate (other than certificate of amendment [see Corp. Code §§ 905, 906]), notice, or other document describing amendment must be filed with appropriate governmental agency.

a. Does amendment require filings in other states where corporation is qualified?

NOTE:
Amendments to the articles of incorporation may need to be filed in, or notice given to, the Secretary of State, the Commissioner of Corporations, or other agencies in states in which the corporation is qualified to do business as a foreign corporation. In addition to reviewing the laws of each state in which the corporation is qualified to do business, the attorney may want to consult with local counsel or a local corporate agent to determine any required filings.

b. Does amendment require permit under California Corporate Securities Law before shareholder approval is solicited [see § 10.50]?

c. Does amendment require permit, registration, or qualification under securities laws of states (other than California) where any corporate shareholders reside?

d. Does amendment require filing registration statement with Securities and Exchange Commission, or delivering prospectus to shareholders?

e. Does amendment require permit from governing authority for specialized corporations within California [see, e.g., Ins. Code §§ 707, 713-714 (insurance companies), Fin. Code §§ 600 (banks or trust companies), 5650-5651 (savings and loan associations)], or outside California?

f. If corporation is professional corporation [see Corp. Code §§ 13400 et seq.], does amendment require approval of regulatory agency governing profession?

g. If corporation is tax-exempt, does amendment require filings with appropriate federal and state taxing authorities?

h. If amendment changes corporation's name, does amendment require other filings within or outside California (see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 17913 (fictitious business name)]?

i. If corporation's securities are listed on securities exchange, does exchange or Securities and Exchange Commission require notification [see, e.g., New York Stock Exchange Listed Company Manual, §§ 204.03 et seq. (required filing of copies of material to be sent to shareholders related to amendment); 17 C.F.R. § 240.10b-7 (required notice to SEC of stock split or reverse stock split)]?

2. Determine whether advance tax ruling from Internal Revenue Service regarding tax effect of amendment (e.g., recapitalizations or changes in rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions of outstanding shares) is desirable.

PART IV. FORMS
A. Certificates of Amendment--General Forms

4-10 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 10.200

§ 10.200 Certificate of Amendment Before Shares Are Issued

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a certificate of amendment for use by the incorporators or, if directors were named in the original articles or were elected, by the directors, to amend the articles of incorporation before the corporation has issued any shares [see Corp. Code § 906]. If the directors were named or have been elected, they may file a certificate of amendment as provided in Corp. Code § 905, instead of this certificate [Corp. Code § 906; see § 10.201].

[b] "Issued" Defined for Purposes of Corp. Code § 901

This approval procedure may be used only if no shares have been issued. Shares are probably issued, for the purposes of Corp. Code § 901, when the corporation receives payment for its shares [see Garretson v. Pacific Crude Oil Co. (1905) 146 Cal. 184, 188, 79 P. 838] .

[c] Amendment by Incorporators

If no directors have been elected, any amendment to the articles before shares have been issued may be adopted by a majority of the incorporators [Corp. Code § 901]. If there are only two incorporators, both must consent to the amendment. The incorporator may be one or more natural persons, partnerships, associations, or domestic or foreign corporations [Corp. Code § 200(a)].

[d] Amendment by Directors

If directors were named in the original articles of incorporation or were elected by the incorporators, and no shares have been issued, any amendment to the articles may be adopted by a majority of the directors [Corp. Code § 901]. If there are only two directors [see Corp. Code § 212(a)], both must approve the amendment. For discussion of director action by meeting or by written consent, see §§ 10.40, 10.240, and 10.241.

[e] Required Certificate of Amendment

Any amendment to the articles before shares have been issued may be adopted by a writing executed by a majority of the incorporators or the directors [Corp. Code § 906; see Corp. Code § 901; [b], [c], above]. The writing must be a certificate of amendment, signed and filed as provided in Corp. Code § 906 [see Corp. Code § 906; [2], below], or, if the directors were named or have been elected, they may file a certificate of amendment as provided in Corp. Code § 905 [Corp. Code § 906; see § 10.201].

[f] Contents of Certificate

The certificate of amendment contains the text of the amendment and a statement of facts showing that the amendment has been adopted as required by statute [see Corp. Code §§ 905-907]. If no directors have been elected, the certificate must state that the signors constitute at least a majority of the incorporators, and that directors were not named in the original articles and have not been elected [Corp. Code § 905]; or, if directors were named in the original articles or were elected, the certificate must be state that the signors constitute at least a majority of the board [Corp. Code § 905]. In either case, the certificate must also state that the corporation has issued no shares, and that the directors or incorporators adopt the amendment or amendments set forth in the certificate [Corp. Code § 905].

If the corporation is listed--i.e., has outstanding shares listed on the New York Stock Exchange, the NYSE Amex, the NASDAQ Global Market, or the NASDAQ Capital Market--and amends its articles to divide its board into classes or eliminate cumulative voting, or both, the certificate must also state facts showing that the corporation is a listed corporation or that the article provision will become effective only when the corporation becomes listed [Corp. Code § 301.5(j); see Corp. Code § 301.5(d); see also § 10.215].

A corporation may not amend its articles to alter the names and addresses of the first directors, or the name and address of the initial agent for service of process, except to correct an error or to delete either after the corporation has filed the identification statement required by Corp. Code § 1502 [Corp. Code § 900(b); see Corp. Code § 902(d)].

Amended articles may contain only those provisions that could be lawfully included in original articles on the date of the amendment [Corp. Code § 900(a)]. The original articles may include any lawful provision for the management of the business or the conduct of the corporation's affairs [Corp. Code § 204(d)]. Amendments that are specifically required or prohibited by statute are discussed in §§ 10.13[1][b] and 10.20, respectively. Equitable limitations on the power to amend are discussed in § 10.13[2].

The certificate of amendment filed by either the incorporators or the directors must be verified [Corp. Code § 906]. Verification may be by declaration under penalty of perjury, stating the date and place of execution [see Corp. Code § 193(b)]. Verification by declaration may be used both within or outside California Corp. Code § 193(b)]. Verification may also be by notarized affidavit [see Corp. Code § 193(a)], but this procedure is less likely to be used, since it requires notarization. An affidavit sworn to outside California before a notary public or a judge or clerk of a court of record having an official seal does not need to be further authenticated [Corp. Code § 193].

If the incorporator is a corporation or other entity [see Corp. Code § 200(a)], this form should be modified to reflect the fact that signature and verification will be by an officer of the incorporating entity.

[h] Wording of Amendment

[i] Statutory Requirements

Corp. Code § 907(a) prescribes the general wording of the amendment. It states that the certificate must establish the wording of the amendment or amended articles by one or more of the following means [Corp. Code § 907(a)]:

- By stating that the articles shall be amended to read as therein set forth in full.

- By stating that any provision of the articles, which must be identified by the numerical or other designation given it in the articles, or by stating its wording, shall be stricken from the articles or shall be amended to read as set forth in the certificate.

- By stating that the provisions set forth in the certificate shall be added to the articles.

If an existing provision of the articles will be stricken or amended, the statute specifies that the provision must be identified in the amendment, either by referring to the numerical or letter designation given to it in the articles, or by quoting the entire existing provision. If the provision will be stricken from the articles, the amendment must state that fact [Corp. Code § 907(a)(2)]. If an existing provision is being amended, the amendment must state that the provision will be amended to read as set forth in the amendment [Corp. Code § 907(a)(2)]. The amended provision must then be set forth, in its entirety, in the amendment [Corp. Code § 907(a)(2)]. Similarly, if a new provision is added to the articles, that provision must be set forth in full in the amendment, and the amendment must state that the new provision is added to the articles [Corp. Code § 907(a)(3)].

Common mistakes to avoid in the wording of amendments include:

- Striking or amending an existing provision by referring to a particular word or phrase in the provision (instead, the provision must be referred to by its numerical or letter designation [see Corp. Code § 907(a)(2)]).

- Adding a word or phrase to an existing provision by stating that the word or phrase is to be inserted in a certain place in the provision (instead, the amended provision must be set forth in its entirety, incorporating the new word or phrase [see Corp. Code § 907(a)(2)]).

Additional drafting requirements for amendments affecting the outstanding shares are discussed in § 10.201[1][g].

[ii] Drafting Requirements of Secretary of State

In addition to the statutory requirements for drafting certificates of amendment [see Corp. Code § 907(a); [i], above; § 10.201[1][g]], the Secretary of State has provided information and a sample amendment that meets those requirements for most filings. The sample (AMDT-Stock) may be accessed by going to the Forms, Samples & Fees page of the Secretary's Business Programs Division website at http://www.sos.ca.gov/business/bpd_forms.htm#corp and following the appropriate link.

[i] Filing

The original and at least two copies of the certificate of amendment, together with the applicable fee(s), must be mailed or hand delivered to the Secretary of State's office in Sacramento. Certificates of amendment are not filed in the branch offices. To facilitate the processing of documents mailed to the office, a self-addressed envelope and a letter referencing the corporate name and number, as well as the name, return address, and telephone number of the person filing the amendment should also be submitted.

The certificate is filed by the Secretary of State on the day it is received, unless the filing or the effectiveness is delayed by the party submitting the certificate, or by the Secretary of State [see Corp. Code § 110]. The filing may be delayed no more than 90 days after its receipt [Corp. Code § 110(a)], and the effectiveness may be delayed no more than 90 days after filing [Corp. Code § 110(c)]. Upon their filing, the articles are amended in accordance with the certificate [Corp. Code § 908].

[j] Certification

A copy of the certificate, certified by the Secretary of State, is prima facie evidence of the performance of the conditions necessary to adopt the amendment [Corp. Code § 908].

[k] Format Requirements for Certificate

The Secretary of State's Office has provided the following general guidelines for submitting documents (including certificates of amendment) for filing:

- Submit originally signed documents. Copies cannot be substituted for an original.
- Document should be typed on white letter-size bond paper using only one side of the page. (Fax paper is not acceptable.)
- Document must be legible. Documents with poor black and white contrast, blue ink, pencil, illegible handwriting, etc. will not be accepted for filing.
- A space, preferably in the upper right hand corner of proposed filings, must be left for the Secretary of State file stamp. This space should be about three inches square.

Copies of the certificate of amendment should be prepared, as follows:

- The original certificate and at least two copies of the certificate should be included in the submission to the Secretary of State's office. The original certificate will be microfilmed and destroyed, unless counsel requests its return and provides a postage-prepaid, self-addressed envelope.
- Conformed copy for certification by the Secretary of State. This copy should be filed in the corporation's record book.
- File copy to be retained in the corporation's record book until return of the original (if requested) and certified copies from the Secretary of State's office.
- Other copies as required for use by corporation.

[m] Fees

The Secretary of State's fee for filing a certificate of amendment is set forth in Gov. Code § 12186(p). The Secretary will compare and certify up to two copies at no charge if they are submitted with the original to be filed [Gov. Code § 12185; see Gov. Code §§ 12182, 12183 (other fees)].

Additional fees apply for documents delivered in person at the public counter in the Sacramento headquarters office, and for preclearance or expedited filing [see http://www.sos.ca.gov/business/precexp.htm].

PART IV. FORMS
A. Certificates of Amendment--General Forms

4-10 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 10.201

§ 10.201 Certificate of Amendment After Shares Are Issued--Amendment Approved By Board Alone

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a certificate of amendment for use by the board of directors to amend the articles of incorporation after the corporation has issued shares, when board approval alone is required [see [b], [c], below]. For a certificate to be used after the corporation has issued shares, when the amendment must be adopted by both the board and the shareholders, see § 10.202.

For discussion of drafting requirements in general, verification of the certificate, format specifications, the number of copies to prepare, and the Secretary of State's fees, see § 10.200[1][b]-[m].

For a certificate of amendment for use by the directors (or incorporators) before the corporation has issued any shares, see § 10.200[2].

For certificates of amendment accomplishing specified changes, see §§ 10.210-10.214.

[b] Approval By Board Alone

After shares have been issued, amendments generally may be adopted only if approved by both the board of directors and by the outstanding shares, either before or after board approval [Corp. Code § 902(a)]. Certain amendments, however, may be adopted by board approval alone [see [c], below].

"Approved by (or approved of) the board" means approved by the vote of the board of directors [Corp. Code §§ 151, 155]. Except when a greater proportion is required by statute, by the articles, or, if the articles so permit, by the bylaws, approval is indicated by the vote of a majority of the directors present at a meeting at which a quorum is present [see Corp. Code §§ 204(a)(5), 307(a)(8)], or by the unanimous written consent of the directors without a meeting [see Corp. Code §§ 194, 195, 307(b)]. When board approval alone of an amendment of the articles is permitted, that approval must be by the board as a whole, and not by a committee of the board [Corp. Code § 151; see Corp. Code § 311(a)].

[c] Amendments That May Be Approved by Board Alone

Amendments that may be adopted by the board alone include the following:

- An amendment to delete close corporation status when the number of close corporation shareholders exceeds 35 [Corp. Code § 158(e); see § 10.212].

- An amendment authorizing a change in the number of outstanding shares (if the directors are authorized by the articles to take this action [see Corp. Code § 202(e)]), after a certificate of determination has been filed as part of the restated articles, as provided in Corp. Code § 910 [Corp. Code § 401(c)].

- An amendment to increase the authorized shares to satisfy option or conversion rights, after the issue of options or convertible securities has been approved by the outstanding shares [Corp. Code § 405(b)].

- An amendment to reflect the reduction in authorized shares, if the corporation has reacquired shares that may not be reissued [Corp. Code § 510(b)].

- An amendment to extend or to make perpetual the term of corporate existence of a corporation organized before August 14, 1929 [Corp. Code § 902(b); see § 10.210].

- An amendment effectuating a stock split [see Corp. Code § 188 (stock split defined)] (including an increase in the number of authorized shares in proportion to the split), when the corporation has only one class of shares outstanding [Corp. Code § 902(c); see § 10.213].

- An amendment deleting the names and addresses of the first directors or of the initial agent for service of process after the corporation has filed the annual statement with Secretary of State required under Corp. Code § 1502 [Corp. Code § 902(d); see Corp. Code § 900(b)].

- An amendment changing the name of the surviving corporation in a short-form merger of a parent corporation and a 90 percent (or more) owned subsidiary [Corp. Code § 1110(a), (d)].

- An amendment accomplishing a reorganization when specified share ownership requirements are met [see Corp. Code § 1201(b)].

- Certain amendments to the articles of a corporation existing on January 1, 1977 [see Corp. Code § 2302; § 10.12[2]].

Further, certificates filed with the Secretary of State that do not amend the articles, such as a certificate of correction [see Corp. Code § 109], a certificate of determination [see Corp. Code §§ 156, 401], or a certificate restating but not amending the articles of incorporation [see Corp. Code § 910] may be approved by the board alone.

[d] Director Action at Meeting or by Written Consent

Action by the directors to amend the articles of incorporation may be taken at annual, regular, or special meetings of directors [Corp. Code § 307(a); see §§ 10.40[2], 10.240], or by the unanimous written consent of the directors without a meeting [Corp. Code § 307(b); see §§ 10.40[3], 10.241].

[e] Form of Certificate of Amendment

When a certificate of amendment is adopted after the corporation has issued shares, the certificate must be an "officers' certificate," signed and verified by two officers (the chairman of the board, the president, or any vice president and by the secretary, the chief financial officer, the treasurer, or any assistant secretary or assistant treasurer) [Corp. Code § 173; see Corp. Code § 193 (verification); § 10.200[1][g]].

[f] Contents of Certificate

[i] Required Statements

When a certificate of amendment is adopted by the board of directors alone after the corporation has issued shares, it must state the following:

- The wording of the amendment in accordance with the provisions of Corp. Code § 907 [Corp. Code § 905(a); § 10.200[1][h]];
- That the amendment has been approved by the board [Corp. Code § 905(b)];
- A statement of facts entitling the board alone to adopt the resolution [Corp. Code § 905(d)].
- If the amendment effects a stock split [see Corp. Code § 188] or a reverse stock split [see Corp. Code § 182], or reclassifies, cancels, exchanges, or otherwise changes outstanding shares, the effect of the amendment on the outstanding shares [Corp. Code § 907(b); see also Corp. Code § 907(c), (d) (exceptions); [g], below; § 10.213].

[ii] Prohibited Statements

The amended articles may contain only those provisions that could be lawfully included in original articles on the date of the amendment [Corp. Code § 900(a)]. The original articles may include any lawful provision for the management of the business or the conduct of the corporation's affairs [Corp. Code § 204(d)]. Amendments that are specifically required or prohibited by statute are discussed in §§ 10.13[1][b] and 10.20, respectively. Equitable limitations on the power to amend are discussed in § 10.13[2].

[g] Drafting Requirements for Amendments Affecting Outstanding Shares

Corp. Code § 907(b) provides that if the purpose of the amendment is to effectuate a stock split [see Corp. Code § 188] or a reverse stock split [see Corp. Code § 182], or to reclassify, cancel, exchange, or otherwise change outstanding shares, the amended articles must state the effect on outstanding shares. Thus, if the amendment changes or affects the outstanding shares, the change or effect must be set forth in the amendment. For example, if the amendment will accomplish a two-for-one stock split, the amendment must state that each outstanding share is divided into two shares [see Corp. Code §§ 407, 907(b)]. If the amendment effectuates a two-for-one reverse stock split, the amendment must state that each outstanding share is combined and changed into one-half of one share, and must also include a statement regarding the treatment of fractional shares [see Corp. Code §§ 407, 907(b)].

In two cases, the effect of the changes on outstanding shares is automatic, unless the amendment itself states the effect. First, if an amendment reclassifies a single class of shares into two classes, and does not state the effect on the outstanding shares, Corp. Code § 907(c) provides that the shares outstanding immediately before the amendment are automatically considered to be the same number of shares of the common stock class. If the amendment designates both classes or neither class as "common," but one of the two classes created by the amendment has limited or no voting rights, the class whose voting rights are not limited is the common stock [Corp. Code § 907(c)]. Second, Corp. Code §

907(d) provides that an amendment that adds, eliminates, or changes a stated par value, and does not also state the effect on outstanding shares is not subject to the requirement of Corp. Code § 907(b) that the effect or change actually be set forth in the amendment itself [Corp. Code § 907(d)]. In the absence of any other change, the effect of a change in par value is obvious.

[h] Securities Considerations

Filing the certificate of amendment effectuates any stated change in the shares [Corp. Code § 908; see [i], below]. Thus, before filing the amendment, counsel should determine whether the change requires qualification by the Commissioner of Corporations [see § 10.50] or notice to, or a permit from, another agency [see § 10.116].

[i] Filing

The original and at least two copies of the certificate of amendment, together with the applicable fee(s), must be mailed or hand delivered to the Secretary of State's office in Sacramento. Certificates of amendment are not filed in the branch offices. To facilitate the processing of documents mailed to the office, a self-addressed envelope and a letter referencing the corporate name and number, as well as the name, return address, and telephone number of the person filing the amendment should also be submitted [see Corp. Code §§ 169, 906].

The certificate is filed by the Secretary of State on the day it is received, unless the filing or the effectiveness is delayed by the party submitting the certificate or by the Secretary of State [see Corp. Code § 110]. The filing may be delayed no more than 90 days after its receipt [Corp. Code § 110(a)], and the effectiveness may be delayed no more than 90 days after filing [Corp. Code § 110(c)]. On its filing, the articles are amended in accordance with the certificate [Corp. Code § 908].

For further discussion of the Secretary of State's filing requirements and the applicable filing fees, see § 10.200[1][i], [l], and [m].

A. Certificates of Amendment--General Forms

4-10 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 10.202

§ 10.202 Certificate of Amendment After Shares Are Issued--Amendment Approved by Board and Outstanding Shares

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a certificate of amendment for use after shares have been issued, when the amendment must be adopted by both the board of directors and the outstanding shares. Optional paragraphs are included for use if the amendment must be approved by more than one class of shares or by a supermajority vote [see [b], [c], below]. For a certificate to be used after shares have been issued, when the amendment may be adopted by the board alone, see § 10.201.

For discussion of drafting requirements in general, verification of the certificate, format specifications, the number of copies to prepare, and the Secretary of State's fees, see § 10.200[1][b]-[m]. For discussion of drafting requirements for amendments affecting the outstanding shares, see § 10.201[1][g]. For a certificate of amendment for use by the directors (or incorporators) before the corporation has issued any shares, see § 10.200[2]. For certificates of amendment accomplishing specified changes, see §§ 10.210-10.214.

[b] Approval by Board and Outstanding Shares

After shares have been issued, amendments generally may be adopted only if approved by both the board of directors and by the outstanding shares, either before or after board approval [Corp. Code § 902(a)]. "Approval of the outstanding shares" means approval by the affirmative vote of a majority of the outstanding shares entitled to vote [Corp. Code § 153; see Corp. Code § 902(a)]. Certain amendments, however, may be adopted by board approval alone [see § 10.201[1][c]], while other amendments may require additional shareholder approval, or approval by specified percentages of outstanding shares or classes or series [see [c], below].

[c] Additional Approval by Class or Series of Shares

A separate vote of approval by a class or series of shares affected by a proposed amendment or supermajority vote is required only:

- If required by the articles [see Corp. Code § 152; § 10.32] or by shareholder agreement [see Corp. Code §§ 300(b), 706(a), (c); see also § 10.11[3]];

- Under certain circumstances enumerated in the Corporations Code, including, for example, Corp. Code §§ 903(a), (b), and 904 [see § 10.31]; or

- If required by the Commissioner of Corporations [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. 260.140.63; § 10.33].

[d] Director and Shareholder Action at Meetings or By Written Consent

Action by the directors to amend the articles of incorporation may be taken at annual, regular, or special meetings of directors [Corp. Code § 307(a); see §§ 10.40[2], 10.240], or by the unanimous written consent of the directors without a meeting [Corp. Code § 307(b); see §§ 10.40[3], 10.241]. For further discussion of directors' meetings, resolutions, and written consents, see Ch. 5, Directors' Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions ,

Similarly, action by the shareholders to amend the articles of incorporation may be taken at a shareholders' meeting [Corp. Code § 600(b), (d); see § 10.242], or by the written consent of the shareholders without a meeting [Corp. Code § 603(a); see § 10.243]. Further, close corporations may dispense with the corporate formalities relating to shareholders' meetings, if so authorized by a close corporation shareholder agreement [see Corp. Code § 300(b), (e); § 10.11[3][a]]. For further discussion of shareholders' meetings and action by written consent, see Ch. 8A, Shareholders' Meetings, Voting, and Agreements .

[e] Required Form of Certificate of Amendment

Any amendment to the articles after shares have been issued must be an "officers' certificate," signed and verified by two officers (the chairman of the board, the president, or any vice president and by the secretary, the chief financial officer, the treasurer, or any assistant secretary or assistant treasurer) [Corp. Code § 173; see Corp. Code § 193 (verification); § 10.200[1][g]].

Special filing requirements apply if the amendment is the result of a merger [see Corp. Code § 905]. In this case, neither a certificate of amendment nor a certificate of restated articles should be filed [see Corp. Code § 905]. Instead, the filing of an officer's certificate and the merger agreement in accordance with Corp. Code § 1103 or, for a short-from merger, the certificate of ownership in accordance with Corp. Code § 1110(d) takes the place of any filing required by Corp. Code §§ 900 et seq. [Corp. Code § 905].

[f] Contents of Certificate

[i] Required Statements

When a certificate of amendment is adopted by the board of directors and the outstanding shares, it must state:

- The wording of the amendment in accordance with the requirements of Corp. Code § 907 [Corp. Code § 905(a); §§ 10.200[1][h], 10.201[1][g]; see Paragraph 2 of Form].

- That the amendment has been approved by the board [Corp. Code § 905(b); see Paragraph 3 of Form].

- That the amendment was approved by the required shareholder vote [see Corp. Code § 194 (vote includes authorization by written consent)], in accordance with Corp. Code §§ 902 [see § 10.30[2][a]], 903 [see § 10.31[1], [2]], or 904 [Corp. Code § 905(c); see § 10.31[3]; see Paragraph 4 of Form].

- The total number of outstanding shares of each class (if there is more than class) entitled to vote on the amendment [Corp. Code § 905(c); see Paragraph 4 of Form].

- The percentage vote required of each class (if there is more than one class) of shares entitled to vote [Corp. Code § 905(c); see Corp. Code § 111; see Paragraph 4 of Form].

- That the number of shares (of each class) voting in favor of the amendment either equaled or exceed the required vote [Corp. Code § 905(c); see Paragraph 4 of Form].

- If the amendment effectuates a stock split [see Corp. Code § 188] or a reverse stock split [see Corp. Code § 182], or reclassifies, cancels, exchanges, or otherwise changes outstanding shares, the change or effect on outstanding shares [Corp. Code § 907(b); see Corp. Code § 907(c), (d) (exceptions); § 10.201[1][g]].

- If the corporation is a listed corporation [see Corp. Code § 301.5(d) (listed corporation defined)] and amends its articles to classify its board or eliminate cumulative voting, a statement of facts showing the corporation is a listed corporation or a statement that the provision will become effective only when the corporation becomes listed [Corp. Code § 301.5(j); see § 10.31[4]; see also § 10.215].

Special rules apply to an amendment to convert from a for-profit corporation to nonprofit or cooperative status [see Corp. Code § 911(b); see also § 10.42[2]]. Special rules also apply to an amendment permitting assessments of shares of a mutual water company [see Corp. Code § 904(b); Pub. Util. Code § 2705 (mutual water company defined)].

[ii] Prohibited Statements

The amended articles may contain only those provisions that could be lawfully included in original articles on the date of the amendment [Corp. Code § 900(a)]. The original articles may include any lawful provision for the management of the business or the conduct of the corporation's affairs [Corp. Code § 204(d)]. Amendments that are specifically required or prohibited by statute are discussed in §§ 10.13[1][b] and 10.20, respectively. Equitable limitations on the power to amend are discussed in § 10.13[2].

[g] Securities Considerations

Filing the certificate of amendment effects any stated change in the shares [Corp. Code § 908; see [h], below]. Thus, before filing the amendment, counsel should determine whether the change requires qualification by the Commissioner of Corporations [see § 10.50], or notice to, or a permit from, another agency [see § 10.116].

[h] Filing

The original and at least two copies of the certificate of amendment, together with the applicable fee(s), must be mailed or hand delivered to the Secretary of State's office in Sacramento. Certificates of amendment are not filed in the branch offices. To facilitate the processing of documents mailed to the office, a self-addressed envelope and a letter referencing the corporate name and number, as well as the name, return address, and telephone number of the person filing the amendment should also be submitted [see Corp. Code §§ 169, 906].

The certificate is filed by the Secretary of State on the day it is received, unless the filing or the effectiveness is delayed by the party submitting the certificate, or by the Secretary of State [see Corp. Code § 110]. The filing may be delayed no more than 90 days after its receipt [Corp. Code § 110(a)], and the effectiveness may be delayed no more than 90 days after filing [Corp. Code § 110(c)]. Upon their filing, the articles are amended in accordance with the certificate [Corp. Code § 908].

For further discussion of filing requirements and the applicable filing fees, see § 10.200[1][i], [l], and [m].

4-10 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 10.210

§ 10.210 Certificate of Amendment To Extend Term of Corporate Existence, or To Provide for Perpetual Existence

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a certificate of amendment to provide for perpetual existence of a corporation originally formed for a limited period.

For discussion of drafting requirements in general, verification of the certificate, format specifications, the number of copies to prepare, and the Secretary of State's fees, see § 10.200[1][b]-[m]. For a certificate of amendment for use by the directors (or incorporators) before the corporation has issued any shares, see § 10.200[2]. For certificates of amendment accomplishing other changes, see §§ 10.210-10.214.

[b] Amendment to Extend Corporate Existence

A California corporation formed for a limited period [see Corp. Code § 204(a)(4)] may, at any time before the expiration of that period, amend its articles either to extend its term, or to delete the limitation (and, thus, provide for perpetual existence) [see Corp. Code § 900(a)]. Further, any California corporation may, at any time after the expiration of its term of corporate existence, extend the term of its existence by amending its articles to remove the limiting provision and to provide for perpetual existence, provided the corporation has continuously acted and done business as a corporation [Corp. Code § 909].

The amendment may be adopted with the approval of the board [see Corp. Code § 151] and of the outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 152], either before or after approval by the board [Corp. Code § 902(a)], or if the amendment extends or makes perpetual the corporate existence of a corporation organized before August 14, 1929, it may be adopted with the approval of the board alone [Corp. Code § 902(b)]. For the purpose of adopting this type of amendment, persons who have been functioning as the corporation's directors are considered to have been validly elected even if their election occurred after the expiration of the original term of the corporate existence [Corp. Code § 909].

[c] Prohibited Name

If the corporation's term of existence has expired, and the filing of the certificate of amendment providing for perpetual existence would be prohibited by Corp. Code § 201 (relating to prohibited names) if the certificate were the original articles, the Secretary of State must not file the certificate unless the articles of the corporation are amended by the same or a concurrently filed certificate of amendment to adopt a new available name [Corp. Code § 909].

With this in mind, counsel should request a name check and a reservation of name from the Secretary of State's office [see Corp. Code § 201(c)] before preparing the resolutions approving the amendment.

[d] Contents of Certificate

In addition to the matters required by Corp. Code § 905 [see § 10.42[2]] to be set forth in the certificate of amendment, if the corporation's term of existence has expired, the certificate must also state that the corporation has continuously acted as a corporation and done business as such from the expiration of the term of its corporate existence to the date of the amendment [Corp. Code § 909].

§ 10.211 Certificate of Amendment To Make Corporation a Close Corporation

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a certificate of amendment of the articles of a corporation to establish close corporation status. It assumes that the corporation has issued shares. If shares have not been issued, the requirements for approval should be modified accordingly [see [c], below]. For discussion of drafting requirements in general, verification of the certificate, format specifications, the number of copies to prepare, and the Secretary of State's fees, see § 10.200[1][b]-[m]. For a certificate of amendment for use by the directors (or incorporators) before the corporation has issued any shares, see § 10.200[2]. For a certificate of amendment to terminate close corporation status, see § 10.212.

[b] Close Corporation Defined; Required Provision in Articles

A close corporation is a corporation organized under the Corporations Code, whose articles contain, in addition to the provisions required by Corp. Code § 202, a provision that all of the corporation's issued shares of all classes will be held of record by not more than a specified number of persons, not exceeding 35, and the statement, "This corporation is a close corporation" [Corp. Code § 158(a)]. For the manner of determining the number of shareholders, see Corp. Code § 158(d). For discussion of the advantages of close corporation status, see § 10.11[3][a] and Ch. 8C, Close Corporation Shareholder Agreements .

[c] Required Approval of Amendment

The provisions required by Corp. Code § 158(a) [see [b], above], establishing close corporation status, may be included in the articles by amendment [Corp. Code § 158(b)]. However, if shares have been issued, the amendment may be adopted only by the affirmative vote of all of the issued and outstanding shares of all classes [Corp. Code § 158(b)], regardless of limitations or restrictions on their voting rights [Corp. Code § 117].

[d] Name of Corporation

A close corporation's name must contain the word "corporation," "incorporated," or "limited," or an abbreviation of one of these words [Corp. Code § 202(a)]. If the name of the corporation electing close corporation status does not contain one of these words or abbreviations, the articles must also to be amended to include one. In this case, counsel should request a name check and a reservation of name from the Secretary of State's office before preparing the resolutions approving the amendment [see Corp. Code § 201(c) (reservation of name); see also Corp. Code § 201(a), (b) (prohibited names)].

[e] Exchange of Share Certificates

The old shares certificates should be exchanged for new certificates. The new certificates must contain the statements required by Corp. Code § 417.

§ 10.212 Certificate of Amendment To Terminate Close Corporation Status

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a certificate of amendment to terminate close corporation status.

For discussion of drafting requirements in general, verification of the certificate, format specifications, the number of copies to prepare, and the Secretary of State's fees, see § 10.200[1][b]-[m]. For a certificate of amendment for use by the directors (or incorporators) before the corporation has issued any shares, see § 10.200[2]. For a certificate of amendment to establish close corporation status, see § 10.211.

[b] Termination of Close Corporation Status; Required Approval of Amendment

A corporation ceases to be a close corporation on the filing of an amendment to its articles in accordance with Corp. Code § 158(c), deleting the special provisions required for close corporations [Corp. Code § 158(c); see Corp. Code § 158(a) (required provisions)]. If shares have been issued, the amendment may be adopted only by the affirmative vote of at least two-thirds of each class of the outstanding shares, regardless of limitations or restrictions on their voting rights [Corp. Code § 117], or by another vote as provided in the articles [Corp. Code § 158(c); see Corp. Code § 902(f)]. The articles may provide for a lesser vote, but not less than a majority of the outstanding shares, or may deny a vote to any class, or both [Corp. Code § 158(c)].

A corporation also ceases to be a close corporation if it has more than the maximum number of shareholders specified in its articles as a result of [Corp. Code § 158(e)]:

- An inter vivos transfer of shares that is not void under Corp. Code § 418(d),
- The transfer of shares by will or according to the laws of descent and distribution,

- The dissolution of a partnership, corporation, or business association, or the termination of a trust that holds shares,

- Court decree on dissolution of a marriage, or

- Otherwise by operation of law.

Promptly on acquiring more than the specified number of shareholders, a close corporation must execute and file an amendment to its articles deleting the provisions referred to in Corp. Code § 158(a), and deleting any other provision not permissible for a corporation that is not a close corporation [Corp. Code § 158(e)]. The amendment must be promptly approved and filed by the board of directors [Corp. Code § 158(e)]; in this case, it does not need to be approved by the outstanding shares [Corp. Code § 158(e)].

[c] Exchange of Share Certificates

The old shares certificates should be exchanged for new certificates. The new certificates must contain the statements required by Corp. Code § 417.

§ 10.213 Certificate of Amendment to Effectuate Stock Split

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a certificate of amendment of the articles of a corporation to effectuate a stock split by approval of the board alone [see [d], below]. If approval of the outstanding shares, or of the additional shares affected is required [see, e.g., § 10.202[2]], or a reverse stock split is desired [see [b], below], this form should be modified accordingly.

For discussion of drafting requirements in general, verification of the certificate, format specifications, the number of copies to prepare, and the Secretary of State's fees, see § 10.200[1][b]-[m]. For certificates of amendment accomplishing other changes, see §§ 10.210, 10.212, and 10.214.

[b] Stock Split and Reverse Stock Split Defined

A stock split is the pro rata division, other than a share dividend, of all the outstanding shares of a class, into a greater number of shares of the same class [Corp. Code § 188]. A reverse stock split is the pro rata combination of all the outstanding shares of a class into a smaller number of shares of the same class [Corp. Code § 182].

A stock split or a reverse stock split may be effectuated only by amending the articles of incorporation [Corp. Code §§ 182, 188].

[c] Contents of Certificate

When a certificate of amendment is adopted by the board of directors alone after the corporation has issued shares, it must state:

- The wording of the amendment in accordance with the requirements of Corp. Code § 907 [Corp. Code § 905(a); § 10.200[1][h]].

- That the amendment has been approved by the board [Corp. Code § 905(b)].

- A statement of facts entitling the board alone to adopt the resolution [Corp. Code § 905(d)].

- If the amendment effects a stock split [see Corp. Code § 188] or a reverse stock split [see Corp. Code § 182], or reclassifies, cancels, exchanges, or otherwise changes outstanding shares, the change or effect on outstanding shares [Corp. Code § 907(b); see Corporations Checklist (State of California, Office of Secretary of State, 1990, p. 39); see also Corp. Code § 907(c), (d) (exceptions)].

For example, if the amendment will accomplish a two-for-one stock split, the amendment must state that each outstanding share is divided into two shares [see Corp. Code §§ 407, 907(b)]. If the amendment effectuates a two-for-one reverse stock split, the amendment must state that each outstanding share is combined and changed into one-half of one share, and must also include a statement regarding the treatment of fractional shares [see Corp. Code §§ 407, 907(b)].

[d] Required Approval of Amendment

An amendment of the articles effectuating a stock split or a reverse stock split generally may be adopted only if approved by the board of directors and by the outstanding shares [Corp. Code § 902(a); see Corp. Code § 903(a) (additional approval of outstanding shares of affected class, whether or not that class has voting rights); § 10.30[2][c]]. However, if the corporation has only one class of shares outstanding, an amendment effectuating only a stock split (including any increase in the authorized number of shares required in connection with it and taking account of shares then reserved for future issuance) may be adopted with approval by the board alone [Corp. Code § 902(c)].

[e] Effect of Filing Amendment

Filing the amendment automatically, without any further action by the shareholders or the corporation, splits the shares [see Corp. Code § 908]. The exchange of share certificates simply memorializes the conversion that the filing has effectuated.

[f] Permit from Corporations Commissioner

Stock splits and reverse stock splits are exempt from the qualification requirements of the Corporate Securities Law of 1968, with certain exceptions [Corp. Code § 25103(f); see § 10.52]. If a permit from the Commissioner of Corporations is required, it must be obtained before seeking approval of the amendment by the outstanding shares, but not before entering into negotiations or agreements that are subject to the shareholders' approval [see Corp. Code § 25103(a)]. Consequently, the qualification by permit must be obtained before the certificate of amendment can be filed.

§ 10.214 Certificate of Amendment to Reclassify Shares to Create Senior Class

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a certificate of amendment to reclassify a single class of shares into two classes, one with rights and privileges senior to the other. Reclassification commonly occurs when the shares originally authorized and issued are unclassified, and the corporation wants to issue and sell preferred shares and to designate the outstanding shares as common shares.

For discussion of drafting requirements in general, verification of the certificate, format specifications, the number of copies to prepare, and the Secretary of State's fees, see § 10.200[1][b]-[m]. For discussion of the required contents of a certificate of amendment when the certificate is adopted by the board of directors and the outstanding shares, see § 10.202[1][f].

[b] Special Drafting Requirements for Amendments Reclassifying Shares

Corp. Code § 907(b) provides that if the purpose of the amendment is to reclassify, cancel, exchange, or otherwise change outstanding shares, the amended articles must state the effect of the reclassification, cancellation, or exchange on the outstanding shares. However, in certain cases, the effect of the changes on outstanding shares is automatic, unless the amendment itself states the effect. If an amendment reclassifies a single class of shares into two classes, and does not state the effect on the outstanding shares, Corp. Code § 907(c) provides that the shares outstanding immediately before the amendment are automatically considered to be the same number of shares of the common stock class. If the amendment designates both classes or neither class as "common," but one of the two classes created by the amendment has limited or no voting rights, the class whose voting rights are not limited is the common stock [Corp. Code § 907(c)].

When shares are divided into classes, a preference statement must also be added to the articles of incorporation, if different rights, privileges, or preferences are granted to or restrictions imposed on the respective classes or series of shares [see Corp. Code § 202(e)(3)]. This statement may be added to the article being amended [see [2], below], or added as a separate article. For articles with preference statements, see Ch. 3, Articles of Incorporation .

[c] Required Approval of Amendment

After shares have been issued, an amendment to reclassify shares may be adopted, only if approved by both the board of directors and by the outstanding shares, either before or after board approval [Corp. Code § 902(a)]. Proposed amendments to reclassify shares also must be approved by the outstanding shares of any affected class, whether or not it is entitled to vote on the amendment by the provisions of the articles [see Corp. Code § 903(a)], if the amendment would create a new class of shares having rights, preferences, or privileges prior to the shares of that class, or increase the rights, preferences, or privileges or the number of authorized shares of any class having rights, preferences, or privileges prior to the shares of that class [Corp. Code § 903(a)(5); see § 10.31[1]]. This requirement is in addition to the requirement that the proposed amendment must be approved by the outstanding voting shares [Corp. Code § 903(c)].

The old shares certificates should be exchanged for new certificates. The new certificates must contain the statements required by Corp. Code § 417.

PART IV. FORMS
B. Certificates of Amendment--Effectuating Specified Changes

4-10 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 10.215

§ 10.215 Certificate of Amendment to Classify Board of Directors and Eliminate Cumulative Voting

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a certificate of amendment to divide the board of directors into two or three classes to serve for terms of two or three years respectively, and to eliminate cumulative voting. The form is primarily for use by listed corporations [see [b], below], but may be used by a corporation that is not listed, provided that the amendment will not take effect until the corporation becomes a listed corporation [Corp. Code § 301.5(a); see [c], below]. Alternatively, a listed corporation may, when appropriate, effect these changes by amending its bylaws [Corp. Code § 301.5(a); see Ch. 4, Bylaws]. Notwithstanding Corp. Code § 903, an article (or bylaw) amendment providing for the division of the board of directors into classes, or any change in the number of classes, or the elimination of cumulative voting may only be adopted by the approval of the board and the outstanding shares [Corp. Code § 152] voting as a single class [Corp. Code § 301.5(a)].

If the board of directors is divided into two classes, the authorized number of directors must be no less than six, and one half of the directors (or as close an approximation as possible) must be elected at each annual meeting of shareholders. If the board of directors is divided into three classes, the authorized number of directors must be no less than nine, and one third of the directors (or as close an approximation as possible) must be elected at each annual meeting of shareholders. Directors of a listed corporation may be elected by classes at a meeting of shareholders at which such an amendment is approved; however, the extended terms for directors are contingent on that approval, and in the case of an amendment to the articles, the filing of any necessary amendment to the articles [Corp. Code § 301.5(b); see Corp. Code §§ 905, 910].

If directors for more than one class are to be elected by the shareholders at any one meeting of shareholders, and the election is by cumulative voting pursuant to Corp. Code § 708, votes may be cumulated only for directors to be elected within each class [Corp. Code § 301.5(c)].

Whenever an article amendment classifying directors or eliminating cumulative voting is adopted by a listed corporation, the certificate of amendment must include a statement of the facts showing that the corporation is a listed corporation [Corp. Code § 301.5(j)].

[b] "Listed Corporation" Defined

A "listed corporation" is a corporation with outstanding shares listed on the New York Stock Exchange, the NYSE Amex, the NASDAQ Global Market, or the NASDAQ Capital Market [Corp. Code § 301.5(d)].

[c] When Corporation Is Not Listed Corporation

After the issuance of shares, a corporation that is not a listed corporation [see [b], above], by amending its articles or bylaws, may adopt provisions to be effective when the corporation becomes a listed corporation to divide the board of directors into two or three classes to serve for terms of two or three years respectively, or to eliminate cumulative voting, or both [Corp. Code § 301.5(a)]. In general, when a corporation that is not a listed corporation adopts amendments to its articles of incorporation (or bylaws) to divide its board of directors into classes, to eliminate cumulative voting, or both, and then becomes a listed corporation, the amendments become effective for the next election of directors after the corporation becomes a listed corporation at which all directors are to be elected unless the articles of incorporation or bylaws provide for those provisions to become effective at some other time and, when classes of directors are provided for, identify the directors who, or the directorships that, are to be in each class or the method by which those directors or directorships are to be identified [Corp. Code § 301.5(g)]. However, if the corporation becomes a listed corporation on or after the record date for a shareholders' meeting but before the conclusion of the meeting, including the conclusion of the meeting after an adjournment or postponement that does not require or result in the setting of a new record date, then, solely for purposes of the amendment, the corporation is not deemed to have become a listed corporation until the conclusion of the meeting of shareholders [Corp. Code § 301.5(i)].

Whenever an article amendment classifying directors or eliminating cumulative voting is adopted by a corporation that is not a listed corporation, the amendment must include the following statement or its substantial equivalent [Corp. Code § 301.5(j)]: "This provision shall become effective only when the corporation becomes a listed corporation within the meaning of Section 301.5 of the Corporations Code."

[d] When Corporation Ceases to Be Listed Corporation

Ordinarily, when a listed corporation with a board of directors divided into classes ceases to be a listed corporation for any reason, the board of directors ceases to be divided into classes as to each class of directors as of the date of the expiration of the term of the directors in that class unless the articles of incorporation or bylaws of the corporation provide for the elimination of classes of directors at an earlier date or dates [Corp. Code § 301.5(e); but see Corp. Code § 301.5(h)]. Similarly, the term of each director serving at the time the corporation ceases to be a listed corporation (and the term of each director elected to fill a vacancy resulting from the death, resignation, or removal of any of those directors) continues until its expiration as if the corporation had not ceased to be a listed corporation, unless the articles of incorporation or bylaws of the corporation provide for the elimination of classes of directors at an earlier date or dates [Corp. Code § 301.5(e); but see Corp. Code § 301.5(h)]. Further, when the articles or bylaws of a listed corporation contain a provision eliminating cumulative voting, or a provision permitting noncumulative voting in the election of directors, or both, and the corporation ceases to be a listed corporation for any reason, the shareholders are entitled to cumulate their votes [Corp. Code § 708] at any election of directors occurring while the corporation is not a listed corporation notwithstanding that provision in its articles of incorporation or bylaws [Corp. Code § 301.5(f); but see Corp. Code § 301.5(h)]. However, if the corporation ceases to be a listed corporation on or after the record date for a shareholders' meeting but before the conclusion of the meeting, including the conclusion of the meeting after an adjournment or postponement that does not require or result in the setting of a new record date, then, solely for purposes of the amendment, the corporation is not deemed to have ceased to be a listed corporation until the conclusion of the meeting of shareholders [Corp. Code § 301.5(h)].

PART IV. FORMS
C. Restated Articles of Incorporation

4-10 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 10.220

§ 10.220 Restated Articles of Incorporation

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form restates in a single certificate the entire text of a corporation's articles of incorporation as amended to the date of filing of the certificate, but does not include any new amendments. It is drafted as an officer's certificate, and is for use by the corporation after shares have been issued or by the directors of the corporation before shares have been issued. For discussion of the verification of the certificate, format specifications, the number of copies to prepare, and the Secretary of State's fees, see § 10.200[1][b]-[m]. For discussion of and an example of the certificate to be used by incorporators (and, optionally, by directors) before shares have been issued, see § 10.200.

The Secretary of State has provided information and a sample of restated articles that meets those requirements for most filings. The sample (REST-STOCK) may be accessed by going to the Forms, Samples & Fees page of the Secretary's Business Programs Division website at: http://www.sos.ca.gov/business/bpd_forms.htm#corp and following the appropriate link.

Restatement is useful if the articles are poorly written, or if numerous amendments make their use cumbersome. A corporation may also restate and amend its articles [Corp. Code § 910(a)]. For a certificate that restates and amends the articles, see § 10.221.

[b] Form of Certificate of Restated Articles

[i] After Shares Are Issued

After shares have been issued, a corporation may restate (without alteration or amendment) in a single certificate its entire articles of incorporation, as amended to the date of filing of the certificate, by filing an officers' certificate entitled, "Restated Articles of Incorporation of _____ (name of corporation)" [Corp. Code § 910(a); see Corp. Code § 173 (officers' certificate defined); see also §§ 10.201[2], 10.202[2]]. This certificate must be signed and verified by two officers (the chairman of the board, the president, or any vice president and by the secretary, the chief financial officer, the treasurer, or any assistant secretary or assistant treasurer) [Corp. Code § 173; see Corp. Code § 193 (verification); § 10.200[1][g]].

[ii] Before Shares Are Issued

Before shares have been issued, the corporation may restate in a single certificate its entire articles of incorporation, by filing a certificate entitled "Restated Articles of Incorporation of _____ (name of corporation)" [Corp. Code § 910(a); see Corp. Code §§ 901, 906 (amendments before issuance of shares)]. This certificate must be signed and verified by a majority of the incorporators, or if the board was named in the original articles or have been elected, by a majority of the board [Corp. Code § 910(a); see Corp. Code § 193 (verification); § 10.200[1][g]]. For discussion of and an example of this certificate, see § 10.200.

When the board of directors restates and amends the articles, the corporation may file the officer's certificate prescribed by Corp. Code § 905 (normally used after issuance of shares), rather than the certificate prescribed by Corp. Code § 906 [Corp. Code § 906; see Corp. Code § 910; [i], above].

[c] Contents of Certificate of Restated Articles

Restated articles must set forth the entire text of the articles, as amended to the date of filing of the certificate, except that the following must be omitted [Corp. Code § 910(a)]:

- The signatures and acknowledgements of the articles by the incorporators;
- Any statements of the effects of prior amendments on outstanding shares;
- Any provisions of agreements of merger, other than amendments to the articles of the surviving corporation; and
- The names and addresses of the initial directors and any initial agent for service of process (unless the corporation has not yet filed a statement under Corp. Code § 1502, in which case, this information must be included in the restated articles).

The omissions listed above are not alterations or amendments of the articles [Corp. Code § 910(a)]. The omitted information is either no longer relevant to the corporation's current operations, or is provided separately in another required filing [see Corp. Code § 1502 (required annual informational filing)].

Certificates of determination (of rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions [see Corp. Code §§ 156, 401(a); see also Ch. 3, Articles of Incorporation]) are considered part of the articles of incorporation [Corp. Code § 910(c); see Corp. Code § 154]. Therefore, the provisions of any certificates of determination, designated as articles, must also be included in the restated articles [Corp. Code § 910(c)].

[d] Approval of Certificate of Restated Articles

A certificate of restated articles that does not alter or amend the articles may be approved by the board alone if the board has been elected, or by a majority of the incorporators if shares have not been issued and directors have not been elected [Corp. Code § 910(b)]. The certificate is subject to the statutory provisions governing an amendment to the articles not requiring approval of the outstanding shares [Corp. Code § 910(b); see Corp. Code § 152 (approval of the outstanding shares defined); Corp. Code § 900 et seq. (governing provisions); § 10.201].

"Approved by (or approved of) the board" means approved by the vote of the board of directors [Corp. Code §§ 151, 155]. Except when a greater proportion is required by statute, or by the articles, or, subject to the articles, by the bylaws, approval is indicated by the vote of a majority of the directors present at a meeting at which a quorum is present [see Corp. Code §§ 204(a)(5), 307(a)(8)], or by the unanimous written consent of the directors without a meeting [see Corp. Code §§ 194, 195, 307(b)]. When board approval alone of an amendment of the articles is permitted, that approval must be by the board as a whole, and not by a committee of the board [Corp. Code § 151; see Corp. Code § 311(a)]. For discussion of amendment procedure by the incorporators, see § 10.200[1][c].

[e] Filing Certificate of Restated Articles

The original and at least two copies of the certificate, together with the applicable fee(s), must be mailed or hand delivered to the Secretary of State's office in Sacramento. Restated articles are not filed in the branch offices. To facilitate the processing of documents mailed to the office, a self-addressed envelope and a letter referencing the corporate name and number, as well as the name, return address, and telephone number of the person filing the certificate should also be submitted [see Corp. Code §§ 169, 906].

The applicable filing fee is set forth in Gov. Code § 12186(p). Additional fees apply for documents delivered in person at the public counter in the Sacramento headquarters office, and for preclearance or expedited filing [see http://www.sos.ca.gov/business/precexp.htm].

Properly filed, restated articles supersede for all purposes the original articles and any previously filed amendments and certificates of determination [Corp. Code § 910(d)].

CHAPTER 10 AMENDMENT OF ARTICLES
PART IV. FORMS
C. Restated Articles of Incorporation

4-10 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 10.221

§ 10.221 Certificate of Restated and Amended Articles of Incorporation

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a certificate of restated articles of incorporation that amends and restates the articles. It is drafted as an officer's certificate, and is for use by the corporation after shares have been issued, or by the directors of the corporation before shares have been issued.

For discussion of and an example of the certificate to be used by incorporators (and, optionally, by directors) before shares have been issued, see § 10.200. The Secretary of State has provided information and a sample of restated articles that meets those requirements for most filings. The sample (REST-STOCK) may be accessed by going to the Forms, Samples & Fees page of the Secretary's Business Programs Division website at: http://www.sos.ca.gov/business/bpd_forms.htm#corp and following the appropriate link.

Restatement is useful at the same time as amendment if the articles are poorly written, or if numerous amendments make their use cumbersome. For a certificate that restates the articles without amendment, see § 10.220. For discussion of the wording of an amendment, verification of the certificate, format specifications, the number of copies to prepare, and the Secretary of State's fees, see § 10.200[1][b]-[m].

[b] Form of Certificate of Restated and Amended Articles

[i] After Shares Are Issued

After shares have been issued, the corporation may restate and amend in a single certificate its entire articles of incorporation by filing an officers' certificate entitled, "Restated Articles of Incorporation of _____ (name of corporation)" [Corp. Code § 910(a); see Corp. Code § 173 (officers' certificate defined); see also §§ 10.201[2], 10.202[2]]. This certificate must be signed and verified by two officers (the chairman of the board, the president, or any vice president and by the secretary, the chief financial officer, the treasurer, or any assistant secretary or assistant treasurer) [Corp. Code § 173; see Corp. Code § 193 (verification); § 10.200[1][g]].

[ii] Before Shares Are Issued

Before shares have been issued, the corporation may restate and amend in a single certificate its entire articles of incorporation by filing a certificate entitled, "Restated Articles of Incorporation of _____ (name of corporation)" [Corp. Code § 910(a); see Corp. Code §§ 901, 906 (amendments before issuance of shares)]. This certificate must be signed and verified by a majority of the incorporators, or if the board was named in the original articles or have been elected, by a majority of the board [Corp. Code § 910(a); see Corp. Code § 193 (verification); § 10.200[1][g]]. For discussion of and an example of this certificate, see § 10.200.

When the board of directors restates and amends the articles, the corporation may file the officer's certificate prescribed by Corp. Code § 905 (normally used after issuance of shares), rather than the certificate prescribed by Corp. Code § 906 [Corp. Code § 906; see Corp. Code § 910; [i], above].

[c] Contents of Certificate of Restated and Amended Articles

The required statements and omissions of a certificate of restated and amended articles include all of the statements and omissions required in a certificate that restates, but does not alter or amend the articles [see Corp. Code § 910(a); § 10.220]. In addition, a certificate that amends as well as restates the articles must comply with Corp. Code §§ 905 (certificate after issuance of shares) or 906 (certificate before issuance of shares), and with Corp. Code § 907 (required provisions in certificate) [Corp. Code § 910(b); see §§ 10.200-10.202; see also Corp. Code § 301.5 (additional requirements for listed corporations amending articles to classify board or eliminate cumulative voting)]; and, except for certificates approved by a majority of the incorporators, the certificate must also state that the board has approved the restated articles [Corp. Code § 910(b); see Corp. Code §§ 905(b), 906].

[d] Approval of Certificate of Restated and Amended Articles

A certificate that restates and amends the articles is subject to the statutory provisions related to the particular amendment(s) made [Corp. Code § 910(b)]. Thus, if no directors have been elected, any certificate restating and amending the articles before shares have been issued may be adopted by a majority of the incorporators [see Corp. Code §§ 901, 906]. If there are only two incorporators, both must consent to the amendment. If directors were named in the original articles of incorporation or were elected by the incorporators and no shares have been issued, a certificate restating and amending the articles may be adopted by a majority of the directors [see Corp. Code §§ 901, 906]. If there are only two directors [see Corp. Code § 212(a)], both must approve the amendment. For discussion of director action by meeting or by written consent, see §§ 10.240 and 10.241.

After shares have been issued, a certificate restating and amending the articles may be adopted generally only if approved by both the board of directors and by the outstanding shares, either before or after board approval [see Corp. Code §§ 902(a), 905, 910(a); § 10.202].

Certain amendments, however, may be adopted by the board alone [see § 10.201], or may require additional shareholder approval [see § 10.202].

[e] Filing Certificate of Restated and Amended Articles

The original and at least two copies of the certificate, together with the applicable fee(s), must be mailed or hand delivered to the Secretary of State's office in Sacramento. Restated articles are not filed in the branch offices. To facilitate the processing of documents mailed to the office, a self-addressed envelope and a letter referencing the corporate name and number, as well as the name, return address, and telephone number of the person filing the certificate should also be submitted [see Corp. Code §§ 169, 906].

The applicable filing fee is set forth in Gov. Code § 12186(p). Additional fees apply for documents delivered in person at the public counter in the Sacramento headquarters office, and for preclearance or expedited filing [see http://www.sos.ca.gov/business/precexp.htm].

The certificate is filed by the Secretary of State on the day it is received, unless the filing or the effectiveness is delayed by the party submitting the certificate or by the Secretary of State [see Corp. Code § 110]. The filing may be delayed no more than 90 days after its receipt [Corp. Code § 110(a)], and the effectiveness may be delayed no more than 90 days after filing [Corp. Code § 110(c)]. Properly filed, restated articles supersede for all purposes the original articles and any previously filed amendments and certificates of determination [Corp. Code § 910(d)].

D. Certificates of Correction

4-10 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 10.230

§ 10.230 Certificate of Correction of Certificate of Amendment

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a certificate of correction to be used to correct a misstatement of fact in or a defect in the execution of a previously filed certificate of amendment of articles of incorporation.

This form is drafted as an officer's certificate, and is for use by the corporation after shares have been issued, or by the directors of the corporation before shares have been issued. For discussion of and an example of the certificate to be used by incorporators (and, optionally, by directors) before shares have been issued, see § 10.200, as well as the following discussion.

[b] Restrictions on Use of Certificate of Correction

A certificate of correction may be used to correct a misstatement of fact contained in the articles of incorporation or in any previously filed certificate of amendment, any defect in execution, or any other error or defect contained in the articles or a certificate of amendment [see Corp. Code § 109(a)]. However, the certificate of correction must not alter the wording of any resolution or written consent that was adopted by the board of directors or the shareholders [Corp. Code § 109(a)]. The only way to correct this type of error is to hold another directors' meeting (and, if required, another shareholders' meeting), adopt a new amendment, and file a new certificate of amendment.

A certificate of correction may not be used to effectuate a corrected amendment of the articles if the amendment as corrected would not have complied with the requirements of the Corporations Code at the time the certificate being corrected was filed [Corp. Code § 109(a)]. Thus, in practice, a certificate of correction may be used only when the wording of the resolution adopted by the board or the shareholders differs from the wording of the amendment in the certificate, or when the error is in something other than the wording of the amendment.

The filing of the certificate of correction does not alter the effective time of the certificate that is being corrected.

Further, the filing does not affect any right accrued or liability incurred before the filing, although any such right or liability resulting from the error or defect being corrected is extinguished by the filing, if there was no detrimental reliance on that error or defect [Corp. Code § 109(e); see, e.g., Catalina Investments, Inc. v. Jones (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 1, 8-9, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 256 (corporation's certificate of dissolution, even if erroneously filed, could not be corrected nunc pro tunc pursuant to certificate of correction; limitation on relief available under Corp. Code § 109 is necessary to protect integrity of public records on which third parties might have relied)].

[c] Form of Certificate of Correction

If the certificate of correction corrects original articles, the certificate must be either an officer's certificate [see Corp. Code § 173], or a certificate signed and verified by at least a majority of the incorporators [Corp. Code § 109(b)]. If the certificate of correction corrects a certificate of amendment, the certificate must be either an officers' certificate, or a certificate signed and verified in the manner required for the particular instrument being corrected [Corp. Code § 109(b)]. The required form for an officer's certificate is discussed in §§ 10.201 and 10.202. The form for a certificate signed and verified by the incorporators in discussed in § 10.200.

[d] Contents of Certificate of Correction

The certificate must be entitled, "Certificate of Correction of _____ [articles of incorporation or certificate of amendment] of _____ [name of corporation]" [Corp. Code § 109(a)].

A certificate of correction must contain the following [Corp. Code § 109(c)]:

- The name or names of the corporation.
- The date of filing of the certificate or original articles.
- If a provision was defective, the corrected provision.
- If the execution was defective, an explanation of how it was defective.
- If applicable, a statement that the certificate does not alter the wording of any resolution or written consent that was adopted by the board or the shareholders.

[e] Required Identification and Wording of Article Provisions

If a provision of the articles, amended articles, restated articles [see Corp. Code § 910], or certificate of determination [see Corp. Code § 156] is being corrected, the certificate of correction must identify that provision in accordance with the requirements for a certificate of amendment [Corp. Code § 109(d); see Corp. Code § 907(a); § 10.200[1][h]]. The certificate of correction must also establish the wording of the provision as required by statute for a certificate of amendment [see Corp. Code § 907(a); §§ 10.200[1][h], 10.201[1][g]].

[f] Signature and Verification Requirements

A certificate of correction is signed and verified in the same manner as a certificate of amendment [Corp. Code § 109(b); see Corp. Code § 905 (certificate of amendment after issuance of shares requires officers' certificate), § 10.201[1][e]; Corp. Code § 906 (certificate of amendment before issuance of shares requires signature of majority of incorporators or board of directors), § 10.200[1][c], [d]]. Verification is discussed in § 10.200[1][g].

[g] Filing and Filing Fees

The certificate of correction is filed in the office of the Secretary of State [Corp. Code §§ 109(a), 169].

The filing fee is set forth in the Government Code [Corp. Code § 108; see Gov. Code § 12186(p)]. The Secretary of State will compare and certify two copies at no charge when they are submitted with the original to be filed [Gov. Code § 12185]. A fee is charged for additional copies [see Gov. Code §§ 12182, 12183].

4-10 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 10.240

§ 10.240 Director Action at Meeting: Minutes of Board Meeting Approving Amendment to Articles of Incorporation

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an example of the minutes of a regular or special board meeting. It includes optional resolutions customarily adopted at the same time as the amendment to the articles of incorporation, if the amendment requires approval of the outstanding shares or a permit from the Commissioner of Corporations. If action will be taken by written consent, rather than at a meeting, the form in § 10.241 should be used.

The directors' participation in the meeting, the corporation's duty to keep minutes, the effect of certification of the minutes, and their general contents are discussed below.

For further discussion of directors' meetings, including types of meetings, meeting procedure, and forms of notice, see Ch. 5, Directors, Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions .

[b] Directors' Participation in Meeting

Unless the articles or bylaws provide otherwise, directors may participate in directors' meetings in person, or by conference telephone, electronic video screen communication, or electronic transmission by and to the corporation [see Corp. Code §§ 20, 21]. Participation in a meeting through use of conference telephone or electronic video screen communication constitutes presence in person at that meeting, provided that all members participating in the meeting are able to hear one another. Participation in a meeting through electronic transmission by and to the corporation (other than conference telephone and electronic video screen communication) constitutes presence in person at that meeting if: (1) each member participating in the meeting can communicate with all of the other members concurrently; and (2) each member is provided the means of participating in all matters before the board, including, without limitation, the capacity to propose, or to interpose an objection to, a specific action to be taken by the corporation [Corp. Code § 307(a)(6)].

A quorum (or requisite number of directors) is required to validly transact corporate business, subject to special rules applicable to transactions involving an interested director [Corp. Code § 307(a)(8); see Corp. Code §§ 310, 317(e)]. If a quorum is not present, any acts taken at the meeting are voidable by the corporation or its shareholders [see Olincy v. Merle Norman Cosmetics, Inc. (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 260, 273, 19 Cal. Rptr. 387] , although a majority of the directors present may adjourn the meeting to another time and place [Corp. Code § 307(a)(4)].

[c] Duty to Keep Minutes

Each corporation must keep minutes of the proceedings of its board of directors and committees of the board [see Corp. Code § 1500]. The minutes and other required books and records must be kept in written form or in another form capable of being converted into clearly legible tangible form [Corp. Code § 1500].

Minutes are ordinarily kept in a "minute book," a loose leaf binder or a special book, available from legal stationers. The minutes of directors' meetings are filed chronologically, along with any actions taken by the directors or committees of the board by unanimous written consent without a meeting [see Corp. Code § 307(b)], waivers of notice, consents to the holding of directors' meetings, and approvals of the minutes [see Corp. Code § 307(a)(3)]. Minute books also frequently contain the articles of incorporation, certificates of amendment, restated articles, certificates of determination, bylaws and amendments to the bylaws, and copies of the annual filing required by the California Secretary of State [see Corp. Code §§ 1502, 1502.1].

[d] Certification of Minutes

The original or a copy of the minutes of a meeting of the board of directors or of committees of the board (or any resolution adopted the board or board committee), if (1) in writing or in any other form capable of being converted into clearly legible tangible form and (2) certified to be a true copy by a person purporting to be the corporate secretary or assistant corporate secretary, is prima facie evidence of the adoption of the resolution or the due holding of the meeting and of the matters stated in the minutes [Corp. Code §§ 314, 1502.1].

[e] Contents of Minutes

The statute is silent on the contents of the minutes. It requires only that they contain the "proceedings" of the meeting [see Corp. Code § 1500]. Although there is no consensus on what minutes should contain, there are certain items that corporate custom (and common sense) suggest should be put into the minutes:

- The date, time, and place of the meeting.
- The type of meeting (regular, special, or adjourned), and whether notice was required, given, or waived.
- The names of those present, including directors and individuals who are not directors, and the existence of a quorum of directors.
- The names of the presiding officer and the person taking the minutes.
- A statement whether the minutes of the last meeting were approved as distributed or as amended.
- The actions taken at the meeting, with or without the directors' rationale for each action.
- Adjournment, and if necessary, the date, time, and location of the next meeting.

Notice of a regular directors' meeting does not need to be given if the time and place of the meeting have been established either by the bylaws or by the board of directors [Corp. Code § 307(a)(2)].

[f] Use of Resolutions in Minutes to Approve Amendment to Articles

After shares have been issued, amendments may be adopted generally only if approved by both the board of directors and by the outstanding shares, either before or after board approval [Corp. Code § 902(a)]. In practice, however, shareholder approval ordinarily is obtained after the amendment has been adopted by the board, unless the amendment is promulgated by the shareholders without substantial board support. Certain amendments, however, may also be adopted by board approval alone [see § 10.30[2][b]].

The board of directors ordinarily approves the amendment by adopting a resolution setting forth the proposed amendment. A resolution adopted by the board of directors should be worded so that it can be adopted verbatim by the outstanding shares. It is also helpful to use, in the text of resolution, the exact wording of the amendment as prescribed by statute and interpreted by the Secretary of State [see §§ 10.200[1][h], 10.201[1][g]], so that it may be copied directly into the certificate of amendment. Any preamble to the resolution explaining its purpose [see Ch. 5, Directors Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions], or any wording other than the text of the amendment itself [see optional paragraphs in [2], below], should not be copied into the certificate [see Corp. Code § 905(a)]. It is customary to state that an amendment is "adopted and approved," since both words are used in Corp. Code § 900 et seq. [see Corp. Code §§ 902 ("adopted if approved"), 905 ("adopted"), 905(b), (c) ("approved"), 906 ("adopted")].

CHAPTER 10 AMENDMENT OF ARTICLES
PART IV. FORMS
E. Minutes, Resolutions, and Written Consents Approving Amendments

4-10 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 10.241

§ 10.241 Director Action by Unanimous Written Consent Approving Amendment to Articles of Incorporation

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a unanimous written consent, to be used by the directors to approve an amendment to the corporation's articles of incorporation without a meeting. In practice, directors of small, closely held corporations often act without a meeting, using a written consent. Individual waivers may be signed, or a single waiver may be signed collectively [see [2], below]. The wording of a resolution to be approved by the directors in an action by written consent is usually in the same form as it would appear in the minutes of a board meeting, had one been held [see § 10.240]. For further discussion of the wording of resolutions, see §§ 10.200[1][h] and 10.201[1][g].

[b] Statutory Requirements; Effect

The directors may act by written consent without a meeting. However, an action by written consent without a meeting requires the consent of all the members of the board. In addition, the number of board members serving at the time the action is taken must constitute a quorum [Corp. Code § 307(b); see Corp. Code § 194 (vote includes authorization by written consent)].

For purposes of unanimous board action without a meeting, the term "all members of the board" includes an "interested director" [see Corp. Code § 310(a)] or a "common director" [see Corp. Code § 310(b)] who abstains in writing from providing consent, when [Corp. Code § 307(b)]:

- The disclosures required by Corp. Code § 310 (generally requiring full disclosure of the material facts regarding the transaction and the director's interest) [see Ch. 4, Bylaws, § 4.200[2], Section 2.23] have been made to the noninterested or noncommon directors, as applicable, before their execution of the written consent or consents;

- The specified disclosures are conspicuously included in the written consent or consents executed by the noninterested or noncommon directors; and

- The noninterested or noncommon directors, as applicable, approve the action by a vote that is sufficient without counting the votes of the interested or common directors.

If the directors give written consent in accordance with the preceding rule, but the disclosures made regarding the action that is the subject of the consent do not satisfy statutory requirements [see Corp. Code § 310], the action that is the subject of the consent will be deemed approved. However, in any suit brought to challenge the action, the party asserting the validity of the action has the burden of proof in establishing that the action was just and reasonable to the corporation at the time it was approved [Corp. Code § 307(b)].

The requisite consent may be in the form of individual consents or one collective consent, or a facsimile, telegraphic, or other authorized electronic communication, including an electronic transmission by a corporation [see Corp. Code §§ 20, 195, 307(b)]. The consents must be filed with the minutes of the board's proceedings [Corp. Code § 307(b)].

4-10 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 10.242

§ 10.242 Shareholder Action at Meeting: Resolution Adopting Amendment to Articles of Incorporation

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a resolution to be adopted by the shareholders, for use at a shareholders' meeting. Shareholders may act at meeting or by written consent [see Corp. Code § 604(a)]. The statutory requirements and the procedures for holding shareholders' meetings, including the place, date, and time, giving notice, waivers of notice, record date and quorum requirements, and the exercise of shareholder voting rights through proxies or through voting agreements or voting trusts are discussed in Ch. 8A, Shareholders' Meetings, Voting, and Agreements .

[b] Required Approval of Amendment; Wording of Resolution

After shares have been issued, amendments may be adopted generally only if approved by both the board of directors and by the outstanding shares, either before or after board approval [Corp. Code § 902(a)]. In practice, however, shareholder approval is ordinarily obtained after the amendment has been adopted by the board, unless the amendment is promulgated by the shareholders without substantial board support. Certain proposed amendments affecting a class of shares must be approved by the outstanding shares of that class, whether or not the class is entitled to vote on the amendment by the provisions of the articles [see Corp. Code § 903(a); § 10.30[2][c]], as well as by the outstanding voting shares [Corp. Code § 903(c)]. If the amendment would make shares assessable or authorize judicial action against a shareholder to collect an assessment on fully paid shares, it must be approved by all of the outstanding shares, regardless of limitations or restrictions on their voting rights [Corp. Code § 904; see Corp. Code § 423(n); § 10.31[3]]. Certain amendments may also be adopted by board approval alone [see § 10.30[2][b]].

The board of directors ordinarily approves the amendment by adopting a resolution setting forth the proposed amendment. A resolution adopted by the board of directors should be worded so that it can be adopted verbatim by the outstanding shares (or vice versa). It is also helpful to use, in the text of resolution, the exact wording of the amendment, as prescribed by statute and interpreted by the Secretary of State [see §§ 10.200[1][h], 10.201[1][g]], so that it may be copied directly into the certificate of amendment. Any preamble to the resolution, explaining its purpose [ see Ch. 5, Directors Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions], or any wording other than the text of the amendment itself, [see optional paragraphs in [2], below] should not be copied into the certificate [see Corp. Code § 905(a)]. It is customary to state that an amendment is "adopted and approved," since both words are used in Corp. Code § 900 et seq. [see Corp. Code §§ 902 ("adopted if approved"), 905 ("adopted"), 905(b), (c) ("approved"), 906 ("adopted")]. For further discussion of the wording of amendments, see §§ 10.200[1][h] and 10.201[1][g].

4-10 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 10.243

§ 10.243 Shareholder Action by Written Consent Approving Amendment to Articles of Incorporation For Use By Corporation with Fewer than 100 Shareholders

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a shareholder's written consent approving an amendment to the articles of incorporation, to be used by a corporation with fewer than 100 shareholders. If the corporation has more than 100 shareholders and the consent will be distributed to 10 or more shareholders, the written consent must also include options for disapproval or abstention from voting [Corp. Code § 604(a); see Ch. 8A, Shareholders' Meetings, Voting, and Agreements]. The executed written consents should be filed in the corporation's minute book.

[b] Use of Written Consents; Statutory Requirements

Unless otherwise provided in the articles of incorporation, any action (other than the election of directors) that may be taken by the shareholders at any annual or special meeting may be taken without a meeting and without prior notice, by a consent in writing, provided that the consent of the same number of shares as would be necessary to authorize that action at a meeting is obtained [Corp. Code § 603(a); see Corp. Code § 603(d) (rules related to election of directors)].

The consent must set forth the action taken and be signed by the required number of shareholders [see Corp. Code § 603(a)]. Written consent may also be given by facsimile, telegraphic, and other authorized electronic communication, including an electronic transmission by the corporation [see Corp. Code §§ 20, 195].

Although there is no statutory requirement that all shareholders entitled to vote be solicited in writing for consents, if this is not the case, then the nonconsenting shareholders entitled to vote must be given a special notice of the action [Corp. Code § 603(b); see Ch. 8A, Shareholders' Meetings, Voting, and Agreements].

The written consent may be revoked if the corporation receives the written revocation before the written consents representing the number of shares required to authorize the proposed action have been filed with the corporation's secretary [Corp. Code § 603(c)]. For a revocation, see Ch. 8A, Shareholders' Meetings, Voting, and Agreements .

[c] Required Approval of Amendment; Wording of Resolution

After shares have been issued, amendments may be adopted generally only if approved by both the board of directors and by the outstanding shares, either before or after board approval [Corp. In practice, however, shareholder approval ordinarily is obtained after the amendment has been adopted by the board, unless the amendment is promulgated by the shareholders without substantial board support. Code § 903(a); § 10.30[2][c]], as well as by the outstanding voting shares [Corp. Code § 903(c)]. If the amendment would make shares assessable or authorize judicial action against a shareholder to collect an assessment on fully paid shares, it must be approved by all of the outstanding shares, regardless of limitations or restrictions on their voting rights [Corp. Code § 904; see Corp. Code § 423(n); 10.31[3]]. Certain amendments may also be adopted by board approval alone [see § 10.30[2][b]].

The board of directors ordinarily approves the amendment by adopting a resolution setting forth the proposed amendment. A resolution adopted by the board of directors should be worded so that it can be adopted verbatim by the outstanding shares (or vice versa). It is also helpful to use, in the text of resolution, the exact wording of the amendment, as prescribed by statute and interpreted by the Secretary of State [see §§ 10.200[1][h], 10.201[1][g]], so that it may be copied directly into the certificate of amendment. DIVISION I: BUSINESS AND NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS
CHAPTER 11 MERGER AND ACQUISITION ISSUES

5-11 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide Scope

Scope

Scope

This chapter discusses and compares the five basic methods by which one corporation may acquire another corporation:

- The purchase of all assets of one corporation by another corporation for cash or promissory notes.
- The purchase of all the outstanding shares of one corporation by another corporation for cash or promissory notes.
- The statutory merger of corporations.
- The exchange of all shares of one corporation for shares of the acquiring corporation.
- The exchange of all assets of one corporation for shares of the acquiring corporation.

The chapter is intended to guide attorneys in structuring a corporate acquisition in a manner that will be most appropriate to the goals of the corporations involved. The Legal Background covers both California law and federal tax law governing the various acquisition methods, and examines both tax and non-tax factors in selecting an acquisition method. It also discusses the accounting treatment of corporate acquisitions. The Research Guide lists primary and secondary sources applicable to the five acquisition methods. The Transaction Guide lists basic facts and documents used in the client interview, sets forth preliminary determinations used to select the appropriate acquisition method, and provides cross-references to the five specific chapters containing in-depth coverage of each specific acquisition methods. Finally, this chapter contains a chart comparing the requirements of the various acquisition methods.

This chapter focuses on comparing the features, advantages, and disadvantages of each of the acquisition methods to assist counsel in determining which method is best suited to the client. Once that method has been determined, the following chapters contain in-depth coverage of the mechanics of the five acquisition methods:

- Ch. 11A, Cash Purchase of Shares.

- Ch. 11B, Cash Purchase of Assets.
- Ch. 11C, Mergers.
- Ch. 11D, Acquisition of Shares for Shares.
- Ch. 11E, Acquisition of Assets for Shares.

Additional detailed discussion of corporate acquisition methods is contained in Ballantine & Sterling, CALIFORNIA CORPORATION LAWS, Ch. 12, Corporate Acquisitions, Mergers, and Reorganizations (Matthew Bender). Other applicable forms are set forth in Ballantine & Sterling, CALIFORNIA CORPORATION LAWS, Appendix A, Forms 13.01-13.28 (Matthew Bender).

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11.20

§ 11.20 Mergers and Acquisitions

[1] Terminology

The terms "merger" and "acquisition" are commonly used interchangeably in the business community. To an attorney, however, a "merger" is the statutory process of combining the acquired corporation into the acquiring corporation, often referred to as a "statutory merger" [Fox & Fox, Corporate Acquisitions and Mergers, Ch. 1, The Business Setting of Corporate Acquisitions and Mergers, § 1.01[1] (Matthew Bender); see § 11.23[1][a]]. Unless the context otherwise clearly indicates, the word "merger" is used in that sense throughout this chapter.

Despite any differences in terminology, the substantive result of either a merger or acquisition is the same: one corporation obtains ownership of another corporation [Fox & Fox, Corporate Acquisitions and Mergers, ch. 1, The Business Setting of Corporate Acquisitions and Mergers, § 1.01[1] (Matthew Bender)].

[2] Five Basic Acquisition Methods

One corporation can obtain ownership of another corporation by any of the following methods [see Cavitch, Business Organizations With Tax Planning, ch. 160, Review of Methods of Buying and Selling Corporate Businesses, § 160.02 (Matthew Bender); Fox & Fox, Corporate Acquisitions and Mergers, Ch. 5A, Summary of Acquisition Methods, § 5A.01 (Matthew Bender)]:

- The purchase of all the outstanding shares of one corporation by another corporation for cash or promissory notes [see Ch. 11A, Cash Purchase of Shares].

- The purchase of all assets of one corporation by another corporation for cash or promissory notes [see Ch. 11B, Cash Purchase of Assets].

- The statutory merger of corporations [see Ch. 11C, Mergers].

- The exchange of all shares of one corporation for shares of the other, acquiring, corporation [see Ch. 11D, Acquisition of Shares for Shares].

- The exchange of all assets of one corporation for shares of another corporation [see Ch. 11E, Acquisition of Assets for Shares].

CHAPTER 11 MERGER AND ACQUISITION ISSUES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11.21

§ 11.21 Governing Law

[1] California Corporation Law

[a] Generally

Four of the five principal methods by which one corporation can obtain ownership of another corporation are regulated by statute in California. The statutes regulating those four methods are contained in four consecutive chapters, Chapters 10-13, of the General Corporation Law [*see*Corp. Code §§ 1000-1313; see also [b]-[e], below]. The fifth method, a cash purchase of shares, is not subject to specific statutory regulation [see Ch. 11A, Cash Purchase of Shares, § 11A.21[1]].

[b] Sale of Assets for Cash

The General Corporation Law does not treat the sale of all assets by one corporation to another corporation for cash or promissory notes as a method of corporate acquisition, or define it as a form of "reorganization," as are the other regulated acquisition methods [see Corp. Code § 181; § 11.23[1]]. However, the sale of all assets by one corporation to another corporation for cash or promissory notes is regulated by the provisions of Chapter 10 of that law [Corp. Code § 1001(a)], which imposes special requirements on the sale or attempted sale by a corporation of all or substantially all of its property and assets [see Corp. Code §§ 1000-1002; see Ch. 11B, Cash Purchase of Assets, § 11B.20[2]]. An exchange of all assets of one corporation for shares of another corporation, however, is defined as a "reorganization" [see [d], below] and is excluded from the requirements of Chapter 10 of the General Corporation Law, even though it may be considered a sale of assets for some purposes [Corp. Code § 1001(a)].

[c] Statutory Merger

The merger of two or more corporations into one corporation [see Corp. Code § 1100], commonly known as a "statutory merger," is defined by California's General Corporation Law as a form of "reorganization" called a "merger reorganization" [see Corp. Code § 181(a); see also § 11.23[1][a]]. The procedural requirements and effect of a statutory merger of corporations are set forth in Chapter 11 of the General Corporation Law [Corp. Code §§ 1100-1113]. The shareholder consent requirements for a valid statutory merger or "merger reorganization" are set forth in Corp. Code §§ 1200 and 1201. Short-form mergers, or mergers of wholly owned or 90-percent-owned subsidiary corporations into their parent corporations, are expressly excluded from the statutory definition of a "reorganization" [see Corp. Code § 181(a)]. They are governed in their entirety by Corp. Code § 1110 [see Ch. 11C, Mergers, § 11C.29].

[d] Exchange of Shares for Shares or Assets for Shares

The third and fourth types of corporation acquisition methods regulated by statute in California are the exchange of all shares of one corporation for shares of another corporation, and the exchange of all assets of one corporation for shares of another corporation. Prior to 1977, these methods of corporate acquisition were often used to circumvent the shareholder consent requirements for a valid statutory merger [see § 11.22[2]]. In order to prevent this, the present General Corporation Law defines both of these types of corporate acquisition methods as well as statutory mergers as "reorganizations" [see Corp. Code § 181(b), (c); see also § 11.23[1][b],[c]]. That law subjects all reorganizations to the same shareholder consent requirements, which are set forth in Chapter 12 of the General Corporation Law [Corp. Code §§ 1200, 1201; see § Ch. 11C, Mergers, § 11C.122[4]-[6]].

[e] Dissenters' Rights in Reorganizations

Acquisitions defined as "reorganizations" are subject to Chapter 13 of the General Corporation Law, entitled "Dissenters' Rights" [Corp. Code §§ 1300-1313]. Those sections also apply to short-form mergers. They do not apply, however, to the sale of all assets by one corporation to another corporation for cash or promissory notes [see Corp. Code § 1300(a)].

Generally, Corp. Code §§ 1300-1313 provide a procedure by which a "dissenting shareholder" in a corporation that is a party to a "reorganization" or short-form merger, and who is entitled to vote on the transaction, may require the corporation to purchase his or her "dissenting shares" for cash at the fair market value they had on the day preceding announcement of the proposed "reorganization" or short-form merger [Corp. Code § 1300(a)]. Each shareholder of a disappearing corporation in a short-form merger is also entitled to require the purchase of his or her dissenting shares [Corp. Code § 1300(a)]. "Dissenting shareholder" and "dissenting shares" are terms of art expressly defined by statute [see Corp. Code § 1300(b), (c); see also Ch. 11C, Mergers, § 11C.150].

[2] Internal Revenue Code

[a] Tax-Free Reorganizations Generally

Transactions involving the purchase or sale of some or all of the business of a corporation can be a complicated areas of corporate practice. While these transactions involve considering a number of legal and non-legal factors that bear on the structuring and consequences of these transactions [Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, Ch. 160, Review of Methods of Buying and Selling Corporate Businesses, § 160.01 (Matthew Bender)], the tax consequences of the transaction usually are of primary concern [Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS and MERGERS, ch. 2A, General Considerations in Corporate Acquisitions and Mergers, § 2A.01 (Matthew Bender)]. The most obvious distinction between a taxable and tax-free transaction is that gain or loss is recognized in the former but not in the latter [Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, Ch. 173, Choosing the Method of Transferring the Ownership of a Corporate Business, § 173.02 (Matthew Bender)].

I.R.C. § 354 provides that no gain or loss will be recognized for federal income tax purposes when stock or securities in a corporation that is a party to a "reorganization" is exchanged, pursuant to the plan of reorganization, solely for stock or securities of the corporation or another corporation that is a party to the reorganization [I.R.C. § 354(a)]. I.R.C. § 361 provides that no gain or loss will be recognized for federal income tax purposes when a corporation that is a party to a "reorganization" exchanges property, pursuant to the plan of reorganization, solely for stock or securities in another corporation that is a party to the reorganization [I.R.C. § 361(a)]. The receipt of other property ("boot"), however, that is not distributed pursuant to the reorganization will result in the recognition of gain equal to the fair market value of the property (or the amount of money received) [I.R.C. § 361(b)].

The key word in both sections is "reorganization." The transaction is tax-free under either section (that is, no gain or loss is recognized for federal income tax purposes), only when the corporations involved are parties to a "reorganization" and the exchange of shares for shares [I.R.C. § 354(a)] or property for shares [I.R.C. § 361(a)] is made pursuant to a plan of "reorganization" [see I.R.C. § 368(a) (definition of reorganization); see also [b], below].

[b] "Reorganizations" for Federal Tax Purposes

I.R.C. § 368 defines "party to a reorganization" and "reorganizations" for purposes of I.R.C. §§ 354 and 361 [see I.R.C. § 368(a)(1), (b)]. A "party to a reorganization" is defined as including a corporation resulting from a reorganization, and both corporations when the reorganization results from the acquisition by one corporation of shares or property of another corporation [I.R.C. § 368(b)].

I.R.C. § 368(a)(1) lists seven types of corporate transactions that will be considered "reorganizations" for purposes of the tax-free provisions of the federal income tax law [see I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)]. The first three types of transactions on the list are acquisition methods by which one corporation seeks to obtain ownership of another corporation and are similar to the acquisition methods defined as "reorganizations" by California's General Corporation Law [see I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(A)-(C); see also Corp. Code § 181]. The fourth type of transaction on the list is a method of dividing a corporation, and the fifth and sixth types of transactions are corporate recapitalization methods [see I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(D)-(F)]. The final type of transfer qualifying as a "reorganization" basically involves a transfer of all a corporation's assets to another corporation in a Title 11 bankruptcy or similar case, and a corresponding distribution of stock of the corporation to which the assets are transferred in a transaction that qualifies under I.R.C. §§ 354-356 [see I.R.C. § 368(a)(3)(G)].

Because the types of transactions set forth in I.R.C. § 368(a)(1) are lettered with capital letters, the three acquisition methods discussed in this chapter have come to be known as "A reorganizations," "B reorganizations," and "C reorganizations" [Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, Ch. 3, Tax Factors in Corporate Acquistions and Mergers, § 3.03 (Matthew Bender)]. They may be described as follows [see I.R.C. § 368(a)(1); see also § 11.23[2]]:

- A statutory merger ("A" reorganization).
- An exchange of shares of one corporation for shares of another corporation ("B" reorganization).
- An exchange of all assets of one corporation for shares of another corporation ("C" reorganization).

Although the same three general types of acquisition methods are also defined as "reorganizations" by California's General Corporation Law [see Corp. Code § 181; see § 11.23[1]], the requirements a particular acquisition transaction must meet before it can be treated as a "reorganization" under the General Corporation Law of California or as a tax-free "reorganization" under I.R.C. § 368 are somewhat different. Therefore, understanding the purpose and meaning of the "reorganization" definition contained in the General Corporation Law and in I.R.C. § 368 is important; those subjects are covered below [see §§ 11.22 (purpose of definition), 11.23 (meaning of reorganization)].

DIVISION I: BUSINESS AND NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS
CHAPTER 11 MERGER AND ACQUISITION ISSUES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11.22

§ 11.22 Purposes Underlying State and Federal Treatment of Reorganizations

[1] In General

Both the General Corporation Law of California and the Internal Revenue Code define the term "reorganization" to include certain acquisition methods used by one corporation to gain ownership and control of another corporation [see Corp. Code § 181; I.R.C. § 368(a)(1); see also § 11.21]. The two definitions differ, however, as to the requirements a transaction involving one of the included acquisition methods must meet before it constitutes a "reorganization" within the meaning of the definition.

The purpose of the General Corporation Law is to regulate the organization, operation, reorganization, and eventual liquidation of corporations in California. The purpose of the Internal Revenue Code is to impose taxes and raise revenues for the federal government. Because the fundamental purpose of these two sets of statutes is different, the definitions of the term "reorganization" contained in them [see § 11.23, below] and the purposes sought to be served by those definitions also differ.

[2] California Corporation Law

[a] Codification of De Facto Merger Doctrine

The Report of the Assembly Select Committee on the Revision of the Corporations Code dated December 1, 1975 (cited in this chapter as "Assembly Select Comm. Rep."), explains that the definition and use of the term "reorganization" in the General Corporation Law was intended to codify the so-called "de facto merger" doctrine [Assembly Select Comm. Rep., at 27]. That doctrine was developed by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court in 1958 [see Farris v. Glen Alden Corp. (1958) 393 Pa. 427, 143 A.2d 25, 31] and named (although rejected) one year later by the Supreme Court of Delaware [see Heilbrunn v. Sun Chem. Corp. (1959) 38 Del. Ch. 321, 150 A.2d 755, 757 ; see [b], below].

In order to codify the de facto merger doctrine, the drafters of the present General Corporation Law (effective January 1, 1977) defined statutory mergers and all other transactions that have, or can have, the same practical result as a statutory merger as "reorganizations" as that term is used in the General Corporation Law [Corp. Code § 181; see Assembly Select Comm. Rep., at 27]. They also drafted the General Corporation Law to impose the same shareholder approval requirements on all reorganizations and to make any reorganization subject to the right of a dissenting shareholder to force the purchase of his or her shares [see Corp. Code §§ 1200-1313; see also Assembly Select Comm. Rep., at 27].

[b] Development of Doctrine

In a statutory merger, two or more corporations combine in the manner prescribed by statute, one of the corporations continues to exist as the same legal entity it was before the merger, and the other corporation or corporations to the merger are "merged" or absorbed into it [Cavitch, Business Organizations With Tax Planning, Ch. 162, Mergers, § 162.01 (Matthew Bender)]. Under California's General Corporation Law, the corporations in a statutory merger are called the "constituent corporations" [Corp. Code § 161], the corporation that continues to exist and into which the other corporations are "merged" or absorbed is called the "surviving corporation" [Corp. Code § 190], and each corporation that is merged or absorbed into the surviving corporation is called a "disappearing corporation" [Corp. Code § 165]. On perfection of a statutory merger all the assets and properties of each of the disappearing corporations become the property of the surviving corporation [Corp. Code § 1107], and the shareholders of each disappearing corporation exchange their shares in the disappearing corporation for shares of the surviving corporation [see Corp. Code § 1101; see also Ch. 11, Mergers].

Practically the same result can be achieved by having one corporation exchange all its assets and properties for shares of another corporation and then dissolve, distributing the shares it receives from the acquiring corporation to its own shareholders in return for surrender of its own shares for cancellation. As a result of either a statutory merger or an exchange of assets for shares followed by dissolution of the selling corporation, the surviving corporation becomes owner of all the assets of the selling or disappearing corporation and the shareholders of the disappearing or selling corporation have exchanged their shares in it for shares of the surviving corporation [see Hills, Consolidation of Corporations by Sale of Assets and Distribution of Shares, 19 Cal. L. Rev. 349 (1931)]. Either type of transaction, if properly conducted, should be an income tax-free reorganization to both corporations and their shareholders [see Rabkin & Johnson, FEDERAL INCOME, GIFT AND ESTATE TAXATION, ch. 32, Reorganization Patterns, § 32.03 (Matthew Bender)]. The result achieved by perfection of a statutory merger can also be achieved by having one corporation acquire all or at least 90 percent of the outstanding shares of another corporation in exchange for shares of its own, and then having it perfect a short-form merger with the corporation whose shares have been acquired [see Corp. Code § 1110]. A short-form merger is a merger of a wholly owned or 90-percent-owned subsidiary corporation into its parent corporation and does not require approval by the shareholders of the parent corporation [Corp. Code § 1110]. The corporation whose shares are acquired in exchange for shares of the acquiring corporation will become either a wholly owned or 90-percent-owned subsidiary of the acquiring corporation.

Prior to 1977 in California, shareholders of constituent corporations to a statutory merger had more protective rights than did shareholders of corporations that were parties to an assets-for-shares exchange or a straight share exchange. Although an assets-for-shares exchange had to be approved by the shareholders of the corporation whose assets were being acquired, it was not required to be approved by the shareholders of the acquiring corporation. Similarly, the shareholders of the corporation whose shares were being acquired had to approve a straight share exchange by tendering their shares for shares of the acquiring corporation to make the exchange successful. There was no requirement in California that the shares-for-shares exchange had to be approved by shareholders of the acquiring corporation. However, in either an assets-for-shares exchange or a shares-for-shares exchange the ownership and control of the acquiring corporation by its existing shareholders was bound to be diluted by the issuance of additional of its shares to the shareholders of the acquired corporation in exchange for the assets or shares of that corporation [Assembly Select Comm. Rep., at 94]. In contrast, a statutory merger had to be approved in California by shareholders of all the constituent corporations to the merger, that is, by both the disappearing corporations and the surviving corporation [see former Corp. Code § 4107].

The protective right afforded shareholders of constituent corporations to a statutory merger that raised the greatest furor, however, was the right of a dissenting shareholder to force purchase of his or her shares, because it was not also afforded to shareholders of a corporation that was a party to an assets-for-shares exchange [see Hills, Consolidation of Corporations by Sale of Assets and Distribution of Shares, 19 Cal. L. Rev. 349 (1931)]. When a statutory merger was approved by the required vote of shareholders of a corporation, a dissenting shareholder who had not voted for the merger could force the corporation to purchase his or her shares for their fair market value on the day before shareholder approval of the merger [see former Corp. Code §§ 4300-4317]. A dissenting shareholder of a corporation that was exchanging all its assets for shares of another corporation and which planned to dissolve after the exchange and distribute the shares it had received in the exchange to its shareholders had no such right to require the purchase of his or her shares by either the corporation that was selling its assets or the corporation that was acquiring them [see Hills, Consolidation of Corporations by Sale of Assets and Distribution of Shares, 19 Cal. L. Rev. 349 (1931)].

The absence of this right of a dissenting shareholder in an assets-for-shares exchange caused the Pennsylvania Supreme Court to develop the de facto merger doctrine. The court held that an assets-for-shares exchange in which the selling corporation planned to dissolve after the exchange and distribute the shares it received in the exchange to its shareholders was in effect a "merger" subject to the dissenting shareholder statute of that state applicable to mergers [Farris v. Glen Alden Corp. (1958) 393 Pa. 427, 143 A.2d 25, 31] . A year later the Supreme Court of Delaware, although refusing to apply it in favor of a dissenting shareholder of the asset-acquiring corporation, labeled the doctrine pronounced by the Pennsylvania court the "doctrine of de facto merger" [Heilbrunn v. Sun Chem. Corp. (1959) 38 Del. Ch. 321, 150 A.2d 755, 757] . The label has since been used more or less consistently to identify the doctrine [see Fox & Fox, Corporate Acquisitions and Mergers, Ch. 5C, Acquisitions of Assets, § 5C.06 (Matthew Bender)].

The underlying purpose of the Internal Revenue Code definition of "reorganization" [see § 11.23[2]] is different from the California Corporations Code purpose. Under general federal income tax principles, gain or loss must be accounted for upon the exchange of property [I.R.C. §§ 61, 1001]. In imposing income tax on the gross income of persons and entities subject to its provisions, the Internal Revenue Code provides that any gain or profit from the sale or exchange of property constitutes income and must be included in gross income. On the sale or exchange of property, the entire amount of the gain or loss is recognized as income, or the loss of income, for income tax purposes [I.R.C. § 1001(a), (c)].

In the Internal Revenue Code, the term "reorganization" is defined to provide the parties to an exchange reorganization with an exemption that will enable them to avoid recognizing income on exchanges incident to "qualified reorganizations." These qualified reorganizations must meet a business purpose requirement, and ordinarily also must meet a continuity of business enterprise requirement [Treas. Reg. § 1.368-1(b); see Treas. Reg. 1.368-1(d) (defining continuity of business enterprise requirement)] and a continuity of interest requirement [Treas. Reg. § 1.368-1(b); see Treas. Reg. § 1.368-1(e) (defining continuity of interest requirement); but see I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(D) (exception). However, for transactions occurring on or after February 25, 2005, a continuity of the business enterprise and a continuity of interest are not required for the transaction to qualify as a reorganization in the case of a recapitalization [see I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(E)] or a mere change in identity, form, or place of organization of one corporation [Treas. Reg. 1.368-1(b); see I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(F)].

I.R.C. § 368 is the definitional section that sets forth the requirements that a reorganization must meet in order to allow the parties to that reorganization to qualify for nonrecognition treatment. Thus, the Internal Revenue Code definition is intended to be limiting, because it allows an exception to the general rule that income will be recognized on all exchanges [see I.R.C. §§ 61, 1001]. In contrast, the purpose of the California Corporation Code is to include certain de facto merger type transactions in the requirements specified in the General Corporation Law that are normally applied to mergers [Assembly Select Comm. Rep., at 27]. In most instances, because of these differing purposes, the Internal Revenue Code definition generally is more restrictive and more strictly construed than is the General Corporation Law definition.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11.23

§ 11.23 Meaning of "Reorganization"

[1] California Corporation Law

[a] Statutory Merger

The first type of acquisition method defined in the General Corporation Law as a "reorganization" is a statutory merger, also referred to in the code as a "merger reorganization" [Corp. Code § 181(a)]. Statutory mergers are discussed in detail in Ch. 11C, Mergers .

"Short-form mergers" (see below) under Corp. Code § 1110 are specifically excluded from this definition [Corp. Code § 181(a); see Corp. Code § 187, which defines "short-form merger" with reference to Corp. Code § 1110]. A short-form merger is a merger of a wholly owned or 90-percent-owned subsidiary corporation into its parent corporation [Corp. Code §§ 187, 1110]. Short-form mergers are excluded from the definition of "reorganization" because shareholders involved in a short-form merger do not need the protection intended to be afforded by that definition. The relative rights of the shareholders of the disappearing corporation and the shareholders of the surviving corporation are not materially altered by a short-form merger. Because no more than 10 percent of the shares of the disappearing corporation in a short-form merger can be owned by persons other than the surviving corporation's shareholders in the surviving corporation, shareholder ownership interests are not greatly diluted by a short-form merger. For the same reason, disapproval of the short-form merger by the minority (10 percent or fewer) shareholders of the disappearing corporation could not prevent the merger even if it were defined as a "reorganization."

[b] Shares for Shares Exchange

The second type of acquisition defined by the General Corporation Law as a "reorganization" is a shares-for-shares exchange, also referred to in the Corporations Code as an "exchange reorganization" [Corp. Code § 181(b)]. An exchange reorganization is the acquisition by one domestic corporation, foreign corporation, or other business entity [see Corp. Code § 174.5 ("other business entity" defined; basically includes limited liability companies, general and limited partnerships, business trusts, and other noncorporate entities)] of the shares of a second domestic corporation, foreign corporation, or other business entity in exchange (in whole or in part) for the equity securities of the acquiring corporation (or other entity) or a corporation in control of the acquiring corporation if, immediately after the acquisition, the acquiring corporation has control of the other corporation or entity [Corp. Code § 181(b)]. For purposes of the reorganization definition, one corporation is in or has "control" of another corporation when it owns, directly or indirectly, shares or equity securities of the other corporation having the power to elect more than 50 percent of the other corporation's directors [Corp. Code §§ 160(b), 194.5]. Equity securities are shares or membership of a domestic or foreign corporation; partnership interests, membership interests, or equivalent equity interests in an other business entity; securities convertible with or without consideration into, and warrants or rights to subscribe to or purchase, any of the above [Corp. Code § 168].

A related type of acquisition that is not included in the definition of "reorganization" [see Corp. Code § 181] is a share exchange tender offer. That term includes any acquisition by one corporation in exchange in whole or in part for its equity securities (or the equity securities of a corporation that is in control of the acquiring corporation) of shares of another corporation, other than an "exchange reorganization" [Corp. Code § 183.5]. For further discussion, see Ch. 11D, Acquisition of Shares for Shares, § 11D.22.

[c] Assets for Shares Exchange

The third type of acquisition method defined by the General Corporation Law as a "reorganization" is an assets-for-securities exchange, also referred to in the Corporations Code as a "sale-of-assets reorganization" [Corp. Code § 181(c)]. A "sale-of-assets reorganization" is defined in Corp. Code § 181(c) as the acquisition by one domestic corporation, foreign corporation, or other business entity [see Corp. Code § 174.5 ("other business entity" defined; basically includes limited liability companies, general and limited partnerships, business trusts, and other noncorporate entities)] of all or substantially all of the assets of another domestic corporation, foreign corporation, or other business entity, in exchange in whole or in part for one of the following:

- Its equity securities, or the equity securities of a domestic corporation, foreign corporation, or other business entity which is in control of the acquiring entity;

- Its debt securities, or the debt securities of a domestic corporation, foreign corporation, or other business entity which is in control of the acquiring entity, that are not adequately secured and have a maturity date in excess of five years after consummation of the reorganization; or

- Both of the above [Corp. Code § 181(c)].

Inadequately secured debt securities having a maturity date in excess of five years involve a degree of risk to the shareholders of an acquired corporation who are to receive them in a "sale-of-assets reorganization" similar to that of equity securities [Assembly Select Comm. Rep., at 28, 29]. Accordingly, an exchange of all assets of one corporation for those inadequately secured debt securities is included in the definition of a "reorganization" and the shareholders receiving them are afforded the same protection as shareholders receiving equity securities in such a transaction [Assembly Select Comm. Rep., at 28, 29].

[2] Internal Revenue Code

[a] Statutory Merger or Consolidation

The first method of corporate acquisition defined in the Internal Revenue Code as a "reorganization" for income tax purposes is "a statutory merger or consolidation" [I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(A)]. Historically, in a consolidation, two or more corporations combined to form a new corporation that took over their assets and liabilities and carried on their activities. None of the old corporations survived the consolidation. In contrast, in a merger, one of the original corporations to the merger survives and the other corporations to the merger are combined or merged into it [see Cavitch, Business Organizations With Tax Planning, Ch. 162, Mergers, § 162.01 (Matthew Bender)]. California has eliminated the concept of consolidation as an "outmoded procedure" [see Assembly Select Comm. Rep., at 91].

[b] Shares for Shares Exchange

The second method of corporate acquisition defined in the Internal Revenue Code as a "reorganization" for income tax purposes is a shares-for-shares exchange, called a "B reorganization" [I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(B)]. Two statutory requirements are imposed on a shares-for-shares exchange before it can qualify as a "reorganization" under the Internal Revenue Code:

- First, the acquiring corporation must acquire stock of another corporation solely in exchange for all or a part of its own voting stock or the voting stock of a corporation that is in control of the acquiring corporation [I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(B)].

- Second, immediately after the acquisition the acquiring corporation must be in control of the corporation whose stock it has acquired [I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(B)].

Whether the acquiring corporation was or was not in control of the corporation whose stock it acquired before the acquisition qualifying as a "B reorganization" is immaterial [I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(B)]. Control for purposes of the "reorganization" definitions means ownership of stock possessing at least 80 percent of the total combined voting power of all classes of stock of a corporation entitled to vote and at least 80 percent of the total number of shares of all other classes of stock of the corporation [I.R.C. § 368(c)].

[c] Assets for Shares Exchange

The third method of corporate acquisition defined in the Internal Revenue Code as a "reorganization" for income tax purposes is an assets-for-shares exchange, called a "C reorganization" [I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(c)]. For an assets-for-shares exchange to qualify as a "reorganization" under the Internal Revenue Code, the acquiring corporation must acquire substantially all the property of another corporation solely in exchange for all or a part of the acquiring corporation's voting stock or the voting stock of a corporation in control of the acquiring corporation [I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(c)]. Furthermore, the acquired corporation must distribute the stock, securities, and other properties it receives, as well as its other properties, pursuant to the reorganization plan [I.R.C. § 368(a)(2)(G) (waiver available)].

In determining whether the exchange was solely for stock of the acquiring corporation or its parent, the assumption by the acquiring corporation of a liability of the acquired corporation will be disregarded [I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(c)].

If a corporation acquires substantially all the property of another corporation for a combination of voting shares and money or other property, the exchange will still be considered a "reorganization" under the Internal Revenue Code if the property acquired solely in exchange for voting shares has a fair market value equal to at least 80 percent of the fair market value of all the property of the acquired corporation [I.R.C. § 368(a)(2)(B)]. In that case, however, if the property was acquired for a combination of shares and money, any assumption of liability by the acquiring corporation will be treated as money paid for the property [I.R.C. § 368(a)(2)(B)].

[d] Business Purpose, Continuity of Business Enterprise, and Continuity of Interest

In addition to the requirements imposed by statute, two additional requirements have been imposed by the courts and Treasury Regulations on corporate acquisitions before they can qualify as tax-free "reorganizations" under the definition contained in the Internal Revenue Code. First, there must be a "business purpose" for the merger, share exchange, or assets-for-shares exchange sought to be qualified as a reorganization. This requirement means that a bona fide business purpose for the reorganization must exist for the transaction and that a reorganization that meets all facial statutory requirements may not qualify for nonrecognition treatment if it done simply to avoid tax [see Gregory v. Helvering (1935) 293 U.S. 465, 55 S. Ct. 266, 79 L. Ed. 596 (1935); Treas. Reg. § 1.368-1(b); see also Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, Ch. 176, Tax-Free Reorganizations: General Rules, § 176.02 (Matthew Bender)].

The second general requirement to qualify as a reorganization is "continuity of business enterprise" and "continuity of interest" [see Treas. Reg. § 1.368-1(b); but see Practice Tip, below (exceptions)]. The continuity of business enterprise requirement means the acquiring corporation must either continue the acquired corporation's historic business or use a significant portion of the acquired corporation's historic business assets in a business [Treas. Reg. § 1.368-1(d)(1)]. Continuing the acquired corporation's business is satisfied if the acquiring corporation continues the historic business (typically the acquired corporation's last business before the reorganization). The fact that the acquiring corporation is in the same line of business tends to establish the requisite continuity, but is not alone sufficient [Treas. Reg. § 1.368-1(d)(2)(i)]. If the acquired corporation had more than one line of business, the acquiring corporation must only continue one significant line of business to satisfy the continuity of business interest requirement [Treas. Reg. § 1.368-1(d)(2)(ii)].

Using a significant portion of the acquired corporation's historic business assets in a business may also satisfy the continuity of business enterprise requirement. The acquired corporation's historic business assets are the assets used in its historic business. Business assets may include stock and securities and intangible operating assets such as good will, patents, and trademarks, whether or not they have a tax basis. In general, the determination of the portion of a corporation's assets considered "significant" is based on the relative importance of the assets to operation of the business. All other facts and circumstances, however, such as the net fair market value of those assets, will be considered. [Treas. Reg. § 1.368-1(d)(3)(i)-(iii)].

The continuity of interest requirement means that some proprietary interest of the acquired corporation must be preserved so that transactions that resemble sales do not qualify for nonrecognition treatment available to qualified reorganizations [Treas. Reg. § 1.368-1(e)]. For an extensive discussion of the business purpose, continuity of business enterprise, and continuity of interest requirements, see Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, Ch. 176, Tax-Free Reorganizations: General Rules, § 176.02 (Matthew Bender).

PRACTICE TIP:

For transactions occurring on or after February 25, 2005, a continuity of the business enterprise and a continuity of interest are not required for the transaction to qualify as a reorganization in the case of a recapitalization [see I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(E)] or a mere change in identity, form, or place of organization of one corporation [Treas. Reg. 1.368-1(b); see I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(F)].

CHAPTER 11 MERGER AND ACQUISITION ISSUES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11.24

§ 11.24 Nontax Factors in Selecting Acquisition Method

[1] In General

The method used by a corporation to acquire ownership of another corporation depends on a number of factors. In most cases, final determination of the form in which a corporate acquisition should be made will be influenced primarily by income tax considerations [see Fox & Fox, Corporate Acquisitions and Mergers, Ch. 3, Tax Factors in Corporate Acquisitions and Mergers, § 3.01 (Matthew Bender); Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, Ch. 173, Choosing the Method of Transferring the Ownership of a Corporate Business, § 173.02 (Matthew Bender); see 11.25].

Nevertheless, counsel should advise corporate clients and their shareholders regarding the business, financial, and legal problems involved in each of the acquisition methods. Even when tax factors alone dictate the form a particular corporate acquisition should take, the other factors involved in the acquisition method are still important and should be taken into account by the attorney handling the legal aspects of the acquisition [see Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS and MERGERS, Ch. 3, Tax Factors in Corporate Acquisitions and Mergers, § 3.01 (Matthew Bender); Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, Ch. 173, Choosing the Method of Transferring the Ownership of a Corporate Business, § 173.02 (Matthew Bender)].

[2] Shareholder Approval

In California, any acquisition method coming within the definition of the term "reorganization" contained in the General Corporation Law [Corp. Code § 181; see § 11.23[1]] will require the approval by majority vote of the outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 152] of each class of each corporation involved in the reorganization [Corp. Code § 1201]. Furthermore, when the acquisition comes within the definition of a reorganization contained in the General Corporation Law, dissenting shareholders who do not vote in favor of the proposed reorganization will have the right to force the corporations to purchase their dissenting shares for cash at their appraised fair market value on the day before the first announcement of the terms of the proposed reorganization [Corp. Code § 1300; see § 11.21[1][e]].

Shareholder approval, at least by the outstanding shares of the acquiring corporation, is not usually required for an acquisition not coming within the definition of a reorganization contained in the General Corporation Law [see §

11.22[2]]. However, the shareholders of the acquiring corporation in a "share exchange tender offer" [see Corp. Code § 183.5 (definition)] are required to approve the principal terms of the offer in a manner similar to that in a "reorganization" [see Corp. Code § 1201.5; see also Ch. 11D, Acquisition of Shares for Shares, § 11D.22].

Dissenting shareholders ordinarily have no right to force the purchase of their shares in an acquisition not defined as a "reorganization" by the General Corporation Law.

[3] Rights of Target Corporation Shareholders

When an interested party makes a tender offer (including a share exchange tender offer [see Corp. Code § 183.5 (definition); see also Ch. 11D, Acquisition of Shares for Shares, § 11D.22]) or a written proposal (an "interested party proposal") for approval of a "reorganization" [see Corp. Code §§ 181, 1200] or a sale of assets [see Corp. Code § 1001(a)] to some or all of a corporation's shareholders, that party must deliver an affirmative opinion in writing regarding the fairness of the consideration to those shareholders [Corp. Code § 1203(a)]. For purposes of this requirement, an "interested party" is a person who is a party to the transaction and meets any of the following criteria [Corp. Code § 1203(a)]:

- Directly or indirectly controls the corporation that is the subject of the tender offer or proposal;
- Is (or is controlled by) an officer or director of the subject corporation; or
- Is an entity in which a material financial interest [see Corp. Code § 310(a)] is held by any director or executive officer of the subject corporation.

The written opinion referred to above must be provided by a person who is not affiliated with the offeror and who, for compensation, engages in the business of advising others about the value of properties, businesses, or securities. The fact that the person giving the opinion previously has provided services to the offeror or a related entity, or is simultaneously engaged in providing advice or assistance regarding the proposed transaction in a manner that makes his or her compensation contingent on the success of the proposed transaction, is not deemed to affiliate that person with the offeror [Corp. Code § 1203(a)].

The opinion must be delivered to the shareholders in the following manner [Corp. Code § 1203(a)]:

- If no shareholder approval or acceptance is required for the reorganization or sale of assets, the opinion must be delivered to the corporation's board of directors no later than the time that consummation of the transaction is authorized and approved by the board of directors.
- If a tender offer is made to the corporation's shareholders, the opinion must be delivered to the shareholders when the tender offer is first made in writing to the shareholders. However, if the tender offer is commenced by publication and tender offer materials are subsequently mailed or otherwise distributed to the shareholders, the opinion may be omitted in that publication if it is included in the materials distributed to the shareholders.
- If a shareholders' meeting will be held to vote on approval of the transaction, the opinion must be delivered to the shareholders with the notice of the meeting [see Corp. Code § 601].
- If consents of all the shareholders entitled to vote are solicited in writing [see Corp. Code § 603(a)], the opinion must be delivered at the same time as the solicitation.
- If the consents of all shareholders are not solicited in writing, the opinion must be delivered to each solicited shareholder before his or her consent is given, and to each nonsolicited shareholder when he or she is given notice of shareholder approval without a meeting [see Corp. Code § 603(b) (notices required for actions taken without a meeting)].

These requirements do not apply if the target corporation does not have shares held of record by 100 or more persons [see Corp. Code § 605 (determination of shareholders of record)], or if the transaction has been qualified pursuant to Corp. Code § 25113 (qualification of issuer transaction by permit) or Corp. Code § 25121 (qualification of recapitalization or reorganization by permit), and no stop order [see Corp. Code §§ 25140, 25143(a)] is in effect regarding that qualification [Corp. Code § 1203(a)]. Further, these requirements do not apply to the cash purchase of shares [Corp. Code §§ 181, 1203; see Ch. 11A, Cash Purchase of Shares]. That acquisition method may be preferable, therefore, when the acquisition proposal is made by an interested party, because of the lack of reporting requirements [see Corp. Code § 1203].

A "later proposal" is a subsequent tender offer or written proposal for a reorganization subject to board approval [see Corp. Code § 1200], or a sale of assets [see Corp. Code § 1001(a)] that would require the vote or written consent of shareholders to the corporation or its shareholders [Corp. Code § 1203(b)]. If another person makes a "later proposal" at least 10 days before the date for acceptance of the tendered shares or the vote or notice of shareholder approval on the earlier interested party proposal, two requirements apply [Corp. Code § 1203(b)]:

- First, the shareholders must be informed of the later proposal, and the later offeror must forward any written material for this purpose to the shareholders at his or her expense [Corp. Code § 1203(b)(1)].

- Second, the shareholders must be given a reasonable opportunity to withdraw any vote, consent, or proxy previously given before the vote or written consent on the interested party proposal becomes effective, or a reasonable time to withdraw any tendered shares before the purchase of the shares pursuant to the interested party proposal [Corp. Code § 1203(b)(2)]. A delay of 10 days from the notice or publication of the later proposal will be deemed to provide a reasonable opportunity or time to effect that withdrawal [Corp. Code § 1203(b)(2)].

[4] Securities Laws

Another nontax factor that must be taken into account in selecting the method of conducting a corporate acquisition is the California Corporate Securities Law of 1968 [Corp. Code § 25000 et seq.]. Generally, any acquisition method coming within the definition of the term "reorganization" contained in the General Corporation Law will require qualification of the acquisition with the California Commissioner of Corporations [Corp. Code §§ 25120-25122], since those methods require the issuance and offer or sale of shares or securities by the acquiring corporation [see Corp. Code § 181; see also § 11.23[1]].

However, any change in the rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions of or on outstanding securities, and any exchange of securities by the issuer with its existing security holders exclusively, will be exempt from the qualification requirement contained in Corp. Code § 25120 if the transaction, had it involved the issuance of a new security containing the changed rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions, or a new issuance of the exchange security, would have been exempt from qualification [see Corp. Code § 25110] as an issuer transaction [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.103(a); see Corp. Code § 25102]. For example, the exchange of shares by an acquiring corporation exclusively with its existing shareholders will be exempt from qualification if the transaction, had it been a new issuance rather than an exchange, would have been exempt as a limited offering [see Corp. Code § 25102(f)] or a small offering [see Corp. Code § 25102(h)]. An acquisition method that does not require the issuance and offer or sale of securities by the acquiring corporation, such as the purchase of all assets for cash or the purchase of shares of the corporation sought to be acquired for cash does not require qualification of the acquisition with the Corporations Commissioner [see Corp. Code § 25120].

For a detailed discussion of the qualification and exemption of securities, including the preemption of state qualification or registration of "covered securities" as defined by the National Securities Markets Improvement Act of 1996 [Pub. L. No. 104-290, 110 Stat. 3416 (H.R. 3005); see 15 U.S.C. § 77r], see Ch. 6, Securities Regulation Issues ; see also Marsh & Volk, PRACTICE UNDER THE CALIFORNIA SECURITIES LAWS (Matthew Bender).

Another important nontax factor that should be considered in connection with a proposed corporate acquisition is whether the acquiring corporation is willing to assume the acquired corporation's liabilities [see Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, Ch. 161, Review of Factors to Be Considered in Selecting Form of Acquisition, § 161.02 (Matthew Bender)]. Officers and shareholders of an acquiring corporation may be willing to assume the liabilities of the corporation being acquired that appear on the books and records of that corporation. They may not be willing to assume unknown and contingent liabilities, especially tort liabilities, of the acquired corporation. With the extension of products liability to business successors under certain circumstances, the scope of unknown liabilities can be substantial [see Ray v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 22, 28, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574, 560 P.2d 3 ; Fisher v. Allis-Chalmers Corp. (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 1182, 1188-1190, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 310 (manufacturer's successor in interest was not entitled to summary judgment because it failed to establish that its agreement to assume liabilities excluded plaintiff's product liability claim); see also Ch. 11E, Acquisition of Assets for Shares, § 11E.24[4]].

An acquiring corporation, by reason of the acquisition method used, may be required to assume the liabilities of an acquired corporation directly or indirectly. When, as in a statutory merger, it must assume the liabilities of the acquired corporation directly, it becomes liable for those liabilities itself. An acquiring corporation is said to have indirectly assumed the liabilities of an acquired corporation when, though it does not become liable for the acquired corporation's obligations itself, they may render the property or shares it purchased worthless. If one corporation acquires the shares of another corporation, either for cash or in a shares-for-shares exchange, the acquiring corporation is said to have indirectly assumed the obligations of the acquired corporation. In such a case, the acquiring corporation itself does not become liable for the obligations of the acquired corporation but the acquired corporation remains liable for them. A large undisclosed liability against the acquired corporation, possibly unknown at the time of the share purchase or share exchange, could render the acquired corporation insolvent and its shares, for which the acquiring corporation gave good value either in cash or shares of its own, valueless [see Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, Ch. 2A, General Considerations in Corporate Acquisitions and Mergers, § 2A.03 (Matthew Bender)].

[6] Number of Shareholders and Assets

Another nontax factor that may affect the method by which a corporate acquisition is consummated is the number of shareholders in the corporation sought to be acquired, and the mechanical convenience of perfecting the acquisition in a certain way. For example, if there are only a few shareholders of the corporation sought to be acquired, a simple purchase of their shares by the acquiring corporation may be the easiest and most convenient way to perfect the corporate acquisition. If the corporation sought to be acquired is a public corporation with a large number of shareholders, acquisition of their shares may be most difficult and expensive. In such a case, a purchase of its assets or a statutory merger is usually considered more practical.

Similarly, purchase of a corporation's assets or an exchange of its assets for shares of the acquiring corporation may require drafting, in addition to the agreement of sale and escrow instructions, separate conveyances for almost every asset being transferred [see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice, § 17.122[4]]. In contrast, a statutory merger will require the drafting of relatively few, if any, instruments of conveyance [see Corp. Code § 1107(a)]. The surviving corporation in a statutory merger, however, must take all the assets and liabilities of each of the disappearing corporations. This may involve some unwanted assets of the disappearing corporations and perhaps onerous union contracts or sales agreements [see Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING,

Ch. 162, Mergers, § 162.05[3]. If the acquiring corporation is purchasing assets or acquiring assets in exchange for its own shares, it can usually specify certain assets or contracts of the acquired corporation that are not to be included in its purchase [see Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, Ch. 163, Sales of Assets Transactions, § 163.02 (Matthew Bender)].

[1] Overview

A variety of income tax factors influences the selection of a corporate acquisition method. The acquiring corporation should determine whether it will receive a new income tax basis for the assets of the acquired corporation [see [2], below], and whether it will obtain the benefit of any "loss carryover" belonging to the acquired corporation [see [3], below]. The acquired corporation will be concerned with the immediate taxability of any gain or profit realized in the transaction [Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, Ch. 173, Choosing the Method of Purchasing and Selling a Corporate Business, § 173.02 (Matthew Bender); see § 11.21[2]], and, if its assets are sold, the recapture of depreciation [see Ch. 11B, Cash Purchase of Assets, § 11B.21[1]] and the applicability of state sales and use tax [see [4], below].

[2] Income Tax Basis

[a] In General

The ability of the acquiring corporation to receive a new income tax basis for the assets of the acquired corporation is important for two reasons. First, basis determines the amount of gain realized that will be subject to income taxes when the taxpayer sells or otherwise disposes of the property. The gain a taxpayer realizes from the sale or other disposition of property is the excess of the amount realized from the sale over the taxpayer's adjusted income tax basis for the property [I.R.C. § 1001(a)].

Second, a taxpayer's income tax basis in a particular item of property used in the trade or business or held for the production of income determines the amount of the annual depreciation deduction the taxpayer may take for the property each year [I.R.C. §§ 167(c), 168]. A depreciation deduction is a deduction for the decrease in value of those types of property due to exhaustion, wear, and tear, and obsolescence [I.R.C. § 167(c)]. It is based on the presumption that property wears out, because of its use, over a period of years and must be replaced periodically [see Rabkin & Johnson, FEDERAL INCOME, GIFT AND ESTATE TAXATION, Ch. 45, Depreciation and Credits on Real Estate, § 45.01 (Matthew Bender)]. The taxpayer is allowed to deduct from otherwise taxable income a portion of the original income tax basis for the property each year until the full amount of that basis has been deducted. [see I.R.C. §§ 167(a),

168(a)]. If the subject property was placed in service after 1980, the number of years over which the depreciation allowance is spread is determined with reference to the statutory Accelerated Cost Recovery System (ACRS) or Modified Accelerated Cost Recovery System (MACRS) [I.R.C. § 168; see also Ch. 53, Personal Property Leasing, § 53.20[8]]. The higher a taxpayer's original basis for property, the greater the annual depreciation deduction [Rabkin & Johnson, FEDERAL INCOME, GIFT AND ESTATE TAXATION, Ch. 45, Depreciation and Credits on Real Estate, § 45.01 (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Obtaining New Basis for Assets

A taxpayer's income tax basis for property is generally its original cost [I.R.C. § 1012]. An acquiring corporation can obtain a new cost basis in the acquired corporation's assets through a taxable purchase of either assets or stock. If it purchases another corporation's assets, it receives a cost basis equal to the purchase price [see Ch. 11B, Cash Purchase of Assets, § 11B.21[1]]. If it purchases another corporation's shares, it receives a cost basis for those shares equal to their purchase price, but may also elect to step-up the basis of the acquired corporation's assets [see I.R.C. § 338; see also Ch. 11A, Cash Purchase of Shares, § 11A.22[2], [3]].

Different basis rules, however, apply to assets acquired in a "tax-free" reorganization [see I.R.C. § 368; see also § 11.21[2][a]]. The transferor of assets or shares in a tax-free acquisition receives a "substituted basis" for the shares received from the transferee (acquiring corporation) equal to its former basis in those assets or shares [see I.R.C. § 358(a)]. This amount is decreased by (1) the fair market value of any other property other than money received by the taxpayer, (2) the amount of money received by the taxpayer [see I.R.C. § 358(d) (assumption of liability)], and (3) the amount of loss recognized by the taxpayer on the exchange [I.R.C. § 358(a)(1)(A)]; the resulting amount is then increased by (1) any amount treated as a dividend, and (2) the amount of gain recognized by the taxpayer on the exchange other than amounts treated as a dividend [I.R.C. § 358(a)(1)(B)]. The acquiring corporation receives a "carry-over" basis in the assets or shares, equal to the transferor's former basis in those assets or shares [see I.R.C. § 362; see also Cavitch, Business Organizations With Tax Planning, Ch. 173, Choosing the Method of Transferring the Ownership of a Corporate Business, § 173.02 (Matthew Bender)]. The result of these basis rules is that any gain from property received in the reorganization is deferred until the property or stock is later disposed of or sold.

The transferor's basis, which is its original cost reduced by any depreciation deductions that were taken or could have taken during the period of ownership [see I.R.C. § 1016], may be far less than the fair market value that an acquiring corporation will generally pay in an acquisition. In those circumstances, an acquiring corporation may desire to obtain a new, higher income tax basis for the assets of the acquired corporation by structuring the acquisition as a taxable purchase rather than a tax-free reorganization. If, however, the basis of the assets in the hands of the transferor exceeds their present fair market value, the acquiring corporation may want to structure its acquisition as a tax-free reorganization in order to inherit the transferee's high basis [see Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, Ch. 3, Tax Factors in Corporate Acquisitions and Mergers, § 3.02[2] (Matthew Bender)].

[c] Special Basis Rule for Assumption of Liabilities

If a transferee corporation assumes a liability of the transferor in a Section 351 transaction, the amount of liability assumed is treated as money received by the transferor [I.R.C. § 358(d)(1)], and the basis of the stock received by the transferor is reduced by this amount [I.R.C. § 358(a)(1)].

A special statutory rule applies, however, to prevent duplication or acceleration of loss through the assumption of liabilities [I.R.C. § 358(h)]. If the basis of the stock received by the transferor exceeds the fair market value of that stock, then the basis of the stock received is reduced (but not below its fair market value) by the amount of any liability that is assumed by another person as part of the exchange and did not otherwise reduce the transferor's basis of the stock by reason of the assumption [I.R.C. § 358(h)(1)]. Except as otherwise provided by regulation, this rule does not apply if the trade or business with which the liability is associated is transferred to the corporation as part of the exchange or if substantially all of the assets with which the liability is associated are transferred to the corporation as part of the exchange [I.R.C. § 358(h)(2)].

For the above purposes, the term "liability" includes fixed or contingent obligations to make payment, without regard to whether they are otherwise taken into account under other provisions of the Internal Revenue Code [I.R.C. § 358(h)(3)]. The determination of whether a liability has been assumed is determined under I.R.C. § 357(d)(1). Under that provision, a recourse liability is treated as assumed if, based on all facts and circumstances, the transferee has agreed to and is expected to satisfy that liability (or portion of it), whether or not the transferor has been relieved of the liability [I.R.C. § 357(d)(1)(A)].

A nonrecourse liability generally is treated as assumed by the transferee of any asset subject to that liability [I.R.C. § 357(d)(1)(B)]. The amount treated as assumed, however, is reduced by the lesser of two amounts. The first amount comes into play if the owner has other assets that are not transferred to the corporation and which are subject to that same recourse liability. The amount of that reduction is any amount of the liability which the owner has agreed with the transferee to, and is expected to, satisfy [I.R.C. § 357(d)(2)(A)]. The second amount is the fair market value of those assets retained by the owner (which may be less that the amount of the nonrecourse indebtedness to which the property is subject) [I.R.C. § 357(d)(2)(B); see I.R.C. § 7701(g)].

[3] Income Tax Loss Carryover Deduction

[a] In General

Another important tax consideration in the choice of a method of corporate acquisition is the ability of the acquiring corporation to obtain the benefit of any "loss carryover" belonging to the acquired corporation [Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, Ch. 4, Tax-Free Acquisitions, § 4.07 (Matthew Bender)]. That tax attribute, among others [see I.R.C. § 381(c)], may survive changes in the ownership and structure of the corporation [see I.R.C. § 381(a)]. A corporation has a "net operating loss" in any taxable year if, subject to certain modifications [see I.R.C. § 172(d)], its deductions exceed its gross income [see I.R.C. § 172(c)]. It is allowed to "carry back" the loss and deduct it from the income attributable to each of its preceding two tax years, starting with the earliest of those years, until the entire amount of the loss has been deducted [I.R.C. § 172(b)(1)(A)(i), (2); see I.R.C. § 172(b)(1)(H) (special rule for 2008 net operating losses); see also Rabkin & Johnson, FEDERAL INCOME, GIFT AND ESTATE TAXATION, Ch. 4, Deductions: Taxes and Losses , § 4.15[3] (Matthew Bender)]. If any amount of the loss still remains, the corporation can "carry over" the remainder of the loss and deduct it in turn from each of the 20 tax years following the loss until the full amount of the loss has been deducted [I.R.C. § 172(b)(1)(A)(ii), (2)]. The deduction is the aggregate of the carrybacks and carryforward to that year [I.R.C. § 172(a)].

[b] Obtaining Carryover of Acquired Corporation

An acquiring corporation will automatically succeed to the net operating loss carryover of an acquired corporation if it obtains the acquired corporation's assets in either (1) a tax-free "A," "C," "D," "F," or "G" reorganization [I.R.C. § 381(a)(2); see Ch. 11C, Mergers ("A" reorganizations), Ch. 11E, Acquisition of Assets for Shares ("C" reorganizations)], or (2) a tax-free liquidation of a controlled subsidiary pursuant to I.R.C. § 332 [I.R.C. § 381(a)]. However, I.R.C. § 381 was not intended to affect the carryover treatment of tax attributes in corporate transactions that are not specified in that section [S. Rep. No. 83-1622, at 277 (1954); see Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, Ch. 4, Tax-Free Acquisitions, § 4.07 (Matthew Bender)]. Therefore, it does not apply to the purchase of assets [see Ch. 11B, Cash Purchase of Assets], the purchase of shares [see Ch. 11A, Cash Purchase of Shares], or stock-for-stock ("B") reorganizations [see I.R.C. § 381(a)(2); see also Ch. 11D, Acquisition of Shares for Shares]. However, in every case (that is, whether the reorganization or acquisition is tax-free or taxable), the amount of carried-over net operating loss that may be deducted annually by the receiving corporation is limited, and certain requirements must be met (such as continuing the loss corporation's business for two years) before any deduction may be taken [see I.R.C. § 382].

In a taxable purchase of assets [see Ch. 11B, Cash Purchase of Assets], the transferor remains a completely separate entity that retains all of its own tax attributes. The acquiring corporation does not obtain the stock "control" of the corporation required for an I.R.C. § 332 liquidation [see I.R.C. § 381(a)(1); see also I.R.C. § 332(b)(1) (stock ownership requirements)], and therefore has no means of obtaining any loss carryover. It may wish to avoid structuring its acquisition as a taxable asset purchase if the corporation to be acquired has substantial favorable tax attributes, such as a large net operating loss carryover, but will want to do so if the transferor has substantial disadvantageous tax attributes [see Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, ch. 4, Tax-Free Acquisitions, § 4.07 (Matthew Bender)].

In a taxable purchase of stock [see Ch. 11A, Cash Purchase of Shares], if the acquiring corporation obtains stock having at least 80 percent of the total voting power of the stock of the acquired corporation and aggregate value equal to at least 80 percent of the total value of the stock of the acquired corporation (excluding, for each test, certain nonvoting, preferred, redeemable, nonconvertible stock) [see I.R.C. §§ 332(b)(1), 1504(a)(2), (4)], it may obtain any loss carryover of the acquired corporation by liquidating it [I.R.C. § 381(a)(1); see I.R.C. § 332]. However, it cannot obtain the loss carryover through liquidation if it has already made an I.R.C. § 338 election to step-up the basis of the acquired corporation's assets [Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, ch. 4, Tax-Free Acquisitions, § 4.07 (Matthew Bender); see Ch. 11A, Cash Purchase of Shares, § 11A.22[5]].

In order to accomplish a "B" reorganization [see Ch. 11D, Acquisition of Shares for Shares], the acquiring corporation must meet the same 80 percent "control" test that is required for an I.R.C. § 332 liquidation [see I.R.C. §§ 332(b)(1), 368(a)(1)(B), (c)]. Therefore, the acquiring corporation may obtain the tax attributes of the acquired corporation through liquidation [see I.R.C. § 332]. The acquiring corporation is not dependent on I.R.C. § 381 for preservation of its own tax attributes, since that section deals only with the tax characteristics of the transferor corporation [see Bittker & Eustice, Federal Income Taxation of Corporations and Shareholders, Ch. 16, Corporate Tax Attributes: Survival and Transfer, § 16.10 (Warren, Gorham & Lamont 4th ed. 1979)].

[c] Restrictions on Use of Carryover

In order to prevent the trafficking of corporate shells for the sole purpose of acquiring their loss carryovers to shelter income, the use of loss carryovers is restricted. First, I.R.C. § 381 divides the taxable years of the transferor and transferee into a preacquisition and post-acquisition part year [I.R.C. § 381(b)(1), (c)(1)(C)]. The transferor's net operating loss carryover is first applied against any earnings from its pre-acquisition part year [Treas. Reg. § 1.381(c)(1)-1(e)(3)]. Any remainder is applied, to a limited extent, to the income of the transferee in its post-acquisition part year [I.R.C. § 381(c)(1)].

Second, the amount of taxable income of any "new loss corporation" that may be offset by "pre-change losses" in taxable years after a change in ownership may be limited [I.R.C. § 382(a)]. A "new loss corporation" is a corporation that, after an ownership change, is entitled to use a net operating loss carryover or has a net operating loss for the taxable year in which the ownership change occurs [I.R.C. § 382(k)(1), (3); see I.R.C. § 172(b)]. An "old loss corporation" is a corporation that has undergone an ownership change and was a loss corporation before the change [I.R.C. § 382(k)(1), (2)]. An "ownership change" occurs when, after either a statutory reorganization [see I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(A), (B), (C)] or a change in stock ownership affecting the percentage of stock owned by any person who is a 5-percent shareholder before or after the change, the percentage of stock of the loss corporation owned by one or more 5-percent shareholders has increased by more than 50 percent over the lowest percentage of stock in the loss corporation owned by those shareholders during the three-year period ending on the date of the reorganization or change in stock ownership [I.R.C. 382(g); see I.R.C. § 382(i)]. A "pre-change loss" is (1) any net operating loss carryover of the old loss corporation to the taxable year ending with the ownership change or in which the ownership change occurs, and (2) the net operating loss of the loss corporation for the taxable year in which the ownership change occurs, to the extent the loss is allocable to the period on or before the change date [I.R.C. § 382(d)].

The limitation on the net operating loss carryover for a post-change year equals the value of the stock of the old loss corporation immediately before the ownership change, multiplied by the highest federal long-term rate in effect for any month in the three-calendar-month period ending with the month of ownership change [I.R.C. § 382(b)(1); see I.R.C. § 382(e), (f)]. If the limitation exceeds the taxable income of the new loss corporation for one post-change taxable year, the limitation for the next taxable year will be increased by the amount of the excess [I.R.C. § 382(b)(2)].

No net operating loss carryover may be used by a new loss corporation that does not continue the business enterprise of the old loss corporation at all times during the two-year period following the change date [I.R.C. § 382(c)(1)]. Exceptions apply for certain gains [see I.R.C. § 382(c)(2), (h)].

Finally, a subjective test imposed under I.R.C. § 269, based on the acquiring corporation's motives in making the acquisition, may result in complete disallowance of the loss carryover deduction [see I.R.C. § 269]. The deduction may not be allowed if (1) one or more persons acquires control of a corporation directly or indirectly, or a corporation acquires property from another corporation, in a transaction in which the basis of the acquired property is determined by reference to the basis of the property to the transferor corporation, and (2) the principal purpose of the acquisition is the avoidance of federal income tax by obtaining a deduction that the person or corporation would otherwise not obtain [I.R.C. § 269(a)].

"Control" is the ownership of stock possessing at least 50 percent of the total combined voting power of all classes of stock entitled to vote or at least 50 percent of the total value of shares of all classes of stock [I.R.C. § 269(a)]. Special rules apply to purchases of stock in which the acquiring corporation elects to step-up the basis of the acquired assets pursuant to I.R.C. § 338 and then liquidates the acquired corporation [I.R.C. § 269(b); see Ch. 11A, Cash Purchase of Shares, § 11A.22[5]]. However, I.R.C. § 382 occupies the principal role in the loss-carryover area, and I.R.C. § 269 will not be applied to cases in which part or all of the loss is permitted under I.R.C. § 382 unless a device or scheme to circumvent the latter section appears to be present [S. Rep. No. 94-938, at 206 (1976)].

[4] California Sales and Use Tax Considerations

[a] Applicability to Certain Acquisition Methods

The application of the California Sales and Use Tax Law [see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 6001-7176] may also affect a corporation's choice of method to acquire ownership of another corporation. That law imposes a tax on the gross receipts of a retailer from the sale of tangible personal property sold at retail in the state [Rev. & Tax. Code § 6051 et seq.; see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice, § 17.12]. Whether or not this tax will be imposed depends on the type of merger.

[b] Cash Purchase of Assets

The sale of all assets by one corporation to another for cash or promissory notes [see Ch. 11B, Cash Purchase of Assets] is a de facto merger for franchise tax purposes, and the proceeds of those assets that are tangible personal property sold at retail are subject to the California sales tax. Even if the transferor corporation immediately dissolves, the sale is still taxable [S.T.C. Rule 395.2120 (Mar. 9, 1966)]. For further discussion of the imposition of sales tax on the transaction, see Ch. 11B, Cash Purchase of Assets, § 11B.22[3]; Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice, § 17.12.

[c] Cash Purchase of Shares

The purchase of one corporation's shares by another acquiring corporation [see Ch. 11A, Cash Purchase of Shares] has no sales tax consequences. Shares of stock are not tangible personal property [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 6016

(definition)], and thus are not subject to the sales or use tax [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 6051].

[d] Statutory Mergers

A transfer of property of a constituent corporation to a surviving or new corporation pursuant to a "statutory merger" is not subject to the state sales or use tax [18 Cal. Code Reg. § 1595(b)(3)]. For purposes of the regulation, a statutory merger includes one made under Corp. Code § 1100 et seq. [see 18 Cal. Code Reg. § 1595(b)(3)].

[e] Acquisition of Shares for Shares

A reorganization in which all of the shares of a corporation are exchanged for the shares of an acquiring corporation is not subject to sales tax liability. In this type of merger, known as a "B-type" reorganization under the federal income tax statutes [see I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(B); see also § 11.23[2][b]] and an "exchange reorganization" under California law [see Corp. Code § 181(b); § 11.23[1][b]; see also Ch. 11D, Acquisition of Shares for Shares], the only property transferred is stock, which is not tangible personal property [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 6016 (definition of tangible personal property)].

[f] Acquisition of Assets for Shares

A reorganization in which all of the assets of a corporation are acquired for the stock of another corporation, known as a "C-type" reorganization under the federal income tax statutes [see I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(C); see also § 11.23[2][c]] and a "sale of assets" reorganization under the California Corporations Code [see Corp. Code § 181(c); § 11.23[1][c] is subject to the California sales tax unless the transaction is otherwise exempt [see Ch. 11E, Acquisition of Assets for Shares, § 11E.112; see also Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice, § 17.12].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 11.26 Accounting Treatment of Corporate Acquisition

[1] Accounting Methods

The selection of the method to be used in a corporate acquisition historically was governed to some extent by the accounting treatment given to the results of the acquisition method used [Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, Ch. 161, Review of Factors to Be Considered in Selecting Form of Acquisition, § 161.15 (Matthew Bender)]. The method used by accountants in preparing the financial statements for a corporate merger or fusion was the subject of some controversy [Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, Ch. 31, Accounting for an Acquisition, § 31.02[1] (Matthew Bender); see [4], below]. Historically, two methods of accounting were used to reflect the results of a corporate acquisition: the pooling of interest method and the purchase method.

However, the Financial Accounting Standards Board (FASB), the ruling body of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants (AICPA), eliminated "pooling" accounting [described in [2], below], in business combinations effective July 1, 2001 [see FASB Statement No. 141, Business Combinations; see also Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS and MERGERS, ch. 31, Accounting for an Acquisition, § 31.02 (Matthew Bender); Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, Ch. 161, Review of Factors to Be Considered in Selecting Form of Acquisition, § 161.15]. Although under the FASB's new rule pooling accounting is eliminated, the impact of this change is not as significant as it might seem, because goodwill will not generally have to be amortized. Companies may continue to reflect goodwill on their books as long as the goodwill maintains its value [see Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS and MERGERS, ch. 31, Accounting for an Acquisition, § 31.02 (Matthew Bender); see also [4], below].

[2] Former Pooling of Interest Method

In the pooling of interest method of accounting, the assets and liabilities of the acquired corporation as they appeared on the books of that corporation on the date of its acquisition were simply carried over to the books of the acquiring corporation and "pooled" with its assets and liabilities [Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, Ch. 31, Accounting for an Acquisition, § 31.02[2] (Matthew Bender)]. The amount the acquiring corporation paid for the acquired corporation and its assets was immaterial. The assets of the acquired corporation were simply transferred to the account books of the acquired corporation at the same value they had on the books of the acquired corporation [see Note, Accounting for Business Combinations: A Critique of APB Opinion Number 16, 23 Stan. L. Rev. 330, 339 (1971)]. The Financial Accounting Standards Board (FASB), the ruling body of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants (AICPA) eliminated "pooling" accounting in mergers and acquisitions effective July 1, 2001 [see FASB Statement No. 141, Business Combinations]. For further discussion of this former accounting method, see Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS and MERGERS, ch. 31, Accounting for an Acquisition, § 31.03 (Matthew Bender).

[3] Purchase Method

In the purchase method of accounting, the assets and liabilities of the acquired corporation are treated on the accounting books of the acquiring corporation as if they had been purchased by the acquiring corporation. Each asset of the acquired corporation is entered on the books of the acquiring corporation at the price the acquiring corporation paid, or is presumed to have paid, to the acquired corporation or its shareholders for that asset [Note, Accounting for Business Combinations: A Critique of APB Opinion Number 16, 23 Stan. L. Rev. 330, 338 (1971)]. The price the acquiring corporation is presumed to have paid for each of the tangible assets of the acquired corporation is not the value at which that asset was carried on the books of the acquired corporation, but the fair market value of the asset on the date of the corporate acquisition [Note, Accounting for Business Combinations: A Critique of APB Opinion Number 16, 23 Stan. L. Rev. 330, 338 (1971)]. If the cost of acquisition is greater than the sum of the amounts allocated to assets less liabilities assumed, the remainder is to be recorded as goodwill. If the costs figure is less than the sum of the values allocated, negative goodwill may result [Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, ch. 31, Accounting for an Acquisition, § 31.04[2] (Matthew Bender)].

For a detailed discussion of the purchase method, see Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, ch. 31, Accounting for an Acquisition, § 31.04 (Matthew Bender)].

[4] Effect on Financial Position

[a] Future Earnings

Use of the purchase method generally has an adverse effect on future earnings. Because the tangible assets of the acquired corporation are listed on the books and financial statements of the acquiring corporation at their fair market value on the date of the corporate acquisition, which is usually higher than the value at which they were carried on the books of the acquired corporation, accounting principles require that value be used in depreciating them on the books of the acquiring corporation. Thus, the earnings of the acquiring corporation will be reduced each year on its books and financial statements by a higher charge for depreciation of the tangible assets received from the acquired corporation under the purchase method of accounting than they would under the pooling of interests method of accounting [Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, ch. 31, Accounting for an Acquisition, § 31.02[3] (Matthew Bender)].

Prior to the FASB's new rule, the negative effect on earnings was compounded by the goodwill factor in purchase accounting. Each year earnings would be reduced on the books and financial statements of the acquiring corporation by a depreciation or amortization charge for the price paid by it for the goodwill of the acquired corporation. Under the pooling method of accounting, no value or only a nominal value having been entered on the books of the acquired corporation for its goodwill, no value or only a nominal value was listed on the books of the acquiring corporation for the goodwill of the acquired corporation [Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, ch. 31, Accounting for an Acquisition, § 31.02[3] (Matthew Bender)].

The adoption of purchase accounting as the only permissible method for reporting mergers and acquisitions [see [1], above], however, has altered the way in which goodwill is treated. Under the new rule, companies are not permitted to amortize goodwill at all until it becomes impaired [see FASB Statement No. 142, Goodwill and Other Intangible Assets ]. Assuming there is no impairment, the purchaser does not have to amortize goodwill and reflect on its books a charge against its earnings. Since earnings are the principal measure of stock prices, it was thought that the new rule would, on balance, be beneficial. That has not been the case recently as many companies, particularly in technology areas, found they could not generate sufficient cash flow to sustain the goodwill on their books (i.e., impairment resulted under the new rule). From the standpoint of performing adequate due diligence investigations, lawyers representing the parties in an acquisition or merger need to determine, with the help of accountants and other financial experts, whether there is the need to consider a write-off of impaired goodwill or whether such a write-off is likely in the near future [Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS and MERGERS, ch. 31, Accounting for an Acquisition, §§ 31.02[3], 31.03, 31.05 (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Income Tax Returns

Use of either the purchase method or pooling of interests method will have little or no effect on the amount of earnings of the acquiring corporation appearing on its income tax returns. Goodwill is not depreciable for income tax purposes and the amount of depreciation the acquiring corporation may claim for the tangible assets it received from the acquired corporation will depend on its income tax basis for those assets which, in turn, will depend on the method by which its acquisition of those assets and the acquired corporation was consummated [see § 11.25[2]].

§ 11.200 Table Comparing Acquisition Methods

[1] Comment

This table compares the key features of the five acquisition methods discussed in this chapter. It is designed to provide a handy comparison between the basic features of the various methods. It is important to bear in mind that the descriptions have been simplified for purpose of comparison. Each acquisition method is covered in detail in a separate chapter [see Chs. 11A-11E], which should be consulted prior to selecting, structuring, and carrying out the transaction.

This table compares the following acquisition methods:

- The cash purchase of shares [see Ch. 11A, Cash Purchase of Shares].
- The cash purchase of assets [see Ch. 11B, Cash Purchase of Assets].
- Mergers [see Ch. 11C, Mergers].
- Acquisitions of shares for shares [see Ch. 11D, Acquisition of Shares for Shares].
- Acquisitions of assets for shares [see Ch. 11E, Acquisition of Assets for Shares].

Issues such as shareholder approval [see § 11.24[2]], dilution of interests, and purchase of dissenting interests [see §§ 11.21[1][e]] are encompassed in the first factor listed in the table below.

Scope

Scope

This chapter discusses the oldest and simplest method by which one corporation can acquire ownership and control of another corporation--the purchase of the second corporation's shares directly from its shareholders for cash or a combination of cash and debt securities. The Legal Background discusses the legal and tax requirements for an advantageous corporate acquisition by the cash purchase of shares, and the relative advantages and disadvantages of this method as compared to other methods of corporate acquisition. The Transaction Guide contains procedures for the cash purchase of shares, and includes related procedures for obtaining a new income tax basis for acquired assets and transferring a net operating loss carryover to the acquiring corporation. The forms in this chapter include a contract for the cash purchase of shares, a resolution of the board of the acquiring corporation authorizing the purchase, and a tender offer for the cash purchase of shares.

For a discussion and comparison of the various methods of corporate acquisition, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues . These methods are covered individually in Ch. 11B, Cash Purchase of Assets ; Ch. 11C, Mergers; Ch. 11D, Acquisition of Shares for Shares ; and Ch. 11E, Acquisition of Assets for Shares .

Further detailed discussion of the sale of assets is contained in Ballantine & Sterling, CALIFORNIA CORPORATION LAWS, Ch. 12, Corporate Acquisitions, Mergers, and Reorganizations (Matthew Bender). Applicable forms are set forth in Ballantine & Sterling, CALIFORNIA CORPORATION LAWS, Appendix A, Forms 13.08, 13.09 (Matthew Bender).

CHAPTER 11A CASH PURCHASE OF SHARES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11A.20

§ 11A.20 Cash Purchase of Shares Generally

The purchase by one corporation of a second corporation's shares directly from its shareholders is the oldest and simplest method of acquiring ownership and control of the second corporation. This type of purchase is simple when the corporation sought to be acquired has relatively few shareholders who all wish to sell their shares. This type of acquisition, however, is more complicated when one or more of the larger shareholders of the corporation sought to be acquired refuses to sell his or her shares, or when the management of the corporation sought to be acquired actively opposes the purchase of its shares by the acquiring corporation and the acquiring corporation is forced to make a contested "tender offer" to the shareholders of the corporation it seeks to acquire [see Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, Ch. 5D, Acquisitions of Stock (Matthew Bender)].

The cash purchase of shares, like the cash purchase of assets [see Ch. 11B, Cash Purchase of Assets], may take many forms. Share acquisitions as a method of obtaining ownership of a corporation are sometimes classified simply as either taxable or nontaxable share acquisitions [see Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, ch. 5D, Acquisitions of Stock (Matthew Bender)]. A nontaxable share acquisition is a shares-for-shares exchange that comes within the definition of a tax-free reorganization contained in the Internal Revenue Code [see Ch. 11, Mergers and Acquisitions Issues]. A taxable share acquisition is in effect a cash purchase of shares, but the consideration paid for shares in a taxable acquisition may be any of the following [Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, Ch. 5D, Acquisitions of Stock (Matthew Bender)]:

- All cash.
- Part cash and part either shares, notes, or securities of the acquiring corporation or its parent.
- All convertible or nonconvertible debt securities of the acquiring corporation or its parent.
- Cash sufficient to enable each selling shareholder to pay income taxes on the sale and the balance in notes or shares of the acquiring corporation.
- Some other combination of cash, shares, notes, and securities.

A cash purchase of shares may also take the form of either an installment sale or a "deferred payout arrangement." In an installment sale, the purchase price of the shares is to be paid in installments for income tax or other purposes. In a "deferred payout arrangement," the amount of the purchase price to be paid for the shares is determined by the future earnings of the acquired corporation [see Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, Ch. 165, Sales of Stock (Matthew Bender); Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, Ch. 5D, Acquisitions of Stock (Matthew Bender)].

All of these forms of taxable share acquisitions or cash purchases of shares have their own tax and nontax requirements and consequences. Certain requirements and consequences and advantages and disadvantages, however, are generally applicable to all of them.

DIVISION I: BUSINESS AND NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS
CHAPTER 11A CASH PURCHASE OF SHARES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11A.21

§ 11A.21 Governing Law

[1] California General Corporation Law

One of the advantages of acquiring another corporation by means of a cash purchase of its shares is the relative freedom of the transaction from California statutory regulation. The transaction is not defined as a "reorganization" by the California General Corporation Law [see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues] because there is no need to subject it to the same statutory shareholder approvals that are required in the case of a statutory merger of corporations [see Ch. 11C, Mergers, § 11C.22[5]]. There is no need for a statute requiring the proposed purchase of shares to be approved by formal vote of either shareholders of the acquiring corporation or shareholders of the acquired corporation. The interests of the shareholders of the acquiring corporation in their corporation are not being diluted as they might be in a shares-for-shares exchange [see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues ; Ch. 11D, Acquisition of Shares for Shares]. Due to the nature of the transaction, the shareholders of the corporation sought to be acquired must approve the proposed transaction in a more binding manner than a formal vote at a shareholders' meeting-they must actually accept the acquiring corporation's offer and tender their shares to the acquiring corporation for purchase [Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, ch. 5D, Acquisitions of Stock (Matthew Bender)].

[2] Internal Revenue Code

The acquiring corporation must satisfy federal income tax requirements in order to make the most advantageous income tax use of its acquired corporation. These income tax requirements are set forth in I.R.C. §§ 332, 337, 338, and 381. I.R.C. § 332 deals with the taxation or nontaxation of gains received by a parent corporation on dissolution and liquidation of a subsidiary. I.R.C. § 337 provides for the gain or loss to the subsidiary upon liquidation pursuant to I.R.C. § 332. I.R.C. § 338 is a special provision allowing or requiring a corporation that has acquired all the shares of another corporation for cash to obtain a new income tax basis for the acquired corporation's assets. I.R.C. § 381 describes the circumstances under which a net operating loss carryover income tax deduction available to an acquired corporation may be transferred to and used by an acquiring corporation. For further discussion of these income tax requirements, see § 11A.22.

[3] Securities Law

Another federal statute affecting the cash purchase of shares is the Williams Act, consisting of Sections 13(d), (e), and 14(d)-(f) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 [15 U.S.C. §§ 78m(d),(e), 78n(d)-(f)]. It applies generally to the acquisition of shares listed on a national securities exchange. It imposes filing, disclosure, antifraud, and other requirements on persons or corporations seeking to acquire corporate control through the purchase of those shares [Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, ch. 5E, Tender Offers and Takeovers (Matthew Bender)]. This chapter discusses the Act in connection with tender offers for the cash purchase of shares [see §§ 11A.110[5], [6], 11A.202].

DIVISION I: BUSINESS AND NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS
CHAPTER 11A CASH PURCHASE OF SHARES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11A.22

§ 11A.22 Tax Factors

[1] Income Tax on Sale of Shares

[a] Sale of Property by Shareholders

For federal income tax purposes, the purchase by one corporation of the shares of another corporation for cash or any combination of cash and promissory notes is simply a taxable sale of property by the shareholders of the corporation that is being acquired [see I.R.C. § 1001(a)]. Any gain or loss resulting from the sale or exchange of property, unless otherwise expressly provided by provisions of the Internal Revenue Code, must be "recognized" and reported by the seller on his or her federal income tax return [see I.R.C. § 1001(c)]. Shares and securities of a corporation are a form of property [see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues]. No provision of the Internal Revenue Code makes a cash sale to corporate securities or shares tax-free, and therefore any gain or loss realized by a shareholder on the sale of shares in a corporation for cash is "recognized" and must be reported on the shareholder's federal income tax return [see I.R.C. §§ 61, 1001(c)].

[b] Double Taxation Avoided

Because income tax is imposed on any gain or profit received by the seller, both a cash purchase by one corporation of the shares of another corporation and a cash purchase by one corporation of all the assets of another corporation are classified as taxable transactions and taxable methods of corporate acquisition [see I.R.C. §§ 61, 1001(c)]. However, there is an important difference between the tax treatment of a cash purchase of shares and of a cash purchase of corporate assets, which is due to the difference in tax status of the sellers in the two types of transactions.

When one corporation purchases all or substantially all the assets of another corporation for cash, or for cash and promissory notes, the seller of the corporate assets is the acquired corporation itself. Ordinarily, the acquired corporation, as seller of the assets, must pay income taxes on any gain or profit it received on the sale of those assets [see I.R.C. §§ 61, 1001(c)]. Tax may be due at the shareholder level if the gain is distributed to the shareholders as a dividend [see I.R.C. § 301] or as gain or loss on the liquidation of the corporation [see I.R.C. § 331]. Care must be taken to avoid double taxation of the sale proceeds [see Ch. 11B, Cash Purchase of Assets, § 11B.112].

The issue of possible double taxation of the sale proceeds does not arise when one corporation purchases the shares of another corporation for cash. The seller in such a transaction is not the acquired corporation; rather, the sellers are the shareholders of the acquired corporation. Therefore, there is no sale or exchange by the acquired corporation from which it may realize a gain or profit on which it must pay income tax. The sale is made by the shareholders of the acquired corporation, the cash purchase price of the shares is paid directly to them, and they are the only ones who therefore may realize a gain or profit from the sale on which they must pay income taxes.

[c] Capital Gain or Ordinary Income

The taxable gain or profit each shareholder of the acquired corporation will realize on the cash sale of shares to the acquiring corporation is the amount by which the purchase price paid for the shares exceeds his or her cost or other income tax basis for those shares [I.R.C. §§ 1001, 1011, 1012; see Ch. 11, Mergers and Acquisition Issues]. Ordinarily, a corporate shareholders's taxable gain on the cash sale will be a long-term capital gain if the corporation has owned the shares of the acquired corporation for more than 12 months before the sale, and a short-term capital gain if not [I.R.C. § 1222].

Difficulties may arise, however, when a principal corporate shareholder of the acquired corporation gives the acquiring corporation, as part of the sale of shares in the acquired corporation, a covenant not to compete with it or with the acquired corporation. The Internal Revenue Service may claim that part of the purchase price received from the acquiring corporation was really in payment of the covenant not to compete and is taxable as ordinary income and not as a long-term capital gain [see I.R.C. § 1221; see also I.R.C. § 1060(e) (allocation of basis when 10 percent shareholder makes covenant not to compete)].

[d] Installment Sale Treatment

If the acquired corporation's shares are not traded on an established securities market, a shareholder of that corporation may defer, or in some cases reduce, income tax liability on any gain or profit realized from the sale of his or her shares for cash to the acquiring corporation by arranging for payment in installments. To receive installment sale treatment, at least one payment must be received after the close of the taxable year in which the sale occurs [see I.R.C. § 453]. In an installment sale, the taxpayer is required to recognize income from payments received in any taxable year only in the proportion that the gross profit bears to the total contract price [I.R.C. § 453(c)]. Because the federal income tax is progressive (that is, the tax rate imposed on a large income is greater than on a small income), a shareholder may pay less tax if gain can be reported on an installment basis over several years rather than all in one year, depending on his or her other income during the years the installment payments are made. The tax benefits of an installment sale, however, are unavailable if the stock or securities sold are traded on an established securities market. In that case, all payments to be received from the sale will be treated as received in the year of disposition [I.R.C. § 453(k)].

[2] Income Tax Basis for Purchases

The biggest disadvantage to the purchase of shares as a method of obtaining ownership is that the change in ownership of the corporation does not result in a step-up in the basis of the acquired corporation's assets [see I.R.C. § 1012; but see I.R.C. § 338 (step-up in basis of assets may be elected in certain circumstances); see also [3], below].

[3] Requirements for New Income Tax Basis

[a] Election

An acquiring corporation that makes a "qualified stock purchase" may elect to step up the basis of the acquired ("target") corporation's assets [I.R.C. § 338(a)]. A "qualified stock purchase" is the purchase, in one transaction or a series of transactions, of stock that (1) constitutes 80 percent of the total voting power of the stock of the target corporation, and (2) has a value equal to at least 80 percent of the total value of the stock of the target corporation [see

I.R.C. § 1504(a)(2)], during a 12-month "acquisition period." That period begins on the date of the first acquisition by purchase [see I.R.C. § 338(h)(3)] of stock included in a qualified stock purchase [I.R.C. § 338(d)(3); see I.R.C. § 338(h)(1)].

The election is made by filing a timely statement of election on an official form with the Internal Revenue Service no later than the 15th day of the 9th month beginning after the month in which the "acquisition date" occurs [I.R.C. § 338(g); see Temp. Treas. Reg. § 1.338-1T(c)-(e)]. The "acquisition date" is the first day on which there is a "qualified stock purchase" from the target corporation [I.R.C. § 338(h)(2)]. If a series of stock purchases are made over a period of time, the acquisition date is the first day on which the acquiring corporation owns the necessary percentages of stock of the target corporation [Temp. Treas. Reg. § 1.338-1T; see I.R.C. § 338(d)(3)]. The election is irrevocable [I.R.C. § 338(g)(3)].

[b] Deemed Election

A corporation will be deemed to have made an election if it directly acquires any asset of the target corporation at any time during an extended "consistency period" that starts a year before the first stock purchase and ends a year after the date on which the purchasing corporation acquired 80 percent control [I.R.C. § 338(e)(1); see I.R.C. § 338(h)(4)]. This rule is intended to prevent acquiring corporations from separately purchasing those target assets whose bases exceed fair market value, and stepping up the bases of other low-basis assets through a stock purchase and I.R.C. § 338 election. However, the deemed election does not apply to an asset acquisition if any of the following apply [I.R.C. § 338(e)(2)]:

- It was made pursuant to a sale by the target corporation in the ordinary course of trade or business.
- The basis of the property acquired is wholly determined by reference to the adjusted basis of that property in the hands of the target corporation.
- It was made before September 1, 1982.

The regulations may also make other exceptions.

[c] Effect of Election

On an election or deemed election, the target corporation is treated as if it had sold its assets at fair market value and become a "new" corporation that purchased those same assets [I.R.C. § 338(a)]. This conceptual scheme results in a step-up in basis of the assets without actual liquidation of the target. The "new" corporation also loses its former tax attributes, including any net operating loss carryovers that it was entitled to utilize [see [4], below].

The target's assets receive a new basis determined by the acquiring corporation's basis in the target corporation's stock. They are treated as having been purchased for the sum of the "grossed-up" basis of the purchasing corporation's recently purchased target stock and the basis of the purchasing corporation's nonrecently purchased target stock, adjusted for liabilities of the target [I.R.C. § 338(b)(1)]. "Recently purchased stock" is any stock in the target corporation that the purchasing corporation holds on the acquisition date and that was purchased during the 12-month acquisition period [I.R.C. § 338(b)(6)]. "Grossed-up basis" is the basis of the acquiring corporation's recently purchased stock, multiplied by a fraction in which (1) the numerator is 100 percent less the percentage that the value of the nonrecently purchased stock is of the total value of all target stock, and (2) the denominator is the percentage that the value of recently purchased stock is of the total value of all target stock [I.R.C. § 338(b)(4)]. The new basis is to be allocated among the various assets of the target according to regulation [I.R.C. § 338(b)(5)]. The purchase price under temporary IRS regulations [Temp Treas. Reg. 1.338-6T(b)] is allocated first to cash and cash equivalent assets, then to assets other than goodwill or going concern in proportion to the asset's fair market value on the date of acquisition value and decreasing liquidity, and finally to goodwill or going concern values, first to those eligible for amortization under I.R.C. § 197, and finally to those that are not eligible for amortization.

[4] Net Operating Loss Carryforward Deduction

An acquiring corporation may obtain the net operating loss carryforward of an acquired corporation only pursuant to I.R.C. § 381 [see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues]. Although a taxable purchase of assets is not one of the acquisition methods enumerated in that section that automatically result in the transfer of any net operating loss carryforward of the acquired corporation to the acquiring corporation [see I.R.C. § 381(a)(1), (c)(1)], an acquiring corporation that has not made or been deemed to have made an I.R.C. § 338 election [see [3], above] may obtain the carryforward by liquidating the acquired corporation pursuant to I.R.C. § 332 [see I.R.C. § 381(a)]. Such a liquidation does not result in the recognition of any gain or loss [I.R.C. § 332(a)] or in the step-up in basis of assets received [see I.R.C. § 334(b)(1)]. A corporation may also obtain any carryforward through a tax-free merger with the acquired corporation [see I.R.C. § 381(a)(2); see also Ch. 11C, Mergers]. If an I.R.C. § 338 election has been made or deemed made, however, the target corporation is treated as having undergone a liquidation and become a "new corporation" [see I.R.C. § 338(a)(1)], thereby losing any loss carryforwards to which it was entitled. Therefore, its carryforwards cannot be transferred pursuant to a tax-free liquidation or merger [see I.R.C. § 381(a)]. The acquiring corporation may face the choice of obtaining a new basis for the acquired corporation's assets by making an election pursuant to I.R.C. § 338 or obtaining its net operating loss carryforward by liquidation or merger.

[5] Limitations on Use of Carryforward

If the acquired corporation has not lost any net operating loss carryforwards pursuant to a Section 338 election [see I.R.C. § 338; see also [4], above], the amount of carryforward available for its own use (or for the use of the acquiring corporation obtaining the carryforward after a tax-free liquidation or tax-free merger) may nonetheless be substantially reduced or disallowed [I.R.C. § 382].

The amount of taxable income of a new loss corporation for any taxable year after an ownership change that may be offset by pre-change losses is limited to the value of the stock of the old loss corporation immediately before the ownership change, multiplied by the highest federal long-term rate in effect for any month in the three-calendar-month period ending with the month of ownership change [I.R.C. § 382(b)(1); see I.R.C. § 382(e), (f)]. An "ownership change" occurs when, after a change in stock ownership affecting the percentage of stock owned by any person who is a five-percent shareholder before or after the change, the percentage of stock of the loss corporation owned by one or more five-percent shareholders has increased by more than 50 percent over the lowest percentage of stock in the old loss corporation owned by those shareholders during the three-year period ending on the change in stock ownership [I.R.C. § 382(g); see I.R.C. § 382(i)].

A net operating loss carryforward will be disallowed to a new loss corporation that does not continue the business enterprise of the old loss corporation at all times during the two-year period following the change date [I.R.C. § 382(c)(1)]. Special rules for determining the allowable carryforward apply if unrealized built-in gains or losses exceed 25 percent of the value of the old loss corporation's assets before the ownership change [see I.R.C. § 382(c)(2), (h); see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues (discussion of rules regarding use of net operating loss carryforward, and definitions applicable to that rule)].

Even if a carryforward is not reduced pursuant to I.R.C. § 382(a), it may be completely disallowed pursuant to I.R.C. § 269(b) if the acquiring corporation purchases at least 50 percent of the total combined voting power of all classes of voting stock or at least 50 percent of the total value of all stock of the acquired corporation, for the principal purpose of avoiding income tax [see I.R.C. § 269(a); see also Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues]. Furthermore, the carryforward may be disallowed if the acquiring corporation [I.R.C. § 269(b)]:

- Makes a "qualified stock purchase" [see I.R.C. § 338(d)(3); see also [3], above];

- Does not make an election pursuant to I.R.C. § 338 [see [3], above];

- Liquidates the acquired corporation pursuant to a plan of liquidation adopted not more than two years after the acquisition date, and

- Has as its principal purpose for the liquidation the evasion or avoidance of federal income tax by securing the benefit of a deduction that it would not otherwise enjoy.

DIVISION I: BUSINESS AND NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS
CHAPTER 11A CASH PURCHASE OF SHARES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11A.23

§ 11A.23 Assumption of Liabilities of Acquired Corporation

An acquiring corporation may be required to assume the liabilities of the corporation being acquired. An assumption of liabilities occurs automatically in a statutory merger [see Ch. 11C, Mergers, § 11C.27]. In the sole area of products liability claims, the assumption of liabilities may occur in a purchase of assets if the purchaser continues to operate the business and the selling corporation dissolves [see Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, ch. 161, Review of Factors to Be Considered in Selecting Form of Acquisition (Matthew Bender); see also Ch. 11E, Acquisition of Assets for Shares]. Although acquisition by purchase of a corporation's shares avoids such an assumption of liabilities, the corporation purchasing shares of another corporation runs the risk of having unknown or contingent liabilities of the acquired corporation reduce its value [see Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, ch. 161, Review of Factors to Be Considered in Selecting Form of Acquisition (Matthew Bender)]. For this reason, counsel should always examine (and have the acquiring corporation's accountants examine) the balance sheets and account ledgers of the corporation whose shares are to be acquired. Unknown and inchoate liabilities, however, such as liability for injuries caused or to be caused by a defective product that the acquired corporation manufactured or sold, cannot be disclosed by books and records. The purchaser of corporate shares assumes the risk that the price it pays for shares of another corporation may be excessive if that corporation has unknown and undisclosed liabilities [see Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, ch. 161, Review of Factors to Be Considered in Selecting Form of Acquisition (Matthew Bender)].

To protect its investment, an acquiring corporation often requires selling shareholders of the corporation being acquired to sign an agreement to indemnify it against unknown liabilities of the corporation being acquired. It also usually requires them to personally warrant that the financial statements and books of the corporation being acquired are correct and that it has no known liabilities not shown on those statements and books [see Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, ch. 161, Review of Factors to Be Considered in Selecting Form of Acquisition (Matthew Bender)]. These indemnity agreements and warranties are easier to obtain from the shareholders of a small closely owned corporation than from the shareholders of a large publicly held corporation. In the latter case, however, it may be possible to obtain indemnity agreements and warranties from the major selling shareholders of the corporation being acquired. It would be most difficult to obtain indemnity and warranty agreements if acquisition of the shares of the corporation sought to be acquired was opposed by its management and could be achieved only by means of a contested tender offer made to its other shareholders.

CHAPTER 11A CASH PURCHASE OF SHARES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11A.24

§ 11A.24 Other Advantages and Disadvantages of Cash Share Purchase

[1] Shareholder Approval Not Required

The greatest advantages of acquiring a corporation by the cash purchase of its shares may be that shareholder approval in a formal manner is not required and there are few, if any, instruments of conveyance to be drafted. Approval of the purchase by shareholders of the acquiring corporation is not required because their interests in the acquiring corporation are not being diluted by the purchase [see § 11A.21[1]]. Shareholders of the corporation sought to be acquired approve the transaction by tendering their shares for purchase, so the formal calling of a shareholders' meeting of that corporation for approval of the transaction is not necessary. The only instruments of conveyance required are share certificates originally issued by the corporation sought to be acquired properly endorsed for transfer to the acquiring corporation by each of the selling shareholders of the corporation sought to be acquired [see Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, ch. 161, Review of Factors to Be Considered in Selecting Form of Acquisition (Matthew Bender)].

[2] Management Approval Not Required

Another advantage of a cash purchase of shares is that it does not require approval of the management or board of directors of the corporation sought to be acquired. In fact, many corporations have successfully acquired all or substantially all the shares of another corporation by means of public tender offers over the vigorous opposition of the acquired corporation's management [see Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, ch. 5D, Acquisitions of Stock (Matthew Bender)]. Conversely, however, a disadvantage that may hinder an attempt to purchase the shares of a corporation may be the fact that it has many shareholders that are scattered geographically, and that its management is uncooperative and opposes the acquisition. In such a situation, the solicitation of the purchase of each shareholder's shares may be too expensive and too time-consuming to make the acquisition feasible.

[3] No Sales Tax Consequences

A further advantage of a cash purchase of shares is that it has no sales tax consequences. Shares of stock are not tangible personal property [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 6016 (definition)], and thus are not subject to the imposition of the Sales and Use Tax Law [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 6001-7176]. For a discussion of the types of reorganizations that are subject to the sales and use tax, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues .

[4] Dangling Minority Interests

"Dangling minority interests" may impede the acquiring corporation when it is unable to obtain all the shares of the acquired corporation. Minority remaining shareholders of the acquired corporation may have ideas quite different than those of the acquiring corporation and work as a hindrance to management by the acquiring corporation of the affairs of the acquired corporation [see Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, ch. 165, Sales of Stock (Matthew Bender)]. These dangling minority interests probably can be eliminated either by a statutory or short-form merger of the acquired corporation into the acquiring corporation. They cannot be eliminated, however, by a sale of all assets of the acquired corporation to the acquiring corporation for an unreasonable price [Corp. Code § 1001(d)]. They must be allowed the rights of a dissenting shareholder to a merger or short-form merger to have their shares purchased for their appraised fair market value on the date before merger of the acquired corporation into the acquiring corporation was first announced [Corp. Code §§ 1300-1312].

B. Procedural Guide to Cash Purchase of Shares

5-11A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11A.110

§ 11A.110 Preliminary Determinations

1. Determine whether share purchase is best method of acquisition under circumstances [see §§ 11A.111 (advantages), 11A.112 (disadvantages)].

NOTE:
For a discussion of the factors used to determine the most appropriate acquisition method, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues .

2. Determine whether corporation sought to be acquired was validly formed and is still in good standing.

a. Determine whether articles of incorporation were properly filed.

NOTE:
For a discussion of filing requirements, see Ch. 3, Articles of Incorporation .

b. Determine whether corporation has been suspended for failing to pay franchise tax or file franchise tax returns [see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 23301, 23301.5].

c. Determine whether corporation has filed required annual statement of officers and directors with Secretary of State [see Corp. Code § 1502].

3. Determine whether any requirements or limitations regarding share transfer are contained in articles of incorporation or bylaws of corporation sought to be acquired.

4. Determine whether any restrictions on acquisition of corporate control, transfer of shares, or tender offers are imposed by any stock exchange on which shares of corporation sought to be acquired are listed.

5. Determine which of following methods should be used to accomplish share acquisition:

a. Agreement with shareholders of corporation to be acquired.

NOTE:
This method is generally used when the management of the corporation sought to be acquired is cooperative with regard to the acquisition [Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, Ch. 5E, Tender Offers and Takeovers (Matthew Bender)].

b. Tender offer.

NOTE:
This method is generally used if the acquisition is actively opposed by the management of the corporation sought to be acquired [Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, Ch. 5E, Tender Offers and Takeovers (Matthew Bender)]. For a detailed discussion of tender offers, see Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, Ch. 166A, Tender Offers (Matthew Bender).

6. If share acquisition might be accomplished by tender offer [see P 5b, above], determine whether tender offer must meet requirements of federal Williams Act based on following [15 U.S.C. § 78n(d)-(f); see § 11A.114]:

a. Person making offer, after consummation of offer, would be beneficial owner of more than five percent of that class of securities [15 U.S.C. § 78n(d)(1)]; and

b. One of following applies [15 U.S.C. § 78n(d)(1)]:

(1) Shares of corporation sought to be acquired are registered on national securities exchange pursuant to 15 U.S.C. § 78l.

(2) Corporation sought to be acquired is insurance corporation that would be required to register its securities on national exchange [see P (1), above] except for exemption granted under 15 U.S.C. § 78(g)(2)(G).

(3) Corporation sought to be acquired is registered closed-end investment company [see 15 U.S.C. §§ 80a-1-80a-64].

7. With respect to basis of assets, determine whether acquiring corporation:

NOTE:
If the acquiring corporation steps-up the basis of the acquired corporation's assets, any net operating loss carryover of the acquired corporation will become unavailable for either corporation to use [see § 11.22[5]].

a. May elect to step-up basis of acquired corporation's assets [I.R.C. § 338(a); see § 11A.130].

NOTE:
The acquiring corporation must make a "qualified stock purchase" [see I.R.C. § 338(d)(3)] in order to make the election [I.R.C. § 338(a)].

(1) Determine whether corporation has purchased from target corporation, in one transaction or series of transactions [I.R.C. § 338(d)(3); see I.R.C. § 1504(a)(2)]:

(a) At least 80 percent of total voting power of target corporation's stock; and

(b) At least 80 percent of total value of target corporation's stock.

(2) Determine whether stock purchase [see P (1), above] was made during one 12-month period beginning with date of first acquisition [see I.R.C. § 338(h)(1)].

b. Will be deemed to have elected step-up in basis of acquired corporation's assets [I.R.C. § 338(e)].

NOTE:

This rule is intended to prevent acquiring corporations from separately purchasing those target assets whose bases exceed fair market value, and stepping up the bases of other low-basis assets through a stock purchase and election pursuant to I.R.C. § 338 [see Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, Ch. 175, Transferring Corporate Ownership in a Taxable Transaction (Matthew Bender)].

(1) Determine whether corporation has made qualified stock purchase [see P a, above].

(2) Determine whether corporation has directly acquired any asset of target corporation at any time during:

NOTE:

An asset acquisition is excluded from the application of this rule if (1) it was made pursuant to a sale by the target corporation in the ordinary course of trade or business, (2) the basis of the property acquired is wholly determined by reference to the adjusted basis of that property in the hands of the target corporation, or (3) if it was made before September 1, 1982 [I.R.C. § 338(e)(2)].

(a) One-year period before beginning of acquisition period.

(b) Acquisition period.

NOTE:

The "acquisition period" is the 12-month period beginning with the date of the first acquisition by purchase of stock included in a qualified stock purchase [I.R.C. § 338(h)(1)].

(c) One-year period beginning on day after acquisition date.

NOTE:

The "acquisition date" is the first day on which the acquiring corporation makes a qualified stock purchase [I.R.C. § 338(h)(2); see P a(1), above].

8. With respect to net operating loss carryovers, determine whether acquiring corporation should:

NOTE:

Any carryover of the acquired corporation available for its own use or the use of the acquiring corporation after dissolution or merger, however, may be reduced or disallowed [see I.R.C. §§ 269, 382(a); see § 11A.22[5]].

a. Merge with or liquidate acquired corporation in order to obtain any net operating loss carryover [I.R.C. § 381(a), (c)(1); see I.R.C. § 332].

NOTE:

For the procedures required to obtain the carryover, see § 11A.131. That option is not available when the acquiring corporation has made or been deemed to have made an election pursuant to I.R.C. § 338 [see § 11A.110[7]].

b. Allow acquired corporation to continue in existence as separate legal entity.

NOTE:

If the acquired corporation is not liquidated or merged, it will retain its own net operating loss carryover.

9. Determine whether any litigation for damages or violation of any laws or regulations is pending against corporation sought to be acquired.

10. Determine probable risk of unknown and inchoate liabilities reducing value of acquired corporation's shares [see § 11A.23].

11. Determine following information [see I.R.C. § 1060(e)]:

NOTE:

If both of the following requirements are satisfied, the transferor and the transferee may be subject to additional IRS reporting requirements [I.R.C. § 1060(e)].

a. Whether any transferor is a 10-percent owner [see I.R.C. § 1060(e)(2)].

b. Whether any 10-percent owner or related person enters into employment contract, covenant not to compete, royalty or lease agreement, or other agreement with transferee [see I.R.C. § 1060(e)(3)].

a. All cash.

b. Part cash and part shares or debt securities of acquiring corporation or its parent.

c. Part cash and part promissory notes of acquiring corporation.

d. Cash enough to pay income taxes on sale due from selling shareholders and remainder in shares of acquiring corporation.

e. Other combinations of cash, notes, debt securities, shares, etc.

5. Acquiring corporation is not personally liable for debts or liabilities of acquired corporation.

6. Name and reputation of acquired corporation may be continued as separate entity.

7. No dilution of ownership interest occurs in acquiring corporation of shareholders of acquiring corporation.

8. Acquired corporation may continue to use its net operating loss carryforward if:

NOTE:
That carryforward, however, may be reduced or disallowed [see I.R.C. §§ 269(b), 382]. For further discussion, see § 11A.22[5].

a. It is continued as separate entity; and

b. Acquiring corporation has not made election to step up basis of assets pursuant to I.R.C. § 338 [see § 11A.130].

NOTE:
When such an election is made, the acquired corporation becomes a "new" corporation for tax purposes, thereby losing its old tax attributes [see I.R.C. § 338(a)(2); see § 11A.22[5]].

9. Mechanics of transfer are simple if shareholders are few in number.

a. Requirements of Uniform Commercial Code--Bulk Sales Division are not applicable [see Com. Code § 6101 et seq.].

NOTE:
For a discussion of those requirements, see Ch. 11B, Cash Purchase of Assets*, § 11B.20[1][c]*.

b. Purchase price is not withheld until sales tax and employment contribution clearance are received [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 6811; Unemp. Ins. Code § 1731; see also Ch. 11B, Cash Purchase of Assets, § 11B.112[5]].

NOTE:
For a discussion of the withholding requirements, see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice*, § 17.14.*

c. Separate instruments of conveyance are not needed for each motor vehicle, corporate security, or parcel of real property owned by acquired corporation [see Ch. 11B, Cash Purchase of Assets, § 11B.112[7]].

d. Leases and contracts belonging to acquired corporation do not need to be assigned [see Ch. 11B, Cash Purchase of Assets, § 11B.112[8]].

(1) Consent to assignment of lease or contract does not need to be obtained from other party to lease or contract.

(2) Lease or contract continues to belong to acquired corporation as separate entity.

10. Transaction is not subject to California Sales and Use Tax.

NOTE:

The Sales and Use Tax [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 6001-7176] imposes tax on the transfer of property in other types of reorganizations. For a discussion of the application of this tax to mergers and acquisitions, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues .

5-11A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11A.112

§ 11A.112 Advising Parties of Disadvantages of Cash Purchase of Shares

1. Shareholders of acquired corporation must pay income tax on any gain realized on sale of their shares to acquiring corporation [see I.R.C. § 1001].

NOTE:

Gain from the sale of shares, will be treated as long-term capital gain if the shares are held for more than one year [see I.R.C. § 1222(3)].

Capital gains will be taxed at a lower rate than ordinary income. The maximum tax rate applicable to capital gains is generally 15 percent [I.R.C. § 1(h)(1), effective generally for tax years ending on or after 5/16/03 and before 2009; see Pub. Law No. 108-27, §§ 301, 303], while the maximum rate applicable to ordinary income is 35 percent after 2002 [I.R.C. § 1(a)-(d), (h), (i)(2)]. Subject to certain additional taxes for taxable income over certain amounts, the maximum tax rate imposed on corporate income is 35 percent [I.R.C. §§ 11(b), 1201(a); see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues].

a. Gain is taxed as long-term capital gain if shareholder has held shares for more than 12 months [I.R.C. § 1222].

b. Tax may be deferred, or possibly reduced, by having acquiring corporation pay purchase price for shares in installments [I.R.C. § 453].

NOTE:

An installment sale is a disposition of property in which at least one payment will be received after the close of the taxable year in which the disposition occurs [I.R.C. § 453(b); see § 11A.22[1]]. However, the tax benefits of an installment sale are unavailable if the stock or securities sold are traded on an established securities market. In those circumstances, all payments to be received from the sale will be treated as received in the year of disposition [I.R.C. § 453(k)].

2. Acquiring corporation does not automatically receive new income tax basis for assets of acquired corporation [see § 11A.22[2]].

a. It receives new income tax basis for shares of acquired corporation [I.R.C. § 1012].

b. Its purchase of shares does not affect basis of acquired corporation's assets.

c. It may elect to step-up basis of assets [I.R.C. § 338(a)].

NOTE:
For a list of the procedures required to make that election, see § 11A.130.

d. It will be deemed to have elected step-up in basis of assets under certain circumstances [I.R.C. § 338(e); see § 11A.110[7]].

3. Acquiring corporation normally cannot use net operating loss carryover income tax deduction of acquired corporation to reduce its own income.

a. Deduction may be used only against income of acquired corporation even on consolidated income tax return [see Treas. Reg. §§ 1.1502-15, 1.1502-21(c)].

b. Deduction may be used to reduce acquiring corporation's income only if acquired corporation is liquidated pursuant to I.R.C. § 332 or merged into acquiring corporation [I.R.C. § 381(a), (c)(1); see Ch. 11C, Mergers].

NOTE:
An acquiring corporation that has made an election pursuant to I.R.C. § 338 to step-up the basis of the acquired corporation's assets, however, cannot obtain the carryover through a tax-free merger with the acquired corporation or liquidation pursuant to I.R.C. § 332, since that election is deemed to result in a liquidation, after which the acquired corporation becomes a "new" corporation without its old loss carryovers [see I.R.C. § 338(a)(2)]. Therefore, the corporation may have to choose between the benefits of a new basis for assets or a loss carryover [see § 11A.22[4]].

4. Unknown and contingent liabilities of acquired corporation may reduce value of its shares below purchase price paid by acquiring corporation [see § 11A.23].

5. Minority shareholders of acquired corporation who refuse to sell their shares may hinder future corporate operations [see § 11A.24].

a. May be eliminated by statutory or short-form merger of acquired corporation into acquiring corporation.

b. Cannot be eliminated by sale of all assets of acquired corporation to acquiring corporation.

6. Securing purchase of all, or substantially all, shares of corporation sought to be acquired may be unduly expensive and burdensome if [see § 11A.24]:

a. Shareholders of corporation sought to be acquired are numerous and geographically scattered.

b. Management of corporation sought to be acquired actively and vigorously oppose proposed purchase of shares.

A proxy statement must not contain any statement that, at the time and in the light of the circumstances under which it is made, is false or misleading with respect to any material fact necessary to present the statements that are made from being false or misleading [see 15 U.S.C. § 78n(a); 17 C.F.R. § 240.14a-9(a)].

a. All parties.

b. Appropriate officers of acquiring corporation.

c. Selling shareholders of corporation to be acquired.

6. Prior to closing date:

a. Prepare promissory notes or other instruments required to evidence or secure any deferred portion of agreed purchase price for shares of corporation to be acquired.

7. At closing of purchase:

a. Have selling shareholders of corporation sought to be acquired endorse and surrender share certificates to acquiring corporation.

b. Have acquiring corporation deliver payment to selling shareholders upon transfer of shares.

NOTE:

The payment for the shares may include promissory notes or other instruments evidencing or securing any deferred portion of the purchase price, in addition to cash [see Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, Ch. 165, Sales of Stock (Matthew Bender)].

NOTE:
The following election procedures are available only to those corporations that have acquired control of the subsidiary ("target") corporation by making a "qualified stock purchase" [I.R.C. § 338(a); see § 11A.110[7]]. If the acquiring corporation makes the election, it cannot obtain any net operating loss carryover of the acquired corporation [see § 11A.131].

1. Prepare statement of election, including all of following [I.R.C. § 338(g)(2); Temp. Treas. Reg. § 1.338-1T(d)]:

NOTE:
The statement must be made on IRS Form 8023, which is available from the Internal Revenue Service [Temp. Treas. Reg. § 1.338-2T(d)].

a. Name, address, and employer identification number of purchasing corporation and target.

b. Identification of election pursuant to I.R.C. § 338.

c. Acquisition date.

NOTE:
The acquisition date is the first day on which the acquiring corporation has completed a qualified stock purchase [I.R.C. § 338(h)(2)].

d. Statement that election is not barred by reason of I.R.C. § 338(f)(2).

NOTE:

I.R.C. § 338(f)(2) prohibits the acquiring corporation from making an election for a qualified stock purchase with respect to a target and target affiliates if no election was made for a prior purchase during the "consistency period" [I.R.C. § 338(f)(2); see I.R.C. § 338(h)(4)]. It prevents the acquiring corporation from structuring its acquisition as part stock purchase and part asset purchase to achieve the highest basis for each asset [S. Rep. No. 97-494, at 192].

e. Signature of person who states under penalty of perjury that he or she is authorized to make election on behalf of purchasing corporation.

2. Attach schedule providing following information [I.R.C. § 338(g)(2); Temp. Treas. Reg. § 1.338-2T(d)]:

a. Name, address, and employer identification number of each corporation subject to statement of election by reason of I.R.C. § 338(f)(1) as of day statement of election is filed.

NOTE:

I.R.C. § 338(f)(1) causes the election to be deemed made with respect to target affiliates [I.R.C. § 338(f)(1); see I.R.C. § 338(h)(6)].

b. Fair market value of consideration paid by purchasing corporation for stock of each target corporation.

c. Portion of consideration represented by following:

(1) Cash.

(2) Purchase money debt.

(3) Other components of consideration separately stated.

d. Liabilities of each target.

NOTE:

The amount must be as of the close of the target's acquisition date, with the tax liability resulting from the deemed sale of assets under I.R.C. § 338(a)(1) separately stated [Temp. Treas. Reg. § 1.338-4T(d)(1), (2)].

e. If election under I.R.C. § 338(h)(10) is made regarding elective recognition of gain or loss by target corporation, identification of each listed corporation that is subject to that election.

NOTE:

When an election is made under I.R.C. § 338(h)(10), the acquiring corporation and the common parent of the selling consolidated group must report to the Internal Revenue Service, as required, (1) any amount of the purchase price allocated to goodwill or going concern value, (2) any modifications in the allocated amounts, and (3) any other information deemed necessary [see I.R.C. § 338(h)(10)(C); see also I.R.C. § 6724(d)].

3. File IRS Form 8023 with Internal Revenue Service Center where acquiring corporation files income tax returns, no later than 15th day of 9th month beginning after month in which "acquisition date" occurs [I.R.C. § 338(g)(1)].

NOTE:

The acquisition date is the first day on which the acquiring corporation has completed a qualified stock purchase [I.R.C. § 338(h)(2)]. The election is irrevocable [I.R.C. § 338(g)(3)].

NOTE:
The procedure discussed in this section is only available to an acquiring corporation that has not made an election pursuant to I.R.C. § 338 [see § 11A.130].

1. Advise acquiring corporation that obtaining carryover precludes obtaining new income tax basis for acquired corporation's assets.

NOTE:
The only means by which an acquiring corporation may step up the basis of the acquired corporation's assets is to make an election pursuant to I.R.C. § 338 [see § 11A.130]. That election, however, is deemed to result in a liquidation of the acquired corporation with the emergence of a "new" corporation that does not retain any of its loss carryovers [see § 11A.22[4]].

2. Take one of following actions:

NOTE:
An acquiring corporation may obtain the loss carryover of an acquired corporation only pursuant to a tax-free liquidation of a subsidiary or a tax-free reorganization [see I.R.C. § 381(a)].

a. Liquidate corporation pursuant to I.R.C. § 332 [see I.R.C. § 381(a)(1)].

§ 11A.132 Reporting Statutory Change in Ownership

1. Prepare and file change in ownership statement [Rev. & Tax. Code § 480.1].

NOTE:

Real property subject to local property taxation is reassessed when a change in ownership occurs [see Cal. Const., arts. XIII, XIIIA]. A change in ownership is a transfer of a present interest in real property, including the beneficial use thereof, the value of which is substantially equal to the value of the fee interest [Rev. & Tax. Code § 60]. Real property owned by a corporation undergoes a change in ownership when one corporation obtains control, i.e., direct or indirect ownership or control of more than 50 percent of the voting stock of another corporation, through the purchase or transfer of that stock [Rev. & Tax. Code § 64(c)(1)]. For purposes of obtaining control, any purchase or transfer of 50 percent or less of the ownership interest through which control or a majority ownership interest is obtained is included [Rev. & Tax. Code § 64(c)(1)]. That change requires the acquiring corporation to file a change in ownership statement [Rev. & Tax. Code § 480.1]. For discussion, and an example of a change in ownership statement for the transfer of real property [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 480], see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements , § 23.306.

a. Complete official form [see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 480.1, 480.2].

NOTE:

A form may be obtained from the district office of the State Board of Equalization for the area in which the acquired corporation's real property is located.

b. Obtain signature of either [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 480.1(c), 480.2(c)]:

(1) Officer of corporation; or

(2) Employee or agent designated in writing by board of directors to sign change in ownership statement on behalf of corporation.

c. File statement within 45 days from date of change in control with Sacramento office of State Board of Equalization [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 480.1(b), 480.2(b)].

NOTE:

A change in ownership statement must also be filed whenever the State Board of Equalization makes a written request for that statement [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 480.1(b), 480.2(b)].

2. Advise corporation that Board of Equalization will impose monetary penalty of 10 percent of taxes for [Rev. & Tax. Code § 482(b)]:

NOTE:

Rev. & Tax. Code § 64(e) establishes a procedure under which a corporation's tax return must indicate whether control was transferred or sold during the year. Changes are then reported to the State Board of Equalization. This is one source of information that is used as the basis for the issuance of a written request by the Board. By filing the statement within 45 days from the date of change in ownership, the corporation avoids incurring a penalty following a written request from the Board.

a. Failing to file statement within 45 days from earlier of:

(1) Date of change in control or change in ownership; or

(2) Date of written request by Board of Equalization.

b. Failing to file missing information after filing incomplete statement and receiving second request for information.

PART IV. FORMS

5-11A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11A.200

§ 11A.200 Contract for the Cash Purchase of Shares--Purchase Price Payable in Installments Pursuant to Promissory Note

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a simple contract for the cash purchase of all shares of a specified corporation for cash, payable in installments according to the terms of a promissory note to be given by the purchasing corporation to the selling shareholders. Because the shares of the corporation sought to be acquired are owned by the shareholders, rather than by the corporation itself, a contract for the sale of those shares must be made by its shareholders as sellers. This contract, therefore, is between the acquiring corporation and the shareholders of the corporation sought to be acquired rather than the acquired corporation itself. It is most useful when the corporation sought to be acquired is a closely owned corporation having only a few shareholders.

For a resolution to be adopted by the board of directors of the acquiring corporation authorizing the execution of the contract set forth in this form, see § 11A.201. For a discussion of the income tax advantages of having the cash purchase price of shares paid in installments, see § 11A.22.

[b] Warranties and Indemnifications by Sellers

One of the principal disadvantages of acquiring a corporation by purchasing its outstanding shares instead of its assets is the risk of unknown liabilities of the corporation being acquired. Every purchaser of shares runs the risk that unknown liabilities of the corporation that issued the shares will make his or her purchase worthless [see discussion in § 11A.23].

A purchaser of all shares of a corporation cannot protect himself or herself completely against unknown inchoate liabilities of the corporation being acquired. He or she may meticulously examine the books and financial statements of the corporation for any liabilities against it that should be known. Those books and financial statements, however, are prepared under the direction and at the behest of the persons selling the buyer the shares of the corporation. Thus, a contract for the sale of shares ordinarily contains detailed warranties of the selling shareholders as to the accuracy of their corporation's financial statements and as to the solvency of the corporation they are selling. In addition, when the purchase price for their shares is payable in installments, the buyer may also insist on an indemnity provision allowing him or her to deduct any damage suffered because of breach of warranty of the sellers from the remaining unpaid purchase price of their shares. The contract set forth in this form contains both of those warranties and indemnity agreement provisions by the sellers of the shares subject to this contract.

[c] Covenant Not to Compete

At common law, covenants not to compete were disfavored as being in restraint of trade [see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice, § 17.19]. They were authorized and approved by statute in California as long as they were made by a person as part of his or her sale of the goodwill of a business. The sale of all the shares of a corporation was not considered to be the sale of the goodwill of a business, and consequently could not support a covenant by the seller not to compete. The statute was amended in 1945 to validate covenants not to compete when made either by a person selling the goodwill of a business or by a shareholder of a corporation selling all his or her shares in the corporation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 16601; but see Hill Medical Corp. v. Wycoff (2000) 86 Cal. App. 4th 895, 897, 906-908, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 779 (holding that noncompetition provision in radiologist's stock redemption agreement was void under Bus. & Prof. Code § 16600 and did not fall within exception of Bus. & Prof. Code § 16601, when business goodwill was not a factor in purchase of shares); see also Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice]. The statute was again amended in 2002 to extend the authorization for noncompetition covenants to any owner's sale or other disposition of the ownership interests or assets, together with the goodwill, of a business entity or a subsidiary or division of a business entity [Bus. & Prof. Code § 16601].

A covenant not to compete, however, may raise an income tax problem to a selling shareholder and afford a benefit to the acquiring corporation. Ordinarily, the profit a shareholder receives on the sale of his or her shares in a corporation is a capital gain. If he or she has held the shares for more than 12 months, only one-half of that capital gain is subject to income taxation [see I.R.C. § 1222; see also § 11A.22[1]]. If, as part of his or her sale of shares, the seller covenants not to compete with the buyer or the business of the corporation the buyer is purchasing, the covenant not to compete may have an independent value in itself. The buyer may be paying one amount for the selling shareholder's shares and an additional amount for the covenant not to compete. The amount the selling shareholder receives for the covenant not to compete is not a capital gain but replaces the amount he or she would have earned by competing and is taxed as ordinary taxation [see Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, Ch. 5D, Acquisitions of Stock (Matthew Bender)].

The benefit that may be conferred on the buyer of shares by a covenant not to compete having such an "independent value" is the right to depreciate the amount paid for the covenant. Ordinarily, a shareholder cannot depreciate shares of a corporation, that is, take an annual depreciation deduction for the aging or wearing out of his or her shares. Shares of a corporation presumably never wear out and therefore do not depreciate. A covenant not to compete, however, usually is limited to a given number of years, after which the covenant will expire. When it is determined that the covenant not to compete made by a selling shareholder has an independent value, that is, that part of the purchase price paid for the shareholder's shares was really paid for the covenant not to compete, two consequences result. First, the portion of the purchase price found to have been paid for the covenant not to compete instead of the shares is taxed to the selling shareholder as ordinary income [Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, Ch. 5D, Acquisitions of Stock (Matthew Bender)]. Second, the purchaser is allowed to depreciate over the term of years the covenant is to last the amount of the purchase price he or she is found to have paid for the covenant by taking income tax depreciation deductions for a portion of that price each year during the term of the covenant [see O'Dell & Co. (1974) 61 T.C. 461, 468-469] .

CHAPTER 11A CASH PURCHASE OF SHARES
PART IV. FORMS

5-11A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11A.201

§ 11A.201 Resolution of Board of Directors of Acquiring Corporation Authorizing Cash Purchase of Shares of Another Corporation and Execution of Contract of Sale for Share Purchase

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a simple resolution that may be adopted by the board of directors of a California corporation authorizing that corporation to purchase for cash all the outstanding shares of another corporation. The resolution in this form authorizes the transaction described in the contract for cash purchase of shares contained in § 11A.200. The matters discussed in the comment to that form, therefore, apply to the resolution contained in this form directing execution of that contract.

If the acquiring corporation is to pay the purchase price of shares in installments and the installments are to be secured by a mortgage or deed of trust, a subsequent board of directors resolution expressly authorizing execution of the mortgage or deed of trust may be required by counsel for the stock sellers or a title company. The resolution in that case would simply describe the mortgage or deed of trust, the property to be encumbered by it, the obligation to be secured by it, and authorize the appropriate officers of the acquiring corporation to execute it and acknowledge it before a notary public.

For detailed discussion regarding the form of corporate resolutions, see Ch. 5, Directors Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions .

5-11A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11A.202

§ 11A.202 Tender Offer for Cash Purchase of Shares--Offering Letter From Acquiring Corporation Directly to Shareholders of Corporation Sought to Be Acquired

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an offering letter that one corporation may send directly to the shareholders of another corporation offering to purchase their shares for a designated price. The form of transaction initiated by this type of letter is known as a "tender offer." When it is actively opposed by the management of the corporation sought to be acquired, it is sometimes labeled a "take-over bid" [see Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, Ch. 165, Sales of Stock (Matthew Bender)]. It is sometimes also published in financial newspapers and is usually followed by personal solicitation of the principal shareholders of the corporation sought to be acquired.

This type of offering letter is an alternative to the contract for the cash purchase of shares, such as that contained in § 11A.200, for use when the signatures of all shareholders of the corporation sought to be acquired cannot be obtained on such a contract, or execution by them of such a contract is opposed by management of their corporation. The letter offer in this form does not comply with requirement of the federal Williams Act [see [c], below].

[b] Use of Tender Offers

When one corporation seeks to acquire ownership of another corporation by means of a statutory merger or the purchase of the other corporation's assets, either for cash or for its own shares, acquiescence of the other corporation's management and board of directors is essential. This is not the case, however, when one corporation seeks to acquire ownership of another corporation by the purchase of all its outstanding shares. In fact, if has become increasingly common for a corporation seeking to acquire another corporation to make a direct proposal to the shareholders of the second corporation for the purchase of their shares-sometimes over the vigorous opposition of the second corporation's management. These direct offers to the shareholders are known as "tender offers" because they invite the shareholders to "tender" their shares for purchase by the acquiring corporation [Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, Ch. 5E, Tender Offers and Takeovers (Matthew Bender)].

A tender offer for purchase of the shares of a corporation is usually made by means of an "offering letter" sent to the shareholders of the corporation sought to be acquired. The names and addresses of the shareholders can usually be obtained through a friendly shareholder of the corporation, that is, a shareholder who favors selling his or her shares to the acquiring corporation. Every shareholder has the right, in person or by agent or attorney, to inspect and copy a corporation's record of shareholders at any time during usual business hours on written demand of the corporation [Corp. Code § 1600(c)].

In addition to being sent by mail to all known shareholders of the corporation sought to be acquired, the offering letter often will be published in financial newspapers. Sometimes the offering letter also will offer to pay a commission to any members of a national securities exchange who cause shares to be tendered under the offer. This causes independent stock brokers to solicit shareholders of the corporation sought to be acquired to tender their shares.

[c] Regulation of Tender Offers

This offering letter is not drafted to comply with any federal statutes regulating offering letters or tender offers. One of the major federal statutes regulating the making of tender offers is the Williams Act set forth as Sections 13 and 14 of the federal Securities Exchange Act of 1934 [15 U.S.C. §§ 78m(d), (e), 78n(d)-(f)]. It applies to any person making a tender offer that, if successful, would result in his or her beneficial ownership of more than 5 percent of any class of shares of the following:

- A corporation registered on a national securities exchange as described in Section 12 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 [15 U.S.C. §§ 78l, 78n(d)];

- An insurance company required to be registered under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 except for the exemption of insurance companies expressly contained in that Act [see 15 U.S.C. §§ 78l(g)(2)(G), 78n(d)]; or

- A registered closed end investment company [15 U.S.C. § 78n(d)].

The Act requires the person or corporation making the tender offer to file eight copies of a schedule obtainable from the federal Securities Exchange Commission and eight copies of his or her proposed offering letter or advertisement with the Securities Exchange Commission before making the tender offer [15 U.S.C. § 78n(d)]. In addition, it requires the offering letter or advertisement to contain certain specific items [see 15 U.S.C. § 78n(d)(1); 17 C.F.R. §§ 240.14d-1-240.14d-9; see also § 11A.114]. Those items should be carefully examined if the corporation whose shares are sought to be acquired is registered on a national securities exchange.

CHAPTER 11B CASH PURCHASE OF ASSETS

5-11B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide Scope

Scope

Scope

This chapter covers the most direct method by which one corporation can gain ownership and control over the business and affairs of another corporation--the purchase of assets for cash or for cash and debt securities. The Legal Background discusses the requirements of the California General Corporation Law and other applicable statutes, the income tax ramifications, and the tax and nontax advantages and disadvantages of this type of transaction. The Transaction Guide contains a procedural guide to the cash purchase of assets. It covers procedures that apply when the selling corporation will dissolve, as well as those applicable when it will not dissolve. This chapter also includes a contract for the cash sale of assets, resolutions of the board of directors and shareholders of the selling corporation approving the sale, and the written consent of the shareholders of the selling corporation approving the sale.

The cash sale or purchase of all assets of a corporation may also be a method for winding up the affairs and dissolving the acquired corporation. For further discussion, see Ch. 12, Winding Up and Dissolution . The cash sale or purchase of all assets of a corporation is simply another sale of a business for purposes of the Uniform Commercial Code--Bulk Sales Division [Com. Code § 6101 et seq.], the California Sales and Use Tax Law [Rev. & Tax. Code § 6001 et seq.], the Bradley-Burns Uniform Local Sales and Use Tax Law [Rev. & Tax. Code § 7200 et seq.] and provisions of the Unemployment Insurance Code concerning the liability of successors, officers, and fiduciaries [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1731 et seq.]. For detailed escrow instructions relating to the sale of businesses generally, see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice .

For a discussion and comparison of the various methods of corporate acquisition, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues . These methods are covered individually in Ch. 11A, Cash Purchase of Shares ; Ch. 11C, Mergers; Ch. 11D, Acquisition of Shares for Shares ; and Ch. 11E, Acquisition of Assets for Shares .

Further detailed discussion of the sale of assets is contained in Ballantine & Sterling, CALIFORNIA CORPORATION LAWS, Ch. 12, Corporate Acquisitions, Mergers, and Reorganizations (Matthew Bender). Forms relating to the sale of a business are set forth in Ballantine & Sterling, CALIFORNIA CORPORATION LAWS, Appendix A, Forms 13.01-13.06 (Matthew Bender).

CHAPTER 11B CASH PURCHASE OF ASSETS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11B.20

§ 11B.20 Non-Tax Factors in Cash Purchase of Assets

[1] Overview of Statutory Requirements

[a] In General

California's General Corporation Law does not contain any requirements applicable to a purchasing corporation that acquires the assets of another corporation for cash, or for cash and promissory notes. The selling corporation, however, must comply with various explicit requirements in that law before it can sell, lease, convey, exchange, transfer, or otherwise dispose of all or substantially all of its assets [Corp. Code § 1001; see [b], below]. Other statutes concerning bulk sales and successor liability may apply as well [see [c], [d], below]. Provisions of the Internal Revenue Code applicable for income tax purposes to the cash purchase of assets are discussed separately [see § 11B.21].

[b] California General Corporation Law

The statutory requirements of the General Corporation Law, relating to the director and shareholder approval required for the sale of all or substantially all assets of a corporation, are contained in Chapter 10 of the General Corporation Law [Corp. Code §§ 1000-1002]. Although these requirements are imposed on the sale rather than the purchase of the selling corporation's assets, counsel for both the acquiring and selling corporation will be equally interested in seeing that they are duly observed. For further discussion, see [2]-[4], below.

[c] Bulk Sales Provisions

The Uniform Commercial Code-Bulk Sales Division (UCC Division 6) [see Com. Code §§ 6101-6111] applies to any firm whose principal business is the sale of inventory from stock, including firms that manufacture what they sell, or is that of restaurant owner [Com. Code § 6103(a); see Com. Code § 6103(c) (exceptions)]. Unless specifically exempted, a buyer must give public notice of the bulk sale [see Com. Code §§ 6104(b), 6105] if the sale is not in the ordinary course of the firm's business and constitutes more than half of the firm's inventory and equipment [Com. Code § 6102(a)(3)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice, § 17.20.

[d] Successor Liability Provisions

In consummating the purchase, the acquiring corporation must comply with the requirements of the successor liability requirements under the California Sales and Use Tax Law [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 6811, 6812], the Bradley-Burns Uniform Local Sales and Use Tax law [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 7202(b), (h)(2)], and the Unemployment Insurance Code [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1731 et seq.]. The Sales and Use Tax Law makes the acquiring corporation liable for any sales taxes due from the selling corporation unless it withholds the purchase price of the selling corporation's assets until it receives a sales tax clearance for the selling corporation from the California State Board of Equalization [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 6811, 6812]. The Unemployment Insurance Code makes the acquiring corporation liable for any unemployment compensation insurance contributions due from the selling corporation unless, before paying the selling corporation, it receives a statement from the Department of Benefit Payments showing that no such contributions are due [Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1731, 1732]. Similarly, when the selling corporation is discontinuing business, its reserve account for unemployment compensation insurance purposes may be transferred to the acquiring corporation in certain cases [see Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1051-1060]. For further discussion, see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice, § 17.14.

[2] Directors' and Shareholders' Approval

[a] Noncompliance Renders Sale Voidable

California's General Corporation Law contains explicit provisions specifying under what conditions a corporation subject to its provisions may sell, lease, convey, exchange, transfer, or otherwise dispose of all or substantially all of its assets [see Corp. Code §§ 1001, 1002]. Those include shareholder approval [see [b], [c], below]. The first California statute requiring shareholder approval for a sale of all or substantially all of a corporation's assets stated that a sale without that shareholder approval was void. Subsequent California statutes, including the present General Corporation Law, do not contain this provision. Therefore, a sale of all or substantially all the assets of the corporation without compliance with provisions of the General Corporation Law requiring it to be approved by the outstanding shares of the corporation is only voidable and not void [Long Constr. Co. v. Empire Drive-In Theatres, Inc. (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 726, 735, 25 Cal. Rptr. 509 ; Solorza v. Park Water Co (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 653, 658-660, 195 P.2d 523] .

[b] Authorization for Sale

A corporation may sell, lease, convey, exchange, transfer, or otherwise dispose of all of its assets under the General Corporation Law on the terms and conditions and for the consideration that its board of directors may deem in the best interests of the corporation [Corp. Code § 1001(c)]. The consideration for the sale or other disposition may be money, property or securities of any other domestic or foreign corporation, or may be a combination of money and property and securities [Corp. Code § 1001(c)].

[c] Approval of Sale Terms

The principal terms of any sale, lease, conveyance, exchange, transfer, or other disposition of all or substantially all of its assets by a corporation must be (1) approved by the corporation's board of directors, and (2), unless the transaction is in the usual and regular course of its business, "approved by the outstanding shares" of the corporation [Corp. Code § 1001(a)].

"Approved by the outstanding shares" is a term of art as used in the General Corporation Law and is expressly defined to mean that the principal terms of the transaction must be approved by the affirmative vote of a majority of the outstanding shares of the corporation entitled to vote [Corp. Code § 152]. Approval of the terms by the affirmative vote of a majority of the voting shares represented at a shareholders' meeting at which a quorum is present is not sufficient. The matter must be approved by the affirmative vote of a majority of all outstanding shares of the corporation entitled to vote [see Corp. Code §§ 152, 153].

The term "approved by the outstanding shares" also means a matter must be approved by (1) the affirmative vote of a majority of the outstanding shares of each class or series entitled by any provision of the corporations's articles of incorporation to vote as a class or series on the matter and (2) the affirmative vote of that greater proportion, including all, of the outstanding shares of any class or series in which that greater vote is required by the corporation's articles of incorporation [Corp. Code § 152].

The principal terms of a sale or other disposition of all or substantially all of its assets by a corporation may be approved by the outstanding shares of the corporation either before or after their approval by the corporation's board of directors and either before or after the transaction [Corp. Code § 1001(a)].

[3] Transactions Subject to Approval Requirements

A corporation may sell or otherwise dispose of "all or substantially all of its assets" when the principal terms of the transaction are approved by its board of directors and are "approved by the outstanding shares" of the corporation [Corp. Code § 1001(a); Assembly Select Com. Rep., at 90]. The issue then arises as to what constitutes "all or substantially all of its assets" for purposes of these statutes. The California Supreme Court answered this question by examining the purpose and history of the sale of asset approval statutes [see Jeppi v. Brockman Holding Co. (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 11, 15, 206 P.2d 847] . At common law the rule was that in the absence of special authority, the owners of a majority of the shares of an ordinary business corporation that was a going and profitable company had no power to authorize the corporation or the board of directors of the corporation to sell all or substantially all of the corporate assets [Geddes v. Anaconda Copper Mining Co. (1920) 254 U.S. 590, 595-596, 41 S. Ct. 209, 65 L. Ed. 425] . The consent of all the shareholders of an ordinary business corporation was required in order to authorize the corporation to sell all its assets [Jeppi v. Brockman Holding Co. (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 11, 15, 206 P.2d 847] . The reasoning behind the common law rule was based on contract.

Every business corporation is organized for the purpose of doing business of some kind. That purpose is required to be stated, in general terms at least, in the corporation's articles of incorporation [see Corp. Code § 202(b)]. The corporation's articles of incorporation, as the corporation issues and sells its shares, creates a contractual relationship between the corporation and its shareholders as well as between the shareholders themselves [Fawkes v. Farm Lands Inv. Co. (1931) 112 Cal. App. 374, 378-379, 297 P. 47] . An implied contract therefore exists between the corporation and its shareholders and among the shareholders themselves that the corporation will pursue the purpose for which it was organized [Geddes v. Anaconda Copper Mining Co. (1920) 254 U.S. 590, 596, 41 S. Ct. 209, 65 L. Ed. 425] . In other words, the shareholders have a contractual right to insist that the corporation continue for the purpose for which it was organized [Jeppi v. Brockman Holding Co. (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 11, 16, 206 P.2d 847] .

Because the purpose for which a business corporation is organized is to conduct a business of some kind, a sale of all or so much of the corporate property as prevents the corporation from conducting that business constitutes a violation of the corporation's contract with its shareholders to continue to pursue the purpose for which it was organized [Jeppi v. Brockman Holding Co. (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 11, 15, 206 P.2d 847 ; Bickston v. Federal Firearms Corp. (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 574, 580, 38 Cal. Rptr. 793] . The California statutes authorizing a corporation to sell or otherwise dispose of all or substantially all its assets when the principal terms of the transaction are approved by majority vote of its outstanding shares are simply a modification and relaxation of the common law rule [Jeppi v. Brockman Holding Co. (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 11, 15, 206 P.2d 847] . A corporation, therefore, is selling or otherwise disposing of "all or substantially all of its assets" and must comply with the statutes if it is attempting to sell or otherwise dispose of all its assets or as much of its assets as will prevent it from continuing in business and pursuing the purpose for which it was organized [Bickston v. Federal Firearms Corp. (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 574, 580, 38 Cal. Rptr. 793] .

If a corporation is organized for the sole or principal purpose of converting its assets into cash, a sale by the corporation of all or substantially all its assets at a profitable price will not be subject to the statute. For example, when a corporation is organized for the sole purpose of managing and disposing of the property of a decedent's estate, a sale by the corporation of a principal asset of the estate is in reality in furtherance of the very purpose for which the corporation was organized. Therefore, the sale will not violate the corporation's implied contract with its shareholders. That sale is in the normal course of the corporation's business, and is not subject to the restrictive provisions of the General Corporation Law requiring the sale to be approved by a majority vote of the corporation's outstanding shares [Jeppi v. Brockman Holding Co. (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 11, 16, 206 P.2d 847] .

[4] Exemptions From Shareholder Approval Requirements

[a] "Reorganizations"

Three types of transactions are expressly exempted from the shareholder approval requirements imposed by the General Corporation Law on the sale by a corporation of all or substantially all of its assets [Corp. Code § 1001(a)]. The first exclusion is for transactions, such as assets-for-shares exchanges, coming within the definition of the term "reorganization" contained in the General Corporation Law [Corp. Code § 1001(a)]. Those transactions are subjected instead to the generally stricter shareholder approval requirements imposed on statutory and de facto mergers [Corp. Code §§ 1001(a), 1200, 1201; see Ch. 11C, Mergers, § 11C.22[5]]. The second exclusion from the shareholder approval requirements is for transactions constituting conversions [Corp. Code § 1001(a); see Corp. Code § 161.9 ("conversion")]. These transactions are instead subject to the provisions of Corp. Code § 1150 et seq. [Corp. Code § 1001(a)].

[b] Sales in Usual Course of Business

The third exclusion from the shareholder approval requirements is for sales in the usual and regular course of the corporation's business [Corp. Code § 1001(a)]. These need not be "approved by the outstanding shares" of the corporation [Corp. Code § 1001(a); see [2], above]. The term "usual and regular course" of the corporation's business is not defined in the General Corporation Law. However, the drafters of the General Corporation Law, as revised effective January 1, 1977, stated that its insertion into the shareholder approval statute was to eliminate the necessity of obtaining shareholder approval of asset sales in certain appropriate situations. For instance, a sale of major corporate assets in connection with a program for modernization of the corporation's capital assets, although not an everyday occurrence, is generally considered by the business community as within the corporation's power and should not require shareholder approval [Assembly Select Com. Rep., at 90, 91].

[5] Opinion of Independent Appraiser

When a tender offer (including a share exchange tender offer) or a written proposal for approval of a sale of assets [Corp. Code § 1001(a)] or "reorganization" [see Corp. Code §§ 181, 1200] is made to some or all of a corporation's shareholders by a party to the transaction who has control of or a financial interest in that corporation, an affirmative opinion in writing regarding the fairness of the consideration to the shareholders must be provided to the shareholders or the corporation [Corp. Code § 1203(a)]. This requirement does not apply if the target corporation does not have shares held of record by 100 or more persons [see Corp. Code § 605 (determination of shareholders of record)], or if the transaction has been qualified pursuant to Corp. Code § 25113 (qualification of issuer transaction by permit) or 25121 (qualification of recapitalization or reorganization by permit), and no stop order [see Corp. Code §§ 25140, 25143(a)] is in effect regarding that qualification [Corp. Code § 1203(a)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues .

[6] Special Requirements for Sales by Subsidiaries

[a] Proposed Buyer in Control of Selling Corporation

A special statutory requirement is imposed on a sale in which the proposed buyer of all or substantially all the assets of a corporation is either in control of or under common control with the selling corporation [Corp. Code § 1001(d)]. In such a case, the principal terms of the sale must be approved by at least 90 percent of the voting power of the selling corporation, unless the sale is to a domestic or foreign corporation or other business entity in consideration of the nonredeemable common shares or nonredeemable equity securities of the acquiring party or its parent [Corp. Code § 1001(d)]. The purchasing corporation will be in control of the selling corporation for purposes of the statutory requirement if it owns, directly or indirectly, shares entitled and having the power to elect more than 50 percent of the directors of the selling corporation [Corp. Code §§ 160(a), 194.5]. The buyer will be under common control with the seller if some other corporation or person owns shares having the power to elect more than 50 percent of the directors of both the buying and selling corporations [Corp. Code §§ 160(a), 194.5].

[b] Purpose of Requirements

The purpose of the statutory requirement with respect to subsidiaries is to prevent a single majority shareholder from "cashing out" minority shareholders of a subsidiary [see State Bar Committee on Corporations, Report of the Drafting Subcommittee 3 (May 10, 1976)]. Otherwise, a parent corporation owning 51 percent of the voting shares of a subsidiary could force out the subsidiary's minority shareholders by having the subsidiary's board of directors approve a sale of all the subsidiary's assets to it at a price selected by it. Except for the special subsidiary requirements for such a sale, it would be sure to be approved by majority vote of the subsidiary's outstanding shares [see [2], above]. Under the special statutory requirements for sales by subsidiaries to parents, however, the sale must be approved by 90 percent of the shares entitled to vote for directors of the subsidiary corporation [Corp. Code §§ 194.5, 1001(d)].

If a parent corporation owns 90 percent of all outstanding shares of a subsidiary, it can effectively "cash out" the minority shareholders of the subsidiary by means of a short-form merger [Corp. Code § 1110(a), (b)]. In such a case, the minority shareholders cannot prevent the merger and can only require the parent corporation to purchase their shares in the subsidiary at their fair market value [Corp. Code §§ 1300-1312]. Thus there is no need to provide for protecting minority shareholders of a 90 percent owned subsidiary from being "cashed out" by a purported sale of all the subsidiary's assets to its parent corporation.

[c] Exchange of All Assets Is "Reorganization"

Any exchange of all or substantially all assets of a subsidiary for securities of the purchasing corporation, or the purchasing corporation's parent, is a "reorganization" as that term is defined in the General Corporation Law [see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues]. Such a "reorganization" could, however, be used to involuntarily "cash out" minority shareholders of the subsidiary when the subsidiary's assets are exchanged for either redeemable or debt securities of the purchasing corporation or its parent. Thus, an assets-for-shares "reorganization," with one exception, is not exempt from the special subsidiary sale requirement and requires the approval of at least 90 percent of the subsidiary's voting power [Corp. Code § 1001(a), (d)]. If all or substantially all assets of a subsidiary are exchanged for nonredeemable common shares of the purchasing corporation or its parent, the minority shareholders of the subsidiary are not "cashed out." They have a continuing interest in the prosperous use of the assets and the transaction is, in effect, a de facto merger of the subsidiary and the purchasing corporation [see Ch. 11, Mergers and Reorganization Issues]. Consequently, a "reorganization" whereby all or substantially all assets of a subsidiary are exchanged for nonredeemable common shares of its parent or another subsidiary of the parent is exempted from the special subsidiary sale requirement and need not be approved by at least 90 percent of the subsidiary's voting power [Corp. Code § 1001(d)].

When the exemption is not applicable, one minority shareholder owning more than 10 percent of the subsidiary's voting power could arbitrarily block the sale of the subsidiary's assets to its parent corporation. That shareholder could, in effect, blackmail the parent corporation into "buying" his or her approval at his or her price. To prevent this, in 1977 the Legislature enacted an alternative manner of protecting rights of the subsidiary's minority shareholders. The assets of the subsidiary may be sold to its parent, or to another subsidiary of the parent, when the terms and conditions of the transaction and their fairness have been approved by the Corporations Commissioner, the Commissioner of Financial Institutions, the Insurance Commissioner, or the Public Utilities Commission [Corp. Code § 1001(e)]. The parent may petition the Corporations Commissioner, the Commissioner of Financial Institutions, the Insurance Commissioner, or the Public Utilities Commission when it is regulated by one of those agencies, to determine the fairness of the proposed transaction and the Commissioner may hold a hearing on the fairness of the terms and conditions [Corp. Code § 25142; see Fin. Code § 696.5; Ins. Code § 838.5; Pub. Util. Code § 822].

[7] Corporate Creditors

Statutes requiring shareholder approval of a sale of all or substantially all corporate assets have been said to protect both shareholders and creditors of the selling corporation [see Solorza v. Park Water Co. (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 653, 658, 195 P.2d 523] . At least one case, however, has held that corporate creditors have no rights under the statute and that the statutory requirements were enacted for the benefit of corporate shareholders alone [Long Constr. Co. v. Empire Drive-In Theatres, Inc. (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 726, 735, 25 Cal. Rptr. 509] . Although that case was decided before the effective date of the present General Corporation Law, the statute it construed was similar to the provisions of the present law requiring approval of the outstanding shares for the sale of all or substantially all the assets of a corporation.

The court noted that noncompliance with the statutory requirements did not prevent immediate vesting of title to all the corporate assets in the transferee of the corporation although his or her title might be terminated because the transfer is voidable [Long Constr. Co. v. Empire Drive-In Theatres, Inc. (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 726, 735, 25 Cal. Rptr. 509] . The statute, however (like the present General Corporation Law), gave the shareholders of the selling corporation the right to approve the transfer either before or after it had been approved by the selling corporation's board of directors and "before or after the transaction" [Corp. Code § 1001(a)]. Therefore, when the transaction is approved by the outstanding shares of the selling corporation after it has already been consummated and title to the corporate assets has vested in the transferee, the right to set aside the transfer as voidable ceases and a creditor of the selling corporation who attached the property after it was transferred finds himself or herself with a writ of attachment on property that absolutely and irrevocably belongs to the transferee. Thus, the courts have determined that the statute was enacted for the benefit of the selling corporation's shareholders alone [Long Const. Co. v. Empire Drive-In Theatres, Inc. (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 726, 735, 25 Cal. Rptr. 509] .

This conclusion agrees with the common law rule prohibiting a sale of all corporate assets as a violation of the corporation's contract with its shareholders [see [3], above]. It also appears to agree with the purposes behind the bulk sales laws in California and particularly the requirements of the Uniform Commercial Code--Bulk Sales Division [see Com. Code §§ 6101-6111; see also Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice, § 17.20]. Under that law, if the buyer fails to comply with the notice of intended transfer requirements [see Com. Code § 6105], the buyer may be liable in the amount of any claims against the seller, less any amount that the claimant would not have realized if the buyer had complied with the notice requirements [see Com. Code § 6107(a); see also Com. Code § 6107(c) (good faith effort at compliance), (d) (limitations of liability)]. However, the transaction will not be fraudulent and void as against any of the seller's creditors.

[8] Abandonment of Proposed Sale

The board of directors of the selling corporation may abandon a proposed sale or transfer of all or substantially all the corporation's assets at any time before it is actually consummated [Corp. Code § 1001(b); see [2], above]. When it is made after approval of the sale by the corporation's outstanding shares, no further action by the shareholders is required [Corp. Code § 1001(b)]. The abandonment is subject to the contractual rights of any third parties [Corp. Code § 1001(b)].

CHAPTER 11B CASH PURCHASE OF ASSETS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11B.21

§ 11B.21 Tax Factors in Cash Purchase of Assets

[1] Allocation of Purchase Price

The purchase by one corporation of all or substantially all the assets of another corporation for cash or for cash and debt securities is treated the same as any other purchase and sale for income tax purposes. It is a taxable transaction and a taxable sale [I.R.C. §§ 61(3), 1001]. This means that any gain realized by the selling corporation as a result of the sale of its assets will be subject to income taxation at least once and perhaps twice in the year in which the sale is made [I.R.C. §§ 61(3), 61(7), 301]. This is usually considered by taxpayers to be a disadvantage of a cash sale. An offsetting factor is the fact that the purchasing corporation will obtain a new income tax basis equal to its actual cost for the assets it purchases from the selling corporation for cash or cash and short-term debt securities [I.R.C. § 1012; see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues]. This is usually regarded as an advantage of a cash purchase of assets to the purchasing corporation [see I.R.C. § 167, 168 (depreciation deduction increased with increase in basis)].

For income tax purposes, a corporation or other business actually is never considered to be selling all or substantially all its assets. Instead, it is treated as making a separate sale of each of its individual assets, including goodwill [Williams v. McGowan (2d Cir. 1945) 152 F.2d 570, 572] . For those purposes, therefore, the selling corporation must compute the amount of taxable gain or deductible loss it received for each of its individual assets as a result of the cash purchase and sale [see I.R.C. § 1001; Treas. Reg. § 1.61-6; but see I.R.C. § 1060 (I.R.C. § 338 gain or loss allocation rules apply when assets constituting trade or business are acquired)]. Similarly, the purchasing corporation receives a new income tax basis equal to the purchase price paid by it for each asset, including goodwill, it purchased from the selling corporation [I.R.C. § 1001; see I.R.C. § 1060 (I.R.C. § 338 basis allocation rules apply when assets constituting trade or business are acquired)]. When all the assets of the selling corporation have been purchased for a single sum, the purchase price must be allocated among the various assets sold by the selling corporation and purchased by the acquiring corporation [see I.R.C. § 1060].

Ordinarily, the burden is on the taxpayers to establish the part of the purchase price that was paid for each of the assets of the selling corporation involved in the purchase and sale [Rabkin & Johnson, FEDERAL INCOME, GIFT AND ESTATE TAXATION, § 34.01B(2) (Matthew Bender)]. The amount allocated to each asset, including intangible assets such as goodwill, should bear a reasonable relation to the asset's fair market value [Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, Ch. 5C, Acquisitions of Assets (Matthew Bender)]. It is good practice for the acquiring and selling corporations to agree in their contract of sale as to the amount of the total purchase price that is being paid for each asset of the selling corporation. Such an agreement is also prudent for purposes of the California sales and use tax on fixtures and equipment of the selling corporation if the selling corporation has a sales tax permit from the California State Board of Equalization [see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice].

Allocating the purchase price to different assets, inventory, depreciable assets, and goodwill is less adversarial than in years past because there is no tax rate advantage to characterizing gain as capital gain rather than ordinary income for corporate taxpayers [see I.R.C. §§ 11, 1060, 1201]. Goodwill that is purchased or created after August 10, 1993, is eligible for amortization deductions under I.R.C. § 197 and is not eligible for capital gain treatment [I.R.C. § 197(f)(7), 1221(a)(2)] except to the extent that it otherwise qualifies under I.R.C. § 1231. The selling corporation, therefore, has no tax rate motivation to allocate a higher proportion of the selling price to goodwill or other assets for which it might obtain capital gains treatment. It might, however, need capital gains to offset previously incurred capital losses, which only are allowed to the extent of capital gains [I.R.C. § 1211(a)].

[2] Net Operating Loss Carryforward Deduction

Net operating loss carryforwards are transferred from an acquired corporation to an acquiring corporation only pursuant to I.R.C. § 381 [see Ch. 11, Mergers and Acquisition Issues]. Since a taxable purchase of assets is not one of the acquisition methods enumerated in that section [see I.R.C. § 381(a)(2)], and the acquiring corporation cannot liquidate the selling corporation pursuant to I.R.C. § 332 [see I.R.C. §§ 332(b)(1) (stock control required), 381(a)(1)], the acquiring corporation therefore has no means of obtaining any loss carryforward from the selling corporation. If the selling corporation continues in existence as a private investment corporation, it may continue to use any net operating loss carryforward [see I.R.C. § 172; see also Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, Ch. 174, The Carryover and Use of Tax Attributes in a Corporate Acquisition (Matthew Bender)]. That carryforward is not subject to the provisions that reduce or eliminate carryforwards in other acquisition methods [see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues]. However, if sufficient investment income is produced through the corporation, it could be classified as a personal holding company subject to additional taxation [see I.R.C. §§ 541-547].

CHAPTER 11B CASH PURCHASE OF ASSETS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11B.22

§ 11B.22 Advantages and Disadvantages of Sale

[1] Nonassumption of Liabilities

One of the most notable and sought-after advantages of a cash purchase of corporate assets is the freedom from assuming liabilities of the selling corporation. Ordinarily, if the purchase is correctly made in accordance with local bulk sales statutes [see § 11.20[1][c]], the purchaser of the assets of a business assumes no liability for debts of the seller that are not expressly assumed [Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, Ch. 163, Sales of Assets Transactions (Matthew Bender)]. However, a corporation that acquires all the assets of another corporation, either for cash or in an assets-for-shares exchange, may be liable for injuries caused by defective products manufactured by its predecessor corporation [see Ch. 11E, Acquisition of Assets for Shares].

With respect to ordinary debts, however, the cash sale of assets by a corporation (or by any other type of business organization) may be subject to two sets of "debtor protection" statutes. The first set of statutes, designed for protection of creditors in general and particularly creditors who have supplied inventory merchandise to a wholesale or retail merchandising business, is contained in the Uniform Commercial Code--Bulk Sales Division [see Com. Code §§ 6101-6111; see also § 11B.20[1][c]]. The second set of statutes, designed to protect the State of California and generally called "successor liability statutes," is contained in California's Sales and Use Tax Law [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 6811, 6812] and Unemployment Insurance Code [Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1731-1736; see also § 11B.20[1][d]]. These debtor protection statutes are applied to the sale of assets by a corporation in California in the same manner they are applied in California to the sale of assets by any other business organization. For further discussion, see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice, § 17.14.

[2] Other Advantages

[a] Approval of Acquiring Corporation's Shareholders Not Required

Another advantage of a purchase of assets is the fact that approval of the transaction by shareholders of the acquiring corporation is not required [see Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, Ch. 5A, Summary of Acquisition Methods (Matthew Bender)]. Their interests in the acquiring corporation are not diluted by the transaction and thus their consent is not required by statute.

[b] No Dissenting Shareholder Issues

One advantage of a cash purchase and sale of corporate assets is that the problem of purchasing the shares of dissenting shareholders is avoided. Under the present General Corporation Law, dissenting shareholders of a corporation that is a party to a statutory merger or an assets-for-shares exchange can force their corporation to purchase their shares at their appraised fair market value [Corp. Code §§ 1300-1312; see Ch. 11C, Mergers, § 11C.28[2][b]]. Neither the shareholders of the acquiring corporation nor the shareholders of the selling corporation have that right when the acquiring corporation is purchasing all the assets of the selling corporation for cash or cash and debt securities [Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, Ch. 163, Sales of Assets Transactions (Matthew Bender)].

[c] No Securities Law Compliance

Another advantage to the cash purchase of assets is that this method of acquisition is not subject to the securities laws. Other types of reorganizations require qualification of the acquisition under the Corporate Securities Law [Corp. Code §§ 25000-25706; see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues].

[d] Selection of Assets

A further advantage of a cash purchase of assets is that the acquiring corporation usually has the power to reject any assets of the selling corporation that are worthless or that it simply does not want. This power is not available in a statutory merger or purchase of shares of the corporation to be acquired [Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, Ch. 163, S*ales of Assets Transactions* (Matthew Bender)].

[3] Disadvantages

The main disadvantage of a cash sale of assets is the complexity of the transaction. Separate instruments of conveyance may have to be drawn for every automobile, lease, parcel of real property, or corporate security being transferred. Under a statutory merger, one instrument (the merger agreement) serves the same purpose as all these instruments of conveyance plus a general bill of sale for the other nonregistered assets of the selling corporation [see Corp. Code § 1106; see also Ch. 11C, Mergers, § 11C.22[1]].

A cash sale of assets also requires compliance with the Uniform Commercial Code--Bulk Sales Division [Com. Code §§ 6101-6111; see § 11.20[1][c]]. Furthermore, it requires payment of sales tax on the fixtures and equipment being sold [see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice, § 17.12].

NOTE:
If the corporation has few shareholders, a sale of their shares to the acquiring corporation might be more advisable than a sale of the corporate assets to the selling corporation. If there are a large number of shareholders, however, it might be impractical to arrange for the sale of all their shares to the acquiring corporation [see Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, Ch. 161, Review of Factors to Be Considered in Selecting Form of Acquisition (Matthew Bender)].

j. Dates, times, and places of meetings of board of directors.

k. Usual place for holding shareholder meetings.

l. All business names and addresses used by selling corporation within past three years.

NOTE:

These are required by the Uniform Commercial Code--Bulk Sales Division [see Com. Code § 6101 et seq.; see also Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice*, § 17.20*].

3. Types of assets being sold:

a. Inventory.

b. Fixtures and equipment.

(1) Fixtures and equipment used in business requiring retail sales tax permit.

(2) Fixtures and equipment not used in business requiring retail sales tax permit.

c. Depreciable assets.

d. Leases of real or personal property:

(1) Location of leased premises.

(2) Name and address of lessor.

(3) Whether consent to assignment of lease is required by lease.

e. Real property:

(1) Title company acquiring corporation wishes to handle transfer.

(2) Any encumbrances or restrictions on title acquiring corporation is unwilling to accept.

NOTE:

An acquiring corporation may be reluctant to accept any covenants or conditions restricting the use of the property, such as a condition prohibiting its use for the sale of alcoholic beverages. The acquiring corporation may wish to free the capital it has invested in the real property by selling the property to an insurance or investment company and leasing it back. The insurance or investment company, however, may be unwilling to buy the property unless it can re-rent the property for any business or for any use according to the best rental offer made, if the acquiring corporation defaults on its leaseback.

f. Automobiles and other motor vehicles requiring a transfer of registration with Department of Motor Vehicles.

g. Corporate stock and securities to be transferred on books of their issuer.

h. Other assets needing a transfer of registration or a recorded conveyance.

4. Assets, if any, of selling corporation excluded from sale.

a. Accounts receivable:

(1) All accounts receivable.

(2) Accounts receivable more than 90 or 120 days old.

b. Particular real property.

c. Other assets.

5. Total purchase price to be paid for assets of selling corporation.

6. Portion of total purchase price being paid for assets of selling corporation that is being paid for each asset of selling corporation.

NOTE:

Determination of the purchase price being paid for each asset of the selling corporation will probably require a detailed analysis of the selling corporation's assets by the accountants and officers of both the acquiring and selling corporations. If that analysis will take a great deal of time, counsel should at least try to discover the amount of the total purchase price that is being paid for the total fixtures and equipment of the selling corporation whose sale proceeds will be subject to California sales tax [see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice].

7. Locations of all inventory and equipment included in sale of assets, and location of seller's place of business or chief executive office.

NOTE:

The Uniform Commercial Code--Bulk Sales Division [see Com. Code § 6101 et seq.], if applicable to the sale, requires the publication, in a newspaper of general circulation, of a notice of intended transfer in the judicial district in which the property being transferred is located and, if different, in the judicial district in which the seller is located [Com. Code § 6105(b)(2); see Com. Code § 6103(b)]. If no newspaper of general circulation exists in the judicial district, the notice must be published in a newspaper of general circulation in the county in which the judicial district is located [Com. Code § 6105(b)(2)]. If the property is located in more than one judicial district, the notice must be published where a greater portion of the property is located [Com. Code § 6105(b)]. In addition, the notice must be recorded in the county or counties in which the tangible assets are located and, if different, in the county in which the seller is located [Com. Code § 6105(b)(1)]. Further, the notice must be delivered, or sent by registered or certified mail, to the county tax collector in the county or counties in which the tangible assets are located. If the notice is delivered or sent during the period from January 1 to May 7, inclusive, the notice must be accompanied by a completed business property statement with respect to the property involved in the bulk sale [Com. Code § 6105(b)(3); see Rev. & Tax. Code § 414 (procedure for filing property statements)].

8. Identities of corporate officers who will execute contract of sale and other instruments.

9. Name, address, and telephone number of person or firm who is to serve as escrow holder for sale.

a. Attorney for the acquiring corporation.

NOTE:
This is probably the preferred person or firm to serve as escrow.

b. Attorney for selling corporation.

c. Escrow department of a particular bank or trust company.

d. Commercial escrow corporation.

10. Name, address, and telephone number of accountants for acquiring and selling corporations and their principal shareholders.

11. Liabilities, if any, of selling corporation that are to be assumed by acquiring corporation.

12. General solvency and financial condition of selling corporation.

NOTE:
Although the acquiring corporation generally does not assume the liabilities of the selling corporation as a result of its purchase of the selling corporation's assets for cash, unless it agrees to do so, this information is important in determining the difficulty that may be encountered in consummating the sale. It will help the acquiring corporation and its attorneys determine whether any creditors of the selling corporation are likely to levy a writ of attachment on its assets and delay or prevent the closing of escrow and consummation of the sale.

13. Whether nature of business might create a risk of products liability claims, and whether seller is likely to continue to have assets for payment of those claims for a period approaching useful life of products sold.

NOTE:
An exception to the general rule permitting assets to be purchased free of liabilities exists in the products liability area, in which the successor can be held liable under certain circumstances, if the original operator of the business no longer has the assets to satisfy claims brought after the sale [see Ch. 11E, Acquisition of Assets for Shares].

14. Any noncompetition or other special clauses parties wish to be included in contract for sale of selling corporation's assets.

15. Whether selling corporation is to be dissolved after sale.

5-11B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11B.110

§ 11B.110 Preliminary Determinations

1. Determine (with assistance of accountant) and advise shareholders of selling corporation of particular income tax consequences of proposed sale on each of them:

a. When selling corporation is to be dissolved.

b. When selling corporation is not to be dissolved.

2. Determine and advise parties whether acquisition of selling corporation should be consummated as purchase of its assets for cash, or as some other acquisition method, e.g., merger or purchase of shares [see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues].

3. Determine whether selling corporation should be dissolved or kept in existence as private investment corporation.

NOTE:
This decision must be made by the officers and shareholders of the selling corporation. The determination, like the determination of the matters set forth in P 2, above, will largely depend on the tax determinations made pursuant to P 1, above.

4. Determine whether proposed sale of assets is subject to Uniform Commercial Code--Bulk Sales Division [see Com. Code § 6101 et seq.; see also § 11B.112[4]].

5. If proposed sale is subject to Uniform Commercial Code-Bulk Sales Division [see Com. Code § 6101 et seq.; see [4], above], determine following information [see Com. Code § 6105]:

a. Address of office of county recorder in county or counties in which tangible assets of seller are located and, if different, where seller is located.

b. Address of county tax collector in county or counties in which tangible assets of seller are located.

c. Judicial districts in which seller is located and seller's assets are located.

d. Name and address of newspaper of general circulation in judicial districts in which seller is located and seller's assets are located:
(1) Publication dates of newspaper; and

(2) Newspaper's deadlines for accepting legal notices.

6. Determine whether sales proceeds received by selling corporation for any of its fixtures and assets will be subject to California state sales tax.

7. Determine instruments of conveyance that will be required to consummate transfer of all assets of selling corporation that are being sold to acquiring corporation.

8. Determine what consents or other instruments must be obtained from third persons in order to consummate sale.

9. Determine what governmental licenses, if any, must be transferred to consummate the sale.

a. Alcoholic beverage license [see Ch. 18, Buying and Selling a Retail Alcoholic Beverage License and Business].

b. Federal Communications Commission license.

c. Other license [see Ch. 1A, Role of Counsel in Starting a New Business].

10. Determine date, time, and place for calling and holding following:

a. Meeting of board of directors of selling corporation to approve sale.

b. Meeting of shareholders of selling corporation to approve sale.

NOTE:
Shareholder approval, required by statute, may be obtained by means of written consent instead of a shareholders' meeting vote [Corp. Code § 603].

§ 11B.112 Advising Parties of Disadvantages of Cash Asset Sale

1. Sale proceeds may be subject to tax at both corporate and shareholder level if proceeds are distributed to shareholders [I.R.C. §§ 61, 301, 1001]:

a. Double taxation applies unless corporation is liquidated pursuant to I.R.C. § 331.

b. Sales proceeds are taxed to selling corporation at time of receipt.
(1) Amount paid for inventory assets is taxed as ordinary income [see I.R.C. § 1221(a)(3)].

(2) Gain from property, used in corporation's trade or business, of character that is subject to allowance for depreciation, or real property used in its trade or business, is taxed as ordinary income [see I.R.C. § 1221(a)(2)].

(3) Amount paid for goodwill or other capital assets not used in corporation's trade or business [see I.R.C. § 1221(a)].

c. Taxed to shareholders of selling corporation at time of distribution to them [see I.R.C. § 301].

2. California state sales tax must be paid on portion of sale proceeds received for fixtures and equipment used in activity requiring sales tax permit from California State Board of Equalization [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 6051 et seq.].

NOTE:
For further discussion, see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice, § 7.12.

3. Acquiring corporation is not entitled to benefit of net operating loss carryover income tax deduction belonging to selling corporation [see I.R.C. § 381; see also § 11B.21[2]].

4. Sale may require compliance with requirements of Uniform Commercial Code-Bulk Sales Division under following circumstances:

NOTE:

If the Uniform Commercial Code--Bulk Sales Division applies [see Com. Code § 6101-6111], the buyer must give public notice of the bulk sale, essentially to provide notice to the seller's creditors. The buyer may be required to record, publish, and deliver notice of the intended transfer in several jurisdictions [see Com. Code § 6105(b)]. These requirements are discussed further in Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice, § 17.20.

a. Selling firm's principal business is sale of inventory from stock, including those who manufacture what they sell, or is that of restaurant owner [Com. Code § 6103(a)(1); see Com. Code § 6103(c) (exceptions)];

NOTE:

Many transactions are specifically exempted from the bulk sales law [see Com. Code § 6103(c)], including a sale of assets with a value of less than $10,000, or a value of more than $5 million [Com. Code § 6103(c)(12)].

b. On date of bulk sale agreement, selling firm is located in California or is located in jurisdiction outside United States but has its major American executive office in California [Com. Code § 6103(a)(2); see Com. Code § 6103(b)]; and

c. Sale of assets is not in ordinary course of selling firm's business and constitutes more than half of firm's inventory and equipment [Com. Code § 6102(a)(3); see Com. Code § 6102(a)(8), (15)].

NOTE:

In determining the percentage of the seller's inventory and equipment being transferred, the assets are valued at their fair market value as of the date of the bulk sale agreement [Com. Code § 6102(a)(3), (8), (15)]. If the consideration for the sale of assets is $2 million or less and is substantially all in cash and/or an obligation of the buyer to pay cash in the future, the buyer or escrow agent may have to settle claims against the seller before paying the seller [see Com. Code §§ 6106.2, 6106.4].

5. Sales proceeds must be withheld in escrow to protect acquiring corporation from liability under successor liability statutes for amounts owed by selling corporation for sales tax or unemployment compensation insurance contributions [see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 6811, 6812; see also Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1731, 1732].

NOTE:

See Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice*, § 17.14.*

a. Must obtain sales tax clearance for selling corporation from California State Board of Equalization.

b. Must obtain statement from California State Department of Benefit Payments that no amounts are due from selling corporation for unemployment compensation insurance contributions.

a. Automobile or motor vehicle being transferred.

b. Lease being assigned.

c. Piece of real property being conveyed.

d. Corporate shares or securities being transferred.

e. Other asset whose ownership is registered or recorded with some governmental, corporate, or other agency.

8. Sale may require obtaining from third person or corporation:

a. Consent to assignment of leases.

b. Title insurance policy for real property included in sale.

c. Consent to transfer of mortgaged or encumbered automobiles or other assets.

d. Consent to assignment of collective bargaining, employment, or other contracts.

CHAPTER 11B CASH PURCHASE OF ASSETS
PART III. TRANSACTION GUIDE
B. Procedural Guide to Cash Purchase of Assets

5-11B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11B.113

§ 11B.113 Preparing Instruments

1. Prepare preliminary "Letter of Intent" or tentative draft of contract of sale [see Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, Ch. 163, Sales of Assets Transactions (Matthew Bender)].

NOTE:
This document is usually prepared and executed by officers of the selling and acquiring corporation, if at all, after preliminary negotiations for the sale are completed. It simply sets forth their understandings of the results of the negotiations. It is almost always drafted not to be binding on the parties. Its use is discouraged by some attorneys experienced in handling corporate acquisitions, who consider it a handicap to further negotiations and prefer instead of preparing a tentative agreement or letter of intent to immediately start work on preliminary drafts of the formal contract of sale that will be binding when approved by the shareholders of the selling corporation and executed by the corporations [see Herzel, Analysis of the Negotiation of an Acquisition Agreement, 27 Bus. Law. 1223, 1233-1234 (1972)]. Because the use of a letter or tentative agreement is discouraged by many experienced attorneys, a form for such an instrument is not included in this chapter.

2. Prepare contract for purchase and sale of assets of selling corporation.

a. First preliminary draft is usually prepared by attorney for acquiring corporation [Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, Ch. 5C, Acquisitions of Assets (Matthew Bender); Herzel, Analysis of the Negotiation of an Acquisition Agreement, 27 Bus. Law. 1223, 1234 (1972)].

b. Sufficient copies of the final formal contract should be prepared so that one copy can be:

(1) Retained by attorney for each corporation as office copy.

(2) Retained by secretary of each corporation.

(3) Retained as part of minutes of board of directors of each corporation.

(4) Used by and retained by escrow holder handling purchase and sale.

(5) Delivered to and examined by any governmental regulatory or taxing agencies, such as California State Board of Equalization, concerned with the sale.

NOTE:

Personnel of the California State Board of Equalization may be interested in examining a copy of the contract if there is any question as to the amount being paid for the fixtures and equipment of the selling corporation and a sales tax is due on the sale of those fixtures and equipment [see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice].

3. If selling corporation is to be dissolved after sale and proceeds distributed to its shareholders, prepare:

a. Resolution of board of directors of selling corporation adopting plan of liquidation and authorizing, as part of plan, sale of corporation's assets to acquiring corporation.

b. Resolution of shareholders of selling corporation, or form of written consent to be signed by shareholders of selling corporation, adopting plan of liquidation approved by its board of directors and approving, as part of plan, principal terms of sale of corporation's assets to acquiring corporation.

c. Resolution of board of directors of acquiring corporation approving purchase of assets of selling corporation and authorizing execution and consummation of sale.

4. If selling corporation is not to be dissolved after sale, prepare:

a. Resolution of board of directors of selling corporation approving principal terms of sale of corporation's assets to acquiring corporation and authorizing both execution and performance of contract of sale for those assets.

b. Resolution of shareholders of corporation's assets to acquiring corporation.

c. Resolution of board of directors of acquiring corporation authorizing execution and performance of contract of sale for sale to it of assets of selling corporation.

5. Prepare escrow instructions, to be executed by officers of both corporations, for conducting sale of assets of selling corporation to acquiring corporation [see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice, § 17.250].

6. Prepare bills of sale and other instruments of conveyance that may be necessary to transfer title and possession of all assets of selling corporation to acquiring corporation, including:

a. Bill of sale for all general, unregistered, tangible, and intangible assets, including goodwill and accounts receivables, of selling corporation.

b. Grant deed for each piece of real property of selling corporation.

c. Assignment of lease for each lease to which selling corporation is party, either as lessee or lessor.

d. Consent to assignment of lease, to be executed by lessor for each lease in which selling corporation is lessee.

e. Consent to assignment to be executed by franchisor or licensor of each franchise or license agreement under which selling corporation is franchisee or licensee.

f. Any other instruments that may be required to transfer any other assets of selling corporation to acquiring corporation.

§ 11B.114 Procedure When Selling Corporation Will Dissolve

1. Have board of directors of selling corporation, at regular or special meeting, pass resolution adopting plan of complete liquidation and approving, as part of plan, principal terms of sale of corporate assets to acquiring corporation.

a. Resolution should:
(1) Approve proposed contract of sale with acquiring corporation.

(2) Authorize secretary of corporation, or other appropriate corporate officer, to call special meeting of shareholders to approve plan of liquidation or obtain written consent of shareholders approving plan of liquidation.

(3) Authorize corporate officers, on approval by shareholders, to execute and perform contract of sale with acquiring corporation.

b. Make sufficient copies of resolution:

(1) To deliver to acquiring corporation.

(2) To give to Internal Revenue Service or file with selling corporation's final income tax return.

2. Obtain approval by shareholders of selling corporation of plan of liquidation and principal terms of proposed sale of assets by either [Corp. Code § 1001(a)]:

a. Calling special meeting of shareholders to adopt resolution adopting plan of liquidation and approving principal terms of sale of all corporate assets.

(1) Give written notice of meeting to each shareholder entitled to vote, stating general nature of business to be transacted [Corp. Code § 601(a)].

NOTE:
The notice may be given personally, or by electronic transmission by the corporation, or by mail addressed to the shareholder's address appearing on the books of the corporation or the address given to the corporation for purposes of notice. Except as noted below, notice must be given not less than 10 nor more than 60 days before the meeting [Corp. Code § 601(a), (b)].

If the corporation has 500 or more shareholders of record (as determined under Corp. Code § 605) as of the record date for the meeting, notice may be sent by third-class rather than first-class mail. However, in that case, notice must be sent not less than 30 days prior to the meeting (only 10 days notice is required if first-class mail is used) [Corp. Code § 601(a), (b)].

(2) Plan of liquidation must be approved by shareholders holding shares representing 50 percent or more of voting power (power to vote for election of directors) of selling corporation [Corp. Code §§ 194.5, 1900(a)].

(3) Principal terms of sale of assets to acquiring corporation, unless sale is to be entirely for cash, must be approved by affirmative vote of majority of outstanding shares entitled to vote, including [Corp. Code §§ 152, 1001(a)]:

(a) Affirmative vote of majority of outstanding shares of each class or series entitled by provisions of corporation's articles of incorporation to vote on matter as class or series, and

(b) Affirmative vote of all or greater than majority proportion of outstanding shares of any class or series if required by corporation's articles of incorporation.

b. Obtaining written consent to plan of liquidation and sale of assets by shareholders with enough voting power to adopt plan of liquidation and approve principal terms of proposed sale [Corp. Code § 603(a)].

3. If party with control of or financial interest in corporation makes tender offer (including share exchange tender offer) or written proposal for approval of sale of assets to shareholders ("interested party proposal"), ensure that affirmative written opinion regarding fairness of consideration to shareholders is provided in following manner [Corp. Code § 1203(a)]:

NOTE:
This requirement does not apply if the target corporation does not have shares held of record by 100 or more persons [see Corp. Code § 605 (determination of shareholders of record)], or if the transaction has been qualified pursuant to Corp. Code § 25113 (qualification of issuer transaction by permit) or 25121 (qualification of recapitalization or reorganization by permit), and no stop order [see Corp. Code §§ 25140, 25143(a)] is in effect regarding that qualification [Corp. Code § 1203(a)].

If a subsequent tender offer or written proposal is made by another person at least 10 days before the date for acceptance of the tendered shares or the vote or notice of shareholder approval on the interested party proposal, additional shareholder notification and withdrawal requirements apply [Corp. Code § 1203(b)].

For further discussion, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues .

a. If shareholders' meeting is held to vote on approval of transaction, opinion must be delivered to shareholders with notice of meeting [Corp. Code § 1203(a); see Corp. Code § 601 (notice of meeting)].

b. If consents of all shareholders entitled to vote are solicited in writing [see Corp. Code § 603], opinion must be delivered at same time as solicitation [Corp. Code § 1203(a)].

4. Have board of directors of acquiring corporation, at regular or special meeting, pass resolution approving contract of sale to it of assets of selling corporation and authorizing its officers to execute and perform contract [see Corp. Code § 1001(a)].

5. Have officers of selling corporation execute and file with Secretary of State certification of election to dissolve [Corp. Code § 1901; see Ch. 12, Winding Up and Dissolution].

NOTE:

In general, the corporation must file a certificate evidencing the election with the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 1901(a)]. However, the separate filing of a certificate of election is not required if (1) the election to dissolve is made by the vote of all the outstanding shares and (2) a statement to that effect is inserted in the certificate of dissolution [Corp. Code § 1901(c)]. Further, the separate filing of a certificate of election is not required if winding up and dissolution are mandatory because the term of corporate existence has expired [Corp. Code § 1906].

6. Have officers of selling and acquiring corporation execute:

a. Contract for sale of assets to acquiring corporation.

b. Escrow instructions for handling sale of assets to acquiring corporation.

c. Notice of intended transfer if required by Uniform Commercial Code--Bulk Sales Division [see Com. Code §§ 6101-6111; see also Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice, § 17.20].

7. Distribute executed copy of contract of sale and escrow instructions to:

a. Secretary of each corporation.

b. Escrow holder appointed to handle sale of assets.

8. Conduct (or supervise) sale of assets in same manner as sale of any similar incorporated or unincorporated business [see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice].

NOTE:

The same notices must be given and the same tax clearances obtained from the California State Board of Equalization and Employment Development Department that would be required in the sale of any similar business. Discussion of the requirements for, forms for, and a Transaction Guide for the sale of a business are set forth in Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice .

9. On consummation of sale, have selling corporation distribute sale proceeds among its shareholders and complete process of being dissolved [see Ch. 12, Winding Up and Dissolution].

5-11B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11B.200

§ 11B.200 Contract for Cash Sale of Assets--All Assets of Selling Corporation to Be Sold to Acquiring Corporation for Cash Payable at Close of Escrow

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a simple contract for the sale of all assets of one corporation to another corporation for cash payable at close of escrow. It specifies that the sale will be conducted in compliance with the requirements of the Uniform Commercial Code--Bulk Sales Division [Com. Code § 6101 et seq.] and names an escrow holder through whom the sale is to be consummated. This chapter does not contain escrow instructions for the sale of the corporate assets. The escrow instructions required in connection with this form, however, are similar to those for the sale of other businesses [see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice, § 17.250].

Because it involves the sale of all corporate assets, the principal terms of the contract of sale set forth in this form must be approved by the board of directors and then by the outstanding shares of the selling corporation [Corp. Code § 1001(a); see § 11B.20[2]]. A resolution of the board of directors of the selling corporation approving the principal terms of the sale is set forth in § 11B.201. Another resolution by the board of directors of the selling corporation approving the principal terms of the sale is set forth in Ch. 12, Winding Up and Dissolution, § 12.32. Either resolution may be used in connection with this form, and may be modified by deleting the provisions relating to the plan of liquidation or dissolution if the selling corporation is not to dissolve but will continue in existence.

A resolution by the shareholders of the selling corporation approving the principal terms of the contract set forth in this form is contained in § 11C.202. As an alternative to that resolution, the written consent of the shareholders approving the principal terms of this contract is set forth in § 11B.203. Other forms for resolution and written consent by shareholders of the selling corporation approving sale of all the corporate assets are set forth in Ch. 12, Winding Up and Dissolution, §§ 12.33 and 12.34.

If proceedings for dissolution of the selling corporation have already begun before this contract is drafted, the sale under this contract being for cash only, the contract need be approved only by the board of directors and not the shareholders of the selling corporation [Corp. Code § 2001(g)]. If the acquiring corporation, however, is in control of the selling corporation or under control of the same owners as the selling corporation, special shareholder approval of the sale of assets of the selling corporation is required in all cases. It makes no difference that the sale is strictly for cash or is made after the selling corporation has elected to wind up its affairs and dissolve [see § 11B.20[6]].

[b] Fixing Responsibility for Contingent Liabilities

Section 6.01 of this form is an indemnity agreement that contains alternative provisions regarding who accepts the risk of liabilities of the business that are based on operations conducted before the sale. The first provision assigns responsibility to the seller for all liabilities not expressly assumed by the buyer. The alternative provision excepts products liability claims from the seller's liabilities and makes the buyer responsible for them.

In a small business, the seller normally will be aware of potential liabilities, and therefore would have no objection to the indemnity provision making the seller responsible for those liabilities, assuming that the purchase price reflects those obligations. However, the law of products liability has introduced some unpredictability into certain transactions, since an action for injuries caused by a defective product may arise years after the sale of the product. Liability can extend to a manufacturer, wholesaler, retailer, lessor, and perhaps even a licensor or franchisor, as long as the firm supplied the product in the firm's normal course of business and contributed to the placing of the product on the market [see Vandermark v. Ford Motor Co. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 256, 262-263, 37 Cal. Rptr. 896, 391 P.2d 168 (manufacturer and retailer); Canifax v. Hercules Powder Co. (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 44, 52, 46 Cal. Rptr. 552 (wholesaler); Price v. Shell Oil Co. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 245, 253, 85 Cal. Rptr. 178, 466 P.2d 722 (lessor of personal property); Kasel v. Remington Arms Co. (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 711, 725-726, 101 Cal. Rptr. 314 (licensor; dictum on franchisor)].

Not only are potential products liability claims unknown at the time of sale, but the matter of who may be held liable will also be unclear in the absence of a governing contractual provision. The seller will remain liable [Rawlings v. D.M. Oliver, Inc. (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 890, 901, 159 Cal. Rptr. 119] , assuming that the seller still exists. If, however, a plaintiff has no practical remedy against the seller because it was a corporation and has since dissolved or because the seller lacks sufficient assets to satisfy the claim, liability may be imposed on the successor to the business [Ray v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 22, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574, 560 P.2d 3 (seller dissolved); Rawlings v. D.M. Oliver, Inc. (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 890, 900, 159 Cal. Rptr. 119 (individual seller with insufficient assets); see Ch. 11E, Acquisition of Assets for Shares]. The rationale of these cases makes it appear that liability of a successor will be conditioned on other factors as well, such as the goodwill of the business being one of the assets sold and some reasonable level of continuity in the types of products handled by the business. Since the buyer's liability is contingent on the condition of the seller at some future point, in many situations neither party can foresee at the time of sale who would be responsible at the time of later tort litigation.

This unforeseeability can be eliminated with indemnity provisions by which one party undertakes to cover the other for losses for which it may be held liable [see Rossmoor Sanitation, Inc. v. Pylon, Inc. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 622, 633, 119 Cal. Rptr. 449, 532 P.2d 97 (parties may bargain for one to make good the other's future losses)]. The question of who should undertake responsibility is a business decision to be made in negotiations between the seller and the buyer of the business. The answer may affect the price of the business, and it may depend on whether the seller will continue to be in a position to insure or self-insure against products liability loss. Either party can purchase insurance, assuming that coverage is available for a reasonable premium. Companies that insure businesses typically sell both discontinued operations or discontinued products liability insurance (for the seller), as well as products liability insurance with coverage for products sold by the insured's predecessor in the business. If the buyer does consider it prudent to insure against liability for defective products sold by the seller, it is to the advantage of both parties to make the buyer's responsibility explicit and exclusive in the contract of sale. There is no reason for both parties to have to provide for uncertain liabilities, and presumably the seller's relief from potential liability or insurance expense can be reflected in the price of the business assets.

Other alternatives exist for meeting a purchaser's concerns if there is a potential for substantial products liability claims.

If the business being sold has been incorporated, the transaction can be structured as a sale of shares rather than a sale of assets [see Ch. 11B, Cash Purchase of Shares ; Ch. 11D, Acquisition of Shares for Shares]. Another alternative is to set up a wholly owned subsidiary corporation to run the acquired business as a separate entity, although such a decision would obviously involve other important legal, tax, and business considerations. In either case, the assets of the business itself will be subject to products liability claims, but those of the parent corporation will not, assuming that circumstances do not justify "piercing the corporate veil" [see Annot., Liability of Corporation for Torts of Subsidiary, 7 A.L.R.3d 1343 ; Ballantine & Sterling, CALIFORNIA CORPORATION LAWS, Ch. 14, Litigation Involving Corporations and Shareholders , §§ 295-298.02 (Matthew Bender)]. Sometimes the seller is willing to put part of the purchase price in escrow for a specified time, to secure an agreement to indemnify the purchaser against future claims [see Rabkin & Johnson, CURRENT LEGAL FORMS WITH TAX ANALYSIS, Ch. 16, Corporate Reorganizations and Liquidations]. Sometimes major stockholders of the seller will sign an indemnity agreement with the buyer, when the seller corporation is to be liquidated. For a discussion of the relative advantages for the seller and the buyer of various arrangements, see Heitland, Survival of Products Liability Claims in Assets Acquisitions, 34 Bus. Law. 489, 497-499 (1979).

PART IV. FORMS

5-11B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11B.201

§ 11B.201 Resolution of Board of Directors of Selling Corporation Approving Sale of All Corporate Assets

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a resolution that may be adopted by the board of directors of a corporation that wishes to sell all its assets of cash, pursuant to an offer it has received from another corporation, and dissolve. It is drafted to comply with the requirements of the California General Corporation Law requiring the principal terms of any proposed sale or other disposal of all or substantially all of the assets of a corporation to be approved by the corporation's board of directors and by the corporation's outstanding shares [Corp. Code § 1001(a); see § 11B.20[2]]. This resolution approves the principal terms of the proposed sale of corporate assets and authorizes the corporate officers to secure the necessary shareholder approval of such a sale.

Under California law, the board of directors of a corporation cannot elect to voluntarily dissolve the corporation unless it has issued no shares, has already disposed of all its assets and not conducted business for five years, or has been adjudicated a bankrupt [Corp. Code § 1900]. The election to voluntarily wind up and dissolve a solvent, going corporation that has issued shares can be made only by the corporation's shareholders [Corp. Code § 1900]. This resolution recommends to the shareholders that the corporation be dissolved, and conditionally approves the sale of all corporate assets pursuant to a designated proposed contract of sale.

A form for the contract of sale referred to in this form is set forth in § 11B.200. A resolution by shareholders of the selling corporation approving the principal terms of the asset sale described in the resolution in this form is set forth in § 11B.202. A form to be used in obtaining the written consent of shareholders and approving the principal terms of the asset sale is set forth in § 11B.203.

For a discussion of sale transactions that must be approved by directors and shareholders of a selling corporation, see § 11B.20[2]. For the special rules applicable to asset sales when the selling corporation is a subsidiary of the buying corporation or both are owned by the same people, see § 11B.20[6].

CHAPTER 11B CASH PURCHASE OF ASSETS
PART IV. FORMS

5-11B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11B.202

§ 11B.202 Resolution of Shareholders of Selling Corporation Approving Sale of All Corporate Assets for Cash

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a resolution to be adopted by shareholders of a selling corporation electing to dissolve the corporation and approving the sale of all of its assets. It is designed to be used in connection with the resolution of the board of directors of a selling corporation contained in § 11.201 and the contract of sale set forth in § 11.200. Because shareholders of a corporation may do almost anything they could do by vote at a shareholders' meeting by written consent without a meeting, an alternative form that may be used to obtain the written consent of the shareholders of the selling corporation to an election to dissolve the corporation and approval of the principal terms of the sale of all corporate assets is set forth in § 11B.203.

Approval of both the board of directors and the outstanding shares of the selling corporation is required for the sale of all or substantially all of its assets other than in the ordinary course of its business [Corp. Code § 1001(a)]. For further discussion, see § 11B.20[2].

[b] Vote Required for Resolution

This resolution attempts to accomplish two different results authorized by California's General Corporation Law: (1) to validly exercise the shareholders' election to dissolve the selling corporation, and (2) to have the shareholders approve the principal terms of a cash sale of all the corporation's assets. The General Corporation Law, however, imposes different voting requirements on a shareholders' election to dissolve a corporation and shareholders' approval of the principal terms of the sale of all or substantially all the assets of a corporation. When, as in this form, a resolution of the shareholders attempts to accomplish both results, it must meet both requirements.

The election to voluntarily wind up and dissolve a corporation must be made by the vote of shareholders holding shares representing 50 percent or more of the "voting power" of the corporation [Corp. Code § 1900(a)]. The "voting power" of a corporation, as that term is used in the General Corporation Law, means the power to vote for the election of directors at the present time, not at some time in the future, on the happening of some defined condition [Corp. Code §

194.5]. If different classes of shares are entitled to vote as separate classes for different members of the board, the percentage of voting power represented by the shares voting for dissolution must be determined on the basis of the percentage of the total number of authorized directors those shares have the power to elect in an election in which all shares entitled to vote for the election of directors are voted [Corp. Code § 194.5].

The shareholder approval of the principal terms of a proposed sale or all or substantially all the assets of a corporation required by the General Corporation Law is that they be "approved by the outstanding shares" of the selling corporation [Corp. Code § 1001(a); see § 11B.20[2]]. Generally it means approval by the affirmative vote of a majority of all outstanding shares of the corporation entitled to vote on the matter in question [Corp. Code § 152]. However, if the corporation's articles of incorporation so provide, it may mean the affirmative vote of a majority of the outstanding shares of each class or series of shares of the corporation or the affirmative vote of a greater than majority proportion of the shares of all or some classes of the corporation [see § 11B.20[2]].

In most cases, therefore, the shareholder vote required to elect to dissolve the selling corporation and the shareholder vote required to approve the principal terms of the sale of all or substantially all the corporate assets will be the same or nearly the same. However, in some cases they may be different and counsel should be careful to examine the situation to determine any differences in the voting requirements before submitting this resolution to a general or special shareholders' meeting of the selling corporation.

[c] Opinion of Independent Appraiser

When a tender offer or a written proposal for approval of a sale of assets [Corp. Code § 1001(a)] or "reorganization" [see Corp. Code §§ 181, 1200] is made to some or all of a corporation's shareholders by a party to the transaction who has control of or a financial interest in that corporation (an "interested party"), an affirmative opinion in writing regarding the fairness of the consideration to the shareholders must be provided to the shareholders or the corporation [Corp. Code § 1203(a); see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues]. For purposes of the written opinion requirement, the term "tender offer" includes a share exchange tender offer [Corp. Code § 1203(a); see Corp. Code § 183.5 (definition)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 11D, Acquisition of Shares for Shares .

5-11B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11B.203

§ 11B.203 Written Consent of Shareholders of Selling Corporation Approving Sale of All Corporate Assets for Cash

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is the written consent of shareholders of the selling corporation to the principal terms of a sale of all the corporation's assets. Unless the corporation's articles of incorporation provide otherwise, any action that may be taken at an annual or special meeting of shareholders may be taken without a meeting by written consent of shareholders holding outstanding shares having not less than the minimum number of votes necessary to authorize the action at a meeting [Corp. Code § 603(a)].

This form is an alternative to the resolution of shareholders of a selling corporation set forth in § 11B.202. It may be used most easily when the selling corporation has only a few shareholders. If all the shareholders of the selling corporation are also members of its board of directors, this form may be circulated for signature the same day and at the same meeting the resolution of the board of directors [see § 11B.201] is adopted by the board. For further discussion applicable to this form, see § 11B.202[1].

Scope

This chapter covers the merger of corporations, or corporations and other business entities, pursuant to provisions of California's General Corporation Law. The Legal Background discusses California statutory requirements and the effect of a merger on the affected corporations and their shareholders. It discusses the income tax factors relative to a merger of corporations under California law. It examines the requirements for making a merger a tax-free reorganization under the Internal Revenue Code, and also examines tax issues including the income tax basis for assets acquired in a merger and the availability to the survivor of a net operating loss carryover deduction. The Legal Background covers the various advantages and disadvantages of mergers as a form of reorganization. In addition, it examines the requirements of the California Corporate Securities Law of 1968 applicable to mergers. The Transaction Guide lists procedures for effectuating statutory mergers, short-form mergers, and foreign law mergers. It also contains a procedural guide for dissenting shareholders. This chapter contains forms for merger reorganizations and short-form mergers, as well as forms for enforcing rights of dissenting shareholders.

For a discussion and comparison of the various methods of corporate acquisition, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues . These methods are covered individually in Ch. 11A, Cash Purchase of Shares , Ch. 11B, Cash Purchase of Assets ; Ch. 11D, Acquisition of Shares for Shares ; and Ch. 11E, Acquisition of Assets for Shares . For a discussion of corporate conversions, see Ch. 11F, Corporate Conversions . Further detailed discussion of mergers is contained in Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Laws, Ch. 12, Corporate Acquisitions, Mergers, and Reorganizations (Matthew Bender). CHAPTER 11C MERGERS

5-11C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11C.20

§ 11C.20 Governing Law

[1] The Concept of a Merger

The term "merger" is not defined in California's General Corporation Law. However, it generally refers to the combination of two or more existing corporations by the absorption into one of them of all of the others, with the former continuing in existence [see Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Laws, Ch. 12, Corporate Acquisitions, Mergers, and Reorganizations , § 252.03 (Matthew Bender)]. A merger is a purely statutory procedure, prescribed in detail by the General Corporation Law.

In recent years, the concept of merger has been expanded to include not only combinations of corporations with each other [see § 11C.23], but also combinations among various types of business entities [see § 11C.30]. The General Corporation Law now permits mergers among domestic and foreign corporations and other business entities, which include general partnerships, business trusts, real estate investment trusts, unincorporated associations (other than a nonprofit association), limited partnerships, domestic or foreign limited liability companies, and certain domestic reciprocal insurers organized to provide medical malpractice insurance, provided that the particular merging party is permitted under the law governing it to merge with a corporation [Corp. Code §§ 174.5, 1113; see § 11C.30].

[2] General Corporation Law

[a] Chapter 11--"Merger"

Two chapters of the General Corporation Law govern the procedures required to effectuate a merger in California. Chapter 11 [Corp. Code §§ 1100-1113] governs mergers specifically. Corp. Code § 1100 provides that any two or more corporations may be merged into one of those corporations, and that a corporation may merge with one or more domestic corporations, foreign corporations, or other business entities. The next four sections of Chapter 11 of the General Corporation Law describe the contents and method of adoption and amendment of a merger agreement among corporations [see Corp. Code §§ 1101-1104]. Corp. Code § 1105 specifies how and when a merger may be abandoned, and Corp. Code § 1106 specifies the evidentiary effect of a certified copy of the filed merger agreement. Corp. Code § 1107 describes the resulting effect of a merger, and Corp. Code § 1108 provides for the merger of domestic California corporations and foreign corporations. Corp. Code § 1109 governs the manner in which real property of a disappearing corporation or disappearing other business entity may be transferred of record in each county to the surviving corporation or surviving other business entity of a merger. Corp. Code § 1110 governs short-form mergers, and Corp. Code § 1111 contains special requirements applicable to a merger when one of the constituent corporations is a "close corporation" [see Corp. Code § 158 (definition)]. Corp. Code § 1112 contains special requirements applicable to a merger in which the surviving corporation is a nonprofit, and Corp. Code § 1113 sets forth special requirements applicable to a merger involving one or more domestic corporations and one or more domestic or foreign other business entities. These statutory requirements are discussed below [see §§ 11C.122, 11C.23].

[b] Chapter 12--"Reorganizations"

Because a merger pursuant to Chapter 11 (other than a short-form merger) is defined in Corp. Code § 181 as a "reorganization" [Corp. Code § 181(a); see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues], a merger is also governed by Chapter 12 governing reorganizations [Corp. Code §§ 1200-1203]. Corp. Code § 1200 specifies what types of "reorganizations" (as that term is used in the General Corporation Law) must be approved by the boards of directors of the various corporations that are a party to the reorganization. Corp. Code § 1201 specifies the shareholder approval required for a proposed reorganization such as a merger. Corp. Code § 1202 sets forth shareholder approval requirements applicable when shares are canceled without consideration [Corp. Code § 1202(a)] or with less consideration than that required by the articles [Corp. Code § 1202(b)], and requires the application of foreign law to shareholder approval requirements when a parent party is a foreign corporation [Corp. Code § 1202(c)]. Corp. Code § 1203 requires the report of an independent appraiser if the merger proposal is made by a controlling party [see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues]. These statutory requirements are discussed below [see § 11C.122[4]-[6]].

[3] Internal Revenue Code

In addition to the relevant provisions of the General Corporation Law governing mergers, provisions of the Internal Revenue Code granting nonrecognition (postponement of recognition) of gain resulting from the exchange of shares for shares or property for shares as part of a plan of "reorganization" and provisions defining the term "reorganization" must be considered in connection with any proposed merger of corporations. I.R.C. §§ 354(a)(1) and 361(a) grant nonrecognition of gain in those transactions [see § 11C.26[1]]. I.R.C. § 368(a)(1) and (b) define the terms "reorganization" and "parties to a reorganization." I.R.C. §§ 358 and 362(b) specify the income tax basis of the property or shares received in a tax-free organization. For further discussion, see § 11C.26.

[4] Corporate Securities Law

The impact of federal and state securities laws on a business combination always must be considered [see Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Laws, Ch. 12, Corporate Acquisitions, Mergers, and Reorganizations , § 253.12 (Matthew Bender). The provisions of the Corporate Securities Law of 1968 relevant to a California merger of corporations are Corp. Code §§ 25120-25122, requiring any securities issued in a merger to be qualified by application to the California Corporations Commissioner. Corp. Code § 25103 states the various exceptions to the rule that securities issued as part of a merger or reorganization be "qualified" with the California Corporations Commissioner. These provisions are implemented by regulations issued by the Corporations Commissioner and set forth in 10 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 260.103, 260.140.63, and 260.121. For further discussion, see § 11C.25.

DIVISION I: BUSINESS AND NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS
CHAPTER 11C MERGERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11C.21

§ 11C.21 Definitions and Distinctions Applicable to Mergers

A "statutory merger or consolidation" is the first activity defined in the Internal Revenue Code as a tax-free corporate "reorganization" [I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(A)]. The drafters of California's present General Corporation Law, as revised effective January 1, 1977, stated that they eliminated the concept of "consolidation" in California as an outmoded procedure [Assembly Select Committee on the Revision of the Corporation Code, dated December 1, 1975, at 91 (hereafter cited in this chapter as "Assembly Select Comm. Rep."); see Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Laws, Ch. 12, Corporate Acquisitions, Mergers, and Reorganizations , § 252.03 n.7 (Matthew Bender)]. As discussed in § 11C.20[1]], the term "merger" is not defined in California's General Corporation Law. That law merely provides that any two or more corporations may be merged into one of those corporations, and that a corporation may merge with one or more domestic corporations, foreign corporations, or other business entities pursuant to Ch. 11 of the law [see Corp. Code § 1100]. It also provides that any one or more corporations may merge with one or more other business entities [see Corp. Code § 1113].

The corporation into which one or more other corporations or one or more other business entities are merged is the "surviving corporation" [Corp. Code § 190]. If the survivor is a limited partnership, that partnership is the "surviving limited partnership" [Corp. Code § 190.5]. If the survivor is not a corporation or a limited partnership, the survivor is referred to as the "surviving other business entity" [Corp. Code § 190.7]. The corporations and other business entities that are merged into the survivor and do not continue in existence after the merger are known as "disappearing corporations," "disappearing limited partnerships," "disappearing other business entities," respectively [Corp. Code §§ 165, 165.5, 167.8]. A "constituent corporation," "constituent limited partnership," or "constituent other business entity" is an entity that is merged with one or more other corporations, limited partnerships, or other business entities and includes the surviving corporation, limited partnership, or other business entity [Corp. Code §§ 161, 161.5, 161.7].

A merger, therefore, consists of a combination in which constituent corporations, limited partnerships, or other business entities are merged into a surviving corporation, limited partnership, or other business entity [see J.C. Peacock, Inc. v. Hasko (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 142, 150, 7 Cal. Rptr. 490] . Merger is an organic change that does not involve liquidation but does involve the incidental dissolution or disappearance of the merged or disappearing entities [see J.C. Peacock, Inc. v. Hasko (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 142, 150, 7 Cal. Rptr. 490] .

CHAPTER 11C MERGERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11C.22

§ 11C.22 California Statutory Requirements

[1] Merger Agreement

[a] Contents

The first step required by the California statutes to perfect a merger of two or more corporations into one corporation is the approval of an agreement of merger by the board of directors of each of the corporations [Corp. Code §§ 1100, 1101]. The constituent corporations to the merger must be parties to the merger agreement; other persons, including a parent party corporation [see Corp. Code § 1200(e)], may be parties to the agreement [Corp. Code § 1101].

The agreement of merger is the basic document in the merger transaction [Cavitch, Business Organizations with Tax Planning, Ch. 162, Mergers, § 162.02[1] (Matthew Bender)]. It must state all of the following [Corp. Code § 1101]:

- The terms and conditions of the merger.

- The amendments, subject to Corp. Code §§ 900, 907 (limitations on amendments) [discussed below], to the articles of incorporation of the surviving corporation that are to be effected by the merger.

- The name and place of incorporation of each constituent corporation to the merger, and which of them is to be the surviving corporation.

- The manner of converting the shares of each of the constituent corporations into shares or other securities of the surviving corporation [see [3], below].

- Any other details or provisions that are desired, including a provision for the payment of cash in lieu of fractional shares or for any other arrangement consistent with the provisions of Corp. Code § 407 (fractional shares) [see [3], below].

[b] Articles Amended by Merger

If the merger will amend the articles of incorporation of the surviving corporation, the merger agreement must either (1) set forth in full the articles of incorporation as so amended; (2) state that a provision of the articles identified by number or other designation will be stricken from the articles or amended to read as set forth in the agreement; or (3) state that a provision set forth in the agreement will be added to the articles [Corp. Code §§ 907(a), 1101(b)]. The articles as amended must contain only provisions that could be lawfully inserted in original articles of incorporation filed on the date the amendment becomes effective [Corp. Code §§ 900, 1101].

If the amendment to the surviving corporation's articles changes the name of the corporation, its new name may be the same as or similar to the name of a disappearing domestic or foreign corporation to the merger [Corp. Code § 1101(b)]. However, the surviving corporation is still subject to the limitations imposed by Corp. Code § 201(b) [Corp. Code § 1101(b)]. Therefore, it can adopt a name that is the same as or similar to the name of a constituent corporation, but cannot adopt a name that conflicts with that of an existing corporation that is not a party to the merger [see Assembly Select Com. Rep., at 92]. For further discussion, see Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Laws, Ch. 12, Corporate Acquisitions, Mergers, and Reorganizations , § 258.02 (Matthew Bender).

[2] Reference to Other Agreements

Any of the terms of a merger agreement pursuant to Corp. Code § 1101 may be made dependent on facts ascertainable outside that agreement, if the manner in which those facts will operate on the terms of the agreement is clearly and expressly set forth [Corp. Code § 109.5(a)]. If any terms are made dependent on facts ascertainable outside the merger agreement through a reference to another document, the corporation filing the merger agreement must (1) maintain a copy of the referenced document and all amendments at its principal executive office; and (2) provide a copy of the document and all amendments to the shareholders of any constituent corporation on written request, without charge [Corp. Code § 109.5(b); see § 11C.163[1]].

If the reference is to a contract to which the corporation is a party, any amendment or revision of the referenced contract requires shareholder approval, in addition to approvals otherwise required, in the following circumstances only [Corp. Code § 109.5(c); see § 11C.163[2]]:

- If the amendment or revision would result in a material change in the rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions of a class or series of shares, it must be approved by the outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 152] of that class or series [Corp. Code § 109.5(c)(1)].

- If the amendment or revision would result in a material change in the rights or liabilities of any class or series of shares with respect to the optional article provisions described in Corp. Code § 204(a)(1)-(3), (5), (9) [see Ch. 3, Articles of Incorporation], it must be approved by the outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 152] of that class or series [Corp. Code § 109.5(c)(2)].

- If the amendment or revision would result in a material change in the restrictions on transfer or hypothecation of any class or series of shares, it must be approved by the outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 152] of that class or series [Corp. Code § 109.5(c)(3)].

- If the amendment or revision would result in a change of any of the principal terms of the merger agreement, it must be approved in the same manner as required by Corp. Code § 1104 for a change in the principal terms of a merger agreement [Corp. Code § 109.5(c)(4); see [8], below].

[3] Agreement as to Conversion of Shares

[a] Manner of Conversion

The manner of converting the shares of each constituent corporation into shares or other securities of the surviving corporation is one of the matters that must be set forth in the merger agreement [Corp. Code § 1101(d)]. If any shares of any of the constituent corporations are not to be converted solely into shares or other securities of the surviving corporation, the merger agreement must also state the cash, rights, securities, or other property of another corporation the holders of those shares are to receive in exchange for their shares. That cash, rights, securities, or other property of another corporation may be given to those holders either in addition to or in lieu of shares or other securities of the surviving corporation [Corp. Code § 1101(d)]. If the shares will be canceled without consideration, the merger agreement must so state [Corp. Code § 1101(d)].

[b] Equal Treatment of Shares

Each share of the same class or series of any constituent corporation (other than the cancellation of shares held by a constituent corporation or its parent or a wholly owned subsidiary of either in another constituent corporation), unless all shareholders of that class or series consent, must be treated equally with respect to any distribution of cash, rights, securities, or other property [Corp. Code § 1101].

Except in a short-form merger and its "downstream" equivalent, the nonredeemable common shares of a constituent corporation may be converted only into nonredeemable common shares of the surviving corporation (or a parent party) if a constituent corporation (or a parent party) directly or indirectly owns shares of another constituent corporation representing more than 50 percent of the voting power of the other constituent corporation before the merger. This rule does not apply when all shareholders of the class consent, or as provided in Corp. Code § 407 with respect to fractional shares [Corp. Code § 1101].

Despite the general rule requiring equal treatment of shares, however, Corp. Code § 1101.1 permits unequal treatment of shares of the same class or series, and permits the conversion of common shares into other securities or cash even when one constituent corporation owns shares representing more than 50 percent of the voting power of the other constituent corporation if the terms and conditions of the transaction, and the fairness of those terms and conditions, have been approved by the Commissioner of Corporations, the Commissioner of Financial Institutions, the Insurance Commissioner, or the Public Utilities Commission [Corp. Code § 1101.1; see Corp. Code § 25142; see also Fin. Code §§ 696.5, 5750, 5802; Ins. Code § 838.5; Pub. Util. Code § 822]. This approval exception to the general rule requiring equal treatment also applies in the context of mergers involving limited partnerships. The purpose of this exception to the generally applicable rules on conversion (which preclude dilution or cashing-out of shareholders' interests without their consent) is to permit transactions that are essentially fair to the minority shareholders to go forward and to prevent a small minority from blocking a transaction found to be fair by the appropriate state commissioner or agency [see Corp. Code § 1101.1; see also § 11C.30].

[c] Fractional Shares

With respect to the creation of fractional shares on conversion, Corp. Code § 407 modifies the general rules requiring equality of treatment between shares and conversion of nonredeemable common shares into like shares of the surviving corporation. Ordinarily, the surviving corporation to a merger is not required to issue fractions of a share to persons who would become entitled to fractional shares at the conversion ratio specified in the merger agreement [Corp. Code §§ 407, 1101]. Instead, if the merger agreement so provides, it can do any of the following [Corp. Code § 407]:

- Arrange for the disposition of fractional shares by those entitled to them;

- Pay in cash the fair value of fractions of a share as of the time when those entitled to receive fractions are determined; or

- Issue scrip or warrants in registered form, as certificated securities [see Corp. Code § 156.1; Com.

Code § 8102(a)(4), (15) (defined)] or uncertificated securities [Corp. Code § 191.1; Com. Code § 8102(a)(18) (defined)], or bearer form as certificated securities, entitling the holder to receive a certificate for a full share on the surrender of the scrip or warrants aggregating a full share.

It may also issue scrip or warrants for fractional shares subject to the following conditions [Corp. Code § 407]:

- That they will become void if not exchanged for full shares before a specified date; or
- That the shares for which the scrip or warrants are exchangeable may be sold by the corporation and the sale proceeds distributed to the scrip or warrant holders; or
- Other conditions the board of directors may impose.

Furthermore, if the fraction of a share any person would otherwise be entitled to receive in a merger is less than one half of one percent of the total number of shares he or she is entitled to receive, the merger agreement may provide that fractions of a share will be disregarded or that shares issuable in the merger will be rounded off to the nearest whole share [Corp. Code §§ 407, 1101]. However, a corporation cannot pay cash for fractional shares if that would result in the cancellation of more than 10 percent of the outstanding shares of any class [Corp. Code § 407].

[4] Directors' Approval

A merger agreement must be approved by the board of directors of each constituent corporation to the merger and by any parent party of a corporation to the merger [Corp. Code §§ 1101, 1113(b), 1200(a), (e)]. A "parent party" is a corporation that is in control of a constituent corporation to the merger and whose own equity securities are to be issued or transferred in the merger [Corp. Code § 1200(e)]. An "equity security" is a share, a security convertible with or without consideration into shares, or any warrant or right to subscribe to or purchase any share or security convertible into shares [Corp. Code § 168]. "Control" means owning, directly or indirectly, shares or equity securities possessing more than 50 percent of the voting power of a constituent corporation or other business entity [Corp. Code § 160(b)]. "Voting power" means the power to elect directors of the constituent corporation [Corp. Code § 194.5].

Approval by the board of directors means approval by the board itself, and not a committee of the board [Corp. Code § 151].

[5] Shareholders' Approval

[a] Outstanding Shares of Each Class

The principal terms of the proposed merger also must be approved by the outstanding shares of each class of each constituent corporation or parent party to the merger [Corp. Code § 1201(a); see Corp. Code § 1200]. Approval may occur either before or after the merger agreement has been approved by the corporation's board of directors [Corp. Code § 1201(h)]. "Approval by the outstanding shares" requires approval by the affirmative vote of a majority of the outstanding shares entitled to vote, unless the articles require a greater than majority vote [Corp. Code §§ 117, 152]. If the articles of incorporation of a corporation require that the matter be approved by a greater than majority vote, including (a unanimous vote) of the outstanding shares of any class or series of its shares, the principal terms of the merger must be approved by that required vote [Corp. Code § 152; Assembly Select Comm. Rep., at 94].

If a corporation has two classes of common shares differing only as to voting rights, they will be considered a single class of shares [Corp. Code § 1201(a)]. In that case, neither class of common shares is considered to have interests requiring special protection and their votes may be counted together as one class [Assembly Select Comm. Rep., at 94].

No approval of the merger is required by any class of outstanding preferred shares of the surviving corporation or its parent party if the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on that class of shares will remain unchanged by the merger [Corp. Code § 1201(a)]. Their approval may be required, however, for some amendments to the articles of incorporation of the surviving corporation that will be made by the merger [Corp. Code § 1201(a), (c)]. If an amendment will be made by the merger to the articles of incorporation of the surviving corporation, the principal terms of the merger must be approved by the outstanding shares of the surviving corporation that would be required, without the merger, to approve the proposed amendment to its articles of incorporation [Corp. Code § 1201(c)].

In addition to the approval requirements imposed by Corp. Code § 1201, the principal terms of a merger reorganization must be approved by all of the outstanding shares of a corporation if the merger agreement provides that all of the outstanding shares of that corporation are canceled without consideration in the merger [Corp. Code § 1202(a)]. Furthermore, if the terms of the merger reorganization provide that a class or series of preferred shares will have distributed to it a lesser amount than would be required by applicable provisions in the articles, the principal terms must be approved by the same percentage of outstanding shares of that class or series as would be required to approve an amendment of the article provisions to provide for the distribution of that lesser amount [Corp. Code § 1202(b); see Ch. 10, Amendment of Articles].

[b] Close Corporations

If any constituent corporation to a merger is a close corporation [see Corp. Code § 158], the affirmative vote of a majority of its outstanding shares of each class may be insufficient to approve the merger. If the shares of the close corporation are to be exchanged in the merger for shares of a surviving corporation that is not a close corporation, the principal terms of the merger must be approved by the affirmative vote of at least two thirds of each class of outstanding shares of the close corporation [Corp. Code §§ 1111, 1201(e)]. The articles of incorporation of the close corporation may provide for a lesser vote but not for less than a majority vote of the outstanding shares of each class [Corp. Code §§ 1111, 1201(e)]. If the holders of any class of outstanding shares of a corporation that is a party to a merger reorganization will receive interests in a surviving other business entity, the principal terms of the reorganization must be approved by the shareholders [Corp. Code § 1201(f)].

[c] Nonprofit Corporations

If any disappearing corporation in a merger is governed by the General Corporation Law and the surviving corporation is a nonprofit public benefit corporation, a nonprofit mutual benefit corporation, or a nonprofit religious corporation, the merger must be approved by all of the disappearing corporation, regardless of any limitations or restrictions on the voting rights, and notwithstanding Corp. Code §§ 1200-1203 [Corp. Code § 1112].

[d] Foreign Corporations

When a parent party [Corp. Code § 1200] is a foreign corporation, other than one subject to the General Corporation Law [see Corp. Code § 2115(a); see also Ch. 12B, Foreign Corporations and Associations], any requirement or lack of requirement for approval by the outstanding shares of the foreign corporation is not governed by Corp. Code §§ 1200 and 1201, discussed above. Instead, the law of the state or place of incorporation of the foreign corporation will apply [Corp. Code § 1202(c)].

[6] Conditions Excusing Shareholders' Approval

[a] Rights Unchanged by Merger

The requirement that each constituent corporation obtain the approval of its outstanding shares to a proposed merger is intended to prevent any significant change in the rights or interests of the shareholders without their consent. It seems only fair that their investment should not be changed without their consent [Assembly Select Comm. Rep., at 93]. Therefore, when the rights, ownership, or control of the shareholders of a particular corporation are not to be diminished or diluted in any way by a merger, their consent to the merger would seem unnecessary [Assembly Select Comm. Rep., at 93, 94]. For this reason, no approval of a proposed merger is required by any class of outstanding preferred shares of the surviving corporation or its parent party when the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on that class of shares will be unchanged by the merger [Corp. Code § 1201(a); but see Corp. Code § 1201(g)].

For shareholder approval requirements in the context of a merger involving one or more corporations and one or more other business entities, see § 11C.30.

[b] Control Not Diluted by Merger

The General Corporation Law provides that approval of a proposed merger by the outstanding shares of any corporation will not be required when the control of the shareholders of that corporation is not to be diluted by the merger [Assembly Select Comm. Rep., at 94]. Specifically, no approval of a proposed merger is required by the outstanding shares of any corporation when that corporation or its shareholders, immediately after the merger, will own equity securities possessing more than five sixths of the voting power of the surviving corporation or its parent party [Corp. Code § 1201(b); but see Corp. Code § 1201(g)]. The term equity securities, for purposes of the voting exemption, means shares of the surviving corporation or its parent party that are convertible into shares with or without consideration [Corp. Code § 168]. For purposes of the voting exemption, it does not include mere warrants or rights to subscribe to or purchase shares or convertible securities of the surviving corporation or its parent party [Corp. Code § 1201(b)]. Voting power means the power to elect directors of the surviving corporation or its parent party [Corp. Code § 194.5].

For purposes of determining under the voting exemption test whether the shareholders of a particular constituent corporation to a merger will, immediately after the merger, own equity securities possessing five sixths of the voting power of the surviving corporation or its parent party, equity securities the shareholders own prior to the merger as shareholders of another party to the merger are disregarded [Corp. Code § 1201(b)]. Otherwise, a shareholder who owned 80 percent of the shares of the surviving corporation and 20 percent of the shares of a disappearing corporation to a two-corporation merger might claim that approval of the merger by shareholders of the disappearing corporation was not required. When the merger contemplated the exchange of each share of the disappearing corporation for a share of the surviving corporation, immediately after the merger the shareholders of the disappearing corporation would own shares possessing five sixths of the voting power of the surviving corporation. The voting power, however, of the other shareholders in the disappearing corporation would obviously be changed and diluted by the merger. To prevent such a change and dilution without their consent, the General Corporation Law requires that in determining whether, under the voting exemption test, the merger must be approved by outstanding shares of the disappearing corporation, the shares already owned by a double shareholder in the surviving corporation must be disregarded [Corp. Code § 1201(b)].

For purposes of the voting exemption test, the voting power of a corporation will be calculated by assuming that all securities of the corporation that are convertible, either immediately or at some future time, into voting shares have been converted [Corp. Code § 1201(b)]. It will not be assumed, however, that any mere warrants or rights to subscribe to or purchase voting shares has been exercised [Corp. Code § 1201(b)].

Notwithstanding the provisions of Corp. Code § 1201(a) and (b) discussed above, the principal terms of a reorganization must be approved by all shareholders of any class or series if, as a result of the reorganization, the holders of that class or series become personally liable for any obligations of a party to the reorganization, unless all holders of that class or series have dissenters' rights [Corp. Code § 1201(g); see Corp. Code § 1300 et seq.].

[c] Exceptions to Nondilution Rule

There are several situations in which, although the shareholders of a constituent corporation to a merger will immediately after the merger own shares possessing five-sixths of the voting power of the surviving corporation, they must still approve the merger. The first is when they are to receive shares of the surviving corporation having different rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions than those they owned prior to the merger. The principal terms of a merger must be approved by the outstanding shares of any class of a corporation that is a party to a merger when shares of that class are to be exchanged in the merger for shares of the surviving corporation having different rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions [Corp. Code § 1201(d)]. Shares of a foreign corporation received in exchange for shares in a domestic California corporation in a merger are considered as being shares of the surviving corporation having different rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions than the exchanged shares [Corp. Code § 1201(d)].

The second situation is when they are shareholders of the surviving corporation and its articles of incorporation are to be amended by the merger [Corp. Code § 1201(c)]. In such a situation, the principal terms of the merger must be approved by shareholders of the surviving corporation in the same way the amendment to its articles of incorporation would be required to be approved by them without a merger [Corp. Code § 1201(c)].

The third situation is when they are shareholders of a close corporation. The principal terms of a merger must be approved by the affirmative vote of at least two thirds of each class of the outstanding shares of a close corporation, as that term is defined in the General Corporation Law [Corp. Code § 158(a)], if the merger would result in their receiving shares of a corporation that is not a close corporation [Corp. Code § 1201(e)]. The articles of incorporation of the close corporation may provide for a lesser vote but not for less than a majority vote of the outstanding shares of each class [Corp. Code §§ 1111, 1201(e)].

The fourth situation in which the shareholders must approve the merger, regardless of whether or not they will immediately after the merger own five sixths of the voting power of the surviving corporation, is when any disappearing corporation is governed by the General Corporation Law and the surviving corporation is a nonprofit public benefit corporation, a nonprofit mutual benefit corporation, or a nonprofit religious corporation. In this situation, the merger must be approved by all of the disappearing corporation, regardless of any limitations or restrictions on the voting rights, and notwithstanding Corp. Code §§ 1200-1203 [Corp. Code § 1112].

[7] Report by Independent Appraiser

When a tender offer, including a share exchange tender offer, or a written proposal for approval of a statutory merger, other "reorganization" [see Corp. Code §§ 181(a), 183.5, 1200], or a sale of assets [see Corp. Code § 1001(a)] is made to some or all of a corporation's shareholders by a party to the transaction who has control of or a financial interest in that corporation, an affirmative opinion in writing regarding the fairness of the consideration to the shareholders must be provided to the shareholders or the corporation [Corp. Code § 1203(a)]. This requirement does not apply, however, if the target corporation does not have shares held of record by 100 or more persons [see Corp. Code § 605 (determination of shareholders of record)], or if the transaction has been qualified pursuant to Corp. Code § 25113 (qualification of issuer transaction by permit) or 25120 (qualification of recapitalization or reorganization by permit), and no stop order [see Corp. Code §§ 25140, 25143(a)] is in effect regarding that qualification [Corp. Code § 1203(a)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues .

[8] Signing, Amending, and Abandoning Merger Agreement

After a merger agreement has been approved by the board of directors of each constituent corporation, it must be signed on behalf of each corporation by two people: (1) the chairman of the board of directors, the president, or a vice-president, and (2) the secretary or an assistant secretary of the corporation [Corp. Code § 1102].

Any amendment to a merger agreement may be adopted and the agreement as so amended may be approved by the board of directors and, if the amendment changes any of the principal terms of the agreement, by the outstanding shares of any constituent corporation in the same manner as the original agreement [Corp. Code § 1104]. When the agreement as so amended is approved by the board of directors and outstanding shares, when required, of each of the constituent corporations to the merger and any parent party of a constituent corporation, the agreement as so amended constitutes the agreement of merger [Corp. Code § 1104].

The board of directors of a constituent corporation to a proposed merger, in its discretion, may abandon a merger without further approval of the outstanding shares of the corporation [Corp. Code § 1105]. The abandonment will be subject to the contractual rights, if any, of third parties including other constituent corporations to the merger [Corp. Code § 1105].

[9] Filing Agreement and Perfecting Merger

[a] Role of Surviving Corporation

After a merger agreement has been approved by the board of directors of each constituent corporation and parent party, and after it has also been approved by the outstanding shares when required of each constituent corporation and parent party, a copy of the agreement must be filed with the California Secretary of State. This duty is placed on the surviving corporation [Corp. Code § 1103].

[b] Officer's Certificate

An officers' certificate for each constituent corporation to the merger must be attached to the copy of the merger agreement filed with the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 1103]. An officers' certificate is a certificate signed and verified by (1) the chairman of the board of directors, the president, or any vice-president of the corporation and (2) the secretary, the chief financial officer, the treasurer, or any assistant secretary or assistant treasurer of the corporation [Corp. Code § 173].

The officers' certificate for each constituent corporation to the merger that must be attached to the copy of the merger agreement filed with the Secretary of State must state the following [Corp. Code § 1103]:

- The total number of outstanding shares of each class of the corporation entitled to vote on the merger.
- Either of the following:
  - That the principal terms of the merger agreement in the form attached, instead of the merger agreement itself, were approved by that corporation by a vote of a number of shares of each class equal to or exceeding the vote required, specifying each class entitled to vote and the percentage vote required of each class; or
  - That the merger agreement can be and was approved by the board of directors of the corporation alone [see Corp. Code § 1201, discussed in § 11C.103, which sets forth the very limited circumstance in which shareholder approval is not required].
- If equity securities of a parent of a constituent corporation are to be issued in the merger, the officers' certificate of that constituent corporation must also state either that no vote of the shareholders of the parent was required or that the required vote of the parent's shareholders was obtained.

[c] Date of Merger

Unless the merger agreement states a delayed effective date or the surviving corporation is a foreign corporation, a merger and any amendments made to the surviving corporation's articles of incorporation by the merger agreement become effective on the filing of the merger agreement with attached officers' certificates for the constituent corporations with the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 1103].

The agreement of merger, or any instrument filed with the Secretary of State with respect to a corporation other than original articles, may provide that it is to become effective at a time not more than 90 days subsequent to its filing date [Corp. Code § 110(c)]. In case a filed instrument specifies a delayed effective date, the instrument may be prevented from becoming effective by a certificate stating that by appropriate corporate action it has been revoked. The revocation certificate must be executed in the same manner as the original instrument and filed with the Secretary of State before the specified effective date of the instrument it revokes [Corp. Code § 110(c)]. In the case of a merger agreement, the certificate revoking it need only be executed on behalf of one of the constituent corporations [Corp. Code § 110(c)]. If no revocation certificate is filed, the agreement of merger containing the specified delayed effective date becomes effective on that date [Corp. Code § 110(c)].

When the merger becomes effective, the separate existence of the disappearing corporations ceases and the surviving corporation succeeds, without other transfer, to all the rights and property of each of the disappearing corporations [Corp. Code § 1107(a)]. The surviving corporation may succeed without paying any local agency transfer fees applicable to all licenses, permits, registrations, and other privileges granted by any local agency when the merger does not result in a change of ownership, such as a merger between a corporation and its wholly owned subsidiary, a merger between a corporation and the wholly ownedsubsidiary of that corporation's wholly owned subsidiary, or two wholly owned subsidiaries of the same parent [Corp. Code § 1107(b); see Corp. Code § 1107(e) (tax assessor may reassess real property on title transfer); see also Corp. Code § 1107(g) ("local agency" defined)]. The surviving corporation is subject to the same duties and obligations with regard to any license, permit, registration, or other privileges acquired from the disappearing corporation [Corp. Code § 1107(b); see Corp. Code § 1107(f) (local agency may reevaluate privileges when necessary for public health, safety, or welfare)].

The surviving corporation also becomes subject to all the debts and liabilities of the disappearing corporation in the same manner as if it had incurred them itself [Corp. Code § 1107(a)]. All rights of creditors and all liens on the property of each of the constituent corporations are preserved unimpaired [Corp. Code § 1107(c)]. However, liens on property of a disappearing corporation are limited to the property affected by them immediately prior to the time the merger is effective [Corp. Code § 1107(c)].

Any action or proceeding pending by or against any disappearing corporation may be prosecuted to judgment in the name of, or against, the disappearing corporation, and the judgment will bind the surviving corporation [Corp. Code § 1107(d)]. In the alternative, the surviving corporation may be proceeded against for a liability of a disappearing corporation or substituted in the place of a disappearing corporation in a pending action [Corp. Code § 1107(d)]. At least one California appellate case states, however, that an action cannot be brought in the name of a disappearing corporation after the effective date of a merger [J.C. Peacock, Inc. v. Hasko (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 142, 151-152, 7 Cal. Rptr. 490] .

The filing for record in the office of the county recorder of any county in which a disappearing corporation owns real property of either (1) a certificate prescribed by the Secretary of State or (2) a copy of the merger agreement, certificate of ownership, or certificate of merger, certified by the Secretary of State, evidences record ownership of the real property in the surviving corporation [Corp. Code § 1109].

CHAPTER 11C MERGERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11C.23

§ 11C.23 Mergers of Domestic and Foreign Corporations

[1] In General

Any number of domestic California corporations may be merged with any number of foreign out-of-state corporations if the foreign corporations are authorized by the laws under which they are formed to effect such a merger [Corp. Code § 1108(a)]. The surviving corporation of the merger may be either one of the domestic or foreign constituent corporations to the merger and will continue to exist under the laws of the state or place of its incorporation [Corp. Code § 1108(a)].

When the surviving corporation is a domestic California corporation, the merger proceedings with respect to it and any domestic disappearing corporations, must be conducted in accordance with California law applicable to the merger of domestic corporations [Corp. Code § 1108(b); see § 11C.22 et seq.]. When the surviving corporation is a foreign corporation, the merger proceedings may be conducted in accordance with the law of the state or place of its incorporation [Corp. Code § 1108(b)].

[2] Effect of Merger

[a] Domestic Surviving Corporation

When the surviving corporation to a merger is a domestic California corporation, the merger becomes effective in the same manner and at the same time as would a merger between strictly domestic California corporations [Corp. Code § 1108(c); see Corp. Code § 110(c)]. A copy of the merger agreement and an officers' certificate for each domestic and foreign corporation stating the same things that would be required were the merger strictly between domestic corporations [see Corp. Code § 1103], or the certificate of ownership [see Corp. Code § 1110(e) (short-form merger of 90-percent-owned subsidiary)] must be filed with the California Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 1108(c)]. When the merger becomes effective, each foreign disappearing corporation that is qualified to transact intrastate business in California automatically surrenders its right to transact intrastate business in California [Corp. Code § 1108(c)].

[b] Foreign Surviving Corporation

When the surviving corporation is a foreign corporation, the merger becomes effective in accordance with the laws of the jurisdiction in which it is organized [Corp. Code § 1108(d)]. In general, the merger becomes effective as to any California disappearing corporation as of the time of effectiveness in the foreign jurisdiction, provided that one of the following documents is filed in California [Corp. Code § 1108(d)]:

- A copy, certified by the public officer having custody of the original, of the merger agreement, certificate, or other document filed by the surviving foreign corporation in the state or place of its incorporation to effect the merger;

- An executed counterpart of the merger agreement, certificate, or other document filed by the surviving foreign corporation in the state or place of its incorporation to effect the merger;

- A copy of the merger agreement, together with an attached officer's certificate of the surviving foreign corporation and of each constituent domestic corporation [see Corp. Code § 1103]; or

- A certificate of ownership [see Corp. Code § 1110(e) (short-form merger of 90-percent-owned subsidiary)].

However, if a document is filed in California pursuant to the above requirement more than six months after the time of effectiveness of the merger in the foreign jurisdiction, or if the powers of the domestic corporation are suspended at the time of effectiveness in the foreign jurisdiction, the merger becomes effective as to the domestic disappearing corporation or corporations as of the date of filing in California [Corp. Code § 1108(e)]. Any foreign disappearing corporation that is qualified to transact intrastate business and files a document pursuant to the above requirement automatically surrenders this right as of the California filing date, regardless of the time of the effectiveness of the merger as to a domestic disappearing corporation [Corp. Code § 1108(e)].

[c] Filing With County Recorder

When the state of incorporation, including California, of any disappearing corporation provides that the making and filing of the merger document vests in the surviving corporation all the real property of the disappearing corporation, the merger effectively transfers the interest of the disappearing corporation in any California real property to the surviving corporation. The surviving corporation should file for record in the office of the county recorder of any county in California in which the disappearing corporation owned any interest in real property a copy of the merger or consolidation agreement, certificate of ownership, or a certificate of merger, certified by the public official of the state or place under whose laws the merger was effected [Corp. Code § 1109]. This recording will evidence record ownership in the surviving corporation of any interest owned by the disappearing corporation in real property in that county [Corp. Code § 1109].

[3] Shareholders' Rights

The rights of shareholders of any constituent domestic California corporations involved in the merger and the rights of shareholders of any domestic corporation that is a parent party of any foreign constituent corporation are governed by the California General Corporation Law [Corp. Code § 1108(f); see Corp. Code §§ 1100-1111]. For example, this type of merger must be approved by the same vote of the outstanding shares of the domestic disappearing corporation as if it were merging with only a domestic corporation [Corp. Code § 1108(f); see Corp. Code §§ 1200-1203]. Each share of the same class or series of any domestic disappearing corporation (other than shares held by the surviving corporation, its parent, or a wholly owned subsidiary of either in another constituent corporation) must be treated equally, unless all shareholders of the class or series consent [Corp. Code § 1108(f); see Corp. Code § 1101(e); but see Corp. Code § 407]. Similarly, in a merger of a corporation into its subsidiary in which it owns at least 90 percent of the outstanding shares of each class, other than a short-form merger, the nonredeemable common shares of a domestic disappearing corporation may only be converted into nonredeemable shares of the surviving corporation (or a parent party if a constituent corporation or its parent owns shares of another constituent corporation representing more than 50 percent of the voting power of the other constituent before the merger) if all of the shareholders of the class consent [Corp. Code § 1108(f); see Corp. Code § 1101(e); but see Corp. Code §§ 407, 1101(d)]. Dissenting shareholders of the domestic disappearing corporation also have the same right to force purchase of their shares as they would in a merger between strictly domestic corporations [Corp. Code § 1108(f); see Corp. Code §§ 1300-1312; see also § 11C.150 et seq.].

CHAPTER 11C MERGERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11C.24

§ 11C.24 Recordable Evidence of Merger of Two Foreign Corporations

When two foreign corporations merge and one of them owns real property in California, a special problem of evidencing the merger in California arises. The California Secretary of State has no instrument showing the merger that can be certified or on which a certificate may be issued for recording in the county in which the foreign corporation's California real property is located. To alleviate this problem, California law provides for the recording of a copy of the merger agreement, certified by an authorized public official of the state pursuant to whose law the merger was effected, in the county where the real property is located [Corp. Code § 1109]. In some states, however, the merger agreement, especially in a short-form merger, is not filed with any public official and therefore cannot be certified. Instead, in some states a "certificate of ownership" evidencing the merger, or a "certificate of merger," is filed by the merging corporations. Consequently, either a certified copy of the merger or consolidation agreement, a certificate of ownership, or a certificate of merger may be recorded in the California county where the disappearing corporation owns real property. The recording of the instrument evidences record ownership in the surviving corporation of all interest of the disappearing corporation in real property in the county where the instrument is recorded [Corp. Code § 1109].

CHAPTER 11C MERGERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11C.25

§ 11C.25 Corporate Securities Law Requirements

[1] Qualification Requirement

In most mergers, the surviving corporation will have to issue new shares to effectuate the merger, and allow conversion, pursuant to the manner specified in the merger agreement [see § 11C.22[1]], of existing shares of each disappearing corporation for shares or securities of the surviving corporation. However, it is unlawful for any person to offer or sell in California any security in an issuer transaction in connection with any change in the rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions of or on outstanding securities, or in any exchange of securitiesbetween the issuer and existing shareholders, exclusively or in connection with any merger, consolidation, or asset purchase or in any entity conversion transaction, unless the security is qualified for sale, or the security or transaction is exempt or not subject to qualification [Corp. Code § 25120]. This rule precludes the solicitation of shareholder approval for the merger until it has been qualified by permit with the California Commissioner of Corporations [Corp. Code § 25120]. However, no qualification or permit is required for general merger negotiations taking place before any general solicitation of holders of equity securities for approval of the merger [Corp. Code § 25103(a)].

An application for qualification to issue securities pursuant to a merger agreement is set forth § 11C.204, and the requirements for such a qualification are more fully discussed in that section. For a detailed discussion of the qualification and exemption of securities, including the preemption of state qualification or registration of "covered securities" as defined by the National Securities Markets Improvement Act of 1996 [Pub. L. No. 104-290, 110 Stat. 3416 (H.R. 3005); see 15 U.S.C. § 77r], see Ch. 6, Securities Regulation Issues, § 6.15, and Marsh & Volk, Practice Under the California Securities Laws, Ch. 3A, Federal Preemption of State Securities Regulation (Matthew Bender).

[2] Exemptions From Qualification

Any exchange incident to a merger is exempt from qualification requirements [see Corp. Code §§ 25110, 25120] unless 25 percent or more of the outstanding shares of any class, any holders of which will receive securities in the exchange, are California residents according to the records of the corporation [Corp. Code § 25103(c)]. However, this exemption is not available for a rollup transaction [Corp. Code § 25103(c); see Corp. Code § 25014.6 ("rollup transaction" defined)], or if the transaction is excluded from the definition of a rollup transaction by Corp. Code § 25014.6(b)(5) or (6) if the transaction is one of a series of transactions that directly or indirectly through acquisition or otherwise involves the combination or reorganization of one or more rollup participants [Corp. Code § 25103(c)].

Any change in the rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions of or on outstanding securities, and any exchange of securities between the issuer and its existing holders of equity securities exclusively, is exempt from qualification if the transaction, had it involved the issuance of a new security containing the changed rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions or a new issuance of the exchange security, would have been exempt from qualification [see Corp. Code § 25110] as an issuer transaction [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.103(a); see Corp. Code § 25102]. In addition, exchanges incident to merger, consolidation, or sale of assets (other than rollup transaction [see Corp. Code § 25014.6]) in consideration of issuance of equity securities of another entity or any entity conversion transaction that meets specified conditions are exempt from qualification [see Corp. Code § 25103(h); 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.103.6; see also Corp. Code § 25005.1 ("entity conversion transaction" defined); § 11C.104(1)].

[3] Permits

Normally, application is made for a permit, called a "definitive permit," authorizing issuance of the shares required in the merger prior to solicitation of shareholder approval of the merger. Ordinarily the definitive permit will be issued prior to solicitation of shareholders' approval of the merger [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.63]. When there appears to be any active opposition to approval of the merger or some other obstacle to its approval, the definitive permit may be conditioned on obtaining, before issuing securities under the merger agreement, an affirmative vote of a specified percentage of the outstanding shares held by persons not having a conflict of interest in connection with approval of the merger [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.63]. In extraordinary cases, though application is made for a definitive permit authorizing issuance of the merger securities prior to shareholder approval, the Commissioner may delay a decision on the definitive permit until after shareholder approval has been obtained and issue merely a negotiating permit to obtain that approval [see Marsh & Volk, Practice Under the California Securities Laws, Ch. 7, Recapitalizations and Reorganizations, §§ 7.02[2][a], [b], 7.03 (Matthew Bender)].

CHAPTER 11C MERGERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11C.26

§ 11C.26 Income Tax Factors and Requirements

[1] Tax-Free Exchange

No taxable gain or loss is recognized upon an exchange of stock or securities of a corporation that is a party to a reorganization if the exchange is made solely for stock or securities of another corporation that is a party to the reorganization and is made in pursuance of a plan of reorganization [I.R.C. § 354(a)(1)]. Six types of transactions that are applicable here qualify as "reorganizations" under the tax-free provision [I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)]. The first of the transactions defined as constituting a reorganization for purposes of the tax-free securities exchange provision is "a statutory merger or consolidation" [I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(A); see 26 C.F.R. § 1.368-2(b)(1)(ii) ("statutory merger or consolidation" defined)].

One of the income tax advantages of a statutory merger over the other types of acquisition methods defined as tax-free reorganizations by the Internal Revenue Code is that voting shares need not be exchanged solely for voting shares in a merger [see Fox & Fox, Corporate Acquisitions and Mergers, Ch. 2A, General Considerations in Corporate Acquisitions and Mergers (Matthew Bender)]. The acquisition of one corporation by another corporation by means of a share exchange or an exchange of assets for shares is also defined in the Internal Revenue Code as tax-free reorganizations. In each case, however, the shares-for-shares or assets-for-shares exchange qualifies as a tax-free reorganization only ifthe shares or assets of the acquired corporation were exchanged solely for voting shares of the acquiring corporation [I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(B), (C)]. There is no such restriction on a statutory merger that may qualify under the Internal Revenue Code definition as a tax-free reorganization. Subject to California state law, shares of a disappearing corporation may be exchanged for either voting shares or other securities of the surviving corporation and the merger remains a tax-free reorganization under the definition contained in the Internal Revenue Code [I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(A); Fox & Fox, Corporate Acquisitions and Mergers, Ch. 5B, The Statutory Merger (Matthew Bender)].

A statutory merger, however, has been called a deceptively simple type of tax-free reorganization because of two nonstatutory requirements that the courts have imposed on all types of tax-free reorganizations, and on mergers in particular [Rabkin & Johnson, Federal Income, Gift and Estate Taxation, Ch. 31, Exchanges for Securities, § 31.07 (Matthew Bender)]. These are the so-called "business purpose" requirement [see [2], below], and the "continuity of interest" requirement [see [3], below].

[2] Business Purpose, Continuity of Business Enterprise, and Continuity of Interest Requirements

A statutory merger under I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(A) must meet the general business purpose and continuity of business enterprise and interest requirements applicable to all reorganizations [see Treas. Reg. § 1.368-1(c), (d), (e)]. Therefore, to obtain the nonrecognition treatment of a qualified reorganization, the transaction must have a bona-fide business purpose and may not be a device simply to avoid taxes [Treas. Reg. § 1.368-1(c)].

The continuity of business enterprise requirement means that the acquiring corporation must either continue the acquired corporation's historic business or use a significant portion of the acquired corporation's business assets in a business after the reorganization [Treas. Reg. § 1.368-1(d)(1)]. The continuity of interest requirement means that some proprietary interest of the acquired corporation must be preserved so that transactions that resemble sales do not qualify for nonrecognition treatment available to qualified reorganizations [Treas. Reg. § 1.368-1(e)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues .

[3] Income Tax Basis for Acquired Assets

In "tax-free" reorganizations generally, recognition of gain is deferred pursuant to basis substitution provisions [see Fox & Fox, Corporate Acquisitions and Mergers, Ch. 4, Tax-Free Acquisitions (Matthew Bender)]. In a statutory merger, a former shareholder of the disappearing corporation has a substituted basis in shares received in the surviving corporation equal to his or her basis in the shares of the disappearing corporation [see I.R.C. § 358(a)]. The surviving corporation has a "carry-over" basis in the assets acquired from the disappearing corporation equal to the disappearing corporation's basis in those assets [see I.R.C. § 362(b)]. If the fair market value of the shares or assets received exceeds their substituted or carryover basis, gain on the transaction is postponed until those shares or assets are disposed of or sold [I.R.C. § 354; see § 11C.26[1]]. For a detailed discussion of the basis rules for the various acquisition methods, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues .

[4] Net Operating Loss Carryforward Deduction

In a statutory merger that is a qualified reorganization, the acquiring corporation automatically succeeds to any net operating loss carryforward of the acquired corporation, and may deduct it against income earned after the acquisition [I.R.C. § 381(a)(2), (c)(1); see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues]. Any carryforward will be limited, however, if after the reorganization, the percentage of stock in the acquiring corporation owned by one or more 5-percent shareholders has increased by more than 50 percentage points over the lowest percentage of stock of the acquired corporation owned by those shareholders at any time during the three-year period ending on the reorganization date [I.R.C. § 382]. The carryforward will be disallowed if the acquiring corporation does not continue the business enterprise of the acquired corporation at all times during the two-year period beginning on the reorganization date [see I.R.C. § 382(c)], or if the acquiring corporation's principal purpose in making the acquisition is the avoidance of federal income tax by obtaining a deduction that it would not obtain otherwise [see I.R.C. § 269(a)]. For a detailed discussion of the net operating loss carryforward and the restrictions on its use, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues .

CHAPTER 11C MERGERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11C.27

§ 11C.27 Assumption of Disappearing Corporation's Liabilities

[1] Automatic Assumption of Debts and Liabilities

Before 1977, more corporate combinations were consummated by means of so-called "de facto mergers" (that is, an exchange of the acquired corporation's assets for shares of the acquiring corporation followed by dissolution of the acquired corporation) than by means of statutory mergers [see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues]. One major reason, which attracted the attention of the drafters of the present California General Corporation Law, was the fact that a de facto merger did not need shareholder approval as did a statutory merger. The General Corporation Law of California eliminated this reason effective January 1, 1977 [see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues].

The second major reason was the fact that traditionally the acquiring or surviving corporation in a de facto merger did not automatically assume the debts and liabilities of the acquired or disappearing corporation, as did the surviving corporation in a statutory merger [see Ortiz v. South Bend Lathe (1975) 46 Cal.App. 3d 842, 846, 120 Cal. Rptr. 556] . When a statutory merger becomes effective, the surviving corporation automatically succeeds, without further transfer, to all the rights and property of each of the disappearing corporations [Corp. Code § 1107(a)]. The surviving corporation also automatically becomes subject to all the debts and liabilities of each of the disappearing corporations in the same manner as if it had incurred them itself [Corp. Code § 1107(a)]. The surviving corporation, therefore, becomes liable for all the liabilities, both known and unknown, of each disappearing corporation [see Cavitch, Business Organizations with Tax Planning, Ch. 161, Review of Factors to Be Considered in Selecting Form of Acquisition (Matthew Bender)]. Theoretically, an unknown inchoate liability of one of the disappearing corporations to a statutory merger, such as the tort liability for injuries caused or to be caused by a defective product manufactured by the disappearing corporation, could bankrupt the surviving corporation to the merger. Here, too, the differences between "de facto" and statutory mergers are less than they once were. In the single area of products liability, an acquisition by means of purchase of assets is also likely to lead to successor liability if the acquirer continues the business in basically the same form and the selling corporation dissolves [see Ray v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 22, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574 ; see also Ch. 11E, Acquisition of Assets for Shares].

[2] Limitations on Liability

To some extent a surviving corporation may gain protection against unknown liabilities of a disappearing corporation through personal guaranties or warranties of the disappearing corporation [see Cavitch, Business Organizations with Tax Planning, Ch. 161, Review of Factors to Be Considered in Selecting Form of Acquisition (Matthew Bender)]. It cannot gain protection, however, simply by obtaining warranties or guaranties by the disappearing corporation because they, like the disappearing corporation itself, will not survive a merger [see Fox & Fox, Corporate Acquisitions and Mergers, Ch. 5A, Summary of Acquisition Methods (Matthew Bender)]. Few shareholders will be willing to guarantee a surviving corporation against all liability for injuries that might be caused by a defective product manufactured or placed on the market by a disappearing corporation to a merger.

One limitation on a surviving corporation's liability for debts of a disappearing corporation is made by statute for liens on the property of a disappearing corporation at the time of the merger. All rights of creditors and all liens on the property of each of the constituent corporations to a statutory merger are preserved unimpaired throughout the merger [Corp. Code § 1107(c)]. However, liens on the property of a disappearing corporation are limited after the merger to the property affected by the lien immediately before the time the merger is effective [Corp. Code § 1107(c)]. A pre-merger lien on property of a particular disappearing corporation, therefore, although it survives the merger, remains a lien only on the property contributed to the surviving corporation by that particular disappearing corporation. It does not affect any property already owned before the merger by the surviving corporation or contributed to the surviving corporation by another disappearing corporation to the merger [Corp. Code § 1107(c)].

CHAPTER 11C MERGERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11C.28

§ 11C.28 Other Advantages and Disadvantages of Merger

[1] Advantages

[a] Simplicity

The greatest advantage of a statutory merger over any other acquisition method is its mechanical simplicity. Once a copy of the merger agreement with required officers' certificates for each constituent corporation is filed with the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 1103], the surviving corporation automatically succeeds without other transfer to all the rights and property of each disappearing corporation [Corp. Code § 1107(c)]. No other instruments of conveyance are required as they would be in a purchase of assets or an exchange of shares for assets of the disappearing corporations. Furthermore, there is no need for soliciting proper signatures and endorsements of share certificates of a disappearing corporation. In addition, the requirements of the Uniform Commercial Code--Bulk Sales Division [see Com. Code §§ 6101-6111], governing the normal sale of a business and its assets [see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice], need not be observed. The merger and transfer of the properties of the disappearing corporations is completed on the filing of the merger agreement with required officers' certificates with the Secretary of State [see § 11C.22[9]]. The only further act that might be considered to be required is the recording of a certified copy of the merger agreement in each county where a disappearing corporation owned any interest in real property [Corp. Code § 1109; see § 11C.22[9]] and notifying the Department of Motor Vehicles of the change in registered owners of any motor vehicles licensed to a disappearing corporation.

[b] Protection Against Dilution of Interests

Another advantage of a statutory merger is the ability to eliminate or change the interests of minority shareholders of a constituent corporation without their consent. A tax-free merger can be effectuated even though nonvoting shares or securities are to be exchanged in the merger for voting shares of a constituent corporation [Cavitch, Business Organizations with Tax Planning, Ch. 178, Tax-Free Statutory Mergers or Consolidations: A Reorganizations, § 178.01[1] (Matthew Bender)]. It can be provided, therefore, that certain types of shares of a constituent corporation to the merger will be converted by the merger into nonvoting shares or securities of the surviving corporation. If the minority shareholders holding those types of shares object, their right to have their sharesappraised and purchased for their appraised fair market value on the day preceding first announcement of the merger is their only remedy [Corp.

Code § 1312(a)].

This ability to change or eliminate minority shareholder interests allows a merger agreement to protect shareholders of the surviving corporation against undue dilution of their interests in the surviving corporation by the merger. In contrast, when a corporation is acquired by means of a share exchange or an exchange of shares for its assets, for the transaction to be tax-free, only voting shares of the acquiring corporation can be given to the acquired corporation or its shareholders [see I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(B), (C)]. This type of transaction, therefore, cannot be structured like a statutory merger to protect shareholders of the acquiring or surviving corporation against undue dilution of their ownership interests in the acquiring or surviving corporation [Cavitch, Business Organizations with Tax Planning, Ch. 161, Review of Factors to Be Considered in Selecting Form of Acquisition Summary, § 161.10 (Matthew Bender)].

[c] Effective Date Controlled

A further advantage of a merger is that the effective date of the merger can be controlled. This may be important for tax and other fiscal purposes [Fox & Fox, Corporate Acquisitions and Mergers, Ch. 5B, The Statutory Merger (Matthew Bender)]. In fact, California's General Corporation Law even allows a delayed effective date not more than 90 days after it is filed with the Secretary of State to be specified in the merger agreement as the date the merger, unless revoked, will become effective [Corp. Code § 110(c); see § 11C.22[9]].

[d] No Sales and Use Tax

Another advantage of a statutory merger is that it is not subject to the California sales and use tax [see 18 Cal. Code Reg. § 1595(b)(3); see also Rev. & Tax. Code § 6001 et seq. (Sales and Use Tax Law)]. For further discussion of the sales and use tax in the context of mergers and acquisitions, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues .

[2] Disadvantages

[a] Shareholder Approval/Assumption of Liabilities

The two biggest disadvantages to a merger are the need for shareholder approval of the merger by the shareholders of each corporation to the merger, and assumption by the surviving corporation of all known and unknown debts and liabilities of each disappearing corporation. These issues are discussed in §§ 11C.22[4], [5], 11C.27].

[b] Payment to Dissenting Shareholders

Another major disadvantage of a statutory merger or other form of "reorganization" as defined in the California General Corporation Law [see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues] is the right of dissenting shareholders to demand payment for their shares. If the approval of the outstanding shares of a corporation is required for a reorganization, each shareholder who is entitled to vote on the transaction may require the corporation to purchase his or her "dissenting shares" for cash at the fair market value they had on the day preceding announcement of the proposed "reorganization" or short-form merger [Corp. Code § 1300(a); see § 11C.401]. Each shareholder of a disappearing corporation in a short-form merger also is entitled to require the purchase of his or her dissenting shares [Corp. Code § 1300(a)]. For a procedural guide for dissenting shareholders, see § 11C.150 et seq. Forms applicable to dissenting shareholders are set forth in §§ 11C.400, 11C.401.

CHAPTER 11C MERGERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11C.29

§ 11C.29 Requirements for Short-Form Merger

[1] In General

The term "short-form merger" is used in California's General Corporation Law to describe the special, abbreviated procedure that may be followed to merge a wholly owned or 90-percent-owned subsidiary corporation into its parent corporation, or a parent and any other subsidiary into a subsidiary corporation [Corp. Code §§ 187, 1110].

If a domestic corporation owns all of the outstanding shares, or owns less than all but at least 90 percent of the outstanding shares of each class, of a corporation or corporations, whether domestic or foreign, the merger of the subsidiary corporation or corporations into the parent corporation, or the merger into the subsidiary corporation of the parent corporation and any other subsidiary corporations, may be effected by a resolution or plan of merger adopted and approved by the board of the parent corporation and the filing of a certificate of ownership [Corp. Code § 1110(a)].

After the required approvals of the resolution or plan of merger [see [2], below], a certificate of ownership [see [3], below] must be filed to effectuate the merger [Corp. Code § 1110(e), (f)].

If all of the outstanding shares of a subsidiary domestic corporation that is a party to short-form merger are not owned by the parent corporation immediately before the merger, the parent corporation, before filing the certificate of ownership that perfects the merger with the Secretary of State, must give notice to each shareholder of the subsidiary corporation that the merger will become effective on or after a specified date [Corp. Code § 1110(h)]. The notice must be given at least 20 days before the effective date of the merger, and must be sent by mail addressed to each shareholder at the address appearing for him or her on the records of the corporation [Corp. Code § 1110(h)]. The notice must contain acopy of the merger resolution or plan of merger [Corp. Code § 1110(h)]. It must also contain a statement of the price determined by the corporations to represent the fair market value of dissenting shares of the subsidiary and a brief description of the procedure to be followed if the shareholder wishes to exercise his or her rights as a dissenting shareholder to require his or her shares to be purchased at their fair market value [Corp. Code §§ 1110(h), 1301(a)]. The shareholder receiving the notice has the same right to require that his or her shares in the subsidiary be purchased for their appraised fair market value on the date preceding announcement of the merger as a dissenting shareholder of a corporation involved in a regular statutory merger [Corp. Code §§ 1110(h), 1300].

[2] Resolution or Plan of Merger

The resolution or plan of merger must provide for the merger and also provide that the surviving parent corporation assumes all the liabilities of each disappearing corporation [Corp. Code § 1110(a)]. In addition, the resolution or plan may provide for the amendment of the articles of incorporation of the surviving corporation to change its name [Corp. Code § 1110(d); see Corp. Code §§ 201, 907(a)(2)]. The new name may be the same as or similar to that of one of the disappearing corporations [Corp. Code § 1110(d)].

If the merger is with a 90-percent-owned subsidiary, the resolution or plan of merger must set forth the securities, cash, property, or rights to be issued, paid, delivered, or granted on surrender of each outstanding share of the subsidiary corporation not owned by the parent corporation. The entire resolution or plan, as well as the consideration to be received for each share of the subsidiary corporation not owned by the parent corporation, must be approved by the board of the subsidiary corporation [Corp. Code § 1110(b)].

If the parent corporation will be merged into one of its subsidiary corporations, the resolution or plan must also provide for the pro rata conversion of the outstanding shares of the parent corporation into shares of the surviving subsidiary corporation. The entire resolution or plan must be approved by the board of the surviving corporation [Corp. Code § 1110(c)]. Further, if the merger, but for the operation of Corp. Code § 1110, would be a merger reorganization [see Corp. Code § 181(a)], such that the principal terms of the merger would be required to be approved by the outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 152] of any class of the parent corporation [see Corp. Code § 1201(d)], the principal terms of the merger or plan must be approved by the outstanding shares of that same class of the parent corporation [Corp. Code § 1110(c); see § 11C.22[4]].

If an agreement of merger is entered into between a parent corporation and one or more of its subsidiary corporations, and the minimum 90 percent share ownership requirements are met, the agreement of merger may be filed as a plan of merger with a certificate of ownership in accordance with the short-form merger requirements [Corp. Code § 1110(i)]. In this situation, Corp. Code §§ 1101, 1102, 1103, 1200, 1201, and 1202 are inapplicable [Corp. Code § 1110(i)]. Alternatively, the agreement of merger may be filed pursuant to Corp. Code § 1103, and the short-form merger requirements of Corp. Code § 1110 are inapplicable [Corp. Code § 1110(i)].

[3] Certificate of Ownership Perfecting Merger

A short-form merger is perfected by and becomes effective when a certificate of ownership is filed with the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 1110(f)]. The required "certificate of ownership" is an officers' certificate of the parent corporation [Corp. Code § 1110(e)]. An "officers' certificate" is a certificate signed and verified by a corporation's (1) chairman of the board of directors, president, or any vice-president and (2) secretary, chief financial officer, treasurer, or any assistant secretary or assistant treasurer [Corp. Code § 173].

The officers' certificate of the parent corporation used as a "certificate of ownership" perfecting a short-form merger must do all of the following [Corp. Code § 1110(e)]:

- Identify the parent and subsidiary corporation or corporations being merged.

- Set forth the share ownership by the parent corporation of each subsidiary corporation as 100 percent of the outstanding shares or as at least 90 percent of the outstanding shares of each class, as the case may be.

- Set forth the resolution or plan of merger adopted by the board of directors of the parent corporation for the merger, including the resolution for change of the parent's name if applicable.

- Set forth approval of the resolution or merger by the board of the parent corporation.

- Set forth any other required approvals of the resolution or plan of merger [see Corp. Code § 1110(b), (c); see also [2], above].

A copy of the certificate of ownership must be filed with the Secretary of State for the parent corporation and for each domestic and qualified foreign disappearing subsidiary corporation to the merger [Corp. Code § 1110(e)]. However, the certificate cannot be filed until after the required approval or approvals of the resolution or plan of merger [Corp. Code § 1110(e); see [2], above].

The filing of the certificates of ownership perfects the merger and any amendments of the articles of incorporation of the surviving parent corporation in the manner set forth in the certificate [Corp. Code § 1110(f)].

[4] Short-Form Merger With Foreign Corporation

A short-form merger may be effected if the parent corporation involved is aforeign corporation and if at least one of the disappearing subsidiary corporations is a domestic California corporation [Corp. Code § 1110(g)]. In such a case, the certificate of ownership required to perfect a short-form merger will be filed with the California Secretary of State as to each domestic subsidiary corporation, and each foreign subsidiary corporation qualified to transact intrastate business in California [Corp. Code §§ 1108(d)(4), 1110(g)]. In lieu of filing a certificate of ownership, any one of the following documents may be filed as to each disappearing domestic corporation [Corp. Code § 1108(d)(1)- (3); see Corp. Code § 1103 (officer's certificates)]:

- A certified copy, or an executed counterpart, of the merger agreement, certificate, or other document filed by the surviving foreign corporation to effect the merger; or

- A copy of the agreement of merger, with an attached officer's certificate of the surviving foreign corporation and of each domestic constituent corporation.

No filing is made as to the foreign parent corporation [Corp. Code § 1110(g)].

A foreign subsidiary corporation may not be merged pursuant to California's short-form merger provisions, nor may a foreign parent corporation act under those provisions, unless the laws of the state or place of its incorporation permit that action [Corp. Code § 1110(g)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 11C.30 Mergers Between Corporations and Other Business Entities

[1] Overview

One or more corporations may merge with one or more other business entities [Corp. Code § 1113(a); see Corp. Code § 174.5 ("other business entity" defined)]. One or more domestic corporations not organized under the General Corporation Law and one or more foreign corporations may be parties to the merger [Corp. Code § 1113(a)]. Any one or more corporations and any one or more other business entities may merge with or into a corporation, which may be any one of the constituent corporations, or they may merge with or into an other business entity, which may be any one of the constituent other business entities [see Corp. Code § 1113(a); see also Corp. Code §§ 161, 161.5, 161.7]. This type of merger may be effected only if the following requirements are satisfied [Corp. Code § 1113(a)]:

- In a merger in which a domestic corporation not organized under the General Corporation Law or a domestic other business entity is a party, that entity must be authorized by the laws under which it is organized to effect the merger [Corp. Code § 1113(a)(1)].

- In a merger in which a foreign corporation is a party, that corporation must be authorized by the laws under which it is organized to effect the merger.

- In a merger in which a foreign other business entity is the surviving other business entity [see Corp. Code §§ 190.5, 190.7], the laws of the jurisdiction under which it is organized must authorize the merger.

- In a merger in which a foreign other business entity is a disappearing entity [see Corp. Code §§ 165.5, 167.8], the laws under which that entity is organized must not prohibit it from effecting the merger.

Each corporation and each other party that desires to merge must approve and be a party to an agreement of merger [Corp. Code § 1113(b); see [2], below]. The board of each corporation desiring to merge, and, if required, the shareholders, must approve an agreement of merger; the agreement must be approved on behalf of each party by those persons required to approve the merger by the laws under which it is organized [Corp. Code § 1113(a)]. The conversion of securities or other interests in the disappearing entity to interests or securities in the surviving entity are discussed in [3], below. The filing requirements to effectuate the merger are discussed in [4] and [5], below.

[2] Agreement of Merger

Each corporation and each other business entity must approve an agreement of merger: for each constituent corporation, the board must approve the agreement [see Corp. Code § 151]; for each constituent other business entity, those persons required to approve the merger by the laws under which the entity is organized must approve the agreement [Corp. Code § 1113(b)]. The constituent corporations and constituent other business entities must be parties to the agreement of merger. Other persons, such as a parent party corporation, may be parties to the agreement [Corp. Code § 1113(b)]. The agreement of merger must be signed by each constituent corporation's chairman of the board, president, or a vice-president and by its secretary or an assistant secretary acting on behalf of their respective corporations [Corp. Code § 1113(f)].

The agreement of merger must state all of the following [Corp. Code § 1113(b)]:

- The terms and conditions of the merger.

- The name and place of incorporation or organization of each party to the merger and the identity of the surviving party.

- Any amendments [see Corp. Code §§ 900, 907] to the articles of incorporation of the surviving corporation, if applicable, to be effected by the merger; if an amendment changes the name of the surviving corporation, if applicable, the new name may be the same as or similar tothe name of a disappearing domestic or foreign corporation [but see Corp. Code § 201(b) (prohibited names)].

- The manner of converting the shares of each of the constituent corporations into shares, interests, or other securities of the surviving entity. If any shares of any constituent corporation will not be converted solely into shares, interests, or other securities of the surviving entity, the cash, rights, securities, or other property of any corporation or other business entity that the holders of those shares will receive in exchange for the shares, or that the shares are to be canceled without consideration; cash, property, rights, interests, or securities of any corporation or other business entity may be in addition to or in lieu of shares, interests, or other securities of the surviving corporation or surviving other business entity.

- Any other details or provisions that are required by the laws under which any party to the merger is organized, including Corp. Code § 15678.2(a) or 15911.12 governing the contents of a merger agreement for a California limited partnership that is a party to the merger or Corp. Code § 17551(a) governing the contents of a merger agreement for a California limited liability company that is a party to the merger.

- Any other details or provisions that are desired, including a provision for the payment of cash in lieu of fractional shares, or any other arrangement consistent with the provisions of Corp. Code § 407 governing fractional shares.

Notwithstanding its prior approval, an agreement of merger may be amended before the filing of the agreement of merger or the certificate of merger, as applicable [Corp. Code § 1113(d); see Corp. Code § 1113(g)]. The amendment must be approved by the board of any constituent corporation [Corp. Code § 1113(d); see Corp. Code § 151]; if the amendment changes any of the principal terms of the agreement, it must also be approved by the outstanding shares, if required, in the same manner as the original agreement of merger [Corp. Code § 1113(d); see Corp. Code §§ 152, 1200-1203]. If the agreement of merger as amended is approved by (1) the board and (if required) the outstanding shares of each constituent corporation, and (2) each constituent other business entity, the agreement of merger as amended constitutes the agreement of merger [Corp. Code § 1113(d)].

[3] Conversion of Securities

Each share of the same class or series of any constituent party (other than the cancellation of shares held by a constituent party, its parent, or a wholly owned subsidiary of either in another constituent corporation) must be treated equally with respect to any distribution of cash, property, rights, or securities unless (1) all the shareholders of the class or series consent, or (2) Corp. Code § 407, regarding fractional shares, applies [Corp. Code § 1113(c)]. Notwithstanding Corp. Code § 1113(b)(4) [see [2], above], the nonredeemable common shares of a constituent corporation may be converted only into nonredeemable common shares of a surviving corporation or a parent party [see Corp. Code § 1200(e)], or nonredeemable equity securities of a surviving party other than a corporation if another party to the merger or its parent directly or indirectly owns, before the merger, shares of that corporation representing more than 50 percent of the voting power of that corporation, unless all of the shareholders of the class consent, and except as provided in Corp. Code § 407, regarding fractional shares [Corp. Code § 1113(c)].

The provisions of Corp. Code § 1113(c) discussed above do not apply to any transaction if the Commissioner of Corporations, the Commissioner of Financial Institutions, the Insurance Commissioner, or the Public Utilities Commission has approved the terms and conditions of the transaction and their fairness [Corp. Code § 1101.1; see Corp. Code § 25142; Fin. Code §§ 696.5, 5750, 5802; Ins. Code § 838.5; Pub. Util. Code § 822].

[4] Filing Requirements of Surviving Corporation

If the surviving entity is a corporation, after approval of the merger by the constituent corporations through the approval of the board [see Corp. Code § 151] and the outstanding shares (if required) [see Corp. Code § 152; Corp. Code §§ 1200-1203], and after approval by the constituent other business entities, the surviving corporation must file a copy of the agreement of merger and an attached officers' certificate of each constituent corporation with the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 1113(g)(1); see Gov. Code § 121886(k)]. The officers' certificates must state the following as to each constituent corporation [Corp. Code § 1113(g)(1); see Corp. Code § 173]:

- The total number of outstanding shares or membership interests of each class entitled to vote on the merger (and identifying any other person(s) whose approval is required); and

- That the agreement of merger in the attached form or its principal terms (as required) were approved by that corporation by a vote of the number of shares or membership interests of each class that equaled or exceeded the vote required, specifying each class entitled to vote and the percentage vote required of each class, and, if applicable, by any other persons whose approval is required, or that the merger agreement was entitled to be and was approved by the board alone [see Corp. Code § 1201].

If equity securities of a parent party [see Corp. Code § 1200(e)] are to be issued in the merger, the officer's certificate of that controlled party must state either thatno vote of the shareholders of the parent was required or that the required vote was obtained [Corp. Code § 1113(g)(1)].

For any constituent other business entities, a certificate of merger (on a form prescribed by the Secretary of State must be filed in lieu of an officer's certificate [Corp. Code § 1113(g)(1)]. If a vote of the shareholders, members, partners, or other holders of interests of the constituent other business entity was required, the certificate must (1) contain a statement setting forth the total number of outstanding interests of each class entitled to vote on the merger, and (2) state that the agreement of merger in the attached form or its principal terms (as required) were approved by a vote of the number of interests of each class that equaled or exceeded the vote required, specifying each class entitled to vote, the percentage vote required of each class, and any other information required to be included under the laws pursuant to which the constituent other business entity is organized [Corp. Code § 1113(g)(1); see Corp. Code §§ 15678.4(a), (CRLPA, repealed January 1, 2010); Corp. Code § 15911.14 (ULPA '08), 16915(b), 17552(a)]. The certificate of merger must be executed and acknowledged by each constituent other business entity by those persons required to execute the certificate of merger under the laws pursuant to which the entity is organized. If applicable, the certificate must also be executed and acknowledged on behalf of each constituent corporation by the chairperson of the board, president, or a vice-president and secretary or an assistant secretary of the respective corporation [Corp. Code § 1113(g)(1)].

These filing requirements also apply whenever a public benefit corporation, mutual benefit corporation, religious corporation, or consumer cooperative corporation is a party to the merger [Corp. Code § 1113(g)(1); for general discussion of these types of corporations, see Ch. 13, Nonprofit Corporations].

When these requirements are satisfied, the merger and any amendments of the articles of the surviving corporation contained in the agreement of merger are effective, subject to Corp. Code § 110(c) regarding delayed effective dates and Corp. Code § 1113(j) regarding governing law for foreign entities [Corp. Code § 1113(g)(1)].

[5] Filing Requirements of Surviving Other Business Entity

[a] Certificate of Merger

If the surviving entity is an other business entity (and no public benefit corporation, mutual benefit corporation, religious corporation, or consumer cooperative corporation is a party to the merger), after approval of the merger by the constituent corporations through approval of the board [see Corp. Code § 151] and the outstanding shares (if required) [see Corp. Code § 152; Corp. Code § 1200 et seq.], and after approval by the other parties to the merger, the parties to the merger must file a certificate of merger with the Secretary of State on a form prescribed by the Secretary [Corp. Code § 1113(g)(2); see Gov. Code § 12186 (l)]. The certificate of merger must set forth all of the following [Corp. Code § 1113(g)(2)]:

- The name, place of incorporation or organization, and the Secretary of State's file number, if any, of each party to the merger, separately identifying the disappearing parties and the surviving party.

- If the approval of the outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 152] of a constituent corporation was required [see Corp. Code § 1200 et seq.], a statement setting forth the total number of outstanding shares of each class entitled to vote on the merger, and that the principal terms of the agreement of merger were approved by a vote of the number of shares of each class entitled to vote, and the percentage vote required of each class.

- If the merger is not to become effective on the filing of the certificate of merger with the Secretary of State, the future effective date or time, not more than 90 days subsequent to the date of filing of the merger.

- A statement by each party to the merger that is a domestic corporation not organized under the General Corporation Law, a foreign corporation, or an other business entity, of the statutory or other basis under which that party is authorized by the laws under which it is organized to effect the merger.

- Any other information required to be stated in the certificate of merger by the laws under which each party to the merger is organized, including the information in Corp. Code § 15678.4(a), (CRLPA, repealed January 1, 2010) or Corp. Code § 15911.14(a) (ULPA '08), if a domestic limited partnership is a party to the merger, the information in Corp. Code § 16915(b) is a domestic partnership is a party to the merger, or the information in Corp. Code § 17551(a) if a domestic limited liability company is a party to the merger.

- Any other desired details or provisions.

[b] Merger Effective on Filing

Unless a future effective date or time is provided in a certificate of merger, a merger is effective on the filing of the certificate of merger in the office of the Secretary of State, and at that time the parties to the merger become one entity. The certificate of merger, however, will not be filed until a certificate of satisfaction from the Franchise Tax Board, showing that all taxes imposed by the Bank and Corporation Tax Law [see Rev. & Tax Code § 23001 et seq.] have been paid or secured, has been filed by or on behalf of each disappearing party taxed under that law [Corp. Code § 1113(g)(2)].

[c] Copy of Merger Agreement

The surviving entity must keep a copy of the agreement of merger at its principal place of business [Corp. Code § 1113(g)(2); see Corp. Code §§ 15614(a) or 15901.14(a) (office of domestic limited partnership), 15678.4(a)(5) or 15909.02(a)(3) (office of foreign limited partnership), 16403 (domestic general partnerships), 16911(f) (foreign general partnerships), 17057 (office of domestic limited liability company), 17552(a)(5) (office of foreign limited liability company)]. On the request of a holder of equity securities of a party to the merger, a person with authority to do so on behalf of the surviving other business entity must promptly deliver to the holder of shares of a constituent corporation or a holder of interests of a constituent other business entity a copy of the agreement of merger. A waiver by a shareholder, partner, or member of that right is unenforceable [Corp. Code § 1113(g)(2)]. If a domestic reciprocal insurer organized after 1974 to provide medical malpractice insurance [see Corp. Code § 174.5; Ins. Code § 1550 et seq.] is a party to the merger, the agreement of merger or certificate of merger may not be filed until a certificate issued by the Insurance Commissioner approving the merger has been filed [Corp. Code § 1113(g)(2); see Ins. Code § 1555].

[6] Effect of Merger

On a merger of corporations and other business entities, the separate existence of the disappearing parties to the merger ceases and the surviving party succeeds, without other transfer, to all the rights and property of each of the disappearing corporations and disappearing parties. The surviving entity is subject to all the debts and liabilities of each in the same manner as if the surviving entity had itself incurred them [Corp. Code § 1113(i)(1)].

All rights of creditors and all liens on the property of each of the constituent corporations and other parties are preserved unimpaired, provided that those liens on property of a disappearing party are limited to the property affected by the liens immediately before the time the merger is effective [Corp. Code § 1113(i)(2)].

Any action or proceeding pending by or against any disappearing corporation or disappearing party to the merger may be prosecuted to judgment, and the judgment will bind the surviving party. Alternatively, the surviving party may be proceeded against or substituted in place of the disappearing party [Corp. Code § 1113(i)(3)].

If a limited or general partnership is a party to the merger, none of the rules set forth above is intended to affect the liability of a general partner of a disappearing partnership in connection with the debts and liabilities of the disappearing partnership existing before the merger becomes effective [Corp. Code § 1113(i)(4)].

[7] Mergers Involving Foreign Other Business Entities

[a] Compliance With Applicable Law

The merger of any number of domestic corporations with any number of foreign corporations or foreign other business entities in a merger in which one or more other business entities is a party must comply with the requirements discussed above [Corp. Code § 1113(j)(1); see Corp. Code § 1113(a)]. If the surviving party is a domestic corporation or domestic other business entity, the merger proceedings with respect to that corporation or other business entity and any domestic disappearing corporation must conform to the provisions described above [Corp. Code § 1113(j)(2)]. If the surviving party is a foreign corporation or foreign other business entity, the merger proceedings may be conducted in accordance with the laws of the state or place of incorporation of the surviving corporation or the laws of the state or place of organization of the surviving other business entity, subject to the requirements regarding effective dates [see Corp. Code § 1113(j)(4)], conversion of securities [see Corp. Code § 1113(c)], fractional shares [see Corp. Code § 407], reorganizations [see Corp. Code §§ 1200-1203], and dissenters' rights [Corp. Code §§ 1300-1312] with respect to any domestic corporations, domestic limited partnerships [Corp. Code § 15679.1 et seq. (CRLPA, repealed January 1, 2010); Corp. Code § 15911.20 et seq. (ULPA '08)], domestic general partnerships [Corp. Code § 16601 et seq.], or domestic limited liability companies [Corp. Code § 1113(j)(2); see Corp. Code § 17600 et seq.]. If applicable, corresponding provisions of the Nonprofit Corporation Law or the Consumer Cooperative Corporation Law must also be satisfied [Corp. Code § 1113(j)(2)].

[b] Effective Date

If the surviving party is a domestic corporation or domestic other business entity, the certificate of merger or the agreement of merger with attachments must be filed [Corp. Code § 1113(j)(3); see Corp. Code § 1113(g)]. The merger becomes effective as to each domestic constituent corporation and domestic constituent other business entity on the filing of the agreement of merger, subject to the requirements regarding effective dates [see Corp. Code §§ 110(c), 1113(g)(2)], as applicable [Corp. Code § 1113(j)(3)].

If the surviving party is a foreign corporation or foreign other business entity, the merger becomes effective in accordance with the law of the jurisdiction in which that corporation or other business entity is organized. However, except as described below, the merger is effective as to any domestic disappearing corporation as of the time of effectiveness in the foreign jurisdiction on the filing in California of a copy of the agreement of merger with an officers' certificate of each constituent corporation, and a certificate of merger of each constituent other business entity, attached [Corp. Code § 1113(j)(4); see Corp. Code § 1113(g)(1)]. If one or more domestic other business entities is a disappearing party in a merger in which a foreign other business entity is the surviving entity, a certificate of merger as required by the laws under which that domestic other business entity is organized, including Corp. Code § 15678.4 (CRLPA, repealed January 1, 2010) or Corp. Code § 15911.14(a) (ULPA '08), 16915(b), or 17752(a), must also befiled at the same time as the filing of the agreement of merger [Corp. Code § 1113(j)(4)].

If the date of the filing in California is more than six months after the time of the effectiveness in the foreign jurisdiction, or if the powers of a disappearing domestic corporation are suspended at the time of effectiveness in the foreign jurisdiction, the merger is effective as to the domestic disappearing corporation as of the date of filing in California [Corp. Code § 1113(j)(5)].

[c] Surrender of Right to Transact Intrastate Business

In a merger between domestic and foreign entities, each foreign disappearing corporation that is qualified for the transaction of intrastate business in California will automatically, by the merger filings, surrender its right to transact intrastate business in California as of the date of filing in California or, if later, the effective date of the merger. With respect to each foreign disappearing other business entity previously registered for the transaction of intrastate business in California, the filing of the agreement of merger or certificate of merger, as applicable, automatically cancels the registration for that foreign other business entity without the necessity of the filing of a certificate of cancellation [Corp. Code § 1113(j)(6); see Corp. Code § 110(c)].

Although these provisions regarding surrender of the right to transact intrastate business in California are intended to be helpful and reduce paperwork, they should be viewed with caution. It would be unwise to make a filing that causes surrender while the surrendering entity is in fact transacting intrastate business in California. This could occur if the filing in California preceded a foreign filing, and the foreign filing were the one that caused the merger to become effective and the surrendering entities to disappear as such. In addition, if the surviving entity is not qualified to do business in California and is required to be qualified by virtue of its succession to the businesses of the disappearing entities, the surviving entity should qualify in anticipation of the effectiveness of the merger.

[8] Evidence of Effectiveness of Merger

A copy of an agreement of merger certified on or after the effective date by an official having custody of the agreement has the same force in evidence as the original. Except as against the state, a certified copy is conclusive evidence of (1) the performance of all conditions precedent to the merger, (2) the existence on the effective date of the surviving party, and (3) the performance of the conditions necessary to the adoption of any amendment to the articles, if applicable, contained in the agreement of merger [Corp. Code § 1113(h)(1)]. The Secretary of State may certify a copy of the agreement of merger separately from the officers' certificates and certificates of merger attached to it [Corp. Code § 1113(g)(1)].

A copy of a certificate of merger duly certified by the Secretary of State is, for all purposes for a merger in which the surviving entity is a domestic other business entity, conclusive evidence of the merger of the constituent corporations, either by themselves or together with constituent other business entities, into the surviving other business entity [Corp. Code § 1113(h)(2)].

The laws of many states provide substantially that the making and filing of an agreement of merger, a certificate of ownership, or a certificate of merger vest in the surviving or consolidated corporation or surviving other business entity all of the real property of any disappearing corporation or other business entity. If a disappearing domestic or foreign corporation or a disappearing domestic or foreign other business entity has any real property in California, and if the state or place of its incorporation or organization (including California) has such a law, one of the following should be filed for record in the office of the county recorder of every county in California in which real property of the disappearing party to the merger is located: a copy of the agreement of merger or consolidation, certificate of ownership, or certificate of merger, certified by the Secretary of State or an authorized public official of the state or place under which the merger or consolidation is effected. That filing evidences record ownership in the surviving or consolidated party to the merger, of all interest of the disappearing party to the merger in and to the real property located in that county [Corp. Code § 1109].

[9] Abandonment of Merger

The board of a constituent corporation, in its discretion, may abandon a merger without further approval by the outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 152] at any time before the merger is effective. However, that action is subject to the contractual rights, if any, of third parties, including other constituent corporations and constituent other business entities [Corp. Code § 1113(e)]. Similarly, the general partners of a constituent limited partnership may abandon a merger [Corp. Code § 15678.2(d)], as may the members of a constituent limited liability company [Corp. Code § 17551(d)].

7. All loan agreements, mortgages, and other executory contracts.

8. Securities permit to issue shares or notices of issuance under exemption.

9. Any orders, judgments, or decrees of any court or administrative agency restricting or suspending authority of any constituent corporation or officers to issue or sell securities.

10. Most recent financial statements and balance sheets.

5-11C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11C.100

§ 11C.100 Form of Merger

1. Determine whether following advantages of statutory merger indicate that it is best acquisition method to use:

NOTE:
For a discussion of the relative advantages and disadvantages of a statutory merger, see § 11C.28. For a detailed discussion of the factors used to determine the most appropriate acquisition method, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues .

a. Mechanical simplicity.

NOTE:
A merger is perfected by filing the merger agreement, with an attached officers' certificate for each constituent corporation, with the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 1103; see § 11C.125]. On perfection of the merger, the surviving corporation succeeds without further transfer to all the rights and properties of each disappearing corporation to merger [Corp. Code § 1107(a)]. Further, the surviving corporation need not pay any local agency transfer fees for licenses, permits, registrations, and other privileges if the merger does not result in a change of ownership [Corp. Code § 1107(b); see § 11C.22[9]].

b. Minority shareholders' only method of objecting to merger is sale of shares back to corporation [see Corp. Code § 1312(a); see also §§ 11C.150 et seq.].

c. Effective date of merger can be controlled [see Corp. Code § 110(c)].

d. Income tax advantages, including:

NOTE:
For discussion of the taxation of a statutory merger, see § 11C.26.

(1) No taxable gain to shareholders or surviving corporation [I.R.C. § 354(a)(1)].

(2) No requirement that only voting shares of surviving corporation can be exchanged for shares and assets of disappearing corporations in tax-free merger [see I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(A); cf. I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(B) (shares-for-shares exchange), (C)(assets-for-shares exchange)].

(3) Surviving corporation succeeds to any net operating loss carryforward belonging to disappearing corporation [see I.R.C. § 381(a)(2), (c)(1)].

NOTE:
That carryforward, however, may be reduced or disallowed [see I.R.C. §§ 269(b), 382]. For a detailed discussion of these restrictions, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues .

(4) Transaction is not subject to California Sales and Use Tax [see 18 Cal. Code Reg. § 1595(b)(3)].

NOTE:
The Sales and Use Tax [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 6001 et seq.] is imposed on other types of reorganizations [see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues].

2. Determine whether following disadvantages of merger outweigh benefits:

a. Surviving corporation automatically becomes directly liable for debts and liabilities of each disappearing corporation [see Corp. Code §§ 1107(a), 1110(a)].

NOTE:
However, any liens on the property of a disappearing corporation will be limited after the merger to the property affected by the lien immediately prior to the time the merger is effective [see Corp. Code § 1107(c)].

b. Outstanding shares of each class of each constituent corporation must usually approve principal terms of merger [Corp. Code § 1201; see § 11C.122[1]].

NOTE:
Shareholder approval is not required if the shareholders' rights are not affected by the merger [Corp. Code § 1201; see § 11C.22[6]], or in a short-form merger [see Corp. Code § 1110; see also § 11C.130 et seq.].

c. Dissenting shareholders may require that corporation purchase their shares at fair market value on day preceding first announcement of terms of proposed merger [Corp. Code § 1300; see § 11C.150 et seq.].

d. Offer or sale of securities to be issued or exchanged in merger must comply with securities laws [see Corp. Code § 25120; see also §§ 11C.121, 11C.133].

e. Disappearing corporation will lose name and identity in merger, unless surviving corporation changes its name to that of disappearing corporation [see Corp. Code § 1101(b)].

f. Surviving corporation will not obtain new income tax basis for assets of disappearing corporation [I.R.C. § 362(b); see § 11C.26[3]].

3. Determine whether "short-form merger" may be used [Corp. Code §§ 187, 1110; see § 11C.130 et seq.], based on either of following:

NOTE:

A short-form merger is an abbreviated procedure used to merge a subsidiary into its parent corporation [see Corp. Code §§ 187, 1110].

a. Corporation that will be surviving corporation owns 100 percent of outstanding shares of disappearing corporation(s) [Corp. Code § 1110(a)]; or

b. Corporation that will be surviving corporation owns less than 100 percent but at least 90 percent of outstanding shares of disappearing corporation(s) [Corp. Code § 1110(a), (b)].

B. Preliminary Determinations

5-11C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11C.101

§ 11C.101 Foreign Corporations

NOTE:

For purposes of the California Corporations Code, a "domestic" corporation is a corporation formed under California law [Corp. Code § 167]. A "foreign" corporation is any corporation other than a domestic corporation [Corp. Code § 171].

1. If foreign corporation will be surviving corporation [see § 11C.50[2]], determine whether merger will be conducted under foreign law.

NOTE:

When the surviving corporation will be foreign, the merger proceedings may be conducted under the law of the place where that corporation was incorporated, subject to the rules regarding shareholder and board approval [see Corp. Code §§ 1200, 1201; see also §§ 11C.120, 11C.122] and dissenters' rights [Corp. Code § 1108(b); see Corp. Code §§ 1300-1312; see also § 11C.150 et seq.]. However, the disappearing domestic corporations must still file the merger documents in California [Corp. Code § 1108(d); see § 11C.140].

2. If any disappearing corporation is foreign [see § 11C.50 (2)], determine:

NOTE:

When the surviving corporation will be a domestic corporation, the merger proceedings or short-form merger proceedings are conducted pursuant to California law, regardless of whether any disappearing corporations are foreign [Corp. Code § 1108(b)].

a. Whether laws under which it was formed authorize merger with California corporation [see Corp. Code § 1108(a)].

b. Whether foreign corporation is authorized to transact intrastate business [see Corp. Code § 191] in California.

NOTE:
"Transact intrastate business" means entering into repeated and successive transactions of business in California, excluding intrastate or foreign commerce [Corp. Code § 191(a)]. For a discussion of qualification of foreign corporations to conduct intrastate business [see Corp. Code § 2105], see Ch. 12B, Foreign Corporations and Associations . A qualified foreign corporation automatically surrenders its right to transact intrastate business on perfection of a merger conducted under California law [Corp. Code § 1108(c)].

c. With respect to corporation's real property [Corp. Code § 1109; see § 11C.160]:

(1) Whether foreign corporation owns real property in California.

(2) Whether laws under which foreign corporation was incorporated provide that perfection of merger vests all real property of disappearing corporation in surviving corporation.

3. If any parent party is foreign corporation, determine shareholder approval requirements under parent party's state or place of incorporation.

NOTE:
A "parent party" is a corporation in control of any constituent or acquiring corporation whose equity securities are issued or transferred in the reorganization [Corp. Code § 1200(e)]. If a parent party [Corp. Code § 1200(e)] is a foreign corporation (other than one subject to the General Corporation Law [see Corp. Code § 2115(a)]), any requirement or lack of a requirement for approval by the outstanding shares of the foreign corporation is determined by the laws of the state or place of incorporation, rather than by Corp. Code §§ 1200 and 1201 [Corp. Code § 1202(c)].

B. Preliminary Determinations

5-11C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11C.102

§ 11C.102 Conversion of Shares

NOTE:
The merger agreement must state the manner of converting shares of the constituent corporations into securities or other property of the surviving corporation [Corp. Code § 1101(d); see § 11C.120].

1. Determine whether shares of disappearing corporation will be converted into [see Corp. Code § 1101(d)]:

a. Shares or other securities of surviving corporation.

b. Shares or other securities of parent of surviving corporation.

c. Cash, property, rights, and/or securities of any corporation.

NOTE:
Consideration other than securities of the surviving corporation may be given in addition to or in lieu of securities of the surviving corporation [Corp. Code § 1101(d)].

Every share of the same class or series of any constituent corporation must be treated equally with respect to any distribution of cash, property, rights, or securities, unless all shareholders of the class or series consent and except as provided for fractional shares [Corp. Code § 1101; see Corp. Code §§ 407 (fractional shares), 1101.1 (exception for certain public agency-approved transactions)].

The shares of the disappearing corporation may also be canceled without consideration [Corp. Code § 1101(d)].

2. If shares of disappearing corporation will be converted solely into shares of surviving corporation or its parent, determine exchange ratio for conversion.

NOTE:

Outstanding shares may be converted into a different number of shares of the same class or series, or into the same or a different number of shares of a different class or series [see Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Laws, Ch. 12, Corporate Acquisitions, Mergers, and Reorganizations (Matthew Bender)].

3. Determine whether constituent corporation or its parent owns, directly or indirectly, shares of another constituent corporation representing more than 50 percent of voting power of other constituent corporation prior to merger [Corp. Code § 1101].

NOTE:

Under these circumstances (other than in a short-form merger [see Corp. Code § 187; see also § 11C.130 et seq.]), the nonredeemable common shares must be converted into nonredeemable common shares of the surviving corporation or its parent, unless all of the shareholders of the class consent, and except as provided for fractional shares [Corp. Code § 1101; see Corp. Code §§ 407 (fractional shares), 1101.1 (exception for certain public agency-approved transactions)].

4. With respect to fractional shares, determine whether corporation will [see Corp. Code §§ 407, 1101]:

NOTE:

The surviving corporation is not required to issue fractions of a share to shareholders who would, at the conversion ratio specified in the agreement, become entitled to fractional shares [Corp. Code §§ 407, 1101].

a. Issue fractional shares;

b. Arrange for disposition of fractional shares by those shareholders entitled to them;

c. Pay fair value of fractional shares in cash at time when shareholders entitled to receive them are determined [see Corp. Code § 1101(e)];

NOTE:

For an example and discussion of a bylaw provision requiring fractional shares to be paid in cash, see Ch. 4, Bylaws, § 4.241.

d. Issue scrip or warrants entitling holder to receive one full share on surrender of scrip or warrants aggregating full share; or

NOTE:

For an example and discussion of a scrip certificate for a fraction of a share, see Ch. 6I, Issuance of Equity Securities, § 6I.204.

e. If fraction of share that any person would otherwise be entitled to receive in merger is less than one half of one percent of total shares the person is entitled to receive, either [Corp. Code § 407]:

(1) Disregard fractions of a share; or

(2) Provide that shares issuable in merger will be rounded off to nearest whole share.

5. Determine whether any other details or provisions regarding conversion are desired in merger agreement [Corp. Code § 1101(e)].

PART III. TRANSACTION GUIDE
B. Preliminary Determinations

5-11C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11C.103

§ 11C.103 Shareholder Approval and Notice of Approval

1. Determine whether approval of outstanding shares is required to perfect merger [Corp. Code § 1103]:

NOTE:

If approval of the outstanding shares of the constituent corporations must be obtained for a merger [see Corp. Code §§ 1200(a), 1201(a)], the merger cannot be perfected until that approval has been obtained [Corp. Code § 1103]. "Approval of the outstanding shares" means approved by the affirmative vote of a majority of the outstanding shares entitled to vote, unless the articles require unanimous or greater than majority vote [Corp. Code § 152].

a. Determine whether proposed merger will be a "reorganization" requiring board approval [Corp. Code §§ 1200(a), 1201(a); see Corp. Code § 181 ("reorganization" defined)].

NOTE:

The principal terms of a reorganization must be approved by the outstanding shares of each class of a corporation the approval of whose board is required [Corp. Code § 1200], subject to several exceptions [Corp. Code § 1201(a); see P 1(b), below]. All statutory mergers, other than short-form mergers [Corp. Code § 1110; see § 11C.130 et seq.], are "reorganizations" requiring board approval of each constituent corporation and any corporation in control of a constituent corporation whose equity securities are issued in the reorganization ("parent party") [see Corp. Code §§ 181(a), 1200; see also Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Laws, Ch. 12, Corporate Acquisitions, Mergers, and Reorganizations , § 260.02 (Matthew Bender)].

b. Determine whether either of following exceptions to shareholder approval requirement applies [Corp. Code § 1201(a), (b)]:

(1) Any of following will own, immediately after merger, equity securities of surviving corporation or parent party possessing more than five-sixths of voting power of surviving corporation or parent [Corp. Code § 1201(b)]:

NOTE:
However, approval is nonetheless required (1) by a class if holders of that class will receive shares of the surviving or parent corporation that have different rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions than those surrendered [Corp. Code § 1201(d)], or (2) by the outstanding shares of the surviving corporation if any amendment to the articles would otherwise require approval of those outstanding shares [Corp. Code § 1201(c)].

Further, the principal terms of a reorganization must be approved by all shareholders of any class or series if, as a result of the reorganization, the holders of that class or series become personally liable for any obligations of a party to the reorganization, unless all holders of that class or series have dissenters' rights [Corp. Code § 1201(g); see Corp. Code § 1300 et seq.].

In determining ownership by the shareholders of equity securities immediately after the reorganization, equity securities owned immediately before the reorganization as shareholders of another party to the transaction must be disregarded. For these purposes, voting power of the corporation will be calculated by assuming the conversion of all equity securities that are convertible into shares entitled to vote [Corp. Code § 1201(b)].

(a) Constituent corporation;

(b) Shareholders immediately before reorganization; or

(c) Both of above.

(2) Rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on class of outstanding preferred shares of surviving or parent corporation are unchanged by merger [Corp. Code § 1201(a)].

NOTE:
No approval of such a class is required [Corp. Code § 1201(a)], unless an amendment to the articles of the surviving corporation would otherwise require approval of the outstanding shares of that corporation [Corp. Code § 1201(c)]. Two classes of common shares differing only as to voting rights will be considered a single class of shares [Corp. Code § 1201(a)].

c. Determine whether reorganization would result in shareholders of disappearing "close corporation" receiving shares of surviving corporation that is not "close corporation" [Corp. Code §§ 1111, 1201(e)].

NOTE:
A "close corporation" is a corporation whose articles (1) require that all of the corporation's issued shares of all classes be held by 35 or fewer persons, and (2) contain a statement that it is a close corporation [Corp. Code § 158(a)].

This type of reorganization always requires the approval of the outstanding shares [Corp. Code §§ 1111, 1201(e); see § 11C.122].

d. Determine whether merger agreement will result in cancellation without consideration of all outstanding shares of that corporation [Corp. Code § 1202(a)].

NOTE:

The principal terms of a merger reorganization must be approved by all of the outstanding shares of a corporation if the merger agreement provides that all of the outstanding shares of that corporation are canceled without consideration in the merger [Corp. Code § 1202(a)].

e. Determine whether reorganization would result in distribution to class or series of preferred shareholders of a lesser amount than would be required by applicable article provisions [Corp. Code § 1202(b)].

NOTE:

If the terms of a merger reorganization provide that a class or series of preferred shares will have distributed to it a lesser amount than would be required by applicable article provisions, the principal terms of the reorganization must be approved by the same percentage of outstanding shares of that class or series that would be required to approve an amendment of the article provisions to provide for the distribution of that lesser amount [Corp. Code § 1202(b)].

2. Determine whether surviving corporation is required to mail notice of shareholders' rights to sell dissenting shares [see § 11C.122] to shareholders [Corp. Code §§ 1300(a), 1301(a)].

NOTE:

If the approval of the outstanding shares is required for a reorganization [see Corp. Code § 1201(a), (b), (e), (f); see also P (1)(a), (c), above], the corporation must provide notice to any shareholders that are entitled to vote on the transaction [see Corp. Code §§ 1300(a), 1301(a)].

CHAPTER 11C MERGERS
PART III. TRANSACTION GUIDE
B. Preliminary Determinations

5-11C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11C.104

§ 11C.104 Securities Laws Requirements

1. Determine whether securities issued in merger must be qualified under Corporate Securities Law [see Corp. Code §§ 25120-25122; see also § 11C.121]:

NOTE:

State qualification or registration of "covered securities," as defined by the National Securities Markets Improvement Act of 1996 [Pub. L. No. 104-290, 110 Stat. 3416 (H.R. 3005)] (or securities that will be covered securities under that definition upon completion of the transaction), is now preempted by federal law [15 U.S.C. § 77r]. For discussion, see Ch. 6, Securities Regulation Issues, § 6.15. For issues specific to acquisitions and reorganizations, see § 6.14 in that chapter.

Under California law, it is unlawful to offer or sell any security in California in (1) any issuer transaction in connection with any change in the rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions of or on outstanding securities; (2) any exchange of securities by the issuer with its existing security holders exclusively; (3) any exchange in connection with any merger or consolidation or purchase of assets in consideration wholly or in part of the issuance of securities; and (4) any entity conversion transaction unless the offering is qualified by permit (and no stop order) or exempt from or not subject to qualification [Corp. Code §§ 25120, 25121; see Corp. Code §§ 25100-25105 (exemptions); see also Corp. Code §§ 25100.1, 25101.1, 25102.1].

a. Determine whether short-form merger of 100-percent-owned subsidiary will be used [see Corp. Code § 1110; see also § 11C.100[3]].

NOTE:

If a parent corporation owns all of a subsidiary's outstanding stock, then a short-form merger of the two corporations does not involve any exchange of securities constituting a "sale" that must comply with the Corporate Securities Law [see Corp. Code § 25017(a) (definition of "sale"); see also Marsh & Volk, Practice Under the California Securities Laws, Ch. 7, Recapitalizations and Reorganizations*, § 7.02[2][a]* (Matthew Bender)].

b. Determine whether either of following residency exemptions apply [Corp. Code § 25103(b), (c)]:

NOTE:

For purposes of these exemptions, the residence of shareholders is determined by the addresses appearing in the corporate books [Corp. Code § 25103(b), (c)]. The purpose of the 25 percent test is to assure that California has a substantial interest in the transaction sufficient to warrant regulation by the California Commissioner of Corporations [see Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Laws, Ch. 21, Corporate Securities , § 459.02[2] (Matthew Bender)].

(1) Holders of less than 25 percent of outstanding shares receiving securities in exchange incident to merger have addresses in California [Corp. Code § 25103(c)].

(2) Holders of less than 25 percent of outstanding shares of class that will be substantially and adversely affected by changes in outstanding securities have addresses in California [Corp. Code § 25103(b)].

c. Determine whether exchange of securities satisfies limited 35-shareholder exemption [Corp. Code § 25103(h)]:

NOTE:

The Commissioner requires the acquiring entity to file a notice of transaction [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.103.6(a) (requirement), (b)(form for giving notice); see Corp. Code § 25103(h)(2) (statutory authority permitting Commissioner to require acquiring or surviving entity to file notice); see § 11.500 (form)]. However, the failure to file the notice, or to file it within the time specified by the Commissioner's rule, does not affect the availability of the exemption. An acquiring or surviving entity that fails to file the notice as provided by rule must, within 15 business days after demand by the Commissioner, file the notice and pay a fee equal to the fee payable had the transaction been qualified under Corp. Code §§ 25110 or 25120 [Corp. Code § 25103(h)(2); see Corp. Code § 25608 (fee)].

(1) Exchange is incident to merger, consolidation, or sale of assets (other than rollup transaction [see Corp. Code § 25014.6]) in consideration of issuance of equity securities of another entity or any entity conversion transaction;

(2) Exchange, had it involved issuance of security in transaction subject to Corp. Code § 25110 (rather than Corp. Code § 25120), would have been exempt from qualification by Corp. Code § 25102(f) (without giving effect to Corp. Code § 25102(f)(3), which requires representation that purchaser is purchasing for own account, not for resale); and

(3) Either of following applies:

(a) Not less than 75 percent of outstanding equity securities of each constituent or converting entity entitled to vote on proposed transaction voted in favor of transaction, not more than 10 percent of outstanding equity securities of each constituent or converting entity entitled to vote voted against proposed transaction, and each constituent or converting entity whose security holders are entitled to vote is subject to state statute with provision for dissenter's rights for holders of equity securities entitled to vote that do not vote in favor of or voted against transaction; or

(b) Transaction is solely for purpose of changing issuer's state of incorporation or organization, or form of organization, all securities of same class or series (unless all security holders of class or series consent) are treated equally, and holders of nonredeemable voting equity securities receive nonredeemable voting equity securities.

d. Determine whether merger will cause any of following changes in rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions of or on outstanding equity securities that materially and adversely affect any class of holders of equity securities [Corp. Code § 25103(e)]:

NOTE:

These changes require qualification by permit, unless the change is otherwise exempt [Corp. Code §§ 25103(e), 25120; see Marsh & Volk, Practice Under the California Securities Laws, Ch. 7, Recapitalizations and Reorganizations, § 7.03 (Matthew Bender)]. Such a change must be described with particularity in the merger agreement and the amendments to the articles [see Corp. Code §§ 907(b), 1101(b); see also § 11C.120].

(1) Adding, changing, or deleting assessment provisions.

(2) Changing rights to dividends.

(3) Changing redemption provisions.

(4) Making securities redeemable.

(5) Changing amount payable on liquidation.

(6) Changing, adding, or deleting conversion rights.

(7) Changing, adding, or deleting voting rights.

(8) Changing, adding, or deleting preemptive rights.

(9) Changing, adding, or deleting sinking fund provisions.

(10) Rearranging relative priorities of outstanding equity securities.

(11) Imposing, changing, or deleting restrictions on transfer of equity securities in organizational documents for entity.

(12) Changing right of holders of equity securities with respect to calling of special meetings of holders of equity securities.

(13) Changing, adding, or deleting any rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions of or on outstanding shares or memberships of mutual water company or other corporation or entity organized primarily to provide services or facilities to its shareholders or members.

e. Determine whether exchange of securities or change in outstanding securities is exempt because it would have been exempt as issuer transaction [see Corp. Code §§ 25110 (qualification requirement), 25102 (exemptions)] if it had involved issuance of new security [10 Cal. Code. Reg. § 260.103; see Corp. Code § 25105 (exemption pursuant to rule of Commissioner)].

NOTE:

For a list of exemptions from qualification, see Ch. 6, Securities Regulation Issues*, § 6.200*.

If the transaction would have been exempt as a limited offering [see Corp. Code § 25102(f)], small offering [see Corp. Code § 25102(h)], or qualified purchaser limited offering [see Corp. Code § 25102(n)], the applicable notices of issuance pursuant to those exemptions must be filed [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.103(b); see § 11C.121].

f. Determine whether exchange of securities is exempt because exchange is pursuant to plan of reorganization that has been confirmed (or is subject to confirmation) by decree or order of court of competent jurisdiction pursuant to United States Bankruptcy Code [see Corp. Code § 25103(i)].

2. Determine whether securities issued in merger must be registered with federal Securities and Exchange Commission [see 15 U.S.C. § 77f].

NOTE:

Under federal law, the offer or sale of a security must be registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission [see 15 U.S.C. § 77f], unless the security or transaction is exempt [15 U.S.C. §§ 77c, 77d]. For a basic discussion of the federal securities laws and the threshold requirements for federal registration, see Ch. 6, Securities Regulation Issues*, § 6.50* et seq. For a list of the most frequently applicable exemptions from registration, see Ch. 6A, Federal Securities Exemptions for California Nonpublic Corporations . For discussion of the federal preemption of state qualification or registration of "covered securities" as defined by the National Securities Markets Improvement Act of 1996 [Pub. L. PART III. TRANSACTION GUIDE
B. Preliminary Determinations

5-11C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11C.105

§ 11C.105 Change in Ownership

NOTE:

A "change in ownership" is a transfer of a present interest in real property, including the beneficial use of that property, the value of which is substantially equal to the value of the fee interest [Rev. & Tax. Code § 60]. When a change in ownership occurs, a change in ownership statement must be filed [Rev. & Tax. Code § 480.1; see § 11C.161]. Real property subject to local property taxation is then reassessed [see Cal. Const. arts. XIII, XIIIA; see also Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements*, §§ 23.203, 23.204*; California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 401, Real Property Valuation and Assessment (Matthew Bender)].

1. Determine whether disappearing corporation owns real property located in California [see § 11C.50[1]].

2. Determine whether "change in ownership" will occur as result of merger [Rev. & Tax. Code § 64]:

a. Determine whether one corporation will obtain "control," i.e., direct or indirect ownership or control of more than 50 percent of voting stock, of another corporation through purchase or transfer of stock [Rev. & Tax. Code § 64(c)].

NOTE:

This form of transfer is a "change in ownership" for property tax purposes [Rev. & Tax. Code § 64(c)]. For purposes of obtaining control, any purchase or transfer of 50 percent or less of the ownership interest through which control or a majority ownership interest is obtained is included [Rev. & Tax. Code § 64(c)(1)].

b. Determine whether merger meets following criteria [Rev. & Tax. Code § 64(b)]:

NOTE:
This type of reorganization does not constitute a "change in ownership" [Rev. & Tax. Code § 64(b)].

(1) Merger qualifies as "reorganization" under I.R.C. § 368;

NOTE:
For a discussion of the type of corporate transactions that are considered to be "reorganizations" under federal income tax law, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues .

(2) Merger qualifies as nontaxable event under California law; and

(3) All corporations involved are members of "affiliated group" meeting following requirements [Rev. & Tax. Code § 64(b)]:

NOTE:
The phrase "members of an affiliated group" refers to affiliation from the beginning to the end of a transaction. Therefore, for the transaction to avoid classification as a "change in ownership," the parties to the merger must remain affiliated after, as well as before, the reorganization [Pueblos del Rio South v. City of San Diego (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 893, 907, 257 Cal. Rptr. 578] .

(a) One or more chains of corporations connected through stock ownership with common parent corporation;

(b) 100 percent of voting stock, excluding shares owned by directors, of each corporation other than parent is owned by one or more of other corporations; and

(c) Common parent corporation directly owns 100 percent of voting stock, excluding any shares owned by directors, of at least one of other corporations in affiliated group.

NOTE:

This guide contains the procedures for a statutory merger, other than a short-form merger [see Corp. Code § 1110]. For the procedures applicable to short-form mergers, see § 11C.130 et seq.

These procedures apply to the merger of California ("domestic") corporations [see Corp. Code § 171] in which the surviving corporation will be a domestic corporation [see Corp. Code § 1108(b)]. If the surviving corporation will be a foreign corporation, the merger proceedings are made in accordance with the laws of the place of incorporation of that foreign corporation [Corp. Code § 1108(b)], although some California procedures must still be followed for disappearing domestic corporations [see § 11C.140 et seq.].

§ 11C.120 Merger Agreement

NOTE:
For a detailed discussion of merger agreements, see § 11C.22[1].

1. Draft merger agreement, including all of following [Corp. Code § 1101; see §§ 11C.200, 11C.201]:

NOTE:
Any of the terms of a merger agreement may be made dependent upon facts ascertainable outside that agreement, if the manner in which those facts will operate upon the terms of the agreement is clearly and expressly set forth [Corp. Code § 109.5(a)]. When any terms are made dependent upon facts ascertainable outside the merger agreement through a reference to another document, the corporation must make that agreement available to its shareholders [see Corp. Code § 109.5(b); see also § 11C.163]. If the referenced agreement is a contract to which the corporation is a party, the corporation must obtain shareholder approval to amend or revise that referenced contract [Corp. Code § 109.5(c); see § 11C.163].

a. Terms and conditions of merger.

b. Amendments, if any, to be made to articles of incorporation of surviving corporation [Corp. Code § 1101; see Corp. Code § 900 (limitations on amendments)].

NOTE:
An amendment must either set forth in full the articles as amended or identify the portion to be amended and set it forth as amended [Corp. Code §§ 907, 1101]. If the purpose of the amendment is to reclassify, cancel, exchange, or otherwise change outstanding shares, the amended articles must state the effect on the outstanding shares [Corp. Code § 907(b)]. If the amendment changes the name of the surviving corporation, the new name may be the same as or similar to the name of a disappearing corporation in the merger, but cannot be the same or similar to the name of any other existing corporation [Corp. Code § 1101(b); see Corp. Code § 201 (limitations on name)].

c. Name and place of incorporation of each constituent corporation.

d. Identification of surviving corporation.

e. Manner of converting shares of each constituent corporation into shares or other securities of surviving corporation [see § 11C.102].

f. If shares of any constituent corporation will not be converted solely into shares or other securities of surviving corporation, the cash, property, rights, or corporate securities that holders of those shares will receive in exchange for their shares [see § 11C.102].

NOTE:
If the shares will be canceled without consideration, that fact must be stated instead [Corp. Code § 1101(d)].

g. Any other details or provisions that are desired, including provision for payment of cash in lieu of fractional shares or for any other arrangement consistent with restrictions on fractional shares [see Corp. Code § 407; see also § 11C.102]].

2. Have board of directors of following corporations approve merger agreement [Corp. Code § 1200; see §§ 11C.202 (surviving corporation), 11C.203 (disappearing corporation)]:

NOTE:
The agreement must be approved by the board of directors itself, rather than by a committee of the board [Corp. Code §§ 151, 311(a); see Corp. Code § 1201(a); see also § 11C.22[4], [5]].

a. Each constituent corporation.

b. Any parent party.

NOTE:
A "parent party" to the merger is a corporation in control of a constituent corporation whose shares are being issued or transferred in the merger [Corp. Code § 1200(e)].

3. Have agreement signed by following persons from each constituent corporation [Corp. Code § 1102]:

a. Chairman of board of directors, president, or vice-president; and

b. Secretary or assistant secretary.

C. Procedural Guide to Statutory Mergers

5-11C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11C.121

§ 11C.121 Complying With Securities Laws

NOTE:

It is unlawful to offer or sell any security in California in connection with any merger, unless the security is qualified by permit, or exempt from or not subject to qualification [Corp. Code §§ 25120, 25121]. For a discussion of the separate requirements under federal securities laws, see Ch. 6, Securities Regulation Issues*, § 6.50* et seq.

State qualification or registration of "covered securities," as defined by the National Securities Markets Improvement Act of 1996 [Pub. L. No. 104-290, 110 Stat. 3416 (H.R. 3005)] (or securities that will be covered securities under that definition upon completion of the transaction), is now preempted by federal law [15 U.S.C. § 77r]. For discussion, see Ch. 6, Securities Regulation Issues*, § 6.15*.

1. If securities are exempt from qualification [see § 11C.104], prepare statutory notices appropriate to exemption being relied on [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.103(b)]:

NOTE:

If the offer or sale of securities in a merger is exempt because it would have been exempt as an initial transaction under the limited, small, or qualified purchaser exemption [see Corp. Code § 25102(f) (limited offering), (h)(small offering), (n)(qualified purchaser)] pursuant to 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.103, the issuer must file the notices of issuance required for those exemptions [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.103(b)]. A filing fee must be paid on filing [see Corp. Code § 25608(c)].

a. Small offering exemption [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.102.8].

NOTE:

For an example and discussion of the notice of issuance under the small offering exemption, see Ch. 6C, Small Offering Exemption, § 6C.200.

b. Limited offering exemption [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.102.14(c)].

NOTE:

For an example and discussion of the notice of issuance under the limited offering exemption, see Ch. 6B, Limited Offering Exemption, § 6B.203.

c. If transaction qualifies as an exchange under Corp. Code § 25103(h), prepare notice of exchange transaction and file notice within 15 days after first sale of securities in transaction in California [see § 11C.500 (form); see also 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.103.6(a)].

NOTE:

For discussion of this exemption, see § 11C.104, P 1(c); see also § 11C.500[1][a]*.

2. If securities must be qualified under Corporate Securities Law [see § 11C.104]:

a. Prepare application for permit [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.121; see also § 11C.204].

NOTE:

The permit must be issued by the Corporations Commissioner and received by the surviving corporation, or its parent party, before approval of the proposed merger by the holders of equity securities of any of the constituent corporations to the merger can be solicited [Corp. Code §§ 25103(a), 25120; see § 11C.122* (shareholder approval)]. In a short-form merger [see § 11C.130* et seq.], since no shareholder approval is required, the permit may be obtained prior to the approval of the parent corporation's board of directors [see Marsh & Volk, Practice Under the California Corporate Securities Laws, Ch. 7, Recapitalizations and Reorganizations, § 7.02 [2] (Matthew Bender)].

For more detailed discussion of the qualification of Securities in California, see Ch. 6H, Qualification of Securities .

b. File application with Commissioner of Corporations.

c. Pay filing fee of $200, plus one fifth of 1 percent of [Corp. Code § 25608(h)(2)]:

NOTE:

Qualification will not be effective until the fee has been paid [Corp. Code § 25615]. The maximum aggregate fee is $2,500 [Corp. Code § 25608(h)(2)].

(1) Value of shares alleged in application; or

(2) Actual value determined by Commissioner.

CHAPTER 11C MERGERS
PART III. TRANSACTION GUIDE
C. Procedural Guide to Statutory Mergers

5-11C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11C.122

§ 11C.122 Shareholder Approval and Notice

NOTE:

The following procedures apply only to a statutory merger that must be approved by the outstanding shares of a corporation [see § 11C.103]. For further discussion of shareholder approval requirements, see § 11C.22[5], [6].

1. Have principal terms of proposed merger approved as follows [Corp. Code §§ 1200, 1201(a); see § 11C.208 (shareholder resolution approving terms)]:

NOTE:

Shareholder approval may be obtained at a shareholders' meeting [see Corp. Code § 600(d)], or by written consent [see Corp. Code § 603]. For an example and discussion of the notice of a special shareholders' meeting [see Corp. Code § 601], see § 11C.205. For an example and discussion of a written consent [see Corp. Code § 603], see Ch. 8A, Shareholders' Meetings, Voting, and Agreements, §§ 8A.222, 8A.223.

When a tender offer (including a share exchange tender offer [see Corp. Code § 183.5 (definition); see also Ch. 11D, Acquisition of Shares for Shares]) or a written proposal for approval of a statutory merger or other "reorganization" [see Corp. Code §§ 181, 1200] or sale of assets [see Corp. Code § 1001(a)] is made to some or all of a corporation's shareholders by a party to the transaction who has control of or a financial interest in that corporation (an "interested party proposal"), an affirmative opinion in writing regarding the fairness of the consideration to the shareholders of the corporation must be provided to the shareholders or the corporation. This requirement does not apply if the target corporation does not have shares held of record by 100 or more persons [see Corp. Code § 605 (determination of shareholders of record)], or if the transaction has been qualified pursuant to Corp. Code § 25113 (qualification of issuer transaction by permit) or 25121 (qualification of recapitalization or reorganization by permit), and no stop order [see Corp. Code §§ 25140, 25143(a)] is in effect regarding that qualification [Corp. Code § 1203(a)]. If a subsequent tender offer or written proposal is made by another person at least 10 days before the date for acceptance of the tendered shares or the vote or notice of shareholder approval on the interested party proposal, additional shareholder notification and withdrawal requirements apply [see Corp. Code § 1203(b)].

For further discussion, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues .

a. If disappearing corporation is close corporation [see Corp. Code § 158], and reorganization would result in a surviving corporation that is not a close corporation [see § 11C.103], by affirmative vote of at least two thirds of each class of outstanding shares required to approve [Corp. Code §§ 1111, 1201(e)].

NOTE:
The corporation's articles may, however, provide for a lesser vote as small as a majority of the outstanding shares of each class [Corp. Code § 1201(e)].

b. If constituent corporation is not "close corporation" [see Corp. Code § 158; § 11C.103], by outstanding shares of each class of constituent and parent parties required to approve [Corp. Code § 1201(a); see § 11C.103].

NOTE:
"Approved by the outstanding shares" means approved by the affirmative vote of a majority of the outstanding shares entitled to vote, unless the articles require unanimous or a greater than majority vote [Corp. Code § 152]. A "parent party" is the corporation in control of any constituent corporation whose equity securities are issued in the reorganization [Corp. Code § 1200(e)].

For the purposes of merger approval, two classes of common shares differing only as to voting rights will be considered as only one class of shares for voting on merger [Corp. Code § 1201(a)].

c. If merger agreement provides that all outstanding shares of corporation are canceled without consideration [see § 11C.103] by all outstanding shares [Corp. Code § 1202(a)].

d. If terms of agreement provide that class or series of preferred shares will receive lesser amount than would be required by applicable article provisions, by same percentage of outstanding shares of that class or series as would be required to approve amendment of article provisions to provide for distribution of that lesser amount [Corp. Code § 1202(b)].

NOTE:
For a discussion of the approval required to amend articles of incorporation, see Ch. 10, Amendment of Articles .

2. Prepare notice that meets each of following requirements [Corp. Code §§ 1300, 1301(a); see § 11C.400]:

NOTE:
A separate notice should be prepared for each constituent corporation or parent party because of the nature of the material that must be contained in the notice.

a. States that proposed merger has been approved by outstanding shares of each class of corporation as required by law;

b. Specifies price determined by corporation to represent fair market value of dissenting shares;

NOTE:

The statement of price constitutes an offer by the corporation to purchase any dissenting shares [see Corp. Code § 1300(b) (definition)] at the stated price, unless the shares lose their status as dissenting shares [Corp. Code § 1301(a); see Corp. Code § 1309 (loss of status)].

c. Contains brief description of procedure for shareholder to follow in order to exercise rights [see § 11C.150 et seq.]; and

d. Contains copy of Corp. Code §§ 1300-1304.

3. Mail notice to each shareholder entitled to vote on reorganization within 10 days after principal terms of proposed merger have been approved by outstanding shares.

4. For each shareholder that complies with procedures to exercise rights [see Corp. Code §§ 1301, 1302; see also § 11C.151], instruct corporation to either:

a. Purchase dissenting shares at fair market value, plus interest at legal rate on judgments, within later of following [Corp. Code § 1303]:

NOTE:

However, the corporation may not purchase the shares unless it is able to pass the balance sheet tests required to make a distribution to its shareholders [Corp. Code §§ 1303(b), 1306; see Corp. Code § 500(a); see also § 11C.151[4][a]]. If the corporation is unable to make the purchase, the dissenting shareholder becomes a creditor of the corporation [Corp. Code § 1306; see § 11C.151[4][b]]. The distribution restrictions set forth in Corp. Code § 500 do not apply to a corporation licensed as a broker-dealer [see Corp. Code §§ 25210-25220] if the corporation, immediately after giving effect to any distribution, is in compliance with the net capital rules of the Commissioner of Corporations [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.216.12] and the Securities and Exchange Commission [Corp. Code § 500(c); see 17 C.F.R. § 240.15c3-1].

(1) 30 days after amount of fair market value has been agreed on; or

(2) 30 days after any statutory or contractual conditions to reorganization are satisfied.

b. Refuse to purchase shares, based on [Corp. Code § 1304(a)]:

(1) Denial by corporation of dissenting share status [see § 11C.150]; or

(2) Failure of corporation and shareholder to agree on fair market value of shares.

5. If corporation refuses purchase of shares [see (4)(b), above], advise corporation that it may [Corp. Code § 1304(a)]:

NOTE:

When the corporation refuses to purchase a shareholder's purportedly dissenting shares, either the shareholder or the corporation may take the following actions [Corp. Code § 1304(a)]. The corporation may choose not to take any action, thus forcing the shareholder to attempt to enforce payment.

a. File complaint to determine disputed issues [see § 11C.152[1]].

b. File intervention in existing action pending to determine disputed issues [see § 11C.152[2]].

1. Draft officers' certificate for each constituent corporation to merger, stating all of following [Corp. Code § 1103]:

NOTE:
An "officers' certificate" is a certificate that is signed and verified by specified corporate officers [Corp. Code § 173; see (2), below].

a. Total number of outstanding shares of each class entitled to vote on merger.

b. Either of following:
(1) That principal terms of merger agreement in attached form were approved by that corporation by vote of number of shares of each class that equaled or exceeded vote required, specifying [see § 11C.210]:
(a) Each class entitled to vote.

(b) Percentage vote required of each class; or

(2) That merger was entitled under law to be approved [see Corp. Code § 1201] and was approved by board of directors alone [Corp. Code § 1103; see § 11C.212].

NOTE:
As a practical matter, if the board alone is entitled to approve the merger agreement [Corp. Code § 1201; see § 11C.103[1]], the officers' certificate should specify the circumstances that permitted the board to do so [see § 11C.211].

NOTE:

The merger, and any amendment of the articles contained in the merger agreement, ordinarily will become effective on filing the agreement and the officers' certificate with the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 1103]. The corporation, however, may request a later filing date [see Corp. Code § 110]. For a discussion of the effect of perfecting a merger, see § 11C.22[9]. 1. File each of following with Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 1103]:

Scope

NOTE: This guide should be used only for a merger of a domestic corporation owning at least 90 percent of each class of outstanding shares of one or more domestic or foreign corporations with that subsidiary (or those subsidiaries) [Corp. Code § 1110(a), (b); see § 11C.100[3]]. However, a foreign subsidiary corporation may not be merged into a parent domestic corporation unless the laws of its place of incorporation permit such a merger [Corp. Code § 1110(g); see § 11C.101[2]]. A "domestic" corporation is a corporation formed under California law [Corp. Code § 167]. A "foreign" corporation is any corporation other than a domestic corporation [Corp. Code § 171].

A foreign parent corporation may use a short-form merger if the law of its place of incorporation permits such a merger [Corp. Code § 1110(i)], and if at least one subsidiary corporation is a domestic corporation [Corp. Code § 1110(i)]. However, no filings with the Secretary of State are made for the foreign parent [Corp. Code § 1110(i); see § 11C.134[2]].

NOTE:
If a domestic corporation owns all the outstanding shares, or owns at least 90 percent of the outstanding shares of each class, of a corporation or corporations, whether foreign or domestic, subsidiaries may be merged into the parent corporation, or the parent (and other subsidiaries) may be merged into a subsidiary corporation [*Corp. (2) Board of each disappearing subsidiary approve entire resolution or plan of merger, including amount of consideration for shares not owned by parent.

c. If parent will be merged into subsidiary [Corp. Code § 1110(a), (c)], have:

(1) Board of parent corporation adopt and approve resolution or plan of merger.

(2) Board of surviving subsidiary approve the resolution or plan of merger, including pro rata conversion provision.

NOTE:
If the merger of a parent corporation into a subsidiary would otherwise constitute a merger reorganization [see Corp. Code § 181], such that the principal terms of the merger must be approved by the outstanding shares of any class of the parent [see Corp. Code § 1201(d)], the principal terms of the resolution or plan must be approved by the outstanding shares of the same class of the parent [Corp. Code § 1110(c)].

3. Have board(s) of directors adopt resolution.

NOTE:
When the parent owns less than 100 percent of the subsidiary, the parent's board must adopt the resolution of merger, and the subsidiary's board must adopt the resolution approving fairness [see P 2, above].

Scope

NOTE: This guide applies only to those shareholders who wish to sell back their shares to the corporation before a merger takes place. A shareholder required to vote on the merger transaction, or a shareholder in a short-form merger, who is dissatisfied with the proposed merger may require the corporation in which he or she holds shares to purchase those shares for cash at their fair market value [Corp. Code § 1300]. This procedure is a dissenting shareholder's exclusive remedy to attack the validity of a merger [see *Corp. § 11C.150 Evaluating Dissenting Shareholder Status

NOTE:

"Dissenting shareholder" means the recordholder of dissenting shares, and includes a transferee of record [Corp. Code § 1300(c)].

1. Confirm that shareholder is one of following with right to require corporation to purchase shares [Corp. Code § 1300(a)]:

a. Shareholder of corporation in which approval of outstanding shares is required for merger [see Corp. Code § 1201(a), (b), (e), (f); see § 11C.103]; or

b. Shareholder of subsidiary corporation in short-form merger [Corp. Code § 1110; see § 11C.130 et seq.].

2. Verify that shares in question come within all of following descriptions for classification as "dissenting shares" [Corp. Code § 1300(b)].

a. Immediately prior to merger, shares were not listed on any national securities exchange certified by Commissioner, except listed shares may qualify as dissenting shares if [Corp. Code § 1300(b)(1); see Corp. Code § 25100(o)]:

NOTE:

The purpose of the dissenting shareholder statutes is to allow shareholders whose investments have been changed without their approval to "cash out" those investments without being harmed by the change [see Leg. Comm. Comment to Corp. Code § 1300]. If a liquid market for those shares already exists, there is no need for purchase by the corporation. For further discussion of listed securities as dissenting shares, see § 11C.400.

(1) They are not readily marketable because of transfer restrictions;

(2) Corporation's notice of meeting of shareholders to act on merger fails to summarize Corporation Code provisions related to dissenting shares, including procedure for qualifying shares as such [see Corp. Code §§ 1300-1304]; or

(3) Demands for payment are filed with respect to five percent or more of outstanding shares of that class.

b. Shares were outstanding and held of record on date for determination of shareholders entitled to vote on reorganization and voted against it [Corp. Code § 1300(b)(2)].

NOTE:
When approval of the outstanding shares of a corporation is obtained by written consent of shareholders instead of by vote at a shareholders' meeting, listed shares otherwise qualified to be dissenting shares need only not have consented to the reorganization. There is no requirement that the holders of the listed shares were actually asked to sign the written consent and refused [Corp. Code § 1300(b)(2)].

c. Shares which dissenting shareholder has demanded that corporation purchase at fair market value [Corp. Code § 1300(b)(3); see Corp. Code § 1301].

d. Shares which dissenting shareholder has submitted for endorsement [Corp. Code § 1300(b)(4); see Corp. Code § 1302].

3. Advise shareholder that status as dissenting shareholder will terminate on occurrence of any of following [Corp. Code § 1309]:

NOTE:
On termination of this status, a shareholder ceases to be entitled to require the corporation to purchase his or her shares [Corp. Code § 1309].

a. Corporate abandonment of reorganization.

NOTE:
The board may abandon the proposed reorganization without further action by the shareholders, subject to any contractual rights of third parties [Corp. Code § 1201(h)].

b. Either:

(1) Transfer of shares for endorsement [see § 11C.151[2]]; or

(2) Surrender for conversion into shares of another class in accordance with articles.

c. Shareholder and corporation disagree over dissenting status of shares or purchase price of shares, without taking either of following actions within six months after notice of approval by outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 152; see also § 11C.122[2]] or notice of short-form merger [see Corp. Code §

1110(h); see also § 11C.132] was mailed to shareholder:

(1) Filing complaint [see § 11C.152[1]]; or

(2) Filing intervention [see § 11C.152[2]].

d. Shareholder withdraws demand for purchase, with corporation's consent.

NOTE:

A shareholder of dissenting shares may not withdraw a demand for payment without the corporation's consent [see Corp. Code § 1308].

NOTE:

The corporation is required to inform the shareholders of their right to require the corporation to purchase back any dissenting shares [see § 11C.150[2]] pursuant to a notice of reorganization given within 10 days after the outstanding shares have approved the reorganization [see *Corp. 1. Have shareholder make written demand on corporation that complies with all of following [Corp. Code § 1301; see § 11C.401]:

NOTE:

Once a dissenting shareholder has made a demand for payment, he or she may not withdraw the demand without the corporation's consent [Corp. Code § 1308].

a. Demands both [Corp. Code § 1301(b)]:

(1) Purchase of dissenting shares.

(2) Payment at fair market value in cash.

b. States [Corp. Code § 1301(c)]:

(1) Number and class of shares held of record by shareholder that he or she demands to be purchased; and

NOTE:
The statement of fair market value constitutes an offer by the shareholder to sell the shares at that price [Corp. Code § 1301(c)].

c. Is received by corporation or its transfer agent [Corp. Code § 1301(b)]:

NOTE:
If the demand is not received by the corporation in accordance with the following time limitations, it will not be effective for any purpose [Corp. Code § 1301(b)].

(b) Notice of effective date of short-form merger [Corp. Code § 1110; see § 11C.132].

2. Instruct shareholder to submit following to corporation's principal office (or office of any transfer agent) within 30 days after notice of approval by outstanding shares [Corp. Code § 1301(a)] or notice of effective date of short-form merger [Corp. Code § 1110] was mailed to shareholder [Corp. Code § 1302]:

NOTE:
On subsequent transfer of the dissenting shares on the corporation's books, the new certificates (or written statements for uncertificated securities) must bear a statement that the shares are dissenting shares, and the name of the original dissenting holder of the shares [Corp. Code § 1302].

a. For certificated securities, share certificates for all shares that shareholder demands that corporation purchase.

NOTE:
A "certificated security" is a share, participation, or other interest in property, an enterprise of the issuer, or an obligation of the issuer that is (1) represented by an instrument in bearer or registered form, (2) of a type commonly dealt in on securities exchanges or markets or commonly recognized in any area in which it is issued or dealt in as a medium for investment, and (3) one of a class or series, or by its terms divisible into a class or series, of shares, participations, interests, or obligations [*Corp. The share certificates will be stamped or endorsed with a statement that the shares are dissenting shares, or exchanged for certificates of appropriate denomination that are stamped or endorsed with that statement [Corp. Code § 1302].

b. For uncertificated securities, notice of number of shares that shareholder demands that corporation purchase.

NOTE:

An "uncertificated security" is a share, participation, or other interest in property or an enterprise of the issuer or an obligation of the issuer that is (1) not represented by an instrument and the transfer of which is registered on books maintained for that purpose by or on behalf of the issuer, (2) of a type commonly dealt in on securities exchanges or markets, and (3) either one of a class or series, or by its terms divisible into a class or series, of shares, participations, interests, or obligations [Corp. Code § 191.1; Com. Code § 8102(a)(18)].

3. If shareholder and corporation agree that shares are dissenting shares and agree on price of shares [see § 11C.151[1]], instruct shareholder to file any agreement fixing fair market value with corporate secretary [Corp. Code § 1303(a)].

NOTE:

The dissenting shareholder is entitled to the agreed price with interest thereon at the legal rate payable on judgments from the date of the agreement [Corp. Code § 1303(a)].

4. Regarding payment for shares, advise shareholder that [Corp. Code § 1303(b); see Corp. Code § 1306]:

a. If corporation is able to make a "distribution to its shareholders" [see Corp. Code § 166], it must pay fair market value for shares:

NOTE:

The corporation must be able to pass the "retained earnings" or "remaining assets" and other balance sheet tests before making any distribution to its shareholders [Corp. Code §§ 1303(b), 1306; see Corp. Code§ 500(a)]. For further discussion of those tests, see the Legal Background to Ch. 9, Dividends, Reacquisitions of Shares, and Assessments.

The distribution tests set forth in Corp. Code § 500 do not apply to a corporation licensed as a broker-dealer [see *Corp. NOTE:
This section applies only to the surviving corporation of a merger in which a statutory change in ownership has occurred [Rev. & Tax. Code § 64(c); see § 11C.105].

1. Prepare and file change in ownership statement [Rev. & Tax. Code § 480.1]:

a. Complete official form [see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 480.1, 480.2].

NOTE:
The appropriate form may be obtained from the district office of the State Board of Equalization for the area in which the acquired corporation's real property is located. For discussion and an example of a change in ownership statement used for the transfer of real property [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 480], see also Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements*, § 23.204*.

b. Obtain signature of either [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 480.1(c), 480.2(c)]:

(1) Officer of corporation; or

(2) Employee or agent designated in writing by board of directors to sign change in ownership statement on behalf of corporation.

c. File statement within 45 days from date of change in control with Sacramento office of State Board of Equalization [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 480.1(b), 480.2(b)].

NOTE:

A change in ownership statement also must be filed whenever the State Board of Equalization makes a written request for that statement [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 480.1(b), 480.2(b)].

2. Advise corporation that Board of Equalization will impose monetary penalty of 10 percent of taxes for [Rev. & Tax. Code § 482(b)]:

NOTE:

Rev. & Tax. Code § 64(e) establishes a procedure under which a corporation's tax return must indicate whether control was transferred or sold during the year. Changes are then reported to the State Board of Equalization. Apparently this is one source of information that is used as the basis for the issuance of a written request by the Board. By filing the statement within 45 days from the date of change in ownership, the corporation avoids incurring a penalty following a written request from the Board.

a. Failing to file statement within 45 days from earlier of:

(1) Date of change in control or change in ownership; or

(2) Date of written request by Board of Equalization.

b. Failing to file missing information after filing incomplete statement and receiving second request for information.

CHAPTER 11C MERGERS
PART IV. FORMS
A. Merger Reorganizations Between Unrelated Corporations

5-11C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11C.200

§ 11C.200 Merger Agreement--General Form

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a general agreement for the merger of two corporations pursuant to the merger and reorganization requirements of California's General Corporation Law. The basic document to a merger of corporations is the agreement of merger [Cavitch, Business Organizations with Tax Planning, Ch. 162, Mergers, § 162.02[1] (Matthew Bender)]. The first step required by the General Corporation Law in California to effectuate a merger of two or more corporations is for the board of directors of each corporation to approve an agreement of merger [Corp. Code § 1101]. This form assumes that both the disappearing corporation and the surviving corporation have par value stock. In the event that one or both of the corporations does not have par value stock, the form should be modified accordingly. For a longer merger agreement containing a specific plan of reorganization for the merged corporations, see § 11C.201.

[b] Parties to Agreement

The corporations constituent to the merger must be parties to the merger agreement; other parties, including a parent corporation [see Corp. Code § 1200], may be parties to the agreement [Corp. Code § 1101]. Each corporation must sign the agreement by its board chairman or president, or a vice-president and secretary or an assistant secretary acting on behalf of the corporation [see Corp. Code § 1102].

[c] Contents of Merger Agreement

A merger agreement under California law must state the following [Corp. Code § 1101]:

- The terms and conditions of the merger.

- The amendments, if any, to be made by the merger to the articles of incorporation of the surviving corporation.

- The name of each constituent corporation to the merger and which constituent corporation is to be the surviving corporation.

- The manner of converting shares of each corporation into shares of the surviving corporation.

For a more detailed discussion of these requirements, see § 11C.22[1], [3]. For resolutions of the boards of directors of the surviving corporation and the disappearing corporation approving the merger agreement, see §§ 11C.202, 11C.203. For a discussion of the manner in which the merger agreement must be approved by each corporation, see § 11C.22[4], [5].

The merger agreement must also state the place of incorporation for each constituent corporation [Corp. Code § 1101].

Any of the terms of a merger agreement pursuant to Corp. Code § 1101 may be made dependent on facts ascertainable outside that agreement, if the manner in which those facts will operate on the agreement terms is clearly and expressly set forth [Corp. Code § 109.5]. For further discussion, see § 11C.22[2].

[d] Amendment of Articles

Although amendment of the articles of the survivor may not be necessary in some cases, it is required whenever the merger results in a change that ordinarily would require an amendment to the articles [see Ch. 10, Amendment of Articles]. Thus, for example, substantial amendment would be required if a new class of stock or additional authorized stock for issuance in the exchange were necessary [see § 6.01 of this form].

PART IV. FORMS
A. Merger Reorganizations Between Unrelated Corporations

5-11C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11C.201

§ 11C.201 Merger Agreement With Specific Detailed Plan of Reorganization

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a merger agreement, the basic document to a merger. It contains longer and more detailed provisions than the form in § 11C.200. The purpose of the detailed provisions in this form is to focus on the specific plan of reorganization to be effected by the merger, and the merger date proposed by the parties. Setting forth the details contained in this form may be valuable in seeking compliance with the income tax provisions defining a statutory merger as a form of tax-free "reorganization" [see § 11C.26].

The constituent corporations must be parties to the merger agreement. Other persons, including a parent party corporation [see Corp. Code § 1200] may be parties to the agreement [Corp. Code § 1101]. For further discussion, see the comment to § 11C.200, which is also applicable to this form.

[b] Execution of Agreement

Each corporation must sign the agreement. The corporation's signature may be by its board chairman, president or a vice-president and secretary or an assistant secretary acting on behalf of the corporation [see Corp. Code § 1102].

5-11C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11C.202

§ 11C.202 Resolution of Board of Directors of Surviving Corporation Approving Merger Agreement and Calling Special Shareholders' Meeting to Approve Merger

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a resolution that may be adopted by the board of directors of the surviving corporation to a proposed merger to approve the merger agreement. The resolution approves the merger agreement, calls a special meeting of the corporation's shareholders to approve the merger, and authorizes and directs the filing of an application for approval of the merger under the Corporate Securities Law of 1968. It may be used to approve the merger agreements set forth in §§ 11C.200 and 11C.201. The application to the California Corporations Commissioner for the permit approving the merger is set forth in § 11C.204.

A resolution to be passed by the board of directors of the disappearing corporation approving the merger agreement and calling a special meeting of that corporation's shareholders to approve the merger is set forth in § 11C.203.

For a discussion of the approval of a proposed merger required by the boards of directors and shareholders of the various corporations that are parties to the merger, see §§ 11C.22[4]-[6]. For a discussion of the method in which the merger agreement should be executed by corporate officers, see § 11C.22[8].

For general information relevant to the subject of corporate resolutions generally, see Ch. 5, Directors Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions .

[b] Purpose of Resolution

The first step specified by California's General Corporation Law for effectuating a merger is approval of a merger agreement by the boards of directors of the corporations wishing to merge [Corp. Code § 1101; see discussion in § 11C.22[4]]. The approval of the merger agreement by the board of directors of a constituent corporation to a merger may be given either before or after the outstanding shares of each class of the corporation have approved the principal terms of the proposed merger [Corp. Code § 1201(g)]. Traditionally and as a practical matter, however, the merger agreement is almost always approved by the board of directors of at least the surviving corporation to the proposed merger before it is submitted to the shareholders of that or any other constituent corporation to the merger for approval.

The Corporate Securities Law of 1968 requires that either a definitive permit or a negotiating permit for the shares that must be issued and transferred in the merger be obtained from the California Commissioner of Corporations before shareholder approval of the merger may be solicited [Corp. Code §§ 25103(a), 25120-25122]. An application for such a permit must be filed by the surviving corporation to the proposed merger [Corp. Code §§ 25120, 25121; 10 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 260.110, 260.121, 260.140.63; see § 11C.204]. In turn, the filing of an application for such a permit normally must be authorized by the board of directors of the corporation for which it is filed.

This resolution authorizes the filing of an application for a permit from the California Corporations Commissioner approving the merger. It also calls a special meeting of the corporation's shareholders for the purpose of approving, as required by statute, the principal terms of the proposed merger [Corp. Code § 1201(a)]. The date of the proposed special shareholders' meeting should allow the Commissioner's staff time to examine the application for a permit and issue the permit.

[c] Call of Special Shareholders' Meeting--Notice and Call

With a few exceptions [see § 11C.22[6]], the principal terms of a proposed merger must be approved by the outstanding shares of each class of each corporation that is a party to the merger [see § 11C.22[5]]. Approval may be obtained either by vote of all outstanding shares at a meeting specially called for that purpose, or by obtaining the written consent to the merger of shareholders holding a majority of the shares of each class of the corporation [Corp. Code § 603(a)]. The resolution contained in this form proposes to obtain the required approval by the corporation's outstanding shares by a vote of the shares at a special shareholders' meeting called for that purpose. It therefore calls a special shareholders' meeting to approve the merger and sets a record date for that meeting.

Special meetings of the shareholders may be called by the board of directors, the chairman of the board of directors, or president of a corporation [Corp. Code § 600(d)]. They may also be called by holders of shares entitled to cast not less than 10 percent of the votes at the meeting and any additional persons specified in the corporation's bylaws or articles of incorporation [Corp. Code § 600(d)].

Notice of any meeting of shareholders at which the shareholders are required or permitted to take any action must be given to each shareholder entitled to vote at the meeting not more than 60 nor less than 10 days (or, if sent by third-class mail, 30 days) before the date of the meeting [Corp. Code § 601(a)]. The notice must be in writing and must state the place, date, and hour of the meeting. The notice must also state any means of electronic transmission by and to the corporation [see Corp. Code §§ 20, 21] or electronic video screen communication by which shareholders may participate in the meeting [Corp. Code § 601(a)]. In the case of a special meeting, the notice must state the general nature of the business to be transacted at the meeting. No other business than that described in the notice may be transacted at the meeting [Corp. Code § 601(a)]. Even when the notice is of the annual meeting of shareholders, approval by the outstanding shares of each class of the corporation of the principal terms of a merger at the meeting would be invalid unless the general nature of the proposal and the fact it would be presented for approval at the meeting were stated in the notice [Corp. Code § 601(f)].

The required notice of a shareholders' meeting must be given to each shareholder entitled to vote at the meeting either personally; by electronic transmission by the corporation [see Corp. Code § 20]; by first-class mail; in the case of a corporation with outstanding shares held of record by 500 or more persons [see Corp. Code § 605], on the record date for the shareholders' meeting, by third-class mail; or other means of written communication [Corp. Code § 601(a), (b)]. In the case of a proposed merger, this means the notice ordinarily must be given to every shareholder of the corporation because the merger must be approved by majority vote of the outstanding shares of each class regardless of limitation on their voting rights [see discussion in § 11C.22[4], [5]]. When the notice is given by mail or other means of written communication, it must be addressed to each shareholder at the address of the shareholder appearing on the books of the corporation or given by the shareholder to the corporation for purpose of notice [Corp. Code § 601(b)].

For further discussion of shareholder notices and meetings, see Ch. 8A, Shareholders' Meetings, Voting, and Agreements .

[d] Fixing Record Date for Meeting

In order that a corporation may determine the shareholders entitled to notice of any meeting and the shareholders entitled to vote at the meeting, the board of directors of a corporation may fix a record date for the meeting [Corp. Code § 701(a)]. Except as otherwise provided by the corporation's articles of incorporation or by agreement, only those shareholders who are shareholders "at the close of business" on the record date are entitled to notice of and to vote at the meeting [Corp. Code § 701(d)]. A transferee of shares after the record date may have a right against his or her transferor to obtain the transferor's proxy to vote the transferred shares at the meeting but, without the proxy, he or she has no right, as against the corporation, to vote the transferred shares [Corp. Code § 701(d)].

The record date fixed by the corporation's board of directors must not be more than 60 nor less than 10 days prior to the date of the shareholders' meeting [Corp. Code § 701(a)]. When the corporation's board of directors fails to fix in advance a record date for a shareholders' meeting, the record date for the meeting is fixed automatically by statute in California. If no record date is fixed by the board of directors, the record date for determining shareholders entitled to notice of or to vote at a meeting of shareholders will be the close of business on the business day next preceding the day on which notice is given [Corp. Code § 701(b)(1)]. If notice of the meeting is waived, the record date is the close of business on the business day next preceding the day on which the meeting is held [Corp. Code § 701(b)(1)]. When given by mail, notice of a meeting of shareholders is deemed given when deposited in the mail [Corp. Code § 601(b)].

This resolution specifically fixes the close of business on a specified day as the record date for the shareholders meeting called by it. That date should be not more than 60 nor less than 10 days before the date set for the meeting [Corp. Code § 701(a)].

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a resolution that may be adopted by the board of directors of a disappearing corporation to a proposed merger approving the merger agreement. For a resolution that may be adopted by the board of directors of the surviving corporation to a proposed merger approving the merger agreement, see § 11C.202. Both resolutions approve the proposed merger agreement and call a special shareholders' meeting to approve the principal terms of the merger. They both fix a record date for the special shareholders' meeting. This resolution, however, does not direct and authorize the filing of an application with the Corporations Commissioner for a permit approving the merger. That action is normally taken by the surviving corporation and therefore is provided for in the resolution contained in § 11C.202 rather than this form.

For further discussion, see § 11C.202. The discussion in that section is equally applicable to the resolution contained in this form.

5-11C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11C.204

§ 11C.204 Application to Commissioner of Corporations for Permit Qualifying Securities to Be Issued in Merger or Exchange of Shares for Assets of Another Corporation

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form sets forth the portion of the required application for a permit relevant to mergers and exchanges of shares for assets. The Corporate Securities Law of 1968 makes it unlawful to offer or sell in California any securities issued in connection with a merger or an exchange of shares for assets of another corporation unless the securities have been qualified by the California Commissioner of Corporations or are not subject to qualification [Corp. Code § 25120]. The securities are qualified by a permit issued by the Commissioner [Corp. Code § 25121]. The permit is issued only on application of the corporation that is to issue the securities, which in a merger is the surviving corporation [Corp. Code § 25121].

In addition to the material set forth in this form, a facing page is required for the application for a permit. An official printed form "facing page" is issued by the California Commissioner of Corporations and most often used on an application for a permit [see Ch. 6H, Qualification of Securities, § 6H.200].

[b] Transactions Covered by Form

Shares that are to be issued in exchange for shares held by shareholders of another corporation (an "exchange reorganization" under Corp. Code § 181) are treated differently under the Corporate Securities Law of 1968 than shares that are to be issued as part of a statutory merger or in exchange for the assets of another corporation.

Shares that are to be issued as part of a statutory merger or in exchange for the assets of another corporation are considered as being issued in a "recapitalization" or "reorganization" transaction [Corp. Code § 25120]. Thus, they are subject to special qualification requirements, and the exemptions therefrom, applicable only to "recapitalization" and "reorganization" transactions [Corp. Code §§ 25103, 25120, 25121, 25133]. Shares that are to be issued in an "exchange reorganization" [see Corp. Code § 181] are treated like an original issuance of shares and not a recapitalization or reorganization transaction by the Corporate Securities Law of 1968 [Marsh & Volk, Practice Under the California Securities Laws, § 7.06[5][c] (Matthew Bender)]. Shares that are to be issued in exchange for shares of another corporation, in other words, must be qualified in the same manner as shares that are to be issued for cash [Marsh & Volk, Practice Under the California Securities Laws, Ch. 7, Recapitalizations and Reorganizations, § 7.06[5][c] (Matthew Bender)].

The material set forth in this form is that required on an application for qualification of securities to be issued in a recapitalization or reorganization transaction [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.121.1]. Thus, it is not applicable to and should not be included in an application for a permit qualifying shares that are to be issued in exchange for shares of another corporation. The material that must be included in an application for qualification of shares that are to be issued in exchange for shares of another corporation is the same as the material that must be included in an application for qualification of shares that are to be issued for cash. That material is set forth generally in Ch. 6H, Qualification of Securities.

Because the information required to qualify shares to be issued in a statutory merger and the information required to qualify shares to be issued in exchange for the assets of another corporation is the same, this form may be used for either type of transaction. It is set forth here and is not repeated in Ch. 11E, Acquisition of Assets for Shares.

[c] General Requirements

The management of each constituent corporation may negotiate and agree to the terms and conditions of a proposed merger, or a proposed acquisition of assets for securities prior to general solicitation of shareholder approval without obtaining a permit from the Commissioner of Corporations [Corp. Code § 25103(a)]. However, if the securities to be issued pursuant to the proposed merger or acquisition are to be received by persons having California addresses on the records of the corporation, and those persons hold 25 percent or more of the outstanding shares of any class, any of which are to be exchanged, it is unlawful for the issuing corporation to sell the securities, or even to offer them by soliciting shareholder approval of the merger or acquisition, without first qualifying the securities by obtaining a permit from the Commissioner of Corporations [Corp. Code §§ 25103(c), 25120, 25121]. Determination of whether 25 percent of the shares are held by persons having California addresses must be made as of the record date for determining shareholders entitled to vote on the merger or acquisition [Corp. Code § 25103(d); see § 11C.202]. An additional exemption from the qualification by permit requirement exists for exchanges incident to mergers, consolidations, or sales of corporate assets in consideration of the issuance of stock that satisfy the requirements of the limited offering exemption, determined without regard to Corp. Code § 25102(f)(3), which requires representation that purchaser is purchasing for own account, not for resale [Corp. Code § 25103(h)]. The requirements of this exemption are set forth in § 11C.104.

[d] Contents of Application

The application for qualification of a "recapitalization and reorganization" transaction by permit must contain both a facing page [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.110] and the information required by the Commissioner's regulations [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.121]. The facing page contains the first seven items of the application. The official printed application is reproduced in Ch. 6H, Qualification of Securities, § 6H.200.

This form sets forth all of a required application for qualification of a "reorganization" except the facing page. It begins with item 8 of the application and must be typed since the Commissioner's official form, Form 260.121 [see Ch. 6H, Qualification of Securities, § 6H.250], is merely a printed set of instructions for the information required in this part of the application. The item numbers and headings must be identical to those set forth in the instructions. If the information requested by any item is inapplicable, the item should be listed by number followed by the word "Inapplicable" [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.121]. The application must be signed and verified in the manner prescribed by the Code of Civil Procedure for the verification of pleadings [Corp. Code § 25160; see Ch. 6H, Qualification of Securities, § 6H.245].

[e] Requirements for Issuance of Permit

The Commissioner requires that exchange of securities in the merger fairly reflect the relative values of the corporations that are parties to the plan of reorganization [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.61]. The Commissioner normally will not issue a negotiating permit in connection with a merger since any negotiations prior to solicitation of shareholder approval are exempt under Corp. Code § 25103(a) [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.63]. The definitive permit, however, may be conditioned upon obtaining an affirmative vote of a specified percentage of outstanding shares held by persons other than those who have a conflict of interest in connection with the adoption of the plan of merger [10 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 260.140.63, 260.140.6]. In an extraordinary case, the Commissioner may delay the issuance of a definitive permit until after the shareholders' vote, in which case, the Commissioner will issue a negotiating permit (with a separate application therefor and without payment of an additional fee) in order to qualify the solicitation of shareholder approval [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.63].

[f] Supplemental Filings and Incorporation by Reference

Any required information or exhibits not contained in the application when first filed may be submitted in a verified supplemental filing, at any time prior to final action on the application by the Commissioner [Corp. Code § 25160]. Any documents filed within four years prior to the filing of the application, or otherwise available in the files of the Commissioner, may be incorporated by reference in the application to the extent that the documents are currently accurate [Corp. Code § 25161].

[g] Public Hearings

The Commissioner is expressly authorized to hold a hearing to determine the fairness of the terms and conditions of any proposed transaction involving the issuance of securities in exchange for bona fide outstanding securities, claims, or property rights. When these hearings are held, all persons to whom it is proposed to issue securities have a right to appear [Corp. Code § 25142]. Based on current and past practices of the Commissioner, it may be anticipated that hearings will be held in connection with most mergers and acquisitions if stock in one or more of the corporations is publicly held [Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Laws, Ch. 21, Corporate Securities (Matthew Bender)].

[h] Collateral Jurisdiction

If a substantial number of the shareholders to whom the securities are to be issued reside in a jurisdiction other than California, it is possible that the proposed transaction comes within the scope of the securities law of that jurisdiction. In order to avoid future insurmountable complications, the possibility of collateral regulation should be determined by referring to the applicable law of any jurisdiction possibly involved in light of the particular facts of the proposed transaction.

[i] Fees

The fee for filing an application for this type of permit is $200, plus one-fifth of one percent of the value as alleged in the application, or the actual value as determined by the Commissioner, to be received in exchange for the securities up to a maximum aggregate fee of $2,500 [Corp. Code § 25608(h)(2)]. The fee should be paid at the time of the filing of the application since qualification cannot become effective until the fee has been paid [Corp. Code § 25615].

CHAPTER 11C MERGERS
PART IV. FORMS
A. Merger Reorganizations Between Unrelated Corporations

5-11C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11C.205

§ 11C.205 Notice to Shareholders of Special Meeting of Shareholders to Consider and Vote on Proposed Merger

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice to the shareholders of a special meeting regarding a proposed merger. The principal terms of a proposed merger must be approved by the outstanding shares of each class of each corporation a party to the proposed merger [Corp. Code §§ 1200, 1201; see § 11C.22[4], [5]]. The notice must state the place, date, and hour of the meeting, any means of electronic transmission by and to the corporation [see Corp. Code §§ 20, 21] or electronic video screen communication by which shareholders may participate in the meeting, and the general nature of the business to be transacted at the meeting [Corp. Code § 601(a)]. No business except that specified in the notice may be transacted at the special shareholders' meeting [Corp. Code § 601(a)]. If a proposed merger is approved at an annual meeting of shareholders, the approval will be invalid unless the notice given to shareholders of the meeting stated the general nature of the proposal and that it would be considered at the meeting [Corp. Code § 601(a)].

[b] Manner of Giving Notice of Special Meeting

Written notice of a shareholders' meeting must be given to each shareholder entitled to vote at the meeting [Corp. Code § 601(a)]. This means that when a proposed merger is to be voted on at a meeting, notice must be given to every corporate shareholder. The principal terms of a merger must be approved by the majority affirmative vote of the outstanding shares of each class of shares of the corporation, regardless of any limitations on their voting rights [Corp. Code §§ 117, 1201(a); see discussion in § 11C.22[4], [5]].

Notice of a shareholders' meeting must be given personally, or by electronic transmission by the corporation [see Corp. Code § 20], or by first-class mail, or by other means of written communication to each shareholder entitled to vote at the meeting [Corp. Code § 601(a), (b)]. The notice must be given no less than 10 or more than 60 days before the date of the meeting [Corp. Code § 601(a)]. If the corporation has 500 or more shareholders of record (as determined under Corp. Code § 605) as of the record date for the meeting, notice may be sent by third-class rather than first-class mail. However, in that case, notice must be sent not less than 30 days before the meeting [Corp. Code § 601(a), (b)]. If the notice is given by mail or other means of written communication, it must be addressed to a shareholder at the address of the shareholder appearing on the books of the corporation or given to the corporation by the shareholder for the purpose of notice [Corp. Code § 601(b)]. The notice will be deemed to have been given when delivered personally, sent by electronic transmission by the corporation, deposited in the mail, or sent by other means of written communication [Corp. Code § 601(b)].

If no address for a shareholder appears on the books of the corporation or has been given by the shareholder to the corporation, the notice may be mailed to the shareholder at the place where the principal executive office of the corporation is located [Corp. Code § 601(b)]. As an alternative in that case, the notice may be given to the shareholder by publication at least once in a newspaper of general circulation in the county in which the principal executive office of the corporation is located [Corp. Code § 601(b)].

An affidavit of mailing or electronic transmission by the corporation of any notice executed by the secretary, assistant secretary, or transfer agent of a corporation is prima facie evidence of the giving of the notice [Corp. Code § 601(b)].

[c] Report by Independent Appraiser

If a tender offer (including a "share exchange tender offer" [see Corp. Code § 183.5 (definition)] or a written proposal for approval of a "reorganization" [see Corp. Code §§ 181(a), 1200] or a sale of assets [see Corp. Code § 1001(a)] is made to some or all of a corporation's shareholders by a party to the transaction who has control of or a financial interest in that corporation (an "interested party proposal"), an affirmative opinion in writing regarding the fairness of the consideration to the shareholders of the corporation must be provided to the shareholders or the corporation. This requirement does not apply if the target corporation does not have shares held of record by 100 or more persons [see Corp. Code § 605 (determination of shareholders of record)], or if the transaction has been qualified pursuant to Corp. Code § 25113 or Corp. Code § 25121 (qualification of issuer transaction by permit or qualification of recapitalization or reorganization by permit), and no stop order [see Corp. Code §§ 25140, 25143(a)] is in effect regarding that qualification [Corp. Code § 1203(a)]. If another person makes a subsequent tender offer or written proposal at least 10 days before the date for acceptance of the tendered shares or the vote or notice of shareholder approval on the interested party proposal, additional shareholder notification and withdrawal requirements apply [see Corp. Code § 1203(b)]. For further discussion of this requirement and related requirements when such a proposal is pending at the same time as another proposal for a reorganization [see Corp. Code § 181 (definition)] or a short-form merger [see Corp. Code § 1203(b)], see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues .

CHAPTER 11C MERGERS
PART IV. FORMS
A. Merger Reorganizations Between Unrelated Corporations

5-11C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11C.206

§ 11C.206 Proxy Statement Soliciting Proxies for Shareholders' Meeting Called to Approve Merger

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a proxy statement soliciting proxies for a shareholders meeting called to approve a merger. The rules of the Commissioner of Corporations do not specify the contents of proxy statements soliciting proxies for shareholders' meetings called to approve mergers. However, Section 14(a) of the Federal Securities Exchange Act of 1934 [15 U.S.C. § 78n(a) makes it unlawful for any person to solicit any proxy in respect to any security, other than an exempted security, registered on any national securities exchange in contravention of SEC rules and regulations. Schedule 14A of the General Rules and Regulations, issued by the Securities and Exchange Commission under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 [17 C.F.R. § 240.14a-101], specifies in detail what must be contained in a proxy statement soliciting holders of securities subject to the Act. Some of the required information is of general applicability, and provisions based on these general requirements are contained in this form with citations to the relevant Schedule 14A provisions. These general provisions may also be used in connection with securities not registered on any national exchange.

Schedule 14A also contains many detailed provisions that require extensive information tailored to the particular corporations involved in a specific merger. Because this information is so specific to each situation, no attempt has been made to draft provisions containing that information. Instead, references to these complex regulations are provided, and the attorney must consult the applicable regulations in order to complete this form. These matters should be set forth in simple narrative terms or, when required by the regulations, in appropriate tables.

In addition to the information provided in this form, Item 15 of Schedule 14A requires the following information: the financial statements required by Regulation S-X [see 17 C.F.R. §§ 210.3-01-210.3A-08], and the supplementary financial information requested by Item 12 of Regulation S-K [17 C.F.R. §§ 229.302-229.304].

The Commissioner requires that a preliminary copy of proxy material to be used to solicit the vote or consents of security holders accompany an application for a recapitalization or reorganization permit. These materials must be supplemented by amended and final copies of the proxies [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.121]. No materials designed to solicit proxies or consents may be distributed without the prior filing of the proxy materials and the issuance of a permit [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.60]. Although the Commissioner's rules do not specify the contents of proxies, untrue statements of material facts or omissions of material facts necessary to avoid misleading the security holders are clearly prohibited [Corp. Code § 25401].

[b] Smaller Reporting Companies

Smaller reporting companies [see 17 C.F.R. § 240.12b-2 (definition)] need not provide all of the information that other issuers must state in proxy statements under Schedule 14A. First, smaller reporting companies need not disclose all of the nonfinancial information that is required of other companies under Schedule 14A [see 17 C.F.R. § 240.14a-101 (introductory note F); compare 17 C.F.R. § 228.10 et seq. (Regulation S-B applicable to small business issuers) with 17 C.F.R. § 229.10 et seq. (Regulation S-K applicable to other issuers)]. Second, smaller reporting companies are required to provide less financial information than is required of other companies [see 17 C.F.R. § 240.14a-101 (introductory note F); compare 17 C.F.R. § 228.310 (Regulation S-B financial statement requirements applicable to smaller reporting companies) with 17 C.F.R. § 240.14a-101 (Schedule 14A)]. A smaller reporting company should modify the provisions of this form accordingly.

Voting of Proxies

The shares represented by all properly executed proxies received by management in time for the meeting will be voted. If no specification is made, those shares will be voted in favor of approval of the proposal.

No business can be considered at the meeting other than the proposal set forth in the accompanying notice of special meeting of shareholders.

Revocability of Proxies

[17 C.F.R. § 240.14a-101, Item 2]

The giving of a proxy does not preclude the right of the person giving the proxy to vote in person at the meeting should he or she so desire, because a proxy may be revoked at any time before its exercise either by delivery to this corporation of a written revocation of the proxy, or by a duly executed proxy bearing a later date, or by action of the shareholder taken at the meeting.

Only shareholders of record at the close of business on _____[record date] will be entitled to vote at the meeting. [Add if Schedule 14A is applicable, action is to be taken with respect to the election of directors, and the persons solicited have cumulative voting rights: Shareholders of all classes have cumulative voting rights with respect to the election of directors and may exercise those rights either in person or by proxy. There has not been a change in the control of this corporation to the knowledge of the persons on whose behalf this solicitation is made since the beginning of the last fiscal year of this corporation.

BUSINESS TO BE TRANSACTED AT THE MEETING

Consideration of Proposed Merger

The matter of business to be brought before the meeting will be a proposal to approve the principal terms of an Agreement of Merger already approved in separate meetings by the Boards of Directors of this corporation and _____[name of other corporation], a California corporation, herein called "_____" [short title based on corporate name, e.g., "Eastern," "National," etc.]. By the terms of that agreement _____[short title of disappearing corporation] will be merged into _____[short title of surviving corporation]. The terms of that Agreement of Merger, information with respect to both corporations, and other matters related to the proposed merger are discussed elsewhere in this Proxy Statement. A copy of the Agreement of Merger is also attached and marked Exhibit _____, and any summary of its terms contained in this Proxy Statement is qualified by reference to the document itself. [1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a proxy authorizing a vote for or against a proposed merger. It is drafted to conform with the requirements set forth in 17 C.F.R. § 240.14a-4 [see [b], below]. For a proxy statement that solicits proxies for a shareholders' meeting called to approve a merger, see § 11C.206.

[b] Proxy Requirements

Rule 14A-4 of the General Rules and Regulations issued by the Securities and Exchange Commission [17 C.F.R. § 240.14a-4] under Section 14a of the Federal Securities Exchange Act of 1934 [15 U.S.C. § 78n(a)] specifies the requirements for a proxy that is to be used in respect to any security, other than an exempted security, registered on any national securities exchange. Among other things, such a proxy must [17 C.F.R. § 240.14a-4(a)]

- Indicate in boldface type whether or not the proxy is solicited on behalf of the corporation's board of directors, or, if provided other than by a majority of the board, must indicate in boldface type on whose behalf the solicitation is made (every individual member of the soliciting group need not be identified [see 45 Fed. Reg. 76976]);

- Provide a specifically designated blank space for its date; and

- Identify clearly and impartially each matter intended to be acted on with the proxy whether or not related to or conditioned on the approval of other matters, and whether proposed by the corporation or by security holders.

No reference need be made to proposals as to which discretionary authority is conferred [17 C.F.R. § 240.14a-4(a)]. Electronic filers must satisfy the requirements set forth in 17 C.F.R. § 240.14a-6 with respect to the form of proxy by filing the form of proxy as an appendix at the end of the proxy statement. Forms of proxy should not be filed as exhibits or separate documents within an electronic submission [17 C.F.R. § 240.14a-4(a)(3), Note].

The proxy must provide means whereby the person solicited is afforded an opportunity to specify by boxes a choice between approval or disapproval of, or abstention, with respect to each separate matter referred to in the proxy intended to be acted on, other than elections to office. A proxy may confer discretionary authority with respect to matters as to which a choice is not specified by the security holder, provided that the form of proxy states in boldface type how it is intended to vote the shares represented by the proxy in each such case [17 C.F.R. § 240.14a-4(b)(1)]. Such a proxy may confer discretionary voting power in the proxy holder to vote only on matters incident to the conduct of the meeting and certain other very limited matters specified in the regulations [see 17 C.F.R. § 240.14a-4(c)]. The proxy should also state that the shares represented by it will be voted in accordance with the choice specified in the ballot portion of the proxy by the shareholder and if no choice is indicated that the shares will be voted for the merger [17 C.F.R. § 240.14a-4(e)].

5-11C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11C.208

§ 11C.208 Resolution of Shareholders Approving Principal Terms of Merger

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a simple resolution that may be introduced at a shareholders' meeting called for the purpose of approving a merger. The principal terms of a merger must, with a few exceptions, be approved by the outstanding shares of each class of each corporation that is a party to the merger [see § 11C.22[4], [5]]. The resolution will be effective only when it is passed by the affirmative vote of a majority of the outstanding shares of each class of shares, regardless of voting rights, issued by the corporation.

For further discussion of the vote of shareholders, or written consent of shareholders, required for a merger, see § 11C.22[5]. For the situations in which shareholder approval, or the approval of a particular class of shareholders, is not required for a merger, see § 11C.22[6].

5-11C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11C.209

§ 11C.209 Resolution of Board of Directors of Constituent Corporation Abandoning Merger

[1] Comment

[a] Authority to Abandon

This form is a resolution of the board of directors of a constituent corporation abandoning a merger. The General Corporation Law provides that the directors of a corporation may, in their discretion, abandon a merger at any time before the merger has been completed, subject to the rights of third parties, without further action or approval by the shareholders of the corporation [Corp. Code § 1105]. The merger is not completed until the merger agreement, with attached officers' certificates of each constituent corporation, is accepted for filing by the Secretary of State [see § 11C.22[9]]. Consequently, until acceptance for filing, either party may abandon the merger [see § 11C.22[8]].

[b] Circumstances for Abandonment

Circumstances or grounds for abandonment are not required. The merger agreement is not recognized as effective until accepted for filing [see Corp. Code §§ 1103, 1105] and, therefore, neither party needs any legally prescribed ground or circumstance for its action. The directors of either corporation may act in their discretion [Corp. Code § 1105]. Obviously, a party reverses course and abandons a merger because there has been a material adverse change in the position, financial or otherwise, of the other party, or there has been a violation of an understanding the parties had or the like. It is usually not diplomatic or otherwise desirable to publicize that reason.

§ 11C.210 Officers' Certificate of Constituent Corporation Perfecting Merger--Certificate for Corporation Whose Shares Have Approved Merger

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a basic officers' certificate to be executed by officers of a corporation whose shareholders have approved the merger agreement in the percentages required by the General Corporation Law of California. After a merger has been approved by the board of directors and outstanding shares of each class of each corporation that is a party to the merger, a copy of the merger agreement must be filed with the California Secretary of State to perfect the merger [Corp. Code § 1103]. An officers' certificate for each constituent corporation to the merger must be attached to the merger agreement filed with the Secretary of State. The certificate must state the matters required by statute showing the merger was approved by the outstanding shares of that corporation [Corp. Code § 1103; see § 11C.22[9]]. The officers' certificate must be signed and verified, either by affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury by (1) the chairman of the board of directors, president, or a vice-president of the corporation, and (2) the secretary, chief financial officer, or an assistant secretary or assistant treasurer of the corporation [Corp. Code §§ 173, 193].

For an officers' certificate to be executed by officers of a corporation whose shareholders were not required to approve the merger agreement under provisions of the General Corporation Law, see § 11C.212. The certificate contained in either form, after being duly executed by the appropriate corporate officers, should be attached to an executed copy of the merger agreement for filing with the Secretary of State.

For further discussion of the shareholder approval of a merger required by the General Corporation Law in California, and when that shareholder approval is excused, see § 11C.22[5], [6]. [1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is an officers' certificate to be attached to the filed copy of the merger agreement for a corporation whose shareholders were not required to approve the merger. To perfect a merger, a copy of the merger agreement must be filed with the California Secretary of State. It must have attached an officers' certificate for each constituent corporation to the merger, showing that either (1) the merger was approved by the shareholders of that corporation, or (2) the merger was not required to be approved by the shareholders of the particular corporation [*Corp. § 11C.300 Resolution by Board of Directors of Parent Corporation for Short-Form Merger of Subsidiary Into Parent--Wholly Owned Subsidiary

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is the resolution required for the short-form merger of a wholly owned subsidiary into a parent corporation. A "short-form merger" is a term used in California's General Corporation Law to describe the abbreviated procedure authorized by that law for the merger of wholly owned and 90%-owned subsidiary corporations into their parent corporation [Corp. Code §§ 187, 1110]. The California General Corporation Law authorizes two types of short-form mergers: the merger of wholly owned subsidiaries and the merger of 90 percent or more owned subsidiaries. The resolutions required to effect a short-form merger of a 90 percent or more owned subsidiary into its parent corporation are set forth in §§ 11C.301, 11C.302.

California's General Corporation Law additionally provides for the short-term merger of a parent corporation into its wholly owned subsidiary [see Corp. Code § 1110(a)]. Together with the provision set forth in § 11C.302, this form can be adapted to provide for a merger of a parent corporation into its wholly owned subsidiary.

The only resolution or approval required to merge a wholly owned subsidiary into a parent corporation is a resolution by the board of directors of the parent corporation providing for the merger and providing the parent corporation assumes all the liabilities of the subsidiary [Corp. Code § 1110(a)]. The resolution, in addition, may change the name of the parent corporation to a new name which may be the same as or similar to the name of the disappearing subsidiary corporation [Corp. Code § 1110(d)].

For further discussion of the resolution required for a short-form merger of a subsidiary into its parent corporation, see § 11C.29.

§ 11C.301 Resolution by Board of Directors for Short-Form Merger of Subsidiary Into Parent Corporation--90-Percent-Owned Subsidiary

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a resolution to be adopted by the board of directors of the parent corporation and of each disappearing subsidiary for the short-form merger of a subsidiary corporation into its parent, when the parent owns less than all but at least 90 percent of the outstanding shares of each class of the subsidiary [see Corp. Code § 1110(a), (b)]. A "short-form merger" is a term used to describe the abbreviated procedure authorized by the General Corporation Law for the merger of wholly owned or at least 90-percent-owned subsidiary corporations into their parent corporation, or the merger of a parent corporation into its wholly owned or 90-percent-owned subsidiary [Corp. Code §§ 187, 1110; see Corp. Code § 1110(a)]. These types of mergers are effected by the adoption and approval of a resolution or plan of merger by the board of the parent corporation, the approval of the resolution or plan by the board of the subsidiary, and the filing of a certificate of ownership [Corp. Code § 1110(a); see Corp. Code § 1110(e); see also § 11C.303]. The subsidiary corporation may be either domestic or foreign [Corp. Code § 1110(a)].

In this situation, the resolution must provide for the merger, provide that the surviving corporation assumes all the liabilities of each disappearing corporation, and set forth the securities, cash, property, or rights to be issued paid, delivered, or granted on surrender of each outstanding share of the subsidiary corporation that is not owned by the parent [Corp. Code § 1110(b)]. In this resolution, the consideration is specified as a fixed amount per share in cash.

For further discussion of the requirements of a short-form merger with a 90-percent-owned subsidiary, see § 11C.29.

[b] Merger of 90-Percent-Owned Subsidiary Into Parent

California's General Corporation additionally provides for the short-form merger of a parent corporation into a wholly owned or 90-percent-owned subsidiary [see Corp. Code § 1110(a)- (c)]. Mergers of parent corporations into wholly owned or 90-percent-owned subsidiaries are discussed in § 11C.302. Together with the provision set forth in that form, this form can be adapted to provide for a merger of a parent corporation into a 90-percent-owned subsidiary. Similarly, the form in § 11C.300, which is a resolution for the merger of a wholly owned subsidiary into a parent corporation, can be adapted to provide for the merger of a parent corporation into its wholly owned subsidiary.

B. Short-Form Mergers

5-11C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11C.302

§ 11C.302 Additional Provision for Short-Form Merger of Parent Into Subsidiary

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a provision stating a ratio for converting shares of the disappearing parent into shares of the surviving subsidiary. California's General Corporation provides for the short-term merger of a parent corporation into a wholly owned or 90-percent-owned subsidiary [see Corp. Code § 1110(a)- (c)]. When a parent corporation is to be merged into one of its subsidiary corporations (and any other subsidiary corporation or corporations), the resolution or plan of merger must provide for the pro rata conversion of the outstanding shares of the parent corporation into shares of the surviving subsidiary [Corp. Code § 1110(c)].

This form can be added to § 11C.300 (wholly owned subsidiaries) or § 11C.301 (90-percent-owned subsidiaries) in order to effectuate an upside-down merger. Both §§ 11C.300 and 11C.301 are drafted to provide for the merger of a subsidiary into its parent, and the terminology will need to be adapted in order to provide for the merger of a parent corporation into a subsidiary corporation.

When a parent is being merged into a subsidiary, the entire resolution or plan of merger must be approved by the board of the surviving subsidiary [Corp. Code § 1110(c)]. If the merger would constitute a merger reorganization [see Corp. Code § 181(a)] but for the operation of the short-form merger statute [see Corp. Code § 1110], so that the principal terms of the merger would have to be approved by the outstanding shares of any class of the parent corporation [see Corp. Code §§ 152, 1201(d); see § 11C.22[5], then the principal terms of the resolution or plan of merger must be approved by the outstanding shares of that same class of the parent corporation [Corp. Code § 1110(c)].

For further discussion of short-form mergers, including short-form mergers of parent corporations into their subsidiaries, see § 11C.29.

5-11C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11C.303

§ 11C.303 Certificate of Ownership Merging Wholly Owned Subsidiary Into Parent Corporation

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a certificate of ownership perfecting the short-form merger of a wholly owned subsidiary into its parent corporation. A short-form merger is perfected under California's General Corporation Law by the filing of a "certificate of ownership" with the California Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 1110(e)].

This form may be adapted when a subsidiary at least 90 percent owned is being merged into its parent. In that case, Paragraph 1 of this form should be modified to state that the parent owns a given percentage, not less than 90 percent, of all the outstanding shares of each class of the subsidiary, and a copy of the resolution approved by the board of directors of the subsidiary relating to the short-form merger should also be set forth in the certificate [Corp. Code § 1110(e); see § 11C.301]. For discussion of mergers of parent corporations into subsidiaries, see [c], below.

[b] Officers' Certificate

The certificate of ownership must be a certificate of officers of the parent corporation [Corp. Code § 1110(e)]. An "officers' certificate" is a certificate signed and verified by either the chairman of the board of directors, president, or vice-president, as well as either the secretary, assistant secretary, chief financial officer, treasurer, or assistant treasurer [see Corp. Code § 173]. It must identify the parent and subsidiary corporation or corporations, set forth the share ownership by the parent corporation of each subsidiary as 100 percent of the outstanding shares or at least 90 percent of the outstanding shares of each class, set forth the resolution or plan of merger, set forth the approval of the resolution or plan of merger by the board of the parent corporation, and set forth any other required approvals of the resolution or plan of merger [Corp. Code § 1110(e)].

For further discussion of the requirements of the certificate of ownership required to perfect a short-form merger, see § 11C.29[3]. For the resolution needed for a short-form merger of a wholly owned subsidiary, see § 11C.300. A resolution for a short-form merger of a 90-percent-owned subsidiary into a parent corporation is set forth in § 11C.301.

A provision regarding mergers of parent corporations into wholly owned or 90-percent-owned subsidiaries is set forth in § 11C.302.

[c] Merger of Wholly Owned or 90-Percent-Owned Subsidiary Into Parent

California's General Corporation Law additionally provides for the short-term merger of a parent corporation into a wholly owned or 90-percent-owned subsidiary [see Corp. Code § 1110(a)- (c)]. Mergers of parent corporations into wholly owned or 90-percent-owned subsidiaries are effected by the adoption and approval of a resolution or plan of merger and the filing of a certificate of ownership [Corp. Code § 1110(a), (c)]. This form can be adapted for use in a upside-down merger.

B. Short-Form Mergers

5-11C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11C.304

§ 11C.304 Notice of Effective Date of Short-Form Merger of 90-Percent-Owned Subsidiary Into Parent Corporation

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a notice of the effective date of a short-form merger of a subsidiary (90 percent or more of which is owned by its parent). When a subsidiary corporation not owned entirely by its parent is merged by means of a short-form merger into its parent corporation, the parent must give notice of the effective date of the short-form merger to each shareholder of the disappearing subsidiary corporation at least 20 days before the effective date of the merger [Corp. Code § 1110(h)]. This form sets forth a form of the notice that should be given by the parent corporation in such a short-form merger. The notice must set forth the resolutions of merger adopted by the boards of directors of the two corporations, a brief description of the procedure to be followed by dissenting shareholders of the disappearing corporation to force that corporation to purchase their shares, and a statement of the price the parent has determined to be the fair market value of those shares [Corp. Code §§ 1110(h), 1301(a)].

The rights of minority shareholders in a disappearing corporation to a short-form merger are the same as the rights of dissenting shareholders of a corporation that is a party to an ordinary merger. Those rights and the procedure for enforcing them are discussed further in § 11C.400. A procedural guide for their enforcement is set forth in § 11C.150 et seq.

[2] FORM

Notice of Effective Date of Short-Form Merger of 90-Percent-Owned Subsidiary Into Parent Corporation

NOTICE OF SHORT-FORM MERGER

TO SHAREHOLDERS OF _____[name of disappearing corporation]:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a short-form merger as defined by the General Corporation Law of the State of California merging _____[name of disappearing corporation] into _____[name of surviving corporation] will become effective on _____[date]. That merger was effected by resolutions of the Boards of Directors of the two corporations. The resolution of merger adopted by the Board of Directors of _____[name of surviving corporation] was adopted on _____[date], and is as follows: _____[set forth exact wording of resolution; see § 11C.302].

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that any shareholder of this corporation may require the corporation to purchase for cash at their fair market value on the day before the first announcement of the reorganization described in this notice any shares owned by the shareholder which come within the definition of "dissenting shares" contained in Section 1301(b) of the California Corporations Code. To be dissenting shares within the definition contained in Section 1301(b) of the California Corporations Code, the shares must have been held of record, that is, outstanding, on the date for determination of the shareholders who were entitled to vote on the reorganization described in this notice and not voted in favor of the reorganization.

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that for a shareholder to enforce his or her right to require this corporation to purchase any dissenting shares owned by him or her, the shareholder must do two things:

1. Within 30 days after the date of the mailing of this notice to the shareholder, the shareholder must serve a written demand for this corporation to purchase his or her dissenting shares and pay the shareholder in cash the fair market value of those shares on the corporation or on a transfer agent of the corporation. The demand must state the number and class of shares held by the shareholder which the shareholder demands the corporation purchase as dissenting shares and the price the shareholder claims to be the fair market value of those shares as of the day before announcement of the proposed reorganization described in this notice.

2. Within 30 days after the date of the mailing of this notice to a shareholder, the shareholder must, in addition to making the demand described above, submit the certificate for the shares he or she claims to be dissenting shares to the corporation or its transfer agent so that there may be stamped or endorsed on the share certificate a statement that the shares represented by it are dissenting shares. The certificate should be submitted to the corporation at its principal office at _____ Street in _____, California or to its transfer agent, _____[name] at its office at _____ Street, _____, California.

Thereafter, should the corporation fail to agree to purchase the shareholder's dissenting shares at an agreed price or deny they are dissenting shares, the shareholder may file a complaint against the corporation to force it to purchase the shares in the Superior Court of the State of California for the County of _____, the county where the principal executive office of this corporation is located. The complaint must be filed by the shareholder with that court within six months after the date on which this notice was mailed to the shareholder. A copy of California Corporations Code Sections 1300-1304 governing the procedure a shareholder must follow to require this corporation to purchase dissenting shares owned by the shareholder is enclosed with this notice.

[EITHER, if corporation has only one class of shares outstanding:]

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that this corporation has determined that the price of $_____ per share represents the fair market value of dissenting shares of this corporation as of the day before the first announcement of the terms of the reorganization described in this notice.

[OR, if corporation has more than one class of shares outstanding:]

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that this corporation has determined that the following prices represent the fair market value of dissenting shares of this corporation as of the day before the first announcement of the terms of the reorganization described in this notice, to-wit: _____[specify, e.g.:]

5-11C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11C.400

§ 11C.400 Notice to Shareholders by Corporation of Approval of Merger by Outstanding Shares and Right of Dissenting Shareholders to Require Corporation to Purchase Their Dissenting Shares

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is the notice that the corporation must send to each of its shareholders informing them the proposed merger or other reorganization has been approved by the outstanding shares of each class of the corporation. One of the supposed disadvantages of a statutory merger to a corporation is the right of each of its shareholders to force it to purchase for cash their dissenting shares. To initiate the process by which a shareholder may force it to purchase his or her dissenting shares, the General Corporation Law requires a corporation to mail notice to each of its shareholders that the proposed merger has been approved by the outstanding shares of each class of the corporation as required by the General Corporation Law [Corp. Code § 1301(a)]. The notice must be sent to each shareholder within 10 days after approval of the proposed merger by the outstanding shares of the corporation [Corp. Code § 1301(a)].

The notice of approval of the proposed merger or reorganization must be accompanied by the following [Corp. Code § 1301(a)]:

- A copy of Corp. Code §§ 1300-1304;
- A statement of the price the corporation determined to be the fair market value of dissenting shares; and
- A brief description of the procedure a shareholder must follow to require the corporation to purchase his or her dissenting shares.

The notice in this form incorporates in the body of the notice itself the last two of these requirements. It sets forth as part of the notice itself (1) a brief description of the procedure a shareholder must follow to require the corporation to purchase his or her dissenting shares and (2) a statement of the price the corporation has determined to be the fair market value of its dissenting shares.

When this form is used it should be mailed by first-class mail to each shareholder by the corporation within 10 days after the proposed merger or other reorganization has been approved by the outstanding shares of the corporation [Corp. Code § 1301(a)].

[b] Rights of Dissenting Shareholders in General

When a corporate reorganization, such as a merger or exchange of assets for shares, changes the nature of the corporation's business or the nature of his or her investment beyond the manner contemplated by a shareholder, the shareholder should be permitted to "cash out" his or her investment in the corporation [Assembly Select Comm. Rep., at 96]. Thus, when the approval of the outstanding shares of a corporation is required for a merger or other "reorganization," each shareholder of the corporation may require the corporation to purchase for cash at their fair market value any "dissenting shares" owned by him or her [Corp. Code § 1300(a)]. The fair market value of the shares the corporation must pay the shareholder is their fair market value on the day before first announcement of the terms of the proposed reorganization requiring shareholder approval [Corp. Code § 1300(a)]. Any appreciation or depreciation of the fair market value of the shares caused by announcement of the proposed reorganizations is, of course, to be disregarded [Corp. Code § 1300(a)]. The fair market value of the shares on the day before the announcement of the proposed reorganization must be adjusted, however, for any stock split or reverse stock split or share dividend which became effective after that date [Corp. Code § 1300(a)].

If the approval of the outstanding shares of a corporation is required for a reorganization, only those shareholders who are entitled to vote on the transaction may require the corporation to purchase his or her "dissenting shares" [Corp. Code § 1300(a)]. Each shareholder of a disappearing corporation in a short-form merger is also entitled to require the purchase of his or her dissenting shares [Corp. Code § 1300(a)].

[c] Corporations That Must Purchase Dissenting Shares

Dissenting shares must be purchased by (1) a corporation that is required to have a proposed reorganization approved by its outstanding shares, and (2) a corporation that is a disappearing corporation in a short-form merger [Corp. Code § 1300(a)]. Obviously, however, the requirement to purchase its dissenting shares could not apply to a disappearing corporation to a short-form merger that was a wholly owned subsidiary of the surviving corporation to the short-form merger [see § 11C.29].

There are four types of corporations to a proposed "reorganization" as that term is defined in the General Corporation Law of California that must have the proposed reorganization approved by its outstanding shares. There are, therefore, four types of corporations to proposed reorganizations that, under the General Corporation Law, must on demand purchase dissenting shares owned by their shareholders [see Corp. Code §§ 1200, 1201, 1300]. The first is a surviving or disappearing corporation to a proposed statutory merger. The proposed merger must be approved both by the board of directors and the outstanding shares of each class of each corporation that is a party to the merger [Corp. Code §§ 1200, 1201(a)]. The second type of corporation is the acquiring corporation to a proposed share exchange. When one corporation seeks to acquire ownership of another corporation by exchanging its shares for those of the corporation it seeks to acquire, the proposed share exchange must be approved by the board of directors and outstanding shares of the acquiring corporation but not the corporation sought to be acquired [Corp. Code §§ 1200, 1201(a); see Ch. 11D, Acquisition of Shares for Shares].

The third type of corporation that is required to have a proposed "reorganization" approved by its outstanding shares and therefore is required to purchase its dissenting shares is a corporation that is a party to a proposed exchange of assets for shares. When one corporation seeks to acquire another corporation by exchanging its shares for all or substantially all the assets of the other corporation, the proposed exchange must be approved by the boards of directors and outstanding shares of both corporations [Corp. Code §§ 1200, 1201(a); see Ch. 11E, Acquisition of Assets for Shares].

The fourth type of corporation that is required to have a proposed "reorganization" approved by its outstanding shares and is therefore under an obligation to purchase its dissenting shares is a "parent party" to a reorganization. A "parent party" is a corporation that (1) is in control of a constituent corporation to a merger or the acquiring corporation to a share exchange or assets-for-shares exchange and (2) is exchanging its shares for shares of the other corporation to a merger or share exchange or for the assets being acquired in an assets-for-shares exchange [Corp. Code § 1200(e)]. Both the board of directors and outstanding shares of a parent party must approve the proposed merger, share exchange, or assets-for-shares exchange [Corp. Code §§ 1200, 1201(a)].

[d] Dissenting Shares That Must Be Purchased

The purpose of the dissenting shareholder statutes requiring a corporation to purchase the shares of a dissenting shareholder is to allow a shareholder whose investment has been radically changed without his or her approval to "cash out" without being harmed by the change [Assembly Select Comm. Rep., at 96]. If there is a readily available established market for the shares, a shareholder can normally "cash out" his or her investment rather easily on that readily available established liquid market for the shares. In that case, there is no need for requiring the corporation to purchase the shares and "cash out" the shareholder [Assembly Select Comm. Rep., at 96].

In defining the rights of dissenting shareholders, therefore, the General Corporation Law distinguishes between shareholders holding shares for which there is a readily available established market and shareholders holding shares for which there is no readily available market. It provides special requirements for considering as "dissenting shares" shares of a corporation that, immediately prior to a proposed reorganization, were listed on any national securities exchange certified by the Commissioner of Corporations. Shares so listed cannot be considered "dissenting shares" unless either (1) there exists some restriction on their transfer imposed either by the corporation or a law or regulation or (2) demands for their purchase as dissenting shares are filed with respect to 5 percent or more of the particular class to which they belong [Corp. Code § 1300(b)(1)]. In addition, to be considered as dissenting shares, the shares must have been outstanding on the date for determination of shareholders entitled to vote on the proposed reorganization and those shares must have been voted against the reorganization [Corp. Code § 1300(b)(2)]. Shares not listed on a national exchange may be "dissenting shares" provided they were outstanding on the date for determining shareholders entitled to vote on the proposed reorganization and not voted in favor [Corp. Code § 1300(b)(2)].

When approval of the outstanding shares of a corporation is obtained by written consent of shareholders instead of by vote at a shareholders' meeting, listed shares otherwise qualified to be dissenting shares need only not have consented to the reorganization. There is no requirement that the holders of the shares were actually asked to sign the written consent and refused [Corp. Code § 1300(b)(2)].

When a national securities exchange has been certified under the Corporate Securities Law of 1968 by the California Corporations Commissioner, shares listed on that exchange need not be "qualified" with the California Corporations Commissioner before they can be sold or offered for sale in California [Corp. Code § 25100(o)]. Shares are also exempt from qualification if they are listed or approved for listing on notice of issuance on a national securities exchange if the exchange has been certified [Corp. Code § 25100(o)]. However, this exemption does not apply to securities listed or approved for listing on notice of issuance, in a rollup transaction unless it is an eligible rollup transaction [Corp. Code § 25100(o); see Corp. Code § 25014.7 ("eligible rollup transaction" defined)].

[e] Procedure for Enforcing Dissenting Shareholder Rights

The procedure for enforcing a shareholder's rights to require a corporation to purchase his or her dissenting shares begins with action by the corporation itself. Within 10 days after approval by its outstanding shares of a proposed merger or other "reorganization" to which it is a party, the corporation must send each shareholder a written notice of the approval [Corp. Code § 1301(a)]. The notice must be accompanied by a statement of what the corporation has determined to be the fair market value of dissenting shares, a brief description a shareholder must follow to require the corporation to purchase his or her dissenting shares, and a copy of Corp. Code §§ 1300-1304 [Corp. Code § 1301(a)].

The corporation's notice of approval of the reorganization is not fatally flawed if the notice omits the required statement of the fair-market price for dissenters' shares, as long as the corporation meets the statutory requirement to provide the full text of Corp. Code §§ 1300-1304. Shareholders who are thus notified that the corporation is obligated by statute to provide a statement of the price determined by the corporation to represent the fair market value of dissenters' shares and that the statement constitutes an offer by the corporation to purchase dissenters' shares at the price stated [Corp. Code § 1301(a)] can act to protect their interests as potential dissenters by promptly demanding a buyout price from the corporation. If unsuccessful, the shareholders can seek judicial relief by petitioning for a writ of mandate to compel the corporation immediately to provide a statement of the buyout price as required by statute [Singhania v. Uttarwar (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 416, 432, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 861 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1085 (right to petition for writ of mandate); see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1027, 1032 (costs recoverable by prevailing party)].

A shareholder who wishes the corporation to purchase his or her dissenting shares must serve a written demand for purchase on the corporation within 30 days after the mailing of notice to the shareholder [Corp. Code § 1301(b)]. The demand must (1) state the number and class of the shares held of record by the shareholder that the shareholder wishes the corporation to purchase, and (2) contain a statement of what the shareholder claims to be the fair market value of those shares as of the day before the announcement of the proposed reorganization or short-form merger [Corp. Code § 1301(c); see § 11C.401]. The demand should be served on the corporation at its principal office or at any transfer agent's office [Corp. Code § 1301(b)]. If the shares claimed to be dissenting shares are listed on a national securities exchange certified by the Corporations Commissioner, the demand must be received by the corporation or its transfer agent not later than the day of the shareholder's meeting called to vote on the reorganization, provided that the notice of that meeting summarized the provisions of Corp. Code §§ 1300-1304 [Corp. Code 1300(b)(1), 1301(b)].

Within 30 days after the mailing of the notice of shareholder approval, ashareholder wishing the corporation to purchase his or her dissenting shares also must submit the certificate for those shares to the corporation or its transfer agent to be stamped or endorsed with a statement that the shares are dissenting shares [Corp. Code § 1302]. The certificate should be submitted to the corporation at its principal office or at the office of any of its transfer agents [Corp. Code § 1302]. If the corporation's securities are uncertificated [Corp. Code § 191.1; Com. Code § 8102(a)(4)], the shareholder must submit notice of the number of shares that he or she demands that the corporation purchase [Corp. Code § 1302].

A failure to timely perfect dissenters' rights is a de facto choice by a shareholder to accept a merger or other reorganization and forgo dissenters' rights [Singhania v. Uttarwar (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 416, 434-435, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 861 (allegations or evidence of fraud might prevent application of this rule)].

[f] Payment for Dissenting Shares

When the corporation and shareholder agree that the shareholder's shares are dissenting shares and the price that must be paid for the shares, the shareholder is entitled to that price plus interest on it at the legal rate payable on judgments from the date of the agreement until it is paid [Corp. Code § 1303(a)]. Payment of the fair market value of dissenting shares may be made within 30 days after the amount has been agreed on, or within 30 days after any statutory or contractual conditions to the reorganization, such as the various balance sheet tests, have been satisfied, whichever is later [Corp. Code §§ 166, 500-504, 1303(b), 1306]. The distribution tests set forth in Corp. Code § 500 do not apply to a corporation licensed as a broker-dealer [see Corp. Code § 25210 et seq.] if the corporation, immediately after giving effect to any distribution, is in compliance with the net capital rules of the Commissioner of Corporations [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.216.12] and the Securities and Exchange Commission [Corp. Code § 500(c); see 17 C.F.R. § 240.15c3-1]. If the corporation is unable to pass these tests, it is unable to pay for and purchase the dissenting shares. In that case, the dissenting shareholder becomes a creditor of the corporation for the amount due for the shares plus interest on that amount at the legal rate on judgments until the corporation does become able to pay [Corp. Code § 1306]. The rights of the dissenting shareholder as a creditor, however, are subordinate to all other corporate creditors in any liquidation proceedings of the corporation [Corp. Code § 1306].

[g] Suit to Enforce Dissenters' Rights

If a corporation denies that a shareholder's shares are dissenting shares, or fails to agree on the fair market value of the shares, the shareholder may file a complaint against the corporation to enforce his or her other rights in the superior court of the county where the principal executive office of the corporation is located [Corp. Code § 1304(a)]. If the corporation does not have principal executive offices, or does not maintain them in California, the complaint must be filed in the Superior Court of Sacramento County [Corp. Code § 1304(a)]. The shareholder must file the complaint within six months after the corporation mails to the shareholder the notice of approval by its outstanding shares of the merger or other reorganization giving rise to the shareholder's rights as a dissenting shareholder [Corp. Code § 1304(a)].

Two or more dissenting shareholders may join as plaintiffs in the same action or be joined as defendants in the same action [Corp. Code § 1304(b)]. Two or more dissenting shareholder actions against a corporation may be consolidated [Corp. Code § 1304(b)]. On trial of the action, the court determines all issues [Corp. Code § 1304(c)]. The court first determines, if it is in issue, whether the shareholder's shares are dissenting shares. The court then determines, either alone or by appointing one or more impartial appraisers, the fair market value of the dissenting shares [Corp. Code § 1304(c)].

[2] FORM

Notice to Shareholders by Corporation of Approval of Merger by Outstanding Shares and Right of Dissenting Shareholders to Require Corporation to Purchase Their Dissenting Shares

NOTICE OF SHAREHOLDERS' APPROVAL OF REORGANIZATION

TO SHAREHOLDERS OF _____[name of corporation]:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that at a special meeting of shareholders of this corporation held on _____[date], at _____ Street, _____, California, there was approved by the outstanding shares of each class of this corporation, as those terms are defined in the General Corporation Law of California, the principal terms of reorganization, as defined in the General Corporation Law of California, pursuant to which _____[specify, e.g., this corporation will be merged into _____ (name of surviving corporation) pursuant to the terms of a Merger Agreement between the two corporations dated _____ or this corporation will acquire 80 percent or more of the outstanding shares of _____ (name of corporation to be acquired) in exchange for its voting common shares by exchanging one of its voting common shares for every four outstanding shares of _____ (name of corporation to be acquired)].

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that any shareholder of this corporation may require the corporation to purchase for cash at their fair market value on the day before the first announcement of the reorganization described in this notice any shares owned by the shareholder which come within the definition of "dissenting shares" contained in California Corporations Code Section 1301(b). To be dissenting shares within the definition contained in California Corporations Code Section 1301(b), the shares must have been held of record, i.e., outstanding, on the date for determination of the shareholders who were entitled to vote on the reorganization described in this notice and not voted in favor of the reorganization.

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that for a shareholder to enforce his or her right to require this corporation to purchase any dissenting shares owned by him or her, the shareholder must do two things:

1. Within 30 days after the date of the mailing of this notice to the shareholder, the shareholder must serve a written demand for this corporation to purchase his or her dissenting shares and pay the shareholder in cash in fair market value of those shares on the corporation or on a transfer agent of the corporation. The demand must state the number and class of shares held by the shareholder which the shareholder demands the corporation purchase as dissenting shares and the price the shareholder claims to be the fair market value of those shares as of the day before announcement of the proposed reorganization described in this notice.

2. Within 30 days after the date of the mailing of this notice to shareholder, shareholder, in addition to making the demand described above, must submit the certificate for the shares he or she claims to be dissenting shares to the corporation or its transfer agent so that there may be stamped or endorsed on the share certificate a statement that the shares represented by it are dissenting shares. The certificate should be submitted to the corporation at its principal office at _____ Street in _____, California or to its transfer agent, _____[name], at its office at _____ Street, _____, California.

Thereafter, if the corporation fails to agree to purchase the shareholder's dissenting shares at an agreed price or denies they are dissenting shares, the shareholder may file a complaint against the corporation to force it to purchase the shares in the Superior Court of the State of California for the County of _____, the county where the principal executive office of this corporation is located. The complaint must be filed by the shareholder with that court within six months after the date on which this notice was mailed to the shareholder. A copy of Sections 1300-1304 of the California Corporations Code governing the procedure a shareholder must follow to require this corporation to purchase dissenting shares owned by the shareholder is enclosed with this notice.

[EITHER, if corporation has only one class of shares outstanding:]

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that this corporation has determined that the price of $_____ per share represents the fair market value of dissenting shares of this corporation as of the day before the first announcement of the terms of the reorganization described in this notice.

[OR, if corporation has more than one class of shares outstanding:]

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is the written demand that must be served on a corporation that is a party to a merger, or on the disappearing corporation in a short-form merger, by a shareholder desiring to have the corporation purchase his or her dissenting shares. The nature of a shareholder's right to require a corporation to purchase dissenting shares, corporations that must purchase dissenting shares, shares that are dissenting shares, and the procedure to be followed to enforce a dissenting shareholder's rights to require such a purchase are discussed in § 11C.400. That discussion should be read in connection with the use of the demand contained in this form. For a procedural guide for enforcing the rights of a dissenting shareholder, up to filing an action to enforce those rights, see § 11C.150 et seq.

The demand contained in this form must be served on a corporation within 30 days after it has mailed a notice to the shareholder of approval of a proposed merger by its outstanding shares or the effective date of the short-term merger by its outstanding shares or the effective date of the short-form merger in which it is the disappearing corporation [Corp. Code § 1301(b)]. When the dissenting shares covered by this demand are listed on a national securities exchange or on the list of OTC margin stocks of the Federal Reserve System, however, it should be served on the corporation on the date set for the shareholders' meeting at which there will be a vote on the proposed merger [Corp. Code § 1301(b)].

5-11C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11C.500

§ 11C.500 Notice of Exchange Transaction Under Corp. Code § 25103(h)

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is the official Department of Corporations notice of an exchange transaction under Corp. Code § 25103. To qualify under the exemption from securities qualification provided in Corp. Code § 25103(h), an acquiring entity in an exchange transaction must file this form with the Commissioner of Corporations. The acquiring entity must file this notice no later than 15 calendar days after the first sale of the securities in the transaction in California [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.103.6(a)]. No notice is required to be filed if there is no sale in California [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.103.6(a)].

The notice referred to in Corp. Code § 25103(h) must be in the form illustrated here, and must be on 81/2 " by 11" paper [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.103.6(b)].

ELECTRONIC FORMS NOTE:

Electronic copies of this form that may be printed out and filled in for filing can be obtained via the securities forms page of the official website of the California Department of Corporations, which is located at http://www.corp.ca.gov/forms/securities.asp#sl. You may also obtain a copy of this form via email by contacting Matthew Bender & Co. at (800) 424-0651, ext. 405, or emailing us at cal.custquest@bender.com and requesting an electronic copy of CLF Form 11C.500. Please be sure to include your email address along with your request and we will provide the form via return email. To view and print these forms, your computer system will need Adobe Acrobat Reader version 3.0 or higher.

[b] Exemption From Qualification for Exchanges Incident to Merger, Consolidation, or Sale of Assets

Corp. Code § 25103(h) provides an exemption from the qualification provisions of the California securities laws for qualifying exchanges incident to a merger, consolidation, or sale of assets, in which the consideration for the transaction is the issuance of the equity securities of another entity or any entity conversion transaction [Corp. Code § 25103(h)]. Rollup transactions, as defined in Corp. Code § 25014.6, are ineligible for this exemption [Corp. Code § 25103(h)].

To be eligible for this exemption, the exchange transaction, had it involved an issuer transaction [see Corp. Code § 25110], would have to have been exempted from qualification under the California limited offering exemption, determined without regard to Corp. Code § 25102(f)(3) (which requires representation that purchaser is purchasing for own account, not for resale) [Corp. Code § 25102(h)(1)]. In addition, either of the following sets of criteria must be applicable [Corp. Code § 25102(h)(1)]:

- All of the following must apply:
  - Not less than 75 percent of the outstanding equity securities of each constituent or converting entity entitled to vote on the proposed transaction voted in favor of the transaction;
  - Not more than 10 percent of the outstanding equity securities of each constituent or converting entity entitled to vote on the proposed transaction voted against the transaction; and
  - Each constituent or converting entity whose security holders are entitled to vote on the proposed transaction is subject to a state statute that has provisions for dissenters' rights for holders of equity securities entitled to vote on the proposed transaction that do not vote in favor of or voted against the transaction; or
- All of the following must apply:
  - The transaction is solely for the purposes of changing the issuer's state of incorporation or organization, or form of organization;
  - All the securities of the same class or series, unless all the security holders of the class or series consent, are treated equally; and
  - The holders of nonredeemable voting equity securities receive nonredeemable voting equity securities.

[c] Failure to File Notice

The failure to file the notice, or to file it within the specified time, will not affect the availability of this exemption. However, an acquiring entity that fails to file the notice as discussed in [a], above, within 15 business days after demand by the Commissioner, must file the notice and pay a fee equal to the fee that would have been payable had the transaction been qualified under Corp. Code §§ 25110 or 25120 [Corp. Code § 25103(h)(2); see Corp. Code § 25608; see also Ch. 6H, Qualification of Securities, § 6H.200[1][d]].

Scope

Scope

This chapter covers corporate reorganizations pursuant to an exchange of shares of one corporation for the shares of another. The Legal Background discusses the requirements, advantages, and disadvantages of a shares for shares exchange. In addition, it examines the differences between the Internal Revenue Code and General Corporation Law definitions of "reorganization" as those differences affect shares for shares exchanges. The Legal Background also contains a general discussion of the securities considerations applicable to reorganizations. The Transaction Guide contains procedures for a shares for shares exchange. This chapter also contains forms designed to effectuate a tax-free shares for shares exchange.

For a detailed discussion of corporate securities requirements, and appropriate forms, see Ch. 6, Securities Regulation Issues . For a discussion and comparison of the various methods of corporate acquisition, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues . These methods are covered individually in Ch. 11A, Cash Purchase of Shares , Ch. 11B, Cash Purchase of Assets ; Ch. 11C, Mergers ; and Ch. 11E, Acquisition of Assets for Shares .

For additional detailed discussion of the acquisition of shares for shares, see Ballantine & Sterling, CALIFORNIA CORPORATION LAWS, ch. 12, Corporate Acquisitions, Mergers, and Reorganizations , § 252.04 (Matthew Bender). An agreement for an exchange reorganization is set forth in Ballantine & Sterling, CALIFORNIA CORPORATION LAWS, Appendix A, Form 13.09 (Matthew Bender).

CHAPTER 11D ACQUISITION OF SHARES FOR SHARES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11D.20

§ 11D.20 Acquisition of Shares for Shares Generally

The second method by which one corporation may acquire another corporation, defined as a "reorganization" in both the Internal Revenue Code and the California General Corporation Law, is a shares for shares exchange [see I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(B); Corp. Code § 181(b)]. Under the General Corporation Law, an "exchange reorganization" is defined as the acquisition by one corporation of shares of another corporation in exchange in whole or in part for equity securities of the acquiring corporation a corporation in control of the acquiring corporation if, immediately after the acquisition, the acquiring corporation has control of the other corporation [Corp. Code § 181(b)]. "Control" is defined as direct or indirect ownership of shares or equity securities possessing more than 50 percent of the voting power of the acquired corporation or other business entity [Corp. Code § 160(b)]. Voting power is the power to elect directors of the acquired corporation [Corp. Code § 194.5; see § 11D.21]. Under the Internal Revenue Code, the acquisition by one corporation of stock of another corporation in exchange solely for all or a part of the voting stock of the acquiring corporation or a corporation in control of the acquiring corporation is a tax-free reorganization if immediately after the acquisition the acquiring corporation has control of the other corporation [I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(B); see § 11D.23]. The two definitions, although similar, have differences which are due to the different purposes served by each of the "reorganization" definitions [see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues].

CHAPTER 11D ACQUISITION OF SHARES FOR SHARES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11D.21

§ 11D.21 California Statutory Requirements

[1] Directors' and Shareholders' Approval

Because an exchange of the shares of one corporation for the shares of another corporation is defined by the General Corporation Law as a form of "reorganization," it requires the same type of director and shareholder approval as a statutory merger or an exchange of assets for shares [Corp. Code §§ 181, 1200, 1201; see Ch. 11C, Mergers, § 11C.22; Ch. 11E, Acquisition of Assets for Shares]. There is one major difference, however, between the director and shareholder approval required for a merger or an exchange of assets for shares and the director and shareholder approval required for a share exchange. The board of directors and shareholders of the corporation whose shares are sought to be acquired by the acquiring corporation are not required by statute to approve an exchange of shares of the acquiring corporation for shares of the acquired corporation [compare Corp. Code § 1200(b) (approval of acquiring corporation's board required in exchange reorganization) with Corp. Code § 1200(c) (board approval of both acquiring and acquired corporation's board required in sale-of-assets reorganization) and Corp. Code § 1201(a) (shareholder approval required when board approval is required, subject to various exceptions)].

The General Corporation Law requires a "reorganization" to be approved by the board of directors and by the outstanding shares of each class of the acquiring corporation [Corp. Code §§ 1200, 1201(a)]. If shares of a corporation in control of the acquiring corporation will be exchanged for shares of the corporation sought to be acquired, the corporation in control is a "parent party" [Corp. Code § 1200(e)]. In that case, the proposed share exchange must also be approved by the board of directors and by the outstanding shares of each class of the parent party [Corp. Code §§ 1200(d), 1201(a)]. However, if the parent party [Corp. Code § 1200(e)] is a foreign corporation (other than one subject to the General Corporation Law [see Corp. Code § 2115(a); see also Ch. 12B, Foreign Corporations and Associations]), any requirement or lack of requirement for approval by the outstanding shares of the foreign corporation is not governed by Corp. Code §§ 1200 and 1201. Instead, the law of the state or place of incorporation of the foreign corporation will apply [Corp. Code § 1202(c)].

Because a proposed share exchange defined as a "reorganization" by the General Corporation Law must be approved by the outstanding shares as well as by the board of directors of the acquiring corporation, it must be approved by the board of directors of the acquiring corporation itself and not by a committee of the board [Corp. Code §§ 151, 311].

Ordinarily, a board of directors may delegate its authority to one or more committees consisting of two or more directors and those committees may approve matters otherwise requiring approval by the corporation's board of directors. The board of directors, however, may not delegate to any committee or committees power to approve on its behalf any matter, such as a proposed share exchange, which in addition to being approved by the board must also be approved by the shareholders or "approved by the outstanding shares" of the corporation [Corp. Code § 311(a)].

The term "approved by the outstanding shares" means that a matter must be approved by the affirmative vote of a majority of all outstanding shares of the corporation entitled to vote on it and not just a majority of the shares represented and voting at a shareholders' meeting at which a quorum of shares is present [see Corp. Code §§ 152, 153]. A proposed share exchange defined as a "reorganization" by the General Corporation Law, in addition to being approved by the board of directors of the acquiring corporation, must be "approved by the outstanding shares of each class" of the acquiring corporation [Corp. Code §§ 1200(b), 1201(a)]. This means the proposed share exchange must be approved by the affirmative vote of a majority of all outstanding shares of each class or series, regardless of limitations or restrictions on voting rights, of shares of the acquiring corporation [Corp. Code §§ 117, 152]. The proposed share exchange must also be approved by the affirmative vote of all or a greater than majority proportion of any class or series of shares if a unanimous or greater than majority vote is required by the acquiring corporation's articles of incorporation [Corp. Code § 152]. When the acquiring corporation has two classes of common shares that differ only as to voting rights, however, they may be considered as a single class of shares for purposes of approving the proposed share exchange [Corp. Code § 1201(a)].

[2] Conditions Excusing Shareholder Approval

The purpose of requiring a proposed share exchange "reorganization" to be approved by each class of the outstanding shares, regardless of voting rights, is to prevent undue dilution of the ownership interest and voting rights of the holders of the outstanding shares without their consent. Thus, approval by any class of shares of the acquiring corporation should not be required if the proposed share exchange will not result in any significant changes in the rights or interests represented by shares of that class [Assembly Select Committee on the Revision of the Corporation Code, dated December 1, 1975, at 93, 94 (hereafter cited in this chapter as "Assembly Select Comm. Rep.")]. The General Corporation Law expressly provides that in two situations, approval by one or more classes of shares of the acquiring corporation to a proposed share exchange of the share exchange is not needed [Corp. Code § 1201(a), (b); but see Corp. Code § 1201(g)].

The first situation involves outstanding preferred shares of the acquiring corporation. No approval of any class of outstanding preferred shares of the acquiring corporation or its parent party is required when the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on that preferred class of shares remains unchanged by the proposed share exchange [Corp. Code § 1201(a)]. The second situation arises when the shareholders of the acquiring corporation immediately before the proposed share exchange will still own, immediately after the proposed share exchange, equity securities of the acquiring corporation possessing more than five sixths of its voting power [Corp. Code § 1201(b)]. In that case, no approval of the outstanding shares of any class of the acquiring corporation is required for consummation of the proposed share exchange [Corp. Code § 1201(b)], because the share exchange will make no significant change in the rights or interests of the shareholders of the acquiring corporation and their approval is not needed.

In determining whether the shareholders of the acquiring corporation immediately before the proposed share exchange will own, immediately after the proposed share exchange, equity securities possessing five sixths of the voting power of the acquiring corporation, shares owned by any shareholders of the acquiring corporation in the acquired corporation must be disregarded [Corp. Code § 1201(b)]. For purposes of determining what will constitute five sixths of the voting power of the acquiring corporation after the exchange, it must be assumed that all securities convertible, either immediately or at some future time, into its voting shares have been converted [Corp. Code § 1201(b)]. It will not be assumed, however, that any outstanding warrants or rights to subscribe to or purchase its voting shares have been exercised [Corp. Code § 1201(b)].

Notwithstanding the provisions of Corp. Code § 1201(a) and (b), discussed above, the principal terms of a reorganization must be approved by all shareholders of any class or series if, as a result of the reorganization, the holders of that class or series become personally liable for any obligations of a party to the reorganization, unless all holders of that class or series have dissenters' rights [Corp. Code § 1201(g); see Corp. Code § 1300 et seq.].

[3] Report by Independent Appraiser

When a tender offer (including a share exchange tender offer [see Corp. Code § 183.5 (definition); see also § 11D.22[1]]), or a written proposal for approval of a "reorganization" [see Corp. Code §§ 181, 1200] or sale of assets [see Corp. Code § 1001(a)] is made to some or all of a corporation's shareholders by a party to the transaction who has control of or a financial interest in that corporation (an "interested party proposal"), an affirmative opinion in writing regarding the fairness of the consideration to the shareholders of the corporation must be provided to those shareholders. This requirement does not apply if the target corporation does not have shares held of record by 100 or more persons [see Corp. Code § 605 (determination of shareholders of record)], or if the transaction has been qualified pursuant to Corp. Code § 25113 (qualification of issuer transaction by permit) or 25121 (qualification of recapitalization or reorganization by permit) and no stop order [see Corp. Code §§ 25140, 25143(a)] is in effect regarding that qualification [Corp. Code § 1203(a)].

If a subsequent tender offer or written proposal is made by another person at least 10 days before the date for acceptance of the tendered shares or the vote or notice of shareholder approval on the interested party proposal, additional shareholder notification and withdrawal requirements apply [see Corp. Code § 1203(b)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues .

CHAPTER 11D ACQUISITION OF SHARES FOR SHARES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11D.22

§ 11D.22 Share Exchange Tender Offer

[1] In General

A "share exchange tender offer" is a type of acquisition method that is similar to an exchange reorganization [see Corp. Code § 181(b)] but is not included in the definition of "reorganization" [see Corp. Code § 181]. The term "share exchange tender offer" includes any acquisition (other than an "exchange reorganization") by one corporation, in exchange in whole or in part for the acquiring corporation's equity securities (or the equity securities of a corporation that is in control of the acquiring corporation), of shares of another corporation [Corp. Code § 183.5]. Unlike an exchange reorganization, a share exchange tender offer does not require that the acquiring corporation have control of the acquired corporation immediately after the acquisition [see Corp. Code §§ 181(b), 183.5].

The discussions in [2] and [3], below, give a general overview of the approval requirements applicable to share exchange tender offers. Because share exchange tender offers are not "reorganizations," and therefore are not subject to the Corporations Code provisions regarding dissenters' rights [see Corp. Code §§ 1300-1312], they are beyond the scope of this chapter. For coverage of tender offers generally, see Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, ch. 5E, Tender Offers and Takeovers (Matthew Bender).

[2] Approval Requirements

A share exchange tender offer [see Corp. Code § 183.5 (definition); see also § 11D.22[1]] must be approved by the board of the acquiring corporation [Corp. Code § 1200(d)] in the same manner as an exchange reorganization [see § 11D.21[1]].

Similarly, the outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 152 (definition)] of each class of the corporation making the tender offer (or the corporation whose shares will be used in the tender offer) must approve the principal terms of a share exchange tender offer. For purposes of this requirement, two classes of common shares differing only as to voting rights will be considered as a single class of shares [Corp. Code § 1201.5(a)]. This type of approval requirement is intended to protect shareholders of the acquiring corporation from dilution of the value and voting power of their stock [see § 11D.21[1] ; see also Ballantine & Sterling, CALIFORNIA CORPORATION LAWS, ch. 12, Corporate Acquisitions, Mergers, and Reorganizations , § 262.03 (Matthew Bender)].

As in an exchange reorganization, there are exceptions to the approval requirement when shareholders' voting power remains basically unchanged [see Corp. Code § 1201; see also § 11D.21[2]]:

- First, unless otherwise provided in the articles, no approval of any class of outstanding preferred shares of the acquiring corporation or its parent will be required if the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on that class of shares remains unchanged by the share exchange tender offer [Corp. Code § 1201.5(a)].

- Second, no approval of the outstanding shares is required if either [Corp. Code § 1201.5(b)] (1) the corporation; (2) the persons who are shareholders immediately before the tender offer; or (3) both the corporation and those shareholders will, immediately after completion of the share exchange proposed in the tender offer, still own equity securities (other than any warrant or right to subscribe to or purchase the equity securities) of the corporation making the tender offer or its parent possessing more than five sixths of the voting power of either corporation.

In determining share ownership by shareholders of the acquiring corporation, equity securities owned immediately before the tender offer as shareholders of another party to the transaction will be disregarded [Corp. Code § 1201.5(b)]. In calculating the voting power of a corporation, it will be assumed that all equity securities convertible (either immediately or at a future time) into voting shares have been converted. However, it will not be assumed that any warrants or rights to subscribe to or purchase shares have been exercised [Corp. Code § 1201.5(b)].

[3] Appraisal Report

When a share exchange tender offer [see Corp. Code § 183.5 (definition); see also § 11D.22[1]] is made to some or all of a corporation's shareholders by an interested party, an affirmative written opinion as to the fairness of the consideration to the shareholders of that corporation must be delivered to the shareholders [Corp. Code § 1203(a)]. Exceptions to this requirement, and additional requirements applicable to subsequent tender offers [see Corp. Code § 1203(b)], are discussed in § 11D.21[3].

CHAPTER 11D ACQUISITION OF SHARES FOR SHARES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11D.23

§ 11D.23 Income Tax Factors and Requirements

[1] Status as Tax-Free Reorganization

No taxable gain or loss will be recognized if shares or securities in a corporation that is a party to a "reorganization" are exchanged, pursuant to the plan of "reorganization," solely for shares or securities in another corporation that is a party to the "reorganization" [I.R.C. § 354(a)(1)]. I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(B) defines a "reorganization" as the acquisition by one corporation of the stock of another corporation, in exchange solely for all or part of the voting stock of the acquiring corporation (or a corporation in control of the acquiring corporation), if immediately after the acquisition the acquiring corporation has control of the other corporation [I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(B)]. Because of its placement in the income tax statute defining tax-free "reorganizations," a shares for shares exchange is sometimes called a "B reorganization" [see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues].

In order to effectuate a tax-free shares for shares exchange, two important statutory requirements must be met. First, the acquiring corporation must acquire the shares of the acquired corporation solely in exchange for voting shares of itself or its parent corporation [I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(B)]. Second, immediately after the exchange is completed, the acquiring corporation must have control of the acquired corporation [I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(B)]. The fact that the acquiring corporation may have had control of the acquired corporation immediately before the exchange is immaterial [I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(B)]. For purposes of the statutory definition of a share exchange that constitutes a tax-free reorganization, "control" means the ownership of stock possessing at least 80 percent of the total combined voting power of all classes of voting stock of the acquired corporation and at least 80 percent of the total number of shares of all other classes of stock of the acquired corporation [I.R.C. § 368(c)].

The receipt of other property ("boot") in the transaction will result in the recognition of gain to the recipient equal to the sum of the money and fair market value of the property received [I.R.C. § 356(a)]. That gain will normally be treated as capital gain [see I.R.C. §§ 1221, 1222]. However, if the exchange has the effect of a distribution of a dividend [see I.R.C. §§ 302, 316 (definition)], the gain will be taxed as dividend to the extent of the each shareholder's ratable share of the corporation's undistributed earnings and profits [see I.R.C. § 356(a)(2); see also Ch. 9, Dividends, Reacquisitions of Shares, and Assessments]. For tax years beginning after December 31, 2002, and before January 1, 2009, the amount treated as a dividend will be taxed at capital gains rates [I.R.C. §§ 1(h)(11), 356(a)(2); see Pub. Law No. 108-27, §§

302(f)(1), 303 (effective date and sunset provisions)]. For other years, the amounts treated as a dividend are taxed at ordinary income tax rates [I.R.C. §§ 1(a)-(e), (h)(11), (i)(2), 356(a)(2); see Pub. Law No. 108-27, §§ 302(f)(1), 303 (effective date and sunset provisions)]. To determine whether an exchange has the effect of a dividend distribution or a stock redemption, a court must view the exchange as an integrated whole [Commissioner v. Clark (1989) 489 U.S. 726, 109 S. Ct. 1455, 103 L. Ed. 2d 753] . In a case in which there was no evidence that a payment of cash was a concealed dividend, the boot was characterized as a part of the proceeds of a sale of stock rather than as a proxy for a dividend, and qualified for capital gains treatment [Commissioner v. Clark (1989) 489 U.S. 726, 109 S. Ct. 1455, 103 L. Ed. 2d 753] .

[2] Voting Stock Requirement

For a share exchange to be a tax-free "reorganization" under the Internal Revenue Code, the acquiring corporation must acquire shares of the acquired corporation solely in exchange for its own voting shares or the voting shares of its parent corporation [I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(B)]. The income tax statutes do not define what constitute "voting" shares of the acquiring corporation. The Supreme Court has held, however, that shares of an acquired corporation acquired in exchange for stock purchase warrants of the acquiring corporation were not acquired, as required by statute, solely in exchange for voting shares of the acquiring corporation or its parent [Helvering v. Southwest Consol. Corp. (1942) 315 U.S. 194, 200-201, 62 S. Ct. 546, 86 L. Ed. 789] . The Internal Revenue Service has also ruled that shares whose voting rights are suspended for five years do not constitute voting shares that may be exchanged for shares of an acquired corporation in a tax-free reorganization [Rev. Rul. § 72-72, 1972-1 C.B. 104].

The "solely for stock" requirement means only stock may be exchanged. The requirement is not limited to just that stock needed to meet the control requirement. The exchange of stock for 80 percent of an acquired corporation's stock and the purchase of the remaining 20 percent of the acquired corporation's stock, therefore, disqualified the transaction under I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(B) and gain or loss was recognized for all stock exchanged in the transaction [Rev. Rul. 75-123, 1975-1 C.B. 115].

A de minimis rule, however, allows for payment for fractional shares in the exchange when the cash is not a separately bargained-for consideration but only a method to round off fractional shares in an exchange. The payment of cash for fractional shares in an otherwise qualifying B reorganization, therefore, will not cause the loss of its tax-free status [Mills v. Commissioner of Int. Rev. (5th Cir. 1964) 331 F.2d 321, 324 ; Rev. Rul. 66-365, 1966-2 C.B. 116].

Another exception to the solely-for-stock rule is that securities may be exchanged without disqualifying the transaction if done in pursuance of the reorganization. The IRS has ruled that a type B reorganization was not disqualified by a separate exchange of debentures of the corporations in pursuance of the reorganization when the stock of the acquired corporation was exchanged solely for the stock of the acquiring corporation [Rev. Rul. 98-10, 1998-10 I.R.B. 11].

[3] Deferred Stock Payments

The acquiring corporation in a share exchange acquisition may want to defer determination of the number of its voting shares it wishes to exchange for shares of the acquired corporation. The acquiring corporation may wish to observe performance of the acquired corporation as its subsidiary, it may question the ability of the acquired corporation to sustain its past pattern of growth, or it may wish to withhold computation of the shares to be exchanged for the acquired corporation until pending litigation against the acquired corporation has been determined [see Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, ch. 4, Tax-Free Acquisitions, § 4.03[4][c] (Matthew Bender)]. A plan that defers this determination to some specified future time is known as a deferred stock payment plan.

Ordinarily, a deferred stock payment plan is based on future earnings of the acquired corporation. The more the acquired corporation earns as a subsidiary of the acquiring corporation, the more the acquiring corporation is willing to pay for it, and the more voting shares of the acquiring corporation or its parent the former shareholders of the acquired corporation may receive [Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, ch. 4, Tax-Free Acquisitions, § 4.03[4][c] (Matthew Bender)]. The Internal Revenue Service has ruled that such a deferred stock payment plan does not destroy a share exchange's status as a tax-free reorganization. When the shareholders of the acquired corporation receive in the exchange of nonassignable contingent contractual right to receive additional voting shares of the acquiring corporation based on the future earnings of the acquired corporation, the IRS has ruled the "solely for voting shares" requirement of the statute is not violated and the exchange is a tax-free reorganization [Rev. Rul. 66-112, 1966-1 C.B. 68].

The IRS has issued guidelines relating to deferred stock payment plans as they relate to both shares-for-shares tax-free reorganizations and assets-for-shares tax-free reorganizations. Although the guidelines are simply for the IRS' own use in issuing ruling letters on proposed transactions and do not purport to be substantive law [Rev. Proc. 77-37, 1977-2 C.B. 568], they are worth noting. According to the guidelines, all the shares that are to be issued by the acquiring corporation or its parent in exchange for the shares or assets of an acquired corporation need not be issued immediately on transfer of the acquired corporation's shares or assets to the acquiring corporation. The IRS will still issue a ruling letter saying the transaction is a tax-free reorganization, provided that all of the following conditions are satisfied [Rev. Proc. 77-37]:

- All of the shares of the acquiring corporation or its parent that are to be issued in the exchange are issued within five years from the date of the transfer of the acquired corporation's assets to the acquiring corporation or the initial shares are originally distributed for shares of the acquired corporation.

- There is a valid business reason for not issuing all of the acquiring corporation's shares immediately, such as the difficulty in determining the value of one or both of the corporations involved in the reorganization.

- The maximum number of shares which may be issued in the exchange is stated.

- At least 50 percent of the maximum number of shares of each class which may be issued are issued in the initial distribution.

- The agreement evidencing the right to receive shares in the future is either nonassignable or is not evidenced by negotiable certificates and is not readily marketable.

- The right to receive shares in the future can give rise only to the receipt of additional shares of the acquiring corporation or additional shares of the acquiring corporation's parent, as the case may be.

[4] Creeping Control Situations

A corporation may acquire control [see I.R.C. § 368(c)] in stages through a series of stock-for-stock exchanges, rather than all at once, and still qualify the entire series of exchanges as a type B reorganization. Under the Treasury Regulations, a series of stock-for-stock exchanges transacted over a relatively short period of time (such as 12 months) will qualify if the solely for stock requirement is met throughout and control requirements are met at the end [Treas. Reg. § 1.368-2(c)].

The control requirement also may be met in stages by an initial purchase of stock of the corporation to be acquired followed at a later time by a stock-for-stock exchange. For example, assume corporation A purchases a 25 percent interest in corporation B. At some later time, corporation A exchanges its stock for 60 percent of the stock in corporation B. The stock-for-stock exchange qualifies as a type B reorganization because Corporation A meets the control requirement after the exchange by owning 85 percent of corporation B stock [Treas. Reg. § 1.368-2(c)].

Once the control requirement is met, any subsequent stock- for-stock-exchange between the two corporation that meets the solely for stock requirement will qualify as a type B reorganization [Treas. Reg. § 1.368-2(c)].

[5] Business Purpose and Continuity of Business Interest

A stock-for-stock reorganization [I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(B)] must meet the general business purpose and continuity of business enterprise and interest requirements applicable to all reorganizations [see Treas. Reg. § 1.368-1(c)-(e)]. To obtain the nonrecognition treatment of a qualified reorganization, therefore, the transaction must have a bona fide business purpose and may not be a device simply to avoid taxes [Treas. Reg. § 1.368-1(c)].

The continuity of business enterprise requirement means that the acquiring corporation must either continue the acquired corporation's historic business or use a significant portion of the acquired corporation's business assets in a business after the reorganization [Treas. Reg. § 1.368-1(d)(1)]. The continuity of interest requirement means that some proprietary interest of the acquired corporation must be preserved so that transactions that resemble sales do not qualify for nonrecognition treatment available to qualified reorganizations [Treas. Reg. § 1.368-1(e)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 11, Merger and Reorganization Issues .

[6] Income Tax Basis for Acquired Assets and Shares

In tax-free reorganizations generally, recognition of gain is deferred pursuant to substituted and carryover basis provisions. In a tax-free "B" reorganization, the shareholders receiving shares of the acquiring corporation have a "substituted" basis equal to their basis in the shares of the acquired corporation [I.R.C. § 358]. The acquiring corporation does not obtain a new income tax basis for either the shares or assets of the acquired corporation. It receives a "carryover" basis for the stock received equal to the transferors' former basis [I.R.C. § 362(b); see Ch. 11, Merger and Reorganization Issues]. Because the acquired corporation continues as a separate legal and tax entity after the exchange, the income tax basis of its assets also remains unchanged [see Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, ch. 4, Tax-Free Acquisitions (Matthew Bender)]. In contrast to an acquisition by taxable purchase of shares, in which the acquiring corporation may step-up the basis of the acquired corporation's assets pursuant to I.R.C. § 338 [see § 11A.22[3]], there is no method for the acquiring corporation in a tax-free "B" reorganization to step-up the basis of those assets. For a further discussion of the basis rules for the various acquisition methods, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues .

[7] Net Operating Loss Carryforward

An acquiring corporation succeeds to the net operating loss carryover of an acquired corporation only pursuant to I.R.C. § 381 [see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues]. A "B" reorganization is not one of the acquisition methods enumerated in that section that automatically result in a transfer of any net operating loss carryforward from the acquired corporation to the acquiring corporation [see I.R.C. § 381(a)(1), (c)(1)]. Because the acquired corporation continues as a separate legal entity, it can continue to use any net operating loss carryforward deduction to which it is entitled [see I.R.C. § 172; see also Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, ch. 174, The Carryover and Use of Tax Attributes in a Corporate Acquisition (Matthew Bender)]. The acquiring corporation may obtain the carryforward only by merging the acquired corporation into itself [see I.R.C. § 381(a)(2); see also Ch. 11C, Mergers], or by liquidating the acquired corporation, which has become a subsidiary, pursuant to I.R.C. § 332 [see I.R.C. § 381(a)(1)]. However, if a liquidation occurs shortly after the acquisition, and the assets are distributed directly to the purchaser, the entire transaction may be recharacterized as a sale of assets ("C" reorganization) [see Ch. 11E, Acquisition of Assets for Shares] rather than a sale of stock [Rev. Rul. 67-274, 1967-2 C.B. 141].

The amount of carryforward will be limited if, after the reorganization, the percentage of stock in the acquiring corporation owned by one or more five-percent shareholders has increased by more than 50 percentage points over the lowest percentage of stock of the acquired corporation owned by those shareholders at any time during the three-year period ending on the reorganization date [I.R.C. § 382(g)]. The carryforward will be disallowed if the acquiring corporation does not continue the business enterprise of the acquired corporation at all times during the two-year period beginning on the reorganization date [see I.R.C. § 382(c)].

Even if the acquired corporation's shareholders meet the continuity of ownership standards, however, the carryforward still may be disallowed if the acquiring corporation's principal purpose in making the acquisition is the avoidance of federal income tax by obtaining a deduction that it would otherwise not obtain [see I.R.C. § 269(a)]. For a detailed discussion of the net operating loss carryforward and the restrictions on its use, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11D.24

§ 11D.24 Corporate Securities Law Requirements

[1] Qualification and Exemption

Under California's Corporate Securities Law of 1968, it is unlawful to offer or sell any security in California unless it has been "qualified" with the California Commissioner of Corporations, or unless the security is exempt from qualification or is not subject to qualification [Corp. Code §§ 25110, 25120, 25130]. Mergers are exempt from the qualification requirements set forth in Corp. Code § 25120 under specified circumstances. Any change in the rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions on or of outstanding securities, and any exchange of securities by the issuer with its existing security holders exclusively, will be exempt from qualification if the transaction, had it involved the issuance of a new security containing the changed rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions, or a new issuance of the exchanged security, would have been exempt from qualification [see Corp. Code § 25110]. For discussion of qualification and exemption of securities, including the preemption of state qualification or registration of "covered securities," as defined by the National Securities Markets Improvement Act of 1996 [Pub. L. No. 104-290, 110 Stat. 3416 (H.R. 3005); see 15 U.S.C. § 77r], see Ch. 6, Securities Regulation Issues , and Marsh & Volk, PRACTICE UNDER THE CALIFORNIA SECURITIES LAWS, ch. 3A, Federal Preemption of State Securities Regulation (Matthew Bender).

[2] Issuer Transactions

[a] In General

The Corporate Securities Law of 1968 divides the offers and sales of securities that must be qualified into two broad categories: those involving "issuer transactions" and those involving "nonissuer transactions" [Corp. Code §§ 25010, 25011, 25110]. Any type of corporate acquisition method involving the issuance of new shares by one corporation in exchange for the shares or assets of another corporation is an "issuer transaction" under the Corporate Securities Law of 1968 [Corp. Code §§ 25010, 25120]. The acquisition of one corporation by another corporation by means of a statutory merger, an exchange of shares, or an exchange of assets for shares is an "issuer transaction" subject to California's Corporate Securities Law of 1968.

[b] Requirements for Two Types

The Corporate Securities Law further divides issuer transactions subject to the Law into two types, which the statutes refer to as "issuer transactions" [Corp. Code § 25110] and "recapitalizations and reorganizations" [Corp. Code § 25120], respectively. Shares to be issued in a proposed merger or exchange of assets for shares must be qualified as a recapitalization or reorganization [Corp. Code § 25120]. Shares to be issued as part of a proposed share exchange, however, must be qualified as an ordinary issuer transaction in the same manner as the original issuance of shares by a corporation for cash [Marsh & Volk, PRACTICE UNDER THE CALIFORNIA SECURITIES LAWS, ch. 7, Recapitalizations and Reorganizations (Matthew Bender)]. There are several differences between the requirements for qualifications of securities to be issued in a "recapitalization or reorganization" and the requirements for qualifications of securities to be issued in a simple "issuer transaction." The requirements for qualification of securities to be issued in a "recapitalization or reorganization," such as a merger, are set forth in Ch. 11C, Mergers, § 11C.204. The requirements for qualification of securities to be issued in an ordinary "issuer transaction" are covered in Ch. 6H, Qualification of Securities .

The main difference between the requirements for qualification of securities to be issued in the two types of transactions is that the requirements for securities to be issued in a recapitalization or reorganization are less strict than for an original issuer transaction. For example, shares to be issued in a proposed merger or de facto merger are exempt from qualification unless 25 percent of the persons who are to receive them reside in California [Marsh & Volk, PRACTICE UNDER THE CALIFORNIA SECURITIES LAWS, ch. 7, Recapitalizations and Reorganizations, § 7.06[5][b] (Matthew Bender)]. Shares to be issued as part of an ordinary issuer transaction, including a shares for shares exchange, must be qualified if even one shareholder of the acquired corporation resides in California [Marsh & Volk, PRACTICE UNDER THE CALIFORNIA SECURITIES LAWS, ch. 7, Recapitalizations and Reorganizations, § 7.06[5][c](Matthew Bender)]. The permit for a share exchange should be obtained before approval of the shareholders of the acquiring corporation is sought and before any tender offer is made to the shareholders of the corporation sought to be acquired. Ordinarily it is applied for immediately after the board of directors of the acquiring corporation passes a resolution approving the proposed exchange of its shares for the shares of the corporation sought to be acquired.

The reason for imposing stricter controls on a proposed share exchange than on a statutory merger or exchange of assets for shares is because of the lack of group action required in a share exchange by shareholders of the corporation sought to be acquired. They accept the offer to exchange their shares for shares of the acquiring corporation individually. No meeting of shareholders of the acquired corporation to approve the proposed exchange is held and they are not provided with the disclosures usually required to be made to shareholders at such a meeting [Marsh & Volk, PRACTICE UNDER THE CALIFORNIA SECURITIES LAWS, ch. 7, Recapitalizations and Reorganizations, § 7.06[5][c] (Matthew Bender)]. Further, in a merger or assets-for-shares exchange all shares of the acquired corporation must be exchanged for shares of the acquiring corporation or "cashed out" as dissenting shares. In a share exchange, a dissenting shareholder of the acquired corporation simply keeps his or her shares. The fact that 80 percent of the acquired corporation's shareholders reside outside California and have accepted the exchange offer may seriously affect the investment of the lone dissenting acquired corporation shareholder who resides in California. Issuance of any shares pursuant to a proposed share exchange, therefore, must be qualified under the Corporate Securities Law even though only one shareholder of the corporation proposed to be acquired in the exchange resides in California [Marsh & Volk, PRACTICE UNDER THE CALIFORNIA SECURITIES LAWS, ch. 7, Recapitalizations and Reorganizations, § 7.06[5][c] (Matthew Bender)].

DIVISION I: BUSINESS AND NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS
CHAPTER 11D ACQUISITION OF SHARES FOR SHARES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11D.25

§ 11D.25 Nonassumption of Acquired Corporation's Liabilities

A corporation is a distinct separate legal entity from its shareholders, and the shareholders ordinarily are not liable for its obligations [Hollywood Cleaning & Pressing Co. v. Hollywood Laundry Service, Inc. (1932) 217 Cal. 124, 129] . The mere fact that one corporation owns all the shares of another corporation is not of itself sufficient to cause the courts to disregard the separate legal entity of the owned corporation and hold its corporate shareholder liable for its debts [Hollywood Cleaning & Pressing Co. v. Hollywood Laundry Service, Inc. (1932) 217 Cal. 124, 129] . Thus, when one corporation acquires all the shares of another corporation, whether by means of a cash purchase or a tax-free share exchange, it does not become directly liable for the debts and obligations of the acquired corporation [Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, ch. 165, Sales of Stock, § 165.02[2] (Matthew Bender)].

Any purchaser of corporate shares, however, whether for cash or otherwise, runs the risk that his or her purchase may become worthless because of unknown or undisclosed liabilities of the corporation that issued the purchased shares [Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, ch. 161, Review of Factors to Be Considered in Selecting Form of Acquisition, § 161.02[1] (Matthew Bender)]. All corporations have debts and liabilities that appear on their accounting books and financial statements. The acquiring corporation can and should discover these by careful investigation. The acquired corporation may also have debts and liabilities that are not listed on its accounting books and financial statements. This may be because the books and financial statements are improperly kept and prepared, or it may be because the unknown debts or liabilities are inchoate and have not as yet been asserted or arisen [Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, ch. 161, Review of Factors to Be Considered in Selecting Form of Acquisition, § 161.02 (Matthew Bender)]. A claim for injuries caused by a defective product placed on the market by an acquired corporation may not arise until many years after the defective product was placed on the market. When that claim arises, however, it may bankrupt the acquired corporation and cause its shares, for which the acquiring corporation exchanged valuable shares of its own, to become worthless.

For this reason, the agreement for a share exchange usually contains many warranties and representations by shareholders of the corporation whose shares are being acquired. Along with a complete investigation of the history and affairs of the acquired corporation, this may be the only protection the acquiring corporation can obtain against unknown or contingent liabilities of the acquired corporation making its shares worthless [see Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, ch. 2A, General Considerations in Corporate Acquisitions and Mergers, § 2A.03 (Matthew Bender)]. The personal warranties the selling shareholders are willing to give, however, usually are limited to assuring that the relevant balance sheets and accounting books of the acquired corporation are true, complete, and disclose all known liabilities of the acquired corporation [Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, ch. 161, Review of Factors to Be Considered in Selecting Form of Acquisition, § 161.02 (Matthew Bewnder)]. Few shareholders of an acquired corporation would personally warrant to the acquiring corporation that no claims will arise due to defective products placed on the market by the acquired corporation.

CHAPTER 11D ACQUISITION OF SHARES FOR SHARES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11D.26

§ 11D.26 Other Advantages and Disadvantages of Share Exchanges

[1] Advantages

[a] No Board Approval

The most noticeable feature of a share acquisition or share exchange is that it does not need the approval of the management or board of directors of the corporation sought to be acquired [Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, ch. 5D, Acquisitions of Stock, § 5D.01 (Matthew Bender)]. In fact, many corporations have acquired other corporations through share exchange offers made directly through "tender offers" to the shareholders of the corporation sought to be acquired, despite vigorous opposition to the offer by that corporation's board of directors [see Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, ch. 5E, Tender Offers and Takeovers (Matthew Bender)]. In the usual case, however, the fact that approval by the management and directors of the acquired corporation is not required may not be too important to a proposed share acquisition.

A more important feature of a share exchange, especially one designed to be a tax-free reorganization, is the fact that it will dilute the ownership interests and voting rights of existing shareholders of the acquiring corporation. For this reason, the California General Corporation Law requires a proposed share exchange corporation acquisition to be approved by the outstanding shares of each class, regardless of voting rights, of the acquiring corporation or its parent party [see § 11D.21[1]]. The General Corporation Law also gives to minority shareholders of the acquiring corporation who do not approve the proposed share exchange the same rights as dissenting shareholders to a proposed merger to require their shares to be purchased for cash at their appraised fair market value on the date preceding first announcement of the terms of the share exchange [Corp. Code §§ 1200, 1201(a), 1300; see [b], below].

[b] Purchase of Dissenting Shares

An advantage of a proposed corporate acquisition by means of a share exchange is that the right to require the shares to be purchased for cash at their appraised fair market value extends only to dissenting shareholders of the acquiring corporation. Dissenting shareholders of the corporation sought to be acquired have no such right. They merely refuse to exchange their shares in the acquired corporation for shares of the acquiring corporation. This means, however, that after completion of the exchange, the acquiring corporation may be faced with a minority group of problem shareholders of the acquired corporation who hamper its efforts to manage that corporation [Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, ch. 161, Review of Factors to Be Considered in Selecting Form of Acquisition, § 161.08 (Matthew Bender)]. The acquiring corporation can solve this problem by dissolving the acquired corporation or merging it into itself. Dissolution of the acquired corporation or merger of it into the acquiring corporation, however, ordinarily will have no tax advantages and may destroy one of the advantages of a share exchange--continued preservation of the identity and goodwill of the acquired corporation.

[c] No Sales and Use Tax

Another advantage of a share exchange is that it is not subject to California sales and use tax [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 6001 et seq.]. No requisite sale of tangible personal property occurs because the only property transferred--stock--is intangible personal property [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 6016] (definition of tangible personal property)]. For further discussion of the sales and use tax in the context of mergers and acquisitions, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues .

[d] Simplicity

A supposed advantage of acquiring a corporation by means of a share exchange instead of a purchase of its assets or an exchange of its assets for shares of the acquiring corporation is the simplicity of consummating the transaction. As a result of the share exchange, the acquired corporation continues in existence and remains liable for its obligations. Therefore, compliance with the provisions of the Uniform Commercial Code--Bulk Sales Division is not necessary [Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, ch. 161, Review of Factors to Be Considered in Selecting Form of Acquisition, § 161.06 (Matthew Bender)].

An asset transaction will require the drafting, execution, and recording of different instruments of conveyance for different types and in some cases different individual assets of the acquired corporation. In contrast, the only conveyances required in a share exchange are endorsement of the acquired corporation's share certificates for transfer to the acquiring corporation, and issuance of the acquiring corporation's shares to former shareholders of the acquired corporation. This supposed advantage may be illusory, however, when the shares of the acquired corporation are publicly owned, its shareholders are scattered over a wide part of the world, and the acquiring corporation must expend considerable funds and effort in obtaining surrender of their shares for shares of its own. Further, the advantages of a share exchange acquisition's simplicity may be lost when it is or becomes necessary to dissolve the acquired corporation after its shares have been acquired by the acquiring corporation [see Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, ch. 2A, General Considerations in Corporate Acquisitions and Mergers (Matthew Bender)].

[2] Disadvantages

A major disadvantage of a proposed corporation acquisition by means of a share exchange is the need to secure a permit for the exchange from the California Corporations Commissioner, regardless of the percentage of shareholders of the acquired corporation residing in California [see Corp. Code § 25110; see also § 11D.24]. The requirements for obtaining the permit are more burdensome than those for obtaining a permit for a merger or asset acquisition. Furthermore, a permit for a merger or asset acquisition is not necessary unless 25 percent of the affected shareholders reside in California [see Ch. 11C, Mergers, § 11C.204].

As discussed in § 11D.21[1], the proposed share exchange must be approved by the affirmative vote of a majority of all outstanding shares of each class of the acquiring corporation, regardless of any restrictions on their voting rights [see Corp. Code §§ 117, 153]. Finally, undisclosed and unknown liabilities of the acquired corporation may render the shares of the acquired corporation worthless [see § 11D.25]. For a list of the relative advantages and disadvantages of a shares for shares acquisition, including tax factors, see §§ 11D.111, 11D.112.

B. Preliminary Determinations

5-11D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11D.110

§ 11D.110 Preliminary Determinations for Shares-for-Shares Exchange

1. Determine whether proposed share exchange can be arranged as income tax-free reorganization.

a. Shares of acquired corporation must be acquired solely in exchange for voting shares of acquiring corporation or its parent.
(1) Cash may be paid for fractional shares due to shareholders of acquired corporation in exchange [see § 11D.23[2]].

(2) Issuance of shares of acquiring corporation for shares of acquired corporation can be deferred under guidelines issued by Internal Revenue Service to determine value of acquired corporation's shares [see Rev. Proc. 77-37, 1977-2 C.B. 568 ; see also § 11D.23[3]]:
(a) Cannot be deferred for more than five years.

(b) At least 50 percent of maximum number of acquiring corporation's shares to be issued in exchange must be issued and given to acquired corporation's shareholders when shares of acquired corporation are tendered to acquiring corporation.

(c) Right of shareholders of acquired corporation to receive shares in future must be nonassignable and be right to receive only additional shares of acquiring corporation or its parent.

b. Immediately after share exchange qualifying as tax-free reorganization, acquiring corporation must be in control of acquired corporation [I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(B), (c)]:

(1) Must own shares of acquired corporation possessing at least 80 percent of combined voting power of acquired corporation.

(2) Must own at least 80 percent in number of all other outstanding shares of acquired corporation [see § 11D.23[1]].

(3) May acquire required control of acquired corporation in one or series of share exchanges over short period such as 12 months [see § 11D.23[4]].

2. Determine ratio in which shares of corporation sought to be acquired are to be exchanged for shares of acquiring corporation:

a. Depends on relative net worth and value of shares of each corporation.

b. Depends on extent to which shares of acquiring corporation may be diluted by straight shares for shares exchange.

c. Shares of acquired corporation must be exchanged solely for voting shares of acquiring corporation to make exchange tax-free reorganization.

3. Determine whether cash or scrip should be paid for fractional shares due shareholders of acquired corporation in exchange [see § 11D.23[2]].

4. Determine risk that acquired corporation has unknown and inchoate liabilities that may render its shares worthless:

a. Liability or injuries caused by defective products acquired corporation manufactured or placed on market.

b. Other unknown tort liabilities.

5. Determine extent to which shareholders, or principal shareholders, of corporation sought to be acquired will personally warrant and guarantee its liabilities:

a. Warrant financial statements and account books to be true, full, and complete.

b. Guarantee no liabilities existing at all including unknown and inchoate liabilities.

c. Assume liability for some pending litigation or claim, such as action involving patent infringement claim or breach of fiduciary duty.

6. Determine whether proposed corporate acquisition should be consummated by means of share exchange or by other acquisition method such as cash purchase of shares, cash purchase of assets, statutory merger, or exchange of shares for the assets of corporation sought to be acquired.

7. Determine classes of shares of acquiring corporation that must approve proposed share exchange:

a. Need not be approved by any class of outstanding preferred shares when rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on them will remain unchanged [Corp. Code § 1201(a)].

b. Two classes of common shares differing only as to voting rights will be considered as only one class of shares for purposes of voting on proposed share exchange [Corp. Code § 1201(a)].

c. No approval is needed when shareholders of acquiring corporation will, immediately after exchange, still own shares of acquiring corporation possessing more than five-sixths of voting power of the acquiring corporation [Corp. Code § 1201(b)].

NOTE:

In determining whether shareholders of the acquiring corporation, after the exchange, will still own the required amount of shares in the acquiring corporation, any shares owned by any of them before the exchange in the corporation to be acquired must be disregarded [Corp. Code § 1201(b)].

8. Determine amount of votes required by each class of shares of acquiring corporation or its parent party to approve proposed share exchange.

9. Determine whether required approval by outstanding shares of each class of acquiring corporation of proposed share exchange should be obtained at special meeting of shareholders or by written consent of shareholders.

10. Determine whether proposed share exchange can be consummated as friendly transaction with cooperation of management of corporation sought to be acquired, or whether public tender offer directly to shareholders of the corporation sought to be acquired must be made.

§ 11D.111 Advantages of Shares-for-Shares Acquisition

NOTE:
This section and § 1D.112 are designed to assist the attorney in assessing, and counseling a party to a corporate acquisition regarding, the relative advantages and disadvantages of a shares-for-shares acquisition. For additional discussion, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues .

1. Mechanical simplicity:

a. Compliance with escrow and notice requirements of Uniform Commercial Code--Bulk Sales Division is not required [see Com. Code § 6101 et seq.].

NOTE:
For a discussion of those requirements, see Ch. 11B, Cash Purchase of Assets*, § 11B.20[1][c]*; for more detailed discussion, see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business .

b. Separate instruments of conveyance need not be drafted, executed, and recorded for various assets of acquired corporation [see Ch. 11B, Cash Purchase of Assets, § 11B.112[7]].

2. Approval of board of directors and management of corporation sought to be acquired is not needed.

3. Acquiring corporation is not liable after share exchange for debts, liabilities, and obligations of acquired corporation.

4. Separate identity and goodwill of acquired corporation are preserved after share exchange.

5. Dissenting shareholders of corporation sought to be acquired have no right to require their shares to be purchased for cash at their appraised fair market value.

6. Income tax advantages:

a. Share exchange can be arranged as income tax-free reorganization [I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(B); see § 11D.23[1]].

b. By dissolving or merging acquired corporation into itself, acquiring corporation, can obtain net operating loss carryover deduction belonging to acquired corporation [see § 11D.23[7]].

NOTE:

That carryforward, however, may be reduced or disallowed [see I.R.C. §§ 269(b), 382].

7. Transaction is not subject to California sales and use tax.

NOTE:

The sales and use tax [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 6001-7176] imposes a tax on property transferred in other types of reorganizations. For a discussion of the application of this tax to mergers and acquisitions, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues .

5-11D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11D.112

§ 11D.112 Disadvantages of Shares-for-Shares Acquisition

1. Permit must be obtained from California Commissioner of Corporations qualifying shares to be issued in exchange by acquiring corporation [Corp. Code § 25110; see Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Laws, ch. 21, Corporate Securities Law (Matthew Bender)].

NOTE:
The qualification requirements are stricter for a shares for shares exchange ("B" reorganization) [see I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(B)] than for shares to be issued in a statutory merger ("A" reorganization) [see I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(A)] or assets-for-shares exchange ("C" reorganization) [see I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(C)]. Although "A" and "C" reorganizations are exempt from qualification unless 25 percent of the persons who will receive shares reside in California [see Corp. Code § 25103(c)], a permit is required in a "B" reorganization even if only one shareholder of the corporation sought to be acquired lives in California [see § 11D.24].

2. Acquiring corporation cannot acquire new income tax basis for assets of acquired corporation, even by dissolving or merging with acquired corporation after exchange [see I.R.C. § 362(b)].

NOTE:
See § 11D.26. In a taxable acquisition of stock, however, the acquiring corporation may elect to step-up the basis of the acquired corporation's assets [see I.R.C. § 338; see also Ch. 11A, Cash Purchase of Shares*, § 11A.22[3]*].

3. Proposed share exchange must be approved by affirmative vote of majority of all outstanding shares of each class of acquiring corporation, regardless of any restrictions on their voting rights [see § 11D.21[1]].

4. Undisclosed and unknown liabilities of acquired corporation may render shares of acquired corporation worthless [see § 11D.25].

5. When corporation sought to be acquired has large number of shareholders scattered over world, cost and effort required to obtain their acceptance of share exchange offer may be prohibitive.

6. Shareholders of acquiring corporation who do not approve of proposed exchange may require their shares to be purchased for cash at their appraised fair market value.

7. Shareholders of acquired corporation who refuse to exchange their shares may constitute group of minority shareholders hampering effective management of acquired corporation by acquiring corporation after exchange.

§ 11D.120 Procedures for Consummating Shares-for-Shares Exchange

1. Prepare either:

a. Agreement between acquiring corporation and shareholders of corporation sought to be acquired for proposed exchange of shares:
(1) Include warranties and personal representations binding on shareholders of corporation sought to be acquired [see §§ 11D.200-11D.202].

(2) Specify closing date for consummating transaction.

b. Tender offer to be made by acquiring corporation directly to shareholders of corporation sought to be acquired for proposed share exchange [see §§ 11D.203. 11D.204, 11D.208].

2. Prepare resolution of board of directors of acquiring corporation approving share exchange agreement or tender offer, which does the following:

a. Directs appropriate corporate officers to sign agreement or cause tender offer to be mailed to shareholders of corporation sought to be acquired and published.

b. Authorizes and directs appropriate corporate officers to complete, execute, and file with California Corporations Commissioner application for qualification under Corporate Securities Law of 1968 of shares that must be issued in exchange by acquiring corporation.

c. After receipt of qualifying permit from California Corporations Commissioner, calls special meeting of shareholders of acquiring corporation to approve proposed share exchange.

3. Have board of directors of acquiring corporation adopt resolution approving proposed share exchange agreement or tender offer and authorizing filing of application for qualification of shares to be issued in exchange by acquiring corporation.

a. Ensure that proposed share exchange is approved by board of directors itself and not committee of board [see § 11D.21[1]].

b. When shares of acquiring corporation's parent corporation are to be exchanged for shares of the corporation sought to be acquired, ensure that board of directors of parent corporation also approves proposed share exchange.

4. Have officers of acquiring corporation execute and file application to California Corporations Commissioner for permit qualifying shares to be issued in exchange by acquiring corporation [see Ch. 6H, Qualification of Securities ; see also § 11D.24].

NOTE:

A qualification permit is not required in all share exchanges, however. Any change in the rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions of or on outstanding securities, and any exchange of securities by the issuer with its existing security holders exclusively, are exempt from qualification if the transaction, had it involved the issuance of a new security containing the changed rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions, or a new issuance of the exchange security, would have been exempt from qualification [see Corp. Code § 25110] as an issuer transaction [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.103(a); see Corp. Code § 25102]. For discussion of the qualification and exemption of securities, see Ch. 6, Securities Regulation Issues .

5. On receipt of any required permit from California Corporations Commissioner qualifying shares to be issued in exchange, prepare resolution or written consent to be adopted by shareholders of each class of shares issued by acquiring corporation approving proposed share exchange [Corp. Code § 1201].

6. With respect to shareholders of acquiring corporation, either [Corp. Code § 1201]:

NOTE:

For related requirements when the reorganization proposal is made by a party involved in the management and control of the corporation, see P 9, below.

a. Call special shareholders' meeting for shares of each class to approve share exchange [Corp. Code § 600(d)]; or

b. Obtain written consent of majority of shareholders of each class approving share exchange [Corp. Code § 603].

7. Within 10 days after proposed share exchange has been approved by outstanding shares of each class of acquiring corporation, have acquiring corporation send notice to its shareholders of shareholder approval of share exchange [see Corp. Code § 1301].

a. Notice must:

(1) Inform shareholders of approval by outstanding shares of each class of proposed share exchange;

(2) State price determined by acquiring corporation to represent fair market value of dissenting shares;

(3) Contain brief description of procedure dissenting shareholder must follow to require his or her shares to be purchased for cash by acquiring corporation; and

(4) Be accompanied by copy of Corp. Code §§ 1300-1304.

b. Notice must be mailed to each shareholder by first-class mail [Corp. Code §§ 113, 1301(a)].

8. Have officers of acquiring corporation and shareholders of corporation sought to be acquired execute share exchange agreement.

9. If share acquisition is to be made by tender offer directly to shareholders of corporation sought to be acquired:

a. Have officers of acquiring corporation make any filings required by federal Williams Act [see 15 U.S.C. §§ 78m(d), (e), 78n(d)-(f)] with federal Securities Exchange Commission.

NOTE:
The Williams Act requirements will be applicable only if shares of the corporation sought to be acquired are registered on a national securities exchange [see Ch. 11A, Cash Purchase of Shares, § 11A.21[3]*].

b. Have officers of acquiring corporation:

(1) Mail tender offer offering letter [see § 11D.203] to shareholders of corporation sought to be acquired; and

(2) If necessary, publish tender letter in appropriate newspapers or other periodicals.

c. Include affirmative written opinion by independent appraiser regarding fairness of consideration to shareholders if reorganization proposal is made by party who [Corp. Code § 1203(a)]:

NOTE:
For purposes of the written opinion requirement, the term "tender offer" includes a share exchange tender offer [Corp. Code § 1203(a); see Corp. Code § 183.5* (definition); see also § 11D.22*]. However, this requirement does not apply if the target corporation does not have shares held of record by 100 or more persons [see Corp. Code § 605* (determination of shareholders of record)] or if the transaction has been qualified pursuant to Corp. Code § 25113 (qualification of issuer transaction by permit) or 25121 (qualification of recapitalization or reorganization by permit), and no stop order [see Corp. Code §§ 25140, 25143(a)*] is in effect regarding that qualification [Corp. Code § 1203(a)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues .

(1) Directly or indirectly controls corporation;

(2) Is (or is directly or indirectly controlled by) officer or director of corporation; or

(3) Is entity in which a material financial interest [see Corp. Code § 310(a)] is held by director or executive officer of target corporation.

10. On day set for consummation of exchange in exchange agreement or tender offer offering letter:

a. Have certificates for shares of corporation sought to be acquired that are being tendered for shares of acquiring corporation properly endorsed in manner required to transfer shares to acquiring corporation.

b. Determine, under terms of share exchange agreement or tender offer:

(1) Number of voting shares of acquiring corporation that are due to each shareholder of corporation being acquired who tendered his or her shares for transfer to acquiring corporation; and

(2) Amount due each shareholder for any fractional share of acquiring corporation due under terms of share exchange agreement or tender offer.

c. Have acquiring corporation:

(1) Issue predetermined number of voting shares to shareholders of corporation to be acquired who have tendered their shares for transfer; and

(2) Pay to each transferring shareholder predetermined amount due for any fractional share due under terms of share exchange agreement or tender offer.

d. Present all shares of acquired corporation that have been tendered for shares of acquiring corporation to transfer agent of acquired corporation and have agent issue new certificate for those shares showing them owned by acquiring corporation.

§ 11D.132 Reporting Statutory Change in Ownership

1. Prepare and file change in ownership statement.

NOTE:

Real property subject to local property taxation is reassessed when a change in ownership occurs [see Cal. Const., arts. XIII, XIIIA; see also CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, ch. 401, Real Property Valuation and Assessment (Matthew Bender)]. A "change in ownership" is a transfer of a present interest in real property, including the beneficial use of that property, the value of which is substantially equal to the value of the fee interest [Rev. & Tax. Code § 60]. One of the instances in which real property owned by a corporation undergoes a change in ownership is when one corporation obtains control, that is, direct or indirect ownership or control of more than 50 percent of voting stock, of another corporation through the purchase or transfer of that stock [Rev. & Tax. Code § 64(c)(1)]. For purposes of obtaining control, any purchase or transfer of 50 percent or less of the ownership interest through which control or a majority ownership interest is obtained is included [Rev. & Tax. Code § 64(c)(1)]. Such a change requires the acquiring corporation to prepare and file a change in ownership statement [Rev. & Tax. Code § 480.1]. For discussion and an example of a change in ownership statement used for the transfer of real property [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 480], see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements*, § 23.204*.

a. Complete official form [see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 480.1, 480.2].

NOTE:

A form may be obtained from the district office of the State Board of Equalization for the area in which the acquired corporation's real property is located.

b. Have statement signed either by [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 480.1(c), 480.2(c)]:

(1) Officer of corporation; or

(2) Employee or agent designated in writing by board of directors to sign statements on behalf of corporation.

c. File statement as follows [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 480.1(b), 480.2(b)]:

NOTE:
A change in ownership statement must also be filed whenever the State Board of Equalization makes a written request for that statement [Rev. & Tax. Code § 480.1(b)].

(1) Within 45 days from date of change in control.

(2) At Sacramento office of State Board of Equalization.

2. Advise corporation that Board of Equalization will impose monetary penalty of 10 percent of taxes for [Rev. & Tax. Code § 482(b)]:

NOTE:
Rev. & Tax. Code § 64(e) establishes a procedure under which a corporation's tax return must indicate whether control was transferred or sold during the year. Changes are then reported to the State Board of Equalization. Apparently this is one source of information that is used as the basis for the issuance of a written request by the Board. By filing the statement within 45 days from the date of change in ownership, the corporation avoids incurring a penalty following a written request from the Board.

a. Failing to file statement within 45 days from earlier of:

(1) Date of change in control or change in ownership; or

(2) Date of written request by Board of Equalization.

b. Failing to file missing information after filing incomplete statement and receiving second request for information.

5-11D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11D.200

§ 11D.200 Agreement for Exchange of Shares--Voting Shares of Acquiring Corporation to Be Exchanged for Shares of Corporation Sought to Be Acquired in Tax-Free Reorganization

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is an agreement for a share exchange between an acquiring corporation and the shareholders of the corporation whose shares the acquiring corporation seeks to acquire. When one corporation desires to acquire another corporation by means of a share exchange, the first formal document is usually an agreement embodying the agreed terms of the exchange [see Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, ch. 5D, Acquisitions of Stock (Matthew Bender)]. This form contemplates a tax-free share exchange coming within the definition of the Internal Revenue Code of a type "B" Reorganization [see § 11D.23]. Under this agreement, the acquiring corporation is attempting to acquire at least 80 percent of all outstanding shares of the corporation sought to be acquired solely in exchange for its own voting shares [see § 11D.23[1], [2]].

This type of agreement is most often used when both corporations are of moderate size and the corporation sought to be acquired is privately owned. If the corporation sought to be acquired is publicly owned, the acquiring corporation may have to attempt to acquire the shares of that corporation by means of a publicly advertised tender offer [see § 11D.204]. In this form the acquiring corporation and the shareholders of the corporation sought to be acquired make relatively the same covenants, representations, and warranties to each other. If the corporations are disparate in size and the acquiring corporation is larger, it will usually make relatively few covenants, representations, and warranties compared to those it demands from the shareholders of the corporation it seeks to acquire.

CHAPTER 11D ACQUISITION OF SHARES FOR SHARES
PART IV. FORMS

5-11D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11D.201

§ 11D.201 Agreement for Exchange of Shares--Acquisition by Large Corporation of Shares of Smaller Corporation in Tax-Free Reorganization

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is an agreement for the exchange of shares between a corporation seeking to acquire another corporation and the shareholders of the corporation it seeks to acquire. This form is similar to the agreement set forth in § 11D.200, but is particularly designed for use by a large corporation whose securities are publicly traded on a stock exchange. It requires fewer representations and warranties to be made by the acquiring corporation than by the contracting shareholders of the corporation sought to be acquired.

This form, like the form in § 11D.200, is designed to make the stock exchange described in it a form of tax-free reorganization. For discussion of the income tax requirements that must be satisfied for a share exchange to qualify as a tax-free reorganization, see § 11D.23[1]. For the California statutory requirements for a share exchange as a method by which one corporation may acquire another corporation, see § 11D.21.

§ 11D.202 Agreement for Exchange of Shares--Alternative Contract Provision for Deferred Issuance of Acquiring Corporation's Shares

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form consists of contractual provisions for a deferred stock payment plan that may be inserted into a share exchange agreement and still allow the agreement to provide for a tax-free reorganization share exchange. When used, the provisions in this form should be substituted for Article 1 of the form in either § 11D.200 or § 11D.201.

An acquiring corporation may be reluctant to specify the exact number of shares it is willing to exchange for shares of the corporation it seeks to acquire. The value of the shares of the corporation sought to be acquired may be difficult to determine, the acquiring corporation may wish to discover how the acquired corporation functions as its subsidiary, or the acquiring corporation may be doubtful that the growth pattern established by the acquired corporation will continue. For any or all of these reasons, the acquiring corporation may wish to defer the shares it is to issue in exchange for shares of the corporation it seeks to acquire until a future time when the acquired corporation's potential and value can be better determined.

For discussion of plans providing for deferred issuance of the acquiring corporation's shares in exchange for shares of the acquired corporation and, the income tax requirements such a plan must meet, see § 11D.23[3].

The provisions for this deferred payment plan are set forth in Exhibit _____. The amount of shares to be awarded to each shareholder as a result of the operations of any applicable year shall be an amount of shares of common stock of _____[name of acquiring corporation] equal to the total number of shares of common stock of _____[name of acquiring corporation] payable in that year multiplied by the individual shareholder's "multiplier" figure as set forth after each shareholder's name in Exhibit _____.

§ 11D.203 Tender Offer--Offering Letter by Acquiring Corporation Offering to Exchange Its Shares for Shares of Corporation Sought to Be Acquired

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an offering letter that may be sent by the acquiring corporation directly to shareholders of the corporation sought to be acquired, offering to exchange shares of the acquiring corporation for "tendered" shares of the corporation sought to be acquired. A letter offer directly to shareholders of the corporation sought to be acquired is known as a "tender offer" because it offers to acquire all "tendered" shares [Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, Ch. 5E, Tender Offers and Takeovers (Matthew Bender)]. A form of published "tender offer" is set forth in § 11D.208.

A tender offer is employed when the corporation sought to be acquired is publicly owned with numerous shareholders, making direct contact with all shareholders difficult. It is also often used when the acquisition of the corporation sought to be acquired is opposed by the latter corporation's board of directors or management. In such a case, the tender offer is often called a "takeover bid." A tender offer may offer to acquire tendered shares either for cash, securities of the offering corporation, or some combination of cash and securities. When the tender offer is an offer to acquire shares for securities of the offering corporation it is called an "exchange offer" [Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, Ch. 5E, Tender Offers and Takeovers (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Methods of Making Tender Offer

A tender offer typically is made by letter. It may also be published in a financial newspaper. The letter is sent by the offering corporation directly to the shareholders of the acquired corporation, with an accompanying letter of acceptance for use by the accepting shareholder. When the tender offer is in the form of an exchange offer of stock for stock, a prospectus is also enclosed.

The offering corporation typically enters into an agreement with two prominent securities dealers as dealer-managers to handle the acquisition and they, in turn, publish the offer in a financial newspaper. In addition, the dealer-managers usually enter into an agreement with soliciting dealers [Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, Ch. 5E, Tender Offers and Takeovers (Matthew Bender)].

[c] State Regulation of Exchange Tender Offers

The General Corporation Law defines "share exchange tender offer" as any acquisition by one corporation, in exchange in whole or in part for its equity securities (or the equity securities of a corporation that is in control of the acquiring corporation), of shares of another corporation, other than an "exchange reorganization" [Corp. Code § 183.5]. Directors' and shareholders' approval of the share exchange tender offer is required [Corp. Code § 1201.5; see § 11D.22[2]].

The Corporate Securities Law of 1968 does not contain any specific reference to tender offers of any kind. However, several provisions of that law affect a tender offer to exchange shares for securities. Corp. Code § 25110 makes it unlawful for any issuer to offer or sell in California any security issued by it until the sale of that security has been qualified by the California Commissioner of Corporations. The definitions of "sell" and "offer" contained in the Corporate Securities Law [see Corp. Code § 25017(a), (b)] are broad enough to include a tender offer to exchange shares for securities.

The Corporate Securities Law also prohibits any person from publishing any advertisement in California concerning any security sold or offered for sale in California unless a true copy of the advertisement has been filed in the office of the Commissioner of Corporations at least three days before its publication [Corp. Code § 25300(a)]. Furthermore, no such advertisement may be published in California after the Commissioner of Corporations finds that it contains any statement that is false or misleading or omits to make any statement necessary in order to make the statements made, in the light of the circumstances under which they were made, not misleading, and so notifies the person publishing the advertisement in writing [Corp. Code § 25302]. Note, however, that an advertisement is not published in California, and therefore need not be filed with the Commissioner, if it is published in any bona fide newspaper, or other publication of general, regular, and paid circulation which has had more than two-thirds of its circulation outside of California during the preceding 12 months [Corp. Code § 25008(c)].

Finally, Corp. Code § 25210(a) provides that no broker-dealer may effect any transaction in, or induce or attempt to induce the purchase or sale of, any security in California unless he or she has secured from the Commissioner a certificate then in effect authorizing him or her to act as broker-dealer. Furthermore, no agent acting on behalf of a broker-dealer or issuer may effect any transaction in, or induce or attempt to induce the purchase or sale of, any security in California unless the broker-dealer and agent have complied with the rules adopted by the Commissioner [Corp. Code § 25210(b); see Corp. Code § 25213 (Commissioner's power to censure, suspend, deny, or bar agent from employment)]. The Commissioner will review the disciplinary histories of agents on the filing of notice of (1) the employment or transfer of an agent for a broker-dealer, (2) an amendment to the information filed by the agent at the time of employment or transfer, and (3) the termination of employment of the agent from the broker-dealer [Corp. Code § 25210(c)]. For a detailed discussion and forms relating to the qualifications of securities for sale in California under the Corporate Securities Law of 1968, see Ch. 6H, Qualification of Securities .

[d] Federal Regulation of Exchange Tender Offers

Section 5(c) of the Securities Act of 1933 [15 U.S.C. § 77e(c)] makes it unlawful for any person, directly or indirectly, to make use of any means or instruments of transportation or communication in interstate commerce, or of the mails, to offer to sell or buy any security unless a registration statement has been filed as to the security with the United States Securities and Exchange Commission. Section 10 of the Act [15 U.S.C. § 77j] specifies what a prospectus relating to a security must contain, and Section 2 of the Act [15 U.S.C. § 77b(a)(10)] defines a "prospectus" to include any circular, advertisement, letter, or communication which offers any security for sale. The term "prospectus" under this section refers only to documents related to public offerings of securities by an issuer or its controlling shareholders, not private agreements to sell securities [Gustafson v. Alloyd Co., Inc. (1995) 513 U.S. 561, 115 S. Ct. 1061, 1063, 131 L. Ed. 2d

1] . A tender offer for the exchange of shares for securities of the offeror offers a security for sale. As the Chairman of the SEC stated in 1966: "The law recognizes that the shareholder whose stock is sought by means of the exchange offer is in the position both of a seller and a buyer: that is, he is selling the security he presently owns, and buying the security offered to him" [Cohen, A Note on Takeover Bids and Corporate Purchases of Stock, 23 Bus. Law. 149 (1966)].

Section 2 of the Securities Act of 1933, however, excepts from its definition of "prospectus" a notice, circular, advertisement, letter, or communication that states from whom a written prospectus meeting the requirements of Section 10 of the Act may be obtained and that does no more than identify the security, state the price, state by whom orders will be executed, and that contains any other information that the SEC deems necessary or appropriate in the public interest and for the protection of investors. Because a prospectus meeting the requirements of Section 10 of the Act and the SEC rules adopted pursuant to that section will be several pages in length and therefore inconvenient to publish in a newspaper, a published tender offer for exchange of shares is drafted to comply with this exception of Section 2. Consequently, such an offer merely identifies the securities to be exchanged for shares, states the rate of exchange, names the deposit agent by whom orders will be executed, and states how a written prospectus concerning the offer and complying with Section 10 of the Act may be obtained. The offer also contains a notation, usually in italics, that it is not an offer to sell or an offer to buy and that the exchange offer is made only by the prospectus.

[e] Number of Shares Sought to Be Acquired

A tender offer may be made for all the shares of the acquired corporation, or only a number sufficient to give the acquiring corporation the control that it seeks. In the latter case, the offer must contain provisions covering the situation in which fewer or more than the specified number of shares are tendered. The offer may provide that if fewer than the specified number of shares are tendered, the offeror has the choice of purchasing all shares tendered or of purchasing none. The offer may provide that if more than the specified number of shares are tendered, the offeror may purchase all the shares tendered or only the specified number of shares selected on a pro rata basis.

The express policy of the New York and American Stock Exchanges requires that listed issuers making tender offers must purchase the specified number of shares on a pro rata basis from those tendered in the first 10 days of the offer [New York Stock Exchange Company Manual, at A 179-180; American Stock Exchange Co. Guide § 904]. The New York Stock Exchange also requires tender offers by listed issuers to be held open long enough to enable all shareholders of the corporation sought to be acquired to participate, suggesting a minimum of 10 days and recommending 30 days for the offer to remain open [see Kennedy, Tender Moment, 23 Bus. Law. 1091, 1101 (1968)]. The offer always names an independent "deposit agent," usually the stock transfer or corporate trust department of a well-known bank, as escrow holder of the stock pending its purchase by the offeror, and requires share certificates to be transmitted to the deposit agent with a prescribed letter of acceptance and assignment prepared by the offeror [see § 11D.204]. For a detailed discussion of the terms of tender offers, see Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, ch. 5E, Tender Offers and Takeovers (Matthew Bender).

[f] Report by Independent Appraiser

Corp. Code § 1203 provides that if a tender offer (including a "share exchange tender offer" [see Corp. Code § 183.5 (definition)] or a written proposal for approval of a "reorganization" [see Corp. Code §§ 181(a), 1200] or a sale of assets [see Corp. Code § 1001(a)] is made to some or all of a corporation's shareholders by a party to the transaction who has control of or a financial interest in that corporation (an "interested party proposal"), an affirmative opinion in writing regarding the fairness of the consideration to the shareholders of the corporation must be provided to the shareholders or the corporation. This requirement does not apply if the target corporation does not have shares held of record by 100 or more persons [see Corp. Code § 605 (determination of shareholders of record)] or if the transaction has been qualified pursuant to Corp. Code § 25113 or 25121 (qualification of issuer transaction by permit or qualification of recapitalization or reorganization by permit), and no stop order [see Corp. Code §§ 25140, 25143(a)] is in effect regarding that qualification [Corp. Code § 1203(a)]. If a subsequent tender offer or written proposal is made by another person at least 10 days before the date for acceptance of the tendered shares or the vote or notice of shareholder approval on the interested party proposal, additional shareholder notification and withdrawal requirements apply [see Corp. Code § 1203(b)]. For further discussion of this requirement and related requirements when such a proposal is pending at the same time as another proposal for a reorganization [see Corp. Code 181 (definition)] or short-form merger [see Corp. Code § 1203(b); see also Corp. Code §§ 187, 1110 (short-form merger defined)], see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues .

Tax Information

A legal opinion by tax counsel on the tax consequences of the exchange has been received to the effect that if 80 percent or more of the issued and outstanding shares of _____[name of acquired corporation] are exchanged pursuant to the Exchange Offer, the exchanges will not, under existing federal law, result in the recognition of any taxable income to or deductible loss by the stockholders of _____[name of acquired corporation], except that gain or loss will be recognized by those _____[name of acquired corporation] stockholders who sell their fractional interests in _____[name of acquiring corporation] stock, measured by the difference between the adjusted basis of the fractional interests and the consideration received for the fractional interests. The basis of the shares of _____[name of acquiring corporation] stock received by _____[name of acquired corporation] stockholders in the exchange will be the same as the cost or basis of their shares of common stock of _____[name of acquired corporation] exchanged therefor. _____[Name of acquiring corporation] will need to know the cost or basis of your shares of common stock of _____[name of acquired corporation] since _____[name of acquiring corporation] will acquire the same cost or basis. Please furnish this information in the place indicated on the Letter of Acceptance and Assignment.

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a resolution to be adopted by the board of directors of an acquiring corporation approving a proposed exchange of its voting shares for 80 percent or more of all outstanding shares of another corporation. This form differs in one respect from the resolution approving a proposed share exchange contained in § 11D.205, which specifies that the acquiring corporation is already authorized to issue sufficient voting shares to consummate the proposed share exchange that resolution approves. This form, in contrast, is designed to be used by the board of directors of an acquiring corporation when the acquiring corporation is not already authorized to issue sufficient additional shares to consummate the proposed share exchange approved by the resolution. In addition to approving the proposed share exchange, it also approves amendment of the corporation's articles of incorporation to authorize the corporation to issue the additional voting shares required by the approved share exchange.

For discussion of the approval required for a proposed share exchange in California, see § 11D.21[1], [2]. For a discussion of the requirement that the acquiring corporation exchange voting shares for 80 percent or more of all outstanding shares of the corporation to be acquired, see § 11D.23[1], [2].

§ 11D.209 Notice of Approval of Proposed Share Exchange by Outstanding Shares and Right of Dissenting Shareholders to Require Purchase of Dissenting Shares

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a notice that the acquiring corporation to a proposed share exchange must send to its shareholders. The acquiring corporation to a proposed share exchange must purchase for cash, at their fair market value on the day preceding announcement of the proposed share exchange, any of its shares that are "dissenting shares." To protect the rights of its shareholders to force it to purchase any dissenting shares owned by them, the corporation is required to give notice to each of its shareholders within 10 days after the proposed exchange has been approved by its outstanding shares of that approval. The notice must include, or be accompanied by, a brief description of the procedure a shareholder must follow to force the corporation to purchase his or her shares. It must also be accompanied by a copy of Corp. Code §§ 1300-1304 and a statement of the price the corporation determined to be the fair market value of dissenting shares [Corp. Code § 1301(a)].

The nature of a dissenting shareholder's right to require purchase of his or her shares, the definition of dissenting shares, and the procedure to be followed in enforcing a dissenting shareholder's rights, are discussed in Ch. 11C, Mergers, § 11C.400.

NOTICE OF SHAREHOLDERS' APPROVAL OF REORGANIZATION

TO SHAREHOLDERS OF _____[name of corporation]:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that, at a special meeting of shareholders of this corporation held on _____[date], at _____[street address], _____[city], California, the outstanding shares of each class of this corporation approved, as those terms are defined in the General Corporation

Law of California, the principal terms of a reorganization, as defined in the General Corporation Law of California, by which this corporation will acquire 80 percent or more of the shares of the outstanding shares of _____[name of corporation to be acquired] in exchange for its voting common shares by exchanging one of its voting common shares for every _____[number] outstanding shares of _____[name of corporation to be acquired].

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that any shareholder of this corporation may require the corporation to purchase for cash at their fair market value on the day before the first announcement of the reorganization described in this notice any shares owned by the shareholder which come within the definition of "dissenting shares" contained in California Corporations Code Section 1301(b). To be dissenting shares within the definition contained in California Corporations Code Section 1301(b) the shares must have been held of record, that is, outstanding, on the date for determination of the shareholders who were entitled to vote on the reorganization described in this notice and not voted in favor of the reorganization.

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that for a shareholder to enforce his or her right to require this corporation to purchase any dissenting shares owned by him or her, the shareholder must do two things:

1. Within 30 days after the date of the mailing of this notice to the shareholder, the shareholder must serve a written demand for this corporation to purchase his or her dissenting shares and pay the shareholder in cash the fair market value of those shares on the corporation or on a transfer agent of the corporation. The demand must state the number and class of shares held by the shareholder which the shareholder demands the corporation purchase as dissenting shares and the price the shareholder claims to be the fair market value of those shares as of the day before announcement of the proposed reorganization described in this notice.

2. Within 30 days after the date of the mailing of this notice to the shareholder, in addition to making the demand described above, the shareholder must submit the certificate for the shares he or she claims to be dissenting shares to the corporation or its transfer agent so that there may be stamped or endorsed on the share certificate a statement that the shares represented by it are dissenting shares. The certificate should be submitted to the corporation at its principal office at _____[street address], _____[city], California or to its transfer agent, _____[name] at its office at _____[street address], _____[city], California.

Thereafter, if the corporation fails to agree to purchase the shareholder's dissenting shares at an agreed price or denies they are dissenting shares, the shareholder may file a complaint against the corporation to force it to purchase the shares in the Superior Court of the State of California for the County of _____, the County where the principal executive office of this corporation is located. The complaint must be filed by the shareholder with the court within six months after the date on which this notice was mailed to the shareholder. A copy of California Corporations Code Sections 1300-1304 governing the procedure a shareholder must follow to require this corporation to purchase dissenting shares owned by the shareholder is enclosed with this notice.

[OR, if corporation has more than one class of shares outstanding:]

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that this corporation has determined that the following prices represent the fair market value of dissenting shares of this corporation as of the day before the first announcement of the terms of the reorganization described in this notice: _____[specify, e.g.:]

5-11E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide Scope

Scope

Scope

This chapter examines the nature, purpose, and requirements for the acquisition by one corporation of all, or substantially all, the assets of another corporation in exchange for its shares. The Legal Background discusses the advantages and disadvantages of a corporate acquisition by means of an assets-for-shares exchange and the manner in which such an acquisition is treated by California's General Corporation Law. It also discusses the income tax requirements for making an assets-for-shares exchange a form of tax-free corporate "reorganization" under the Internal Revenue Code. The Legal Background also covers the requirements for qualifying the securities or shares that must be issued as part of an assets-for-shares acquisition under the California securities laws. The Transaction Guide sets forth the procedures required for an acquisition of assets for shares. This chapter also contains forms for accomplishing an acquisition of assets in exchange for shares, either of the acquiring corporation or its parent or subsidiary corporation.

For a discussion and comparison of the various methods of corporate acquisition, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues . These methods are covered individually in Ch. 11A, Cash Purchase of Shares ; Ch. 11B, Cash Purchase of Assets ; Ch. 11C, Mergers ; and Ch. 11D, Acquisition of Shares for Shares .

Further detailed discussion of the acquisition of assets for shares is contained in Ballantine & Sterling, CALIFORNIA CORPORATION LAWS, ch. 12, Corporate Acquisitions, Mergers, and Reorganizations (Matthew Bender). Applicable forms are set forth in Ballantine & Sterling, CALIFORNIA CORPORATION LAWS, Appendix A, Forms 13.01-13.06.

CHAPTER 11E ACQUISITION OF ASSETS FOR SHARES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11E.20

§ 11E.20 Acquisition of Assets for Shares

[1] Assets-for-Shares Acquisition as "De Facto Merger"

Of the five principal methods by which one corporation may acquire another corporation [see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues], none is more controversial than the exchange of shares of the acquiring corporation for all assets of the corporation sought to be acquired. This acquisition method not only gave rise to the "de facto merger doctrine," but was also the principal cause of the "reorganization" provisions contained in the present California General Corporation Law [see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues ; see also Hills, Consolidation of Corporations by Sale of Assets and Distribution of Shares, 19 Cal. L. Rev. 349 (1931)].

The de facto merger doctrine treats an exchange of assets of one corporation for shares of another corporation followed by dissolution of the asset-selling corporation, with respect to the shareholders of the two corporations, as a statutory merger of the corporations [see Farris v. Glen Alden Corp. (1958) 393 Pa. 427, 143 A.2d 25, 31 ; see also [2], below]. That doctrine has been codified in California [see Assembly Select Comm. Rep., at 27, 93]. Both mergers, other than short-form mergers, and assets-for-shares exchanges are defined in California's General Corporation Law as "reorganizations" [Corp. Code § 181(a), (c)]. A merger is labeled a "merger reorganization" [Corp. Code § 181(a)], and an exchange of assets for shares is labeled by the Law a "sale-of-assets reorganization" [Corp. Code § 181(c)]. The same type of shareholder and director approval is required by the General Corporation Law for either type of "reorganization" [see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues ; see also § 11E.21[1]].

[2] Background and Evolution

[a] Comparison With Statutory Merger

In a statutory merger of two corporations, shareholders of the disappearing corporation exchange their shares for shares of the surviving corporation and on perfection of the merger all assets of the disappearing corporation become property of the surviving corporation [Corp. Code §§ 1101, 1107(a)]. Almost the same result can be achieved by having one corporation exchange all its assets for shares of another corporation and then dissolve [Hills, Consolidation of Corporations by Sale of Assets and Distribution of Shares, 19 Cal. L. Rev. 349 (1931)]. The result is the same upon conclusion of either a statutory merger or an exchange of assets for shares followed by dissolution of the selling corporation. The assets of the selling or disappearing corporation are owned by the acquiring or surviving corporation, former shareholders of the selling or disappearing corporation own shares in the acquiring or surviving corporation, and the selling or disappearing corporation no longer exists [see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues].

Historically, however, there were three differences between a statutory merger and an exchange of assets for shares followed by dissolution of the asset-selling corporation [see [b]-[d], below]. The differences appeared to encourage corporate management and attorneys to combine corporations by means of an assets-for-shares exchange followed by dissolution of the asset-selling corporation rather than by means of a statutory merger of the corporations [see Hills, Consolidation of Corporations by Sale of Assets and Distribution of Shares, 19 Cal. L. Rev. 349 (1931)]. These differences made an exchange of assets for shares followed by dissolution of the selling corporation less protective of shareholder and creditor rights than a statutory merger.

[b] Rights of Minority Shareholders

First, in a statutory merger, minority shareholders of a corporation who objected to the merger had the right, as "dissenting shareholders," to require the corporations to the merger to purchase their shares for cash at the appraised fair market value of the shares prior to the merger. In contrast, minority shareholders of a corporation that was a party to an assets-for-shares exchange who objected to the exchange had no such right to require the corporations to the exchange to "cash out" their shares [see Note, Corporations: Sale of Assets: Dissenting Shareholders' Appraisal Right in Absence of Appraisal Statute, 46 Cal. L. Rev. 283 (1958)]. The absence of this right in an exchange of assets for shares followed by dissolution of the selling corporation led to development of the "de facto merger" doctrine by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court [Farris v. Glen Alden Corp. (1958) 393 Pa. 427, 143 A.2d 25, 31] . That court held that a proposed exchange of assets for shares followed by dissolution of the selling corporation was in effect a merger protected by that state's merger statutes giving dissenting shareholders of a disappearing corporation in a merger the right to require purchase of their shares for cash at their appraised fair market value [Farris v. Glen Alden Corp. (1958) 393 Pa. 427, 143 A.2d 25, 31] .

[c] Shareholder Approval Not Required

Second, shareholders of the acquiring corporation in a proposed exchange of assets for shares usually were not required to approve the exchange. A proposed statutory merger had to be approved by the shareholders of each corporation to the merger, including shareholders of the surviving corporation to the merger [see Hills, Consolidation of Corporations by Sale of Assets and Distribution of Shares, 19 Cal. L. Rev. 349, 351 (1931)]. The reason for requiring approval of a proposed merger by shareholders of the surviving corporation to a merger was to prevent dilution of their ownership interests and voting rights in the surviving corporation without their consent [see Assembly Select Comm. Rep., at 94; see also Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, Ch. 161, Review of Factors to Be Considered in Selecting Form of Acquisition Summary, § 161.10 (Matthew Bender)]. Until 1977, shareholders of a California corporation that proposed to issue additional shares in exchange for the assets of another corporation were not required to approve the exchange [see Hills, Consolidation of Corporations by Sale of Assets and Distribution of Shares, 19 Cal. L. Rev. 349, 351 (1931)].

[d] Nonliability for Debts of Disappearing Corporation

Third, the surviving corporation to a statutory merger automatically assumes all debts and liabilities of the disappearing corporations to the merger [Corp. Code § 1107(a)]. The general rule is when one corporation sells or transfers all its assets to another corporation, even in return for shares of the purchasing corporation, the acquiring corporation is not liable for the debts and liabilities of the selling corporation unless the purchasing corporation is merely a continuation of the selling corporation or the transaction is entered into fraudulently [Ortiz v. South Bend Lathe (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 842, 846, 120 Cal. Rptr. 556 ; see McClellan v. Northridge Park Townhome Owners Association, Inc. (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 746, 753-756, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 702 (successor corporation properly added as judgment debtor in addition to bankrupt predecessor, when substantial evidence supported conclusion that successor was mere continuation of predecessor)].

[e] Present Status

The first two of the above-mentioned three differences between a statutory merger and an exchange of assets for shares were resolved by California's present General Corporation Law, which became effective in 1977. The rights of shareholders of corporations that are parties to a proposed statutory merger and the rights of shareholders of corporations that are parties to a proposed exchange of assets for shares are now the same in California [see § 11E.21[1]]. The third difference changed with the development of a doctrine permitting products liability plaintiffs in some circumstances to sue the purchaser of the assets of the firm that sold the defective product [see § 11E.24[4]].

DIVISION I: BUSINESS AND NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS
CHAPTER 11E ACQUISITION OF ASSETS FOR SHARES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11E.21

§ 11E.21 California Statutory Requirements

[1] Director and Shareholder Approval

[a] Basic Requirement

A proposed exchange of assets of one corporation for shares of another corporation, like a statutory merger, must be approved by the board of directors and outstanding shares of each class of both the purchasing or acquiring corporation and the corporation whose assets are being acquired [Corp. Code §§ 1200(c), 1201(a)]. Dissenting shareholders of each corporation, like dissenting shareholders of each corporation to a statutory merger, are also given the right to require their corporation to purchase their dissenting shares for cash at their appraised fair market value before first announcement of the proposed exchange [Corp. Code § 1300(a); see § 11E.208].

[b] Board of Directors of Both Corporations

Because a proposed exchange of assets for shares must be approved by both the board of directors and outstanding shares of each corporation involved, it cannot be approved merely by a committee of the board [Corp. Code §§ 151, 311]. Ordinarily, the board of directors of a corporation may act through a duly appointed and authorized committee of board members appointed by it [Corp. Code § 311]. A committee of the board, however, cannot approve on behalf of the corporation's board of directors any matter, such as a proposed merger or proposed exchange of assets for shares, that also must be approved by the shareholders or outstanding shares of the corporation [Corp. Code § 311(a)].

[c] Shareholders of Both Corporations

California's General Corporation Law requires, for either a proposed merger or a proposed assets-for-shares exchange, that the principal terms of the proposed transaction be approved by the outstanding shares of each class of each corporation to the proposed transaction [Corp. Code § 1201(a)]. The term "approved by the outstanding shares" means the proposed merger or assets-for-shares exchange must be approved by the affirmative vote of a majority of the outstanding shares of each class, regardless of any limitations or restrictions on their voting rights, of each corporation to the merger or exchange [Corp. Code §§ 117, 152, 1201(a)]. The mere approval by the affirmative vote of a majority of the outstanding shares of each class present at a shareholders' meeting at which a quorum of shares is represented is insufficient. The proposed reorganization must be approved by the affirmative vote of a majority of all the outstanding shares of each class of each corporation, regardless of voting rights [but see Corp. Code §§ 152, 153]. When the articles of incorporation of either corporation to the proposed exchange require the exchange to be approved by a greater than majority vote of any class of outstanding shares, the exchange must be approved by that greater than majority vote of all outstanding shares of that class [Corp. Code § 152].

[d] Shareholders of Close Corporation

When the selling corporation in an assets-for-shares exchange is a close corporation [see Corp. Code § 158(a)], the proposed exchange ordinarily will have to be approved by the affirmative vote of at least two thirds of each class of its outstanding shares when the purchasing corporation in the exchange is not a close corporation [Corp. Code § 1201(e)]. Any proposed "reorganization" must be approved by at least two thirds of each class of the outstanding shares of any close corporation when the reorganization will result in that corporation's shareholders receiving shares of a corporation that is not a close corporation [Corp. Code § 1201(e)]. Ordinarily, an assets-for-shares exchange will be followed by dissolution of the selling corporation and distribution by it to its shareholders of the purchasing corporation's shares it received in the assets-for-shares exchange. The articles of incorporation of a close corporation may provide for a less than two-thirds vote by each class of its outstanding shares, but not for less than a majority vote by each class of its outstanding shares [Corp. Code § 1201(e)].

[e] Preferred Shares

If the terms of the assets-for-shares reorganization provide that a class or series of preferred shares will receive as a distribution a lesser amount than would be required by applicable article provisions, the principal terms of the reorganization must be approved by the same percentage of outstanding shares of that class or series that would be required to approve an amendment of the article provisions to provide for the distribution of that lesser amount [Corp. Code § 1202(b); see Ch. 10, Amendment of Articles].

[f] Triangular Transactions

In some situations an assets-for-shares exchange may involve a "triangular transaction" [see Assembly Select Comm. Rep., at 93]. In that type of transaction the assets of the selling corporation are transferred to the acquiring corporation, not in exchange for shares of the acquiring corporation, but in exchange for shares of the acquiring corporation's parent corporation. Such a transaction tends to dilute the ownership interests and voting rights in the parent corporation itself of its outstanding shareholders. California's General Corporation Law therefore requires approval of the proposed assets-for-shares exchange by the boards of directors and outstanding shares of each class of both the selling and acquiring corporation, and also by the board of directors and outstanding shares of each class of the acquiring corporation's parent, which it labels a "parent party" to the proposed exchange [Corp. Code §§ 1200(e), 1201(a)]. However, if the parent party [Corp. Code § 1200(e)] is a foreign corporation (other than one subject to the General Corporation Law [see Corp. Code § 2115(a); see also Ch. 12B, Foreign Corporations and Associations]), any requirement or lack of requirement for approval by the outstanding shares of the foreign corporation is not governed by Corp. Code §§ 1200 and 1201. Instead, the law of the state or place of incorporation of the foreign corporation will apply [Corp. Code § 1202(c)].

When a corporation has two classes of common shares differing only as to voting rights, they will be considered as a single class of shares for purposes of voting on a proposed merger or exchange of assets for shares [Corp. Code § 1201(a)].

[2] Conditions Excusing Shareholder Approval

[a] Purpose of Approval Requirement

The purpose of requiring shareholder approval of either a merger or a de facto merger (that is, an assets-for-shares exchange) is to prevent corporate action significantly changing the rights and interests of shareholders without their consent [see Assembly Select Comm. Rep., at 93, 94]. When a proposed merger or assets-for-shares exchange will not result in any significant change in the rights or interests of shareholders of a particular class or corporation, their approval of the proposed merger or exchange is not required and is excused by the General Corporation Law [see Assembly Select Comm. Rep., at 93, 94].

A proposed assets-for-shares exchange or a proposed merger need not be approved by shareholders of a particular class or a particular corporation in two situations described in Corp. Code § 1201(a), (b), and discussed in [b] and [c], below. However, notwithstanding those provisions, the principal terms of a reorganization must be approved by all shareholders of any class or series if, as a result of the reorganization, the holders of that class or series become personally liable for any obligations of a party to the reorganization, unless all holders of that class or series have dissenters' rights [Corp. Code § 1201(g); see Corp. Code § 1300 et seq.].

[b] Acquiring Shareholders Unaffected

An exception to the shareholder approval requirement exists with respect to preferred shareholders when preferred shareholders of the acquiring corporation or its parent party will be unaffected by the proposed assets-for-shares exchange. No approval of any class of outstanding preferred shares of the acquiring corporation or its parent party is required when the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on that class of shares remain unchanged by the proposed assets-for-shares exchange [Corp. Code § 1201(a); but see Corp. Code § 1201(g), discussed in [a], above].

[c] Control Not Diluted

Shareholder approval also is excused when the corporate control exercised by the shares of a particular corporation will not be unduly diluted by the proposed exchange. Approval of a proposed exchange by the outstanding shares of a particular corporation is not required when that corporation or its existing shareholders, immediately after the exchange, will own equity securities of the acquiring corporation or its parent party possessing more than five-sixths of the voting power of the acquiring corporation or its parent party [Corp. Code § 1201(b); but see Corp. Code § 1201(g), discussed in [a], above]. For purposes of the dilution test, equity securities of the acquiring corporation or its parent party means either shares or debt securities convertible into shares [Corp. Code §§ 168, 1201(b)]. It does not mean mere warrants or rights to subscribe to or purchase shares of the acquiring corporation or its parent party [Corp. Code § 1201(b)].

For purposes of the dilution test, the total voting power of the acquiring corporation or its parent party, which means the power to elect directors of the acquiring corporation or its parent party [Corp. Code § 194.5] immediately after the exchange, is determined by assuming that all of its securities that are convertible, either immediately or at some future time, into voting shares have been so converted [Corp. Code § 1201(b)]. It is not to be assumed, however, that any warrant or right to subscribe to or purchase shares of the acquiring corporation or its parent party has been exercised [Corp. Code § 1201(b)]. In determining whether the shareholders of a selling corporation, immediately after an exchange of assets for shares, will own equity securities of the acquiring corporation or its parent party possessing more than five sixths of the voting power of the acquiring corporation or its parent party, any shares owned by them in the acquiring corporation or its parent party before the exchange are to be disregarded [Corp. Code § 1201(b)].

In two situations, shareholders of the selling corporation in an assets-for-shares exchange must approve the exchange even if the shareholders of the corporation, after the exchange, will possess more than five sixths of the voting power of the acquiring corporation or its parent party:

- First, the principal terms of the proposed exchange must be approved by the outstanding shares of any class of the selling corporation if holders of those shares are to receive, as a result of the exchange, shares of the acquiring corporation having different rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions from their present shares [Corp. Code § 1201(d)]. Shares in a foreign corporation to be received in exchange for shares in a domestic California corporation have different rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions from the receiving shareholders' present shares for this purpose [Corp. Code § 1201(d)].

- Second, the principal terms of the proposed exchange must be approved by the outstanding shares of each class of the selling corporation, regardless of its shareholders' voting interest after the exchange in the acquiring corporation or its parent party, if the selling corporation is a close corporation and the acquiring corporation is not [Corp. Code § 1201(e)]. In such a case, the principal terms of the proposed exchange must be approved by the affirmative vote of at least two thirds of each class of outstanding shares of the selling corporation unless its articles of incorporation provide for a lesser vote, but not less than majority vote of each class [Corp. Code § 1201(e)].

[3] Report by Independent Appraiser

When a tender offer (including a share exchange tender offer) or a written proposal for approval of an assets-for-shares exchange, other "reorganization" [see Corp. Code § 181(b), 1200], or sale of assets [see Corp. Code § 1001(a)] is made to some or all of a corporation's shareholders by a party to the transaction who has control of or a financial interest in that corporation, an affirmative opinion in writing regarding the fairness of the consideration to the shareholders must be provided to the shareholders or the corporation. This requirement does not apply, however, if the target corporation does not have shares held of record by 100 or more persons [see Corp. Code § 605 (determination of shareholders of record)], or if the transaction has been qualified pursuant to Corp. Code § 25113 (qualification of issuer transaction by permit) or Corp. Code § 25121 (qualification of recapitalization or reorganization by permit), and no stop order [see Corp. Code §§ 25140, 25143(a)] is in effect regarding that qualification [Corp. Code § 1203(a)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues .

CHAPTER 11E ACQUISITION OF ASSETS FOR SHARES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11E.22

§ 11E.22 Income Tax Factors and Requirements

[1] Status as Tax-Free Reorganization

[a] Nonrecognition of Gain or Loss

Gain or loss is not recognized for federal income tax purposes when a corporation that is a party to a reorganization exchanges property, pursuant to the plan of reorganization, solely for stock or securities in another corporation that is a party to the reorganization [I.R.C. § 361(a)]. The receipt of other property ("boot"), however, that is not distributed pursuant to the reorganization will result in the recognition of gain up to the fair market value of the property (or the amount of money received) [I.R.C. § 361(b)]. No gain or loss is recognized for income tax purposes when stock or securities of a corporation that is a party to a "reorganization" are exchanged, pursuant to the plan of "reorganization," solely for stock or securities in another corporation that is a party to the "reorganization" [I.R.C. § 354(a)].

Both of these nonrecognition provisions are applicable to a typical de facto merger, that is, an assets-for-shares exchange followed by dissolution of the asset selling corporation, if such a transaction is a "reorganization" for income tax purposes [see I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(C), (D)]. The selling corporation will not recognize any gain or loss upon distribution to its shareholders (pursuant to the plan of reorganization) of shares that were received from the acquiring corporation pursuant to the plan of reorganization [I.R.C. § 361(e)]. The shareholders will have no recognizable gain or loss when it exchanges its property pursuant to the plan of "reorganization" for shares of the acquiring corporation, which would also be a party to the "reorganization" [I.R.C. § 361(a); Rabkin & Johnson, FEDERAL INCOME, GIFT AND ESTATE TAXATION, ch. 32, Reorganization Patterns (Matthew Bender)]. Similarly, when the selling corporation dissolves and distributes to its shareholders the shares of the acquiring corporation it received in the assets-for-shares exchange, its shareholders should have no recognizable gain or loss for income tax purposes if the assets-for-shares exchange was a "reorganization" for income tax purposes. On its dissolution, the shareholders of the selling corporation are merely exchanging their shares in it, a party to a "reorganization," for shares of the acquiring corporation, a party to the "reorganization," pursuant to the plan of "reorganization" [I.R.C. § 354(a)].

[b] Advance Rulings

An assets-for-shares exchange may receive a favorable advance ruling from the Internal Revenue Service even if the acquired corporation is not dissolved in the reorganization to meet the distribution requirement under I.R.C. § 368(a)(2)(G)(i). The IRS will rule favorably if the exchange plan calls for continuing the corporation shell with minimum required capitalization for the purpose of selling the corporate charter to an unrelated party within 12 months after the exchange [see Rev. Proc. 89-50, 1989-2 C.B. 631].

[c] "C" Reorganizations

The Internal Revenue Code defines three types of corporate acquisitions as "reorganizations" for income tax purposes [I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)]. The third type is often referred to as a "C Reorganization" [see Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, ch. 4, Tax-Free Acquisitions, § 4.04 (Matthew Bender)]. A C reorganization is the acquisition by one corporation in exchange solely for all or a part of its voting shares of substantially all of the property of another corporation [I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(C)]. The exchange is still considered a "reorganization" for income tax purposes when one corporation acquires in exchange solely for all or part of the voting shares of its parent corporation, instead of for its own voting shares, substantially all the assets of another corporation [I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(C)]. The assumption by the acquiring corporation or its parent of a liability of the corporation whose assets are so acquired is disregarded for purposes of determining whether the solely for stock requirement is met [I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(C)].

To qualify under the statutory definition of an assets-for-shares exchange as a "reorganization" for income tax purposes, two requirements must be met [I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(C)]:

- The acquiring corporation must acquire "substantially all of the property" of the selling corporation [see [2], below].

- The acquiring corporation must acquire it in exchange solely for its voting shares or the voting shares of its parent corporation [see [3], below].

[2] Substantially All Assets Requirement

[a] Question of Fact

For an assets-for-shares exchange to be a tax-free "reorganization" for federal income tax purposes, the acquiring corporation must exchange its voting shares for "substantially all of the property" of the selling corporation [I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(C)]. Whether the acquiring corporation in a given assets-for-shares exchange has acquired "substantially all" of the assets of the selling corporation is a question of fact. The answer will depend on the facts and circumstances in each case rather than on any particular percentage [Rev. Rul. 57-518, 1957-2 C.B. 253].

Most writers agree that it is the value of the acquired assets, rather than the number of items or their income tax basis to the selling corporation, that determines whether they constitute "substantially all" the assets of the selling corporation [see Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, ch. 4, Tax-Free Acquisitions, § 4.04[2][a]; Rabkin & Johnson, FEDERAL INCOME, GIFT AND ESTATE TAXATION, § 32.04(1) (Matthew Bender)]. In one frequently cited case, the transfer of 68 percent of the selling corporation's assets was held to be insufficient although all of its operating assets had been transferred to the acquiring corporation [Pillar Rock Packing Co. v. Commissioner of Int. Rev. (9th Cir. 1937) 90 F.2d 949, 950] . In another frequently cited case, the transfer of 86 percent of the selling corporation's assets were held sufficient, the court stressing that they constituted all its "operating" assets [Commissioner of Int. Rev. v. First Nat'l Bank (3rd Cir. 1939) 104 F.2d 865, 870] . The only generalization that can be safely made concerning the "substantially all" requirement is that all the facts and circumstances of the particular case must be carefully considered [see Rabkin & Johnson, FEDERAL INCOME, GIFT AND ESTATE TAXATION, § 32.04(1) (Matthew Bender); Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, ch. 180, Tax-Free Asset Deals: C and D Reorganizations, § 180.01[2]] (Matthew Bender).

[b] IRS Guidelines

The Internal Revenue Service has issued guidelines for issuing ruling letters on particular proposed assets-for-shares exchanges. It will consider the "substantially all" assets requirement of the definition of such an exchange as a tax-free reorganization met when at least 90 percent of the fair market value of the net assets of the selling corporation and at least 70 percent of the fair market value of the gross assets of the selling corporation are to be transferred to the acquiring corporation in the exchange. All payments paid to dissenting shareholders and all distributions made by the selling corporation immediately prior to the exchange will be considered under the guidelines set forth by the IRS as property owned by the selling corporation immediately before the exchange [Rev. Proc. 86-42]. However, the IRS has also ruled that a regular quarterly dividend paid to its shareholders by the selling corporation immediately before an assets-for-shares exchange will not be taken into consideration in determining whether substantially all of the assets of the selling corporation were transferred to the acquiring corporation in the exchange [Rev. Rul. 74-457, 1974-2 C.B. 122].

[c] Pre-Exchange Planning

The substantially all test applies to the time of the exchange and may permit pre-exchange planning in certain circumstances. For example, a corporation with two separate lines of business sold off one of the lines of business for cash. Shortly thereafter the corporation had its assets from the second line of business and cash from the sale of the first line acquired by another corporation in an assets for voting shares exchange that the IRS ruled was a qualified I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(C) reorganization [Rev. Rul. 88-48, 1988-1 C.B. 117].

[3] Voting Stock Requirement

[a] Basic Requirement

The second major requirement of an assets-for-shares exchange to qualify as a "reorganization" is to acquire the assets in exchange solely for its voting stock or the voting stock of its parent corporation [I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(C)]. This is the same requirement imposed by statute on the acquisition by one corporation of another corporation by means of a share exchange to make the share exchange a tax-free reorganization [see Ch. 11D, Acquisition of Shares for Shares, § 11D.23[2]].

Even when the acquiring corporation acquires the assets of the acquired corporation in exchange for its voting stock, the transaction will fail to qualify as a "C reorganization" unless the acquired corporation distributes the stock, securities, and other properties it receives, as well as its other properties, pursuant to the reorganization plan [I.R.C. § 368(a)(2)(G)(i)]. However, this requirement may be waived by Treasury regulation [I.R.C. § 368(a)(2)(G)(ii)].

[b] Exception When 80 Percent of Property Acquired

In a share exchange, the exchange will not qualify as a tax-free reorganization when the acquiring corporation gives voting shares plus some other consideration for the shares of the acquired corporation [I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(B); see Ch. 11D, Acquisition of Shares for Shares, § 11D.23[2]]. In the case of an assets-for-shares exchange there is one exception to this rule. An assets-for-shares exchange will still qualify as a tax-free reorganization when the acquiring corporation acquires at least 80 percent of the fair market value of all the property of the selling corporation solely in exchange for its or its parent's voting shares and then gives money or other property for the remainder of the selling corporation's property [I.R.C. § 368(a)(2)(B)].

[c] Assumption of Liabilities

The acquiring corporation in an assets-for-shares exchange may assume liabilities of the selling corporation without disqualifying the exchange as a "reorganization" [I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(C)]. The term "liability" used in the statute appears to mean an obligation to pay money rather than an obligation to perform some act [Fox & Fox, CORPORATE

ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, ch. 4, Tax-Free Acquisitions, § 4.04[3][c] (Matthew Bender)]. Further, it appears the obligation must have arisen prior to the proposed assets-for-shares exchange [Helvering v. Southwest Consol. Corp. (1942) 315 U.S. 194, 199, 62 S. Ct. 546, 86 L. Ed. 789] . An obligation that is incurred as part of the exchange by the selling corporation, although it is merely a liquidation of a prior existing liability of the selling corporation, cannot be safely assumed by the acquiring corporation. In such a case, the acquiring corporation would be exchanging something in addition to its voting shares for substantially all the assets of the selling corporation and the exchange would not be a tax-free reorganization [Helvering v. Southwest Consol. Corp. (1942) 315 U.S. 194, 199, 62 S. Ct. 546, 86 L. Ed. 789] .

The IRS has ruled that payment by the acquiring corporation of valid reorganization expenses incurred by the selling corporation in an assets-for-shares exchange does not preclude the assets-for-shares exchange from being a tax-free reorganization [Rev. Rul. § 73-54]. Treasury Regulations warn, however, that the assumption of liabilities by the acquiring corporation may in some cases so alter the character of an assets-for-shares exchange as to make it another form of transaction and disqualify it as a tax-free reorganization [Treas. Reg. § 1.368-2(d)(1)].

[4] Business Purpose, Continuity of Business Enterprise, and Continuity of Interest Requirements

An assets-for-shares reorganization must meet the general business purpose and continuity of business enterprise and interest requirements applicable to all reorganizations [see Treas. Reg. § 1.368-1(c)-(e)]. To obtain the nonrecognition treatment of a qualified reorganization, the transaction must have a bona fide business purpose and may not be a device simply to avoid taxes [Treas. Reg. § 1.368-1(c)].

The continuity of business enterprise requirement means that the acquiring corporation must either continue the acquired corporation's historic business or use a significant portion of the acquired corporation's business assets in a business after the reorganization [Treas. Reg. § 1.368-1(d)(1)]. The continuity of interest requirement means that some proprietary interest of the acquired corporation must be preserved so that transactions that resemble sales do not qualify for nonrecognition treatment available to qualified reorganizations [Treas. Reg. § 1.368-1(e)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues].

[5] Income Tax Basis for Acquired Assets and Shares

In tax-free reorganizations generally, recognition of gain is postponed pursuant to "carryover" and "substituted" basis provisions [see Fox & Fox, CORPORATE ACQUISITIONS AND MERGERS, Ch. 4, Tax-Free Acquisitions, § 4.01 (Matthew Bender)]. In a "C" reorganization, the selling corporation receives a "substituted" basis in shares received in the surviving corporation or its parent equal to its basis in the assets transferred [see I.R.C. § 358(a)]. When those shares are distributed in dissolution, the shareholders who receive them obtain a substituted basis equal to their basis in the shares of the dissolving corporation [I.R.C. § 358(a)]. The acquiring corporation receives a "carry-over" basis for the assets acquired equal to the selling corporation's basis in those assets [I.R.C. § 362(b)]. If the fair market value of the assets or shares received exceeds their substituted or carry-over basis, gain on the transaction is postponed until those assets or shares are disposed of or sold [I.R.C. § 354; see [1], above]. For further discussion, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues .

[6] Net Operating Loss Carryforward Deduction

In a "C" reorganization, the acquiring corporation automatically succeeds to any net operating loss carryforward of the acquired corporation, and may deduct it against income earned after the acquisition [I.R.C. § 381(a)(2), (c)(1)].

The carryforward will be disallowed if the acquiring corporation does not continue the business enterprise of the acquired corporation at all times during the two-year period beginning on the reorganization date [see I.R.C. § 382(c)]. Furthermore, the carryforward may be disallowed if the principal purpose of the acquisition is the avoidance of federal income tax by obtaining a deduction that the acquiring corporation would otherwise not obtain [see I.R.C. § 269(a)]. For further discussion of the net operating loss carryforward and the restrictions on its use, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues .

CHAPTER 11E ACQUISITION OF ASSETS FOR SHARES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11E.23

§ 11E.23 Corporate Securities Law Requirements

[1] Qualification Requirement and Exemptions

Under California's Corporate Securities Law of 1968, shares issued in connection with an assets-for-shares exchange are treated the same as shares issued in connection with a statutory merger of corporation. Generally, the issuance of the shares by the acquiring corporation must be "qualified" by permit issued by the California Corporations Commissioner [Corp. Code §§ 25120, 25121]. Application for qualification of the securities must be made under the provisions requiring qualification of securities to be issued in connection with a recapitalization or reorganization [Corp. Code § 25120]. However, a qualification permit is not required in all assets-for-shares exchanges. Any change in the rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions of or on outstanding securities, and any exchange of securities by the issuer with its existing security holders exclusively, will be exempt from qualification if the transaction, had it involved the issuance of a new security containing the changed rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions, or a new issuance of the exchange security, would have been exempt from qualification [see Corp. Code § 25110] as an issuer transaction [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.103(a); see Corp. Code § 25102].

This exemption, however, is not available for a rollup transaction [Corp. Code § 25103(c); see Corp. Code § 25014.6 ("rollup transaction" defined)], or if the transaction is excluded from the definition of a rollup transaction by Corp. Code § 25014.6(b)(5) or (6) if the transaction is one of a series of transactions that directly or indirectly, through acquisition or otherwise, involves the combination or reorganization of one or more rollup participants [Corp. Code § 25103(c)]. In addition, no permit qualifying the shares to be issued in connection with a merger or an assets-for-shares exchange is required if, had the exchange transaction involved issuance of a security in a transaction subject to Corp. Code § 25110, it would have been exempt from qualification by Corp. Code § 25102(f) (limited offering exemption), without giving effect to Corp. Code § 25102(f)(3) (which requires representation that purchaser is purchasing for own account, not for resale) and the exchange satisfies certain additional criteria [Corp. Code § 25103(h); see Ch. 11C, Mergers, § 11C.104].

For a more detailed discussion of the qualification and exemption of securities, including the preemption of state qualification or registration of "covered securities," as defined by the National Securities Markets Improvement Act of 1996 [Pub. L. No. 104-290, 110 Stat. 3416 (H.R. 3005); see 15 U.S.C. § 77r; see also Ch. 6, Securities Regulation

Issues , and subsequent chapters; Marsh & Volk, PRACTICE UNDER THE CALIFORNIA SECURITIES LAWS, Ch. 3A, Federal Preemption of State Securities Regulation (Matthew Bender)].

[2] Permits

A permit qualifying the shares to be issued in an assets-for-shares exchange is not required in order for the corporations to the exchange to conduct preliminary negotiations concerning it. However, either a negotiating permit or a definitive permit qualifying the shares for issuance must be obtained before shareholder approval of the proposed exchange is solicited [Corp. Code §§ 25103(a), 25120]. Negotiating permits for such a transaction ordinarily are not issued by the Corporations Commissioner. Instead, the Commissioner usually will issue a definitive permit qualifying the shares for issuance and exchange [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.63]. However, that permit may be conditional. The corporation may be required to obtain the affirmative vote of a specified percentage of the outstanding shares of the corporations involved in the exchange [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.63]. No permit qualifying the shares to be issued in connection with either a merger or an assets-for-shares exchange is required unless at least 25 percent of the outstanding shares of any class whose holders are to receive securities in the exchange are held by persons having addresses in California [Corp. Code § 25103(c)].

An application to the California Commissioner of Corporations for a permit qualifying securities to be issued in a merger or an exchange of shares for assets is set forth in Ch. 11C, Mergers, § 11C.204. That section discusses the requirements of the application and qualification of shares to be issued in a merger or assets-for-shares exchange, and should be consulted in connection with an assets-for-shares exchange involving a California corporation or residents of California as shareholders of the acquiring or selling corporation.

CHAPTER 11E ACQUISITION OF ASSETS FOR SHARES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11E.24

§ 11E.24 Nonassumption of Selling Corporation's Liabilities

[1] General Rule and Exceptions

In California, the general rule is that if one corporation sells or otherwise transfers all of its assets to another corporation, the purchasing corporation is not liable for the debts and liabilities of the selling corporation [Ortiz v. South Bend Lathe (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 842, 846, 120 Cal. Rptr. 556 ; see Schwartz v. McGraw-Edison Co. (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 767, 780, 92 Cal. Rptr. 776 ; Pierce v. Riverside Mtg. Securities Co. (1938) 25 Cal. App. 2d 248, 254, 77 P.2d 226] .

The following are four well-recognized exceptions to this rule [Ortiz v. South Bend Lathe (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 842, 846, 120 Cal. Rptr. 556 ; Schwartz v. McGraw-Edison Co. (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 767, 781, 92 Cal. Rptr. 776 ; Pierce v. Riverside Mtg. Securities Co. (1938) 25 Cal. App. 2d 248, 255, 77 P.2d 226 ; but see Ray v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 22, 33-34, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574, 560 P.2d 3 (concluding that party which acquires a manufacturing business and continues the output of its line of products under circumstances presented assumes strict tort liability for defects in units of the same product line previously manufactured and distributed by the entity from which the business was acquired; and overruling anything to the contrary in Ortiz or Schwartz); see also Franklin v. USX Corporation (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 615, 629-630, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 11 (successor corporation not liable for asbestos-related injuries under theories of express or implied assumption of tort liabilities of predecessor, de facto merger or mere continuation, or product line successor)]:

- When the purchasing corporation expressly or impliedly agrees to assume the liabilities of the selling corporation [see, e.g., Fisher v. Allis-Chalmers Corp. (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 1182, 1188-1190, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 310 (manufacturer's successor in interest was not entitled to summary judgment because it failed to establish that its agreement to assume liabilities excluded plaintiff's product liability claim].

- When the transaction amounts to a merger or consolidation of the corporations.

- When the purchasing corporation is merely a continuation of the selling corporation [see McClellan v. Northridge Park Townhome Owners Association, Inc. (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 746, 753-756, 107 Cal.

Rptr. 2d 702 (successor corporation properly added as judgment debtor in addition to bankrupt predecessor, when substantial evidence supported conclusion that successor was "mere continuation" of predecessor); but see Katzir's Floor and Home Design, Inc. v. M-MLS.com (9th Cir. 2004) 394 F.3d 1143, 1149-1151 (inadequate consideration is essential ingredient to "mere continuation" finding; amended judgment adding new corporation as additional judgment debtor on successor liability grounds reversed)].

- When the transaction is entered into fraudulently in order to escape liability for the debts of the selling corporation.

Although a corporate successor that is liable for the torts of its predecessor by operation of law may seek coverage for that liability under its predecessor's insurance policies, when a corporation assumes liability by contract its rights are defined and limited by that contract [Henkel Corp. v. Hartford (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 934, 941-943, 945, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 828, 62 P.3d 69 (in case in which successor was sued for injuries arising from predecessor's chemical products, any assignment of predecessor's insurance benefits required consent of insurers; no coverage existed when policy had no-assignment clause and insurers did not consent to assignment)].

[2] Bulk Sales Requirements

For the acquiring corporation in an assets-for-shares exchange to escape liability for obligations of the selling corporation in the exchange, it may have to comply with the Uniform Commercial Code--Bulk Sales Division (Division 6 of the UCC) [see Com. Code § 6101 et seq.]. If the sale of assets is subject to the bulk sales requirements and the buyer fails to comply with the notice requirements, the buyer is liable for damages in the amount of any claims against the seller, less any amount that the claimant would not have realized if the buyer had complied with the notice requirements [see Com. Code § 6107(a); see also Com. Code § 6107(c) (good faith effort at compliance), (d) (limitation of liability)]. Basically, the bulk sale provisions apply to any firm whose principal business is the sale of inventory from stock, including firms who manufacture what they sell, or is that of restaurant owner [Com. Code § 6103(a); see Com. Code § 6103(c) (exceptions)]. Unless specifically exempted, a bulk sale is subject to the public notice requirement [see Com. Code §§ 6104(b), 6105] if the sale is not in the ordinary course of the firm's business and constitutes more than half of the firm's inventory and equipment [Com. Code § 6102(a)(3)]. The Bulk Sales Division is designed to give creditors of a business firm notice of the bulk sale of its business and give the creditors opportunity to levy attachment either on the assets being sold or the proceeds of their sale. For further coverage of the required notices, and the bulk sales requirements in general, see Ch. 2A, Incorporating a Going Business, § 2A.11, and Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice .

[3] Successor Liability Statutes

The acquiring corporation in an assets-for-shares exchange should require the selling corporation to comply with the successor liability statutes contained in the California Sales and Use Tax Law [see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 6811, 6812] and the California Unemployment Insurance Code [Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1731-1736]. Those statutes make the acquiring corporation liable for any sales taxes or unemployment compensation insurance contributions owed by the selling corporation unless the acquiring corporation withholds the purchase price being paid for the assets of the selling corporation until certificates showing no such taxes or contributions are due from the selling corporation are issued by the California State Board of Equalization and Department of Benefit Payments, respectively [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 6811, 6812; Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1731, 1732]. For a more detailed discussion of the successor liability statutes, see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice, § 17.14.

[4] Liability for Defective Products

[a] Historical Development

The original reason for the development of the so-called "de facto merger" doctrine was to protect shareholders of corporations involved in an assets-for-shares exchange. Little attention was paid to the fact that the successor corporation in a statutory merger automatically assumes liabilities of the disappearing corporations to the merger, but the acquiring corporation in an assets-for-shares exchange generally is not liable for obligations of the selling corporation [see Hills, Consolidation of Corporations by Sale of Assets and Distribution of Shares, 19 Cal. L. Rev. 349 (1931)]. It may have been thought that the bulk sales law provided adequate protection for the normal creditors of a selling business--its wholesale suppliers [see § 11E.24]. Furthermore, most businesses normally carried adequate liability insurance to protect them against any tort claims that might be made against them.

In 1963, the California Supreme Court held that a business was strictly liable for any injuries caused by a defective product it placed on the market [Greenman v. Yuba Power Products, Inc. (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 57, 62, 27 Cal. Rptr. 697, 377 P.2d 897] . Under the strict products liability doctrine, the cause of action for an injury caused by a defective product does not accrue until the injury is suffered [Howe v. Pioneer Mfg. Co. (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 330, 340, 68 Cal. Rptr. 617] . The injury, however, might occur years after the defective product was placed on the market by a business, and perhaps years after the business that placed it on the market had sold all its assets or exchanged them for shares of another corporation [see Ortiz v. South Bend Lathe (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 842, 844-846, 120 Cal. Rptr. 556] . This concept gave rise to a new controversy over whether the acquiring corporation in an assets-for-shares exchange should be held liable for injuries caused by a defective product placed on the market by the selling corporation in that exchange.

In California, a purchasing corporation was held liable for injuries caused by a defective product manufactured by the corporation whose assets it had purchased. In the first case to come before it raising the issue, the California Supreme Court based its decision on three grounds. Imposition of liability for the defective product on the successor corporation was justified, according to the Court, in the circumstances by the following [Ray v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 22, 31, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574, 560 P.2d 3] :

- The virtual destruction of the injured plaintiff's remedies against the original manufacturer caused by the sale of the manufacturing corporation's assets and business to the successor corporation.

- The successor corporation's ability to assume the original manufacturing corporation's risk-spreading role.

- The fairness of requiring the successor corporation in enjoying the goodwill it had purchased from the manufacturing corporation to assume a burden, the responsibility for defective products, necessarily attached to that goodwill in the hands of the manufacturing corporation.

In the particular case before the California Supreme Court, the successor corporation had purchased all the assets and goodwill of the manufacturing corporation for cash under an agreement that provided the manufacturing corporation would be dissolved as soon as practical so its name could be used by the successor corporation [Ray v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 22, 26, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574, 560 P.2d 3] . Plaintiff's injury, caused by the defective product, did not occur until more than six months after the manufacturing corporation had been dissolved and the successor corporation had changed its name to the name formerly belonging to the dissolved manufacturing corporation [Ray. v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 22, 26, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574, 560 P.2d 3] . This, in practical effect, not only destroyed the plaintiff's remedies against the original manufacturing corporation but gave the successor corporation the same resources and ability as the manufacturing corporation for determining the risks of claims for injuries from defects in previously manufactured products and obtaining insurance or self-insurance coverage to spread those risks [Ray v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 22, 31-33, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574, 560 P.2d 3] . It also gave the successor corporation full benefit of the manufacturing corporation's goodwill [Ray v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 22, 34, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574, 560 P.2d 3] .

[c] Subsequent Decisions

In a subsequent California case, the Court of Appeal for the Fifth Appellate District held a successor corporation liable for injury caused by a defective product manufactured by the corporation whose assets it had purchased. The appellate court based its decision on a provision in the sales agreement, executed in 1956 before the development of the strict liability doctrine, pursuant to which the successor corporation agreed to assume all liabilities, obligations, contracts, orders for the purchase of material, and warranties of the selling corporation. The court noted that the agreement was to assume "all liabilities" of the selling corporation. "We conclude that although principles of contract law should apply and the intention of the parties should be determinative, it should not be necessary to look for unusually clear, express language in order to find a provision transferring tort liability in the sale of a business or line of business. The question is one of contract interpretation, and we should use a pragmatic approach" [SCM Corp. v. Berkel, Inc. (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 49, 58, 140 Cal. Rptr. 559] .

The "pragmatic approach" used by the Court of Appeal was based on its view as to how two objectives of tort damage law could best be served. It felt the law's objective of deterring the manufacture of future defective products could best be served by imposing liability for injuries caused by previously manufactured defective products on the successor corporation, which was still manufacturing similar products, rather than imposing it on the selling corporation which no longer manufactured those products. It also felt the law's objective of spreading the loss caused by defective products among the users of the products was best served by imposing liability on the successor corporation, which could pass the loss through to future buyers of the product, rather than imposing liability on the selling corporation that no longer sold those products [SCM Corp. v. Berkel, Inc. (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 49, 57, 140 Cal. Rptr. 559] .

The rule imposing liability on a successor corporation for its predecessors' defective products [see Ray v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 22, 31, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574, 560 P.2d 3] does not apply if the successor corporation purchases only part of the predecessor's business, and the asset sale did not contribute to the destruction of the plaintiff's remedies against the predecessor [see Kline v. Johns-Manville (9th Cir. 1984) 745 F.2d 1217, 1218] . In a 1999 case, after determining that a corporation that purchased the assets of an asbestos distributor had not expressly or impliedly assumed other than specifically identified obligations of the predecessor, the Court of Appeal reviewed the principles set forth in Ray v. Alad Corp., held that the Alad court's rationale for imposing strict liability was not met, and declined to impose liability on the successor based on the three Alad principles [Chaknova v. Wilbur-Ellis Co. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 962, 967-969, 970-973, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 871 ; see Ray v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 22, 31, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574, 560 P.2d 3 , discussed in [b], above; see also Franklin v. USX Corporation (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 615, 629-630, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 11 (successor corporation not liable for asbestos-related injuries under theories of express or implied assumption of tort liabilities of predecessor, de facto merger or mere continuation, or product line successor)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11E.25

§ 11E.25 Other Advantages and Disadvantages of Assets-for-Shares Exchanges

[1] Advantages

The chief advantage of an assets-for-shares exchange over other methods by which one corporation may acquire another corporation is nonassumption by the acquiring corporation of the selling corporation's liabilities [see § 11E.24]. Most of the other advantages once enjoyed by assets-for-shares exchanges over other corporate acquisition methods have been eliminated by codification of the de facto merger doctrine in California's General Corporation Law. An assets-for-shares exchange in California is no longer preferable to a statutory merger because it does not require approval by the shareholders of the acquiring corporation or because dissenting shareholders have no appraisal rights. Under California's General Corporation Law, mergers and de facto mergers (assets-for-shares exchanges), are treated almost exactly alike. Both require approval by the outstanding shares of each class of each corporation involved in the transaction and both afford dissenting shareholders of any corporation to the transaction the right to require cash purchase of their shares at the appraised fair market value of those shares [see § 11E.21[1]]. Furthermore, statutory mergers and assets-for-shares exchanges are treated alike by the California Corporate Securities Law of 1968. Shares that are to be issued in a statutory merger or in an assets-for-shares exchange must be qualified by the California Corporations Commissioner in exactly the same way [see § 11E.23].

[2] Disadvantages

An assets-for-shares exchange differs from a statutory merger in that it is more cumbersome. A statutory merger is effected by filing of the merger agreement with attached officers' certificates for each constituent corporation with the Secretary of State and recording a certified copy in each county in which a disappearing corporation owned any interest in real property [see Ch. 11C, Mergers, § 11C.22[9]]. An assets-for-shares exchange may require compliance with the requirements of Uniform Commercial Code--Bulk Sales Division [see Com. Code § 6101 et seq.]. The notice required by that division may require publication in the judicial district where the largest portion of the property is located and, if different, the judicial district in which the seller is located [Com. Code § 6105(b)]. When an assets-for-shares exchange is part of a true de facto merger, the exchange is followed by dissolution of the selling corporation. In a statutory merger, the selling or disappearing corporations to the merger are automatically dissolved by perfection of the merger [Corp. Code § 1107(a)]. Furthermore, a number of instruments of conveyance must be prepared, executed, and delivered in an assets-for-shares exchange. A general bill of sale is usually required to transfer the intangible and miscellaneous unregistered assets of the selling corporation to the purchasing corporation. In addition, however, each lease ordinarily must be separately assigned by the selling corporation to the purchasing corporation. Each lease also ordinarily must be separately assigned by the selling corporation to the purchasing corporation. Each piece of real property must be separately conveyed by the selling corporation to the purchasing corporation, and each motor vehicle must be separately transferred on the records of the Department of Motor Vehicles from the selling to the purchasing corporation.

Another disadvantage of an assets-for-shares transaction is that it will be subject to the state sales and use tax [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 6001 et seq.]. The transfer of assets for stock is treated as a sale that is taxable unless otherwise exempt [see Simplicity Pattern Co. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 900, 915, 167 Cal. Rptr. 366, 615 P.2d 555] . For further discussion of the sales and use tax in the context of mergers and acquisitions, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues .

PART III. TRANSACTION GUIDE
B. Preliminary Determinations

5-11E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11E.110

§ 11E.110 Determinations for Assets-for-Shares Exchange

1. Determine which, if any, assets of selling corporation should be omitted from exchange.

a. Must include at least 90 percent of assets in exchange to obtain ruling letter from Internal Revenue that exchange is tax-free reorganization [see Rev. Proc. 86-42, 1986-2 C.B. 722 ; see also § 11E.22[2]].

b. Percentage required to be "substantially all assets" of selling corporation included in exchange measured by value of assets of selling corporation.

2. Determine type and amount of shares of acquiring corporation or its parent party that should be issued in exchange for assets of selling corporation.

a. Amount of shares to be exchanged will depend on relative values of shares and assets for which they are to be exchanged.

b. Voting shares must be exchanged for assets, or at least 80 percent in value of assets, of selling corporation to make exchange a tax-free reorganization [see § 11E.22[2], [3]].

3. Determine whether proposed transfer of assets of selling corporation to acquiring corporation in exchange for shares of acquiring corporation or its parent party is subject to requirements of Uniform Commercial Code--Bulk Sales Division [see Com. Code § 6101].

NOTE:

The requirements of the Uniform Commercial Code--Bulk Sales Division and the transactions to which it applies are discussed more fully in Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice, § 17.20.

4. Determine, when proposed transfer of assets is subject to Uniform Commercial Code--Bulk Sales Division:

a. Municipal court or judicial districts in which selling corporation maintains places of business.

b. Name and address of newspaper of general circulation in each municipal court of judicial district in which selling corporation maintains place of business, including:
(1) Publication dates of that newspaper.

(2) Newspaper's deadline for accepting legal notices for publication on each of its publication dates.

c. Name and address of county tax collector of each county in which selling corporation maintains place of business.

d. Address of county recorder for each county in which selling corporation maintains place of business.

5. Determine whether California sales tax will be imposed on value of any of shares of acquiring corporation or its parent party that are to be received by selling corporation in exchange for any of its fixtures and assets.

NOTE:
See Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice*, § 17.12*.

6. Determine approval requirements:

a. Proposed exchange must be approved by board of directors of both acquiring corporation and corporation whose property and assets are being acquired [Corp. Code § 1200(c)].

b. Principal terms of proposed exchange must be approved by outstanding shares of each class of corporation that is "parent party" to the acquiring corporation [Corp. Code §§ 1200(e), 1201(a)].

NOTE:
A "parent party" is a corporation that is in control of the acquiring corporation and whose shares are being issued and exchanged, instead of shares of the acquiring corporation itself, for the assets of the selling corporation [Corp. Code § 1200(e)]. If a parent party [Corp. Code § 1200(e)] is a foreign corporation (other than one subject to the General Corporation Law [see Corp. Code § 2115(a); see also Ch. 12B, Foreign Corporations and Associations]), any requirement or lack of requirement for approval by the outstanding shares of the foreign corporation is not governed by Corp. Code §§ 1200 and 1201. Instead, the law of the state or place of incorporation of the foreign corporation will apply [Corp. Code § 1202(c)].

7. Determine what classes of shares of each corporation must approve principal terms of proposed assets-for-shares exchange.

a. Need not be approved by any class of outstanding preferred shares of acquiring corporation or its parent party if rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on that class of shares will remain unchanged as result of assets-for-shares exchange [Corp. Code § 1201(a)].

NOTE:
The principal terms of a reorganization must be approved by all shareholders of any class or series if, as a result of the reorganization, the holders of that class or series become personally liable for any obligations of a party to the reorganization, unless all holders of that class or series have dissenters' rights [Corp. Code § 1201(g); see Corp. Code § 1300 et seq.].

b. Two classes of common shares differing only as to voting rights will be considered only one class of shares for purposes of voting on proposed exchange [Corp. Code § 1201(a)].

c. Need not be approved by outstanding shares of either corporation if that corporation or its shareholders will immediately after exchange own shares of acquiring corporation or its parent party possessing more than five sixths of voting power of acquiring corporation or its parent party [Corp. Code § 1201(b); see § 11E.21[2]].

NOTE:
See P7a, NOTE, above [Corp. Code § 1201(g); see Corp. Code § 1300 et seq.].

(1) Shares owned by any shareholder of selling corporation in acquired corporation before exchange will be disregarded in determining whether shareholder approval by shareholders of selling corporation is required.

(2) Shares owned by any shareholder of acquiring corporation or its parent party in selling corporation before exchange will be disregarded in determining whether exchange must be approved by outstanding shares of acquiring corporation or its parent party.

(3) Shareholders' approval required for any class of shares of selling corporation whose holders will receive as final result of assets-for-shares exchange shares of acquiring corporation or parent party having different rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions than their shares in selling corporation [Corp. Code § 1201(d)].

(4) Shareholders' approval required for any class of shares of domestic California selling corporation whose holders will receive as final result of assets-for-shares exchange shares of foreign corporation [Corp. Code § 1201(d)].

(5) Shareholders' approval required if selling corporation is "close corporation" and its shareholders will receive as final result of assets-for-shares exchange shares of corporation that is not "close corporation" as defined in California's General Corporation Law [Corp. Code § 1201(e)].

d. If class or series of preferred shares will receive lesser amount for shares than would be required by articles, must be approved by that class or series [Corp. Code § 1202(b); see (8)(e), below].

8. Determine vote or written consent required to approve proposed assets-for-shares exchange by each class of shares of selling and acquiring corporations.

a. Must be approved by affirmative vote of majority of all outstanding shares of each class, regardless of voting rights, of shares of acquiring and selling corporations [Corp. Code § 1201(a); see § 11E.21[1]].

b. Must be approved by affirmative vote of majority of all outstanding shares of each class of any "parent party" of acquiring corporation [Corp. Code §§ 1200(e), 1201(a)].

NOTE:

However, if a parent party [Corp. Code § 1200(e)] is a foreign corporation (other than one subject to the General Corporation Law [see Corp. Code § 2115(a)]), any requirement or lack of requirement for approval by the outstanding shares of the foreign corporation is not governed by Corp. Code §§ 1200 and 1201. Instead, the law of the state or place of incorporation of the foreign corporation will apply [Corp. Code § 1202(c)].

c. Must also be approved by affirmative vote of at least two thirds of each class of outstanding shares of selling corporation if it is close corporation and acquiring corporation or its parent party is not close corporation [Corp. Code § 1201(e); see Corp. Code § 158].

(1) Articles of incorporation of selling corporation that is close corporation may provide for lesser vote [Corp. Code § 1201(e)].

(2) However, articles of incorporation of selling close corporation cannot provide for less than majority vote of outstanding shares of each class of its shares [Corp. Code § 1201(e)].

d. Articles of incorporation of particular acquiring or selling corporation or parent party may require unanimous or greater than majority vote approving exchange by any or all classes of corporation's outstanding shares [Corp. Code § 152].

e. If class or series of preferred shares will receive lesser amount for shares than would be required by articles, proposed exchange must be approved by same percentage of outstanding shares of that class or series that would be required to approve amendment of article provisions to provide for distribution of that lesser amount [Corp. Code § 1202(b)].

9. Determine what licenses, if any, must be transferred from selling to acquiring corporation to consummate exchange and requirements for their transfer.

a. Alcoholic beverage license [see Ch. 18, Buying and Selling a Retail Alcoholic Beverage License and Business].

b. Federal Communications Commission license.

10. Determine what licenses, if any, must be acquired by acquiring corporation from state or federal government to operate selling corporation's business or assets.

NOTE:

For a list of some of the major types of businesses that require a license from either the state or federal government, see Ch. 1A, Role of Counsel in Starting a New Business .

11. Determine what instruments of conveyance will be required to transfer all assets of selling corporation to acquiring corporation on consummation of assets-for-shares exchange.

12. Determine consents or other instruments that must be obtained from third persons in order to consummate exchange.

13. Determine date, time, and place for calling and holding:

a. Meeting of board of directors of acquiring corporation to approve proposed exchange.

b. Meeting of board of directors of selling corporation to approve proposed exchange.

c. Meeting of shareholders of acquiring corporation to approve proposed exchange.

NOTE:
Shareholder approval may be obtained by means of written consent of shareholders instead of a shareholders' meeting and vote [Corp. Code § 603.].

d. Meeting of shareholders of selling corporation to approve proposed exchange.

NOTE:
Shareholder approval may be obtained by means of written consent of shareholders instead of shareholders' meeting and vote [Corp. Code § 603].

e. Meetings, when required, of board of directors and shareholders of acquiring corporation's parent party to approve proposed exchange [see Corp. Code §§ 1200(e), 1201(a)].

14. Determine whether proposed corporate acquisition should be consummated by means of exchange of shares for assets or by some other method such as cash purchase of assets, share-for-share exchange, or statutory merger.

15. Determine whether selling corporation should be dissolved after exchange.

§ 11E.111 Advantages of Assets-for-Shares Exchange

NOTE:
This section and § 1E.112 are designed to assist the attorney in assessing, and counseling a party to a corporate acquisition regarding, the relative advantages and disadvantages of an assets-for-shares exchange. For additional discussion, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues .

1. Acquiring corporation does not automatically become liable for debts and liabilities of selling corporation, with possible exception of products liability claims [see § 11E.24[1], [4]].

2. There is no minority interest that might harass acquiring corporation in managing business and assets acquired from selling corporation.

3. Assets-for-shares exchange can be arranged to be income-tax-free.

a. No gain or loss is recognized for income tax purposes to selling corporation or shareholders of selling corporation as result of transaction [see I.R.C. §§ 354, 361, 368(a)(1)(C); § 11E.22[1]].

b. Acquiring corporation must acquire substantially all assets of selling corporation solely in exchange for its voting shares or voting shares of its parent corporation [see I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(C); see also § 11E.22[2], [3]].

4. Acquiring corporation succeeds to any net operating loss carryforward of acquired corporation [see I.R.C. § 381(a)(2), (c)(1)].

NOTE:
That carryforward, however, may be reduced or disallowed [see I.R.C. §§ 269(b), 382]. For a detailed discussion of these restrictions, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues .

B. Preliminary Determinations

5-11E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11E.112

§ 11E.112 Disadvantages of Assets-for-Shares Exchange

1. Proposed exchange must be approved by boards of directors, and principal terms of proposed exchange must be approved by outstanding shares of each class of both acquiring and selling corporations.

a. Must be approved by affirmative vote of majority of outstanding shares of each class, regardless of voting rights, of both acquiring and selling corporations [Corp. Code §§ 117, 152, 1200(c), 1201(a)].

b. May, if articles of either corporation so provide, require approval by all or greater than majority vote of outstanding shares of all or some of classes of shares of that corporation [Corp. Code §§ 152, 1200(c), 1201(a)].

c. If shares of acquiring corporation's parent will be exchanged for assets of selling corporation, must also be approved by board of directors and outstanding shares of each class of parent corporation [Corp. Code §§ 152, 1200(e), 1201(a)].

NOTE:
However, if a parent party [Corp. Code § 1200(d)] is a foreign corporation (other than one subject to the General Corporation Law [see Corp. Code § 2115(a); see also Ch. 12B, Foreign Corporations and Associations]), any requirement or lack of requirement for approval by the outstanding shares of the foreign corporation is not governed by Corp. Code §§ 1200 and 1201. Instead, the law of the state or place of incorporation of the foreign corporation will apply [Corp. Code § 1202(c)].

d. If selling corporation is close corporation, must be approved by two-thirds vote of outstanding shares of each class of selling corporation [Corp. Code § 1201(e)].

e. If class or series of preferred shares will receive lesser amount for shares than would be required by articles, must be approved by same percentage of outstanding shares of that class or series that would be required to approve amendment of article provisions to provide for distribution of that lesser amount [Corp. Code § 1202(b)].

2. Shares to be issued by corporation or its parent in exchange generally must be qualified with California Commissioner of Corporations [Corp. Code § 25120; see Ch. 6, Securities Regulation Issues , Ch. 6H, Qualification of Securities].

NOTE:

Qualification is not required if an exemption from qualification is available [see Ch. 6, Securities Regulation Issues*, § 6.200,* for a list of the exemptions from qualification provided by California law]. Any change in the rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions of or on outstanding securities, and any exchange of securities by the issuer with its existing security holders exclusively, will be exempt from qualification if the transaction, had it involved the issuance of a new security containing the changed rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions, or a new issuance of the exchange security, would have been exempt from qualification [see Corp. Code § 25110] as an issuer transaction [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.103(a); see Corp. Code § 25102]. For further discussion of the qualification and exemption of securities, see Ch. 6H, Qualification of Securities .

a. Must be obtained before solicitation of required shareholder approval of exchange terms by shareholders of either selling or acquiring corporation or any parent party [Corp. Code § 25120].

b. Permit required when 25 percent of shares of any class of selling corporation are owned by California residents [Corp. Code § 25103(c)].

c. Permit not needed for preliminary negotiations of proposed exchange by corporate officers of acquiring and selling corporations or for approval of exchange by boards of directors of acquiring and selling corporations and any parent party involved.

3. Dissenting shareholders of either acquiring or selling corporation have right to require their shares to be purchased by their corporation for cash at appraised fair market value of shares on day preceding first announcement of terms of proposed assets-for-shares exchange [Corp. Code § 1300].

NOTE:

The same right is available to dissenting shareholders of the acquiring corporation's parent party. A parent party is a corporation in control of the acquiring corporation whose shares, rather than those of the acquiring corporation itself, are to be exchanged for the assets of the selling corporation [Corp. Code § 1200(e)].

4. Acquiring corporation does not obtain new income tax basis for assets it is acquiring from selling corporation in assets-for-shares exchange.

a. Must use income tax basis for assets of selling corporation [see I.R.C. §§ 358, 362; see also § 11E.22[5]].

b. When income tax basis of selling corporation for assets is less than value of shares of acquiring corporation or its parent exchanged for assets:

(1) Depreciation deduction allowed acquiring corporation less than would be allowed had assets been purchased by it for cash or acquired by it in taxable exchange.

(2) Gain on sale of assets by acquiring corporation increased for income tax purposes when it eventually sells assets.

5. Tangible personal property transferred for stock may be subject to California sales tax.

NOTE:

The transfer of assets for stock will be treated as a taxable sale under the Sales and Use Tax Law [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 6001-7176] unless the transaction is otherwise exempt. For a discussion of the sales and use tax and the exemptions from that tax, see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice*, § 17.12*.

6. Transfer of assets from selling corporation to acquiring corporation may require compliance with Uniform Commercial Code--Bulk Sales Division under following circumstances:

NOTE:

If the Uniform Commercial Code--Bulk Sales Division applies [see Com. Code §§ 6101-6111], the buyer must give public notice of the bulk sale, essentially to provide notice to the seller's creditors. The buyer may be required to record, publish, and deliver notice of the intended transfer in several jurisdictions [see Com. Code § 6105(b)]. The requirements of the Bulk Sales Division are covered in more detail in Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice, § 17.20.

a. Selling firm's principal business is sale of inventory from stock, including those who manufacture what they sell, or is that of restaurant owner [Com. Code § 6103(a)(1); see Com. Code § 6103(c) (exceptions)];

NOTE:

Many transactions are specifically exempted from the bulk sales law [see Com. Code § 6103(c)], including a sale of assets with a value of less than $10,000, or a value of more than $5 million [Com. Code § 6103(c)(12)].

b. On date of bulk sale agreement, selling firm is located in California or is located in jurisdiction outside United States but has its major American executive office in California [Com. Code § 6103(a)(2); see Com. Code § 6103(b)]; and

c. Sale of assets is not in ordinary course of selling firm's business and constitutes more than half of firm's inventory and equipment [Com. Code § 6102(a)(3); see Com. Code § 6102(a)(8), (15)].

NOTE:

In determining the percentage of the seller's inventory and equipment being transferred, the assets are valued at their fair market value as of the date of the bulk sale agreement [Com. Code § 6102(a)(3), (8), (15)]. If the consideration for the sale of assets is $2 million or less and is substantially all in cash and/or an obligation of the buyer to pay cash in the future, the buyer or escrow agent may have to settle claims against the seller before paying the seller [see Com. Code §§ 6106.2, 6106.4].

7. To protect acquiring corporation from liability under successor liability statutes for sales taxes and unemployment compensation insurance contributions owed by selling corporation, exchange of shares for assets cannot be consummated until selling corporation obtains [see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 6811, 6812; Unemp. Ins. Code § 1731, 1732]:

NOTE:
See Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice*, § 17.14*.

a. Sales tax clearance from California State Board of Equalization.

b. Statement from California State Department of Benefit Payments that no amounts are due from selling corporation for unemployment compensation insurance contributions.

8. Acquiring corporation may become liable for products liability claims arising from sales of defective products by predecessor business [see § 11E.24[4]].

9. Separate documents of conveyance or transfer must be drafted, executed, and registered or recorded for every:

a. Automobile or motor vehicle being transferred.

b. Lease being assigned.

c. Piece of real property being conveyed.

d. Corporate shares or securities being transferred.

e. Other assets whose ownership is registered or recorded with some governmental, corporate, or other agency.

10. May require obtaining from some third person or corporation:

a. Consent to assignment of leases.

b. Consent to purchase of franchised business.

c. Title insurance policy for real property included in exchange.

d. Consent to assignment of collective bargaining, employment, or other contracts.

C. Procedural Guide

5-11E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11E.120

§ 11E.120 Procedures for Consummating Assets-for-Shares Exchange

1. Prepare agreement for assets-for-shares exchange [see §§ 11E.200, 11E.201].

2. Prepare resolutions to be adopted by board of directors and shareholders acquiring and selling corporation and by board of directors of acquiring corporation's parent party, if any, as applicable, approving agreement for exchange of assets for shares:

a. Resolution of board of directors of acquiring corporation approving proposed acquisition of assets in exchange for shares of acquiring corporation [see § 11E.202[2] (form)].

b. Resolution of board of directors of selling corporation approving exchange of substantially all its assets for voting shares of acquiring corporation [see § 11E.203[2] (form)].

c. Resolution of shareholders of acquiring corporation approving proposed acquisition of assets for shares [see § 11E.205(2) (form)].

d. Resolution of shareholders of selling corporation approving proposed exchange of its assets for shares of acquiring corporation [see § 11E.206[2] (form)].

e. Resolutions of approval by acquiring corporation or its parent party should do all of following:
(1) Approve agreement for exchange.

(2) Authorize and direct officers of acquiring corporation or its parent party to file application to qualify shares that will be issued in assets-for-shares exchange.

(3) Name escrow holder to consummate transaction and authorize escrow holder to take all actions required by Uniform Commercial Code--Bulk Sales Division [Com. Code §§ 6101-6111], if applicable, and successor liability statutes of the California Sales and Use Tax Law and California Unemployment Insurance Code [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 6811, 6812; Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1731-1736; see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice, § 17.14].

(4) Authorize and direct officers of corporation to secure approval, on receipt of permit from California Corporations Commissioner, of proposed exchange by its outstanding shares of each class [Corp. Code § 1201(a)].

(5) Authorize and direct officers of corporation to do all things reasonably necessary to carry out proposed assets-for-shares exchange after its approval by outstanding shares of corporations involved.

f. Resolutions of approval adopted by selling corporation should do all of following:

(1) Contain same matters as resolutions of approval passed by board of directors of acquiring corporation or its parent party except direction to apply for permit qualifying shares to be issued as part of exchange.

(2) Provide, if selling corporation is to be dissolved, for dissolution of selling corporation and distribution of its assets to its shareholders after exchange.

NOTE:
A transaction will fail to qualify as a "C reorganization" unless the acquired corporation distributes the stock, securities, and other properties that it receives, as well as its other properties, pursuant to the reorganization plan [I.R.C. § 368(a)(2)(G)(i)]. However, the Internal Revenue Service may waive the application of this requirement to any transaction, subject to any condition that the IRS may prescribe [I.R.C. § 368(a)(2)(G)(ii)].

3. Have board of directors of acquiring and selling corporation and board of directors of any parent party of acquiring corporation adopt resolutions approving proposed assets-for-shares exchange.

a. Must be approved by board of directors itself and not committee of board of directors [see § 11E.21[1]].

b. Parent party is corporation in control of acquiring corporation whose shares, instead of those of acquiring corporation, are to be exchanged for assets of selling corporation [Corp. Code § 1200(e)].

4. Have officers of acquiring corporation or its parent party (whichever is to issue shares in exchange) prepare, execute, and file with California Commissioner of Corporations application for permit qualifying issuance of shares that will be issued by acquiring corporation or its parent party in exchange for assets of selling corporation [see Ch. 11C, Mergers, § 11C.204; see also Ch. 6H, Qualification of Securities].

NOTE:

A qualification permit is not required in all share exchanges. For further discussion, see Ch. 11C, Mergers, § 11C.25; see also Ch. 6, Securities Regulation Issues .

a. Permit must be issued by Commissioner and received by acquiring corporation, or its parent party, before shareholder approval of proposed exchange by shareholders of any corporation, acquiring corporation or selling corporation or parent party, may be solicited [Corp. Code §§ 25103(a), 25120].

b. Check for Commissioner's fee should accompany filing of application [Corp. Code § 25615] and be in amount equal to [Corp. Code § 25608(h)(2)]:

(1) $200, plus

(2) One fifth of 1 percent of value as alleged in application, or actual value as determined by Commissioner, of consideration that is to be received for shares sought to be issued, with

(3) Total aggregate fee not to exceed $2,500.

5. On receipt by acquiring corporation or its parent party of a permit from Commissioner, secure approval of principal terms of proposed exchange by outstanding shares of each class of each corporation that are determined to be required to approve principal terms of exchange [see § 11E.110[7]], by either:

NOTE:

When a tender offer, including a share exchange tender offer [see Corp. Code § 183.5* (definition)], or a written proposal for approval of an assets-for-shares exchange, other "reorganization" [see Corp. Code § 181(b), 1200*], or sale of assets [see Corp. Code § 1001(a)*] is made to some or all of a corporation's shareholders by a party to the transaction who has control of or a financial interest in that corporation (an "interested party proposal"), an affirmative opinion in writing regarding the fairness of the consideration to the shareholders of the corporation must be provided to the shareholders or the corporation [Corp. Code § 1203(a); see Ch. 11D, Acquisition of Shares for Shares, § 11D.22*]. However, this requirement does not apply if the target corporation does not have shares held of record by 100 or more persons [see Corp. Code § 605* (determination of shareholders of record)], or if the transaction has been qualified pursuant to Corp. Code § 25113 (qualification of issuer transaction by permit) or 25121 (qualification of recapitalization or reorganization by permit), and no stop order [see Corp. Code §§ 25140, 25143(a)*] is in effect regarding that qualification [Corp. Code § 1203(a)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues .

a. Obtaining both of following [see Corp. Code § 1201; Corp. Code § 603 (requirements for written consent)]:

(1) Written consent of shareholders holding majority of outstanding shares of each required class of each corporation that is not close corporation; and

(2) Written consent of shareholders holding two thirds of outstanding shares of each class of any close corporation; or

b. Calling special meeting of shareholders of each corporation for vote of each class of shareholders that is required to approve proposed assets-for-shares exchange [Corp. Code § 601(d); see § 11E.120[5]].

(1) Give written notice of meeting personally, or by electronic transmission by corporation, or by first-class mail to each shareholder not more than 60 or less than 10 days before date set for meeting and [Corp. Code § 601(a), (b)]:

NOTE:
If the corporation has 500 or more shareholders of record (as determined under Corp. Code § 605) as of the record date for the meeting, notice may be sent by third-class rather than first-class mail. However, in that case, notice must be sent not less than 30 days before the meeting [Corp. Code § 601(a), (b); see Corp. Code § 113 ("mail" normally means first-class mail)].

(a) State place, date, and hour of meeting [Corp. Code § 601(a)].

(b) State means of any transmission by and to corporation or electronic video screen communication by which shareholders may participate in meeting [Corp. Code § 601(a); see Corp. Code §§ 20, 21].

(c) State general nature of business to be transacted at meeting [Corp. Code § 601(a)].

(d) Address, if given by mail, to each shareholder at address for shareholder appearing on books of corporation or given to corporation by shareholder for purpose of notice [Corp. Code § 601(b)].

(2) Obtain following approval of shareholders:

(a) Affirmative vote of all outstanding shares of each class of both acquiring and selling corporation and any parent party unless excused by statute [see § 11E.21[2]] or by greater than majority vote of any class if vote is required by corporation's articles of incorporation [Corp. Code § 1201].

NOTE:
However, if a parent party [Corp. Code § 1200(e)] is a foreign corporation (other than one subject to the General Corporation Law [see Corp. Code § 2115(a); see also Ch. 12B, Foreign Corporations and Associations]), any requirement or lack of requirement for approval by the outstanding shares of the foreign corporation is not governed by Corp. Code §§ 1200 and 1201. Instead, the law of the state or place of incorporation of the foreign corporation will apply [Corp. Code § 1202(c)].

(b) Affirmative vote of two-thirds of all outstanding shares of each class of selling corporation if it is close corporation and acquiring corporation or its parent party is not close corporation [Corp. Code § 1201].

(c) If class or series of preferred shares will receive lesser amount for shares than would be required by articles, affirmative vote by same percentage of outstanding shares of that class or series that would be required to approve amendment of article provisions to provide for distribution of that lesser amount [Corp. Code § 1202(b)].

6. Select date on or after which proposed assets-for-shares exchange will be consummated and assets of selling corporation transferred to acquiring corporation.

a. If recordation of notice of intended transfer is required under Uniform Commercial Code--Bulk Sales Division [see Com. Code § 6101 et seq.], allow sufficient time so that notice can be recorded at least 12 business days before date selected [Com. Code § 6105(b)(1)].

NOTE:
For a detailed discussion of Uniform Commercial Code--Bulk Sales Division [see Com. Code §§ 6101-6111*] requirements, see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice, § 17.20.

b. If publication of notice of intended transfer is required under Uniform Commercial Code--Bulk Sales Division [see Com. Code § 6101 et seq.], allow sufficient time so that notice can be published at least 12 business days before date selected [Com. Code § 6105(b)].

NOTE:
If applicable, the Uniform Commercial Code--Bulk Sales Division [see Com. Code §§ 6101-6111*] also requires that the notice be delivered or sent by registered or certified mail to the county tax collector in the county where the property is located at least 12 business days before the date selected [Com. Code § 6105(b)(3)]. If the notice is delivered or sent during the period from January 1 to May 7, inclusive, the notice must be accompanied by a completed business property statement with respect to the property involved in the bulk sale [Com. Code § 6105(b)(3); see Rev. & Tax. Code § 441 (procedure for filing property statements)].

7. Have officers of selling and acquiring corporation and any parent party of acquiring corporation formally execute:

a. At least five copies of agreement for assets-for-shares exchange.

b. At least three copies of escrow instructions for handling exchange of acquiring corporation or its parent party's shares for assets of selling corporation.

c. Notice of intended transfer required, when applicable, by Uniform Commercial Code--Bulk Sales Division [Com. Code § 6105].

8. Distribute two executed copies of agreement for exchange and one executed copy of escrow instructions to:

a. Secretary of each corporation.

b. Escrow holder appointed to handle transfer of assets for shares.

9. Prepare notice to shareholders for each corporation, including all of following [Corp. Code § 1301(a); see § 11E.207]:

NOTE:
Due to the nature of the material contained in the notice, a separate notice must be prepared for the selling corporation, the acquiring corporation, and any parent party of the acquiring corporation.

a. Statement that proposed exchange has been approved by outstanding shares of each class of corporation.

b. Price determined by corporation to represent fair market value of dissenting shares.

c. Brief description of procedure to be followed by shareholder who wants to exercise right to sell his or her dissenting shares [see § 11.208].

d. Copy of Corp. Code §§ 1300-1304.

10. Ensure that each corporation mails notice to shareholders within 10 days after date that outstanding shares have approved principal terms of reorganization [Corp. Code § 1301(a)].

11. Conduct both of following in same manner as cash sale of incorporated or unincorporated business [see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice]:

a. Exchange of assets for shares.

b. Transfer of assets from selling corporation to acquiring corporation.

NOTE:
The same notices must be given and the same tax clearances obtained from the California State Board of Equalization and Department of Benefit Payments that would be required in the sale of any business similar to the business conducted by the selling corporation [see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 6811, 6812; see also Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1731, 1732]. Discussion of the requirements for, forms for, and a Transaction Guide for the sale of a business are set forth in Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice . That material is not repeated here, but it should be used in connection with the exchange of all, or substantially all assets, of any business including a corporation for cash or for shares of the acquiring corporation. The only difference between the transactions is that shares of the acquiring corporation or its parent party will be issued in payment for the assets of the selling corporation instead of in payment for cash or promissory notes.

12. Distribute assets and shares received among shareholders.

13. Dissolve selling corporation [see Ch. 12, Winding Up and Dissolution].

§ 11E.200 Agreement for Exchange of Voting Shares of Acquiring Corporation for Substantially All Assets of Selling Corporation--General Form

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an agreement for the acquisition by one corporation of all or substantially all of the assets of another corporation in exchange for the acquiring corporation's voting shares. In this agreement the acquiring corporation also agrees to assume certain liabilities of the selling corporation. The agreement is designed to effect an assets-for-shares exchange that will be a tax-free reorganization under applicable provisions of the Internal Revenue Code [see § 11E.22[1]]. In addition to this agreement, escrow instructions should be prepared and executed by the corporation for the handling of the transaction and proposed exchange. Forms for escrow instructions are set forth in Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice, § 17.250.

[b] Shareholder Approval and Qualification of Shares

The principal terms of this agreement must be approved by the holders of outstanding shares of each class of both the acquiring and selling corporations [see § 11E.21[1]]. Before that approval can be obtained or even solicited, the shares that the acquiring corporation will issue to perfect the assets-for-shares exchange must be qualified with the California Corporations Commissioner under the Corporate Securities Law of 1968. An application for qualification, together with a discussion of the requirements of the application, is set forth in Ch. 11C, Mergers, § 11C.204; see also Ch. 6H, Qualification of Securities .

[c] Assumption of Products Liability Claims

Section 9.01 of the form contains an optional provision making the buyer responsible for products liability claims based on product sales that took place before the sale of the business. For an explanation of the legal rules that will influence the parties' consideration of who should bear this risk, see Ch. 11B, Cash Purchase of Assets, § 11B.200.

DIVISION I: BUSINESS AND NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS
CHAPTER 11E ACQUISITION OF ASSETS FOR SHARES
PART IV. FORMS

5-11E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11E.201

§ 11E.201 Agreement for Exchange of Voting Shares of Acquiring Corporation's Parent Corporation for Substantially All Assets of Selling Corporation

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an agreement under which shares of a parent corporation are to be issued in exchange for all, or substantially all, the assets of another corporation but the assets of that corporation are to be transferred, not to the parent corporation, but to its subsidiary. This type of transaction is sometimes referred to as a "triangular" transaction.

The transaction is designed as a tax-free assets-for-shares exchange [I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(C)]. Under the Internal Revenue Code, for the transaction to be tax-free substantially all of the assets of the selling corporation must be acquired by the acquiring corporation solely in exchange for its voting shares or the voting shares of its parent corporation [I.R.C. § 368(a)(1)(C)]. In the agreement set forth in this form, the selling corporation's assets are being acquired by the acquiring corporation solely in exchange for voting shares of its parent corporation.

[b] Approval Requirements

The California General Corporation Law classifies the transaction contemplated by the agreement set forth in this form as a "sale-of-assets reorganization" and requires it to be approved by the boards of directors and outstanding shares of all three corporations [Corp. Code §§ 181(c), 1200(c), (e), 1201(a)].

The corporation whose shares are being exchanged for all assets of the selling corporation is labeled by the General Corporation Law a "parent party" [Corp. Code § 1200(e)]. A "parent party" is a corporation in control of the acquiring corporation whose shares, instead of those of the acquiring corporation, are being exchanged for the assets of the selling corporation [Corp. Code § 1200(e)]. The contemplated assets-for-shares exchange must be approved by its board of directors and outstanding shares as well as those of the acquiring corporation [Corp. Code §§ 1200(e), 1201(a)]. The management of the parent party, being in control of the acquiring corporation, can guarantee, of course, that the proposed transaction will be approved by the board of directors and outstanding shares of the acquiring corporation. It cannot, however, guarantee the proposed transaction will be approved by the outstanding shares of each class of the parent party itself.

[c] Qualification of Shares

Before approval of this agreement by the outstanding shares of any corporation--in this case, the selling corporation, the acquiring corporation, or the acquiring corporation's parent party--the parent party must obtain a permit from the California Corporations Commissioner for the shares to be issued by it under this agreement. An application for such a permit is set forth in Ch. 11C, Mergers, § 11C.204; see also § 11E.21 and Ch. 6H, Qualification of Securities .

[d] Assumption of Liabilities

Since the agreement provides for dissolution of the selling corporation, the acquiring corporation may become liable for products liability claims based on previous product sales by the selling corporation [see Ray v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 22, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574 ; see also § 11E.24[4]]. For a discussion of means by which the buyer can limit its exposure to those liabilities, see Ch. 11B, Cash Purchase of Assets, § 11B.200.

5-11E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11E.202

§ 11E.202 Resolution of Board of Directors of Acquiring Corporation Approving Proposed Acquisition of Assets of Another Corporation in Exchange for Voting Common Shares of Acquiring Corporation

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a simple resolution that may be adopted by the board of directors of the acquiring corporation approving a proposed assets-for-shares exchange with another corporation. The resolution must be adopted by the board of directors itself, and not a committee of the board of directors [see § 11E.21[1]]. This resolution also authorizes the officers of the acquiring corporation to file an application on its behalf with the California Corporations Commissioner for a permit qualifying the shares it must issue in the proposed assets-for-shares exchange. A form for that application is set forth Ch. 11C, Mergers, § 11C.204.

The resolution in this form presumes that the acquiring corporation has not issued all the voting common shares it is authorized by its articles of incorporation to issue and may issue the shares required for the assets-for-shares exchange without amending its articles of incorporation. When the acquiring corporation must amend its articles of incorporation to authorize the issuance of more common voting shares in order to issue the shares required by the assets-for-shares exchange, the provision relating to such an amendment set forth in Ch. 11D, Acquisition of Shares for Shares, § 11D.306, should be added to the resolution in this form.

RESOLVED FURTHER, that the officers of this corporation are authorized and directed to prepare, execute, and file on behalf of this corporation with the Commissioner of Corporations of the State of California any and all applications required to secure any permits required to allow this corporation to issue the shares required to be issued by it as part of the asset acquisition approved in this resolution; and

RESOLVED FURTHER, that the officers of this corporation are directed, on receipt by this corporation of a permit from the California Commissioner of Corporations authorizing it to issue the shares required to be issued by it as part of the asset acquisition approved by this resolution, to solicit approval of the asset acquisition and share exchange described in this resolution by the outstanding shares of each class of this corporation as required by California General Corporation Law by either calling a special meeting of shareholders for that purpose or obtaining the written consent of the required number of shareholders of each class of this corporation; and

§ 11E.203 Resolution of Board of Directors of Selling Corporation Approving Exchange of Substantially All Its Assets for Voting Shares of Acquiring Corporation

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a resolution for adoption by the board of directors of the selling corporation approving a proposed assets-for-shares exchange. The first act required by statute in California to perfect a proposed assets-for-shares exchange between corporations is to have the proposal approved by the board of directors of each corporation involved [Corp. Code § 1200(c)]. A resolution for adoption by the board of directors of the acquiring corporation approving the proposed assets-for-shares exchange is contained in § 11E.202. The two resolutions are similar except that this resolution does not direct corporate officers to file an application for a permit from the California Commissioner of Corporations. Although a permit must be obtained before either corporation may solicit shareholder approval of the transaction, the shares required by the exchange must be issued by the acquiring corporation and therefore the acquiring corporation should apply for the Corporation Commissioner's permit.

For a further discussion of the board of directors' approval required for an assets-for-shares exchange, see § 11E.21[1].

5-11E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11E.204

§ 11E.204 Request to Commissioner of Internal Revenue for Income Tax Ruling on Proposed Assets-for-Shares Exchange

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a request for a tax ruling that may be submitted to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to determine the income tax status of a proposed assets-for-shares exchange. A tax ruling is a written statement issued to a taxpayer by the National Office of the Internal Revenue Service interpreting and applying the law to a specific set of facts [Treas. Reg. § 601.201(a)(2)]. Tax rulings may be issued only by the National Office of the IRS [Treas. Reg. § 601.201(a)(2)]. The request in this form, therefore, is addressed to the National Office of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue in Washington, D.C.

A corporation's status as a tax-free reorganization under the Internal Revenue Code may be the most important factor connected with a proposed assets-for-shares exchange for purposes of gaining shareholder approval of the exchange. When one corporation has proposed to exchange all its assets for shares of another corporation, it is advisable to obtain as early as possible, before solicitation of shareholder approval by either corporation of the proposed exchange, a ruling on the income tax status of the proposed transaction.

For a description of the representations that the Internal Revenue Service requires for approval of a letter ruling, see Rev. Proc. 86-42, 1986-2 C.B. 722 , and Rev. Proc. 89-50, 1989-2 C.B. 631 .

Exchange Plan

7. Under the agreement, _____[name of transferor] will transfer substantially all of its properties to _____[name of acquirer] in exchange for the issuance to _____[name of transferor] of a certificate for _____[number] shares of the common stock of _____[name of acquirer], and the assumption of substantially all of the liabilities of _____[name of transferor] on the closing date. _____[name of acquirer] shall not assume (a) the costs and expenses, including taxes, if any, of _____[name of transferor] incident to or arising from the transaction, including the liquidation and dissolution of _____[name of transferor]; or (b) any other liabilities incurred after the closing date. _____[name of transferor] will retain any amount of cash, not in excess of $_____, as it may deem to be reasonably required to cover the costs and expenses incident to or arising from the transaction and not previously paid by _____[name of transferor], and any portion not required for that purpose shall be paid to _____[name of acquirer] at the expiration of _____[e.g., 120 days] after the closing date. _____[name of transferor] will effect its complete liquidation by distributing to its shareholders, against surrender of all of the stock of _____[name of transferor], the common stock of _____[name of acquirer] received by _____[name of transferor] in the exchange.

Business Purpose of Acquisition

8. _____[Describe business purpose, e.g., The business purpose of _____ (name of acquirer) in making the proposed acquisition of the properties of _____ (name of transferor) is to obtain new working properties, together with employment of certain operating personnel, which will make the corporation substantially larger and stronger in both resources and personnel, and more able to take advantage of acquisition and other similar situations which may arise. Combining the properties of both corporations under one ownership should also result in substantial economies of operation. The present shareholders of _____ (name of transferor), through the receipt of stock in _____ (name of acquirer), are expected to have a substantially improved investment position.] The advantages of the acquisition are outlined in detail in the proxy statement attached as Exhibit 2.

Requested Ruling

9. Request is made for a ruling that will establish the following results:

(a) The transfer under the agreement by _____[name of transferor] of its properties to _____[name of acquirer], in exchange for _____[number] shares of common stock of _____[name of acquirer] and the assumption by _____[name of acquirer] of the liabilities of _____[name of transferor], will constitute a reorganization within the meaning of Internal Revenue Code Section 368(a)(1)(C), to which both _____[name of transferor] and _____[name of acquirer] will be parties.

(b) No gain or loss will be recognized by _____[name of transferor] or _____[name of acquirer] by reason of the exchange [I.R.C. §§ 361(a), 1032].

(c) The basis of the assets received by _____[name of acquirer] will be the same as the basis of the assets in the hands of _____[name of transferor] [I.R.C. § 362(b)].

(d) The holding period of the assets received by _____[name of acquirer] will include the period those assets were held by _____[name of transferor] [I.R.C. § 1223(1)].

(e) No gain or loss will be recognized to the shareholders of _____[name of transferor] on the distribution to them of shares of common stock of _____[name of acquirer] in exchange for the surrender by them of their shares of _____[name of transferor] [I.R.C. § 354].

(f) The respective bases of the stock of _____[name of acquirer] received by the shareholders of _____[name of transferor] will be the same as their respective bases in the stock of _____[name of transferor] surrendered by them in the exchange [I.R.C. § 358(a)(1)].

(g) The respective holding periods of the stock of _____[name of acquirer] received by the shareholders of _____[name of transferor] will include the respective holding periods of the stock of _____[name of transferor] surrendered in the exchange [I.R.C. § 1223(1)].

(h) The accumulated earnings and profits of _____[name of transferor] on the closing date of the transaction will retain their character as earnings and profits in the hands of _____[name of acquirer] [I.R.C. § 381(c)(2)].

Closing Date

10. The agreement provides for the consummation of the transaction on _____[date], and that consummation is conditioned on the receipt of a satisfactory ruling. Because delay in receiving such a ruling would prejudice consummation of the transaction, it is respectfully requested that this application be given prompt attention so that a ruling may be issued not later than _____[date], and permit the closing on the date set. Consummation of the transaction does not require submission of the agreement to shareholders of _____[name of acquirer], and that submission is not contemplated [or specify otherwise if articles of incorporation or applicable stock exchange rules so require].

Issues Presented Not Presently Under Consideration

11. To the best knowledge of the taxpayers and their respective attorneys, no issues identical to those on which this ruling is requested are being considered by any field office of the Internal Revenue Service in connection with an active examination or audit of a tax return of the taxpayers already filed.

Powers of Attorney

12. Separate powers of attorney executed by each of the corporate parties are enclosed.

CHAPTER 11E ACQUISITION OF ASSETS FOR SHARES
PART IV. FORMS

5-11E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11E.205

§ 11E.205 Resolution of Shareholders of Acquiring Corporation Approving Proposed Acquisition of Assets for Shares

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a resolution that may be adopted by the outstanding shares of each class of the acquiring corporation approving the proposed assets-for-shares exchange. Because the de facto merger doctrine was codified in California [see § 11E.20], a proposed exchange of all or substantially all of the assets of one corporation for shares of another corporation must be approved by the outstanding shares of each class of both corporations [see § 11E.21[1]]. A resolution that may be adopted by the outstanding shares of each class of the selling corporation approving the proposed assets-for-shares exchange is set forth in § 11E.206. This resolution must be adopted by the affirmative vote of a majority of outstanding shares of each class of shares issued by the acquiring corporation unless its articles require a greater than majority vote by all or any class of its outstanding shares [Corp. Code §§ 152, 1201(a)].

In addition to the shareholder approval requirements of Corp. Code § 1201, if the terms of the assets-for-shares reorganization provide that a class or series of preferred shares will receive as a distribution a lesser amount than would be required by applicable article provisions, the principal terms of the reorganization must be approved by the same percentage of outstanding shares of that class or series that would be required to approve an amendment of the article provisions to provide for the distribution of that lesser amount [Corp. Code § 1202(b); see Ch. 10, Amendment of Articles]. For further discussion, see § 11E.21[1].

Any action that shareholders can take by vote at a shareholders' meeting can be taken instead by written consent without a meeting when the written consent is signed by the requisite number of shareholders [Corp. Code § 603(a)]. Approval by the outstanding shares of each class, therefore, may also be obtained to a proposed assets-for-shares exchange by written consent signed by holders of a majority of outstanding shares of each class of the acquiring corporation. The resolution in this form may be changed to a written consent resolution by simply inserting at its beginning "The undersigned hereby consent in writing to adoption of the following resolutions:" and adding signature lines at the bottom of the resolutions.

Resolution of Shareholders of Acquiring Corporation Approving Proposed Acquisition of Assets for Shares

RESOLUTION

WHEREAS, the Board of Directors of this corporation on _____[date] adopted a resolution approving the acquisition by this corporation of substantially all the assets of _____[name of selling corporation] in exchange for voting common shares of this corporation as proposed in a written "Plan and Agreement of Reorganization" submitted to the Board of Directors on that date and submitted to this special meeting of shareholders; and

WHEREAS, the Commissioner of Corporations of the State of California has issued a permit qualifying the issuance and transfer by this corporation of the shares required in the transaction for acquisition of the assets of _____[name of selling corporation] approved by the Board of Directors of this corporation on _____[date];

NOW, THEREFORE, IT IS RESOLVED, that the proposed acquisition by this corporation of substantially all the assets of _____[name of selling corporation], a California corporation, in exchange for voting common shares of this corporation pursuant to the written "Plan and Agreement of Reorganization" submitted to this meeting and approved by the Board of Directors of this corporation on _____[date] is approved by the outstanding shares of each class of this corporation as required by the General Corporation Law of California.

PART IV. FORMS

5-11E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11E.206

§ 11E.206 Resolution of Shareholders of Selling Corporation Approving Proposed Exchange of Its Assets for Shares of Acquiring Corporation

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a resolution of the shareholders of a selling corporation approving an assets-for-shares reorganization. Because California has codified the so-called "de facto merger" doctrine [see § 11E.20[1]], a proposed exchange of assets of one corporation for shares of another corporation must be approved by the outstanding shares of each class of both corporations [Corp. Code § 1201(a)]. The resolution in this form approves the proposed exchange and resolves that after the exchange the selling corporation be dissolved. A resolution to be adopted by shareholders of the acquiring corporation approving the proposed exchange is set forth in § 11E.205.

For a discussion of additional shareholder approval requirements imposed by Corp. Code § 1202(b), see § 11E.205.

[b] Written Consent

Any action that may be taken at an annual or special shareholders' meeting may be taken without a meeting, pursuant to written consent of the shareholders [see Corp. Code § 603]. Approval of the outstanding shares of each class of a proposed assets-for-shares exchange, therefore, can be obtained by obtaining written consent of holders of a majority of the outstanding shares of each class of a corporation to such an exchange. To convert the resolution in this form to a written consent by the outstanding shares of each class of the selling corporation to a proposed assets-for-shares exchange, a statement such as "The undersigned hereby consent in writing to adoption of the following resolutions:" should be added to the beginning of the form, and signature lines should be added at the end of the form.

For further discussion of the required shareholder approval of a proposed assets-for-shares exchange, see § 11E.21[1],[2].

[c] Report by Independent Appraiser

If the assets-for-shares proposal is made to the corporation or to some or all of the corporation's shareholders by a party directly or indirectly controlling the corporation or involved in the management or direction of the management of the corporation, a report of an independent appraiser attesting that the value of the proposal is just and reasonable to the shareholders of the corporation sought to be acquired must accompany the proposal [Corp. Code § 1203(a)]. For further discussion of this requirement and related requirements when such a proposal is pending at the same time as another proposal for a reorganization [see Corp. Code § 181 (definition)] or short-form merger [see Corp. Code § 1203(b); see also Corp. Code § 187, 1110 (definition of short-form merger)], see Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues .

PART IV. FORMS

5-11E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11E.207

§ 11E.207 Notice to Shareholders of Approval by Outstanding Shares and Right of Dissenting Shareholders to Require Purchase of Dissenting Shares

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a notice of shareholder approval of a proposed assets-for-shares exchange and of dissenting shareholder rights. Each corporation to a proposed exchange of assets for shares must purchase for cash at their fair market value on the day first preceding the proposed exchange any of its shares that are "dissenting shares" and are presented for purchase by it. To protect the rights of its shareholders to force it to purchase dissenting shares owned by them, each corporation is required to give notice to each of its shareholders within 10 days after the proposed exchange has been approved by its outstanding shares of that approval. The notice must include, or be accompanied by, a brief description of the procedure a shareholder must follow to force the corporation to purchase his or her shares. It must also be accompanied by a copy of Corp. Code §§ 1300-1304 and a statement of the price the corporation has determined to be the fair market value of dissenting shares [Corp. Code § 1301(a)].

The nature of a dissenting shareholder's right to require purchase of his or her shares, the definition of what are dissenting shares, and the procedures to be followed in enforcing a dissenting shareholder's rights are discussed in Ch. 11C, Mergers, § 11C.400. A procedural guide to enforcing a dissenting shareholder's rights is set forth in § 11C.150 et seq. in that chapter. That discussion and procedural guide should be used in conjunction with this form.

[2] Form

Notice to Shareholders of Approval by Outstanding Shares and Right of Dissenting Shareholders to Require Purchase of Dissenting Shares

NOTICE OF SHAREHOLDERS' APPROVAL OF REORGANIZATION

TO THE SHAREHOLDERS OF _____[name of corporation]

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that, at a special meeting of shareholders of this corporation held on _____[date] at _____ Street, _____, California, the outstanding shares of this corporation approved, as those terms are defined in the General Corporation Law of California, the principal terms of a proposed acquisition by this corporation of all the assets of _____[name of selling corporation] in exchange for voting common shares of this corporation as described in the "Plan and Agreement of Reorganization" dated _____[or the principal terms of a proposed exchange of all assets of this corporation for common voting shares of _____, a California corporation, as outlined in the "Plan and Agreement of Reorganization" executed by the two corporations and dated _____].

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that any shareholder of this corporation may require the corporation to purchase for cash at their fair market value on the day before the first announcement of the reorganization described in this notice any shares owned by the shareholder which come within the definition of "dissenting shares" contained in California Corporations Code Section 1301(b). To be dissenting shares within the definition contained in California Corporations Code Section 1301(b) the shares must have been held of record, that is outstanding, on the date for determination of the shareholders who were entitled to vote on the reorganization described in this notice and not voted in favor of the reorganization.

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that for a shareholder to enforce his or her right to require this corporation to purchase any dissenting shares owned by him or her, the shareholder must do two things:

1. Within 30 days after the date of the mailing of this notice to the shareholder, the shareholder must serve a written demand for this corporation to purchase his or her dissenting shares and pay the shareholder in cash the fair market value of those shares on the corporation or on a transfer agent of the corporation. The demand must state the number and class of shares held by the shareholder which the shareholder demands the corporation purchase as dissenting shares and the price the shareholder claims to be the fair market value of those shares as of the day before announcement of the proposed reorganization described in this notice.

2. Within 30 days after the date of the mailing of this notice to the shareholder, the shareholder must, in addition to making the demand described above, submit the certificate for the shares he or she claims to be dissenting shares to the corporation or its transfer agent so that there may be stamped or endorsed on the share certificate a statement that the shares represented by it are dissenting shares. The certificate should be submitted to the corporation at its principal office at _____ Street in _____, California or to its transfer agent, _____[name] at its office at _____ Street, _____, California.

Thereafter, should the corporation fail to agree to purchase the shareholder's dissenting shares at an agreed price or deny they are dissenting shares, the shareholder may file a complaint against the corporation to force it to purchase the shares in the Superior Court of the State of California for the County of _____, the county where the principal executive office of this corporation is located. The complaint must be filed by the shareholder with that court within six months after the date on which this notice was mailed to the shareholder. A copy of California Corporations Code Sections 1300, 1301, 1302, 1303, and 1304, governing the procedure a shareholder must follow to require this corporation to purchase dissenting shares owned by the shareholder, is enclosed with this notice.

[EITHER]

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that this corporation has determined that the price of $_____ per share represents the fair market value of dissenting shares of this corporation as of the day before the first announcement of the terms of the reorganization described in this notice.

[OR, if corporation has more than one class of shares outstanding:]

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that this corporation has determined that the following prices represent the fair market value of dissenting shares of this corporation as of the day before the first announcement of the terms of the reorganization described in this notice: _____[specify, e.g.:]

$_____ per share for voting common shares;

$_____ per share for Class A Preferred shares; and $_____ per share for Class B Preferred shares.

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form contains the written demand that must be served on a corporation to a proposed assets-for-shares exchange (a "sale-of-assets reorganization" under the General Corporation Law [see Corp. Code § 181(c)]) by a shareholder desiring to have the corporation purchase his or her dissenting shares [see Corp. Code § 1301(c), (d)]. The nature of a shareholder's right to require a corporation to purchase his or her dissenting shares and the procedure he or she must follow to enforce that right are discussed more fully in Ch. 11C, Mergers, § 11C.400. DIVISION I: BUSINESS AND NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS
CHAPTER 11F CORPORATE CONVERSIONS

5-11F California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide Scope

Scope

Scope

This chapter covers the conversion of corporations into other business entities, under Chapter 11.5 of the General Corporation Law [Corp. Code § 1150 et seq.]. The Legal Background covers the requirements for effectuating a conversion, and discusses the effect of conversion on the converting entity. The Transaction Guide sets forth the procedures for converting a corporation to another form of entity pursuant to statutory requirements, and contains a guide for drafting the necessary documents. This chapter also includes forms used in a conversion, including a plan of conversion, a resolution authorizing conversion, and a certificate of conversion.

This chapter assumes that the legal and tax consequences of a conversion have been considered, and the decision made to proceed with the transaction. Its focus is on the procedures necessary to effectuate a conversion pursuant to California law. For an in-depth comparison of potential business forms available under California law, see Ch. 1B, Selecting Form of Business Entity .

This chapter does not attempt to enumerate the steps necessary to form the entities into which a corporation or other business entity can convert. If the converted entity is a limited partnership, general partnership, or limited liability company, Ch. 15A, Formation of Limited Partnerships, Ch. 15, Part A, Formation of General Partnerships, or Ch. 12C, Limited Liability Companies, should be consulted as appropriate.

This chapter contains a brief discussion of the general rules governing the conversion of other business entities (including limited liability companies, general partnerships, and limited partnerships) into corporations [see § 11F.57]. Because the conversion process depends to some extent on the type of entity involved, however, the conversion of those other types of entities into California corporations is discussed primarily in the chapters dealing specifically with those types of entities. The conversion of limited liability companies into other business entities, including corporations, is discussed in Ch. 12C, Limited Liability Companies . For discussion of the conversion of general partnerships into other business entities, see Ch. 15, Part C, Conversions and Mergers of General Partnerships . The conversion of limited partnerships into other business entities is discussed in Ch. 15C, Conversions and Mergers of Limited Partnerships .

§ 11F.50 Conversions In General

Chapter 11.5 of the General Corporation Law, added in 2002 [see Corp. Code §§ 161.9, 1150 et seq.; Stats. 2002, ch. 480], permits both (1) the conversion of corporations into domestic "other business entities" [see § 11F.52 et seq.], and (2) the conversion of domestic or foreign other business entities and foreign corporations into corporations [see § 11F.57]. California corporations, however, cannot convert into foreign corporations or foreign other business entities.

The conversion of corporations governed by the General Corporation Law into nonprofit public benefit corporations, nonprofit mutual benefit corporations, nonprofit religious corporations, or cooperative corporations (or of those corporations into corporations governed by the General Corporation Law) has been permitted since 1979 pursuant to a simple amendment of the articles of incorporation [see Corp. Code § 911; Ch. 10, Amendment of Articles, § 10.31].

Limited liability companies, general partnerships, and limited partnerships are authorized to convert into domestic or foreign "other business entities," including corporations [see Corp. Code §§ 17540.2, 16902, 15677.2 (CRLPA, repealed January 1, 2010); Corp. Code § 15911.02(a)(3) (ULPA '08); see § 11F.57]. These conversions are primarily discussed in the chapters dealing with these respective types of entities:

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11F California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11F.51

§ 11F.51 Definitions

[1] Other Business Entity

For purposes of the statutes governing corporate conversions, "other business entity" means a domestic or foreign limited liability company, limited partnership, general partnership, business trust, real estate investment trust, unincorporated association (other than a nonprofit association), or a domestic reciprocal insurer organized after 1974 to provide medical malpractice insurance [Corp. Code § 1150(g); see Corp. Code § 174.5].

"Domestic other business entity" means an other business entity organized under California law [Corp. Code § 1150(e); see Corp. Code § 167.7].

"Foreign other business entity" means an other business entity organized under the laws of any state other than California, or of the District of Columbia, or under the laws of a foreign country [Corp. Code § 1150(f); see Corp. Code § 171.07].

[2] Converting Corporation; Converting Entity

"Converting corporation" means a corporation that converts into a domestic other business entity pursuant to Chapter 11.5 of the General Corporation Law [Corp. Code § 1150(c)]. "Converting entity" means an other business entity or a foreign other business entity or foreign corporation that converts into a corporation pursuant to Corp. Code § 1157 [Corp. Code § 1150(d); see § 11F.57].

[3] Converted Corporation; Converted Entity

"Converted corporation" means a corporation that results from a conversion of an other business entity or a foreign other business entity or a foreign corporation pursuant to Corp. Code § 1157 [Corp. Code § 1150(a); see § 11F.55]. "Converted entity" means a domestic other business entity that results from a conversion of a corporation under Chapter 11.5 of the General Corporation Law [Corp. Code § 1150(a)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11F California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11F.52

§ 11F.52 Conversion of Corporation Into Domestic Other Business Entity

[1] Carryover of Interests Required

A corporation may be converted into a "domestic other business entity" [see § 11F.51[1]] if, pursuant to the proposed conversion [Corp. Code § 1151(a)]:

- Each share of the same class or series of the converting corporation will be treated equally with respect to any cash, rights, securities, or other property to be received by, or any obligations or restrictions to be imposed on, the holder of that share, unless all the shareholders of the class or series consent to a different treatment; and

- Nonredeemable common shares of the converting corporation will be converted only into nonredeemable equity securities of the converted entity unless all of the shareholders of the class consent.

The first requirement, however, does not restrict the ability of the shareholders of a converting corporation to appoint one or more managers, if the converted entity is a limited liability company, or one or more general partners, if the converted entity is a limited partnership, in the plan of conversion or in the converted entity's governing documents [Corp. Code § 1151(a)].

[2] Applicable Law Must Authorize Conversion

The conversion of a corporation into a domestic other business entity may be effected only if both of the following conditions regarding applicable law are satisfied [Corp. Code § 1151(b)]:

- The law under which the converted entity will exist expressly permits the formation of that entity pursuant to a conversion [see Corp. Code §§ 15677.8 (CRLPA, repealed January 1, 2010), 15911.08 (ULPA '08) (conversion into California limited partnership), 16908 (conversion into California general partnership), 17540.8 (conversion into California LLC)]; and

- The corporation complies with any and all other requirements of any other law that applies to conversion to the converted entity.

DIVISION I: BUSINESS AND NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS
CHAPTER 11F CORPORATE CONVERSIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11F California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11F.53

§ 11F.53 Plan of Conversion

[1] Contents

A corporation that wants to convert to a domestic other business entity must approve a plan of conversion that states all of the following [Corp. Code § 1152(a)]:

- The terms and conditions of the conversion.
- The jurisdiction of the organization of the converted entity and of the converting corporation.
- The name of the converted entity after conversion.
- The manner of converting the shares of each of the shareholders of the converting corporation into securities of, or interests in, the converted entity.
- The provisions of the governing documents for the converted entity, including the partnership agreement or limited liability company articles of organization and operating agreement, to which the holders of interests in the converted entity are to be bound.
- Any other details or provisions that are required by the laws under which the converted entity is organized.
- Any other details or provisions that are desired by the converting corporation.

[2] Requisite Approvals

[a] All Corporations

The plan of conversion must be approved by the board of the converting corporation [Corp. Code § 1152(b); see Corp. Code § 151 ("approved by board" defined)]. Furthermore, the principal terms of the plan of the conversion must be approved by the outstanding shares of each class of the converting corporation [Corp. Code § 1152(b); see Corp. Code § 152 ("approved by outstanding shares" defined)]. The approval of the outstanding shares may be given before or after approval by the board [Corp. Code § 1152(b)].

[b] Close Corporations

If a converting corporation is a close corporation, the conversion must be approved by the affirmative vote of at least two-thirds of each class of outstanding shares of that converting corporation. However, the articles may provide for a lesser vote, but not less than a majority of the outstanding shares of each class [Corp. Code § 1152(b)].

[c] Conversion Into Partnership or LLC

The statute also provides that if the corporation is converting into a general or limited partnership or into a limited liability company, then in addition to the approval of the shareholders, as stated in [a] and [b], above, the plan of conversion must be approved by each shareholder who will become a general partner or manager, as applicable, of the converted entity pursuant to the plan of conversion, unless the shareholders have dissenters' rights pursuant to Corp. Code §§ 1159, 1300 et seq. [Corp. Code § 1152(c); see § 11F.56]. Since Corp. Code § 1159 appears to grant dissenters' rights to shareholders of a converting corporation in all cases, however [see § 11F.56], it is unclear when this additional approval requirement would actually apply.

[3] All Non-Dissenting Shareholders Deemed Parties to Plan

When the conversion is effective [see § 11F.54], all shareholders of the converting corporation, except those that exercise dissenters' rights [see Corp. Code §§ 1159, 1300 et seq.; § 11F.56], will be deemed parties to any agreement or agreements constituting the governing documents for the converted entity adopted as part of the plan of conversion, regardless of whether or not a shareholder has executed the plan of conversion or those governing documents for the converted entity. Any "deemed" adoption of governing documents will be effective at the effective time or date of the conversion [Corp. Code § 1152(d)].

[4] Amending of Plan of Conversion

Notwithstanding prior approval by the board, the outstanding shares, or either of them, a plan of conversion may be amended before the conversion takes effect if the amendment is approved by the board. If the amendment changes any of the principal terms of the plan of conversion, the shareholders of the converting corporation must also approve the amendment in the same manner and to the same extent as was required for approval of the original plan of conversion [Corp. Code § 1152(e); see [2], above].

[5] Maintaining Plan of Conversion

The converted entity must keep the plan of conversion at one of the following locations [Corp. Code § 1152(g)]:

- The principal place of business of the converted entity, if the converted entity is a domestic general partnership.

- The office at which records are to be kept, if the converted entity is a domestic limited partnership [see Corp. Code §§ 15614, 15901.11].

- The office at which records are to be kept, if the converted entity is a domestic limited liability company [see Corp. Code § 17057].

On request of a shareholder of a converting corporation, the authorized person on behalf of the converted entity must deliver to the shareholder promptly, at the expense of the converted entity, a copy of the plan of conversion. Any waiver by a shareholder of these rights is unenforceable [Corp. Code § 1152(g)].

[6] Abandoning Plan of Conversion

At any time before a conversion is effective, the plan of conversion may be abandoned by the board of the converting corporation, or by the shareholders of the converting corporation if the abandonment is approved by the outstanding shares. In each case, the abandonment must be approved in the same manner required for approval of the plan of conversion [see [2], above], subject to the contractual rights of third parties [Corp. Code § 1152(f)].

§ 11F.54 Effective Date of Conversion

After the approval of a plan of conversion by the board and the outstanding shares of a corporation converting into a domestic other business entity [see § 11.53[2]], the converting corporation must file all documents required by law to effect the conversion and create the converted entity, including a certificate of conversion or a statement of conversion [see § 11F.55]. The conversion will be effective when this filing is made [Corp. Code § 1153(a)].

A copy of the statement of partnership authority, certificate of limited partnership, or articles of organization complying with Corp. Code § 1155 [see § 11F.55], duly certified by the Secretary of State on or after the effective date, is conclusive evidence of the conversion of the corporation [Corp. Code § 1153(b)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11F California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11F.55

§ 11F.55 Statement or Certificate of Conversion

[1] Applicable Form

[a] Domestic Limited Partnership

If a corporation is converting into a domestic limited partnership, a statement of conversion must be completed on the certificate of limited partnership for the converted entity [Corp. Code § 1155(a)(1)]. Secretary of State Form LP-1A [see Ch. 15C, Conversions and Mergers of Limited Partnerships, § 15C.205 (form and discussion)] is used for this purpose.

[b] Domestic Partnership

If a corporation is converting into a domestic partnership, a statement of conversion must be completed on the statement of partnership authority for the converted entity, if a statement of partnership authority has been filed. Secretary of State Form GP-1A [see Ch. 15, Part C, Conversions and Mergers of General Partnerships, § 15.801 (form and discussion)] is used for this purpose.

If no statement of partnership authority has been filed, however (nonregistered general partnership), a certificate of conversion must be filed separately on a form prescribed by the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 1155(a)(2), (c)]. Secretary of State Form CONV-1A is used for the that purpose [see § 11F.210 (form and discussion)].

[c] Domestic Limited Liability Company

If a corporation is converting into a domestic limited liability company, a statement of conversion must be completed on the articles of organization for the converted entity [Corp. Code § 1155(a)(3)]. Secretary of State Form LLC-1A [see Ch. 12C, Limited liability Companies, § 12C.200A (form and discussion)] is used for this purpose.

[2] Contents

A statement or certificate of conversion of a converting corporation must set forth all of the following [Corp. Code §

1155(b)]:

- The name and the Secretary of State's file number of the converting corporation.

- A statement of the total number of outstanding shares of each class entitled to vote on the conversion.

- That the principal terms of the plan of conversion were approved by a vote of the number of shares of each class which equaled or exceeded the required vote [see Corp. Code § 1152], specifying each class entitled to vote and the percentage vote required of each class.

- The name, form, and jurisdiction of organization of the converted entity.

[3] Execution and Acknowledgment of Form

A statement or certificate of conversion of a converting corporation must be executed and acknowledged by those officers of the converting corporation who would be required to sign an officers' certificate [Corp. Code § 1155(b); see Corp. Code § 173 ("officers' certificate" defined)]: the chair of the board, the president or any vice president, and the secretary, chief financial officer, treasurer or any assistant secretary or assistant treasurer.

[4] Certificate of Dissolution Not Required

No converting corporation that has filed a statement of conversion or certificate of conversion with the Secretary or State is required to file a certificate of election [see Corp. Code § 1901] or a certificate of dissolution [see Corp. Code § 1905] as a result of the conversion [Corp. Code § 1155(d)]. Filing a statement of conversion or a certificate of conversion with the Secretary of State has the effect of the filing of a certificate of dissolution by the converting corporation [Corp. Code § 1155(d)].

[5] Tax Clearance Certificate Requirement

No statement or certificate of conversion may be filed with the Secretary of State until a certificate of satisfaction of the Franchise Tax Board that all taxes imposed have been paid or secured has been filed by or on behalf of the converting corporation [Corp. Code § 1155(e)].

If, however, the converted entity is a domestic general partnership, domestic limited partnership, or domestic limited liability company, the Secretary of State will file the statement or certificate of conversion without a certificate of satisfaction and will notify the Franchise Tax Board of the conversion. When the conversion is effective, a converted entity that is a domestic general partnership, domestic limited partnership, or domestic limited liability company will be deemed to have assumed the liability of the converting corporation to (1) to prepare and file or cause to be prepared and filed all tax and information returns otherwise required of the converting corporation, and (2) pay any tax liability determined to be due pursuant to that law [Corp. Code § 1155(e)].

§ 11F.56 Dissenters' Rights

Shareholders of a converting corporation may dissent from the proposed conversion. A conversion pursuant to Chapter 11.5 of the General Corporation Law [see Corp. Code § 1150 et seq.] is deemed to constitute a reorganization [see Corp. Code § 181 ("reorganization" defined)] solely for purposes of applying the provisions of Chapter 13 (dissenters' rights in reorganizations) [Corp. Code § 1313; see Corp. Code § 1300 et seq.]. Therefore, the shareholders of a converting corporation have all of the rights under Chapter 13 of the shareholders of a corporation involved in a reorganization requiring the approval of its outstanding shares [Corp. Code § 1159; see Corp. Code § 152]. Correspondingly, the converting corporation has all of the obligations under Chapter 13 of a corporation involved in a reorganization [Corp. Code § 1159].

Solely for purposes of applying the dissenters' provisions of Chapter 13, and not for purposes of Chapter 12 governing reorganizations [see Corp. Code § 1200 et seq.], a corporate conversion [see Corp. Code §§ 1151, 1157] is deemed to constitute a reorganization [Corp. Code § 1159]. For discussion of reorganizations, see Ch. 11C, Mergers . Dissenters' rights are covered in Ch. 11C, Mergers, § 11C.150 et seq.

DIVISION I: BUSINESS AND NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS
CHAPTER 11F CORPORATE CONVERSIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11F California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11F.57

§ 11F.57 Conversion of Other Business Entity Into Corporation

[1] Law Must Authorize Conversion

An other business entity, a foreign other business entity, or a foreign corporation may be converted into a corporation, provided the converting entity is authorized by the laws under which it is organized to effect the conversion [Corp. Code § 1157(a)]. California law specifically authorizes California general partnerships, limited partnerships, and limited liability companies to convert to California corporations [see Corp. Code §§ 15677.2 (CRLPA, repealed January 1, 2010), 15911.02(a)(3) (ULPA '08) (limited partnerships), 16902 (general partnerships), 17540.2 (limited liability companies)]. For foreign business entities, the governing law of the state or country of organization must be reviewed to determine if that law authorizes conversion to a California corporation.

The California statutes governing general partnerships, limited partnerships,and limited liability companies set forth their own requirements and procedures for converting each of those types of entities into other business entities, including corporations. These requirements and procedures are specific to the type of entity involved, and are not discussed in detail in this chapter. For detailed discussion of the conversion requirements applicable to these entities, and the appropriate form for the specific type of entity involved, see Ch. 12C, Limited Liability Companies , Ch. 15, Part C, Conversion and Mergers of General Partnerships and Ch. 16B, Conversions and Mergers of Limited Partnerships, as appropriate.

The requirements of Corp. Code § 1157 do not apply to a foreign corporation's conversion into another foreign corporation. Therefore, the capacity of a qualified foreign corporation to do business, and to appear in legal proceedings, in California cannot be affected by the corporation's noncompliance with that code section in the event that the corporation converts, for example, from a Nevada corporation into a Delaware corporation [Capital Gold Group, Inc. v. Nortier (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1119, 1130-1132, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 439] .

[2] Approvals

An other business entity, a foreign other business entity, or a foreign corporation that desires to convert into a corporation must approve a plan of conversion or other instrument that is required to be approved to effect the conversion pursuant to the laws under which that entity is organized [Corp. Code § 1157(b); see Corp. Code §§

15677.3(a) (CRLPA, repealed January 1, 2010), 15911.03(a) (ULPA '08) (California limited partnerships), 16903(a) (California general partnerships), 17540.3(a) (California limited liability companies)].

The conversion of an other business entity or a foreign other business entity or a foreign corporation must be approved by the number or percentage of the partners, members, shareholders, or other holders of interest of the converting entity that is required by the laws under which that entity is organized, or any greater or lesser percentage that set forth in the converting entity's organizational document in accordance with applicable laws [Corp. Code § 1157(c); see Corp. Code §§ 15677.3(b) (CRLPA, repealed January 1, 2010), 15911.03(b) (ULPA '08) (California limited partnerships), 16903(b) (California general partnerships), 17540.3(b) (California limited liability companies)].

[3] Filing Statement of Conversion

The conversion by an other business entity, foreign other business entity, or foreign corporation will be effective as of the filing with the Secretary of State of the articles of incorporation of the converted corporation containing a statement of conversion [Corp. Code § 1157(d)]. This filing has the effect of the filing of a certificate of cancellation by a converting foreign limited liability company or foreign limited partnership. No converting foreign limited liability company or foreign limited partnership that has made the filing is required to file a certificate of cancellation as a result of that conversion [Corp. Code § 1157(f); see Corp. Code §§ 15696, 15909.06, 17455]. If a converting entity is a foreign corporation qualified to transact business in California, the foreign corporation, by virtue of the filing, automatically surrenders its right to transact intrastate business [Corp. Code § 1157(f)].

The Secretary of State has developed sample articles of incorporation, containing the required statement of conversion, for limited liability companies, general partnerships, and limited partnerships. These samples are reproduced in this publication in the chapters dealing with conversion of each respective type of entity. For articles of incorporation for a converting limited liability company, see Ch. 12C, Limited Liability Companies, § 12C.213. For articles of incorporation for a converting general partnership, see Ch. 15, Part C, Conversion and Mergers of General Partnerships , §§ 15.803, 15.804. For articles of incorporation for a converting limited partnership, see Ch. 15C, Conversions and Mergers of Limited Partnerships, § 15C.207.

CHAPTER 11F CORPORATE CONVERSIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11F California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11F.58

§ 11F.58 Effect of Conversion on Converting Entity

[1] Converting Entity Unchanged

Any entity that converts into another entity is the same entity that existed before the conversion, for all purposes other than for purposes of Parts 10 (Personal Income Tax), 10.2 (administration of franchise and income tax laws), and 11 (Corporation Tax Law) of Division 2 of the Revenue and Taxation Code [Corp. Code § 1158(a); see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 17001 et seq., 18401 et seq., 23001 et seq.].

As of the effective date of conversion, all of the following apply [Corp. Code § 1158(b)]:

- All the rights and property, whether real, personal, or mixed, of the converting entity or converting corporation are vested in the converted entity or converted corporation.

- All debts, liabilities, and obligations of the converting entity or converting corporation continue as debts, liabilities, and obligations of the converted entity or converted corporation.

- All rights of creditors and liens upon the property of the converting entity or converting corporation are preserved unimpaired and remain enforceable against the converted entity or converted corporation to the same extent as against the converting entity or converting corporation as if the conversion had not occurred.

- Any action or proceeding pending by or against the converting entity or converting corporation may be continued against the converted entity or converted corporation as if the conversion had not occurred.

[2] Shareholder Liability

[a] In General

A shareholder of a converting corporation is liable for the following [Corp. Code § 1158(c)]:

- All obligations of the converting corporation for which the shareholder was personally liable before the conversion, but only to the extent that the shareholder was personally liable for the obligations of the converting corporation before the conversion.

- All obligations of the converted entity incurred after the conversion takes effect if:

  - The shareholder becomes a general partner of a converted entity that is a general or limited partnership and, as a general partner, has liability under the laws under which the converted entity is organized or under the converted entity's governing documents; or

  - The shareholder becomes a holder of other interests in the converted entity and, as a holder, has liability under the laws under which the converted entity is organized or under the converted entity's governing documents.

A shareholder of a converted corporation remains liable for any and all obligations of the converting entity for which the shareholder was personally liable before the conversion, but only to the extent that the shareholder was personally liable for the obligations of the converting entity before the conversion [Corp. Code § 1158(d)].

[b] Converting General Partnership

If a party to a transaction with a converted corporation that converted from a partnership reasonably believes when entering into the transaction that a shareholder of the converted corporation continues to be a general partner of the converting entity after the conversion is effective, and the shareholder was a general partner of the partnership that converted into the converted corporation, the shareholder is liable for any obligation incurred by the converted corporation within 90 days after the conversion takes effect [Corp. Code § 1158(e)]. The shareholder's liability for all other obligations of the converted corporation incurred after the conversion takes effect is that of a corporate shareholder [Corp. Code § 1158(e)].

[3] Notice to Creditors

The converted entity must cause written notice of the conversion to be given by mail within 90 days after the effective date of the conversion to all known creditors and claimants whose addresses appear on the records of the converting entity. Failure to comply with this requirement, however, does not affect the validity of the conversion, extend the 90-day period of shareholder liability [see Corp. Code § 1158(e); see also [2], above], or otherwise affect the rights of a creditor or claimant under Corp. Code § 1158 [Corp. Code § 1158(f)]. For a form for this notice to creditors, see § 11F.280.

CHAPTER 11F CORPORATE CONVERSIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-11F California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11F.59

§ 11F.59 Title to Real Property of Converting Entity

[1] Recording Requirements

Whenever an entity having any real property in California converts into a corporation or an other business entity pursuant to California law or the law of the state or place in which the corporation or other business entity was organized, and the laws of the state or place of organization (including California) of the converting corporation or other converting entity provide substantially that the conversion vests in the converted corporation or other converted entity all the real property of the converting corporation or other converting entity [see Corp. Code §§ 15677.7 (real property of converting California limited partnership), 16907 (CRLPA, repealed January 1, 2010), 15911.07 (ULPA '08) (real property of converting California general partnership), 17540.7 (real property of converting California limited liability company)], either of the following may be filed for record in the office of the county recorder of any county in California in which any of the real property of the converting corporation or other converting entity is located [Corp. Code § 1156(a)]:

- A certificate of conversion or statement of partnership authority, certificate of limited partnership, or articles of organization containing a statement of conversion complying with Corp. Code § 1155 [see § 11F.55] that is certified on or after the effective date of the conversion by the Secretary of State; or

- A copy of a certificate of conversion or a statement of partnership authority, certificate of limited partnership, articles of organization, articles of incorporation, or other comparable organizing document evidencing the creation of a foreign other business entity or foreign corporation, containing a statement of conversion, meeting the requirements of Corp. Code § 1156(b) [see discussion below] and certified on or after the effective date of the conversion by the Secretary of State or any other authorized public official of the state or place pursuant to the laws of which the converted entity is organized.

This filing provides evidence of record ownership in the converted corporation or other converted entity of all interest of the converting corporation or other converting entity in and to the real property located in that county [Corp. Code § 1156(a)].

Corp. Code § 1156(b) provides that a filed and (if appropriate) recorded certificate of conversion, or a statement of partnership authority, certificate of limited partnership, articles of organization, articles of incorporation, or other comparable organizing document evidencing the formation of a foreign other business entity or a foreign corporation that contains a statement of conversion, stating the name of the converting corporation or other converting entity in whose name property was held before the conversion and the name of the converted entity or converted corporation, but not containing all of the other information required by Corp. Code § 1155 [see § 11F.55], operates with respect to the converted entity named to the same extent [Corp. Code § 1156(b)].

[2] Presumption in Favor of Bona Fide Purchasers

The recording of a certificate of conversion, or statement of partnership authority, certificate of limited partnership, articles of organization, articles of incorporation, or other comparable organizing document evidencing the creation of an other business entity or a corporation, containing a statement of conversion [see Corp. Code § 1156(a); see also [1], above], creates a conclusive presumption in favor of bona fide purchasers or encumbrances for value that the conversion was validly completed [Corp. Code § 1156(c)].

B. Preliminary Determinations

5-11F California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11F.110

§ 11F.110 Approval of Conversion

1. Determine whether conversion can be approved by required vote of converting corporation:

a. By board of converting corporation [Corp. Code § 1152(b); see Corp. Code § 151].

b. By outstanding shares of each class of converting corporation [Corp. Code § 1152(b); see Corp. Code § 152].

NOTE:
The principal terms of the plan of the conversion must be approved by the outstanding shares of each class of the converting corporation [Corp. Code § 1152(b); see Corp. Code § 152]. For discussion of these general approval requirements for a plan of conversion, see § 11F.53[2] .

c. If converting corporation is close corporation, by affirmative vote of at least two thirds of each class of outstanding shares [Corp. Code § 1152(b); see § 11F.53[2]]?

NOTE:
The statute also provides that if the corporation is converting into a general or limited partnership or into a limited liability company, then in addition to the approval of the shareholders, the plan of conversion must be approved by each shareholder who will become a general partner or manager, as applicable, of the converted entity pursuant to the plan of conversion unless the shareholders have dissenters' rights pursuant to Corp. Code §§ 1159, 1300 et seq. [Corp. Code § 1152(c)]. Since Corp. Code § 1159 appears to grant dissenters' rights to shareholders of a converting corporation in all cases, however, it is unclear when this additional approval requirement would actually apply.

2. With respect to possible dissent:

NOTE:

Shareholders of a converting corporation may dissent from the proposed conversion. A conversion pursuant to Chapter 11.5 of the General Corporation Law [see Corp. Code § 1150 et seq.] is deemed to constitute a reorganization [see Corp. Code § 181 (definition)] solely for purposes of applying the provisions of Chapter 13 of the Corporations Code, relating to dissenters' rights in reorganizations [Corp. Code § 1313; see Corp. Code § 1300 et seq.]. Therefore, the shareholders of a converting corporation have all of the rights under Chapter 13 of the shareholders of a corporation involved in a reorganization requiring the approval of its outstanding shares [Corp. Code § 1159; see Corp. Code § 152]. For discussion of dissenters' rights in reorganizations, see Ch. 11C, Mergers § 11C.150 et seq.

a. Are any shareholders likely to dissent?

b. How will purchase of dissenting interests be funded?

Scope

NOTE: The conversion of California limited partnerships, general partnerships, and limited liability companies into domestic or foreign "other business entities," including corporations [see Corp. Code §§ 15677.2, 16902, 17540.2] is briefly discussed in § 11F.57. These conversions are primarily discussed in their respective chapters: Ch. 12C, Limited Liability Companies [see §§ 12C.26, 12C.213]; Ch. 15, Part C, Conversion and Mergers of General Partnerships, § 15.602; and Ch. 15C, Conversions and Mergers of Limited Partnerships [§ 15C.30.

This transaction guide does not attempt to enumerate the steps necessary to form the entities into which a corporation or other business entity can convert. If the converted entity is a corporation, limited partnership, general partnership, or a limited liability company, the chapters containing the appropriate procedures and forms should be consulted [see Ch. 2, Formation of Corporations ; Ch. 15A, Formation of Limited Partnerships ; Ch. 15, Part A Formation of General Partnerships , Formation of General Partnerships; Ch. 12C, Limited Liability Companies].

5-11F California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11F.120

§ 11F.120 Conversion of California Corporation Into Other Business Entity

NOTE:

Chapter 11.5 of the General Corporation Law [see Corp. Code §§ 161.9, 1150 et seq.] permits the conversion of corporations into domestic "other business entities." However, a California corporation cannot convert into a foreign corporation or foreign other business entity.

"Other business entity" means a domestic or foreign limited liability company, limited partnership, general partnership, business trust, real estate investment trust, unincorporated association (other than a nonprofit association), or a domestic reciprocal insurer organized after 1974 to provide medical malpractice insurance [Corp. Code § 1150(g); see Corp. Code § 174.5].

"Domestic other business entity" means an other business entity organized under California law [Corp. Code § 1150(e); see Corp. Code § 167.7]. "Foreign other business entity" means an other business entity organized under the laws of any state other than California, or of the District of Columbia, or under the laws of a foreign country [Corp. Code § 1150(f); see Corp. Code § 171.07].

1. Draft plan of conversion [see Corp. Code § 1152; see also §§ 11F.150 (drafting guide), 11F.200 (form)].

2. Submit plan of conversion to all of following for approval:

a. Board of directors of converting corporation.

NOTE:

The plan must be approved by the board of the converting corporation [Corp. Code § 1152(b); see Corp. Code § 151].

b. Outstanding shares of each class of converting corporation.

NOTE:

The principal terms of the plan must be approved by the outstanding shares of each class of the converting corporation [Corp. Code § 1152(b); see Corp. Code § 152]. The approval of the outstanding shares may be given before or after approval by the board [Corp. Code § 1152(b)].

If the converting corporation is a close corporation, the conversion must be approved by the affirmative vote of at least two-thirds of each class of outstanding shares of that converting corporation. However, the articles may provide for a lesser vote, but not less than a majority of the outstanding shares of each class [Corp. Code § 1152(b)].

c. Each shareholder who will become general partner or manager of converted entity, if corporation is converting into general partnership, limited partnership, or LLC [but see NOTE, below].

NOTE:

The statute provides that if the corporation is converting into a general or limited partnership or into a limited liability company, then in addition to the approval of the shareholders, the plan of conversion must be approved by each shareholder who will become a general partner or manager, as applicable, of the converted entity pursuant to the plan of conversion unless the shareholders have dissenters' rights pursuant to Corp. Code §§ 1159, 1300 et seq. [Corp. Code § 1152(c); see [8], below]. Since Corp. Code § 1159 appears to grant dissenters' rights to shareholders of a converting corporation in all cases, however, it is unclear when this additional approval requirement would actually apply.

3. Advise corporation that converted entity must keep plan of conversion at one of following locations [Corp. Code § 1152(g)]:

NOTE:

Upon the request of a shareholder of the converting corporation, an authorized person of the converted entity must promptly deliver a copy of the plan of conversion to the shareholder. The copy must be made at the expense of the converted entity. Any waiver by a shareholder of these rights is unenforceable [Corp. Code § 1152(g)].

a. If converted entity is domestic general partnership, at principal place of business.

b. If converted entity is domestic limited partnership, at office where records are to be kept [see Corp. Code §§ 15614, 15901.11].

c. If converted entity is domestic limited liability company, at office where records are to be kept [see Corp. Code § 17057].

4. If amendment to plan of conversion is required before conversion takes effect [Corp. Code § 1152(e)]:

NOTE:

Notwithstanding prior approval of the plan by the board, the outstanding shares, or either of them, a plan may be amended before the conversion takes effect if approval requirements are met [Corp. Code § 1152(e)].

a. Have board of directors approve amendment.

b. If amendment changes any principal terms of plan, have shareholders approve amendment.

NOTE:
In these circumstances, the shareholders of the converting corporation must approve the amendment in the same manner and to the same extent as was required for approval of the original plan [Corp. Code § 1152(e); see [2], above].

5. If corporation decides to abandon conversion before conversion is effective, arrange for applicable vote.

NOTE:
A plan of conversion may be abandoned by the board of a converting corporation, or by the shareholders if the abandonment is approved by the outstanding shares, in each case in the same manner as required for approval of the plan of conversion, subject to the contractual rights of third parties [Corp. Code § 1152(e); see [2], above].

6. Draft resolution authorizing conversion of corporation into other business entity [see §§ 11F.151 (drafting guide), 11F.201 (form)].

7. Have directors adopt resolution authorizing conversion.

NOTE:
For procedures applicable to meetings and resolutions of the board of directors, see Ch. 5, Directors' Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions .

8. Comply with dissenters' rights [see Ch. 12, Mergers, § 12C.150, for a procedural guide for dissenting shareholders)].

NOTE:
A conversion pursuant to Chapter 11.5 of the General Corporation Law [see Corp. Code § 1150 et seq.] is deemed to constitute a reorganization [see Corp. Code § 181 ("reorganization" defined)] solely for purposes of applying the provisions of Chapter 13 (dissenters' rights in reorganizations) [Corp. Code § 1313; see Corp. Code § 1300 et seq.]. Therefore, the shareholders of a converting corporation have all of the rights under Chapter 13 of the shareholders of a corporation involved in a reorganization requiring the approval of its outstanding shares, and the converting corporation has all of the obligations under Chapter 13 of a corporation involved in a reorganization [Corp. Code § 1159; see § 11F.56].

9. Complete and file statement or certificate of conversion, as appropriate, with Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 1155(a)]:

a. If corporation is converting into domestic limited partnership, file Secretary of State Form LP-1A, Certificate of Limited Partnership--Conversion [Corp. Code § 1155(a)(1)].

NOTE:
See Ch. 15C, Conversions and Mergers of Limited Partnerships, § 15C.205 for an example and discussion of this form.

b. If corporation is converting into domestic general partnership [Corp. Code § 1155(a)(2), (c)], file:

(1) Secretary of State Form GP-1A, General Partnership Statement of Partnership--Conversion; or

NOTE:
See Ch. 15, Part C, Conversion and Mergers of General Partnerships*, § 15.801* for an example and discussion of this form.

(2) Secretary of State Form CONV-1A, Certificate of Conversion, if no statement of partnership authority is filed.

NOTE:
See § 11F.210 for an example and discussion of the official form. That form contains the language prescribed by statute [see Corp. Code § 1155(b)].

c. If corporation is converting into domestic LLC, file Secretary of State Form LLC-1A, Limited Liability Company Articles of Organization--Conversion [Corp. Code § 1155(a)(3)].

NOTE:
See Ch. 12C, Limited liability Companies, § 12C.200A for an example and discussion of this form.

10. Have statement or certificate of conversion executed and acknowledged by officers of converting corporation who would be required to sign officers' certificate [Corp. Code § 1155(b); see Corp. Code § 173].

a. Chairman of the board, president, or any vice president; and

b. Secretary, chief financial officer, treasurer or any assistant secretary or assistant treasurer.

11. File statement or certificate, as appropriate, with Secretary of State.

NOTE:
After the approval of a plan of conversion by the board and the outstanding shares of a corporation converting into a domestic other business entity [see [2], above], the converting corporation must file all documents required by law to effect the conversion and create the converted entity, including a certificate of conversion or a statement of conversion. The conversion thereupon will be effective [Corp. Code § 1153(a)].

A copy of the statement of partnership authority, certificate of limited partnership, or articles of organization complying with Corp. Code § 1155, duly certified by the Secretary of State on or after the effective date, is conclusive evidence of the conversion of the corporation [Corp. Code § 1153(b)].

NOTE:
California law neither defines resolutions nor prescribes a form for them. However, certain standard formats are commonly used. For an example of a resolution authorizing conversion, see § 11F.201. For discussion and examples of resolutions generally, see Ch. 5, Directors' Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions*, § 5.240* et seq.

4. Include fact that both of following have approved principal terms of the plan of conversion:

NOTE:
Corp. Code § 1152 contains the specific approval requirements [see § 11F.53[2]].

a. Board of directors.

b. Outstanding shares of each class.

5. Indicate compliance with conversion prerequisites regarding carryover of shareholder interests and applicable governing.

NOTE:

Those requirements are set forth in Corp. Code § 1151 [see § 11F.52].

CHAPTER 11F CORPORATE CONVERSIONS
PART IV. FORMS
A. Corporate Forms

5-11F California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 11F.200

§ 11F.200 Plan of Conversion

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a plan of conversion to convert a corporation to a "domestic other business entity" pursuant to Chapter 11.5 of the General Corporation Law [Corp. Code § 1150 et seq.]. The term "corporation" unless modified means a corporation organized under the General Corporation Law or subject to its provisions pursuant to Corp. Code § 102(a) [see Corp. Code § 162.] The term "domestic other business entity" means a domestic (California) limited liability company, limited partnership, general partnership, business trust, real estate investment trust, unincorporated association (other than a nonprofit association), or a domestic reciprocal insurer organized after 1974 to provide medical malpractice insurance [Corp. Code § 1150(c); see Corp. Code § 174.5].

There are no statutory provisions in California allowing a corporation to convert into a foreign corporation or foreign other business entity. (The term "foreign other business entity" includes the same types of entities listed in the definition of "domestic other business entity" above, except that such an entity is organized in a jurisdiction other than California [Corp. Code § 1150(f)]). A domestic corporation, however, can become a foreign corporation or foreign other business entity through the process of merger [see Corp. Code §§ 1108, 1113]. This requires a second entity, but creating one for a merger is easy and relatively inexpensive. A domestic corporation can also "convert" into a California nonprofit or consumer cooperative corporation without using a second entity by amending its articles as permitted by Corp. Code § 911.

Under this form the shares of the converting entity will be exchanged for equal interests in the converted entity. Unequal treatment of shares of the same class or series is permitted only with the unanimous approval of all the shareholders of that class or series [see Corp. Code § 1151(a); see also § 11F.52].

[b] Contents of Plan

A corporation converting to a domestic other business entity must approve a plan of conversion that states all of the following [Corp. Code § 1152(a); see [2], below]:

- The terms and conditions of the conversion.
- The jurisdiction of organization of the converted entity and of the converting corporation.
- The name of the converted entity after conversion.
- The manner of converting shares of each shareholder of the converting corporation into securities of, or interests in, the converted entity.
- The provisions of the governing documents for the converted entity, including the partnership agreement or limited liability company articles of organization and operating agreement, to which the holders of interests in the converted entity are to be bound. Specification of these documents in the text of the statute does not mean that provisions of corresponding documents for another kind of entity need not be included; provisions of the plan should include whatever documentation would be needed for the proper organization and governance of the converted entity.
- Any other details or provisions that are required by the laws under which the converted entity is organized.
- Any other details or provisions desired by the converting corporation.

[c] Approval by Board and Shareholders

The board of the converting corporation must approve the plan of conversion, and the outstanding shares of each class of the converting corporation must approve the principal terms of that plan [Corp. Code § 1152(b); see Corp. Code §§ 151, 152]. The approval of the outstanding shares may be given before or after approval by the board [Corp. Code § 1152(b)].

If the converting corporation is a close corporation, the conversion must be approved by the affirmative vote of at least two thirds of each class of its outstanding shares. However, its articles may provide for a lesser vote, but not less than a majority of the outstanding shares of each class [Corp. Code § 1152(b)].

If the corporation is converting into a general or limited partnership or into a limited liability company, then, in addition to the approval of the shareholders described above, the statute states that plan of conversion must be approved by each shareholder who will become a general partner or manager, as applicable, of the converted entity pursuant to the plan of conversion unless the shareholders have dissenters' rights pursuant to Corp. Code §§ 1159, 1300 et seq. [Corp. Code § 1152(c); see § 11F.56]. The statutory use of the word "unless" seems inapt since Corp. Code § 1159 seems to provide shareholders of the converting corporation with dissenters' rights in all cases.

[d] Amending or Abandoning Plan of Conversion

Notwithstanding prior approval by either or both of the board or the outstanding shares, a plan of conversion may be amended before the conversion takes effect if the amendment is approved by the board. If, however, the amendment changes any of the principal terms of the plan, the shareholders of the converting corporation must also approve the amendment in the same manner and to the same extent as was required for approval of the original plan of conversion [Corp. Code § 1152(e)].

Furthermore, at any time before a conversion is effective, the plan of conversion may be abandoned by the board of the converting corporation, or by the shareholders of the converting corporation if the abandonment is approved by the outstanding shares [Corp. Code § 152]. In each case, the abandonment must be approved in the same manner required for approval of the plan [see [c], above], subject to the contractual rights of third parties [Corp. Code § 1152(f)].

[e] All Non-Dissenting Shareholders Deemed Parties to Plan

When the conversion is effective, all shareholders of the converting corporation, except those that exercise dissenters' rights [see Corp. Code §§ 1159, 1300 et seq.], will be deemed parties to any agreement or agreements constituting the governing documents for the converted entity adopted as part of the plan of conversion, whether or not a shareholder has executed the plan of conversion or those governing documents for the converted entity. Any such "deemed" adoption of governing documents will be effective at the effective time or date of the conversion [Corp. Code § 1152(d)].

[a] Use of Form

This form is the Secretary of State's official form for a certificate of conversion, together with the accompanying official instructions. This form is used when a domestic stock corporation is converting into a California general partnership if no statement of partnership authority [see Ch. 15, Part C, Conversion and Mergers of General Partnerships, § 15.801] is filed (a nonregistered general partnership) [Corp. Code § 1155(a)(2); see Instructions for Completing Form CONV-1A, set forth in [2], below]. If the domestic general partnership wants to register as part of the conversion, then FORM GP-1A should be used [see [b], below].

This form is available from any office of the Secretary of State, or can be obtained on the Secretary of State's website as described below.

ELECTRONIC FORMS NOTE

ELECTRONIC FORMS NOTE: Electronic copies of this form that may be printed out and filled in for filing can be obtained at the official website of the California Secretary of State, Business Programs Division, which is located at http://www.sos.ca.gov/business/bpd_forms.htm#corp . You may also obtain a copy of this form via email by contacting Matthew Bender & Co. at (800)424-0651, ext. 405, or emailing us at cal.custquest@bender.com and requesting an electronic copy of CLF Form 11F.230. Please be sure to include your email address along with your request and we will provide the form via return email. To view and print these forms, your computer system will need Adobe Acrobat Reader version 3.0 or higher.

[b] Certificate or Statement of Conversion

A corporation converting into an other business entity must file either a certificate or a statement of conversion to effect the conversion and create the converted entity [Corp. Code § 1153(a)]. In most cases, as discussed below, this form is not appropriate for California corporations that are converting to other California business entities because a statement of conversion, rather than a certificate of conversion, is filed.

If the corporation is converting into a domestic limited partnership, the statement of conversion must be completed on the certificate of limited partnership for the converted entity [Corp. Code § 1155(a)(1)]. Secretary of State Form LP-1A [see Ch. 15C, Conversions and Mergers of Limited Partnerships, § 15C.205 (form and discussion)] is used for this purpose.

If a corporation is converting into a domestic limited liability company, a statement of conversion must be completed on the articles of organization for the converted entity [Corp. Code § 1155(a)(3)]. Secretary of State Form LLC-1A [see Ch. 12C, Limited liability Companies, § 12C.200A (form and discussion)] is used for this purpose.

If the corporation is converting into a domestic partnership, the statement of conversion must be completed on the statement of partnership authority for the converted entity if one has been filed. Secretary of State Form GP-1A [see Ch. 15, Part C, Conversion and Mergers of General Partnerships, § 15.801 (form and discussion)] is used for this purpose. If no statement of partnership authority has been filed, however, then a certificate of conversion (this form) must be filed separately [Corp. Code § 1155(a)(2), (c)].

[c] Contents, Execution, and Acknowledgment

The required contents of the certificate of conversion are specified by statute [see Corp. Code § 1155(b)] and are reflected in this form. The certificate of conversion must be executed and acknowledged by those officers of the converting corporation that would be required to sign an officers' certificate; that is, the chairman of the board, the president or any vice president, and the secretary, the chief financial officer, the treasurer or any assistant secretary or assistant treasurer [Corp. Code § 1155(b) ; see Corp. Code § 173].

[d] Filing Fee

The filing fee for this Certificate of Conversion involving a domestic corporation is $250 [see Instructions for Completing Form CONV-1A, set forth in [2], below; Corp. Code § 1160]. The Secretary of State will certify two copies of the filed document without charge, provided that the copies are submitted to the Secretary of State with the original to be filed [see Instructions for Completing Form CONV-1A, set forth in [2], below].

[e] Effect of Filing Certificate of Conversion

The filing with of a certificate of conversion with the Secretary of State has the same effect as the filing of a certificate of dissolution by the converting corporation. No converting corporation that has made this filing is required to file a certificate of election [see Corp. Code § 1901] or a certificate of dissolution [see Corp. Code § 1905] as a result of the conversion [Corp. Code § 1155(d)].

Once the statement of conversion has been filed, certified copies of the statement may be recorded in the county recorder's office of counties where the corporation held real property [Corp. Code § 1156(a)]. Recordation provides notice to third parties and also provides a title chain for the real property for title insurance purposes. Furthermore, recordation will create, in favor of bona fide purchasers or encumbrances for value, a conclusive presumption that the conversion was validly completed [Corp. Code § 1156(a)].

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a notice to creditors of a converted entity informing them of the conversion. A converted entity must cause written notice of the conversion to be given by mail within 90 days after the effective date of the conversion to all known creditors and claimants whose addresses appear on the records of the converting entity. Failure to comply with this requirement, however, does not affect the validity of the conversion, extend the 90-day period of shareholder liability [see Corp. Code § 1158(e); see also § 11F.58[2]], or otherwise affect the rights of a creditor or claimant under this section [Corp. Code § 1158(f)].

Any entity that converts into another entity is the same entity that existed before the conversion, for all purposes other than for purposes of Parts 10, 10.20, and 11 of Division 2 of the Revenue and Taxation Code [Corp. Code § 1158(a); see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 17001 et seq., 18401 et seq., 23001 et seq.]. As of the effective date of conversion, all of the following apply [Corp. Code § 1158(b)]:

- All the rights and property, whether real, personal, or mixed, of the converting entity or converting corporation are vested in the converted entity or converted corporation.

- All debts, liabilities, and obligations of the converting entity or converting corporation continue as debts, liabilities, and obligations of the converted entity or converted corporation.

- All rights of creditors and liens upon the property of the converting entity or converting corporation will be preserved unimpaired and remain enforceable against the converted entity or converted corporation to the same extent as against the converting entity or converting corporation as if the conversion had not occurred.

- Any action or proceeding pending by or against the converting entity or converting corporation may be continued against the converted entity or converted corporation as if the conversion had not occurred.

CHAPTER 12 WINDING UP AND DISSOLUTION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Overview of Dissolution of Corporate Entities

5-12 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 12.10

§ 12.10 Terminology

The "dissolution" of a corporation is the termination of its existence. In the case of voluntary dissolution, this is achieved by the filing of a certificate of dissolution [Corp. Code § 1905], or, alternatively, by the issuance of a court order declaring the corporation duly wound up and dissolved, on petition by the board of directors in the name of the corporation [Corp. Code § 1907(a)-(d)]. In the case of an involuntary, or court-supervised voluntary dissolution, the corporation is dissolved by an order of the court [Corp. Code § 1808(a)]. For the distinction between these various methods of dissolution, see § 12.11.

"Winding up" is the process of terminating the business of a corporation and begins as of the date the corporation elects to dissolve [Corp. Code § 1903(a)], or, in the case of an involuntary dissolution, when the order for winding up is entered by the court [Corp. Code § 1805(a)].

"Liquidation" technically means the collection of the assets of the corporation and the payment or settlement of its debts. However, the term is generally used to refer to the termination of the corporation's existence, as is the case in the Internal Revenue Code [see I.R.C. §§ 331-346].

A. Overview of Dissolution of Corporate Entities

5-12 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 12.11

§ 12.11 Types of Dissolution

There are four types of corporate dissolution:

- Voluntary dissolution more or less without court supervision [see Corp. Code §§ 1900-1907].
- Voluntary dissolution with court supervision [see Corp. Code §§ 1802-1809, 1904].
- Involuntary dissolution (court proceedings) by a percentage of the shareholders and/or directors, any shareholder of a close corporation, any shareholder if the corporation's term of existence has expired, or any other person designated in the articles of incorporation [Corp. Code §§ 1800, 1802-1809].
- Involuntary dissolution when the state institutes court proceedings [Corp. Code § 1801].

CHAPTER 12 WINDING UP AND DISSOLUTION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Overview of Dissolution of Corporate Entities

5-12 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 12.12

§ 12.12 Role of Counsel; Conflicts of Interest

The decision to dissolve a corporation and the dissolution procedure present potential conflicts of interest. A lawyer retained by the corporation owes his or her professional duties and obligations to the corporation as client [Cal. Rules Prof. Cond., Rule 3-600(A); see Meehan v. Hopps (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 284, 290, 301 P.2d 10 (corporate counsel represents corporation and its shareholders and officers in their representative capacity, but not corporation's officers personally)]. The interests of the board of directors, or the shareholders or members, may diverge. Whenever it becomes apparent that the entity's interests are or may become adverse to those of its directors, officers, employees, members, shareholders, or other constituents, the attorney must identify the client for whom the attorney is acting and act accordingly [Cal. Rules Prof. Cond., Rule 3-600(D); see A.B.A. Model Rules Prof. Cond., Rule 1.13].

An attorney representing an entity may also represent its constituents, provided that the attorney makes a written disclosure to the client [Cal. Rules Prof. Cond., Rule 3-310(B)] and discloses his or her relationship to the entity [Cal. Rules Prof. Cond., Rule 3-600(E)]. Dual representation of clients whose interests conflict is permitted, under certain circumstances, if the attorney obtains the written consent of each client [Cal. Rules Prof. Cond., Rule 3-600(E); see Pringle v. La Chapelle (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1000, 1005-1007, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 90 (although attorney failed to follow Rule 3-600(E), violation of rule does not automatically preclude attorney from obtaining fees)]. However, caution should be exercised in dual representation situations when an actual conflict of interest exists. Further, even in the absence of an actual conflict, an attorney should not undertake multiple representation under some circumstances.

CHAPTER 12 WINDING UP AND DISSOLUTION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Dissolution of Domestic Stock Corporations
1. Voluntary Dissolution

5-12 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 12.20

§ 12.20 Voluntary Dissolution Without Court Supervision

[1] Who May Elect Dissolution

[a] Shareholders

Any corporation may elect voluntarily to wind up and dissolve by the vote of shareholders holding shares representing 50 percent or more of the voting power [Corp. Code § 1900(a)]. This election may be in the form of a resolution or by the written consent of the shareholders. However, if the voluntary dissolution motion carries by a vote of exactly 50 percent, dissolution may be avoided by having either the corporation or the remaining shareholder(s) purchase for cash the shares of the shareholders voting for dissolution [Corp. Code § 2000(a); see [9], below].

The authority of the shareholders to voluntarily dissolve the corporation is qualified by the requirement that the power be exercised in good faith and without intent to injure other shareholders [see In re Security Finance Co. (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 370, 317 P.2d 1] .

Although the articles of incorporation may not impose a supermajority voting requirement on shareholders to elect voluntary dissolution [see Corp. Code §§ 204(a)(5), 1900], the articles may provide for classes or series of preferred shares and that voluntary dissolution requires the consent of a supermajority of preferred shares, not to exceed 662/3 percent [Corp. Code § 402.5(b)]. Therefore, the articles must be reviewed to determine if they require a supermajority of preferred shares to authorize voluntary dissolution.

[b] Board of Directors

In addition to dissolution of a corporation by the shareholders [see [a], above], any corporation that meets one of the following qualifying criteria may elect, by approval of the board of directors, to wind up and dissolve [Corp. Code § 1900(b)]:

- A corporation as to which an order for relief has been entered under Chapter 7 of the federal bankruptcy law.

- A corporation that has disposed of all of its assets and has not conducted any business for a period of five years immediately preceding the adoption of the resolution electing to dissolve the corporation.

- A corporation that has issued no shares.

Except as otherwise provided by law, if the term of corporate existence expires without renewal or extension of its term, the board must terminate the corporation's business and wind up its affairs. When the business and affairs have been wound up, a majority of the directors must execute and file a certificate of dissolution [Corp. Code § 1906; see Corp. Code § 1905; see also [6], below].

In other situations, the board may not act on its own and need not take any action before voluntary dissolution proceedings commence [see [a], above]. However, it is common practice for the board to adopt a resolution stating that it is in the best interests of the corporation and its shareholders to dissolve the corporation before submitting the issue to the shareholders.

[2] Commencement of Proceedings

Voluntary proceedings for winding up a corporation begin on the adoption of the resolution of shareholders or directors of the corporation electing to wind up and dissolve, or on the filing with the corporation of a written consent of shareholders to dissolution [Corp. Code § 1903(a)]. The board continues to act as a board and has full powers to wind up and settle the corporation's affairs, both before and after the filing of the certificate of dissolution [Corp. Code § 1903(b); see [4][a], below].

Once a voluntary winding up proceeding begins, the corporation must cease to carry on business except (1) to the extent necessary for the beneficial winding up of the corporation and (2) during the period that the board deems necessary to preserve the corporation's goodwill or going-concern value pending a sale of its business or assets, or both, in whole or in part. The board must cause written notice of the commencement of the voluntary winding up proceeding to be given by mail to all shareholders (except that no notice need be given to the shareholders who voted in favor of winding up and dissolving the corporation) and to all known creditors and claimants whose addresses appear in the records of the corporation [Corp. Code § 1903(c)].

[3] Certificate of Election

Whenever a corporation elects to wind up and dissolve, it must file a certificate evidencing that election [Corp. Code § 1901(a)]. The certificate must be an officers' certificate [see Corp. Code § 173 (definition)], or must be signed and verified by at least a majority of the directors then in office or by one or more shareholders authorized to do so by shareholders holding shares representing 50 percent or more of the voting power [Corp. Code § 1901(b)(3)]. The certificate of election must set forth all of the following [Corp. Code § 1901(b); see § 12.205]:

- That the corporation has elected to wind up and dissolve.

- If the election was made by the vote of shareholders, the number of shares voting for the election and that the election was made by shareholders representing at least 50 percent of the voting power.

- If the certificate is executed by one or more shareholders, that the subscribing shareholder or shareholders were authorized to execute the certificate by shareholders holding shares representing at least 50 percent of the voting power.

- If the election was made by the board, the certificate must also set forth the circumstances showing the corporation is within one of the categories permitting dissolution by the board [see Corp. Code § 1900(b)].

However, if an election to dissolve is made by the vote of all the outstanding shares and a statement to that effect is added to the certificate of dissolution [see Corp. Code § 1905], the separate filing of the certificate of election is not required [Corp. Code § 1901(c)]. Further, the separate filing of a certificate of election is not required if winding up and dissolution are mandatory because the term of existence of the corporation has expired without renewal [see Corp. Code § 1906].

[4] Dissolution Procedure

[a] Power and Duties of Board

In a voluntary dissolution without court supervision, the board of directors conducts the winding up of the affairs of the corporation. During dissolution, the directors are authorized to do all things proper and convenient for the purposes of winding up, settling, and liquidating the affairs of the corporation. More specifically, the directors are empowered to take the following actions [Corp. Code §§ 2001, 2002]:

- Elect officers and employ agents and attorneys to liquidate or wind up corporate affairs.
- Continue to conduct the business insofar as necessary for winding up.
- Carry out contracts and collect, pay, compromise, and settle debts and claims for or against the corporation.
- Defend suits brought against the corporation.
- Sue, in the name of the corporation, for all sums due or owing to the corporation or to recover any of its property.
- Collect any amounts remaining unpaid on subscriptions to shares, or to recover unlawful distributions.
- Sell at public or private sale, exchange, convey, or otherwise dispose of all or any part of the assets of the corporation [see Corp. Code § 2001(g)].
- Make contracts.
- Do any and all things in the name of the corporation that may be proper or convenient for the purposes of winding up, settling, and liquidating the corporation's affairs.
- Fill any vacancy on the board [see Corp. Code § 305].

[b] Notification Requirements if Corporation Has Employees

Within 10 days after the earlier of beginning dissolution proceedings or quitting business, the corporation must file a final quarterly wage and withholding report with the Employment Development Department ("EDD") if the corporation had employees [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1116(a)(2); see § 12.281 (EDD Form DE 6)]. At the same time, the corporation must pay contributions with respect to the final return [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1116(b)]. Further, the corporation must file a final annual reconciliation return within this initial 10-day period [see EDD California Employer's Guide, Pub. No. DE 44; see also § 12.282 (EDD Form DE 7)]. However, on a showing of good cause, the EDD may extend for 30 days the time in which the corporation must file a return or pay any amount due without penalty or interest [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1116(c)].

For further discussion of procedures applicable on termination of a business, see the Transaction Guide to Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice.

[c] Payment of Outstanding Debts

The directors must collect, pay, compromise, and settle all of the debts and claims for or against the corporation [Corp. Code § 2001(c)]. The board cannot distribute the corporate assets to the shareholders until all debts and liabilities of the corporation have been paid or adequately provided for [Corp. Code § 2004]. The payment of a debt or liability, whether the location of a creditor is known or unknown, is "adequately provided for" if one or more financially responsible corporations or persons, or the United States government or any of its agencies, has assumed or guaranteed the debt in good faith, and the board has determined in good faith and with reasonable care that the payment provision was adequate at the time of distribution of the assets [Corp. Code § 2005(a)]. A debt or liability is also "adequately provided for" if the corporation has deposited the amount of the debt or liability with the Controller in trust for the benefit of those entitled to the payment [Corp. Code § 2005(b); see Corp. Code § 2008 (deposit provisions)]. A corporation may make adequate provision for debts and liabilities in other ways; these provisions are not the exclusive means of doing so [Corp. Code § 2005].

[d] Plan of Distribution

As a general rule, the board of directors typically adopts a plan of distribution, which outlines the dissolution proceedings. There is no statutory requirement that the board or the shareholders formally adopt a plan of distribution. However, if the directors intend to adopt a plan for the distribution of the noncash corporate assets and the plan is not in accordance with the liquidation preferences of the preferred shareholders as stated in the articles, the plan must be approved by (1) the board of directors and (2) the holders of a majority of the outstanding shares of each class entitled to vote [Corp. Code § 2007(a); see Corp. Code § 152]. The plan may provide that the distribution is in complete or partial satisfaction of the rights of any preferred shareholders on distribution and liquidation of the assets [Corp. Code § 2007(a)]. The board must give notice of the adoption of the plan by mail within 20 days after its adoption to all holders of shares having a liquidation preference [Corp. Code § 2007(b)].

Once adopted by the shareholders, a plan of distribution is binding on all shareholders [Corp. Code § 2007(b)] except dissenting preferred shareholders. Dissenting shareholders must be paid their liquidation preferences in cash unless the plan is abandoned, provided that they file a written demand for payment with the corporation within 30 days after the mailing date of the notice of the adoption of the plan. The demand must state the number and class of shares held of record by the dissenting shareholder in respect of which the shareholder claims payment [Corp. Code § 2007(c)]. If a demand for cash payment is filed, the board has discretion to abandon the plan without further approval of the outstanding shares. In this situation, all shareholders will be entitled to distribution according to their rights and liquidation preferences in the winding up process [Corp. Code § 2007(d)].

These rules [Corp. Code § 2007(a)-(d)] do not apply to certain distributions made in accordance with merger reorganizations [Corp. Code § 181(a) (definition); see Ch. 11C, Mergers] and sale-of-assets reorganizations [Corp. Code § 181(c) (definition); see Ch. 11E, Acquisition of Assets for Shares]. Specifically, these rules do not apply to those distributions under the following circumstances [Corp. Code § 2007(e); see Corp. Code § 1202(b)]:

- The terms of the reorganization provide that a class or series of preferred shares will receive as a distribution a lesser amount than would be required by applicable article provisions; and

- The principal terms of the reorganization have been approved by the same percentage of outstanding shares of that class or series that would be required to approve an amendment of the article provisions to provide for the distribution of that lesser amount.

It appears advisable to obtain shareholder approval of any plan involving distribution of the corporate assets in kind, even if the plan does not violate the liquidation preferences of preferred shareholders. Under former law, a plan of distribution approved by the directors and two thirds of the outstanding shares, regardless of limitations on voting power, was deemed fair and ratable [see former Corp. Code §§ 5004, 5005]. Current law contains no provision for the approval of a plan of liquidation by the shareholders, except in the case of a plan for distribution in kind that is not in accordance with the liquidation preferences as set forth in the articles [see Corp. Code § 2007(a); see also Corp. Code §§ 1001(a), (d), 2001(g) (shareholder approval required for certain sales of assets)]. However, approval of any plan of liquidation by the shareholders would considerably lessen the chance of a subsequent challenge to the fairness of the distribution. In any event, a plan of distribution cannot be adopted under which the business assets are distributed to majority shareholders and the minority shareholders are compelled to take cash for their distributive share, if the minority shareholders object [Zimmerman v. Tide Water Associated Oil Co. (1943) 61 Cal. App. 2d 585, 591-592, 143 P.2d 409 ; In re San Joaquin L.&P. Corp. (1942) 52 Cal. App. 2d 814, 823-824, 127 P.2d 29] .

[e] Distribution of Assets

After determining that all the known debts and liabilities have been paid or adequately provided for [see Corp. Code § 2005; see also [c], above], the board must distribute all the remaining corporate assets among the shareholders according to their respective rights and preferences or, if there are no shareholders, to the persons entitled to the assets [Corp. Code § 2004]. If the winding up is by court proceeding [see § 12.30 et seq.] or subject to court supervision [see § 12.21], the board may not distribute the assets until after the expiration of any period for the presentation of claims that has been prescribed by order of the court [Corp. Code § 2004].

Distributions to the shareholders may be made in installments or in a lump sum, and may be in money, in property, or in securities, if done fairly and ratably and in conformity with the articles of incorporation and any liquidation preferences [Corp. Code § 2006]. Attorneys who practice together in a law corporation are bound by equitable principles in allocating fees received for cases pending at the time the corporation is dissolved, and are entitled to share in fees for that work in proportion to their interest in the former firm [Fox v. Abrams (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 610, 616-617, 210 Cal. Rptr. 260] .

[f] Duty to Minority Shareholder

Even when dissolution is properly effected, there is a possibility that minority shareholders may have a cause of action against majority shareholders for dissolving the corporation if the dissolution would violate the majority shareholders' duty of good faith and inherent fairness to the minority shareholders [see Jones v. H.F. Ahmanson & Co. (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 93, 109, 81 Cal. Rptr. 592, 460 P.2d 464 (concerning merger that violated duty of majority to minority shareholders)]. Bad faith actions leading to dissolution may also give rise to a derivative cause of action [see Thrasher v. Thrasher (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 23, 26-28, 103 Cal. Rptr. 618 (shareholder entitled to bring derivative action on behalf of corporation when bad faith action of majority shareholder in enforcing payment of demand notes held by him against corporation had effect of destroying corporation)]. Good faith on the part of shareholders acting to dissolve a corporation voluntarily is shown when they are acting to protect their investment, alternative methods of doing so are foreclosed, no advantage is secured over other shareholders, and no rights of third parties will be adversely affected [In re Security Finance Co. (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 370, 378, 317 P.2d 1] .

[g] Sale of Assets When Shareholders Refuse to Approve Plan of Distribution

If the board of directors fails to obtain shareholder approval of a plan of distribution in kind, the corporation may sell all of the assets at a public or private sale and distribute the proceeds of the sale to the shareholders [see Corp. Code § 2001(g)]. After commencement of a dissolution proceeding, the directors may sell all or any part of the corporation's assets for cash in an amount they deem reasonable, without the shareholder approval normally required for a cash sale of all or substantially all of the corporate assets pursuant to Corp. Code § 1001(a) [Corp. Code § 2001(g)]. However, if the acquiring party is in control of, or under common control with, the disposing or dissolving corporation, the principal terms of the sale must be approved by at least 90 percent of the voting power of the disposing corporation, unless the disposition is to a corporation or other business entity in consideration of the nonredeemable common shares or nonredeemable equity securities of the acquiring party or its parent [Corp. Code §§ 1001(d), 2001(g)]. Shareholder approval is not required if the Commissioner of Corporations, Commissioner of Financial Institutions, Insurance Commissioner, or Public Utilities Commissioner has approved the terms and conditions of the transaction and approved their fairness [Corp. Code § 1001(e); see Corp. Code § 25142; Fin. Code § 696.5; Ins. Code § 838.5; Pub. Util. Code § 822].

Sales of all or substantially all of the assets for consideration other than cash requires the approval of the outstanding shares [Corp. Code §§ 1001(a), 2001(g); see Corp. Code § 152 ("approval of outstanding shares" defined)]. A sale of the assets in exchange for the shares of another corporation may constitute a reorganization [see Corp. Code § 181], in which case the transaction is subject to Corp. Code § 1200 et seq. rather than Corp. Code § 1001, except for Corp. Code § 1001(d), discussed above [Corp. Code § 1001(a)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 11E, Acquisition of Assets for Shares . A transaction constituting a conversion [see Corp. Code § 161.9] is subject to the conversion provisions of Corp. Code § 1150 et seq. [Corp. Code § 1001(a)].

In most cases of dissolution, a sale of the corporation's assets for cash will be the best way to make a ratable distribution among the shareholders. A cash distribution is simpler to make and does not involve the problems inherent in distribution of noncash assets to shareholders as tenants in common. Ratable noncash distributions are likely to be economically undesirable and to pose serious problems of valuation and fairness.

[5] Revocation of Election

A voluntary election to wind up and dissolve may be revoked before the distribution of any assets by the vote of shareholders holding shares representing a majority of the voting power, or by approval by the board if the election to wind up was by the board [Corp. Code § 1902(a); see Corp. Code § 1900(b)]. It is important to note that although only 50 percent of the corporation's voting power is required for voluntary dissolution, the revocation of that election requires a majority vote [Corp. Code §§ 1900(a), 1902(a)].

The revocation is effective when a signed and verified certificate evidencing the revocation is filed with the Secretary of State in the prescribed manner [Corp. Code § 1902(a); see Corp. Code § 1901]. The certificate of revocation must set forth all of the following [Corp. Code § 1902(b); see § 12.252]:

- That the corporation has revoked its election to wind up and dissolve.
- That no assets have been distributed pursuant to the election.
- If the revocation was made by the vote of shareholders, the number of shares voting for the revocation and the total number of outstanding shares whose holders were entitled to vote on the revocation.
- That the election and revocation was made by the board, if applicable.

[6] Certificate of Dissolution

[a] Filing Requirement

When a corporation has been completely wound up without court proceedings, a majority of the directors then in office must sign and verify a certificate of dissolution [Corp. Code § 1905(a)]. The certificate must be filed with the Secretary of State's office in Sacramento, and the corporate powers, rights, and privileges of the corporation cease as of the filing. Once the certificate is filed, the Secretary of State will notify the Franchise Tax Board of the dissolution [Corp. Code § 1905(b)]. In lieu of filing this certificate, the board may petition the superior court of the proper county for an order declaring the corporation duly wound up and dissolved [Corp. Code § 1907(a); see [7], below].

If a corporation has not issued shares, a majority of the directors may sign and verify a certificate of dissolution. If no directors were named in the articles or have subsequently been elected, the incorporator or a majority of the incorporators may sign and verify a certificate of dissolution [Corp. Code § 1900.5(a)]. Among other items, the certificate must state that it is being filed within 12 months from the date that the articles were filed [Corp. Code § 1900.5(a)(1); see [b], below]. This certificate must be filed with the Secretary of State and its filing similarly terminates corporate existence [Corp. Code § 1900.5(b), (c)].

[b] Contents of Certificate

A certificate of dissolution must contain the following information [Corp. Code § 1905(a)]:

- That the corporation has been completely wound up.

- That the corporation's known debts and liabilities have been actually paid, or adequately provided for, or paid or adequately provided for as far as its assets permitted, or that it has incurred no known debts or liabilities, as the case may be. If adequate provision has been made to pay known debts or liabilities, the certificate must state what provision has been made, setting forth the name and address of the corporation, person or governmental agency that has assumed or guaranteed the payment, or the name and address of the depositary with which deposit has been made or any other information that may be necessary to enable the creditor or other person to whom payment is to be made to appear and claim payment of the debt or liability.

- That the corporation's known assets have been distributed to the persons entitled to them, or that the corporation acquired no known assets, as applicable.

- That the corporation is dissolved.

- If no certificate of election is to be filed [see Corp. Code § 1901(c)], that the election to dissolve was made by the vote of all the outstanding shares.

- That a final franchise tax return has been or will be filed with the Franchise Tax Board [see Rev. & Tax Code § 23332].

For a drafting guide for certificates of dissolution and the Secretary of State's form, see §§ 12.130 and 12.240, respectively.

A certificate of dissolution filed by a corporation that has not issued shares must specifically state the following [Corp. Code § 1900.5(a)]:

- That the certificate of dissolution is being filed within 12 months from the date the corporation's articles were filed.

- That the corporation does not have any debts or other liabilities, except with respect to tax liability as provided immediately below.

- That the tax liability will be satisfied on a taxes paid basis, or that a person, corporation, or other business entity assumes any tax liability of the dissolving corporation and is responsible for any additional corporate taxes that are assessed and that become due after the due date of the tax liability assumption.

- That a final franchise tax return has been or will be filed with the Franchise Tax Board [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 23332].

- That the corporation has not conducted any business from the time the corporation's articles were filed.

- That the known assets of the corporation remaining after payment of, or adequately provided for, known debts and liabilities have been distributed to the persons entitled to them or that the corporation acquired no known assets, as the case may be.

- That either a majority of the directors, or, if no directors have been named in the articles or elected, the incorporator or a majority of the incorporators, authorized the dissolution and elected to dissolve the corporation.

- That the corporation has not issued any shares, and if the corporation has received payments for shares from investors, those payments have been returned to those investors.

- That the corporation is dissolved.

For the Secretary of State's form for a certificate of dissolution by a corporation that has not issued shares, see § 12.242.

[c] Effect of Filing

The corporation's powers, rights, and privileges will cease when the certificate of dissolution is filed with the Secretary of State. When the certificate is filed, the Secretary of State will notify the Franchise Tax Board of the dissolution [Corp. Code § 1905(b); see Catalina Investments, Inc. v. Jones (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 1, 7-8, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 256 (as consequence of dissolved status, former corporation lacked capacity to submit purported certificate of revocation of dissolution more than four years later, in attempt to reinstate corporation existence)].

A dissolved corporation's existence continues for the purpose of further winding up its affairs, prosecuting and defending actions, collecting and discharging its obligations, and disposing and conveying property, and collecting and disposing of its assets [see Corp. Code § 2010(a)]. The corporation also continues to exist for the purpose of distributing any assets omitted from its winding up [Corp. Code § 2010(c)]. Further, any proceeding to which the corporation is a party is not abated [Corp. Code § 2010(b)]. For further discussion, see [8], below.

When a corporation that has not issued shares files a signed and verified certificate of dissolution with the Secretary of State, the corporation is dissolved and its powers, rights, and privileges cease [Corp. Code § 1900.5(b), (c)]. The Secretary of State who will then notify the Franchise Tax Board of the dissolution [Corp. Code § 1809]. The corporation is dissolved, and its powers, rights, and privileges cease, as of the filing of the certificate of dissolution [Corp. Code § 1900.5(c)].

[7] Petition for Court Order Declaring Corporation Wound Up and Dissolved

In lieu of filing a certificate of dissolution, the board may file a petition in the name of the corporation with the superior court of the proper county for an order declaring the corporation duly wound up and dissolved [Corp. Code § 1907(a)]. On the filing of the petition, the court will order all interested persons to show cause why an order should not be made declaring the corporation duly wound up and dissolved and will direct that the order be served by notice to all creditors, claimants, and shareholders in the same manner as the notice given in the case of involuntary dissolution [Corp. Code § 1907(b); see Corp. Code § 1807(b)].

Any person claiming to be interested as shareholder, creditor, or otherwise may appear in the proceeding at any time before the expiration of 30 days from the completion of publication of the order to show cause and contest the petition. If the individual fails to appear, that person's claim will be barred [Corp. Code § 1907(c)]. Thereafter, an order declaring the corporation duly wound up and dissolved will be entered and filed and have the effect as in the case of involuntary dissolution [Corp. Code § 1907(d); see Corp. Code §§ 1808, 1809].

In addition to limiting the time for creditors' claims, another advantage of this procedure is that the order effectively settles the accounts of the directors and discharges them from their duties and liabilities [Corp. Code § 1808(a)(3), (b)]. Therefore, securing a court order may afford valuable protection to the directors.

For a form for this petition, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 170, Corporations: Dissolution and Winding Up (Matthew Bender).

[8] Continued Existence of Dissolved Corporation

[a] Existence Limited to Winding Up Corporate Affairs

Corporate existence is not absolutely terminated by the filing of a certificate of dissolution or the entry of a court order declaring the corporation wound up and dissolved. The corporation continues to exist for the purpose of winding up its affairs, prosecuting and defending actions against it, collecting and discharging obligations, conveying corporate property, and collecting and dividing assets [Corp. Code § 2010(a); see Penasquitos, Inc. v. Superior Court (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 1180, 283 Cal. Rptr. 135, 812 P.2d 154] . However, the corporation is no longer permitted to transact business, except as necessary for the winding up [Corp. Code § 2010(a); see, e.g., Catalina Investments, Inc. v. Jones (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 1, 7-8, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 256 (as consequence of dissolved status, former corporation lacked capacity to submit purported certificate of revocation of dissolution more than four years later, in attempt to reinstate corporate existence)]. Any assets that are inadvertently or otherwise omitted from the winding up continue in the dissolved corporation for the benefit of the persons entitled to them on dissolution, and on realization must be distributed accordingly [Corp. Code § 2010(c)].

[b] Suits Against Dissolved Corporations

Actions or proceedings to which a corporation is a party do not abate as a result of the dissolution of the corporation, or by reason of proceedings for winding up and dissolution [Corp. Code § 2010(b)]. Causes of action against a dissolved corporation, whether arising before or after dissolution, may be enforced against the dissolved corporation to the extent of its undistributed assets. These undistributed assets include, without limitation, any insurance assets held by the corporation that may be available to satisfy claims [Corp. Code § 2011(a)(1)(A)].

Summons or other process against a dissolved corporation may be served by delivering a copy to an officer, director, or other person having charge of the corporation's assets. If none of these persons can be found in the exercise of due diligence, and it is so shown by affidavit to the satisfaction of the court, then the court may make an order that process be served on the dissolved corporation by personally delivering a copy, together with a copy of the order, to the Secretary of State (or an assistant or deputy secretary of state). Service in this manner is deemed complete on the 10th day after delivery of the process to the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 2011(b)]. On receipt of the process, and the applicable fee, the Secretary of State will give notice to the corporation [Corp. Code § 2011(d); see Corp. Code § 1702].

[c] Suits Against Shareholders of Dissolved Corporations

Actions or proceedings to which a corporation is a party do not abate as a result of the dissolution of the corporation, or by reason of proceedings for winding up and dissolution [Corp. Code § 2010(b)]. If any of the assets of the dissolved corporation have been distributed to shareholders, causes of action against the dissolved corporation may be enforced against the shareholders to the extent of the lesser of (1) their pro rata share of the claim or (2) the corporate assets distributed to them, regardless of whether the cause of action arose before or after dissolution [Corp. Code § 2011(a)(1)(B)]. Except with regard to quiet title actions [see Corp. Code § 2011(c); see also [d], below], all causes of action against a shareholder of a dissolved corporation are extinguished unless the claimant commences a proceeding to enforce the cause of action against that shareholder before the earlier of the following [Corp. Code § 2011(a)(2)]:

- The expiration of the applicable statute of limitations; or
- Four years after the effective date of the dissolution.

As a procedural matter and not for purposes of determining liability, shareholders of the dissolved corporation may be sued in the corporate name on any cause of action against the corporation [Corp. Code § 2011(a)(3)]. This rule does not affect the rights of the corporation or its creditors to recover an improper distribution pursuant to dissolution [see Corp. Code § 2009], or any rights of creditors under the Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act [see Civ. Code §§ 3439-3439.12], that may arise against the shareholders [Corp. Code § 2011(a)(3)].

[d] Quiet Title Actions

A corporation survives and continues to exist indefinitely for the purpose of being sued in any quiet title action. Any judgment rendered in a quiet title action binds all of the corporation's shareholders, and all other persons having any equity or other interest in the corporation to the extent of their interest [Corp. Code § 2011(c)]. Further, the judgment has the same force and effect as an action brought under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 410.50 or 410.60. Service of summons or other process may be made as provided in the Code of Civil Procedure [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 413.10-417.40] or under the method provided for in Corp. Code § 2011(b) [see § 12.20[8][b], above].

[9] Avoiding Dissolution by Purchasing Shares of Moving Parties

Subject to any contrary provision in the articles, in any suit for voluntary dissolution initiated by shareholder vote, the corporation may avoid dissolution by purchasing the shares of the parties moving for dissolution. The election may be made by the affirmative vote of a majority of the outstanding shares entitled to vote, excluding the shares held by the parties moving for dissolution [Corp. Code § 2000(a); see Corp. Code § 152]. If the corporation does not elect to purchase these shares, the holders of 50 percent or more of the voting power of the corporation may avoid dissolution by purchasing the shares of the plaintiffs [Corp. Code § 2000(a)].

The purchase must be in cash, for the fair value of the shares. "Fair value" is determined on the basis of the liquidation value as of the date that at least 50 percent of the shareholders initiated the proceedings (the "valuation date"), but taking into account any possibility of the sale of the entire business as a going concern in a liquidation [Corp. Code § 2000(a), (f); Mart v. Severson (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 521, 535-536, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 717 ; Abrams v. Abrams-Rubaloff & Associates, Inc. (1980) 114 Cal. App. 3d 240, 249, 170 Cal. Rptr. 656] . If the sale of the business as a going concern is unlikely, the assets must be valued piecemeal for liquidation purposes; this valuation is typically significantly lower than that applicable to the sale of the business [see Brown v. Allied Corrugated Box Co. (1979) 91

Cal. App. 3d 477, 490, 154 Cal. Rptr. 170 (court must determine likelihood of selling business as going concern if shareholders fail to agree)]. On motion by any party, the court for good cause shown may designate some date other than the date on which the proceeding was initiated as the valuation date [Corp. Code § 2000(f); see, e.g., Trahan v. Trahan (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 62, 76-78, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 814 (substantial evidence supported court's confirmation of appraiser's determination of fair value as piecemeal sale of assets, even though it did not take into account existing but uncompleted contracts; parties could have requested court to set later valuation date to allow completion of unperformed contracts)]. Further, if the initiation of the dissolution proceedings is a breach of any purchase agreement, the amount of any damages resulting from that breach may be deducted from the amount payable for the shares; however, no offset is permitted when the grounds for dissolution is that the parties controlling the corporation are guilty of (or knowingly countenanced) persistent and pervasive fraud, mismanagement, abuse of authority, or persistent unfairness towards shareholders or misapplication or waste of corporate property [Corp. Code § 2000(a); see Corp. Code § 1800(b)(4)].

A determination of the fair value of the shares of the corporation must include an assessment of the value, if any, of a pending derivative action and the effect of the action on the fair value of the shares [Cotton v. Expo Power Sys., Inc. (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 1371, 1374, 1380-1381, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 112 (derivative claim is property right that belongs to corporation and is properly viewed as asset of corporation)].

If an agreement cannot be reached as to the price of the shares to be purchased, the court will appoint three disinterested appraisers to determine the fair value of those shares and make an order referring the matter to them. The order will specify the time and manner of producing evidence, if evidence is required to support the valuation [Corp. Code § 2000(b), (c); see, e.g., Mart v. Severson (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 521, 535-536, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 717 (holding that trial court erred in finding that fair value was piecemeal liquidation value of $1.48 million, when appraisers unanimously had concluded that corporation could have been sold as ongoing concern for $5.6 million)]. The determination of a majority of the appraisers, once confirmed by the court, is final and conclusive on all parties [Corp. Code § 2000(c)]. The court may not postpone the appraisal, or the completion of the appraisal, until some related matter is concluded (for instance, until a pending derivative action comes to an end), because Corp. Code § 2000 contemplates a summary procedure. The court is required either to obtain a complete appraisal of the fair value of the shares from the appraisers, without delay, or to conduct a hearing forthwith to resolve the matter [Cotton v. Expo Power Sys., Inc. (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 1371, 1381-1382, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 112] .

The court will enter a decree that provides in the alternative for the winding up and dissolution of the corporation, which is effective unless payment for the shares is made within the time specified in the decree. If the purchasing parties do not make payment for the shares within the specified time, judgment will be entered against them and the surety or sureties on the bond for the amount of the expenses (including attorneys' fees) of the moving parties. Any shareholder aggrieved by the action of the court may appeal [Corp. Code § 2000(c), (d)]. There is no automatic stay of the court's decree in the event of an appeal, but a reviewing court has discretion to issue a writ of supersedeas if a proper and sufficient showing is made [Veyna v. Orange County Nursery, Inc. (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 146, 154-156, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 658] . For the applicable procedure and determination of the share price, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 170, Corporations: Dissolution and Winding Up (Matthew Bender).

CHAPTER 12 WINDING UP AND DISSOLUTION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Dissolution of Domestic Stock Corporations
1. Voluntary Dissolution

5-12 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 12.21

§ 12.21 Voluntary Dissolution With Court Supervision

[1] Who May Institute Proceedings; Costs

When a corporation is in the process of voluntarily winding up, a corporation, the holders of five percent or more of the total number of shares of any class of its outstanding shares, any shareholder of a close corporation, or three or more creditors may petition the superior court of the proper county to supervise the dissolution. Following notice to the corporation and to other persons interested in the corporation as shareholders and creditors, as the court may order, the court may take jurisdiction over the voluntary winding up proceeding if supervision appears necessary for the protection of the parties in interest [Corp. Code § 1904].

If the court assumes jurisdiction, the court may make orders as to any and all matters concerning the winding up of the affairs of the corporation and for the protection of its shareholders and creditors as justice and equity may require [Corp. Code § 1904]. However, the corporation and its shareholders commonly avoid petitioning for court supervision, since court supervision is costly and time-consuming.

Nonpetitioning shareholders are not automatically parties to the voluntary dissolution proceeding. Those shareholders are not parties unless they are named as defendants or they intervene; and they cannot be effectively named as defendants unless the petition seeks relief against them [In re Fair WageLaw (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 279, 286-288, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 652 (court's adjudication, in voluntary dissolution proceeding, of corporation's claim against nonpetitioning shareholder, who was not named as defendant in that proceeding, violated shareholder's right to due process, even though shareholder had intervened so as to pursue claim against corporation)].

Creditors ordinarily are protected without court supervision, because a certificate of dissolution may not be filed with the Secretary of State unless all of the debts have been adequately provided for or paid [Corp. Code § 1905(a)(2)]. If distributions are made to shareholders without adequate provision for or payment of the corporation's debts, the creditors may bring an action against the shareholders and/or the directors in the name of the corporation to recover those distributions [Corp. Code §§ 316(a)(2), (c), 2009(b)].

[2] Specific Powers of Court

When a court petitioned to supervise a voluntary dissolution determines that supervision is necessary for the protection of any parties in interest, its jurisdiction is basically the same as in an involuntary dissolution proceeding [Corp. Code § 1904; see Corp. Code §§ 1802-1809; see also § 12.30 et seq.]. Specifically, the court's powers include all of the following:

- Appointing a provisional director in case of a deadlock [Corp. Code §§ 1802, 1904; see Corp. Code § 1800(b)(2)].

- Appointing a receiver, on application and after notice and hearing, to assume control and manage the business and affairs of the corporation and to preserve its property [Corp. Code §§ 1803, 1904; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 566, 567 (security); see also Gold v. Gold Realty Co. (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 791, 803-805, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 118 (judge had authority to appoint receiver under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(3), (b)(4) and Corp. Code § 1803 and did not abuse discretion in doing so in order to implement judgment which called for involuntary dissolution of corporation and liquidation of its assets)].

- Requiring proof of all claims and demands against the corporation, whether due or not yet due, contingent, unliquidated, or sounding only in damages, and barring claims not filed with the court during the period prescribed by the court, which can be from three to six months [Corp. Code §§ 1806(a), 1807(a), 1904].

- Determining the amount of or compromising all claims against the corporation or any of its property, and determining the amount of money or assets required to be retained to pay or provide for the payment of claims [Corp. Code §§ 1806(b), 1904].

- Determining the rights of shareholders and all classes of shareholders in and to the assets of the corporation [Corp. Code §§ 1806(c), 1904].

- Requiring the presentation and filing of intermediate and final accounts of the directors (or other persons appointed to conduct the winding up), holding a hearing on those accounts, allowing, disallowing, or settling the accounts, and discharging the directors or other persons from their duties and liabilities [Corp. Code §§ 1806(d), 1904].

- Appointing a commissioner to hear and determine any or all matters, with power and authority as the court deems proper [Corp. Code §§ 1806(e), 1904].

- Filling any vacancies on the board of directors that the directors or shareholders have been unable to fill [Corp. Code §§ 1806(f), 1904].

- Removing any director who is unable to act, or who has been guilty of dishonesty, misconduct, neglect, or abuse of trust, and appointing a director to fill the vacancy or ordering an election for that purpose [Corp. Code §§ 1806(g), 1904].

- Staying the prosecution of any suit, proceeding, or action against the corporation and requiring the parties to present and prove their claims in the manner required of other creditors [Corp. Code §§ 1806(h), 1904].

- Determining whether adequate provision has been made for the payment or satisfaction of all debts and liabilities not actually paid [Corp. Code §§ 1806(i), 1904].

- Making orders for the withdrawal or termination of proceedings to wind up and dissolve, subject to conditions for the protection of shareholders and creditors [Corp. Code §§ 1806(j), 1904].

- Making orders for bringing in new parties as the court deems proper for the determination of all questions and matters [Corp. Code §§ 1806(l), 1904].

- Making an order, upon the allowance or settlement of the final accounts of the directors or other persons, that the corporation has been duly wound up and is dissolved [Corp. Code §§ 1806(k), 1808, 1904].

1. Voluntary Dissolution

5-12 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 12.22

§ 12.22 Sale of Stock as Alternative to Dissolution

If the purpose of the dissolution is to dispose of the business of the corporation to a third party, the shareholders have an alternative course of action. Instead of selling the business to the third party and dissolving the corporation, they may sell all of the stock to the third party. The tax consequences are identical to the shareholders under either method [see I.R.C. § 331; see also § 12.62], and the purchaser has the choice of either operating the business as a corporation or dissolving the corporation and operating outside the corporate form. Whether substantially all of a corporation's assets or all of its stock is sold, the purchaser will be able to bargain for the seller's covenant not to compete, since the law now recognizes that the sale of all stock will carry with it a transfer of the goodwill of the corporation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 16601; Radiant Industries, Inc. v. Skirvin (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 401, 403, 109 Cal. Rptr. 96] . Disposition of a corporate business by sale of all the shares is discussed in detail in Ch. 11A, Cash Purchase of Shares .

B. Dissolution of Domestic Stock Corporations
2. Involuntary Dissolution

5-12 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 12.30

§ 12.30 Procedure for Involuntary Dissolution

[1] Who May Institute Proceedings

Any of the following persons may file a verified complaint for the involuntary dissolution of a corporation on specified grounds [see [2], below] in the superior court for the proper county [Corp. Code §§ 1800(a), 1801]:

- At least one-half of the corporation's directors in office.

- A shareholder or shareholders who hold shares representing at least 331/3 percent of (1) the total number of outstanding shares (assuming conversion of any preferred shares convertible into common shares); (2) the outstanding common shares; or (3) the equity of the corporation [see Kline Hawkes California v. Superior Court (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 183, 196, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 581 (proper interpretation of Corp. Code § 1800(a)(2)(iii) gives preferred shareholders right to file for involuntary dissolution if their preferred shares represent 331/3 percent of corporation's equity)].

- Any shareholder if the ground for dissolution is that the period for which the corporation was formed has terminated without extension.

- Any shareholder or shareholders of a close corporation.

- Any person expressly authorized to do so in the articles of incorporation.

- The Attorney General [see § 12.31].

With regard to shareholders' right to seek involuntary dissolution, the shares owned by persons who have personally participated in persistent and pervasive fraud, mismanagement, or abuse of authority, or persistent unfairness toward any shareholders, or in the misapplication or waste or corporate property are excluded [Corp. Code § 1800(a)(2), (b)(4)

]. Thus, for example, if all but one of the shareholders participated in one or more of the prohibited actions that constitute grounds for dissolution, the sole nonparticipating shareholder would be entitled to file a complaint for involuntary dissolution of the corporation, regardless of percentage of share ownership. The directors may be joined as defendants following an interlocutory judgment of dissolution, even if they were not named as parties in the original complaint, for the purpose of charging them for the sums due the plaintiffs who originally sought the dissolution [see Howard v. Data Storage Associates, Inc. (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 689, 695-698, 178 Cal. Rptr. 269 ; see also Corp. Code § 1806(l)].

For this purpose, the term "shareholder" includes a beneficial owner of share who has entered a shareholder' agreement relating to the affairs of a close corporation [see Corp. Code § 300(b)] or a voting agreement [Corp. Code § 1800(e); see Corp. Code § 706].

At any time before the trial, any shareholder or creditor may intervene [Corp. Code § 1800(c)].

The above requirements do not apply to any corporation subject to the Banking Law [see Fin. Code § 99 et seq.], the Public Utilities Act [see Pub. Util. Code § 201 et seq.], the Savings and Loan Association Law [see Fin. Code § 5000 et seq.], or the Insurance Code [see Ins. Code § 1010 et seq.].

[2] Grounds for Involuntary Dissolution

The following constitute the statutory grounds for involuntary dissolution:

- The corporation has abandoned its business for more than one year [Corp. Code § 1800(b)(1)].

- The corporation has an even number of directors who are equally divided and cannot agree on the management of its affairs, so that business cannot be conducted to advantage or a danger exists that the corporation's property and business will be impaired or lost and the shareholders are so divided into factions that they cannot elect an uneven number of directors [Corp. Code § 1800(b)(2)].

- Internal dissension exists among the shareholders and (1) two or more factions are so deadlocked that the corporation's business can no longer be conducted with advantage to the shareholders; or (2) the shareholders have failed at two consecutive annual meetings at which all voting power was exercised to elect successors to directors whose terms have expired (or would have expired on the election of successors [Corp. Code § 1800(b)(3); see Belio v. Panorama Optics, Inc. (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1096, 1104-1106, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 737 (both internal dissension and deadlock required; involuntary dissolution denied in two-shareholder corporation without showing of shareholder deadlock)].

- Those in control of the corporation have been guilty of, or have knowingly countenanced, persistent and pervasive fraud, mismanagement, abuse of authority, or persistent unfairness toward any shareholders, or the corporate property is being misapplied or wasted by its directors or officers [Corp. Code § 1800(b)(4); see Bauer v. Bauer (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1106, 1113-1114, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 377 (Corp. Code § 1800(b)(4) "persistent unfairness" standard is not interpreted in terms of minority shareholders' "reasonable expectations")].

- The period for which the corporation was formed has terminated without extension [Corp. Code § 1800(b)(6)].

- In the case of a corporation with 35 or fewer shareholders [see Corp. Code § 605], liquidation is reasonably necessary for the protection of the rights or interests of the complaining shareholder or shareholders [Corp. Code § 1800(b)(5); see Stuparich v. Harbor Furniture Manufacturing, Inc. (2000)

83 Cal. App. 4th 1268, 1279, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 313 (minority shareholders failed to raise triable issue of material fact as to right to involuntary dissolution under Corp. Code § 1800(b)(5); dissolution of corporation was not reasonably necessary to protect their rights); Bauer v. Bauer (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1106, 1116, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 377 (Corp. Code § 1800(b)(5) requires trial court to determine whether minority shareholders require protection by considering relative misconduct of parties); see also Stumpf v. C.E. Stumpf & Sons, Inc. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 230, 233-234, 120 Cal. Rptr. 671 (decided under former statute, holding that reasonable necessity for dissolution to protect interests of complaining shareholder could be found in circumstances other than specifically enumerated statutory grounds for involuntary dissolution such as deadlock, dissension, and mismanagement)].

[3] Commencement of Proceedings Requires Cessation of Corporate Activities

Involuntary proceedings for winding up a corporation commence when an order for winding up is entered by the court [Corp. Code § 1805(a); see Corp. Code § 1804]. Once an involuntary proceeding for winding up begins, the board must conduct the winding up of the affairs of the corporation, subject to the supervision of the court, unless the court, on good cause shown, appoints other persons to conduct the winding up. The directors or other persons conducting the winding up may, subject to any restrictions imposed by the court, exercise all their powers through the executive officers without any further order of court [Corp. Code § 1805(b)]. The corporation must cease to carry on business except to the extent necessary for the beneficial winding up of the corporation and except during any period that the board deems necessary to preserve the corporation's goodwill or going-concern value pending a sale of its business or assets, or both, in whole or in part. The directors must cause written notice of the commencement of the proceeding for involuntary winding up to be given by mail to all shareholders and to all known creditors and claimants whose addresses appear on the records of the corporation, unless the order for winding up has been stayed by appeal or otherwise, or the proceeding or the execution of the order has been enjoined [Corp. Code § 1805(c)].

[4] Powers and Jurisdiction of Court

[a] Powers Same as in Voluntary Dissolution With Court Supervision

The powers and jurisdiction of a court in an involuntary proceeding are the same powers that a court may exercise in the case of a voluntary dissolution in which judicial supervision has been sought [see Corp. Code §§ 1802-1808; see also Gold v. Gold Realty Co. (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 791, 803-805, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 118 (judge had authority to appoint receiver under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(3), (b)(4) and Corp. Code § 1803 and did not abuse discretion in doing so in order to implement judgment which called for involuntary dissolution of corporation and liquidation of its assets)]. These matters are discussed in § 12.21[2].

[b] Creditors' Claims

In addition, the court may specify the time period in which all creditors and claimants must present their claims and proofs to the court. This period may not be less than four nor more than six months after the first publication of notice to creditors unless it appears by affidavit that there are no claims, in which case the time limit may be three months. The court may bar all creditors and claimants from participation in any distribution of the general assets if they fail to make and present claims and proofs within the designated time [Corp. Code § 1807(a); see Corp. Code § 1807(c)]. However, if it is shown that a claimant did not receive notice because of absence from the state or other cause, the court may allow a claim to be filed or presented at any time before distribution is completed [Corp. Code § 1807(a)].

Notice to creditors must be published not less than once a week for three consecutive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation published in the county in which the proceeding is pending or, if there is no such newspaper published in that county, in a newspaper designated by the court. The notice must direct creditors and claimants to make and present claims and proofs to the person, at the place and within the time specified in the notice. A copy of the notice must be mailed to each person shown as a creditor or claimant on the books of the corporation, at that person's last known address [Corp. Code § 1807(b)].

If the court rejects a claim, the claimant must file suit against the corporation within 30 days after written notice of the rejection is given to the claimant [Corp. Code § 1807(e)].

[5] Court Order Declaring Corporation Wound Up and Dissolved

On the final settlement of the accounts of the directors or other persons appointed to conduct the winding up [see Corp. Code § 1805(b); see also [3], above] and the determination that the corporation's affairs are in condition for it to be dissolved, the court may make an order declaring the corporation duly wound up and dissolved [Corp. Code § 1808(a)]. The order must state the following [Corp. Code § 1808(a)]:

- That the corporation has been duly wound up, that a final franchise tax return has been filed with the Franchise Tax Board [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 23332], and that its other known debts and liabilities have been paid or adequately provided for, or that those debts and liabilities have been paid as far as its assets permitted, as applicable. If adequate provision has been made for known debts or liabilities, the order must specify what provision has been made, setting forth the name and address of the corporation, person, or governmental agency that has assumed or guaranteed the payment, the name and address of the depositary with which deposit has been made, or other information as may be necessary to enable the creditor or other person to whom payment is to be made to appear and claim payment of the debt or liability.

- That the corporation's known assets have been distributed to the persons entitled to them, or count o the corporation acquired no known assets.

- That the accounts of directors or other persons conducting the winding up have been settled and that they are discharged from their duties and liabilities to creditors and shareholders.

- That the corporation is dissolved.

Further, the court may make any additional orders and grant any further relief as deemed proper on the evidence submitted [Corp. Code § 1808(a)].

On the issuance of an order declaring the corporation dissolved, corporate existence terminates except for the purposes of any further needed winding up. The directors or other persons conducting the winding up are discharged from their duties and liabilities, except in respect to completion of the winding up [Corp. Code § 1808(b)].

For further discussion and forms regarding court-supervised dissolutions, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 170, Corporations: Dissolution and Winding Up (Matthew Bender).

[6] Filing Court order With Secretary of State

Whenever a corporation is dissolved or its existence forfeited by order, decree, or judgment of a court, the corporation immediately must file a copy of that order, decree or judgment, certified by the clerk of court, in the office of the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 1809].

§ 12.31 Action by Attorney General

[1] Grounds for Attorney General's Action

The Attorney General may bring an action against any domestic corporation (or purported domestic corporation) in the name of the people of California, on the Attorney General's own information or on complaint of a private party, to procure a judgment dissolving the corporation and annulling, vacating, or forfeiting its corporate existence on any of the following grounds [Corp. Code § 1801(a); see Corp. Code § 1801(d) (service of process)]:

- The corporation has seriously offended any provision of the statutes regulating corporations.
- The corporation has fraudulently abused or usurped corporate privileges or powers.
- The corporation has violated any provision of law by any act or default that under the law is a ground for forfeiture of corporate existence.
- The corporation has failed to pay any tax imposed by the Bank and Corporation Tax Law to the Franchise Tax Board for a period of five years.

[2] When Prior Notice Required

If the basis of the Attorney General's action is a matter or act that the corporation has done or omitted to do that can be corrected by amendment of its articles or by other corporate action, the suit may not be maintained unless (1) the Attorney General gives the corporation written notice of the matter or act done or omitted to be done at least 30 days before instituting the suit, and (2) the corporation fails to institute proceedings to correct it within the 30-day period or the corporation then fails to prosecute those corrective proceedings [Corp. Code § 1801(b)].

[3] Court Powers

In any action instituted by the Attorney General, the court may order dissolution or any other complete or partial relief that the court deems just and expedient. The court may also appoint a receiver for winding up the affairs of the corporation, or may order that the corporation be wound up by its board subject to the supervision of the court [Corp. Code § 1801(c)].

CHAPTER 12 WINDING UP AND DISSOLUTION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Dissolution of Domestic Nonprofit Corporations
1. Voluntary Dissolution

5-12 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 12.40

§ 12.40 Voluntary Dissolution

[1] Governing Law

With respect to nonprofit corporations formed after January 1, 1980 [see Corp. Code § 9911] or subject to the provisions of the law governing dissolution by virtue of a separate statute [see Corp. Code §§ 9923, 9924], the Nonprofit Corporation Law [Corp. Code § 5000 et seq.] governs the dissolution of California nonprofit corporations [see Corp. Code §§ 6510-6519, 6610-6617, 6710-6721 (public benefit corporations), 8510-8519, 8610-8618, 8710-8724 (mutual benefit corporations), 9680 (religious corporations)]. As a general rule, the law follows the rules and manner of dissolution prescribed by the General Corporation Law for the dissolution of corporations organized for profit. However, the Attorney General has jurisdiction to protect assets held in charitable trust [see Corp. Code §§ 6510(a)(5), 8510(a)(5), 9680(c)].

Nonprofit public benefit corporations are prohibited from distributing assets to their members on dissolution [Corp. Code §§ 5049, 5410]. In contrast, the assets of nonprofit mutual benefit corporations may not be distributed to their members except on dissolution of the corporation [Corp. Code § 7411(a)].

If any lot, parcel, area, or apartment unit is being managed or controlled by an owners' association, the association cannot transfer all or substantially all of its assets, or file a certificate of dissolution, without the approval of 100 percent of its members, nor may a court declare the association duly wound up and dissolved absent that approval [Corp. Code § 8724; see Committee to Save the Beverly Highlands Homes Assn. v. The Beverly Highlands Homes Assn. (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 1247, 1262-1263, 1271, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 732 (trial court erred in granting summary judgment to plaintiffs who sought to enjoin allegedly wrongful dissolution of nonprofit mutual benefit corporation; because corporation was not common interest development, Davis-Stirling Act and Corp. Code § 8724 did not apply)].

[2] Who May Elect Dissolution

Public benefit, mutual benefit, and religious corporations may elect to voluntarily dissolve, typically by a vote of a majority of the members. The voluntary dissolution of a domestic nonprofit corporation is initiated by an election to dissolve. The election to dissolve may be made by the vote or written consent of a majority of all the members of the corporation or, by the board of directors and the members [Corp. Code §§ 6610(a), 8610(a), 9680(b)(1)].

The board of directors, acting alone, may elect to wind up and dissolve the following corporations [Corp. Code §§ 6610(b), 8610(b), 9680(b)(2)]:

- A corporation that has been the subject of an order for relief in bankruptcy.

- A corporation that has disposed of all of its assets and has not conducted any activity for a period of five years immediately preceding the adoption of the resolution electing to dissolve the corporation.

- A corporation that has no members.

- A subordinate corporation that must dissolve under the provisions of its articles requiring dissolution whenever its charter is surrendered, taken away, or revoked by head organization [see Corp. Code §§ 5132(a)(2)(A), 7132(a)(4)(A), 9132(a)(2)(A)].

If a corporation fits any of these descriptions and the number of directors then in office is less than a quorum, the corporation may elect to voluntarily wind up and dissolve by any of the following [Corp. Code § 6610(c); 8610(c); 9680(b)(3)]:

- The unanimous consent of the directors then in office.

- The affirmative vote of a majority of the directors then in office at a meeting held pursuant to a waiver of notice by those directors [see Corp. Code § 5211(a) (waiver of notice)].

- The vote of a sole remaining director.

If a corporation elects to wind up and dissolve by any of these means, statutory references to the "board" will be deemed to be a board consisting of those directors then in office or that sole director and action by the board will require at least the same consent or vote as would be required to make the election to wind up and dissolve, as described above [Corp. Code §§ 6610(d), 8610(d), 9680(b)(4)].

For a procedural checklist covering the voluntary dissolution of a nonprofit corporation, see § 12.121.

[3] Certificate of Election

[a] Filing Requirement

Whenever a domestic nonprofit corporation elects to wind up and dissolve, the corporation must prepare and file a certificate evidencing that election with the Secretary of State's Office and file a copy with the Attorney General [Corp. Code §§ 6611(a), 8611(a) (if assets held in charitable trust or under charitable dissolution clause), 9680(a)]. However, if the election to dissolve is made by the vote of all the members of a corporation with members, or by all members of the board of directors of a corporation without members, the certificate of election is not required to be filed if the certificate of dissolution includes a statement to that effect [Corp. Code §§ 6611(c), 8611(c), 9680(a)].

[b] Contents of Certificate

The certificate of election must be an officers' certificate, or be signed and verified by at least a majority of the directors then in office or by one or more members authorized to do so by the approval of all the members. The certificate must set forth all of the following [Corp. Code §§ 6611(b), 8611(b), 9680(a)]:

- That the corporation has elected to wind up and dissolve.
- If the election was made by the vote of members alone, the number of votes for the election and that the election was made by a majority of all members.
- If the election was made by the board and members, that the election was made by the board and the members.
- If the certificate is executed by a member or members, that the subscribing person or persons were authorized to execute the certificate by a majority of all members.
- If the election was made by the board alone, the circumstances showing the corporation to be within one of the categories permitting dissolution solely by the board [see [2], above].

[4] Revocation of Election

A voluntary election to wind up and dissolve may be revoked before the distribution of any assets if: (1) the election was by the vote of a majority of all members; (2) the election was made by the approval of the board and the members; or (3) the election was by the approval of the board. The certificate of revocation must be signed, verified, and filed in the prescribed manner with the Secretary of State and a copy must be filed with the Attorney General [Corp. Code §§ 6612(a), 8612(a), 9680(a)].

The certificate of revocation must state the following information [Corp. Code §§ 6612(b), 8612(b), 9680(a)]:

- That the corporation has revoked its election to wind up and dissolve.
- That no assets have been distributed pursuant to that election.
- If the revocation was made by the vote of members alone, the number of votes for the revocation and that the revocation was made by a majority of all members.
- If the revocation was made by the board and members, the certificate must state that fact.
- If the revocation was made by the board alone, the certificate must state that fact.

[5] Certificate of Dissolution

[a] Filing Requirement; Effect of Filing

To complete the dissolution when the corporation has been completely wound up, a nonprofit corporation must prepare and file a certificate of dissolution with the Secretary of State's Office. The certificate must be signed and verified by a majority of the directors then in office [Corp. Code §§ 6615(a), 8615(a), 9680(a)].

Nonprofit public benefit and religious corporations must attach one of the following documents, issued by the Attorney General, to the certificate of dissolution [Corp. Code §§ 6615(b), 9860(a)]:

- A written waiver of objections to the distribution of the corporation's assets [see Corp. Code § 6716(c)]; or

- A written confirmation that the corporation has no assets.

The Secretary of State will not accept a certificate of dissolution for filing unless one of these documents is attached to the certificate [Corp. Code §§ 6615(c), 9860(a)]. On the filing of the certificate, corporate existence ceases, except for the limited purpose of any further winding up. The Secretary of State will notify the Franchise Tax Board of the dissolution [Corp. Code §§ 6615(c), 8615(b), 9680(a)].

If the board of a public benefit, mutual benefit, or religious corporation petitions the superior court of the proper county for an order declaring the corporation wound up, the corporation must file the petition in lieu of a certificate [Corp. Code §§ 6617, 8617, 9680(a)].

[b] Contents of Certificate

The certificate of dissolution must state the following information [Corp. Code §§ 6615(a), 8615(a), 9680(a)]:

- That the corporation has been completely wound up.

- That the corporation's known debts and liabilities have been actually paid, or adequately provided for, or paid or adequately provided for as far as its assets permitted, or that it has incurred no known debts or liabilities, as the case may be. If there are known debts or liabilities for payment of which adequate provision has been made, the certificate must state what provision has been made, setting forth the name and address of the corporation, person or governmental agency that has assumed or guaranteed the payment, or the name and address of the depositary with which deposit has been made or other information as may be necessary to enable the creditor or other person to whom payment is to be made to appear and claim payment of the debt or liability.

- That the corporation is dissolved.

- That a final franchise tax return has been or will be filed with the Franchise Tax Board [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 23332].

Nonprofit mutual benefit corporations must also state in the certificate of dissolution that the corporation's known assets have been distributed to the persons entitled to them, or that the corporation acquired no known assets [Corp. Code § 8615(a)].

[6] Petition for Court Order Declaring Corporation Wound Up and Dissolved

If a public or mutual benefit corporation is in the process of voluntarily winding up, the superior court of the proper county may take jurisdiction over the voluntary winding up proceeding if it appears necessary for the protection of any parties in interest or if it appears necessary to protect the purpose or purposes served by the corporation. Any of the following may petition for judicial intervention [Corp. Code §§ 6614, 8614]:

- The corporation;

- The authorized number of the voting power, typically 5 percent [see Corp. Code § 5036];

- The Attorney General; or

- Three or more creditors.

The court may require notice to the corporation and to other persons interested in the corporation as members and creditors [Corp. Code §§ 6614, 8614].

If the court assumes jurisdiction, it may issue orders as to any and all matters concerning the winding up of the affairs of the corporation and the protection of its creditors, its assets, and its purpose or purposes as justice and equity may require. Statutory provisions relating to involuntary dissolution apply to the court proceedings except provisions specifying who may file a complaint for dissolution, the intervention rights of creditors, and the Attorney General's right to bring suit [Corp. Code §§ 6614, 8614; see Corp. Code §§ 6510, 6511, 8510, 8511].

For a petition that may be adapted for use by dissolving nonprofit corporations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 170, Corporations: Dissolution and Winding Up (Matthew Bender).

[7] Continued Existence of Dissolved Corporation

[a] Existence Limited to Winding Up Corporate Affairs

Even after the filing of a certificate of dissolution, or the entry of a court order declaring the corporation wound up and dissolved, the corporation is not absolutely extinguished. The corporation continues to exist for the purpose of winding up its affairs, prosecuting and defending actions against it, collecting and discharging obligations, conveying corporate property, and collecting and dividing assets [Corp. Code §§ 6720(a), 8722(a), 9680(a)].

If any assets are inadvertently or otherwise omitted from the winding up, those assets continue in the dissolved corporation for the benefit of the persons entitled to them on dissolution and must be distributed to them [Corp. Code §§ 6720(c), 8722(c), 9680(a)].

[b] Suits Against Dissolved Corporations

Following the filing of a certificate of dissolution, the corporation continues to exist for the purpose of prosecuting and defending actions against it [Corp. Code §§ 6720(a), 8722(a), 9680(a)]. Actions or proceedings to which a corporation is a party do not abate as a result of the dissolution of the corporation, or by reason of proceedings for winding up and dissolution [Corp. Code §§ 6720(b), 8722(b), 9680(a)].

[c] Suits Against Dissolved Corporation and Distributees

Any person to whom assets of a public benefit or religious corporation were distributed on dissolution may be sued in the corporate name on any cause of action arising before dissolution. Notice must be given to the Attorney General, who may intervene [Corp. Code §§ 6721(a), 9680(a)].

Causes of action against a dissolved mutual benefit corporation, whether arising before or after the dissolution, may be enforced against the dissolved corporation to the extent of its undistributed assets [Corp. Code § 8723(a)(1)(A)]. If any assets have been distributed to other persons, causes of action against the dissolved corporation may be enforced against those persons to the extent of the lesser of (1) their pro rata share of the claim or (2) the corporate assets distributed to them, regardless of whether the cause of action arose before or after the dissolution. However, the total liability of a person may not exceed the total amount of assets distributed to them on dissolution [Corp. Code § 8723(a)(1)(B)]. With the exception of quiet title suits [see [d], below], all causes of action against distributees of corporate assets are extinguished unless the claimant commences an enforcement proceeding before the earlier of (1) the expiration of the applicable statute of limitations and (2) four years after the effective date of the dissolution [Corp. Code § 8723(a)(2)].

[d] Quiet Title Actions

A corporation survives and continues to exist indefinitely for the purpose of being sued in any quiet title action. Any judgment rendered in a quiet title action binds each and every person having any interest in the dissolved corporation, to the extent of that interest [Corp. Code §§ 6721(c), 8723(c), 9680(a)]. Further, the judgment has the same force and effect as an action brought under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 410.50 or 410.60. Service of summons or other process may be made as provided in the Code of Civil Procedure [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 413.10-417.40] or under the method provided for in Corp. Code §§ 6721(b), 8723(b), and 9680(a).

1. Voluntary Dissolution

§ 12.41 Supervision of Attorney General

[1] Notification Requirement

The Attorney General has general supervisory and enforcement authority over nonprofit corporations [see, e.g., Corp. Code §§ 5250, 6216, 7240]. The Attorney General also has specific authority over the dissolution and distribution of the assets of public benefit, mutual benefit, and religious corporations [see Corp. Code §§ 6716(c), 8716(c), 9680(a), (e)(3)]. Therefore, when a public benefit corporation, mutual benefit corporation holding assets in charitable trust, or religious corporation elects voluntary dissolution, the corporation must notify the Attorney General of the commencement of the dissolution by sending a copy of the election certificate [Corp. Code §§ 6611(a), 6613(c), 8611(a), 8613(c), 9680(a); see § 12.40[3]].

[2] Public Benefit and Religious Corporations

The Attorney General may bring suit in the name of a public benefit or religious corporation to enforce a liability that has not been adequately provided for before assets are distributed [Corp. Code §§ 6719(a), (b), 9680(a)]. Further, the Attorney General is entitled to notice of, and may intervene in, any suit brought against a distributee of the assets of a public benefit or religious corporation [Corp. Code §§ 6721(a), 9680(a)].

After a public benefit or religious corporation pays or provides for all known debts and liabilities [see Corp. Code §§ 6713, 9680(a), (e)] and returns, transfers, or conveys all property subject to a condition requiring the property's return [see Corp. Code §§ 6715, 9680(a), (e)], the corporation must dispose of any remaining assets in accordance with its articles or bylaws, subject to the provisions of any trust under which the assets are held [Corp. Code §§ 6716(a), 9680(e)(1)]. The disposition must be made (1) by court decree in proceedings in which the Attorney General is a party, or (2) without court decree if the Attorney General makes a written waiver of objections to the disposition [Corp. Code §§ 6716(b), (c), 9680(e)(2), (3)]. The decree must be made on petition by the Attorney General or, after 30 days notice to the Attorney General, by any person concerned in the dissolution [Corp. Code §§ 6716(b), 9680(e)(2)].

[3] Mutual Benefit Corporations

After a mutual benefit corporation holding assets in charitable trust pays or provides for all known debts and liabilities [see Corp. Code § 8713] and returns, transfers, or conveys all property subject to a condition requiring the property's return [see Corp. Code § 8715], the corporation must dispose of any remaining assets held in charitable trust in accordance with its articles or bylaws, subject to complying with the provisions of the trust under which the assets are held [Corp. Code § 8716(a)]. The disposition must be made (1) by court decree in proceedings in which the Attorney General is a party, or (2) without court decree if the Attorney General makes a written waiver of objections to the disposition [Corp. Code § 8716(b), (c)]. The decree must be made on petition by the Attorney General or, after 30 days notice to the Attorney General, by any person concerned in the dissolution [Corp. Code § 8716(b)]. Any remaining assets must be distributed in accordance with the articles or bylaws or, if the organizational documents do not specify the manner of disposition, to the members in accordance with their respective rights [Corp. Code § 8717]. The Attorney General does not have any statutory supervisory authority over this final distribution.

2. Involuntary Dissolution

5-12 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 12.50

§ 12.50 Public Benefit and Mutual Benefit Corporations

[1] Who May Institute Proceedings

Public benefit and mutual benefit corporations may be subject to involuntary dissolution proceedings [see Corp. Code §§ 6510 et seq., 8510 et seq.]. Any one of the following persons may file a complaint for involuntary dissolution in the superior court of the proper county [Corp. Code §§ 6510(a), 8510(a)]:

- At least one-half of the directors in office.
- A person or persons holding or authorized in writing by persons holding at least 331/3 percent of the voting power, exclusive of memberships held by persons who have personally participated in any of prohibited transactions [see Corp. Code §§ 6510(b)(5), 8510(b)(5)].
- Any member if the ground for dissolution is that the period for which the corporation was formed has terminated without extension.
- Any other person expressly authorized to do so in the articles of incorporation.
- The Attorney General.
- The head organization under whose authority the corporation was created, provided that the corporation's articles include a provision that the subordinate corporation will dissolve whenever its charter is surrendered to, taken away by, or revoked by the granting organization [see Corp. Code §§ 5132(a)(2)(A), 7132(a)(4)(A)].

At any time before the trial, any creditor or the authorized number of members may intervene [Corp. Code §§ 6510(c), 8510(c); see Corp. Code §§ 5036].

If a public benefit corporation is being dissolved, the Attorney General is an indispensable party [Corp. Code §§ 6510(d)]. If a mutual benefit corporation holds assets in charitable trust at the time of dissolution, a copy of the complaint must be served on the Attorney General, who may intervene in the suit [Corp. Code § 8510(e)].

The above rules do not apply to a mutual benefit corporation subject to the following laws [Corp. Code § 8510(d)]:

- The Public Utilities Act unless an order is obtained from the PUC authorizing the corporation either (1) to dispose of its assets or (2) to dissolve [see Pub. Util. Code § 210 et seq.; see also Pub. Util. Code § 851].

- Specified provisions of the Insurance Code [see Ins. Code § 1010 et seq.] when an application authorized by Ins. Code § 1011 has been filed by the Insurance Commissioner, unless the corporation obtains the consent of the Insurance Commissioner.

- The California Credit Union Law [see Fin. Code § 14000 et seq.].

[2] Grounds for Involuntary Dissolution

The statutory grounds for involuntary dissolution are as follows [Corp. Code § 6510(b), 8510(b)]:

- When the corporation has abandoned its business for more than one year.

- When the corporation has an even number of directors who are equally divided and cannot agree on the management of its affairs, so that business cannot be conducted to advantage or a danger exists that the corporation's property and business will be impaired or lost and the members are so divided into factions that they cannot elect an uneven number of directors.

- When internal dissension exists among the members and two or more factions are so deadlocked that the corporation's business can no longer be conducted with advantage.

- When the members have failed to elect successor directors whose terms have expired (or would have expired on the election of their successors) during the shorter of (1) any four-year period, or (2) when all voting power has been exercised at two consecutive meetings or in two written ballots for the election of directors.

- When those in control of the corporation have been guilty of, or have knowingly countenanced, persistent and pervasive fraud, mismanagement, abuse of authority, or persistent unfairness toward any shareholders, or the corporate property is being misapplied or wasted by its directors or officers.

- When liquidation is reasonably necessary as the corporation is failing and has continuously failed to carry out its purposes.

- The period for which the corporation was formed has terminated without extension.

- The corporation is required to dissolve under the terms of any article provision requiring that subordinate corporation will dissolve whenever its charter is surrendered to, taken away by, or revoked by the granting organization [see Corp. Code §§ 5132(a)(2)(A)], 7132(a)(4)(A)].

[3] Winding Up Procedure; Corporate Powers Limited to Winding Up

Involuntary proceedings for winding up a corporation commence when the order for winding up is entered [Corp. Code §§ 6515(a), 8515(a); see Corp. Code §§ 6514, 8514; see also [4], below]. Once the proceeding begins, the board of directors will conduct the winding up of the corporation's affairs, subject to the supervision of the court, unless other persons are appointed by the court, on good cause shown, to conduct the winding up. The persons winding up the corporation may, subject to any restrictions imposed by the court, exercise all their powers through the executive officers without any order of court [Corp. Code §§ 6515(b), 8515(b)]. The corporation must cease to conduct its activities, except to the extent necessary for the beneficial winding up and except during any period that the board deems necessary to preserve the corporation's goodwill or going concern value, pending a sale or other disposition of its assets, or both, in whole or in part. The directors will cause written notice of the commencement of the involuntary winding up proceeding to be given by mail to all members and to all known creditors and claimants whose addresses appear on the records of the corporation, unless the order for winding up has been stayed (by appeal or otherwise) or the proceeding or the execution of the order has been enjoined [Corp. Code §§ 6515(c), 8515(c)].

[4] Specific Powers of Court

If the ground for the complaint for involuntary dissolution of the corporation is a deadlock in the board [see Corp. Code §§ 6510(b)(2), 8510(b)(2)], the court may appoint a provisional director [Corp. Code §§ 6512, 8512]. A provisional director must be an impartial person, who is neither a member nor a creditor of the corporation, nor related by consanguinity or affinity within the third degree according to the common law to any of the other directors of the corporation or to any judge of the court by which the provisional director is appointed. A provisional director has all the rights and powers of a director until the deadlock in the board or among members is broken, or until the provisional director is removed by order of the court or by approval of a majority of all members. The provisional director is entitled to compensation, as fixed by the court, unless otherwise agreed with the corporation [Corp. Code §§ 5225(e), 6512, 7225(d), 8512].

The court may appoint a receiver if, at the time of the filing of a complaint for involuntary dissolution or at any time thereafter, the court has reasonable grounds to believe that the interests of the corporation or its members will suffer pending the hearing and determination of the complaint unless a receiver of the corporation is appointed. Following application by the plaintiff and a hearing, on notice to the corporation as the court may direct, and on the provision of security [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 566, 567], the court may appoint a receiver to take over and manage the affairs of the corporation and to preserve its property pending the hearing and determination of the complaint for dissolution [Corp. Code §§ 6513, 8513].

After the hearing, the court may decree a winding up and dissolution of the corporation if adequate cause is shown or, with or without winding up and dissolution, may make any orders and decrees and issue any injunctions in the case as justice and equity require [Corp. Code §§ 6514, 8514].

5-12 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 12.51

§ 12.51 Action by Attorney General on Behalf of State

The Attorney General may bring suit against a public benefit or mutual benefit corporation (or purported corporation) in the name of the people of California on the Attorney General's own information or on complaint of a private party to secure a judgment dissolving the corporation and annulling, vacating, or forfeiting its corporate existence [Corp. Code §§ 6511(a), 8511(a); see Corp. Code §§ 6511(d), 8511(d) (service of process on corporation)]. Such an action may be based on any of the following grounds [Corp. Code §§ 6511(a), 8511(a)]:

- The corporation has seriously offended against any provision of the statutes regulating corporations or charitable organizations.

- The corporation has fraudulently abused or usurped corporate privileges or powers.

- The corporation has violated any provision of law by any act or default that is a legal ground for forfeiture of corporate existence.

- The corporation has failed to pay to the Franchise Tax Board for a period of five years any tax imposed by the Corporation Tax Law.

The Corporations Code contains no procedure for the involuntary dissolution of religious corporations.

If the ground of the action is a matter or act that the corporation has done or omitted to do that can be corrected by amendment of its articles or by other corporate action, the suit will not be maintained unless (1) the Attorney General gives the corporation written notice of the matter or act done or omitted to be done, at least 30 days before the institution of suit, and (2) the corporation fails to institute proceedings to correct it within that 30-day period or thereafter fails to duly and properly make the amendment or take the corrective corporate action [Corp. Code §§ 6511(b), 8511(b)].

In any suit brought by the Attorney General, the court may order dissolution or any other relief as the court deems just and expedient. The court may also appoint a receiver for winding up the affairs of the corporation, or may order that the corporation be wound up by its board subject to the supervision of the court [Corp. Code §§ 6511(c), 8511(c)].

CHAPTER 12 WINDING UP AND DISSOLUTION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Tax Considerations

5-12 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 12.61

§ 12.61 Corporate Recognition of Gain and Loss

A liquidating corporation ordinarily recognizes gain or loss on the distribution of property in complete liquidation, as if it had sold the property to the distributee at its fair market value [I.R.C. § 336(a)]. If any property distributed in the liquidation is subject to a liability, or if the distributee assumes a liability on the distribution, then the fair market value of the property is the greater of the property's fair market value or the amount of the liability for purposes of determining gain or loss [I.R.C. § 336(b)].

The recognition of loss by a liquidating corporation is subject to limitations. First, if the corporation distributes property to a "related person" [see I.R.C. § 267], the corporation cannot recognize loss on that distribution when (1) the distribution is not pro rata, or (2) the property is "disqualified property" [I.R.C. § 336(d)(1)(A)]. The term "disqualified property" means any property that was acquired by the liquidating corporation as a tax-free transfer to a controlled corporation [see I.R.C. § 351], or as a contribution to capital, during the five-year period ending on the date of distribution. The term also includes any property that has an adjusted basis determined in whole or in party by reference to the adjusted basis of disqualified property [I.R.C. § 336(d)(1)(B)].

Second, the corporation cannot recognize a loss on the sale, exchange, or distribution of built-in loss property contributed to the corporation in order to create a loss. Specifically, the adjusted basis of property that was acquired as a tax-free transfer to a controlled corporation [see I.R.C. § 351] or as a contribution to capital is reduced, for purposes of determining loss on distribution, if the acquisition was part of a plan that had as a principal purpose the recognition of loss with respect to the property in connection with the liquidation [I.R.C. § 336(d)(2)(A), (B)(i)]. Any such built-in loss property acquired by the liquidated corporation after the date two years before the day on which the plan of liquidation is adopted will be treated as part of the plan to recognize loss [I.R.C. § 336(d)(2)(B)(ii)].

Third, a liquidating subsidiary corporation does not recognize gain or loss with respect to distributions to a parent corporation holding at least 80 percent of the total value of the subsidiary's stock and voting power if the parent takes a carry-over basis in the property and the liquidation is accomplished with the specified time periods [I.R.C. §§ 332, 337; see I.R.C. § 1504(a)(2) (ownership tests)]. However, the liquidating corporation cannot rely on this parent-subsidiary exception with regard to minority shareholders [I.R.C. §§ 332, 337].

CHAPTER 12 WINDING UP AND DISSOLUTION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Tax Considerations

5-12 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 12.62

§ 12.62 Shareholder Recognition of Gain or Loss

[1] In General

The amount distributed to a shareholder in a complete liquidation is treated as full payment in exchange for the shareholder's stock [I.R.C. § 331(a)]. Gain is measured by the value of money or property received by the shareholders, less their adjusted basis in the stock; loss is recognized to the extent that their adjusted basis exceeds the amount received [I.R.C. §§ 331(c), 1001(a); Rev. & Tax. Code § 18031]. Normally, the gain or loss to the shareholders on the dissolution of a corporation is a capital gain or loss, unless the stock is not deemed a capital asset [see I.R.C. § 1221] or (for years beginning before January 1, 2003, or after December 31, 2008 [see I.R.C. § 341, before repeal by Pub. Law No. 108-27; see also Pub. Law No. 108-27, §§ 302(f)(1), 303 (effective date and sunset provisions for repeal of collapsible corporation rules)]) the corporation is considered a collapsible corporation [see I.R.C. § 341, before repeal by Pub. Law No. 108-27]. Capital gain or loss treatment is dependent on how long the shareholder held the stock [see I.R.C. § 1223].

[2] Collapsible Corporations

For years in which the collapsible corporation rules apply, if the corporation is a "collapsible corporation," the gain will be treated as ordinary income [I.R.C. § 341, before repeal by Pub. Law No. 108-27]. In general, a collapsible corporation is a corporation that has appreciated property on which it has not been taxed. There are, however, many exceptions to the rule, and, in some cases, the timing of a dissolution can determine whether or not a corporation will be considered collapsible. The rules determining the collapsibility of a corporation are complex and if it appears that the shareholders will recognize a considerable gain upon dissolution, a thorough study should be made to determine the collapsibility of the corporation, and the methods, if any, of avoiding it.

[3] Dissolution Preceded or Followed by Asset Transfer to Another Corporation Owned by Same Shareholders

If dissolution is preceded or followed by the transfer of a substantial amount of corporate assets to another corporation owned by a majority of the same shareholders, it is possible that the transaction will be characterized as a

"liquidation-reincorporation." In this case, the liquidation may be deemed incomplete and all the assets retained by the shareholders personally will be taxed to them as a dividend [see Treas. Reg. § 1.331-1(c)]. Thus, the liquidation of a corporation will be disregarded when it substantially reincorporates and the business enterprise remains in substantially continuous operation [see Boyter v. Commissioner (4th Cir. 1981) 668 F.2d 1382, 1387 ; see also Atlas Tool Co. (1978) 70 T.C. 86 , aff'd, 614 F.2d 860 (3d Cir. 1980) , cert. denied, 449 U.S. 836 (1980)] .

[4] Installment Obligations

Ordinarily, all gain recognized in a corporate dissolution is reported for the year in which the distributions are received. However, shareholders may be able to use the installment method [see I.R.C. § 453] if (1) the shareholder receives an installment obligation acquired by the corporation within 12 months of the date that a complete liquidation plan is adopted and liquidation is completed within that period [I.R.C. § 453(h)]; and (2) the shareholder sells the stock before the liquidation, with payment in installments over a number of years, and the stock would not be attributed to the shareholder after the sale [I.R.C. § 453(e); see I.R.C. §§ 267(b), 318(a)].

[5] Liquidation of Solvent Subsidiary

Further, shareholders may not recognize gain as a result of the liquidation of a solvent subsidiary corporation with respect to distributions to a parent corporation holding at least 80 percent of the subsidiary's stock if the parent takes a carry-over basis in the property [I.R.C. §§ 332, 337; see Treas. Reg. § 1.332-6]. However, this parent-subsidiary exception does not apply to the liquidating corporation's minority shareholders [I.R.C. §§ 332, 337; see Treas. Reg. § 1.332-5].

D. Tax Considerations

5-12 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 12.63

§ 12.63 Treatment of S Corporation Gain or Loss

In general, the liquidation rules apply equally in the S corporation context. However, this tax treatment ordinarily results in less overall tax for S corporations and their shareholders than in the C corporation context because S corporate gain is passed through and taxed to the shareholders and increases their basis in their stock [see I.R.C. § 1361 et seq.]. This increased basis reduces any gain that would otherwise be recognized at the shareholder level.

However, a special tax applies to the "recognized built-in gain" of an S corporation that liquidates or sells all its assets within 10 years after the effective date of the conversion from a C corporation [I.R.C. § 1374]. "Recognized built-in gain" means gain recognized during that ten-year period on the disposition of any asset owned by the corporation at the beginning of its first year as an S corporation that does not exceed the excess (if any) of the asset's fair market value over the asset's adjusted basis at the beginning of that first taxable year [I.R.C. § 1374(d)(3)].

B. Preliminary Determinations

5-12 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 12.110

§ 12.110 Voluntary Dissolution of Stock Corporation

NOTE:

The following guide is primarily concerned with the voluntary dissolution of a corporation by its shareholders. However, this guide, except as otherwise indicated, also applies to a dissolution at the election of the directors.

1. Determine whether dissolution is necessary.

NOTE:

Counsel and the parties should carefully evaluate the need for dissolution and consider all alternatives as the dissolution decision has potentially serious consequences: the liquidation value of the corporation may be significantly less than its value as an operating business; the corporation may need to retain assets to cover contingent liabilities, and the shareholders may face income tax consequences from the dissolution.

If dissolution is necessary, the shareholders or the board of directors should carefully plan the dissolution. Adopting a "wait and see" approach may result in the corporation becoming insolvent or wasting its assets, which may expose the directors to liability.

a. If corporation is being dissolved for financial reasons, investigate:

(1) Methods for cutting expenses, including reduction of work force and relocation;

(2) Methods for increasing income;

(3) Sources of additional capital, including merger;

(4) Possibility of obtaining new management; and

(5) Sale of all corporate stock.

b. If dissolution is resulting from dissension among shareholders, consider purchase of shares of dissenters by other shareholders or redemption by corporation.

c. Evaluate factors weighing against dissolution:

(1) Determine if corporation has long-term liabilities, such as long-term lease, which might preclude dissolution.

(2) Review all loan documents and financing agreements to determine if prepayment penalty exists, such as acceleration of loan on dissolution or on distributions to shareholders, or if documents restrict dissolution or liquidation.

(3) Review all leases and contracts and consider provisions for breach or early termination, and determine if contract is assignable.

(4) Determine if sufficient cash is available to pay current liabilities of corporation and shareholders' taxes on dissolution.

2. If dissolution is necessary, determine whether dissolution should be voluntary or involuntary:

NOTE:
If parties believe dissolution should be involuntary, see § 12.111.

a. Ascertain whether grounds for involuntary dissolution exist [Corp. Code § 1800(b); see § 12.30[2]].

b. Determine whether proper parties are willing to file complaint [Corp. Code § 1800(a); see § 12.30[1]].

3. Evaluate potential federal and state income tax consequences of dissolution to corporation and shareholders.

a. Determine if dissolution will cause corporation to recognize significant gain from income previously deferred, such as deferred income on installment notes.

b. For years in which the collapsible corporation rules apply (tax years beginning before January 1, 2003, and after December 31, 2008 [Pub. Law No. 108-27, §§ 302(e)(4)(A), 302(f)(1), 303] if corporation is collapsible [I.R.C. § 341, before repeal by Pub. Law No. 108-27] and if methods exist for avoiding consequences of collapsibility, such as delaying dissolution [see § 12.62].

4. Evaluate applicable requirements of state and federal agencies other than Secretary of State, including taxing authorities, Employment Development Department, State Board of Equalization.

5. Evaluate corporation's current and potential assets, debts, and liabilities and prepare list of creditors.

6. Determine whether any pending or potential litigation affecting the corporation.

7. Examine articles of incorporation, bylaws, and shareholders' agreements to determine if liquidation preferences or conversion rights have been created.

8. Determine applicability of bulk sales law, especially notice requirements [see Com. Code § 6101 et seq.; see also Ch. 2A, Incorporating a Going Business].

9. Consider methods for satisfying claims against corporation.

a. Determine if all liabilities of the corporation will be paid.

b. Determine if liabilities can be secured by depositing an amount equal to liabilities with a bank or trust company.

c. Consider possibility of all or any portion of liabilities being assumed by shareholders.

d. Consider petitioning court to supervise dissolution [Corp. Code § 1904; see P 13, below] in order to bar creditors' claims after a fixed period [Corp. Code § 1807(a)].

10. Consider retaining reserve for payment of contingent or unknown liabilities, such as pollution and product liability claims.

11. Consider use of liquidating trust [see § 12.280].

12. Draft plan for liquidation and distribution of assets.

13. Consider whether court supervision is warranted [see § 12.21]:

a. Shareholders are in conflict.

b. Creditors' claims are in dispute.

c. Other unusual circumstances.

14. Consider necessity and means for preserving corporate rights under license and existing contracts.

15. Explore possibility of licensing or selling use of corporate name.

16. Determine procedure for handling dissenting shareholders, or any shareholders who refuse to surrender shares.

§ 12.111 Involuntary Dissolution of Stock Corporation

NOTE:
The following guide does not apply to any corporation subject to the Banking Law [see Fin. Code § 99 et seq.], the Public Utilities Act [see Pub. Util. Code § 201 et seq.], the Savings and Loan Association Law [see Fin. Code § 5000 et seq.], or the Insurance Code [see Ins. Code § 1010 et seq.].

1. Assuming dissolution is necessary [see § 12.110, P 1], determine whether proper parties are willing to file complaint:

a. At least one-half of corporation's directors in office.

b. Shareholders who hold shares representing at least 331/3 percent of:

NOTE:
The shares owned by persons who have personally participated in persistent and pervasive fraud, mismanagement, or abuse of authority, or persistent unfairness toward any shareholders, or in the misapplication or waste or corporate property are excluded from the computation [Corp. Code § 1800(a)(2), (b)(4)].

(1) Total number of outstanding shares (assuming conversion of any preferred shares convertible into common shares);

(2) Outstanding common shares; or

(3) Equity of corporation.

NOTE:

The court of appeals has held that a proper interpretation of Corp. Code § 1800(a)(2)(iii) gives preferred shareholders the right to file for involuntary dissolution if their preferred shares represent 331/3 percent of the corporation's equity [Kline Hawkes California v. Superior Court (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 183, 196, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 581 (sustaining demurrer with leave to amend; although plaintiffs failed to describe equity of corporation correctly for purposes of Corp. Code § 1800(a)(2)(ii), they might have been able to do so)].

c. Any shareholder if ground for dissolution is that period for which corporation was formed has terminated without extension.

d. Any shareholder or shareholders of close corporation.

e. Any person expressly authorized to do so in articles of incorporation.

f. Attorney General [see § 12.31].

2. Assuming proper parties are willing to file complaint [see P 1, above], determine whether proper grounds exist for involuntary dissolution:

a. If corporation has abandoned its business for more than one year [Corp. Code § 1800(b)(1)].

b. If corporation has even number of directors who are equally divided and cannot agree on management matters, so that:

(1) Business cannot be conducted to advantage or danger exists that corporation's property and business will be impaired or lost; and

(2) Shareholders are so divided into factions that they cannot elect uneven number of directors [Corp. Code § 1800(b)(2)].

c. If internal dissension exists among shareholders and:

NOTE:

Both internal dissension and deadlock are required. Involuntary dissolution has been denied in a two-shareholder corporation absent a showing of shareholder deadlock [Belio v. Panorama Optics, Inc. (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1096, 1104-1106, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 737] .

(1) Two or more factions are so deadlocked that corporation's business can no longer be conducted with advantage to shareholders; or

(2) Shareholders have failed at two consecutive annual meetings at which all voting power was exercised to elect successors to directors whose terms have expired (or would have expired on election of successors [Corp. Code § 1800(b)(3)].

d. If parties in control of the corporation have been guilty of, or have knowingly countenanced, persistent and pervasive fraud, mismanagement, abuse of authority, or persistent unfairness toward any shareholders [Corp. Code § 1800(b)(4)].

e. If corporate property is being misapplied or wasted by its directors or officers [Corp. Code § 1800(b)(4)].

f. If corporation has 35 or fewer shareholders [see Corp. Code § 605], and liquidation is reasonably necessary to protect rights or interests of complaining shareholder or shareholders [Corp. Code § 1800(b)(5)].

g. If period for which corporation was formed has terminated without extension [Corp. Code § 1800(b)(6)].

§ 12.112 Voluntary Dissolution of Nonprofit Corporation

1. Determine whether dissolution is necessary.

NOTE:

Counsel and the parties should carefully evaluate the need for dissolution and consider all alternatives as the dissolution decision has potentially serious consequences. The liquidation value of the corporation may be significantly less than its value as an operating business and the corporation may need to retain assets to cover contingent liabilities.

If dissolution is necessary, the members or the board of directors should carefully plan the dissolution. Adopting a wait and see approach may result in the corporation becoming insolvent or wasting its assets, which may result in exposing the directors to liability.

a. If corporation is being dissolved for financial reasons, investigate:
(1) Methods for cutting expenses, including reduction of work force and relocation;

(2) Methods for increasing income;

(3) Sources of additional capital; and

(4) Possibility of obtaining new management.

b. If dissolution is resulting from dissension among members, consider purchase of shares of dissenters by other members or redemption by corporation.

c. Evaluate factors weighing against dissolution:

(1) Determine if corporation has long-term liabilities, such as long-term lease, which might preclude dissolution.

(2) Review all loan documents to determine if prepayment penalty exists, such as acceleration of loan on dissolution or on distributions to member, or if documents restrict dissolution.

(3) Review all leases and contracts and consider provisions for breach or early termination, and determine if contract is assignable.

(4) Determine if sufficient cash is available to pay current liabilities of corporation and members' taxes on dissolution.

2. If dissolution is necessary, determine whether dissolution should be voluntary or involuntary:

NOTE:
If parties believe that dissolution should involuntary, see § 12.113.

3. Evaluate potential federal and state income tax consequences of dissolution to corporation and members.

4. Evaluate applicable requirements of state and federal agencies other than Secretary of State, including taxing authorities, Employment Development Department, State Board of Equalization.

5. Evaluate corporation's current and potential assets, debts, and liabilities and prepare list of creditors.

6. Determine whether any pending or potential litigation affecting the corporation.

7. Examine articles of incorporation, bylaws, and members' agreements to determine if liquidation preferences or conversion rights have been created.

8. Determine applicability of bulk sales law, especially notice requirements [see Com. Code § 6101 et seq.; see also Ch. 2A, Incorporating a Going Business].

9. Consider methods for satisfying claims against corporation.

a. Determine if all liabilities of the corporation will be paid.

b. Determine if liabilities can be secured by depositing an amount equal to liabilities with a bank or trust company.

c. Consider possibility of all or any portion of liabilities being assumed by members.

d. Consider petitioning court to supervise dissolution [Corp. Code §§ 6614, 8614] in order to bar creditors' claims after a fixed period [Corp. Code §§ 6517, 8517].

10. Consider retaining reserve for payment of contingent or unknown liabilities, such as pollution and product liability claims.

11. Draft plan for liquidation and distribution of assets.

12. Consider whether court supervision is warranted [see Corp. Code §§ 6614, 8614]:

a. Members are in conflict.

b. Creditors' claims are in dispute.

c. Other unusual circumstances.

§ 12.113 Involuntary Dissolution of Public Benefit and Mutual Benefit Corporations

NOTE:

The following rules do not apply to mutual benefit corporation subject to (1) the Public Utilities Act unless an order is obtained from the PUC authorizing the corporation either (a) to dispose of its assets or (b) to dissolve [see Pub. Util. Code § 210 et seq.; see also Pub. Util. Code § 851]; (2) specified provisions of the Insurance Code [see Ins. Code § 1010 et seq.] when an application authorized by Ins. Code § 1011 has been filed by the Insurance Commissioner, unless the corporation obtains the consent of the Insurance Commissioner; and (3) the California Credit Union Law [Corp. Code § 8510(d); see Fin. Code § 14000 et seq.].

The Corporations Code contains no procedure for the involuntary dissolution of religious corporations.

1. Assuming dissolution is necessary [see § 12.112, P 1], determine whether proper parties are willing to file complaint:

NOTE:

If a public benefit corporation is being dissolved, the Attorney General is an indispensable party [Corp. Code §§ 6510(d)]. If a mutual benefit corporation holds assets in charitable trust at the time of dissolution, a copy of the complaint must be served on the Attorney General, who may intervene in the suit [Corp. Code § 8510(e)].

a. At least one-half of directors in office.

b. Persons holding or authorized in writing by persons holding at least 331/3 percent of voting power, exclusive of memberships held by persons who have personally

c. Any member if ground for dissolution is that period for which corporation was formed has terminated without extension.

d. Any other person expressly authorized to do so in articles of incorporation.

e. California Attorney General.

f. Head organization under whose authority corporation was created, provided that corporation's articles provide that subordinate corporation will dissolve whenever its charter is surrendered to, taken away by, or revoked by granting organization [see Corp. Code §§ 5132(a)(2)(A)], 7132(a)(4)(A)].

2. Assuming proper parties are willing to file complaint [see P 1, above], determine whether proper grounds exist for involuntary dissolution [Corp. Code § 6510(b), 8510(b)]:

a. If corporation has abandoned its business for more than one year.

b. If corporation has an even number of directors who are equally divided and cannot agree on the management of its affairs, so that:
(1) Business cannot be conducted to advantage; or

(2) Danger exists that corporation's property and business will be impaired or lost; and

(3) Members are so divided into factions that they cannot elect uneven number of directors.

c. If internal dissension exists among members and two or more factions are so deadlocked that corporation's business can no longer be conducted with advantage.

d. If members have failed to elect successor directors whose terms have expired (or would have expired on the election of their successors) during shorter of:

(1) Any four-year period; or

(2) When all voting power has been exercised at two consecutive meetings or in two written ballots for election of directors.

e. If persons controlling corporation have been guilty of, or have knowingly countenanced, persistent and pervasive fraud, mismanagement, abuse of authority, or persistent unfairness toward any shareholders.

f. If corporate property is being misapplied or wasted by its directors or officers.

g. If liquidation is reasonably necessary as corporation is failing and has continuously failed to carry out its purposes.

h. If period for which corporation was formed has terminated without extension.

i. If corporation is required to dissolve under terms of any article provision requiring that subordinate corporation will dissolve whenever its charter is surrendered to, taken away by, or revoked by granting organization [see Corp. Code §§ 5132(a)(2)(A), 7132(a)(4)(A)].

§ 12.120 Voluntary Dissolution of Stock Corporation

1. Hold directors' meeting to authorize dissolution.

NOTE:
The first step in corporate dissolution is ordinarily to conduct a directors' meeting to determine that the corporation should be dissolved and to authorize obtaining the vote or written consent of the shareholders to dissolve the corporation. However, unless the directors are electing dissolution themselves, board action is not necessary to commence voluntary dissolution proceedings [see Corp. Code § 1900(a)]. Nevertheless, it is good practice for the board to adopt a resolution stating that it is in the best interests of the corporation and its shareholders to dissolve the corporation before submitting the issue to the shareholders.

a. If directors' meeting is held, it must be validly called [Corp. Code § 307(a)(1)] and proper notice must be given as provided in bylaws [Corp. Code § 307(a)(2); see Ch. 5, Directors' Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions].

NOTE:
Notice of a meeting need not be given to any director who signs a waiver of notice [see § 12.201] either before or after the meeting or who attends the meeting without protesting the lack of notice [Corp. Code § 307(a)(3)].

b. At meeting, instruct directors to adopt resolution stating following [see § 12.200]:

NOTE:
If the directors may elect winding up and dissolution on their own [see § 12.20[1][b]], they should instead adopt the resolution set forth in § 12.204.

(1) That it is in best interests of corporation to dissolve.

(2) That officers and directors are authorized to obtain vote or written consent of shareholders to wind up and dissolve corporation [see Corp. Code § 1900(a); see also §§ 12.202, 12.203].

(3) That corporation will file certificate of election to wind up and dissolve with Secretary of State following shareholders' election [see Corp. Code § 1901; see also § 12.205].
