"This corporation is a close corporation. The number of holders of record of its shares of all classes cannot exceed _____ [number not in excess of 35]. Any attempted voluntary inter vivos transfer which would violate this requirement is void. Refer to the articles, bylaws and any agreements on file with the secretary of the corporation for further restrictions" [Corp. Code § 418(c)].

b. Any other transfer restriction, conspicuously placed on face of share certificate.

7. Consider having close corporation elect Subchapter S status, since S corporations may have as many as 100 shareholders [see I.R.C. § 1361(b)(1)(A); see also Ch. 2B, Electing Subchapter S Status].

NOTE:
Federal law permits S corporations to have as many as 100 shareholders [I.R.C. § 1361(b)(1)]. California Subchapter S law substantially conforms to federal law [see, e.g., Rev. & Tax. Code § 23800 et seq.; see also Ch. 2B, Electing Subchapter S Status*, § 2B.31* et seq.].

§ 2.132 Selecting and Reserving Corporate Name

[1] Selecting Proposed and Alternative Names

NOTE:

In general, the incorporators will have selected the name they desire for the corporation on the basis of business and personal factors before consulting counsel. Counsel should suggest the selection of two or three alternative names, and should be prepared to check the choices made against the statutory restrictions on corporate names. The Secretary of State will not file articles of incorporation bearing a name that is prohibited by statute, or that would tend to mislead the public, or that deceptively resembles the name of another corporation either doing business within the state or otherwise coming within the provisions of Corp. Code § 201(b). The following list indicates the types of names and specific words that should be avoided.

1. Do not use names likely to mislead public, such as [Corp. Code § 201(b)]:

a. Name indicating business of insurer when business is actually that of insurance agency.

b. Name likely to mislead public as to nature of entity, such as personal name without indication of corporate status.

c. Name of professional corporation without use of words denoting corporate existence [see Corp. Code § 13409; see also Ch. 12A, Professional Corporations].

NOTE:

Although a corporate name ordinarily is not required to include such words as "company," "corporation," "incorporated," or "limited," the name of a close corporation must contain one of these last three words or an abbreviation of one of them [Corp. Code § 202(a)].

d. Name falsely implying a governmental affiliation.

2. Do not use names closely and deceptively resembling names of other corporations doing business in California [Corp. Code § 201(b)], whether:

NOTE:

A corporation may adopt a name that is similar but not identical to the name of an existing domestic or foreign corporation if the other corporation consents in writing to the use of the name and the Secretary of State's office finds that under the circumstances the public is not likely to be misled. The consent letter should be submitted on the letterhead of the consenting corporation and signed by an authorized officer of that corporation [see http://www.sos.ca.gov/business/corp/corp_naav2.htm#geninfo].

a. Domestic corporation; or

b. Foreign corporation authorized to transact business in California.

NOTE:

The prohibition against deceptively similar names does not apply to the names of professional corporations, provided that they conform to statutory limitations [see Corp. Code § 13409; see also Ch. 12A, Professional Corporations]. The test for determining the similarity of names is whether the two names so closely resemble each other that a person using normal care, caution, and observation that the public uses and may be expected to use would mistake one for the other [Rixford v. Jordan (1931) 214 Cal. 547, 555, 6 P.2d 959] . The Secretary of State will consider names deceptive if the only difference is a corporate ending [see http://www.sos.ca.gov/business/corp/corp_naav2.htm#geninfo].

Lists of names and addresses of various types of California businesses are available from several sources. Many state licensing agencies publish lists of their licensees. All California manufacturers are listed alphabetically by name and by product manufactured in the California Manufacturers Register, published annually by Times Mirror Press.

3. Do not use the following words indicating lending or trust activity without approval:

a. Words "bank," "trust," "trustee," or any related word, unless certificate of approval is obtained from Commissioner of Financial Institutions [Corp. Code § 201(a); see Fin. Code § 3392].

NOTE:

The requirement for a certificate from the Commissioner does not apply if the corporation is subject to the Banking Law, for example, a bank or trust company [see Corp. Code § 163]. In that case, the articles of incorporation must be endorsed with the approval of the Commissioner before submission to the Secretary of State [see Corp. Code § 201(a)].

b. Words that indicate that business is involved in business of savings association unless authorized under the Savings Association Law [see Fin. Code § 5000 et seq.], such as following [Fin. Code § 5652; see Fin. Code § 5652(a)]:

NOTE:
The corporate name of every savings and loan association must include words similar to those listed in (1), below [Fin. Code § 5650].

(1) "Savings association," "savings bank," "savings and loan association," "building and loan association," "building association"; or

(2) Any combination of "building," "loan," "bank," "institution," "society," "company," "fund," or "corporation" with one or more of "saving," "savings," or similar words.

c. Words that indicate that business is involved in industrial loan business unless authorized under Industrial Loan Law (also known as the Thrift and Loan Law) [see Fin. Code § 18100 et seq.], such as following [see Fin. Code § 18104]:

NOTE:
Companies authorized to engage in the industrial loan business must have words similar to those listed below [Fin. Code § 18101.6].

(1) "Industrial loan company" or "Investment and loan company"; or

(2) "Thrift company" or "thrift and loan company."

4. Do not use words indicating that proposed corporation is insurer without certificate of Insurance Commissioner approving corporate name [see Corp. Code §§ 201.5, 202(b)(3), 2105(a)(6); see also Ins. Code §§ 881, 881.5].

NOTE:
If the proposed corporation is to engage in business as an insurer, it must attach a certificate obtained from the Insurance Commissioner approving the name to the articles of incorporation when filed with the Secretary of State [see Corp. Code §§ 201.5, 202(b)(3), 2105(a)(6); see also Ins. Code §§ 881, 881.5].

5. Do not use word "cooperative" or any abbreviation or derivation of that word or any similar word, unless proposed corporation will be incorporated as authorized cooperative as provided in Corp. Code § 12311 or other applicable California statute as one of following [Corp. Code § 12311(b)]:

NOTE:
This prohibition does not apply to any credit union or organization owned for the mutual benefit of credit unions, any housing cooperative (if the financing is insured, guaranteed, or provided, in whole or in part, by a public or statutorily chartered entity pursuant to a program created for housing cooperatives), a nonprofit corporation (if a majority of the corporate membership is composed of cooperative corporations [see Ch. 13, Nonprofit Corporations]) or an academic institution that serves cooperative corporations [Corp. Code § 12311(b)].

a. Consumer cooperative corporation under Corp. Code § 12200 et seq. [see Ch. 14, Consumer Cooperative Corporations].

b. Nonprofit cooperative association under Food & Agric. Code § 54001 et seq. [see Ch. 14A, Agricultural Nonprofit Cooperative Associations].

c. Stock cooperative [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 11003.2 (definition); see also Ch. 33C, Stock Cooperatives].

d. Limited equity housing cooperative [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 11003.4; Civ. Code §§ 817, 817.1; see also CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW & PRACTICE, Ch. 424, Regulation of Subdivided Land Sales (Matthew Bender)].

e. Credit union or organization owned for mutual benefit of credit unions.

6. Do not use words "Olympic," "Olympiad," "Citius Altius Fortius," or any combination or simulation tending to suggest connection with United States Olympic Committee or any Olympic activity, without consent of Committee [36 U.S.C. § 380(a)(4)].

7. Except as permitted by federal law, do not use names similar to those used by federal government or certain federal agencies, including [18 U.S.C. § 709]:

a. "National," "Federal," "United States," "reserve," or "Deposit Insurance."

b. "Federal Deposit," "Federal Deposit Insurance," "Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation," or any combination of three or more of these words.

c. "National Credit Union," "National Credit Union Administration," "National Credit Union Board," "National Credit Union Share Insurance Fund," "Share Insurance," "Central Liquidity Facility," "NCUA," "NCUSIF," "CLF," or any combination or variation of these.

d. "Federal Home Loan Bank" or any combination or variation of these words.

e. "Federal intermediate credit bank."

f. "Department of Housing and Urban Development," "Housing and Home Finance Agency," "Federal Housing Administra tion," "Government National Mortgage Association," "United States Housing Authority," "Public Housing Administration," "HUD," "FHA," "PHA," "USHA," or any combination or variation of these words.

g. "Federal Bureau of Investigation" or "F.B.I."

h. "Secret Service," "Secret Service Uniformed Division," "U.S.S.S.," or "U.D."

i. "United States Mint," "U.S. Mint," or colorable imitation of those terms.

j. "Overseas Private Investment Corporation," "Overseas Private Investment Corp." or "O.P.I.C."

k. "Drug Enforcement Agency" or "DEA."

l. "United States Marshals Service," "U. S. Marshals Service," "United States Marshal," "U. S. Marshal," "U.S.M.S.," or colorable imitation of those terms.

8. Do not use any of following phrases, except as authorized by federal law:

a. "Smokey Bear" [18 U.S.C. § 711].

b. "Woodsy Owl" [18 U.S.C. § 711a].

[2] Reserving Proposed Corporate Name

1. Check name availability with Secretary of State's Corporate Name Availability Unit by either:

a. Written request.

NOTE:
For information on obtaining, completing, and submitting the Secretary of State's Name Availability Inquiry Letter, which should be used when making a written request, see § 2.200A.

b. Telephone.

NOTE:
Checking of name availability by telephone is only available to a party who has established a prepaid priority account. There is a $4 fee to check each name by telephone. [see http://www.sos.ca.gov/business/corp/corp_naav2.htm#avail].

(1) Establish prepaid account.

(2) Call special number, provide identification number and inquire about a name.

c. Direct Access.

(1) Establish Direct Access Account with office of Secretary of State.

(2) Access corporate records via personal computer.

2. Request reservation of proposed corporate name by [see Corp. Code § 201(c)]:

a. Written request as follows:

(1) List up to three names (in order of preference if only one name is to be reserved).

NOTE:
A written request for reservation of a corporate name may include up to three names, listed in preferred order, with the request that the first available name, or any number of the listed names, be reserved. A $10 fee must be included for each name to be reserved. For a written request for name reservation, see § 2.201.

(2) State whether or not Corporate Name Availability Unit has previously checked and cleared name or names for which reservation is sought.

(3) State client's name and address and specify contact person.

(4) State principal business in which client will engage.

(5) State county in which proposed corporation's principal office will be located.

(6) Mail request to Secretary of State at Secretary of State, 1150 11th Street, Sacramento, CA 95814 Attention: Corporate Name Availability Unit.

(7) Written response in form of denial or Certificate of Name Reservation should be received in one to two weeks.

b. Telephone request as follows:

NOTE:
Reservation of a corporate name by telephone is only available to a party who has established a prepaid account. There is a $10 fee for each name reserved.

(1) Establish Prepaid Priority Account with office of Secretary of State.

(2) Call priority telephone number, provide account I.D. number, and reserve name.

(3) Account will be debited $14 if name is checked and reserved.

c. Over the counter as follows:

(1) Visit either main office of Secretary of State in Sacramento, or one of the regional offices in Fresno, Los Angeles, San Diego, or San Francisco.

NOTE:
For the office hours and addresses of the regional offices, visit the Secretary of State's website at http://www.sos.ca.gov/business/regional.htm#add.

(2) Present completed Name Reservation Request form for each name reservation requested [see § 2.201 (form)].

(3) Pay $10 special handling fee for each name for which reservation is requested [see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 21903(b)(3), (c)(3)].

NOTE:
The special handling must be remitted separately and will be retained whether the proposed name is accepted or denied for reservation.

3. Time request for name reservation so that articles will be filed within 60 days after name is reserved.

NOTE:
Reservation of a corporate name is effective for 60 days. The Secretary of State may not issue certificates reserving the same name for consecutive 60-day periods without a lapse of 24 hours over the course of a business day between periods [Corp. Code § 201(c)]. For current processing times, refer to the Secretary of State's website at http://www.sos.ca.gov/business/bpd_processing_times.htm.

4. Reserve name in any other state in which corporation will conduct business.

2-2 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 2.133

AUTHOR: Marilyn E. Minger, Practice Consultant

§ 2.133 Procedures Relating to Preincorporation Agreements

[1] Using Preincorporation Subscriptions (Offers But Not Sales of Securities)

NOTE:

Although the Commissioner of Corporations recognizes that preincorporation subscription agreements may be used in California [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 260.102.1, 260.102.2; see also § 2.210[1]], the more common practice is to incorporate first and then offer the corporation's shares to prospective purchasers. This enables the corporation to accept the subscriptions immediately [see § 2.32[3]] and to receive consideration for the shares when the agreement is executed (subject to any impound requirements imposed by the Commissioner or voluntarily agreed to by the promoter). This procedure is outlined in [2], below, and is generally preferable to that described here.

1. Have principals designate party to act as officer or agent to receive subscriptions.

2. Obtain subscriptions from principals (and others if principals have decided to seek outside shareholders).

3. If subscription agent is to be used in obtaining subscriptions:

a. Instruct agent to make certain that representations relating to consideration to be received [see § 2.116, P 5] are consonant with preincorporation agreement provisions.

b. Have all incorporators execute agreement with agent to solicit preincorporation subscription agreements [see § 2.212].

4. Establish promoter accountability procedures:

a. Open escrow account for money received.

b. Set up records to account for property received.

c. Document receipt of labor or services performed on behalf of corporation.

5. Draft subscription agreement [see § 2.210].

6. Comply with federal and state securities laws.

NOTE:

The small offering exemption [see Corp. Code § 25102(h)] and the limited offering exemption [see Corp. Code § 25102(f)] from qualification under the Corporate Securities Law of 1968 are discussed in Ch. 6B, California Limited Offering Exemptions , and Ch. 6C, California Small Offering Exemption , respectively. Qualification of securities is discussed in Ch. 6H, Qualification of Securities .

7. Have all subscribers execute investor questionnaires.

8. Have all subscribers execute subscription agreements.

9. Give each subscriber one copy of the subscription agreement.

10. Retain at least two copies of agreement and deliver them to board of directors after incorporation.

11. Have board ratify or accept agreements as soon after incorporation as possible [see Ch. 5, Directors' Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions]:

a. Draft resolution stating:
(1) Time and place for receipt and acceptance of subscriptions.

(2) Consideration for shares.

(3) Payment terms:
(a) Lump sum.

(b) Installment.

(c) Other.

b. Have board determine fair value to corporation of any property to be transferred to corporation in return for shares [see Corp. Code § 409(e)].

c. Instruct board to adopt resolution at first meeting.

d. Mark copies of ratified agreements to indicate ratification or acceptance.

(1) Send one copy to subscriber

(2) Retain other copy with corporate records.

12. Advise board to issue call for payment and transmit it to subscribers.

NOTE:
It may be desirable to annotate a copy of the subscription agreement with an indication of acceptance and include it with the call.

13. Advise board to issue shares either:

a. Only after receipt of payment [see Corp. Code § 410(b)]; or

b. As partly paid shares on receipt of partial payment, subject to call for remainder of consideration due [Corp. Code §§ 409(d), 410(b)].

[2] Using Subscription Agreement After Incorporation

NOTE:
Although technically this is not a preincorporation procedure, it is included here because it is an alternative approach to that discussed in [1], above, and will be preferable in most instances [see § 2.32[3]].

1. Prepare and file articles of incorporation [see Ch. 3, Articles of Incorporation].

2. If corporation's shares must be qualified for sale or registered under Corporate Securities Law of 1968, federal securities laws, or securities laws of any other state or country, perform necessary qualification or registration procedures or insure compliance with applicable exemptions [see Ch. 6, Securities Regulation Issues].

3. If Commissioner has imposed impound condition, establish impound mechanism [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.141.23]:

a. Enter into agreement with escrow depositary.

NOTE:
The escrow depositary ordinarily will be a national bank located in California or a California bank [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.141.23(a)]. The minimum contents of this agreement are specified by regulation [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.23(b)(3)].

b. Apply to Commissioner for approval of depositary, including:

(1) Name, branch office, and address of depositary.

(2) Written consent of depositary to act in that capacity.

(3) Copy of agreement with depositary.

4. Draft subscription agreement [see § 2.210].

5. Have board of directors pass resolution approving form for subscription agreement [see Ch. 6I, Issuance of Equity Securities , 6I.260[2]].

6. Have corporation designate party to act as officer or agent to accept subscriptions.

7. Distribute subscription agreement to prospective purchasers along with investor questionnaire and prospectus or offering circular.

NOTE:
All offers and sales must be conducted in accordance with the applicable qualification, registration or exemption requirements. For discussion, see Ch. 6, Securities Regulation Issues .

8. Have subscribers return:

a. Completed questionnaire.

b. Completed subscription agreement.

c. Payment for subscription (payable to escrow depositary if impound condition has been imposed).

9. Have corporation accept subscriptions as soon as possible after receipt.

10. If impound is involved, deposit all funds with escrow depositary within 48 hours of receipt [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.141.21].

11. If impound is involved, apply to Commissioner for order authorizing escrow depositary to release funds to corporation when conditions of impound have been satisfied [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.141.24]:

NOTE:
The Commissioner will authorize the depositary to release the funds when the full amount of funds specified in the impound condition has been deposited with the escrow depositary and any other conditions for the release of the funds have been satisfied, unless changed circumstances render the impounded funds inadequate or the Commissioner finds that sale of the securities would no longer be fair, just, and equitable [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.141.24(a)]. A partial release or modification may be allowed in unusual cases [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.141.24(d)].

a. Include statement by issuer that all required proceeds from sale have been placed with depositary in accordance with impound condition and that there have been no changes or other circumstances that would render amount of impounded funds inadequate to finance proposed plan of operation.

b. Include statement of depositary signed by appropriate officer and setting forth amount of impounds placed with depositary.

c. Include statement that required proceeds are represented by unconditional subscription agreements that are not loans and are not subject to rescission or rejection by the issuer or subscriber.

d. Any other information that Commissioner requires.

NOTE:

For example, the Commissioner may require a statement that the issuer has or has not engaged in business, and a statement setting forth all the issuer's liabilities, including contingent liabilities [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.141.24(b)(4)].

12. Issue share certificates to subscribers.

[3] Using Preincorporation Contracts With Third Parties

NOTE:

For discussion of the use of preincorporation agreements with third parties, see § 2.33.

1. Advise principals to disclose nature of intended corporate format to present or potential key suppliers or customers of business or proposed corporation.

2. Advise principals to ascertain in advance whether and on what general terms those parties would be willing to conduct business with new corporation.

3. Draft commercial agreements with third parties for future dealings with proposed corporation that expressly:

a. Show other party's reliance on credit or services of corporation, and not on principals personally.

b. Depend on formal acceptance by directors of new corporation after formation.

4. At first meeting of the corporation's board of directors, have directors adopt resolutions [see Ch. 5, Directors' Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions]:

a. Expressly ratifying and adopting all preincorporation contracts entered into on behalf of corporation.

b. Expressly disaffirming all such contracts other than those specifically described as ratified and adopted.

5. Advise that incorporators or promoters should be expressly relieved from further liability under contracts adopted by board:

a. By resolution adopting contract.

b. Through agreement to indemnify incorporators or promoters and hold them harmless against any liability incurred in any preincorporation transaction [see § 2.240 (form for indemnity agreement)].

§ 2.140 Preincorporation Agreement Among Principals

NOTE:

While it may be argued that there is little need for a preincorporation agreement to incorporate, a preincorporation agreement is a prudent method of providing for and protecting the parties' investment of time, money, or materials, or for the contribution of a trade secret or process. In addition, a preincorporation agreement among principals may be the only document available to present to subscribers showing the type of corporation or investment intended.

The provisions outlined in this section include some that may be expected to be found in the articles of incorporation or bylaws. While copies of the proposed articles or bylaws may be attached to the preincorporation agreement and incorporated by reference, it may be desirable to include them in the body of the agreement.

A preincorporation agreement to incorporate is illustrated in § 2.230.

1. Set forth names of all parties or principals.

2. Describe proposed corporation:

a. State name of proposed corporation.

b. Give address of its principal place of business.

c. Set forth addresses of other places in which it will do business.

d. Describe corporate purpose or business to be engaged in.

e. Specify that corporation is to be formed under California law.

f. State number of directors corporation will have and names of initial directors.

g. Specify titles for officers and names of initial officers.

3. Describe capitalization of proposed corporation:

a. Set forth initial capital contributions of principals in cash, property, or services.

b. Specify amount of capital to be borrowed and, generally, from whom.

c. Specify whether additional capital is to be raised by sale of subscriptions prior to incorporation or subscriptions and shares after incorporation.

d. Describe share structure, detailing number of shares authorized in each class or series, number to be issued initially, and consideration to be received for shares.

4. Set forth restrictions on shares, if any:

a. Powers, privileges, or limits on each class of shares to be issued.

b. Shareholders' rights to vote.

c. Shareholders' rights to transfer shares.

d. Vote needed to adopt bylaws.

e. Vote needed to elect or replace directors.

f. Terms protecting minority shareholders.

5. Specify terms of payment and nature of consideration for stock to be issued to each principal.

6. Describe post-incorporation position of each principal:

a. Specify employment or title.

b. Specify duties.

c. Set forth authority of each.

7. Set forth terms relating to officers of proposed corporation:

a. Detail salaries and fringe benefits to be paid.

b. State period of employment of each.

c. Specify duties, powers, and limitations.

8. Include terms governing following:

a. Deadlock.

b. Dissent.

c. Dissolution.

d. Buy-sell agreement, including basis for valuation of shares.

9. Specify whether cause of action for breach of agreement to incorporate is vested in either:

a. Other parties to agreement;

b. Corporation, when formed by remaining principals; or

c. Both.

10. Include special agreements to protect or provide for contributions by principals of following:

a. Trade secrets.

b. Secret processes.

c. Goodwill.

d. Going business.

11. Choose provisions designed to compensate promoters for preincorporation services:

a. Acquisition by promoters from corporation of voting shares, either for value, generally nominal (bonus or discount shares), or in sufficient amount to permit retention of control, and prior to public sale.

b. Issuance to promoters of stock options or warrants for nominal cash consideration.

c. Sale of property by promoter to corporation, avoiding secret profit problems through full disclosure, for cash or shares.

d. Employment of promoter by corporation as salaried employee pursuant to contract.

e. Commissions on sale of subscriptions to be paid on issuance of shares.

12. Consider drafting shareholders' agreement separate from preincorporation agreement.

NOTE:

A separate shareholders' agreement may be useful because it contains terms designed to survive the incorporation process.

13. Include provision under which principals who will be shareholders agree, if corporation is intended to qualify as small business, to consent to election of Subchapter S election after corporation is formed.

§ 2.141 Preincorporation Contracts With Third Parties

1. Specify liability of parties under following circumstances:

a. Corporation is not organized.

b. Corporation is organized but does not adopt contract.

c. Corporation is organized, adopts contract, but later defaults either willfully, because of inability to perform, or because of insolvency.

2. Use devices designed to protect incorporator or promoter:

NOTE:
For further protection, the incorporators or promoters would be well advised to enter into an agreement with the corporation after its formation under which it agrees to indemnify them for, and hold them harmless against, any liability incurred as a result of any preincorporation transaction on its behalf [see § 2.240 (form for indemnity agreement)].

a. Disclose fact that contract is made by promoter for and on behalf of proposed corporation.

b. Specify that parties intend proposed corporation to be real party in interest.

c. Describe status of corporation at time contract is entered.

d. Draft "contract" or "proposal" as continuing irrevocable offer by third party to proposed corporation to become binding on acceptance by corporation when formed.

e. Have incorporator or promoter secure binding option from third party for stated consideration with provision permitting assignment to corporation when formed.

f. Limit obligation of incorporator or promoter under contract by providing that incorporator (and others) will form corporation, that they will cause it to accept contract, and that their liability will be discharged on performance of these obligations.

3. Set forth provisions designed to protect third party, such as:

a. Expressly provide that liability of other party (promoter or incorporator) will be discharged only by complete performance by corporation.

b. Provide that other party will not be discharged from personal liability when corporation accepts contract.

c. Provide that other party will be secondarily liable as guarantor when corporation accepts contract.

§ 2.200 Preincorporation Checklist

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a checklist of information to be gathered for use in the incorporation process. The information gathered by using this form can be used to prepare preincorporation agreements, reserve the corporate name, draft the articles of incorporation, draft the bylaws, prepare minutes of the first board meeting, and issue stock. Use of a checklist is a handy method to ensure that no important information or procedure is overlooked. In addition to the information elicited by this form, the attorney may wish to use the lists presented in § 2.100 as an additional source of useful information.

The attorney may also use this form to confirm that the information relating to incorporation contained in the form is correct. This can be done by converting the checklist into letter format, and mailing it to the client for his or her approval before the attorney uses the information in the corporate formation process.

B. Subscription Agreements

2-2 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 2.210

AUTHOR: Marilyn E. Minger, Practice Consultant

§ 2.210 Preincorporation Subscription Agreement With No Public Offering

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a preincorporation subscription agreement for use among founders of a corporation and other investors when the offering is exempt from qualification and registration and that all offerees and purchasers are residents of California. It can be adapted (1) for use after the corporation has been formed to be an agreement between the corporation and a single subscriber, (2) for use by founders or purchasers alone or (3) for use in a public offering. Checklists of procedures relevant to preincorporation subscription agreements are set forth in § 2.133[1], [2].

PRACTICE TIP:

While the uninitiated may be able to wend their way through the thicket of rules, regulations, advisories and case law governing a public offering, they should be aware that it is a very complex area with potential serious civil and criminal penalties awaiting their stumbles. Before attempting to advise a client in undertaking a public offering, the attorney should either become something of an expert in the field or consult one. Commentary by Marilyn E. Minger.

[b] Contents of Subscription Agreements

Subscription agreements should contain express promises to buy a stated amount of shares at a stated price per share and to pay that price on stated terms. When it is intended that the offering will be exempt from qualification and registration, the agreement should also contain representations of the purchasers as to their financial status.

PRACTICE TIP:

Subscription agreements should be obtained even if there is a small number of shareholders and they are all well acquainted with each other, and may not think a formal agreement is necessary. It is also good practice to include, as exhibits, all the proposed incorporation documents with a binding reference to these noted in the agreement. Commentary by Marilyn E. Minger.

[c] Nature of Subscription Agreements and Obligations of Subscribers

A stock subscription is an offer by the purchaser to take unissued shares of stock of a corporation. The agreement may be made either before or after incorporation. A preincorporation subscription agreement becomes binding when the corporation accepts it [see § 2.32[3]]. Thus, immediately after formation, the board of directors of the new corporation should specifically accept the agreements.

PRACTICE TIP:

An existing corporation may accept subscription agreements immediately upon receipt so the purchaser does not have an extended period of time to reconsider the offer. Consequently, an alternate to preincorporation subscription agreements is to form the corporation (by filing its articles of incorporation and paying the required franchise tax) before soliciting any subscriptions. Commentary by Marilyn E. Minger.

Execution of a subscription agreement with the name of a fictitious person or with the name of any person who does not intend in good faith to comply with it is a crime [see Corp. Code § 2252].

[d] Compliance With California Nonpublic Offering Requirements

When a small number of owners is forming a corporation, a securities exemption is usually available for a nonpublic transaction involving both offer and sale of the corporation's shares [see [e]-[h], below]. There is also an exemption for a small offering only. Sections 9 and 10 of this form require the purchasers to warrant that they comply with the requirements that permit the offering and sale to be exempt. See section 6.200 of the Transaction Guide in Ch. 6, Securities Regulation Issues, for a checklist of exemptions. For further discussion, see Ch. 6, Securities Regulation Issues , pts. C, E.

[e] Limited Offering Exemption

Under the limited offering exemption [see Corp. Code § 25102(f)], the transaction can involve the sale of shares to no more than 35 persons [Corp. Code § 25102(f)(1)]. In computing the number of purchasers, "qualified purchasers" as defined in 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.102.13 are not counted as purchasers [see Corp. Code § 25102(f)(4)]. All purchasers [Corp. Code § 25102(f)(2), (3)]:

- Must either:
  - Have a preexisting personal or business relationship with the offeror or any of its partners, officers, directors or controlling persons; or
  - Be reasonably assumed to have the capacity to protect his, her or its own interests; and
- Must represent that he, she or it is purchasing the shares for his, her or its own account.

Although offers can be made to as many persons as would be consistent with the nonpublic nature of the exemption, all who subscribe to and ultimately purchase the shares must meet the investor qualifications.

[f] Small Offering Exemption

Under the small offering exemption, a sale of shares is exempt from qualification if [Corp. Code § 25102(h)]:

- Immediately after the transaction, there is only one class of stock beneficially owned by not more than 35 persons;
- The offer and sale was not advertised;
- The consideration received for the stock consists of only the following:
  - Cash or cancellation of debt upon the initial organization of the issuer;
  - Cash provided there is written approval of al the existing shareholders and the purchasers are existing shareholders; or
  - If there is only one shareholder after the sale, any legal consideration;
  - Assets, including cash, of an existing business transferred to the issuer upon its initial organization, and the persons receiving the stock (i) were owners of the existing business for not less than a year prior to transfer; and (ii) owned the existing business in the same proportion as the stock they will receive.
- No promotional consideration is paid; and
- Each purchaser represents that the purchaser is purchasing the shares for the purchaser's own account.

[g] Qualified Purchaser Offering Exemption

Under the qualified purchaser offering exemption, available to California corporations and foreign corporations subject to Corp. Code § 2115, offers and sales may be made to any number of "qualified persons" [see below] if [Corp. Code § 25102(n)]:

- Offers and sales are made only to qualified purchasers or purchasers that the issuer reasonably believes, after inquiry, are qualified purchasers;
- Each purchaser represents that the purchase is for the purchaser's own account;
- Each purchaser receives a written disclosure statement complying with federal Regulation D [see 17 C.F.R. § 230.501 et seq.] at least five business days before the securities are sold;
- A general announcement of the proposed offering is published by written document only and contains prescribed information;
- No telephone solicitation is made to any prospective purchaser until the corporation determines that the prospective purchaser is qualified; and
- The corporation files a notice of transaction:
  - At the time of publication of the general announcement of proposed offering or at the time of the initial offer, whichever is first; and

- Within 10 business days after the close or abandonment of the offering.

Generally, "qualified purchasers" are those who are sophisticated enough in business and investing to reasonably be assumed to be able to protect their interests, though specific qualifications are set forth in Corp. Code § 25102(n)(2). Purchasers may be natural persons, corporations, partnerships, or any other type of organization formed to purchase interests in the corporation [Corp. Code § 25102(n)(4)].

[h] Nonpublic Offers

This exemption permits nonpublic offers (but not sales) in the form of wholly executory contracts of sale as long as [Corp. Code § 25102(a)]:

- No part of the purchase price is paid or received and the securities are not issued until the sale is qualified unless the sale is otherwise exempt; and

- The contract contains an appropriate warning concerning the need to qualify the securities before they are delivered or any consideration is received.

There is no limit on the number of offerees, as long as the offer is nonpublic.

The stipulations required by Corp. Code § 25102(a) regarding ultimate qualification of the securities before sale are included as optional provisions in this form. They need be used only if there is no other securities exemption available.

[i] Exemption From Federal Securities Regulation

In addition to complying with California securities requirements, a corporation offering securities has to either register the offering under the federal Securities Act of 1933 [see 15 U.S.C. § 77a et seq.] or qualify for an exemption from registration. The most commonly used federal exemptions are the "intrastate exemption" [see 17 C.F.R. § 230.147 (SEC Rule 147)] and the three limited offering exemptions (SEC Rules 504, 505, and 506) set forth in SEC Regulation D [17 C.F.R. §§ 230.501-230.508]. These exemptions are discussed in Ch. 6A, Federal Securities Exemptions for California Nonpublic Corporations .

[j] Rule 144

Resale of securities obtained in a nonpublic offering may be restricted by the Securities Act of 1933. Rule 144 provides safe-harbor provisions concerning the resale of restricted securities [see 17 C.F.R. § 230.144].

[2] Form

Preincorporation Subscription Agreement With No Public Offering

SUBSCRIPTION AGREEMENT

THIS SUBSCRIPTION AGREEMENT ("Agreement") is made by and among_____,_____,[names of the founders of proposed corporation] (collectively the "Founders" and individually a "Founder") and the undersigned purchasers (collectively the "Purchasers" and individually a "Purchaser").

BACKGROUND

A. The Founders intend to form a corporation under the General Corporation Law of the State of California, to be known as_____[proposed name of corporation], or by any other name that may be mutually agreed to by the Founders (after its incorporation, the "Company"), for the purposes of engaging in the business of_____[primary purpose of corporation].

B. The Founders intend that the Company will be authorized to issue one class of shares of its capital stock consisting of_____[number] shares.

AGREEMENT

THEREFORE, in consideration of their mutual promises, the Founders and Purchasers hereby agree as follows:

1. Founder Agreement to Subscribe. Each Founder agrees to purchase, and each of them subscribes for, the number of shares of the Common Stock of the Company (the "Stock") set forth in this Agreement opposite his or her name for a purchase price of $_____ per share or an aggregate purchase price as set forth in this Agreement opposite his or her name (the "Purchase Price") within_____ days after the formation of the Company.

[or]

1. Founder Agreement to Subscribe. Each Founder agrees to purchase, and each of them subscribes for, the number of shares of the Common Stock of the Company (the "Stock") set forth in this Agreement opposite his or her name in exchange for the transfer by that Founder to the Company of all that Founder's right, title and interest in and to that certain_____[describe property] (the "Property") as more fully described in the exhibit noted opposite Founder name below.

[Continue with the following:]

2. Purchaser Agreement to Subscribe. Each Purchaser agrees to purchase, and each of them subscribes for, the number of shares of the Common Stock of the Company (the "Stock") set forth in this Agreement opposite his or her name for a purchase price of $_____ per share or an aggregate purchase price as set forth in this Agreement opposite his or her name (the "Purchase Price") within_____ days after the formation of the Company.

3. Company Incorporation. The Founders will use their best efforts to effect the incorporation of the Company in a timely manner.

4. Time Condition. This Agreement is expressly made subject to the following condition: the Company will be incorporated within_____[number] days from the_____[earliest or latest] date this agreement is executed by any party.

5. Payment. Each Founder and Purchaser must deliver to the Company the Purchase Price [or the Property] within_____ days after notice is given by the Company pursuant to Section 11 of this Agreement that the Company has been incorporated.

6. Stock Certificate. The Company will deliver a certificate representing the Stock to each Purchaser and Founder as soon as is practicable after the Company is incorporated.

7. Independent Obligations of Purchasers. The obligations of each Purchaser are independent obligations, and the failure of any Purchaser to perform that Purchaser's obligations under this Agreement will not excuse any other Purchaser or Founder from performing his or her obligations under this Agreement.

8. Obligations of Founders. The obligations of each Founder are independent obligations, except with respect to the obligations of Founders set forth in Section 3, and the failure of any Founder to perform that Founder's obligations under this Agreement will not excuse any other Founder or Purchaser from performing his or her obligations under this Agreement. The obligations of Founders set forth in Section 3 of this Agreement are joint and several obligations of Founders.

9. Representations of Founders and Purchasers. Because of the exemptions from the registration requirements of the federal Securities Act of 1933 (the "Act") and from the qualification requirements of the California Corporate Securities Law of 1968 (the "Law") relied upon by the Company in making the sale of the Stock to Founders and Purchasers, each Founder and Purchaser hereby warrants on his or her behalf that he or she:

(a) Is purchasing the Stock for investment for the Founder's or Purchaser's own account only and not with a view to, or for resale in connection with, any "distribution" thereof within the meaning of the Act or the Law.

(b) Does not have any contract, undertaking, agreement or arrangement with any person to sell, transfer or grant a participation in the Stock to that person or to any third person.

(c) Understands that the Stock has not been registered under the Act or qualified under the Law by reason of specific exemptions therefrom, which exemptions may depend upon, among other things, the bona fide nature of the Founder's investment intent as expressed herein.

(d) Further understands that the Stock must be held indefinitely unless it is subsequently registered under the Act and qualified under the Law or an exemption from registration and qualification is available.

(e) Is aware of Rule 144 promulgated under the Act which permits limited public resale of stock acquired in a non-public offering, subject to the satisfaction of certain conditions, including, among other things, the passage of not less than two years after the holder has purchased and completed payment for the stock to be sold.

(f) Further understands that in the event the requirements of Rule 144 are not met, registration under the Act, compliance with Regulation A or some other registration exemption will be required for any disposition of the Stock.

(g) Has his or her principal residence in the State of California; has owned or leased, and occupied, a residence in the State of California for at least the past six months; and does not currently intend to move to another state or otherwise shift domicile and residence from the State of California.

(h) Is not buying the Stock with the intent to sell or distribute the same to any person who is not a resident of the State of California.

(i) Agrees that the Company may refuse to effectuate any purported transfer of the Stock to a nonresident of the State of California if counsel for the Company should deem such a refusal necessary in order to maintain an exemption from the registration requirements of the Act.

(j) Acknowledges (i) that this Agreement was prepared with his or her knowledge and consent by counsel for the Company; (ii) that he or she was advised by the Company to consider seeking independent counsel to review this Agreement on his or her behalf; (iii) that he or she had adequate time to seek the advice of independent counsel and to review this Agreement; (iv) that he or she either obtained the advice of independent counsel or knowingly and intentionally chose not to seek such advice; (v) that he or she fully understands this Agreement and all of its terms and provisions, including, but not limited to, those provisions which significantly restrict his or her ability to sell, transfer or otherwise dispose of the Stock; and (vi) the restrictions imposed upon his or her stock pursuant to this Agreement are reasonable.

10. Additional Representations of Purchasers. Because of the exemptions from the registration requirements of the Act and from the qualification requirements of the Law relied upon by the Company in making the sale of the Stock to Purchasers, each Purchaser hereby additionally warrants on his or her behalf that said Purchaser:

(a) Is aware that the Stock is highly speculative and that there can be no assurance as to what return, if any, there may be.

(b) Is aware of the Company's business affairs and financial condition; has acquired sufficient information about the Company to reach an informed and knowledgeable decision to acquire the Stock; and has received an opportunity to ask questions relating to the Company's business, legal and financial affairs and to obtain all additional information which Purchaser or his or her Purchaser representative or professional adviser requested.

(c) Has either (i) a preexisting business or personal relationship with the Company or its directors or officers, or (ii) by reason of Purchaser's business or financial experience or the business and financial experience of Purchaser's professional advisor, the capacity to protect Purchaser's own interest in connection with the transaction contemplated by this Agreement.

(d) Is (i) experienced in investing in companies recently organized and in the development stage, (ii) able to fend for itself, himself or herself in connection with this investment, and (iii) able to bear the economic risk of this investment.

(e) Has completely and truthfully completed the Investor Questionnaire submitted by the Purchaser to the Company and that all information provided by the Purchaser to the Company on that Questionnaire is true and correct.

11. Acceptance By the Company. This Agreement shall not become effective until the Company's acceptance, which shall only be given after the Company is incorporated and has reviewed the Investor Questionnaire completed and submitted by each Purchaser in accordance with the provisions of Section 10(e) of this Agreement and the Company's determination that the sale of the Stock is exempt from the registration provisions of the Act and qualified or registered under, or exempt from qualification or registration provisions of, the Law.

12. Securities Legends. The certificate evidencing the Stock will be imprinted with legends as follows:

"THE SECURITIES REPRESENTED BY THIS CERTIFICATE HAVE BEEN ACQUIRED FOR THE PURCHASER'S OWN ACCOUNT AND NOT WITH A VIEW TO, OR FOR RESALE IN CONNECTION WITH, ANY DISTRIBUTION THEREOF. NO SALE OR OTHER DISPOSITION OF SUCH SECURITIES MAY BE EFFECTED WITHOUT THE (1) REGISTRATION OF SUCH SALE OR DISPOSITION UNDER THE SECURITIES ACT OF 1933, AS AMENDED, AND (2) QUALIFICATION OF SUCH SALE OR DISPOSITION UNDER THE CALIFORNIA CORPORATE SECURITIES LAW OF 1968, AS AMENDED, OR AN OPINION OF COUNSEL IN FORM AND SUBSTANCE SATISFACTORY TO THE COMPANY THAT SUCH REGISTRATION AND QUALIFICATION ARE NOT REQUIRED."

"THE SALE OF THE SECURITIES REPRESENTED BY THIS CERTIFICATE WAS NOT REGISTERED UNDER THE SECURITIES ACT OF 1933 IN RELIANCE, IN PART, UPON AN EXEMPTION PROVIDED BY SECTION

3(a)(11) THEREOF. RESALES OF THESE SECURITIES MAY BE MADE ONLY TO CALIFORNIA RESIDENTS FOR AN INDEFINITE LENGTH OF TIME."

THE TRANSFER OF THESE SECURITIES, OR ANY PORTION THEREOF OR INTEREST THEREIN, IS RESTRICTED BY AN AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE PURCHASER AND THE COMPANY. A COPY OF SUCH AGREEMENT MAY BE INSPECTED AT THE PRINCIPAL OFFICE OF THE CORPORATION AND ALL PROVISIONS OF SUCH AGREEMENT ARE INCORPORATED BY REFERENCE IN THIS CERTIFICATE.

13. Notice. All notices, requests, demands and other communications relating to this Agreement shall be in writing and shall be deemed to have been duly given on the date of service if served personally or by facsimile on the party to whom notice is to be given, or five days after mailing if mailed to a party to whom notice is to be given, by first class mail, postage prepaid, and addressed as set forth below.

14. Entire Agreement. This instrument contains the entire agreement of the Purchasers and Founders concerning the Stock and any promises, representations, inducements, or conditions not expressly set forth in this agreement are of no force or effect.

15. Counterparts. This agreement may be executed in one or more counterparts, which will be construed together as forming one agreement.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the undersigned have executed this Agreement as of the day and year of signing.

§ 2.211 Subscription Agreement Provisions for Impound Condition

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form consists of provisions that should be used in a subscription agreement in an offering that is subject to an impound condition. An impound condition normally will be imposed if the securities are not firmly underwritten and if the Commissioner determines that a specific minimum amount of funds is necessary to finance the proposed undertaking as described in the application and that it is inadvisable for the issuer to expend any of the proceeds from the sale of the securities before receiving that minimum amount [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.141.20].

[b] Subscription Agreement Required

The Commissioner of Corporations will require that a subscription agreement be delivered to each subscriber whenever the Commissioner imposes an impound requirement in connection with the sale of securities [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.141.22(a)].

[c] Contents of Agreement

When an impound condition is imposed the form of the subscription agreement must be approved by the Commissioner, and must contain certain specified information, including [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.141.22]:

- The complete names and addresses of the issuer and the subscriber;
- The complete name of the agent of the issuer or broker receiving the payments;
- The number of securities purchased and the total purchase price;

- The amount of the payment received;
- The complete name and address of the depositary with whom the payment will be placed; and
- The date of the payment.

[d] Delivery of Copies

Subscription agreements must be consecutively numbered and prepared in quadruplicate. The original must be given to the subscriber, the first copy to the depositary together with the payment received, the second copy to the issuer, and the third to the broker, if any. The Commissioner may approve other modifications to the form, such as requiring the subscription agreements to be press-numbered [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.141.22(a)].

§ 2.212 Agreement Between Incorporators and Promoter for Solicitation of Subscriptions

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an agreement between incorporators and a promoter who will be soliciting subscription agreements on behalf of the corporation to be formed. If the corporation has been formed, this agreement may be modified to reflect the fact that it, and not the incorporators, is the party promising to issue shares or pay money on the successful completion of the solicitation. If the subscriptions will not be offered pursuant to the nonpublic offering exemption [see Corp. Code § 25102(a); see also § 2.210[1]], and are not otherwise exempt, this form contains an optional provision (see Paragraph 4) requiring the incorporators to apply for a permit from the Corporations Commissioner that will qualify the subscriptions for sale in California.

This form contemplates the use of a person compensated for his or her solicitation of subscriptions on behalf of the issuer [see Corp. Code § 25003]. If the incorporators, in their capacity as directors or officers, will seek to obtain subscriptions to the corporation's shares without compensation, this agreement will be unnecessary.

Paid promoters may be used to solicit subscriptions to shares of a corporation regardless of the size of the corporation or its ultimate number of shareholders. While it is true that the small offering exemption for 35 or fewer shareholders is not available if selling expenses are incurred in the sale of shares [see Corp. Code § 25102(h)], the limited offering exemption for corporations having 35 or fewer shareholders requires only that no advertisements be published and does not prohibit the use of a promoter [see Corp. Code § 25102(f)]. In addition, the qualified purchaser offering exemption [see Corp. Code § 25102(n)] does not prohibit the use of promoters as long as the mandatory disclosure requirements are fulfilled [see Corp. Code § 25102(n)(5)-(7)]. Promoters can also be used to solicit subscriptions under the exemption for nonpublic offers (but not sales) of securities [see Corp. Code § 25102(a); see also § 2.210[1]].

It is important to know just how to characterize the person who will be soliciting subscriptions for the corporation's shares because, under certain circumstances, the corporation will be responsible for bonding that person and supervising his or her activities. An "agent" is defined in the Corporate Securities Law as any individual, other than a broker-dealer, who represents a broker-dealer, or who for compensation represents an issuer, in effecting or attempting to effect purchases or sales of securities in California. The definition excludes individuals who only represent an issuer in transactions exempted by Corp. Code § 25102 (which includes, among other issuer exemptions, those for nonpublic offerings that are discussed above). Furthermore, an officer or director of the issuer, and any person occupying a similar status or performing similar functions, is an agent only if he or she receives compensation specifically related to purchases and sales of securities [Corp. Code § 25003]. It follows that a person who is uncompensated cannot be a statutory agent. Likewise, a person offering or selling securities pursuant to an issuer exemption (for example, the limited offering exemption) cannot be an agent even if he or she is compensated. Thus, only persons who, for compensation, will be soliciting agreements to purchase shares that must be qualified by the Commissioner of Corporations will be "agents." The decision to utilize an agent may be affected by the fact that the issuer is responsible for furnishing complete information concerning that person and furnishing a bond or undertaking. This information and this bond or undertaking must accompany the issuer's application to qualify its securities [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 260.112, 260.113].

[c] Nature of Compensation

Because the binding effect on the corporation of an agreement between the incorporators and a promoter may be open to question [see § 2.32[3]], it is in the promoter's interest that the incorporators can be required to pay cash in lieu of shares. This agreement gives both parties the option of payment in cash in lieu of shares.

The incorporators may have good reason to choose to compensate the promoter solely in cash and enter a separate agreement giving him or her the option of purchasing shares for the same price all other subscribers will pay. If the corporation does ratify the agreement and issue shares to the agent in compensation for his or her services, these shares will be "promotional shares," which, under the Commissioner of Corporation's rules, will likely be subject to waivers of assets and dividends [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 260.140.30 (defining promotion shares), 260.140.32 (rights of promotional shares)]. The effect of these waivers may be to create, for Subchapter S election purposes, a separate class of stock, rendering the corporation ineligible for the election [see Paige v. United States (9th Cir. 1978) 580 F.2d 960, 963] .

[d] Status of Agreement Under Securities Law

An agreement between an issuer and a promoter who will solicit sales of the issuer's securities comes under the statutory exemption for transactions with "underwriters" [see Corp. Code § 25022 (definition)] and is therefore exempt from qualification under the Corporate Securities Law [Corp. Code § 25102(d)]. The exemption refers only to "issuers" and does not mention incorporators or preincorporation agreements. However, once the corporation comes into existence and adopts the agreement, the exemption will apply. Before incorporation, the status of this agreement is not certain with respect to the Corporate Securities Law. It is unlikely, however, that the agreement involves the offer or sale of a "security," the only security in existence at the time being a preincorporation subscription.

[e] Time for Performance

This form contains two provisions that will have a direct bearing on the ability of the promoter to perform the contract. Paragraph 1 specifies the length of time that the promoter has to secure the requisite number of subscriptions. Paragraph 4, the optional provision requiring the incorporators to qualify the subscription agreements under the Corporate Securities Law, requires the incorporators to secure a permit within a definite time. Consequently, the time allowed for the promoter to perform should be added on to the number of days it is anticipated that it will take to obtain a permit from the Department of Corporations.

[2] Form

Agreement Between Incorporators and Promoter for Solicitation of Subscriptions

AGREEMENT TO SOLICIT SUBSCRIPTIONS

This Agreement is made on_____[date], between_____[name] and_____[name] ("Incorporators"), and_____[name] ("Promoter").

BACKGROUND

A. Incorporators propose to form a corporation under the General Corporation Law of the State of California to be known as_____[proposed name of corporation], or by any other name that may be selected by them, for the purpose of engaging in the business of_____[set forth specific business in which corporation is primarily to engage], and;

B. It is proposed that the proposed corporation will secure a permit from the Commissioner of Corporations for the initial issuance by it of $_____ worth of its capital stock divided into_____[number] shares of the same class,

AGREEMENT

THEREFORE, the undersigned hereby agree as follows:

1. Agreement to Solicit. Promoter will secure and deliver to Incorporators within_____[number] days from the date of this agreement, bona fide written subscriptions from solvent persons for not less than_____[number] shares of the stock described in this agreement at a price of not less than $_____ per share, payable at the direction of the board of directors of the proposed corporation after its formation.

2. Compensation. As consideration for the services of Promoter in securing the subscriptions described in Paragraph 1 of this agreement, Incorporators will cause the corporation to issue to Promoter as fully paid, but subject to any conditions imposed by the Commissioner of Corporations,_____[number] of common shares at a price per share of $_____; or in lieu of the offer of shares, at the option of either party, Incorporators will pay Promoter the sum of $_____.

3. Default Clause. If Promoter fails to obtain the subscriptions within the time prescribed in Paragraph 1 of this agreement, this agreement will be null and void and no consideration of any kind will be due from Incorporators to Promoter.

[When subscriptions must be qualified by Department of Corporations, add:]

4. Necessary Permits. The Incorporators agree to apply for and to obtain a permit qualifying the offer and sale of the subscription agreements and the issuance of the underlying shares pursuant to the provisions of the California Corporate Securities Law. The permit must be obtained on or before_____[date], and if not obtained on or before that date, this agreement is null and void.

5. Entire Agreement. This instrument contains the entire agreement of the parties concerning the subscriptions and stock described in the agreement, and any promises, representations, inducements, or conditions not expressly set forth in this agreement are of no force or effect.

6. Attorneys' Fees. If any_____[legal action or specify more limited provision, e.g., legal action based in contract law] is commenced between the parties concerning this agreement, or the rights and duties of either in connection with the agreement, the party prevailing in that action will be entitled to a reasonable sum for attorneys' fees in addition to any other relief that may be granted. The amount of this sum will be fixed by the court either as part of the costs of litigation or in a separate action brought for that purpose.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the undersigned have executed this Agreement as of the day and year first above written.

§ 2.213 Purchaser Questionnaire

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form should be used when it is intended that the proposed corporation will issue shares pursuant to exemption from qualification of the California securities laws and registration of the federal securities laws.

Often the linchpin of exemptions is the financial qualifications of the purchasers and the relationship of the purchasers to the principals of the corporation. This form provides a basis, in addition to the representations purchasers must make in subscription agreements, for the corporation to ascertain the qualifications of the investor.

The form provided here is designed for an individual purchaser. The form can be adapted to obtain additional information about trusts, partnerships or other corporations that might purchase the proposed corporation's shares. In adapting the form for those uses, detailed information should be obtained about the entity, its principals, its financial status, and its investment history.

Purchaser Questionnaire

INDIVIDUAL PURCHASER QUESTIONNAIRE

I,_____[name of proposed investor], may be interested in purchasing securities of_____[proposed name of corporation], a proposed corporation (the "Company"), as an investment. I understand that the Company will determine whether the sale of those securities to me must be qualified under the California Corporate Securities Law of 1968, as amended (the "Law"), or registered under the federal Securities Act of 1933, as amended (the "Act"), based on my representations set forth in this Questionnaire. Prior to answering this questionnaire, I have consulted with my personal advisors as I have deemed necessary.

I understand that all information I provide in this Questionnaire will be kept confidential; however, by signing this Questionnaire, I agree that the Company or any of its incorporators, directors, officers or attorneys may present this Questionnaire to such parties as any of them deem appropriate if called upon to establish the availability of an exemption from the qualification or registration provisions of the Law and the Act.

Questions or inquiries relating to income or financial status are designed to assist the Company in determining whether an investor meets certain suitability standards prescribed by the Law and the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder. These questions and inquiries are not an attempt by the Company to solicit unnecessary personal information. Questions relating to personal income or net worth are taken from guidelines promulgated by the Securities and Exchange Commission. Please answer the questions truthfully; a "no" answer does not necessarily disqualify you as an investor.

In reference to the foregoing, I represent and warrant to the Company that the following information concerning me is correct:

§ 2.220 Agreement Between Incorporators and Organizer-Manager

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an agreement between the persons who will act as the incorporators of a corporation and an "organizer-manager," that is, the person who will prepare plans for the operation of the business and, after incorporation, manage the business. It is for use when there are persons who desire to invest in (and incorporate) a new business in which they have little or no experience with a person who is experienced in the management of such a business. The agreement requires the organizer-manager not only to discover and assemble the facts necessary to determine whether a corporation should be formed, but to guide the new corporation during its initial period of development. The organizer-manager, whether he or she is the originator of the idea for the corporation or truly an outsider hired to perform these functions, generally will not be interested in associating with the venture unless he or she is given some incentive, usually stock in the proposed corporation, that will allow participation in the growth of the corporation. The organizer-manager also may want assurance that he or she will be retained by the corporation once incorporation and organization of the business have been accomplished.

The corporation contemplated by this agreement will not have been formed at the time the organizer-manager's services must begin, and it is not an absolute certainty at the time the agreement is executed that the corporation will ever be formed. Thus, the corporation itself will be unable to enter into a contract with the organizer-manager to compensate him or her for the contemplated services or to engage him or her as its manager after it is formed. At the time the services are to begin, the only existing legal entities with which that person may contract for compensation are the incorporators. When, as in this form, the persons who sign the agreement are to become, and do become, the only stockholders in the proposed corporation (that is, when it can be shown that there is a unity of interest and ownership between the shareholders and the corporation), the contract may be enforced against the corporation [Chater v. San Francisco Sugar Refining Co. (1861) 19 Cal. 219, 245-247 ; Judelson v. American Metal Bearing Co. (1948) 89 Cal. App. 2d 256, 262, 200 P.2d 836] . In this situation, the interests of third parties are not affected and the corporation is treated as the mere agency of the incorporators created for the sake of convenience in carrying out the agreement made before the corporation was formed [Hillman v. Hillman Land Co. (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 174, 184, 183 P.2d 730] . This form provides that the incorporators are jointly and severally liable to pay the organizer-manager a stipulated amount for the services performed in case the corporation is not formed [see [2], P 6, below].

Almost invariably, the type of corporation contemplated by the agreement in this form will be eligible to use the limited offering exemption from qualification under the Corporate Securities Law [see Corp. Code § 25102(f); see also Ch. 6B, California Limited Offering Exemptions]. Therefore, the Corporations Commissioner's restrictions and conditions on the issuance of promotional shares will not apply to the issuance of shares to the organizer-manager. If, for some reason, the exemption is not available and the shares of the corporation can only be issued pursuant to a permit granted by the Commissioner, the following discussion of the Commissioner's rules regarding promotional shares will apply.

When shares issued for preincorporation services must be qualified by the Commissioner of Corporations, they come within the Commissioner's definition of "promotional securities" [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.30]. The rules of the Commissioner contain comprehensive provisions governing the amount and manner in which promotional securities may be issued under the Commissioner's fair, just, and equitable standard [see, e.g., 10 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 260.140.30, 260.140.33, 260.141, 260.141.3].

Normally, only "unseasoned corporations" are permitted to issue promotional shares [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.31]. A "seasoned corporation" ordinarily is an issuer that has been conducting bona fide business operations, either directly or through a predecessor, for more than two years and has operated at a profit during at least one of the last three fiscal years [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.001(g)].

An unseasoned corporation may not issue an unreasonable number of promotional shares. A number that does not exceed 25 percent of all of the common shares issued and proposed to be issued is presumptively reasonable. However, additional promotional shares may be approved, depending on the nature of the services rendered, the nature and circumstances of the business enterprise being promoted, and the identity of the investors [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.31]. Promotional shares must be equity shares without preference to dividends, assets, or voting rights, and can have no greater rights than nonpromotional shares [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.32].

Promotional shares must be issued subject to a condition that the holders waive all rights to receive cash or property dividends and to participate in any distribution of assets on dissolution [10 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 260.140.32, 260.141]. They must bear a promotional legend condition set forth on the certificate [10 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 260.140.32, 260.141.1]. When the Commissioner determines that the legend condition will not provide sufficient protection from a possible transfer of the promotional shares to the public, the Commissioner is authorized to require an escrow condition on those shares [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.141.3]. For a discussion of the issuance of promotional securities and its effect on eligibility for Subchapter S status, see § 2.212[1][c].

ORGANIZATION AND MANAGEMENT CONTRACT

This agreement is made on_____[date], between_____[name] and_____[name] ("Incorporators"), and_____[name] ("Manager").

BACKGROUND

A. Incorporators desire to form a corporation ("the corporation") under the General Corporation Law of the State of California for the purpose of engaging in the general business of_____[set forth specific type of business in which corporation is primarily to engage, e.g., furniture manufacturing] and;

B. WHEREAS, Manager has engaged in the operation, management, and supervision of_____[specify, e.g., furniture manufacturing] businesses in California for many years and represents that_____[he or she] is capable of establishing and operating the business proposed to be conducted by the corporation.

AGREEMENT

NOW, THEREFORE, it is agreed as follows:

1. Duties of Manager. Manager will prepare and submit to Incorporators on or before_____[date], complete plans for the establishment of a_____[e.g., furniture manufacturing] business in the City of_____, California, including:

(a) A proposed lease of a building or other facilities suitable for occupancy of the business;

(b) A detailed statement of the items of furniture and equipment necessary for the establishment of the business and the required costs;

(c) A detailed estimate of the employees necessary for the successful establishment and conduct of the business and the required costs;

(d) A detailed statement of the plans for marketing products of the business, the required costs, and the anticipated revenue of the business;

(e) A proposed budget for the operation of the business for a period of one year following its establishment; and

(f) A detailed statement of all other matters necessary or desirable in the opinion of Manager for the establishment and operation of the business.

2. Formation of Corporation. If that plan, substantially as submitted to the Incorporators by Manager, is acceptable to the Incorporators, the Incorporators will forthwith, at their own cost and expense, cause to be formed under the General Corporation Law of the State of California, a corporation having the following attributes:

(a) The name of the corporation will be

_____ [name], or, if that name is unavailable, any other name that may be selected by the Incorporators.

(b) The specific business in which the corporation is primarily to engage will be stated in its articles of incorporation as _____ [e.g., the manufacture of furniture].

(c) The corporation will be authorized by its articles of incorporation to issue

_____ [e.g., one class of shares of stock consisting of 10,000 shares].

(d) The number of directors of the corporation, as stated in its articles of incorporation, will be _____ [e.g., three].

(e) The bylaws of the corporation will provide for the appointment of a general manager who, under the direction of the board of directors, will have general supervision of the business operations of the corporation.

3. Issuance of Shares. The Incorporators, after formation of the corporation, will cause the corporation to issue [add if shares must be issued under a permit from the Commissioner of Corporations:, pursuant to any conditions imposed by the Commissioner of Corporations of the State of California,]_____[number] shares of its capital stock to the following persons for the following consideration:

_____ [Number] shares [of its common stock] to

_____ [

_____ (name of unmarried incorporator) or

_____ and

_____ (names of incorporator and incorporator's spouse), as

(c)

_____ [Number] shares [of its common stock] to the _____ [Manager or Manager and

_____ (his or her) spouse, as

_____ (joint tenants or tenants in common),] as full compensation for the services of the Manager in preparing the plans and promoting the formation of the corporation.

4. Contract of Employment. After formation of the corporation, the Incorporators will cause the corporation to enter a contract of employment with the Manager employing Manager as general manager of the corporation for a period of five years from and after the date of the corporation's incorporation at a salary of $_____ per year. That contract of employment_____[will be in the form and contain the provisions set forth in the instrument attached to this agreement and marked as Exhibit A or will contain the following provisions:_____ (list provisions)].

5. Reimbursement of Promotional Expenses. After formation of the corporation, the Incorporators will cause the corporation to reimburse Manager for all expenditures made by Manager in preparing the plans described in this agreement, not exceeding $_____.

6. Failure to Accept Plan. If the plans described in this agreement, substantially as submitted to the Incorporators by the Manager, are not acceptable to the Incorporators, or if the Incorporators, for any reason, are unable to perform the acts required of them by this agreement, the Incorporators will reimburse the Manager for all expenditures made by Manager not exceeding $_____ in preparing the plans described in this agreement, and the Incorporators will pay to the Manager, and the Manager agrees to accept, the sum of $_____ as full compensation for all services rendered in preparing those plans and organizing the corporation. The obligations of the Incorporators to make the payments provided for in this Paragraph 6 are joint and several.

7. Entire Agreement. This instrument contains the entire agreement between the parties to this agreement concerning the services to be rendered by the Manager to the Incorporators. Any agreement or representation not expressly set forth in this instrument is null and void.

8. Modifications. This agreement may be modified only by an agreement in writing signed by the party against whom the modification is sought to be enforced.

9. Attorneys' Fees. If any_____[legal action or specify more limited provision, e.g., legal action based in contract law] is commenced between the parties concerning the provisions of this agreement or the performance of this agreement, the party prevailing in that action will be entitled to a reasonable sum for attorneys' fees in addition to any other relief that may be granted. The amount of that sum will be determined by the court in that litigation or in a separate action brought for that purpose.

10. Notices. Any notices or other communications permitted under this agreement or by law will be deemed properly served when deposited in the United States mail, first class postage prepaid, addressed to the Incorporators at_____[address], or to the Manager at_____[address].

11. Incurring Expenses. The Manager will have no authority in performing this agreement to incur any debts or obligations in the name of or on the credit of the Incorporators.

12. Assignment. This agreement is for the personal services of the Manager and may not be assigned by_____[him or her], nor may the duties to be performed by Manager under this agreement be delegated by Manager to any other person or entity.

§ 2.230 Preincorporation Agreement to Incorporate

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an agreement among the principals or incorporators to form a corporation. When the future shareholders of a proposed corporation wish to establish a corporation, the use of this type of an agreement is appropriate to ensure that the proposed corporation will have the desired organizational features. By reducing the agreement to writing, the organizers of the corporation can effectively reduce or prevent disputes about the creation of the corporation. The preincorporation agreement can also be used to memorialize the agreement of the parties to protect or provide for investments of time, money, or materials, or to protect or provide for the contribution of trade secrets or processes by one or more of the principals.

[b] Contents of Agreement

At a minimum, a preincorporation agreement to incorporate should include all of the following:

- The purpose for which the corporation is to be formed, and any limitations on its purpose or powers.
- The proposed name of the corporation.
- The location of the principal executive office.
- The management structure and corporate organization.
- The financing and stock structure, including limitations on who made hold shares and protection of minority interests.

- Any commitments of arrangements to be made before incorporation.

Additional considerations and provisions are suggested in § 2.140. For other additional provisions, see Ballantine & Sterling, CALIFORNIA CORPORATION LAWS, Ch. 3, Formation of Corporations (Matthew Bender).

Other types of agreements for the organization of a corporation are discussed and illustrated in Rabkin & Johnson, CURRENT LEGAL FORMS, Ch. 15, Shareholders' Agreements (Matthew Bender). These include an agreement for the conversion of a sole proprietorship to corporate form, agreements to form a corporation with varying kinds of contributions by the principals, agreements among partners for incorporation, and an agreement to form an S corporation.

Preincorporation Agreement to Incorporate

PREINCORPORATION AGREEMENT

This agreement is made on_____[date], by and between the undersigned parties.

1. Agreement to Incorporate. In consideration of the mutual promises contained in this agreement, the undersigned parties agree to organize a corporation to be known as_____[proposed name of corporation] under the laws of the State of California within_____[number] days after this agreement, for the purpose of engaging in the business of_____[primary purpose of corporation].

2. Duration. The period of the corporation's duration will be perpetual.

3. Corporate Offices. The principal executive office of the corporation will be at_____[address]. The corporation will also do business at_____[address].

4. Directors of Corporation. The first directors of the corporation will be:

Name	Address
_____	_____
_____	_____
_____	_____

5. Officers of Corporation. The first officers of the corporation will be:

President:_____ [name]
Vice-President:_____ [name]
Secretary:_____ [name]
Treasurer:_____ [name]

6. Authorized Capital of Corporation. The authorized capital of the corporation as stated in its articles of incorporation will be $_____ divided into_____[number] shares of the same class [add if applicable: having a par value of $_____ each].

7. Paid-In Capital. The corporation will not commence business until it has received [add if applicable: for the issuance of its shares] consideration in the total amount of at least $_____.

8. Incorporation and Issuance of Securities. The parties to this agreement agree to cause the corporation to issue the shares of the corporation's stock to the parties as follows:

Name	Number of Shares	Description of Consideration
_____	_____	_____

9. Costs of Incorporating. All costs and expenses, including attorneys' fees, required for the formation and organization of the corporation, will be advanced by the parties to this agreement, share and share alike, and will be refunded to them by the corporation.

10. Salaries for Services. For services to be rendered to the corporation,_____[name of first party] will be paid the sum of $_____, and_____[name of second party] will be paid the sum of $_____, as annual salary. Each of these two named parties will work full time for the corporation._____[Name of third party] will not be required to work full time for the corporation and_____[will not be entitled to a salary from the corporation or will be entitled to receive_____ (describe consideration)]; in addition, the consent of_____[name of third party] must be obtained before the salaries specified in this Paragraph 10 may be modified.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the undersigned have executed this Agreement as of_____.

§ 2.240 Agreement Indemnifying Director, Officer, or Agent

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an indemnity agreement between a corporation and a director, officer, or agent of the corporation. It is used when the corporation wishes to eliminate or partially limit the personal liability of a director, officer, or agent. This agreement provides that personal liability will be eliminated to the full extent allowed by California law. An indemnity agreement gives greater protection to the indemnified party than a provision in the corporation's articles or incorporation or bylaws, because it cannot be unilaterally changed.

For this agreement to be effective concerning a director or agent, the corporation must first provide for elimination or limitation of liability in the articles of incorporation [see Corp. Code § 204(a)(10), (11); see also [b], [c], below]. For a provision to include in the articles of incorporation eliminating a director's liability to the fullest extent possible, see Ch. 3, Articles of Incorporation, § 3.280[2].

This form can be easily revised to provide similar limitation of personal liability for an incorporator or promoter [see [c], below].

[b] Limitation or Elimination of Director's Liability

The personal liability of a corporate director for monetary damages in an action brought by or in right of the corporation for breach of the director's obligations to the corporation or the shareholders may be eliminated or limited in the corporation's articles of incorporation [Corp. Code § 309(c); see Corp. Code § 204(a)(10)]. However, this type of provision may not eliminate or limit the liability of a director for any of the following [Corp. Code § 204(a)(10)]:

- Acts or omissions that involve intentional misconduct or a knowing and culpable violation of law.

- Acts or omissions that a director believes to be contrary to the best interests of the corporation or its shareholders, or that involve the absence of good faith on the director's part.

- Any transaction from which a director derived an improper personal benefit.

- Acts or omissions that show a reckless disregard for the director's duty to the corporation or its shareholders in circumstances in which the director was aware, or should have been aware, in the ordinary course of performing a director's duties, of a risk of serious injury to the corporation or its shareholders.

- Acts or omissions that constitute an unexcused pattern of inattention that amounts to abdication of the director's duty to the corporation or its shareholders.

- Prohibited transactions between the corporation and the director [see Corp. Code § 310].

- Distributions, loans, and guarantees [see Corp. Code § 316].

In addition, no provision will eliminate or limit the liability of a director for any act or omission occurring before the effective date of the provision. Finally, no provision may eliminate or limit the liability of an officer for any act or omission as an officer, notwithstanding that the officer is also a director or that his or her actions, if negligent or improper, have been ratified by the directors [Corp. Code § 204(a)(10)].

[c] Limitation or Elimination of Agent's Liability

The articles of incorporation may contain a provision authorizing the indemnification of an agent in excess of that expressly permitted by Corp. Code § 317 for breach of duty to the corporation or its stockholders [Corp. Code § 204(a)(11)]. The term "agent" includes any person who is or was a director, officer, employee, or other agent of the corporation [Corp. Code § 317(a)]. However, this type of provision may not provide for indemnification of an agent for acts or omissions from which a director may not be relieved of liability pursuant to Corp. Code § 204(a)(10) [see [b], above] or in circumstances in which Corp. Code § 317 expressly prohibits indemnity [Corp. Code § 204(a)(11); see, e.g., Corp. Code § 317(c) (indemnification prohibited for amounts paid by agent resolving pending action without court approval)].

In addition, an agent may not be indemnified if it would be inconsistent with the articles of incorporation, the bylaws, a resolution of the shareholders, other agreements, or a condition imposed by a court in approving a settlement [see Corp. Code § 317(h)].

For a provision to include in the articles of incorporation providing for the indemnification of agents, see Ch. 3, Articles of Incorporation, § 3.280[2].

[d] Attorneys' Fees to Prevailing Party in Enforcement Proceeding

This form contains a provision for recovery of attorneys' fees (including fees on appeal) by the prevailing party in any suit or arbitration proceeding for enforcement or interpretation of the agreement. The provision includes this definition: "The prevailing party shall be the party entitled to recover its costs of suit or arbitration, regardless of whether such suit or arbitration proceeds to final judgment." A court of appeal holds that, in the context of a lawsuit, the word "suit" in such a definition would refer to the entire action, not to a single proceeding within the lawsuit; therefore, the prevailing party would be determined by looking at the action as a whole, not by viewing the trial proceedings and any appellate proceedings in isolation [Butler-Rupp v. Lourdeaux (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 918, 929, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 242] .

INDEMNIFICATION AGREEMENT

INDEMNITY AGREEMENT

THIS INDEMNITY AGREEMENT ("Agreement") is made and effective as of_____[date], by and between_____, a California corporation (the "Corporation"), and_____ (the "Agent").

BACKGROUND

A. Agent performs valuable service to the Corporation in Agent's capacity as a director, officer, employee or other agent of the Corporation or by serving at the Corporation's request as a director, officer, employee or agent of another corporation, partnership, joint venture, trust or other enterprise. The Agent's past, present and future services in all of the relevant capacities just described are sometimes hereinafter collectively referred to as Agent's service to the Corporation in the capacity of "Statutory Agent."

B. The Corporation's Articles of Incorporation ("Articles") authorize the indemnification of directors, officers, employees and other agents of the Corporation, including persons serving at the request of the Corporation in those capacities with another corporation, partnership, joint venture, trust or other enterprise, to the maximum extent permissible by the California General Corporation Law (the "Code").

C. The Articles, the Corporation's Bylaws ("Bylaws") and the Code permit contracts between the Corporation and its agents with respect to the indemnification of those persons.

D. In order to induce Agent to continue to serve the Corporation as a Statutory Agent of the Corporation, the Corporation has agreed to enter this Agreement with Agent.

AGREEMENT

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of Agent's continued service to the Corporation after the date hereof, the parties to this Agreement agree as follows:

1. Definitions. The following definitions shall apply when used in this Agreement:

(a) "Expenses" means expenses (including attorneys' fees and any expenses incurred to establish a right to indemnification from the Corporation), judgments, fines, penalties, settlements and other amounts actually and reasonably incurred by Agent in connection with the investigation, defense, settlement and appeal of a Proceeding.

(b) "Proceeding" means a threatened, pending or completed action, suit or proceeding, whether civil, criminal, administrative or investigative.

(c) "Service Termination Date" refers to the date Agent ceases to be (whether by voluntary resignation, death, involuntary removal or otherwise) a Statutory Agent of the Corporation.

2. Basic General Indemnity for All Actions other than those By or in Right of Corporation (Corporations Code Section 317(b) Indemnity). Subject to the requirements and restrictions of the applicable provisions of this Agreement and to the fullest extent legally permissible under Corporations Code Section 317, the Corporation shall indemnify Agent against Expenses if Agent is made a party or is being threatened to be made a party to any Proceeding (other than in a Proceeding by or in the right of the Corporation to procure a judgment in its favor):

(a) By reason of Agent's service prior to the Service Termination Date as a Statutory Agent of the Corporation against Expenses;

(b) Whether or not Agent continues to hold any such position as Statutory Agent at the time the Expense is incurred and whether or not such a Proceeding is brought before or after the Service Termination Date;

(c) Provided, however, that no indemnification under this Section 2 shall be provided with respect to any Proceeding to the extent that:

(i) Agent did not act in good faith and in a manner Agent reasonably believed to be in the best interests of the Corporation; or

(ii) With respect to any criminal action or proceeding Agent had reasonable cause to believe that Agent's conduct was unlawful.

3. Basic Indemnity for Actions By or in Right of Corporation (Corporations Code Section 317(c) Indemnity). Subject to the requirements and restrictions of the applicable provisions of this Agreement and to the fullest extent legally permissible under Corporations Code Section 317, the Corporation shall indemnify Agent against Expenses if Agent is made a party or is being threatened to be made a party to any Proceeding brought by or in right of the Corporation to procure a judgment in its favor:

(a) By reason of Agent's service as Statutory Agent of the Corporation prior to the Service Termination Date;

(b) Whether or not Agent continues to hold any such position as Statutory Agent at the time the Expense is incurred and whether or not such a Proceeding is brought before or after the Service Termination Date);

(c) Provided, however, that no indemnification shall be provided under this Section 3 with respect to:

(i) Any claim, issue or matter as to which Agent did not act in good faith and in a manner Agent reasonably believed to be in the best interests of the Corporation and its shareholders;

(ii) Any claim, issue or matter as to which Agent is adjudged to be liable to the Corporation in the performance of Agent's duty to the Corporation and its shareholders, unless and only to the extent that the court in which such Proceeding is pending shall determine upon application that, in view of all the circumstances of the case, Agent is fairly and reasonably entitled to indemnity for such expenses and then only to the extent that the court shall so determine;

(iii) Any amounts paid in settling or otherwise disposing of a pending action without court approval (provided, however, that indemnification of Agent under this Agreement shall be available, assuming the other requirements of this Agreement and those imposed by applicable law are met, with respect to settlement costs and expenses of defense of any threatened action by or in the right of the Corporation if settlement is effected without court approval); or

(iv) Any expenses incurred in defending a pending action which is settled or otherwise disposed of without court approval.

4. Extended Indemnity Applicable to All Actions (Corporations Code Section 204(a)(11) Indemnity).

(a) Scope. Subject to the requirements and restrictions of the applicable provisions of this Agreement and to the fullest extent legally permissible under Corporations Code Section 204(a)(11), the Corporation shall indemnify Agent against Expenses by reason of Agent being made a party or being threatened to be made a party to any Proceeding by reason of a claim of breach of duty to the Corporation or its shareholders based upon Agent's service, prior to the Service Termination Date, as a Statutory Agent of the Corporation.

(b) Limitations on Extended Indemnity. The indemnities provided in this Section 4 shall not apply with respect to expenses or liabilities incurred as a result of any of the following:

(i) Acts or omissions by Agent that involve intentional misconduct or a knowing and culpable violation of law,

(ii) Acts or omissions that Agent believes to be contrary to the best interests of the Corporation or its shareholders or that involve the absence of good faith on the part of the Agent,

(iii) Any transaction from which Agent derived an improper personal benefit,

(iv) Acts or omissions that show a reckless disregard for the Agent's duty to the Corporation or its shareholders in circumstances in which the Agent was aware, or should have been aware, in the ordinary course of performing Agent's duties, of a risk of serious injury to the Corporation or its shareholders,

(v) Acts or omissions that constitute an unexcused pattern of inattention that amounts to an abdication of the Agent's duty to the Corporation or its shareholders,

(vi) A violation of Corporations Code Section 310,

(vii) A violation of Corporations Code Section 316, or (viii) As to circumstances where indemnity of the Agent is expressly prohibited by Corporations Code Section 317.

5. Advances to Cover Agent's Expenses. All reasonable Expenses incurred by Agent in defending any Proceeding for which Agent may be or is entitled to be indemnified under this Agreement may be paid by the Corporation in advance of the final disposition of that Proceeding at the request of Agent after receipt by the Corporation of each statement or statements (in reasonable detail) from Agent requesting such advance or advances, conditioned in each case upon receipt of an undertaking by or on behalf of Agent to repay all such amounts if it is ultimately determined that Agent is not entitled to indemnification by the Corporation. Such an undertaking may be accepted by the Corporation without reference to the financial ability of Agent to make repayment.

6. General Exclusions from Scope of Protection. The indemnities provided in this Agreement and the provision for advances of Expenses under Section 5 shall not be available (unless Agent has been successful on the merits as provided in Section 9 of this Agreement or where that indemnification or advance is approved by the shareholders in the manner provided in clause (c) of Section 8 of this Agreement) in any circumstance in which it is found:

(a) That it would be inconsistent with any provision of the Articles or Bylaws or of any resolution of the Corporation's shareholders or under any agreement in effect at the time of the accrual of the alleged cause of action asserted against Agent in the proceeding in which the expenses were incurred or other amounts were paid, which prohibits or otherwise limits indemnification; or

(b) That it would be inconsistent with any condition expressly imposed by a court in approving a settlement.

7. No Automatic Adverse Presumption. The termination of any Proceeding by judgment, order, settlement, conviction, consent, decree or upon a plea of nolo contendere or its equivalent shall not, of itself:

(a) Create a presumption that the Agent did not act in good faith and in a manner which Agent reasonably believed to be in the best interests of the Corporation and its shareholders or, with respect to any criminal action or proceeding, that Agent had reasonable cause to believe that Agent's conduct was unlawful; or

(b) Otherwise adversely affect the rights of Agent to indemnification except as may be provided herein.

8. Determination of Right to Indemnification Necessary when Agent Not Successful on Merits. In all cases other than those in which Agent is successful on the merits and is therefore entitled to indemnification as a matter of right under Section 9 of this Agreement, the Corporation shall, as soon as reasonably practicable (after receipt of a notice of a claim of indemnification from Agent under Section 12 of this Agreement), take action to make a determination as to whether indemnification of the Agent is proper in the circumstances (based upon whether the Agent has met the applicable standard of conduct set forth herein) by any of the following:

(a) A majority vote of a quorum of the Board of Directors consisting of directors who are not parties to those Proceedings.

(b) If such a quorum of directors is not obtainable or, even if obtainable, if the Board of Directors by the majority vote of the directors (as provided in clause (a), above) so directs, by independent legal counsel in a written opinion to the Board of Directors, a copy of which shall be delivered to Agent. Independent legal counsel shall be selected by the Board of Directors. Upon any failure of the Board to so select independent legal counsel, independent legal counsel shall be selected by or upon the direction of an appropriate California court having jurisdiction.

(c) Approval of the shareholders (in the manner provided in Corporations Code Section 153), with the shares owned by the Agent not being entitled to vote thereon.

(d) The court in which the proceeding is or was pending, upon application made by the Corporation or the Agent or the attorney or other person rendering services in connection with the defense, whether or not that application by the Agent, attorney, or other person is opposed by the Corporation.

Under clauses (a) and (b), above, the Agent shall be presumed to have met the applicable standard of conduct required under this Agreement unless, after investigation, it shall be determined by the Board of Directors by a majority vote of a quorum consisting of directors who are not parties to the action, suit, or proceeding or, if such a quorum is not obtainable or, even if obtainable, if a quorum of disinterested directors so directs, by written opinion of independent legal counsel, that the Agent did not meet the required standard of conduct. If a determination is made or deemed to have been made pursuant to the terms of this Section 8 that Agent is entitled to indemnification, the Corporation shall be bound (to the maximum legal extent) by that determination and shall be precluded (to the maximum legal extent) from asserting that the determination has not been made or that the procedure by which that determination was made is not valid, binding, and enforceable.

9. Automatic Indemnification When Agent is Successful on Merits.

(a) If Agent has been successful on the merits in defense of any Proceeding described Sections 2 or 3 of this Agreement, or in the defense of any claim, issue, or matter therein, Agent shall be entitled to indemnification under this Agreement as a matter of right, without any necessity to obtain approval under Section 8. If any claim, action, suit, or proceeding in which Agent becomes involved is disposed of, on the merits or otherwise, without: (i) the disposition being adverse to Agent, (ii) an adjudication that Agent is liable to the Corporation, (iii) a plea of guilty or of nolo contendere by Agent, or (iv) any adjudication that Agent failed to act in good faith and in a manner Agent reasonably believed to be in the best interests of the Corporation and its shareholders (and, with respect to any criminal action or proceeding, without an adjudication that Agent had reasonable cause to believe that his or her conduct was unlawful), then Agent shall be considered for the purposes of this section to have been wholly successful on the merits (except as set forth below) with respect thereto and shall be entitled to indemnification under this Agreement as a matter of right (without obtaining approval under Section 8).

(b) With respect to indemnification of an action by or in the right of the Corporation, Agent shall not be deemed to have been successful on the merits in defense with respect to amounts paid in settling or otherwise disposing of a pending action which is settled or otherwise disposed of without court approval or expenses incurred in defending a pending action which is settled or otherwise disposed of without court approval (provided, however, that indemnification of Agent shall not be precluded, assuming other requirements of this Agreement and those imposed by applicable law are met, with respect to settlement costs and expenses of defense of any threatened action by or in the right of the Corporation where settlement is effected without court approval). If Agent is only partially successful on the merits in the defense of any Proceeding of the types described in either Sections 2 or 3 of this Agreement, and as a result is not absolutely entitled under this Section 9 to indemnification by the Corporation for the total amount of the Expenses paid in settlement actually and reasonably incurred by Agent, the Corporation shall nevertheless indemnify Agent as a matter of right (without the need to comply with Section 8) and to the maximum extent legally permissible under this Section 9 to the extent Agent has been partially successful on the merits.

10. Effect of Insurance Coverage. The rights to indemnification provided in this Agreement shall be in addition to and shall not be affected by the existence of any directors' and officers' liability insurance policy maintained by the Corporation and which exists as of the date of this Agreement or as of the date a claim is made under this Agreement; provided, however, that to the extent any claim made under this Agreement is covered and timely paid by any directors' and officers' liability insurance policy maintained by the Corporation, the Corporation will only be obligated to provide coverage for any claim under this Agreement after the full coverage under any applicable directors' and officers' insurance policy is exhausted or coverage thereunder otherwise becomes unavailable.

11. Required Notification By Agent and Manner of Defense of Claim. Not later than 30 days after receipt by Agent of notice of the commencement of any Proceeding, if a claim in respect to that Proceeding is to be made against the Corporation under this Agreement, Agent will notify the Corporation of the commencement of that Proceeding; however, the omission to notify the Corporation will not relieve the Corporation from any liability it may have to Agent other than under this Agreement. With respect to any action, suit, or proceeding as to which Agent notifies the Corporation of the commencement thereof:

(a) Corporation's Right to Participate. The Corporation will be entitled to participate therein at its own expense.

(b) Corporation's Assumption of Agent's Defense. Except as otherwise provided below, the Corporation, at its option and jointly with any other indemnifying party similarly notified and electing to assume the defense, may assume the defense of the Proceeding with counsel reasonably satisfactory to Agent. After notice from the Corporation to Agent of its election to assume the defense, the Corporation will not be liable to Agent under this Agreement for any legal or other expenses subsequently incurred by Agent in connection with the defense, except for reasonable costs of investigation or otherwise as provided below.

(c) Agent's Right to Employ Separate Counsel. Agent shall have the right to employ separate counsel in any Proceeding; however, the fees and expenses of separate counsel incurred after notice from the Corporation of its assumption of the defense of the Proceeding shall be at the expense of Agent unless:

(i) The employment of counsel by Agent at the Corporation's expense has been authorized by the Corporation;

(ii) The proceeding in question is brought in the name of or on behalf of the Corporation; or

(iii) The Corporation shall not in fact have employed counsel to assume the defense of that action.

In each of the above-referenced circumstances the fees and expenses of Agent's separate counsel shall be borne by the Corporation if Agent is entitled to indemnification under this Agreement. The Corporation shall not be entitled to assume the defense of any Proceeding brought by or on behalf of the Corporation.

(d) Approval of Settlements. The Corporation shall not be liable to indemnify Agent under this Agreement for any amounts paid in settlement of any action or claim effected without its written consent, which consent shall not be unreasonably withheld. The Corporation shall be permitted to settle any action, except that it shall not settle any action or claim in any manner which would impose any penalty or limitation on Agent without Agent's written consent, which may be given or withheld in Agent's sole discretion.

12. Enforcement Actions By Agent. Any right of Agent to indemnification under this Agreement shall be enforceable by or on behalf of Agent in any court of competent jurisdiction, if:

(a) The claim for indemnification is denied by the Corporation, in whole or in part; or

(b) No disposition of the claim is made by the Corporation within 90 days of a request for such a disposition.

If Agent is successful in such an enforcement action, in whole or in part, Agent shall be entitled to be reimbursed for the expenses of prosecuting Agent's claim for indemnification under this Agreement. It shall be a defense to any action for which a claim for indemnification is made under this Agreement that Agent is not entitled to indemnification because of the express limitations set forth herein, with the burden of proving that defense to be borne by the Corporation. Neither the failure of the Corporation (including its Board of Directors and its shareholders) to have made a determination prior to the commencement of such an enforcement action that indemnification of Agent is proper in the circumstances nor an actual determination by the Corporation (including its Board of Directors and its shareholders) that indemnification is improper shall be a defense to any such an enforcement action.

13. Term. This Agreement will expire six years after the Service Termination Date, except that it will continue in effect with respect to any Proceeding pending on the expiration date until the final resolution or disposition of that Proceeding and the fulfillment of all obligations of the Corporation to the Agent under this Agreement with respect to that Proceeding.

14. Rights Cumulative; Intended Scope of Indemnification. The rights to indemnification and advancement of expenses provided in this Agreement shall be in addition to any rights to which Agent may otherwise be entitled under other agreements or as a matter of law, including, without limitation, rights under the Articles or Bylaws, and shall inure to the benefit of the heirs, executors and administrators of Agent. It is the intent of the Corporation that the indemnity provided to Agent under this Agreement shall be of the broadest scope legally permissible (subject to the express requirements and restrictions of this Agreement) and that all provisions of this Agreement shall be interpreted to give the Agent maximum benefit; provided, however, that all provisions of this Agreement shall be construed in such a manner as to comply with legal requirements.

Additionally, the Corporation hereby advises Agent that it is not presently aware of any agreement, provision of its Articles or Bylaws, court order or other obligation or requirement imposed on the Corporation (other than the precise requirements of applicable law) which would restrict or prevent in any material way the performance in full by the Corporation of its obligations to Agent under this Agreement. The Corporation agrees to utilize its best efforts not to permit the imposition of any such requirement (through amendment of its Articles, Bylaws, agreement or otherwise) which would restrict the Corporation's ability to perform its full obligations under this Agreement with respect to any actions or inactions of Agent taken or failed to be taken prior to the date of the effectiveness of any such new requirement, restriction or obligation.

16. Miscellaneous.

(a) Governing Law. It is the intention of the parties to this Agreement that the internal laws of the State of California (irrespective of its choice of law principles) shall govern the validity of this Agreement, the construction of its terms and the interpretation and enforcement of the rights and duties of the parties under this Agreement.

(b) Binding upon Successors and Assigns. Subject to and unless otherwise provided in this Agreement, each and all of the covenants, terms, provisions and agreements contained herein shall be binding upon and shall inure to the benefit of the permitted successors, executors, heirs, representatives, administrators and assigns of the parties to this Agreement.

(c) Severability. If any provision of this Agreement or the application thereof shall for any reason and to any extent be invalid or unenforceable, the remainder of this Agreement and the application of such provision to other persons or circumstances shall be interpreted so as best to reasonably effect the intent of the parties to this Agreement. The parties further agree to replace any such void or unenforceable provision of this Agreement with a valid and enforceable provision which will achieve, to the fullest extent possible, the economic, business and other purposes of the void or unenforceable provision.

(d) Entire Agreement. This Agreement, together with any agreements and documents referenced herein, constitutes the entire understanding and agreement of the parties to this Agreement with respect to the subject matter hereof and supersedes all prior and contemporaneous agreements or understandings, inducements or conditions, express or implied, written or oral, between the parties with respect to this Agreement. The express terms hereof control and supersede any course of performance or usage of the trade inconsistent with any of the terms hereof.

(e) Counterparts. This Agreement may be executed in any number of counterparts, each of which shall be an original as against any party whose signature appears thereon and all of which together shall constitute one and the same instrument. This Agreement shall become binding when one or more counterparts hereof, individually or taken together, shall bear the signatures of all of the parties reflected hereon as signatories.

(f) Amendments and Waivers. Any term or provision of this Agreement may be amended and the observance of any term of this Agreement may be waived (either generally or in a particular instance and either retroactively or prospectively) only by a writing signed by the party to be bound thereby. The waiver by a party of any breach hereof for default in payment of any amount due under this Agreement or default in the performance hereof shall not be deemed to constitute a waiver of any other default or succeeding breach or default.

(g) Attorneys' Fees. Should suit or arbitration be brought to enforce or interpret any part of this Agreement, the prevailing party shall be entitled to recover, as an element of the costs of suit or arbitration and not as damages, reasonable attorneys' fees to be fixed by the court (including, without limitation, costs, expenses and fees on any appeal). The prevailing party shall be the party entitled to recover its costs of suit or arbitration, regardless of whether such suit or arbitration proceeds to final judgment. A party not entitled to recover its costs shall not be entitled to recover attorneys' fees. No sum for attorneys' fees shall be counted in calculating the amount of a judgment for purposes of determining if a party is entitled to recover costs or attorneys' fees.

(h) Notices. Whenever any party to this Agreement desires or is required to give any notice, demand or request with respect to this Agreement, each such communication shall be in writing and shall be effective only if it is delivered by personal service or mailed, United States certified mail, return receipt requested, postage prepaid, addressed as follows:

Agent:	To the address set forth on the signature page of this Agreement
Corporation:	_____ _____ _____ Attn:_____
If to Corporation, with a copy to

[attorney]

Communications shall be effective when they are received by the addressee; but if sent by certified mail in the manner set forth above, they shall be effective three business days after being deposited in the United States mail. Any party may change its address for communications by giving notice to the other party in conformity with this section.

(i) Absence of Third Party Beneficiary Rights. No provision of this Agreement is intended nor shall be interpreted to provide or create any third party beneficiary rights or any other rights of any kind in any client, customer, affiliate, shareholder or partner of any party to this Agreement or any other person; unless specifically provided otherwise herein, and except as so provided, all provisions hereof shall be personal solely between the parties to this Agreement.

(j) Subrogation. In the event of payment under this Agreement, the Corporation shall be subrogated to the extent of such payment to all of the rights of recovery of Agent, who shall execute all documents required and shall do all acts that may be necessary to secure those rights and to enable the Corporation effectively to bring suit to enforce those rights.

(k) Survival of Rights. The rights conferred on Agent by this Agreement shall continue after Agent has ceased to be a Statutory Agent of the Corporation and shall inure to the benefit of Agent's heirs, executors and administrators. The Corporation shall require any successor (whether direct or indirect and whether by purchase, merger, consolidation or otherwise) to all or substantially all of the business or assets of the Corporation to expressly assume and agree to perform this Agreement in the same manner and to the same extent that the Corporation would be required to perform if no such succession had taken place.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties to this Agreement have executed this Agreement as of the date first above written.

§ 2.250 Attorney Letter Advising Client Regarding Post-Incorporation Matters

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a letter from an attorney to a client regarding matters that the client needs to be aware of following an incorporation. It is assumed that the attorney has finished forming a corporation for the client and is transmitting the key corporate documents to the client. The form also contains basic advice to the client on corporate operations and the importance of preserving corporate formalities in order to preserve the character of the corporation as an independent entity, as well as advice with respect to license, taxation, and related issues that the corporation will have to address within a short time after formation. For more detailed discussion of the various topics discussed in this letter, see the following chapters:

- Ch. 1C, Regulation of Employers.
- Ch. 1D, Overview of Employee Benefits.
- Ch. 1E, Taxation of Businesses.
- Ch. 3, Articles of Incorporation.
- Ch. 4, Bylaws.
- Ch. 5, Directors Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions.
- Ch. 7, Corporate Records and Reports.
- Ch. 8A, Shareholders' Meetings, Voting, and Agreements.

The statutory citations in the text are for the convenience of the attorney to provide references for the requirements mentioned in the form. When this form is sent to clients, these references may be eliminated if desired.

Re: _____[Name of corporation]; Observance of Corporate Formalities and Other Post-Incorporation Matters

Dear_____[Name of corporate officer or client]:

[If corporation's minute book is enclosed:]

Enclosed are the Minute Book of_____[name of corporation] (the "Corporation"), which contains a certified copy of the Articles of Incorporation, the original of the Bylaws, and_____[specify other incorporation documents, e.g., the Incorporators' Action Perfecting the Corporation, (and) Minutes of the First Meeting of the Board of Directors]. Also enclosed are the Corporation's_____[specify other items not included in the Minute Book, e.g., Corporate Seal and Share Book]. These items should all be retained in a safe place by the Corporation's secretary.

Enclosed are copies of the following documents of_____[name of corporation] (the "Corporation"): the Articles of Incorporation, the Bylaws and_____[specify other incorporation documents, e.g., the Incorporators' Action Perfecting the Corporation, (and) Minutes of the First Meeting of the Board of Directors]._____[I or We] have retained the Corporation's Minute Book which contains the originals of those documents._____[I or We] have also retained the Corporation's_____[specify other items, e.g., Seal and Share Book]. Retention of the original documents and other items will enable_____[me or our law firm] to provide you with prompt service on any matters concerning the Corporation.

[Add, if the Statement by Domestic Stock Corporation has not been previously filed and is included in materials being transmitted by this letter:]

Also enclosed is a Statement by Domestic Stock Corporation which has been furnished by the Secretary of State. The completed form should be returned to_____[me or us] as soon as practicable for filing with the Secretary of State. An updated version of this statement must be filed annually thereafter [Corp. Code § 1502(a)].

[Add, if written consent has not previously been filed and is included in materials being transmitted by this letter:]

Finally,_____[I or we] have enclosed a form for Written Consent by Shareholders which must be executed by the shareholders indicated on the execution page and promptly_____[returned to_____ (me or us) for filing or filed] in the Corporation's Minute Book. The Written Consent by Shareholder is necessary in order to validate Section_____[e.g., 4.12] of the Bylaws which requires shareholder approval before the section is effective.

Now that the Corporation has been formed, it will be faced with numerous legal requirements that will require your attention. For convenience,_____[I am or we are] including a description of some of these basic legal requirements below._____[I or We] urge you to contact me if you have any questions about these formalities or any other aspect of the formation or operation of the Corporation

A. Observance of Corporate Formalities

1. Importance. The regular observance of the corporate formalities of shareholders' and directors' meetings is an important aspect of maintaining the many protections and advantages that the corporate form offers, one of the most important of which is the protection of shareholders against imposition of personal liability for obligations incurred by the Corporation. The failure to observe appropriate formalities in the conduct of corporate affairs may destroy that protection and cause the shareholders to be personally liable for corporate obligations. In that regard, it would be appropriate for you to observe the following formalities in connection with the ongoing operations of the Corporation:

2. Shareholder Action. The shareholders should take action to elect the Board of Directors of the Corporation annually [Corp. Code § 600(b)]. That action may be taken by written consent of the shareholders without a meeting, Directors may not be elected by written consent except by unanimous written consent of all shares entitled to vote for the election of directors, except that the shareholders may elect a director to fill a vacancy, other than a vacancy created by removal, by the written consent of a majority of the outstanding shares entitled to vote. [Corp. Code § 603]. In addition, certain specified fundamental changes in the form of operations of the Corporation require the consent or approval of the shareholders under California law, including the following:

(a) Amendment of the Articles of Incorporation (requires approval by vote or written consent of shareholders holding a majority of the outstanding shares [of each class or series entitled to vote on that matter as a class]) [Corp. Code § 903].

(b) Sale of all or substantially all of the assets of the Corporation (requires approval by vote or written consent of the shareholders holding a majority of the outstanding shares [of each class or series entitled to vote on that matter as a class]) [Corp. Code § 1001].

(c) Merger or consolidation of the Corporation with or into any other corporation (requires the vote or written consent of shareholders holding a majority of the outstanding shares [of each class or series entitled to vote on that matter as a class]) [Corp. Code § 1101].

(d) Winding up and dissolution of the Corporation (requires approval by vote or by written consent of shareholders holding a majority of the voting power) [Corp. Code § 1900(a)].

(e) Any loan of money or property to, or any guaranty of an obligation of, any director or officer of the Corporation, except under limited circumstances [see Corp. Code § 315].

3. Director Action. Matters of general operating policy should be considered and authorized by the Board of Directors of the Corporation [see Corp. Code § 300]. Although the laws governing corporations do not state how frequently the Board of Directors should act, it is typical, at least in the case of public corporations, that the Board of Directors meets quarterly, and in some cases even monthly, on a regular basis. In addition, a specially convened meeting of the Board, as authorized by the Bylaws, may be called if action is required before the next regular meeting of the Board. Action by the Board may also be taken by the unanimous written consent of the directors._____[I or We] recommend that the directors of the Corporation schedule a regular meeting at least quarterly to deal with significant matters that have arisen during the quarter. Matters appropriate for director action, which might arise during the quarter and be accumulated pending approval by the directors, include the following:

(a) Election of officers, setting of salaries, and declaration of bonuses (at least annually, typically at a meeting of the Board of Directors immediately following the annual meeting of shareholders) [Corp. Code § 312].

(b) Appointment of Board committees [Corp. Code § 311].

(c) Opening of corporate bank accounts and the designation and change of corporate officers authorized as signatories (any bank's corporate account form invariably includes a corporate resolution that the party executing the form represents to have been adopted by the Board).

(d) Corporate borrowing and the giving of security in connection with any loans or similar obligations entered into by the Corporation [Corp. Code § 207(g)].

(e) Consummation of major contracts for the acquisition or lease of significant assets or services or the disposition of assets, or for the rendition of services, outside of the ordinary course of the business of the Corporation [Corp. Code § 207(g)].

(f) Policy decisions with respect to the construction of material assets or the investment of material amounts in research and development projects (this area is particularly important to document, because of its relevance to the necessity for accumulation of surplus and the use of available cash).

(g) Adoption of pension, profit sharing, bonus and other employee benefit plans [Corp. Code § 207(f)].

(h) Declaration of dividends or the redemption of shares [see Corp. Code § 501 et seq.].

(i) Amendment of the Bylaws [Corp. Code § 211].

(j) Review of financial statements and, if the Corporation is a public corporation, approval of filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

(k) Appointment of auditors.

(l) Any action that requires a shareholder vote described in items 2(a) through (e), above.

(m) Issuance and sale of shares by the Corporation [Corp. Code §§ 207(d), 400, 401], or the grant of options to purchase additional shares [Corp. Code § 404].

If the secretary of the Corporation will prepare a draft of the minutes or written consent evidencing any such director or shareholder actions,_____[I or we] will be happy to assist in finalizing the documentation. The form of minutes of the first meeting of the directors might be used as a format.

B. Other Post-Incorporation Matters

Although it is not intended to be exhaustive, the following checklist summarizes the legal requirements that a new corporation is most likely to encounter. Some of the requirements arise as a consequence of incorporation; others apply to any new business regardless of the form of organization. Certain requirements are highly formal and technical; many must be satisfied within a specified time period.

1. Business Licenses and Permits. The Corporation will probably be required to obtain a business license from the city in which it intends to operate. In addition, state licenses and permits may be required. Many of the required state licenses and permits are described in the "California License Handbook" which may be obtained from the Office of Small Business Development in Sacramento, and the "California Permit Handbook," which may be obtained from the Department of General Services, Documents Publications Section, in North Highlands, California.

[Include if corporation has not yet obtained employer ID number:]

2. Employer Identification Number. Every employer must obtain an employer identification number which will be used on federal tax returns and certain other documents [see I.R.C. § 6109]. The application form (Form SS-4) may be obtained from the Internal Revenue Service or the Social Security Administration.

3. Estimated Federal Income Tax. The Corporation will be required to pay estimated federal income tax in installments [see I.R.C. § 6655]. You should discuss this requirement with your accountant in the very near future.

4. Estimated California Franchise Tax. California franchise tax is imposed in advance for the privilege of exercising the corporate franchise in California for the taxable year. The minimum franchise tax of $_____ was paid when the Articles of Incorporation were filed. Estimated tax for subsequent years is payable in installments, and the first installment of the estimated tax is due by the 15th day of the fourth month after the corporation was incorporated [see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 19025, 23153]. Note that the $_____ prepayment made at the time of incorporation, which was the first taxable year's minimum tax does not satisfy this requirement. Installments of estimated tax for the second taxable year's tax are paid during the first year. Filing requirements are described in the "Guide for Filing Franchise Tax Returns by Commencing Corporations" which should be mailed to the Corporation by the Franchise Tax Board.

5. Income and Franchise Tax Returns. Both federal and California income tax returns must be filed on or before the 15th day of the third month following the close of the taxable year [I.R.C. § 6072(b); Rev. & Tax. Code § 18601]. Forms may be obtained from the Internal Revenue Service and from the Franchise Tax Board.

6. Personal Property Taxes. If the Corporation owns personal property having an aggregate cost of $100,000 or more for any assessment year, it must file a property statement with the County Assessor between April 1 and the last Friday in May in the county where the property is located [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 441]. Forms may be obtained from the County Assessor.

7. Sales and Use Taxes. If the Corporation expects to sell tangible personal property that would be subject to the California Sales and Use Tax when sold at retail, it must obtain a seller's permit from the State Board of Equalization [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 6066(a), 6071]. This permit may also be required even if the Corporation intends to conduct only a wholesale business. An officer of the Corporation or other person specifically authorized to sign the application must personally appear at the nearest office of the State Board of Equalization to apply for the permit. Registration as an employer for purposes of state income tax withholding and unemployment insurance may be accomplished at the same time on the same application form.

8. Payroll Withholding.

(a) Federal. The Corporation will be required to withhold income tax and social security tax from taxable wages paid to its employees [see I.R.C. §§ 3401-3403]. Funds withheld must be deposited in certain depositories accompanied by a Federal Tax Deposit Form 8109 deposit coupon [see I.R.C. §§ 3402(a), 6302(c); Treas. Reg. § 31.6302-1(i)(3)]. An "Employer's Quarterly Federal Tax Return" (IRS Form 941) must then be filed before the end of the month following each calendar quarter [see Treas. Reg. § 31.6011(a)-4]. Any officer or other person charged with the withholding of taxes may become personally liable for 100 percent penalty if he or she fails to file the appropriate forms [see I.R.C. § 6672].

(b) California. The Corporation will also be required to withhold California income tax from its employees' taxable wages [Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 13020, 13021]. Within 15 days after becoming subject to the personal income tax withholding requirements, the employer must register with the Department of Employment Development [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1086]. A booklet entitled "Employer's Tax Guide for the Withholding, Payment and Reporting of California Income Tax" may be obtained from the Department.

9. Federal Unemployment Tax. The "Employer's Annual Federal Unemployment Tax Return" (IRS Form 940) must be filed and any balance due paid on or before January 31. Details may be found in IRS Circular E, the"Employer's Tax Guide."

10. California Unemployment Compensation Insurance. Registration with the California Department of Employment Development can be accomplished at the same time that the Corporation applies for a seller's permit from the Board of Equalization. Forms for returns are mailed automatically to all registered employers. A booklet entitled "Employer's Tax Guide: Unemployment Insurance Code of California" may be obtained from the Department of Employment Development.

11. Workers' Compensation. All employers must either be insured against workers' compensation liability by an authorized insurer or obtain from the Director of Industrial Relations a Certificate of Consent to Self-Insure. The required insurance may be obtained through the nearest local office of the State Compensation Insurance Fund, or it may be placed with a licensed workers' compensation private carrier.

We appreciate the opportunity to assist you and the Corporation in these matters. If you have any questions, please feel free to call us at any time.

Sincerely, _____ [signature of attorney]

CHAPTER 2A INCORPORATING A GOING BUSINESS

2-2A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide Scope

Scope

Scope

This chapter covers the incorporation of a going business, including problems relating to liability for the debts of the predecessor business, arrangements for the transfer of assets of the business to the corporation, bulk sale notice requirements, and federal and state tax aspects of the transfer. It also includes coverage of the various notices required in connection with the incorporation of a going business. The procedural steps to consider in incorporating a going business are outlined in the Transaction Guide, including forming the corporation, transferring assets to the corporation, and post-incorporation organizational and tax procedures. The Forms section includes various forms used to implement the incorporation process, including a preincorporation agreement among partners to incorporate, offers to sell a sole proprietorship and a partnership to a corporation, a bill of sale for the business assets, and a notice of bulk sale.

The preincorporation, incorporation, and post-incorporation matters covered in this chapter are those that are specific to the incorporation of a going business and should be used in conjunction with the substantive coverage in Ch. 2, Formation of Corporations, Ch. 3, Articles of Incorporation, Ch. 4, Bylaws, Ch. 5, Directors' Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions, Ch. 8A, Shareholders' Meetings, Voting, and Agreements.

If the principals of the business wish to be treated for tax purposes as if they were partners in a partnership, with minimal taxation at the corporate level, and also wish to have the limited liability of corporate shareholders, they should consider electing Subchapter S status; for coverage of the law and procedures involved, see Ch. 2B, Electing Subchapter S Status . If the principals are professionals, see Ch. 12A, Professional Corporations , for relevant special considerations.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Procedures to Transfer Going Business to Corporation

2-2A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 2A.10

§ 2A.10 Transfer of Business Property to Corporation

[1] Formal Transfer of Assets

The mere incorporation of an existing partnership or other unincorporated business does not, of itself, operate to transfer to the corporation the title to any real or personal property of the business. For title to be transferred to the corporation, there must be a conveyance, contract of sale, or assignment as in other types of property transfers [see Maron v. Howard (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 473, 485, 66 Cal. Rptr. 70] . Absent a transfer of property from the preexisting business to a corporation formed to succeed it, the preexisting business remains the owner of the property in question [see Whitley v. Bradley (1910) 13 Cal. App. 720, 729, 110 P. 596] . It has been stated that a corporation may acquire an equitable title to the property of a preexisting firm without a conveyance [Maron v. Howard (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 473, 485, 66 Cal. Rptr. 70 ; see Lance v. Forsberg (1951) 106 Cal. App. 2d 226, 230, 234 P.2d 662] . However, there do not appear to be any direct holdings to that effect. The most prudent practice would be for the partners or the proprietor of the preexisting business to execute a formal conveyance of the business's property to the new corporation on its formation. For a bill of sale issued on the transfer of the property of a going business to the successor corporation, see § 2A.204.

When an existing business association organized as a trust incorporates, the corporation succeeds automatically to the rights and property of the former association, without the requirement for formal transfer [see Corp. Code § 200.5(d); see also § 2A.13].

If the transfer of the business property is to be in exchange for shares of the corporation, as is usually the case, the transfer should be timed to occur when the shares are issued. In general, offers or sales of securities in California must be qualified, exempted, or not subject to qualification [see Corp. Code § 25110]. However, if the issuance meets the requirements of one of the two following exemptions, the newly formed corporation may issue its shares in exchange for assets of a going business without having to qualify the issuance under the Corporate Securities Law of 1968 [see Corp. Code §§ 25000-25706]. Under the "small offering" exemption [see Corp. Code § 25102(h)], qualification is not required if there will be only one class of stock, which will be owned beneficially by no more than 35 persons [Corp.

Code § 25102(h)]. Alternatively, under the "limited offering" exemption [see Corp. Code § 25102(f)], the issuance is exempt from qualification if sales are made to no more than 35 persons who either have a preexisting personal or business relationship with the offeror or its partners, or, because of their business sophistication, can be expected to protect their own business interests [Corp. Code § 25102(f)(1), (2)]. For coverage of the issuance of equity securities and the procedures for qualification or exemption from qualification, see Ch. 6, Securities Regulation Issues .

Although it is seldom the case when a going business is being incorporated, if the newly formed corporation will issue shares to more than 35 persons and therefore have to qualify the issuance with the Commissioner of Corporations [see Corp. Code § 25110], some delay may occur between the time the articles of incorporation are filed and the date the business can be transferred to the corporation. Whether there is a delay will depend, in most cases, on how diligent counsel is in applying for the permit sufficiently in advance of the anticipated transfer.

Shares may be issued for tangible or intangible property actually received, as well as money paid, labor done, services actually rendered to the corporation, or debts or securities canceled [Corp. Code § 409(a)(1)]. Thus, a straight exchange of the assets of the going business for shares in the new corporation is valid. The owners of the business should be cautioned, however, that unsecured promissory notes or promises to render future services to the corporation in return for the issuance of shares are not permitted. Specifically, promissory notes are not permissible consideration for the issuance of shares unless they are adequately secured by collateral other than the shares themselves or are permitted under an employee stock purchase plan [Corp. Code § 409(a)(1); see Corp. Code § 408].

Another factor to consider in issuing shares for assets is the position of future outside investors in the corporation. That is, the recited consideration for the transfer should not be inflated, and shares should not be issued for the transfer of intangibles not within the statutory definition of consideration, such as contracts for services to be performed in the future [see Corp. Code § 409(a)(1)]. The issuance of shares for overvalued property can give rise to a cause of action for fraud against persons who have, in effect, cheated the corporation by receiving a disproportionate number of shares for property contributed to the corporation. Such a cause of action is likely to be derivative in nature and could also be brought against directors who have participated in a fraudulent evaluation of property that the corporation has purchased with its shares [see Corp. Code §§ 409(b), 415; see also CALIFORNIA FORMS OF PLEADING AND PRACTICE, Ch. 162, Corporations: Issuance of Shares , (Matthew Bender)]. For additional coverage, see Ballantine and Sterling, CALIFORNIA CORPORATION LAWS, Ch. 7, Issuance of Shares and Indebtedness (Matthew Bender).

§ 2A.11 Requirements Regarding Bulk Sales

Under the Uniform Commercial Code--Bulk Sales (Division 6 of the UCC) [see Com. Code §§ 6101-6111], certain actions must be taken before a bulk sale can be made. In the context of incorporating a going business, a "bulk sale" is a sale not in the ordinary course of the seller's business of more than half the seller's inventory and equipment, as measured by value on the date of the bulk-sale agreement [Com. Code § 6102(a)(3)(ii)]. Numerous types of transfers are exempted from the definition of "bulk sale" [see Com. Code § 6103(c)], including the sale of assets to a new organization that is organized to take over and continue the business of the seller, if certain requirements are met [see Com. Code § 6103(c)(11); see also § 2A.111, PP 9, 10; § 2A.203[1]].

In a bulk sale, the buyer must do all of the following [Com. Code § 6104]:

- Obtain from the seller a list of all business names and addresses used by the seller within the preceding three years.

- Give notice of the bulk sale by publication, recordation, and delivery to the tax collector in the county in which the assets are located [see Com. Code § 6105; see Gifford v. J&A Holdings (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 996, 1003-1004, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 253 (interpreting Com. Code § 6105 in light of legislative intent); see also § 2A.203[1]].

- For sales of $2 million or less, pay consideration to satisfy claims of the seller's creditors [see Com. Code § 6106.2].

If the buyer fails to comply with the statutory notice requirements, the buyer is liable for damages in the amount of any claims against the seller, less any amount that the claimant would not have realized if the buyer had complied with the notice requirement [Com. Code § 6107(a); see Com. Code § 6107(c) (good faith effort at compliance), (d) (limitation of liability)].

For a notice of intended bulk sale to a corporation of the assets of a going business, see § 2A.203. For detailed discussion of bulk sales, see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice .

CHAPTER 2A INCORPORATING A GOING BUSINESS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Procedures to Transfer Going Business to Corporation

2-2A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 2A.12

§ 2A.12 Liability Considerations

[1] Corporation's Liability for Debts of Preexisting Business

Because it is a new and distinct entity [see Merco Constr. Engineers, Inc. v. Municipal Court (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 724, 729, 147 Cal. Rptr. 631, 581 P.2d 636] , a corporation is not automatically liable for the debts of its predecessors [Ray v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 22, 28, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574, 560 P.2d 3] . However, a new corporation will be liable for the debts of its predecessor business, or liable on the predecessor's contracts, if it expressly assumes that liability [see Fisher v. Allis-Chalmers Corp. (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 1182, 1188-1190, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 310 (manufacturer's successor in interest was not entitled to summary judgment because it failed to establish that its agreement to assume liabilities excluded plaintiff's product liability claim); Bryan v. Banks (1929) 98 Cal. App. 748, 754, 277 P. 1075] . A corporation that succeeds to the business of its predecessor and voluntarily accepts the benefits of a transaction entered into by a predecessor business consents to all of the obligations arising from that transaction [see Civ. Code § 1589; see also Citizens Suburban Co. v. Rosemont Dev. Co. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 666, 676, 53 Cal. Rptr. 551] . In addition to an express agreement regarding assumption of liability, a corporation may also be liable for its predecessor's debts under any of the following circumstances [Ray v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 22, 28, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574, 560 P.2d 3 ; see Franklin v. USX Corporation (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 615, 629-630, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 11 (successor corporation not liable for asbestos-related injuries under theories of express or implied assumption of tort liabilities of predecessor, de facto merger or mere continuation, or product line successor); Chaknova v. Wilbur-Ellis Co. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 962, 967-969, 969-970, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 871 (for purposes of successor liability in tort for asbestos-related injuries, successor did not expressly or impliedly assume other than specifically identified obligations of predecessor from whom successor purchased line of business; corporate merger did not effectuate adoption of that liability; and corporation was not product line successor under principles set forth in Ray v. Alad Corp; see also Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, Ch. 51, Incorporating the Going Business (Matthew Bender)]:

- An agreement to assume debts is implied by a court.
- The corporation is presumed to have assumed a predecessor's debts (usually when the predecessor was a partnership).

- The transaction amounts to a consolidation or merger of two corporations.

- The purchasing corporation is a mere continuation of the seller [see Katzir's Floor and Home Design, Inc. v. M-MLS.com (9th Cir. 2004) 394 F.3d 1143, 1149-1151 (inadequate consideration is essential ingredient to "mere continuation" finding; amended judgment adding new corporation as additional judgment debtor on successor liability grounds reversed)].

- The corporation participates in a fraudulent transfer to escape liability for the seller's debts.

Although a corporate successor that is liable for the torts of its predecessor by operation of law may seek coverage for that liability under its predecessor's insurance policies, when a corporation assumes liability by contract its rights are defined and limited by that contract [Henkel Corp. v. Hartford (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 934, 941-943, 945, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 828, 62 P.3d 69 (in case in which successor was sued for injuries arising from predecessor's chemical products, any assignment of predecessor's insurance benefits required consent of insurers; no coverage existed when policy had no-assignment clause and insurers did not consent to assignment)].

The new corporation will be liable for sales and use taxes and unemployment insurance obligations of the preexisting business under the successor liability statutes [see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 6811-6814; Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1731-1736; see also Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice].

When an existing business association organized as a trust incorporates, it becomes automatically subject to the debts and liabilities of the preexisting organization as if it had incurred them [Corp. Code § 200.5(d); see § 2A.13].

In the case of a merger, the succeeding corporation is subject to all the debts and liabilities of the disappearing corporation [see Corp. Code § 1107]. For a detailed discussion of mergers, see Ch. 11C, Mergers .

[2] Liability of Owners of Preexisting Business

The former owners will remain personally liable to creditors of the predecessor business for debts incurred before incorporation, and may also be personally liable for debts incurred after incorporation if it is found that the creditor was not notified of the change to corporate form and that the credit was advanced on account of the preexisting business [see Oregon Cedar Etc. Co. v. Ramos & Kohler (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 679, 681-683, 307 P.2d 447] , or if the alter ego doctrine is applicable [see Minton v. Cavaney (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 576, 579, 15 Cal. Rptr. 641, 364 P.2d 473 ; see also Robbins v. Blecher (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 886, 892, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 815 ; Associated Vendors, Inc. v. Oakland Meat Co. (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 825, 838-840, 26 Cal. Rptr. 806 (factors in deciding whether to disregard corporate entity)].

If the predecessor business was a partnership, in the absence of an express or implied agreement with the creditors to the contrary, the former partners remain personally liable to the partnership's creditors for debts incurred before its dissolution. Moreover, the former partners may be personally liable for debts incurred after incorporation if it is found that the creditor was not notified of the partnership's dissolution [see Corp. Code §§ 16804, 16805]. For further coverage of the dissolution of general partnerships, see Ch. 15, Part B, Dissolution of General Partnerships .

When a partnership is incorporated, the partnership ceases to exist after formation of the corporation, even if the entity is operated in a manner similar to that which it was operated as a partnership [Persson v. Smart Inventions, Inc. (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1141, 1157, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 335 (rejecting trial court conclusion that a "de facto" partnership continued to exist concurrently with corporate enterprise); Cavasso v. Downey (1920) 45 Cal.App. 780, 785, 188 P. 594] . Thus, the obligations among partners that flow from a partnership, including fiduciary duties among partners, ordinarily no longer exist and therefore cannot be enforced against one another by the former partners turned shareholders, with the limited exception that courts will enforce pre-incorporation agreements among partners or joint venturers who have incorporated in order to carry out the agreement between or among the partners or joint venturers [Persson v. Smart Inventions, Inc. (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1141, 1157-1159, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 335 ; see also Corp. Code § 16603 (effect of dissociation on fiduciary obligations of partner)].

[3] Other Liability Considerations

In addition to any known obligations that a corporation formed to operate an existing business would normally assume, there may be unknown or contingent claims that could be enforced against the corporation. Among these, and potentially the most devastating from the point of view of business planning, are products liability claims. Although a proprietor or partnership will remain liable after the transfer of the business for damages resulting from pre-transfer product sales [see Rawlings v. D.M. Oliver, Inc. (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 890, 901, 159 Cal. Rptr. 119] , a successor corporation is also likely to be liable if the corporation is subject to the rule imposing liability on a successor corporation when it is merely a continuation of the predecessor corporation [see Pierce v. Riverside Mtg. Securities Co. (1938) 25 Cal. App. 2d 248, 254, 255, 77 P.2d 226 ; see also Ray v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 22, 29, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574, 560 P.2d 3 (continuity of management as basis for imposition of liability on successor corporation); Franklin v. USX Corporation (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 615, 629-630, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 11 (successor corporation not liable for asbestos-related injuries under theories of express or implied assumption of tort liabilities of predecessor, de facto merger or mere continuation, or product line successor); Chaknova v. Wilbur-Ellis Co. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 962, 967-969, 969-970, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 871 (no successor liability for asbestos-related injuries under Ray v. Alad principles)]. However, the persons most vulnerable in this situation will be the corporation's owners who, by incorporating, had thought to confer on themselves the benefit of limited liability. It is therefore prudent when transferring any business with possible products liability exposure to a corporation to provide in the sale document that the corporation will indemnify the former proprietor or partners against that type of claim and, when feasible, insure against that type of liability [see § 2A.202[1][a]].

Existing unincorporated business associations organized as trusts under the laws of California or another state may incorporate [see Corp. Code § 200.5]. This legislation was intended almost exclusively for the benefit of real estate investment trusts (REITs), which may operate in corporate form. To convert to corporate status the approval of the board of trustees and the approval of a majority of the outstanding voting shares of beneficial interest must be obtained, and articles of incorporation that differ only slightly from those filed by corporations generally must be filed [see Corp. Code § 200.5(a)]. The contents, execution, and filing of articles incorporating a business trust are covered in Ch. 3, Articles of Incorporation .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Tax Considerations

2-2A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 2A.20

§ 2A.20 Tax-Free Incorporation of a Going Business

[1] Advantages of Tax-Free Incorporation

In general, it is desirable and possible to incorporate a going business without incurring significant tax liability from the incorporation process. A significant factor in tax-free incorporation is that no gain or loss is recognized for income tax purposes if property is transferred to a corporation solely in exchange for stock in that corporation and immediately after the exchange the persons who made the transfer are in control of the corporation [I.R.C. § 351(a)]. For the purposes of I.R.C. § 351(a), "control" means ownership of stock possessing at least 80 percent of the total combined voting power of all classes of stock entitled to vote and at least 80 percent of the total number of shares of all other classes of the corporation [I.R.C. § 368(c)]. Even though the transfer is not solely in exchange for stock, the transaction may still qualify under I.R.C. § 351, but the other assets received will be deemed taxable "boot" to the transferee and no loss to the recipient will be recognized [see I.R.C. § 351(b)]. For further discussion, see CALIFORNIA SMALL BUSINESS GUIDE, Ch. 5, Obtaining Nonrecognition Treatment on Incorporation , Part B (Matthew Bender).

The fact that a simple exchange of the assets of the going business for shares in the new corporation is tax-free under I.R.C. § 351 could prove to be a problem when taxable gain to the business owners, and therefore a higher basis to the corporation for the business assets, is desired. In that case, the incorporators may have a difficult time avoiding I.R.C. § 351 and making the transfer to the corporation taxable [see § 2A.21].

Tax-free incorporation has many advantages. In addition to the potential gain from the transaction not being taxed [I.R.C. § 351(a)], other benefits include the fact that the basis of the stock received by the transferor of the business will not be reduced by the amount of any potential loss on the transfer as long as the exchange is a simple exchange of business assets for stock [I.R.C. § 358(a)(1)], and the basis of the transferred assets will not be reduced by any potential loss [I.R.C. § 362]. In addition, it is possible that the holding period for long-term capital gain purposes of the stock received in the transfer can include the holding period of the assets before the transfer, and the holding period of the assets by the corporation will include the holding period of the transferor [I.R.C. § 1223].

Moreover, installment sales balances will not be taxed at the time of transfer, nor will the fact that the corporation assumes the accounts payable of the going business cause the assumption to be treated as money or property received by the taxpayer or prevent the exchange from being treated as tax-free [see I.R.C. §§ 351(a), 357(a); see also [3], below].

Ordinarily, there will be no recapture of depreciation [I.R.C. §§ 1245(b)(3), 1250(d)(3)] or investment tax credit [I.R.C. § 50(a); see I.R.C. §§ 46-50] from the transferor on a tax-free incorporation. Instead, recapture of depreciation will be attributed to the corporation [see Treas. Reg. § 1.1245-2(a)(4); see also Rev. Rul. 71-569, 1971-2 C.B. 314]. However, gain is recognized by the transferor to the extent that the transferor receives any assets (that is, "boot") in addition to stock in the Section 351 incorporation [see I.R.C. § 351(b)]. The characterization of the recognized gain, whether ordinary income or capital gain, will be determined with respect to the nature of each asset on which gain is recognized. To the extent that recognized gain is attributable to depreciable property, that gain will be taxed as ordinary income to the transferor [see I.R.C. §§ 1245, 1250(a)(1)].

There will usually be no recapture of investment tax credits even if all of the business assets are not transferred to the newly-formed corporation, such as when the business real property is retained by the original owner and leased to the corporation [Rev. Rul. 83-65, 1983-1 C.B. 10].

Entirely apart from the depreciation recapture rules, the Internal Revenue Code characterizes the entire amount of recognized gain as ordinary income if the gain is attributable to a depreciable asset and the particular transferor and certain members of the transferor's family own more than 50 percent in value of the outstanding stock of the transferee corporation [see I.R.C. § 1239].

[2] Disadvantages of Tax-Free Incorporation

A major disadvantage of tax-free incorporation is that a potential loss from the transaction is not deductible [see I.R.C. § 351]. In addition, the basis of the transferred assets will be the same to the corporation as it was to the transferor and cannot be increased to fair market value [I.R.C. § 362]. Similarly, the basis of the stock received will be the same as the basis of the assets transferred and cannot be increased to the fair market value of the assets at the time of the transfer [see I.R.C. § 358].

The basis of shares received by the transferor in an exchange to which I.R.C. § 351 applies is the same as that of the property exchanged as long as the exchange is simply business assets for shares [see I.R.C. § 358(a)(1)]. However, if there is more than a simple exchange, the basis of those shares will be decreased by the amount of money and the fair market value of property received and the amount of loss recognized by the taxpayer on the exchange [see I.R.C. § 358(a)(1)(A)], and increased by the amount treated as a dividend and the amount of gain recognized to the taxpayer on the exchange [see I.R.C. § 358(a)(1)(B)].

[3] Treatment of Accounts Receivable and Accounts Payable

The transfer of the operating assets of a going business, including unrealized accounts receivable, to the corporation in exchange solely for the corporation's stock and the assumption by the corporation of the going business' liabilities, including accounts payable, is a tax-free exchange under I.R.C. § 351(a). Therefore, no gain or loss is recognized to the transferor in the absence of any evidence that the transaction was designed for tax avoidance [see I.R.C. §§ 351(a), 357; see also Hempt Bros., Inc. v. United States (3d Cir. 1974) 490 F.2d 1172, 1176-1178 , cert. denied, 419 U.S. 826 (1974) ; Rev. Rul. 80-198, 1980-2 C.B. 113]. Tax avoidance would be evidenced by the accumulation of accounts receivable or the prepayment of accounts payable in anticipation of incorporation [see Rev. Rul. 80-198, 1980-2 C.B. 113].

[4] Recognition of Gain in Otherwise Tax-Free Incorporation

If the sum of the liabilities assumed by the exceeds the adjusted basis of that property, the excess will be considered as a gain on the exchange [see I.R.C. § 357(c)(1); see also Peracchi v. C.I.R. (9th Cir. 1998) 143 F.3d 487, 494-495 (because taxpayer transferred real property with encumbrances exceeding basis to corporation, along with promissory note for amount exceeding liabilities, no I.R.C. § 357(c) gain was recognized)]. However, certain liabilities transferred to the corporation are not included in determining the liabilities assumed by the corporation and will not give rise to taxable gain to the transferors. These liabilities include those, such as accounts payable, that would give rise to a deduction when paid, and amounts payable as guaranteed payments to a retiring or successor partner pursuant to I.R.C. § 736(a) [see I.R.C. § 357(c)(3)(A)]. These liabilities will not be considered in determining whether liabilities assumed by the corporation exceed the basis of assets transferred. However, if the incurrence of the liability resulted in the creation of, or any increase in, the basis of any property, the assumption of the liability by the corporation is included in determining whether there will be taxable gain to the transferor on the incorporation [I.R.C. § 357(c)(3)(B)]. In calculating the amount of liability assumed, any portion of a recourse liability is treated as having been assumed if, determined on the basis of all facts and circumstances, the transferee has agreed to (and is expected to) satisfy that liability regardless of whether the transferor has been relieved of the liability [I.R.C. § 357(d)(1)(A)]. Nonrecourse liabilities are treated as assumed, except that the amount is reduced by the lesser of (1) the amount of the liability that an owner of other assets not transferred to the transferee and also subject to the liability has agreed with the transferee, and is expected, to satisfy or (2) the fair market value of those other assets (determined without regard to I.R.C. § 7701(g)) [I.R.C. § 357(d)(1)(B), (2)].

If the person transferring property to a corporation receives nonqualified preferred stock, the transfer is not tax free and the stock is treated as boot [I.R.C. § 351(g)(1); see I.R.C. § 351(g)(2) ("nonqualified preferred stock" defined)].

The tax basis of assets transferred to the corporation will be increased to the extent that gain is recognized on the transfer by reason of the fact that the corporation's assumption of liabilities included in the computation exceeds the original basis of those assets [I.R.C. § 362(a)]. However, to the extent that gain is not recognized on the transfer of the accounts receivable to the corporation, the tax basis of the accounts receivable and other assets to the corporation will be the tax basis of the accounts receivable and other assets to the business immediately before the transfer to the corporation [see I.R.C. § 362(a); see also P.A. Birren & Son v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue (7th Cir. 1940) 116 F.2d 718] .

[5] Tax-Free and Taxable Incorporation of Partnerships

In the incorporation of a partnership, the fact that the basis of the partnership interests to the partners is greater than the basis of the assets to the partnership does not signal an advantageous step-up in the basis of those assets to the corporation under I.R.C. § 351. The partnership will be deemed the transferor of the assets to the corporation for the purpose of determining basis under I.R.C. § 351, regardless of whether it is the actual transferor or whether it terminates and either the partners transfer distributed assets or the partners transfer their interests to the corporation [see I.R.C. §§ 351, 368(c); Treas. Reg. § 1.351-1(a)(1)]. The basis of the stock received by a partner will be an amount equal to the adjusted basis of his or her partnership interest [I.R.C. § 732(b)].

Three factual situations illustrate the different basis in stock and assets that may result from a tax-free incorporation of a partnership pursuant to I.R.C. § 351(a) [see Rev. Rul. 84-111, 1984-2 C.B. 88]:

- X partnership transfers all of its assets to new corporation R in exchange for all of R's outstanding stock and R's assumption of X's liabilities. X terminates by distributing all of R's stock to X's partners in proportion to their partnership interests [see I.R.C. § 708(b)(1)(A)]. R's basis in the X assets equals their basis to X immediately before the transfer [I.R.C. § 362(a)]. X's basis in the R stock equals its basis in the assets transferred to R, reduced by the liabilities assumed by R [I.R.C. § 358(a)]. Each partner's basis in the R stock is equal to the adjusted basis of his or her partnership interest [I.R.C. § 732(b)].

- Y partnership terminates by distributing all of its assets and liabilities to its partners in proportion to their partnership interests [see I.R.C. § 708(b)(1)(A)]. The partners transfer all of the Y assets to new corporation S in exchange for S's outstanding stock and S's assumption of Y's liabilities. The partners' basis in the S stock is equal to their basis in the Y assets received in liquidation [see I.R.C. § 732(b)], reduced by the liabilities assumed by S [I.R.C. § 358(a)]. S's basis in the Y assets equals the partners' basis in those assets immediately before transfer to S [I.R.C. § 362(a)].

- The partners of Z transfer their partnership interest to new corporation T in exchange for all of T's outstanding stock. The exchange terminates Z and its assets and liabilities become those of T. The partners' basis in the T stock equals the basis of their partnership interests transferred to T, reduced by Z's liabilities assumed by T [I.R.C. § 358(a)]. T's basis in the Z assets equals the partners' basis in their partnership interests [see I.R.C. § 732(c)].

B. Tax Considerations

2-2A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 2A.21

§ 2A.21 Taxable Incorporation

[1] Consequences

In the usual incorporation of a going business, I.R.C. § 351 will operate to make tax exemption of the incorporation the rule and taxability the exception. However, taxable incorporation can be advantageous. The primary benefit to be derived from a taxable incorporation is that it will enable the transferor to deduct any loss resulting from the transfer [see I.R.C. § 1001(c)], except when the transferor and his or her family own more than 50 percent of the stock of the transferee corporation [see I.R.C. § 267]. In addition, the basis of both the assets transferred to the corporation and the stock issued will be their fair market value at the time of transfer [I.R.C. § 1012]. This basis will allow an increased depreciation deduction on the assets.

The possibly disadvantageous consequences of taxable incorporation are that any gain to the transferor will be taxed [I.R.C. § 1001; see I.R.C. §§ 55-59, 1245, 1250], the corporation's holding period for long-term capital gain purposes will begin at the time of the transfer [I.R.C. § 1222], and the value of accounts receivable and installment sales balances will be taxed to the transferor at the time of transfer [I.R.C. § 1001]. Moreover, if the transfer results in a loss (that is, the former basis of the assets is higher than their fair market value), the basis of the stocks and securities transferred will be decreased accordingly [I.R.C. § 1012].

When the advantages of taxable incorporation are desired, careful attention must be paid to the particular facts of the incorporation to avoid tax-free status under I.R.C. § 351. The most commonly used methods are the issuance of more than 20 percent of at least one class of stock to outsiders (nontransferors and probably nonfamily) [see I.R.C. §§ 351(a), 368(c)], and the postponement of the transfer of certain assets until after the incorporation, with the subsequent sale of those assets to the corporation. In the case of a sale of assets, gain will be recognized to the transferor on the sale, and the assets will take a stepped-up basis, provided that the sale is not a part of the overall plan of incorporation [see Tuller v. United States (Ct. Cl. 1936) 14 F. Supp. 188, 191] .

CHAPTER 2A INCORPORATING A GOING BUSINESS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Tax Considerations

2-2A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 2A.22

§ 2A.22 Timing Date of Incorporation for Tax Purposes

[1] Deducting Net Operating Loss

In most cases, the net operating loss of a business may be deducted from income of the two years preceding the year of the loss [I.R.C. § 172(b)(1)(A)(i)]. Net operating losses occurring in 2001 or 2002 may be deducted from income of the five taxable years preceding the year of the loss [I.R.C. § 172(b)(1)(A)(i), (H); see I.R.C. § 172(j) (election to disregard 5-year carryback)]. Then, with certain exceptions, any excess net operating loss may be applied against income for the next 20 years [see I.R.C. § 172(b)(1)(A)(ii)], but, the excess loss of the unincorporated business may not be applied against the income of the corporate successor [New Colonial Ice Co. v. Helvering (1934) 292 U.S. 435, 441, 54 S. Ct. 788, 78 L. Ed. 1348]. Accordingly, it is often advisable to postpone the date of incorporation until at least some of the loss has been deducted.

In the event of a transfer of partnership assets and interests to a corporation formed to carry on the business of the partnership, improper timing could result in the bunching of more than 12 months of partnership income into one tax year of the partners. This is because partners must compute their income on the basis of partnership income for any taxable year of the partnership ending within or with their taxable years [I.R.C. § 706(a)], and because in the event of the termination of the partnership, its taxable year will close [I.R.C. § 706(c)].

A partnership terminates if it discontinues its operation, or sells or exchanges more than half of the total interest in partnership capital and profits [see I.R.C. § 708(b)]. Thus, for example, assume that a partnership has a fiscal year ending on January 31 and that its two partners are calendar-year taxpayers. If the partnership were to terminate and incorporate on December 31, 1993, the partners would have to report their respective shares of partnership income not only for the 12 months ending January 31, 1993, but also for the 11 months ending December 31, 1993, or for a total of 23 months, on their individual income tax returns for the year 1993 [see Guaranty Trust Co. v. Commissioner of Int. Rev. (1938) 303 U.S. 493, 500, 58 S. Ct. 673, 82 L. Ed. 975]. Accordingly, an incorporating partnership may wish to schedule the date of incorporation to avoid this situation.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Tax Considerations

2-2A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 2A.23

§ 2A.23 Depreciation and Investment Tax Credit

In general, the transferee corporation will be entitled to a deduction for depreciation in the value of the transferred assets from the exhaustion, wear, and tear (including a reasonable allowance for obsolescence) of property used in a trade or business or held for the production of income [I.R.C. §§ 167(a), 168]. Both the applicable method of depreciation [see I.R.C. § 168(b)] and the predetermined recovery period [see I.R.C. § 168(c)] applicable to various classes of property [see I.R.C. § 168(e)] are specified by statute [see I.R.C. § 168(a)], depending on when the property is placed in service [see I.R.C. § 168(d); see also I.R.C. § 168(f), (g) (alternative depreciation system), (h) (exceptions), (k) (additional 50-percent first-year depreciation deduction)]. For further discussion of depreciation, see Ch. 53, Personal Property Leasing .

Ordinarily, an investment tax credit previously taken will be subject to recapture on early disposition [I.R.C. § 50(a)(1)-(3)]. However, this rule does not apply when there is a mere change in the form in which the trade or business involved is conducted, so long as the property is retained in the trade or business and the taxpayer retains a substantial interest in that business [I.R.C. § 50(a)(4)]. If the transferred assets are later sold by the corporation at a gain, the corporation will be subject to tax on the gain [see I.R.C. §§ 1001, 1245, 1250] and the shareholders will be subject to another tax on any distribution of the proceeds [I.R.C. § 301]. These adverse consequences can be avoided by leasing the property to the corporation rather than transferring it in exchange for shares.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Tax Considerations

2-2A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 2A.24

§ 2A.24 State Tax Considerations

[1] Sales and Use Tax

Various state taxation issues may arise in the incorporation of a going business. The Sales and Use Tax Law [see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 6001-7176] imposes a tax on the gross receipts of a retailer from the sale of tangible personal property sold at retail in California [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 6051-6051.5]. A sale "at retail" includes a sale for any purpose other than resale in the regular course of business [Rev. & Tax. Code § 6007]. A one-time sale of assets may qualify as a retail sale subject to the imposition of sales tax, even if the seller has never sold personal property at retail before [see Santa Fe Energy Co. v. California State Bd. of Equalization (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 176, 182, 206 Cal. Rptr. 499] . Accordingly, the transfer of personal property to the new corporation for consideration other than stock may be considered a taxable sale, subjecting the corporation to payment of state sales tax [see 18 Cal. Code Reg. § 1595(b)(4)].

However, various exemptions apply to prevent application of sales tax, such as the transfer of 80 percent of more of all tangible personal property used in a business when 80 percent or more of the real or ultimate ownership of the property is substantially the same after the transfer [see 18 Cal. Code Reg. § 1595(b)(2)]. In addition, the gross receipts from an "occasional sale" [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 6006.5 (definition)] of tangible personal property are exempt from sales and use tax [Rev. & Tax. Code § 6367]. One of these exemptions is likely to be applicable to most incorporations of going businesses. For further discussion of the applicability of the Sales and Use Tax Law and other state and local taxes, see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice .

[2] Real Property Tax

Real property in California is subject to property taxation at its full value unless exempt under California or federal law [Cal. Const. art. XIII, § 1; Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 201, 401]. When real property is subject to a change in ownership, its value is reassessed for property tax purposes [Rev. & Tax. Code § 75.10(a); see Rev. & Tax. Code § 110.1(a)(2)]. Transfer of an interest in real property is a "change in ownership" that causes a reassessment of the property [Rev. & Tax. Code § 60]. However, a transfer between an individual and a corporation that results solely in a change in the method of holding title, with no change in proportional ownership interests, is not a "change in ownership" [Rev. & Tax. Code § 62(a)(2)]. For further discussion of real property taxes, see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements .

For further discussion of state taxation issues incident to the transfer of a business, see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice .

§ 2A.100 Facts

1. Type or nature of business being incorporated.

NOTE:
This information will be useful in drafting the corporation's articles and determining whether a bulk transfer notice must be given to creditors [see § 2A.111, P 9].

2. Location of business, including county and judicial district in which it is located.

NOTE:
The fictitious business name certificate is filed in the county in which the place of business is located [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17915, 17916; see also Ch. 1A, Role of Counsel in Starting a New Business]. Any required bulk sale notice must be (1) recorded in the office of the county recorder in the county or counties in which the tangible assets are located; (2) published in the judicial district in which the tangible assets are located, and, if different, the judicial district in which the seller is located [see Com. Code § 6103(a)(2)]; and (3) delivered or sent to the county tax collector in the counties or counties in which the tangible assets are located [Com. Code § 6105(b); see Com. Code § 6105(b)(3); Rev. & Tax. Code § 441]. For further discussion, see § 2A.113, Paragraph 2.

3. For all owners of going business:

a. Names and addresses.

b. Relationships to each other, whether family, partnership, or other.

c. Social Security or taxpayer identification numbers.

4. Net worth of business to determine amount of stock corporation may issue.

5. Each owner's interest in going business.

NOTE:
Shares to be issued by the corporation without a permit from the Commissioner of Corporations under the small offering exemption (no more than 35 persons) must be issued to the business owners in the same proportions as the business was owned by them immediately before the issuance of the shares [see Corp. Code § 25102(h)(2)(A)]. No such restriction applies to shares issued under the limited offering exemption [see Corp. Code § 25102(f)].

a. Net worth in dollar amounts.

b. Net worth as percentage of total net worth of business.

6. List of business assets, including inventory and accounts receivable, listing:

a. Adjusted basis of each owner of unincorporated business in each asset.

b. Value of each asset and manner in which value was determined:
(1) Appraised value.

(2) Depreciated "book" value.

(3) Fair market or other value.

(4) If construction or service business is being incorporated, manner of determining value of work in progress.

7. List of business liabilities, including accounts payable, and:

a. Names of creditors.

b. Purposes of obligations.

c. Terms of obligations.

8. Accounting method (cash or accrual) used by business for tax purposes.

9. Accounting and tax periods for:

NOTE:
This information will be useful in determining the date on which the business may most advantageously be transferred to the corporation [see § 2A.22].

a. Business to be incorporated.

b. Each of business owners.

10. Name, address, and telephone number of accountant, if any, employed by business.

NOTE:
It is desirable to obtain the comments and suggestions of the accountant with respect to the proposed capital structure of the new corporation and all tax and accounting aspects prior to incorporation.

11. Facts needed for exemption from qualification or qualification of offer and sale of shares:

a. Limited offering exemption [see Corp. Code § 25102(f); see also Ch. 6B, California Limited Offering Exemptions].

b. Small offering exemption [see Corp. Code § 25102(h); see also Ch. 6C, California Small Offering Exemption].

c. California "qualified purchaser" exemptions [see Corp. Code § 25102(i), (n); see also Ch. 6C, California Qualified Purchaser Exemption].

d. Qualification if exemption does not apply [see Ch. 6H, Qualification of Securities].

12. Whether going business will continue to operate separately after formation of new corporation.

13. Names and addresses of any insurance agents or brokers servicing business.

14. Account numbers for:

a. State unemployment compensation.

b. Workers' compensation.

c. Sales and use tax.

15. Federal employer identification number used by business.

16. Details of any pending litigation.

17. Location and account numbers of all existing business bank or investment accounts.

1. Any leases that are to be assigned to corporation.

2. Instruments, such as deeds or title policies, that show legal description of any real property that is to be transferred to corporation and names in which title to property stands.

3. Financial statements:

a. Last available balance sheet.

b. Profit and loss statements for each of past three years, or, if business has been operated for less than three years, for period business has been operated.

NOTE:
This will be particularly necessary if the corporation will require a permit from the Commissioner of Corporations to issue its shares in exchange for the business.

4. Any instruments that are to be assigned to new corporation:

a. Contracts.

b. Franchise agreements.

c. Notes.

d. Other instruments.

5. Partnership agreement, if any.

6. Preincorporation agreement between owners of business to be incorporated, if any [see § 2A.200].

7. Copies of all insurance policies held by business or its owners for business purposes.

8. Copies of all licenses or permits issued to:

a. Owners.

b. Business.

c. Employees.

9. Any buy-sell agreements currently in force between owners of business.

10. Tax returns of going business showing, with respect to currently owned property:

a. Depreciation allowances allowed or allowable.

b. Investment tax credits taken.

11. Fictitious business name statement filed by going business.

NOTE:
The corporation, once formed, may have to file a new fictitious business name statement and the going business may have to file a statement of abandonment of its fictitious business name [see § 2A.113, P 3].

2-2A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 2A.110

§ 2A.110 Formation of Corporation

NOTE:
For the purposes of this section, it is assumed that a decision has already been made to incorporate the going business following due consideration of the advantages and disadvantages of doing business either as a sole proprietorship, a partnership, or a corporation.

1. Select name for corporation.

NOTE:
For the general considerations relating to the selection of a corporate name, see Ch. 2, Formation of Corporations **.

a. Is use of existing firm's name as part of corporation's name advisable or desirable based on:
(1) Whether there is substantial goodwill or name identification associated with firm's name.

NOTE:
The "goodwill" of a business is the expectation of continued public patronage [Bus. & Prof. Code § 14100]. Goodwill is a transferable property interest [Bus. & Prof. Code § 14102]. For discussion of the issues involved in transferring the goodwill of a business, see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice .

(2) Whether change of name will be likely to have adverse effect on sales or income of firm.

(3) If firm's name includes name of owner, whether that name should continue as part of corporation's name after owner's death.

b. Is name tentatively selected available for use as corporate name?

NOTE:

For coverage of checking the availability of and reserving a corporate name, see Ch. 2, Formation of Corporations .

2. Determine nature of new corporation's business.

NOTE:

The articles of incorporation must include a statement of the corporation's purpose [Corp. Code § 202(b)]. For coverage of the corporate purpose, see Ch. 3, Articles of Incorporation .

3. Set up schedule for process of incorporating going business [see Ch. 2, Formation of Corporations].

4. Should corporation, if eligible, elect Subchapter S status and, thus, be subject to minimal federal income tax but subject its shareholders to tax on corporate income [see Ch. 2B, Electing Subchapter S Status]?

5. Is it possible to protect shareholders of corporation, if it should become unprofitable, by having corporation issue "Section 1244 stock," that is, stock which, when sold at loss, would result in limited amount of loss being treated as ordinary rather than capital loss [I.R.C. § 1244(a), (b)]?

NOTE:

Section 1244 stock is preferred or common stock in a domestic corporation if, at the time of issue, the corporation is a small business corporation, the stock is issued for money or other property (but not for stock or securities), and the corporation derives more than half of its gross receipts from sources other than rents, royalties, dividends, interest, annuities, and sales or exchanges of stocks or securities during the five years preceding the loss [see I.R.C. § 1244(c)(1)]. A corporation is treated as a "small business corporation" if the aggregate amount of money and other property received by it for stock, as a contribution to capital, and as paid-in surplus, does not exceed $1,000,000 [I.R.C. § 1244(c)(3)]. For further discussion of Section 1244 stock, see Ch. 6A, Federal Securities Exemptions for California Nonpublic Corporations .

6. Will corporation be formed as close corporation [see Ch. 2, Formation of Corporations ; see also CALIFORNIA SMALL BUSINESS GUIDE (Matthew Bender)]?

7. What accounting period is to be used by corporation?

a. Calendar year.

b. Fiscal year.

8. What method of accounting will be used by corporation?

a. Cash.

b. Accrual.

9. What effect will incorporation have on existing contracts, liabilities, and suppliers of business [see Ch. 2, Formation of Corporations ; see also § 2A.113]?

10. What organizational expenses will be incurred in incorporating going business?

a. What costs can be expected [see Ch. 2, Formation of Corporations]?

b. Who will pay those costs?

c. If owners of business will advance these costs, will those advances be canceled by issuance of shares to those owners [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 260.102.11, 260.105.23; see also Ch. 2, Formation of Corporations]?

11. If going business will continue to operate separately after incorporation of new business, consider:

a. Desirability of noncompetition agreement between businesses [see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice].

b. Division of assets and liabilities between businesses [see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice].

DIVISION I: BUSINESS AND NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS
CHAPTER 2A INCORPORATING A GOING BUSINESS
PART III. TRANSACTION GUIDE
B. Preliminary Determinations

2-2A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 2A.111

§ 2A.111 Transfers to Corporation From Going Business

1. On what date should business be transferred to corporation, depending largely on:

a. When income from business can best or most advantageously be shifted for income tax purposes from individual business owners to corporation; and

NOTE:
This factor involves consideration of whether lower income taxes will result when the corporation's first taxable year will be less than 12 months and its income for that year will be relatively small, or when its taxable income for its first taxable year will be relatively small. It also involves the general considerations set forth in Ch. 2, Formation of Corporations **.

b. Date on which shares are to be issued, whether in exchange for business assets or for those assets and additional cash, property, or services?

NOTE:
Because the offer and sale of the corporation's shares will almost invariably be exempt from the qualification requirements of the Corporate Securities Law under either the limited offering exemption or the small offering exemption [see Corp. Code § 25102(f), (h)], the date on which the business is to be transferred to the corporation may be set as the shareholders think desirable. However, timely filing of notices is required under both exemptions [see Corp. Code § 25102(f)(4), 25102(h)(4); see also Ch. 6B, California Limited Offering Exemptions , Ch. 6C, California Small Offering Exemption].

2. Should transfer of business to corporation in exchange for its shares be tax-free [see I.R.C. § 351] or taxable?

NOTE:

For discussion of the advantages and disadvantages of choosing tax-free or taxable incorporation, see §§ 2A.20 and 2A.21. In general, the corporation's basis for federal income tax purposes of property transferred to it in a tax-free exchange is the same as the transferor's basis for that property before the exchange [see I.R.C. § 362]. When appreciated property is being transferred to the corporation, it may be advisable to attempt to make the transfer taxable so that the corporation will get a new, higher basis for the property. Note, however, that a taxable transfer of depreciable property to a closely held corporation will be taxable as ordinary income rather than as capital gain [I.R.C. § 1239].

3. What cash assets of business should be transferred to corporation?

a. Should only minimal amount of cash be transferred to corporation to avoid possibility that subsequent withdrawal of cash from corporation will be treated as dividend if corporation has accumulated earnings and profits at that time?

NOTE:

In some cases it may be advisable to avoid transferring any cash to the corporation and having the corporation borrow cash from the shareholders or a lender, in which case the interest cost would be a deductible expense. However, when the owner of a going business loans money to the corporation, the IRS will scrutinize the transaction to determine whether the "loan" is debt or equity [see I.R.C. § 385]. If equity, the "interest" payments would not be allowed as deductions and would be viewed instead, along with the payments of "principal," as disguised dividends to the shareholder. A high ratio of debt to equity is known as "thin incorporation." For a discussion of thin incorporation and the criteria employed by the IRS in determining whether a loan is debt or equity, see Ch. 2, Formation of Corporations . For further discussion, see Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, ch. 71, How to Obtain Significant Advantages Through Mixed Debt and Equity Shareholder Financing; Thin Corporations (Matthew Bender).

b. Consider retaining sufficient amount of cash to pay liabilities of business not being assumed by corporation.

4. Determine what liabilities and accounts receivable of going business should be assumed by or transferred to corporation:

a. Determine tax basis of assets other than accounts receivable to be transferred to corporation.

b. Determine tax basis of accounts receivable to be transferred to corporation.

NOTE:

For a discussion of the treatment of accounts receivable in a tax-free exchange, see § 2A.20[3]. For the extent to which gain will be recognized to the transferors in an otherwise tax-free exchange, see § 2A.20[4].

c. Determine whether liabilities assumed will exceed tax basis of assets being transferred (assigning zero basis to accounts receivable transferred by cash basis owners of going business) [see P 4b, above; see also Peracchi v. C.I.R. (9th Cir. 1998) 143 F.3d 487, 494-496 (taxpayer who transferred real property with encumbrances exceeding basis to corporation also gave promissory note for amount exceeding liabilities to avoid I.R.C. § 357(c) recognition of gain; basis of note held to be face value, and note held not to be "sham" or gift)].

NOTE:

In determining the net excess liabilities for the purpose of computing a transferor's net gain [see I.R.C. § 357(c)(1)], liabilities for accounts payable that would give rise to a deduction by the transferor and for any obligations of the transferor for payments to a retiring partner or a deceased partner's successor are excluded [I.R.C. § 357(c)(3)(A); see I.R.C. § 736(a)] unless incurrence of the liability resulted in creation of, or an increase in, the basis of any property [I.R.C. § 357(c)(3)(B)].

In calculating the amount of liability assumed, any portion of a recourse liability is treated as having been assumed if, determined on the basis of all facts and circumstances, the transferee has agreed to (and is expected to) satisfy that liability regardless of whether the transferor has been relieved of the liability [I.R.C. § 357(d)(1)(A)]. Nonrecourse liabilities are treated as assumed, except that the amount is reduced by the lesser of (1) the amount of the liability that an owner of other assets not transferred to the transferee and also subject to the liability has agreed with the transferee, and is expected, to satisfy or (2) the fair market value of those other assets (determined without regard to I.R.C. § 7701(g)) [I.R.C. § 357(d)(1)(B), (2)].

5. Should going business retain title to business real property and lease it to corporation or transfer it to corporation?

NOTE:

If the incorporation of a going business is structured as a taxable transaction, the gain recognized on the sale to the corporation of depreciable real property by any owner of the business who will own 50 percent or more of the corporation's stock is taxable as ordinary income [see I.R.C. § 1239; see also I.R.C. § 267(c) (constructive ownership of stock)]. Such a shareholder should not plan to sell that type of property to the corporation, even at a subsequent date, unless it will be sold at its tax basis to eliminate taxable gain on the sale [see I.R.C. § 1239]. In a tax-free exchange, for property placed in service before 1981 and acquired by the corporation in a tax-free exchange after 1980, or for property placed in service after 1986 without the corporation's electing to use straight-line depreciation [see I.R.C. § 168(b)(5)], the corporation normally will use the accelerated cost recovery system (ACRS) of depreciation [see former I.R.C. § 168(e)(4)(C) (as enacted by Pub. L. No. 97-248); I.R.C. §§ 168, 381(c)(6)], but for any other type of property only the straight-line method of depreciation may be used [see I.R.C. § 167(a), (c)].

Retaining title to the business real property will not constitute a change in substance rather than form of the business that triggers application of the rules governing the recapture of investment tax credit [see I.R.C. § 50(a); see also I.R.C. § 38], as long as the business real property continues to be used in the trade or business and the taxpayer retains a substantial interest in that trade or business [Rev. Rul. 83-65, 1983-1 C.B. 10 ; see Treas. Reg. § 1.47-3(f)(1)(ii)].

For a discussion of the ramifications of change of ownership of real property for California tax purposes, see § 2A.131.

6. Should any patents or copyrights held by going business be retained by it and licensed to corporation with provisions for payment of royalties by corporation?

NOTE:

For discussion of licensing copyrights, see Ch. 103A, Copyrights , Part A.

7. Consider transfer of all other assets of going business to corporation.

NOTE:

The assets consisting of the self-employment retirement plan of the existing firm should not be transferred to the corporation since the proprietor or proprietors will no longer be self-employed but, instead, will be employed by the corporation, and contributions for retirement will be to different types of plans.

8. Consider effect of transfer of property by owner of going business to corporation when that person will own (directly or indirectly) more than 50 percent in value of corporation's outstanding shares.

NOTE:

No income tax deduction will be allowed to a more- than-50-percent shareholder for losses on the sale or exchange of the property [I.R.C. § 267(a)(1), (b)(2)] or for otherwise deductible expenses, under certain circumstances [see I.R.C. § 267(a)(2), (b)(2)*].

9. Determine whether transfer of firm's assets to corporation will be subject to bulk sale provisions of Commercial Code because:

NOTE:

If the Uniform Commercial Code--Bulk Sales Division applies, the buyer must give public notice of the bulk sale, essentially to provide notice to the seller's creditors [see Com. Code §§ 6101-6111*; see also § 2A.113*, P 2]. For a form of notice of bulk sale, see § 2A.203.

a. Seller's principal business is sale of inventory from stock, including business that manufactures what it sells, or principal business is that of restaurant owner [Com. Code § 6103(a)(1); see Com. Code § 6103(c) (exceptions)];

b. On date of bulk sale agreement, seller is located in California or is located in jurisdiction outside United States but has its major American executive office in California [Com. Code § 6103(a)(2); see Com. Code § 6103(b)]; and

c. Sale of assets is not in ordinary course of seller's business and constitutes more than half of seller's inventory and equipment [Com. Code § 6102(a)(3)].

NOTE:

In determining the percentage of the seller's inventory and equipment being transferred, the assets are valued at their fair market value as of the date of the bulk sale agreement [Com. Code § 6102(a)(3), (8), (15)]. If the consideration for the sale of assets is $2,000,000 or less and is substantially all in cash or an obligation of the buyer to pay cash in the future, the buyer or escrow agent is subject to additional requirements regarding payment of creditor claims [see Com. Code §§ 6106.2, 6106.4*].

10. If transfer would otherwise be subject to bulk sale provisions of Commercial Code [see P 9, above], does transfer qualify for exemption covering sales to new organizations because [Com. Code § 6103(c)(11)]:

NOTE:

Many transactions are specifically exempted from the bulk sales law [see Com. Code § 6103(c)*], including a sale of assets with a value of less than $10,000 or a value of more than $5,000,000 [Com. Code § 6103(c)(12)]. For further discussion of exemptions, see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice .

a. Sale of assets is to new organization that is organized to take over and continue business of seller;

b. Buyer has its principal place of business in United States [see Com. Code §§ 6102(a)(14), 6103(b)];

c. Buyer assumes in full all debts that were incurred in seller's business before date of bulk sale [see Com. Code § 6102(a)(7)];

d. Seller receives nothing from sale except interest in new organization that is subordinate to claims against new organization arising from assumption of debts; and

e. Buyer records and publishes notice of assumption of debts not later than 30 days after date of bulk sale [see Com. Code §§ 6103(e), 6105]?

CHAPTER 2A INCORPORATING A GOING BUSINESS
PART III. TRANSACTION GUIDE
B. Preliminary Determinations

§ 2A.112 Shareholders and Share Transactions

1. Should going business be transferred to corporation solely in exchange for shares of corporation, or for shares plus cash, notes, or other property?

NOTE:

Determination of this question will, in large part, depend on whether a tax-free or taxable transfer to the corporation is desirable [see §§ 2A.20, 2A.21; see also Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, Ch. 85, Transfers of Property to a Controlled Corporation]. The California Board of Equalization indicates that a sales tax may be due on the transfer of fixtures and equipment to the corporation to the extent that anything other than securities of the corporation is received by the transferors [see Gobar, California Sales Tax Problems in Disposing of a Close Corporation, 19 S. Cal. Tax. Inst. 91, 102-104 (1967)].

The small offering exemption [Corp. Code § 25102(h)] from qualification for the issuance of the stock may be used even though notes as well as shares are issued by the corporation in consideration for the transfer of assets to it, since notes are not deemed a second class of securities for this purpose [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.102.4]. The limited offering exemption has no limitation on the type of consideration that can be received by shareholders [see Corp. Code § 25102(f)]. However, when notes are issued by the corporation, there is a risk that the IRS will reclassify them as securities [see I.R.C. § 385; see also § 2A.111, P 3].

2. How much will each share issued by corporation in exchange for business be worth (that is, how much stock should be issued)?

NOTE:

For detailed coverage of initial financing and issuance of securities, see Ch. 6I, Issuance of Equity Securities .

3. Will issue of shares be exempt from qualification under one of following exemptions:

a. Limited offering exemption [Corp. Code § 25102(f); see Ch. 6B, California Limited Offering Exemptions , Part E]?

b. Small offering exemption [Corp. Code § 25102(h); see Ch. 6C, California Small Offering Exemption]?

4. What stock transfer restrictions should be included in:

a. Bylaws [see Ch. 4, Bylaws]?

b. Articles of incorporation [see Ch. 3, Articles of Incorporation]?

c. Shareholders' agreement if corporation is close corporation (that is, if corporation will have 35 or fewer shareholders) [see Corp. Code § 158]?

NOTE:
The shareholders of a close corporation, or the sole shareholder of a close corporation, and the corporation may enter into a shareholders' agreement [see Corp. Code §§ 186, 300(b)]. A close corporation's articles and share certificates must state limitations on the number of shareholders the corporation may have [see Corp. Code §§ 158, 418]. In contrast, a shareholders' agreement generally contains restrictions regarding share transfers and shareholders' rights of first refusal. If the corporation issues uncertificated securities [see Corp. Code § 191.1; Com. Code § 8102(a)(18)], the statements required by Corp. Code § 418 must appear on the initial transaction statement and written statements for those securities [Corp. Code § 418].

5. What fringe benefits will be available to corporation employees?

a. Qualified profit-sharing plan [I.R.C. § 401].

b. Qualified pension plan [see I.R.C. § 401].

c. Group life insurance [see I.R.C. § 79].

NOTE:
The corporation can deduct premiums and the employees will not have to include as income the amount of premiums on group term insurance not exceeding a coverage of $50,000 per employee [I.R.C. §§ 79, 162(a)]. Further, the cost of the excess coverage, while includable, is taxed at the rates provided in the regulations rather than at actual cost of the excess coverage [Treas. Reg. § 1.79-3(d)(2)]. However, if the corporation's group term life insurance plan discriminates in favor of key employees, either with respect to eligibility to participate or the type and amounts of available benefits, those key employees will not receive favorable tax treatment in terms of the exclusion or the uniform rates [see I.R.C. § 79(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 12A, Professional Corporations .

d. Wage continuation plans [I.R.C. § 105].

NOTE:

Premium payments for disability insurance are deductible by the corporation [Treas. Reg. § 1.162-10(a)], and are not includable in the employee's gross income [I.R.C. § 106]. For further discussion, see Ch. 12A, Professional Corporations .

e. Accident and health plan [I.R.C. § 106].

f. Deferred compensation.

g. Death benefits.

NOTE:

In general, gross income does not include amounts received under a life insurance contract by reason of the death of the insured [I.R.C. § 101(a)]. Amounts paid for life insurance are deductible by the corporation [see I.R.C. § 162(a)].

h. Employee stock ownership plan [see I.R.C. § 422].

NOTE:

For discussion of employee stock ownership plans, and forms to implement such plans, see Chapter 85, Employment Agreements . For complete discussion of employer stock ownership plans, see Rabkin & Johnson, CURRENT LEGAL FORMS WITH TAX ANALYSIS, Ch. 13, Pension Plans and Other Exempt Employees' Plans (Matthew Bender).

i. Additional fringe benefits such as no-additional cost services, qualified employee discounts, working condition fringe benefits, de minimis fringe benefits, qualified transportation fringe benefits, and qualified moving expense reimbursements [see I.R.C. § 132].

CHAPTER 2A INCORPORATING A GOING BUSINESS
PART III. TRANSACTION GUIDE
B. Preliminary Determinations

2-2A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 2A.113

§ 2A.113 Notice Requirements

1. If incorporation will affect existing contract obligations, consider whether corporation should:

a. Merely notify other contracting parties of assignment of contract to corporation; or

b. Notify other party of assignment, and:
(1) Expressly assume liability; or

(2) Obtain agreement to novation.

NOTE:
For forms of novation agreements and discussion of applicable law, see Ch. 77, Discharge of Obligations .

2. What form of notice must be given to public or going business's creditors?

a. Public notice if business makes bulk sale and is required by Commercial Code to give notice.

NOTE:
The bulk sale provisions of the Commercial Code [see Com. Code §§ 6101-6111] apply to sellers whose principal business is the sale of inventory from stock, whose principal business is to manufacture what they sell, and whose principal business is that of a restaurant owner [Com. Code § 6103(a); see Com. Code § 6103(c) (exceptions)]. Unless specifically exempted, a bulk sale is subject to the public notice requirement [see Com. Code §§ 6104(b), 6105] if the sale is not in the ordinary course of the seller's business and constitutes more than half of the seller's inventory and equipment [Com. Code §

6102(a)(3)]. For a notice of bulk sale, see § 2A.203. For detailed discussion of bulk sale requirements, see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice .

b. Notice of intended transfer if retail alcoholic beverage license is involved [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 24073; see also Ch. 18, Buying and Selling a Retail Alcoholic Beverage License and Business].

c. If business is a partnership, file statement of dissolution of partnership [see Corp. Code § 16805 (nonpartners have notice of dissolution 90 days after statement is filed)].

NOTE:
For detailed discussion of the dissolution of general partnerships, see Ch. 15, Part B, Dissolution of General Partnerships .

3. Is fictitious business name statement [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900] or statement of abandonment of fictitious business name [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17922] required [see Ch. 1A, Role of Counsel in Starting a New Business]?

4. Do other organizations and persons need to be notified of change of business form?

a. Government entities, such as:

(1) Franchise Tax Board.

(2) State Board of Equalization.

(3) Employment Development Department.

(4) Workers' Compensation Appeals Board.

(5) Internal Revenue Service.

(6) Social Security Administration.

b. Business and private entities, such as:

(1) Insurance providers.

(2) Professional journals and publications.

(3) Business associates.

(4) Customers.

(5) Outside contractors.

§ 2A.120 Preincorporation Procedures

NOTE:
Before any work is undertaken to form a corporation, the attorney should have an agreement with the client regarding the scope of incorporation work to be performed by the attorney on the client's behalf. For agreements between attorneys and clients to provide legal services, see Ch. 86A, Agreements for Legal Services .

1. Draft and have business owners execute agreement to incorporate [see § 2A.200] in order to:

a. Specify all pertinent terms and minimize misunderstandings.

b. Preclude claim by any owner that he or she did not consent to incorporation.

NOTE:
The agreement should be in exact accordance with the terms of any agreement under which the going business was organized with respect to any future incorporation.

c. Specify whether owners intend to dissolve going business entity or continue it as separate ongoing entity.

NOTE:
If there are any dissenting owners, the incorporation agreement should specify the dissolution of the existing entity and the terms under which dissenters' shares will be purchased. If the existing business is a partnership, the partnership agreement may govern and, accordingly, should be examined.

d. Provide for share transfer restrictions if corporation is to be close corporation (that is, have 35 or fewer shareholders) [see Corp. Code § 158].

2. Protect name selected by owners for new corporation:

a. If going business name is to be used as part of corporate name, have owners of going business execute agreement to transfer right to use that name to corporation.

b. If new name will be used, select name that complies with statutory requirements [see Corp. Code § 201; see also Ch. 2, Formation of Corporations].

c. File formal reservation with Secretary of State [see Ch. 2, Formation of Corporations].

§ 2A.121 Incorporation Procedures

1. Draft articles of incorporation [see Ch. 3, Articles of Incorporation], which must include [see Corp. Code § 202]:

a. Name of corporation.

b. Purpose of corporation.

c. Name and address of initial agent for service of process.

d. If corporation is authorized to issue one class of shares, total number of shares authorized to be issued.

e. If corporation is authorized to issue more than one class of shares, number, designation, and rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions of each class.

2. Have directors or incorporators execute articles of incorporation [Corp. Code § 200; see Ch. 3, Articles of Incorporation].

3. File articles of incorporation with Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 200; see Ch. 3, Articles of Incorporation].

4. Advise directors of new corporation to call, give proper notice of, and hold organizational meeting of corporation's board of directors, and to:

a. Approve organizational resolutions [see P 5, below].

b. Adopt bylaws for governance of corporation [see Ch. 4, Bylaws].

5. Draft organizational resolutions and have them adopted by organizational meeting of board:

a. Accepting business owners' offer to transfer business to corporation in exchange for its shares.

b. Determining fair value, in monetary terms, of business for which corporation's shares are to be exchanged [Corp. Code § 409(e)].

c. If corporation will require permit from Commissioner of Corporations to issue shares in exchange for business [see Corp. Code §§ 25110, 25113], draft and have adopted resolution authorizing officers of corporation to:
(1) Apply for permit.

(2) On receipt of permit, issue shares in strict compliance with provisions of permit [see Ch. 6I, Issuance of Equity Securities].

d. When issuance of shares by corporation in exchange for business qualifies for limited offering exemption or small offering exemption [see Ch. 6B, California Limited Offering Exemptions , and Ch. 6C, California Small Offering Exemption].

e. If transfer of business to corporation is subject to Uniform Commercial Code--Bulk Sales Division [see § 2A.113, P 2a], draft and have adopted resolution authorizing and instructing officers of corporation to do all things in connection with transfer of business to corporation that may be required by provisions of Uniform Commercial Code--Bulk Sales Division [see Com. Code §§ 6101-6111].

NOTE:
This resolution may be prepared using the format illustrated in the general form for corporate resolutions [see Ch. 5, Directors' Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions , Form 5.50]. For discussion of the bulk sale notice requirements, see § 2A.203[1]. The application of the bulk sale provisions are discussed in detail in Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice .

f. Draft resolutions assuming liabilities under existing contracts of transferor business.

NOTE:
The general form for a corporate resolution [see Ch. 5, Directors' Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions , Form 5.50] may be adapted for this purpose.

g. Draft and have adopted other resolutions that may be required or that are normally adopted at the first meeting of board of directors of corporation [see Ch. 5, Directors' Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions].

2-2A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 2A.130

§ 2A.130 Post-Incorporation Organization and Property Transfers

1. Draft and have business owners execute offer to transfer business to corporation in exchange for its shares [see §§ 2A.201 (partnership), 2A.202 (sole proprietorship)].

NOTE:
The offer should clearly indicate an intent to pass title or assign contractual rights to the transferee corporation. Although this type of offer is not required by statute, it serves as a useful tool in specifying the terms of the proposed transfer and in drafting the directors' resolutions accepting the offer.

2. Before date on which business is to be transferred to corporation (and after business owners' offer to transfer business in exchange for shares has been accepted by corporation's directors) [see § 2A.131]:

a. Prepare assignments of any leases or contracts that are to be transferred to corporation.

b. If lease is to be transferred to corporation, secure lessor's consent to that transfer.

NOTE:
If the lease is for a term in excess of 35 years, a change of ownership must be filed [see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 62(c)(1), (g), 480; see also § 2A.131, P 22].

c. Prepare any deeds or other instruments required to transfer real property of business to corporation.

NOTE:
It may be desirable to obtain a title search and title insurance on any real property transferred to the corporation. For complete discussion, see Ch. 26A, Title Insurance .

d. Prepare bill of sale to be executed by business owners conveying to corporation all assets of business, both tangible and intangible, that they have agreed to transfer to corporation [see § 2A.204].

e. Include in any document of transfer such provisions as:

(1) Statement of consideration given.

(2) Description of property transferred.

(3) Date on which title held by transferee is to pass to corporation.

(4) Other terms in exact accordance with any relevant provisions in preincorporation agreement, articles, or bylaws.

3. On date that business is to be transferred to corporation:

a. Have all instruments of transfer, including bill of sale for business and its assets, any assignments of leases, assignments of contracts, deeds, or other instruments required to transfer any assets of business to corporation, signed by business owners and delivered to corporation's officers.

b. Have board of directors approve resolution formally accepting transferred property and authorizing issuance of stock in payment.

c. Prepare certificates of stock to be issued by corporation to business owners in exchange for business and have appropriate officers of corporation:

(1) Execute and deliver share certificates.

(2) File necessary securities exemption notices, such as:
(a) Notice of issuance of securities under small offering exemption [see Corp. Code § 25102(h)(4); 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.102.8; see also Ch. 6C, California Small Offering Exemption]; or

(b) Notice of issuance of securities under limited offering exemption [see Corp. Code § 25102(f)(4); see also Ch. 6B, California Limited Offering Exemptions].

4. Ensure that creditors of incorporating business are protected in transfer of property to corporation by ensuring that preincorporation agreement and documents of transfer make specific provision for orderly payment of preexisting obligations, either by owners of preexisting firm, the business itself, or corporation.

NOTE:
For a discussion of transfers of property on incorporation of a going business and methods of avoiding transfers in fraud of the going business' creditors, see Cavitch, BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WITH TAX PLANNING, Ch. 51, Incorporating the Going Business (Matthew Bender).

CHAPTER 2A INCORPORATING A GOING BUSINESS
PART III. TRANSACTION GUIDE
D. Related and Subsequent Procedures

2-2A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 2A.131

§ 2A.131 Tax and Business Procedures Following Incorporation

1. Advise business owners to file final sales tax return for preexisting going business.

NOTE:

When shares of the corporation have been exchanged as the only consideration for the business, no sales tax will be due on the final sales tax return because of the transfer of the fixtures and equipment of the business to the corporation. However, a one-time sale of assets may qualify as a retail sale subject to the imposition of sales tax, even if the seller has never sold personal property at retail before [see Santa Fe Energy Co. v. California State Bd. of Equalization (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 176, 182, 206 Cal. Rptr. 499] . Accordingly, the new corporation may have to pay sales tax on the transaction [see 18 Cal. Code Reg. § 1595(b)(4)], and the old business may have to file a sales tax return for the sale. If the transaction is deemed an "occasional sale" [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 6006.5 (definition)] of tangible personal property, it will be exempt from sales and use tax [Rev. & Tax. Code § 6367]. For further discussion of the imposition of sales tax and exemptions from the tax, see § 2A.24.

2. If corporation will engage in retail sale of personal property subject to California sales tax, have corporation's officers obtain sales tax permit in name of corporation from State Board of Equalization (SBE).

NOTE:

The corporation should apply for a sales tax permit before it begins operating the business, and the application must be authenticated in a form or pursuant to methods prescribed by the SBE [Rev. & Tax. Code § 6066(a)]. The application may be filed using electronic media, as prescribed; electronic media includes but is not limited to computer modem, magnetic media, optical disk, facsimile machine, or telephone [Rev. & Tax. Code § 6066(b), (c)]. Whenever deemed necessary to ensure statutory compliance, the SBE may require a person charged with collecting sales tax to deposit security with the SBE before issuing the permit. In general, the SBE will fix the amount of the security as the lesser of (1) twice the estimated average liability of persons filing quarterly returns, (2) three times the estimated average liability of persons required to file monthly returns, or (3) $50,000 [Rev. & Tax. Code § 6701]. However, if the person has been given notice of a hearing to revoke his or her sales tax permit [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 6070], the security will be the lesser of (1) three times the average liability of persons filing quarterly returns, (2) five times the average liability of persons filing monthly returns, or (3) $50,000 [Rev. & Tax. Code § 6701].

3. Have unemployment compensation account of former business shifted to corporation.

NOTE:
For discussion of unemployment compensation, see Ch. 1C, Regulation of Employers .

4. Advise corporation to inform workers' compensation insurance carrier of change of form of doing business.

NOTE:
For discussion of workers' compensation, see Ch. 1C, Regulation of Employers .

5. Advise corporation to contact insurance agent or broker to make necessary changes in all other insurance policies to cover corporation instead of former business firm.

NOTE:
For discussion of insurance issues, see Ch. 1F, Insurance Considerations in Business Formation .

6. Advise corporation to file application for new federal employer identification number in name of corporation.

NOTE:
For coverage of the procedures involved in filing for a federal employer identification number, see Ch. 1C, Regulation of Employers .

7. Advise former business to file final federal and California quarterly withholding returns.

NOTE:
For coverage of state and federal withholding tax procedures, see Ch. 1E, Taxation of Businesses .

8. Advise business owners to cancel or abandon any other permits and licenses issued to them as individuals for business and have corporation apply for necessary permits or transfer of permits to its name.

9. Notify creditors and other interested parties of dissolution or termination of business in its original form and that it is now corporation, by:

a. Public notice if business makes bulk sale and is required by Commercial Code to give notice [see Com. Code §§ 6102(a)(3), 6103(a); see also § 2A.113].

NOTE:
For a bulk sale notice, see § 2A.203. For detailed coverage of bulk sale notices and procedures, see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice **.

b. Notice of intended transfer if retail alcoholic beverage license is involved [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 24073; see also Ch. 18, Buying and Selling a Retail Alcoholic Beverage License and Business].

c. For general partnerships, statement of dissolution of partnership [see Corp. Code § 16805 (nonpartners have notice of dissolution 90 days after statement is filed)].

10. If fictitious business name statement was ever filed by going business [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900], file and publish statement of abandonment of fictitious business name [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17922; see also Ch. 1A, Role of Counsel in Starting a New Business].

11. If corporation will do business under name differing from corporate name, have it file statement of fictitious business name [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900; see also Ch. 1A, Role of Counsel in Starting a New Business].

12. Advise former business owners to minimize their personal liability for business debts:

a. As to obligations in existence before incorporation:

(1) Advise owners to confer with creditors and obtain written consent to assumption of obligations by corporation, thereby creating novation.

NOTE:
For novation agreements, see Ch. 77, Discharge of Obligations .

(2) Have corporation agree with owners to assume all debts of former business and indemnify them against any claim asserted against them on those obligations.

b. As to post-incorporation obligations, have former owners send notice on date of incorporation to creditors of former business that it has been incorporated and that they are no longer personally responsible for credit extended to corporation.

13. Advise corporation that it may either:

NOTE:
For discussion of liability issues incident to incorporation, see § 2A.12.

a. Expressly assume all debts and obligations of going business in existence as of date of incorporation, by means of resolution authorizing both assumption and payment of those obligations, followed by letter stating express assumption and promise to pay; or

b. Attempt to avoid liability for debts of business by:

(1) Expressly disclaiming liability for preincorporation debts of former business.

(2) Obtaining written indemnification agreements from owners of former business as to any obligations that might render corporation liable or affect assets transferred to corporation.

(3) Accepting from going business only portion of its assets, leaving in that business sufficient assets to pay all existing obligations.

14. If former business had out-of-state operations that corporation will continue, determine whether those operations are sufficiently substantial and continuous in each jurisdiction to require corporation to qualify as foreign corporation under local law and, if so, advise corporation to do so.

NOTE:
For discussion of the qualification of foreign corporations in California and issues to consider in deciding whether to incorporate in other states, see Ch. 12B, Foreign Corporations and Associations **.

15. If corporation has 100 or fewer shareholders and they desire federal tax treatment as if they were partners in partnership, advise corporation to elect Subchapter S status [see I.R.C. § 1361(b)(1)(A); Rev. & Tax. Code § 23801; see also Ch. 2B, Electing Subchapter S Status].

16. If former owners of business had previously made wills disposing of their interests in business, review and make appropriate revisions to their wills.

17. If desired, have any trade or service mark held by former business assigned to, and registered in, name of corporation.

NOTE:
For applicable procedures, see Ch. 103B, Trademarks .

18. Have business assign its copyrights and patents to corporation.

NOTE:
For discussion of copyrights, see Ch. 103A, Copyrights .

19. Change registration of any motor vehicles transferred to corporation.

NOTE:
For discussion of vehicle registration and transfer, see Ch. 102D, Registration and Transfer of Vehicles, Vessels, and Aircraft .

20. Change name of business on all:

a. Bank accounts.

b. Public utilities accounts.

c. Credit accounts transferred to corporation.

21. If no gain or loss is recognized on transfer of business property in exchange for shares of corporation [see I.R.C. § 351]:

a. Include detailed information on exchange in transferor's tax return for year of exchange.

b. Advise owners of former business to retain permanent records to permit determination of gain or loss on ultimate disposition of stock [see Treas. Reg. § 1.351-3]

22. If real property is transferred to corporation, advise business owners that:

a. No "change of ownership" occurs if there is no change in their proportional interests [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 62(a)(1)].

b. Change of ownership does occur:

(1) On transfer of any leasehold interest with remaining term of 35 years or more, including renewal options [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 61(c)(1)], and that change of ownership statement must be filed in county where real property is located [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 480].

NOTE:
For an example of a preliminary change of ownership statement [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 480.3, 480.4], which is available free of charge on request from any county assessor or recorder, see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements , § 23.306.

(2) If, after incorporation, more than half of total interests in corporation are transferred [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 64(d)] and change in ownership statement must be filed in office of Franchise Tax Board in Sacramento [see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 480.1, 480.2].

§ 2A.200 Preincorporation Agreement Between Partners to Incorporate Partnership Business

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a simple agreement between partners to form a California corporation and to transfer all assets of their partnership business to a corporation that will be formed after the execution of the agreement. It states that the partners agree that the corporation (once it is formed) will issue shares of its stock to each of them in amounts equal to their proportionate equity interest in the partnership. However, it is not a subscription agreement. The agreement presumes that the currently existing partnership between the parties will be dissolved when the corporation is formed and the partnership business has been transferred to the corporation.

For another form of preincorporation agreement to incorporate, and a form of preincorporation subscription agreement with respect to a nonpublic offer of securities, see Ch. 2, Formation of Corporations . For an offer to transfer the partnership assets to a successor corporation, see § 2A.201.

[b] Exemptions From Qualification for Issuance of Shares on Formation of Corporation

This form is not a subscription agreement and therefore is not a "security" within the meaning of Corp. Code § 25019. Because the agreement is not a security, no securities law issues arise from its execution. However, once a corporation is formed pursuant to this type of agreement, the corporation will issue securities and at that time it will have to comply with the Corporate Securities Law [see Corp. Code § 25000 et seq.] Although it is seldom the case when a going business is incorporated, if the newly formed corporation will issue shares to more than 35 shareholders, a permit will be required from the Commissioner of Corporations [see Corp. Code § 25110; see also Ch. 6I, Issuance of Equity Securities]. Instead, the corporation may choose to issue all its shares to not more than 35 persons in exchange for the assets of a going business owned by those persons under the small offering exemption from qualification under the Corporate Securities Law [see Corp. Code § 25102(h); see also Ch. 6C, California Small Offering Exemption], or to not more than 35 qualified persons under the limited offering exemption [see Corp. Code § 25102(f); see also Ch. 6B, California Limited Offering Exemptions] without a permit from the Commissioner of Corporations.

Preincorporation Agreement Between Partners to Incorporate Partnership Business

AGREEMENT TO INCORPORATE PARTNERSHIP

Preamble

This agreement is made on _____[date], between _____[name of partner], _____[name of partner], and _____[name of partner], referred to in this agreement as the "Partners" or the "Parties."

Recitals

The Parties to this agreement are engaged as Partners in the operation of a _____[type] business known as _____[name of business], referred to in this agreement as the "Partnership," located at _____[address], _____[city], California.

The Parties to this agreement desire to form a corporation under the General Corporation Law of the State of California for the purpose of carrying on the business.

THEREFORE, it is agreed as follows:

Agreement to Incorporate

1. _____[Within _____ (number) days after the date of this agreement or On or before _____ (date)], the Parties will form a corporation under the General Corporation Law of the State of California to be known as _____[proposed name of corporation], or by another name that may be selected by them, for the purpose of engaging in the business of _____[primary purpose of corporation, which should be the same as that of the partnership business].

Directors of Corporation

2. The articles of incorporation of the corporation will name the Parties as the initial directors of the corporation.

Authorized Capital of Corporation

3. The authorized capital of the corporation, as stated in its articles of incorporation, will be $ _____, divided into _____[number] shares of the same class.

Officers of Corporation

4. The initial officers of the corporation will be: _____[name of partner], President; _____[name of partner], Vice President; and _____[name], Secretary-Treasurer.

Transfer of Partnership Business

5. _____[Within _____ (number) days after the corporation is incorporated or On or before _____(date)], the Parties will transfer and assign _____[all assets of the Partnership shown on an inventory attached to this agreement and marked Exhibit A or their respective interests in the Partnership] to the corporation. In addition, the Parties will cause the corporation to assume all liabilities of the Partnership existing as of _____[date of last available financial report for the business before the date of transfer], together with any additional liabilities that may have been incurred in the ordinary course of Partnership business between that date and the date of transfer of the business to the corporation [add if corporation will assume products liability of partnership: and any liabilities that may arise after the transfer of the business because of injury or damage caused by a defective product sold by the Partnership before the transfer]. The Parties will also cause the corporation to issue to each Party shares of the corporation's capital stock in an amount representing that Party's proportionate equity interest in the Partnership.

Preparation of Necessary Financial Statements

6. The Parties will authorize and instruct _____[name], the accountant for the Partnership, to prepare all financial statements pertaining to the Partnership business that _____[name], attorney for the Parties, deems necessary or proper for use in forming the corporation and qualifying the issuance and sale of the securities.

Costs of Incorporating

7. All costs and expenses, including attorneys' fees, required for the formation and organization of the corporation, will be advanced by the Parties in equal proportion from their Partnership business and will be refunded to them by the corporation on demand.

CHAPTER 2A INCORPORATING A GOING BUSINESS
PART IV. FORMS

2-2A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 2A.201

§ 2A.201 Offer to Transfer Partnership for Shares of Successor Corporation

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an offer by a partnership to transfer all the assets of the partnership to a successor corporation in exchange for shares in the corporation. The form is drafted with the assumption that the securities will be exempted from qualification. However, alternative provisions are included if registration or qualification is required [see [e], below]. The form includes provisions for acceptance of the offer by the corporation, making the offer a binding agreement between the partnership and the corporation. This form is intended to be used when the transfer is subject to the bulk sale requirements of the Commercial Code, and provides that the actual transfer will not take place until the required bulk sale notice has been given [see [d], below].

For a bill of sale and agreement to transfer a business to a corporation, see § 2A.204. For an offer to transfer a sole proprietorship to a corporation, see § 2A.202. For other agreements to transfer business assets to a corporation, see Ballantine & Sterling, CALIFORNIA CORPORATION LAWS, Appendix A, Corporate Forms (Matthew Bender).

[b] Purpose of Offer

When the transfer to a corporation of a partnership in exchange for shares of the corporation is proposed, some attorneys prefer to memorialize the transaction by having the partnership make a formal written offer, such as this form, to transfer the partnership assets to the corporation. On receipt of this type of offer, the corporation's board of directors adopts a resolution accepting the offer and determining the fair value to the corporation, in monetary terms, of the property described in the offer [see Corp. Code § 409(e)], and authorizes the issuance of shares in exchange for the business. For a directors' resolution, see Ch. 5, Directors' Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions .

[c] Considerations in Transfer of Partnership

Important considerations arise on the transfer of partnership assets to a successor corporation. First, the parties must consider liability issues. In the absence of an express or implied agreement with the partnership's creditors to the contrary, the former partners remain personally liable to the creditors for debts incurred before its dissolution. Moreover, the former partners may be personally liable for debts incurred after incorporation if it is found that the creditor was not notified of the partnership's dissolution [see Corp. Code §§ 16804, 16805; see also § 2A.12]. This form provides that the successor corporation will expressly assume all existing liabilities of the partnership [see [2], P 4, below]. For detailed coverage of partners' liabilities on dissolution of a partnership, see Ch. 15, Part B, Dissolution of General Partnerships .

In addition, the parties should consider the income tax implications of the transfer. In general, no gain or loss is recognized if property is transferred to a corporation solely in exchange for stock in the corporation, and immediately after the exchange the transferors are in control of the corporation [I.R.C. § 351(a); see I.R.C. § 368(c) ("control" defined)]. However, the partnership, not the partners, is deemed the transferor of the assets to a corporation for the purpose of determining basis under I.R.C. § 351, regardless of whether the partnership is the actual transferor or whether it terminates and the partners transfer either the distributed assets or their partnership interests to the corporation [I.R.C. §§ 351, 368(c); Treas. Reg. § 1.351-1(a)(1)].

For further discussion of tax considerations incident to the transfer of partnership assets to a corporation, see § 2A.20[5]. For further coverage of the dissolution of general partnerships, see Ch. 15, General Partnerships , Part B.

[d] Bulk Sale Requirements

This form is designed for use when the transfer of assets is subject to the bulk sale requirements of the Commercial Code [see Com. Code §§ 6101-6111]. In general, the bulk sale provisions apply to a bulk sale if (1) the seller's principal business is the sale of inventory from stock, including sellers who manufacture what they sell, or is that of a restaurant owner, and (2) the seller (or its major executive office) is located in California [Com. Code § 6103(a); see Com. Code § 6103(c) (exceptions)]. In the context of the sale of a business, a "bulk sale" is a sale not in the ordinary course of the seller's business of more than half of the seller's inventory and equipment [Com. Code § 6102(a)(3)].

The key requirement imposed by the bulk sale provisions is that the buyer must give notice of the bulk sale [Com. Code § 6104; see Com. Code § 6105]. Because the required notice must be recorded with the county recorder, published in at least one newspaper, and delivered to the county tax collector at least 12 business days before the date of the bulk sale [see Com. Code § 6105(b); see Gifford v. J&A Holdings (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 996, 1003-1004, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 253 (interpreting Section 6105 in light of legislative intent); see also § 2A.203[1]], this form provides that the date of transfer will be 13 business days after the bulk sale notice has been recorded [see [2], P 2, below].

For a notice of bulk sale, see § 2A.203. For detailed coverage of the bulk sale requirements, see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice .

[e] Exemption From Qualification of Shares

This form is designed for use when the limited offering exemption will apply [see Corp. Code § 25102(h)]. Because shares will ultimately be issued to the former partners, the corporation will have to notify the Commissioner of Corporations that it has issued them pursuant to the small offering exemption [see Corp. Code § 25102(h)(4)]. For a discussion and the notice form, see Ch. 6C, California Small Offering Exemption .

This form contains optional text that complies with the statutory language provided by the nonpublic offering exemption [see Corp. Code § 25102(a)] for use if the offer is deemed to be a nonpublic offering, and optional text to include in the event that registration or qualification is required [see [2], P 5, below].

Offer to Transfer Partnership for Shares of Successor Corporation

OFFER TO TRANSFER PARTNERSHIP ASSETS TO CORPORATION

To: _____[name of corporation], a California Corporation:

Representations

1. We, _____[name of partner], _____[name of partner], and _____[name of partner], are partners of a partnership doing business under the name of _____[name of partnership] (the "Partnership"), located at _____[address], _____[city], California. A balance sheet of the partnership as of _____[date] (the "balance sheet") is attached to this offer, which fairly represents the financial position of the Partnership on that date in accordance with _____[generally accepted accounting principles or specify other method of preparation].

[Choose one of the following paragraphs:]

[Use if bulk sale notice is required:]

Offer

2. For the consideration and on the terms and conditions set forth in this offer, we offer to transfer the Partnership assets, as defined in Paragraph 3 of this offer, to you at the close of business on _____[date thirteen business days after date of recording bulk sale notice].

[OR]

[Use if bulk sale notice and securities qualification are required:]

Offer

2. For the consideration and on the terms and conditions set forth in this offer, we offer to transfer the Partnership assets, as defined in Paragraph 3 of this offer, to you on the date of transfer. "Date of transfer" means the later of the close of business on the last day of the calendar month in which the issuance of the shares described in Paragraph 4 of this offer is qualified by the Commissioner of Corporations of the State of California or the close of business on the thirteenth business day after the recording of a bulk sale notice of the intended transfer of the assets of the business to the corporation.

Partnership Assets

3. "Partnership assets" means all of the business assets of the Partnership, including those reflected by the balance sheet, and its name and goodwill, subject to all liens, claims, and encumbrances and to changes occurring in the ordinary course of business between the date of the balance sheet and the close of business on the date of transfer.

Consideration for Transfer

4. As consideration for the transfer, you agree:

(a) To assume and pay all of the debts and liabilities of the Partnership referred to on the balance sheet, together with those debts and liabilities resulting from changes occurring in the ordinary course of business between the date of the balance sheet and the date of transfer; and

(b) To issue and deliver on the date of transfer fully paid and nonassessable shares of your

Transferee	Number of Shares
_____	_____
_____	_____
_____	_____

[Choose one of the following paragraphs:]

[Use if registration or qualification is required:]

Registration of Securities

5. We acknowledge that the sale of shares of common stock referred to in this offer and any rights of the undersigned arising under this offer are expressly conditioned on registration of the stock under the Securities Act of 1933, and qualification of the sale under all applicable state securities and blue sky laws, to the extent that registration or qualification is required.

[OR]

[Use if registration and qualification are not required:]

Registration of Securities

5. We acknowledge that the sale of shares of common stock referred to in this offer has not been registered under the Securities Act of 1933, or qualified under securities or blue sky laws of any state. We also acknowledge that these shares of common stock may not be resold unless the sale is registered under the Securities Act of 1933 and qualified under all applicable securities or blue sky laws (or is exempt from registration and qualification). Each of the undersigned represents that this purchase of shares of common stock is for that person's account and not for sale in connection with any distribution of the security.

[Add if offer constitutes a nonpublic offering:]

The sale of the securities that are the subject of this offer has not been qualified with the Commissioner of Corporations of the State of California and the issuance of such securities or the payment or receipt of any part of the consideration for those shares before such qualification is unlawful, unless the sale of securities is exempt from qualification by Section 25100, 25102, or 25105 of the California Corporations Code. The rights of all parties to this offer are expressly conditioned on such qualification being obtained, unless the sale is so exempt.

[Continue with the following:]

Transfer of Business and Execution of Documents

6. If this offer is accepted by you, we will, on the date of transfer, on delivery of the share certificates described in Paragraph 4 of this offer:

(a) Deliver possession of the Partnership assets described in Paragraph 3 of this offer to you; and

(b) Execute and deliver to you any instruments of transfer and other documents that may be required to transfer title to you and to fully perform your obligations under this offer.

Each partner will severally indemnify you against liability for personal taxes of the undersigned based on or measured by that partner's participation in profits of the Partnership, and, in the proportion that the number of shares of common stock issued to that partner bears to all shares issued, in each case under this offer, from loss sustained by liens, claims, and encumbrances, fixed or contingent, not reflected on the balance sheet.

If this offer is acceptable to you, please execute the acceptance below, at which time the offer will constitute a binding agreement between us.

PART IV. FORMS

2-2A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 2A.202

§ 2A.202 Offer to Transfer Sole Proprietorship for Shares of Successor Corporation

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an offer by a sole proprietor to transfer the assets, goodwill, and other components of his or her business to a corporation formed to carry on that business in return for all of the shares issued by the corporation. The form is drafted with the assumption that the securities will be exempted from qualification [see [d], below]. It includes provisions for acceptance of the offer by the corporation, making the offer a binding agreement between the sole proprietor and the corporation. The form is intended to be used when the transfer is subject to the bulk sale requirements of the Commercial Code, and provides that the actual transfer will not take place until the required bulk sale notice has been given [see [c], below].

This form contains an optional provision making the transferee corporation responsible for products liability claims brought after the transfer, even when they are based on sales made by the transferor before the transfer. For a discussion of the need for, and effect of, such a provision, see § 2A.12[1].

For a bill of sale and agreement to transfer a business to a corporation, see § 2A.204. For an offer to transfer a partnership to a corporation, see § 2A.201. For other agreements to transfer business assets to a corporation, see Ballantine & Sterling, CALIFORNIA CORPORATION LAWS, Appendix A, Corporate Forms (Matthew Bender).

[b] Purpose of Offer

When the transfer to a corporation of a going business in exchange for shares of the corporation is proposed, some attorneys prefer to memorialize the transaction by having a business owner make a formal written offer, such as this form, to transfer the business to the corporation. On receipt of this type of offer, the corporation's board of directors adopts a resolution accepting the offer and determining the fair value to the corporation, in monetary terms, of the property described in the offer [see Corp. Code § 409(e)], and authorizes the issuance of shares in exchange for the business. For a directors' resolution, see Ch. 5, Directors' Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions .

[c] Bulk Sale Requirements

This form is designed for use when the transfer of assets is subject to the bulk sale requirements of the Commercial Code [see Com. Code §§ 6101-6111]. In general, the bulk sale provisions apply to a bulk sale if (1) the seller's principal business is the sale of inventory from stock, including sellers who manufacture what they sell, or is that of restaurant owner, and (2) the seller (or its major executive office) is located in California [Com. Code § 6103(a); see Com. Code § 6103(c) (exceptions)]. In the context of the sale of a business, a "bulk sale" is a sale, not in the ordinary course of the seller's business, of more than half of the seller's inventory and equipment [Com. Code § 6102(a)(3)].

The key requirement imposed by the bulk sale provisions is that the buyer must give notice of the bulk sale [Com. Code § 6104; see Com. Code § 6105]. Because the required notice must be recorded with the county recorder, published in at least one newspaper, and delivered to the county tax collector at least 12 business days before the date of the bulk sale [see Com. Code § 6105(b); see Gifford v. J&A Holdings (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 996, 1003-1004, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 253 (interpreting § 6105 in light of legislative intent); see also § 2A.203], this form provides that the date of transfer will be 13 business days after the bulk sale notice has been recorded [see [2], P 5, below].

For a notice of bulk sale, see § 2A.203. For detailed coverage of the bulk sale requirements, see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice .

[d] Exemption From Qualification of Shares

This form is designed for use when the limited offering exemption will apply [see Corp. Code § 25102(h)]. Because shares will ultimately be issued to the sole proprietor, the corporation will have to notify the Commissioner of Corporations that it has issued them pursuant to the small offering exemption [see Corp. Code § 25102(h)(4)]. For a discussion and the notice form, see Ch. 6C, California Small Offering Exemption .

The form also contains optional text that complies with the statutory language provided by the nonpublic offering exemption [see Corp. Code § 25102(a)], if the offer is deemed to be a nonpublic offering.

[Choose one of the following paragraphs:]

[Use if bulk sale notice is required:]

Date of Transfer Defined

5. As used in this offer, the term "date of transfer" means the close of business on the thirteenth business day after the recording of a bulk sale notice of the intended transfer of the assets of the Business to the corporation.

[OR]

[Use if bulk sale notice and securities qualification are required:]

Date of Transfer Defined

5. As used in this offer, the term "date of transfer" means the later of the close of business on the last day of the calendar month in which issuance of the shares described in Paragraph 2 of this offer is qualified by the Commissioner of Corporations of the State of California or the close of business on the thirteenth business day after the recording of a bulk sale notice of the intended transfer of the assets of the Business to the corporation.

Costs of Transfer

6. Except for the costs of preparing this offer and the financial statement attached to this offer marked Exhibit A, you agree to pay all costs, expenses, and attorneys' fees incurred in perfecting the transfer of the Business to you, including the costs of filing the notice of the issuance of the corporation's shares pursuant to California Corporations Code Section 25102(h) and any acts, notices, or publications required by the California Commercial Code--Bulk Sales Division, and not waived by you. I agree to pay any sales tax due the State of California on the transfer of the fixtures and equipment of the Business to you.

Transfer of Business and Execution of Documents

7. If this offer is accepted by you, I will, on delivery of the share certificates described in Paragraph 4 of this offer, and on the date of transfer as defined in Paragraph 5 of this offer:

(a) Deliver possession of the Business and assets described in Paragraph 3 of this offer to you; and

(b) Execute and deliver to you any instruments of transfer and other documents that may be required to fully perform my obligations under this offer or that may be required for the convenient operation of the Business after transfer by you.

[a] Use of Form

This form is the statutory form for notice of the intended transfer of the assets of a going business to a corporation purchasing the going business [see Com. Code § 6105]. The notice must be given by the buyer when the selling business makes a bulk sale of its assets [see Com. Code §§ 6102(a)(3)(ii), 6104(b)]. If the buyer fails to comply with the notice requirements with respect to one or more claimants, the buyer is liable for damages in the amount of any claims against the seller, less any amount that the claimant would not have realized if the buyer had complied with the notice requirements [see Com. Code § 6107(a); see also Com. Code § 6107(c) (good faith effort at compliance), (d) (limitation of liability)]. Because a corporation ordinarily agrees to assume only the business liabilities of the seller as listed on the books of the business, a notice of intended transfer is usually necessary to protect the corporation from the personal debts of the seller, and from contingent or other liabilities inadvertently omitted from the business books.

The notice is given by publication and recordation [see Com. Code § 6105(b); see also [c], below]. The requirements of the Uniform Commercial Code--Bulk Sales Division are discussed in further detail in Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice .

[b] Bulk Sale Notice Requirements

Unless specifically excepted by statute [see Com. Code § 6103(c); see also [e], below], the Uniform Commercial Code--Bulk Sales Division applies to a bulk sale if (1) the seller's principal business is the sale of inventory from stock, including those who manufacture what they sell, or is that of restaurant owner [Com. Code § 6103(a)(1)]; and (2) the seller is located in California, or is located in a jurisdiction outside the United States but has its major American executive office in California, on the date of the bulk sale agreement [Com. Code § 6103(a)(2); see Com. Code § 6103(b)]. A "bulk sale" is a sale outside the ordinary course of the seller's business of more than one half of the seller's inventory and equipment, as measured by the fair market value on the date of the bulk sale agreement [Com. Code § 6102(a)(3), (8), (15)]. The term "bulk sale" also encompasses such a sale when conducted by auction, and a sale or series of sales conducted by a liquidator on the seller's behalf [Com. Code § 6102(a)(3)(i)].

[c] Publication, Recordation, and Delivery of Notice

The bulk sale notice must be published at least 12 business days before the date of the bulk sale [Com. Code § 6105(b)(2); see Com. Code § 6102(a)(7) ("date of bulk sale" defined)].

One court, reading Com. Code § 6105 in light of the legislative intent, has held that the notice must be published and recorded at least 12 business days before the anticipated sale date as specified in the notice. Otherwise, creditors do not have sufficient time to file a timely claim [Gifford v. J&A Holdings (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 996, 999, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 253 (postponing actual date of sale until 12 business days after recordation did not comply with literal terms of statute; postponement without notice did not constitute good faith effort at compliance under Com. Code § 6107(c))]. The notice must be published at least once in a newspaper of general circulation published in the judicial district in which the tangible assets are located and, if different, in the judicial district in which the seller is located [Com. Code § 6105(b)(2); see Com. Code § 6103(a)(2)]. If no such newspaper exists, notice must be published in a newspaper of general circulation in the county in which the judicial district is located [Com. Code § 6105(b)(2)]. If the tangible assets are located in more than one judicial district, the notice must be published in the judicial district in which a greater portion of the assets are located and, if different, the judicial district in which the seller is located [Com. Code § 6105(b); see Com. Code § 6103(a)(3)].

The notice must be recorded in the office of the county recorder of the county or counties in California in which the tangible assets are located and, if different, in the county in which the seller is located, at least 12 business days before the date of the bulk sale [Com. Code § 6105(b)(1); see Com. Code § 6103(a)(2); see also Com. Code § 6102(a)(7) ("date of bulk sale" defined)]. Further, the notice must be delivered, or sent by registered or certified mail, to the county tax collector in the California county or counties in which the tangible assets are located at least 12 business days before the date of the bulk sale [Com. Code § 6105(b)(3)]. In addition, if the notice is delivered or sent during the period from January 1 to May 7, inclusive, the notice must be accompanied by a completed business property statement with respect to the property involved in the bulk sale [Com. Code § 6105(b)(3); see Rev. & Tax. Code § 441 (procedure for filing property statements)].

Careful attorneys usually record the notice at least 13 or 14 business days before the date of the bulk sale, and determine, before setting the date of sale, the name, address, publication dates, and deadline dates of any newspapers of general circulation published in judicial districts (or counties) in which the notice will need to be published. A "business day" is any day other than a Saturday, Sunday, or day observed as a holiday by the California state government [Com. Code § 6105(b)].

[d] Small Cash Sales

If the consideration for a bulk sale is $2,000,000 or less and is substantially all cash, an obligation of the buyer to pay cash in the future to the seller, or a combination of the two, the buyer (or an escrow agent if the transaction is handled through an escrow) must apply the consideration in accordance with statutory distribution requirements [see Com. Code § 6106.2(a), (b); see also Com. Code § 6106.4 (escrow duties and distribution)]. This duty extends so far as is necessary to pay those debts of the seller for which claims are due and payable on or before the date of the bulk sale and are received in writing on or before the date specified as the last date to file claims with the person designated in the notice to receive claims [Com. Code § 6106.2(b); see Com. Code §§ 6105(b), 6106.2(f)]. However, this duty does not apply to sales made at auction, or sales conducted by a liquidator on the seller's behalf [Com. Code § 6106.2(b)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice .

[e] Exemption for Sales to New Organizations

The application of the bulk sales requirements are subject to numerous exceptions [see Com. Code § 6103(c)]. For example, a sale of assets with a value of less than $10,000, or a value of more than $5,000,000, is exempted from the bulk sales law [see Com. Code § 6103(c)(12)]. A sale of assets, otherwise subject to the bulk sale provisions of Commercial Code [see [b] above], to a new organization that is organized to take over and continue the business of the seller and that has its principal place of business in the United States [see Com. Code §§ 6102(a)(14), 6103(b)] is exempt under the following circumstances [Com. Code § 6103(c)(11)]:

- The buyer assumes in full all debts that were incurred in the seller's business before the date of the bulk sale [see Com. Code § 6102(a)(7)];

- The seller receives nothing from the sale except an interest in the new organization that is subordinate to claims against the new organization arising from the assumption of debts; and

- The buyer records and publishes notice of assumption of debts not later than 30 days after the date of the bulk sale [see Com. Code §§ 6103(e) (contents of notice), 6105 (manner of recordation and publication)].

CHAPTER 2A INCORPORATING A GOING BUSINESS
PART IV. FORMS

2-2A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 2A.204

§ 2A.204 Bill of Sale Transferring Going Business to Corporation

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is designed to serve as both a bill of sale and an agreement transferring the business to the corporation. The final step usually performed by the attorney in incorporating a going business is to preside over the consummation of the entire transaction: the issuance and delivery of shares by the corporation to the former business owners, and the execution and delivery by the business owners to the corporation of a bill of sale for the assets of the going business.

This form is divided into three parts: the instrument of transfer (Paragraph 1), an agreement by the corporation to assume the obligations of the business (Paragraph 2), and, when the business's accounts receivable are being transferred to the corporation, the customary power of attorney given by the transferor to the transferee to collect those accounts receivable (Paragraph 3). For a discussion of the need for and effect of the optional sentence in Paragraph 2 regarding assumption of responsibility for products liability claims, see § 2A.12[1]. If accounts receivable are not being transferred to the corporation, Paragraph 3 of this form may be adapted to make the corporation a collection agent for the transferor by deleting the words "for its own use and benefit" and "but without cost, expense, or damages to the transferor."

For an offer to transfer a partnership to a corporation, see § 2A.201. For an offer to transfer a sole proprietorship to a corporation, see § 2A.202.

Bill of Sale Transferring Going Business to Corporation

BILL OF SALE AND AGREEMENT

By this instrument, executed on _____[date] by _____[name of transferor] ("Transferor"), and _____[name of corporation] (the "Corporation"):

1. In consideration of the issuance to _____[Transferor or Transferor's order] of _____[number] shares of the Corporation, Transferor sells, assigns, and transfers to the Corporation all _____[his or her] right, title, and interest in and to the following property: All the tangible assets listed on an inventory attached to this instrument marked Exhibit A, and all the stock in trade, goodwill, leasehold interests, trade names, and other intangible assets [add if applicable: except accounts receivable] of that certain business known as "_____[name of business]," located at _____[street address], _____[city], California.

2. In consideration of the transfer of that property to it, the Corporation agrees to assume, pay, and discharge all debts, duties, and obligations that appear, on the date of this instrument, on the books of the business as owed by Transferor on account of that business to any person or persons whatsoever. The Corporation further agrees to indemnify and hold Transferor and the property of Transferor free and harmless from any such debt, duty, or obligation, and from any suits, actions, or legal proceedings brought to enforce or collect any such debt, duty, or obligation. [If the corporation will assume liability for products liability claims brought in the future, add: The Corporation further agrees to so indemnify Transferor from liability or expense due to claims for injury or damage caused by a defect in the design or manufacture of a product sold by Transferor, in the course of Transferor's operation of the business, when Transferor had no actual knowledge of the liability or claim before the execution of this instrument.]

3. Transferor hereby appoints the Corporation as Transferor's attorney-in-fact to demand, receive, and collect for its own use and benefit all debts and obligations now owing to _____[name] business. Transferor further authorizes the Corporation to do all things legally permissible that may be required to recover and collect those debts and obligations and to use Transferor's name in any manner it may deem necessary for the collection and recovery of those debts and obligations but without cost, expense, or damages to Transferor.

Scope

This chapter discusses the procedures to be used by a small business corporation to elect or terminate Subchapter S status. A corporation elects Subchapter S status so that it may be treated for income tax purposes as if it were a partnership, while retaining the advantages of incorporation [see § 2B.111].

The Legal Background discusses the criteria a corporation must meet to be eligible for Subchapter S status and the tax effect of an election on both the corporation and its shareholders. Termination and revocation of Subchapter S status are also described. The Transaction Guide is designed to aid the attorney in determining whether a corporation qualifies to elect Subchapter S status, and whether that election would be advisable. The Transaction Guide also includes procedural guides to the election and termination of Subchapter S status. Forms for use in electing or terminating Subchapter S status are also included.

This chapter refers to small business corporations that have elected Subchapter S status as "S corporations." Corporations that have not elected to be S corporations are referred to as "C corporations" [see I.R.C. § 1361(a)].

For discussion of the attorney's role regarding new businesses, see Ch. 1A, Role of Counsel in Starting a New Business . For further discussion of selecting the most appropriate form of business, see Ch. 1B, Selecting Form of Business Entity . For coverage of the incorporation process in general, see Ch. 2, Formation of Corporations . Related incorporation procedures are outlined in Ch. 3, Articles of Incorporation , and Ch. 4, Bylaws . Incorporation of a going business is covered in Ch. 2A. The taxation of businesses is discussed in Ch. 1E.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Federal Law

2-2B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 2B.10

§ 2B.10 Qualification as S Corporation

[1] In General

An "S corporation" is a small business corporation for which an S corporation election under I.R.C. § 1362(a) is in effect for that tax year [I.R.C. § 1361(a)(1)]. With limited exceptions, a small business corporation may elect to be an S corporation [I.R.C. § 1362(a)]. Unlike an ordinary corporation, known as a "C corporation," which is a separate tax-paying entity from its shareholders [see I.R.C. § 11], an S corporation is generally treated as a conduit of income, loss, deductions, and credits to the shareholders [see I.R.C. §§ 1363, 1366]. For a discussion of the advisability of electing to be an S corporation, see § 2B.111.

A "small business corporation" is eligible to make the S election if it is a domestic corporation that has no more than 100 shareholders and no more than one class of stock [I.R.C. § 1361(b)(1)(A), (D)]. In addition, the shareholders of an S corporation must meet certain eligibility requirements [see [2], [3], below; see also Cabintaxi Corp. v. Commissioner (7th Cir. 1995) 63 F.3d 614 (federal law determines whether beneficial of record shareholder makes election; state law determines whether particular investor was beneficial shareholder on date of election); Pahl v. Commissioner (9th Cir. 1998) 150 F.3d 1124, 1127-1128 (court looks to federal law to determine what interest creates tax liability, and to state law to determine whether taxpayer has requisite interest)]. Certain types of corporations are ineligible to elect Subchapter S status [see [5], below], and certain types of trusts are ineligible [see [6], below].

[2] Number of Shareholders

An S corporation may have no more than 100 shareholders [I.R.C. § 1361(b)(1)(A)]. For S corporation purposes, a husband and wife (and their estates) are treated as one shareholder, and family members may elect to be treated as a single shareholder [I.R.C. § 1361(c)(1)]. Increasing the number of permitted shareholders expands the usefulness of S corporations in several ways:

- It facilitates the attraction of capital by permitting more investors.
- It enhances the S corporation's ability to acquire stock of other businesses.

- It enhances the S corporation's ability to use stock for employee compensation, such as options and restricted stock.

- It facilitates the reduction of estate taxes and the preservation of family businesses by allowing more gifts of S stock to a greater number of family members.

However, the expanded 100-shareholder limitation exceeds two important limited offering exemptions from registration under federal securities law [see 17 C.F.R. §§ 230.505, 230.506 (Rule 505, 506 exemptions)], as well as the number of shareholders permitted for California close corporations [see Corp. Code § 158] and for the California small offering exemption [see Corp. Code § 25102(h)] and limited offering exemption [see Corp. Code § 25102(f)] under the California Corporate Securities Law of 1968 [see Corp. Code §§ 25000-25706]. For discussion of the California limited offering exemption, see Ch. 6B, California Limited Offering Exemptions . For discussion of the California small offering exemption, see Ch. 6C, California Small Offering Exemption . For discussion of the federal Rule 505 and 506 securities exemptions, see Ch. 6A, Federal Securities Exemptions for California Nonpublic Corporations . For more detailed discussion of close corporations, see California Small Business Guide (Matthew Bender).

[3] Types of Permitted Shareholders

[a] Individuals

An S corporation may have individuals as shareholders [I.R.C. § 1361(b)(1)(B)]. For purposes of determining the number of shareholders, husbands and wives (and their estates) are treated as one shareholder, and family members may elect to be treated as a single shareholder [I.R.C. § 1361(c)(1)]. However, an S corporation shareholder cannot be a nonresident alien [I.R.C. § 1361(b)(1)(C)].

[b] Estates

An S corporation may have estates as shareholders [I.R.C. § 1361(b)(1)(B)], including the estate of an individual in bankruptcy under Title 11 [I.R.C. § 1361(c)(3); see In re Stadler Assoc's, Inc. (S.D. Fla. 1995) 186 B.R. 762 (filing of Chapter 7 bankruptcy does not terminate S corporation status)].

[c] Grantor Trusts

A grantor trust--that is, a trust that is treated as owned by an individual who is a citizen or resident of the United States--is permitted to hold S corporation stock [I.R.C. § 1361(b)(1)(B), (c)(2)(A)(i); see also I.R.C. § 671 et seq. (grantors and others treated as substantial owners)]. The deemed owner is treated as the shareholder [I.R.C. § 1361(c)(2)(B)(i)].

A trust that was treated as a grantor trust immediately before the death of the deemed owner and continues as a trust may continue as an eligible shareholder for a two-year period beginning on the day of the deemed owner's death [I.R.C. § 1361(b)(1)(B), (c)(2)(A)(ii)]. The deemed owner's estate is treated as the shareholder [I.R.C. § 1361(c)(2)(B)(ii)].

[d] Testamentary Trusts

A testamentary trust is an eligible S corporation shareholder. The trust may hold S corporation stock for a two-year period beginning on the day that the stock is transferred to the trust [I.R.C. § 1361(b)(1)(B), (c)(2)(A)(iii)]. The estate of the testator is treated as the shareholder [I.R.C. § 1361(c)(2)(B)(iii)].

[e] Voting Trusts

A voting trust is an eligible S corporation shareholder [I.R.C. § 1361(b)(1)(B), (c)(2)(A)(iv)]. However, each beneficiary of the trust is treated as a shareholder for the purpose of the 100-shareholder limitation [I.R.C. § 1362(c)(2)(B)(iv)].

[f] Electing Small Business Trusts

An electing small business trust is an eligible S corporation shareholder [I.R.C. § 1361(b)(1)(B), (c)(2)(A)(v)]. An "electing small business trust" ("ESBT") is any trust if that trust does not have as a beneficiary any person other than an individual, an estate, or a specified charitable organization [I.R.C. § 1361(e)(1)(A)(i)]. These charitable organizations include corporations, trusts, community chests, funds, or foundations; posts or organizations of war veterans; domestic fraternal societies, orders, or associations; and cemetery companies operated exclusively for the benefit of its members [I.R.C. § 170(c)(2), (3), (4), (5)] and I.R.C. § 170(c)(1) organizations that hold a contingent interest in the ESBT and are not potential income beneficiaries [see I.R.C. § 1361(e)(2), (3)].

No interest in an ESBT may be acquired by purchase [I.R.C. § 1361(e)(1)(A)(ii); see I.R.C. § 1361(e)(1)(C) ("purchase" means any acquisition of property with a cost basis)]. Therefore, an interest in an ESBT may be acquired by gift, bequest, or inheritance. Further, a trust must affirmatively elect to be treated as an electing small business trust [I.R.C. § 1361(e)(1)(A)(iii)]. The election must be made by the trustee of the trust. The election applies to the taxable year for which it is made, and may only be revoked with the consent of the Secretary [I.R.C. § 1361(e)(3)].

Each potential current beneficiary of the trust is treated as a shareholder, or, if there are no potential current beneficiaries, the trust is treated as the shareholder [I.R.C. § 1361(c)(2)(B)(v)]. A "potential current beneficiary" means any person, with respect to any period, who is entitled to, or at the discretion of any person may receive, a distribution from the principal or income of the trust determined without regard to any power of appointment to the extent it remains unexercised at the end of the period. If the trust disposes of all the stock that it holds in an S corporation, the term "potential current beneficiary" does not include any person who first became eligible to receive a distribution of income or principal during the one-year period before the disposition [I.R.C. § 1361(e)(2)]. All potential current beneficiaries are counted for purposes of the 100-shareholder limit and other shareholder eligibility rules [see I.R.C. § 1361(c)(2)(B)(v), (e)(2)]. Thus, for example, a nonresident alien who is a potential current beneficiary of an ESBT causes the loss of the S election; however, a nonresident alien who is only a contingent beneficiary does not affect the S corporation election.

Trusts that are ineligible to become an ESBT are discussed in [6], below.

[g] Qualified Subchapter S Trusts

A qualified Subchapter S trust (QSST) may hold S corporation stock if the beneficiary (or legal representative) so elects [see I.R.C. § 1361(d)(1), (2)]. A "qualified Subchapter S trust" is a trust that distributes (or is required to distribute) all of its income to one individual who is a citizen or resident of the United States [I.R.C. § 1361(d)(3)(B); see I.R.C. § 643(b) ("income" defined)] and the terms of the trust satisfy all of the following requirements [see I.R.C. § 1361(d)(3)(A)]:

- During the life of the current income beneficiary, the trust has only one income beneficiary.
- Any corpus distributed during the life of the current income beneficiary may only be distributed to that beneficiary.
- The income interest of the current income beneficiary in the trust terminates on the earlier of that beneficiary's death or the termination of the trust.
- On termination of the trust during the life of the current income beneficiary, the trust distributes all its assets to that beneficiary; the possibility of multiple beneficiaries after the death of the current income beneficiary does not disqualify the trust during the current single income beneficiary's lifetime.

A substantially separate and independent share of a trust is treated as a separate trust for determining eligibility as a qualified Subchapter S trust [I.R.C. § 1361(d)(3); see I.R.C. § 663(c) (separate shares treated as separate trusts)].

If a qualified Subchapter S trust ceases to meet any of these requirements, the trust is no longer eligible as an S corporation shareholder [I.R.C. § 1361(d)(4)].

[h] Specified Exempt Organizations

Qualified retirement plans, such as qualified pensions, profit-sharing, and stock bonus plans [see I.R.C. § 401(a)], and charitable organizations [see I.R.C. § 501(c)(3)] that are exempt from tax under I.R.C. § 501(a) may be shareholders in S corporations [I.R.C. § 1361(b)(1)(B), (c)(6)]. For purposes of determining the number of shareholders of an S corporation, a qualified tax-exempt shareholder counts as one shareholder [see Senate Finance Com. Rpt., H.R. 3448, p. 63].

[4] One Class of Stock

An S corporation may have no more than one class of stock [I.R.C. § 1361(b)(1)(D)]. However, differences in common stock voting rights do not violate this one-class requirement [I.R.C. § 1361(c)(4)] and "straight debt" is not treated as a second class of stock [I.R.C. § 1361(c)(5)(A)]. A "straight debt" is a written unconditional promise to pay a specified sum on demand or on a specified date if (1) the interest rate and interest payment dates are fixed and not contingent on profits, the borrower's discretion, or similar factors; (2) the debt cannot be converted directly or indirectly into stock; and (3) the creditor is an individual, estate, or a trust permitted as an S corporation shareholder, or a person actively and regularly engaged in the business of lending money [I.R.C. § 1361(c)(5)(B); see [3], above].

[5] Corporations Ineligible for Subchapter S Status

Certain corporations are ineligible to elect Subchapter S status. These "ineligible corporations" include [I.R.C. § 1361(b)(2)]:

- Financial institutions that uses the reserve method of accounting for bad debts [see I.R.C. § 585 (reserves for losses on loans)].

- Insurance companies taxed under Subchapter L [see I.R.C. § 800 et seq.].

- Corporations that operate in Puerto Rico or other territorial possessions of the United States and elect special tax treatment [see I.R.C. § 936 (Puerto Rico and possession tax credit)].

- A domestic international sales corporation (DISC) or former DISC [see I.R.C. § 991 et seq.].

[6] Trusts Ineligible for ESBT Status

A qualified subchapter S trust [see [4][v], above] may not elect to become an ESBT if an election [see I.R.C. § 1362(d)(2)] applies to any corporate stock held by the trust [I.R.C. § 1362(e)(1)(B)(i)]. Tax-exempt trusts are precluded from electing to become an ESBT [I.R.C. § 1362(e)(1)(B)(ii)]. Further, charitable remainder annuity trusts and charitable remainder unitrusts may not elect ESBT status [I.R.C. § 1362(e)(1)(B)(iii); see I.R.C. § 664(d)].

[7] Qualified Subchapter S Subsidiaries

S corporation may own a qualified subchapter S subsidiary (QSSS) [see I.R.C. § 1362(b)(3)(A)]. Thus, both the parent and the subsidiary can be S corporations, as long as the subsidiary is a qualified subchapter S subsidiary. A QSSS is a domestic corporation that satisfies the following requirements [see I.R.C. § 1362(b)(3)(B)]:

- The QSSS is not an ineligible corporation [see [5], above].
- One hundred percent of the stock of the subsidiary is owned by an S corporation parent.
- The parent elects to treat the subsidiary as a QSSS.

If a subsidiary is a QSSS, it is not treated as a separate corporation [I.R.C. § 1362(b)(3)(A)(i)]. All the assets, liabilities, and items of income, deduction, loss, and credit of the subsidiary are treated as the assets, liabilities, and items of income, deduction, loss, and credit of the parent S corporation [I.R.C. § 1362(b)(3)(A)(ii)].

If a corporation ceases to be a QSSS, the corporation and any successor corporation are not eligible treatment as a qualified subchapter S subsidiary, or to make an S election before its fifth taxable year which begins after the first taxable year for which the termination was effective, unless the IRS consents to an earlier re-election [I.R.C. § 1362(b)(3)(D)]. The Internal Revenue Code does not appear to authorize the revocation of the QSSS election, so the only way to terminate S status is failure to own 100 percent of the stock. After cessation, the subsidiary will be treated as a new corporation acquiring all of its assets (and assuming all of its liabilities) immediately before that cessation from the parent S corporation in exchange for its stock [I.R.C. § 1362(b)(3)(D)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Federal Law

2-2B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 2B.11

§ 2B.11 Election of Subchapter S Status

[1] Initial Election

In general, a qualifying small business corporation [see I.R.C. § 1361(a)(1)] that has never been an S corporation is free to elect that status [I.R.C. § 1362(a)(1); see I.R.C. § 1362(g); see also [2], below]. For a valid Subchapter S election, all of the shareholders in the corporation (as of the day of the election) must consent to the election [I.R.C. § 1362(a)(2)].

Ordinarily, the election for any tax year may be made at any time during the preceding tax year, or at any time on or before the 15th day of the third month of the tax year for which the election is to become effective [I.R.C. § 1362(b)(1)]. However, an election is treated as made for the following tax year, even though made in the first two and a half months of a tax year, if either the corporation was ineligible for one or more days or a shareholder failed to consent to the election [I.R.C. § 1362(b)(2)]. Any election made after the end of the first two and a half months of a tax year is treated as made for the following tax year [I.R.C. § 1362(b)(3)]; however, the Secretary is authorized to treat late elections as timely for the taxable year [I.R.C. § 1362(b)(5); see [3][a], below].

An election, once made, is effective for the tax year for which it is made and all succeeding tax years until terminated [I.R.C. § 1362(c); see I.R.C. § 1362(d) (termination); see also § 2B.13].

For a procedural guide to electing Subchapter S status, see § 2B.120.

[2] Election by Previously Terminated S Corporation

A small business corporation whose previous Subchapter S election was terminated [see I.R.C. § 1362(d); see also § 2B.13] is ineligible to make a new election for five tax years unless the consent of the IRS is obtained [see I.R.C. § 1362(g)]. For detailed coverage of the procedures involved in reelecting after termination, see § 2B.120[2].

[3] Invalid Elections

[a] Untimely Elections

The Secretary is authorized to treat late elections made after the prescribed first two and a half months of a tax year as timely made for that taxable year [see I.R.C. § 1362(b)(5)]. However, the Secretary must determine that reasonable cause existed for the failure to make the election in a timely manner [I.R.C. § 1362(b)(5)(B)]. This authority applies even when no S election was ever filed for the taxable year [I.R.C. § 1362(b)(5)(A)].

[b] Inadvertent Invalid Elections

The Secretary may waive the effect of an otherwise invalid S election caused by the failure to qualify as a small business corporation or the failure to obtain the required shareholder consents [I.R.C. § 1362(f)(1)(A)]. The validation of an ineffective S election must be based on a determination that the circumstances resulting in the ineffectiveness were inadvertent, and that steps were taken to qualify the corporation as a small business corporation, or acquire the requisite shareholder consents, within a reasonable time after discovery of the circumstances causing the ineffectiveness [I.R.C. § 1362(f)(2), (3)]. Further, the corporation and each shareholder must agree to make such adjustments to their income (consistent with the corporation's status as an S corporation) as are required by the IRS [I.R.C. § 1362(f)(4)]. The Committee Reports indicate that it is intended that the IRS be reasonable in exercising this authority and apply standards that are similar to those applied under former law to inadvertent subchapter S terminations and other late or invalid elections [Conf. Rept. H.R. 3448, Act § 1305].

The Secretary also may waive the effect of an inadvertent invalid election or termination of election to treat a subsidiary as a qualified Subchapter S subsidiary [I.R.C. § 1362(f); see § 2B.10[7]].

CHAPTER 2B ELECTING SUBCHAPTER S STATUS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Federal Law

2-2B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 2B.12

§ 2B.12 Tax Year of S Corporation

[1] In General

The tax year of an S corporation must be a "permitted year" [see I.R.C. § 1378(a), (b); see [2], below] or an "alternative year" [see I.R.C. § 444; see [3], below].

[2] Election of Permitted Year

A "permitted year" is a tax year that is either a calendar year or any other accounting period for which the corporation establishes a business purpose satisfactory to the IRS [I.R.C. § 1378(b)]. For this purpose, deferral of income to shareholders is not treated as a business purpose that justifies an accounting period different from the calendar year [I.R.C. § 1378(b)].

For a discussion of the requirements for obtaining automatic approval of a fiscal year, see § 2B.200[1][c][iv]. For a discussion of the requirements for obtaining approval of a fiscal year by filing a separate statement of business purposes, see § 2B.203[1][b].

[3] Election of Alternative Year

An S corporation may elect an "alternative year"; that is, a year (other than a permitted year [see [2], above]) that is elected under I.R.C. § 444 [see § 2B.205]. In general, the corporation may only elect an alternative year if the "deferral period," that is, the period of time between the beginning of the tax year elected and the close of the calendar year, does not exceed three months [I.R.C. § 444(b)(1), (4), (e); see I.R.C. § 444(b)(2), (3) (exceptions for changing taxable year and 1986 entities)].

A corporation that is part of a "tiered structure," other than a tiered structure that consists of partnerships or S corporations (or both) that all have the same tax year, may not elect an alternative year [I.R.C. § 444(d)(3)]. Ordinarily, an S corporation is a member of a tiered structure if it owns any portion of, or is owned by, a partnership, S corporation, personal service corporation, or trust [see Temp. Treas. Reg. § 1.444-2T(b)(1)(ii)].

An S corporation that elects an alternative year must make certain advance tax payments [I.R.C. § 444(c)(1); see I.R.C. § 7519 (required payments)]. These payments are equal to the amount by which the corporation's required payment exceeds $500 [I.R.C. § 7519(a)(2)]; the "required payment" is determined by adding 1 percent to the highest rate of tax under I.R.C. § 1, multiplying the net base year income of the entity by the resulting percentage, and then deducting the amount of the required payment for the preceding applicable election year [see I.R.C. § 7519(b)].

An alternative-year election remains in effect until the corporation changes its tax year or otherwise terminates the election [I.R.C. § 444(d)(2)(A)]. A change from an alternative year to a permitted year may be made without IRS consent [I.R.C. § 444(d)(2)(A); see I.R.C. § 1378(b) (permitted year); see also [2], above]. However, once a corporation changes to a permitted year it cannot elect another alternative year [I.R.C. § 444(d)(2)(B)].

§ 2B.13 Termination of Subchapter S Status

[1] Manner of Termination

[a] Revocation by Shareholders

Subchapter S status may be terminated by a revocation consented to by shareholders holding more than one half of the corporation's shares [I.R.C. § 1362(d)(1)(A), (B)]. A revocation may specify an effective date that is on or after the day the revocation is made [see I.R.C. § 1362(d)(1)(D)]. However, if an effective date is not specified, a revocation made on or before the 15th day of the third month of any tax year is effective for that tax year, and a revocation made after the 15th day of the third month is effective for the following tax year [I.R.C. § 1362(d)(1)(C)].

For a procedural guide to termination of S corporation status, see § 2B.130.

[b] Loss of Small Business Corporation Status

A Subchapter S election terminates at any time after the first day of the first tax year for which the corporation is an S corporation if it ceases to be a small business corporation [see I.R.C. § 1362(d)(2)]. An S corporation ceases to be a small business corporation when it becomes an ineligible corporation, when it has more than 100 shareholders, has ineligible shareholders, or issues more than one class of shares [see I.R.C. § 1361(b); see also § 2B.10]. Termination is effective as of the date of cessation as a small business corporation [see I.R.C. § 1362(d)(2)(B)].

[c] Receipt of Excess Passive Investment Income

The Subchapter S status of a corporation is terminated if the corporation has accumulated earnings and profits at the close of each of three consecutive taxable years, and has gross receipts for each of those three taxable years more that 25 percent of which are passive investment income [see I.R.C. § 1362(d)(3)(A)(i)]. With certain exceptions, "passive investment income" means gross receipts derived from royalties, rents, dividends, interest, annuities, and sales or exchanges of stock or securities [I.R.C. § 1362(d)(3)(C)(i)]. When capital assets other than stock and securities are disposed of, gross receipts are only included in this calculation to the extent of any net capital gain income [I.R.C. §

1362(d)(3)(B)].

"Passive investment income" does not include interest on any obligation acquired in the ordinary course of the corporation's trade or business from its sale of capital assets [see I.R.C. § 1221], the income of certain lending or finance companies [see I.R.C. § 542], receipts derived from certain types of corporate liquidations [see I.R.C. § 1362(d)(3)(C)(ii)-(iv); see also I.R.C. § 331], or dividends from a C corporation to the extent that the dividends are attributable to earnings and profits from derived from the active conduct of a trade or business [I.R.C. § 1362(d)(3)(E)]. Special rules are used to determine the passive investment income of options dealers and commodities dealers [see I.R.C. § 1362(d)(3)(D)]. For a depository institution holding company, "passive investment income" does not include interest income or dividends on assets required to be held by the company [I.R.C. § 1362(d)(3)(F); see 12 U.S.C. § 1813(w)(1)].

Termination is effective on and after the first day of the first taxable year beginning after the third consecutive tax year in which S corporation status is terminated [I.R.C. § 1362(d)(3)(A)(ii)].

[2] Waiver of Inadvertent Terminations

Under certain circumstances, an inadvertent termination of Subchapter S status (or of qualified Subchapter S subsidiary status) may be excused [see I.R.C. § 1362(f)]. A corporation or qualified Subchapter S subsidiary that terminates its election is treated as continuing to be an S corporation during a period specified by the Secretary under the following circumstances [see I.R.C. § 1362(f)(1)-(4)]:

- The election was ineffective or was terminated because the S corporation ceased to be a small business corporation or violated the accumulated earnings and profits and accumulated earnings restrictions [see I.R.C. § 1362(d)(2), (3); see also [1][b], [c], above].

- The Secretary determines that the circumstances resulting in the ineffectiveness or termination were inadvertent.

- Within a reasonable time after discovering the circumstances resulting in the ineffectiveness or termination, the corporation took steps so that the corporation for which the election was made or the termination occurred is again a small business corporation or a qualified Subchapter S subsidiary, as the case may be, or to acquire the requisite shareholder consents.

- The corporation for which the election was made or the termination occurred and each shareholder during the relevant period agree to make any adjustments required by the Secretary for that period.

Congress intends that the IRS be reasonable in granting waivers and that the government and taxpayers work out agreements that protect the revenues without undue hardship to taxpayers [see S. Rep. No. 97-640, p. 12 (1982)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Federal Law

2-2B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 2B.14

§ 2B.14 Taxation of S Corporations

[1] Overview

With a few exceptions, S corporations are conduits of income, losses, deductions, or credits to their shareholders for federal income tax purposes [see I.R.C. §§ 1363, 1366]. Items passed through to shareholders must be separately stated [I.R.C. § 1363(b)(1); see I.R.C. § 1366(a)(1)(A) (shareholders taxation); see also Gitlitz v. Comm'r (2001) 531 U.S. 206, 121 S. Ct. 701, 706, 709, 148 L. Ed. 2d 613 (determining that under I.R.C. § 1366(a)(1)(A), excluded discharged debt is item of income which passes through to shareholders and increases their bases in stock, and pass-through is performed before reduction of S corporation's tax attributes)].

An S corporation remains liable for any tax increase resulting from recapture of investment tax credits allowed for years when it was a C corporation [see I.R.C. § 1371(d)(2); see also [4], below]. In addition, an S corporation with accumulated earnings and profits and passive investment income totaling more than 25 percent of gross receipts may be subject to a tax on that income [see I.R.C. § 1375; see also [5], below]. In certain circumstances, S corporations may be subject to income tax on built-in gains [see I.R.C. § 1374; see also [6], below].

[2] General Computation of S Corporation's Taxable Income

As with a partnership, the taxable income of an S corporation is computed in the same manner as in the case of an individual, with certain exceptions described below [I.R.C. § 1363(b)]. The corporation is not allowed the following deductions [I.R.C. § 1363(b)(2); see I.R.C. § 703(a)(2) (partnership computation)]:

- Itemized deductions allowed to individuals.
- Deductions for personal exemptions.
- Deductions for foreign taxes, charitable contributions, net operating losses, or oil and gas depletion allowances.

An S corporation may amortize organizational expenses [I.R.C. § 1363(b)(3); see I.R.C. § 248 (organizational expenditures)].

If the S corporation (or any predecessor) was a C corporation for any of the three immediately preceding tax years, it must pay a minimum tax on any tax preference items, such as excess depreciation on real property, amortization of pollution control facilities, deductions related to percentage depletion of coal and iron ore, deductions related to mineral exploration and intangible drilling costs [I.R.C. § 1363(b)(4); see I.R.C. § 291].

In general, any elections affecting the computing of items derived from the corporation must be made by the corporation [I.R.C. § 1363(c)(1)]. However, each shareholder must make any election regarding the deduction and recapture of certain mining expenses [I.R.C. § 1363(c)(2)(A); see I.R.C. § 617] and the foreign tax credit [I.R.C. § 1363(c)(2)(B); see I.R.C. § 901].

Items passed through to shareholders must be separately stated [I.R.C. § 1363(b)(1); see I.R.C. § 1366(a)(1)(A) (shareholders taxation); see also Gitlitz v. Comm'r (2001) 531 U.S. 206, 121 S. Ct. 701, 706, 709, 148 L. Ed. 2d 613 (determining that under I.R.C. § 1366(a)(1)(A), excluded discharged debt is item of income subject to pass-through to shareholders, and pass-through is performed before reduction of S corporation's tax attributes)].

[3] LIFO Benefits Recapture

If a C corporation inventoried goods under the LIFO (last in, first out) method during the last tax year before its S election became effective, it must include the "LIFO recapture amount" in its gross income for that last tax year as a C corporation [I.R.C. § 1363(d)(1), (3); see I.R.C. § 472 ("LIFO" defined)]. The "LIFO recapture amount" is the amount by which the inventory amount of the inventory assets under the FIFO (first in, first out) method exceeds the inventory amount of those assets under the LIFO method [I.R.C. § 1363(d)(3); but see I.R.C. § 1363(d)(5) (increase in tax due to LIFO recapture does not apply to specified decreases in basis pursuant to I.R.C. § 1367(a)(2)(D), or to adjustments made to corporation's earnings and profits pursuant to I.R.C. § 1371(c)(1))]. Any tax increase due to LIFO recapture is payable in four equal installments [I.R.C. § 1363(d)(2)(A)]. The first installment must be paid by the due date for the tax return for the last year in which the corporation was a C corporation [I.R.C. § 1363(d)(2)(B)].

[4] Investment Credit Recapture

The fact that an existing corporation elects Subchapter S status does not affect the applicability of the investment tax credit [see I.R.C. § 1371(d)(1)]. However, the corporation remains liable, regardless of the Subchapter S election, for recapture of any previously allowed investment credit if the corporation makes an early disposition of the property involved [see I.R.C. §§ 49(b), 50(a), 1371(d)(2)]. The investment credit recapture provisions do not apply for purposes of California taxation of S corporations [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23806(c)].

[5] Tax on Passive Investment Income

A tax is imposed on the "excess" net passive investment income of a corporation that existed as a C corporation before electing Subchapter S status if for any tax year it has accumulated earnings and profits at the close of the year and more than 25 percent of its gross receipts derived from passive investments [I.R.C. § 1375(a), (b)(3); see I.R.C. § 1362(d)(3)(D)]. The highest corporate income tax rate is imposed on the excess net passive income [see I.R.C. § 1375(a); see also I.R.C. § 1375(b) ("excess net passive income" and "net passive income" defined)]. Passive investment income is determined without taking into account any recognized built-in gain or loss for any tax year in the recognition period applicable to the determination of built-in gain or loss [I.R.C. § 1375(b)(4); see I.R.C. § 1374].

The IRS may waive this tax if the S corporation establishes that it determined in good faith that it had no accumulated earnings and profits at the close of a tax year, and that it distributed any accumulated earnings and profits within a reasonable time after it determined the existence of those earnings and profits [I.R.C. § 1375(d)].

[6] Built-In Gains Tax

An S corporation that previously was a C corporation may be subject to tax on its income if, during the recognition period, it has a "net recognized built-in gain" [see I.R.C. § 1374(a), (c)(1), (d)(7)]. The "recognition period" is the 10-year period beginning on the first day of the first tax year of the S corporation; for any amount includible in income based on I.R.C. 593(e), this rule is applied without regard to the phrase "10-year period" [I.R.C. § 1374(d)(7); see I.R.C. § 593(e) (distributions of property out of excess reserves to shareholders)]. For any tax year in the recognition period, "net recognized built-in gain" is the lesser of the corporation's taxable income for that year determined in a specified manner [see I.R.C. § 1375(b)(1)(B)] or the amount that would be the corporation's taxable income for that year if only recognized built-in gains and losses were taken into account [I.R.C. § 1374(d)(2)(A); see I.R.C. § 1374(c)(2) (limitation on amount of net recognized built-in gain)]. "Recognized built-in gain or loss" is any gain or loss recognized during the recognition period on the disposition of any asset transferred by the C corporation to the S corporation [I.R.C. § 1374(d)(3), (4)]. However, any gain that exceeds the excess of the asset's fair market value at the beginning of the first tax year of the S corporation over the adjusted basis of the asset at that time, or any loss that exceeds the excess of the adjusted basis of the asset at the beginning of the first tax year over the asset's fair market value at that time, is not included in the determination of built-in gain or loss [I.R.C. § 1374(d)(3)(B), (4)(B)].

If the S corporation acquires an asset and determines its basis (in whole or in part) in that asset by reference to the basis of that asset or any other property in the hands of its predecessor C corporation, then a tax is imposed on any net recognized built-in gain attributable to the asset for any tax year beginning in the recognition period [I.R.C. § 1374(d)(8)(A)]. For purposes of determining the tax, the day on which the assets were acquired, rather than the beginning of the first tax year for which the corporation was an S corporation, applies [I.R.C. § 1374(d)(8)(B)].

The tax is computed at the highest corporate rate to the net recognized built-in gain of the S corporation for the tax year [I.R.C. § 1374(b)(1); see I.R.C. § 11(b) (corporate tax rate)], or, if applicable, the alternative rate on capital gain income [I.R.C. § 1374(b)(4); see I.R.C. § 1201(a)]. Any net operating loss carryforward arising in a tax year for which the corporation was a C corporation is allowed as a deduction [I.R.C. § 1374(b)(2)].

[1] Overview

The general rule, analogous to partnership taxation rules, is that S corporation shareholders must account for their pro rata share of an S corporation's items of income, loss, deduction, or credit [see I.R.C. § 1366(a); see also I.R.C. § 702 (income and credits of partner); Pahl v. Commissioner (9th Cir. 1998) 150 F.3d 1124, 1129-1131 (taxpayer was shareholder in S corporation and therefore should have reported pro rata share of law firm's income on his tax returns)]. The character of any item "passes through" from the corporation to the shareholders; the character of an item included in a shareholder's pro rata share is determined as if the item were realized directly from the source from which it was realized by the corporation, or incurred in the same manner as incurred by the corporation [see I.R.C. § 1366(b); see also Valentino v. Franchise Tax Board (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 1284, 1290, 1296, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 304 (this federal "conduit" rule has essentially been adopted in California in Rev. & Tax. Code § 23800; thus California source income of S corporation, passed through to nonresident, is subject to California tax)].

If the corporation is subjected to a tax on excess net passive income, each item of passive investment income passed through to the shareholders may be reduced to take that tax into account [see I.R.C. § 1366(f)(3); see also I.R.C. § 1374]. If any tax is imposed on the corporation for a built-in gain, the amount of the tax must be treated as a loss sustained by the corporation during that tax year and the character of the loss is determined by allocating the loss proportionately among the recognized built-in gains giving rise to the tax [I.R.C. § 1366(f)(2); see I.R.C. § 1374; see also § 2B.14[6]].

A shareholder may account for losses, but only to the extent that the amount of losses and deductions passed through the corporation for the tax year does not exceed the sum of the adjusted basis of the shareholder's stock in the corporation and the shareholder's adjusted basis in any loans to the corporation [I.R.C. § 1366(d)(1); see I.R.C. § 1367(a)(1), (2)(A)]. A loss or deduction that is disallowed because it exceeds basis is treated as incurred by the corporation in the succeeding tax year with respect to that shareholder [I.R.C. § 1366(d)(2)(A); see I.R.C. § 1366(d)(2)(B) (spousal transfers and transfers incident to divorce)].

[3] Adjustments to Basis of Stock

Subchapter S provides for the adjustment of the basis of S corporation stock in much the same manner as is provided for partnerships [see I.R.C. § 1367; see also I.R.C. § 705 (determination of basis of partner's interest)]. In general, both taxable and nontaxable income and deductible and nondeductible expenses serve either to increase or decrease the shareholders' bases in their stock [see S. Rep. No. 97-640, p. 18 (1982)]. Basis is adjusted before application of the rules relating to distributions for any particular tax year [see I.R.C. §§ 1366(d), 1367(a)]. Unlike the partnership rules, however, to the extent that property distributions are treated as a return of basis, basis is reduced by the fair market value of these properties [see S. Rep. No. 97-640, p. 18 (1982)]. Income passed through to a shareholder first increases the shareholder's basis in loans to the corporation to the extent that basis was previously reduced by the passthrough of losses [see I.R.C. § 1367(b)(2)].

§ 2B.16 Treatment of Corporate Distributions to S Corporation Shareholders

[1] In General

The treatment of corporate distributions that would otherwise be taxable to the shareholder [see I.R.C. § 301(c)] depends on whether or not the corporation has accumulated earnings and profits [see I.R.C. § 1368(a); see also [2], [3], below]. A small business corporation is not deemed to have "earnings and profits" attributable to any tax year beginning after 1982 if a Subchapter S election was in effect for that year, since all items of income, loss, deduction, or credit pass through to the shareholders [see I.R.C. § 1366(b)]. A corporation can have earnings and profits attributable to tax years for which an election was not in effect, tax years beginning before 1983 for which an election was in effect, and any corporate acquisition that results in a carryover of earnings and profits [see S. Rep. No. 97-640, p. 20 (1982); see also I.R.C. § 381 (carryovers in certain corporate acquisitions)]. Whether or not the S corporation has accumulated earnings and profits, the treatment of the distribution is determined after adjustments are made to the distributee-shareholder's stock [see I.R.C. §§ 1367, 1368(d)(1); see also § 2B.15[2]] and to the corporation's "accumulated adjustments account" [see I.R.C. § 1368(d)(2), (e)(1)]. In the case of any distribution made during any taxable year, the adjusted basis of the stock is determined with regard to the adjustment increase provisions for the taxable year [I.R.C. § 1368(d); see I.R.C. § 1367(a)(1)].

[2] S Corporation Without Accumulated Earnings and Profits

If the corporation does not have accumulated earnings and profits, the tax treatment of a distribution depends on the shareholder's basis in the stock [see I.R.C. § 1368(b)]. A distribution is not included in the shareholder's gross income to the extent it does not exceed the adjusted basis of the stock [I.R.C. § 1368(b)(1)]; the shareholder's basis in the stock is decreased by the amount of the distribution [I.R.C. § 1367(a)(2)(A)]. The amount of a distribution that exceeds the adjusted basis of the stock is treated as capital gain [I.R.C. § 1368(b)(2)].

[3] S Corporation With Accumulated Earnings and Profits

[a] Treatment of Amount That Does Not Exceed Accumulated Adjustment Account

If a corporation has accumulated earnings and profits, the portion of the distribution that does not exceed the corporation's accumulated adjustment account is treated in the same manner as distributions from S corporations without accumulated earnings and profits [I.R.C. § 1368(c)(1); see [2], above]. Except in the case of certain redemptions, the "accumulated adjustment account" generally is the S corporation's post-1982 undistributed accumulated gross income less deductible expenses, but without an adjustment for federal taxes attributable to any tax year in which the corporation was a C corporation [I.R.C. § 1368(e)(1); see I.R.C. § 1367; see also I.R.C. § 1368(e)(1)(C) (accumulated adjustments account determined without regard to net losses)]. To the extent that a distribution does not exceed the accumulated adjustment account, a corporation, with the consent of all affected shareholders, may elect to treat the distribution as a dividend for any particular tax year [see I.R.C. § 1368(c)(1), (2), (e)(3)].

[b] Treatment of Amount Exceeding Accumulated Adjustment Account

The amount of a distribution in excess of the accumulated adjustment account is treated as a dividend to the extent that it does not exceed accumulated earnings and profits [I.R.C. § 1368(c)(2)]. To the extent that the distribution does exceed accumulated earnings and profits, a distribution is treated in the same manner as a distribution from an S corporation without accumulated earnings and profits [I.R.C. § 1368(c)(3); see [2], above]. If the distributions during the tax year exceed the amount in the accumulated adjustments account at the close of the tax year, the balance of that account must be allocated among the distributions in proportion to their respective sizes [I.R.C. § 1368(c)].

§ 2B.17 Treatment of S Corporation as Partnership

[1] Taxation of Employee Fringe Benefits

For the purpose of fringe benefit taxation for all tax years beginning after January 1, 1988, an S corporation is treated as a partnership [I.R.C. § 1372; see Pub. L. No. 97-354, § 6(d)]. The tax treatment of employee fringe benefits of a shareholder-employee of an S corporation depends on the amount of the corporation's stock owned by the shareholder. If the shareholder is a 2-percent shareholder [see I.R.C. § 1372(b) (definition)], he or she will be treated as a partner [I.R.C. § 1372(a)(2)], and amounts paid for fringe benefits are not deductible by the corporation [see I.R.C. §§ 703(a)(2), 1363(b)(2)]. The 2-percent shareholder must include the receipt of fringes, such as medical reimbursement payments, in gross income and may deduct medical expenses only to the same extent that a partner could. For tax years beginning between 1982 and 1988, the S corporation may be treated as a partnership for purposes of fringe benefit taxation under certain circumstances [see Pub. L. No. 97-354, § 6(d); I.R.C. § 1372].

[2] Taxation of Foreign Income

For the purpose of taxation of foreign income, an S corporation is treated as a partnership and the shareholders are treated as partners [I.R.C. § 1373]. This rule does not apply for purposes of California taxation [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23808].

[3] Oil and Gas Depletion Allowance

In general, the oil and gas depletion allowance will be treated in much the same way as it is by partnerships: the allowance is computed separately by each shareholder [see I.R.C. § 613A(c)(11)].

§ 2B.18 Tax Treatment of Subchapter S Items

The tax treatment of Subchapter S items (that is, income, losses, deductions, and credits) and the applicability of any penalty, addition to tax, or additional amount relating to an adjustment to a partnership item are determined at the corporate level, except as otherwise provided in regulations issued by the IRS [see I.R.C. § 6221]. A shareholder's treatment of Subchapter S items must be consistent with the corporation's treatment of those items on its tax return unless the shareholder notifies the IRS of the inconsistency [I.R.C. § 6222]. The audit provisions relating to partnerships are applicable to S corporations [see I.R.C. § 6224]. Shareholders are entitled to participate in any administrative proceeding relating to the determination of partnership items at the partnership level, but may waive that right by filing a written notice of waiver with the [I.R.C. § 6224(a), (b)].

§ 2B.19 Coordination With Subchapter C

An S corporation cannot ignore the federal tax provisions governing C corporations. Subchapter C applies to S corporations and their shareholders except to the extent that it is inconsistent with Subchapter S [I.R.C. § 1371(a)]. No carryover or carryback may be made from a tax year in which a corporation is a C corporation to one in which it is an S corporation, nor may any carryforward or carryback arise at the corporate level in an S corporation tax year [see I.R.C. § 1371(b)].

Because an S corporation's earnings and profits are passed through to its shareholders, generally Subchapter C adjustments to S corporation earnings and profits are not applicable [see I.R.C. § 1371(c)(1)]. However, Subchapter C adjustments are made to accumulated earnings and profits in the case of redemptions, liquidations, and reorganizations [see I.R.C. § 1371(c)(2)] and in the case of certain distributions treated as dividends [I.R.C. § 1371(c)(3); see I.R.C. § 1368(c)(2)]. In addition, an S corporation's earnings and profits are reduced by the amount of investment credit recapture tax imposed on the corporation with regard to any investment credits [I.R.C. § 1371(d); see I.R.C. §§ 49(b), 50(a)]. A distribution of money to shareholders after termination of Subchapter S status reduces the adjusted basis of the stock to the extent that the distribution does not exceed the accumulated adjustments account [I.R.C. § 1371(e)(1); see also I.R.C. § 1368(e)(1) ("accumulated adjustments account" defined)]. An S corporation may elect not to reduce the adjusted basis of its stock with regard to all distributions made during its post-termination transition period; however, this election requires the consent of all shareholders of the S corporation to whom distributions are made during the transition period [I.R.C. § 1371(e)(2)].

§ 2B.30 California Generally Follows Federal Law

California Subchapter S law substantially conforms to federal law, including the 1996 federal legislation that liberalized the S corporation rules [see, e.g., Rev. & Tax. Code § 23800 et seq.; see also § 2B.31 et seq.]. Two primary exceptions to this rule exist: (1) qualified Subchapter S corporations are subject to the minimum franchise tax [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23802(c); see § 2B.34[1]]; and (2) inadvertent invalid elections and terminations are permitted prospectively but not retroactively [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23801(i); see § 2B.33].

§ 2B.31 California Election of Subchapter S Status

[1] Initial Election

[a] Federal Election Required

Qualifying California corporations may elect to be treated as S corporations for state tax purposes [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23800; see Valentino v. Franchise Tax Board (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 1284, 1290 (§ 23800 essentially adopts federal "conduit" rule; thus California source income of S corporation, passed through to nonresident, is subject to California tax)]. A corporation that has a valid election under I.R.C. § 1362(a) in effect for federal purposes will be an S corporation under California tax law [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23801(a), (b)], and its shareholders will be shareholders of an S corporation without regard to whether the corporation is qualified to do business or is incorporated in California [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23801(b); see § 2B.11].

PRACTICE TIP:

The former authority permitting an S corporation to elect to be taxed as a C corporation for California tax purposes has been repealed [see former Rev. & Tax. Code § 23801(a)(4)(A)(ii)]. If a corporation that had in effect a valid federal S corporation election for federal purposes and a valid state election to be taxed as a C corporation for state purposes for taxable years beginning before January 1, 2002, is an S corporation pursuant to Rev. & Tax. Code § 23801, as amended in 2002, the effective date of the election to be treated as an S corporation for state purposes will be the first day of the taxable year beginning on or after January 1, 2002 [2002 Cal. Stats. Ch. 807, § 20, amending 2002 Cal. Stats. Ch. 35, § 76].

[b] Special Rules for Tax Years on or After January 1, 1997

The provisions of I.R.C. § 1362(b)(5), relating to authority to treat late elections, as timely, applies only for taxable years beginning on or after January 1, 1997, with respect to federal S corporation elections for taxable years beginning on or after January 1, 1997 [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23801(h)(1)]. However, if for any taxable year beginning on or after January 1, 2003, a corporation fails to qualify as an S corporation for federal income tax purposes solely because the federal Form 2553 (Election by a Small Business Corporation) was not filed in a timely manner, the corporation will be treated for tax purposes as an S corporation for the taxable year that the election should have been made, and for each subsequent year until terminated, if both of the following conditions are met [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23801(h)(2)]:

- The corporation and all of its shareholders reported their income for California tax purposes on original returns consistent with S corporation status for the year that the election should have been made, and for each subsequent taxable year (if any) until terminated; and

- The corporation and its shareholders have filed federal Form 2553 with the IRS requesting automatic relief with respect to the late S corporation election, in full compliance with the federal Rev. Proc. 97-48, 1997-2 C.B. 521 , and have received notification of the acceptance of the untimely filed election from the IRS. A copy of the notification must be provided to the FTB on request.

The provisions of I.R.C. § 1362(f), relating to inadvertent invalid elections or terminations, applies only for taxable years beginning on or after January 1, 1997, with respect to federal elections for taxable years beginning on or after January 1, 1997 [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23801(i)].

[c] Ineligible Corporations

California law shares the federal prohibition against insurance companies taxed under Subchapter L, corporations that operate in Puerto Rico or other territorial possessions of the United States and elect special tax treatment, and DISCs and former DISCs [I.R.C. § 1361(b)(2)(B)-(D); see Rev. & Tax. Code § 23800; see also § 2B.10[5]].

[2] Foreign S Corporations Qualifying to Do Business in California

A corporation that has a valid election under I.R.C. § 1362(a) in effect for federal purposes will be an S corporation under California tax law [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23801(a)], and its shareholders will be shareholders of an S corporation, without regard to whether the corporation is qualified to do business or is incorporated in California [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23801(b); see § 2B.11].

[3] Effect of Inadvertent Invalid or Untimely Elections

For federal purposes, the Secretary may waive the effect of an otherwise invalid S election caused by the failure to qualify as a small business corporation or the failure to obtain the required shareholder consents, or waive the effect of an invalid election or termination of election to treat a subsidiary as a qualified Subchapter S subsidiary [see § 2B.10[7]], if the circumstances resulting in the ineffectiveness were inadvertent [I.R.C. § 1362(f); see § 2B.11[3][b]]. For California purposes, inadvertent invalid elections are permitted prospectively after January 1, 1997, but not retroactively [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23801(i)].

For federal purposes, the Secretary is authorized to treat late elections made after the prescribed first two and a half months of a tax year as timely made for that taxable year based on a finding of reasonable cause [I.R.C. § 1362(b)(5)(B); see § 2B.11[3][a]]. For California purposes, untimely elections are permitted prospectively after January 1, 1997, but not retroactively [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23801(h)(1)]. A special rule applies for taxable years beginning on or after January 1, 2003, if the corporation fails to qualify as an "S corporation" for federal income tax purposes solely because the corporation failed to timely file federal Form 2553 (Election by a Small Business Corporation) [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 23801(h)(2); see also § 2B.31[1][b]].

[1] In General

Termination of a federal S election (other than an inadvertent termination) simultaneously terminates the S corporation election for purposes of California taxation [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23801(e)(1); see I.R.C. § 1362(d), (f) (termination; inadvertent termination); see also § 2B.13]. A federal termination by revocation is an effective California termination; it must be reported to the FTB in the prescribed form and manner no later than the last date allowed for filing a federal termination for that year [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23801(e)(2); see FTB Form 3560; I.R.C. § 1362(d)].

[2] Effect of Inadvertent Termination

For federal purposes, the IRS may waive the effect of an inadvertent termination caused by the failure to qualify as a small business corporation or the failure to obtain the required shareholder consents [I.R.C. § 1362(f); see § 2B.13[2]]. For California purposes, inadvertent terminations are permitted prospectively for taxable years on or after January 1, 1997, but not retroactively [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23801(i)].

§ 2B.34 Tax Year for California Purposes

For purposes of California taxation, the taxable year of a taxpayer may not be different from the taxpayer's federal tax year unless initiated or approved by the FTB [Rev. & Tax. Code § 24632]. If a taxpayer is required to make a federal return for a period of less than 12 months, that period is deemed to be a tax year and a California return for the short period must be filed [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 24634 (short-period return requirement)]. The due date of that return is the same date that the short-period federal return must be filed. In addition, a short-period return must be filed when the taxpayer, with FTB approval, changes its annual accounting period; when the taxpayer is in existence during only part of what would otherwise be its income year; or when the FTB terminates the taxpayer's income year [Rev. & Tax. Code § 24634; see Rev. & Tax. Code § 25761 (jeopardy assessments)]. For taxable years beginning on or after January 1, 1987, the federal provisions regarding selection of an alternative tax year apply in California, other than the provision governing the effect of the election [Rev. & Tax. Code § 24637; see I.R.C. § 444 (alternative tax year)].

2-2B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 2B.35

§ 2B.35 California Tax Treatment of S Corporations

[1] Corporate and Franchise Tax

California tax treatment of S corporations is determined in accordance with the applicable federal provisions except as otherwise provided [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23800]. S corporations continue to be subject to California's corporate income tax [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 23501 et seq.] and corporate franchise tax [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 23151 et seq.], but at lower rates than other corporations [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23802(b)]. The rate of income tax and franchise tax for S corporations is 1.5 percent [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23802(b)(1); see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 23151 (franchise tax), 23501 (income tax)]. The corporate income or franchise tax rate for an S corporation that is also a financial corporation is increased by the excess of the rate imposed for financial corporations over the rate imposed on general corporations [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23802(b)(2); see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 23151, 23183 (rate for general corporations; rate for financial corporations)]. S corporations can claim the credits allowed to other corporations, but only one third of the amount [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23803(a)(1); see Rev. & Tax. Code § 23803(a)(2)(A)-(C) (carry-forward rules)].

S corporations are subject to the minimum franchise tax to the same extent as other corporations [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23802(c); see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 23151, 23153, 23221]. Thus, S corporations that incorporate or qualify to do business in California on or after January 1, 2000, are not subject to the minimum franchise tax for the first taxable year of corporate existence [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23153(f)(1)], unless the corporation reorganized solely for the purpose of avoiding payment of the minimum franchise tax [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23153(f)(3)]. However, this exemption from tax does not apply to qualified Subchapter S subsidiaries [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23151(f)(2); see I.R.C. § 1363(b)(3)].

[2] California Modifications to Tax on Built-In Gains and Passive Investment Income

[a] In General

Although the amount of tax imposed on certain built-in gains and passive investment income is generally determined in accordance with federal provisions, there are California modifications [see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 23809, 23811 (built-in gains; passive investment income)]. An S corporation is allowed a deduction, in accordance with the federal allowance, from net income for the amount of built-in gains and passive investment income subject to tax [Rev. & Tax. Code §

23802(e); see I.R.C. §§ 1374, 1375 (built-in gains; passive investment income)].

[b] Built-In Gains

California law also imposes a tax on built-in gains, to be computed according to federal law, with certain modifications [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23809; see I.R.C. § 1374]. The California tax is on built-in gains attributable to built-in gains from California sources [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23809] and is computed at the applicable state rate rather than the federal rate [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23809(a)(1); see Rev. & Tax. Code § 23151 (California rate); I.R.C. § 11(b) (federal rate)]. For S corporations that are also financial corporations, the rate of tax is increased by the excess of the rate imposed for financial corporations over the rate imposed on general corporations [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23809(a)(2); see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 23151, 23183 (general corporation rate; financial corporation rate); see also Marble Mortgage Co. v. Franchise Tax Bd. (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 26, 34, 50 Cal. Rptr. 345 ("financial corporation" is corporation in substantial competition with national banks)].

The tax on built-in gains may not be reduced by any credits [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 23809(b); see also I.R.C. § 1374(b)(3)]. Further the I.R.C. § 1201(a) coordination provisions do not apply [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23809(c); see I.R.C. §§ 1201(a), 1374(b)(4)].

[c] Passive Investment Income

California law also imposes a tax on passive investment income to be computed according to federal law, with certain modifications [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23811; see I.R.C. § 1375]. For California tax purposes, the term "Subchapter C earnings and profits" or "accumulated earnings and profits" includes only the Subchapter C earnings and profits from California sources [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23811(d); see Rev. & Tax. Code § 23811(e) (modifications)] and the rate of tax is computed at the applicable state rate rather than the federal rate [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23811(b)(1); see Rev. & Tax. Code § 23151 (state rate); I.R.C. § 11(b) (federal rate)]. For an S corporation that is also a financial corporation, the rate of tax is increased by the excess of the rate imposed for financial corporations over the rate imposed on general corporations [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23811(b)(2); see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 23151, 23183 (general corporation rate; financial corporation rate); see also Marble Mortgage Co. v. Franchise Tax Bd. (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 26, 34, 50 Cal. Rptr. 345 ("financial corporation" is corporation in substantial competition with national banks)].

The federal rules relating to circumstances when passive investment income exceeds 25 percent of gross receipts for three consecutive taxable years and the corporation has accumulated earnings and profits [see I.R.C. § 1362(d)(3); see also § 2B.13[1][c]] do not apply for California purposes unless the S corporation election is terminated for federal income tax purposes [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23801(g)].

[3] Miscellaneous Consequences of S Corporation Election

An S corporation is allowed a net operating loss (NOL) deduction only for losses incurred while the corporation is an S corporation [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23802(d); see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 24416, 24416.1-24416.7 (NOL deductions)]. Although the S corporation itself can carry forward only a specified percentage (ranging from 55 to 65 percent depending on year) of its NOL for any tax year, all of the NOL is passed through to the shareholders [see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 17276, 23802(b), (d); see also Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 17276.1-17276.10 (additional modifications to I.R.C. § 172)]. For further discussion of the NOL, see California Small Business Guide, Ch. 6, Using the S Corporation Election (Matthew Bender).

An S corporation is not subject to the alternative minimum tax [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23400(b)].

An S corporation must compute its deductions for amortization and depreciation under the provisions applicable to personal income tax [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23802(f)(1)]. The limitations of deductions to the amount at risk [see I.R.C. §

465] and the limitations on passive activity losses and credits [see I.R.C. § 469] are applied in the same manner as in the case of an individual [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23802(f)(2), (3)(A)]. An S corporation may not exclude any gain from the sale or exchange of qualified small business stock held for more than five years [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23802(f)(4); see Rev. & Tax. Code § 18152.5]. Further, an S corporation is not allowed a deduction for bad debts [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23802(f)(5); see Rev. & Tax. Code § 24348(a)(2)].

The federal provision relating to recapture of LIFO benefits applies for California purposes [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23802(g)(1); see I.R.C. § 1363(d)]. An S corporation cannot be included in a combined tax report [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23801(c); see Rev. & Tax. Code § 25102; see also Rev. & Tax. Code § 23801(d) (use of unitary combination to reflect income or loss of members of group of commonly controlled or owned corporations)].

For purposes of the taxation of employee fringe benefits, under federal law an S corporation is treated as a partnership [I.R.C. § 1372; see § 2B.17[1]]. For California taxation, Internal Revenue Code partnership tax provisions apply, as modified by California law [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23807].

For purposes of the definition of estimated tax under Rev. & Tax. Code § 19023 and the addition to tax for underpayment of estimated tax under Rev. & Tax. Code § 19142, the tax imposed on S corporation income at the entity level does not constitute a "tax imposed by this part" referenced in those code sections [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23802(g)(2)].

[1] Relating to Corporation

1. Name and address of corporation.

2. Date of incorporation.

3. Tax year of corporation.

NOTE:

A corporation may not elect Subchapter S status unless its tax year is either "permitted" or an approved "alternative" year [see § 2B.12]. A permitted year is either a calendar year or an accounting period for which the corporation can establish a business purpose satisfactory to the IRS [see I.R.C. § 1378 ("permitted year")]. Deferral of income to shareholders is not a business purpose that justifies an accounting period different from the calendar year [I.R.C. § 1378(b)]. In general, an S corporation may elect a tax year other than a permitted year if the "deferral period," that is, the period of time between the beginning of the tax year elected and the close of the first tax year otherwise required ending within that year, is no longer than three months [I.R.C. § 444(b)]. The use of an alternative year subjects the S corporation to advance tax payment requirements [I.R.C. § 444(c)(1); see I.R.C. § 7519]. For further discussion of the tax year, see § 2B.12.

The taxpayer's California taxable year may not differ from its federal tax year, unless initiated or approved by the Franchise Tax Board [Rev. & Tax. Code § 24632]. For taxable years beginning on or after January 1, 1987, an alternative year may be elected for California taxation purposes [Rev. & Tax. Code § 24637].

4. Employer identification number.

5. Classes of shares authorized and outstanding.

6. Number of each of following shareholders:

a. Unmarried individuals.

b. Married individuals.

c. Grantor trusts.

d. Trusts of deceased grantors.

b. Fringe benefits, including:

(1) Pensions.

(2) Stock options.

(3) Profit sharing.

(4) Insurance coverage.

10. Estate plans for shares:

a. Number of transferees contemplated.

NOTE:
While an estate may hold S corporation shares [I.R.C. § 1361(b)(1)(B)], S corporation status will terminate if the total number of shareholders exceeds 100 after distribution of shares from a deceased shareholder's estate [see I.R.C. §§ 1361(b)(1)(A), 1362(d)(2)(A); see also § 2B.13].

b. Trusts [see I.R.C. § 1361(b)(1)(B)].

NOTE:
Subchapter S stock may be held by grantor trusts [I.R.C. § 1361(c)(2)(A)(i); see I.R.C. § 671 et seq.]. If shares are held in a grantor trust, the trust may hold the shares after the grantor's death for up to two years if the entire corpus of the trust is includable in the deemed owner's gross estate [I.R.C. § 1361(c)(2)(A)(ii) (two-year period begins on day of deemed owner's death)]. If shares are transferred to a testamentary trust under the owner's will, the trust may hold the shares for up to two years [I.R.C. § 1361(c)(2)(A)(iii)]. Shares may be held by voting trusts [I.R.C. § 1361(c)(2)(A)(iv)], by electing small business trusts [I.R.C. § 1361(c)(2)(A)(v)], and qualified Subchapter S trusts [I.R.C. § 1361(c)(2)(A)(i), (d)]. CHAPTER 2B ELECTING SUBCHAPTER S STATUS
. TRANSACTION GUIDE
B. Preliminary Determinations

2-2B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 2B.110

§ 2B.110 Qualification of Corporation to Elect Subchapter S Status

1. Will corporation engage in trade or business for profit rather than operate as mere hobby or recreational activity for its shareholders?

NOTE:

A Subchapter S election is available only to a corporation that carries on a trade or business [DuPont, Jr. v. United States (D. Del. 1964) 234 F. Supp. 681, 684] . However, an activity as small as the ownership of only one parcel of real estate is sufficient to qualify a corporation for S corporation status [see Rev. Rul. 75-188, 1975-1 C.B. 276].

2. Where is corporation incorporated?

NOTE:

Only a domestic corporation qualifies as a small business corporation that may elect Subchapter S status [see I.R.C. § 1361(a)(1), (b)(1)].

3. How many shareholders are there in each of following categories:

NOTE:

An S corporation may have no more than 100 shareholders [I.R.C. § 1361(b)(1)(A)]. The IRS will examine the substance of a transaction to determine whether the shareholder limitation is satisfied for Subchapter S purposes. Although an S corporation may join a partnership with other persons, it cannot do so merely to avoid the limitation on the number of shareholders it may have [see Rev. Rul. 77-220, 1977-1 C.B. 263]. In this situation, the IRS will consider the partnership a sham and count each of the individual partners or all of the shareholders of each partner as shareholders in the S corporation whose qualification is in question [Rev. Rul. 77-220, 1977-1 C.B. 263].

a. Individuals [I.R.C. § 1361(b)(1)(B)].

NOTE:
Spouses and their estates are treated in the aggregate as one shareholder of the S corporation, and family members may elect to be treated as a single shareholder [I.R.C. § 1361(c)(1)].

b. Estates of individual shareholders [I.R.C. § 1361(b)(1)(B)].

c. Estates of individuals in Chapter 11 bankruptcy [see I.R.C. § 1361(b)(1)(B), (c)(3)].

d. Grantor trusts during life of grantor [I.R.C. § 1361(b)(1)(B), (c)(2)(A)(i)].

NOTE:
The grantors are treated as the shareholders [see I.R.C. § 1361(c)(2)(B)(i); but see I.R.C. § 678 (when person other than grantor will be treated as substantial owner)].

e. Grantor trusts existing after death of grantor [I.R.C. § 1361(b)(1)(B), (c)(2)(A)(ii)].

NOTE:
A grantor trust that exists after the death of the deemed owner may continue as a shareholder for up to two years if the entire corpus of the trust is includable in the deemed owner's gross estate) [I.R.C. § 1361(c)(2)(A)(ii)]; the grantor's estate is treated as the shareholder [I.R.C. § 1361(c)(2)(B)(ii)].

f. Testamentary trust to which S corporation stock was transferred under shareholder's will, during two-year period after transfer [I.R.C. § 1361(b)(1)(B), (c)(2)(A)(iii)].

NOTE:
The testator's estate is treated as the shareholder [I.R.C. § 1361(c)(2)(B)(iii)].

g. Voting trust holding S corporation stock [I.R.C. § 1361(b)(1)(B), (c)(2)(A)(iv)].

NOTE:
Each beneficiary of a voting trust is treated as a shareholder [I.R.C. § 1361(c)(2)(B)(iv)].

h. Electing small business trusts [see I.R.C. § 1361(b)(1)(B), (c)(2)(A)(v); see also I.R.C. § 1361(e) (defined); § 2B.10[3][f]].

NOTE:
Each potential current beneficiary is treated as a shareholder; if the trust lacks a potential current income beneficiary for any period, the trust is treated as the shareholder during that period [I.R.C. § 1361(c)(2)(B)(v)].

i. Electing qualified Subchapter S trusts [see I.R.C. § 1361(b)(1)(B), (c)(2)(A)(i), (d)(1)(A); see also I.R.C. § 1361(d)(3) (defined)].

NOTE:
An electing qualified Subchapter S trust is treated as a grantor trust for these purposes [

I.R.C. § 1361(d)(1)(A)]. The beneficiary of the trust is treated as the owner of that portion of the trust consisting of S corporation stock with respect to which an elections is made [I.R.C. § 1361(d)(1)(B)].

j. Certain exempt organizations [see I.R.C. § 1361(b)(1)(B), (c)(6)].

NOTE:

Qualified retirement plans [see I.R.C. § 401(a)] and 501(c)(3) charitable organizations [see I.R.C. § 501(c)(3)] that are exempt from taxation may be S corporation shareholders [I.R.C. § 1361(b)(1)(B), (c)(6)]. A qualified tax-exempt shareholder counts as one shareholder [see Senate Finance Committee Rept., H.R. 3448, p. 3].

4. What is citizenship and United States residency status of shareholders?

NOTE:

An S corporation may not have a nonresident alien as a shareholder [I.R.C. § 1361(b)(1)(C)].

5. Does corporation have more than one class of following shares:

NOTE:

An S corporation may have only one class of shares [I.R.C. § 1361(b)(1)(D)]. However, differences in voting rights among shares of common stock does not cause the corporation to be treated as having more than one class of stock [I.R.C. § 1361(c)(4)]. Further, straight debt instruments is not treated as a second class of stock [I.R.C. § 1361(c)(5)]. For discussion, see § 2B.10[4].

a. Issued and outstanding shares.

b. Shares subject to conditions or restrictions imposed by Corporations Commissioner.

NOTE:

Promotional shares normally are subject to the conditions that the holders waive rights to receive cash or property dividends and to participate in distribution of assets in the event of liquidation [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.141*]. Almost invariably, these conditions will be implemented by the imposition of a requirement that promotional share certificates bear a legend setting forth the conditions [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.141.1*]. However, in unusual circumstances in which there is danger that the shares could be distributed to the public, the Commissioner may require them to be deposited in escrow [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.141.3].

The effect of imposing dividend and asset waivers by legend condition or escrow of shares may be to create a second class of stock. Even though a corporation's articles of incorporation authorized the issuance of only one class of stock, the imposition by the Corporations Commissioner of waiver of rights to distributions and dividends by shareholders who paid with property and an escrow condition on those shares until specified dividends had been paid on shares issued for cash was held to result, in effect, in the issuance of two classes of shares [Paige v. United States (9th Cir. [Cal.] 1978) 580 F.2d 960, 963-964] . The fact that under California law the corporation could only issue one class of shares was immaterial; whether a corporation has issued more than one class of shares for Subchapter S purposes is a matter for determination under federal law [Paige v. United States (9th Cir. [Cal.] 1978) 580 F.2d 960, 963 ; see Rev. Rul. 71-522, 1971-2 C.B. 316].

6. Is corporation ineligible financial institution [see I.R.C. § 1361(b)(2)(A); see also I.R.C. § 585]?

NOTE:

A financial corporation that uses the reserve method of accounting for bad debts is ineligible for federal Subchapter S status [I.R.C. § 1361(b)(2)(A); Rev. & Tax. Code § 23800].

7. Is corporation ineligible insurance company [see I.R.C. § 1361(b)(2)(B); Rev. & Tax. Code § 23800; see also I.R.C. § 801 et seq.]?

8. Does corporation operate within Puerto Rico or other territorial possession of United States and, if so, has it elected to take special tax credit?

NOTE:

Corporations that operate in Puerto Rico or other territorial possessions of the United States and elect special tax treatment are ineligible for Subchapter S status [see I.R.C. § 1361(b)(2)(C); Rev. & Tax. Code § 23800; see also I.R.C. § 936 (tax credit)].

9. Has corporation ever elected treatment as domestic international sales corporation (DISC)?

NOTE:

A DISC or former DISC is ineligible for Subchapter S status [see I.R.C. § 1361(b)(2)(D); Rev. & Tax. Code § 23800].

10. If corporation has retained accumulated earnings and profits from its C corporation years, what percentage of its income derives from passive investments?

NOTE:

A tax applies to the "excess" passive investment income of a corporation that existed as a C corporation before electing Subchapter S status and that has retained accumulated earnings and profits from its C corporation years [see I.R.C. § 1375(a); see also § 2B.14[5]].

If an S corporation has Subchapter C accumulated earnings and profits at the close of each of three consecutive taxable years, and has gross receipts for each of those three taxable years more that 25 percent of which are passive investment income, its Subchapter S status will be terminated [see I.R.C. § 1362(d)(3)(A)(i)]. "Passive investment income" does not include gross receipts from the sale of capital assets other than stock and securities other than the net capital gain from the sale [I.R.C. § 1362(d)(3)(B); see I.R.C. § 1362(d)(3)(C) ("passive investment" defined); see also §§ 2B.13[1][c], 2B.35[2][c]].

11. If corporation terminated previous Subchapter S status within past five years, what valid business reasons exist for reelecting that status before end of five-year period?

NOTE:

IRS consent is required for any new election made within five years from the termination of S corporation status [see I.R.C. § 1362(g); Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-5].

§ 2B.111 Advisability of Electing Subchapter S Status

NOTE:

For a detailed discussion of the advantages and possible pitfalls of a Subchapter S election, see Cavitch, Tax Planning for Corporations and Shareholders, Ch. 3, Making the Most of Subchapter S (Matthew Bender). For a discussion of the advantages and disadvantages of electing S corporation status for California purposes, see California Small Business Guide, Ch. 6, Using the S Corporation Election (Matthew Bender).

1. Is corporation likely to operate at loss for period of time and, if so, do shareholders desire to deduct losses from personal income?

NOTE:

If losses are contemplated and shareholders wish to deduct those losses from their personal income, it could be beneficial to the shareholders to have the corporation elect Subchapter S status. However, losses will be applied first to reduce a shareholder's basis in the S corporation stock [see I.R.C. § 1367(a)(2); see also § 2B.15[3]].

2. Is sum of income tax levied against C corporation and shareholders likely to exceed amount of income tax likely to be levied against shareholders after election of Subchapter S status?

NOTE:

If less income is lost to federal income taxation after an election of Subchapter S status, the election would be beneficial to the shareholders, all other things being equal.

a. Can income tax savings be realized on specific income, loss, deduction, or credit items only if attributable to shareholders for tax purposes?

NOTE:

Fringe benefit costs pass through to the shareholders of a new S corporation in most cases, and shareholders can take deductions for those costs only if they would otherwise be entitled to take them as personal deductions [see I.R.C. § 1372; see also § 2B.17[1]].

b. Whether and to what extent would corporate distributions be tax-free to shareholders of S corporation?

3. Will period of time during which Subchapter S status is intended to be effective make it feasible to schedule anticipated profits, losses, credits, or deductions within that period?

a. From date election becomes effective.

NOTE:

A Subchapter S election is effective either for the current tax year or the next tax year [see I.R.C. § 1362(b); Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(a)(2)(ii); see also §§ 2B.12, 2B.120[1], P 3].

b. To date termination takes effect, either:

NOTE:

Termination of Subchapter S status does not take effect retroactively. Possible tax advantages of converting to C corporation status cannot be manipulated after the taxable event that gives rise to the advantage. The termination of an S corporation must be planned carefully, on the basis of the fullest possible information from the principals of the proposed S corporation with regard to any expected profits or losses, taking into consideration that once Subchapter S status has been terminated or revoked, a new election cannot be made for five years without the consent of the IRS [see I.R.C. § 1362(g); Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-5; see also § 2B.120[2]].

Shareholders can plan ahead for and manipulate the "placement" of taxable events either in an S corporation tax year or a C corporation tax year. For the procedures involved in the tax treatment of a termination year, see § 2B.121[4].

(1) If shareholder revocation, current or next tax year or date set for termination by agreement of shareholders [see I.R.C. § 1362(d)(1)(C), (D); Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-2(a); see also § 2B.121[1]];

(2) Date on which corporation ceases to be qualified small business corporation [see I.R.C. § 1362(d)(2); Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-2(b); see also § 2B.121[2]]; or

(3) If corporation elects Subchapter S status and has accumulated earnings and profits for three consecutive years, first day of taxable year that begins after third consecutive tax year in which it has excess passive investment income [see I.R.C. § 1362(d)(3)(A)(ii); see also Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-2(c)(2); see § 2B.121[3]].

2-2B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide

NOTE:

This Procedural Guide applies to federal Subchapter S elections. For California taxation purposes, a corporation cannot elect S corporation status unless it has made a valid federal election for the same year [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23801(a)(1)]. In general, for income years beginning on or after January 1, 1990, a corporation's federal S election is treated as an S election for California purposes, unless the corporation specifically elects to be treated as a C corporation [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 23801(a)(4)] or is not qualified to be an S corporation [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 23801(a)(5)]. For further discussion, see § 2B.31.

California tax treatment of S corporations and their shareholders is determined in accordance with applicable Internal Revenue Code provisions [see I.R.C. §§ 1361-1379], except as otherwise provided [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23800]. References throughout this Procedural Guide are to federal provisions, unless a specific California modification applies.

. TRANSACTION GUIDE
C. Procedural Guide

2-2B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 2B.120

§ 2B.120 Election of Subchapter S Status

[1] Initial Election by Small Business Corporation

1. Ensure that corporation:

a. Is eligible to elect Subchapter S status.

NOTE:
For a checklist of eligibility criteria, see § 2B.110; for a further discussion of eligibility, see § 2B.10.

b. Has authorized its officers to take all actions necessary to apply for S corporation status.

2. Have corporation select one of following as its tax year:

a. Calendar year as "permitted year" [see I.R.C. § 1378(b)(1)];

b. Other accounting period for which corporation can establish business purpose satisfactory to IRS as "permitted year" [see I.R.C. § 1378(b)(2)]; or

NOTE:
A corporation may establish a satisfactory business purpose in either of two ways. It may request a permitted year and provide evidence of its business purpose or it may obtain expedited IRS approval of a tax year that is either a "natural business year" or an "ownership tax year" [Rev. Proc. 87-32, 1987-2 C.B. 396, 398-399] . A tax year is a natural business year if it meets certain financial tests [Rev. Proc. 87-32, 1987-2 C.B. 396, 399 ; see § 2B.200[1][c]]. A tax year is an ownership tax year if shareholders holding more than one half of the corporation's issued and outstanding shares of stock (as of the first day of the tax year to which the request relates) have changed to or are currently changing to the same tax year [Rev. Proc. 87-32, 1987-2 C.B. 396, 399] .

(1) If corporation qualifies for expedited IRS approval of tax year, have corporation complete Part II(P) of IRS Form 2553 [see § 2B.200[2]].

(2) If corporation does not qualify for expedited IRS approval, have corporation request approval of tax year in following manner [Rev. Proc. 87-32, 1987-2 C.B. 396, 401] :

(a) Indicate in Part II(Q) of IRS Form 2553 [see § 2B.200[2]] that request for approval is being made; and

(b) Attach statement [see § 2B.200[2]] setting forth business purpose for desired fiscal year and other necessary information pursuant to general ruling request requirements.

NOTE:

The first revenue procedure of each year usually sets forth the general ruling request requirements [see, e.g., Rev. Proc. 2004-1, 2004-1 I.R.B. 1]. Any deferral of income to shareholders does not constitute a business purpose [I.R.C. § 1378(b)].

c. Any other tax year, pursuant to election under I.R.C. § 444.

(1) Have corporation indicate in Part II(Q) of IRS Form 2553 [see § 2B.200[2]] its intention to make election of alternative tax year [Temp. Treas. Reg. § 1.444-3T(b)(3)].

NOTE:

Rather than making an initial election under I.R.C. § 444, the corporation may instead request permission to use a particular tax year that is based on a business purpose and file a "back-up" Section 444 election. If the business purpose request is denied, the corporation will be able (if otherwise qualified) to use the Section 444 election for the alternative tax year. If the corporation chooses to use a Section 444 election as a back-up, this intention must be stated in Part II(Q) of IRS Form 2553 [see § 2B.200] and indicated on IRS Form 8716 [Temp. Treas. Reg. § 1.444-3T(b)(3), (4); see § 2B.205 (IRS Form 8716)].

(2) File IRS Form 8716 by earlier of [Temp. Treas. Reg. § 1.444-3T(b)(1); see § 2B.205]:

(a) Fifteenth day of fifth month following month that includes first day of tax year for which election will be effective; or

(b) Due date (without regard to extensions) of income tax return resulting from election.

3. Advise corporation when S corporation election may be made:

NOTE:

An election is effective for the tax year for which it is made and for all succeeding tax years of the corporation until the election is terminated [I.R.C. § 1362(c)]. The corporation's tax year must be established first and then the election and consent forms must be completed within the times indicated below.

a. For current tax year, either:

(1) At any time during preceding tax year [I.R.C. § 1362(b)(1)(A)]; or

(2) On or before 15th day of third month of current tax year [I.R.C. § 1362(b)(1)(B)].

NOTE:
If the corporation is not a qualifying small business corporation on any day during this period, or if a shareholder did not consent, the election is treated as made for the following tax year [I.R.C. § 1362(b)(2)]. The IRS may extend the time for filing shareholder consents on a showing of reasonable cause for the failure to file; this would validate an application for Subchapter S status during the current tax year that would otherwise be invalid for the lack of shareholder consents [see P 6, below].

b. For following tax year, by making election after 15th day of third month of current tax year but on or before 15th day of third month of following tax year [I.R.C. § 1362(b)(3)].

c. For current tax year of two and one-half months or less, by making election not later than two months and 15 days after first day of tax year [I.R.C. § 1362(b)(4)].

4. Obtain IRS Form 2553, Election by a Small Business Corporation [I.R.C. § 1362(a)(1); Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(a)(2); see § 2B.200[2]] and have completed form signed by any person authorized to sign corporate income tax returns [see I.R.C. § 6062].

NOTE:
Part II of IRS Form 2553 must be completed if the corporation chooses a tax year other than a calendar year [see I.R.C. § 1378(b); Rev. Proc. 87-32, 1987-2 C.B. 396].

5. Have each shareholder of corporation as of date of election sign consent to election either [I.R.C. § 1362(a)(2); see Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(a)(2), (b)(3)(i)]:

NOTE:
Persons who become shareholders after the day on which the election is made need not consent since an election is effective until terminated [see I.R.C. § 1362(c); see also Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(a)(2)].

a. On corporation's election form [see § 2B.200[2]]; or

b. By means of separate consents [see § 2B.201[2]].

6. Have shareholder consents executed by [see Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(b)(2)]:

a. Individual owners.

NOTE:
Because a husband and wife (and their estates) are treated as a single shareholder, each must consent [see I.R.C. § 1361(c)(1)]. Moreover, when stock is owned by a husband and wife as community property or the income from the stock is community property, both must consent [Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(b)(2)(i)]. When family members elect to be treated as a single shareholder [see I.R.C. § 1361(c)(1)*], all must consent.

If the election is made within the corporation's first tax year for which it is effective, each person who was a shareholder before the election but who is not a shareholder at the time of the election must also consent to the election [Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(b)(3)(i)].

b. Joint owners.

NOTE:
If stock is owner by tenants in common, joint tenants, or tenants by the entirety, each person having a community interest in the stock or an income interest, and each tenant in common, joint tenant, and tenant by the entirety must consent [Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(b)(2)(i)].

c. Minors, by minor or legal representative (or natural or adoptive parent if no legal representative has been appointed) [Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(b)(2)(ii)].

d. Estates, by executor, administrator, or other appointed fiduciary [Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(b)(2)(iii)].

e. Grantor trusts, by grantors.

f. Qualified Subchapter S trusts, by deemed owners.

g. Voting trust holding S corporation stock, by each beneficiary.

7. If consent of person who was shareholder on date of election cannot be filed with corporation's election, advise corporation to draft request for extension of time for filing consents [see Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(b)(3)(iii); see also § 2B.202]:

NOTE:
An election that is timely for any tax year and that would be valid except for the failure of a shareholder to file a timely consent will not be invalid for that reason if the request for a time extension is approved [see Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(b)(3)(iii)*].

a. Advise corporation that it must show to satisfaction of IRS that:

(1) There was reasonable cause for failure to file consent.

(2) Request for extension of time to file consent is made within reasonable time under circumstances.

(3) Government's interests will not be jeopardized.

b. Advise corporation that if application is approved:

(1) Shareholders whose consents were subject of application must be filed within extension period granted by IRS.

(2) Consents will have to be filed for all shareholders who became shareholders subsequent to invalid election.

8. Advise corporation to file election and unanimous shareholder consents (or consents plus application for extension of time for filing consents):

a. In timely manner [see P 3, above].

NOTE:
Mail or deliver the election so that it actually arrives before any deadline; a letter deposited late on the deadline day may not be postmarked until the next day, in which case the election may not become effective for the intended tax year [see Joseph W. Feldman (1966) 47 T.C. 329, 334 ; Simons v. United States (D. Conn. 1962) 208 F. Supp. 744] .

b. With appropriate IRS Service Center [see Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(a)(2)].

NOTE:
If the corporation's principal business, office, or agency is located in the California counties of Alpine, Amador, Butte, Calaveras, Colusa, Contra Costa, Del Norte, El Dorado, Glenn, Humboldt, Lake, Lassen, Marin, Mendocino, Modoc, Napa, Nevada, Placer, Plumas, Sacramento, San Joaquin, Shasta, Sierra, Siskiyou, Solano, Sonoma, Sutter, Tehama, Trinity, Yolo, or Yuba, the IRS Service Center address is Ogden, UT 84201. For all other California counties, the IRS Service Center address is Fresno, CA 93888.

If the election is mailed, send it by certified or registered mail with a transmittal letter requesting that a copy of the letter, the election form, and any accompanying consents or other documents be stamped "received" and returned in an enclosed self-addressed stamped envelope.

[2] Election After Termination or Revocation of Prior Subchapter S Status

1. If small business corporation had made Subchapter S election and that election has been terminated or revoked, advise corporation (or any successor corporation) that [I.R.C. § 1362(d), (g); see Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-5(b) ("successor corporation" defined)]:

a. Corporation is not eligible to make another election for any tax year before its fifth tax year following first tax year for which termination or revocation became effective, in most situations.

b. Corporation may make earlier reelection with IRS consent.

c. To obtain IRS consent, burden is on corporation to show that, under relevant facts and circumstances, IRS should consent to new election [see Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-5(a)].

NOTE:
The fact that more than half of the stock of the corporation is now owned by persons who did not own shares during the first tax year for which the termination was applicable tends to establish that consent should be granted. The fact that the event that caused the original termination was not reasonably within the control of the corporation or shareholders having a substantial interest in the corporation, and was not part of a plan participated in by those shareholders to terminate the election, also tends to establish grounds for IRS consent [see Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-5(a)].

2. If corporation's Subchapter S status was inadvertently terminated because it ceased to be qualifying small business corporation, or because passive investment income was excessive [see I.R.C. § 1362(d)(2), (3)], advise corporation that it may be treated as continuing to be an S corporation on [see I.R.C. § 1362(f); Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-4]:

a. Showing that termination occurred inadvertently and determination to that effect is made by IRS.

NOTE:

Congress has indicated its intent that the IRS should be reasonable in granting waivers and that the government and taxpayers should work out agreements that protect the revenues without undue hardship to taxpayers [see S. Rep. No. 97-640, p. 12 (1982)]. The corporation has the burden of showing that under relevant facts and circumstances IRS should find termination was inadvertent [Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-4(b)]. Inadvertent termination tends to be established by the fact that the terminating event was not reasonably within the control of the corporation and was not part of a plan to terminate, or that the event took place without the knowledge of the corporation despite due diligence to safeguard itself against such an event [Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-4(b)].

b. Showing that, within reasonable period after discovery of terminating event, steps were taken (1) so that corporation qualifies as small business corporation or (2) to acquire requisite shareholder consents.

c. Having corporation and each shareholder agree to make adjustments consistent with S corporation status and required by IRS.

3. Have corporation complete request for consent of IRS to new election [see Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-4(c); see also § 2B.204].

2-2B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 2B.121

§ 2B.121 Termination of Subchapter S Status

[1] Revocation With Consent of Shareholders

1. Advise corporation that its Subchapter S election may be revoked with consent of shareholders who hold more than half of its shares on date of revocation [I.R.C. § 1362(d)(1)(A), (B)].

2. If revocation is desired, draft corporation's statement revoking election with shareholders' consent to revocation [see Treas. Reg. §§ 1.1362-2(a), 1.1362-6(a)(3); see also § 2B.220].

3. Have shareholders holding more than half of corporation's shares sign consent to revocation of its Subchapter S status [I.R.C. § 1362(d)(1)(B)].

4. Have corporation send notice of revocation and all consents to appropriate IRS Service Center [Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(a)(3)].

NOTE:
For the locations of appropriate IRS Service Centers, see the Note to § 2B.120[1], P 8b.

5. Have corporation take any necessary accounting actions [see [4], below].

[2] Termination on Cessation of Small Business Corporation Status

1. Advise small business corporation that its Subchapter S election terminates when it ceases to be small business corporation because it [I.R.C. § 1362(b)(1), (2); see also § 2B.10]:

a. Has more than 100 shareholders.

b. Has as shareholder person, other than estate, permitted trust, or eligible exempt organization who is not individual.

c. Has nonresident alien as shareholder.

d. Has more than one class of stock.

e. Becomes ineligible lending institution.

f. Becomes ineligible insurer.

g. Begins to operate in territorial possession of United States and elects special tax treatment.

h. Becomes domestic international sales corporation.

NOTE:
Termination is effective, at any time on or after first day of first tax year for which the corporation becomes an S corporation, whenever the corporation ceases to be a small business corporation [I.R.C. § 1362(d)(2)(A)].

2. Advise corporation that if termination is inadvertent it may seek waiver from IRS [see § 2B.120[2]].

3. If termination is intended to take effect, draft corporation's notification of termination stating that termination has occurred and date of termination [see Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-2(b)(1); see also § 2B.221].

4. Have corporation attach notice of termination to tax return for tax year in which termination occurs.

5. Have corporation take necessary accounting actions [see [4], below].

[3] Termination on Receipt of Excess Passive Investment Income

1. If S corporation was C corporation and retained earnings and profits from its C corporation years, advise it that its Subchapter S status terminates whenever it has both [I.R.C. § 1362(d)(3)(A)(i); Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-2(c)(1)]:

a. Accumulated earnings and profits at close of each of three consecutive tax years (after December 31, 1981, and during which it was S corporation [see I.R.C. § 1362(d)(3)(A)(iii)]); and

b. Gross receipts for each of those three consecutive tax years more than 25 percent of which are passive investment income [see I.R.C. § 1362(d)(3)(C)(i); Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-2(c)(4), (5); see also § 2B.13[1]].

2. Advise corporation that termination for this reason is effective on first day of first taxable year beginning after third consecutive year of excess passive investment income [I.R.C. § 1362(d)(3)(A)(ii);

Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-2(c)(2)].

3. Advise corporation that if termination is inadvertent it may seek waiver from IRS [see §§ 2B.13[2], 2B.120[2]].

[4] Tax and Accounting Treatment of Termination Year

1. When S corporation status terminates on day other than first day of tax year, divide termination year into two parts:

NOTE:
The taxable year in which the Subchapter S status of a corporation terminates is referred to as an "S termination year" [see I.R.C. § 1362(e)(4); see also Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-3]. Subchapter S status terminates during a tax year only in the case of either the cessation of S corporation status or a revocation if the revocation instrument provides for it.

a. Treat portion of year ending before date on which termination is effective as "S short year," or short tax year for which corporation is S corporation [I.R.C. § 1362(e)(1)(A)].

b. Treat portion of year beginning on first day for which termination is effective as "C short year," or short tax year for which corporation is C corporation [I.R.C. § 1362(e)(1)(B)].

2. Account for or make allocation of income, loss, gains, and credits among S and C short years either:

NOTE:
Under this method of allocation between S and C short years during an S termination year, it is not necessary for the corporation to close its books at the end of the S short year.

a. By pro rata allocation [see P 3, below]; or

b. Under normal accounting rules [see P 4, below].

3. If desired, make pro rata allocation [I.R.C. § 1362(e)(2)]:

a. Determine for S termination year amount of each item of income, loss, deduction, or credit and amount of nonseparately computed income or loss [I.R.C. § 1362(e)(2)(A)].

b. Assign equal portion of each amount so determined to each day of S termination year [I.R.C. § 1362(e)(2)(B)].

4. If allocation among short years is desired on basis of normal tax accounting rules rather than pro rata allocation:

a. Have corporation affirmatively elect not to use pro rata allocation and have all shareholders consent to election [I.R.C. § 1362(e)(3); see Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6 (time and manner of election)].

b. Report taxable income or loss on each return (Subchapter S and Subchapter C) on basis of income or loss shown on corporation's permanent records, including work papers [see S. Rep. 97-640, p. 11 (1982)].

c. Attribute items to each short year according to time item was incurred or realized, as reflected in corporation's records [see S. Rep. 97-640, p. 11 (1982)].

5. Determine tax for C short year:

a. Annualize taxable income for C short year by [I.R.C. § 1362(e)(5)(A)]:
(1) Multiplying taxable income for C short year by number of days in S termination year.

(2) Dividing result by number of days in C short year.

(3) Calculating tax as same part of tax computed on annual basis as number of days in C short year is of number of days in S short year.

b. Make necessary adjustment in computing minimum tax for tax preferences [see I.R.C. §§ 443(d), 1362(e)(5)(B)].

c. Do not take S short year into account for purpose of determining number of tax years to which any item may be carried back or forward by corporation [see I.R.C. § 1362(e)(6)(A)].

6. Complete tax returns for both short years.

NOTE:
Both tax returns are due on the same day [see I.R.C. § 1362(e)(6)(B)].

1. Review shareholders' estate plans to determine disposition of S corporation shares on death.

2. If estate plan contemplates transfer of S corporation shares to shareholder's estate, advise corporation and shareholder that corporation's Subchapter S status can continue [see I.R.C. § 1361(b)(1)(B)].

3. If estate plan contemplates transfer of S corporation shares to grantor or testamentary trust, advise corporation and shareholder that:

NOTE:
For a discussion of the types of trusts that are permitted to hold S corporation shares, and the requirements and limitations applicable to those trusts, see § 2B.10[3][e]-[g]. Ordinarily, in order to hold S corporation shares for more than a limited period of time, a trust must be able to qualify as either an "electing small business trust" (ESBT) [I.R.C. § 1361(b)(1)(B), (c)(2)(A)(v); see § 2B.10[3][f] or a "qualified Subchapter S trust" (QSST) [I.R.C. § 1361(d)(1), (2); see § 2B.10[3][g]]. For additional discussion of estate planning issues relating to the disposition of S corporation shares in trust, see California Wills & Trusts, Ch. 29, Devises of Businesses and Business Interests, § 29.05[1][c]; Ch. 94, Trust Property, § 94.06[3][b] (Matthew Bender).

a. Corporation's Subchapter S status can continue for only limited period [see I.R.C. §§ 1361(c)(2)(A)(ii), (iii), 1362(d)(2); see also § 2B.10[3][c][i], [ii]].

b. Another arrangement is required if continued Subchapter S status is contemplated.

4. If review of all shareholders' estate plans reveals that transfers could result in corporation having more than 100 shareholders, advise corporation and shareholders that there is risk of loss of Subchapter S status if any transfer results in more than 100 shareholders [see I.R.C. §§ 1361(b)(1)(A), 1362(d)(2)].

5. Consider use of following to avoid loss of Subchapter S status:

a. Make sure that shareholders' wills do not provide for more than 100 beneficiary-recipients of S corporation stock.

b. Include share transfer restrictions in:
(1) Articles of incorporation or bylaws.

NOTE:
For share transfer provisions, see Ch. 3, Articles of Incorporation , and Ch. 4, Bylaws .

(2) Buy-sell agreements between shareholders.

NOTE:
For buy-sell agreements, see Ch. 8D, Buy-Sell Agreements .

6. If share transfer does inadvertently result in termination, seek waiver [see I.R.C. § 1362(f); Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-4; see also § 2B.120[2]].

§ 2B.200 Election by Small Business Corporation to Be Treated as S Corporation [I.R.C. § 1362]--Internal Revenue Service Form 2553

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is the official form (IRS Form 2553) to be used by a corporation that qualifies as a small business corporation [see I.R.C. § 1361(b)] to elect treatment for federal income tax purposes as an S corporation [see I.R.C. §§ 1361(b), 1362; Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-1(a)]. The IRS instructions are reproduced here along with the text of the form. Form 2553 may be filled in online, downloaded, and printed out by going to the forms and publications page of the IRS website at http://www.irs.gov/formspubs/index.html?portlet=3.

For a guide to determining the eligibility of a corporation to elect Subchapter S status, see § 2B.110. Factors relevant to the advisability of making this election are set forth in § 2B.111. For a procedural guide to use in making an election, whether it is an initial election or one made by a former S corporation after its Subchapter S status has been terminated or revoked, see § 2B.120.

A Subchapter S election permits the S corporation to retain the corporate advantage of limited liability for its shareholders while being treated for income tax purposes as if it were a partnership, passing through to its shareholders items of income, loss, deduction, or credit with minimal taxation at the corporate level [see I.R.C. §§ 1363, 1366; see also Rev. & Tax. Code § 23802.5]. For discussion of S corporation taxation, see §§ 2B.14-2B.19. Once a valid election is filed, it is effective until terminated or revoked; the election need not be renewed annually [see I.R.C. § 1362(c)].

A corporation that has a valid election under I.R.C. § 1362(a) in effect for federal purposes will be an S corporation under California tax law [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23801(a), (b)], and its shareholders will be shareholders of an S corporation, without regard to whether the corporation is qualified to do business or is incorporated in California [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23801(b); see § 2B.31]. California tax treatment of S corporations and their shareholders is determined in accordance with the applicable provisions of the Internal Revenue Code [see I.R.C. §§ 1361-1379], except as otherwise provided [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23800; see Valentino v. Franchise Tax Board (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 1284, 1290 (Rev. & Tax Code § 23800 essentially adopts federal "conduit" rule; thus California source income of S corporation, passed through to nonresident, is subject to California tax)]. For further discussion of the California election and taxation, see §§ 2B.30-2B.34.

[c] Tax Year

[i] Overview

Part I(I) of IRS Form 2553 requires the corporation to state its tax year. As discussed in [ii], below, an S corporation may use a "permitted year," which is either a calendar year or any other accounting period for which the corporation satisfactorily establishes a business purpose [I.R.C. § 1378(b)(1), (2)], or an "alternative year" [I.R.C. § 444; see § 2B.12].

[ii] Permitted Year

An S corporation may use a "permitted year" as its tax year. A "permitted year" is a calendar year or any other year for which the corporation has a business purpose [I.R.C. § 1378(b); see [iii], below]. If a corporation's request to use a business purpose year is denied and it has not made a back-up election under I.R.C. § 444, the corporation must use a calendar year to continue its status as an S corporation [see Part II(Q) of IRS Form 2553]. Similarly, if the corporation is ultimately unqualified to make an election under I.R.C. § 444, the corporation must use a calendar year to continue to be an S corporation [see Part II(R) of IRS Form 2553]. An S corporation may adopt as a "permitted year" any accounting period for which it can establish a business purpose to the satisfaction of the IRS [I.R.C. § 1378(b)(2)]. For purposes of this determination, deferral of income to shareholders is not considered a business purpose [I.R.C. § 1378(b)].

[iii] Approval of Business Purpose Year

A corporation may obtain "expeditious approval" of its business purpose year when the desired fiscal year is either a "natural business year" or an "ownership tax year" [Rev. Proc. 87-32, 1987-2 C.B. 396]. A tax year is a natural business year if the results of both of the following tests equal or exceed 25 percent [Rev. Proc. 87-32, 1987-2 C.B. 396]:

- Gross receipts from sales and services for the most recent 12-month period that ends before the filing of the request and that ends with the last month of the requested year are computed, employing the accounting method used to prepare tax returns for that year. The amount is divided into the amount of gross receipts from sales and services for the last two months of the 12-month period.

- The same computation is made for the two 12-month periods immediately preceding the 12-month period described in (1), above.

A tax year is an ownership tax year if shareholders holding more than one half of the corporation's issued and outstanding shares of stock (as of the first day of the tax year to which the request relates) have changed to or are currently changing to the same tax year [Rev. Proc. 87-32, 1987-2 C.B. 396].

To obtain expedited approval of its tax year, a corporation must state in Part II(P) of IRS Form 2553 that it is selecting a tax year that is either a natural business year or an ownership tax year. If the corporation selects a natural business year, it must also attach a statement showing the amount of gross receipts for each of the most recent 47 months [see Rev. Proc. 87-32, 1987-2 C.B. 396]. If it is not using the expeditious approval provisions, a corporation must indicate in Part II(Q) of IRS Form 2553 that the corporation is requesting a business purpose year and must attach a statement of its business purpose [Rev. Proc. 87-32, 1987-2 C.B. 396 ; see § 2B.203].

Once the tax year is selected, a corporation must (1) file a timely federal income tax return for any short period (the time from the close of the old tax year to the day before the new tax year begins) required to adopt the tax year, (2) close its books on the last day of the short period if a new tax year is requested, and (3) keep its books and records on the basis of the requested tax year [Rev. Proc. 87-32, 1987-2 C.B. 396].

[iv] Alternative Year

An S corporation may have a tax year that is an "alternative year" [I.R.C. § 444(a), (e); see I.R.C. § 1378] if the period of time between the beginning of the tax year elected and the close of the first calendar year ending within the elected year is no longer than three months [I.R.C. § 444(b)(1)]. This election requires that the corporation make certain advance tax payments [I.R.C. § 444(c)(1); see I.R.C. § 7519].

The election is made by filing IRS Form 8716 [see § 2B.205]. The corporation must also state in Part II(R) of IRS Form 2553 its intent to elect an alternative tax year [Temp. Treas. Reg. § 1.444-3T(b)(3)]. If the Section 444 election is made as a back-up to a business purpose request, that intention must be stated in Part II(Q) of IRS Form 2553 and indicated on IRS Form 8716 [Temp. Treas. Reg. 1.444-3T(b)(3), (4); see § 2B.205].

[d] Shareholder Consents

Each person who is a shareholder on the date of the S corporation election must consent to the election [I.R.C. § 1362(a)(2); see Part I(K) of IRS Form 2553]. If a husband and wife own stock as community property, or the income from the stock is community property, both must consent to the election, even though they (and their estates) are treated as one shareholder for purposes of determining the number of shareholders in the corporation [Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(b)(2)(i); see I.R.C. § 1361(c)(1)]. Each tenant in common, joint tenant, and tenant by the entirety must also consent to the election [Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(b)(2)(i); see IRS Form 2553, Instructions].

The consent of a minor must be made by the minor or by the minor's legal representative or by a natural or adoptive parent if no legal representative has been appointed [Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(b)(2)(ii)]. The consent of an estate must be made by the executor, administrator, or other appointed fiduciary of the estate [Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(b)(2)(iii)]. In the case of a trust, consent ordinarily must be obtained from the person treated as a shareholder for the purpose of determining the number of shareholders [see Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(b)(2)(iv); see § 2B.10[3]].

The consents may be entered in Column K of IRS Form 2553, or may be submitted in a separate attachment. If a separate consent statement is used, it must include the name, address, and employer identification number of the corporation and all the information required in Columns J through N in Part I of IRS Form 2553 [Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(b)(1), (3); see § 2B.201[2]]. All of the shareholders' consents may be combined into one statement [see IRS Form 2553, Instructions].

A shareholder's consent is binding and may not be withdrawn after the corporation has made a valid election [Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(b)(3)].

[e] Execution of Election

The election must be signed by a person who is authorized to sign corporate income tax returns [Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(a)(1)]. The corporation's president, vice president, treasurer, assistant treasurer, chief accounting officer, or another authorized officer, such as a tax officer, may sign returns [see I.R.C. § 6062].

[f] Time for Filing Election

A corporation's election to be treated as an S corporation for any tax year must be filed at any time during the preceding tax year or at any time during the first two and one-half months of the tax year for which the election is made [I.R.C. § 1362(b)(1); Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(a)(2)(ii)]. If a corporation makes the election in the first two and one-half months of its tax year but during this period the corporation is not eligible for S corporation status or a shareholder fails to consent, or if the election is untimely for that year, the election will be treated as if made for the following tax year [I.R.C. § 1362(b)(2)]. However, if the election would be timely and valid except for the failure of a shareholder to file a timely consent [see Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(b)(1)], and the corporation can show that there was reasonable cause for the failure, the corporation may receive an extension of time to file consents [see Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(b)(2)(iii); see also § 2B.202].

[g] Manner of Filing Election

The election form, any separate shareholder consents, and all accompanying documents must be filed with the appropriate Internal Revenue Service Center [see Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(a)(2); see also § 2B.120[1]]. The election may be personally delivered to an office of the IRS and stamped as filed there or it may be mailed. If the election form is mailed, it is a good practice to include a cover letter and request that the letter be stamped "received" and returned in an enclosed, self-addressed envelope. The election form should be mailed so that it arrives at the IRS Service Center on or before the last date. If the letter is mailed late on the last day, it may not be postmarked until the next day under local post office practices, and the election will not be considered valid [J.W. Feldman (1966) 47 T.C. 329 ; see Simons v. United States (D. Conn. 1962) 208 F. Supp. 744] .

[h] Acceptance of Election

The corporation will usually receive a determination regarding the election within 60 days after filing the election form. However, if a business purpose year that is not subject to expedited approval procedures is requested, the corporation will receive a ruling letter from the IRS and must generally wait an additional 90 days for the determination [see IRS Form 2553, Instructions].

[i] QSST Election

The beneficiary of a QSST (or his or her authorized legal representative) may elect to be treated in the same manner as a grantor trust [I.R.C. § 1362(d)(1)(A), (2); see I.R.C. § 1362(d)(2)(B) (ownership rule); see also § 2B.10[3][g]]. Once made, this election is generally irrevocable; it may only be revoked with the consent of the Secretary [I.R.C. § 1362(d)(2)(C)]. The election may be made on IRS Form 2553, or on a separate statement; however, IRS Form 2553 may be used to make this election only if the corporate stock has been transferred to the trust on or before the date on which the corporation makes the election to be an S corporation [see IRS Form 2553, Instructions].

2-2B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 2B.201

§ 2B.201 Shareholder's Consent to Corporation's Election to Be Treated as S Corporation [I.R.C. § 1362(a)]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a shareholder's consent to a corporation's election to be treated as an S corporation. It should be used when the consent is submitted as a separate attachment to IRS Form 2553. When a corporation elects to be taxed as a Subchapter S corporation, all of the shareholders must consent [see I.R.C. § 1362(a)(2)]. If the election is made within the corporation's first tax year for which it is effective, anyone who was a shareholder during that year and prior to the election, but who is not a shareholder at the time of the election, must also consent [Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(b)(3)(i)].

The consent of each shareholder is usually entered in Column K of IRS Form 2553 [see § 2B.200]. Alternatively, however, shareholder consents may be submitted in the form of a separate attachment or attachments [see Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(b)(1)]. Separate consent forms may be preferable when it is necessary to obtain the signatures by mail. The possibility of losing the election form and the consequent duplication of effort required to reacquire the signatures can thus be eliminated.

[b] Contents of Consent

In addition to an affirmative statement that the shareholder consents to the corporate election, the statement of consent must set forth the following [Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(b)(1)]:

- The names and addresses of the corporation and the shareholder.
- Taxpayer identification numbers of the corporation and the shareholder.
- The number of shares owned by the shareholder.
- The date or dates on which those shares were acquired by the shareholder.

- The date on which the shareholder's tax year ends.

The statement must be signed by the shareholder under penalty of perjury [Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(b)(1)]. No official IRS Form is provided for separate shareholder consents.

§ 2B.202 Application by Corporation for Extension of Time Within Which to File Shareholders' Consents to Subchapter S Election [Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(b)(3)(iii)]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an application by a corporation seeking Subchapter S corporation status for an extension of time to file shareholders' consents to Subchapter S election. Ordinarily, a Subchapter S election is effective for the current tax year if it is filed at any time during the preceding tax year [I.R.C. § 1362(b)(1)(A)], or on or before the 15th day of the third month of the current tax year [I.R.C. § 1362(b)(1)(B)]. However, if a shareholder has failed to consent, the election is treated as having been made for the following tax year [I.R.C. § 1362(b)(2)]. This form should be used to avoid having the election treated as made for the following tax year.

This form has been designed to be filed with IRS Form 2553 [see § 2B.200[2]] if the corporation is unable to file the consents of one or more of its shareholders within two and one-half months after the start of its first tax year.

[b] Requirements for Time Extension

An election that is timely for any tax year and that would be valid except for the failure of a shareholder to file a timely consent is not invalid for that reason if an application for an extension of the time to file shareholder consents is approved [see Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(b)(3)(iii)]. The corporation must show, to the satisfaction of the IRS, that reasonable cause existed for its failure to file the consent, that the request for the extension of time to file a consent is made within a reasonable time under the circumstances, and that the government's interests will not be jeopardized by treating the election as valid [Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(b)(3)(iii)]. If the application is approved, the shareholders whose consents were the subject of the application must be filed within the extension period granted by the IRS and consents must also be filed by all those who became shareholders after the election was filed [see Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(b)(3)(iii)(B)].

[c] Untimely Election

If the election (rather than the consents to it) is too late to be effective for the current tax year, there is no provision allowing an extension of time to make a Subchapter S election. Therefore, the election itself must be timely to be effective for a current tax year. However, an untimely election can still operate as an election for the following tax year. An election will be treated as made for the following tax year if made after the 15th day of the third month of the current tax year and on or before the 15th day of the third month of the following tax year [I.R.C. § 1362(b)(3)].

PART IV. FORMS
A. Election of Subchapter S Status

2-2B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 2B.203

§ 2B.203 Statement of Business Purpose

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This statement of business purpose must be attached to IRS Form 2553 [see § 2B.200[2]] when a corporation wishing to use a fiscal year is not eligible for expedited IRS approval of that fiscal year. A corporation that qualifies for expedited approval does not need to attach this statement to IRS Form 2553; expedited approval can be obtained for a "natural business year" or an "ownership year" [see § 2B.200[1][c][iii]]. The corporation must also attach a statement showing separately the amount of gross receipts from sales or services (and inventory costs, if applicable) for each of the most recent 47 months [see Rev. Proc. 87-32, 1987-2 C.B. 396 ; IRS Form 2553, Instructions]. A corporation that lacks a 47-month period of gross receipts cannot establish a natural business year [see Rev. Proc. 87-32 , § 4.01(1), 1987-2 C.B. 396 ; § 2B.200[2] (IRS Form 2553, Instructions)].

[b] Statement Requirements

The statement must set forth the corporation's business purpose for the desired tax year [Rev. Proc. 87-32, 1987-2 C.B. 396]. Deferral of income to shareholders is not a satisfactory business purpose [I.R.C. § 1378(b); see Rev. Rul. 87-57, 1987-2 C.B. 117 (examples of acceptable business purposes for fiscal tax year)].

The statement must comply with the requirements applicable to ruling requests generally [Rev. Proc. 87-32, 1987-2 C.B. 396 ; see IRS Form 2553, Instructions], including attachment of a completed "Checklist" [see, e.g., Rev. Proc. 96-1, 1996-1 C.B. 385 (updated annually)]. Although some statements mandated by these general requirements appear to have only marginal relevance to this particular type of request, they are included in this form to preclude any possibility that failure to do so would result in denial of the request [see [e], below]. The following information is mandated by the general ruling request requirements [see, e.g., Rev. Proc. 96-1, 1996-1 C.B. 385 (updated annually)]:

- Name, address, telephone number, and taxpayer identification number of all interested parties.

- The location of the District Office that has jurisdiction over the return.

- A complete statement of the business reasons for the transaction.

- A detailed description of the transaction, including copies of applicable documents; all material facts from documents must be set forth in the statement, not merely incorporated by reference, and the facts must be accompanied by an analysis of their bearing on the issues.

- A statement of whether, to the best of the taxpayer's knowledge, the identical issue is in an earlier return of the taxpayer, and if so, whether it (1) is being examined by a District Director; (2) has been examined, but the statutory period of limitation for assessment or filing a claim for refund has not expired, or a closing agreement has not been entered into by a District Director; (3) is being considered by an Appeals Office; or (4) is pending in litigation.

- A statement of whether, to the best knowledge of the taxpayer and the taxpayer's representatives, an identical or similar issue has been either submitted to the IRS by the taxpayer or its predecessor but withdrawn before a ruling was issued or ruled on by the IRS with regard to the taxpayer or the taxpayer's predecessor, and, if so, when and with what results.

- A statement that no information other than names, addresses, and identifying documents need to be deleted from any ruling made public; if the taxpayer requests additional deletions, a separate deletions statement must be filed [see I.R.C. § 6110(c)].

- The taxpayer's views on the tax results of the proposed action and a statement of relevant authorities to support those views. The IRS encourages the taxpayer to identify, and discuss the implications of, any contrary authorities; if the taxpayer determines that no contrary authorities exist, a statement to that effect should be included.

- A statement identifying any pending legislation that may affect the transaction.

This form is drafted based on the assumption that there will be a negative response to the fifth, sixth, and seventh items above.

[c] Signature Requirements

The statement must be signed by the taxpayer or the taxpayer's authorized representative. If the request is signed by a representative, or if the representative will appear before the IRS in connection with the request, the representative must be one of the following [see, e.g., Rev. Proc. 96-1, 1996-1 C.B. 385 (updated annually)]:

- An attorney who is a member in good standing of the bar of any state, possession, territory, commonwealth, or the District of Columbia, and who files a written declaration with the IRS showing current qualification as an attorney and current authorization to represent the taxpayer.

- A certified public accountant qualified to practice in any state, possession, territory, commonwealth, or the District of Columbia, and who files with the IRS a written declaration showing current qualification as a CPA and current authorization to represent the taxpayer.

- Any other person who is currently enrolled to practice before the IRS and who files a written declaration to that effect showing current enrollment and authorization to represent the taxpayer.

- A foreign representative who has received a letter of authorization from the IRS.

[d] Penalty of Perjury Declaration

The statement must contain a declaration, under penalty of perjury, that the declarant has examined the statement and believes the facts presented to be true, correct, and complete. The declaration must be signed by the taxpayer. For a corporate taxpayer, the person signing the declaration must be an officer of the corporate taxpayer who has personal knowledge of the facts and the officer must be one whose duties are not limited to obtaining a ruling or determination letter from the IRS [see, e.g., Rev. Proc. 96-1, 1996-1 C.B. 385 (updated annually)].

[e] Effect of Denial

Denial of a corporation's tax year request renders its S corporation election ineffective unless the corporation files a back-up request [Rev. Proc. 87-32, 1987-2 C.B. 396]. Part II(Q) of IRS Form 2553 contains a box that may be checked if the corporation intends to make a back-up election under I.R.C. § 444 in the event the IRS fails to approve the business purpose request. Part II(Q) of IRS Form 2553 also contains a box to be checked to show the corporation's agreement to adopt or change to a calendar year if the IRS either fails to approve both the business purpose request and the back-up Section 444 election, or fails to approve the business purpose request and the corporation did not make a back-up Section 444 election.

A. Election of Subchapter S Status

2-2B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 2B.204

§ 2B.204 Request for Consent of IRS to Election Within Five Years After Termination or Revocation of Prior S Corporation Election [I.R.C. § 1362(g)]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form may be used to state the reasons why the Internal Revenue Service should consent to a new Subchapter S election within five years after the corporation's prior Subchapter S election was terminated or revoked. This form should be attached to and filed with a newly completed S corporation election form (IRS Form 2553) [see § 2B.200]. The fact that this form is attached should be noted on the face of Form 2553. This form will require modification to fit the particular circumstances of each case; all of the facts supporting the corporation's position should be explained in detail. The general requirements for a ruling request must be satisfied, including attachment of a completed Checklist [see § 2B.203[1][b]].

[b] Obtaining Consent to Election

A corporation may not make a new Subchapter S election within five years after its prior election was revoked or terminated unless the IRS consents to the new election [I.R.C. § 1362(g)]. The corporation has the burden of showing that, under the relevant facts and circumstances, consent should be given [Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-5(a)]. The fact that more than 50 percent of the corporation's stock is now owned by persons who did not own any stock in the corporation on the termination date tends to establish that consent should be granted [Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-5(a)]. In the absence of this fact, consent ordinarily will be denied unless the corporation shows that the terminating event was not reasonably within the control of the corporation or shareholders having a substantial interest in the corporation and was not part of a plan on the part of the corporation or of the shareholders to terminate the election [Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-5(a)].

2-2B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 2B.205

§ 2B.205 Election to Have a Tax Year Other Than a Required Tax Year [I.R.C. § 444]--IRS Form 8716

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is IRS Form 8716, which must be used by an S corporation (as well as by a partnership or personal service corporation) to elect a tax year other than a "permitted year" [I.R.C. § 444; see I.R.C. § 1378 ("permitted year")]. It will be used by a corporation that cannot obtain expedited IRS approval of a fiscal year [see Rev. Proc. 87-32, 1987-2 C.B. 396 ; see also § 2B.200[1][c][iii]] or IRS approval of a satisfactory business purpose for a fiscal year [see I.R.C. § 1378(b)(2)]. The official instructions are reproduced here along with the text of the form.

[b] Election Requirements

An S corporation may elect an "alternative year" if its "deferral period," that is, the period of time between the beginning of the tax year elected and the close of the first tax year otherwise required ending within that year, is no longer than three months with certain exceptions [I.R.C. § 444(b)]. However, no election may be made by a corporation that is part of a tiered structure, unless that tiered structure is composed of one or more partnerships or S corporations (or both) that all have the same tax year [I.R.C. § 444(d)(3)]. An S corporation is a member of a tiered structure if it owns any portion of, or is owned by, a partnership, S corporation, personal service corporation, or trust [see Temp. Treas. Reg. § 1.444-2T(b)(1), (2)]. For a further discussion of the corporation's tax year, see § 2B.12.

[c] Filing Requirements

This form must be signed and dated by the president, vice president, treasurer, assistant treasurer, chief accounting officer, or any other corporate officer authorized to sign the corporation's tax return. If a receiver, trustee in bankruptcy, or assignee controls the corporation's property or business, that person must sign the election [see IRS Form 8716, Instructions].

The corporation must file this form at the Internal Revenue Service Center where it will file its tax return, generally by the earlier of the following [Temp. Treas. Reg. § 1.444-3T(b)(1)]:

- The 15th day of the fifth month following the month that includes the first day of the tax year the election will first be effective; or

- The due date (not including extensions) of the income tax return resulting from the election.

[d] Tax Consequences of Election

If the IRS accepts the election, it will stamp the form "ACCEPTED" and return a copy of the form to the corporation [see IRS Form 8716, Instructions]. A corporation making a Section 444 election must also make certain advance tax payments [I.R.C. §§ 444(c)(1), 7519]. The S corporation must make an advance payment if its "required payment" exceeds $500 [I.R.C. § 7519(a)]; the "required payment" is determined by adding one percentage point to the highest individual income tax rate, multiplying the net base year income of the entity by the resulting percentage, and then deducting the amount of the required payment for the preceding applicable election year [I.R.C. § 7519(b)].

By May 15 following the calendar year in which each election year begins, the corporation must file IRS Form 8752 for each year that the election is in effect. IRS Form 8752 is used either to calculate and make the required payments, or to obtain a refund of net prior year payments. The required payments are made on the second quarter IRS Form 720 (quarterly federal excise tax return)].

[e] Duration of Election

The elected alternative tax year remains in effect until the corporation changes its accounting period to a calendar year or some other permitted year. A change to a "permitted year" may be made without the consent of the IRS [I.R.C. § 444(d)(2)(A); see I.R.C. § 1378(b) ("permitted year"); see also § 2B.12]. However, if the corporation terminates its Section 444 election by changing to a "permitted year," it cannot make another election of an alternative tax year [I.R.C. § 444(d)(2)(B)].

The Section 444 election also terminates if the S corporation terminates its election (unless it immediately becomes a personal service corporation), or willfully fails to comply with I.R.C. § 7519 [see IRS Form 1120S Instructions (S corporation income tax return); I.R.C. § 7519(f)(4)(C); see also [d], above].

[f] Use of Election as "Back-Up"

The corporation may state on IRS Form 2553 [see § 2B.200[2]] its intention to use the Section 444 election as a "back-up" to a request for a tax year based on a business purpose [Temp. Treas. Reg. 1.444-3T(b)(3), (4); see I.R.C. § 1378(b)(2); see also § 2B.203]. If the business purpose year request is denied, the corporation will (if otherwise qualified) be able to obtain its desired tax year pursuant to a Section 444 election [Temp. Treas. Reg. 1.444-3T(b)(4)]. If the corporation is making a back-up election, the words "BACKUP ELECTION" must be typed or printed at the top of IRS Form 8716 [see Temp. Treas. Reg. § 1.444-3T(b)(4)(ii)]. To activate a Section 444 election, the corporation must file IRS Form 720 (quarterly federal excise tax return) and the required payment by the later of the regular due date for filing that return or 60 days from the date the Commissioner denies the business purpose request [Temp. Treas. Reg. §§ 1.444-3T(b)(4), 1.7519-2T].

§ 2B.220 Corporation's Statement Revoking Subchapter S Election--With Consent of Shareholders Attached [I.R.C. § 1362(d)(1)]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is to be used by an S corporation and its shareholders to revoke the corporation's Subchapter S election. A Subchapter S election may be terminated by revocation if and when shareholders holding more than half of the corporation's stock on the day of the revocation consent to the revocation [I.R.C. § 1362(d)(1)(A), (B)]. The revocation statement, including the shareholder consents, must be filed with the service center where the corporation's original Subchapter S election was filed [see Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(a)(3)]. See § 2B.13 for further discussion of revocation by shareholders, and § 2B.121 for the procedures involved.

[b] Effective Date of Revocation

If the statement of revocation specifies a revocation date, the revocation will be effective on and after that date [I.R.C. § 1362(d)(1)(D)]. In the absence of a specified date, however, a revocation made on or before the 15th day of the third month of the current tax year is effective from the first day of the taxable year [I.R.C. § 1362(d)(1)(C)(i)]; a revocation made during the current tax year but later than the 15th day of its third month will be effective from the first day of the next tax year [I.R.C. § 1362(d)(1)(C)(ii)]. If a revocation date other than the beginning of any tax year is specified, it will be necessary to divide the tax year in which the termination occurs into two separate parts for tax accounting purposes [see I.R.C. § 1362(e)]. For the procedures involved in tax accounting in the termination year, see § 2B.121[4].

[c] Contents of Form

The statement of revocation must state that the corporation revokes its prior Subchapter S election; it must also state the number of shares (including nonvoting stock) issued and outstanding at the time of the revocation [Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(a)(3)]. If intra-year tax accounting is to be avoided [see [b], above], the statement should specify a date that is the beginning of the current tax year if the statement and revocation are made within the first two and one-half months of that tax year or the beginning of the next tax year if made after the first two and one-half months.

The statement of revocation must be accompanied by a signed statement of consent for each of the requisite number of shareholders [see I.R.C. § 1362(d)(1)(A), (B); see also Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(a)(3), (b)]. The statement of consent must indicate the number of issued and outstanding shares (including nonvoting stock) held by each shareholder at the time of the revocation, as well as each shareholder's consent to the revocation [Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(a)(3), (b)]. Each consent must also set forth the name, address, and taxpayer identification number of the consenting shareholder, the date or dates on which the stock was acquired by the shareholder, the date on which the shareholder's tax year ends, and the name and taxpayer identification number of the corporation [Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(b)].

[d] Execution of Form

The statement of revocation should be signed by a person authorized to sign the corporation's tax return [see Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(a)]. These persons include the corporation's president, vice president, treasurer or assistant treasurer, chief accounting officer, or other person duly authorized to sign the return [see I.R.C. § 6062]. The accompanying consents must be signed under penalty of perjury by the shareholders concerned [Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-6(b)].

§ 2B.221 Notice of Termination of Subchapter S Status by Corporation No Longer Qualified as Small Business Corporation [I.R.C. § 1362(d)(2)]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is for use by an S corporation to notify the IRS that its Subchapter S status has terminated because it has ceased to be a small business corporation. This notice should be attached to the return for the tax year in which termination occurs and must state that termination has occurred and specify the date of termination [Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-2(b)(1)].

[b] Loss of Small Business Corporation Status

An election of Subchapter S status terminates when an S corporation ceases to qualify as a small business corporation [see I.R.C. § 1362(d)(2)]. In general, an S corporation ceases to be a small business corporation when it becomes an ineligible corporation, when it has more than 100 shareholders, has impermissible shareholders, or issues more than one class of shares [see I.R.C. § 1361(b)]. See §§ 2B.10 and 2B.110 for further discussion of qualification as a small business corporation eligible for S corporation treatment.

[c] Effective Date of Termination

If the election terminates because of a specific event that caused the corporation to no longer meet the definition of small business corporation, S corporation status terminates on the same day that the specific event occurs [I.R.C. § 1362(d)(2)(B); Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-2(b)(2)]. If an election is filed to take effect beginning with the following taxable year and the corporation is not a small business corporation on the first day of that following taxable year, the election is treated as having terminated on that first day. If a corporation is a small business corporation on the first day of the taxable year for which the election is effective, the election does not terminate even if the corporation is not a small business corporation during all or part of the period beginning after the date that the election was made and ending before the first day of the taxable year for which the election is effective [Treas. Reg. § 1.1362-2(b)(2)].

Because the termination date is likely to be during a tax year, it will be necessary to divide the tax year in which the termination occurs into two separate parts for tax accounting purposes [see I.R.C. § 1362(e)]. See § 2B.121[4] for the procedures involved in tax accounting in the termination year.

This chapter covers the requirements for drafting and filing articles of incorporation for a general business corporation that will be incorporated under the General Corporation Law. The Legal Background summarizes the general requirements for articles. The Transaction Guide includes a drafting guide and procedural guide for filing articles with the Secretary of State. The bulk of this chapter consists of illustrative forms, including complete sets of articles and separate, alternative, and optional provisions that may be included in the articles. Related forms are also included; for example, certificates of determination that must be filed with the Secretary of State under certain circumstances [see § 3.310] and a consent form that must be filed by a corporation that will be designated as another corporation's agent for service of process [see § 3.211].

Coverage in this chapter is limited to the formal requirements for drafting and filing articles of incorporation under the General Corporation Law and does not discuss other matters related to the initial incorporation process that are covered elsewhere in this set. For example, general preincorporation considerations (including subscription and promotion agreements and preincorporation agreements to incorporate) are covered in Ch. 2, Formation of Corporations . Incorporating a going business and electing Subchapter S status are covered in Ch. 2A, Incorporating a Going Business , and Ch. 2B, Electing Subchapter S Status , respectively. Corporate financing, including the issuance of equity and debt securities, is discussed in Ch. 6I, Issuance of Equity Securities , and Ch. 6J, Issuance of Debt Securities [see also Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Laws, Ch. 3, Formation of Corporations (Matthew Bender)]. Requirements for the qualification of securities and exemptions from qualification are also covered in Ch. 6, Securities Regulation Issues , and in Chs. 6A-6D. For coverage of state and federal licensing, permit, and registration requirements that may apply to a particular type of business, see Chs. 1A- 1F.

The incorporation of professional corporations and nonprofit corporations, including the requirements for articles of incorporation, are covered separately in Ch. 12A, Professional Corporations , and in Ch. 13, Nonprofit Corporations . Foreign corporations are covered in Ch. 12B, Foreign Corporations and Associations . The conversion of foreign and domestic other business entities or foreign corporations into California corporations, including the statutory requirements for articles of incorporation, are covered separately in Ch. 11F, Corporate Conversions .

2-3 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 3.10

AUTHOR: August J. Moretti, J.D., Peter N. Townshend, M.B.A., J.D. Practice Consultants

§ 3.10 Applicability of General Corporation Law to Specific Types of Corporations

Most general business corporations are subject to and must be organized under the General Corporation Law [see Corp. Code § 100 et seq.] of the Corporations Code [see Corp. Code § 102]. Separate provisions of the Corporations Code govern the formation of and articles of incorporation for consumer cooperative corporations [see Corp. Code §§ 12200-12704], fish marketing associations [see Corp. Code §§ 13200-13356], and small business development corporations [see Corp. Code § 14000 et seq.]. For certain types of specialized corporations, other special statutory provisions apply [see, e.g., Civ. Code §§ 330.24-330.26, 548-552 (water companies)].

Insurance companies may be incorporated and, except as otherwise provided in the Insurance Code, incorporated insurers are subject to the provisions of the General Corporation Law in the same way as are other corporations [see Ins. Code § 1140; see also § 3.220].

Professional corporations are subject to the General Corporation Law except when those provisions are in conflict with or inconsistent with the provisions of the Moscone-Knox Professional Corporation Act [Corp. Code § 13403; see Corp. Code § 13400 et seq.]. Professional corporations, including the special requirements for articles of incorporation, are covered in Ch. 12A, Professional Corporations .

The General Corporation Law applies to banks and trust companies except when inconsistent with applicable provisions of the Financial Code [see Fin. Code § 101(b); Corp. Code §§ 102(a), 163 (description of corporations subject to Banking Law)]. For example, banks and trust companies are required to include in their articles a "purpose" statement prescribed by the Banking Law, rather than the general business purpose clause otherwise required under the General Corporation Law [Corp. Code § 202(b)(2); see §§ 3.221-3.224 (illustrative purpose clauses for banks and trust companies)].

California savings associations (formerly, and still commonly referred to savings and loan associations) are incorporated under the Savings Association Law [see Fin. Code § 5000 et seq.], not the General Corporation Law. In addition to the rights, powers, and privileges granted in the Savings Association Law, savings associations have, all of the powers and privileges granted under the General Corporation Law, except as otherwise provided in the Savings Association Law [Fin. Code § 6500].

Nonprofit corporations must be organized under and are governed by the Nonprofit Corporation Law [Corp. Code § 5000 et seq.; see Ch. 13, Nonprofit Corporations]. For general coverage of foreign corporations, see Ch. 12B, Foreign Corporations and Associations .

§ 3.12 General Powers of Corporation Under General Corporation Law

Subject to any limitations contained in the articles [see § 3.231] and the General Corporation Law, and any other applicable laws, a corporation has all of the powers of a natural person in carrying out its business activities [Corp. Code § 207]. Specific powers included in this general power are listed by statute by way of illustration and not limitation [see Corp. Code § 207]. If a corporation is to be denied any of these listed powers or any others of a natural person, that limitation must appear in the articles [Corp. Code §§ 202(b), 207; see § 3.231].

§ 3.13 Commencement of Corporate Existence

Corporate existence begins on the date articles of incorporation are filed with the Secretary of State and, unless otherwise provided by law or in the articles, continues perpetually [Corp. Code § 200(c)]. One or more natural persons, partnerships, associations, or corporations (domestic or foreign) may form a corporation by executing and filing the articles of incorporation [Corp. Code § 200(a)]. If initial directors are not named in the articles (and they are not required to be so named), the person or persons who execute and file the articles of incorporation are referred to as the incorporator or incorporators [see Corp. Code §§ 200(b), 210]. Under these circumstances, the incorporator or incorporators, until the time directors are elected, may do whatever is necessary and proper to perfect the organization of the corporation, including the adoption and amendment of bylaws of the corporation and the election of directors and officers [Corp. Code § 210]. If initial directors are named in the articles, each director must execute and acknowledge the articles prior to filing them with the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 200(b)].

The conversion of an other business entity, foreign other business entity, or foreign corporation into a California corporation will be effective at the time articles of incorporation of the converted corporation containing a statement of conversion are filed with the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 1157(d)]. Thus, the entity "becomes" a California corporation at that time. This filing has the effect of the filing of a certificate of cancellation by a converting foreign limited liability company or foreign limited partnership [Corp. Code § 1157(f); see Corp. Code §§ 15696, 15909.06, 17455]. If a converting entity is a foreign corporation qualified to transact business in California, the foreign corporation, by virtue of filing the articles of incorporation, automatically surrenders its right to transact intrastate business [Corp. Code § 1157(f)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 11F, Corporate Conversions, § 11F.57.

§ 3.16 Definition of "Articles"

The term "articles" includes articles of incorporation, amendments to articles, amended articles, restated articles, certificates of incorporation, and certificates of determination [see §§ 3.110-3.112]. All references in the General Corporation Law to a vote required by the "articles" include, in the case of a statutory "close corporation" [see Corp. Code § 158], any vote required by shareholders' agreements [Corp. Code § 154]. "Close corporations" and shareholder agreements are briefly discussed in § 3.202[1]. For additional coverage, see California Small Business Guide (Matthew Bender). The procedures for amending articles of incorporation are covered in this publication in Ch. 10, Amendment of Articles.

CHAPTER 3 ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

2-3 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 3.17

AUTHOR: August J. Moretti, J.D., Peter N. Townshend, M.B.A., J.D. Practice Consultants

§ 3.17 Mandatory Provisions for Articles

[1] In General

All corporations organized under the General Corporation Law must include certain mandatory provisions in their articles [see Corp. Code § 202]. These are briefly outlined below. Complete sets of articles of incorporation containing the mandatory requirements are set forth in §§ 3.200 (corporation with simple stock structure--long form), 3.201 (general business corporation with simple stock structure--short form), 3.202 (statutory "close corporation"), and 3.203 (corporation with complex stock structure).

[2] Name of Corporation

The articles must set forth the name of the corporation [Corp. Code § 202(a)]. The Secretary of State will not file articles that set forth a name that is likely to mislead the public or that is the same as or too closely resembles the name of another corporation [see Corp. Code § 201(b)]. Corporations with a name that includes "bank," "trust," "trustee," or related words must be previously approved by the Commissioner of Financial Institutions [see Corp. Code § 201(a)]. The corporate name of an insurer must be approved by the Insurance Commissioner [see Corp. Code § 201.5]. Name restrictions also apply to a statutory "close corporation" [Corp. Code § 202(a); see § 3.202]. California does not require that the corporate name of other corporations include "Corp.," "Inc.," or any other similar designation.

Other specific corporate name restrictions and the procedures for clearing and reserving a proposed corporate name are summarized in the Transaction Guide in Ch. 2, Formation of Corporations.

[3] Purpose of Corporation

The purpose of the corporation being incorporated must be stated in the articles. This requirement is satisfied by including the appropriate purpose statement required by statute, which varies depending on the type of corporation. Professional corporations and corporations subject to the Banking Law are each required to use a separate purpose statement [see Corp. Code § 202(b)(1)(ii), (2), (4); see also Ch. 12A, Professional Corporations (articles of incorporation for professional corporation); 3.221-3.224 (purpose clauses prescribed by Banking Law)]. All other corporations are required to use the general business purpose statement set forth by statute [see Corp. Code § 202(b)(1)(i); § 3.201[2], Article II (general business purpose statement)]. If a corporation is an insurer, a statement to that effect must also be included in the articles [Corp. Code § 202(b)(3); see § 3.220].

Except for the required purpose statement, the articles may not set forth any further or additional statement with respect to the purposes [see § 3.11] or powers [see § 3.12] of the corporation, except by way of limitation or except as expressly required by any law of California other than the General Corporation Law or any federal or other statute or regulation (including the Internal Revenue Code and regulations as a condition of acquiring or maintaining a particular status for tax purposes) [Corp. Code § 202(b)]. Any limitation or restriction on the corporation's purpose or powers must be set forth in the articles [Corp. Code § 204(a)(6); see §§ 3.230, 3.231].

[4] Agent for Service of Process

The articles of incorporation must designate, by name and address in California, the corporation's initial agent for service of process [Corp. Code § 202(c)]. The initial agent must be either a natural person or a corporation that has previously filed with the Secretary of State its consent to be the designated agent for another corporation [Corp. Code § 1502(b); see § 3.211 (certificate of corporation consenting to act as agent)].

[5] Stock Structure

If a corporation is authorized to issue only one class of shares, only the total number of shares authorized is required to be specified in the articles [Corp. Code § 202(d); see § 3.201[2] (illustrative provision)]. If the corporation is authorized to issue more than one class of shares, or if any class of shares is to have two or more series, the classes and series ordinarily must be designated, and the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions for each class or series must be described, in the articles [see Corp. Code §§ 202(e), 203]. Alternatively, the articles may authorize the corporation's board of directors to determine some of these matters for unissued shares. Under those circumstances, the board must subsequently determine the matters by resolution and file a certificate of determination with the Secretary of State prior to issuing any of the affected shares [see Corp. Code § 401(a); see also § 3.310 (certificate of determination)].

California law no longer includes the concept of "par value." Corporations can elect to have a par value for shares, but there is no legal significance to such an election. Corp. Code § 205 provides that solely for the purpose of any statute or regulation imposing any tax or fee based on the capitalization of a corporation, all authorized shares of a corporation organized under the Code are deemed to have a par value of $1 per share. Further, if any federal or other statute or regulation applicable to a corporation (e.g., franchise taxes imposed by other states upon qualification to do business as a foreign corporation) requires that the shares have a par value, those shares will have the par value determined by the board in order to satisfy the requirements of that statute or regulation [Corp. Code § 205].

Detailed requirements for the stock structure of a corporation with more than one class of shares and an illustrative set of articles for a corporation with a complex stock structure are set forth in § 3.203. Alternative stock provisions are included in §§ 3.240-3.257.

[6] Additional Statement Required for Incorporation of Existing Business Association Organized as Trust

An existing business association organized as a trust under the laws of California or of a foreign jurisdiction may incorporate by filing articles under the General Corporation Law if the incorporation is approved by its board of trustees (or similar governing body) and the holders of beneficial interests in the trust [see Corp. Code § 200.5(a)]. Under these circumstances, the articles of incorporation must contain the mandatory provisions discussed in [1] through [5], above, and a statement that an unincorporated association is being incorporated by the filing of the articles [Corp. Code § 200.5(b)]. A certificate attesting to the required approval of incorporation by the board and the holders of beneficial interests must also be attached to the articles [Corp. Code § 200.5(c)]. These requirements are further discussed in § 3.200[1][j].

[7] Additional Requirements for Statutory "Close Corporation"

If a corporation is to be governed by the statutory provisions governing a "close corporation" [see Corp. Code § 158], its articles must include the mandatory provisions outlined in [1] through [5], above, and two additional provisions. First, the articles must state that all of the corporation's issued shares of all classes must be held of record by not more than a specified number of persons, which number may not exceed 35. Second, the articles must expressly state that the corporation is a "close corporation" [Corp. Code § 158(a)]. Special requirements also apply to the name of a close corporation [see Corp. Code § 202(a)]. For additional discussion of these requirements, and an illustrative set of articles for a close corporation, see § 3.202. For more detailed coverage, see California Small Business Guide(Matthew Bender).

§ 3.18 Optional or Permissive Provisions for Articles

Only the article provisions summarized in § 3.17 are mandatory under the General Corporation Law. As a general rule, any provision not in conflict with law (including the provisions of the General Corporation Law), relative to the management of the corporation's business or to the conduct of its affairs, may be included in the articles, including any provision that is required or permitted by the General Corporation Law to be stated in the bylaws [Corp. Code § 204(d); see Corp. Code § 212(b) (permissive provisions for bylaws)]. Certain permissive provisions, for example, one that requires shareholders to possess special qualifications [see § 3.263], must be, in order to be effective, expressly included in the articles (or in the case of a close corporation, in a shareholders' agreement) [Corp. Code § 204(a); see § 3.200[1][c] (discussion of other provisions subject to same requirement)].

Provisions may also be included in the articles that modify statutory provisions that would otherwise apply under the General Corporation Law [see, e.g., § 3.272], except in those cases in which modification or variation is prohibited. For example, statutory rights of shareholders to inspect certain corporate records may not be limited by the articles or bylaws [see Corp. Code § 1600(d)]. In addition, the articles or bylaws may not provide that a lesser vote than a majority of the directors present at a meeting is the act of the board [see Corp. Code § 307(a)(8)].

9. Will personal liability of directors for monetary damages for breach of duty to corporation and shareholders be eliminated or limited to maximum extent permitted by law or otherwise [Corp. Code § 204(a)(10); see § 3.280]?

10. Will indemnification in excess of that permitted by statute [see Corp. Code § 317] be authorized for corporate agents [Corp. Code § 204(a)(11); see § 3.281]?

11. Considering all factors relevant to particular corporation, is it necessary to vary (by article provision or otherwise), to extent permitted, any provision of General Corporation Law that otherwise governs management of business or conduct of corporate affairs [see Corp. Code § 204(d)]?

§ 3.120 Obtaining Name Clearances

1. Have proposed corporate name cleared or reserved with Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 201(b), (c); see Code § 12186(a); (fee) see also Ch. 2, Formation of Corporations].

2. If corporate name includes "bank," "trust," "trustee," or related words, obtain certificate approving corporate name [see Corp. Code § 201(a)].

NOTE:
If the corporation is subject to the Banking Law [see Corp. Code § 163] this requirement does not apply. Rather, the articles themselves must be approved and endorsed by Commissioner of Financial Institutions [Corp. Code § 201(a)].

3. If corporate business is insurance, obtain certificate from Insurance Commissioner approving corporate name [Corp. Code § 201.5].

§ 3.121 Executing and Filing Articles

NOTE:
The procedures for drafting articles are outlined in § 3.130.

1. If articles do not name initial directors, have incorporator or incorporators sign articles [Corp. Code § 200(b)].

2. If articles name initial directors, have each director execute and acknowledge articles [see Corp. Code § 200(b); see § 3.284].

3. For articles of corporation subject to Banking Law, have articles endorsed and approved by Commissioner of Financial Institutions [Corp. Code § 201(a)].

4. Determine and have made number of copies required to be certified by Secretary of State [see § 3.200[1][g]].

5. If articles will be filed by mail, draft transmittal letter requesting that articles be filed and that designated number of copies be certified by Secretary of State [see § 3.210].

6. Have checks prepared for all required fees payable to Secretary of State:

NOTE:
Corporations are subject to the minimum franchise tax [see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 23151, 23153(d)]. For the first taxable year beginning on or after January 1, 2000, the tax imposed is the sum of (1) a tax according to or measured by net income, to be computed at the rate of 8.84 percent on the basis of net income for the next preceding income year, but not less than the minimum annual tax and (2) a tax according to or measured by net income, to be computed at the rate of 8.84 percent on the basis of net income for the first taxable year beginning on or after January 1, 2000, but not less than the minimum annual tax [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23151(f)(1); see Rev. & Tax. Code § 23153 (minimum tax)]. For other taxable years beginning on or after January 1, 2000, the tax imposed is a tax according to or measured by net income, to be computed at the rate of 8.84 percent on the basis of the net income for that taxable year, but not less than the minimum annual tax [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23151(f)(2)]. However, the requirement that the annual minimum franchise tax must be prepaid now applies only to credit unions [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 23221].

a. Filing fee of $100 [Code § 12186(c); see Corp. Code § 108].

b. Separate charge for each certified copy in excess of two copies submitted with original articles.

NOTE:
The Secretary of State will compare and certify up to two copies of the articles without charge, provided the copies are submitted with the original to be filed [Code § 12185]. Additional fees may be charged for copying, certifying, and preclearance of documents [see Code § 12182].

c. Special handling fee if articles will be filed over the counter at branch location [see Code § 12182].

7. Assemble package for filing:

a. Original signed articles, with appropriate number of copies to be certified.

b. Checks for required fees.

c. If articles will be filed by mail, transmittal letter and self-addressed, postage prepaid envelope to be used by Secretary of State to return certified copies of filed articles.

d. For corporation in business of insurance, certificate of Insurance Commissioner approving corporate name [see Corp. Code § 201.5].

e. For incorporation of existing business organized as trust, officers' certificate stating that incorporation of association has been approved by trustees and by required vote of holders of shares of beneficial interest [Corp. Code § 200.5(b); see § 3.200[1][j] (discussion of additional requirements and illustrative certificate)].

8. To file articles, either:

a. Send by mail to Secretary of State, 1500 Eleventh Street, Sacramento, CA 95814; or

b. File (or have filed) over the counter at any branch office of Secretary of State.

9. Confirm filing.

NOTE:

Certified copies of articles filed by mail are returned by mail with the filing date stamped on the copies, together with the receipt for fees, and the corporate number assigned to the new corporation. For over the counter filings, the same items are returned at the time of filing.

§ 3.130 Articles of Incorporation

1. Set forth complete name of corporation [Corp. Code § 202(a)].

a. Do not use any name that is likely to mislead public or is too similar to another corporation's [Corp. Code § 201(b)].

NOTE:
Corporate name clearances are covered in Ch. 2, Formation of Corporations .

b. For corporation that is to be subject to statutory provisions for "close corporation" [see Corp. Code § 158], include word "corporation," "incorporated," or "limited," or abbreviation of one of those words in corporate name [Corp. Code § 202(a); see § 3.202[1][d]].

c. For corporation that will engage in insurance business, use only name that has been approved by Insurance Commissioner [Corp. Code § 201.5].

NOTE:
Articles will not be filed by the Secretary of State unless a certificate of the Insurance Commissioner approving the corporate name is attached to the articles [Corp. Code § 201.5].

d. Do not use name in which word, "bank," "trust," "trustee," or related word appears unless [Corp. Code § 201(a)]:

(1) Certificate of approval of Commissioner of Financial Institutions is attached to articles; or

(2) For articles of any corporation subject to Banking Law [see Corp. Code § 163 (definition)], approval of Commissioner of Financial Institutions is endorsed on articles.

2. Describe purpose of corporation.

a. Use appropriate "purpose" provision required by statute:

(1) For any corporation except one engaged in banking business, trust company business, or practice of profession permitted to be incorporated, use general business purpose statement required by statute [Corp. Code § 202(b)(1)(i); see § 3.201[2], art. II].

(2) For corporation engaged in insurance business, use general business purpose statement described in P (1), above, but also state that business of corporation is to be insurer [Corp. Code § 202(b)(3); see § 3.220].

(3) For corporation engaged in profession permitted to be incorporated, use professional corporation purpose provision required by statute [Corp. Code § 202(b)(1)(ii), (4); see Ch. 12A, Professional Corporations, § 12A.200].

(4) For corporation subject to Banking Law [see Corp. Code § 163], use statement of purpose required by appropriate provision of Banking Law [Corp. Code § 202(b)(2); see §§ 3.221-3.224 (illustrative provisions)].

b. Do not set forth any further or additional statement with respect to purposes or power of corporation except [Corp. Code § 202(b)]:

(1) To describe any specific limitation on corporate purpose [see Corp. Code §§ 202(b), 206; see also § 3.230 (illustrative limitation provision)];

(2) To describe any specific limitation on corporate powers [see Corp. Code § 207; see also § 3.231 (illustrative limitation provision)]; or

(3) If expressly required by any law of California other than General Corporation Law or any federal or other statute or regulation (including Internal Revenue Code and its regulations as condition of acquiring or maintaining particular status for tax purposes).

3. Designate corporation's initial agent for service of process [Corp. Code §§ 202(c), 1502(b)]:

a. Name either [Corp. Code § 1502(b)]:

(1) Natural person who resides in California; or

(2) Corporation that has previously filed with Secretary of State its consent to act as agent for service of process [see Corp. Code § 1505 (requirements for certificate of consent); see also § 3.211 (illustrative certificate of consent)].

b. If natural person is named, include agent's complete business or residence street address [Corp. Code § 1502(b)].

NOTE:

An address is not required for an authorized corporate agent [Corp. Code § 1502(b)] since that information is listed on the designated corporation's certificate of consent required to be on file with the Secretary of State [see Corp. Code § 1505(a)(1)].

4. For incorporation of existing business association organized as trust, include statement that existing unincorporated association (by name) is being incorporated by filing of articles [see Corp. Code § 200.5; see also § 3.200[1][j] (illustrative provision and discussion of additional requirements)].

5. For corporation that is to be subject to statutory provisions governing "close corporation" [see Corp. Code § 158; see also § 3.202 (illustrative article provisions)], include:

a. Provision stating that all of corporation's issued shares of all classes will be held of record by not more than specified number of persons, not exceeding 35; and

b. Statement: "This corporation is a close corporation."

6. If corporation is authorized to issue only one class of shares, specify total number of shares authorized [Corp. Code § 202(d); see, e.g., § 3.201[2]].

7. If corporation is authorized to issue more than one class of shares, or if any class of shares is to have two or more series [Corp. Code § 202(e)]:

NOTE:
The following is merely a summary of mandatory provisions for articles of a corporation with more than one class of shares. Detailed requirements are further discussed in § 3.203[1].

a. Designate each class (e.g., common and preferred) and specify total number of shares in each class corporation is authorized to issue [Corp. Code § 202(e)(1), (2); see, e.g., § 3.203[2], art. IV].

b. For any class, for example, preferred stock, to be issuable in series, include in articles either [Corp. Code § 202(e)(1), (2)]:

(1) Designation or number of shares in each series; or

(2) Authorization that permits board of directors to designate or fix number of shares in any series.

c. For rights, preferences, privileges and restrictions granted to or imposed on respective classes or series of shares (or shareholders), either [Corp. Code § 202(e)(3)]:

(1) Describe these in articles [see §§ 3.242-3.257]; or

(2) State that board of directors may determine or alter rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on any wholly unissued class or series of shares, and describe any limitations or restrictions on this power [see § 3.203[2], art. V; see also §§ 3.240, 3.241].

d. If articles fix, or authorize board to fix, number of shares in any series [see P b, above], consider including provision that authorizes board to increase or decrease number originally fixed after shares in that series have been issued [see Corp. Code §§ 202(e)(3), 203.5(b) (restrictions on this type of provision)].

8. If desired by corporation, draft appropriate article provision to accomplish any of following [Corp. Code § 204(a)]:

NOTE:
To be effective, any of these provisions must be expressly included in the articles, or in the case of "close corporation" [see Corp. Code § 158*], in a shareholder's agreement. However, this rule does not affect the enforceability between the parties to any lawful agreement not otherwise contrary to public policy [Corp. Code § 204(a)].

a. Grant corporation power, with or without limitations, to levy assessments on shares or any class of shares [see § 3.260].

b. Grant shareholders preemptive rights to subscribe to any or all issues of shares or securities [see § 3.262].

c. Require special qualifications for shareholders [see § 3.263].

d. Limit duration of corporation's existence to specified date [see § 3.300].

e. Require for any or all corporate actions greater percentage of shareholder vote for any class or series of shares than is otherwise required under General Corporation Law [see § 3.270].

f. Require for any or all corporate actions greater percentage of director vote or higher quorum of directors than is otherwise required under General Corporation Law [see §§ 3.287, 3.288].

g. Limit or restrict business in which corporation may engage [see § 3.230].

h. Limit or restrict powers that corporation may exercise [see § 3.231].

i. Give holders of any evidences of indebtedness, issued or to be issued by corporation, right to vote in election of directors or on any other matter on which shareholders are entitled to vote [see § 3.275].

j. Give shareholders right to determine consideration for which shares will be issued [see § 3.261].

k. Require shareholder approval for any corporate action not otherwise required to be approved by them under General Corporation Law [see, e.g., § 3.271].

l. Eliminate or limit personal liability or director for monetary damages for breach of director's duties to corporation and shareholder to extend permitted by law [see § 3.280].

m. Authorize indemnification of corporate agents in excess of that otherwise permitted by statute [see § 3.281].

9. If reasonable restrictions will be imposed on right to transfer or hypothecate shares of any class or classes or series, consider including provision in articles that describes those restrictions [see Corp. Code § 204(b)].

NOTE:
This type of provision may but is not required to be included in the articles [see Corp. Code § 204(b)*]. It may instead be included in the bylaws [see Corp. Code § 212(b)(1)] or, for a close corporation [see Corp. Code § 158], in a shareholder's agreement [see Corp. Code §§ 300, 418(c), (d), 421]. For a discussion of the circumstances under which transfer restrictions on shares are not permitted, see § 3.264[1].

10. If desired, set forth names and addresses of persons appointed to act as initial directors [see Corp. Code § 204(c)].

NOTE:

Initial directors are not required to be named in the articles and are usually not named for several reasons. First, if directors are named, each must sign and acknowledge the articles. If they are not named, only the incorporator needs to sign the articles and no acknowledgment is necessary [see Corp. Code § 200(b)]. Second, if initial directors are named in the articles, a correction or deletion of this information may not be made until after the corporation files its first "Statement by Domestic Stock Corporation" (referred to in the Code as an annual statement) with the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 900(b)] That statement must be filed within 90 days of incorporation and annually thereafter [see Corp. Code § 1502(a); see also § 3.141 (requirements for filing)]. Third, directors need not be named until the corporation files its first "Statement by Domestic Stock Corporation" within 90 days after incorporation, which permits the corporation more time to elect the directors. If articles do not establish the number of directors, the number must be stated (as a fixed or variable number) in the bylaws [see Corp. Code § 212; see also §§ 3.282-3.284].

11. If intent of corporation is to vary any requirements of General Corporation Law that otherwise govern management of business and conduct of corporate affairs:

a. Confirm that specific statutory provision to be altered does not prohibit variation from or exceptions to its requirements.

b. If specific statutory provision expressly requires that any exception to or variation from its provisions be included in articles, draft appropriate article provision.

c. If specific statutory provision does not expressly require that any exception to or variation from its provisions be included in articles, draft appropriate provision for inclusion either in articles or bylaws (or, in case of "close corporation", shareholder's agreement) [see Corp. Code §§ 204(d), 212(b); see also Corp. Code §§ 186, 300(b) (shareholders' agreement)].

12. If corporation is being converted from domestic or foreign other business entity or foreign corporation, include required statement of conversion [see Corp. Code § 1157(d), (e)].

NOTE:

For a drafting guide and form containing the contents required by statute, see Ch. 11F, Corporate Conversions, §§ 11F.160 (drafting guide), 11F.250 (form for articles provision).

13. In final version of articles, confirm that all format and technical requirements of Secretary of State for legibility and otherwise are satisfied [see § 3.200[1][e]].

§ 3.140 Correction or Amendment of Articles

NOTE:

Many procedures related to a corporation's organization and its commencement of business are covered elsewhere in this publication. Requirements for a corporation's bylaws are covered in Ch. 4, Bylaws . Requirements for the corporation's organizational and subsequent meetings and actions are covered in Ch. 5, Directors' Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions . Required corporate records and reports are covered in Ch. 7, Corporate Records and Reports . Securities qualification (or obtaining exemptions from qualification) is covered in Chs. 6-6H. For coverage of general business matters, such as filing fictituous business name statements and complying with licensing requirements, see Chs. 1A- 1F [see also Ch. 2A, Incorporating a Going Business].

1. If mistake of fact or error in execution of articles is discovered in articles after they have been filed in Secretary of State's office, correct mistake or error by filing certificate of correction [Corp. Code § 109; see Ch. 10, Amendment of Articles].

2. To change any other provision of filed articles, file certificate of amendment or restated articles [see Corp. Code §§ 900-911; see also Ch. 10, Amendment of Articles].

§ 3.141 Filing Mandatory Statement of Domestic Stock Corporation and Designating Agent for Service of Process

1. Within 90 days after articles are filed, submit to office of Secretary of State required filing fee [see Code § 12186(g); see also Corp. Code § 1502(i) (additional fee)] and completed "Statement by Domestic Stock Corporation" (form prescribed by Secretary of State) that contains following information [see Corp. Code § 1502(a), (b); see also Ch. 7, Corporate Records and Reports (form)]:

NOTE:

After the articles are filed, the Secretary of State's office routinely sends a blank copy of the form to the new corporation. If for any reason the blank form is not received, one should be requested from the Secretary of State. A penalty may be assessed for failure to file after receiving a notice of delinquency from the Secretary of State's office [see Corp. Code § 2204].

This statement will be held available and open to the public for inspection. The Secretary of State is required by statute to provide access to all information contained in this statement by means of an online database [Corp. Code § 1502(h)].

a. Names and complete business or residence addresses of all incumbent directors.

b. Number of vacancies on board of directors, if any.

c. Names and complete business or residence addresses of corporation's:
(1) Chief executive officer.

(2) Secretary.

(3) Chief financial officer.

d. Street address of principal executive office.

e. Mailing address of corporation, if different from street address of its principal executive office.

f. If address of principal executive office is not in California, street address of principal business office in California, if any.

g. Statement of general type of business that constitutes principal business activity of corporation.

h. Designation of agent for service of process, which must name either [Corp. Code § 1502(b)]:

(1) Natural person residing in California (including that person's complete business or residence street address); or

(2) Corporation that has agreed to serve as agent and that previously has filed required certificate with Secretary of State [see Corp. Code § 1505; see also § 3.211 (form for certificate and discussion of specific requirements)].

g. Have corporation certify that information in statement is true and correct [Corp. Code §§ 1502(j), 1502.1(d)].

NOTE:
No claim may be made against the state for inaccurate information contained in the statement [Corp. Code § 1502(j)].

2. Annually thereafter, by end of calendar month of anniversary date of initial incorporation, file renewal "Statement by Domestic Stock Corporation", together with required filing fee [see Code § 12186(g), (j); see also Corp. Code § 1502(i)], and "Statement for Publicly Traded Corporations," in office of Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 1502(a); see Ch. 7, Corporate Records and Reports (form)]:

NOTE:
The Secretary of State will mail a reminder notice of compliance with the annual filing requirement to each corporation approximately three months prior to the filing deadline. The notice will state the due date and will be mailed to the corporation's address of record with the Secretary of State. The failure of the corporation to receive the notice is not an excuse for failing to file [Corp. Code § 1502(d); see Corp. Code § 2204 (assessment of penalties after delinquency notice)]. If there has been no change in information set forth in the last filed statement of the corporation on file in the Secretary of State's office, the corporation, in lieu of completing the entire form, may complete only the portion declaring that no changes have occurred since the last filing [see Corp. Code § 1502(c); see also official instructions to form].

3. If any information listed in P 1, above, is changed, except designation of agent for service of process, consider filing new statement prior to next annual filing date [Corp. Code § 1502(e)].

NOTE:

Filing a new statement prior to the next required annual filing is not mandatory under these circumstances [see Corp. Code § 1502(e)]. There is no fee for filing an amended statement that is not an annual filing [see Form instructions; see also Ch. 7, Corporate Records and Reports .

4. In order to change designation of agent for service of process, immediately file new statement containing all information noted in P 1, above [Corp. Code § 1502(e)].

NOTE:

For this purpose, filing a new statement before the next required annual filing is mandatory [see Corp. Code § 1504]. When a new statement is filed, it supersedes any previously filed statement and the statement in the articles as to the agent for service of process and the address of the agent [Corp. Code § 1502(e)].

5. If corporation is publicly traded, complete "Corporate Disclosure Statement" as prescribed by Secretary of State, with following information [Corp. Code § 1502.1(a)]:

NOTE:

A "publicly traded corporation" is a corporation [see Corp. § 162] that (1) is an issuer as defined in Section 3 of the Securities Exchange Act [see 15 U.S.C. § 78c] and (2) has at least one class of securities listed or admitted for trading on a national securities exchange, on the OTC Bulletin Board, or the electronic service operated by Pink OTC Markets Inc. [Corp. Code § 1502.1(b)(1)].

a. Name of independent auditor that prepared most recent auditor's report on corporation's annual financial statements.

b. Description of other services, if any, performed for corporation during its two most recent fiscal years and period between end of its most recent fiscal year and date of statement by foregoing independent auditor, by its parent corporation, or by subsidiary or corporate affiliate of that independent auditor or its parent corporation.

c. Name of independent auditor employed by corporation on date of statement, if different from independent auditor listed above.

d. Compensation paid, including number of any shares issued, options for shares granted, and similar equity-based compensation granted, for corporation's most-recent fiscal year, to:

(1) Each member of board of directors; and

(2) Each of five most highly compensated executive officers who are not members of board.

NOTE:

For this purpose, "executive officer" is defined as the chief executive officer, the president, any vice president in charge of a principal business unit, division, or function, any other officer of the corporation who performs a policy-making function, or any other person who performs similar policy-making functions for the corporation [Corp. Code § 1502.1(b)(2)]. "Compensation" includes all plan and nonplan compensation awarded to, earned by, or paid to the person for all services rendered in all capacities to the corporation and to its subsidiaries, as the compensation is specified by Item 402 of SEC

Regulation S-K [Corp. Code § 1502.1(b)(3); see 17 C.F.R. § 229.402]. If the chief executive officer is not among the five most highly compensated executive officers of the corporation, the compensation paid to the chief executive officer must be included anyway [Corp. Code § 1502.1(a)(4)].

e. Description of any loan, including amount and terms, made to any member of board of directors by corporation during corporation's two most-recent fiscal years at interest rate lower than interest rate available from unaffiliated commercial lenders generally to similarly situated borrower.

NOTE:

The term "loan" does not include advances for reimbursable expenses [see Corp. Code § 315(d)], certain premium payments for life insurance [see Corp. Code § 315(e)], and advances for litigation expenses [Corp. Code § 1502.1(b)(4); see Corp. Code § 317].

f. Statement indicating whether order for relief has been entered in bankruptcy case with respect to corporation, its executive officers, or board members during 10 years preceding date of statement.

g. Statement indicating whether any board member or executive officer of corporation was convicted of fraud during 10 years preceding date of statement.

NOTE:

This disclosure is not required if the conviction has been overturned or expunged [Corp. Code § 1502.1(a)(7)].

h. Description of any material pending legal proceedings, other than ordinary routine litigation incidental to business, to which corporation or any of its subsidiaries is party or of which any of their property is subject [see 12 C.F.R. § 229.103 (Item 103 of Regulation S-K)].

i. Description of any material legal proceeding during which corporation was found legally liable by entry of final judgment or final order that was not overturned on appeal during five years preceding date of statement.

6. File "Corporate Disclosure Statement" within 150 days after end of corporation's fiscal year and annually thereafter [Corp. Code § 1502.1(a)].

§ 3.142 Filing Certificate of Determination

1. If articles authorize board to determine rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions (or any of them) for any class or series of shares, to designate any series of shares, or to fix number of shares in series [see, e.g., § 3.203[2], art. V], instruct board of directors to do following prior to issuing any shares in affected class or series [Corp. Code § 401(a)]:

a. Adopt resolution that fixes matters to be determined.

b. Prepare certificate of determination that includes copy of resolution and executed officer's certificate [see § 3.310].

c. File certificate of determination with Secretary of State.

2. If board desires to alter or revoke any right, preference, privilege, or restriction fixed or determined by previously filed certificate of determination, and no shares in affected class or series have yet been issued [Corp. Code § 401(b)]:

a. Adopt new resolution that reflects alteration or revocation.

b. Prepare amendatory certificate of determination that includes copy of new resolution and executed officer's certificate [see § 3.311].

c. File amendatory certificate of determination with Secretary of State.

3. If board desires (and is so authorized by articles) to increase or decrease number of shares in any series specified in any previously filed certificate of determination (whether or not affected shares have been issued) [Corp. Code § 401(c)]:

a. Adopt new resolution stating increase or decrease.

b. Prepare amendatory certificate of determination that includes copy of new resolution and executed officer's certificate [see § 3.312].

c. File amendatory certificate of determination with Secretary of State.

NOTE:
If a previously filed certificate of determination has been incorporated in restated articles filed with the Secretary of State [see Corp. Code § 910], the board may, alternatively, increase or decrease the number of shares by amending the articles [see Corp. Code § 401(c)].

4. If board desires to alter or revoke any right, preference, privilege, or restriction fixed or determined by previously filed certificate of determination, and shares in affected class or series have been issued, adopt, approve, and file amendment to articles [Corp. Code § 401(d); see Ch. 10, Amendment of Articles].

NOTE:
If the alteration or revocation relates only to an increase or decrease in the number of shares for a series described in P 3, above, the alteration or revocation may instead be accomplished by filing a certificate of determination described in P 3, above [see Corp. Code § 401(d)].

The alteration of the rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions on outstanding securities constitutes a sale of the securities under the California Corporate Securities Law [see Corp. Code § 25017(a)].

§ 3.200 Articles of Incorporation for Corporation With Simple Stock Structure (Long Form)

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This is a set of articles of incorporation for a stock corporation with one class of stock that will be incorporated by a single incorporator. These articles contain only the mandatory provisions required by statute and do not include any of the optional or alternative clauses that may be included in articles of incorporation [see [c], below].

For other complete sets of articles, see §§ 3.201 (corporation with simple stock structure--short form), 3.202 (close corporation), and 3.203 (corporation with complex stock structure). If an existing business association, presently organized as a trust, is to be incorporated under the General Corporation Law, special requirements apply to drafting and executing its articles of incorporation [see [j], below].

If an other business entity, foreign other business entity, or foreign corporation is converting into a California corporation pursuant to Chapter 11.5 of the General Corporation Law [see Corp. Code § 1150 et seq.], special content requirements apply to the articles of incorporation [see Corp. Code § 1157(d), (e); see also [k], below].

[b] Mandatory Provisions

[i] Overview

The articles of incorporation must set forth the following [Corp. Code § 202]:

- The name of the corporation [see [b][ii], below].

- The purpose of the corporation [see [b][iii], below].

- The name and address in California of the corporation's initial agent for service of process [see [b][iv], below].

- If the corporation is authorized to issue only one class of shares, the total number of shares that it is authorized to issue [see [b][v], below].

- If the corporation is authorized to issue more than one class of shares, or if any class of shares is to have two or more series, the specific information required by statute [Corp. Code § 202(e)] and summarized in § 3.203[1].

[ii] Name of Corporation

The name of the corporation must be set forth in the articles of incorporation [Corp. Code § 202(a); see [2], art. I, below]. Statutory restrictions on corporate names and the procedure for reserving a corporate name [see Corp. Code § 201] are discussed in Ch. 2, Formation of Corporations . Special requirements that apply to the name of a statutory "close corporation" [see Corp. Code § 202(a)] are discussed in § 3.202[1][d].

[iii] Purpose of Corporation

The business purpose provision set forth in this form [see [2], art. II, below] must be included in the articles of incorporation for any corporation formed under the General Corporation Law, except a professional corporation or a corporation engaged in the banking or trust company business. The language of this single-statement provision is mandated by statute [see Corp. Code § 202(b)(1)(i)]. If the corporation is subject to the Insurance Code as an insurer, the articles must also state that the business of the corporation is to be an insurer [Corp. Code § 202(b)(3); see § 3.220]. Otherwise, no additional statement with respect to the purpose or powers of the corporation may be included in the articles except by way of limitation [see, e.g., §§ 3.230, 3.231] or except as expressly required by any law of California other than the General Corporation Law or any federal or other statute or regulation (including the Internal Revenue Code and its regulations as a condition of acquiring or maintaining a particular status for tax purposes) [Corp. Code § 202(b); see Corp. Code § 207 (enumeration of general corporate powers)]. To be effective, any provision that limits or restricts the business in which the corporation may engage or the power that it may exercise must be included in the articles, or in the case of a close corporation [see Corp. Code § 158], in a shareholders' agreement [Corp. Code § 204(a)(6); but see Corp. Code § 208(a) (limitations on enforcement in third party actions); see also § 3.202[1][g] (shareholders' agreements)].

For illustrative purpose provisions for a corporation subject to the banking law, see §§ 3.221-3.224. For an example of a purpose clause for a profession permitted to be incorporated under the General Corporation Law [see Corp. Code § 202(b)(1)(ii)], see Ch. 12A, Professional Corporations, § 12A.200[2], art. II.

Subject to any limitation contained in the articles and to compliance with any other applicable laws, any corporation other than a corporation subject to the Banking Law [see Corp. Code § 163 (definition); see also §§ 3.221-3.224], or a professional corporation [see Ch. 12A, Professional Corporations] may engage in any business activity. A professional corporation or a corporation subject to the Banking Law may engage in any business activity not prohibited by the respective statutes and regulations to which it is subject [Corp. Code § 206].

[iv] Agent for Service of Process

The name and address in California of the corporation's initial agent for service of process must be included in the articles of incorporation [Corp. Code § 202(c); see [2], art. III, below]. A natural person who resides in California ordinarily must be designated. A corporation may be designated as agent, but only if that corporation previously has filed with the Secretary of State a certificate consenting to act as the agent for service of process and that consent has not been terminated [Corp. Code § 1502(b); see Corp. Code § 1505; see also § 3.211 (requirements for and form of certificate)].

If a natural person is designated, that person's complete business or residence street address must be included in the articles [Corp. Code §§ 202(c), 1502(b)]. If a corporation is named as agent, an address need not be included in the articles since that information is contained in the designated corporation's certificate consenting to act as agent [see Corp. Code § 1505; see also § 3.211], which must have been filed previously with the Secretary of State [see Corp. Code § 1502(b)].

The provision in the articles of incorporation that appoints the corporation's "initial" agent for service of process cannot be amended (or deleted) until after the corporation files with the Secretary of State a "Statement by Domestic Stock Corporation" [Corp. Code § 900(b)]. The contents of the statement are outlined by statute and the form is prescribed by the Secretary of State [see Corp. Code § 1502]. The statement must be filed within 90 days after filing its original articles and then annually thereafter [see Corp. Code § 1502(a)]. Requirements for filing the statement are further discussed in § 3.141. Requirements for changing the corporation's agent for service of process also are summarized in § 3.141. For a discussion of the requirements for amending articles, before or after shares are issued, see Ch. 10, Amendment of Articles .

[v] Stock Structure

The articles set forth below are appropriate for use by a corporation that is authorized to issue only one class of shares [see [2], art. IV, below]. Under these circumstances, only the authorized number of shares must be stated in the articles [see Corp. Code § 202(d)]. There is no statutory minimum or maximum for the number of authorized shares stated in the articles. Often this figure is an arbitrary one, for example 10,000 or 100,000 shares. It is important to bear in mind, however, that the corporation cannot issue more shares than are specified in the articles without amending the articles to increase the number of authorized shares [see Corp. Code §§ 202(d), (e), 400, 401(c) (board may increase or decrease number of shares in any series if authorized in the articles pursuant to Corp. Code § 202(e))].

The Secretary of State's office advises that the authorized number of shares must be at least one share; articles specifying zero shares will not be accepted.

If a corporation will have more than one class of shares, or if any class of shares is to have two or more series, additional information must be included in the articles [see Corp. Code § 202(e)]. That required information, as well as a discussion of the distinctions between and definitions of "class," "series," and other relevant terms, is presented in § 3.203[1].

[c] Permissive Provisions

Under the General Corporation Law, provisions that do the following may be included in the articles of incorporation [see Corp. Code § 204; see also [2], art. V, below]:

(1) Granting, with or without limitations, the power to levy assessments on the shares or any class of shares [Corp. Code § 204(a)(1); see Corp. Code § 423; see also § 3.260];

(2) Granting to shareholders preemptive rights to subscribe to any or all issues of shares or securities [Corp. Code § 204(a)(2); see § 3.262];

(3) Setting forth special qualifications of persons who may be shareholders [Corp. Code § 204(a)(3); see

Corp. Code § 403(a)(2); see also § 3.263];

(4) Limiting the duration of the corporation's existence to a specified date [Corp. Code § 204(a)(4); see § 3.300];

(5) Requiring, for any or all corporate actions [except as provided in Corp. Code §§ 303 (relating to removal of directors), 402.5(b) (relating to vote required for dissolution), 708(c) (relating to election of directors), and 1900 (relating to voluntary dissolution of corporation)], the vote of a larger proportion or of all of the shares of any class or series, or the vote or quorum for taking action of a larger proportion or of all of the directors than is otherwise required by the General Corporation Law [Corp. Code § 204(a)(5); see § 3.270];

(6) Limiting or restricting the business in which the corporation may engage or the powers that the corporation may exercise, or both [Corp. Code § 204(a)(6); see Corp. Code §§ 202(b), 207; see also §§ 3.230, 3.231];

(7) Conferring on the holders of any evidences of indebtedness, issued or to be issued by the corporation, the right to vote in the election of directors and on any other matters on which shareholders may vote [Corp. Code § 204(a)(7); see Corp. Code § 111; see also § 3.275];

(8) Conferring on shareholders the right to determine the consideration for which shares shall be issued [Corp. Code § 204(a)(8); see Corp. Code § 409; see also § 3.261].

(9) Requiring the "approval of the shareholders" [see Corp. Code § 153], or the "approval of the outstanding shares" [see Corp. Code § 152] for any corporate action, even though not otherwise required by the General Corporation Law [see Corp. Code § 204(a)(9); see also § 3.271];

(10) Eliminating or limiting the personal liability of a director for monetary damages in an action brought by or in the right of the corporation for breach of a director's duties to the corporation and its shareholders, provided the provision complies with all applicable statutory requirements and restrictions [Corp. Code § 204(a)(10); see Corp. Code § 309; see also § 3.280 (discussion of specific requirements and restrictions)].

(11) Authorizing, whether by bylaw, agreement, or otherwise, the indemnification of agents [see Corp. Code § 317 (definition)], in excess of that expressly permitted by statute for those agents of the corporation for breach of duty to the corporation and its stockholders, provided the provision complies with relevant statutory restrictions [Corp. Code §§ 204(a)(11), 317; see also § 3.281 (discussion of specific restrictions)].

(12) Reasonably restricting the right to transfer or hypothecate shares of any class or classes (but no such restriction is binding with respect to shares issued prior to its adoption unless the holders of those shares voted in favor of it) [Corp. Code § 204(b); see § 3.264].

(13) Setting forth the names and addresses of the persons appointed to act as initial directors [Corp. Code § 204(c); see [f], below; see also § 3.284].

(14) Any other provision, not in conflict with law, for the management of the business and for the conduct of the affairs of the corporation, including any provision required or permitted by the General Corporation Law to be stated in the bylaws [Corp. Code § 204(d); see Corp. Code § 212(b) (content of bylaws generally); see also §§ 3.272-3.274, 3.282-3.289].

The first 11 categories of provisions listed above must be included in the articles (or in the case of close corporation, in a shareholders' agreement [see § 3.202[1][g]]), in order to be effective [see Corp. Code § 204(a)]. However, notwithstanding this general rule, the bylaws may require the affirmative vote of a majority of the authorized number of directors for all or any actions by the board of directors. In addition, the general rule does not affect the enforceability, as between the parties, of any lawful agreement not otherwise contrary to public policy [Corp. Code § 204(a)].

Corp. Code § 301.5 also allows a corporation, by amendment of its articles or bylaws, to adopt provisions to divide the board of directors into two or three classes to serve for two or three years, respectively, or to eliminate cumulative voting, or both. These provisions are only effective if the corporation is a "listed corporation" as defined in Corp. Code § 301.5(d). However, a corporation that is not a listed corporation can adopt such amendment provisions after the issuance of shares to become effective when the corporation becomes a listed corporation. Such an amendment to the articles may only be adopted by the approval of the board and the outstanding shares voting as a single class, notwithstanding Corp. Code § 903 [Corp. Code § 301.5(a).]

[d] Requirements for Provisions Made Dependent on Facts Ascertainable Outside Articles

Article provisions that cover matters described in [c], Paragraphs (1)-(12), above [Corp. Code § 204(a), (b)], and those that concern the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions imposed on shares [Corp. Code § 202(e)(3); see, e.g., § 3.203[2], art. V], may be made dependent on facts ascertainable outside the articles, if the manner in which those facts will operate on those provisions is clearly and expressly set forth in the articles [Corp. Code § 109.5(a)]. If any article provision is dependent on facts ascertainable through a reference to an agreement or similar document, the corporation must (1) maintain a copy of the agreement and all amendments at its principal executive office, and (2) provide to its shareholders a copy of the agreement and any amendments without charge, on written request [Corp. Code § 109.5(b)].

If the reference is to an agreement to which the corporation is a party, the outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 152] of the affected class or series must approve an amendment or revision of the referenced agreement in the following situations [Corp. Code § 109.5(c)]:

- The amendment or revision of the agreement would result in a material change in the rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions of a class or series of shares.

- The amendment or revision of the agreement would result in a material change in the rights or liabilities of any class or series of shares with respect to information described in Corp. Code § 204(a)(1)-(3), (5), (9) [see [c], Paragraphs (1)-(3), (5), (9), above].

- The amendment or revision of the agreement would result in a material change in the restrictions on transfer or hypothecation of any class or series of shares.

If the amendment or revision of the referenced agreement would result in a change of any of the principal terms of an agreement of merger, the amendment or revision must be approved in the same manner as is required for a change in the principal terms of a merger agreement [Corp. Code § 109.5(c)(4); see Corp. Code § 1104].

[e] Format Specifications

Documents submitted for filing with the Secretary of State must be original documents, bearing the actual, manual signature or signatures of one or more incorporators. However, if the directors are named in the articles, each named person must sign and acknowledge the document. The names of signatories must be typed directly below the signatures.

Because filed documents are microfilmed, they must be typed with letters in dark contrast to the paper; documents submitted for filing that would produce poor microfilm will be returned unfiled.

[f] Execution Requirements

One or more natural persons, partnerships, associations, or corporations, domestic or foreign, may form a corporation by executing and filing articles of incorporation [Corp. Code § 200(a)]. If initial directors are named in the articles, each director named must sign and acknowledge the articles. If initial directors are not named, the "incorporator" must sign the articles but need not acknowledge them [see Corp. Code § 200(b)]. The articles below provide for incorporation by an incorporator and do not name the initial directors. For a provision that may be added to these articles to name directors (with appropriate signature lines and acknowledgment provisions), see § 3.284. If initial directors are not named in the articles, the incorporators, until the time directors are elected, may do whatever is necessary and proper to perfect the organization of the corporation, including the adoption and amendment of bylaws and the election of directors and officers [Corp. Code § 210].

[g] Filing, Certified Copies, and Fees

The articles of incorporation may be filed by mail or hand delivered for over the counter processing to the Secretary of State's Sacramento headquarters at the following address:

Business Filings
1500 11th Street
Sacramento, CA 95814
Attention: Document Filing Support Unit

The Secretary of State offers preclearance and expedited filing services for documents filed with the Secretary pursuant to the Corporations Code, including articles of incorporation. Preclearance service provides a customer with the opportunity to submit a business entity document in person to the Secretary's Sacramento office prior to filing to determine if the articles conform to law and to receive a preclearance response within a guaranteed time frame. Expedited filing service provides the opportunity to submit articles for filing in person to the Secretary of State's Sacramento office and to receive a filing response within a guaranteed time frame. For an additional fee, expedited filing services for a guaranteed same-day response are also available [see http://www.sos.ca.gov/business/precexp.htm].

The articles also may be hand delivered for over the counter processing to any of the corporate branch offices located in Fresno, Los Angeles, San Diego, and San Francisco. When filing in a branch office, duplicate originals must be submitted for filing, plus any copies to be certified and returned. The original and at least two copies must be submitted for filing, together with the applicable fees.

The original articles should be submitted for filing with the appropriate conformed copies to be certified at the time of filing. The Secretary of State will compare and certify two copies without charge if the copies are submitted with the original to be filed [Code § 12185]. If additional certified copies are required, an additional fee must be paid [see Code §§ 12182, 12183; see also Secretary of State's information packet]. The number of certified copies a corporation needs depends on the particular corporation. For example certified copies may be needed for inclusion in the corporation's minute book as prima facie evidence of the corporate existence [Corp. Code § 209], for the registration of securities with the Securities and Exchange Commission or on a national security exchange, for qualifying to do business in other states, for filing in connection with applications for business licenses and permits, when required; and for filing any application for a franchise tax exemption [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 23701, 23702].

The appropriate filing fee for filing articles of incorporation must be submitted at the time of filing [see Code § 12186; see also Corp. Code § 108]. If more than two certified copies are requested, additional copies submitted with the original will be certified on prepayment of a fee. For expedited processing of articles delivered in person, over the counter, a special handling fee must be remitted by separate check; the special handling fee will be retained regardless of whether or not the articles are accepted for filing.

Although corporations are subject to the minimum franchise tax [see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 23151, 23153(d)], the requirement that the annual minimum franchise tax must be prepaid now applies only to credit unions [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 23221]. For further discussion of the calculation of the tax, see the note to § 3.121, P 6.

The Secretary of State's office advises that to expedite processing, articles of incorporation submitted for filing by mail should be accompanied by a self-addressed envelope and a cover letter. For an illustrative cover letter that may be used to request the filing of articles of incorporation, see § 3.210.

[h] Effective Filing Date and Effect of Nonconforming Articles

If the articles conform to law, the Secretary of State will file, and endorse the date of filing, on them [Corp. Code § 110(a)]. Corporate existence begins on the filing of the articles and continues perpetually, unless otherwise expressly provided by law or in the articles [Corp. Code § 200(c)].

The date of filing is the date the articles are received by the Secretary of State unless the articles are withheld from filing for a period of time pursuant to a request by the party submitting them for filing, or unless in the judgment of the Secretary of State the filing is intended to be coordinated with the filing of some other corporate document that cannot be filed. The Secretary of State will file the articles as of any requested future date, not more than 90 days after their receipt, including a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday, if they are received in that office at least one business day prior to the requested date of filing. An instrument does not fail to conform to law because it is not accompanied by the full filing fee if the unpaid portion of the fee does not exceed the limits established by the policy of the Secretary of State for extending credit in such cases [Corp. Code § 110(a); but see [i], below].

If the articles do not conform to law, that is, they are defective in some particular, they will be returned unfiled. In that case, they may be resubmitted to the Secretary of State accompanied by the written opinion of the member of the State Bar of California submitting them, or representing the person submitting them, to the effect that the specific provision objected to by the Secretary of State does conform to law and stating the points and authorities on which the opinion is based. Subject to a few exceptions [see Corp. Code §§ 201 (corporate names), 2101, 2106 (registration and qualification of foreign corporations)], the Secretary of State is required to rely, with respect to any disputed point of law, on the written opinion in determining whether the articles conform to law. The date of filing in under these circumstances is the date the articles are received on resubmission [Corp. Code § 110(b)].

[i] Cancellation of Filing for Nonpayment

The Secretary of State may cancel the filing of articles if a check or other remittance accepted in payment of the filing fee or franchise tax is not paid on presentation. If it receives written notification that the item presented for payment has not been honored for payment, the Secretary of State must give written notice that the filing is subject to cancellation and specify a cancellation date. The notice must be given 70 days or less after the original filing of the articles. The cancellation date specified in the notice must be not less than 20 days from the date the Secretary of State mails its certified notice to the agent for service of process or to the person submitting the articles. Cancellation becomes effective if the amount has not been paid by cashier's check or equivalent before the date of cancellation date specified in the notice [Corp. Code § 110.5].

[j] Special Requirements for Incorporation of Existing Business Association Organized as Trust

[i] Filing Requirements

An existing business association organized as a trust may be incorporated under the General Corporation Law. The incorporation must be approved by the trust's board of trustees or similar governing body and by a majority of the outstanding voting shares of beneficial interest (or any greater proportion required by its declaration of trust or bylaws), and articles of incorporation must be filed in the office of the Secretary of State [see Corp. Code § 200.5(a)]. In addition to the mandatory article provisions required for any corporation [see Corp. Code § 202; [b], above], the articles must state that an existing unincorporated association (specified by name) is being incorporated by the filing of the articles [Corp. Code § 200.5(b); see [2], optional art. VII, below].

A copy of the articles of incorporation certified by the Secretary of State may be filed for record in the office of the county recorder of any county in which any real property of the former association is located. This filing is evidence that the corporation is the record owner of all interests of the former association in and to the real property located in that county [Corp. Code § 200.5(e)].

[ii] Execution and Certification

The articles must be signed by the president or any vice-president, and by the secretary or any assistant secretary of the existing association. They must be accompanied by a certificate signed and verified by the persons signing the articles stating that the incorporation has been approved by the trustees and by a vote of the required number of shares of beneficial interest [Corp. Code § 200.5(c); see [j][i], above]. This form includes the required certificate immediately following the verification.

[iii] Effect of Filing Articles

When it files its articles of incorporation, the unincorporated association becomes a corporation [see Corp. Code § 200(c)] and automatically succeeds to all of the rights and property of the former association and is subject to all of its debts and liabilities. The trustees of the former association are the initial directors of the corporation and serve until the next annual meeting of the shareholders unless they die, resign, or are removed prior to that time. All creditors' rights and liens on association property are preserved. Any action pending by or against the association may be prosecuted to judgment and the judgment will bind the corporation; or, in the alternative, the corporation may be substituted in the action [see Corp. Code § 200.5(d)].

[k] Special Requirements for Articles of Corporation Formed Pursuant to Conversion of Other Business Entity or Foreign Corporation

An other business entity, foreign other business entity, or foreign corporation may be converted into a corporation pursuant to Chapter 11.5 of the General Corporation Law [see Corp. Code § 1150 et seq.] if the converting entity is authorized by the laws under which it is organized to effect the conversion. The conversion by an other business entity, foreign other business entity, or foreign corporation into a California corporation will be effective at the time articles of incorporation of the converted corporation containing a statement of conversion are filed with the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 1157(d)]. The contents of this statement are specified by statute [see Corp. Code § 1157(e)]. The filing of the articles has the effect of the filing of a certificate of cancellation by a converting foreign limited liability company or foreign limited partnership [Corp. Code § 1157(f); see Corp. Code §§ 15696, 15909.06, 17455]. If a converting entity is a foreign corporation qualified to transact business in California, the foreign corporation, by virtue of filing the articles of incorporation, automatically surrenders its right to transact intrastate business [Corp. Code § 1157(f)]. For a drafting guide and form containing the contents required by statute, see Ch. 11F, Corporate Conversions, §§ 11F.160 (drafting guide), 11F.250 (form for articles provision).

(c) _____ [If shareholders will be required to possess special qualifications, describe specific qualifications (see, e.g., § 3.263)].

(d) _____ [If corporation's existence is to be limited to a specified date, insert appropriate provision to that effect (see, e.g., § 3.300)].

(e) _____ [For any or all corporate actions, if the vote must consist of a larger proportion or of all the shares of any class or series, or the vote or quorum for taking action must consist of a larger proportion all of the directors, than is otherwise required by the General Corporation Law (e.g., a requirement that certain matters be approved by more than a majority of the authorized number of directors or that a quorum be larger than a majority), describe specific requirements (see, e.g., §§ 3.270, 3.287, and 3.288)].

(f) _____ [If the holders of any evidences of indebtedness, issued or to be issued by the corporation, are to have the right to vote in the election of directors or on any other matters on which shareholders may vote, describe those rights (see, e.g., § 3.275)].

(g) _____ [If shareholders are to have right to determine consideration for which shares are to be issued, describe those specific rights (see, e.g., § 3.261)].

(h) _____ [If shareholder approval will be required for any corporate action that is not otherwise required under the General Corporation Law, specify specific requirements (see, e.g., § 3.271)].

(i) _____ [If personal liability of directors for monetary damages is to be limited, insert appropriate provision to that effect (see, e.g., § 3.280)].

(j) _____ [If corporation will be authorized to indemnify its agents to fullest extent permitted under state law, insert provision to that effect (see, e.g., § 3.281)]. (k) _____ [If there are to be any restrictions on the right to transfer or hypothecate shares of any class or classes, describe specific restrictions (see, e.g., § 3.264)].

(l) _____ [Include any other desired provisions, not in conflict with law, for the management of the business and for the conduct of corporate affairs, including any desired provision that is required or permitted by the General Corporation Law to be stated in the corporation's bylaws (see, e.g., §§ 3.272-3.274, 3.282-3.289)].

[Optional:]

VI. Initial Directors

[If desired, name initial directors and set forth their addresses in this separately numbered article (see § 3.284 for illustrative provision). If directors are so named, each named person must execute and acknowledge articles (see § 3.284 for signature lines and form of acknowledgment)].

§ 3.201 Short Form of Articles for General Business Corporation With Simple Stock Structure

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This is a short form of articles of incorporation for a general business corporation with one class of stock. It contains only the minimum mandatory provisions for articles required under the General Corporation Law [see Corp. Code § 202] and is typical of the simplest form of articles of incorporation often filed by a general business corporation. The mandatory article provisions are discussed in § 3.200[1][b].

These articles use a single incorporator to effect the incorporation [see Corp. Code § 200(a), (b); see also § 3.200[1][f]] and do not name initial directors of the corporation [see § 3.284 (provision for naming directors and required signature lines and form of acknowledgment)]. Article III of the form assumes that a natural person, rather than a corporation, will be designated as the corporation's initial agent for service of process [see § 3.200[1][b][iii]].

Article II of this form sets forth the purpose statement required by statute for a general business corporation. Other purpose statements are required and these articles should not be used (without modification) for a corporation in the insurance business [see Corp. Code § 202(b)(3); see § 3.220 (illustrative purpose provision)], a corporation subject to the Banking Law [see Corp. Code § 163; see §§ 3.221-3.224 (purpose provisions)], or the incorporation of a professional practice [see Corp. Code § 202(b); see also Ch.12A, Professional Corporations, § 12A.200]. These articles also should not be used without modification for any corporation that desires to limit or restrict the purpose or powers of the corporation, since any restrictions or limitations of that type must be expressly included in the articles [see Corp. Code §§ 202(b), 204(a)(6); see also §§ 3.230, 3.231].

These articles do not contain any of the "permissive" provisions that may (and must be, to be effective) included in the articles [see Corp. Code § 204(a); see § 3.200[1][c] (listing of these provisions)]. They also do not contain the special mandatory article provisions required for a statutory "close corporation" [see Corp. Code § 158]. Those requirements and an illustrative set of articles for a close corporation are set forth in § 3.202. More detailed coverage is presented in California Small Business Guide(Matthew Bender).

For a longer set of articles that outlines alternative and optional provisions for a general business corporation with a simple stock structure, see § 3.200. Complete articles for a corporation with a complex stock structure (that is, more than one class of stock) are set forth in § 3.203.

Execution and filing requirements for articles of incorporation are covered in 3.200[1][e]-[i].

§ 3.202 Articles of Incorporation for Close Corporation

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a set of articles of incorporation for a statutory "close corporation" [see Corp. Code § 158(a); see also [c], below (definition)] with a simple stock structure (that is, only one class of shares). These articles contain only the mandatory provisions required for any stock corporation [see Corp. Code § 202; see also § 3.200[1][b]], plus the additional, special provisions required for a corporation that elects to be subject to the special statutory provisions of the General Corporation Law applicable to a close corporation [see Corp. Code §§ 158(a), 202(a); see also [c], below]. The mandatory provisions appear in Articles I, III, IV, and V of this form and are discussed in § 3.200[1][b]. The special provisions required for a close corporation are included in Article II of this form and are discussed in [c], below. "Permissive" provisions that may be included in articles of incorporation are listed in Article VI of this form [see Corp. Code § 204; see also § 3.200[1][c]].

For a set of articles for a corporation with a complex stock structure, see § 3.203. Articles for a general business corporation with a simple stock structure are set forth in § 3.200 (long form) and § 3.201 (short form). For more detailed coverage, see California Small Business Guide(Matthew Bender).

[b] Execution, Format, and Filing Requirements

Because these articles do not name initial directors, the articles must only be signed by the incorporator or incorporators [see Corp. Code § 200(b)]. If initial directors are named [see § 3.284], the articles must be signed and acknowledged by each of the named directors [Corp. Code § 200(b)]. For an article provision that names initial directors, with appropriate signature lines and an acknowledgment form, see § 3.284. Execution, format, and filing requirements for a statutory close corporation are the same as for any corporation, and those requirements are discussed in detail in § 3.200[1][e]-[i]

[c] Definition of "Close Corporation" and Required Special Provisions for Articles

The statutory definition of a "close corporation" refers to the special provisions that must be included in the articles of incorporation for a close corporation. Under this definition, a "close corporation" means a corporation whose articles contain, in addition to the mandatory provisions required for any corporation [see Corp. Code § 202; see also § 3.200[1][b]], a provision that all of the corporation's issued shares of all classes must be held of record by not more than a specified number of persons, not exceeding 35, and the statement "This corporation is a close corporation" [Corp. Code § 158(a)]. These special provisions are set forth in Article II of this form.

The precise elements of a statutory close corporation are distinct from "S corporations" [see I.R.C. § 1372] and from corporations that are eligible for the "notice" filing procedures with the Commissioner of Corporations under the limited offering exemption, small offering exemption, or qualified purchaser offering exemption from qualification [see Corp. Code § 25102(f), (h), (n)]. While the three types of corporations may have some elements in common, they are in fact separate and independent concepts. For example, for a corporation to qualify for the notice filing procedure under the limited offering or small offering exemption or to make an "S corporation" election, it is not necessary that the corporation's articles conform to the requirements for a statutory close corporation discussed here.

Requirements for exemption from qualification under the small and limited offering exemptions are covered in Ch. 6B, California Limited Offering Exemptions and Ch. 6C, California Small Offering Exemption . Electing Subchapter S status is covered in Ch. 2B, Electing Subchapter S Status .

[d] Requirements for Name of Corporation

The articles of incorporation for any corporation must state the name of the corporation [Corp. Code § 202(a); see Corp. Code § 201 (prohibited names); see also Ch. 2, Formation of Corporations]. For the corporation to be subject to the provisions of the General Corporation Law applicable to a close corporation [see Corp. Code § 158], the name of the corporation must contain the word "corporation," "incorporated," "limited," or an abbreviation of one of these words [Corp. Code § 202(a)].

[e] Determination of Number of Shareholders

As discussed in [c], above, the articles for a close corporation must contain a provision that states that all of the corporation's issued shares of all classes shall be held of record by not more than a specified number of persons, and this number may not exceed 35 [Corp. Code § 158(a)]. For purposes of determining the number of shareholders, the following rules apply [Corp. Code § 158(d)]:

- A husband and wife and the personal representative of either are counted as one, regardless of how shares may be held by either or both of them;

- A trust or personal representative of a decedent holding shares is counted as one regardless of the number of trustees or beneficiaries, unless the primary purpose of the trust was the acquisition or voting of the shares, in which case it is counted according to the number of beneficial interests;

- A partnership, corporation, or business association holding shares is counted as one, unless the primary purpose of the entity was the acquisition or voting of the shares, in which case it is counted according to the number of beneficial interests in it.

[f] Inclusion or Deletion of Required Special Provisions After Initial Incorporation

The special provisions that must be included in the articles of incorporation for a close corporation [see Corp. Code § 158(a); see also [c], above] may be included in the articles by amendment. However, if shares have been issued, the amendment may be adopted only by the affirmative vote of all of the issued and outstanding shares of all classes [Corp. Code § 158(b)], regardless of limitations or restrictions on voting rights [Corp. Code § 117].

Also by amendment, the special article provisions may be deleted from the articles or the number of shareholders specified in the articles may be changed. However, if shares have been issued, the amendment may be adopted only by the affirmative vote of at least two-thirds of each class of the outstanding shares, unless otherwise provided in the articles. The articles may provide for a lesser vote, but not less than a majority of the outstanding shares, or may deny a vote to any class, or both [Corp. Code § 158(c); see also Corp. Code §§ 117, 902(f)]. These restrictions on amendments do not invalidate any agreement among the shareholders to vote for the deletion from the articles of the special provisions on the lapse of a specified period of time or on the occurrence of a certain event or condition or otherwise [Corp. Code § 158(f)].

If a close corporation acquires more shareholders of record than is permitted by its articles, the special provisions in the articles required for a close corporation must be promptly deleted by the corporation's board of directors [Corp. Code § 158(e); see [h], below].

[g] Shareholders' Agreement

[i] Definition and General Provisions

By statutory definition, a "shareholders' agreement"is a written agreement among all of the shareholders of a close corporation (or if a close corporation has only one shareholder, between that shareholder and the corporation) as authorized by Corp. Code § 300(b) [Corp. Code § 186].

Among other things, Corp. Code § 300(b) provides that, except as noted below, a shareholders' agreement that relates to any phase of the affairs of a close corporation, including but not limited to management of its business, division of its profits, or distribution of its assets on liquidation, will not be invalid as between the parties to it on the ground that (1) it so relates to the conduct of the affairs of the corporation as to interfere with the discretion of the board or (2) it is an attempt to treat the corporation as if it were a partnership or to arrange their relationships in a manner that would be appropriate only between partners [Corp. Code § 300(b)].

Although this statutory authorization grants a close corporation greater flexibility in its structure and management than is generally permitted for corporations under the General Corporation Law, the flexibility is not unrestricted. For example, several provisions of the General Corporation Law may not be altered or waived by the terms of a shareholders' agreement. Specifically, these provisions are Corp. Code §§ 158, 500, 501 (distributions to shareholders), 417, 418 (required statements on share certificates), 1111 (mergers), 1201(e) (reorganization), 1500-1512 (records and reports), 1600-1605 (rights of inspection), 1800-1809 (involuntary dissolution), 2009, 2010, 2011 (distribution on dissolution and powers of dissolved corporations), and 2200-2260 (crimes and penalties). All other provisions of the General Corporation Law may be altered or waived as between the parties to a shareholders' agreement, except the required filing of any document with the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 300(c)].

To be effective, certain types of provisions must be included in the articles, or in the case of a close corporation, in a shareholders' agreement [see Corp. Code § 204(a)]. These provisions are discussed in § 3.200[1][c] and are listed in Article VI of this form.

[ii] Effect of Agreement on Shareholders and Transferees

The failure of a close corporation to observe corporate formalities relating to meetings of directors or shareholders in connection with the management of its affairs, pursuant to a shareholders' agreement [see Corp. Code §§ 186, 300(b)], will not be considered a factor tending to establish that the shareholders have personal liability for corporate obligations [Corp. Code § 300(e)]. However, to the extent that the agreement controls the discretion or powers of the board in its management of corporate affairs, it does impose on each shareholder liability for managerial acts or omissions performed by that shareholder to the extent that the liability would otherwise be imposed on directors (and, conversely, the directors are relieved of that liability) [Corp. Code § 300(d)].

A transferee of shares covered by a shareholders' agreement that is filed with the secretary of the corporation for inspection by any prospective purchaser of shares, who has actual knowledge of the agreement or notice of the agreement by a notation on the share certificate [see Corp. Code §§ 418], is bound by the provisions of the agreement and is a party to it for the purposes of shareholder liability for managerial acts or omissions discussed in the preceding paragraph [Corp. Code § 300(b); see Corp. Code § 300(d)]. Original issuance of shares by the corporation to a new shareholder who does not become a party to the agreement terminates the agreement, except that if the agreement so provides, it will continue to the extent it is enforceable apart from applicable statutory provisions [see Corp. Code § 300(b)]. The agreement may not be modified, extended, or revoked without the consent of the transferee, subject to any provision of the agreement permitting modification, extension, or revocation by less than unanimous agreement of the parties. A transferor of shares covered by a shareholders' agreement ceases to be a party to it on ceasing to be a shareholder of the corporation unless the transferor is a party to the agreement other than as shareholder [Corp. Code § 300(b)]. A shareholders' agreement terminates when the corporation ceases to be a close corporation [see [h], below], except that if the agreement so provides, it will continue to the extent it is enforceable apart from applicable statutory provisions [see Corp. Code § 300(b)]. The rules discussed in this paragraph do not apply to voting trust agreements authorized for close corporations [Corp. Code § 300(b); see Corp. Code § 706(a) (voting trust agreements)].

[h] Termination of Status as Close Corporation

A corporation ceases to be a close corporation [Corp. Code § 158(e)]:

- On the filing of an amendment to its articles of incorporation that deletes the provisions required for a close corporation [see Corp. Code § 158(c); [c], above];

- If it has more than the maximum number of holders of record of its shares specified in its articles as a result of:

  - An inter vivos transfer of shares that is not void under applicable statute [see Corp. Code § 418(d)];

  - The transfer of shares on distribution by will pursuant to the laws of descent and distribution;

  - The dissolution of a partnership, corporation, or business association, or the termination of a trust that holds shares;

  - By court decree on dissolution of marriage; or

  - Otherwise by operation of law.

Promptly on acquiring more than the specified number of shareholders of record, a close corporation must execute and file in the Secretary of State's office [see Corp. Code § 169 (definition of "filed")] an amendment to its articles deleting the special article provisions required for a close corporation [see Corp. Code § 158(a); see also [c], above], and deleting any other provisions not permissible for a corporation that is not a close corporation. The amendment must be promptly approved and filed by the board of directors, and need not be approved by the outstanding shares [Corp. Code § 158(e)].

§ 3.203 Articles of Incorporation for Stock Corporation With Complex Stock Structure

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a set of articles of incorporation for a corporation with a complex stock structure. For articles for a corporation with a simple stock structure (that is, only one class of shares), see §§ 3.200 (long form) and 3.201 (short form). A complete set of articles of incorporation for a statutory close corporation [see Corp. Code § 158] is set forth in § 3.202.

These articles contain the minimum mandatory article provisions regarding the corporate name, purpose, and agent for service of process [see [2], arts. I, II, and III, below]; requirements relative to those provisions are discussed in § 3.200[1][b]. Articles IV and V of this form establish the corporation's stock structure and are discussed in the remainder of this Comment. Article VI lists optional provisions that may be included in articles; requirements relative to those provisions are discussed in § 3.200[1][c].

[b] Execution and Filing

These articles provide for incorporation by a single incorporator and do not name initial directors for the corporation. Under these circumstances, the articles must be executed by the incorporator, or if more than one, the incorporators. If initial directors are named, in the articles, each director must execute and acknowledge the articles [Corp. Code § 200(b); see § 3.284 (article provision that names initial directors and discussion of execution and acknowledgment requirements)]. Specific format and filing requirements for articles of incorporation are discussed in § 3.200[1][e]-[i].

[c] Illustrative Stock Structure Used in Form

This form provides for the following stock structure [see [2], arts. IV and V, below]: two classes of shares, common and preferred [see [2], art. IV, below; see also Corp. Code §§ 159, 176 (definitions)]. Article V of the form provides that preferred shares are to be issued in series. The terms (rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions) of the first series, and certain terms common to all series, are specified and outlined in these articles [see [2], art. V, below]. The articles authorize the board of directors to fix the terms for additional series. This form provides for a first series (designated below as "Series A"), which has cumulative, nonparticipating dividends [see [2], art. V, P (a), below], is redeemable at any time [see [2], art. V, P (c)], has a liquidation preference [see [2], art. V, P (b), below], and has contingent voting rights [see [2], art. V, P (f), below]. General requirements and drafting considerations for those provisions are discussed in §§ 3.243 (dividend and participation rights), 3.249 (redemption provisions), 3.246 (liquidation preferences), and 3.253 (contingent voting rights).

Article V of this form does not contain provisions for a sinking fund, conversion rights, or protective provisions. Because those types of provisions are likely to vary with each series of shares, they are more often included in a certificate of determination rather than in the original articles [see [e], below]. However, illustrative provisions for those matters are included in this chapter that may be included either in the articles, or with slight modification, in a certificate of determination [see § 3.250 (sinking fund); see also §§ 3.251, 3.252 (conversion rights); and § 3.255 (protective provisions)].

The stock structure provisions used in this form are illustrative only and any specific provisions must be modified to fit the specific needs and requirements of a particular corporation. For alternative provisions that may be used in lieu of Article V of this form, see 3.240 through 3.242.

[d] Definition of "Class", "Series", and Other Terms

A "shareholder" is a holder of record of shares [Corp. Code § 185]. Shares are the units into which the proprietary interests in a corporation are divided in the articles of incorporation [Corp. Code § 184]. "Classes" of shares are either common or preferred. "Common shares" are those having no preference over any other shares with respect to distribution of assets on liquidation or with respect to payment of dividends [Corp. Code § 159]. "Preferred shares" are any shares other than common shares [Corp. Code § 176].

A "series" of shares means those shares within a class that have the same rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions, but that differ in one or more rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions from other shares within the same class [Corp. Code § 183; see Corp. Code § 400(b)]. Certificated securities [Corp. Code § 156.1; see Com. Code § 8102(a)(4), (15)] and uncertificated securities [Corp. Code § 191.1; see Com. Code § 8102(a)(15), (18)] do not constitute different series if the only difference between them is their certificated and uncertificated status [Corp. Code § 183]. For a discussion of the distinction between certificated and uncertificated securities, see the discussions under "Share Certificates--Issuance" and subsequent headings in the Legal Background to Ch. 6I, Issuance of Equity Securities.

[e] Mandatory Provisions for Articles

Articles I, II, and III of this form contain the mandatory provisions for articles of incorporation regarding the corporate name, corporate purpose, and initial agent for service of process [see Corp. Code § 202(a)-(c)]. Requirements for these provisions are discussed in § 3.200[1][b].

In addition to the above, the articles must contain certain information regarding the corporation's stock structure. If the corporation is authorized to issue only one class of shares, only the total number of shares must be specified in the articles [Corp. Code § 202(d); see § 3.201[2], art. IV, below]. If a corporation is authorized to issue more than one class of shares, or if any class of shares is to have two or more series, the articles must set forth the following [Corp. Code § 202(e)]:

- The total number of shares of each class the corporation is authorized to issue [see [2], art. IV, below], and the total number of shares of each series that the corporation is authorized to issue or a statement that the board of directors is authorized to fix the number of shares of any such series [see [2], art. V, below];

- The designation of each class [see [2], art. IV, below], and the designation of each series or a statement that the board of directors may determine the designation of any such series [see [2], art. V, below]; and

- The rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on the respective classes or series of shares or their holders, or a statement that the board of directors, within any limits and restrictions stated, may determine or alter the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on any wholly unissued class of shares or any wholly unissued series of any class of shares [Corp. Code § 202(e); see [2], art. V, below].

If the articles set forth the designation and number of shares of one or more series within a class [see PP (1), (2), above], the stated number of shares for all series within that class may be less than, but must not exceed, the stated number of shares for the class [Corp. Code § 203.5(a)]. Under those same circumstances, the articles may authorize the board to amend the articles to increase or decrease (but not below the number of shares of the series then outstanding) the number of shares of a series [Corp. Code § 203.5(b)]. If the articles authorize the board to fix the number of shares for any series [see P (1), above], the articles may also authorize the board, within any limits and restrictions stated in the articles or in the board resolution originally fixing the number of shares constituting any series, to increase or decrease (but not below the number of shares of that series then outstanding) the number of shares of any such series subsequent to the issuance of shares of that series. If the number of shares of a series is so decreased, the shares constituting the decrease resume the status they had before the adoption of the resolution originally fixing the number of shares of that series [Corp. Code § 202(e)(3)].

If the articles authorize a class of shares that is stated to be issuable in series [see [2], art. V, below], the articles must include either the designation and number of shares for at least one series within that class or an authorization of common shares [Corp. Code § 203.5(c)].

[f] Overview of Drafting Considerations

[i] Distinction or Difference Required Between Classes or Series

Unless otherwise provided in the articles (or, in the case of a close corporation, in any shareholders' agreement [see Corp. Code §§ 158, 186, 300; see also § 3.202[1][g]), no distinction exists between classes or series of shares, or between shareholders [Corp. Code § 203].

When the articles provide for two or more classes of shares, or two or more series of a class of shares, the articles must set forth the distinctions that make the classes or series different from one another [see Corp. Code § 202(e)(3)].

A series of shares within a class must also differ in one or more rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions from shares in another series in the class [see Corp. Code § 183]. Certificated securities [Corp. Code § 156.1; see Com. Code § 8102(a)(4), (15)] and uncertificated securities [Corp. Code § 191.1; see Com. Code § 8102(a)(15), (18)] do not constitute different series if the only difference between them is their certificated and uncertificated status [Corp. Code § 183].

Distinctions between separate classes or series, which is required, must be distinguished from distinctions within the same class or series, which is prohibited. Examples of provisions that violate the latter prohibition are discussed in [iii], below.

[ii] Authority of Board to Fix Number, Rights, Preferences, and Restrictions for Unissued Series

Articles of incorporation may authorize the board of directors to fix the number or designation of an unissued series of a class of shares, or to fix the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions of a wholly unissued class of shares or a wholly unissued series of a class of shares [Corp. Code § 202(e)]. In other words, the articles may grant this authority to the board instead of setting forth the particular terms in the articles themselves. However, the board of directors may not be granted this authority for all of the authorized classes of shares. There must always be at least one class (or series) authorized in the articles as to which the board of directors is not given authority to determine the rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions. When the authority is given, the authority must be limited to shares of a wholly unissued class or series and may not be extended to issued and outstanding shares (subject to one possible exception for changing the number of shares in a series discussed in [e], above) [see Corp. Code § 202(e)].

If the articles grant the board the authority described above, the board ultimately exercises the authority by adopting a resolution [see Corp. Code § 401]. Then, before the corporation issues shares affected by the resolution, the corporation must file a certificate of determination with the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 401(a), (b); see §§ 3.310-3.312 (forms of certificate)]. This certificate of determination is then considered to be a part of the corporation's article of incorporations [see Corp. Code § 154].

[iii] Requirement That Shares of Same Class or Series Have Same Rights and Restrictions

All shares of any one class must have the same voting, conversion and redemption rights and other rights, preferences, privileges and restrictions, unless the class is divided into series. In that case, all the shares of any one series must have the same voting, conversion and redemption rights and other rights, preferences, privileges and restrictions [Corp. Code § 400(b)]. This rule is violated, for example, by an article provision specifying that the shares of a single class held by a shareholder who is not, or ceases to be, an officer, director, or full time employee of the corporation, does not have any voting rights. A provision providing that shares of a particular class, held by shareholders whose whereabouts are unknown to the corporation, is not entitled to receive dividends, also violates the rule.

[iv] Par Value

Under the General Corporation Law, shares do not have any par value and no statement about par value is required to be included in the articles of incorporation. Solely for the purpose of any statute or regulation imposing any tax or fee based on the capitalization of a corporation, all authorized shares of a corporation organized under the General Corporation Law are deemed to have a nominal or par value of $1 per share. If any federal or other statute or regulation applicable to a particular corporation requires that shares have a par value, those shares will have the par value determined by the board of directors in order to satisfy the requirements of that statute or regulation [Corp. Code § 205; see Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Laws, Ch. 3, Formation of Corporations, § 51.02(b)].

[2] FORM

Articles of Incorporation for Stock Corporation With Complex Stock Structure

ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION OF _____ [name of corporation]

I. Name

The name of the corporation is _____[name].

[This Article II must not be used for any corporation subject to the Banking Law (see §§ 3.221-3.224 for alternative provisions) or for a professional corporation (see Ch. 12A, Professional Corporations, § 12A.200).]

II. Purpose

The purpose of the corporation is to engage in any lawful act or activity for which a corporation may be organized under the General Corporation Law of California other than the banking business, the trust company business, or the practice of a profession permitted to be incorporated by the California Corporations Code. [If corporation is subject to Insurance Code as an insurer, add: The business of this corporation is to be an insurer.]

[If the corporation's purposes or powers are to be restricted, insert appropriate provisions here (see, e.g., §§ 3.230, 3.231).]

[For Article III, use either Alternative 1 or Alternative 2.]

[Alternative 1: For use if agent is natural person.]

III. Initial Agent for Service of Process

The name and address in the State of California of this corporation's initial agent for service of process is: _____ [name of agent and complete business or residence address], California _____, [zip code].

[Alternative 2: For use if agent is corporation that has previously filed consent to act as agent (see § 3.211).]

III. Initial Agent for Service of Process

The name of the corporation's initial agent for service of process is _____[name].

[CONTINUE]

IV. Share Structure

This corporation is authorized to issue two classes of shares designated respectively "Common Stock" and "Preferred Stock." These classes are referred to in these Articles as Common Stock or Common shares, or as Preferred Stock or Preferred shares, respectively. The total number of shares of Common Stock is _____[number] and the total number of shares of Preferred Stock is _____[number].

V. Preferred Shares

The Preferred shares of this Corporation may be issued from time to time in one or more series. The first series of Preferred shares shall (i) be and is hereby designated as _____ [name of series, e.g., Series "A"]; (ii) consist of _____ [number, e.g., 1,000] shares; (iii) be entitled to dividends at the annual rate of $ _____ [dollar amount e.g., $4] per share per annum as provided in paragraph (a) of this Article V; (iv) be entitled to receive, on liquidation, dissolution, or winding up of the corporation, $ _____ per share on and subject to the conditions provided in paragraph (b) of this Article V plus, if liquidation, dissolution or winding up is voluntary, a preferential amount of $ _____ per share and a further preferential amount equal to all accrued and unpaid dividends on those shares to and including the date that payment is made available to the holders of the Series _____ [name of first series designated above, e.g., "A"] shares; (v) be redeemable in the manner and otherwise on the conditions provided in subparagraph (1) of paragraph (c) of this Article V by payment of a redemption price equal to $ _____ [dollar amount e.g., $40] per share and unpaid dividends accrued on those shares to and including the date fixed for redemption and a premium of $ _____ [dollar amount, e.g., $4] per share if redeemed on or before _____[date], or a premium of $ _____ [dollar amount, e.g., $3] per share if redeemed after _____ [same date]; (vi) be entitled to voting rights under the circumstances and to the extent provided in paragraph (f); and (vii) be entitled to all other rights, preferences, and privileges and be subject to all such restictions as are in this Article V granted to or imposed on the shares of Series _____ [name of first series designated above, e.g., "A"].

Except as to Series _____ [name of same initial series, e.g., "A"], the Board of Directors is authorized, except as to matters fixed as to Preferred shares in this Article V, (i) to determine the designation of any series and to fix the number of shares of any series; (ii) to increase or decrease (but not below the number of shares of any such series then outstanding), the number of shares of any such series after the issue of shares of that series; and (iii) to determine or alter the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on any wholly unissued series and, within the limitations or restrictions stated in any resolution of the Board of Directors originally fixing the number of shares constituting any series. All Preferred shares shall have the following rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions:

(a) Dividend Rights. The holders of the Preferred shares of each series shall be entitled to receive, when and as declared by the Board of Directors, out of any assets at the time legally available, dividends in cash at the respective rates fixed for that series, and no more. Those dividends shall be payable quarterly on the _____ day of March, June, September, and December in each year to holders of Preferred shares of record on a date not more than 60 nor fewer than 10 days preceding each respective payment date as specified by the Board of Directors or, if not so specified, as provided by law, except that, preceding any of those dates, the initial dividend on the Preferred shares may be paid on the next succeeding quarterly dividend payment date. Those dividends shall accrue and be cumulative as follows: As to shares issued when no other shares of the same series are outstanding, from the date of issuance; as to shares issued when other shares of the same series are outstanding, from that date as shall make the dividend rights per share of the shares being issued uniform with the dividend rights per share of the shares then outstanding of that series, excluding rights to dividends declared and directed to be paid to shareholders of record as of a date preceding the date of issuance of the shares being issued. Dividends on Preferred shares shall accrue at the respective rates fixed for those shares whether or not those dividends are earned. Each Preferred share shall rank with each other Preferred share, irrespective of series, on a parity, proportionately, with respect to dividends at the respective rates fixed for that series, and no dividends shall be declared or paid or set apart for payment on the Preferred shares of any series unless at the same time a dividend, bearing the same proportion to the applicable dividend accrual, shall also be declared or paid or set apart for payment, as the case may be, on the Preferred shares of each other series then outstanding. An accumulation of dividends on Preferred shares shall not bear interest.

Dividends shall be declared and paid in full for all previous quarterly dividend periods, and declared and paid or set apart for payment in full for the current quarterly dividend period, before the corporation makes any distribution (as defined below) to the holders of common shares. "Distribution" in this paragraph (a) means the transfer of cash or property without consideration, whether by way of dividend or otherwise (except a dividend in shares of the corporation that are junior to the Preferred shares as to dividends or assets) or the purchase or redemption of shares of the corporation for cash or property (except junior shares), including any transfer, purchase, or redemption by a subsidiary of the corporation. The time of any distribution by way of dividend shall be the date the dividend is declared, and the time of any distribution by purchase or redemption of shares or otherwise than by dividend shall be the day cash or property is transferred by the corporation, whether or not pursuant to a contract of an earlier date; provided that, when a debt obligation that is a security is issued in exchange for shares, the time of the distribution is the date when the corporation acquires the shares in that exchange [or omit this sentence and leave this matter to operation of law (see Corp. Code § 166)]. At any time after all dividends on the Preferred shares of all series for all previous quarterly dividend periods shall have been declared and paid in full and dividends on the outstanding Preferred shares of all series for the current quarterly dividend period have been declared and paid or set apart for payment in full, distributions (as defined above) may be made to the holders of Common shares out of any assets at the time legally available for that purpose, subject, however, to the observance of any limitations then existing by reason of paragraphs (d) or (e) of this Article V.

(b) Liquidation Rights. In the event of any voluntary or involuntary liquidation, dissolution, or winding up of the corporation, the holders of the Preferred shares of each series shall be entitled to receive from the assets of the corporation such preferential amount in cash as may be fixed for the series in redemption of those shares [or specify other amount] and, a further preferential amount in cash equal to all accrued and unpaid dividends on those shares to and including the date that payment is made available to the holders of Preferred shares. Those preferential amounts shall be paid or set apart for payment before the payment or setting apart for payment of any amount for, or the distribution of any assets of the corporation to, the holders of Common shares in connection with the liquidation, dissolution, or winding up. If the resolution or resolutions fixing the terms of the Preferred shares of any series shall so provide, the preferential amount payable to the holders of Preferred shares of the series in the event of any liquidation, dissolution, or winding up of the corporation may vary depending on the time of liquidation, dissolution, or winding up. With respect to the respective preferential amounts fixed for the series payable on any distribution of assets by way of liquidation, dissolution, or winding up of the corporation, each Preferred share shall rank with each other Preferred share, irrespective of series, in parity proportionate to those respective preferential amounts. No such amounts shall be paid or set apart for payment on the Preferred shares of any series unless at the same time amounts in like proportion to the respective preferential amounts to which the Preferred shares of each other series are entitled shall be paid or set apart for payment on each other series then outstanding. After the payment or the setting apart for payment to the holders of Preferred shares of the preferential amounts so payable to them, the holders of Common shares shall be entitled to receive, ratably, all remaining assets of the corporation. A consolidation or merger of this corporation with or into any other corporation or corporations, or a sale of all or substantially all of the assets of this corporation, shall not be deemed to be a liquidation, dissolution, or winding up within the meaning of this paragraph.

(c) Redemption. Any or all of the Preferred shares of any series may be redeemed at the option of the corporation, by resolution of the Board of Directors adopted at any time, at a price or prices per share fixed for that series, plus an amount equal to all accrued and unpaid dividends on those shares to and including the date fixed for redemption, that sum referred to in this Article V as the "redemption price." If the resolution or resolutions fixing the terms of the Preferred shares of any series shall so provide, the redemption price or prices at which the Preferred shares of that series may be redeemed may vary depending on the time or circumstances of redemption. The resolution fixing the terms of any series may also fix the price or prices at which the shares of that series may be redeemed for the purpose of any sinking fund provided for that series by that resolution. In case of the redemption of fewer than all Preferred shares of a particular series at the time outstanding, the shares of the series to be redeemed shall be selected by the corporation pro rata or by lot [or specify other method or state that manner or method of selecting shares to be redeemed shall be determined by approval of or in discretion of Board of Directors (see Corp. Code § 402(b))]. Fewer than all of the Preferred shares at any time outstanding may not be redeemed until all dividends accrued and in arrears on all Preferred shares outstanding shall have been paid for all past dividend periods.

The corporation shall give notice of any redemption as provided in this subparagraph (c). The notice of redemption shall set forth the series of Preferred shares or the part of any series of Preferred shares to be redeemed, the date fixed for redemption, the redemption price, if the shares are convertible, the then-current conversion price (as defined with respect to the convertible shares) and the date of termination of the right to convert, and, if the shares are certificated securities, the place or places at which the shareholders may obtain payment of the redemption price on surrender of their share certificates [or, if shares are uncertificated, describe different procedure for payment of redemption price].

[Add following sentence if notice will be published. Publication is not required, but notice by publication, as described in the following sentence, is expressly authorized by statute (see Corp. Code § 509(b)):]

Notice of redemption shall be given by the corporation by causing a notice of redemption to be published in a newspaper of general circulation in the county in which the principal executive office of the corporation is located at least once a week for two successive weeks, in each instance on any day of the week, commencing not earlier than 60 nor later than 20 days before the date fixed for redemption.

[CONTINUE]

The corporation shall [also] mail a copy of the notice, postage prepaid, to each holder of record of shares to be redeemed as of the date of mailing or as of a record date lawfully fixed, addressed to the holder at the holder's address appearing on the books of the corporation or given to the corporation for the purpose of notice, of if no such address appears or is given, at the place where the principal executive office of the corporation is located, not earlier than 60 nor later than 20 days before the date fixed for redemption. Failure to comply with this paragraph shall not invalidate the redemption of shares.

On or after the date fixed for redemption and stated in the notice, each holder of Preferred shares called for redemption shall, if the shares are certificated, surrender the certificate evidencing those shares to the corporation at the place designated in the notice and shall then be entitled to receive payment of the redemption price. If less than all shares represented by any surrendered certificate are redeemed, a new certificate shall be issued representing the unredeemed shares. If the notice of redemption shall have been duly given, and if on the date fixed for redemption funds necessary for the redemption shall be available, then, notwithstanding that the certificates evidencing any Preferred shares so called for redemption shall not have been surrendered, the dividends with respect to the shares so called for redemption shall cease to accrue after the date fixed for redemption and all rights with respect to the shares so called for redemption shall after that date cease and terminate, excepting only the right of the holders to receive the redemption price without interest on surrender of their certificates, if the Preferred shares are certificated.

If, on or prior to the date fixed for redemption of Preferred shares, the corporation deposits with any bank or trust company in California, as a trust fund, (i) a sum sufficient to redeem, on the date fixed for redemption, (ii) in the case of the redemption of uncertificated securities, an officer's certificate (as defined below) setting forth the holders of Preferred shares registered on the books of the corporation and the number of shares held by each, and (iii) irrevocable instructions and authority to the bank or trust company to publish the notice of redemption of Preferred shares (or to complete publication if it has previously been commenced) and to pay, on or after the date fixed for redemption or prior to redemption, the redemption price of the shares to their respective holders on the surrender of their share certificates in the case of certificated securities, then from and after the date of the deposit (although prior to the date fixed for redemption) the shares so called shall be redeemed and dividends on those shares shall cease to accrue after the date fixed for redemption. "Officer's Certificate", as used in this paragraph (c), means a certificate signed and verified by the Board Chairperson or the President or any Vice-President and by the Secretary, the Chief Financial Officer, the Treasurer, or any Assistant Secretary or Assistant Treasurer of the corporation. The deposit shall constitute full payment of the shares to their holders, and from and after the date of the deposit, the shares shall no longer be outstanding, and the holders of those shares shall cease to be shareholders with respect to those shares and shall have no rights with respect to those shares, except the right to receive from the bank or trust company payment of the redemption price of the shares without interest, on surrender of their certificates if the shares redeemed are certificated and without such surrender if the shares redeemed are uncertificated, and any rights of conversion that may beprovided for those shares in the resolution fixing their terms. Any funds so deposited on account of the redemption price of Preferred shares that are convertible and are converted after the making of that deposit shall be repaid to the corporation promptly on the conversion of those Preferred shares. Any interest accrued on any funds so deposited shall be the property of, and paid to, the corporation. If the holders of Preferred shares so called for redemption shall not, at the end of six years from the date fixed for redemption, have claimed any funds deposited, the bank or trust company shall pay over to the corporation the unclaimed funds, and the bank or trust company shall from that time be relieved of all responsibility to those holders, and those holders shall look only to the corporation for payment of the redemption price.

(d) Application to Other Junior Shares. Preferences of Preferred shares over Common shares shall also apply to any shares ("other junior shares") that may be subsequently authorized and that are junior to the Preferred shares as to dividends or assets, and all prohibitions, limitations, or restrictions on the declaration or payment of any dividends on, the making of any distribution of assets on, or the application of any assets to the purchase, redemption, or other acquisition of, Common shares shall correspondingly apply to similar action in respect of other junior shares.

(e) Excepted Transactions. The provisions of this Article V shall not be deemed to restrict or prohibit (i) the declaration or payment of dividends consisting solely of Common shares or other junior shares, (ii) subject to any contrary provisions established by the Board of Directors in fixing the rights and preferences of any series of Preferred shares, the purchase, redemption or other acquisition of Common shares or other junior shares that is made by the application of a sum not greater than the net proceeds received from the issuance of Common shares or other junior shares, or (iii) an acquisition of Common shares or other junior shares through the issuance of Common shares or other junior shares in exchange for those shares.

(f) Voting Rights. Except as in this Article V otherwise expressly provided or as otherwise provided by law, the holders of Common shares shall have and possess the exclusive right to notice of shareholders' meetings and the exclusive voting rights and powers and the holders of Preferred shares shall not be entitled to notice of any shareholders' meetings or to vote on the election of directors or on any other matter. If at any time dividends on any series of Preferred shares shall _____ [be in arrears in an amount at least equal to eight quarterly dividends (whether consecutive or not), then, until all arrears in dividends on the Preferred shares shall have been paid and the full dividend on the Preferred shares for the then current quarterly dividend period shall have been declared and paid or set apart for payment or fail to be paid in a timely manner as required by these articles eight times, whether or not subsequently paid], the holders of _____[Preferred shares then outstanding or specify minimum number of preferred shares outstanding in order for preferred shares to have this right] shall be entitled, voting as a class, to elect the smallest number of directors that will constitute a majority of the authorized number of directors and the holders of Common shares then outstanding shall be entitled, voting as a class, to elect the remaining directors. The directors elected by the holders of Preferred shares voting as a class pursuant to this paragraph (f) shall be subject to removal only by the vote of the holders of Preferred shares so long as the right of the holders of Preferred shares voting as a class to elect directors shall continue.

(g) Application to Subsidiaries. The corporation shall not suffer or permit a subsidiary to purchase, redeem, or otherwise acquire for value Common shares or other junior shares of the corporation unless those shares could be acquired by the corporation itself in compliance with this Article V.

[Optional Provisions:]

VI. Additional Provisions

[The following provisions may be included in the articles. Provisions described in paragraphs (a)-(j) below must be expressly provided in the articles to be effective, except that for a "close corporation", the provisions may instead be included in a shareholders' agreement (see Corp. Code § 204(a); see also § 3.202 [1][g]). This same requirement applies to any provision that limits or restricts the business in which the corporation may engage or the powers that the corporation may exercise or both (see instructions at bottom of Article II, above).]

(a) _____ [If shares are to be assessable, include provision that descrives terms and conditions of assessments (see, e.g., § 3.260)].

(b) _____ [If shareholders are to be granted preemptive rights to subscribe to any or all issues of shares or securities, describe preemptive rights (see, e.g., § 3.262)].

(c) _____ [If shareholders will be required to possess special qualifications, describe specifie qualifications (see, e.g., § 3.263)].

(d) _____ [If corporation's existence is to be limited to a specified date, insert appropriate provision to that effect (see, e.g., § 3.300)].

(e) _____ [If the vote of a larger proportion or of all the shares of any class or series, or the vote or quorum for taking action of a larger proportion all of the directors, than is otherwise required by the General Corporation Law (e.g., a requirement that certain matters be approved by more than a majority of the authorized number of directors or that a quorum be larger than a majority) is to be required for any or all corporate actions, describe specific requirements (see, e.g., §§ 3.270, 3.287, and 3.288)].

(f) _____ [If the holders of any evidences of indebtedness, issued or to be issued by the corporation, are to have the right to vote in the election of directors or on any other matters on which shareholders may vote, describe those rights (see, e.g., § 3.275)].

(g) _____ [If shareholders are to have right to determine consideration for which shares are to be issued, describe those specific rights (see, e.g., § 3.261)].

(h) _____ [If shareholder approval will be required for any corporate action that is not otherwise required under the General Corporation Law, specify specific requirements (see, e.g., § 3.271)].

(i) _____ [If personal liability of directors for monetary damages is to be limited, insert appropriate provision to that effect (see, e.g., § 3.280)].

(j) _____ [If corporation will be authorized to indemnify its agents to fullest extent permitted under state law, insert provision to that effect (see, e.g., § 3.281)].

(k) _____ [If there are to be any restrictions on the right to transfer or hypothecate shares of any class or classes, describe specific restrictions (see, e.g., § 3.264)].

(l) _____ [Include any other desired provisions, not in conflict with law, for the management of the business and for the conduct of corporate affairs, including any desired provision that is required or permitted by the General Corporation Law to be stated in the corporation's bylaws (see, e.g., §§ 3.272-3.274, 3.282-3.289)].

[Optional:]

VII. Initial Directors

[If desired, name initial directors and set forth their addresses in this separately numbered article (see § 3.284 for illustrative provision). If directors are so named, each named person must execute and acknowledge articles (see § 3.284 for signature lines and form of acknowledgment)].

_____ [signature]

§ 3.210 Transmittal Letter for Filing Articles of Incorporation With Secretary of State

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a transmittal letter that may be submitted with articles of incorporation sent by mail for filing with the Secretary of State. It requests the Secretary of State's office to file the original articles, and certify and return the enclosed copies. Format, execution, and filing requirements for the articles are more fully discussed in § 3.200[1][e]-[g].

[b] Fees

The filing fee for articles of incorporation is $100 [see Code § 12186(c), (d)]. Two copies of the articles will be certified without charge; additional copies may be certified on prepayment of a nominal charge when submitted with the original. For expedited processing of articles delivered in person, over the counter, a special handling fee must be remitted by separate check; the special handling fee will be retained regardless of whether or not the articles are accepted for filing [Secretary of State's information packet; see § 3.121].

Although corporations are subject to the minimum franchise tax [see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 23151, 23153(d)], the requirement that the annual minimum franchise tax must be prepaid now applies only to credit unions [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 23221]. For further discussion of the calculation of the tax, see the note to § 3.121, P 6.

§ 3.211 Certificate of Consent of Corporation to Act as Agent for Service of Process for Another Corporation [Corp. Code § 1505]--Secretary of State Form

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is the Secretary of State's official form for a certificate of consent by a corporation to act as the agent for service of process for another corporation or entity. The agent corporation must file this certificate with the Secretary of State, together with the required filing fee [see Corp. Code § 108; see Code § 12186(p)], before any other corporation or other entity may designate it as agent [Corp. Code § 1505(a)]. A corporation (domestic or foreign) may not file this certificate unless it is currently authorized to engage in business in California and is in good standing on the records of the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 1505(c)]. When a corporation files the required "Statement by Domestic Stock Corporation" [see Corp. Code § 1502; see also § 3.141] subsequent to its incorporation, it may not designate a corporation as its agent for service of process unless the certificate set forth below has been previously filed by the agent corporation and is still in effect [see Corp. Code §§ 1502(b), 1505(a)].

ELECTRONIC FORMS NOTE

Electronic copies of this form that may be printed out and filled in for filing can be obtained at the official website of the California Secretary of State, Business Programs Division, which is located at http://www.sos.ca.gov/business/bpd_forms.htm#corp. You may also obtain a copy of this form via email by contacting Matthew Bender & Co. at (800) 424-0651, ext. 3405, or emailing us at cal.custquest@bender.com and requesting an electronic copy of CLF Form 3.211. Please be sure to include your email address along with your request and we will provide the form via return email. To view and print these forms, your computer system will need Adobe Acrobat Reader version 3.0 or higher.

[b] Filing Procedures

The original and at least two copies of the certificate should be included with the submittal for filing. The Secretary of State will certify two copies of the filed certificate without charge, provided that the copies are submitted to the Secretary of State with the original to be filed. Any additional copies submitted with the original will be certified upon request and payment of the applicable certification fee.

Certificates pursuant to Corp. Code § 1505 are not filed in the branch offices of the Secretary of State, but rather must be mailed or hand delivered to the Sacramento office. A $15.00 special handling fee is applicable for processing documents delivered in person at the public counter in the Sacramento Office. The special handling fee must be remitted by separate check and will be retained whether the documents are filed or rejected. The special handling fee does not apply to documents submitted by mail. Preclearance or expedited filing of eligible corporate documents can be requested in a specified time frame, for an additional fee (in lieu of the special handling fee).

The Secretary of State's office requests that reference to the corporation's number be made when submitting documents for filing.

[c] Required Contents of Certificate

The certificate must contain all of the following information [Corp. Code § 1505(a)]:

- The complete address of the corporate agent's office or offices in California at which the entity designating it as agent may be served with process.

- The name of each person employed by the corporate agent at each designated office who is authorized to take delivery of a copy of process.

- The agent's consent that delivery to any designated employee at a designated office will constitute delivery of any such copy to it, as its agent.

The certificate must be executed in the name of the corporation by a corporate officer [Corp. Code § 1505(a)].

[d] Supplemental Filings

A corporation that has filed this certificate may subsequently file any number of supplemental certificates, provided the supplement certificates contain all the information required for the original certificate [see [b], above]. A filed supplemental certificate supersedes the original and all previous supplemental certificates [Corp. Code § 1505(b)].

[e] Resignation of Agent

An agent designated for service of process may file a signed and acknowledged statement of resignation as agent, which will terminate the agent's authority to act in that capacity. The Secretary of State will mail written notice of the resignation to the corporation at its principal executive office [Corp. Code § 1503(a)]. For an illustration of the Secretary of State's official form (form RA) for resignation of an agent for service of process, see Ch. 7, Corporate Records and Reports, § 7.209. Under regulations adopted by the Secretary of State, the resignation of an agent may also be effective if the agent disclaims having been properly appointed as the agent [see Corp. Code § 1503(b); 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 21906].

[f] Designation of New Agent

If the agent for service of process is a natural person who dies, resigns, or no longer resides in California, or if the agent is a corporate agent that resigns, dissolves, withdraws from the state, forfeits its right to transact intrastate business, has its corporate rights, powers, and privileges suspended, or ceases to exist, the designating corporation must designate a new agent on the form prescribed by the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 1504; see Corp. Code § 1502; see also § 3.141 (contents of required form)]. For an illustration of Secretary of State Form SO-200C, which is used to designate a new agent, see Ch. 7, Corporate Records and Reports, § 7.207.

§ 3.220 Business Purpose as Insurer [Corp. Code § 202(b)(1)(i), (3)]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This provision must be included as a separate article in the articles of incorporation for a corporation that is subject to the Insurance Code as an insurer [see Corp. Code § 202(b)(3)]. The first sentence of the provision is the general business purpose statement required to be included in the articles of incorporation for any corporation formed under the General Corporation Law, except a professional corporation or a corporation engaged in the banking or trust company business [see Corp. Code § 202(b)(1)(i)]. The second sentence of the provision is the additional statement required for a corporation subject to the Insurance Code as an insurer; it merely states that the business of the corporation is to be an insurer [Corp. Code § 202(b)(3)]. Other than these two required sentences, no additional statement with respect to the purpose or powers of the corporation may be included in the articles except by way of limitation, or except as expressly required by any law of California other than the General Corporation Law or any federal or other statute or regulation (including the Internal Revenue Code and its regulations as a condition of acquiring or maintaining a particular status for tax purposes) [Corp. Code § 202(b); see Corp. Code § 207 (enumeration of general corporate powers)]. Any provision that limits or restricts the business in which the corporation may engage or the power that it may exercise, or both, in order to be effective, must be included in the articles, or in the case of a close corporation [see Corp. Code § 158], a shareholders' agreement [Corp. Code § 204(a)(6); but see Corp. Code § 208(a) (limitations on enforcement in third party actions)]. For provisions that may be added to this form to restrict the corporation's business activities or its powers, see §§ 3.230 and 3.231.

For an article provision to be used by most corporations to state a general business purpose, see Article II in § 3.201[2] [see also § 3.200[1][b][ii] (discussion of requirements)]. For illustrative purpose provisions for a corporation subject to the banking law, see §§ 3.221 through 3.224. For an example of a purpose clause for a professional corporation [see Corp. Code § 202(b)(1)(ii)], see Ch. 12A, Professional Corporations .

[b] Special Filing Requirements

The Secretary of State will not file articles in which the business is to be an insurer unless the certificate of the Insurance Commissioner approving the corporate name is attached to the articles [Corp. Code § 201.5]. Otherwise, the usual filing requirements for articles of incorporation apply [see § 3.200[1][e]-[g]].

[2] FORM

Business Purpose as Insurer [Corp. Code § 202(b)(1)(i), (3)]
_____ [Article number]

The purpose of the corporation is to engage in any lawful act or activity for which a corporation may be organized under the General Corporation Law of California other than the banking business, the trust company business, or the practice of a profession permitted to be incorporated by the California Corporations Code. This corporation will engage in the insurance business and is subject to the Insurance Code of the State of California as an insurer.

§ 3.221 Purpose Clause for Commercial Bank Not Authorized to Engage in Trust Business [Corp. Code § 202(b)(2); Fin. Code § 600(a)]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a "purpose" clause that must be included in the articles of incorporation for a commercial bank that is not authorized to engage in the trust business [see Fin. Code § 600(a)]. Any corporation that is subject to the Banking Law [see Corp. Code § 163 (description of corporations subject to Banking Law)] must include in its articles a statement of purpose prescribed by the Banking Law, rather than the purpose clause mandated for general business corporations under the General Corporation Law [Corp. Code § 202(b)(2); see, e.g., § 3.201[2], art. II]. Articles must also conform to specific requirements of the Banking Law [see [b], below].

The clause below is mandated by the Banking Law for commercial banks that will not engage in the trust business. If the commercial bank being incorporated will engage in the trust business, a different clause is required [see § 3.222]. A different clause also is required for a corporation engaged in the business of international and foreign banking and other international and foreign financial operations [see Fin. Code § 3502].

[b] Applicability of Banking Law

The General Corporation Law is applicable to banks and trust companies [see Fin. Code § 101(b)] except when inconsistent with applicable provisions of the Financial Code [see Fin. Code § 101; see also Corp. Code §§ 102, 163, 206]. Some of these provisions, which are not covered in this chapter, extend to the articles of incorporation and structure of the corporation. Other important areas in which the Banking Law supersedes the provisions of the General Corporation Law include distributions to shareholders [see Fin. Code §§ 640-646], denial of close corporation status [see Fin. Code § 351], and loans to insiders [see Fin. Code §§ 780-787].

Prior approval of the articles is required to form a commercial banking or trust corporation [Fin. Code § 400; see Fin. Code § 350] or an international or foreign banking or other financing corporation [Fin. Code § 3503; see Fin. Code § 3535]. The Secretary of State will not file articles setting forth a name in which "bank," "trust," "trustee," or related words appear, unless a certificate of approval is attached to the articles. This prohibition does not apply to the articles of any corporation subject to the Banking Law on which is endorsed the approval of the Commissioner of Financial Institutions [Corp. Code § 201(a)]. Requirements for filing articles with the Secretary of State are covered in § 3.200[1][e] through [i].

§ 3.225 Purpose Clause for Industrial Bank Also Authorized to Engage in Trust Business [Corp. Code § 202(b)(2); Fin. Code § 600(d)]

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a "purpose" clause that must be included in the articles of incorporation for a corporation that is an industrial bank authorized to engage in trust business [see Fin. Code § 600(d)]. Any corporation that is subject to the Banking Law [see Corp. Code § 163 (description of corporations subject to Banking Law); see also § 3.221[1][b]] must include in its articles a statement of purpose prescribed by the Banking Law, rather than the business purpose clause mandated for general business corporations under the General Corporation Law [Corp. Code § 202(b)(2); see, e.g., § 3.201[2], art. II].

§ 3.230 Restriction on Corporate Business Purpose or Activities

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The provision in this form may be included in the articles of incorporation to restrict or limit the business in which a corporation is otherwise permitted by law to engage [see Corp. Code §§ 202(b), 204(a)(6); see also [b], below (permitted business purposes and activities in absence of restriction or limitation)]. If used, the provision should be used in conjunction with the appropriate "business purpose" clause required by statute to be included in the articles of incorporation [see Corp. Code § 202(b); see, e.g., § 3.201[2], art. II (general business purpose clause)]. Other than the mandated business purpose clause, no additional statement with respect to the purpose or powers of the corporation may be included in the articles except by way of limitation (as illustrated by this form) or except as expressly required by any law of California other than the General Corporation Law or any federal or other statute or regulation (including the Internal Revenue Code and its regulations as a condition of acquiring or maintaining a particular status for tax purposes) [Corp. Code § 202(b)]. In order to be effective, a provision that limits or restricts the business in which the corporation may engage (this form) or the powers that the corporation may exercise [see § 3.231], or both, must be included in the articles, or in the case of a close corporation [see Corp. Code § 158], a shareholders' agreement [Corp. Code § 204(a)(6); but see Corp. Code §§ 204(a) (enforceability as between parties to lawful agreement not affected), 208(a) (limitations applicable to third party actions)].

This provision may or may not be used in conjunction with a provision that limits the powers of a corporation [see § 3.231].

[b] Permitted Business Activities

Subject to any limitation contained in the articles (for example, this form) and to compliance with any other applicable laws, any corporation other than a corporation subject to the Banking Law [see Corp. Code § 163 (definition)], or a professional corporation [see Ch. 12A, Professional Corporations] may engage in any business activity. A professional corporation or a corporation subject to the Banking Law may engage in any business activity not prohibited by the respective statutes and regulations to which it is subject [Corp. Code § 206].

[2] FORM

Restriction on Corporate Business Purpose or Activities

[Add following to end of Article that contains corporation's mandatory "purpose" clause (see, e.g., Article II in § 3.201[2]):]

Notwithstanding the general business purpose of the corporation stated in these Articles of Incorporation, the corporation may not engage in the business of _____ [describe specific restriction, including type of business, and if desired, time period to which restriction applies, e.g., manufacturing, wholesaling, or retailing baseball caps or other similar headgear in the City and County of San Francisco, California at any time before December 31, 2010].

§ 3.231 Specific Restrictions on Corporate Powers

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This provision may be included in the articles of incorporation to restrict or limit the powers that a corporation is otherwise entitled by law to exercise [see Corp. Code §§ 202(b), 204(a)(6); see also [b], below (powers of corporation in absence of restriction or limitation)]. If used, this provision (or a similar one) should be used in conjunction with the appropriate "business purpose" clause required by statute to be included in the articles of incorporation [see Corp. Code § 202(b); see, e.g., § 3.201[2], art. II (general business purpose clause)]. Other than the mandated business purpose clause, no additional statement with respect to the purpose or powers of the corporation may be included in the articles except by way of limitation (as illustrated by this form) or except as expressly required by any law of California other than the General Corporation Law or any federal or other statute or regulation (including the Internal Revenue Code and its regulations as a condition of acquiring or maintaining a particular status for tax purposes) [Corp. Code § 202(b)]. In order to be effective, a provision that limits or restricts the powers that the corporation may exercise or the business in which the corporation may engage [see § 3.230], or both, must be included in the articles, or in the case of a close corporation [see Corp. Code § 158], a shareholders' agreement [Corp. Code § 204(a)(6); but see Corp. Code §§ 204(a) (enforceability as between parties to lawful agreement not affected), 208(a) (limitations applicable to third party actions)].

This provision may or may not be used in conjunction with a provision that limits the purpose or business activities of the corporation [see § 3.230].

[b] Powers of Corporation

Subject to any limitations contained in the articles of incorporation and to compliance with other provisions of the General Corporation Law and any other applicable laws, a corporation has all of the powers of a natural person in carrying out its business activities. These powers include, but are not limited to, the following powers [Corp. Code § 207]:

- Adopt, use, and, at will, alter a corporate seal, but failure to affix a seal does not affect the validity of any instrument;

- Adopt, amend, and repeal bylaws;

- Qualify to do business in any other state, territory, dependency, or foreign country;

- Subject to statutory restrictions [see Corp. Code § 510], issue, purchase, redeem, receive, take or otherwise acquire, own, hold, sell, lend, exchange, transfer or otherwise dispose of, pledge, use and otherwise deal in and with its own shares, bonds, debentures, and other securities;

- Make donations, regardless of specific corporate benefit, for the public welfare or for community fund, hospital, charitable, educational, scientific, civic, or similar purposes;

- Pay pensions, and establish and carry out pension, profit-sharing, share bonus, share purchase, share option, savings, thrift and other retirement, incentive and benefit plans, trusts and provisions for any or all of the directors, officers and employees of the corporation or any of its subsidiary or affiliated corporations, and indemnify and purchase and maintain insurance on behalf of any fiduciary of those plans, trusts, or provisions;

- Subject to specific statutory restrictions [see Corp. Code § 315], assume obligations, enter into contracts, including contracts of guaranty or suretyship, incur liabilities, borrow and lend money and otherwise use its credit, and secure any of its obligations, contracts or liabilities by mortgage, pledge or other encumbrance of all or any part of its property, franchises and income; and

- Participate with others in any partnership, joint venture or other association, transaction or arrangement of any kind, whether or not that participation involves sharing or delegation of control with or to others.

Specific Restrictions on Corporate Powers

[Add following to end of Article that contains corporation's mandatory "purpose" clause (see, e.g., Article II in § 3.201[2]):]

Notwithstanding the general powers conferred on a corporation by the General Corporation Law or any other law, the corporation is not authorized to and shall not _____ [describe specific restriction, e.g., conduct or engage in business or qualify to do business in any other state, territory, or dependency of the United States or foreign country].

§ 3.240 Rights, Preferences, Privileges, and Restrictions: Preferred Shares Issuable in Series--Certain Terms for All Series Fixed by Articles, Other Terms of Each Series to Be Fixed by Directors

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form may be included in articles of incorporation, as a separate article, to provide for the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on the corporation's respective classes or series of shares [see Corp. Code § 202(e)(3); see also [b], below]. Use of this form assumes that two classes of shares are authorized, common and preferred, and this form must be used in conjunction with a provision to that effect that also states the number of shares authorized for each class [see, e.g., § 3.203 [2], art. IV; see also [b], below].

This form provides that preferred shares are issuable in series. Certain terms for all series of shares are specified, but the board of directors is granted authority to fix other terms for each series [see Corp. Code § 202(e); see also [b], below]. In this form, preferred shares have cumulative, nonparticipating dividends [see P (a), below; see also § 3.243], have a liquidation preference [see P (b), below; see also § 3.246], and are redeemable at any time [see P (c), below; see also § 3.249]. This form does not contain any reference to, or limitation on, voting rights. Under these circumstances, preferred shares and common shares would both have voting rights and the right to receive notice of meetings [see Corp. Code § 700(a)]. For a provision that may be used to eliminate or restrict these rights with respect to preferred shares, see § 3.203 [2], Article V, Paragraph (f).

This form also does not contain any provisions for a sinking fund, conversion rights, or protective provisions. Because these matters are likely to vary with each series, they are usually covered in a subsequent board resolution and certificate of determination [see [b], below; see also § 3.310]. However, illustrative provisions are included in this chapter that may be included in the articles, or with slight modification in a certificate of determination [see § 3.250 (sinking fund); see also §§ 3.251, 3.252 (conversion rights), 3.255 (protective provisions)].

The provisions in this form are designated Article V only to facilitate understanding that the Article contained in this form is an alternative to other illustrative provisions designated Article V in this chapter. For example, Article V in the complete set of articles set forth in § 3.203[2] also authorizes shares issuable in series, but differs from this form in that its provisions fix terms of the first series (and certain provisions relating to all series) and authorizes the directors only to fix the terms of additional series. The provision in § 3.241[2] (also designated Article V and that also authorizes two classes with preferred shares issuable in series) does not fix any terms for the series, but rather grants the broadest possible authority to the directors to fix the terms of each series. At the other end of the spectrum, the provision in § 3.242[2] (also designated Article V for purposes of reference) may be used if all terms of a class or series will be stated in the articles and no authority will be granted to directors to determine those matters.

[b] Mandatory Information Regarding Corporation's Stock Structure

Articles of incorporation must contain certain information regarding the corporation's stock structure. If the corporation is authorized to issue only one class of shares, only the total number of shares must be specified in the articles [Corp. Code § 202(d); see § 3.201[2], art. IV]. If a corporation is authorized to issue more than one class of shares, of if any class of shares is to have two or more series, the articles must set forth the following [Corp. Code § 202(e)]:

- The total number of shares of each class the corporation is authorized to issue, and the total number of shares of each series that the corporation is authorized to issue or a statement that the board of directors is authorized to fix the number of shares of any such series;

- The designation of each class, and the designation of each series or a statement that the board of directors may determine the designation of any such series; and

- The rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on the respective classes or series of shares or their holders, or a statement that the board of directors [see Corp. Code § 155], within any limits and restrictions stated, may determine or alter the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on any wholly unissued class of shares or any wholly unissued series of any class of shares [Corp. Code § 202(e); see § 3.203].

If the articles set forth the designation and number of shares of one or more series within a class, the stated number of shares for all series within that class may be less than, but must not exceed, the stated number of shares for the class [Corp. Code § 203.5(a)]. Under those same circumstances, the articles may authorize the board to amend the articles to increase or decrease (but not below the number of shares of the series then outstanding) the number of shares of a series [Corp. Code § 203.5(b)]. If the articles authorize the board to fix the number of shares for any series, the articles may also authorize the board, within any limits and restrictions stated in the articles or in the board resolution originally fixing the number of shares constituting any series, to increase or decrease (but not below the number of shares of that series then outstanding) the number of shares of any such series subsequent to the issue of shares of that series. If the number of shares of a series is so decreased, the shares constituting the decrease resume the status they had prior to the adoption of the resolution originally fixing the number of shares of that series [Corp. Code § 202(e)(3)].

If the articles authorize a class of shares that is stated to be issuable in series [see [2], below], the articles must include either the designation and number of shares for at least one series within that class or an authorization of common shares [Corp. Code § 203.5(c)].

For a discussion of additional general considerations for drafting stock structure provisions for the articles, see § 3.203[1].

[2] FORM

Rights, Preferences, Privileges, and Restrictions: Preferred Shares Issuable in Series--Certain Terms for All Series Fixed by Articles, Other Terms of Each Series to Be Fixed by Directors
V. Preferred Shares

The Preferred shares may be issued from time to time in one or more series. The Board of Directors is authorized to fix the number of any series of Preferred shares and to determine the designation of any series. The Board of Directors is also authorized, except as to matters fixed as to Preferred shares in this Article V, to determine or alter the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on any wholly unissued series of Preferred shares and, to increase or decrease (but not below the number of shares of that series then outstanding) the number of shares of any series after the issue of shares of that series. All Preferred shares shall have the following rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions:

(a) Dividend Rights. The holders of the Preferred shares of each series shall be entitled to receive, when and as declared by the Board of Directors, out of any assets at the time legally available, dividends in cash at the respective rates fixed for that series, and no more. Those dividends shall be payable quarterly on the _____ day of March, June, September, and December in each year to holders of Preferred shares of record on a date not more than 60 nor fewer than 10 days preceding each respective payment date as specified by the Board of Directors or, if not so specified, as provided by law, except that, preceding any of such dates, the initial dividend thereon may be paid on the next succeeding quarterly dividend payment date. Those dividends shall accrue and be cumulative as follows: As to shares issued when no other shares of the same series are outstanding, from the date of issuance; as to shares issued when other shares of the same series are outstanding, from such date as shall make the dividend rights per share of the shares being issued uniform with the dividend rights per share of the shares then outstanding of that series, excluding rights to dividends declared and directed to be paid to shareholders of record as of a date preceding the date of issuance of the shares being issued. Dividends on Preferred shares shall accrue at the respective rates fixed for those shares whether or not those dividends are earned. Each Preferred share shall rank with each other Preferred share, irrespective of series, on a parity, proportionately, with respect to dividends at the respective rates fixed for that series, and no dividends shall be declared or paid or set apart for payment on the Preferred shares of any series unless at the same time a dividend, bearing the same proportion to the applicable dividend accrual, shall also be declared or paid or set apart for payment, as the case may be, on the Preferred shares of each other series then outstanding. An accumulation of dividends on Preferred shares shall not bear interest.

Dividends shall be declared and paid in full for all previous quarterly dividend periods, and declared and paid or set apart for payment in full for the current quarterly dividend period, before the corporation makes any distribution (as defined below) to the holders of common shares. "Distribution" in this paragraph (a) means the transfer of cash or property without consideration, whether by way of dividend or otherwise (except a dividend in shares of the corporation that are junior to the Preferred shares as to dividends or assets) or the purchase or redemption of shares of the corporation for cash or property (except such junior shares), including any such transfer, purchase, or redemption by a subsidiary of the corporation. The time of any distribution by way of dividend shall be the date the dividend is declared, and the time of any distribution by purchase or redemption of shares or otherwise than by dividend shall be the day cash or property is transferred by the corporation, whether or not pursuant to a contract of an earlier date; provided that when a debt obligation that is a security is issued in exchange for shares, the time of the distribution is the date when the corporation acquires the shares in that exchange [or omit this sentence and leave this matter to operation of law (see Corp. Code § 166)]. At any time after all dividends on the Preferred shares of all series for all previous quarterly dividend periods shall have been declared and paid in full and dividends on the outstanding Preferred shares of all series for the current quarterly dividend period have been declared and paid or set apart for payment in full, distributions (as defined above) may be made to the holders of Common shares out of any assets at the time legally available for that purpose, subject, however, to the observance of any limitations then existing by reason of paragraphs (d) or (e) of this Article V.

(b) Liquidation Rights. In the event of any voluntary or involuntary liquidation, dissolution, or winding up of the corporation, the holders of the Preferred shares of each series shall be entitled to receive from the assets of the corporation such preferential amount in cash as may be fixed for the series in redemption of those shares [or specify other amount] and, a further preferential amount in cash equal to all accrued and unpaid dividends on those shares to and including the date that payment is made available to the holders of Preferred shares. Those preferential amounts shall be paid or set apart for payment before the payment or setting apart for payment of any amount for, or the distribution of any assets of the corporation to, the holders of Common shares in connection with the liquidation, dissolution, or winding up. If the resolution or resolutions fixing the terms of the Preferred shares of any series shall so provide, the preferential amount payable to the holders of Preferred shares of the series in the event of any liquidation, dissolution, or winding up of the corporation may vary depending on the time of liquidation, dissolution, or winding up. With respect to the respective preferential amounts fixed for the series payable on any distribution of assets by way of liquidation, dissolution, or winding up of the corporation, each Preferred share shall rank with each other Preferred share, irrespective of series, in parity proportionate to those respective preferential amounts. No such amounts shall be paid or set apart for payment on the Preferred shares of any series unless at the same time amounts in like proportion to the respective preferential amounts to which the Preferred shares of each other series are entitled shall be paid or set apart for payment on each other series then outstanding. _____ [After the payment or the setting apart for payment to the holders of Preferred shares of the preferential amounts so payable to them, the holders of Common shares shall be entitled to receive, ratably, all remaining assets of the corporation or, for "participating" preferred shares: The holders of Common and Preferred shares shall be entitled to receive, ratably on a share-by-share basis], all remaining assets of the corporation. A consolidation or merger of this corporation with or into any other corporation or corporations, or a sale of all or substantially all of the assets of this corporation, shall not be deemed to be a liquidation, dissolution, or winding up within the meaning of this paragraph.

(c) Redemption. Any or all of the Preferred shares of any series may be redeemed at the option of the corporation, by resolution of the Board of Directors adopted at any time or from time to time, at a price or prices per share fixed for that series, plus an amount equal to all accrued and unpaid dividends on those shares to and including the date fixed for redemption, that sum referred to in this Article V as the "redemption price." If the resolution or resolutions fixing the terms of the Preferred shares of any series shall so provide, the redemption price or prices at which the Preferred shares of that series may be redeemed may vary depending on the time or circumstances of redemption. The resolution fixing the terms of any series may also fix the price or prices at which the shares of that series may be redeemed for the purpose of any sinking fund provided for that series by that resolution. In case of the redemption of fewer than all Preferred shares of a particular series at the time outstanding, the shares of the series to be redeemed shall be selected by the corporation pro rata or by lot [or specify other method or state that manner or method of selecting shares to be redeemed shall be determined by approval of or in discretion of Board of Directors (see Corp. Code § 402(b))]. Fewer than all of the Preferred shares at any time outstanding may not be redeemed until all dividends accrued and in arrears on all Preferred shares outstanding shall have been paid for all past dividend periods.

The corporation shall give notice of any redemption as provided in this subparagraph (c). The notice of redemption shall set forth the series of Preferred shares or the part of any series of Preferred shares to be redeemed, the date fixed for redemption, the redemption price, if the shares are convertible, the then-current conversion price (as defined with respect to the convertible shares) and the date of termination of the right to convert, and, if the shares are certificated securities, the place or places at which the shareholders may obtain payment of the redemption price on surrender of their share certificates [or, if shares are uncertificated, describe different procedure for payment of redemption price].

[Add following sentence if notice will be published. Publication is not required, but notice by publication, as described in the following sentence, is expressly authorized by statute (see Corp. Code § 509(b)):]

Notice of redemption shall be given by the corporation by causing a notice of redemption to be published in a newspaper of general circulation in the county in which the principal executive office of the corporation is located at least once a week for two successive weeks, in each instance on any day of the week, commencing not earlier than 60 nor later than 20 days before the date fixed for redemption.

[CONTINUE]

The corporation shall [also] mail a copy of the notice, postage prepaid, to each holder of record of shares to be redeemed as of the date of mailing or as of a record date lawfully fixed, addressed to the holder at the holder's address appearing on the books of the corporation or given to the corporation for the purpose of notice, of if no such address appears or is given, at the place where the principal executive office of the corporation is located, not earlier than 60 nor later than 20 days before the date fixed for redemption. Failure to comply with this paragraph shall not invalidate the redemption of shares.

On or after the date fixed for redemption and stated in the notice, each holder of Preferred shares called for redemption shall, if the shares are certificated, surrender the certificate evidencing those shares to the corporation at the place designated in the notice and shall then be entitled to receive payment of the redemption price. If less than all shares represented by any surrendered certificate are redeemed, a new certificate shall be issued representing the unredeemed shares. If the notice of redemption shall have been duly given, and if on the date fixed for redemption funds necessary for the redemption shall be available, then, notwithstanding that the certificates evidencing any Preferred shares so called for redemption shall not have been surrendered, the dividends with respect to the shares so called for redemption shall cease to accrue after the date fixed for redemption and all rights with respect to the shares so called for redemption shall after that date cease and terminate, excepting only the right of the holders to receive the redemption price without interest on surrender of their certificates, if the Preferred shares are certificated.

If, on or prior to the date fixed for redemption of Preferred shares, the corporation deposits with any bank or trust company in California, as a trust fund, (i) a sum sufficient to redeem, on the date fixed for redemption, (ii) in the case of the redemption of uncertificated securities, an officer's certificate (as defined below) setting forth the holders of Preferred shares registered on the books of the corporation and the number of shares held by each, and (iii) irrevocable instructions and authority to the bank or trust company to publish the notice of redemption of Preferred shares (or to complete publication if it has previously been commenced) and to pay, on or after the date fixed for redemption or prior thereto, the redemption price of the shares to their respective holders on the surrender of their share certificates in the case of certificated securities, then from and after the date of the deposit (although prior to the date fixed for redemption) the shares so called shall be redeemed and dividends on those shares shall cease to accrue after the date fixed for redemption. "Officer's Certificate", as used in this Paragraph (c), means a certificate signed and verified by the Board Chairperson or the President or any Vice-President and by the Secretary, the Chief Financial Officer, the Treasurer, or any Assistant Secretary or Assistant Treasurer of the corporation. The deposit shall constitute full payment of the shares to their holders, and from and after the date of the deposit, the shares shall no longer be outstanding, and the holders of those shares shall cease to be shareholders with respect to those shares and shall have no rights with respect to those shares, except the right to receive from the bank or trust company payment of the redemption price of the shares without interest, on surrender of their certificates if the shares redeemed are certificated and without such surrender if the shares redeemed are uncertificated, and any rights of conversion that may be provided for thoe shares in the resolution fixing their terms. Any funds so deposited on account of the redemption price of Preferred shares that are convertible and are converted after the making of that deposit shall be repaid to the corporation promptly on the conversion of those Preferred shares. Any interest accrued on any funds so deposited shall be the property of, and paid to, the corporation. If the holders of Preferred shares so called for redemption shall not, at the end of six years from the date fixed for redemption, have claimed any funds to deposited, the bank or trust company shall pay over to the corporation the unclaimed funds, and the bank or trust company shall from that time be relieved of all responsibility to those holders, and those holders shall look only to the corporation for payment of the redemption price.

(d) Application to Other Junior Shares. Preferences of Preferred shares over Common shares shall also apply to any shares ("other junior shares") hereafter authorized that are junior to the Preferred shares as to dividends or assets, and all prohibitions, limitations, or restrictions on the declaration or payment of any dividends on, the making of any distribution of assets on, or the application of any assets to the purchase, redemption, or other acquisition of, Common shares shall correspondingly apply to similar action in respect of other junior shares.

(e) Excepted Transactions. The provisions of this Article V shall not be deemed to restrict or prohibit (i) the declaration or payment of dividends consisting solely of Common shares or other junior shares, (ii) subject to any contrary provisions established by the Board of Directors in fixing the rights and preferences of any series of Preferred shares, the purchase, redemption or other acquisition of Common shares or other junior shares that is made by the application of a sum not greater than the net proceeds received from the issuance of Common shares or other junior shares, or (iii) an acquisition of Common shares or other junior shares through the issuance of Common shares or other junior shares in exchange for those shares.

(f) Application to Subsidiaries. The corporation shall not suffer or permit a subsidiary to purchase, redeem, or otherwise acquire for value Common shares or other junior shares of the corporation unless those shares could be acquired by the corporation itself in compliance with this Article V.

§ 3.241 Rights, Preferences, Privileges, and Restrictions: Preferred Shares Issuable in Series--Directors Granted Broadest Authority to Fix Term of Any Series

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form may be included, as a separate article, in articles of incorporation for a corporation with two classes of shares (common and preferred) to grant the board of directors authority to issue the preferred shares in series and to fix the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on each series of shares [see Corp. Code § 202(e)(3); see also [b], below]. If used, this form must be used in conjunction with a provision that authorizes two classes of shares, common and preferred, and that also states the number of shares authorized for each class [see, e.g., § 3.203 [2], art. IV; see also [b], below].

The form is designated Article V only for purposes of reference; it is an alternative to certain other illustrative provisions designated Article V in this chapter. For a description of and cross-references to those other illustrative provisions, see § 3.240[1][a].

[b] Authority of Board to Fix Terms Required to be Stated in Articles

If a corporation is authorized to issue more than one class of shares, or if any class of shares is to have two or more series, the designation of each class and the total number of shares authorized for each class must be stated in the articles of incorporation [Corp. Code § 202(e)(1), (2); see § 3.203 [2], art. IV (illustrative provision)]. In addition, the articles must either state the rights, preferences, privileges and restrictions granted to or imposed on the respective classes or series of shares or grant the authority to the board of directors to determine all or some of those matters [see Corp. Code § 202(e)(3)].

The provision below grants maximum authority to the board of directors to determine the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on each series of preferred shares. When these matters are fixed and determined by resolution of the board of directors for a series, a certificate of determination must be filed with the Secretary of State prior to the time shares are issued in that series [Corp. Code § 401]. That certificate, in effect, then becomes a part of the corporation's articles [see Corp. Code § 154]. Requirements for a certificate of determination are discussed in § 3.310.

For further discussion of general considerations and requirements applicable to stock provisions for articles of incorporation, see § 3.203 [1].

Rights, Preferences, Privileges, and Restrictions: Preferred Shares Issuable in Series--Directors Granted Broadest Authority to Fix Term of Any Series

V. Preferred Shares

The Preferred shares may be issued from time to time in one or more series. The Board of Directors is authorized to fix the number of shares of any series of Preferred shares and to determine the designation of any series. The Board of Directors is also authorized to determine or alter the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on any wholly unissued series of Preferred shares and, within the limits and restrictions stated in any resolution or resolutions of the Board of Directors originally fixing the number of shares constituting any series, to increase or decrease (but not below the number of shares of such series then outstanding) the number of shares of any such series subsequent to the issue of shares of that series.

§ 3.242 Rights, Preferences, Privileges, and Restrictions: All Terms of Preferred Class or Series Stated in Articles--Outline Form

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form may be included, as a separate article, in articles of incorporation for a corporation with two classes of shares (common and preferred) to set forth the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on a particular class or series of shares [see Corp. Code § 202(e)(3); see also [b], below]. If used, this form must be used in conjunction with a provision that authorizes two classes of shares, common and preferred, and that also states the number of shares authorized for each class [see, e.g., § 3.203[2], art. IV; see also [b], below].

The form is designated Article V only for purposes of reference; it is an alternative to certain other illustrative provisions designated Article V in this chapter. For a description of and cross-references to those other specific provisions, see § 3.240[1][a].

[b] Terms Required to Be Stated in Articles

If a corporation is authorized to issue more than one class of shares, or if any class of shares is to have two or more series, the designation of each class and the total number of shares authorized for each class must be stated in the articles of incorporation [Corp. Code § 202(e)(1), (2); see § 3.203[2], art. IV (illustrative provision)]. In addition, the articles must either state the rights, preferences, privileges and restrictions granted to or imposed on the respective classes or series of shares or grant the authority to the board of directors to determine all or some of those matters [see Corp. Code § 202(e)(3)].

In contrast to the form in § 3.241, which grants maximum authority to the board of directors to determine these matters, this form should be used if the rights, preferences, privileges and restrictions granted to or imposed on a particular class or series of shares are to be fully set forth in the articles. It lists, in skeleton form, the specific provisions that should be included or considered for inclusion, with a cross-reference to the location where those specific provisions are included in this chapter.

Alternative provisions are included in this chapter that set forth some of the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions for a class or series of shares but grant the board of directors authority to determine other matters [see § 3.203[2], art. V; see also §§ 3.240, 3.241].

For further discussion of general considerations and requirements applicable to stock provisions for articles of incorporation, see § 3.203[1].

§ 3.243 Dividend Provision for Cumulative, Partially Participating Preferred Shares

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a provision that may be included in a corporation's articles to specify the dividend rights for preferred shares; it provides for dividend rights that are cumulative and partially participating [see [c], [e], below]. If used, this provision should be included as a separately designated paragraph in the articles' "preference statement," that is, under the specific article that describes the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on the respective classes or series of shares. A preference statement (in skeleton form) that may be use under these circumstances is set forth in § 3.242[2]. That form lists the other provisions that should also ordinarily be included in the preference statement, for example, provisions for liquidation preferences and redemption rights.

This form must also be used in conjunction with a provision that authorizes two classes of stock, common and preferred, and designates the number of shares in each class [see, e.g., § 3.203[2], art. IV].

For alternative dividend provisions, see §§ 3.244 (cumulative nonparticipating preferred) and 3.245 (noncumulative nonparticipating preferred). Mandatory stock structure provisions required in the articles of incorporation for a corporation with more than one class of shares are discussed in § 3.203[1].

Rather than specify the particular rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions for a class or series of shares, the articles may instead authorize the board of directors to fix all or some of those terms for unissued shares of a class or series [see Corp. Code § 202(e)]. For illustrative article provisions that should be used under those circumstances, see § 3.203[2], Article V; and §§ 3.240 and 3.241.

[b] Authority of Corporation to Pay Dividends

Statutory provisions govern the circumstances under which a corporation or its subsidiaries may make a distribution to the corporation's shareholders [see Corp. Code §§ 500-511]. The term "distribution to its shareholders" includes dividends, other than dividends in shares of the corporation [Corp. Code § 166].

The authority of a corporation to pay dividends depends on its then current financial condition. Dividends may be paid out of retained earnings [see Corp. Code §§ 114, 166, 500(a)], although if sufficient retained earnings are not available, a distribution is still possible provided the corporation meets both a balance sheet and a liquidity test [see Corp. Code § 500(b)]. Any distribution, however, is subject to a solvency test [see Corp. Code § 501]. Other statutory restrictions protect the interests of preferred shareholders with respect to a corporation's distributions to common shareholders [see, e.g., Corp. Code §§ 502, 503; see § 3.255]. Additional restrictions regarding a corporations's declaration of dividends may be included in that corporation's articles or bylaws or in any indenture or other agreement entered into by the corporation [see Corp. Code § 505].

[c] Dividend Cumulative Rights

Preferred stock may have the right to cumulative dividends, that is, the right to receive all arrearages at a specified rate, whether or not earned or declared, before any dividends may be paid to the common shareholders. Cumulative dividend rights are normally required by the Commissioner of Corporations when preferred shares are nonparticipating [see [e], below] and nonconvertible [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.3; see [f], below]. For a provision that provides for noncumulative dividends, see § 3.245.

[d] Dividend Rates and Date of Payment

As illustrated in the form below, the dividend rate for preferred shares may be expressed as a specific sum for a specific period, for example, $2.00 per share per annum. Alternatively, it may be expressed as a specific percentage of a specific sum for a specific period.

Although the dividend rate is annual, the dates for payment may be fixed on a quarterly basis [see [2], first sentence, below] or at other intervals or times determined by the board of directors. Cumulative dividends are generally cumulative from the date of issue, but if preferred shares of the same class or series will be issued over a period of time, the dividends should instead begin to accrue on a fixed date. If it is possible that some of the shares would be issued after a dividend payment date, the time at which dividends begin to accrue should be stated to be the later of either a fixed date or a date to which dividends have been paid on outstanding preferred shares. Optional language is included in the form below to cover these situations.

[e] Dividend Participation Rights

The articles of incorporation should specify: (1) whether or not the preferred shares are entitled to receive additional dividends after their fixed rate is paid, and, if so, (2) when this participation with the common shares begins, and (3) the extent of the participation. In the form below, the preferred shares are partially participating. For provisions in which preferred shares have no participation rights, see §§ 3.244 and 3.245.

If there is to be participation, it may commence immediately or be delayed until the common shares have received a certain amount or percent of dividends (often the same amount or percent granted to the preferred) [see [2], PP 1, 2, below]. The rate or limitations on participation, after participation has commenced, should be specified: (1) full participation equally with common on a share-for-share or dollar value basis; or (2) limited participation up to a specified dollar amount, or a percentage of the total amount to be distributed as dividends.

[f] Requirements of Commissioner of Corporations

For unseasoned corporations [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.001(g)] selling securities pursuant to an open qualification, the Commissioner of Corporations ordinarily requires that preferred shares be convertible into common stock on a fair and equitable basis [see § 3.251] or fully participating and nonredeemable [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.9]. A corporation that proposes to issue preferred shares that are not participating and are not convertible on a fair and equitable basis must ordinarily include in its articles reasonable protective provisions for the preferred shareholders, including when appropriate: (1) cumulative dividend rights; (2) withholding of dividends on common shares while dividends on preferred shares are in arrears; (3) a requirement for the approval by the vote or written consent of a specified percentage of the preferred shares of any adverse change in the rights of those shares and of the issuance of any shares having priority over those preferred shares; and (d) appropriate dividend restrictions on common shares [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.3]. A corporation that proposes to issue preferred stock without full voting rights (and that is also nonparticipating and not convertible) must ordinarily grant those preferred shareholders the right to reasonable representation on the board of directors on a cumulative default, whether consecutive or not, of eight quarterly dividends [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.2; see § 3.253]. The right to elect a majority of the board is presumptively reasonable [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.2].

[2] FORM

Dividend Provision for Cumulative, Partially Participating Preferred Shares

(a) 1. The holders of outstanding Preferred shares [or if this provision applies only to a particular series, identify that series here and in remainder of this provision] shall be entitled to receive, when and as declared by the Board of Directors, out of any assets at the time legally available, dividends in cash at the annual rate of $ _____ [dollar amount, e.g., $4] per Preferred share, payable quarterly on the _____ day of each _____, _____, _____, and _____ [months] in each year. Dividends shall accrue on each share from the date of its original issuance [or, if it is desired that dividends commence to accrue from a fixed date, e.g., in the situation when preferred shares of the same class or series are issued over a period of time and sold for the purchase price plus accrued dividends: from _____ (insert specific date); or, if it is possible that some of the shares would be issued after a dividend payment date: from _____ (insert specific date) or the date to which dividends have been paid on outstanding Preferred shares, whichever is later] and shall accrue from day to day, whether or not earned or declared. Dividends shall be cumulative so that if dividends in respect of any previous quarterly dividend period at the annual rate set forth above shall not have been paid or declared and set apart for all Preferred shares at the time outstanding, the deficiency shall be fully paid or declared and set apart for those shares before the corporation makes any distribution to holders of Common shares. "Distribution" in this subparagraph 1 means the transfer of cash or property without consideration, whether by way of dividend or otherwise (except a dividend in shares of the corporation that are junior tothe Preferred shares as to dividends or assets) or the purchase or redemption of shares of the corporation for cash or property (except such junior shares), including any such transfer, purchase, or redemption by a subsidiary of the corporation. The time of any distribution by way of dividend shall be the date on which the dividend is declared and the time of any distribution by purchase or redemption of shares or otherwise than by dividend shall be the day cash or property is transferred by the corporation, whether or not pursuant to a contract of an earlier date; provided that when a debt obligation that is a security is issued in exchange for shares, the time of the distribution is the date when the corporation acquires the shares in that exchange [or omit this sentence and leave this matter to operation of law (see Corp. Code § 166)].

2. After all cumulative dividends on the outstanding Preferred shares shall have been paid or declared and set apart for payment for all previous dividend periods, as provided in subparagraph 1 of this paragraph (a), holders of the Common shares shall be entitled to receive in any fiscal year out of any assets legally available, cash dividends at the annual rate of $ _____ [specify dollar amount that is ordinarily same as dollar amount in subparagraph 1, above] per share for that fiscal year, payable in cash quarterly or at any other intervals as the Board of Directors may from time to time determine before any further dividend shall be declared on the Preferred shares. The right of the holders of Common shares to receive those dividends shall not be cumulative, and no rights shall accrue to those holders by reason of the fact that dividends on Common shares are not paid or declared or set apart for payment in or for any prior year or years, nor shall any such undeclared or unpaid dividend bear or accrue interest.

3. After all cumulative dividends on the Preferred shares, as provided in this subparagraph (a), have been paid or declared and set apart for payment, and noncumulative dividends on the Common shares at the annual rate set forth in subparagraph 2, have been paid or set apart for payment in any fiscal year, if the Board of Directors shall elect to make further distributions or dividends, those distributions or dividends shall be made to all shares, Preferred and Common, and the amount of any distributions or dividends on each Preferred share shall bear the same ratio to the amount of any dividend on each Common share as the annual cumulative dividend on one Preferred share as provided herein bears to the dividend at the rate set forth in Paragraph 2 on one Common share; provided, however, that the holders of Preferred shares shall not receive in any one fiscal year dividends under this subparagraph 3, in addition to cumulative dividends provided for in subparagraph 1, which in the aggregate are in excess of $ _____ per share. The dividends authorized by this subparagraph 3 shall not be cumulative and no rights shall accrue to the holders of either Preferred or Common shares by reason of the fact that dividends have not been paid or declared and set apart for payment in any year or years.

4. Subject to the rights of the holders of Preferred shares, as provided in subparagraphs 1 and 3, the holders of Common shares shall be entitled to receive dividends in excess of the sum of $ _____ per share for any fiscal year, out of any funds of the corporation legally available for the declaration of dividends, as and when declared by the Board of Directors.

§ 3.244 Dividend Provisions for Cumulative Nonparticipating Preferred Shares

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a provision that may be included in a corporation's articles to grant preferred shares cumulative, nonparticipating dividend rights. For alternative dividend provisions, see §§ 3.243 (cumulative, partially participating preferred) and 3.245 (noncumulative, nonparticipating preferred). For article provisions that grant authority to the board of directors to determine some or all of the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions with respect to the corporation's stock, see § 3.203[2], Article V, § 3.240, and § 3.241.

If used, this provision should be included as a separately designated paragraph in the articles' "preference statement," that is, under the specific article that describes the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on the respective classes or series of shares. A preference statement (in skeleton form) that may be used under those circumstances is set forth in § 3.242[2]. That form lists other provisions that should ordinarily also be included in the preference statement, for example, provisions for liquidation preferences and redemption rights.

This form must also be used in conjunction with a provision that authorizes two classes of stock, common and preferred, and designates the number of shares in each class [see, e.g., § 3.203[2], Article IV].

Drafting considerations and certain requirements of the Commissioner of Corporations for dividend provisions are discussed in § 3.243[1]. Mandatory stock structure provisions required in the articles of incorporation for a corporation with more than one class of shares are discussed in § 3.203[1].

§ 3.245 Dividend Provision for Noncumulative, Nonparticipating Preferred Shares

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a provision that may be included in the articles to provide that preferred shares have noncumulative, nonparticipating dividend rights. For alternative dividend provisions included in this chapter, see §§ 3.243 (cumulative partially participating preferred) and 3.244 (cumulative nonparticipating preferred). For article provisions that grant authority to the board of directors to determine some or all of the rights, preferences, privileges and restrictions with respect to the corporation's stock, see § 3.203[2], Article V; and §§ 3.240 and 3.241.

Dividend Provision for Noncumulative, Nonparticipating Preferred Shares

_____ [Article number]

(a) The holders of the Preferred shares [or if this provision is to only apply to a particular series, specify that particular series here and in remainder of provision] shall be entitled in any fiscal year to receive dividends, when and as declared by the Board of Directors, out of any funds legally available for the payment of dividends, paid in cash at the rate of $ _____ [dollar amount, e.g., $4] per Preferred share, before any dividend is paid on Common shares. This dividend may be payable quarterly or otherwise as the Board of Directors may from time to time determine. Dividends may be declared and paid on Common shares in any fiscal year of the corporation only if dividends shall have been paid to or declared and set apart on all Preferred shares at that annual rate for each quarter of the fiscal year of the corporation, including the quarter in which dividends on Common shares are declared. The right to dividends on Preferred shares shall not be cumulative, and no right shall accrue to the holders of Preferred shares by reason of the fact that dividends on those shares are not declared in any prior year, nor shall any undeclared or unpaid dividend bear or accrue interest.

§ 3.246 Liquidation Preferences of Preferred Shares--Cumulative and Participating

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This provision may be included in the articles to create cumulative and participating liquidation preferences for preferred shares [see Corp. Code §§ 202(e)(3), 2004]. Optional language is included for use if the preferences will be noncumulative. If used, this provision should be included as a separately designated paragraph in the article that describes the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on the respective classes or series of shares (commonly referred to as the "preference statement"). A skeleton form of preference statement is set forth in § 3.242[2]. That form lists the other provisions that should ordinarily also be included in the preference statement, for example, provisions for dividends, redemption, and voting rights.

Rather than specify the particular rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions for a class or series of shares (including, for example, liquidation preferences), the articles may instead authorize the board of directors to fix all or some of those terms for unissued shares of a class or series [see Corp. Code § 202(e)]. For illustrative article provisions that may be used under those circumstances, see § 3.203[2], Article V; and §§ 3.240 and 3.241.

This provision provides that holders of preferred and common shares share equally on a per share basis in any distribution in excess of the liquidation preference of the preferred shares and the amount stated with respect to the common shares. If the participating preference of the preferred is to be limited, or to be in some specified ratio to distributions on common shares, or if the common shares are to receive a stated amount after payout of the preferred liquidation preference and before participation by the preferred shareholders, this form should be modified to provide for that limitation or proportion.

This form provides for the same liquidation rate for either an involuntary or a voluntary liquidation. It must be modified if a different rate is desired under those separate circumstances.

For alternative provisions for liquidation preferences that may be used in lieu of the one in this form, see §§ 3.247 (nonparticipating noncumulative preferred) and 3.248 (cumulative and nonparticipating preferred).

[b] Definition of "Liquidation Preference"

"Liquidation preference" or "liquidation price" means amounts payable on shares of any class on voluntary or involuntary dissolution, winding up, or distribution of the entire assets of the corporation [see Corp. Code §§ 1800-1809, 1900-1907, 2000-2011], including any cumulative dividends [see § 3.243] accrued and unpaid, in priority to shares of another class or classes [Corp. Code § 172].

[c] Restrictions on Liquidation Distributions

A corporation may not make any distribution to its shareholders [see Corp. Code § 166 (definition of "distribution to its shareholders")] on any class or series of its shares that are junior to the outstanding shares of any other class or series with respect to distribution of assets on liquidation if, after giving effect to the distribution, the excess of its assets (exclusive of goodwill, capitalized research and development expenses, and deferred charges) over its liabilities (not including deferred taxes, deferred income, and other deferred credits) would be less than the liquidation preference of all shares having a preference on liquidation over the class or series to which the distribution is made [Corp. Code § 502]. However, for the purpose of applying this rule to a distribution by a corporation of cash or property in payment by the corporation in connection with the purchase of its shares, there must be deducted from liabilities all amounts that had been previously added with respect to the obligations incurred in connection with the corporation's repurchase of its shares and reflected on the corporation's balance sheet, but not in excess of the principal of the obligations that will remain unpaid after the distribution. Further, no deduction from liabilities may occur on account of any obligation that is a distribution to the corporation's shareholders when the obligation is incurred [Corp. Code § 502].

[d] Distribution Plan Contrary to Liquidation Preferences

If a corporation in the process of winding up has both preferred and common shares outstanding, a plan of distribution of the shares, obligations, or securities of any other corporation, domestic or foreign, or assets other than money that is not in accordance with the liquidation rights of the preferred shares as specified in the articles may nevertheless be adopted if approved by the board of directors and by the outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 152] of each class [Corp. Code § 2007(a)]. The plan may provide that the distribution is in complete or partial satisfaction of the rights of those shareholders on distribution and liquidation of the assets [Corp. Code § 2007(a)].

The board must cause notice of the adoption of the plan to be given by mail within 20 days after its adoption to all holders of shares having a liquidation preference [Corp. Code § 2007(b)].

The approved plan is binding on all shareholders [Corp. Code § 2007(b)], except that a dissenting shareholder with a liquidation preference who files a timely demand for payment is entitled to be paid the amount of his or her liquidation preference in cash unless the corporation subsequently determines to abandon the plan of distribution [Corp. Code § 2007(c)]. The board in its discretion may abandon the plan without further approval of the outstanding shares, and all shareholders will then be entitled to distribution according to their rights and liquidation preferences in the process of winding up [Corp. Code § 2007(d)].

The statutory provisions described above do not apply to any distribution made in accordance with a merger reorganization [Corp. Code § 181(a) (definition); see Ch. 11C, Mergers] or a sale-of-assets reorganization [Corp. Code § 181(c) (definition); see Ch. 11E, Acquisition of Assets for Shares] in which (1) the terms of the reorganization provide that a class or series of preferred shares will receive as a distribution a lesser amount than would be required by applicable article provisions, and (2) the principal terms have been approved by the same percentage of outstanding shares of that class or series as would be required to approve an amendment of the article provisions to provide for the distribution of that lesser amount [Corp. Code § 2007(e); see Corp. Code § 1202(b)].

[e] Drafting Considerations

Article provisions that create liquidation preferences should, at a minimum, cover the following matters:

- The circumstances under which the preference applies--usually "voluntary or involuntary liquidation, dissolution, or winding up of the corporation"--and the circumstances, if any, under which the preference does not apply, such as a consolidation or merger or a sale of all or substantially all of the corporation's assets [see [2], last sentence, below].

- Liquidation price per preferred share, and whether or not this amount varies depending on whether the liquidation is voluntary or involuntary [see [2], first paragraph, below].

- Whether or not preference payment on liquidation will include dividend arrearages [see [2], first paragraph, below; see also § 3.247 (noncumulative)].

- The extent, if any, to which the preferred shares will participate with the common shareholders after payment of the liquidation preference, for example: (a) full and immediate participation on a share-for-share or dollar basis; (b) full participation after common has received a certain amount [see [2], first paragraph, below]; (c) limited participation up to a dollar amount, a percentage of stated value, or a percentage of the total remaining assets to be distributed; or (d) no participation [see §§ 3.247, 3.248].

- Procedure for paying preferred shares if assets are insufficient to pay full preference amount, for example, pro rata payment or all assets to preferred shares [see [2], second paragraph, below].

Liquidation Preferences of Preferred Shares--Cumulative and Participating

V. Preferred Shares

(b) On any voluntary or involuntary liquidation, dissolution, or winding up of the corporation, the holders of the Preferred shares [if provision is only to apply to specific series, designate that series here and in remainder of provision] shall be entitled to receive, out of the assets of the corporation, whether those assets are capital or surplus of any nature, an amount equal to $ _____ [dollar amount, e.g., $40] per Preferred share, plus an amount equal to [for cumulative participating preferred shares: any dividends accrued and unpaid on those shares or for noncumulative participating preferred: the dividends declared and unpaid on those shares], as provided in paragraph _____ [designation of paragraph that describes dividend rights, e.g., (a)] of this Article V, to the date that payment is made available to holders of Preferred shares, and, after payment to the holders of Common shares of $ _____ [specify dollar amount that is ordinarily same amount specified above for Preferred shares] per share, the remaining assets of the corporation to be distributed shall be distributed in like amounts per share to the holders of the Preferred shares and the holders of the Common shares.

If, on liquidation, dissolution, or winding up, whether voluntary or involuntary, the assets distributed among the holders of the Preferred shares shall be insufficient to permit the payment of the full preferential amounts, then the entire assets of the corporation to be distributed shall be distributed ratably among the holders of Preferred shares. A consolidation or merger of the corporation with or into any other corporation or corporations, or a sale of all or substantially all of the assets of the corporation, shall [not] be deemed a liquidation, dissolution, or winding up of the corporation within the meaning of this paragraph.

§ 3.247 Liquidation Preferences--Noncumulative and Nonparticipating

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This provision may be included in the articles to create noncumulative and nonparticipating liquidation preferences for preferred shares. If used, this provision should be included as a separately designated paragraph in the article that describes the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on the respective classes or series of shares (commonly referred to as the "preference statement"). For a skeleton form of preference statement that may be used for this purpose, see § 3.242[2]. That form also lists the other provisions that ordinarily should be included in the preference statement, for example, provisions for dividends, redemption, and voting rights.

This provision provides that holders of preferred shares receive a specified amount only (plus any declared but unpaid dividends) in the event of the corporation's voluntary or involuntary liquidation, dissolution, or winding up. After payment of this liquidation preference, the remaining assets of the corporation must be distributed, ratably, to the holders of Common shares.

For alternative provisions for liquidation preferences that may be used in lieu of the one in this form, see §§ 3.246 (cumulative participating preferred) and 3.248 (cumulative and nonparticipating preferred). Statutory restrictions and requirements and drafting considerations for liquidation preferences are discussed in § 3.246.

For article provisions that do not fix all of the particular rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions for a class or series of shares (including, for example, liquidation preferences) but instead authorize the board of directors to fix all or some of those terms for unissued shares of a class or series [see Corp. Code § 202(e)], see § 3.203[2], Article V; and §§ 3.240 and 3.241.

V. Preferred Shares

(b) On any voluntary or involuntary liquidation, dissolution, or winding up of the corporation, the holders of the Preferred shares [or if this provision is to apply only to a particular series, designate that series here and in remainder of this provision] shall be entitled to receive, out of the assets of the corporation, whether those assets are capital or surplus of any nature, an amount equal to $ _____ per Preferred share, plus an amount equal to any dividends on those Preferred shares declared and unpaid on the date of that distribution, and no more, before any payment shall be made or any assets distributed to the holders of Common shares. If on liquidation, dissolution, or winding up of the corporation the assets so distributed among the holders of Preferred shares shall be insufficient to permit full payment to those shareholders of the full preferential amounts, then the entire assets of the corporation shall be distributed ratably among the holders of Preferred shares.

After payment or distribution to the holders of Preferred shares of the full preferential amounts, the holders of Common shares shall be entitled to receive, ratably, all remaining assets of the corporation.

A consolidation or merger of the corporation with or into any other corporation or corporations, or a sale of all or substantially all of the assets of the corporation, shall [not] be deemed to be a liquidation, dissolution, or winding up of the corporation within the meaning of this paragraph (b).

§ 3.248 Liquidation Preferences of Preferred Shares--Cumulative and Nonparticipating

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This provision may be included in the articles to create cumulative and nonparticipating liquidation preferences for preferred shares. If used, this provision should be included as a separately designated paragraph in the article that describes the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on the respective classes or series of shares (commonly referred to as the "preference statement"). A skeleton form of preference statement that may be used for this purpose is set forth in § 3.242[2]. That form lists the other provisions that should ordinarily also be included in the preference statement, for example, provisions for dividends, redemption, and voting rights.

This provision provides for payment to the holders of preferred shares a specific dollar amount, plus the amount of any accrued but unpaid dividends on those shares, in the event of the corporation's voluntary or involuntary liquidation, dissolution, or winding up of the corporation. After this preferential payment, the holders of common shares are entitled to receive, ratably, any remaining assets of the corporation.

For alternative provisions for liquidation preferences that may be used in lieu of the one in this form, see §§ 3.246 (cumulative participating preferred) and 3.247 (noncumulative nonparticipating preferred). Statutory restrictions on and other requirements for liquidation preferences are discussed in § 3.246[1].

If on liquidation, dissolution, or winding up of the corporation, the assets so distributed among the holders of Preferred shares shall be insufficient to permit full payment to those shareholders of the full preferential amounts, then the entire assets of the corporation to be distributed shall be distributed ratably among the holders of Preferred shares.

In the event of any voluntary or involuntary liquidation, dissolution, or winding up of the corporation, subject to all of the preferential rights of the holders of Preferred shares on distribution or otherwise, the holders of Common shares shall be entitled to receive, ratably, all remaining assets of the corporation.

A consolidation or merger of the corporation with or into any other corporation or corporations, or a sale of all or substantially all of the assets of the corporation, shall [not] be deemed to be a liquidation, dissolution, or winding up of the corporation within the meaning of this paragraph (b).

§ 3.249 Redemption Provisions--Cumulative or Noncumulative Nonparticipating Preferred

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form contains illustrative redemption provisions that may be included in a corporation's articles of incorporation. It provides for the redemption of cumulative or noncumulative, nonparticipating preferred shares [see Corp. Code §§ 202(e)(3), 402(a)], at the option of the corporation, or on the occurrence of other events [see [b], below].

In determining whether or not to include redemption provisions in the articles, the effect of the specific contemplated provisions must be carefully considered. There is no statutory requirement that shares must be redeemable at the option of the issuer. If the shareholders are granted the right to demand redemption (or redemption is otherwise triggered by some event), the corporation is deprived, to the extent of the redemption, of its discretion with respect to retained earnings. Restrictions on redemption may be necessary, for example, to protect the right of one class or series of shares to participate as to dividends, redemption, or other matters with other classes or series or, in the case of convertible shares, to assure the holders that those shares will remain outstanding long enough for the conversion right to be meaningful.

If used, this provision should be included as a separately designated paragraph in the article that describes the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on the respective classes or series of shares (commonly referred to as the "preference statement"). For a skeleton form of preference statement that may be used for this purpose, see § 3.242[2]. That form lists the other provisions that should ordinarily also be included in the preference statement, for example, provisions for dividends, liquidation preferences, and voting rights. Rather than specify all of the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions for a class or series of shares, the articles may instead authorize the board of directors to fix all or some of these terms for unissued shares of a class or series [see Corp. Code § 202(e)]. For illustrative article provisions that may be used under those circumstances, see § 3.203[2], Article V; and §§ 3.240 and 3.241.

[b] Authority for Redemption

A corporation may provide in its articles for one or more classes or series of shares that are redeemable in whole or in part at the option of the corporation, or to the extent and on the happening of one or more specified events [Corp. Code § 402(a)]. Alternatively, the articles may provide for one or more classes or series of preferred shares that are redeemable, in whole or in part, (1) at the option of the corporation, or to the extent and on the happening of one or more specified events; (2) at the option of the holder, or (3) on the vote of at least a majority of the outstanding shares of the class or series to be redeemed [Corp. Code § 402(a)]. An open-end investment company registered under the United States Investment Company Act of 1940 may, if its articles so provide, issue shares that are redeemable at the option of the holder at a price approximately equal to the shares' proportionate interest in the net assets of the corporation, and a shareholder may compel redemption of those shares in accordance with their terms [Corp. Code § 402(b)].

This form provides two alternatives for describing the circumstances under which redemption may occur. The first alternative permits redemption of preferred shares only at the option of the corporation. The second alternative contains different clauses, which may be used as desired, to describe the other circumstances that will trigger the right to redemption, for example, at the option of the holder of the preferred shares.

[c] Limitations and Restrictions

The general rule is that a corporation may not issue or redeem redeemable common shares unless the corporation at that time has outstanding a class of common shares that is not subject to redemption. However, this general rule does not apply to three types of shares: (1) shares issued by an open end investment company registered under the United States Investment Company Act of 1940; (2) shares of a corporation that has a license or franchise from a government agency to conduct its business or is a member corporation of a national securities exchange registered under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and that license, franchise, or membership is conditioned on some or all of the shareholders possessing prescribed qualifications to the extent necessary to reinstate or prevent the loss of the license, franchise, or membership; (3) shares of a professional corporation [Corp. Code § 402(c)].

Any redemption by a corporation of its shares is subject to the provisions of the General Corporation Law governing, among other things, distributions to a corporations shareholders [Corp. Code § 402(d); see Corp. Code §§ 166, 500-511]. A corporation's redemption of its own shares is considered to be a distribution to the corporation's shareholders [see Corp. Code § 166]. Accordingly, the corporation may redeem shares only it is able to satisfy the financial and other requirements for a distribution [see Corp. Code §§ 500-504; see also § 3.243[1][b]]. A corporation may to the extent permitted by statute create a sinking fund or similar provision for the redemption or purchase of its shares [see Corp. Code § 402(d); see § 3.250 (sinking fund provision)].

A corporation's articles or bylaws, or any indenture or other agreement entered into by the corporation, may impose restrictions on its redemption of shares that are more restrictive than and in addition to any statutory restrictions [Corp. Code § 505].

Under rules of the Commissioner of Corporations, preferred stock to be sold under an open qualification [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.001(f)] by an unseasoned corporation [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.001(g)] should normally be either fully participating and nonredeemable or convertible into common stock on an equitable basis [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.9; see also § 3.251].

[d] Redemption Price

The amount payable in cash, property, securities, or any combination of these on the redemption of shares is the "redemption price." Unless otherwise expressly provided, the redemption price is payable in cash [Corp. Code § 180].

This form fixes a specified dollar amount for the redemption price, plus an additional amount that depends on whether the preferred shares are cumulative or noncumulative [see [2], P 2, below]. If it is desired that the redemption price include a premium for early redemption, that modification should be made to this form. Also, it should modified if the redemption price will vary depending on the event causing the redemption, for example, option of the board, required vote of the shareholders, option of the shareholder, or another event.

[e] Procedure for Redemption of Shares

[i] General Requirements

Any redemption of shares must be effected at the price or prices, within the time and on the terms and conditions as are stated in the articles. When the articles permit partial redemption of a class or series of shares, the articles must prescribe the method selecting the shares to be redeemed, which may be pro rata, by lot, at the discretion of, or in a manner approved by the board, or on any other terms specified in the articles [Corp. Code § 402(b); see [2], P 2, below].

The corporation may redeem any or all shares that are redeemable at its option by giving notice of redemption, and payment or deposit of the redemption price of the shares as provided in its articles, or deposit of the redemption price with a bank or trust company in California in accordance with statutory requirements [Corp. Code § 509(a); see Corp. Code § 509(d) (requirements for deposit with bank or trust company)].

[ii] Notice of Redemption

Subject to any provisions in the articles with respect to the notice required for the redemption of shares, the corporation may satisfy the requirement for giving notice of the redemption [see [i], above] by causing a notice to be published in a newspaper of general circulation in the county in which the corporation has its principal executive office at least once a week for two successive weeks, commencing not earlier than 60, nor later than 20, days before the date fixed for redemption. The notice must set forth (1) the class or series of shares, or the part of that class or series, to be redeemed; (2) the date fixed for redemption; (3) the redemption price; and (4) if the shares are certificated securities, the place at which the shareholders may obtain payment of the redemption price on surrender of their share certificates [Corp. Code § 509(b)].

Notice by publication described above is not mandatory and is not provided for in this form [but see § 3.240[2]]. Even if the notice is given by publication, it must still be given directly to affected shareholders either in accordance with the procedure described below or with the procedure set forth in the corporation's articles [see Corp. Code § 509(b), (c)].

If the corporation gives notice by publication described above, it must also mail a copy of the notice by first-class mail, postage prepaid [Corp. Code § 113], to each holder of record of shares to be redeemed as of the date of mailing or a lawfully fixed date of record [see Corp. Code § 701]. The notice must be addressed to the holder at the holder's address appearing on the books of the corporation or given by the holder to the corporation for the purpose of notice, or, if no such address appears or is given, at the place where the principal executive office of the corporation is located. It must be mailed not earlier than 60 nor later than 20 days before the date fixed for redemption. Failure to comply with these requirements does not, however, invalidate the redemption [Corp. Code § 509(c)].

[iii] Trust Fund for Redemption of Shares

Statutory provisions outline a procedure by which a corporation may deposit with any bank or trust company in California as a trust fund, a sum sufficient to redeem the shares called for redemption, with irrevocable instructions and authority to give notice of the redemption and to pay the holders the redemption price for their shares. Under this procedure, the deposit constitutes full payment for the shares that, from the date of the deposit, are no longer outstanding. From that same date, the holders also have no rights with respect to their shares except to receive the redemption price from the bank or trust company on surrender of their share certificates (for certificated securities [see Corp. Code § 156.1; Com. Code § 8102(a)(4), (15)]) or delivery of an appropriate officer's certificate (for uncertificated securities [see Corp. Code § 191.1; Com. Code § 8102(a)(15), (18) (definition)]) and except to convert their shares if so authorized by the articles [Corp. Code § 509(d); see § 3.251 (rights of conversion)].

The trust fund method of redeeming shares is authorized but not required by statute. The articles may instead provide some other method for the payment or deposit of the redemption price [see Corp. Code § 509(a)]. This form [see [2], P 4, below] does use the trust fund method and reflects the statutory requirements for that method [see Corp. Code § 509(d)].

[f] Status of Redeemed Shares and Required Amendment of Articles

When a corporation reacquires its own shares, those shares are restored to the status of authorized but unissued shares unless the articles prohibit the reissue of reacquired shares [Corp. Code § 510(a)]. The term "reacquires" means that a corporation purchases, redeems, acquires by way of conversion to another class or series, or otherwise acquires its own shares or that issued and outstanding shares cease to be outstanding [Corp. Code § 510(d)].

If a corporation reacquires authorized shares of a class or series and the articles prohibit the reissuance of those shares, the following rules apply [Corp. Code § 510(b)]:

- If all of the authorized shares of that class or series are reacquired then (1) that class or series is automatically eliminated; (2) in the case of reacquisition of all authorized shares of a series, the authorized number of shares of the class to which the shares belonged is reduced by the number of shares so acquired; and (3) the articles must be amended to eliminate any statement of rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions relating solely to that class or series.

- If less than all of the authorized shares but all of the issued and outstanding shares of that class or series are reacquired, the authorized number of shares of the class or series is automatically reduced by the number of shares reacquired and the board must determine either (1) to eliminate that class or series, which requires amending the articles to eliminate any statement of rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions relating solely to that class or series; or (2) not to eliminate that class or series, which requires amending the articles to reflect that reduction of the number of authorized shares of that class or series by the number of reacquired shares.

- If less than all of the authorized shares and less than all of the issued and outstanding shares of a class or series are reacquired, the authorized number of shares of that class or series is automatically reduced by the number of reacquired shares and the articles must be amended to reflect that reduction.

If a corporation reacquires authorized shares of a series of shares and the articles prohibit only the reissuance of those shares as shares of the same series, the following rules apply [Corp. Code § 510(c)]:

- If all of the authorized shares of that series are reacquired, then that series is automatically eliminated, the articles must be amended to eliminate any statement of rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions relating solely to that series, and the board must determine either (1) to return those shares to the status of authorized but undesignated shares of the class to which they belong or (2) to eliminate those shares entirely. In either case, the articles must be amended to reflect the reduction in authorized shares of that series and any effect on the class to which that series belongs.

- If all of the issued and outstanding shares of that series, but less than all of the authorized shares of that series, are reacquired, the board must determine either (1) to eliminate that series, which requires amending the articles to eliminate any statement of rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions relating solely to that series; or (2) not to eliminate that series, which requires amending the articles to reflect the return of the reacquired shares to the status of authorized but undesignated shares of the class to which they belong.

- If less than all of the issued and outstanding shares of that series are reacquired, the authorized number of shares of that series is automatically reduced by the number of reacquired shares and the board must determine either (1) to return those shares to the status of authorized but undesignated shares of the class to which they belong or (2) to eliminate those shares entirely. In either case, the articles must be amended to reflect the reduction in authorized shares of that series and any effect on the class to which that series belongs.

A certificate of amendment must be filed in accordance with statutory requirements, reflecting any elimination or reduction of authorized shares, and any related elimination from the articles of the designation and the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions of any series or class of stock that is eliminated [Corp. Code § 510(f); see Corp. Code §§ 900-911], except that approval by the outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 152] ordinarily required is not required to adopt this type of amendment [Corp. Code § 510(f)].

These corporate reacquisition rules may be varied in the articles [Corp. Code § 510(e)]. Further, nothing in these rules is intended to alter or otherwise affect the powers of the board to amend the articles [Corp. Code § 510(f); see Corp. Code §§ 202, 401].

[g] Need for Redemption Provisions

Redemption provisions provide the corporation with needed flexibility in those cases in which the preferred shares have protective provisions or voting rights. They are particularly important if the protective provisions or voting rights run in favor of "any" preferred shares rather than requiring a minimum number of outstanding shares for the continuing effectiveness of the protective provisions or voting rights. The corporation retains the right to redeem the preferred shares to eliminate the protective provisions or voting rights.

[2] FORM

Redemption Provisions--Cumulative or Noncumulative Nonparticipating Preferred

[Begin with either Alternative 1 or Alternative 2, and then continue with remainder of provision where indicated below.]

[Alternative 1: Use if board of directors has sole discretion as to whether and when to redeem.]

V. Redemption of Preferred Shares

(c) 1. Subject to the provisions of the California General Corporation Law and to any other applicable restrictions on the right of a corporation to redeem its own shares, the corporation, at the option of the Board of Directors, may at any time or from time to time redeem the whole or any part of the outstanding Preferred shares [or if this provision is to apply to a particular series, designate that series here and in remainder of this provision].

[Alternative 2: If shareholders will be given right to demand redemption or if specific event or set of circumstances will give rise to redemption, select applicable provisions from following.]

V. Redemption of Preferred Shares

(c) 1. Subject to the provisions of the California General Corporation Law and to any other applicable restrictions on the right of a corporation to redeem its own shares, Preferred shares [or if this provision is to apply to a particular series, designate that series here and in remainder of this provision] shall be redeemed by the Corporation in one or more of the following circumstances:

a. If called for redemption at the option of the Board of Directors, at any time or from time to time in whole or any part;

b. At the option of the holder, on not less than _____ days notice in writing to the corporation at _____[address], to the attention of _____ [title of corporate officer] or at any other address as the corporation shall have previously given the holder for notice;

c. On the vote of at least _____ [specify required vote, which must be at least a majority of the outstanding preferred shares (see Corp. Code § 402(a))] of the holders of the Preferred Shares, which vote shall specify a redemption date that shall be not less than _____[number] days after the vote and after written notice of that vote is provided to the corporation; or

d. On the happening of _____ [describe event that will trigger redemption, and, if less than all of the preferred shares are to be redeemed on the happening of that event, specify which shares or what number of shares are to be redeemed and how they are to be selected].

[CONTINUE]

2. On redemption, the corporation shall pay for each share redeemed, cash in the amount of $ _____ per share plus _____ [for cumulative preferred, add: an amount in cash equal to all dividends on Preferred Shares accrued and unpaid as provided in paragraph _____ (designation of paragraph that describes dividend rights) in this Article V, whether earned or declared or not, to and including the date for redemption or, for noncumulative preferred, add: an amount equal to all dividends on Preferred shares declared but unpaid on the date fixed for redemption] (referred to as the "redemption price") [or describe other redemption price, for example one that sets a premium redemption price if redemption occurs on or before a specific date, or one that varies depending on the circumstances under which redemption occurs]. In case of the redemption at the option of the corporation of a part only of the outstanding Preferred shares, the corporation may designate pro rata or by lot [or other specify some other method (see Corp. Code § 402(b))] the shares to be redeemed. Less than all of the Preferred shares at any time outstanding may not be redeemed [if preferred shares are redeemable at option of or on vote of holders, add: except at the option of a holder or holders] until all dividends accrued and unpaid on all Preferred shares outstanding shall have been paid for all past dividend periods, and until full dividends for the then current dividend period on all Preferred shares then outstanding, other than the shares to be redeemed, shall have been paid or declared and the full amount set apart for payment.

3. At least _____ [number that is at least 30 but not more than 60] days prior to the date fixed for redemption, the corporation shall mail notice of the redemption to the holders of record of the Preferred shares to be redeemed as of the date of mailing or as of a record date lawfully fixed by the corporation. The notice shall be mailed by first-class mail, postage prepaid to each of those shareholders at the address of that holder appearing on the books of the corporation or given by that holder to the corporation for the purpose of notice, of if no such address appears or is so given, at the place where the principal office of the corporation is located. The notice shall state the date fixed for redemption, the redemption price, [if shares are convertible, add: the then current conversion price (as defined with respect to those convertible shares) and the date of termination of the right to convert] and shall require the holder to surrender to the corporation on the date fixed and at the place designated in the notice, the holder's certificate or certificates representing the shares to be redeemed if those shares are certificated. On or after the date fixed for redemption, each holder of Preferred shares called for redemption shall, if those shares are certificated [if shares are convertible, add:, (unless the holder has previously exercised its option to convert preferred shares as provided in paragraph _____ (paragraph designation that describes conversion rights) of this Article V], surrender the certificate evidencing the shares to the corporation at the place designated in the redemption notice and shall at that time be entitled to receive payment of the redemption price. If less than all the shares represented by any surrendered certificate are redeemed, a new certificae for the unredeemed shares shall be issued. If the redemption notice is duly given and if sufficient funds are available on the date fixed for redemption to pay the redemption price, then, whether or not the certificates evidencing the Preferred shares to be redeemed are surrendered, the dividends with respect to the shares so called for redemption shall cease to accrue after the date fixed for redemption and all rights with respect to those shares so called for redemption shall cease and terminate as of the date fixed for redemption, except the right of the holders to receive the redemption price, without interest, on surrender of their certificates, if those Preferred shares are certificated.

4. If, on or prior to any date fixed for redemption of Preferred shares, the corporation deposits with any bank or trust company in California, as a trust fund: (a) a sum sufficient to redeem, on the date fixed for redemption, the shares called for redemption; (b) in the case of the redemption of any uncertificated securities, an officer's certificate (defined below) setting forth the holders of the shares called for redemption, registered on the books of the corporation and the number of shares held by each; and (c) irrevocable instructions and authority to the bank or trust company to give the notice of redemption (or to complete the giving of notice if commenced) and to pay, on and after the date fixed for redemption or prior to that time, the redemption price of the shares to their respective holders on surrender of their share certificates (for certificated securities), then from and after the date of the deposit, even though that date may be prior to the date fixed for redemption, the shares so called shall be redeemed and dividends on those shares shall cease to accrue after the date fixed for redemption. "Officer's certificate," as used in the preceding sentence, means a certificate signed and verified by the Board Chairperson or the President or any Vice-President, and by the Secretary, the Chief Financial Officer, the Treasurer, or any assistant secretary or assistant treasurer of the corporation. The deposit shall constitute full payment of the shares to their holders, and from and after the date of the deposit, the shares shall no longer be outstanding, and the holders of those shares shall cease to be shareholders with respect to those shares and shall have no rights with respect to them, except the right to receive from the bank or trust company payment of the redemption price of the shares, without interest, on surrender of their certificates if the shares redeemed are certificated and without surrender if the shares redeemed are uncertificated [if shares are convertible, add:, and the right to convert those shares as provided in paragraph _____ (designate paragraph that sets forth conversion rights) of this Article V at any time up to but not after the close of business on the _____ day prior to the date fixed for redemption of those shares. Any moneys so deposited on account of the redemption price of Preferred shares converted after the making of the deposit shall be repaid to the corporation immediately on the conversion of the Preferred shares]. Any interest accrued on any funds so deposited shall be the property of, and paid to, the corporation. If the holders of Preferred shares so called for redemption shall not, at the end of six years from the date fixed for redemption, have claimed any funds to deposited, the bank or trust company shall pay over to the corporation the unclaimed funds, and the bank or trust company shall thereafter be relieved of all responsibility to those holders and those holders shall look only to the corporation for payment of the redemption price.

[Optional:]

5. Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions of this paragraph (_____) [paragraph designation first set forth above, e.g., (c)] none of the Preferred shares may be redeemed prior to _____[date] if redemption is for the purpose or in anticipation of any refunding operation involving, directly or indirectly, the incurring of indebtedness or the issuance of Preferred Stock senior to or on a parity with the Preferred shares as to dividends or on liquidation, if the interest on that indebtedness or the dividends on that Preferred Stock would result in an effective cost of money to the corporation (computed in accordance with generally accepted financial practice) of less than _____ percent per year.

§ 3.250 Creation of Sinking Fund for Redemption of Preferred Shares

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form contains provisions that may be included in the articles to establish a "sinking fund" for the purchase or redemption of preferred shares [see Corp. Code § 402(d); see also § 3.249 (provision that provides for redemption of preferred shares)]. A corporation is permitted to create a sinking fund or to make other provision for the redemption or purchase of its shares to the extent permitted by statutory provisions of the General Corporation Law governing corporate distributions [Corp. Code § 402(d)]. Those relevant provisions [see Corp. Code §§ 500-511] prohibit distributions to a corporation's shareholders unless certain tests are satisfied [see, e.g., Corp. Code § 500]. As defined by statute, a distribution to a corporation's shareholders would include a payment pursuant to a sinking fund [see Corp. Code § 166].

If used, this provision should be included as a separately designated paragraph in the article that describes the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on the respective classes or series of shares (commonly referred to as the "preference statement"). A skeleton form preference statement that may be used for this purpose is set forth in § 3.242[2]. That form lists the other provisions that should ordinarily also be included in the preference statement, for example, provisions for dividends, redemption, and liquidation preferences.

Because sinking fund provisions may vary with each series of preferred shares, it may be preferable to include in the articles a provision that grants authority to the board of directors to determine the sinking fund provisions for all or some of the series rather than to specify those matters in the articles. For article provisions that grant the board authority to fix some or all of the rights, preferences, privileges and restrictions for preferred shares (including, for example, sinking fund provisions), see § 3.203[2], Article V; and §§ 3.240 and 3.241. If those provisions are used, the board, when it subsequently adopts sinking fund provisions for a particular class or series, must do so by adopting a resolution and filing a certificate of determination with the Secretary of State [see Corp. Code § 401]. The provisions below, with some modification, could then be included in that certificate. Requirements for certificates of determination are discussed in § 3.310.

[b] Distinction Between Ordinary Redemption and Sinking Fund Redemption

The statute governing redemptions in general [see Corp. Code § 402] would permit the creation of periodic mandatory redemptions of a specified number of shares without their being characterized as part of a "sinking fund." There is, however, a difference between an ordinary redemption and a sinking fund redemption. The statutory definition of "distribution [by a corporation] to its shareholders" [Corp. Code § 166] provides that a distribution (a repurchase of shares through their redemption is a distribution) is made when cash or property is transferred by the corporation. It further provides that, in the case of a sinking fund, cash or property is transferred within the meaning of the same statutory definition [see Corp. Code § 166] at the time it is delivered to a trustee for the holders of preferred shares to be used for the redemption of those shares or physically segregated by the corporation in trust for that purpose. Therefore, if the corporation holds funds for redemption of the shares but has physically segregated them in trust, the distribution would be deemed made at the time of segregation rather than at the later time when it is actually paid out. This difference might make use of the "sinking fund" terminology worthwhile in many cases [Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Laws, Appendix A, Form 4.18, note 24].

[c] Drafting Considerations

In drafting provisions for a sinking fund, the following matters should be determined and specified:

- The year in which payments to the sinking fund are to commence and the payment date for each payment, for example, at the beginning of each fiscal year [see [2], P 1, below];
- Amount to be contributed for each period [see [2], P 1, below];
- Source of funds for contribution, for example, any moneys legally available for this purpose or only net earnings of the corporation for the preceding fiscal year [see [2], P 1, below];
- Whether sinking fund requirements are cumulative or noncumulative [see [2], P 1, below];
- Mechanics of making a payment and earmarking the funds [see [2], PP 1, 2, below];
- Whether the corporation is entitled to take a credit against the fund for shares acquired other than through the fund [see [2], PP 1, 2, below];
- How amounts in the fund are to be applied, for example, for the purchase or redemption of shares, with prices for each type of acquisition specified and the minimum number or percentage of shares designated [see [2], P 3, below];
- Duration of fund's existence, for example, until the retirement of all preferred shares [see [2], P 3, below];
- Disposition of cash in fund after fund's purpose has been achieved [see [2], P 3, below]; and
- Whether the corporation will be authorized to make optional sinking funds payments and purchases [see [2], P 4, below].

[2] FORM

Creation of Sinking Fund for Redemption of Preferred Shares

V. Sinking Fund

(d) 1. So long as any of the Preferred shares [or if this provision applies only to a specific series, designate that series here and in remainder of this provision] shall be outstanding, the corporation, as a sinking fund for the purchase or redemption of those shares (the "Sinking Fund") shall set aside in cash out of any moneys legally available [or from the net earnings of the corporation for any preceding fiscal year or years] after full payment or provision for payment of dividends on the Preferred shares and all other shares of the corporation ranking prior to or on a parity with the Preferred shares for all prior periods through the end of the last preceding quarterly dividend period for those shares, on _____[date] of each year (the "Sinking Fund payment date") commencing with the year _____, a sum equal to $ _____ [dollar amount that is usually equal to a percentage of the redemption price per year that would, over a desired number of years (e.g., 15 or 20 years), aggregate 100 percent of the redemption price per share (not including any premium)] per share times the total number of Preferred shares previously issued.

[EITHER]

If, on any Sinking Fund payment date, the funds of the corporation legally available shall be insufficient to discharge the Sinking Fund requirements in full, funds to the extent legally available for that purpose shall be set aside for the Sinking Fund. These Sinking Fund requirements shall be cumulative, so that if for any year or years the requirements shall not be fully discharged as they accrue, funds legally available for that purpose, after such payment or provision for dividends, for each fiscal year thereafter shall be applied to the Sinking Fund until the requirements are fully discharged.

[OR, if sinking fund obligations will not be cumulative:]

If the funds legally available, on any Sinking Fund payment date, after payment or provision for dividends, are not sufficient fully to discharge the Sinking Fund requirements, the corporation shall not be required to set apart those sums in full but shall set apart for the Sinking Fund, funds to the extent legally available for that purpose, and to the extent that the expressed Sinking Fund obligation remains unsatisfied it shall not be cumulative.

[CONTINUE]

2. The corporation at its option shall be entitled to use as a credit against its Sinking Fund obligation for any year, in an amount equal to $ _____ per share, Preferred shares that the corporation has previously acquired by purchase or redemption, otherwise than through the operation of the Sinking Fund, and for which credit has not previously been taken against any Sinking Fund requirement.

3. On or before the _____ [number, e.g., 90th] day next following each Sinking Fund payment date, the cash in the Sinking Fund shall be used to acquire _____ percent of the total number of Preferred shares previously issued, by purchase, at a price or prices not exceeding $ _____ per share, or by redemption, at $ _____ per share, in the manner provided in paragraph _____ [designation of paragraph that describes redemption rights] of this Article V, in each case plus accrued dividends on those shares to the date of purchase or redemption that shall be paid from the general funds of the corporation and not from the Sinking Fund, or by both purchase and redemption. On retirement of all Preferred shares, any cash remaining in the Sinking Fund in excess of that required to complete payment for any shares purchased or agreed to be purchased, or to redeem shares called for redemption through the operation of the Sinking Fund, shall become a part of the general funds of the corporation.

[Optional:]

4. At its option, the corporation may, on the same terms and conditions as the Sinking Fund payments required by this paragraph (d) annually, make additional payments to, and make purchases or redemptions of Preferred shares pursuant to, the Sinking Fund, commencing on _____[date]. Any such optional Sinking Fund payments and purchases may not exceed in any 12-month period commencing _____[date], a sum equal to _____ percent of the aggregate liquidation value of the Preferred shares previously issued, shall not be cumulative, and shall not result in a credit against the Sinking Fund requirements of the corporation for any year.

§ 3.251 Conversion Rights With Antidilution Provisions Based on Conversion Price Theory

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The provisions below may be included in the articles to grant the holders of redeemable preferred shares the right to convert their shares into common stock. Also included are protective provisions that protect against dilution of these holders' conversion rights and that are based on a conversion price theory [see [h], below]. For alternative conversion rights with antidilution provisions based on the "market price theory," see § 3.252.

If preferred shareholders are to have the right to convert their shares into common shares, that right must be stated in the articles [see Corp. Code §§ 202(e)(3), 403]. The articles must either set forth the terms and conditions of conversion rights or grant the board of directors authority to determine the rights for a particular class or series [see Corp. Code §§ 202(e)(3), 403]. The provisions in this form may be used in the first situation, that is, when the articles will set forth the particular conversion rights. They should be included as a separately designated paragraph in the article that describes the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on the respective classes or series of shares (commonly referred to as the "preference statement"). A skeleton form preference statement that may be used for this purpose is set forth in § 3.242[2]]. That form also lists the other provisions that ordinarily should be included in the preference statement, for example, provisions for dividends, redemption, and liquidation preferences.

Because conversion rights may vary with each series of preferred shares, it may be preferable to include in the articles a provision that grants authority to the board of directors to determine conversion rights for all or some of the series rather than to specify particular conversion rights in the articles. For article provisions that grant the board authority to fix some or all of the rights, preferences, privileges and restrictions for preferred shares (including, for example, conversion rights), see § 3.203[2], Article V; and §§ 3.240 and 3.241. If those provisions are used, the board, when it subsequently determines conversion rights, must do so by adopting a resolution and filing a certificate of determination with the Secretary of State [see Corp. Code § 401]. The provisions below, with some modification, could then be included in that certificate. Requirements for certificates of determination are discussed in § 3.310.

[b] General Definition of "Conversion"

The term "conversion"may be broadly defined as the act of exchanging securities of one class for securities of a different class, with the exchange being effected by a surrender of the original security and the issuance to the holder of a new security in its place. Convertible corporate securities may, pursuant to their terms, be changed or exchanged for other securities, such as bonds or notes exchangeable for preferred or common stock, or preferred stock exchangeable for common stock.

[c] Authority of Corporation to Issue Convertible Shares

When so provided in its articles, a corporation may issue shares convertible within the time or on the happening of one or more specified events and on the terms and conditions as are stated in its articles [Corp. Code § 403(a)]:

- At the option of the holder only or automatically on the happening of one or more specified events, into shares of any class or series; or

- If it is a corporation that has a license or franchise from a governmental agency to conduct its business or a member corporation of a national securities exchange registered under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, the license, franchise, or membership of which is conditioned on some or all of the holders of its stock possessing prescribed qualifications, to the extent necessary to prevent the loss of that license, franchise, or membership, or to reinstate it, at the option of the corporation, into shares of any class or series or into any other security of the corporation.

- If the corporation is a "listed corporation" [see Corp. Code § 301.5(d) (definition)], both at the time of the original issuance of the convertible shares and at the time of the conversion, at the option of the corporation into shares of any class or series, or into any other security of the corporation, provided that any securities received on conversion are listed or qualified for trading on a stock exchange or market system.

Unless otherwise provided in the articles, a corporation may issue its debt securities convertible into other debt securities or into shares of the corporation within the time or on the happening of one or more specified events and on the terms and conditions as are fixed by the board of directors [Corp. Code § 403(b)].

Unless the articles provide otherwise, the board of directors may issue shares, options, or securities having conversion or option rights [see Corp. Code § 404] without first offering them to shareholders of any class [Corp. Code § 406]. For article provisions granting preemptive rights to preferred shareholders, see § 3.262.

[d] Regulations of Commissioner of Corporations

Preferred stock to be sold under an open qualification [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.001(f) (definition)] by an unseasoned corporation [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.001(g) (definition of "seasoned corporation")] should normally be convertible into common stock on a fair and equitable basis or be fully participating and nonredeemable [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.9]. A limited offering qualification may, however, be approved by the Corporations Commissioner for an unseasoned corporation to sell nonconvertible and nonparticipating senior securities if they are to be issued to the holders of the residual equity securities on a pro rata basis or if the circumstances otherwise justify [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.9].

If the corporation proposes to issue convertible preferred shares, the corporate articles or other charter document [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.001(a)] should normally contain an appropriate antidilution provision providing for an adjustment of the number of shares into which such shares are convertible or the number of shares purchasable on any stock split or stock dividend or other recapitalization of the corporation [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.6; see [h], below]. The charter documents may also provide for a similar adjustment on the issuance of additional common stock by the corporation for a consideration less than the conversion price of the preferred shares or the then current market price for the common stock [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.6].

Preferred shares that are not convertible must ordinarily be granted certain voting or other protective rights [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 260.140.2, 260.140.3]. Illustrative protective provisions are included and discussed in § 3.255.

[e] Effect of Conversion

When a corporation reacquires its own shares, those shares are restored to the status of authorized but unissued shares unless the articles prohibit the reissue of reacquired shares [Corp. Code § 510(a)]. The term "reacquires" means that a corporation purchases, redeems, acquires by way of conversion to another class or series, or otherwise acquires its own shares or that issued and outstanding shares cease to be outstanding [Corp. Code § 510(d)].

If a corporation reacquires authorized shares of a class or series and the articles prohibit the reissuance of those shares, the following rules apply [Corp. Code § 510(b)]:

- If all of the authorized shares of that class or series are reacquired then (1) that class or series is automatically eliminated; (2) in the case of reacquisition of all authorized shares of a series, the authorized number of shares of the class to which the shares belonged is reduced by the number of shares so acquired; and (3) the articles must be amended to eliminate any statement of rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions relating solely to that class or series.

- If less than all of the authorized shares but all of the issued and outstanding shares of that class or series are reacquired, the authorized number of shares of the class or series is automatically reduced by the number of shares reacquired and the board must determine either (1) to eliminate that class or series, which requires amending the articles to eliminate any statement of rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions relating solely to that class or series; or (2) not to eliminate that class or series, which requires amending the articles to reflect that reduction of the number of authorized shares of that class or series by the number of reacquired shares.

- If less than all of the authorized shares and less than all of the issued and outstanding shares of a class or series are reacquired, the authorized number of shares of that class or series is automatically reduced by the number of reacquired shares and the articles must be amended to reflect that reduction.

If a corporation reacquires authorized shares of a series of shares and the articles prohibit only the reissuance of those shares as shares of the same series, the following rules apply [Corp. Code § 510(c)]:

- If all of the authorized shares of that series are reacquired, then that series is automatically eliminated, the articles must be amended to eliminate any statement of rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions relating solely to that series, and the board must determine either (1) to return those shares to the status of authorized but undesignated shares of the class to which they belong or (2) to eliminate those shares entirely. In either case, the articles must be amended to reflect the reduction in authorized shares of that series and any effect on the class to which that series belongs.

- If all of the issued and outstanding shares of that series, but less than all of the authorized shares of that series, are reacquired, the board must determine either (1) to eliminate that series, which requires amending the articles to eliminate any statement of rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions relating solely to that series; or (2) not to eliminate that series, which requires amending the articles to reflect the return of the reacquired shares to the status of authorized but undesignated shares of the class to which they belong.

- If less than all of the issued and outstanding shares of that series are reacquired, the authorized number of shares of that series is automatically reduced by the number of reacquired shares and the board must determine either (1) to return those shares to the status of authorized but undesignated shares of the class to which they belong or (2) to eliminate those shares entirely. In either case, the articles must be amended to reflect the reduction in authorized shares of that series and any effect on the class to which that series belongs.

A certificate of amendment must be filed in accordance with statutory requirements, reflecting any elimination or reduction of authorized shares, and any related elimination from the articles of the designation and the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions of any series or class of stock that is eliminated [Corp. Code § 510(f); see Corp. Code §§ 900-911], except that approval by the outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 152] ordinarily required is not required to adopt this type of amendment [Corp. Code § 510(f)].

These corporate reaquisition rules may be varied in the articles [Corp. Code § 510(e)]. Further, nothing in these rules is intended to alter or otherwise affect the powers of the board to amend the articles [Corp. Code § 510(f); see Corp. Code §§ 202, 401].

[f] Amendment of Articles to Increase Shares

If at the time option or conversion rights are granted, or at any later time, the corporation is not authorized by its articles to issue all the shares required to satisfy those rights, if and when exercised, the additional number of shares required to be issued on the exercise of those rights must be authorized by an amendment to the articles [Corp. Code § 405(a)].

If approval of the outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 152 (definition)] to issue options or convertible securities has been obtained, the board may, without further approval of the outstanding shares, amend the articles to increase the authorized shares of any class or series to that number as will be sufficient from time to time, when added to the previously authorized but unissued shares of such class or series, to satisfy any option or conversion rights [Corp. Code § 405(b)].

[g] Fractional Shares

A corporation may, but is not required to, issue fractions of a share originally or on transfer, for example, in connection with a conversion. For an original issue, if the corporation does not issue fractional shares, it must comply with certain requirements for disposition of any fractional interests [see Corp. Code § 407]. If the fraction of a share that any person would otherwise be entitled to receive in a merger or reorganization is less than one-half of one percent of the total shares that person is entitled to receive, a merger or reorganization agreement may provide that fractions of a share will be disregarded or that shares issuable in the merger will be rounded off to the nearest whole share [Corp. Code § 407]. This form prohibits the issuance of fractional shares but provides for compensation for fractional interests by payment in cash or the issuance of nondividend bearing and nonvoting scrip certificates [see [2], P 3, below].

[h] Protection Against Dilution of Conversion Rights

Convertible preferred share provisions should normally provide for protection against dilution of the conversion right by adjusting the number of shares into which the preferred shares are convertible on any stock dividend, stock split, or other recapitalization of the corporation. Many investors also seek antidilution protection in the event that the corporation later has a "down round" of financing and issues capital stock at a price per share lower than the current price. Antidilution provisions may adjust the conversion rights when additional common stock is issued for a consideration less than the conversion price of the preferred shares or less than the then current market price for the common shares [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.6].

Two general theories exist as to the extent of protection that should be provided in the case of an offering of additional common shares for cash or property. These are commonly referred to as the "conversion price theory" and the "market value theory". Discussion of either theory requires an understanding of how the conversion price of common shares into which preferred shares are convertible is determined. In effect, that price is generally the price per common share that the holder of the convertible preferred pays by exercising the conversion privilege. It is usually determined by dividing the original public offering price (or original issuance price) of a share of convertible preferred, by the number of common shares into which that preferred share is initially convertible. For example, if a preferred share originally issued by the corporation for $100 is convertible into four shares of common, the conversion price of the common is $25 per share.

The "conversion price theory" maintains that the conversion right is diluted if the corporation subsequently issues common shares at less than the conversion price (as in effect from time to time) or gives to common shareholders the right to subscribe to additional common shares at a price below that conversion price even though the later proposed issuance or subscription price is approximately the market value of the common at that time. This form contains provisions intended to compensate for that dilution by proportionately decreasing the "conversion price," that is, the price at which common shares shall be deliverable on conversion of the preferred, in case of an additional issue at less than the conversion price in effect at that time.

The "market value theory" is discussed in § 3.252, which also contains antidilution clauses based on that theory. Market value dilution clauses should be used only by a corporation whose shares have a readily ascertainable market value, that is, one whose shares are regularly traded [Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Laws, Form 4.19, n. 26].

Antidilution protection, whether based on the "conversion price" or "market value" theory, has two broad variations: the "full ratchet" and "weighted average" methods. In turn, there are many variations on the formulae used to apply the "weighted average" method. In general, "full ratchet" antidilution protection provides that if the corporation issues additional equity securities at a price below the then-effective "conversion" price, the "conversion price" will be reduced to the price at which the new equity securities are issued, thus treating the holders of the preferred stock as if they had purchased their preferred stock at the lower price paid by purchasers of the new equity securities. In contrast, weighted average antidilution protection determines how many shares of stock the new purchasers could have purchased if they had paid the same price as the preferred, and adjusts the "conversion price" by a fraction based on a calculation of the number of "additional" shares issued as a result of the lower price paid by the purchasers of the new equity securities.

The harshest form of anti-dilution protection from the perspective of the corporation is "full-ratchet" anti-dilution, which adjusts the conversion price to the lower price paid in the "down round" of financing. An example of "full ratchet" antidilution is illustrated in the first alternative to § 4(d) of this form. Alternatively, investors and the corporation may agree to use "weighted average" antidilution protection in the event of a "down round" of financing. When this type of anti-dilution protection is triggered, the conversion price (or prices if there are multiple series of preferred shares with anti-dilution protection) is multiplied by a formula, the numerator of which is the number of shares which the aggregate consideration received by the corporation in the "down round" would purchase at the then-applicable conversion price plus some factor X, and the denominator of which is the number of shares purchased in the "down round" plus X. There are two general types of weighted average antidilution--"narrow-based" and "broad-based." The most restrictive narrow-based antidilution formula defines "X" as outstanding common shares only, while the most expansive broad-based anti-dilution formula defines X as outstanding common shares, common shares issuable upon conversion of the preferred shares, options issued or issuable under the current stock option plan, and any other security issued or issuable by the corporation. As the numerator and denominator become larger, the adjustment to the conversion price becomes smaller. As the factor X becomes smaller, the adjustment to the conversion price moves closer to a full-ratchet adjustment. In most cases, the investors and the corporation agree on some form of weighted average anti-dilution in between the extremes discussed above. An example of a standard weigted average formula is illustrated in the second alternative to P 4(d) of this form.

[i] Drafting Considerations

At a minimum, provisions in the articles that cover conversion rights should specify the following:

- Circumstances under which the conversion rights may be exercised.
- Method required to exercise the election to convert, for example, by notice.
- Conversion price of common shares and the price of preferred shares for the purpose of conversion.
- Whether or not fractional shares will be issued on conversion, and if so, the procedure for issuing fractional shares.
- Antidilution provisions that adjust the conversion price when changes, such as stock splits or the exchanges of securities, are made in the capital structure of the corporation, and additional equity securities are issued at a lower price.
- Status of preferred shares after conversion, including any prohibition against their reissuance;
- Date when the converting shareholder becomes a common shareholder.
- Authorization for and reservation of common shares sufficient to cover the conversion.

[2] FORM

Conversion Rights With Antidilution Provisions Based on Conversion Price Theory

V. Conversion Rights

The holder of any Preferred shares shall have conversion rights as follows:

1. Right to Convert. The Preferred shares shall be convertible, at the option of the holders of the shares, at any time after the issuance of those shares, at the office of the Corporation or any transfer agent for those shares. The Preferred shares shall be converted into that number of fully-paid and non-assessable Common shares as is determined by dividing the original purchase prices for those Preferred shares by the conversion price for those preferred shares, determined as hereinafter provided, in effect at the time of conversion. The initial coversion price for [each series of] the Preferred Shares is _____ [state initial per-share conversion of preferred shares or, if one more than one series of preferred shares will be issued: as follows: _____ (identify each series of shares and state initial per-share conversion price for each series)]. _____ [This conversion price or Each of these conversion prices] shall be subject to adjustment as provided below.

2. Automatic Conversion. The Preferred shares shall automatically be converted into Common shares at the then effective Conversion Prices [for that series of Preferred shares] upon the earlier of _____ [describe specific event or events, e.g., (a) the closing of a firm committment underwritten public offering pursuant to an effective registration statement under the Securities Act of 1933, as amended, covering the offer and sale of Common shares for the account of the Corporation to the public with aggregate proceeds to the Company in excess of $10,000,000 (before deduction for underwriters' commissions and expenses) and a per-share price of not less than $ _____ per share (appropriately adjsuted for any stock combination, stock split, stock dividend, recapitalization, or other similar transaction, or (b) the date on which a total of 50 percent of the [shares of that series of] Preferred shares originally issued have been converted into Common shares (each such event is an "Automatic Conversion"). In the event of an Automatic Conversion of the Preferred shares upon a public offering as stated above, the person or persons entitled to receive the Common shares issuable on that conversion of Preferred shares shall not be deemed to have converted those Preferred shares until immediately prior to the closing of that sale of securities].

3. Mechanics of Conversion. No fractional Common shares shall be issued upon conversion of Preferred shares. All Common shares (including fractions thereof) issuable upon conversion of more than one share of Preferred shares by a holder of Preferred shares shall be aggregated for purposes of determining whether the conversion would result in the issuance of any fractional share. If, after the aforementioned aggregation, the conversion would result in the issuance of a fraction of a share of Common shares, the Corporation shall pay, in lieu of issuing any fractional shares to which the holder would otherwise be entitled, cash equal to that fraction multiplied by the then-effective conversion price for [that series of] Preferred shares. Before any holder of Preferred shares shall be entitled to convert those shares into full Common shares and to receive certificates for Common shares, the holder shall (a) give written notice to the Corporation, at the office of the Corporation or of any transfer agent for the Preferred shares, that he or she elects to convert the same, and (b) surrender the certificate or certificates for those Preferred shares, duly endorsed, at the office of the Corporation or of any transfer agent for the Preferred shares, or notify the Corporation or its transfer agent that the certificates have been lost stolen, or destroyed, and execute an agreement satisfactory to the Corporation to indemnify the Corporation from any loss incurred by it in connection with those certificates [if preferred shares are convertible automatically, add:; provided, however, that in the event of an Automatic Conversion, the outstanding Preferred shares shall be converted automatically without any further action by the holders of those shares and whether or not the certificates representing those shares are surrendered to the Corporation or its transfer agent, and provided further that the Corporation shall not be obligated to issue certificates evidencing the Common shares issuable upon such an Automatic Conversion unless the certificates evidencing those Preferred shares are either delivered to the Corporation or its transfer agent as provided above, or the holder notifies the Corporation or its transfer agent that the certificates have been lost stolen, or destroyed, and executes an agreement satisfactory to the Corporation to indemnify the Corporation from any loss incurred by it in connection with those certificates]. The Corporation shall, as soon as practicable after such a delivery, or the execution of such an agreement and indemnification in the case of a lost certificate, issue and deliver at that office to that holder of Preferred shares a certificate or certificates for the number of Common shares to which that holder is entitled, and a check payable to the holder in the amount of any cash amounts payable as the result of a conversion into fractional Common shares. The conversion shall be deemed to have been made immediately prior to the close of business on the date of surrender of the Preferred shares to be converted [, or in the case of Automatic Conversion, on the date of closing of the offering or the date on which a total of 50 percent of the shares of (that series of) Preferred shares originally issued have been converted into Common shares, as applicable,] and the person or persons entitled to receive the Common shares issuable upon conversion shall be treated for all purposes as the record holder or holders of those Common shares on that date.

4. Adjustments to Conversion Price.

(a) Adjustments for Dividends, Splits, Subdivisions, Combinations, or Consolidation of Common Shares. In the event the outstanding Common shares shall be increased by stock dividend payable in Common shares, stock split, subdivision, or other similar transaction occurring after the filing of these [Amended and Restated] Articles of Incorporation, into a greater number of Common shares, the Conversion Price then in effect for [each series of] Preferred shares shall, concurrently with the effectiveness of that event, be decreased in proportion to the percentage increase in the outstanding number of Common shares. In the event the outstanding Common shares shall be decreased by reverse stock split, combination, consolidation, or other similar transaction occurring after the filing of these [Amended and Restated] Articles of Incorporation, into a lesser number of Common Shares, the Conversion Price then in effect for [each series of] Preferred Shares shall, concurrently with the effectiveness of that event, be increased in proportion to the percentage decrease in the outstanding number of Common shares.

(b) Adjustments for Other Distributions. In the event the Corporation at any time, or from time to time makes, or fixes a record date for the determination of holders of Common shares entitled to receive, any distribution payable in securities of the Corporation other than Common shares and other than as otherwise adjusted in this Article, then and in each such event provision shall be made so that the holders of Preferred shares shall receive upon conversion thereof, in addition to the number of Common shares receivable thereupon, the amount of securities of the Corporation that they would have received had their Preferred shares been converted into Common shares on the date of that event and had they thereafter, during the period from the date of that event to and including the date of conversion, retained those securities receivable by them during that period, subject to all other adjustments called for during that period under this Article with respect to the rights of the holders of the Preferred shares.

(c) Adjustments for Reclassification, Exchange and Substitution. If the Common shares issuable upon conversion of the Preferred shares shall be changed into the same or a different number of shares of any other class or classes of stock, whether by capital reorganization, reclassification, or otherwise (other than a subdivision or combination of shares provided for above), the Conversion Price then in effect for each series of Preferred shares shall, concurrently with the effectiveness of the reorganization or reclassification, be proportionately adjusted so that the Preferred shares shall be convertible into, in lieu of the number of Common shares that the holders would otherwise have been entitled to receive, a number of shares of that other class or classes of stock equivalent to the number of Common shares that would have been subject to receipt by the holders upon conversion of their Preferred shares immediately before that change.

[EITHER, to provide "full-ratchet" anti-dilution, which is the harshest form of antidilution protection from the perspective of the corporation:]

(d) Adjustments Upon Issuance of Additional Stock. If the Corporation shall issue "Additional Stock" (as defined below) for a consideration per share less than the Conversion Price for [any series of] Preferred shares then in effect on the date and immediately prior to that issue, then and in that event, the Conversion Price [or Conversion Prices, as applicable,] shall be reduced concurrently with that issue, to a price equal to the aggregate consideration paid per share in that issue.

[OR, to provide a standard weighted average formula for antidilution protection (see discussion in comment to this form), include the following:]

(d) Adjustments Upon Issuance of Additional Stock. If the Corporation shall issue "Additional Stock" (as defined below) for a consideration per share less than the Conversion Price for [any series of] Preferred shares then in effect on the date and immediately prior to that issue, then and in that event, the Conversion Price shall be reduced, concurrently with that issue, to a price (calculated to three decimal places) determined by multiplying that Conversion Price by a fraction (i) the numerator of which shall be the number of Common shares outstanding immediately prior to that issue (including all Common shares issuable upon conversion of the outstanding Preferred shares and all Common shares issuable upon exercise of all outstanding options) plus the number of Common shares that the aggregate consideration received by the Corporation for the total number of Additional Stock so issued (or deemed to be issued) would purchase at that Conversion Price; and (ii) the denominator of which shall be the number of Common shares outstanding immediately prior to that issue (including Common shares issuable upon conversion of the outstanding Preferred shares and all Common shares issuable upon exercise of all outstanding options) plus the number of shares of Additional Stock so issued.

[CONTINUE]

For purposes of this Paragraph 4, "Additional Stock" shall mean all Common shares issued by the Corporation after the date on which shares of the applicable Preferred shares were first issued other than Common shares issued or issuable at any time (i) upon conversion of the Preferred shares; (ii) to officers, directors, and employees of, and consultants to, the Corporation after the date on which shares of the applicable Preferred shares were first issued as designated and approved by the Board of Directors; (iii) in connection with equipment leasing or bank financing transactions approved by the Corporation's Board of Directors; (iv) as a dividend or distribution in Preferred shares; or (v) as described in subparagraphs (a), (b) and (c) of this Paragraph 4.

For the purpose of making any adjustment in the Conversion Price as provided above, the consideration received by the Corporation for any issue or sale of Common shares will be computed as follows:

(i) To the extent it consists of cash, as the amount of cash received by the Corporation before deduction of any offering expenses payable by the Corporation and any underwriting or similar commissions, compensation, or concessions paid or allowed by the Corporation in connection with the issue or sale;

(ii) To the extent it consists of property other than cash, at the fair market value of that property as determined in good faith by the Corporation's Board of Directors [in accordance with the provisions of the applicable provisions, if any, of _____ (Article or Section) _____ (number of article or section, if any, governing liquidation preferences)]; and

(iii) If Common shares are issued or sold together with other stock or securities or other assets of the Corporation for a consideration which covers both, as the portion of the consideration so received that may be reasonably determined in go faith by the Board of Directors to be allocable to those Common shares.

If the Corporation (i) grants any rights or options to subscribe for, purchase, or otherwise acquire Common shares, or (ii) issues or sells any security convertible into Common shares, then, in each case, the price per Common share issuable on the exercise of the rights or options or the conversion of the securities will be determined by dividing the total amount, if any, received or receivable by the Corporation as consideration for the granting of the rights or options or the issue or sale of the convertible securities, plus the minimum aggregate amount of additional consideration payable to the Corporation on exercise or conversion of the securities, by the maximum number of Common shares issuable on the exercise of conversion. Such a grant, issue, or sale will be considered to be an issue or sale for cash of the maximum number of Common shares issuable on exercise or conversion at the price per share determined under this subparagraph, and the Conversion Price will be adjusted as provided above to reflect (on the basis of that determination) the issue or sale. No further adjustment of the Conversion Price will be made as a result of the actual issuance of Common shares on the exercise of any such rights or options or the conversion of any such convertible securities.

On the redemption or repurchase of any such securities, or the expiration or termination of the right to convert into, exchange for, or exercise with respect to, Common shares, the Conversion Price will be readjusted to the price that would have been obtained had the adjustment made upon their issuance been made upon the basis of the issuance of only the number of those securities that were actually converted into, exchanged for, or exercised with respect to, Common shares. If the purchase price or conversion or exchange rate provided for in any such security changes at any time, then, at the time any such change becomes effective, the Conversion Price then in effect will be readjusted forthwith to the price that would have been obtained had the adjustment made upon the issuance of those securities been made upon the basis of (i) the issuance of only the number of Common shares theretofore actually delivered upon the conversion, exchange or exercise of those securities, and the total consideration received therefor, and (ii) the granting or issuance, at the time of the change, of any of those securities then still outstanding for the consideration, if any, received by the Company therefor and to be received on the basis of that changed price or rate.

5. No Impairment. [Except as provided in the protective covenants provisions, as applicable,] [T]he Corporation will not, by amendment of its Articles of Incorporation or through any reorganization, transfer of assets, consolidation, merger, dissolution, issue or sale of securities, or any other voluntary action, avoid or seek to avoid the observance or performance of any of the terms to be observed or performed under this Article by the Corporation, but will at all times in good faith assist in the carrying out of all the provisions of this Article and in the taking of all action that may be necessary or appropriate in order to protect the conversion rights of the holders of the Preferred shares against impairment.

6. Certificate as to Adjustments. On the occurrence of each adjustment or readjustment of the Conversion Price of each series of Preferred shares, the Corporation at its expense shall promptly compute that adjustment or readjustment in accordance with the terms of this Article, and furnish to each holder of Preferred shares a certificate setting forth that adjustment or readjustment and showing in detail the facts upon which that adjustment or readjustment is based. The Corporation shall, upon the written request of any holder of Preferred shares, furnish or cause to be furnished to that holder a like certificate setting forth (a) those adjustments and readjustments, (b) the Conversion Price at the time in effect, and (c) the number of Common shares and the amount, if any, of other property which at the time would be received upon the conversion of the Preferred shares.

7. Notices of Record Date. In the event that this Corporation shall propose at any time:

(a) To declare any dividend or distribution upon its Common shares, whether in cash, property, stock, or other securities, whether or not a regular cash dividend and whether or not out of earnings or earned surplus;

(b) To offer for subscription pro rata to the holders of any class or series of its stock any additional shares of stock of any class or series or other rights;

(c) To effect any reclassification or recapitalization of its Common shares outstanding involving a change in the Common shares; or

(d) To merge or consolidate with or into any other corporation, or sell, lease, or convey all or substantially all its property or business, or to liquidate, dissolve, or wind up;

Then, in connection with each such event, this Corporation shall send to the holders of the Preferred shares:

(a) At least 20 days' prior written notice of the date on which a record shall be taken for that dividend, distribution, or subscription rights (and specifying the date on which the holders of Common shares shall be entitled thereto) or for determining rights to vote in respect of the matters referred to in (c) and (d), above; and

(b) In the case of the matters referred to in (c) and (d), above, at least 20 days' prior written notice of the date when the events shall take place (and specifying the date on which the holders of Common shares shall be entitled to exchange their Common shares for securities or other property deliverable upon the occurrence of event or the record date for the determination of those holders if that record date is earlier).

Each such written notice shall be delivered personally or given by first class mail, postage prepaid, addressed to the holders of the Preferred shares at the address for each such holder as shown on the books of this Corporation.

8. Issue Taxes. The Corporation shall pay any and all issue and other taxes (other than income taxes) that may be payable in respect of any issue or delivery of Common shares on conversion of Preferred shares under this Article; provided, however, that the Corporation shall not be obligated to pay any transfer taxes resulting from any transfer requested by any holder in connection with any such conversion.

9. Reservation of Stock Issuable on Conversion. The Corporation shall at all times reserve and keep available out of its authorized but unissued Common shares, solely for the purpose of effecting the conversion of the shares of the Preferred shares, such a number of its Common shares as shall from time to time be sufficient to effect the conversion of all outstanding Preferred shares; and if at any time the number of authorized but unissued Common shares shall not be sufficient to effect the conversion of all then outstanding Preferred shares, the Corporation will take such corporate action as may, in the opinion of its counsel, be necessary to increase its authorized but unissued Common shares to that number of shares which shall be sufficient for that purpose, including, without limitation, engaging in best efforts to obtain the requisite shareholder approval of any necessary amendment to its Articles of Incorporation.

10. Status of Converted Stock. In case any series of Preferred shares shall be converted pursuant to this Article, the shares so converted shall resume the status of authorized but unissued Preferred shares undesignated as to series.

§ 3.252 Conversion Rights of Preferred Shares With Antidilution Provisions Based on Market Value Theory

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form contains provisions that may be included in the articles to grant the holders of redeemable preferred shares the right to convert their shares into common stock. Also included are protective provisions that protect against dilution of these holders' conversion rights and that are based on a market value theory [see [b], below]. These antidilution provisions are not appropriate for use in the articles of a corporation whose common shares are not generally traded in and, therefore, do not have a readily ascertainable market value. For alternative conversion rights with antidilution provisions based on the "conversion price theory," see § 3.251. Specific requirements and drafting considerations for conversion rights are discussed in § 3.251[1].

If preferred shareholders are to have the right to convert their shares into common shares, that right must be stated in the articles [see Corp. Code §§ 202(e)(3), 403]. The articles must either set forth the terms and conditions of conversion rights or grant the board of directors authority to determine the rights for a particular class or series [see Corp. Code §§ 202(e)(3), 403]. The provisions in this form are intended for use in the first situation, that is, when the articles will set forth the particular conversion rights. They should be included as a separately designated paragraph in the article that describes the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on the respective classes or series of shares (commonly referred to as the "preference statement"). A skeleton form preference statement for use under these circumstances is set forth in § 3.242[2]. That form also lists the other provisions that should ordinarily be included in the preference statement, for example, provisions for dividends, redemption, and liquidation preferences.

Because conversion rights may vary with each series of preferred shares, it may be preferable to include in the articles a provision that grants authority to the board of directors to determine conversion rights for all or some of the series rather than to specify particular conversion rights in the articles. For article provisions that grant the board authority to fix some or all of the rights, preferences, privileges and restrictions for preferred shares (including, for example, conversion rights), see § 3.203[2], Article V; and §§ 3.240 and 3.241. If those provisions are used, the board, when it subsequently determines conversion rights, must do so by adopting a resolution and filing a certificate of determination with the Secretary of State [see Corp. Code § 401]. The provisions below, with some modification, could then be included in that certificate. Requirements for certificates of determination are discussed in § 3.310.

[b] Antidilution Adjustment Based on Market Price Theory

Convertible preferred share provisions should normally provide for protection against dilution of the conversion right by adjusting the number of shares into which the preferred shares are convertible on any stock dividend, stock split, or other recapitalization of the corporation. Antidilution provisions may also adjust the conversion rights when additional common stock is issued for a consideration less than the conversion price of the preferred shares or less than the then current market price for the common shares [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.6].

Two general theories exist as to the extent of protection that should be provided in the case of an offering of additional common shares for cash or property. These are commonly referred to as the "conversion price theory" and the "market value theory". Discussion of either theory requires an understanding of how the conversion price of common shares into which preferred shares are convertible is determined. In effect, that price is generally the price per common share that the holder of the convertible preferred pays by exercising the conversion privilege. It is usually determined by dividing the original public offering price (or original issuance price) of a share of convertible preferred, by the number of common shares into which that preferred share is initially convertible. For example, if a preferred share originally issued by the corporation for $100 is convertible into four shares of common, the conversion price of the common is $25 per share.

The "conversion price theory" is described in § 3.251[1][h]. The "market value theory" holds that the conversion right is diluted whenever the corporation issues additional common shares (or rights to subscribe for those shares) for a consideration less than the then current market value of common shares of the corporation, whether or not the consideration is less than the conversion price then in effect. The antidilution provisions in this form [see [2], PP 2, 3, below] provide protection by proportionately increasing the number of common shares issuable on conversion, in the event of an additional issue of common stock at less than market value. They should be used only for a corporation whose shares are commonly traded in and have a readily ascertainable market value.

For discussion of the "full ratchet" and "weighted average" methods of calculating antidilution protection, see § 3.251[1][h].

[2] FORM

Conversion Rights of Preferred Shares With Antidilution Provisions Based on Market Value Theory

V. Conversion of Shares

(e) 1. The Preferred shares [or if this provision applies only to a particular series, designate that series here and in remainder of provision] shall be convertible at the option of the respective holders of the shares [or automatically converted on _____ (either describe specific event or insert: the vote of _____ (specify percent not less than a majority)) of the outstanding Preferred Shares] on or before the _____ day before the date, if any fixed for the redemption of those shares in any notice of redemption given as provided in paragraph _____ [designation of paragraph that provides for redemption rights and procedure]. Before any Preferred shares may be converted into Common shares at the option of the holder, the holder must surrender the certificate or certificates for those shares to be converted into fully paid and nonassessable Common shares of the corporation, at the rate of _____[number] Common shares for each Preferred share so surrendered for conversion; provided, however, that no adjustment shall be made with respect to dividends that may be accrued and unpaid at the date of surrender for conversion [or if shares are uncertificated (see Corp. Code § 191.1), delete all references to share certificates and their surrender in this provision and instead describe required procedure for uncertificated securities (see, e.g., § 3.240[2])]. To exercise this option to convert, a holder of Preferred shares shall surrender for that purpose to the corporation, at any place where the corporation maintains a transfer agent for its Common shares or its Preferred shares, certificates representing the shares to be converted. The holder shall also give written notice to the corporation at that office that the holder elects to convert a specified number or all of the shares represented by the surrendered certificate(s). The notice shall also specify the name or names in which the holder wishes the certificate or certificates for the Common shares to be issued. If a name specified is not that of the holder, the notice shall also state the address of the new holder and any other information required by law. At the time of surrender, the person surrendering the shares to be converted shall be deemed to be the holder of record of the Common shares issuable on conversion, notwithstanding that the share register of the corporation shall then be closed or the certificates representing the Common shares shall not then be actually delivered to that person. The corporation shall, as soon as practicable thereafter, issue and deliver at such office to the holder of Preferred shares converted, or to that holder's nominee or nominees, certificates for the number of full Common shares to which the holder shall be entitled to receive, together with a scrip certificate or cash in lieu of any fraction of a share as provided below.

[If preferred shares are convertible automatically or on a vote of holders, add:]

Preferred shares that are converted on _____ [describe event that causes automatic conversion or event that otherwise triggers conversion] shall on that occurrence be converted into Common shares on the basis set forth above, and Common shares shall thereon be issued and outstanding. The board may order any holders of outstanding certificates for Preferred shares to surrender them for certificates evidencing Common shares. The order may provide that a holder of certificates to be so exchanged is not entitled to vote or to receive dividends or to exercise any other rights of a shareholder until the holder has complied with the order, but this order shall be operative only after notice and only until compliance.

[CONTINUE]

2. The number of Common shares into which Preferred shares may be converted shall be subject to adjustment from time to time in certain cases as follows:

(A) If the corporation subdivides or combines its outstanding Common shares into a greater or smaller number of shares, then in each case, the number of Common shares into which Preferred shares may be converted shall be increased or reduced in the same proportion.

(B) If the corporation sets a record date for the purpose of entitling the holders of its Common shares to receive a dividend or other distribution payable in Common shares or securities convertible into or exchangeable for Common shares, then in each case, the maximum number of Common shares issuable in payment of the dividend or distribution, or on conversion of or in exchange for the securities convertible into or exchangeable for Common shares, shall be deemed to have been issued and to be outstanding as of that record date, and in each case the number of Common shares into which Preferred shares may be converted, shall be increased in proportion to the increase, through the dividend or distribution, of the number of outstanding Common shares.

(C) If the corporation sets a record date for the purpose of entitling the holders of its Common shares to subscribe for additional Common shares on payment of an amount per common share less than the "market value" (as defined in (D), below) per Common share on that date, then in each case the number of Common shares deliverable on the conversion of each Preferred share shall be increased in the ratio that (i) the sum of the number of Common shares outstanding on that record date and the number of Common shares offered bears to (ii) the sum of the number of Common shares outstanding on that record date and the number of Common shares that the aggregate subscription price would purchase at the market value per share of the Common shares on that record date [or provide for adjustment of conversion price based on number of shares actually sold, rather than shares offered, see, e.g., § 3.251[2]]. On the setting of a record date by the corporation for the purpose of entitling the holders of its Common shares to subscribe for shares or other securities convertible into, exchangeable for, or carrying rights of purchase of, Common shares, a record date shall be deemed to have been set for the purpose of entitling the holders of its Common shares to subscribe for the total number of Common shares deliverable on the exercise of those rights of conversion, exchange, or purchase, on payment of an aggregate price equal to the sum of (i) the total consideration payable to the corporation for the stock or other securities so convertible or exchangeable, and (ii) in the case of the stock or other securities carrying those rights but not so convertible or exchangeable, the amount (if any) by which the consideration payable to the corporation for that stock or other securities shall exceed the distributive amounts (excluding dividends) payable on voluntary liquidation of the corporation with respect to that stock or the principal amount of securities, as the case may be, or the redemption price thereof, whichever is higher, and (iii) any additional amount thereafter payable to the corporation on the exercise of the rights of conversion, exchange, or purchase.

(D) The "market value"per share of Common shares at the time as of which the then "market value" is determined shall be deemed to be the average of the daily closing prices for _____ [e.g., 30] consecutive business days selected by the corporation out of the _____ [number, e.g., 40] days immediately preceding the date as of which "market value" is determined. For purposes of the preceding sentence, a "business day" means a day on which the principal stock exchange or other market on which the Common shares are traded was open for at least one-half of its normal business day. The closing price on any day shall be the last sale price, regular way, as reported in a composite published report of transactions that includes transactions on the exchange or other principal markets in which the Common shares are traded or, if there is no such composite report as to any day, the last reported sales price, regular way (or if there is no such reported sale on that day, the average of the closing reported bid and asked prices) on the principal United States securities trading market (whether a stock exchange, NASDAQ, or otherwise) in which the Common shares are traded; provided, however, that if the Common shares are not publicly traded or listed during the time of any computation pursuant to this paragraph, their "market value" for the purposes of computation shall be the fair value as determined in good faith and certified to the corporation by any person agreed on by, and mutually satisfactory to, the President of the corporation and a member of the Board of Directors of the corporation elected by the holders of Preferred shares. However, if those persons are unable to agree on a mutually satisfactory person, or if at the time there is no director in office who was elected by holders of Preferred shares, then in each case the "market value" shall be the fair value as determined in good faith by the Board of Diectors of the corporation.

(E) If there occurs any capital reorganization or any reclassification of the capital stock of the corporation, the consolidation or merger of the corporation with or into another corporation, or the sale or conveyance of all or substantially all of the assets of the corporation to another corporation, each Preferred share shall thereafter be convertible into the same kind and amounts of securities (including shares of stock) or other assets, or both, issuable or distributable to the holders of outstanding Common shares of the corporation on reorganization, reclassification, consolidation, merger, sale, or conveyance, in respect of the number of Common shares into which that Preferred share might have been converted immediately prior to the reorganization, reclassification, consolidation, merger, sale, or conveyance. In any of those cases, appropriate adjustments, as determined by the Board of Directors of the corporation, shall be made by applying the provisions of this paragraph (e) with respect to the rights and interests thereafter of the holders of the Preferred shares, to the end that the provisions set forth (including provisions with respect to changes in, and other adjustments of, the conversion rate) shall thereafter be applicable, as nearly as reasonably may be, in relation to any securities or other assets deliverable on conversion of the Preferred shares.

3. Immediately on adjustment of the amount of Common shares or other securities deliverable on the conversion of Preferred shares, the corporation shall file, at its principal executive office and with any transfer agent or agents for Preferred shares and for Common shares, a statement signed by the Board Chairperson, President, or one of the Vice-Presidents of the corporation, and by its Chief Financial Officer or one of its Assistant Treasurers, stating the adjusted amount of its Common shares or other securities deliverable per Preferred share, calculated to the nearest _____ [fraction, e.g., one one-hundredth (1/100)] of a share, and setting forth in reasonable detail the method of calculation and the facts requiring the adjustment and on which the calculation is based. Each adjustment shall remain in effect until a subsequent adjustment is required.

4. The corporation shall at all times reserve and keep available out of its authorized but unissued Common shares solely the full number of Common shares deliverable on the conversion of all the then outstanding Preferred shares and shall take all action and obtain all permits or orders that may be necessary to enable the corporation lawfully to issue Common shares on the conversion of Preferred shares.

5. No fractions of Common shares shall be issued on conversion. If lieu of fractional shares, nondividend bearing, nonvoting scrip (exchangeable for full shares) shall be issued in form (bearer or registered), and denominations, expiring after a reasonable time and containing any other terms and provisions, as the Board of Directors of the corporation may from time to time determine prior to the issue of the scrip. The corporation may, however, at its option, in lieu of issuing scrip, make equitable provision for the stockholders otherwise entitled to receive scrip as the Board of Directors may determine, including payment of cash, or sale of stock to the extent of that scrip and distribution of the net proceeds or otherwise [or provide other procedure for fractional interests; see, e.g., § 3.251[2] (Corp. Code § 407)].

§ 3.253 Contingent Voting Rights for Cumulative Preferred Shares--To Elect Majority of Directors

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form contains provisions that may be included in the articles to grant the holders of common shares exclusive voting rights in the corporation, subject to the contingent right of holders of cumulative preferred shares to elect a majority of the corporation's board of directors in the event the corporation is in arrears on the payment of dividends to the preferred shareholders. For provisions that grant preferred shareholders the right to elect all directors on the board under those circumstances, see § 3.254.

If used, the provisions in this form should be included as a separately designated paragraph in the article that describes the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on the respective classes or series of shares (commonly referred to as the "preference statement"). A skeleton form preference statement is set forth in § 3.242 [2]. That form lists the other provisions that should ordinarily also be included in the preference statement, for example, provisions for dividends, redemption, and liquidation preferences. For alternative article provisions that grant the board authority to fix some or all of the rights, preferences, privileges and restrictions for preferred shares (including, for example, contingent voting rights), see § 3.203[2], Article V; and §§ 3.240 and 3.241.

[b] Contingent Voting Rights of Preferred Shares

If preferred shares are to be nonvoting, the articles must specifically so provide or the shares will have the same voting right as common shares [see Corp. Code § 700(a)]. Except for the cumulative voting of directors [see Corp. Code § 708] and except as may otherwise be provided in the articles of incorporation, each outstanding share, regardless of class, is entitled to one vote on each matter submitted to a vote of shareholders [Corp. Code § 700(a)].

Preferred shares are often nonvoting but are granted limited voting rights whenever (a) dividends have not been paid for a certain period [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.2], or (b) the preferred shares will be adversely affected by some proposed corporate action such as a change in the stock structure [see, e.g., 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.3; Corp. Code §§ 903, 904].

Under rules of the Commissioner of Corporations, a corporation proposing to issue preferred shares (which are not participating and not convertible on a fair and equitable basis) without full voting rights must provide in its articles or other charter document [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.001(a)] that the holders of the preferred shares have the right to reasonable representation on the board of directors on a cumulative default, whether consecutive or not, of eight quarterly dividends and that this right continues until all arrears in dividends on the preferred shares have been fully paid [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.2]. The right to elect a majority of the board is presumptively reasonable [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.2], and that right is granted in the form below.

Preferred shares may have certain voting rights by law, regardless of restrictions or limitations contained in the articles [see [2], first sentence, below]. For example, an amendment of the articles that would make shares assessable or would authorized remedy by action for the collection of an assessment on fully paid shares must be approved by all of the outstanding shares affected (including preferred to the extent affected) regardless of limitations or restrictions on the voting rights of any affected shares [see Corp. Code § 904]. Other actions that require the approval of the outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 152] include the sale or other disposition of all or substantially all of the corporation's property [Corp. Code § 1001], certain amendments to the corporation's articles [see Corp. Code § 903], and in certain cases, a reorganization by the corporation [Corp. Code § 1201].

[c] Voting Rights in General

A corporation may issue one or more classes or series of shares or both with full, limited, or no voting rights, and with such other rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions as are stated or authorized in its articles. Any denial or limitation of voting rights is not effective unless at the time one or more classes or series of outstanding shares or debt securities, singly or in the aggregate, are entitled to full voting rights (for example, the common shares) [Corp. Code § 400(a)]. All shares of the same class must have the same voting rights unless the class is divided into series. If it is divided into series, all shares of any one series must have the same voting rights [Corp. Code § 400(b)]. Promotional shares [see Corp. Code § 409(a)(1); 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.30] must not be preferred as to voting rights and must have no greater rights per share than securities issued for cash or its equivalent [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.32].

[d] Call and Notice of Special Meeting of Shareholders

The second paragraph of this form outlines the procedure for calling a special meeting of the shareholders to elect directors at any time after the power to elect directors becomes vested in the holders of the preferred shares. These provisions incorporate statutory provisions of the General Corporation Law that designate the persons entitled to call a special meeting [see Corp. Code § 600(d)], specify the notice requirements for a special meeting [see Corp. Code § 601], and establish quorum requirements for meetings [see Corp. Code § 602].

[2] FORM

Contingent Voting Rights for Cumulative Preferred Shares--To Elect Majority of Directors

V. Notice and Voting Rights

(f) Except as otherwise provided by law or by these Articles of Incorporation, the holders of the Common shares issued and outstanding shall have and possess the exclusive right to notice of shareholders' meetings, and the exclusive voting rights and powers, and the holders of Preferred shares shall not be entitled to notice of any shareholders' meeting, or to vote on the election of directors or on any other matter. If, however, at any time _____ [number that is ordinarily eight (see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.2)] or more quarterly dividends, whether consecutive or not, on the Preferred shares shall be in arrears, in whole or in part, the holders of the Preferred shares as a class shall be entitled to elect the smallest number of Directors constituting a majority of the authorized number of directors, and the holders of the Common shares as a class shall be entitled to elect the remaining Director[s]. When all dividends accrued on the outstanding Preferred shares shall have been paid or declared and set apart for payment, the rights of the holders of Preferred shares to vote as provided in this paragraph (f) shall cease, subject to renewal from time to time on the same terms and conditions.

At any time after the voting power to elect a majority of the Board of Directors shall have become vested in the holders of the Preferred shares as provided in this paragraph (f), the Secretary of the corporation may, and on the request of the record holders of at least 10 percent of the Preferred shares then outstanding addressed to the Secretary at the principal executive office of the corporation shall, call a special meeting of the shareholders for the election of directors, to be held at the place and on the notice provided in the Bylaws of the corporation for the holding of annual meetings. If notice of the requested meeting is not given within 20 days after receipt of the request for the meeting, then a person designated by the record holders of at least 10 percent of the Preferred shares then outstanding may call such a special meeting at the place and on the notice above provided, and for that purpose shall have access to the stock books of the corporation. At any meeting so called or at any annual meeting held while the holders of the Preferred shares have the voting power to elect a majority of the Board of Directors, the holders of a majority of the then outstanding Preferred shares, present in person or by proxy, shall constitute a quorum for the election of Directors as provided in this paragraph (f). The terms of office of all persons who are directors of the corporation at the time of the meeting shall terminate on the election at the meeting by the holders of the Preferred shares of the number of directors they are entitled to elect, and the persons so elected as directors by the holders of the Preferred shares, together with the persons, if any, elected as directors by the holders of the Common shares, shall constitute the duly elected directors of the corporation. In the event the holders of the Common shares fail to elect the number of Directors that they are entitled to elect at the meeting, the resulting vacancies may be filled by the directors who are elected.

Whenever the voting rights of holders of the Preferred shares shall cease as provided in this Paragraph (f), the term of office of all persons who are at the time directors of the corporation shall terminate on election of their successors by the holders of the Common shares [or provide for optional special meeting for election of directors by holders of common shares (see, e.g., § 3.254[2], last paragraph of form)].

§ 3.254 Contingent Voting Rights for Cumulative Preferred Shares--To Elect All of Directors

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form contains provisions that may be included in the articles to grant the holders of common shares exclusive voting rights in the corporation, subject to the contingent right of holders of cumulative preferred shares to elect all of the corporation's board of directors in the event the corporation is in arrears on the payment of dividends to the preferred shareholders [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.2]. For provisions that grant preferred shareholders the right to elect only a majority of directors on the board under those circumstances, see § 3.253.

If preferred shares are to be nonvoting, the articles must specifically so provide or the shares will have the same voting right as common shares [see Corp. Code § 700(a)]. Contingent voting rights of preferred shares and voting rights in general are discussed in § 3.253[1].

If used, the provisions in this form should be included as a separately designated paragraph in the article that describes the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on the respective classes or series of shares (commonly referred to as the "preference statement"). For a skeleton form of preference statement, see § 3.242[2]. That form also lists the other provisions that should ordinarily be included in the preference statement, for example, provisions for dividends, redemption, and liquidation preferences. For alternative article provisions that grant the board authority to fix some or all of the rights, preferences, privileges and restrictions for preferred shares (including, for example, contingent voting rights), see § 3.203[2], Article V; and §§ 3.240 and 3.241.

[2] FORM

Contingent Voting Rights for Cumulative Preferred Shares--To Elect All of Directors
V. Notice and Voting Rights

(f) Except as otherwise provided by law or by these Articles of Incorporation, the holders of the Common shares issued and outstanding shall have and possess the exclusive right to notice of shareholders' meetings, and the exclusive voting rights and powers, and the holders of Preferred shares shall not be entitled to notice of any shareholders' meeting, or to vote on the election of directors or on any other matter. If, however, at any time _____ [number that is ordinarily eight (see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.2)] or more quarterly dividends, whether consecutive or not, on the Preferred shares shall be in arrears, in whole or in part, then, at the next meeting of shareholders for the election of directors (unless at the time of the meeting all arrears in dividends shall have been paid and the dividend for the current quarterly dividend period shall have been set aside or paid) and at each such meeting thereafter, until all arrears in dividends on the Preferred shares shall have been paid and the dividend for the current quarterly dividend period shall have been set aside or paid, the voting rights of the holders of the Common shares shall cease and the voting power shall be vested exclusively in the holders of the Preferred shares.

Immediately after the voting rights of the holders of the Common shares shall cease and the voting power shall be vested exclusively in the holders of the Preferred shares, a special meeting of the shareholders of the corporation entitled to vote shall be called by the President or Secretary of the corporation, if requested in writing by the holders of not less than 10 percent of the total number of Preferred shares then outstanding. If the President and Secretary shall, for a period of 20 days after receipt of that request, fail to call the requested meeting, then such a meeting may be called and noticed in the manner provided for annual meetings by the holders of not less than 10 percent of the total number of Preferred shares then outstanding who for that purpose shall have access to the stock books of the corporation. At that special meeting, or, if no special meeting shall have been called, then at the next annual meeting of the shareholders, the shareholders of the corporation then entitled to vote pursuant to this paragraph (f) shall elect a Board of Directors and the term of office of the directors in office at the time of the election shall expire on the election of their successors at the meeting. Nothing contained in this paragraph (f) shall be construed to be a bar to the reelection of any director at such a meeting. At any meeting so called or at any annual meeting held while the holders of Preferred shares have the voting power to elect the Board of Directors, the holders of a majority of the then outstanding Preferred shares, present in person or by proxy, shall be sufficient to constitute a quorum for the election of directors.

When all arrears in dividends on the Preferred shares shall have been paid and the full dividend on those shares for the then current quarterly dividend period shall have been declared and paid or set aside for payment, the voting rights of the Preferred shares shall cease and the exclusive voting power shall again be vested in the holders of the Common shares, each holder of Common shares to have one vote for each Common share held [or if common shares have more or less than one vote per share, modify this provision to correspond to actual voting power of common shares]. Immediately thereafter a special meeting of the shareholders entitled to vote shall be called by the President or Secretary of the corporation if requested in writing by the holders of not less than 10 percent of the number of Common shares then outstanding. If the President and Secretary shall, for a period of 20 days after receipt of that request, fail to call the requested meeting, then the meeting may be called and noticed in the manner provided for annual meetings by the holders of not less than 10 percent of the total number of Common shares then outstanding. At that special meeting, or, if no special meeting shall have been called, then at the next annual meeting of the shareholders, a Board of Directors shall be elected and the term of office of the directors in office at the time of that meeting shall expire on the election of their successors at that meeting. Nothing contained in this paragraph (f) shall be construed to be a bar to the reelection of any director at that meeting.

§ 3.255 Protective Provisions for Preferred Shares

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The provisions in this form may be included in the articles to create certain protections for the holders of preferred shares. These provisions are illustrative only, and additional or alternative provisions should be included depending on the particular type of protection desired and the nature of the corporation's business. Care must be taken to ensure that any protective provisions do not conflict with other provisions in the articles respecting the preferred shares or with the purposes of the corporation. For a more complex and detailed form for protective provisions, see Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Laws, Appendix A, Form 4.23 (Matthew Bender).

The articles must either set forth any protective provisions for the preferred shareholders or grant the board of directors authority to determine those provisions for a particular class or series [see Corp. Code § 202(e)(3); 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.3; see also [b], below]. The provisions in this form are intended for use in the first situation, that is, when the articles will set forth the particular conversion rights. They should be included as a separately designated paragraph in the article that describes the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on the respective classes or series of shares (commonly referred to as the "preference statement"). A skeleton form preference statement is set forth in § 3.242 [2]]. That form lists the other provisions that should also be included in the preference statement, for example, provisions for dividends, redemption, and liquidation preferences.

Because protective provisions may vary with each series of preferred shares, it may be preferable to include in the articles a provision that grants authority to the board of directors to determine those matters for all or some of the series rather than to specify particular protections in the articles. For article provisions that grant the board authority to fix some or all of the rights, preferences, privileges and restrictions for preferred shares (including, for example, protections for preferred shares), see § 3.203[2], Article V, and §§ 3.240 and 3.241. If those provisions are used, the board, when it subsequently determines specific protections, must do so by adopting a resolution and filing a certificate of determination with the Secretary of State [see Corp. Code § 401]. The provisions below, with some modification, could then be included in that certificate. Requirements for certificates of determination are discussed in § 3.310.

[b] Protective Provisions Required by Commissioner of Corporations

Under rules of the Commissioner of Corporations, the articles (or other charter document [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.001(a)]) of a corporation proposing to issue preferred shares that are nonparticipating and nonconvertible must ordinarily provide reasonable protective provisions for the preferred shareholders, including the following, if appropriate [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.3]:

- A provision that the dividends on those shares are cumulative [see § 3.243];

- A provision prohibiting any dividends on common stock during the existence of any arrears on the preferred shares;

- A appropriate requirement for the approval by the vote or written consent of a specified percentage of the preferred shares of any adverse changes in the rights of such shares and of the issuance of any shares having priority over those preferred shares (this form); and

- IAppropriate dividend restrictions on the common stock.

[c] Statutory Protections for Certain Amendments to Articles

A proposed amendment of the articles must be approved by the outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 152] of a class, whether or not that class is entitled to vote on that matter by the provisions of the articles, and by the outstanding voting shares [see Corp. Code § 152] if the amendment would do the following [Corp. Code § 903(a), (c)]:

- Increase or decrease the aggregate number of authorized shares of the affected class, other than an increase incident to certain article amendments resulting from the approved issue of options to purchase shares or of securities convertible into shares of the corporation [see Corp. Code § 405(b)] or a stock split [see Corp. Code § 902(c)].

- Effect an exchange, reclassification or cancellation of all or part of the shares of the affected class, including a reverse stock split but excluding a stock split.

- Effect an exchange, or create a right of exchange, of all or part of the shares of another class into the shares of the affected class.

- Change the rights, preferences, privileges or restrictions of the shares of the affected class.

- Create a new class of shares having rights, preferences or privileges prior to the shares of the affected class, or increase the rights, preferences or privileges or the number of authorized shares of any class having rights, preferences or privileges prior to the shares of that affected class.

- In the case of preferred shares, divide the shares of any class into series having different rights, preferences, privileges or restrictions or authorize the board to do so.

- Cancel or otherwise affect dividends on the shares of the affected class that have accrued but have not been paid.

For purposes of the above requirements, different series of the same class do not constitute different classes for the purpose of voting by classes except when a series is adversely affected by an amendment in a different manner than other shares of the same class [Corp. Code § 903(b)].

A greater vote than is otherwise required under the General Corporation Law for the amendment of articles is required to amend articles in certain ways that would adversely affect shares [see, e.g., Corp. Code § 904 (assessment of shares)], and the articles themselves may require an even greater vote of any class or series for certain corporation actions [Corp. Code § 204(a)(5); see § 3.270 (illustrative provision)]. A provision in the articles requiring the vote of a larger proportion or of all of the shares of any class or series, or the vote or quorum for taking action of a larger proportion or of all of the directors, than is otherwise required by the General Corporation Law cannot be altered, amended, or repealed except by that greater vote unless the articles otherwise provide [Corp. Code § 902(e)].

Protective Provisions for Preferred Shares

V. Preferred Shares

(g) So long as _____ [any or, with respect to those protective provisions that are not provided by statute, consider specifying a minimum amount of outstanding shares as a condition of continuing effectiveness] of the Preferred shares [or if this provision only applies to a particular series of preferred shares, designate that series here and in remainder of this provision] are issued and outstanding, the corporation shall not, without first obtaining the approval (by vote or written consent, as provided by law) of the holders of at least _____ [specify required proportion (see Corp. Code § 710), e.g., two-thirds] of the total number of Preferred shares outstanding:

1. Alter or change any of the rights, preferences, or privileges of the Preferred shares so as to materially adversely affect the Preferred shares; or

2. Increase the authorized number of Preferred shares; or

3. Create any new class of shares having preferences over or being on a parity with the Preferred shares as to dividends or assets, unless the purpose of creation of the new class is, and the proceeds to be derived from its sale and issuance are to be used for, the retirement of all Preferred shares then outstanding; or

4. Purchase any Common shares; or

5. Merge or consolidate with any other corporation, except into or with a wholly owned subsidiary corporation with the requisite shareholder approval; or

6. Sell, convey, or otherwise dispose of, or create or incur any mortgage, lien, charge, or encumbrance on or security interest in or pledge of, or sell and leaseback, all or substantially all of the property or business of the corporation; or

7. Incur, assume, or guarantee any indebtedness (other than that represented by the obligation to pay rent under leases) maturing more than _____ [number, e.g., 18] months after the date on which it is incurred, assumed, or guaranteed by the corporation, except purchase money obligations, obligations assumed as part of the price of property purchased, or the extension, renewal, or refunding of any of those obligations.

§ 3.256 Rights of Common Shares

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This is a provision for articles of a corporation with two classes of shares (common and preferred) [see, e.g., § 3.203[2], art. IV] that sets forth the rights of the holders of the common shares. It states that except as otherwise provided by law or in the articles, the holders of common shares have exclusive voting rights and the exclusive right to receive notice of shareholders' meetings. The reference "except as otherwise provided by law or in the articles" refers to those limited voting rights conferred on preferred shareholders by law [see § 3.253[1][b]] and to any contingent voting rights that may be granted to preferred shareholders for dividend arrearages [see §§ 3.253, 3.254].

These provisions may be included in articles of incorporation (as a separately designated paragraph) in the article that describes the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on the respective classes or series of shares (commonly referred to as the "preference statement"). A skeleton form of preference statement is set forth in § 3.242[2]. That form also lists the other provisions that should ordinarily be included in the preference statement, for example, provisions for dividends, redemption, and liquidation preferences. For alternative forms of preference statements that grant authority to the board of directors to determine some or all of the terms of shares in the preferred class, see § 3.203[2], Article V; and §§ 3.240 and 3.241.

[b] Voting Rights In General

A corporation may issue one or more classes or series of shares or both with full, limited, or no voting rights, and with such other rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions as are stated or authorized in its articles. Any denial or limitation of voting rights is not effective unless at the time one or more classes or series of outstanding shares or debt securities, singly or in the aggregate, are entitled to full voting rights (for example, the common shares) [Corp. Code §

400(a)]. All shares of the same class must have the same voting rights unless the class is divided into series. If it is divided into series, all shares of any one series must have the same voting rights [Corp. Code § 400(b)]. Promotional shares [see Corp. Code § 409(a)(1); 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.30] must not be preferred as to voting rights and must have no greater rights per share than securities issued for cash or its equivalent [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.32].

If preferred shares are to be nonvoting, the articles must specifically so provide or the shares will have the same voting right as common shares [see Corp. Code § 700(a)]. Except for the cumulative voting of directors [see Corp. Code § 708] and except as may otherwise be provided in the articles of incorporation, each outstanding share, regardless of class, is entitled to one vote on each matter submitted to a vote of shareholders [Corp. Code § 700(a)]. Preferred shares are ordinarily nonvoting but are granted limited voting rights whenever (a) dividends have not been paid for a certain period [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.2], or (b) the preferred shares will be adversely affected by some proposed corporate action such as a change in the stock structure [see, e.g., 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.3; Corp. Code §§ 903, 904]. These limited voting rights are further discussed in § 3.253[1][b].

Rights of Common Shares

V. Notice and Voting Rights

(h) Except when otherwise provided by law or by these Articles of Incorporation, the holders of Common shares issued and outstanding shall have and possess the exclusive right to notice of shareholders' meetings and the exclusive voting rights and powers, and the holders of the Preferred shares shall not be entitled to any notice of shareholders' meetings or to vote on the election of directors or on any other matter, except if the notice or vote is required by law or by these Articles of Incorporation.

Subject to all of the rights of the Preferred shares, dividends may be paid on the Common shares, as and when declared by the Board of Directors, out of any funds of the corporation legally available for the payment of dividends.

§ 3.257 Prohibition Against Reissuance of Preferred Shares Acquired by Corporation

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This provision may be included in the articles of a corporation that is to be prohibited from reissuing any of its own shares that it has purchased, redeemed, acquired by way of conversion to another class or series, or otherwise acquired. Without this prohibition in its articles, the shares of the corporation reacquired under those circumstances are restored to the status of authorized but unissued shares [Corp. Code § 510(a); see [b], below].

These provisions may be included in articles of incorporation (as a separately designated paragraph) in the article that describes the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on the respective classes or series of shares (commonly referred to as the "preference statement"). For a skeleton form of preference statement, see § 3.242[2]. That form also lists the other provisions that are commonly included in the preference statement, for example, provisions for dividends, redemption, and liquidation preferences. For alternative preference statements that grant authority to the board of directors to determine some or all of the terms of shares in the preferred class, see § 3.203[2], Article V, and §§ 3.240 and 3.241.

[b] Status of Acquired Shares and Required Amendment of Articles

When a corporation reacquires its own shares, those shares are restored to the status of authorized but unissued shares unless the articles prohibit the reissue of reacquired shares [Corp. Code § 510(a)]. The term "reacquires" means that a corporation purchases, redeems, acquires by way of conversion to another class or series, or otherwise acquires its own shares or that issued and outstanding shares cease to be outstanding [Corp. Code § 510(d)].

If a corporation reacquires authorized shares of a class or series and the articles prohibit the reissuance of those shares, the following rules apply [Corp. Code § 510(b)]:

- If all of the authorized shares of that class or series are reacquired then (1) that class or series is automatically eliminated; (2) in the case of reacquisition of all authorized shares of a series, the authorized number of shares of the class to which the shares belonged is reduced by the number of shares so acquired; and (3) the articles must be amended to eliminate any statement of rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions relating solely to that class or series.

- If less than all of the authorized shares but all of the issued and outstanding shares of that class or series are reacquired, the authorized number of shares of the class or series is automatically reduced by the number of shares reacquired and the board must determine either (1) to eliminate that class or series, which requires amending the articles to eliminate any statement of rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions relating solely to that class or series; or (2) not to eliminate that class or series, which requires amending the articles to reflect that reduction of the number of authorized shares of that class or series by the number of reacquired shares.

- If less than all of the authorized shares and less than all of the issued and outstanding shares of a class or series are reacquired, the authorized number of shares of that class or series is automatically reduced by the number of reacquired shares and the articles must be amended to reflect that reduction.

If a corporation reacquires authorized shares of a series of shares and the articles prohibit only the reissuance of those shares as shares of the same series, the following rules apply [Corp. Code § 510(c)]:

- If all of the authorized shares of that series are reacquired, then that series is automatically eliminated, the articles must be amended to eliminate any statement of rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions relating solely to that series, and the board must determine either (1) to return those shares to the status of authorized but undesignated shares of the class to which they belong or (2) to eliminate those shares entirely. In either case, the articles must be amended to reflect the reduction in authorized shares of that series and any effect on the class to which that series belongs.

- If all of the issued and outstanding shares of that series, but less than all of the authorized shares of that series, are reacquired, the board must determine either (1) to eliminate that series, which requires amending the articles to eliminate any statement of rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions relating solely to that series; or (2) not to eliminate that series, which requires amending the articles to reflect the return of the reacquired shares to the status of authorized but undesignated shares of the class to which they belong.

- If less than all of the issued and outstanding shares of that series are reacquired, the authorized number of shares of that series is automatically reduced by the number of reacquired shares and the board must determine either (1) to return those shares to the status of authorized but undesignated shares of the class to which they belong or (2) to eliminate those shares entirely. In either case, the articles must be amended to reflect the reduction in authorized shares of that series and any effect on the class to which that series belongs.

A certificate of amendment must be filed in accordance with statutory requirements, reflecting any elimination or reduction of authorized shares, and any related elimination from the articles of the designation and the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions of any series or class of stock that is eliminated [Corp. Code § 510(f); see Corp. Code §§ 900-911], except that approval by the outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 152] ordinarily required is not required to adopt this type of amendment [Corp. Code § 510(f)].

These corporate reaquisition rules may be varied in the articles [Corp. Code § 510(e)]. Further, nothing in these rules is intended to alter or otherwise affect the powers of the board to amend the articles [Corp. Code § 510(f); see Corp. Code §§ 202, 401].

§ 3.260 Grant of Authority to Levy Assessments on Shares

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This is an optional provision that may be included in the articles of incorporation to authorize the corporation or its board of directors to levy and collect assessments on shares of any or all classes of shares. If a corporation is to have this power, the authority (and any limitations) must be expressly stated in the articles [see Corp. Code §§ 204(a)(1), 423(a)]. For a statutory "close corporation" [see Corp. Code § 158; see also § 3.202], the authority may instead be granted in a shareholder's agreement [see Corp. Code § 204(a)]. This provision may included in any of the complete sets of articles in this chapter, for example, under the article that contains "optional provisions"[see, e.g., § 3.203[2], art. VI].

Under the Commissioner of Corporation's regulations, securities must ordinarily be nonassessable, except that issuers organized solely to supply services or property to their members on a continuing basis may provide for an equitable assessment corresponding to the services or property supplied [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.7; see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140 (application and variations of Commissioner's standards)].

[b] Statutory Requirements for Assessment of Shares

If the assessment of shares is authorized in a corporation's articles, the board's levy and collection of assessments is subject to any specific limitations stated in the articles and to compliance with the applicable statutory requirements of the General Corporation Law [see Corp. Code § 423]. Shares are not assessable except as provided by those statutory requirements (which are discussed in [b]-[k], below) or as otherwise provided by a statute other than the General Corporation Law [Corp. Code § 423(a)]. The authority of a corporation, if any, granted by its articles to levy and collect assessments on shares is in addition to the right of the corporation to recover the unpaid subscription price of shares or the remainder of the consideration to be paid for those shares [Corp. Code § 423(a)].

If the authority to assess shares is not granted in the original articles but is proposed to be added by amendment to the articles, the amendment must be approved by all of the outstanding shares affected regardless of limitations or restrictions on the voting rights of those shares. The same approval requirement applies to any amendment to authorize remedy by judicial action for the collection of an assessment on fully paid shares [Corp. Code § 904(a); see [c], below (requirement for authorizing remedy of judicial action)]. Similar, but slightly different, provisions apply to amendments to the articles of a mutual water company [see Corp. Code § 904(b)].

[c] Exclusivity of Statutory Remedy

The exclusive remedy for the collection of an assessment on fully paid shares is ordinarily the sale or forfeiture of the shares pursuant to the statutory requirements [see Corp. Code § 423(n)] discussed in [d]-[k], below]. However, remedy by judicial action is permitted if (1) that remedy is authorized either in the original articles or by amendment to the articles adopted by the unanimous consent of the shareholders; and (2) a statement of that remedy appears on the face of the share certificate [Corp. Code § 423(n)]. The provision below does not authorize the judicial remedy and instead requires the board to comply with the statutory requirements for levy and collection discussed in this Comment.

[d] Required Information for Levy of Assessment

Every levy of an assessment must specify the following [Corp. Code § 423(b)]:

- Specify the amount of the levy and to whom and where it is payable;

- Fix, or if proceedings or filings with any governmental or other agency for any qualification, registration, or exemption from either are required as a condition precedent to the levy or payment of an assessment, provide for the establishment of a date on which the assessment is payable;

- Fix a date, not less than 30 or more than 60 days from the date on which the assessment is payable, on which the assessment becomes delinquent if not paid;

- Fix a date, not less than 15 or more than 60 days from the date on which the unpaid assessment becomes delinquent, for the sale of delinquent shares; and

- Fix the hour and place of sale, which place must be in the county in California in which the corporation's principal executive office or principal business office is located [see Corp. Code § 213], or if neither is located in California, in Sacramento.

[e] Notice Requirements

On or before the date an assessment is payable, the secretary of the corporation must give notice of the assessment that is substantially in the form required by statute [see Corp. Code § 423(c)]. The notice must be served personally on each holder of record of shares assessed; provided, however, that in lieu of personal service the notice may be mailed to each shareholder addressed to the last address of the shareholder appearing on the books of the corporation or given by the shareholder to the corporation for the purpose of notice, or if no such address appears or is given, at the place where the principal executive office of the corporation is located. The notice must also be published once in a newspaper of general circulation in the county in which the principal executive office of the corporation is located. If there is no such newspaper in that county, the publication must be made in a newspaper of general circulation in an adjoining county [Corp. Code § 423(d)].

[f] Effect of Assessment as Lien and Waiver of Lien

The assessment is a lien on the shares assessed from the time of personal service or the publication of the notice of assessment, unless the articles provide that an assessment is a lien from the time of the levy [see optional language in form]. Unless otherwise provided by law, a transfer of the shares on the books of the corporation after the lien of an assessment has attached is a waiver of the lien unless a conspicuous legend is placed on the face of any certificate issued on that transfer (or, in the case of uncertificated securities, on the initial transaction statement) setting forth the information that must be included in the required notice of the assessment [see Corp. Code § 423(c) (required contents of notice); see also Ch. 6I, Issuance of Equity Securities, § 6I.200, (required legend) and discussion in § 6I.20 (distinction between certificated and uncertificated shares)]. The legend must be removed if the assessment on the shares evidenced by the certificate is paid or if the shares are sold to pay the assessment or forfeited for nonpayment [Corp. Code § 423(e)].

[g] Postponement of Sale

The date of sale of delinquent shares fixed in any levy of an assessment may be extended from time to time for not more than 30 days at a time by order of the Board of Directors entered on the records of the corporation, or when the sale is restrained by order of a court. Notice of any extension must be given by announcement by the Secretary, or other person authorized to conduct the sale, made at the time and place of sale last previously fixed. If a date of sale of delinquent shares is extended for more than five days, the corporation must mail a notice to the affected shareholder or shareholders that sets forth the new date and time for the sale [Corp. Code § 423(f)].

[h] Penalty Imposed for Payment After Delinquency

If payment is made after delinquency and before the sale, the shareholder must pay a penalty of 5 percent of the amount of the assessment on the shares, in addition to the assessment [Corp. Code § 423(g)].

[i] Sale and Transfer of Shares

At the place and time appointed in the notice of levy any officer or an agent of the corporation must, unless otherwise ordered by the Board of Directors, sell or cause to be sold to the highest bidder for cash as many shares of each delinquent holder of the assessed shares as may be necessary to pay the assessment and charges specified in the notice. The highest bidder is the person offering at the sale to pay the assessment and penalty for the smallest number of shares. The shares purchased must be transferred to the highest bidder on the share register of the corporation and a new certificate for them issued to that bidder. The corporation is not required to accept an offer for a fraction of a share [Corp. Code § 423(h)]. If no bidder offers to pay the amount due on the shares, together with the 5 percent penalty provided in the notice of the levy of the assessment, the shares must be forfeited to the corporation in satisfaction of the assessment and penalty [Corp. Code § 423(i)].

After the sale or forfeiture of shares for nonpayment of an assessment, the holder or owner of the delinquent shares must, if they are certificated securities, surrender the certificate for the shares to the corporation for cancellation or, if they are uncertificated securities, have no further rights with respect to the shares. This duty may be enforced by court order or decree, and the holder or owner is liable to the corporation for damages for failure to surrender the certificate for cancellation on demand without good cause or excuse. Any certificate not so surrendered becomes null and void and ceases to be evidence of the right or title of the holder or any purported transferee. Neither the corporation nor the purchaser of the shares incurs any liability to a purported transferee. The purchaser of shares at a delinquency sale, whenever made, is entitled to the issue of a new certificate representing the shares so purchased [Corp. Code § 423(j)].

[j] Secretary's Certificate of Sale

The certificate of the secretary or of an assistant secretary of the corporation is prima facie evidence of the time and place of sale and any postponement of it, of the quantity and particular description of the shares sold, to whom, for what price, and of the fact of payment of the purchase money. The certificate must be filed in the office of the corporation. Copies of the certificate, certified by the secretary or an assistant secretary of the corporation, are prima facie evidence of the facts stated in the certificate [Corp. Code § 423(k)].

[k] Irregularities in Proceeding

An assessment is not invalidated by the failure of the corporation to publish the notice of assessment or by the nonperformance of any act required by statute in order to enforce payment of the assessment. However, in the case of any substantial error or omission in the course of proceedings for collection of the assessment on any shares, all previous proceedings, except the levy of the assessment, are void as to those shares and must be taken anew [Corp. Code § 423(l)].

No action may be maintained to recover shares sold for delinquent assessments on the ground of irregularity in the assessment, irregularity or defect of the notice of sale, or defect or irregularity in the sale, unless the party seeking to maintain the action first pays or tenders to the corporation, or to the party holding the shares sold, the sum for which the shares were sold, together with all subsequent assessments that may have been paid on the shares, plus interest on those sums from the time they were paid. No action may be maintained unless it is commenced by the filing of a complaint and the issuance of a summons within 6 months after the sale was made [Corp. Code § 423(m)].

Grant of Authority to Levy Assessments on Shares

_____ [Article number]

(_____) The directors of the corporation are hereby granted power and authority to levy and collect from time to time, as in their discretion they may deem advisable, assessments on all of the shares of stock of the corporation at any time issued and outstanding, and shall have all of the authority, rights, and privileges with reference to assessments as are provided by law in respect to corporations the directors of which have the power of assessment; provided, however, that neither any assessment nor the levy of any assessment shall create any personal liability whatsoever of any shareholder of the corporation.

Any assessment on shares authorized by this paragraph constitutes a lien on the shares assessed from the time of the Board's levy of the assessment.

[Optional: Use only if intent is to have lien arise on date of levy rather than on date that otherwise applies, i.e., date notice of assessment is personally served or published in newspaper (see Corp. Code § 423(e)).]

§ 3.261 Authorization for Shareholders to Determine Price or Consideration for Shares

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This optional provision may be included in the articles to give shareholders the right to determine the consideration for which shares shall be issued. To be effective, a provision that grants this right must be included in the articles, or in the case of a close corporation [see Corp. Code § 158; see also § 3.202], in a shareholders' agreement [Corp. Code § 204(a)(8)]. The provision can be made dependent on facts ascertainable outside the articles if certain conditions are met [see Corp. Code § 109.5; see also § 3.200[1][d]]. This form may be included in any of the complete sets of articles in this chapter, for example, as a separately numbered paragraph under the article containing "optional provisions" [see § 3.203[2], art. VI].

If the articles grant the shareholders the right to determine the consideration for shares, that determination must be made by approval of the outstanding shares [Corp. Code § 409(c); see Corp. Code § 152 (definition of "approval of the outstanding shares")]. Those approval requirements are incorporated into the form below.

In the absence of an article provision giving shareholders the right to determine consideration for which shares shall be issued, the board of directors may issue shares for such consideration as is determined from time to time (subject to specific restrictions) [see Corp. Code § 409(a)(1)]. Also, unless the articles provide otherwise, the board may issue shares without shareholder approval and without first offering them to shareholders [see Corp. Code § 406].

If the shareholder right to determine consideration for shares is to apply only under certain circumstances, or to a certain class or series of shares, this form should be modified to precisely describe those circumstances.

§ 3.262 Preemptive Rights to Purchase Shares Granted to Shareholders

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This optional provision may be included in the articles to grant the holders of common shares of the corporation preemptive rights to purchase common shares that may be issued from time to time by the corporation. If shareholders are to have these rights, an express provision to that effect must be included in the articles, or in the case of a close corporation, in a shareholders' agreement [see Corp. Code § 204(a)(2)]. Unless the articles provide otherwise (this form), the board of directors may issue shares, options, or securities having conversion or option rights without first offering them to the shareholders of any class [Corp. Code § 406].

The preemptive rights granted in this form extend only to issuances for cash or certain evidences of indebtedness; if rights will be granted to issuances for other types of consideration, the form should be so modified. Except for certain employee stock purchase or stock option plans [see Corp. Code § 408], unsecured evidences of indebtedness of the purchaser of shares are not lawful consideration for the issuance of shares [Corp. Code § 409(a)(1)].

[2] FORM

Preemptive Rights to Purchase Shares Granted to Shareholders
_____ [Article number]

(_____) Subject to the provisions of this paragraph (_____), the holders of Common shares of the corporation shall have the right to purchase, during the period or periods, at the prices and on the other terms and conditions fixed by the Board of Directors of the corporation, any Common shares of the corporation, and any rights, options, warrants, or other instruments or securities exchangeable for or convertible into Common shares or evidencing any right to subscribe for, purchase, or otherwise acquire Common shares, which may be issued from time to time for cash or evidences of indebtedness payable at sight, on presentation, or on demand, or having a due date of less than _____[number] days at the time of receipt by the corporation.

Notwithstanding the above provisions, and without first offering the same to the shareholders of the corporation, any share or shares of Common stock now or hereafter authorized may be issued as follows:

(1) In exchange for capital stock or indebtedness of the corporation;

(2) To fulfill or comply with any obligation of the corporation to issue Common shares pursuant to any present or future stock option plan, stock purchase, bonus, savings investment, or other stock incentive programs for the benefit of the employees of the corporation or any subsidiary corporation of the corporation; or

(3) On conversion of convertible securities the issuance of which was approved by the holders of the majority of the outstanding Common shares on or prior to that issuance.

The portion of the securities each holder of Common shares shall have the initial right to purchase in any issuance subject to this paragraph (_____) shall be in the same ratio to the total number of securities to be issued as the number of Common shares held of record by that shareholder on the date set for the determination of shares entitled to that right bears to the total number of Common shares at the time outstanding.

[EITHER]

After giving notice of any proposed issuance of Common shares and affording the holders of outstanding Common shares the opportunity to purchase those shares during a period of not less than _____[number] days after the date of giving the notice, the corporation may thereafter sell any of those Common shares that are not purchased by holders of Common shares without further offering them to holders of Common shares.

[OR]

Any offering of Common shares pursuant to the right set forth in this paragraph (_____) shall provide that shareholders who have purchased securities in any such offering shall have the additional right also to purchase any securities not purchased by other shareholders. The portion of the unsold securities each purchasing shareholder shall have the right to purchase pursuant to the additional right shall be in the same ratio to the total number of unsold securities as the number of Common shares purchased by that shareholder pursuant to the initial right bears to the total number of Common shares initially purchased by all shareholders. Unpurchased securities shall be reoffered to purchasing shareholders so that holders of Common shares have a reasonable opportunity to purchase all securities subject to those holders' purchase rights. Any shares then remaining unsold may be sold by the corporation on the terms and conditions set forth in the notice without further offering them to holders of Common shares.

§ 3.263 Restricting Shareholders to Persons with Special Qualifications

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This optional provision may be included in the articles of a corporation that desires to restrict the persons entitled to be shareholders to persons who possess special qualifications. To be effective, a provision of this type must be expressly included in the articles of incorporation or, in the case of a close corporation, in a shareholders' agreement [see Corp. Code § 204(a)(3)]. The provision in the articles can be made dependent on facts ascertainable outside the articles if the manner in which the facts affect the provision is clearly and expressly set forth in the articles, and if certain conditions are met [*see Corp. Restricting Shareholders to Persons with Special Qualifications
_____ [Article number]

(_____) 1. No person may be a shareholder of this corporation unless and until that person meets the following qualifications: _____ [describe specific qualifications].

2. If any shareholder no longer meets those qualifications (a "disqualified shareholder"), the value of the disqualified shareholder's shares shall be determined as set forth below. The corporation (or, if the corporation may not lawfully do so, the other holders of shares of the same class, pro rata) shall have the option to purchase, and the disqualified shareholder shall have the obligation to sell, at the price and on the terms set forth below, all of the shares of the corporation owned beneficially or of record by the disqualified shareholder. On purchase or tender of the purchase price, the disqualified shareholder shall no longer be entitled to any right, privilege, or benefit as a shareholder of this corporation.

3. _____ [*Describe formula or method for determining value of shares and method of payment, e.g., book value, appraised value, capitalized earnings, or negotiation and agreement of the parties and arbitration if agreement is not reached. § 3.264 Restrictions on Transfer of Shares

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form contains optional provisions that may be included in a corporation's articles of incorporation to impose restrictions on the transfer of the corporation's shares. Specifically, it grants the corporation an option to purchase shares of a selling shareholder, and if the option is not exercised by the corporation, the other shareholders have the same option to purchase the shares. These provisions are illustrative only of one specific type of transfer restriction that may or may not be desired by a particular corporation.

Reasonable restrictions on the right to transfer or hypothecate shares of any class or classes or series may be set forth in the articles. However, no restriction of this type is binding with respect to shares issued prior to the adoption of the restriction unless the holders of the affected shares voted in favor of the restriction [Corp. Code § 204(b)]. Any restrictions on transfer are not required to be included in the articles of incorporation, but may instead be included in the corporation's bylaws [see Corp. Code § 212(b)(1); see also Ch. 4, Bylaws (discussion of restrictions)]. This form exempts transfers resulting from the shareholder's death [see [2], P 4, below]. If that contingency will also give rise to the corporation's purchase option rights, a provision to that effect must be added that also contains the method of valuing the shares under those circumstances.

[b] Funding the Purchase

When a corporation acquires its own shares (as contemplated in the form below), it may do so only if it meets the requirements for a "distribution" [see Corp. Code §§ 166, 500-511; see also § 3.249]. If the corporation is unable to purchase the shares, the remaining shareholders may or may not be able to procure sufficient cash to purchased the offered shares. Life insurance provisions or installment provisions are often used in these situations to ensure that either or both the corporation and the remaining shareholders will have sufficient funds to purchase shares offered by a selling shareholders. For examples of these provisions in the context of buy/sell agreements, see Ch. 8D, Buy-Sell Agreements .

[c] Purchase Price

This form provides that the option price of the offered shares will be jointly determined by the corporation and the selling shareholder by use of a specified formula based on the fair market value of the shares. It provides for arbitration in the event the parties are unable to agree on a price. Other methods for valuation may be used, for example those based on book value or appraisal. For methods of determining price deemed presumptively reasonable by the Commissioner of Corporations, see [e], below.

[d] Required Notice of Restriction on Share Certificate

Reference to a restriction on the transferability of shares must be made conspicuously on the share certificate for certificated securities [see Corp. Code § 156.1; see also Com. Code § 8102(a)(4), (15) (definition)] and on the initial transaction statement and written statements in the case of uncertificated securities [Corp. Code § 418(a)(1); see Corp. Code § 191.1; Com. Code § 8102(a)(15), (18) (definition)]. That requirement is referenced in the last paragraph of this form. A separate legend must appear on the share certificate representing shares of a close corporation [see Corp. Code § 418(c), (d)].

[e] Rules of Commissioner of Corporations

Limited, but not open qualification, will be approved for securities to be issued subject to transfer restrictions [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.8]. An "open qualification" is a qualification that authorizes the offer and sale of securities to the public generally, without restriction as to persons or class of persons [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.001(f)].

Limited offering qualifications may be approved for the issuance of securities subject to transfer restrictions, provided the restrictions do not unfairly prejudice the opportunity of the holder to realize a reasonable price for the securities [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.8]. A "limited offering qualification" is a qualification that authorizes the offer and sale of securities only to persons designated by name or class [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.001(e)].

Provisions that base the price at which the corporation or the other shareholders may purchase the securities, in the event of a desire to sell by the holder, on the offer received from a third party, on the appraised value of the securities, or on the book value (except in the case of a type of business where book value is not a significant indication of the value of the securities) are presumptively reasonable. Provisions that absolutely prohibit the transfer of securities or permit a transfer only on the consent of the corporation or the other shareholders or give a purchase option to the corporation or other shareholders regardless of the desire of the shareholder to sell are ordinarily prohibited [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.8(b)(3)].

Since restrictions on a transfer of shares are not favored by the Commissioner [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.8], it is probable that escrow or legend conditions may be imposed [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.141.10] on shares subject to those restrictions unless the original sale of shares is exempt from qualification [see Corp. Code §§ 25100-25105]. Restrictions placed on shares subsequent to their issuance, whether contained in an amendment to the articles or a bylaw, will require qualification even though the original issue was exempt [Corp. Code § 25103(e)(11)]. However, transfer restrictions imposed by an agreement among shareholders do not come under the Commissioner's scrutiny and is frequently the method relied on in lieu of an amendment to the articles or a bylaw [see Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Laws, Appendix A, Form 4.41, n. 16].

[2] FORM

Restrictions on Transfer of Shares

_____ [Article number]

(_____) Except as otherwise provided in this paragraph (_____), no shares of the corporation shall be sold or otherwise disposed of by any shareholder until after written notice of the intended sale or disposition has been delivered to the corporation, and until _____ [number, e.g., 30] days have expired subsequent to a final determination of a price per share for those shares, all as provided below.

1. If any shareholder proposes to sell or otherwise dispose of all or any part of that shareholder's shares, the shareholder shall sign and deliver to the corporation a written notice stating the shareholder's desire to sell or dispose of the designated number of shares. The shareholder and the corporation shall then fix a price per share computed by _____ [describe computation method, e.g., for a corporation with only one class of stock: determining the fair market value of the net assets of the corporation (excluding "goodwill") on the date of the notice, and multiplying the resulting figure by a fraction, the numerator of which shall be one and denominator of which shall be the number of shares of the capital stock of the corporation issued and outstanding, as of the date of the notice]. In the event that the shareholder and corporation cannot agree on the price per share so computed, the shareholder and the corporation shall each appoint an independent arbitrator. If either the shareholder or the corporation fails to appoint an arbitrator, the arbitrator appointed by the other shall have the power to act alone. The arbitrator(s) selected shall determine the price per share computed as above, and their decision shall be final and conclusive on the parties; in the event the two arbitrators cannot agree on the price per share, the two arbitrators shall appoint a third arbitrator. The third arbitrator shall receive the advice and counsel of the two previously appointed arbitrators, but the decision of the third arbitrator acting alone, as to the price per share computed as stated above, shall be final, binding, and conclusive on the parties.

2. For a period of _____ [number, e.g., 30] days following the final determination of the price per share, the corporation shall have the prior option and right to purchase all or any part of those shares at the price so determined. In the event the corporation does not exercise its option within the required time period with respect to all of the shares, each remaining shareholder of the corporation shall have an option for a period of _____ [number, e.g., 10] days next succeeding the expiration of that _____ [same time period first above mentioned for corporation's option, e.g., 30-day] period to purchase pro rata to the number of shares owned by that shareholder the shares remaining for sale at the price per share determined as stated above in subparagraph 1. In the event options have not been exercised with respect to all of the shares specified in the written notice pursuant to the options granted to the corporation and to the shareholders as above set forth, shareholders who exercise their option within the _____ [same time period first above mentioned for shareholders' option, e.g., 10-day] period shall have an additional option for a period of five days next succeeding the expiration of the _____ [same time period first above mentioned for shareholders' option, e.g., 10-day] period to purchase all or any part of the balance of those shares at the price per share determined as stated above in subparagraph 1. In the event there are two or more shareholders who exercise the last mentioned option for a total number of shares in excess of the number available, the shares available for that option shall be allocated to those shareholders pro rata to the number of shares owned by each shareholder.

3. If the corporation and the remaining shareholders do not exercise their options to purchase all the shares set forth in the written notice delivered to the corporation within _____ [same number first used in subparagraph 2 above for corporation's option, e.g., 30] days after the date of final determination of the price per share as stated above, the shareholder giving the written notice may sell all remaining shares that were the subject of the notice to third parties at the price per share determined as stated above, not later than _____ [number, e.g., 30] days after the expiration of the _____ [same time period first used in subparagraph 2 above for corporation's option, e.g., 30- day] period. If the shareholder wishes to sell or otherwise dispose of any such shares at a price per share less than determined as stated above, or on terms more favorable than previously offered to the corporation and the remaining shareholders, as a condition precedent those shares must first have been offered to the corporation and the remaining shareholders on the same terms and conditions in accordance with the procedures and time periods set forth above.

4. The provisions of this paragraph (_____) shall be applicable to all sales or other dispositions of shares of the corporation except (a) any transfer of shares to the spouse, issue, or other heirs of a shareholder on the death of that shareholder, and (b) any change in the respective interests in shares solely between or among persons who beneficially hold shares as community property, joint tenants, or tenants in common [or specify other exceptions or delete this paragraph if there are to be no exceptions].

5. The Secretary or Assistant Secretary of the corporation shall endorse conspicuously on each stock certificate issued by this corporation, the following: "This stock certificate and the shares represented by it are issued and shall be held subject to qualifications, limitations, and restrictions governing the sale or transfer of stock as set forth in _____ [designate location of relevant provision in articles, by Article and paragraph] of the Articles of Incorporation of the corporation. These matters are referred to and made part of this certificate. The holder of this certificate agrees to all of them. Subsequent purchasers of the shares represented by this certificate take subject to all these qualifications, limitations, and restrictions."

§ 3.270 Requiring Vote of Larger Proportion of Shareholders Than Otherwise Required by Law

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a provision that must be included in the articles for any corporation that will require a larger proportion of shareholder vote to approve certain corporate actions than would otherwise be required by the General Corporation Law [see Corp. Code § 204(a)(5)]. Provisions of this type are commonly referred to as a "supermajority" provision. Subject to limited exceptions discussed below [see Corp. Code §§ 303 (vote required for removal of directors), 402.5 (vote by preferred shareholders for voluntary dissolution), 708(c) (number of votes needed to elect directors), 1900 (vote required to elect voluntary dissolution)], the articles (or in the case of a close corporation, a shareholders' agreement) may require the vote of a larger proportion or of all of the shares of any class or series for taking any or all corporate actions than is otherwise required by the General Corporation Law [Corp. Code § 204(a)(5)]. To be effective, the provision must be included in the articles, or in the case of a close corporation, a shareholders' agreement [Corp. Code § 204(a)].

Unless a corporation's articles contain a supermajority provision, most corporate actions that require shareholder approval need only approval by a majority of the outstanding shares, approval by a majority of the outstanding shares entitled to vote, or approval by a majority of the shares represented and voting at a meeting duly held at which a quorum is present (which shares voting affirmatively must constitute a majority of the required quorum) [see Corp. Code §§ 152, 153]. If the articles do contain a provision that requires a larger portion of all of the shares of any class or series for taking a particular corporation action, that provision may not be altered, amended, or repealed except by the same greater vote, unless otherwise provided in the articles [Corp. Code § 902(e)].

Special requirements apply to a corporation with 100 or more shareholders of record that files an amendment of articles or a certificate of determination containing a supermajority provision [see Corp. Code § 710; see also § 3.310[1][b]].

§ 3.271 Approval of Shareholders or Outstanding Shares Required to Hypothecate Corporate Property

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This provision may be included in the articles to require that a corporation obtain the consent of its shareholders prior to mortgaging or otherwise hypothecating any corporate property. Because shareholder approval is not otherwise required under the General Corporation Law in this situation, [see Corp. Code §§ 207(g), 1000; see also [b], below], a provision such as this one must be included in the articles (or for a close corporation, in a shareholders' agreement) in order to be effective [see Corp. Code § 204(a)(5), (9); see also [c], below].

[b] Power of Corporation to Hypothecate Its Property

Subject to any limitations contained in its articles of incorporation and to compliance with other provisions of the General Corporation Law and any other applicable laws, a corporation has the power to assume obligations, enter into contracts, including contracts of guaranty or suretyship, incur liabilities, borrow and lend money, and otherwise use its credit, and secure any of its obligations, contracts, or liabilities by mortgage, pledge, or other encumbrance of all or any part of its property, franchises, and income [Corp. Code § 207(g)]. Specific restrictions on this general power apply in the case of corporate loans to or a corporate guarantee of loans to directors and officers of the corporation [see Corp. Code § 315].

The board of directors may approve any mortgage, deed of trust, pledge, or other hypothecation of all or any part of the corporation's property, real or personal, for the purpose of securing the payment or performance of any contract or obligation. Unless the articles otherwise provide, no approval of the shareholders [see Corp. Code § 153] or of the outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 152] is necessary for those actions [Corp. Code § 1000].

[c] Inclusion of Provision in Articles

The articles of incorporation may set forth a provision requiring the approval of the shareholders [see Corp. Code § 153 (definition); see also [2], Alternative 1, below] or the approval of the outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 152 (definition); see also [2], Alternative 2, below] for any corporate action, even though that approval is not otherwise required by the General Corporation Law [Corp. Code § 204(a)(9)]. They may also set forth, with exceptions not here applicable, a provision that requires for any or all corporate actions, the vote of a larger proportion or of all of the shares of any class or series, or of a larger proportion or of all of the directors, than is otherwise required by the General Corporation Law [Corp. Code § 204(a)(5)]. Either type of provision must be included in the articles (or for a close corporation, in a shareholders' agreement) in order to be effective [Corp. Code § 204(a)]. Unless otherwise provided in the articles, an article provision that requires the vote of a larger proportion or of all of the shares of any class or series, or of a larger proportion or of all of the directors for any corporation action than is otherwise required under the General Corporation law, cannot be altered, amended, or repealed except by the same percentage vote required for the corporate action [see Corp. Code § 902(e)].

§ 3.272 Provision That Alters Statutory Quorum Requirements for Shareholders' Meeting

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This optional provision may be included in the articles of a corporation that desires to alter the quorum requirements for shareholders' meetings that would otherwise apply under the General Corporation Law [see Corp. Code § 602(a)]. Unless otherwise provided in the articles of incorporation, a majority of the shares entitled to vote, represented in person or by proxy, constitutes a quorum at a meeting of shareholders [Corp. Code § 602(a); see Corp. Code §§ 178, 179, 604, 705 (proxies)]. In any event, a quorum may not consist of less than one-third (or, in the case of a mutual water company, 20 percent) of the shares entitled to vote at a meeting. For a close corporation [see Corp. Code § 158; see also § 3.202], a quorum may not be more than a majority of the shares entitled to vote at the meeting [Corp. Code § 602(a)]. The provision below may be used to either raise or lower the ordinary quorum requirements, within the permitted parameters discussed above.

As a general rule, the affirmative vote of a majority of the shares represented and voting at a duly held meeting at which a quorum is present (which shares voting affirmatively also constitute at least a majority of the required quorum) is the act of the shareholders, unless the vote of a greater number or voting by classes is required by the General Corporation Law or the articles [Corp. Code § 602(a)]. A lesser voting margin applies to business conducted at a meeting that has a quorum of shareholders but that subsequently has less than a quorum because shareholders leave or withdraw from the meeting [see Corp. Code § 602(b)].

§ 3.273 Restrictions on, or Elimination of, Shareholder Action by Written Consent

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is an optional provision that may be included in articles of incorporation to prohibit entirely or to restrict, shareholder action taken by written consent that is otherwise permitted under the General Corporation Law [see Corp. Code § 603]. Unless otherwise provided in the articles of incorporation (this form), any action that may be taken at any annual or special meeting of shareholders may be taken without a meeting and without prior notice, if a written consent, setting forth the action so taken is signed by the holders of outstanding shares having not less than the minimum number of votes that would be necessary to authorize or take such action at a meeting at which all shares entitled to vote on the action were present and voted [Corp. Code § 603(a)].

The election of directors by written consent of the shareholders ordinarily requires the unanimous written consent of all shares entitled to vote for the election of directors [Corp. Code § 603(d); see Corp. Code § 305(b)]. However, unless otherwise provided in the articles, shareholders may elect a director to fill a vacancy, other than a vacancy created by removal, by the written consent of a majority of the outstanding shares entitled to vote [Corp. Code § 603(d)].

§ 3.274 Election of One or More Directors by Holders of Class or Series of Shares

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a provision for articles of incorporation that gives the shareholders of a specific class or series of shares, voting as a class or series, the right to elect one or more directors [see Corp. Code § 301(a)]. Except as may be otherwise provided for "listed corporations" [see Corp. Code § 301.5(d) (definition); see also § 3.282[1][e]], directors are elected at each annual meeting of the shareholders to hold office until the next annual meeting. However, shorter terms for directors may be authorized by the articles in order to effectuate a "voting shift" [Corp. Code § 301(a)]. A "voting shift" is a change, pursuant to or by operation of an article provision, in the relative rights of the holders of one or more classes or series of shates, voting as one or more separate classes or series, to elect one or more directors [Corp. Code § 194.7]. Unless otherwise provided in the articles, and except for cumulative voting for directors [see Corp. Code § 708], each outstanding share, regardless of class, is entitled to one vote on each matter submitted to a vote of shareholders [Corp. Code § 700(a)]. A director elected by the holders of the shares of any class or series of shares, voting as a class or series, may be removed only by the applicable vote of the holders of the shares of that class or series [Corp. Code § 303(a)(2)].

[b] Election of Directors

Each director, including a director elected to fill a vacancy, holds office until expiration of the term for which he or she was elected and until a successor has been elected and qualified [Corp. Code § 301(b)]. Unless otherwise required by the bylaws or the articles [Corp. Code § 204(d)], elections for directors need not be by ballot unless a shareholder demands election by ballot at the meeting and before the voting begins [Corp. Code § 708(e)].

Unless an election is uncontested [see Corp. Code § 708.5; see also § 8A.41], in any election of directors, the candidates receiving the highest number of votes of the shares entitled to be voted for them, up to the number of directors to be elected by these shares, are elected [Corp. Code § 708(c)], and the articles may not require a higher number of votes [Corp. Code § 204(a)(5)].

Election of One or More Directors by Holders of Class or Series of Shares
_____ [Article number]

(_____) Commencing at the first meeting of the shareholder and continuing at each annual meeting thereafter, the holders of the _____ [specify class or series] shares, voting as a _____ [class or series], shall be entitiled to elect _____ [specify number that is one or more] of the _____[number] total Directors authorized for the coporations board of directors. Any Director so elected shall hold office until the next annual meeting and may not be removed from the board except by the vote of a majority [or if percentage other than majority is required to elect directors, specify that same other percentage] of the holders of the [specify same series or class as above] of shares, voting as a _____ [class or series]. In the event any Director [or Directors] elected under the provisions of this paragraph is removed or resigns from the Board, a new Director shall be elected by the holders of the _____ [specify same class or series as above] of shares, voting as a _____ [class or series] to serve on the Board until the next annual meeting of the shareholders.

§ 3.275 Grant of Voting Rights to Corporation's Debtholders

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The optional provisions in this form may be used to grant certain voting rights in the corporation to the corporation's debtholders. If the holders of any evidences of indebtedness, issued or to be issued by the corporation, are to be granted the right to vote in the election of directors or on any other matter on which shareholders may vote, an express provision to that effect must be included in the articles (or in the case of close corporation, in a shareholders' agreement) [Corp. Code § 204(a)(7)]. The provision in the articles can be made dependent on facts ascertainable outside the articles if the manner in which the facts affect the provision is clearly and expressly set forth in the articles, and if certain conditions are met [see Corp. Code § 109.5; see also § 3.200[1][d]].

Two alternative provisions are set forth below. In the first, debtholders are granted general voting rights identical to the holders of common shares and must vote as a class with the common shares. In the second alternative, debtholders are granted the right to elect a majority of the corporation's directors only if, and for so long as, the corporation is in arrears in its payments to the debtholder. Also under this alternative, the holders of indebtedness are given the right to vote separately as a class. These provisions are illustrative only and must be modified to fit the specific requirements of a particular debtholder.

Provisions for the voting rights of debtholders are ordinarily added to the articles by amendment when a proposed issuance of debt securities so necessitates, rather than included in the original articles. When these provisions are included in the articles, other provisions of the articles must be carefully reviewed to determine whether the rights proposed to be granted to the debtholders conflict with any voting or other rights in any class of shares. For example, if the articles vest exclusive voting power in the holders of common shares, that provision would require modification to accommodate the rights granted to debtholders.

The provisions below are intended to cover only holders of registered debt securities, and not holders of bearer securities. Voting rights and procedure for holders of bearer securities are ordinarily covered in an indenture executed by the corporation and a trustee. In that case, an article provision dealing with the rights of debtholders would typically refer to that indenture for the manner in which voting rights must be exercised.

[b] General Power of Corporation to Incur Indebtedness

Subject to any limitations contained in the articles of incorporation and to compliance with the provisions of the General Corporation Law and any other applicable laws, a corporation has all the powers of a natural person in carrying out its business activities [Corp. Code § 207]. These powers include the power to issue, purchase, redeem, receive, take or otherwise acquire, own, hold, sell, lend, exchange, transfer or otherwise dispose of, pledge, use and otherwise deal in and with its own shares, bonds, debentures and other securities [Corp. Code § 207(d); but see Corp. Code § 510 (status of shares reacquired by corporation)]. A corporation also has the power to incur liabilities, borrow and lend money and otherwise use its credit, and to secure any of its obligations, contracts or liabilities by mortgage, pledge or other encumbrance of all or any part of its property, franchises and income [Corp. Code § 207(g); but see Corp. Code § 315 (restrictions on loans or guarantees to directors or officers)]. All references in the General Corporation Law to "the voting of shares" include the voting of any holders of indebtedness granted voting rights in the articles [Corp. Code § 111].

[c] Rules of Commissioner of Corporations

An "open qualification" will not normally be approved by the Commissioner of Corporations for the issuance of debt securities unless they are issued under a trust indenture complying with the provisions of the Trust Indenture Act of 1939 [15 U.S.C. §§ 77aaa-77bbbb], whether or not the indenture is required to be qualified under that Act [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.5]. An "open qualification" is a qualification that authorizes the offer and sale of securities to the public generally, without restriction as to persons or class of persons [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.001(f)].

A "limited offering" qualification may be approved for the issuance of debt securities that are not accompanied by a trust indenture or that are issued under a trust indenture not complying with all of the provisions of the Trust Indenture Act of 1939, if the trust indenture or other instruments provide adequate protection to the holders of the debt securities under the circumstances of the particular case. The indenture should provide that the trustee or a cotrustee must be a bank or trust company or, if a bank or trust company is not a trustee or cotrustee, that any person who is to act in that capacity must have the written approval of the Commissioner [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.5]. A "limited offering qualification" is a qualification that authorizes the offer and sale of securities only to persons designated by name or class [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.001(e)].

Nonconvertible debt securities, and the indenture or other instrument under which the securities are issued, may be required to satisfy additional requirements of the Commissioner [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.4].

Grant of Voting Rights to Corporation's Debtholders

_____ [Article number]

[Alternative 1: Use to grant debtholders general voting rights.]

(_____) Each holder of _____ [describe and define specific type(s) of indebtedness to have voting rights] from time to time outstanding (the "Debtholders") in whose name that indebtedness is registered on the books of the corporation (including books of any indenture trustee or agent of the corporation) on the record date for any action of shareholders established pursuant to applicable law shall have voting rights identical to those held by the holders of Common shares of the corporation, and shall vote as a class with the common shares. Each Debtholder shall have one vote for each $ _____ principal amount of indebtedness held by that Debtholder on that date on any matter on which shareholders are entitled to vote. Each Debtholder shall be entitled to receive all notices from the corporation as fully as though a shareholder of the corporation. There shall be no fraction of a vote for less than $ _____ of indebtedness. At any meeting so called or at any annual meeting held while the Debtholders have voting power, the holders of a majority of the then outstanding indebtedness entitled to vote, present in person or by proxy, shall be sufficient to constitute a quorum for the election of directors.

[Alternative 2: Use to grant voting rights only on occurrence of specified default.]

(_____) The holders of _____ [describe and define the indebtedness] from time to time outstanding ("the Debtholders") shall have the following voting rights and powers:

1. If at any time _____[number] payments of principal or interest on the indebtedness, whether consecutive or not, shall be in arrears, then, at the next meeting of shareholders for the election of directors (unless at the time of that meeting all arrears shall have been paid and the principal or interest payment next due shall have been set aside or paid) and at each meeting thereafter, until all arrears on the indebtedness shall have been paid, the Debtholders shall be entitled, voting as a class and in the same manner as holders of Common Stock, to elect the smallest number of directors that will constitute a majority of the authorized number of directors and the holders of the remaining voting rights of the corporation shall be entitled, voting as a class, to elect the remaining directors. The directors elected by the Debtholders pursuant to this subparagraph shall be subject to removal only by the vote of the Debtholders so long as the right of the Debtholders to elect directors shall continue. When all principal or interest payments in arrears have been paid or set apart for payment, the rights of the Debtholders to vote as provided in this paragraph shall cease, subject to renewal from time to time on the same terms and conditions. Rights to vote pursuant to this paragraph shall be exercisable only by Debtholders in whose name the indebtedness is registered on the books of the corporation (including books of any indenture trustee or agent of the corporation) on the record date for any such meeting established pursuant to applicable law. If the Debtholders are entitled to exercise voting rights pursuant to this paragraph, each Debtholder shall have, for the purposes of the class vote, one vote for each $_____ principal amount of indebtedness held by that Debtholder. Each such Debtholder shall be entitled to receve all notices from the corporation as fully as though a shareholder of the corporation. There shall be no fraction of a vote for less than $_____ of indebtedness. At any meeting so called or at any annual meeting held while the Debtholders have voting power, the holders of a majority of the then outstanding indebtedness entitled to vote, present in person or by proxy, shall be sufficient to constitute a quorum for the election of directors.

2. _____ [describe voting procedures, e.g., use second and third paragraphs of form in § 3.253[2] or § 3.254[2], with appropriate modifications].

§ 3.280 Elimination of Directors' Liability for Monetary Damages (to Maximum Extent Permitted by Law)

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This provision may be included in articles of incorporation to eliminate the liability of directors of a corporation for monetary damages, to the maximum extent permitted by California law [see Corp. Code §§ 204(a)(10), 204.5(a)]. This provision is not one of the mandatory provisions required to be included in a corporation's articles [see Corp. Code § 202]. It is however, one of the "optional" provisions designated by statute that must be expressly included in the articles (rather than in some other governing instrument for the corporation, such as the bylaws) in order to be effective [see Corp. Code § 204(a)(10); see also § 3.200[1][c]]. For a statutory close corporation [see Corp. Code § 158], it may instead be included in a shareholders' agreement [Corp. Code § 204(a)].

The elimination of liability under this provision extends to directors only (not officers) and applies only in cases of liability to the corporation or to the shareholders. For these reasons, it may have no or little effect on the many corporations with only one or only a few shareholders. On the other hand, its potential application is much greater for large, publicly held corporations.

For a discussion of directors' duties imposed by statute [see Corp. Code § 309], see "Duties of Directors" in the Legal Background to Ch. 5, Directors' Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions.

[b] Limitation or Elimination of Liability

The articles may contain a provision eliminating or limiting the personal liability of a director for monetary damages in an action brought by or in the right of the corporation for breach of a director's duties to the corporation and its shareholders [Corp. Code § 204(a)(10); see Corp. Code § 309 (scope of duty)]. However, this authorization is subject to several restrictions set by statute. Specifically, a provision of this type may not eliminate or limit the liability of directors for any of the following [Corp. Code § 204(a)(10)]:

- Acts or omissions that involve intentional misconduct or a knowing and culpable violation of law;
- Acts or omissions that a director believes to be contrary to the best interests of the corporation or its shareholders or that involve the absence of good faith on the part of the director;
- Any transaction from which a director derived an improper personal benefit;
- Acts or omissions that show a reckless disregard for the director's duty to the corporation or the shareholders in circumstances in which the director was aware or should have been aware, in the ordinary course of performing a director's duties, of a risk of serious injury to the corporation or its shareholders;
- Acts or omissions that constitute an unexcused pattern of inattention that amounts to an abdication of the director's duty to the corporation or its shareholders;
- Statutory provisions that govern contracts in which a director has a material financial interest [see Corp. Code § 310]; or
- Statutory provisions that prohibit illegal distributions, loans, and guarantees [see Corp. Code § 316].

In addition to the above-listed restrictions, the provision may not eliminate or limit the liability of a director for any act or omission occurring before the effective date of the provision. Finally, a provision may not eliminate or limit the liability of an officer for any act or omission as an officer, notwithstanding that the officer is also a director or that his or her actions, if negligent or improper, have been ratified by the directors [Corp. Code § 204(a)(10)].

[c] Language of Provision

The corporation will be considered to have adopted a provision authorized by Corp. Code § 204(a)(10) and described in [b], above, and will not be required to use more specific language, if a provision of its articles reads substantially as follows: "The liability of the directors of the corporation for monetary damages shall be eliminated to the fullest extent permissible under California law" [Corp. Code § 204.5(a)]. This language is used in the form below, but it is not the exclusive method by which the applicable statutory provisions for eliminating director liability may be included in the articles [Corp. Code § 204.5(b)]. The statutory authorization to eliminate director liability for monetary damages (to the extent permitted by law) also does not change the otherwise applicable standards or duties to make full and fair disclosure to shareholders when shareholder approval of that provision is sought [Corp. Code § 204.5(c)].

§ 3.281 Authorization to Indemnify Directors and Officers to Maximum Extent Permitted by Law

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form illustrates provisions that may be included in the articles of incorporation to give a corporation the authority to indemnify its directors and officers [see [b], below] in excess of that ordinarily permitted by statute [see Corp. Code § 317]. In order to be effective, this type of provision must be included in the articles (or in the case of a close corporation, in a shareholders' agreement) [see Corp. Code §§ 204(a)(11), 317(g)].

Corporations seeking to give maximum indemnification protection to officers and directors may rely on the "short form" alternative illustrated in this form and enter into separate indemnification agreements with each officer or director, or alternatively may use the "long form" alternative illustrated in the form.

For further discussion of indemnification of corporate agents, see Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Laws, Ch. 6, Management: Duties and Liability of Directors and Controlling Shareholders (Matthew Bender).

[b] Definition of "Agent"

For purposes of the provisions of the General Corporation Law that govern the indemnification of agents [see Corp. Code §§ 317, 204(a)(11)], "agent" means any person who is or was a director, officer, employee, or other agent of the corporation, or is or was serving at the request of the corporation as a director, officer, employee, or agent of another foreign or domestic corporation, partnership, joint venture, trust, or other enterprise, or was a director, officer, employee, or agent of a foreign or domestic corporation that was a predecessor corporation of the corporation or of another enterprise at the request of the predecessor corporation [Corp. Code § 317(a)].

[c] Statutory Authorization for "Excess Indemnification"

Subject to specific limitations outlined below, the articles of incorporation may contain a provision authorizing, whether by bylaw, agreement, or otherwise, the indemnification of agents [see [b], above (definition)] in excess of that expressly permitted by statute [see Corp. Code § 317; see also [e], below] for breach of duty to the corporation and its stockholders. If this authorization is to be given, it must be expressly provided for in the articles [see Corp. Code §§ 204(a)(11), 317(g)].

Two specific restrictions apply to a provision that authorizes indemnification in excess of that permitted by statute for a breach of duty to the corporation and its shareholders. First, the provision may not provide for indemnification of any agent for any acts or omissions or transactions from which a director may not be relieved of liability [Corp. Code § 204(a)(11)]. These acts, omissions, and transactions are described in § 3.280[1][b] [see Corp. Code § 204(a)(10)]. Second, the provisions may not provide for indemnification under circumstances in which indemnity is expressly prohibited by the statute covering the indemnification of agents [Corp. Code § 204(a)(11); see Corp. Code § 317 (statute covering indemnification of agents)].

The statute covering indemnification of agents also provides for indemnification for certain acts, omissions, or transactions of directors and officers that do not involve a breach of duty to the corporation and its shareholders [see Corp. Code § 317]. If additional rights of indemnification under these circumstances are to exist, they must be authorized in the articles of incorporation [Corp. Code § 317(g)]. Use of the provision below creates "excess" indemnification rights for officers and directors under these circumstances (that is, acts, omissions, or transactions not involving a breach of duty to the corporation and its shareholders) and under circumstances in which a breach of duty to the corporation and its shareholders is involved [see [e], below].

[d] Advancement of Expenses

A corporation may advance expenses incurred in defending any proceeding before the final disposition of the proceeding on receipt of an undertaking by or on behalf of the agent to repay that amount if it is ultimately determined that the agent is not entitled to indemnification [Corp. Code § 317(f)]. This type of advancement is not prohibited by the ban on loans to directors and officers [Corp. Code § 317(b); see Corp. Code § 315(a)].

[e] Language of Provision Authorized by Statute

An article provision that authorizes indemnification "in excess of that otherwise permitted by § 317" or "to the fullest extent permissible under California law" (or the substantial equivalent of either) will be construed to be both (1) a provision for additional indemnification for breach of duty to the corporation and its shareholders as referred to and within the limitations by relevant statute [Corp. Code § 204(a)(11); see [c], above]; and (2) a provision for additional indemnification for directors' and officers' acts, omissions, or transactions not involving a breach of duty to the corporation and its shareholders [Corp. Code § 317(g); see [c], above].

The language suggested by this statute is used in the provisions below to authorize the maximum indemnification of officers and directors permitted by law. If a lesser degree of indemnification is desired, the provisions must be modified to describe any desired restrictions.

[2] FORM

Authorization to Indemnify Directors and Officers to Maximum Extent Permitted by Law

_____ [Article number]

[Short form:]

This Corporation is authorized, to the fullest extent permissible under California law, to indemnify its agents (as defined in Corp. Code § 317), whether by bylaw, agreement, or otherwise, for breach of duty to this Corporation and its shareholders in excess of that expressly permitted by Corp. Code § 317, and to advance defense expenses to its agents in connection with such matters as those expenses are incurred. If, after the effective date of this Article, California law is amended in a manner that permits a corporation to limit the monetary or other liability of its directors or to authorize indemnification of, or advancement of those defense expenses to, its directors or other persons, in any such case to a greater extent than is permitted on the effective date of this Article, the references in this Article to "California law" shall to that extent be deemed to refer to California law as so amended. Any repeal or modification of this Article shall not adversely affect any right of indemnification or limitation of liability of an agent of this corporation relating to actions or omissions prior to that repeal or modification.

[OR]

[Long form:]

1. Indemnification of Directors. The Corporation shall, to the maximum extent and in a manner permitted by the California Corporations Code, indemnify each of its Directors against expenses (as defined in Corp. Code § 317(a)), judgments, fines, settlements and other amounts actually and reasonably incurred in connection with any proceeding (as defmed in Corp. Code § 317(a)), arising by reason of the fact that the person is or was a Director of the Corporation. For purposes of this Article, a "Director" of the Corporation includes any person (i) who is or was a Director of the Corporation, (ii) who is or was serving at the request of the Corporation as a director of another foreign or domestic corporation, partnership, joint venture, trust, or other enterprise, or (iii) who was a director of a corporation which was a predecessor corporation of the Corporation or of another enterprise at the request of such a predecessor corporation.

2. Indemnification of Others. The Corporation shall have the power, to the extent and in the manner permitted by the California Corporations Code, to indemnify each of its employees, officers, and agents (other than Directors) against expenses (as defined in Corp. Code § 317(a)), judgments, fines, settlements, and other amounts actually and reasonably incurred in connection with any proceeding (as defined in Corp. Code § 317(a)), arising by reason of the fact that the person is or was an employee, officer, or agent of the Corporation. For purposes of this Article, an "employee" or "officer" or "agent" of the Corporation (other than a Director) includes any person (i) who is or was an employee, officer, or agent of the Corporation, (ii) who is or was serving at the request of the Corporation as an employee, officer, or agent of another foreign or domestic the corporation, partnership, joint venture, trust, or other enterprise, or (iii) who was an employee, officer, or agent of a corporation which was a predecessor corporation of the Corporation or of another enterprise at the request of such a predecessor corporation.

3. Payment of Expenses in Advance. Expenses and attorneys' fees incurred in defending any civil or criminal action or proceeding for which indemnification is required pursuant to this Article, or if otherwise authorized by the Board of Directors, shall be paid by the Corporation in advance of the final disposition of that action or proceeding upon receipt of an undertaking by or on behalf of the indemnified party to repay that amount if it shall ultimately be determined that the indemnified party is not entitled to be indemnified as authorized in this Article.

4. Indemnity Not Exclusive. The indemnification provided by this Article shall not be deemed exclusive of any other rights to which those seeking indemnification may be entitled under any Bylaw, agreement, vote of shareholders or Directors, or otherwise, both as to action in an official capacity and as to action in another capacity while holding such an office. The rights to indemnity hereunder shall continue as to a person who has ceased to be a Director, officer, employee, or agent and shall inure to the benefit of the heirs, executors, and administrators of the person.

5. Insurance Indemnification. The Corporation shall have the power to purchase and maintain insurance on behalf of any person who is or was a Director, officer, employee, or agent of the Corporation against any liability asserted against or incurred by that person in that capacity, or arising out of that person's status as a Director, officer, employee, or agent of the Corporation, whether or not the Corporation would have the power to indemnify that person against that liability under the provisions of this Article.

6. Conflicts. No indemnification or advance shall be made under this Article, except when such an indemnification or advance is mandated by law or the order, judgment, or decree of any court of competent jurisdiction, in any circumstance when it appears:

(a) That it would be inconsistent with a provision of these Articles, a resolution of the shareholders, or an agreement in effect at the time of the accrual of the alleged cause of the action asserted in the proceeding in which the expenses were incurred or other amounts were paid, which prohibits or otherwise limits indemnification; or

(b) That it would be inconsistent with any condition expressly imposed by a court in approving a settlement.

7. Right to Bring Suit. If a claim under this Article is not paid in full by the Corporation within 90 days after a written claim has been received by the Corporation (either because the claim is denied or because no determination is made), the claimant may at any time thereafter bring suit against the Corporation to recover the unpaid amount of the claim and, if successful in whole or in part, the claimant shall also be entitled to be paid the expenses of prosecuting that claim. The Corporation shall be entitled to raise as a defense to any such action that the claimant has not met the standards of conduct that make it permissible under the California Corporations Code for the Corporation to indemnify the claimant for the claim. Neither the failure of the Corporation (including its Board of Directors, independant legal counsel, or its shareholders) to have a determination prior to the commencement of such an action that indemnification of the claimant is permissible in the circumstances described because he or she has met the applicable standard of conduct, if any, nor an actual determination by the Corporation (including its Board of Directors, independent legal counsel, or its shareholders) that the claimiant has not met the applicable standard of conduct, shall be a defense to such an action or create a presumption for the purpose of such an action that the claimant has not met the applicable standard of conduct.

8. Indemnity Agreements. The Board of Directors is authorized to enter into a contract with any Director, officer, employee, or agent of the Corporation, or any person who is or was serving the request of the Corporation as a Director, officer, employee, or agent of another corporation, partnership, joint venture, trust, or other enterprise, including employee benefit plans, or any person who was a Director, officer, employee, or agent of a corporation that was a predecessor corporation of the Corporation or of another enterprise at the request of such a predecessor corporation, providing for indemnification rights equivalent to or, if the Board of Directors so determines and to the extent permitted by applicable law, greater than, those provided for in this Article.

9. Amendment, Repeal, or Modification. Any amendment, repeal, or modification of this Article shall not adversely affect any right or protection of a Director or agent of the Corporation existing at the time of the amendment, repeal or modification.

§ 3.282 Provision for Variable Number of Directors

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This provision may be included in the articles of incorporation to provide for a variable number of directors [see Corp. Code § 164 ("directors" defined)]. For a provision that establishes a fixed number of directors, see § 3.283. The number of directors (expressed either as a variable or fixed number) is not required to be stated in the articles. Instead, this information may be, and probably most often is, included in the bylaws for the corporation [see Corp. Code § 212(a); [b], below]. Directors may be, but are not required to be named in the articles of incorporation [see Corp. Code § 204(c)]. If directors are named, each director must execute and acknowledge the articles of incorporation [Corp. Code § 200(b); see § 3.284 (provision and required acknowledgment certificate].

[b] Designating Number of Directors in Articles or Bylaws

Either the bylaws or the articles of incorporation must contain a provision that fixes the number of directors of the corporation or a provision that establishes a variable board of directors [see [d], below]. If included in the articles, either type of provision may be changed only by amending the articles. Since bylaws are generally easier to amend than articles (absent a contrary provision in the articles or bylaws [see Corp. Code § 211]), provisions that provide for the number of directors are often included in the bylaws rather than the articles.

Once shares are issued, a bylaw (or article provision) specifying or changing a fixed number of directors or the minimum and maximum numbers or changing from a fixed to a variable board or vice versa may be adopted only by approval of the outstanding shares. However, a bylaw or amendment of the articles that reduces the number or the minimum number of directors to a number less than five cannot be adopted if the votes cast against its adoption at a meeting or the shares not consenting in the case of action by written consent [see Corp. Code §§ 194, 603] are equal to more than 16 2/3 percent of the outstanding shares entitled to vote [Corp. Code § 212(a)]. Subject to these restrictions and some others [see Corp. Code § 212], the power of the board to adopt, amend, or repeal bylaws may be restricted or eliminated by the articles or by the bylaws themselves [Corp. Code § 211; see § 3.289 (provision for imposing this restriction)]. Any reduction of the authorized number of directors or amendment reducing the number of classes of directors [see Corp. Code § 301.5] does not remove any director before the expiration of his or her term of office [Corp. Code § 303(b)].

[c] Minimum Number of Directors

As a general rule, the number of directors that a corporation must have, or the minimum number if the number is variable, cannot be less than three. However, there are several exceptions to this general rule. For example, the corporation is permitted to have only one director before the time it issues its shares, or for so long as the corporation has only one shareholder. Two directors are permitted before the time the corporation issues its shares, or for so long as the corporation has only one or only two shareholders [Corp. Code § 212(a)]. For a discussion of the number of directors required for a "listed corporation" with multiple classes of directors, see [e], below.

[d] Variable Board of Directors

To provide for a variable number of directors, the articles (or bylaws) [see [b], above] must first define the permitted range of directors by stating that the number of directors may not be less than a stated minimum or more than a stated maximum (which in no case can be greater than two times the stated minimum minus one). Second, the articles (or bylaws) must state that the exact number of directors will be fixed, within the limits of the defined range, by approval of either the board of directors [see Corp. Code § 307(a)(7), (8), (b)] or the shareholders [see Corp. Code § 153 ("approval of the shareholders" defined)] in the manner provided in the bylaws (or articles) [Corp. Code § 212(a)].

If approval of the board or the shareholders requires the vote of a larger proportion or of all of the shares of any class or series of shares, or the vote or quorum for taking action of a larger proportion or of all of the directors, than is otherwise required under the General Corporation Law, that fact must be stated (and the precise voting requirements outlined) in the articles of incorporation in order for the voting provision to be effective [Corp. Code § 204(a)(5); see Corp. Code § 212(a)]. This form does not require a larger proportion of shareholder or board approval than otherwise is required under the General Corporation Law [see Corp. Code §§ 153 (approval of shareholders), 307(a)(7), (8), (b) (approval by board of directors)].

[e] Different Classes of Directors for Listed Corporations

A "listed corporation" (defined below) may, by amendment of its articles or bylaws (but not in its original articles) adopt provisions to divide the board of directors into two or three classes to serve for terms of two or three years respectively, or to eliminate cumulative voting, or both [Corp. Code § 301.5(a), (e); see Corp. Code § 301(a)]. A corporation that is not a listed corporation, after it issues shares, may adopt these same provisions, to take effect when it does become a listed corporation [Corp. Code § 301.5(a)]. An article or bylaw amendment providing for division of the board of directors into classes, or a change in the number of classes, or the elimination of cumulative voting may be adopted only by the approval of the board [see Corp. Code § 151] and the outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 152] voting as a single class, notwithstanding the ordinary requirements for shareholder approval of article amendments [Corp. Code § 301.5(a); see Corp. Code § 903 (ordinary shareholder approval requirements for article amendments)].

A "listed corporation" is a corporation with outstanding shares listed on the New York Stock Exchange, the NYSE Amex, the NASDAQ Global Market, or the NASDAQ Capital Market [Corp. Code § 301.5(d)].

If the board of directors is divided into two classes to serve for terms of two years, the authorized number of directors must be no fewer than six, and one half of the directors (or as close an approximation as possible) must be elected at each annual meeting of shareholders. If the board is divided into three classes to serve for three years each, the authorized number of directors must be no fewer than nine, and one third (or as close an approximation as possible) must be elected at each annual meeting. Directors of a listed corporation may be elected by classes at a shareholder meeting at which an amendment adopting provisions for dividing the board into classes is approved. However, the extended terms for directors are contingent on approval of that amendment, and if that amendment is to the articles, the filing of any necessary amendment to the articles [Corp. Code § 301.5(b); see Corp. Code §§ 905, 910 (required filing of article amendments)]. If directors for more than one class will be elected by the shareholders at any one meeting and the election is by cumulative voting [see Corp. Code § 708], votes may be cumulated only for directors to be elected within each class [Corp. Code § 301.5(c)].

For further discussion of the procedure for amending articles for a listed corporation, see Ch. 10, Amendment of Articles .

§ 3.283 Provision for Fixed Number of Directors

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This provision may be included in the articles of incorporation to provide for a fixed number of directors for the corporation. For a provision that establishes a variable number of directors, see § 3.282. The number of directors (expressed either as a variable or fixed number) is not required to be stated in the articles. Instead, this information may be, and probably most often is, included in the bylaws for the corporation [see Corp. Code § 212(a); see also § 3.282[1][b]]. Specifying the number of directors in the articles is not usually recommended, particularly where the ultimate number of shareholders is unknown or the possibility of increasing the size of the board otherwise exists. Regardless of whether a provision for the number of directors (fixed or variable) is included in the bylaws or articles, restrictions apply in the event the provision is subsequently amended [see Corp. Code § 212(a); see § 3.282[1][b] (discussion of restrictions)].

Directors may be, but are not required to be named in the articles of incorporation [see Corp. Code § 204(c)]. If directors are named, each director must execute and acknowledge the articles of incorporation [Corp. Code § 200(b); see § 3.284 (provision and required acknowledgment certificate].

Ordinarily, a corporation with a fixed number of directors must have at least three directors. However, before shares are issued, the number may be one or two. In addition, for so long as the corporation has only one shareholder, the corporation may have one or two directors. Finally, for so long as the corporation has only two shareholders, there may be two directors [Corp. Code § 212(a)].

For an article provision that names the initial directors for corporation, which may or may not be used in conjunction with this provision, see § 3.284.

§ 3.284 Names and Addresses of Initial Directors

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This provision may be included in the articles of incorporation to designate the initial directors for the corporation and to set forth their respective addresses [see Corp. Code § 204(c)]. If the names and addresses of the initial directors are specified in the articles, this information must be set forth in a separately numbered article, and each designated director must sign and acknowledge the articles [see Corp. Code § 200(b)]. Directors are not required to be named in the articles [see Corp. Code §§ 202, 204(c)], and if they are not, the articles of incorporation must be signed (but they need not be acknowledged) by the incorporators [Corp. Code § 200(b); see, e.g., § 3.200[2]].

This form, for illustrative purposes only, uses three directors. For requirements regarding the minimum number of directors, see § 3.282[1][c].

The provision in this form may be added, as a separate article, to any of the complete sets of articles set forth in this chapter [see §§ 3.200-3.203]. Since all of the complete sets of articles do not name initial directors but rather use a single incorporator, signature lines for directors are included in this form that must be substituted for the incorporator signature lines contained in those complete sets of articles. This form also contains an acknowledgment or declaration that must be used if directors sign the articles [see [b], below].

[b] Execution and Acknowledgment

If initial directors are named in the articles of incorporation, those directors must sign and acknowledge the articles [Corp. Code § 200(b)]. As used in the General Corporation Law, the word "acknowledged" means that the instrument is either of the following [Corp. Code § 149]:

- Formally acknowledged as provided in the Civil Code [see Civ. Code §§ 1180-1207]; or

- Accompanied by a declaration in writing signed by the persons executing it that they are those persons and that the instrument is their act and deed [see Corp. Code § 193 (definition of "verified"); Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 (declarations under penalty of perjury)].

A declaration and a certificate of acknowledgment are included in this form following the signature lines for directors; only one or the other should be used. The certificate of acknowledgment is in the form prescribed by statute for when the officer taking the acknowledgment is a notary [Civ. Code § 1188; see Civ. Code § 1189 (required form)].

Any certificate of acknowledgment taken outside California before a notary public or a judge or clerk of a court of record having an official seal is sufficient in California and need not be further authenticated [Corp. Code § 149; see Civ. Code § 1189(b)].

[c] Special Restrictions on Amending Provision That Names Initial Directors

If a corporation names its initial directors in its original articles of incorporation, that provision cannot be amended (or deleted) until after the corporation files with the Secretary of State a "Statement by Domestic Stock Corporation" [Corp. Code § 900(b)]. The contents of the statement are outlined by statute and the form is prescribed by the Secretary of State [see Corp. Code § 1502]. The statement must be filed within 90 days after filing its original articles and then annually thereafter [see Corp. Code § 1502]. Requirements for filing the statement are further discussed in § 3.141. For discussion of the requirements for amending articles of incorporation, see Ch. 10, Amendment of Articles .

§ 3.285 Requirement That Directors Possess Particular Qualifications

[1] Comment--Use of Form

The is an optional provision that may be included in the articles of incorporation for a corporation that will require its directors to possess particular qualifications. Under the General Corporation Law, the bylaws may (but are not required to) prescribe qualifications for directors [see Corp. Code § 212(b)(4)], and any provision that is required or permitted to be stated in the bylaws may be included in a corporation's articles of incorporation [Corp. Code § 204(d)].

If this provision is included in the articles, the particular qualifications required should be clearly stated. For example, a corporation may require that its directors also be shareholders of the corporation. There is no requirement under the General Corporation Law that directors be shareholders of the corporation. However, other statutory provisions that govern special types of corporations may impose this requirement.

§ 3.286 Designation of Persons Authorized to Call Board Meeting

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an optional provision that may be included in the articles of a corporation that desires to vary the statutory provisions that otherwise apply as to which persons are authorized to call a meeting of the board of directors. Unless otherwise provided in the articles or in the bylaws [see Corp. Code §§ 204(d), 212(b)(2)], meetings of the board may be called by the board chairperson or the president or any vice president or the secretary or any two directors [Corp. Code § 307(a)]. If a corporation desires in any way to vary this statutory norm, the appropriate provision must be included in either the articles or the bylaws. For example, a corporation may determine to authorize a single director, instead of the two ordinarily required, to call a meeting of the board.

[b] Notice of Meetings

Unless otherwise provided in the articles or bylaws, regular meetings of the board may be held without notice if the time and place of the meetings are fixed by the bylaws or the board. Special meetings of the board must be held on four days notice by mail or 48 hours notice delivered personally or by telephone, including a voice messaging system or by electronic transmission by the corporation [Corp. Code § 307(a)(2); see Corp. Code § 20 (definition)]. The articles or bylaws may not dispense with notice of a special meeting. A notice, or waiver of notice, need not specify the purpose of any regular or special meeting of the board [Corp. Code § 307(a)(2)].

Notice of a meeting need not be given to any director who provides a waiver of notice, or a consent to holding the meeting or an approval of the minutes of the meeting in writing, whether before or after the meeting, or who attends the meeting without protesting, prior to the meeting or at its commencement, the lack of notice to that director. All waivers, consents, and approvals must be filed with the corporate records or made a part of the minutes of the meeting [Corp.

Code § 307(a)(3)].

§ 3.287 Establishing Higher or Lower Quorum for Board of Directors

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This provision may be included in the articles of incorporation to vary the statutory rule that otherwise applies to the determination of a quorum for the board of directors. Its effect may be extended to all corporate actions or limited to only specified types of actions.

Unless otherwise provided in the articles of incorporation (or bylaws), a majority of the authorized number of directors constitutes a quorum of the board for the transaction of business [Corp. Code § 307(a)(7)]. While the articles may provide for a different quorum, they may not provide for one that is less than one-third of the authorized number of directors or less than two, whichever is larger, unless the authorized number of directors is one, in which case one director constitutes a quorum [Corp. Code § 307(a)(7)]. Any provision that requires, for any or all corporate actions, the vote or quorum for taking action of a larger proportion or of all of the directors than is otherwise required under the General Corporation Law, must be expressly provided in the articles (or in the case of close corporation, the shareholders' agreement) in order to be effective [see Corp. Code § 204(a)(5)].

§ 3.288 Increasing Vote Required for Director Action

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form contains provisions that may be included in the articles to increase the percentage vote otherwise required by statute for director action. From a practical standpoint, corporations that elect to use this type of provision will probably extend its effect only to specific corporate matters [see [2], Alternative 1, below] rather than to all corporate business [see [2], Alternative 2, below]. However, there is no statutory prohibition against using this type of provision for all corporate business [see Corp. Code § 204(a)(5)].

A provision that requires, for any or all corporate actions, the vote or quorum for taking action of a larger proportion or of all of the directors, that is otherwise required under the General Corporation Law, must be expressly set forth in the corporation's articles (or in the case of a close corporation, in a shareholders' agreement) in order to be effective [see Corp. Code § 204(a)(5)]. Unless otherwise provided in the articles of incorporation or in the bylaws, every act or decision done or made by a majority of the directors present at a meeting duly held at which a quorum is present is, subject to statutory provisions relating to directors' contracts and indemnification of directors and other agents [see Corp. Code §§ 310, 317(e)], the act of the board of directors. Although the articles or bylaws may vary this requirement, they may not provide that a lesser vote than a majority of the directors present at a meeting is the act of the board [Corp. Code § 307(a)(8)].

Under the General Corporation Law, any action required or permitted to be taken by the board may be taken without a meeting, if all members of the board individually or collectively consent in writing to the action and the number of board members serving at the time of the action constitutes a quorum [Corp. Code § 307(b)]. Neither of the alternative provisions below varies this statutory provision. For further discussion of board action by unanimous written consent, see Ch. 5, Directors' Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions .

§ 3.289 Restrictions on Board's Power to Adopt, Amend, or Repeal Bylaws

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form may be included in the articles to restrict the power of the board of directors to adopt, amend, or repeal bylaws that otherwise exists by law [see Corp. Code § 211; see also [b], below]. The restriction may be extended to the adoption, amendment, or repeal of any bylaw, or may be instead limited to bylaws covering specified matters. The provision also may be modified to limit the power of the board only with respect to adoption, or to amendment, or to repeal, of the bylaws, or any combination of these.

[b] Corporate Powers Regarding Bylaws

Subject to any limitations contained in the articles of incorporation and to compliance with other provisions of the General Corporation Law and any other applicable laws, a corporation has the power to adopt, amend, and repeal bylaws [Corp. Code § 207(b)]. If initial directors are not named in the articles, the incorporators may adopt and amend bylaws but only until the directors are elected [Corp. Code § 210].

Except for provisions that specify or change the number of directors or that change the board of directors from a fixed to a variable board, or vice versa [see Corp. Code § 212; see also § 3.282[1][b]], bylaws may be adopted, amended, or repealed either by approval of the outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 152 (definition)] or by approval of the board of directors [Corp. Code § 211]. However, subject to any article provision that requires a larger proportion of shareholder or director vote than otherwise required under the General Corporation Law [see Corp. Code § 204(a)(5); see also §§ 3.270, 3.287, and 3.288], the articles or bylaws may restrict or eliminate the power of the board to adopt, amend, or repeal any or all bylaws [*Corp. [a] Use of Form

This form is an illustrative certificate of determination that may be used to designate the first series of preferred shares, to fix the number of shares in that series, and to fix the rights, preferences, privileges and restrictions for that series. If the articles of incorporation for a corporation with two or more classes of shares (or a corporation with a single class but two or more series) do not set forth rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions for an unissued class or series or do not fix the number or designation of a series within a class but instead authorize the board to determine these matters [see, e.g., § 3.241], a certificate of determination must be filed with the Secretary of State before the shares in that class or series are issued [Corp. Code §§ 401(a), 202(e)].

In general terms, a certificate of determination must be filed in order to provide a preference statement and other information that is otherwise required to be included in the articles of incorporation [see Corp. Code § 202(e)]. The statutory definition of "articles" includes certificates of determination [Corp. Code § 154].

If the articles of incorporation authorize the board of directors to fix the number of shares or to determine the designation of any series of a class of shares or to determine or alter the rights, preferences, privileges and restrictions granted to or imposed on any wholly unissued class or series of shares, the board, within the bounds of authority granted to it in the articles, must fix these matters by resolution [see Corp. Code §§ 202(e); 401(a)]. Then, before the corporations issues any shares of any class or series that are affected by the board's action and resolution, it must file an officer's certificate that sets forth a copy of the resolution, the number of shares of the class or series, and a statement that none of the shares of the class or series has been issued [Corp. Code § 401(a); see [c], below (execution and filing requirements)]. An officers' certificate containing this required information is referred to as a certificate of determination [see Corp. Code §§ 156, 401(b); see also Corp. Code § 154 (definition of articles of incorporation includes certificates of determination). If the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions of the class or series contain a supermajority vote provision [see Corp. Code § 710(b)] subject to Corp. Code § 710 [see [b], below], the certificate must state that the provision has been approved by the shareholders in accordance with Corp. Code § 710(c) [Corp. Code § 401(g); see [b], below].

For an amendatory certificate of determination that may be used (prior to the time affected shares are issued) to alter or revoke one or more rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions fixed by the board in a previously filed certificate of determination, see § 3.211. An amendatory certificate for increasing or decreasing the number of shares of a series fixed in a previously filed certificate of determination is set forth in § 3.212.

[b] Shareholder Approval Required for Supermajority Vote Provision

In general, if a corporation with outstanding shares held of record by 100 or more persons [see Corp. Code § 605] files a certificate of determination that includes a "supermajority vote" requirement, the certificate must be approved by at least as large a proportion of the outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 152] as is required pursuant to that certificate of determination for the approval of the specified corporate action or actions [Corp. Code § 710(a), (c)].

This requirement does not apply to a corporation that files an amendment of articles or certificate of determination after 1993 if, at the time of filing, the corporation has never had a supermajority vote provision subject to the requirement of periodic readoption described below [see Corp. Code § 710(c)] and has (1) oustanding shares of more than one class or series, (2) no class of equity securities registered under § 12(b) or (g) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 [see 15 U.S.C. § 78l(b), (g)], and (3) outstanding securities held of record by fewer than 300 persons [Corp. Code § 710(a); see Corp. Code § 605; see also Corp. Code § 710(d)].

A "supermajority vote" is a requirement that specified corporate action or actions be approved by a larger proportion of the outstanding shares than a majority, or by a larger proportion of the outstanding shares of a class or series than a majority [Corp. Code § 710(b)]. For corporations with outstanding shares held of record by 100 or more persons, the supermajority vote provision may not require a vote in excess of 662/3 percent of the outstanding shares or 662/3 percent of the outstanding shares of any class or series of those shares [Corp. Code § 710(b)]. This form does not include a supermajority vote provision; if one is to be included, the form must be modified accordingly with a description of the provision and a recitation that the requisite shareholder approval for the provision has been obtained.

[c] Execution and Filing Requirements

As discussed in [a], above, a certificate of determination must include an "officers' certificate" [see Corp. Code § 401(a)]. This means a certificate that is signed and verified by the board chairprson, the president, or any vice-president, and by the secretary, the chief financial officer, the treasurer, or any assistant secretary or assistant treasurer of the corporation [Corp. Code § 173]. "Verified" means that the statements contained in the certificate are declared to be true of the own knowledge of the persons executing the certificate in either of the following [Corp. Code § 193]:

- An affidavit signed by them under oath before an officer authorized by the laws of this state or of the place where it is executed to administer oaths; or

- A declaration in writing executed by them "under penalty of perjury" [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5] and stating the date and place (within or without this state) of execution [Corp. Code § 193].

Any affidavit sworn to outside California before a notary public or a judge or clerk of a court of record having an official seal satisfies the statutory requirements for verification and need not be further authenticated [Corp. Code § 193]. The form below meets the statutory requirements for a declaration under penalty of perjury referred above.

The duly executed and verified certificate of determination must be filed in the office of the Secretary of State [Corp. Code §§ 401(a), 169], together with the appropriate filing fee [see Gov. Code § 12186(p); Corp. Code § 108]. The Secretary of State will compare and certify two copies without charge, provided the copies are submitted with the original to be filed [Gov. Code § 12185]. Otherwise, separate fees for certification [Gov. Code § 12183], copying, preclearance of documents, and special handling must be submitted [see Gov. Code § 12182].

RESOLUTION OF BOARD OF DIRECTORS

WHEREAS, the Articles of Incorporation of this corporation provide for a class of shares known as Preferred Stock, issuable from time to time in one or more series; and

WHEREAS, the Board of Directors of this corporation is authorized to determine or alter the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on any wholly unissued series of Preferred Stock, to fix the number of shares constituting any such series, and to determine the designation of that series, or any of them; and

WHEREAS, this corporation has not issued any shares of Preferred Stock and the Board of Directors of this corporation desires, pursuant to its authority, to determine and fix the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions relating to the initial series of Preferred Stock and the number of shares constituting and the designation of the series;

IT IS THEREFORE RESOLVED, that the Board of Directors authorizes the original issue of a series of Preferred shares that shall be designated and known as _____ [name of series, e.g., "Preferred Series A"]. The number of shares of this series shall be _____[number]. All shares in this series are subject to the following rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions:

(a) _____ [Describe dividend rights and rate; see §§ 3.243-3.245];

(b) _____ [Describe liquidation preferences; see §§ 3.246-3.248];

(c) _____ [Set forth redemption provisions; see § 3.249];

(d) _____ [Include sinking fund provisions if desired; see § 3.250];

(e) _____ [Specify conversion rights, if any; see §§ 3.251, 3.252];

(f) _____ [Describe voting rights; see §§ 3.253, 3.254];

(g) _____ [Insert any other desired provisions, e.g., see §§ 3.255-3.257].

RESOLVED FURTHER, that the Board Chairperson, the President or any Vice-President, and the Secretary, the Chief Financial Officer, the Treasurer, or any Assistant Secretary or Assistant Treasurer of this corporation are each authorized to execute, verify, and file in the office of the California Secretary of State a Certificate of Determination in accordance with this resolution and California law.

5. We further declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the matters set forth in this Certificate are true and correct of our own knowledge.

§ 3.311 Amendatory Certificate of Determination to Alter or Revoke Certain Rights, Preferences, Privileges, or Restrictions Fixed in Previously Filed Certificate of Determination

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a certificate of determination that may be used to alter or revoke any right, preference, privilege, or restriction fixed by the board of directors for a series of shares in a certificate of determination previously filed with the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 401(b); see § 3.310]. It should be filed with the Secretary of State only if the corporation has not issued any shares of the series affected by the board resolution contained in the previously filed certificate of determination [Corp. Code § 401(b)]. If shares of an affected series have been issued, the provisions of a resolution set forth in a previously filed certificate of determination may be amended only by following the statutory procedures required for an amendment of the articles [Corp. Code § 401(d), (e); see Corp. Code §§ 902-905, 908 (approval and filing requirements for amendment of articles); see also Ch. 10, Amendment of Articles]. An increase or decrease by the board of directors in the number of shares of a series designated in a previously filed certificate of determination is not subject to this rule [see Corp. Code § 401(d); see also § 3.312 (amendatory certificate for increasing or decreasing number of shares)].

[b] Formal Requirements for Certificate

The board of directors may alter or revoke any right, preference, privilege, or restriction fixed by resolution in a previously filed certificate of determination by adopting an appropriate resolution and filing a certificate of determination in the office of the Secretary of State. The certificate of determination must set forth an officers' certificate with the resolution adopted by the board and a statement that none of the shares of the series affected by the resolution has been issued [Corp. Code § 401(b)]. An officers' certificate must be signed and verified by specific officers of the corporation [see Corp. Code §§ 173, 193]; those requirements are discussed in § 3.310[1][c] and incorporated into the form below.

A certificate of determination that amends a previously filed certificate of determination must identify the specific provision or provisions of the original certificate being amended [Corp. Code § 401(e)]. It must do so (in compliance with the requirements for amending articles of incorporation) by establishing the wording of the amendment by one or more of the following means [Corp. Code § 401(e); see Corp. Code § 907(a) (requirements for certificate of amendment for articles of incorporation)]:

- By stating that the original certificate will be amended to read as set forth in full in the amended certificate;

- By stating that any provision of the original certificate (which must be identified by the numerical or other designation given it in the original certificate, or by stating its exact wording) will be stricken from the certificate, or will be amended to read as set forth in the amended certificate;

- By stating that the provisions set forth in the amended certificate of determination will be added to the provisions of the original certificate.

[c] Shareholder Approval Requirement

If a corporation with outstanding shares held of record by 100 or more persons [see Corp. Code § 605] files a certificate of determination [see Corp. Code §§ 156, 401] containing a "supermajority vote" provision [see Corp. Code § 710(b)], the certificate must be approved by at least as large a proportion of the outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 152] as is required pursuant to that certificate of determination for the approval of the specified corporate action or actions [Corp. Code § 710(a), (c)]. This requirement does not apply to a corporation that files an amendment of articles or certificate of determination after 1993 if, at the time of filing, the corporation has never had a supermajority vote provision subject to the requirement of periodic readoption [see Corp. Code § 710(c)] and has (1) outstanding shares of more than one class or series, (2) no class of equity securities registered under § 12(b) or (g) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 [15 U.S.C. § 78l(b), (g)], and (3) outstanding securities held of record by fewer than 300 persons [Corp. Code § 710(a); see Corp. Code § 605].

AMENDATORY CERTIFICATE OF DETERMINATION for _____ [name of corporation], a California corporation

_____ [name of board chairperson, president, or vice-president executing this certificate] and _____ [name of secretary, chief financial officer, treasurer, assistant secretary, or assistant treasurer executing this certificate] certify that:

1. They are the _____ [board chairperson, president, or vice-president] and the _____ [secretary, chief financial officer, treasurer, assistant secretary, or assistant treasurer], respectively, of _____ [name of corporation, exactly as of record in office of Secretary of State], a California corporation.

2. None of the shares of the series designated _____ [name of affected series, e.g., Preferred Series A], which is the series of shares affected by this Amendatory Certificate of Determination, has been issued.

3. Paragraph [or subparagraph or other designation] _____ [insert same number, letter, or other designation used in previously filed certificate] of the corporation's Certificate of Determination filed on _____[date], is amended to read as follows: _____ [set forth amended provision) or is revoked].

4. The foregoing amendment has been duly approved by the Board of Directors in a resolution adopted by it and which is set forth below.

[5. If appropriate (see § 3.310[1][b]), add: The rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions of the _____ (class or series) affected by this Amendatory Certificate of Determination and the resolution set forth below contain a supermajority vote provision subject to Section 710 of the Corporations Code. The provision has been approved by the shareholders in accordance with subdivision (c) of Section 710.]

RESOLUTION OF BOARD OF DIRECTORS

WHEREAS, the Articles of Incorporation of this corporation provide for a class of shares known as Preferred Stock, issuable from time to time in one or more series; and

WHEREAS, the Board of Directors of this corporation is authorized to determine or alter the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on any wholly unissued series of Preferred Stock, to fix the number of shares constituting any such series, and to determine the designation of that series, or any of them, and to increase or decrease (but not below the number of shares of such series then outstanding) the number of shares of any series after the issue of shares of that series [or reword with language that matches authorization contained in corporation's articles]; and

WHEREAS, the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions relating to a series of Preferred shares, designated _____ [name of series, e.g., Preferred Series A] were fixed by a resolution adopted on _____[date] and set forth in a Certificate of Determination filed in the office of the California Secretary of State on _____[date]; and

WHEREAS, no Preferred shares of that series have been issued; and

WHEREAS, the Board of Directors now desires to alter or revoke certain of the rights, preferences, privileges, or restrictions for Preferred shares of that series as set forth in that Certificate of Determination;

IT IS THEREFORE RESOLVED, that the Board hereby amends [or revokes] _____ [identify specific provision being amended, by letter, number or other descriptive designation, e.g., subparagraph (a) of the RESOLUTION OF BOARD OF DIRECTORS set forth in Paragraph 3] of the Certificate of Determination filed on _____[date] [for amendment, continue: to read as follows: _____ (set forth amended provision)]. RESOLVED, FURTHER, that the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions fixed for Preferred shares of that series by that resolution of the Board of Directors and set forth in the Certificate of Determination of Preferences referred to above, shall be and remain unchanged except as altered or revoked by the foregoing resolution; and

RESOLVED FURTHER, that the Board Chairperson, the President or any Vice-President, and the Secretary, the chief financial officer, the Treasurer, or any Assistant Secretary or Assistant Treasurer of this corporation are each authorized to execute, verify, and file in the office of the California Secretary of State an Amendatory Certificate of Determination in accordance with this resolution and California law.

§ 3.312 Amendatory Certificate of Determination to Increase or Decrease Number of Shares in Series Fixed in Previously Filed Certificate of Determination

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an amendatory certificate of determination that may be filed with the office of the Secretary of State to increase or decrease the number of shares of a series fixed in a previously filed certificate of determination [see Corp. Code § 401(c)]. For a discussion of execution, verification, and filing requirements for any certificate of determination, see § 3.310[1][c]. Because this is an amendatory certificate, the provision in the previously filed certificate of determination that is being amended must be identified, and the wording of the amendment in the amendatory certificate must be established by one of the methods required by statute for the amendment of articles of incorporation [Corp. Code § 401(e); see Corp. Code § 907(a); see also [2], below, Paragraphs 3, 4]. For a discussion of circumstances under which shareholder approval is required for a certificate of determination, see § 3.310[1][b].

[b] Authority of Board to Change Number of Shares in Series

If the articles of incorporation authorize the board of directors to fix the number of shares in a series [Corp. Code § 202(e)(1); see, e.g., § 3.241], the articles may also authorize the board (within the limits and restrictions stated in the articles or the resolution fixing the number of shares constituting any series) to increase or decrease the number of shares of that series after they have been issued. However, the number of shares may not be decreased to a number below the number of shares in that series then outstanding. If the number is decreased, the shares constituting the decrease resume the status they had before the adoption of the resolution originally fixing the number of shares of that series [Corp. Code § 202(e)(3)].

[c] Procedure to Increase or Decrease Number of Shares

After a certificate of determination has been filed that fixes the number of shares of a series [see § 3.310], the board, if so authorized by the articles [see Corp. Code § 202(e); see also [b], above], may increase or decrease the number of shares constituting that series by adopting a resolution for that purpose and executing and filing an amendatory certificate of determination with the Secretary of State. The amendatory certificate (this form) must include an officers' certificate [see Corp. Code § 173; see also § 3.310[1][c] (discussion of requirements)] that sets forth a copy of the resolution, the number of shares of the series then outstanding, and the increase or decrease in the number of shares constituting the series [Corp. Code § 401(c)].

The amendatory certificate may be filed either before or after shares in the affected series have been issued [see Corp. Code § 401(d)]. However, if the certificate is filed after shares of the series have been issued, the number of shares may not be decreased below the number of shares of that series then outstanding [see Corp. Code § 202(e)(3); see also [b], above]. If a certificate of determination is filed to decrease the number of shares of a series to zero, the previously filed certificate of determination that established the series is no longer in force and the series is no longer an authorized series of the corporation [Corp. Code § 401(f)].

If a previously filed certificate of determination has been incorporated in restated articles of incorporation that have been filed [see Corp. Code § 910], the board (without obtaining shareholder approval that is ordinarily required) [see Corp. Code § 902] may increase or decrease the number of shares of a series designated in a previously filed certificate of determination by amending the articles [Corp. Code § 401(c)]. Requirements for amending articles of incorporation are covered in Ch. 10, Amendment of Articles .

WHEREAS, the number of Preferred shares of that series is _____ [number, e.g., 1000] and this Board of Directors now desires to [increase or decrease] that number to _____ [number, e.g., 2000], and there are no limits or restrictions [or if articles do contain limits or restrictions, recite compliance with those] stated in the resolution of the Board of Directors originally fixing the number of shares constituting Preferred shares of that series; and

WHEREAS, none of the shares of this series have been issued by the corporation [or there are _____ (number) shares outstanding in this series].

IT IS THEREFORE RESOLVED, that the Board hereby amends the provision in _____ [describe location of provision contained in previously filed Certificate of Determination, e.g., the RESOLUTION OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS set forth in Paragraph 3] of the corporation's Certificate of Determination filed on _____[date], which now reads _____ [set forth exact wording of provision in quotation marks, e.g., "The number of shares of this series shall be 1000."] to read _____ [set forth exact wording for new provision in quotation marks, e.,g., "The number of shares of this series shall be 2000."].

RESOLVED FURTHER, that the Board Chairperson, the President or any Vice-President, and the Secretary, the chief financial officer, the Treasurer, or any Assistant Secretary or Assistant Treasurer of this corporation are each authorized to execute, verify, and file in the office of the California Secretary of State an Amendatory Certificate of Determination in accordance with this resolution and California law.

This chapter covers procedure and forms for drafting, adopting, amending, and repealing bylaws of corporations formed under the General Corporation Law [Corp. Code §§ 1-2319], that is, stock and profit corporations. Bylaws for professional corporations and for nonprofit corporations and other types of entities, such as agricultural cooperatives and real estate investment trusts, are covered in the chapters dealing with the particular entity.

Particular classes of corporations may be governed by statutes in other codes that may impose, with regard to those corporations, requirements in addition to, or in lieu of, those imposed by the General Corporation Law. For example, banks, trust companies, savings and loan associations, credit unions, escrow agents, indust rial loan companies, pawnbrokers, and personal property brokers are governed by the Financial Code; limited dividend housing c orporations are governed by Health and Safety Code §§ 34800-34948 and land chest corporations by Health and Safety Code §§ 35100-35237; public utilities are governed by the Public Utilities Code. When forming one of these corporations, counsel should check the applicable code to determine what, if any, limitations are imposed on the purposes and powers of the corporation or the content of its bylaws.

The process of drafting bylaws may be as complex and thorough as enumerating all possible provisions, reviewing the law applicable to each and determining the desires of the incorporators concerning the provision, considering alternative phrasing, and, finally, drafting the provision. More commonly, bylaws are prepared by copying a set of bylaws used previously or published in a form book. The minimum requirements for this practice are a careful reading of each provision to be copied and a quick check of the provision against the applicable code section, if any. Whichever method is used, this chapter has been designed to facilitate the proper drafting of bylaws by including the following features:

- Two complete sets of bylaws--a long form and a short form--each with a comment indicating the factors that were considered in drafting the set and the types of provisions that were included or excluded. Within these complete sets of bylaws, applicable code sections are included in the heading of each provision for quick reference, and following each provision is a reference to other forms containing variations of the same provision and discussion concerning use of the provision.

- Individual forms for particular provisions, usually those in which a variation from the statutory requirement is permitted or those not specifically authorized by statute, with detailed discussion of the use of the provision.

- A transaction guide and forms for resolutions and consents for the adoption, amendment, or repeal of bylaws.

§ 4.10 Definition and Nature of Bylaws

The term "bylaws" is not defined by statute, but is understood to mean the rules adopted by a corporation for its internal government [see Corp. Code § 212(b) (bylaws may be adopted by a corporation for the management of its business and conduct of its affairs)].

Articles of incorporation and bylaws are similar to constitutions and statutes, respectively. Constitutions establish the governmental structure, define and restrict the powers of government, and spell out mandatory duties. Statutes, on the other hand, generally regulate the conduct of citizens in relation to each other and to the government. Articles of incorporation, like constitutions, establish the governing structure of the corporation, limit or restrict its powers if that is desired, and set forth mandatory duties, if any, for the management of the business and conduct of the affairs of the corporation [see, e.g., Corp. Code §§ 202, 204, 206]. Bylaws, on the other hand, regulate the management of the business and conduct of the affairs of the corporation generally and prescribe the rights and duties of the members of the corporation towards the corporation and among themselves in reference to the management of its affairs [see, e.g., Corp. Code § 212(b); see also Olincy v. Merle Norman Cosmetics, Inc. (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 260, 267, 19 Cal. Rptr. 387 ; Casady v. Modern Metal Etc. Mfg. Co. (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 728, 733-734, 10 Cal. Rptr. 790 ; Bornstein v. District Grand Lodge No. 4 (1906) 2 Cal. App. 624, 628 (comparing construction of bylaws with construction of statutes)].

Bylaws have been said to constitute a contract between the shareholders and the corporation, and also a contract among the shareholders [Casady v. Modern Metal Etc. Mfg. Co. (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 728, 732-733, 10 Cal. Rptr. 790] .

§ 4.11 Right of Corporation to Adopt Bylaws

Corp. Code § 207(b) provides that a corporation may adopt, amend, and repeal bylaws, and Corp. Code § 211 provides that bylaws may be adopted, amended, or repealed by the shareholders or the board. These sections do not require that a corporation adopt bylaws. Nor can it be said that they authorize a corporation to do so, since it is fundamental in corporation law throughout the United States that the right to be a corporation implies an inherent right to make bylaws so far as they are not inconsistent with the federal or state constitutions, statutory restrictions, provisions in their articles, or essential reasonableness, and that was the rule at common law [Olincy v. Merle Norman Cosmetics, Inc. (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 260, 266-267, 19 Cal. Rptr. 387] . At most, the statutes merely recognize and confirm the inherent power of a corporation to adopt bylaws.

Although it has the power to adopt bylaws, a corporation is not required to do so [Canal Oil Co. v. National Oil Co. (1937) 19 Cal. App. 2d 524, 537, 66 P.2d 197] , and, if the corporation fails to do so, the authority to perform acts that may be controlled by bylaws is vested in the board of directors [Canal Oil Co. v. National Oil Co. (1937) 19 Cal. App. 2d 524, 537, 66 P.2d 197] and board committees [Corp. Code § 300(a)]. Nevertheless, most corporations adopt bylaws as a part of formation procedure. Failure to adopt bylaws could cause certain difficulties when a state or federal agency regulating the activities of the corporation requires that copies of the charter documents be filed as exhibits to applications. For example, the California Corporations Commissioner requires that a copy of the bylaws be attached to an application for a permit to issue securities [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 260.001(a), 260.112, 260.113]. A copy of the bylaws must be included in the registration statement if securities are to be registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission under the Securities Act of 1933 (15 U.S.C. §§ 77a-77aa) [15 U.S.C. § 77aa, Schedule A, P 31(a)], in the application if securities are to be registered on a national securities exchange, or in the registration statement filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. §§ 78a-78jj) [15 U.S.C. § 78l(b)(2)].

§ 4.12 Restrictions on Bylaws

While a corporation has inherent power to adopt bylaws, the legislature may prescribe the formalities to be observed in their adoption and may limit the scope and subjects for which bylaws may be adopted [Olincy v. Merle Norman Cosmetics, Inc. (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 260, 267, 19 Cal. Rptr. 387] . The bylaws thus may not be in conflict with law, or with the corporation's articles of incorporation [Corp. Code § 212(b)]. Bylaws are subject to the further general requirement that they be reasonable [see Olincy v. Merle Norman Cosmetics, Inc. (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 260, 266-267, 19 Cal. Rptr. 387 (not inconsistent with essential reasonableness); Mancini v. Patrizi (1927) 87 Cal. App. 435, 439-440, 262 P. 375 (must not be unreasonable in their practical application); Bornstein v. District Grand Lodge No. 4 (1906) 2 Cal. App. 624 (bylaw must be reasonable); see also Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Laws, § 54.03[1] (Matthew Bender)].

§ 4.13 Who May Adopt, Amend, Repeal Bylaws

Bylaws may be adopted, amended, or repealed by the approval of the outstanding shares, as that term is defined in Corp. Code § 152, or by approval of the board of directors [Corp. Code § 211], or by the incorporator(s) if initial directors were not named in the articles and have not yet been elected [Corp. Code 210]. However, after shares have been issued, a bylaw specifying or changing a fixed number of directors or the maximum or minimum number in the case of a variable board, or changing from a fixed to a variable board or vice versa, may be adopted only by approval of the outstanding shares [Corp. Code §§ 211, 212(a)]. The articles of incorporation (or, in the case of a close corporation, a shareholders' agreement [see Corp. Code §§ 154, 158, 186]) may, however, require the vote of a larger proportion or all of the shares of any class or series, or the vote or quorum for taking action of a larger proportion or all of the directors than is otherwise required by the General Corporation Law [Corp. Code § 204(a)(5)], to adopt, amend, or repeal bylaws [see Corp. Code § 204(a)(9)]. In addition, the bylaws themselves may require the vote of a majority of the authorized number of directors [see Corp. Code § 204(a)], rather than a majority of the directors present at a meeting at which a quorum is present [see Corp. Code §§ 151, 211, 307(a)(8)], to amend or repeal the bylaws. On the other hand, subject to Corp. Code § 204(a)(5), either the articles or the bylaws may restrict or eliminate the power of the board to adopt, amend, or repeal any or all bylaws [Corp. Code § 211]. Board committees have no power to adopt, amend, or repeal bylaws [Corp. Code § 311(d)].

§ 4.14 Amending Bylaws of Listed Corporations

A listed corporation, by amendment of its bylaws (or articles), may adopt provisions to divide the board of directors into two or three classes to serve for terms of two or three years respectively, or to eliminate cumulative voting [Corp. Code § 301.5(a); see Corp. Code § 301(a)]. A "listed corporation" is a corporation with outstanding shares listed on the New York Stock Exchange, the NYSE Amex, the NASDAQ Global Market, or the NASDAQ Capital Market [Corp. Code § 301.5(d)]. After issuance of shares, a corporation that is not a listed corporation may adopt those provisions pursuant to amendment of its bylaws (or articles), to take effect when it becomes a listed corporation [Corp. Code § 301.5(a); see Corp. Code § 301.5(g), (i) (effective date of amendment); see also Corp. Code § 301.5(e), (f), (h) (effect of loss of listed corporation status)].

A bylaw (or article) amendment providing for division of the board of directors into classes, a change in the number of classes, or the elimination of cumulative voting, may be adopted only by the approval of the board [see Corp. Code § 151] and the outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 152] voting as a single class, notwithstanding the requirements of Corp. Code § 903 (shareholder approval of amendments) [Corp. Code § 301.5(a)]. If the board of directors is divided into two classes pursuant to the amendment, the authorized number of directors must be no fewer than six, and one half of the directors (or as close an approximation as possible) must be elected at each annual meeting. If the board is divided into three classes, the authorized number must be no fewer than nine, and one third (or as close an approximation as possible) must be elected at each annual meeting. Directors of a listed corporation may be elected by classes at a shareholder meeting at which an amendment adopting provisions for dividing the board into classes is approved. However, the extended terms for directors are contingent on approval of the amendment [Corp. Code § 301.5(b)]. If directors for more than one class will be elected by the shareholders at any one meeting and the election is by cumulative voting [see Corp. Code § 708], votes may be cumulated only for directors to be elected within each class [Corp. Code § 301.5(c)].

If a listed corporation adopts this amendment to the bylaws, the amendment must include a statement of the facts showing that the corporation is a listed corporation [Corp. Code § 301.5(j); see Corp. Code § 301.5(d) (definition of "listed corporation")]. If a corporation that is not yet listed adopts this type of bylaw amendment, the provision as adopted must include the following statement or its substantial equivalent [Corp. Code § 301.5(j)]: "This provision shall become effective only when the corporation becomes a listed corporation within the meaning of § 301.5 of the Corporations Code."

§ 4.15 Construction of Bylaws

Bylaws are to be reasonably construed and should be given a construction that will sustain their validity. Thus, if a bylaw is reasonably susceptible to different constructions, one in harmony and the other in conflict with a statute, the former construction will be adopted. Likewise, a bylaw will be construed in harmony with the articles of incorporation if it is reasonably susceptible to that construction [Olincy v. Merle Norman Cosmetics, Inc. (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 260, 272, 19 Cal. Rptr. 387] . Moreover, a bylaw, like a statute, will not be construed to operate retrospectively unless its terms expressly so provide [Casady v. Modern Metal etc. Mfg. Co. (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 728, 733, 10 Cal. Rptr. 790] .

§ 4.16 Waiver of Bylaws

The shareholders or members of a corporation may waive the protection of bylaws that operate in their favor by express ratification of action in conflict with the bylaws. Ratification may be made by the vote of the same pcentage of shares necessary to enact the bylaw [Horner v. Marine Engineers' Etc. Ass'n. (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 837, 842, 1 Cal. Rptr. 113 ; see People's Home Sav. Bank v. Rickard (1903) 139 Cal. 285, 292, 73 P. 858 (holding that a bylaw relating to the transfer of stock was waived by the corporation for whose protection it was made, and that the corporation, having once waived the requirements of its bylaws by accepting defendant as a stockholder, entering the transfer in its books, and issuing her a certificate, which she accepted, could not subsequently obviate the effect of the waiver); see also §§ 4.11, 4.13].

§ 4.100 Facts

NOTE:

The following section contains lists of bylaws provisions contained in the forms in this chapter. This section may be used as a quick checklist of facts to be obtained from the client. Cross references to forms and paragraph numbers where the provisions appear are included for each provision. Some of the statutory provisions are mandatory and may not be changed by the bylaws; others may be changed by the articles but not by the bylaws; still others may be changed or varied by the bylaws in whole or in part [see § 4.271[1]]. Mandatory statutory provisions apply whether or not set forth in the bylaws. They are included in the bylaws merely for the information of management and the shareholders. Two statutes in the General Corporation Law require that certain matters be set forth in the bylaws. Corp. Code § 212(a) requires that the number of directors, or the minimum and maximum number in the case of a variable board, be stated in the bylaws, and Corp. Code § 600(b) requires that the date and time of the shareholders' annual meeting, or the manner of fixing the date and time, be stated in the bylaws. However, these provisions may be included in the articles in addition to, or in lieu of, being set forth in the bylaws [see Corp. Code §§ 204(d), 212(a)]. If the provisions are set forth in the articles, however, they cannot be changed by an amendment to the bylaws; rather, the articles themselves will have to be amended. The cost to the client of preparation and filing of an amendment to the articles of incorporation should be considered when deciding whether the provision should appear in the bylaws or the articles.

1. Provisions governing location of corporate office:

a. Street address of corporation's principal executive office [Corp. Code § 1502(a)(4); see §§ 4.200[2], P 1.01; 4.201, P 1.01; 4.210].

b. If address of corporation's principal executive office is not in California, street address of its principal business office in this state, if any [Corp. Code § 1502(6)].

2. Provisions governing directors and board committees:

a. Number of directors, or minimum and maximum number in case of variable board [Corp. Code § 212(a); see §§ 4.200[2], P 2.03; 4.201[2], P 2.02; 4.211].

§ 4.120 Preliminary Determinations

NOTE:

Bylaws may be adopted by either (1) the approval of the outstanding shares, that is, by the affirmative vote of a majority of the outstanding voting shares [Corp. Code § 152], at a shareholders' meeting [see Corp. Code § 601(a)] or, unless otherwise provided in the articles of incorporation, by the written consent of a majority of the outstanding shares without a meeting [Corp. Code §§ 194, 603(a)]; or (2) by the approval of the board of directors [Corp. Code § 211], that is, by the affirmative vote of a majority of the directors present at a meeting duly held at which a quorum is present [see Corp. Code §§ 151, 307(a)(8)] or by the unanimous written consent of the directors without a meeting [Corp. Code §§ 194, 307(b)].

The articles, however, may prohibit shareholder action by written consent [Corp. Code § 603(a)], may require the vote of a larger proportion or of all of the shares of any class or series, or the vote or quorum for taking action of a larger proportion or of all of the directors [Corp. Code § 204(a)(5)] for the adoption of bylaws, or may restrict or eliminate the power of the board to adopt any or all bylaws [Corp. Code § 211].

If initial directors were not named in the articles and have not yet been elected, bylaws may be adopted by the incorporators [Corp. Code § 210].

1. Determine if there are any requirements, limitations, or restrictions on adoption of bylaws set forth in articles of incorporation.

NOTE:

If there are limitations or restrictions, they must be complied with [see NOTE, above].

2. Determine manner in which bylaws are to be adopted:

a. By resolution adopted by the incorporator(s).

b. By resolution at first meeting of board of directors (most common manner of adopting initial bylaws).

c. By unanimous written consent of directors without meeting.

d. By affirmative vote of outstanding voting shares at shareholders' meeting.

e. By written consent of outstanding voting shares without meeting, if not prohibited by articles.

AUTHOR: August J. Moretti, J.D., Peter N. Townshend, M.B.A., J.D. Mary E. Ahern, B.A., J.D. Practice Consultants

§ 4.121 Drafting Bylaws

1. Determine purpose and importance of bylaws for particular corporation, and desires of incorporators for including statutory provisions governing their activities, varying these statutory provisions when allowed, and adding other regulations not prohibited by statute [see § 4.200[1]].

NOTE:
These determinations will govern the content and length of the bylaws, and will indicate to counsel the amount of time that should be spent in analysis and phrasing of the various possible provisions. At the time bylaws are prepared, the incorporators generally have little concern over what they should provide. Therefore, it is up to counsel to anticipate their needs, and to suggest what the bylaws should include and how they should be used.

2. Select best method for preparing bylaws under the circumstances, either:

a. For each possible provision:
(1) Consider governing law.

(2) Determine whether provision should be included.

(3) Determine whether there are any alternative provisions that would be better under the circuumstances.

(4) If provision is to be included, draft it accordingly.

b. Select one of complete sets of bylaws provided in this chapter [see §§ 4.200 (long form), 4.201 (short form)] after reading provisions and checking code section or sections governing provision as indicated in heading of provision.

c. Purchase and fill in blanks of pretyped bylaws prepared and sold by printing or attorneys' supply companies.

NOTE:

Certain printing companies in California sell prepared bylaws. These companies also include two copies of bylaws in a kit containing the minute book, first minutes, stock certificates, and corporate seal. Although these prepared forms are commonly used for small corporations, these forms have significant drawbacks. First and foremost, they do not permit modification or customization to fit a particular corporation. Moreover, they can become outdated due to changes in the law or the corporation and require amendment. The need for amendment may be difficult to detect because they do not include citations to the relevant statutory provisions to facilitate review. In contrast, the forms in this chapter do contain such provisions.

§ 4.122 Preparation of Resolution or Written Consent for Adoption of Bylaws

1. If adoption is to be by resolution of the incorporator(s) (if initial directors were not named in the articles and have not yet been elected), draft resolution. [see § 4.257].

2. If adoption is to be by resolution of board of directors adopted at first directors' meeting, draft resolution [see §§ 4.260, 4.261].

3. If adoption is to be by written consent of directors without meeting, prepare written consent for execution by directors [see §§ 4.264, 4.265].

4. If adoption is to be by resolution adopted by holders of outstanding voting shares at shareholders' meeting, draft resolution [see § 4.267].

5. If adoption is to be written consent of holders of outstanding voting shares, prepare written consent to be submitted to shareholders for their signatures [see §§ 4.267, 4.268].

§ 4.130 Preliminary Determinations

1. Determine whether specific bylaws sought to be amended or repealed merely duplicate provisions set forth in articles of incorporation.

NOTE:
If they do, the amendment or repeal of the bylaws cannot be effective until articles themselves are amended [see Corp. Code § 212(b)].

2. Determine if there are any limitations or restrictions on amendment or repeal of bylaws in articles of incorporation or in bylaws; such as:

NOTE:
These limitations may be imposed on who may amend or repeal bylaws generally [see Corp. Code § 211], or the vote required to amend or repeal bylaws generally, or on the amendment or repeal of specific bylaws [see Corp. Code §§ 204(a)(5), 204(a), last paragraph].

a. Articles of incorporation or bylaws may restrict or eliminate power of board of directors to amend or repeal any or all bylaws [Corp. Code § 211].

b. Articles may require larger vote for amendment or repeal of bylaws than would otherwise be required [Corp. Code § 204(a)(5)].

c. Articles may prohibit action by shareholders by written consent [Corp. Code § 603(a)].

d. Bylaws may require approval by majority of authorized directors for amendment or repeal of bylaws [see Corp. Code § 204(a), last paragraph].

3. Determine if there are any statutory restrictions on amendment or repeal of specific bylaws in question.

NOTE:

For example, after shares have been issued, a bylaw specifying or changing the fixed number of directors or the maximum or minimum number or changing from a fixed to a variable board or vice versa may be adopted only by approval of the outstanding shares; that is, by the affirmative vote of a majority of the outstanding shares entitled to vote [Corp. Code § 212(a); see Corp. Code § 152 ("approved by the outstanding shares" defined)]. A bylaw or amendment of the articles reducing the fixed number or minimum number of directors to a number of directors less than five cannot be adopted if the votes cast against its adoption at the meeting, or the shares not consenting in the case of action by written consent, are equal to more than 16 2/3 percent of the outstanding shares entitled to vote [Corp. Code § 212(a)].

4. Subject to any applicable limitations and restrictions [see Paragraphs 2, 3, above], determine whether amendment or repeal is to be by:

a. Resolution of board of directors approved at meeting.

b. Unanimous written consent of directors without meeting.

c. Vote of holders of outstanding voting shares at shareholders' meeting.

d. Written consent of holders of outstanding voting shares without meeting.

5. Determine whether corporation is "listed corporation" [see Corp. Code § 301.5].

NOTE:

A listed corporation may amend its bylaws to divide the board of directors into classes or eliminate cumulative voting [Civ. Code § 301.5(a)]. A corporation is "listed" if it has outstanding securities listed on the New York Stock Exchange, the NYSE Amex, the NASDAQ Global Market, or the NASDAQ Capital Market [Corp. Code § 301.5(d); see § 4.14].

§ 4.131 Procedure for Amendment or Repeal of Bylaws

1. Prepare directors' resolution [see §§ 4.271, 4.272], unanimous written consent of directors [see §§ 4.264, 4.265], written sonsent of incorporators if no directors have been elected [see § 4.258], or written consent of holders of outstanding voting shares [see §§ 4.267, 4.268] and have it adopted or executed.

2. Prepare certificate of amendment or repeal and have it signed by secretary or assistant secretary of corporation [Corp. Code § 314].

3. Make changes in original bylaws or redraft bylaws to incorporate changes and have them certified as true and correct by secretary or assistant secretary of corporation [Corp. Code § 314].

§ 4.200 Complete Bylaws--Long Form

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a comprehensive set of bylaws detailing the duties, liabilities, and limitations imposed by the General Corporation Law [Corp. Code §§ 1-2319]. Because it provides a detailed list of the requirements that will determine the corporation's operating framework, this form may be particularly appropriate for corporations that will not have a regularly employed or retained legal counsel to advise them in matters relating to their corporate operations. In that situation, however, care should be taken to explain to the officers and directors the need to comply with the bylaws and the limitations on their ability to amend provisions that reflect statutory requirements [see [e], [g], below].

The secretary's certificate at the end of the bylaws is for use if the bylaws are adopted at the first meeting of directors, as is usually the case. For other methods of adoption, and appropriate certificates, see Part C.

This form assumes that the corporation has elected to issue stock certificates rather than utilize an electronic system of issuance, recordation, and transfer [see Corp. Code § 416(b)]. Paragraph 7.12 of the form allows the corporation to adopt this alternative system of uncertificated securities. For a general discussion of certificated and noncertificated securities, see Ch. 6K, Nonissuer Transactions in Investment Securities , and Ch. 6I, Issuance of Equity Securities .

[b] General Drafting Considerations

The general issues to be determined in preparing bylaws are the following:

- Whether to restate or paraphrase statutory regulations of the corporation's affairs for the information of the directors, officers, and shareholders.

- Whether to vary the statutory requirements by a specific bylaw when permitted by statute.

- Whether to add additional regulations not specifically governed by statute but authorized to be included in the bylaws, either by a specific code section [see, e.g., Corp. Code § 212(b)] or by the inherent power of the corporation to adopt bylaws not in conflict with law or with its articles of incorporation.

The answers to all of these questions require a general familiarity with the provisions of the Corporations Code governing directors, officers, and shareholders, and a thorough understanding of all those code sections specifically mentioning bylaws.

[c] Use of Statutory Provisions

Many aspects of the internal affairs of a corporation are dictated by statute, but significant statutory requirements customarily are restated in the bylaws for the information and guidance of the directors, officers, and shareholders, who do not usually have the statutes available for reference. In restating statutory provisions, the basic issues are the following:

- Which provisions to include; and

- Whether to set the provisions out in full or to paraphrase or condense them.

The statutory provisions that should considered for inclusion in the bylaws are those governing the following issues:

- Directors and management [Corp. Code §§ 300-317].

- Issuance of shares [Corp. Code §§ 400-415, 423].

- Certificates and transfer of shares [Corp. Code §§ 416-422].

- Shareholders' meetings [Corp. Code §§ 600-605].

- Voting rights [Corp. Code §§ 700-709].

- Corporate records and reports [Corp. Code §§ 1500-1508].

The blocks of sections noted above contain some reference to bylaws and cover subjects referred to by Corp. Code § 212(b), which lists some of the permissible bylaws. The provisions concerning dividends and purchase and redemption of shares are a notable exception [Corp. Code §§ 500-511]. These sections could be restated in bylaws, but they are lengthy and usually are not included. This form includes all the appropriate statutory regulations that would customarily be found in bylaws of a California corporation. Only those code sections within the series stated above that do not concern internal corporate relationships have been excluded.

Once the pertinent statutory provisions have been selected, the next question is whether to use the statutory language or to paraphrase or summarize that language. If the statutory regulation is worth including in the bylaws, it is worth including accurately and fully. The danger in rewording a statement of law is obvious. In the bylaws below, all pertinent statutory regulations that commonly appear in bylaws have been included in the language of the statute, except for minor changes necessary to make the provision applicable to a specific corporation rather than every corporation. In the heading of each provision the code section from which the provision was taken is indicated, so that counsel may quickly make a comparison if necessary. Since brevity may be desirable in some situations, a set of bylaws that covers many of the same regulations, in condensed form, is furnished in § 4.201.

[d] Variations in Statutory Provisions

Some statutory rules do not apply if the bylaws provide otherwise. In including these statutory rules, it must be determined whether it is advisable to alter them. In general, the statutory provisions are reasonable and should not be varied unless there is special justification.

[e] Problem in Using Statutory Provisions

One of the problems that may occur if statutory requirements are set forth in the bylaws is that if the statute is amended or repealed, the bylaw must also be amended or removed to comply with the statutory change. Otherwise, the bylaw might be cease to reflect the applicable law and therefore be invalid [see Corp. Code § 212(b)]. This problem can be reduced by either noting in the bylaws themselves the statute on which the provision is based, or keeping a separate record of it, checking new legislation annually to see whether any of these statutes have been amended or repealed and, if they have, amending the bylaws accordingly. Normally, new legislation (other than urgency legislation and legislation with a delayed operative date) takes effect on January 1 of the year following its enactment.

[f] Inclusion of Matters Not Regulated by Statute

Bylaws may include any provision for the management of the business and the conduct of corporate affairs that is not in conflict with the law or with the corporation's articles of incorporation [Corp. Code § 212(b)]. Thus, in addition to matters regulated by statute, other matters that the corporation wishes to formally regulate should be considered. Examples of regulations that frequently appear in bylaws, in addition to those matters specified in Corp. Code § 212(b), are the following:

- Authorization for execution of instruments and making deposits of funds [see [2], PP 6.01-6.04, below].
- The establishment of a fiscal year [see [2], P 9.09, below].
- Adoption and design of a corporate seal [see [2], P 9.10, below].

[g] Amending Bylaws--In General

When amending bylaws, the attorney should first check the statute governing the particular provision sought to be amended, to ensure that the amendment is permissible. If it is, the attorney should then check the articles of incorporation to ensure that the proposed amendment is not contrary to any article provision [see Corp. Code § 212(b)]. Finally, the drafting attorney should check the bylaws themselves to verify that the proposed amendment does not conflict with some other provision in the bylaws, and that any requirements set forth regarding the manner of amendment are complied with.

[h] Listed Corporations

A listed corporation, by amendment of its bylaws, may adopt provisions to divide the board of directors into two or three classes to serve for terms of two or three years respectively, or to eliminate cumulative voting [Corp. Code § 301.5(a); see Corp. Code § 301(a)]. If cumulative voting is eliminated, a listed corporation may amend its bylaws to provide that, in an uncontested election, approval of a majority, rather than a plurality, of the shareholders is required to elect a director [Corp. Code § 708.5(b); see Corp. Code § 708.5(a)(1) ("uncontested election" defined)]. A "listed corporation" is a corporation with outstanding shares listed on the New York Stock Exchange, the NYSE Amex, the NASDAQ Global Market, or the NASDAQ Capital Market [Corp. Code § 301.5(d)].

A corporation that is not a listed corporation, after issuance of shares, may adopt the above provisions pursuant to amendment of its bylaws (or articles), to take effect when it becomes a listed corporation [Corp. Code § 301.5(a)].

The bylaw amendment is required to contain particular language when the corporation adopts the amendment before becoming a listed corporation [see Corp. Code § 301.5(j)]. For further discussion, see § 4.14.

[i] Special Considerations for Close Corporations

[i] Shareholders' Agreement

To the extent and so long as a shareholders' agreement controls the discretion or powers of the board in its management of corporate affairs, each shareholder who is a party to the agreement is liable for managerial acts performed or omitted by that shareholder pursuant to the agreement, to the extent that the General Corporation Law ordinarily would impose liability on the directors. When liabilitry attaches to the shareholders in this manner, the directors are relieved of liability to that extent [Corp. Code § 300(d)].

Notwithstanding Corp. Code § 300(a) specifying the corporate powers to be exercised by the board, or any other provision of the General Corporation Law (but subject to Corp. Code § 300(c), discussed below), no shareholders' agreement [see Corp. Code §§ 154, 186] that relates to any phase of the affairs of a close corporation, including but not limited to management of its business, division of its profits, or distribution of its assets on liquidation, is invalid as between the parties to it on the ground that it so relates to the conduct of the affairs of the corporation as to interfere with the board's discretion, or that it is an attempt to treat the corporation as if it were a partnership or to arrange their relationships in a manner that would be appropriate only between partners [Corp. Code § 300(b)]. However, this rule does not apply to an agreement authorized by Corp. Code § 706(a), relating to voting agreements [Corp. Code § 300(b)].

A shareholders' agreement may not alter or waive the provisions of Corp. Code §§ 158 (defining and setting forth the requirements of a close corporation), 417, 418 (share certificates), and 500, 501 (distributions to a corporation's shareholders [see Corp. Code § 166]), or of Corp. Code §§ 1111 (mergers), 1201(e) (reorganizations), and §§ 2009-2011 (dissolution of corporation), or of Chapters 15 [Corp. Code §§ 1500-1508 (records and reports)], 16 [Corp. Code §§ 1600-1605 (rights of inspection of corporate books, records, and shareholders' record)], 18 [Corp. Code §§ 1800-1809 (involuntary dissolution)], and 22 [Corp. Code §§ 2200-2260 (crimes and penalties)]. All other provisions of the General Corporation Law may be altered or waived as between the parties to a shareholders' agreement, except the required filing of any document with the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 300(c)].

For detailed coverage of shareholders' agreements, see Ch. 8C, Close Corporation Shareholder Agreements . For coverage of voting agreements, see Ch. 8B, Voting Agreements and Voting Trusts .

[ii] Failure to Observe Corporate Formalities

The failure of a close corporation to observe corporate formalities relating to meetings of directors or shareholders in connection with the management of its affairs pursuant to a shareholders' agreement is not a factor tending to establish that the shareholders have personal liability for corporate obligations [Corp. Code § 300(e)]. That is, it is not a factor in determining the applicability of the alter ego doctrine.

[iii] Transfer of Shares

When shares are covered by a shareholders' agreement and that agreement has been filed with the secretary of the corporation for inspection by any prospective purchaser of shares, a transferee of the shares who has actual knowledge of the agreement, or notice of it by a notation on the certificate pursuant to Corp. Code § 418, is bound by its provisions and is a party to the agreement for the purposes of Corp. Code § 300(d). The agreement may not be modified, extended, or revoked without the transferee's consent, subject to any provision of the agreement permitting modification, extension, or revocation by less than unanimous agreement of the parties. A transferor of shares covered by the agreement ceases to be a party to it on ceasing to be a shareholder of the corporation [Corp. Code § 300(b)].

[iv] Termination of Agreement

Original issuance of shares by the corporation to a new shareholder who does not become a party to a shareholders' agreement terminates the agreement, except that if the agreement so provides, it will continue to the extent it is enforceable apart from the General Corporation Law. The agreement also terminates when the corporation ceases to be a close corporation [Corp. Code § 300(b)].

Principal Executive Office [Corp. Code § 1502(a)]

1.01. The principal executive office of the corporation shall be located at _____[complete address].

[See § 4.210 for alternative provisions.]

Other Offices

1.02. The corporation may also have offices at any other places, within or without the State of California, where the corporation is qualified to do business, as the Board of Directors may from time to time designate or the business of the corporation may require.

ARTICLE II
DIRECTORS

Definitions

"Board"

2. 01 (a) As used in these Bylaws, the word "Board" means the Board of Directors of the corporation.

"Directors"

(b) "Directors," as used in these bylaws in relation to any power or duty requiring collective action, means the Board of Directors of the corporation.

Responsibility of Board [Corp. Code § 300(a)]

2.02. Subject to the provisions of the General Corporation Law and to any limitations in the Articles of Incorporation relating to action required to be approved by the shareholders, as that term is defined in California Corporations Code § 153, or by the outstanding shares, as that term is defined in California Corporations Code § 152, the business and affairs of the corporation shall be managed and all corporate powers shall be exercised by or under the direction of the Board of Directors. The Board may delegate the management of the day-to-day operation of the business of the corporation to a management company or other person provided that the business and affairs of the corporation shall be managed and all corporate powers shall be exercised under the ultimate direction of the Board.

[See § 4.216 for comment and consolidation of this provision with provisions setting forth purposes and powers of corporation. See § 4.200[1][i], above, for discussion of the applicability of this provision to close corporations.]

Number of Directors [Corp. Code § 212(a)]

2.03. The number of directors of the corporation shall be _____ [number not less than three, provided, however, that (1) before shares are issued, the number may be one; (2) before shares are issued, the number may be two; (3) as long as the corporation has one shareholder, the number may be one or two, and (4) as long as the corporation has only two shareholders, the number may be two].

[For limitation on amendment of this provision, see PP 10.02 and 10.03 of this form. See § 4.211 for comment and alternative provisions. For provisions setting forth qualifications of directors, see § 4.212.]

Election and Term of Office [Corp. Code § 301]

2.04. Directors shall be elected at each annual meeting of shareholders to hold office until the next annual meeting. Each director, including a director elected to fill a vacancy (see Paragraph 2.07 of these Bylaws), shall hold office until the expiration of the term for which he or she was elected and until a successor has been elected and qualified.

[See § 4.201, P 2.03, for alternative provision.]

Resignation [Corp. Code § 305(d)]

2.05. Any director may resign effective on giving written notice to the Board Chairperson, the President, the Secretary, or the Board of Directors of the corporation, unless the notice specifies a later time for the effectiveness of the resignation. If the resignation is effective at a future time, a successor may be elected to take office when the resignation becomes effective.

Vacancies [Corp. Code §§ 192, 302-304]

When Vacancy Occurs [Corp. Code § 192]

2.06. (a) A vacancy on the Board occurs when any authorized position of director is not filled by a duly elected director, whether caused by death, resignation, removal, change in the authorized number of directors (by the Board or the shareholders), or otherwise.

[If a corporation has not issued shares and all the directors resign, die, or become incompetent, or the corporation's initial directors have not been named in the articles and all the incorporators resign, die, or become incompetent before the election of the initial directors, the superior court of any county may appoint directors of the corporation on application by any party in interest (Corp. Code § 306).]

Declaration of Vacancy [Corp. Code § 302]

(b) The Board may declare vacant the office of a director who has been declared of unsound mind by an order of court or convicted of a felony.

Removal of Director by Shareholders
[Corp. Code § 303(a)]

(c) Any or all of the directors may be removed without cause if removal is approved by the outstanding shares, as that term is defined in California Corporations Code Section 152, subject to the following:

(1) No director may be removed (unless the entire Board is removed) when the votes cast against removal, or not consenting in writing to that removal, would be sufficient to elect that director if voted cumulatively at an election at which the same total number of votes were cast (or, if action is taken by written consent, all shares entitled to vote were voted) and the entire number of directors authorized at the time of the director's most recent election were then being elected; and

(2) When by the provisions of the Articles the holders of the shares of any class or series, voting as a class or series, are entitled to elect one or more directors, any director so selected may be removed only by the applicable vote of the holders of the shares of that class or series.

[See § 4.201, P 2.04, for alternative provision.]

Removal by Court [Corp. Code § 304]

(d) Shareholders holding at least 10 percent of the number of outstanding shares of any class of the corporation may sue in the superior court of the county in which the principal executive office of the corporation is located to remove from office any director in case of fraudulent or dishonest acts or gross abuse of authority or discretion with reference to the corporation. In that case, the corporation shall be made a party to the action.

Reduction of Authorized Number of Directors
[Corp. Code § 303(b)]

(e) Any reduction of the authorized number of directors sallnot remove any director prior to the expiration of the director's term of office.

Provisions Exclusive [Corp. Code § 303(c)]

(f) Except as provided in subparagraphs (a) through (d) of this Paragraph 2.06, no director may be removed from office prior to the expiration of the director's term of office.

Filling Vacancies

By Board [Corp. Code § 305(a)]

2.07. (a) Except as otherwise provided in the Articles or in these Bylaws, and except for a vacancy created by the removal of a director as provided in Paragraph 2.06, vacancies on the Board may be filled by approval of the Board pursuant to Corporations Code Section 151, or, if the number of directors then in office is less than a quorum, by (1) the unanimous written consent of the directors then in office; (2) the affirmative vote of a majority of the directors then in office at a meeting held pursuant to notice or waivers of notice complying with Corporations Code Section 307; or (3) a sole remaining director.

[See § 4.213 for alternative provisions.]

By Shareholders [Corp. Code §§ 305(a), (b), 603(d)]

(b) Unless the Articles or a bylaw adopted by the shareholders provide that vacancies occurring in the Board by reason of the removal of directors may be filled by the Board, those vacancies may be filled only by approval of the shareholders, as that term is defined in Corporations Code Section 153. Moreover, the shareholders may elect a director at any time to fill any vacancy not filled by the directors. Directors may be elected by written consent only upon the unanimous written consent of all shares entitled to vote for the election of directors, except that the shareholders may elect a director to fill a vacancy, other than a vacancy created by removal, by the written consent of a majority of the outstanding shares entitled to vote.

PRACTICE TIP:

The requirement that written consent of the shareholders in the election of directors (other than filling vacancies not created by removal) be unanimous is one of the most frequently overlooked provisions of the California Corporations Code. Commentary by Mary E. Ahern.

[See § 4.214 for comment and alternative provision.]

By Special Meeting [Corp. Code § 305(c)]

(c) If, after the filling of any vacancy by the directors, the directors then in office who have been elected by the shareholders shall constitute less than a majority of the directors then in office, any holder or holders of an aggregate of 5 percent or more of the total number of shares at the time outstanding having the right to vote for the directors may call a special meeting of the shareholders, or apply to the superior court of the county in which the principal executive office of the corporation is located for an order that a special meeting be held to elect the entire Board. The term of office of any director not elected by the shareholders shall terminate on the election of a successor.

[The procedure for applying to the court for this type of order and the hearing on the application is set forth in Corp. Code § 305(c).]

Call of Meetings [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(2), 307(a)(1)]

2.08. Meetings of the Board may be called by the Board Chairperson, or the President, or any Vice-President, or the Secretary, or any two directors of the corporation.

[See § 4.220 for comment and alternative provisions.]

Place of Meetings [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(2), 307(a)(5)]

2.09. Meetings of the Board may be held at any place within or without California that has been designated in the notice of the meeting or, if not stated in the notice or if there is no notice, designated by resolution of the Board, and if not so designated, then at the principal executive office of the corporation.

[See § 4.201, P 2.07, and § 4.217 for alternative provisions.]

Time of Regular Meetings
[Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(2), 307(a)(2)]

2.10. Regular meetings of the Board of Directors shall be held on _____ [date or day, e.g., the 15th day of each calendar month or the first and 15th days of each calendar month or the first Tuesday of each calendar month or Wednesday of each week] commencing at the hour of _____ M.

[See § 4.201[2], P 2.08, and § 4.218 for alternative provisions.]

Notice of Meetings [Corp. Code §§ 20, 113, 118, 212(b)(2), 307(a)(2)]

2.11. Regular meetings of the Board may be held without notice. Special meetings shall be held on four days notice by first-class mail, postage prepaid, or 48 hours notice delivered personally or by telephone, including a voice messaging system or by electronic transmission by the corporation. The notice need not specify the purpose of the meeting.

[See § 4.201[2], P 2.09, and §§ 4.218, 4.219 for alternative provisions.]

Waiver of Notice [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(2), 307(a)(2), (3)]

2.12. Notice of any meeting need not be given to any director who signs a waiver of notice, or a consent to holding the meeting or an approval of the minutes of the meeting, whether before or after the meeting, or who attends the meeting without protesting, prior to the meeting or at its commencement, the lack of notice to the director. Any waiver of notice need not specify the purpose of the meeting. All waivers, consents, and approvals of minutes shall be filed with the corporate records or made a part of the minutes of the meeting to which they pertain.

[See § 4.201[2], P 2.09, and § 4.218 for alternative provisions.]

Quorum [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(4), 307(a)(7)]

2.13. A majority of the authorized number of directors constitutes a quorum of the Board for the transaction of business.

[See § 4.221 for comment and alternative provisions.]

Transactions of Board [Corp. Code § 307(a)(8)]

2.14. Except as otherwise provided in the Articles of Incorporation or in these Bylaws, every act or decision done or made by a majority of the directors present at a meeting duly held at which a quorum is present is the act of the Board, subject to the provisions of Paragraphs 2.23 and 2.28 of these Bylaws.

[See § 4.222 for Comment and alternative provisions.]

Withdrawal of Quorum [Corp. Code § 307(a)(8)]

2.15. Any meeting at which a quorum is initially present may continue to transact business notwithstanding the withdrawal of directors, if any action taken is approved by at least a majority of the required quorum for the meeting.

[See § 4.222 for Comment and alternative provisions.]

Adjournment [Corp. Code § 307(a)(4)]

2.16. A majority of the directors present, whether or not a quorum is present, may adjourn any meeting to another time and place.

Notice of Adjournment [Corp. Code § 307(a)(4)]

2.17. If the meeting is adjourned for more than 24 hours, however, notice of the adjournment to another time or place must be given prior to the time of the adjourned meeting to the directors who were not present at the time of the adjournment.

Conduct of Meetings [Corp. Code § 212(b)(2)]

2.18. At every meeting of the Board, the Board Chairperson or, in the Chairperson's absence, the President of the corporation or, in the President's absence, the Vice-President designated by the President, or, in the absence of a designation, a chairperson chosen by a majority of the directors present shall preside. The Secretary of the corporation shall act as Secretary of the Board. In the event the Secretary is absent from any meeting, the Chairperson may appoint any person to act as secretary of the meeting.

Telephone and Electronic Participation
[Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(2), 307(a)(6)]

2.19. Members of the Board may participate in any meeting through use of conference telephone, electronic video screen communication, or electronic transmission by and to the corporation.

Participation in a meeting through use of conference telephone or electronic video screen communication pursuant to this Paragraph constitutes presence in person at that meeting as long as all members participating in the meeting are able to hear one another.

Participation in a meeting through electronic transmission by and to the corporation (other than conference telephone and electronic video screen communication) constitutes presence in person at that meeting if both of the following are true:

(1) Each board member participating in the meeting can communicate with all of the other members concurrently.

(2) Each member is provided the means of participating in all matters before the board, including the capacity to propose, or interpose an objection, to a specific action to be taken by the corporation.

[See § 4.223 for comment and alternative provisions.]

Action Without Meeting [Corp. Code § 307(b)]

2.20. Any action required or permitted to be taken by the Board may be taken without a meeting if all members of the Board individually or collectively consent in writing to the action, provided that the number of Board members serving at the time the action is taken constitutes a quorum. The written consent or consents must be filed with the minutes of the proceedings of the Board.

[See § 4.225 for comment and alternative provisions.]

Duties of Directors [Corp. Code § 309]

2.21. (a) Each director shall perform the duties of a director, including duties as a member of any committee of the Board on which the director may serve, in good faith, in a manner the director believes to be in the best interests of the corporation and its shareholders and with the care, including reasonable inquiry, as an ordinarily prudent person in a like position would use under similar circumstances.

(b) In performing his or her duties each director shall be entitled, so long as he or she acts in good faith after reasonable inquiry when the need for it is indicated by the circumstances and without knowledge that would cause the reliance to be unwarranted, to rely on information, opinions, reports, or statements, including financial statements and other financial data, in each case prepared or presented by:

(1) One or more officers or employees of the corporation whom the director believes to be reliable and competent in the matters presented.

(2) Counsel, independent accountants, or other persons as to matters that the director believes to be within the person's professional or expert competence.

(3) A committee of the Board on which the director does not serve, as to matters within its designated authority, which committee the director believes to merit confidence.

(c) A person who performs the duties of director in accordance with subparagraphs (a) and (b) of this Paragraph 2.21 shall have no liability based on any alleged failure to discharge the person's obligation as a director.

Compensation [Corp. Code § 212(b)(4)]

2.22. Directors shall receive the compensation for their services and reimbursement for their expenses as shall be determined from time to time by resolution of the Board. Any director may serve the corporation in any other capacity as an officer, agent, employee, or otherwise and receive compensation for that service.

[See § 4.215 for comment and alternative provision.]

Transactions With Corporation [Corp. Code § 310]

2.23. (a) No contract or other transaction between the corporation and one or more of its directors, or between the corporation and any corporation, firm, or association in which one or more of the directors of this corporation has a material financial interest, is either void or voidable because the director or directors or the other corporation, firm, or association are parties or because the director or directors are present at the meeting of the Board or Board committee that authorizes, approves, or ratifies the contract or transaction, if:

(1) The material facts regarding the transaction and regarding the director's interest are fully disclosed or known to the shareholders and the contract or transaction is approved by the shareholders, as that term is defined in Section 153 of the California Corporations Code, in good faith, and the shares owned by the interested director or directors are prohibited from voting on the contract or transaction, or

(2) The material facts regarding the transaction and regarding the director's interest are fully disclosed or known to the Board or Board committee, and the Board or Board committee authorizes, approves, or ratifies the contract or transaction in good faith by a vote sufficient without counting the vote of the interested director or directors and the contract or transaction is just and reasonable as to the corporation at the time it is authorized, approved, or ratified, or

(3) Regarding contracts or transactions not approved as provided in clauses (1) and (2), above, of this subparagraph (a), the person asserting the validity of the contract or transaction sustains the burden of proving that the contract or transaction was just and reasonable with regard to the corporation at the time it was authorized, approved, or ratified.

A mere common directorship does not constitute a material financial interest within the meaning of the above provisions. A director is not interested within the meaning of the above provisions in a resolution fixing the compensation of another director as a director, officer, or employee of the corporation, notwithstanding the fact that the first director is also receiving compensation from the corporation.

(b) No contract or other transaction between the corporation and any corporation or association of which one or more of the directors of this corporation are directors is either void or voidable because the director or directors are present at the Board or Board committee meeting that authorizes, approves, or ratifies the contract or transaction, if:

(1) The material facts regarding the transaction and regarding the director's other directorship are fully disclosed or known to the Board or Board committee, and the Board or Board committee authorizes, approves, or ratifies the contract or transaction in good faith by a vote sufficient without counting the vote of the common director or directors, or

(2) As to contracts or transactions not approved as provided in clause (1) of this subparagraph (b), the contract or transaction is just and reasonable as to the corporation at the time it is authorized, approved, or ratified.

This provision does not apply to contracts or transactions covered by subparagraph (a) of this Paragraph 2.23.

(c) Interested or common directors may be counted in determining the presence of a quorum at a meeting of the Board or Board committee that authorizes, approves, or ratifies a contract or transaction.

Liability of Directors [Corp. Code § 316(a), (b), (e)]

2.24. (a) Subject to the provisions of Paragraph 2.21 of these Bylaws, directors who approve any of the following corporate actions will be jointly and severally liable to the corporation for the benefit of all of the creditors or shareholders entitled to institute an action under Section 316(c) of the California Corporations Code:

(1) The making of any distribution to its shareholders, as that term is defined in Section 166 of the California Corporations Code, to the extent that it is contrary to the provisions of California Corporations Code Sections 500 to 503, inclusive.

(2) The distribution of assets to shareholders after institution of dissolution proceedings of the corporation, if any, without paying or adequately providing for all known liabilities of the corporation, excluding any claims not filed by creditors within the time limit set in the notice given to creditors under the provisions of California Corporations Code Sections 1800 to 2011, inclusive.

(3) The making of any loan or guaranty contrary to Section 315 of the California Corporations Code.

(b) A director who is present at a meeting of the Board, or any Board committee, at which action specified in subparagraph (a) of this Paragraph 2.24 is taken and who abstains from voting will be considered to have approved the action.

(c) Directors liable under this Paragraph of these Bylaws shall be entitled to be subrogated to the rights of the corporation:

(1) With regard to clause (1) of subparagraph (a) of this Paragraph 2.24, against shareholders who received the distribution.

(2) With regard to clause (2) of subparagraph (a) of this Paragraph 2.24, against shareholders who received the distribution of assets.

(3) With regard to clause (3) of subparagraph (a) of this Paragraph 2.24, against the person who received the loan or guaranty.

[Who may bring the action against the directors, the amount of damages recoverable, and procedure for subrogation are set forth in Corp. Code § 316(c)-(f).]

Indemnification [Corp. Code § 317]

Definitions [Corp. Code § 317(a)]

2.25. (a) For the purposes of Paragraphs 2.26-2.32 of these Bylaws, "agent" means any person who is or was a director, officer, employee, or other agent of the corporation, or is or was serving at the request of the corporation as a director, officer, employee, or agent of another foreign or domestic corporation, partnership, joint venture, trust, or other enterprise [, or was a director, officer, employee, or agent of a foreign or domestic corporation that was a predecessor corporation of the corporation or of another enterprise at the request of the predecessor corporation].

(b) For the purposes of Paragraphs 2.26-2.32 of these Bylaws, "proceeding" means any threatened, pending, or completed action or proceeding, whether civil, criminal, administrative, or investigative; and "expenses" include without limitation attorneys' fees and any expenses of establishing a right to indemnification under Paragraph 2.27 or subparagraph (d) of Paragraph 2.28.

[See § 4.201[2], P 2.15, and § 4.216 [2], P (b)(9), for alternative provisions for use in lieu of PP 2.25-2.32 of this form.]

Power to Indemnify [Corp. Code § 317(b), (c)]

2.26. (a) The corporation shall have power to indemnify any person who was or is a party or is threatened to be made a party to any proceeding (other than an action by or in the right of the corporation to procure a judgment in its favor) by reason of the fact that that person is or was an agent of the corporation, against expenses, judgments, fines, settlements, and other amounts actually and reasonably incurred in connection with that proceeding if the person acted in good faith and in a manner the person reasonably believed to be in the best interests of the corporation and, in the case of a criminal proceeding, had no reasonable cause to believe the conduct of that person was unlawful. The termination of any proceeding by judgment, order, settlement, conviction, or on a plea of nolo contendere or its equivalent shall not, of itself, create a presumption that the person did not act in good faith and in a manner that the person reasonably believed to be in the best interests of the corporation or that the person had reasonable cause to believe was unlawful.

(b) The corporation shall have power to indemnify any person who was or is a party or is threatened to be made a party to any threatened, pending, or completed action by or in the right of the corporation to procure a judgment in its favor by reason of the fact that the person is or was an agent of the corporation, against expenses actually and reasonably incurred by the person in connection with the defense or settlement of that action if that person acted in good faith, in a manner the person believed to be in the best interests of the corporation and its shareholders. No indemnification shall be made for any of the following:

(1) Any claim, issue, or matter for which any person has been adjudged liable to the corporation in the performance of that person's duty to the corporation and its shareholders, unless and only to the extent that the court where the proceeding was or is pending determines on application that, in view of all the circumstances of the case, the person is fairly and reasonably entitled to indemnity for expenses, and then only to the extent that the court determines;

(2) Amounts paid in settling or otherwise disposing of a threatened or pending action without court approval; or

(3) Expenses incurred in defending a threatened or pending action that is settled or otherwise disposed of without court approval.

Expenses of Successful Agent [Corp. Code § 317(d)]

2.27. To the extent that an agent of this corporation has been successful on the merits in the defense of any proceeding referred to in Paragraph 2.26 or in defense of any claim, issue, or matter specified in that paragraph, the agent shall be indemnified against expenses actually and reasonably incurred by the agent in connection with the matter.

Determination That Indemnification Is Proper [Corp. Code § 317(e)]

2.28. Except as provided in Paragraph 2.27, any indemnification under Paragraphs 2.26-2.31 of these Bylaws will be made by the corporation only if authorized in the specific case, on a determination that indemnification of the agent is proper in the circumstances because the agent has met the applicable standard of conduct set forth in Paragraph 2.26 by any of the following:

(a) A majority vote of a quorum consisting of directors who are not parties to that proceeding;

(b) If a quorum of directors is not obtainable, by independent legal counsel in a written opinion;

(c) Approval of the shareholders, as that term is defined in Section 153 of the California Corporations Code, and the shares owned by the person to be indemnified are not entitled to vote on the matter; or

(d) The court where that proceeding is or was pending on application made by the corporation or the agent or the attorney or other person rendering services in connection with the defense, whether or not the application by the agent, attorney, or other person is opposed by the corporation.

Advance of Expenses [Corp. Code § 317(f)]

2.29. Expenses incurred in defending any proceeding may be advanced by the corporation before the final disposition of that proceeding on receipt of an undertaking by or on behalf of the agent to repay that amount if it is determined ultimately that the agent is not entitled to be indemnified as authorized in Paragraphs 2.26-2.31 of these Bylaws. An advancement of expenses under this Paragraph does not violate the prohibition against corporate loans to officers of Corporations Code Section 315(a) or result in any liability to any director approving the advancement under Paragraph 2.24.

Nonexclusive Provisions [Corp. Code § 317(g)]

2.30. The indemnification authorized by Paragraphs 2.26-2.31 of these Bylaws shall not be deemed exclusive of any additional rights to indemnification for breach of duty to the corporation and its shareholders while acting in the capacity of a director or officer of the corporation to the extent the additional rights to indemnification are authorized in an article provision adopted pursuant to California Corporations Code Section 204(a)(11). The indemnification provided by Paragraphs 2.26-2.31 of these Bylaws for acts, omissions, or transactions while acting in the capacity of, or while serving as, a director or officer of the corporation but not involving breach of duty to the corporation and its shareholders shall not be deemed exclusive of any other rights to which those seeking indemnification may be entitled under any bylaw, agreement, vote of shareholders or disinterested directors, or otherwise, to the extent the additional rights to indemnification are authorized in the Articles.

An Article provision authorizing indemnification "in excess of that otherwise permitted by Corporations Code Section 317" or "to the fullest extent permissible under California law" or the substantial equivalent of this provision shall be construed to be both a provision for additional indemnification for breach of duty to the corporation and its shareholders as referred to in, and with the limitations required by, California Corporations Code Section 204(a)(11), and a provision for additional indemnification.

The rights to indemnity shall continue for a person who has ceased to be a director, officer, employee, or agent and shall inure to the benefit of the heirs, executors, and administrators of the person. Nothing contained in this Paragraph shall affect any right to indemnification to which persons other than the directors and officers may be entitled by contract or otherwise.

Limitation on Indemnification [Corp. Code § 317(h)]

2.31. No indemnification or advance shall be made under Paragraphs 2.26-2.29 of these Bylaws, except as provided in Paragraph 2.27 or subparagraph (d) of Paragraph 2.28, in any circumstance in which it appears:

(a) That it would be inconsistent with a provision of the Articles, these Bylaws, a resolution of the shareholders, or an agreement in effect at the time of the accrual of the alleged cause of action asserted in the proceeding in which the expenses were incurred or other amounts were paid, that prohibits or otherwise limits indemnification; or

(b) That it would be inconsistent with any condition expressly imposed by a court in approving a settlement.

Insurance [Corp. Code § 317(i)]

2.32. The corporation shall have power to purchase and maintain insurance on behalf of any agent against any liability asserted against or incurred by the agent in that capacity or arising out of the agent's status as an agent, whether or not the corporation would have power to indemnify the agent against that liability under the provisions of Paragraphs 2.25-2.31 of these Bylaws.

The fact that the corporation owns all or a portion of the shares of the company issuing a policy of insurance shall not affect the corporation's power to purchase and maintain that insurance in the following circumstances: (1) if authorized in the corporation's articles, any policy issued is limited to the extent provided in Corporations Code Section 204(d); or (2) the company issuing the policy is organized, licensed, and operated in a manner that complies with the insurance laws and regulations applicable to its jurisdiction of organization; that company provides procedures for processing claims that do not permit it to be subject to the direct control of the corporation that purchased the policy; and the policy provides for some manner of risk sharing between the issuer and purchaser of the policy, and some unaffiliated person or persons. Risk sharing may be undertaken by providing for more than one unaffiliated owner of the company issuing the policy, or by providing that a portion of the coverage furnished will be obtained from some unaffiliated insurer or reinsurer.

Board Committees

Authority to Appoint [Corp. Code § 311]

2.33. (a) The Board, by resolution adopted by a majority of the authorized number of directors, may designate one or more committees, each consisting of two or more directors, to serve at the pleasure of the Board. The Board may designate one or more directors as alternate members of any committee, who may replace any absent member at any meeting of the committee. The appointment of members or alternate members of a committee shall require the vote of a majority of the authorized number of directors.

Authority of Committee [Corp. Code § 311]

(b) Any committee referred to in subparagraph (a) of this Paragraph 2.33, to the extent provided in the Board resolution or in these Bylaws, shall have all the authority of the Board, except with regard to the following:

(1) The approval of any action for which the General Corporation Law also requires shareholders' approval, as that term is defined in Section 153 of the California Corporations Code, or approval of the outstanding shares, as that term is defined in Section 152 of the California Corporations Code.

(2) The filling of vacancies on the Board or in any committee.

(3) The fixing of compensation of the Directors for serving on the Board or on any committee.

(4) The amendment or repeal of these Bylaws or the adoption of new bylaws.

(5) The amendment or repeal of any resolution of the Board that, by its express terms, is not so amendable or repealable.

(6) A distribution to the shareholders of the corporation, as defined in Section 166 of the California Corporations Code, except at a rate or in a periodic amount or within a price range determined by the Board.

(7) The appointment of other committees of the Board or the members of the Board.

Applicability of Other Paragraphs
[Corp. Code § 307(c)]

(c) The provisions of Paragraphs 2.08-2.17, inclusive, and of Paragraphs 2.19 and 2.20 of this Article II apply to the committees.

[See § 4.226 for comment and alternative provisions.]

ARTICLE III
DETERMINING SHAREHOLDERS OF RECORD

Record Date Fixed by Board
[Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(7), 701(a)]

3.01. (a) In order that the corporation may determine the shareholders entitled to notice of any meeting or to vote, or entitled to receive payment of any dividend or other distribution or allotment of any rights, or entitled to exercise any rights regarding any other lawful action, the Board may fix, in advance, a record date, which shall not be more than 60 nor less than 10 days before the date of the meeting nor more than 60 days before any of the other aforementioned actions.

Record Date Not Fixed [Corp. Code § 701(b)]

(b) If no record date is fixed,

(1) The record date for determining shareholders entitled to notice of or to vote at a meeting of shareholders shall be the close of business on the business day next preceding the day on which notice is given or, if notice is waived, at the close of business on the business day next preceding the day on which the meeting is held.

(2) The record date for determining shareholders entitled to give consent to corporate action in writing without a meeting (see Paragraph 4.16), when no prior action by the Board has been taken, shall be the day on which the first written consent is given.

(3) The record date for determining shareholders for any other purpose shall be the close of business on the day on which the Board adopts the resolution relating to the record date, or the 60th day before the date of the other action, whichever is later.

Record Date for Adjourned Meeting
[Corp. Code § 701(c)]

(c) A determination of shareholders of record entitled to notice of or to vote at a meeting of shareholders shall apply to any adjournment of the meeting unless the Board fixes a new record date for the adjourned meeting. The Board must fix a new record date, however, if the meeting is adjourned for more than 45 days from the date set for the original meeting.

Rights of Shareholders of Record
[Corp. Code § 701(d)]

(d) Shareholders at the close of business on the record date are entitled to notice and to vote or to receive the dividend, distribution, or allotment of rights, or to exercise the rights, as the case may be, notwithstanding any transfer of any shares on the books of the corporation after the record date, except as otherwise provided in the Articles or by agreement or in the General Corporation Law.

ARTICLE IV
SHAREHOLDERS' MEETINGS

Place of Meetings [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(2), 600(a)]

4.01. Meetings of shareholders shall be held at any place within or without the State of California designated in the notice of the meeting or by resolution of the Board of Directors. In the absence of any designation or resolution, shareholders' meetings shall be held at the principal executive office of the corporation.

[See § 4.201[2], P 3.01, and § 4.228, for alternative provisions.]

Annual Meeting

Time of Meeting; Business Transacted
[Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(2), (4), 600(b), 601(a)]

4.02. (a) The annual meeting of shareholders shall be held on the _____ [number, e.g., first] _____ [day of week, e.g., Tuesday] of _____ [month] of each year, at the hour of _____ M., provided, however, that if the day falls on a legal holiday, the meeting shall be held at the same time on the next day that is not a legal holiday. At the meetings directors shall be elected, reports on the affairs of the corporation shall be considered, and any other proper matter may be presented and business transacted that is within the power of the shareholders.

[See § 4.229 for comment and alternative provisions.]

Failure to Hold [Corp. Code §§ 177, 600(c)]

(b) If there is a failure to hold the annual meeting for a period of 60 days after the date designated for the meeting as provided in subparagraph (a) of this Paragraph 4.02, any shareholder may apply to the superior court of the county in which the corporation's principal executive office is located for an order compelling the corporation to hold the meeting. The shares represented at the meeting so held, either in person or by proxy, and entitled to vote at the meeting shall constitute a quorum for the purpose of the meeting, despite any provision of the Articles, these Bylaws, or the General Corporation Law to the contrary.

[Corp. Code § 600(c) in part provides that the superior court of the proper county (see Corp. Code § 177) may summarily order a meeting to be held on the application of any shareholder after notice to the corporation giving it an opportunity to be heard, and that the court in the proceeding may issue orders as may be appropriate, including, without limitation, orders designating the time and place of the meeting, the record date for determination of shareholders entitled to vote, and the form of notice of the meeting.]

Notice of Meetings [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(2), 601(a)]

4.03. (a) Whenever shareholders are required or permitted to take any action at a meeting, a written notice of the meeting shall be given to each shareholder entitled to vote at the meeting, subject to the provisions of subparagraph (f) of this Paragraph 4.03.

Method of Giving Notice of Meeting
[Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(2), 601(b)]

(b) Notice of a shareholders' meeting shall be given personally, or by electronic transmission by the corporation, or by first-class mail, postage prepaid, or other means of written communication, addressed to the shareholder at the address of the shareholder appearing on the books of the corporation or given by the shareholder to the corporation for the purpose of notice; or if no address appears or is given, at the place where the principal executive office of the corporation is located or by publication at least once in a newspaper of general circulation in the county in which the principal executive office is located. The notice shall be deemed to have been given at the time when delivered personally or deposited in the mail or sent by other means of written communication.

If any notice addressed to the shareholder at the address of the shareholder appearing on the books of the corporation is returned to the corporation by the United States Postal Service marked to indicate that the United States Postal Service is unable to deliver it to the shareholder at the address, all future notices shall be deemed to have been duly given without further mailing if the notices are available to the shareholder on written demand of the shareholder at the principal executive office of the corporation for a period of one year from the date of the giving of the notice to all other shareholders.

Time of Notice [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(2), 601(a)]

(c) Notice of any meeting of the shareholders will be sent by first class mail to each shareholder entitled to the notice not less than 10 nor more than 60 days before the date of the meeting; provided, however, that at any time that this corporation has outstanding shares held of record by 500 or more persons (determined as provided in California Corporations Code Section 605) on the record date for the shareholders' meeting, notice may be sent by third class mail if sent not less than 30 days before the date of the meeting.

Contents of Notice [Corp. Code § 601(a), (f)]

(d) The notice of any meeting of the shareholders shall state the place, date, and hour of the meeting, any means of electronic transmission by and to the corporation or electronic video screen communication by which shareholders may participate at the meeting, and: (1) in the case of a special meeting, the general nature of the business to be transacted, and that no other business may be transacted; or (2) in the case of the annual meeting, those matters that the Board, at the time of the mailing of the notice, intends to present for action by the shareholders, but any proper matter may be presented at the meeting for the action, provided, however, that any shareholder approval at a meeting, other than unanimous approval by those entitled to vote, pursuant to Corporations Code Section 310 (relating to contracts and transactions between the corporation and any director or legal entity in which a director has a material financial interest (see Paragraph 2.23 of these Bylaws)), Section 902 (relating to amendment of the articles), Section 1152 (relating to corporate conversions), Section 1201 (relating to reorganizations), Section 1900 (relating to voluntary dissolution), or Section 2007 (relating to distribution plans on dissolution), shall be valid only if the general nature of the proposal so approved was stated in the notice of meeting or in any written waiver of notice. The notice of any meeting at which directors are to be elected must include the names of nominees intended at the time of the notice to be presented by management for election.

[See § 4.230[1], § 4.201[2], P 3.04, and § 4.230 [2], for alternative provisions to those set forth in subparagraphs (a) through (d), above.]

Notice of Adjourned Meeting [Corp. Code § 601(d)]

(e) When a shareholders' meeting is adjourned to another time or place, notice need not be given of the adjourned meeting if the time and place of the adjourned meeting (or any means of electronic transmission by and to the corporation or electronic video screen communication by which shareholders may participate at the meeting) are announced at the meeting at which the adjournment is taken, provided, however, that if the adjournment is for more than 45 days or if after the adjournment a new record date is fixed for the adjourned meeting, a notice of the adjourned meeting must be given to each shareholder of record entitled to vote at the meeting. At the adjourned meeting the corporation may transact any business that might have been transacted at the original meeting.

[See § 4.231 for comment and alternative provisions.]

Waiver of Notice and Other Defects
[Corp. Code § 601(e), (f)]

(f) The transactions of any meeting of shareholders, however called and noticed and wherever held, are as valid as though made at a meeting duly held after regular call and notice, if a quorum (see Paragraph 4.05 of these Bylaws) is present either in person or by proxy and if, either before or after the meeting, each of the persons entitled to vote, not present in person or by proxy, signs a written waiver of notice, or a consent to the holding of the meeting, or an approval of the minutes of the meeting. All waivers, consents, and approvals must be filed with the corporate records or made a part of the minutes of the meeting. Except as provided in subparagraph (d) of this Paragraph 4.03 and unless otherwise provided in the Articles, neither the business to be transacted nor the purpose of any regular or special meeting of shareholders need be specified in any written waiver of notice, consent to the holding of the meeting, or approval of the minutes of the meeting.

Attendance by a person at any meeting also constitutes a waiver of notice to that person if he or she fails to object at the beginning of the meeting to the transaction of business because the meeting was not lawfully called or convened, but attendance does not constitute a waiver of the right to object to the consideration of matters required to be included in the notice but not so included if the objection is expressly made at the meeting.

[See § 4.229[1], § 4.201[2], P 3.04, and § 4.229 [2], for alternative provisions.]

Calling of Special Meetings
[Corp. Code §§ 177, 212(b)(2), 601(c)]

4.04. (a) On request in writing to the corporation addressed to the attention of the Board Chairperson, or the President, or a Vice-President, or the Secretary of the corporation by any person (other than the Board) entitled to call a special meeting of shareholders (see subparagraph (b) of this Paragraph 4.04), the officer immediately shall cause notice to be given to the shareholders entitled to vote that a meeting will be held at a time requested by the person or persons calling the meeting, not less than 35 nor more than 60 days after receipt of the request. If the notice is not given within 20 days after receipt of the request, the persons entitled to call the meeting may give the notice or they may apply to the superior court of the county in which the principal executive office of the corporation is located or an order, after notice to the corporation giving it an opportunity to be heard, summarily ordering the giving of the notice.

[The procedure set forth in Corp. Code § 305(c) applies to the application, and the orders that the court may make are specified in Corp. Code § 601(c).]

[See § 4.230 for comment and alternative provisions.]

Persons Entitled to Call Special Meetings
[Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(2), 600(d)]

(b) Special meetings of the shareholders may be called by the Board of Directors, the Board Chairperson, the President, or the holders of shares entitled to cast not less than 10 percent of the votes at the meeting.

[See § 4.232 for comment and alternative provisions.]

Quorum of Shareholders [Corp. Code §§ 112, 602(a)]

4.05. (a) A majority of the shares entitled to vote, represented in person or by proxy, shall constitute a quorum at a meeting of shareholders, provided, however, that whenever shares are disqualified by the General Corporation Law from voting on any matter, they shall not be considered outstanding for the determination of a quorum at any meeting to act on that matter under any other provision of the General Corporation Law or the Articles or these Bylaws.

[See § 4.233 for comment and alternative provisions.]

Loss of Quorum [Corp. Code § 602(b)]

(b) The shareholders present at a duly called or held meeting at which a quorum is present may continue to transact business until adjournment despite the withdrawal of enough shareholders to leave less than a quorum, if any action taken (other than adjournment) is approved by at least a majority of the shares required to constitute a quorum, or the vote of any greater number or voting by classes as required by law or the articles of incorporation.

Adjournment for Lack of Quorum [Corp. Code § 602(c)]

(c) In the absence of a quorum, any meeting of shareholders may be adjourned from time to time by the vote of a majority of the shares represented either in person or by proxy, but no other business may be transacted, except as provided in subparagraph (b) of this Paragraph 4.05.

[See § 4.231 for comment and alternative provisions.]

Effect of Vote [Corp. Code §§ 112, 602(a)]

4.06. If a quorum is present, the affirmative vote of the majority of the shares represented at the meeting and entitled to vote on any matter shall be the act of the shareholders, unless the vote of a greater number or voting by classes is required by the General Corporation Law or the Articles, and except as provided in subparagraph (a) of Paragraph 4.05 of these Bylaws, provided, however, that whenever shares are disqualified by the General Corporation Law from voting on any matter, they shall not be considered outstanding for the determination of the required vote to approve action on that matter under any other provision of the General Corporation Law or the Articles or these Bylaws.

Election of Directors [Corp. Code § 708(c), (e)]

4.07. Elections for directors need not be by ballot unless a shareholder demands election by ballot at the meeting and before the voting begins. In any election of directors, the candidates receiving the highest number of affirmative votes of the shares entitled to be voted for them up to the number of directors to be elected by the shares are elected. Votes against the director and votes withheld shall have no legal effect.

[See § 4.234 for comment and alternative provisions.]

[A shareholder or person who claims to have been denied the right to vote may file an action in the superior court of the proper county (see Corp. Code § 177 defining "proper county") to contest the election or appointment of a director (Corp. Code § 709(a)). The procedure is set forth in Corporations Code Section 709(b), (c).]

Votes Per Share--Voting of Fractional Shares
[Corp. Code §§ 112, 407, 700(a)]

4.08. Except as provided in Paragraph 4.09 and except as may otherwise be provided in the Articles, each outstanding share, regardless of class, shall be entitled to one vote on each matter submitted to a vote of shareholders. A certificate for a fractional share shall, but scrip or warrants shall not unless otherwise provided in the scrip or warrant, entitle the holder to exercise voting rights.

[See § 4.241 for a provision prohibiting issuance of fractional shares.]

Voting Multiple Shares [Corp. Code § 700(b)]

4.09. Any holder of shares entitled to vote on any matter may vote part of the shares in favor of the proposal and refrain from voting the remaining shares or vote them against the proposal, other than elections to office, but, if the shareholder fails to specify the number of shares being voted affirmatively, it will be conclusively presumed that the shareholder's approving vote is with respect to all shares the shareholder is entitled to vote.

Cumulative Voting [Corp. Code § 708(a)-(c)]

4.10. Every shareholder entitled to vote at any election of directors may cumulate votes and give one candidate a number of votes equal to the number of directors to be elected multiplied by the number of votes to which the shareholder's shares are entitled, or distribute them on the same principle among as many candidates as the shareholder thinks fit. No shareholder shall be entitled to cumulate votes (i.e., cast for any one or more candidates a number of votes greater than the number of the shareholder's shares) unless the candidate's or candidates' names have been placed in nomination before the voting and the shareholder has given notice at the meeting before the voting of the shareholder's intention to cumulate votes. If any one shareholder has given the notice, all shareholders may cumulate their votes for candidates in nomination.

Voting of Shares by Fiduciaries, Minors, or Entities
[Corp. Code §§ 702-704]

4.11. (a) The rights of the persons and entities specified in this section to vote shares are governed by the provisions of this Paragraph of the Bylaws.

Personal Representative [Corp. Code § 702(a)]

(b) Except as provided in subparagraph (i) of this Paragraph 4.11, shares held by an administrator, executor, guardian, conservator, or custodian may be voted by the holder either in person or by proxy, without a transfer of the shares into the holder's name.

Trustee [Corp. Code § 702(a)]

(c) Shares standing in the name of a trustee may be voted by the trustee, either in person or by proxy, but no trustee shall be entitled to vote shares so held without a transfer of them into the trustee's name.

Receiver [Corp. Code § 702(b)]

(d) Shares standing in the name of a receiver may be voted by the receiver. Shares held by or under the control of a receiver may be voted by the receiver without the shares being transferred into the receiver's name if authority to vote them is contained in the court order appointing the receiver.

Pledgee [Corp. Code § 702(c)]

(e) Subject to the provisions of Paragraph 4.12 of these Bylaws and except when otherwise agreed in writing between the parties, a shareholder whose shares are pledged shall be entitled to vote the shares until they have been transferred into the name of the pledgee, thereafter the pledgee shall be entitled to vote the shares so transferred.

Minor [Corp. Code § 702(d)]

(f) Shares standing in the name of a minor may be voted and the corporation may treat all rights incident to the shares as exercisable by the minor, in person or by proxy, whether or not the corporation has notice, actual or constructive, of the minority, unless a guardian of the minor's property has been appointed and written notice of the appointment given to the corporation.

Corporation [Corp. Code § 703(a)]

(g) Shares standing in the name of another corporation, domestic or foreign, may be voted by the officer, agent, or proxyholder as the bylaws of the other corporation may prescribe or, in the absence of a provision, as the board of directors of the other corporation may determine or, in the absence of a determination, by the board chairperson, president, or any vice-president of the other corporation, or by any other person authorized to do so by the board chairperson, president, or any vice-president of the other corporation. Shares that are purported to be voted or any proxy purported to be executed in the name of a corporation (whether or not any title of the person signing is indicated) shall be presumed to be voted or the proxy executed in accordance with the foregoing provisions, unless the contrary is shown.

Subsidiary [Corp. Code § 703(b)]

(h) Shares of the corporation owned by any subsidiary of the corporation shall not be entitled to vote on any matter.

Corporate Fiduciary [Corp. Code § 703(c)]

(i) Shares held by the corporation in a fiduciary capacity, and shares of the corporation held in a fiduciary capacity by its subsidiary, if any, shall not be entitled to vote on any matter, except to the extent that the settlor or beneficial owner possesses and exercises a right to vote or to give the corporation binding instructions as to how to vote the shares.

Shares in Names of Two or More Persons
[Corp. Code § 704]

(j) If shares stand of record in the names of two or more persons, whether fiduciaries, members of a partnership, joint tenants, tenants in common, husband and wife as community property, tenants by the entirety, voting trustees, [persons entitled to vote under a shareholder voting agreement,] or otherwise, or if two or more persons (including proxyholders) have the same fiduciary relationship respecting the same shares, unless the Secretary of the corporation is given written notice to the contrary and is furnished with a copy of the instrument or order appointing them or creating the relationship where it is so provided, their acts with respect to voting shall have the following effect:

(1) If only one votes, the act binds all.

(2) If more than one vote, the act of the majority so voting binds all.

(3) If more than one vote, but the vote is evenly split on any particular matter, each faction may vote the securities in question proportionately.

If the instrument so filed or the registration of the shares shows that any tenancy is held in unequal interests, a majority or even split for the purpose of the above shall be a majority or even split in interest.

Proxies [Corp. Code § 705]

4.12. (a) Every person entitled to vote shares may authorize another person or persons to act by proxy with respect to the shares. Except as otherwise provided by written agreement between the parties, the recordholder of shares that a person holds as pledgee or otherwise as security or that belong to another must issue to the pledgor or to the owner of the shares, on demand and payment of necessary expenses, a proxy to vote or take other action on the shares.

Presumptive Validity [Corp. Code § 705(a)]

(b) Any proxy purporting to be executed in accordance with this Paragraph 4.12 shall be presumptively valid.

Duration of Proxy [Corp. Code § 705(b)]

(c) No proxy shall be valid after the expiration of 11 months from the date of the proxy unless otherwise provided in the proxy. Every proxy continues in full force and effect until revoked by the person executing it before the vote for which the proxy was issued, except as provided in subparagraphs (f) and (g) of this Paragraph 4.12. The dates contained on the forms of proxy presumptively determine the order of execution, regardless of the postmark dates on the envelopes in which they are mailed.

Death or Incapacity of Maker [Corp. Code § 705(c)]

(d) A proxy is not revoked by the death or incapacity of the maker, unless (except as provided in subparagraph (f) of this Paragraph 4.12), before the vote is counted, written notice of the death or incapacity is received by the corporation.

Revocation of Proxy [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(3), 705(b)]

(e) Revocation of a proxy is effected by a writing delivered to the corporation stating that the proxy is revoked or by a subsequent proxy executed by, or as to any meeting by attendance at the meeting and voting in person by, the person executing the proxy.

Proxy Providing for Irrevocability [Corp. Code § 705(e)]

(f) A proxy that states that it is irrevocable is irrevocable for the period specified in the proxy (notwithstanding subparagraph (d) of this Paragraph 4.12) when it is held by any of the following or a nominee of any of the following:

(1) A pledgee.

(2) A person who has purchased or agreed to purchase or holds an option to purchase the shares or a person who has sold a portion of the person's shares in the corporation to the maker of the proxy.

(3) A creditor or creditors of the corporation or the shareholder who extended or continued credit to the corporation or the shareholder in consideration of the proxy if the proxy states that it was given in consideration of the extension or continuation of credit and the name of the person extending or continuing credit.

(4) A person who has contracted to perform services as an employee of the corporation, if a proxy is required by the contract of employment and if the proxy states that it was given in consideration of the contract of employment, the name of the employee, and the period of employment contracted for.

(5) A beneficiary of a trust with regard to shares held by the trust.

[If corporation is a close corporation, add:]

(6) A person designated by or under an agreement under Section 706 of the Corporations Code, relating to voting agreement between shareholders (see subparagraph (a) of Paragraph 4.13 of these Bylaws).

[For all corporations, CONTINUE:]

In addition, a proxy may be made irrevocable (notwithstanding subparagraph (d) of this Paragraph 4.12) if it is given to secure the performance of a duty or to protect a title, either legal or equitable, until the happening of events that, by its terms, discharge the obligations secured by it.

When Irrevocable Proxy Is Revocable
[Corp. Code § 705(e), (f)]

(g) Notwithstanding the period of irrevocability specified in the proxy as provided in subparagraph (f) of this Paragraph 4.12, the proxy becomes revocable when _____ [the pledge is redeemed, the option or agreement to purchase is terminated, or the seller no longer owns any shares of the corporation or dies, the debt of the corporation or the shareholder is paid, the period of employment provided for in the contract of employment has terminated or the person ceases to be a beneficiary of the trust or the agreement under Section 706 of the Corporation Code has terminated].

A proxy may be revoked, notwithstanding a provision making it irrevocable, by a transferee of shares without knowledge of the existence of the provision unless the existence of the proxy and its irrevocability appears on the certificate representing the shares.

[Add if corporation does not or will not have an outstanding class of securities registered under Section 12 (15 U.S.C. § 78l) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. §§ 78a-78jj) or securities exempted from registration by Section 12(g)(2) of that Act:]

Form of Proxy or Written Consent [Corp. Code § 604]

(h) Any form of proxy or written consent (see Paragraph 4.16 of these Bylaws) distributed to 10 or more shareholders must, if the outstanding shares are held of record by 100 or more persons as determined under Section 605 of the California Corporations Code, afford an opportunity on the proxy or form of written consent to specify a choice between approval and disapproval of each matter or group of related matters intended to be acted on at the meeting for which the proxy is solicited or by the written consent, other than elections to office, and must provide, subject to reasonable specified conditions, that where the person solicited specifies a choice with regard to any matter the shares will be voted in accordance with the specification.

In any election of directors, any form of proxy in which the directors to be voted on are named in the proxy as candidates and that is marked by a shareholder "withhold" or otherwise marked in a manner indicating that the authority to vote for the election of directors is withheld shall not be voted either for or against the election of a director.

Failure to comply with this subparagraph (h) does not invalidate any corporate action taken, but may be the basis for challenging any proxy at a meeting and any shareholder may sue in the superior court to compel compliance with the proxy instructions.

Directors' Determination of Execution and Use of Proxies
[Corp. Code § 212(b)(3)]

(i) The Board of Directors may, in advance of any annual or special meeting of the shareholders, prescribe additional regulations concerning the manner of execution and filing of proxies and the validation of the same, which are intended to be voted at any meeting.

[See § 4.235 for comment and additional provisions.]

Voting Agreement and Trust [Corp. Code § 706]

Voting Agreement [Corp. Code § 706(a)]

4. 13 (a) [Use this paragraph only if corporation is a close corporation; otherwise omit and reletter subsequent paragraphs of this section accordingly.] Any two or more shareholders of this corporation may, in a written agreement signed by them, provide that in exercising any voting rights the shares held by them shall be voted as provided in the agreement, or as the parties may agree, or as determined in accordance with a procedure agreed on by them, and the parties may transfer the shares covered by an agreement to a third party or parties with authority to vote them in accordance with the terms of the agreement.

[The agreement may not be denied specific performance by a court on the ground that the remedy at law is adequate or on other grounds relating to the jurisdiction of a court of equity (Corp. Code § 706(a)). Nor will it to be held invalid or unenforceable on the ground that it is a voting trust that does not comply with the provisions of Corp. Code § 706(b), or on the ground that it is a proxy that does not comply with Corp. Code § 705 (Corp. Code § 706(c)).]

Voting Trust [Corp. Code § 706(b)]

(b) Shares may be transferred by written agreement to trustees in order to confer on them the right to vote and otherwise represent the shares for the period of time, not exceeding 10 years, as may be specified in the agreement. At any time within two years before the time of expiration of any voting trust agreement as originally fixed or as last extended as provided in this paragraph, one or more beneficiaries under the voting trust agreement may, by written agreement and with the written consent of the voting trustee or trustees, extend the duration of the voting trust agreement with regard to their shares for an additional period not exceeding 10 years from the expiration date of the trust as originally fixed or as last extended as provided in this paragraph. A duplicate of the voting trust agreement and any extension of the agreement must be filed with the Secretary of the corporation and must be open to inspection by a shareholder, a holder of a voting trust certificate, or the agent of either, on the same terms as the record of shareholders of the corporation is open to inspection.

[The validity of a voting trust agreement, otherwise lawful, is not affected during a period of 10 years from the date when it was created or last extended by the fact that under its terms it will or may last beyond the 10-year period (Corp. Code § 706(b)).]

Effect of Paragraph [Corp. Code § 706(d)]

(c) This section of the Bylaws is not intended to invalidate any voting or other agreement among shareholders or any irrevocable proxy meeting the requirements of subparagraph (f) of Paragraph 4.12 of these Bylaws.

Inspectors of Election [Corp. Code § 707]

Appointment [Corp. Code § 707(a)]

4. 14 (a) In advance of any meeting of shareholders the Board may appoint inspectors of election to act at the meeting and any adjournment of the meeting. If inspectors of election are not so appointed, or if any persons so appointed fail to appear or refuse to act, the chairperson of any meeting of shareholders may, and on the request of any shareholder or a shareholder's proxy must, appoint inspectors of election (or persons to replace those who so fail or refuse) at the meeting.

Number [Corp. Code § 707(a)]

(b) The number of inspectors shall be either one or three. If the inspector or inspectors are appointed at a meeting on the request of one or more shareholders' or proxies, the majority of shares represented in person or by proxy will determine whether one or three inspectors are to be appointed.

Duties [Corp. Code § 707(b), (c)]

(c) The inspector or inspectors of election shall

(1) Determine the number of shares outstanding and the voting power of each, the shares represented at the meeting, the existence of a quorum, and the authenticity, validity, and effect of proxies.

(2) Receive votes, ballots, or consents.

(3) Hear and determine all challenges and questions in any way arising in connection with the right to vote.

(4) Count and tabulate all votes or consents.

(5) Determine when the polls shall close.

(6) Determine the result of the election.

(7) Do such acts as may be proper to conduct the election or vote with fairness to all shareholders.

(8) Perform his, her, or their duties impartially, in good faith, to the best of his, her, or their ability and as expeditiously as is practical.

Decision, Act, or Certificate [Corp. Code § 707(c)]

(d) If there are three inspectors of election, the decision, act, or certificate of a majority is effective in all respects as the decision, act, or certificate of all. Any report or certificate made by the inspectors of election is prima facie evidence of the facts stated therein.

Conduct of Meetings [Corp. Code § 212(b)(2)]

4.15. At every meeting of the shareholders, the President of the corporation, or in the President's absence the Vice-President designated by the President, or in the absence of a designation a chairperson (who shall be one of the Vice-Presidents, if any is present) chosen by a majority in interest of the shareholders of the corporation present in person or by proxy and entitled to vote, shall act as chairperson. The Secretary of the corporation, or in the Secretary's absence an Assistant Secretary, if any, shall act as Secretary of all meetings of the shareholders. The chairperson may appoint another person to act as secretary for any shareholders' meeting only in the absence of the Secretary and all Assistant Secretaries.

[See § 4.236 for comment and alternative provisions.]

Action Without a Meeting [Corp. Code § 603]

When Authorized [Corp. Code § 603(a), (d)]

4.16. (a) Unless otherwise provided in the Articles, any action that may be taken at any annual or special meeting of shareholders may be taken without a meeting and without prior notice, if a consent in writing, setting forth the action taken, is signed by the holders of outstanding shares having not less than the minimum number of votes that would be necessary to authorize or take the action at a meeting where all shares entitled to vote on the matter were present and voted, provided, however, that directors may not be elected by written consent except by the unanimous written consent of all shares entitled to vote for the election of directors.

[The form of the consent is subject to the provisions of subparagraph (h) of P 4.12 of these Bylaws.]

Notice of Shareholder Approval [Corp. Code § 603(b)]

(b) Unless the consents of all shareholders entitled to vote have been solicited in writing, notice to those shareholders entitled to vote who have not consented in writing must be given as follows:

(1) Notice of any shareholder approval pursuant to California Corporations Code Section 310 (relating to contract or transaction between corporation and its director or legal entity in which one or more of its directors has a material financial interest (see Paragraph 2.23 of these Bylaws)), Section 317 (relating to indemnification by corporation of its director, officer, employee, or agent arising out of court, administrative, or investigative proceeding (see Paragraphs 2.25-2.32 of these Bylaws)), Section 1152 (relating to corporate conversions), Section 1201 (relating to reorganizations), or Section 2007 (relating to plan of distribution on dissolution), without a meeting by less than unanimous written consent must be given at least 10 days before the consummation of the action authorized by the approval; and

(2) Prompt notice must be given of the taking of any other corporate action approved by shareholders without a meeting by less than unanimous written consent.

Subparagraph (b) of Paragraph 4.03 of these Bylaws, relating to the method of giving notice, applies to the notice provided by this section.

Revocation of Consent [Corp. Code § 603(c)]

(c) Any shareholder giving a written consent, or the shareholder's proxyholders, or a transferee of the shares, or a personal representative of the shareholder, or their respective proxyholders, may revoke the consent by a writing received by the corporation before the time that written consents of the number of shares required to authorize the proposed action have been filed with the Secretary of the corporation, but may not do so after the consents have been filed. The revocation is effective on its receipt by the Secretary of the corporation.

ARTICLE V
OFFICERS

Number and Titles [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(6), 312(a)]

5.01. The officers of the corporation shall be _____ [a Board Chairperson or a President or both a Board Chairperson and a President], a Secretary, and a Chief Financial Officer who may also be called Treasurer. The corporation may also have, at the discretion of the Board, any other officers that may be appointed in accordance with the provisions of Paragraph 5.03 of this Article. One person may hold two or more offices [specify any restrictions, e.g.,, except that one person may not be both President and Secretary]. In its discretion, the Board of Directors may leave unfilled, for any period it may fix, any office except the offices of _____ [Board Chairperson or President], Secretary, and Chief Financial Officer.

[See § 4.238 for comment and alternative provisions.]

Appointment [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(6), 312(b)]

5.02. The officers of the corporation, except those officers appointed in accordance with the provisions of Paragraphs 5.03 or 5.05 of this Article, shall be chosen _____ [specify time of appointment, e.g., annually] by the Board. Each officer shall serve at the pleasure of the Board, subject to any rights that he or she has under any employment contract with the corporation, and shall hold office until the appointment of his or her successor, or until his or her resignation, removal from office pursuant to Paragraph 5.04, or other disqualification.

[See § 4.238 for alternative provisions.]

Other Officers [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(6), 312(a)]

5.03. The Board may appoint any officers necessary to enable the corporation to sign instruments and share certificates [, including (specify additional officers, e.g., one or more Vice-Presidents, one or more Assistant Secretaries, and one or more Assistant Treasurers)]. Each officer shall hold office for the period, have the authority, and perform duties that the Board may, by resolution, from time to time determine.

[See § 4.238 for alternative provisions.]

Removal and Resignation
[Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(6), 312(b)]

5.04. Any officer may be removed, either with or without cause, subject to any rights of the officer under any employment contract with the corporation, by the vote of the Board at any regular or special meeting of the Board, or by the unanimous written consent of the directors then in office without a meeting. Any officer may resign at any time without prejudice to any rights of the corporation under any contract to which the officer is a party by giving written notice to the Board Chairperson, if there is an officer, or to the President, or to the Secretary of the corporation. Any resignation shall take effect on the date the notice is received unless a later effective date is specified, in which case the resignation is effective on the specified date. Unless otherwise specified in the notice, acceptance of the resignation by the Board shall not be necessary to make it effective.

Vacancies [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(6), 312(a)]

5.05. If the office of Board Chairperson, President, Secretary, or Chief Financial Officer becomes vacant by reason of death, resignation, removal, or otherwise, the Board shall fill it by appointing a successor officer [who shall hold the office for the unexpired term]. If any other office becomes vacant, the Board may, in its discretion, leave it unfilled for any period that it may fix or it may appoint a successor officer to fill the vacancy.

Board Chairperson
[Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(6), 312(a), 416(a)]

5.06. The Board Chairperson, if there is an officer, shall, if present, preside at all meetings of the Board and exercise and perform any other powers and duties that are assigned to him or her by the Board or prescribed by law or by these Bylaws. When so directed by the Board, the Chairperson shall, with the Secretary or an Assistant Secretary, if any, or the Chief Financial Officer or Assistant Treasurer, if any, sign share certificates. Signatures on the certificates may be facsimile.

[See § 4.201[2], P 4.02, for alternative provisions.]

President [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(6), 312(a)]

5.07. Subject to the supervisory powers, if any, that may be given by the Board to the Board Chairperson, if there is an officer, the President shall be the chief executive officer of the corporation and, except as otherwise provided in these Bylaws, shall have: (1) general supervision, direction, and control of the business and officers of the corporation; (2) the general powers and duties of management usually vested in the office of President of a corporation; and (3) any other powers and duties prescribed by the Board or by these Bylaws. Within this authority and in the course of his or her duties, the President shall:

Meetings

(a) Preside at all meetings of the shareholders, preside at Board Meetings in the absence of the Board Chairperson, or if there is none, at all meetings of the Board, and be ex officio a member of all Board committees.

Share Certificates [Corp. Code § 416(a)]

(b) Except when otherwise directed by the Board, sign, with the Secretary or an Assistant Secretary, if any, or the Chief Financial Officer or Assistant Treasurer, if any, all share certificates of the corporation. Signatures on the certificates may be facsimile.

Instruments

(c) Sign corporate instruments on behalf of the corporation as provided in Paragraph 6.02 of Article VI of these Bylaws.

Hire and Fire Employees

(d) Subject to direction from the Board, appoint and remove, employ and discharge, and prescribe the duties and fix the compensation of all agents and employees of the corporation other than the officers. These functions may, however, be delegated by the President, or the Board, to specified persons in the various levels of management.

Voting Shares of Other Corporations
[Corp. Code § 703(a)]

(e) Unless otherwise directed by the Board and subject to its control, attend in person and, unless prohibited by law, act and vote, on behalf of this corporation, at all meetings of the shareholders of any corporation in which this corporation holds shares.

[See § 4.201[2], P 4.03 for alternative provisions.]

Vice-President [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(6), 312(a)]

5.08. In the absence or disability of the President, the Vice-President, or the Vice-Presidents if there are more than one in order of their rank as fixed by the Board, or if not ranked the Vice-President designated by the Board, shall perform all the duties of the President and shall for this purpose act within the President's scope of authority. The Vice-President or the Vice-Presidents shall have any other powers and perform any other duties prescribed for them respectively by the Board or by these Bylaws.

[See § 4.201[2], P 4.04, for alternative provisions.]

Secretary [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(6), 312(a)]

5.09. The Secretary shall

Seal [Corp. Code § 207(a)]

(a) Have custody of the corporate seal and shall affix it in appropriate cases to all corporate instruments.

Records, Reports, and Statements

(b) Have custody of the records of the corporation and ensure that the books, reports, statements, certificates, and all other documents and records required by law are properly kept and filed.

Notices

(c) Ensure that all notices are given in accordance with the provisions of these Bylaws or as required by law. In case of the Secretary's absence, disability, or neglect or refusal to act, notice may be given and served or caused to be served by an Assistant Secretary, if any, by the President or a Vice-President of the corporation, or by the Board of Directors.

Minutes

(d) Act as Secretary at all meetings of shareholders and of the Board and record, or cause to be recorded, in the minute book all actions taken at those meetings. In case of the Secretary's absence, disability, neglect of duties, or refusal to act, this duty may be performed by an Assistant Secretary, if any, or any other person appointed by the person presiding at the meeting.

Minute Book [Corp. Code § 1500]

(e) Keep a written book of minutes, at the corporation's principal executive office or other place designated by the Board, of all proceedings of the corporation's shareholders, Board, and Board committees, including: the time and place of meeting; whether the meeting was regular or special; the authorization for any special meeting; the type of notice given, the names of the persons attending Board and committee meetings; the number of shares present or represented at shareholder meetings; and the proceedings of the meeting.

Articles of Incorporation
[see Corp. Code § 209]

(f) Keep the original or a copy of the Articles of Incorporation, certified by the Secretary of State, with all amendments in the minute book.

Bylaws [Corp. Code § 213]

(g) Keep at the corporation's principal executive office [or, if its principal executive office is not in California: its principal business office in California] the original or a copy of these Bylaws to date, that shall be open to inspection by the shareholders at all reasonable times during office hours.

Record of Shareholders [Corp. Code § 1500]

(h) Keep at the corporation's principal executive office or at the office of its transfer agent or registrar in California a record of the corporation's shareholders, showing the names and addresses of all shareholders and the number and class of shares held by each.

Certify Records [Corp. Code § 314]

(i) When requested to do so by the Board, any director individually, a Board Committee, or the President or other officer of this corporation, or when so required by law, certify as a true copy a copy of the Bylaws of the corporation, or of the minutes of any meeting of the incorporators, shareholders, directors, Board committee, or other, or of any resolution adopted by the Board, a Board committee, or the shareholders. This duty may be performed by any Assistant Secretary of the corporation.

Share Certificates [Corp. Code § 416(a)]

(j) Sign, with the Board Chairperson or the Vice Chairperson, if any, or the President or a Vice-President, all share certificates of the corporation. In lieu of signing by the Secretary, the certificates may be signed by an Assistant Secretary, if any, or by the Chief Financial Officer or Assistant Treasurer, if any, of the corporation. Signatures on the certificates may be facsimile.

Exhibit Record of Shareholders

[Corp. Code § 1600(a), (c), (d)]

(k) Make the record of shareholders available during usual business hours for inspection and copying

(1) To any shareholder or shareholders who hold at least 5 percent in the aggregate of the outstanding voting shares of a corporation, or who hold at least 1 percent of those voting shares and who have filed a Schedule 14A with the United States Securities and Exchange Commission [or, if the corporation is a bank whose deposits are insured under the Federal Deposit Insurance Act: a Form F-6 with the appropriate federal bank regulatory agency] relating to the election of directors of the corporation, on five business days' prior written demand on the corporation; and

(2) To any shareholder or holder of a voting trust certificate on written demand on the corporation for a purpose reasonably related to that holder's interests as a shareholder or holder of a voting trust certificate.

Any inspection and copying under this paragraph may be made in person or by agent or attorney.

Exhibit Minutes to Shareholder [Corp. Code § 1601]

(l) On the written demand on the corporation of any shareholder or holder of a voting trust certificate, make available for inspection at any reasonable time during usual business hours to that shareholder or holder of the voting trust certificate for a purpose reasonably related to that holder's interests as a shareholder or as the holder of that voting trust certificate, or to his or her agent or attorney, the minutes of any proceedings of the shareholders, the Board, or Board committee, or any accounting books and records in the Secretary's custody. This right of inspection includes the right to copy and make extracts.

Exhibit Records to Director [Corp. Code § 1602]

(m) Make available at any reasonable time to any director who requests, or to his or her agent or attorney, for inspection all books, records, and documents of every kind of the corporation that the Secretary is charged by these Bylaws with maintaining or keeping or that are in the Secretary's custody. This right of inspection includes the right to copy and make extracts.

Other Duties

(n) Perform any and all other functions and duties that may be specified in other sections of these Bylaws and any other duties that may from time to time be assigned by the Board.

Absence of Secretary

(o) In case of the Secretary's absence, disability, neglect of duties, or refusal to act, the Assistant Secretary, or if there is none, the Chief Financial Officer acting as Assistant Secretary may perform all of the functions and duties of the Secretary. In case of the absence, disability, neglect of duties, or refusal to act, of the Assistant Secretary or Chief Financial Officer, as the case may be, as well as of the Secretary, then any person authorized by the President, Vice-President, or Board of Directors shall perform the functions and duties of the Secretary.

[See § 4.201[2], P 4.05, for alternative provisions.]

Assistant Secretary
[Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(6), 312(a)]

5.10. If the Board appoints one or more Assistant Secretaries, then, at the request of the Secretary or in case of the Secretary's absence or disability, the Assistant Secretary, or, if there is more than one, the Assistant Secretary designated by the Secretary, shall perform all the duties of the Secretary, and shall for this purpose act within the Secretary's scope of authority. The Assistant Secretary or Assistant Secretaries shall also perform any other duties that from time to time may be assigned to them by the Board or by the Secretary.

Chief Financial Officer
[Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(6), 312(a)]

5.11. The Chief Financial Officer shall:

Funds--Custody and Deposit

(a) Have charge and custody of, and be responsible for, all funds and securities of the corporation, and deposit all funds in the name of the corporation in the banks, trust companies, or other depositaries selected by the Board.

Funds--Receipt

(b) Receive, and give receipt for, moneys due and payable to the corporation from any source whatever.

Funds--Disbursement

(c) Disburse or cause to be disbursed, the funds of the corporation as may be directed by the Board, taking proper vouchers for those disbursements.

Maintain Accounts [Corp. Code § 1500]

(d) Keep and maintain adequate and correct books and records of account either in written form or in any other form capable of being converted into written form.

Reports to President and Directors

(e) Render to the President and directors, whenever they request it, an account of all transactions as Chief Financial Officer and of the financial condition of the corporation.

Financial Reports to Shareholders
[Corp. Code §§ 114, 1501(a), (c), (d)]

(f) Take the following actions with respect to financial reports:

(1) Prepare, or cause to be prepared, the balance sheet, income statement, and statement of cashflows for the fiscal year to be included in the annual report to shareholders, and either ensure that the statements are accompanied by a report on them of independent accountants or, if there is no accountant's report, certify that the statements were prepared without audit from the books and records of the corporation.

(2) On the written request of any shareholder or shareholders holding at least 5 percent of the outstanding shares of any class, prepare, or cause to be prepared, and deliver or mail to the person making the request within 30 days after the request an income statement of the corporation for the three-month, six-month, or nine-month period of the current fiscal year ended more than 30 days before the date of the request and a balance sheet of the corporation as of the end of that period and, if no annual report for the last fiscal year was sent to shareholders, the statements required by clause (1) of this paragraph.

(3) Keep on file in the corporation's principal office for a period of 12 months a copy of the statements referred to in clause (2) of this paragraph and exhibit them at all reasonable times to any shareholder demanding an examination of them or mail a copy of them to that shareholder.

(4) Either cause the quarterly income statements and balance sheets referred to in clause (2) of this paragraph to be accompanied by the report on the statements prepared by independent accountants engaged by the corporation or, if there is no report, certify that the statements were prepared without audit from the books and records of the corporation.

[EITHER]

(5) Prepare the financial statements, balance sheets, income statements, and statements of cashflows referred to in this paragraph, or have them prepared, in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles.

[OR, if there are less than 100 shareholders of record, and the bylaws expressly waive the requirement for financial statements (Corp. Code §§ 605, 1501(a)(1)):]

(5) Prepare the financial statements, balance sheets, income statements, and statements of cashflows referred to in this paragraph (or have them prepared) by reasonably setting forth the assets and liabilities and the income and expense of the corporation, and disclosing the accounting basis used in their preparation.

[CONTINUE:]

Exhibit Accounts to Shareholders [Corp. Code § 1601]

(g) On the written demand on the corporation of any shareholder or holder of a voting trust certificate, exhibit for inspection at any reasonable time during usual business hours to that shareholder or holder of the voting trust certificate for a purpose reasonably related to that holder's interests as a shareholder or as the holder of the voting trust certificate, or to his or her agent or attorney any or all of the accounting books and records of the corporation. This right of inspection includes the right to copy and make extracts.

Exhibit Accounts to Directors [Corp. Code § 1602]

(h) Exhibit at any reasonable time to any director of the corporation who so requests, or to his or her agent or attorney, for inspection any and all books, records, and documents of every kind that the Chief Financial Officer is charged by these Bylaws with maintaining and/or keeping or that are in the Chief Financial Officer's custody. This right of inspection includes the right to copy and make extracts.

Share Certificates [Corp. Code § 416(a)]

(i) Sign, with the Board Chairperson or Vice Chairperson, if any, or the President or a Vice-President, all share certificates of the corporation. In lieu of signing by the Chief Financial Officer, those certificates may be signed by an Assistant Treasurer, if any, or by the Secretary or by an Assistant Secretary, if any, of the corporation. Signatures on the certificates may be facsimile.

Bond

(j) If required by the Board or the President, give to the corporation a bond, with one or more sureties or a surety company, in a sum satisfactory to the Board, for the faithful performance of the duties as Chief Financial Officer and for the restoration to the corporation, in the event of the Chief Financial Officer's death, resignation, retirement, or removal from office, of all books, papers, vouchers, money, and other property of whatever kind in his or her possession or under his or her control belonging to the corporation.

Other Duties

(k) Perform any and all other functions and duties required of the Chief Financial Officer that may be specified in other sections of these Bylaws and, in general, perform all the duties incident to the office of Chief Financial Officer and the other duties as from time to time may be assigned by the Board.

Absence of Chief Financial Officer

(l) In case of the Chief Financial Officer's absence, disability, refusal to act, or neglect of duties, the Assistant Treasurer, or if there is none, the Secretary acting as Assistant Treasurer may perform all of the functions and duties of the Chief Financial Officer. In case of the absence, disability, refusal to act, or neglect of duties, of the Assistant Treasurer or Secretary, as the case may be, as well as of the Chief Financial Officer, then any person authorized by the President or Vice-President or by the Board shall perform the functions and duties of the Chief Financial Officer.

[See § 4.201[2], P 4.06, for alternative provisions.]

Assistant Treasurer [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(6), 312(a)]

5.12. If the Board appoints one or more Assistant Treasurers they shall, if so required by the Board, each give a bond for the faithful discharge of his or her respective duties in the sum, and with the sureties, as the Board shall require. At the request of the Chief Financial Officer or in the case of the Chief Financial Officer's absence or disability, the Assistant Treasurer shall perform all the duties of the Chief Financial Officer and for these purposes shall act within the Chief Financial Officer's scope of authority. If there is more than one Assistant Treasurer, the Assistant Treasurer designated by the Chief Financial Officer, or, if there has been no designation, the Assistant Treasurer designated by the Board, shall perform these duties. The Assistant Treasurer or Assistant Treasurers shall also perform any other duties that may from time to time be assigned to them by the Board of Directors or by the Chief Financial Officer.

Compensation [Corp. Code § 212(b)(6)]

5.13. The officers of the corporation shall receive the salaries and other compensation that are fixed from time to time by the Board, and no officer shall be prevented from receiving that salary and compensation by reason of the fact that he or she is also a director of the corporation.

[See § 4.238[2] for alternative provisions.]

ARTICLE VI
EXECUTION OF INSTRUMENTS AND DEPOSIT OF FUNDS

Limitations [see Corp. Code § 313; Snukal v. Flightways Manufacturing, Inc. (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 754, 786-787, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 3 P.3d 286]

6.01. Except as otherwise provided in these Bylaws, the Board may, by duly adopted resolution, authorize any officer or agent of the corporation to enter into any contract, or to execute and deliver any instrument, in the name of and on behalf of this corporation. Authorization may be general or may be confined to specified instances. Unless expressly authorized, no officer, agent, or employee shall have any power or authority to bind the corporation by any contract or engagement, or to pledge its credit, or to render it liable pecuniarily for any purpose or in any amount.

[See § 4.201[2], P 5.01, for an alternative provision.]

Execution of Instruments and Papers [see Corp. Code §§ 313, 416(a); Snukal v. Flightways Manufacturing, Inc. (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 754, 786-787, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 3 P.3d 286]

6.02. Unless otherwise expressly required by the Board or by law, deeds and other conveyances, promissory notes, deeds of trust, mortgages, and other evidences of indebtedness of the corporation, and share certificates shall be executed, signed, or endorsed by the Board Chairperson, if any, or by the President or a Vice-President of the corporation, and by the Chief Financial Officer or any Assistant Treasurer or the Secretary or any Assistant Secretary of the corporation. Signatures on share certificates only may be facsimile.

Signing of Checks

6.03. All checks, drafts, or other orders for the payment of money issued in the name of the corporation shall be signed by the person or persons and in the manner determined from time to time by resolution of the Board.

Deposit and Withdrawal of Funds

6.04. (a) All funds of the corporation, including all checks, drafts, or other orders for the payment of money payable to the corporation, shall be deposited by the Chief Financial Officer from time to time to the credit of the corporation with any banks, trust companies, or other depositaries that the Board may select or that may be selected by any Board committee, officer, or agent of the corporation to whom that power may be delegated from time to time by the Board. All checks, drafts, or other orders for the payment of money requiring endorsement by the corporation before deposit shall be endorsed "for deposit only" by hand-stamped impression in the name of the corporation.

(b) The withdrawal of funds from any accounts may be made only by check signed as provided in Paragraph 6.03 of this Article.

ARTICLE VII
ISSUANCE OF SHARES AND SHARE CERTIFICATES

Authority to Issue [Corp. Code §§ 207(d), 400(a)]

7.01. (a) The corporation may issue one or more classes or series of shares or both, with full, limited, or no voting rights and with any other rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions that are stated or authorized in its Articles of Incorporation. No denial of limitation of voting rights shall, however, be effective unless at the time one or more classes or series of outstanding shares or debt securities, singly or in the aggregate, are entitled to full voting rights. No denial or limitation of dividend or liquidation rights shall be effective unless at the time one or more classes or series of outstanding shares, singly or in the aggregate, are entitled to unlimited dividend and liquidation rights.

Equality of Rights [Corp. Code § 400(b)]

(b) All shares of any one class shall have the same voting, conversion, and redemption rights and other rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions, unless the class is divided into series. If a class is divided into series, all the shares of any one series shall have the same voting, conversion, and redemption rights and other rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions.

Consideration [Corp. Code § 409(a)(1), (b), (c)]

(c) Shares may be issued for any consideration that is determined from time to time by the Board [if the articles authorize the shareholders to determine the consideration add, or by approval of the outstanding shares as that term is defined in California Corporations Code Section 152], consisting of any or all of the following:

(1) Money paid;

(2) Labor done;

(3) Services actually rendered to the corporation or for its benefit or in its formation or reorganization;

(4) Debts or securities canceled;

(5) Tangible or intangible property actually received either by this corporation or by any wholly owned subsidiary of this corporation.

(6) Any other consideration allowed by law.

Neither promissory notes of the purchaser (unless adequately secured by collateral other than the shares acquired or unless permitted by Paragraph 7.06 of this Article) nor future services shall constitute payment or part payment of shares of the corporation.

When shares are issued for any consideration other than money, the Board must state by resolution its determination of the fair value of the consideration to the corporation in monetary terms.

In the absence of fraud in the transaction, the judgment of the directors as to the value of the consideration for shares shall be conclusive.

Share Dividend; Reclassification of Shares
[Corp. Code § 409(a)(2)]

(d) Shares may also be issued as a share dividend or on a stock split, reverse stock split, reclassification of outstanding shares into shares of another class, conversion of outstanding shares into shares of another class, exchange of outstanding shares for shares of another class, or other change affecting outstanding shares.

Compliance With Corporate Securities Law

(e) The corporation shall not offer to sell or sell any security issued by it, whether or not through underwriters, until the offer or sale has been qualified by the California Commissioner of Corporations as required by the Corporate Securities Law and the rules and regulations of the Commissioner, unless the security or transaction is exempted from the qualification and the applicable statutes and rules and regulations have been complied with.

Payment for Shares [Corp. Code § 410]

(f) Every subscriber to shares and every person to whom shares are originally issued is liable to the corporation for the full consideration agreed to be paid for the shares. The full agreed consideration shall be paid prior to or concurrently with the issuance of the shares, unless the shares are issued as partly paid pursuant to Paragraph 7.03 of this Article, in which case the consideration shall be paid in accordance with the agreement of subscription or purchase.

Shares as Deemed Fully Paid [Corp. Code § 409(b)]

(g) Except as provided in Paragraph 7.03 of this Article, shares issued as provided in subparagraphs (c) and (d) of this Paragraph or Paragraph 7.06 of this Article shall be declared and taken to be fully paid stock and not liable to any further call, nor shall the holder of the shares be liable for any further payments under the provisions of the General Corporation Law.

Fractional Shares [Corp. Code § 407]

Authority to Issue

7.02. (a) The corporation may, if the Board so determines, issue fractions of a share originally or on transfer.

Failure to Issue

(b) If the corporation does not issue fractions of a share, it shall, in connection with any original issuance of shares,

(1) Arrange for the disposition of fractional interests by those entitled to them;

(2) Pay in cash the fair value of fractions of a share as of the time when those entitled to receive the fractions are determined (provided, however, that the corporation may not pay cash for fractional shares if that action would result in the cancellation of more than 10 percent of the outstanding shares of any class); or

(3) Issue scrip or warrants in registered form, as certificated or uncertificated securities, or in bearer form as certificated securities, that shall entitle the holder to receive a certificate for a full share on the surrender of the scrip or warrants aggregating a full share. Scrip or warrants shall not, however, unless they provide otherwise, entitle the holder to exercise voting rights, to receive dividends on them, or to participate in any of the assets of the corporation in the event of liquidation.

[See § 4.241[2] for a provision prohibiting issuance of fractional shares.]

Partly Paid Shares [Corp. Code §§ 409(d), 410, 413]

7.03. The corporation may, if the Board so determines, issue the whole or any part of its shares as partly paid and subject to call for the remainder of the consideration to be paid for them. If shares are so issued, the corporation shall, on the declaration of any dividend on fully paid shares, declare a dividend on partly paid shares of the same class, but only on the basis of the percentage of the consideration actually paid on them.

A subscriber to partly paid shares is liable to the corporation as provided in Paragraph 7.01(f) of this Article, but a person holding shares as a pledgee, executor, administrator, guardian, conservator, trustee, receiver, or in any representative or fiduciary capacity is not personally liable for any unpaid balance, although the estate and funds in the hands of the fiduciary or representative are liable for any unpaid balance of the subscription price and the shares are subject to sale for the unpaid balance.

[See § 4.242[2] for additional provisions relating to partly paid shares.]

Options [Corp. Code § 404]

7.04. Either in connection with the issue, subscription, or sale of any of its shares, bonds, debentures, notes, or other securities, or independently of the foregoing, the corporation may, if so determined by the Board, grant options to purchase or subscribe for shares of any class or series on any terms and conditions that the Board may deem expedient. Option rights may be transferable or nontransferable and separable or inseparable from other securities of the corporation, as determined by the Board.

No Preemptive Rights [Corp. Code § 406]

7.05. Unless the Articles provide otherwise, the Board may issue shares, options, or securities having conversion or option rights without first offering them to shareholders of any class.

Employee Plans

Authority to Adopt [Corp. Code §§ 207(f), 408(a)]

7.06. (a) The corporation may, as determined by the Board, and subject to the approval of the shareholders, as that term is defined in California Corporations Code Section 153, adopt and carry out a stock purchase plan or agreement, or stock option plan or agreement providing for the issue and sale for any consideration that may be fixed of its unissued shares or of issued shares acquired or to be acquired, to one or more of the employees or directors of the corporation or of any subsidiary or parent of the corporation or to a trustee on their behalf and for the payment of those shares in installments or at one time, and may provide for aiding those persons in paying for those shares by compensation for services rendered, promissory notes, or otherwise.

Includable Features [Corp. Code § 408(b)]

(b) The plan or agreement may include, among other features, as determined by the Board, the fixing of eligibility for participating in it; the class and price of shares to be issued or sold under the plan or agreement; the number of shares that may be subscribed for; the method of payment for the shares; the reservation of title until full payment has been made; the effect of the termination of employment; an option or obligation on the part of the corporation to repurchase the shares on termination of employment, subject to California Corporations Code Sections 500-511; restrictions on transfer of the shares; and the time limits of and termination of the plan.

[See § 4.243[2] for alternative provisions.]

Certificates of Determination

Execution of Officers' Certificate
[Corp. Code §§ 173, 401(a)]

7.07. (a) Before the corporation issues any share of any class or series of which the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions, or any of them, or the number of shares constituting any series or the designation of the series, are not set forth in the Articles but are fixed in a resolution adopted by the Board pursuant to authority given in its articles, an officers' certificate, as that term is defined in California Corporations Code Section 173, setting forth a copy of the resolution and the number of shares of the class or series, and stating that none of the shares of the class or series has been issued, shall be executed and filed in the office of the California Secretary of State.

Change in Rights [Corp. Code § 401(b), (d), (e)]

(b) After any certificate of determination as provided in Subparagraph (a) of this section has been filed in the office of the California Secretary of State, but before the corporation has issued any shares of the class or series covered by it, the Board may alter or revoke any right, preference, privilege, or restriction fixed or determined by the resolution set forth in the certificate by the adoption of another resolution appropriate for that purpose and the execution and filing of an officers' certificate setting forth a copy of the resolution and stating that none of the shares of the class or the series affected has been issued.

After shares of a class or series have been issued, the provisions of the resolution set forth in a certificate of determination may be amended only by the adoption and approval of an amendment in accordance with California Corporations Code Sections 902, 903, or 904, and the filing of a certificate of amendment in accordance with California Corporations Code Sections 905 and 908. However, a certificate to increase or decrease the number of shares of a series also may be filed as permitted by California Corporations Code Section 401(c), as set forth in subparagraph (c) of this section.

When the Board effects a change in rights, the provision of the original certificate of determination being amended must be identified in the amendment in accordance with California Corporations Code Section 907(a).

[If the articles pursuant to Corp. Code § 202(e) authorize the board to increase or decrease the number of shares of a series subsequent to the issue of shares of that series, add:]

Changing Number of Shares of Series
[Corp. Code § 401(c), (e), (f)]

(c) After any certificate of determination has been filed in the office of the California Secretary of State, the Board may increase or decrease the number of shares constituting any series by the adoption of another resolution appropriate for that purpose and the execution and filing in the office of the California Secretary of State of an officers' certificate, as that term is defined in California Corporations Code Section 173, setting forth a copy of the resolution, the number of shares of the series then outstanding, and the increase or decrease in the number of shares constituting that series.

If the Board increases or decreases the number of shares constituting any series in this manner, the provision of the original certificate of determination being amended must be identified in the amendment in accordance with California Corporations Code Sectrion 907(a). If the number of shares in a series is decreased to zero, the certificate of determination that established the series is no longer an authorized series of the corporation.

Shareholder's Right to Share Certificate
[Corp. Code § 416(a)]

7.08. (a) Every holder of shares in the corporation shall be entitled to have a certificate signed in the name of the corporation by the Board Chairperson [or Vice Chairperson], if any, or the President or a Vice-President and by the Chief Financial Officer or an Assistant Treasurer, or the Secretary or any Assistant Secretary of the corporation, certifying the number of shares and the class or series of shares owned by the shareholder. Any or all of the signatures on the certificate may be facsimile. In case any officer, transfer agent, or registrar who has signed or whose facsimile signature has been placed on a certificate shall have ceased to be an officer, transfer agent, or registrar before that certificate is issued, the certificate may be issued by the corporation with the same effect as if that person were an officer, transfer agent, or registrar at the date of issue.

[For the civil liability imposed on the unreasonable neglect, failure, or refusal to issue share certificates, see Corp. Code § 2201.]

Fractional Shares [Corp. Code § 407]

(b) If the corporation issues fractions of a share originally or on transfer, it shall issue certificates for those shares as provided in subparagraph (a) of this section. A certificate for a fractional share shall entitle the holder to exercise voting rights, to receive dividends on the shares, and to participate in any of the assets of the corporation in the event of liquidation.

Partly Paid Shares [Corp. Code § 409(d)]

(c) If the corporation issues partly paid shares, it shall issue certificates for those shares as provided in subparagraph (a) of this section.

[See § 4.201[2], P 6.01, for an alternative provision; see also § 4.242 [2] for additional provisions relating to partly paid shares.]

Contents of Certificate
[Corp. Code §§ 409(d), 417, 418(a), (c), (d)]

7. 09 (a) The certificates shall contain the matter specified in Paragraph 7.08(a) of this Article. In addition, if the shares of the corporation are classified or if any class of shares has two or more series, there shall appear on the certificate one of the following:

(1) A statement of the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted to or imposed on each class or series of shares authorized to be issued and on the holders of the shares.

(2) A summary of the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions with reference to the provisions of the Articles of Incorporation and any certificates of determination establishing those rights and restrictions.

(3) A statement setting forth the office or agency of the corporation from which shareholders may obtain, on request and without charge, a copy of the statement referred to in clause (1) of this paragraph.

(b) There shall also appear on the certificate (unless stated or summarized under clause (1) or clause (2) of subparagraph (a) of this section the statements required by all of the following clauses to the extent applicable:

(1) The fact that the shares are subject to restrictions on transfer.

(2) If the shares are assessable or are not fully paid, a statement that they are assessable or a statement of the total amount of consideration to be paid and the amount paid, as required by Corporations Code Section 409(d).

(3) The fact that the shares are subject to a voting agreement under California Corporations Code Section 706(a) or an irrevocable proxy under California Corporations Code Section 705(e) or restrictions on voting rights contractually imposed by the corporation.

(4) The fact that the shares are redeemable.

(5) The fact that the shares are convertible and the period for conversion.

[Unless stated on the certificate as set forth above, no restrictions on transfer, no right of redemption and no voting agreement under Corp. Code § 706(a), no irrevocable proxy under Corp. Code § 705(e) or voting restriction imposed by the corporation will be enforceable against a transferee (including a purchaser from the corporation) of the shares without actual knowledge of the restriction, liability, right, agreement, or proxy. No liability to assessment or for the unpaid portion of the subscription price will be enforceable against a transferee of the shares (including a purchaser from the corporation) unless stated on the certificate as set forth above (Corp. Code § 418(b)).]

[If corporation is a close corporation add:]

(c) The following conspicuous legend must also appear on the face of the certificate: "This corporation is a close corporation. The number of holders of record of its shares of all classes cannot exceed _____ [a number not in excess of 35]. Any attempted voluntary inter vivos transfer that would violate this requirement is void. Refer to the Articles, Bylaws and any agreements on file with the secretary of the corporation for further restrictions." Any attempted voluntary inter vivos transfer of the shares of this corporation that would result in the number of holders of record of its shares exceeding the maximum number specified in its Articles is void if the certificate contains the foregoing legend.

[By accepting share certificates containing the above legend, the original or subsequent holder of shares of a close corporation agrees and consents that he or she cannot make any transfer of shares that would violate the last sentence of subparagraph (c), above, and waives any right that he or she might otherwise have under any other law to sell those shares to a greater number of purchasers or to demand their registration under the Securities Act of 1933, or otherwise, as long as the corporation is a close corporation (Corp. Code § 421).]

[See § 4.201[2], P 6.02, for alternative provisions.]

Exchange of Certificates

On Amendment of Articles or Otherwise
[Corp. Code § 422(a)]

7.10. (a) If the Articles are amended in any way affecting the statements contained in the certificates for outstanding shares, or it becomes desirable for any reason, in the discretion of the Board of Directors, to cancel any outstanding certificate for shares and issue a new certificate for the shares conforming to the rights of the holder, the Board may order any holders of outstanding certificates for shares to surrender and exchange them for new certificates within a reasonable time to be fixed by the Board.

Contents of Order [Corp. Code § 422(b)]

(b) The order may provide that a holder of any certificates so ordered to be surrendered is not entitled to vote or to receive dividends or exercise any of the other rights of shareholders until the holder has complied with the order, but the order operates to suspend those rights only after notice and until compliance. The duty of surrender of any outstanding certificates may also be enforced by the corporation by civil action.

[See § 4.201[2], P 6.03, for alternative provisions.]

Lost, Stolen, or Destroyed Certificate; Issuance of New Certificate [Corp. Code § 419(a)]

7.11. (a) The corporation may issue a new share certificate or a new certificate for any other security in the place of any certificate previously issued by it, that is alleged to have been lost, stolen, or destroyed. The corporation may require the owner of the lost, stolen, or destroyed certificate, or the owner's legal representative, to give the corporation a bond (or other adequate security) sufficient to indemnify it against any claim that may be made against it (including any expense or liability) on account of the alleged loss, theft, or destruction of any certificate or the issuance of a new certificate.

[The provision set out above reflects the provisions of Corp. Code § 419(a). In addition, Com. Code § 8405(a) provides for replacement of a lost, stolen, or destroyed share certificate if the owner requests replacement before the issuer receives notice that a protected purchaser has acquired the original, satisfies any reasonable requirements established by the issuer, and files an indemnity bond with the issuer. An undertaking that satisfies the requirements for the bond may be substituted for the bond required by statute (see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.210(a)). If the corporation refuses to issue a new share certificate, the owner of the lost, stolen, or destroyed certificate or the owner's legal representative may sue in the superior court to compel it to do so (Corp. Code § 419(b), (c)).]

Purchase by Protected Purchaser [Com. Code 8405(b)]

(b) If after a new security has been issued for a lost, destroyed, or stolen security, a protected purchaser of the original security presents it for registration or transfer, the corporation must register the transfer unless registration would result in overissue, in which event the corporation's liability is that set forth in the last paragraph of Paragraph 8.03 of Article VIII of these Bylaws. In addition to any rights on the indemnity bond, the corporation may recover the new security from the person to whom it was issued or any person taking under him or her except a protected purchaser.

[See § 4.201[2], P 6.04, for alternative provisions.]

Alternative System in Lieu of Certificates
[Corp. Code § 416(b)]

7.12. Notwithstanding the provisions of subparagraph (a), Paragraph 7.08, of this Article VII, the corporation may adopt a system of issuance, recordation, and transfer of its shares by electronic or other means not involving any issuance of certificates, including provisions for notice to purchasers in substitution for the required statements on the certificates under subparagraphs (a) and (b) of Paragraph 7.09 of this Article VII, which system has been approved by the United States Securities and Exchange Commission, or that is authorized in any statute of the United States, or is in accordance with Division 8 of the California Commercial Code.

ARTICLE VIII
TRANSFER OF SHARES

Duty of Corporation [Com. Code § 8401]

8.01. When a security in registered form is presented to the corporation with a request to register transfer, the corporation is under a duty to register the transfer as required if

(a) Under the terms of the security, the person seeking registration of transfer is eligible to have the security registered in its name;

(b) The security is endorsed by the appropriate person, or by an agent who has actual authority to act for the appropriate person;

(c) Reasonable assurance is given that those endorsements are genuine and effective;

(d) Any applicable law relating to the collection of taxes has been complied with;

(e) The transfer does not violate any restriction on transfer imposed by the corporation;

(f) A demand that the corporation not register the transfer is not in effect, or the corporation has discharged its notification obligations under Commercial Code Section 8403(b) and no legal process or indemnity bond is obtained by the person demanding that the transfer not be registered; and

(g) The transfer is in fact rightful, or is to a protected purchaser.

[For the authority of the corporation to require assurance that each necessary endorsement (see Com. Code § 8308) is genuine and effective, see Com. Code § 8402. For circumstances under which the corporation has a duty to notify, see Com. Code § 8403. A corporation under a duty to register a transfer of a security is liable to the person presenting it for registration or that person's principal for loss resulting from any unreasonable delay in registration or from failure or refusal to register the transfer (Com. Code § 8401(b)).]

Nonliability of Corporation

Registration of Transfer [Com. Code § 8404(a)]

8.02. (a) Except as otherwise provided in any law relating to the collection of taxes, the corporation is not liable to the owner or any other person suffering loss as a result of the registration of a transfer of a security if

(1) Registration was made pursuant to an effective endorsement;

(2) The corporation received no demand that the corporation not register the transfer, such a demand was received but did not take effect, or the corporation complied with its notification obligations under Commercial Code Section 8403(b);

(3) The corporation registered the transfer before receipt of, and reasonable opportunity to act on, legal process enjoining the corporation from registering the transfer; and

(4) The corporation was not acting in collusion with the wrongdoer.

[For information on endorsements, see Com. Code § 8308; for the duty to notify, see Com. Code § 8403].

Failure to Notify Corporation of Lost, Destroyed, or Stolen Security [Com. Code § 8406]

(b) If a security has been lost, apparently destroyed, or wrongfully taken and the owner fails to notify the corporation of that fact within a reasonable time after he or she has notice of it and the corporation registers a transfer of the security before receiving the notification, the owner is precluded from asserting against the corporation any claim for registering the transfer or any claim to a new security.

Liability of Corporation
[Com. Code §§ 8104, 8210, 8405]

8.03. If the corporation has registered a transfer of a security to a person not entitled to it, the corporation on demand must deliver a like security to the true owner unless

(a) The registration was pursuant to subparagraph (a) of Paragraph 8.02 of this Article VIII;

(b) The owner is precluded from asserting any claim for registering the transfer as provided in subparagraph (c) of Paragraph 8.02 of this Article VIII; or

(c) The delivery would result in overissue.

In this last case, if an identical security that does not constitute an overissue is reasonably available for purchase, the person entitled to the issue may compel the corporation to purchase and deliver it to him or her against surrender of the security, if any, that he or she holds; or if the security is not reasonably available for purchase, the person entitled to the issue may recover from the corporation the purchase price the person or the last purchaser for value paid for it with interest from the date of demand.

Liability on Transfer of Partly Paid Shares

Good Faith Purchaser [Corp. Code § 411]

8.04. (a) A transferee of shares for which the full agreed consideration has not been paid to the corporation, who acquired them in good faith, without knowledge that they were not paid in full or to the extent stated on the certificate representing them, is liable only for the amount shown by the certificate to be unpaid on the shares represented by the certificate, until the transferee transfers the shares to one who becomes liable for the amount. The liability of any holder of the shares who derives title through a transferee and who is not a party to any fraud affecting the issue of the shares is the same as that of the transferee through whom title was derived.

Purchase With Knowledge [Corp. Code § 412]

(b) Every transferee of partly paid shares who acquired them under a certificate showing the fact of part payment, and every transferee of the shares (other than a transferee who derives title through a holder in good faith without knowledge and who is not a party to any fraud affecting the issue of the shares) who acquired them with actual knowledge that the full agreed consideration had not been paid to the extent stated on the certificate for the shares, is personally liable to the corporation for installments of the amount unpaid becoming due until the shares are transferred to one who becomes liable for the unpaid amount.

Transferor [Corp. Code §§ 411, 412]

(c) In either case mentioned in subparagraph (a) or (b) of this Paragraph 8.04, the transferor shall remain personally liable for the unpaid consideration if so provided in the certificate or agreed on in writing.

[See §§ 4.244 and 4.245, for stock transfer restrictions.]

ARTICLE IX. CORPORATE RECORDS, REPORTS, AND SEAL

Minutes of Meetings [Corp. Code § 1500]

9.01. The corporation shall keep minutes in written form of the proceedings of its shareholders, Board, and Board committees.

Books and Records of Account [Corp. Code § 1500]

9.02. The corporation shall keep adequate and correct books and records of account either in written form or in any other form capable of being converted into written form.

[For the civil penalty imposed if a corporation neglects, fails, or refuses to keep or cause to be kept or maintained books of account, see Corp. Code § 2200.]

Record of Shareholders [Corp. Code § 1500]

9.03. The corporation shall keep at its principal executive office, or at the office of its transfer agent or registrar, a record of its shareholders, giving the names and addresses of all shareholders and the number and class of shares held by each. The record must be kept either in written form or in any other form capable of being converted into written form.

[For the civil penalty imposed if a corporation neglects, fails, or refuses to keep or cause to be kept or maintained the record of shareholders, see Corp. Code § 2200.]

Shareholders' Right to Inspect Record of Shareholders by Written Demand of Holders of Specified Percentage of Shares [Corp. Code § 1600(a)]

9.04. (a) A shareholder or shareholders holding at least 5 percent in the aggregate of the outstanding voting shares of the corporation [if applicable, add: or who hold at least 1 percent of the voting shares and have filed _____ (a Schedule 14A with the United States Securities and Exchange Commission or, if a bank with federally insured deposits, a Form F-6 with the appropriate federal bank agency) relating to the election of directors of the corporation] shall have an absolute right to:

(1) Inspect and copy the record of shareholders' names and addresses and shareholdings during usual business hours on 5 business days' prior written demand on the corporation; and

(2) Obtain from the corporation's transfer agent, on written demand and on the tender of its usual charges for a list (the amount of which charges must be stated to the shareholder by the transfer agent on request), a list of shareholders' names and addresses, who are entitled to vote for the election of directors, and their shareholdings, as of the most recent record date for which it has been compiled or as of a date specified by the shareholder after the date of the demand. The list must be made available on or before the later of 5 business days after the demand is received or the date specified in the demand as the date when the list is to be compiled. The corporation shall have the responsibility to cause its transfer agent to comply with this requirement.

By Written Demand of Any Shareholder
[Corp. Code § 1600(c)]

(b) The record of shareholders shall also be open to inspection and copying by any shareholder [or holder of a voting trust certificate] at any time during usual business hours on written demand on the corporation, for a purpose reasonably related to the holder's interests as a shareholder [or holder of a voting trust certificate].

Inspection by Agent or Attorney [Corp. Code § 1600(d)]

(c) Any inspection and copying under this Paragraph 9.04 may be made in person or by agent or attorney.

[See § 4.201[2], P 7.02, for alternative provisions.]

Shareholders' Right to Inspect Books of Account and Minutes [Corp. Code § 1601]

9.05. The accounting books and records and minutes of proceedings of the shareholders, Board, and Board committees of this corporation shall be open to inspection on the written demand on the corporation of any shareholder [or holder of a voting trust certificate] at any reasonable time during usual business hours, for a purpose reasonably related to the holder's interests as a shareholder [or as the holder of the voting trust certificate]. The inspection may be made in person or by agent or attorney, and the right of inspection includes the right to copy and make extracts.

[See § 4.201[2], P 7.02, for alternative provisions.]

Inspection by Directors [Corp. Code § 1602]

9.06. Every director of this corporation shall have the absolute right at any reasonable time to inspect and copy all books, records, and documents of every kind and to inspect the physical properties of this corporation. The inspection may be made in person or by agent or attorney and the right of inspection includes the right to copy and make extracts.

[See § 4.201[2], P 7.02, for alternative provisions.]

Annual Report

When Waived [Corp. Code § 1501(a)(1)]

9.07. (a) No annual report shall be prepared or sent to shareholders as long as this corporation has less than 100 holders of record of its shares determined as provided in California Corporations Code Section 605.

When Required [Corp. Code §§ 113, 601(a), 1501(a)(1)]

(b) If the corporation has 100 or more holders of record of its shares determined as provided in California Corporations Code Section 605, the Board of Directors shall cause an annual report to be sent by first-class mail, postage prepaid, to the shareholders not later than 120 days after the close of the fiscal year and at least 15 days before the annual meeting of shareholders to be held during the next fiscal year; provided, however, that the annual report may be sent by third-class mail if it is sent to shareholders at least 35 days before the annual meeting. The report and any accompanying material may also be sent by electronic transmission in accordance with California Corporations Code Section 20.

[This provision may be modified to permit a corporation that is registered under Section 12 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (see 15 U.S.C. § 78l) to satisfy the delivery requirement by posting its annual report on an Internet website and providing its shareholders with written notice of the availability of the report (see Corp. Code § 1501(a)(4); see also 17 C.F.R. § 240.14a-16).]

Contents [Corp. Code § 1501(a)(1), (b)]

(c) (1) The annual report shall contain a balance sheet as of the end of the fiscal year and an income statement and statement of cashflows for the fiscal year, accompanied by any report of independent accountants or, if there is no report, the certificate of an authorized officer of the corporation that the statements were prepared without audit from the books and records of the corporation.

(2) In addition, if the corporation is either not subject to the reporting requirements of Section 13 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, or is exempted from the reporting requirements by Section 12(g)(2) of that Act, the annual report shall also describe briefly both of the following:

(i) Any transaction (excluding compensation of officers and directors) during the previous fiscal year involving an amount in excess of $40,000 (other than contracts let at competitive bid or services rendered at prices regulated by law) to which the corporation [or its parent or subsidiary] was a party and in which any director or officer of the corporation [or of a subsidiary] or [(if known to the corporation or its parent or subsidiary)] any holder of more than 10 percent of the outstanding voting shares of the corporation had a direct or indirect material interest, naming the person and stating the person's relationship to the corporation, the nature of the person's interest in the transaction and, if practicable, the amount of the interest; provided, that in the case of a transaction with a partnership of which the person is a partner, only the interest of the partnership need be stated; and provided further that no report need be made in the case of transactions approved by the shareholders, as that term is defined in California Corporations Code Section 153 (see Paragraph 2.23 of these Bylaws).

(ii) The amount and circumstances of any indemnification or advances aggregating more than ten thousand dollars paid during the fiscal year to any officer or director of the corporation pursuant to California Corporations Code Section 317 (see Paragraphs 2.25-2.31 of these Bylaws); provided, that no report need be made in the case of indemnification approved by the shareholders, as that term is defined in California Corporations Code Section 153, under California Corporations Code Section 317(e)(3) (see Paragraph 2.28 of these Bylaws).

[See § 4.246[1], § 4.201[2], P 7.03, and § 4.246 [2], for alternative provisions. For the penalty imposed when a corporation neglects, fails, or refuses to prepare or cause to be prepared or submitted the financial statements required by the General Corporation Law to be prepared or submitted, see Corp. Code § 2200. For the criminal penalties imposed for false or fraudulent accounts, statements of operation, values, etc., see Corp. Code §§ 2254-2256.]

Special Financial Statements to Shareholders
[Corp. Code § 1501(c), (d)]

9.08. (a) Any shareholder or shareholders holding at least 5 percent of the outstanding shares of any class of this corporation may make a written request to the corporation for an income statement of the corporation for the 3-month, 6-month, or 9-month period of the current fiscal year ended more than 30 days before the date of the request and a balance sheet of the corporation as of the end of that period and, in addition, if no annual report for the last fiscal year has been sent to shareholders, the statements referred to in clause (1) of subparagraph (c) of Paragraph 9.07 of this Article IX for the last fiscal year. The statement must be delivered or mailed to the person making the request within 30 days after the request. A copy of the statements must be kept on file in the principal office of the corporation for 12 months and they must be exhibited at all reasonable times to any shareholder demanding an examination of them or a copy must be mailed to that shareholder.

(b) The quarterly income statements and balance sheets referred to in this Paragraph 9.08 must be accompanied by the report, if any, of any independent accountants engaged by the corporation or the certificate of an authorized officer of the corporation that those financial statements were prepared without audit from the books and records of the corporation.

[For the civil penalty imposed when a corporation neglects, fails, or refuses to prepare or cause to be prepared or submitted the financial statements required by the General Corporation Law to be prepared or submitted, see Corp. Code § 2200. For the criminal penalties imposed for false or fraudulent accounts, statements of operations, and values, see Corp. Code §§ 2254-2256.]

Fiscal Year

9.09. The fiscal year of the corporation shall begin on the first day of _____ [month] and end on the last day of _____ [month] in each year.

Corporate Seal [Corp. Code § 207(a)]

9.10. The Board shall adopt a corporate seal that shall be in the following form and design: _____ [specify]. The Secretary of the corporation shall have custody of the seal and affix it in appropriate cases to all corporate documents. Failure to affix the seal does not, however, affect the validity of any instrument.

[See § 4.247[2] for alternative provisions. See also § 4.216[2], P (b)(1), for provision merely confirming power of corporation to adopt seal.]

ARTICLE X
CERTIFICATION, INSPECTION, AND AMENDMENT OF BYLAWS

Inspection and Certification of Bylaws
[Corp. Code §§ 213, 314]

10. 01. The corporation shall keep at its principal executive office in California the original or a copy of its Bylaws as amended to date, which shall be open to inspection by the shareholders at all reasonable times during office hours. The original or a copy of the Bylaws certified to be a true copy by a person purporting to be the Secretary or an Assistant Secretary of the corporation is prima facie evidence of the adoption of the bylaws and of the matters stated in them.

Adoption, Amendment, Repeal of Bylaws
by Shareholders [Corp. Code §§ 207(b), 211, 212]

10. 02. These Bylaws may, from time to time and at any time, be amended or repealed, and new or additional bylaws adopted, by approval of the outstanding shares of the corporation, as that term is defined in Section 152 of the California Corporations Code, provided, however, that the bylaws may not contain any provision in conflict with law or with the Articles of Incorporation of the corporation and, provided further, that a bylaw reducing the number of directors to a number less than 5 (see Paragraph 2.03 of Article II of these Bylaws) cannot be adopted if the votes cast against its adoption at a meeting of shareholders or the shares not consenting in the case of action by written consent are equal to more than 16 2/3 percent of the outstanding shares entitled to vote.

[See § 4.216 [2], P (b)(2), for alternative provisions.]

Adoption, Amendment, Repeal of Bylaws by Directors [Corp. Code §§ 211, 212]

10. 03. Subject to the right of the outstanding shares to adopt, amend, or repeal bylaws (see Paragraph 10.02 of these Bylaws) and to any restrictions imposed by the Articles on the power of the Board to adopt, amend, or repeal bylaws, these Bylaws may, from time to time and at any time, be amended or repealed, and new or additional bylaws adopted, by approval of the Board of Directors, provided, however, that the bylaws may not contain any provision in conflict with law or with the Articles and, provided further, that after shares are issued any bylaw changing the number of directors or changing from a fixed to a variable Board may be adopted only by approval of the outstanding shares.

[See § 4.216 [2], P (b)(2), for alternative provision. See § 4.248 [2] for provisions limiting power of board to adopt, amend, or repeal bylaws.]

ARTICLE XI
CONSTRUCTION OF BYLAWS

11. 01. Unless otherwise stated in these Bylaws or unless the context otherwise requires, the definitions contained in the General Corporation Law shall govern the construction of these Bylaws. Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, the masculine gender includes the feminine and neuter, the singular number includes the plural and the plural number includes the singular, and the word "person" includes a corporation or other entity as well as a natural person.

CERTIFICATE OF SECRETARY [Corp. Code § 314]

I, the undersigned, do hereby certify:

1. That I am the Secretary of _____ [name of corporation], a California corporation; and

2. That the foregoing Bylaws, consisting of _____ pages, constitute the Bylaws of said corporation as duly approved by unanimous vote of the persons named in the Articles of Incorporation to act as the first directors of this corporation, at a meeting of the Board of Directors duly held on _____[date], at _____ [location of meeting, e.g., the principal executive office of the corporation located at _____ (address), California].

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have signed my name and affixed the seal of the corporation on _____[date].

_____ [signature]

[typed name]

§ 4.201 Complete Bylaws--Short Form

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a shorter set of bylaws than the one illustrated in § 4.200[2]. It omits many of the statutory provisions contained in § 4.200[2] that cannot be varied by the bylaws, as well as some of the permissive provisions. These bylaws are for use by a corporation whose directors and officers have access to legal counsel or who are generally familiar with the General Corporation Law, the Corporate Securities Act, the rules and regulations of the Commissioner of Corporations, and applicable federal statutes and regulations.

Some of the mandatory statutory provisions of particular interest to directors, officers, and shareholders are included [see [2], PP 2.03- 2.05, 3.04, 3.05, 3.08, 6.01, 6.03, 6.06, 6.08, 7.01, 7.02, 8.01, below]. Provisions based on statutes setting forth mandatory requirements, unless the bylaws otherwise provide, or subject to additional requirements included in the bylaws, are also set forth [see [2], PP 2.06, 2.07, 2.09, 2.10, 3.01, 3.03, 3.06, 3.07, 4.01, 7.03, below], as are provisions covering matters expressly authorized or required by statute to be included in the bylaws [see [2], PP 2.08, 2.13, 2.14, 3.02, 4.02- 4.06, below] and provisions based only in part on mandatory statutory provisions [see [2], PP 6.02, 6.04, below].

The governing or applicable statutes, if any, are cited in the heading immediately above the section or paragraph to which they apply. If any of the bylaws set forth are to be varied, the statutes cited should be checked to ascertain whether the change is permissible and, if it is, to note any restrictions or limitations imposed by the statutes.

This form assumes that the corporation has elected to issue stock certificates rather than use an electronic system of issuance, recordation and transfer [see Corp. Code § 416(b)]. Paragraph 6.08 of the form allows the corporation to adopt this alternative system of uncertificated securities. For a general discussion of certificated and uncertificated securities, see "Share Certificates--Issuance" and subsequent headings in the Legal Background to Ch. 6I, Issuance of Equity Securities.

[2] Form

Complete Bylaws--Short Form

BYLAWS OF _____ [name of corporation]

ARTICLE I OFFICES
[Corp. Code § 1502(a)]

1.01. The corporation shall have its principal executive office in _____ [city and county], California, and may have offices at other places within or outside California as the Board of Directors may from time to time designate.

[See § 4.210 for comment and alternative provisions.]

ARTICLE II
DIRECTORS

Responsibility of Board [Corp. Code § 300(a)]

2.01. Subject to the provisions of the General Corporation Law and to any limitations in the Articles of Incorporation of the corporation relating to action required to be approved by the shareholders, as that term is defined in California Corporations Code Section 153, or by the outstanding shares, as that term is defined in California Corporations Code Section 152 or by less than a majority vote of a class or series of preferred shares, as that term is defined in California Corporations Code Section 402.5, the business and affairs of the corporation shall be managed and all corporate powers shall be exercised by or under the direction of the Board of Directors. The Board may delegate the management of the day-to-day operation of the business of the corporation to a management company or other person, provided that the business and affairs of the corporation are managed and all corporate powers are exercised under the ultimate direction of the Board.

[See § 4.216[2] for consolidation of this provision with provisions setting forth purposes and powers of corporation.]

Number of Directors [Corp. Code § 212(a)]

2.02. The number of directors of this corporation shall be _____ [a number not less than three].

[See § 4.211[2] for alternative provisions. For clauses setting forth qualifications of directors, see § 4.212[2].]

Election and Term of Office [Corp. Code § 301]

2.03. Directors shall be elected at each annual meeting of shareholders to hold office until the next annual meeting of shareholders and until a successor has been elected and qualified.

[See § 4.200[2], P 2.04, for alternative provision.]

Removal of Directors [Corp. Code §§ 302-304]

2.04. Any individual director or the entire Board of Directors may be removed from office in the manner provided by law.

[See § 4.200[2], P 2.06(c), (d), for alternative provisions.]

Filling Vacancies

By Board [Corp. Code § 305(a)]

2.05. (a) Except as otherwise provided in the Articles of Incorporation of the corporation or in these Bylaws, and except for a vacancy created by the removal of a director, vacancies on the Board may be filled by approval of the Board of Directors pursuant to Corporations Code Section 151, or, if the number of directors then in office is less than a quorum, by (1) the unanimous written consent of the directors then in office; (2) the affirmative vote of a majority of the directors then in office at a meeting held pursuant to notice or waivers of notice complying with Corporations Code Section 307; or (3) a sole remaining director.

[See § 4.213[2] for alternative provisions.]

By Shareholders [Corp. Code §§ 305(a)-(c), 603(d)]

(b) Unless the Articles of Incorporation of the corporation are amended, or a Bylaw is adopted by the shareholders to provide that vacancies occurring in the Board by reason of the removal of directors may be filled by the Board, any vacancies may be filled only by approval of the shareholders as that term is defined in California Corporations Code Section 153. Any vacancy authorized to be filled but not filled by the directors may be filled by the shareholders and any election by written consent requires the consent of a majority of the outstanding shares entitled to vote; provided, however, that no director shall be elected by written consent to fill a vacancy created by removal of any director except by the unanimous written consent of all shares entitled to vote for the election of directors.

[See § 4.214[2] for alternative provisions.]

Call of Meetings [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(2), 307(a)(1)]

2.06. Meetings of the Board may be called by the Board Chairperson, if any, or the President, or any Vice-President, or the Secretary, or any two directors of the corporation.

[See § 4.220[2] for alternative provisions.]

Place of Meetings [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(2), 307(a)(5)]

2.07. All meetings of the Board shall be held at the corporation's principal executive office.

[See § 4.200[2], P 2.09, and § 4.217[2], for alternative provisions.]

PRACTICE TIP:

The above provision gives the Board less flexibility than the alternate provision which allows the Board to designate the place of the meeting [see § 4.217[2]]. Commentary by Mary E. Ahern.

Time of Regular Meetings
[Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(2), 307(a)(2)]

2.08. Regular meetings of the Board shall be held, without call or notice, immediately following each annual meeting of the shareholders of this corporation.

[See § 4.200[2], PP 2.10, 2.11, and § 4.218[2], for alternative provisions.]

Notice of Waiver

Notice of Special Meetings
[Corp. Code §§ 20, 113, 212(b)(2), 307(a)(2)]

2.09. Notice of any special meeting of the Board shall be given to each director by first-class mail, postage prepaid, at least four days in advance of the meeting, or delivered in person or by telephone, including a voice messaging system, or by electronic transmission at least 48 hours in advance of the meeting.

Waiver of Notice [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(2), 307(a)(3)]

Notice need not be given to any director who signs, before or after the meeting, either a waiver of notice, a consent to the holding of the meeting, or an approval of the minutes of the meeting, or who attends the meeting without protesting the lack of notice before or at the commencement of the meeting. All waivers, consents, and approvals shall be filed with the corporate records or made a part of the minutes of the meeting to which they pertain.

[See § 4.200[2], PP 2.11, 2.12, and §§ 4.218[2] and 4.219[2], for alternative provisions.]

Quorum [Corp. Code § 307(a)(7)]

2.10. A majority of the authorized number of directors constitutes a quorum of the Board for the transaction of business except as provided below.

[See § 4.221 for comment and alternative provisions.]

Transactions of Board [Corp. Code § 307(a)(8)]

2.11. Except as otherwise provided in the Articles, in these Bylaws, or by law, every act or decision done or made by a majority of the directors present at a duly held meeting at which a quorum is present is the act of the Board, provided, however, that any meeting at which a quorum was initially present may continue to transact business notwithstanding the withdrawal of directors if any action taken is approved by at least a majority of the required quorum for the meeting.

[See § 4.222 for comment and alternative provisions.]

Adjournment [Corp. Code § 307(a)(4)]

2.12. A majority of the directors present at any meeting, whether or not a quorum is present, may adjourn the meeting to another time and place. If the meeting is adjourned for more than 24 hours, notice of the adjournment to another time or place must be given before the time of the adjourned meeting to the directors who were not present at the time of the adjournment.

Conduct of Meetings
[Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(2), 307(a)(6)]

2.13. The Board Chairperson, or if there is no such person, the President, or, in the Chairperson's absence, any director selected by the directors present, shall preside at meetings of the Board of Directors. The Secretary of the corporation or, in the Secretary's absence, any person appointed by the presiding officer shall act as Secretary of the Board. Board members may participate at board meetings through use of a conference telephone call, electronic video screen communication, or electronic transmission by and to the corporation.

Participation in a meeting through use of a conference telephone call or electronic video screen communication pursuant to this Paragraph constitutes presence in person at that meeting as long as all members participating in the meeting are able to hear one another.

Participation in a meeting through electronic transmission by and to the corporation (other than a conference telephone call and electronic video screen communication) constitutes presence in person at that meeting if both of the following are true:

(1) Each board member participating in the meeting can communicate with all of the other members concurrently.

(2) Each member is provided the means of participating in all matters before the board, including the capacity to propose, or interpose an objection, to a specific action to be taken by the corporation.

Compensation [Corp. Code § 212(b)(4)]

2.14. Directors shall receive such compensation for their services and reimbursement for their expenses as shall be determined from time to time by resolution of the Board.

[See § 4.215 for comment and alternative provision.]

Indemnification [Corp. Code § 317]

2.15. The corporation has power to indemnify any person who is or was a director, officer, employee, or other agent of this corporation or of its predecessor, or is or was serving as such of another corporation, partnership, joint venture, trust, or other enterprise, at the request of this corporation against expenses, judgments, fines, settlements, and other amounts actually and reasonably incurred in connection with any threatened, pending, or completed action or proceeding, whether civil, criminal, administrative, or investigative, as provided in Section 317 of the California Corporations Code, as that section now exists or may from time to time be amended to provide.

[See § 4.200[2], PP 2.25-2.32, and § 4.216 [2], P (b)(9), for alternative provisions.]

ARTICLE III
SHAREHOLDERS' MEETINGS

Place of Meetings
[Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(2), 600(a)]

3.01. Meetings of the shareholders shall be held at the corporation's principal executive office.

[See § 4.200[2], P 4.01, and § 4.228[2] for alternative provisions.]

PRACTICE TIP:
The foregoing provision gives the Board less flexibility than the alternate provision which allows the Board to designate the place of the meeting [see § 4.228[2]]. Commentary by Mary E. Ahern.

Time of Meeting
[Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(2), (4), 600(b)]

3.02. The annual meeting of shareholders shall be held on the _____ [number, e.g., first] _____ [day of week, e.g., Tuesday] of _____ [month] of each year at _____ [hour] _____.M. If this day falls on a legal holiday, the annual meeting shall be held at the same time on the next business day following the holiday.

[See § 4.229 for comment and alternative provisions.]

Persons Entitled to Call Special Meetings
[Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(2), 600(d)]

3.03. Special meetings of the shareholders may be called at any time by the Board of Directors, the Board Chairperson, if any, the President of the corporation, or the holders of shares entitled to cast not less than 10 percent of the votes of the meeting.

[See § 4.232 for comment and alternative provisions.]

Notice of Meeting [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(2), 601]

3.04. Notice of annual and special meetings of the shareholders shall be given as provided in Section 601 of the Corporations Code as that section now exists or may from time to time be amended to provide.

[See § 4.200[2], P 4.03, § 4.230[2], and § 4.231[2], for alternative provisions.]

Waiver of Notice and Other Defects
[Corp. Code § 601(e)]

3.05. The transactions of any meeting of shareholders, however called and noticed and wherever held, shall be as valid as though had at a meeting duly held after regular call and notice, if a quorum is present either in person or by proxy and if, either before or after the meeting, each of the persons entitled to vote not present in person or by proxy signs a written waiver of notice or a consent to the holding of the meeting or an approval of the minutes of the meeting. All such waivers, consents, and approvals must be filed with the corporate records or made a part of the minutes of the meeting. Attendance by a person at the meeting also constitutes a waiver of notice to that person if he or she fails to object at the beginning of the meeting to the transaction of business because the meeting was not lawfully called or convened, but such attendance does not constitute a waiver of the right to object to the consideration of matters required by law or these Bylaws to be included in the notice but not so included if the objection is expressly made at the meeting.

[See § 4.200[2], P 4.03, for alternative provisions and § 4.229[1].]

Quorum [Corp. Code §§ 112, 602]

3.06. A majority of the shares entitled to vote, represented in person or by proxy, constitutes a quorum for the transaction of business. Business may be continued after withdrawal of enough shareholders to leave less than a quorum, provided any action taken (other than adjournment) is approved by at least a majority of the shares required to constitute a quorum. In the absence of a quorum, any meeting may be adjourned by a majority vote of the shares represented in person or by proxy.

[See § 4.233 for comment and alternative provisions. See also § 4.231[2] for alternative provisions regarding adjourned meetings.]

Election by Ballot [Corp. Code § 708(e)]

3.07. Elections for directors need not be by written ballot unless a shareholder demands election by ballot at the meeting and before the voting begins.

[See § 4.234 for comment and alternative provision.]

Voting [Corp. Code § 701(d)]

3.08. Except as otherwise provided in the Articles of Incorporation or by agreement or by the General Corporation Law, shareholders at the close of business on the record date are entitled to notice and to vote, notwithstanding the transfer of any shares on the books of the corporation after the record date.

ARTICLE IV
OFFICERS

Titles, Appointment, Terms, and Compensation
[Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(6), 312(a)]

4.01. This corporation shall have _____ [a Board Chairperson or a President or both a Board Chairperson and a President], a Secretary, and a Chief Financial Officer who may also be called Treasurer. The Board of Directors may designate and appoint any other officers that may be necessary to enable the corporation to sign instruments and share certificates [specify additional officers if desired, e.g.,, including one or more Vice-Presidents, one or more Assistant Secretaries, and one or more Assistant Treasurers]. These other officers shall hold office for the period, have the authority, and perform the duties that the Board may, by resolution, determine. One person may hold any two or more offices [specify any restrictions, e.g.,, except that one person may not hold the offices of both President and Secretary or President and Vice-President]. In its discretion, the Board of Directors may leave unfilled, for any period it may fix, any offices except those of _____ [Board Chairperson or President], Secretary, and Chief Financial Officer. All officers shall be chosen by, and, subject to any rights an officer may have under an employment contract with the corporation, hold office at the pleasure of, the Board. The Board shall fix each officer's compensation.

[See § 4.238[2] for alternative provisions.]

Board Chairperson
[Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(6), 312(a)]

4.02. The Board Chairperson, if there is such an officer, shall, if present, preside at all meetings of the Board and perform any other powers and duties that may from time to time be assigned by the Board or prescribed by law or by these Bylaws.

[See § 4.200[2], P 5.06, for alternative provisions.]

President [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(6), 312(a)]

4.03. Subject to any supervisory powers that may be given by the Board of Directors to the Board Chairperson, if there is such an officer, the President shall be the chief executive officer of the corporation and shall perform all the duties commonly incident to that office. The President shall preside at all meetings of the shareholders and, if there is no Board Chairperson, at all meetings of the Board.

[See § 4.200[2], P 5.07, for alternative provisions.]

Vice-President [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(6), 312(a)]

4.04. The Vice-President, or the Vice-Presidents in the order of their seniority, may assume and perform the duties of the President in the absence or disability of the President or whenever the office of President is vacant, and shall perform any other duties and have any other powers that the Board or the President shall from time to time designate.

[See § 4.200[2], P 5.08, for alternative provisions.]

Secretary [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(6), 312(a)]

4.05. The Secretary shall ensure that all notices are duly given in accordance with the provisions of these Bylaws or as required by law; shall keep the minutes of all proceedings of shareholders and of the Board; and shall perform any other duties that are incident to the office of Secretary or that are assigned from time to time by the Board or by the President.

[See § 4.200[2], P 5.09, for alternative provisions.]

Chief Financial Officer
[Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(6), 312(a), 1500]

4.06. The Chief Financial Officer shall receive and have custody of all funds and securities of the corporation; keep and maintain adequate and correct books and records of account and of the corporation's assets and liabilities; and shall perform any other duties that may be assigned from time to time by the Board or by the President.

[See § 4.200[2], P 5.11, for alternative provisions.]

ARTICLE V
EXECUTION OF INSTRUMENTS

Execution [Corp. Code § 313; see Snukal v. Flightways Manufacturing, Inc. (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 754, 786-787, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 3 P.3d 286]

5.01. The Board of Directors may, in its discretion, determine the method and by resolution designate the signatory officer or officers, or other person or persons, to execute any corporate instrument or document, or to sign the corporate name without limitation, except as otherwise provided by law, and that execution or signature shall be binding on the corporation.

[See § 4.200[2], PP 6.01-6.04, for alternative provisions.]

ARTICLE VI
ISSUANCE AND TRANSFER OF SHARES

Shareholder's Right to Certificate
[Corp. Code §§ 407, 409(d), 416(a)]

6.01. Every holder of shares in the corporation shall be entitled to a certificate certifying the number of shares and the class or series of shares owned by him or her. This right extends to fractional shares and partly paid shares if those shares are issued by the corporation.

[See § 4.200[2], P 7.08, for alternative provisions; see § 4.241[2], for provision prohibiting issuance of fractional shares, and § 4.242[2], for additional provisions relating to partly paid shares.]

Share Certificates
[Corp. Code §§ 409(d), 416(a), 417, 418(a), (c), (d)]

6.02. The certificates shall be in the form provided by the Board of Directors and shall fully comply with the provisions of the California Corporations Code. The certificates shall be signed by the Board Chairperson or Vice Board Chairperson, if any, or the President or a Vice-President, and by the Chief Financial Officer or an Assistant Treasurer or the Secretary or any Assistant Secretary of the corporation, and the seal of the corporation shall be affixed to the certificates.

[See § 4.200[2], P 7.09, for alternative provisions.]

Exchange of Certificates [Corp. Code § 422(a)]

6.03. If the Articles of Incorporation are amended in any way affecting the statements contained in the certificates for outstanding shares, or it becomes desirable for any reason, in the discretion of the Board of Directors, to cancel any outstanding certificate for shares and issue a new certificate conforming to the rights of the holder, the Board may order any holders of outstanding certificates to surrender and exchange them for new certificates within a reasonable time to be fixed by the Board.

[See § 4.200[2], P 7.10, for alternative provisions.]

Replacement of Certificates
[Corp. Code §§ 419(a), 422(b); Com. Code § 8405]

6.04. No new certificate shall be issued until the former certificate for the shares represented has been surrendered and canceled. However, if the certificate is lost, stolen, or destroyed, the corporation shall, if so requested by the shareholder, issue a new certificate, provided it has received no notice that the certificate has been acquired by a bona fide purchaser, but it may require the giving of a bond, undertaking, or other adequate security sufficient to indemnify it against any claim that may be made against it on account of the alleged loss, theft, or destruction of the certificate or the issuance of the new certificate.

[See § 4.200[2], P 7.11, for alternative provisions.]

Transfer of Shares

6.05. Shares of the corporation may be transferred by endorsement by the signature of the owner, the owner's authorized agent, attorney, or legal representative, and the delivery of the certificate; but a transfer is not valid, except as to the parties to the transfer, until it is entered on the books of the corporation so as to show the names of the parties by whom and to whom transferred, the number of the certificate, and the number or designation of the shares and the date of the transfer, and until the old certificate is surrendered to the corporation and canceled.

[See §§ 4.244[2] and 4.245[2] for stock transfer restrictions.]

Duty of Corporation to Register Transfer
[Com. Code § 8401(a)]

6.06. The corporation is under a duty to register the transfer when the certificate, properly endorsed, is presented to it with a request to register transfer; the person seeking registration of transfer is eligible to have the security registered in its name; reasonable assurance is given that the endorsements are genuine and effective; the transfer does not violate any restriction on transfer imposed by the corporation; a demand that the corporation not register the transfer is not in effect, or the corporation has discharged its notification obligations under Commercial Code Section 8403(b) and no legal process or indemnity bond is obtained by the person demanding that the transfer not be registered; the transfer is in fact rightful, or is to a protected purchaser; and any applicable law relating to the collection of taxes has been compiled with.

[For the civil penalty imposed if the corporation unreasonably neglects, fails, or refuses to enter a transfer of shares on the corporate books, see Corp. Code § 2201.]

Liability for Partly Paid Shares
[Corp. Code §§ 411, 412]

6.07. The transferor and transferee of partly paid shares, if any are issued, shall be liable to the corporation for the unpaid balance of those shares as provided by law.

[See § 4.242 for comment and additional provisions relating to partly paid shares.]

Alternative System in Lieu of Certificates
[Corp. Code § 416(b)]

6.08. Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions of this Article VI, the corporation may adopt a system of issuance, recordation, and transfer of its shares by electronic or other means not involving any issuance of certificates, if the system has been approved by the United States Securities and Exchange Commission, if it is authorized in any statute of the United States, or if it is in accordance with Division 8 of the California Commercial Code.

ARTICLE VII
CORPORATE RECORDS AND REPORTS

Keeping Records [Corp. Code § 1500]

7.01. The corporation shall keep adequate and correct books and records of account and shall keep minutes of the proceedings of its shareholders, Board of Directors, and Board committees, and shall keep at its principal executive office, or at the office of its transfer agent or registrar, a record of its shareholders, giving the names and addresses of all shareholders and the number and class of shares held by each. The minutes must be kept in written form. The other books and records shall be kept either in written form or in any other form capable of being converted into written form.

[For the civil penalty imposed if a corporation neglects, fails, or refuses to keep or cause to be kept or maintained the record of shareholders or book of account, see Corp. Code § 2200; for criminal penalties imposed for false statements in reports, accounts, etc., see Corp. Code §§ 2254-2256.]

Inspection by Shareholders and Directors
[Corp. Code §§ 1600(a), (d), 1601, 1602]

7.02. Any shareholder [or holder of a voting trust certificate] shall have the right on written demand to inspect and copy the record of shareholders, the accounting books and records, and the minutes as provided by law. Each director shall have the absolute right at any reasonable time to inspect and copy all books, records, and documents of every kind and to inspect the physical properties of the corporation.

[See § 4.200[2], PP 9.04-9.06, for alternative provisions.]

Waiver of Annual Report [Corp. Code § 1501(a)(1)]

7.03. So long as this corporation has less than 100 holders of record of its shares, determined as provided in Corporations Code Section 605, no annual report shall be required to be sent to shareholders.

[See § 4.246[2], § 4.200[2], P 9.07, and § 4.246 [2] for alternative provisions.]

ARTICLE VIII
AMENDMENT OF BYLAWS

By Shareholders and Directors

[Corp. Code §§ 207(b), 211, 212]

8.01. These Bylaws may, from time to time and at any time, be amended or repealed, and new or additional bylaws adopted, by approval of the outstanding shares, as that term is defined in California Corporations Code Section 152, or, subject to any restrictions imposed by the Articles of Incorporation on the power of the Board of Directors to adopt, amend, or repeal Bylaws, by approval of the Board; provided, however, that such Bylaws may not contain any provision in conflict with law or with the Articles of this corporation, and, provided further, that: (1) after shares are issued a Bylaw changing the number of directors or from a fixed to a variable Board can be adopted only by approval of the outstanding shares; and (2) any such Bylaw reducing the number of directors below five cannot be adopted if the votes cast against its adoption at a shareholders' meeting, or the shares not consenting in the case of action by written consent, are equal to more than 16 2/3 percent of the outstanding shares entitled to vote.

[See § 4.200[2], PP 10.02 and 10.03 for alternative provisions.]

CERTIFICATE OF SECRETARY [Corp. Code § 314]

I certify that:

1. I am the Secretary of _____ [name of corporation].

2. The attached Bylaws are the Bylaws of the corporation approved by the Board of Directors on _____[date], _____ [either at a meeting duly held or by their unanimous written consent].

§ 4.210 Principal Executive Office [Corp. Code § 1502(a)]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This provision may be used if the bylaws are to specify the complete address of the corporation's principal executive office in California and to authorize the board of directors to change that address and to establish additional offices. Paragraph 1.01 of the form in § 4.200[2] sets forth the complete address (street, city, and state) of the corporation's principal executive office. Paragraph 1.01 of the form in § 4.201[2] sets forth only the city and county in California in which the corporation's principal executive office is located.

[b] Designation of Office in Bylaws

Corp. Code § 1502(a) requires that the street address of the corporation's principal executive office or, if that office is not in California, the street address of its principal business office in this state be set forth in the statement filed in the office of the Secretary of State. However, there is no requirement that the location of the corporation's principal executive office be set forth in the articles of incorporation or in the bylaws.

§ 4.211 Number of Directors [Corp. Code § 212(a)]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form contains alternative bylaw provisions for a fixed number of directors [see § 4.200[2], P 2.03, § 4.201[2], P 2.02]. It also contains a provision for a variable board that may be used in lieu of the provisions set forth in §§ 4.200 and 4.201.

[b] Number of Directors

Unless set forth in the articles of incorporation, the bylaws musteither set forth the exact number of directors of the corporation or that the number will not be less than a stated minimum or more than a stated maximum (which in no case can be greater than two times the stated minimum minus one). The exact number of directors then is to be fixed, within the limits specified, by approval of the board of directors or by the shareholders [see Corp. Code §§ 151, 153], in the manner provided in the bylaws, subject to Corp. Code § 204(a)(5) (authorizing the articles to require for corporate action the vote of a larger proportion or of all the shares of any class or series or the vote or quorum for taking action of a larger proportion or of all the directors than is otherwise required by the General Corporation Law) [Corp. Code § 212(a)].

The number, or minimum number, of directors cannot be less than three, except as follows [Corp. Code § 212(a)]:

- Before shares are issued, the number may be one.
- Before shares are issued, the number may be two.
- So long as the corporation has only one shareholder, the number may be one.

- So long as the corporation has only one shareholder, the number may be two.
- So long as the corporation has only two shareholders, the number may be two.

After shares have been issued, a bylaw specifying or changing a fixed number of directors or the maximum or minimum number or changing from a fixed to a variable board or vice versa may be adopted only by approval of the outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 152] provided, however, that a bylaw (or amendment of the articles if the number is specified in the articles) reducing the fixed number or the minimum number of directors to a number less than five cannot be adopted if the votes cast against its adoption at a meeting of the shareholders or the shares not consenting in the case of action by written consent are equal to more than 16 2/3 percent of the outstanding shares entitled to vote [Corp. Code § 212(a)].

[c] Classes of Directors

A listed corporation, by amendment of its bylaws, may adopt provisions to divide the board of directors into two or three classes to serve for terms of two or three years respectively [Corp. Code § 301.5(a); see Corp. Code § 301(a)]. A "listed corporation" is a corporation with outstanding shares listed on the New York Stock Exchange, the NYSE Amex, the NASDAQ Global Market, or the NASDAQ Capital Market [Corp. Code § 301.5(d)]. A corporation that is not listed, after issuance of shares, may adopt those provisions pursuant to amendment of its bylaws, to take effect when it becomes a listed corporation [Corp. Code § 301.5(a)].

A bylaw amendment providing for division of the board of directors into classes or a change in the number of classes may be adopted only by the approval of the board [see Corp. Code § 151] and the outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 152] voting as a single class, notwithstanding the requirements of Corp. Code § 903 (shareholder approval of amendments) [Corp. Code § 301.5(a)]. If the board of directors is divided into two classes pursuant to such an amendment, the authorized number of directors must be no fewer than six, and one half of the directors (or as close an approximation as possible) must be elected at each annual meeting. If the board is divided into three classes, the authorized number must be no fewer than nine, and one third (or as close an approximation as possible) must be elected at each annual meeting. Directors of a listed corporation may be elected by classes at a shareholder meeting at which an amendment adopting provisions for dividing the board into classes is approved. However, the extended terms for directors are contingent on approval of the amendment [Corp. Code § 301.5(b)]. If directors for more than one class will be elected by the shareholders at any one meeting and the election is by cumulative voting [see Corp. Code § 708], votes may be cumulated only for directors to be elected within each class [Corp. Code § 301.5(c)].

For further discussion, see § 4.14.

§ 4.212 Qualifications of Directors [Corp. Code § 212(b)(4)]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form illustrates clauses that may be included in bylaws when qualifications on who may be a director are to be imposed.

[b] Statutory Authorization

The bylaws may set forth the qualifications of directors, provided that any such provisions do not conflict with law or with the articles of incorporation [Corp. Code § 212(b)(4)]. Other than the foregoing authorization, the General Corporation Law imposes no qualifications on the directors and, frequently, none will be imposed by the articles or by the bylaws. Other statutes, such as those governing various licenses and permits may, however, impose qualifying requirements (and if a given corporation is subject to such other statutes, those other statutes must be complied with). But even apart from statutory requirements, the corporation may wish to impose qualifications. For example, a close or small corporation may wish to require that its directors be shareholders or residents of the state. A corporation may also wish to require that its directors have a background or reputation compatible with the purposes of the corporation.

The two clauses in this form are merely illustrative. The qualifications that may be imposed are almost as varied as the kinds of businesses that may be incorporated.

§ 4.213 Filling Vacancies Caused by Other Than Removal of Director [Corp. Code § 305(a)]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form may be used as an alternative to Paragraph 2.07 of the form in § 4.200[2] if it is desirable to change the manner in which vacancies can be filled as specified in Corp. Code § 305(a). The provisions set forth in the form are illustrative only.

[b] Statutory Authorization

Unless otherwise provided in the articles or bylaws, and except for a vacancy created by the removal of a director, vacancies on the board may be filled by approval of the board [see Corp. Code § 151], or, if the number of directors then in office is less than a quorum, by either (1) the unanimous written consent of the directors then in office; (2) the affirmative vote of a majority of the directors then in office at a meeting held pursuant to notice or waiver of notice complying with Corp. Code § 307; or (3) a sole remaining director [Corp. Code § 305(a)].

§ 4.215 Compensation of Directors [Corp. Code § 212(b)(4)]

[1] Comment--Use of Form

Compensation of directors may be fixed in the bylaws [*Corp. § 4.216 Purposes and Powers [Corp. Code §§ 206, 207, 300, 317]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form essentially restates the Corporations Code provisions that specify the business purposes for which a corporation may be formed [see Corp. Code § 206] and the powers that it may exercise [see Corp. Code § 207]. These matters are fixed by statute, subject to any limitations contained in the articles of incorporation [see Corp. Code §§ 206, 207]. Thus, any bylaw provisions governing these matters must simply reflect the governing statutes and any limitations imposed by the articles of incorporation. Although bylaw provisions dealing with these topics therefore are somewhat redundant, it nevertheless may be desirable to set forth these statutory purposes and powers in the bylaws for the benefit of the officers, directors, and shareholders.

If the statutory purposes and powers have been limited or restricted by the articles, the statutory provisions restated in this form should be modified appropriately to conform with those set forth in the articles. Any additional statutory powers, or nonstatutory powers not in conflict with the governing statutes or with the articles of incorporation, may be included.

[b] Purposes of Corporation

Corp. Code § 206 provides that subject to any limitation contained in the articles of incorporation and to compliance with any other applicable laws, any corporation other than a corporation subject to the Banking Law [see Corp. Code § 163] or professional corporation may engage in any business activity, and that a corporation subject to the Banking Law [see Corp. Code § 163] or professional corporation may engage in any business activity not prohibited by the respective statutes and regulations to which it is subject [see Corp. Code § 202(b)].

The articles may set forth a provision limiting or restricting the business in which the corporation may engage, but if they do not do so, no such limitation is effective [Corp. Code § 204(a)(6)] unless the corporation is a close corporation and the limitations are set forth in a shareholders' agreement [see Corp. Code § 204(a), last paragraph].

[c] Powers of Corporation

Subject to any limitations contained in the articles and to compliance with other provisions of the General Corporation Law and with any other applicable laws, a corporation has all the powers of a natural person in carrying out its business activities [Corp. Code § 207]. A number of these powers are expressly enumerated in Corp. Code § 207, as well as in other sections throughout the General Corporation Law [see, e.g., Corp. Code §§ 317 (power to indemnify corporate agents), 400 (power to issue shares), 407 (power to issue fractional shares), 408 (power to adopt and carry out stock purchase or option plan or agreement for employees), 409(d) (power to issue partly paid shares)].

The articles may set forth a provision limiting or restricting the powers that the corporation may exercise, but if they do not do so, no such provision in the bylaws is effective [Corp. Code § 204(a)(6)] unless the corporation is a close corporation and the limitations are set forth in a shareholders' agreement [see Corp. Code § 204(a), last paragraph].

[d] Management of Business and Exercise of Powers

Subject to the provisions of the General Corporation Law and to any limitations in the articles relating to action required to be approved by the shareholders, as that term is defined in Corp. Code § 153, or by the outstanding shares, as that term is defined in Corp. Code § 152, the business and affairs of the corporation must be managed and all corporate powers exercised by or under the direction of the board of directors. The board may delegate the management of the day-to-day operation of the business of the corporation to a management company or other person, provided that the business and affairs of the corporation are managed and all corporate powers are exercised under the ultimate direction of the board [Corp. Code § 300(a)].

For discussion of the effect of shareholders' agreements on the above provisions in the case of close corporations, see the note concerning close corporations, following Paragraph 2.02 of § 4.200[2]. For the criminal penalties imposed on directors and other persons for violations of their various duties or fraudulent acts, see Corp. Code §§ 2251-2257 and 2260.

[2] Form

Purposes and Powers [Corp. Code §§ 206, 207, 300, 317]

Purposes [Corp. Code § 206]

(a) Subject to compliance with any applicable laws [and to any limitations contained in the Articles of Incorporation], this corporation may engage in any business activity.

Powers [Corp. Code § 207]

(b) Subject to compliance with the provisions of the General Corporation Law and any other applicable laws [and to any limitations contained in the Articles of Incorporation], this corporation shall have all the powers of a natural person in carrying out its business activities, including, without limitation, the power to:

Seal [Corp. Code § 207(a)]

(1) Adopt, use, and at will alter a corporate seal (but failure to affix a seal does not affect the validity of any instrument).

[See § 4.247 for comment and alternative provisions. See also § 4.200[2], P 9.10, for an alternative provision requiring the corporation to adopt a seal.]

Bylaws [Corp. Code § 207(b)]

(2) Adopt, amend, and repeal bylaws.

[See § 4.200[2], PP 10.02, 10.03, and § 4.201[2], P 8.01, for provisions setting forth manner of amendment.]

Out-of-State Business [Corp. Code § 207(c)]

(3) Qualify to do business in any other state, territory, dependency, or foreign country.

Deal With Own Securities [Corp. Code § 207(d)]

(4) Subject to the provisions of Section 510 of the California Corporations Code (relating to the reacquisition by a corporation of its own shares), issue, purchase, redeem, receive, take, or otherwise acquire, own, hold, sell, lend, exchange, transfer, or otherwise dispose of, pledge, use, and otherwise deal in and with its own shares, bonds, debentures, and other securities.

Charitable Donations [Corp. Code § 207(e)]

(5) Make donations, regardless of specific corporate benefit, for the public welfare or for community fund, hospital, charitable, educational, scientific, civic, or similar purposes.

Employee Plans [Corp. Code § 207(f)]

(6) Pay pensions, and establish and carry out pension, profit-sharing, share bonus, share purchase, share option, savings, thrift, and other retirement, incentive, and benefit plans, trusts, and provisions for any or all of the directors, officers, and employees of this corporation or of its subsidiary or affiliated corporations, if any, and indemnify and purchase and maintain insurance on behalf of any fiduciary of such plans, trusts, or provisions.

Obligations [Corp. Code § 207(g)]

(7) Subject to the provisions of Section 315 of the California Corporations Code (relating to certain loans and guaranties), assume obligations, enter into contracts, including contracts of guaranty or suretyship, incur liabilities, borrow and lend money, and otherwise use its credit and secure any of its obligations, contracts, or liabilities by mortgage, pledge, or other encumbrance of all or any part of its property, franchises, and income.

Joint Ventures [Corp. Code § 207(h)]

(8) Participate with others in any partnership, joint venture, or other association, transaction, or arrangement of any kind, whether or not such participation involves sharing or delegation of control with or to others.

Indemnification of Agents [Corp. Code § 317]

(9) Indemnify its agents, as that term is defined in Section 317(a) of the California Corporations Code, against expenses, judgments, fines, settlements, and other amounts actually and reasonably incurred in connection with any threatened, pending, or completed civil, criminal, administrative, or investigative action or proceeding, as provided in Section 317 of the California Corporations Code, and to maintain insurance on behalf of any of its agents against any liability asserted against or incurred by the agent in such capacity or arising out of the agent's status as such, whether or not the corporation would have the power under the the provisions of Section 317 of the California Corporations Code to indemnify the agent against such liability.

[See § 4.200[2], PP 2.25-2.32, and § 4.201[2], P 2.15, for alternative provisions.]

Conduct of Business [Corp. Code § 300(a)]

(c) Subject to the provisions of the General Corporation Law [and to any limitation in the articles relating to action required to be approved by the shareholders, as that term is defined in Section 153 of the California Corporations Code, or by the outstanding shares, as that term is defined in Section 152 of the California Corporations Code], the business and affairs of the corporation shall be managed and all corporate powers shall be exercised by or under the direction of the Board of Directors. The Board may delegate the management of the day-to-day operation of the business of the corporation to a management company or other person, provided that the business and affairs of the corporation shall be managed and all corporate powers shall be exercised under the ultimate direction of the Board.

[See § 4.200[2], P 2.02, and § 4.201[2], P 2.01, fo r alternative provisions.]

§ 4.217 Place of Meetings of Directors and Board Committees [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(2), 307(a)(2), (5), (6), (c)]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an alternative to Paragraph 2.09 of the form in § 4.200[2] and Paragraph 2.07 of the form in § 4.201[2] when it is desired that the bylaws specify the place of meetings of the board of directors or board committees.

[b] Statutory Authorization

The bylaws of a corporation may make provisions not in conflict with law or with the articles of incorporation for the place and manner of conducting meetings of the board of directors and board committees [Corp. Code § 212(b)(2)].

[c] Place of Meetings

Unless otherwise provided in the articles or bylaws, meetings of the board (and board committees [Corp. Code § 307(c)]) may be held at any place within or outside California that is designated in the notice of the meeting or, if not so stated or there is no notice, designated in the bylaws or by board resolution [Corp. Code § 307(a)(5)]. Regular meetings of the board (or board committees) may be held without notice if the time and place of such meetings are fixed by the bylaws or by resolution of the board or board committee [Corp. Code § 307(a)(2), (c)].

§ 4.218 Time and Notice of Meetings of Directors and Board Committees [Corp. Code §§ 113, 212(b)(2), 307(a)(2), (3), (c)]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an alternative to Paragraphs 2.10 through 2.12 of the form in § 4.200[2] and Paragraphs 2.08 and 2.09 of the form in § 4.201[2] when it is desired that the bylaws specify the time of regular meetings of the board of directors and board committees, the manner of giving notice, and waiver of notice. For additional discussion, see § 4.219.

[b] Statutory Authorization

The bylaws of a corporation may make provisions not in conflict with law or with the articles of incorporation for the time and manner of calling and giving notice of meetings of the board of directors and board committees [Corp. Code § 212(b)(2)].

[c] Notice and Waiver of Notice

Unless otherwise provided in the articles of incorporation or in the bylaws, regular meetings of the board (or of a board committee [Corp. Code § 307(c)]) may be held without notice if the time and place of those meetings are fixed by the bylaws or the board. Special meetings of the board (or of a board committee) require four days' notice by mail or 48 hours' notice delivered personally or by telephone, including a voice messaging system, or by electronic transmission by the corporation [Corp. Code § 307(a)(2); see Corp. Code § 20 (definition)]. However, no notice need be given to any director or committee member who provides a waiver of notice, or a consent to holding the meeting or an approval of the minutes of the meeting in writing, whether before or after the meeting, or who attends the meeting without protesting, before the meeting or at its commencement, the lack of notice to him or her [Corp. Code § 307(a)(3)]. Neither a notice nor a waiver of notice need specify the purpose of any regular or special meeting of the board (or board committee) [Corp. Code § 307(a)(2)]. All waivers, consents, and approvals must be filed with the corporate records or made a part of the minutes of the meeting [Corp. Code § 307(a)(3)].

[2] Form

Time and Notice of Meetings of Directors and Board Committees [Corp. Code §§ 113, 212(b)(2), 307(a)(2), (3), (c)]

Regular Meetings

(a) Regular meetings of the Board of Directors shall be held, without call, _____ [specify e.g., on the first Tuesday in the months of March, June, September, and December at 2:30 P.M.]. [Add any provisions desired specifying the times of meetings of board committees.] Should any specified day fall on a legal holiday, the meeting scheduled for that day shall be held at the same hour on the next succeeding day that is not a legal holiday.

Special Meetings

(b) Special meetings of the Board of Directors [and Board committees] shall be held on four days' notice by first-class mail, postage prepaid, or 48 hours' notice delivered personally or by telephone, including a voice messaging system, or by electronic transmission by the corporation. The notice need not specify the purpose of the meeting.

[See § 4.219[2] for alternative provisions.]

PRACTICE TIP:

The corporation may wish to limit the means by which notice of special meetings may be given. The preceding provision may be altered accordingly. Commentary by Mary E. Ahern.

Waiver of Notice

(c) No notice of a meeting need be given to any director [or Board committee member] who signs a waiver of notice, or a consent to holding the meeting or an approval of the minutes of the meeting, whether before or after the meeting, or who attends the meeting without protesting, before the meeting or at its commencement, the lack of notice to him or her.

§ 4.221 Quorum for Meetings of Directors [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(4), 307(a)(7)]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an alternative to Paragraph 2.13 of the form in § 4.200[2], and Paragraph 2.10 of the form in § 4.201[2], if it is desired that a quorum for board meetings be reduced from the proportion specified by statute.

[b] Statutory Authority

The bylaws of a corporation may make provisions, not in conflict with law or with the articles of incorporation, for the requirements of a quorum for meetings of the directors and of board committees [Corp. Code § 212(b)(4)]. Since a bylaw setting quorum requirements for directors' meetings may not conflict with the law, a bylaw provision may only reduce, but not increase, the required quorum for taking action. This result follows from the introductory paragraph of Corp. Code § 307(a), which provides that unless provided in the articles or "(subject to paragraph (5) of subdivision (a) of [Corp. Code] Section 204) in the bylaws" the provisions of Corp. Code § 307 regarding board meetings will apply. Corp. Code § 204(a)(5) provides that a provision requiring the vote or quorum for taking action of a larger proportion or of all the directors than is otherwise required may appear in the articles. Thus, unless a provision in the articles so increases the quorum, or a bylaw or article provision reduces it, a majority of the authorized number of directors constitutes a quorum of the board of directors for the transaction of business. However, neither the articles nor the bylaws may provide that a quorum will be less than one-third the authorized number of directors or less than two, whichever is larger, unless the authorized number of directors is one, in which case one director constitutes a quorum [Corp. Code § 307(a)(7)]. The provisions of Corp. Code § 307 also apply to board committees [Corp. Code § 307(c)].

[2] Form

Quorum if Corporation Has Two or More Directors

At all meetings of the Board of Directors, _____ [number not less than one third of authorized number of directors or not less than two, whichever is larger] directors shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business.

§ 4.222 Number of Directors or Committee Members Required for Board or Committee Action [Corp. Code §§ 204(a)(5), 307(a)(8)]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an alternative to the provisions set forth in Paragraph 2.14 of the form in § 4.200[2], and in Paragraph 2.11 of the form in § 4.201[2]. This form should be used if it is desired that the affirmative vote of a majority of the authorized number of directors, rather than the vote of a majority of directors present at a meeting at which a quorum is present, be required before their acts or decisions are to be the acts or decisions of the board or board committee.

[b] Transaction of Business

Unless otherwise provided in the articles of incorporation or in the bylaws, every act or decision done or made by a majority of the directors present at a meeting duly held at which a quorum is present is the act of the board, subject to the provisions of Corp. Code § 310 (relating to contracts and transactions between the corporation and its directors or a legal entity in which one or more of its directors has a material financial interest) and Corp. Code § 317(e) (relating to indemnification by a corporation of its agents). Neither the articles nor the bylaws may provide, however, that a lesser vote than a majority of the directors present at a meeting is the act of the board [Corp. Code § 307(a)(8)]. As stated in § 4.221[1], if a supermajority vote of directors is to be required for the approval of any or all business transacted by the board, the provision setting forth the requirements must appear in the articles [see Corp. Code §§ 204(a)(5), 307(a), first paragraph]. The bylaws, however, may contain a provision, as set forth in this form, requiring the affirmative vote of a majority of the authorized number of directors for any or all actions by the board [Corp. Code § 204(a), last paragraph].

The provisions of Corp. Code § 307 discussed above also apply to board committees [Corp. Code § 307(c)].

[2] Form

Number of Directors or Committee Members Required for Board or Committee Action [Corp. Code §§ 204(a)(5), 307(a)(8)]

Except as otherwise required by law, or in the Articles of Incorporation of this corporation, or in these Bylaws, every act or decision of the board of directors shall be approved by the affirmative vote of not less than a majority of the authorized number of directors of this corporation.

§ 4.223 Conduct of Meetings of Directors and Board Committees [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(2), 307(a)(6), (c)]--Presiding Officer, Secretary, Procedure

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an alternative to Paragraphs 2.18 and 2.19 of the form in § 4.200[2], and Paragraph 2.13 of the form in § 4.201[2], governing the conduct of board meetings and meetings of board committees. Even if the number of directors or board committee members is few, meetings can be expedited and the minutes more accurately recorded if basic rules of procedure are provided for and followed. Thus, bylaws may set forth at least the order of business for such meetings [see § 4.224] and provide that procedure on motions and other matters is, to the extent that no other provision is made for the procedure, to be governed by Robert's Rules of Order.

[b] Statutory Authority

The bylaws of a corporation may make provisions not in conflict with law or with the articles of incorporation for the manner of conducting meetings of the directors and board committees [Corp. Code § 212(b)(2)].

[c] Adjournment for Failure of Quorum

A meeting that fails to obtain a quorum, as defined either in the articles [see Corp. Code § 204(a)(5) (permitting articles to specify increased quorum requirements)] or in the bylaws (which may only provide for lower quorums than specified by statute) or, in the absence of a definition in the articles or bylaws, by statute [see Corp. Code § 307(a)(7)] may transact no business [see Corp. Code § 307(a)(8)], but must adjourn. The adjournment may be to another time and place by the vote of a majority of the directors present [Corp. Code § 307(a)(4)]. These rules also apply to meetings of incorporators and to board committee meetings [Corp. Code § 307(c)].

[2] Form

Conduct of Meetings of Directors and Board Committees [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(2), 307(a)(6), (c)]--Presiding Officer, Secretary, Procedure
Board of Directors

(a) Meetings of the Board of Directors shall be presided over by the Board Chairperson or in the Chairperson's absence by the Vice Board Chairperson, if there are these officers, or, if there are not, by the President of the corporation or, if _____ [he or she] is not present, by any Vice-President of the corporation, and, if no such officer is present, by any director chosen by a majority of the directors present. The Secretary, or an Assistant Secretary, of the corporation shall attend and take minutes of the meetings. In the absence of the Secretary or an Assistant Secretary, the presiding officer shall designate some person present to take minutes of the meeting.

Board Committee Meetings

(b) Meetings of Board committees, if any, shall be presided over by their respective chairpersons or, in the absence of the chairpersons, by any member chosen by a majority of the members present. Minutes of the meetings shall be taken by the secretary of the committee if there is such an officer or, if there is not or in the officer's absence, by the person designated by the chairperson or acting chairperson of the committee.

[See § 4.226[2] for integrated provisions regarding board committees set forth in a separate bylaw.]

Use of Conference Telephone

(c) Directors and Board committee members may participate in their respective meetings by conference telephone, electronic video screen communication, or other communications equipment, whenever the board authorizes this type of participation by adopting a resolution. The resolution must require that the corporation (1) verify the identity of any director communicating by telephone, electronic video screen, or other communication equipment and that director's right to participate in the board meeting and (2) verify that all statements, questions, actions, and votes made by telephone, electronic video screen, or other communications equipment were made by that director and not by someone not permitted to participate as a director.

Participation in a meeting pursuant to this Paragraph constitutes presence in person at the meeting if all the following are true:

(1) Each board member participating in the meeting can communicate with all of the other members concurrently.

(2) Each member is provided the means of participating in all matters before the board, including the capacity to propose, or interpose an objection, to a specific action to be taken by the corporation.

(3) The board adopts a resolution pursuant to this Paragraph.

Procedure

(d) The precedence of, and procedure on, motions and other procedural matters at Board committee meetings shall be governed so far as practicable by Robert's Rules of Order when those rules are not inconsistent with law, with the corporation's Articles of Incorporation, with these Bylaws, or with Board resolutions.

§ 4.225 Action by Directors or Board Committee Members Without Meeting [Corp. Code § 307(b), (c)]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form restates the statutory provisions governing actions by directors or board committee members without a meeting. These provisions would be included in the bylaws for informational purposes only. They are fixed by statute and are not subject to limitation by the articles or the bylaws [see Corp. Code § 307(b)].

[b] Action Without Meeting

Any action required or permitted to be taken by the board of directors may be taken without a meeting if all members of the board individually or collectively consent in writing to the action and if the number of Board members serving at the time the action is taken constitutes a quorum. The written consent or consents must be filed with the minutes of the proceedings of the board [Corp. Code § 307(b)].

For purposes of unanimous board action without a meeting, the term "all members of the board" includes an "interested director" [see Corp. Code § 310(a)] or a "common director" [see Corp. Code § 310(b)] who abstains in writing from providing consent, when [Corp. Code § 307(b)]:

- The disclosures required by Corp. Code § 310 (generally requiring full disclosure of the material facts regarding the transaction and the director's interest) [see § 4.200[2], Section 2.23] have been made to the noninterested or noncommon directors, as applicable, before their execution of the written consent or consents;

- The specified disclosures are conspicuously included in the written consent or consents executed by the noninterested or noncommon directors; and

- The noninterested or noncommon directors, as applicable, approve the action by a vote that is sufficient without counting the votes of the interested or common directors.

If the directors give written consent in accordance with this rule, but the disclosures made regarding the action that is the subject of the consent do not satisfy statutory requirements [see Corp. Code § 310], the action that is the subject of the consent will be deemed approved. However, in any suit brought to challenge the action, the party asserting the validity of the action has the burden of proof in establishing that the action was just and reasonable to the corporation at the time it was approved [Corp. Code § 307(b)].

This provision is not subject to modification by the articles or the bylaws and, under Corp. Code § 307(c), is made applicable to board committee action.

[2] Form

Action by Directors or Board Committee Members Without Meeting [Corp. Code § 307(b), (c)]

Any action required or permitted to be taken by the Board of Directors or by any Board committee may be taken without a meeting if all members of the Board or Board committee shall individually or collectively consent in writing to the action, provided that the number of board members serving at the time the action is taken constitutes a quorum.

[Optional (Corp. Code § 307(b)):]

For purposes of unanimous board action without a meeting, the term "all members of the board" includes an "interested director" (as described in Corporations Code Section 310(a)) or a "common director" (as described in Corporations Code Section 310(b)) who abstains in writing from providing consent, providing (1) the disclosures required by Corporations Code Section 310 have been made to the noninterested or noncommon directors before their execution of the written consent or consents; (2) these disclosures are conspicuously included in the written consent or consents executed by the noninterested or noncommon directors; and (3) the noninterested or noncommon directors approve the action by a vote that is sufficient without counting the votes of the interested or common directors; provided, however, that when written consent is provided by the directors under the rule stated in this sentence, the action that is the subject of the consent will be deemed approved even if the disclosures made with respect to common or interested directors do not satisfy the applicable statutory requirements.

[Continue with the following:]

The written consent or consents shall be filed with the minutes of the proceedings of the Board or Board committee and the action by written consent shall have the same force and effect as a unanimous vote of the directors or Board committee members.

[See § 4.226[2] for integrated provisions regarding board committees set forth in a separate bylaw.]

§ 4.226 Board Committees [Corp. Code §§ 307, 311, 1500]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a bylaw provision specifying the authority of board committees. It may be used in lieu of Paragraph 2.33 of the form in § 4.200[2], or the separate provisions relating to board committees set forth in §§ 4.217 through 4.225.

[b] Appointment of Board Committees

The board of directors, by resolution adopted by a majority of the authorized number of directors, may designate one or more committees, each consisting of two or more directors, to serve at the pleasure of the board. The board may designate one or more directors as alternate members of any committee, who may replace any absent member at any meeting of the committee. The appointment of members or alternate members of a committee requires the vote of a majority of the authorized number of directors [Corp. Code § 311].

[c] Powers and Limitations

A board committee, to the extent provided in the board resolution or in the bylaws, has all the authority of the board of directors, except with regard to the following issues [Corp. Code § 311]:

- The approval of any action for which the General Corporation Law also requires shareholders' approval, as that term is defined in Corp. Code § 153, or approval of the outstanding shares, as that term is defined in Corp. Code § 152;

- The filling of vacancies on the board or in any committee;

- The fixing of compensation of the directors for serving on the board or on any committee;

- The amendment or repeal of bylaws or the adoption of new bylaws;

- The amendment or repeal of any resolution of the board that, by its express terms, is not so amendable or repealable;

- A "distribution to the shareholders" of the corporation, as that term is defined in Corp. Code § 166, except at a rate or in a periodic amount or within a price range determined by the board; and

- The appointment of other committees of the board or the members of the board.

[d] Meetings

Corp. Code § 307(a), (b) sets forth the manner of calling, giving and waiving notice of, the quorum for, and the effect of actions taken at board of directors' meetings and action by the directors without a meeting. These provisions are also applicable to board committees and their actions [Corp. Code § 307(c)].

[e] Minutes

A corporation must keep minutes of all board committee proceedings [Corp. Code § 1500]. The minutes must be kept in written form or in another form capable of being converted into clearly legible tangible form [Corp. Code § 1500] and open to inspection and copying on the written demand of any shareholder or holder of a voting trust certificate at any reasonable time during usual business hours for a purpose reasonably related to the holder's interests as a shareholder or holder of a voting trust certificate [Corp. Code § 1601(a); see Jara v. Suprema Meats, Inc. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 1238, 1263-1265, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 187 (corporation required only to allow inspection at corporate offices, not to provide copies or even to respond to demands for disclosure falling outside scope of Corp. Code § 1601)]. Directors have an absolute right at any reasonable time to inspect and copy all books, records, and documents of the corporation [Corp. Code § 1602]. The provision is broad enough to include the right to inspect and copy the minute book.

[2] Form

Board Committees [Corp. Code §§ 307, 311, 1500]

The Board of Directors, by resolution duly adopted by a majority of the authorized number of directors, may designate one or more committees, each consisting of two or more directors and with the powers as it may designate, consistent with the Articles of Incorporation, these Bylaws, and the General Corporation Law. The appointment of members or alternate members of a committee requires the vote of a majority of the authorized number of the Board. The committees shall hold office at the pleasure of the Board.

[OR]

(a) The Board of Directors may appoint one or more committees, each consisting of two or more directors, to serve at the pleasure of the Board. The appointment of members or alternate members of a committee requires the vote of a majority of the authorized number of the Board. The Board may delegate to any committee any of the Board's powers and authority in the management of the business and affairs of the corporation except the authority:

(1) To approve any action also required by the General Corporation Law to be approved by the shareholders or by the outstanding shares, as those terms are defined, respectively, in Sections 153 and 152 of the California Corporations Code.

(2) To fill vacancies on the Board or in any committee.

(3) To fix the compensation of directors for serving on the Board or on any committee.

(4) To amend or repeal bylaws or adopt new ones.

(5) To amend or repeal any Board resolution that, by its terms, is not amendable or repealable.

(6) To make any distribution to the shareholders except at a rate or in a periodic amount or within a price range determined by the Board.

(7) To appoint other Board committees or their members.

[Add, if desired:]

The Board Chairperson if there is such an officer and, if none, the President of the corporation, shall be an ex officio member of each Board committee so appointed.

(b) The Board of Directors may prescribe the manner in which committee proceedings are conducted or authorize the committee to do so. Regular meetings of any committee shall be held at the time and place specified in any resolution duly adopted by the Board, or, in the absence of a resolution, by the committee. On failure to designate the place, the meetings shall be held at the principal executive office of the corporation. Special meetings of any committee may be called by the chairperson or any two members of the committee, or by the Board Chairperson if there is such an officer or, if none, by the President of the corporation, by written notice to the members and shall be held at the time and place specified in the notice or, on failure to specify the place, at the principal executive office of the corporation. Notice of the meetings shall be given in the same manner as is required by these Bylaws for the giving of notice of Board meetings. A majority of the authorized number of members of any committee shall constitute a quorum of that committee for the transaction of business. Minutes of each committee meeting shall be kept. The original or a copy of the minutes, certified by the committee chairperson or another person as he or she designates, shall be delivered to the Secretary of the corporation for placement in the corporation's minute book and a copy shall be retained by the committee. The transactions of any meeting of any committee, however called and noticed or wherever held, shall be as valid as though had at a meeting duly held after regular call and notice if a quorum is present and if, either before or after the meeting, each of the members not present signs a written waiver of notice or a consent to the holding of the meeting, or an approval of the minutes of the meeting. All waivers, consents, or approvals shall be made a part of the minutes of the meeting. Any action required or permitted to be taken by any Board committee may be taken without a meeting, if all members of the committee shall individually or collectively consent in writing to the action and the written consent or consents are filed with the minutes of the proceedings of the Board committee.

(c) Vacancies in any committee may be filled only by the Board.

§ 4.227 Qualifications of Shareholders

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form may be used if the articles of incorporation have imposed qualifications on persons who may be shareholders and it is desired to have this information repeated in the bylaws.

[b] Qualifications of Shareholders

The articles of incorporation are authorized to include provisions setting forth special qualifications of persons who may be shareholders [Corp. Code § 204(a)(3)], but unless expressly provided in the articles, or, in the case of a close corporation, in a shareholder's agreement, the provision is not effective [Corp. Code § 204(a)]. There is no authority for such qualifications to be imposed by the bylaws [see Corp. Code § 212(b)].

Such provisions are seldom required, however. While they might be useful for a close corporation that wishes to keep its membership controlled, stock transfer restrictions [see §§ 4.244, 4.245], set forth in the articles [Corp. Code § 204(b)] or in the bylaws [Corp. Code § 212(b)(1)], are normally sufficient for this purpose.

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an alternative to Paragraph 4.01 of the form in § 4.200[2], and Paragraph 3.01 of the form in § 4.201[2]. This form should be included if it is desired that the bylaws specify the place of shareholders' meetings.

Bylaws customarily specify the principal executive office of the corporation as the place of meeting and grant the directors authority to designate other places.

[b] Statutory Authority

The bylaws of a corporation may make provision not in conflict with law or with the articles of incorporation for the place of shareholders' meetings [Corp. Code § 212(b)(2)].

[c] Place of Meetings

Meetings of shareholders may be held at any place inside or outside California stated in or fixed in accordance with the bylaws. If no other place is stated or fixed, shareholders' meetings must be held at the principal executive office of the corporation [Corp. Code § 600(a)].

[d] Validity of Transactions; Waivers, Consents, and Approvals

The transactions of any meeting of shareholders, however called and noticed and wherever held, are as valid as though had at a meeting duly held after regular call and notice if a quorum is present either in person or by proxy and if, either before or after the meeting, each of the persons entitled to vote and not present in person or by proxy signs a written waiver of notice or a consent to the holding of the meeting or an approval of the minutes of the meeting. All waivers, consents, and approvals must be filed with the corporate records or made a part of the minutes of the meeting [Corp. Code § 601(e)]. These provisions are not subject to qualification by the articles or the bylaws. For further discussion of the validity of transactions and waiver, see § 4.230[1].

§ 4.229 Time of Annual Shareholders' Meeting [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(2), 600(b)]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an alternative to Paragraph 4.02 of the form in § 4.200[2], and Paragraph 3.02 of the form in § 4.201[2].

Four items can be covered in the annual meeting provision:

- The date and time of the meeting.
- A provision for holidays.
- A provision for calling another meeting if the annual meeting is not held.
- A description of the business to be covered by the meetings.

The only necessary provisions are the first two listed above, but the others are frequently included. This form, in addition to the four provisions mentioned above, specifies the year after which the annual meetings will begin to be held, specifies the place of the meeting, provides for adjournment, and requires the directors to call a new meeting if the annual meeting is not held.

[b] Statutory Authority

The bylaws of a corporation may make provision not in conflict with law or with the articles of incorporation specifying the time for the holding of shareholders' meetings [Corp. Code § 212(b)(2)].

[c] Annual Meeting

An annual meeting of shareholders must be held for the election of directors on a date and at a time stated in or fixed in accordance with the bylaws [Corp. Code § 600(b)]. The date and time of the annual shareholders' meeting for a regulated management, company must be held in accordance with the Federal Investment Company Act of 1949 [15 U.S.C. §§ 80a-1-80a-64; see 15 U.S.C. § 80a-16 (election of directors)], rather than in accordance with the corporation's bylaws [Corp. Code § 600(b); see I.R.C. § 851 ("regulated management company" defined for these purposes)].

[d] Selecting Time of Annual Meeting

In selecting the time of the annual meeting, it should be kept in mind that, unless in the case of a corporation with less than 100 holders of record of its shares the requirement is expressly waived in the bylaws, the board of directors must cause an annual report to be sent to the shareholders not later than 120 days after the close of the fiscal year and at least 15 days prior to the annual meeting of shareholders to be held during the next fiscal year [Corp. Code § 1501(a)(1)]. If the annual meeting is held less than 120 days after the close of the fiscal year, it will reduce the number of days allowed by statute to prepare and mail the annual report.

[e] Failure to Hold Annual Meeting

If there is a failure to hold the annual meeting for a period of 60 days after the date designated for it or, if no date has been designated, for a period of 15 months after the corporation was organized or after its last annual meeting, the superior court of the proper county (as defined in Corp. Code § 177) may, on the application of any shareholder after notice to the corporation giving it an opportunity to be heard, summarily order a meeting to be held. The court may issue such orders as may be appropriate, including, without limitation, orders designating the time and place of the meeting, the record date for determination of shareholders entitled to vote and the form of notice of the meeting [Corp. Code § 600(c)].

The shares represented at the meeting, either in person or by proxy, and entitled to vote constitute a quorum for the purpose of that meeting, despite any provision of the articles of incorporation or bylaws or of the General Corporation Law to the contrary [Corp. Code § 600(c)].

[2] FORM

Time of Annual Shareholders' Meeting [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(2), 600(b)]

The annual meeting of the shareholders, after the year _____, shall be held at the principal executive office of the corporation at _____M., on the _____ [number, e.g., first] _____ [day of week] in _____ [month] in each year, if not a legal holiday, and if a legal holiday, on the next business day following; provided, however, that any annual meeting may be adjourned as provided by these Bylaws. If the annual meeting of shareholders shall not be held on the date specified above, the Board of Directors shall cause a meeting in lieu of that meeting to be held as soon after as convenient, and, in any case, not later than 60 days after the date designated above, and any business transacted or election held at the meeting shall be as valid as if transacted or held at the annual meeting. At the annual meeting directors shall be elected, reports of the affairs of the corporation shall be considered, and any other business may be transacted that is within the powers of the shareholders.

§ 4.230 Time, Manner of Giving, and Contents of Notice of Shareholders' Meeting [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(2), 601(a)-(c), (e), (f)]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an alternative to Paragraphs 4.03(a)-(d) and 4.04(a) of the form in § 4.200[2], and Paragraph 3.04 of the form in § 4.201[2]. This form reduces the notice requirements to essentials and is consequently less detailed than the parallel provisions of the long form bylaws [see § 4.200[2]] while providing the secretary of the corporation with more than a reference to the Corporations Code, as in the form in § 4.201[2].

[b] Statutory Authority

The bylaws of a corporation may make provision not in conflict with law or with the articles of incorporation on the manner of giving notice of shareholders' meetings [Corp. Code § 212(b)(2)].

[c] Time of Notice

Whenever shareholders are required or permitted to take any action at a meeting, a written notice of the meeting must be given not less than 10 nor more than 60 days before the date of the meeting to each shareholder entitled to vote at the meeting [Corp. Code § 601(a)]. However, since a corporation having 500 or more record shareholders (as determined by Corp. Code § 605) on the record date for a meeting may use third-class mail for giving notice, a correspondingly longer lead time of at least 30 days prior to the meeting is required where third-class mail is used [Corp. Code § 601(a), (b)].

In the case of special meetings called by persons other than the board of directors [see § 4.232], the officer to whom the request is delivered must give notice of the meeting "forthwith," but if the notice is not given within 20 days after receipt of the request, the persons entitled to call the meeting may give the notice, or the superior court of the proper county (as defined in Corp. Code § 177) will summarily order the giving of the notice, after notice to the corporation giving it an opportunity to be heard. The procedure provided in Corp. Code § 305(c) applies to such an application, and the court may issue such orders as may be appropriate, including, without limitation, orders designating the time and place of the meeting, the record date for determination of shareholders entitled to vote, and the form of notice [Corp. Code § 601(c)].

[d] Contents of Notice

The notice must state the place, date, and hour of the meeting, any means of electronic transmission by and to the corporation or electronic video screen communication by which shareholders may participate in the meeting, and (1) in the case of a special meeting, the general nature of the business to be transacted, and no other business may be transacted; or (2) in the case of the annual meeting, those matters that the board of directors, at the time of the mailing of the notice, intends to present for action by the shareholders, but subject to the provisions of Corp. Code § 601(f) [see [g], below], any proper matter may be presented at the meeting for action. If directors are to be elected, the notice must include the names of nominees intended at the time of the notice to be presented by management for election [Corp. Code § 601(a)].

[e] Manner of Giving Notice

Notice of a shareholders' meeting must be given personally or by electronic transmission by the corporation, or first-class mail, postage prepaid [Corp. Code § 113], or other means of written communication, addressed to the shareholder at the address appearing on the corporate books or given by the shareholder to the corporation for the purpose of notice, or, if no such address appears or was given, at the place where the corporation's principal executive office is located or by publication at least once in a newspaper of general circulation in the county of the corporation's principal executive office [Corp. Code § 601(b)].

The notice is deemed given when delivered personally, sent by electronic transmission by the corporation deposited in the mail, or sent by other means of written communication, as the case may be. An affidavit (or declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) of mailing or electronic transmission of a notice in accordance with the General Corporation Law, executed by the secretary, assistant secretary, or transfer agent of the corporation, is prima facie evidence that the notice was given [Corp. Code § 601(b)].

If a properly addressed notice is returned to the corporation by the United States Postal Service marked to indicate that delivery at that address was not possible, future notices are deemed to have been duly given without further mailing if they are available to the shareholder on written demand at the corporation's principal executive office for a period of one year from the date the notice was given to the other shareholders [Corp. Code § 601(b)].

[f] Waiver of Notice by Attendance at Meeting

Attendance of a person at a meeting constitutes a waiver of notice of that meeting, except when the person objects, at the beginning of the meeting, to the transaction of any business because the meeting was not lawfully called or convened, but such attendance is not a waiver of any right to object to the consideration of matters required by the General Corporation Law to be included in the notice of the meeting but not so included, if the objection is expressly made at the meeting [Corp. Code § 601(e)].

[g] Validity of Transactions: Waivers, Consents, and Approvals

The transactions of any meeting of shareholders, however called and noticed and wherever held, are as valid as if made at a meeting duly held after regular call and notice if a quorum is present either in person or by proxy and if, either before or after the meeting, each of the persons entitled to vote, not present in person or by proxy, signs a written waiver of notice or a consent to the holding of the meeting or an approval of the minutes of the meeting. All such waivers, consents, and approvals must be filed with the corporate records or made a part of the minutes of the meeting [Corp. Code § 601(e)]. These provisions are not subject to qualification by the articles or the bylaws.

Neither the business to be transacted nor the purpose of any regular or special meeting of shareholders need be specified in any written waiver of notice, consent to the holding of the meeting, or approval of the minutes of the meeting, unless otherwise provided in the articles of incorporation or bylaws, except as provided by Corp. Code § 601(f) [Corp. Code § 601(e)].

Corp. Code § 601(f) provides that any shareholder approval at a meeting, other than unanimous approval by those entitled to vote, pursuant to Corp. Code § 310 (contracts and transactions between a corporation and a director or legal entity in which one or more of its directors has a material financial interest), 902 (amendment of articles), 1152 (corporate conversions), 1201 (reorganizations), 1900 (voluntary dissolution), or 2007 (distribution plans on winding up), will be valid only if the general nature of the proposal so approved was stated in the notice of the meeting or in any written waiver of notice.

[2] Form

Time, Manner of Giving, and Contents of Notice of Shareholders' Meeting [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(2), 601(a)-(c), (e), (f)]

Time and Manner of Giving Notice

(a) Written notice of any meeting at which shareholders are required or permitted to take any action shall be sent by mail, postage prepaid, to each shareholder entitled to vote at the meeting. That notice shall be sent not less than 10 (or, if third-class mail is permitted to be used, not less than 30) nor more than 60 days before the date of the meeting; provided, however, that in the case of a special meeting called by a person other than the board of directors, notice of the meeting shall be sent forthwith but in any event within 20 days after the request for the meeting is received by the Board Chairperson (if there is one), or the President, a Vice-President, or the Secretary of the corporation.

Contents of Notice

(b) The notice shall state the place, date, and hour of the meeting, and (1) in the case of a special meeting, the general nature of the business to be transacted, and that no other business may be transacted; or (2) in the case of the annual meeting, those matters that the Board of Directors at the time of the mailing of the notice intends to present for action by the shareholders. If directors are to be elected, the notice must include the names of nominees intended at the time of the notice to be presented by management for election.

§ 4.231 Adjournment of Shareholders' Meeting [Corp. Code §§ 601(d), 602(c)]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a provision governing the adjournment of shareholders' meeting. It is an alternative to the provisions set forth in Paragraphs 4.03(e) and 4.05(c) of the form in § 4.200[2] and, in part, to those set forth in Paragraph 3.06 of the form in § 4.201[2].

[b] Adjournment Provisions

Adjournment of meetings may be necessitated in two situations:

- When the shareholders are unable to complete the business of the meeting or wish to defer action until later.

- When there is less than a quorum present.

When there is less than a quorum present, the meeting may be adjourned from time to time by the vote of a majority of the shares represented either in person or by proxy, but no other business may be transacted [Corp. Code § 602(c)]. However, if a quorum initially was present, the shareholders present at a duly called or held meeting may continue to transact business until adjournment notwithstanding the withdrawal of enough shareholders to leave less than a quorum provided any action taken (other than adjournment) is approved by at least a majority of the shares required to constitute a quorum, or by any greater voting requirement imposed by law or the articles of incorporation [Corp. Code § 602(b)].

If a shareholders' meeting is adjourned for more than 45 days, or if after the adjournment a new record date is fixed for the adjourned meeting, a notice of the adjourned meeting must be given to each shareholder of record entitled to vote at the meeting. Otherwise, notice of the adjourned meeting need not be given if the time and place of the meeting, or any means of electronic transmission by and to the corporation or electronic video screen communication by which shareholders may participate in the adjourned meeting, were announced at the meeting at which the adjournment was taken, unless the bylaws require notice [Corp. Code § 601(d)]. Hence, the bylaws may require that notice of a meeting adjourned for 45 days or less be given even if the time and place of the adjourned meeting are announced at the meeting at which the adjournment is taken.

[c] Transaction of Business at Adjourned Meeting

At the adjourned meeting the corporation may transact any business that might have been transacted at the original meeting [Corp. Code § 601(d)].

[2] Form

Adjournment of Shareholders' Meeting [Corp. Code §§ 601(d), 602(c)]

Any meeting of the shareholders may adjourn by the vote of a majority of the shares represented either in person or by proxy to another time or place, or from day to day or time to time, until its business is completed, or, if a quorum is not and was not present in person or by proxy, until a quorum is present. Any adjournment and the reason for it shall be recorded in the minutes of the meeting. If the adjournment is for more than 45 days, or if the time and place of the adjourned meeting are not announced at the meeting at which the adjournment is taken, or if after the adjournment a new record date is fixed for the adjourned meeting, a notice of the adjourned meeting shall be given to each shareholder of record entitled to vote at the meeting. Otherwise, no notice of the adjourned meeting need be given [or set forth notice requirements]. At the adjourned meeting, the corporation may transact any business that might have been transacted at the original meeting.

§ 4.232 Persons Entitled to Call Special Meetings of Shareholders [Corp. Code § 600(d)]

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a bylaw provision that may be used to expand the list of persons who may call a special meeting of shareholders. Except as otherwise provided in the articles or bylaws, special shareholder meetings may be called only by the board of directors, the board chairperson, the president, or the holders of shares entitled to cast not less than 10 percent of the votes at the meeting [Corp. Code § 600(d); see § 4.200[2], P 4.04(b), § 4.201[2], P 3.03]. The bylaws of a corporation may contain any provision, not in conflict with law or the articles, for the manner of calling shareholders' meetings [Corp. Code § 212(b)(2)].

[2] Form

Persons Entitled to Call Special Meetings of Shareholders [Corp. Code § 600(d)]

Special meetings of the shareholders may be called at any time by the Board of Directors, the Board Chairperson if there is such an officer, the President of the corporation, the holders of shares entitled to cast not less than 10 percent of the votes at the meeting, or _____ [specify, e.g., any three directors, or the Secretary and Chief Financial Officer of the corporation, acting jointly].

§ 4.233 Quorum of Shareholders [Corp. Code §§ 112, 602(a)]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form may be used when the articles of incorporation have modified the statutory provisions governing a quorum [Corp. Code § 602(a); see § 4.200[2], P 4.05, § 4.201[2], P 2.06] and it is desired that the provision be repeated in the bylaws.

[b] What Constitutes a Quorum

Unless otherwise provided in the articles of incorporation, a majority of the shares entitled to vote, represented in person or by proxy, constitutes a quorum at a shareholders' meeting, but in no event can a quorum consist of less than one third (or, in the case of a mutual water company, 20 percent) of the shares entitled to vote at the meeting or, except in the case of a close corporation [see Corp. Code § 158 (defining "close corporation")], of more than a majority of the shares entitled to vote at the meeting [Corp. Code § 602(a)]. The bylaws may not vary these provisions.

If the articles provide for more or less than one vote for any share on any matter, the above references to "a majority" and to "one third" and "20 percent" of the shares entitled to vote means, as to such matter, a majority or other proportion of the votes entitled to be cast. Whenever shares are disqualified by the General Corporation Law from voting on any matter, they are not to be considered outstanding for the determination of a quorum at any meeting to act on, or the required vote to approve action on, that matter under any other provision of the General Corporation Law, or the articles or bylaws [Corp. Code § 112].

References to the voting of shares include the voting of other securities given voting rights in the articles pursuant to Corp. Code § 204(a)(7) [Corp. Code § 111].

[c] Effect of Vote if Quorum Present

The affirmative vote of a majority of the shares represented and voting at a duly held meeting at which a quorum is present (which shares voting affirmatively also constitute at least a majority of the required quorum) is the act of the shareholders [Corp. Code § 602(a)]. However, if a quorum was initially present the shareholders present at a duly called or held meeting may continue to transact business until adjournment notwithstanding the withdrawal of enough shareholders to leave less than a quorum, if any action taken (other than adjournment) is approved by at least a majority of the shares required to constitute a quorum, or by any greater voting requirement imposed by law or the articles of incorporation [Corp. Code § 602(b)].

[2] Form

§ 4.234 Voting for Directors by Ballot [Corp. Code § 708(e)]

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form requires that voting to be by ballot. Unless the bylaws so require, elections for directors need not be by ballot unless a shareholder demands election by ballot at the meeting and before the voting begins [Corp. Code § 708(e)]. Paragraph 4.07 of the form in § 4.200[2], and Paragraph 3.07 of the form in § 4.201[2] restate the statutory provision.

§ 4.235 Shareholders' Meetings--Proxies [Corp. Code §§ 178, 179, 604, 702(a), (d), 704, 705]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form sets out in detail the rules to follow in determining the validity of proxies when there is a proxy contest. The statutory provisions governing proxies [see [b], below] are usually incorporated in the bylaws without additional requirements [see § 4.200[2], P 4.12].

[b] Statutory Authority

The bylaws of a corporation may make provision, not in conflict with law or with the articles of incorporation, for the manner of execution, revocation, and use of proxies [Corp. Code § 212(b)(3)]. The statutory provisions governing use of proxies cover authorization of use of proxies [Corp. Code § 705(a)]; duration of a proxy [Corp. Code § 705(b)]; effect of the death or incapacity of the maker of a proxy [Corp. Code § 705(c)]; revocation of a proxy [Corp. Code § 705(e), (f)]; voting by proxy of shares held by an administrator, executor, guardian, conservator, or custodian [Corp. Code § 702(a)]; voting by proxy of shares standing in the name of a minor [Corp. Code § 702(d)]; voting by proxy of shares standing of record in the names of two or more persons [Corp. Code § 704]; and the form of proxy [Corp. Code § 604]. The terms "proxy" and "proxyholder" are defined in Corp. Code §§ 178 and 179, respectively.

[2] Form

Shareholders' Meetings--Proxies [Corp. Code §§ 178, 179, 604, 702(a), (d), 704, 705]
Validity of Proxies

(a) Subject to the provisions of the Articles of Incorporation or any law, statute, or regulation to the contrary, in the event of a proxy contest involving the solicitation of proxies for any annual or special meeting of the shareholders of the corporation for rival slates of candidates or opposing or proposing action proposed or opposed, as the case may be, by another group of shareholders soliciting proxies, the following presumptions shall be followed in determining the authenticity or validity of proxies filed with the corporation:

(1) Proxies bearing no handwritten or handprinted signature are presumptively invalid except that facsimile signatures may be accepted from securities brokers or dealers and by banks and trust companies and such facsimile signatures are presumptively valid in the absence of evidence of lack of authenticity or authorization.

(2) Proxies are presumptively valid whether or not dated and whether signed in either pencil or ink, and whether or not there are slight changes or variations in spelling as between the registered name of the shareholder and his or her written signature provided that the name as signed is phonetically similar to the name as registered.

(3) The addition of an address different from that appearing on the record of shareholders or the addition or omission of titles such as "Mr.," "Mrs.," "Miss," "Ms.," or "Dr." shall not invalidate a proxy.

(4) A proxy shall be presumed valid in the event that the initials are substituted for the first or middle names of the registered holders or where the names are used in the signature and only initials appear in the record of shareholders, and names or initials may be added or omitted or substituted for the first or middle initial of a name.

(5) The addition or omission of "Jr." or "Sr." or roman or arabic numerals after the signature shall not render a proxy presumptively invalid. However the substitution after the signature of "Jr." for "Sr." or roman or arabic numerals that are different from those appearing in the record of shareholders shall render the proxy presumptively invalid.

(6) A proxy signed in the shareholder's name by someone other than the shareholder is presumptively invalid in the absence of evidence that the signer was authorized to act for the shareholder. Proxies executed by trustees, pledgees, fiduciaries, guardians, administrators, or executors, signed in their own name and indicating the capacity in which they make the proxy are presumptively valid notwithstanding that the shares do not stand in their names in the record of shareholders. If the vote offered by the proxy of any such person is challenged it shall be the duty of the proxy holder to establish the authority of the maker.

(7) If the shares stand in the name of a trustee, pledgee, fiduciary, guardian, executor, or administrator, in the record of shareholders the proxy of such a person shall be presumptively valid regardless of the addition or omission of wording in the proxy designating such capacity.

(8) Proxies for shares standing in the name of a partnership are presumptively valid if signed in the partnership name only, or by one of the partners whose name appears in the partnership name, or by a general partner or other person indicating in the proxy that he has authority to execute the same.

(9) Proxies representing shares registered in the name of a corporation, unincorporated association, or other organization or entity are presumptively valid if signed in the registered name or by a person purporting to act with authority.

(10) If more than one proxy is executed by a stockbroker, dealer, or other custodian, all such proxies are presumptively valid and shall be considered applicable to different shares registered in the name of the proxy maker, provided, however, that the total number of proxies does not exceed the total number of shares standing in the maker's name, and if such is the case the first proxy filed after proxies have been issued for all of the shares registered in the maker's name shall revoke the first proxy filed by the maker and subsequent proxies shall be treated accordingly, and provided that no proxy executed by such a maker specifically revokes the prior proxies by specific language in addition to that appearing on the proxy forms.

(11) If a proxy bears a legible date it will be presumed to have been executed on that date. If the proxy bears no legible date it will be presumed to have been executed on the date of the postmark of the envelope in which it was transmitted, and in the absence of evidence of such a postmark will be presumed to have been executed on the date it was received by the corporation.

(b) Insofar as they are not clearly inconsistent with any law, regulation, article, bylaw, resolution, or other pertinent matter, votes representing all of the shares of the corporation are presumptively valid. If evidence to the contrary is presented, the burden of proving the invalidity shall be on the person offering the evidence.

(c) Notwithstanding the presumptions of validity or invalidity of a proxy or its execution contained in these Bylaws, evidence of the actual validity or invalidity may be accepted or rejected in determining the question of validity in the discretion of the Chairperson, Secretary, or Inspectors of Election. The amount of evidence for or against validity shall also be in the discretion of the Chairperson, Secretary, or Inspectors of Election. However, nothing contained in these Bylaws shall be construed to require investigation or a request for further information or evidence before or after the determination to accept or reject the vote.

§ 4.236 Conduct of Shareholders' Meetings [Corp. Code § 212(b)(2)]--Presiding Officer, Secretary, and General Rules

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an alternative to Paragraph 4.15 of the form in § 4.200[2], to specify who shall preside over and act as secretary at shareholders' meetings and to provide rules of procedure. Even if the number of shareholders is few, meetings can be expedited and the minutes of the meetings more accurately recorded if basic rules of procedure are provided for and followed. Thus, bylaws may set forth at least the order of business for such meetings [see § 4.237], and often provide that procedure on motions and other matters is to be governed by Robert's Rules of Order.

[b] Statutory Authority

The bylaws may make provision not in conflict with law or with the corporation's articles of incorporation for the manner of conducting shareholders' meetings [Corp. Code § 212(b)(2)].

[c] Failure to Obtain Quorum

A meeting that fails to obtain a quorum [see § 4.233] may transact no business but must adjourn. The adjournment may be from time to time by the vote of a majority of the shares represented in person or by proxy [Corp. Code § 602(c); see § 4.231].

[2] Form

Conduct of Shareholders' Meetings [Corp. Code § 212(b)(2)]--Presiding Officer, Secretary, and General Rules

Shareholders' meetings shall be presided over by the President of the corporation or, in the President's absence, by any Vice-President of the corporation, or, if no such officer is present, by a chairperson chosen at the meeting by a majority of the voting shares represented in person or by proxy. The Secretary of the corporation or, in the Secretary's absence, an Assistant Secretary, or, if no such officer is present, a person designated by the presiding officer, shall act as Secretary of the meeting. The precedence of, and procedure on, motions and other procedural matters at such meetings shall be governed by Robert's Rules of Order insofar as those rules are not inconsistent with law, the corporation's Articles of Incorporation, or with these Bylaws.

§ 4.237 Conduct of Shareholders' Meetings [Corp. Code § 212(b)(2)]--Order of Business

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form may be used if it is desired that the bylaws specify the order of business at shareholders' meetings. When the order of business is so specified, any business considered out of order without approval of a majority of the shares present will be subject to a "point of order" objection. For discussion of the authority for the bylaws to contain provisions governing the conduct of shareholders' meetings, see Corp. Code § 212(b)(2) and § 4.236[1].

[2] Form

Conduct of Shareholders' Meetings [Corp. Code § 212(b)(2)]--Order of Business

The order of business at all annual meetings, and so far as practicable at special meetings, of the shareholders shall be as follows:

(1) Call to order.

(2) Proof of due notice of the meeting by the Secretary.

(3) Roll call.

(4) Presentation and examination of proxies.

(5) Announcement of a quorum.

(6) Reading, or waiver of reading, and approval of the minutes of the previous meeting.

(7) Announcements.

(8) Reports of officers.

(9) Reports of committees.

(10) Election of directors.

(11) Old, or unfinished, business.

(12) New business.

(13) Adjournment.

§ 4.238 Appointment, Compensation, and Tenure of Officers [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(6), 312(a)]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an alternative to Paragraphs 5.01 through 5.03 and 5.13 of the form in § 4.200[2], and in Paragraph 4.01 of the form in § 4.201[2] to designate the corporate officers, their qualifications, selection, tenure, and compensation.

[b] Statutory Authority

The bylaws of a corporation may make provision not in conflict with law or with the articles of incorporation for the appointment, compensation, and tenure of officers [Corp. Code § 212(b)(6)].

[c] Officers Required

A corporation must have a board chairperson or a president or both, a secretary, a chief financial officer and other officers with titles and duties as are stated in the bylaws or determined by the board of directors as necessary to enable it to sign instruments and share certificates [Corp. Code § 312(a); see § 4.200[2], P 5.01, § 4.201[2], P 4.01; see also Corp. Code § 416(a) (officers required to sign share certificates)].

Any number of offices may be held by the same person unless the articles or bylaws provide otherwise [Corp. Code § 312(a)].

[d] Selection and Tenure of Officers

Except as otherwise provided by the articles or bylaws, officers are chosen by and serve at the pleasure of the board, subject to any rights an officer may have under an employment contract with the corporation [Corp. Code § 312(b)].

[e] Resignation

Any officer may resign at any time on written notice to the corporation without prejudice to any rights the corporation may have under any contract to which the officer is a party [Corp. Code § 312(b)].

[2] Form

Appointment, Compensation, and Tenure of Officers [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(6), 312(a)]

Designation of Officers

The corporation shall have _____ [designate, e.g., a President, a Vice-President, a Secretary, and a Chief Financial Officer].

Membership on Board

No officer shall be a member of the Board of Directors.

[OR]

Only duly elected directors may serve as officers of the corporation.

[OR]

Only duly elected directors may serve as _____ [specify titles of officers]; other officers need not be directors.

[OR]

No one shall be eligible for the office of _____ [specify office, e.g., President or Vice-President] who is not a director of the corporation, and any such officer who ceases to be a director shall cease to hold office as _____ [specify office, e.g., President or Vice-President], as well.

Selection and Tenure of Officers

Officers shall be chosen by and serve at the pleasure of the Board of Directors, subject to any rights an officer may have under an employment contract with the corporation. Any person may hold two or more offices, other than the offices of _____ [specify offices, e.g., President and Vice-President].

Compensation

Officers shall receive the salaries and other compensation that is determined from time to time by the Board of Directors.

Resignation

Any officer may resign at any time on written notice to the corporation without prejudice to any rights the corporation may have under any contract to which the officer is a party. [Add, if desired: Resignation from office does not, however, by itself constitute resignation from the Board of Directors.]

§ 4.239 Executive Vice-President [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(6), 312(a)]

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is for use to require that the corporation have an executive vice-president and to specify the duties of that officer. For a discussion of the appointment, compensation, and tenure of officers, see § 4.238[2].

[2] Form

Executive Vice-President [Corp. Code §§ 212(b)(6), 312(a)]

The corporation shall have an Executive Vice-President. The Executive Vice-President shall direct the day-to-day activities of the corporation in accordance with policies and objectives established by the President and the Board of Directors to achieve maximum profitability of operations. The Executive Vice-President shall assist the President in developing policies of the corporation and an organization that will insure that full advantage is taken of the long-range potentialities of the business. In the absence of the President, the Executive Vice-President shall direct and coordinate the activities of the corporation's staffs and operations.

§ 4.241 Prohibition Against Issuance of Fractional Shares [Corp. Code § 407]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a bylaw provision prohibiting the issuance of fractional shares. For alternative provisions authorizing the issuance of fractional shares, see Paragraphs 4.08 and 7.02 of the form in § 4.200[2].

[b] Issuance of Fractional Shares

A corporation may, but is not required to, issue fractions of a share originally or on transfer. If it does not issue fractional shares, the corporation must, in connection with any original issuance of shares do the following:

- Arrange for the disposition of fractional interests by those entitled to them;

- Pay in cash the fair value of fractions of a share (the board's determination of fair value is conclusive, in the absence of fraud) as of the time when those entitled to receive fractions are determined; provided, however, that a corporation may not pay cash for fractional shares if the action would result in the cancellation of more than 10 percent of the outstanding shares of any class; or

- Issue scrip or warrants in registered or bearer form that entitle the holder to receive a certificate for a full share on the surrender of the scrip or warrants aggregating a full share [Corp. Code § 407 (setting forth a separate provision applicable to merger or reorganization agreements)]. The corporation may issue scrip or warrants in registered form as certificated securities or uncertificated securities [Corp. Code § 191.1; see Com. Code § 8102(a)(18) ("uncertificated securities" defined)], or in bearer form as certificated securities [Corp. Code § 407].

A certificate for a fractional share does, but scrip or warrants do not, unless otherwise provided in the scrip or warrants, entitle the holder to exercise voting rights, to receive dividends on them, and to participate in any of the assets of the corporation in the event of liquidation. The board of directors may cause scrip or warrants to be issued subject to the condition that they will become void if not exchanged for certificates representing full shares before a specified date or that the shares for which scrip or warrants are exchangeable may be sold by the corporation and the proceeds distributed to the holder of the scrip or warrants or any other condition that the board may impose [Corp. Code § 407].

The board may cause scrip or warrants to be issued subject to the condition that they will become void if not exchanged for full shares, whether certificated or uncertificated, before the time discussed in the text [Corp. Code § 407].

This form assumes that only certificated securities will be issued by the corporation [see [2], below]. For further discussion of certificated and uncertificated securities, see "Share Certificates--Issuance" and subsequent headings in Ch. 6I, Issuance of Equity Securities.

[2] Form

Prohibition Against Issuance of Fractional Shares [Corp. Code § 407]

The corporation shall not issue fractions of a share either originally or on transfer, but, in connection with any original issuance of shares, shall pay in cash the fair value, as determined by the Board of Directors, of fractions of a share as of the time when those entitled to receive the fractions are determined, provided, however, that the corporation shall not pay cash for fractional shares if that action would result in the cancellation of more than 10 percent of the outstanding shares of any class [or issue scrip or warrants in registered or bearer form that shall entitle the holder to receive a certificate for a full share on the surrender of scrip or warrants aggregating a full share. The board may cause scrip or warrants to be issued subject to the condition that they shall become void if not exchanged for certificates representing full shares before a specified date or that the shares for which scrip or warrants are exchangeable may be sold by the corporation and the proceeds distributed to the holder of the scrip or warrants or any other condition that the Board may impose].

§ 4.242 Issuance of Partly Paid Shares [Corp. Code §§ 409(d), 410(b), 411-413, 418]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form sets forth the terms of the deferred payment for partly paid shares. Alternatively, the the bylaws could prohibit issuance of such shares if issuance is not authorized by the articles of incorporation [see Corp. Code §§ 212(b), 212(b)(1), 204(d)].

Paragraph 7.03 of the form in § 4.200[2] briefly provides that the corporation may issue partly paid shares if the board of directors so determines. Paragraph 7.01(e) of that section sets forth the liability of the subscriber for partly paid shares and Paragraph 7.08(c) provides for the issuance of certificates for such shares. The form in § 4.201[2] contains no express provision authorizing issuance of partly paid shares, but instead simply relies on the authorization contained in Corp. Code § 409(d). Paragraph 6.01 of the form in § 4.201[2], however, does provide for the issuance of certificates for partly paid shares and Paragraph 6.07 provides for the liability of the transferee of partly paid shares "as provided by law."

[b] Issuance of Partly Paid Shares

A corporation may issue the whole or any part of its shares partly paid and subject to call for the remainder of the consideration to be paid for them [Corp. Code § 409(d)]. The consideration must be paid in accordance with the subscription or purchase agreement [Corp. Code § 410(b)].

[c] Share Certificates and Uncertificated Shares

The total amount of the consideration to be paid and that paid for the shares must be stated on the certificate issued to represent them [Corp. Code §§ 409(d), 418(a)(2)]. If it is not, no liability for the unpaid portion of the subscription price is enforceable against a transferee of the shares without actual knowledge of that liability [Corp. Code § 418(b)].

If the corporation issues uncertificated securities [see Corp. Code § 191.1; Com. Code § 8102(a)(18) (definition)] instead of share certificates, the total amount of consideration to be paid and the amount actually paid should be set forth in the initial transaction statement and subsequent written statements for those securities [Corp. Code §§ 409(d), 418]. For a general explanation of the law governing initial transaction statements and uncertificated securities, see the discussion under "Share Certificates--Issuance" and subsequent headings in the Legal Background to Ch. 6I, Issuance of Equity Securities.

[d] Liability of Transferor and Transferee of Partly Paid Shares

A transferee of shares for which the full agreed consideration has not been paid to the issuing corporation, who acquired them in good faith and without knowledge that they were not paid in full or to the extent stated on the certificate representing them, is liable only for the amount shown by the certificate to be unpaid on the shares represented by it until the transferee transfers the shares to one who becomes liable, but the transferor remains personally liable if so provided on the certificate or agreed on in writing. The liability of any holder of the shares who derives title through such a transferee and who is not a party to any fraud affecting the issue of the shares is the same as that of the transferee through whom title is derived [Corp. Code § 411].

Every transferee of partly paid shares who acquired them under a certificate showing the fact of part payment, and every transferee of such shares (other than a transferee who derives title through a holder in good faith without knowledge and who is not a party to any fraud affecting the issue of the shares) who acquired them with actual knowledge that the full agreed consideration had not been paid to the extent stated on the certificate for them, is personally liable to the corporation for installments of the amount unpaid becoming due until the shares are transferred to one who becomes personally liable for them. The transferor, however, remains personally liable if so provided on the certificate or agreed on in writing [Corp. Code § 412]. This is equally applicable to information on initial transaction statements or subsequent written statements when the shares are uncertificated securities [Corp. Code § 412]. For a discussion of uncertificated securities, see "Share Certificates--Issuance" and subsequent headings in the Legal Background to Ch. 6I, Issuance of Equity Securities.

A transferee who acquires shares without knowledge that they are not paid in full or to the extent stated on the certificate representing them (or in the case of uncertificated securities, on the applicable initial transaction statement) is liable only for the amount shown by the certificate or statement to be unpaid on the shares, until the transferee transfers the shares to one who becomes liable [Corp. Code § 411; see Corp. Code § 191.1; Com. Code § 8102(a)(18) ("uncertificated security" defined)].

[e] Liability of Holder of Shares

A person holding shares as pledgee, executor, administrator, guardian, trustee, receiver, or in any representative or fiduciary capacity is not personally liable for any unpaid balance of the subscription price of the shares because the shares are so held, but the estate and funds in the hands of that fiduciary or representative are liable and the shares are subject to sale for the unpaid balance [Corp. Code § 413].

[f] Dividends

On the declaration of any dividend on fully paid shares, the corporation must also declare a dividend on partly paid shares of the same class, but only on the basis of the percentage of the consideration actually paid [Corp. Code § 409(d)].

[2] Form

Issuance of Partly Paid Shares [Corp. Code §§ 409(d), 410(b), 411-413, 418]

The corporation may issue its shares prior to full payment and permit deferred payment arrangements under the following conditions:

(a) Not less than 25 percent of the aggregate price shall be payable immediately in cash;

(b) The balance of the aggregate price shall be payable within one year from the date of sale and, if the portion of the aggregate price that is payable immediately in cash is less than 40 percent of the aggregate price, then that balance shall be payable in equal monthly installments over a period not to exceed one year from date of sale;

(c) The sale shall be pursuant to a subscription agreement setting forth the terms of payment, or the balance of the aggregate price shall be represented by one or more promissory notes;

(d) The securities sold shall be issued in the name of the purchaser, or the purchaser's designee, but shall be retained by the issuer as collateral for the unpaid balance of the aggregate price;

(e) The corporation may not discount or assign the promissory note or notes, or its rights pursuant to the subscription agreement, unless the net cash proceeds to the corporation from the action is equal to not less than the offering price of the securities, after deducting the authorized selling expenses;

(f) The certificates shall state the total amount of the consideration to be paid for the shares, the amount paid, and the terms of payment; and

(g) As a condition of the transfer on the books of the corporation of those shares, all installments of the purchase or subscription price shall be paid before the transfer.

§ 4.243 Employees' Stock Purchase Plan [Corp. Code §§ 207(f), 408]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a bylaw provision authorizing an employee stock purchase plan. It is an alternative to Paragraph 7.06 of the form in § 4.200[2]. The articles of incorporation [see Corp. Code § 204(d)] or the bylaws [see Corp. Code § 212(b)(1)] may provide for stock purchase or option plans. In addition, since corporations have the statutory power to adopt such plans subject to any limitations in their articles [Corp. Code §§ 207(f), 408], plans may be established even if they are not mentioned in either the articles or the bylaws.

For a statutory incentive stock option plan [see I.R.C. § 422], and more detailed discussion of that type of plan, see Ch. 6I, Issuance of Equity Securities, § 6I.240 et seq.

[b] Power of Corporation to Provide Plan

A corporation, subject to any limitations contained in its articles of incorporation and to compliance with other provisions of the General Corporation Law and any other applicable laws, has power to establish and carry out share purchase and share option plans for any or all of its directors, officers, and employees, or the directors, officers, and employees of its parent corporation or any of its subsidiary [see Corp. Code § 189 (defining "subsidiary")] or affiliated [see Corp. Code § 150 (defining "affiliated")] corporations [Corp. Code § 207(f)].

A stock purchase or option plan may provide for the issue of unissued stock and the sale of that stock or of previously issued stock to the employees or directors of the corporation, its parent, or its subsidiaries. The plan may provide for the consideration to be paid and for the payment of that consideration in installments. It may also permit the corporation to aid the buyers in making payment by compensation for services rendered, promissory notes, or otherwise [Corp. Code § 408(a)].

The plan or agreement may include the fixing of eligibility for participation; the class and price of shares to be issued or sold under the plan or agreement; the number of shares that may be subscribed for; the method of payment; the reservation of title until full payment; the effect of the termination of employment; an option or obligation on the part of the corporation to repurchase the shares on termination of employment, subject to Corp. Code §§ 500-511 (governing reacquisition of shares); restrictions on transfer of the shares; and the time limits of and termination of the plan [Corp. Code § 408(b); see, e.g., Barton v. Elexsys International Inc. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1182, 1188, 1189, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 212 (terminated executive sued for breach of contract and fraud after former employer refused to allow exercise of stock options one year after termination; court held that stock option agreements provided that options would not vest after termination, had to be exercised within 30 days of termination or ceased to be exercisable, and were not altered by severance agreement)].

The provisions of the Labor Code requiring that any property put up by an employee as part of an employment contract be deemed a bond, and under which it is illegal to make investments in a business and to sell stock in a business in connection with obtaining employment in that business [see Lab. Code §§ 406, 407], are inapplicable to shares issued by any foreign or domestic corporation to participants in a stock purchase or option plan or, in any transaction in connection with securing employment, to a person who is or is about to become an officer of the corporation or of its parent or subsidiary [Corp. Code § 408(c)].

[c] Corporations Commissioner's Regulations

If an issuer attempts to qualify the offer or sale of stock options by permit [see Corp. Code § 25113; see Ch. 6H, Qualification of Securities], the Corporations Commissioner may refuse to issue a permit unless he or she finds the proposed issuance of the securities to be fair, just, and equitable [Corp. Code § 25140(b)]. A permit may not be required if the proposed issuance of securities under a plan or agreement is exempt under Corp. Code 25102(o) and the required notice is filed with the Commissioner of Corporations within the statutory time limit or within 15 days after the Commissioner's demand, together with the applicable fee [see Corp. Code 25102(o)]. The standards relating to a presumption of fairness require a stock option plan to meet criteria regarding number of shares; persons eligible; exercise price, period, and rights; nontransferability; adjustment on stock split, stock dividend, recapitalization, combination, or reclassification; termination; shareholder approval; disclosure to employees; repurchase rights and voting rights [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.41; see also 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.1 (voting rights requirements)]. Similar requirements apply to employee stock purchase plans [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.42].

A stock option plan must also provide for annual financial statements regarding the issuer to be given to option holders. However, these financial statements need not comply with the requirements of 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.613. Further, the annual financial statement requirement does not apply when the issuance of stock is limited to key employees whose duties in connection with the issuer ensure them access to equivalent information [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.46].

The total number of shares called for by employee stock purchase, stock option, and stock bonus plans must not exceed 30 percent of the then-outstanding shares of the issuer, excluding shares subject to promotional waivers, unless a percentage higher than 30 percent is approved by at least two-thirds of the outstanding shares entitled to vote [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.45]. This limitation is determined without regard to shares represented by pro rata rights issued to shareholders [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.40], shares called for by warrants issued to debt or equity purchasers [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 260.140.43, 260.140.44], or to shares sold to employees, directors, or consultants [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.42], provided the stock purchase plan provides that all shares will have a purchase price of 100 percent of the stock's fair value, either at the time the person is granted the right to purchase shares or at the time the purchase is consummated [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.45]. This limitation is deemed satisfied when the plan or agreement provides that at no time may the total number of securities issuable on the exercise of all outstanding options and the total number of shares provided for under the stock bonus or similar arrangement exceed the applicable percentage limitation based on the issuer's securities that are outstanding at the time the calculation is made [Cal. Code

Reg. § 260.140.45]. For further discussion, see Ch. 6I, Issuance of Equity Securities, § 6I.240.

[d] Tax Treatment

Statutory "incentive stock options" receive special tax treatment [see I.R.C. § 422(a)]. For an example and discussion of an incentive stock option, see § 85.383 in Ch. 85, Employment Agreements. Nonstatutory stock options, however, are subject to the general tax rules for property transferred in connection with employment [see I.R.C. § 83; see also §§ 85.384, 85.385 in Ch. 85, Employment Agreements].

Employees' Stock Purchase Plan [Corp. Code §§ 207(f), 408]

The corporation, on terms and conditions authorized in these Bylaws, may establish and operate a stock purchase plan, or plans, providing for the issue and sale, or for the granting of options for the purchase, of its unissued shares, or of issued shares purchased or to be purchased or acquired, to employees or directors of the corporation or of any subsidiary or parent of the corporation or to a trustee on their behalf. The plan may specify the consideration for the payment of those shares in installments, or at one time, and for aiding any eligible persons in paying for those shares by compensation or services rendered, promissory notes, or otherwise. Any plan, before becoming effective, must be approved or authorized by the Board of Directors of the corporation and at least 12 months thereafter by vote of the shareholders.

A plan may include, among other things, provisions determining or providing for the determination by the Board of Directors, or any committee designated by the Board of Directors, of:

- Eligibility of directors and employees to participate.
- The number and class of shares that may be subscribed for or for which options may be granted under the plan.
- The time and method of payment for those shares.
- The price or prices at which the shares shall be issued or sold.
- Whether or not title to the shares shall be reserved to the corporation until fully paid for.
- The effect of the death of a director or employee participating in the plan, or the termination of a participating person's employment, including whether there shall be any option or obligation on the part of the corporation to repurchase the shares.
- Restrictions, if any, upon the transfer of the shares, and the time limits and termination of the plan.
- Termination, continuation, or adjustments of the rights of participating directors and employees on the happening of specified contingencies, including increase or decrease in the number of issued shares of the class covered by the plan without receipt of consideration by the corporation or any exchange of shares of that class for stock or securities of another corporation pursuant to a reorganization or merger, consolidation or dissolution of the corporation.
- Amendment, termination, interpretation, and administration of the plan by the Board of Directors or any committee designated by the Board of Directors.

- Any other matters, not in conflict with the law or the Articles of Incorporation, that may be included in the plan.

§ 4.244 Stock Transfer Restrictions [Corp. Code §§ 204(b), 212(b)(1)]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is for use if the corporation and other shareholders are to have the right of first refusal before a shareholder may sell or otherwise dispose of his or her shares to a third person. For an alternative provision, see § 4.245.

A restriction on the transfer of shares may be limited to sales only and not to other kinds of voluntary transfers, such as transfer by gift, will, or division of property on dissolution of marriage, or to transfers by operation of law. Careful consideration should be given before limiting the restriction, since any kind of transfer may result in unwanted persons becoming shareholders. This is also true of hypothecation; a foreclosure of the security interest would result in the transfer of the shares.

In the form the price to be paid for the shares is that which the shareholder and the proposed purchaser have in good faith agreed on or, if there is no proposed purchase, the price fixed by the shareholder. In the form in § 4.245[2], the price to be paid by the corporation and shareholders is to be fixed by a formula or by arbitration.

[b] Statutory Authority

The bylaws of a corporation may impose reasonable restrictions on the right to transfer or hypothecate shares of any class or classes, although no restriction on shares issued prior to the adoption of the restriction is binding unless the holders of those shares voted in favor of it [Corp. Code §§ 204(b), 212(b)(1)].

[c] Kinds of Restrictions

The following are the common types of restrictions imposed on transferability of shares:

- A right of the corporation to purchase the shares in preference to others and, because of the statutory restrictions on purchases by a corporation of its own shares [see Corp. Code §§ 166, 500-510], a secondary right to purchase the shares in the other shareholders if the corporation fails to exercise its right in whole or in part.

- A right of the other shareholders to purchase the shares in preference to others.

- Various combinations of rights in favor of both the corporation and the other shareholders.

- Making the transfer subject to the approval or consent of the directors or other shareholders.

- A limitation on the classes of persons to whom a transfer can be made.

- Reserving a lien on shares to secure payment of debts due to the corporation.

A stock transfer restriction giving the corporation or other shareholders the right to purchase the shares may provide for purchase at a fixed price, such as book value. "Book value" is the value of the net assets of the corporation as shown by the corporate books divided by the number of shares outstanding [see Brown v. Halbert (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 252, 259, 76 Cal. Rptr. 781] . If that term is used in the bylaws, it should be defined [see Piedmont Publishing Co. v. Rogers (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 171, 175, 183-188, 14 Cal. Rptr. 133 (discussing various meanings of the term "book value")]. Alternatively, the restriction may provide for a purchase price to be determined by a formula or appraisal [see Piedmont Publishing Co. v. Rogers (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 171, 175-176, 14 Cal. Rptr. 133 ; see also [d], below; § 4.245]. Or, the restriction may merely tprovide, as in this form, that the corporation or other shareholders are to have a right of first refusal to purchase the shares at the price reached in good faith between the shareholder and the prospective purchaser or, if there is no prospective purchaser, at the price fixed by the shareholder. The restriction could also require either the corporation, subject to the provisions of Corp. Code §§ 166 and 500-510, relating to distributions to shareholders, or the other shareholders to purchase the shares at the price fixed, determined, or reached in good faith between the shareholder and the prospective purchaser, or at a fixed price, or at a price determined by formula.

The provisions usually contained in the stock transfer restriction if the corporation or the other shareholders are to be given the right of first refusal are the following:

- Notice to the corporation of the shareholder's intent to sell.

- Determination of the price to be paid for the shares.

- Right of the corporation or other shareholders to offer to purchase their pro rata portion of the shares.

- Right of the other shareholders, if the corporation offers to purchase only a portion of the shares, to offer to purchase the remaining shares.

- Limitation on the amount of shares to be purchased by each shareholder.

- Release of the restriction on sale or transfer if less than all the shares to be sold are offered to be purchased by the corporation and the other shareholders.

[d] Enforceability of Restrictions

Restrictions on the right to transfer or hypothecate shares are recognized as essential to the successful operation of close or closely held corporations in California and are enforceable as long as they do not constitute an unreasonably restrictive curtailment of the right of alienation, or otherwise unreasonably deprive shareholders of substantial rights [Tu-Vu Drive-In Corp. v. Ashkins (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 283, 287]. Restrictions reserving the right of first refusal in other shareholders or the corporation are regarded as reasonable, since they merely limit the choice of transferees while insuring to the selling shareholder the price and terms equal to those offered by outsiders [Sanchez v. Centro Mexicano of Sacramento (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 756, 759, 81 Cal. Rptr. 875] .

In determining whether a right of first refusal has been triggered, a court must first carefully consider the contract terms to determine the conditions necessary to invoke the right. If the right of first refusal is conditioned on receipt of a bona fide third-party offer to buy the property, then the right will not be triggered by the mere conveyance of that property to a third party. Only when the conveyance is marked by arms-length dealing and a change in control of the property may such a right be exercised. Generally speaking, it is the concurrence of both an arms-length transaction and a change in control of the property that characterizes a bona fide sale. The absence of the first factor, as in the case of a gift, or of the second factor, as in the case of a transfer between entities owned and controlled by the same individuals, usually indicates that there was no sale, or no bona fide offer for sale, within the meaning of the typical right of first refusal [Hartzheim v. Valley Land & Cattle Co. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 383, 393, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 815] .

In addition, the court must look through the formalities of the transaction and determine its true nature. Courts will not tolerate schemes designed to avoid a contractual right; for example, a landlord cannot avoid a right of first refusal to purchase the demised property by accepting an offer to purchase a larger parcel that includes the portion subject to the right. On the other hand, legitimate business or personal reasons, untainted by an intent to avoid a contractual preemptive right, will weigh in favor of finding that the right was not triggered by the transaction [Hartzheim v. Valley Land & Cattle Co. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 383, 393, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 815] .

[e] Restrictions of Corporations Commissioner

An open qualification [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.001(f) (definition)] will not be approved if the securities are subject to a restriction on transfer that is imposed by the issuer's charter documents, indenture agreements, or other instruments or agreements under which the securities are to be issued [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.8(a)].

However, a limited offering [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.001(e) (definition)] may be approved even though the securities are subject to transfer restrictions if the restrictions do not unfairly prejudice the opportunity of the shareholders to receive the fair value of the securities [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.8(b); see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.50]. Provisions are presumptively reasonable when there is no third-party offeror and the holder wishes to sell, if the provisions base the price at which the issuer or other holder may purchase the securities on either (1) an independent appraised value or (2) the book value (unless the business is one for which book value is not a significant indication of value) [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.8(b)(1)].

Rights of first refusal in favor of the issuer or other holder are presumptively reasonable in the following situations [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.8(b)(2)]:

- They apply only if there is a bona fide third-party offeror and the selling holder wishes to sell the securities;

- The right of first refusal requires the issuer or other holder to make its election to purchase the securities subject to the right of refusal, if at all, by giving notice of election no more than 30 days after receipt of notice of the right of first refusal; and

- On exercise of the right, the issuer or other holder exercising the right of first refusal must purchase all (but not less than all, unless the selling holder consents) of the offered securities on the same terms offered by the bona fide third-party offeror within 60 days after receipt of the notice of election, unless a longer period is offered by the bona fide third-party offeror.

Provisions are not presumptively reasonable in the following situations [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.8(b)(3); see 10 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 260.140.41, 260.140.42]:

- They absolutely prohibit the transfer of securities,
- They permit transfer only on the consent of the issuer or other holder, or
- They give an option to the issuer or the other holder to purchase, regardless of the desire of the selling holder to sell, and will be permitted only when justified by the issuer, except as otherwise permitted.

Provisions giving an issuer the right to repurchase securities upon termination of employment are presumptively reasonable if the repurchase price [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.8(b)(4)]:

- Is not less than the fair value of the securities to be repurchased on the date of termination of employment, and the right to repurchase will be exercised for cash or cancellation of purchase money indebtedness for the securities within six months of termination of employment (or in the case of securities issued upon exercise of options after the date of termination, within six months after the date of exercise), and the right terminates when the issuer's securities become publicly traded; or
- Is at the original purchase price, provided that (1) the right to repurchase at the original price lapses at the rate of at least 20 percent of the securities per year over five years from the date the option is granted (without respect to the date the option was exercised or became exercisable), and (2) the right to repurchase must be exercised for cash or cancellation of purchase money indebtedness for the securities within six months of termination of employment (or in the case of securities issued upon exercise of options after the date of termination, within six months after the date of the exercise).

In addition, the securities held by an officer, director, general partner, trustee (when the issuer is a business trust), manager, advisor, or consultant of the issuer, its parents, its majority-owned subsidiaries or majority-owned subsidiaries of the issuer's parents, or an affiliate of the issuer, may be subject to additional or greater restrictions [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.8].

If the issuance of shares is subject to qualifications by permit from the Commissioner, the application for qualification must include, as exhibits, any "shareholders' agreement" between members of a "close corporation" [see Corp. Code §§ 158, 186], and any agreements by or among shareholders that materially affect, among other things, transfer restrictions [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.113]. Therefore, the Commissioner's standards of fairness will have to be met with regard to transfer restrictions appearing in the articles, bylaws, or a shareholders' agreement, all of which are "charter documents" [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.001(a)], at least when shares must be qualified. It is questionable whether the standards would apply to restrictions appearing in other forms of private agreements, because 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.8 only reaches restrictions imposed by the issuer's charter documents, indenture agreements or other instruments or agreements under which the securities are to be issued. Only a strained interpretation of the latter phrase would include private agreements restricting transfer, that is, those to which the corporation is not a party. Thus, although an applicant for a permit to issue securities might have no objection to the Commissioner's granting only a limited qualification, there could be well-founded objection to any attempt by the Commissioner to regulate the terms of a private agreement pursuant to the standards set forth in 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.8.

[f] Share Certificates

This form assumes that the corporation has elected to issue stock certificates rather than utilize an electronic system of issuance, recordation and transfer [see Corp. Code § 416(b)]. When a transfer restriction is imposed on certificated securities, the restriction must be noted conspicuously on the security certificate [Com. Code 8204(1)]. For a general discussion of certificated and uncertificated securities, see "Share Certificates--Issuance" and subsequent headings in the Legal Background to Ch. 6I, Issuance of Equity Securities.

If the shares are classified or if any class of shares has two or more series, the share certificate must contain either a statement of the rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions granted or imposed [Corp. Code § 417(a)]; a summary of those provisions with a reference to the articles establishing them [Corp. Code § 417(b)]; or a statement setting forth the office or agency of the corporation from which shareholders can obtain a complete statement of any rights and restrictions [Corp. Code § 417(c)]. In all cases in which restrictions on transfer are imposed, a conspicuous statement of the fact that the shares are subject to restriction on transfer must appear on the certificate [Corp. Code § 418(a)(1)]. Unless so stated, no restriction on transfer is enforceable against a transferee (including a purchaser from the corporation) of the shares without actual knowledge of the restriction [Corp. Code § 418(b); Com. Code § 8204(1)].

If the corporation issues uncertificated securities [see Corp. Code § 191.1; Com. Code § 8102(a)(18) (definition)], the information normally required to appear on share certificates must appear on the initial transaction statement and written statements instead [Corp. Code §§ 417, 418].

In the case of a close corporation [see Corp. Code § 158], all certificates representing shares of the corporation must contain, in addition to any other statements required by Corp. Code § 418, this conspicuous legend on their face: "This corporation is a close corporation. The number of holders of record of its shares of all classes cannot exceed _____ [a number not in excess of 35]. Any attempted voluntary inter vivos transfer that would violate this requirement is void. Refer to the articles, bylaws and any agreements on file with the secretary of the corporation for further restrictions" [Corp. Code § 418(c)]. If the certificate contains this legend, any attempted voluntary inter vivos transfer of the shares that would result in the number of holders of record of shares exceeding the maximum number specified in the articles is void [Corp. Code § 418(d)].

[2] Form

Stock Transfer Restrictions [Corp. Code §§ 204(b), 212(b)(1)]

Void Transfers

(a) No holder of shares of the corporation shall sell or otherwise dispose of his or her shares or any right or interest in them without first offering to sell them to the corporation and the other shareholders in the manner set forth in this article _____[number]. Any sale or other disposition of the shares in violation of the provisions of this Section _____ shall be null and void.

Notice of Intent to Sell

(b) Any shareholder desiring to sell or otherwise dispose of all or any part of his or her shares in the corporation or of an interest in them shall give written notice of that fact to the corporation. The notice must be given by registered or certified mail, return receipt requested, addressed to the Secretary of the corporation at the corporation's principal executive office or delivered in person to the Secretary of the corporation. The notice must designate the number of shares to be sold, the name of the proposed purchaser, if any, the price per share agreed on in good faith between the shareholder and the proposed purchaser, if any, and the total amount of the sales price, or if there is no proposed purchaser the price per share at which the shareholder offers to sell and the total amount of the sales price, and the terms on which the shareholder intends to make the sale.

Offer by Corporation

(c) Within _____ [e.g., 30 days] after receipt by the corporation of the notice to the Secretary, if the corporation desires to purchase all of the shares, it must mail or deliver to the offering shareholder a written offer to purchase the shares at the price and on the terms stated in the notice to the Secretary.

Notification to Shareholders

(d) In the event that the corporation elects within the _____ [e.g., 30-day] period mentioned above to purchase none or less than all of the shares so offered, the Secretary shall, at the termination of that _____-day period, mail or deliver to each of the other shareholders of record a notification specifying the number of shares remaining to be sold, the price per share, the terms on which the offering shareholder intends to make the sale, and the name of the proposed purchaser, if any, or, if none, a statement of that fact. This notification may be delivered to the shareholders personally or may be mailed to the last known addresses of the shareholders, as the same may appear on the books of the corporation.

Offer by Shareholders

(e) Within _____ [e.g., 20 days] after the mailing or delivering of the notification to the other shareholders, any such shareholder or shareholders desiring to purchase any part or all of the shares referred to in the notification shall deliver by mail or otherwise to the Secretary of the corporation a written offer or offers to purchase a specified number of the shares at the price and on the terms stated in the notification.

Pro Rata Allocation of Shares

(f) If the total number of shares specified in the offers from the shareholders exceeds the number of shares referred to in the notification, the shares to be sold shall be allocated among the offering shareholders pro rata to the number of shares owned by each shareholder.

Purchase in Excess of Pro Rata Amount

(g) If all the shares referred to in the notification are not disposed of under apportionment provided in paragraph (f) of this Section _____, each shareholder desiring to purchase shares in a number in excess of his or her pro rata share, as provided above, shall be entitled to purchase the proportion of the shares that remain undisposed of as the total number of shares that he or she holds bears to the total number of shares held by all the shareholders desiring to purchase shares in excess of those to which they are entitled under the apportionment, or all of the shares if there is no other shareholder desiring to purchase shares in excess of those to which he or she is entitled under the apportionment provided for above.

Release of Restriction

(h) Unless all of the offered shares have been purchased by the corporation or by the shareholders or by both within a period of _____ [e.g., 60 days] after the mailing or delivery of the notice to the Secretary required by paragraph (b) of this Section _____, all the offered shares shall be released from the restrictions on sale or other disposition, provided, however, that the shares shall be released solely for the purpose of the proposed sale or other disposition in the total amount specified and at the price specified in the notice to the Secretary, or at a greater price than that specified, and provided further that the sale or other disposition be completed within _____ [e.g., 30 days] after the _____ [e.g., 60-day] period referred to above. After completion of the sale or other disposition, or after the expiration of the _____ [e.g., 30 days] within which the sale or disposition must be completed, whichever first occurs, the shares shall again be and remain subject to the restrictions on sale or other disposition imposed by this Section.

Transfer Restrictions Endorsed on Share Certificates

(i) There shall appear on all share certificates a statement of the fact that the shares are subject to restrictions on transfer [if shares are classified or issued in series add: and a statement of the restrictions imposed on each class or series of shares authorized to be issued and the holders of those shares].

Restrictions Binding on Heirs, Successors, and Permitted Assigns

(j) All the terms, conditions, and provisions of this Section _____ restricting the sale or other disposition of shares of the corporation or of an interest in them shall apply to and bind the heirs, successors, or assigns of each of the owners or holders of any of the shares.

Sale or Transfer of Shares With Shareholders' Written Assent

(k) Notwithstanding anything in these Bylaws to the contrary, any or all of the shares of the corporation may be sold, transferred, or otherwise disposed of, or hypothecated without restriction, provided written assent or approval to the proposed sale, transfer, other disposition, or hypothecation is obtained and signed by the holders of not less than all of the shares of this corporation entitled to vote. All consents or approvals shall be filed with the Secretary of the corporation.

§ 4.245 Restriction on Transfer of Shares [Corp. Code §§ 204(b), 212(b)(1)]--Price of Shares Determined by Formula or Arbitration

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This provision may be inserted in a bylaw restricting transfer of shares when it is desirable to fix the price of the shares at the fair market value of the net assets of the corporation [see Piedmont Publishing Co. v. Rogers (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 171, 183-188, 14 Cal. Rptr. 133] .

[2] FORM

Restriction on Transfer of Shares [Corp. Code §§ 204(b), 212(b)(1)]--Price of Shares Determined by Formula or Arbitration

In the event any shareholder proposes to sell or otherwise dispose of all or any part of his or her shares, he or she shall sign and deliver to the corporation a written notice stating his or her desire to sell and dispose of the designated number of shares. The shareholder and the corporation shall then fix a price per share computed by determining the fair market value of the net assets of the corporation (excluding "goodwill") on the date of the notice, and multiplying the resulting figure by a fraction, the numerator of which shall be one and the denominator of which shall be the number of common shares of the corporation issued and outstanding as of the date of the notice. In the event that the shareholder and the corporation cannot agree on the price per share, computed in this manner, the shareholder and the corporation shall each appoint an independent arbitrator. If either the shareholder or the corporation fails to appoint an arbitrator, the arbitrator appointed by the other shall have power to act alone. The arbitrators or arbitrator thus selected shall determine the price per share computed, and their or his or her decision shall, in the absence of fraud or mistake, be final and conclusive on the parties; in the event the two arbitrators cannot agree on the price per share, the two arbitrators shall appoint a third arbitrator. The third arbitrator shall receive the advice and counsel of the two previously appointed arbitrators, but the decision of the third arbitrator acting alone, as to the price per share computed as described above, shall, in the absence of fraud or mistake, be final, binding, and conclusive on the parties.

§ 4.246 Waiver of Annual Report to Shareholders [Corp. Code § 1501]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a bylaw provision waiving the requirement of an annual report. It is an alternative to Paragraph 9.07 of the form in § 4.200[2], and Paragraph 7.03 of the form in § 4.201[2]. Corp. Code § 2200 imposes a civil penalty when a corporation neglects, fails, or refuses to prepare the financial statements required by the General Corporation Law. In addition, Corp. Code § 2254-2256 impose criminal penalties for false or fraudulent reports or accounts.

[b] When Annual Report Is to Be Sent

Except in certain cases when the requirements may be waived [see [d], below], the board of directors must cause an annual report to be sent to the shareholders not later than 120 days after the close of the fiscal year and at least 15 days before the annual meeting of shareholders to be held during the next fiscal year [Corp. Code § 1501(a)(1), (2)]. If third-class rather than first-class mail is used to send the annual report, it must be sent 35 days before the annual meeting. The report and any accompanying material may also be sent by electronic transmission. [Corp. Code § 1501(a)(2); see Corp. Code § 20 (electronic transmission)].

A corporation that is registered under Section 12 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 [see 15 U.S.C. § 78l] may satisfy the delivery requirement by posting its annual report on an Internet website and providing its shareholders with written notice of the availability of the report [see Corp. Code § 1501(a)(4); see also 17 C.F.R. § 240.14a-16].

[c] Contents of Report

The annual report must contain a balance sheet as of the end of the fiscal year and an income statement and statement of cashflows for the fiscal year, accompanied by any report on those statements of independent accountants [see Corp.

Code § 115 (defining "independent accountant")] or, if there is no such report, the certificate of an authorized officer of the corporation that those statements were prepared without audit from the books and records of the corporation [Corp. Code § 1501(a)(1)].

In addition to the above, the annual report of any corporation having 100 or more holders of record of its shares (determined as provided in Corp. Code § 605) and having no class of securities registered under Section 13 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, or exempted from the registration by Section 12(g)(2) of that Act, must also briefly describe the following:

- Any transaction (excluding compensation of officers and directors) during the previous fiscal year involving an amount in excess of $40,000 (other than contracts let at competitive bid or services rendered at prices regulated by law) to which the corporation or its parent [see Corp. Code § 175 (defining "parent")] or subsidiary [see Corp. Code § 189 (defining "subsidiary")] was a party and in which any director or officer of the corporation or of a subsidiary or (if known to the corporation or its parent or subsidiary) any holder of more than 10 percent of the outstanding voting shares of the corporation had a direct or indirect material interest, naming the person and stating the person's relationship to the corporation, the nature of the person's interest in the transaction, and, where practicable, the amount of the interest; provided that in the case of a transaction with a partnership of which the person is a partner, only the interest of the partnership need be stated; and provided, further, that no report need be made in the case of transactions approved by the shareholders [see Corp. Code § 153 (defining "approved by the shareholders")] under Corp. Code § 310(a) [Corp. Code § 1501(b)(1)]. This applies to transactions approved by the shareholders, rather than only to transactions approved by the shareholders under Corp. Code § 310(a) as stated in the text [see Corp. Code § 1501(b)(1)].

- The amount and circumstances of any indemnification or advances aggregating more than $10,000 paid during the fiscal year to any officer or director of the corporation pursuant to Corp. Code § 317; provided that no report need be made in the case of indemnification approved by the shareholders under Corp. Code § 317(e)(3) [Corp. Code § 1501(b)(2)].

[d] Waiver of Report

A corporation with less than 100 holders of record of its shares (determined as provided in Corp. Code § 605) may in its bylaws expressly waive the requirement of an annual report [Corp. Code § 1501(a)(1)].

[2] Form

Waiver of Annual Report to Shareholders [Corp. Code § 1501]

The requirement for an annual report to shareholders as set forth in Section 1501 of the California Corporations Code is expressly waived, but nothing in these bylaws shall be construed as prohibiting the Board of Directors from issuing reports, or construed as affecting the rights of shareholders to obtain special financial statements as provided in Section 1501(c), (d) of the California Corporations Code.

§ 4.247 Corporate Seal [Corp. Code § 207(a)]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an alternative to Paragraph 9.10 of the form in § 4.200[2], and paragraph (b)(1) of the form in § 4.216. A provision authorizing or requiring the board of directors to adopt a corporate seal or requiring the board to adopt a seal in a specified form and design may be included in the articles of incorporation [see Corp. Code § 204(d)] or in the bylaws [see Corp. Code § 212(b)(1)]. Since a corporation has statutory power to adopt a seal [see [2], below], however, it may do so although neither the articles nor the bylaws authorize it.

[b] Definition and Use of "Seal"

A seal is a particular sign, made to attest, in the most formal manner, to the execution of an instrument [Code Civ. Proc. § 1930]. Private writings are either sealed or unsealed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1929]. In California, however, there is no difference in legal effect between sealed and unsealed writings. Hence, a writing under seal may be subsequently changed or altogether discharged by another writing not under seal [Code Civ. Proc. § 1932]. If a corporate seal is used, it may be affixed to an instrument by a mere impression on the paper or other material on which the instrument is written [Civ. Code § 1628].

[c] Power of Corporation to Adopt Seal

A corporation, subject to any limitations contained in its articles of incorporation and to compliance with other provisions of the General Corporation Law and any other applicable laws, is expressly authorized to adopt, use, and alter at will a corporate seal, although failure to affix a seal does not affect the validity of any instrument [Corp. Code § 207(a); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1932].

[2] Form

Corporate Seal [Corp. Code § 207(a)]

The Board of Directors may provide a suitable seal for the corporation, which shall be in circular form and shall contain the following inscription _____ [state inscription]. When authorized by the Board of Directors, a duplicate of the corporate seal may be kept and used by any officer or person whom the Board of Directors may designate.

§ 4.248 Limitations on Amendment of Bylaws [Corp. Code §§ 204(a), 211]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is for use in addition to Paragraph 10.03 of the form in § 4.200[2], and Paragraph 8.01 of the form in § 4.201[2], if it is desired to limit the board's power to adopt, amend, or repeal bylaws.

[b] Limitations on Amendment

Subject to Corp. Code § 204(a)(5) (authorizing the articles of incorporation to set forth a provision requiring, with specified exceptions, the vote of a larger proportion of all of the shares of any class or series or of a larger proportion or of all of the directors for corporate action than is otherwise required by the General Corporation Law) either the articles or the bylaws may restrict or eliminate the power of the board of directors to adopt, amend, or repeal any or all bylaws [Corp. Code § 211]. Moreover, bylaws themselves may require for all or any actions by the board the affirmative vote of a majority of the authorized number of directors [Corp. Code § 204(a)]. This latter provision would appear to apply to the adoption, amendment, or repeal of bylaws, as well as to other board actions.

[2] Form

Limitations on Amendment of Bylaws [Corp. Code §§ 204(a), 211]

The Board of Directors shall have no power to amend or repeal the bylaws of the corporation.

[OR]

The Board of Directors shall have no power to amend or repeal any bylaw adopted by the shareholders.

[OR]

Any amendment or repeal of these bylaws by the Board of Directors shall be effected only by the affirmative vote of a majority of the authorized number of directors.

§ 4.249 Loans to or Guarantees of Obligations of Officers or Directors [Corp. Code § 315(b)]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a bylaw provision authorizing the board of directors to approve a loan to or guarantee the obligation of an officer of the corporation. This provision becomes operative only when the corporation has outstanding shares held of record by 100 or more persons on the date on which the directors approve the loan or guarantee [see Corp. Code § 315(b)]. It does not apply to employee stock purchase or stock option plans [Corp. Code § 315(f)(1); see Corp. Code § 408], depository institutions [Corp. Code § 315(f)(2); see 12 U.S.C. § 3201(1)], or to loans made pursuant to any statute regulating special classes of corporations [Corp. Code § 315(f)(3)].

[b] Authority for Loans and Guarantees

In general, a corporation may not loan money or property to, or guarantee the obligation of, any director or officer of the corporation or its parent unless the transaction (or an employee benefit plan authorizing the transaction) is approved by a majority of shareholders entitled to act on the matter [see Corp. Code § 315(a)]. "Approval by a majority entitled to act" means either (1) written consent of a majority of the outstanding shares, without counting any shares owned by interested officers or directors, (2) the affirmative vote of a majority of the shares present and voting at a meeting at which a quorum is present, without counting any shares owned by interested officers or directors, or (3) the unanimous vote or written consent of the shareholders. If the corporation has more than one class or series of shares outstanding, only those shareholders entitled under the articles to vote on all matters or on loans to directors and officers are considered entitled to act [Corp. Code § 315(g)].

However, the board of directors alone may approve the loan or guarantee if the corporation has the requisite number of shareholders on the day the transaction is approved by the board and has a bylaw such as the one set forth in this form (or an employee benefit plan authorizing loans or guarantees to officers). If the bylaws include this provision, and the board determines that the loan, guarantee, or employee benefit plan may reasonably be expected to benefit the corporation, it may approve the transaction by a vote sufficient to do so, without counting the vote of any interested directors. Before the bylaw can become effective, it must be approved by a majority of the outstanding shares entitled to vote [Corp. Code § 315(b); see Corp. Code § 152].

[c] Transactions Secured by Corporate Shares

A corporation may not make a loan or guarantee on the security of its shares or those of its parent if the corporation's recourse in the event of default is limited to the security for the loan or guaranty. The loan must either be otherwise adequately secured or approved by a majority of the shareholders entitled to act on the matter [Corp. Code § 315(c)]. For the definition of "approval by the majority," see [b], above.

[d] Excepted Transactions

Advances and life insurance premiums are excepted from the general rule discussed in [b], above. A corporation may advance money to a director or officer of the corporation or of its parent for expenses it reasonably anticipates will be incurred in the performance of that person's duties, provided that in the absence of the advance the person would be entitled to reimbursement [see Corp. Code § 315(d)]. Similarly, the restrictions stated in the general rule do not apply to the payment of premiums on life insurance covering a director or officer if repayment to the corporation of the amount paid is secured by the proceeds of the policy and its cash surrender value [see Corp. Code § 315(e)].

[2] Form

Loans to or Guarantees of Obligations of Officers or Directors [Corp. Code § 315(b)]
Loans or Guarantees

The Board of Directors alone may approve loans to or guarantees of the obligations of an officer of the Corporation, whether or not that officer is a Director of the Corporation, without counting the vote of any interested Director or Directors, if the Board of Directors determines that the loan or guarantee may reasonably be expected to benefit the Corporation and if, on the date of approval, the Corporation has outstanding shares held of record by 100 or more persons.

§ 4.260 Resolution of Board of Directors Adopting Bylaws [Corp. Code § 211]--Long Form

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is for use by the board of directors to adopt the initial bylaws of the corporation. For written consents to the adoption of the bylaws by board approval without a meeting, see §§ 4.264 and 4.265. For additional forms, see Ch. 5, Directors' Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions . For a certificate of adoption, see § 4.262. While there is no requirement that the copy of the bylaws maintained by the corporation in its minute book be certified [see Corp. Code § 213], the better practice is to have the secretary execute and attach a certificate to them. The certificate ordinarily will indicate the manner and date of adoption.

[b] Adoption by Directors

Bylaws may be adopted either by approval of the outstanding shares, as that term is defined in Corp. Code § 152, or, unless otherwise provided in the articles or bylaws, by approval of the board of directors, except as provided in Corp. Code § 212, relating to the number of directors. The power of the board to adopt bylaws may be restricted or eliminated by the articles of incorporation or by the bylaws [Corp. Code § 211; see Boericke v. Weise (1945) 68 Cal. App. 2d 407, 415, 156 P.2d 781 (construing a predecessor statute)]. Seldom, if ever, however, are directors absolutely prohibited by the articles or by a bylaw adopted by the outstanding shares from adopting bylaws. In the usual situation, bylaws are adopted by the directors at their first meeting by resolution such as that set forth in this form or in § 4.261.

[c] Record of Adoption

The minutes of the corporation must record the proceedings of all directors' meetings [Corp. Code § 1500] and, therefore, the minutes of the first meeting must contain the resolution adopting the bylaws and a copy of the bylaws themselves. The original or a copy (in writing or in any other form capable of being converted into clearly legible tangible form) of the minutes, certified by the secretary or an assistant secretary of the corporation, is prima facie evidence of the adoption of the bylaws, of the due holding of the meeting, and of the other matters stated in the minutes [Corp. Code § 314].

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that the Bylaws so presented be, and they hereby are, approved and adopted as and for the Bylaws of this corporation.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Secretary of this corporation be, and hereby is, authorized and directed to certify copies of the Bylaws and to insert one certified copy in the minute book of this corporation and to keep another certified copy at the corporation's principal executive office where it shall be open to inspection by the shareholders at all reasonable times during office hours, as provided in California Corporations Code Section 213.

§ 4.262 Certificate of Secretary of Corporation Authenticating Bylaws [Corp. Code § 314] Adopted by Approval of Board of Directors [Corp. Code § 211] at Meeting--Long Form

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is for use by the secretary or an assistant secretary of the corporation to certify the original or a copy of the bylaws as duly adopted by approval of the board of directors at a meeting. For a certificate for use if the bylaws were adopted by the unanimous written consent of the directors, see § 4.266. For a short form certificate that may be used regardless of the manner of adoption and whether by the approval of the directors or the outstanding shares, see § 4.263.

[b] Keeping Copy Available to Shareholders

Every corporation must keep at its principal executive office in California, or if its principal executive office is not in California, at its principal business office in California, the original or a copy of its bylaws as amended to date. This original or copy must be open to inspection by the shareholders at all reasonable times during office hours [Corp. Code § 213].

If the principal executive office of the corporation is outside California and the corporation has no principal business office in California, it must, on the written request of any shareholder, furnish to the shareholder a copy of the bylaws as amended to date [Corp. Code § 213].

[c] Certification

The original or a copy (in writing or in any other form capable of being converted into clearly legible tangible form) of the bylaws certified to be a true copy by a person purporting to be the secretary or an assistant secretary of the corporation is prima facie evidence of the adoption of those bylaws [Corp. Code § 314]. For the purpose of evidence, when a copy of a writing is certified, the certificate must state in substance that the copy is a correct copy of the original, or of a specified part of it, as the case may be [Evid. Code § 1531].

§ 4.264 Written Consent of Directors Adopting Bylaws [Corp. Code §§ 211, 307(b)]--Collective Form

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is for use if bylaws are to be adopted by the unanimous written consent of the directors without a meeting. With appropriate modifications, this form may be adapted for use to effect subsequent adoptions, amendments, or repeal of bylaws by unanimous written consent without a meeting. For a certificate authenticating bylaws adopted in this manner, see § 4.266.

[b] Adoption by Written Consent

Bylaws usually are adopted by the board of directors at its first meeting [see § 4.260[1]], but they may be adopted by the board without a meeting by the unanimous written consent of the directors, provided that the number of board members serving at that time constitutes a quorum [Corp. Code § 307(b)]. In such a case, the written consent, if collectively executed, or consents, if individually executed, must be filed with the minutes of the proceedings of the board [Corp. Code § 307(b)]. If this method is used, the directors usually execute a single collective consent form.

§ 4.266 Certificate of Secretary of Corporation Authenticating Adoption of Bylaws [Corp. Code § 314] by Unanimous Written Consent of Directors [Corp. Code §§ 211, 307(b)]

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is for use by the secretary or an assistant secretary of the corporation to certify the original or a copy of the bylaws as duly adopted by the unanimous written consent of the directors without a meeting. For a short form certificate that may be used regardless of the manner of adoption and whether adopted by the approval of the directors or of the outstanding shares, see § 4.263.

For a discussion of the certification, see § 4.262[1].

§ 4.267 Written Consent of Outstanding Shares Approving Adoption of Bylaws [Corp. Code §§ 152, 211, 603]--Collective Form

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form, and the form in § 4.268[2], are designed for use if one or more bylaws are to be adopted by the written consent of the outstanding shares, rather than by the directors. With appropriate modifications, these forms may also be used for the adoption of future bylaws, or to amend or repeal bylaws, subject to Corp. Code § 212(a) (relating to number of directors). A collective form such as this might be used where the shareholders are centrally located and few in number, as in the case of a close corporation. Of course, if the shareholders are numerous or widely distributed, individual consents would more appropriately be utilized [see § 4.268].

For a certificate authenticating adoption of the bylaws by the written consent of the outstanding shares, see § 4.269.

[b] Adoption by Outstanding Shares

Bylaws may be adopted by approval of the outstanding shares, as that term is defined in Corp. Code § 152, or, except as provided in Corp. Code § 212(a), approval of the board of directors [Corp. Code § 211; see § 4.260 [1]].

Corp. Code § 152 defines "approval of the outstanding shares" as meaning approved by the affirmative vote of a majority of the outstanding shares entitled to vote. That section adds that such approval includes the affirmative vote of a majority of the outstanding shares of each class or series entitled, by any provision of the articles of incorporation or the General Corporation Law, to vote as a class or series on the subject matter being voted on and also includes the affirmative vote of the greater proportion (including all) of the outstanding shares of any class or series if a greater proportion is required by the articles (or, in the case of a close corporation, a shareholders' agreement [see Corp. Code § 154]) or the General Corporation Law.

All references in the General Corporation Law to the voting of shares include the voting of other securities given voting rights in the article pursuant to Corp. Code § 204(a)(7) [Corp. Code § 111; see Corp. Code § 112].

The bylaws may be voted on at any meeting of the shareholders [see Corp. Code § 601(a)] or, unless otherwise provided in the articles of incorporation, they may be adopted without a meeting and without prior notice, if a consent in writing setting forth the action so taken is signed by the holders of outstanding shares having not less than the minimum of votes that would be necessary to authorize or take that action at a meeting at which all shares entitled to vote on the matters were present and voted [Corp. Code § 603(a)]. Unless the consents of all shareholders entitled to vote were solicited in writing, and the approval of the shareholders without a meeting by written consent was less than unanimous, prompt notice must be given to those shareholders entitled to vote who did not consent in writing [Corp. Code § 603(b)].

[c] Revocation of Consent

Any shareholder giving a written consent, or the shareholder's proxyholders, or a transferee of the shares or a personal representative of the shareholder [see Corp. Code §§ 702-705], may revoke the consent by a writing received by the corporation before the time that written consents of the number of shares required to authorize the proposed action have been filed with the secretary of the corporation, but may not do so after that time. The revocation is effective on its receipt by the secretary of the corporation [Corp. Code § 603(c)].

§ 4.271 Resolution of Board of Directors Repealing Existing Bylaws and Adopting New Bylaws

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This resolution is for use by the board of directors to repeal the existing bylaws and adopt new bylaws. For a short form resolution that may be adapted for use where bylaws are repealed and new bylaws adopted, see § 4.261. For a resolution repealing certain bylaws and amending others, see § 4.272.

[b] Amending and Repealing Bylaws

Generally, bylaws may be amended or repealed by approval of the board of directors in the same manner in which they were adopted [see Corp. Code §§ 207(b), 211]. However, if the articles of incorporation or a bylaw limits or restricts the power of the board to amend or repeal bylaws or deprives them of the power to do so [see Corp. Code § 211], the limitation, restriction, or prohibition is binding on the directors.

[c] Nature of Bylaw Being Amended or Repealed

In determining whether to amend one or more specific bylaws, the directors will want to consider the nature of the bylaw in question. This consideration is necessary because the bylaws as adopted may contain any of the following different kinds of provisions:

- Mandatory statutory provisions that cannot be varied by the articles, the bylaws, amendment of the bylaws, or repeal of the bylaws. An illustration of such a provision is one relating to the shareholders' rights to inspect the corporation's record of shareholders, the corporate books and records of account, and minutes of meetings. These rights are granted by statute and cannot be limited in the articles or bylaws [Corp. Code §§ 1600(d), 1601(b)]. An attempted amendment would be void.

- Mandatory statutory provisions that authorize some variance and can be varied only as authorized in the pertinent statute. For example, Corp. Code § 601(d) provides that notice of an adjourned shareholders' meeting need not be given if the time and place are announced at the meeting at which the adjournment is taken, unless the bylaws otherwise require. Pursuant to this provision, the bylaws could initially require or be amended to require that notice of the adjourned meeting be given. If the adjournment is for more than 45 days, or if after the adjournment a new record date is fixed for the adjourned meeting, a notice of the adjourned meeting must be given to each shareholder of record entitled to vote at the meeting [Corp. Code § 601(d)]. This provision is not subject to variation by the bylaws and the bylaws may, therefore, not provide that this notice be dispensed with, either initially or by amendment.

- Permissive provisions, which are of four kinds:

    - Those derived from a statute authorizing the bylaws to so provide and not making any alternative provision [see, e.g., Corp. Code § 204(d), providing that the bylaws may contain any provision not in conflict with law or with the articles of incorporation for the management of the business and for the conduct of the affairs of the corporation].

    - Those derived from a statute authorizing the bylaws to so provide, but providing alternatives in the absence of such provision [see, e.g. Corp. Code § 600(a), providing that meetings of shareholders may be held at any place within or without California that may be stated in or fixed in accordance with the bylaws, but that if no other place is stated or so fixed, the meetings must be held at the corporation's principal executive office].

    - Those derived from a statute authorizing either the articles or the bylaws to so provide and not making any alternative provision [see, e.g., Corp. Code § 204(b), authorizing the articles to impose reasonable restrictions on the right to transfer or hypothecate shares, and Corp. Code § 212(b)(1), authorizing the bylaws to include any provision referred to in Corp. Code § 204(b) not in conflict with the articles or with law].

    - Those derived from a statute authorizing either the articles or bylaws to so provide and providing alternatives in the absence of such provision [see, e.g., Corp. Code § 307(a)(5), providing that unless otherwise provided in the articles or the bylaws, meetings of the board of directors may be held at any place within or outside California]. These provisions in the bylaws can be effectively amended or repealed provided they do not also appear in the articles. If they also appear in the articles, then the articles themselves will have to be amended.

- Provisions also contained in the articles of incorporation, which cannot be effectively amended or repealed until the articles themselves are amended. Since bylaws may not contain provisions in conflict with the articles [see Corp. Code § 212(b)], they may not be amended to do so.

- Provisions that can be amended or repealed only by the outstanding shares (for example, a provision changing the number of directors or from a fixed to a variable board or vice versa). Corp. Code § 212(a) provides that after the issuance of shares, a bylaw specifying or changing a fixed number of directors or the maximum or minimum number or changing from a fixed to a variable board or vice versa may only be adopted by approval of the outstanding shares; provided, however, that a bylaw or amendment of the articles reducing the fixed number or the minimum number of directors to a number less than five cannot be adopted if the votes cast against its adoption at a meeting or the shares not consenting in the case of action by written consent are equal to more than 16 2/3 percent of the outstanding shares entitled to vote. Any provision in the new bylaws referred to in the form below that would change a fixed number of directors or from a fixed to a variable board or vice versa could not be adopted by the board of directors but would require approval of the outstanding shares. For the purposes of the form, it is therefore assumed that shares have not been issued or that the provision in the bylaws being adopted governing directors is identical to or does not change in a prohibited manner the provision in the bylaws being repealed.

- Other provisions, which can be amended or repealed provided the amended provision does not conflict with law or with the articles. Such a limitation, of course, applies to all amendments [see Corp. Code § 212(b)].

[d] Amending Bylaws of Listed Corporations

A listed corporation may, by amendment of its bylaws, adopt provisions to divide the board of directors into two or three classes to serve for terms of two or three years respectively, or to eliminate cumulative voting [Corp. Code § 301.5(a); see Corp. Code § 301(a)]. A "listed corporation" is a corporation with outstanding shares listed on the New York Stock Exchange, the NYSE Amex, the NASDAQ Global Market, or the NASDAQ Capital Market [Corp. Code § 301.5(d)]. A corporation that is not listed may, after issuance of shares, adopt those provisions pursuant to amendment of its bylaws (or articles), to take effect when it becomes a listed corporation [Corp. Code § 301.5(a); see Corp. Code § 301.5(g), (i) (effective date of amendment); see also Corp. Code § 301.5(e), (f), (h) (effect of loss of listed corporation status)].

A bylaw amendment providing for division of the board of directors into classes, a change in the number of classes, or the elimination of cumulative voting, may be adopted only by the approval of the board [see Corp. Code § 151] and the outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 152] voting as a single class, notwithstanding the requirements of Corp. Code § 903 (shareholder approval of amendments) [Corp. Code § 301.5(a)]. If the board of directors is divided into two classes pursuant to such an amendment, the authorized number of directors must be no fewer than six, and one half of the directors (or as close an approximation as possible) must be elected at each annual meeting. If the board is divided into three classes, the authorized number must be no fewer than nine, and one third (or as close an approximation as possible) must be elected at each annual meeting. Directors of a listed corporation may be elected by classes at a shareholder meeting at which an amendment adopting provisions for dividing the board into classes is approved. However, the extended terms for directors are contingent on approval of the amendment [Corp. Code § 301.5(b)]. If directors for more than one class will be elected by the shareholders at any one meeting and the election is by cumulative voting [see Corp. Code § 708], votes may be cumulated only for directors to be elected within each class [Corp. Code § 301.5(c)].

If a corporation that is not yet listed adopts such a bylaw amendment, the provision as adopted must include the following statement or its substantial equivalent [Corp. Code § 301.5(j)]: "This provision shall become effective only when the corporation becomes a listed corporation within the meaning of Section 301.5 of the Corporations Code."

Scope

Marilyn E. Minger, Practice Consultantn* Scope

This chapter discusses the statutory requirements and procedures for holding directors meetings, including place, date, and time requirements, notice, waivers of notice, quorum, and voting requirements. It also discusses actions by written consent without a meeting. This chapter covers the functioning of directors, including their election and term, removal and resignation, and filling vacancies. It discusses the corporate powers exercisable by directors, their managerial responsibilities, their duties, and liability for breach of those duties and powers. The Transaction Guide includes procedural guides for the first meeting of directors, and for subsequent directors meetings, as well as a checklist for minutes of meetings. Forms include notices of annual, special, and adjourned meetings, the call of special meetings, written waivers of notice, consents to hold, and approvals of minutes of meetings, agendas and minutes, actions by written consent without a meeting, and specific resolutions for various purposes.

Corporate records and reports are further discussed in Ch. 7, Corporate Records and Reports . Corporate securities issues are covered in detail in Ch. 6, Securities Regulation Issues . Preincorporation planning is covered in Ch. 2, Formation of Corporations . Shareholders' meetings, voting, and agreements are discussed in Ch. 8A, Shareholders' Meetings, Voting, and Agreements . Voting Agreements and voting trusts are discussed in Ch. 8B, Voting Agreements and Voting Trusts . Close corporation shareholder agreements are covered in Ch. 8C, Close Corporation Shareholder Agreements . The conversion of a California corporation into an other business entity is covered separately in Ch. 11F, Corporate Conversions .

A. Purpose and Functioning of Board of Directors

2-5 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 5.10

§ 5.10 Directors' Powers

[1] Managerial Responsibilities and Corporate Powers Exercisable by Board of Directors

A corporation's business, affairs, and powers are managed and exercised, in general, by or under the direction of the board of directors [Corp. Code § 300(a)]. A statutory close corporation, however, may modify this traditional pattern of corporate control and allocate the management of corporate affairs ordinarily exercised by the board to shareholders or other corporate officials through use of a shareholders' agreement [see Corp. Code § 300(d); see also Ch. 8C, Close Corporation Shareholder Agreements].

The following actions may be taken by, or require the approval of, the board of directors, although some of these actions may also require shareholder consent [see Ch. 8A, Shareholders' Meetings, Voting, and Agreements]. Although not an exhaustive list, it enumerates significant board activity:

- Adopt, use, and alter a corporate seal [Corp. Code § 207(a)].

- Adopt, amend, and repeal bylaws [Corp. Code § 207(b); see Corp. Code § 211 (limitations on board's power)].

- Qualify to do business in any other state, territory, or country [Corp. Code § 207(c)].

- Issue, purchase, redeem, hold, lend, exchange, transfer, or otherwise deal in or with the corporation's shares or other securities [Corp. Code § 207(d); see Corp. Code § 510 (limitations on reissuance of redeemed shares)].

- Make donations (regardless of specific corporate benefit) for public welfare, hospital, charitable, educational, scientific, civic, or similar purposes [Corp. Code § 207(e)].

- Establish pension, profit-sharing, and other retirement, incentive, and benefit plans; and pay pensions [Corp. Code § 207(f); see Corp. Code §§ 315(b), 408].

- Approve corporate borrowing and loans, including encumbering the corporation's property, franchises, and income [Corp. Code § 207(g); see Corp. Code §§ 310, 315, 316 (restrictions on loans to and guarantees of directors' or officers' obligations)].

- Enter into contracts on behalf of the corporation [Corp. Code § 207(g)].

- Enter a partnership or other business association [Corp. Code § 207(h)].

- Amend the corporation's articles in specified cases [see Corp. Code §§ 212(a) (fixing number of directors), 901, 902 (limitations before and after share issuance), 2303, 2304 (effect of transitional provisions)].

- Manage the business and affairs of the corporation [Corp. Code § 300(a)].

- Divide and distribute corporate profits, including declaring a dividend or other shareholder distribution [see Corp. Code §§ 300(a), (b), 311(f); see also Corp. Code § 166 (distribution to shareholders defined)].

- Approve the sale, lease, conveyance, exchange, transfer, or other disposition of corporate assets [see Corp. Code §§ 300(b) (distribution of assets on liquidation), 1001 (sale or transfer of all corporate assets)].

- Remove a director who has been declared of unsound mind, or who has been convicted of a felony [Corp. Code § 302].

- Elect directors to fill vacancies on the board created by a director's resignation [Corp. Code § 305(a)].

- Designate committees made up of board members and delegate to these committees authority to act on behalf of the board [Corp. Code § 311(a)].

- Elect corporate officers [Corp. Code § 312].

- Authorize indemnification of directors, officers, employees, or other agents of the corporation [Corp. Code § 317].

- Approve issuance of shares, and determine the consideration for those shares [Corp. Code § 409].

- Call annual and special shareholders' meetings [Corp. Code § 600].

- Approve a merger agreement [Corp. Code § 1101] or reorganization [Corp. Code § 1200].

- Make contracts and otherwise act in the name of the corporation during corporate dissolution [see Corp. Code § 2001].

The exercise of directors' voting rights is discussed in § 5.32[8].

[2] Requirement that Directors Act Jointly

The power and authority to manage the business and affairs of the corporation are vested in the directors collectively, as a board, and not as individuals [see e.g., Anmaco, Inc. v. Bohlken (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 891, 898-900, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 675 (holding that individual who was 50 percent shareholder, director, and president had no presumptive or implied authority to institute litigation in the corporate name against co-director and equal shareholder, because latter could claim equal authority to bring suit in corporate name)].

This means that the directors of a corporation must generally act in concert, either in a formal meeting or by unanimous written consent [see Corp. Code § 307(a), (b); see also Corp. Code § 300(d) (exception for close corporations)]. Action by the entire board, however, is not required when the board delegates certain of its powers to board committees [see [3], below]. However, committee decisions, like board decisions, must be reached collectively. For this reason, the same procedures that govern board meetings generally govern committee meetings. Meeting procedures are discussed in §§ 5.30-5.32. For discussion of board action without a meeting, see § 5.33. For detailed discussion of board committees, see Cavitch, Business Organizations, Ch. 126 Board Committees (Matthew Bender).

[3] Delegation of Board Authority

[a] To Board Committees

The board of directors may establish committees consisting of two or more directors, to serve at the pleasure of the board, and may delegate to these committees the authority to act on behalf of the entire board [Corp. Code § 311]. The board, however, may not delegate to board committees the authority to take the following actions:

- Actions that also require approval of the shareholders or of the outstanding shares [Corp. Code § 311(a)].
- Filling vacancies on the board or committees [Corp. Code § 311(b)].
- Fixing the compensation of directors [Corp. Code § 311(c)].
- Adopting, amending, or repealing bylaws [Corp. Code § 311(d)].
- Amending or repealing any board resolution that expressly provides that it may not be amended or repealed by committee [Corp. Code § 311(e)].
- Authorizing a distribution to shareholders, except according to guidelines set forth in the articles or established by the directors [Corp. Code § 311(f)].
- Establishing other board committees or appointing committee members [Corp. Code § 311(g)].

Committees of the board are established by the bylaws [see Corp. Code § 212(b)(5)], or by a resolution adopted by a majority of the board of directors [Corp. Code § 311; see § 5.245]. The board may also designate directors as alternate committee members to replace any absent committee members at committee meetings [Corp. Code § 311]. A vote of the majority of the authorized number of directors is required to appoint members or alternate members of a committee [Corp. Code § 311].

[b] To Management Company or Manager

In addition to delegating authority to board committees, the board may delegate the management of the day-to-day operation of the corporation to a management company or to an individual manager, provided that the business and affairs of the corporation are managed and all powers are exercised under the ultimate direction of the board [Corp. Code § 300(a)]. Unless the corporation is a close corporation, the board typically will formulate major corporate policies, rather than directly participate in day-to-day operations [see Report of Assembly Select Committee on the Revision of the Corporate Code (12/01/75), p. 41].

AUTHOR: Marilyn E. Minger, Practice Consultant

§ 5.11 Directors' Duties of Good Faith and Prudence

A director must perform the duties of a director, including duties as a member of any committee of the board, in good faith, in a manner that the director believes to be in the best interests of the corporation and its shareholders, and with the care, including reasonable inquiry, that an ordinarily prudent person would use under similar circumstances [Corp. Code § 309(a)].

Provided a director acts in good faith, after reasonable inquiry when inquiry is warranted, he or she is entitled to rely on the information, opinions, reports, or statements, including financial statements and other financial data, presented by [Corp. Code § 309(b)]:

- Corporate officers or employees whom the director believes to be reliable and competent in the matters presented.

- Counsel, independent accountants [see Corp. Code § 115 (independent accountant defined)], or other persons on matters which the director believes to be within the person's professional or expert competence.

- Board committees (on which the director does not serve) on matters within the committee's designated and apparently competent authority.

A director who performs his or her duties in accordance with these statutory requirements of good faith and reasonable inquiry [see Corp. Code § 309(a), (b)] has no liability based on any alleged failure to discharge his or her obligation as a director [Corp. Code § 309(c)].

This business judgment rule has been held to immunize the directors of a federally insured national bank from liability for purely negligent acts [see FDIC v. Castetter (9th Cir. 1999) 184 F.3d 1040, 1044-1046 (nonofficer directors entitled to rely on company employees and advisors without duty of further inquiry, absent special circumstances)]. When a director/officer has acted in good faith, that officer's failure to obtain prior board approval for his or her action does not by itself make the business judgment rule inapplicable [see Biren v. Equality Emergency Medical Group, Inc. (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 125, 136-138, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 325 (dismissal of billing contractor by director/officer of closely held corporation without obtaining required board approval was protected by business judgment rule; dismissal without board approval was honest mistake and officer/director reasonably believed she had authority to act)].

PRACTICE TIP:

The board may choose to utilize indemnification agreements with directors, officers and other agents to commit to advancing expenses to the fullest extent of the law if the agent is sued for reasons related to his or her actions as an agent. Commentary by Marilyn E. Minger

§ 5.12 Directors' Liability for Breach of Duty and Exceeding Authority

[1] In General

[a] Limiting Provision in Articles of Incorporation

The articles of incorporation may contain a provision eliminating or limiting a director's personal liability for monetary damages in an action brought by, or on behalf of, the corporation for breach of the director's duties to the corporation and its shareholders imposed by Corp. Code § 309 [Corp. Code § 204(a)(10); see § 5.11 (for discussion of Corp. Code § 204(a)(10)]. The provision will not eliminate or limit a director's liability for any act or omission occurring before the effective date of the provision, or for any act or omission as an officer.

A provision in the articles provides the protection authorized by Corp. Code § 204(a)(10) if it reads substantially as follows: "The liability of the directors of the corporation for monetary damages shall be eliminated to the fullest extent permissible under California law" [Corp. Code § 204.5(a)]. More specific (or different) language, although not required, is permitted [Corp. Code § 204.5(a), (b)]. Such a provision, however, will not change the otherwise applicable standards or duties to make full and fair disclosure to shareholders when approval of the provision is sought [Corp. Code § 204.5(c)].

For further discussion and an example of this type of provision limiting or eliminating directors' liability, see Ch. 3, Articles of Incorporation .

[b] Director Acts and Omissions Not Subject to Elimination or Limitation of Liability

The liability of a director will not be limited by the limiting provision discussed in [a], above, for any of the following [Corp. Code § 204(a)(10)]:

- Acts or omissions that involve intentional misconduct or a knowing and culpable violation of law.

- Acts or omissions that a director believes are contrary to the best interests of the corporation or its shareholders, or that involve the absence of good faith on the part of the director.

- Transactions from which a director derived an improper personal benefit.

- Acts or omissions that show a reckless disregard for the director's duty to the corporation or its shareholders when the director was (or should have been) aware, in the ordinary course of performing a director's duties, of a risk of serious injury to the corporation or its shareholders.

- Acts or omissions that constitute an unexcused pattern of inattention, amounting to an abdication of the director's duty to the corporation or its shareholders.

- Prohibited transactions between corporations and directors [see Corp. Code § 310].

- Prohibited distributions, loans, and guarantees [see Corp. Code § 316].

Ratification by the directors of any negligent or improper action by an officer who is also a director will not eliminate or limit the officer's liability [Corp. Code § 204(a)(10)].

[c] Indemnification of Corporate Agents

The articles of incorporation may also contain a provision authorizing by bylaw, agreement, or otherwise, the indemnification of corporate agents [see Corp. Code § 317 ("agent" defined)] in excess of that expressly permitted by Corp. Code § 317 for breach of duty to the corporation and its stockholders [Corp. Code § 204(a)(11)]. However, such a provision in the articles of incorporation may not provide for indemnification for any acts or omissions from which a director may not be relieved of liability pursuant to Corp. Code § 204(a)(10) [see [b], above], or in any circumstances expressly prohibited by Corp. Code § 317 [Corp. Code § 204(a)(11); see Corp. Code § 317(c) (indemnification prohibited for amounts paid by agent to dispose of, settle, or defend pending action without court approval), § 317(h) (indemnification prohibited when inconsistent with provision of articles, bylaws, shareholder resolution or agreement, or court-imposed condition)].

For further discussion and an example of an article provision authorizing indemnification, see Ch. 3, Articles of Incorporation . For further discussion of indemnification of agents, see Ballantine & Sterling, CALIFORNIA CORPORATION LAWS, Ch. 6, Management: Duties and Liabilities of Controlling Shareholders , § 109 (Matthew Bender).

[2] Directors' Liability for Tortious Action

Directors may be personally liable to third parties for tortious actions performed in their role as directors, whether or not they acted on behalf of the corporation, and whether or not the corporation is also liable. Liability results when a director specifically authorizes, directs, or participates in tortious conduct toward a third party and that conduct is clearly unreasonable under the circumstances known to the director at the time. Liability is based on common-law tort principles [see Frances T. v. Village Green Owners Ass'n (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 490, 508-509, 229 Cal. Rptr. 456, 723 P.2d 573 (directors of condominium owners association ordered woman owner to disconnect protective exterior lighting, resulting in burglary of her home, and rape)].

In an action for misappropriation of trade secrets, unfair competition, and interference with prospective economic action, the court of appeal held that a corporate director or officer may be liable for an intentional tort if all of the following exist [PMC, Inc. v. Kadisha (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1368, 1372, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 663 (reversing summary judgment, finding that plaintiffs raised a triable issue of material fact as to individual defendants' active meaningful participation in, consent to, or approval of, the tortious conduct)]:

- The officer or director purchased or invested in the corporation, the principal assets of which were the result of unlawful conduct.

- The officer or director took control of the corporation and appointed personnel to run the corporation which was engaging in unlawful conduct.

- The officer or director did so with knowledge or, with respect to trade secret misappropriation, when he or she had reason to know, of the unlawful conduct.

[3] Director's Liability for Distributions, Loans, and Guarantees

[a] Prohibited Actions

Subject to their statutory duties of good faith and prudence [see Corp. Code § 309; 5.11], the directors will be jointly and severally liable to the corporation for the benefit of all the creditors or shareholders entitled to bring suit [see [b], below] if they approve any of the following corporate actions [Corp. Code § 316(a)]:

- Making any prohibited distribution to the shareholders [see Corp. Code §§ 500-503; see also Ch. 9, Dividends, Reacquisitions of Shares, and Assessments].

- Distributing assets to the shareholders after dissolution proceedings have been instituted [see ch. 12, Winding Up and Dissolution], without paying or adequately providing for all known liabilities (excluding claims not filed by creditors within the time limit set by the court) [see Corp. Code §§ 1800 et seq. (involuntary dissolution), 1900 et seq. (voluntary dissolution), 2000 et seq. (dissolution procedures)].

- Making any prohibited loan or guarantee to a director or officer [see Corp. Code § 315; see also Ch. 4, Bylaws].

A director who is present at a meeting of the board (or any board committee) at which any of the above actions are taken, and who abstains from voting, will be considered to have approved the action [Corp. Code § 316(b)].

[b] Persons Entitled to Bring Suit

Any person entitled to bring suit to enforce the shareholders' liability for receiving prohibited distributions [see Corp. Code § 506(b); see also Ch. 9, Dividends, Reacquisitions of Shares, and Assessments] may bring suit in the name of the corporation against any director liable for approving an unlawful distribution [Corp. Code § 316(c)(1); see Corp. Code § 316(a)(1)]. Any creditor of the corporation, whose debts or claims arose before the corporation made a prohibited distribution of assets [see Corp. Code § 316(a)(2)], or prohibited loan or guarantee [see Corp. Code § 316(a)(3)], may also bring suit against any director liable for approving the prohibited distribution, loan, or guarantee [Corp. Code § 316(c)(2)]. In addition, any shareholder whose shares were outstanding at the time any prohibited loan or guarantee [see Corp. Code § 316(a)(3)] was made, who has not consented to the corporate action [see Corp. Code § 316(c)(3); see also Corp. Code § 800 (inapplicable shareholder derivative actions)], may bring suit against any director liable for approving the prohibited loan or guarantee [Corp. Code § 316(c)(3)].

[c] Damages

The damages recoverable from a director are the amount of the illegal distribution or loss suffered by the corporation as a result of the illegal loan or guarantee. If the illegal distribution consists of property, the recoverable damages are the fair market value of the property at the time of the illegal distribution. In either case, damages include interest from the date of the distribution, computed at the legal rate on judgments until paid, together with all reasonably incurred costs of appraisal or other valuation, if any, of the property or loss. The amount of damages recoverable, however, may not exceed the liabilities of the corporation owed to nonconsenting creditors at the time of the violation and the injury suffered by nonconsenting shareholders [Corp. Code § 316(d)].

[d] Subrogation

Any director who has been sued may implead all other directors who are liable, and may compel contribution either in that action or in an independent action against those directors not joined in the first action [Corp. Code § 316(e)]. Directors held liable are also entitled to be subrogated to the rights of the corporation [Corp. Code § 316(f)]. A director who is liable with respect to the making of prohibited distributions [see Corp. Code § 316(a)(1)] is entitled to subrogation against shareholders who received the distribution [Corp. Code § 316(f)(1)]. A director who is liable with respect to the prohibited distribution of assets during dissolution [see Corp. Code § 316(a)(2)] is entitled to subrogation against shareholders who received the distribution [Corp. Code § 316(f)(2)]. A director who is liable with respect to the making of prohibited loans or guaranties [see Corp. Code § 316(a)(3); Corp. Code § 315] is entitled to subrogation against the person who received the loan or guarantee [Corp. Code § 316(f)(3)].

Any director who is sued may file a cross-complaint against the person or persons who are liable to the director as a result of the subrogation, or may proceed against them in an independent action [Corp. Code § 316(f)(3)].

[4] Directors' Liability Related to Issue and Transfer of Shares

A director who unreasonably causes a corporate officer whose duty it is to enter a transfer of shares on the corporate books and issue a share certificate (or an initial transaction statement or written statement [see Corp. Code § 171.1] for uncertificated securities [see Corp. Code § 191.1; Com. Code § 8102(a)(18); see also Ch. 6I, Issuance of Equity Securities ; Ch. 6K, Nonissuer Transactions in Investment Securities]) to unreasonably neglect, fail, or refuse to do so after written request is subject to penalty [Corp. Code § 2201]. A monetary penalty of $100, and an additional penalty of $10 for each day that default continues (up to a maximum of $500) must be paid to each person aggrieved [Corp. Code § 2201]. The penalties may be enforced by judicial action [Corp. Code § 2201; see Corp. Code § 2202 (additional remedies; reduced penalties)].

[5] Shareholders' Liability under Close Corporation Shareholders Agreement

Every shareholder in a close corporation in which the discretion and powers of the board are controlled by a shareholders' agreement is subject to personal liability for managerial acts performed or omitted by that shareholder [Corp. Code § 300(d)]. In this case, any directors of the corporation are relieved of liability for those actions [Corp. Code § 300(d)].

This does not mean, however, that a shareholder in a close corporation operated under a shareholders' agreement is personally liable for the debts of the corporation. A corporation exists as a separate legal entity, independent of its directors, officers, and shareholders [Corp. Code § 200(c)]. As a separate legal entity, a corporation is liable for its own obligations [see Corp. Code § 204(a)], and its directors, officers, and shareholders ordinarily are not liable for corporate debts and other obligations [see Corp. Code § 309(c)]. In fact, the failure of a close corporation to observe corporate formalities relating to directors' and shareholders' meetings in connection with the management of its affairs, as provided in a shareholders' agreement, will not be considered a factor tending to establish that the shareholders have personal liability for corporate actions [Corp. Code § 300(e)].

Shareholders who undertake to exercise the power and duties of the directors, however, also assume the directors' responsibility for the faithful exercise of those powers and duties [Corp. Code § 300(d)]. Directors may be personally liable for breach of duty to corporate creditors, the corporation itself, or its shareholders [see Corp. Code §§ 309, 316(a)-(d), 506(b); see also Jones v. H.F. Ahmanson & Co. (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 93, 81 Cal. Rptr. 592, 460 P. 2d 464] . Thus, shareholders of a close corporation who exercise the powers of a board of directors under a shareholders' agreement may be personally liable to the same extent that the directors would have been [Corp. Code §§ 300(d), 316(c), (d), 506(b)].

[6] Criminal Penalties

Any director who knowingly and willfully issues or consents to the issuance of certificates for certificated securities, initial transaction statements, or written statements [see Corp. Code § 171.1] for uncertificated securities [see Corp. Code § 191.1; Com. Code § 8102(a)(4), (18); see Ch. 6I, Issuance of Equity Securities ; Ch. 6K, Nonissuer Transactions in Investment Securities], in violation of the General Corporation Law with intent to defraud present or future shareholders, subscribers, purchasers of shares, or creditors, is guilty of a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not more than $1,000 or imprisonment for not more than one year, or both [Corp. Code § 2251].

Any person (including a director) who does either of the following acts is guilty of a misdemeanor [Corp. Code § 2252]:

- Signs the name of a fictitious person to any subscription for or agreement to take stock in a corporation, or

- Signs the name of any person to any subscription or agreement, knowing that the person has no means or does not intend in good faith to comply with all the terms of the instrument, or that there is any understanding or agreement that the terms of the subscription or agreement are not to be complied with or enforced.

Any director who does any of the following is also guilty of a crime:

- Concurs in any vote or act of any director, knowingly and with dishonest or fraudulent purpose, to make any dividend or distribution of assets (except as allowed by law), either with the design of defrauding creditors or shareholders, or of giving a false appearance to the value of the stock, and as a result, defrauding subscribers or purchasers [Corp. Code § 2253 (a misdemeanor punishable by up to $1,000 fine or up to one year imprisonment or both)].

- Knowingly concurs in making, publishing, or posting, either generally or privately, to the shareholders or other persons [Corp. Code § 2254 (a felony)]:

    - Any written report, exhibit, statement of the corporation's affairs or pecuniary condition, or notice containing any material statement that is false,

    - Any untrue or willfully or fraudulently exaggerated report, prospectus, account, statement of operations, values, business, profits, expenditures, or prospects, or

    - Any other paper or document intended (or having the tendency) to produce or give the shares of stock in that corporation a greater value or a less apparent market value than they really possess.

- Refuses to make any book entry or post any notice required by law, in the manner required by law [Corp. Code § 2254 (a felony)].

- Knowingly receives or acquires possession of any property of the corporation other than in payment of a just demand, and with intent to defraud, omits to make (or have made) a full and true entry of it in the corporate books of account [Corp. Code § 2255(a), (c) (a public offense punishable by imprisonment in a state prison, or imprisonment in a county jail for up to one year, or by a fine up to $1,000, or by both fine and imprisonment)].

- With intent to defraud, destroys, alters, mutilates, or falsifies any of the books, papers, writings, or securities belonging to the corporation, or makes or concurs in omitting to make any material entry in any book of accounts or other record or document kept by the corporation [Corp. Code § 2255(b), (c) (a public offense punishable by imprisonment in a state prison, or imprisonment in a county jail for up to one year, or by a fine up to $1,000, or by both fine and imprisonment)].

Every corporate agent who, proposing to increase the capital stock of the corporation, knowingly exhibits any false, forged, or altered book, paper, voucher, security, or other instrument of evidence to any public officer or board authorized by law to examine the organization of the corporation or to investigate its affairs, or to allow an increase of its capital, with intent to deceive that officer or board, is punishable by imprisonment in a state prison for not more than 10 years, or in a county jail for not more than one year [Corp. Code § 2256].

Any person who, without being authorized to do so, subscribes the name of another to, or inserts the name of another in, any prospectus, circular, or other advertisement or announcement of the corporation, with intent to permit the document to be published and to lead others to believe that the person whose name is so subscribed is an officer, agent, shareholder, or promoter of the corporation, when in fact no such relationship exists to the knowledge of that person, is guilty of a misdemeanor [Corp. Code § 2257].

§ 5.13 Naming Initial Directors

The names and addresses of the initial directors may be set forth in the articles of incorporation [Corp. Code § 204(c)] or in the bylaws [Corp. Code § 212(b)(1)], or in both, or may be elected by the incorporator or incorporators.

PRACTICE TIP:
Initial directors usually are not named in the articles of incorporation or the bylaws, but rather are named in a written action by the incorporator that is filed in the corporation's minute book [see § 5.224].
Commentary by Marilyn E. Minger

If initial directors are not named in the bylaws, the incorporators, until the directors are elected [see § 5.14], may do whatever is necessary to perfect the organization of the corporation, including adopting and amending the bylaws, and electing directors and officers [Corp. Code § 210; see Corp. Code § 312 (required corporate officers)].

§ 5.14 Election and Term of Subsequent Directors

[1] In General

With two exceptions [see [2] (voting shifts), [3] (listed corporations), below], directors are elected at the annual shareholders' meeting, to hold office until the next annual meeting and until a successor has been elected and qualified [Corp. Code § 301(a)]. Unless removed [see Corp. Code § 302-304; see also § 5.15[2]], each director (including one elected to fill a vacancy) holds office until the expiration of the term for which elected and until a successor has been elected and qualified [Corp. Code § 301(b); see Corp. Code § 305(c) (exception when election causes number of directors elected by shareholders to constitute less than majority of directors in office); see also § 5.16[2]]. A director whose resignation is to take effect on the election and qualification of a successor may vote as a director on the choice of a successor [Mayo v. Interment Properties, Inc. (1942) 53 Cal. App. 2d 654, 659, 128 P.2d 417] . A director's tenure is subject to resignation, removal, death, or other vacation of office before the expiration of the director's term [see § 5.15[2], [3]].

[2] Voting Shifts

A director's term of office may be shortened to less than one year, through the effect of a voting shift, if the articles so provide [Corp. Code § 301(b)]. A voting shift occurs when there is change in the relative rights of the holders of one or more classes or series of shares, voting as separate classes or shares, to elect directors [Corp. Code § 194.7]. Voting shifts commonly occur in relation to preferred shares. Holders of preferred shares often are not be entitled to vote in elections for directors if preferred dividends are current. However, if the articles of incorporation provide for a voting shift, then when the payment of preferred dividends is in arrears, the holders of preferred shares will become entitled, voting as a class or series, to elect a specified number or proportion (often a majority) of the directors, as long as the dividends remain unpaid (after which the voting rights switch back). For further discussion and a provision to include in the articles of incorporation to effect a voting shift, see Ballantine & Sterling, CALIFORNIA CORPORATION LAWS (Matthew Bender), Ch. 5, Directors, Officer, and Committees , § 81.03 and Appendix, Form 4.09.

[3] Listed Corporations

By amending its articles or bylaws, a listed corporation may adopt provisions to divide the board of directors into two or three classes to serve for terms of two or three years, respectively [Corp. Code § 301.5(a); see Corp. Code § 301(a); see also Corp. Code § 301.5(b)-(j) (procedures and requirements)]. A "listed corporation" is a corporation with outstanding shares listed on the New York Stock Exchange, the NYSE Amex, the NASDAQ Global Market, or the NASDAQ Capital Market [Corp. Code § 301.5(d)].

§ 5.15 Vacancies on Board of Directors

[1] Vacancy Defined

When used with respect to the board of directors, vacancy means any authorized position of director that is not currently filled with a properly elected director [Corp. Code § 192]. A vacancy may be caused, for example, by death, resignation, removal, or a change in the number of authorized directors [see Corp. Code § 192].

[2] Removal of Directors

[a] For Cause

The board of directors may remove a director before the expiration of that director's term [Corp. Code § 303(c)] by declaring his or her office vacant when the director is either declared of unsound mind by the court or convicted of a felony [Corp. Code § 302]. The superior court may also remove a director before the expiration of that director's term [Corp. Code § 303(c)] at the suit of shareholders holding at least 10 percent of the outstanding shares of any class, for fraudulent or dishonest acts, or gross abuse of authority related to the corporation, and may bar the director from reelection for a period prescribed by the court [Corp. Code § 304].

[b] Without Cause

The outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 152 (outstanding shares defined)] may remove any or all of the directors without cause, by a majority vote, before the expiration of the director's term, subject to certain limitations discussed below [see Corp. Code § 303(a)]. The articles of incorporation may not require a vote greater than a majority to accomplish removal [Corp. Code § 204(a)(5); see Corp. Code § 300(b), (c) (waiver of this requirement in close corporation shareholders' agreement)]. This limitation is designed to protect the rights of shareholders.

A director of a corporation whose directors do not have staggered terms of office [see Corp. Code § 301.5] may not be removed without cause (unless the entire board is removed) when the votes cast (or the consents in writing) against removal would be sufficient to elect the director if voted cumulatively at an election at which the same total number of votes were cast (or, if the action is taken by written consent, in which all shares entitled to vote were voted), and the entire number of directors authorized at the time of the directors' most recent election were being elected [Corp. Code § 303(a)(1)]. If the removal action is by written consent, all shares entitled to vote are assumed to have been voted, and abstentions are counted as negative votes [Corp. Code § 303(a)(1); see Report of Assembly Select Committee on the Revision of the Corporate Code (12/01/75), pp. 43-44]. This limitation is designed to protect the cumulative voting rights of minority shareholders. For an explanation of cumulative voting, see Ch. 8A, Shareholders' Meetings, Voting, and Agreements .

When the articles of incorporation give the shareholders of any class or series, voting as a class or series, the right to elect directors, any director so elected may be removed without cause only by the applicable vote of the shareholders of that class or series [Corp. Code § 303(a)(2)].

In addition, special limitations apply to the removal without cause of a director of a corporation with a staggered board [see Corp. Code § 303(a)(3)].

[c] Reduction in Authorized Number of Directors

A reduction of the authorized number of directors (or, for listed corporations, an amendment reducing the number of classes of directors) does not remove any director before the expiration of that director's term of office [Corp. Code § 303(b); see Corp. Code § 301.5 (listed corporations)]. Further, except as provided in Corp. Code §§ 302-304 [see [a], [b], above], no director may be removed from office before the expiration of his or her term [Corp. Code § 303(c)].

[3] Resignation of Directors

Any director may resign by giving written notice to the chair of the board, the president, the secretary, or the board of directors [Corp. Code § 305(d)]. A director's resignation creates a vacancy on the board [Corp. Code § 192]. For a resignation form, see § 5.243.

Resignation takes effect on the giving of written notice of resignation, unless the notice specifies a later time [Corp. Code § 305(d)]. Unless the resignation is made contingent on acceptance [Clark v. Oceano Beach Resort Co. (1930) 106 Cal. App. 574, 576, 289 P. 946] , it takes effect even if the board neither accepts nor acts on it [Security Inv. Realty Co. v. Superior Court (1929) 101 Cal. App. 450, 452, 281 P. 709] . For a form for accepting a resignation and appointing a successor, see § 5.244.

§ 5.16 Filling Vacancies

[1] Vacancies Created by Removal

Unless the articles of incorporation or bylaws adopted by the shareholders provide that the board may fill vacancies occurring on the board by reason of the removal of directors, those vacancies may be filled only by approval of the shareholders [Corp. Code § 305(a); see Corp. Code § 153 (approval of shareholders defined)]. Filling a removal-created vacancy by written consent requires the unanimous written consent of all shares entitled to vote for the election of directors [Corp. Code §§ 305(b), 603(d)].

[2] Vacancies Not Created by Removal

Unless otherwise provided in the articles or bylaws, and except for a vacancy created by the removal of a director [see [1], above], vacancies on the board may be filled by approval of the board [see Corp. Code § 151 (approval of board defined)], or if the number of directors in office is less than a quorum, by one of the following [Corp. Code § 305(a)]:

- The unanimous written consent of the directors in office.
- The affirmative vote of a majority of the directors in office at a meeting held pursuant to statutory notice or waivers of notice [see Corp. Code § 307].
- The sole remaining director.

If, after the directors fill any vacancy, the directors in office who have been elected by the shareholders constitute less than a majority of the directors in office, any shareholder or shareholders representing at least five percent of the outstanding shares with the right to vote for those directors may call a special shareholders' meeting to elect the entire board [Corp. Code § 305(c)(1)]. Alternatively, such a shareholder or shareholders may petition the superior court to order a special shareholders' meeting to elect the entire board [Corp. Code § 305(c)(2)].

The shareholders may also elect a director at any time to fill a vacancy not filled by the directors [Corp. Code § 305(b)]. Any such election by written consent (other than one to fill a vacancy created by the removal of a director [see [1], above]) requires the consent of a majority of the outstanding shares entitled to vote [Corp. Code §§ 305(b), 603(d)].

[3] Court Appointment of Directors

If a corporation has not issued shares (so that no shareholders exist to elect directors [see Corp. Code § 305(b)]) and all the directors resign, die, or become incompetent, the superior court may appoint directors of the corporation on the application of any party in interest. Similarly, if a corporation's initial directors have not been named in the articles and all the incorporators resign, die, or become incompetent before the election of the initial directors, the superior court may appoint directors [Corp. Code § 306; see Corp. Code § 210; see also § 5.13].

§ 5.17 Court Appointment of Provisional Directors

[1] Deadlocked Board

If a corporation has an even number of directors who are equally divided and cannot agree on the management of its affairs, to the detriment of the corporation's business or its property, any director or any shareholder or shareholders representing at least 33 1/3 percent of the corporation's voting power may bring suit, in superior court, for the appointment of a provisional director to break the deadlock [Corp. Code § 308(a); see Corp. Code § 308(d) (exempted corporations)]. Such an appointment may be made regardless of provisions in the articles or bylaws to the contrary, or whether an action is pending for the involuntary dissolution or winding up of the corporation [Corp. Code § 308(a)]. The appointment may also be made when a shareholders' agreement has shifted some of the board's powers to the shareholders [see Corp. Code § 300(b); Ch. 8A, Shareholders' Meetings, Voting, and Agreements], if the issues subject to the deadlock are matters on which a provisional board may vote in accordance with the board's retained ability to exercise corporate powers [In re Annrhon, Inc. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 742, 754-756, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 599] . The order appointing a provisional director is appealable [In re Annrhon, Inc. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 742, 751, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 599] .

If the corporation's business is profitable, the appointment of a provisional director may be a desirable alternative to the drastic remedy of an involuntary winding up or dissolution [see, e.g., In re Jamison Steel Corp. (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 27, 322 P.2d 246] , or the appointment of a receiver [see In re Annrhon (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 742, 752, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 599 , quoting In re Jamison Steel Corp. (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 27, 35-37, 322 P.2d 246] .

[2] Deadlocked Shareholders

If a corporation has an uneven number of directors, and the shareholders are deadlocked so that they cannot elect a successor board at an annual shareholders' meeting, any shareholder or shareholders representing at least 50 percent of the corporation's voting power may petition the superior court to appoint a provisional director (or directors), or to order other equitable relief as appropriate [Corp. Code § 308(b); see Corp. Code § 308(d) (exempted corporations)]. Any appointment of one or more provisional directors may be made regardless of provisions in the articles or bylaws to the contrary [Corp. Code § 308(b)]. The court's ability to appoint more than one provisional director [see Corp. Code § 308(b)] eliminates the possibility of a potential deadlock caused by the appointment of a single provisional director to an uneven-numbered board, and ends control of the board by an incumbent majority elected or perpetuated by only 50 percent of the corporation's voting power. For further discussion of this issue, see Ballantine & Sterling, CALIFORNIA CORPORATION LAWS, Ch. 5, Directors, Officers, and Committees , § 82.03 (Matthew Bender).

[3] Qualifications and Powers of Provisional Director

A provisional director must be an impartial person who is neither a shareholder nor creditor of the corporation, nor related by consanguinity (blood relationships) or affinity (relationship by marriage between one spouse and the blood relations of the other spouse) within the third degree, according to common law, to any other directors of the corporation or to any judge of the court appointing the provisional director [Corp. Code § 308(c)].

A provisional director has all the rights and powers of a director [see §§ 5.10[1]] until the deadlock in the board or among shareholders is broken, or until the director is removed by court order or by approval of the outstanding shares [Marik v. Superior Court (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1136, 1140, 236 Cal. Rptr. 751] .

§ 5.31 Types of Meetings

Immediately after each annual shareholders' meeting, the board of directors normally holds its own annual meeting. This meeting is sometimes referred to as an organizational meeting because it is the first meeting following the annual election of directors. Although not required by statute, this meeting ordinarily is held to elect the officers of the corporation who will serve during the coming year. Other regular meetings are customarily held periodically as fixed in the bylaws or as determined by the board of directors [see Corp. Code § 307(a)(2)]. Special meetings of the board may be called for any purpose at any time by the chair of the board, the president, any vice president, the secretary, or any two directors [see Corp. Code § 307(a)(2)].

The number and frequency of the meetings of a corporation's board of directors depends on a number of factors, including the type and extent of the corporation's business, whether the corporation is closely held, and whether it has outside directors.

Call and notice requirements for these meetings are discussed in § 5.32[3], [5].

§ 5.32 Meeting Procedures

[1] Applicability to Close Corporations

The General Corporation Law provides that for a statutory close corporation, all of its provisions may be waived or altered in a shareholders' agreement between the parties to that agreement, except for the required filing of any document with the Secretary of State and for certain enumerated chapters and sections of the law [see Corp. Code § 300(c)]. The enumerated chapters and sections do not include those that generally govern directors meetings [see Corp. Code § 307]. As a result, the provisions governing directors meetings may be waived by close corporations. For further discussion of the waiver of these provisions in close corporation shareholder agreements, see Ch. 8C, Close Corporation Shareholder Agreements .

[2] Applicability to Board Committees and Incorporators

The provisions of the General Corporation Law, which govern directors meetings [see Corp. Code § 307] apply also to board committees and incorporators [see Corp. Code § 311] and their actions [Corp. Code § 307(c)].

[3] Persons Authorized to Call Meeting

Unless otherwise provided in the articles of incorporation or the bylaws, board meetings may be called by the chair of the board, the president, any vice president, the corporate secretary, or any two directors [Corp. Code § 307(a)(1)]. For a form to be used for a call, see § 5.200.

[4] Place of Meeting

Meetings may be held at any place in California or elsewhere that has been designated in the meeting's notice [Corp. Code § 307(a)(5)]. If the meeting place is not stated in the notice, or if there is no notice, the meeting may be held at any place designated in the bylaws or by resolution of the board [Corp. Code § 307(a)(5); see Corp. Code § 212(b)(2)].

[5] Notice

Regular board meetings may be held without notice, if the time and place are fixed by the bylaws or the board [Corp. Code § 307(a)(2)]. Notice of special board meetings, however, may not be dispensed with by the articles or bylaws [Corp. Code § 307(a)(2)]. Special meetings may be held on four days notice by mail, or 48 hours notice delivered personally, by telephone, including a voice messaging system, or by electronic transmission by the corporation [Corp. Code § 307(a)(2)]. The notice does not need to specify the purpose of either regular or special meetings of the board [Corp. Code § 307(a)(2)].

Notice does not need to be given to any director who before or after the meeting provides a waiver of notice, a consent to hold the meeting, or an approval of the minutes of the meeting in writing, or who attends the meeting without protesting the lack of notice before or at the beginning of the meeting [Corp. Code § 307(a)(3)]. Waivers, consent, and approvals of the minutes must be filed with the corporate records, or made a part of the minutes of the meeting [Corp. Code § 307(a)(3)]. The waiver does not need to specify the purpose of the meeting for which notice is waived [Corp. Code § 307(a)(2)].

A board meeting held without the required notice to one director is void unless the notice is properly waived. The directors present at such a meeting cannot validly take any action on behalf of the corporation [In re Mathews Constr. Co. (1954) 120 F. Supp. 818, 821 (construing former Corp. Code § 813); see [6], below].

PRACTICE TIP:

Small or medium-sized corporations often dispense with formal written notice to the directors, and instead call meetings by informal notice, using a waiver of notice or consent to holding the meeting, or a written approval of the minutes of the meeting signed by any director not present and filed with the corporate records. If there is any question that a board member may not sign a waiver or consent proper notice should be given. Commentary by Marilyn E. Minger

[6] Quorum Requirements

[a] Definition and Effect

A quorum is the number of directors at a meeting whose presence is required to validly transact corporate business [see Corp. Code § 307(a)(8)]. Participation in a meeting through use of a conference telephone call or electronic video screen communication or through electronic transmission by and to the corporation constitutes presence in person at the meeting, provided that specified requirements are met [see Corp. Code § 307(a)(6); see also [c], below].

Any act or decision by a majority of directors at a meeting at which a quorum is present is a valid action of the board, subject to special rules applicable to transactions involving an interested director [Corp. Code § 307(a)(8); see Corp. Code §§ 310, 317(e); see also [d], below]. If a quorum is not present, any acts taken at the meeting are voidable by the corporation or its shareholders [see Olincy v. Merle Norman Cosmetics, Inc. (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 260, 273, 19 Cal. Rptr. 387] , although a majority of the directors present may adjourn the meeting to another time and place [Corp. Code § 307(a)(4); see [8], below].

A meeting at which a quorum initially is present may continue to transact business even if enough directors leave the meeting to reduce the number in attendance to less than a quorum, if the action taken is approved by at least a majority of the required quorum for the meeting [Corp. Code § 307(a)(8)].

[b] Computing Quorum--In General

Unless otherwise provided in the articles of incorporation [see Corp. Code § 204(a)(5)], a quorum is a majority of the authorized number of directors [Corp. Code § 307(a)(7)]. The articles or bylaws may provide that less than a majority of directors constitutes a quorum. However, a quorum may not be less than one-third the authorized number of directors or two directors, whichever is larger (except for corporations with one director, in which case one director constitutes a quorum) [Corp. Code § 307(a)(7); see Corp. Code § 212(b)(4) (bylaw provisions)]. Neither the articles nor the bylaws may provide that a vote of less than a majority of the directors present at a meeting is a valid action of the board [Corp. Code § 307(a)(8)].

The articles (or a statutory close corporation shareholders' agreement) may require a quorum greater than a majority of the authorized number of directors [Corp. Code §§ 204(a)(5), 300(b), (c)].

[c] Participation Through Communications Equipment

Directors, unlike shareholders, may not vote or attend a meeting by proxy [see Corp. Code § 307 (requiring physical or audio presence); see also Cavitch, Business Organizations, Ch. 125, Board Meetings, § 125.02[3] (Matthew Bender)]. Because board meetings are viewed as an opportunity to exchange views leading to action by consensus, proxy voting is not considered a viable alternative to a director's presence [see Cavitch, Business Organizations, Ch. 125, Board Meetings, § 125.02[4] (Matthew Bender)]. Nonetheless, directors may participate in a meeting through the use of a conference telephone call or electronic video screen communication or through electronic transmission by and to the corporation [see Corp. Code § 307(a)(6)].

Participation through use of a conference telephone call or electronic video screen communication constitutes presence in person at the meeting provided that all directors participating in the meeting can hear one another [Corp. Code § 307(a)(6)].

Participation through electronic transmission by and to the corporation (other than a conference telephone call and electronic video screen communication) constitutes presence in person at the meeting if both the following apply [Corp. Code § 307(a)(6)]:

- Each participating director can communicate with all other directors concurrently.

- Each director has the means to participate in all matters before the board, including the ability to propose or object to a specific corporate action.

[d] Counting Interested Directors in Computing Quorum

Although their votes on the matter may not be counted [Corp. Code § 310(a)(2), (b)(1)], interested or common directors may be counted in determining the presence of a quorum at a meeting of the board (or board committee) which authorizes or approves a transaction between the corporation and the interested director, or between the corporation and the entity in which the director has a material interest [Corp. Code § 310(c)].

[e] Actions Permitted Absent a Quorum

Absent a quorum at the beginning of the meeting, it appears that the directors may take only two valid actions:

- Except for a vacancy created by the removal of a director [see § 5.16[1]] (and unless otherwise provided in the articles or bylaws), vacancies on the board may be filled by a director or directors, as prescribed by statute, if the number of directors in office is less than a quorum [Corp. Code § 305(a); see § 5.16[2]].

- A majority of the directors present (even without a quorum) may adjourn a meeting [Corp. Code § 307(a)(4); see [8], below].

Business may continue to be transacted at a meeting, however, at which a quorum was initially present after some directors leave, provided that any action taken is approved by a majority of the quorum required for the meeting [Corp. Code § 307(a)(8)].

[7] Adjournment

A majority of directors present at a meeting may adjourn the meeting to another time and place, whether or not there is a quorum [Corp. Code § 307(a)(4)]. If the meeting is adjourned for more than 24 hours, notice of adjournment to another time and place must be given before the time of the adjourned meeting to the directors who were not present when the original meeting was adjourned [Corp. Code § 307(a)(4)]. For a notice of adjourned meeting, see § 5.202.

[8] Voting Requirements

Ordinarily, the vote of a majority of directors present at a meeting at which a there is a quorum is required for a valid board action, subject to special rules applicable to transactions involving an interested director [Corp. Code § 307(a)(8); see Corp. Code §§ 310, 317(e); see also Corp. Code § 307(a)(6) (presence at meeting defined); [7][a], above]. The articles or bylaws may not provide for a lesser vote for board action [Corp. Code § 307(a)(8)], although they may require a greater than majority vote for a specific type of action [see Corp. Code §§ 204(a)(6), 212(b)]. However, the vote of a majority of the quorum required for a meeting may continue to transact business at a meeting at which a quorum was initially present but later lost as a result of directors leaving the meeting [Corp. Code § 307(a)(8)]. Further, the vote of only a majority of the directors present, whether or not there is a quorum, is required to adjourn the meeting to another time and place [Corp. Code § 307(a)(4)].

[9] Minutes of Board Meeting

Each corporation must keep a record (minutes) of the proceedings of its board of directors and of committees of the board [Corp. Code § 1500; see Corp. Code §§ 300(e) (relaxation of rules related to directors meetings for close corporations), 1507 (liability for false information)]. Minutes of each directors meeting, or the unanimous written consents of directors to action, are ordinarily kept in a minute book. Copies of notices, waivers of notice, consents to holding the meeting, and approvals of the minutes should also be filed in the minute book. The original or a copy of the minutes of a meeting, certified by the corporate secretary or assistant corporate secretary, is prima facie evidence that the meeting was held and the matters stated in the minutes are true and correct [Corp. Code § 314].

The corporation may keep the minutes in written form or in another form capable of being converted into clearly legible tangible form. When minutes and other books and records are kept in a form capable of being converted into clearly legible paper form, the clearly legible paper form into which those minutes and other books and records are converted is admissible in evidence, and acceptable for all other purposes, to the same extent as an original paper record of the same information would be, provided the paper form accurately portrays the record [Corp. Code § 1500].

For a discussion of what minutes should contain and a checklist for their preparation, see §§ 5.230 and 5.151, respectively.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Board of Directors Meetings and Actions by Written Consent without Meeting

AUTHOR: Marilyn E. Minger, Practice Consultant

§ 5.33 Action by Unanimous Written Consent Without Meeting

The directors may act by written consent without a meeting [see, e.g., §§ 5.221-5.223]. However, an action by written consent requires the consent of all the members of the board, and the number of board members serving at that time must constitute a quorum [Corp. Code § 307(b)].

For purposes of unanimous board action without a meeting, the term "all members of the board" includes an "interested director" [see Corp. Code § 310(a)] or a "common director" [see Corp. Code § 310(b)] who abstains in writing from providing consent, when [Corp. Code § 307(b)]:

- The disclosures required by Corp. Code § 310 (generally requiring full disclosure of the material facts regarding the transaction and the director's interest) [see Ch. 4, Bylaws, § 4.200[2], Section 2.23] have been made to the noninterested or noncommon directors, as applicable, before their execution of the written consent or consents;

- The specified disclosures are conspicuously included in the written consent or consents executed by the noninterested or noncommon directors; and

- The noninterested or noncommon directors, as applicable, approve the action by a vote that is sufficient without counting the votes of the interested or common directors.

If the directors give written consent in accordance with the preceding rule, but the disclosures made regarding the action that is the subject of the consent do not satisfy statutory requirements [see Corp. Code § 310], the action that is the subject of the consent will be deemed approved. However, in any suit brought to challenge the action, the party asserting the validity of the action has the burden of proof in establishing that the action was just and reasonable to the corporation at the time it was approved [Corp. Code § 307(b)].

The consent may be in the form of individual consents or one collective consent, or a facsimile of either type of consent, or by telegraphic or other electronic communication authorized by the Corporations Code [see Corp. Code §§ 195, 307(b)].

PRACTICE TIP:

When preparing written consents, include a provision that the consent "may be executed in counterparts, each of which shall be deemed an original and all of which, taken together, shall constitute one and the same instrument." This permits use of a collective consent but does not require that all directors sign the same piece of paper. Commentary by Marilyn E. Minger

The consents must be filed with the minutes of the board's proceedings [Corp. Code § 307(b)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Board of Directors Meetings and Actions by Written Consent without Meeting

2-5 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 5.34

§ 5.34 Ratification of Board Action Despite Irregularity of Meeting

The actions of the board may be ratified by actions of the individual directors, and the ratification will have retroactive effect to the time when the action by the board was originally taken [Meyers v. El Tejon Oil & Refining Co. (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 184, 186-187, 174 P.2d 1] . For example, in Meyers v. El Tejon Oil & Refining Co. [Meyers v. El Tejon Oil & Refining Co. (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 184, 174 P.2d 1] , a board of directors meeting was attended by four of seven directors. No notice of the meeting was given, nor did the absent directors sign a waiver of notice, a consent to the meeting, or an approval of its minutes. The board declared a cash dividend, and the dividend was paid to the shareholders, including the three absent directors who then returned the cash dividend and received promissory notes in exchange. The court held that this action on the part of the three absent directors ratified the action taken by the board of directors, in spite of the irregularity of the meeting [Meyers v. El Tejon Oil & Refining Co. (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 184, 187, 174 P.2d 1] .

Further, in a contract action in which a corporation raised the defense that the meeting at which the directors agreed to the contract was not properly held, the court held that if all of the directors of the corporation are present when the terms of a transaction are agreed to, the corporation cannot deny the contract on the ground that it was not made at a legal meeting [Thompson v. M. K. & T. Oil Co. (1935) 5 Cal. App. 2d 117, 123, 42 P.2d 374] . The court further held that if the contract was made by the board of directors of the corporation, it was immaterial whether or not the minutes of the meeting showed the transaction [see Thompson v. M.K. & T. Oil Co. (1935) 5 Cal. App. 2d 117, 124].

§ 5.100 Client Interview

NOTE:
If the client interview is in connection with the formation of a corporation, more information than listed below is needed. For a preincorporation planning checklist, see Ch. 2, Formation of Corporations .

[1] Facts

[a] The Corporation

1. Exact name of corporation.

2. Name and address of principal executive office of corporation.

3. Date of incorporation.

4. State of incorporation.

5. Tax year of corporation.

6. Employer identification number.

7. Principal business.

8. Authorized number of directors.

9. Names, addresses, and telephone and facsimile numbers of directors.

10. Name of chair of board of directors.

11. Names, addresses, telephone and facsimile numbers, and titles of officers likely to be involved in directors meetings, call, or notice.

12. Name, address, and telephone and facsimile number of any other person likely to attend directors meetings.

13. Name, address, and telephone number of accountant.

14. Name and address of corporation's transfer agent, if any.

15. Date and time of annual meeting.

16. Number of shareholders.

17. Total number of shares issued.

18. Authorized number, class, and series of shares.

19. Voting rights of each class or series of shares.

20. Approximate fair market value of shares, if known.

21. Whether corporation is a professional corporation.

22. Whether corporation has elected Subchapter S status [see § 5.222[1][f]].

[b] Directors Meetings

1. Place of directors meetings, if stated in bylaws or fixed by board resolution [see Corp. Code § 307(a)(5)], and frequency or minimum number of meetings per year.

NOTE:

Meetings may be held at any place in California or elsewhere that has been designated in the meeting's notice [Corp. Code § 307(a)(5)]. If the meeting place is not stated in the notice, or there is no notice, the meeting may be held at any place designated in the bylaws or by resolution of the board [Corp. Code § 307(a)(5); see Corp. Code § 212(b)(2)].

2. For any proposed directors meeting:

a. Type of meeting (annual, regular, or special).

b. Date and time.

c. Place.

d. Action proposed to be taken by director vote or written consent.

3. If original meeting has been adjourned:

a. Date and time of original meeting.

b. Time and place of adjourned meeting.

c. Number of hours or days between original and adjourned meetings.

NOTE:
If the meeting is adjourned for more than 24 hours, notice of adjournment to another time and place must be given before the time of the adjourned meeting to the directors who were not present at the time the original meeting was adjourned [Corp. Code § 307(a)(4); see § 5.202].

[2] Documents

1. Articles of incorporation.

2. Bylaws.

3. Minute book.

4. Any preincorporation subscription or other agreements.

5. Any documents regarding qualification or exemption of issuance or transference of corporate shares under state and federal securities laws.

6. Share certificates.

7. Shareholder list.

8. Any instrument under which corporation's stock is held, including:

a. Trust instruments for trusts holding corporation's shares.

b. Will under which any deceased shareholder's corporate stock is held by estate.

c. Bankruptcy court order under which bankrupt shareholder's stock is held by bankrupt's estate.

d. Court order for guardianship.

e. Voting trust or other voting or shareholder agreement [see Ch. 8B, Voting Agreements and Voting Trusts].

9. Copy of resignation of any director who has not yet been replaced.

10. Copies of any documents to be presented at any scheduled meeting.

2-5 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 5.110

AUTHOR: Marilyn E. Minger, Practice Consultant

§ 5.110 First Meeting

1. Determine whether board needs to ratify actions of incorporator or incorporators.

2. Determine matters to be covered in bylaws [see Ch. 4, Bylaws] if bylaws were not already adopted by incorporator.

3. Ascertain names and titles of officers to be elected.

4. Determine officer's compensation.

5. Determine directors' compensation, if any.

6. Determine form of share certificate to be adopted.

7. Determine whether directors will fix, by resolution, the number or designation (or both) of any series of shares to be issued, or rights, preferences, privileges, and restrictions to be granted to or imposed on any class or series of shares or on their holders [see Corp. Code § 202(e)].

8. Determine consideration to be received for shares.

9. If nonmonetary consideration was or will be received for shares, determine its fair value in monetary terms to corporation.

10. Determine whether transfers of stock to directors are just and reasonable to corporation [see Corp.

Code § 310].

11. Determine whether issuance of shares will require permit from California Commissioner of Corporations or whether issuance will be exempt from qualification) [see Corp. Code § 25100 et seq.; Ch. 6, Securities Regulation Issues ; Ch. 6I, Issuance of Equity Securities .

12. Determine whether issuance of shares will require registration with Securities and Exchange Commission [see Ch. 6, Securities Regulation Issues ; Ch. 6A, Federal Securities Exemptions for California Nonpublic Corporations ; Ch. 6I, Issuance of Equity Securities].

13. Determine whether issuance of shares will require compliance with securities laws of other states.

14. Determine whether to execute indemnity agreements with directors [see §§ 5.11, 5.221[1][g]].

15. Determine whether to execute confidentiality agreements with directors and officers as a condition of employment.

16. Determine whether to elect Subchapter S status [see I.R.C. §§ 1361-1379].

NOTE:
Election of S corporation status must be made on or before the fifteenth day of the third month of the first taxable year to which the election applies [I.R.C. § 1362(b)].

17. Determine whether shares will be qualified as I.R.C. § 1244 (small business) stock [see § 5.222[1][e]; Ch. 6I, Issuance of Equity Securities].

18. Determine which bank will house corporate checking and savings accounts and serve as depository for employment trust fund taxes.

19. Determine corporation's fiscal year.

20. Determine professional advisors of corporation (i.e., attorneys, accountants).

21. Determine whether corporation will do business under fictitious name [see Ch. 1B, Selecting Form of Business Entity].

22. Determine whether corporation must secure any business or professional licenses or local permits.

§ 5.111 Regular or Special Meetings

1. If meeting is annual organizational meeting, ascertain names of officer nominees for election.

NOTE:
Immediately after each annual shareholders' meeting, the board of directors normally holds its own annual meeting. This meeting is sometimes referred to as an organizational meeting, because it is the first meeting following the annual election of directors. Although not required by statute, this meeting ordinarily is held to elect the officers of the corporation who will serve during the coming year.

2. If meeting is a special meeting, determine whether party requesting meeting is authorized to call it [see Corp. Code § 307(a)(2) (parties authorized to call special directors meetings); § 5.32[3]].

3. Determine date of meeting.

4. Determine place of meeting.

NOTE:
Meetings may be held at any place (within California or elsewhere) designated in the meeting's notice, or if not stated in the notice or there is no notice, designated in the bylaws or by board resolution [Corp. Code § 307(a)(5)].

5. Determine whether notice of meeting is required [see Corp. Code § 307(a)(2)].

6. If notice is required, determine date by which corporate secretary or other officer must send notice.

NOTE:

Special meetings may be held on four days notice by mail, or 48 hours notice delivered personally or by telephone, including a voice messaging system, or by electronic transmission by the corporation [Corp. Code § 307(a)(2)].

7. Determine number of directors required for quorum at meeting [see Corp. Code § 307(a)(8); § 5.32[6]].

8. Determine business to be conducted at meeting.

§ 5.112 Adjourned Meetings

1. Determine whether notice of meeting is required.

   NOTE:
   If the meeting is adjourned for more than 24 hours, notice of adjournment to another time and place must be given before the time of the adjourned meeting to the directors who were not present when the original meeting was adjourned [Corp. Code § 307(a)(4); see § 5.32[7]].

§ 5.113 Written Consents without Meeting

1. Determine whether all directors will consent to specified action.

NOTE:
An action by written consent without a meeting requires the consent of all the members of the board, and the number of board members serving at that time must constitute a quorum [Corp. Code § 307(b); see § 5.33].

2. Determine whether action by written consent is preferable to vote at directors meeting.

PRACTICE TIP:
Corporate actions can be taken more quickly using written consents than at meetings because action taken at a directors meeting requires the presence of at least a quorum. Taking action by written consent can be accomplished quickly because facsimile signatures can be used. If obtaining signatures by facsimile, also request an original copy by mail. Commentary by Marilyn E. Minger

NOTE:

There is no statutory distinction between a first meeting of directors and any other directors meeting, whether the actions are taken by written consent without a meeting or at a meeting. The first meeting is distinguished in practice, however, by the type of actions taken and resolutions passed. The first meeting is generally an organizational meeting during which formal organizational actions are taken. Those actions include adopting the bylaws (if not already done so by the incorporators), adopting a form of share certificate, authorizing issuance of shares. For a list of actions often taken at the first directors meeting see § 5.121.

§ 5.120 Pre-Meeting Procedure

NOTE:

The directors may act by written consent without a meeting. However, an action by written consent requires the consent of the members of the board, and the number of board members serving at that time must constitute a quorum [Corp. Code § 307(b)]. For further discussion of written consents, see § 5.33. For a form for first actions by written consent, see § 5.222. With minor modifications, this form may be used when the actions are taken at a meeting rather than by written consent. For a form for minutes of a regular directors meeting, see § 5.230.

If any of the actions to be taken require discussion, or have not been fully, although informally, agreed on by the directors, the better practice may be to hold a meeting where the matters can be discussed and any differences resolved.

1. Fix time and place of meeting (or arrange to have written consents signed).

2. If meeting is to be held, have directors call it [see § 5.200].

NOTE:

A meeting of the board of directors may be called by any two directors and, if officers have been elected or appointed by the incorporators [see Corp. Code § 210], by the chair of the board, the president, any vice president, or the secretary of the corporation [Corp. Code § 307(a)(1)].

3. Prepare notice of meeting [see Corp. Code § 307(a)(2); §§ 5.111(6), 5.201], or the waiver of notice to be signed by each director [see Corp. Code § 307(a)(3); § 5.210].

4. Draft documents that need approval at meeting, such as bylaws, indemnity agreements, confidentiality agreements, subscription agreements.

5. Draft resolutions to be adopted at first meeting or by unanimous written consent [see § 5.222[2]; see also §§ 5.240 et seq.], including, as appropriate, resolutions that:

NOTE:
The only resolutions ordinarily adopted at the first meeting of the directors are formal organizational resolutions, as to which there are generally no disputes, and the gist of which have already been decided by the incorporators.

a. Ratify actions taken by incorporator or incorporators.

b. Ratify articles of incorporation.

c. Approve any preincorporation contracts entered into on behalf of corporation.

d. Direct corporation to maintain minute book.

e. Adopt corporate seal.

f. Adopt bylaws of corporation [see Ch. 4, Bylaws].

g. Name corporation's agent for service of process.

h. Designate location of corporation's principal executive office [see Corp. Code § 1502(a)].

i. Adopt form of corporation's share certificate.

j. Adopt corporation's fiscal year.

k. Select officers of corporation, and fix their compensation.

l. Fix directors' compensation.

m. Fix number of shares, price per share, and (if known) persons or entities to whom shares will be sold.

n. Authorize all actions necessary for corporation to issue and sell shares, in accordance with applicable laws, including (if applicable):

NOTE:
The actions required to comply with the California securities laws will depend on whether or not the securities will have to be qualified for sale in California or, if not, on the specific exemption from qualification that the corporation will rely on in issuing the securities. Similar issues frequently exist under federal laws and, if an offering will be made in more than one state, compliance with the blue sky laws of the other states involved will also be required. For an overview of the regulatory issues relating to offerings of securities, see Ch. 6, Securities Regulation Issues . For detailed coverage of the requirements under some of the more commonly used exemptions from California qualification, see Ch. 6B, California Limited Offering Exemption , Ch. 6C, California Small Offering Exemption , and Ch. 6C, California Qualified Purchaser Exemptions . For coverage of the California qualification process, see Ch. 6H, Qualification of Securities . Federal securities exemptions are covered in Ch. 6A, Federal Securities Exemptions for California Nonpublic Corporations .

(1) Filing appropriate notice under Corp. Code § 25102(f) or 25102(h) with Commissioner of Corporations, or obtaining qualification of offer and sale of shares from California Commissioner of Corporations; and

(2) Completing all acts necessary under federal securities laws and applicable securities laws of any other state.

o. Approve form and authorize execution of indemnity agreements.

p. Approve form and authorize execution of confidentiality agreements.

q. Authorize sale of shares in accordance with I.R.C. § 1244.

r. Elect Subchapter S status, if appropriate.

s. Authorize and direct officers to qualify corporation to do business in other states.

t. Authorize and direct officers to obtain federal and state employee identification numbers.

u. Authorize and direct corporate secretary to file Statement by Domestic Stock Corporation (annual informational statement) with the California Secretary of State [see Corp. Code § 1502(a)].

v. Authorize and direct corporate secretary (or appropriate officer) to obtain licenses, authorizations, and permits for the corporation's business.

w. Select bank for corporation's checking and savings accounts and depositary for corporation's employment taxes trust funds.

x. Designate corporate officers authorized to endorse checks, drafts, or other evidences of indebtedness made payable to corporation.

y. Designate required signatories for checks, drafts, and other instruments obligating corporation to pay money.

z. Adopt standard form of corporate resolution required by bank for opening corporate accounts.

aa. Designate required signatories for contracts, agreement, and documents other than check, drafts, and other evidences of indebtedness [see P z, above].

bb. Direct chief financial officer to pay corporation's expenses of incorporation and organization.

cc. Appoint corporation's legal counsel.

dd. Appoint corporation's accountant.

ee. Grant general authority to officers to undertake acts to carry out the resolutions adopted.

6. Determine any other matters that should be dealt with at first directors meeting.

7. Obtain from legal stationer:

a. Minute book.

NOTE:
The minute book is essentially a binder into which the minutes, calls, notices, and waivers of notice of directors', shareholders', and board committee meetings are put [see Corp. Code §§ 307(a)(3), 601(e), 1500].

b. Share certificates to be adopted by directors at first meeting.

8. Obtain from bank where corporation will maintain its account:

a. Copies of form resolution, which bank requires directors to adopt, authorizing corporation to maintain its account at that bank.

b. Appropriate signature cards for corporate secretary to certify.

9. If actions required to be taken at first meeting will be taken by unanimous written consent:

a. Prepare written consent or consents [see § 5.222].

b. Have each director sign either collective form or individual form of consent.

c. Deliver signed consent or consents to corporate secretary to file with minutes of board proceedings [see Corp. Code § 307(b)].

10. If directors will participate through use of electronic video screen communication or electronic transmission by and to corporation, advise corporation to adopt and implement procedures to [Corp. Code § 307(a)(6); see § 5.32]:

NOTE:
At the meeting, each director participating through use of communications equipment other than a conference telephone must be able to communicate with all other directors concurrently. Further, each director must be able to participate in all matters before the board, including the ability to propose or object to a specific corporate action [Corp. Code § 307(a)(6)].

a. Verify identity of director or other person entitled to participate in meeting.

b. Ensure that all board actions or votes are taken or cast only by directors.

PART III. TRANSACTION GUIDE
C. Procedural Guide to Directors' First Meeting

2-5 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 5.121

AUTHOR: Marilyn E. Minger, Practice Consultant

§ 5.121 Procedure at First Meeting

1. Distribute meeting's agenda to each director [see § 5.232].

2. Confirm that quorum is present.

NOTE:

Unless otherwise provided in the articles of incorporation [see Corp. Code § 204(a)(5)], a quorum is a majority of the authorized number of directors [Corp. Code § 307(a)(7)]. The articles or bylaws may provide that less than a majority of directors constitutes a quorum. However, a quorum may not be less than one third of the authorized number of directors or two directors, whichever is larger (except for corporations with one director, in which case one director constitutes a quorum) [Corp. Code § 307(a)(7); see Corp. Code § 212(b)(4) (bylaw provisions)]. Furthermore, neither the articles nor the bylaws may provide that a vote of less than a majority of the directors present at a meeting is a valid action of the board [Corp. Code § 307(a)(8)]. The articles, or a statutory close corporation shareholders' agreement, may require a quorum greater than a majority of the authorized number of directors [Corp. Code §§ 204(a)(5), 300(b), (c)]. For further discussion of computing a quorum, see § 5.32[6][c].

3. Call meeting to order.

4. Select director to act as temporary chair and another to act as temporary secretary.

5. Deliver minute book to temporary secretary and have secretary take minutes of meeting [see Corp. Code § 1500; see also §§ 5.222[2], 5.230].

6. Confirm that meeting is being held pursuant to:

a. Notice [see Corp. Code § 307(a)(2)];

b. Waiver of notice [see Corp. Code § 307(a)(3)]; or

c. Presence at meeting without protesting lack of notice [see Corp. Code § 307(a)(3)].

7. Confirm that articles of incorporation have been filed with Secretary of State.

NOTE:
Corporate existence begins with the filing of the articles of incorporation [see Corp. Code § 200(c); see also Corp. Code § 169 ("filed" defined)].

8. Direct that copy of articles, certified by Secretary of State, be filed in minute book or corporate records.

NOTE:
Although there is no statutory requirement that the articles be filed in the minute book, it is customary to do so.

9. Confirm that agent for service of process designated in articles [see Corp. Code § 202(c)] has consented to serve.

10. If agent is corporation, confirm that it has filed required certificate with Secretary of State [see Corp. Code § 1505].

11. Ratify actions of incorporator or incorporators.

12. Adopt proposed bylaws [see Corp. Code §§ 207(b), 211] as presented or amended at meeting [see § 5.120, P 5f].

13. Direct that copy of bylaws, certified by corporate secretary, be kept at corporation's principal executive office in California, and another copy, similarly certified, be filed in minute book.

NOTE:
Although a copy of the bylaws as amended to date must be kept at the corporation's principal executive office in California [see Corp. Code § 213], there is no statutory requirement that the copy be certified by the secretary or that a copy be filed in the minute book. It is customary, however, to do so. A copy of the bylaws certified by the corporate secretary or an assistant secretary is prima facie evidence of the adoption of the bylaws and of the matters stated in them [Corp. Code § 314].

14. Elect additional directors if number of initial directors is less than number fixed in the bylaws [see Corp. Code § 305].

NOTE:
The adoption of bylaws fixing a greater number of directors than the number initially named may destroy a quorum at the first meeting. In that case, the additional directors to be elected should be present at the meeting in order to assume office immediately on their election to assure the continuation of a quorum [see Corp. Code § 307(a)(7), (8)]. Alternatively, the adoption of the bylaws may be moved to the end of the agenda.

15. Fix directors' compensation.

16. Elect officers and fix officer compensation [see Corp. Code § 312(a)].

17. Turn meeting over to newly elected officers, if present.

18. Adopt resolution directing secretary or other officer to keep minute book.

19. Adopt resolution establishing street address of corporation's principal executive office, if not done in bylaws [see Corp. Code § 1502(a)(4); see also § 5.120, P 5h].

20. Adopt seal [see Corp. Code § 207(a)], if not done in bylaws.

21. Adopt form of share certificate [see § 5.120, P 5i].

NOTE:

For a general discussion of the use of an electronic system of share issuance, recordation, and transfer in lieu of stock certificates, see Ch. 6I, Issuance of Equity Securities .

22. Ratify and adopt any preincorporation contracts [see 5.120, P 5c].

NOTE:

If an ongoing business is to be transferred to the corporation, a conveyance, contract of sale, or assignment is required [see Maron v. Howard (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 473, 485, 66 Cal. Rptr. 70 (incorporation of sole proprietorship); Lance v. Forsberg (1951) 106 Cal. App. 2d 226, 230, 234 P.2d 662 (incorporation of partnership)]. Frequently, a formal written offer to transfer the business to the corporation for the consideration specified will be delivered to the board of directors which will adopt a resolution accepting the offer. If shares will be issued in exchange for the business, the resolution should state in monetary terms the value of the business to the corporation [see Corp. Code § 409(e)] and authorize issuance of shares in exchange for the business [see also Com. Code § 6101 et seq. (application of bulk transfer provisions)]. If liabilities will be assumed, appropriate resolutions should be adopted and notices given to creditors. The transfer of property in exchange for shares should be timed to occur when the shares are issued.

The tax consequences of the transfer of property to a corporation in exchange wholly or in part for shares are discussed in Rabkin & Johnson, Federal Income, Gift, and Estate Taxation, Ch. 31, Exchange for Securities*, § 31.03 et seq.* (Matthew Bender).

For discussion of the sale of an ongoing business, including discussion of the Bulk Sales Division of the Commercial Code [see Com. Code § 6101 et seq.], see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice . For discussion of the sale of a business and liquor license, see Ch. 18 Buying and Selling a Retail Alcoholic Beverage License and Business . For discussion of the acquisition of assets for corporate shares, see Ch. 11E, Acquisition of Assets for Shares .

23. Fix consideration to be received for shares or other securities [see Corp. Code § 409(a)(1); see also §§ 5.120, P 5m, 5.248].

24. Authorize issuance of shares or other securities and necessary proceedings before, or filings with, California Corporations Commissioner related to qualification or exemption from qualification [see Corp. Code § 25100 et seq.; see also § 5.120, P 5n; Ch. 6, Securities Regulation Issues].

25. Subject to compliance with the Corporate Securities Law, accept any preincorporation subscription agreements [see § 5.120, P 5m].

26. Authorize filings with Securities and Exchange Commission [see 17 C.F.R. §§ 230, 231; see also § 5.120, P 5n].

27. Authorize compliance with securities laws of other states.

28. Approve form and authorize execution of indemnity agreements.

29. Approve form and authorize execution of confidentiality agreements.

30. Authorize sale of shares in accordance with Internal Revenue Code § 1244.

31. Elect Subchapter S status, if applicable.

32. Authorize and direct officers to qualify corporation to do business in other states.

NOTE:

Shares are not required under the General Corporation Law to have a par value. However, solely for the purpose of any statute or regulation imposing a tax or fee based on the capitalization of a corporation, all authorized shares of a corporation organized under the General Corporation Law are deemed to have a nominal or par value of $1 [Corp. Code § 205]. This provision was designed to apply when a California corporation seeks to qualify to do business in other jurisdictions imposing taxes or fees based on the capitalization of qualified foreign corporations [see Report of Assembly Select Committee on the Revision of the Corporate Code, pp. 35, 36 (Dec. 1, 1975)]. For corporations subject to the "prior" corporations law in effect before 1977 [see Corp. Code § 2300], the absence of any reference to par value in the articles is equivalent to a statement that the shares of stock have no par value [Corp. Code § 2302.5].

33. Authorize and direct officers to obtain federal and state employee identification numbers.

34. Authorize and direct corporate secretary to file Statement by Domestic Stock Corporation (annual informational statement) with the California Secretary of State [see Corp. Code § 1502(a); see also Ch. 7 Corporate Records and Reports (form)].

NOTE:

Publicly traded corporations must file an additional disclosure statement [see Corp. Code § 1502.1; see also Ch. 7, Corporate Records and Reports (form)].

35. Authorize preparation and filing of applications for any required business, professional licenses or registrations, or any local permits or licenses [see § 5.120, P 5w].

NOTE:

Many businesses must first obtain a license or permit from, or register with, one or more public entities, including state and local municipalities, in order to engage in business.

36. Approve payment of organizational and incorporation expenses [see § 5.120, P 5cc].

NOTE:

For rules governing reimbursement of actual and necessary expenses paid by a promoter in connection with the organization, see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.33. Promotional shares are covered in 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.140.30 et seq. If any director has a material financial interest in the arrangements between the corporation and its promoters, the transaction must meet the disclosure and approval requirements specified in Corp. Code § 310.

For the rules governing treatment of organizational expenses for tax purposes, see I.R.C. § 248(a); Treasury Regulations § 1.248-1(a) (expenses paid or incurred before Sept. 8, 2008); Treasury Regulations § 1.248-1T(a) (expenses paid or incurred on or after Sept. 8, 2008, and before July 7, 2011, when section is due to expire); Rev. & Tax. Code § 24407; and 18 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 24407-24409. An "organizational expenditure" is defined (for tax purposes) as any expenditure that is (1) incident to the creation of the corporation; (2) chargeable to a capital account; and (3) of a character which, if expended incident to the creation of a corporation having a limited life, would be amortizable over that life [I.R.C. § 248(b); Treas. Reg. § 1.248-1(b); Rev. & Tax. Code § 24408]. An expenditure that does not meet each of these three tests may not be considered an organizational expenditure for purposes of I.R.C. § 248 or Rev. & Tax. Code § 24407, and the regulations under these codes [Treas. Reg. § 1.248-1(b)(1); 18 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 24407-24409].

37. Adopt corporation's fiscal year [see § 5.120, P 5j].

NOTE:

For factors to consider in selecting the fiscal year, see Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Laws, Ch. 3, Formation of Corporations (Matthew Bender).

38. Select bank for corporation's checking and savings accounts and depositary for corporation's employment taxes trust funds.

39. Designate corporate officers authorized to endorse checks, drafts, or other evidences of indebtedness made payable to corporation.

40. Designate required signatories for checks, drafts, and other instruments obligating corporation to pay money.

41. Adopt standard form of corporate resolution required by bank for opening corporate accounts.

42. Designate required signatories for contracts, agreement, and documents other than check, drafts, and other evidences of indebtedness.

43. Appoint corporation's legal counsel.

44. Appoint corporation's accountant.

45. Approve or consider other matters, if any, on agenda [see, e.g., §§ 5.222[1][e]-[i], 5.242 et seq.].

46. Adjourn meeting.

§ 5.122 Post-First Meeting Procedure

1. Ensure that copy of bylaws certified by corporate secretary is kept at corporation's principal executive office in California, and another copy, similarly certified, is filed in minute book [see § 5.121, P 12].

NOTE:
Additional copies may be required to be certified for filing with the Commissioner of Corporations, the Securities and Exchange Commission, or other parties with whom the corporation will transact business.

2. Have corporate secretary certify copies of resolutions adopted at the meeting relating to issuance of shares or other matters involving third parties, such as Commissioner of Corporations or banks.

3. Prepare (and file, as required) any documents or applications required to effectuate matters authorized in adopted resolutions.

§ 5.130 Call and Notice

1. If meeting is a special meeting, prepare call [see § 5.200].

NOTE:
Meetings of the board may be called by the chair of the board, the president, the corporate secretary, or any two directors [Corp. Code § 307(a)(1)].

2. If meeting is a regular meeting, prepare written notice of meeting, if time and place of meeting is not stated in bylaws or fixed by board, including [see Corp. Code § 307(a)(2)]:

a. Place of meeting [see Corp. Code § 307(a)(5)].

b. Date and time of meeting [Corp. Code § 307(a)(2).

c. Matters that board, at time of mailing notice, intends to present for action by directors.

NOTE:
As a practical matter, although not required by statute [see Corp. Code § 307(a)(2)], the meeting's agenda is often included in the meeting notice [see, e.g., § 5.232].

3. If special meeting, prepare written notice of meeting, including [see Corp. Code § 307(a)(2)]:

a. Place of meeting [see Corp. Code § 307(a)(5)].

b. Date and time of meeting [Corp. Code § 307(a)(2).

c. Matters that board, at time of mailing notice, intends to present for action by directors.

NOTE:

As a practical matter, although not required by statute [see Corp. Code § 307(a)(2)], the meeting's agenda is often included in the meeting notice [see, e.g., § 5.232].

Unlike regular meetings, which may be held without notice if the time and place are fixed by the bylaws or the board [Corp. Code § 307(a)(2)], notice of special board meetings may not be dispensed with by the articles or bylaws [Corp. Code § 307(a)(2)]. Special meetings may be held on four days notice by mail, or 48 hours notice delivered personally, by telephone, including a voice messaging system, or by electronic transmission by the corporation [Corp. Code § 307(a)(2)]. For further discussion, see § 5.32[5].

4. Ensure that written notice is given to each director [see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.130 (mail defined); Corp. Code § 118 (time notice is given)].

5. Prepare proof of giving notice [see § 5.203].

§ 5.131 Waivers of Notice; Consents to Holding Meeting; Approval of Minutes; Minutes

1. If desired, prepare and send written waiver of notice, consent to holding of meeting, or approval of minutes to directors before meeting [Corp. Code § 307(a)(3); see § 5.210].

2. Ensure that any waivers, consents, or approvals of the minutes are signed and filed with corporate records or minutes.

NOTE:

Notice of a meeting does not need to be given to any director who either before or after the meeting signs a waiver of notice or a consent to hold the meeting, an approval of the minutes of the meeting, or who attends the meeting without protesting the lack of notice before or at the commencement of the meeting [Corp. Code § 307(a)(3)]. Waivers, consent, and approvals of the minutes must be filed with the corporate records, or made a part of the minutes of the meeting [Corp. Code § 307(a)(3)]. The waiver does not need to specify the purpose of the meeting for which notice is waived [Corp. Code § 307(a)(2)].

Some practitioners recommend that small, closely held corporations make it a practice to have all the directors sign one of these forms even though call and notice of the meeting were regularly given, in the event of a possible irregularity.

3. If practical, prepare minutes of meeting in advance [see Ch. 7, Corporate Records and Reports].

NOTE:

In closely held corporations, minutes are frequently prepared in advance when unanimous approval to proposed actions is anticipated.

§ 5.140 Holding Regular or Special Meetings

NOTE:
For a meeting agenda the presiding officer may use at the meeting see § 5.232. The steps enumerated in the paragraphs below are those likely to be the responsibility of the corporation's attorney, who is not necessarily the presiding officer.

1. Determine whether a quorum is present [see Corp. Code § 307(a)(7), (8)].

NOTE:
For further discussion of the statutory requirements for a quorum, including how to compute a quorum and the actions permitted absent a quorum, see § 5.32[6].

2. If quorum is not present, have majority of directors present adjourn meeting [Corp. Code § 307(a)(4); see § 5.32[7] for procedures applicable to adjourned meetings].

NOTE:
A majority of directors present at a meeting may adjourn the meeting to another time and place, whether or not there is a quorum [Corp. Code § 307(a)(4)]. However, unless the articles or bylaws require otherwise, business may continue to be transacted at a meeting at which a quorum was initially present even after enough directors leave to destroy the quorum, provided that any action taken is approved by a majority of the quorum required for the meeting [Corp. Code § 307(a)(8)].

3. Record and tabulate votes on specific proposals.

4. After business has been transacted, have presiding director adjourn meeting.

5. If meeting was irregularly called or noticed:

a. Send directors (if not done before meeting) written waiver of notice of meeting, consent to holding of meeting and approval of minutes of meeting [Corp. Code § 307(a)(3); see § 5.210].

b. Ensure that any waivers, consents, or approvals are filed with corporate records, or made part of minutes of meeting [Corp. Code § 307(a)(3)].

§ 5.151 Checklist for Minutes

NOTE:
This checklist may be used by the attorney or corporate official assigned to take the minutes as the basis for preparing the formal minutes of the meeting. For discussion of how much elaboration of the board's discussions is appropriate in recordings of board proceedings, see § 5.230[1][e].

1. Name of corporation.

2. Date and time of meeting.

3. Place of meeting.

4. Type of meeting (regular, special, or adjourned).

5. Whether notice was required, given, or waived [see § 5.32[5]].

6. Number of directors required for a quorum [see 5.32[8]].

7. Names of directors who are present.

8. Names of directors who are absent.

9. Names of other persons present.

10. Names of presiding director and person taking minutes.

11. Whether minutes of preceding meeting were approved.

12. Election of officers (after annual shareholders' meeting, or as required by resignation or removal).

NOTE:

A corporation must have a chair of the board or a president (or both), a corporate secretary, a chief financial officer, and other officers as necessary, to sign instruments and share certificates [Corp. Code § 312(a)].

Unless otherwise provided in the articles or bylaws, the president or the chair of the board (if there is no president) is the corporation's general manager and chief executive officer [Corp. Code § 312(a)].

Unless otherwise provided in the articles or bylaws, the same person may hold any number of offices [Corp. Code § 312(a)].

13. Other actions taken at meeting.

14. Other matters considered.

15. Time and place of next meeting, if customary or necessary.

16. Adjournment.

§ 5.160 Action by Written Consent Without Meeting

1. Prepare appropriate written consent form [see, e.g., §§ 5.220-5.223].

2. Send consent form to each director for signature.

3. Contact any director who fails to return consent form within specified time period.

4. Tabulate consents to determine whether [see Corp. Code § 307(b); see also § 5.33]:

a. Proposed action received unanimous consent of all members of board; and

NOTE:
For purposes of unanimous board action without a meeting, the term "all members of the board" includes an "interested director" [see Corp. Code § 310(a)] or a "common director" [see Corp. Code § 310(b)] who abstains in writing from providing consent, when (1) the disclosures required by Corp. Code § 310 (generally requiring full disclosure of the material facts regarding the transaction and the director's interest) [see Ch. 4, Bylaws*, § 4.200[2],* Section 2.23] have been made to the noninterested or noncommon directors, as applicable, before their execution of the written consent or consents; (2) the specified disclosures are conspicuously included in the written consent(s) executed by the noninterested or noncommon directors; and (3) the noninterested or noncommon directors, as applicable, approve the action by a vote that is sufficient without counting the votes of the interested or common directors [Corp. Code § 307(b)]. If the directors give written consent in accordance with this rule, but the disclosures made regarding the action that is the subject of the consent do not satisfy statutory requirements [see Corp. Code § 310], the action that is the subject of the consent nevertheless will be deemed approved. However, in any suit brought to challenge the action, the party asserting the validity of the action bears the burden of proof in establishing that the action was just and reasonable to the corporation at the time it was approved [Corp. Code § 307(b)].

b. Number of board members consenting to action constitutes a quorum.

5. Have corporate secretary file following as part of corporate records:

a. Written consents.

b. Copies of any notices sent to directors.

6. Furnish copies of consent to officers directed to take action.

§ 5.200 Call of Directors Meeting

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is to be used to call a regular or special meeting of the board of directors. For a notice of a regular or special meeting, see § 5.201. If the call of meeting of a committee of the board of directors is desired, this form may be modified accordingly [see Corp. Code § 307(c)].

[b] Written Call Not Required

Although the statute does not require a written call of the meeting, it may be useful as a record that the meeting was properly called [see [d], below]. If a call is used, it should be filed with the notice of the minutes in the corporate minute book.

[c] Call and Notice Distinguished

A call orders a meeting held; a notice informs the directors of the meeting and the time and place it will be held [see Bell v. Standard Quicksilver Co. (1905) 146 Cal. 699, 705, 81 P. 17] . A call, therefore, should be signed and delivered [see [d], below] to the person, frequently the corporate secretary, who will give notice of the meeting.

[d] Persons Authorized to Call Meeting

Unless otherwise provided in the articles of incorporation or the bylaws, board meetings may be called by the chair of the board, the president, any vice president, the corporate secretary, or any two directors [Corp. Code § 307(a)(1)].

§ 5.201 Notice of Directors Meeting

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is to be used to give notice to the directors of a regular, special, or annual organizational meeting of the board. The original notice signed by the corporate secretary or other officer whose responsibility it is to give notice is ordinarily filed with the minutes of the meeting to which it relates.

PRACTICE TIP:
When sending notice of a meeting to the directors, include a copy of the minutes of the previous minutes so the directors may review them prior to the meeting at which they will need to be approved.
Commentary by Marilyn E. Minger

If a written call signed by an officer authorized to call a board meeting [see Corp. Code § 307(a)(1); § 5.200[1][d]] contains the information required in the notice [see [d], below], a copy of the call may be sent to each director instead of the notice [see Bell v. Standard Quicksilver Co. (1905) 146 Cal. 699, 705, 81 P. 17] . For a call form, see § 5.200.

[b] When Notice is Required

Regular board meetings may be held without notice if the time and place are fixed by the bylaws or the board [Corp. Code § 307(a)(2)]. Notice of special board meetings, however, may not be dispensed with by the articles or bylaws [Corp. Code § 307(a)(2)]. Special meetings may be held on four days notice by mail, or 48 hours notice delivered personally, by telephone, including a voice messaging system, or by electronic transmission by the corporation [Corp. Code § 307(a)(2)]. For notice requirements applicable to adjourned meetings, see § 5.32[7].

[c] Waiver of Notice

Notice does not need to be given to any director who, before or after the meeting, signs a waiver of notice or a consent to hold the meeting, an approval of the minutes of the meeting, or who attends the meeting without protesting the lack of notice before or at the beginning of the meeting [Corp. Code § 307(a)(3)].

[d] Contents of Notice

The notice includes the date, time, and ordinarily, the place [see [e], below] of the meeting [see Bell v. Standard Quicksilver Co. (1905) 146 Cal. 699, 705, 81 P. 17] . Unless the articles or bylaws provide otherwise, however, the notice does not need to specify the purpose of either regular or special meetings of the board [Corp. Code § 307(a)(2)]. The optional provision in the form below, enumerating the matters to be brought before the board at the meeting, may be included if desired.

[e] Place of Meeting

Meetings may be held at any place in California or elsewhere that has been designated in the meeting's notice [Corp. Code § 307(a)(5)]. If the meeting place is not stated in the notice, or there is no notice, the meeting may be held at any place designated in the bylaws or by resolution of the board [Corp. Code § 307(a)(5); see Corp. Code § 212(b)(2)].

[f] Proof of Notice

If notice is given, the minutes of the meeting usually recite that the meeting is being held pursuant to notice, given to each director in a correct and timely manner [see, e.g., § 5.230[2]]. Such a recital in the minutes is itself prima facie proof that the notice was properly given and may, on approval of the minutes at a subsequent meeting at which all the directors participated, become conclusive proof [see Sferlazzo v. Oliphant (1914) 24 Cal. App. 81, 85, 140 P. 289] . Other proof, however, may also be introduced to show that notice was properly given [see Sferlazzo v. Oliphant (1914) 24 Cal. App. 81, 85, 140 P. 289] .

[g] Rules Applicable to Committee Meetings

The notice requirements discussed in this section also apply to meetings of committees of the board and of incorporators [Corp. Code § 307(c)].

§ 5.202 Notice of Adjourned Directors Meeting

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is to be used to give notice to the directors of an adjourned meeting of the board. Alternate provisions are provided for use if the adjournment resulted from the lack of a quorum, or if the adjournment was for any other reason. For a notice of a regular or special meeting, see § 5.201. For discussion of the contents of the notice, the place of meeting, waiver of notice, proof of notice, and applicability of these rules to meetings of committees of the board, see § 5.201[c]-[g]. For discussion of the requirements and effect of a quorum, and how to compute a quorum, see § 5.32[6]. For further discussion of adjournment, see § 5.32[7].

[b] When Notice is Required

If the meeting is adjourned for more than 24 hours, notice of adjournment to another time and place must be given before the time of the adjourned meeting to the directors who were not present when the original meeting was adjourned [Corp. Code § 307(a)(4)].

§ 5.203 Declaration of Giving Notice of Directors Meeting

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is to be used by the corporate officer (often the Corporate Secretary) whose responsibility it is to give notice of the meeting, to prove that notice of the meeting was given [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2009 (affidavit may be used to prove notice); Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 (declaration under penalty of perjury may be used in lieu of affidavit)]. Although the statute does not require a written declaration of giving notice, it is sometimes useful to provide a record. If used, this form should be filed with the notice and the minutes of the meeting.

For discussion and a form for notice, see §§ 5.201, 5.202.

§ 5.210 Waiver of Notice, Consent to Holding of Directors Meeting, and Approval of Minutes

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is for use by directors to waive notice and consent to the holding of a board meeting and to approve the minutes of that meeting. Corp. Code § 307(a)(3) provides that notice need not be given to a director who signs a waiver, a consent to holding the meeting, or an approval of the minutes of the meeting. The usual practice is to use a form in which the director or directors do all three things: waive, consent, and approve. If there is a reason for the director not to concurrently waive, consent and approve, the form may be modified accordingly.

Individual waivers may be signed, or a single waiver may be signed collectively or in counterparts. This form may be signed either before or after the meeting [see [b], below], and must be filed with the corporate records or made a part of the minutes of the meeting [see [b], below].

This form may be modified for similar use with respect to meetings of committees of the board.

The optional paragraph in this form must be included if the corporation's articles of incorporation or bylaws require that any waiver of notice or consent to the holding of a meeting specify the business to be transacted and/or the purpose of any regular or special meeting [see Corp. Code § 307(a)].

In practice, small or medium-sized corporations often dispense with formal written notice to the directors and call meetings by informal notice, using a waiver of notice and consent signed by any director not present and filed with the corporate records [see Corp. Code § 307(a)(3); [b], below]. Some practitioners recommend that small, closely held corporations require their directors to sign this type of form even if call and notice of the meeting were regularly given, as a protection against any possible irregularity in the call or notice.

If any director refuses or is unable to sign a waiver of notice and consent, or attend a meeting, the meeting may be held after providing statutory call and notice. For discussion of and forms for call and notice, see §§ 5.200 and 5.201-5.202, respectively.

[b] Effect of Waiver, Consent, and Approval; Statutory Requirements

Notice of a meeting does not need to be given to any director who, either before or after the meeting, signs a waiver of notice, a consent to hold the meeting, an approval of the minutes of the meeting, or who attends the meeting without protesting the lack of notice before or at the beginning of the meeting [Corp. Code § 307(a)(3)]. Waivers, consents, and approvals of the minutes must be filed with the corporate records or made a part of the minutes of the meeting [Corp. Code § 307(a)(3)].

Unless the articles or bylaws provide otherwise, the waiver, consent and approval does not need to specify the purpose of the meeting for which notice is waived [Corp. Code § 307(a)(2)].

§ 5.221 Action by Unanimous Written Consent of Directors

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a unanimous written consent to be used by the directors to approve a corporate action without a meeting. In practice, nonpublic corporations often act without a meeting, using a written consent. Individual consents may be signed, or a single consent may be signed collectively or in counterparts [see [2], below]. The wording of a resolution to be approved by the directors in an action by written consent is usually in the same form as it would appear in the minutes of a board meeting, had one been held. For discussion of the various formats for resolutions, see § 5.240. This form and §§ 5.222 and 5.223 illustrate different format options. For sample resolutions covering common corporate actions, see §§ 5.222 and 5.242 et seq. For a letter soliciting the directors' consent in writing, see § 5.220.

This form may be modified for use to approve actions of a board committee by written consent.

[b] Effect; Statutory Requirements

The directors may act by written consent without a meeting. However, an action by written consent without a meeting requires the consent of all of the members of board and, in addition, the number of board members consenting to action must be sufficient to constitute a quorum [Corp. Code § 307(b); see Corp. Code § 194 (vote includes authorization by written consent)].

For purposes of unanimous board action without a meeting, the term "all members of the board" includes an "interested director" [see Corp. Code § 310(a)] or a "common director" [see Corp. Code § 310(b)] who abstains in writing from providing consent, when [Corp. Code § 307(b)]:

- The disclosures required by Corp. Code § 310 (generally requiring full disclosure of the material facts regarding the transaction and the director's interest) [see Ch. 4, Bylaws, § 4.200[2], Section 2.23] have been made to the noninterested or noncommon directors, as applicable, before their execution of the written consent or consents;

- The specified disclosures are conspicuously included in the written consent or consents executed by the noninterested or noncommon directors; and

- The noninterested or noncommon directors, as applicable, approve the action by a vote that is sufficient without counting the votes of the interested or common directors.

If the directors give written consent in accordance with the preceding rule, but the disclosures made regarding the action that is the subject of the consent do not satisfy statutory requirements [see Corp. Code § 310], the action that is the subject of the consent will be deemed approved. However, in any suit brought to challenge the action, the party asserting the validity of the action has the burden of proof in establishing that the action was just and reasonable to the corporation at the time it was approved [Corp. Code § 307(b)].

The consent may be in the form of individual consents or one collective consent, which collective consent may be executed in counterparts [see Corp. Code § 307(b)]. A "written" consent includes signatures collected by facsimile or by telegraphic communication [see Corp. Code § 195]. The consents must be filed with the minutes of the board's proceedings [Corp. Code § 307(b)].

PART IV. FORMS
C. Directors' Action by Written Consent

2-5 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 5.222

AUTHOR: Marilyn E. Minger, Practice Consultant

§ 5.222 First Actions of Directors by Unanimous Written Consent

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is for use when a directors' first meeting will be by unanimous written consent, signed collectively by each of the directors [see Corp. Code § 307(b)]. For discussion of the effect of, and statutory requirements for, an action by written consent without a meeting, see § 5.221. For a letter explaining the chair of the board's request for the directors' written consent to a proposed action, see § 5.220.

There is no statutory distinction between a first meeting of directors and any other directors meeting, whether the actions are taken by written consent without a meeting or at a meeting. The first meeting is distinguished in practice, however, by the type of actions taken and resolutions passed. Actions commonly taken include adopting the corporation's bylaws, electing corporate officers, and delegating particular duties such as the duty to apply to the California Commissioner of Corporations for a permit to issue stock, or for an exemption from qualification, and to issue the stock when the permit is obtained from or the notice filed with the Commissioner [see [c], below]. With minor modifications, this form may also be used when the actions taken by this written consent are taken instead at a first meeting of directors. For a form of minutes of a regular directors meeting, see §§ 5.230-5.231.

The wording of a resolution to be approved by the directors in an action by written consent is usually in the same form as it would appear in the minutes of a board meeting, had one been held. For discussion of the various formats for resolutions, see § 5.240. This form and §§ 5.221 and 5.223 illustrate different format options. For sample resolutions covering other common corporate actions, see § 5.242 et seq.

For a preincorporation planning checklist, see Ch. 2, Formation of Corporations . For a checklist of other matters to be considered for approval at the first meeting of the board of directors, see Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Laws, Ch. 3, Formation of Corporations, § 54.02 (Matthew Bender). Optional provisions in the form below include the qualification of the corporation's common stock for treatment under I.R.C. § 1244 [see [e], below], the election of subchapter S status [see [f], below], the adoption of an indemnity agreement [see [g], below], the adoption of a confidentiality agreement [see [h], below], and qualification to do business in another state or country [see [i], below]. Caution should be exercised to ensure that this form is modified as needed to reflect the specific facts and requirements of the corporation for which counsel is drafting the consent.

[b] When First Actions of Directors Should Be Taken

The actions at the first meeting of the board of directors, whether by written consent or at a meeting, should be taken immediately after the corporation's articles have been filed and a decision regarding the issuance of shares, including consideration for those shares, has been reached. Because the corporation may not have bylaws until they are adopted at the first meeting, the corporation has neither the power to file an application for a permit to issue shares, nor are the officers able to sign the application, until these actions are authorized by the directors at the first meeting.

[c] Offer and Sale of Corporate Shares

All corporations are prohibited from offering or selling securities in California unless the offer or sale has been qualified or the security or transaction is exempt from qualification [see Corp. Code § 25110; see also 15 U.S.C. §§ 77c(a), 78c(a)(10) (requiring registration of securities under federal law unless exemptions from registration exist)].

A corporation with 35 or fewer shareholders may be exempt from qualification based on the small offering exemption [see Corp. Code § 25102(h); see also Ch. 6C, California Small Offering Exemption] or the limited offering exemption [see Corp. Code § 25102(f); see also Ch. 6B, California Limited Offering Exemptions]. Special attention should be paid to the requirements of these exemption to ensure that the offering meets the specific requirements of the exemption selected. In most cases the criteria for the small offering exemption are stricter than their limited offering counterparts. For example, a corporation utilizing the small offering exemption must issue only one class of voting common stock [Corp. Code § 25102(h); see Ch. 6C, California Small Offering Exemption, § 6C.22], while the limited offering exemption potentially applies to almost any offer or sale of any security [Corp. Code § 25102(f)]. Furthermore, the small offering exemption requires that after the proposed sale and issuance the corporation must have a total of no more than 35 shareholders [Corp. Code § 25102(h); see Ch. 6C, California Small Offering Exemption, § 6C.23], whereas the limited offering exemption permits more than 35 shareholders of the corporation as a whole, provided that the transaction in question results in sales to no more than 35 persons, plus any purchasers that may be excluded from the 35 purchaser count [Corp. Code § 25102(f)]. For a more detailed comparison of the requirements of the small and limited offering exemptions, see Ch. 6B, California Small Offering Exemption, § 6C.20[2].

The provisions in this form authorize actions to be taken either in the (unusual) event that a close or closely held corporation is ineligible for either the small offering or the limited offering exemption and must qualify its securities, or when an exemption from qualification applies. For other resolutions related to the issuance of securities, see Ch. 6I, Issuance of Equity Securities and Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Laws, Appendix, Forms 9.17 et seq. (Matthew Bender).

[d] Use of Share Certificates

This form assumes that the corporation has elected to issue stock certificates, rather than to use an electronic system to issue, record, and transfer shares. The corporation, however, may adopt any other system that has been approved by the Securities and Exchange Commission, is authorized in any United States statute, or is in accordance with Division 8 [Com. Code § 8101 et seq. of the California Commercial Code [see Corp. Code § 416(b)]. If another system is adopted, this form should be modified accordingly. For discussion of uncertificated securities, see Ch. 6I, Issuance of Equity Securities, § 6I.20[2].

If share certificates are issued, each shareholder is entitled to have a certificate signed in the name of the corporation by the chair, the vice chair of the board, the president, or any vice president and by the chief financial officer, assistant treasurer, secretary, or any assistant secretary, certifying the number of shares and the class or series of shares owned by the shareholder [Corp. Code § 416(a)]. Signatures may be facsimile [Corp. Code § 416(a)]. Additional statements are required on the certificates if the shares are classified or if any class of shares has more than one series [see Corp. Code § 417], or if the shares are subject to a voting agreement, irrevocable proxy, restriction on transfer, or are assessable, not fully paid, redeemable, or convertible [Corp. Code § 418; see Ch. 8B, Voting Agreements and Voting Trusts].

If the corporation issues uncertificated securities [see Corp. Code § 191.1; Com. Code § 8102(a)(18) (uncertificated security defined)], the statements normally required to appear on share certificates must appear on the initial transaction statement and written statements instead [Corp. Code §§ 417, 418].

[e] Qualification as Small Business (I.R.C. § 1244) Stock

Individual shareholders of qualifying "small business corporations" may claim, within limits, an ordinary loss, rather than a capital loss, on the sale or worthlessness of Section 1244 stock [see I.R.C. § 1244; see also I.R.C. §§ 1244(c)(3) (small business corporation defined), (d)(4) (individual defined)].

A domestic corporation and its stock must meet the following requirements to qualify as Section 1244 stock [I.R.C. § 1244(c)]:

- The corporation's equity may not exceed $1,000,000 at the time the stock is issued, including amounts received for the stock to be issued;

- The stock must be issued for money and property (other than stock and securities); and

- The corporation, for the five years preceding the shareholder's loss, must generally have derived more than half its gross receipts from business operations and not from passive income, such as rents, royalties, dividends, interest, annuities, or gains from the sales or exchanges of stock or securities. This five year requirement is waived if the corporation's deduction, other than for dividends received or net operating losses, exceed gross income. If the corporation has not been in existence for five years before the loss, then generally the period for which the corporation has been in existence is examined for the gross receipts requirement.

A sale or exchange of Section 1244 stock is not necessary to obtain an ordinary loss. If the stock becomes worthless, a loss is deemed to occur [Treas. Reg. § 1.1244(a)-1(a)]. An ordinary loss up to $50,000 (or $100,000 on a joint tax return) may be claimed in a single taxable year [I.R.C. § 1244(b); cf. I.R.C. § 1211(b) (deductions limited to capital losses, which are deductible only against capital gains plus $3,000)]. Losses in excess of these limits are deductible as capital losses; gains on Section 1244 stock are reported as capital gains [see I.R.C. §§ 1001, 1244(a)]. An ordinary loss may be claimed only by the original owner of the stock [see I.R.C. § 1244(a)].

An ordinary loss deduction for Section 1244 stock may be denied if Internal Revenue Service reporting or recordkeeping requirements are not met [see Treas. Reg. § 1.1244(e)-1; see also I.R.C. 6001]. For example, in Carroll Cutler [Carroll Cutler, (1994) R.I.A. T.C. Memo. P 94090], the Tax Court barred a shareholder from claiming a Section 1244 loss on shares he held in a bankrupt company because the shareholder failed to attach to his income tax return a statement that showed the company's address, the way the stock was acquired, and the amount paid for the stock [Carroll Cutler, (1994) R.I.A. T. C. Memo. P 94090, 94-411; see also Martin J. Cournan (1989) T.C. Memo. 1989-520, P.H. TCM P 89520 (section 1244 loss denied for failure to file statement required by regulation)].

[f] Qualification and Taxation as S Corporation

A small business corporation may elect to be an S corporation [I.R.C. § 1362(a)] if it meets the applicable requirements. Unlike a C corporation, which is a separate tax-paying entity [see I.R.C. § 11], an S corporation generally is treated as a conduit of income, loss, deductions, and credits to the shareholders [see I.R.C. §§ 1363, 1366]. For a detailed discussion of the Subchapter S eligibility requirements, the taxation of S corporations, and the advisability of electing to be an S corporation, see Chs. 2B, Electing Subchapter S Status and 1B, Selecting Form of Business Entity .

[g] Indemnity Agreement

In addition to inserting a provision in the articles of incorporation eliminating or limiting a director's liability for acts or omissions taken in his or her capacity as a director [see § 5.12], a corporation may enter into an indemnity agreement with its directors that spells out the parameters of the director's personal liability.

PRACTICE TIP:

Indemnity agreements may be used to encourage reluctant individuals to take on the responsibilities of being a corporate director. Provisions providing that the corporation will advance costs to the director to defend a suit if the director is sued in his or her capacity as a director should be included. Commentary by Marilyn E. Minger

[h] Confidentiality Agreement

Depending on the nature of the business of the corporation, the directors my determine that the directors and the officers, as a condition of employment, should enter into confidentiality agreements with the corporation.

[i] Qualification to do Business in Other States or Countries

If the corporation intends to conduct business in other states or countries, the directors should authorize the officers to undertake the actions that those other jurisdictions may require for a foreign corporation to conduct business [see § 5.121(32)].

RESOLVED FURTHER, that each of the officers is hereby authorized to sell and issue _____ [number of shares] shares of the common stock of this corporation to _____ [name of purchaser] in exchange for the transfer by _____ [name of purchaser] to this corporation of all of _____[name of purchaser]'s right, title and interest in and to _____ [describe the property to be exchanged for shares] (the "Property").

RESOLVED FURTHER, that this board of directors does hereby adjudge and determine in accordance with California Corporations Code Section 409(e) that the fair value to this corporation in monetary terms of the Property is not less than $ _____ [dollar amount].

[Use the following if corporation is selling shares to directors of the corporation:]

RESOLVED FURTHER, that in accordance with California Corporations Code Section 310, the terms and provisions of the sale of common stock of this corporation to those directors are just and reasonable to this corporation, and the same are hereby ratified, confirmed, adopted and approved.

[Use the following if corporation is selling shares pursuant to a subscription agreement:]

RESOLVED FURTHER, that shares of common stock of this corporation shall be sold pursuant to and in accordance with the subscription agreement presented to this meeting and the form, terms and provisions of the subscription agreement be, and hereby are, ratified and approved and each of the officers of this corporation is hereby authorized to execute, deliver and perform that subscription agreement on behalf of the corporation in substantially the same form as presented to this meeting.

[Use the following if intending to qualify as a nontaxable transaction under I.R.C. § 351:]

RESOLVED FURTHER, that this corporation and the proposed shareholders referenced above intend that the transactions contemplated hereby qualify as a nontaxable transaction pursuant to Internal Revenue Code Section 351, as amended, and that each of the officers is hereby authorized and directed to take such action as such officer deems necessary or appropriate to satisfy the requirements of Internal Revenue Code Section 351.

[Continue with the following:]

RESOLVED FURTHER, that when any shares of the common stock of this corporation are issued pursuant to these resolutions and the consideration specified above has been duly received by this corporation, the shares so issued shall be duly and validly issued, fully paid and nonassessable, and free to the holder thereof from all taxes, liens and charges with respect to the issuance thereof.

RESOLVED FURTHER, that upon receipt of the consideration therefor, the officers are authorized and directed to issue certificates representing the shares of the common stock of the corporation.

RESOLVED FURTHER, that each of the officers of the corporation are hereby authorized and directed to execute any and all documents, agreements and other papers and to take such other actions as that officer deems necessary or advisable for this corporation to issue and sell the above-listed shares to the persons named, in accordance with applicable laws, and that those actions will include, when necessary: (1) filing with the Commissioner of Corporations an appropriate notice under California Corporations Code Section 25102(f) or 25102(h) or obtaining qualification of the offer and sale of the shares from the California Commissioner of Corporations; (2) doing all acts that may be necessary under the federal securities laws and the applicable securities laws of any other state; and (3) doing all acts necessary to expedite these transactions or conform them, or any of them, to the requirements of any applicable law.

13 . Tax I.D. Numbers

RESOLVED, that the officers are directed to apply to the IRS District Director for an employer's identification number on Form SS-4 and to the Employment Development Department of the State of California for an account number on Form DE-1 or other applicable forms.

14 . Corporate and Other Filings

The following resolutions are adopted with respect to the corporation's filing of a Statement by Domestic Stock Corporation (annual informational statement) with the California Secretary of State, in accordance with California Corporations Code Section 1502 and other filings as necessary:

RESOLVED, that the secretary of this corporation is authorized and directed to prepare and to file or cause to be filed with the Secretary of State the necessary statement in compliance with California Corporations Code Section 1502, and to take whatever action is necessary to obtain licenses, authorizations, and permits that are necessary or desirable for the corporation's business.

RESOLVED FURTHER, that the secretary is directed to insert a copy of the Statement by Domestic Stock Corporation in the minute book following the minutes of this meeting.

15 . Bank Resolutions

The following resolutions are adopted with respect to the selection of one or more bank checking and savings accounts for the corporation and a depositary for the corporation's employment taxes trust funds:

RESOLVED, that this corporation establish in its name one or more deposit accounts with _____ [name and address of bank], or any other bank or depositary, as determined by the _____ [title(s) of authorized officer(s), e.g., President] of this corporation, and that the _____ [title(s) of authorized officer(s), e.g., president and the secretary] of this corporation are authorized to establish such an account or accounts, on terms and conditions as agreed on with the bank.

RESOLVED FURTHER, that the corporation's employment taxes trust funds shall be deposited with _____ [name of bank] or any other bank or depositary, as determined by the President of this corporation.

RESOLVED FURTHER, that the _____ [title(s) of authorized officer(s), e.g., president] is authorized to designate as depositaries of this corporation's funds one or more other banks, trust companies, or other financial institutions, and to open, keep, and close general and special accounts in these depositaries.

RESOLVED FURTHER, that any officer of the corporation is authorized to endorse checks, drafts, or other evidences of indebtedness made payable to the corporation, but only for the purpose of deposit; and

RESOLVED FURTHER, that all checks, drafts, and other instruments obligating the corporation to pay money, including instruments payable to officers or other persons authorized to sign them, will be signed on the corporation's behalf by _____ [required signatories, e.g., either the president or vice president; provided, however, that if the amount of the check is in excess of _____ (dollar amount, e.g., $3,000), the signature of the president will be required].

RESOLVED FURTHER, that the standard form of corporate resolution required by _____ [name of bank] for opening a corporate account, a copy of which is attached to these minutes, is adopted as the resolution of the board of directors, and the secretary is directed to obtain the necessary signatures, execute the necessary certifications, and take such other steps as needed to open this account.

20 . Consent Filed with Minutes

This Consent is executed in accordance with Corporations Code Section 307(b) and is to be filed with the minutes of the Board of Directors' proceedings.

21 . General Authority

RESOLVED, that each of the officers of the corporation is hereby authorized, directed and empowered to execute any and all documents, agreements and other papers and to take such other action as such officer deems necessary or advisable in order to carry out and perform the purposes and intent of these resolutions.

[If the corporation intends to execute an indemnity agreement with the directors, use:]

_____. Indemnity Agreement

RESOLVED, that the form, terms and provisions of the indemnity agreement presented to this meeting be, and hereby are, ratified and approved and each of the officers of this corporation is hereby authorized to enter into such an indemnity agreement on behalf of the corporation with each of the directors of the corporation in substantially the same form as presented to this meeting (with such changes therein as the officer or officers acting on behalf of this corporation shall approve; approval shall be conclusively evidenced by the execution of that document).

[If the corporation intends to require a confidentiality agreement, use:]

_____. Confidentiality Agreement

RESOLVED, that all officers and employees of this corporation, as a condition of the commencement and continuation of their employment, shall enter into a confidentiality agreement.

RESOLVED FURTHER, that the terms and provisions of the confidentiality agreement in the form presented to this meeting be, and hereby are, ratified and approved and each of the officers of this corporation is hereby authorized to enter into such a confidentiality agreement on behalf of this corporation in substantially the same form as presented to this meeting (with such changes therein as the officer or officers acting on behalf of this corporation shall approve; approval shall be conclusively evidenced by the execution of that document).

[If the corporation intends to qualify its stock for treatment under I.R.C. § 1244, use:]

_____. Section 1244 Stock

The following resolution is adopted with respect to the application of Internal Revenue Code Section 1244 to the corporation's common stock:

RESOLVED, that this corporation intends to qualify its common stock for treatment under Internal Revenue Code Section 1244, pursuant to which the corporation plans that its total equity capital and paid-in surplus shall not in any event exceed $1,000,000, that it shall be largely an operating company, with less than 50 percent of its gross receipts coming from passive sources (royalties, rents, dividends, interest, annuities, and sales or exchanges of stocks or securities), and that it shall conform in all other respects to the requirements necessary to qualify its common stock for treatment under Internal Revenue Code Section 1244.

RESOLVED FURTHER, that the secretary of this corporation is authorized and directed to keep all records, prepare all reports and returns, and take all other steps as may be necessary to qualify this corporation's common stock for treatment under Internal Revenue Code Section 1244.

[If the corporation intends to elect Subchapter S status, use:]

_____. Subchapter S Election

The following resolution is adopted with respect to the election to be taxed, as an S corporation, in accordance with Internal Revenue Code Section 1362(a) and California Revenue and Taxation Code Section 23801:

RESOLVED, that the corporation elects to be taxed in accordance with Internal Revenue Code Section 1362(a) [add, if a California election is also made: and California Revenue and Taxation Code Section 23801].

RESOLVED FURTHER, that each of the officers of this corporation is authorized and directed to execute all documents and to take any other action necessary or advisable to carry out the purposes of this resolution.

[If the corporation intends to conduct business in other states or countries, use:]

_____. Qualification to do Business in Other States

RESOLVED that for the purpose of authorizing the corporation to do business in any state, territory or dependency of the United States or any foreign country in which it is necessary or expedient for this corporation to transact business, each of the officers of this corporation is hereby authorized to appoint and substitute all necessary agents or attorneys for service of process, to designate and change the location of all necessary statutory offices and, under the corporate seal, to make and file all necessary certificates, reports, powers of attorney and other instruments as may be required by the laws of such state, territory, dependency or country to authorize the corporation to transact business therein and whenever it is expedient for the corporation to cease doing business therein and withdraw therefrom, to revoke any appointment of agent or attorney for service of process, and to file such certificates, reports, revocation of appointment or surrender of authority as may be necessary to terminate the authority of the corporation to do business in any such state, territory, dependency or country.

§ 5.223 Annual Organization Action by Unanimous Written Consent of Directors

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is for use when the directors elect officers by unanimous written consent without a meeting. An optional provision is included, fixing the annual salaries of officers of the corporation. With minor modifications, this form may also be used when the actions taken by this written consent are taken instead at a meeting of directors. For minutes of a regular directors meeting, see §§ 5.230-5.231.

Immediately after each annual shareholders' meeting, the board of directors ordinarily holds its own annual meeting. This meeting is sometimes referred to as an organizational meeting because it is the first meeting following the annual election of directors. Although not required by statute, this meeting ordinarily is held to elect the officers of the corporation who will serve during the coming year. In practice, directors of small, closely held corporations often hold their annual meeting without a meeting, using a written consent.

For discussion of the effect of and statutory requirements for an action by written consent without a meeting, see § 5.221. For a form for use when a directors' first meeting will be by unanimous written consent, see § 5.222. For a letter soliciting the directors' consent in writing, see § 5.220.

The wording of a resolution to be approved by the directors in an action by written consent is usually in the same form as it would appear in the minutes of a board meeting, had one been held. For discussion of the various forms of resolutions, see § 5.240. Sections 5.221, 5.222, and this form illustrate different format options. For sample resolutions covering other common corporate actions, see §§ 5.222 and 5.242 et seq.

For discussion of types of meetings, see § 5.31. For discussion of, and forms for, notice of directors meetings, see §§ 5.201-5.202. For discussion of meeting procedure, see § 5.32. For discussion of the various formats for resolutions, see § 5.240. This form and the forms in §§ 5.221 and 5.223 illustrate different format options. For sample resolutions covering common corporate actions, see §§ 5.222 and 5.242 et seq. For an alternative format for the minutes themselves, see § 5.231.

PRACTICE TIP:

Always use subheadings in minutes, even if the agenda consists of a single item. Those headings are extremely useful when searching through filed minutes to determine whether certain actions have been taken or addressed. Commentary by Marilyn E. Minger

If actions will be taken by written consent rather than at a meeting, the forms in §§ 5.221-5.223 should be used.

[b] Directors' Participation in Meeting

Unless the articles or bylaws provide otherwise, directors may participate in directors meetings in person or through use of a conference telephone call, electronic video screen communication, or electronic transmission by and to the corporation [Corp. Code § 307(a)(6); see Corp. Code §§ 20, 21 (definitions)]. [Corp. Code § 307(a)(6)]. Directors who participate by conference telephone call or electronic video screen communication are considered to be present at that meeting so long as all members participating can hear one another [Corp. Code § 307(a)(6)].

PRACTICE TIP:

When one or more directors participate in a meeting by telephone include a statement in the minutes to the effect that, "All participants could hear and be heard by each other." Commentary by Marilyn E. Minger

Directors who participate through electronic transmission by and to the corporation (other than a conference telephone call and electronic video screen communication) are considered to be present at the meeting if both the following apply [Corp. Code § 307(a)(6)]:

- Each participating director can communicate with all other directors concurrently.

- Each director has the means to participate in all matters before the board, including the ability to propose or object to a specific corporate action.

PRACTICE TIP:

When one or more directors will participate through use of electronic video screen communication or other communications equipment (other than a conference telephone), the corporation must first establish and implement a verification mechanism. A statement should be included in the minutes to the effect that, "The identities of all directors and other authorized participants were verified as true. During the meeting, each participating director could communicate with each other concurrently, and each director was able to participate in all matters before the board. All board actions or votes were taken or cast only by directors." Commentary by Publisher's Editorial Staff

A quorum (or requisite number of directors) is required to validly transact corporate business, subject to special rules applicable to transactions involving an interested director [Corp. Code § 307(a)(8); see Corp. Code §§ 310, 317(e)]. If a quorum is not present, any acts taken at the meeting are voidable by the corporation or its shareholders [see Olincy v. Merle Norman Cosmetics, Inc. (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 260, 273, 19 Cal. Rptr. 387] , although a majority of the directors present may adjourn the meeting to another time and place [Corp. Code § 307(a)(4)]. For further discussion of quorum requirements, including how to compute a quorum and the actions permitted absent a quorum, see § 5.32[6].

[c] Duty to Keep Minutes

Each corporation must keep minutes of the proceedings of its board of directors and committees of the board in writing or in another form capable of being converted into clearly legible tangible form [see Corp. Code § 1500].

Minutes ordinarily are kept in a "minute book," a loose leaf binder or a special book available from legal stationers. The minutes of directors meetings are filed chronologically along with notices of meetings, actions taken by the directors or committees of the board by unanimous written consent without a meeting [see Corp. Code § 307(b)], waivers of notice, consents to the holding of directors meetings, and approvals of the minutes [see Corp. Code § 307(a)(3)]. Minute books also frequently contain the articles of incorporation, certificates of amendment, restated articles, certificates of determination, bylaws and amendments to the bylaws, and copies of the annual informational filing required by the California Secretary of State [see Corp. Code § 1502(a)].

[d] Certification of Minutes; Use of Parol Evidence

The original or a copy (in writing or in any other form capable of being converted into clearly legible tangible form) of the minutes of a meeting of the board of directors or of committees of the board (or any resolution adopted the board or board committee), certified to be a true copy by a person purporting to be the corporate secretary or assistant corporate secretary, is prima facie evidence of the adoption of the resolution or the due holding of the meeting and of the matters stated in the minutes [Corp. Code § 314; see Evid. Code §§ 1520, 1521 (secondary evidence rule)].

Although the minutes of a directors meeting are often the best evidence of what took place at the meeting, parol evidence is admissible to supplement or contradict the events as reported in (or omitted from) the minutes [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1856; Lawrence v. Premier Indem. Assur. Co. (1919) 180 Cal. 688, 697, 182 P. 431 ; Fowler Gas Co. v. First Nat'l. Bank (1919) 180 Cal. 471, 477-478, 181 P. 663] . However, oral testimony ordinarily is not admissible to prove the contents of the minutes [Evid. Code § 1523(a)]. Nevertheless, testimony as to the contents of the writing is not inadmissible when the proponent lacks possession or control of the original or a copy and (1) the original is lost or destroyed without fraudulent intent on the part of the proponent or (2) neither the original or a copy was reasonably procurable by the proponent or the writing is not closely related to the controlling issues and it would be inexpedient to require production [Evid. Code § 1523(b), (c); see Evid. Code § 1523(d) (exception when writing consists of numerous accounts or writings that cannot be examined without great loss of time and evidence sought is only general result of whole)].

[e] Contents of Minutes

The statute is silent on the contents of the minutes; it requires only that they contain the "proceedings" of the meeting [see Corp. Code § 1500]. There is no consensus on what minutes should contain. However, there are certain items that corporate custom (and common sense) would require to be put into the minutes, including the following:

- The date, time, and place of the meeting. Recording the date and time ensures the accuracy of the meeting's notice. Improper notice can make the meeting irregular and actions taken at the meeting voidable [In re Mathews Constr. Co. (1954) 120 F. Supp. 818, 821 (construing former Corp. Code § 813); see § 5.32[5]]. Recording the meeting's location may aid the officer whose responsibility it is to reimburse directors for their travel expenses.

- The type of meeting (regular, special, or adjourned), and whether notice was required, given, or waived. For discussion of types of meetings and notice requirements, see §§ 5.31 and 5.32[5], respectively.

- The names of those present, including directors and individuals who are not directors, and the existence of a quorum of directors. A list of directors present provides a record of those counted in determining whether a quorum was present [see § 5.32[6][b], [c]]. Persons who are not directors who are likely to be invited to attend directors meetings include the corporation's attorney, accountant, financial advisor and consultants. Whether outsiders may attend a meeting of the board of directors or a board committee is within the discretion of the board or committee involved [see, e.g., American Center for Education, Inc. v. Cavnar (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 476, 491, 145 Cal. Rptr. 736] .

- The names of the presiding officer and the person taking the minutes.

- A statement whether the minutes of the last meeting were approved as distributed or as amended. Directors concerned about potential liability will want to ensure that the minutes accurately reflected their votes on certain actions [see §§ 5.11-5.12].

- The actions taken at the meeting, with or without the directors' rationale for each action.

- Adjournment, and if necessary, the date, time, and location of the next meeting. Notice of a regular directors meeting does not need to be given if the time and place of the meeting have been established either by the bylaws or by the board of directors [Corp. Code § 307(a)(2)].

As long as the basic information enumerated above is included, minutes may be detailed or summary [see Brewer &

Solberg, Corporate Minutes: What Should They Include? 20 Bus. Law 745 (1965); see also Vagts, Why Directors Need to Keep Records, 11-12 Harv. Bus. Rev. 29, 30 (1978)].

PRACTICE TIP:

When extraordinary action is taken or an unexpected result is reached by the board, the minutes of the meeting should contain detail sufficient to explain or justify the action or result. When preparing minutes, always keep in mind that minutes are among the corporate records that may be inspected by shareholders [see [f], below] and are subject to subpoena in a lawsuit. Commentary by Marilyn E. Minger

[f] Right to Inspect Minutes

A shareholder or holder of a voting trust certificate (or that person's agent or attorney) has the right on written demand to inspect the minutes of the meetings of directors or of board committees [Corp. Code § 1601]. The minutes may be inspected at any reasonable time during usual business hours, if the purpose for inspection is reasonably related to the holder's interest in the corporation as a shareholder or voting trust certificate holder [Corp. Code § 1601(a)]. This right of inspection includes the right to copy and make extracts [Corp. Code § 1601(b)] and extends to the minutes of a subsidiary of the corporation [Corp. Code § 1601(a)]. Neither the articles nor the bylaws may limit this right of inspection [Corp. Code § 1601(b)]. The corporation may not thwart the exercise of these rights by failing to respond to proper requests, by sending communications that make further requests futile, or by actions impeding the inspection process [Jara v. Suprema Meats, Inc. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 1238, 1264, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 187] . However, the corporation is required only to allow inspection at corporate offices, is not required to mail or otherwise provide copies, and is not required to respond to demands for disclosure falling outside scope of what is required by statute [Jara v. Suprema Meats, Inc. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 1238, 1263-1265, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 187] .

A director (or the director's agent or attorney) has the absolute right at any reasonable time to inspect all books, records, and documents (including minutes) of the corporation of which he or she is a director, and of its subsidiary corporations [Corp. Code § 1602]. This right of inspection includes the right to copy and make extracts [Corp. Code § 1602].

§ 5.231 Minutes of Directors' Regular or Special Meeting--Outline Format

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is for use by the officer (frequently the corporate secretary) responsible for taking the minutes of a regular or special directors meeting. Its outline format provides an alternative to the more formal format used in § 5.230. For discussion of the various formats for resolutions, see § 5.240. For sample resolutions covering common corporate actions, see §§ 5.222 and 5.242 et seq. For an agenda for a directors meeting, see § 5.232. For discussion of types of meetings, see § 5.31. For discussion of and forms for notice of directors meetings, see §§ 5.201-5.202. For discussion of meeting procedure, see § 5.32.

If actions will be taken by written consent rather than at a meeting the forms in §§ 5.221-5.223 should be used.

§ 5.240 Formats of Resolutions

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form illustrates the formats commonly used for resolutions adopted by the board of directors. Sections 5.221[2], 5.222[2], and 5.223[2] also illustrate these alternative formats.

For a certificate of adoption of a resolution by the board of directors, see § 5.241. Minutes of the proceedings of the board are discussed in § 5.230. Actions by written consent are discussed in §§ 5.33 and 5.220-5.223.

Refer to § 5.222 for resolutions authorizing actions commonly taken at the first meeting of directors, including adopting the corporation's bylaws, electing corporate officers and fixing their salaries, approving the corporation's agent for service of process, designating the corporation's principal executive office, adopting the corporate seal and share certificate, selecting the corporation's fiscal year, authorizing required corporate filings with the Secretary of State, selecting bank checking and saving accounts and choosing a depository for the corporation's employment tax trust funds, delegating particular duties (such as the duties related to the offer and sale of corporate shares) and the authority to execute contracts and other documents, electing subchapter S status, qualifying the corporation's common stock for treatment under I.R.C. § 1244, paying incorporation and organization expenses, and appointing the corporation's legal counsel and accountants. For discussion of and a resolution fixing the time and place of the next meeting of the board of directors, see § 5.230.

[b] Resolution Formats

California law neither defines resolutions nor prescribes a form for them. However, certain standard formats are commonly used.

The most traditional format is discussed in Robert's Rules of Order, Revised (the Seventy-Fifth Anniversary Edition), and is illustrated in the first alternative of the form below and in § 5.222[2]. This edition provides that a resolution should begin with the words "Resolved, that" [Robert's Rules of Order Revised, § 4]. It also provides that the resolution may be divided into a series of resolutions which may be numbered with arabic numerals, or may be stated as a single resolution with separate paragraphs, each beginning with the word "That" and numbered "First," "Second," and "Third" [Robert's Rules of Order Revised, § 4]. When the resolution is divided into a series of resolutions, it is common to begin the second and subsequent resolutions with the words "Resolved Further" to show they are part of the same series.

More modern, simplified formats include simple numbered paragraphs, each followed by a descriptive title and the text of the resolution (illustrated in the second alternative in the form below and in § 5.221[2]), or that same format, preceded by the words "IT IS [UNANIMOUSLY] RESOLVED AS FOLLOWS:" (illustrated in the third alternative in the form below and in § 5.223[2]).

[c] Preambles Used to Provide Reasons for Adopting Resolutions

The statute is silent on the content of resolutions, as it is on the content of minutes of the meetings of directors. There is no consensus on what resolutions (or minutes) should contain. Whether or not an explanation of the background of the resolution or the reasons for its adoption is appropriate depends on the circumstances of the particular case. This issue is further discussed in § 5.230[1][e].

According to Robert's Rules of Order, Revised, when reasons for adopting a resolution are given, they are usually stated in the "preamble" to the resolution. Each clause of the preamble is a separate paragraph beginning with the word "Whereas" [Robert's Rules of Order Revised, § 4]. According to Robert's Rules of Order Revised, periods should never be used in the preamble; each paragraph (except the last) should end with a comma or semicolon followed by the word "and." The last paragraph of the preamble should end with the word "therefore" or the words "therefore, be it" [Robert's Rules of Order Revised, § 4]. In practice, however, most attorneys who still use this general format use less archaic language than set forth in Robert's Rules of Order, Revised [see, e.g., § 5.242[2]].

Copies of legal opinions, contracts, letters, or other documents that come before the directors at a meeting, or that relate to matters on which resolutions are adopted, may also be included in the minutes or attached to them and maintained in the minute book [Robert's Rules of Order Revised, § 60; [see, e.g., § 5.242[2]].

A more modern format, illustrated in § 5.230[2], inserts a simple explanation for the resolution in a paragraph after the resolution's title, before the text of resolution.

§ 5.241 Certificate of Adoption of Resolution by Board of Directors

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is for use by the corporate secretary or an assistant secretary to certify the original or a copy of a resolution adopted by the board of directors. It will be used frequently as evidence of the board's authorization to enter into contracts or to transact business. Therefore, it is important that counsel either prepare or instruct the corporate secretary on the form of certificate.

For discussion and examples of various formats for resolutions, see § 5.240. Minutes of the proceedings of the board are discussed in § 5.230. Actions by written consent are discussed in §§ 5.33 and 5.220-5.223.

[b] Certification as Evidence of Adoption of Resolution

The original or a copy of any resolution adopted by the board or by a committee of the board, certified to be a true copy by a person purporting to be the secretary or an assistant secretary of the corporation, is prima facie evidence of the adoption of that resolution and of the matters stated in it [Corp. Code § 314].

Thus, a board resolution certified by the appropriate officer and authenticated by the corporate seal is presumptively the act of the corporation, and is admissible in evidence in a court proceeding [Purser v. Eagle Lake L. & I. Co. (1896) 111 Cal. 139, 141-142, 43 P. 523 but see Corp. Code § 207(a) (failure to affix seal does not affect instrument's validity)]. In the absence of any countervailing proof, the recitals of the resolution are binding on the corporation [Purser v. Eagle Lake L. & I. Co. (1896) 111 Cal. 139, 142, 43 P. 523 (action to foreclose mortgage given by corporation to secure promissory note; execution of note and mortgage by corporate president and secretary ratified by board resolution, a certified and authenticated copy of which was delivered to the mortgagee)]. The act of a corporate secretary in certifying the adoption of the resolution by the corporation is within the secretary's authority and binding on the corporation even if the resolution is spurious [Associates Discount Corp. v. Tobb Co. (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 541, 547, 50 Cal. Rptr. 738] .

§ 5.243 Resignation of Director

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is for use by a director to submit his or her resignation to the corporation. Although a resignation must be in writing [see Corp. Code § 305(d)], there is no prescribed form for the resignation. This form is a simple memorandum. However, other forms, such as letters or notices would be equally effective. If the director is also a corporate officer and wants to resign that office as well, this form may be modified accordingly.

For discussion and examples of various formats for resolutions, see § 5.240. For a certificate of adoption of a resolution by the board of directors, see § 5.241. Minutes of the proceedings of the board are discussed in § 5.230. Actions by written consent are discussed in § 5.33 and §§ 5.220-5.223.

[b] Resignation of Directors

Any director may resign by giving written notice to the chair of the board, the president, the secretary, or the board of directors [Corp. Code § 305(d)]. A director's resignation creates a vacancy on the board [Corp. Code § 192].

Resignation takes effect on the giving of written notice of resignation, unless the notice specifies a later time [Corp. Code § 305(d)]. Unless the resignation is made contingent on its acceptance [Clark v. Oceano Beach Resort Co. (1930) 106 Cal. App. 574, 576, 289 P. 946] , it takes effect even if the board neither accepts nor acts on it [Security Inv. Realty Co. v. Superior Court (1929) 101 Cal. App. 450, 452, 281 P. 709] . For a form for accepting a resignation and appointing a successor, see § 5.244.

§ 5.244 Resolution Accepting Resignation and Filling Vacancy on Board of Directors

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a resolution by the board of directors accepting the resignation of a director and appointing a director to fill a vacancy on the board. When used with respect to the board of directors, vacancy means any authorized position of director that is not currently filled with a properly elected director [Corp. Code § 192]. A vacancy may be caused, for example, by death, resignation, removal, or a change in the number of authorized directors (by the board of directors or the shareholders) [see Corp. Code § 192]. This form is designed for use when a vacancy is created by resignation. If the vacancy occurs for any reason other than the resignation (or removal [see [b], below]) of a director, this form should be modified accordingly.

For discussion and examples of various formats for resolutions, see § 5.240. For a certificate of adoption of a resolution by the board of directors, see § 5.241. Minutes of the proceedings of the board are discussed in § 5.230. Actions by written consent are discussed in §§ 5.33 and 5.220-5.223.

[b] Filling Vacancies Created by Removal

Unless the articles or a bylaw adopted by the shareholders provide that the board may fill vacancies occurring on the board by reason of the removal of directors, those vacancies may be filled only by approval of the shareholders [Corp. Code § 305(a); see Corp. Code § 153 (approval of shareholders defined)]. Filling a removal-created vacancy by written consent requires the unanimous written consent of all shares entitled to vote for the election of directors [Corp. Code §§ 305(b), 603(d)].

[c] Filling Vacancies Not Created by Removal

Unless otherwise provided in the articles or bylaws, and except for a vacancy created by the removal of a director [see [b], above], vacancies on the board may be filled by approval of the board [see Corp. Code § 151 (approval of board defined)], or if the number of directors in office is less than a quorum, by one of the following [Corp. Code § 305(a)]:

- The unanimous written consent of the directors in office.

- The affirmative vote of a majority of the directors in office at a meeting held pursuant to statutory notice or waivers of notice [see Corp. Code § 307].

- The sole remaining director.

If, after the directors fill any vacancy, the directors in office who have been elected by the shareholders constitute less than a majority of the directors in office, any shareholder or shareholders representing at least five percent of the outstanding shares with the right to vote for those directors may call a special shareholders' meeting to elect the entire board [Corp. Code § 305(c)(1)]. Alternatively, the shareholders may petition the superior court to order a special shareholders' meeting to elect the entire board [Corp. Code § 305(c)(2)].

The shareholders may also elect a director at any time to fill a vacancy not filled by the directors [Corp. Code § 305(b)]. Any such election by written consent (other than one to fill a vacancy created by the removal of a director [see [1], above]) requires the consent of a majority of the outstanding shares entitled to vote [Corp. Code §§ 305(b), 603(d)].

For discussion of court appointment of directors, see § 5.16[3]. For discussion of the removal of directors with and without cause, and a change in the number of authorized directors, see § 5.15.

[d] New Directors' Term of Office

Directors elected to fill vacancies hold office until the expiration of the term for which they have been elected, and until a successor has been elected and qualified [Corp. Code § 301(b); but see Corp. Code § 305(c); [c], above]. The phrase "and until a successor has been elected and qualified" covers the situation in which the corporation has not held annual shareholders meetings and yet someone needs to have the authority to run the corporation.

§ 5.245 Resolution Establishing Board Committee

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a resolution for use by the board of directors creating special committees. It designates a committee to be composed of two or more members of the board of directors.

For discussion and examples of various formats for resolutions, see § 5.240. For a certificate of adoption of a resolution by the board of directors, see § 5.241. Minutes of the proceedings of the board are discussed in § 5.230. Actions by written consent are discussed in §§ 5.33 and 5.220-5.223.

[b] Authority to Establish Board Committee

The board of directors may by resolution adopted by a majority of the authorized number of directors establish committees consisting of two or more directors to serve at the pleasure of the board [Corp. Code § 311]. One or more directors may by a vote of the majority of the authorized number of directors be designated as alternate members of these board committees [Corp. Code § 311]. Alternate members may replace any absent member at any committee meeting [Corp. Code § 311].

[c] Limitations on Authority of Board Committees

To the extent provided in the resolution creating a board committee or in the bylaws of the corporation, a board committee has all the authority of the board except with respect to the following matters [Corp. Code § 311]:

- Actions that also require approval of the shareholders or of the outstanding shares [Corp. Code § 311(a)].

- Filling vacancies on the board or committees [Corp. Code § 311(b)].

- Fixing the compensation of directors [Corp. Code § 311(c)].

- Adopting, amending, or repealing bylaws [Corp. Code § 311(d)].

- Amending or repealing any board resolution that expressly provides that it may not be amended or repealed by committee [Corp. Code § 311(e)].

- Authorizing a distribution to shareholders, except according to guidelines set forth in the articles or established by the directors [Corp. Code § 311(f)].

- Establishing other board committees or appointing committee members [Corp. Code § 311(g)].

[d] Meeting Procedures Applicable to Board Committees

The provisions of the General Corporation Law [Corp. Code § 1 et seq.] that govern directors meetings [see Corp. Code § 307] apply to board committees and incorporators [see Corp. Code § 311] and their actions [Corp. Code § 307(c)]. Thus, for example, a committee may act by unanimous written consent and its members may participate in meetings by conference telephone call, electronic video screen communication, or electronic transmission by and to the corporation [see Corp. Code §§ 20, 21], in the same manner as directors [see Corp. Code § 307(a)(6), (b)]. For further discussion of meeting procedure, see § 5.32.

[e] Common Committees

The following are committees that boards of directors often establish:

- Compensation Committee: staffed by outside directors to set compensation of officers who are also directors.

- Audit Committee: oversees audit and financial risk management.

- Nominating Committee: develops lists of potential directors.

[2] FORM

Resolution Establishing Board Committee

RESOLUTION ESTABLISHING _____ [name] COMMITTEE OF THE BOARD

WHEREAS, Corporations Code Section 311 authorizes the Board of Directors to establish one or more committees consisting of directors of this Corporation to which may be delegated, with certain exceptions, all authority of this Board of Directors, and the bylaws of the Corporation do not limit that authority; and,

WHEREAS, this Board has determined that it is in the best interests of this Corporation and its shareholders that such a committee be established;

Therefore, it is

RESOLVED, that a committee, known as the _____ [name, e.g., Executive or Building] Committee, and consisting of _____ [number not less than two] directors is established, and that the following directors are appointed as its members _____ [names of directors];

RESOLVED FURTHER, that _____ [names of directors] are appointed as alternate members of the committee (each of whom will receive notices of all the proceedings of the committee as though they were regular members) to serve on the committee, as a regular member, in the order in which listed in this resolution, in the absence of any regular member or members of the committee.

RESOLVED FURTHER, that each member (and alternate member) will serve until that member's (or alternate member's) successor is appointed by the Board of Directors or until the existence of this committee is terminated by the Board of Directors.

RESOLVED FURTHER, that the committee meetings may be held at any place, and in any manner, as permitted by applicable law and the bylaws of this Corporation. The Committee will adopt rules of procedure and will meet as provided by those rules, or as provided by this resolution or the corporation's bylaws. Meetings of the committee will be held when called by any member of the committee [add if appropriate: or otherwise as provided in the bylaws]. Written notice to the members of the committee of the time and place of any special meeting will be given in the manner provided for the giving of written notice to members of the Board of Directors of the time and place of special meetings of the Board of Directors. All calls, notices, and any waivers, consents, or approvals related to a meeting will be made a part of the minutes.

RESOLVED FURTHER, that minutes will be kept of each meeting of the committee.

RESOLVED FURTHER, that _____[number] members of the committee will constitute a quorum for the transaction of business.

RESOLVED FURTHER, that the committee shall have all the authority of the Board of Directors with respect to _____ [specify authority, e.g., the management of the business and affairs of the Corporation, including the authority to issue stock], except that it will have no authority to:

(1) Approve any actions that also require approval of the shareholders or of the outstanding shares.

(2) Fill vacancies on the board or committees.

(3) Fix the compensation of directors.

(4) Adopt, amend, or repeal bylaws.

(5) Amend or repeal any board resolution that expressly provides that it may not be amended or repealed by committee.

(6) Authorize a distribution to shareholders, except according to guidelines set forth in the articles or established by the directors.

(7) Establish other board committees or appoint committee members.

[Add any additional limitations, if desired.]

§ 5.246 Resolution Authorizing Corporation to Borrow Money

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a resolution for use by the board of directors authorizing directors or officers to borrow money on behalf of the corporation [see Corp. Code § 207(g)] from a bank or other financial institution. For a discussion of the issuance of debt securities, see Ch. 6J, Issuance of Debt Securities . This type of resolution is commonly required by the financial institution making the loan. In some cases, financial institutions require their own form of corporate resolution. In these circumstances, that resolution should be adopted as the resolution of the board of directors.

For discussion and examples of various formats for resolutions, see § 5.240. For a certificate of adoption of a resolution by the board of directors, see § 5.241. Minutes of the proceedings of the board are discussed in § 5.230. Actions by written consent are discussed in §§ 5.33 and 5.220-5.223.

[b] Liability of Corporation on Note

Subject to Corp. Code § 208(a), any note, mortgage, evidence of indebtedness, contract, share certificate, conveyance, or other instrument in writing, and any assignment or endorsement of that instrument, executed or entered into between any corporation and any other person, when signed by both the chair of the board, the president, or any vice president, as well as by the secretary, any assistant secretary, the chief financial officer, or any assistant treasurer of the corporation, is not invalidated as to the corporation by any lack of authority of the signing officers, in the absence of actual knowledge on the part of the other person that the signing officers had no authority to execute the instrument [Corp. Code § 313]. In interpreting Corp. Code § 313, the California Supreme Court held that the signature of one person alone is sufficient to bind a corporation, as long as he or she holds corporate offices in each of the two series or categories ("operational group" and "financial group") described in that statute [Snukal v. Flightways Manufacturing, Inc. (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 754, 785-787, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 3 P.3d 286 (instrument not invalidated by lack of authority, even though individual signing listed only one of offices held when executing instrument)].

§ 5.247 Resolution Authorizing Repurchase of Corporate Shares

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a resolution authorizing the corporation to repurchase corporate shares. This type of resolution is for use by a corporation with an entity purchase buy-sell agreement, or a hybrid (entity purchase/cross purchase) agreement.

Except for entity purchase agreements adequately funded by life or disability insurance (which cover only the death or disability of the shareholder and not other events that may trigger the sale of shares) [see Corp. Code §§ 503.1, 503.2], an entity purchase agreement may be unenforceable at the time the shareholder withdraws from the corporation. A corporation is prohibited from repurchasing its shares unless at the time of the shareholder's death or withdrawal it can meet certain statutory financial tests that do not apply to a cross-purchase agreement [see Corp. Code §§ 166, 500-503; see [b], below; see also Ballantine & Sterling, CALIFORNIA CORPORATION LAWS, Ch. 8, Dividends and Reacquisition of Shares (Matthew Bender) (enforcement and validity of contracts by corporations to repurchase their shares)]. For further discussion of buy-sell agreements, see Ch. 8D, Buy-Sell Agreements .

Further, if the corporation's securities are publicly traded, careful attention should also be paid to applicable rules and regulations of the Securities and Exchange Commission under the Securities and Exchange Act of 1934, and any stock exchange rules. For further discussion of federal securities issues, see Gadsky, Business Organizations--Federal Securities Exchange Act of 1934, Ch. 4, Exchange Act Registration and Reporting Requirements (Matthew Bender). For discussion of California securities requirements, see Ch. 6, Securities Regulation Issues .

For discussion and examples of various formats for resolutions, see § 5.240. For a certificate of adoption of a resolution by the board of directors, see § 5.241. Minutes of the proceedings of the board are discussed in § 5.230. Actions by written consent are discussed in § 5.33 and §§ 5.220-5.223. The statutory test for corporate distributions discussed below, in relation to stock redemptions, also apply to dividends [see Corp. Code § 166 (distribution to shareholders defined)]. Thus, if the board of directors will authorize a dividend, this form may be modified accordingly. The text of a resolution for the declaration and payment of a dividend is contained in § 5.221[2].

[b] Restrictions on Corporate Purchases; Statutory Tests

A corporation must satisfy certain statutory financial tests to purchase or redeem its shareholders' shares under an entity purchase agreement not funded by insurance. Under the General Corporation Law, the purchase or redemption by a corporation of its shares for cash or property is a "distribution to its shareholders" [Corp. Code § 166]. To make any valid distribution to its shareholders, a corporation must be able to pass either the retained earnings or remaining assets test [Corp. Code § 500], the general solvency test [Corp. Code § 501], and when applicable, the liquidation preference and dividend preference tests [Corp. Code §§ 502, 503]. However, a corporation licensed as a broker-dealer under Corp. Code § 25210 et seq. to effect transactions in securities for the account of others is not required to pass either the retained earnings or remaining assets test [see Corp. Code § 500(a), (b)] if immediately after any distribution it is in compliance with the net capital rules of the Commissioner of Corporations [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.216.12] and the Securities and Exchange Commission [Corp. Code § 500(e); see 17 C.F.R. § 240.15c3-1].

The retained earnings requirement provides that a corporation may purchase its own shares if its retained earnings immediately prior to the distribution equal or exceed the amount of the proposed distribution [Corp. Code § 500(a)]. "Retained earnings" means the balance of net profits after the deduction of distributions to shareholders, and transfer to capital accounts under generally accepted accounting principles [see Corp. Code § 114; Ballantine & Sterling, CALIFORNIA CORPORATION LAWS, Ch. 8. Dividends and Reacquisition of Shares , § 141.06[3] (Matthew Bender)].

A corporation with insufficient retained earnings may still purchase its own shares if its meets the remaining assets test. This test provides for purchase of shares if, immediately after the distribution:

- Corporate assets (excluding goodwill, capitalized research and development expenses and deferred charges) equal at least 125 percent of corporate liabilities (excluding deferred taxes, deferred income and other deferred credits), and

- Current assets equal current liabilities. However, current assets must equal 125 percent of current liabilities if the average earnings of the corporation before income taxes and interest expenses were less than the average interest expenses for the two preceding fiscal years [Corp. Code § 500(b)(2)]. The second part of this test [Corp. Code § 500(b)(2)] does not apply to a corporation that is not required to classify its assets into current and fixed under generally accepted accounting principles [Corp. Code § 500(b)(2)].

For the purpose of applying Corp. Code § 500 to a distribution by a corporation of cash or property in payment by the corporation in connection with the purchase of its shares, there must be added to retained earnings all amounts that had been previously deducted from retained earnings with respect to obligations incurred in connection with the corporation's repurchase of its shares and reflected on the corporation's balance sheet, but not in excess of the principal of the obligations that remain unpaid immediately prior to the distribution. In addition, there must be deducted from liabilities all amounts that had been previously added to liabilities with respect to the obligations incurred in connection with the corporation's repurchase of its shares and reflected on the corporation's balance sheet, but not in excess of the principal of the obligations that will remain unpaid after the distribution, provided that no addition to retained earnings or deduction from liabilities under Corp. Code § 500(b)(2) may occur on account of any obligation that is a distribution to the corporation's shareholders [see Corp. Code § 166 (when distribution is made)] at the time the obligation is incurred [Corp. Code § 500(d)].

The solvency test requires that a corporation not make any distribution to the corporation's shareholders if as a result the corporation is or would be likely to be unable to meet its liabilities as they mature [Corp. Code § 501]. This test must be met even if the corporation satisfies the retained earnings or remaining assets test [Flynn v. California Casket Co. (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 196, 205-206, 233 P.2d 131] .

Finally, a corporation may not make distributions to junior shares that affect the liquidation or dividend preferences of senior shares [see Corp. Code §§ 502, 503].

For an further discussion of these tests, see Ch. 9, Dividends, Reacquisitions of Shares, and Assessments , and Ballantine & Sterling, CALIFORNIA CORPORATION LAWS, Ch. 8, Dividends and Reacquisition of Shares , § 141 (Matthew Bender).

[c] Exception for Agreements Funded with Insurance

When the entity purchase agreement is funded with insurance, the statutory tests discussed in [b], above, are partially inapplicable. They do not apply to a purchase or redemption of shares of a deceased shareholder from the proceeds of life insurance on that shareholder in excess of the total amount of all premiums paid by the corporation for the insurance, if the shares are purchased to carry out the provisions of an agreement between the corporation and the shareholder to purchase or redeem the shares upon the death of the shareholder [Corp. Code § 503.1]. A similar rule applies to the proceeds of disability insurance used to purchase a disabled shareholder's shares [see Corp. Code § 503.2]. Even if the proceeds exceeding the premiums paid by the corporation are inadequate for the redemption, those proceeds received by the corporation should increase its retained earnings and enable it to pass the statutory balance sheet tests [see Ballantine & Sterling, CALIFORNIA CORPORATION LAWS, Ch. 4, Close Corporations, § 63.03[b][i]] (Matthew Bender).

[d] Directors' Reliance on Advice of Others

A director is entitled to rely on information from corporate officers and employees, counsel, independent accountants, and board committees, if the director believes the source is reliable and competent [see Corp. Code § 309(b); 5.11].

[2] FORM

Resolution Authorizing Repurchase of Corporate Shares

RESOLUTION AUTHORIZING REPURCHASE OF SHARES

WHEREAS the directors have received and carefully reviewed a report prepared by _____ [name(s) and title(s) of officers], including financial statements and other financial data as of _____[date] with respect to the retained earnings, assets, and liabilities of the corporation; and

WHEREAS the directors believe that _____ [name(s) and title(s) of officers] _____ [is or are] reliable and competent with respect to those matters; and

WHEREAS the report indicates that the corporation may spend at least $ _____ [dollar amount] to repurchase its stock without violating any provisions of the California Corporation Code or any provisions in the Articles of Incorporation or Bylaws of, or any agreement entered into by, the corporation; and

WHEREAS the directors consider it to be in the best interests of the corporation and its shareholders to repurchase, in the aggregate, up to _____ [number of shares] of its stock;

Therefore, it is

RESOLVED, that the directors authorize the repurchase of up to _____ [number of shares] of the corporation's stock, for a price not to exceed $ _____ [dollar amount] per share, on the terms and conditions as the officers of the corporation consider to be appropriate, and as required by applicable law or agreement, provided that, at the time of the repurchase, all applicable statutory requirements and any agreements to which this corporation is a party, are satisfied with respect to the repurchase.

RESOLVED FURTHER, that each of the officers of this corporation is authorized and directed to execute all documents and to take any other action necessary or advisable to carry out the purposes of this resolution.

§ 5.248 Resolution Fixing Value of Nonmonetary Consideration for Shares to Be Issued

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is for use where shares are to be issued for consideration other than money.

For further discussion of federal securities issues, see Gadsky, Business Organizations--Federal Securities Exchange Act of 1934, Ch. 4, Exchange Act Registration and Reporting Requirements (Matthew Bender). For discussion of California securities requirements, see Ch. 6, Securities Regulation Issues .

For discussion and examples of various formats for resolutions, see § 5.240. For a certificate of adoption of a resolution by the board of directors, see § 5.241. Minutes of the proceedings of the board are discussed in § 5.230. Actions by written consent are discussed in §§ 5.33 and 5.220-5.223.

[b] Consideration for Shares

Shares may be issued for such consideration as is determined by the board of directors (or by the shareholders, if the articles so provide), consisting of any (or all) of the following: money paid, labor done, services actually rendered to the corporation or for its benefit or in its formation or reorganization, debts or securities canceled, and tangible or intangible property actually received either by the issuing corporation or by a wholly owned subsidiary [Corp. Code § 409(a)(1)]. However, neither promissory notes of the buyer (unless adequately secured by collateral other than the shares acquired or unless permitted by an employee stock purchase plan, or option plan or agreement [see Corp. Code § 408], nor future services constitute payment or part payment for shares of the corporation [Corp. Code § 409(a)(1)].

When the consideration is other than money, the board of directors must state by resolution its determination of the fair value to the corporation in monetary terms of the consideration for which shares are issued [Corp. Code 409(e)]. This requirement does not affect the proper accounting treatment to be accorded a given transaction, which must conform to generally accepted accounting principles [Corp. Code 409(e)]. Thus, in a merger, use of "pooling of interests" accounting may be required, in which case the value of noncash consideration as determined by the board might be significantly different from that recorded in the surviving corporation's books.

§ 5.250 Board Resolution Approving Conversion

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a resolution by the board of directors of a California corporation authorizing the conversion of the corporation into another business entity pursuant to Chapter 11.5 of the General Corporation Law [Corp. Code § 1150 et seq.]. For extensive discussion of the law authorizing corporate conversions, as well as procedural guides and forms for effectuating such a conversion, see Ch. 11F, Corporate Conversions .

[2] FORM

Board Resolution Approving Conversion
BOARD RESOLUTION APPROVING CONVERSION INTO OTHER BUSINESS ENTITY

WHEREAS, it is deemed to be in the best interests of this corporation and its shareholders that the corporation convert into a California _____ [specify type of other business entity, e.g., limited partnership] (the "Converted Entity") pursuant to Chapter 11.5 of the General Corporation Law of California; and

WHEREAS, to do so this corporation must adopt a Plan of Conversion (the "Plan") and a proposed Plan has been presented to this meeting; and

WHEREAS, the Board of Directors has considered and hereby approves the Plan in accordance with Corporations Code Section 1152; and

WHEREAS, the Plan meets the requirements regarding conversion of shares of this corporation into interests in the Converted Entity and applicable governing law set forth in Corporations Code Section 1151;

Therefore, it is

RESOLVED, that the form, terms, and provisions of the Plan of Conversion ("Plan") presented to and considered at this meeting be and each of them is hereby approved but with such changes therein (other than as to the type of entity into which this corporation is to be converted and the manner of conversion of the shares of this corporation into interests of the Converted Entity), if any, as the officer or officers acting in the premises shall approve, such approval to be conclusively evidenced by his, her, or their action in the premises.

RESOLVED FURTHER, that this corporation shall convert into the Converted Entity pursuant to the Plan.

RESOLVED FURTHER, that the officers of this corporation are each authorized and directed to seek approval by the shareholders of the principal terms of the Plan as required by Corporations Code Section 1152(b) [if the converting corporation is a close corporation, add: and the consent required by the last sentence of Corporations Code Section 1152(b) and/or if some shares of the converting corporation are not to be treated equally with other shares of the same class or series, add: and the consent required by Corporations Code Section 1151(a).]

RESOLVED FURTHER, that each of the officers of this corporation is authorized and directed to execute all documents and to take any other action necessary or advisable to carry out the purpose of this resolution.

RESOLVED FURTHER, that the Corporate Secretary is directed to attach a copy of the Plan to the minutes of this meeting.
