11-26 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26.210

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 26.210 Sale of Note and Deed of Trust--Seller's Instructions

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a set of escrow instructions that may be used by the seller in a transaction in which the seller and buyer submit separate instructions to the escrow holder to complete the sale of a promissory note and deed of trust. For separate buyer's instructions, see § 26.201. For joint instructions to be used in this type of transaction, see § 26.202. For a discussion of separate instructions and the general considerations relevant to the use and adaptation of this form, see the comment to § 26.200.

[b] Deposit Clause

Paragraph 3 of this form contains the deposit clause. The purpose of this clause is to identify the instruments, documents, and other items that the seller is depositing or will deposit in escrow in order to enable the escrow holder to comply with the conditions that must be performed or fulfilled by the seller before the buyer will authorize payment of the purchase price. Conditions typically required by the buyer are discussed in § 26.211[1].

[c] Owner's Statement

Frequently, the buyer's obligation to purchase a note and deed of trust will be contingent upon verification of their status by means of an owner's statement, a written statement by the owner of the encumbered property that affirms the terms, validity, and enforceability of the note and deed of trust, and sets forth the amounts of the unpaid principal balance and other outstanding obligations. If an owner's statement is required by the underlying contract, the seller will ordinarily instruct the escrow holder to contact the owner of the property encumbered by the deed of trust and request the owner's statement. For a request for an owner's statement, an owner's statement, and a general discussion of owner's statements, see § 26.243.

[d] Beneficiary's Statement

If the deed of trust is subordinate to a prior deed of trust, the buyer's obligation to purchase a note and deed of trust may also be contingent upon verification of the status of the prior deed of trust by means of a beneficiary's statement, a written statement by the current beneficiary of the prior deed of trust that sets forth the terms of the note and the amount of the unpaid principal balance and other outstanding obligations. If a beneficiary's statement is required, the seller will ordinarily instruct the escrow holder to contact the beneficiary of the prior deed of trust and request a beneficiary's statement. For a request for a beneficiary's statement and a general discussion of beneficiary's statements, see § 26.242.

[e] Conditions Precedent to Delivery of Note and Recording of Deed of Trust

Paragraph 6 of this form sets forth the conditions precedent to the delivery of the promissory note and the recording of the assignment of the deed of trust. Ordinarily, the only condition that the seller will require to be fulfilled before the escrow holder is authorized to deliver the note and record an assignment of the deed of trust is that the escrow holder must have received funds sufficient to pay the purchase price in escrow and must be authorized and able to disburse the purchase price to seller upon the close of escrow.

[f] Standard Provisions

This form contains standard provisions, appropriate for use by either party, concerning payment of escrow fees and costs [see Paragraph 8 of form], cancellation of escrow [see Paragraph 13 of form], amendments and supplemental instructions [see Paragraph 26 of form], waiver [see Paragraph 27 of form], limitations on the escrow holder's obligations [see Paragraphs 16, 23 of form], approval by other party [see paragraph following seller's signature block], and acceptance by escrow holder [see Paragraph 28 and final paragraph of form]. For a general discussion of these standard provisions, see § 26.200[1].

(f) On cancellation of the escrow, you shall return to Seller all funds, instruments, documents, and other items that Seller has deposited into escrow.

[If time is to be made of the essence:]

Time of the Essence

14. Time is of the essence with respect to each and every provision of these instructions and in the performance, occurrence, fulfillment, or satisfaction of each and every term and condition of this escrow and these instructions.

Cooperation of Parties

15. Seller and Buyer shall cooperate with you in carrying out the instructions they deposit with you and in completing this escrow. Seller and Buyer shall deposit into escrow, upon request, any additional funds, instruments, documents, instructions, authorizations, or other items that are reasonably necessary to enable you to comply with demands made on the escrow by third parties, to secure required title insurance, or to otherwise carry out the terms of their instructions and close this escrow.

Genuineness of Documents

16. You are authorized and entitled to assume that instruments, documents, and other writings that are deposited in escrow or that you receive in the course of carrying out your instructions are genuine and are in fact signed by the person or persons purporting to execute them, and you are authorized and entitled to act upon or use such instruments, documents, and writings, unless and until you have actual knowledge of facts or circumstances that would cause a reasonably prudent person to suspect that they are not genuine.

Recording of Documents

17. You are authorized to record any instrument, agreement, or document the recording of which is necessary or appropriate to secure any title insurance required by Seller's or Buyer's instructions or to comply with any other term or condition of Seller's or Buyer's instructions.

Furnishing of Copies

18. You are authorized to furnish copies of Seller's instructions, and of any instruments, documents, or writings deposited in escrow, to _____[identify by name and capacity persons who you want be able to obtain copies of any instructions or documents upon request, e.g., the prospective title insurer, the buyer, the attorneys, and the real estate brokers for the parties]. Deposit of Funds in Escrow

19. (a) You are authorized and instructed to deposit all funds you receive in escrow in a general escrow [if appropriate, add: or trust] account that is maintained in your name at _____[identify types of financial institutions in which funds may be deposited, e.g., a State or National Bank insured by an agency of the United States Government] and to retain those funds in such an account until they are disbursed pursuant to the instructions of the parties. However, you are authorized to transfer escrowed funds held in one general escrow [if appropriate, add: or trust] account to any other general escrow [if appropriate, add: or trust] account maintained in your name at_____[identify types of financial institutions in which funds may be deposited].

(b) For the purposes of these instructions, funds deposited into escrow in the form of cash or its equivalent are deemed deposited when they are delivered to you; funds deposited into escrow in the form of a check, draft, or similar instrument are deemed deposited when the collectibility of the funds has been confirmed and they are available for disbursement. Provided, however, that the deposit into escrow of a written commitment to deliver a check or funds into this escrow that is made to you or to a party to the escrow by a bank, savings and loan association, insurance company, or other lender may, in your sole discretion, be deemed to be the equivalent of a deposit into escrow of the funds that the lender has committed to deposit.

Disbursement of Funds Held in Escrow

20. You shall not make any disbursements from funds held in escrow unless they are authorized by the instructions you have received from Seller and Buyer. Unless a prior disbursement is specifically authorized by the instructions you have received from Seller and Buyer, you shall not make any disbursements from funds held in escrow until you have closed escrow. Any disbursement made from funds held in escrow shall be made in the form of a check drawn on the general escrow [if appropriate, add: or trust] account in which the escrowed funds are held.

Conflicting Instructions

22. If there is a material conflict between the instructions that you receive from Seller and the instructions that you receive from Buyer, you shall notify Seller and Buyer forthwith of the precise nature of the conflict by telephone and by mail, and you shall take no further action to carry out the particular instructions that are the subject of the conflict until the conflict has been resolved or eliminated by a valid amendment to the conflicting instructions or by a final order or judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction.

Conflicting Demands or Claims

23. You are not obligated to determine or resolve conflicting demands or claims to funds, instruments, documents, or items deposited in escrow or conflicting demands or claims concerning the validity, interpretation, or performance of the escrow instructions you have received or conflicting demands or claims concerning your obligations as escrow holder. Until any such conflicting demands or claims have been determined, resolved, or eliminated by written agreement of the parties, a valid amendment or supplement to your escrow instructions, or a final order or judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction, you are authorized to refrain from carrying out any instructions or performing any duties, and to retain in escrow any funds, instruments, documents, or items that are the subject of the conflict or that may be dependent upon or affected by the resolution of the conflict.

Revocability of Instructions Until Deposit of Buyer's Instructions

24. Until Buyer has deposited with you signed written instructions that are sufficient to enable you to complete the sale of the Subject Promissory Note on the conditions set forth in these instructions, Seller shall have the right to revoke these instructions and shall have the right to the return of any instruments, documents, items, or funds deposited with you.

Sole Instructions

25. Unless and until they are subsequently amended or canceled in the manner provided in these instructions, these instructions and the written instructions initially deposited with you by Buyer shall constitute the complete escrow instructions, and the only escrow instructions, of Seller and Buyer and shall revoke and supersede any prior oral instructions you may have received.

Amendments

26. Once these instructions and Buyer's initial written instructions have been deposited with you, the respective instructions of Seller and Buyer may only be amended, supplemented, or modified by means of a written amendment that has either been signed or approved in writing by both Seller and Buyer. No written amendment, supplement, or modification of Seller's instructions or Buyer's instructions shall be effective or valid unless and until it has been deposited with you and unless and until Seller and Buyer have either signed it or approved it in a signed writing that has been deposited with you. Any purported oral amendment, supplement, or modification of the Seller's or Buyer's written instructions shall be ineffective and invalid.

Waiver

27. Any term or condition of this escrow or the instructions deposited by Seller and Buyer may be waived, but only with the agreement of each party the term or condition was intended to benefit. A term or condition of this escrow or the instructions deposited by Seller and Buyer can only be waived by means of a written waiver that has either been signed or approved in writing by the party or parties the term or condition was intended to benefit; no written waiver shall be effective or valid unless and until it has been deposited with you and unless and until each party it was intended to benefit has either signed it or approved it in a signed writing that has been deposited with you. Any purported oral waiver shall be ineffective and invalid.

DIVISION II: REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 26 REAL PROPERTY ESCROWS
PART IV. FORMS
A. Complete Escrow Instructions
2. Sale of Note and Deed of Trust

11-26 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26.211

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 26.211 Sale of Note and Deed of Trust--Buyer's Instructions

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a set of escrow instructions that may be used by the buyer in a transaction in which the seller and buyer submit separate instructions to the escrow holder to complete the sale of a promissory note and deed of trust. For separate seller's instructions, see § 26.210. For joint instructions to be used in this type of transaction, see § 26.212. For a discussion of separate instructions and the general considerations relevant to the use and adaption of escrow instructions, see § 26.200[1].

[b] Deposit Clauses

Paragraphs 3 and 4 of this form contain deposit clauses providing, respectively, for the deposit of the purchase price and the funds needed to pay the escrow fees and costs to be paid by the buyer. The purpose of the buyer's deposit clauses is to identify the funds or other items that the buyer is depositing or will deposit in escrow to enable the escrow holder to comply with the conditions that must be performed or fulfilled by the buyer before the seller will authorize the delivery of the promissory note. To comply with the conditions imposed by the seller, the buyer ordinarily will only be required to deposit funds that are sufficient to pay the purchase price and to pay the escrow fees and costs that the buyer is obligated to pay.

[c] Conditions Precedent to Payment of Purchase Price

[i] Commonly Required Conditions

The buyer's instructions should specify clearly the terms and conditions that must be performed or fulfilled before the escrow holder is authorized to disburse the funds deposited by or on behalf of the buyer. Paragraph 6 of this form, which contains the conditions precedent to the payment of the purchase price, sets forth those conditions that are most commonly required by the buyer of a note and deed of trust.

[ii] Proper Endorsement and Delivery of Note and Assignment of Deed of Trust

The buyer's instructions will require, initially, that the seller properly endorse the promissory note and deposit it in escrow for delivery to buyer. The wording of the endorsement may have significant legal consequences and, accordingly, the buyer's instructions should specify the exact language that must be used by the seller in endorsing the note.

The buyer's instructions will also require that the escrow holder be authorized and prepared to record an assignment of the deed of trust that the seller has deposited into escrow.

[iii] Title Insurance and Fire Insurance

Another essential condition that will be required by the buyer's instructions is that a title insurer be obligated and prepared to issue a policy of title insurance, or an endorsement to an existing policy of title insurance deposited in escrow by seller, insuring the buyer's beneficial interest in the deed of trust. In addition, the buyer's instructions will usually require that the escrow holder be authorized and prepared to deliver an insurance policy or a memorandum of an insurance policy providing the buyer with the fire and physical damage insurance required by provisions of the deed of trust.

[iv] Owner's Statement

Frequently, the underlying contract will make the buyer's obligations contingent on the seller verifying the status of the note and deed of trust by means of an owner's statement, a written statement by the owner of the property encumbered that affirms the terms, validity, and enforceability of the note and deed of trust and sets forth the amounts of the unpaid principal balance and other outstanding obligations. If this contingency has not been removed before the escrow instructions are deposited, the buyer's instructions should require that an owner's statement meeting specified requirements be deposited in escrow.

For a request for owner's statement, an owner's statement, and a general discussion of owner's statements, see § 26.243.

[v] Beneficiary's Statement

If the deed of trust is subordinate to a prior deed of trust, the underlying contract will usually make the buyer's obligations contingent on the seller's verifying the status of the prior deed by means of a beneficiary's statement, a written statement by the current beneficiary of the prior deed of trust that sets forth the terms of the note and the amount of the unpaid principal balance and other outstanding obligations. If this contingency has not been removed when the buyer's instructions are deposited, they will ordinarily require that a beneficiary's statement meeting specified requirements be deposited in escrow. For a request for a beneficiary's statement and a general discussion of beneficiary's statements, see § 26.242.

[d] Standard Provisions

This form contains standard provisions, appropriate for use by either party, concerning payment of escrow fees and costs [see Paragraph 8 of form], cancellation of escrow [see Paragraph 14 of form], amendments and supplemental instructions [see Paragraph 27 of form], waiver [see Paragraph 28 of form], limitations on the escrow holder's obligations [see Paragraphs 17, 24 of form], approval by other party [see paragraph following buyer's signature block], and acceptance by escrow holder [see Paragraph 29 and final paragraph of form]. For a general discussion of these standard provisions, see § 26.200[1].

CHAPTER 26 REAL PROPERTY ESCROWS
PART IV. FORMS
A. Complete Escrow Instructions
2. Sale of Note and Deed of Trust

11-26 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26.212

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 26.212 Sale of Note and Deed of Trust--Joint Instructions

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a set of escrow instructions that may be used by the seller and the buyer in a transaction in which they submit joint escrow instructions to the escrow holder to complete the sale of a promissory note and deed of trust. It may also serve as a contract for the sale of the note and deed of trust. For a general discussion of joint instructions, see § 26.202[1].

Joint instructions ordinarily should include virtually all the provisions that normally would be included in separate instructions prepared for the seller and the buyer. Accordingly, this form essentially merges and consolidates the seller's and buyer's instructions set out, respectively, in §§ 26.210[2] and 26.211[2]. For a discussion of provisions common to escrow instructions generally, see § 26.200[1] (seller's instructions) and 26.201[1] (buyer's instructions).

§ 26.220 New Lender's Instructions

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a set of instructions that may be used by a lender that is making a loan to the buyer to finance a portion of the purchase price for real property when the documentation and funding of the loan are to be accomplished through the escrow established to complete the sale of the property. Although this form is written for use in connection with a purchase of real property, it may also be adapted for use in refinancing or other secured loan transactions.

These instructions are typical of the instructions used by institutional lenders. They do not create a true escrow, because the lender expressly reserves the right to revoke them unilaterally and obtain the return of items deposited. Essentially, they constitute a revocable offer to deposit the loan proceeds on performance of the specified conditions [see, e.g., Keyes v. Meyers (1905) 147 Cal. 702, 704-706, 82 P. 304 ; Ragan v. Ragan (1915) 29 Cal. App. 63, 65, 154 P. 479] .

Ordinarily, these instructions would be delivered to the escrow holder along with the note and deed of trust that the buyer is to execute to evidence and secure the loan, and the other loan documents to be executed by or delivered to the buyer.

[b] Conditions Precedent to Request for Funds

Usually a lender will not deposit loan proceeds into escrow until all of the conditions of making the loan (other than the actual recording of the deed of trust and issuance of a policy of title insurance) have been satisfied and the escrow holder is fully authorized and prepared to close escrow promptly on receipt of the loan proceeds. Thus, these instructions provide that before the escrow holder may request the loan proceeds, the following must occur:

- The deed of trust must be executed by the buyer and the escrow holder must be authorized and prepared to record it, the promissory note, and the other agreements, statements and documents to be executed by the buyer must be properly executed and returned to the lender;

- Statements and documents to be delivered to the buyer must be delivered and an acknowledgment or certification of delivery returned to the lender;

- The title insurer must have delivered its written commitment to issue the title insurance required by the lender;

- The escrow holder must be authorized and prepared to deliver a fire and physical damage insurance policy complying with the lender's requirements;

- The escrow holder must have delivered copies of the preliminary title report and the escrow instructions submitted by the parties to the lender;

- The buyer must have deposited the required cash downpayment and funds sufficient to pay any escrow costs or charges into escrow; and

- The escrow holder must be authorized and prepared to record the deed of trust, to secure the issuance and delivery of the title insurance policy required by the lender and to deliver the required fire and physical damage insurance policy to the lender. When these additional conditions have been complied with, the escrow holder is authorized to disburse the loan proceeds.

[c] Deduction of Loan Fees and Charges

These instructions assume that, in accordance with the usual practice, the lender will deduct its loan fees and charges from the loan proceeds before depositing them in escrow. If loan fees and charges are to be paid out of escrow, the right to request and disburse the loan proceeds should be conditioned on the escrow holder having been authorized and instructed by the Buyer to pay the loan fees and charges.

[d] Cancellation for Redrawing of Instructions and Documents

The lender's loan documents and escrow instructions are ordinarily predicated on the assumption that escrow will close before the first payment comes due under the terms of the note deposited for the Buyer's execution. Accordingly, if the escrow does not close before this date, the instructions and loan documents will have to be revoked and withdrawn. These instructions contain a provision for automatic cancellation of the instructions in that event.

11-26 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26.221

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 26.221 Existing Lender's Instructions (Payoff of Existing Loan)

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a set of instructions that may be used by an existing lender (beneficiary) [see Civ. Code § 2943(a)(1)] whose loan is to be paid off by the seller. These instructions are typical of the instructions forwarded by institutional lenders in response to a request for a payoff demand statement [see Civ. Code § 2943; see also § 26.240]. Essentially, they authorize the escrow holder to record the reconveyance and return to the seller the note, deed of trust (or mortgage), and any insurance policies in force when the escrow holder is authorized and prepared to disburse the balance due on the loan and any other amounts due under the note or trust deed. Ordinarily, these instructions will be delivered to the escrow holder along with a payoff demand statement, the originals of the note and trust deed, and an executed reconveyance of the trust deed.

Like most payoff instructions used by institutional lenders, these instructions do not create a true escrow with respect to the loan documents that may be delivered to the escrow holder, because the lender expressly reserves the right unilaterally to revoke them and obtain the return of the items deposited. Instead, these instructions constitute an offer that may be revoked at any time before the seller accepts by rendering the requested performance [see, e.g., Keyes v. Meyers (1905) 147 Cal. 702, 704-706, 82 P. 304 ; Ragan v. Ragan (1915) 29 Cal. App. 63, 65, 154 P. 479] .

This form assumes that the security instrument will be a deed of trust because trust deeds are used much more frequently in California than mortgages. However, this form may be easily modified for use in conjunction with the assumption of a note secured by a mortgage.

[b] Statutory Requirements for Payoff Demand Statements

A "payoff demand statement" is a written statement, prepared by a beneficiary in response to a written request made by an "entitled person" or authorized agent [see Civ. Code § 2943(a)(4)], setting forth the amounts required, as of the date of preparation, to satisfy all obligations secured by the loan that is the subject of the payoff demand statement in full [Civ. Code § 2943(a)(5)]. Within 21 days of the receipt by a beneficiary or a beneficiary's authorized agent of a written request for a payoff demand statement, the beneficiary or his or her agent must prepare and deliver the statement to the person requesting it [Civ. Code § 2943(c)]. For further discussion of the detailed statutory requirements governing payoff demand statements, see § 26.240[1].

[c] Payoff Demand

The lender's payoff demand usually is expressed as a specified sum or sums plus interest on the unpaid principal loan balance. Under Civ. Code § 2943, the demand must include information reasonably necessary to calculate the payoff amount on a per diem basis for the period of time, not to exceed 30 days, during which the per diem amount is not changed by the terms of the note [Civ. Code § 2943(a)(5)]. If the loan is not paid in full before the per diem amount is changed by the terms of the note or before another installment payment is made, the demand will be incorrect and will have to be adjusted. Accordingly, most lenders' instructions will either provide for revocation of the instructions or amendment of the demand if the escrow is not closed before the payoff amount is changed.

Any amount that was due but for any reason was not included in the payoff demand statement or an amended statement will continue to be recoverable by the beneficiary as an unsecured obligation, pursuant to the terms of the note and provisions of law [Civ. Code § 2943(d)(3); Cathay Bank v. Fidelity Nat. Title Ins. Co. (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 266, 270, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 595] .

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a set of instructions that may be used by a lien claimant whose claim is to be paid off by a seller to secure removal of the lien prior to sale of the property. These instructions normally would be deposited in escrow in response to a request from the escrow holder or one of the parties for a payoff demand from the lien claimant [see § 26.241]. An itemized statement of the obligations secured by the lien, documentation of these obligations, if requested, and the instruments and documents required to discharge and remove the lien, would also be deposited in escrow along with these instructions. Essentially, these instructions authorize the escrow holder to take the actions necessary to discharge and remove the lien when it is authorized and prepared to disburse the amount owed on the underlying obligation.

As drafted, these instructions do not create a true escrow, because the lien claimant expressly reserves the right to revoke them unilaterally and obtain the return of items deposited. Rather, they constitute a revocable offer to discharge and remove the lien [see, e.g., Keyes v. Meyers (1905) 147 Cal. 702, 704-706, 82 P. 304 ; Ragan v. Ragan (1915) 29 Cal. App. 63, 65, 154 P. 479] .

There is no statutory requirement that a lien claimant deposit the instruments or documents necessary to discharge or remove a lien into an escrow before the underlying obligation is paid. However, most lien claimants will agree to permit the payoff and removal of the lien to be handled through an escrow because it is the quickest and easiest way (and sometimes the only way) to obtain payment.

These instructions are designed for use by the lien claimant's attorney. Frequently, the escrow holder will provide the lien claimant with printed instructions. Instructions prepared by the escrow holder usually will not contain the provisions that grant the lien claimant the right to unilaterally revoke the instructions, demand the return of the instruments deposited, or unilaterally amend the initial demand.

§ 26.240 Request for Lender's Payoff Demand Statement [Civ. Code § 2943]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a request for a lender's (beneficiary's) payoff demand statement. A "payoff demand statement" is a written statement, prepared by a beneficiary in response to a written request made by an "entitled person" or authorized agent, setting forth the amounts required, as of the date of preparation, to satisfy all obligations secured by the loan that is the subject of the statement in full [Civ. Code § 2943(a)(5)]. For definitions of "beneficiary" and "entitled person," see § 26.240[1][d][d]. For an illustrative payoff demand statement, see § 25.254.

This request may be used when a seller of real property needs to arrange to pay off an existing loan and obtain a reconveyance of the deed of trust (or mortgage) securing the loan. In accordance with customary procedure, it requests the lender to provide a payoff demand statement, and to place the reconveyance and the loan instruments in escrow together with instructions authorizing recording or delivery when the escrow holder is prepared to disburse the balance. For instructions to be submitted by an existing lender in response to a request for a payoff demand statement, see § 26.221.

Ordinarily, the escrow holder will make the arrangements for the payoff of the loan and the reconveyance of the trust deed. Consequently, this form has been drafted for use by an escrow holder. For a request made by a seller (i.e., a trustor or mortgagor), see § 25.253.

This form assumes that the security instrument will be a deed of trust because trust deeds are used much more frequently in California than mortgages. However, this form may be easily modified for use in conjunction with the assumption of a note secured by a mortgage.

Civ. Code § 2943 includes provisions that, until January 1, 2014 [Civ. Code § 2943(g); see 2009 Stats., ch. 43, § 5 (eff. Jan. 1, 2010)], allow escrow agents to obtain valid payoff statements in short-sale transactions. In a case subject to those provisions, there is a "short-pay agreement" in effect, which is a written agreement by the beneficiary (or mortgagee) to release its lien on a property in return for payment of an amount less than the secured obligation [Civ. Code § 2943(a)(6)]. In a short-sale transaction, the person in possession of the short-pay agreement, or an escrow agent on that person's behalf, would submit a "short-pay request" asking the beneficiary to provide a "short-pay demand statement" [Civ. Code § 2943(a)(7), (8)]. The form in § 25.253[2] may be used for making a short-pay request, provided the form is modified to show specifically that it requests a "short-pay demand statement." If this form is used without specifying a short-pay demand statement in lieu of a payoff demand statement, then the beneficiary must treat it as a request for a normal payoff demand statement [Civ. Code § 2943(e)(1)]. The short-pay demand statement will be similar to a normal payoff demand statement but will set forth the amount that the beneficiary has agreed to accept in lieu of the whole outstanding debt, together with any terms and conditions under which the beneficiary will execute and deliver a reconveyance of the deed of trust securing the note that is the subject of the short-pay demand statement [Civ. Code § 2943(a)(7)]. For further discussion, see CALIFORNIA FORMS OF PLEADING AND PRACTICE, Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages, § 555.53[4] (Matthew Bender), or CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, Ch. 123, Nonjudicial Foreclosure, § 123.13[7] (Matthew Bender).

[b] Beneficiary Statement

If an existing obligation is to be assumed rather than paid in full, a beneficiary statement should be requested instead of a payoff demand statement [see Civ. Code § 2943(a)(2), (b); see also Ch. 25B, Subordination, Assumption, and Assignment]. Both types of statements are governed by Civ. Code § 2943. If an entitled person or his or her authorized agent requests a statement pursuant to Civ. Code § 2943 and does not specify whether he or she is seeking a beneficiary statement or a payoff demand statement, the beneficiary must treat the request as a request for a payoff demand statement [Civ. Code § 2943(e)(1)].

[c] Owner's Statement

The disclosure requirements of Civ. Code § 2943 apply only to beneficiaries, mortgagees, and their assignees [see Civ. Code § 2943(a)(1)]. For a nonstatutory request for confirmation of the debt that may be submitted to a trustor or mortgagor by a proposed assignee of the beneficiary or mortgagee, see § 26.243.

[d] Definitions

Under Civ. Code § 2943, "beneficiary" means a mortgagee or beneficiary of a mortgage or trust deed, or his or her assignees [Civ. Code § 2943(a)(1)]. "Entitled person" means (1) the trustor or mortgagor of the mortgaged or trust property, or that person's successor in interest; (2) any beneficiary under a trust deed; (3) any person having a subordinate lien or encumbrance of record; (4) any escrow holder licensed as an agent; or (5) any person who is acting as an escrow holder and is exempt from the licensing requirements of the Escrow Law [Civ. Code § 2943(a)(4); see Fin. Code § 17000 et seq. (Escrow Law); Fin. Code § 17006 (exemptions); see also § 26.18]. Finally, "delivery" means depositing or causing to be deposited in the United States mail an envelope with postage prepaid, containing a copy of the document to be delivered, addressed to the person whose name and address is set forth in the request for the document [Civ. Code § 2943(a)(3)]. This document may also be faxed to the person whose name and address are set forth in the demand for the document [Civ. Code § 2943(a)].

Within 21 days of the receipt by the beneficiary or the beneficiary's authorized agent of the written request for a payoff demand statement, the beneficiary or his or her agent must prepare and deliver the statement to the person requesting it [Civ. Code § 2943(c)]. For the definition of "delivery," see § 26.240[1][d]. However, if the loan is subject to a recorded notice of default or a filed complaint commencing a judicial foreclosure, the beneficiary will have no obligation to prepare and deliver the statement unless the written request is received prior to the first publication of a notice of sale or the notice of the first date of sale established by a court [Civ. Code § 2943(c)].

If the beneficiary has more than one branch, office, or other place of business, then the request must be made to the branch or office address set forth in the payment billing notice or payment book. In that case, the statement, unless it specifies otherwise, will be deemed to apply only to the unpaid balance of the single obligation named in the request and secured by the mortgage or trust deed that is payable at the branch or office whose address appears on the foregoing billing notice or payment book [Civ. Code § 2943(e)(5)].

[f] Payoff Demand Statement

As mentioned above, an illustrative payoff demand statement is set forth in § 25.254. The comment to that form discusses, among other things, the required contents of the statement [Civ. Code § 2943(a)(5)], the right of the beneficiary to demand proof of the "entitled person" status of the requesting party [see Civ. Code § 2943(e)(3)], and the consequences of the failure of a beneficiary to comply with the statutory disclosure requirements [see Civ. Code § 2943(e)(4)].

Any amount that was due but for any reason was not included in the payoff demand statement or an amended statement will continue to be recoverable by the beneficiary as an unsecured obligation, pursuant to the terms of the note and provisions of law [Civ. Code § 2943(d)(3); Cathay Bank v. Fidelity Nat. Title Ins. Co. (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 266, 270, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 595] .

This form may be used when a seller needs to make arrangements to pay off a lien claimant and discharge and remove a lien against the property to be conveyed. It requests the lien claimant to furnish an itemized statement and demand for payment of the obligation or obligations secured by the lien and to deposit the instruments necessary to discharge and remove the lien into escrow together with instructions authorizing the removal of the lien when the escrow holder is prepared to disburse the amount owed on the underlying obligation. For instructions to be submitted by a lien claimant in response to a request for a payoff demand, see § 26.230.

There is no statutory requirement that a lien claimant deposit the instruments or documents necessary to discharge or remove a lien into an escrow before the underlying obligation is paid. However, most lien claimants will agree to permit the payoff and removal of the lien to be handled through an escrow because it is the quickest and easiest way (and sometimes the only way) to obtain payment.

Ordinarily, arrangements for payment of the underlying obligation and removal of the lien will be made by the escrow holder, and this form therefore has been drafted for use by an escrow holder. However, the arrangements may be made by the seller or the seller's attorney and, in such a case, the form may be modified for their use.

§ 26.242 Request for Beneficiary Statement [Civ. Code § 2943]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a request to the beneficiary of a deed of trust encumbering real property for a beneficiary statement and a copy of the note. A "beneficiary statement" is an itemized statement of the outstanding obligations secured by the trust deed [see Civ. Code § 2943(a)(2); see also [e], below]. This type of request is usually necessary in connection with a sale of real property when a buyer is to assume the trust deed, or take subject to the trust deed, and receive a credit equal to the amount of the unpaid obligations it secures. For a detailed discussion of assumption, see Ch. 25B, Subordination, Assumption, and Assignment .

Under this form, the person making the request is an escrow holder. A licensed escrow holder is one of the "entitled persons" who may request a beneficiary statement [see Civ. Code § 2943(a)(4); see also [e], below]. For a request made by the trustor or mortgagor of the mortgaged or trust property, see § 25B.220.

This form assumes that the security instrument will be a deed of trust because trust deeds are used much more frequently in California than mortgages. However, this form may be easily modified for use in conjunction with the assumption of a note secured by a mortgage.

For an illustrative beneficiary statement, see § 25B.221.

[b] Payoff Demand Statement

Civ. Code § 2943, which governs beneficiary statements, also sets forth requirements for a related disclosure document referred to as a "payoff demand statement." A payoff demand statement is used when the obligation secured by a mortgage or deed of trust is to be paid in full [see Civ. Code § 2943(a)(5), (c); see also § 26.240]. If an entitled person requests a statement pursuant to Civ. Code § 2943 and does not specify whether he or she is seeking a beneficiary statement or a payoff demand statement, the beneficiary must treat the request as a request for a payoff demand statement [Civ. Code § 2943(e)(1)].

Any amount that was due but for any reason was not included in the payoff demand statement or an amended statement will continue to be recoverable by the beneficiary as an unsecured obligation, pursuant to the terms of the note and provisions of law [Civ. Code § 2943(d)(3); Cathay Bank v. Fidelity Nat. Title Ins. Co. (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 266, 270, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 595] .

[c] Owner's Statement

For an "owner's statement" that contains information similar to that provided in this form, but that is completed by the debtor and/or owner of the property, see § 26.243. An owner's statement is generally requested by a proposed assignee of the beneficiary or mortgagee to confirm the status of the debt and to determine whether the debtor is claiming any offsets against the beneficiary or mortgagee. However, there is no statutory authority requiring a debtor to furnish such a statement; Civ. Code § 2943 applies only to requests directed to beneficiaries and mortgagees [see Civ. Code § 2943(b)(1), (c)].

[d] Request Procedure

Any entitled person or his or her authorized agent may prepare and deliver to the beneficiary [for the definitions of "entitled person," "beneficiary," and "delivery," see [e], below] or the beneficiary's authorized agent a written request or demand for a beneficiary statement. The request may be made (1) at any time before, or within two months after, the recording of a notice of default under the mortgage or trust deed, or (2) more than 30 days before the entry of a decree of foreclosure [Civ. Code § 2943(b)(2)].

If the beneficiary has more than one branch, office, or other place of business, then the request must be made to the branch or office address set forth in the payment billing notice or payment book. In that case, the statement, unless it specifies otherwise, will be deemed to apply only to the unpaid balance of the single obligation named in the request and secured by the mortgage or trust deed that is payable at the branch or office whose address appears on the foregoing billing notice or payment book [Civ. Code § 2943(e)(5)].

This form specifies the information that the beneficiary must include in the beneficiary statement [see Civ. Code § 2943(a)(2) (required contents)]. However, there is no statutory requirement that the request set forth these items, and the request may simply ask the beneficiary to provide a beneficiary statement setting forth the information required by statute [see Ch. 25B, Subordination, Assumption, and Assignment].

This form includes an optional request for a copy of the trust deed. When such a request is made, the beneficiary must furnish the copy of the trust deed along with the beneficiary statement at no additional charge [Civ. Code § 2943(e)(2)].

Under Civ. Code § 2943, "beneficiary" means a mortgagee or beneficiary of a mortgage or trust deed, or his or her assignees [Civ. Code § 2943(a)(1)]. "Entitled person" means (1) the trustor or mortgagor of the mortgaged or trust property, or that person's successor in interest [see § 25B.220]; (2) any beneficiary under a trust deed; (3) any person having a subordinate lien or encumbrance of record; (4) any escrow holder licensed as an agent; or (5) any person who is acting as an escrow holder and is exempt from the licensing requirements of the Escrow Law [Civ. Code § 2943(a)(4); see Fin. Code § 17000 et seq. (Escrow Law); Fin. Code § 17006 (exemptions); see also § 26.18]. Finally, "delivery" means depositing or causing to be deposited in the United States mail an envelope with postage prepaid, containing a copy of the document to be delivered, addressed to the person whose name and address is set forth in the request for the document [Civ. Code § 2943(a)(3)]. This document may also be faxed to the person whose name and address are set forth in the demand for the document [Civ. Code § 2943(a)].

11-26 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26.243

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 26.243 Request for Owner's Statement, With Owner's Statement Attached

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a request to the owner of real property for a statement concerning the status of the loan and other obligations secured by a deed of trust on the property, together with an owner's statement to be signed and returned by the owner in response to the request.

An owner's statement will usually be requested in connection with the sale of a note and deed of trust. It serves to verify representations that the seller of the note has made to the buyer of the note concerning the nature and amount of the obligations secured by the deed of trust. If the elements of equitable estoppel are present, it may also operate to estop the owner from asserting facts or contentions contrary to those set forth in the statement in any action or proceeding the buyer may have to institute to enforce the note and deed of trust [see Evid. Code § 623; see also City of Long Beach v. Mansell (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 462, 489-490, 91 Cal. Rptr. 23, 476 P.2d 423 (elements of equitable estoppel)].

The request for an owner's statement ordinarily will be made by the escrow holder, and this form therefore has been drafted for use by an escrow holder. However, the request may also be made by the seller, the buyer, or their attorneys, and, in such a case, the form may be modified for their use.

The escrow holder usually provides the property owner with an owner's statement to be executed and returned. The escrow holder, using information supplied by the seller, normally will insert the specific information relating to the terms of the note, the unpaid balance, and the nature and amount of outstanding obligations and request that the owner verify it. This form assumes that this practice will be followed. Occasionally, however, the owner will be requested to provide this specific information on blanks inserted in the statement for that purpose.

The owner of the property has no legal obligation to provide an owner's statement. However, he or she may be willing to do so to avoid the possibility that the buyer may institute enforcement proceedings on the basis of erroneous information furnished by the seller or in recognition of the fact that it may be necessary to request forbearance or some other accommodation from the buyer in the future.

§ 26.250 Amendment to Escrow Instructions

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a written amendment to a set of escrow instructions. It is a general form that can be used by either the buyer or the seller to modify either separate or joint escrow instructions. The style and format generally conform to that of the complete escrow forms in this chapter [see §§ 26.200-26.230].

This form should be used when the parties intend to change the terms of instructions that have already been submitted. When the parties intend to instruct the escrow holder on matters not covered by previous instructions, supplemental instructions should be used. For a form for supplemental instructions, and discussion of the distinction between amendments and supplemental instructions, see § 26.251.

[b] Amendment of Escrow Instructions

[i] Written Amendment

If existing escrow instructions require a written amendment, an attempt to amend them in some other way will be ineffective [see, e.g., Anderson v. Southern Trust & Title Co. (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 700, 702, 184 P.2d 949 ; Davis v. Stulman (1945) 72 Cal. App. 2d 255, 268, 164 P.2d 787] . Even when oral amendments are permissible [see, e.g., Zang v. Northwestern Title Co. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 159, 168, 185 Cal. Rptr. 176 ; Cannon v. Handley (1887) 72 Cal. 133, 144-145, 13 P. 315] , written amendments should be used to avoid potential disputes about the terms or effect of an amendment.

[ii] Statement of Purpose

There is no legal requirement that a written amendment specify the purpose of the amendment. However, this form includes a statement of the purpose of the amendment to assist the escrow holder in determining the effect of the amendment.

[iii] Timing of Amendment; Consent of Other Party

Escrow instructions may be amended by the parties at any time [King v. Stanley (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 584, 589, 197 P.2d 321 ; Zlozower v. Lindenbaum (1929) 100 Cal. App. 766, 773, 281 P. 102] . However, once both parties have deposited their initial instructions, a party may not amend his or her escrow instructions without the consent of the other party [Diaz v. United California Bank (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 161, 166, 139 Cal. Rptr. 314 ; Wade v. Lake County Title Co. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 824, 828, 86 Cal. Rptr. 182] . Accordingly, this form should be signed by both parties even when it only amends the escrow instructions of one party.

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form may be used by any party to an escrow to give the escrow holder supplemental escrow instructions. Supplemental escrow instructions are essentially a type of amendment and are subject to the rules that govern amendments, which are discussed in § 26.250[1]. The different characterizations are used mainly to clarify the nature of a change or addition. An amendment is usually understood to change the meaning or effect of existing provisions, while a supplement is usually understood to add matters not previously covered.

§ 26.252 Revocation of Escrow Instructions

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form may be used to exercise a right to revoke escrow instructions unilaterally and demand the return of items deposited with the escrow holder under those instructions.

The deposit of escrow instructions and items with an escrow holder is not always irrevocable. When a valid escrow has not been created, the escrow holder serves only as the agent of the party making the deposit, and that party therefore may revoke the instructions and demand the return of the items deposited at any time [Fitch v. Bunch (1866) 30 Cal. 208, 213-214 ; Security-First Nat. Bk. v. Clark (1935) 8 Cal. App. 2d 709, 712, 48 P.2d 167] . Accordingly, a party who has deposited instructions with an escrow holder has a right to revoke them at any time before all of the elements necessary to constitute a valid escrow are present. Most commonly, a party is entitled to exercise this right of revocation because the other party has not agreed to or accepted the conditions of the deposit [House v. Lala (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 412, 417, 4 Cal. Rptr. 366 ; Security-First Nat. Bk. v. Clark (1935) 8 Cal. App. 2d 709, 712, 48 P.2d 167] , because there is not a valid contract between the parties [Fitch v. Bunch (1866) 30 Cal. 208, 212 ; Elliott v. Title Ins. & Trust Co. (1923) 64 Cal. App. 508, 511, 222 P. 175] , or because the right to revoke the deposit has expressly been reserved [Keyes v. Meyers (1905) 147 Cal. 702, 704-706, 82 P. 304 ; Ragan v. Ragan (1915) 29 Cal. App. 63, 65, 154 P. 479] .

[b] Notice Requirements

Under the law of agency, notice to the escrow holder is all that is required to revoke the escrow and terminate the escrow holder's control over instruments or items deposited [Fitch v. Bunch (1866) 30 Cal. 208, 213-214] . Under some circumstances, however, the deposit of escrow instructions may also constitute an offer to the other party to enter into a contract. In such cases, the contractual rules governing offer and acceptance may require that the revocation be communicated to the other party to preclude the formation of a binding contract [see Civ. Code §§ 1586 (offer may not be revoked after acceptance), 1587(1) (offer may be revoked by communicating revocation to offeree)]. Consequently, it is generally advisable to give notice of the revocation to the other party as well as the escrow holder.

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form may be used by either party to an escrow to give written notice to the escrow holder and the other party that a condition of the escrow or to a party's obligation to perform has been satisfied. This form should be used when a contingency provision provides for the automatic cancellation of the escrow or the underlying contract unless a specified party gives notice of the satisfaction of the condition at issue. For a general discussion of contingency provisions, see § 26.201[1]. This form should also be used when the satisfaction of the condition is made a condition precedent to the close of escrow by the instructions of one or both of the parties. For a notice of waiver of a condition, see § 26.261. For a notice of cancellation of escrow due to the failure of a condition, see § 26.270.

Frequently, escrow instructions provide that the satisfaction of a condition can only be established by written notice. Even in the absence of such provisions, however, it is a good practice to give written notice, particularly when the failure of the condition requires cancellation of the escrow or precludes a close of escrow.

§ 26.261 Notice of Waiver of Escrow Condition

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form may be used by either party to an escrow to give written notice to the escrow holder and the other party that a condition of the escrow or to a party's obligation to perform has been waived. A party to an escrow may waive the right to performance of conditions of the escrow, and performance of a condition is not required when it has been waived by the party or parties it was intended to benefit [Wolf v. Price (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 165, 173, 52 Cal. Rptr. 889 ; Jolin v. Spira (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 356, 360, 210 P.2d 704] .

This form should be used when a contingency provision provides for automatic cancellation of the escrow or the underlying contract unless a specified party gives notice that the condition has been satisfied or waived. It should also be used by a party who desires to waive a condition that is a condition precedent to the close of escrow under his or her own instructions. For a notice that a condition has been satisfied, see § 26.260. For a notice of cancellation of an escrow due to the failure of a condition, see § 26.270. For a general discussion of contingency provisions, see § 26.201[1].

Frequently, escrow instructions provide that the waiver of a condition can only be established by written notice. Even in the absence of such provisions, it is a good practice to give written notice of a waiver, particularly if the failure of the condition requires cancellation of the escrow or precludes a close of escrow.

[b] Attempted Waiver of Condition Benefitting Another Party

A party's unilateral attempt to waive a condition that was intended in whole or part to benefit another party will be ineffective [see Spangler v. Castello (1956) 147 Cal. App. 2d 49, 52, 304 P.2d 752] . Consequently, if there is any question about whether the waiver was intended in part to benefit some other party, the party making the waiver should attempt to have the other party sign the notice of waiver or otherwise approve the waiver in writing.

§ 26.270 Notice of Cancellation of Escrow for Default or Failure of Condition

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form may be used to exercise a party's right to cancel an escrow (1) pursuant to provisions of escrow instructions or an underlying contract making the party's obligation to complete the escrow or the underlying transaction contingent on the occurrence or nonoccurrence of specified conditions; (2) pursuant to provisions of escrow instructions or an underlying contract expressly giving the party the right of cancellation in the event of the occurrence or nonoccurrence of specified conditions; or (3) when the escrow is not closed within the time specified in the instructions and the party exercising the right to cancel is not in default. For a general discussion of unilateral cancellation of escrows, see § 26.200[1]. For a general discussion of contingency provisions, see § 26.201[1].

[b] Observance of Cancellation Requirements Specified in Escrow Instructions

Provisions in escrow instructions that specify or limit the manner in which a right of cancellation may be exercised are generally given effect [see, e.g., Weisberg v. Ashcraft (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 793, 796, 36 Cal. Rptr. 188 ; Weaver v. Casad (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 593, 595, 195 P.2d 81] . Consequently, a party attempting to cancel an escrow should be careful to observe any requirements contained in the escrow instructions strictly.

§ 26.271 Notice of Cancellation of Escrow by Mutual Agreement

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form may be used to effect a cancellation of an escrow pursuant to the mutual agreement of the parties. For a unilateral notice of cancellation of escrow due to a default or the failure of a condition, see § 26.270. For a unilateral notice of revocation of escrow instructions, see § 26.252.

The parties to an escrow may cancel the escrow by mutual agreement at any time before it is closed [Whitney v. Sherman (1918) 178 Cal. 435, 437-438, 173 P. 931 ; Wilshire Realty Co. v. Kry Corp. (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 269 276-277, 58 Cal. Rptr. 469] . The parties are ordinarily entitled to cancel the escrow even if provisions of the instructions were intended to benefit third parties [Orloff v. Metropolitan Trust Co. (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 484, 487, 110 P.2d 396 ; Wilshire Realty Co. v. Kry Corp. (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 269, 276-277, 58 Cal. Rptr. 469] . However, if there has been an irrevocable change of position by the third party as a result of the escrow, the doctrine of equitable estoppel may preclude a party or the escrow holder from relying on the cancellation [Feinberg v. Intrastate Escrow Corp. (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 80, 85, 30 Cal. Rptr. 781] .

[b] Observance of Cancellation Requirements Specified in Escrow Instructions

Provisions of escrow instructions that specify or limit the manner in which a right of cancellation may be exercised are generally given effect [see, e.g., Weisberg v. Ashcraft (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 793, 796, 36 Cal. Rptr. 188 ; Weaver v. Casad (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 593, 595, 195 P.2d 81] . Consequently, even when both parties to an escrow agree to cancel it, they should be careful to strictly observe any requirements contained in the escrow instructions.

CHAPTER 26 REAL PROPERTY ESCROWS
PART IV. FORMS
B. Other Escrow Forms
4. Cancellation of Escrow

11-26 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26.272

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 26.272 Demand for Return of Funds Deposited in Escrow [Civ. Code § 1057.3]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a demand for the return of funds deposited in an escrow for the purchase and sale of real property containing one to four residential units. As discussed in more detail below, the buyer or seller who deposited the funds may submit this request to the other party if the escrow does not close on time, and will be entitled to damages if the recipient of this form fails to execute any document required by the escrow holder to release the deposited funds [see Civ. Code § 1057.3].

If a buyer and seller have entered into a contract to purchase and sell real property, it is their obligation to ensure that all funds deposited into an escrow account are returned to the person who deposited them or who is otherwise entitled to the funds under the contract, if the purchase is not completed by the date set forth in the contract for the close of escrow (or any duly executed extension of that date) [Civ. Code § 1057.3(a)].

For these purposes, "property" means real property containing one to four residential units, at least one of which at the time the escrow is created is to be occupied by the buyer. The buyer's statement as to his or her intention to occupy one of the units is conclusive for these purposes [Civ. Code § 1057.3(f)(3)]. "Close of escrow" means the date, specified event, or performance of prescribed condition on which the escrow agent is to deliver the subject of the escrow to the person specified in the buyer's instructions to the escrow agent [Civ. Code § 1057.3(f)(1)].

[i] Written Demand

If the buyer or seller has not fulfilled his or her obligation under Civ. Code § 1057.3(a) to return funds deposited in escrow by the other party [see [b], above], a written demand (this form) may be made for the return of the funds [see Civ. Code § 1057.3(b)]. Apparently, the demand may be made by the party who deposited the funds in escrow or by the escrow agent. Within 30 days following the written demand, the recipient must execute any document required by the escrow holder to release the deposited funds. The statute does not specify whether this 30-day period commences on the mailing or the receipt of the demand. This form contains optional language providing that it commences on receipt of the demand. If the recipient fails to execute any such document, he or she will be liable to the person making the deposit for all of the following [Civ. Code § 1057.3(b)]:

- The amount of the funds deposited in escrow not held in good faith to resolve a good faith dispute [see [c][ii], below].

- Damages of treble the amount of the funds deposited in escrow not held to resolve a good faith dispute. These damages must not be less than $100 or more than $1,000.

- Reasonable attorneys' fees incurred in any action to enforce Civ. Code § 1057.3.

[ii] Good Faith Disputes

Notwithstanding Civ. Code § 1057.3(b) [see [c][i], above], if escrow funds are withheld to resolve a good faith dispute between the buyer and the seller, there will be no cause of action or liability imposed under Section 1057.3 for the failure to return the funds. A party who is denied the return of deposited funds is entitled to damages under Section 1057.3 only on proving that there was no good faith dispute as to the right to the deposited funds [Civ. Code § 1057.3(c)]. For these purposes, "good faith dispute" means a dispute in which the trier of fact finds that the party refusing to return the deposited funds had a reasonable belief as to his or her legal entitlement to withhold the deposited funds. The existence of a good faith dispute must be determined by the trier of fact [Civ. Code § 1057.3(f)(2)].

[d] Escrow Holder

On the filing of a cause of action pursuant to Civ. Code § 1057.3, the escrow holder must deposit the sum in dispute, less any cancellation fee and charges incurred, with the court in which the action is filed. The filing discharges the escrow holder of further responsibility for the funds [Civ. Code § 1057.3(d)].

Nothing in Section 1057.3 restricts the ability of an escrow holder to file an interpleader action in the event of a dispute as to the proper distribution of funds deposited in an escrow account [Civ. Code § 1057.3(g)]. For detailed coverage of interpleader actions brought by escrow holders, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 253, Escrows (Matthew Bender).

Neither of the following, when performed by any principal to an escrow transaction, will be deemed a cancellation or termination of the underlying contract to purchase and sell real property, unless the contract provides to the contrary: (1) the execution of a document required by the escrow holder to release funds deposited in the escrow account; or (2) the acceptance of funds released from escrow. If the escrow instructions constitute the only contract between the buyer and seller, no document required by the escrow holder to release funds deposited in an escrow account will abrogate a cause of action for breach of a contractual obligation to purchase or sell real property, unless the contract provides otherwise [Civ. Code § 1057.3(e)].

RE: Escrow No. _____

As you are aware, the proposed purchase of property that led to the establishment of the above escrow was not completed by the date set forth in _____[specify paragraph number] of the _____[identify escrow instructions, e.g., joint escrow instructions previously deposited in the above escrow or describe any duly executed extension of those instructions] for the close of escrow. Consequently, the undersigned hereby requests that you return to the undersigned [or identify other person who is entitled to the funds] the following funds deposited into the above escrow by the undersigned: _____[describe]. You are also requested to execute any document required by the escrow holder for the above escrow to release funds on deposit in the escrow account. If you fail to release those funds or to execute any such document within 30 days of [your receipt of] this notice, you will be liable to the undersigned for damages.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

11-26A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26A.10

§ 26A.10 Nature of Title Insurance

[1] Definition

"Insurance" is defined by statute as a contract whereby one undertakes to indemnify another against loss, damage, or liability arising from a contingent or unknown event [Ins. Code § 22]. "Title insurance" is defined as the insurance, guarantee, or indemnification of owners of real or personal property, holders of liens or encumbrances on real property, or other persons interested in real property, against loss or damage suffered by reason of [Ins. Code § 12340.1; see Ins. Code § 104]:

- Liens or encumbrances on, or defects in, the title to real property;
- Invalidity or unenforceability of any liens or encumbrances on real property; or
- Incorrectness of searches relating to the title to real or personal property.

In addition, title insurance policies may insure such matters as the identity, due execution, and validity of notes or bonds secured by mortgages or deeds of trust [Ins. Code § 12390(a)]; the identity, due execution, validity, and recording of any mortgage or deed of trust [Ins. Code § 12390(b)]; and the identity, due execution, and validity of evidences of indebtedness issued by the State of California, its political subdivisions or districts, or public corporations [Ins. Code § 12390(c)].

[2] Importance in Real Estate Industry

Title insurance is an indispensable part of virtually every commercial real estate transaction in California. It is as important in credit transactions as in sales and leases. Title insurance (and the title insurance industry) perform the vital functions of providing (1) essential information as to the condition of real estate titles throughout the state, and (2) assurance, in the form of policies, reports, commitments, binders, guarantees, and indorsements, that the information provided is complete and accurate.

[3] Title Insurers and Underwritten Title Companies

A "title insurer" is defined as any company issuing title policies as insurer, guarantor, or indemnitor [Ins. Code § 12340.4; see Ins. Code § 12340.3 ("business of title insurance" defined)]. An "underwritten title company" is any corporation engaged in the business of preparing title searches, title examinations, title reports, certificates, or abstracts of title on the basis of which a title insurer writes title policies [Ins. Code § 12340.5].

Because underwritten title companies are not title insurers, they may not issue their own policies of title insurance, although they may be empowered by qualified title insurers to do this by countersigning the title insurer's policies, much in the way that an insurance broker or agent sells the policies of an insurance company. Title insurers may, however, perform the functions of both types of companies. They may and frequently do prepare title searches, examinations, reports, certificates, and abstracts, and issue title insurance policies based on those services. For further discussion of title insurers and underwritten title companies, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW PRACTICE, Chapter 92, Title Insurance (Matthew Bender).

DIVISION II: REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 26A TITLE INSURANCE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

11-26A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26A.11

§ 26A.11 Marketable Title

[1] Definition

"Marketable title" is that title which a reasonable buyer, well informed as to the facts and their legal consequences and willing and anxious to perform the contract, would, in the exercise of the prudence that business persons ordinarily bring to bear on such transactions, be willing to accept [Hocking v. Title Ins. & Trust Co. (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 644, 649, 234 P.2d 625] . To be "marketable," a title must be sufficiently free from defects to enable the holder to retain the property, to possess it in peace, and, when the time comes to sell it, to be reasonably sure that no flaw or doubt will arise to disturb its market value [Mertens v. Berendsen (1931) 213 Cal. 111, 113, 1 P.2d 440] . To qualify as "marketable," a title must embrace both the legal and equitable estates, be free from unknown encumbrances, and be defensible and salable [Palos Verdes Corp. v. Housing Authority (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 827, 838, 21 Cal. Rptr. 225] .

[2] Seller's Obligation To Convey

In any agreement for the sale of real property, the law implies a condition that the seller convey a "good" or "marketable" title to the buyer [King v. Stanley (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 584, 589, 197 P.2d 321] . In fact, an agreement for the sale of real property cannot be specifically enforced in favor of a seller who cannot give the buyer a title free from reasonable doubt [Civ. Code § 3394]. While the older cases often refer to "good" title [see Smiddy v. Grafton (1912) 163 Cal. 16, 18, 124 P. 433] and the newer cases generally use the words "marketable title" [see Nishiyama v. Safeco Title Ins. Co. (1978) 85 Cal. App. Supp. 3d 1, 6, 149 Cal. Rptr. 355] , the two concepts are the same [Hocking v. Title Ins. & Trust Co. (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 644, 649 651, 234 P.2d 625] .

[3] Contrasted With Market Value

The concept of "marketable title" differs from "market value." Although some cases refer to "merchantable title" as the equivalent of "marketable title" [King v. Stanley (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 584, 590, 197 P.2d 321] , thereby implying that a title is "marketable" if a buyer may be found for the property (and "not marketable" if a buyer cannot be found), a parcel may have a "marketable title" and still have little or no market value. "Marketable title" is a concept that refers exclusively to the condition of the title to a parcel of property; the condition of the title does not depend on the seller's ability to find a buyer for the property, nor does it necessarily indicate that the property is valuable. A person can hold perfect title to land that is valueless, and have "marketable" title to land that is unmarketable [Hocking v. Title Ins. & Trust Co. (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 644, 651, 234 P.2d 625] .

[4] Effect of Recording Laws

The marketability of a title is vitally affected by the recorded chain of title. The recorded chain of title, in turn, is affected by the California recording laws.

California has adopted the "race-notice" system of recording [see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW PRACTICE, Ch. 82, Recording of Instruments]. Under this system, priorities in land are established by the order in which instruments affecting land are recorded, provided that the transferee of any interest who seeks the protection of the recording laws must not have notice (actual or constructive) of preexisting interests in the same land [Civ. Code § 1107 (grants), Civ. Code § 1214 (conveyances); see Civ. Code § 1215 ("conveyance" defined)]. This system makes it essential for persons dealing with real property to be fully advised as to all interests that may be revealed by the recorded chain of title.

Under California law, every duly acknowledged conveyance of real property provides constructive notice of its contents to subsequent purchasers and mortgagees [Civ. Code § 1213; see Civ. Code §§ 1169, 1170 (recording of instruments); but see Stearns v. Title Ins. & Trust Co. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 162, 169, 95 Cal. Rptr. 682 (no constructive notice unless statute declares recording of document constructive notice)]. Although an unrecorded instrument is valid as between the parties to the instrument and those who have actual notice of it [Civ. Code § 1217], every conveyance of real property (other than a lease for a term not exceeding one year) is void as against any subsequent purchaser or mortgagee of the same property, in good faith and for a valuable consideration, whose conveyance is first duly recorded [Civ. Code § 1214]. Similarly, a conveyance is void as against any judgment affecting the title unless the conveyance is recorded before notice of the pendency of the action is recorded [Civ. Code § 1214]. As used in the recording statutes, the term "conveyance" includes every instrument (except a will) by which any interest or estate in real property is created, transferred, mortgaged, or encumbered, or by which the title to any real property may be affected [Civ. Code § 1215].

Any person who has notice, actual or constructive, of a prior interest in a parcel of real property cannot qualify as a bona fide purchaser or encumbrancer of the property [James v. James (1926) 80 Cal. App. 185, 193, 251 P. 666] . Constructive notice may be inferred from actual notice of circumstances sufficient to put a prudent person on inquiry as to a particular fact [Beab, Inc. v. First Western Bank & Tr. Co. (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 680, 688, 22 Cal. Rptr. 583] , or may be the legal consequence of the proper recording of a valid instrument [Civ. Code § 1213]. For a general discussion of the California recording laws and the legal rights of bona fide purchasers, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW PRACTICE, Chapter 82, Recording of Instruments (Matthew Bender).

[5] Effect of Title Insurance

Title insurance is generally used throughout the United States to establish marketable title. Iowa is the only state in which title insurance is not available, and its absence there is due solely to a prohibitory statute [see Cook, "Iowa's Prohibition of Title Insurance-- Leadership or Folly?" 33 Drake Univ. L. Rev. 683 (1983-1984)].

Title insurance has become so universal that few buyers or lenders will accept a title or make a loan on the security of real property without appropriate title insurance coverage. Title insurance "plants," in which records relating to real property are continuously updated, are maintained in most counties in California. Lending institutions typically require a specific type of title policy from a particular source before they will lend money on the security of real property, and buyers customarily require standard-form title insurance policies as a part of any transaction involving a transfer of title to real property. The superior facilities of title companies for collecting records relating to real estate titles, and the special experience, knowledge, and expertise of most title insurance officers and personnel, have persuaded most landowners, lenders, real estate brokers, and public officers to rely on title insurance companies as arbiters of the condition of real estate titles. It has been said that the "real" real property law of California tends to be made more by title companies than by courts [Comment, "Title Insurance in California," 39 Calif. L. Rev. 235, 244 (1951)].

The refusal of a title insurer to insure the title to a parcel, however, does not establish its "unmarketability" [Wilson v. Pacific Coast Title Ins. Co. (1951) 106 Cal. App. 2d 599, 602, 235 P.2d 431] . Title insurers, like other insurers, are free to accept or refuse a given risk [see Safeco Title Ins. Co. v. Moskopoulos (1981) 116 Cal. App. 3d 658, 665, 172 Cal. Rptr. 248] . The underwriting decisions of title insurers are business decisions that reflect their operating policies rather than the condition of any title or titles.

CHAPTER 26A TITLE INSURANCE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

11-26A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26A.12

§ 26A.12 Title Search and Issuance of Title Insurance

[1] Title Search

The words "title search" traditionally have been used to describe the process by which public records of title documents are searched, assembled, analyzed, and reported [see Lattin v. Gillette (1892) 95 Cal. 317, 318, 320, 30 P. 545] . In the modern title insurance industry, however, much of the work of a title search is completed before any request for title information is received. This is done through the regular and continuing maintenance of the title company's "plant," in which records of real property are preserved, posted, and indexed on a continuous basis [for a discussion of the facilities and functions of title insurance plants, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW PRACTICE, Ch. 92, Title Insurance (Matthew Bender)].

[2] Assessment of Condition of Title

After a title search is completed, the title company's title examiner analyzes all documents affecting the condition of the title, noting any items that may constitute defects in the title. All of these items are then assembled and presented to the company's underwriter, who decides whether the company is willing to insure the title and, if it is, what items will be listed as "exceptions" to the coverage.

[3] Issuance of Policy

A title insurer is entitled, in the exercise of its own judgment, to fix the terms on which it will issue a policy [Contini v. Western Title Ins. Co. (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 536, 543, 115 Cal. Rptr. 257] . Since a "perfect" title is virtually unknown, all large title insurance companies encounter risks affecting real property titles on a daily basis. Some title risks are remote or slight, and insurers may be willing to assume them rather than determine beyond the possibility of any doubt that the risks do not exist or that they could never affect the subject title.

If a title insurance company is willing to issue an insurance policy, it will typically prepare a "preliminary report," in which all of the defects it has found are listed as exceptions [see § 26A.200]. On receipt of an application for insurance coverage, the company typically will issue a policy that lists the same "exceptions," unless those objections have first been removed or "cleared" [see discussion in § 26A.200[1][g]].

CHAPTER 26A TITLE INSURANCE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

11-26A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26A.13

§ 26A.13 Preliminary Reports

[1] Nature

A preliminary report is a document that is prepared and issued by a title company for the purpose of showing the condition of a particular title as a preliminary to the issuance of a title insurance policy. It is a statement of the terms and conditions under which the insurer would, on the date of the report, be willing to issue a policy of title insurance [Ins. Code § 12340.11]. A preliminary report is not an abstract of title. That is, it does not purport to list all recorded conveyances, instruments, or documents that impart constructive notice with respect to the chain of title [Ins. Code § 12340.11; see Ins. Code § 12340.10 (abstracts of title)], nor does it constitute a representation as to the condition of a particular title [Ins. Code § 12340.11]. Preliminary title reports issued after January 1, 1995, are required to contain a statutory notice to that effect [see Ins. Code § 12414.30(a); see also § 26A.200[1][h]].

[2] Use and Purpose

Although a preliminary report cannot be relied on as a complete and accurate statement of all liens, encumbrances, or other defects that may affect the marketability of a title, it serves an important purpose in the title insurance process. A preliminary report is typically issued during the course of an escrow and before title to a parcel is transferred or encumbered. Since it lists all of the items that would be excepted from coverage if a title policy were issued on the date of the report, it gives a prospective purchaser or lender an opportunity to remove, or "cure," unacceptable exceptions before the policy itself is issued. For this reason, preliminary reports are vital preliminaries to the closing of escrow and the issuance of title insurance policies.

Insurance Code Section 12414.30(b) states that upon request, a title insurance company may provide coverage against loss or damage under the terms, conditions, and stipulations of the title insurance policy for any monetary liens set forth in the preliminary report. For further discussion of preliminary reports, see § 26A.200 [1]. § 26A.14 Commitments

A commitment is an agreement by a title insurer to issue a title insurance policy to a proposed insured upon the acquisition by the proposed insured of the land referred to in the commitment. Like a preliminary report [see § 26A.13] and a binder [see § 26A.15], a commitment constitutes an offer to issue a title policy on specified terms and conditions. A commitment is not an abstract of title, nor are any of the rights, duties, or responsibilities applicable to the preparation and issuance of abstracts of title applicable to the issuance of a commitment [Ins. Code § 12340.11; see Ins. Code § 12340.10 (abstracts of title); see also discussion in § 26A.13]. A commitment differs from a preliminary report in that it obligates the issuer for the period specified in the commitment to issue a title insurance policy, upon payment of the premiums and charges, and subject to all of the conditions and stipulations contained in it [CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW PRACTICE, Ch. 92, Title Insurance, § 92.33[1] (Matthew Bender)]. § 26A.15 Binders

A binder is a contract that provides present insurance coverage, although only for a short time [Spott Electrical Co. v. Industrial Indem. Co. (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 797, 805, 106 Cal. Rptr. 710] . To qualify as a binder, a contract must obligate the insurer to provide present, and not merely future, coverage [Parlier Fruit Co. v. Fireman's etc. Ins. Co. (1957) 151 Cal. App. 2d 6, 20, 311 P.2d 62] . A title insurance binder is typically purchased by the owner of a parcel of real property to provide temporary coverage until the property is sold and to assure prospective purchasers that a full policy of title insurance will be issued upon transfer of title. Title insurance binders ordinarily are not issued for more than one year [CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW PRACTICE, Ch. 92, Title Insurance, § 92.34[1] (Matthew Bender)].

Like preliminary reports and commitments, binders are defined by statute as offers to issue title policies and are removed from the statutory definition of abstracts of title [Ins. Code § 12340.11; see Ins. Code § 12340.10 (abstracts of title); see also discussion in § 26A.13].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

11-26A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26A.16

§ 26A.16 Guarantees

[1] Nature

A title guarantee is a special report that is prepared and issued by a title insurer for the purpose of supplying and guaranteeing the accuracy of specific title information [CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW PRACTICE, Ch. 92, Title Insurance, § 92.35[1] (Matthew Bender)]. Modern guarantees must be distinguished from the historic title guarantees commonly used before development of the modern title insurance policy [see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW PRACTICE, Ch. 92, Title Insurance, § 92.02[6] (Matthew Bender)]. While the historic guarantees were used to report generally on the marketability of titles, modern guarantees serve more specialized functions and are typically ordered by persons or entities with specific needs.

[2] Types of Guarantees

Title guarantees are available to do, among other things, the following:

- Report and guarantee information relevant to anticipated legal action that will or may affect title to or possession of real property [see § 26A.230[1].

- List all deeds and other instruments recorded in the chain of title to a particular parcel [see § 26A.231[1].

- Grant assurances as to the condition of the title to a particular parcel of property as revealed in the title company's own records or "lot books" [see § 26A.232[1].

- Locate property owned by a named party or parties in a particular county [see § 26A.233[1].

- Assure public officials that the persons who sign the certificate of consent filed with a subdivision map are all of the persons required to do so under the Subdivision Map Act [Gov. Code §§ 66410-66499.37; see § 26A.234[1].

- Provide information relating to property that is subject to foreclosure, either through exercise of a power of sale contained in a deed of trust or by judicial proceedings [see § 26A.235[1]].

For a general review of other types and purposes of title guarantees, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW PRACTICE, Volume 4, Chapter 92, Title Insurance (Matthew Bender).

CHAPTER 26A TITLE INSURANCE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

11-26A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26A.17

§ 26A.17 Title Insurance Policies

[1] Definition

A "title policy" is defined by statute as any written instrument or contract by means of which title insurance liability is assumed [Ins. Code § 12340.2; for title insurance liability, see discussion in § 26A.10 [1]]. Since the coverage of all title insurance policies is significantly limited by conditions and exclusions set forth in the policies, it is important to note and understand the conditions and exclusions of the different standard-form policies. For discussions of those conditions and exclusions and how they affect policy coverage, see the comments to the complete policy forms in this chapter [§ 26A.250 et seq.].

[2] Standardization

[a] In General

Title insurance policies are highly standardized. Policy standardization has been promoted in large part by state laws requiring insurers to file all regularly issued forms of title policies with the Insurance Commissioner [Ins. Code § 12401.1] and to establish basic classifications of coverage and services to be used as the basis for determining rates [see Ins. Code § 12401.2]. Standardization has also been facilitated by the existence of advisory organizations [see Ins. Code § 12340.8] that operate on a statewide and national basis to perform functions such as drafting and recommending standard title insurance forms.

[b] American Land Title Association (ALTA)

The American Land Title Association (ALTA) is the largest and most influential title insurance advisory organization in the United States. With a membership comprising more than 2,000 title insurance and abstract companies, ALTA functions primarily to formulate and suggest forms for title insurance policies demanded by large institutional lenders, such as banks and life insurance companies, whose multi-state financial activities require mortgages, deeds of trust, and other security devices in many different jurisdictions. Most title insurance policies in the United States are based in whole or in part on forms developed by ALTA [Rooney, "Title Insurance: A Primer for Attorneys," 14 Real Prop., Prob., & Tr. J. 608 (1979)].

[c] California Land Title Association (CLTA)

The California Land Title Association (CLTA) is the California counterpart of ALTA. With headquarters in Sacramento, CLTA has more than 100 members (including more than 15 title insurers and more than 90 underwritten title companies) in all counties of the state. In addition to recommending forms and practices for its members, the association monitors and advocates legislation and regulations affecting the title industry, monitors judicial decisions affecting title to real property in California, and files briefs in cases of statewide significance. CLTA publishes a valuable loose-leaf compendium of all CLTA-recommended title insurance reports, guarantees, policies, and indorsements [California Land Title Association, Policy & Indorsement Forms Book (Revised 1971)]. This compendium corresponds to the master file of ALTA and CLTA standard forms on file with the California Insurance Commissioner, and is updated on a regular basis.

[d] Available Forms

The CLTA Policy & Indorsement Forms Book [California Land Title Association, Policy & Indorsement Forms Book (Revised 1971)] includes 11 different title insurance policy forms. These forms are designed for use under different circumstances and by different insureds. Three of the most frequently used and useful of these policy forms are set forth verbatim in this chapter [see §§ 26A.250-26A.252].

The CLTA Standard Coverage Policy (1990) [see § 26A.250] is probably the most commonly used form of title insurance policy in California. It is a "joint protection" policy designed to insure the interest of either an owner or a lender against title risks. The ALTA Loan Policy (10-17-92) [see § 26A.251], which insures mortgages and deeds of trust, is commonly purchased by institutional lenders on real property. The ALTA Owner's Policy (10-17-92) [see § 26A.252], which is designed for use by real property owners, is commonly purchased in connection with the acquisition of large commercial properties.

In addition to these commonly used forms, the CLTA forms book includes the following specialized title policy forms:

- CLTA Oil Leasehold Policy
- ALTA U.S. Policy
- ALTA Leasehold Loan Policy
- ALTA Leasehold Owner's Policy
- ALTA Construction Loan Policy
- ALTA Residential Title Insurance Policy
- ALTA Master Residential Loan Policy
- ALTA Short Form Residential Loan Policy

Exemplars of these additional forms may be obtained by referring to the CLTA Policy & Indorsement Forms Book or by requesting copies from local title companies.

[3] Application of General Insurance Law Principles; Characterization as Adhesion Contracts

A title insurance policy is an insurance contract, and as such is governed by general principles of insurance law [

Lagomarsino v. San Jose etc. Title Ins. Co. (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 455, 464, 3 Cal. Rptr. 80] .

Because the insurer typically prepares the policy and submits it to the insured, who must either accept or reject it in the form submitted, insurance policies have been termed "adhesion" contracts [Neal v. State Farm Ins. Cos. (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 690, 694, 10 Cal. Rptr. 781] . An "adhesion" contract is a standardized contract offered to consumers on an essentially "take it or leave it" basis, without offering a realistic opportunity to bargain, and under such conditions that the consumer cannot obtain the desired product or service except by acquiescing in the offered contract [Steven v. Fidelity & Casualty Co. (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 862, 882, 27 Cal. Rptr. 172, 377 P.2d 284 ; Wheeler v. St. Joseph Hospital (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 345, 356, 133 Cal. Rptr. 775] .

Pointing out that title insurance policies are framed by insurers and that policyholders have little or no opportunity to vary their terms, the courts have applied the same rules to title insurance policies that are traditionally applied to other insurance policies [see Overholtzer v. Northern Counties Ins. Co. (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 113, 122, 253 P.2d 116 ; Lagomarsino v. San Jose etc. Title Ins. Co. (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 455, 464, 3 Cal. Rptr. 80 ; J.H. Trisdale, Inc. v. Shasta etc. Title Co. (1956) 146 Cal. App. 2d 831, 835, 304 P.2d 832] . At least one court, however, has drawn a distinction between a typical adhesion contract and a title insurance policy that clearly does not insure against a particular risk. If, in the view of this court, a risk or defect claimed to have caused loss or damage to an insured could have been insured against by purchase of a commonly available policy indorsement [see § 26A.18], the policyholder's failure to purchase the indorsement will take the policy outside the realm of adhesion contracts and relieve the insurer of the burdens otherwise imposed on the issuers of adhesion contracts [Stearns v. Title Ins. & Trust Co. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 162, 170, 95 Cal. Rptr. 682 ; see discussion in [4], below].

An insurance policy must be construed in accordance with the common understanding of the words used [Civ. Code § 1644; AIU Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 807, 822, 274 Cal. Rptr. 820, 799 P.2d 1253 ; see also Civ. Code § 1645 (technical words interpreted in technical sense)]. If possible, it must be construed so as to fairly achieve its object, which is to indemnify the insured for covered losses [Crane v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 112, 115, 95 Cal. Rptr. 513, 485 P.2d 1129] . Insurers may not avoid liability by relying on technicalities in the policy or by urging a literal interpretation of an isolated clause that is not supported by the plain meaning of the contract as a whole [Overholtzer v. Northern Counties Ins. Co. (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 113, 122, 253 P.2d 116] .

If provisions of a policy may be read in different ways, all doubts about its meaning must be resolved against the insurer [Paramount Properties Co. v. Transamerica Title Ins. Co. (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 562, 569, 83 Cal. Rptr. 394, 463 P.2d 746] . Provisions of the policy as a whole and all exceptions to liability must be construed, if possible, so as to give the insured the protection that he or she had a reasonable right to expect [Mutual B.-L. Assn. v. Security T.I. & G. Co. (1936) 14 Cal. App. 2d 225, 229, 57 P.2d 1392] . When a loss is claimed, only the clearest policy provisions may be relied on to deny the claim. When the very contingency that was insured against occurs, only clear and compelling reasons will justify denying the insured full reimbursement for all losses sustained by reason of the occurrence [Overholtzer v. Northern Counties Ins. Co. (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 113, 122, 253 P.2d 116] .

For a more detailed discussion of the general rules applicable to the construction of insurance policies and the resolution of ambiguities, see CALIFORNIA INSURANCE LAW PRACTICE, Ch. 8, The Insurance Contract, § 8.02 (Matthew Bender).

While ambiguities in title insurance policies will be strictly construed against the insurers [see [3], above], there must be some ambiguity before the rule of strict construction will be applied [see Glavinich v. Commonwealth Land Title Ins. Co. (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 263, 270, 209 Cal. Rptr. 266 ; Stearns v. Title Ins. & Trust Co. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d

162, 170, 95 Cal. Rptr. 682] . An insurer has the right to limit the coverage of a policy issued by it and, when it has done so in plain language, the limitation must be respected [Glavinich v. Commonwealth Land Title Ins. Co. (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 263, 270, 209 Cal. Rptr. 266 ; Stearns v. Title Ins. & Trust Co. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 162, 170, 95 Cal. Rptr. 682] . Just as the insured is powerless to dictate the terms of the policy [see discussion under [3], above], the insured is in no position to complain if the policy does not contain something that the insurer, in the exercise of its business judgment, saw fit to omit [Sala v. Security Title Ins. & Guar. Co. (1938) 27 Cal. App. 2d 693, 702, 81 P.2d 578] . If the language of the policy is clear, that language is binding on the courts, and no rule of interpretation will have the effect of altering or amending it [see Glavinich v. Commonwealth Land Title Ins. Co. (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 263, 270, 209 Cal. Rptr. 266 ; Wetzler v. State Farm Mut. Auto Ins. Co. (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 472, 476, 54 Cal. Rptr. 756] .

[6] Contractual Basis for Insurer's Liability

Because a title insurance policy is a contract, the insurer's liability to the insured, if any, sounds in contract and not in tort [see POWELL ON REAL PROPERTY, vol. 7, P 1048 (Matthew Bender)]. Thus, a title insurer, as insurer, may not be held liable for omitting some matter affecting a title from a title report or policy, unless the omission also constitutes a breach of contract. Although an insurer, as abstractor, may be liable on the theory of negligence for preparing and issuing an inaccurate or incomplete abstract of title [see Ins. Code § 12340.10 ("abstract of title" defined); see also § 26A.200 [1]], the liability of an insurer, as insurer, is framed and limited by the policies it issues [see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW PRACTICE, Ch. 92, Title Insurance, § 92.110[3] (Matthew Bender)]. Since title insurers in California rarely issue abstracts of title [see Ins. Code § 12340.10; see also CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW PRACTICE, Ch. 92, Title Insurance], the circumstances under which a title insurer may be held liable for negligence are rare.

Accordingly, an attorney advising a client regarding the client's rights (or liabilities) under a title insurance policy or report must analyze the terms and conditions of the policy or report and determine if a breach of contract has occurred. Such an analysis must be made, in the first instance, according to traditional rules of contract law. The failure of the insurer to pay any of the benefits provided for in the policy, for example, or to provide a defense to the insured on the terms and at the times required by the policy, may constitute a breach. Similarly, the failure of the insured to comply with the terms of the policy as to notice of claim or proof of loss, or to cooperate with the insurer, may constitute a breach by the insured. The insurer's failure to accurately and completely report all matters relating to a particular title (even if that failure may be characterized as negligence) will not, in and of itself, establish a breach of the policy, unless the failure (i.e., the alleged negligence) also violates some term or condition of the policy. For a general discussion of title insurance liability, see CALIFORNIA FORMS OF PLEADING AND PRACTICE, Ch. 548, Title Insurance (Matthew Bender).

[7] Loss or Damage

The insuring clauses of the standard title insurance policies obligate the insurer to indemnify the insured for "loss or damage." In the ALTA Loan Policy(10-17-92) [see § 26A.251, Conditions and Stipulations, P 7] and the ALTA Owner's Policy (10-17-92) [see § 26A.252, Conditions and Stipulations, P 7], the obligation of the insurer to indemnify the insured is limited to "actual loss or damage" not exceeding the amount of insurance stated in the policy. The purpose of these provisions is to limit the insurer's obligation to indemnify the insured to actual losses, and to relieve the insurer of any obligation to indemnify the insured for speculative losses or "windfalls." The courts have held that in the absence of actual loss or damage the insured is not entitled to recover on the policy [Cale v. Transamerica Title Insurance (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 422, 425-426, 275 Cal. Rptr. 107 ; Hawkins v. Oakland Title Ins. & Guar. Co. (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 116, 122 123, 331 P.2d 742] . Loss or damage must be both alleged and proved at the trial. An allegation and proof that the market value of the insured property was diminished as a consequence of the defects insured against will satisfy this requirement [Overholtzer v. Northern Counties Ins. Co. (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 113, 124 , 253 P.2d 116] , but a complaint that does not allege diminution in market value is subject to general demurrer [Hawkins v.

Oakland Title Ins. & Guar. Co. (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 116, 122, 331 P.2d 742] .

For a general discussion of loss and damage under title insurance policies, and rules and forms for actions against title insurers, see CALIFORNIA FORMS OF PLEADING AND PRACTICE, Ch. 548, Title Insurance (Matthew Bender).

Some title insurance policies contain coinsurance clauses. For example, the ALTA Owner's Policy (10-17-92) [see § 26A.252, Conditions and Stipulations, P 7(b)] requires an allocation of loss between the insurer and the insured when the amount of insurance purchased is less than a specified amount of either the value of the insured land or the consideration paid for the land, whichever is less. This clause makes the insurer and the insured coinsurers of any loss that falls within its provisions.

"Coinsurance" means a relative division of the risk between the insurer and the insured [Los Angeles Mut. Ins. Co. v. Cawog (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 378, 385, 106 Cal. Rptr. 307] . It requires that the risk of loss be divided according to the relative amount of the insurance and the actual value of the insured property [Hilton v. Federal Ins. Co. (1931) 118 Cal. App. 495, 502, 5 P.2d 648 ; Home Ins. Co., New York v. Eisenson (5th Cir. [Fla.] 1950) 181 F.2d 416, 418] . A coinsurance clause requires the insured to maintain full insurance (or a specified percentage of full insurance) or, upon failure to do so, to bear a proportionate part of the loss [Home Ins. Co., New York v. Eisenson (5th Cir. [Fla.] 1950) 181 F.2d 416, 418] . A coinsurance clause ordinarily has the effect of inducing the insured to carry enough insurance to cover the value of the insured property [Home Ins. Co., New York v. Eisenson (5th Cir. [Fla.] 1950) 181 F.2d 416, 418-419]. Though coinsurance clauses have been prohibited by statute in some jurisdictions, they are enforceable in California [see Los Angeles Mut. Ins. Co. v. Cawog (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 378, 385 386, 106 Cal. Rptr. 307 ; Hilton v. Federal Ins. Co. (1931) 118 Cal. App. 495, 502, 5 P.2d 648] .

Coinsurance clauses only take effect when the actual loss is partial and less than the amount of the insurance [see discussion under "Coinsurance" in the comment to § 26A.252].

[9] Liability for Bad Faith

Every insurance contract contains an implied covenant (commonly called the covenant of good faith and fair dealing) that neither party will do anything that impairs the right of the other to receive the benefits of the agreement [Gruenberg v. Aetna Ins. Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 566, 574, 108 Cal. Rptr. 480, 510 P.2d 1032 ; see INSURANCE BAD FAI TH LITIGATION, § 2.01 (Matthew Bender)]. The covenant is applicable to all insurance contracts, including policies of title insurance [Jarchow v. Transamerica Title Ins. Co. (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 917, 940, 122 Cal. Rptr. 470] .

Liability under the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing extends to varied fact situations. For example, an insurer who unreasonably and in bad faith fails or refuses to settle the insured's claim may be held liable in an action for breach of the covenant [Gruenberg v. Aetna Ins. Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 566, 575, 108 Cal. Rptr. 480, 510 P.2d 1032] . Similarly, the insurer may be held liable for improper investigation of claims [see INSURANCE BAD FAITH LITIGATION, §§ 5.10-5.12 (Matthew Bender)], for unreasonably refusing to defend the insured under terms of the policy [see INSURANCE BAD FAITH LITIGATION, §§ 3.20-3.26 (Matthew Bender)], for unreasonably failing or refusing to settle third party claims against the insured [see INSURANCE BAD FAITH LITIGATION, §§ 3.02-3.07 (Matthew Bender)], or for unreasonably withholding benefits that should be paid to the insured [Brandt v. Superior Court (1985) 37 Cal. 3d 813, 817, 210 Cal. Rptr. 211, 693 P.2d 796] .

For a general discussion of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing as it applies to title insurance policies, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW PRACTICE, Chapter 92, Title Insurance (Matthew Bender); see also CALIFORNIA INSURANCE LAW PRACTICE, Ch. 13, Claims Handling and the Duty of Good Faith (Matthew Bender).

[10] Insured Parties

Title insurance policies are typically contracts entered into by two parties, referred to as the insurer and the insured. No rights inure to third parties under a title insurance contract unless the third parties are also named as insureds in the policy [Walters v. Marler (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 1, 33-34, 147 Cal. Rptr. 655 ; Hawkins v. Oakland Title Ins. & Guar. Co. (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 116, 127 128, 331 P.2d 742] . Thus, a seller of real property may not claim benefits under a policy issued only to a lender [Walters v. Marler (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 1, 33 34, 147 Cal. Rptr. 655] , nor may a subsequent purchaser of real property claim benefits under a policy issued to a previous owner of the same property [Hawkins v. Oakland Title Ins. & Guar. Co. (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 116, 127 128, 331 P.2d 742] .

Although actions for breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing [see [9], above] are said to sound in tort and to arise independently of the contractual rights and obligations of the parties [Brandt v. Superior Court (1985) 37 Cal. 3d 813, 817, 210 Cal. Rptr. 211, 693 P.2d 796] , the covenant is an incident of the contract, and the right to recover under it is available only to parties to the contract [see INSURANCE BAD FAITH LITIGATION, § 2.02(Matthew Bender); see also CALIFORNIA INSURANCE LAW PRACTICE, Ch. 13, Claims Handling and the Duty of Good Faith (Matthew Bender)].

Some title insurance policies contain arbitration clauses. Arbitration is a procedure whereby disputes are submitted for determination to private, unofficial persons selected by agreement of the parties or, in the absence of agreement, as provided by law [Stockwell v. Equitable F. & M. Ins. Co. (1933) 134 Cal. App. 534, 540, 25 P.2d 873] . In California, written agreements to submit existing controversies (or controversies arising after the agreements are made) to arbitration are valid, enforceable, and, unless there are grounds that would justify revocation of a contract, irrevocable [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281].

Both the ALTA Loan Policy (10-17-92) and the ALTA Owner's Policy (10-17-92) provide for arbitration of certain controversies or claims arising out of or relating to the policies. Under the policies, arbitration is compulsory when the amount of insurance is $1,000,000 or less and either the insured or the insurer demands arbitration. When the amount of insurance is over $1,000,000, arbitration is required only when both the insurer and the insured agree to arbitrate the claim [see § 26A.251, Conditions and Stipulations, P 13; § 26A.252, Conditions and Stipulations, P 14]. Arbitration must be conducted according to the Title Insurance Arbitration Rules of the American Arbitration Association. The law of the situs of the land applies in the proceedings, and judgment on the arbitrator's award may be entered in any court having jurisdiction [see § 26A.251, Conditions and Stipulations, P 13; see also § 26A.252, Conditions and Stipulations, P 14].

DIVISION II: REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 26A TITLE INSURANCE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

11-26A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26A.18

§ 26A.18 Indorsements

[1] Definition

An indorsement to an insurance policy adds to or amends the coverage of the policy by limiting, altering, or expanding the policyholder's rights or the insurer's liability [McFarland v. New Zealand Ins. Co. (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 422, 424, 1 Cal. Rptr. 482 ; Continental Cas. Co. v. Phoenix Constr. Co. (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 423, 431 432, 296 P.2d 801] . An indorsement to an insurance policy is sometimes referred to as a "rider."

[2] Effect

Properly used, an indorsement will eliminate the need to redraft or rewrite an entire contract to reflect a change in or addition to its provisions. An effective insurance indorsement becomes a part of the policy and cannot be separated from it [Jew Fun Him v. Occidental Life Ins. Co. (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 246, 249, 198 P.2d 711] . If an indorsement or rider has been attached to an insurance policy, the original policy and the indorsement must be read together and construed as a whole [Narver v. California State Life. Ins. Co. (1930) 211 Cal. 176, 181, 294 P. 393] .

[3] Use

Indorsements are commonly attached to standard policies to increase or otherwise modify their coverage. Additional premiums are usually charged for indorsements, although some are made available without charge. Most indorsements, like most policies, are standardized, but some insurers may draft new indorsement forms or modify older forms to meet the specific requirements of prospective policyholders. Indorsements do not usually insure against risks or defects occurring after the original policy date, although some may be used to "down-date" a policy to the date of indorsement.

[4] Available Endorsements to Standard Title Insurance Policies

The California Land Title Association Policy & Indorsement Forms Book (Revised 1971) contains more than 100 title insurance indorsements recommended for use by title insurers in California. This chapter reprints and explains seven of the most widely used indorsements. These are:

- CLTA Covenants, Conditions, and Restrictions Indorsement [see § 26A.260]
- CLTA Mechanics' Liens Indorsement [see § 26A.261]
- CLTA Foundation Indorsement [see § 26A.262]
- CLTA Easement Indorsement [see § 26A.263]
- CLTA Assignment of Trust Deed Indorsement [see § 26A.264]
- CLTA Single Family Homeowner's Protection Indorsement [see § 26A.265]
- CLTA Condominium Owner's Protection Indorsement [see § 26A.266]

4. If client has already ordered or purchased title report or policy:

a. Type of report or policy.

NOTE:
Title insurance reports and policies are broadly classified as "preliminary reports," "commitments," "binders," "guarantees," and "policies." In addition, "indorsements" may be attached to "policies." For discussion of these classifications, see the Legal Background.

b. Title company:

(1) Full name;

(2) Address

(3) Whether company is "underwritten title company" or "title insurer."

NOTE:
Not all "title companies" are "title insurers." An "underwritten title company" is a corporation that engages in the business of preparing title searches, title examinations, title reports, certificates of title, or abstracts of title on the basis of which a "title insurer" writes title policies [Ins. Code § 12340.5; see Ins. Code § 12389(a) (underwritten title company authorized to prepare title searches, reports, examinations, certificates, and abstracts)]. A "title insurer" is any company issuing title policies as insurer, guarantor, or indemnitor [Ins. Code § 12340.4]. Although "underwritten title companies" cannot perform the functions of title insurers, title insurers may perform the functions of both types of companies. For a general discussion of the organization of the title insurance industry, with a delineation of the powers and duties of underwritten title companies and title insurers, see § 26A.10 [3]; see also CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW PRACTICE, Chapter 92, Title Insurance (Matthew Bender).

c. Amount of insurance.

NOTE:
The "amount of insurance" may be shown on the face of the policy or report (or in one of the schedules) opposite an identifying designation such as "Amount" or "Liability"; or it may be stated in the body of the policy or report as the amount by which the company's liability is limited. The amount is determined by the type of policy issued and the value of the property insured. Thus, the amount of an owner's policy will generally be determined by the market value of the property, which in turn is determined by the selling price. Similarly, the amount of a lender's policy will be determined by the amount of the loan. The premiums or fees charged by the title company are based on this amount.

PART III. TRANSACTION GUIDE
B. Preliminary Determinations

11-26A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26A.110

§ 26A.110 Necessity or Advisability of Title Insurance

1. Is client purchasing property?

a. Title insurance should be purchased whenever real property is purchased.

NOTE:
It is never advisable to rely on title insurance policies issued to other parties interested in a parcel or tract (e.g., former owners or lenders). A purchaser of property may not recover on a policy issued to a former owner or lender. Further, the condition of the title may have changed materially since the other policy was issued. Finally, title policies suitable for sellers are not usually suitable for owners.

b. Title insurance should be acquired contemporaneously with title.

NOTE:
Most title insurance is based on the condition of a title as revealed by the public records and is related to priorities appearing of record as of a particular date and hour. The title insurance protection may be lost if the insurance is not acquired at the same time as title is acquired.

2. Is client lending on real property?

a. Lender on real property may not rely on title insurance issued to an owner.

NOTE:
No person may rely on or claim the benefits of title insurance unless that person is an "insured" under the policy [Walters v. Marler (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 1, 33 34, 147 Cal. Rptr. 655 ; Hawkins v. Oakland Title Ins. & Guar. Co. (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 116, 127

128, 331 P.2d 742] . Thus, a seller of real property may not claim benefits under a policy issued only to a lender [Walters v. Marler (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 1, 33 34, 147 Cal. Rptr. 655] , nor may a subsequent purchaser of real property claim benefits under a policy issued to a previous owner of the same property [Hawkins v. Oakland Title Ins. & Guar. Co. (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 116, 127 128, 331 P.2d 742] .

b. Lender may require different title insurance policy form than buyer or owner.

NOTE:

The two principal ALTA title insurance policies, the ALTA Loan Policy (10-17-92) [see § 26A.251] and the ALTA Owner's Policy (10-17-92) [see § 26A.252] are designed for use by lenders and owners, respectively. An ALTA Loan Policy will provide no protection to an owner or buyer; nor will an ALTA Owner's Policy provide protection to a lender.

c. If loan is made after property is purchased, title policy updated to date of loan is necessary.

NOTE:

It is never wise to rely on an old title report or policy. Significant changes in the condition of a title can take place at any time. A client who contemplates making a loan secured by real estate should ascertain the status of the title at the time of the loan and purchase adequate title insurance protection as of that date.

PART III. TRANSACTION GUIDE
B. Preliminary Determinations

11-26A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26A.111

§ 26A.111 Type of Title Insurance Policy

NOTE:

The forms in this chapter include three complete title insurance policy forms reprinted verbatim from the CLTA Policy & Indorsement Forms Book (Revised 1971) with permission of CLTA. These are the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy (1990) [see § 26A.250], the ALTA Loan Policy (10-17-92) [see § 26A.251], and the ALTA Owner's Policy (10-17-92) [see § 26A.252]. These forms are the most commonly used title insurance forms in California. The CLTA book also includes the CLTA Oil Leasehold Policy, the ALTA U.S. Policy, the ALTA Leasehold Loan Policy, the ALTA Leasehold Owner's Policy, the ALTA Construction Loan Policy, the ALTA Residential Title Insurance Policy, the ALTA Master Residential Loan Policy, and the ALTA Short Form Residential Loan Policy. The ALTA Residential Policy is the so-called "plain English" policy. Copies of these additional forms may be obtained from the CLTA Policy & Indorsement Forms Book or from local title companies.

1. If client is purchaser of residential or small commercial property, consider use of CLTA Standard Coverage Policy (1990).

NOTE:

The CLTA Standard Coverage Policy (1990) [see § 26A.250] is the most commonly used title insurance policy in California. It is a "joint protection policy" that may be used to insure the title interests of, among others, lessees, sublessees, secured creditors, and owners of easements or rights of way. For a general discussion of the use of the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy (1990), see § 26A.250.

2. If client is purchaser of large commercial property, consider use of ALTA Owner's Policy (10-17-92).

NOTE:

The ALTA Owner's Policy (10-17-92) [see § 26A.252] is an "extended coverage" policy that provides protection against many off-record as well as on-record title risks. Because it offers protection against some risks that could only be ascertained by inspecting or surveying the property, or by making an inquiry of the persons in possession, it provides valuable coverage for large commercial property owners and for owners who are out of the state or so far distant from the property that they cannot conveniently inspect it. There are, however, important matters that are excluded from the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy but not from the ALTA Loan Policy. It provides protection against matters excluded from coverage under the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy (1990) [see § 26A.250], such as taxes or assessments not shown as existing liens by the public records; facts, rights, interests, or claims not shown by the public records but which could be ascertained by inspecting the land or making an inquiry of the persons in possession; easements, liens, or encumbrances not shown by the public records; discrepancies, conflicts in boundary lines, shortages in area, encroachments, or any other facts that a correct survey would disclose and that are not shown by the public records; and mining claims and water rights [see § 26A.250, Schedule B, Part I]. For a general discussion of the use of the ALTA Owner's Policy (10-17-92), see the comment to § 26A.252.

3. If client is non-institutional (but not out-of-state) lender on real property, consider use of CLTA Standard Coverage Policy (1973).

NOTE:

The CLTA Standard Coverage Policy (1990) [see § 26A.250] is a "joint protection" policy designed to provide title insurance protection for both owners and non-institutional lenders on real property. While it provides protection for lenders, it does not provide the extensive coverage against off-record risks provided by the ALTA Loan Policy (10-17-92), which is generally preferred by out-of-state lenders. For a general discussion of the use of the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy (1990), see § 26A.250[1].

4. If client is institutional (or out-of-state) lender on real property, consider use of ALTA Loan Policy (10-17-92).

NOTE:

The ALTA Loan Policy (10-17-92) [see § 26A.251], like the ALTA Owner's Policy (10-17-92) [see § 26A.252], affords protection for many off-record risks excluded from coverage under the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy (1990) [see § 26A.250]. Since the insurer under the ALTA Loan Policy (10-17-92) assumes the responsibility of inspecting (and in some cases surveying) the insured property, the policy provides valuable coverage for lenders who make loans on the security of real estate located outside of their home states. Many institutional lenders insist that borrowers obtain ALTA Loan Policies naming the borrowers as insureds before they will agree to make real estate loans. For a general discussion of the use of the policy, see § 26A.251[1].

5. Should any indorsements be ordered to augment basic policy coverage?

NOTE:

More than 100 indorsement forms are included in the CLTA Policy & Indorsement Forms Book (Revised 1971). For discussion of the circumstances under which some of the more important and commonly used indorsements should be ordered, see §§ 26A.121--26A.123.

CHAPTER 26A TITLE INSURANCE
PART III. TRANSACTION GUIDE
B. Preliminary Determinations

11-26A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26A.112

§ 26A.112 Amount of Insurance

1. How much protection should be purchased?

a. Title insurance protection is limited by amount of insurance stated in policy.

NOTE:
Unless there are grounds for recovery "off the policy," such as negligence or bad faith [see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW PRACTICE, §§ 92.130-92.131 (Matthew Bender)], the obligation of the insurer to indemnify the insured is always limited by the amount of insurance stated in the policy. Regardless of the amount of the loss or damage sustained by the insured, recovery for loss or damage under the policy cannot exceed the stated amount of insurance [see §§ 26A.250 [2], Insuring Clause, also Schedule A; 26A.251 [2], Insuring Clause, also Schedule A; 26A.252 [2], Insuring Clause, Schedule A]. Recovery for attorneys' fees or other costs of litigation may, however, be in addition to (and sometimes in excess of) the stated amount of insurance.

b. Amount of insurance is ordinarily set at price paid for or lent on security of land.

2. Should amount of insurance be increased?

a. If value of land increases after title insurance policy is issued, or if improvements are added to insured land, amount of insurance should be increased.

NOTE:
This can be particularly important when real estate values are inflating. Increased protection is generally available through endorsement.

b. If amount of insurance is less than a specified percentage of actual value of land (or land as improved), insured may be a "coinsurer" of loss or damage.

NOTE:

Some title insurance policies (e.g., the ALTA Owner's Policy (10-17-92) [see § 26A.252]) contain "coinsurance" clauses. Under a "coinsurance" clause, the risk of a partial loss is divided between the insurer and the insured according to the relative amount of the insurance and the actual value of the insured property [Los Angeles Mut. Ins. Co. v. Cawog (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 378, 385 386, 106 Cal. Rptr. 307 ; Home Ins. Co., New York v. Eisenson (5th Cir. [Fla.] 1950) 181 F.2d 416, 418] . If, for example, the value of the property at original purchase is $200,000 but the amount of insurance is only $100,000, the risk of partial loss is divided between the insurer and the insured on a 50-50 basis. If there is a $100,000 loss, the insurer is obligated only to pay 50 percent of the loss, or $50,000. For further discussion of coinsurance, see §§ 26A.17[8], 26A.252[1].

C. Procedural Guide to Selection of Title Policies and Reports

11-26A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26A.120

§ 26A.120 Steps Preliminary to Ordering Title Insurance Policy

1. Apply for preliminary report or commitment.

NOTE:

Preliminary reports [see § 26A.200] are designed to show the condition of title as a preliminary to the issuance of title insurance policies [for discussion, see § 26A.13; see also Ins. Code § 12340.11]. Application may be made directly to a title company, although many applications are customarily made through real estate brokers who are handling transactions for the client. Alternatively, a commitment [see § 26A.210] may be ordered. A commitment generally serves the same purpose as a preliminary report [see § 26A.210 [1]; see also § 26A.14].

2. Examine and analyze preliminary report or commitment.

NOTE:

The preliminary report will list as exceptions any liens, encumbrances, or defects that would be listed as exceptions if the policy were issued on the date of the report. It will also reveal if title to the property is vested in the person who purports to have the right to sell or encumber it. The attorney must analyze the condition of the title as revealed by the report.

Many liens, encumbrances, or defects such as recorded covenants, conditions and restrictions, tax liens, easements or rights-of-way for utilities, reservations of mineral rights, and similar matters may have no effect on the "marketability" of the title [for general discussion of marketable title issues affecting title insurance, see § 26A.11] and be perfectly acceptable to the client. Other liens or defects, however, may be unacceptable. Unacceptable liens or defects might include easements that interfere with the use of the property, notices of lis pendens, judgment liens, and similar matters. If any unacceptable liens, encumbrances, or defects are listed in the preliminary report, it may be possible to remove or "cure" them before the policy is issued [see (3)(a), below].

3. Handle title defects in one of following ways:

a. If possible, clear (or demand that another party to transaction clear) liens, defects, or encumbrances before issuance of title insurance policy.

NOTE:
Some defects revealed by the preliminary report may be easily "cured," e.g., by obtaining (or demanding that the other party to the real estate transaction obtain) a release of lien, a reconveyance, a quitclaim deed, a satisfaction of judgment, or another document necessary to "cure" the defect. Other defects may be cured only by judicial action, e.g., by commencing an action for quiet title. A litigation guarantee [see § 26A.230] may be useful in obtaining information preliminary to any such action [for ordering litigation guarantees, see § 26A.123(1),(2)].

b. Obtain indemnification agreement with other party under which other party agrees to indemnify client for costs of clearing title or "curing" defect after close of escrow.

NOTE:
A prospective purchaser or lender may demand that the seller or borrower agree in writing to indemnify the purchaser or lender for the cost of clearing title or for any loss occasioned by the title defect. It is customary to require security for the performance of an indemnification agreement in an amount sufficient to cover the probable cost of removing the defect.

c. Cause escrow holder to impound part of proceeds of escrow to cover estimated cost of removing defect.

NOTE:
Escrow holders will frequently impound sufficient funds to cover the estimated cost of removing an exception. If, for example, there is a judgment lien against the property, the escrow holder will impound sufficient funds to pay the lien if it is valid. In the meantime, the parties can seek to settle the question of validity.

d. Obtain title insurance indorsement for additional title insurance protection against defect [for guidance in ordering the appropriate indorsements, see § 26A.122].

PART III. TRANSACTION GUIDE
C. Procedural Guide to Selection of Title Policies and Reports

11-26A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26A.121

§ 26A.121 Ordering Title Insurance Policy

1. Select form of policy.

NOTE:
Since title insurance policies are highly standardized [see § 26A.17 [2]], the policy chosen will ordinarily be one of the standard-form policies recommended for use by the California Land Title Association. For considerations relating to the different policies and their uses, see § 26A.111; see also §§ 26A.250; 26A.252.

2. Make order directly to title company or through real estate broker.

NOTE:
Title insurance policies are commonly ordered at the time that a contract for the sale of real property is entered into. The policy to be issued is identified in the contract. The policy is issued at the same time as the deeds are executed, delivered and recorded, and the premium for the policy is paid out of escrow. In some circumstances, the attorney can order the policy directly; or, if the attorney is drafting the contract, deeds, or other documents, the policy to be issued may be selected and identified at that time.

C. Procedural Guide to Selection of Title Policies and Reports

11-26A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26A.122

§ 26A.122 Ordering Indorsements

NOTE:
An indorsement adds to or amends the coverage of an insurance policy. When effective, it becomes a part of the policy and must be considered with it. CLTA recommends the use of more than 100 indorsement forms, which are included in its CLTA Policy & Indorsement Forms Book (Revised 1971). For a general discussion of indorsements, see §§ 26A.18, 26A.260[1].

1. If client is an institutional lender who is lending on property affected by covenants, conditions, and restrictions, order covenants, conditions, and restrictions indorsement.

NOTE:
The title to a parcel of real property is sometimes restricted or encumbered by one or more recorded instruments setting forth "covenants, conditions, and restrictions" (CC and R's) on its use [for a general discussion of CC and R's, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW PRACTICE, vol. 13, ch. 470, "Subdivisions (Matthew Bender)]. The CLTA Covenants, Conditions, and Restrictions Indorsement [see § 26A.260] is designed to provide title insurance protection against any loss sustained by an insured lender as a result of CC and R's. It is designed to be issued in connection with the ALTA Loan Policy [see § 26A.251], which is frequently purchased by institutional lenders [see § 26A.111[4]]. Protection against loss or damage sustained by reason of a violation of CC and R's may be necessary to the protection of the lien of the insured lender.

2. If client is lender who cannot inspect property and who has reason to believe that mechanic's lien may attain priority over lien of secured loan, order mechanics' liens indorsement.

NOTE:
CLTA's Mechanics' Liens Indorsement [see § 26A.261] should be added to ALTA Loan

Policy [see § 2 26A.51] if the lien of an insured loan may be imperiled by mechanics' liens. A mechanic's lien is entitled to priority over the lien of a deed of trust if the work of improvement began before the deed of trust was recorded and if the mechanic's lien claimant had no notice of the deed of trust at the time the work began [Civ. Code §§ 3134, 3137; for legal and practical aspects of the mechanics' lien laws, see Ch. 31, Mechanics' Liens]. To protect themselves against the loss of priority to unrecorded mechanics' liens, lenders frequently inspect the property on which they propose to make a loan to determine if work has commenced or materials have been supplied. Because out-of-state lenders frequently find it impossible to inspect the property on which they make loans, they often require that their borrowers provide appropriate title insurance protection against mechanics' liens before any loan is made.

3. If client is construction lender who cannot inspect property and has reason to believe that foundations may not be properly located within boundaries of construction site, order foundation indorsement.

NOTE:

CLTA's Foundation Indorsement [see § 26A.262] should be added to ALTA Loan Policy [see § 26A.251] if a lender wishes title insurance protection against possible loss due to improper location of the foundations on a construction project. The risk that foundations are not properly located within the boundaries of the insured property may be minimized by inspecting the property or, if the lender is an out-of-state lender (or for any other reason cannot inspect the property), by purchasing a foundation indorsement. The indorsement will be issued by the insurer after the insurer has inspected the property. For a general discussion of foundation indorsements, see § 26A.262[1].

4. If client is purchasing or lending on property subject to easement in favor of another parcel (or whose use depends on enforceability of easement over adjoining property), order easement indorsement.

NOTE:

CLTA's Easement Indorsement [see § 26A.263] is designed to be added to the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy [see § 26A.250], the ALTA Loan Policy [see § 26A.251], or the ALTA Owner's Policy [see § 26A.252] to provide title insurance protection against loss resulting from the use (or lack of use) of an easement [see § 26A.263[1]].

5. If client is purchasing deed of trust, order assignment of trust deed indorsement.

NOTE:

CLTA's Assignment of Trust Deed Indorsement [see § 26A.264] is designed to be added to the ALTA Loan Policy [see § 26A.251] to provide title insurance protection for the purchaser of the beneficial interest under a deed of trust. Although the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy [see § 26A.250] and the ALTA Loan Policy [see § 26A.251] protect successors in ownership of an insured mortgage or deed of trust, the new owner of the indebtedness will require assurance that the lien of the insured mortgage or deed of trust is valid and enforceable. The Assignment of Trust Deed Indorsement will provide that assurance. In addition, it will assure the assignee of the deed of trust that the deed of trust has been transferred by a valid assignment, that there are no subsisting tax or assessment liens which have priority (except as noted in the indorsement), that there are no matters affecting the validity or priority of the mortgage or deed of trust (except as noted), and that there are no federal tax liens or bankruptcy proceedings which affect the insured estate or interest (except as noted).

6. If client is (or is to become) single-family homeowner and wishes to have additional homeowner's title protection, order single-family homeowner's protection indorsement.

NOTE:

CLTA's Single Family Homeowner's Protection Indorsement [see § 26A.265] may be added to the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy [see § 26A.250] to provide title insurance protection of particular value to a homeowner. It insures the owner of a single-family, owner-occupied residential structure against loss or damage sustained by reason of lack of a right of access from the insured land to a public street; any statutory lien for labor or material arising out of any work of improvement in progress or completed on the date of the policy (except liens for which the insured has agreed to be responsible); removal of the residential structure or interference with its use for ordinary residential purposes as the result of a final court order or judgment based on such matters as encroachments onto adjoining lands, violations of covenants, conditions, or restrictions, or violations of applicable zoning ordinances; and damage to the residential structure resulting from the exercise of any right to use the surface of the land for mineral extraction or development. For a general consideration of homeowner's title insurance protection (and other available forms of homeowner's indorsements), see § 26A.265[1].

7. If client is (or is to become) condominium homeowner and wishes additional condominium owner's title protection, order condominium owner's protection indorsement.

NOTE:

CLTA's Condominium Owner's Protection Indorsement [see § 26A.266] may be added to the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy [see § 26A.250]. It offers condominium homeowners substantially identical protection to that offered single-family homeowners in the Single Family Homeowner's Protection Indorsement [see (6), above]. It assures the condominium homeowner that the estate or interest described in the policy is a condominium as defined in Civil Code Section 783; that there is no lack of access from the described unit to a public street; that no statutory lien for labor or materials has attached to the insured interest (except a lien for work for which the insured has agreed to be responsible); that the residence will not be removed and that there will be no interference with its use as a residence by reason of a final court order or judgment based on the existence of any encroachment of the residence onto adjoining lands or onto an easement, any violation of enforceable covenants, conditions or restrictions, or any of certain specified zoning violations; and that there are no mineral rights that would damage the structure.

PART III. TRANSACTION GUIDE
C. Procedural Guide to Selection of Title Policies and Reports

11-26A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26A.123

§ 26A.123 Ordering Special-Purpose Policies and Reports

1. If legal action affecting title to or possession of property is contemplated, order litigation guarantee.

NOTE:

The necessity for legal action will often appear after a preliminary title report [see § 26A.200] has been received showing some lien, restriction, encumbrance, or other defect that "clouds" a title. A litigation guarantee [see § 26A.230] will disclose the necessary parties defendant in a particular kind of action (which the attorney may specify when requesting the guarantee). Litigation guarantees are useful in many kinds of actions, including suits for condemnation, partition, foreclosure, and quiet title. The issuing title company will be liable for damages suffered as a result of the inaccuracy or incompleteness of the guarantee [Viotti v. Giomi (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 730, 738 739, 41 Cal. Rptr. 345] . For further discussion of the characteristics and use of litigation guarantees, see § 26A.30[1].

2. If it is necessary to determine exact nature of particular person's interest in parcel or tract, order litigation guarantee.

NOTE:

A litigation guarantee [see § 26A.230] or a lot book guarantee [see § 26A.232] may be useful to identify property owned by a particular person and the nature or extent of that person's interest in it. If, for example, a property search guarantee [see (5), above] reveals that certain property stands in the name of a particular judgment debtor, the attorney may order a litigation guarantee or a lot book guarantee to identify the debtor's interest in the property.

3. If it is necessary to determine priorities of various recorded instruments, order chain of title guarantee.

NOTE:

A chain of title guarantee [see § 26A.231] will disclose the priorities of various recorded instruments. It lists all deeds and other recorded instruments in the chain of title, disclosing the recording date and the names of all parties to each instrument. The guarantee will cover any period of time specified in the guarantee. Since charges for chain of title guarantees are based on the number of documents reported, it is common to request that the title company issue a guarantee for a relatively short span of years.

4. If it is necessary to determine if particular instrument is in chain of title, order chain of title guarantee.

NOTE:

A chain of title guarantee [see § 26A.231] will disclose whether a particular instrument is in the chain of title [see § 26A.231[1]].

5. If it is necessary to find real property standing in name of judgment debtor, order property search guarantee.

NOTE:

A property search guarantee (often called a "name run search") [see § 26A.233] will reveal all real property standing of record in a particular name. The guarantee may also include a list of existing mortgages and deeds of trust that stand in the name of a particular person. An attorney representing a judgment creditor or prospective plaintiff may use the property search guarantee to discover property owned by the judgment debtor or prospective defendant [see § 26A.233[1]].

6. If it is necessary to locate and identify real property owned by a decedent or conservatee, order property search guarantee.

NOTE:

A property search guarantee [see § 26A.233] may also be used to locate and identify property owned by a decedent or conservatee. If the guarantee reveals that property stands of record in the name of the decedent or the conservatee, other reports or guarantees may be ordered to ascertain the nature or extent of the decedent's or conservatee's interest in it.

7. If client is preparing to submit subdivision map for approval by local officials, order subdivision guarantee.

NOTE:

All parties having any record title interest in real property that is being subdivided must sign and acknowledge a certificate by which they consent to the preparation and recordation of the subdivision map [Gov. Code § 66436]. County and city officials customarily withhold approval of final subdivision maps until guarantees have been issued showing that all of the persons having any record interest in the property being subdivided have signed the certificate. A subdivision guarantee [see § 26A.234] is customarily ordered by subdividers for this purpose.

8. If foreclosure is contemplated, order trustee's sale guarantee.

NOTE:

A trustee's sale guarantee [see § 26A.235] will provide useful title information relating to property that is subject to foreclosure (either through exercise of a power of sale or by judicial proceedings). The guarantee, which will help to prevent irregularities in the foreclosure sale, should be ordered before any foreclosure sale is held [see § 26A.235[1]].

9. If client is contemplating resale of property soon after its purchase, order binder.

NOTE:

Binders are typically issued to provide temporary title insurance coverage while the purchaser of real property attempts to find another purchaser. The binder has the advantage of providing present coverage and of assuring prospective repurchasers that permanent coverage will be available in the future. In California, title insurance binders are not ordinarily issued for more than one year. For a general discussion of binders, see § 26A.15; see also § 26A.200[1].

A. Preliminary Reports

11-26A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26A.200

§ 26A.200 CLTA Preliminary Report Form

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is the preliminary report form approved for use by the California Land Title Association (CLTA) and revised as of January 1, 1995. It is reprinted from the CLTA Policy & Indorsement Forms Book (Revised 1971), with permission.

[b] Preliminary Reports In General

An owner, lender, or prospective purchaser of real property contemplating the purchase of a title insurance policy will typically request that a title company prepare and issue a preliminary report. This request is frequently made through a real estate broker who represents one of the parties. The report is sought for the purpose of discovering the condition of title and as a preliminary to negotiating the terms of a sales or loan contract. Preliminary reports are often ordered when the escrow for a sale or loan transaction is opened [for a general discussion of escrow procedures and practices, see the Legal Background to Ch. 26, Real Property Escrows].

[c] Contrasted with Abstracts of Title

It is important to understand the distinctions between preliminary reports on one hand, and abstracts of title and title insurance policies on the other.

First, a preliminary report is not an abstract of title [Ins. Code § 12340.11; see Ins. Code § 12340.10; see also discussion in § 26A.13]. An abstract of title is defined by statute as a written representation, provided pursuant to a contract (whether written or oral), intended to be relied upon by the person who has contracted for the representation, listing all recorded conveyances, instruments or documents which, under the laws of California, impart constructive notice with respect to the chain of title [Ins. Code § 12340.10].

Before January 1, 1982, when Insurance Code Section 12340.11 became effective, preliminary reports were deemed, under case law, to be analytically identical to abstracts of title, and title companies were held liable for negligence in the preparation of inaccurate or incomplete preliminary reports [see Hardy v. Admiral Oil Co. (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 836, 841, 16 Cal. Rptr. 894, 366 P.2d 310 ; J.H. Trisdale, Inc. v. Shasta etc. Title Co. (1956) 146 Cal. App. 2d 831, 837, 304 P.2d 832 ; Jarchow v. Transamerica Title Ins. Co. (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 917, 939, 122 Cal. Rptr. 470] . The decisions that imposed negligence liability for the preparation of preliminary reports were widely criticized [see Hosack, California Title Insurance Practice (Cal. C.E.B. 1980), § 3.19; Miller & Starr, Current Law of California Real Estate (Rev. ed., 1972), §§ 12.79, 12.80]. This liability was effectively abolished by the enactment of Insurance Code Section 12340.11, which explicitly excepts preliminary reports from the statutory definition of abstracts of title and declares that a preliminary report cannot be construed as a representation as to the condition of a title [see Glavinich v. Commonwealth Land Title Ins. Co. (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 263, 209 Cal. Rptr. 266 (Ins. Code § 12340.11 (not applicable to preliminary reports issued before Jan. 1, 1982); for discussion of decisions predating Ins. Code § 12340.11, holding preliminary reports to be identical to abstracts of title, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW PRACTICE, Ch. 92, Title Insurance, § 92.131 (Matthew Bender)].

Second, a preliminary report is not a title policy. A title policy is defined by statute as a written instrument or contract by means of which title insurance liability is assumed [Ins. Code § 12340.2]. No insurance liability is assumed under a preliminary report. A preliminary report constitutes an offer to issue a title policy subject to the stated exceptions and conditions set forth in the report [Ins. Code § 12340.11; for a discussion of exceptions, see [f], below]. The CLTA Preliminary Report Form explicitly provides that the report is issued for the purpose of facilitating the issuance of a policy of title insurance, and for that purpose only, and that no liability is assumed by the report [see CLTA Preliminary Report Form, third (unnumbered) P]. The form further states that if it is desired that liability be assumed before a title policy is issued, a binder [see § 26A.220] or a commitment [see § 26A.210] should be requested.

Insurance Code Section 12414.30(b) states that upon request, a title insurance company may provide coverage against loss or damage under the terms, conditions, and stipulations of the title insurance policy for any monetary liens set forth in the preliminary report.

[e] Exhibit A

Exhibit A attached to this form sets forth exclusions that will be listed in various standard form title insurance policies if and when they are issued. For example, it includes a verbatim statement of the exclusions that will be listed in Schedule B of the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy [see § 26A.250] if that policy is issued to the prospective policy holder. It also includes the statement of exclusions from the ALTA Residential Title Insurance Policy (6-1-87), the ALTA Loan Policy (10-17-92) [see § 26A.251], the ALTA Leasehold Loan Policy (10-17-92), the ALTA Owner's Policy (10-17-92 [see § 26A.252], and the ALTA Leasehold Owner's Policy (10-17-92). These exclusions are set forth in this preliminary report for the purpose of clearly advising the prospective policy holder of matters that will be excluded if and when the title insurance policy is issued.

The preliminary report will reveal any liens, encumbrances, or defects that would be listed on the policy if the policy were issued on the date and at the time shown on the report. These are set forth as exceptions to coverage and are usually presented in a list, with each exception assigned a number. Exceptions listed in preliminary reports include matters such as real property taxes (currently due or delinquent), covenants, conditions, and restrictions affecting the property [for a general discussion of covenants, conditions, and restrictions, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW PRACTICE, Ch. 470, Subdivisions (Matthew Bender)], deeds of trust, easements or rights-of-way for utility use, and reservations of mineral rights.

Many of these exceptions will have no effect on the "marketability" of the title [for general discussion of marketable title issues relating to title insurance, see § 26A.11] and will be entirely acceptable to the client. For example, many reservations of mineral rights, recorded covenants, conditions and restrictions, easements or rights-of-way for utilities, and similar matters may have no effect on the marketability of the title. Other listed exceptions will automatically be removed upon close of escrow and before the title insurance policy is issued. For example, real property taxes due or delinquent will be paid, and trust deeds for existing loans will be reconveyed.

Other exceptions, however, may be unacceptable. Unacceptable matters might include easements that interfere with the use of the property, notices of lis pendens, judgment liens, and similar matters.

[g] Clearing Exceptions

If any unacceptable liens, encumbrances, or defects are listed in the preliminary report, it may be possible to remove ("cure") them before the policy is issued. Some defects may be cleared easily, simply by obtaining (or demanding that another party to the real estate transaction obtain) a release of lien, a reconveyance, a quitclaim deed, a satisfaction of judgment, or a similar document. Other defects may be cured only by judicial action, such as commencing an action for quiet title.

If the defect cannot be removed before close of escrow, the parties may enter into an indemnification agreement, by which the seller (or borrower) agrees to indemnify the buyer (or lender) against lost occasioned by the defect. Alternatively, the escrow holder may impound sufficient funds to cover any loss occasioned by the defect. For procedural steps in handling title defects revealed by a preliminary report, see § 26A.120.

[h] Statutory Warning

Under the Insurance Code, every preliminary report that constitutes an offer to issue an owner's policy of title insurance must include a statement warning the prospective policy holder that the report is not a written representation as to the condition of title and may not list all liens, defects, and encumbrances affecting title to the land [Ins. Code § 12414.30(a) (operative Jan. 1, 1995)]. The statement must also advise the prospective policy holder that the exceptions and exclusions shown in the report are meant to provide notice of matters that are not covered under the terms of the title insurance policy and that the prospective policy holder should carefully read and consider all of those exceptions and exclusions [Ins. Code § 12414.30(a) (operative Jan. 1, 1995)]. The third paragraph of this form contains the language required by the Insurance Code.

§ 26A.210 ALTA Commitment (1982)

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is the ALTA Commitment (1982) form approved for use by the California Land Title Association. It is reprinted from the CLTA Policy & Indorsement Forms Book (Revised 1971), with permission. The instructions in the form are reproduced verbatim from that publication.

[b] Commitments In General

A commitment is a contract under which a title insurer obligates itself to issue a title insurance policy upon stated terms and conditions. By statute, a "commitment" is an offer to issue a title policy subject to stated exceptions and conditions [Ins. Code § 12340.11]. Like preliminary reports [see § 26A.200] and binders [see § 26A.220], commitments are not abstracts of title, and none of the rights, duties, or responsibilities applicable to the preparation and issuance of abstracts of title are applicable to the issuance of commitments [Ins. Code § 12340.11; see §§ 26A.200[1][c],[d]].

[c] Contrasted with Preliminary Reports and Binders

Commitments differ significantly from preliminary reports [see § 26A.200] and binders [see § 26A.220]. A preliminary report does not provide present insurance coverage, nor is it an enforceable agreement to provide coverage in the future. A preliminary report is an offer to issue a title policy. If and when the offer is accepted, the insurer's liability will be framed by the terms of a title policy [see § 26A.200[1][b]]. A binder provides present coverage, but only for a temporary period [see § 26A.220 [1]]. A commitment does not provide present coverage, but it does obligate the insurer to provide future coverage, subject to stated exceptions and conditions. Title insurers in some areas of California routinely issue commitments instead of preliminary reports. For discussion of commitments, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW PRACTICE, Chapter 92, Title Insurance, § 92.33 (Matthew Bender).

This commitment identifies the form of title policy that the insurer agrees to furnish to the insured [Schedule A]. It also sets forth the face amount of the policy [Schedule A], the name of the proposed insured [Schedule A], and the time during which the insurer's obligation will be enforceable [second (unnumbered) P]. The commitment also sets forth the exceptions that will be listed in the policy if and when a policy is issued [Schedule B § II]. For a general discussion of exceptions to title insurance coverage, see § 26.200[f],[g].

The commitment does not cover any defects, liens, or encumbrances that are created or attach between the date of the commitment and the date on which the proposed insured meets the requirements [see Schedule B § I] set forth in the commitment [Conditions, P 2].

Under this form, the insurer's contractual obligation is limited to issuing the policy referred to in the commitment [see Conditions, P 4]. If there is an error in the commitment (e.g., if there is a title defect or lien that is not listed as an exception), the insurer's liability will be limited to actual loss caused by good faith reliance on the commitment to comply with the requirements set forth in the commitment or to eliminate any exceptions shown in the commitment [see Conditions, P 4]. The insurer's liability under the form is limited to the policy amount shown in the commitment [Conditions, P 4; see Schedule A, P 2].

§ 26A.220 Interim Binder Form A

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is the interim binder form approved for use by the California Land Title Association and revised as of February 19, 1981. It is reprinted from the CLTA Policy & Indorsement Forms Book (Revised 1971), with permission. The instructions in the form are reproduced verbatim from that publication.

A binder is a temporary insurance contract [Spott Electrical Co. v. Industrial Indem Co. (1990) 30 Cal. App. 3d 797, 805, 106 Cal. Rptr. 710] . To qualify as a binder, a contract must obligate the insurer to provide present, and not merely future, coverage [Parlier Fruit Co. v. Fireman's etc. Ins. Co. (1957) 151 Cal. App. 2d 6, 20, 311 P.2d 62] . Like preliminary reports [see § 26A.200] and commitments [see § 26A.210], binders are defined by statute as offers to issue title policies [Ins. Code § 12340.11]; also like preliminary reports and commitments, they are removed from the statutory definition of abstracts of title [Ins. Code § 12340.11; see Ins. Code § 12340.10 (abstracts of title); see also § 26A.200[1][c],[d]].

Title insurance binders are typically issued to provide temporary coverage while the owner of real property attempts to find a purchaser. The binder has the advantage of providing present coverage and of assuring prospective purchasers that permanent coverage will be available in the future. In California, title insurance binders are not ordinarily issued for more than one year [see discussion in § 26A.15].

Interim Binder Form A obligates the insurer to provide a title insurance policy on the binder date or, in the alternative, on the date a valid and sufficient instrument creating an insurable estate, interest, or lien in favor of the insured is executed, delivered, and recorded [see first (unnumbered) P of insuring clause]. Although the form does not include an express insuring clause, the insuring function of binders is well recognized [see Spott Electrical Co. v. Industrial Indem. Co. (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 797, 805, 106 Cal. Rptr. 710 ; Parlier Fruit Co. v. Fireman's etc. Ins. Co. (1957)

151 Cal. App. 2d 6, 19 20, 311 P.2d 62] . Even if express language is not employed, a binder will be construed as being subject to the terms and conditions of the policy referred to in the binder, or of the policy ordinarily used by the company if a specific policy is not referred to [Parlier Fruit Co. v. Fireman's etc. Ins. Co. (1957) 151 Cal. App. 2d 6, 20, 311 P.2d 62] . It has long been understood that a binder is a present contract of insurance [Black v. Industrial Acci. Com. (1932) 215 Cal. 639, 651, 12 P.2d 640] .

The form states the limit of the insurer's liability, describes the title or estate that will be vested in the insured, and lists the liens, encumbrances, defects, or other matters that are excepted from coverage. The form also sets a time limit on its coverage. An instructional note appended to the form states that the period of time for which the binder is to run should not exceed the "hold-open period" that the insurer adopts in its posted rate schedules [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2556.1(a) (rates must be filed with Insurance Commissioner)]. After expiration of the time stated, or when the policy referred to in the binder is issued, whichever occurs first, coverage under the binder is null and void [see second (unnumbered) insuring P].

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is the litigation guarantee form (CLTA Guarantee Form No. 1) approved for use by the California Land Title Association (CLTA) and revised as of December 16, 1992 (with subsequent revisions to the schedule of exclusions as of December 1995). The form is reprinted from the CLTA Policy & Indorsement Forms Book (Revised 1971), with permission. The instructions in the form are reproduced verbatim from that publication.

[b] Guarantees In General

A title guarantee (also sometimes referred to as a "guaranty") is a special report prepared and issued by a title insurer to supply and guarantee the accuracy of specific title information. Unlike historic title guarantees which, before the development of the modern title insurance policy, were used to report generally on the condition of titles [see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW PRACTICE, Ch. 92, Title Insurance, § 92.02[6] (Matthew Bender)], modern guarantees serve specialized functions. They provide title insurance coverage, subject to stated limits and for specific situations. For a general discussion of title guarantees in California, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW PRACTICE, Chapter 92, Title Insurance, § 92.35[1] (Matthew Bender)].

[c] Litigation Guarantees

Litigation guarantees are typically ordered by attorneys before commencing legal actions affecting title to or possession of real property. The necessity for legal action will often appear after a preliminary title report [see § 26A.200] has been received showing some lien, restriction, encumbrance, or other defect that "clouds" a title. The litigation guarantee will disclose the necessary parties defendant in a particular kind of action, which may be specified by the attorney requesting the guarantee.

If, for example, an attorney wishes to commence an action for quiet title, it will be necessary to determine the names of all persons who have claims adverse to the plaintiff's title in the subject property so that they may be named as defendants [see Code Civ. Proc. § 762.010]. A litigation guarantee will provide the attorney with the names of those persons. Litigation guarantees are useful in many kinds of actions, including suits for condemnation, partition, and foreclosure, as well as quiet title. They may be admitted in evidence as summaries of the business records of the title companies [see Evid. Code § 1271 (business records)] and, when admitted, are prima facie evidence of the truth of their contents [Talbot v. Wake (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 428, 443, 141 Cal. Rptr. 463] .

If a litigation guarantee is inaccurate or incomplete, the title company will be liable for damages suffered as a result of the inaccuracy or incompleteness [Viotti v. Giomi (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 730, 738 739, 41 Cal. Rptr. 345] .

[d] "Date-Down" Indorsement

A "date-down" indorsement is available to show any changes in the title to the subject property after the date of the guarantee [see CLTA Guarantee Form No. 2, CLTA Policy & Indorsements Forms Book (Revised 1971)]. The attorney may find this form useful to discover changes in the title that have occurred after the date of the litigation guarantee and up to the time of trial.

[e] Contents of Form

The CLTA-approved litigation guarantee sets forth the name of the assured, the date of the guarantee, the land covered by the guarantee, the name of a person or persons holding an estate or interest in that land, and the estate or interest that is held. It guarantees the named insured against loss not exceeding the stated liability amount that the insured may sustain by reason of any correctness in the described assurances.

The guarantee includes a standard Schedule of Exclusions and Guarantee Conditions and Stipulations. These materials are standardized groups of provisions designed to be included with many types of guarantees. They are included in this form for purposes of illustration, but have been omitted from the subsequent guarantee forms illustrated in this chapter to avoid redundancy. In practice, however, they are included with the majority of guaranty forms.

The Schedule of Exclusions states certain standard exclusions that are intended to be generally applicable to the guarantee to which they are attached, except to the extent specifically excepted in Schedule A of the particular guarantee. The Guarantee Conditions and Stipulations is another standardized block of provisions that defines words and phrases that are used in the guarantee and specifies terms and conditions that limit the effectiveness of the guarantee. The Conditions and Stipulations are similar (but not identical) to the Conditions and Stipulations attached to standard title insurance policies [see §§ 26A.250-26A.252].

(b)(l) Taxes or assessments of any taxing authority that levies taxes or assessments on real property; or, (2) Proceedings by a public agency which may result in taxes or assessments, or notices of such proceedings, whether or not the matters excluded under (1) or (2) are shown by the records of the taxing authority or by the public records.

(c)(1) Unpatented mining claims; (2) reservations or exceptions in patents or in Acts authorizing the issuance thereof; (3) water rights, claims or title to water, whether or not the matters excluded under (1), (2) or (3) are shown by the public records.

2. Notwithstanding any specific assurances which are provided in Schedule A of this Guarantee, the Company assumes no liability for loss or damage by reason of the following:

(a) Defects, liens, encumbrances, adverse claims or other matters affecting the title to any property beyond the lines of the land expressly described in the description set forth in Schedule (A), (c) or in Part 2 of this Guarantee, or title to streets, roads, avenues, lanes, ways or waterways to which such land abuts, or the right to maintain therein vaults, tunnels, ramps or any structure or improvements; or any rights or easements therein, unless such property, rights or easements are expressly and specifically set forth in said description.

(b) Defects, liens, encumbrances, adverse claims or other matters, whether or not shown by the public records; (1) which are created, suffered, assumed or agreed to by one or more of the Assureds; (2) which result in no loss to the Assured; or (3) which do not result in the invalidity or potential invalidity of any judicial or non-judicial proceeding which is within the scope and purpose of the assurances provided.

(c) The identity of any party shown or referred to in Schedule A.

(d) The validity, legal effect or priority of any matter shown or referred to in this Guarantee.

GUARANTEE CONDITIONS AND STIPULATIONS

1. Definition of Terms.

The following terms when used in the Guarantee mean:

(a) the "Assured": the party or parties named as the Assured in this Guarantee, or on a Supplemental writing executed by the Company.

(b) "land": the land described or referred to in Schedule (A)(C) or in Part 2, and improvements affixed thereto which by law constitute real property. The term "land" does not include any property beyond the lines of the area described or referred to in Schedule (A)(C) or in Part 2, nor any right, title, interest, estate or easement in abutting streets, roads, avenues, alleys, lanes, ways or waterways.

(c) "mortgage": mortgage, deed of trust, trust deed, or other security instrument.

(d) "public records": records established under State statutes at Date of Guarantee for the purpose of imparting constructive notice of matters relating to real property to purchasers for value and without knowledge.

(e) "date": the effective date.

2. Notice of Claim to be Given by Assured Claimant.

An Assured shall notify the Company promptly in writing in case knowledge shall come to an Assured hereunder of any claim of title or interest which is adverse to the title to the estate or interest, as stated herein, and which might cause loss or damage for which the Company may be liable by virtue of this Guarantee. If prompt notice shall not be given to the Company, then all liability of the Company shall terminate with regard to the matter or matters for which prompt notice is required; provided, however, that failure to notify the Company shall in no case prejudice the rights of any Assured under this Guarantee unless the Company shall be prejudiced by the failure and then only to the extent of the prejudice.

3. No Duty to Defend or Prosecute.

The Company shall have no duty to defend or prosecute any action or proceeding to which the Assured is a party, notwithstanding the nature of any allegation in such action or proceeding.

4. Company's Option to Defend or Prosecute Actions; Duty of Assured Claimant to Cooperate.

Even though the Company has no duty to defend or prosecute as set forth in Paragraph 3 above:

(a) The Company shall have the right, at its sole option and cost, to institute and prosecute any action or proceeding, interpose a defense, as limited in (b), or to do any other act which in its opinion may be necessary or desirable to establish the title to the estate or interest as stated herein, or to establish the lien rights of the Assured, or to prevent or reduce loss or damage to the Assured. The Company may take any appropriate action under the terms of this Guarantee, whether or not it shall be liable hereunder, and shall not thereby concede liability or waive any provision of this Guarantee. If the Company shall exercise its rights under this paragraph, it shall do so diligently.

(b) If the Company elects to exercise its options as stated in Paragraph 4(a) the Company shall have the right to select counsel of its choice (subject to the right of such Assured to object for reasonable cause) to represent the Assured and shall not be liable for and will not pay the fees of any other counsel, nor will the Company pay any fees, costs or expenses incurred by an Assured in the defense of those causes of action which allege matters not covered by this Guarantee.

(c) Whenever the Company shall have brought an action or interposed a defense as permitted by the provisions of this Guarantee, the Company may pursue any litigation to final determination by a court of competent jurisdiction and expressly reserves the right, in its sole discretion, to appeal from an adverse judgment or order.

(d) In all cases where this Guarantee permits the Company to prosecute or provide for the defense of any action or proceeding, an Assured shall secure to the Company the right to so prosecute or provide for the defense of any action or proceeding, and all appeals therein, and permit the Company to use, at its option, the name of such Assured for this purpose. Whenever requested by the Company, an Assured, at the Company's expense, shall give the Company all reasonable aid in any action or proceeding, Securing evidence, obtaining witnesses, prosecuting or defending the action or lawful act which in the opinion of the Company may be necessary or desirable to establish the title to the estate or interest as stated herein, or to establish the lien rights of the Assured. If the Company is prejudiced by the failure of the Assured to furnish the required cooperation, the Company's obligations to the Assured under the Guarantee shall terminate.

5. Proof of Loss or Damage.

In addition to and after the notices required under Section 2 of these Conditions and Stipulations have been provided to the Company, a proof of loss or damage signed and sworn to by the Assured shall be furnished to the Company within ninety (90) days after the Assured shall ascertain the facts giving rise to the loss or damage. The proof of loss or damage shall describe the matters covered by this Guarantee which constitute the basis of loss or damage and shall state, to the extent possible, the basis of calculating the amount of the loss or damage. If the Company is prejudiced by the failure of the Assured to provide the required proof of loss or damage, the Company's obligation to such assured under the Guarantee shall terminate. In addition, the Assured may reasonably be required to submit to examination under oath by any authorized representative of the Company and shall produce for examination, inspection and copying, at such reasonable times and places as may be designated by any authorized representative of the Company, all records, books, ledgers, checks, correspondence and memoranda, whether bearing a date before or after Date of Guarantee, which reasonably pertain to the loss or damage. Further, if requested by any authorized representative of the Company, the Assured shall grant its permission, in writing, for any authorized representative of the Company to examine, inspect and copy all records, books, ledgers, checks, correspondence and memoranda in the custody or control of a third party, which reasonably pertain to the loss or damage. All information designated as confidential by the Assured provided to the Company pursuant to this Section shall not be disclosed to others unless, in the reasonable judgment of the Company, it is necessary in the administration of the claim. Failure of the Assured to submit for examination under oath, produce other reasonably requested information or grant permission to secure reasonably necessary information from third parties as required in the above paragraph, unless prohibited by law or governmental regulation, shall terminate any liability of the Company under this Guarantee to the Assured for that claim.

6. Options to Pay or Otherwise Settle Claims: Termination of Liability.

In case of a claim under this Guarantee, the Company shall have the following additional options:

(a) To Pay or Tender Payment of the Amount of Liability or to Purchase the Indebtedness.

The Company shall have the option to pay or settle or compromise for or in the name of the Assured any claim which could result in loss to the Assured within the coverage of this Guarantee, or to pay the full amount of this Guarantee or, if this Guarantee is issued for the benefit of a holder of a mortgage or a lienholder, the Company shall have the option to purchase the indebtedness secured by said mortgage or said lien for the amount owing thereon, together with any costs, reasonable attorneys' fees and expenses incurred by the Assured claimant which were authorized by the Company up to the time of purchase.

Such purchase, payment or tender of payment of the full amount of the Guarantee shall terminate all liability of the Company hereunder. In the event after notice of claim has been given to the Company by the Assured the Company offers to purchase said indebtedness, the owner of such indebtedness shall transfer and assign said indebtedness, together with any collateral security, to the Company upon payment of the purchase price.

Upon the exercise by the Company of the option provided for in Paragraph (a) the Company's obligation to the Assured under this Guarantee for the claimed loss or damage, other than to make the payment required in that paragraph, shall terminate, including any obligation to continue the defense or prosecution of any litigation for which the Company has exercised its options under Paragraph 4, and the Guarantee shall be surrendered to the Company for cancellation.

(b) To Pay or Otherwise Settle With Parties Other Than the Assured or With the Assured Claimant.

To pay or otherwise settle with other parties for or in the name of an Assured claimant any claim assured against under this Guarantee, together with any costs, attorneys' fees and expenses incurred by the Assured claimant which were authorized by the Company up to the time of payment and which the Company is obligated to pay.

Upon the exercise by the Company of the option provided for in Paragraph (b) the Company's obligation to the Assured under this Guarantee for the claimed loss or damage, other than to make the payment required in that paragraph, shall terminate, including any obligation to continue the defense or prosecuion of any litigation for which the Company has exercised its options under Paragraph 4.

7. Determination and Extent of Liability.

This Guarantee is a contract of Indemnity against actual monetary loss or damage sustained or incurred by the Assured claimant who has suffered loss or damage by reason of reliance upon the assurances set forth in this Guarantee and only to the extent herein described, and subject to the Exclusions From Coverage of This Guarantee.

The liability of the Company under this Guarantee to the Assured shall not exceed the least of:

(a) the amount of liability stated in Schedule A or in Part 2;

(b) the amount of the unpaid principal indebtedness secured by the mortgage of an Assured mortgagee, as limited or provided under Section 6 of these Conditions and Stipulations or as reduced under Section 9 of these Conditions and Stipulations, at the time the loss or damage assured against by this Guarantee occurs, together with interest thereon; or

(c) the difference between the value of the estate or interest covered hereby as stated herein and the value of the estate or interest subject to any defect, lien or encumbrance assured against by this Guarantee.

8. Limitation of Liability.

(a) If the Company establishes the title, or removes the alleged defect, lien or encumbrance, or cures any other matter assured against by this Guarantee in a reasonably diligent manner by any method, including litigation and the completion of any appeals therefrom, it shall have fully performed its obligations with respect to that matter and shall not be liable for any loss or damage caused thereby.

(b) In the event of any litigation by the Company or with the Company's consent, the Company shall have no liability for loss or damage until there has been a final determination by a court of competent jurisdiction, and disposition of all appeals therefrom, adverse to the title, as stated herein.

(c) The Company shall not be liable for loss or damage to any Assured for liability voluntarily assumed by the Assured in settling any claim or suit without the prior written consent of the Company.

9. Reduction of Liability or Termination of Liability.

All payments under this Guarantee, except payments made for costs, attorneys' fees and expenses pursuant to Paragraph 4 shall reduce the amount of liability pro tanto.

10. Payment of Loss.

(a) No payment shall be made without producing this Guarantee for endorsement of the payment unless the Guarantee has been lost or destroyed, in which case proof of loss or destruction shall be furnished to the satisfaction of the Company.

(b) When liability and the extent of loss or damage has been definitely fixed in accordance with these Conditions and Stipulations, the loss or damage shall be payable within thirty (30) days thereafter.

11. Subrogation Upon Payment or Settlement.

Whenever the Company shall have settled and paid a claim under this Guarantee, all right of subrogation shall vest in the Company unaffected by any act of the Assured claimant.

The Company shall be subrogated to and be entitled to all rights and remedies which the Assured would have had against any person or property in respect to the claim had this Guarantee not been issued. If requested by the Company, the Assured shall transfer to the Company all rights and remedies against any person or property necessary in order to perfect this right of subrogation. The Assured shall permit the Company to sue, compromise or settle in the name of the Assured and to use the name of the Assured in any transaction or litigation involving these rights or remedies.

If a payment on account of a claim does not fully cover the loss of the Assured the Company shall be subrogated to all rights and remedies of the Assured after the Assured shall have recovered its principal, interest, and'costs of collection.

12. Arbitration.

Unless prohibited by applicable law, either the Company or the Assured may demand arbitration pursuant to the Title Insurance Arbitration Rules of the American Arbitration Association. Arbitrable matters may include, but are not limited to, any controversy or claim between the Company and the Assured arising out of or relating to this Guarantee, any service of the Company in connection with its issuance or the breach of a Guarantee provision or other obligation. All arbitrable matters when the Amount of Liability is $1,000,000 or less shall be arbitrated at the option of either the Company or the Assured. All arbitrable matters when the amount of liability is in excess of $1,000,000 shall be arbitrated only when agreed to by both the Company and the Assured. The Rules in effect at Date of Guarantee shall be binding upon the parties. The award may include attorneys' fees only if the laws of the state in which the land is located permits a court to award attorneys' fees to a prevailing party. Judgment upon the award rendered by the Arbitrator(s) may be entered in any court having jurisdiction thereof.

The law of the situs of the land shall apply to an arbitration under the Title Insurance Arbitration Rules.

A copy of the Rules may be obtained from the Company upon request.

13. Liability Limited to This Guarantee; Guarantee Entire Contract.

(a) This Guarantee together with all endorsements, if any, attached hereto by the Company is the entire Guarantee and contract between the Assured and the Company. In interpreting any provision of this Guarantee, this Guarantee shall be construed as a whole.

(b) Any claim of loss or damage, whether or not based on negligence, or any action asserting such claim, shall be restricted to this Guarantee.

(c) No amendment of or endorsement to this Guarantee can be made except by a writing endorsed hereon or attached hereto signed by either the President, a Vice President, the Secretary, an Assistant Secretary, or validating officer or authorized signatory of the Company.

14. Notices, Where Sent.

All notices required to be given the Company and any statement in writing required to be furnished the Company shall include the number of this Guarantee and shall be addressed to the Company at _____.

§ 26A.231 Chain of Title Guarantee

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is the chain of title guarantee form (CLTA Guarantee Form No. 6) approved for use by the California Land Title Association (CLTA) and revised as of June 6, 1992. The form is reprinted from the CLTA Policy & Indorsement Forms Book (Revised 1971), with permission. The instructions in the form are copied from that publication.

A chain of title guarantee may be purchased by any person who wishes to determine the priorities of various recorded instruments. It lists all deeds and other recorded instruments in the chain of title, disclosing the recording date and the names of all parties to each instrument. The guarantee will cover any period of time specified in the guarantee. It may begin with an original Spanish or Mexican land grant or a state or federal patent and continue up to the present date. Alternatively, it may commence with some other date stated in the request. Since charges for chain of title guarantees are based on the number of documents reported, it is common to request that the title company issue a guarantee for a relatively short span of years.

In addition to determining the priority of various instruments, the chain of title guarantee may be useful in disclosing whether a particular instrument is in the chain of title, whether there has been a merger of title, and the nature and type of the interest held by a particular party.

For a general discussion of the characteristics and uses of title guarantees, see §§ 26A.16, 26A.230[1][b].

[b] Contents of Form

The CLTA-recommended chain of title guarantee guarantees the named assured against actual monetary loss or damage, not exceeding the liability amount stated in the guarantee, that the assured may sustain by reason of any incorrectness in the assurances set forth in the guarantee. The assurances are based on the public records which, under the recording laws, impart constructive notice [see § 26A.11 [4]]. However, they relate only to an interest in the specified land which was acquired or reserved by a named person pursuant to a specified instrument (such as a deed). The assurances are that the only matters appearing in those records subsequent to a specified date are those listed in the guarantee.

By its terms, the guarantee does not cover taxes, assessments, and related matters, or instruments, proceedings, or other matters that do not specifically describe the land.

§ 26A.232 Lot Book Guarantee

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is the lot book guarantee (CLTA Guarantee Form No. 12) approved for use by the California Land Title Association (CLTA) and revised as of June 6, 1992. It is reprinted from the CLTA Policy & Indorsement Forms Book (Revised 1971), with permission. The instructions in the form are reproduced verbatim from that publication.

[b] Lot Book Guarantees In General

A lot book guarantee is used to supply and guarantee the accuracy of information relating to the condition of a title as revealed by the title company's "lot books." The "lot books" are title records maintained by the title company in its own "plant" and indexed according to lot or parcel, not according to name. This method of preserving title records contrasts sharply with the grantor and grantee indexes maintained by county recorders, in which instruments are indexed only according to the names of the parties [for a general discussion of lot books and their use in the modern title insurance industry, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW PRACTICE, C. 92, Title Insurance (Matthew Bender)].

The lot book guarantee specifically provides that it is prepared according to the issuing company's property records maintained for the particular lot or parcel and without examination of the company's records maintained and indexed by name. For this reason, it is offered at a lower premium than guarantees prepared from the public records.

For a general discussion of the characteristics and uses of title insurance guarantees, see §§ 26A.16, 26A.230[1][b].

[c] Not Based on Examination of Public Records

A lot book guarantee may not be relied on as a representation that the subject property is free and clear of liens and encumbrances. In one case, the purchaser of property at an execution sale examined a lot book guarantee issued to the attorney for the executing creditor. Relying on the lot book guarantee, the purchaser acquired the property. Later, the purchaser discovered that a deed of trust appearing of record against the subject property was not disclosed in the guarantee. Pointing out that the guarantee explicitly stated that it was based on the title company's lot book records, that the county recorder's grantor-grantee indexes had not been examined, and that the title insurer made no representation as to the state of the official public records, the Court of Appeal held that the purchaser was not entitled to rely on the guarantee as a representation that the property was unclouded and free of encumbrances [Harrison v. Commonwealth Land Title Ins. Co. (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 973, 975, 159 Cal. Rptr. 209] .

§ 26A.233 Property Search Guarantee

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is the property search guarantee form (CLTA Guarantee Form No. 13) approved for use by the California Land Title Association (CLTA) as of June 6, 1992. It is reprinted from the CLTA Policy & Indorsement Forms Book (Revised 1971), with permission. The instructions in the form are reproduced verbatim from that publication.

A property search guarantee (sometimes referred to as a "name run search") begins with the name of a particular person (rather than with a property description or location) and reveals real property owned by that person in a particular county. The guarantee may also include a list of existing mortgages and deeds of trust that stand in the name of a particular person.

For a general discussion of the characteristics and uses of title guarantees, see §§ 26A.16, 26A.230[1][b].

An attorney may find the property search guarantee to be a useful tool in various situations. An attorney representing a judgment creditor or prospective plaintiff may use the property search guarantee to discover property owned by the judgment debtor or prospective defendant. The guarantee may also be used by an attorney representing a decedent's estate or a conservatorship to locate property owned by the decedent or conservatee.

[b] Use In Conjunction With Other Guarantees

If the property search guarantee reveals that property in the county stands in the name of the particular judgment debtor or debtors, the attorney may find it useful to order another more specific or comprehensive guarantee, such as a litigation guarantee [see § 26A.230] or a lot book guarantee [see § 26A.232], to specifically identify the property owned and the nature or extent of the debtor's interest in it.

§ 26A.234 Subdivision Guarantee

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is the form of subdivision guarantee (CLTA Guarantee Form No. 14) approved for use by the California Land Title Association (CLTA) and revised as of April 10, 1975. It is reprinted from the CLTA Policy & Indorsement Forms Book (Revised 1971), with permission.

[b] Purpose of Subdivision Guarantees

Under the Subdivision Map Act [Gov. Code §§ 66410-66499.37], all parties having any record title interest in real property that is to be subdivided must sign and acknowledge a certificate by which they consent to the preparation and recordation of the subdivision map [Gov. Code § 66436]. The certificate must be filed with the map [Gov. Code § 66436]. To assure themselves that all of the necessary signatures are on the certificate, public officials customarily withhold approval of final subdivision maps until appropriate subdivision guarantees have been issued [for a general discussion of the Subdivision Map Act, see the Legal Background to C. 30, Subdivision Regulation].

The CLTA-approved subdivision guarantee is issued in favor of a named county and any city within which the subdivision is located. It provides assurance that, according to the public records which impart constructive notice of matters affecting the title to the subdivision land [for a discussion of constructive notice and title insurance, see § 26A.11[4], [5]], the only parties having any record title interest whose signatures are necessary under the Subdivision Map act are as specified in the guarantee.

For a general discussion of the characteristics and uses of title guarantees, see §§ 26A.16, 26A.230[1][b].

§ 26A.235 Trustee's Sale Guarantee

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is the trustee's sale guarantee form (CLTA Guarantee Form No. 22) approved for use by the California Land Title Association (CLTA) and revised as of August 9, 1994. It is reprinted from the CLTA Policy & Indorsement Forms Book (Revised 1971), with permission. The instructions in the form are reproduced verbatim from that publication.

The trustee's sale guarantee provides important title information relating to property that is subject to foreclosure, either through exercise of a power of sale contained in a deed of trust or by judicial proceedings [for a general discussion of foreclosure, see the Legal Background to Ch. 25D, "Foreclosure"]. Because this information will help to protect the beneficiary against irregularities in the foreclosure sale, it should be known before the foreclosure is initiated.

For a general discussion of the characteristics and uses of title guarantees, see §§ 26A.16, 26A.230[1][b].

[b] Content of Form

Among other information, the CLTA-recommended trustee's sale guarantee includes the names and addresses of persons who have recorded requests for and who are entitled to receive copies of notice of default and sale. The form also discloses the city in which the property is located (or, if the property is not in a city, the judicial district). Finally, it contains a reminder that the sale may be inhibited if the trustor is entitled to the benefits of the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act [50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq.] and that the Federal Tax Lien Act of 1966 [I.R.C. § 6323 et seq.] requires that certain notices be given to the Secretary of the Treasury if a federal tax lien is to be discharged.

§ 26A.250 CLTA Standard Coverage Policy (1990)

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy (1990). It is reprinted from the CLTA Policy & Indorsement Forms Book (Revised 1971), with permission. The instructions in the form are copied verbatim from that publication.

The CLTA Standard Coverage Policy (1990) is the most commonly used title insurance policy in California. It is a "joint protection" policy designed to provide title insurance protection for both owners and non-institutional lenders. Unlike the ALTA Loan Policy [see § 26A.251] and the ALTA Owner's Policy [see § 26A.252], the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy affords protection against title defects, liens, and encumbrances that appear from the public records, but not against defects or other matters that might be determined by inspecting the property or inquiring of those in possession. The ALTA Loan Policy (which is designed to afford title protection to lenders) and the ALTA Owner's Policy (which is designed to afford title protection to landowners) are "extended coverage" policies that afford protection against many off-record as well as on-record risks.

The CLTA Standard Coverage Policy may be used to cover any insurable estate or interest in land. Among others, the interests of lessees, sublessees, secured creditors, and owners of easements or rights of way may be insured under the policy.

For the ALTA Loan Policy, see § 26A.251[2]. For the ALTA Owner's Policy, see § 26A.252[2].

[b] Parties Covered

The general rule is that title insurance protection extends only to those persons and entities who are identified in the policies as the "insured." Accordingly, third parties may not recover on the policy unless they are named in it [see discussion in § 26A.17[10]]. The CLTA Standard Coverage Policy (1990) names the "insured" (who may be the purchaser of the property, a lender on the property, or both the purchaser and the lender), but broadens the definition of "insured" to include those who succeed to the interest of the insured by operation of law (as distinguished from purchase), including heirs, distributees, devisees, survivors, personal representatives, and corporate or fiduciary successors [Conditions and Stipulations, P 1(a)]. The protected persons and entities also include [Conditions and Stipulations, PP 1(a), 2(a), 12(c)]:

- The owner of an indebtedness insured by the secured mortgage or deed of trust and each successor in ownership of that indebtedness (except any successor who acquires the indebtedness as the result of an indemnity contract, a guarantee, a bond, or some other policy of insurance).

- Lenders who acquire an estate or interest in the property through foreclosure, trustee's sale, or conveyance in lieu of foreclosure.

- Any parent or wholly-owned subsidiary of an insured corporation.

- The corporate successors of an insured corporation, providing they have succeeded to the interests of the insured corporation by operation of law and not by purchase.

- Any governmental agency that insures or guarantees the indebtedness secured by an insured mortgage or that acquires all or part of the interest or interest pursuant to a contract of insurance or guaranty.

The policy does not protect any person or entity who purchases the insured property or indebtedness from the insured [Conditions and Stipulations, P 2(b)].

[c] Coverage Period

Coverage is provided as of the date of the policy, and liens created or defects arising after the date of the policy are not covered [Exclusions from Coverage, P 3(c)]. Thus, there is no protection against tax liens arising after the policy date, even though those liens may have priority over previously created deeds of trust. Similarly, the policy does not cover taxes or assessments that are not shown as existing liens by the records of any taxing authority, although the taxes or assessments may later become liens [Schedule B, Exceptions from Coverage, Part I, P 1].

Coverage as of the policy date will continue in force as long as the insured retains an estate or interest in the land or owns an indebtedness secured by a purchase money mortgage given by a purchaser from the insured, or for as long as the insured has liability by reason of covenants of warranty made by the insured in any transfer or conveyance of the insured's estate or interest in the insured property [Conditions and Stipulations, P 2(b)].

[d] Property Covered

The policy covers a specified interest or estate (e.g., a fee, a leasehold, or a remainder interest) in a particularly described tract or parcel of land. As used in the policy, "land" includes the real property described in the policy and any improvements affixed to the property that, by law, constitute real property [Conditions and Stipulations, P 1(f)]. If, however, improvements that the insured believes to be on the insured property are in fact on adjoining property, coverage does not extend to those improvements [Conditions and Stipulations, P 1(f); Walters v. Marler (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 17, 147 Cal. Rptr. 655] .

Specifically excluded from coverage are rights, titles, interests, estates, or easements in land beyond the boundaries of the described property or in abutting streets, roads, avenues, alleys, lanes, ways, or waterways [Conditions and Stipulations, P 1(f)]. Similarly, the policy affords no protection against discrepancies, conflicts in boundary lines, shortages in area, encroachments, or any other facts which a correct survey would disclose and which are not shown by the public records [Schedule B, Exceptions from Coverage, Part I, P 4].

Policy coverage does not extend to adjoining property. Thus, the insurer is not liable for coverage of a tract larger than that described in the policy [Contini v. Western Title Ins. Co. (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 536, 543, 115 Cal. Rptr. 257] , nor for adjoining land created by abandonment of a street [Murray v. Title Ins. & Trust Co. (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 248, 256, 58 Cal. Rptr. 273] . However, coverage may be extended if the property description in the policy is ambiguous. Since ambiguities in insurance policies are generally construed against the insurers [see § 26A.17 [4]], if the policy description can be read in two ways, one of which extends the benefits of the policy to approximately twice as much land as the other, the court will adopt the description that is most favorable to the insured [Lagomarsino v. San Jose etc. Title Ins. Co. (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 455, 464 465, 3 Cal. Rptr. 80] .

[e] Protection Against Record Risks

[i] In General

The policy insures against loss or damage (not exceeding the amount of the insurance set forth in Schedule A) that the insured may sustain by reason of various risks revealed by those public records that impart constructive notice of their contents [see discussion in § 26A.11[4]].

[ii] Vesting

The first "record" risk insured against is loss or damage that the insured may sustain by reason of title being vested other than as stated in Schedule A of the policy [Insuring Clause, P 1]. The vesting clause is critical, since vesting of title in some form other than that shown in the policy may result in a total loss to the insured [see Hall v. San Jose Abstract & Title Ins. Co. (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 421, 429, 342 P.2d 362 ; Yeoman v. Sawyer (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 43, 221 P.2d 225 (titles not vested in joint tenancy as shown in policy)].

[iii] Defects, Liens, or Encumbrances

The policy also insures against defects in, or liens or encumbrances on, the insured's title [Insuring Clause, P 2]. Such matters as recorded mortgages [see Macfarlane v. Faulkner (1934) 1 Cal. App. 2d 722, 723 724, 37 P.2d 161] , abstracts of judgment [Lang v. Klinger (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 987, 993, 110 Cal. Rptr. 532] , tax liens [National H. Co. v. Title I. & T. Co. (1941) 45 Cal. App. 2d 215, 220 222, 113 P.2d 906] , and declarations of homestead [Viotti v. Giomi (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 730, 739, 41 Cal. Rptr. 345] are covered under this clause. However, a recorded notice of default on a senior trust deed listed as an exception in the policy is not a defect in or lien on the title of a junior lienholder and is not covered (Glavinich v. Commonwealth Land Title Ins. Co. (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 263, 269 270, 209 Cal. Rptr. 266] . Although the insurer is required to report the existence of the senior trust deed, it need not report on the status of the senior trust deed. Whether payments on a senior trust deed are current or in default is not usually a matter of record and is customarily ascertained by demanding a beneficiary statement from the senior lienholder [Glavinich v. Commonwealth Land Title Ins. Co. (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 263, 269 270, 209 Cal. Rptr. 266 ; see Civ. Code § 2943 (demand for statement of unpaid balance)]. For a discussion of unrecorded easements, liens, or encumbrances, which are excluded from the coverage of the policy, see [p][iv], below.

[f] Unmarketability

The policy also insures against loss or damage sustained by reason of unmarketability of the insured's title [Insuring Clause, P 3]. For a general discussion of the concept of marketability, see § 26A.11. A claim of unmarketability may not be based on matters specifically excluded from coverage, such as liens, encumbrances, or defects created, suffered, assumed, or agreed to by the insured [Exclusions from Coverage, P 3(a)]; matters not known to the insurer and not recorded in the public records at the date of policy but known to the insured and not disclosed in writing to the insurer before the issuance of the policy [Exclusions from Coverage, P 3(b)]; or matters attaching or created after the date of the policy [Exclusions from Coverage, P 3(d); Safeco Title Ins. Co. v. Moskopoulos (1981) 116 Cal. App. 3d 658, 664, 172 Cal. Rptr. 248] .

[g] Access

The policy also insures against loss or damage resulting from lack of a right of access to and from the land [Insuring Clause, P 4]. This protection, however, does not extend to "landlocked" lots or other parcels that do not abut on physically open streets or highways, or to a right to cross over abutting property to obtain access to a street [Lincoln Sav. & Loan Assn. v. Title Ins. & Trust Co. (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 493, 497, 120 Cal. Rptr. 219 ; see Lincoln Sav. & Loan Assn. v. Riviera Estates Assn. (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 449, 87 Cal. Rptr. 150] . Only the "ordinary rights" of an abutting owner to convenient use of the street and to direct and reasonable ingress to and egress from the abutting land to the street are covered [Lincoln Sav. & Loan Assn. v. Title Ins. & Trust Co. (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 493, 497, 120 Cal. Rptr. 219] .

[h] Invalidity of or Priority over Insured Lien

If the insured is the holder of a mortgage or deed of trust that is insured under the policy, the policy will also cover loss or damage resulting from the invalidity or enforceability of the lien of the insured mortgage or deed of trust, and the priority of any other lien over the lien of the insured mortgage or deed of trust [Insuring Clause, PP 5, 6]. However, if the mortgage or deed of trust is invalid or unenforceable because of the insured's failure at the date of the policy to comply with applicable doing business laws, or because of any violation of usury, consumer credit, or truth-in-lending laws, the policy provides no coverage [Exclusions from Coverage, PP 4, 5].

[i] Invalidity or Unenforceability of Assignment

If the insured is the assignee of a mortgage or deed of trust that is insured under the policy, and if the assignment is shown in Schedule B, the policy will also cover loss or damage resulting from any invalidity or enforceability of the assignment, or any failure of the assignment to vest title to the insured mortgage or deed of trust in the name of the insured free and clear of all liens [Insuring Clause, P 7].

[j] Protection Against Off-Record Risks In General

In addition to protection against risks that are revealed by public records that impart constructive notice, the policy affords important coverage against certain risks that are not revealed in the public records. Because the off-record risks covered by the policy have the potential for defeating or substantially impairing the insured's title, protection against them is one of the most valuable benefits of the policy.

[k] Forgery

An insurer who insures that title will be "vested" as shown in the policy is liable if, because of forgeries in the insured's chain of title, the title is not so vested [Hopkins v. Fresno County A. Co. (1918) 36 Cal. App. 699, 702, 173 P. 106] . Similarly, a policy that insures against any "defect or invalidity" in an insured title covers loss occasioned by the forgery of a document essential to the insured title [California Pac. T. & T. Co. v. MacArthur (1934) 1 Cal. App. 2d 323, 327, 36 P.2d 413] . By insuring that the title is vested as shown in the policy [Insuring Clause, P 1] and that there are no defects in or liens or encumbrances on the title [Insuring Clause, P 2], the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy affords protection against forgery.

While the risk of forgery is remote, a loss from forgery is potentially devastating. If a signature to one of the instruments in the insured's chain of title is forged, the insured title may be entirely defeated [Wutzke v. Bill Reid Painting Service, Inc. (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 36, 43, 198 Cal. Rptr. 418] . A forged document is a nullity and cannot be made the basis for any claim of title; not even a bona fide purchaser for value and without notice may rely on a forged document, as the title of a bona fide purchaser also depends on a good title [Firato v. Tuttle (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 136, 139, 308 P.2d 333] . If a deed is void, it follows that any claim of title flowing from that deed is similarly void [Wutzke v. Bill Reid Painting Service, Inc. (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 36, 44, 198 Cal. Rptr. 418] .

Various factors, including age, mental competency, and marital status may impair the capacity or status of one of the grantors in the insured's chain of title and thereby render a conveyance void. A void conveyance cannot be the foundation of a good title, even under the rules of bona fide purchase [Gibson v. Westoby (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 273, 276 277, 251 P.2d 1003] . Thus, if a conveyance is void, the title may be defective or wholly invalid.

For example, a minor has no power to make a contract relating to real property [Fam. Code § 6701] or to convey real property by deed [Sparks v. Sparks (1950) 101 Cal. App. 2d 129, 137, 225 P.2d 238] . A conveyance by a person who is incompetent in fact, although not judicially adjudged as such, may be rescinded [Civ. Code §§ 38, 39; see Prob. Code §§ 810-812 (evidentiary requirements for showing of incapacity)], while the conveyance of a person duly adjudged to be incompetent is void and passes no title whatever [Gibson v. Westoby (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 273, 276, 251 P.2d 1003] . The general rule is that a married person lacks the capacity to sell or encumber community real property unless his or her spouse joins in the transaction [Fam. Code § 1102(a)]. If real property stands in the name of one spouse alone, however, a lease, contract, mortgage, or deed executed by that spouse to a lessee, purchaser, or encumbrancer, in good faith and without knowledge of the marital relation, is presumed to be valid [Fam. Code § 1102(c)(2)]. The joint execution requirement and other provisions of Family Code Section 1102 do not preclude either spouse from encumbering his or her interest in community real property, as provided in Family Code Section 1102(e), to pay reasonable attorneys' fees in order to retain or maintain legal counsel in a proceeding for dissolution of marriage, for nullity of marriage, or for legal separation [Fam. Code § 1102(e)].

By insuring that the title is vested as shown in the policy [Insuring Clause, P 1] and that there are no defects in or liens or encumbrances on the title [Insuring Clause, P 2], the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy affords protection against lack of capacity or status.

[m] Lack of Delivery

The policy also affords protection against lack of delivery of one of the deeds in the chain of title. Since a grant of real property takes effect only on its delivery by the grantor [Civ. Code § 1054], if one of the instruments in the insured's chain of title was not delivered as required by law, the insured's title may be wholly defective [Hudemann v. Dodson (1932) 215 Cal. 3, 6, 7 P.2d 997 ; Promis v. Duke (1929) 208 Cal. 420, 427, 281 P. 613] . Protection against lack of delivery is guaranteed under the policy's vesting [Insuring Clause, P 1] and defects, liens, and encumbrances [Insuring Clause, P 2] clauses.

[n] Altered or Fraudulently Obtained Deeds

If an insured sustains a loss by reason of an altered or fraudulently obtained deed, the title insurer will be liable [Mutual B.-L. Assn. v. Security T.I. & G. Co. (1936) 14 Cal. App. 2d 225, 230 232, 57 P.2d 1392 ; California Pac. T. & T. Co. v. MacArthur (1934) 1 Cal. App. 2d 323, 325 327, 36 P.2d 413 ; Montgomery v. Bank of America (1948) 85 Cal. App. 2d 559, 563, 193 P.2d 475] . Like a forged document, an altered deed [see Jay v. Dollarhide (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 1001, 1021, 84 Cal. Rptr. 538] or a deed obtained by fraud [see Trout v. Taylor (1934) 220 Cal. 652, 656, 32 P.2d 968] is ineffective to convey any title.

[o] Exclusions

[i] In General

The policy includes a schedule of six types of risks which are excluded from coverage under the policy [see Exclusions from Coverage]. These exclusions are generally for matters that may affect the insured land but that are not shown by the public records [for an explanation of the distinction between "exclusions" and "exceptions," see [p][i], below].

[ii] Laws, Ordinances, and Governmental Regulations

The policy excludes coverage for four classes of laws, ordinances, and regulations. These are laws, ordinances, and regulations that do the following [Exclusions from Coverage, P 1(a)]:

- Restrict, regulate, prohibit, or relate to the occupancy, use, or enjoyment of the land;
- Restrict, regulate, prohibit, or relate to the character, dimensions, or location of any improvement on the land at the time the policy is issued, or thereafter erected on it;
- Restrict, regulate, prohibit, or relate to a separation in ownership or a change in the dimensions or area of the land or any parcel of which the land is or was a part; and
- Relate to environmental protection.

Coverage is also excluded for the effect of any violation of these laws, ordinances, or governmental regulations, except to the extent that a notice of the enforcement of any such law or regulation or a notice of a defect, lien, or encumbrance resulting from a violation or alleged violation affecting the land has been recorded in the public records at the date of the policy [Exclusions from Coverage, P 1(a)].

[iii] Governmental Police Power

The policy excludes coverage for any governmental police power not embraced within the exclusion for laws, ordinances, or governmental regulations [see Exclusions from Coverage, P 1(a) and discussion under [ii], above], except to the extent that a notice of the exercise of the power or a notice of a defect, lien, or encumbrance resulting from a violation or alleged violation affecting the land has been recorded in the public records at the date of the policy [Exclusions from Coverage, P 1(b)].

[iv] Rights of Eminent Domain

Coverage for rights of eminent domain is excluded unless notice of the exercise of the rights has been recorded in the public records at the date of the policy. However, this exclusion does not apply to any taking that has occurred before the date of the policy and that would be binding on the rights of a purchaser for value without knowledge [Exclusions from Coverage, P 2].

[v] Defects Created or Known by the Insured

The policy excludes coverage for defects, liens, encumbrances, and other matters created, suffered, assumed, or agreed to by the insured. This exclusion applies regardless of whether the matter complained of was in the public records at the date of the policy [Exclusions from Coverage P 3(a)]. A defect is not "created" by the insured, however, unless it was intentionally created and the insurer had no reasonable opportunity to discover it [Hansen v. Western Title Ins. Co. (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 531, 535-536, 33 Cal. Rptr. 668] .

The policy also excludes coverage for defects, liens, encumbrances, and other matters that were not known to the company and not recorded in the public records at the date of the policy, but that were known to the insured and not disclosed to the company prior to the date the insured became an insured under the policy [Exclusions from Coverage, P 3(b)]. To fall within the scope of this exclusion, the insured's knowledge of a defect, lien, encumbrance, or other matter must be actual knowledge. Constructive knowledge or notice which may be imputed to an insured by reason of the public records, or any other records that impart constructive notice of matters affecting the land, is not sufficient [Conditions and Stipulations, P 1(e)].

[vi] Defects Resulting in No Loss or Damage

The policy excludes coverage for any defect, lien, encumbrance, adverse claim or other matter that results in no loss or damage to the insured [Exclusions from Coverage, P 3(c)]. This exclusion is consistent with the well-established principle that a title insurance policy is a contract of indemnity and that the insurer's duty to indemnify the insured arises only after the insured has suffered loss or damage covered by the policy [Cale v. Transamerica Title Insurance (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 422, 425-426, 275 Cal. Rptr. 107 ; see Conditions and Stipulations, P 7]. If no loss or damage has been suffered, the insurer has no duty to indemnify the insured [Hawkins v. Oakland Title Ins. & Guar. Co. (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 116, 122-123, 331 P. 2d 742] . For further discussion, see § 26A.17[7].

[vii] Defects Arising After Issuance of Policy

The policy provides no coverage for defects, liens, encumbrances, adverse claims or other matters attaching or created after the date of the policy [Exclusions from Coverage, P 3(d)]. This recognizes the fact that a title insurance policy provides coverage only as of the date of the policy [see [c], above].

[viii] Loss Caused Because Insured Did Not Pay Value

The policy excludes coverage for defects, liens, encumbrances, adverse claims, or other matters resulting in loss or damage which would not have been sustained if the insured had paid value for the insured mortgage or deed of trust, or for the estate or interest insured by the policy [Exclusions from Coverage, P 1(e)]. This exclusion has the effect of limiting the policy's protection to those who are entitled to the protection of the recording laws [see Rooney, Title Insurance: A Primer for Attorneys, 14 Real Prop., Prob. & Tr. J. 608, 615 (1979)]. California recording laws protect only purchasers or encumbrances in good faith and for valuable consideration [Civ. Code P 1214]. For further discussion, see § 26A.11[4].

The policy excludes coverage for certain matters that apply only to an insured mortgage or deed of trust and that arise out of the failure of the insured to comply with laws relating to lending and the business of lending. No coverage is provided for the unenforceability of the lien of an insured mortgage or deed of trust if the unenforceability is due to the insured's failure or inability at the date of the policy to comply with applicable doing business laws of the state in which the land is situated [Exclusions from Coverage, P 4]. Coverage is also excluded if a subsequent owner of the indebtedness is unable or fails to comply with those laws [Exclusions from Coverage, P 4].

The policy also excludes coverage for any invalidity or unenforceability of the lien of the insured mortgage or deed of trust that arises out of the transaction evidenced by the insured mortgage and that is based upon usury or any consumer credit protection or truth in lending law [Exclusions from Coverage, P 5].

[x] Bankruptcy, Insolvency, or Creditors' Rights Laws

The policy excludes coverage for any claim that arises out of the transaction vesting in the insured the estate or interest insured by the policy, or the transaction creating the interest of the insured lender, by reason of the operation of federal bankruptcy, state insolvency, or similar creditors' rights laws [Exclusions from Coverage, P 6].

[p] Exceptions

[i] In General

The policy provides no coverage for matters that are described in the policy as "exceptions from coverage." These are listed in Schedule B. Schedule B is divided into two parts. Part I consists of a list of five types of matters that are always excepted from coverage. Part I provides space for listing additional matters that the insurer elects to except from the coverage of a particular policy. While Part I is a part of the printed policy and does not vary, Part II is tailored to the particular transaction.

Both exclusions and exceptions limit the coverage of a title insurance policy, and the distinction between them is not always clear. An exclusion usually describes a general classification of matters for which the policy provides no coverage, while an exception describes a particular defect, lien, encumbrance, or other claim affecting the insured property that is outside the coverage of the policy. For example, a defect, lien, encumbrance, or adverse claim that results in no loss or damage to the insured claimant is classified as an exclusion, while an unpaid tax lien against the insured property would be classified as an exception [Exclusions from Coverage, P 3(c); Schedule B, Exceptions from Coverage, Part II].

[ii] Taxes or Assessments

Part I of Schedule B excepts taxes or assessments that are not shown as existing liens by the public records or by the records of any taxing authority that levies taxes or assessments on real property [Schedule B, Exceptions from Coverage, Part I, P 1]. It also excepts proceedings by a public agency that may result in taxes or assessments, and any notices of such proceedings, whether or not they are shown by the public records or by the records of any such agency [Schedule B, Exceptions from Coverage, Part I, P 1].

The effect of this exception is to prohibit coverage for taxes and assessments that may be assessed against the insured land in the future but, at the time the policy is issued, have not yet become liens against that land. This exception does not affect taxes or assessments that have attached to the land and that are shown on the public records or on the records of the taxing agency at the date of the policy. Taxes and assessments of this kind must be reported on the policy, and failure to do so will subject the insurer to liability under the general terms of the insuring clause [Insuring Clause, P 2].

[iii] Unrecorded Facts That Could Be Learned by Inspecting Land

Part I of Schedule B excepts from coverage any facts, rights, interests, or claims that are not shown by the public records but that could be ascertained by an inspection of the land, or that may be asserted by persons in possession of the land [Schedule B, Exceptions from Coverage, Part I, P 2]. This exception includes rights that have been obtained by adverse possession or other prescriptive rights [Bothin v. The California Title Ins. Co. (1908) 153 Cal. 718, 722-724, 96 P. 500] .

[iv] Unrecorded Easements, Liens, and Encumbrances

Part I of Schedule B excepts from coverage any easements, liens, or encumbrances, or claims thereof, that are not shown by the public records [Schedule B, Exceptions from Coverage, Part I, P 3].

[v] Conflicts in Boundary Lines and Shortages in Area

Part I of Schedule B excepts from coverage any discrepancies, conflicts in boundary lines, shortage in area, or encroachments, or any other facts that a correct survey would disclose and that are not shown by the public records [Schedule B, Exceptions from Coverage, Part I, P 4].

[vi] Unpatented Mining Claims

Part I of Schedule B excepts from coverage unpatented mining claims, reservations or exceptions in patents or in acts authorizing the issuance of patents, and water rights, water claims, or title to water. The policy provides no coverage for these matters, whether or not they fall within the terms of some other exception of the policy and whether or not they are shown by the public records [Schedule B, Exceptions from Coverage, Part I, P 5].

[q] Notices and Claims

The policy prescribes certain notices that the insured must give to the insurer whenever any litigation is commenced alleging a title defect, lien, encumbrance, or other insured matter, or whenever any claim adverse to the insured estate, interest, or lien is asserted [Conditions and Stipulations, PP 3,4]. It also requires that a sworn proof of loss or damage be furnished within 90 days after the insured learns of facts giving rise to a claim under the policy [Conditions and Stipulations, P 5].

The insurer has the option to pay or otherwise settle any claim against the insured, or to terminate all liability by paying or tendering payment of the amount of the insurance provided for in the policy, together with costs, attorneys' fees, and expenses incurred up to the time of the payment or tender [Conditions and Stipulations, P 6(a)(i)].

The insurer is required to defend any litigation against the insured arising out of an insured defect, lien, or encumbrance [Conditions and Stipulations P 4(a)] and, upon payment of a claim, is subrogated to the rights of the insured [Conditions and Stipulations, P 12].

For a general discussion of title insurance liability and claims, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW PRACTICE, Volume 4, Chapter 92, Title Insurance (Matthew Bender). For discussion of actions against title insurers, and forms for complaints, cross-complaints, and answers suitable for use in actions against title insurers, see CALIFORNIA FORMS OF PLEADING AND PRACTICE, Ch. 548, Title Insurance (Matthew Bender).

The CLTA Standard Coverage policy provides only basic coverage. Indorsements providing additional coverage for particular situations are available. Since indorsements are frequently attached to standard policies, the attorney should examine both the policy and indorsement to determine the extent of the protection afforded the assured. For available CLTA-approved indorsements, see §§ 26A.260; 26A.266.

EXCLUSIONS FROM COVERAGE

The following matters are expressly excluded from the coverage of this policy and the Company will not pay loss or damage, costs, attorneys' fees or expenses which arise by reason of:

1.

(a) Any law, ordinance or governmental regulation (including but not limited to building or zoning laws, ordinances, or regulations) restricting, regulating, prohibiting or relating to (i) the occupancy, use, or enjoyment of the land; (ii) the character, dimensions or location of any improvement now or hereafter erected on the land; (iii) a separation in ownership or a change in the dimensions or area of the land or any parcel of which the land is or was a part; or (iv) environmental protection, or the effect of any violation of these laws, ordinances or governmental regulations, except to the extent that a notice of the enforcement thereof or a notice of a defect, lien or encumbrance resulting from a violation or alleged violation affecting the land has been recorded in the public records at Date of Policy.

(b) Any governmental police power not excluded by (a) above, except to the extent that a notice of the exercise thereof or a notice of a defect, lien or encumbrance resulting from a violation or alleged violation affecting the land has been recorded in the public records at Date of Policy.

2. Rights of eminent domain unless notice of the exercise thereof has been recorded in the public records at Date of Policy, but not excluding from coverage any taking which has occurred prior to Date of Policy which would be binding on the rights of a purchaser for value without knowledge.

3. Defects, liens, encumbrances, adverse claims or other matters:

(a) whether or not recorded in the public records at Date of Policy, but created, suffered, assumed or agreed to by the insured claimant;

(b) not known to the Company, not recorded in the public records at Date of Policy, but known to the insured claimant and not disclosed in writing to the Company by the insured claimant prior to the date the insured claimant became an insured under this policy;

(c) resulting in no loss or damage to the insured claimant;

(d) attaching or created subsequent to Date of Policy; or

(e) resulting in loss or damage which would not have been sustained if the insured claimant had paid value for the insured mortgage or for the estate or interest insured by this policy.

4. Unenforceability of the lien of the insured mortgage because of the inability or failure of the insured at Date of Policy, or the inability or failure of any subsequent owner of the indebtedness, to comply with the applicable doing business laws of the state in which the land is situated.

5. Invalidity or unenforceability of the lien of the insured mortgage, or claim thereof, which arises out of the transaction evidenced by the insured mortgage and is based upon usury or any consumer credit protection or truth in lending law.

6. Any claim, which arises out of the transaction vesting in the insured the estate or interest insured by this policy or the transaction creating the interest of the insured lender, by reason of the operation of federal bankruptcy, state insolvency or similar creditors' rights laws.

CONDITIONS AND STIPULATIONS

1. Definition of Terms.

The following terms when used in this policy mean:

(a) "insured": the insured named in Schedule A, and, subject to any rights or defenses the Company would have had against the named insured, those who succeed to the interest of the named insured by operation of law as distinguished from purchase including, but not limited to, heirs, distributees, devisees, survivors, personal representatives, next of kin, or corporate or fiduciary successors. The term "insured" also includes

(i) the owner of the indebtedness secured by the insured mortgage and each successor in ownership of the indebtedness except a successor who is an obligor under the provisions of Section 12(c) of these Conditions and Stipulations (reserving, however, all rights and defenses as to any successor that the Company would have had against any predecessor insured, unless the successor acquired the indebtedness as a purchaser for value without knowledge of the asserted defect, lien, encumbrance, adverse claim or other matter insured against by this policy as affecting title to the estate or interest in the land);

(ii) any governmental agency or governmental instrumentality which is an insurer or guarantor under an insurance contract or guaranty insuring or guaranteeing the indebtedness secured by the insured mortgage, or any part thereof, whether named as an insured herein or not;

(iii) the parties designated in Section 2(a) of these Conditions and Stipulations.

(b) "insured claimant": an insured claiming loss or damage.

(c) "insured lender": the owner of an insured mortgage.

(d) "insured mortgage": a mortgage shown in Schedule B, the owner of which is named as an insured in Schedule A.

(e) "knowledge" or "known": actual knowledge, not constructive knowledge or notice which may be imputed to an insured by reason of the public records as defined in this policy or any other records which impart constructive notice of matters affecting the land.

(f) "land": the land described or referred to in Schedule [A] [C], and improvements affixed thereto which by law constitute real property. The term "land" does not include any property beyond the lines of the area described or referred to in Schedule [A] [C], nor any right, title, interest, estate or easement in abutting streets, roads, avenues, alleys, lanes, ways or waterways, but nothing herein shall modify or limit the extent to which a right of access to and from the land is insured by this policy.

(g) "mortgage: mortgage, deed of trust, trust deed, or other security instrument.

(h) "public records": records established under state statutes at Date of Policy for the purpose of imparting constructive notice of matters relating to real property to purchasers for value and without knowledge.

(i) "unmarketability of the title": an alleged or apparent matter affecting the title to the land, not excluded or excerpted from coverage, which would entitle a purchaser of the estate or interest described in Schedule A or the insured mortgage to be released from the obligation to purchase by virtue of a contractual condition requiring the delivery of marketable title.

2. Continuation of Insurance.

(a) After Acquisition of Title by Insured Lender. If this policy insures the owner of the indebtedness secured by the insured mortgage, the coverage of this policy shall continue in force as of Date of Policy in favor of (i) such insured lender who acquires all of any part of the estate or interest in the land by foreclosure, trustee's sale, conveyance in lieu of foreclosure, or other legal manner which discharges the lien of the insured mortgage; (ii) a transferee of the estate or interest so acquired from an insured corporation, provided the transferee is the parent or wholly-owned subsidiary of the insured corporation, and their corporate successors by operation of law and not by purchase, subject to any rights or defenses the Company may have against any predecessor insureds; and (iii) any governmental agency or governmental instrumentality which acquires all or any part of the estate or interest pursuant to a contract of insurance or guaranty insuring or guaranteeing the indebtedness secured by the insured mortgage.

(b) After Conveyance of Title by an Insured. The coverage of this policy shall continue in force as of Date of Policy in favor of an insured only so long as the insured retains an estate or interest in the land; or holds an indebtedness secured by a purchase money mortgage given by a purchaser from the insured, or only so long as the insured shall have liability by reason of covenants of warranty made by the insured in any transfer or conveyance of the estate or interest. This policy shall not continue in force in favor of any purchaser from an insured of either (i) an estate or interest in the land, or (ii) an indebtedness secured by a purchase money mortgage given to an insured.

(c) Amount of Insurance. The amount of insurance after the acquisition or after the conveyance by an insured lender shall in neither event exceed the least of:

(i) The amount of insurance stated in Schedule A;

(ii) The amount of the principal of the indebtedness secured by the insured mortgage as of Date of Policy, interest thereon, expenses of foreclosure, amounts advanced pursuant to the insured mortgage to assure compliance with laws or to protect the lien of the insured mortgage prior to the time of acquisition of the estate or interest in the land and secured thereby and reasonable amounts expended to prevent deterioration of improvements, but reduced by the amount of all payments made; or

(iii) The amount paid by any governmental agency or governmental instrumentality, if the agency or the instrumentality is the insured claimant, in the acquisition of the estate or interest in satisfaction of its insurance contract or guaranty.

3. Notice of Claim To Be Given by Insured Claimant.

An insured shall notify the Company promptly in writing (i) in case of any litigation as set forth in 4(a) below, (ii) in case knowledge shall come to an insured hereunder of any claim of title or interest which is adverse to the title to the estate or interest or the lien of the insured mortgage, as insured, and which might cause loss or damage for which the Company may be liable by virtue of this policy, or (iii) if title to the estate or interest or the lien of the insured mortgage, as insured, is rejected as unmarketable. If prompt notice shall not be given to the Company, then as to that insured all liability of the Company shall terminate with regard to the matter or matters for which prompt notice is required; provided, however, that failure to notify the Company shall in no case prejudice the rights of any insured under this policy unless the Company shall be prejudiced by the failure and then only to the extent of the prejudice.

4. Defense and Prosecution of Actions; Duty of Insured Claimant to Cooperate.

(a) Upon written request by an insured and subject to the options contained in Section 6 of these Conditions and Stipulations, the Company, at its own cost and without unreasonable delay, shall provide for the defense of such insured in litigation in which any third party asserts a claim adverse to the title or interest as insured, but only as to those stated causes of action alleging a defect, lien or encumbrance or other matter insured against by this policy. The Company shall have the right to select counsel of its choice (subject to the right of such insured to object for reasonable cause) to represent the insured as to those stated causes of action and shall not be liable for and will not pay the fees of any other counsel. The Company will not pay any fees, costs or expenses incurred by an insured in the defense of those causes of action which allege matters not insured against by this policy.

(b) The Company shall have the right, at its own cost, to institute and prosecute any action or proceeding or to do any other act which in its opinion may be necessary or desirable to establish the title to the estate or interest or the lien of the insured mortgage, as insured, or to prevent or reduce loss or damage to an insured. The Company may take any appropriate action under the terms of this policy, whether or not it shall be liable hereunder, and shall not thereby concede liability or waive any provision of this policy. If the Company shall exercise its rights under this paragraph, it shall do so diligently.

(c) Whenever the Company shall have brought an action or interposed a defense as required or permitted by the provisions of this policy, the Company may pursue any litigation to final determination by a court of competent jurisdiction and expressly reserves the right, in its sole discretion, to appeal from any adverse judgment or order.

(d) In all cases where this policy permits or requires the Company to prosecute or provide for the defense of any action or proceeding, an insured shall secure to the Company the right to so prosecute or provide defense in the action or proceeding, and all appeals therein, and permit the Company to use, at its option, the name of such insured for this purpose. Whenever requested by the Company, an insured, at the Company's expense, shall give the Company all reasonable aid (i) in any action or proceeding, securing evidence, obtaining witnesses, prosecuting or defending the action or other proceeding, or effecting settlement, and (ii) in any other lawful act which in the opinion of the Company may be necessary or desirable to establish the title to the estate or interest or the lien of the insured mortgage, as insured. If the Company is prejudiced by the failure of an insured to furnish the required cooperation, the Company's obligations to such insured under the policy shall terminate, including any liability or obligation to defend, prosecute, or continue any litigation, with regard to the matter or matters requiring such cooperation.

5. Proof of Loss or Damage.

In addition to and after the notices required under Section 3 of these Conditions and Stipulations have been provided the Company, a proof of loss or damage signed and sworn to by each insured claimant shall be furnished to the Company within 90 days after the insured claimant shall ascertain the facts giving rise to the loss or damage. The proof of loss or damage shall describe the defect in, or lien or encumbrance on the title, or other matter insured against by this policy which constitutes the basis of loss or damage and shall state, to the extent possible, the basis of calculating the amount of the loss or damage. If the Company is prejudiced by the failure of an insured claimant to provide the required proof of loss or damage, the Company's obligations to such insured under the policy shall terminate, including any liability or obligation to defend, prosecute, or continue any litigation with regard to the matter or matters requiring such proof of loss or damage.

In addition, an insured claimant may reasonably be required to submit to examination under oath by any authorized representative of the Company and shall produce for examination, inspection and copying, at such reasonable times and places as may be designated by any authorized representative of the Company, all records, books, ledgers, checks, correspondence and memoranda, whether bearing a date before or after Date of Policy, which reasonably pertain to the loss or damage. Further, if requested by any authorized representative of the Company, the insured claimant shall grant its permission, in writing, for any authorized representative of the Company to examine, inspect and copy all records, books, ledgers, checks, correspondence and memoranda in the custody or control of a third party, which reasonably pertain to the loss or damage. All information designated as confidential by an insured claimant provided to the Company pursuant to this Section shall not be disclosed to others unless, in the reasonable judgment of the Company, it is necessary in the administration of the claim. Failure of an insured claimant to submit for examination under oath, produce other reasonably requested information or grant permission to secure reasonably necessary information from third parties as required in this paragraph, unless prohibited by law or governmental regulation, shall terminate any liability of the Company under this policy as to that insured for that claim.

6. Options to Pay or Otherwise Settle Claims; Termination of Liability.

In case of a claim under this policy, the Company shall have the following additional options:

(a) To Pay or Tender Payment of the Amount of Insurance or to Purchase the Indebtedness.

(i) to pay or tender payment of the amount of insurance under this policy together with any costs, attorneys' fees and expenses incurred by the insured claimant, which were authorized by the Company, up to the time of payment or tender of payment and which the Company is obligated to pay; or

(ii) in case loss or damage is claimed under this policy by the owner of the indebtedness secured by the insured mortgage, to purchase the indebtedness secured by the insured mortgage for the amount owning thereon together with any costs, attorneys' fees and expenses incurred by the insured claimant which were authorized by the Company up to the time of purchase and which the Company is obligated to pay.

If the Company offers to purchase the indebtedness as herein provided, the owner of the indebtedness shall transfer, assign, and convey the indebtedness and the insured mortgage, together with any collateral security, to the Company upon payment therefor.

Upon the exercise by the Company of the option provided for in paragraph a(i), all liability and obligations to the insured under this policy, other than to make the payment required in that paragraph, shall terminate, including any liability or obligation to defend, prosecute, or continue any litigation, and the policy shall be surrendered to the Company for cancellation.

Upon the exercise by the Company of the option provided for in paragraph a(ii) the Company's obligation to an insured lender under this policy for the claimed loss or damage, other than the payment required to be made, shall terminate, including any liability or obligation to defend, prosecute or continue any litigation.

(b) To Pay or Otherwise Settle With Parties Other than the Insured or With the Insured Claimant.

(i) to pay or otherwise settle with other parties for or in the name of an insured claimant any claim insured against under this policy, together with any costs, attorneys' fees and expenses incurred by the insured claimant which were authorized by the Company up to the time of payment and which the Company is obligated to pay: or

(ii) to pay or otherwise settle with the insured claimant the loss or damage provided for under this policy, together with any costs, attorneys' fees and expenses incurred by the insured claimant which were authorized by the Company up to the time of payment and which the Company is obligated to pay.

Upon the exercise by the Company of either of the options provided for in paragraph b(i) or b(ii), the Company's obligations to the insured under this policy for the claimed loss or damage, other than the payments required to be made, shall terminate, including any liability or obligation to defend, prosecute or continue any litigation.

7. Determination and Extent of Liability.

This policy is a contract of indemnity against actual monetary loss or damage sustained or incurred by the insured claimant who has suffered loss or damage by reason of matters insured against by this policy and only to the extent herein described.

(a) The Liability of the Company under this policy to an insured lender shall not exceed the least of:

(i) the Amount of Insurance stated in Schedule A, or, if applicable, the amount of insurance as defined in Section 2(c) of these Conditions and Stipulations;

(ii) the amount of the unpaid principal indebtedness secured by the insured mortgage as limited or provided under Section 8 of these Conditions and Stipulations or as reduced under Section 9 of these Conditions and Stipulations, at the time the loss or damage insured against by this policy occurs, together with interest thereon; or

(iii) the difference between the value of the insured estate or interest as insured and the value of the insured estate or interest subject to the defect, lien or encumbrance insured against by this policy.

(b) In the event the insured lender has acquired the estate or interest in the manner described in Section 2(a) of these Conditions and Stipulations or has conveyed the title, then the liability of the Company shall continue as set forth in Section 7(a) of these Conditions and Stipulations.

(c) The liability of the Company under this policy to an insured owner of the estate or interest in the land described in Schedule A shall not exceed the least of:

(i) the Amount of Insurance stated in Schedule A; or

(ii) the difference between the value of the insured estate or interest as insured and the value of the insured estate or interest subject to the defect, lien or encumbrance insured against by this policy.

(d) The Company will pay only those costs, attorneys' fees and expenses incurred in accordance with Section 4 of these Conditions and Stipulations.

8. Limitation of Liability.

(a) If the Company establishes the title, or removes the alleged defect, lien or encumbrance, or cures the lack of a right of access to or from the land, or cures the claim of unmarketability of title, or otherwise establishes the lien of the insured mortgage, all as insured, in a reasonably diligent manner by any method, including litigation and the completion of any appeals therefrom, it shall have fully performed its obligations with respect to that matter and shall not be liable for any loss or damage caused thereby.

(b) In the event of any litigation, including litigation by the Company or with the Company's consent, the Company shall have no liability for loss or damage until there has been a final determination by a court of competent jurisdiction, and disposition of all appeals therefrom, adverse to the title, or, if applicable, to the lien of the insured mortgage, as insured.

(c) The Company shall not be liable for loss or damage to any insured for liability voluntarily assumed by the insured in settling any claim or suit without the prior written consent of the Company.

(d) The Company shall not be liable to an insured lender for: (i) any indebtedness created subsequent to Date of Policy except for advances made to protect the lien of the insured mortgage and secured thereby and reasonable amounts expended to prevent deterioration of improvements; or (ii) construction loan advances made subsequent to Date of Policy, except construction loan advances made subsequent to Date of Policy for the purpose of financing in whole or in part the construction of an improvement to the land which at Date of Policy were secured by the insured mortgage and which the insured was and continued to be obligated to advance at and after Date of Policy.

9. Reduction of Insurance; Reduction or Termination of Liability.

(a) All payments under this policy, except payments made for costs, attorneys' fees and expenses, shall reduce the amount of insurance pro tanto. However, as to an insured lender, any payments made prior to the acquisition of title to the estate or interest as provided in Section 2(a) of these Conditions and Stipulations shall not reduce pro tanto the amount of insurance afforded under this policy as to any such insured, except to the extent that the payments reduce the amount of the indebtedness secured by the insured mortgage.

(b) Payment in part by any person of the principal of the indebtedness, or any other obligation secured by the insured mortgage, or any voluntary partial satisfaction or release of the insured mortgage, to the extent of the payment, satisfaction or release, shall reduce the amount of insurance pro tanto. The amount of insurance may thereafter be increased by accruing interest and advances made to protect the lien of the insured mortgage and secured thereby, with interest thereon, provided in no event shall the amount of insurance be greater than the Amount of Insurance stated in Schedule A.

(c) Payment in full by any person or the voluntary satisfaction or release of the insured mortgage shall terminate all liability of the Company to an insured lender except as provided in Section 2(a) of these Conditions and Stipulations.

10. Liability Noncumulative.

It is expressly understood that the amount of insurance under this policy shall be reduced by any amount the Company may pay under any policy insuring a mortgage to which exception is taken in Schedule B or to which the insured has agreed, assumed, or taken subject, or which is hereafter executed by an insured and which is a charge or lien on the estate or interest described or referred to in Schedule A, and the amount so paid shall be deemed a payment under this policy to the insured owner.

The provisions of this Section shall not apply to an insured lender, unless such insured acquires title to said estate or interest in satisfaction of the indebtedness secured by an insured mortgage.

11. Payment of Loss.

(a) No payment shall be made without producing this policy for endorsement of the payment unless the policy has been lost or destroyed, in which case proof of loss or destruction shall be furnished to the satisfaction of the Company.

(b) When liability and the extent of loss or damage has been definitely fixed in accordance with these Conditions and Stipulations, the loss or damage shall be payable within 30 days thereafter.

12. Subrogation Upon Payment or Settlement.

(a) The Company's Right of Subrogation.

Whenever the Company shall have settled and paid a claim under this policy, all right of subrogation shall vest in the Company unaffected by any act of the insured claimant.

The Company shall be subrogated to and be entitled to all rights and remedies which the insured claimant would have had against any person or property in respect to the claim had this policy not been issued. If requested by the Company, the insured claimant shall transfer to the Company all rights and remedies against any person or property necessary in order to perfect this right of subrogation. The insured claimant shall permit the Company to sue, compromise or settle in the name of the insured claimant and to use the name of the insured claimant in any transaction or litigation involving these rights or remedies.

If a payment on account of a claim does not fully cover the loss of the insured claimant, the Company shall be subrogated (i) as to an insured owner, to all rights and remedies in the proportion which the Company's payment bears to the whole amount of the loss; and (ii) as to an insured lender, to all rights and remedies of the insured claimant after the insured claimant shall have recovered its principal, interest, and costs of collection.

If loss should result from any act of the insured claimant, as stated above, that act shall not void this policy, but the Company, in that event, shall be required to pay only that part of any losses insured against by this policy which shall exceed the amount, if any, lost to the Company by reason of the impairment by the insured claimant of the Company's right of subrogation.

(b) The Insured's Rights and Limitations.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, the owner of the indebtedness secured by an insured mortgage, provided the priority of the lien of the insured mortgage or its enforceability is not affected, may release or substitute the personal liability of any debtor or guarantor, or extend or otherwise modify the terms of payment, or release a portion of the estate or interest from the lien of the insured mortgage, or release any collateral security for the indebtedness.

When the permitted acts of the insured claimant occur and the insured has knowledge of any claim of title or interest adverse to the title to the estate or interest or the priority or enforceability of the lien of an insured mortgage, as insured, the Company shall be required to pay only that part of any losses insured against by this policy which shall exceed the amount, if any, lost to the Company by reason of the impairment by the insured claimant of the Company's right of subrogation.

(c) The Company's Rights Against Non-insured Obligors.

The Company's right of subrogation against non-insured obligors shall exist and shall include, without limitation, the rights of the insured to indemnities, guaranties, other policies of insurance or bonds, notwithstanding any terms or conditions contained in those instruments which provide for subrogation rights by reason of this policy.

The Company's right of subrogation shall not be avoided by acquisition of an insured mortgage by an obligor (except an obligor described in Section 1(a)(ii) of these Conditions and Stipulations) who acquires the insured mortgage as a result of an indemnity, guarantee, other policy of insurance, or bond and the obligor will not be an insured under this policy, notwithstanding Section 1(a)(i) of these Conditions and Stipulations.

13. Arbitration.

Unless prohibited by applicable law, either the Company or the insured may demand arbitration pursuant to the Title Insurance Arbitration Rules of the American Arbitration Association. Arbitrable matters may include, but are not limited to, any controversy or claim between the Company and the insured arising out of or relating to this policy, any service of the Company in connection with its issuance or the breach of a policy provision or other obligation. All arbitrable matters when the Amount of Insurance is $1,000,000 or less shall be arbitrated at the option of either the Company or the insured. All arbitrable matters when the Amount of Insurance is in excess of $1,000,000 shall be arbitrated only when agreed to by both the Company and the insured. Arbitration pursuant to this policy and under the Rules in effect on the date the demand for arbitration is made or, at the option of the insured, the Rules in effect at Date of Policy shall be binding upon the parties. The award may include attorneys' fees only if the laws of the state in which the land is located permit a court to award attorneys' fees to a prevailing party. Judgment upon the award rendered by the Arbitrator(s) may be entered in any court having jurisdiction thereof.

The law of the situs of the land shall apply to an arbitration under the Title Insurance Arbitration Rules.

A copy of the Rules may be obtained from the Company upon request.

14. Liability Limited to This Policy; Policy Entire Contract.

(a) This policy together with all endorsements, if any, attached hereto by the Company is the entire policy and contract between the insured and the Company. In interpreting any provision of this policy, this policy shall be construed as a whole.

(b) Any claim of loss or damage, whether or not based on negligence, and which arises out of the status of the lien of the insured mortgage or of the title to the estate or interest covered hereby or by any action asserting such claim, shall be restricted to this policy.

(c) No amendment of or endorsement to this policy can be made except by a writing endorsed hereon or attached hereto signed by either the President, a Vice President, the Secretary, an Assistant Secretary, or validating officer or authorized signatory of the Company.

15. Severability.

In the event any provision of the policy is held invalid or unenforceable under applicable law, the policy shall be deemed not to include that provision and all other provisions shall remain in full force and effect.

16. Notices, Where Sent.

All notices required to be given the Company and any statement in writing required to be furnished the Company shall include the number of this policy and shall be addressed to the Company at [fill in].

PART IV. FORMS
E. Policies

11-26A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26A.251

§ 26A.251 ALTA Loan Policy (10-17-92)

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is the ALTA Loan Policy (10-17-92). It is reprinted from the CLTA Policy & Indorsement Forms Book (Revised 1971), with permission. The instructions in the form are copied verbatim from that publication.

The ALTA Loan Policy (10-17-92) is one of two widely used "extended coverage" policies designed by the American Land Title Association (ALTA) and recommended for use by the CLTA. The other is the ALTA Owner's Policy (10-17-92) [see § 26A.252]. The loan policy (this form) is designed for the protection of lenders, while the owner's policy affords similar protection to landowners.

The ALTA Loan Policy, when issued without certain optional exceptions [see discussion in [g], below], affords title insurance protection against many off-record risks that are excluded from coverage under the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy (1990) [see § 26A.250]. When the ALTA policy is issued in this form, the insurer is in effect assuming responsibility for inspecting and in some cases surveying the insured property. Because the ALTA Loan Policy, when so issued, is based on inspection of the land as well as on examination of the public records, it provides valuable coverage for lenders who make loans on the security of real estate located outside of their home states. Therefore, prospective lenders who cannot conveniently visit the land may find the ALTA Loan Policy useful or even essential. Because the ALTA policy can be issued to provide valuable off-record protection not afforded by the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy, many institutional lenders insist that borrowers obtain an ALTA Loan Policy naming the borrowers as insured before agreeing to make a real estate loan. Because coverage under the ALTA Loan Policy can be broader than that afforded by the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy (1990), the premiums charged for it are higher and the duties undertaken by the insurer more extensive.

[b] Parties Covered

The ALTA Loan Policy is commonly procured by an institutional lender, who is named in Schedule A as the "insured."

However, the policy definition of "insured" is broad enough to extend coverage to other persons and entities as well. For example, successors to ownership of the insured mortgage (except successors who are "noninsured obligors" [see Conditions and Stipulations, P 12(c)]) are covered [Conditions and Stipulations, P 1(a)(i)], as are governmental agencies or instrumentalities that insure or guarantee the payment of the insured mortgage [Conditions and Stipulations, P 1(a)(ii)]. If there is a foreclosure on the insured mortgage (or if the lender acquires the land by conveyance in lieu of foreclosure), coverage continues in favor of the insured lender even after the foreclosure or conveyance [Conditions and Stipulations, PP 1(a)(iii), 2(a)].

A title insurance policy is a contract between an insurer and an insured, and third parties have no rights under the contract unless they come within the policy definition of "insured" [Walters v. Marler (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 1, 33 34, 147 Cal. Rptr. 655 ; see discussion in § 26A.17[10]].

[c] Time of Coverage

The policy provides coverage as of the date of the policy, which is set forth in Schedule A [Insuring Clause]. Coverage will continue as of the date of the policy as long as the insured retains an estate or interest in the land, holds a purchase money mortgage or deed of trust given by a purchaser from the insured, or has liability by reason of covenants of warranty made by the insured in any transaction or conveyance of the insured estate or interest [Conditions and Stipulations, P 2(b)].

Coverage will not continue in favor of anyone who purchases from the insured (a) an estate or interest in the land or (b) an indebtedness secured by a purchase money mortgage given to the insured [Conditions and Stipulations, P 2(b)].

[d] Property Insured

Like the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy [see § 26A.250], the ALTA Loan policy insures a specified interest or estate in a specifically described tract or parcel of land. The policy definition of "land" includes the land described in the policy and any improvements affixed to the land that by law constitute real property [Conditions and Stipulations, P 1(d); see Civ. Code § 660 ("fixture" defined)]. The definition does not include any property beyond the lines of the property described in the policy or any right, title, interest, estate, or easement in abutting streets, roads, avenues, alleys, lanes, ways, or waterways [Conditions and Stipulations, P 1(d)].

[e] Risks Insured Against

The policy insures against loss or damage (not exceeding the amount of the insurance specified in Schedule A) that the insured may sustain or incur by reason of any of various specified risks. These include such risks as:

- Title being vested other than as stated in Schedule A [Insuring Clause, P 1].
- Defects in or liens or encumbrances on the insured title [Insuring Clause, P 2].
- Unmarketability of the insured title [Insuring Clause, P 3].
- Lack of a right of access to and from the land [Insuring Clause, P 4].
- Invalidity or unenforceability of the lien of the insured mortgage or deed of trust [Insuring Clause, P 5], except if the invalidity or unenforceability is based on usury or any consumer credit protection or truth in lending law [Exclusions from Coverage, P 5].
- The priority of any lien or encumbrance over the lien of the insured mortgage or deed of trust [Insuring Clause, P 6].

- Lack of priority of the lien of the insured mortgage over any statutory lien for services, labor, or material arising from improvements or works contracted for or commenced before the date of the policy, or commenced or contracted for after the date of the policy if the insured advanced funds (or was obligated to advance funds) for the work or improvement before the date of the policy [Insuring Clause, P 7].

- Any assessments for street improvements under construction or completed as of the date of the policy that have priority over the insured mortgage or deed of trust [Insuring Clause, P 8].

[f] Exclusions

[i] In General

Some of the exclusions listed in the ALTA Loan Policy (10-17-92) are identical to exclusions listed in the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy (1990). These are:

- The exclusions for laws, ordinances, and governmental regulations [Exclusions from Coverage, P 1(a)].

- Governmental police power [Exclusions from Coverage, P 1(b).

- Rights of eminent domain [Exclusions from Coverage, P 2].

- Defects created or known by the insured [Exclusions from Coverage, P 3(a)].

- Defects known to the insured but not to the insurer [Exclusions from Coverage, P 3(b)].

- Defects resulting in no loss or damage [Exclusions from Coverage, P 3(c)].

- Defects arising after the issuance of the policy [Exclusions from Coverage, P 3(d)].

- Loss suffered because the insured did not pay value [Exclusions from Coverage, P 3(e)].

- Noncompliance with doing business and creditor protection laws [Exclusions from Coverage, P 4].

- Violations of usury or truth-in-lending laws [Exclusions from Coverage, P 5].

[ii] Bankruptcy, Insolvency, or Creditors' Rights Laws

Like the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy (1990), the ALTA Loan Policy (10-17-92) excludes coverage for any claim arising out of the operation of federal bankruptcy, state insolvency, or similar creditors' rights laws, but only if (1) the claim is based on the transaction creating the interest of the insured mortgagee being deemed a fraudulent conveyance or fraudulent transfer, (2) the subordination of the interest of the insured mortgagee as a result of the application of the doctrine of equitable subordination, or (3) the transaction creating the interest of the insured mortgagee being deemed a preferential transfer, except when the preferential transfer results from the failure to timely record the instrument of transfer or the failure of the recordation to impart notice to a purchaser for value or a judgment or lien creditor [Exclusions from Coverage, P 7].

[iii] Mechanics' Liens

The ALTA Loan Policy (10-17-92) contains one exclusion that is not found in the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy (1990). This is for certain mechanics' liens for work contracted for and commenced after the policy is issued and not financed by proceeds of the insured mortgage or deed of trust that the insured has advanced or is obligated to advance at the date of policy [Exclusions from Coverage, P 6].

[g] Exceptions

[i] In General

One of the most important differences between the ALTA Loan Policy and the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy is the way in which the two policies treat exceptions [for discussion of the distinction between exclusions and exceptions, see § 26A.250[o][i]]. The CLTA Standard Coverage Policy lists five standard exceptions [for discussion of these exceptions, see § 26A.250[o][ii]]. These exceptions, which are listed in Part I of Schedule B of the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy, are matters that do not appear in the public records and that can be ascertained only by inspecting or surveying the property or by making inquiries of persons in possession.

The ALTA Loan Policy does not routinely list these standard exceptions, although it gives the insurer the option of listing them [see Schedule B, Exceptions from Coverage, Part I]. When the policy is issued without these exceptions, it provides valuable coverage that is not available under the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy. When the insurer elects to list the exceptions, however, the policy affords little more protection than the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy.

[ii] Particular Exceptions

Like the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy, the ALTA Loan Policy provides space for listing particular exceptions [Schedule B, Exceptions from Coverage, Part II]. These exceptions will vary from policy to policy, depending on what defects, encumbrances, liens, and other matters are discovered in the course of searching the title.

[h] Notice, Proof of Loss, and Examination

The policy requires the insured to give the insurer prompt written notice whenever litigation is commenced involving a claim adverse to the insured title or lien, and whenever the insured obtains knowledge of any claim that might cause loss or damage for which the insurer would be liable [Conditions and Stipulations, P 3]. Written notice must also be given whenever the insured title or lien is rejected as unmarketable [for a general discussion of marketable title in the context of title insurance, see § 26A.11]. If the insured fails to give the required notice, and if the insurer is prejudiced by the failure, then all liability of the insurer for matters as to which the notice is required will terminate [Conditions and Stipulations, P 3].

In addition to the written notice, the insured is required to furnish written and sworn proof of loss within 90 days after ascertaining the facts giving rise to the loss or damage [Conditions and Stipulations, P 5]. The proof of loss or damage must describe the defect, lien, or encumbrance and the basis of calculating the amount of the loss or damage. The insurer's liability under the policy will terminate if proof of loss is not given as required and if the failure to give proof of loss prejudices the insurer [Conditions and Stipulations, P 5].

The insurer also may require the insurer to submit to an examination under oath [Conditions and Stipulations, P 5], but the request for an examination must be reasonable [Conditions and Stipulations, P 5]. Further, the insurer may demand that the insured authorize third parties to show records, books, ledgers, checks, correspondence, and memoranda that are in the custody or control of the third parties and that reasonably pertain to the claimed loss or damage. However, the insured need not give the required permission if it would be prohibited by law or governmental regulation; and, upon demand by the insured, the insurer is bound to protect the confidentiality of any materials in the custody or control of third parties [Conditions and Stipulations, P 5].

[i] Litigation

[i] Insurer's Duty to Defend

The insurer is obligated to pay costs, attorneys' fees, and expenses incurred in defense of the insured title or lien, as insured [Insuring Clause], and, upon written request, to defend the insured in any litigation in which any third party asserts a claim adverse to the title or interest as insured [Conditions and Stipulations, P 4(a)]. The duty to provide a defense extends only to matters for which the insurer is also required to indemnify the insured against loss or damage [Insuring Clause; Conditions and Stipulations, P 4(a)]. Thus, there is no duty to provide a defense for any claim or action that does not allege some defect, lien, encumbrance, or other matter insured against by the policy [Conditions and Stipulations, P 4(a)]. The insurer has the right to select counsel to represent the insured and is not liable for the fees of any other counsel [Conditions and Stipulations, P 4(a)]. However, the insured has the right to object to a particular attorney for "reasonable cause" [Conditions and Stipulations, P 4(a)].

[ii] Insurer's Right to Commence Litigation

At its option, the insurer may institute and prosecute any action or proceeding that it deems necessary or desirable to establish the title to the insured estate, interest, or lien [Conditions and Stipulations, P 4(b)]. By taking any such action, however, the insurer does not concede liability or waive any provision of the policy [Conditions and Stipulations, P 4(b)].

[iii] Insured's Duty of Cooperation

The insured has a broad obligation of cooperation in all matters related to litigation. The insured must permit the insurer to use its name in litigation [Conditions and Stipulations, P 4(d)]. When requested, the insured must help to secure evidence, obtain witnesses, effect settlements, and do any other lawful acts that the insurer deems necessary or desirable [Conditions and Stipulations, P 4(d)]. The failure of the insured to cooperate will terminate the insurer's obligation with regard to any matter if the failure prejudices the insurer [Conditions and Stipulations, P 4(d)].

[iv] Settlement

Further, the insurer has the option to pay or otherwise settle any claim against the insured, or to pay or tender the amount of the insurance provided for in the policy together with costs, attorneys' fees, and expenses incurred up to the time of the payment or tender [Conditions and Stipulations, P 6].

[j] Arbitration

This policy contains an arbitration clause [Conditions and Stipulations, P 13]. The clause provides for arbitration of claims or controversies between the insurer and the insured arising out of or relating to the policy or any service of the insurer in connection with the issuance of the policy, the breach of a policy provision, or any obligation under the policy [Conditions and Stipulations, P 13]. Arbitration is mandatory for any claim when the amount of insurance is $1,000,000 or less and either party demands arbitration. Arbitration is mandatory when the amount of insurance is over $1,000,000 only when both the insurer and the insured agree to arbitration. Arbitration is conducted according to the Title Insurance Arbitration Rules of the American Arbitration Association, and judgment may be entered on the arbitrator's award [Conditions and Stipulations, P 13].

For further discussion of arbitration under title insurance policies, see § 26A.17[11].

(a) created, suffered, assumed or agreed to by the insured claimant;

(c) resulting in no loss or damage to the insured claimant;

(d) attaching or created subsequent to Date of Policy (except to the extent that this policy insures the priority of the lien of the insured mortgage over any statutory lien for services, labor or material or to the extent insurance is afforded herein as to assessments for street improvements under construction or completed at Date of Policy); or

(e) resulting in loss or damage which would not have been sustained if the insured claimant had paid value for the insured mortgage.

7. Any claim, which arises out of the transaction creating the interest of the mortgagee insured by this policy, by reason of the operation of federal bankruptcy, state insolvency, or similar creditors' rights laws, that is based on:

(i) the transaction creating the interest of the insured mortgagee being deemed a fraudulent conveyance or fraudulent transfer; or

(ii) the subordination of the interest of the insured mortgagee as a result of the application of the doctrine of equitable subordination; or

(iii) the transaction creating the interest of the insured mortgagee being deemed a preferential transfer except where the preferential transfer results from the failure:

EXCEPTIONS FROM COVERAGE

This policy does not insure against loss or damage (and the Company will not pay costs, attorneys' fees or expenses) which arise by reason of:

PART I

[POLICY MAY INCLUDE THE FOLLOWING GENERAL EXCEPTIONS IF SO DESIRED BY ISSUING COMPANY]

1. Taxes or assessments which are not shown as existing liens by the records of any taxing authority that levies taxes or assessments on real property or by the public records. Proceedings by a public agency which may result in taxes or assessments, or notices of such proceedings, whether or not shown by the records of such agency or by the public records.

2. Any facts, rights, interests or claims which are not shown by the public records but which could be ascertained by an inspection of the land or by making inquiry of persons in possession thereof.

3. Easements, liens or encumbrances, or claims thereof, which are not shown by the public records.

5. (a) Unpatented mining claims; (b) reservations or exceptions in patents or in Acts authorizing the issuance thereof; (c) water rights, claims or title to water, whether or not the matters excepted under (a), (b) or (c) are shown by the public records.]

[VARIABLE EXCEPTIONS SUCH AS TAXES, EASEMENTS, CC & Rs, ETC.]

Note:
If there are matters which affect the title to the estate or interest in the land described in Schedule [A] [C], but which are subordinate to the lien of the insured mortgage, Part II of Schedule B must be added, or Part I of Schedule B must contain the following statement:

"Matters which affect the title to the estate or interest, but which are subordinate to the lien of the insured mortgage"

PART II

In addition to the matters set forth in Part I of this Schedule, the title to the estate or interest in the land described or referred to in Schedule [A] [C] is subject to the following matters, if any be shown, but the Company insures that these matters are subordinate to the lien or charge of the insured mortgage upon the estate or interest:

CONDITIONS AND STIPULATIONS

1. DEFINITION OF TERMS.

The following terms when used in this policy mean:

(a) "insured": the insured named in Schedule A. The term "insured" also includes

(i) the owner of the indebtedness secured by the insured mortgage and each successor in ownership of the indebtedness except a successor who is an obligor under the provisions of Section 12(c) of these Conditions and Stipulations (reserving, however, all rights and defenses as to any successor that the Company would have had against any predecessor insured, unless the successor acquired the indebtedness as a purchaser for value without knowledge of the asserted defect, lien, encumbrance, adverse claim or other matter insured against by this policy as affecting title to the estate or interest in the land);

(ii) any governmental agency or governmental instrumentality which is an insurer or guarantor under an insurance contract or guaranty insuring or guaranteeing the indebtedness secured by the insured mortgage, or any part thereof, whether named as an insured herein or not;

(iii) the parties designated in Section 2(a) of these Conditions and Stipulations.

(b) 'insured claimant": an insured claiming loss or damage.

(c) "knowledge" or "known": actual knowledge, not constructive knowledge or notice which may be imputed to an insured by reason of the public records as defined in this policy or any other records which impart constructive notice of matters affecting the land.

(d) "land": the land described or referred to in Schedule [A] [C], and improvements affixed thereto which by law constitute real property. The term "land" does not include any property beyond the lines of the area described or referred to in Schedule [A] [C], nor any right, title, interest, estate or easement in abutting streets, roads, avenues, alleys, lanes, ways or waterways, but nothing herein shall modify or limit the extent to which a right of access to and from the land is insured by this policy.

(e) "mortgage": mortgage, deed of trust, trust deed, or other security instrument.

(f) "public records": records established under state statutes at Date of Policy for the purpose of imparting constructive notice of matters relating to real property to purchasers for value and without knowledge. With respect to Section 1(a)(iv) of the Exclusions From Coverage, "public records" shall also include environmental protection liens filed in the records of the clerk of the United States district court for the district in which the land is located.

(g) "unmarketability of the title": an alleged or apparent matter affecting the title to the land, not excluded or excepted from coverage, which would entitle a purchaser of the estate or interest described in Schedule A or the insured mortgage to be released from the obligation to purchase by virtue of a contractual condition requiring the delivery of marketable title.

2. CONTINUATION OF INSURANCE.

(a) After Acquisition of Title. The coverage of this policy shall continue in force as of Date of Policy in favor of (i) an insured who acquires all or any part of the estate or interest in the land by foreclosure, trustee's sale, conveyance in lieu of foreclosure, or other legal manner which discharges the lien of the insured mortgage; (ii) a transferee of the estate or interest so acquired from an insured corporation, provided the transferee is the parent or wholly-owned subsidiary of the insured corporation, and their corporate successors by operation of law and not by purchase, subject to any rights or defenses the Company may have against any predecessor insureds; and (iii) any governmental agency or governmental instrumentality which acquires all or any part of the estate or interest pursuant to a contract of insurance or guaranty insuring or guaranteeing the indebtedness secured by the insured mortgage.

(b) After Conveyance of Title. The coverage of this policy shall continue in force as of Date of Policy in favor of an insured only so long as the insured retains an estate or interest in the land, or holds an indebtedness secured by a purchase money mortgage given by a purchaser from the insured, or only so long as the insured shall have liability by reason of covenants of warranty made by the insured in any transfer or conveyance of the estate or interest. This policy shall not continue in force in favor of any purchaser from the insured of either (i) an estate or interest in the land, or (ii) an indebtedness secured by a purchase money mortgage given to the insured.

(c) Amount of Insurance. The amount of insurance after the acquisition or after the conveyance shall in neither event exceed the least of:

(i) the Amount of Insurance stated in Schedule A;

(ii) the amount of the principal of the indebtedness secured by the insured mortgage as of Date of Policy, interest thereon, expenses of foreclosure, amounts advanced pursuant to the insured mortgage to assure compliance with laws or to protect the lien of the insured mortgage prior to the time of acquisition of the estate or interest in the land and secured thereby and reasonable amounts expended to prevent deterioration of improvements, but reduced by the amount of all payments made; or

(iii) the amount paid by any governmental agency or governmental instrumentality, if the agency or instrumentality is the insured claimant, in the acquisition of the estate or interest in satisfaction of its insurance contract or guaranty.

3. NOTICE OF CLAIM TO BE GIVEN BY INSURED CLAIMANT.

The insured shall notify the Company promptly in writing (i) in case of any litigation as set forth in Section 4(a) below, (ii) in case knowledge shall come to an insured hereunder of any claim of title or interest which is adverse to the title to the estate or interest or the lien of the insured mortgage, as insured, and which might cause loss or damage for which the Company may be liable by virtue of this policy, or (iii) if title to the estate or interest or the lien of the insured mortgage, as insured, is rejected as unmarketable. If prompt notice shall not be given to the Company, then as to the insured all liability of the Company shall terminate with regard to the matter or matters for which prompt notice is required; provided, however, that failure to notify the Company shall in no case prejudice the rights of any insured under this policy unless the Company shall be prejudiced by the failure and then only to the extent of the prejudice.

4. DEFENSE AND PROSECUTION OF ACTIONS; DUTY OF INSURED CLAIMANT TO COOPERATE.

(a) Upon written request by the insured and subject to the options contained in Section 6 of these Conditions and Stipulations, the Company, at its own cost and without unreasonable delay, shall provide for the defense of an insured in litigation in which any third party asserts a claim adverse to the title or interest as insured, but only as to those stated causes of action alleging a defect, lien or encumbrance or other matter insured against by this policy. The Company shall have the right to select counsel of its choice (subject to the right of the insured to object for reasonable cause) to represent the insured as to those stated causes of action and shall not be liable for and will not pay the fees of any other counsel. The Company will not pay any fees, costs or expenses incurred by the insured in the defense of those causes of action which allege matters not insured against by this policy.

(b) The Company shall have the right, at its own cost, to institute and prosecute any action or proceeding or to do any other act which in its opinion may be necessary or desirable to establish the title to the estate or interest or the lien of the insured mortgage, as insured, or to prevent or reduce loss or damage to the insured. The Company may take any appropriate action under the terms of this policy, whether or not it shall be liable hereunder, and shall not thereby concede liability or waive any provision of this policy. If the Company shall exercise its rights under this paragraph, it shall do so diligently.

(c) Whenever the Company shall have brought an action or interposed a defense as required or permitted by the provisions of this policy, the Company may pursue any litigation to final determination by a court of competent jurisdiction and expressly reserves the right, in its sole discretion, to appeal from any adverse judgment or order.

(d) In all cases where this policy permits or requires the Company to prosecute or provide for the defense of any action or proceeding, the insured shall secure to the Company the right to so prosecute or provide defense in the action or proceeding, and all appeals therein, and permit the Company to use, at its option, the name of the insured for this purpose. Whenever requested by the Company, the insured, at the Company's expense, shall give the Company all reasonable aid (i) in any action or proceeding, securing evidence, obtaining witnesses, prosecuting or defending the action or proceeding, or effecting settlement, and (ii) in any other lawful act which in the opinion of the Company may be necessary or desirable to establish the title to the estate or interest or the lien of the insured mortgage, as insured. If the Company is prejudiced by the failure of the insured to furnish the required cooperation, the Company's obligations to the insured under this policy shall terminate, including any liability or obligation to defend, prosecute, or continue any litigation, with regard to the matter or matters requiring such cooperation.

5. PROOF OF LOSS OR DAMAGE.

In addition to and after the notices required under Section 3 of these Conditions and Stipulations have been provided the Company, a proof of loss or damage signed and sworn to by the insured claimant shall be furnished to the Company within 90 days after the insured claimant shall ascertain the facts giving rise to the loss or damage. The proof of loss or damage shall describe the defect in, or lien or encumbrance on the title, or other matter insured against by this policy which constitutes the basis of loss or damage and shall state, to the extent possible, the basis of calculating the amount of the loss or damage. If the Company is prejudiced by the failure of the insured claimant to provide the required proof of loss or damage, the Company's obligations to the insured under the policy shall terminate, including any liability or obligation to defend, prosecute, or continue any litigation, with regard to the matter or matters requiring such proof of loss or damage.

In addition, the insured claimant may reasonably be required to submit to examination under oath by any authorized representative of the Company and shall produce for examination, inspection and copying, at such reasonable times and places as may be designated by any authorized representative of the Company, all records, books, ledgers, checks, correspondence and memoranda, whether bearing a date before or after Date of Policy, which reasonably pertain to the loss or damage. Further, if requested by any authorized representative of the Company, the insured claimant shall grant its permission, in writing, for any authorized representative of the Company to examine, inspect and copy all records, books, ledgers, checks, correspondence and memoranda in the custody or control of a third party, which reasonably pertain to the loss or damage. All information designated as confidential by the insured claimant provided to the Company pursuant to this Section shall not be disclosed to others unless, in the reasonable judgment of the Company, it is necessary in the administration of the claim. Failure of the insured claimant to submit for examination under oath, produce other reasonably requested information or grant permission to secure reasonably necessary information from third parties as required in this paragraph, unless prohibited by law or governmental regulation, shall terminate any liability of the Company under this policy as to that claim.

6. OPTIONS TO PAY OR OTHERWISE SETTLE CLAIMS; TERMINATION OF LIABILITY.

In case of a claim under this policy, the Company shall have the following additional options:

(a) To Pay or Tender Payment of the Amount of Insurance or to Purchase the Indebtedness.

(i) to pay or tender payment of the amount of insurance under this policy together with any costs, attorneys' fees and expenses incurred by the insured claimant, which were authorized by the Company, up to the time of payment or tender of payment and which the Company is obligated to pay; or

(ii) to purchase the indebtedness secured by the insured mortgage for the amount owing thereon together with any costs, attorneys' fees and expenses incurred by the insured claimant which were authorized by the Company up to the time of purchase and which the Company is obligated to pay.

If the Company offers to purchase the indebtedness as herein provided, the owner of the indebtedness shall transfer, assign, and convey the indebtedness and the insured mortgage, together with any collateral security, to the Company upon payment therefor.

Upon the exercise by the Company of either of the options provided for in paragraphs a(i) or (ii), all liability and obligations to the insured under this policy, other than to make the payment required in those paragraphs, shall terminate, including any liability or obligation to defend, prosecute, or continue any litigation, and the policy shall be surrendered to the Company for cancellation.

(b) To Pay or Otherwise Settle With Parties Other than the Insured or With the Insured Claimant.

(i) to pay or otherwise settle with other parties for or in the name of an insured claimant any claim insured against under this policy, together with any costs, attorneys' fees and expenses incurred by the insured claimant which were authorized by the Company up to the time of payment and which the Company is obligated to pay; or

(ii) to pay or otherwise settle with the insured claimant the loss or damage provided for under this policy, together with any costs, attorneys' fees and expenses incurred by the insured claimant which were authorized by the Company up to the time of payment and which the Company is obligated to pay.

Upon the exercise by the Company of either of the options provided for in paragraphs b(i) or (ii), the Company's obligations to the insured under this policy for the claimed loss or damage, other than the payments required to be made, shall terminate, including any liability or obligation to defend, prosecute or continue any litigation.

7. DETERMINATION AND EXTENT OF LIABILITY.

This policy is a contract of indemnity against actual monetary loss or damage sustained or incurred by the insured claimant who has suffered loss or damage by reason of matters insured against by this policy and only to the extent herein described.

(a) The liability of the Company under this policy shall not exceed the least of:

(i) the Amount of Insurance stated in Schedule A, or, if applicable, the amount of insurance as defined in Section 2(c) of these Conditions and Stipulations;

(ii) the amount of the unpaid principal indebtedness secured by the insured mortgage as limited or provided under Section 8 of these Conditions and Stipulations or as reduced under Section 9 of these Conditions and Stipulations, at the time the loss or damage insured against by this policy occurs, together with interest thereon; or

(iii) the difference between the value of the insured estate or interest as insured and the value of the insured estate or interest subject to the defect, lien or encumbrance insured against by this policy.

(b) In the event the insured has acquired the estate or interest in the manner described in Section 2(a) of these Conditions and Stipulations or has conveyed the title, then the liability of the Company shall continue as set forth in Section 7(a) of these Conditions and Stipulations.

(c) The Company will pay only those costs, attorneys' fees and expenses incurred in accordance with Section 4 of these Conditions and Stipulations.

8. LIMITATION OF LIABILITY.

(a) If the Company establishes the title, or removes the alleged defect, lien or encumbrance, or cures the lack of a right of access to or from the land, or cures the claim of unmarketability of title, or otherwise establishes the lien of the insured mortgage, all as insured, in a reasonably diligent manner by any method, including litigation and the completion of any appeals therefrom, it shall have fully performed its obligations with respect to that matter and shall not be liable for any loss or damage caused thereby.

(b) In the event of any litigation, including litigation by the Company or with the Company's consent, the Company shall have no liability for loss or damage until there has been a final determination by a court of competent jurisdiction, and disposition of all appeals therefrom, adverse to the title or to the lien of the insured mortgage, as insured.

(c) The Company shall not be liable for loss or damage to any insured for liability voluntarily assumed by the insured in settling any claim or suit without the prior written consent of the Company.

(d) The Company shall not be liable for: (i) any indebtedness created subsequent to Date of Policy except for advances made to protect the lien of the insured mortgage and secured thereby and reasonable amounts expended to prevent deterioration of improvements; or (ii) construction loan advances made subsequent to Date of Policy, except construction loan advances made subsequent to Date of Policy for the purpose of financing in whole or in part the construction of an improvement to the land which at Date of Policy were secured by the insured mortgage and which the insured was and continued to be obligated to advance at and after Date of Policy.

9. REDUCTION OF INSURANCE; REDUCTION OR TERMINATION OF LIABILITY.

(a) All payments under this policy, except payments made for costs, attorneys' fees and expenses, shall reduce the amount of the insurance pro tanto. However, any payments made prior to the acquisition of title to the estate or interest as provided in Section 2(a) of these Conditions and Stipulations shall not reduce pro tanto the amount of the insurance afforded under this policy except to the extent that the payments reduce the amount of the indebtedness secured by the insured mortgage.

(b) Payment in part by any person of the principal of the indebtedness, or any other obligation secured by the insured mortgage, or any voluntary partial satisfaction or release of the insured mortgage, to the extent of the payment, satisfaction or release, shall reduce the amount of insurance pro tanto. The amount of insurance may thereafter be increased by accruing interest and advances made to protect the lien of the insured mortgage and secured thereby, with interest thereon, provided in no event shall the amount of insurance be greater than the Amount of Insurance stated in Schedule A.

(c) Payment in full by any person or the voluntary satisfaction or release of the insured mortgage shall terminate all liability of the Company except as provided in Section 2(a) of these Conditions and Stipulations.

10. LIABILITY NONCUMULATIVE.

If the insured acquires title to the estate or interest in satisfaction of the indebtedness secured by the insured mortgage, or any part thereof, it is expressly understood that the amount of insurance under this policy shall be reduced by any amount the Company may pay under any policy insuring a mortgage to which exception is taken in Schedule B or to which the insured has agreed, assumed, or taken subject, or which is hereafter executed by an insured and which is a charge or lien on the estate or interest described or referred to in Schedule A, and the amount so paid shall be deemed a payment under this policy.

11. PAYMENT OF LOSS.

(a) No payment shall be made without producing this policy for endorsement of the payment unless the policy has been lost or destroyed, in which case proof of loss or destruction shall be furnished to the satisfaction of the Company.

(b) When liability and the extent of loss or damage has been definitely fixed in accordance with these Conditions and Stipulations, the loss or damage shall be payable within 30 days thereafter.

l2. SUBROGATION UPON PAYMENT OR SETTLEMENT.

Whenever the Company shall have settled and paid a claim under this policy, all right of subrogation shall vest in the Company unaffected by any act of the insured claimant.

The Company shall be subrogated to and be entitled to all rights and remedies which the insured claimant would have had against any person or property in respect to the claim had this policy not been issued. If requested by the Company, the insured claimant shall transfer to the Company all rights and remedies against any person or property necessary in order to perfect this right of subrogation. The insured claimant shall permit the Company to sue, compromise or settle in the name of the insured claimant and to use the name of the insured claimant in any transaction or litigation involving these rights or remedies.

If a payment on account of a claim does not fully cover the loss of the insured claimant, the Company shall be subrogated to all rights and remedies of the insured claimant after the insured claimant shall have recovered its principal, interest, and costs of collection.

(b) The Insured's Rights and Limitations.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, the owner of the indebtedness secured by the insured mortgage, provided the priority of the lien of the insured mortgage or its enforceability is not affected, may release or substitute the personal liability of any debtor or guarantor, or extend or otherwise modify the terms of payment, or release a portion of the estate or interest from the lien of the insured mortgage, or release any collateral security for the indebtedness.

When the permitted acts of the insured claimant occur and the insured has knowledge of any claim of title or interest adverse to the title to the estate or interest or the priority or enforceability of the lien of the insured mortgage, as insured, the Company shall be required to pay only that part of any losses insured against by this policy which shall exceed the amount, if any, lost to the Company by reason of the impairment by the insured claimant of the Company's right of subrogation.

(c) The Company's Rights Against Non-insured Obligors.

The Company's right of subrogation against non-insured obligors shall exist and shall include, without limitation, the rights of the insured to indemnities, guaranties, other policies of insurance or bonds, notwithstanding any terms or conditions contained in those instruments which provide for subrogation rights by reason of this policy.

The Company's right of subrogation shall not be avoided by acquisition of the insured mortgage by an obligor (except an obligor described in Section 1(a)(ii) of these Conditions and Stipulations) who acquires the insured mortgage as a result of an indemnity, guarantee, other policy of insurance, or bond and the obligor will not be an insured under this policy, notwithstanding Section 1(a)(i) of these Conditions and Stipulations.

13. ARBITRATION.

Unless prohibited by applicable law, either the Company or the insured may demand arbitration pursuant to the Title Insurance Arbitration Rules of the American Arbitration Association. Arbitrable matters may include, but are not limited to, any controversy or claim between the Company and the insured arising out of or relating to this policy, any service of the Company in connection with its issuance or the breach of a policy provision or other obligation. All arbitrable matters when the Amount of Insurance is $1,000,000 or less shall be arbitrated at the option of either the Company or the insured. All arbitrable matters when the Amount of Insurance is in excess of $1,000,000 shall be arbitrated only when agreed to by both the Company and the insured. Arbitration pursuant to this policy and under the Rules in effect on the date the demand for arbitration is made or, at the option of the insured, the Rules in effect at Date of Policy shall be binding upon the parties. The award may include attorneys' fees only if the laws of the state in which the land is located permit a court to award attorneys' fees to a prevailing party. Judgment upon the award rendered by the Arbitrator(s) may be entered in any court having jurisdiction thereof.

The law of the situs of the land shall apply to an arbitration under the Title Insurance Arbitration Rules.

A copy of the Rules may be obtained from the Company upon request.

14. LIABILITY LIMITED TO THIS POLICY; POLICY ENTIRE CONTRACT.

(a) This policy together with all endorsements, if any, attached hereto by the Company is the entire policy and contract between the insured and the Company. In interpreting any provision of this policy, this policy shall be construed as a whole.

(b) Any claim of loss or damage, whether or not based on negligence, and which arises out of the status of the lien of the insured mortgage or of the title to the estate or interest covered hereby or by any action asserting such claim, shall be restricted to this policy.

(c) No amendment of or endorsement to this policy can be made except by a writing endorsed hereon or attached hereto signed by either the President, a Vice President, the Secretary, an Assistant Secretary, or validating officer or authorized signatory of the Company.

15. SEVERABILITY.

In the event any provision of this policy is held invalid or unenforceable under applicable law, the policy shall be deemed not to include that provision and all other provisions shall remain in full force and effect.

16. NOTICES, WHERE SENT.

All notices required to be given the Company and any statement in writing required to be furnished the Company shall include the number of this policy and shall be addressed to the company at: _____.

PART IV. FORMS
E. Policies

11-26A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26A.252

§ 26A.252 ALTA Owner's Policy (10-17-92)

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is the ALTA Owner's Policy (10-17-92). It is reprinted from the CLTA Policy & Indorsement Forms Book (Revised 1971), with permission. The instructions in the form are reproduced verbatim from that publication.

The ALTA Owner's Policy is one of two widely used "extended coverage" policies designed by the American Land Title Association (ALTA) and recommended for use by the CLTA. The other is the ALTA Loan Policy [see § 26A.251]. The owner's policy provides landowners with protection comparable to that provided to lenders under the loan policy. The principal difference between this policy and the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy [see § 26A.250] is that the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy protects the insured against title defects, liens, and encumbrances that appear from the public records, while this policy may be issued to afford protection against many "off-record," as well as "on-record," title risks [see [b], below; see also § 26A.251[1]].

[b] Covered Risks

The insuring clause of the ALTA Owner's Policy provides coverage against four broad classes of risks:

- Improper vesting of the insured title [Insuring Clause, P 1].
- Defects in or liens or encumbrances on the insured title [Insuring Clause, P 2].
- Unmarketability of the insured title [Insuring Clause, P 3].
- Lack of access to and from the insured land [Insuring Clause, P 4].

[c] Exclusions

[i] In General

The ALTA Owner's Policy lists some of the same exclusions that are found in the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy (1990) and the ALTA Loan Policy (10-17-92). Exclusions that are found in all three of these policies are the exclusions for:

- Laws, ordinances, and governmental regulations [Exclusions from Coverage, P 1(a)].
- Governmental police power [Exclusions from Coverage, P 1(b)].
- Rights of eminent domain [Exclusions from Coverage, P 2].
- Defects created or known by the insured [Exclusions from Coverage, P 3(a)].
- Defects known to the insured but not to the insurer [Exclusions from Coverage, P 3(b)].
- Defects resulting in no loss or damage [Exclusions from Coverage, P 3(c)].
- Defects arising after the issuance of the policy [Exclusions from Coverage, P 3(d)].
- Loss suffered because the insured did not pay value [Exclusions from Coverage, P 3(e)].

The ALTA Owner's Policy does not include two exclusions that are found in the ALTA Loan Policy (10-17-92) and that are suitable only for policies insuring lenders. These are:

- The exclusion for noncompliance with doing business and creditor protection laws [Exclusions from Coverage, P 4].
- The exclusion for violations of usury or truth-in-lending laws [Exclusions from Coverage, P 5].

[ii] Bankruptcy, Insolvency, or Creditors' Rights Laws

Like the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy (1990) and the ALTA Loan Policy (10-17-92), the ALTA Owner's Policy excludes coverage for any claim arising out of the operation of federal bankruptcy, state insolvency, or similar creditors' rights laws. However, the exclusion is applicable only if the claim is based on (1) the transaction creating the interest of the insured mortgagee being deemed a fraudulent conveyance or (2) the transaction creating the insured estate or interest being deemed a preferential transfer, except where the preferential transfer results from the failure to timely record the instrument of transfer or the failure of the recordation to impart notice to a purchaser for value or a judgment or lien creditor [Exclusions from Coverage, P 7].

[i] In General

One of the most important differences between the ALTA Owner's Policy (10-17-92) and the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy (1990) is the way in which the two policies treat exceptions [for distinction between exclusions and exceptions, see § 26A.250 [p][i]]. Like the ALTA Loan Policy (10-17-92), the ALTA Owner's Policy (10-17-92) gives the insurer the option of listing the standard exceptions that are always included in the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy (1990) [for discussion of these exceptions, see § 26A.250[1][o][ii]]. These exceptions, which are listed in Part I of Schedule B of the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy, are matters that do not appear in the public records and that can be ascertained only by inspecting or surveying the property or by making inquiries of persons in possession. When the ALTA Owner's Policy (10-17-92) is issued without these standard exceptions, it provides valuable coverage that is not available under the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy. When the insurer elects to list the exceptions, however, the policy affords little more protection than the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy.

[ii] Particular Exceptions

Like the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy (1990) and the ALTA Loan Policy (10-17-92), the ALTA Loan Policy provides space for listing particular exceptions [Schedule B, Exceptions from Coverage, Part II]. These exceptions will vary from policy to policy, depending on what defects, encumbrances, liens, and other matters are discovered in the course of searching the title.

This policy contains a coinsurance clause [see Conditions and Stipulations, P 7(b)]. A coinsurance clause requires that the risk of loss be divided between the insurer and the insured according to the relative amount of the insurance and the actual value of the insured property [Los Angeles Mut. Ins. Co. v. Cawog (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 378, 385 386, 106 Cal. Rptr. 307 ; Home Ins. Co., New York v. Eisenson (5th Cir. [Fla.] 1950) 181 F.2d 416, 418 ; see discussion in § 26.17[8]].

Under the coinsurance clause in this policy, the risk of loss must be divided in either of two circumstances: (1) the amount of insurance at the date the policy is issued is less than 80 percent of the value of the land or the full consideration paid for the land, whichever is less; or (2) after the policy is issued, an improvement is erected on the land that increases the value of the land by at least 20 percent over the amount of the insurance shown in the policy [see Conditions and Stipulations, P 7(b)]. When no subsequent improvement has been made, the coinsurance clause limits the insurer's obligation to indemnify the insured to the loss pro rata in the proportion that the amount of insurance bears to the total value of the land at the date of the policy [see Conditions and Stipulations, P 7(b)(i)]. When the property has been improved after the policy was issued, the coinsurance clause limits the insurer's indemnity obligation for a partial loss to the loss pro rata in the proportion that 120 percent of the amount of insurance bears to the sum of the amount of insurance and the amount expended for the improvement [see Conditions and Stipulations, P 7(b)(ii)].

The coinsurance clause takes effect only when the actual loss is partial [see Conditions and Stipulations, P 7(b)(i), (ii)]. When the actual loss exceeds the amount of the insurance, there is no contribution by the insurer beyond the terms of the policy [Los Angeles Mut. Ins. Co. v. Cawog (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 378, 386, 106 Cal. Rptr. 307] .

[f] Notices, Claims, and Settlements

Like the ALTA Loan Policy [see § 26A.251], this policy requires the insured to give notice of claims [Conditions and Stipulations, P 3], to furnish proof of loss [Conditions and Stipulations, P 5], to cooperate with the insurer in the prosecution or defense of any litigation [Conditions and Stipulations, P 4(d)], and, on reasonable demand of the insurer, to submit to examination under oath respecting alleged defects, liens, encumbrances, or other matters for which the insurer might be liable [Conditions and Stipulations, P 5]. For a general discussion of those requirements, see § 26A.251[1][h].

This form, like the ALTA Loan Policy, also gives the insurer the option to make certain settlements and thereby terminate its liability under the policy [Conditions and Stipulations, P 6]. For a discussion of the settlement options of the insurer and the effect on the insurer's liability of exercise of those rights, see § 26A.251[i].

[g] Arbitration

This policy contains an arbitration clause identical in terms to the arbitration clause set forth in the ALTA Loan Policy [ see § 26A.251]. The clause requires that certain claims and controversies between the insured and the insurer be submitted to arbitration under the Title Insurance Arbitration Rules of the American Arbitration Association [Conditions and Stipulations, P 14]. For the rights and duties of the parties under the arbitration clause, see § 26A.251[1][j].

For a general discussion of title insurance liability and claims, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW PRACTICE, Chapter 92, Title Insurance (Matthew Bender). For a discussion of actions against title insurers, together with forms for complaints, cross-complaints, and answers suitable for use in actions against title insurers, see CALIFORNIA FORMS OF PLEADING AND PRACTICE, Chapter 548, Title Insurance (Matthew Bender).

[VARIABLE EXCEPTIONS SUCH AS TAXES, EASEMENTS, CC & Rs, ETC.]

CONDITIONS AND STIPULATIONS

1. DEFINITION OF TERMS.

The following terms when used in this policy mean:

(a) "insured": the insured named in Schedule A, and, subject to any rights or defenses the Company would have had against the named insured, those who succeed to the interest of the named insured by operation of law as distinguished from purchase including, but not limited to, heirs, distributees, devisees, survivors, personal representatives, next of kin, or corporate or fiduciary successors.

(b) "insured claimant": an insured claiming loss or damage.

(c) "knowledge" or "known": actual knowledge, not constructive knowledge or notice which may be imputed to an insured by reason of the public records as defined in this policy or any other records which impart constructive notice of matters affecting the land.

(d) "land": the land described or referred to in Schedule [A] [C], and improvements affixed thereto which by law constitute real property. The term "land" does not include any property beyond the lines of the area described or referred to in Schedule [A] [C], nor any right, title, interest, estate or easement in abutting streets, roads, avenues, alleys, lanes, ways or waterways, but nothing herein shall modify or limit the extent to which a right of access to and from the land is insured by this policy.

(e) "mortgage": mortgage, deed of trust, trust deed, or other security instrument.

(f) "public records": records established under state statutes at Date of Policy for the purpose of imparting constructive notice of matters relating to real property to purchasers for value and without knowledge. With respect to Section 1(a)(iv) of the Exclusions From Coverage, "public records" shall also include environmental protection liens filed in the records of the clerk of the United States district court for the district in which the land is located.

(g) "unmarketability of the title": an alleged or apparent matter affecting the title to the land, not excluded or excepted from coverage, which would entitle a purchaser of the estate or interest described in Schedule A or the insured mortgage to be released from the obligation to purchase by virtue of a contractual condition requiring the delivery of marketable title.

2. CONTINUATION OF INSURANCE AFTER CONVEYANCE OF TITLE.

The coverage of this policy shall continue in force as of Date of Policy in favor of an insured only so long as the insured retains an estate or interest in the land, or holds an indebtedness secured by a purchase money mortgage given by a purchaser from the insured, or only so long as the insured shall have liability by reason of covenants of warranty made by the insured in any transfer or conveyance of the estate or interest. This policy shall not continue in force in favor of any purchaser from the insured of either (i) an estate or interest in the land, or (ii) an indebtedness secured by a purchase money mortgage given to the insured.

3. NOTICE OF CLAIM TO BE GIVEN BY INSURED CLAIMANT.

The insured shall notify the Company promptly in writing (i) in case of any litigation as set forth in Section 4(a) below, (ii) in case knowledge shall come to an insured hereunder of any claim of title or interest which is adverse to the title to the estate or interest, as insured, and which might cause loss or damage for which the Company may be liable by virtue of this policy, or (iii) if title to the estate or interest, as insured, is rejected as unmarketable. If prompt notice shall not be given to the Company, then as to the insured all liability of the Company shall terminate with regard to the matter or matters for which such prompt notice is required; provided, however, that failure to notify the Company shall in no case prejudice the rights of any insured under this policy unless the Company shall be prejudiced by the failure and then only to the extent of the prejudice.

4. DEFENSE AND PROSECUTION OF ACTIONS; DUTY OF INSURED CLAIMANT TO COOPERATE.

(a) Upon written request by the insured and subject to the options contained in Section 6 of these Conditions and Stipulations, the Company, at its own cost and without unreasonable delay, shall provide for the defense of an insured in litigation in which any third party asserts a claim adverse to the title or interest as insured, but only as to those stated causes of action alleging a defect, lien or encumbrance or other matter insured against by this policy. The Company shall have the right to select counsel of its choice (subject to the right of the insured to object for reasonable cause) to represent the insured as to those stated causes of action and shall not be liable for and will not pay the fees of any other counsel. The Company will not pay any fees, costs or expenses incurred by the insured in the defense of those causes of action which allege matters not insured against by this policy.

(b) The Company shall have the right, at its own cost, to institute and prosecute any action or proceeding or to do any other act which in its opinion may be necessary or desirable to establish the title to the estate or interest, as insured, or to prevent or reduce loss or damage to the insured. The Company may take any appropriate action under the terms of this policy, whether or not it shall be liable hereunder, and shall not thereby concede liability or waive any provision of this policy. If the Company shall exercise its rights under this paragraph, it shall do so diligently.

(c) Whenever the Company shall have brought an action or interposed a defense as required or permitted by the provisions of this policy, the Company may pursue any litigation to final determination by a court of competent jurisdiction and expressly reserves the right, in its sole discretion, to appeal from any adverse judgment or order.

(d) In all cases where this policy permits or requires the Company to prosecute or provide for the defense of any action or proceeding, the insured shall secure to the Company the right to so prosecute or provide defense in the action or proceeding, and all appeals therein, and permit the Company to use, at its option, the name of the insured for this purpose. Whenever requested by the Company, the insured, at the Company's expense, shall give the Company all reasonable aid (i) in any action or proceeding, securing evidence, obtaining witnesses, prosecuting or defending the action or proceeding, or effecting settlement, and (ii) in any other lawful act which in the opinion of the Company may be necessary or desirable to establish the title to the estate or interest as insured. If the Company is prejudiced by the failure of the insured to furnish the required cooperation, the Company's obligations to the insured under this policy shall terminate, including any liability or obligation to defend, prosecute, or continue any litigation, with regard to the matter or matters requiring such cooperation.

5. PROOF OF LOSS OR DAMAGE.

In addition to and after the notices required under Section 3 of these Conditions and Stipulations have been provided the Company, a proof of loss or damage signed and sworn to by the insured claimant shall be furnished to the Company within 90 days after the insured claimant shall ascertain the facts giving rise to the loss or damage. The proof of loss or damage shall describe the defect in, or lien or encumbrance on the title, or other matter insured against by this policy which constitutes the basis of loss or damage and shall state, to the extent possible, the basis of calculating the amount of the loss or damage. If the Company is prejudiced by the failure of the insured claimant to provide the required proof of loss or damage, the Company's obligations to the insured under the policy shall terminate, including any liability or obligation to defend, prosecute, or continue any litigation, with regard to the matter or matters requiring such proof of loss or damage.

In addition, the insured claimant may reasonably be required to submit to examination under oath by any authorized representative of the Company and shall produce for examination, inspection and copying, at such reasonable times and places as may be designated by any authorized representative of the Company, all records, books, ledgers, checks, correspondence and memoranda, whether bearing a date before or after Date of Policy, which reasonably pertain to the loss or damage. Further, if requested by any authorized representative of the Company, the insured claimant shall grant its permission, in writing, for any authorized representative of the Company to examine, inspect and copy all records, books, ledgers, checks, correspondence and memoranda in the custody or control of a third party, which reasonably pertain to the loss or damage. All information designated as confidential by the insured claimant provided to the Company pursuant to this Section shall not be disclosed to others unless, in the reasonable judgment of the Company, it is necessary in the administration of the claim. Failure of the insured claimant to submit for examination under oath, produce other reasonably requested information or grant permission to secure reasonably necessary information from third parties as required in this paragraph shall terminate any liability of the Company under this policy as to that claim.

6. OPTIONS TO PAY OR OTHERWISE SETTLE CLAIMS; TERMINATION OF LIABILITY.

In case of a claim under this policy, the Company shall have the following additional options:

(a) To Pay or Tender Payment of the Amount of Insurance.

To pay or tender payment of the amount of insurance under this policy together with any costs, attorneys' fees and expenses incurred by the insured claimant, which were authorized by the Company, up to the time of payment or tender of payment and which the Company is obligated to pay.

Upon the exercise by the Company of this option, all liability and obligations to the insured under this policy, other than to make the payment required, shall terminate, including any liability or obligation to defend, prosecute, or continue any litigation, and the policy shall be surrendered to the Company for cancellation.

(b) To Pay or Otherwise Settle With Parties Other than the Insured or With the Insured Claimant.

(i) to pay or otherwise settle with other parties for or in the name of an insured claimant any claim insured against under this policy, together with any costs, attorneys' fees and expenses incurred by the insured claimant which were authorized by the Company up to the time of payment and which the Company is obligated to pay; or

(ii) to pay or otherwise settle with the insured claimant the loss or damage provided for under this policy, together with any costs, attorneys' fees and expenses incurred by the insured claimant which were authorized by the Company up to the time of payment and which the Company is obligated to pay.

Upon the exercise by the Company of either of the options provided for in paragraphs b(i) or (ii), the Company's obligations to the insured under this policy for the claimed loss or damage, other than the payments required to be made, shall terminate, including any liability or obligation to defend, prosecute or continue any litigation.

7. DETERMINATION, EXTENT OF LIABILITY AND COINSURANCE.

This policy is a contract of indemnity against actual monetary loss or damage sustained or incurred by the insured claimant who has suffered loss or damage by reason of matters insured against by this policy and only to the extent herein described.

(a) The liability of the Company under this policy shall not exceed the least of:

(i) the Amount of Insurance stated in Schedule A; or,

(ii) the difference between the value of the insured estate or interest as insured and the value of the insured estate or interest subject to the defect, lien or encumbrance insured against by this policy.

(b) In the event the Amount of Insurance stated in Schedule A at the Date of Policy is less than 80 percent of the value of the insured estate or interest or the full consideration paid for the land, whichever is less, or if subsequent to the Date of Policy an improvement is erected on the land which increases the value of the insured estate or interest by at least 20 percent over the Amount of Insurance stated in Schedule A, then this Policy is subject to the following:

(i) where no subsequent improvement has been made, as to any partial loss, the Company shall only pay the loss pro rata in the proportion that the amount of insurance at Date of Policy bears to the total value of the insured estate or interest at Date of Policy; or

(ii) where a subsequent improvement has been made, as to any partial loss, the Company shall only pay the loss pro rata in the proportion that 120 percent of the Amount of Insurance stated in Schedule A bears to the sum of the Amount of Insurance stated in Schedule A and the amount expended for the improvement.

The provisions of this paragraph shall not apply to costs, attorneys' fees and expenses for which the Company is liable under this policy, and shall only apply to that portion of any loss which exceeds, in the aggregate, 10 percent of the Amount of Insurance stated in Schedule A.

(c) The Company will pay only those costs, attorneys' fees and expenses incurred in accordance with Section 4 of these Conditions and Stipulations.

8. APPORTIONMENT.

If the land described in Schedule [A] [C] consists of two or more parcels which are not used as a single site, and a loss is established affecting one or more of the parcels but not all, the loss shall be computed and settled on a pro rata basis as if the amount of insurance under this policy was divided pro rata as to the value on Date of Policy of each separate parcel to the whole, exclusive of any improvements made subsequent to Date of Policy, unless a liability or value has otherwise been agreed upon as to each parcel by the Company and the insured at the time of the issuance of this policy and shown by an express statement or by an endorsement attached to this policy.

9. LIMITATION OF LIABILITY.

(a) If the Company establishes the title, or removes the alleged defect, lien or encumbrance, or cures the lack of a right of access to or from the land, or cures the claim of unmarketability of title, all as insured, in a reasonably diligent manner by any method, including litigation and the completion of any appeals therefrom, it shall have fully performed its obligations with respect to that matter and shall not be liable for any loss or damage caused thereby.

(b) In the event of any litigation, including litigation by the Company or with the Company's consent, the Company shall have no liability for loss or damage until there has been a final determination by a court of competent jurisdiction, and disposition of all appeals therefrom, adverse to the title as insured.

(c) The Company shall not be liable for loss or damage to any insured for liability voluntarily assumed by the insured in settling any claim or suit without the prior written consent of the Company.

10. REDUCTION OF INSURANCE; REDUCTION OR TERMINATION OF LIABILITY.

All payments under this policy, except payments made for costs, attorneys' fees and expenses, shall reduce the amount of the insurance pro tanto.

11. LIABILITY NONCUMULATIVE.

It is expressly understood that the amount of insurance under this policy shall be reduced by any amount the Company may pay under any policy insuring a mortgage to which exception is taken in Schedule B or to which the insured has agreed, assumed, or taken subject, or which is hereafter executed by an insured and which is a charge or lien on the estate or interest described or referred to in Schedule A, and the amount so paid shall be deemed a payment under this policy to the insured owner.

12. PAYMENT OF LOSS.

(a) No payment shall be made without producing this policy for endorsement of the payment unless the policy has been lost or destroyed, in which case proof of loss or destruction shall be furnished to the satisfaction of the Company.

(b) When liability and the extent of loss or damage has been definitely fixed in accordance with these Conditions and Stipulations, the loss or damage shall be payable within 30 days thereafter.

13. SUBROGATION UPON PAYMENT OR SETTLEMENT.

Whenever the Company shall have settled and paid a claim under this policy, all right of subrogation shall vest in the Company unaffected by any act of the insured claimant.

The Company shall be subrogated to and be entitled to all rights and remedies which the insured claimant would have had against any person or property in respect to the claim had this policy not been issued. If requested by the Company, the insured claimant shall transfer to the Company all rights and remedies against any person or property necessary in order to perfect this right of subrogation. The insured claimant shall permit the Company to sue, compromise or settle in the name of the insured claimant and to use the name of the insured claimant in any transaction or litigation involving these rights or remedies.

If a payment on account of a claim does not fully cover the loss of the insured claimant, the Company shall be subrogated to these rights and remedies in the proportion which the Company's payment bears to the whole amount of the loss.

If loss should result from any act of the insured claimant, as stated above, that act shall not void this policy, but the Company, in that event, shall be required to pay only that part of any losses insured against by this policy which shall exceed the amount, if any, lost to the Company by reason of the impairment by the insured claimant of the Company's right of subrogation.

(b) The Company's Rights Against Non-insured Obligors.

The Company's right of subrogation against non-insured obligors shall exist and shall include, without limitation, the rights of the insured to indemnities, guaranties, other policies of insurance or bonds, notwithstanding any terms or conditions contained in those instruments which provide for subrogation rights by reason of this policy.

14. ARBITRATION.

Unless prohibited by applicable law, either the Company or the insured may demand arbitration pursuant to the Title Insurance Arbitration Rules of the American Arbitration Association. Arbitrable matters may include, but are not limited to, any controversy or claim between the Company and the insured arising out of or relating to this policy, any service of the Company in connection with its issuance or the breach of a policy provision or other obligation. All arbitrable matters when the Amount of Insurance is $1,000,000 or less shall be arbitrated at the option of either the Company or the insured. All arbitrable matters when the Amount of Insurance is in excess of $1,000,000 shall be arbitrated only when agreed to by both the Company and the insured. Arbitration pursuant to this policy and under the Rules in effect on the date the demand for arbitration is made or, at the option of the insured, the Rules in effect at Date of Policy shall be binding upon the parties. The award may include attorneys' fees only if the laws of the state in which the land is located permit a court to award attorneys' fees to a prevailing party. Judgment upon the award rendered by the Arbitrator(s) may be entered in any court having jurisdiction thereof.

The law of the situs of the land shall apply to an arbitration under the Title Insurance Arbitration Rules.

A copy of the Rules may be obtained from the Company upon request.

15. LIABILITY LIMITED TO THIS POLICY; POLICY ENTIRE CONTRACT.

(a) This policy together with all endorsements, if any, attached hereto by the Company is the entire policy and contract between the insured and the Company. In interpreting any provision of this policy, this policy shall be construed as a whole.

(b) Any claim of loss or damage, whether or not based on negligence, and which arises out of the status of the title to the estate or interest covered hereby or by any action asserting such claim, shall be restricted to this policy.

(c) No amendment of or endorsement to this policy can be made except by a writing endorsed hereon or attached hereto signed by either the President, a Vice President, the Secretary, an Assistant Secretary, or validating officer or authorized signatory of the Company.

16. SEVERABILITY.

In the event any provision of this policy is held invalid or unenforceable under applicable law, the policy shall be deemed not to include that provision and all other provisions shall remain in full force and effect.

17. NOTICES, WHERE SENT.

All notices required to be given the Company and any statement in writing required to be furnished the Company shall include the number of this policy and shall be addressed to the company at: _____.

11-26A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26A.260

§ 26A.260 CLTA Covenants, Conditions, and Restrictions Indorsement

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is the Covenants, Conditions, and Restrictions Indorsement form approved for use by the California Land Title Association (CLTA) and revised as of September 9, 1994. It is Form 100 in the CLTA Policy & Indorsement Forms Book (Revised 1971), from which it is reprinted with permission. The form is designed to be attached to the ALTA Loan Policy [see § 26A.251].

[b] Nature and Use of Indorsements

[i] In General

An indorsement adds to or amends the coverage of an insurance policy by limiting, altering, or expanding the parties' rights or obligations [McFarland v. New Zealand Ins. Co. (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 422, 424, 1 Cal. Rptr. 482 ; Continental Cas. Co. v. Phoenix Constr. Co. (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 423, 431 432, 296 P.2d 801] . When effective, an indorsement becomes a part of the policy and cannot be separated from it [Jew Fun Him v. Occidental Life Ins. Co. (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 246, 249, 198 P.2d 711] . The original policy and the indorsement, if consistent, must be read together and construed as a whole [Narver v. California State Life. Ins. Co. (1930) 211 Cal. 176, 181, 294 P. 393] . If there is an inconsistency between the original policy and the indorsement, the indorsement will prevail, if it is free from ambiguity [Continental Cas. Co. v. Phoenix Constr. Co. (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 423, 431, 296 P.2d 801] .

Indorsements are commonly attached to standard policies to increase or otherwise modify their coverage. Additional premiums are usually charged for indorsements, although some are made available without charge.

[ii] Spelling

The words "indorsement" and "endorsement" are used interchangeably in the legal literature and in title insurance forms. Older CLTA forms use "indorsement," but as those forms are replaced with new versions "endorsement" is being substituted. To achieve consistency with other Matthew Bender publications, this publication continues to use "indorsement," except when "endorsement" is used in the text of standard forms which are reproduced verbatim. No legal distinction is intended to be indicated by the different spellings.

[iii] CLTA Forms

The CLTA recommends more than 100 indorsement forms for the use of its members. All of the recommended forms are included in the CLTA Policy & Indorsement Forms Book (Revised 1971). Many non-member insurers have prepared similar forms for their own use. Special indorsements are sometimes available to cover unusual risks or to meet the specific requirements of a prospective policyholder. For a general discussion of title insurance indorsements, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW PRACTICE, Volume 4, Chapter 92, Title Insurance (Matthew Bender).

[c] Covenants, Conditions, and Restrictions Indorsement

The title to a parcel of real property is sometimes restricted or encumbered by one or more instruments setting forth "covenants," "conditions," or "restrictions" on its use. These instruments (commonly known as CC and R's) are recorded by residential subdividers for the purpose of establishing design and construction standards and providing protection against commercial and industrial encroachment into the subdivisions [for a general discussion of CC and R's, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW PRACTICE, Ch. 470, Subdivisions (Matthew Bender)]. Protection against loss or damage sustained by reason of a violation of CC and R's may be valuable and, in appropriate circumstances, necessary to the effective economic use of the property.

CLTA's Covenants, Conditions and Restrictions Indorsement is customarily added to the ALTA Loan Policy [see § 26A.251] whenever the insured land is affected by CC and Rs. Unless modified by an exception in the attached schedules, the indorsement will insure against loss sustained by reason of: (1) covenants, conditions, or restrictions under which the lien of the insured mortgage can be cut off, subordinated, or otherwise impaired [P 1(a)]; (2) violations on the insured land of any enforceable covenants, conditions, or restrictions [P 1(b)]; encroachments of buildings or improvements located on the insured land onto adjoining lands, or encroachments of buildings or improvements located on adjoining lands onto the insured land [P 1(c)]; (4) unmarketability of the insured title by reason of any violations on the insured land [P 2(b); for a general discussion of "marketability" of title, see § 26A.11]; and (5) damage to existing improvements that might result from the use of an easement or the exercise of mineral rights on the insured land [P 3].

§ 26A.261 CLTA Mechanics' Liens Indorsement

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is the Mechanics' Liens Indorsement form approved for use by the California Land Title Association (CLTA) and revised as of September 10, 1993. It is form 101 in the CLTA Policy & Indorsement Forms Book (Revised 1971), from which it is reprinted with permission. The form is designed to be attached to a CLTA Standard Coverage Policy [see § 26A.250] issued to an insured lender.

Like other title insurance indorsements, the Mechanics' Liens Indorsement is designed to add to the coverage of another policy [for a general discussion of indorsements, see §§ 26A.18, 26A.260[1][b]]. In particular, this indorsement is designed to insure against any loss that an insured lender might suffer by reason of a mechanics' lien that acquires priority over the lien of the insured mortgage or deed of trust.

[b] Need For Protection Against Mechanics' Liens

The priorities of liens on real property are usually determined by the order in which the liens are recorded [see Civ. Code § 2897]. In contrast, mechanics' liens [see Civ. Code § 3110] are preferred to any lien, mortgage, deed of trust, or other encumbrance that attaches after the commencement of a work of improvement or of which the mechanics' lien claimant had no notice and which was unrecorded at the time of commencement of the work [Civ. Code §§ 3110, 3137]. For this reason, lenders frequently inspect property on which they propose to make a loan to determine if work has been commenced or materials supplied. In the absence of inspection, special title insurance protection against mechanics' liens may be purchased. Since out-of-state lenders frequently are unable to inspect the property, they often require that their borrowers provide appropriate title insurance protection against mechanics' liens before any loan is made.

[c] Related CLTA Indorsements

Other indorsements are available to provide protection against mechanics' liens. For example, CLTA Form 101.1 may be added to either the ALTA Owner's Policy [see § 26A.252] or to an owner's CLTA Standard Coverage Policy [see § 26A.250]. CLTA Forms 101.2 or 101.3 may be added either to the ALTA Loan Policy [see § 26A.251] or to the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy [see § 26A.250]. CLTA Form 101.2 may be used to insure a lender against mechanic's liens after completion of a work of improvement. CLTA Form 101.3 may be used to insure a lender against mechanic's liens for work under construction or completed on the date of the indorsement. CLTA Indorsement Form 101.4, which may be added to a CLTA Standard Coverage Policy issued in favor of a lender, insures against mechanic's liens arising out of any work of improvement under construction or completed on the date of the indorsement. CLTA Form 101.8, which may be attached to a CLTA Standard Coverage Policy issued to a lender, insures against the priority of any mechanics' liens resulting from off-site improvements. CLTA Indorsement Form 126 may be used to assure the owner of a single-family residence against loss sustained by reason of mechanics' liens in progress or completed as of the date of the policy.

§ 26A.262 CLTA Foundation Indorsement

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is the Foundation Indorsement form approved for use by the California Land Title Association (CLTA) and revised as of September 10, 1993. It is form 102.4 in the CLTA Policy & Indorsement Forms Book (Revised 1971), from which it is reprinted with permission. The form is designed to be attached to an ALTA Loan Policy [see § 26A.251] or to a CLTA Standard Coverage Policy [see § 26A.250] issued in favor of a lender.

For a general discussion of indorsements, see §§ 26A.18, 26A.260[1][b].

[b] Purpose of Foundation Indorsement

The Foundation Indorsement is designed to add to the coverage of another policy by insuring against loss that an insured lender might suffer if foundations erected on property that secures the lender's loan are not properly located. If foundations are not properly located within the boundaries of the insured property, the lender may suffer a loss. The risk of such a loss may be minimized by inspecting the property or, if the lender is an out-of-state lender or for any other reason cannot inspect the property, by purchasing a Foundation Indorsement. This form may be issued by an insurer after the insurer has inspected the property to assure the insured that the foundations of a structure under construction are within the boundaries of the insured land and do not violate any of the covenants, conditions, or restrictions described in the policy.

[c] Related CLTA Forms

CLTA Forms 102.5, 102.6, and 102.7 offer lenders protection similar to that offered by this form. Form 102.6 provides protection against loss arising from improperly located foundations and from any violations of covenants, conditions, or restrictions. Forms 102.5 and 102.7 provide identical coverage, with the addition of coverage against loss from foundations that might encroach on easements.

§ 26A.263 CLTA Easement Indorsement

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is the Easement Indorsement form approved for use by the California Land Title Association (CLTA) and revised as of September 10, 1993. It is form 103.1 in the CLTA Policy & Indorsement Forms Book (Revised 1971), from which it is reprinted with permission. The form is designed to be attached to a standard coverage policy issued in favor of an owner or lender, such as the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy [see § 26A.250], the ALTA Loan Policy [see § 26A.251], or the ALTA Owner's Policy [see § 26A.252].

[b] Purpose of Easement Indorsement

The Easement Indorsement is designed to add to the coverage of another policy by insuring against loss resulting from the exercise of any easement rights referred to in the policy. If the insured property is subject to an easement in favor of another parcel, the owner or insured lender may require assurance that no loss will result from the exercise of that easement. Similarly, if the continued use of the insured property depends on the enforceability of an easement over adjoining property, the owner or lender may require assurance that the easement will be enforceable and that there will be no interference with its use. The form set forth below may be used by an insurer to insure a lender against loss resulting from any exercise of the right of use or maintenance of an easement over or through the insured land.

For further discussion of easement indorsements, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW PRACTICE, § 92.101[4] (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related CLTA Indorsements

Other easement indorsement forms may be used when appropriate or needed. CLTA Form 103.3, for example, may be used to insure a lender against loss sustained if the owner of any easement described in the policy compels the removal of improvements that encroach on the easement. CLTA Form 103.4 may be used to assure an owner or lender that any easement described in the policy provides the owner with ingress to and egress from a given public street. CLTA Forms 103.5 and 103.8 may be used to insure against damage to existing improvements, including lawns, shrubbery, or trees, resulting from the exercise of any right to use an easement over the surface of the insured land. CLTA Form 103.6 may be used to insure a lender that none of the improvements located on the insured land encroach on an easement described in the policy.

11-26A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26A.264

§ 26A.264 CLTA Assignment of Trust Deed Indorsement

[1] COMMENT

[a] Use of Form

This form is the Assignment of Trust Deed Indorsement form approved for use by the California Land Title Association (CLTA) and revised as of September 10, 1993. It is form 104 in the CLTA Policy & Indorsement Forms Book (Revised 1971), from which it is reprinted with permission. The form is designed to be attached to an ALTA Loan Policy [see § 26A.251].

[b] Purpose of Assignment of Trust Deed Endorsement

The CLTA Standard Coverage Policy [see Form 26A.50] and the ALTA Loan Policy [see § 26A.251] protect successors in ownership of an insured mortgage or deed of trust, although the insurer reserves as against any successor who acquires the indebtedness by operation of law (as distinguished from purchase) all rights and defenses that it would have had against the original insured. The new owner of the indebtedness, however, may require assurance that the lien of the insured mortgage or deed of trust is valid and enforceable. The Assignment of Trust Deed Indorsement may be used to assure the assignee that the mortgage or deed of trust has been transferred by a valid assignment, that there are no subsisting tax or assessment liens that have priority (except as noted in the indorsement), that there are no matters affecting the validity or priority of the mortgage or deed of trust (except as noted), and that there are no federal tax liens or bankruptcy proceedings that affect the insured estate or interest (except as noted).

Other indorsement forms with similar assurances may be used to extend the protection of other policies. CLTA Form 104A, for example, makes assurances identical to those of this form and is designed to be attached to a CLTA Standard Coverage Policy [see § 26A.250] issued in favor of a lender. CLTA Form 104.1, which is designed for use with either a CLTA Standard Coverage Policy [see § 26A.250] or an ALTA Loan Policy [see § 26A.251], assures that the insured mortgage or deed of trust has been transferred by a valid assignment and that no reconveyance or modification or subordination of the insured mortgage or deed of trust appears of record. CLTA Form 104.6, which is designed for use with an ALTA Loan Policy [see § 26A.251], and CLTA Form 104.7, which is designed for use with either a CLTA Standard Coverage Policy [see § 26A.250] or an ALTA Loan Policy [see § 26A.251], provides assurance that no assignment of rents prior to the insured assignment appears in the public records (other than as noted in the indorsement). This protection may be valuable to the assignee if the property is producing rents and if the assignment of the mortgage or deed of trust includes an assignment of rents.

11-26A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26A.265

§ 26A.265 CLTA Single Family Homeowner's Protection Indorsement

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is the Single Family Homeowner's Protection Indorsement form approved for use by the California Land Title Association (CLTA) and issued as of September 10, 1993. It is form 126 in the CLTA Policy & Indorsement Forms Book (Revised 1971), from which it is reprinted with permission. The form is designed to be attached to the CLTA Standard Coverage Policy [see § 26A.250].

[b] Purpose of Homeowner's Protection Indorsement

Indorsements providing title insurance protection of particular value to homeowners are available in various forms. This form may be used to insure the owner of a single-family, owner-occupied residential structure against loss or damage arising from various title defects, including:

- Any statutory lien for labor or material arising out of any work of improvement in progress or completed on the date of the policy (except liens for which the insured has agreed to be responsible);

- Removal of the residential structure or interference with its use for ordinary residential purposes as the result of a final court order or judgment based on such matters as encroachments onto adjoining lands, violations of covenants, conditions, or restrictions, or violations of applicable zoning ordinances; and

- Damage to the residential structure resulting from the exercise of any right to use the surface of the land for mineral extraction or development.

For further discussion of indorsements providing homeowner's protection, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW PRACTICE, Volume 4, § 92.101[15] (Matthew Bender).

CLTA Form 126A.1 provides identical coverage for property on which there is a one-to-four family residential structure in which the insured owner resides or intends to reside. CLTA Form 126A.2 [see § 26A.266] provides identical coverage for condominium property. CLTA Form 126A.3 is identical to Form 126, except that the insured owner does not have to intend to reside in the residential structure; the requirements of the indorsement are met if there is a residential structure on the insured land at the date of the policy.

1. This endorsement shall be effective only if at Date of Policy there is located on the land described in said Policy a single family residential structure, in which the insured owner resides or intends to reside. For the purpose of this indorsement the term "residential structure" is defined as the principal dwelling structure located on the land together with all improvements thereon related to residential use of the property except plantings of any nature, perimeter fences and perimeter walls, and the term "insured owner" is defined as any insured named in Schedule A and, subject to any rights or defenses the Company may have had under the policy and all indorsements, such insured owner's heirs, distributees, devisees, survivors, personal representatives or next of kin.

2. The Company hereby insures the insured owner of the estate or interest described in Schedule A against loss or damage which the insured owner shall sustain by reason of:

a. the existence at Date of Policy of any statutory lien for labor or materials attaching to the estate or interest referred to in Schedule A arising out of any work of improvement on the land, in progress or completed at Date of Policy, except those liens arising out of a work of improvement for which the insured owner has agreed to be responsible.

b. the removal of the residential structure or the interference with the use thereof for ordinary residential purposes as the result of a final court order or judgment, based upon the existence at Date of Policy of:

(1) any encroachment of said residential structure or any part thereof onto adjoining lands, or onto any easement shown as an exception in Part II of Schedule B of the policy, or onto any unrecorded subsurface easement;

(2) any violation on the land of enforceable covenants, conditions or restrictions, provided that this coverage shall not refer to or include the terms, covenants and conditions contained in any lease, sub-lease, or contract of sale referred to in the policy;

(3) any violation of applicable zoning ordinances to the extent that such ordinances regulate (a) area, width or depth of the land as a building site for the residential structure; (b) floor space area of the residential structure; (c) set back of the residential structure from the property lines of the land; or (d) height of the residential structure.

c. damage to the residential structure resulting from the exercise of any right to use the surface of the land for the extraction or development of the minerals excepted from the description of the land or shown as a reservation in Schedule B.

For purposes of this endorsement, the words "covenants," "conditions" or "restrictions" shall not be deemed to refer to or include any covenants, conditions or restrictions relating to environmental protection, except to the extent that a notice of a violation or alleged violation affecting the land has been recorded in the public records at Date of Policy and is not excepted in Schedule B.

This endorsement is made a part of the policy and is subject to all of the terms and provisions thereof and of any prior endorsements thereto. Except to the extent expressly stated, it neither modifies any of the terms and provisions of the policy and any prior endorsements, nor does it extend the effective date of the policy and any prior endorsements, nor does it increase the fact amount thereof.

CHAPTER 27 DEEDS AND RECORDING

11-27 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide Scope

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary, Practice Consultant

Scope

Timothy F. O'Leary,n*
Practice Consultant Scope

This chapter covers the drafting, recording, and delivery of deeds. The Legal Background examines the principal types of deeds, the requirements for a valid deed, and the method and effect of recording and delivering a deed. The Transaction Guide contains lists of information and documents needed to draft a deed and important determinations that counsel should make before drafting the deed. Among other things, those determinations assist the attorney in defining the precise estate to be transferred and the form in which title should be taken. The Transaction Guide also sets forth procedures for drafting, executing, recording, and delivering the deed and performing related tasks. The forms include numerous complete deeds, including basic grant and quitclaim deeds, joint ownership deeds, and deeds with business grantors; alternative and additional deed provisions; and related documents, such as a notice of intent to preserve a power of termination and a corporate resolution to convey real property.

This chapter does not consider the transactions underlying the conveyance of title to real property. For comprehensive coverage of the purchase and sale of real property, see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements . Options to purchase real property and related transactions are covered in Ch. 22, Options to Purchase Real Property . Tax-deferred or "like-kind" exchanges are discussed in Ch. 24, Exchanges of Real Property .

The creation and conveyance of certain types of interests or estates in real property are covered elsewhere in this publication. For discussion of easements and profits a prendre, and illustrative deeds and other instruments creating those interests, see Ch. 28A, Easements and Licenses . Ch. 28C, Covenants, Conditions and Restrictions, examines conditions, covenants, and equitable servitudes that restrict the uses to which the land of another may be put, and includes a deed that incorporates prior recorded restrictions into the conveyance. § 27.10 Definitions and Overview of Deeds

A deed is a written instrument that transfers or conveys title to real property [Brusseau v. Hill (1927) 201 Cal. 225, 228, 256 P. 419 ; see Civ. Code § 1039 (a "transfer" is an act of the parties, or of the law, by which title to real property is conveyed from one person to another)]. A transfer in writing of title to real property is called a grant or conveyance [see Civ. Code § 1053]. As used in the laws governing modes of transfer, "grant" refers to all written conveyances transferring title to real property [see Civ. Code § 1053], including grant deeds and quitclaim deeds [MacFarland v. Walker (1919) 40 Cal. App. 508, 512, 181 P. 248 ; but see § 27.11[1], below, for the special meaning of "grant" when that term is included in a grant deed].

The principal types of deeds used in California are grant deeds, quitclaim deeds, and deeds given at judicial sales. A fourth type, warranty deeds, is occasionally used in this state. These deeds are discussed in more detail below.

CHAPTER 27 DEEDS AND RECORDING
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

11-27 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 27.11

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary, Practice Consultant

§ 27.11 Principal Types of Deeds

[1] Grant Deeds

The grant deed is the most frequently used deed in California. In a grant deed, the term "grant" is the essential element or operative word of transfer [see Klamath Land & Cattle Co. v. Roemer (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 613, 618, 91 Cal. Rptr. 112] . Thus, a grant deed states that one person grants an interest in real property to another [see Civ. Code § 1092 (statutory form of grant deed); see also §§ 27.200[2], 27.201[2]]. Although a grant deed may convey any type of estate in real property [Klamath Land & Cattle Co. v. Roemer (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 613, 618, 91 Cal. Rptr. 112] , it is presumed to transfer a fee simple title unless it appears from the deed that a lesser estate was intended [Civ. Code § 1105; see American Enterprise, Inc. v. Van Winkle (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 210, 220, 246 P.2d 935 (grant deed is presumed to convey grantor's entire interest in the property); see also § 27.20[2]]. A grant deed that passes a fee simple title also transfers any interest in the property acquired by the grantor after the date of the deed [Civ. Code § 1106; Schwenn v. Kaye (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 949, 952, 202 Cal. Rptr. 374 ; see § 27.20[7]].

If a grant deed conveys an estate of inheritance or fee simple, the deed carries with it the following implied covenants unless it provides otherwise [Civ. Code § 1113]:

- That the grantor has not previously conveyed the same estate, or any right, title, or interest in it, to any person other than the grantee; and

- That as of the time of the execution of the conveyance, the property is free from any encumbrance made by the grantor or any person claiming under the grantor.

These implied covenants against prior conveyances and against encumbrances impose personal obligations on the grantor and the grantor's heirs [see Civ. Code § 1113] and are personal to the grantee [Lawrence v. Montgomery (1869) 37 Cal. 183, 188-189 ; Babb v. Weemer (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 546, 550, 551, 37 Cal. Rptr. 533] . For additional coverage, see § 27.200[1][c].

[2] Quitclaim Deeds

A quitclaim deed conveys whatever present right or interest the grantor has in the property at the time of the deed, including legal, equitable, and inchoate rights [Leggio v. Haggerty (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 873, 880, 42 Cal. Rptr. 400 ; Soares v. Steidtmann (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 401, 404, 278 P.2d 953] . As a general rule, it does not transfer after-acquired title [Klamath Land & Cattle Co. v. Roemer (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 613, 618, 91 Cal. Rptr. 112] . However, if the grantor has an equitable interest at the time of the conveyance and later acquires a legal title, the legal title is deemed to be transferred to the grantee [Klamath Land & Cattle Co. v. Roemer (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 613, 618-619, 91 Cal. Rptr. 112] .

No covenants are implied when a quitclaim deed is used, even if the word "grant" appears in the deed [Southern Pac. Co. v. Dore (1917) 34 Cal. App. 521, 522-523, 168 P. 147 ; for discussion of the implied warranties in grant deeds, see § 27.200[1]]. In addition, quitclaim deeds, unlike grant deeds, normally are not subject to the presumption that a fee simple title is intended to pass [Winchell v. Lambert (1956) 146 Cal. App. 2d 575, 579, 304 P.2d 149 ; but see Klamath Land & Cattle Co. v. Roemer (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 613, 618-619, 91 Cal. Rptr. 112 ; Estate of Wilson (1940) 40 Cal. App. 2d 229, 232-233, 104 P.2d 716 ; see also § 27.20[1]].

[3] Deeds Given in Judicial Sales

A deed given at an execution sale [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 701.660, 701.670], or any other deed executed by a court-appointed or public official, essentially has the same effect as a quitclaim deed [see, e.g., National Bk. of Bakersfield v. Williams (1916) 31 Cal. App. 705, 708, 161 P. 504 ; see also § 27.11[2]]. For example, a deed executed by a levying officer who has sold property at an execution sale conveys any interest of the judgment debtor in the subject property (1) that is held on the effective date of the lien under which the property was sold or (2) that is acquired between the effective date and the date of sale [Code Civ. Proc. § 701.640].

Although execution sales are beyond the scope of this publication, they are discussed in detail in California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments (Matthew Bender).

[4] Warranty Deeds

A warranty deed contains express covenants, such as a covenant of warranty. A covenant of warranty is an undertaking by the grantor-covenantor to compensate the grantee if an outstanding superior title held by a third party results in a total or partial failure of the grantee's title [Tropico Land & Improvement Co. v. Lambourn (1915) 170 Cal. 33, 38, 148 P. 206] . Other express covenants typically set forth in warranty deeds include a covenant for quiet possession or enjoyment, a covenant of seisin, a covenant of right to convey, a covenant against encumbrances, and a covenant for further assurance. These deeds, however, are seldom used in California because buyers rely on title insurance for protection against loss resulting from title problems For detailed coverage of title insurance, see Ch. 26A, Title Insurance . For further discussion of warranty deeds, see California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 80, Deeds and Transfer of Title (Matthew Bender).

11-27 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 27.12

§ 27.12 Deed Intended as Mortgage (Defeasible Deed)

A creditor and debtor may enter into an agreement providing that a deed absolute on its face has been given only for security purposes and is intended as a mortgage. The execution of a deed pursuant to such an agreement creates a security [Civ. Code §§ 2924(a), 2925; Banta v. Wise (1901) 135 Cal. 277, 279, 67 P. 129] . Pursuant to the agreement, the creditor must reconvey the property to the debtor when the debt is paid in full. An oral agreement that the deed is merely security for the debt is effective between the debtor and creditor but is not binding on third parties unless they have actual or constructive notice of the agreement [see Civ. Code § 2925]. To give effective notice, an instrument reciting that the deed is defeasible (that is, capable of being defeated or terminated) [see Restatement of Property, §§ 16, 24, 25] must be recorded in the county where the property is located [Civ. Code § 2950]. This recording may be accomplished by a separate agreement of defeasance [see § 25A.215[2]] or by inserting a defeasance provision in the deed itself and then recording the deed [see § 25A.216[2]].

§ 27.13 Deed in Lieu of Foreclosure

[1] Alternative to Foreclosure

A creditor holding a deed of trust or mortgage may, following a default by the debtor, accept a deed to the property instead of filing a notice of default and instituting foreclosure proceedings [Hamud v. Hawthorne (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 78, 82, 338 P.2d 387 ; Baldwin v. American Trading Co. (1925) 76 Cal. App. 80, 88, 243 P. 710] . This alternative permits the creditor to avoid the time and expense of foreclosure. Obviously, this alternative is advisable only when the value of the secured property is equal to or greater than the amount of the indebtedness.

[2] Requirements for Validity

At the time of the execution of the security agreement, a creditor cannot secure a debtor's agreement to forfeit the debtor's interest in the secured property in the event of default [Civ. Code § 2889]. Such an agreement is void [Civ. Code § 2889]. However, a creditor and debtor may enter into an agreement, after a default by the debtor, that provides for the conveyance of the subject property to the mortgagee or beneficiary in consideration for a cancellation of the obligation [Hamud v. Hawthorne (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 78, 83, 338 P.2d 387] . To be valid, the conveyance must be (1) fair, (2) free from undue influence, oppression, or fraud, and (3) for adequate consideration [Phelan v. De Martin (1890) 85 Cal. 365, 367, 24 P. 725] . The transfer may be made by grant or quitclaim deed [see §§ 27.200[2] (grant deed), 27.203[2] (quitclaim deed), and comments] and may be done at any time after the default and prior to a foreclosure sale [Hamud v. Hawthorne (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 78, 83, 338 P.2d 387] . A title company may require an estoppel affidavit from the debtor, in lieu of or in addition to a statement in the deed, stating that (1) the transfer is an absolute conveyance, (2) the debtor acted freely and without coercion or duress, and (3) the amount of the debt coupled with any additional consideration given is equal to the fair market value of the subject property [see California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 120, Representing a Client After Default, § 120.25[4] (Matthew Bender)].

[3] Effect

A deed in lieu of foreclosure causes the creditor's lien to merge with the legal title acquired on execution of the deed and extinguishes the creditor's lien, provided there are no intervening junior liens [Anglo-Californian Bank v. Field (1908) 154 Cal. 513, 514-515, 98 P. 267] . If there is an intervening lien, merger will not occur. Instead, the legal title and senior lien will be considered as separate interests in order to protect the rights of the senior creditor [Hines v. Ward (1898) 121 Cal. 115, 118-119, 53 P. 427] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Extinguishing Junior Lien Holders. A deed in lieu of foreclosure is less costly and more convenient than pursuing the foreclosure process through to conclusion. The lender will be able to obtain immediate possession and ownership of the property and avoid the necessity of a lengthy foreclosure process, the appointment of a receiver during that process, and the necessary legal costs and expenses. The disadvantage of obtaining a deed in lieu of foreclosure generally is that it does not extinguish the other lien holders. Thus, the grantee will acquire the property subject to either junior or senior lien holders. For that reason, except in the case where a senior lender is the only lien holder and has obtained a litigation guarantee that no other lien holders exist, most lenders will incur the expense of the foreclosure process to extinguish junor lien holders. Commentary by Timothy F. O'Leary.

§ 27.14 Overview of Requirements for Valid Deed

To be valid and effective, a deed must comply with the following requirements:

- The deed must be in writing and must be executed by the grantor or the grantor's authorized agent [Civ. Code § 1091; see §§ 27.15, 27.25].

- The deed must be delivered to and accepted by the grantee [Civ. Code § 1054 (delivery); Marshall v. Marshall (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 475, 479, 295 P.2d 131 (acceptance); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1933; see also § 27.31].

- The deed must contain the names or other sufficient description of the grantor and grantee [Cordano v. Wright (1911) 159 Cal. 610, 617, 115 P. 227 (grantor); Whitson v. Goudeseune (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 445, 447-448, 290 P.2d 590 (grantee); see §§ 27.16[3] (grantor), 27.17[2]].

- At the time the deed is executed, the grantor must be in existence [see Civ. Code § 1039] and have the capacity to contract [Clark v. Abrams (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 497, 499, 121 P.2d 750 ; see § 27.16[1]].

- At the time of the transfer, the grantee must be in existence [see Civ. Code § 1039] and must be capable of taking and holding title to real property [Rixford v. Zeigler (1907) 150 Cal. 435, 437-438, 88 P. 1092 ; see § 27.17[1]].

- The deed must contain a description of the property that is sufficient to identify and locate it [see Leider v. Evans (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 696, 703, 26 Cal. Rptr. 123 ; see also § 27.19].

- The instrument must set forth words indicating an intent to convey [Cordano v. Wright (1911) 159 Cal. 610, 618, 115 P. 227 ; see § 27.23].

An estate in real property, other than an estate at will or for a term not exceeding one year, can be transferred only by operation of law or by a written instrument [*Civ. § 27.16 Grantor

[1] Requirement of Capacity to Convey

The grantor of real property must have the capacity to convey title to the grantee at the time the grantor executes and delivers the deed [Hughes v. Grandy (1947) 78 Cal. App. 2d 555, 564, 177 P.2d 939] . Whether the grantor had this capacity is a question of fact [Allen v. Samuels (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 710, 715, 22 Cal. Rptr. 528 ; see Clark v. Abrams (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 497, 499, 121 P.2d 750 (party alleging lack of capacity has burden of proof)]. As a general rule, the determination regarding capacity is subject to the same rules governing testamentary capacity [Marback v. Marback (1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 354, 356, 45 Cal. Rptr. 341 ; Tuttle v. Bessey (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 725, 727, 290 P.2d 884 ; see § 61.11; but see O'Neil v. Spillane (1975) 119 Cal. Rptr. 245 (proof of existence of undue influence required to cancel deed of gift or conveyance inter vivos differs from that which is required to set aside a will)].

A grantor has the capacity to convey real property if he or she can comprehend the nature of the act of conveyance, the character of the subject property, and the grantor's relationship to the natural objects of his or her act [Marback v. Marback (1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 354, 356, 45 Cal. Rptr. 341 ; see Hughes v. Grandy (1947) 78 Cal. App. 2d 555, 565-566, 177 P.2d 939] . Although it is the grantor's mental condition at the moment of execution and delivery of the deed that is relevant, the grantor's condition before and after the execution and delivery may be considered [Hughes v. Grandy (1947) 78 Cal. App. 2d 555, 564, 177 P.2d 939] . Evidence of the grantor's appearance, conduct, acts, habits, and conversation is relevant, provided the evidence has a reasonable tendency to indicate the grantor's mental condition at the time of the execution and delivery [Hughes v. Grandy (1947) 78 Cal. App. 2d 555, 565, 177 P.2d 939] .

Several entities have the capacity to convey real property. They include corporations [see Corp. Code § 207; see also § 27.220[1]], unincorporated associations [see Corp. Code § 18105; see also § 27.223[1]], and partnerships [see Corp. Code §§ 15010, 16302(a); see also § 27.221[1]].

[2] Lack of Capacity to Convey

The capacity to convey title is lacking if the person attempting the transfer is a minor or is mentally incapacitated [Mattos v. Kirby (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 649, 653, 285 P.2d 56] . A minor (that is, anyone under the age of 18) [Fam. Code § 6500] cannot make a contract relating to real property or any interest in real property [Fam. Code § 6701(b)]. Consequently, if the grantor under a deed is a minor, the conveyance is void [see Sparks v. Sparks (1950) 101 Cal. App. 2d 129, 137, 225 P.2d 238] .

The following rules govern mental incapacity:

- A person entirely without understanding has no power to make a contract [Civ. Code § 38], and a deed made by such a person is void [Mattos v. Kirby (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 649, 653, 285 P.2d 56] .

- If a person has been judicially declared incompetent, any deed made by that person after the adjudication is void [Civ. Code § 40; Gibson v. Westoby (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 273, 276, 251 P.2d 1003] .

- If a person of unsound mind who is not entirely without understanding makes a conveyance before his or her incapacity has been judicially determined, the deed is subject to rescission [Civ. Code § 39(a)] and cancellation [see Peterson v. Ellebrecht (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 718, 720-721, 23 Cal. Rptr. 349 ; see also Civ. Code §§ 1692, 3412]. A rebuttable presumption affecting the burden of proof that a person is of unsound mind exists for these purposes if the person is substantially unable to manage his or her own financial resources or resist fraud or undue influence. Substantial inability may not be proved solely by isolated incidents of negligence or improvidence [Civ. Code § 39(b)].

- If a person was intoxicated (voluntarily or otherwise) at the time of execution of a deed, the deed may be set aside [Guidici v. Guidici (1935) 2 Cal. 2d 497, 502, 503, 41 P.2d 932 (intoxicated person is as unable to consent to the terms of a contract as person of unsound mind)].

[3] Identification in Deed

A valid deed must properly identify the grantor [Cordano v. Wright (1911) 159 Cal. 610, 617, 115 P. 227] . The body of the deed need not set forth the grantor's name if his or her identity is ascertainable with certainty from a consideration of the entire instrument, such as when the grantor signs and acknowledges the deed as the owner of the interest to be conveyed [Childs v. Newfield (1934) 136 Cal. App. 217, 222, 28 P.2d 924 ; see Strong v. Strong (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 540, 543-544, 140 P.2d 386 (suggesting in dictum that signature alone may be enough to convey signatory's interest)].

A person may assume any name in which to receive title to property, and a subsequent conveyance by that person under the assumed name will pass a good title [Knaugh v. Baender (1927) 84 Cal. App. 142, 148, 257 P. 606] . A grantor who takes title in one name and then wishes to transfer the title in another name must set forth in the deed the name under which he or she received title [Civ. Code § 1096]. If the deed does not comply with this requirement, it will be valid between the parties and those with notice, but the recordation of the instrument will not impart constructive notice of its contents to subsequent purchasers and encumbrancers [Civ. Code § 1096; see Benson v. Shotwell (1890) 87 Cal. 49, 56-57, 25 P. 249 (grantor's use of substantially different name in conveyance instrument breaks recorded chain of title and renders title unmarketable); but see discussion of Code Civ. Proc. § 770.010 et seq. in [4], below].

A statutory procedure exists for the establishment of the identity of a grantor of real property when a discrepancy exists between the name in which the grantor acquired his or her interest in the property and the name in which the grantor transferred the property. Under this procedure, if property is acquired or stands of record in the name of a person who thereafter transfers the property under a different name, any subsequent owner of the property may commence a proceeding to adjudicate and determine the identity of the person in whose name the property was acquired or stands of record and the person who transferred the property [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 770.020, 770.040(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 770.010 (definitions of "acquired," "property," "subsequent owner," and "transfer")]. Because the use by the grantor of a name other than the name under which he or she received title breaks the recorded chain of title and renders the title unmarketable [see Benson v. Shotwell (1890) 87 Cal. 49, 56-57, 25 P. 249 ; see also § 27.16[3], above], this adjudication of identity may be the only way to establish marketable title to the subject property [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 299, Identity, Establishment of (Matthew Bender)].

To obtain this adjudication of identity, the subsequent owner must file a verified petition in the superior court of the county in which all or a portion of the property is located [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 770.030, 770.040(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 770.050 (form and contents of petition)]. The clerk will set the petition for hearing by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 770.060(a)]. Thereafter, the petitioner must post notices of the time and place of the hearing at the courthouse where the proceeding is pending and in a conspicuous place on the subject property at least 10 days before the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 770.060(b), (c)]. Any person interested in the property may file an answer to the petition at any time before the date fixed for the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 770.040(b)].

At the hearing, the court will hear proof offered by the petitioner and by any persons answering the petition. It will then make and enter a decree determining the identity of the person or persons named in the petition [Code Civ. Proc. § 770.070(a)]. Any aggrieved party may appeal the decree [Code Civ. Proc. § 770.070(b)]. After the decree becomes final, it constitutes prima facie evidence of the matters determined, and the identity of every person described in the decree is presumed to be that stated in the decree [Code Civ. Proc. § 770.080(a)]. Finally, a certified copy of the decree must be recorded in the office of the county recorder of every county in which any part of the property is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 770.080(b)].

For further discussion, an illustrative petition, and related forms, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 299, Identity, Establishment of (Matthew Bender).

§ 27.17 Grantee

[1] Capacity to Take and Hold Title

The grantee under a deed may be a natural person [see Civ. Code § 671; see also Copeland v. Fairview Land & Water Co. (1913) 165 Cal. 148, 162, 131 P. 119 (contract purporting to transfer property to a fictitious person is void)] or any of the following entities: a corporation [Corp. Code § 207; Cavin Memorial Corp. v. Requa (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 345, 354, 85 Cal. Rptr. 107] ; a partnership [Corp. Code §§ 15008(3), 16204]; or an unincorporated association [Corp. Code §§ 18105, 18110; see Corp. Code § 21200 (capacity of unincorporated association that is organized as medical society)].

At the time of the conveyance, a grantee who is an individual must be living [Civ. Code § 1039] and must be capable of taking and holding title to real property [Rixford v. Zeigler (1907) 150 Cal. 435, 437, 88 P. 1092] . A child conceived, but not yet born, is deemed an existing person for these purposes [Civ. Code § 43.1; Scott v. McPheeters (1939) 33 Cal. App.2d 629, 631, 92 P.2d 678] . Although a minor cannot convey title to real property [see § 27.16[2]], he or she has capacity to receive and hold title to real property [In re Guardianship of Yano (1922) 188 Cal. 645, 649, 206 P. 995] . Aliens also have this capacity [Civ. Code § 671]. Convicts may inherit, own, sell, or convey real property, but the Department of Corrections may restrict or prohibit sales or conveyances that are made for business purposes [Penal Code § 2601(a)].

[2] Identification and Status

A deed must identify the grantee by name or by a designation or description that is sufficient to identify the grantee [Whitson v. Goudeseune (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 445, 447-448, 290 P.2d 590 ; see Green v. MacAdam (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 481, 485, 346 P.2d 474] . The deed may refer to the grantee by a fictitious or assumed name [Emery v. Kipp (1908) 154 Cal. 83, 86, 97 P. 17 ; see Knaugh v. Baender (1927) 84 Cal. App. 142, 148, 257 P. 606] .

A deed that conveys property to a group or a class of persons, such as the heirs or devisees of a decedent, will be valid if there is a method of determining the identities of the class members [California Trust Co. v. Kerckhoff-Cuzner Mill

Etc. Co. (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 628, 630, 55 P.2d 865 ; Schade v. Stewart (1928) 205 Cal. 658, 664-665, 272 P. 567 ; see Whitson v. Goudeseune (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 445, 448, 290 P.2d 590 (grant to "the owners of Lot 3 and their successors" was valid)]. However, a grant to a large group whose members' identities cannot be ascertained (for example, the inhabitants of a town) will not convey title to them [Winter v. Stock (1866) 29 Cal. 407, 411] .

Title companies may require the deed to identify the status of the grantee or grantees. This information is particularly important in the case of married grantees because of the presumptions regarding community property [see Fam. Code §§ 803, 2581; see also § 27.254[1]].

[3] Unnamed Grantee

Special problems exist when the deed does not set forth the grantee's name. As a general rule, such a deed is void [Bryce v. O'Brien (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 615, 616, 55 P.2d 488] . The deed becomes valid, however, if the name is subsequently filled in by the grantor or the grantor's authorized agent. An agent cannot validly insert the grantee's name (or the name of the grantor or a description of the property) unless the agent (1) has been authorized to do so by the grantor in writing [Green v. MacAdam (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 481, 486, 346 P.2d 474 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1971; Civ. Code § 1091], or (2) fills in the blank at the grantor's directions and in the grantor's presence [Alton v. Haywood (1934) 136 Cal. App. 191, 193, 28 P.2d 385] . However, if a third party fills in the blanks without the proper authorization, the grantor can make the deed valid by ratifying it in writing [see Jones v. Coulter (1925) 75 Cal. App. 540, 551-552, 243 P. 487 ; see also Civ. Code § 2310; California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 80, Deeds and Transfer of Title (Matthew Bender)].

The above rules regarding blank deeds do not apply to a deed delivered to an escrow holder with written instructions giving the escrow agent authority to insert the grantee's name [Tumansky v. Woodruff (1936) 14 Cal. App. 2d 279, 283, 57 P.2d 1372] . If a grantee accepts such a deed and fulfills the escrow conditions, he or she may at any time instruct the escrow holder to insert his or her name [Tumansky v. Woodruff (1936) 14 Cal. App. 2d 279, 283, 57 P.2d 1372] .

Property of any kind may be transferred [Civ. Code § 1044; but see Civ. Code § 1045 (mere possibility, such as the expectancy of an heir, that is not coupled with an interest cannot be transferred)]. Real (or "immovable") property consists of land [see Civ. Code § 660 (describing when a thing is deemed to be affixed to land)], that which is incidental or appurtenant to land, and certain items that are considered immovable by law [Civ. Code § 658]. It is essential that the deed accurately describe the real property being conveyed [see § 27.19[1]] and the interest that the grantee is to receive in that property [see § 27.20].

§ 27.19 Description of Property

[1] Identification of Property

A valid deed must contain a description of the subject property that either identifies the land or affords a means for its identification [Podd v. Anderson (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 660, 665, 30 Cal. Rptr. 345 ; see Civ. Code § 1092]. No special form of description is required, and a general description is sufficient [Vezaldenos v. Keller (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 816, 823, 62 Cal. Rptr. 808 ; see, e.g., Brusseau v. Hill (1927) 201 Cal. 225, 231, 256 P. 419 ("all the estate of the grantor" and "all my land" are sufficient); Civ. Code § 1092 (authorizing use of descriptive name, for example, "The Norris Ranch")]. A deed containing a vague and uncertain description is void [Du Bois v. Larke (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 737, 748-749, 346 P.2d 830] .

[2] Parol Evidence

When a deed contains an ambiguous description of the property, parol evidence is admissible to aid in interpreting the description [Edwards v. City of Santa Paula (1956) 138 Cal. App. 2d 375, 380, 292 P.2d 31] , that is, to determine the intention of the parties [Hixson v. Jones (1967) 253 Cal. App. 2d 860, 864, 61 Cal. Rptr. 883] . For example, parol evidence may be used to explain the description, or to show that the land described by some name or designation is generally known by that name [Corona Unified School Dist. v. Vejar (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 561, 564, 332 P.2d 294] .

[3] Incorporation by Reference

If a deed describes property by referring to another document, such as a map, with sufficient certainty to identify it, the other document is regarded as incorporated into the deed [Calvi v. Bittner (1961) 198 Cal. App. 2d 312, 316, 17 Cal. Rptr. 850] . If the reference to the other document is insufficient to identify it, the document will be incorporated into the deed only if it is shown that there is only one document which could correspond to the incomplete reference [Edwards v. City of Santa Paula (1956) 138 Cal. App. 2d 375, 381-382, 292 P.2d 31] .

[4] Consolidation of Legal Descriptions

The consolidation of separate and distinct legal descriptions of real property contained in one or more deeds or other instruments of conveyance into a subsequent single deed or other instrument of conveyance does not, absent the express written statement of the grantor, result in a merger of the separate and distinct parcels [Civ. Code § 1093]. This rule applies whether the consolidation is done by use of an individual listing of the legal descriptions in a subsequent single instrument or by means of a consolidated legal description composed of more than one previously separate and distinct legal description [Civ. Code § 1093].

§ 27.20 Interest or Estate Being Conveyed

[1] Overview of Classifications

An interest in real property is referred to as an "estate" [Civ. Code § 701]. The term "estate" signifies the degree, quantity, nature, and extent of the interest [Estate of Brunet (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 105, 107, 207 P.2d 567] . These interests or estates are classified by the Civil Code in several ways [Civ. Code § 701; see Civ. Code §§ 761-783.1], as discussed below. The classifications are not mutually exclusive.

[2] Period of Enjoyment

One way in which estates or interests in real property are classified is according to their time or period of enjoyment. Thus, every interest in property is either present or future, and either perpetual or limited [Civ. Code § 688(1), (2)].

A present interest entitles the owner to the immediate possession of the property [Civ. Code § 689]. The four basic types of present estates or interests in real property are (1) estates of inheritance or perpetual estates (fees) [see Civ. Code § 762 (every estate of inheritance is a fee, and every such estate, when not defeasible or conditional, is a fee simple or an absolute fee); see also Civ. Code § 1105 (grant deed is presumed to transfer fee simple title unless it appears from the deed that a lesser estate was intended)], (2) life estates, (3) estates for years, and (4) estates at will [Civ. Code § 761]. For further discussion of these estates, see § 27.103.

A future interest entitles the owner to the possession of the property only at a future time [Civ. Code § 690; see Civ. Code § 699 (future interests may be transferred)]. There are three basic categories of common-law future interests: reversionary interests (including powers of termination), remainders, and executory interests [see Restatement of Property, §§ 25(1), 154(1), 156; for further discussion of these future interests, see § 27.103]. A future interest is often drafted to take effect on the occurrence of a contingency. This contingency or condition precedent fixes the beginning of the grantee's right in the property [see Civ. Code § 708]. For a discussion of conditions precedent and subsequent, see § 27.20[3].

A perpetual interest has a duration equal to that of the property [Civ. Code § 691]. A limited interest has a duration less than that of the property [Civ. Code § 692].

[3] Conditions Precedent or Subsequent

If the time when the enjoyment of property is to begin or end depends on events, the enjoyment is said to be on condition [Civ. Code § 707]. A condition is a provision contained in an instrument of conveyance that modifies or rescinds the conveyance if the grantee or the grantee's successors fail to comply with the provision [Pedro v. Potter (1926) 197 Cal. 751, 758-759, 242 P. 926] .

Conditions are either precedent or subsequent. A condition precedent fixes the beginning of the right, and a condition subsequent fixes the ending of the right [Civ. Code § 708]. A fee simple subject to a condition subsequent is an estate that may be terminated by the grantor or the grantor's successors if a stated event occurs [Restatement of Property § 45; People ex. rel. Dept. of Public Works v. City of Fresno (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 500, 504-505, 26 Cal. Rptr. 853] . Following a breach of a condition subsequent, the grantor (or successors) must take positive action to regain possession of the property [People ex. rel. Dept of Public Works v. City of Fresno (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 500, 504-505, 26 Cal. Rptr. 853 ; City of Santa Monica v. Jones (1951) 104 Cal. App. 2d 463, 470, 232 P.2d 55 ; see Civ. Code § 885.050; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 336(b)]. The future interest of the grantor or successor that accompanies such a defeasible fee is a power of termination [Civ. Code § 885.010(a)(1)]. There are statutory limitations on the duration of a power of termination [see § 27.202[1][e]].

Due to the risk of forfeiture, conditions subsequent are disfavored by the courts and will be interpreted as covenants whenever possible [MacDonald Properties, Inc. v. Bel-Air Country Club (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 693, 699, 140 Cal. Rptr. 367 ; see Hawley v. Kafitz (1905) 148 Cal. 393, 394, 83 P. 248 ; see also § 27.21]. Further, any condition involving a forfeiture will be strictly interpreted against the party for whose benefit it is created [Civ. Code § 1442].

Although grantors have a great deal of freedom to impose conditions on transfers of property, there are several categories of impermissible conditions. For example, any condition in a deed of real property that purports to restrict the right of any person to sell, lease, rent, use, or occupy the property on the basis of invidious discrimination [see § 27.112, P 3] is void [Civ. Code § 782(a)].

For further discussion of conditions, see Ch. 28C, Covenants, Conditions, and Restrictions .

[4] Absolute or Qualified Ownership

Estates are also classified as to the quality of the interest that is held. The ownership of property is either absolute or qualified [Civ. Code § 678]. It is absolute when a single person has the absolute dominion over it and may use it or dispose of it according to his or her pleasure, subject only to general laws [Civ. Code § 679]. Ownership is qualified when it is shared with one or more persons, when the time of enjoyment is deferred or limited, or when the use is restricted [Civ. Code § 680].

[5] Number of Owners

Estates are further classified based on the number of persons holding interests in the subject property. The ownership of property by a single person is designated as a sole or several ownership [Civ. Code § 681]. Ownership by several persons must be in one of the following forms: joint tenancy, tenancy in partnership, tenancy in common, community property [Civ. Code § 682], or, effective July 1, 2002, community property with right of survivorship [Civ. Code § 682.1]. These forms are mutually exclusive [see Jacquemart v. Jacquemart (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 794, 796, 299 P.2d 281] .

When a deed names several grantees but does not set forth their respective interests, there is a rebuttable presumption that each grantee takes an equal interest [Anderson v. Broadwell (1931) 119 Cal. App. 150, 153] . Of course, joint tenants hold property in equal shares [Civ. Code § 683], and the respective interests of a husband and wife in community property are equal during the continuance of the marriage [Fam. Code § 751]. When the grantor wishes multiple grantees to hold property in unequal shares, the grantor should select a form of joint ownership that permits this (that is, tenancy in common or partnership interests) and specify the respective interests in the deed.

PRACTICE TIP:

Equity Shares. A common practice during the 1980s was for buyers to acquire property as tenants in common. The vehicle allowed a struggling young couple to use the creditworthiness (and down payment) of their parents to afford an expensive new home. The parents would reap the tax benefits, while the couple would build equity and share that equity with their parents. While changes to the tax law and home values have made this practice less attractive, it still exists and practitioners should be aware of the vehicle as a means of sharing equity between younger and older generations. Consultations with a tax adviser are necessary to insure that allocating tax benefits to one party to the detriment of the other is still appropriate. Commentary by Timothy F. O'Leary.

[6] Rule Against Perpetuities

Under the Uniform Statutory Rule Against Perpetuities (USRAP) [see Prob. Code § 21200 et seq.], a nonvested property interest is invalid unless one of the following conditions is satisfied:

- When the interest is created, it is certain to vest or terminate no later than 21 years after the death of an individual then alive; or

- The interest either vests or terminates within 90 years after its creation [Prob. Code § 21205].

However, the USRAP specifically excludes property interests arising out of "nondonative transfers" from its application [see Prob. Code § 21225(a); but see Prob. Code § 21225(a)(1)- (8) for exceptions for certain "domestic" transfers)]. "Nondonative" transfers are generally transfers that are supported by consideration [see Recommendation Relating to Uniform Statutory Rule Against Perpetuities, 20 Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Reports 2501, 2595 (1990)]. However, this is not always the case. If a transfer is essentially gratuitous in nature, it is to be regarded as donative even if it is supported by consideration [see Recommendation Relating to Uniform Statutory Rule Against Perpetuities, 20 Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Reports 2501, 2595 (1990)].

A detailed discussion of the rule against perpetuities and its operation in California is beyond the scope of this chapter. For detailed coverage of the USRAP, see Ch. 67, Future Interests and Perpetuities .

[7] After-Acquired Title

If a grantor attempts to convey a greater interest in real property than he or she owns, the deed will be valid only to the extent of the grantor's interest in the land [Goldman v. Goldman (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 227, 242, 253 P.2d 474] . However, pursuant to the doctrine of after-acquired title, if the grantor does not acquire an interest in the conveyed property until after the execution of the conveyance, that interest will, in some cases, also pass under the deed, whether or not the grantor had any title to the conveyed property at the time he or she executed the deed [Maxwell v. Carlon (1939) 30 Cal. App. 2d 356, 361, 86 P.2d 666 ; see Schwenn v. Kaye (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 949, 952-954, 202 Cal. Rptr. 374] .

The bases for the doctrine of after-acquired title are estoppel and statute. Under the common law, if the grantor states on the face of the instrument, in any way, that he or she is seized or possessed of a particular estate, and the deed purports to convey that estate, the grantor and all persons in privity with the grantor will be estopped from denying that the grantor owned that estate at the time the deed was executed [Clark v. Baker (1860) 14 Cal. 612, 629 ; see also Barberi v. Rothchild (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 537, 540-541, 61 P.2d 760] .

Under the statutory rule governing after-acquired title, if a person purports by proper instrument to grant real property in fee simple, and subsequently acquires any title (or claim of title) to the property, the title or claim of title passes by operation of law to the grantee or the grantee's successors [Civ. Code § 1106]. Thus, a grant deed that transfers a fee simple title transfers after-acquired title [Schwenn v. Kaye (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 949, 952, 202 Cal. Rptr. 374 ; Klamath Land & Cattle Co. v. Roemer (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 613, 618, 91 Cal. Rptr. 112 ; see Civ. Code § 1105; § 27.11[1]].

Because a quitclaim deed transfers whatever present interest or estate the grantor has in the property [see § 27.11[2]], the doctrine of after-acquired title normally does not apply [see Civ. Code § 1106; Taylor v. Coachella Valley Water Dist. (1952) 108 Cal. App. 2d 743, 745, 239 P.2d 454] . However, if the quitclaim deed conveys an equitable estate and legal title later vests in the grantor, that title is deemed to be transferred to the grantee [Klamath Land & Cattle Co. v. Roemer (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 613, 618-619, 91 Cal. Rptr. 112] . Further, if a quitclaim deed contains language indicating an intention not to limit the interest conveyed to the grantor's present interest, or expressly or impliedly affirms the existence of a particular estate and an intention by the parties to have the deed convey that estate, the grantor may be estopped from asserting an after-acquired title or interest in contradiction to the terms or implications of the quitclaim deed [Estate of Wilson (1940) 40 Cal. App. 2d 229, 232-233, 104 P.2d 716] .

The doctrine applies only as long as the grantee has some estate, interest, or claim in the conveyed property [Garabaldi v. Shattuck (1886) 70 Cal. 511, 513, 11 P. 778] . If the grantee no longer has any estate in the property, the grantor's new title does not pass to the grantee [Garabaldi v. Shattuck (1886) 70 Cal. 511, 513, 11 P. 778] . For example, if the grantor, following the initial conveyance, acquires the grantee's property at an execution or judicial sale or through adverse possession, the grantee no longer has any interest in the property, and the grantor's acquisition will not pass to the grantee as after-acquired property [McCune v. McCune (1937) 23 Cal. App. 2d 295, 297, 72 P.2d 883 (execution sale); Garabaldi v. Shattuck (1886) 70 Cal. 511, 512, 11 P. 778 (adverse possession)].

Although the terms "reservation" and "exception" are frequently used interchangeably to refer to a clause in a deed that detracts from what the grantee would otherwise receive under the deed, there are material differences between the two terms [Main v. Legnitto (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 667, 677, 41 Cal. Rptr. 223] . A reservation in a deed allows the grantor's entire interest in the subject property to pass to the grantee, but revests a newly created interest in the grantor or a third party [Willard v. First Church of Christ, Scientist (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 473, 476, 102 Cal. Rptr. 739 ; see Caffroy v. Fremlin (1961) 198 Cal. App. 2d 176, 182, 17 Cal. Rptr. 668 (reservation may be through an instrument collateral to the deed); see also Holmes v. Nay (1921) 186 Cal. 231, 237, 199 P. 325 (reservation may be implied)]. An exception prevents part of the grantor's interest from passing to the grantee [Willard v. First Church of Christ, Scientist (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 473, 476 n.1, 102 Cal. Rptr. 739] . Consequently, the excepted interest remains in the grantor, and the exception does not vest an interest in a third party [Willard v. First Church of Christ, Scientist (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 473, 476 n.1, 102 Cal. Rptr. 739] .

The question of whether a particular provision in a deed is an exception or a reservation is not conclusively determined by the use of the term "reservation" or "exception" alone. Instead, the resolution of this issue depends on the real intention of the parties as ascertained from the whole conveyance [Main v. Legnitto (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 667, 677-678, 41 Cal. Rptr. 223 ; see Coon v. Sonoma Magnesite Co. (1920) 182 Cal. 597, 601-602, 189 P. 271 (when a clause in a conveyance excepted "a strip of land... for a road to be built at some future time," the phrase "for a road" modified the entire clause and indicated that the parties intended to reserve a right-of-way for a road)].

§ 27.21 Restrictions on Use of Property

A grantor may wish to restrict the grantee's use and enjoyment of the conveyed property. One common method of accomplishing this purpose is the insertion in the deed of a condition subsequent [see § 27.20[3]]. Another option is the restrictive covenant. A restrictive covenant is a promise to refrain from doing certain things in regard to the use of land [Sackett v. Los Angeles City School Dist. (1931) 118 Cal. App. 254, 257, 5 P.2d 23 ; see Civ. Code §§ 1460-1470 (prerequisites for binding restrictive covenants affecting real property)]. The covenant may be created in a deed or in a separate agreement [see Civ. Code § 1468]. It may run with the land and therefore be binding and enforceable by successive owners of the properties benefitted and burdened by the covenant, or may be personal and enforceable only by the parties to the agreement [Civ. Code § 1468]. The covenantee (that is, the person benefitted by the restriction on use) holds a property interest in the land [see Southern Cal. Edison Co. v. Bourgerie (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 169, 171, 107 Cal. Rptr. 76, 507 P.2d 964 ; Redevelopment Agency v. Tobriner (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 367, 374-375, 200 Cal. Rptr. 364] .

For detailed coverage of covenants, see Ch. 28C, Covenants, Conditions and Restrictions . The form in § 28C.220 consists of a deed that incorporates prior recorded restrictive covenants into the conveyance. For additional discussion of covenants, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 184, Deeds, § 184.60 et seq. (Matthew Bender).

CHAPTER 27 DEEDS AND RECORDING
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

11-27 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 27.22

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary, Practice Consultant

§ 27.22 Removal of Unlawful Restrictions in Recorded Documents

[1] Unlawful Restrictive Covenants

It is unlawful to discriminate through public or private land use practices, decisions, and authorizations because of race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, familial status, marital status, disability, national origin, source of income, or ancestry. Discrimination includes, but is not limited to, restrictive covenants, whether or not accompanied by a statement that the restrictive covenant is repealed or void [Gov. Code § 12955 (l)].

[2] Recordation of Restrictive Covenant Modification

[a] Owner May Record Modification Document

A person who holds an ownership interest of record in property and believes that the interest is the subject of an unlawfully restrictive covenant in violation of Gov. Code § 12955 (l) [see § 27.22[1]] may record a document titled "Restrictive Covenant Modification." The county recorder may choose to waive the fee prescribed for recording and indexing instruments [see Gov. Code § 27361] in the case of the modification document. The modification document must include a complete copy of the original document containing the unlawfully restrictive language with the unlawfully restrictive language struck out [Gov. Code § 12956.2(a)].

The county recorder must make available to the public "Restrictive Covenant Modification" forms [Gov. Code § 12956.2(e)].

If the holder of an ownership interest of record in property causes a modified document to be recorded that contains modifications not authorized by Gov. Code § 12956.2, the county recorder will not incur liability for recording the document. Any liability that may result from the unauthorized recordation is the sole responsibility of the holder of the ownership interest of record who caused the document to be recorded [Gov. Code § 12956.2(f)].

Gov. Code § 12956.2 does not apply to persons holding an ownership interest in property that is part of a common interest development [see Civ. Code § 1351(c) (definition)] if the board of directors of that common interest development is subject to the requirements of Civ. Code § 1352.5(b), which proscribes restrictive covenants in any declaration or other governing document for the development [Gov. Code § 12956.2(g)].

[b] County Counsel Must First Examine Documents

Before recording the modification document, the county recorder must submit the modification document and the original document to the county counsel, who must determine whether the original document contains an unlawful restriction based on race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, familial status, marital status, disability, national origin, source of income [see Gov. Code § 12955(p) (definition)], or ancestry. The county counsel must return the documents and inform the county recorder of the determination. The county recorder must refuse to record the modification document if the county counsel finds that the original document does not contain an unlawful restriction [Gov. Code § 12956.2(b)].

[c] Modification Is Indexed Same as Original

The modification document must be indexed in the same manner as the original document being modified. It must contain a recording reference to the original document in the form of a book and page or instrument number and the date of the recording [Gov. Code § 12956.2(c)].

[d] Restrictions in Modification Are Paramount

Subject to covenants, conditions, and restrictions that were recorded after the recording of the original document that contains the unlawfully restrictive language and subject to covenants, conditions, and restrictions that will be recorded after the modification document, the restrictions in the modification document, once recorded, are the only restrictions having effect on the property. The effective date of the terms and conditions of the modification document must be the same as the original document's effective date [Gov. Code § 12956.2(d)].

[e] Adding Racially Restrictive Covenant Is Offense

Any person who records a document for the express purpose of adding a racially restrictive covenant is guilty of a misdemeanor. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, a prosecution for a violation must commence within three years after the discovery of the document's recording. The county recorder will not incur any liability for recording the document [Gov. Code § 12956.1(c)].

[3] Duty to Inform Persons That Unlawful Restrictions Are Removable

A county recorder, title insurance company, escrow company, real estate broker, real estate agent, or association that provides a copy of a declaration, governing document, or deed to any person must place a cover page or stamp on the first page of the previously recorded document or documents stating, in at least 14-point boldface type, the following [Gov. Code § 12956.1(a), (b)(1); see Civ. Code § 1351 (definitions of "association," "governing document," and "declaration")]:

> If this document contains any restriction based on race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, familial status, marital status, disability, national origin, source of income as defined in subdivision (p) of Section 12955, or ancestry, that restriction violates state and federal fair housing laws and is void, and may be removed pursuant to Section 12956.2 of the Government Code. Lawful restrictions under state and federal law on the age of occupants in senior housing or housing for older persons shall not be construed as restrictions based on familial status.

However, the requirement does not apply to documents being submitted for recordation to a county recorder [Gov. Code

To be valid, a deed must contain words that indicate an intention to transfer an interest in the subject property from one person to another [Cordano v. Wright (1911) 159 Cal. 610, 618, 115 P. 227] . No precise words are required so long as the language used discloses an intent to make a present conveyance [*Carman v. Athearn (1947) 77 Cal. § 27.24 Consideration

A deed given without consideration is valid [Freeman v. La Morte (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 670, 673, 307 P.2d 734 ; see Civ. Code § 1040 (consideration is not necessary for voluntary transfer); but see Bertelsen v. Bertelson (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 479, 484, 122 P.2d 130 (attorney in fact cannot make a deed without consideration)]. Consequently, a deed may not be rescinded on the grounds of failure of consideration unless (1) performance or payment of the consideration is made a condition subsequent [Lavely v. Nonemaker (1931) 212 Cal. 380, 382, 298 P. 976 ; see Teel v. Bank of Eureka (1941) 42 Cal. App. 2d 807, 809-811, 110 P.2d 78 ; see also § 27.20[3]], or (2) the deed was obtained through the use of fraud or undue influence [Jackson v. Gorham (1929) 98 Cal. App. 112, 115, 276 P. 391 ; Schott v. Schott (1914) 168 Cal. 342, 344-346, 143 P. 595 ; see Civ. Code §§ 3439.04, 3439.07, 3439.08]. The gross inadequacy of consideration is a factor in determining whether fraud and undue influence were present [Sparks v. Sparks (1950) 101 Cal. App. 2d 129, 136-137, 225 P.2d 238] .

§ 27.25 Execution

[1] Requirement of Execution

To be valid, a deed must be executed by the grantor or an authorized agent of the grantor [Civ. Code § 1091; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1971; see also [2], below]. A grantor who cannot write can satisfy this requirement by making a mark [Civ. Code § 14]. If the mark is to be acknowledged [see § 27.27[2]], the following requirements must be satisfied [Civ. Code § 14]:

- It must be witnessed by two persons;
- Those persons must subscribe their own names as witnesses near the grantor's mark; and
- One of the witnesses must write the grantor's name near the grantor's mark.

If the mark will not be acknowledged, only one witness is required to perform the above tasks [Civ. Code § 14].

[2] By Agent

An agent's authority to execute a deed must be in writing [Civ. Code § 1091; see Civ. Code § 2309; Code Civ. Proc. § 1971]. If, as is usually the case, this written authorization is in the form of a power of attorney [see Prob. Code § 4014, 4022 (definitions of "attorney in fact" and "power of attorney," respectively); see also Ch. 98, Powers of Attorney], the attorney in fact must sign both the grantor's name and his or her own name as attorney in fact [Civ. Code § 1095; see Hodge v. Hodge (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 31, 33-36, 64 Cal. Rptr. 587 (failure to comply with this requirement invalidates transaction)]. Exceptions to the written authorization requirement permit (1) a grantor to orally request a third party to sign the deed for the grantor, provided the signature is written in the grantor's presence, and (2) a third party to aid the grantor in signing the deed, if the signature is acknowledged by words or acts [Rich v. Ervin (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 386, 395, 194 P.2d 809] .

[3] By Husband and Wife

Both spouses must join in executing any instrument by which community real property [see Fam. Code § 760 ("community property" defined)] or any interest in such property is sold, conveyed, encumbered, or leased for a period of more than one year [Fam. Code § 1102(a)]. The spouses may do this personally or by duly authorized representative [Fam. Code § 1102(a)]. This restriction does not apply to leases, mortgages, conveyances, or transfers of real property or any interest in real property between the spouses [Fam. Code § 1102(b)].

[4] By One Spouse

Notwithstanding the joint execution requirement set forth in Fam. Code § 1102 [see § 27.25[2]], a sole deed, lease, contract, or mortgage of either spouse holding record title to community real property to a purchaser, lessee, or encumbrancer who acts in good faith and without knowledge of the marriage relation is presumed valid if executed on or after 1974 [Fam. Code § 1102(c)(2)]. This rebuttable presumption also applies to any lease, contract, mortgage, or deed executed before that date by a husband [Fam. Code § 1102(c)(1)]. An action to avoid an instrument that is executed by one spouse alone and that affects real property to which that spouse alone holds record title may not be commenced more than one year after the instrument has been filed in the recorder's office in the county in which the land is situated [Fam. Code § 1102(d)]. Further, it does not prevent either spouse from encumbering his or her interest in community property, pursuant to Fam. Code § 2033, to pay reasonable attorneys' fees in order to retain or maintain legal counsel in a proceeding for dissolution of marriage, for nullity of marriage, or for legal separation [Fam. Code § 1102(e)].

When one spouse is named as record title holder and is conveying title to property that the spouse claims is his or her separate property, the grantee should insist (1) that the nongrantor spouse first execute a quitclaim deed to the property to the grantor spouse [see § 27.203[2]], or (2) that the nongrantor spouse execute a written waiver or statement indicating that he or she has no interest in the property being sold and will execute a quitclaim deed if necessary. For an illustrative waiver, see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements .

§ 27.26 Property Held and Instruments Executed with Former Spouse

[1] Joint Tenancy with Former Spouse

A joint tenancy between a decedent and the decedent's former spouse, created before or during the marriage, is severed as to the decedent's interest if, at the time of the decedent's death, the former spouse is not the decedent's surviving spouse (as defined in Prob. Code § 78) as a result of the marriage's dissolution or annulment [Prob. Code § 5601(a)]. This also applies to property held as community property with a right of survivorship [Prob. Code § 5601(d); see Civ. Code § 682.1]. A judgment of legal separation that does not terminate the status of husband and wife is not a dissolution for these purposes [Prob. Code § 5601(a)]. In any case, a joint tenancy is not severed by this provision in either of these situations [Prob. Code § 5601(b)]:

- If the joint tenancy is not subject to severance by the decedent at the time of the decedent's death; or
- If there is clear and convincing evidence that the decedent intended to preserve the joint tenancy in favor of the former spouse.

In addition, this provision does not affect the rights of a subsequent purchaser or encumbrancer for value in good faith who relies on an apparent severance under these provisions or who lacks knowledge of a severance under these provisions [Prob. Code § 5601(c)]. Similarly, this does not affect the rights of a purchaser or encumbrancer of real property for value who in good faith relies on an affidavit or a declaration under penalty of perjury that includes the information and statements specified by statute [Prob. Code § 5602(a)]. A person relying on the affidavit or declaration has no duty to inquire into the truth of these statements [Prob. Code § 5602(b); see Prob. Code § 5602(c) (affidavit or declaration may be recorded)].

These provisions apply to instruments creating a joint tenancy, whether the instrument was executed before, on, or after the operative date of January 1, 2002 [Prob. Code § 5604(a), (b); see Prob. Code § 5604(c) (when provisions not applicable)]. Nothing in these provisions is intended to limit the court's authority to order a party to a dissolution or marriage to preserve a joint tenancy in favor of the former spouse [Prob. Code § 5603].

[2] Nonprobate Transfer to Former Spouse

A nonprobate transfer to the transferor's former spouse, in an instrument executed by the transferee before or during the marriage, fails if the former spouse is not the transferor's surviving spouse [see Prob. Code § 78 (definition)] at the time of the transferor's death as a result of the marriage's dissolution or annulment [Prob. Code § 5600(a); see Prob. Code § 5600(e) (definition of nonprobate transfer)]. A judgment of legal separation that does not terminate the status of husband and wife is not a dissolution for these purposes [Prob. Code § 5600(a)]. However, a nonprobate transfer does not fail in the following situations [Prob. Code § 5600(b)]:

- If the nonprobate transfer is not subject to revocation by the transferor at the time of the transferor's death.

- If there is clear and convincing evidence that the transferor intended to preserve the nonprobate transfer for the former spouse.

- If a court order requiring that the nonprobate transfer be maintained on behalf of the former spouse is in effect at the time of the transferor's death.

These provisions apply to instruments making a nonprobate transfer, whether the instrument was executed before, on, or after the operative date of January 1, 2002 [Prob. Code § 5604(a), (b); see Prob. Code § 5604(c) (when provisions not applicable)]. Nothing in these provisions is intended to limit the court's authority to order a party to a dissolution or marriage to maintain the former spouse as a beneficiary on any nonprobate transfer [Prob. Code § 5603].

CHAPTER 27 DEEDS AND RECORDING
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

11-27 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 27.27

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary, Practice Consultant

§ 27.27 Acknowledgment and Recordation

[1] Effect

Every conveyance of real property that is acknowledged (or proved), certified, and recorded constitutes constructive notice of its contents to subsequent purchasers and mortgagees [Civ. Code § 1213; see Civ. Code § 18 (constructive notice is that which is imputed by law)]. If a deed is not recorded, it is valid as between the parties and those who have notice of the deed [Civ. Code § 1217; see Devereaux v. Frazier Mountain Park & Fisheries Co. (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 323, 328, 56 Cal. Rptr. 345] but is void as against any subsequent bona fide purchaser or mortgagee for value whose conveyance is first duly recorded [Civ. Code § 1214]. Thus, the grantee should record the deed as soon as possible after receipt to prevent third parties from obtaining superior rights and to negate any claims of lack of delivery [see § 27.31].

[2] Requirements for Acknowledgment

Before a deed can be recorded, its execution must be acknowledged or proved and the acknowledgment or proof certified [Gov. Code § 27287; see Civ. Code §§ 1198, 1199; for requirements governing proof of execution of unacknowledged instrument, see § 27.121, P 3]. Proof of execution may be used in lieu of acknowledgment only for a trustee's deed or a deed of reconveyance [Civ. Code § 1195(b)]. Proof of execution in lieu of acknowledgment of a grant deed, mortgage, deed of trust, quitclaim deed, or security agreement is not permitted, pursuant to Gov. Code § 27287 [Civ. Code § 1195(b)]. An acknowledgment is a statement that an instrument was in fact signed by the person whose signature appears on the document [see, e.g., Civ. Code § 1189]. A certificate of acknowledgment is a formal declaration by an authorized officer [see Civ. Code § 1180 et seq.], usually a notary public, that the executing party made the acknowledgment in the officer's presence and that the officer either knew the executing party personally or had satisfactory evidence that the party was the individual who was described in and who executed the instrument [Civ. Code § 1185(a)].

Civ. Code § 1189 sets forth one statutory certificate of acknowledgment form that must be used when the acknowledgment is taken within this state [see Civ. Code § 1189(a)]. Although there are no longer any special requirements applicable solely to certificates of acknowledgment executed by certain corporate officers [see former Civ.

Code § 1190.1], Civ. Code § 1190 now provides that the execution of a certificate of acknowledgment on behalf of an incorporated or unincorporated entity by a duly authorized person will provide special protections regarding the authorization for the underlying transaction [Civ. Code § 1190]. For further discussion, see § 27.271[1].

All acknowledgments of deeds, quitclaim deeds, or deed of trust affecting real property (other than a trustee's deed resulting from a decree of foreclosure or a nonjudicial foreclosure pursuant to Civ. Code § 2924, or a deed of reconveyance) require the right thumbprint of the party signing the document [see Gov. Code § 8206(a)(2)(G); see Gov. Code § 8214.23 (notary public is subject to civil penalty for failure to obtain thumbprint)].

[3] Place of Recording

After being duly acknowledged or proved and certified, the deed must be recorded in the county in which the subject real property is situated [Civ. Code §§ 1169, 1170]. A certified copy of the instrument may be recorded in any other county, and, when so recorded, will have the same force and effect as if it were the original deed [Civ. Code § 1218]. If the original is recorded in a county where the real property is not situated, then a certified copy may be filed in the county where the real property is situated and will have the same force and effect as the original [Civ. Code § 1213].

[4] Required Taxes and Tax Statement

A deed will not be accepted for recording unless it sets forth, across the bottom of the first page, the name and address to which future tax statements may be mailed [Gov. Code § 27321.5(a)]. The failure to provide this information, or any misstatement of the required information, will not affect the validity of the deed or the notice imparted by recordation [Gov. Code § 27321.5].

California counties may tax transfers of real property [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11911(a)]. Also, cities within counties that have imposed such a tax may also tax these transfers [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11911(b); see Rev. & Tax. Code § 11911(c) (credit allowed against county transfer tax for amount of any transfer tax imposed by city)]. A recorder cannot record a deed unless any required documentary transfer tax or taxes have been paid [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11933]. However, if the recorder records the deed anyway, failure to collect the tax does not affect the constructive notice imparted by the recordation of the deed [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11933].

[5] Computer-Related Innovations

[a] Recordation of Digitized Image From Government Entity

The recorder of any county may, in lieu of accepting a written paper, accept for recording digitized images or digital images, or both, of a recordable instrument, paper, or notice, if both of the following conditions are satisfied [Gov. Code § 27279(b); but see Gov. Code §§ 27279.1-27279.3 (special requirements for Orange and San Bernardino Counties)]:

- The image conforms to all other applicable statutes that prescribe recordability, except the requirement of original signatures [see Gov. Code § 27201(b) (signature requirement)]; and

- The requester and addressee for delivery of the recorded images are the same and can be readily identified as a local or state government entity, or an agency, branch, or instrumentality of the federal government.

Under the direction of the Attorney General, the Electronic Recordation Task Force has a mandate to address the technical, legal, security, and economic issues associated with electronic recordation, and to make recommendations to the Legislature regarding (1) which persons and entities should be authorized to digitize and record documents electronically, in order to limit real property fraud, forgery, and consumer risks associated with electronic recordation and provide a cost benefit to counties; (2) guidelines for the standardization of both software and hardware used by counties to ensure maximum efficiency and cost-effectiveness and maximum use of the electronic recordation process by authorized requesters; and (3) appropriate recording fees and other assessments to cover increased costs to both county recorders and requesters [Gov. Code § 27279.4(a)].

[b] Electronic Transmission of Digital File for Recording

The Electronic Recording Delivery Act [Gov. Code § 27390 et seq.] authorizes the digitized electronic delivery, recording, and return of instruments submitted by title insurers [see Ins. Code § 12340.4 (definition)], underwritten title companies [see Ins. Code § 12340.5 (definition)], institutional lenders [see Fin. Code § 50003(k)(l), (2), (4) (definition)], and government entities. By limiting the entities that may use electronic transmission, the Legislature intends to enable county recorders, county district attorneys, and the Attorney General to develop an electronic recording delivery system that will protect property owners and lenders from fraud and identity theft. The Act imposes specific requirements for electronic recording of instruments generally; however, the authorized entities may submit digitized or digital electronic records for instruments of reconveyance, substitution of trustees, or assignment of deeds of trust without meeting the specific requirements [Gov. Code § 27397.5] because those instruments are not likely to result in consumer fraud. The Legislature will consider expanding this system to cover additional submitting entities and digital electronic records based on experience with the system [2004 Stats., ch. 621, § 1].

§ 27.28 Special Procedures for Los Angeles and Riverside Counties

In Los Angeles County or Riverside County, the recorder may require, as a condition of recording, that a deed, quitclaim deed, or deed of trust indicate the assessor's identification numbers that fully contain all, or a portion of, the real property described in the legal description. If the description contains more than one assessor's parcel, all assessor's parcels must be indicated. The form of the entry must be substantially as follows: "Assessor's Identification Number _____-_____-_____." The recorder, within 30 days after recordation of a deed, quitclaim deed, or deed of trust, may mail a notice of this requirement to the party or parties executing the document [Gov. Code §§ 27297.6(a), 27297.7(a); see Gov. Code §§ 27297.6(d), 27297.7(d) (competitive bid requirements apply to any contract for processing or mailing this notice)]. This requirement does not apply to the recordation of any document under which the federal government, the state, or any county, city, or subdivision of the state acquires title [Gov. Code §§ 27297.6(b), 27297.7(b)]. The recorder's failure to provide this notice will not result in any liability against the recorder or the county. If the notice is returned to the recorder by the U.S. Postal Service as undeliverable, the recorder is not required to retain the returned notice [Gov. Code §§ 27297.6(c), 27297.7(c)]. In addition to any other recording fee, the recorder may collect a fee from a party (other than a governmental entity) filing a deed, quitclaim deed, or deed of trust, which must not exceed the mailing cost of the foregoing notice and in any event must not exceed $7 [Gov. Code § 27387.1].

§ 27.29 Recorder's Liability and Treatment of Unrecordable Documents

A recorder is liable for damages resulting from the recorder's neglecting or refusing to record an instrument proved or acknowledged according to law or any notice that may by law be recorded, as well as other specified actions or failures to act [Gov. Code § 27203(a)(1); see Gov. Code § 27203(b)- (d)]. However, a recorder is not liable for neglecting or refusing to record an instrument, paper, or notice that the recorder has determined to be an unrecordable document [Gov. Code § 27203(a)(1); see Gov. Code § 27201]. If a person presents a document to the recorder that the recorder determines to be unrecordable, the recorder may provide to that person a form stating the recorder's reason for refusing to record the document and the following information [Gov. Code § 27203(a)(2)]:

- The person has the right to judicial review of the recorder's refusal to record the document, in a court of competent jurisdiction.

- It is a public offense to make any further attempt to record the document without an order of the court as provided by Gov. Code § 27204.

A person who receives a form from the recorder stating that the proffered document is unrecordable, and who subsequently attempts to record the document without an order from the court requiring recordation of the document is guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by incarceration in a county jail not exceeding six months, a fine not exceeding $1,000, or both, or is guilty of an infraction punishable pursuant to Penal Code § 19.8 [Gov. Code § 27204].

The recorder must keep a correct copy of a rejected document [Gov. Code § 27203(a)(2)]. If the document is determined by the court to be a recordable document, the recorder must pay the filing fees for the judicial review proceeding and must record the document within a reasonable time [Gov. Code § 27203(a)(2)].

CHAPTER 27 DEEDS AND RECORDING
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

11-27 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 27.30

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary, Practice Consultant

§ 27.30 Public Inspection of Records

Under the California Public Records Act [Gov. Code § 6250 et seq.], public records are open to inspection at all times during the office hours of the state or local agency, and every person has a right to inspect any public record, except as otherwise provided [Gov. Code § 6253(a)]. Any reasonably segregable portion of a record must be available for inspection by any person requesting the record after deletion of the portions that are exempted by law [Gov. Code § 6253(a); see Gov. Code § 6252 ("public agency," "public records," and other terms defined); see also Gov. Code § 6252.5 (elected member or officer of state or local agency has access to public records on same basis as any other person)]. Within 10 days from the receipt of a request for documents, the agency must determine whether the request, in whole or in part, seeks copies of disclosable public records, and must promptly notify the person making the request concerning the agency's determination and the reasons for that determination, although special circumstances defined by statute may allow for an extension to 14 days [Gov. Code § 6253(c); see Gov. Code § 6253(d) (agency may not obstruct copying of public records; any notification of denial of any request must set forth name and title or position of each person responsible for denial)]. When the agency dispatches the determination, and the agency determines that the request seeks disclosable public records, the agency must state the estimated date and time when the records will be made available [Gov. Code § 6253(c)].

Records that are not exempt from public disclosure must be made promptly available, on payment of fees covering the direct costs of duplication, or a statutory fee, if applicable, unless the records are exempt from disclosure [see Gov. Code § 6253(b); see also Gov. Code § 6253(e) (faster, more efficient, or greater access to records is permissible)]. Certain state and local bodies must establish written guidelines for accessibility of records, and these guidelines must be posted at the agency and made available to any person who requests them [Gov. Code § 6253.4(a)]. Every agency may adopt regulations stating the procedures to be followed when making its records available, in accordance with statutory requirements [Gov. Code § 6253.4(a); see Gov. Code § 6253.4(b)].

Any agency that has information that constitutes an identifiable public record that is in electronic format must make that information available in an electronic format when requested by any person, unless the record is exempt from disclosure or disclosure is otherwise prohibited by law [Gov. Code § 6253.9(a); see Gov. Code § 6253.9(g); see also Gov. Code §

6255]. The agency must make the information available in any electronic format in which it holds the information, and the cost charged for duplication is limited to the direct cost of producing a copy of the record in electronic format [Gov. Code § 6253.9(a)]. However, if the request requires that the agency produce the record at a different time than it typically produces the information, or the request requires data compilation, extraction, or programming, then the requester must bear that cost [Gov. Code § 6253.9(b)].

When a member of the public requests to inspect a public record or obtain a copy of a public record, the public agency must assist the requesting person in making a focused and effective request that reasonably describes identifiable records [Gov. Code § 6253.1(a)]. As part of that assistance, and in addition to the requirements imposed on the agency by Gov. Code § 6253, the public agency must do all of the following to the extent reasonable under the circumstances [Gov. Code § 6253.1(a), (c)]:

- Assist the member of the public to identify the records and information that are responsive to the request or to the purpose of the request, if stated.

- Describe the information technology and physical location in which the records exist.

- Provide suggestions for overcoming any practical basis for denying access to the records or the information sought.

A public agency is deemed to have satisfied these requirements if it is unable to identify the requested information after making a reasonable effort to elicit additional clarifying information from the requester that will help identify the record or records [Gov. Code § 6253.1(b)]. In addition, these requirements do not apply to a request for public records if the public agency (1) makes available the requested records in accordance with Gov. Code § 6253, (2) determines that the request should be denied because the records are exempt from disclosure under Gov. Code § 6254, or (3) makes available an index of its records [Gov. Code § 6253.1(d)].

Certain records are exempt from public inspection [see Gov. Code § 6254]. If records are withheld from public inspection, the agency doing so must justify that action either on the ground that the record in question is exempt under an express provision of law or on the ground that on the facts of the particular case, the public interest served by not making the record public clearly outweighs the public interest served by disclosure of the record [Gov. Code § 6255(a); see Gov. Code §§ 6258, 6258.5, 6259 (court enforcement of right to inspect or copy public record)]. A response to a written request for inspection or copies of public records that includes a determination that the request is denied, in whole or in part, must be in writing [Gov. Code § 6255(b)].

CHAPTER 27 DEEDS AND RECORDING
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

11-27 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 27.31

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary, Practice Consultant

§ 27.31 Delivery

[1] Requirements

A deed will not take effect and transfer title to the grantee until the grantor delivers the deed with the intent to transfer title [Civ. Code § 1054; Perry v. Wallner (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 218, 221, 23 Cal. Rptr. 352 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1933]. No particular form of delivery is required [Steitz v. Irwin (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 871, 876, 211 P.2d 919] . The manual transfer of the deed by the grantor to the grantee or other change of possession of the deed is not required [Civ. Code § 1059; Lavely v. Nonemaker (1931) 212 Cal. 380, 387, 298 P. 976] . Instead, the essential requirement for a valid delivery is the present intention by the grantor to deliver title [see Gonzales v. Gonzales (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 428, 435, 73 Cal. Rptr. 83] . A legal delivery does not occur unless the grantor intends to divest himself or herself of the title to the subject property [Camperi v. Chiechi (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 485, 506, 286 P.2d 399] . Specifically, the grantor must intend that the deed pass title in the following ways: (1) unconditionally [Civ. Code § 1056; see § 27.31[2], below], (2) irrevocably [Danenberg v. O'Connor (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 194, 200, 15 Cal. Rptr. 667] , and (3) immediately [Gonzales v. Gonzales (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 428, 435 ; see § 27.31[3], below].

A deed that has not been "actually delivered," that is, executed and delivered with the requisite intent by the grantor, will be deemed constructively delivered if either of the following conditions is satisfied [Civ. Code § 1059]:

- The parties agree at the time of execution that the grantee is entitled to immediate delivery and that the deed has been delivered [see Perry v. Wallner (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 218, 222, 23 Cal. Rptr. 352 (grantor must manifest, by words or conduct, that he or she considered deed completely executed and title conveyed)]; or

- The deed is delivered to a third party for the grantee's benefit, and the grantee's assent is shown or may be presumed.

Whether a valid delivery has been made is a question of fact [Meyer v. Wall (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 24, 27, 75 Cal.

Rptr. 236 ; Mecchi v. Picchi (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 470, 482, 54 Cal. Rptr. 1] . A trial court may consider evidence of the circumstances surrounding the transaction [Meyer v. Wall (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 24, 27, 75 Cal. Rptr. 236] , including the grantor's declarations made before and after the alleged delivery [Mecchi v. Picchi (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 470, 478, 54 Cal. Rptr. 1 ; Coffey v. Cooper (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 464, 468, 8 Cal. Rptr. 358] .

[2] Conditional Delivery

A deed cannot be conditionally delivered [Civ. Code § 1056]. If a deed that is absolute on its face is delivered to the grantee with oral conditions attached, the oral conditions will be disregarded and the title will vest in the grantee free of the foregoing conditions [Civ. Code § 1056; Meyer v. Wall (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 24, 27, 75 Cal. Rptr. 236] . Oral conditions, however, may be considered as declarations by the grantor in determining whether the grantor possessed the necessary intent to transfer title [Coffey v. Cooper (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 464, 468, 8 Cal. Rptr. 358] . Further, although the oral conditions are discharged for title purposes, the grantor may bring an action for damages if the grantee breaches them [Ivancovich v. Sullivan (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 160, 166, 307 P.2d 989] .

[3] Delivery at Grantor's Death

A transfer of property from one individual to another is not valid unless both parties are living at the time of the transfer [Civ. Code § 1039]. If a grantor intends a deed to take effect only on the grantor's death, the document is testamentary in character and void as a deed [Meyer v. Wall (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 24, 27, 75 Cal. Rptr. 236 ; Henneberry v. Henneberry (1958) 164 Cal. App. 2d 125, 129, 330 P.2d 250] . Similarly, a deed is invalid if the grantor delivers it to a third person along with instructions to deliver it to the grantee only if the grantee survives the grantor, and otherwise to return it to the grantor [Civ. Code § 1056; Rothney v. Rothney (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 566, 572-573, 107 P.2d 294] . In this case, the delivery is not valid because the grantor intends to retain title at the present time [Stone v. Daily (1919) 181 Cal. 571, 574-577, 185 P. 665 ; Rothney v. Rothney (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 566, 571-573, 107 P.2d 294] .

A delivery of a deed that conveys a future interest will be valid if the grantor possesses the requisite intent to divest himself or herself of an interest in real property immediately and irrevocably [Hitch v. Hitch (1938) 24 Cal. App. 2d 291, 294-296, 74 P.2d 1098] . For example, the grantor may place the deed in the hands of a third party with instructions to deliver the deed to the grantee on the grantor's death. Provided the grantor intends to make the delivery absolute, the deed will pass a present title to the property to the grantee, the grantor will retain a life estate, and the third party will hold the deed as a trustee for the grantee [Williams v. Kidd (1915) 170 Cal. 631, 637, 151 P. 1 ; see Civ. Code § 1044; see also Gonzales v. Gonzales (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 428, 437, 73 Cal. Rptr. 83 (grantor may retain possession of such a deed for life); Mecchi v. Picchi (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 470, 485, 54 Cal. Rptr. 1 (grantor may retain possession of subject property for life)].

A number of presumptions and inferences exist regarding the delivery of deeds. For example, recordation of the deed is prima facie evidence of execution and delivery by the grantor [Evid. Code §§ 1532, 1600]. This is a rebuttable presumption affecting the burden of proof [see Evid. Code §§ 601, 602, 1601(b); Rousseau v. Hurtado (1954) 122 Cal. App. 2d 705, 715, 265 P.2d 580] . Furthermore, a duly executed deed is presumed to have been delivered on the date set forth on the deed [Civ. Code § 1055]. Because a deed has not been "duly executed" until it has been executed and delivered [Code Civ. Proc. § 1933], this presumption arises only as to the date of delivery, not the fact of delivery [Miller v. Jansen (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 473, 476, 132 P.2d 801] .

A grantee's physical possession of the deed raises an inference of delivery [Meyer v. Wall (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 24, 28, 75 Cal. Rptr. 236] . This inference may be refuted by evidence indicating that the grantor did not have the necessary intent to deliver the deed [Meyer v. Wall (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 24, 29, 75 Cal. Rptr. 236 ; Mecchi v. Picchi (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 470, 484, 54 Cal. Rptr. 1 ; see § 27.31[1], above]. The retention of the deed by the grantor raises a rebuttable presumption that the deed has not been delivered unless it is shown that the deed has been duly delivered and that the grantor is retaining the deed for safekeeping or a similar purpose [Miller v. Jansen (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 473, 477, 478, 132 P.2d 801 ; Condencia v. Nelson (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 300, 303, 9 Cal. Rptr. 759] .

§ 27.32 Acceptance

[1] Requirement of Acceptance

Acceptance by the grantee (or the grantee's representative) is necessary to make a delivery effective and the deed operative [Perry v. Wallner (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 218, 222, 23 Cal. Rptr. 352 ; Steitz v. Irwin (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 871, 875, 211 P.2d 919] . Delivery and acceptance are simultaneous and correlative acts [Reina v. Erassarret (1949) 90 Cal. App. 2d 418, 426, 203 P.2d 72] . The acceptance need not be formal or express and may be shown by the grantee's acts and conduct [Steitz v. Irwin (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 871, 876, 211 P.2d 919] .

[2] Constructive

An acceptance need not be actual; constructive acceptance may be presumed if the conveyance is beneficial to the grantee and the deed is delivered to a third person for the grantee's benefit [Steitz v. Irwin (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 871, 875, 211 P.2d 919 (deed delivered to third person with directions to deliver it to grantee on grantor's death)]. Constructive acceptance may be presumed even if the grantee has no knowledge of the deed [Blackburn v. Drake (1963) 211 Cal. App. 2d 806, 816, 27 Cal. Rptr. 651 ; Windiate v. Moore (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 509, 515, 19 Cal. Rptr. 860] . In addition, if a grantee knows of a deed that is beneficial to himself or herself and does not reject it, acceptance is presumed [Marshall v. Marshall (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 475, 479, 295 P.2d 131] . Acceptance is also presumed when a beneficial conveyance is made to a person incapable of accepting, such as a minor [In re Guardianship of Yano (1922) 188 Cal. 645, 649, 206 P. 995] or an incompetent person [Estate of Kalt (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 807, 813, 108 P.2d 401] . Finally, if a deed is accepted by one or more of several grantees and the deed is beneficial to all of them, acceptance by the others is presumed [Blackburn v. Drake (1963) 211 Cal. App. 2d 806, 816, 27 Cal. Rptr. 651 ; Marshall v. Marshall (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 475, 479, 295 P.2d 131] .

[3] Conditional

If the grantee's acceptance is conditional, the acceptance and delivery will not be valid and binding until the condition is satisfied [Brereton v. Burton (1938) 27 Cal. App. 2d 464, 468-469, 81 P.2d 238 ; Imes v. MacDonald (1931) 113

Cal. App. 427, 432-433, 298 P. 173] . For example, if an acceptance is conditioned on the transfer of the property to the grantees free of all encumbrances, and the property is subject to a judgment lien at the time of conveyance, the acceptance and delivery are not effective [Brereton v. Burton (1938) 27 Cal. App. 2d 464, 468-469, 81 P.2d 238] .

The primary objective of a court in interpreting a deed is to give effect to the intention of the parties, particularly that of the grantor, as it existed at the time of the execution of the deed [Rousselot v. Spanier (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 238, 243, 131 Cal. Rptr. 438 ; Gonzales v. Gonzales (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 428, 437, 73 Cal. Rptr. 83] . As a general rule, a deed must be interpreted in the same way that contracts in general are interpreted [Civ. Code § 1066; for discussion of the interpretation of contracts in general, see Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions].

Notwithstanding the above, the following statutory rules of interpretation apply solely to deeds. A deed must be interpreted in favor of the grantee with the following exceptions, which must be interpreted in the grantor's favor: a reservation in any grant; and every grant by a public officer or body, as such, to a private party [Civ. Code § 1069]. If the operative words of a deed are doubtful, recitals may be used to assist in construction [Civ. Code § 1068; see City and County of San Francisco v. Union Pacific R.R. Co. (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 987, 995, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1 (granting clause that did not include "fee," "easement," or "right-of-way" conveyed fee simple title in light of other deed provisions reserving certain rights to grantors)]. A clear and distinct limitation in a deed is not controlled by other words that are less clear and distinct [Civ. Code § 1067]. Finally, if several parts of a deed are absolutely irreconcilable, the first of those parts to appear in the deed will prevail over the subsequent conflicting parts [Civ. Code § 1070; Duncan v. Wolfer (1922) 60 Cal. App. 120, 128, 212 P. 390] .

The intention of the parties to a deed must be determined from the language used in the conveyance, if possible [White v. California (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 738, 757, 99 Cal. Rptr. 58] . If this language is plain, certain, and unambiguous, parol or extrinsic evidence is not admissible to add to, detract from, or vary the terms of the deed [City of Manhattan Beach v. Superior Court (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 232, 246, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 82, 91 ; French v. Brinkman (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 547, 552, 35 Cal. Rptr. 289 ; Safwenberg v. Marquez (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 301, 309, 123 Cal. Rptr. 405] . However, extrinsic evidence is admissible to interpret ambiguities in a deed [Baker v. Ramirez (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1123, 1132, 235 Cal. Rptr. 857 ; see Murphy Slough Assn. v. Avila (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 649, 653-655, 104 Cal. Rptr. 136] . Further, parol evidence may be used to show fraud [Kent v. First Trust & Sav. Bank (1950) 101 Cal. App. 2d 361, 370, 225 P.2d 625] or mistake [French v. Brinkman (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 547, 552-553, 35 Cal. Rptr. 289] .

§ 27.34 Reformation of Deed

A deed or other contract may be revised or reformed when, through fraud, mutual mistake of the parties, or a mistake of one party that the other party knew of or suspected at the time, the deed does not express the intention of the parties [Civ. Code § 3399; see Bailard v. Marden (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 703, 708, 227 P.2d 10 (purpose of Civ. Code § 3399 is to effectuate the common intention of both parties when that intention is incorrectly reduced to writing)]. Such a deed may be reformed on application of an aggrieved party so as to express the intention of the parties, but only to the extent that this can be done without prejudice to rights acquired in good faith and for value by third persons [Civ. Code § 3399]. A more detailed discussion of reformation is beyond the scope of this chapter. For complete coverage of this remedy, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 488, Reformation of Instruments (Matthew Bender), and California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 80, Deeds and Transfers of Title (Matthew Bender).

§ 27.35 Cancellation of Deed

If there is reasonable apprehension that a deed left outstanding may cause serious injury to a person against whom it is void or voidable, the deed may, on that person's application, be cancelled [see Civ. Code § 3412]. Further, a plaintiff seeking cancellation may have his or her title quieted with respect to the adverse claim made under the deed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 760.010 et seq.]. A detailed discussion of cancellation is beyond the scope of this chapter but is set forth in California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 184, Deeds (Matthew Bender).

§ 27.36 Reporting Changes in Ownership

Following a change in ownership of taxable real property, the transferee must report the transfer to the county assessor of the county in which the property is located [see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 480(a), 480.3]. This reporting requirement implements Cal. Const., Art. XIIIA, which provides in part that the taxable value of real property may be increased to fair market value when a change in ownership occurs [see Cal. Const., art. XIIIA, § 2; see also Cal. Const., art. XIII; Rev. & Tax. Code § 50 et seq. (implementing art. XIIIA)].

For these purposes, a "change in ownership" is a transfer of a present interest in real property, including the beneficial use of the property, the value of which is substantially equal to the value of the fee interest [Rev. & Tax. Code § 60]. The transfer may be voluntary, involuntary, by operation of law, or by grant, gift, devise, inheritance, trust, contract of sale, addition or deletion of an owner, property settlement, or any other means [18 Cal. Code Reg. § 462.001].

When the change in ownership is to be effected by the recordation of a deed, the transferee normally should obtain a preliminary change of ownership report form from the county assessor or recorder and file the completed form with the county recorder at the time of recordation of the transfer document [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 480.3(a); but see Rev. & Tax. Code § 480.3(e), (f) (limited exceptions to foregoing filing requirement); see also Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements]. The preliminary report will be forwarded to the county assessor, who will either accept it in lieu of a change in ownership statement if he or she determines that it is complete and accurate, or provide the transferee with a change in ownership statement, which must be completed and returned within 45 days [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 482].

Although the filing of a preliminary change of ownership report is not a prerequisite to recordation of a deed [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 480(e)], a transferee who fails to file such a report must (1) comply, within 45 days, with the more complicated procedures governing the use of change in ownership statements [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 480(e)], and (2) pay an additional recording fee if required to do so by the recorder [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 480.3(b)]. Failure to pay that additional fee may delay or preclude the recordation of the deed [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 480.3(c)].

Several rules and exceptions apply to the foregoing reporting requirements and definitions [see Rev. & Tax. Code §§

61-68; 18 Cal. Code Reg. § 462.001 et seq.]. For further discussion of these rules and the reporting requirements in general, see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements .

§ 27.103 Facts Relating to Interest or Estate to Be Conveyed

NOTE:

The term "estate" signifies the degree, quantity, nature, and extent of an interest in real property [Estate of Brunet (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 105, 107, 207 P.2d 567] . The Civil Code classifies estates or interests in real property in several ways [see § 27.20*]. These methods of classification are not mutually exclusive and are listed below. Although the deed need not refer to these classifications, the following list should help counsel and the client understand and describe the exact interest or estate the client wishes to convey or receive.

1. Period of enjoyment:

a. Present interest [see Civ. Code § 761]:

NOTE:

A present interest entitles the owner to immediate possession of property [Civ. Code § 689].

(1) Estate in fee simple:

NOTE:

Every estate of inheritance is a fee estate [Civ. Code § 762].

(a) Fee simple absolute; or

NOTE:

An estate in fee simple absolute is the most complete form of ownership of real property. As a general rule, the owner of such an interest has absolute dominion over the property and may use or dispose of it as he or she wishes [see Civ. Code § 679]. The interest is a perpetual estate; thus, it is of infinite duration [Civ. Code § 761(1); see Civ. Code § 691]. Every estate of inheritance is deemed to be a fee simple absolute unless it is defeasible or conditional [Civ. Code § 762; see § 27.103 P 1(b), below].

(b) Fee simple defeasible [see § 27.202[2] (grant of fee simple subject to condition subsequent)].

NOTE:

A "defeasible fee" is a fee estate that may be defeated or terminated [see Restatement of Property, §§ 16, 24, 25 (classifying defeasible fees as those subject to a special limitation, condition subsequent, executory interest, or a combination of the foregoing)]. Because the fee simple determinable has been abolished in California [see Civ. Code § 885.020], any estate that may be terminated by the grantor or the grantor's successors on the occurrence of a specific event is considered a fee simple subject to a condition subsequent [see Restatement of Property, § 45; People ex rel. Dept. of Public Works v. City of Fresno (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 500, 504, 26 Cal. Rptr. 853 ; Civ. Code § 885.020]. The grantor's power to terminate the estate is a future interest that is characterized as a "power of termination" [see § 27.103 P 1(b)(1), below]. This interest is subject to time limitations and preservation requirements [see Civ. Code §§ 885.010-885.070]. For further discussion, see § 27.289[1].

(2) Life estate [see § 27.204];

NOTE:

A life estate is an estate lasting for the duration of a life or lives in being at the creation of the estate [see Restatement of Property, § 18; see also Civ. Code § 761(2)]. A life estate is usually measured by the life of the holder of the estate, but may be measured by the life of another (a life estate per autre vie) [see Civ. Code § 766; see also Restatement of Property, § 18, Comment (a)].

(3) Estate for years; or

NOTE:

An estate for years [see Civ. Code § 761(3)] is an estate having a duration fixed in terms of one or more years [Restatement of Property, § 19].

(4) Estate at will.

NOTE:

An estate at will [see Civ. Code § 761(4)] is terminable solely at the will of the transferer, subject to certain statutory restrictions [Restatement of Property, § 21; see Civ. Code § 789].

b. Future interest:

NOTE:

A future interest entitles the owner to possession of the property at a future time [Civ. Code § 690; see § 27.20[2]].

(1) Reversionary interest (including power of termination) [see §§ 27.202[2] (grant of fee simple subject to condition subsequent), 27.204[2] (life estate deed containing reversion provision)];

NOTE:

A reversionary interest is an interest left in the grantor or the grantor's successors in interest [Restatement of Property, § 154(1); see § 27.204[1][c]].

(2) Remainder [see § 27.204]; or

NOTE:

A remainder is an interest in favor of a party other than the grantor or the grantor's successor in interest that will become a present interest on expiration of all prior interests that were created simultaneously [see Restatement of Property, § 156; see also discussion under § 27.204[1][c]].

(3) Executory interest.

NOTE:

An executory interest exists in favor of a grantor and his or her successors in interest, and becomes possessory on the occurrence of any event stated in the applicable limitation [Restatement of Property, § 25]. An executory interest differs from a remainder in that the former cuts short, or divests, the prior estate on which it is limited [Restatement of Property, § 25(1)(a)].

c. Perpetual interest (duration equal to that of the property) [Civ. Code § 691].

d. Limited interest (duration less than that of the property) [Civ. Code § 692].

2. Quality of ownership [see § 27.20[4]]:

a. Absolute (single grantee to have absolute dominion over property) [Civ. Code § 679]; or

b. Qualified, that is [Civ. Code § 680]:

(1) Ownership will be shared by two or more grantees;

(2) Time of enjoyment will be deferred or limited; or

(3) Use of property will be restricted.

3. Conditions affecting enjoyment [see § 27.20[3]]:

a. Condition precedent (fixes beginning of right to property) [Civ. Code § 708].

b. Condition subsequent (fixes end of right) [Civ. Code § 708].

NOTE:

§ 27.110 Capacity of Grantor

1. Determine whether grantor will have capacity to convey title to grantee at time grantor executes and delivers deed [Hughes v. Grandy (1947) 78 Cal. App. 2d 555, 564, 177 P.2d 939] .

a. Determine whether grantor can comprehend the following concepts [Marback v. Marback (1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 354, 356, 45 Cal. Rptr. 341 (grantor has capacity to convey if he or she can comprehend the following concepts); see § 27.16[1]]:
(1) Nature of act of conveyance.

(2) Character of subject property.

(3) Grantor's relation to natural objects of his or her act [see Estate of Smith (1926) 200 Cal. 152, 158, 252 P. 325 (testamentary capacity requires, among other things, ability to understand relation to persons who have claims on the testator's property and whose interests are affected by the instrument)].

b. Determine whether grantor is a minor or is mentally incapacitated [see Civ. Code §§ 38-40; Fam. Code §§ 6500, 6701; see also § 27.16[2]].

2. If grantor is corporation:

a. Determine whether board of directors has adopted resolution authorizing conveyance [see Corp. Code § 300(a) (business and affairs of corporation are managed and all corporate powers are exercised by or under direction of board); see also §§ 27.281[1] (corporate resolution to convey property), 27.220[2]

(corporation deed)].

b. Determine whether property represents all or substantially all of corporation's assets.

NOTE:
Statutory approval requirements apply to the transfer of all or substantially all of the assets of a corporation [see Corp. Code § 1001(a); see also § 27.120, P 1].

c. Ascertain whether conveyance is in usual and regular course of corporation's business.

NOTE:
If the property represents all or substantially all of the assets of the corporation and the transaction is not in the usual and regular course of its business, the transaction must be approved by the outstanding shares [Corp. Code § 1001(a); see Corp. Code § 152; see also § 27.120, P 1]. However, if the transaction constitutes a conversion to another form of business entity, it is not subject to these provisions but rather to provisions that specifically govern conversions [Corp. Code § 1001(a); see Corp. Code § 1150 et seq. (conversions)].

3. If grantor is general partnership, determine whether statement of partnership authorizing specified partners to execute instruments on behalf of partnership has been signed by all partners and recorded [see § 27.221[1][c]].

4. If grantor is limited partnership:

a. Determine whether certified copy of certificate of limited partnership has been recorded in county where real property is located [see Corp. Code § 15902.01(e) (ULPA '08), Corp. Code § 15621(d) (CRLPA, repealed January 1, 2010); see also § 27.221[1][d]].

b. Determine whether subject property constitutes all or substantial part of assets of partnership.

NOTE:
The consent of each partner is necessary to sell, lease, exchange, or otherwise dispose of all or substantially all of a limited partnership's property, with or without the goodwill, other than in the usual and regular course of the limited partnership's activities [Corp. Code § 15904.06(a) (ULPA '08)].

Under the CRLPA (repealed January 1, 2010), unless the limited partnership agreement provides to the contrary, a transfer of all or a substantial part of the assets of the limited partnership must be authorized by an affirmative vote of a majority in interest of the limited partners [Corp. Code § 15636(f)(1)(B)].

5. If grantor is unincorporated association:

a. Determine whether statement designating persons authorized to execute conveyances of association property has been recorded in county where real property is located [see Corp. Code § 18120(a), (c); see also §§ 27.223, 27.282].

b. Ascertain whether member of association recorded statement repudiating prior recorded statement of unincorporated association [see Corp. Code § 18120(d); see also § 27.283].

6. If grantor is a limited liability company:

a. Determine whether the articles of organization and the written operating agreement authorizes the transaction.

b. Determine whether a Limited Liability Company Certificate of Authorization has been signed regarding the transaction [For form, see § 27.284].

§ 27.111 Capacity and Interest of Grantee

1. If grantee is natural person, determine whether he or she will be capable of taking and holding title to real property at time of conveyance [Rixford v. Zeigler (1907) 150 Cal. 435, 437, 88 P. 1092 ; see § 27.17[1]].

2. If grantees will be tenants in common [see § 27.212[1]]:

a. Determine whether their shares or interests will be equal.

b. If their shares will be unequal, ascertain what proportion of interest held by each tenant will be.

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary, Practice Consultant

§ 27.112 Deed and Estate or Interest Being Conveyed

1. Determine what type of deed should be used to accomplish desired conveyance.

a. Grant deed [see §§ 27.200[2] (grant deed), 27.201[2] (statutory form of grant deed), 27.202[2] (grant of fee simple subject to condition subsequent)], which:
(1) May convey any type of estate in real property [Klamath Land & Cattle Co. v. Roemer (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 613, 618, 91 Cal. Rptr. 112] .

NOTE:
A grant deed is presumed to transfer a fee simple title unless it appears from the deed that a lesser estate was intended [Civ. Code § 1105; see American Enterprise, Inc. v. Van Winkle (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 210, 220, 246 P.2d 935] .

(2) Transfers after-acquired title [Civ. Code § 1106; see § 27.20[7]].

(3) Contains implied covenants against prior conveyances and against encumbrances (unless deed provides otherwise) [see Civ. Code § 1113; see also § 27.200[1][c]].

b. Quitclaim deed [see § 27.203[2]], which:

(1) Conveys whatever present right or interest grantor has in property at time of deed [Leggio v. Haggerty (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 873, 880, 42 Cal. Rptr. 400 ; Soares v. Steidtmann (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 401, 404, 278 P.2d 953] .

NOTE:

A quitclaim deed does not transfer after-acquired title [Klamath Land & Cattle Co. v. Roemer (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 613, 618, 91 Cal. Rptr. 112] . However, if the grantor has an equitable interest at the time of the conveyance and later acquires a legal title, the legal title is deemed to be transferred to the grantee [Klamath Land & Cattle Co. v. Roemer (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 613, 618-619, 91 Cal. Rptr. 112] .

(2) Does not contain implied covenants [Southern Pac. Co. v. Dore (1917) 34 Cal. App. 521, 522-523, 168 P. 147] .

c. Warranty deed, which:

(1) Contains grantor's warranty of good clear title.

(2) Is seldom used in California because buyers typically rely on title insurance [see § 27.11[4]].

d. Deed given at execution sale [see § 27.11[3]].

2. If transaction involves nonvested interest and a "donative transfer," determine whether either of following conditions will be satisfied:

NOTE:
Under the Uniform Statutory Rule Against Perpetuities (USRAP) [see Prob. Code § 21200 et seq.], a nonvested property interest is invalid unless either of the conditions set forth in (a) or (b), below, is satisfied [Prob. Code § 21205]. However, the USRAP specifically excludes property interests arising out of "nondonative transfers" from its application [see Prob. Code § 21225(a)]. "Nondonative" transfers are generally transfers that are supported by consideration, while "donative" transfers are not supported by consideration [see Recommendation Relating to Uniform Statutory Rule Against Perpetuities, 20 Cal. Law Rev. Comm'n 2501, 2595 (1990); see also § 27.20[6]].

a. When interest is created, it is certain to vest or terminate no later than 21 years after death of individual then alive; or

b. Interest will either vest or terminate within 90 years after its creation.

3. If grantor wishes to impose a condition precedent or subsequent [see § 27.103, P 3], determine whether proposed condition falls within one of following categories of impermissible conditions:

a. Condition precedent requiring performance of act that is wrong of itself.

NOTE:
An instrument containing such a condition is void. However, if the condition precedent requires the performance of an act that is not wrong of itself, but is otherwise unlawful, the instrument takes effect and only the condition is void [Civ. Code § 709]. Neither the statute nor California case law elaborates on the distinction between an act that is "wrong of itself" and one that is otherwise unlawful, and the courts appear to have largely ignored the provision.

b. Condition imposing restraints on marriage, except on marriage of a minor [Civ. Code § 710].

NOTE:

Any such condition is void [Civ. Code § 710; see Ch. 67, Future Interests and Perpetuities].

c. Condition imposing unreasonable restraint on alienation of property [Civ. Code § 711; Coast Bank v. Minderhout (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 311, 316, 38 Cal. Rptr. 505, 392 P.2d 265] .

NOTE:

Such a condition is void if it is deemed repugnant to the interest created [Civ. Code § 711]. Whether a restraint is reasonable and therefore permissible depends on two factors: (1) the justification for the particular restraint, and (2) the quantum of restraint or actual practical effect of the restriction [Tucker v. Lassen Sav. & Loan Assn. (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 629, 635-636, 116 Cal. Rptr. 633, 526 P.2d 1169 ; see La Sala v. American Sav. & Loan Assn. (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 864, 877-882, 97 Cal. Rptr. 849, 489 P.2d 1113] . For further discussion, see Ch. 67, Future Interests and Perpetuities .

d. Condition purporting to restrict right of any person to sell, lease, rent, use, or occupy property on basis of person's having any of following characteristics [Civ. Code § 782(a); see Gov. Code § 12955(a), (d) (listings of protected characteristics)], or perception that person has any of these characteristics or that person is associated with person who has, or is perceived to have, any of these characteristics [see Gov. Code §§ 12926(m), 12955(m)]:

(1) Ancestry;

(2) Color;

(3) Disability [see Gov. Code § 12926.1 (legislative intent regarding meaning of "disability")];

(4) Familial status [see Gov. Code § 12955.2 (definition)];

(5) Marital status;

(6) National origin;

(7) Race;

(8) Religion [see Gov. Code § 12926(o) (definition)];

(9) Sex [see Gov. Code § 12926(p) (definition)];

(10) Sexual orientation [see Gov. Code § 12926(q) (definition)]; or

(11) Source of income [see Gov. Code § 12955(p)(1) (definition)].

NOTE:

However, with regard to familial status, this does not apply to housing for older persons and does not affect certain Civil Code sections relating to housing for senior citizens [Civ. Code § 782(b)]. Any deed, or other written instrument relating to title to real property, containing any provision that would be void under Civ. Code § 782(a), and any written covenant, condition, or restriction annexed to or made a part of any such deed or instrument, by reference or otherwise, must be deemed to be revised to omit that provision [Civ. Code § 782.5(a)].

e. Provision prohibiting or restricting right of property owner (or owner's agent) to display or have displayed, on owner's real property or on real property owned by others with their consent, signs that satisfy following requirements [Civ. Code § 712; see Civ. Code § 713]:

NOTE:

Such a provision, when contained in or otherwise affecting a grant of a fee interest in real property, is void as an unreasonable restraint on the power of alienation [Civ. Code § 712(a)(1)].

(1) Advertise owner's property for sale, lease, or exchange, or advertise directions to owner's property;

(2) Are reasonably located;

(3) Are in plain view of public;

(4) Are of reasonable dimensions and design; and

(5) Do not adversely affect public safety, including traffic safety.

f. Restriction effectively prohibiting installation or use of solar energy system [Civ. Code § 714(a); see Civ. Code § 801.5 ("solar energy system" defined)].

NOTE:

Any covenant, restriction, or condition contained in a deed that imposes such a restriction is void [Civ. Code § 714(a)]. However, the following are not void: (1) reasonable restrictions on a solar energy system that do not significantly increase the cost of the system or significantly decrease its efficiency or specified performance; and (2) reasonable restrictions on such a system that allow for an alternative system of comparable cost, efficiency, and energy conservation benefits [Civ. Code § 714(b); see Civ. Code § 714(d) (definitions of "significantly" and "solar energy system")]. For these purposes, a solar energy system must meet applicable standards and requirements imposed by state and local permitting authorities [Civ. Code § 714(c)(1)]. A solar energy system for heating water must be certified by the Solar Rating Certification Corporation (SRCC) or other nationally recognized certification agencies. SRCC is a nonprofit third party supported by the United States Department of Energy. The certification must be for the entire solar energy system and installation [Civ. Code § 714(c)(2)]. A solar energy system for producing electricity must also meet all applicable safety and performance standards established by the National Electrical Code, the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers, and accredited testing laboratories such as Underwriters Laboratories and, where applicable, rules of the Public Utilities Commission regarding safety and reliability [Civ. Code § 714(c)(2)]. Whenever approval is required for the installation or use of a solar energy system, the application for approval must be processed and approved by the appropriate approving entity in the same manner as an application for approval of an architectural modification to the property, and may not be willfully avoided or delayed [see Civ. Code § 714(e)(1)]. For an approving entity that is a homeowners' association [see Civ. Code § 1351(a) (definition)] and is not a public entity, the approval or denial of an application must be in writing. If an application is not denied in writing within 60 days from the date of receipt of the application, the application must be deemed approved, unless that delay is the result of a reasonable request for additional information [Civ. Code § 714(e)(2)].

4. If grantor wishes to detract from what grantee would otherwise receive under deed, determine whether deed should include [see Willard v. First Church of Christ, Scientist (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 473, 476, 102 Cal. Rptr. 739 ; see also § 27.20[8]]:

a. Reservation, which allows grantor's entire interest in property to pass to grantee, but revests newly created interest in grantor or third party; or

b. Exception, which prevents part of grantor's interest from passing to grantee.

5. Determine whether deed is subject to local documentary transfer tax.

a. Ascertain whether county in which real property is located has imposed transfer tax by ordinance [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 11911(a)].

b. If county has imposed such a tax, determine whether city in which real property is located (if any) has also imposed a transfer tax [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 11911(b); see also Rev. & Tax. Code § 11911(c) (credit allowed against county transfer tax for amount of any transfer tax imposed by city)].

c. If tax has been imposed, determine whether consideration or value of interest or property conveyed, exclusive of value of any lien or encumbrance remaining on the property at time of sale, exceeds $100 [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11911(a), (b)].

NOTE:

Under the Documentary Transfer Tax Act [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11901 et seq.], a local legislative body may impose a transfer tax on each deed, instrument, or writing by which real property sold within the county is granted, assigned, transferred, or otherwise conveyed to or vested in another person when the consideration or value of the interest or property conveyed, exclusive of the value of any lien or encumbrance remaining on the property at the time of sale, exceeds $100 [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11911(a), (b)].

§ 27.120 Approval of Transaction

1. If grantor is corporation, and property being conveyed represents all or substantially all of grantor's assets, confirm that principal terms of sale have been or will be [Corp. Code § 1001(a); see § 27.220[1]]:

a. Approved by board [see Corp. Code § 151]; and

b. Approved by outstanding shares (before or after board's approval and before or after transaction), unless transaction is in usual and regular course of grantor's business [see Corp. Code § 152].

NOTE:
This approval should be obtained before the execution of the purchase agreement, or other agreement evidencing the underlying agreement between the parties, that culminates in the execution of the deed. If the transaction constitutes a conversion to another form of business entity, it is not subject to these provisions but rather to provisions that specifically govern conversions [Corp. Code § 1001(a); see Corp. Code § 1150 et seq. (conversions)].

2. If grantor is corporation, consider taking one of following steps to assure grantee that conveyance has been duly authorized:

a. If deed will be recorded, consider including statutory statement in corporate acknowledgment regarding execution of deed [see discussion under § 27.220[1][f]; see also § 27.280[1]]; or

NOTE:

This statement may be used if the deed is executed by the president, vice president, secretary, or assistant secretary of the corporation and includes the statutory certificate of acknowledgment form [see Civ. Code § 1190; see also Civ. Code § 1189(a) (statutory form)].

b. Whether or not deed will be recorded, consider attaching to deed a certificate stating that conveyance has been validly approved by board and that [Corp. Code § 1002; see Corp. Code § 1001; see also § 27.280[2]]:

NOTE:

Any deed conveying corporate assets may have annexed to it a certificate of the corporate secretary or assistant secretary. If the certificate contains the information discussed in this paragraph, it will be prima facie evidence of the existence of the facts authorizing the conveyance and conclusive evidence in favor of any innocent purchaser or encumbrancer for value [Corp. Code § 1002]. Unlike the statutory statement that may be included in a corporate acknowledgment [see § 27.120 P 2(a), above], this certificate may be used (1) in conjunction with a deed that will not be recorded or (2) when the property being conveyed constitutes all or substantially all of the assets of the corporation. There is no need to have a secretary or assistant secretary prepare the certificate unless (1) the deed will not be recorded or (2) the deed will be recorded but will not be executed by a duly authorized person [see Civ. Code § 1190]. For further discussion, see § 27.280[1].

(1) Property described in deed is less than substantially all of the corporate assets;

(2) Transfer is in usual and regular course of business of corporation; or

(3) If property constitutes all or substantially all of corporate assets and transfer is not in usual and regular course of business of corporation:

(a) Transfer has been approved by outstanding shares of corporation [see Corp. Code § 152] pursuant to Chapter 10 (governing sales of assets) [see Corp. Code §§ 1000-1002] or Chapter 12 (governing reorganizations) [see Corp. Code §§ 1200-1203] of Corporations Code; or

(b) Approval is not required by Chapter 12.

3. If property constitutes all or substantial part of assets of limited partnership, take following steps unless limited partnership agreement provides otherwise [Corp. Code § 15636(f)(1)(B); see also § 27.221[1][d]]:

(a) Transfer has been approved by outstanding shares of corporation [see Corp. Code § 152] pursuant to Corp. Code § 1000 et seq. (sales of assets) or Corp. Code § 1200 et seq. (reorganizations); or

(b) Approval is not required by Corp. Code § 1200 et seq.

§ 27.121 Preparation, Recordation, and Delivery of Deed

1. Draft deed [see §§ 27.130-27.135].

2. If grantor is married and claims that property is his or her separate property, have grantor's spouse do the following [see § 27.25[4]]:

a. Execute quitclaim deed [see § 27.203[2]]; or

b. Sign statement waiving any requirement that he or she execute deed [see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements].

3. Have deed executed as follows:

a. By either of the following, except as indicated in § 27.121 PP b-g, below [Civ. Code § 1091]:
(1) Grantor [see § 27.25[1], [2]]; or

NOTE:
If the grantor cannot write, he or she can satisfy this execution requirement by making a mark [see Civ. Code § 14; see also § 27.270[1]].

(2) Grantor's authorized agent [see § 27.25[2]].

NOTE:
An agent's authority to execute a deed normally must be in writing [Civ. Code § 1091; for discussion of exceptions to this requirement, see § 27.25[2]]. If the written authorization is in the form of a power of attorney, the attorney in fact must sign both the grantor's name and his or her own name as attorney in fact [Civ. Code § 1095; see § 27.272]. Otherwise, the agent should sign as the grantor's agent.

b. By both spouses (or their duly authorized agents) when community real property is being conveyed, unless conveyance is between spouses [Fam. Code § 1102; see § 27.25[3]].

c. If grantor is a corporation, by [Corp. Code § 313; see § 27.220[1]]:

(1) Chairman of board, president, or any vice president; and

(2) Secretary, assistant secretary, chief financial officer, or assistant treasurer.

d. If grantor is general partnership, by [see Corp. Code §§ 15010(1), 16302(a)(1), 16303; see also § 27.221[1]]:

(1) All partners; or

(2) Partners expressly authorized to sign by statement of partnership.

e. If grantor is limited partnership, by all general partners [see Corp. Code § 15643; see also § 27.221[1]].

f. If grantor is unincorporated association, by [Corp. Code § 18115; see § 27.223[1][b]]:

(1) President (or other head) and secretary, recording secretary, or other comparable officer; or

(2) Other persons specifically designated by resolution adopted pursuant to articles of association or bylaws.

4. If deed is to be recorded [for discussion of the effect of recordation, see § 27.27[1]], do the following:

a. Confirm that any required documentary transfer tax has been paid [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11933; see § 27.242[1]].

NOTE:

A California county may impose a transfer tax, by ordinance, on deeds and other instruments conveying real property located in the county [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11911(a), (b)]. Further, any city within a county that has imposed such a tax may also tax the transfer [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11911(b)]. Payment of any required transfer tax or taxes is a prerequisite to recordation [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11933]. For further discussion, see § 27.242[1].

b. Have execution acknowledged [Gov. Code § 27287].

NOTE:

Before an instrument can be recorded, its execution must be acknowledged or proved and the acknowledgment or proof certified [Gov. Code § 27287]. An acknowledgment is a statement that an instrument was in fact signed by the person whose signature appears on the document [see, e.g., Civ. Code § 1189]. Proof of the execution in lieu of acknowledgment of a grant deed, mortgage, deed of trust, quitclaim deed, or security agreement is not permitted, pursuant to Gov. Code § 27287, although proof of execution in lieu of acknowledgment of a trustee's deed or deed of reconveyance is permitted [Civ. Code § 1195(b); see Civ. Code § 1195(c) (statutory form for proof of execution); see also § 27.285[2]].

c. Have acknowledgment or proof certified [Gov. Code § 27287; see discussion under § 27.27[2]; see also § 27.271].

NOTE:

A certificate of acknowledgment is a formal declaration by an authorized officer [see Civ. Code §§ 1180-1184], usually a notary public, that the executing party made the acknowledgment in the officer's presence and that the officer had satisfactory evidence that the party was the individual who was described in and who executed the instrument [Civ. Code § 1185(a)]. The certificate must be in the form prescribed by Civ. Code § 1189(a). For further discussion, see § 27.271[1].

An officer taking proof of the execution of an unacknowledged instrument must in his or her certificate set forth all the matters required by law to be proved before the officer [see Civ. Code §§ 1195-1199] and the names, places of residence, and substance of testimony of all the witnesses examined before the officer [Civ. Code § 1200; see § 27.271].

d. Record deed in county in which subject real property is situated [Civ. Code §§ 1169, 1170].

NOTE:

In Los Angeles County or Riverside County, the recorder, as a condition of recording a deed, quitclaim deed, or deed of trust, may require that the document indicate the assessor's identification numbers fully containing all, or a portion of, the real property described in the legal description. If the description covers more than one assessor's parcel, the number for each parcel must be provided [Gov. Code §§ 27297.6(a), 27297.7(a)]. This requirement does not apply to the recordation of any document under which the federal government, the state, or any county, city, or subdivision of the state acquires title [Gov. Code §§ 27297.6(b), 27297.7(b)]. For coverage of related statutory requirements, see § 27.28.

e. Pay recording fee [see Gov. Code § 27361].

f. If desired, record deed in any other county [Civ. Code § 1218; see § 27.27[3]].

5. Have grantor deliver deed to grantee [Civ. Code § 1054; Perry v. Wallner (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 218, 221, 23 Cal. Rptr. 352] .

NOTE:

A deed will not take effect until the grantor delivers it with the intent to transfer title [Civ. Code § 1054; Perry v. Wallner (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 218, 221, 23 Cal. Rptr. 352] . No particular form of delivery is required [Steitz v. Irwin (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 871, 876, 211 P.2d 919] . For further discussion, see § 27.31.

6. Confirm that grantee (or grantee's representative) accepts delivery at time of delivery [Perry v. Wallner (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 218, 222, 23 Cal. Rptr. 352 ; Steitz v. Irwin (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 871, 875, 211 P.2d 919] .

NOTE:

The acceptance need not be formal or express [Steitz v. Irwin (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 871, 876, 211 P.2d 919 ; see § 27.32].

§ 27.122 Documentary Transfer Tax Act Requirements

1. If deed is subject to local documentary transfer tax [see § 27.112, P 5], compute amount of tax due [see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 11911, 11932; see also § 27.242[1][c]].

2. Include following information on face of deed or in separate document [see §§ 27.242[2] (documentary transfer tax provisions for deed), 27.287 (separate tax statement)]:

b. Incorporated or unincorporated location of real property described in deed [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11932].

a. Identify person requesting recordation.

b. Set forth name and address of person to whom deed should be returned.

NOTE:
The recorder must mail (or deliver if the deed so requests) the deed to the person named in the instrument, if any [Gov. Code § 27321]. If the deed does not name such a person, the recorder must deliver or mail it to the party that left it for recordation [Gov. Code § 27321].

3. If deed is being recorded in Los Angeles County or Riverside County, include assessor's identification numbers for real property identified in legal description in deed, if required to do so by recorder [Gov. Code §§ 27297.6(a), 27297.7(a)].

1. Provide name or other sufficient description of grantor [Childs v. Newfield (1934) 136 Cal. App. 217, 222, 28 P.2d 924 ; see § 27.16[3]].

a. Describe status of grantor if grantor is any of the following:
(1) Corporation [see § 27.220[2]].

(2) Partnership [see § 27.221[2]].

(3) Joint venture [see § 27.222[2]].

(4) Unincorporated association [see § 27.223[2]].

b. If grantor wishes to transfer property under a name other than name in which grantor derived title, set forth both names [see § 27.250[2]].

NOTE:

If the deed does not include both names, it will be valid between the parties and those with notice, but recordation of the deed will not impart constructive notice of its contents to subsequent purchasers and encumbrancers [Civ. Code § 1096; see Benson v. Shotwell (1890) 87 Cal. 49, 56-57, 25 P. 249 ; see also § 27.16[3]].

2. Include following information regarding grantee:

a. Name or other designation or description that is sufficient to identify grantee [Whitson v. Goudeseune (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 445, 447-448, 290 P.2d 590 ; see § 27.17[2]].

§ 27.133 Property and Interest Being Conveyed

1. Include words indicating an intent to convey [Cordano v. Wright (1911) 159 Cal. 610, 618, 115 P. 227 ; see § 27.23].

2. Set forth description of property that is sufficient to identify and locate it [see § 27.19].

3. Describe nature of estate being conveyed [see § 27.103, P 1(a)(present interests) and 1(b)(future interests)].

NOTE:

The term "estate" signifies the degree, quantity, nature, and extent of an interest in real property [Estate of Brunet (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 105, 107, 207 P.2d 567 ; see Civ. Code § 701; see also § 27.20].

A grant of real property is presumed to transfer a fee simple title unless it appears in the grant that a lesser estate was intended [Civ. Code § 1105; see *§ 27.200[1]*b]].

4. Specify nature of ownership, i.e.:

a. Ownership by one person [Civ. Code § 681].

b. Ownership by two or more persons in one of following forms [Civ. Code §§ 682, 682.1]:

(1) Joint tenancy;

(2) Tenancy in partnership;

(3) Tenancy in common;

(4) Community property; or

(5) Community property with right of survivorship.

5. In case of two or more grantees (other than a husband and wife or joint tenants), consider specifying respective interests.

NOTE:

The specification of interests is particularly important in the case of a tenancy in common deed because the interests of the cotenants need not be equal [see Civ. Code §§ 683, 685]. If a tenancy in common deed does not specify the fractional interests of the tenants in common, there is a rebuttable presumption that their interests are equal [Anderson v. Broadwell (1931) 119 Cal. App. 150, 153, 6 P.2d 267 ; see § 27.212[1]].

6. If grantees are husband and wife, consider specifying whether they will hold the property in one of the following ways [Fam. Code § 750; see § 27.254[1]]:

NOTE:

Except as otherwise provided by statute, all property (wherever situated) acquired by a married person during marriage while domiciled in California is community property [Fam. Code § 760]. For the purpose of division of property on dissolution of marriage or legal separation, property acquired by the parties during marriage in joint form is presumed to be community property. This presumption may be rebutted by a clear statement in the deed that the property is separate property [Fam. Code § 2581]. For further discussion of this presumption and coverage of an additional one that applies to property acquired prior to 1975 [see Fam. Code § 803], see § 27.254[1].

a. Community property (with or without express right of survivorship) [see Civ. Code §§ 682, 682.1, § 27.213[1]];

b. Separate property;

c. In joint tenancy; or

d. In tenancy in common.

7. If creating a joint tenancy and one of the joint tenants is married, include recital setting forth consent of that grantee and his or her nongrantee spouse to this arrangement [see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements, § 23.254].

NOTE:

If the deed includes such a recital, the nongrantee spouse should sign the deed [see § 27.255[1]].

8. Set forth any conditions precedent or subsequent [see § 27.20[3]].

9. If drafting a grant deed and grantor wishes to restrain implied covenants against prior conveyances and against encumbrances [see § 27.200[1][c]]:

a. Specify that grant is made without warranty of any kind; or

b. Set forth in deed any and all encumbrances to which property is subject.

10. If drafting a life estate deed [see § 27.204]:

a. Specify whether life estate is being conveyed to grantee or reserved in grantor [see § 27.133 P 10(c), below].

b. Indicate whether duration of estate will be measured by [see § 27.204[1][b]]:

(1) Life of grantee; or

(2) Life of some other person (a life estate pur autre vie).

c. If desired, describe what will happen to property on death of measuring life:

NOTE:

If a life estate deed simply conveys the estate to the grantee without other instructions, the grantor retains an interest in the property (called a reversion). On the grantee's death, the property reverts to the grantor or the grantor's successors [Civ. Code § 768; see Restatement of Property, § 154(1), (2)].

(1) Property will revert to grantor or grantor's successors.

(2) Property will pass to third party.

NOTE:

This future interest is known as a remainder [see Civ. Code § 769], and the third party is known as a "remainderman."

(3) If grantor conveyed a fee interest to a grantee and reserved a life estate in himself or herself, property will pass to grantee [Civ. Code §§ 749, 773; Lowe v. Ruhlman (1945) 67 Cal. App. 2d 828, 834, 155 P.2d 671] .

11. If joint tenant wishes to convey his or her interest to third person without joinder or consent of other joint tenants [Civ. Code § 683.2; see § 27.211]:

NOTE:

Civ. Code § 683.2 (discussed in this paragraph) does not authorize a severance of a joint tenancy that is contrary to a written agreement of the joint tenants. However, a severance contrary to such an agreement does not defeat the rights of a purchaser or encumbrancer for value in good faith and without knowledge of the written agreement [Civ. Code § 683.2(b)].

a. Prepare deed conveying legal title to joint tenant's interest to third person [Civ. Code § 683.2(a)].

NOTE:

A joint tenant may also sever the joint tenancy as to the joint tenant's interest by executing an instrument or declaration [Civ. Code § 683.2(a)]. For further discussion of these options, see § 27.211[1][b].

b. Have joint tenant execute and deliver deed [Civ. Code § 683.2(a)].

c. If joint tenancy is of record, have deed recorded in county where real property is located:

NOTE:
Severance of a joint tenancy of record by deed (or other written instrument or declaration) does not terminate the right of survivorship of the other joint tenants as to the severing joint tenant's interest unless either of the recordation requirements discussed in this paragraph is satisfied [Civ. Code § 683.2(c)]. These recordation requirements do not apply to (1) a written instrument executed by all the joint tenants that severs the joint tenancy, (2) a severance made by or pursuant to a written agreement of all the joint tenants, or (3) a deed from a joint tenant to another joint tenant [Civ. Code § 683.2(d)].

(1) Prior to death of severing joint tenant [Civ. Code § 682.3(c)(1)]; or

(2) Not later than seven days after joint tenant's death, provided joint tenant executed and acknowledged deed before notary public not earlier than three days before his or her death [Civ. Code § 683.2(c)(2)].

12. If grantor wishes to transmute marital real property [see § 27.214]:

NOTE:
Transmutation is the process of altering the statutory property rights of a husband and wife [see Fam. Code § 1500*].

a. Draft deed transmuting [Fam. Code § 850; see § 27.214[2]]:

(1) Community property to separate property of either spouse;

(2) Separate property of either spouse to community property; or

(3) Separate property of one spouse to separate property of other spouse.

b. Confirm that deed is made, joined in, consented to, or accepted by spouse whose interest is adversely affected [Fam. Code § 852(a)].

c. Have deed recorded [Fam. Code § 852(b)].

NOTE:
A transmutation of real property is not effective as to third parties without notice unless it is recorded [Fam. Code § 852(b)].

13. If preparing a deed in lieu of foreclosure, add language indicating that deed is an absolute conveyance in consideration for cancellation of debt [see Hamud v. Hawthorne (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 78, 83, 338 P.2d 387 ; see also § 27.260].

14. Add description of consideration if [see § 27.262]:

a. Attorney in fact is making deed [Bertelsen v. Bertelson (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 479, 484, 122 P.2d 130] ; or

b. Title insurance company insists on inclusion of such a provision.

NOTE:

Title insurance companies frequently require consideration for deeds given in lieu of foreclosure and for deeds made by administrators, executors, guardians, trustees, and receivers who are conveying property under court order.

a. By either of the following, except as indicated in § 27.134 PP b-g, below [Civ. Code § 1091]:
(1) Grantor [see § 27.25[1] and [2]]; or

(2) Grantor's authorized agent [see § 27.25[2]].

NOTE:
An agent's authority to execute a deed normally must be in writing [Civ. Code § 1091; for discussion of exceptions to this requirement, see § 27.25[2]]. If the written authorization is in the form of a power of attorney, the attorney in fact must sign both the grantor's name and his or her own name as attorney in fact [Civ. Code § 1095; see § 27.272]. Otherwise, the agent should sign as the grantor's agent.

b. By both spouses (or their duly authorized agents) when community real property is being conveyed, unless conveyance is between spouses [Fam. Code § 1102; see § 27.25[3]].

c. If grantor is a corporation, by [Corp. Code § 313; see § 27.220[1]]:

f. If grantor is unincorporated association, by [Corp. Code § 18115; see § 27.223[1][b]]:

(1) President (or other head) and secretary, recording secretary, or other comparable officer; or

(2) Other persons specifically designated by resolution adopted pursuant to articles of association or bylaws.

g. If grantor is a limited liability company, by members [Corp. Code § 17150] or non-member/managers [Corp. Code § 17151] as specified in the either the articles of organization or operating agreement [see Corp. Code §§ 17150, 17151].

2. If deed is to be recorded [for discussion of the effect of recordation, see § 27.27[1]], do the following:

a. Confirm that any required documentary transfer tax has been paid [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11933; see § 27.242[1]].

NOTE:

A California county may impose a transfer tax, by ordinance, on deeds and other instruments conveying real property located in the county [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11911(a), (b)]. Further, any city within a county that has imposed such a tax may also tax the transfer [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11911(b)]. Payment of any required transfer tax or taxes is a prerequisite to recordation [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11933]. For further discussion, see § 27.242[1].

b. Have execution acknowledged [Gov. Code § 27287].

NOTE:

Before an instrument can be recorded, its execution must be acknowledged or proved and the acknowledgment or proof certified [Gov. Code § 27287]. An acknowledgment is a statement that an instrument was in fact signed by the person whose signature appears on the document [see, e.g., Civ. Code § 1189]. Proof of the execution in lieu of acknowledgment of a grant deed, mortgage, deed of trust, quitclaim deed, or security agreement is not permitted, pursuant to Gov. Code § 27287, although proof of execution in lieu of acknowledgment of a trustee's deed or deed of reconveyance is permitted [Civ. Code § 1195(b); see Civ. Code § 1195(c) (statutory form for proof of execution); see also § 27.285[2]].

c. Have acknowledgment or proof certified [Gov. Code § 27287; see discussion under § 27.27[2]; see also § 27.271].

NOTE:

A certificate of acknowledgment is a formal declaration by an authorized officer [see Civ. Code §§ 1180-1184], usually a notary public, that the executing party made the acknowledgment in the officer's presence and that the officer had satisfactory evidence that the party was the individual who was described in and who executed the instrument [Civ. Code § 1185(a)]. The certificate must be in the form prescribed by Civ. Code § 1189(a). For further discussion, see § 27.271[1].

An officer taking proof of the execution of an unacknowledged instrument must in his or her certificate set forth all the matters required by law to be proved before the officer [see Civ. Code §§ 1195-1199] and the names, places of residence, and substance of testimony of all the witnesses examined before the officer [Civ. Code § 1200; see § 27.271].

§ 27.140 Reporting Change in Ownership

NOTE:

The following requirements apply only to changes in ownership of real property or a manufactured home that is subject to local property taxation [Rev. & Tax. Code § 480(a)]. A "change in ownership" is a transfer of a present interest in real property, including the beneficial use of the property, the value of which is substantially equal to the value of the fee interest [Rev. & Tax. Code § 60]. This term expressly includes transfers by grant [18 Cal. Code Reg. § 462.001].

1. If deed will be recorded, complete preliminary change of ownership report (provided by county assessor or recorder) and file it with county recorder at time of recordation of deed [Rev. & Tax. Code § 480.3; see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements].

NOTE:

Although this is an optional procedure, failure to file such a report may result in the imposition of an additional recording fee of $20 [Rev. & Tax. Code § 480.3(b)]. Failure to tender that additional fee may delay or preclude the deed's recording [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 480.3(c)].

Certain persons and transactions are exempt from the preliminary change of ownership reporting requirement and from the payment of the additional recording fee [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 480.3(e), (f); see also Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements].

As a practical matter, most counties encourage transferees to file preliminary change of ownership reports because that will expedite the change in ownership reporting process if the assessor, after receiving the report from the recorder, accepts the preliminary report in lieu of a change in ownership statement. However, if the assessor feels that the preliminary report is inadequate, he or she will require the transferee to complete a change in ownership statement [see § 27.240 P 2, below]. For further discussion, see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements .

2. If preliminary change of ownership report is not filed in connection with change of ownership, complete change in ownership statement [see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements] and:

a. Have grantee file signed statement in county where real property or manufactured home is located [Rev. & Tax. Code § 480(a)] at either of the following times [Rev. & Tax. Code § 480(e)]:

NOTE:
A change in ownership statement may be filed by mail [Rev. & Tax. Code § 480(g)]. Most counties provide these statements on request.

(1) At same time deed is recorded; or

(2) If deed will not be recorded or if deed was recorded without concurrent filing of statement, then no later than 45 days from date change occurs.

NOTE:
However, if the change in ownership has occurred by reason of death, the statement must be filed within 150 days after the date of death or, if the estate is probated, the statement must be filed at the time the inventory and appraisal is filed [Rev. & Tax. Code § 480(e)].

b. If dealing with property of a decedent, have personal representative (typically an executor or administrator) file change in ownership statement [Rev. & Tax. Code § 480(b); see Prob. Code § 58(a) ("personal representative" defined)]:

(1) With county recorder or assessor in each county where decedent owned real property at time of death that is subject to probate proceeding;

(2) Before or at time inventory and appraisal is filed with county clerk [see Prob. Code §§ 8800-8980 (inventory and appraisal)].

NOTE:
In all other cases in which an interest in real property is transferred by reason of death, including a transfer through the medium of a trust, the change in ownership statement or statements must be filed by the trustee (if the property was held in trust) or the transferee with the county recorder or assessor in each county in which the decedent owned an interest in real property within 150 days after the date of death [Rev. & Tax. Code § 480(b)].

3. If county assessor makes written request for change in ownership statement, avoid penalty by filing statement within 45 days from date of request [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 482(a)].

NOTE:

The assessor will make this request if (1) he or she refuses to accept a filed preliminary change of ownership report in lieu of a change in ownership statement [see § 27.240 P 1, above], or (2) no preliminary change of ownership report or change in ownership statement is filed within the applicable statutory deadline [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 482; see also § 27.240 P 2, above].

The penalty for a failure to meet this 45-day filing deadline may be abated under certain circumstances [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 483].

§ 27.141 Adjudication of Identity

NOTE:

The following statutory procedure may be used to establish the identity of a grantor of real property when a discrepancy exists between the name in which the grantor acquired his or her interest in the property and the name in which the grantor transferred the property. This procedure may be commenced by any subsequent owner of the property to establish marketable title to the property when the discrepancy has resulted in a break in the chain of title and rendered the title unmarketable [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 770.020, 770.040(a); see Benson v. Shotwell (1890) 87 Cal. 49, 56-57, 25 P. 249 ; § 27.16[4]; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 299, Identity, Establishment of (Matthew Bender).

1. Have subsequent owner file verified petition in superior court of county in which all or a portion of property is located [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 770.030, 770.040(a)].

2. After clerk sets court hearing on petition, have subsequent owner-petitioner post notices of time and place of hearing at least 10 days before hearing in following locations [Code Civ. Proc. § 770.060(b), (c)]:

a. Courthouse of county where proceeding is pending; and

b. Conspicuous place on subject property.

3. Have owner-petitioner attend hearing and offer proof.

4. If desired, appeal court decree [Code Civ. Proc. § 770.070(b)].

§ 27.142 Preservation of Power of Termination

NOTE:

For purposes of the statutory provisions governing marketable record title [see Civ. Code §§ 880.020-887.090], "power of termination" means the power to terminate a fee simple estate following violation of a condition subsequent [Civ. Code § 885.010(a)(1); see Civ. Code § 885.010(a)(2) (definition includes transferee's power to terminate estate); see also § 27.289[1]]. This power of termination will normally expire of record at the later of the following times: (1) 30 years after the date the instrument reserving, transferring, or otherwise evidencing the power is recorded; (2) 30 years after the date a notice of intent to preserve the power is recorded, if it is recorded within the period stated under (1) in this NOTE, above; or (3) 30 years after the date an instrument or a notice (as described under (1) or (2) in this NOTE, above) is recorded, if the instrument or notice is recorded within 30 years after the date such an instrument or notice was last recorded [Civ. Code § 885.030; but see Civ. Code § 885.015 (exceptions to statutory expiration periods)].

1. Prepare notice of intent to preserve interest that:

a. Is substantially in the form specified by statute [see Civ. Code § 880.340; see also § 27.289[2]]; and

b. Includes the following information [Civ. Code § 880.330(b)]:
(1) Name and mailing address of each claimant.

(2) Statement that interest claimed is a power of termination.

(3) Reference by record location to recorded deed (or other document) that created or evidences claimant's interest.

2. Have notice signed and verified by or on behalf of claimant [Civ. Code § 880.330(a)].

3. If notice is made on claimant's behalf [see P 2, above], include statement of authority of person making the notice [Civ. Code § 880.330(a)].

4. Have notice recorded in county in which real property is situated [Civ. Code § 880.350(a)].

11-27 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 27.200

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary, Practice Consultant

§ 27.200 Grant Deed

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a basic grant deed. It includes the word "grant," which is the essential element of any grant deed [Klamath Land & Cattle Co. v. Roemer (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 613, 618, 91 Cal. Rptr. 112] . For other complete deeds, see §§ 27.201-27.231. For additional and alternative provisions that may be inserted into any of the complete deeds set forth in this chapter, see §§ 27.240-27.272. A guide to the drafting of deeds is set forth in §§ 27.130-27.134.

[b] Interests Transferred

As its name suggests, a grant deed grants an estate in real property [see Civ. Code § 1092]. A grant of real property is presumed to transfer a fee simple title unless it appears in the grant that a lesser estate was intended [Civ. Code § 1105; see Klamath Land & Cattle Co. v. Roemer (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 613, 618, 91 Cal. Rptr. 112 (grant deed may convey any type of estate in real property); see also American Enterprise, Inc. v. Van Winkle (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 210, 220, 246 P.2d 935 (grant deed is presumed to convey grantor's entire interest in the property)]. In other words, if the grantor wishes to convey an estate other than a fee estate, the deed must express that intent. A grant deed also transfers any interest in the property acquired by the grantor after the date of the grant deed [Civ. Code § 1106; see § 27.20[7]].

For further discussion of the transfer of interests or estates in real property, see §§ 27.20, 27.103.

[c] Implied Covenants

[i] When Covenants Are Implied

If a conveyance uses the word "grant" and passes an estate of inheritance or fee simple, then the following two covenants are implied from the grantor and the grantor's heirs to the grantee and the grantee's heirs and assigns unless the conveyance expressly provides otherwise [Civ. Code § 1113]:

- The grantor has not previously conveyed the same estate, or any right, title, or interest in it, to any person other than the grantee; and

- As of the time of the execution of the conveyance, the property is free from any encumbrance made by the grantor or any person claiming under the grantor.

Thus, a grant deed carries with it implied covenants against prior conveyances and against encumbrances by the grantor unless it expressly provides otherwise [Civ. Code § 1113]. These covenants are not implied if the deed containing the word "grant" is a gift deed [Estate of Porter (1903) 138 Cal. 618, 624, 72 P. 173] or a quitclaim deed [Southern Pacific Co. v. Dore (1917) 34 Cal. App. 521, 522-523, 168 P. 147] .

[ii] Covenant Against Prior Conveyances

The implied covenant against prior conveyances is personal to the grantee and does not run with the land. Consequently, any breach of the covenant occurs at the time the deed is executed, and only the original grantee may bring an action for breach [Lawrence v. Montgomery (1869) 37 Cal. 183, 188-189] .

[iii] Covenant Against Encumbrances

For purposes of the implied covenant against encumbrances, the term "encumbrance" basically means anything that charges, burdens, obstructs, or impairs the use of an estate in land or impedes its transfer [American Title Co. v. Anderson (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 255, 259, 125 Cal. Rptr. 24 ; Evans v. Faught (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 698, 706, 42 Cal. Rptr. 133] . The term specifically includes taxes, assessments, and all liens on real property [Civ. Code § 1114].

There are two categories of encumbrances: those affecting title (for example, mortgages and liens) and those affecting only the physical condition of the property (for example, rights-of-way and public roads). If the encumbrance affects title and was done, made, or suffered by the grantor, the implied covenant against encumbrances is broken at the time of the conveyance and the grantee's prior knowledge or notice of the encumbrance is immaterial [Evans v. Faught (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 698, 709, 42 Cal. Rptr. 133] . If the encumbrance consists of a physical burden on the land that is permanent in character and of an open and notorious nature but is such that it affects only the physical condition of the property, it is not an encumbrance under Civ. Code § 1113 [see [i], above] and therefore does not violate the implied covenant against encumbrances [Evans v. Faught (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 698, 709, 42 Cal. Rptr. 133] .

This covenant imposes a personal obligation on the grantor [Evans v. Faught (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 698, 712, 42 Cal. Rptr. 133] . When there are two or more grantors, the obligation is joint and several [Evans v. Faught (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 698, 712, 42 Cal. Rptr. 133] . Because it is also personal to the grantee and does not run with the land, a succeeding grantee may not maintain an action in his or her own name for breach [Babb v. Weemer (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 546, 550-551, 37 Cal. Rptr. 533] .

[iv] Remedies for Breach

Both implied covenants may be sued on in the same manner as if they had been expressly inserted in the conveyance [Civ. Code § 1113; see Civ. Code §§ 3304 (damages for breach of covenant against prior conveyances), 3305 (damages for breach of covenant against encumbrances)]. For extensive coverage of the available remedies, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 184, Deeds .

[v] Restraining Implied Covenants

As mentioned in [i], above, the foregoing covenants are not implied if they are restrained by express terms contained in the conveyance [Civ. Code § 1113]. Consequently, the grantor may specify that the grant is made without warranty of any kind or may specifically set forth in the deed the encumbrances to which the property is subject. As a practical matter, it is rare for a grant deed to restrain the implied covenants.

§ 27.202 Grant of Fee Simple Subject to Condition Subsequent

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below grants a fee simple subject to a condition subsequent. A fee simple subject to a condition subsequent is an estate that may be terminated by the grantor or the grantor's successors if a stated event occurs [Restatement of Property, § 45; People ex rel. Dept. of Public Works v. City of Fresno (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 500, 504, 26 Cal. Rptr. 853] . This definition applies whether the grantor's power to terminate the estate is characterized in the instrument that creates or evidences it as a power of termination, right of entry or reentry, right of possession or repossession, reserved power of revocation, or otherwise [Civ. Code § 885.010(a)(1); see Civ. Code § 885.010(a)(2) (transferee's power to terminate estate); see also § 27.289[1][d]. The power to terminate the fee if the stated condition occurs is an interest in the fee simple estate [Civ. Code § 885.010(b)]. This interest is transferable [see Civ. Code § 1046].

Because a condition subsequent may result in a forfeiture [see [c], below], it limits the marketability of the property. To avoid this result, covenants are more commonly used in commercial transactions [see § 27.21; see also § 28C.220 (deed incorporating prior recorded restrictive covenant)]. However, a condition subsequent is useful in certain noncommercial transactions as insurance that a desired condition will be maintained or that an undesired condition will not occur. For example, in making a gift of real property to a charity, a grantor may want to provide that the donated land be used solely as a building site for a particular type of structure, such as a church.

[b] Abolition of Fee Simple Determinable

The fee simple determinable, an estate similar to a fee simple on condition subsequent; however, no positive action by the grantor was required to regain possession on occurrence of the stated condition, was repealed in 1982 [Civ. Code §

885.020]. The possibility of reverter, which was the future interest of the grantor that existed in connection with the fee simple determinable, was also abolished [Civ. Code § 885.020]. Every estate that would be a fee simple determinable at common law is deemed to be a fee simple subject to a condition subsequent, and every interest that would be a possibility of reverter at common law is deemed to be and is enforceable as a power of termination [Civ. Code § 885.020].

[c] Construction of Condition Subsequent

A condition involving a forfeiture will be strictly interpreted against the party for whose benefit it is created [Civ. Code § 1442]. When a restriction in a deed is drafted as a condition subsequent with a power of termination in the grantor, it will normally be enforceable on behalf of the grantor or the grantor's transferee unless it is shown that changed circumstances make the enforcement inequitable [MacDonald Properties, Inc. v. Bel-Air Country Club (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 693, 699, 140 Cal. Rptr. 367 ; see [e], below]. However, due to the risk of forfeiture, conditions subsequent are disfavored by the courts and will be interpreted as covenants whenever possible [MacDonald Properties, Inc. v. Bel-Air Country Club (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 693, 699, 140 Cal. Rptr. 367] .

[d] Exercise of Power of Termination

A power of termination must be exercised only by notice or by civil action [Civ. Code § 885.050]. Further, if the power is of record, the exercise must also be of record [Civ. Code § 885.050]. The notice must be given and any civil action must be commenced within five years after a breach of the restriction, or within a longer period agreed on by the parties if they record a waiver or extension before expiration of the five-year period [Civ. Code § 885.050; see also Civ. Code § 784 (definition of "restriction" includes condition subsequent); Code Civ. Proc. § 336(b) (action for violation of "restriction" must be commenced within five years)]. For additional coverage, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 184, Deeds .

[e] Expiration of Power

A power of termination of record will normally expire 30 years after the date the instrument reserving, transferring, or otherwise evidencing the power is recorded [Civ. Code §§ 885.030(a), 880.370]. However, the expiration date may be postponed an additional 30 years by recordation of a notice of intent to preserve the power [Civ. Code §§ 885.030(a), 880.370; see Civ. Code § 880.340]. For a more detailed discussion of this expiration period and notice of intent, see § 27.289[1].

A power of termination will expire before the statutory expiration date if it becomes obsolete [Civ. Code § 885.040(a)]. The power is obsolete if any of the following circumstances apply [Civ. Code § 885.040(b)]:

- The relevant restriction (condition subsequent) is of no actual and substantial benefit to the holder of the power.
- The enforcement of the power would not effectuate the purpose of the restriction.
- It would be otherwise inequitable to enforce the power because of changed conditions or circumstances.

Notwithstanding these three circumstances, no power of termination will expire because of obsolescence during the life of the grantor if the power arises from a grant by a natural person without consideration to a public entity or to a tax-exempt organization [Civ. Code § 885.040(c)].

§ 27.203 Quitclaim Deed

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a quitclaim deed. A quitclaim deed transfers whatever interest the grantor possesses at the time of the deed, including legal, equitable, and inchoate rights [Leggio v. Haggerty (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 873, 880, 42 Cal. Rptr. 400 ; Soares v. Steidtmann (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 401, 404, 278 P.2d 953] . It does not pass after-acquired title [Klamath Land & Cattle Co. v. Roemer (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 613, 618, 91 Cal. Rptr. 112] . However, if the grantor possesses an equitable interest at the time of the execution of the deed and later acquires a legal title, the title is deemed to have been transferred [Klamath Land & Cattle Co. v. Roemer (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 613, 618-619, 91 Cal. Rptr. 112 ; see § 27.20[7]].

Unlike a grant deed, a quitclaim deed does not contain implied covenants [Southern Pac. Co. v. Dore (1917) 34 Cal. App. 521, 522-523, 168 P. 147] . Also, a quitclaim deed is not subject to the presumption (applicable to grant deeds) that a fee simple title is intended to pass [Winchell v. Lambert (1956) 146 Cal. App. 2d 575, 579, 304 P.2d 149] .

[b] Wording

The operative words of a quitclaim deed are "remise, release, and quitclaim" [Touchard v. Crow (1862) 20 Cal. 150, 160] , or simply "quitclaim" [1 Bowman, Ogden's Revised California Real Property Law, Ch. 3, Transfer by Deed, § 3.5 (Cal. CEB 1975); see Wholey v. Cavanaugh (1891) 88 Cal. 132, 135, 25 P. 1112 (omission of word "remise" was not material)].

[c] Recordation

A recorded quitclaim deed is good as against an unrecorded grant [Beach v. Faust (1935) 2 Cal. 2d 290, 293, 40 P.2d 822] . The grantee under a quitclaim deed is a bona fide purchaser under the recording laws and is therefore protected from unrecorded instruments affecting the title to the property of which the grantee had no notice [Beach v. Faust (1935) 2 Cal. 2d 290, 293, 40 P.2d 822] .

§ 27.204 Life Estate Deed

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a grant deed that contains alternatives for granting or reserving the most frequently used types of life estate. It contains alternative provisions that a grantor may use to convey or reserve a life estate and to provide for the transfer of the remaining interest in the property. These alternatives are discussed below.

For an illustrative deed provision that may be used to reserve other types of estates or interests, see § 27.261[2]. For detailed coverage of the future interests discussed in this comment, see Ch. 67, Future Interests and Perpetuities . For discussion of grant deeds in general, see § 27.200[1].

[b] Definition of Life Estate

A life estate is an estate the duration of which is measured either by the life of the person holding it or by the life of another [Estate of Nichols (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 783, 795, 19 Cal. Rptr. 93] . It is a freehold estate [Civ. Code § 765 (estates for life are called estates of freehold)] whether it is measured in its duration by the life of the tenant [Civ. Code § 765] or by the life of some other person [Civ. Code § 766; Smythe Estate (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 343, 345, 282 P.2d 141] . A life estate dependent on the life of a third person is called a life estate pur autre vie [Powell On Real Property, Ch. 15, Estates for Life, P 201 (Matthew Bender); see second and fourth alternatives in form; but see Restatement of Property, § 18, Comment (a)(Restatement does not use "pur autre vie" terminology)], that is, for the life of another.

[c] Reversions and Remainders

When a grantor conveys a life estate to the grantee without other instructions (for example, "to B for life") [see first alternative in form], then the grantor retains an interest in the property conveyed. This interest is called a "reversion" and means that the property reverts to the grantor or the grantor's successors on the death of the "remaining life" [Civ. Code § 768; see Restatement of Property, § 154(2)(a reversion is any reversionary interest that is not subject to a condition precedent); see also Restatement of Property, § 154(1)(a "reversionary interest" is any future interest that is left in the transferer or the transferer's successors in interest)].

Instead of retaining a reversion, the grantor may create a life estate, specifying that on the death of the measuring life, the property will pass to a third party [see third and fourth alternatives in form]. The interest created in the third party is known as a "remainder" [see Civ. Code § 769 (a "remainder" is a future estate, other than a reversion, that is dependent on a precedent estate)]. The third party is known as a "remainderman."

[d] Reservation in Favor of Grantor

A grantor may convey a fee interest in real property to a grantee, reserving a life estate in himself or herself [Civ. Code § 767; Merritt v. Rey (1930) 104 Cal. App. 700, 706, 286 P. 510 ; see fifth alternative in form]. This alternative means that the grantee does not come into possession of the property until the death of the grantor. Thus, the grant gives the grantee a future interest [Civ. Code §§ 749, 773; Lowe v. Ruhlman (1945) 67 Cal. App. 2d 828, 834, 155 P.2d 671] . For additional discussion of reservations, see § 27.261[1].

A delivery of a deed that conveys a future interest will be valid if the grantor intends to make the delivery absolute, that is, to pass a present title to the property to the grantee [Williams v. Kidd (1915) 170 Cal. 631, 637, 151 P. 1] . For further discussion, see § 27.31[3].

[e] Creation of Life Estate

A life estate may be created by grant in a deed (this form) [Restatement of Property, § 107]. The grant need not expressly declare the estate to be a life estate or use the term "life estate" [Estate of Nichols (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 783, 795, 19 Cal. Rptr. 93] . Any language that describes the characteristics of the estate in such a way as to show that a life estate was intended to pass is sufficient [Estate of Nichols (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 783, 795, 19 Cal. Rptr. 93] .

§ 27.210 Joint Tenancy Grant Deed

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a joint tenancy grant deed. It should be used when the grantor wishes to convey property to two or more grantees in equal shares and to create a right of survivorship. If the joint tenants are a married couple, the second (optional) paragraph set forth in this form should be used [see [c], below].

Joint tenancy is one of the forms in which two or more persons may hold property in California. The other forms are [see Civ. Code §§ 682, 682.1]:

- Tenancy in common [see § 27.212];
- Partnership [see § 27.221]; and
- Community property (with or without express right of survivorship) [see § 27.213].

These forms of joint ownership are mutually exclusive [see Jacquemart v. Jacquemart (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 794, 796, 299 P.2d 281] .

For a more detailed discussion of joint tenancy, see California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 345, Cotenancies: Creation, Characteristics, and Estate Planning Aspects , Part B (Matthew Bender). For coverage of grant deeds in general, see § 27.200[1].

[b] Joint Tenancy

[i] Definition and Methods of Creation

California law defines a joint tenancy in terms of joint interests. A joint interest is one owned by two or more persons in equal shares and created by one of the methods authorized by statute [Civ. Code § 683]. The joint tenants collectively have one estate, and their interest and rights in the estate must be equal, coextensive [Yeoman v. Sawyer (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 43, 45, 221 P.2d 225] and identical [Kaupe v. Kaupe (1955) 131 Cal. App. 2d 511, 513, 280 P.2d 856] .

One method of creating a joint tenancy is by a single transfer or will that expressly declares that a joint tenancy is being created (this form) [Civ. Code § 683; see Estate of Horn (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 635, 639, 228 P.2d 99 (joint tenancy can be created only by a written transfer, an instrument, or an agreement)]. Obviously, under this method the joint tenants must obtain their interests at the same time and from the same grantor.

A second method permits one or more persons who already hold title to the property (in a form other than joint tenancy) to create a joint tenancy in the property. Under this method, a joint interest may be created by a transfer that expressly declares that the interest is a joint tenancy and that it is from [Civ. Code § 683]:

- A sole owner to that owner and others;

- Tenants in common or joint tenants to (1) themselves or some of them, or (2) to themselves or any of them and others; or

- A husband and wife when holding title as community property or otherwise to (1) themselves, (2) themselves and others, or (3) one of them and to another or others.

A joint tenancy may be created in any estate recognized by law [Riley v. Turpin (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 152, 155, 301 P.2d 834] , including undivided interests [Gonzales v. Gonzales (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 428, 435, 73 Cal. Rptr. 83 ; Estate of Galletto (1946) 75 Cal. App. 2d 580, 587, 171 P.2d 152] .

[ii] Wording of Deed

As discussed under [i], above, a deed creating a joint tenancy must expressly declare that a joint tenancy is being created [Civ. Code § 683]. Because joint tenants necessarily own the joint tenancy property in equal shares [Civ. Code § 683; see [i], above], the deed need not mention these equal ownership interests. Language in a joint tenancy deed providing that the deed conveys the "rents, issues, and profits" from the subject land is mere surplusage and does not give the grantees any rights other than those implied by the grant [Black v. Black (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 328, 333-334, 204 P.2d 950] . Finally, although a joint tenancy grant deed need not contain words describing the right of survivorship or succession [see [iii], below], these words are often included.

[iii] Succession Feature

The principal distinguishing feature of joint tenancy is that the property belongs to the surviving joint tenant by virtue of the original joint tenancy title and not through inheritance or any other type of succession after death [Goldberg v. Goldberg (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 623, 628, 32 Cal. Rptr. 93] . The probate court does not have jurisdiction over the property except to establish the fact of death [Prob. Code §§ 200-204, 210-212]. Thus, joint tenancy is often selected to avoid probate expenses and delays [see Prob. Code § 10800(a) (compensation of personal representative is based on value of estate)].

[c] Married Persons as Joint Tenants

Except as otherwise provided by statute, all real property (wherever situated) acquired by a married person during marriage while domiciled in California is community property [Fam. Code § 760]. An important statutory presumption that applies solely for the purpose of division of property on dissolution of marriage or legal separation provides that property acquired by the parties during marriage in joint tenancy form is presumed to be community property. This presumption affects the burden of proof and may be rebutted by either of the following [Fam. Code § 2581]:

- A clear statement in the deed (or other documentary evidence of title) by which the property is acquired that the property is separate property and not community property, or
- Proof that the parties have made a written agreement that the property is separate property.

Another statutory presumption applies when real property (or any interest in or encumbrance on real property) was acquired by a husband and wife before 1975 by an instrument in which they are described as husband and wife. In that case, the presumption is that the property is the community property of the parties, unless a different intention is expressed in the instrument [Fam. Code § 803]. For further discussion of these presumptions and provisions rebutting them, see § 27.254[2].

§ 27.211 Deed Conveying (Severing) Joint Tenant's Interest

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a deed that conveys legal title to a joint tenant's interest in real property to a third person. This type of conveyance severs the joint tenancy as to the joint tenant's interest without the joinder or consent of the other joint tenants [see Civ. Code § 683.2]. This method of severing a joint tenancy and the other methods prescribed by Civ. Code § 683.2 [see [b][i], below] are not exclusive [Civ. Code § 683.2(a); for discussion of other methods of severance, see; California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 316, Joint Tenancy and Tenancy in Common (Matthew Bender)].

For the definition of "joint tenancy" [see Civ. Code § 683(a)], a discussion of the features and methods of creation of joint tenancies, and an illustrative joint tenancy deed, see § 27.210. For further discussion of these topics, see California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 345, Cotenancies: Creation, Characteristics, and Estate Planning Aspects (Matthew Bender), and California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 316, Joint Tenancy and Tenancy in Common (Matthew Bender).

[b] Severance by Unilateral Execution of Instrument

[i] Means of Severance

A joint tenant may sever a joint tenancy in real property as to the joint tenant's interest without the joinder or consent of the other joint tenants by any of the following means [Civ. Code § 683.2(a)]:

- Execution and delivery of a deed (this form) that conveys legal title to the joint tenant's interest to a third person, whether or not pursuant to an agreement that requires the third person to reconvey legal title to the joint tenant.

- Execution of a written instrument that evidences the intent to sever the joint tenancy, including a deed that names the joint tenant as transferee.

- Execution of a written declaration stating that, as to the interest of the joint tenant, the joint tenancy is severed.

Civ. Code § 683.2(a) is a codification of the rule that a joint tenant need not utilize a "strawman" conveyance or other intermediary device to sever a real property joint tenancy unilaterally [18 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 69-70 (1986); see Riddle v. Harmon (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 524, 528-530, 162 Cal. Rptr. 530 ; Estate of Carpenter (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 709, 711-712, 189 Cal. Rptr. 651] .

Civ. Code § 683.2 is intended to apply only to true joint tenancy property, not to community property that appears of record in joint tenancy form [18 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 69 (1986); see Fam. Code § 2581 (property acquired during marriage in joint form presumed to be community); see also § 27.210[1][c]].

[ii] Joint Tenancy of Record

Severance of a joint tenancy of record by deed, written declaration, or other written instrument pursuant to Civ. Code § 683.2(a) does not terminate the right of survivorship of the other joint tenants as to the severing joint tenant's interest unless one of the following requirements is satisfied [Civ. Code § 683.2(c)]:

- Before the death of the severing joint tenant, the deed, written declaration, or other written instrument effecting the severance is recorded in the county where the real property is located; or

- The deed, written declaration, or other written instrument effecting the severance is executed and acknowledged before a notary public by the severing joint tenant not earlier than three days before the death of that joint tenant and is recorded in the county where the real property is located not later than seven days after the death of the severing joint tenant.

This recording requirement does not limit the manner or effect of the following [Civ. Code § 683.2(d)]:

- A written instrument executed by all the joint tenants that severs the joint tenancy;

- A severance made by or pursuant to a written agreement of all the joint tenants; and

- A deed from a joint tenant to another joint tenant.

[iii] Conflicting Written Agreement

Civ. Code § 683.2 does not authorize a severance of a joint tenancy that is contrary to a written agreement of the joint tenants [Civ. Code § 683.2]. A severance contrary to such a written agreement, however, does not defeat the rights of a purchaser or encumbrancer for value in good faith and without knowledge of the written agreement [Civ. Code § 683.2(b)].

[iv] Date of Creation of Tenancy

The provisions of Civ. Code § 683.2(a) and (b) [see [b][i], [iii], above] apply to all joint tenancies in real property regardless of the date of creation, except that in the case of the death of a joint tenant before January 1, 1985, the validity of a severance under those subdivisions is determined by the law in effect at the time of death [Civ. Code § 683.2(e); for discussion of these laws, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 316, Joint Tenancy and Tenancy in Common (Matthew Bender)]. The provisions of Civ. Code § 683.2(c) and (d) [see [b][ii], above] do not apply to or affect a severance of a joint tenancy made before January 1, 1986 [Civ. Code § 683.2(e)].

[v] Effect of Severance

Following a severance pursuant to Civ. Code § 683.2, a tenancy in common relationship without the right of survivorship exists between the severing joint tenant (if he or she retains the interest) or the severing joint tenant's transferee (if applicable) and the other joint tenants. The other joint tenants continue to hold title as joint tenants among themselves [see 18 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 70 (1986); see also Hammond v. McArthur (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 512, 516, 183 P.2d 1 , citing Estate of Galletto (1946) 75 Cal. App. 2d 580, 587, 171 P.2d 152] . For further discussion of the effects of severance, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 316, Joint Tenancy and Tenancy in Common (Matthew Bender).

§ 27.212 Tenancy in Common Deed

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a tenancy in common deed. A tenancy in common is defined in terms of interests in common. An interest in common is an interest owned by several persons not in joint ownership or partnership [Civ. Code § 685; see Civ. Code § 686]. Consequently, every interest created in favor of several persons in their own right is an interest in common, unless (1) it is acquired by them in partnership, for partnership purposes, (2) it is declared in its creation to be a joint interest [see § 27.210], or (3) it is acquired as community property [Civ. Code § 683; see § 27.213[1]].

For a discussion of the other forms in which two or more persons may hold property, see § 27.210[1][a]. For coverage of grant deeds in general, see § 27.200[1].

[b] Interests of Tenants in Common

The essence of a tenancy in common is the holding of an undivided interest in property [Davis v. Davis (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 691, 693, 35 Cal. Rptr. 281] . The interests of the cotenants need not be equal [see Civ. Code §§ 683, 685]. If a tenancy in common deed simply lists the grantees as owners of the property without specifying their fractional interests, there is a rebuttable presumption that their interests are equal [Anderson v. Broadwell (1931) 119 Cal. App. 150, 153, 6 P.2d 267] . Consequently, the deed should describe any disproportionate interests. Title companies prefer that the deed specify the proportions of the grantee's interests even when they are equal.

[c] Married Persons as Joint Tenants

Except as otherwise provided by statute, all real property (wherever situated) acquired by a married person during

marriage while domiciled in California is community property [Fam. Code § 760]. An important statutory presumption that applies solely for the purpose of division of property on dissolution of marriage or legal separation provides that property acquired by the parties during marriage in joint form, including property held in tenancy in common, is presumed to be community property [Fam. Code § 2581]. This presumption affects the burden of proof and may be rebutted by either of the following [Fam. Code § 2581]:

- A clear statement in the deed (or other documentary evidence of title) by which the property is acquired that the property is separate property and not community property, or
- Proof that the parties have made a written agreement that the property is separate property.

Another statutory presumption applies when real property (or any interest in or encumbrance on real property) was acquired by a husband and wife before 1975 by an instrument in which they are described as husband and wife. In that case, the presumption is that the property is the community property of the parties, unless a different intention is expressed in the instrument [Fam. Code § 803]. For further discussion of these presumptions and provisions rebutting them, see § 27.254[1].

§ 27.213 Community Property Deed

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a grant deed that conveys property to a husband and wife as their community property. A husband and wife may hold property as community property (with or without an express right of survivorship, as discussed below), or as joint tenants or tenants in common [Fam. Code § 750; Civ. Code §§ 682, 682.1; see §§ 27.210[1] (discussion of joint tenancies) and 27.212[1] (discussion of tenancies in common)]. They may also each own separate property [see Fam. Code § 770; see also Ch. 120, Complete Marital Settlement Agreements].

This form includes optional provisions that should be used when the parties wish to create a right of survivorship in the property. Effective July 1, 2001, a transfer document may provide for a husband and wife to hold community property with a right of survivorship [Civ. Code § 682.1]. This express right of survivorship distinguishes this form of title from the "community interest of husband and wife" long provided for under Civ. Code § 682. Thus, a husband and wife may elect to hold community property with or without the express right of survivorship. For further discussion of the right of survivorship option, see [c][i], below.

For a deed that may be used to convey real property to a husband and wife as joint tenants, see § 27.210[2]. A grant deed that alters the statutory property rights of a husband and a wife in real property is set forth in § 27.214[2]. Coverage of grant deeds in general is set forth in § 27.200[1]. For a deed recital that may be used to rebut otherwise applicable presumptions regarding community property [see [d], below], see § 27.254[2].

[b] Overview of Community Property

Except as otherwise provided by statute, all real property and personal property (wherever situated) acquired by a married person during the marriage while domiciled in California is community property [Fam. Code § 760]. Further, community property that is transferred in trust remains community property during the marriage under the circumstances described in Fam. Code § 761 [see Ch. 120, Complete Marital Settlement Agreements].

The respective interests of the husband and wife in community property during the continuance of the marriage relationship are present, existing, and equal interests [Fam. Code § 751]. Either spouse has the management and control of the community real property, regardless of when it was acquired. However, both spouses must join in executing any instrument by which community real property, or any interest in community real property, is sold, conveyed, encumbered, or leased for a period of more than one year [Fam. Code § 1102(a)]. The spouses may do this personally or by a duly authorized representative [Fam. Code § 1102(a)]. This execution requirement does not apply to leases, mortgages, conveyances, or transfers of real property or any interest in real property between the spouses [Fam. Code § 1102(b)]. Notwithstanding this requirement, a deed of either spouse holding record title to community real property to a purchaser in good faith without knowledge of the marriage relation is presumed to be valid [Fam. Code § 1102(c)(2) (applicable to deed executed on or after January 1, 1975; see Fam. Code § 1102(c)(1) (applicable to deed executed by husband prior to 1975)].

[c] Community Property With Right of Survivorship

[i] Overview and Operative Date

Under Civ. Code § 682.1, community property of a husband and wife, when expressly declared in the transfer document to be community property with right of survivorship, upon the death of one of the spouses, will pass to the survivor without administration [Civ. Code § 682.1(a); see Prob. Code § 100 (one-half of community property belongs to surviving spouse and other half to decedent unless spouses provide otherwise in writing)]. In addition to the avoidance of probate, this form of title essentially offers assurances that the grantees will be able to take full advantage of the tax benefits of community property [see [iii], below].

Civ. Code § 682.1 became operative on July 1, 2001, and applies to instruments created on or after that date [Civ. Code § 682.1(c)]. Married couples holding title as joint tenants prior to that date may wish to take advantage of this form of title by executing a new deed that satisfies the requirements of Civ. Code § 682.1.

Civ. Code § 682.1 does not apply to a joint account in a financial institution that is subject to Prob. Code § 5100 et seq. (the California Multiple-Party Account Law) [Civ. Code § 682.1(b)].

[ii] Acceptance By Grantee

The express declaration required by Civ. Code § 682.1 "may be accepted in writing on the face of the document by a statement signed or initialed by the grantees" (emphasis added) [Civ. Code § 682.1]. The use of "may" in the quoted language suggests that acceptance is optional, and such a written acceptance by the grantees would be a departure from the standard practice of having only the grantor sign the grant deed. On the other hand, the analyses by various Assembly and Senate committees of the bill that added Civ. Code § 682.1 indicate that the provision was intended to require acceptance by the grantee [see, e.g., Assembly Committee on Judiciary analysis of AB 2913, August 25, 2000; Senate Rules Committee analysis of AB 2913, August 18, 2000]. Due to this uncertainly regarding the statutory acceptance language, counsel should strongly consider having the grantees sign or initial the deed. This form contains optional signature blocks providing for this acceptance.

[iii] Tax Benefits

If a married person dies leaving his or her share of the community property to his or her surviving spouse, a special provision of the Internal Revenue Code gives a new (sometimes called stepped-up) date-of-death basis for income tax purposes to both halves of the community property [I.R.C. § 1014(b)(6)]. This basis is the fair market value of the property at the time of the decedent's death [I.R.C. § 1014(a)(1)]. If the property has appreciated substantially since it was originally purchased, and if the surviving spouse sells the property after the deceased spouse's death, this new date-of-death value basis will typically produce significant income tax savings. If the property received from the deceased spouse was separate property, however, only the decedent's half receives a new basis [see I.R.C. § 1014(a)]. For further discussion of the taxation of community property, see Ch. 60, Estate Planning .

The community property with right of survivorship form of title clearly establishes that the property is community property for taxation purposes. This is a significant benefit that is not present when a husband and wife hold property as joint tenants, because it is possible the IRS will find that each such spouse holds a separate property interest in the property [see, e.g., Rev. Rul. 87-98 (IRS rejected any blanket rule allowing joint tenancy property to be treated as community property for federal tax purposes, and reiterated that controlling factor was determination under state law); Estate of Young v. Commissioner (1998) 110 T.C. 297, 302, 306 (tax court was not bound by spousal property order issued by California superior court and finding that property was community property, and tax court concluded that estate failed to overcome presumption of joint tenancy with right of survivorship created by deeds under California law)].

[iv] Termination of Right of Survivorship

Before the death of either spouse, the right of survivorship may be terminated pursuant to the same procedures by which a joint tenancy may be severed [Civ. Code § 682.1(a)]. For a deed severing a joint tenant's interest and related discussion, see § 27.211.

[d] Presumptions Regarding Community Property

For the purpose of division of property on dissolution of marriage or legal separation, property acquired by the parties during marriage in joint form, including property held in tenancy in common, joint tenancy, or tenancy by the entirety, or as community property, is presumed to be community property [Fam. Code § 2581]. This presumption affects the burden of proof and may be rebutted by either of the following [Fam. Code § 2581]:

- A clear statement in the deed (or other documentary evidence of title) by which the property is acquired that the property is separate property and not community property [see § 27.254[2]], or

- Proof that the parties have made a written agreement that the property is separate property.

Another statutory presumption applies when real property (or any interest in or encumbrance on real property) was acquired by a husband and wife before 1975 by an instrument in which they are described as husband and wife. In that case, the presumption is that the property is the community property of the parties, unless a different intention is expressed in the instrument [Fam. Code § 803]. For further discussion of these presumptions, see § 27.254[1].

Rather than relying on the foregoing presumptions, which, as discussed above, may be rebutted or may not apply under certain circumstances, this form clarifies the intent of the parties by stating that the grantees are husband and wife and are receiving the property as their community property.

§ 27.214 Grant Deed Transmuting Marital Property

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a grant deed that may be used to transmute marital real property. Transmutation is the statutory process of altering the statutory property rights of a husband and a wife [see Fam. Code §§ 850-853, 1500; see also Ch. 121, Provisions for Division of Property]. Subject to certain limitations discussed below, married persons may by agreement or transfer, with or without consideration, take any of the following actions [Fam. Code § 850]:

- Transmute community property to separate property of either spouse;

- Transmute separate property of either spouse to community property; or (3) transmute separate property of one spouse to separate property of the other spouse.

This form contains three alternative grant provisions, each of which accomplishes one of the foregoing transmutations.

For illustrative transmutation agreements and coverage of the tax aspects of transmutations, see Ch. 112, Postnuptial Agreements .

[b] Requirements

A transmutation of real or personal property is not valid unless made in writing by an express declaration that is made, joined in, consented to, or accepted by the spouse whose interest in the property is adversely affected [Fam. Code § 852(a); see Fam. Code § 852(e) (statute does not apply to or affect a transmutation made before 1985)]. A writing is not an "express declaration" for these purposes unless it contains language that expressly states that the characterization or ownership of the property is being changed [Estate of MacDonald (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 262, 272, 272 Cal. Rptr. 153 (decided under former Civ. Code § 5110.730(a)]. However, Fam. Code § 852 does not require the use of any particular term or expression, such as "transmutation," "community property," or "separate property" [see Estate of MacDonald (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 262, 273, 272 Cal. Rptr. 153] .

A transmutation of real property is not effective as to third parties without notice unless it is recorded [Fam. Code § 852(b)].

[c] Relationship of Transmutation Provisions to Other Laws

The statutory provisions governing transmutation do not affect the law governing the characterization of property that applies when separate property and community property are commingled or otherwise combined [Fam. Code § 852(d)]. A statement in a will concerning the character of property is not admissible as evidence of a transmutation of the property in any proceeding commenced before the death of the person who made the will [Fam. Code § 853(a)]. A written joinder or written consent to a nonprobate transfer of community property on death that satisfies Fam. Code § 852 is a transmutation and is governed by the law applicable to transmutations and not by the provisions of the Probate Code governing nonprobate transfers of community property [Fam. Code § 853(c); see Prob. Code §§ 5010-5032].

[d] Fraudulent Transfers

A transmutation is subject to the laws governing fraudulent transfers [Fam. Code § 851]. Consequently, the spouses cannot change the character of their property in order to defraud or avoid their creditors [see Civ. Code § 3439 et seq. (Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act)]. For detailed coverage of the laws governing fraudulent transfers, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 270, Fraudulent Conveyances (Matthew Bender).

§ 27.220 Corporation Deed

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a corporation grant deed. A corporation has all of the powers of a natural person in carrying out its business activities, including the power to acquire and convey real property [see Corp. Code § 207(g)].

[b] Exercise of Corporation Powers

[i] By Board of Directors

Subject to the provisions of the General Corporation Law [Corp. Code § 100 et seq.] and to any limitations in the articles of incorporation relating to actions that must be approved by the shareholders [see Corp. Code § 153], by the outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 152], or by a less than majority vote of a class or series of preferred shares [see Corp. Code § 402.5], the business and affairs of every corporation are managed and all corporate powers are exercised by or under the direction of the board of directors [Corp. Code § 300(a)]. A corporation must have a board chairperson or a president or both, a secretary, and a chief financial officer [Corp. Code § 312(a)]. Any number of offices may be held by the same person unless the articles or bylaws provide otherwise [Corp. Code § 312(a)].

[ii] Execution of Conveyances

Any conveyance executed between a corporation and any other person, when signed by the appropriate officers, is not invalid for any lack of authority of the signing officers if the other person did not have actual knowledge of that lack of authority [Corp. Code § 313]. The appropriate officers are (1) the chairman of the board, the president, or any vice president, and (2) the secretary, assistant secretary, chief financial officer, or assistant treasurer of the corporation [

Corp. Code § 313; but see Corp. Code § 208(a) (rule inapplicable to certain intracorporate disputes not affecting rights of third persons)]. This form provides for execution by the president and secretary. Bylaws usually specify the manner in which deeds and conveyances may be executed on behalf of a corporation [see Ch. 4, Bylaws, § 4.200[2]].

[iii] Approval Requirements

If the property to be transferred represents all or substantially all of the assets of the corporation, the principal terms of the transaction must be approved by the board of directors [Corp. Code § 1001(a); see Corp. Code § 151 ("approved by the board" defined); see also [c], below]. In addition, unless the transaction is in the usual and regular course of the business of the corporation, the principal terms of the transfer must also be approved by the outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 152 ("approved by the outstanding shares" defined)] either before or after the board's approval and before or after the transaction [Corp. Code § 1001(a)]. However, if the transaction constitutes a conversion to another form of business entity, it is not subject to these provisions but rather to provisions that specifically govern conversions [Corp. Code § 1001(a); see Corp. Code § 1150 et seq. (conversions)]. For further coverage of this requirement, see Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Laws, Ch. 12, Corporate Acquisitions, Mergers, and Reorganizations , § 257 (Matthew Bender).

[c] Resolution Authorizing Conveyance

Because corporate powers must be exercised by or under the direction of the board of directors [Corp. Code § 300(a); see [b][i], above], a grantee or title insurer may require a certified copy of the resolution of the directors authorizing the execution of the deed [see § 27.281[2]; see also Ch. 5, Directors' Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions]. However, this demand is rarely made when (1) the deed contains a certificate of acknowledgment that includes a statutory recital "by a duly authorized person" [Civ. Code § 1190] regarding the corporation's authority to execute the deed [see Civ. Code § 1189; see also [f], below], or (2) a certificate of the secretary or assistant secretary of the corporation is attached to the deed and provides that the conveyance was duly authorized [see Corp. Code § 1002; see also [f], below].

[d] Name Change Following Grantor's Acquisition of Property

If the name of the corporation has been changed since the corporation acquired the property being conveyed, and the deed does not include the name under which the corporation received title, it will be valid between the parties and those with notice [Civ. Code § 1096]. However, the recordation of such a deed will not impart constructive notice of its contents to subsequent purchasers and encumbrancers [Civ. Code § 1096; see Benson v. Shotwell (1890) 87 Cal. 49, 56-57, 25 P. 249 (grantor's use of substantially different name in conveyance instrument breaks recorded chain of title and renders title unmarketable)]. Consequently, both the former and the present name should appear on the deed. For examples of ways in which this can be accomplished, see § 27.250[2]. In the case of an existing deed that contains such a discrepancy, a statutory procedure may be used to establish (1) the identity of the grantor and (2) marketable title to the property [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 770.010-770.080; see also § 27.16[4]].

[e] Corporate Seal

A corporation may adopt, use, and at will alter a corporate seal [Corp. Code § 207(a)]. However, failure to affix a seal does not affect the validity of any instrument [Corp. Code § 207(a)].

[f] Acknowledgment and Alternative Assurances Regarding Authorization of Conveyance

Civ. Code § 1189(a) sets forth the certificate of acknowledgment form that must be used when the acknowledgment is taken within this state [see § 27.280[1] for a detailed discussion of acknowledgments]. If this certificate is executed on behalf of the corporation by a "duly authorized person," it will be (1) prima facie evidence that the deed is the duly authorized act of the corporation named in the deed, and (2) conclusive evidence that the deed is the duly authorized act of the named corporation in favor of any good faith purchaser, lessee, or encumbrancer [Civ. Code § 1190]. For these purposes, the president, vice president, secretary, and assistant secretary of the corporation are considered duly authorized persons [Civ. Code § 1190].

An alternative statutory procedure offering similar protections relating to the authorization for a corporate conveyance involves the use of a certificate of the secretary or assistant secretary of the corporation [see Corp. Code § 1002]. Unlike the statutory certificate of acknowledgment, the certificate of a secretary or assistant secretary may be used when the deed is not being recorded or when the deed will be executed by someone other than a duly authorized person [*Corp. § 27.221 Partnership Deed

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a partnership grant deed. A partnership can acquire real property in the partnership name or in the name of one or more of the partners [see Corp. Code § 16204]. Property acquired by a partnership is property of the partnership and not of the partners individually [Corp. Code § 16203]. Any partner in a general partnership, and a general partner of a limited partnership, can convey title in the partnership name by an instrument executed in the partnership name (this form) [Corp. Code §§ 16302(a)(1)-(3), 16303 (general partnership); see Corp. Code § 15904.02(a) (ULPA '08), 15643 (CRLPA, repealed January 1, 2010)].

[b] Title in Name of Partner or Partners

If title to partnership property is held in the name of one or more of the partners, only the partners in whose name title stands can convey title [see Corp. Code §§ 16302(a)(2), 16303]. Title is rarely held in this manner, however, because it may not be clear from the record that the property is owned by the partnership instead of the named individuals.

[c] General Partnerships

Although any partner may convey title to real property held in the partnership name by a conveyance executed in the partnership name [Corp. Code §§ 16302(a)(1), 16303; see [a], above], the partnership can recover the property unless the partner's act binds the partnership or the property has been conveyed to a bona fide purchaser for value without knowledge that the partner exceeded his or her authority by executing the conveyance [see Corp. Code §§ 16302(b), 16303; see also Ch. 15, General Partnerships]. The act of every partner, including the execution of an instrument in the partnership name in the apparent course of the partnership business, binds the partnership [Corp. Code §§ 16301, 16303

]. This rule permits one partner to bind the partnership. However, title companies usually require the signatures of all of the partners or satisfactory evidence that the partners who signed the instrument were authorized to do so. A provision in a recorded statement of partnership signed by all the partners granting such authority is satisfactory evidence of that authority [see Ch. 15, General Partnerships ; see also Corp. Code § 16303].

For further discussion of the conveyance of partnership real property, see Ch. 15, General Partnerships .

[d] Limited Partnerships

The recordation of a certified copy of the certificate of limited partnership (or any amendment) in the county where partnership real property is located creates a conclusive presumption in favor of a bona fide purchaser of the property that the general partners named in the certificate are all of the general partnerships of the partnership [Corp. Code § 15902.01(e) (ULPA '08), Corp. Code § 15621(d) (CRLPA, repealed January 1, 2010)]. Title companies usually insist that a certificate of partnership be recorded and that all of the general partners sign a conveyance.

The consent of each partner is necessary to sell, lease, exchange, or otherwise dispose of all or substantially all of a limited partnership's property, with or without the goodwill, other than in the usual and regular course of the limited partnership's activities [Corp. Code § 15904.06(a) (ULPA '08)]. Under the CRLPA, unless the limited partnership agreement provides to the contrary, a transfer of all or a substantial part of the assets of the limited partnership that is not in the ordinary course of business must be authorized by the affirmative vote of a majority in interest of the limited partners [Corp. Code § 15636(f)(1)(B) (CRLPA, repealed January 1, 2010)].

For further discussion of limited partnerships, see Ch. 16, Formation of Limited Partnerships .

§ 27.222 Joint Venture Deed

[1] Comment--Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a grant deed that conveys title to joint venture real property. A joint venture is an association of two or more persons who combine their property, skill, or knowledge to carry out a single business enterprise for profit [Holtz v. United Plumbing & Heating Co. (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 501, 506, 319 P.2d 617 ; Bank of California v. Connolly (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 350, 364, 111 Cal. Rptr. 468] . For a discussion of joint ventures, see Ch. 29A, Joint Ventures .

Because title insurance companies, for their purposes, consider individual joint venturers as owners of the joint venture real property in their individual capacities, this form assumes, as is commonly the case, that the property is held in the names of the individual joint venturers [see § 27.251[2] for a deed provision that may be used when the grantee is a joint venturer]. If title is held in some other form, the title insurance company will probably require the deed to adopt that alternative form. For example, the first sentence of the form should begin "_____ [name of joint venture], composed of _____ and _____ [names of joint venturers], grant ..." if title is held in that form.

§ 27.223 Unincorporated Association Deed

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a grant deed by an unincorporated association. An "unincorporated association" is an unincorporated group of two or more persons joined by mutual consent for a common lawful purpose, whether organized for profit or not [Corp. Code § 18035(a)]. However, joint tenancy, tenancy in common, community property, or other form or property tenure does not by itself establish an unincorporated association, even if coowners share ownership of the property for a common purpose [Corp. Code § 18035(b)]. Further, marriage or creation of a registered domestic partnership does not by itself establish an unincorporated association [Corp. Code § 18035(c)]. The following are not unincorporated associations [Corp. Code § 18055]:

- Corporations.
- Government or governmental subdivisions and agencies.
- Partnerships or joint ventures.
- Limited liability companies.
- Labor organizations (including labor federations, labor councils, and labor committees) that are governed by a constitution or bylaws.

An unincorporated association may, in its name, acquire, hold, manage, encumber, or transfer an interest in real or personal property [Corp. Code §§ 18105, 18110; see Corp. Code § 21200 (capacity of unincorporated association that is organized as medical society)].

For discussion of unincorporated associations that are formed as nonprofit associations, see Ch. 13A, Nonprofit Unincorporated Associations .

[b] Transfer Requirements

The acquisition, transfer, or encumbrance of an interest in real property by an unincorporated association must be executed by (1) its president and secretary or other comparable officers, (2) a person specifically designated by a resolution adopted by the association, or (3) a committee or other body or person authorized to act by the governing principles of the association [Corp. Code § 18115].

An unincorporated association may record in a county in which it has an interest in real property a verified and acknowledged statement of authority stating the name of the association, and the names, title, or capacity of its officers and other persons who are authorized on its behalf to acquire, transfer, or encumber real property [Corp. Code § 18120(a); see § 27.282].

§ 27.230 Personal Representative's Deed

[1] Comment--Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a deed that conveys a decedent's real property to a purchaser. The form reflects the provisions of Prob. Code §§ 10300-10316, which govern probate sales of real property, and other provisions of the Probate Code that apply to transactions affecting title to property in an estate [see Prob. Code §§ 7260-7263]. Among other things, these statutes require the court to make an order confirming the sale to the person making the highest satisfactory offer and directing conveyances to be executed [Prob. Code § 10313(a)]. On confirmation of the sale, the personal representative [see Prob. Code § 58(a) ("personal representative" defined)] must execute a conveyance to the purchaser that refers to the court order and gives the date of the order [Prob. Code §§ 7261, 10314(a)]. A certified copy of the order must be recorded in the office of the recorder of the county in which the real property, or any portion of it, is located [Prob. Code § 10314(a)].

A conveyance that complies with the applicable court order vests the following in the purchaser: (1) all the right, title, and interest that the decedent had in the property at the time of the decedent's death, and (2) any other or additional right, title, or interest in the property acquired by the decedent's estate, by operation of law or otherwise, prior to the sale [Prob. Code § 10314(c); see Prob. Code § 7262].

§ 27.231 Guardian's or Conservator's Deed

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a deed for use by either a guardian or a conservator to convey real property in the estate of a ward or conservatee. For a deed by a personal representative, see § 27.230[2]. For provisions of conveyance to a minor or conservatee, see § 27.252[2].

[b] Deeds by Guardian or Conservator

If it appears necessary or convenient, the court may appoint a guardian of the person or estate of a minor [Prob. Code § 1514(a); for discussion of the capacity of a minor to hold title to real property, see § 27.17[1]]. The court may appoint a conservator of the estate of an adult if this need is established to the satisfaction of the court and the other requirements of the law governing the appointment of conservators are met [Prob. Code § 1800.3(a)]. If the income from the estate of the ward or conservatee is insufficient for the purpose of providing the comfortable and suitable support, maintenance, and education of the ward or conservatee and of those legally entitled to support, maintenance, or education from the ward or conservatee, the guardian or conservator may sell any real property of the estate [Prob. Code §§ 2420(b), 2541(a)]. The guardian or conservator may also sell real property of the estate under the following conditions: (1) when the sale is necessary to pay certain debts of the ward or conservatee [see Prob. Code §§ 2430 (debts payable from principal and income), 2431 (wage claims)], and (2) when it is for the advantage, benefit, and best interest of the ward or conservatee, the estate, or the ward or conservatee and those legally entitled to support, maintenance, or education from the ward or conservatee [Prob. Code § 2541(b), (c)]. All sales of real property of the estate are subject to authorization, confirmation, or direction of the court [Prob. Code § 2540] and must otherwise conform to the requirements of the law governing sales of such property [see Prob. Code §§ 2541-2548].

For extensive coverage of guardians and conservators, see Ch. 66, Guardianships , and Ch. 66A, Conservatorships , and California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 290A, Guardianship and Conservatorship: Asset Management and Investment (Matthew Bender).

[b] Required Format and Information

Any printed form primarily intended to be used for recordation purposes must comply with the following requirements [Gov. Code § 27361.6]:

- The top two and one-half inches of the first page must be reserved for recording information;
- The left three and one half inches of the space described above must identify the person requesting recordation [see Gov. Code § 27320] and to whom the document should be returned (see discussion below); and
- There must be a one-half inch margin on the two vertical sides (except in the space reserved for recording information).

If the first page or sheet of a document does not comply with the above requirements, a separate page must be attached by the party requesting recording to the front of the document that meets these criteria and that reflects the document's title or titles as required by Gov. Code § 27324 [Gov. Code § 27361.6].

This form and the complete deeds in this chapter provide for the reservation of the top two and one-half inches of the first page for recording information by including a line across the page immediately below the recording information, and adding the following statement below that line: "Space above this line for recorder's use." However, the line and that statement are not required by statute and may be omitted or modified by counsel.

After recording the deed, the recorder must mail (or deliver if the deed so requests) the deed to the person named in the instrument, if any [Gov. Code § 27321]. Consequently, the deed should set forth that person's address. If the deed does not identify the person to whom the document should be returned, the recorder must deliver or mail it to the party that left the deed for recordation [Gov. Code § 27321].

[c] Additional Information in Los Angeles and Riverside Counties

In Los Angeles County or Riverside County, the recorder may require, as a condition of recording, that a deed, quitclaim deed, or deed of trust indicate the assessor's identification numbers that fully contain all, or a portion of, the real property described in the legal description. If the description contains more than one assessor's parcel, all assessor's parcels must be indicated. The form of the entry must be substantially as follows: "Assessor's Identification Number _____-_____-_____." The recorder, within 30 days after recordation of a deed, quitclaim deed, or deed of trust, may mail a notice of this requirement to the party or parties executing the document [Gov. Code §§ 27297.6(a), 27297.7(a)]. This requirement does not apply to the recordation of any document under which the federal government, the state, or any county, city, or subdivision of the state acquires title [Gov. Code §§ 27297.6(b), 27297.7(b)]. In addition to any other recording fee, the recorder may collect a fee from the person filing the deed, quitclaim deed, or deed of trust, other than a government entity. The fee may not exceed the mailing cost of the notice specified in that section, up to a prescribed maximum [Gov. Code § 27387.1].

[d] Type of Paper

All instruments [see Gov. Code § 27279(a) ("instrument" defined)] presented for recordation must be on a quality of paper and contain print of a size and color that will reproduce legibly by microphotographic or imaging processes [Gov. Code § 27361.6]. If the text of a deed or other document presented for record may be made out but is not sufficiently legible to reproduce a readable photographic record, the recorder may require the person submitting it for record to either substitute a legible original deed or to prepare a legible handwritten or typed copy of the original deed and to attach that copy to the original [Gov. Code § 27361.7]. Any handwritten or typed copy must be certified by the party creating it under penalty of perjury as being a true copy of the original [Gov. Code § 27361.7]. For these purposes, "text" includes the notary seal, certificates, and other appendages to a document [Gov. Code § 27361.7].

[e] Fees

The fee for recording and indexing a deed or other instrument is specified by statute [see Gov. Code § 27361(a)]. An additional fee is charged for every page of a printed form containing printing that is spaced more than nine lines per vertical inch or more than 22 characters and spaces per inch measured horizontally for not less than three inches in one sentence [Gov. Code § 27361(a)(1)]. This extra charge does not apply, however, to printed words that are directive or explanatory in nature for completion of the form or on vital statistics forms [see Gov. Code § 27361(a)(1)]. In addition, if a page or sheet does not conform with the dimensions described in Gov. Code § 27361.5(a) (page must be one printed side of a single piece of paper being 81/2 inches by 11 inches), an extra charge per page is assessed [Gov. Code § 27361(a)(2)].

[f] Change in Ownership Statement

If the deed is to effect a "change of ownership," the transferee normally should obtain a preliminary change of ownership report form from the county assessor or recorder and file the completed form with the county recorder at the time of recordation of the transfer document [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 480.3(a); but see Rev. & Tax. Code § 480.3(e), (f) (limited exceptions to above filing requirement)]. For these purposes, a "change in ownership" is a transfer of a present interest in real property, including the beneficial use of the property, the value of which is substantially equal to the value of the fee interest [Rev. & Tax. Code § 60; see 18 Cal. Code Reg. § 462.001].

Although the filing of a preliminary change of ownership report is not a prerequisite to recording a deed [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 480(e)], a transferee who fails to file such a report must (1) comply, within 45 days, with the more complicated procedures governing the use of change in ownership statements [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 480(e); see also Gov. Code § 27321], and (2) pay an additional recording fee if required to do so by the recorder [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 480.3(b)]. Failure to pay this additional fee may delay or preclude the deed's recordation [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 480.3(c)].

For further discussion of changes in ownership, see § 27.36.

§ 27.241 Tax Statement Information

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, sets forth alternative tax statements that may be added to a deed. A deed conveying fee title will not be accepted for recording unless it sets forth, across the bottom of the first page, the name and address to which future tax statements may be mailed [Gov. Code § 27321.5(a)]. This requirement may be satisfied by taking the following actions:

- Providing the required name and address at the bottom of the first page [see first alternative of form];

- Adding a reference at the bottom of the first page to the address set forth in the recording information at the top of the deed, if the person who is to receive the recorded deed [see Gov. Code § 27321; see also § 27.240[1][b]] is also to receive the tax statements [see second alternative of form]; or

- Including the name and address below the recording information [see third alternative of form], and inserting a reference to that name and address at the bottom of the first page [see third alternative of form].

If a recorder mistakenly records a deed that omits or misstates the required tax statement information, the failure to comply with the foregoing requirements will not affect the validity of the deed or the notice imparted by recordation [Gov. Code § 27321.5].

[b] Deed That Does Not Convey Fee Title

A deed need not include the tax statement information described above if it does not convey fee title [Gov. Code § 27321.5]; see Civ. Code § 762 (every estate of inheritance is a fee estate)]. Consequently, that information may be omitted from a deed conveying a life estate, an estate for years or an estate at will [see Civ. Code §§ 761, 762; § 27.103, P 1].

§ 27.242 Documentary Transfer Tax Information

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, contains two alternative provisions, one of which should be added to a deed that is subject to a documentary transfer tax [see [b], below]. If a local jurisdiction has imposed such a tax, the amount of the tax and related information must be noted on the face of the deed [see first alternative of form] or on a separate document [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 11932, 11933; see § 27.287[2] (separate document containing transfer tax information)]. Counsel should use a separate document if the parties wish to avoid disclosing the purchase price of the property to third parties [see § 27.287[1][a]]. In this case, the deed should state, in the place where the transfer tax information would otherwise appear, that the amount of the tax due is shown on a separate document and is not for public record [see second alternative of form].

A county recorder cannot record a deed unless any required documentary transfer tax or taxes have been paid [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11933]. However, if the recorder records the deed anyway, failure to collect the tax does not affect the constructive notice imparted by the recordation of the deed [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11933].

[b] Transfers Subject to Tax

The Documentary Transfer Tax Act [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11901 et seq.] permits California counties to tax transfers of real property [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11911(a)]. In addition, cities within counties that have imposed such a tax may also tax these transfers [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11911(b); see [c], below]. The local legislative body may impose the tax, by ordinance, on each deed, instrument, or writing by which real property sold within the county is granted, assigned, transferred, or otherwise conveyed to, or vested in, another person when the consideration or value of the interest or property conveyed, exclusive of the value of any lien or encumbrance remaining on the property at the time of sale, exceeds $100 [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11911(a), (b)].

[c] Amount of Tax

A county may impose a transfer tax at the rate of $0.55 for each $500 (or fractional part of that amount) of the consideration or value of the interest or property conveyed, exclusive of the value of liens or encumbrances remaining on the property, in excess of $100 [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11911(a)]. The rate for a city is one half of that amount [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11911(b)]. If a city imposes such a tax, the county must allow a credit for the city tax [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11911(c); see Rev. & Tax. Code § 11931]. Consequently, the total tax may not exceed the $0.55 rate, whether imposed solely by a county or by both a county and a city.

[d] Exemptions

A documentary transfer tax imposed under the Documentary Transfer Tax Act does not apply to any written instrument given to secure a debt [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11921]. A deed or other instrument given by a trustor or mortgagor to the beneficiary or mortgagee as a result of or in lieu of foreclosure [see [f], below] is also exempt from the documentary transfer tax, except to the extent that the consideration exceeds the unpaid debt, including accrued interest and cost of foreclosure [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11926]. Any such deed or other instrument must disclose the consideration and unpaid debt amount and must identify the grantee as the beneficiary or mortgagee [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11926]. Alternatively, these facts may be stated in a separate affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11926; see § 27.288[2]].

In any case, no transfer tax may be imposed by reason of any transfer between an individual or individuals and a legal entity, or between legal entities, that results solely in a change in the method of holding title to the realty, and in which proportional ownership interests in the realty, whether represented by stock, membership interest, partnership interest, cotenancy interest, or otherwise, directly or indirectly, remain the same immediately after the transfer [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11925(d)].

The following are also exempt from transfer taxes:

- Deeds or other instruments under which the United States, a state, or another political entity acquires title [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11922];

- Certain federal bankruptcy, receivership, and reorganization transfers [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11923];

- Conveyances conducted pursuant to orders of the Securities and Exchange Commission [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11924];

- Transfers of interests in certain partnerships or other entities treated as partnerships for federal income tax purposes that hold real property [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11925; but see Rev. & Tax. Code § 11925(b) (termination of partnership or other entity treated as partnership for federal income tax purposes under specified conditions is taxable transfer)];

- Deeds or other instruments that transfer, divide, or allocate community, quasi-community, or quasi-marital property between spouses for the purpose of effecting a judgment of dissolution, legal separation, or nullity, or pursuant to a written agreement between the spouses in contemplation of such a judgment [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11927(a); see Rev. & Tax. Code § 11927(b) (deed or other instrument must contain a statement, signed by either spouse, that the instrument is entitled to the exemption)]; and

- Any deed or other instrument by which the State of California, a political subdivision of the State, or any agency or instrumentality of either of the foregoing (1) conveys realty to a purchaser who has agreed to immediately reconvey the realty to the exempt entity [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11928], or (2) conveys to a nonprofit corporation any realty that was acquired, constructed, or improved through the use of obligations issued by the nonprofit corporation on behalf of a governmental unit [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11929; see Treas. Reg. § 1.103-1(b)].

[e] Declaration and Payment of Tax

The tax must be paid by any person who makes, signs, or issues the deed or other document subject to the tax, or for whose use or benefit the deed or other document is made, signed, or issued [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11912]. A declaration of the amount of tax due, signed by the party determining the tax or that party's agent, must appear on the face of the document (this form) or on a separate paper [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 11932; see also discussion in [a], above]. The declaration must include a statement indicating whether the consideration or value used to compute the tax [see discussion in [c], above] was exclusive of the value of a lien or encumbrance remaining on the interest or property conveyed at the time of sale [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11933].

The county recorder collects the transfer tax [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11931]. If the relevant city has also imposed a tax, the county auditor will allocate the collected amount between the county and city [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11931].

[f] Deed in Lieu of Foreclosure

As discussed in [d], above, a deed or other instrument to a beneficiary or mortgagee that is taken from a mortgagor or trustor as a result of or in lieu of foreclosure [see § 27.260[2]], must contain additional information regarding the transaction. Alternatively, this additional information may be set forth in an affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11926]. For further discussion and an illustrative declaration, see § 27.288.

[g] Tax Roll Parcel Number

An ordinance that imposes a documentary transfer tax may also require that each deed or other document by which the real property is sold, granted, assigned, transferred, or otherwise conveyed must have noted on it the tax roll parcel number [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11911.1]. The number is used only for administrative purposes and does not constitute proof of title in the event of a conflict with the legal description [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11911.1]. If the number is erroneous or omitted, the validity of the document is not affected and no liability attaches to anyone because of the error or omission [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11911.1].

§ 27.250 Grantor's Title in Name Other Than Grantor's Current Name

[1] Comment--Use of Form

The form in [2], below, consists of alternative descriptions of a grantor that may be inserted in any of the complete deeds in this chapter when the grantor wishes to transfer property under a name other than the name in which he or she derived title. If the deed does not set forth both names, it will be valid between the parties and those with notice, but the recordation of the deed will not impart constructive notice of its contents to subsequent purchasers and encumbrancers [Civ. Code § 1096; see Benson v. Shotwell (1890) 87 Cal. 49, 56-57, 25 P. 249 (grantor's use of substantially different name in conveyance instrument breaks recorded chain of title)]. However, under some circumstances a subsequent owner may perfect the record title by obtaining an adjudication of identity of the grantor when such a discrepancy exists [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 770.010-770.080; see also § 27.16[4]].

The alternatives in this form may be used when the grantor is an individual or a corporation. They may be easily modified for use with other types of grantors.

§ 27.251 Business Entity as Grantee

[1] Comment--Use of Form

The form in [2], below, consists of alternative grantee recitals that may be used when the grantee is any of the following business entities: a corporation, a partnership, a joint venture, or an unincorporated association. For coverage of the authority of those entities to hold and convey real property, see §§ 27.220[1] (corporation), 27.221[1] (partnership), 27.222[1] (joint venture), 27.223[1] (unincorporated association); 27.224[1] (limited liability company). As discussed in the comments to those forms, deeds made by business entities are subject to a variety of special requirements, such as laws governing the approval of the transaction and the execution of the conveyance. However, there is nothing distinctive about a deed to a business entity except for the grantee provision. This form shows how the most common types of business entities should be described as grantees.

For coverage of the significance of grantee descriptions in general, see § 27.17[2].

[1] Comment--Use of Form

The form in [2], below, contains several alternative deed provisions designating the status of a real property grantee as either a minor, a ward (that is, a minor for whom a guardian has been appointed), or a conservatee. For discussion of the authority of the foregoing to hold and convey real property, see § 27.231[1].

In a grant to a minor or conservatee, the deed may convey the property directly to the minor or conservatee or to the conservator or guardian [see California Real Property Sales Transactions, Ch. 9, Deeds, § 9.25c (Cal. CEB 1998)]. If the grant is to the conservator or guardian, the deed should describe that person's status and name the minor or conservatee [see California Real Property Sales Transactions, Ch. 9, Deeds, § 9.25c (Cal. CEB 1998)].

§ 27.253 Grantee: Heir, Personal Representative, or Trustee

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, consists of alternative deed recitals that may be used when the grantee is an heir, personal representative, or trustee. For a deed conveying a decedent's real property, see § 27.230[2].

[b] Heirs and Personal Representatives

Although a conveyance cannot be made to a deceased person [Hunter v. Watson (1859) 12 Cal. 363, 376] , it may be made to his or her personal representative on his or her death [Hunter v. Watson (1859) 12 Cal. 363, 370-371] . It is preferable, however, to make the grant run to the class of the deceased's heirs directly. Nothing should be conveyed simply to "the estate of _____." For discussion of the conveyance of a decedent's real property, see § 27.230[1]. Detailed coverage of executors and administrators is set forth in Ch. 65, Executors .

[c] Trusts

In the case of trusts, whether testamentary or inter vivos, the conveyance should be made to the trustee and not to the beneficiaries because the trustee has the power to acquire or dispose of the trust property [Prob. Code § 16226; see discussion in Ch. 64A, Testamentary Trusts: Trustee Provisions , § 64A.39[3]]. It is important to describe the trust exactly because there may be several trusts involved in any trust situation.

For detailed coverage of trusts, see Ch. 64, Testamentary Trusts: Payment and Distribution Provisions , Ch. 64A, Testamentary Trusts: Trustee Provisions , Ch. 64B, Testamentary Trusts: Administrative Provisions , Ch. 70, Complete Revocable Trust Forms and Ch. 72, Irrevocable Trusts .

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, contains a provision that, when inserted into a joint tenancy or tenancy in common deed, will rebut statutory presumptions that property acquired during marriage by a husband and wife is community property [see Fam. Code §§ 803, 2581; [b], below].

For a deed that conveys community property, see § 27.213[2]. The comment to that form discusses, among other things, the ways in which a husband and wife may hold property [see Fam. Code § 750]. For a deed that may be used to alter the statutory property rights of a husband and wife, see § 27.214[2].

[b] Presumptions Regarding Community Property

[i] Property Acquired by Spouses in Joint Form

For the purposes of the division of property on the dissolution of marriage or legal separation, property acquired by a husband and wife during marriage in joint form, including property held in tenancy in common, joint tenancy, or tenancy by the entirety, or as community property, is presumed to be community property [Fam. Code § 2581]. This presumption may be rebutted by either of the following means [Fam. Code § 2581]:

- A clear statement in the deed or other documentary evidence of title by which the property is acquired that the property is separate property and not community property (this form); or

- Proof that the parties have made a written agreement that the property is separate property.

Fam. Code § 2581, which became operative on January 1, 1994, essentially restates the requirements set forth in former Civ. Code § 4800.1. The requirements of former Civ. Code § 4800.1, as operative on January 1, 1987, and as continued in Fam. Code § 2581, apply to all property held in joint title regardless of the date of acquisition of the property or the date of any agreement affecting the character of the property [Fam. Code § 2580(c)]. Further, they apply in all proceedings commenced on or after January 1, 1984 [Fam. Code § 2580(c)]. However, they do not apply to property settlement agreements executed before January 1, 1987, or to proceedings in which judgments were rendered before January 1, 1987, regardless of whether those judgments have become final [Fam. Code § 2580(c)].

The recital set forth in this form may be inserted into a joint tenancy deed [see § 27.210[2]] or tenancy in common deed [see § 27.212[2]] to rebut the presumption of Fam. Code § 2581. The provision does not contain a tenancy in the entirety option because that common-law form of ownership is not available in California [see Civ. Code § 682; Swan v. Walden (1909) 156 Cal. 195, 196-197, 103 P. 931] . Counsel should be aware that reported decisions have yet to (1) consider the effectiveness of a particular rebuttal of the Fam. Code § 2581 presumption, or (2) interpret the statutory wording authorizing the use of a deed provision or written agreement to rebut the foregoing presumption.

[ii] Property Acquired by Husband and Wife Prior to 1975

Special presumptions concerning the nature of property apply to real property (or any interest in or encumbrance on real property) acquired before January 1, 1975, by a married woman by an instrument in writing [see Fam. Code § 803]. Under one of these presumptions, if the property was acquired by the wife and her husband by an instrument in which they are described as wife and husband, the presumption is that the property is the community property of the parties, unless a different intention is expressed in the instrument (this form) [Fam. Code § 803; see Fam. Code § 760 (except as otherwise provided by statute, all real property, wherever situated, acquired by a married person during the marriage while domiciled in California is community property)]. This presumption is conclusive in favor of any person dealing in good faith and for a valuable consideration with the married woman or her legal representatives or successors in interest, regardless of any change in her marital status after acquisition of the property [Fam. Code § 803]. For further discussion of this presumption, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 122, Community Property (Matthew Bender).

This form may be used, along with the language found in any joint tenancy deed [see § 27.210[2]] or tenancy in common deed [see § 27.212[2]], to clearly express the intention of the parties to hold the property being conveyed as joint tenants or tenants in common.

§ 27.255 Spouses: Recital Consenting to Creation of Joint Tenancy Involving One Spouse

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, consists of a deed recital that provides that a married couple agrees to the creation by the deed of a joint tenancy involving only one of the spouses. For complete coverage of joint tenancies, see § 27.210[1].

For a recital that may be used to rebut community property presumptions when both spouses receive property under a joint tenancy or tenancy in common deed, see § 27.254[2]. For a grant deed that alters the statutory property rights of a husband and a wife, see § 27.214[2].

[b] Joint Tenancy Involving One Spouse

If a married person is to receive property in joint tenancy and his or her spouse is not to be one of the other joint tenants, title companies usually insist that the deed contain a special recital clarifying the manner in which the property will be held. The recital typically describes the marital status of the spouses and provides that they consent to the creation of a joint tenancy in the grantees named in the deed [see first alternative of form; see also 1 Bowman, Ogden's Revised California Real Property Law, Ch. 7, Joint Tenancy and Tenancy in Common (Cal. CEB 1975)]. If this recital is used, the nongrantee spouse should sign the deed, and his or her signature should be acknowledged.

The use of this recital is important because, except as otherwise provided by statute, all real and personal property, wherever situated, acquired by a married person during the marriage while domiciled in California is community property [Fam. Code § 760]. Thus, this recital should be used only when the grantee spouse is entitled by statute to participate in a joint tenancy that does not include his or her spouse. For discussion of the statutory property rights of married persons, see [a], above.

[c] Use of Community Funds Without Consent of Spouse

If a spouse uses community funds to acquire real property without the consent of the other spouse and the deed designates the grantee spouse and a person other than his or her spouse as joint tenants, the deed does not create a joint tenancy [Yeoman v. Sawyer (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 43, 45, 221 P.2d 225] . In such a case, the nonspouse receives a one-half interest, and the husband and wife each obtain a one-quarter interest because community funds were used [Yeoman v. Sawyer (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 43, 45, 221 P.2d 225] . Because these shares are unequal, and joint tenants must own equal shares in a joint tenancy property [see Civ. Code § 683], the above deed creates a tenancy in common rather than a joint tenancy [Yeoman v. Sawyer (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 43, 45-46, 221 P.2d 225] .

§ 27.260 Provision for Deed in Lieu of Foreclosure

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, consists of provisions that may be inserted into any of the complete grant or quitclaim deeds in this chapter [see §§ 27.200-27.231] to make the instrument a deed in lieu of foreclosure. A deed in lieu of foreclosure conveys a debtor's secured property to a creditor as consideration for the cancellation of the debt and precludes the creditor from filing a notice of default and instituting foreclosure proceedings [for complete coverage of foreclosures, see Ch. 25D, Foreclosure]. Consequently, the creditor avoids the time and expense of foreclosure. Of course, the acceptance of such a deed is advisable only if the value of the secured property is equal to or greater than the amount of the indebtedness.

[b] Requirements

An agreement to convey secured property to the mortgagee or beneficiary in consideration for a cancellation of the obligation is valid so long as it is executed after the default [Hamud v. Hawthorne (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 78, 83, 338 P.2d 387 ; see Civ. Code § 2889]. The conveyance is not void so long as it is all of the following: fair; free from undue influence, oppression, or fraud; and for adequate consideration [Phelan v. De Martin (1890) 85 Cal. 365, 367, 24 P. 725] . The circumstances of each particular case will determine whether the consideration is adequate [Wright v. Security-First Nat. Bank (1939) 35 Cal. App. 2d 264, 280-283, 95 P.2d 194] . If the consideration given for the deed is grossly disproportionate to the value of the property (for example, if the value of the property greatly exceeds the unpaid balance of the debt), the conveyance may be held to be a mortgage or a strict foreclosure [see Beeler v. American Trust Co. (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 1, 17, 147 P.2d 583 ; Civ. Code § 2925].

A deed in lieu of foreclosure may take the form of a grant or quitclaim deed and may be made at any stage of the proceedings before the actual foreclosure sale [Hamud v. Hawthorne (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 78, 83, 338 P.2d 387] . For further discussion of deeds in lieu of foreclosure, see California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 120, Representing a Client After Default (Matthew Bender).

[c] Estoppel Affidavits

Some title companies require the debtor to provide an estoppel affidavit stating that the transfer is an absolute conveyance, that the debtor acted freely and without coercion or duress, and that the amount of the debt is equal to the fair market value of the property transferred. In that case, the use of this form would not be necessary.

[d] Effect of Deed

In the absence of any intervening junior liens, a deed in lieu of foreclosure will merge the creditor's lien with the legal title acquired on execution of the deed, thus extinguishing the creditor's lien [Anglo-Californian Bank v. Field (1908) 154 Cal. 513, 514-515, 98 P. 267] . However, merger will not occur if there is an intervening lien on the property [Hines v. Ward (1898) 121 Cal. 115, 118, 53 P. 427] . In that case, the legal title and senior lien will be considered as separate interests in order to protect the rights of the senior creditor [Hines v. Ward (1898) 121 Cal. 115, 118-119, 53 P. 427] .

[e] Documentary Transfer Tax

The documentary transfer tax applies to a deed in lieu of foreclosure but only to the extent that the consideration for the transfer exceeds the unpaid debt, including any accrued interest and foreclosure costs [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11926]. The consideration and unpaid debt amount and an identification of the grantee as beneficiary must be noted on the deed, instrument, or writing or stated in an affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury for tax purposes [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11926; see § 27.288[2] (declaration)].

[f] Notice of Nonacceptance

A holder of a security interest may execute and record a notice of nonacceptance of a recorded deed [Civ. Code § 1058.5(a)]. The notice must identify the security interest and the parties to the deed, and must set forth a legal description of the property, the date of recordation of the deed, the county in which the project is located, and the county assessor's parcel number of the real property referenced in the deed [Civ. Code § 1058.5(a)]. The notice must be recorded with the recorder of the county in which the real property is located [Civ. Code § 1058.5(a)]. A creditor may wish to record a notice of nonacceptance if, for example, the debtor recorded a deed in lieu of foreclosure without the creditor's consent in order to escape liability for a deficiency judgment resulting from a judicial foreclosure. Although such a deed would not be valid and effective because of the grantee's failure to accept it [see Marshall v. Marshall (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 475, 479, 295 P.2d 131] , its recordation could present title problems. The subsequent recordation of a notice of nonacceptance should help resolve those problems.

§ 27.261 Reservation or Exception

The form in [2], below, consists of language that may be inserted into one of the complete deeds in this chapter to create a reservation or an exception. A reservation allows the grantor's entire interest in the subject property to pass to the grantee, but revests a newly created interest in the land for the benefit of the grantor or a third party [Willard v. First Church of Christ, Scientist (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 473, 476, 102 Cal. Rptr. 739 ; see Civ. Code § 1085]. In other words, a reservation is a grant back to the original grantor by the original grantee of a portion of the conveyed property. An exception prevents some part of the grantor's interest from passing to the grantee [Willard v. First Church of Christ, Scientist (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 473, 476 n.1, 102 Cal. Rptr. 739] . Counsel may use this form to provide for the reservation or exception of any type of interest in the property. For language that specifically reserves a life estate, see § 27.204[2]. For deed provisions granting and reserving easements, see Ch. 28A, Easements and Licenses .

Notwithstanding the differences identified above, the terms "reservation" and "exception" are often used interchangeably. The question of whether a particular provision in a deed is an exception or a reservation is not conclusively determined by the use of the term "reservation" or "exception" alone [Main v. Legnitto (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 667, 677, 41 Cal. Rptr. 223] . Instead, the resolution of this issue depends on the real intention of the parties as ascertained from the whole conveyance [Main v. Legnitto (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 667, 677-678, 41 Cal. Rptr. 223] .

§ 27.262 Consideration

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, consists of alternative deed provisions describing the consideration for a conveyance. Although, as a general rule, a deed given without consideration is valid [Freeman v. La Morte (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 670, 673, 307 P.2d 734 ; see Civ. Code § 1040 (consideration is not necessary for voluntary transfer)], there are circumstances under which the inclusion of a statement regarding consideration may be required or advisable. For discussion of those situations, see [b], below. When consideration is recited, it is customary to insert an acknowledgment of its receipt. However, there is no requirement that such an acknowledgment be included in a deed.

[b] Statement Regarding Consideration

Consideration is required in connection with certain conveyances of real property. For example, an attorney in fact cannot make a deed without consideration [Bertelsen v. Bertelson (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 479, 484, 122 P.2d 130] . Furthermore, title insurance companies require consideration for deeds given in lieu of foreclosure [see § 27.260[2]] and typically require a deed to recite the exact amount of consideration when the deed is made by an administrator, executor, guardian, trustee, or receiver who is conveying property under court order.

A deed may be rescinded on the ground of failure of consideration if (1) performance or payment of the consideration was made a condition subsequent [Lavely v. Nonemaker (1931) 212 Cal. 380, 382, 298 P. 976 ; see Teel v. Bank of Eureka (1941) 42 Cal. App. 2d 807, 809-811, 110 P.2d 78 ; see also § 27.20[3]], or (2) the deed was obtained through the use of fraud or undue influence [Jackson v. Gorham (1929) 98 Cal. App. 112, 115, 276 P. 391 ; Schott v. Schott (1914) 168 Cal. 342, 344-346, 143 P. 595 ; see Civ. Code §§ 3439.04, 3439.07, 3439.08]. Gross inadequacy of consideration is a factor in determining whether fraud or undue influence was present [Sparks v. Sparks (1950) 101

Cal. App. 2d 129, 136-137, 225 P.2d 238] .

A grantor who cannot write can satisfy this execution requirement by making a mark [Civ. Code § 14]. If the mark is to be acknowledged, it must satisfy the following requirements [Civ. Code § 14]:

- It must be witnessed by two persons;
- Those persons must subscribe their own names as witnesses near the grantor's mark; and
- One of the witnesses must write the grantor's name near the grantor's mark. If the mark will not be acknowledged, only one witness need perform the foregoing tasks.

§ 27.271 Statutory Certificate of Acknowledgment

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is the statutory certificate of acknowledgment that must be used when an acknowledgment is taken within California [see Civ. Code § 1189(a)]. Before a grant deed (other than a trustee's deed or deed of reconveyance) or other instrument may be recorded, its execution must be acknowledged or proved and the acknowledgment or proof certified [Gov. Code § 27287; see [b][i], below; see also Gov. Code § 27279(a) ("instrument" defined); §§ 27.285[2] and 27.205[2] (certificates of proof of the execution of unacknowledged instruments)]. Proof of execution in lieu of acknowledgment of a grant deed, mortgage, deed of trust, quitclaim deed, or security agreement is not permitted, pursuant to Gov. Code § 27287; proof of execution in lieu of acknowledgment may be used only for a trustee's deed or a deed of reconveyance [Civ. Code § 1195(b); see Gov. Code § 27287].

[b] Acknowledgments and Certificates of Acknowledgment

[i] Effect of Certificate

An acknowledgment is a statement that an instrument was in fact signed by the person whose signature appears on the document [see Civ. Code § 1189(a)]. A certificate of acknowledgment is a formal declaration by an authorized officer [see Civ. Code §§ 1180-1184], usually a notary public, that the executing party made the acknowledgment in the officer's presence and that the officer had satisfactory evidence that the party was the individual who was described in and who executed the instrument [Civ. Code § 1185(a); see [ii], below]. The certificate is prima facie evidence of the facts recited in it and of the genuineness of the signatures contained on the document, if the certificate meets the requirements set forth in Civ. Code § 1180 et seq. (discussed throughout this comment) [Evid Code § 1451; see discussion of Civ. Code § 1190 in [v], below].

[ii] Identity of Person Making Acknowledgment

An officer may not take an acknowledgment unless the officer has "satisfactory evidence" that the person making the acknowledgment is the individual who is described in and who executed the instrument [Civ. Code § 1185(a)].

"Satisfactory evidence" means the absence of any information, evidence, or other circumstances which would lead a reasonable person to believe that the person making the acknowledgment is not the individual he or she claims to be, together with any one of the following [Civ. Code § 1185(b)]:

- The oath or affirmation of a credible witness personally known to the officer whose identity is proved to the officer on presentation of any document satisfying the requirements of Civ. Code § 1185(b)(3) or (4) that the person making the acknowledgment is personally known to the witness and that each of the following are true [Civ. Code § 1185(b)(1)(A); see Civ. Code § 1185(b)(1)(B) (civil penalty for notary public who fails to obtain this evidence)]:
  - The person making the acknowledgment is the person named in the document.
  - The person making the acknowledgment is personally known to the witness.
  - It is the reasonable belief of the witness that the circumstances of the person making the acknowledgment are such that it would be very difficult or impossible for that person to obtain another form of identification.
  - The person making the acknowledgment does not possess any of the identification documents named in Civ. Code § 1185(b)(3) and (4).
  - The witness does not have a financial interest in the document being acknowledged and is not named in the document.
- The oath or affirmation under penalty of perjury of two credible witnesses whose identities are proved to the officer on the presentation of any document satisfying the requirements of Civ. Code § 1185(b)(3) or (4) that each statement in Civ. Code § 1185(b)(1) is true [Civ. Code § 1185(b)(2)].
- Reasonable reliance on the presentation to the officer of any one of the following, if the document is current or has been issued within five years [Civ. Code § 1185(b)(3)]:
  - An identification card or driver's license issued by the California Department of Motor Vehicles; or
  - A passport issued by the U.S. Department of State.
- Reasonable reliance on the presentation of any one of the following, provided that the document is current or was issued within five years, contains a photograph and a description of the person named on it, is signed by the person, and bears a serial or other identifying number [Civ. Code § 1185(b)(4)(A)-(F)]:
  - A passport issued by a foreign government, which has been stamped by the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service (superseded by the Citizenship and Immigration Services);

- A driver's license issued by a state other than California or by a Canadian or Mexican public agency authorized to issue drivers' licenses;

- An identification card issued by a state other than California;

- An identification card issued by any branch of the U.S. Armed Forces;

- An employee identification card issued by an agency or office of the State of California, or by an agency or office of a city, county, or city and county in California; or

- An inmate identification card issued after 1987 by the Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation, if the inmate is in custody.

- Reasonable reliance on the presentation of an inmate identification card issued before 1988 by the Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation, if the inmate is in custody [Civ. Code § 1185(b)(4)(G)].

[iii] Form of Certificate

An officer taking an acknowledgment of an instrument, such as a grant deed (other than a trustee's deed or deed of reconveyance), must endorse on it or attach to it a certificate of acknowledgment [Civ. Code § 1188]. If the certificate of acknowledgment is taken within this state, it must be in the form set forth in Civ. Code § 1189(a) (this form) [Civ. Code § 1189(a)]. If the certificate is taken in another place, it will be sufficient in this state if it is taken in accordance with the laws of the place where the acknowledgment is made [Civ. Code § 1189(b)]. Finally, an acknowledgment provided before January 1, 1993, and conforming to applicable provisions of former Civ. Code §§ 1189, 1190, 1190a, 1190.1, 1191, and 1192, as repealed by Chapter 335 of the Statutes of 1990, will have the same force and effect as if those statutes had not been repealed [Civ. Code § 1189(d)]. Those repealed statutes set forth alternative certificate forms for use by individuals, corporations, partnerships, public agencies, and attorneys-in-fact. They have been replaced by the one form of certificate prescribed by the current version of Civ. Code § 1189.

A California notary public may complete any acknowledgment form required in another state or jurisdiction of the United States for documents to be filed in the other state or jurisdiction, provided the form does not require the notary public to determine or certify that the signer holds a particular representative capacity or to make other determinations and certifications not allowed under California law [Civ. Code § 1189(c)].

[iv] Completion of Certificate

The officer's signature and name of office must be affixed to the certificate [Civ. Code § 1193]. Furthermore, the officer's seal of office must be affixed if by the laws of the state or country where the acknowledgment is taken, or by authority of which the officer is acting, the officer is required to have official seals [Civ. Code § 1193]. A notary public in California must have an official seal [Gov. Code § 8207].

[v] Certificate Executed on Behalf of Entity

The certificate of acknowledgment of an instrument executed on behalf of an incorporated or unincorporated entity by a duly authorized person in the form specified in Civ. Code § 1189 will be (1) prima facie evidence that the instrument is the duly authorized act of the entity named in the instrument, and (2) conclusive evidence that the instrument is the duly authorized act of the named entity in favor of any good faith purchaser, lessee, or encumbrancer [Civ. Code § 1190]. In the case of a domestic or foreign corporation, the definition of "duly authorized person" specifically includes the president, vice president, secretary, and assistant secretary of the corporation [Civ. Code § 1190]. For coverage of an alternative procedure that offers similar protections regarding the authorization for a conveyance or other transfer of corporate assets [see Corp. Code § 1002], see § 27.220[1][f].

[c] Defects in Execution and Acknowledgment

A failure to acknowledge or record a grant deed or most other types of instruments will not invalidate the instrument between the parties or those who have actual notice of it [Civ. Code § 1217]. Any defect, omission, or informality in the certificate of acknowledgment, or the absence of such a certificate, will not prevent the grant deed from imparting constructive notice of its contents to subsequent purchasers and encumbrancers one year after it has been copied into the proper book of record [Civ. Code § 1207]. A county recorder, on payment of proper fees and taxes, must accept for recordation any instrument that is authorized or required by statute or court order to be recorded, if the instrument contains sufficient information to be indexed as provided by statute, meets recording requirements of state statutes and local ordinances, and can be reproduced photographically [Gov. Code § 27201(a)]. The recorder must not refuse to record any instrument that is authorized or required by statute or court order to be recorded on the basis of its lack of legal sufficiency [Gov. Code § 27201(a)]. In addition, each instrument must contain an original signature or signatures, except as otherwise provided by law, or be a certified copy of the original [Gov. Code § 27201(b)(1)]. A facsimile signature will be accepted on a lien recorded by a governmental agency when the facsimile signature has been officially adopted by that agency [Gov. Code § 27201(b)(2)]. The lien must have a statement to that effect noted on its face [Gov. Code § 27201(b)(2)]. A copy of the agency's resolution or action adopting the signature for facsimile transmission purposes or a certified copy of the agency's adopted signature must be provided to the county recorder when the signature is officially adopted by the agency, or at the beginning of each calendar year [Gov. Code § 27201(b)(2)].

Because an officer must establish the proper identity of the person making the acknowledgment [Civ. Code § 1185(a)], a party may file an action for damages based on an officer's failure to comply with that requirement [see Civ. Code § 1185(d)]. The plaintiff will have the burden of proof in establishing the officer's negligence or misconduct [Civ. Code § 1185(e)].

Any person convicted of perjury under Civ. Code § 1185 will forfeit any financial interest in the document [Civ. Code § 1185(e)].

§ 27.272 Signature by Attorney in Fact

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, consists of a signature block that may be included in a grant deed when it is to be executed by an attorney in fact of the grantor. A deed may be executed by an agent of the grantor who is authorized to do so in writing [Civ. Code § 1091]. Typically, the written authorization is in the form of a power of attorney [see Prob. Code §§ 4014, 4022 (definitions of "attorney in fact" and "power of attorney," respectively)].

For a power of attorney to convey real property, see § 98.221[2]. A form revoking such a power of attorney is set forth in § 98.241[2].

[b] Signature Requirement

An attorney in fact executing a deed or other instrument transferring an estate in real property must subscribe both the name of the principal and his or her own name as attorney in fact [Civ. Code § 1095]. The courts demand strict compliance with this requirement. Thus, an instrument purporting to transfer an estate in real property signed only by the attorney in fact does not convey the principal's title to the real property, even if the words "attorney in fact for" the named principal are added following the signature of the attorney in fact [Morrison v. Bowman (1865) 29 Cal. 337, 352-353 ; Mitchell v. Benj. Franklin B. & I. Corp. (1936) 13 Cal. App. 2d 447, 448, 57 P.2d 185] . A deed by an attorney in fact is not valid if it sets forth the typed name of the attorney in fact (as agent for the grantor) but does not contain the signature of the attorney in fact [Hodge v. Hodge (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 31, 33, 34, 64 Cal. Rptr. 587] .

[c] Recordation of Power of Attorney

Because instruments affecting title to or possession of real property may be recorded [Gov. Code § 27280(a)], powers of attorney affecting title to or possession of real property are entitled to be recorded [see Civ. Code §§ 1215, 1216; Jones v. Marks (1874) 47 Cal. 242, 246-247] . Title companies and lenders frequently require that the power of attorney be recorded. The instrument must be recorded in the county in which the real property is located [Civ. Code § 1169].

A grantor who executed a recorded power to convey or execute instruments affecting real property can revoke the power only by recording an instrument containing the revocation in the same office in which the instrument containing the power was recorded [Civ. Code § 1216]. Of course, acts and events other than an intentional revocation by a grantor may also terminate the power of attorney (for example, the death or incapacity of the attorney in fact) [see Civ. Code § 2355].

§ 27.280 Certificate of Secretary or Assistant Secretary of Corporation Regarding Execution of Corporation Grant Deed

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a certificate of a secretary or assistant secretary of a corporation stating that the board of directors has duly authorized a specific conveyance of real property of the corporation and that the conveyance meets certain other criteria [see [b], below]. The purpose of this certificate is to assure the parties to the conveyance that it has been authorized. As a practical matter, this certificate should be used only when (1) the deed will not be recorded, or (2) the deed will be recorded but will not be signed by the president, vice president, secretary, or assistant secretary of the corporation. If the deed is to be recorded, the inclusion of the required statutory certificate of acknowledgment form [see Civ. Code § 1189(a)] and the execution of the deed on behalf of the corporation by any of the foregoing officers will provide the same type of assurance offered by this certificate [see Civ. Code § 1190; see also § 27.220[1][f]]. In that case, there would be no reason to prepare this type of certificate as well.

If neither of the foregoing procedures is followed, a title insurer may require a certified copy of the corporate resolution authorizing the transfer of the property. For further discussion and an illustrative resolution, see § 27.281.

[b] Requirements Regarding Certificate

Any deed or instrument conveying or otherwise transferring corporate assets may have annexed to it a certificate of the corporation's secretary or assistant secretary that states that the transaction has been validly approved by the board and that [Corp. Code § 1002]:

- The property described in the deed is less than substantially all of the assets of the corporation;

- The transfer is in the usual and regular course of the business of the corporation; or

- If the property constitutes all or substantially all of the assets of the corporation and the transfer is not in the usual and regular course of the business of the corporation, that (1) the transaction has been approved by the outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 152] pursuant to the requirements of Chapter 10 (governing sales of assets) [see Corp. Code §§ 1000-1002; see also Ch. 3, Articles of Incorporation, § 3.271] or Chapter 12 (governing reorganizations) [see Corp. Code §§ 1200-1203; see also Ch. 11, Merger and Acquisition Issues] of the General Corporation Law Corp. Code § 100 et seq.], or (2) that approval is not required by Chapter 12 of the General Corporation Law.

If properly drafted, the attached certificate will be prima facie evidence of the existence of the facts authorizing the conveyance or other transfer of the assets and conclusive evidence in favor of any innocent purchaser or encumbrancer for value [Corp. Code § 1002].

§ 27.281 Corporate Resolution to Convey Property

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a resolution of the board of directors of a corporation authorizing the execution of a deed that conveys real property of the corporation. Corporate powers must be exercised by or under the direction of the board of directors [Corp. Code § 300(a); see § 27.220[1][b][i]]. A title insurer or grantee may demand some type of assurance that a conveyance was properly exercised. There are two statutory methods for providing this assurance. First, a statutory recital may be added to the certificate of acknowledgment [see Civ. Code § 1190; see also Civ. Code § 1189(a) (statutory form) and § 27.220]. Second, a certificate of the secretary or assistant secretary regarding the authorization for the conveyance may be attached to the deed [see Corp. Code § 1002; see also § 27.280]. If neither of these procedures is utilized, the grantor is often required to provide the grantee or title insurer with a certified copy of the resolution of the directors authorizing the execution of the deed (this form).

For further discussion of directors' resolutions, see Ch. 5, Directors' Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions .

[b] Special Approval Requirements

If the property to be transferred represents all or substantially all of the assets of the corporation, the principal terms of the transaction must be approved by the board of directors Corp. Code § 1001(a); see Corp. Code § 151 ("approved by the board" defined)]. In addition, unless the transaction is in the usual and regular course of the business of the corporation, the principal terms of the transfer must also be approved by the outstanding shares [see Corp. Code § 152 ("approved by the outstanding shares" defined)] either before or after the board's approval and before or after the transaction [Corp. Code § 1001(a)]. However, if the transaction constitutes a conversion to another form of business entity, it is not subject to these provisions but rather to provisions that specifically govern conversions [Corp. Code § 1001(a); see Corp. Code § 1150 et seq. (conversions)]. This form contains an optional provision indicating that the foregoing special approval requirements do not apply to the conveyance. For further coverage of those requirements, see Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Laws, Ch. 12, Corporate Acquisitions, Mergers, and Reorganizations , § 257 (Matthew Bender).

§ 27.282 Statement of Unincorporated Association

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a statement identifying the officers and other persons who are duly authorized to execute conveyances of real property owned by an unincorporated association. An unincorporated association may record in a county in which it has an interest in real property a verified and acknowledged statement of authority stating the name of the association, and the names, title, or capacity of its officers and other persons who are authorized on its behalf to acquire, transfer, or encumber real property [Corp. Code § 18120(a)]. Generally, it must be conclusively presumed in favor of a bona fide transferor, or purchaser, or encumbrancer for value of real property of the association located in the county in which a statement of authority has been recorded, that a person designated in the statement is authorized to acquire, transfer, or encumber real property on behalf of the association [Corp. Code § 18120(c)]. However, the presumption does not apply if, before the acquisition, transfer, or encumbrance, either (1) the statement of authority is revoked by the unincorporated association, or (2) a person claiming to be a member, director, or officer of the unincorporated association records, in the county in which the property is located, a verified and acknowledged document stating that the statement of authority is erroneous or unauthorized [Corp. Code § 18120(d); see § 27.283].

[b] Execution

The transfer or encumbrance of an interest in real property by an unincorporated association must be executed by (1) its president and secretary or other comparable officers, (2) a person specifically designated by a resolution adopted by the association, or (3) a committee or other body or person authorized to act by the governing principles of the association [Corp. Code § 18115].

[c] Verification

This statement must be verified and acknowledged [Corp. Code § 18120(a)]. The Corporations Code provisions governing unincorporated associations [see Corp. Code § 18000 et seq.] do not set forth any requirements regarding verification, and no reported decisions have considered this type of verification. Because of this lack of binding requirements or other guidelines, the verification provision in this form reflects the verification requirements of the General Corporation Law [Corp. Code § 100 et seq.; see Corp. Code § 193]. For the purposes of this law, "verified" means that the statements contained in a certificate or other document are declared to be true as of the personal knowledge of the person executing the document in either (1) an affidavit signed by that person under oath before an officer authorized by the laws of California or of the place where it is executed to administer oaths, or (2) a declaration in writing executed by that person under penalty of perjury and stating the date and place (whether in or outside of California) of execution [Corp. Code § 193; for further discussion, see Ch. 3, Articles of Incorporation]. The verification in this form consists of a declaration by the president of the association.

§ 27.283 Repudiation of Prior Recorded Statement of Unincorporated Association

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a statement repudiating a prior recorded "statement of unincorporated association." Any unincorporated association may record in a county in which it has an interest in real property a verified and acknowledged statement of authority stating the name of the association, and the names, title, or capacity of its officers and other persons who are authorized on its behalf to acquire, transfer, or encumber real property [Corp. Code § 18120(a); see § 27.282]. However, a person claiming to be a member, director, or officer of the unincorporated association may record, in the county in which the property is located, a verified and acknowledged document stating that the statement of authority is erroneous or unauthorized [see Corp. Code § 18120(d)].

[b] Effect of Repudiating Statement

Generally, it must be conclusively presumed in favor of a bona fide transferor, or purchaser, or encumbrancer for value of real property of the association located in the county in which a statement of authority has been recorded, that a person designated in the statement is authorized to acquire, transfer, or encumber real property on the association's behalf [Corp. Code § 18120(c)]. However, the presumption does not apply if, before the acquisition, transfer, or encumbrance, either (1) the statement of authority is revoked by the unincorporated association, or (2) a person claiming to be a member, director, or officer of the unincorporated association records, in the county in which the property is located, a verified and acknowledged document stating that the statement of authority is erroneous or unauthorized [*Corp. § 27.285 Certificate of Proof of Execution--Proof by Subscribing Witness

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is the certificate of proof prescribed by statute that may be used in conjunction with the recordation of an unacknowledged instrument. Any certificate for proof of execution taken within California may be in this form, although the use of other, substantially similar forms is not precluded [Civ. Code § 1195(c)]. An unacknowledged instrument cannot be recorded unless its execution is proved in one of the manners prescribed by law [Gov. Code § 27287; see § 27.271[1][a]]. Proof of execution may be used in lieu of acknowledgment only for a trustee's deed or a deed of reconveyance; proof of execution in lieu of acknowledgment of a grant deed, mortgage, deed of trust, quitclaim deed, or security agreement is not permitted, pursuant to Gov. Code § 27287 [Civ. Code § 1195(b); see Gov. Code § 27287]. The proof may be made by the party executing the instrument, a subscribing witness (this form), or other witnesses who prove the handwriting of (1) the party executing the instrument, and (2) any subscribing witness [Civ. Code § 1195; see § 27.286[2]]. Although such a proof may be made to any "authorized officer" [see Civ. Code §§ 1180-1184], this form assumes that the officer will be a notary public, as is usually the case. The officer taking the proof must then prepare a certificate (this form) that must contain specified information [see [b], below] and must be included in the instrument or attached to it [Civ. Code § 1200].

[b] Proof by Subscribing Witness

When proof of the execution of an unacknowledged instrument is offered by a subscribing witness, that witness must be proved to be a subscribing witness by the oath of a credible witness who provides the officer with any document satisfying the requirements of Civ. Code § 1185(b)(3) or (4) [Civ. Code § 1196; see § 27.271[1][b][ii]]. The subscribing witness must prove that the person whose name is subscribed to the instrument as a party is the person described in it, that that person executed it, and that the witness subscribed his or her name to it as a witness [Civ. Code § 1197].

[c] Officer's Certificate

An officer taking proof of the execution of an instrument must prepare a certificate (this form) that sets forth the proof required by Civ. Code §§ 1196 and 1197 [see [b], above] and the names, places of residence, and substance of testimony of all the witnesses examined before the officer [Civ. Code § 1200]. The officer must sign the certificate, set forth the name of his or her office, and include his or her seal of office if, under the laws of the state or country where the proof of execution is taken, or by the authority of which the officer is acting, he or she is required to have an official seal [Civ. Code § 1193]. A notary public in California must have an official seal [Gov. Code § 8207]. The certificate must be included in or attached to the instrument [Civ. Code § 1200].

§ 27.286 Certificate of Proof of Execution--By Proof of Handwriting

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a certificate of proof that should be used when the execution of an unacknowledged instrument is to be established by proof of the handwriting of the party and any subscribing witness [see Civ. Code § 1195; see also § 27.285[1][a]]. Proof of execution may be used in lieu of acknowledgment only for a trustee's deed or a deed of reconveyance; proof of the execution in lieu of acknowledgment of a grant deed, mortgage, deed of trust, quitclaim deed, or security agreement is not permitted [Civ. Code § 1195(b); see Gov. Code § 27287]. For an example of the statutory form for a certificate for proof of execution taken within California, see § 27.285[2] [Civ. Code § 1195(c)]. Although this form assumes that the proof will be offered to a notary public, other types of officers are also authorized to take the proof [see Civ. Code §§ 1180-1184]. The notary public or other officer taking the proof must then prepare a certificate (this form) that must contain specified information and must be included in or attached to the instrument [Civ. Code § 1200; see [c], below].

[b] Proof of Handwriting

[i] When Permitted

The execution of an instrument may be established by proof of the handwriting of the party and of a subscribing witness (if any) in the following cases [Civ. Code § 1198]:

- When the parties and all the subscribing witnesses are dead or are nonresidents of California.

- When the place of residence of the parties and all the subscribing witnesses is unknown to the party desiring the proof and cannot be ascertained by the exercise of due diligence.

- When the subscribing witness conceals himself or herself or cannot be found by an officer exercising due diligence in attempting to serve the subpoena or attachment.

- In the case of the continued failure or refusal of a witness to testify, for the space of one hour, after his or her appearance.

[ii] Sufficiency of Evidence

The evidence taken under Civ. Code § 1198 [see § 27.286[1][b][i], above] must satisfactorily prove to the officer the following facts [Civ. Code § 1199]:

- The existence of one or more of the conditions specified in Civ. Code § 1198.

- That the witness testifying knew the person whose name purports to be subscribed to the instrument as a party and is well acquainted with his or her signature.

- That the signature of the purported party is genuine.

- That the witness testifying personally knew the person who subscribed the instrument as witness and is well acquainted with his or her signature.

- That the signature of the witness is genuine.

- The place of residence of the witness.

[c] Certificate of Proof of Execution

An officer taking proof of the execution of an instrument must prepare a certificate (this form) that sets forth the proof required by Civ. Code § 1199 [see [b][ii], above] and the names, places of residence, and substance of testimony of all the witnesses examined before the officer [Civ. Code § 1200]. The officer must sign the certificate, set forth the name of his or her office, and include his or her seal of office if, under the laws of the state or country where the proof of execution is taken, or by the authority of which the officer is acting, he or she is required to have an official seal [Civ. Code § 1193]. A notary public in California must have an official seal [Gov. Code § 8207]. The certificate must be included in or attached to the instrument [Civ. Code § 1200].

§ 27.287 Separate Statement of Documentary Transfer Tax Due

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a statement containing a declaration of the amount of documentary transfer tax due in connection with a conveyance of real property. If a local jurisdiction has imposed such a tax, the amount of the transfer tax and related information [see § 27.242[1][e]] must be shown on the face of the deed [see § 27.242[2]] or on a separate paper (this form) [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 11932, 11933].

Stating the amount of the tax on a separate document will prevent the disclosure of the amount of the tax to third parties because, as discussed below, the separate statement (unlike the deed) will not be recorded [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 11932]. This point is important because the amount of the tax is based on the consideration or value of the property conveyed [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 11911; see also § 27.242[1][c]], and consequently the consideration or value may be computed by reference to the amount of the transfer tax.

[b] Preparation of Separate Statement

The party submitting the deed for recordation must request that the recorder affix the separate statement to the deed [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 11932]. The recorder will affix it after the permanent record is made and before the original deed is returned to the appropriate person [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11932; see Gov. Code § 27321; see also § 27.240[b]].

[c] Reference in Deed to Separate Statement

When a separate statement is used, the deed should state that the amount of tax due is shown on a separate paper and is not for public record. This information may be inserted in the place where the amount of tax would otherwise be shown, as indicated in the second alternative provision of § 27.242[2].

For further discussion of documentary transfer taxes, see § 27.242[1].

[1] Comment--Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a declaration by a beneficiary-grantee setting forth information required under the Documentary Transfer Tax Act [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 11901-11934]. The Act applies to any deed or other document taken by a beneficiary or mortgagee from the mortgagor or trustor as a result of or in lieu of foreclosure, but only to the extent that the consideration exceeds the unpaid debt, including accrued interest and cost of foreclosure [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11926]. To facilitate the computation of any tax that may be due, the consideration, unpaid debt amount, and identification of grantee as beneficiary or mortgagee must be noted on the deed or other instrument or stated in an affidavit or declaration (this form) under penalty of perjury [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11926].

§ 27.289 Notice of Intent to Preserve Interest

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is the statutory notice of intent to preserve any of the following types of interests in real property [see Civ. Code § 880.340; see also discussion in [b][ii], below]:

- A power of termination.
- A real property security instrument.
- An easement. The recordation of this notice will extend the statutory expiration date of any of these interests under the marketable record title provisions of the Civil Code [see Civ. Code §§ 880.020-887.090].

For a notice of intent to preserve an unused mineral right [see Civ. Code §§ 883.110-883.140], see § 36A.211[2].

[b] Overview of Marketable Record Title Provisions

[i] Affected Interests

Fixed expiration periods have been established by statute for the following interests in real property:

- Certain powers of termination [see [d], below];
- Mortgages, deeds of trust, and other recorded real property security instruments [see [e], below];

- Abandoned easements [see [f], below];
- Unexercised options [see Civ. Code §§ 884.010-884.030; see also § 22.30[5]];
- Recorded unperformed contracts for the sale of real property [see Civ. Code §§ 886.010-886.050]; and
- Mineral rights [see Civ. Code §§ 883.110-883.140; see also § 36A.211].

The legislative intent behind the marketable record title laws was to simplify and facilitate real property title transactions by enabling persons to rely on record title to the extent provided in those laws [Civ. Code § 880.020(b); see Civ. Code § 880.020(a) (related public policy declarations)].

[ii] Expiration Periods

The statutory expiration periods range from six months to 30 years, depending on the interest involved [see Civ. Code §§ 882.020(a), 884.010, 885.030(a), 886.030(a)]. Only the periods applicable to powers of termination, security instruments, and easements are discussed in detail in this comment because they are the only ones that may be extended by this form. The other expiration periods are discussed elsewhere in this publication [see [b][i], above].

Certain general rules govern the construction and application of the statutory expiration periods. For example, the periods are absolute and apply notwithstanding any disability or lack of knowledge of any person, any provisions for tolling a statute of limitations, or any longer time period applicable pursuant to a statute of limitations [Civ. Code § 880.250(a)]. Furthermore, the statutory periods do not extend the time period for doing any required act or revive any interest in real property that expires and is unenforceable because of an applicable statute of limitations [Civ. Code § 880.250(b)].

An interest in real property will not expire, expire of record, or become unenforceable pursuant to the statutory expiration periods if any action (including a special proceeding or an arbitration proceeding) to enforce, establish, clear title to, or otherwise affect the interest is commenced prior to expiration and a notice of the pendency of the action is recorded [Civ. Code § 880.260].

[c] Procedure for Preserving Interest

[i] Notice of Intent

A power of termination of record, a real property security interest, or an easement will be preserved if a notice of intent to preserve interest (this form) is recorded prior to the expiration of the interest [see Civ. Code § 880.310(a), 880.340]. The notice may be recorded either by a person who claims the interest or by another person acting on behalf of a claimant if (1) the person is authorized to so act, or (2) the claimant is one of a class whose identity cannot be established or is uncertain at the time the notice is recorded [Civ. Code § 880.320].

[ii] Contents of Notice

The notice must be in substantially the form specified by statute [Civ. Code § 880.340]. It must also contain all of the following information [Civ. Code § 880.330(b)]:

- The name and mailing address of each claimant.
- A statement of the character of interest claimed (for example, a power of termination), including a reference by record location to the recorded document that creates or evidences the claimant's interest.

- A legal description of the real property, which may be the same as that contained in the recorded document that creates or evidences the claimant's interest.

The notice must be signed and verified by or on behalf of the claimant [Civ. Code § 880.330(a)]. If the notice is made on behalf of a claimant, it must include a statement of the authority of the person making the notice [Civ. Code § 880.330(a)].

For slightly different requirements applicable to notices of intent to preserve easements [see Civ. Code § 887.060(b)].

[iii] Recordation of Notice

The notice must be recorded in the county in which the real property is situated [Civ. Code § 880.350(a)]. An instrument cannot be recorded until its execution is acknowledged or proved and the acknowledgment or proof is certified [Gov. Code § 27287; see Civ. Code § 1195(b) (proof of execution in lieu of acknowledgment of grant deed, mortgage, deed of trust, quitclaim deed, or security agreement is not permitted); see also § 27.271[1]]. Consequently, the statutory notice includes a certificate of acknowledgment [see Civ. Code § 880.340]. However, that certificate is based on a former version of Civ. Code § 1189 [see Civ. Code § 1189(a) (required contents of any acknowledgment taken within California)]. Because Civ. Code § 880.340 provides that the notice must be in "substantially" the form set forth in that statute, and also states that this requirement is subject to all statutory requirements for recorded documents, the acknowledgment in this form has been changed to reflect the requirements of the current version of Civ. Code § 1189.

The recordation of a notice creates a presumption affecting the burden of proof that the person who claims the interest has not abandoned and does not intend to abandon the interest [Civ. Code § 880.310(b)]. Recordation does not preclude a court from determining that an interest has been abandoned or is otherwise unenforceable, whether before or after the notice is recorded, and does not validate or make enforceable a claim or interest that is otherwise invalid or unenforceable [Civ. Code § 880.310(b)].

If a court in an action to establish or quiet title determines that a person recorded the notice for the purpose of slandering title (that is, publishing untrue and disparaging matter regarding the property of another [see Gudger v. Manton (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 537, 541, 134 P.2d 217 , disapproved on other grounds, Albertson v. Raboff (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 375, 381, 295 P.2d 405] , that person will be liable for the costs of the action or proceeding, including attorneys' fees, and for damages [Civ. Code § 880.360].

[d] Powers of Termination

[i] Definition

For purposes of the marketable record title provisions, a power of termination is a power to terminate a fee simple estate following the violation of a condition subsequent [Civ. Code § 885.010(a)(1); see § 27.202[1]]. Although referred to in the statute as a power of termination, such a power may be characterized in the instrument that creates or evidences it as a right of entry or reentry, right of possession or repossession, reserved power of revocation, or otherwise [Civ. Code § 885.010(a)(1)]. The power of termination is an interest in the affected real property [Civ. Code § 885.010(b)].

The definition of "power of termination" includes the power created in a transferee to terminate a fee simple estate in real property to enforce a restriction on the use of the real property in the form of a limitation or condition subsequent [Civ. Code § 885.010(a)(2)]. This power may be characterized in the instrument that creates or evidences it as an executory interest, executory limitation, or otherwise [Civ. Code § 885.010(a)(2)]. "Power of termination" also includes the interest known at common law as an executory interest preceded by a fee simple determinable [Civ. Code § 885.010(a)(2)]. For coverage of executory interests, see California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 340, Estates in Real Property (Matthew Bender).

For discussion of the exercise of a power of termination [see Civ. Code § 885.050; see also Civ. Code § 885.070], see § 27.202[1][d].

[ii] Expiration

A power of termination will normally expire of record at the later of the following times [Civ. Code § 885.030]:

- Thirty years after the date the instrument reserving, transferring, or otherwise evidencing the power is recorded;

- Thirty years after the date a notice of intent to preserve the power is recorded, if it is recorded within the period stated above; or

- Thirty years after the date an instrument or a notice (as described in either of the two preceding categories) is recorded, if the instrument or notice is recorded within 30 years after the date such an instrument or notice was last recorded.

Notwithstanding these expiration periods, a recorded document may provide for an expiration date that is earlier than the one determined under the statutory formulas; however, it cannot extend the statutory period [Civ. Code § 885.030(b)].

The following interests are not subject to the statutory expiration periods: (1) a power of termination conditioned on the continued production or removal of oil or gas or other minerals, or (2) a power of termination as to separately owned improvements or fixtures conditioned on the continued leasehold or possessory interest in the underlying land [Civ. Code § 885.015].

A power of termination will also expire if it becomes obsolete [Civ. Code § 885.040(a), (b)]. For discussion of the circumstances under which a power becomes obsolete, see § 27.202[1][e].

The expiration of a power of termination makes the power unenforceable and is equivalent for all purposes to a termination of the power of record and a quitclaim of the power to the owner of the fee simple estate [Civ. Code § 885.060(a)]. Execution and recording of a termination and quitclaim is not necessary to terminate or evidence the termination of the power [Civ. Code § 885.060(a)].

As a general rule, expiration of a power of termination terminates the restriction and makes it unenforceable by any means [Civ. Code § 885.060(b)]. However, the restriction will not be terminated if it is also an equitable servitude alternatively enforceable by injunction [Civ. Code § 885.060(c)]. Although such an equitable servitude will not be enforceable by a power of termination, it will be enforceable by injunction and by any other available remedies [Civ. Code § 885.060(c)]. However, the foregoing provisions will not make enforceable any restriction prohibited or made unenforceable by any other law, including Civ. Code § 53 [Civ. Code § 885.060(c)]. Under Civ. Code § 53, a restriction is void if it directly or indirectly limits the acquisition, use, or occupation of real property based on a person's sex, race, color, religion, ancestry, national origin, disability, medical condition, marital status, or sexual orientation [Civ. Code § 53(b); see Civ. Code § 51(b), (e)].

[e] Real Property Security Instruments

Unless the lien of a mortgage, deed of trust, or other real property security instrument has already expired because the statute of limitations has run on the principal obligation [see Civ. Code § 2911], the lien will expire at the later of the following times [Civ. Code § 882.020(a); see Civ. Code § 882.040]:

- If the final maturity date or the last date fixed for payment of the debt or performance of the obligation is ascertainable from the recorded evidence of indebtedness, 10 years after that date.

- If the date described above is not ascertainable from the recorded evidence of indebtedness or if there is no such date, 60 years after the date the instrument that created the security interest was recorded.

- If a notice of intent to preserve the security interest is recorded within the time discussed in the two categories above, 10 years after the date the notice is recorded.

All of the above times may be extended a maximum of four years by recording, before the applicable expiration date, an extension that is signed by the person obligated under the security instrument [Civ. Code § 882.020(c); see Code Civ. Proc. § 360.5].

The expiration of the lien of a real property security instrument renders the lien unenforceable by any means commenced or asserted thereafter and is equivalent for all purposes to a certificate of satisfaction, reconveyance, release, or other discharge of the security interest [Civ. Code § 882.030]. Although not precluded by statute, the execution and recording of a certificate of satisfaction, reconveyance, release, or other discharge is not necessary to terminate or evidence the termination of the security interest [Civ. Code § 882.030]. However, the reference to expiration of a "lien" in Civ. Code § 882.030 includes only the security interest enforceable through judicial foreclosure pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 725a, which is subject to the four-year statute of limitations in Civ. Code § 2911, and does not extinguish the power of sale in a deed of trust [Ung v. Koehler (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 186, 196, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 311] .

A beneficiary of a deed of trust who is otherwise entitled to claim the 60-year time limit does not lose that entitlement by filing a notice of default prior to exercising a power of sale [Civ. Code § 2924] that specifies the "final maturity date" of the underlying debt. Otherwise, every beneficiary who would be entitled to 60 years under Civ. Code § 882.020(a)(2), and who failed to seek nonjudicial enforcement within the first 10 years, would be entitled to the remaining years only until it filed the required notice of default. At that time, the beneficiary would retroactively be entitled to only 10 years, all of which by definition would have elapsed. Thus, to avoid a statutory absurdity, a notice of default under Civ. Code § 2924 that is recorded more than 10 years after "the last date fixed for payment of the debt or performance of the obligation" does not constitute a part of the "record" for purposes of Civ. Code § 882.020(a) [Ung v. Koehler (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 186, 203-204, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 311 ; see also Schmidli v. Pearce (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 305, 316, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 343 (in amendments to Civ. Code § 882.020 enacted in 2007, Legislature codified holding in Ung that notice of default is not part of the record for purposes of determining applicable statute of limitations)].

[f] Easements

[i] Applicability

For purposes of the marketable record title laws, "easement" means a burden or servitude on land, whether or not attached to other land as an incident or appurtenance, that allows the holder of the burden or servitude to do acts on the land [Civ. Code § 887.010]. Easements that are part of a unified or reciprocal system for the mutual benefit of multiple parties are specifically excluded [Civ. Code § 887.020].

The marketable record title laws supplement and do not limit or otherwise affect the common law governing the abandonment of an easement or any other procedure for clearing an abandoned easement from title to real property [Civ. Code § 887.030]. For coverage of easements in general, see Ch. 28A, Easements and Licenses . For additional coverage, including coverage of the common law and statutory provisions governing the abandonment of easements, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 240, Easements (Matthew Bender).

[ii] Conditions Constituting Abandonment

An easement is abandoned if all of the following conditions are satisfied for a period of 20 years immediately preceding the commencement of the action to establish abandonment [Civ. Code § 887.050(a)]:

- The easement is not used at any time;
- No separate property tax assessment is made of the easement or, if made, no taxes are paid on the assessment; and
- No instrument creating, reserving, transferring, or otherwise evidencing the easement is recorded.

These conditions constituting abandonment apply notwithstanding any provision to the contrary in the instrument creating, reserving, transferring, or otherwise evidencing the easement or in another recorded document, unless the instrument or other document provides an earlier expiration date [Civ. Code § 887.050(b)].

An abandoned easement is unenforceable and is deemed to have expired. A court order establishing abandonment pursuant to these laws is equivalent for all purposes to a conveyance of the easement to the owner of the real property [Civ. Code § 887.080].

[iii] Action to Establish Abandonment

The owner of real property subject to an easement may bring an action to establish the abandonment of the easement and to clear record title of the easement [Civ. Code § 887.040(a)]. The owner must bring the action in the superior court of the county in which the real property subject to the easement is located [Civ. Code § 887.040(b)]. Furthermore, the action must be brought in the same manner and will be subject to the same procedure as an action to quiet title [Civ. Code § 887.040(c); see Code Civ. Proc. § 760.010 et seq.]. For detailed coverage of quiet title actions, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 482, Quieting Title (Matthew Bender).

In an action to establish the abandonment of an easement pursuant to these laws, the court must permit the owner of the easement to record a late notice of intent to preserve the easement as a condition of dismissal of the action, provided the owner of the easement pays into court (for the benefit of the owner of the real property) the litigation expenses attributable to the easement or the portion of the easement covered by the notice. For these purposes, "litigation expenses" means recoverable costs and expenses reasonably and necessarily incurred in preparation for the action, including reasonable attorneys' fees [Civ. Code § 887.070].

These litigation expenses are payable only when the sole theory of extinguishment of the easement was statutory abandonment (or other theories were dismissed voluntarily) and the application of Civ. Code § 887.070 results in the preservation of the easement [Worthington v. Alcala (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1404, 1408-1412, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 374] .

[iv] Notice of Intent

The owner of an easement may at any time record a notice of intent to preserve the easement (this form) [Civ. Code § 887.060(a)]. An easement is not abandoned if recordation takes place (1) within 20 years immediately preceding the commencement of an action to establish the abandonment of the easement or (2) pursuant to Civ. Code § 887.070 after commencement of an action to establish the abandonment of the easement and before judgment is entered in the action [Civ. Code § 887.060(c); see [iii], above].

The required contents of a notice of intent to preserve an easement differ slightly from the mandatory contents of other notices of intent [see Civ. Code § 880.330(b); see also [c][ii], above]. This type of notice may refer generally and without specificity to any or all easements claimed by the claimant in any real property situated in the county in lieu of [Civ. Code § 887.060(b)]:

- The statement of the character of the interest claimed and the record location of the documents creating or evidencing the easement claimed [see Civ. Code § 880.330(b)(2)]; and

- The legal description of the real property in which the interest is claimed [see Civ. Code § 880.330(b)(3)].

Although the other portions of the notice must be substantially in the form specified by statute [see Civ. Code § 880.340], there are no requirements governing the presentation of the foregoing information regarding the claimant's easement or easements [see Civ. Code § 887.060(b)].

CHAPTER 27A DEDICATION

12-27A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide Scope

Scope

Scope

This chapter discusses the dedication of land by a property owner in the form of a fee interest or some lesser interest for a public purpose. Both common law dedication and statutory dedication under the Subdivision Map Act [see Gov. Code §§ 66410-66499.37] are covered. The Legal Background discusses the statutory dedication procedure and the principles and cases governing common law dedication. The Transaction Guide sets forth the steps involved in preparing and tendering statutory and common law offers of dedication, determining the status of previously tendered offers, revoking offers, and preventing implied dedication of privately owned coastal property. Forms include an offer of dedication and related agreements between landowners and local public entities.

This chapter does not discuss conveyances by deed or easements, which are covered in Ch. 27, Deeds and Recording and Ch. 28A, Easements and Licenses . Subdivisions, which are discussed in this chapter only insofar as they are related to dedications, are discussed generally in Ch. 30, Subdivision Regulation .

CHAPTER 27A DEDICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-27A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 27A.10

§ 27A.10 "Dedication" Defined

"Dedication" refers to an intentional appropriation or donation of land, or of an easement or other interest in land, by the owner of that land, for some proper public use [Clay v. City of Los Angeles (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 577, 583, 98 Cal. Rptr. 582] . Generally, the public acquires a fee title to land dedicated for parks and similar purposes, and acquires an easement in the case of dedications for streets, highways, and similar purposes [see, e.g., Morse v. E.A. Robey & Co. (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 464, 467-468, 29 Cal. Rptr. 734 ; Safwenberg v. Marquez (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 301, 307, 123 Cal. Rptr. 405] .

Dedications may be made under the common law [see § 27A.12] or pursuant to some specific statutory authority. For example, many dedications are made by developers to comply with the requirements of the Subdivision Map Act [Gov. Code §§ 66410-66499.37; see § 27A.13]. Gov. Code § 7050 provides an alternative statutory method for making an irrevocable dedication of land to public use [see § 27A.14]. Gov. Code § 65871 provides a procedure similar to dedication for the creation of public easements [see § 27A.15].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-27A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 27A.11

§ 27A.11 Authority to Dedicate and Persons Bound by Dedication

Any landowner, including a corporation, may dedicate land [see Southern Pac. Co. v. City of Pomona (1904) 144 Cal. 339, 341-342, 77 P. 929 (corporation may dedicate land if permitted by articles of incorporation)]. A person who dedicates land that he or she does not own cannot bind the owner of the affected land [City of Eureka v. McKay & Co. (1899) 123 Cal. 666, 671, 56 P. 439] , although the nonowner will be estopped from denying the dedication if he or she subsequently acquires title to the land [City of Napa v. Howland (1890) 87 Cal. 84, 86, 25 P. 247] .

A dedication may be accomplished through an agent of the landowner if the agent acts with express or ostensible authority, especially if the landowner does not question or deny the agent's authority [Southern Pac. Co. v. City of Pomona (1904) 144 Cal. 339, 347-349, 77 P. 929] . A trustee may dedicate land if authorized to do so by the trust instrument [see, e.g., City of Palos Verdes Estates v. Willett (1946) 75 Cal. App. 2d 394, 399, 171 P.2d 26] . An executor or administrator may dedicate land belonging to an estate only if specifically authorized to do so by a probate court [Prob. Code § 9900(a); Gray v. Magee (1933) 133 Cal. App. 653, 662, 24 P.2d 948] .

A landowner may not substantially impair the security interest of a prior mortgagee by dedicating the land subject to the mortgage [Civ. Code § 2929; Archer v. Salinas City (1892) 93 Cal. 43, 55, 28 P. 839] . If the mortgagee subsequently accepts title to the property in satisfaction of the debt, the mortgagee acquires the property subject to the dedication [Archer v. Salinas City (1892) 93 Cal. 43, 55, 28 P. 839] . A valid dedication can defeat or limit security interests and other property interests acquired subsequent to the dedication. In determining whether a lienholder, purchaser at a foreclosure sale, or other party who acquires an interest in dedicated property takes subject to the dedication, the key question is whether the transferee had constructive notice of the prior public use of the land [City of Los Angeles v. Berk (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 201, 220, 161 Cal. Rptr. 742, 605 P.2d 381] .

Public bodies may dedicate land to other public bodies for particular purposes that benefit the public at large. For example, the Department of Transportation may dedicate roadways to counties, cities, or other public municipal corporations [Sts. & Hy. Code § 30411]. Acts of acceptance are not necessary to complete a dedication by a public entity [Arques v. City of Sausalito (1954) 126 Cal. App. 2d 403, 406, 272 P.2d 58 ; see § 27A.12[3]].

If a county provides and/or maintains any building, memorial hall, meeting place, memorial park, or recreation center for the use or benefit of one or more veterans' associations pursuant to Mil. & Vet. Code § 1262, the provision of the facility and its acceptance by the veterans' association constitute a dedication of the property for a public purpose. So long as the veteran's association does not violate the terms and conditions of the dedication, the county may not revoke the dedication unless it dedicates substitute facilities, or unless the veterans' organization has consented to the proposed action or abandoned its use of the facilities [Mil. & Vet. Code § 1266].

CHAPTER 27A DEDICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-27A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 27A.12

§ 27A.12 Common Law Dedication

[1] Elements

The essential elements of a dedication of land under the common law are the landowner's unequivocal offer to dedicate his or her land to a public use, and the public's acceptance of the offer [Union Transp. Co. v. Sacramento County (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 235, 240, 267 P.2d 10 ; see [2] and [3], below]. A common law dedication may be made for any proper public use [see, e.g., Union Transp. Co. v. Sacramento County (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 235, 267 P.2d 10 (streets and highways); City of Palos Verdes Estates v. Willett (1946) 75 Cal. App. 2d 394, 171 P.2d 26 (parks); People ex res. People ex rel. Keller v. La Vista Cemetery Asso. (1949) 175 Cal. App. 2d 197, 345 P.2d 590] . The dedicator may impose any reasonable conditions and limitations on the dedication [Hill v. City of Oxnard (1920) 46 Cal. App. 624, 625-626, 189 P. 825] .

Common law dedication is governed by principles applicable to both grant and gift transactions, as well as those applicable to adverse possession claims [Union Transp. Co. v. Sacramento County (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 235, 240, 267 P.2d 10 ; People v. Sayig (1951) 101 Cal. App. 2d 890, 896, 226 P.2d 702] . A common law dedication need not satisfy the statute of frauds or be supported by express words or documents [Cherokee Valley Farms, Inc. v. Summerville Elementary Sch. Dist. (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 579, 584-585, 106 Cal. Rptr. 467] . In fact, common law dedication cases often turn on principles of estoppel, arising out of the landowner's failure to object to acts or events that suggest an implied intent to dedicate property [Sussman v. County of San Luis Obispo (1899) 126 Cal. 536, 539, 59 P. 24 ; see [5], below]. In each case, the question of whether there has been a dedication is a question of fact [Sacramento v. Jensen (1956) 146 Cal. App. 2d 114, 118, 303 P.2d 549] .

Although statutory and common law dedication are separate procedures, an unsuccessful statutory dedication may qualify as a common law dedication. This could occur, for example, if a city or county failed to accept an offer of dedication according to the procedure provided by the Subdivision Map [see Gov. Code §§ 66477.1, 66477.2; § 27A.13[8]], but all of the necessary elements for a common law dedication were present [see, e.g., Hanshaw v. Long Valley Road Assn. (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 471, 477, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 357 ; Tischauser v. City of Newport Beach (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 138, 143, 37 Cal. Rptr. 141 ; City of Sacramento v. Jensen (1956) 146 Cal. App. 2d 114, 118-123, 303 P.2d 549] .

[2] Common Law Offer of Dedication

A common law offer of dedication may be made in any of a variety of ways. The most straightforward kind of offer is an express conveyance of the property to a governmental entity. The offer may be made by an absolute conveyance of the property in fee [see, e.g., City & County of San Francisco v. Linares (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 441, 444, 106 P.2d 369] or by a conditional grant of a fee interest for a specific public purpose [see, e.g., Slavich v. Hamilton (1927) 201 Cal. 299, 304, 257 P. 60] . For example, a deed may provide that the grantor dedicates the land for use as a public park, but that the land will revert to the grantor if it is used for any other purpose [see, e.g., Palos Verdes Estates v. Willett (1946) 171 P.2d 26 ; see also [6], below].

An offer of dedication may also be made by recording a map or plat showing land subdivided into defined areas separated by roads or streets [Flavio v. McKenzie (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 549, 553, 32 Cal. Rptr. 535] ; the offer is repeated and reinforced when a landowner sells lots with reference to the recorded map [Tischauser v. City of Newport Beach (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 138, 144, 37 Cal. Rptr. 141] .

In many cases, the existence of a common law offer to dedicate land is much less clear than in the situations illustrated above, and must be inferred from the facts of the case. For a discussion of these dedications by implication, see [5], below.

[3] Acceptance of Common Law Offer

Acceptance of a common law offer of dedication is necessary to complete the dedication [City of Santa Clara v. Ivancovich (1941) 47 Cal. App. 2d 502, 508, 118 P.2d 303] . The acceptance may be express or, in a case involving an express, irrevocable written offer of dedication, it may be implied from the actions of the appropriate public body or the public at large [City of Santa Clara v. Ivancovich (1941) 47 Cal. App. 2d 502, 508, 118 P.2d 303] . For example, a city or county may indicate acceptance of an express, written, irrevocable offer of dedication on behalf of the public by commencing maintenance or repair work on the property [Ackley v. City Etc. of San Francisco (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 108, 113, 89 Cal. Rptr. 480] . Acceptance may also be established through the public's use of the property, although this element usually coexists with the above-described acts of dominion by a public body [Tischauser v. City of Newport Beach (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 138, 145, 37 Cal. Rptr. 141] . Except in cases involving coastal property or the expenditure of government funds to clean, maintain, or visibly improve the property, an implied acceptance is not valid if the offer of dedication was not an express, irrevocable offer in writing [Civ. Code § 1009(b)-(e); see [5], below]. It is not necessary to an otherwise valid acceptance that the public body expend money to develop the dedicated property [Morse v. E.A. Robey & Co. (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 464, 468, 29 Cal. Rptr. 734] .

[4] Revocation of Common Law Offer

After a common law offer of dedication has been accepted, the dedication is complete and cannot be revoked by the landowner [Brick v. Cazaux (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 549, 555, 71 P.2d 588] . However, the offer of dedication may be revoked by the landowner at any time prior to acceptance [County of Inyo v. Given (1920) 183 Cal. 415, 420, 191 P. 688] . The revocation may be made expressly, or may be implied from action by the landowner that is inconsistent with the public's use of the land [see, e.g., People v. Southern P. R. Co. (1924) 68 Cal. App. 153, 160, 228 P. 726 (conveying land without reference to dedication offer); County of Inyo v. Given (1920) 183 Cal. 415, 420, 191 P. 688 (fencing property); see also § 27A.121]. The question of whether a revocation occurred before the offer of dedication was accepted is a question of fact [Henry Cowell Lime & Cement Co. v. State (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 169, 173, 114 P.2d 331] .

[5] Implied Common Law Dedication

Common law dedications may be implied in fact or implied in law. A dedication is implied in fact when a landowner manifests by his or her affirmative acts or acquiescence an unequivocal intention to offer his or her property for a public purpose [Cherokee Valley Farms, Inc. v. Summerville Elementary Sch. Dist. (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 579, 585, 106 Cal. Rptr. 467] . The amount and nature of evidence required to establish a landowner's intent to dedicate varies with the location of the property and the nature of the public use. Generally, more evidence is required for dedications in sparsely populated areas than in urban areas [Kitzman v. Newman (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 715, 723, 41 Cal. Rptr. 182] .

A dedication implied in law is the common law result when various groups of persons use property for the required period without asking or receiving permission from the fee owner, in the absence of objection by the fee owner [Gion v. City of Santa Cruz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 29, 43-44, 84 Cal. Rptr. 162, 465 P.2d 50] . Public use of land before March 4, 1972, for a period of more than five years with the knowledge of the owner raised a conclusive presumption of dedication, unless the owner could show that the use was by license or permission, or that he or she had made bona fide attempts to prevent the use [Gion v. City of Santa Cruz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 29, 38, 84 Cal. Rptr. 162, 465 P.2d 50] . If the period of public use was less than five years, dedication could be established on a showing that the owner made an offer of dedication [Gunn v. Fontes (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 351, 356, 306 P.2d 928] or actually consented to the dedication [Gion v. City of Santa Cruz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 29, 38, 84 Cal. Rptr. 162, 465 P.2d 50] .

In 1971, the California Legislature recognized that the state has an interest in encouraging landowners to make their property available for public use, and found that the threat of implied dedication discourages that practice. In response to this finding, the Legislature severely limited the acquisition of public land rights by implied dedication [Stats. 1971, ch. 941, § 2; Civ. Code § 1009(a)]. Public use of private property after March 4, 1972, cannot ripen into an implied dedication of the property unless the owner executes an express irrevocable written offer of dedication that is accepted by the appropriate public body [Civ. Code § 1009(b), (c); see Gov. Code § 7050; see also § 27A.200].

There are two exceptions to this rule. First, private land may be acquired for public use through implied dedication when a governmental entity expends public funds to make visible improvements on or across private land, or to clean and maintain private land, in a manner that should put the owner on notice that the public is using the land, if that use continues for five years and the owner neither gives his or her express permission for the public use to continue nor takes steps to stop the use [Civ. Code § 1009(d)]. Second, the public may obtain rights in certain coastal property through implied dedication notwithstanding the provisions of Civ. Code § 1009 [Civ. Code § 1009(e)]. This exception applies to coastal property that lies within 1,000 yards inland of the mean high tide line of the Pacific Ocean or any harbor, estuary, bay, or inlet of the Pacific Ocean. Property lying inland of the Carquinez Straits Bridge, or between the mean high tide line and the nearest public road or highway, whichever distance is less, is not included in this exception [Civ. Code § 1009(e)].

An owner of coastal property may prevent an implied dedication under the second exception by expressly permitting the public use of the property [Civ. Code § 1009(f)]. Permission may be conditioned on reasonable restrictions on the time, place, and manner of the use [Civ. Code § 1009(g)]. Any of the following actions is sufficient to bar an implied dedication [Civ. Code § 1009(f)]:

- Posting signs or publishing a notice meeting statutory requirements [see Civ. Code § 1008; Gov. Code § 6066; see also § 27A.122, P 1.a., b.; § 28A.236];

- Recording a notice as provided in Civ. Code § 813 [see § 27A.122, P 1.c.; see also § 28.234]; or

- Entering into a written agreement with any federal, state, or local agency providing for the public use of the subject property [see § 27A.203].

Civ. Code § 1009 only restricts the establishment of public rights in private property through "use of such property by the public" [Civ. Code § 1009(b)].

[6] Construction of Common Law Dedications

The construction of a common law dedication generally depends on the nature of the situation in which the issue arises. In a suit by an individual grantor to force a public body to use dedicated land for the purposes specified in the dedication, the dedication will be strictly construed in favor of the grantor [Big Sur Prop. v. Mott (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 99, 104, 132 Cal. Rptr. 835] . In a similar situation involving a dedication by one public body to another public body, the dedication will be less strictly construed, in order to avoid limiting the permissible uses of the property as long as they "tend to further and promote the enjoyment of the people" [City & County of San Francisco v. Linares (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 441, 444-445, 106 P.2d 369] . However, in a suit by a grantor to recover dedicated property for breach of a condition of the dedication, the dedication will be strictly construed against the grantor as a forfeiture [Savanna School Dist. v. McLeod (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 491, 494, 290 P.2d 593] .

DIVISION II: REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 27A DEDICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-27A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 27A.13

§ 27A.13 Dedication Under Subdivision Map Act

[1] Validity of Dedication Requirements

The Subdivision Map Act [Gov. Code § 66410 et seq.] empowers California cities and counties to enact ordinances requiring a dedication of land, an irrevocable offer of dedication, or payment of fees in lieu of dedication, for various public purposes as a condition of tentative approval of subdivision maps [Gov. Code §§ 66475-66475.3, 66477]. These dedication requirements do not violate federal or California constitutional due process or equal protection guarantees [Associated Home Builders etc., Inc. v. City of Walnut Creek (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 633, 637-645, 94 Cal. Rptr. 630, 484 P.2d 606 (construing former Bus. & Prof. Code § 11546; now see Gov. Code § 66477)]. For further discussion of the constitutionality of park dedication requirements under the Subdivision Map Act, see California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 291, Substantive Requirements of the Subdivision Map Act (Matthew Bender).

[2] Dedication or In-Lieu Fees for Park and Recreational Facilities

A city or county may require the dedication of land for parks or recreation purposes, or the payment of fees instead of dedication, or a combination of both, but only if all statutory requirements are met [Gov. Code § 66477(a)]. An ordinance setting forth the requirement must have been in effect for at least 30 days prior to the filing of the required tentative map of the subdivision or parcel map [Gov. Code § 66477(a)(1); see [6], below]. The ordinance must include definite standards, based on residential density and consistent with the formula prescribed by statute, for determining the proportion of the subdivision to be dedicated and the amount of the in-lieu fee [see Gov. Code § 66477(a)(2)(B)].

In addition to adopting an ordinance, the city or county must have adopted a general plan or a specific plan containing policies and standards for parks and recreation facilities. The proposed facilities must be in accordance with definite principles and standards [Gov. Code § 66477(a)(4)]. The local legislative body must also develop a schedule specifying how, when, and where it will use the land or fees, or both, to develop park or recreational facilities to serve the residents of the subdivision [Gov. Code § 66477(a)(6)].

The dedicated land and/or the in-lieu fees must be used only for the purpose of developing new neighborhood or community park or recreational facilities, or rehabilitating existing facilities (for example, by draining or landscaping), to serve the subdivision [Gov. Code § 66477(a)(3)]. The fees may not be used for purposes unrelated to the acquisition and improvement of land [Associated Home Builders Etc., Inc. v. Walnut Creek (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 633, 647, 94 Cal. Rptr. 630, 484 P.2d 606] . The amount and location of land to be dedicated, or the amount of fees to be paid, must be reasonably related to the use of the facilities by the future inhabitants of the subdivision [Gov. Code § 66477(a)(5)]. The value of any park and recreational improvements provided by the subdivider, and of any equipment located on the dedicated land, must be credited against the payment of fees or the dedication of land required by the ordinance [Gov. Code § 66477(a)(9)].

Any fees collected must be committed within five years after payment or the issuance of building permits on half of the lots in the subdivision, whichever occurs later. Fees not committed by this deadline must be distributed to the owners of record of plots within the subdivision at the time of the deadline, according to the size of their plots within the subdivision [Gov. Code § 66477(a)(6)].

An ordinance cannot require the dedication of land for park and recreational facilities in subdivisions containing 50 or fewer parcels; only the payment of fees may be required. This restriction does not apply, however, to condominium projects, stock cooperatives, or community apartment projects, as those terms are defined in Civ. Code § 1351, with more than 50 dwelling units, even if the number of parcels is 50 or fewer [Gov. Code § 66477(a)(7)].

Subdivisions that contain fewer than five parcels and are not used for residential purposes are exempt from ordinances requiring dedication or in-lieu fees for park and recreational facilities [Gov. Code § 66477(a)(8)]. However, map approval for these subdivisions may include the condition that if a building permit for construction of a residential structure or structures is requested within four years after the map approval, the permit will not issue unless the in-lieu fee is paid by the owner of the parcel or parcels involved [Gov. Code § 66477(a)(8)].

Cities and counties are not authorized to require the dedication of land or the payment of in-lieu fees for park or recreational facilities for commercial or industrial subdivisions, or for condominium projects or stock cooperatives that consist of the subdivision of airspace in an existing apartment building that is no more than five years old when no new dwelling units are added [Gov. Code § 66477(d)].

Common interest developments [see Civ. Code § 1351 (definition)] must be eligible to receive a credit, as determined by the legislative body, against the amount of land required to be dedicated or the amount of fees imposed pursuant to Gov. Code § 66477, for the value of private open space within the development that is usable for active recreational uses [Gov. Code § 66477(e)]. However, it is up to local legislative bodies to determine the exact criteria and procedures for granting a credit consistent with the statute. Thus, in the absence of such a municipal ordinance, a city had no clear, present, and ministerial duty to provide a developer with a specific amount of credit for private open space and the developer had no clear, present, and beneficial right to performance of such a duty [Branciforte Heights, LLC v. City of Santa Cruz (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 914, 939, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 96] .

If park and recreational services and facilities are provided by a public agency other than a city or a county, the amount and location of land to be dedicated or fees to be paid must be jointly determined, subject to Gov. Code § 66477(a)(2), by the city or county having jurisdiction and that other public agency [Gov. Code § 66477(c)].

Park and recreation purposes include land and facilities for the activity of "recreational community gardening," defined as the cultivation by persons other than, or in addition to, the owner of the land, of plant material that is not for sale [Gov. Code § 66477(f)].

[3] Dedication of Public Access to Public Natural Resources

Before a local agency can approve a tentative or final map for a subdivision to be located adjacent to certain public waterways, the developer must dedicate reasonable public access from a public highway to the waterway [Gov. Code §§ 66478.4(a) (public waterway river or stream), 66478.11(a) (coastline or shoreline), 66478.12(a) (lake or reservoir)]. For a development fronting on a public waterway river or stream [see Gov. Code § 66478.4(c) (definition)], the developer must also dedicate a public easement along the portion of the bank of the river or stream bordering or lying within the proposed subdivision [Gov. Code § 66478.5(a)]. Local agencies are required to determine what constitutes "reasonable public access" in each case, considering all of the following: (1) that access may be by any of a variety of means of travel; (2) the size of the subdivision; (3) the nature of the waterway and the types of recreational, educational, and scientific uses appropriate to it; and (4) the likelihood that the easement will lead to trespass on private property, and reasonable means of avoiding that trespass [Gov. Code §§ 66478.4(b), 66478.5(b), 66478.11(b), 66478.12(b)]. Nothing in these provisions requires developers to improve access routes that are primarily for the benefit of nonresidents or nonowners of the subdivision [Gov. Code §§ 66478.11(g), 66478.14].

The dedication requirement may be waived if the local agency finds that reasonable public access to the waterway in question is otherwise available within a reasonable distance from the subdivision, and identifies the location of this reasonable public access [Gov. Code § 66478.8]. This finding must be set forth on the face of the tentative or final map [Gov. Code §§ 66478.8, 66478.11(d), 66478.12(d)]. In addition, electric power generating facilities, industrial subdivisions and certain subdivisions for which map approvals were issued before March 1975 or other approvals were issued before 1987 are exempt from the waterway access requirements [Gov. Code §§ 66478.9, 66478.10, 66478.11(e), (f)].

Public access issues are discussed in more detail in California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 291, Substantive Requirements of the Subdivision Map Act (Matthew Bender).

[4] Dedication of Land for Elementary School Purposes

Cities and counties are authorized to adopt ordinances requiring subdividers to dedicate land for elementary school purposes, to assure the subdivision residents of adequate public school service, if the subdivision is situated in a school district maintaining an elementary school [Gov. Code § 66478]. Requirements may not be imposed that would render the development economically unfeasible, or that would exceed the amount of land ordinarily allowed under State Allocation Board procedures [Gov. Code § 66478].

The dedication requirement must be imposed at the time the tentative map is approved [see § 27A.13[6]], and terminates automatically after 30 days if the school district has not offered to enter into a binding commitment to accept the dedication. The actual dedication may be made at any time before, concurrently with, or up to 60 days after the filing of the final map on any portion of the subdivision [Gov. Code § 66478].

If the offer of dedication is accepted, the school district must repay to the subdivider the original costs of the dedicated land and the costs of improvements made to the land since the subdivider's acquisition of it, taxes assessed from the date of the school district's offer to enter into a binding commitment to accept the dedication, and other costs incurred by the subdivider in the maintenance of the dedicated land [Gov. Code § 66478].

An ordinance calling for this type of dedication may not be enforced against a subdivider who has owned the subject land for more than 10 years prior to the filing of tentative subdivision maps [Gov. Code § 66478].

[5] Other Purposes for Which Dedication May Be Required

California cities and counties may also condition subdivision map approval on the dedication or an irrevocable offer of dedication of land for streets, alleys (including access rights and abutter's rights), drainage, public utility easements and other public easements [Gov. Code § 66475]. In addition, if certain requirements are satisfied, cities and counties may impose dedication requirements for bicycle paths, local transit facilities and solar easements [Gov. Code §§ 66475.1-66475.3].

Dedication requirements for the construction or improvement of public roads are valid and do not require the payment of compensation to the subdivider, even though they benefit the public at large and are based on future as well as present needs [Ayres v. City Council of Los Angeles (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 31, 41, 207 P.2d 1] .

[6] Filing of Tentative Map

The first step in accomplishing a dedication of land under the provisions of the Subdivision Map Act is to file a tentative map with the clerk of the advisory agency of the city or county in which the proposed subdivision is to be situated [Gov. Code § 66452; see Gov. Code § 66424.5(a) (tentative map defined)]. The advisory agency is the designated official or official body authorized to investigate and report on design and improvement of proposed divisions of real property, to impose requirements or conditions on the proposed divisions, and to approve or disapprove subdivision maps [Gov. Code § 66415]. If there is no advisory agency in the city or county in which the proposed subdivision is to be situated, the subdivider should file the tentative map with the city or county clerk or with the officer or other employee designated by local ordinance [Gov. Code § 66452].

For more detailed coverage of the issues involved in the preparation and approval of tentative plans, see § 30.120.

[7] Filing and Approval of Final Map

After the tentative map has been approved or conditionally approved by the legislative body for the city or county in which the proposed subdivision is to be situated [see Gov. Code §§ 66474-66474.9], the subdivider may prepare a final map that conforms to the tentative map [Gov. Code § 66456]. Any dedications or offers of dedication must be made by a statement appearing on the final map [Gov. Code § 66439(a)]. The statement must be signed and acknowledged by all parties having any record title interest in the real estate being subdivided, and should contain a declaration identifying any street shown on the map that is not offered for dedication [Gov. Code § 66439(a), (b)]. If a subdivider is required to make a dedication for specified public purposes on a final map, the local agency must specify whether the dedication is to be in fee or as an easement [Gov. Code § 66439(d)(1)], and the subdivider must include specified language in the dedication clause on the final map or any separate instrument, preceding a description of the dedicated property or easement that is adequate to convey it [Gov. Code § 66439(d)(2), (3)]. For further discussion of this requirement, and an illustrative statement form, see Ch. 30, Subdivision Regulation, § 30.204.

The final map must be filed with the appropriate local legislative body [Gov. Code § 66457], which will review the map to determine whether it conforms to the requirements of the Subdivision Map Act and any local subdivision requirements. The legislative body must approve or disapprove the map at the meeting at which it receives the map or at its next regular meeting following its receipt of the map [Gov. Code § 66458(a)].

If any improvements required by the city or county are not completed by the time the final map is approved, the city or county will require the subdivider to enter into an agreement to either (1) complete the improvements at his or her expense or (2) initiate and consummate proceedings for the financing and completion of the improvements under an appropriate special assessment act or the Mello-Roos Community Facilities Act of 1982 [Gov. Code § 66462(a); see Gov. Code § 53311 et seq. (Mello-Roos Act)].

For further discussion concerning the processing of final maps, see Ch. 30, Subdivision Regulation .

[8] Acceptance of Offer Under the Act

At the time it approves the final map, the legislative body must also (1) accept, (2) accept subject to improvement, or (3) reject the offer of dedication, by making a certification or statement on the map [Gov. Code § 66477.1(a)]. An acceptance of an offer of dedication under the Subdivision Map Act is effective only on the filing in the office of the county recorder of either the map containing the certification or statement of acceptance or the legislative body's resolution of acceptance [Gov. Code § 66477.3]. Approval of the subdivision map does not, in itself, constitute acceptance of the offer of dedication [Ackley v. City & County of San Francisco (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 108, 112, 89 Cal. Rptr. 480] .

An effective dedication may result if a statutory offer is not accepted according to the procedure provided by the applicable statute [see Gov. Code §§ 66477.1, 66477.2] but all of the necessary elements for a common law dedication [see § 27A.12] are present [see, e.g., Hanshaw v. Long Valley Road Assn. (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 471, 477, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 357 ; Tischauser v. City of Newport Beach (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 138, 143, 37 Cal. Rptr. 141 ; City of Sacramento v. Jensen (1956) 146 Cal. App. 2d 114, 118-123, 303 P.2d 549] .

Prior to revocation, a statutory offer of dedication can be accepted in two ways. If the offeror engages in acts sufficient to revoke the offer under common law principles, then the offer is revoked as to the public at large, such that it cannot be implicitly accepted by further public use. However, the offer continues to remain open for formal acceptance by the public entity under the Subdivision Map Act. Thus, a statutory offer of dedication can be revoked as to the public at large, so that it can no longer be accepted by public use, even though the offer must remain open for formal acceptance by the public entity to which the offer was made [Gov. Code § 66477.2(a); Biagini v. Beckham (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1000, 1016-1017, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 171] .

A local agency to which property is dedicated in fee for public purposes or for making improvements or constructing public facilities must also record a certificate with the recorder for the county in which the property is located. The certificate must contain specified information, and must be attached to the map [Gov. Code § 66477.5(a)]. The subdivider that dedicated the land may request the local agency to make a determination that the same public purpose for which the dedication was required still exists [Gov. Code § 66477.5(b)]. For this service, the agency may assess a fee in an amount no greater than reasonably required to make the determination [Gov. Code § 66477.5(b)]. The determination may be made by reference to a capital improvement plan [see Gov. Code §§ 65403, 66002], an applicable general or specific plan requirement, the subdivision map, or other public documents that identify the need for the dedication [Gov. Code § 66477.5(b)].

If the local agency determines that the public purpose for which the dedication was required does not exist, it must reconvey the property to the subdivider or his or her successor in interest, except for any portion of the property that is still required for that purpose or for public utilities [Gov. Code § 66477.5(c)]. Before vacating, leasing, selling, or otherwise disposing of dedicated property, the agency must give at least 60 days' notice to the subdivider whose name appears on the certificate [Gov. Code § 66477.5(b)]. This notice is not required if the property will be used for the same public purpose for which it was dedicated [Gov. Code § 66477.5(d)].

These certification and reconveyance requirements do not apply to dedications made before 1990 [Gov. Code § 66477.5(e)], or to dedications for open space, parks, or schools [Gov. Code § 66477.5(a)].

[9] Effect of Acceptance on Liability of Public Entity and Subdivider

A city or county is not liable for failure to maintain a road within its jurisdiction unless the governing body of the city or county (or its designee) has caused the street to be accepted into its street system [Sts. & Hy. Code §§ 941(b), 1806]. Prior to a formal acceptance of the roadway, the subdivider is responsible for its maintenance [County of Kern v. Edgemont Dev. Corp. (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 874, 879, 35 Cal. Rptr. 629] . The "formal action" required is a resolution of acceptance of the roadway into the city or county system; approval of a subdivision map for recordation or acceptance of an offer of dedication pursuant to Gov. Code § 66477.1 [see § 27A.13[8]] is not sufficient to impose liability in the absence of such a resolution [Sts. & Hy. Code § 941(c); Ackley v. City Etc. of San Francisco (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 108, 112-114, 89 Cal. Rptr. 480] .

By formally accepting a road into its system, a city or county accepts both the advantages and the burdens of ownership.

Owners of property abutting a city or county road have a reasonable expectation that the city or county will maintain the road in usable condition, and the city or county will be liable for injuries caused by its failure to do so [Clay v. City of Los Angeles (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 577, 584, 98 Cal. Rptr. 582] . A subdivider/developer who is involved in designing or constructing improvements to the property prior to the dedication may also be liable for any injuries proximately caused by his or her negligence [Fisher v. Morrison Homes, Inc. (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d 131, 138, 167 Cal. Rptr. 133] .

[10] Rejection and Termination of Offer Under the Act

The rejection of an offer of dedication under the Subdivision Map Act does not terminate the offer or foreclose the possibility of a later acceptance [Gov. Code § 66477.2(a), (b)]; an offer can be terminated only as provided by the Act [Gov. Code § 66475; County of Orange v. Cole (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 163, 170, 215 P.2d 41] .

If, at the time a final map is approved, the legislative body rejects an offers of dedication of land for storm drainage easements or for streets, paths, alleys, public utility easements or transit rights-of-way that directly benefit the residents of the subdivision, the rejected offers remain open. The legislative body may rescind the rejection and accept any of those offers by resolution at a later date and without further action by the subdivider [Gov. Code § 66477.2(a)].

Rejected offers may be terminated in the same manner as prescribed for the summary vacation of streets under the Streets and Highways Code [Gov. Code § 66477.2(c); see Sts. & Hy. Code § 8300 et seq.]. The filing and approval of a re-subdivision or reversion to acreage of the tract will also operate as a termination of the previously rejected offer [Gov. Code § 66477.2(e); but see Gov. Code §§ 66499.16, 66499.17, 66499.18 (exceptions)]. Reversion is discussed in Ch. 30, Subdivision Regulation .

A conclusive presumption of rejection of the dedication arises if all of the following conditions are satisfied [Gov. Code § 66477.2(a); Code Civ. Proc. §§ 771.010, 771.020]:

- The offer was made by filing a map only.
- No acceptance of the dedication was made and recorded within 25 years after the map was filed.
- The property was not used for the purpose for which the dedication was proposed within that 25-year period.
- The property was sold to a third person after the map was filed and used as if free of the dedication.

If the presumption is established, it will support an action to quiet title brought against the legislative body to which the offer was made [Code Civ. Proc. § 771.020(a); see Paris v. County of Santa Clara (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 691, 699, 76 Cal. Rptr. 66 (presumption also available in inverse condemnation action); but see Corey v. City of San Diego (1958) 163 Cal. App. 2d 65, 71, 329 P.2d 99 (required conditions strictly construed)]. Quiet title actions are discussed in California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 482, Quieting Title (Matthew Bender).

Offers of dedication for access to public waterways [see [3], above] are deemed abandoned if not accepted within three years after the approval of the final map, except for dedications access to lakes or reservoirs wholly or partially owned by a public agency, which must be accepted within five years [Gov. Code § 66477.2(b), (d)]. These offers may also be terminated by resubdivision or reversion, as discussed above [Gov. Code § 66477.2(e)].

Offers of dedication for elementary school purposes terminate if the city or county does not offer to enter into a binding commitment to accept the dedication within 30 days after imposing the dedication requirement [Gov. Code § 66478; see § 27A.13[4]].

§ 27A.14 Dedication Under Gov. Code § 7050

With the consent of the city, county, or city and county, as the case may be, a landowner may make an offer of dedication of real property for any public purpose pursuant to Gov. Code § 7050. Offers of dedication may be made pursuant to this section for streets, highways, paths, alleys (including access rights and abutter's rights), drainage, open space, public utility or other public easements, parks or other public places, or other public purposes. The offer must be executed, acknowledged, and recorded in the same manner as a conveyance of real property [Gov. Code § 7050; see § 27A.200]. When recorded in the office of the county recorder, the offer becomes irrevocable and may be accepted at any time by the city council of the city within which the property is located or, if the property is located in unincorporated territory, by the board of supervisors of the county in which the property is located [Gov. Code § 7050].

An offer of dedication made pursuant to Gov. Code § 7050 may be terminated and the right to accept the offer abandoned by the city council or county board of supervisors using the procedure for the summary vacation of streets and highways [Gov. Code § 7050; see Sts. & Hy. Code §§ 8300-8363].

§ 27A.15 Covenants for Easement

Local ordinances may authorize a city or county to require the creation of public easements on private lands for purposes of parking, ingress, egress, emergency access, light and air access, landscaping, or open space [Gov. Code §§ 65870, 65871(a)]. To create the easement, a property owner must record a covenant of easement in the county where all or a portion of the subject property is located [Gov. Code § 65873]. The covenant must describe the property subject to the easement and the property to be benefitted by it, as well as the approval, permit, or designation granted that relied on or required the covenant [Gov. Code §§ 65871(c)]. For a discussion of the legal requirements and effects of these easements, see § 28A.22.

§ 27A.16 Tax Aspects of Dedication

Gifts to or for the use of a state or a political subdivision of a state, for exclusively public purposes, qualify as charitable contributions for income tax purposes [I.R.C. § 170(c)(1); Rev. & Tax. Code § 17201]. The key issue in determining whether a dedication of land qualifies as a gift for these purposes is whether the dedicator's intention was truly charitable; that is, whether the dedication was made without any expectation of receiving a direct economic benefit as a result of the dedication [Collman v. Commissioner (9th Cir. 1975) 511 F.2d 1263, 1267-1268] . If the dedicator receives any consideration for the dedication or is compelled to make the dedication by any moral or legal duty, the deduction will not be allowed [Pettit v. Commissioner, (1974) 61 T.C. 634 ; H. DeJong (1961) 36 T.C. 896 , aff'd, 309 F.2d 373 (9th Cir. 1962)] .

Generally, a charitable deduction will not be allowed if the dedication was made in order to comply with a local ordinance and/or to obtain approval of a subdivision map or other proposed project [Forkan v. Commissioner (1977) 36 T.C.M. 798 ; J. Perlmutter (1965) 45 T.C. 311] . However, if the dedication is not required by the local legislative body, the value of the land dedicated is deductible as a charitable contribution [Ben I. Seldin (1969) 28 T.C.M. 1215] .

CHAPTER 27A DEDICATION
PART III. TRANSACTION GUIDE
B. Preliminary Determinations

12-27A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 27A.110

§ 27A.110 Determinations for All Dedications

1. Ascertain that dedicator has capacity to dedicate subject land [see § 27A.11]:

a. Dedicator owns subject land;

b. Dedicator is trustee;

c. Dedicator is agent with authority to dedicate subject land; or

d. Dedicator is executor or administrator who has been specifically authorized by probate court to make dedication [Prob. Code § 9900(a); Gray v. Magee (1933) 133 Cal. App. 653, 662, 24 P.2d 948] .

2. Ascertain whether effective offer of dedication has already been tendered.

a. Determine whether offer to dedicate land appears in any of following documents:
(1) Deed or other express conveyance.

(2) Correspondence with public body, or in other writing.

(3) Final subdivision map [Gov. Code § 66439(a); see § 30.204].

(4) Recorded map or plat showing land subdivided into defined areas separated by roads or streets [Flavio v. McKenzie (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 549, 553, 32 Cal. Rptr. 535] .

NOTE:
The offer is repeated and reinforced when a landowner sells lots with reference to the recorded map [Tischauser v. City of Newport Beach (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 138, 144, 37 Cal. Rptr. 141] .

(5) Irrevocable offer recorded in same manner as conveyance of real property [Gov. Code § 7050; see § 27A.200].

b. Determine whether dedicator evidenced unequivocal offer to dedicate land by his or her actions.

c. Determine whether dedicator failed to object to or permit public use of coastal property for five years expressly [see Civ. Code § 1009(e), (f); see also §§ 27A.12[5], 27A.203].

d. Determine whether dedicator failed to permit expressly or to take reasonable steps to enjoin, remove, or prohibit public use of land on which government has spent public funds on visible improvements on or across land or on cleaning and maintenance of land related to public use [Civ. Code § 1009(d); see § 27A.12[5]].

3. Confirm status of title to subject land:

a. Check for mortgagees, easement holders, other interest holders of record.

b. Check description of property.

4. Ascertain that all record title holders of subject land have consented to or will join in dedication [see § 27A.100, P 1.c.].

5. Ascertain whether particular subagency, committee, or individual is authorized to handle dedication matters for city or county and, if so:

a. Determine scope of authority of subagency, committee, or individual; and

b. Obtain appropriate addresses and telephone numbers.

6. Determine who will be legal owner of dedicated property.

a. City.

b. County.

c. Subdivider or property owner (if interest dedicated is easement or other nonfee interest).

NOTE:

The public generally acquires a fee title to land dedicated for parks and similar purposes, and acquires an easement in the case of dedications for streets and highways [see, e.g., Morse v. E.A. Robey & Co. (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 464, 467-468, 29 Cal. Rptr. 734 ; Safwenberg v. Marquez (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 301, 307, 123 Cal. Rptr. 405] .

C. Procedural Guide to Dedication

12-27A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 27A.120

§ 27A.120 Offer and Acceptance of Dedication

1. Draft dedication or offer of dedication:

a. If dedication is made pursuant to common law, draft map, deed, grant, or other written dedication or offer to include:

NOTE:
Although a common law offer of dedication must exhibit the grantor's unequivocal intention to make a dedication, the offer need not take any particular form and may even be implied by the grantor's actions [Cherokee Valley Farms, Inc. v. Summerville Elementary Sch. Dist. (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 579, 584-585, 106 Cal. Rptr. 467 ; Greyhound Lines, Inc. v. Public Utilities Com. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 406, 413-414, 67 Cal. Rptr. 97, 438 P.2d 801] . However, an unambiguous written offer and acceptance may serve to avoid future uncertainty and argument over the existence and terms of the dedication. For illustrative deed forms, see Ch. 27, Deeds and Recording . Forms for easements are contained in Ch. 28A, Easements and Licenses.

(1) Legal description of land to be dedicated.

(2) Purpose for which land is dedicated.

(3) Names of dedicator and governmental entity to which offer or dedication is made.

(4) Nature of interest to be transferred:
(a) Fee title.

(b) Fee subject to reversion.

(c) Easement.

(d) Other.

(5) Terms, conditions, and duration of offer or dedication.

b. If offer is made pursuant to Subdivision Map Act [see Gov. Code §§ 66410-66499.37], use statement of dedication in § 30.204.

c. If offer is made pursuant to Gov. Code § 7050, use § 27A.200.

2. Have offer or dedication executed:

a. Obtain certified signatures and acknowledgments from all parties having any record title interest in subject land [Gov. Code §§ 7050, 27287, 27288, 66439(a)].

b. If dedicator is corporation, obtain certified signature and acknowledgment of officer authorized to execute offer or dedication for corporation [Gov. Code §§ 27287, 27288].

3. Present offer or dedication as follows:

a. For offers of dedication other than under Subdivision Map Act, by mailing executed offer or dedication to county recorder's office in county where dedicated land is located [Civ. Code § 1169], along with required payment [see Gov. Code § 27361].

b. For offers made pursuant to Subdivision Map Act [see Gov. Code §§ 66410-66499.37], by filing final map containing executed statement of dedication with appropriate local legislative body [Gov. Code § 66457].

4. Confirm public entity's acceptance of dedication:

a. For common law offers of dedication:

(1) Has public entity to which dedication was offered adopted formal resolution or taken similar official action to accept offer [see Civ. Code § 1009(c); Gov. Code § 7050].

(2) Has public entity to which dedication was offered impliedly accepted express, irrevocable, written offer by commencing maintenance or repair work on subject land or similar action [Ackley v. City Etc. of San Francisco (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 108, 113, 89 Cal. Rptr. 480 ; see Civ. Code § 1009(c)].

(3) Has public tendered acceptance of express, irrevocable, written offer through use of land [Tischauser v. City of Newport Beach (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 138, 145, 37 Cal. Rptr. 141] .

NOTE:
Except in cases involving coastal property or the expenditure of government funds to clean, maintain, or visibly improve the property, an implied acceptance will not be valid if the offer of dedication was not an express, irrevocable offer in writing [Civ. Code § 1009(b)-(e); see § 27A.12[5]].

b. For offers of dedication under Subdivision Map Act [see Gov. Code §§ 66410-66499.37]:

(1) Has public entity to which dedication was offered done following:

(a) Approved final map and made certification or statement of acceptance of dedication on map [Gov. Code § 66477.1(a)]; and

NOTE:
At the time the city or county approves the final map, it must also accept, accept subject to improvement, or reject the offer of dedication [Gov. Code § 66477.1]. If any improvements required by the city or county are not completed by the time the final map is approved, the city or county will require the subdivider to enter into an agreement to either (1) complete the improvements at his or her expense, or (2) initiate and consummate proceedings for the financing and completion of the improvements under an appropriate special assessment act or the Mello-Roos Community Facilities Act of 1982 [Gov. Code § 66462(a); see Gov. Code §§ 53311-53368.3 (Mello-Roos Act)].

(b) Filed resolution of acceptance of map in office of county recorder [Gov. Code § 66477.3].

(c) For dedications other than for open space, parks, or schools, filed certificate of dedication for public purpose in office of county recorder [Gov. Code § 66477.5].

(2) If public entity has not formally accepted offer, do circumstances indicate acceptance under common law [see § 27A.12[1], [5]; see also P 4.a., above].

c. For dedications under Gov. Code § 7050, has city council or county board of supervisors adopted resolution or ordinance accepting offer of dedication [see Gov. Code § 7050; see also § 27A.14].

C. Procedural Guide to Dedication

12-27A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 27A.121

§ 27A.121 Revocation or Termination of Offer of Dedication

1. To revoke common law offer of dedication, prepare one of following and record in county recorder's office in county where dedicated land is located [Civ. Code § 1169]:

NOTE:

An offer of dedication cannot be revoked after it has been accepted [Brick v. Cazaux (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 549, 555, 71 P.2d 588 ; see § 27A.12[4]]. For a common law offer of dedication, any act by the owner of the subject land that is inconsistent with the offer may serve to revoke the offer if the offer has not been accepted [see, e.g., County of Inyo v. Given (1920) 183 Cal. 415, 420, 191 P. 688 (owner built fence across land offered for streets); Henry Cowell Lime & Cement Co. v. State (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 169, 173, 114 P.2d 331 (owner erected buildings on land offered for dock)]. However, to avoid uncertainty and possible title disputes, it is advisable to execute and record a deed or other instrument explicitly revoking the offer.

a. Copy of letter or notice to public entity to which offer was made expressly revoking offer.

b. Deed conveying land to third party in which offer is specifically revoked [see People v. Southern P. R. Co. (1924) 68 Cal. App. 153, 160, 228 P. 726] .

c. Map or plat that is inconsistent with offer that explicitly revokes earlier dedication [see Eltinge v. Santos (1915) 171 Cal. 278, 282-283, 152 P. 915] .

2. Commence action to quiet title if conclusive presumption is established that offer of dedication was not accepted due to satisfaction of all following conditions [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 771.010, 771.020]:

NOTE:

Quiet title actions are discussed in California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 482, Quieting Title (Matthew Bender).

a. Offer made by filing map only;

b. No acceptance of dedication made and recorded within 25 years after map filed;

c. Land not used for purpose for which dedication proposed within 25 years after map filed; and

d. Land sold to third party after map filed, and used as if free of dedication.

3. Regarding termination and abandonment of offers under Subdivision Map Act pursuant to Gov. Code § 66477.2:

a. If offer of dedication for storm drainage easements, public utility easements, streets, paths, alleys, or transit rights of way has been rejected, request that agency to which offer was made consider terminating offer [Gov. Code § 66477.2(a), (c)].

NOTE:

An offer pursuant to Gov. Code § 66477.2(a) remains open indefinitely even after its rejection by the legislative body to which it was submitted, but may be terminated by action of that body in the manner prescribed for summary vacation of streets and highways [Gov. Code § 7050; see Sts. & Hy. Code §§ 8300-8363].

b. Commence action to quiet title if:

NOTE:

Quiet title actions are discussed in California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 482, Quieting Title (Matthew Bender).

(1) Conclusive presumption is established that offer of dedication for storm drainage easements, public utility easements, streets, paths, alleys, or transit rights of way was not accepted [Gov. Code § 66477.2(a); Code Civ. Proc. §§ 771.010, 771.020; see P 2., above].

(2) Offer of dedication for public access to ocean coastline or bay shoreline is deemed abandoned because it was not accepted within three years after approval of final subdivision map [Gov. Code § 66477.2(b), (d)].

(3) Offer of dedication for public access to or easement along public waterway, river, or stream is deemed abandoned because it was not accepted within three years after approval of final subdivision map [Gov. Code § 66477.2(b), (d)].

(4) Offer of dedication for public access to lake or reservoir wholly or partially owned by public agency is deemed abandoned because it was not accepted within five years after approval of final subdivision map [Gov. Code § 66477.2(b), (d)].

4. For statutory offers of dedication for elementary school purposes, request letter from city or county confirming rejection of offer.

NOTE:

Offers of dedication for elementary school purposes terminate automatically if city or county has offered to enter into a binding commitment to accept an offer within 30 days after imposing a dedication requirement [Gov. Code § 66478; see § 27A.13[4]]. However, it is good practice to request a confirming letter for the file.

5. If offer was made pursuant to Gov. Code § 7050 and has not yet been accepted, request that agency to which offer was made consider terminating offer.

NOTE:

An offer pursuant to Gov. Code § 7050 is irrevocable by the offeror, but may be terminated by action of the local agency in the manner prescribed for summary vacation of streets and highways [Gov. Code § 7050; see Sts. & Hy. Code §§ 8300-8363].

§ 27A.122 Preventing Implied Dedication of Private Coastal Property

1. Advise property owner to take one of following actions to protect private property used by public from implied dedication to public use:

NOTE:

Unless the property owner takes one of the actions discussed below, public use of lands lying within 1,000 yards inland of the mean high tide line of the Pacific Ocean or any harbor, estuary, bay, or inlet of that ocean may confer on the public a vested right to continue to use the property in that way, under the theory of implied dedication [Civ. Code § 1009(e); see § 27A.12[5]]. Property lying inland of the Carquinez Straits Bridge, or between the mean high tide line and the nearest public road or highway, whichever distance is less, is not affected by these rules [Civ. Code § 1009(e)].

a. Post prescribed signs at each entrance to property or at intervals of not more than 200 feet along boundary of property, and renew at least once a year if removed [Civ. Code §§ 1008, 1009(f)(1)]; or

NOTE:

The signs must read substantially as follows: "Right to pass by permission, and subject to control, of owner. Section 1008, Civil Code." [Civ. Code § 1009(f)(1); see § 28A.236].

b. Publish annually, in newspaper of general circulation in county or counties in which subject land is located, notice describing property and containing above-described language [Civ. Code § 1009(f)(1); see Gov. Code § 6066];

c. Record, in any county in which any part of subject land is situated, description of property and notice as provided by Civ. Code § 813 [Civ. Code § 1009(f)(2)]; or

NOTE:

The notice must read substantially as follows: "The right of the public or any person to make any use whatsoever of the above described land or any portion thereof (other than any use expressly allowed by a written or recorded map, agreement, deed or dedication) is by permission, and subject to control, of owner: Section 813, Civil Code." [Civ. Code §§ 813, 1009(f)(2); see § 28A.235].

d. Execute written agreement with any federal, state, or local agency providing for public use of subject property [Civ. Code § 1009(f)(3); see § 27A.203].

2. Advise client that he or she may restrict time, place, and manner of public use permitted on land, but that restrictions must be reasonable [Civ. Code § 1009(g)].

3. Advise client that after taking any of these actions, he or she cannot prevent permitted public use by physically obstructing access to property or by other means [Civ. Code § 1009(f)].

4. If client wishes to revoke notice recorded under Civ. Code § 813 [see P 1c., above], prepare and file notice of revocation in same county in which original notice was filed [Civ. Code § 813].

5. If client wishes to revoke permission granted by posting of signs, instruct client to remove signs and replace with "No Trespassing" signs [see Civ. Code § 1009(f)].

6. If client wishes to revoke permission granted by published notice, instruct client to post on property or publish in newspaper of general circulation in county or counties in which subject land is located notice revoking permission [see Civ. Code § 1009(f); Gov. Code § 6066].

PART IV. FORMS

12-27A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 27A.200

§ 27A.200 Irrevocable Offer of Dedication for Street, Highway, or Other Public Purpose [Gov. Code § 7050; Civ. Code § 1009(c)]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is an irrevocable offer of dedication of real property to a local government pursuant to Gov. Code § 7050. Under that statute, property may be dedicated for any public purpose. For example, an owner may offer to dedicate land for streets, highways, paths, alleys, drainage, open space, parks, or other public places, or may offer to dedicate access rights, abutters' rights, or public utility or other public easements [Gov. Code § 7050; see Civ. Code § 1009(c)].

The method of dedication provided in Gov. Code § 7050 is a procedure that may be used in place of any other available dedication procedure. For discussion of alternative methods of dedication, see § 27A.12. For an offer of dedication pursuant to the Subdivision Map Act [Gov. Code § 66410 et seq.], which appears as a statement on the final map for the subdivision development [Gov. Code § 66439(a)], see Ch. 30, Subdivision Regulation .

[b] Use of Form for Common Law Offer

The form in [2], below, may also be used as a common law offer of dedication, in which case the offer need not be made irrevocable. For discussion of common law offers of dedication, see § 27A.12[2].

[c] Public Easements

As an alternative to dedication, local ordinances may authorize the creation of public easements on private lands for specified purposes [see Gov. Code §§ 65870-65875]. For a discussion of these easements, see Ch. 28A, Easements and Licenses .

[d] Dedication Procedure

An offer of dedication made pursuant to Gov. Code § 7050 must be made with the consent of the city, county, or city and county in which the subject property is located. The offer must be executed, acknowledged, and recorded in that county, in the same manner as a conveyance of real property [Civ. Code § 1169; Gov. Code § 7050; see Gov. Code § 27361 (recording fee)]. On recordation in the office of the county recorder, the offer is irrevocable and may be accepted at any time by the governing body of the city or county in which the property is located at the time of acceptance. The offer may be terminated and the right to accept the offer abandoned by the appropriate governing body pursuant to the procedure used for the summary vacation of streets and highways [Gov. Code § 7050; see Sts. & Hy. Code § 8300 et seq.].

[e] Parties to Offer

No one can dedicate property that he or she does not own, and a dedication or an offer of dedication is not binding on nonconsenting parties who own interests in the affected land [City of Eureka v. McKay & Co. (1899) 123 Cal. 666, 671, 56 P. 439] . Thus for an offer of dedication to be effective, any cotenants, holders of prior recorded easements or security interests [see Archer v. Salinas City (1892) 93 Cal. 43, 44, 28 P. 839] should be made parties to the offer. If the affected property is community property or subject to declaration of homestead [see Ch. 27B, Homesteads], both spouses should be made parties to the offer.

If this offer of dedication involves property in which interests are held by any parties other than the principal offeror, the name, nature of interest held, and signature of each other party should be included in the form. An optional "Consents" section has been provided for this purpose.

[f] Liability for Maintaining Street or Highway

A city or county does not become liable for maintaining a street or highway until and unless its governing body (or its designee) has caused the street to be accepted into the city or county system [Sts. & Hy. Code §§ 941 (county highway), 1806 (city street)]. Conditional acceptance of a subdivision map does not make the dedicated streets shown on the map public roads with a consequent obligation on the part of the city or county to maintain them. The governing body of the city or county must take appropriate affirmative action to make the streets a part of the city or county system [County of Kern v. Edgemont Dev. Corp. (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 874, 879, 35 Cal. Rptr. 629 ; see Union Transp. Co. v. Sacramento County (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 235, 244, 267 P.2d 10 (prior law provided for tort liability if city or county had taken some official action consistent with acceptance of dedication)].

[g] Protection of Property Owners Not Making Offer of Dedication

Before 1971, if members of the public used private property for a period of over five years with the full knowledge of the owner, without asking or receiving permission to do so, and without objection by anyone, that use could confer on the public a vested right to continue to use the property permanently, on the theory of implied dedication [Smith v. Kraintz (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 696, 700-701, 20 Cal. Rptr. 471] . A finding of implied dedication could also be made if the period of use was less than five years [Gunn v. Fontes (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 351, 355-356, 306 P.2d 928] , on proof of the owner's actual consent to the dedication [see Gion v. Santa Cruz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 29, 38, 84 Cal. Rptr. 162, 465 P.2d 50] . Certain methods of avoiding an implied dedication, such as the recording of a notice of consent to use the property [Civ. Code § 813; see § 28A.234] or the posting of signs on the property to bar prescriptive rights [Civ. Code § 1008; see § 28A.236], were available to landowners.

More effective protection came with the 1971 enactment of Civ. Code § 1009, which provides that regardless of whether a private property owner has recorded a notice of consent or posted signs, no use of his or her property by the public will ever ripen into a permanent dedication in favor of the public or a governmental body unless the owner tenders an express, written, irrevocable offer of dedication of the property and that offer is accepted by the county, city, or other public body to which it is made [Civ. Code § 1009(b)]. This irrevocable offer of dedication may be made by using this form [Civ. Code § 1009(c)].

The above-described provisions for protecting private property from implied dedication to public use do not apply to certain situations involving private land visibly improved or maintained by a governmental entity for over five years [Civ. Code § 1009(d)], or to certain coastal property [Civ. Code § 1009(e)]. For discussion of the protections available to owners under these circumstances, see §§ 27A.12[5] and 27A.122.

PART IV. FORMS

12-27A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 27A.201

§ 27A.201 Agreement Between Landowner and City for Deferment of Public Street Improvement Work

[1] Comment--Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is an agreement between a landowner/dedicator and a city to defer construction of improvements to land dedicated for public street purposes. In certain cases, a developer may be required to provide street improvements, in addition to dedication of land for street purposes, as a condition to approval of a development by the city or county in which the development is located. If the area is not sufficiently developed at the time of the dedication and approval to require the immediate installation of the improvements, the developer may enter into an agreement with the city or county to defer the improvements until such time as the city or county determines that they are necessary. This type of agreement may be advantageous to the developer, since it postpones the large capital outlay generally required for public street improvements. The following form is typical of the type of agreements in use, and was adapted from a form used by the City of Lafayette.

For a form of offer of dedication for street or highway purposes, see § 27A.200. For a form of agreement between a subdivider and city for construction of subdivision improvements such as streets, sidewalks, sewers, utilities, and related facilities, see § 30.200. That agreement would be executed by the parties prior to their execution of this deferment form, and would include a description of the improvements that are the subject of this form [see P C of this form].

3. Right of City to Complete Improvements

4. If Property Owner fails to construct the improvements within the 90-day period, City may complete the improvements and assess the cost as a lien against the described real property. PART IV. FORMS

12-27A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 27A.202

§ 27A.202 Agreement Between Landowner and City for Installation and Maintenance of Landscaping

[1] Comment--Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is an agreement in which a landowner, as a condition of the issuance of a building or related permit by a city or other governmental entity, agrees to install and maintain landscaping on the property in conformance with plans approved by the city or other governmental entity. Although an agreement by a landowner to construct and maintain improvements on his or her own property is not strictly a dedication of land, this type of agreement is similar to dedication because the landowner agrees to the imposition of a covenant on his or her land that is intended to provide a public benefit. The effect of the agreement is thus similar to the effect that would be achieved if the governmental entity required the landowner to dedicate a strip of land on which landscaping could be installed. The principal difference is that under the type of agreement illustrated by this form, the landowner retains title to the land but must pay the costs of installing and maintaining the landscaping.

This form was adapted from a form used by the City of Lafayette.

[2] Form

Agreement Between Landowner and City for Installation and Maintenance of Landscaping

AGREEMENT FOR INSTALLATION AND MAINTENANCE OF LANDSCAPING

This Agreement is entered into on _____[date], between _____[name of property owner] ("Property Owner"), and the City of _____, a municipal corporation ("City").

Recitals

A. Property Owner is the owner of real property in the City of _____described as follows: _____[insert legal description];

B. On _____[date], City granted a _____[permit or approval] to Property Owner in accordance with City's zoning ordinance;

C. By the terms of the _____[permit or approval], Property Owner is required to install and maintain landscaping in accordance with a plan approved by City on _____[date], a copy of which is on file in City's office;

D. Both parties recognize that the installation and maintenance of landscaping is an integral part of Property Owner's plan for development of the property and is necessary to carry out the purpose and intent of City's land use regulations and that the development would not have been approved by City without the assurance that this Agreement would be executed by Property Owner.

THEREFORE, THE PARTIES AGREE as follows:

Purpose

1. The purpose of this Agreement is to assure (a) installation of the landscaping in accordance with the landscaping plan previously approved by City and (b) continued maintenance and care of the landscaping.

Property Subject to Agreement

2. The property that is the subject of this Agreement is described in Paragraph A of the recitals above, and is commonly known as _____[insert street address, if any].

City Proceedings

3. Reference is made to the _____[specify nature] proceedings conducted by the City (File No. _____) and the landscaping plan for the property, copies of which are on file in the City Office at _____[address].

Landscaping as Benefit

4. Property Owner agrees that the landscaping that _____[he/she/it] is obligated to provide will materially benefit the property and is necessary to comply with the _____[permit or approval] conditions imposed by City as a requirement of the development of the property.

Duty to Maintain Landscaping

5. Property Owner shall diligently maintain and care for the landscaping that _____[he/she/it] installs, using generally accepted methods of cultivation and watering. Property Owner shall maintain that standard of care necessary to prevent the landscaping from deteriorating to the extent that its value as landscaping is destroyed.

City Maintenance of Landscaping

6. If Property Owner fails to meet the standard of maintenance necessary to keep the landscaping in a healthy condition, City will give written notice of the deficiency to Property Owner who shall have 20 days to make the necessary correction. If the correction is not made within 20 days, City may elect to take the steps necessary to assure that the landscaping is maintained and cared for. To do this, City shall serve a notice of its intent to enter the premises for this purpose. City shall either personally serve the notice upon Property Owner or mail a copy of it by certified mail to Property Owner's last known address, or as shown on the tax rolls, at least 15 days in advance of the date when it intends to enter the premises.

For this purpose, City may enter on the property and perform such work as it considers reasonably necessary and proper to restore and maintain the landscaping. City may act either through its own employees or through an independent contractor.

Maintenance Costs as Lien

7. If City incurs costs in restoring or maintaining the landscaping after following the procedure set forth in Paragraph 6 above, City shall make demand upon Property Owner for payment. If Property Owner fails to pay the costs incurred by City within 30 days of the date demand is made, City may make the costs a lien upon the described real property by recording a notice that it has incurred expenses under the terms of this Agreement with the County Recorder of _____ County. The notice shall state the fact that City has incurred the costs under the terms of this Agreement and shall state the amount, together with the fact that it is unpaid and draws interest at the rate of 7 percent per year until paid.

Additional Remedies

8. City may as an alternative to the lien procedure set forth above in Paragraph 7 bring legal action to collect the sums due as the result of the making of expenditures for restoration and maintenance of the landscaping. Property Owner agrees that if legal action by City is necessary to collect the amount expended by City, Property Owner agrees to pay City a reasonable sum as attorneys' fees and court costs, together with interest from the date that is 30 days after City has given its notice under Paragraph 6 above.

Notices

9. Notice given by each party to this Agreement shall be given to the other party at the address shown below.

Notices to City shall be addressed to the City of _____, at _____[address].

Notices to Property Owner shall be addressed to _____[him/her/it] at _____[address].

When Property Owner ceases to be the owner, _____[he/she/it] may file with City a notice to that effect containing the name and address of the new owner and a copy of the deed. On Property Owner's filing of this information with City, the subsequent grantee is charged with the obligations under this Agreement.

Miscellaneous Provisions

10. (a) If any provision of this Agreement is adjudged invalid, the remaining provisions shall not be affected.

(b) Notice to Property Owner shall be considered to have been given to Property Owner when sent to _____[his or her or its] address above stated.

(c) This writing contains a full, final, and exclusive statement of the Agreement of the parties.

(d) Property Owner appoints City as its attorney-in-fact to do all acts and things that City considers necessary to restore or maintain the landscaping installed under the _____[specify nature] proceedings.

(e) If there is more than one signer of this Agreement as Property Owner, their obligations are joint and several.

(f) The obligations on Property Owner under this Agreement terminate as to _____[him/her/it] personally when Property Owner conveys _____[his/her/its] interest in the property and files for record with the County Recorder a copy of assignment of this Agreement. In such case, the new owner takes title subject to the requirements of this Agreement.

Covenants Run With Land

11. The covenants in this Agreement pertain to and run with the real property described above. This Agreement binds the successors in interest of each of the parties.

Additional Security

12. If, either upon the execution of this Agreement or during the course of performance, City considers that it is necessary to have Property Owner post additional security to guarantee the performance of _____[his/her/its] obligations hereunder, City may require Property Owner to post additional security.

City may require either a cash deposit or a surety bond guaranteeing performance in a form and signed by sureties satisfactory to City. The condition of the security shall be that if Property Owner fails to perform _____[his/her/its] obligations under this Agreement, City may, in the case of a cash bond act for Property Owner using the proceeds, or in the case of a surety bond require the sureties to perform the obligations of this Agreement.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties have executed this Agreement on the date first above written.

PART IV. FORMS

12-27A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 27A.203

§ 27A.203 Agreement Between Coastal Landowner and Agency Providing for Public Use of Land

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is an agreement between an owner of coastal property and a federal, state, or local agency, providing for public use of the owner's property. Public use of privately owned coastal property may ripen over time to confer a vested public right in the property [Civ. Code § 1009(a), (e); County of Los Angeles v. Berk (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 201, 213-215, 161 Cal. Rptr. 742, 605 P.2d 381] . An owner of coastal property may prevent this implied dedication by expressly permitting the public use of the property.

One of the ways in which this may be accomplished is by a written agreement between the landowner and any federal, state, or local agency providing for public use of the property [Civ. Code § 1009(f)(3)]. The agreement may include reasonable restrictions on the time, place, and manner of public use. No use in violation of these restrictions will be considered public use for purposes of finding an implied dedication [Civ. Code § 1009(g)].

For further discussion of implied dedications of land, see § 27A.12[5].

[b] Coastal Property

For purposes of the law governing implied dedication of coastal property, coastal property is property that lies within 1,000 yards inland of the mean high tide line of the Pacific Ocean or any harbor, estuary, bay, or inlet of the Pacific Ocean. Property lying inland of the Carquinez Straits Bridge, or between the mean high tide line and the nearest public road or highway, whichever distance is less, is not included in this definition [Civ. Code § 1009(e)].

[c] Indemnification

This agreement contains a provision under which the public agency agrees to indemnify the property owner for any liability he or she might incur in connection with the permitted public use. For a discussion of indemnity agreements in general, see Ch. 79, Suretyship, Guaranty, and Indemnity [see also Civ. Code §§ 2772-2784.5 (indemnity)].

[d] Recording

This agreement is entitled to be recorded in the county in which the subject property is located, as an instrument affecting title to real property [Gov. Code § 27280(a); see Gov. Code §§ 27287 (acknowledgment requirement), 27361 (fees)].

Owner shall not prevent by physical obstruction, notice, or otherwise, any public use that is appropriate under the permission as granted and restricted under this Agreement.

Limitation of Owner's Liability; Indemnity by Agency

3. Owner accepts no responsibility for property damage, personal injury, or death resulting from public use of the Property, whether that use is in conformance with or in violation of the restrictions described in Paragraph 2, above. This chapter covers the exemption of homesteads from the enforcement of money judgments [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 704.710-704.850; see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 704.910-704.995]. It focuses on the procedures that must be followed by persons asserting the exemption, and also examines in detail the preparation and uses of the optional homestead declaration. The Transaction Guide briefly outlines the methods for contesting and defending a claimed exemption. However, because litigation-related matters are generally beyond the scope of this publication, the reader should refer to California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 294, Homesteads (Matthew Bender), for a more detailed discussion of litigation relating to the homestead exemption.

This chapter does not discuss the probate homestead, which provides for the selection by a probate court of property to be used by a surviving spouse and minor children [see Prob. Code §§ 6520-6528]. For a detailed discussion of the probate homestead, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 449, Probate: Exempt Personal Property and Probate Homesteads (Matthew Bender).

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-27B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 27B.20

§ 27B.20 Nature of Homestead Exemption

Unless specifically exempted by statute, all property of a judgment debtor is subject to enforcement of a money judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 695.010(a)]. Property that qualifies as the debtor's "homestead" is one type of property that is exempt from the enforcement of these judgments [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.720(a)]. For purposes of the homestead exemption, the term "homestead" refers to the principal dwelling of a judgment debtor or a judgment debtor's spouse [see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710(c); see § 27B.22[1], [2]]. The policy underlying all homestead legislation is to provide a place where family members may reside and enjoy the comforts of a home, free from any anxiety that it may be taken from them against their will because of the homeowner's economic misfortune [see Johnson v. Brauner (1955) 131 Cal. App. 2d 713, 719, 281 P.2d 50 (citations omitted); see also Schoenfeld v. Norberg (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 496, 498, 72 Cal. Rptr. 924] . Courts liberally construe the homestead statutes to achieve this underlying purpose [Amin v. Khazindar (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 582, 588, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 224 ; Bank of California v. Virtue & Scheck, Inc. (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 1026, 1033-1034, 190 Cal. Rptr. 54 ; Schoenfeld v. Norberg (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 755, 764, 90 Cal. Rptr. 47 ; see Hitt v. Glass (In re Glass) (9th Cir. BAP 1994) 164 B.R. 759, 764 , aff'd, (9th Cir. 1995) 60 F.3d 565] .

The homestead exemption is not a common law doctrine, but is based on a provision of the California Constitution that requires the Legislature to enact laws to protect a certain portion of the homestead and other property of all heads of families from forced sale [Cal. Const., art. XX, § 1.5]. The Legislature has implemented this constitutional requirement with the homestead exemption [see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730].

The homestead exemption applies to all procedures for enforcement of a money judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.010(a)]. However, it does not apply to enforcement of a judgment for the foreclosure of a mortgage, deed of trust, or other lien or encumbrance on the property, other than enforcement or attachment liens [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.010(b); see Spencer v. Lowery (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1636, 1638-1639, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 795 (sale proceeds from nonjudicial foreclosure are not exempt from execution to satisfy money judgment; further court disagreed with In re Cole (9th Cir. BAP 1988) 93 B.R. 707, 709 , which applied homestead exemption erroneously to all forced sales, even sale under consensual deed of trust); see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 695.010-709.030 (enforcement liens), 481.010-493.060 (attachment liens); In re Mulch (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 1995) 182 B.R. 569, 573; but see § 27B.23[1] (regarding recording of homestead declaration)]. Purported contractual or other prior waivers of the exemption are void because they contradict public policy, except for waivers by failure to claim an exemption required to be claimed or otherwise made at the time enforcement is sought [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.040]. Recordation of a homestead declaration is not a prerequisite to claiming the exemption and does not affect the amount of the exemption or the right of levy pursuant to a writ of execution on a dwelling [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.970(b)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Advantages of Declared Homestead. Declared and automatic homesteads are very separate protections. A declared homestead is more advantageous than an automatic homestead because (1) the homeowner is entitled to the exemption on a voluntary sale of the dwelling, with the proceeds remaining exempt for six months so the homeowner can reinvest the proceeds into another residence, and (2) its protections survive the death of the homestead owner [see In re Mulch (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 1995) 182 B.R. 569, 573 ; In re Anderson (9th Cir. 1987) 824 F.2d 754, 756] . William M. Hensley

The right to convey or encumber a homestead is also unaffected by the making or recording of a homestead declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.940; see § 27B.23; see also §§ 27B.200-27B.202 (forms of declaration)].

§ 27B.21 Amount of Homestead Exemption

The amount of the homestead exemption is $75,000 for most unmarried individuals [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730(a)(1)]. This amount is increased to $100,000 if the judgment debtor or his or her spouse who resides in the homestead is, at the time of the attempted sale of the homestead, a member of a family unit, and at least one member of the family unit owns no interest or only a community property interest with the judgment debtor in the homestead [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730(a)(2)]. The amount is increased to $175,000 if the judgment debtor or the debtor's spouse who resides in the homestead is, at the time of the attempted sale of the homestead, either (1) at least 65 years old or (2) physically or mentally disabled and, as a result of that disability, unable to engage in substantial gainful employment [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730(a)(3)(A), (B)]. The $175,000 exemption amount also applies if the judgment debtor or the debtor's spouse who resides in the homestead is, at the time of an attempted involuntary sale of the homestead, at least 55 years old and has a gross annual income of not more than $15,000 if single or $20,000 (including spouse's income) if married [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730(a)(3)(C)].

For purposes of the homestead exemption, a "family unit" consists of a judgment debtor and his or her spouse, or either one of those spouses plus a dependent relative [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710(b); see § 27B.110, P 3(a)(1) (statutory definition of "family unit")].

The combined homestead exemptions of spouses on the same judgment cannot exceed $100,000 or $175,000, whichever is applicable (see discussion above), regardless of whether the spouses are jointly obligated on the judgment or whether the homestead consists of community or separate property or both. If both spouses are entitled to a homestead exemption, the exemption of proceeds of the homestead will be apportioned between the spouses on the basis of their proportionate interests in the homestead [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730(b)].

PRACTICE TIP:

The statutory limitations could produce a better result for two unmarried persons living together than for spouses similarly situated. If two unmarried persons were living together and were jointly obligated on a judgment, then each could be entitled to a separate homestead exemption of $75,000 on the judgment [

Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730(a)(1)], resulting in a total exemption of $150,000 for the household. However, if the debtors were married to each other, then the combined exemption for the couple would be limited to $100,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730(a)(2), (b)] except in a special case in which the $175,000 exemption could be applied [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730(a)(3), (b)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-27B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 27B.22

§ 27B.22 Property Covered by Homestead Exemption

[1] "Dwelling" Defined

As mentioned in § 27B.20, a homestead is the principal dwelling of a judgment debtor or a judgment debtor's spouse [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710(c); see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710(d) ("spouse" defined)]. For the purposes of this definition, "dwelling" means a place where a person resides and may include, but is not limited to, any of the following places [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710(a)]:

- A house or mobilehome, together with the outbuildings and the land on which they are situated;
- A boat or other waterborne vessel;
- A condominium [see Civ. Code § 783 (definition)];
- A planned development [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 11003; Civ. Code § 1351(k) (definition)];
- A stock cooperative [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 11003.2; Civ. Code § 1351(m) (definition)]; or
- A community apartment project [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 11004; Civ. Code § 1351(d) (definition)].

The use of the phrase "natural person" in Code Civ. Proc. § 704.740(a) ("the interest of a natural person in a dwelling may not be sold under this division to enforce a money judgment except pursuant to a court order for sale obtained under this article and the dwelling exemption shall be determined under this article") makes clear that the homestead exemption does not apply to the sale of an interest in a dwelling owned by a corporation or other artificial person. Thus, in one case the defendant was not entitled to claim an exemption because he had transferred ownership of the property to a corporation of which he was the sole shareholder [California Coastal Commission v. Allen, (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 322, 329, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 906] .

[2] Residency Requirement

A dwelling may not qualify as a homestead unless the judgment debtor or the debtor's spouse resides in the dwelling continuously from the date the judgment creditor's lien attaches to the dwelling until the date of a court determination that the dwelling is a homestead [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710(c)]. Thus, the judgment debtor may not move into a dwelling and claim a homestead exemption in connection with a preexisting lien. An exception to this rule is discussed in § 27B.22[3].

In a rather unique factual situation, California's homestead law was applied extraterritorially to allow a California bankrupt to claim a homestead on a residence located in Michigan. The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed a bankruptcy court decision holding that Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710(a) does not limit the "homestead" to dwellings situated in the State of California. Because the bankrupt was in California for the longer portion of the 180-day period before his bankruptcy petition filing, the debtor was allowed to use the California homestead exemption for his Michigan residence [Arrol v. Broach (In re Arrol) (9th Cir. 1999) 170 F.3d 934, 936-937 , affirming (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 1997) 207 B.R. 662, 664-667].

A judgment debtor may not establish the dwelling exemption under Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710(c) if the debtor moves into the claimed homestead after creation of a judgment lien or after levy [Gonzalez v. Toews (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 977, 984, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434 (citation omitted)].

If a judgment debtor is not currently residing in the homestead, but his or her separated or former spouse continues to reside in or exercise control over possession of the homestead, that judgment debtor continues to be entitled to a homestead exemption until entry of judgment or other legally enforceable agreement dividing the community property between the judgment debtor and the separated or former spouse, or until a later time as specified by court order. Nevertheless, the judgment debtor is not entitled to more than one exempt homestead [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.720(d) (further providing that notwithstanding Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710(d), for purposes of automatic homestead exemption, "spouse" may include separated or former spouse consistent with this subdivision)].

A person who resided elsewhere while retaining the right to be temporarily present in a room in the residential property he owned when he was in the area did not meet the continuous residence requirement for a principal dwelling under section 704.710 [California Coastal Commission v. Allen, (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 322, 331, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 906] .

[3] Exemption of Proceeds

If a homestead is sold in an execution sale [see § 27B.25[1]] or is damaged, destroyed, or acquired for public use, then any proceeds received from the sale or for indemnification or compensation are exempt in the amount of the homestead exemption for a period of six months after they are received by the judgment debtor [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.720(b)]. A martial dissolution judgment resulting in a prepetition bankruptcy sale of the homestead to divide community assets is considered a forced sale entitling a bankrupt debtor to an automatic homestead exemption in the sale proceeds [In re Cumberbatch (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2003) 302 B.R. 675, 680-681] .

If the exempt proceeds are used toward the acquisition of a dwelling within this exemption period, the newly acquired dwelling will be a homestead if it is the principal dwelling in which the judgment debtor or the debtor's spouse resided continuously from the date of acquisition until the date of the court determination that the dwelling qualifies as a homestead, whether or not an abstract or certified copy of a judgment was recorded to create a judgment lien before the second dwelling was acquired [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710(c)]. Alternatively, if the debtor does not reinvest the proceeds in a new homestead, but instead applies a homestead exemption to other property belonging to the debtor or to the debtor's spouse (such as a boat that either spouse already owns) during the six-month exemption period, then the proceeds from the first homestead will immediately lose their exempt status [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.720(b)].

Proceeds from the voluntary sale of a regular homestead do not qualify for the exemptions above. However, an exemption is available for proceeds received from the voluntary sale of a declared homestead [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.960(a); see § 27B.25].

[4] Impact of Bankruptcy Filing on Homestead Exemption

The filing of a bankruptcy petition is the functional equivalent of a forced or involuntary sale under California law, which means a judgment debtor/bankrupt has the rights, benefits, and protections of California's automatic homestead provisions. Practically speaking, the result is that the homestead trumps the judgment lien so that the debtor's exemption is deducted from the sale proceeds. Even if no execution sale occurs, the bankrupt judgment debtor is entitled to the benefit of the homestead through bankruptcy lien avoidance statutory provisions. The forced sale fiction results because bankruptcy law treats the bankruptcy petition filing as a hypothetical attempt by the trustee to levy on the property [Katz v. Pike (In re Pike) (9th Cir. BAP 1999) 243 B.R. 66, 70 ; In re Mulch (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 1995) 182 B.R. 569, 574 ; In re Donaldson (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 1993) 156 B.R. 51, 53-54] .

[5] Protection of Homestead in Bankruptcy Through Lien Avoidance

The Bankruptcy Code allows a bankrupt judgment debtor to avoid the fixing of a judgment creditor's lien that impairs the debtor's homestead exemption [11 U.S.C. § 522(f)(1)]. 11 U.S.C. § 522(f) allows a debtor to avoid a judicial lien even though the debtor recorded a homestead declaration after creation of the judicial lien [Katz v. Pike (In re Pike) (9th Cir. BAP 1999) 243 B.R. 66, 71-73 ; In re Baxter (9th Cir. BAP 1982) 19 B.R. 674, 675] .

Bankruptcy law provides a mathematical formula to determine whether a lien impairs an exemption [Katz v. Pike (In re Pike) (9th Cir. BAP 1999)243 B.R. 66, 71] . The formula for calculation of the extent to which a lien impairs an exemption is as follows: add the judicial lien, all other liens on the property, and the amount of the homestead exemption the debtor could claim assuming there were no liens on the property, and then subtract from that aggregate sum the value of the debtor's interest in the property absent any liens [11 U.S.C. § 522(f)(2)]. One then compares the impairment amount against the judicial lien; if the judicial lien is less than the impairment amount, the lien is avoidable in its entirety [Bank of Am. Nat'l Trust & Sav. Ass'n v. Hanger (In re Hanger) (9th Cir. BAP 1997) 217 B.R. 592, 595 , aff'd, (9th Cir. 1999) 196 F.3d 1292] .

The homestead exemption protects exempted property in a bankruptcy proceeding from certain nondischargeable debts (such as fraud judgment liens) but does not protect the exemption from liens for taxes, alimony, maintenance or support, or debts incurred in connection with educational financial assistance fraud [11 U.S.C. §§ 522(c), 523]. However, the exempted property in § 522(c) means only the property subject to the applicable amount of the homestead exemption, with the judgment creditor being able to attach its lien to any nonexempt equity in the real property [S & C Home Loans, Inc. v. Farr (In re Farr), 278 B.R. 171, 178-179] .

§ 27B.23 Homestead Declaration

[1] Recording Declaration

A homeowner may select a dwelling in which he or she, or his or her spouse, resides as a declared homestead by recording a homestead declaration in the office of the county recorder of the county where the dwelling is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.920]. Although recordation of a homestead declaration does not affect the availability or amount of the exemption [see § 27B.20], it qualifies the declared homestead for special treatment in connection with the assertion of the exemption.

PRACTICE TIP:

Homestead Declaration Filed Post-Bankruptcy. Judgment debtors need to timely record their declared homestead paperwork. A declaration of homestead recorded after the homeowners file a bankruptcy petition is a nullity [In re Halub (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 1982) 25 B.R. 617, 619, n.1 ; In re Myers (Bankr. E.D. Cal. 1982) 17 B.R. 410, 411] . William M. Hensley

The primary advantage of recording a homestead declaration is to guarantee that the proceeds of a voluntary sale of a declared homestead will be exempt from the enforcement of money judgments in the amount of the homestead exemption [see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730] for a period of six months after the sale [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.960(a)]. This exemption is particularly significant because forced sales of dwellings are rare because of the burdensome procedural requirements [see § 27B.25]. Only declared homesteads are eligible for this exemption [see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.960].

If the proceeds from the sale of a declared homestead are invested in a new dwelling within six months after the date of a voluntary sale, or within six months after the receipt of proceeds of an execution sale, insurance proceeds, or other indemnification for damage or destruction, the homeowner may select the new dwelling as a declared homestead by recording a homestead declaration within the applicable six-month period. The new homestead declaration will have the same effect as if it had been recorded at the time the prior declaration was recorded [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.960(b)]. Thus, the attachment to the new dwelling of any lien created after the date of recordation of the first declaration will be severely limited [see [2], below].

This exemption for proceeds from a declared homestead differs from the exemption available to undeclared homesteads in two ways. First, the proceeds from a voluntary sale of an undeclared homestead do not qualify for an exemption. Second, the exempt status of the proceeds of a declared homestead is not terminated if a homestead exemption is applied to other property of the judgment debtor or the debtor's spouse during the six-month exemption period [see § 27B.22[3]].

Another reason for recording a homestead declaration is to limit the extent to which a subsequently recorded judgment lien will attach to the declared homestead. Specifically, a judgment lien will only attach to the surplus value of a declared homestead over the total of the following: (1) all liens and encumbrances on the declared homestead at the time the abstract of judgment or certified copy of the judgment is recorded to create the judgment lien, and (2) the homestead exemption [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.950(c); but see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.950(b) (no limitations on attachment of judgment lien on judgment for child, family, or spousal support)].

One court has held that Code Civ. Proc. § 704.950(c) determines the extent to which a judgment lien attaches to a declared homestead even in a proceeding other than that to enforce a money judgment, notwithstanding the general rule that the homestead exemption does not apply in other such proceedings [see discussion of the general rule in § 27B.20]. Specifically, the court held that Code Civ. Proc. § 704.950(c) applied to reduce, by the amount of the applicable homestead exemption, the extent to which a judgment lien attached to a declared homestead, for the purpose of determining the amount of excess proceeds to which the judgment lienholder was entitled to receive following a senior lienholder's nonjudicial foreclosure sale of the declared property [see Smith v. James A. Merrill, Inc. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 94, 101-102, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108] . By contrast, the owner of an undeclared homestead may not claim the exemption in a nonjudicial foreclosure sale [Spencer v. Lowery (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1636, 1638-1639, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 795] . To the extent this distinction is valid, it provides another practical advantage to having a declared homestead: since a junior judgment lienholder is precluded from recovering excess proceeds from a nonjudicial foreclosure sale up to the amount of the exemption, these proceeds will go to the declared homestead owner (unless there are other junior emcumbrancers) [see Smith v. James A. Merrill, Inc. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 94, 96-98, 100-102, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108] .

[2] Effect of Recorded Lien on Exemption Amount

For purposes of the statutory provisions governing the exemption of proceeds from the sale of a declared homestead and the attachment of a judgment lien to the "surplus value" of a declared homestead [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 704.950(c), 704.960; see also § 27B.23[1]], the amount of the homestead exemption depends on the date on which the judgment lien is recorded. If a homestead declaration is recorded before the operative date of an amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730 [see § 27B.21] that increases the amount of the homestead exemption, the amount of the exemption is ordinarily increased automatically to the new statutory amount. However, if a judgment creditor obtained a lien on the declared homestead before the operative date of the amendment, the pre-amendment exemption amount applies [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.965]. These general rules apply to any amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730 that increases the amount of the homestead exemption [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.965].

[3] When Surplus Arises After Lien Is Recorded

A judgment creditor may reach surplus equity that develops in a declared homestead after the judgment lien is recorded, although there is disagreement as to when the judgment lien attaches. The law has just recently become consistent on allowing a creditor to attach surplus equity in a declared homestead. In an earlier 1997 decision, the Ninth Circuit, in the context of a bankruptcy proceeding, interpreted Code Civ. Proc. § 704.950(c) to mean that, if there is no surplus equity at the time a judgment lien is recorded, the lien does not attach to the declared homestead at that time, and cannot attach to it thereafter [In re Jones (9th Cir. 1997) 106 F.3d 923, 927] . A California appellate court subsequently declined to follow this federal interpretation of California law, holding instead that even if a judgment lien does not attach to a declared homestead initially, because there is no surplus equity, it may nevertheless attach later, when and if a surplus develops, and the judgment creditor subsequently may reach this surplus [Teaman v. Wilkinson (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1259, 1264-1266, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 705] . Another panel of the court of appeal has taken a still different approach, holding that a judgment lien attaches when the abstract of judgment is recorded, but the amount of the lien is limited to the amount of surplus, if any, at the time the judgment creditor attempts to enforce the lien [Smith v. James A. Merrill, Inc. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 94, 100-102, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108] . The Ninth Circuit, in a later 2002 decision, followed the end results in Teaman and Smith, overruling the determination it earlier reached in Jones [In re Watts (9th Cir. 2002) 298 F.3d 1077, 1082-1083] . Nevertheless, Watts did not resolve the Teaman-Smith split in opinion as to when the judgment lien attaches in a surplus equity situation [In re Watts (9th Cir. 2002) 298 F.3d 1077, 1081 n.4].

If the declared homestead owner transfers the declared homestead property to a third party buyer, and at the time of transfer there is no surplus equity, the judgment lien thereafter may not be enforced against that property and against the third party buyer [Teaman v. Wilkinson (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1259, 1267-1269, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 705] . On the other hand, it may be possible for the judgment creditor to reach surplus equity from the seller, when the seller reinvested the proceeds of a sale within six months into another declared homestead, and this other homestead subsequently develops surplus equity [Teaman v. Wilkinson (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1259, 1269 n.6, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 705] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Third-Party Buyers Not Subject to Judicial Lien When Third Party Created Surplus Equity.

Teaman is important in establishing fairness for third party buyers of a property encumbered by a judicial lien when there is no surplus equity above the homestead exemption at the time of transfer to the third party. In effect, the judgment creditor in Teaman was attempting to levy on "surplus equity" created by the third party buyer after the sale even though there was no surplus equity for the judgment debtor sellers. This result is consistent with title company practice in such transactions. It is routine for title companies to delete or "write around" a judicial lien in a declared homestead no-equity situation so that the sale to the third party can go through. Teaman was consistent with title company real-world practice. Nevertheless, the prudent third party buyer must make sure that the title company provides adequate assurance under these situations to avoid further troubles with the disgruntled judgment creditor. William M. Hensley

[4] Former Declaration of Homestead

The homestead declaration is a revised version of the declaration of homestead that was used in California before July 1, 1983 [see former Civ. Code §§ 1237-1349]. Any declaration of homestead recorded before that date has the same effect as a homestead declaration recorded under current law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.910(d)(2)]. Similarly, a declarant named in a declaration of homestead and the declarant's spouse are considered to be the declared homestead owners [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.910(b)(2)].

§ 27B.24 Procedure for Claiming Exemption

Two statutory procedures, each applicable to a different type of dwelling, govern the manner in which the homestead exemption must be claimed and challenged. The following discussion summarizes those procedures. For further coverage, see §§ 27B.120, 27B.121.

If the dwelling is personal property such as a mobilehome or a waterborne vessel [see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710(a)(2), (3)], or real property in which the judgment debtor has a leasehold estate with an unexpired term of less than two years at the time of the levy, the procedure for claiming personal property exemptions applies [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.740(b)(2); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 703.510-703.600]. That procedure requires the claimant, following a levy on the proposed homestead, to file a claim of exemption with the levying officer [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.520(a)]. Thereafter, the judgment creditor may challenge the claim by filing certain documents and obtaining a court hearing [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 703.550-703.610].

For all other types of dwellings, including declared homesteads, following a levy the levying officer will inform the creditor that the dwelling will be released unless the creditor applies for an order for sale of the dwelling and files a copy of the application with the levying officer [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.750(a)]. If the creditor obtains a court order for sale, the sale will be subject to numerous procedural requirements [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 701.510-701.680, 704.800] which, among other things, provide that the sale cannot be completed unless the judgment debtor will receive sale proceeds equal to the amount of the exemption [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.800(a); see § 27B.25[1]].

§ 27B.25 Sale of Homestead

[1] Minimum Acceptable Bids

A bid received at a sale of a homestead pursuant to a court order for sale cannot be accepted unless it exceeds the amount of the homestead exemption plus any additional amount necessary to satisfy all liens and encumbrances on the property, including, but not limited to, any attachment or judgment lien [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.800(a)]. The phrase "all liens and encumbrances" for purposes of a minimum bid refers to those that are senior to the executing judgment creditor lien and does not include this lien [Bratcher v. Buckner (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 1177, 1189, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 534 ; Rourke v. Troy (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 880, 885-886, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 660] . A bid meeting that requirement is referred to as a minimum bid. If no minimum bid is received, then the homestead cannot be sold and must be released. Furthermore, the creditor will be prohibited for one year from obtaining another order for sale and will not be entitled to recover reasonable costs incurred in the proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 704.800(a), 704.840].

Under certain circumstances, even a minimum bid may not be acceptable. If the minimum bid is not equal to 90 percent or more of what the court determines to be the fair market value of the dwelling [see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.780(b)], then the homestead cannot be sold unless the court, on the motion of the judgment creditor, either grants permission to accept the highest bid that exceeds the amount of the minimum bid or makes a new order for sale of the homestead [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.800(b)]. In fact, the court may even decline to make an order for the sale if it has determined that the sale of the dwelling would not be likely to produce a sufficient minimum bid [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.780(b)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Court Has Great Discretion to Order Sale Even If No Surplus Equity Appears to Exist. Courts have great discretion to order a sale under homestead procedures. Even if the fair market value of the homesteaded property appears less than the value of senior liens to the executing judicial lien, a court can still order a sale on the premise that the property is unique and draw actual bids that will cover the senior liens, the homestead exemption, and part or all of the judgment creditor's lien [see, e.g., Bratcher v. Buckner (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 1177, 1189-1190, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 534 ; In re Bernard (9th Cir. 1994) 40 F.3d 1028, 1030 n.2 , cert. den. sub nom., Bernard v. Coyne (1995) 514 U.S. 1065] . William M.

[2] Distribution of Sale Proceeds

The levying officer must distribute the proceeds of the sale of a homestead in the following order [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.850(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 701.820, 701.830, 701.850(b) (procedural requirements governing distribution of proceeds)]:

(1) To the discharge of all liens and encumbrances on the property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.810 (amount payable to satisfy lien or encumbrance must not include any prepayment penalty)];

(2) To the judgment debtor in the amount of the homestead exemption [see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.720];

(3) To the levying officer for the reimbursement of the officer's costs for which an advance has not been made;

(4) To the judgment creditor to satisfy the following in the order in which they are listed: costs and interest accruing after issuance of the writ authorizing the sale, and the amount due on the judgment with costs and interest, as entered on the writ; and

(5) To the judgment debtor in the amount remaining.

The court's order for sale of the dwelling must specify the amount of proceeds of sale that is to be distributed to each person having a lien or encumbrance on the dwelling [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.780(b)]. Even when a court has not complied with this directive and a sale has occurred, this technical defect has been held not a sufficient basis for a reversal. Rather, the appellate court in one case simply remanded the matter with instructions for the lower court to modify its order and specify the sale distributees in line with § 704.780(b) and the appellate court's ruling on a "circuity of liens" issue [Bratcher v. Buckner (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 1177, 1190, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 534] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Circuity of Liens. Bratcher v. Buckner (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 1177, 1185-1188, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 534 , is must reading for practitioners facing a "circuity of liens" problem. This issue surfaces when a lienholder agrees to subordinate the priority of his or her lien to another. Under these circumstances, Bratcher discusses the proper distribution of funds to the various creditors, which will frequently come into play in a homestead exemption context. William M. Hensley

One California intermediate appellate court decision has faced the interplay between homestead protections and execution sales occurring in the absence of a court order. Even if there was an execution sale in violation of the Code Civ. Proc. § 704.740 requirement to obtain a court order for a homestead, the remedies are limited if the property was sold to third-party purchasers. When there was a sale to a third-party purchaser, execution sales are absolute, with the judgment debtor having a damages remedy against the judgment creditor or sheriff but not having the option to set aside the sale to the third party [Gonzalez v. Toews (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 977, 981-982, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434 ; Code Civ. Proc. § 701.680(c)(2)]. However, if the execution sale purchaser was the judgment creditor, the judgment debtor or a successor has 90 days from the sale date to bring an action to set aside the sale for any irregularities in the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 701.680(c)(1)].

Another appellate court decision has held that general receivership statutes do not provide an "alternative" remedy allowing judgment creditors to bypass the Enforcement of Judgments Law provisions for handling sales of dwellings subject to a homestead exemption [Wells Fargo Financial Leasing, Inc. v. D&M Cabinets (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 59, 69, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 97] . A judgment creditor must proceed via Code Civ. Proc. § 704.740 and obtain a court order, regardless of whether the property is to be sold by a sheriff or a receiver [Wells Fargo Financial Leasing, Inc. v. D&M Cabinets (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 59, 66, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 97] .

[3] Debtor a Co-owner or Owner of Less Than Fee

A special procedure applies if the dwelling constituting the homestead is owned by the judgment debtor as a joint tenant or tenant in common or if the debtor's interest in the dwelling is a leasehold or other interest less than a fee interest. In such a case, the debtor's interest in the dwelling, rather than the dwelling itself, will be sold at the execution sale. If there is more than one judgment debtor, the interests of the debtors in the dwelling will be sold together and each of the debtors entitled to a homestead exemption is entitled to apply his or her exemption to his or her own interest [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.820]. If the judgment debtor's interest is a community property interest, then the entire community interest is subject to enforcement [see Code Civ. Proc. § 695.020].

§ 27B.26 Restrictions on Conveyance or Encumbrance of Dwelling

The conveyance or encumbrance of a dwelling is also subject to any applicable restrictions imposed by the laws governing marital property. Community property is subject to the enforcement of a money judgment as provided in these laws [Code Civ. Proc. § 695.020(a); see Fam. Code § 700 et seq.]. Under these provisions, a spouse may not sell, convey, or encumber community personal property used as the family dwelling without the written consent of the other spouse [Fam. Code § 1100(c)]. Furthermore, if notice of the pendency of a proceeding for dissolution of the marriage, for nullity of the marriage, or for legal separation of the parties is recorded in any county in which the husband or wife resides on real property that is the separate property of the other, for a period of three months after recordation the real property cannot be transferred, encumbered, or otherwise disposed of voluntarily or involuntarily without the joinder of both spouses except pursuant to a court order [Fam. Code § 754].

§ 27B.27 Abandonment of Homestead

A declared homestead owner may abandon his or her homestead by a declaration of abandonment [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.980(a); see §§ 27B.203, 27B.204 (forms of declaration of abandonment)]. A declaration of abandonment does not affect the declared homestead of any person other than the declared homestead owner named in the declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.980(c)]. A declared homestead will be considered to be abandoned by operation of law with regared to a declared homestead owner if he or she, or a person authorized to act on his or her behalf, executes, acknowledges, and records a new homestead declaration on different property [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.990(a)]. However, if the declared homestead owner records a new homestead declaration that includes property declared in a previously recorded homestead declaration, the new declaration will not be considered to be an abandonment of the old declaration to the extent that the prior declaration is still valid [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.990(b)]. An abandonment by operation of law will not affect the declared homestead of any person other than the declared homestead owner named in the new declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.990(a)].

In one case, a California intermediate appellate court held an implied abandonment occurs whenever a homestead declarant establishes another residence as his or her principal dwelling. The court determined abandonment was implied because the automatic residential exemption provided the same protection against the judicial lien in the declarant's new residence [Webb v. Trippet (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 647, 652 n.2, 286 Cal. Rptr. 742] .

An earlier bankruptcy decision recognized that continued residency is not a requirement for a valid declared homestead exemption, concluding that the California Legislature had not codified an abandonment of a homestead from the mere vacating of the homestead premises [In re Anderson (9th Cir. 1987) 824 F.2d 754, 757] . Then, in 2002, a bankruptcy judge found an implied abandonment when the homestead declarant had not lived on the property for seven years, rented the property to another, and depreciated the property on his tax returns [In re Kelley (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 2002) 285 B.R. 1, 2 , aff'd on other grounds (9th Cir. BAP 2003) 300 B.R. 11] . The bankruptcy judge in Kelley also criticized a reading of Anderson that suggested continued residency was a requirement for a valid California declared homestead exemption [In re Kelley (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 2002) 285 B.R. 1, 3 , aff'd on other grounds (9th Cir. BAP 2003) 300 B.R. 11] . Any conflict was cleared up subsequently when the Ninth Circuit Bankruptcy Appellate Panel found that the bankruptcy judge in Kelley erred in finding an implied abandonment just because the homestead declarant showed no intention of using the property as a personal residence [Kelley v. Locke (In re Kelley) (9th Cir. BAP 2003) 300 B.R. 11, 18-19] . The Bankruptcy Appellate Panel also affirmed the viability of Anderson, reading it to mean that a declarant's moving away from the homestead does not destroy the exemption status [Kelley v. Locke (In re Kelley) (9th Cir. BAP 2003) 300 B.R. 11, 19-20] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Abandonment. The likely upshot of these cases is that simply moving away from the homestead does not destroy the declared exemption; rather, abandonment requires clear evidence the declarant had actually established a new residence as the principal dwelling. William M. Hensley

§ 27B.28 Homestead Filing Services

A homestead filing service is any service performed or offered to be performed for compensation in connection with the preparation or completion of a homestead declaration [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.6(e)(1); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.6(e)(2); *Code Civ. Offerers of homestead filing services must do all of the following:

- Provide a statutory disclosure regarding homestead declarations [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.6(b)(1)]. This disclosure must be (1) inserted in all advertising and promotional material disseminated by the offerer [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.6(b)(2)], (2) recited at the beginning of any oral solicitations or broadcast advertisements [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.6(b)(3)], and (3) provided in written form before any person who responds to an oral solicitation or broadcast advertisement is obligated to pay for the service [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.6(b)(3)].

- Deliver each notarized homestead declaration to the appropriate county recorder for recordation as soon as needed or required by a homestead declarant, but no later than 10 days after the declaration is notarized. The offerer must pay all notarization and recordation fees [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.6(c)].

- Refrain from charging for these services until after the homestead declaration is recorded, and refrain from charging more than $25 (including notarization and recordation fees) for these services [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.6(d)].

- Refrain from making any untrue or misleading statements in connection with the offering or performance of the service [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.6(a); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.6(a)(1)-(8) (examples of "untrue or misleading statements")].

§ 27B.29 Forced Sales Under Internal Revenue Code § 7403

I.R.C. § 7403, which authorizes actions to enforce tax liens or to subject property to the payment of taxes, empowers a federal district court to sell a taxpayer's homestead to satisfy a federal tax lien, subject to the following limitations and considerations:

- In distributing the resulting sale proceeds, any third parties who also had interests in the homestead must be compensated.

- Further, because financial compensation may not always be an adequate substitute for a home, the United States Supreme Court has stated that district courts have a "degree of equitable discretion" to determine whether or not to authorize a forced sale. In so ruling, the Court applied I.R.C. § 7403 to the Texas homestead law, which grants each spouse a separate and individual interest (amounting to a vested property right) in the homestead, and the Court concluded that a homestead estate owned by a nondelinquent spouse in Texas may be converted into its fair cash value by a federal tax collector [United States v. Rodgers (1983) 461 U.S. 677, 694, 701-709, 103 S. Ct. 2132, 76 L. Ed. 2d 236] .

The California homestead exemption does not expressly grant each spouse a separate and individual interest in the homestead. Instead, it grants both the judgment debtor and the judgment debtor's spouse the right to claim the homestead exemption, and provides that the exemption is $100,000 for a married couple [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730(a)(2)] (or it could be $175,000 in a special case [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730(a)(3)]), regardless of whether the spouses are jointly obligated on the judgment or whether the homestead consists of community property or separate property or both [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730(b); see § 27B.21]. Based on the Supreme Court's decision in Rogers, it appears that a federal district court could force the sale of a California homestead pursuant to I.R.C. § 7403. Thereafter, the nondelinquent spouse would probably have to be compensated because that spouse's right to claim the full amount of the exemption independently is similar to the separate and individual right available in Texas. However, the spirit of the decision seems to suggest that the courts should exercise discretion and not force a sale when a minimum acceptable bid cannot be obtained [see § 27B.25[1]], although California courts have not yet made a definitive statement concerning the extent to which this decision applies to California homesteads.

§ 27B.30 Failure to Timely Claim Homestead Exemption in Chapter 11 Bankruptcy Case

When debtors failed to claim a homestead exemption before confirmation of their Chapter 11 bankruptcy plan, the Ninth Circuit Bankruptcy Appellate Panel barred the debtors from later claiming an exemption by finding their confirmed plan raised a res judicata bar to the subsequent effort to claim the exemption [Knupfer v. Wolfberg (In re Wolfberg (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2000) 255 B.R. 879, 882-884] .

§ 27B.31 Res Judicata Impact From Failure to Raise Homestead Issue Before Judgment Reached in Action

When a homestead claim was not raised in prior equitable and legal proceedings resulting in a judgment on property title issues, res judicata and collateral estoppel principles barred relitigation of the homestead claim after a judgment had been reached to the detriment of the litigants prevailing in the prior proceedings [Krier v. Krier (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 841, 843-844, 172 P.2d 681 ; Amin v. Khazindar (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 582, 590-591, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 224] .

A. Client Interview--Facts and Documents

12-27B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 27B.100

AUTHOR: William M. Hensely, Practice Consultant

§ 27B.100 Facts

1. Name, address, and telephone number of homestead claimant.

2. Claimant's marital status.

3. Whether claimant resides in dwelling to be homesteaded.

4. If claimant is married, name of spouse and whether:

a. Claimant or spouse or both are judgment debtors on same or different judgments;

NOTE:
Although either the judgment debtor or the judgment debtor's spouse may claim the homestead exemption [see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710(c)], the remainder of this Transaction Guide assumes that the judgment debtor is the claimant.

b. Spouse resides in dwelling to be homesteaded; and

NOTE:
If a judgment debtor and the judgment debtor's spouse reside in separate homesteads, only the homestead of one of the spouses is exempt and only the proceeds of the sale of the exempt homestead are exempt [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.720(c)]. If the spouses cannot agree on the selection of the exempt homestead, the court will decide [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.110(c)]. If a judgment debtor is not currently residing in the homestead, but his or her separated or former spouse continues to reside in or exercise control over possession of the homestead, that judgment debtor continues to be entitled to a homestead exemption until entry of judgment or other legally enforceable agreement dividing the community property between the judgment debtor and the separated or former spouse, or until a later time as specified by court order. Nevertheless, the judgment debtor is not entitled to more than one exempt homestead [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.720(d) (further providing that notwithstanding Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710(d), for purposes of automatic homestead exemption, "spouse" may include separated or former spouse consistent with this subdivision)].

c. Judgment decreeing legal separation has been entered.

NOTE:

For purposes of the homestead exemption statutes, "spouse" does not include a married person following entry of a judgment decreeing legal separation of the parties, unless the married persons reside together in the same dwelling [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710(d)]. Thus, the requirement that spouses select one exempt homestead [see NOTE to P (b), above] is inapplicable to legally separated spouses, and each such spouse may claim a separate homestead.

5. Age of claimant and spouse.

6. Name, address, relationship, age, and telephone number of each member of "family unit" of claimant and spouse [see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710(b) (definition); see also NOTE following § 27B.110, P 3, (a), (1) (statutory definition of "family unit")].

7. Whether any family member requires care or support.

8. Type and character of property to be homesteaded.

9. Legal description (and address, if different from claimant's address in (1), above) of property.

10. Type of interest owned by each spouse in dwelling to be homesteaded, e.g.:

a. Joint tenancy;

b. Community property; or

NOTE:

Property acquired during marriage in joint form is presumed to be community property for purposes of division of property on dissolution of marriage or legal separation [Fam. Code § 2581].

c. Tenancy in common.

11. Date claimant and/or spouse moved into dwelling.

12. Whether claimant or spouse has previously claimed a homestead; if so:

a. Parties to homestead;

b. Property homesteaded;

c. Date executed;

d. Date recorded;

e. Where recorded (book, page, and county);

f. Whether prior homestead has been validly abandoned [see § 27B.27]:

(1) By declaration of abandonment [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.980; see §§ 27B.203, 27B.204]; or

(2) By operation of law [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.990]; and

g. Whether prior homestead was sold at execution sale, damaged, or destroyed, and, if so:

(1) Date of event; and

(2) Manner in which proceeds were handled.

12-27B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 27B.110

AUTHOR: William M. Hensely, Practice Consultant

§ 27B.110 Determinations Concerning Availability and Amount of Exemption

1. Determine whether proposed homestead is one of following, all of which qualify as "dwelling" [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710(a)] and therefore potentially qualify for exemption [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.720(a)]:

a. House or mobilehome together with outbuildings and land on which they are situated.

b. Boat or other waterborne vessel.

c. Either:
(1) Condominium [see Civ. Code § 783 (definition)];

(2) Planned development [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 11003; Civ. Code § 1351(k) (definition)];

(3) Stock cooperative [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 11003.2; Civ. Code § 1351(m) (definition)]; or

(4) Community apartment project [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 11004; Civ. Code § 1351(d) (definition)].

d. Other place where judgment debtor or debtor's spouse resides.

NOTE:
If neither the judgment debtor nor the debtor's spouse actually resides in the proposed homestead, then the structure is not a dwelling and cannot qualify for the exemption [Code Civ.

Proc. § 704.710(c)*].

2. Determine whether dwelling meets both of following requirements and thus qualifies as homestead [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710(c)]:

NOTE:
The following requirements do not apply to declared homesteads [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.920; see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.910(a) (definition); see also §§ 27B.23, 27B.200-27B.202].

a. Dwelling is principal dwelling in which judgment debtor or debtor's spouse actually resided on date judgment creditor's lien attached to dwelling; and

b. Debtor or spouse have resided in dwelling continuously from date judgment creditor's lien attached until date of court's determination that dwelling qualifies as homestead.

3. Determine amount of exemption [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730(a)]:

a. If both of following apply, $100,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730(a)(2)]:

(1) Debtor or spouse who resides in homestead is at time of attempted sale of homestead a member of a family unit; and

NOTE:
For these purposes, "family unit" means any of the following: (1) the judgment debtor and the judgment debtor's spouse if both reside together in the homestead; (2) the judgment debtor and at least one of the following persons who the judgment debtor cares for or maintains in the homestead: the minor child or minor grandchild of the judgment debtor or the judgment debtor's spouse or the minor child or grandchild of a deceased spouse or former spouse; the minor brother or sister of the judgment debtor or judgment debtor's spouse or the minor child of a deceased brother or sister of either spouse; the father, mother, grandfather, or grandmother of the judgment debtor or the judgment debtor's spouse or the father, mother, grandfather, or grandmother of a deceased spouse; or any relative described under this item (2) who is unmarried, has obtained the age of majority, and is unable to take care of or support himself or herself; or (3) the judgment debtor's spouse and at least one of the persons listed in item (2), above, whom the judgment debtor's spouse cares for or maintains in the homestead [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710(b)].

(2) At least one member of family unit owns no interest, or community property interest only with judgment debtor in homestead.

b. If either of following applies, $175,000:

(1) Judgment debtor or spouse of debtor who resides in homestead is at time of attempted sale of homestead either at least 65 years old or physically or mentally disabled and, as a result of disability, is unable to engage in substantial gainful employment [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730(a)(3)(A), (B)]; or

NOTE:
There is a rebuttable presumption that a person qualifies for the disability exemption if he or she receives disability insurance benefit payments under Title II or supplemental security income payments under Title XVI of the federal Social Security Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730(a)(3)(B); see 42 U.S.C. §§ 401-433 (disability insurance benefits), 1380-1383c (supplemental security income)].

(2) Judgment debtor or spouse of debtor who resides in homestead is at time of attempted involuntary sale of homestead at least 55 years old and has gross annual income of not more than $15,000 if single or $20,000 (including spouse's income) if married [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730(a)(3)(C)].

c. For other situations, $75,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730(a)(1)].

PART III. TRANSACTION GUIDE
B. Preliminary Determinations

12-27B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 27B.111

AUTHOR: William M. Hensely, Practice Consultant

§ 27B.111 Determinations Concerning Declared Homestead

1. Determine whether homestead declaration can be recorded.

NOTE:
Any present or future, vested or contingent, legal or equitable interest in real property that is a "dwelling" as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710(a) [see § 27B.22[1]] may constitute a declared homestead except a leasehold estate with an unexpired term of less than two years or the interest of the beneficiary of a trust [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.910(c)]. The above real property criterion prevents the following forms of personal property from qualifying as declared homesteads even though they are considered "dwellings" under Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710(a) and are therefore eligible for the homestead exemption: boats, other waterborne vessels, and mobilehomes that are not attached to land [see Health & Safety Code § 18551 (types of mobilehomes qualifying as fixtures and real property improvements)].

2. If declared homestead procedure is available [see § 27B.110], determine whether procedure should be used [see generally § 27B.23].

3. Determine who will execute and acknowledge homestead declaration [see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.930(b)]:

a. Declared homestead owner;

b. Declared owner's spouse;

c. Guardian or conservator of person or estate of declared owner or declared owner's spouse; or

NOTE:
A guardian or conservator may execute, acknowledge, and record the declaration without obtaining court authorization [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.930(b)(3)].

d. Person acting under power of attorney or otherwise authorized to act on behalf of declared owner or declared owner's spouse.

NOTE:
Powers of attorney are discussed in Ch. 98, Powers of Attorney .

4. Determine whether current homeowner's exemption or disabled veteran's exemption for dwelling has been recorded with county tax assessor.

NOTE:
A homeowner's property tax exemption is available to any owner of an eligible dwelling who completes an official claim form within a year following the acquisition of title to, and recordation of ownership of, the dwelling [see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 218, 255.3]. Once granted, the claim remains in effect until the title to the property changes, the owner no longer occupies the home as his or her principal residence, or the property ceases to qualify for the exemption [Rev. & Tax. Code § 253.5]. The amount of the exemption is established by statute. The exemption does not apply to property on which an owner receives a veteran's exemption [Rev. & Tax. Code § 218(b)]. The existence or nonexistence of a recorded exemption determines which party has the burden of proving the homestead status of the dwelling [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.780(a)(1); see § 27B.121, P 3, (b)]. A special veteran's exemption provides that a principal dwelling is exempt from taxation in an amount specified by statute if it is owned by a disabled veteran, a person who died while on active duty as a result of a service-connected injury or a disease, or a spouse of either of these. This exemption applies in lieu of other veteran's exemption to which the claimant may be entitled [Rev. & Tax. Code § 205.5].

A more detailed discussion of the above exemptions is beyond the scope of this publication but is contained in California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 400, The Property Taxation System (Matthew Bender).

§ 27B.120 Preparation and Recordation of Optional Homestead Declaration

NOTE:
Recordation of a homestead declaration does not affect the availability or amount of the exemption [see § 27B.20], but does qualify the declared homestead for special treatment in connection with the assertion of the exemption. The primary advantage of recording a homestead declaration is to guarantee that the proceeds of a voluntary sale of a declared homestead will be exempt from the enforcement of money judgments in the amount of the homestead exemption [see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730] for a period of six months after the sale [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.960(a)].

1. If declaration is to be executed and acknowledged by person acting under power of attorney, prepare and record power of attorney [Prob. Code § 4022; see Ch. 98, Powers of Attorney] on behalf of declared owner or declared owner's spouse if such a power has not already been recorded.

2. Prepare homestead declaration containing [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.930(a)]:

NOTE:
For examples of homestead declarations, see §§ 27B.200 (one declared owner), 27B.201 (spouses as declared owners), and 27B.202 (on behalf of declared owner).

a. Name of declared homestead owner, who must:
(1) Own an interest in declared homestead or be a declarant named in a homestead declaration recorded before July 1, 1983, pursuant to former Civ. Code §§ 1237-1349, or be that declarant's spouse [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.910(b)(1)]; and

(2) Use, or be spouse of person who uses, declared homestead as principal dwelling [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 704.920, 704.930(a)(3)].

NOTE:

A husband and wife may both be named as declared homestead owners in the same homestead declaration if each owns an interest in the dwelling selected as the declared homestead [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.930(a)(1)]. A married person who does not own an interest in the proposed declared homestead may nonetheless execute, acknowledge, and record a declared homestead if the declared homestead is the principal residence of at least one of the spouses and if the other spouse is an owner of an interest in the declared homestead and is named in the homestead declaration as the declared homestead owner [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 704.920, 704.930(a)(3), (b)(2)].

If unmarried persons reside in, and hold interests in, the same dwelling, each person who wishes to declare a homestead in the dwelling must execute, acknowledge, and record a separate homestead declaration [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 704.920, 704.930(b)(1)].

b. Legal description of declared homestead.

c. Statement that declared homestead is principal dwelling of declared homestead owner or spouse and that owner or spouse resides in declared homestead on date declaration is recorded.

d. Statement that facts stated in homestead declaration are known to be true as of personal knowledge of person executing and acknowledging declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.930(c)].

e. If declaration is to be executed and acknowledged by guardian or conservator of person or estate of declared owner or declared owner's spouse, or by anyone acting under power of attorney or other authorization to act on behalf of declared owner or declared owner's spouse [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.930(b)(3), (4), (c)], include:

(1) Statement that person has authority to so act on behalf of declared homestead owner or owner's spouse; and

(2) Source of person's authority.

3. Have declaration executed and acknowledged by one of following parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.930(b)]:

a. Declared homestead owner;

b. Owner's spouse;

c. Guardian or conservator of person or estate of declared owner or declared owner's spouse; or

NOTE:

The guardian or conservator may execute, acknowledge, and record a homestead declaration without court authorization [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.930(b)(3)].

d. Person acting under power of attorney or otherwise authorized to act on behalf of declared owner or declared owner's spouse.

4. Record declaration in office of county recorder of county where dwelling is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.920].

NOTE:

On recordation, the dwelling is a declared homestead [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.920].

C. Procedural Guide to Claiming a Homestead

12-27B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 27B.121

AUTHOR: William M. Hensely, Practice Consultant

§ 27B.121 Claiming Exemption

1. Wait for judgment creditor to serve notice of levy [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 699.540, 700.010; see also Jud. Coun. Form No. EJ-150 (notice of levy form); California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments, § 254.683 (Matthew Bender)].

NOTE:

A levy on a homestead that is subject to a lien or encumbrance is not by itself grounds for acceleration of the obligation secured by the lien or encumbrance, notwithstanding any provision of the obligation, lien, or encumbrance [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.810].

2. If dwelling is personal property or real property in which judgment debtor has leasehold estate with unexpired term of less than two years at time of levy, take following steps [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.740(b)(2)]:

NOTE:

In such a case, a court order for sale is not required and the exemption claim must be made and determined in the manner generally applicable to personal property exemptions [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.740(b) see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 703.510-703.610].

If the court extends the time allowed for any of the following acts, written notice of the extension must be filed with the levying officer and, unless notice is waived, served promptly on the opposing party. Service must be made personally or by mail [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 703.590, 704.830].

a. Prepare claim of exemption that includes following information [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.520(b)]:

NOTE:

For an example of the claim of exemption form [see Jud. Coun. Form No. EJ-160], see Ch. 254, California Forms of Pleading and Practice Executions and Enforcement of Judgments, § 254.710 (Matthew Bender). ,

(1) Name of claimant and mailing address where service of notice of opposition to claim may be made on claimant.

(2) Name and last known address of judgment debtor if claimant is not judgment debtor.

(3) Description of property claimed to be exempt.

(4) Citation of provision of statute on which claim is based (i.e., Code Civ. Proc. § 704.740).

(5) Statement of facts necessary to support claim.

b. Have claim executed under oath [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.520(b)].

c. File claim and one copy with levying officer within 10 days after date of service of notice of levy [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.520(a)].

NOTE:

Promptly after the claim is filed, the levying officer will serve on the judgment creditor, personally or by mail (1) a copy of the claim, and (2) a notice of claim of exemption stating that the claim has been made and that the levying officer will release the property unless, within the time specified in the notice, a copy of a notice of opposition to the claim and a copy of a notice of motion for an order determining the claim are filed with the levying officer [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.540; see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments, § 254.711 (notice of claim) (Matthew Bender)].

Within 10 days after service of the notice of claim of exemption, a judgment creditor who opposes the claim must file with the court a notice of opposition to the claim [see Code Civ. Proc. § 703.560 (required contents); see also* Jud. Coun. Form No. EJ-170; *California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments, § 254.712 (notice of opposition) (Matthew Bender)] and a notice of motion for an order determining the claim [*see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments, § 254.713 (notice of motion) (Matthew Bender)]. The creditor must also file a copy of each of these documents with the levying officer. Once they are filed, the levying officer must promptly file the claim with the court. If copies of the notice of opposition and notice of motion are not filed with the levying officer within the applicable time period, the levying officer must immediately release the property to the extent it is claimed to be exempt [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.550].

The hearing on the above motion will be held not later than 20 days from the date the notice of motion was filed with the court unless continued by the court for good cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.570(a); see Judicial Council Form No. EJ-175; California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments, § 254.714 (notice of hearing) (Matthew Bender)].

d. After service of copy of notice of opposition to claim and notice on motion for order determining claim [see Code Civ. Proc. § 703.570(b)], attend hearing on motion and consider presenting additional evidence.

NOTE:

At the hearing, the exemption claimant has the burden of proof [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.580(b)]. Both the claim of exemption and the notice of opposition constitute the pleadings (subject to the court's power to permit amendments in the interest of justice) [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.580(a)], and both will be received in evidence. If no other evidence is offered, the court will make its determination or order the hearing continued for the production of other oral or documentary evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.580(c)]. At the conclusion of the hearing, the court must determine by order whether or not the property is exempt in whole or in part [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.580(d); see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments, § 254.715 (order determining claim of exemption) (Matthew Bender)].

e. If the exemption is denied, consider appealing the order [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.600].

NOTE:

Notice of an appeal will be given to the levying officer, who will then hold, release, or dispose of the property in accordance with the statutory provisions governing enforcement and stay of enforcement of money judgments pending appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.610(c); see Code Civ. Proc. § 936.1].

3. For all other dwellings, take following steps [see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.740(a)]:

NOTE:

The following statutory procedures apply whether or not a homestead declaration has been recorded [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.970].

If the court extends the time allowed for any of the following acts, written notice of the extension must be filed with the levying officer and, unless notice is waived, must be served promptly on the opposing party. Service must be made personally or by mail [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 703.590, 704.830].

a. Verify that creditor served copies of order to show cause, creditor's application, and notice of hearing not later than 30 days before hearing date as follows [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.770(b)]:

NOTE:

After a dwelling has been levied on, the creditor must apply to the court for an order for sale of the dwelling [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 684.120(b) (extension of filing period), 704.750 (method of application), 704.760 (contents of application); see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 294, Homesteads , § 294.102

(application for order) (Matthew Bender)]. Once the application is filed, the court will set a time and place for hearing and order the judgment debtor to show cause why an order for sale should not be made in accordance with the application [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.770(a); see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 294, Homesteads , §§ 294.103 , 294.104 (order to show cause), (Jud. Coun. Form No. EJ-180, notice of hearing) (Matthew Bender)].

If the judgment debtor is served by mail, the 30-day time period will be extended five days if the address is within California, 10 days if it is in another state, and 20 days if it is outside the United States [Code Civ. Proc. § 684.120(b)].

(1) Personally or by mail on judgment debtor; and

(2) Personally on occupant of dwelling or, if no occupant is present at time of attempted service, by posting above documents in conspicuous place at dwelling.

b. Determine whether debtor has burden of proof at hearing in following matters:

(1) Whether dwelling is a homestead [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.780(a)(1)].

NOTE:

If the records of the county tax assessor indicate that there is a current homeowner's exemption or disabled veteran's exemption for the dwelling claimed by the judgment debtor or the judgment debtor's spouse, the judgment creditor has the burden of proof that the dwelling is not a homestead. If the records do not indicate an exemption, then the burden of proof is on the person who claims that the dwelling is a homestead [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.780(a)(1)]. As a practical matter, most homeowners will claim the homeowner's exemption. Thus, the creditor will normally have the burden of proof concerning the status of the dwelling.

(2) Amount of exemption [see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.780(a)(2)].

NOTE:

If the application states the amount of the exemption, the person claiming the exemption has the burden of proof that the amount of the exemption is other than the amount stated in the application [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.780(a)(2)].

c. Attend hearing.

NOTE:

Code Civ. Proc. § 704.780(b) provides that the court will make an order for sale of the dwelling "unless the court determines that the sale of the dwelling would not be likely to produce a bid sufficient to satisfy any part of the amount due on the judgment pursuant to [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.800]," that is, unless it determines there will not likely be a minimum acceptible bid. The purpose of the hearing is to determine whether the order should be "made in accordance with the [creditor's] application" [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.770(a)], that is, whether the terms of the order should be based on the statements made in the application concerning the availability and amount of the exemption, and the existence and amount of any liens and encumbrances [see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.760 (contents of application)].

At the hearing's conclusion, the court will determine the amount of the homestead exemption, if any, and the fair market value of the dwelling, and will make an order for sale of the dwelling if it determines it is appropriate to do so. The order for sale will (1) specify the amount of the sale proceeds that is to be distributed to each person having a lien or encumbrance on the dwelling, and (2) include the name and address of each such person [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.780(b); see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 294, Homesteads , § 294.105 (order for sale) (Matthew Bender)].

d. Take following action after order for sale is made:

(1) If neither judgment debtor, judgment debtor's spouse, nor attorney for either one appeared at hearing on order [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.790(a)]:

(a) Verify that copy of order for sale and notice of order were served not later than 10 days after date of order for sale by judgment creditor in the following way [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.790(b)]:

NOTE:
If judgment creditor fails to comply with these service requirements, then the dwelling may not be sold under the order for sale [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.790(c)].

(i) Personally or by mail on judgment debtor and debtor's spouse;

(ii) Personally on occupant of dwelling or if no occupant was present when service attempted, by posting above documents in conspicuous place at dwelling.

(b) Consider filing with levying officer, within 10 days after service of notice of order, declaration that absence of judgment debtor and spouse or attorney for debtor or spouse from hearing was due to mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, and that debtor or spouse wishes to assert exemption [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.790(d); see Judicial Council Form No. EJ-182 (Declaration for Rehearing); California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 294, Homesteads, § 294.106 (Matthew Bender)].

(c) Attend hearing on above declaration.

(2) If procedure described in (1), above, is unsuccessful or inapplicable, consider appealing the order [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 703.600, 704.830].

e. If execution sale occurs, monitor sale for compliance with applicable statutory procedure.

NOTE:
Subject to certain statutory provisions applicable solely to execution sales of homesteads [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 704.800-704.850; see also § 27B.25; California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 294, Homesteads, §§ 294.107-294.109 (Matthew Bender)], the provisions of the Enforcement of Judgments Law governing sales and collections [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 701.510-701.680] will govern the sale [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.780(b)]. One of the most important of these sales and collections provisions requires an execution sale to be delayed until the expiration of 120 days after the date the notice of levy was served on the judgment debtor [Code Civ. Proc. § 701.545].

1. Following execution sale, damage, destruction, or condemnation of any homestead, or voluntary sale of declared homestead, advise debtor to take following steps if he or she desires to establish new homestead [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 704.710(c), 704.720(b); see § 27B.22[3]]:

a. Use resultant proceeds to purchase new dwelling within six months; and

§ 27B.131 Abandonment of Declared Homestead

NOTE:

The following discussion is applicable both to homestead declarations recorded pursuant to current law and to declarations of homesteads recorded before July 1, 1983, under former law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.910(d)(2); see also former Civ. Code §§ 1237-1349].

A declaration of abandonment does not affect the declared homestead of any person other than the declared homestead owner named in the declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.980(c)].

1. Prepare declaration of abandonment [see §§ 27B.203, 27B.204] and have it executed and acknowledged in manner required for conveyances of real property [see Civ. Code §§ 1180-1207] by either one of following parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.980(b)]:

a. Declared homestead owner; or

b. Person authorized to act on behalf of declared homestead owner.

NOTE:

If the declaration of abandonment is executed and acknowledged by a person authorized to act on behalf of a declared homestead owner, the declaration must (1) contain a statement that the person has authority to act on behalf of the owner, and (2) identify the source of the person's authority [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.980(b)].

2. Alternatively, have declared homestead owner or person authorized to act on owner's behalf execute, acknowledge, and record new homestead declaration for owner on different property [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.990(a)].

NOTE:

Such an action will cause the declared homestead to be abandoned by operation of law as to the declared homestead owner named in the new homestead declaration, but will not affect the declared homestead of any other person [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.990(a)]. Notwithstanding this rule, a recorded homestead declaration that includes property described in a previously recorded homestead declaration will not be considered an abandonment of the prior declared homestead to the extent that the prior homestead declaration is still valid [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.990(b); see § 27B.203[1][c]].

§ 27B.200 Homestead Declaration--One Declared Owner

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a homestead declaration that may be used by the owner of an interest in a dwelling, or by the owner's spouse, to designate the dwelling as a declared homestead, provided that the owner, the owner's spouse, or both reside in the dwelling. Two other versions of the homestead declaration are also included in this chapter. The form in § 27B.201 should be used if both spouses own interests in the dwelling and wish to jointly designate it as a declared homestead. The form in § 27B.202 should be used if the declaration is to be made by a guardian or conservator of the declared homestead owner or the declared owner's spouse, or by a person acting under a power of attorney or otherwise authorized to act on behalf of the owner or spouse.

Recordation of a homestead declaration is not a prerequisite to claiming a homestead exemption [see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.970; see also § 27B.20]. However, selecting a dwelling as a declared homestead makes it eligible for special treatment not available to other dwellings if the homestead exemption is subsequently asserted. This special treatment includes the exemption of the proceeds of a voluntary sale of a declared homestead and limitations on the extent to which a judgment lien may attach to a declared homestead [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.960(a), (b); see § 27B.23[1]].

Once properly recorded, a homestead declaration is prima facie evidence of the facts stated in the document, and is conclusive evidence of those facts in favor of a purchaser or encumbrancer in good faith and for a valuable consideration [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.940]. Recordation of a homestead declaration does not affect the amount of the exemption or the right of levy pursuant to a writ of execution on a dwelling [see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.970]. The right to convey or encumber a homestead is unaffected by the recordation of a homestead declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.940].

[b] Former Declaration of Homestead

This homestead declaration is a revised version of the declaration of homestead that was used in California before July 1, 1983 [see former Civ. Code §§ 1237-1349]. Any declaration of homestead recorded under the law in effect before this date has the same effect as a homestead declaration recorded pursuant to current law. A declarant named in such a declaration of homestead and the declarant's spouse are considered declared homestead owners [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.910(b)(2), (d)(2)]. Accordingly, with the exception of the provisions relating to the contents of a declared homestead, the following discussion is applicable to any declaration of homestead recorded under the former law.

[c] Definition of "Dwelling"

Any interest in real property, whether present or future, vested or contingent, legal or equitable, that is a "dwelling" as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710(a) may constitute a declared homestead, except a leasehold estate with an unexpired term of less than two years or the interest of the beneficiary of a trust [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.910(c)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710(a) defines a "dwelling" as a place where a person resides, including, but not limited to, the following places:

- A house or mobilehome, together with the outbuildings and the land on which they are situated;
- A boat or other waterborne vessel;
- A condominium [see Civ. Code § 783 (definition)];
- A planned development [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 11003; Civ. Code § 1351(k) (definition)];
- A stock cooperative [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 11003.2; Civ. Code § 1351(m) (definition)]; or
- A community apartment project [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 11004; Civ. Code § 1351(d) (definition)].

However, because only interests in real property may be selected as declared homesteads [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.910(c)], boats and other waterborne vessels, mobilehomes that are not attached to land [see Health & Safety Code § 18551 ("attached" mobilehomes may qualify as fixture and real property improvement)], and other personal property dwellings cannot qualify as declared homesteads even though they are considered "dwellings" under Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710(a) and therefore qualify for the homestead exemption.

[d] Contents of Declaration

A homestead declaration must contain all of the following information [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.930(a), (c)]:

- The name of the declared homestead owner. A husband and wife may both be named as declared homestead owners in the same homestead declaration if each owns an interest in the dwelling selected as the declared homestead [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.930(a)(1)].
- A description of the declared homestead.
- A statement that the declared homestead is the principal dwelling of the declared homestead owner or the owner's spouse, and that the owner or spouse resides in the declared homestead on the date the homestead declaration is recorded.
- A statement that the facts stated in the homestead declaration are known to be true as of the personal knowledge of the person executing and acknowledging the declaration. If that person is someone other than the declared homestead owner or the owner's spouse, the declaration must also state that person's authority [see [e], below]. If the declaration is executed and acknowledged by a person other than the declared homestead owner or the owner's spouse, the form in § 27B.202 should be used instead of this form.

The above requirements do not apply to any declaration of homestead recorded before July 1, 1983 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.910(d)(2)].

[e] Execution, Acknowledgment, and Recordation

A homestead declaration must be executed and acknowledged, in the manner of an acknowledgment of a conveyance of real property [Civ. Code § 1189; see Civ. Code §§ 1180-1207], by at least one of the following persons [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.930(b)]:

- The declared homestead owner.
- The spouse of the declared homestead owner.
- The guardian or conservator of the person or estate of the declared homestead owner or the owner's spouse [see § 27B.202]. The guardian or conservator may execute, acknowledge, and record a homestead declaration without court authorization [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.930(b)(3)].
- A person acting under a power of attorney or otherwise authorized to act on behalf of the declared homestead owner or the owner's spouse [see § 27B.202].

The completed homestead declaration must be recorded in the office of the county recorder of the county where the dwelling is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.920]. From the date of recordation, the dwelling constitutes a declared homestead [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.920].

[f] Abandonment of Declared Homestead

A declared homestead may be abandoned by recording either a declaration of abandonment or a new homestead declaration for the owner on different property [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 704.980, 704.990; see §§ 27B.203, 27B.204].

[1] Comment--Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a homestead declaration that names both spouses as declared homestead owners. A husband and wife both may be named as declared homestead owners in the same homestead declaration if each owns an interest in the dwelling selected as the declared homestead [*Code Civ. § 27B.202 Homestead Declaration--On Behalf of Declared Homestead Owner

[1] Comment--Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a homestead declaration that is to be executed and acknowledged on behalf of a declared homestead owner by the guardian or conservator of the declared homestead owner or the declared owner's spouse, or by a person acting under a power of attorney or otherwise authorized to act on behalf of the owner or spouse [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.930(b)]. A guardian or conservator does not need to obtain court authorization to act in this capacity [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.930(b)(3)].

A homestead declaration executed by anyone other than the declared homestead owner or the declared owner's spouse must contain a statement that the person has authority to execute and acknowledge the declaration on behalf of the owner or the owner's spouse, and must identify the source of the person's authority [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.930(c)]. For a discussion of the other required contents for homestead declarations, and related issues, see § 27B.200[1].

§ 27B.203 Declaration of Abandonment of Declared Homestead--By Declared Homestead Owner

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a declaration of abandonment of a declared homestead. It may be used by a single declarant [see § 27B.200] or by spouse declarants [see § 27B.201] whether the homestead declaration was recorded pursuant to current law [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 704.910-704.995] or in accordance with former law in effect before July 1, 1983 [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.980(a); see former Civ. Code §§ 1263-1265].

A declaration of abandonment affects only the declared homestead of the declared homestead owner named in the declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.980(c)]. For example, if a husband and wife are both named as declared homestead owners in the same declaration [see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.930(a)(1); see § 27B.201], the marriage is subsequently dissolved, and one of the former spouses continues to reside in the declared homestead, the dwelling will remain the declared homestead of the resident former spouse even if the nonresident former spouse abandons the declared homestead.

[b] Execution and Acknowledgment

A declaration of abandonment must be executed and acknowledged in the manner of an acknowledgment of a conveyance of real property [Civ. Code § 1189; see Civ. Code §§ 1180-1207] by a declared homestead owner or a person authorized to act on behalf of such an owner [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.980(b)]. For a declaration of abandonment that is designed to be executed and acknowledged by a person authorized to act on behalf of a declared homestead owner, see § 27B.204.

[c] Abandonment by Operation of Law

A declared homestead is abandoned by operation of law as to a declared homestead owner if the owner or a person authorized to act on behalf of the owner executes, acknowledges, and records a new homestead declaration for the owner on different property. Such an abandonment does not affect the declared homestead of any person other than the person named as the declared homestead owner in the new declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.990(a)]. Notwithstanding this rule, if a recorded homestead declaration includes property described in a previously recorded homestead declaration, the new declaration will not be considered an abandonment of the prior declared homestead to the extent that the prior declaration is still valid [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.990(b)]. This latter rule apparently applies when changed circumstances force a declared homestead owner to record a new homestead declaration for the same dwelling mentioned in a previous declaration. For example, person A may record a homestead declaration, and subsequently marry person B and enter into an antenuptial agreement with person B that changes the status of the dwelling from separate to community property [see Fam. Code §§ 1100, 1102, 1500, 1620; see also Ch. 112, Postnuptial Agreements]. After they are married, the spouses may record a homestead declaration that names both of them as declared homestead owners [see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.930(a)(1); see also § 27B.201]. Under these circumstances, it appears that the first homestead declaration will remain valid and any rights that A had under the first homestead declaration will be preserved. For example, any judgment lien created between the two recording dates will only attach to the surplus value of the declared homestead over the total of all preexisting liens and encumbrances and the amount of the homestead exemption [see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.950(c)].

§ 27B.204 Declaration of Abandonment of Declared Homestead--On Behalf of Declared Homestead Owner

[1] Comment--Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a declaration of abandonment of a declared homestead to be executed and acknowledged by a person authorized to act on behalf of a declared homestead owner [see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.980(b)]. It contains the statement that the person making the execution and acknowledgment has authority to act on behalf of the declared homestead owner and identifies the source of the person's authority, as required by law [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.980(b)]. This form assumes that the authority is a power of attorney, although other types of authority are also permissible [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.930(b); see § 27B.200[1][e]]. For a discussion of other requirements that are applicable to all abandonments of declared homesteads, see § 27B.203[1].

12-28A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide Scope

Scope

Scope

This chapter covers easements and licenses. It emphasizes the drafting of instruments that grant and convey easements, and also discusses (1) the drafting of license agreements, (2) the prevention of prescriptive easements, and (3) statutory procedures governing the preservation, or establishment of abandonment, of easements. The chapter analyzes and discusses profits as a type of easement.

The Legal Background distinguishes easements from other rights in the property of another, covers the classification of easements, and describes particular types of easements. It also discusses the creation of an easement by express grant or reservation, and the maintenance and termination of easements. The Transaction Guide contains lists of information and documents needed to draft an instrument creating an easement, important determinations that the attorney should make before drafting the instrument, and procedures for drafting and executing the instrument. The forms include several complete deeds and agreements creating easements; alternative and additional contractual provisions; and related documents, such as a complete license agreement, and an agreement to share the expenses of maintaining a right-of-way.

A profit (also sometimes referred to as a profit a prendre) is the right to make some use of another's land, such as the right to mine minerals. It includes (1) the right of entry, (2) the right to remove and take from the land the designated products or profit, and (3) the right to use the surface to the extent necessary and convenient for the exercise of the profit [Costa Mesa Union Sch. Dist. v. Security First Nat. Bk. (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 4, 11-12, 62 Cal. Rptr. 113 ; see Callahan v. Martin (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 110, 120-121, 43 P.2d 788] .

Although profits have traditionally been distinguished from easements [see, e.g., Richfield Oil Co. v. Hercules Gasoline Co. (1931) 112 Cal. App. 431, 434, 297 P. 73] , this limitation does not generally apply in California [Leggio v. Haggerty (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 873, 880, 42 Cal. Rptr. 400 ; see Restatement of Property § 450, "Special Note"]. For example, the Civil Code does not distinguish between easements and profits. In fact, its lists of easements [see Civ. Code §§ 801, 802; see also §§ 28A.14 [2], 28A.15 [2]] include rights that constitute profits, including the "right of taking water, wood, minerals, or other things" [Civ. Code § 802(6)]. Thus, a profit may be characterized as an easement [Costa Mesa Union Sch. Dist. v. Security First Nat. Bk. (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 4, 11, 62 Cal. Rptr. 113] , and is subject to the same rules that apply to easements [see Gerhard v. Stephens (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 864, 880, 881, 69 Cal. Rptr. 612 ; Leggio v. Haggerty (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 873, 879, 880, 42 Cal. Rptr. 400 ; Restatement of Property § 450, "Special Note"]. Consequently, unless otherwise indicated, the statutory and case law discussed in this chapter apply to both easements and profits.

For additional coverage of profits, see California Real Estate Law Practice, Chapter 343, Easements and Licenses (Matthew Bender).

CHAPTER 28A EASEMENTS AND LICENSES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-28A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28A.12

§ 28A.12 Easements Distinguished From Other Rights

[1] In General

A property owner may have a right in the property of another that is not properly classified as an easement, but that may be quite similar in scope, creation, and use to an easement. These noneasement rights include licenses, covenants running with the land, and equitable servitudes. Property owners also have certain "natural rights" incident to the ownership of land that resemble easements. Each of these rights is discussed in [2]-[5], below.

[2] Licenses

A license entitles its holder to do an act or acts on the land of another [Colvin v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 1306, 1312, 240 Cal. Rptr. 142 ; see Eastman v. Piper (1924) 68 Cal. App. 554, 560, 229 P. 1002] . Licenses are often distinguished from easements on the ground that the former are revocable and the latter are irrevocable [see, e.g., Colvin v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 1306, 1312, 240 Cal. Rptr. 142] . However, the California Supreme Court has recognized that the differences between a license and an easement are often subtle and difficult to discern [Cohen v. Adolph Kutner Co. (1918) 177 Cal. 592, 594, 171 P. 424] .

For additional coverage of licenses, see Section 28A.230[1].

[3] Covenants

A restrictive covenant is a promise to refrain from doing certain things in regard to the use of land [Sackett v. Los Angeles City School Dist. (1931) 118 Cal. App. 254, 257, 5 P.2d 23] . The covenant may be created in a deed or in a separate agreement [see Civ. Code § 1468]. Although covenants are similar to easements in that they impose restrictions on the use of land, California law recognizes significant differences between them. For example, covenants are subject to specific statutory provisions that limit the circumstances under which they will "run with the land" [see Civ. Code §§ 1460-1470]. Further, covenants do not generally impart a right to use another's land, but merely a right to control (that is, limit or restrict) that use. For complete coverage of covenants, see Chapter 28C, Covenants, Conditions, and Restrictions .

[4] Equitable Servitudes

The doctrine of equitable servitudes rests on the equitable notion that one who takes property with notice of a restriction should be bound to observe that restriction [Richardson v. Callahan (1931) 213 Cal. 683, 687, 3 P.2d 927] . The development of this concept led to restrictions that were enforceable in equity by any party in whose favor the restrictions were imposed [Bryan v. Grosse (1909) 155 Cal. 132, 135-136, 99 P. 499] .

Like covenants that run with the land, equitable servitudes are contractual arrangements that have, through a process of judicial evolution, taken on many of the characteristics of interests in real property. Unlike covenants, equitable servitudes are subject to the particular rules and requirements of courts of equity.

For additional coverage of equitable servitudes, see Chapter 28C, Covenants, Conditions, and Restrictions .

[5] Natural Rights

Certain "natural rights" in land do not depend on special grants, conveyances, or agreements. These rights are incidents of ownership that exist as corollaries to the possession of land [see Powell On Real Property, ch. 34, Easements and Licenses (Matthew Bender)]. They include rights that owners of property abutting on public streets or roads have in those streets or roads, such as the right of ingress and egress to and from the street [see, e.g., Breidert v. Southern Pac. Co. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 659, 663, 39 Cal. Rptr. 903, 394 P.2d 719] . They also include a landowner's rights and duties with respect to adjoining landowners. An example of such a right is the right to lateral and subjacent support that land receives from adjoining land [see Civ. Code § 832; Sargent v. Jaegling (1927) 83 Cal. App. 485, 487, 256 P. 1116] . For additional coverage of these natural rights, see California Real Estate Law Practice, Chapter 343, Easements and Licenses (Matthew Bender).

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-28A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28A.14

§ 28A.14 Easements Appurtenant

[1] In General

An easement is appurtenant when it is attached to the land of the owner of the easement, and benefits him or her as the owner or possessor of that land [City of Anaheim v. Metropolitan Water Dist. of Southern Cal. (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 763, 767, 147 Cal. Rptr. 336 ; see Leggio v. Haggerty (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 873, 880, 42 Cal. Rptr. 400 ; Restatement of Property § 453]. The property to which the easement is attached is referred to as the dominant tenement, and the land burdened by the easement (that is, the land over which the easement runs) is called the servient tenement [Civ. Code § 803; City of Anaheim v. Metropolitan Water Dist. of Southern Cal. (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 763, 767, 147 Cal. Rptr. 336] . The dominant and servient tenements need not be contiguous [Jensen v. Ritter (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 473, 479, 8 Cal. Rptr. 263] .

Since it is attached to a dominant tenement, an easement appurtenant passes with the transfer of the dominant tenement [Leggio v. Haggerty (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 873, 880, 42 Cal. Rptr. 400 ; Rubio Canon etc. Assoc. v. Everett (1908) 154 Cal. 29, 33, 96 P. 811 ; Civ. Code §§ 1084, 1104]. It cannot be transferred to a third party or severed from the dominant tenement [City of Anaheim v. Metropolitan Water Dist. of Southern Cal. (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 763, 768, 147 Cal. Rptr. 336 ; Leggio v. Haggerty (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 873, 880, 42 Cal. Rptr. 400] . However, if a grantor reserves an existing easement appurtenant from the grant, the easement will not pass with the grant [see Civ. Code § 1084].

[2] Examples of Easements Appurtenant

Civil Code Section 801 sets forth the following list of types of easements appurtenant:

(1) The right of pasture.

(2) The right of fishing.

(3) The right of taking game.

(4) The right-of-way.

(5) The right of taking water, wood, minerals, and other things.

(6) The right of transacting business upon land.

(7) The right of conducting lawful sports upon land.

(8) The right of receiving air, light, or heat from or over land, or the right of discharging air, light, or heat upon or over land.

(9) The right of receiving water from, or discharging water upon, land.

(10) The right of flooding land.

(11) The right of having water flow without diminuition or disturbance of any kind.

(12) The right of using a wall as a party wall [see ch. 28B, Party Walls and Boundary Agreements].

(13) The right of receiving more than natural support from adjacent land or things affixed to adjacent land.

(14) The right of having the whole of a division fence maintained by a coterminous owner.

(15) The right of having public conveyances stopped, or of stopping public conveyances on land.

(16) The right of a seat in church.

(17) The right of burial.

(18) The right of receiving sunlight upon or over land [see Civ. Code § 801.5].

This list is not exclusive [Jersey Farm Co. v. Atlanta Realty Co. (1912) 164 Cal. 412, 415, 129 P. 593 ; Wright v. Best (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 368, 382, 121 P.2d 702] . Additional easements may be created as long as no principle of public policy is violated [Wright v. Best (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 368, 382, 121 P.2d 702] .

CHAPTER 28A EASEMENTS AND LICENSES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-28A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28A.15

§ 28A.15 Easements in Gross

[1] In General

An easement in gross is a personal interest in the real property of another. It is a personal right as well as a personal interest in real property. Because the easement belongs to the holder individually, there is no dominant tenement [Balestra v. Button (1942) 54 Cal. App. 2d 192, 197 ; see City of Anaheim v. Metropolitan Water Dist. of Southern Cal. (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 763, 768, 147 Cal. Rptr. 336 ; see also § 28A.14 [1] (discussion of dominant and servient tenements)]. However, an easement in gross always involves a servient tenement [see Balestra v. Button (1942) 54 Cal. App. 2d 192, 197, 128 P.2d 816] .

Although easements in gross were once considered to be nonassignable [see Eastman v. Piper (1924) 68 Cal. App. 554, 567, 229 P. 1002] , it is now clear that they are fully transferable [Collier v. Oelke (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 843, 846-847, 21 Cal. Rptr. 140] . Further, unlike an easement appurtenant, an easement in gross may be conveyed independently of land [City of Anaheim v. Metropolitan Water Dist. of Southern Cal. (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 763, 768, 147 Cal. Rptr. 336 ; see § 28A.14[1]].

[2] Examples of Easements in Gross

The Civil Code sets forth the following list of types of easements in gross [Civ. Code § 802]:

(1) The right to pasture.

(2) The right to fish and take game.

(3) The right to a seat in church.

(4) The right of burial.

(5) The right of taking rents and tolls.

(6) The right-of-way.

(7) The right of taking water, wood, minerals, or other things.

This list is illustrative rather than exclusive [Gion v. City of Santa Cruz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 29, 44 n.3, 84 Cal. Rptr. 162] . For example, a common type of easement in gross that is not included in the list is the easement of a power company for utility lines [see Hamaker v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1922) 59 Cal. App. 642, 644, 211 P. 265] .

§ 28A.16 Classification of Easement as In Gross or Appurtenant

In determining whether an easement is in gross or appurtenant, the court will look primarily to the nature of the right and to the intention of the parties. The courts, however, favor the construction of easements as appurtenant [Leggio v. Haggerty (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 873, 879, 42 Cal. Rptr. 400] .

The court will look to extrinsic evidence to determine the grantor's intent if (1) the intent does not appear from the grant, or (2) the language of the grant is ambiguous [Continental Baking Co. v. Katz (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 512, 521-523, 67 Cal. Rptr. 761 ; City of Anaheim v. Metropolitan Water Dist. of Southern Cal. (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 763, 768, 147 Cal. Rptr. 336 ; *Leggio v. PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 28A.17 Affirmative and Negative Easements

Easements may be classified as either affirmative or negative, even though this distinction has no substantive effect under California law. This classification is based on the activity that the easement permits or forbids on the servient tenement.

An affirmative easement allows the easement owner to do something on the servient tenement that he or she would not otherwise be entitled to do [Restatement of Property § 451]. An example of an affirmative easement is the right to build and maintain power lines on another's land. A negative easement allows the easement owner to prohibit a property owner from doing acts on the property that the property owner would otherwise be entitled to do [Restatement of Property § 452]. For example, a negative easement may prevent the owner of the servient tenement from obstructing light passing over the servient tenement and onto the dominant tenement.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-28A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28A.18

§ 28A.18 Particular Kinds of Easements

[1] Rights-of-Way

A right-of-way is an easement that gives a person or class of persons the right to pass over the land of another [Kripp v. Curtis (1886) 71 Cal. 62, 63, 11 P. 879 ; Wood et al. v. Truckee Turnpike Co. (1864) 24 Cal. 474, 487] . However, the term "right-of-way" is also commonly used to refer to the strip of land over which the easement runs [Anderson v. Willson (1920) 48 Cal. App. 289, 295, 191 P. 1016 ; Moakley v. Los Angeles Pacific Ry. Co. (1934) 139 Cal. App. 421, 424, 34 P.2d 218] .

A right-of-way may be public or private. A public right-of-way, usually referred to as a highway or a public road, is a right-of-way that every citizen has a right to use. A private right-of-way may be used only by a particular person or class of persons [Kripp v. Curtis (1886) 71 Cal. 62, 64, 11 P. 879] .

[2] Water Easements

An easement may consist of the right to use water flowing on, over, or from land. Specifically, Civil Code Section 801 [see § 28A.14 [2]] provides that the following are easements appurtenant:

(1) The right to take water [Civ. Code § 801(5)].

(2) The right to receive water from land [Civ. Code § 801(9)].

(3) The right to discharge water on land [Civ. Code § 801(9)].

(4) The right to flood land [Civ. Code § 801(10)].

(5) The right to have water flow without diminution or disturbance of any kind [Civ. Code § 801(11)].

Other water easements consist of the right to store water on land [Security Pac. Nat. Bank v. City of San Diego (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 421, 428, 97 Cal. Rptr. 61] , and the right to pollute a watercourse [Wright v. Best (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 368, 382, 121 P.2d 702] .

Water rights typically are easements appurtenant [see Civ. Code § 662; Jones v. Deardorff (1906) 4 Cal. App. 18, 24, 87 P. 213] . However, a water right, such as the right of taking water from land, may constitute an easement in gross [see Civ. Code § 802(6); see also § 28A.15 [2]]. In the case of an easement appurtenant, the owner of the dominant tenement has a transferable easement over the servient tenement, and is entitled to judicial protection against diminution or disturbance [LeBrun v. Richards (1930) 210 Cal. 308, 313-314, 291 P. 825 ; Farmer v. Ukiah Water Co. (1880) 56 Cal. 11, 13-14] .

[3] Party Walls

A party wall is essentially a common wall between two buildings, each of which is located on property owned by different owners [see Equitable Bldg. & Loan Asso. v. Wolfangle (1931) 111 Cal. App. 119, 122, 295 P. 388 ; Tate v. Fratt (1896) 112 Cal. 613, 618, 44 P. 1061] . It is considered an easement appurtenant under Civ. Code § 801(12) [see § 28A.14[2]]. For complete coverage of party walls, see Ch. 28B, Party Walls and Boundary Agreements .

[4] Support for Land and Buildings

Every owner of land is entitled to the lateral and subjacent support that his or her land receives from adjoining land [Civ. Code § 832]. The right of lateral support of land in its natural state is a "natural" right and not an easement [Sargent v. Jaegling (1927) 83 Cal. App. 485, 487, 256 P. 1116] . However, this right may be altered, expanded, or diminished by easement. For example, the right of receiving more than natural support from adjacent land is one of the types of appurtenant easements recognized by statute [see Civ. Code § 801(13); see also § 28A.14[2]].

[5] Easements for Light, Air, and View

A landowner has no natural right to air, light, or an unobstructed view [Pacifica Homeowners' Assn. v. Wesley Palms Retirement Community (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 1147, 1152, 224 Cal. Rptr. 380] . However, this type of right may be created by private parties through the granting of an easement [Pacifica Homeowners' Assn. v. Wesley Palms Retirement Community (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 1147, 1152, 224 Cal. Rptr. 380 ; Petersen v. Friedman (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 245, 247-248, 328 P.2d 264 ; see Civ. Code § 801(8), (18)].

[6] Solar Easements

In addition to judicially-recognized easements for light, air, and view, California statutory law recognizes a "solar easement." A solar easement is defined as the the right of receiving sunlight across another person's real property for a solar energy system [Civ. Code §§ 801(18), 801.5(a)]. For these purposes, "solar energy system" means any solar collector or other solar energy device, or any structural design feature of a building, whose primary purpose is to provide for the collection, storage, and distribution of solar energy for space heating or cooling, electric generation, or for water heating [Civ. Code § 801.5(a)(1)]. For further discussion of these easements, see § 28A.211[1].

[7] Conservation, Open-Space, and Agricultural Conservation Easements

Conservation easements [see Civ. Code § 815.1], open-space easements [see Gov. Code § 51075], and agricultural conservation easements [see Pub. Res. Code § 10211] are additional types of easements recognized in California. These types of easements are included in each county recorder's comprehensive index of conservation easements and Notices of Conservation Easements on land within the county, which include all conservation easements recorded on or after January 1, 2002, as well as notices of conservation easements filed with the county recorder [see Gov. Code § 27255].

For further discussion of these types of easements and other types of related restrictions, see Ch. 28D, Conservation Restrictions on Use of Agricultural and Open-Space Land . For additional coverage of the comprehensive index of conservation easements, see § 28A.29.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-28A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28A.19

§ 28A.19 Overview of Creation of Easements

Because an easement is an interest in land, it can be created by express or implied grant [see Civ. Code § 1053 (a grant is a transfer in writing)], by express reservation in a grant of property, or by prescription, but generally not by parol [Eastman v. Piper (1924) 68 Cal. App. 554, 561, 229 P. 1002] . This chapter is concerned primarily with the express creation of easements, and only incidentally with the prevention of prescriptive easements. Implied easements are not covered in this chapter, but are discussed in detail in California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 343, Easements and Licenses (Matthew Bender).

An easement can be created only by one who has a vested estate in the servient tenement [Civ. Code § 804]. The owner of the servient tenement cannot hold the easement [Civ. Code § 805]. However, a property owner who conveys less than full title may validly create easements in his or her favor on the property. "Owner" under Civ. Code § 805 means the owner of the full fee title, both legal and equitable, such that a property owner who owns less than full title may validly create easements in his or her own favor on his or her land [Beyer v. Tahoe Sands Resort (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 1458, 1473, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 561 (easements validly created by landowners who expressly reserved easements when they dedicated portion of their real property, including common areas, to time-share project and conveyed property's legal title to bank as trustee under trust agreement for project)].

[1] Written Instrument

An express grant of an easement must be in writing, subscribed by the party (or by the duly authorized agent of the party) creating it [see Empire Investment Co. v. Mort. (1915) 169 Cal. 732, 739, 147 P. 960 ; Wagner v. Hanna (1869) 38 Cal. 111, 117] . This requirement is based on (1) the principle that the creation of easements is subject to the same rules as the creation of other interests in real property [see Restatement of Property § 467(a); see also Powell On Real Property, ch. 34, Easements and Licenses (Matthew Bender)], and (2) certain statutory provisions (including the Statute of Frauds) that require that certain contracts be in writing. Under these statutes, an agreement for the sale of an interest in real property is invalid unless the agreement, or some note or memorandum of the agreement, is in writing and subscribed by the party to be charged or by the party's duly authorized agent [Civ. Code § 1624(c)]. Further, no interest in real property (other than leases not exceeding one year), nor any power over or concerning real property, can be created, granted, assigned, surrendered, or declared except by operation of law or by an instrument in writing, subscribed by the party creating, granting, assigning, surrendering, or declaring it (or the party's duly authorized agent) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1971]. An easement is subject to these statutory provisions because it is an interest in real property [see § 28A.10].

The form of the writing used to create an easement is usually a deed or an agreement [see Powell On Real Property, ch. 34, Easements and Licenses (Matthew Bender); Bowman, Ogden's Revised California Real Property Law, vol. 1, ch. 13, Easements (Cal. CEB 1974)]. However, an instrument other than a deed may be used to create an easement [see, e.g., Renden v. Geneva Development Corp. (1967) 253 Cal. App. 2d 578, 586, 61 Cal. Rptr. 463 (lease); A. Hamburger & Sons, Inc. v. Lemboeck (1937) 20 Cal. App. 2d 565, 568-569, 67 P.2d 380 (deed of trust); Eastman v. Piper (1924) 68 Cal. App. 554, 561, 229 P. 1002 (separate instrument)].

There are limited exceptions to the requirement of a writing for the creation of an interest in real property. For example, an executed oral agreement between the creator of an easement and a person seeking to enforce rights in the easement is sufficient to vest the latter with rights enforceable in equity [Wilkes v. Brady (1927) 84 Cal. App. 365, 369, 258 P. 108 ; Stoner v. Zucker (1906) 148 Cal. 516, 519, 83 P. 808] . Further, an easement may be enforceable under the doctrine of equitable estoppel if the owner of the dominant tenement relies on representations or conduct of the owner of the servient tenement, and the imposition of an easement is necessary to prevent an injustice [see, e.g., Prescott v. Edwards (1897) 117 Cal. 298, 302-303, 49 P. 178 ; Cline v. Haines (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 560, 562-563, 13 Cal. Rptr. 797] . For further discussion of these exceptions, see California Real Estate Law Practice, Chapter 343, Easements and Licenses (Matthew Bender).

[2] Required Contents of Writing and Additional Formalities

The instrument granting the easement must describe both the land subject to the easement and the use to which the land is to be put [City of Glendora v. Faus (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 920, 926, 307 P.2d 976] . The description of the servient tenement must be sufficient to identify the property [see Gas & E. Co. v. Crockett L. & C. Co. (1924) 70 Cal. App. 283, 293, 233 P. 370 ; see also Maywood Mut. Water Co. No. 2 v. City of Maywood (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 266, 270, 100 Cal. Rptr. 174 (description must definitely describe the servient tenement)]. However, the easement need not be described by metes or bounds or other descriptions providing definite dimensions of the easement [Maywood Mut. Water Co. No. 2 v. City of Maywood (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 266, 270, 100 Cal. Rptr. 174] . If the location and limits of the easement are not specified in the grant, a reasonably convenient and suitable location is presumed to be intended [Maywood Mut. Water Co. No. 2 v. City of Maywood (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 266, 270, 100 Cal. Rptr. 174 ; Wilson v. Abrams (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 1030, 1034, 82 Cal. Rptr. 272] .

The instrument need not mention the grantee by name if it contains a designation or description that is sufficient to identify the grantee [Whitson v. Goudeseune (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 445, 447, 290 P.2d 590 ("to the present owners of said lot 3" held to be a sufficient description); Carlson v. Lindquer (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 292, 306, 259 P.2d 925] . Further, the instrument need not contain the term "easement" if the clear implication of the grant is that an easement was intended [Maywood Mut. Water Co. No. 2 v. City of Maywood (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 266, 270, 100 Cal. Rptr. 174] .

A present grant of an easement is an executed contract and does not require consideration for the grant to be valid [Civ. Code § 1040; Eastman v. Piper (1924) 68 Cal. App. 554, 569, 229 P. 1002] .

Although the instrument need not be recorded to be enforceable against the grantor, recordation may be necessary to assert easement rights against a transferee of the grantor who purchases the servient tenement for value and without notice of the easement [Pollard v. Rebman (1912) 162 Cal. 633, 634, 124 P. 235 ; see Ch. 27, Deeds and Recording].

[3] Construction

In interpreting any document that creates an easement, the rules governing the construction of deeds generally apply [Eastman v. Piper (1924) 68 Cal. App. 554, 561, 229 P. 1002 ; McManus v. Sequoyah Land Assoc. (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 348, 353, 49 Cal. Rptr. 592 ; see Ch. 27, Deeds and Recording]. Thus, as a general rule, a deed or other instrument creating an easement must be interpreted in the same way that contracts in general are interpreted [see Civ. Code § 1066; City of Glendora v. Faus (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 920, 926, 307 P.2d 976] . For complete coverage of the interpretation of contracts, see Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions . The remainder of this discussion will focus on the construction of easements and other grants.

If the language in an instrument conveying an easement is clear and explicit, parol evidence may not be used to show the nature and extent of the rights acquired [Wilson v. Abrams (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 1030, 1035, 82 Cal. Rptr. 272] . However, if the language is ambiguous, extrinsic evidence may be admitted to determine its meaning [McManus v. Sequoyah Land Assoc. (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 348, 353, 49 Cal. Rptr. 592 ; see Maywood Mut. Water Co. No. 2 v. City of Maywood (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 266, 270-271, 100 Cal. Rptr. 174] .

As a general rule, any ambiguities in a grant of an easement must be construed against the drafter of the instrument [Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. Hacienda Mobile Home Park (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 519, 525, 119 Cal. Rptr. 559] .

However, this rule must be tempered by the rule that the grant of an easement must be liberally construed in favor of the grantee [Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. Hacienda Mobile Home Park (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 519, 525, 119 Cal. Rptr. 559 ; see Civ. Code § 1069 (a grant, other than a grant by a public officer or body to a private party, must be interpreted in the grantee's favor); see also City of Los Angeles v. Howard (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 538, 545, 53 Cal. Rptr. 274 (directive that every grant by public body is to be interpreted in favor of grantor applies only if there is ambiguity in grant); Red Mountain v. Fallbrook Public Utility Dist. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 333, 347, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 875 (access easement had to be construed in favor of grantor public utility)].

[4] Extent of Easement

The extent or scope of an easement created by an express grant is determined by the language of the grant [Civ. Code § 806 (extent of a servitude is determined by the terms of the grant); City of Los Angeles v. Ingersoll-Rand Co. (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 889, 894, 129 Cal. Rptr. 485 ; Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. Hacienda Mobile Home Park (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 519, 526, 119 Cal. Rptr. 559] . If the grant does not precisely define the rights conferred by the easement, the scope of the easement is construed as whatever is reasonably necessary and convenient for the purpose for which the easement was created [Wilson v. Abrams (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 1030, 1034, 82 Cal. Rptr. 272 ; see Atchison, T. & S.F. R. Co. v. Abar (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 456, 464, 79 Cal. Rptr. 807] .

DIVISION II: REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 28A EASEMENTS AND LICENSES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-28A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28A.21

§ 28A.21 Creation by Express Reservation

[1] In General

An easement may be created by express reservation in a deed or other instrument [see Coon v. Sonoma Magnesite Co. (1920) 182 Cal. 597, 601-602, 189 P. 271 ; City of Los Angeles v. Howard (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 538, 542-543, 53 Cal. Rptr. 274] . A reservation allows the grantor's entire interest in the subject property to pass to the grantee, but revests a newly created interest in the grantor or a third party [Willard v. First Church of Christ, Scientist (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 473, 476, 102 Cal. Rptr. 739] .

[2] Reservation Distinguished From Exception

Although the terms "reservation" and "exception" are frequently used interchangeably to refer to a clause in an instrument of conveyance that detracts from what the grantee would otherwise receive under the instrument, there are material differences between the two terms [Main v. Legnitto (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 667, 677, 41 Cal. Rptr. 223] . For example, a reservation must be interpreted in favor of the grantor [Civ. Code § 1069], while an exception must be strictly interpreted against the grantor [Lange v. Waters (1909) 156 Cal. 142, 146, 103 P. 889] . Consequently, it is important to distinguish between these two types of clauses.

An exception prevents part of the grantor's interest from passing to the grantee. The excepted interest remains in the grantor [Willard v. First Church of Christ, Scientist (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 473, 476 n.1, 102 Cal. Rptr. 739] . Typically, a physical part of the land is excluded from the conveyance [see Sears v. Ackerman (1903) 138 Cal. 583, 586, 72 P. 171 ; see also Powell On Real Property, ch. 34, Easements and Licenses (Matthew Bender)]. Thus, it has been argued that the use of an exception is not, technically, appropriate for the creation of an easement because an exception does not create a new interest in the land of another [see Bowman, Ogden's Revised California Real Property Law (Cal. CEB 1974), vol. 1, ch. 13, Easements; see also § 28A.10]. However, the question of whether a particular provision in an instrument of conveyance is an exception or a reservation is not conclusively determined by the use of the term "reservation" or "exception" alone, and the courts will disregard the words used if necessary to effectuate the real intentions of the parties as ascertained from the whole conveyance [Coon v. Sonoma Magnesite Co. (1920) 182 Cal. 597, 600, 189 P. 271 ; Main v. Legnitto (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 667, 677-678, 41 Cal. Rptr. 223] .

DIVISION II: REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 28A EASEMENTS AND LICENSES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-28A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28A.22

§ 28A.22 Creation of Public Easement on Private Land

If authorized by a local ordinance, a local agency may require an owner of real property to record a covenant of easement that gives the city or county an easement for any of the following: parking, ingress, egress, emergency access, light and air access, landscaping, or open-space purposes [see Gov. Code §§ 65870, 65871(a)]. This method of creating an easement is in addition to any other method permitted by law [Gov. Code § 65871(a)].

The covenant of easement must (1) provide a legal description of the dominant and servient tenements, and (2) identify the approval, permit, or designation that relied upon or required the covenant [Gov. Code §§ 65871(c), 65873]. Once executed by the owner of the servient tenement, the covenant is enforceable by the successors in interest to the dominant tenement [Gov. Code §§ 65871(d), 65873].

The covenant of easement must be recorded in the county where all or a portion of the restricted property is located. At the time of recordation, all the real property benefited or burdened by the covenant must be in common ownership. The covenant becomes effective upon recordation and thereafter acts as an easement pursuant to the easement provisions of the Civil Code [see Civ. Code §§ 801-813], except that it cannot merge into any other interest in the real property [Gov. Code § 65871(b); see Civ. Code § 1104 (governing conveyance of affected real property)]. A recorded covenant also imparts notice of the covenant to all persons pursuant to the recording laws of California. Further, the burdens of the recorded covenant will be binding on, and the benefits of the covenant will inure to, all successors in interest to the servient tenement [Gov. Code § 65873].

Any local ordinance governing covenants for public easements must provide a procedure for the release of the covenant [Gov. Code § 65874(a); see Gov. Code § 65874(c)]. The city or county must record a release upon a determination that the restriction of the property is no longer necessary to achieve the local land use goals [Gov. Code § 65874(b)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-28A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28A.23

§ 28A.23 Easements Acquired by Prescription

[1] In General

An easement may be acquired by prescription. Although the focus of this chapter is on easements that are created by express grant or reservation, the following summary of the laws governing easements by prescription is included because this chapter covers the procedures a property owner may follow to prevent the loss of real property by prescription [see § 28A.142].

The elements necessary to establish a prescriptive easement are, with the exception of the requirement that taxes be paid, essentially the same as those required for the acquisition of title by adverse possession [Warsaw v. Chicago Metallic Ceilings, Inc. (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 564, 571, 199 Cal. Rptr. 773, 676 P.2d 584 ; see Kapner v. Meadowlark Ranch Assn. (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 1182, 1187, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 138 ; Harrison v. Welch (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 1084, 1094, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 92 ; Mehdizadeh v. Mincer (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1296, 1305, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 284 ; Silacci v. Abramson (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 558, 562-563, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 37] . Thus, the person claiming the easement must show that he or she has used the property over which the easement is claimed for at least five years, and that the use has been open, notorious, continuous, uninterrupted, hostile to the true owner, and under a claim of right [Warsaw v. Chicago Metallic Ceilings, Inc. (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 564, 570, 199 Cal. Rptr. 773, 676 P.2d 584 ; Taormino v. Denny (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 679, 686, 83 Cal. Rptr. 359, 463 P.2d 711 ; see Mehdizadeh v. Mincer (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1296, 1305, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 284 ; Silacci v. Abramson (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 558, 562-563, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 37] . For extensive coverage of these elements, see California Real Estate Law Practice, Ch. 343, Easements and Licenses (Matthew Bender).

[2] Notice or Posting to Prevent Acquisition

The owner of real property may prevent another person from acquiring a prescriptive right in the property by following either of two statutory procedures. The first involves the recordation of a notice, and the second requires the posting of signs.

Under the first procedure, the holder of record title to land may record a description of the land that includes a statutory notice indicating that the right of others to use the land is by permission [see Civ. Code § 813; see also § 28A.234

(statutory notice)]. The notice may be recorded in the office of the recorder of any county in which any part of the land is situated. Further, if the property is used by other than the general public (that is, by a specific person or persons), the notice must be served by registered mail on the user(s). Following recordation, in any action involving the issue of whether land has been dedicated to public use or whether any user has acquired a prescriptive right to use land, the notice constitutes conclusive evidence that subsequent use of the land during the time the notice is in effect is permissive and with the owner's consent [Civ. Code § 813; see § 28A.234[1] (additional coverage)].

The second procedure authorizes a property owner to post signs at each entry to the property or at intervals of not more than 200 feet along the boundary. The signs must read substantially as follows: "Right to pass by permission, and subject to control, of owner: Section 1008, Civil Code." If these requirements are satisfied, no use by any person or persons, no matter how long the use continues, will ever ripen into an easement by prescription [Civ. Code § 1008; see § 28A.236 (illustrative notice and additional coverage)]. To be legally operative, the "permission to pass" sign must be posted by the landowner or by the landowner's authorized agent [Aaron v. Dunham (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 1244, 1252, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 32 (posting by lessee of "permission to pass" sign on private road did not prevent acquisition of prescriptive easement because sign was not posted by property owner or owner's authorized agent)].

CHAPTER 28A EASEMENTS AND LICENSES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-28A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28A.24

§ 28A.24 Maintenance of Easement

The owner of an easement has the duty to keep the easement in repair [McManus v. Sequoyah Land Assoc. (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 348, 356, 49 Cal. Rptr. 592] . The servient owner is under no duty to maintain or repair the easement [Herzog v. Grosso (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 219, 228, 259 P.2d 429] . However, the parties may alter this obligation by contract. Consequently, the servient owner may enter into a binding agreement to join in keeping the easement in repair [Rose v. Peters (1943) 59 Cal. App. 2d 833, 835, 139 P.2d 983] .

An express or implied grant of an easement carries with it a "secondary" easement that gives the dominant owner the right to enter on the servient tenement to make repairs and do any other things that are necessary for the full exercise of the primary easement [Oliver v. Agasse (1901) 132 Cal. 297, 299, 64 P. 401 ; see Ward v. City of Monrovia (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 815, 821-822, 108 P.2d 425 ; see also Herzog v. Grosso (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 219, 225, 259 P.2d 429 (easement owner has right to do everything that is reasonably necessary to use easement)]. This secondary easement must be exercised only when necessary, and in a reasonable manner that does not needlessly increase the burden on the servient tenement [Oliver v. Agasse (1901) 132 Cal. 297, 299, 64 P. 401] . To reduce the possibility of litigation, the grant of easement should set forth a specific description of the type of maintenance and repairs contemplated.

Special statutory requirements apply to the maintenance of a private right-of-way. Specifically, the owner of such an easement, or of any land to which any such easement is attached, must maintain it in repair [Civ. Code § 845(a)]. If the easement is owned by more than one person, or is appurtenant to parcels of land under different ownership, the cost of maintaining it in repair must be shared by each owner of the easement or each owner of an appurtenant parcel, as the case may be, pursuant to the terms of any agreement entered into by the parties for that purpose [Civ. Code § 845(b)]. In the absence of such an agreement, the cost of maintaining the right-of-way in repair must be shared proportionately to the use made of the easement by each owner [Civ. Code § 845(c)]. For further discussion of these statutory requirements and an illustrative maintenance agreement, see Section 28A.231.

§ 28A.25 Division of Dominant Tenement

If a dominant tenement is partitioned, the burden of the easement must be apportioned according to the division of the dominant tenement [Civ. Code § 807]. Thus, the owner or assignee of any portion of the dominant estate may assert his or her rights under the easement so far as applicable to his or her part of the property [Herbert v. Russell (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 63, 66, 81 Cal. Rptr. 448 ; Leggio v. Haggerty (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 873, 881, 42 Cal. Rptr. 400] . The burden, however, may not be apportioned so as to impose an undue or unreasonable burden on the servient tenement [Civ. Code § 807; Jordan v. Worthen (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 310, 327, 137 Cal. Rptr. 282] . For additional coverage of apportionment, see California Real Estate Law Practice, Chapter 343, Easements and Licenses (Matthew Bender).

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-28A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28A.26

§ 28A.26 Termination of Easements

[1] In General

An easement may be terminated or extinguished in a number of ways. For example, an easement may be created to last for a specified term, or to last until the occurrence of a specified event. An easement that terminates according to its own terms is said to terminate by expiration [Powell On Real Property, ch. 34, Easements and Licenses (Matthew Bender)].

The Civil Code recognizes the following ways in which an easement may be extinguished or terminated [Civ. Code § 811]:

> (1) By the vesting of the right to the easement and the right to the servient tenement in the same person (the doctrine of merger) [Civ. Code § 811(1); see Civ. Code § 805 (owner of servient tenement cannot own a servitude on the property); Leggio v. Haggerty (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 873, 881-884, 42 Cal. Rptr. 400] .
>
> (2) By the destruction of the servient tenement [Civ. Code § 811(2)].
>
> (3) By the performance of any act on either tenement, by the owner of the easement or with his or her assent, that is incompatible with its nature or exercise [Civ. Code § 811(3); see Crimmins v. Gould (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 383, 391, 308 P.2d 786] .
> (4) When the easement was acquired by prescription, by disuse of the easement by the owner of the servitude for the period prescribed for acquiring title by enjoyment [Civ. Code § 811(4); see § 28A.23 (discussion of easements by prescription)].

Additional methods or causes of termination include the following: the release or abandonment of the easement by the dominant owner [see [2], below]; the abandonment of a public easement [see Sts. & Hy. Code § 8300 et seq. (Public Streets, Highways, and Service Easements Vacation Law)]; adverse possession by the servient owner [see Glatts v.

Henson (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 368, 371, 188 P.2d 745] ; application of the doctrine of equitable estoppel [see Restatement of Property § 505; *Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. Silvestre (1978) 78 Cal. App. 3d 461, 471, 475, 144 Cal. Rptr. 478] . With the exception of the release or abandonment of the easement by the dominant owner [see [2], below], additional coverage of these methods and causes of termination is beyond the scope of this publication. For further discussion, see California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 343, Easements and Licenses (Matthew Bender).

[2] By Dominant Owner

As mentioned in [1], above, a dominant owner may extinguish or terminate an easement by (1) performing or consenting to the performance of an act on either tenement that is incompatible with the nature or exercise of the easement [Civ. Code § 811(3)], (2) releasing the easement, or (3) abandoning the easement. The remainder of this section discusses the release or abandonment of an easement by the dominant owner.

The owner of an easement may terminate the easement by releasing it to the servient owner. Because a release is subject to the same formal requirements that apply to instruments creating easements [Restatement of Property § 501, Comment a; Gaudio, Powell on Real Property, Ch. 34, Easements and Licenses (Matthew Bender); see §§ 28A.19-28A.21], a release must ordinarily be evidenced by a writing signed by the party to be charged [see Civ. Code § 1624(c); Code Civ. Proc. § 1971; see also § 28A.233 (quitclaim deed releasing easement)].

A dominant owner may also terminate an easement by abandoning it [Home R. E. Co. v. Los Angeles Pac. Co. (1912) 163 Cal. 710, 714, 126 P. 972] . As a general rule, the two elements required for abandonment are nonuse of the easement accompanied by an express or implied intent to abandon it [People v. Southern Pacific Co. (1916) 172 Cal. 692, 701, 158 P. 177 ; Faus v. City of Los Angeles (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 350, 363, 62 Cal. Rptr. 193] . For extensive coverage of the common law of abandonment, see California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 343, Easements and Licenses .

An easement may also be extinguished if the dominant owner performs or authorizes some act that (1) results in a physical change that permanently and materially prevents the dominant owner from using the easement, or (2) makes the dominant owner's use of the easement severely burdensome on the servient tenement [Reichardt v. Hoffman (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 754, 769, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 770] .

A special statutory procedure establishes fixed expiration periods for certain interests in real property, including abandoned easements [see Civ. Code § 880.020 et seq.; see also § 28A.141]. That procedure supplements and does not otherwise affect the common law of abandonment [Civ. Code § 887.030].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-28A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28A.27

§ 28A.27 Statutory Procedures Governing Abandonment and Preservation of Easements

[1] In General

The marketable record title provisions of the Civil Code [see Civ. Code § 880.020 et seq.] establish fixed expiration periods for various interests in real property, including abandoned easements [see Civ. Code § 887.010 ("easement" defined); see also Civ. Code § 887.020]. These provisions permit an owner of real property subject to an easement to bring an action to establish the abandonment of the easement and to clear record title of the easement. They also establish a procedure that permits the owner of the easement to preserve his or her rights in the easement [see § 28A.141 (coverage of both of the foregoing procedures)].

The marketable record title laws supplement and do not limit or otherwise affect the common law governing the abandonment of an easement or any other procedure for clearing an abandoned easement from title to real property [Civ. Code § 887.030].

[2] Abandoned Easements

For these purposes, an easement is abandoned only if, during the 20 years immediately preceding the commencement of the action, all of the following conditions have been satisfied [Civ. Code § 887.050(a); see Civ. Code § 887.050(b)]:

(1) The easement has not been used at any time.

(2) No separate property tax assessment has been made of the easement, or, if a separate property tax assessment has been made, no taxes have been paid on the assessment.

(3) No instrument creating, reserving, transferring, or otherwise evidencing the easement has been recorded.

To establish the abandonment of the easement and to clear record title of the easement, the owner of the real property subject to the easement must bring an action in the superior court of the county in which the real property is located [Civ. Code § 887.040(a),(b); see Civ. Code § 887.040(c)]. However, the court must permit the owner of the easement to record a late notice of intent to preserve the easement as a condition of dismissal of the action [Civ. Code § 887.070; see [3], below].

An abandoned easement is unenforceable and is deemed to have expired. A court order establishing abandonment pursuant to the marketable record title laws is equivalent for all purposes to a conveyance of the easement to the owner of the real property [Civ. Code § 887.080].

[3] Procedure to Preserve Easement

The owner of the easement may record a notice of intent to preserve the easement [Civ. Code § 887.060(a)]. An easement is not abandoned for purposes of the marketable record title provisions if recordation takes place (1) within 20 years immediately preceding the commencement of an action to establish the abandonment of the easement, or (2) pursuant to Civil Code Section 887.070 after commencement of an action to establish the abandonment of the easement and before judgment is entered in the action [Civ. Code § 887.060(c); see [2], above].

For additional coverage of the foregoing procedures and the official notice of intent to preserve interest form [see Civ. Code § 880.340], see Chapter 27, Deeds and Recording, § 27.289.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-28A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28A.28

§ 28A.28 Income Tax Considerations

If the grant of an easement deprives the grantor of practically all of his or her beneficial interest in the land, the grant is deemed to be a taxable sale of the land [see Rev. Rul. 54-575, 1954-2 C.B. 145 , modified on other issue, Rev. Rul. 72-433, 1972-2 CB 470]. For example, a grant of perpetual air rights over land that rendered a portion of the land unsafe for use was considered a sale of that portion of the land [see Rev. Rul. 54-575, 1954-2 C.B. 145 , modified on other issue, Rev. Rul. 72-433, 1972-2 CB 470].

If the grant does not deprive the grantor of his or her beneficial interest in the land, the transaction is deemed to be a sale of an easement [see Rev. Rul. 54-575, 1954-2 C.B. 145 , modified on other issue, Rev. Rul. 72-433, 1972-2 CB 470 ; Bender's Federal Tax Service, ch. E:1, Sales and Exchanges]. For example, the same grant of air rights described above was considered the sale of an easement over the portion of the land that remained usable [see Rev. Rul. 54-575, 1954-2 C.B. 145 , modified on other issue, Rev. Rul. 72-433, 1972-2 CB 470]. Similarly, the grant of a highway easement was not a taxable sale of the affected land when the taxpayer continued to pay realty taxes and to use the land to move cattle [Bledsoe v. U.S. (D.C. Okla. 1967) 67-2 U.S. Tax Cas. (CCH) P 9581]. The consideration received from the sale of an easement reduces the basis of the affected land [see Rev. Rul. 54-575, 1954-2 C.B. 145 , modified on other issue, Rev. Rul. 72-433, 1972-2 CB 470]. If only a portion of the property is affected by the easement and the basis for that portion is determinable, the amount received for the grant is offset against only that portion of the taxpayer's basis [Fasken v. Commissioner (1979) 71 T.C. 650, 655, 660] . If the allocation of basis is impractical, the amount realized is applied to reduce the basis for the entire property [Foster v. Commissioner (1983) 80 T.C. 34, 218-219 , aff'd on other issues, 756 F.2d 1430 (9th Cir. 1985) ; Inaja Land Co. v. Commissioner (1947) 9 T.C. 727, 735-736 ; Rev. Rul. 70-510, 1970-2 C.B. 159]. If the proceeds exceed the basis, the excess is taxable gain [see Rev. Rul. 54-575, 1954-2 C.B. 145 , modified on other issues, Rev. Rul. 72-433, 1972-2 CB 470].

A grant of an easement may constitute the sale or exchange of a capital asset [Rev. Rul. 59-121, 1959-1 C.B. 212]. If the affected land was used in the taxpayer's trade or business and held for the capital gains holding period, any recognized gain from the conveyance of the easement receives capital gains treatment [Fasken v. Commissioner (1979) 71 T.C. 650, 655, 660 ; Rev. Rul. 59-121, 1959-1 C.B. 212]. However, if the conveyance is limited to the time required to remove minerals or is subject to reversion for nonuse, the grant is considered a lease or license and does not constitute the sale of a capital asset [Nay v. Commr (1952) 19 T.C. 114, 119 ; Vest v. Commissioner (1971) 57 T.C.

128, 151 , rev'd on other grounds, 481 F.2d 238 (5th Cir. 1973)] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-28A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28A.29

§ 28A.29 Comprehensive Index of Conservation Easements

[1] Index Developed and Maintained by County Recorder

The county recorder in each county must develop and maintain, within the county's existing indexing system, a comprehensive index of conservation easements and Notices of Conservation Easements on land within the county. This index must include all conservation easements, as defined, recorded on or after January 1, 2002 [Gov. Code § 27255(a), (f); see § 28.29[2]. When a county recorder records a new conservation easement affecting property within the county, the recorder must include the easement in the comprehensive index if the document contains an easement entitled "conservation easement" or if the notice described in [3], below, is properly filled out by the submitter and recorded at the same time, or at a later date [Gov. Code § 27255(c); see Gov. Code §§ 27255(e), (c), 27361 (no fee under Gov. Code § 6103, but standard fee charged for recording)].

[2] Index Includes Conservation, Open-Space, and Agricultural Conservation Easements

For purpose of inclusion in the comprehensive index, a "conservation easement" means any limitation in a recorded instrument that [Gov. Code § 27255(b)]:

- Contains an easement, restriction, covenant, condition, or offer to dedicate, which is or has been executed by or on behalf of the owner of the land subject to that limitation.

- Is binding on successive owners of the land.

- Has as its purpose to retain land predominantly in its natural, scenic, historical, agricultural, forested, or open-space condition.

Included in the definition of "conservation easement" for these purposes are conservation easements as defined in Civ. Code § 815.1, open-space easements as defined in Gov. Code § 51075, and agricultural conservation easements as defined in Pub. Res. Code § 10211 [Gov. Code § 27255(b); see § 28A.18[7]]. For a further discussion of these types of easements and other types of related restrictions, see Ch. 28D, Conservation Restrictions on Use of Agricultural and Open-Space Land .

[3] Notice of Conservation Easement for Indexing Purposes

In addition to adding information to the comprehensive index concerning recorded documents that contain a specifically named conservation easement, a county recorder must also add information to the index concerning an easement that is described in a notice that is properly filled out by the submitter, and recorded at the same time as it is submitted, or at a later time. The form of that notice, entitled "NOTICE OF CONSERVATION EASEMENT," is prescribed by statute [see Gov. Code § 27255(c)]. The notice must include information on the recording of the easement, the grantors and grantees, and a declaration under penalty of perjury that the information given is true and correct. The notice itself is for indexing purposes only, and does not by itself constitute a conservation easement [Gov. Code § 27255(c)]. For a form of this statutory notice, see § 28A.237.

[4] Conservation Easements Recorded Before January 1, 2002

A conservation easement recorded before January 1, 2002, may be included in the comprehensive index of conservation easements if a party to the easement fills out and records a Notice of Conservation Easement for the previously recorded easement, and files the notice in the county in which the affected real property is located [Gov. Code § 27255(d); see § 28A.29[3]]. Any party to a conservation easement may fill out and record a notice, including, but not limited to, counties, cities, recreation and park districts or agencies, state conservancies, state agencies, the California Coastal Commission, land trusts, and nonprofit organizations [Gov. Code § 27255(d); see § 28A.237].

§ 28A.30 State Registry for Conservation Easements

The Natural Resources Agency is required to establish a central public registry of all conservation easements held or required by the state, or purchased with state grant funds provided by any agency, department, or division of the state on or after January 1, 2006 [Pub. Res. Code § 5096.520(a); see Pub. Res. Code § 5096.520(b) ("conservation easement" defined); see also Stats. 2006, ch. 531, § 1 (legislative intent)]. The registry will include the recordation number assigned by the county recorder and the following information on each conservation easement [Pub. Res. Code § 5096.520(c)]:

- The purpose of the easement;
- The location of the easement, identified by county and nearest city;
- The identity of the easement holder;
- The size of the easement in acres; and
- The date the easement transaction was recorded.

On or before January 1, 2009, the registry must be made available for use by the general public. Only the items of information listed above may be provided on the internet. No personal identifying information may be posted on the internet. The registry is to be updated biennially [Pub. Res. Code § 5096.520(e)]. The updating is to be done by each agency, department, or division of the state with conservation easements that are held or required by the state or purchased with state grant funds [Pub. Res. 4. Marital status of grantor.

5. Whether easement will be created by:

a. Express grant; or

An easement is appurtenant when it is attached to the land of the owner of the easement, and benefits him or her as the owner or possessor of that land [City of Anaheim v. Metropolitan Water Dist. of Southern Cal. (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 763, 767, 147 Cal. Rptr. 336 ; see § 28A.14].

3. Description of acts licensee will be permitted to perform on licensor's land.

4. Description of any incidental rights of licensee to use licensor's property.

5. Whether or not license will be assignable.

NOTE:
As a general rule, a license is not assignable because it is a personal privilege [Eastman v. Piper (1924) 68 Cal. App. 554, 560, 229 P. 1002 ; Shaw v. Caldwell (1911) 16 Cal. App. 678, 681, 174 P. 349] .

6. Duration of license.

7. Revocability of license.

NOTE:
The general rule is that a license may be revoked at any time at the will of the licensor [Wheeler v. West (1886) 71 Cal. 126, 129, 11 P. 871 ; County of Alameda v. Ross (1939)

32 Cal. App. 2d 135, 141-142, 89 P.2d 460] . However, there are exceptions to this rule. One major exception provides that a license "coupled with an interest" is not revocable but continues to exist for the period contemplated by the license [Bomberger v. McKelvey (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 607, 618, 220 P.2d 729] . 12-28A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28A.110

§ 28A.110 Easements

1. Does grantor have capacity to convey desired easement?

NOTE:

An easement can be created only by one who has a vested estate in the servient tenement [Civ. Code § 804].

A tenant in common cannot create an easement or servitude in the common land [Pfeiffer v. Regents of University (1887) 74 Cal. 156, 162, 15 P. 622] .

For coverage of the capacity of parties to convey real property, see Chapter 27, Deeds and Recording , and Volume 5, Chapter 23, Real Property Sales Agreements. The capacity of parties to contract in general is covered in Volume 14, Chapter 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions.

2. If instrument creating easement is to be recorded, is it subject to a documentary transfer tax?

a. Has such a tax been imposed by local ordinance on instruments conveying real property located in county or city in which servient tenement is situated [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11911(a), (b)]?

NOTE:

A California county may impose a transfer tax, by ordinance, on deeds and other instruments conveying real property located in the county [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11911(a), (b)]. Further, any city within a county that has imposed such a tax may also tax the transfer [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11911(b)]. Payment of any required transfer tax or taxes is a prerequisite to recordation [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11933]. For further discussion, see § 28A.220.

b. Will proposed easement endure for substantial period of time [see 62 Cal. Op. Att'y Gen. 87 (1979)] ?

NOTE:

An easement is subject to a documentary transfer tax imposed by local ordinance if the easement potentially may endure for a substantial period of time. The following are examples of easements that meet this criterion: a perpetual easement; an easement for life; or an easement for a fixed period of years that (1) can be renewed by the easement holder, or (2) is of sufficient length so as to approximate a perpetual easement or an easement for life [62 Cal. Op. Att'y Gen. 87 (1979)] .

12-28A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28A.111

§ 28A.111 Licenses

1. Will license be "coupled with an interest"?

NOTE:

A license coupled with an interest is not revocable but continues to exist for the period contemplated by the license [Bomberger v. McKelvey (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 607, 618, 220 P.2d 729] . The cases dealing with licenses coupled with an interest generally turn on the licensee's need to cross the licensor's land to reach property owned by the licensee [see California Real Estate Law Practice, ch. 343, Easements and Licenses (Matthew Bender); Bomberger v. McKelvey (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 607, 618].

2. If licensor wishes license to be revocable, is it likely that licensee will make expenditures or perform work in reasonable reliance on license?

NOTE:

If the licensee does so, the license may become irrevocable on the basis of estoppel [Hammond v. Mustard (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 384, 388-389, 64 Cal. Rptr. 829 ; Stoner v. Zucker (1906) 148 Cal. 516, 520, 83 P. 808 ; see California Real Estate Law Pract Ice, ch. 343, Easements and Licenses (Matthew Bender)].

12-28A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28A.120

§ 28A.120 Creation of Easement

1. If desired, retain licensed surveyor to prepare description of servient tenement [see § 28A.130, P 3c].

2. If instrument is subject to local documentary transfer tax [see § 28A.110, P 2]:

a. Compute amount of tax due [see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 11911, 11932; see also Ch. 27, Deeds and Recording, § 27.242].

b. Confirm that tax has been paid [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 11933; see also § 28A.220[1][b]].

3. Draft instrument creating and conveying easement [see § 28A.130 (drafting guide)].

4. Instruct following parties to sign instrument, as applicable:

NOTE:
For special execution requirements applicable to entities, see Chapter 27, Deeds and Recording .

a. Grantor (or grantor's duly authorized agent) [see Civ. Code § 1624(c); Code Civ. Proc. § 1971].

b. If grantor is married and servient tenement is community property, grantor's spouse [Fam. Code § 1102].

NOTE:
Both spouses (either personally or by duly authorized agent) must execute any instrument by which community real property or any interest in such property is sold, conveyed, or encumbered, or is leased for a period exceeding one year [Fam. Code § 1102].

c. Grantee, if instrument is an agreement [see Civ. Code § 1624(c)].

5. If grantor is married and claims that servient tenement is his or her separate property, have spouse sign statement (in instrument creating easement) indicating that he or she has no interest in servient tenement [see § 28A.130, P 5; see also § 28A.210[1][f]].

6. If instrument is to be recorded, take following steps:

a. Have execution acknowledged or proved [Gov. Code § 27287].

NOTE:

Before an instrument can be recorded, its execution must be acknowledged or proved and the acknowledgment or proof certified [Gov. Code § 27287]. An acknowledgment is a statement that an instrument was in fact signed by the person whose signature appears on the document [see, e.g., Civ. Code §§ 1190, 1190a]. In most cases, the execution will be acknowledged. An unacknowledged instrument cannot be recorded unless its execution is proved by the party executing the instrument, a subscribing witness, or other witnesses [Civ. Code § 1195; see Civ. Code § 1198]. Proof of execution may be used in lieu of acknowledgment only for a trustee's deed or a deed of reconveyance; proof of the execution in lieu of acknowledgment of a grant deed, mortgage, deed of trust, quitclaim deed, or security agreement is not permitted [Civ. Code § 1195(b); see Gov. Code § 27287; see also Civ. Code § 1195(b); Ch. 27, Deeds and Recording].

b. Have acknowledgment or proof certified [Gov. Code § 27287].

NOTE:

A certificate of acknowledgment is a formal declaration by an authorized officer [see Civ. Code § 1180-1184], usually a notary public, that the executing party made the acknowledgment in the officer's presence and that the officer had satisfactory evidence that the party was the individual who was described in and who executed the instrument [Civ. Code § 1185(a)]. The certificate must be substantially in the form prescribed by the appropriate provision of the Civil Code. For further discussion, see Ch. 27, Deeds and Recording*, § 27.271*.

An officer taking proof of the execution of an unacknowledged instrument must in his or her certificate set forth all the matters required by law to be proved before the officer [see Civ. Code §§ 1195-1199] and the names, places of residence, and substance of testimony of all the witnesses examined before the officer [Civ. Code § 1200; Ch. 27, Deeds and Recording].

c. Record instrument in county in which servient tenement is situated [Civ. Code §§ 1169, 1170].

d. Pay recording fee [see Gov. Code § 27361].

7. In the case of a deed:

a. Have grantor deliver deed to grantee [Civ. Code § 1054; Perry v. Wallner (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 218, 221, 23 Cal. Rptr. 352] .

NOTE:

A deed will not take effect until the grantor delivers it with the intent to transfer title [Civ. Code § 1054; Perry v. Wallner (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 218, 221, 23 Cal. Rptr. 352] . No particular form of delivery is required [Steitz v. Irwin (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 871, 876, 211 P.2d 919] . For further discussion, see the Legal Background to Ch. 27, Deeds and Recording.

b. Confirm that grantee (or grantee's representative) accepts delivery at time of delivery [Perry v. Wallner (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 218, 222, 23 Cal. Rptr. 352 ; Steitz v. Irwin (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 871, 875, 211 P.2d 919] .

NOTE:

The acceptance need not be formal or express [Steitz v. Irwin (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 871, 876, 211 P.2d 919] .

12-28A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28A.121

§ 28A.121 Creation of License

NOTE:

A license is not deemed to be an interest in real property for purposes of the application of the statute of frauds [see Eastman v. Piper (1924) 68 Cal. App. 554, 560, 229 P. 1002] . Consequently, a license may be created by parol [Eastman v. Piper (1924) 68 Cal. App. 554, 560, 229 P. 1002] or may arise by implication [see Lusk v. Krejci (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 553, 555, 9 Cal. Rptr. 703] . Of course, a license may also be created by a writing [Fisher v. General Petroleum Corp. (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 770, 776, 267 P.2d 841] . This discussion assumes that a writing will be used.

1. Prepare instrument that contains the following:

NOTE:

Except as otherwise noted below, the following information is not expressly required by law but, as a practical matter, is necessary if the parties wish to create a legally binding license agreement.

a. Name of licensor.

b. Name of licensee.

c. Description of licensor's property.

d. Grant to licensee of right to perform specified acts on licensor's land, which includes expression of licensor's assent or consent to this use of the land by licensee.

NOTE:

The only "essential" to the creation of a license is some expression by the licensor of his or her assent or conse nt to the use of the land by the licensee [Eastman v. Piper (1924) 68 Cal. App. 554, 560, 229 P. 1002 ; Gravelly Ford Co. v. Pope-Talbot Co. (1918) 36 Cal. App. 717, 737, 178 P. 155 ; Restatement of Property § 512, Comment h].

e. Indication whether or not license is assignable.

NOTE:

Although a license normally is not assignable [Eastman v. Piper (1924) 68 Cal. App. 554, 560, 229 P. 1002 ; Shaw v. Caldwell (1911) 16 Cal. App. 1, 8, 115 P. 941] , a license may be assigned if the original licensor and licensee agree that it may be assigned [Herman v. Rohan (1918) 37 Cal. App. 678, 681, 174 P. 349 ; see Restatement of Property § 517 (license is assignable in so far as it was intended in its creation to be assignable); see also Restatement of Property § 518(a) (no particular formalities are required for assignment of license)].

f. Either of the following:

(1) Statement that license may be revoked at any time by licensor.

NOTE:

As a general rule, a license may be revoked at any time at the will of the licensor [Wheeler v. West (1886) 71 Cal. 126, 129, 11 P. 871 ; County of Alameda v. Ross (1939) 32 Cal. App. 2d 135, 141-142, 89 P.2d 460 ; see Bomberger v. McKelvey (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 607, 618, 220 P.2d 729 (mere license to enter or use premises may be revoked by licensor at any time)].

(2) Statement specifying term of license.

NOTE:

An important exception to the general rule of revocability provides that a license "coupled with an interest" is not revocable but continues to exist for the period contemplated by the license [Bomberger v. McKelvey (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 607, 618, 220 P.2d 729 ; see § 28A.111, P 2].

g. If desired, include indemnity and insurance provisions [see § 28A.230[1][g]].

2. Have both parties sign instrument.

12-28A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28A.130

§ 28A.130 Document Creating and Conveying Easement

1. If instrument creating easement is to be recorded:

a. Reserve top two and one half inches of first page for recording information [Gov. Code § 27361.6].

b. In left three and one half inches of space described in (a), above [Gov. Code § 27361.6]:
(1) Identify person requesting recordation.

(2) Set forth name and address of person to whom instrument should be returned.

NOTE:
The recorder must mail (or deliver if the instrument so requests) the instrument to the person named in the instrument, if any [Gov. Code § 27321]. If the instrument does not name such a person, the recorder must deliver or mail it to the party that left it for recordation [Gov. Code § 27321].

2. If instrument is subject to local documentary transfer tax, include information regarding tax on face of instrument [see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 11932, 11933; see also § 28A.220].

3. Include the following information in instrument [see Whitson v. Goudeseune (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 445, 447, 290 P.2d 590 ; City of Glendora v. Faus (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 920, 926, 307 P.2d 976 ; see also § 28A.20[2]]:

NOTE:
The instrument creating and conveying the easement must include the following information [see § 28A.20[2]].

For requirements governing the drafting of deeds in general, see the Transaction Guide to Chapter 27, Deeds and Recording.

a. Name of grantor.

b. Name or other sufficient description of grantee.

NOTE:

The instrument creating the easement need not mention the grantee by name if it contains a designation or description that is sufficient to identify the grantee [Whitson v. Goudeseune (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 445, 447, 290 P.2d 590 ("to the present owners of said lot 3" held to be a sufficient description)].

c. Description of servient tenement.

NOTE:

The instrument must describe the land subject to the easement [City of Glendora v. Faus (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 920, 926, 307 P.2d 976] . This description must be sufficient to identify the property [see Gax & L. Co. v. Crockett L. & C. Co. (1924) 70 Cal. App. 283, 293, 233 P. 370] . The easement need not be described by metes or bounds or other descriptions providing definite dimensions of the easements [Maywood Mut. Water Co. No. 2 v. City of Maywood (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 266, 270, 100 Cal. Rptr. 174] . If the location and limits of the easement are not specified in the grant, a reasonably convenient and suitable location is presumed to be intended [Maywood Mut. Water Co. No. 2 v. City of Maywood (1972) 100 Cal. Rptr. 174] .

As a practical matter, the grantor often does not intend to make an entire parcel of land the servient tenement. Instead, the owner typically wishes to make a small part of the parcel the easement tract [see Kratovil, Easement Draftmanship and Conveyancing, 38 Calif. L. Rev. 426, 441 (1950)]. In that case, the description of the servient tenement should locate the easement tract on the grantor's parcel of land [see, e.g., Recitals A-C of § 28A.214 [2]].

To minimize the likelihood of future disputes regarding the location of the easement, the grantor should consider retaining a licensed surveyor to locate the easement [see Kratovil, Easement Draftsmanship and Conveyancing, 38 Calif. L. Rev. 426, 442 (1950); see also § 28A.120, P 1].

d. Description of permitted use or other right granted to grantee, e.g.:

NOTE:

The instrument granting the easement must describe the use to which the servient tenement is to be put [City of Glendora v. Faus (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 920, 926, 307 P.2d 976] . It is important that the grant describe in detail the permitted use or uses. The grantor normally wishes to make the scope of the easement as narrow as possible. The grantee, on the other hand, typically wants the easement to include important incidental rights [see P (3), below].

(1) Identification of type of right, e.g.:

(a) Right of ingress and egress.

(b) Right-of-way [see § 28A.201[2]].

(c) Right to receive sunlight across another person's property for solar energy system [see Civ. Code §§ 801(18), 801.5(a); see also § 28A.211[2], P 3].

(d) Right to take and use water from well [see § 28A.212[2], P 3].

(e) Temporary right to use servient tenement in connection with construction work on another parcel [see § 28A.213 [2], P 3].

(f) Right to use existing road for "driveway" or "roadway" purposes [see § 28A.214[2], P 3].

(g) In case of profit, right to make specific use of grantor's land [see Costa Mesa Union Sch. Dist. v. Security First Nat. Bk. (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 4, 11-12, 62 Cal. Rptr. 113 ; see also § 28A.215[2], P 3].

(2) Description of any limitations or restrictions on exercise of right, e.g.:

(a) In case of well easement, statement that grantee may use well for domestic purposes only [see § 28A.212[2], P 3].

(b) In case of driveway easement, statement prohibiting or imposing restrictions on parking [see § 28A.214[2], P 3].

(c) In case of profit granting right to remove designated products from land, statement requiring grantee to use specified method of removal of the products.

(3) Description of any secondary easements or incidental rights, e.g.:

NOTE:

An express grant of an easement carries with it a "secondary" easement that gives the dominant owner the right to enter on the servient tenement to make repairs and to do any other things that are necessary for the full exercise of the primary easement [Oliver v. Agasse (1901) 132 Cal. 297, 299, 64 P. 401 ; see Ward v. City of Monrovia (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 815, 821-822, 108 P.2d 425] . To avoid future controversy regarding the extent of a secondary easement, the instrument granting the primary easement should describe the nature and scope of any secondary easements.

(a) In case of well easement, right of ingress and egress to extent necessary to use well [see § 28A.212[2], P 4].

(b) In case of profit granting right to remove products from land, right to install and erect temporary roads, structures, and other improvements necessary or convenient for use and enjoyment of profit [see § 28A.215 [2], P 5].

4. Consider including one or more of the following in instrument creating and conveying easement:

a. The term "easement."

NOTE:

An instrument creating an easement need not contain the term "easement" if the clear implication of the grant is that an easement was intended [Maywood Mut. Water Co. No. 2 v. City of Maywood (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 266, 270, 100 Cal. Rptr. 174 ; see Murphy Slough Assn v. Avila (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 649, 658, 104 Cal. Rptr. 136] . However, because a grant of real property is presumed to transfer a fee simple title unless it appears in the grant that a lesser estate was intended [Civ. Code § 1105], it is preferable to include the term "easement" and other language indicating that an easement is being created and conveyed.

b. Indication whether easement is appurtenant or in gross.

NOTE:

In determining whether an easement is in gross or appurtenant, the court will look primarily to the nature of the right and to the intention of the parties. The courts, however, favor the construction of easements as appurtenant [Leggio v. Haggerty (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 873, 879, 42 Cal. Rptr. 400] . The court will look to extrinsic evidence to determine the grantor's intent if (1) the intent does not appear from the grant, or (2) the language of the grant is ambiguous [Continental Baking Co. v. Katz (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 512, 521-523, 67 Cal. Rptr. 761 ; City of Anaheim v. Metropolitan Water Dist. of Southern Cal. (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 763, 768, 147 Cal. Rptr. 336 ; Leggio v. Haggerty (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 873, 878, 42 Cal. Rptr. 400] . To clarify the intention of the parties and to leave as little as possible to judicial construction, the instrument should characterize the easement as an easement appurtenant or an easement in gross [see Kratovil, Easement Draftmanship and Conveyancing, 38 Calif. L. Rev. 426, 437 (1950)].

c. In the case of an easement appurtenant, description of dominant tenement.

NOTE:

It is recommended that the instrument include a description of the dominant tenement, even though this is not required by California law. If the instrument lacks such a description, questions may arise regarding the scope and extent of the easement. For example, if the grantee owns a second parcel that adjoins the dominant parcel, it may appear that the easement was intended to benefit both of grantee's parcels [see Kratovil, Easement Draftsmanship and Conveyancing, 38 Calif. L. Rev. 426 (1950)].

d. Indication of duration of easement, e.g.:

NOTE:

If possible, the instrument creating the easement should specify the duration of the easement. The drafter should avoid vague or ambiguous termination language, such as a clause authorizing the grantee to use the servient tenement for "as long as needed."

(1) In perpetuity.

(2) For specified period, e.g.:
(a) Until specified date.

(b) For lifetime of dominant owner, servient owner, or designated third party.

(3) Until occurrence of specified event or accomplishment of specified purpose.

e. Indication whether easement is exclusive or nonexclusive [see P 4f, below].

NOTE:

An easement is nonexclusive unless the parties clearly express an intent to make it exclusive [Pasadena v. California-Michigan etc. Co. (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 576, 578-579, 110 P.2d 983 ; Holbrook v. Telesio (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 152, 154, 37 Cal. Rptr. 153] .

f. In case of nonexclusive easement, description of rights of grantor or others to use servient tenement.

NOTE:

When an easement is nonexclusive, the servient owner may make any use of the servient tenement that does not unduly interfere with the dominant owner's right to use the easement [Pasadena v. California-Michigan etc. Co. (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 576, 579, 110 P.2d 983 ; see City of Los Angeles v. Ingersoll-Rand Co. (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 889, 893-894, 129 Cal. Rptr. 485 (every incident of ownership is not inconsistent with the easement and the enjoyment of it is reserved to the grantor)]. As a practical matter, it is extremely rare for an easement to bar any use of the servient tenement by the servient owner [see Real Estate Law (9th ed., Prentice-Hall, Inc. 1988), ch. 4, Easements; see also Pasadena v. California-Michigan etc. Co. (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 576, 578, 110 P.2d 983] . However, it is not uncommon for a grantor to agree to refrain from granting additional easements in the servient tenement to others [see, e.g., § 28A.210 [2], P 6 (first alternative version)].

g. Description of maintenance obligations of parties [see § 28A.214[1][d]].

NOTE:

An easement owner has the duty to keep the easement in repair [McManus v. Sequoyah Land Assoc. (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 348, 356, 49 Cal. Rptr. 592 ; see Civ. Code § 845]. However, the parties may alter this obligation by contract [Rose v. Peters (1943) 59 Cal. App. 2d 833, 835, 139 P.2d 983] .

Maintenance obligations may be covered in a separate maintenance agreement [see § 28A.231[2]].

h. Indication whether or not easement is assignable.

NOTE:

Since it is attached to a dominant tenement, an easement appurtenant passes with the transfer of the dominant tenement [Leggio v. Haggerty (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 873, 880, 42 Cal. Rptr. 400 ; see Civ. Code § 1104]. It cannot be transferred to a third party or severed from the dominant tenement [City of Anaheim v. Metropolitan Water Dist. of Southern Cal. (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 763, 767, 147 Cal. Rptr. 336 ; Leggio v. Haggerty (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 873, 880, 42 Cal. Rptr. 400] . An easement in gross, on the other hand, may be conveyed independently of land [City of Anaheim v. Metropolitan Water Dist. of Southern Cal. (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 763, 768, 147 Cal. Rptr. 336] .

i. Provision authorizing grantee to change or increase permitted uses of easement, provided new uses do not unreasonably increase burden on servient tenement [see § 28A.221[2]].

j. Clause providing for apportionment of easement upon subdivision, partition, or other division of dominant tenement [see § 28A.222 [2]].

k. Provision indicating that any property subsequently acquired by grantee that is contiguous to original dominant tenement will become part of dominant tenement [see § 28A.223[2]].

l. Paragraph authorizing grantor to relocate servient tenement [see § 28A.224[2]].

m. Attorneys' fees provision [see vol. 14, ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions].

n. Provision regarding status of agreement as entire agreement between the parties [see vol. 14, ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions].

o. Clause describing binding effect of agreement [see vol. 14, ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions].

5. If grantor is married and claims that servient tenement is his or her separate property, add statement indicating that spouse has no interest in servient tenement [see § 28A.120, P 5; see also § 28A.210[1][f]].

§ 28A.140 Payment of Expenses of Maintaining Right-of-Way

NOTE:

The owner of an easement in the nature of a private right-of-way, or of any land to which any such easement is attached, must maintain it in repair [Civ. Code § 845(a)]. The statutory procedures discussed below, relating to the responsibility for payment of the cost of maintaining an easement, apply when the easement is owned by more than one person, or is appurtenant to parcels of land under different ownership [see Civ. Code § 845(b), (c)]. For purposes of this transaction guide, "co-owner" means an owner of the easement or an owner of an appurtenant parcel.

1. If co-owners wish to share cost of maintaining easement in repair, take following steps:

a. Prepare agreement specifying how cost is to be shared by parties [see § 28A.231 [2] (illustrative agreement)].

b. Have parties execute agreement.

c. If any party fails to pay his or her proportionate share of any repair costs, provide that party with written demand for payment [see Civ. Code § 845(b); § 28A.232 [2] (illustrative demand)].

d. If any party fails to pay his or her share of repair costs after receiving written demand for payment, or otherwise refuses to perform his or her obligations under above agreement, assist other co-owner(s), either jointly or severally, in bringing action for contribution or specific performance [Civ. Code § 845(b); for an illustrative complaint, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Easements (Matthew Bender)].

2. If co-owners are not willing to enter into an agreement providing for sharing of maintenance expenses, take following steps:

a. Notify co-owners that cost of maintaining easement in repair must be shared proportionately to use made of easement by each owner [Civ. Code § 845(c)].

b. If necessary, apply to appropriate court for apportionment of impartial arbitrator to apportion repair costs [Civ. Code § 845(c)].

NOTE:
Any co-owner may make the application at any time before, during, or after performance of the maintenance work [Civ. Code § 845(c)]. For an illustrative petition for appointment of an arbitrator, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Easements (Matthew Bender).

c. If arbitration award is not accepted by all co-owners, file petition for judgment determining proportionate liability of each owner [see Civ. Code § 845(c)].

NOTE:
If the court enters such a judgment, it may be enforced as a money judgment by any party against any other party to the action [Civ. Code § 845(c)].

§ 28A.141 Statutory Procedures Governing Preservation, or Establishment of Abandonment, of Easement

NOTE:
The following section covers statutory procedures that require the performance of affirmative acts by the dominant or servient owner to establish the abandonment of, or to preserve, an easement. For coverage of other circumstances under which an easement may be terminated or extinguished, see § 28A.26.

1. If servient owner wishes to utilize marketable record title provisions of Civil Code to establish abandonment of easement [see Civ. Code §§ 887.010-887.090; see also Civ. Code §§ 880.020-880.370; § 28A.27 [2]], confirm that following conditions have been satisfied for a period of 20 years immediately preceding commencement of action to establish abandonment [Civ. Code § 887.050(a)]:

a. Easement has not been used at any time.

b. Regarding property taxes:
(1) No separate property tax assessment has been made; or

(2) If separate property tax assessment has been made, no taxes have been paid on assessment.

(3) No instrument creating, reserving, transferring, or otherwise evidencing the easement has been recorded.

2. If conditions described in (1), above, have been satisfied, take following steps:

a. Bring action, in superior court of county in which servient tenement is located, to accomplish the following [Civ. Code § 887.040(b)]:

NOTE:

The action must be brought in the same manner and must be subject to the same procedure as an action to quiet title pursuant to the Code of Civil Procedure [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 760.010-764.080], to the extent applicable [Civ. Code § 887.040(c)]. For an illustrative complaint to establish abandonment and additional coverage, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 240, Easements (Matthew Bender).

A court order establishing abandonment pursuant to this statutory procedure is equivalent for all purposes to a conveyance of the easement to the servient owner. An abandoned easement is unenforceable and is deemed to have expired [Civ. Code § 887.080].

(1) Establish abandonment of easement; and

(2) Clear record title of the easement.

b. Notify servient owner that court will permit easement owner to record a late notice of intent to preserve the easement [Civ. Code § 887.070; see (3), below].

NOTE:

If the easement owner files this notice, the action will be dismissed. To exercise this right, the easement owner must pay into court for the benefit of the servient owner the litigation expenses attributable to the easement or portion of the easement covered by the notice of intent. For these purposes, "litigation expenses" means recoverable costs and expenses reasonably and necessarily incurred in the preparation for the action, including reasonable attorneys' fees [Civ. Code § 887.070].

3. If easement owner wishes to preserve easement, take following steps:

a. Prepare notice of intent to preserve easement [see Civ. Code § 887.060(a)] that satisfies following requirements:

(1) As a general rule, is substantially in the form specified by statute [see Civ. Code § 880.340; see also Ch. 27, Deeds and Recording, § 27.289];

(2) Satisfies following requirements:
(a) Includes name and mailing address of each claimant [Civ. Code § 880.330(b)].

(b) Refers generally and without specificity to any or all easements claimed by claimant in any real property situated in county [Civ. Code § 887.060(b)].

NOTE:

This reference may be included in lieu of the following information, which must be included in notices of intent to preserve other types of interests in real property: (1) the statement of the character of the interest claimed and the record location of the documents creating or evidencing the interest claimed [see Civ. Code § 880.330(b)(2)]; and (2) the legal description of the real property in which the interest is claimed [Civ. Code § 887.060(b); see Civ. Code § 880.330(b)(3)].

Although the other portions of the notice must be substantially in the form specified by statute [see Civ. Code § 880.340], there are no requirements governing the presentation of the information described in Paragraph 3a(2), above [see Civ. Code § 887.060(b)].

b. Have notice signed and verified by or on behalf of claimant [Civ. Code § 880.330(a)].

c. If notice is made on claimant's behalf, include statement of authority of person making the notice [Civ. Code § 880.330(a)].

d. Have notice recorded in county in which real property is situated [Civ. Code § 880.350(a)].

NOTE:

The easement owner may record the notice at any time [Civ. Code § 887.060(a)]. An easement is not abandoned if recordation takes place (1) within 20 years immediately preceding the commencement of an action to establish the abandonment of the easement, or (2) pursuant to Civ. Code § 887.070 [see P 2b, above] after commencement of an action to establish the abandonment of the easement and before judgment is entered in the action [Civ. Code § 887.060(c)].

§ 28A.142 Prevention of Acquisition of Prescriptive Rights

NOTE:

For discussion of the circumstances under which an easement may be acquired by prescription, see § 28A.23[1]. This section covers two statutory procedures that an owner of real property may follow to prevent another person from acquiring a prescriptive right in the property.

1. If client wishes to prevent acquisition of prescriptive rights by recording a notice of consent, take following steps [Civ. Code § 813]:

a. Prepare notice of consent that contains the following [see § 28A.234[2] (illustrative notice)]:

(1) Description of land.

(2) Statutory notice indicating that right of others to use land is by permission [see Civ. Code § 813 (statutory notice)].

(3) If desired, reasonable restrictions on time, place, and manner of public use.

b. Have holder of record title to the land record notice in office of recorder of any county in which any part of land is situated.

c. If property is used by other than the general public (i.e., by specific person or persons), have notice served by registered or certified mail on user(s) [see Civ. Code § 17 (authorizing use of certified mail)].

d. After recordation of notice, and prior to any revocation of it [see P e, below], advise owner to refrain from preventing any appropriate public use of property.

e. If owner wishes to revoke a recorded notice of consent to use land, file notice of revocation in same office in which original notice of consent was recorded [Civ. Code § 813; see § 28A.235 [2] (illustrative notice of revocation)].

2. As an alternative to procedure set forth in Paragraph 1, above, take following steps to prevent acquisition of prescriptive rights [Civ. Code § 1008]:

a. Prepare sign that reads substantially as required by Civil Code Section 1008 [see § 28A.236[2] (statutory wording)].

b. Have owner post sign at each entrance to property or at intervals of not more than 200 feet along boundary of property.

NOTE:

To be legally operative, the "permission to pass" sign must be posted by the landowner or by the landowner's authorized agent [Aaron v. Dunham (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 1244, 1252, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 32 (posting by lessee of "permission to pass" sign on private road did not prevent acquisition of prescriptive easement because sign was not posted by property owner or owner's authorized agent)].

PART IV. FORMS
A. Complete Deeds

12-28A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28A.200

§ 28A.200 Deed Conveying Dominant Tenement and Easement Appurtenant

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a grant deed that conveys a parcel of land (the dominant tenement) and an easement appurtenant that is attached to the land. As a practical matter, it is not necessary to mention an appurtenant easement in a deed conveying the dominant tenement because the easement passes with the transfer of the dominant tenement, whether or not the easement is mentioned in the instrument of conveyance [Leggio v. Haggerty (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 873, 880, 42 Cal. Rptr. 400 ; Rubio Canon etc. Assoc. v. Everett (1908) 154 Cal. 29, 33, 96 P. 811 ; Civ. Code §§ 1084, 1104; see Restatement of Property § 487, Comments e and h; but see Civ. Code § 1084; Restatement of Property § 487, Comment b (easement appurtenant will not pass with dominant tenement if transfer instrument specifically excludes it)]. However, a title insurance company may not insure the title to an easement if there is no evidence in the recorded chain of title that the easement is appurtenant [see Bowman, Ogden's Revised California Real Property Law, vol. 1, ch. 13, Easements (Cal. CEB 1974); Miller & Starr, California Real Estate 2d, vol. 5, ch. 15, Easements].

Although a deed is often used to create an easement, counsel should consider using an easement agreement instead if the instrument is to include a detailed legal description or complex provisions. For a series of complete agreements, see §§ 28A.210 through 28A.215. For additional and alternative provisions that may be inserted into those complete agreements, see §§ 28A.220 through 28A.224.

[b] Required Formalities for Creation of Easement

An express grant of an easement must be in writing, subscribed by the party creating it or by the duly authorized agent of that party [see Empire Investment Co. v. Mort. (1915) 169 Cal. 732, 739, 147 P. 960 ; Wagner v. Hanna (1869) 38 Cal. 111, 117 ; see also § 28A.20 [1]]. The instrument granting the easement must describe both the land subject to the easement and the use to which the land is to be put [City of Glendora v. Faus (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 920, 926, 307 P.2d 976 ; see § 28A.130, P 3d (guide to drafting of description of permitted uses)]. The description of the servient tenement must be sufficient to identify the property [see Gas & E. Co. v. Crockett L. & C. Co. (1924) 70 Cal. App.

283, 293, 233 P. 370 ; see also Maywood Mut. Water Co. No. 2 v. City of Maywood (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 266, 270, 100 Cal. Rptr. 174 (description must definitely describe the servient tenement); § 28A.130, P 3c (additional discussion of descriptions)].

The instrument need not mention the grantee by name if it contains a designation or description that is sufficient to identify the grantee [Whitson v. Goudeseune (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 445, 447, 290 P.2d 590 ("to the present owners of said lot 3" held to be a sufficient description); Carlson v. Lindauer (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 292, 306, 259 P.2d 925] . Further, the instrument need not contain the term "easement" if the clear implication of the grant is that an easement was intended [Maywood Mut. Water Co. No. 2 v. City of Maywood (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 266, 270, 100 Cal. Rptr. 174] .

A present grant of an easement is an executed contract and does not require consideration for the grant to be valid [Civ. Code § 1040; Eastman v. Piper (1924) 68 Cal. App. 554, 569, 229 P. 1002] .

For discussion of additional information that may be included in an instrument creating an easement, see § 28A.130[2], Paragraph 4.

[c] Grant Deeds

A grant deed grants an estate in real property [see Civ. Code § 1092]. In a grant deed, the term "grant" is the essential element or operative word of transfer [see Klamath Land & Cattle Co. v. Roemer (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 613, 618, 91 Cal. Rptr. 112] . Although a grant deed may convey any type of estate in real property [Klamath Land & Cattle Co. v. Roemer (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 613, 618, 91 Cal. Rptr. 112] , it is presumed to transfer a fee simple title unless it appears in the grant that a lesser estate was intended [Civ. Code § 1105; see American Enterprises, Inc. v. Van Winkle (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 210, 220, 246 P.2d 935] . This form assumes that a fee simple title in the dominant tenement is being conveyed.

For complete coverage of grant deeds, see Chapter 27, Deeds and Recording .

[d] Consent of Spouse

Both spouses must join in executing any instrument by which community real property or any interest in such property is sold, conveyed, encumbered, or leased for a period of more than one year. The spouses may do this personally or by duly authorized representative. This restriction does not apply to transactions between the spouses [Fam. Code § 1102].

For a statement that may be included in an easement agreement and that indicates that the grantor's spouse has no interest in the servient tenement, see Section 28A.210[2].

[e] Acknowledgment and Recordation

Every conveyance of real property that is acknowledged (or proved), certified, and recorded constitutes constructive notice of its contents to subsequent purchasers and mortgagees [Civ. Code § 1213; see Civ. Code § 18]. Consequently, this form provides for the inclusion of recording information [see Gov. Code § 27361.6; § 28A.130, P 1] and a certificate of acknowledgment [see Gov. Code § 27287; Civ. Code § 1185(a)]. For additional discussion of recordation, see Chapter 27, Deeds and Recordation .

[f] Tax Statement Information

A deed conveying fee title will not be accepted for recording unless it sets forth, across the bottom of the first page, the name and address to which future tax statements may be mailed [Gov. Code § 27321.5(a)]. This form satisfies that requirement by including the name and address below the recording information, and inserting a reference to that name and address at the bottom of the first page. For discussion of alternative methods of satisfying the foregoing requirement, see Ch. 27, Deeds and Recording, § 27.241.

[g] Documentary Transfer Tax

This form provides for the inclusion, when applicable, of documentary transfer tax information. A local documentary transfer tax may be imposed, by ordinance, on each deed, instrument, or writing by which real property sold within the county is granted, assigned, transferred, or otherwise conveyed to, or vested in, another person when the consideration or value of the interest or property conveyed, exclusive of the value of any lien or encumbrance remaining on the property at the time of sale, exceeds $100 [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11911(a), (b)]. An easement is subject to the Act if it potentially may endure for a substantial period of time. The following are examples of easements that fall within this category: a perpetual easement; an easement for life; or an easement for a fixed period of years that (1) can be renewed by the easement holder, or (2) is of sufficient length so as to approximate a perpetual easement or an easement for life [62 Cal. Op. Att'y Gen. 87 (1979)] .

For further discussion and an illustrative transfer tax provision, see Section 28A.220.

CHAPTER 28A EASEMENTS AND LICENSES
PART IV. FORMS
A. Complete Deeds

12-28A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28A.201

§ 28A.201 Deed Conveying Right-of-Way

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a grant deed that expressly creates and conveys a private right-of-way. It may be easily modified for use with other types of easements. For a grant deed that conveys an easement appurtenant and the dominant tenement, see Section 28A.202[2].

For discussion of the recording and tax statement information included in this deed, see Section 28A.130, Paragraphs 1 and 2, and 28A.220, respectively. Because this deed does not convey fee title to property, it need not include the tax statement information that must appear on a deed conveying fee title [see Gov. Code § 27321.5].

[b] Overview of Rights-of-Way

A right-of-way is an easement that gives a person or class of persons the right to pass over the land of another [Kripp v. Curtis (1896) 71 Cal. 62-63, 11 P. 879 ; Wood et al. v. Truckee Turnpike Co. (1864) 24 Cal. 474, 487] . However, the term "right-of-way" is also used to refer to the strip of land over which the easement runs [Anderson v. Willson (1920) 48 Cal. App. 289, 295, 191 P. 1016 ; Moakley v. Los Angeles Pacific Ry. Co. (1934) 139 Cal. App. 421, 424, 34 P.2d 218] .

An easement for a right-of-way may be either appurtenant [see Civ. Code § 801(4)] or in gross [see Civ. Code § 802(5)]. Further, a right-of-way may be public or private. A public right-of-way, usually referred to as a highway or a public road, is a right-of-way that every citizen has a right to use. A private right-of-way may be used only by a particular person or class of persons [Kripp v. Curtis (1886) 71 Cal. 62, 64, 11 P. 879] .

[c] Easement or Fee Interest

Because the term "right-of-way" may be used to describe the land over which the easement runs [see [b], above], the use of the term in a conveyance may raise a question whether the grantor intended to convey an easement or a fee interest in the subject land [see Moakley v. Los Angeles P. R. Co. (1934) 139 Cal. App. 421, 423-425, 34 P.2d 218] . The character of the interest conveyed depends on the intent of the parties, which must be gathered from the language of the document and the surrounding circumstances [Warner v. Atchison, T. & S.F. Ry. Co. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 24, 35, 96 Cal. Rptr. 317] . In most cases, if the granting clause specifies that the document is conveying a right-of-way in a specified strip of land, it will be construed as conveying an easement [see, e.g., Highland Realty Co. v. City of San Rafael (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 669, 676, 678, 298 P.2d 15 ; Johnson v. Ocean Shore Railroad Co. (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 429, 433, 94 Cal. Rptr. 68] .

12-28A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28A.202

§ 28A.202 Reservation of Easement Appurtenant From Grant of Property

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a deed that may be used when the grantor wishes to convey property and to reserve an easement in the conveyed property. An easement may be created by express reservation in a deed or other instrument [see Coon v. Sonoma Magnesite Co. (1920) 182 Cal. 597, 601-602, 189 P. 271 ; Los Angeles v. Howard (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 538, 543, 53 Cal. Rptr. 274] . A reservation allows the grantor's entire interest in the subject property to pass to the grantee, but revests a newly created interest in the land for the benefit of the grantor or a third party [Willard v. First Church of Christ, Scientist (1972) 102 Cal. Rptr. 739 ; see Civ. Code § 1085]. In other words, a reservation is a grant back to the original grantor by the original grantee of a portion of the conveyed property.

For coverage of grant deeds, see Section 28A.200[1][c]. An illustrative deed conveying a parcel of land and as easement appurtenant is set forth as Section 28A.200. For a deed conveying a right-of-way, see Section 28A.201.

[b] Reservation Distinguished From Exception

An exception prevents part of the grantor's interest from passing to the grantee. The excepted interest remains in the grantor [Willard v. First Church of Christ, Scientist (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 473, 476 n.1, 102 Cal. Rptr. 739] . Typically, a physical part of the land is excluded from the conveyance [see Sears v. Ackerman (1903) 138 Cal. 583, 586, 72 P. 171 ; see also Powell on Real Property, ch. 34, Easements and Licenses]. Thus, it has been argued that the use of an exception is not, technically, appropriate for the creation of an easement because an exception does not create a new interest in the land of another [see Bowman, Ogden's Revised California Real Property Law (Cal. CEB 1974), vol. 1, ch. 13, Easements].

Exceptions and reservations are subject to different rules of interpretation. A reservation must be interpreted in favor of the grantor [Civ. Code § 1069], while an exception must be strictly interpreted against the grantor [Lange v. Waters (1909) 156 Cal. 142, 146, 103 P. 889] .

Notwithstanding the foregoing, the terms "reservation" and "exception" are sometimes used interchangeably [Main v. Legnitto (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 667, 677, 41 Cal. Rptr. 223] . As a practical matter, the question of whether a particular provision is an exception or a reservation is not conclusively determined by the use of the term "reservation" or "exception" alone, and the courts will disregard the words used if necessary to effectuate the real intentions of the parties as ascertained from the whole conveyance [Coon v. Sonoma Magnesite Co. (1920) 182 Cal. 597, 600, 189 P. 271 ; Main v. Legnitto (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 667, 677-678, 41 Cal. Rptr. 223] . This chapter does not use the term "exception." For a deed provision that creates an exception, see Ch. 27, Deeds and Recording, § 27.261.

[c] Reservation of Easement to Third Party

A grantor may, in deeding real property to one person, reserve an easement (or another type of interest) in the property to a third party [Willard v. First Church of Christ, Scientist (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 473, 475, 479, 102 Cal. Rptr. 739] . The grantor's intent to accomplish this result must be clearly shown in the instrument [Willard v. First Church of Christ, Scientist (1972) 102 Cal. Rptr. 739] or by extrinsic evidence [Cushman v. Davis (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 731, 735, 145 Cal. Rptr. 791] . The reservation vests the easement in the third party [Willard v. First Church of Christ, Scientist (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 473, 475, 479, 102 Cal. Rptr. 739] .

PART IV. FORMS
B. Complete Easement Agreements

12-28A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28A.210

§ 28A.210 Basic Easement Agreement

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an agreement that creates an easement appurtenant or an easement in gross. It may be used when the grantor wishes to grant an easement independent of a conveyance of real property. Since an easement is an interest in land, it can be created by such a grant [see Eastman v. Piper (1924) 68 Cal. App. 554, 561, 229 P. 1002] .

A separate grant of an easement may be desirable even when the grantor is also making a simultaneous conveyance of the dominant tenement to the same grantee. This is particularly true when a lengthy legal description of the easement is required, or when detailed provisions will be used to describe the rights and duties of the grantor and grantee. In that case, inclusion of the easement grant in the deed conveying the dominant tenement would prove unwieldy [see Kratovil, Easement Draftmanship and Conveyancing, 38 Calif. L. Rev. 426 (1950)].

For a procedural guide to the creation of an easement, see Section 28A.120. Additional complete easement agreements are set forth at Sections 28A.210 through 28A.215. For additional and alternative provisions that may be included in any of the complete agreements in this chapter, see Sections 28A.220 through 28A.224.

[b] Required Formalities

An express grant of an easement must be in writing, subscribed by the party creating it or by the duly authorized agent of that party [see Empire Investment Co. v. Mort. (1915) 169 Cal. 732, 739, 147 P. 960 ; Wagner v. Hanna (1869) 38 Cal. 111, 117] . For a discussion of the required contents of the instrument creating the easement, see Section 28A.200 [1][b].

[c] Additional Information

Counsel should consider adding certain provisions and information to the easement grant that are not required by law but that may result in a clearer expression of the intent of the parties. For example, it is advisable to indicate expressly whether the easement is appurtenant or in gross [see [2], P 2, below; see also §§ 28A.14-28A.16], and to specify the duration of the easement [see [2], P 5, below; see also § 28A.26]. Further, the inclusion of a description of the dominant tenement (in the case of an easement appurtenant) will make it less likely that questions will arise regarding the scope and extent of the easement [see §§ 28A.10-28A.27; see also [2], below (optional Recital C)].

The agreement should indicate whether or not the grantee's right to use the easement is exclusive [see [2], below (alternative versions of P 6)]. It should also describe any secondary easements or incidental rights [see [2], P 4, below; see also § 28A.12]. Further, if the grantor is creating and conveying an easement in gross, the agreement should indicate whether or not it is assignable [see [2], below (alternative versions of P 7); see also § 28A.15].

This form also includes standard contractual provisions regarding attorneys' fees [see [2], P 8, below], the status of the agreement as the entire agreement between the parties [see [2], P 9, below], and the binding effect of the agreement [see [2], P 10, below]. For discussion of those provisions, see Volume 14, Chapter 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions.

[d] Recordation

Although the instrument need not be recorded to be enforceable against the grantor, recordation may be necessary to assert easement rights against a transferee of the grantor who purchases the servient tenement for value and without notice of the easement [Pollard v. Rebman (1912) 162 Cal. 633, 634, 124 P. 235 ; see ch. 27, Deeds and Recording]. This form assumes that the agreement will be recorded. Consequently, it provides for the inclusion of recording information [see Gov. Code § 27361.6; § 28A.20[2]] and a certificate of acknowledgment [see Gov. Code § 27287; Civ. Code § 1185(a); see also § 28A.200[2]].

[e] Documentary Transfer Tax

A local documentary transfer tax may be imposed, by ordinance, on each deed, instrument, or writing by which real property sold within the county is granted, assigned, transferred, or otherwise conveyed to, or vested in, another person when the consideration or value of the interest or property conveyed, exclusive of the value of any lien or encumbrance remaining on the property at the time of sale, exceeds $100 [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11911(a), (b)]. An easement is subject to the Act if it potentially may endure for a substantial period of time, such as the following: a perpetual easement; an easement for life; or an easement for a fixed period of years that (1) can be renewed by the easement holder, or (2) is of sufficient length so as to approximate a perpetual easement or an easement for life [62 Cal. Op. Att'y Gen. 87 (1979)] . For further discussion and illustrative transfer tax language, see Section 28A.220.

[f] Consent of Spouse

Both spouses must join in executing any instrument by which community real property [see Fam. Code § 760] or any interest in such property is sold, conveyed, encumbered, or leased for a period of more than one year. The spouses may do this personally or by duly authorized representative. This restriction does not apply to transactions between the spouses [Fam. Code § 1102].

If a grantor is married and claims that the servient tenement is the grantor's separate property, the spouse should execute a statement indicating that he or she has no interest in the property. This form includes such a statement, immediately following the signature blanks for the parties. A spouse who executes such a statement will be estopped from setting aside the conveyance [see Rice v. McCarthy (1925) 73 Cal. App. 655, 662, 666, 239 P. 56 ; Waldeck v. Hedden (1928) 89 Cal. App. 485, 491, 265 P. 340 ; see also Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements].

DIVISION II: REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 28A EASEMENTS AND LICENSES
PART IV. FORMS
B. Complete Easement Agreements

12-28A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28A.211

§ 28A.211 Solar Easement

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a complete solar easement. A solar easement is a type of negative easement [see §§ 28A.17, 28A.18[6]] and is defined as the the right of receiving sunlight across another person's real property for a solar energy system [Civ. Code §§ 801(18), 801.5(a)]. For purposes of the solar easement statutes, "solar energy system" means any solar collector or other solar energy device, or any structural design feature of a building, whose primary purpose is to provide for the collection, storage, and distribution of solar energy for space heating or cooling, electric generation, or for water heating [Civ. Code § 801.5(a)]. As a practical matter, all types of existing and future solar energy systems should fall within that broad definition.

For additional and alternative provisions that may be added to this form or to any of the other complete easement agreements in this chapter, see §§ 28A.220-28A.224.

[b] Easement for Air, Light, or Heat

A type of easement appurtenant that is similar to a solar easement is the right of receiving air, light, or heat from or over land, or the right of discharging air, light, or heat upon or over land [Civ. Code § 801(8)]. A landowner has no natural right to air, light, or an unobstructed view [Pacifica Homeowners' Assn. v. Wesley Palms Retirement Community (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 1147, 1152, 224 Cal. Rptr. 380] . However, this type of right may be created by private parties through the granting of an easement [Pacifica Homeowners' Assn. v. Wesley Palms Retirement Community (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 1147, 1152, 224 Cal. Rptr. 380 ; Petersen v. Friedman (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 245, 247-248, 328 P.2d 264 ; see Civ. Code § 801(8), (18)]. This form may be modified to create such an easement.

[c] Required Contents of Instrument

Any instrument creating a solar easement must include the following [Civ. Code § 801.5(b)]:

(1) An adequate description of the easement [see Civ. Code § 801.5(b)(1); [d], below].

(2) Restrictions placed on vegetation, structures, and other objects that would impair or obstruct the passage of sunlight through the easement.

(3) The terms or conditions (if any) under which the easement may be revised or terminated.

An instrument creating a solar easement is also subject to the required formalities that apply to any grant of an easement. For coverage of those formalities, see Section 28A.20[2].

[d] Description of Easement

The easement instrument must include a description of the dimensions of the easement expressed in measurable terms, such as vertical or horizontal angles measured in degrees, or the hours of the day on specified dates during which direct sunlight to a specified surface of a solar collector, device, or structural design feature may not be obstructed, or a combination of those descriptions [Civ. Code § 801.5(b)(1)]. If the second type of description is provided, the instrument obviously must contain a description of an existing solar energy system. Thus, the system must be permanent if the easement is to remain effective. That can be a great disadvantage because ongoing technological advances will undoubtedly produce more efficient solar energy systems in the future.

A description of the dimensions of the easement expressed in measurable terms also may present problems. For example, it may be necessary to employ a surveyor or engineer in order to obtain an accurate description of the location of the easement. Further, any replacement systems must be installed in the area originally specified in the easement.

Regardless of the type of description selected, it is clear that drafting an adequate solar easement is a difficult task. Many variables must be considered and reflected in the description, such as the slope of the dominant and servient tenements, the number and nature of existing shadow-producing objects, and the value of the airspace.

Because of the many methods of describing solar easements and the presence of so many variables, no attempt has been made to include a single detailed hypothetical description of a solar easement in this form. Rather, this form is primarily intended to illustrate the format that should be followed in drafting the solar easement, and to alert the attorney to the applicable statutory requirements.

[e] Solar Shade Control Act

The Solar Shade Control Act [Pub. Res. Code § 25760 et seq.] establishes a limited right to receive sunlight that is not dependent on the creation of an easement but that does require the presence of a solar collector. For these purposes, "solar collector" means a fixed device, structure, or part of a device or structure, that is used primarily to transform solar energy into thermal, chemical, or electrical energy. The solar collector must be used as a part of a system that makes use of solar energy for any or all of the following purposes: water heating, space heating or cooling, or power generation [Pub. Res. Code § 25761; see Sher v. Leiderman (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 867, 882-883, 226 Cal. Rptr. 698 (Act does not apply to homes with entirely passive solar systems, such as windows and skylights)] .

Under the Act, no person owning or in control of property may allow a tree or shrub on the property to grow so that it casts a shadow of a specified size and for a specified duration on an installed solar collector on the property of another [Pub. Res. Code § 25762]. Specifically, a tree or shrub cannot cast a shadow greater than 10 percent of the collector absorption area on the solar collector surface at any one time between the hours of 10 A.M. and 2 P.M., local standard time [Pub. Res. Code § 25762]. There are limited exceptions to this prohibition [see Pub. Res. Code §§ 25762, 25764, 25766; see also Pub. Res. Code § 25765(authorizing adoption of ordinance exempting local jurisdiction from requirements of Act)].

If an owner of a solar collector establishes to the satisfaction of the district attorney or city attorney that the requirements of Public Resources Code Section 25762 have been violated, the district attorney or city attorney will serve the violator with an abatement notice. If the violation is not corrected within 30 days from the receipt of the notice, (1) the violator will be guilty of a public nuisance, and (2) the complainant may file an affidavit with the district attorney or city attorney alleging that the nuisance has not been abated. Following the filing of such an affidavit, the district attorney or city attorney must prosecute the violator. Every violation of the Act is punishable by a fine of up to $1,000 [see Pub. Res. Code § 25763].

[a] Use of Form

This form is an easement agreement conveying a right to use a well on the grantor's property. It sets forth the legal description of the parcel of land containing the well [see [2], Recital A, below], identifies the dominant tenement [see [2], Recital B, below], grants the right to use the well [see [2], P 3, below] and incidental rights of ingress and egress [see [2], P 4, below], and identifies the portion of the parcel that may be used for the ingress and egress [see [2], P 4, below]. Even though the form does not set forth the definite dimensions of the easement, its description of the easement is sufficient to identify the servient tenement [see Pacific Gas & Electric Co. v. Crockett Land & Cattle Co. (1924) 233 P. 370 (authorizing use of such a description); see also § 28A.12[2]].

This form assumes that the easement will be appurtenant [see [2], P 2, below; see also [b], below] and nonexclusive [see [2], P 6, below; §§ 28A.16, 28A.130, P 4(b), (e)]. For coverage of other provisions in this form, see Section 28A.200 [2]. For additional and alternative provisions that may be added to this form or to any of the other complete easement agreements in this chapter, see Sections 28A.220 through 28A.224.

For a complex agreement and grant of an easement for a slant well [see Stafford v. Union Oil Co. (1959) 173 Cal. App. 2d 307, 309, 343 P.2d 380 (a slant well is drilled at an angle toward a specific direction or reservoir of oil or gas)], see Ch. 36, Oil and Gas and Other Natural Resources, § 36.230.

[b] Water Easements

An easement may consist of any of several rights relating to the use of water flowing on, over, or from land [see Civ. Code §§ 801, 802; Pogue v. Collins (1905) 146 Cal. 435, 440, 80 P. 623] , including the right to take water [Civ. Code §§ 801(5), 802(6)]. Like other easements, a water right is an "interest" in real property [see Wright v. Best (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 368, 382, 121 P.2d 702] . Water rights typically are easements appurtenant [see Civ. Code § 662 (watercourse as an appurtenance of land); Jones v. Deardorff (1906) 4 Cal App. 18, 24, 87 P. 213 ; see also [2], P 2, below].

However, a water right may constitute an easement in gross [Civ. Code § 802(6)].

12-28A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28A.213

§ 28A.213 Temporary Easement for Construction Purposes

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is an agreement granting and conveying a temporary easement to use the servient tenement in connection with the performance of construction work on another parcel. A developer often needs to obtain such an easement to gain access to the construction site, to perform related off-site work (such as laying pipes), or to obtain additional space to store equipment and materials.

This form creates an easement in gross [see [2], P 2, below], but may be easily modified to create an easement appurtenant. For illustrative easement appurtenant language, see Section 28A.212, Paragraph 2. It provides for the attachment of plans and specifications describing the construction work [see [2], P 4, below]. This arrangement permits the grantor to review and approve the plans and specifications before the execution of the agreement. The form also states that the easement is to terminate on (1) the completion of the construction work, and (2) the grantee's satisfaction of its obligations under this agreement (such as the grantee's duty to restore and repair the servient tenement) [see [2], P 5, below; see also [2], P 6, below]. Optional language provides for a penalty, assessed on a daily basis, if the construction work and the use of the easement continue beyond a specified date [see [2], P 5, below]. If counsel uses that language, he or she should also include the optional "time of the essence" clause in this form [see [2], P 9, below]. For coverage of the remaining provisions in this form, see Section 28A.210.

For additional and alternative provisions that may be inserted into this form or into any of the other complete easement agreements in this chapter, see Sections 28A.220 through 28A.224.

12-28A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28A.214

§ 28A.214 Driveway Easement and Maintenance Agreement

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an agreement creating and conveying an easement for "driveway purposes" and providing for the maintenance by the grantor of the easement. This type of easement may also be referred to as a "roadway" or "road" easement. For discussion of these easements, see [b], below.

This form provides that the easement is nonexclusive [see [2], P 5, below; see also § 28A.210 [c]]. Further, it obligates the grantor, at his or her sole expense, to maintain the easement [see [d], below]. For additional and alternative provisions that may be inserted into this form or into any of the other complete easement agreements in this chapter, see Sections 28A.220 through 28A.224.

[b] Driveway or Roadway Easement

The driveway easement created by this form is essentially a limited version of a right-of-way. A right-of-way is an easement that gives a person or class of persons the right to pass over the land of another [Kripp v. Curtis (1896) 71 Cal. 62-63, 71 Cal. 62-63, 11 P. 879 ; Wood et al. v. Truckee Turnpike Co. (1864) 24 Cal. 474, 487] . This form restricts the grantee's right to pass over the servient tenement by providing for the use of an existing road by moving vehicular traffic. It also contains alternative language prohibiting or restricting parking [see [2], P 3, below].

When a grant provides for the use of land "as a driveway," a narrow construction must be placed on the term "driveway" [Dolske v. Gormley (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 513, 519, 375 P.2d 174] . Driveway rights are viewed as primarily for ingress and egress of vehicles, and do not include pedestrian and maintenance access to an adjoining property [see Dolske v. Gormley (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 513, 519, 375 P.2d 174] . Similarly, a conveyance "for road purposes only" does not permit the use of the servient tenement for any object or purpose other than a road [see Marlin v. Robinson (1932) 123 Cal. App. 373, 377, 11 P.2d 70] .

[c] Parking

A conveyance of a nonexclusive right to pass along, over, and upon a private road or alleyway for all purposes connected with the use of the dominant tenement, does not include the right to park vehicles in a way that would exclude others from exercising their right to travel over the same road [see Keeler v. Haky (1958) 160 Cal. App. 2d 471, 475-476, 325 P.2d 648] . However, a grant of a roadway over a strip of land may include, as an incidental easement [see §§ 28A.18[1], 28A.215 [2], P 5], the right to the reasonable use of the easement for transitory parking, if the parking does not interfere with the rights of others in the easement [see Heath v. Kettenhofen (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 197, 204, 45 Cal. Rptr. 778] . The parties to an easement transaction should attempt to resolve parking issues by including a parking provision in the easement grant [see [2], P 3, below].

[d] Maintenance and Repair Work

As a general rule, the owner of an easement has the duty to keep the easement in repair [McManus v. Sequoyah Land Assoc. (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 348, 356, 49 Cal. Rptr. 592 ; see Civ. Code § 845]. However, the parties may alter this obligation by contract [Rose v. Peters (1943) 59 Cal. App. 2d 833, 835, 139 P.2d 983] .

A grant of an easement carries with it a "secondary" right to enter on the servient tenement to make repairs and do any other things that are necessary for the full exercise of the primary easement [Oliver v. Agasse (1901) 132 Cal. 297, 299, 64 P. 401 ; see Ward v. City of Monrovia (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 815, 821-822, 108 P.2d 425] . For example, a grant of an easement for road purposes may include the right to construct a guard rail if the road adjoins a steep embankment and the guardrails (1) are reasonably necessary, and (2) would not unduly burden the servient tenement [see Herzog v. Grosso (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 219, 225, 259 P.2d 429] .

This form requires the grantor to maintain the easement at the grantor's sole expense and cost [see [2], P 6, below]. For a maintenance agreement providing for sharing of maintenance expenses by co-owners of a private right-of-way or by owners of different parcels to which such an easement is attached, see Section 28A.231. The provisions in that agreement governing shared maintenance obligations may be incorporated into this form in lieu of Paragraph 6.

12-28A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28A.215

§ 28A.215 Profit Agreement

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an agreement granting a profit appurtenant or a profit in gross. A profit (also referred to as a profit a prendre) is the right to make some use of another's land, and includes the following: (1) the right of entry, (2) the right to remove and take from the land the designated products or profit, and (3) the right to use the surface to the extent necessary and convenient for the exercise of the profit [Costa Mesa Union Sch. Dist. v. Security First Nat. Bk. (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 4, 11-12, 62 Cal. Rptr. 113 ; see Callahan v. Martin (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 110, 120-121, 43 P.2d 788] .

For additional and alternative provisions that may be added to this form or to any of the complete easement agreements in this chapter, see Sections 28A.220 through 28A.224.

[b] Status as Easement

A profit may be characterized as an easement [Costa Mesa Union Sch. Dist. v. Security First Nat. Bk. (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 4, 11-12, 62 Cal. Rptr. 113 ; see Civ. Code §§ 801, 802; see also § 28A.11]. Consequently, the statutory and case law that applies to easements also applies to profits [see Gerhard v. Stephens (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 864, 880, 881, 69 Cal. Rptr. 612 ; Leggio v. Haggerty (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 873, 879, 880, 42 Cal. Rptr. 400 ; Restatement of Property, § 450, "Special Note"]. Thus, a profit, like an easement, can be either in gross or appurtenant [Leggio v. Haggerty (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 873, 880, 42 Cal. Rptr. 400] .

For coverage of the creation of easements in general, see Section 28A.19. For the reasons stated above, that discussion also applies to profits. Similarly, most of the discussion in Section 28A.120 of the contents of the complete easement agreement set forth as Section 28A.210 also applies to this form.

12-28A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28A.220

§ 28A.220 Documentary Transfer Tax Information

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a provision that should be added to an instrument creating an easement, immediately following the recorder's information, if the instrument is subject to a documentary transfer tax and the easement potentially may endure for a substantial period of time [see [b], below]. The amount of the tax and related information must be noted on the face of the instrument (this form) or on a separate document [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 11932, 11933]. As a practical matter, a separate document is rarely used in an easement transaction. Separate documents are used in real property sales transactions when the parties wish to avoid disclosing the purchase price of the property to third parties.

[b] Documentary Transfer Tax

Under the Documentary Transfer Tax Act [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 11901-11934], California counties may tax transfers of real property [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11911(a)]. If a county imposes such a tax, cities within that county may also tax these transfers [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11911(b); see Rev. & Tax. Code § 11911(c) (credit allowed against county transfer tax for amount of any transfer tax imposed by city)]. The tax may be imposed, by ordinance, on each deed, instrument, or writing by which real property sold within the county is granted, assigned, transferred, or otherwise conveyed to, or vested in, another person when the consideration or value of the interest or property conveyed, exclusive of the value of any lien or encumbrance remaining on the property at the time of sale, exceeds $100 [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11911(a), (b)]. An easement is subject to the Act if it potentially may endure for a substantial period of time. The following are examples of easements that fall within this category: a perpetual easement; an easement for life; or an easement for a fixed period of years that (1) can be renewed by the easement holder, or (2) is of sufficient length so as to approximate a perpetual easement or an easement for life [62 Cal. Op. Att'y Gen. 87 (1979)] .

The tax must be paid by any person who makes, signs, or issues the instrument subject to the tax, or for whose use or benefit the instrument is made, signed, or issued [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11912]. As mentioned under [a], above, a declaration of the amount due, signed by the party determining the tax or that party's agent, must appear on the face of the instrument (this form) or on a separate document [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 11932]. The declaration must include a statement indicating whether the consideration or value used to compute the tax [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 11911] was exclusive of the value of a lien or encumbrance remaining on the interest or property conveyed at the time of sale [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11933].

A county recorder cannot record an instrument unless any required documentary transfer tax or taxes have been paid. However, if the recorder records the instrument anyway, failure to collect the tax does not affect the constructive notice imparted by the recordation of the instrument [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11933].

For further discussion of the Act, see Ch. 27, Deeds and Recording, § 27.242.

12-28A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28A.221

§ 28A.221 Change in Use of Easement

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a clause that may be inserted into any of the complete easement agreements in this chapter when the parties anticipate that the grantee's use of the easement will change in the future. It describes the current uses, and authorizes the grantee to change or increase these uses, provided the new uses do not unreasonably increase the burden on the servient tenement.

An instrument creating an easement must describe the use to which the servient tenement is to be put [City of Glendora v. Faus (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 920, 926, 307 P.2d 976 ; see § 28A.20 [2]]. The extent of the easement is determined by the terms of the grant [Civ. Code § 806]. Thereafter, the owner of the easement has no right to use the easement in such a way as to create a new burden on the servient tenement or materially increase the existing burden [Wall v. Rudolph (1961) 198 Cal. App. 2d 684, 686, 18 Cal. Rptr. 123] . Consequently, if the grantee feels that his or her needs will change in the future, he or she should insist on the inclusion in the easement grant of a provision permitting the grantee to use the easement for those changed needs [see Kratovil, Easement Draftmanship and Conveyancing, 38 Calif. L. Rev. 426, 446 (1950)].

12-28A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28A.222

§ 28A.222 Division of Dominant Tenement

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a clause providing for the apportionment of an easement upon the subdivision, partition, or other division of the dominant tenement. When a dominant tenement is subdivided or partitioned, the easement must be apportioned accordingly [Civ. Code § 807; Leggio v. Haggerty (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 873, 881, 42 Cal. Rptr. 400] . This means that each part of the dominant tenement is entitled to claim the benefit of the easement for the service of that part [Leggio v. Haggerty (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 873, 881, 42 Cal. Rptr. 400 ; Powell on Real Property, ch. 34, Easements and Licenses (Matthew Bender)]. However, the burden must not be apportioned so as to impose an undue or unreasonable burden on the servient tenement [Civ. Code § 807; Jordan v. Worthen (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 310, 327, 137 Cal. Rptr. 282 ; see Russell v. Palos Verdes Properties (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 754, 772-773, 32 Cal. Rptr. 488] . This form essentially notifies the parties of the applicable laws, and may be inserted into any of the complete easement agreements in this chapter.

_____. If the Dominant Tenement is hereafter subdivided, partitioned, or otherwise divided into two or more parts, the easement granted in this Agreement shall be apportioned so that the owner of each resulting part of the original Dominant Tenement, or the owner's assignee, shall be entitled to enjoy the benefit of the easement granted in this Agreement for the service of the owner's part, provided that the resulting use of the easement does not impose an undue or unreasonable burden on the Servient Tenement.

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a clause that provides for the expansion of a dominant tenement. Specifically, it states that any property subsequently acquired by the grantee that is contiguous to the original dominant tenement shall become part of the dominant tenement. This form may be inserted into any of the complete easement agreements in this chapter.

[b] Subsequently-Acquired Property

An easement appurtenant may be used only for the benefit of the dominant tenement [Wall v. Rudolph (1961) 198 Cal. App. 2d 684, 695, 18 Cal. Rptr. 123] . Consequently, if the parties to an easement agreement anticipate that the grantee may subsequently acquire contiguous property, and wish to extend the benefit of the easement to that property, they should include this type of provision in the easement grant [see Kratovil, *Easement Draftmanship and Conveyancing, 38 Calif. § 28A.224 Relocation of Servient Tenement

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form may be inserted into any of the complete easement agreements in this chapter when the grantor wishes to reserve a limited right to relocate the servient tenement. As a general rule, once the location of an easement has been established, it cannot be substantially changed without the consent of both parties [Youngstown Steel Products Co. v. Los Angeles (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 407, 410-411, 240 P.2d 977] . The use of a relocation clause in an easement agreement permits the parties to provide for future changes in their needs. This type of agreement is particularly important when the easement is located on industrial property. In that case, the original location of the servient tenement may interfere with the servient owner's subsequent plans to construct additional roads or to expand existing facilities [see Kratovil, Easement Draftmanship and Conveyancing, 38 Calif. L. Rev. 426, 442 (1950)].

12-28A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28A.230

§ 28A.230 License Agreement

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an agreement creating a license. As a general rule, a license is a personal, revocable, and nonassignable right to do one or more acts on the land of another without possessing an interest in that land [Eastman v. Piper (1924) 68 Cal. App. 554, 560, 229 P. 1002 ; see Restatement of Property § 512]. It is a personal privilege that confers on the licensee the authority to do an act that would otherwise be unlawful [Fisher v. General Petroleum Corp. (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 770, 776, 267 P.2d 841] .

Although courts have frequently stated that licenses are not "interests" in land [see, e.g., Eastman v. Piper (1924) 68 Cal. App. 554, 560, 229 P. 1002 ; Fisher v. General Petroleum Corp. (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 770, 776, 267 P.2d 841] , the better view is that a license is an interest in land [see Colvin v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 1306, 1312, 240 Cal. Rptr. 142 ; Restatement of Property § 512, Comment c (license as "interest" in property); Powell on Real Property, vol. 3, ch. 34, Easements and Licenses; Bowman, Ogden's Revised California Real Property Law (Cal. CEB 1974), vol. 1, ch. 13, Easements]. However, it is not the type of interest that is subject to the statute of frauds [Colvin v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 1306, 1312, 240 Cal. Rptr. 142 ; Eastman v. Piper (1924) 68 Cal. App. 554, 560, 229 P. 1002] . One commentator has referred to licenses as insubstantial interests in real property with an "evanescent, fleeting, revocable character" [see Powell On Real Property, vol. 3, ch. 34, Easements and Licenses (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Comparison With Easements

The California Supreme Court has recognized that the differences between a license and an easement are often subtle and difficult to discern [Cohen v. Adolph Kutner Co. (1918) 177 Cal. 592, 594, 171 P. 424] . It is possible in many cases to distinguish licenses from easements on the ground that the former are revocable [see [e], below] and the latter are irrevocable [see § 28A.12 [2]]. However, the courts have not always drawn the distinction in precisely those terms, and some easements are irrevocable [see [e], below]. Perhaps the principal distinction between an easement and a license is that an easement is fully protected as an interest in land [see § 28A.10], while a license is considered a slight and insubstantial interest in real property [see Powell On Real Property, vol. 3, ch. 34, Easements and Licenses (Matthew Bender); [a], above].

Whether in a particular case an easement or a license has been created is a question of the parties' intent [Cohen v. Adolph Kutner Co. (1918) 177 Cal. 592, 594, 171 P. 424] . However, the words used in creating the right are not controlling [Cohen v. Adolph Kutner Co. (1918) 177 Cal. 592, 594, 171 P. 424] . In appropriate cases, extrinsic evidence may be admissible to interpret an agreement [see Guerra v. Packard (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 272, 286, 46 Cal. Rptr. 25] .

[c] Creation

As mentioned above, a license is not deemed an interest in real property for purposes of application of the statute of frauds [see Eastman v. Piper (1924) 68 Cal. App. 554, 560, 229 P. 1002 ; [a], above]. Consequently, a license may be created by parol [Eastman v. Piper (1924) 68 Cal. App. 554, 560, 229 P. 1002] or may arise by implication [see Lusk v. Krejci (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 553, 555, 9 Cal. Rptr. 703] . Of course, a license may also be created by a writing [Fisher v. General Petroleum Corp. (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 770, 776, 267 P.2d 841] . The only "essential" to the creation of a license is some expression by the licensor of his or her assent or consent to the use of the land by the licensee [Eastman v. Piper (1924) 68 Cal. App. 554, 560, 229 P. 1002 ; Gravelly Ford Co. v. Pope-Talbot Co. (1918) 36 Cal. App. 717, 737, 178 P. 155 ; Restatement of Property § 512, Comment h].

[d] Assignments

As a general rule, a license is not assignable because it is a personal privilege. An attempt to assign a license terminates it [Eastman v. Piper (1924) 68 Cal. App. 554, 560, 229 P. 1002 ; Shaw v. Caldwell (1911) 16 Cal. App. 1, 8, 115 P. 941] . Notwithstanding this general rule, a license may be assigned if the original licensor and licensee agree that it may be assigned [Herman v. Rohan (1918) 37 Cal. App. 678, 681, 174 P. 349 ; see Restatement of Property § 517 (license is assignable in so far as it was intended in its creation to be assignable); see also Restatement of Property § 518(a) (no particular formalities are required for assignment of license)]. This form contains alternative provisions prohibiting and permitting assignments [see [2], P 5, below].

[e] Revocation

The general rule is that a license may be revoked at any time at the will of the licensor [Wheeler v. West (1886) 71 Cal. 126, 129, 11 P. 871 ; County of Alameda v. Ross (1939) 32 Cal. App. 2d 135, 141-142, 89 P.2d 460 ; see Bomberger v. McKelvey (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 607, 618, 220 P.2d 729 (mere license to enter or use premises may be revoked by licensor at any time)]. However, there are two major exceptions to this general rule of revocability. First, if the licensee has made expenditures or performed work in reasonable reliance on the license, the license may become irrevocable on the basis of estoppel [Hammond v. Mustard (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 384, 388-389, 64 Cal. Rptr. 829 ; Stoner v. Zucker (1906) 148 Cal. 516, 520, 83 P. 808 ; for further discussion, see California Real Estate Law Practice, vol. 10, ch. 343, Easements and Licenses (Matthew Bender)]. In that case, the license becomes an interest that is very similar to an easement [see Stoner v. Zucker (1906) 148 Cal. 516, 520, 83 P. 808 ; Cooke v. Ramponi (1852) 38 Cal. 2d 282, 286, 239 P.2d 638] . Second, a license "coupled with an interest" is not revocable but continues to exist for the period contemplated by the license [Bomberger v. McKelvey (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 607, 618, 220 P.2d 729] . The cases dealing with licenses coupled with an interest generally turn on the need of the licensee to cross the land of the licensor to reach property owned by the licensee [see California Real Estate Law Practice, vol. 10, ch. 343, Easements and Licenses (Matthew Bender)]. For example, when there has been a sale of personal property located on the seller's land, the buyer has an irrevocable license to enter and remove the personal property within a reasonable time [Bomberger v. McKelvey (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 607, 618, 220 P.2d 729] .

The first alternative version of Paragraph 6 of this form should be used if the license is to be revocable. It provides that the licensor may terminate the license at any time by having a written termination notice delivered to the licensee. The second alternative version of that paragraph specifies the term of the license. It should be used if the parties wish to create a license "coupled with an interest" that will continue to exist for the specified term.

[f] Other Terminating Events

As discussed in [e], above, a licensor may revoke a license under certain circumstances. A license may also be terminated by (1) an attempted assignment by the licensee [see Eastman v. Piper (1924) 68 Cal. App. 554, 560, 229 P. 1002 ; [d], above]; (2) a voluntary surrender of the licensee's rights under the license [see Powell On Real Property, vol. 3, ch. 34, Easements and Licenses (Matthew Bender)]; (3) the licensee's abandonment or nonuse of the property subject to the license [Stoner v. Zucker (1906) 148 Cal. 516, 520, 83 P. 808] ; (4) the destruction of the property subject to the license [Cohen v. Adolph Kutner Co. (1918) 177 Cal. 592, 594, 171 P. 424] ; or (5) the death of either party [DeHaro v. United States (1867) 72 U.S. 599, 627-628, 18 L. Ed. 681] . For additional coverage of these terminating events, see California Real Estate Law Practice, Volume 10, Chapter 343, Easements and Licenses (Matthew Bender).

[g] Indemnity and Insurance

This form includes optional insurance and indemnity provisions. The insurance provision requires the licensee to obtain and maintain a policy of comprehensive liability insurance, and specifies the minimum amounts of coverage [see [2], P 9, below]. The indemnity clause provides, among other things, that the licensee agrees to hold the licensor exempt and harmless for any damage or injury arising from the licensee's use of the the property subject to the license or from licensee's failure to maintain that property [see [2], P 8, below; see also Civ. Code § 2772 ("indemnity" defined)]. There are no unique legal considerations governing insurance or indemnification provisions in licenses. For coverage of indemnity in general, see Volume 14, Chapter 79, Suretyship, Guaranty, and Indemnity.

12-28A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28A.231

§ 28A.231 Agreement to Share Maintenance Expenses of Easement

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an agreement between co-owners of a private right-of-way providing for the sharing of the expenses of maintaining and repairing the easement [see Civ. Code § 845(b); see also [c], below]. In the absence of such an agreement, the cost of maintaining the right-of-way in repair must be shared by the co-owners proportionately to the use made of the easement by each owner [Civ. Code § 845(c); see [c], below].

This form assumes that the parties are co-owners of the easement. However, if the parties are owners of appurtenant parcels [see [c], below], this form may be easily modified to reflect that fact.

For a grant deed creating and conveying a private right-of-way, see Section 28A.201.

[b] Right and Duty to Maintain Easements in General

An easement owner has the duty to keep the easement in repair [McManus v. Sequoyah Land Assoc. (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 348, 356, 49 Cal. Rptr. 592 ; see Civ. Code § 845; see also [c], below]. However, the parties may alter this obligation by contract [Rose v. Peters (1943) 59 Cal. App. 2d 833, 835, 139 P.2d 983] .

An express or implied grant of an easement carries with it a "secondary" easement that gives the dominant owner the right to enter on the servient tenement to make repairs and do any other things that are necessary for the full exercise of the primary easement [Oliver v. Agasse (1901) 132 Cal. 297, 299, 64 P. 401 ; see Ward v. City of Monrovia (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 815, 821-822, 108 P.2d 425] . This secondary easement must be exercised only when necessary, and in a reasonable manner that does not needlessly increase the burden on the servient tenement [Oliver v. Agasse (1901) 132 Cal. 297, 299, 64 P. 401] .

For additional coverage of the maintenance of easements in general, see Section 28A.24.

[c] Statutory Requirements Governing Repair of Right-of-Way

The owner of any easement in the nature of a private right-of-way, or of any land to which any such easement is attached, must maintain it in repair [Civ. Code § 845(a)]. If the easement is owned by more than one person, or is appurtenant to parcels of land under different ownership, the cost of maintaining it in repair must be shared by each owner of the easement or each owner of an appurtenant parcel, as the case may be, pursuant to the terms of any agreement entered into by the parties for that purpose (this form). If any owner who is a party to the agreement refuses to perform or fails (after receiving a written payment demand) to pay the owner's proportionate share of the cost [see § 28A.232 (payment demand)], an action for specific performance or contribution may be brought against that owner in a court of competent jurisdiction by the other owners, either jointly or severally [Civ. Code § 845(b); for an illustrative complaint, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Easements (Matthew Bender)].

An agreement to share expenses will be construed to include snow removal as a maintenance obligation if all of the following apply [Civ. Code § 845(d)]:

(1) Snow removal is not required under Civil Code Section § 845(a) (see discussion above) or under any independent contractual or statutory duty.

(2) Snow removal is not expressly precluded by the terms of the maintenance agreement.

(3) Snow removal is necessary to provide access to the properties served by the easement.

(4) Snow removal is approved in advance by the property owners or their elected representatives in the same manner as provided by the agreement for repairs to the easement.

In the absence of an agreement to share expenses, the cost of maintaining the right-of-way in repair must be shared proportionately to the use made of the easement by each owner. In that case, any owner of the easement or of an appurtenant parcel may apply to the appropriate court for the appointment of an impartial arbitrator to apportion the cost [Civ. Code § 845(c); see Healy v. Onstott (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 612, 617, 237 Cal. Rptr. 540 ; for an illustrative petition, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Easements (Matthew Bender)]. The application may be made before, during, or after performance of the maintenance work. If the arbitration award is not accepted by all of the owners, the court may enter a judgment determining the proportionate liability of each owner [Civ. Code § 845(c); see Healy v. Onstott (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 612, 616, 237 Cal. Rptr. 540] . The judgment may be enforced as a money judgment by any party against any other party to the action [Civ. Code § 845(c)].

There are two exceptions to the foregoing requirements. First, although nonconsenting co-owners of a right-of-way may be compelled to contribute to the costs of keeping the way in repair [Civ. Code § 845(c)], they may not, without their consent, be compelled to contribute to the cost of major improvements [McManus v. Sequoyah Land Ass'n (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 348, 355, 49 Cal. Rptr. 592] . For example, nonconsenting owners cannot be required to contribute to the cost of paving a dirt road [Holland v. Braun (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 626, 633, 294 P.2d 51] . Second, Civil Code Section 845 does not apply to rights-of-way held or used by railroad common carriers subject to the jurisdiction of the Public Utilities Commission [Civ. Code § 845(d)].

§ 28A.232 Demand on Co-owner of Private Right-of-Way to Pay Proportionate Share of Maintenance Expenses [Civ. Code § 845]

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a demand by a co-owner of a private right-of-way easement that another co-owner pay the latter's proportionate share of the expenses of maintaining the easement [see Civ. Code § 845(a)]. If an easement in the nature of a private right-of-way is owned by more than one person, or is appurtenant to parcels of land under different ownership, the cost of maintaining it in repair must be shared by each owner of the easement or each owner of an appurtenant parcel, as the case may be, pursuant to the terms of any agreement entered into by the parties for that purpose [Civ. Code § 845(b); see § 28A.231 [2] (maintenance agreement)]. If any owner who is a party to the agreement refuses to perform or fails after demand in writing (this form) to pay the owner's proportionate share of the cost, an action for specific performance or contribution may be brought against that owner in a court of competent jurisdiction by the other owners, either jointly or severally [Civ. Code § 845(b); for an illustrative complaint, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Easements (Matthew Bender)].

This form assumes that the parties to the underlying agreement to share expenses are co-owners of the easement. If the parties are owners of appurtenant parcels, the form should be modified to reflect that fact.

For further coverage of the statutory requirements governing the maintenance of a right-of-way, see Sections 28A.140 and 28A.231[2].

12-28A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28A.233

§ 28A.233 Quitclaim Deed Releasing Easement

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a quitclaim deed that the owner of an easement may use to release the easement to the servient owner [see Westlake v. Silva (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 476, 478-479, 121 P.2d 872 ; Restatement of Property § 500]. The release terminates or extinguishes the easement [Westlake v. Silva (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 476, 478, 121 P.2d 872] .

For coverage of other methods of terminating easements, see Section 28A.26[1].

[b] Requirements for Express Release

A release is subject to the same requirements that govern instruments creating easements [Restatement of Property § 501, Comment a; Powell On Real Property, ch. 34, Easements and Licenses (Matthew Bender)]. Consequently, the release must ordinarily be in writing [see Civ. Code § 1624(c); Code Civ. Proc. § 1971; see also § 28A.20[1], [2]].

Because a quitclaim deed transfers and releases to the grantee whatever present title or interest the grantor has in the subject property, it is an appropriate instrument for the release of an easement [Westlake v. Silva (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 476, 478-479, 121 P.2d 872 ; for coverage of grant deeds in general, see ch. 27, Deeds and Recording]. However, another type of written instrument may be used, provided it is executed and delivered as required by law [see, e.g., Taylor v. Avila (1917) 175 Cal. 203, 206, 165 P. 533 (release by grant deed)].

[c] Wording

The operative words of a quitclaim deed are "remise, release, and quitclaim" [Touchard v. Crow (1862) 20 Cal. 150, 160] , or simply "quitclaim" [Bowman, Ogden's Revised California Real Property Law, vol. 1, ch. 3, Transfer by Deed (Cal. CEB 1975); see Wholey v. Cavanaugh (1891) 88 Cal. 132, 135, 25 P. 1112 (omission of word "remise" was not material)].

[d] Recordation

A recorded quitclaim deed is good as against an unrecorded grant [Beach v. Faust (1935) 2 Cal. 2d 290, 293, 40 P.2d 822] . The grantee under a quitclaim deed is a bona fide purchaser under the recording laws and is therefore protected from unrecorded instruments affecting the title to the property of which the grantee had no notice [Beach v. Faust (1935) 2 Cal. 2d 290, 293, 40 P.2d 822] .

§ 28A.234 Notice of Consent to Use Land [Civ. Code § 813]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice indicating that any public or private use of the land described in the notice is by permission of the owner. By posting this type of notice on real property, the owner of the property will prevent another person from acquiring a prescriptive right in the property [see Civ. Code § 813]. Otherwise, a person may acquire an easement by prescription in the property by using the property for at least five years, provided that the use is open, notorious, continuous, uninterrupted, hostile to the true owner, and under a claim of right [see Warsaw v. Chicago Metallic Ceilings, Inc. (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 564, 570, 199 Cal. Rptr. 773 ; Taormino v. Denny (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 679, 686, 83 Cal. Rptr. 359] .

For another notice that may be used to prevent the acquisition of prescriptive rights [see Civ. Code § 1008], see Section 28A.236.

[b] Contents

The notice of consent must contain a description of the land and a notice reading substantially as follows: "The right of the public or any person to make any use whatsoever of the above described land or any portion thereof (other than any use expressly allowed by a written or recorded map, agreement, deed or dedication) is by permission, and subject to control, of owner: Section 813, Civil Code." Further, the notice may condition permission for public use of the property on reasonable restrictions on the time, place, and manner of public use [Civ. Code § 813].

[c] Recordation and Service

The holder of record title to the land must record the notice in the office of the recorder of any county in which any part of the land is situated [Civ. Code § 813; see ch. 27, Deeds and Recording]. Further, if the property is used by other than the general public (that is, by a specific person or persons), the notice must be served by registered or certified mail on the user(s) [Civ. Code § 813; see Civ. Code § 17 (authorizing use of certified mail)].

In any action involving the issue of whether any user has a prescriptive right in the land, the recorded notice will constitute conclusive evidence that use of the land during the time the notice is in effect, other than any use expressly allowed by a written or recorded map, agreement, deed, or dedication, is permissive and with the owner's consent. However, recordation does not affect rights that are vested at the time of recording [Civ. Code § 813].

After recording the notice, and prior to any revocation of it [see [d], below], the owner must not, by physical obstruction, notice, or otherwise, prevent any "appropriate" public use of the property [Civ. Code § 813].

[d] Revocation

The holder of record title to the property may revoke the notice of consent by recording a notice of revocation in the same office in which the original notice was recorded [Civ. Code § 813]. For an illustrative notice of revocation, see Section 28A.235.

§ 28A.236 Statutory Notice Barring Prescriptive Rights [Civ. Code § 1008]

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a statutory notice that an owner of real property may post on the property to prevent the acquisition of prescriptive rights in the property [see § 28A.23 (discussion of prescriptive rights)]. If the sign reads substantially as required by Civ. Code § 1008 [see [2], below (statutory wording)], and the owner posts the sign at each entrance to the property or at intervals of not more than 200 feet along the boundary, no use of the land by any person or persons can ever ripen into an easement by prescription, regardless of how long the use continues [Civ. Code § 1008]. To be legally operative, the "permission to pass" sign must be posted by the landowner or by the landowner's authorized agent [*Aaron v. Dunham (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 1244, 1252, 41 Cal. § 28A.237 Notice of Conservation Easement [Gov. Code § 27255(c)] to be Filed with County Recorder for Placement in Comprehensive Index of Conservation Easements and Notices of Conservation Easements

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a Notice of Conservation Easement that may be completed and submitted to the county recorder in the county in which the easement is located. The information is to be added to the county's comprehensive index of conservation easements, which also includes information on recorded documents that contain a specifically named conservation easement. The conservation easement must be described in the notice, and all requested information must be properly filled out by the submitter. The notice may be recorded at the same time as it is submitted, or at a later time [Gov. Code § 27255(c)]. For information on the elements of a conservation easement, and the types of easements that fall into this category, see § 28A.29.

[b] Comprehensive Index of Conservation Easements

The county recorder in each county must develop and maintain, within the county's existing indexing system, a comprehensive index of conservation easements and Notices of Conservation Easements on land within the county. This index must include all conservation easements, as defined, recorded on or after January 1, 2002 [Gov. Code § 27255(a), (f); see § 28A.29]. In addition, a conservation easement recorded before January 1, 2002, may be included in the comprehensive index if a party to the easement fills out and records a notice for the previously recorded easement, and files the notice in the county in which the affected real property is located [Gov. Code § 27255(d)]. Any party to a conservation easement may fill out and record a notice, including, but not limited to, counties, cities, recreation and park districts or agencies, state conservancies, state agencies, the California Coastal Commission, land trusts, and nonprofit organizations [Gov. Code § 27255(d)].

Scope

Scope

This chapter discusses party walls and boundary agreements. The law of party walls relates essentially to the law of easements and to the right of support by adjoining landowners in a common wall located on or near the line of division between their properties. The law of boundary agreements relates essentially to the procedure by which an uncertain boundary line between adjoining lands is defined and fixed, with the agreed boundary attaching to the deeds under which the adjoining owners claim title. The chapter contains a detailed treatment of the doctrine of agreed boundaries, the elements required under the doctrine, and the legal effect of a valid boundary agreement under the doctrine.

This chapter does not discuss either the law of easements or the area of contract formation. For a complete discussion of easements, see Ch. 28A, Easements and Licenses . For coverage of general contract principles, see Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions .

DIVISION II: REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 28B PARTY WALLS AND BOUNDARY AGREEMENTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Party Walls

12-28B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28B.10

§ 28B.10 Party Wall Defined

[1] In General

A party wall is generally defined as a wall built next to, or astride, a boundary line [see POWELL ON REAL PROPERTY, Ch. 61, Party Walls (Matthew Bender)] between two adjacent parcels of land owned by different landowners. A party wall is used, or is intended to be used, by the adjoining landowners as the basis of support for another structure so as to be the common wall or common foundation of two different buildings [see Tate v. Fratt (1896) 112 Cal. 613, 618, 44 P. 1061 ; Nippert v. Warneke (1900) 128 Cal. 501].

It is not necessary for a party wall to stand half on each of the adjoining parcels of land. The wall may stand partly or half on each parcel, or wholly on one, and may or may not be the common property of the two landowners [Tate v. Fratt (1896) 112 Cal. 613, 618, 44 P. 1061] .

[2] Party Wall as Easement

An agreement for a party wall does not create an interest in land [Walner v. City of Turlock (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 399, 41 Cal. Rptr. 29] , but rather an easement appurtenant [Civil Code § 801(12); see Ch. 28A, Easements and Licenses]. Adjoining owners of party walls have rights of support and cross easements [Nippert v. Warneke (1900) 128 Cal. 501, 504, 61 P. 96] .

When a party wall is constructed entirely on one owner's property, the adjoining owner has an easement to use the wall as a party wall, that is, to use its support in constructing other structures [Tate v. Fratt (1896) 112 Cal. 613, 618, 44 P. 1061] . When the wall is constructed so as to be located half on each adjoining property, both owners have easements, with the right to rely on the other's land and share of the wall for support [Nippert v. Warneke (1900) 128 Cal. 501, 504, 61 P. 96] . Thus, a party wall agreement, under California law, results in the creation of cross easements, with each party owning that part of the wall located on that owner's land, and having right of easement as to that part located on the other owner's land [McCarthy v. Mutual Relief Ass'n (1889) 81 Cal. 584, 22 P. 933] . The nature and scope of a party wall easement is determined by the parties' agreement [Frowenfeld v. Casey (1903) 139 Cal. 421, 425, 73 P. 152 ; see § 28B.11].

[3] Partition Fence Distinguished

A division or partition fence is defined as a structure erected on the boundary of coterminous lands that may be used to mark the boundary line [see POWELL ON REAL PROPERTY, ch. 61, Party Walls (Matthew Bender); Vowinckel v. N. Clark & Sons (1933) 217 Cal. 258, 261, 18 P.2d 58 ; Kirkegaard v. McLain (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 484, 491, 18 Cal. Rptr. 641 ; see also § 28B.20]. If the fence is not built on the boundary line, but is located solely on the property of one of the adjoining landowners, it is not a division fence [see Western Granite & Marble Co. v. Knickerbocker (1894) 103 Cal. 111, 116-117, 37 P. 192] . The object of a fence is to protect and enclose land, and, historically, to prevent ingress and egress of domestic animals [see Meade v. Watson (1885) 67 Cal. 591, 8 P. 311 ; Food & Agric. Code § 17121].

If a division fence is built on the line as a partition fence, it belongs to both adjoining owners as tenants in common [36A C.J.S. Fences § 15(b)]. Once coterminous owners have chosen to enclose lands by fencing, the duty of maintenance may become an easement [see Civ. Code § 801(14); see also Civ. Code § 841].

CHAPTER 28B PARTY WALLS AND BOUNDARY AGREEMENTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Party Walls

12-28B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28B.11

§ 28B.11 Creation of Party Wall

In general, a party wall may be created in three ways: (1) by deed, either by express grant as when the owner of an already existing wall grants an easement to an adjoining landowner to use the wall as a party wall [see § 28B.203]; (2) by implication, as when the owner of two buildings with a common wall conveys each building to a different grantee [see Nippert v. Warneke (1900) 128 Cal. 501, 504, 61 P. 96] ; and (3) by agreement, as when adjoining owners agree to construct a party wall [see McCarthy v. Mutual Relief Ass'n (1889) 81 Cal. 584, 586, 22 P. 933] .

By far the most common method of creating a party wall is by express agreement. However, a party wall agreement may be implied from the surrounding circumstances. For example, a party might be estopped to deny the existence of a party wall when a wall constructed on the lot of one owner projects onto or rests on the land of an adjoining owner [see Bank of Escondido v. Thomas (1895) 41 P. 462, 5 Cal. Unrep. 94 ; Guttenberger v. Woods (1876) 51 Cal. 523, 524] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Party Walls

12-28B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28B.12

§ 28B.12 Scope of Party Wall Easement

[1] Terms of Agreement

The extent of the easement or cross easements relating to a party wall, and thus the rights and duties of the parties relating to the use of a party wall, is determined by the terms of the parties' agreement [Frowenfeld v. Casey (1903) 139 Cal. 421, 424, 73 P. 152 ; see McCarthy v. Mutual Relief Ass'n (1889) 81 Cal. 584, 586, 22 P. 933 (provision for finishing off wall face); Watkins v. Glas (1907) 5 Cal. App. 68, 70-74, 78, 89 P. 840 (allocation of construction costs); see also Civ. Code § 806 (extent of servitude determined by terms of grant, or nature of enjoyment by which acquired)].

[2] Modifications to Party Wall

In general, the scope of an easement in a party wall extends to permit either party to increase the height of the party wall. More specifically, absent an agreement to the contrary, either party may increase the height of a party wall when it can be done without injuring the adjoining structure or the wall itself [Frowenfeld v. Casey (1903) 139 Cal. 421, 424, 73 P. 152 ; Tate v. Fratt (1896) 112 Cal. 613, 618, 44 P. 1061] and without impairing the value of the cross easements to which the adjoining landowner is entitled [Tate v. Fratt (1896) 112 Cal. 613, 618, 44 P. 1061 ; see § 28B.10 [2]]. An agreement to build a party wall with no limit as to height gives the implied right to build as high as necessary for the proposed purposes, provided that the wall can be constructed without injury or damage to property [Frowenfeld v. Casey (1903) 139 Cal. 421, 422, 73 P. 152] . However, when the agreement specifically limits the height (or the height of an extension) of the party wall, the parties are limited to express terms [Henne v. Lankershim (1905) 146 Cal. 70, 72, 79 P. 591 ; Frowenfeld v. Casey (1903) 139 Cal. 421, 422, 73 P. 152] .

When one adjoining landowner extends the height of a party wall, either under the specific terms of the agreement or the general power because the agreement has no limitations as to height, that landowner must build the extension so that the other landowner can use the extension. This rule is derived from the theory that the increase in height may not impair the value of the cross easements to which the adjoining landowner is entitled [see Tate v. Fratt (1896) 112 Cal. 613, 618, 44 P. 1061] .

[3] Allocation of Construction and Maintenance Costs

Parties may allocate costs of construction and maintenance in an express party wall agreement [Henne v. Lankershim (1905) 146 Cal. 70, 72, 79 P. 591 ; Watkins v. Glas (1907) 5 Cal. App. 68, 74-78, 89 P. 840] . Further, an agreement to share costs may be implied from an adjoining landowner's use of the party wall [see Watkins v. Glas (1907) 5 Cal. App. 68, 74-78, 89 P. 840] . However, if an agreement specifies the types of materials or the proportions to be used in rebuilding or extending a party wall, an adjoining landowner is not liable for the costs of an extension built over written protest and in violation of the express terms of the agreement [Equitable Building & Loan Ass'n v. Wolfangle (1931) 111 Cal. App. 119, 123, 295 P. 388] . If the noncontributing adjoining landowner subsequently uses the extension, he or she must then pay the reasonable value of the use [Equitable Building & Loan Ass'n v. Wolfangle (1931) 111 Cal. App. 119, 123-124, 295 P. 388] .

Adjoining owners of a party wall are liable to each other for damages caused by repairs to and the rebuilding of a party wall [Nippert v. Warneke (1900) 128 Cal. 501, 504, 61 P. 96] . Further, an adjoining owner is liable for the wrongful removal of a party wall, or for injuring that portion of the wall belonging to the other owner [Nippert v. Warneke (1900) 128 Cal. 501, 504, 61 P. 96 ; McCarthy v. Mutual Relief Ass'n (1889) 81 Cal. 584, 586, 22 P. 933] .

§ 28B.21 Methods of Establishing Boundaries

[1] Overview

Many methods exist by which boundaries may be located and established. In addition to establishing boundaries by a written description in a deed [see ch. 27, Deeds and Recording], boundaries may be established by agreement [see [2], below], by estoppel [see [3], below], or by adverse possession or prescriptive easement [see [4], below]. Further, if boundaries have been disturbed by earth movements, they can additionally be established under the Cullen Earthquake Act [see § 28B.23; see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 751.50-751.65].

[2] By Agreement

When the location of a boundary between adjoining lands is uncertain, the adjoining landowners may make an agreement fixing the location of the boundary line under the doctrine of agreed boundaries [Allen v. McMillion (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 211, 214-215, 147 Cal. Rptr. 77 ; French v. Brinkman (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 547, 551-553, 35 Cal. Rptr. 289, 387 P.2d 1 ; see Mehdizadeh v. Mincer (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1296, 1302-1303, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 284 (agreed boundaries doctrine did not apply when there was no uncertainty as to boundary and no agreement that fence established boundary); see also 28B.22]. An agreement as to the location of a boundary line may be either oral or written, or express or implied from the conduct of the parties [*French v. Brinkman (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 547, 551-553, 35 Cal. A boundary may be established using the principle of estoppel when reliance on misrepresentation as to the true boundary and resulting prejudice are shown [see Wilder v. Nicolaus (1920) 50 Cal. App. 776, 195 P. 1068 ; Friedman v. Southern California Trust Co. (1918) 179 Cal. 266, 270, 176 P. 442 ; Humphrey v. Futter (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 333, 339, 215 Cal. Rptr. 178] . A landowner is ordinarily presumed to know the boundaries of his or her property, and a purchaser is entitled to rely on the owner's representations as to its boundaries [see Roman v. Ries (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 65, 68-69, 66 Cal. Rptr. 120] . Further, this rule applies to any misrepresentations as to the location of the boundary line made by an adjoining landowner [see Frericks v. Sorensen (1952) 113 Cal. App. 2d 759, 761, 248 P.2d 949 ; Rast v. Fischer (1951) 107 Cal. App. 2d 129, 131-134, 236 P.2d 393] . An owner will also be estopped to deny the true boundary line if, by conduct or assertions, that owner was instrumental in having improvements made beyond the true line [Vowinckel v. N. Clark & Sons (1933) 217 Cal. 258, 260, 18 P.2d 58 ; Frericks v. Sorensen (1952) 113 Cal. App. 2d 759, 761, 248 P.2d 949] .

[4] By Adverse Possession or Prescription

Title to real property, including property up to and including a boundary line, may be acquired by adverse possession for the prescribed period of time [see, e.g., Dimmick v. Dimmick (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 417, 24 Cal. Rptr. 856, 374 P.2d 824 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 325]. A person claiming adverse possession must show that he or she held possession under a claim of right or color of title; that the occupation of the property was actual, open, and notorious so as to constitute reasonable notice to the true owner; that the occupation of the property was exclusive and hostile to the true owner; that the possession was continuous and uninterrupted for at least five years; that the claimant paid all taxes assessed against the property during the five-year period [see Dimmick v. Dimmick (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 417, 24 Cal. Rptr. 856, 374 P.2d 824 ; see California Maryland Funding, Inc. v. Lowe (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1798, 1806 (party claiming title to property must establish right by litigation; merely sitting on one's rights allows statutory period for adverse possession to run)]. For extensive coverage of these elements, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW & PRACTICE, Chapter 360, Adverse Possession (Matthew Bender).

In addition, rights to use real property, including property up to and including a boundary line, may be acquired by an easement by prescription [see Frericks v. Sorensen (1952) 113 Cal. App. 2d 759, 761, 248 P.2d 949 ; Martin v. Lopes (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 618, 620, 170 P.2d 881] . The elements necessary to establish a prescriptive easement are, with the exception of the requirement that taxes be paid, essentially the same as those required for the acquisition of title by adverse possession [Warsaw v. Chicago Metallic Ceilings, Inc. (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 564, 571, 199 Cal. Rptr. 773, 676 P.2d 584 ; see Mehdizadeh v. Mincer (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1296, 1305, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 284 ; Silacci v. Abramson (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 558, 562-563, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 37, 39 ; see Civ. Code § 1007; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 325]. Thus, the person claiming the easement must show that he or she has used the property over which the easement is claimed for at least five years, and that the use has been open, notorious, continuous, uninterrupted, hostile to the true owner, and under a claim of right [Warsaw v. Chicago Metallic Ceilings, Inc. (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 564, 570, 199 Cal. Rptr. 773, 676 P.2d 584 ; Taormino v. Denny (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 679, 686, 83 Cal. Rptr. 359, 463 P.2d 711 ; see Mehdizadeh v. Mincer (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1296, 1305, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 284 ; Silacci v. Abramson (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 558, 562-563, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 37, 39] . For extensive coverage of these elements, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW & PRACTICE, Chapter 343, Easements and Licenses (Matthew Bender).

A claim to good title by adverse possession or prescription is distinct from a claim under the doctrine of agreed boundaries [see § 28B.22] because the latter is incompatible with the requirement of hostility necessary to establish title [Zachery v. McWilliams (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 57, 104 Cal. Rptr. 293] . When a party claims title on the basis of an agreed boundary line, agreement between the parties and acceptance and acquiescence in the fixed line are essential requirements [see Duncan v. Peterson (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 607, 611, 83 Cal. Rptr. 744 ; Dalusio v. Boone (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 253, 75 Cal. Rptr. 287] .

B. Boundary Agreements

12-28B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28B.22

§ 28B.22 Doctrine of Agreed Boundaries

[1] In General

When the boundary line between adjoining lands is uncertain, the adjoining owners may fix the common boundary line by agreement, either written or oral, express or implied, under the doctrine of agreed boundaries [Bryant v. Blevins (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 47, 55, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 86, 884 P.2d 1034 ; Roberts v. Brae (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 356, 358, 54 P.2d 698 ; Allen v. McMillion (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 211, 214-215, 147 Cal. Rptr. 77 ; see Mehdizadeh v. Mincer (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1296, 1302-1303, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 284 (agreed boundaries doctrine did not apply when there was no uncertainty as to boundary and no agreement that fence established boundary); see also [2], below]. The purpose of this doctrine is to secure repose and avoid uncertainty in land titles [Young v. Blakeman (1908) 153 Cal. 477, 482, 95 P. 888 ; Janes v. Le Deit (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 474, 483, 39 Cal. Rptr. 559 ; Martin v. Lopes (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 618, 623, 170 P.2d 881 ; see Cavanaugh v. Jackson (1891) 91 Cal. 580, 583, 27 P. 931] . Further, to avoid spiteful and vexatious litigation, private boundary agreements are favored by the courts [Loustalot v. McKeel (1910) 157 Cal. 634, 640-641, 108 P. 707 ; Aborigine Lumber Co. v. Hyman (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 938, 941, 54 Cal. Rptr. 371 ; Crook v. Leinenweaver (1950) 100 Cal. App. 2d 790, 792, 224 P.2d 891] .

Boundary agreements need not be in writing or express [Duncan v. Peterson (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 607, 611, 83 Cal. Rptr. 744 ; Shelton v. Malette (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 370, 375, 301 P.2d 18] . Boundary agreements do not operate to convey title; rather, boundary agreements locate and place beyond doubt the line of division between adjoining landowners [Young v. Blakeman (1908) 153 Cal. 477, 95 P. 888 ; Loustalot v. McKeel (1911) 157 Cal. 634, 640-641, 108 P. 707] . Therefore, boundary agreements may be oral [Kraus v. Griswold (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 698, 705, 43 Cal. Rptr. 139] , and are not within the statute of frauds [Cavanaugh v. Jackson (1891) 91 Cal. 580, 27 P. 931] . Thus, parol agreements setting boundary lines are permissible under the doctrine of agreed boundaries provided that all the other requirements are satisfied [Grants Pass Land & Water Co. v. Brown (1914) 168 Cal. 456, 459, 143 P. 754 ; Kraemer v. Superior Oil Company (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 642, 49 Cal. Rptr. 869 ; Kraus v. Griswold (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 698, 705, 43 Cal. Rptr. 139 ; Janes v. Le Deit (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 474, 483, 39 Cal. Rptr. 559 ; Morris v. Vossler (1952) 110 Cal. App. 2d 678, 243 P.2d 43] . Valid oral boundary agreements are binding on parties and successors in interest, particularly when there has been possession up to the agreed boundary line for the full statutory period [Muchenberger v. Santa Monica (1929) 206 Cal. 635, 642, 275 P. 803 ; Nusbickel v. Stevens Ranch Co. (1921) 187 Cal. 15, 16, 200 P. 651 ; see [2], below].

Although the actual owners of adjoining properties are normally the proper parties to a boundary agreement [see Sneed v. Osborn (1864) 25 Cal. 619, 624 ; Carpentier v. Thirston (1864) 24 Cal. 268, 280-284] , parties to such an agreement may also include a tenant of lands under a contract to purchase [Silvarer v. Hansen (1888) 77 Cal. 579, 20 P. 136] , or a purchaser who has not yet paid the purchase price [Cavanaugh v. Jackson (1891) 91 Cal. 580, 583, 27 P. 931] . Further, because a boundary agreement may affect the value and alienability of the properties involved, the parties should inform and obtain the consent of the holders of any liens on the properties.

[2] Requisites for Boundary Agreements

[a] Overview of Necessary Elements

The doctrine of agreed boundaries may be invoked only under carefully specified circumstances. It requires that the following be present [Bryant v. Blevins (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 47, 55, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 86, 884 P.2d 1034 ; French v. Brinkman (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 547, 551-553, 35 Cal. Rptr. 289, 387 P.2d 1 ; Young v. Blakeman (1908) 153 Cal. 477, 95 P. 888 ; Allen v. McMillion (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 211, 214-215, 147 Cal. Rptr. 77] :

(1) Uncertainty as to the true boundary line [see [b], below].

(2) An express or implied agreement between adjoining owners fixing the true boundary line [see [c], below].

(3) Acceptance and acquiescence in the agreed boundary for a period equal to the statute of limitations [see Code Civ. Proc. § 325 (five-year statute of limitations to acquire title by adverse possession based on occupancy)] or for a lesser period of time under such circumstances that substantial loss would be caused by a change of position [see [d], below].

[b] Uncertainty

[i] The Uncertain Boundary

The doctrine of agreed boundaries and the binding effect of the agreement on adjoining owners rests fundamentally on the fact that the adjoining landowners believe that the location of the true boundary line is uncertain [Clapp v. Churchill (1913) 164 Cal. 741, 745, 130 P. 1061 ; Kraus v. Griswold (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 698, 704, 43 Cal. Rptr. 139] . Adjoining landowners may agree on a division line, but the agreed boundary doctrine only applies when both owners are uncertain as to the location of the true boundary [see Moniz v. Peterman (1934) 220 Cal. 429, 436, 31 P.2d 353 ; Vowinckel v. N. Clark & Sons (1933) 217 Cal. 258, 18 P.2d 58 ; Humphrey v. Futter (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 333, 215 Cal. Rptr. 178 ; Joaquin v. Shiloh Orchards (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 192, 198, 148 Cal. Rptr. 495 ; Minson Co. v. Aviation Finance (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 489, 495, 113 Cal. Rptr. 223 ; see also [iii], below]. The requirement of uncertainty serves to prevent boundary shifts by oral agreement or acquiescence when either or both of the adjoining owners know the true location of the boundary [Zachery v. McWilliams (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 57, 61-62, 104 Cal. Rptr. 293] . When no uncertainty actually exists, the doctrine cannot be used to bypass the formalities of the conveyance of land, such as the statute of frauds [Allen v. McMillion (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 211, 215, 147 Cal. Rptr. 77] .

The element of uncertainty does not require an actual dispute as to the true location of the boundary [Mello v. Weaver (1950) 36 Cal 2d 456, 460, 224 P.2d 691] . Thus, boundaries are considered uncertain when they are shifting [Muchenberger v. Santa Monica (1929) 206 Cal. 635, 641-642, 275 P. 803] , or when there is conflict between the parties as to the location of the line [see Loustalot v. McKeel (1910) 157 Cal. 634, 640-642, 108 P. 707] . Further, the element of uncertainty may be inferred from the surrounding facts and circumstances [Ernie v. Trinity Lutheran Church (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 702, 707-708, 336 P.2d 525 ; Vella v. Ratto (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 737, 741, 95 Cal. Rptr. 72] .

In a few cases, the doctrine of agreed boundaries may apply even though existing legal records are adequate to settle the boundary dispute. The California Supreme Court has reasoned that an inflexible rule prohibiting application of the doctrine when there is a reliable legal description of the true boundary would risk destabilizing long-standing agreements made in good faith by coterminous property owners in order to resolve uncertainty as to the location of their common boundaries [Bryant v. Blevins (1994) 884 P.2d 1034 ; see also Ernie v. Trinity Lutheran Church (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 702, 708, 336 P.2d 525 (element of uncertainty does not require that true boundary be absolutely unascertainable)]. However, to prevail when available legal records provide a reasonable basis for fixing the boundary, the party relying on the doctrine must affirmatively show that uncertainty as to the location of the true boundary led to an agreement between the landowners to create a boundary at an agreed-upon location [Bryant v. Blevins (1994) 884 P.2d 1034] .

[ii] The Mistaken Boundary

An agreed boundary line may be founded on mistake; the mistake will not invalidate a boundary agreement provided that the parties did not know the location of the true boundary [Ernie v. Trinity Lutheran Church (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 702, 708, 336 P.2d 525 ; Nusbickel v. Stevens Ranch Co. (1921) 187 Cal. 15, 19, 200 P. 651 ; Janes v. Le Deit (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 474, 481-482, 39 Cal. Rptr. 559] . Thus, a mistaken boundary line, that is accepted and acquiesced in and results from a good faith effort to resolve the uncertainty by fixing the location of the boundary, will constitute an agreed boundary [see Ernie v. Trinity Lutheran Church (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 702, 708-709, 336 P.2d 525 ; compare Zachery v. McWilliams (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 57, 62, 104 Cal. Rptr. 293 (title under doctrine of agreed boundaries) with Frericks v. Sorensen (1952) 113 Cal. App. 2d 759, 248 P.2d 949, 952 (title under prescription) and with Gilardi v. Hallam (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 317, 178 Cal. Rptr. 624, 636 P.2d 588 (claim of adverse possession requirement of hostile possession also satisfied through mistaken use)], especially when the acquiescence is continuous for the period of statute of limitations [Vowinckel v. N. Clark & Sons (1933) 217 Cal. 258, 18 P.2d 58] .

[iii] Knowledge of True Boundary

If either or both parties know that the agreed line is not the true line, the requirement of uncertainty is not met and the agreement to fix the boundary is invalid [Clapp v. Churchill (1913) 164 Cal. 741, 745, 130 P. 1061 ; Kraus v. Griswold (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 698, 705, 43 Cal. Rptr. 139 ; Johnson v. Buck (1935) 7 Cal. App. 2d 197, 46 P.2d 771 ; see Appel v. Burman (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 1209, 1213, 206 Cal. Rptr. 259] . Thus, when one party to a boundary agreement knows that the true line is elsewhere, the agreement is not binding as to agreed boundary line [Lewis v. Ogram (1906) 149 Cal. 505, 508, 87 P. 60] .

[c] Agreement Fixing the Boundary Line

[i] In General

The second essential element under the doctrine of agreed boundaries is that there is an express or implied agreement fixing the location of the boundary between the parties [Allen v. McMillion (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 211, 214, 147 Cal. Rptr. 77] . The mutual concessions of the parties in order to settle the doubt or uncertainty concerning the location of a boundary line constitute sufficient consideration for the agreement to establish the line [Lewis v. Ogram (1906) 149 Cal. 505, 507-509, 87 P. 60] .

An agreement may be deduced from the surrounding circumstances or inferred from the conduct or declarations of adjoining owners [see Roberts v. Brae (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 356, 358, 54 P.2d 698] . Thus, an agreement may be implied from long-standing acceptance of the location of the boundary line [Hannah v. Pogue (1944) 23 Cal. 2d 849, 147 P.2d 572 ; Ernie v. Trinity Lutheran Church (1959) 336 P.2d 525 ; York v. Horn (1957) 154 Cal. App. 2d 209, 315 P.2d 912] , and acquiescence in an agreed boundary for a substantial period of time may itself be evidence of a prior oral agreement [Zachery v. McWilliams (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 57, 60, 104 Cal. Rptr. 293 ; Clapp v. Churchill (1913) 164 Cal. 741, 130 P. 1061] . However, mere acquiescence in the long-term existence of a fence, absent any uncertainty about the location of the true boundary and agreement that the fence would constitute the true boundary, does not establish a true boundary under the doctrine [Vella v. Ratto (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 737, 740-742, 95 Cal. Rptr. 72 ; see Holmes v. Harlan (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 209, 212-213, 187 Cal. Rptr. 708] .

[ii] Identifiable Line

The doctrine of agreed boundaries requires that the agreed boundary be fixed and identifiable on the ground [Allen v. McMillion (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 211, 214, 147 Cal. Rptr. 77] . The boundary line must be specified, certain and definite [Meacci v. Kochergen (1956) 141 Cal. App. 2d 207, 213 ; Garrett v. Cook (1948) 89 Cal. App. 2d 98, 103, 200 P.2d 21] . Although many older cases required that the boundary be actually marked on the ground, modern cases have held that an agreed boundary that is clear to the parties and that can be made clear to others suffices [see French v. Brinkman (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 547, 551-553, 35 Cal. Rptr. 289, 387 P.2d 1] . When the boundary agreement is written, the intent of the parties in framing the legal description of the agreed boundary line is controlling [see Miller & Lux Inc. v. Secara (1924) 193 Cal. 755, 227 P. 171] .

[iii] Occupation

Many courts have applied an additional requirement of actual physical occupancy up to the agreed boundary line for a substantial period of time to establish the true boundary under the doctrine of agreed boundaries [see Nusbickel v. Stevens Ranch Co. (1921) 187 Cal. 15, 16, 200 P. 651 ; Kraemer v. Superior Oil Co. (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 642, 652, 49 Cal. Rptr. 869 ; see Martin v. Lopes (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 618, 622, 170 P.2d 881 ; Roberts v. Brae (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 356, 358-360, 54 P.2d 698] . However, the California Supreme Court does not list occupancy as prerequisite to the doctrine [compare French v. Brinkman (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 547, 551-553, 35 Cal. Rptr. 289, 387 P.2d 1 with Vella v. Ratto (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 737, 741, 95 Cal. Rptr. 72] . In dicta, an appellate court has subsequently questioned the requirement of actual physical occupation, finding that occasional physical presence on the lands in question sufficient to meet the element of occupancy, assuming that such requirement was necessary in the first place [see Aborigine Lumber Co. v. Hyman (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 938, 941, 54 Cal. Rptr. 371] .

[d] Acceptance and Acquiescence

The parties must accept and acquiesce in the agreed boundary line for a period equal to the statute of limitation on adverse possession, or a lesser period under circumstances that substantial loss would be caused by moving the boundary [French v. Brinkman (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 547, 551-553 ; Ernie v. Trinity Lutheran Church (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 702, 707 ; Silva v. Azevedo (1918) 178 Cal. 495, 173 P. 929] . The applicable statute of limitations to acquire title by adverse possession is five years [Ernie v. Trinity Lutheran Church (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 702, 707 ; see Code Civ. Proc § 325]; this requirement includes periods of use by predecessors in interest [see Aborigine Lumber Co. v. Hyman (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 938, 941, 54 Cal. Rptr. 371] .

The period of acquiescence may be less than five years, provided that all other requirements are satisfied, if substantial loss would result unless the agreement is upheld [Young v. Blakeman (1908) 153 Cal. 477, 482, 95 P. 888 ; Roman v. Ries (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 65, 67-69, 66 Cal. Rptr. 120] . For example, if the property has been substantially improved up to the agreed boundary [see Needham v. Collamer (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 609, 611-612, 211 P.2d 308] or the proposed boundary change results in serious inequity [see McCormick v. Appleton (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 591, 596, 37 Cal. Rptr. 544 ; Roman v. Ries (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 65, 67-69, 66 Cal. Rptr. 120] , the agreed boundary line is enforceable even though the period of acquiescence is less than five years.

[3] Written Agreements Under Doctrine of Agreed Boundaries

[a] In General

If the boundary is uncertain, adjoining landowners may agree to fix the line by express written agreement [see Roberts v. Brae (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 356, 358, 54 P.2d 698] . To be valid and enforceable under the doctrine of agreed boundaries, the written agreement must satisfy all the requirements [see Clapp v. Churchill (1913) 164 Cal. 741, 745, 130 P. 1061 ; see also [1], [2], above].

[b] Based on Parties' Legal Description

[i] Intent of Parties Controlling

In construing boundary agreements, the intent of the parties is the controlling consideration [Ferris v. Coover (1858) 10 Cal. 589, 603] . The specific location of the boundary is a question of the parties' intent in drafting the description or making the agreement containing the description [see Miller & Lux Inc. v. Secara (1924) 193 Cal. 755, 227 P. 171 ; see also Machado v. Guarantee & Trust Co. (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 180, 186, 99 P.2d 245] .

[ii] Terms of Legal Description

In interpreting a description of a boundary line, the court will adopt the description that is most certain, stable, and least likely to be mistaken or affected by error [Piercy v. Crandall (1867) 34 Cal. 334] ; the description that is most certain and definite will prevail over the less certain and indefinite [Miller & Lux Inc. v. Secara (1924) 193 Cal. 755, 227 P. 171 ; Garrett v. Cook (1848) 89 Cal. App. 2d 98, 200 P.2d 21 ; see Martin v. Lloyd (1892) 94 Cal. 195, 29 P. 491] .

Generally speaking, boundaries are established by retracing the steps of the person who made the original survey, by recourse to monuments placed in the original survey, if available, and then to the surveyor's field notes [De Escobar v. Isom (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 172, 245 P.2d 1105 ; see Chandler v. Hibberd (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 39, 332 P.2d 133] . In determining a boundary, parties may make use of the original survey unless it is known to be inaccurate [see Schneider v. Pascoe (1941) 47 Cal. App. 2d 709, 118 P.2d 860] .

In construing the terms describing the boundaries, natural monuments will control if clearly identified or located [Chandler v. Hibberd (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 39, 332 P.2d 133 ; see McLeod v. Reyes (1935) 4 Cal. App. 2d 143, 40 P.2d 839] ; further, natural monuments will prevail if there is conflict with other terms of description, such as courses and distances [Kimball v. McKee (1906) 149 Cal. 435, 86 P. 1089 ; Schwarzwald v. Cooley (1940) 39 Cal. App. 2d 306, 103 P.2d 580] , and measurements of lines and angles [Curtis v. Upton (1917) 175 Cal. 322, 165 P. 935, 939] . If a description is ambiguous, the court will interpret it in light of all circumstances [Martin v. Lloyd (1892) 94 Cal. 195, 29 P. 491 ; see Machado v. Title Guaranty Trust Co. (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 180, 185, 99 P.2d 245 ; see also Hall v. Bartlett (1910) 158 Cal. 638, 112 P. 176 ("on"); Lillis v. Urrutia (1908) 9 Cal. App. 557, 99 P. 992 ("true line")].

[c] Based on Survey

When a boundary is uncertain, the parties may establish an agreed line in a written agreement in which the legal description is based on the results of a survey [see § 28B.210]. In the absence of an agreement to abide by its findings, a private survey is not conclusive on the parties [Williams v. Barrnett (1955) 135 Cal. App. 2d 607, 287 P.2d 789 ; Pedersen v. Reynolds (1939) 31 Cal. App. 2d 18, 87 P.2d 51] . A surveyor, acting in official capacity, has a right of entry onto lands for purpose of surveying to determine the location of the boundary line; the landowners are obligated to provide reasonable access [Civ. Code § 846.5; see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 8700-8805 (regulation and licensing of land surveyors)]. When ascertained, the surveyed lines constitute the true boundaries and generally control, provided that it is the intent of the parties that those lines are the boundaries [see 11 C.J.S. Boundaries § 49].

[d] Based on Submission to Arbitration

At common law, parties may submit any controversy between them to arbitration, and the decision resulting from that arbitration will be binding on the parties [Pawling v. Malley (1951) 107 Cal. App. 2d 652, 237 P.2d 663] . Thus, a boundary dispute may be submitted to arbitration [see § 28B.211]. A written agreement to submit an existing controversy to arbitration is valid, enforceable, and irrevocable, except upon such grounds for which any contract is revocable [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281].

[4] Legal Effect of Agreed Boundary

The doctrine of agreed boundaries does not involve a grant of property from one party to the other, and an agreement used to attempt the transfer of land that the parties know the true line does not embrace is unenforceable [Lewis v. Ogram (1906) 149 Cal. 505, 508-509, 87 P. 60] . However, once a boundary line is established under the doctrine of agreed boundaries, the agreed boundary becomes the true boundary line [Ernie v. Trinity Lutheran Church (1959) 336 P.2d 525] , and the agreement is conclusive evidence of that line [Cavanaugh v. Jackson (1891) 91 Cal. 580, 27 P. 931 ; Joaquin v. Shiloh Orchards (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 192, 198, 148 Cal. Rptr. 495 ; Allen v. McMillion (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 211, 214, 147 Cal. Rptr. 77] . Once established, the agreed boundary is binding on all consenting parties and all successors by subsequent conveyances [Kraus v. Griswold (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 698, 705, 43 Cal. Rptr. 139 ; Young v. Blakemen (1908) 153 Cal. 477, 482, 95 P. 888] . Although older cases held that the application of this doctrine to subsequent bona fide purchasers without knowledge of the agreement must be applied in conjunction with the rule that bona fide purchasers for value are entitled to protection against undisclosed rights [see, e.g., Steele v. Shuler (1963) 211 Cal. App. 2d 698, 706, 27 Cal. Rptr. 569] , the weight of authority holds that bona fide purchasers are bound by the preexisting agreement even in the absence of notice [Humphrey v. Futter (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 333, 342, 215 Cal. Rptr. 178 ; see Ernie v. Trinity Lutheran Church (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 702, 708-709, 336 P.2d 525] . Further, improvements in the disputed area are likely to put successors in interest on notice [Humphrey v. Futter (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 333, 342, 215 Cal. Rptr. 178] .

§ 28B.23 Reestablishing Displaced Boundaries Under the Cullen Earthquake Act

Under the Cullen Earthquake Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 751.50-751.65], if boundaries of land have been disturbed or displaced by earth movements such as slides, subsidence, lateral or vertical displacement or other disasters, whether caused by man, earthquake, or other acts of God, an action in rem may be brought to equitably reestablish boundaries and quiet title [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.50]. The boundaries established by the judgment in an action under the Cullen Earthquake Act are conclusive [see Code Civ. Proc. § 751.62].

The Cullen Earthquake Act was enacted for the purpose of reestablishing boundaries in a single action and to avoid numerous individual actions [Stats. 1972, ch. 936, p. 1690, § 1(a)(6)-(7)]. Its remedies are cumulative and in addition to any other remedy provided by law to establish or quiet title or to establish the location of boundaries [see Code Civ. Proc. § 751.64]. For detailed discussion of the Cullen Earthquake Act, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW & PRACTICE, Chapter 81, Boundaries and Descriptions (Matthew Bender).

§ 28B.24 Natural and Artificial Accretion

When land forms by imperceptible degrees on the bank of a river or stream (navigable or nonnavigable) by the natural accumulation of material or by the natural recession of the stream, the new land belongs to the owner of the bank, subject to any existing right-of-way over the bank [Civ. Code § 1014; see Civ. Code §§ 1015-1018]. This is referred to as the natural-accretion rule.

Under the artificial-accretion rule, in contrast, land along tidelands and navigable rivers that accretes by artificial means, such as local dredging and construction of wing dams and levees, remains in state ownership [State of California ex rel. State Lands Com. v. Superior Court (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 50, 56, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 399, 900 P.2d 648] . Accretion is artificial if directly caused by human activities, such as dredging or dumping, that occurred in the immediate vicinity. The larger the structure or the broader the scope of the activity, the farther away it can be and still be a direct cause of the accretion, although it must always be in the general location of the accretion to come within the artificial-accretion rule [State of California ex rel. State Lands Com. v. Superior Court (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 50, 79-80, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 399, 900 P.2d 648] .

The California Supreme Court applied the artificial-accretion rule in a case involving alluvion that, more than 100 years earlier, had been placed in the Sacramento River by hydraulic mining and had collected downstream to create 12 acres of land. Although technically the alluvion could be viewed as artificial, the connection between the mining and the accretion was too attenuated to render the accretion artificial under the rule [State of California ex rel. State Lands Com. v. Superior Court (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 50, 77-78, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 399, 900 P.2d 648] .

When a river gradually divides so as to surround land belonging to the owner of the bank, thereby forming an island, the island belongs to that owner [Civ. Code § 1018]. However, an island or accumulation of land that originates in the bed of a navigable river belongs to the state; and after the land emerges from beneath the water, if it subsequently adheres to either bank of the river through accretion or reliction, that change in circumstances does not change or destroy the state's title to the land [People v. Ward Redwood Co. (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 385, 395, 37 Cal. Rptr. 397] .

When accretions to federal land are involved, federal law governs, and the accretion belongs to the upland landowner, regardless of whether the accretion was natural or caused by the construction of artifacts [California ex rel. Lands Comm'n v. United States (1982) 457 U.S. 273, 102 S. Ct. 2432, 73 L. Ed. 2d 1] .

A. Party Walls

12-28B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28B.200

§ 28B.200 Party Wall Agreement--One Owner to Build Party Wall

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is designed for use when a property owner plans to erect a building, one of whose walls will fall on or near the dividing line, and the owner of an adjoining property hopes to use that wall as a party wall to support future construction. Under the terms of the form, the first party bears all the expenses of construction; the second party may use the party wall only after reimbursing the first party for a specified share of the construction costs.

Before executing the agreement, the parties should obtain consent from the holders of any liens on the property involved, since the agreement may affect the value and alienability of the properties.

[b] Consent of Spouse

Both spouses must join in executing any instrument by which community real property [see Fam. Code § 760] or any interest in that property is sold, conveyed, encumbered, or leased for a period of more than one year. The spouses may do this personally or by duly authorized representative. This restriction does not apply to transactions between the spouses [Fam. Code § 1102]. However, if a party is married but claims that the property is separate property, the other party should consider having that party's nonowning spouse (1) execute a quitclaim deed to his or her spouse [see ch. 27, Deeds and Recording] or (2) execute a written waiver or statement indicating that he or she has no interest in the property [see vol. 5, ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements]. The execution of such a deed or statement estops that spouse from setting aside the conveyance [see Rice v. McCarthy (1925) 73 Cal. App. 655, 662, 666, 239 P. 56 ; Waldeck v. Hedden (1928) 89 Cal. App. 485, 491, 265 P. 340] . For a statement that may be included in an easement agreement and that indicates that the grantor's spouse has no interest in the servient tenement, see Section 28A.210 [2].

[c] Acknowledgment and Recordation

Every conveyance of real property that is acknowledged (or proved), certified, and recorded constitutes constructive

notice of its contents to subsequent purchasers and mortgagees [Civ. Code § 1213; see Civ. Code § 18]. Consequently, this form provides for the inclusion of recording information [see Gov. Code § 27361.6; § 28A.130, P 1] and a certificate of acknowledgment [see Gov. Code § 27287; Civ. Code § 1185(a)]. For additional discussion of recordation, see Chapter 27, Deeds and Recordation .

7. The First Party and, after payment of a share of construction costs pursuant to Paragraph 5, above, the Second Party shall have the right to extend the party wall _____[select one of the following: horizontally or vertically or both horizontally and vertically] and to make that extension of a greater thickness than the party wall or any extension of the wall already built. Right to Use Extension

8. If the party wall is extended as provided in this Agreement, either party shall have the right to use the extended party wall in the same manner as that party is entitled under this Agreement to use the party wall as it was originally constructed.

Payment of Cost of Extension

9. If the party wall is extended as provided in this Agreement, all costs of the extension shall be borne by the party causing it to be made. However, if the other party then uses the extension or any portion of it as a party wall, then that party shall pay to the party who extended the wall or _____[his or her] successors or assigns _____[describe, e.g., 50 percent of the cost of the extension or 50 percent of the cost of the portion of the extension used as a party wall or 50 percent of the value of the extension at the time the other party begins to use the extension as a party wall].

Repairs and Maintenance

10. If it becomes necessary to repair or rebuild any portion of the wall, as constructed or extended, the cost of repairing or rebuilding shall be borne by _____[both parties equally or describe other arrangement, e.g., the party who uses that portion of the wall exclusively. If the portion of the party wall to be repaired or rebuilt is used by both parties, the costs of repairing or rebuilding that portion shall be borne by both parties in equal shares]. The party wall shall be repaired or rebuilt in the same location as the present wall, and shall be constructed of materials similar to and of the same quality as the present party wall, and shall conform to the same general appearance as the present party wall.

[Choose one of the following provisions:]

[If agreement is to survive destruction of party wall, use the following provisions:]

Destruction of Party Wall

11. If the party wall is destroyed, either of the parties shall have the right to reconstruct the party wall at _____[his or her] own expense if _____[he or she] alone intends to continue to use the wall, or at the expense of both parties if both intend to continue to use the wall as a party wall.

12-28B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28B.210

§ 28B.210 Boundary Agreement Based on Parties' Legal Description or on Survey

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is designed for use when adjoining landowners are uncertain as to the location of a common boundary between their properties. The form contains two alternative methods to settle the boundary by agreement. The first alternative uses an informal method, not involving a grant of real property or a quiet title action, for fixing the common boundary permanently. If the parties can mutually agree to a particular legal description of the boundary line, this alternative places the boundary using that legal description.

The second alternative, used when the parties cannot reach an agreement as to the specific location or description of a fixed line, provides for the designation of a surveyor to survey the boundary and for the parties' agreement to accept the results of the survey as the agreed boundary.

Before finalizing the transaction, the parties should obtain consent from the holders of any liens on the properties involved, since the agreement may affect the value and alienability of the properties. If either party is married, spousal consent (or a statement that the spouse has no interest in the subject property) should be obtained [see § 28B.200[1][b]]. To provide notice, the parties should acknowledge and record the agreement [see § 28B.200[1][c]].

12-28B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28B.211

§ 28B.211 Agreement to Establish Boundary by Submission to Arbitration

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form may be used when the parties are uncertain as to the location of a common boundary between their properties and agree to submit their boundary line dispute to binding arbitration. This form provides that each party is entitled to choose one arbitrator, who will together select a third arbitrator. Instructions regarding the duty and authority of the arbitrators will vary according to the particular situation and to the parties' agreed terms.

Before finalizing the transaction, the parties should obtain consent from the holders of any liens on the properties involved, since the agreement may affect the value and alienability of the properties. If either party is married, spousal consent (or a statement that the spouse has no interest in the subject property) should be obtained [see § 28B.200[1][b]]. To provide notice, the parties should acknowledge and record the agreement [see § 28B.200[1][c]].

All other expenses of the arbitration, including travel and other expenses of any witnesses (or the cost of any other proofs) produced at the direct request of the arbitrators, shall be borne equally by the parties.

[OR]

(h) The expenses of the arbitration shall be allocated among the parties by decision of the arbitrators. The arbitrators shall state the allocation of these expenses in their written decision.

DIVISION II: REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 28C COVENANTS, CONDITIONS, AND RESTRICTIONS

12-28C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide Scope

Scope

Scope

This chapter covers covenants and conditions that restrict the use of real property. The Legal Background presents an overview of applicable laws, including a discussion of conditions, restrictive covenants, the doctrine of equitable servitudes, and the statutory requirements governing the drafting of enforceable covenants. The Legal Background also includes a discussion of the use of a declaration of restrictions by a developer with a brief description of state and federal Acts regulating subdivisions and common interest developments. The Transaction Guide includes a checklist for facts and documents to be obtained from the client and preliminary determinations concerning the development. It also includes a procedural guide to adopting covenants and conditions when subdividing property. Also included in the Transaction Guide is a guide to drafting a declaration of restrictions for a residential subdivision.

The Forms section contains two declarations of restrictions: one for use by a developer of a standard subdivision, in which the developer builds and markets the houses, and one for use by a developer of a custom-home subdivision, in which the developer prepares the home sites and markets the lots, but each lot purchaser is responsible for building his or her own house. Also provided is an agreement for mutually restrictive covenants by adjoining landowners, and a deed containing restrictive covenants.

The statutory and regulatory requirements and associated documents relating to the entire subdivision process and to common-interest developments are outside the scope of this chapter. Refer to Ch, 30, Subdivision Regulation, for further discussion of the subdivision process. Refer to Ch. 33A, Time-Share Projects , through Ch. 34, Condominiums, if the client's project involves a subdivision that will have commonly owned areas or interests. CHAPTER 28C COVENANTS, CONDITIONS, AND RESTRICTIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Covenants, Conditions, and Restrictions in General

12-28C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28C.10

§ 28C.10 Restrictions on Use of Property

[1] Methods of Restriction

The use and enjoyment of property may be restricted by several methods. Restrictions are often imposed for the benefit of another parcel of property, but may also be for the mutual benefit of the property restricted and other property, or may not be for the benefit of property at all. Restrictions are commonly imposed by all of the following methods: personal covenants, which are created in agreements or deeds and which bind only the immediate parties to them [see, e.g., Lyford v. North Pac. Coast R.R. Co. (1891) 92 Cal. 93, 95-96, 28 P. 103 ; see § 28C.12 [2]]; covenants that run with the land [see §§ 28C.13, 28C.14]; equitable servitudes [see §§ 28C.15, 28C.16]; and conditions subsequent [see § 28C.11]. Determination of whether a covenant is personal, runs with the land, or is enforceable as an equitable servitude depends on resolving various factual matters [see McCaffrey v. Preston (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 422, 436, 201 Cal. Rptr. 252] . The terms and duration of the restrictions, and testimony as to the understanding of the original covenanting parties are all relevant to whether a covenant was intended to be personal or intended to run with the land, binding later grantees [see Oceanside Community Assn. v. Oceanside Land Co. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 166, 175, 195 Cal. Rptr. 14] .

[2] Validity of Restriction

Conditions restraining alienation of property are void if they are repugnant to the interest created [Civ. Code § 711]. However, reasonable restrictions on alienation of property in the form of restrictive covenants do not violate Civil Code Section 711; only unreasonable restraints on alienation are invalid [City of Oceanside v. McKenna (1989) 215 Cal App. 3d 1420, 1427-1430, 264 Cal. Rptr. 275] . For further discussion of the validity of specific types of restrictions, see §§ 28C.30-28C.38.

DIVISION II: REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 28C COVENANTS, CONDITIONS, AND RESTRICTIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Covenants, Conditions, and Restrictions in General

12-28C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28C.11

§ 28C.11 Conditions

[1] In General

A condition is a provision contained in an instrument of conveyance that tends to modify or rescind the conveyance if the grantee or the grantee's successors fail to fulfill that provision [see Pedro v. Potter (1926) 197 Cal. 751, 758-759, 242 P. 926] . At common law, the fee simple determinable and the fee simple subject to a condition subsequent (or right of reentry) were conditional estates. The fee simple determinable was repealed in California in 1982 [see Civ. Code § 885.020]. Current law provides that every estate that would be a fee simple determinable at common law is now deemed to be a fee simple subject to a condition subsequent [Civ. Code § 885.020].

A "condition subsequent" is a condition in a conveyance referring to a future event, on the occurrence of which the obligation will no longer binding on the other party, if he or she chooses to take advantage of the condition; the interest does, however, continue until the power of termination is exercised [see Civ. Code § 1438; see, e.g., Quatman v. McCray (1900) 128 Cal. 285, 60 P. 855] . A condition subsequent is distinguishable from a condition precedent in that a condition precedent must be performed before some right that is dependent on it accrues (or some act dependent on it is performed) [Civ. Code § 1436]. For example, a deed that required the grantee to perform certain acts before title vested in the grantee created a condition precedent [see Civ. Code § 1439; Stockton v. Weber (1893) 98 Cal. 433, 440, 33 P. 332] .

[2] Condition Distinguished From Covenant

There are several distinctions between a condition and a covenant [see § 28C.12]. While a covenant can be created by any agreement between grantor and grantee or between two or more landowners [see Civ. Code § 1468], a condition can only be created as part of the grant or conveyance of an estate in real property [see Rosecrans v. Pacific Elec. Ry. Co. (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 602, 605, 134 P.2d 245] . Another distinction is in the available remedy. The remedy for breach of a condition subsequent is forfeiture of the originally conveyed interest [see Civ. Code § 1442]; the remedy for breach of a covenant is an action for injunctive relief or damages [see Doo v. Packwood (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 752, 758-759, 71 Cal. Rptr. 477] , with no forfeiture or reversion. Finally, to bind subsequent owners, a covenant must either run with the land, be an equitable servitude, or a lien or easement, whereas a condition subsequent is enforceable against subsequent owners regardless of the circumstances. However, because of the harshness of the result of breaching a condition (that is, forfeiture of the estate), condition provisions are strictly construed against the grantor [see Civ. Code § 1442], and will, if possible, be interpreted as covenants rather than as conditions [Rosecrans v. Pacific Elec. Ry. Co. (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 602, 605, 134 P.2d 245] . Conditions are not ordinarily used in modern planning to restrict property because the harsh results of breach also limit the marketability of the property. For a deed granting a fee simple subject to a condition subsequent, see Chapter 27, Deeds and Recording .

§ 28C.12 Covenants

[1] In General

Covenants (also known as promises) are the most commonly used means of restricting land use between private parties. A restrictive covenant is a promise to do or refrain from doing certain things in regard to the use of land [Sackett v. Los Angeles City School Dist. (1931) 118 Cal. App. 254, 257, 5 P.2d 23] . The covenant may be created in a deed or in a separate agreement [see Civ. Code § 1468]. Any words in a deed that show an agreement to do a thing constitute a covenant. However, where words do not amount to an agreement, a covenant does not exist [O'Sullivan v. Griffith (1908) 153 Cal. 502, 506, 95 P. 873] . As between the covenantor and covenantee, a covenant can be enforced pursuant to the usual principles of contract law [Anthony v. Brea Glenbrook Club (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 506, 510, 130 Cal. Rptr. 32 ; see vol. 14, ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions].

Once the covenantor or covenantee, or both, convey their property, the question arises as to whether the covenant is enforceable against the successor of the covenantor and/or enforceable by the successor of the covenantee. A covenant is enforceable by or against a successor only if it "runs with the land" [see Oceanside Community Assn. v. Oceanside Land Co. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 166, 173-174, 195 Cal. Rptr. 14] . Whether a covenant runs with the land is currently governed by statute [see Civ. Code §§ 1460-1470]. However, different rules apply for past conveyances. For complete discussion of covenants running with the land, see § 28C.13.

[2] Personal Covenants

A personal covenant is one that, by its nature, is a mere personal undertaking, and not intended to have a binding effect beyond the immediate parties to the instrument [Oceanside Community Assn. v. Oceanside Land Co. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 166, 175, 195 Cal. Rptr. 14] .

Determining whether a covenant is personal, runs with the land, or is enforceable as an equitable servitude depends on resolving factual matters such as intent, notice, and equitable factors [McCaffrey v. Preston (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 422, 436, 201 Cal. Rptr. 252] . The terms of the restrictions, the duration of the restrictions on the land, and testimony about the understanding of the original covenanting parties are all relevant to whether a covenant was intended to be personal or intended to bind later grantees [see Oceanside Community Assn. v. Oceanside Land Co. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 166, 175, 195 Cal. Rptr. 14] .

CHAPTER 28C COVENANTS, CONDITIONS, AND RESTRICTIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Covenants, Conditions, and Restrictions in General

12-28C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28C.12A

§ 28C.12A Declaration of Covenants, Conditions, & Restrictions (CC&Rs) Recorded for Subdivision

In 1995, the California Supreme Court adopted the following rule: If a declaration establishing a common plan for the ownership of property in a subdivision and containing restrictions upon the use of the property as part of the common plan, is recorded before the execution of the contract of sale, describes the property it is to govern, and states that it is to bind all purchasers and their successors, subsequent purchasers who have constructive notice of the recorded declaration are deemed to intend and agree to be bound by, and to accept the benefits of, the common plan. The restrictions are not unenforceable merely because they are not additionally cited in a deed or other document at the time of the sale [Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 349, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P. 2d 1314 (disapproving prior appellate court cases that required at least some reference in deed to recorded restrictions)].

The Court further held that its rule was effective retroactively, with the majority noting that the only holdings that were inconsistent with the rule were those previously made by intermediate courts [Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 367-368, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P. 2d 1314] . Two prior California Supreme Court cases [see Werner v. Graham (1919) 181 Cal. 174, 183 P. 945 (no recorded uniform plan); Riley v. Bear Creek Planning Committee (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 500, 131 Cal. Rptr. 381, 551 P.2d 1213 (restrictions recorded after sale)] were factually distinguished, and language in those cases appearing to require that a servitude be created by deed was disregarded by the Court [Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 367, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P. 2d 1314] .

By adopting its rule in Citizens, the California Supreme Court eliminated or at least minimized the necessity of characterizing subdivision CC&Rs as either covenants running with the land or as equitable servitudes, at least with respect to the issue of whether recorded CC&Rs are binding on subsequent purchasers. The Court noted that because of the statutory limitations on covenants running with the land, at least before the amendment of Civil Code Section 1468 [see § 28C.13[2][c]], California courts have traditionally analyzed CC&Rs under the doctrine of equitable servitudes [citing Scaringe v. J.C.C. Enterprises, Inc. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 1536, 1544] . It also pointed out that commentators have argued that covenants that run with the land and equitable servitudes should be, or possible have been, merged into a single doctrine [citing French, Design Proposal for the New Restatement of the Law of Property--Servitudes (1988) 21 U.C. Davis L. Rev. 1213]. The Court noted, however, that this possible fusion was beyond the scope of the narrow issue before it, which involved how a covenant is created. With respect to that particular issue, the court remarked that it saw no difference between covenants and equitable servitudes, and expressly stated that the rule it was adopting (and summarized above) applies equally to both [Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 355, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P. 2d 1314] .

As stated by the Court, the issue before it in the Citizens case was whether a purchaser is bound by previously recorded CC&Rs even though none of the written documents executed at the time of the conveyance refer to them [Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 356, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P. 2d 1314] . In answering this question in the affirmative, the Court noted that the rule adopted by it has the advantage of simplicity. One recorded document will establish the rules for all parcels. It is also good policy to encourage the enforceability of CC&Rs that regulate land use for the benefit of all the owners. Further, a single set of recorded restrictions that applies to an entire subdivision fulfills the intent of the parties and the community as a whole [see Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 363-364, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P. 2d 1314] .

The Court also commented that the rule is fair because it requires recordation before execution of the contract of sale by a purchaser. All buyers could easily know exactly what they are purchasing. According to the majority of the Court, the rule is consistent with the rationale of prior cases. The requirement of those prior cases that there be an agreement between two parties is met because the CC&Rs are not enforceable until a conveyance is actually made and the buyer constructively agrees to the CC&Rs. The recording requirement of the Court's rule also satisifes the requirement of prior cases that there be a writing setting forth the restrictions [see Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 364-366, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P. 2d 1314] .

§ 28C.13 Covenants Running With the Land

[1] In General

The following discussion summarizes traditional judicial and statutory requirements for covenants running with the land. However, since the California Supreme Court's 1995 ruling in Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson [Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P. 2d 1314] , the process of classifying and analyzing covenants, conditions, and restrictions recorded for a subdivision (and of determining their effect on subsequent purchasers) has been significantly simplified. The simplified rule covering that issue and adopted by the Court in Citizens is retroactive [Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 366-367, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P. 2d 1314] , and is equally applicable to covenants running with the land and to equitable servitudes [Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 355, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P. 2d 1314] . The rule is fully discussed in § 28C.12A. The Citizens case did not overrule the law discussed below, but its rule does, for practical purposes, replace or supersede that law, at least with respect to the issue of the binding effect on purchasers of previously recorded covenants, conditions, and restrictions recorded for a subdivision.

If a private restriction on property is to have a continuing benefit, it must be created and imposed so that it burdens the land through subsequent transfers of ownership. A covenant that burdens and benefits land through subsequent transfers is said to be a "covenant running with the land" [see Oceanside Community Assn. v. Oceanside Land Co. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 166, 173-174, 195 Cal. Rptr. 14] .

Both the liability of a covenant that runs with the land and the power to enforce that covenant pass with the transfer of the estate in the property so that the covenant remains binding on subsequent transferees of the property even though they have not contractually assumed any responsibility for its performance [Anthony v. Brea Glenbrook Club (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 506, 510, 130 Cal. Rptr. 32 ; see Civ. Code § 1460]. Only those covenants specified by statute, and those that are incident thereto, run with the land [Civ. Code § 1461]. The two statutes that are applicable to determine whether a covenant runs with the land are Civil Code Sections 1462 and 1468 [see Oceanside Community Assn. v. Oceanside Land Co. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 166, 174, 195 Cal. Rptr. 14] . A covenant contained in a grant of an estate in real property that is made for the direct benefit of the property conveyed or some part of it then in existence runs with the land [Civ. Code § 1462]. A restrictive covenant that burdens, rather than benefits, property does not run with the land to bind successors under Civil Code Section 1462 [Oceanside Community Assn. v. Oceanside Land Co. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 166, 174, 195 Cal. Rptr. 14] .

Even though a restrictive covenant will not run under Civil Code Section 1462 because it burdens the land, it may run with the land if it satisfies the requirements of Civil Code Section 1468, under which both burdens and benefits may be enforced [Oceanside Community Assn. v. Oceanside Land Co. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 166, 174, 195 Cal. Rptr. 14 ; see [2], below].

Whether a covenant runs with the land and binds subsequent purchasers is determined by the statutes in effect when the covenant was created. Specifically, the various amendments to Civil Code Section 1468, governing covenants running with the land, are not applied retroactively [Taormina Theosophical Community, Inc. v. Silver (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 964, 968, 190 Cal. Rptr. 38 ; see Oceanside Community Assn. v. Oceanside Land Co. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 166, 174, 195 Cal. Rptr. 14] . For discussion of the effect of amendments to Civil Code Section 1468, see [2], below.

For forms of declarations of restriction containing restrictive covenants suitable for residential subdivisions that are intended to run with the land, see §§ 28C.200 and 28C.201. For a form of agreement for mutual restrictive covenants between adjoining landowners that are intended to run with the land, see § 28C.210.

Covenants running with the land can be used to establish many types of restrictions. For example, under the Williamson Act [see Gov. Code § 51200 et seq.], the benefits and burdens of a land use restriction contract run with the land regardless of changes in ownership or subdivisions [see Gov. Code § 51243]. For coverage of the Williamson Act and other methods of restricting the use of agricultural, recreational, and open-space land, see Ch. 28D, Conservation Restrictions on Use of Agricultural and Open-Space Land .

[2] Covenants Running With the Land Under Civil Code Section 1468

[a] Deed or Agreement Before 1969

Before January 1, 1969, Civil Code Section 1468 provided that a covenant made by the owner of land with the owner of other land to do or refrain from doing some act on his or her own land, which was expressed to be for the benefit of the land of the covenantee, and which was made by the covenantor expressly for his or her assigns or to the assigns of the covenantee, ran with both parcels of land [former Civ. Code § 1468 (Stats. 1905, ch. 450)]. To enforce a legal covenant running with the land created before 1969, a plaintiff must prove the common law elements by showing that (1) the covenant concerns some act on the covenantor's property (the covenant must "touch and concern" the land), (2) the covenant is for the benefit of the covenantee, (3) the covenant states it is binding on the assigns of the covenantor, and (4) the covenantor and covenantee were owners of the land at the time the covenant was made [Oceanside Community Assn. v. Oceanside Land Co. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 166, 174-175, 195 Cal. Rptr. 14] .

Because former Section 1468 applied only to covenants between landowners and did not encompass covenants between a grantor and a grantee, restrictions referred to in pre-1969 deeds cannot be enforced against remote grantees unless they satisfy the requirements of Civil Code Section 1462. That is, the restrictions must benefit, rather than burden, the grantee's land [Taormina Theosophical Community, Inc. v. Silver (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 964, 968, 972 n.3, 190 Cal. Rptr. 38] .

Unsuccessful attempts at drafting covenants intended to run with the land, due to failures in complying with the distinction between the running of burdens and benefits and other technical requirements such as privity, led to the alternative enforcement mechanism of equitable servitudes [see § 28C.15].

[b] Deed or Agreement in 1969

In 1969, Civil Code Section 1468 was amended to expand the enforceability of covenants against successive owners by providing that, in addition to covenants between landowners, a covenant made by a grantor of land with a grantee, for the benefit of the land conveyed to the grantee, would run with both the grantor's and grantee's land, if specified new requirements were met [former Civ. Code § 1468 (Stats. 1968, ch. 680, § 1)]. This amendment imposed the same requirements on covenants between landowners as it imposed on covenants between a grantor and grantee [see former Civ. Code § 1468 (Stats. 1968, ch. 680, § 1)].

[c] Deed or Agreement After 1969

[i] In General

In 1970, Civil Code Section 1468 was amended to provide that a grantee can covenant with a grantor, for the express benefit of land belonging to either party, to do or refrain from doing certain acts relating to the use, maintenance, repair, or improvement of land, or the payment of taxes and assessments on the land or some part of it. If the statutory conditions are satisfied [see [ii], below], the agreement can be enforced as a covenant running with the land of the grantor and the grantee. Such a covenant may also be made between the owner of land with the owner of other land [Civ. Code § 1468]. Furthermore, if the requirements are satisfied, it is not necessary for a successor to acquire the entire estate of the covenantor to be bound [see Civ. Code §§ 1465, 1468].

When several persons are subject to the burden of a covenant under Civil Code Section 1468, the burden must be apportioned among them according to the value of the burdened property held by them, respectively, if the value can be ascertained, or if not, then according to their respective interests by quantity. However, when only a portion of the land is burdened by the covenant, the apportionment must be only among the several owners of that portion [Civ. Code §§ 1467, 1468].

Despite Civil Code Section 1465, which provides that a covenant running with the land binds only those who acquire the whole estate of the covenantor in some part of the property, a covenant meeting the requirements of Civil Code Section 1468 benefits and is binding on (1) each successive owner, during his or her ownership, of any portion of the land affected by the covenant, and (2) each person having an interest therein derived through any owner of the land, unless the instrument creating the covenant specifically provides otherwise [Civ. Code § 1468].

See Section 28C.210[2] for a form of agreement for mutual restrictive covenants among adjoining landowners.

[ii] Statutory Requirements

For a covenant to run with the land under Civil Code Section 1468, benefiting successive owners of the benefited land and binding successors of the burdened land, all of the following four requirements must be met [Civ. Code § 1468].

First, the land of the covenantor that is to be affected by the covenants, and the land of the covenantee to be benefited, must be particularly described in the instrument containing the covenant [Civ. Code § 1468(a)]. Without a description of the land to be benefited, the statute is not satisfied and the covenant is merely personal to the covenantor [McCaffrey v. Preston (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 422, 436, 201 Cal. Rptr. 252] .

Second, the successive owners of the land, in the instrument containing the covenants, must expressly be bound by the covenants for the benefit of the land owned by, granted by, or granted to the covenantee [Civ. Code § 1468(b)].

Third, each act required by the covenant must relate to the use, repair, maintenance, or improvement of, or payment of taxes and assessments on, the subject land or some part of it. If the subject land consists of undivided interests in the same parcel or parcels, the suspension of the right of partition or sale in lieu of partition for a reasonable period is a permissible covenant [Civ. Code § 1468(c)].

Fourth, the instrument containing the covenants must be recorded in the office of the recorder of each county in which the land or a part of it is situated [Civ. Code § 1468(d)]. Recording the instrument gives constructive notice of its contents to subsequent purchasers and mortgagees [Civ. Code § 1213; see Ch. 27, Deeds and Recording].

For forms of declarations of restriction for subdivisions that comply with Civil Code Section 1468, see §§ 28C.200[2] and 28C.201[2].

[iii] Effect on Persons in Special Capacities

A mortgagee, trustee, or beneficiary of a mortgage or deed of trust on land or any part of land affected by a covenant under Civil Code Section 1468 is subject to the provisions of that section, but only for the period during which that person is in possession of the land in his or her capacity as mortgagee, trustee, or beneficiary [Civ. Code § 1468].

[d] Persons Bound

A covenant running with the land binds the assigns of the covenantor and vests in the assigns of the covenantee, in the same manner as if they had personally entered into them [Civ. Code § 1460]. However, no one, merely by reason of acquiring an estate subject to a covenant running with the land, is liable for a breach of covenant before he or she acquired the estate, or after he or she has parted with or ceased to enjoy its benefits [Civ. Code §§ 1466, 1468]. To part with property or cease to enjoy its benefits within the meaning of Civ. Code § 1466, a property owner must not only vacate the property, but must also voluntarily relinquish it with the intention of terminating his or her ownership, possession, and control and without vesting ownership in another person [Cerro de Alcala Homeowners Assn. v. Burns (1985) 216 Cal. Rptr. 84] .

[3] Covenants Imposing Environmental Restrictions and Running With the Land Under Civ. Code § 1471

Civ. Code § 1471 governs covenants running with the land that impose environmental restrictions intended to protect present or future human health or safety or the environment as a result of hazardous materials on the land. Under its terms, when an owner or grantee of land makes a covenant to do or refrain from doing some act on his or her own land, the covenant runs with the land owned or granted to the covenantor if the doing or refraining from doing of the act is expressed to be for the benefit of the covenantee. This rule applies regardless of whether or not the covenant is for the benefit of land owned by the convenantee, and notwithstanding Civ. Code § 1468 or any other provision of law [Civ. Code § 1471(a)]. Except as provided by Civ. Code § 1466 (breach of covenant before acquisition of land or after relinquishment of land) or as specifically provided in the instrument creating the covenant, such a covenant is binding on each successive owner, during his or her ownership, of any portion of the land affected by it, and on each person having any interest in the land derived through any owner of the land, if all of the following requirements are met [Civ. Code § 1471(a), (b)]:

- The land of the covenantor that is to be affected by the convenant is particularly described in the instrument containing the covenant.

- The successive owners of the land are expressed to be bound thereby for the benefit of the covenantee in the instrument containing the convenant.

- Each act described in the covenant relates to the use of land and each act is reasonably necessary to protect present or future human health or safety or the evironment as a result of the presence on the land of hazardous materials, as defined in Health & Safety Code § 25260.

- The instrument containing the covenant is recorded in the office of the recorder of each county in which the land or some portion of it is situated, and the instrument includes in its title the words "Environmental Restriction."

If several persons are subject to the burden of any such covenant, it must be apportioned among them pursuant to Civ. Code § 1467, except that when only a portion of the land is so affected by the covenant, the apportionment must be only among the several owners of that portion [Civ. Code § 1471(c)]. Civ. Code § 1471 applies to the mortgagee, trustee, or beneficiary of a mortgage or deed of trust on the land or any part of the land, but only while he or she, in that capacity, is in possession of the land [Civ. Code § 1471(d)].

If an instrument containing a covenant is recorded as an "Environmental Restriction" [see Civ. Code § 1471(a)(4)], the office of the county recorder may send a certified copy of the instrument to the California Environmental Protection Agency (Cal-EPA) for posting on its Web site for informational purposes only [see Health & Safety Code § 57012], unless the instrument indicates that it is required by a specified board or department Safety Code [Civ. Code § 1471(e)(1); see Health & Safety Code § 57012(d)(1)-(3) (specified board or department)]. The county recorder may assess a reasonable fee, as determined by resolution of its governing body, to cover the costs of sending the certificate to Cal-EPA [Civ. Code § 1471(f)]. However, notwithstanding any provision of law, the office of the county recorder and its employees are not subject to any liability under any state law or in any action for damages if the office does not send a certified copy of the instrument to Cal-EPA [Civ. Code § 1471(e)(2)].

§ 28C.14 Judicial Interpretation of Restrictive Covenants

[1] In General

Restrictive covenants are construed strictly against the person seeking to enforce them and in favor of the unencumbered use of the property [Terry v. James (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 438, 443, 140 Cal. Rptr. 201 ; Biagini v. Hyde (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 877, 880, 83 Cal. Rptr. 875] . The primary object, however, in construing all contracts, is to effectuate the legitimate desires of the covenanting parties [Hannula v. Hacienda Homes (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 442, 444-445, 211 P.2d 302] . The intent of the parties and the object of the deed or restriction should govern, giving the instrument a just and fair interpretation [Lincoln Sav. & Loan Assn. v. Riviera Estates Assn. (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 449, 463, 87 Cal. Rptr. 150] . For example, a tract restriction prohibiting any improvement that would "unreasonably obstruct" the view from other lots is not necessarily too vague or uncertain for judicial enforcement [Seligman v. Tucker (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 691, 693, 697-699, 86 Cal. Rptr. 187] . The document must be construed as a whole to give effect to every part; particular words or clauses will be subordinated to general intent [Ezer v. Fuchsloch (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 849, 861, 160 Cal. Rptr. 486] . In ascertaining the intent of the language expressing the covenant, the court will look to the purpose for which the restriction was imposed [Smith v. North (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 245, 248, 53 Cal. Rptr. 94] .

[2] Equitable Power to Invalidate Unreasonable Restriction

A trial court has the equitable power to refuse enforcement of a restrictive covenant if the court finds the covenant so unreasonable that it violates public policy. A restrictive covenant is so unreasonable as to violate public policy when the harm caused by the restriction is so disproportionate to the benefit produced by performance of the covenant that the promise ought not to be enforced [Hotz v. Rich (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1048, 1057, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 219 ; see Restatement of Property § 539 (Comment f)].

§ 28C.15 Doctrine of Equitable Servitudes

[1] In General

At common law, many covenants respecting the use of land were, for a variety of technical reasons, unenforceable [see Powell On Real Property,P 670[2] (Matthew Bender)]. The doctrine of equitable servitudes developed as an enforcement mechanism for technically invalid but just claims [see Richardson v. Callahan (1931) 213 Cal. 683, 687, 3 P.2d 927] . For example, a restrictive covenant that is unenforceable because of a failure to comply with a statutory requirement for a covenant running with the land [see § 28C.12[2]], may, in an appropriate case, be enforced by a court's power in equity [see Hudson Oil Co. v. Shortstop (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 488, 493-494, 168 Cal. Rptr. 801] .

The doctrine of equitable servitudes rests not on technical concepts of whether the covenant runs with the land but on the equitable notion that one who takes property with notice of a restriction should be bound to observe that restriction [Richardson v. Callahan (1931) 213 Cal. 683, 687, 3 P.2d 927] . In the context of subdivisions, this doctrine is also referred to as "mutual equitable servitudes" [see Mock v. Shulman (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 263, 266, 38 Cal. Rptr. 39] . An equitable servitude is enforceable in equity by any party in whose favor the restrictions were imposed [Bryan v. Grosse (1909) 155 Cal. 132, 135, 99 P. 499 ; see § 28C.16].

Since the California Supreme Court's 1995 ruling in Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson [Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P.2d 1314] , the necessity of classifying and analyzing covenants, conditions, and restrictions recorded for a subdivision (and of determining their effect on subsequent purchasers) has been minimized, if not eliminated. The Court in Citizens adopted a simplied rule covering that issue, which is retroactive [Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 366-367, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P.2d 1314] and is equally applicable to covenants running with the land and to equitable servitudes [Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 355, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P.2d 1314] . The rule is fully discussed in § 28C.12A.

[2] Rules of Construction

Although the doctrine of equitable servitudes is more liberal in enforcement than the doctrine of covenants running with the land, equitable servitudes are still construed strictly against the person seeking their enforcement. However, the strict construction rule is not applicable when it would thwart the intent of the parties [see Ezer v. Fuchsloch (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 849, 860-862, 160 Cal. Rptr. 486] . This is because, above all, the intent of the parties governs [White v. Dorfman (1981) 116 Cal. App. 3d 892, 897, 172 Cal. Rptr. 326] .

§ 28C.16 Enforcement of Equitable Servitudes

[1] Prerequisites to Enforcement

Agreements restricting land use may be enforced, even though not meeting all the requisites of a common law covenant running with the land, by classifying them as equitable servitudes, enforceable by injunctive relief in equity [B.C.E. Development, Inc. v. Smith (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1142, 1146, 264 Cal. Rptr. 55] . In the case of subdivision restrictions, they will be enforceable on subsequent purchasers and their successors if recorded as part of a common plan prior to the sale of the subdivision interests, regardless of whether the restrictions are classified as equitable servitudes or covenants running with the land [Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 349 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P.2d 1314 ; see § 28C.12A (discussion of Citizens case and its effect on subsequent purchasers of recorded subdivision restrictions)]. If only two parcels are involved, a court will enforce equitable servitudes between them if it concludes that the restrictions are of such a nature that, considering the intentions of the parties coupled with the result of failure to enforce, equity could not in conscience withhold relief [see Richardson v. Callahan (1931) 213 Cal. 683, 686-687, 3 P.2d 927] .

[2] Standing

In general, standing to enforce an equitable servitude is governed by intent. An equitable servitude is enforceable by any party in whose favor the restrictions were imposed [Bryan v. Grosse (1909) 155 Cal. 132, 135, 99 P. 499] . If a declaration of restrictions creating a covenant so provides, an enforcement action may also be brought by the declarant (that is, the developer) even if the declarant no longer owns an interest in the dominant estate [B.C.E. Development, Inc. v. Smith (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1142, 1148-1150, 264 Cal. Rptr. 55] . Alternatively, the declaration may grant enforcement rights to the homeowner's association [see Russell v. Palos Verdes Properties (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 754, 765, 32 Cal. Rptr. 488] or limit enforcement rights to a current owner of the dominant estate [see Kent v. Koch (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 579, 588, 333 P.2d 411] .

§ 28C.16A Action for Violation of Restriction

An action for violation of a restriction, as defined in Civ. Code § 784, must be commenced within five years [Code Civ. Proc. § 336(b)]. Under § 784, "restriction" means a limitation on, or provision affecting, the use of real property in a deed, declaration, or other instrument, whether in the form of a covenant, equitable servitude, condition subsequent, negative easement, or other form of restriction [Civ. Code § 784].

This five-year period runs from the time the person seeking to enforce the restriction discovered or, through the exercise of reasonable diligence, should have discovered the violation. A failure to commence an action within this period does not result in a waiver of the right to commence an action for any other violation of the restriction, and does not, in itself, create an implication that the restriction is abandoned, obsolete, or otherwise unenforceable [Code Civ. Proc. § 336(b)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 336(b) will not bar commencement of an action for violation of a restriction before January 1, 2002, and, until that date, any other applicable statutory or common law limitation will continue to apply to that action [Code Civ. Proc. § 336(b)].

§ 28C.17 Considerations for Developer of Subdivision

[1] Purpose of Declaration of Restrictions

For the protection of the character and value of residential subdivision property, it is important that there be some uniform restrictions on the use and occupancy of the residences and, for custom-built homes, some minimum standards set for the cost and character of those residences. This is accomplished by recording, prior to any sale in the subdivision, a declaration or other instrument that (1) establishes a common plan for the ownership of property in the subdivision; (2) contains restrictions on the use of the property as part of the common plan; (3) describes the property it is to govern; and (4) states that it is to bind all purchasers and their successors. Subsequent purchasers who have constructive notice of the recorded declaration are then deemed to intend and agree to be bound by, and to accept the benefits of, the common plan [Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 349, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P.2d 1314 ; see § 28C.12A].

For a procedural guide to preparing a declaration of restrictions, see § 28C.120. For forms of declarations of restrictions, see §§ 28C.200 and 28C.201.

[2] Applicability of Statutes Controlling Subdivisions

[a] In General

A variety of state and federal statutes regulate the subdivision process [see [b]-[e], below]. In addition to controlling the subdividing procedure, these statutes may also regulate particular covenants that may be included in a declaration of restrictions for a subdivision. For both of these reasons, a developer should ensure that he or she understands and has complied with the following statutes, if applicable, before proceeding with a subdivision. For complete discussion of the statutes affecting subdivisions, see Ch. 30, Subdivision Regulation . For discussion of the statutes affecting condominiums and similar developments, see Ch. 33A, Time-Share Projects , through Ch. 34, Condominiums .

[b] Subdivision Map Act

Virtually every division of land is subject to the requirements of the Subdivision Map Act [see Gov. Code § 66410 et seq.] unless specifically excluded [see Gov. Code § 66412]. At a minimum, the Act requires that a developer file and receive approval for a parcel map; for larger subdivisions, the developer will generally have to file and receive approval for both a tentative and final subdivision map [Gov. Code §§ 66426, 66428]. The map requirements must be satisfied before any sale, lease, or financing of subdivision parcels can take place [Gov. Code § 66499.30].

The procedure for processing maps is governed by the Map Act. However, the Act is administered by cities and counties rather than by the state; procedures prescribed by the Map Act may be modified by local ordinance to the extent that the Map Act authorizes modification [Gov. Code § 66451]. For complete discussion of the subdivision process, see Ch. 30, Subdivision Regulation .

[c] Subdivided Lands Act

With certain exceptions, the sale or lease of land divided or proposed to be divided into five or more lots or parcels is subject to the requirements of the Subdivided Lands Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11000; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 11000 et seq.]. Any "planned development" [see [d], below] containing five or more units is subject to the Act [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 11003, 11004.5]. The Act also applies to land in which five or more undivided interests are created or proposed to be created [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11000.1].

In general, the Act requires the subdivider to file with the Real Estate Commissioner a notice of intention to sell or lease and an accompanying questionnaire [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11010]. The Commissioner may require a public report to be issued for the subdivision [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11018.2]. If issued, the report, along with certain other documents, must be provided to every prospective purchaser or lessee [Bus & Prof. Code § 11018.1; 10 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 2794(a), 2795.1(a)]. The developer must also give a copy of the report to any member of the public who requests it, and must post a notice of the right to make such a request and a copy of the report [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11018.1(b)].

The Act prohibits false or misleading advertising regarding subdivisions [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11022].

[d] Davis-Stirling Common Interest Development Act

The Davis-Stirling Common Interest Development Act [Civ. Code § 1350 et seq.] regulates the creation and essential attributes of common interest developments. A "common interest development" is a community apartment project, a condominium project, a stock cooperative, or a planned development [Civ. Code § 1351(c)]. A "planned development" is a real estate development (other than a community apartment project, condominium project, or stock cooperative) that has either or both of the following features [Civ. Code § 1351(k)]:

- A common area [see Civ. Code § 1351(b)] owned by the owner's association or in common by the owners of the separate interests [see Civ. Code § 1351(l)(3)] who possess appurtenant rights to the beneficial use and enjoyment of the common area.

- An owner's association with the power to enforce any obligation of an owner of a separate interest relating to the beneficial use and enjoyment of the common area by means of an assessment on the owner's lot, which may become a lien on the separate interest in accordance with Civ. Code § 1367 or 1367.1.

For further discussion, see Ch. 33A, Time-Share Projects , through Ch. 34, Condominiums .

[e] Interstate Land Sales Full Disclosure Act

The Department of Housing and Urban Development has the authority, pursuant to the Interstate Land Sales Full Disclosure Act [15 U.S.C. § 1701 et seq.], to regulate interstate land sales. It is unlawful for a subdivider to sell or lease an interest in a subdivision subject to the Act through the facilities of interstate commerce unless a statement of record is filed with the Office of Interstate Land Sales Registration and a copy of the property report is furnished to each purchaser [15 U.S.C. § 1703(a)(1)]. In general, the Act does not apply to the sale or lease of lots in a subdivision containing fewer than 25 lots [see 15 U.S.C. § 1702(a)(1)].

§ 28C.30 Covenants Restricting Property to Specified Use

California courts have long enforced lease provisions restricting the use of other portions of a lessor's property [see Medico-Dental Etc. Co. v. Horton & Converse (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 411, 433-434, 132 P.2d 457] . In this regard, as the developer of a planned development may be likened to a lessor of a large building or shopping center, the courts will not interfere with an agreement between a developer and a purchaser in a planned development to maintain and devote the development to a large number of uses when the declaration of covenants, conditions, and restrictions executed and recorded by the developer in connection with the development expressly permitted it to disapprove inconsistent uses [Samuelson National v. Kaiser-Aetna (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 553, 558-559, 160 Cal. Rptr. 395] . For example, a covenant restricting property to "residential purposes only" is enforceable as an equitable servitude and commercial logging is enjoinable as inconsistent and incompatible with the restriction [Greater Middleton Assn. v. Holmes Lumber Co. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 980, 994, 271 Cal. Rptr. 917] . It has also been held that the operation of a boarding house violates a restriction limiting lots to residential purposes [Seaton v. Clifford (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 46, 50-51, 100 Cal. Rptr. 779] . However, the operation of a residential care facility for six or fewer residents was found to be consistent with a single-family residential restriction [Welsch v. Goswick (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 398, 408, 181 Cal. Rptr. 703] .

Restrictions that require the approval of a grantor, architectural board, or homeowners association before improving or landscaping are enforceable as long as the approval or disapproval is reasonable [see Palos Verdes Homes Assn. v. Rodman (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 324, 328, 227 Cal. Rptr. 81 ; Samuelson National v. Kaiser-Aetna (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 553, 557, 160 Cal. Rptr. 395] . The authority to approve or disapprove must be exercised in conformity with the declaration of restrictions and in good faith [Hannula v. Hacienda Homes (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 442, 447, 211 P.2d 302] . Any decision is subject to judicial review to ensure that it was neither arbitrary nor in violation of the restrictions [see Cohen v. Kite Hill Community Assn. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 642, 652, 191 Cal. Rptr. 209 ; see also Ironwood Owners Assn. IX v. Solomon (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 766, 771-773, 224 Cal. Rptr. 18] . Kite Hill Community Assn. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 642, 647, 191 Cal. Rptr. 209]* .

§ 28C.32 Covenants Limiting Number of Residents

A covenant that limits the number of residents in a household, without any reference to square footage, and absent any showing that this personal living arrangement has an adverse impact on the neighborhood, violates a resident's right of privacy in choosing living companions and can be voided if the restriction involves state action [see Park Redlands Covenant Control Committee v. Simon (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 87, 95-99, 226 Cal. Rptr. 199 ; see also City of Santa Barbara v. Adamson (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 123, 131-137, 164 Cal. Rptr. 539, 610 P.2d 436 (resident limitation based on assumption that groups of unrelated persons present immoral environment for families invalid)]. In the context of a restrictive covenant, "state action" can be found in the affirmative action of the state courts, by enforcing a covenant, to further an unconstitutional invasion of a landowner's privacy [see Park Redlands Covenant Control Committee v. Simon (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 87, 98, 226 Cal. Rptr. 199 ; see also § 28C.36].

Accordingly, a developer who wishes to impose a residence restriction on a subdivision must be prepared to demonstrate that unrestricted living arrangements will have some adverse impact on the community [see City of Santa Barbara v. Adamson (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 123, 128, 164 Cal. Rptr. 539, 610 P.2d 436] . However, this may be an impossible goal to achieve. An approach more likely to be successful is to focus on the use of land, rather than on who the users are, by such measures as regulating floor space, permissible types of structures, and parking requirements [see City of Santa Barbara v. Adamson (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 123, 133, 164 Cal. Rptr. 539, 610 P.2d 436] .

The owner of a lot in a residential tract may enjoin the owner of an adjacent lot in the same tract from violating a restrictive covenant limiting the height of trees growing on all lots in the tract. This type of covenant might be used to preserve views or to prevent excessively tall trees from dropping leaves and branches, or falling, on adjoining lots. In this situation, the right to enforce the covenant does not rest solely in the developer. Each lot is both a dominant and subservient tenement with respect to the height restriction. The restriction creates a mutual equitable servitude, breach of which may be enjoined [Ezer v. Fuchsloch (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 849, 861-862, 160 Cal. Rptr. 486] .

§ 28C.34 Covenants Restricting Radio Antennas and Satellite Dishes

In general, covenants restricting radio antennas and satellite dishes are valid and may be enforced [see Hotz v. Rich (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1048, 1057, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 219] , and are not rendered unenforceable even when federal regulations grant a permit for construction of an antenna that would violate the restrictions on antenna height and placement [Hotz v. Rich (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1048, 1057, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 219] . The FCC has made clear it is not concerned with the effect of restrictive covenants, which it generally views as merely contractual agreements between private parties. In addition, no federal statute forbids voluntary agreements restricting radio equipment [Hotz v. Rich (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1048, 1054, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 219] . A restriction on antennas is not rendered unenforceable as a violation of First Amendment free speech rights [Conrad v. Dunn (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 236, 238, 154 Cal. Rptr. 726] .

However, when enforcement of the restriction is sought in equity, the trial court has the equitable power to refuse enforcement if it finds the restriction so unreasonable that it violates public policy [Hotz v. Rich (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1048, 1057, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 219 ; see § 28C.14[2]]. Accordingly, a restriction completely banning satellite dishes was found to be unreasonable as a matter of law when the satellite dish was not visible to other residents of the development or the public [Portola Hills Community Assn. v. James (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 289, 293, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 580] .

A restriction in a deed or other instrument relating to the sale or transfer of an interest in real property, or any provision of a governing document of a homeowners' association [*see Civ. However, it is permissible to impose reasonable restrictions on solar energy systems. "Reasonable restrictions" are those that do not significantly increase the cost of the system or significantly decrease its efficiency or specified performance, or that allow for an alternative system of comparable cost, efficiency, and energy conservation benefits [Civ. Code § 714(b); see Civ. Code § 714(d) (definitions of "significantly" and "solar energy system"); see also Palos Verdes Homes Assn. v. Rodman (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 324, 328, 227 Cal. Rptr. 81] . For these purposes, a solar energy system must meet applicable standards and requirements imposed by state and local permitting authorities [Civ. Code § 714(c)(1)]. A solar energy system for heating water must be certified by the Solar Rating Certification Corporation (SRCC) or other nationally recognized certification agencies. SRCC is a nonprofit third party supported by the United States Department of Energy. The certification must be for the entire solar energy system and installation [Civ. Code § 714(c)(2)]. A solar energy system for producing electricity must also meet all applicable safety and performance standards established by the National Electrical Code, the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers, and accredited testing laboratories such as Underwriters Laboratories and, where applicable, rules of the Public Utilities Commission regarding safety and reliability [Civ. Code § 714(c)(2)]. Whenever approval is required for the installation or use of a solar energy system, the application for approval must be processed and approved by the appropriate approving entity in the same manner as an application for approval of an architectural modification to the property, and may not be willfully avoided or delayed [see Civ. Code § 714(e)(1)]. For an approving entity that is a homeowners' association [see Civ. Code § 1351(a) (definition)] and is not a public entity, the approval or denial of an application must be in writing. If an application is not denied in writing within 60 days from the date of receipt of the application, the application must be deemed approved, unless that delay is the result of a reasonable request for additional information [Civ. Code § 714(e)(2)].

Covenants, conditions, and restrictions may not prohibit the sale, lease, rent, or use of real property merely on the basis that a structure intended for occupancy on the property was constructed at an offsite facility or factory, and subsequently moved or transported in sections or modules to the property. However, modular structures are otherwise subject to the same restrictions as other structures [Civ. Code § 714.5].

12-28C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28C.37

§ 28C.37 Covenants Restricting Residence Based on Race, Religion, Sex, Age, and Other Factors

Housing restrictions based on improper discrimination are invalid and unenforceable. Any provision in any deed of real property in California, whether executed before or after the effective date of Civ. Code § 782, is void to the extent that it purports, by providing for payment of a penalty, forfeiture, reverter, or otherwise, to restrict the right of any person to sell, lease, rent, use, or occupy the property on the basis of the person's having any of the listed characteristics [Civ. Code § 782(a); see Gov. Code § 12955(a), (d) (listings of protected characteristics)], or a perception that the person has any of these characteristics or that the person is associated with a person who has, or is perceived to have, any of these characteristics [see Gov. Code §§ 12926(m), 12955(m)]. The listed characteristics are: ancestry, color, disability, familial status, marital status, national origin, race, religion, sex, sexual orientation, and source of income. However, with regard to familial status, this does not apply to housing for older persons and does not affect certain Civil Code sections relating to housing for senior citizens [Civ. Code § 782(b)]. Any deed, or other written instrument relating to title to real property, containing any provision that would be void under Civ. Code § 782(a), and any written covenant, condition, or restriction annexed to or made a part of any such deed or instrument, by reference or otherwise, must be deemed to be revised to omit that provision [see Civ. Code § 782.5(a)].

Similarly, every restriction or prohibition, whether by way of covenant or condition on use or occupation of, or on transfer of title to, real property that directly or indirectly limits acquisition, use, or occupation of real property because of the user's or occupier's race, color, religion, ancestry, sex, national origin, disability, medical condition, marital status, or sexual orientation is void [Civ. Code § 53(b); see Civ. Code § 51(b), (e)]. The Unruh Civil Rights Act [Civ. Code § 51] also prohibits enforcement of restrictions against residence based on age [O'Connor v. Village Green Owners Ass'n (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 790, 793-797, 191 Cal. Rptr. 320, 662 P.2d 427 ; see Stats. 2005, ch. 420, § 2(d) (O'Connor holding is not affected by Civil Rights Act of 2005)]. However, the Act does not prohibit differential treatment based on actual characteristics or differences in needs of users [Sunrise Country Club Ass'n v. Proud (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 377, 381, 235 Cal. Rptr. 404] ; a prohibition on minors residing in a certain part of a development and banning minors from swimming in an adult pool has been upheld [Sunrise Country Club Ass'n v. Proud (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 377, 382, 235 Cal. Rptr. 404] . Age restrictions are enforceable in qualified senior citizen housing [see Civ. Code §§ 51.2-51.4; Park Redlands Covenant Control v. Simon (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 87, 94-95, 226 Cal. Rptr. 199] .

Under the California Fair Employment and Housing Act [Gov. Code § 12900 et seq.], it is unlawful to engage in specified discriminatory practices in housing accommodations or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, marital status, national origin, ancestry, familial status, disability, or sexual orientation [see Gov. Code § 12955]. For additional discussion, see § 28C.39.

The Federal Fair Housing Act also prohibits covenants that discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, familial status, or national origin [see 42 U.S.C. § 3604(a)]. A restriction that prohibits occupancy by individuals under 18 years of age and residing with a parent or custodian violates the prohibition on restrictions based on familial status [see 42 U.S.C. § 3602(k)]. Federal law also provides an exemption from the prohibition on familial status restrictions for housing for older persons [see 42 U.S.C. § 3607(b)(2)(B) (all residents over 62), (C) (80 percent of units occupied by at least one person over 55)]. Housing discrimination against disabled persons is also prohibited under federal law [42 U.S.C. § 3604(f); see 42 U.S.C. § 3602(h)].

§ 28C.38 Unconstitutional Covenants Rendered Invalid Due to State Action

Among the civil rights intended to be protected from discriminatory state action by the Fourteenth Amendment is the right to acquire, enjoy, own, and dispose of property [Shelley v. Kraemer (1947) 334 U.S. 1, 10, 68 S. Ct. 836, 92 L. Ed. 1161] . Standing alone, private restrictive covenants do not violate that property right or any other rights guaranteed by the equal protection clause of the Fourteenth Amendment, because such contractual restrictions involve only private action, not state action [Shelley v. Kraemer (1947) 334 U.S. 1, 13, 68 S. Ct. 836, 92 L. Ed. 1161] . However, in the affirmative action of a court granting judicial enforcement of an improper restrictive agreement, a state converts this private action to state action, thereby denying the aggrieved party equal protection under the Fourteenth Amendment. Accordingly, restrictive covenants based on improper discrimination are invalid [Shelley v. Kraemer (1947) 334 U.S. 1, 20, 68 S. Ct. 836, 92 L. Ed. 1161] .

State action in the form of judicial enforcement of restrictive covenants can also further an unconstitutional invasion of a landowner's privacy under the California Constitution, and accordingly, such a covenant is invalid [see Park Redlands Covenant Control Committee v. Simon (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 87, 98, 226 Cal. Rptr. 199 ; see also § 28C.32].

Therefore, any restrictive covenant that would violate the federal or state constitutions can be enjoined as improper state action.

§ 28C.39 Discriminatory Restrictions Prohibited by California Fair Employment and Housing Act

Under the California Fair Employment and Housing Act [Gov. Code § 12900 et seq.], it is unlawful to engage in specified discriminatory practices in housing accommodations or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, marital status, national origin, ancestry, familial status, disability, or sexual orientation [see Gov. Code § 12955]. Discrimination on these bases is against public policy [Gov. Code § 12920], and the opportunity to seek, obtain, and hold housing without discrimination is a civil right [Gov. Code § 12921(b); see Civ. Code § 51]. The Department of Fair Employment and Housing is authorized by the Act to take remedial and preventive actions [Gov. Code § 12901], such as to use the services of all governmental departments and agencies, including conciliation councils with regard to housing discrimination, and to receive, investigate, and conciliate complaints alleging discriminatory practices [Gov. Code § 12930(d), (f)]. It is unlawful for any person, organization, or entity to discriminate through public or private land use practices, decisions, and authorizations because of discrimination based on these characteristics. In this regard, discrimination includes, but is not limited to, restrictive covenants, zoning laws, and denial of use permits that make housing opportunities unavailable [Gov. Code § 12955(l)]. Any person who holds an ownership interest of record in property he or she believes is the subject of an unlawfully restrictive covenant in violation of Gov. Code § 12955(l) may record a modification document [see Gov. Code § 12956.2; see also § 28C.40].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Validity of Covenants for Particular Purposes

12-28C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28C.40

§ 28C.40 Removal of Unlawful Restrictions in Recorded Documents

[1] Recordation of Restrictive Covenant Modification

[a] Owner May Record Modification Document

A person who holds an ownership interest of record in property and believes that the interest is the subject of an unlawfully restrictive covenant in violation of Gov. Code § 12955(l) [see § 28C.39] may record a document titled "Restrictive Covenant Modification." The county recorder may choose to waive the fee prescribed for recording and indexing instruments [see Gov. Code § 27361] in the case of the modification document. The modification document must include a complete copy of the original document containing the unlawfully restrictive language with the unlawfully restrictive language struck out [Gov. Code § 12956.2(a)].

The county recorder must make available to the public "Restrictive Covenant Modification" forms [Gov. Code § 12956.2(e)].

If the holder of an ownership interest of record in property causes a modified document to be recorded that contains modifications not authorized by Gov. Code § 12956.2, the county recorder will not incur liability for recording the document. Any liability that may result from the unauthorized recordation is the sole responsibility of the holder of the ownership interest of record who caused the document to be recorded [Gov. Code § 12956.2(f)].

Gov. Code § 12956.2 does not apply to persons holding an ownership interest in property that is part of a common interest development [see Civ. Code § 1351(c) (definition)] if the board of directors of that common interest development is subject to the requirements of Civ. Code § 1352.5(b), which proscribes restrictive covenants in any declaration or other governing document for the development [Gov. Code § 12956.2(g)].

[b] County Counsel Must First Examine Documents

Before recording the modification document, the county recorder must submit the modification document and the original document to the county counsel, who must determine whether the original document contains an unlawful restriction based on race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, familial status, marital status, disability, national origin, source of income [see Gov. Code § 12955(p) (definition)], or ancestry. The county counsel must return the documents and inform the county recorder of the determination. The county recorder must refuse to record the modification document if the county counsel finds that the original document does not contain an unlawful restriction [Gov. Code § 12956.2(b)].

[c] Modification Is Indexed Same as Original

The modification document must be indexed in the same manner as the original document being modified. It must contain a recording reference to the original document in the form of a book and page or instrument number and the date of the recording [Gov. Code § 12956.2(c)].

[d] Restrictions in Modification Are Paramount

Subject to covenants, conditions, and restrictions that were recorded after the recording of the original document that contains the unlawfully restrictive language and subject to covenants, conditions, and restrictions that will be recorded after the modification document, the restrictions in the modification document, once recorded, are the only restrictions having effect on the property. The effective date of the terms and conditions of the modification document must be the same as the original document's effective date [Gov. Code § 12956.2(d)].

[e] Adding Racially Restrictive Covenant Is Offense

Any person who records a document for the express purpose of adding a racially restrictive covenant is guilty of a misdemeanor. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, a prosecution for a violation must commence within three years after the discovery of the document's recording. The county recorder will not incur any liability for recording the document [Gov. Code § 12956.1(c)].

[2] Duty to Inform Persons That Unlawful Restrictions Are Removable

A county recorder, title insurance company, escrow company, real estate broker, real estate agent, or association that provides a copy of a declaration, governing document, or deed to any person must place a cover page or stamp on the first page of the previously recorded document or documents stating, in at least 14-point boldface type, the following [Gov. Code § 12956.1(a), (b)(1); see Civ. Code § 1351 (definitions of "association," "governing document," and "declaration")]:

> If this document contains any restriction based on race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, familial status, marital status, disability, national origin, source of income as defined in subdivision (p) of Section 12955, or ancestry, that restriction violates state and federal fair housing laws and is void, and may be removed pursuant to Section 12956.2 of the Government Code. Lawful restrictions under state and federal law on the age of occupants in senior housing or housing for older persons shall not be construed as restrictions based on familial status.

However, the requirement does not apply to documents being submitted for recordation to a county recorder [Gov. Code § 12956.1(b)(2)].

C. Restrictive Covenants as Property Interests

12-28C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28C.50

§ 28C.50 Restrictive Covenants as Property for Purposes of Eminent Domain

Like any other property, property that is subject to a restrictive covenant may be acquired through eminent domain proceedings by a public agency for a purpose contrary to the covenant. In this event, the agency, which cannot be enjoined from carrying out its intended purpose through exercise of its eminent domain power, must compensate all landowners in whose favor the restrictive covenant runs [see Southern Cal. Edison Co. v. Bourgerie (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 169, 171, 107 Cal. Rptr. 76, 507 P.2d 964] . This is because, for purposes of eminent domain proceedings, a restrictive covenant in the form of a building restriction constitutes "property" within the meaning of Cal. Const., art. I, § 19, requiring just compensation for the public taking of private property [Southern Cal. Edison Co. v. Bourgerie (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 169, 171, 107 Cal. Rptr. 76, 507 P.2d 964 (construing former Cal. Const., art. I, § 14; now see Cal. Const., art. I, § 19)]. Therefore, the public or private condemning agency must compensate any landowners for damage incurred as a result of the use of the condemned property in a manner that violates the restrictive covenant [Southern Cal. Edison Co. v. Bourgerie (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 169, 171, 107 Cal. Rptr. 76, 507 P.2d 964] .

12-28C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28C.110

§ 28C.110 Determining Which Restrictive Covenants to Include in Agreement

1. Consult with client about specific needs and desires:

a. For standard or custom-home residential subdivision, comprehensive restrictions may be appropriate [see §§ 28C.200, 28C.201].

b. For agreement among landowners of existing lots, more limited restrictions tailored to specific needs may be appropriate [see § 28C.210].

2. Review applicable local, state, and federal law to determine whether specific restrictions may be invalid [see § 28C.112].

NOTE:
A restriction that violates a provision of law is likely to be unenforceable. For example, a covenant that restricts the installation or use of solar energy systems is void and unenforceable [Civ. Code § 714(a); see Civ. Code § 714(b) (this prohibition does not apply to provisions that impose reasonable restrictions on solar systems)].

3. Review list of standard restrictive covenants to determine which standard clauses may be used, and which covenants should be specially drafted.

NOTE:
For a list of typical restrictive covenants, see § 28C.130.

§ 28C.111 Determinations Related to Development and Formation of Subdivision

NOTE:

The following determinations are important to keep in mind, because governmental controls may restrict the type of covenants that are valid or required in a particular agreement.

1. What local requirements govern proposed development [see Ch. 30B, Zoning, Building, and Environmental Entitlements and Permits, § 30B.100 et seq.]?

2. According to local governmental entities and utility company, are adequate utilities and other necessary services available?

3. According to local governmental entities and utility company, what type of utility and other easements are required?

4. Should developer characterize development as "common interest development" [see Ch. 33A, Time-Share Projects , through Ch. 34, Condominiums]?

12-28C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28C.112

§ 28C.112 Determining Applicability of Local, State, and Federal Laws

NOTE:

A developer subdividing a parcel of land must comply with a variety of statutes. The primary statutes are listed here. The following statutes are also important to keep in mind in drafting an agreement, because they will affect the covenants that are appropriate in a particular agreement.

1.For purposes of Davis-Stirling Common Interest Development Act [see Civ. Code §§ 1350-1372], will proposed project have either or both of following features and therefore be considered "common interest development" and "planned development" [see Civ. Code § 1351(c), (k); see also § 28C.17[2][d]]?

a. Common area owned by association or in common by owners of separate interests who possess appurtenant rights to beneficial use and enjoyment of common area.

b. Power exists in association to enforce obligation of owner of separate interest with respect to beneficial use and enjoyment of common area by means of assessment on separate interests.

2. Will development consist of at least five lots and therefore be subject to public report and other requirements of Subdivided Lands Act [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 11000-11200; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 11004.5(a)]?

NOTE:

The Subdivided Lands Act incorporates the definition of "planned development" set forth in the Davis-Stirling Common Interest Development Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11003; [see Civ. Code § 1351(k)].

3. What, if any, subdivision maps must (or may) be prepared under Subdivision Map Act [see Gov. Code §§ 66410-66499.37] and applicable local subdivision ordinance [see § 28C.17[2][b]]

NOTE:

For a detailed discussion of the general requirements of the Act, refer to Ch. 30, Subdivision Regulation, § 30.100 et seq.

a. Tentative map and final map if development contains five or more lots [Gov. Code §§ 66426, 66428; see Ch. 30, Subdivision Regulation, § 30.100 et seq.].

b. Parcel map if development will contain four or fewer lots, unless local ordinance waives requirement of parcel map [Gov. Code § 66428; see Ch. 30, Subdivision Regulation, § 30.100 et seq.].

c. Vesting tentative map in lieu of any tentative map required by Act, if developer wants to obtain vested right to proceed with development in substantial compliance with existing local requirements [see Gov. Code §§ 66498.1-66498.7; see also Ch. 30, Subdivision Regulation, § 30.100 et seq.].

4. Is development subject to additional regulation under any of following?

NOTE:

For a discussion of these laws, refer to Ch. 34, Condominiums , § 34.100 et seq.

a. Interstate Land Sales Full Disclosure Act [see 15 U.S.C. §§ 1701-1720].

d. California Coastal Act of 1976 [see Pub. Res. Code §§ 30000-30900].

12-28C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28C.120

§ 28C.120 Procedural Guide to Adopting Restrictive Covenants

1. Determine which restrictive covenants to include.

NOTE:
For a checklist of types of restrictive covenants to include in particular types of agreements, see Section 28C.130. For a list of other considerations in determining which covenants to employ, see Section 28C.110. Covenants applicable to a subdivision declaration of restrictions will likely differ from those applicable to an agreement for restrictive covenants between adjoining landowners.

2. Draft restrictive covenants:

a. For developer of subdivision, draft declaration of restrictions [see §§ 28C.200, 28C.201].

b. For owners of existing adjoining lots, draft agreement for mutual restrictive covenants [see § 28C.210].

NOTE:
For a drafting guide to a typical subdivision declaration of restrictions, see Section 28C.130.

3. Ensure restrictions are not so unreasonable as to violate public policy, and thus be unenforceable.

NOTE:
A court may refuse to enforce a restrictive covenant if the covenant is so unreasonable that it violates public policy. A covenant is so unreasonable as to violate public policy if the harm caused by the restriction is so disproportionate to the benefit produced by performance of the covenant that the promise ought not to be enforced [Hotz v. Rich (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1048, 1057, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 219] .

4. Ensure restrictions do not violate federal or state constitutions, and therefore become unenforceable

NOTE:
A court's enforcement of a private covenant that violates the federal or state constitution is unconstitutional because it lends the affirmative aid of the courts to furthering an unconstitutional action. This type of state action violates both the federal and state constitutions [Park Redlands Covenant Control Committee v. Simon (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 87, 98, 226 Cal. Rptr. 199 ; see Shelley v. Kraemer (1947) 334 U.S. 1, 68 S. Ct. 836, 92 L. Ed. 1161] .

5. So that covenants will run with the land, binding and benefiting all current and future landowners, ensure that declaration complies with Civil Code Section 1468 by including provisions that accomplish all of following [Civ. Code § 1468(a)-(c); see also P 7c, below]:

a. Particularly describe land of covenantor to be affected by covenants, and land of covenantee to be benefited.

b. Expressly bind successive owners of land for benefit of land owned by, granted by, or granted to covenantee.

c. State that each act in declaration relates to use, repair, maintenance, or improvement of, or payment of taxes and assessments on, land or some part of it.

6. For subdivisions, verify that covenants and restrictions do all of following [see Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 349, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P. 2d 1314 ; see also P 7a, below]:

a. Establish common plan for ownership of property in subdivision (and impose those restrictions as part of common plan);

b. Describe property to which restrictions are to apply; and

c. State that they are to bind all purchasers and their successors.

7. Record restrictions in following manner:

NOTE:
For a complete discussion of deeds and recording, see Chapter 27, Deeds and Recording .

a. For subdivision, record:

(1) Declaration of restrictions before selling any homes, lots, or other interests in subdivision [Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 349, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P. 2d 1314 ; see §§ 28C.200, 28C.201].

(2) Deed for each parcel on sale, stating that it is subject to restrictive covenants in declaration and incorporating declaration by reference [see § 28C.220].

NOTE:

In order for recorded subdivision CC&Rs to be enforceable and binding on subsequent purchasers, it is not required that they be referenced in a subsequent purchaser's deed [Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 349, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P. 2d 1314] . However, there is no prohibition against including such a reference in the deeds to purchasers, and practitioners may refer to and incorporate by reference the CC&Rs in deeds to subdivision interests (as most probably did and thought they were required to prior to the ruling in Citizens) [see § 28C.12A].

b. For agreement for mutual restrictions among adjoining landowners, record agreement after execution and acknowledgment [see § 28C.210].

c. Record in each county in which property is located [see Civ. Code § 1468(d)].

12-28C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28C.130

§ 28C.130 Drafting Guide for Agreement Containing Restrictive Covenants

NOTE:

Before drafting a declaration of restrictions [see §§ 28C.200, 28C.201] or an agreement for mutual restrictive covenants among adjoining landowners [see § 28C.210], the attorney should consult with the client to determine what types of covenants are appropriate to the needs of the parties. This section provides a checklist of common types of restrictive covenants and when each type is typically used.

1. If client is developer creating subdivision, include following restrictions in declaration of restrictions:

NOTE:

Most of these restrictions apply to a standard residential subdivision, in which the houses are built by the developer. They are also applicable to subdivisions of owner-built custom homes. Additional restrictions applicable only to custom-home subdivisions are also included and appropriately noted.

a. Control of land use and type of building that may be built on lot.

NOTE:

Most subdivision declarations limit land use to residential purposes only. Accordingly, permissible structures include single-family dwellings, private garages, and storage buildings for gardening and other household supplies and equipment.

A covenant may not prohibit the sale, lease, rent, or use of real property merely on the basis that a structure intended for occupancy on the property was constructed at an offsite facility and subsequently moved in sections to the property. Modular structures are otherwise subject to the same restrictions as all other structures [Civ. Code § 714.5].

b. Restriction on redivision.

NOTE:

This type of restriction is commonly included in custom-home subdivisions, in which houses are not pre-built, to prevent owners from further subdividing their lots beyond the original subdivision by the developer.

c. Minimum lot area and width.

NOTE:

This type of restriction can be used to prevent any structure from being built on a lot that is less than a specified size.

d. Minimum dwelling cost, quality, and size.

NOTE:

This type of restriction is used to ensure that all houses in the subdivision will be of a consistent appearance, size, and high quality. Size restrictions are a permissible method to limit the number of residents of each household [see City of Santa Barbara v. Adamson (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 123, 131-137, 164 Cal. Rptr. 539, 610 P.2d 436 (resident limitation based on assumption that groups of unrelated persons present immoral environment for families invalid)].

e. Location of buildings.

NOTE:

Location restrictions are used to ensure that structures are not placed too near the edge of a lot, creating a congested appearance and reducing the privacy of adjoining lots. The client may wish to provide that storage buildings and garages have different restrictions from houses.

f. Maintenance of easements.

NOTE:

The subdivider will want to ensure that easements for utilities and drainage are sufficiently provided for. Generally, this type of covenant prevents owners from placing any structure, vegetation, or material on the easement. Further, it requires the owner to maintain drainage easements, and the utility company or district to maintain utility easements.

g. Prohibition on nuisances.

NOTE:

A nuisance restriction is intended to proscribe any noxious or offensive activity from being carried on on a lot, or anything else that might be an annoyance or nuisance to the neighborhood. In a custom-home subdivision, the covenant prohibiting various types of activities deemed to be nuisances can be quite extensive [see § 28C.201[2], P 3.07].

h. Prohibition on temporary structures.

NOTE:

A restriction on temporary structures is intended to prevent an owner from using a trailer, basement, tent, shack, garage, barn, or other outbuilding as a residence. However, temporary offices used by building contractors during construction are typically permitted.

i. Prohibition on signs.

NOTE:

This type of restriction generally prohibits any type of sign other than a professional sign, a sign advertising the property for sale or rent, or a sign used by a builder to advertise the property during the construction and sales period.

j. Prohibition on oil and mining operations.

NOTE:

This restriction prohibits any oil or mining operations on the property, including the construction of wells, towers, derricks, tanks, tunnels, or anything else associated with the prohibited activity.

k. Prohibition on livestock and poultry.

NOTE:

A restriction on animals usually prevents any animals from being kept, raised, or bred on the property other than household pets, as long as the pets are not kept for commercial purposes.

l. Control of garbage and refuse disposal.

NOTE:

This type of restriction generally provides that each owner must keep garbage in sanitary containers, and prohibits any lot from being used to dump or store rubbish.

m. Approval of water supply system.

NOTE:

A water supply covenant will typically require that the owner obtain the local water authority's approval before installing the system.

n. Approval of sewage disposal system.

NOTE:

A sewage disposal covenant will typically require that the owner obtain the local health authority's approval before installing the system.

o. Approval of solar energy system.

NOTE:

Restrictions that effectively prohibit or restrict the installation of a solar energy system are void [Civ. Code § 714(a)]. However, it is permissible to impose reasonable restrictions on solar energy systems. "Reasonable restrictions" are those that do not significantly increase the cost of the system or significantly decrease its efficiency or specified performance, or that allow for an alternative system of comparable cost, efficiency, and energy conservation benefits [Civ. Code § 714(b); see Civ. Code § 714(d) (definitions of "significantly" and "solar energy system")]. For these purposes, a solar energy system must meet applicable standards and requirements imposed by state and local permitting authorities [Civ. Code § 714(c)(1)]. A solar energy system for heating water must be certified by the Solar Rating Certification Corporation (SRCC) or other nationally recognized certification agencies. SRCC is a nonprofit third party supported by the United States Department of Energy. The certification must be for the entire solar energy system and installation [Civ. Code § 714(c)(2)]. A solar energy system for producing electricity must also meet all applicable safety and performance standards established by the National Electrical Code, the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers, and accredited testing laboratories such as Underwriters Laboratories and, where applicable, rules of the Public Utilities Commission regarding safety and reliability [Civ. Code § 714(c)(2)]. Whenever approval is required for the installation or use of a solar energy system, the application for approval must be processed and approved by the appropriate approving entity in the same manner as an application for approval of an architectural modification to the property, and may not be willfully avoided or delayed [see Civ. Code § 714(e)(1)]. For an approving entity that is a homeowners' association [see Civ. Code § 1351(a) (definition)] and is not a public entity, the approval or denial of an application must be in writing. If an application is not denied in writing within 60 days from the date of receipt of the application, the application must be deemed approved, unless that delay is the result of a reasonable request for additional information [Civ. Code § 714(e)(2)].

p. Provision for protective screening.

NOTE:

This type of restriction is intended to provide for walls, fences, and plants to shield the subdivision from busy streets or highways, or other conditions from which the residents seek view and noise protection. These screens are also intended to provide a measure of privacy between adjoining lots. The owners of the affected lots are generally responsible for maintaining the screens.

q. Protection of slope control areas.

NOTE:

Slope control area restrictions are intended to maintain the integrity of inclined areas too steep or unstable to be able safely to support construction. This can be achieved by prohibiting any construction within the affected area, maintaining drainage patterns, and requiring planting that will prevent excessive erosion.

r. Maintaining sight distance at intersections.

NOTE:

This type of restriction is intended to provide adequate lines of sight at intersections, to allow drivers to see traffic approaching from intersecting streets. This goal can be achieved by preventing plants, walls, fences, or signs from being placed in the restricted area.

s. Maintenance of open space near parks and water courses.

NOTE:

An open-space restriction is intended to maintain easy access to, and a pleasant appearance of, park space, and to prevent water courses from blockage due to dumped material.

t. Architectural control.

NOTE:

The purpose of an architectural control covenant is to ensure that all structures in a subdivision are of high-quality construction, are of harmonious design and construction, and are placed carefully in relation to each other and the topography. This can be achieved by establishing an architectural review committee, which will first approve designs and placement before construction or alteration. To be valid, the covenant should set forth the standards and procedures the committee will employ in reviewing applications. Any disapproval by the committee must be reasonable [see Palos Verdes Homes Assn. v. Rodman (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 324, 328, 227 Cal. Rptr. 81 ; see also § 28C.31].

u. Specific design criteria.

NOTE:

In custom-home subdivisions, this type of covenant may be included to require houses to include specified common elements, such as general design type, construction material, size, roof design and construction, color, ornamentation such as walls, lamps, and other fixtures, and landscaping.

2. In addition to the applicable covenants specified in Paragraph 1, above, include following general terms in agreement:

NOTE:

These general terms apply to both standard and custom-home subdivisions.

a. Description of property.

NOTE:

The property to be affected by the covenants, and the land to be benefited, should be specifically described, including the legal description [Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 349, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P. 2d 1314 ; see Civ. Code § 1468(a)].

b. Description of parties.

NOTE:

The agreement should name the parties to the agreement, state that they and the successive owners are expressly bound for the benefit of the land owned by, granted by, or granted to the covenantee [see Civ. Code § 1468(b)], and state that the agreement binds all purchasers and their successors [Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 349, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P. 2d 1314] .

c. Purpose of agreement.

NOTE:

The agreement must establish a common plan for the ownership of property in the subdivision and impose specific restrictions as part of that common plan [Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 349, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P. 2d 1314] . To satisfy statutory requirements for covenants that run with the land, the agreement should state that the purpose of the agreement is to create covenants that run with the land for the benefit of all current and future owners [see Civ. Code § 1468], and that the acts specified in each covenant relate to the use, repair, maintenance, or improvement of, or payment of taxes and assessments on, the land or some part of it [see Civ. Code § 1468(c)].

d. Term of agreement.

NOTE:

The agreement should explicitly state that all of its covenants and restrictions are to be binding on all purchasers and their successors [Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 349, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P. 2d 1314] . To satisfy statutory requirements for covenants that run with the land, the agreement should state that the covenants are to run with the land and will be binding on all parties and all persons claiming under them for a specified period from the date the covenants are recorded [see Civ. Code § 1468(c)]. The agreement may also provide that the covenants will be automatically extended for successive periods unless an instrument signed by a majority of the owners agrees to change the covenants.

e. Enforcement provision.

NOTE:

This type of provision may provide that enforcement will be by proceedings at law or in equity against any person who violates or attempts to violate any covenant. Enforcement may be by injunction as well as monetary damages.

f. Severability provision.

NOTE:

This provision should state that if any provision of the agreement is found to be unenforceable, the remainder of the agreement will remain in full force and effect, as if the unenforceable provision had never been included.

3. For agreement for mutual restrictive covenants among adjoining landowners [see § 28C.210]:

NOTE:

Because it may be drafted for a specific purpose, an agreement for mutual restrictive covenants among owners of existing property may not be as comprehensive as a declaration of restrictions for a subdivision, and may contain only certain specific covenants.

a. Choose appropriate restrictive covenants [see P 1, above].

b. Include applicable general provisions [see P 2, above].

PART IV. FORMS
A. Declarations of Restrictions

12-28C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28C.200

§ 28C.200 Declaration of Restrictions for Standard Residential Subdivision

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a declaration of restrictions intended to provide the restrictive covenants essential to the sound development of a proposed residential area. This form is meant to be used in a standard residential subdivision in which the houses are built by the developer and then sold. In subdivisions in which the developer performs all phases of work, including building and selling homes, the restrictions are generally not very extensive. This is because the developer is able to control the design of the individual homes. For a form containing significantly more restrictive declarations of restrictions for use in a custom-home subdivision in which each house is built separately by the property owner, see Section 28C.201. For a larger subdivision including park, business, and civic areas, additional covenants would be necessary. The covenants in this form should be scrutinized to determine whether they meet the particular goals of the intended development or require modification.

In order to be binding on all subsequent purchasers, the declaration must be recorded prior to the first sale of any home, lot, or other interest in the subdivision [see Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 349, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P. 2d 1314 ; see also [b], below].

For a guide to drafting a declaration of restrictions, with discussion of the effect of many of the covenants presented in this form, see Section 28C.130.

[b] Enforcement of Restrictive Covenants

[i] Recorded CC&Rs for Subdivision

If a declaration establishing a common plan for the ownership of property in a subdivision and containing restrictions upon the use of the property as part of the common plan, is recorded before the execution of the contract of sale, describes the property it is to govern, and states that it is to bind all purchasers and their successors, subsequent purchasers who have constructive notice of the recorded declaration are deemed to intend and agree to be bound by, and to accept the benefits of, the common plan. The restrictions are not unenforceable merely because they are not additionally cited in a deed or other document at the time of the sale [Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 349, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P. 2d 1314 (disapproving prior appellate court cases that required at least some reference in the deed to the recorded restrictions)].

Recorded restrictions are not effective, that is, they do not "spring into existence," until an actual conveyance subject to them is made. Therefore, the developer of a subdivision could modify or rescind any recorded restrictions before the first sale [Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 365, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P. 2d 1314] .

The rules summarized above and announced by the California Supreme Court in 1995 in the Citizens case, are retroactive [see Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 367-368, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P. 2d 1314] . For further discussion of the Citizens case, see Section 28C.12A.

[ii] Covenants Running With the Land and Equitable Servitudes

By adopting its rule in Citizens [see [i], above], the California Supreme Court eliminated or at least minimized the necessity of characterizing restrictions and covenants (CC&Rs) for a subdivision as either covenants running with the land or as equitable servitudes, at least with respect to the issue of whether recorded CC&Rs are binding on subsequent purchasers. The Court declined to "merge" the doctrines of covenants running with the land and equitable servitudes into a single doctrine (as some commentators have suggested be done). However, it did state that with respect to the issue before it, which involved how a covenant is created, it saw no difference between covenants and equitable servitudes, and expressly stated that the rule it was adopting (summarized in [i], above) applies equally to both [Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 354-355, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P. 2d 1314] .

For a discussion of the enforcement of covenants and restrictions as either covenants running with the land or as equitable servitudes, see §§ 28C.13-28C.16.

[iii] Requirement That Covenant Not Violate Public Policy

Generally, a restrictive covenant is unenforceable if it violates public policy. A trial court has the equitable power to refuse enforcement of a restrictive covenant if the court finds the covenant so unreasonable that it violates public policy. A restrictive covenant is so unreasonable as to violate public policy when the harm caused by the restriction is so disproportionate to the benefit produced by performance of the covenant that the promise ought not to be enforced [Hotz v. Rich (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1048, 1057, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 219 ; see Restatement of Property § 539 (Comment f)].

For example, restrictions intended to create a monopoly are void [Burdell v. Grandi (1907) 152 Cal. 376, 383, 92 P. 1022] . Any covenant is void if it purports to limit the acquisition, use, or occupation of real property because of the user's or occupier's race, color, religion, ancestry, sex, national origin, disability, medical condition, marital status, or sexual orientation [Civ. Code § 53(b); see Civ. Code § 51(b), (e) (listings of protected characteristics)]. Any deed, or other written instrument relating to title to real property, containing any provision that would be void under Civ. Code § 782(a) [see § 28C.37], and any written covenant, condition, or restriction annexed to or made a part of any such deed or instrument, by reference or otherwise, must be deemed revised to omit that provision [Civ. Code § 782.5(a)]. Age restrictions are enforceable only in specialized care facilities for the elderly; otherwise they violate the Unruh Civil Rights Act [Civ. Code § 51; Park Redlands Covenant Control v. Simon (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 87, 94-95, 226 Cal. Rptr. 199] .

In addition, a restriction placed on the installation or use of a solar energy system must be reasonable. Reasonable restrictions are those that do not significantly increase the cost of the system or significantly decrease its efficiency or specified performance, or that allow for an alternative system of comparable cost, efficiency, and energy conservation benefits [Civ. Code § 714; see § 28C.35)]. A restriction may not prohibit the sale, lease, rent, or use of real property merely on the basis that a structure intended for occupancy on the property was constructed at an offsite facility or factory, and subsequently moved or transported in sections or modules to the property. However, modular structures are otherwise subject to the same restrictions as all other structures [Civ. Code § 714.5].

[iv] Action for Violation of Restrictions

An action for violation of a restriction, as defined in Civ. Code § 784, must be commenced within five years [Code Civ. Proc. § 336(b)]. Under Section 784, "restriction" means a limitation on, or provision affecting, the use of real property in a declaration, deed, or other instrument, whether in the form of a covenant, equitable servitude, condition subsequent, negative easement, or other form of restriction [Civ. Code § 784]. For additional discussion, see § 28C.16A.

[c] Construction of Restrictive Covenants

Because they limit the use and transfer of property, restrictive covenants are construed strictly against the person seeking to enforce them and in favor of the unencumbered use of the property [Terry v. James (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 438, 443, 140 Cal. Rptr. 201 ; Biagini v. Hyde (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 877, 880, 83 Cal. Rptr. 875] . The primary object, however, in construing all contracts, is to effectuate the legitimate desires of the covenanting parties [Hannula v. Hacienda Homes (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 442, 444-445, 211 P.2d 302] . The intent of the parties and the object of the deed or restriction should govern, giving the instrument a just and fair interpretation [Lincoln Sav. & Loan Assn. v. Riviera Estates Assn. (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 449, 463, 87 Cal. Rptr. 150] . In ascertaining the intent of the language expressing the covenant, the court will look to the purpose for which the restriction was imposed [Smith v. North (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 245, 248, 53 Cal. Rptr. 94] .

[d] Specific Restrictive Covenants

[i] Residential Purposes Only

This form contains a covenant restricting the use of property to residential purposes [see [2], P 1, below]. This covenant precludes any business use of the restricted property. For example, a property owner may be enjoined by the other homeowners in the restricted tract from running a "boarding house" in violation of such a covenant [see Seaton v. Clifford (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 46, 51, 100 Cal. Rptr. 779 ; see also § 28C.30].

[ii] Minimum Dwelling and Lot Specifications

This form contains covenants establishing the minimum dwelling cost, quality, and size, the location of the dwelling on a lot, and the minimum lot area and width [see [2], PP 2-4, below]. The covenant establishing minimum dwelling cost, quality, and size maintains property values by protecting desirable dwellings from the encroachment of buildings below the standards of residential character originally established. Minimum front and side yard regulations are essential to the appearance of the neighborhood and to provide light, air, and privacy. Setbacks from the rear lot line are typically required because, generally, dwellings at the rear of lots have had an adverse effect on the successful use of the remaining land in a subdivision and in maintaining its highest desirable value. A restrictive covenant prohibiting the resubdivision of lots is generally considered inadvisable because it is so inflexible; it is better to control lot size by specifying the minimum width and lot area.

[iii] Protective Screening

This form contains a covenant restricting the use of protective screening to certain areas [see [2], P 14, below]. Protective screening secures a reasonably effective physical barrier both between residential properties and adjoining business uses and between arterial streets and lots backing into them; it also minimizes adverse views at block ends. Fences, walls, and/or plant material may be used for protective screening.

[iv] Architectural Control

This form contains a covenant restricting development to that approved by an architectural control committee [see [2], PP 18-20, below]. The purpose of the covenant is maintenance of property values through thoughtful development of the community accomplished by an architectural control committee's review of plans and specifications of buildings, fences, walls, and planting as to location and exterior design [see, e.g., Weston v. Foreman (1952) 108 Cal. App. 2d 686, 239 P.2d 513] . The committee should review both new construction and future alterations.

Initially, the committee will probably be composed of the original owner or owners. An owner who no longer owns any portion of the development loses all right to approve or disapprove of plans [Bramwell v. Kuhle (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 767, 775-777, 6 Cal. Rptr. 839] . Both the approval and disapproval of plans must be in good faith [Bramwell v. Kuhle (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 767, 779, 6 Cal. Rptr. 839] and must be reasonable [Palos Verdes Homes Assn. v. Rodman (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 324, 328, 227 Cal. Rptr. 81] .

For further discussion of covenants requiring approval before construction or alteration, see Section 28C.31.

[v] Property Owners' Maintenance Association

If adequate public maintenance of streets, parks, or other facilities is not available, it is advisable to establish a property owners' maintenance association or other acceptable community maintenance organization with the powers to provide maintenance, to assess the benefited property owners at a reasonable rate, and to collect such assessments; however, this power of assessment will bring the development within the definition of a "planned development" and make it subject to the Davis-Stirling Common Interest Development Act [see Civ. Code § 1350 et seq.; see also § 28C.17[2][d]]. The association can also provide an effective means of obtaining adherence to protective covenants. The architectural control committee may be a part of the association. For articles and bylaws of an owners' association, see Ch. 13A, Nonprofit Unincorporated Associations .

[e] Procedure for Adopting Declaration

The drafting and recording of a declaration of restrictions is only part of a much larger transaction involving the subdivision of a tract of land. For a transaction guide covering the entire transaction context, see Ch. 30, Subdivision Regulation, § 30.100 et seq.

This declaration should be executed by the owner of the subdivision, acknowledged [see Civ. Code §§ 1180-1207], and recorded in the office of the recorder in each county in which the land is located [Civ. Code §§ 1169, 1468(d)]. Recording the declaration prior to the sale or other transfer of any home, lot, or other interest in the subdivision gives constructive notice of its contents to subsequent purchasers and mortgagees [Civ. Code § 1213; see Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 355, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P. 2d 1314 ; § 28C.12A]. At least for all property described, referred to, and made subject to the recorded declaration, it is not necessary to also refer to the restrictions in the deeds at the time of sale to subsequent purchasers of interests in the subject property [see Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 349, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P. 2d 1314 (disapproving prior appellate court cases that required at least some reference in the deed to the recorded restrictions); see § 28C.12A]. Notwithstanding this rule, practitioners may elect to refer to the restrictions in individual deeds. For a deed that refers to recorded restrictions and incorporates them by reference, see Section 28C.220. For further discussion of notice, acknowledgment, and recording, see Chapter 27, Deeds and Recording .

DECLARATION OF RESTRICTIONS

This DECLARATION OF RESTRICTIONS is made on _____[date], by _____[name of owner of subdivision] ("Declarant").

WHEREAS, Declarant is the owner of the following real property ("the Property"): _____[describe tract with particularity either in this declaration or by reference to a recorded tract or subdivision map including lot numbers]; and

WHEREAS, Declarant intends to sell the above described property, restricting it in accordance with a common plan designed to preserve the value and residential qualities of the land, for the benefit of its future ownersand their successors.

NOW, THEREFORE, Declarant declares that the Property described above is held and will be held, transferred, encumbered, used, sold, conveyed, leased, and occupied subject to the covenants, restrictions, and limitations set forth in this Declaration, all of which are declared and agreed to be in furtherance of a common plan for the subdivision, improvement, use, and sale of the Property, and are established and agreed on for the purpose of enhancing and protecting the value, desirability, and attractiveness of the Property and every part of it. All of the restrictions, covenants, and limitations will run with the land and will be binding on all parties having or acquiring any right, title, or interest in the Property described above or any part thereof, and will inure to the benefit of all of the Property and the future owners of that Property. Each grantee of a conveyance or purchaser under a contract or agreement of sale covering any right, title, or interest in any part of the Property, by accepting a deed or a contract of sale or agreement of purchase, accepts the document subject to, and agrees to be bound by, any and all of the restrictions, covenants, and limitations set forth in this Declaration.

Land Use and Building Type

1. No lot may be used except for residential purposes. No building may be erected, altered, placed, or permitted to remain on any lot other than one detached single-family dwelling not to exceed two and one-half stories in height and a private garage for not more than two cars.

Dwelling Cost, Quality, and Size

2. No dwelling will be permitted on any lot at a cost of less than $ _____, based on cost levels prevailing on the date these covenants are recorded. It is the intention and purpose of this covenant to assure that all dwellings are of a quality of workmanship and materials substantially the same or better than that which can be produced on the date these covenants are recorded at the minimum cost stated herein for the minimum permitted dwelling size. The ground floor area of the main structure, exclusive of one-story open porches and garages, must be not less than _____ square feet for a one-story dwelling, nor less than _____ square feet for a dwelling of more than one story.

Building Location

3. (a) No building may be located on any lot nearer to the front lot line or nearer to the side street line than the minimum building setback lines shown on the recorded _____[specify, e.g., subdivision map]. In any event, no building may be located on any lot nearer than _____ feet to the front lot line, or nearer than _____feet to any side street line, except that on all lots abutting _____[specify names of collector and arterial streets], no building may be located nearer than _____ and _____ feet respectively to the street property lines of those streets.

(b) No building may be located nearer than _____ feet to an interior lot line, except that no side yard is required for a garage or other permitted accessory building located _____ feet or more from the minimum building setback line. No dwelling may be located on any interior lot nearer than _____ feet to the rear lot line.

(c) For the purposes of this covenant, eaves, steps, and open porches will not be considered as a part of a building, provided, however, that this will not be construed to permit any portion of a building on a lot to encroach on another lot.

(d) _____[Specify any exceptions by lot number and permitted minimum].

[If greater flexibility is necessary in controlling house locations on steep topography, add:]

(e) With written approval of the Architectural Control Committee, a one-story attached garage may be located nearer to a street than above provided, but not nearer than _____ feet to any street line, where the natural elevation of the lot along the established minimum building setback line is more than either _____[e.g., eight] feet above or _____[e.g., four] feet below the established roadway level along the abutting street and where, in the opinion of the Committee, the location and architectural design of the proposed garage will not detract materially from the appearance and value of other properties. Furthermore, under similar conditions and approval, a dwelling may be located nearer to a street than above provided, but not nearer than _____ feet to any street line.

[Continue with the following:]

Lot Area and Width

4. No dwelling may be erected or placed on any lot having a width of less than _____ feet at the minimum building setback line, nor may any dwelling be erected or placed on any lot having an area of less than _____ square feet, except that a dwelling may be erected or placed on lots numbered _____ as shown on the recorded _____[specify, e.g., subdivision map].

Easements

5. Easements for installation and maintenance of utilities and drainage facilities are reserved as shown on the recorded _____[specify, e.g., subdivision map] and over the rear _____[e.g., five] feet of each lot. Within these easements, no structure, planting, or other material may be placed or permitted to remain that may damage or interfere with the installation and maintenance of utilities, or that may change the direction of flow of drainage channels in the easements, or that may obstruct or retard the flow of water through drainage channels in the easements. The easement area of each lot and all improvements in it will be maintained continuously by the owner of the lot, except for those improvements for which a public authority or utility company is responsible.

Nuisances

6. No noxious or offensive activity may be carried on on any lot, nor may anything be done on any lot that may be or may become an annoyance or nuisance to the neighborhood.

Temporary Structures

7. No structure of a temporary character, trailer, basement, tent, shack, garage, barn, or other outbuilding may be used on any lot at any time as a residence either temporarily or permanently.

Signs

8. No sign of any kind may be displayed to the public view on any lot except one professional sign of not more than one square foot, one sign of not more than five square feet advertising the property for sale or rent, or signs used by a builder to advertise the property during the construction and sales period.

Oil and Mining Operations

9. No oil drilling, oil development operations, oil refining, quarrying, or mining operations of any kind will be permitted on or in any lot, nor are oil wells, tanks, tunnels, mineral excavations, or shafts to be permitted on or in any lot. No derrick or other structure designed for use in boring for oil or natural gas may be erected, maintained, or permitted on any lot.

Livestock and Poultry

10. No animals, livestock, or poultry of any kind may be raised, bred, or kept on any lot, except that dogs, cats, or other household pets may be kept provided that they are not kept, bred, or maintained for any commercial purpose.

Garbage and Refuse Disposal

11. No lot may be used or maintained as a dumping ground for rubbish. Trash, garbage, or other waste must be kept in sanitary containers. All incinerators or other equipment for the storage or disposal of such material must be kept in a clean and sanitary condition.

Water Supply

12. No individual water-supply system will be permitted on any lot unless the system is designed, located, constructed, and equipped in accordance with the requirements, standards, and recommendations of _____[specify, e.g., the state or local public health authority]. Approval of a water-supply system as installed must be obtained from the appropriate authority.

Sewage Disposal

13. No individual sewage-disposal system will be permitted on any lot unless the system is designed, located, constructed, and equipped in accordance with the requirements, standards, and recommendations of _____[specify, e.g., the state or local public health authority]. Approval of a sewage-disposal system as installed must be obtained from the appropriate authority.

Protective Screening

14. Protective screening areas are established as shown on the recorded _____[specify, e.g., subdivision map], including a _____ -foot strip of land on the residential lots along the property lines of _____[specify arterial streets, other streets having adverse influences, business areas, etc.]. Except as otherwise provided in this Declaration regarding street intersections under Paragraph 16, "Sight Distance at Intersections," planting, fences, or walls will be maintained throughout the entire length of these areas by the owner or owners of the lots at their own expense to form an effective screen for the protection of the residential area. No building or structure except a screen fence or wall or utilities or drainage facilities may be placed or permitted to remain in these areas. No vehicular access over the area will be permitted except for the purpose of installation and maintenance of screening, utilities, and drainage facilities.

Slope Control Areas

15. Slope control areas are reserved as shown on the plan titled "_____," dated _____, and recorded as a part of these covenants. Affected lots are _____ and _____, as shown on the recorded _____[specify, e.g., subdivision map]. Within these slope control areas no structure, planting, or other material may be placed or permitted to remain or other activities undertaken that may damage or interfere with established slope ratios, create erosion or sliding problems, or that may change the direction of flow of drainage channels or obstruct or retard the flow of water through drainage channels. The slope control areas of each lot and all improvements in them must be maintained continuously by the owner of the lot, except for those improvements for which a public authority or utility company is responsible.

Sight Distance at Intersections

16. No fence, wall, hedge, or shrub planting that obstructs sight lines at elevations between _____[e.g., two and six] feet above the roadways may be placed or permitted to remain on any corner lot within the triangular area formed by the street property lines and a line connecting them at points _____[e.g., 25] feet from the intersection of the street lines, or in the case of a rounded property corner from the intersection of the street property lines extended. The same sight-line limitations apply on any lot within _____[e.g., 10] feet from the intersection of a street property line with the edge of a driveway or alley pavement. No tree may be permitted to remain within these distances of these intersections unless the foliage line is maintained at sufficient height to prevent obstruction of the sight lines.

Land Near Parks and Water Courses

17. No building may be placed nor may any material or refuse be placed or stored on any lot within _____[e.g., 20] feet of the property line of any park or edge of any open water course, except that clean fill may be placed nearer, provided that the natural water course is not altered or blocked by the fill.

Architectural Control

18. No building may be erected, placed, or altered on any lot until the construction plans and specifications and a plan showing the location of the structure have been approved by the Architectural Control Committee as to quality of workmanship and materials, harmony of external design with existing structures, and as to location with respect to topography and finish grade elevation. No fence or wall may be erected, placed, or altered on any lot nearer to any street than the minimum building setback line unless similarly approved by the Committee.

Architectural Control Committee

19. The Architectural Control Committee is composed of _____[specify names and addresses of members, with a minimum of three]. A majority of the committee may designate a representative to act for it. In the event of death or resignation of any member of the committee, the remaining members will have full authority to designate a successor. Neither the members of the committee, nor its designated representative, will be entitled to any compensation for services performed pursuant to this covenant. At any time, the then record owners of a majority of the lots will have the power through a duly recorded written instrument to change the membership of the committee or to withdraw from the committee or restore to it any of its powers and duties.

Committee Procedures

20. The committee's approval or disapproval as required in these covenants must be in writing. In the event the committee, or its designated representative, fails to approve or disapprove within _____[e.g., 30] days after plans and specifications have been submitted to it, or in any event, if no suit to enjoin the construction has been commenced before the completion of construction, approval will not be required and the related covenants will be deemed to have been fully complied with.

Term

21. These covenants are to run with the land and will be binding on all parties and all persons claiming under them for a period of _____[e.g., 30] years from the date these covenants are recorded, after which time the covenants will be automatically extended for successive periods of _____[e.g., 10] years unless an instrument signed by a majority of the then owners of the lots has been recorded, agreeing to change the covenants in whole or in part.

Enforcement

22. Enforcement will be by proceedings at law or in equity against any person or persons violating or attempting to violate any covenant either to restrain violation or to recover damages.

Severability

23. Invalidation of any one of these covenants by judgment or court order will not affect any of the other provisions, which will remain in full force and effect.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, Declarant has executed this Declaration of Restrictions on the date first above written.

DIVISION II: REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 28C COVENANTS, CONDITIONS, AND RESTRICTIONS
PART IV. FORMS
A. Declarations of Restrictions

12-28C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 28C.201

§ 28C.201 Declaration of Restrictions for Custom-Home Subdivision

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a declaration of restrictions applicable to a custom-home subdivision development in which the developer performs necessary site preparation but does not construct the homes. The developer will market the lots to individual owners and speculating builders who will then design and construct homes according to their own specifications, but within the limits of the declaration. This form contains extensive conditions and restrictions due to the possible variety of architectural styles in the development. These covenants should be scrutinized to determine whether they meet the particular goals of the intended development or require modification. In subdivisions in which the developer performs all phases of work, including building and selling homes, the restrictions are not usually as extensive as in this form. This is because the developer is able to control the design of the individual homes. For a declaration of restrictions applicable to a standard residential subdivision in which the developer has built the homes, see Section 28C.200.

Recording a declaration that imposes a common plan for the subdivision prior to the sale or other transfer of any lot or other interest in the subdivision gives constructive notice of its contents to subsequent purchasers and mortgagees [Civ. Code § 1213; see Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 355, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P. 2d 1314 ; § 28C.12A]. At least for all property described, referred to, and made subject to restrictions contained in a recorded declaration for a subdivision, it is not necessary to also refer to the restrictions in the deeds at the time of sale to subsequent purchasers of interests in the subdivision [see Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 349, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P. 2d 1314 (disapproving prior appellate court cases that required at least some reference in the deed to the recorded restrictions); see also § 28C.12A (detailed discussion of Citizens case)]. Notwithstanding this rule, practitioners may elect to refer to the restrictions in individual deeds. For a deed that does refer to and incorporate by reference recorded restrictions, see Section 28C.220.

For a general discussion of the validity and enforcement of restrictive covenants, see Section 28C.200[1]. For a guide to drafting a declaration of restrictions, with discussion of the effect of many of the covenants presented in this form, see Section 28C.130.

[b] Effect of Specific Restrictions

[i] Posting of Signs

A provision that denies or abridges an owner's right to sell or lease the property is unreasonable; this includes a prohibition against the posting of signs [see Civ. Code §§ 712, 713]. This form provides that the posting of a specified sign for the purpose of sale or lease is exempted from the general prohibition on posting signs [see [2], P 3.07(e), below].

[ii] Action Against Architectural and Planning Board

Despite exculpatory clauses in a declaration [see [2], P 6.03, below], an owner may be able to sue for breach of fiduciary duty and violation of the declaration [see Cohen v. Kite Hill Community Assn. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 642, 654, 191 Cal. Rptr. 209 (committee approved construction of fence that blocked plaintiff's view)].

[iii] Other Specific Restrictions

For discussion of the effect of other commonly used restrictive covenants, see Sections 28C.30 through 28C.38 and 28C.200[1].

PREAMBLE

The intent and purpose of this document is _____[describe, e.g., to preserve the inherent natural beauty of our area and to foster in the development of _____ (name of development) the blending of nature's attributes with the desire for a better place to live].

The quality of the development is dependent on the people and their attitudes towards the community in which they live. The covenants contained in this declaration are directed towards the goal of creating a fine residential community and creating an environment in which people will be proud to buy a home. The administration and enforcement of these covenants will be the responsibility of _____[name of declarant] ("Declarant") and its successors and assigns. Architectural control will be the responsibility of the Architectural and Planning Board appointed by Declarant, which will control construction of the homes proposed within the development for the mutual benefit of all lot owners.

[If declarant has caused the formation of a maintenance district, add:]

Declarant has caused to be formed _____[specify, e.g., a County Open Space Service and Maintenance District (the "District")], which will maintain the back slopes of the lots within the subdivision, where landscaping, sprinklers, and lights will have been installed before sale of the property. This maintenance will be carried on by the County, with funds provided by property taxes on the property within the subdivision. In addition to landscape maintenance, the street lights, yard lights, street trees, and trash collection will be the responsibility of the District. The lot owners will have the right to make recommendations to the County regarding the responsibilities of the District, and also to enforce these covenants.

[Continue with the following:]

DECLARATION AND ESTABLISHMENT OF PROTECTIVE COVENANTS AND RESTRICTIONS

_____[NAME OF DEVELOPMENT]

THIS DECLARATION is made on _____[date], by _____[name of declarant] ("Declarant").

WHEREAS, Declarant owns certain real property described in Article 1 of this Declaration; and

WHEREAS, Declarant intends by this Declaration to establish restrictions, limitations, and covenants that run with the land and will be binding on all parties (and their successors) having or acquiring any right, title, or interest in the real property described in Article 1; and

WHEREAS, it is the desire and intention of Declarant to sell the property described in Article 1 and to impose on it mutual, beneficial restrictions under a general plan or scheme of improvement for the benefit of all the real property described in Article 1 and the future owners of that real property;

NOW, THEREFORE, Declarant declares that all of the property described in Article 1 is held and will be held, conveyed, hypothecated, encumbered, leased, rented, used, occupied, and improved subject to the following limitations, restrictions, covenants, and reservations, all of which are declared and agreed to be in furtherance of a plan for the subdivision, improvement, use, and sale of the property, and are established and agreed on for the purpose of enhancing and protecting the value, desirability, and attractiveness of the property and every part of it. All of the limitations, restrictions, and covenants will run with the land and will be binding on all parties having or acquiring any right, title, or interest in the property described in Article 1 or any part thereof, and will inure to the benefit of all of the property described in Article 1 and the future owners of that property. Each grantee of a conveyance or purchaser under a contract or agreement of sale covering any right, title, or interest in the real property described in Article 1, by accepting a deed or a contract of sale or agreement of purchase, accepts the document subject to, and agrees to be bound by, any and all of the restrictions, covenants, and limitations set forth in this Declaration.

ARTICLE 1. PROPERTY SUBJECT TO DECLARATION

1.01. The property subject to this Declaration is known as _____[name of development], and is more particularly described as:

_____ [describe land with particularity by reference to recorded maps; lot numbers should be included].

ARTICLE 2. DEFINITIONS

2.01. (a) "Lot" means one of the numbered parcels of real property on the map referred to in Article 1.

(b) "The property" means the property described in Article 1 or any portion of that property.

(c) "Map" means the recorded map referred to in Article 1.

(d) "Setback" means the minimum distance between the residence or other structure referred to and a given street or line.

(e) "Building limits" means the area defined by the setback from the street and side lot lines and a building limit line across the rear of the lots.

(f) "Street" means any street, highway, or other thoroughfare shown on the Map of the property, whether designated on the Map as street, avenue, boulevard, place, drive, road, terrace, way, lane, circle, or otherwise.

(g) "Building site" means a single lot as shown on the Map of the property or a parcel consisting of contiguous portions of any two or more contiguous lots, or all of one lot and parts of one or more lots adjacent thereto, unless the context and circumstances otherwise require; any building site, however, is subject to the prior written approval of the Architectural and Planning Board.

[If declarant has caused the formation of a maintenance district, add:]

(h) "Maintenance District Easement" means the rear slopes of the lots, certain side lot easements, islands, and other areas to be deeded to the _____[name of maintenance district] by Declarant for maintenance purposes.

[Continue with the following:]

ARTICLE 3. BASIC RESTRICTIONS

Use of Property

3.01. No building may be erected, constructed, altered, or maintained on any of the lots other than a single family residence (including guests and household servants) with customary and suitable outbuilding as permitted by law and the Architectural and Planning Board ("Board").

Location of Structures

3.02. Construction of any and every nature must be confined to and take place only within the building limits of each building site. The location and design of swimming pools, covered gazebos, and other outbuildings, as well as the main structures on each of the building sites must be approved in writing by the Board before any construction or preparation for construction on any building site.

Resubdivision of Lots

3.03. None of the above-described lots may be resubdivided or split into lots of a lesser size than the size of the original lot without the prior written consent of the Declarant.

Height Limitations

3.04. No structures may be placed or landscape materials allowed to grow on any of the lots in a manner that substantially impairs the view from adjacent lots. The term "structures" includes fences.

Changing Grades, Slopes, and Drainage

3.05. No change in the established grade or elevation of the lots, and no change in the established slope or ratio of the cuts and fills, which alters established drainage patterns will be permitted without the prior written consent of the Board and without the prior written approval of the _____[specify governmental body, e.g., County Building Department]. For the purpose of this Declaration, established drainage patterns are defined as the drainage patterns existing at the time the grading of the property was completed in conformity with the county-approved grading plan. No drainage will be allowed to drain over any banks.

Declarant reserves the right to make any and all cuts and fills on the property and on the building sites included on the property, and to do such grading as in its judgment may be necessary to grade streets and lots designated or delineated on the Map of the property or any part thereof.

Each of the owners of the lots covenants to permit free access by Declarant and owners of adjacent lots to slopes or drainageways located on his or her property when access is required for the maintenance or permanent stabilization of the slopes, maintenance of the drainage facilities, or protection and use of property other than the lot on which the slope or drainageway is located.

Wells, Derricks, and Mines

3.06. No wells for the production of, or from which there is produced, water, oil, or gas may be operated on any lot, nor may any machinery, appliance, or structure be placed, operated, or maintained on any lot for use in connection with any trading, manufacturing, or repairing business. No mining or quarrying operations of any kind will be permitted on or in any lot, nor will oil wells, tanks, tunnels, mineral excavations, or shafts be permitted on any lot. Declarant reserves all crude oil, petroleum, gas, asphaltum, and all kindred substances and other minerals under and in the land, and all surface entry rights.

Nuisance and Nonconformity

3.07. (a) Nuisance. No noxious or offensive trade or activity may be carried on on the property, nor may anything be done on the property that may be or may become an annoyance or nuisance to the owners or occupants of the property, including but not limited to storage of any materials that might create an insect pest control problem, or the ill-maintenance of any plant or landscape materials.

(b) Livestock. No farm animals, livestock, poultry, or fish of any kind may be raised, bred, or kept on the property, except that dogs, cats, or other common household pets may be kept provided that they are not kept, bred, or maintained for any commercial purposes or in unreasonable quantities, and provided that they do not become a nuisance to the owners or occupants of the property. Pets must be kept within lot areas or on leash or tether when out of lot areas.

(c) Temporary Structures. No tents, shacks, trailers, basement, garage, or outbuildings may at any time be used on any lot as a residence, either temporarily or permanently, nor may any residence of a temporary character be constructed, placed, or erected on any lot.

(d) Fences. As to side yard fences, all lot lines must be kept free and open one to another and no fences will be permitted on any lot line except where, in the opinion of the Board, such a fence or enclosure as a structural, protective, or aesthetic feature of a design concept will contribute to the character of the area. As to rear yard fences, no fences will be permitted except on the pad level. [If declarant has caused the formation of a maintenance district, add: Rear yard fences are specifically prohibited within the Maintenance District Easement.]

(e) Signs.
