b. Delivery of policy to lender, either directly from borrower or through escrow.

NOTE:
A lender may not require a borrower under a loan secured by real property to provide hazard insurance in an amount exceeding the replacement value of the improvements on the property as established by the property insurer selected by the borrower [Civ. Code § 2955.5(a)]. The lender must give the borrower a written disclosure of this provision as soon as practicable and in any case before execution of any note or security documents [Civ. Code § 2955.5(b)]. For residential property, standard homeowner's package policies are usually acceptable.

10. Explain to client that lender may require use of tax agency service that will check and report payment and delinquencies of income and property taxes, and public improvement assessments and bonds that might be prior lien on property.

11. Explain general requirements of impound or trust fund accounts for payment of taxes and insurance premiums [see § 25.18].

12. Inform client of possible loan charges and closing costs, which may include:

a. Loan fee (setup or origination charge or points).

b. Credit report.

c. Appraisal report.

d. Drafting loan papers (note and trust deed or mortgage).

e. Notary fee for acknowledgment of trust deed.

f. Title insurance policy.

g. Escrow fees.

h. Recording fee for trust deed.

i. Tax service.

NOTE:
The amount of loan expenses will vary depending on the type of loan and the lender. When a loan is negotiated by a loan broker subject to regulation by the Real Estate Commissioner, the total loan costs, expenses, and interest [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10241(a)] are limited by statute [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 10242(a), 10245].

13. Prepare for closing and funding of loan.

a. Have borrower execute escrow instructions [see Ch. 26, Real Property Escrows] providing, among other things, for:

(1) Close of escrow to be contingent on obtaining loan of specified amount from particular lender.

(2) Payment of loan proceeds to seller.

(3) Payment of loan proceeds or other funds of borrower for all loan and transaction costs previously authorized by borrower.

b. Draft note and trust deed (or mortgage) [see Ch. 25A, Security Instruments for Real Estate Financing] or review them if drafted by escrow holder.

c. Have parties execute and acknowledge note and trust deed and arrange for certification of acknowledgments by authorized officer (for example, notary public) [see Gov. Code § 27287; Civ. Code § 1189].

NOTE:
This execution generally occurs at the offices of the escrow holder. However, in the case of larger transactions, it may take place at the offices of the lender or the attorney for the buyer or seller.

Generally, a lender will not charge interest on funds until they are disbursed, even if the note is signed before closing of escrow. Some lenders, when drafting the note, will leave the date for the commencement of interest blank, and then fill in the date of recordation of the trust deed. Others will agree to waive interest until closing. However, when there is some delay in paying out the funds, the lender may require that after a certain number of days from the date of the note, interest will be charged on the full amount of the note regardless of whether all of the loan proceeds have been disbursed.

For loans secured by a mortgage or trust deed on real property improved with one to four residential dwelling units, interest may not be charged for a period in excess of one day before recording of the mortgage or trust deed if the loan proceeds are paid into escrow, or if there is no escrow, the date on which the loan proceeds have been made available for withdrawal as a matter of right [Civ. Code § 2948.5(a); see Ins. Code § 12413.1(d) (withdrawal as matter of right)]. Interest may commence to accrue on the business day immediately preceding the day of recording if (1) the borrower affirmatively requests, and the lender agrees, that the recording will occur on Monday, or on a day immediately following a bank holiday, and (2) the borrower receives disclosure information concerning the amount of additional per diem interest charged to facilitate recording on Monday or the day following a holiday, as the case may be, and stating that it may be possible to avoid the additional per diem interest charge by recording the deed of trust on a day immediately following a business day, and the borrower acknowledges receipt of this information by signing a copy of the disclosure document before placing funds in escrow [Civ. Code § 2948.5(b)].

In any case, these provisions do not apply to loans made or negotiated by real estate brokers that are subject to Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242(c), which prohibits charging interest until the date the proceeds of the loan are made available to the lender or are deposited in escrow [Civ. Code § 2948.5(c)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 25A, Security Instruments for Real Estate Financing **.

§ 25.121 Payoff of Seller's Lender When Buyer Is Obtaining New Loan

1. Confirm that seller deposits escrow instructions by seller [see Ch. 26, Real Property Escrows] providing for payment of balance of seller's existing loan from funds deposited by buyer, and instructing escrow agent to obtain following items from lender:

a. Payoff demand from seller's lender showing balance due on loan [see §§ 25.253, 25.254; Ch. 25B, Subordination, Assumption, and Assignment].

b. Lender's request to trustee for reconveyance of trust deed [see Ch. 25C, Release and Reconveyance].

c. Note, trust deed, and insurance policies.

2. Verify deposit of escrow instructions by seller's lender that [see Ch. 26, Real Property Escrows]:

a. Provide for deposit by lender into escrow of documents described above.

b. Request escrow agent to do following when it is authorized and prepared to disburse balance due on loan and all other amounts due under note or trust deed:
(1) Record reconveyance (executed and acknowledged by trustee); and

(2) Return to seller note, trust deed, and any insurance policies in force.

3. Confirm that escrow holder, lender, and trustee perform their duties [see Ch. 25C, Release and Reconveyance].

4. Verify escrow agent's receipt of deed of full reconveyance from trustee [see Ch. 25C, Release and Reconveyance].

§ 25.122 Assumption of Seller's Obligation

NOTE:

A buyer of real property may assume (that is, agree to pay and discharge) an existing loan secured by the property as part of the purchase price. Although the assuming buyer becomes personally and primarily liable for the debt [Williams v. Naftzger (1894) 103 Cal. 438, 440, 37 P. 411], the seller remains liable as a surety for the buyer [Braun v. Crew (1920) 183 Cal. 728, 731, 192 P. 531] unless the lender agrees to a novation [see Civ. Code § 1530 et seq.] or agrees to release the seller from liability [see Civ. Code § 1541 et seq.]. In the event of a default when the seller has not been released from liability, the lender may sue either the seller or the assuming buyer; but the lender must generally first foreclose against the property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 726; see also Ch. 25D, Foreclosure].

The advantages of assumption are that the loan fee will generally be less than for a new loan, and the amount the buyer will have to pay for the lender's title insurance will be less. The interest on the loan may be less than current market rates but may be increased to the market rate as a condition of the assumption. If the seller has a large amount of equity in the property, a disadvantage of an assumption is that the borrower will be required to have a large down payment to cover the seller's equity.

Many lenders include a due-on-sale provision in their deeds of trust, under which they may declare the balance of the loan immediately due and payable on transfer of the property unless their consent is obtained. For a discussion of due-on-sale clauses, see Ch. 25A, Security Instruments for Real Estate Financing **.

1. Draft or review assumption agreement and escrow instructions [see Ch. 25B, Subordination, Assumption, and Assignment ; Ch. 26, Real Property Escrows].

2. Confirm that seller obtains statement from lender showing terms of loan and balance due [Civ. Code § 2943; see Ch. 25B, Subordination, Assumption, and Assignment].

NOTE:

Although the statement is primarily for the buyer's benefit, the seller must make the request. The lender may charge a limited fee for the statement [see Civ. Code § 2943(e)(6)].

Provisions in the assumption agreement concerning the balance of the note to be assumed usually specify an approximate balance. If the lender's statement shows a balance that is more or less than the amount specified in the agreement, the cash portion of the purchase price will usually have to be adjusted to compensate.

3. Advise client that lender may require any or all of following as conditions of assumption:

a. Credit report on buyer.

b. Buyer's financial statement.

c. Agreement by buyer to become client (for example, bank depositor) of lender.

d. Increase of interest rate to market rate, if necessary.

e. Execution of assignment and assumption agreement.

f. Seller's agreement to remain personally liable on loan.

g. Endorsement of insurance policies to buyer.

h. New title insurance policy or endorsement naming new owner.

i. Assignment of seller's impound account for tax and insurance payments to buyer.

4. Confirm that lender has consented to assumption.

5. Have parties execute assumption agreement [see Ch. 25B, Subordination, Assumption, and Assignment].

NOTE:

The assumption agreements provided by most institutional lenders include (1) the buyer's agreement to assume; (2) the seller's agreement to remain personally liable on the loan; (3) the lender's formal consent to the assumption; and (4) an assignment of the impound account from the seller to the buyer [see Ch. 25B, Subordination, Assumption, and Assignment , Pt. B].

6. Confirm that seller assigns his or her interest in fire insurance policies to buyer.

NOTE:

The process of assumption may be completed before escrow opens, but more commonly it is handled entirely by the escrow agent. For example, the escrow agent will obtain the beneficiary's statement, a copy of the assumption agreement, and the fire insurance policies from the lender, and will return them to the lender after having the agreement signed by the parties and the policies assigned from the seller to the buyer [see Ch. 26,

Real Property Escrows].

§ 25.130 FHA Insured Loan

1. Review with client types of available FHA insured loans based on property to be purchased:

NOTE:
The following outlines only some of the more common types of FHA insured loans. Several others, such as home loans for lower income families [see 12 U.S.C. § 1715z; 24 C.F.R. § 235.1 et seq.], cooperative housing mortgage insurance [see 12 U.S.C. § 1715e; 24 C.F.R. §§ 200.30, 213.1 et seq.], and urban renewal projects [see 12 U.S.C. § 1715k; 24 C.F.R. §§ 200.32, 220.1 et seq.], are also available.

a. Home mortgage insurance [see 12 U.S.C. § 1709; 24 C.F.R. § 203.1 et seq.].
(1) Amount insurable for occupant mortgagor of principal or secondary residence is lesser of [24 C.F.R. §§ 200.10, 203.18; see 24 C.F.R. § 203.18(f)(1), (2) (principal residence and secondary residence defined)]:

NOTE:
If the client believes that the mortgage limit for an area does not accurately reflect the extent to which middle income and moderate income persons have limited housing opportunities because of high prevailing housing sales prices, the client may submit documentation in support of an alternative mortgage limit [24 C.F.R. § 203.18b(a)(1)(i)].

(a) Dollar limitation specified by regulations (which varies depending on whether residence is for one, two, three, or four families) [see 24 C.F.R. § 203.18(a)(1)].

(b) Amount computed under statutory formula based on ratio loan bears to appraised value of property [see 24 C.F.R. § 203.18(a)(2)-(4); see also 24 C.F.R. § 203.18(f)(4) (appraised value defined)].

NOTE:
The formula varies depending on whether the residence is or will be the mortgagor's principal or secondary residence and whether, in the case of a principal residence, the residence was approved for insurance before the beginning of construction [see 24 C.F.R. § 203.18(a)(2)-(4)]. In no event may the mortgage involve a principal obligation in excess of 98.75 percent of the appraised value of the property (97.75 percent in the case of a mortgage with an appraised value in excess of $50,000), plus the amount of the mortgage insurance premium paid at the time the mortgage is insured [24 C.F.R. § 203.18(g)].

(2) Amount insurable for eligible nonoccupant mortgagors [see 24 C.F.R. § 203.18(f)(3) (definition)] is same as amount insurable for occupant mortgagors, except when lesser amount is expressly provided for in regulations [24 C.F.R. § 203.18(c)].

(3) Charges, fees, or discounts collected by lender cannot exceed statutory maximum [see 24 C.F.R. § 203.27].

b. Home mortgage insurance for condominium unit [see 12 U.S.C. § 1715y; 24 C.F.R. §§ 200.26, 234.1 et seq.]:

NOTE:
The purpose of this assistance is to finance the acquisition of individual units in condominium projects containing four or more family units [see 24 C.F.R. § 234.1(k)].

(1) Maximum amount insurable for occupant mortgagors is lesser of [24 C.F.R. § 234.27(a)]:

(a) 95 percent of median one-family house price in area, as determined by VA, or 75 percent of dollar amount limitation determined under § 305(a)(2) of Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation Act [see 24 C.F.R. § 234.27(a)(1)].

NOTE:
If the FHA finds that middle-income and moderate-income persons have limited housing opportunities in any geographic area because of high prevailing housing sales prices, the FHA may increase the applicable dollar limitation [see 24 C.F.R. § 234.27(b)].

(b) Amount computed under formula that is based on ratio loan bears to appraised value of property.

NOTE:
The formula varies depending on whether the dwelling is a principal or secondary residence and whether it was approved for insurance before the commencement of construction [see 24 C.F.R. § 234.27(a)(2)-(4)].

(2) Maximum amount insurable for nonoccupant mortgagors is [24 C.F.R. § 234.27(d)]:

(a) Full amount for occupant mortgagors if nonoccupant mortgagor fulfills certain requirements [see 24 C.F.R. § 234.27(d)(2)].

(b) Lesser of amount computed for occupant mortgagors or 85 percent of appraised value of unit.

(3) Charges, fees, or discounts collected from mortgagor by mortgagee cannot exceed regulatory maximums [24 C.F.R. § 234.48].

2. Summarize for client procedure for obtaining conditional commitment from FHA setting appraised valuation and maximum insurable loan terms.

NOTE:

This first step in the processing of an FHA loan is taken by the seller and lender, not the buyer, to qualify the property, and may be taken before the buyer is known. If the buyer is known, the application of the seller and lender may be accompanied by the buyer's application. The commitment (appraisal) fee that the lender must pay the FHA is usually collected from the seller in advance.

a. Lender and seller must prepare and sign application for property appraisal and preliminary commitment and then submit it to FHA.

b. If application is acceptable for processing, FHA:

(1) Provides lender with notice of acceptance of application and assigned case number.

(2) Issues conditional commitment to lender.

(3) Sends statement of appraised value to lender for delivery to buyer before sale of property.

NOTE:

In signing the form, the seller (or the builder) agrees to deliver the statement of appraised value to the purchaser. The FHA must deliver the statement before the lender submits the application for credit approval and firm commitment to the FHA. The purchaser must certify on the application that he or she has received the statement of appraised value. The statement of appraised value includes the following items: (1) the appraised value or replacement cost of the property; (2) an estimate of the buyer's closing costs (such as fees for drawing instruments, recording, tax service, title insurance, documentary transfer taxes, and origination fees); and (3) estimates of fire insurance, taxes, maintenance, repairs, heat, and utilities.

3. Draft sales agreement to include (or review agreement to confirm existence of) following provisions:

a. Provision(s) making buyer's obligation contingent on:

(1) Seller delivering to buyer statement from FHA setting forth appraised value for property that equals or exceeds specified amount.

(2) Buyer obtaining loan and FHA approval.

b. Provision for payment by seller of discount to lender.

NOTE:

When the lender makes an FHA loan with the intention of selling the loan, the lender usually will condition the making of the loan on an agreement by the seller to pay a discount (points), since the buyer cannot be required to pay more than the rate and expenses specified by the FHA. Conditions in the secondary market dictate the amount of the discount.

4. Confirm that lender finds buyer acceptable as borrower.

5. Have borrower complete and sign application for credit approval and firm commitment and submit it to lender for transmittal to FHA.

NOTE:

The application is a detailed financial questionnaire and request for a loan of specific terms or for the maximum insurable amount. It provides information necessary to determine the probable ability of the prospective borrower to make the payments on the mortgage for which he is applying and to maintain the property. The application for firm commitment must be filed before the expiration of the preliminary commitment. If the application for the preliminary commitment has not been filed, it should accompany the application for a firm commitment.

6. Obtain or assist lender in obtaining following documents, which must accompany application:

a. Credit report on buyer.

b. Verification of employment.

c. Verification of deposits (used to verify borrower's cash assets).

d. Copy of executed sales or construction contract.

e. For refinancing loan, separate statement signed by borrower:

(1) Itemizing those debts to be paid from loan proceeds; and

(2) Identifying those debts secured by liens of record.

f. Other documents required by FHA.

7. Obtain firm commitment from FHA.

8. Draft or review, as appropriate, note and trust deed in accordance with terms of commitment.

9. Review lender's escrow instructions [see Ch. 26, Real Property Escrows], which may cover following items in addition to normal items covered by lender's instructions:

a. Conditions required by conditional and firm commitments.

b. Request for ALTA standard loan policy with CLTA covenants, conditions, and restrictions endorsement or other CLTA endorsements.

c. Collection from buyer of FHA insurance fee.

d. Collection for trust fund impound accounts, if any, for taxes and insurance.

e. Collection of seller's agreed-on discount (points), if any.

f. Collection of interest [see 24 C.F.R. § 203.27(a)(5)]:

(1) From later of:
(a) Date of closing.

(b) Date mortgage proceeds are disbursed by mortgagee to account of mortgagor or mortgagor's creditors.

(2) To date of beginning of amortization.

10. Assist client in closing transaction in same manner as conventional loan [see § 25.120].

1. Confirm veteran status of potential borrower [see § 25.113].

2. Have borrower complete and sign request for certificate of eligibility [see § 25.210] and send it to VA regional office serving area of residence together with proof of service.

3. Simultaneously or subsequently submit request for determination of reasonable value [see § 25.211] to local VA office.

NOTE:
A loan that exceeds the VA-determined reasonable value of the property will not be guaranteed [38 U.S.C. § 3710(b)(5)] unless the veteran certifies that he or she has paid in cash from his or her own resources a sum equal to the difference between the purchase price or cost of the property and its reasonable value [see 38 C.F.R. § 36.4336(a)(3)*].

4. Have borrower complete and sign application for home loan guaranty [see § 25.212] and cooperate with lender in obtaining following items for transmittal with application to VA regional office:

a. Credit report on veteran.

b. Verification of employment of veteran (and spouse, if applicable), showing regular income from employment.

c. Verification of deposit (used to verify cash assets from any source).

d. Copy of executed sales or construction contract.

e. Certificate of reasonable value.

f. Certificate of eligibility.

g. Any additional documents required by local VA office.

5. Advise client that VA will send certificate of commitment to lender if application is approved.

1. Confirm veteran status of prospective borrower [see § 25.113].

2. Have borrower complete and sign Cal-Vet loan application [see § 25.220].

3. Designate preference, if any, on loan application [see § 25.13[3][f]].

NOTE:
An applicant who qualifies for a preference should indicate the reasons for the asserted preference on the loan application and should enclose documentary evidence, if available, in support of the claim for priority.

4. Submit application to Cal-Vet office [12 Cal. Code Reg. § 302], together with following:

a. If veteran was wounded or disabled in military service, documentary evidence of wound or disability [12 Cal. Code Reg. § 304].

b. Originals or certified copies of all pertinent military service or separation documents [12 Cal. Code Reg. § 303(a)].

NOTE:
The military service or separation documents must show inclusive dates of service and honorable discharge or release from active duty under honorable conditions [12 Cal. Code Reg. § 303(a)].

5. If Cal-Vet notifies client of adverse credit report, and client disagrees with information contained in credit report, assist client in pursuing disagreement with credit reporting agency [see 12 Cal. Code Reg. § 309.2].

NOTE:

The following factors, information, and procedures will be used to evaluate the applicant's financial status: (1) a credit report [see 12 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 301.1, 309.2]; (2) if the applicant has previously been adjudged bankrupt, an examination of the sufficiency of the applicant's income and assets [see 12 Cal. Code Reg. § 309.4]; (3) specified financial information submitted by the applicant [see 12 Cal. Code Reg. § 309.5]; and (4) certain information verifying the income or employment status of the applicant [see 12 Cal. Code Reg. § 305.6]. If Cal-Vet refers the applicant to a credit reporting agency to resolve a dispute regarding an adverse credit report, the loan application will be held open for 30 days from the date of the referral, to give the applicant the opportunity to pursue the disagreement with the agency [12 Cal. Code Reg. § 309.2].

6. If application is denied, review Cal-Vet's statement of reasons for rejection [see 12 Cal. Code Reg. § 309.3].

NOTE:

Cal-Vet must give the applicant a statement of specific reasons for the denial and must confirm the statement in writing within 30 days from the receipt of the complete loan application package from the applicant. If the denial is based on information in the credit report, Cal-Vet must consider a new loan application after the applicant has established a credit history for at least six months following the date of original submission of the denied application [12 Cal. Code Reg. § 309.3].

§ 25.140 TILA Disclosures and Related Requirements

NOTE:
For determinations regarding the applicability of the Truth in Lending Act (TILA) [see 15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.] and Regulation Z [see 12 C.F.R. Pt. 226], see § 25.111.

1. Confirm that lender provides borrower with statement containing required TILA disclosures as follows:

NOTE:
For a summary of the contents of the disclosure statement and coverage of some of the more important disclosures, see § 25.23. For a detailed listing of the required contents of the disclosure statement, see Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales . This guide uses "creditor" and "consumer" rather than "lender" and "borrower" because the former terms are used in TILA.

a. In transaction subject to Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act [see 12 U.S.C. § 2601 et seq.; see also § 25.24], in case of any extension of credit that is secured by dwelling of consumer, instruct creditor to [15 U.S.C. § 1638(b)(2)(A)]:
(1) Make good faith estimates of the disclosures required under 15 U.S.C. § 1638(a).

(2) Mail or deliver them not later than three business days after receipt of borrower's loan application, which must be at least seven business days before consummation of transaction.

b. In all other cases, before consummation of transaction [see 15 U.S.C. §§ 1632, 1638; 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.17, 226.18].

2. If dealing with open-end consumer credit plan [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(20); see also § 25.111] that involves extension of credit secured by consumer's dwelling (home equity loan), have creditor:

NOTE:

Although the following requirements apply when the home equity loan is secured by the consumer's principal dwelling [15 U.S.C. § 1637a(a)], that includes any second or vacation home of a consumer [15 U.S.C. § 1637a(d)].

a. Provide consumer with loan application and following materials [15 U.S.C. § 1637a(b)(1)(A)]:

NOTE:

In the case of telephone applications, applications contained in magazines or other publications, and applications provided by a third party, the following materials must be delivered or placed in the mail not later than three business days following the creditor's receipt of the consumer's completed application [15 U.S.C. § 1637a(b)(1)(B); *12 C.F.R. § 226.5b(b)*n.10a].

(1) Detailed disclosures regarding creditor's home equity plan [see 15 U.S.C. § 1637a(a); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5b(d); see also § 25.237]; and

(2) Brochure prepared by Board of Governors of Federal Reserve System, or suitable substitute [15 U.S.C. § 1637a(e); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5b(e)].

b. Provide consumer with additional set of disclosures before opening home equity plan [15 U.S.C. § 1637(a)(8); 12 C.F.R. § 226.6(e); see § 25.237[1][e]].

c. Comply with substantive limitations imposed on these loans [15 U.S.C. § 1647(a); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5b(f); see § 25.237[1][f]].

3. Confirm that creditor makes new disclosures (redisclosures) under any of following circumstances:

a. If annual percentage rate in consummated transaction varies from that previously disclosed by more than 0.125 percent in regular transaction or 0.25 percent in irregular transaction [12 C.F.R. § 226.19(a)(2)(ii); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.22(a)].

NOTE:

In this case, the consumer must receive the corrected disclosures no later than three business days before consummation. If the corrected disclosures are mailed to the consumer or delivered to the consumer by means other than delivery in person, the consumer is deemed to have received the corrected disclosures three business days after they are mailed or delivered [12 C.F.R. § 226.19(a)(2)(ii)].

b. If obligation is refinanced [12 C.F.R. § 226.20(a)].

NOTE:

A refinancing occurs when an existing obligation is satisfied and replaced by a new obligation, undertaken by the same consumer. A refinancing is a new transaction; therefore, the creditor must make new disclosures to the consumer. Refinancing does not include renewal of a single-payment obligation with no change in original terms, reduction in the annual percentage rate, an agreement involving a court proceeding, a change in the payment schedule as a result of the consumer's default or delinquency (unless the rate is increased or the new amount financed exceeds the unpaid balance plus earned finance charge and premiums for continuation of certain kinds of insurance), or renewal of optional insurance [12 C.F.R. § 226.20(a)].

c. If transaction involves assumption of existing residential mortgage transaction [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.20(b)].

NOTE:
In this case, the creditor must make new disclosures to the subsequent consumer based on the remaining obligation [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.20(b)*].

4. If consumer has right to rescind transaction [see § 25.23[5]], confirm that creditor delivers two copies of notice of right to rescind to consumer [15 U.S.C. § 1635; 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.15, 226.23] as follows:

a. In case of closed-end transaction [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(10)], on or following:

NOTE:
Although TILA does not specify a deadline for the delivery of the notice of the right to rescind, the creditor should give the notice on consummation of the transaction triggering the right, because a later delivery will extend the period during which the consumer may exercise the right [see 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.15(a)(3), 226.23(a)(3)*].

(1) Consummation of transaction [see 15 U.S.C. § 1635(a); 12 C.F.R. § 226.23(a)(1); see also § 25.230].

(2) Any refinancing of original debt that is subject to security interest in consumer's principal dwelling, when [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.23(a)(1) n.47, (f)(2); see also § 25.231]:
(a) Security interest will be retained.

(b) New amount financed exceeds specified amount [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.23(a)(1) n.47, (f)(2); see also § 25.231[1][b]].

b. In case of open-end transaction [see 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.2(a)(20), 226.15(a)(1)(i)]:

(1) When credit plan is opened [see § 25.232].

(2) When each credit extension is made under plan [see § 25.233].

(3) When credit limit is increased [see § 25.234].

(4) When security interest is added to secure existing plan [see § 25.235].

(5) When security interest is increased under existing plan [see § 25.236].

§ 25.141 Exercising or Waiving Right to Rescind

1. Advise client that consumer may modify or waive right to rescind [12 C.F.R. §§ 226.15(e), 226.23(e)]:

a. If consumer determines that credit is needed to meet bona fide personal financial emergency.

b. By giving creditor dated, written statement that:
(1) Describes emergency.

(2) Specifically modifies or waives right to rescind.

(3) Bears signatures of consumers entitled to rescind.

NOTE:
Printed forms may not be used for modifying or waiving the right to rescind. Notice is considered given when mailed, when filed for telegraphic transmission, or, if sent by other means, when delivered to the creditor's designated place of business [12 C.F.R. §§ 226.15(a)(2), 226.23(a)(2)].

2. If client wishes to exercise right to rescind, instruct client to do so:

NOTE:
The right-to-rescind notices in this chapter [see §§ 25.230-25.236] may be used to inform the creditor of the consumer's election to rescind [see § 25.230[1][c]]. When more than one consumer in a transaction has the right to rescind, the exercise of the right by one is effective as to all [12 C.F.R. §§ 226.15(a)(4), 226.23(a)(4)].

a. By mail, telegram, or other means of written communication [12 C.F.R. §§ 226.15(a)(2), 226.23(a)(2)].

b. Before midnight of third business day following later of [12 C.F.R. §§ 226.15(a)(3), 226.23(a)(3)]:

(1) Consummation of transaction.

(2) Delivery of notice of right to rescind.

(3) Delivery of all material disclosures.

NOTE:
If the creditor does not deliver the notice of the right to rescind and the material disclosures, the right to rescind expires three years after consummation, on transfer of all of the consumer's interest in the property, or on sale of the property, whichever occurs first [12 C.F.R. §§ 226.15(a)(3), 226.23(a)(3)].

3. If client exercises right to rescind:

a. Confirm that creditor takes following steps within 20 calendar days after receipt of notice of rescission [15 U.S.C. § 1635(b); 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.15(d)(2), 226.23(d)(2)]:

(1) Returns any money or property given to anyone in connection with transaction.

(2) Takes any action necessary or appropriate to reflect termination of security interest.

b. If creditor has given client any money or property, instruct client to do following after creditor satisfies obligations described above [12 C.F.R. §§ 226.23(d)(3), 226.15(d)(3)]:

(1) Tender money or property to creditor.

(2) If tender of money or property to creditor would be impracticable or inequitable, tender its reasonable value.

NOTE:
At the consumer's option, tender of property may be made at the location of the property or at the consumer's residence. Tender of money must be made at the creditor's place of business as designated in the notice of the right of rescission. If the creditor does not take possession of the tendered money or property within 20 calendar days after tender, the consumer may keep it without further obligation [12 C.F.R. §§ 226.15(d)(3), 226.23(d)(3)].

NOTE:
For determinations regarding the applicability of the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act (RESPA) [see 12 U.S.C. § 2601 et seq.], see § 25.112.

1. Confirm that lender provided loan applicant with current version of "Special Information Booklet" by delivering it or placing it in mail to applicant not later than three business days after application was received or prepared [12 U.S.C. § 2604(a), (d); 24 C.F.R. § 3500.6(a)].

NOTE:
The lender must supply a "Special Information Booklet" to every person from whom it receives or for whom it prepares a written application to borrow money to finance the purchase of residential real property [12 U.S.C. § 2604(d); 24 C.F.R. § 3500.6(a)]. The lender need not provide a booklet to the borrower if the lender denies the borrower's application for credit before the end of the three business day period [12 U.S.C. § 2604(d); 24 C.F.R. § 3500.6(a)(1)]. If the borrower uses a mortgage broker, the mortgage broker must distribute the booklet and the lender need not do so [24 C.F.R. § 3500.6(a)(1)]. The booklet is deemed mailed when it is placed in the mail, addressed to the loan applicant at the address stated in the loan application or in other information submitted to or obtained by the lender at the time of the loan application [24 C.F.R. § 3500.11]. When more than one individual applies for a loan, the lender need supply a booklet to only one of the applicants [24 C.F.R. § 3500.6(a)].

2. Confirm that booklet meets following technical requirements:

a. If printed or reproduced by lender, it is not part of larger document for purposes of distribution under RESPA [24 C.F.R. § 3500.6(c)].

b. It has not been altered, with following exceptions [24 C.F.R. § 3500.6(d)]:
(1) Cover of booklet:
(a) May be in any form and may contain any drawings, pictures, or artwork, provided words "settlement costs" appear in title.

(b) May contain names, addresses, and telephone numbers of lender or others, and similar information.

(c) May not contain discussion of matters covered in booklet.

(2) Booklet may be translated into other languages.

NOTE:
HUD must approve any other changes in writing [24 C.F.R. § 3500.6(d)].

§ 25.143 Good Faith Estimate of Settlement Costs

1. If client is entitled to receive copy of "Special Information Booklet" [see § 25.142], confirm that lender also delivers or mails good faith estimate of settlement charges not later than three business days after lender receives or prepares application [12 U.S.C. § 2604(c), (d); 24 C.F.R. §§ 3500.6(a), 3500.7(a); see § 25.238].

NOTE:

The estimate should be included with the booklet [see 12 U.S.C. § 2604(c); 24 C.F.R. § 3500.6(a)]. The estimate is deemed mailed when placed in the mail, addressed to the loan applicant at the address stated in the loan application or in other information submitted to or obtained by the lender at the time of the loan application [24 C.F.R. § 3500.11].

If a mortgage broker has provided a good faith estimate, the lender is not required to provide an additional good faith estimate. If there is a mortgage broker, and the lender has not provided a good faith estimate, the mortgage broker must provide a good faith estimate not later than three business days after the mortgage broker receives either an application or information sufficient to complete an application. The lender is responsible for ascertaining whether the good faith estimate has been provided [24 C.F.R. § 3500.7(b)(1)]. However, the mortgage broker is not required to provide the applicant with a good faith estimate if, before the end of the three-business-days period, either the mortgage broker or lender denies the application, or the applicant withdraws the application [24 C.F.R. § 3500.7(b)(3)]. The mortgage broker is not permitted to require, as a condition for providing a good faith estimate, that the applicant submit supplemental documentation to verify the information provided on the application [24 C.F.R. § 3500.7(b)(5)].

If the loan involves an open-end line of credit (home equity plan) covered under the Truth in Lending Act [15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.] and Regulation Z [12 C.F.R. pt. 226], a lender or mortgage broker that provides the borrower with disclosures required by Regulation Z at the time the borrower applies for the loan will be deemed to satisfy the good faith estimate requirements of Regulation X [24 C.F.R. § 3500.7(h)].

2. Verify that good faith estimate conforms to requirements exemplified in form shown in Appendix C of Regulation X [see § 25.238], in accordance with instructions given in Appendix C.

NOTE:

The good faith estimate form is set out in Appendix C of Regulation X. The loan originator must prepare the good faith estimate in accordance with the requirements of 24 C.F.R. § 3500.7 and the instructions in Appendix C, which allow for flexibility in the preparation and distribution of the good faith estimate in hard copy and electronic format [24 C.F.R. § 3500.7(d)].

§ 25.144 HUD Settlement Statement

1. Confirm that person conducting settlement (whether or not lender) satisfies following requirements governing distribution of HUD settlement statement:

NOTE:

A HUD-prescribed statement form must be used for settlement charges in connection with the purchase or refinancing (or other subordinate-lien transaction) of a one-to-four-family residential property [see 12 U.S.C. § 2603(a); § 25.112 (applicability of Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act)]. The settlement agent must use the HUD-1 form in every settlement involving a federally related mortgage loan in which there is a borrower and a seller. If there is a borrower but no seller (such as in the case of a refinancing loan or a subordinate-lien loan), the HUD-1 form may be used by completing the borrower's side of the statement, or the HUD-1A form may be used. One form or the other, as appropriate, must be used for every RESPA-covered transaction, unless its use is specifically exempted. The use of either form is exempted for open-end lines of credit (home equity plans) covered by TILA and Regulation Z [24 C.F.R. § 3500.8(a)].

a. Permits borrower to inspect HUD settlement statement, completed to set forth those items that are known to settlement agent at time of inspection, during business day immediately preceding settlement (but items related only to seller's transaction may be omitted) [12 U.S.C. § 2603(b); 24 C.F.R. § 3500.10(a)].

NOTE:

This requirement does not apply if the borrower or the borrower's agent does not attend the settlement, or when the settlement agent does not conduct a meeting of the parties for that purpose [24 C.F.R. § 3500.10(d)].

b. Provides parties with completed HUD settlement statement, as follows:

(1) If borrower waives right to delivery of completed settlement statement no later than at settlement by executing written waiver at or before settlement, settlement agent mails or delivers completed statement to borrower, seller, and lender (if lender is not settlement agent) as soon as practicable after settlement [24 C.F.R. § 3500.10(c); see 12 U.S.C. § 2603(b)].

(2) If borrower or borrower's agent does not attend settlement, or if settlement agent does not conduct meeting of the parties for that purpose, settlement agent mails or delivers completed settlement statement as soon as practicable after settlement [24 C.F.R. § 3500.10(d)].

(3) In all other cases, settlement agent provides completed settlement statement to borrower, seller, lender (if lender is not settlement agent), and/or their agents at or before settlement [24 C.F.R. § 3500.10(b); see 12 U.S.C. § 2603(b)].

2. Confirm that settlement agent has completed HUD settlement statement in accordance with instructions [see 24 C.F.R. § 3500.8(b)] and that any changes or insertions comply with requirements [see 24 C.F.R. § 3500.9].

Regulated financial institutions include any bank, savings and loan association, or other institution in California, including a public agency, that regularly makes, arranges, or purchases loans for the purpose of construction, rehabilitation, improvement, or refinancing of housing accommodations [Health & Safety Code § 35805(c)]. A housing accommodation is any improved or unimproved real property that (1) is used or intended for use as a residence, (2) is or will be occupied by the owner, and (3) contains not more than four dwelling units. That term also refers to any residential dwelling containing not more than four units when the owner, whether or not he or she occupies the property, applies or has applied for a secured home improvement loan from a financial institution, the proceeds of which are used to improve the secured property [Health & Safety Code § 35805(d)].

The content and format of the notice are prescribed by regulations [see 21 Cal. Code Reg. § 7114(c)]. The notice must contain the name and address of the state agency (specified in the regulations) that will accept complaints and answer questions regarding loans made by the type of lender involved in the transaction [see 21 Cal. Code Reg. § 7114(a)]. The notice must be printed in not less than 10-point boldface type [21 Cal. Code Reg. § 7114(d)].

10-25 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 25.202

§ 25.202 Home Equity Loan Disclosure

[1] Comment--Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is one of two alternative notices that must be provided to applicants for home equity loans under the Home Equity Loan Disclosure Act unless comparable federal requirements apply [Civ. Code §§ 2970, 2971]. A home equity loan is any open-end consumer credit plan in which a consensual security interest is created or retained against the consumer's dwelling [Civ. Code § 2970]. Open-end credit transactions involve the extension of credit under an agreement that permits the debtor to use an open line of credit at any time on the condition that he or she make periodic partial payments on the account. For discussion of open-end credit transactions, see Ch. 46, Credit Card and Other Open-End Credit Transactions .

A creditor must provide an applicant for a home equity loan with a disclosure in either of two specified forms [see Civ. Code § 2971(a)(1), (2)]. One form consists of the statutory notice in [2], below [see Civ. Code § 2971(a)(1)]. The other form must contain the creditor's statement to the effect that the home equity loan is secured by a lien against the borrower's home and that, in the event of any default, the borrower risks the loss of the home [Civ. Code § 2971(a)(2)]. Either disclosure must be made by (1) a separate and specific document attached to or accompanying the application or (2) a clear and conspicuous statement on the application [Civ. Code § 2971(b)]. If it is made by a separate document, the creditor may wish to add an acknowledgment of receipt.

If the borrower applies for the loan by mail or telephone, the creditor must provide the disclosure within three business days. If the borrower makes the initial application in person, the creditor must provide the disclosure at that time [Civ. Code § 2971(a)].

If a creditor is required by federal statute or regulation to make a substantially similar disclosure, and the creditor complies with that federal requirement, the creditor will be deemed to have complied with the California disclosure requirement [Civ. Code § 2971(c)]. For discussion of disclosure requirements under the federal Truth in Lending Act, see § 25.23.

[1] Comment--Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is prescribed by the federal Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) for use by a veteran as the first step in obtaining a VA guaranteed loan. It is designated as VA Form 26-1880.

ELECTRONIC FORMS NOTE

ELECTRONIC FORMS NOTE: Electronic copies of VA Form 26-1880 that can be printed out and filled in for use can be obtained at the web site of the Veterans Benefits Administration (in the Department of Veterans Affairs), located at http://www.vba.va.gov/. You may also obtain a copy of this form via email by contacting Matthew Bender & Co. at (800) 424-0651, ext. 405, or e-mailing us at cal.custquest@bender.com and requesting an electronic copy of CLF Form 25.210. Please be sure to include your email address along with your request and we will provide the form via return email. To view and print these forms, your computer system will need Adobe Acrobat Reader version 3.0 or higher.

Instructions for completing and submitting the form are printed on the back of the form, which is not reproduced here. Proof of the veteran's military service [see § 25.113] must be filed concurrently with the form.

For the procedure involved in obtaining a VA guaranteed loan, see § 25.131. This form may be filed simultaneously with a request for a determination of reasonable value [see § 25.211]. Thereafter, the veteran should file an application for a home-loan guaranty [see § 25.212].

§ 25.211 Request for Determination of Reasonable Value

The form in [2], below, is prescribed by the federal Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) to be submitted with or after the filing of a request for a certificate of eligibility [see § 25.210]. It is designated as VA Form 26-1805 and is a request for determination of reasonable value. After a certificate of reasonable value has been issued, the borrower must submit an application for a home loan guaranty [see § 25.212].

The form is included in a document package (available from lenders making VA guaranteed loans) that contains instructions along with multiple copies of the form. Only the form is reproduced here. It may be used for existing homes or for homes under construction. Various supporting documents must be submitted with the form. The required documents are listed on the instructions and depend on whether the application relates to proposed or existing construction. If a certificate of reasonable value has previously been issued, it may be submitted in lieu of many of the required documents.

ELECTRONIC FORMS NOTE

ELECTRONIC FORMS NOTE: Electronic copies of the document package containing a version of VA Form 26-1805 that can be printed out and filled in for use can be obtained at the web site of the Veterans Benefits Administration (in the Department of Veterans Affairs), located at http://www.vba.va.gov/. You may also obtain a copy of this form via email by contacting Matthew Bender & Co. at (800) 424-0651, ext. 405, or e-mailing us at cal.custquest@bender.com and requesting an electronic copy of CLF Form 25.211. Please be sure to include your email address along with your request and we will provide the form via return email. To view and print these forms, your computer system will need Adobe Acrobat Reader version 3.0 or higher.

[1] Comment--Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is an application by a borrower for a VA home loan guaranty. It is designated as VA Form 26-1802a. (The form is designed for use in obtaining either a VA guaranteed loan or an FHA insured loan.) The borrower should submit this application after submitting a request for a certificate of eligibility [see § 25.210] and a request for determination of reasonable value [see § 25.211]. Lenders will use this application for obtaining the prior approval of a VA guaranteed loan for the following:

- The purchase, construction, or simultaneous purchase and improvement, of a home or farm residence [see 38 U.S.C. § 3710(a)(1)-(3)];

- The purchase of a one-family unit in a condominium project or development [see 38 U.S.C. § 3710(a)(6)];

- The refinancing of an existing loan [see 38 U.S.C. § 3710(a)(5)]; or

- The repair, alteration, or improvement of the applicant's home (specifically including improvements designed to conserve energy) [see 38 U.S.C. § 3710(a)(4), (7)].

ELECTRONIC FORMS NOTE

ELECTRONIC FORMS NOTE: Electronic copies of VA Form 26-1802a that can be printed out and filled in for use can be obtained at the web site of the Veterans Benefits Administration (in the Department of Veterans Affairs), located at http://www.vba.va.gov/. The applicant must submit all of the following items in conjunction with this application:

- A credit report.
- Verification of deposits (to verify the deposit of cash assets from any source).
- Verification of employment of the borrower, and spouse or coborrower, if applicable.
- A copy of an executed sales or construction contract.
- If the application is for a VA guaranteed loan for new construction, a VA Master Certificate of Reasonable Value.
- A VA Certificate of Eligibility [see § 25.210].

[1] Comment--Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is an instruction sheet for use in completing a loan application to the California Department of Veterans Affairs (Cal-Vet). The Cal-Vet loan application form is the same as the form that is sanctioned by the Federal National Mortgage Association and designated as Fannie Mae Form 1003 [see § 25.200].

ELECTRONIC FORMS NOTE

ELECTRONIC FORMS NOTE: Electronic copies of a document package containing this form and a document package containing a loan application, which can be printed out and filled in for use, can be obtained at the web site of the California Department of Veterans Affairs, located at http://www.cdva.ca.gov/. Please be sure to include your email address along with your request and we will provide the form via return email. To view and print these forms, your computer system will need Adobe Acrobat Reader version 3.0 or higher.

To apply for a loan, the veteran should obtain the necessary information, forms, and assistance in completing the forms from a Cal-Vet office or resident agent location convenient to the applicant. For a procedural guide to the loan application process, see § 25.132. An applicant who qualifies for a preference [see § 25.13[3][f]] should indicate the reasons for the asserted preference on the loan application and should enclose any available documentary evidence that supports the claim for priority. The veteran must file the loan application within the time limits required under applicable federal law and regulations, and must qualify under federal laws and regulations governing the permitted uses of tax-exempt bond funds [Mil. & Vet. Code § 987.57].

The application must be accompanied by or must include any other documents or evidence required by Cal-Vet, including originals or certified copies of all pertinent military service or separation documents [12 Cal. Code Reg. § 303(a); see 12 Cal. Code Reg. § 304 (documentary evidence relating to any wound or disability)]. One example of the required supporting documentation is the purchaser's affidavit illustrated in § 25.221[2].

If Cal-Vet approves the application, the veteran selects the home or farm that he or she wishes to purchase and submits the selection to Cal-Vet for approval. Cal-Vet purchases an approved property in its own name [Mil. & Vet. Code § 987.60] and sells it to the veteran under an installment real property sales contract [Mil. & Vet. Code § 987.69]. For the form for a contract used by Cal-Vet, see Ch. 25A, Security Instruments for Real Estate Financing .

10-25 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 25.230

§ 25.230 Notice of Right to Rescind (and Notice Rescinding) Closed-End Credit Transaction Involving Security Interest in Consumer's Principal Dwelling

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice to a consumer of his or her right to rescind a closed-end real estate credit transaction subject to the Truth in Lending Act (TILA) [15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.; see § 25.23[5][b]]. It is designed for use when the credit transaction involves a security interest (1) that is or will be retained by a creditor in a consumer's principal dwelling, and (2) that is not or will not be created or retained to finance the acquisition or initial construction of the dwelling. It includes a blank form for a notice that the borrower may execute to inform the lender of the consumer's election to exercise the right to rescind.

For a guide to the procedural aspects of TILA disclosures in real estate transactions, see § 25.140. For further coverage of TILA and the right of rescission, see § 25.23; for a guide covering the right to rescind, see § 25.141; and for additional coverage of the right of rescission, see California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 105, Truth in Lending (Matthew Bender).

[b] Form and Content of Notice

In a closed-end credit transaction subject to rescission, the creditor must give two copies of the notice of the right to rescind to each consumer entitled to rescind [15 U.S.C. § 1635(a); 12 C.F.R. § 226.23(b)]. The notice must be made on a separate document that identifies the transaction. It must clearly and conspicuously disclose the retention or acquisition of a security interest in the consumer's principal dwelling and the consumer's right to rescind the transaction. It must also describe how to exercise the right to rescind, include a form for that purpose, and designate the address of the creditor's place of business. Finally, the notice must disclose the effects of rescission, and the date the rescission period will expire [15 U.S.C. § 1635(a); 12 C.F.R. § 226.23(b)].

Regulation Z does not specify language for the notice or require that it be in any particular style or size of type. This form is a model form recommended by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System for general use in closed-end credit transactions [see 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, app. H-8] and satisfies the foregoing requirements for the notice.

[c] Exercise of Right of Rescission

In a closed-end credit transaction, the consumer may exercise the right of rescission until the later of midnight of the third business day following consummation of the transaction, delivery of the notice of right of rescission, or delivery of all material disclosures (that is, the annual percentage rate, the finance charge, the amount financed, the total of payments, the payment schedule, and certain disclosures and limitations in cases involving high-cost mortgage loans and higher-priced mortgage loans [12 C.F.R. § 226.23(a)(3) n.48; see 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.32(c),(d) (high-cost mortgage loans), 226.35(b)(2) (higher-priced mortgage loans)]. For discussion of the extension of this deadline, see § 25.230[1][d].

To exercise the right, the consumer must notify the creditor of the rescission by mail, telegram, or other writing. Notification by mail is considered given at the time of mailing; notification by telegram is given at the time of filing for transmission; and notification by other writing is given at the time delivery to the creditor's designated place of business [12 C.F.R. § 226.23(a)(2); see 15 U.S.C. § 1635(c) (written acknowledgment of receipt of notice of right of rescission creates rebuttable presumption of delivery)]. When more than one consumer has the right to rescind, the exercise of the right by one of them is effective as to all of them [12 C.F.R. § 226.23(a)(4)].

If notice of the right to rescind and the material disclosures are not delivered, the right to rescind expires three years after consummation of the transaction giving rise to the right, on transfer of all of the consumer's interest in the property involved, or on sale of the property, whichever occurs first [12 C.F.R. § 226.23(a)(3)]. On the issue of delivery, written acknowledgment of receipt of the notice of the right of rescission does no more than create a rebuttable presumption of delivery, notwithstanding any rule of evidence [15 U.S.C. § 1635(c)].

When the consumer is entitled to rescind under TILA, and the creditor fails to give notice of the right to rescind or take the action required on receipt of a notice of rescission, the consumer may collect, in addition to actual damages, the statutory penalty of twice the amount of the finance charge imposed in connection with the transaction [15 U.S.C. § 1640(a)(2)(A)(i)] or, since the transaction was not under an open-end credit plan and was secured by the consumer's principal dwelling, not less than $400 or more than $4,000 [15 U.S.C. § 1640(a)(2)(A)(iv)]. The consumer also may recover the costs of the action, together with a reasonable attorney's fee as determined by the court [15 U.S.C. § 1640(a)(3)].

[e] Delay of Performance by Creditor

Except when a consumer has waived or modified his or her right to rescind a transaction [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.23(e); see also § 25.23[5][f]], in any transaction subject to TILA, no money may be disbursed other than in escrow, no services may be performed, and no materials may be delivered until the rescission period has expired and the creditor is reasonably satisfied that the consumer has not rescinded [12 C.F.R. § 226.23(c)].

NOTICE OF RIGHT TO CANCEL

Your Right to Cancel

You are entering into a transaction that will result in a [mortgage on or lien on or security interest in] your home. You have a legal right under federal law to cancel this transaction, without cost, within three business days from whichever of the following events occurs last:

(1) The date of the transaction, which is _____; or

(2) The date you received your Truth in Lending disclosures; or

(3) The date you received this notice of your right to cancel.

If you cancel the transaction, the [mortgage or lien or security interest] is also canceled. Within 20 calendar days after we receive your notice, we must take the steps necessary to reflect the fact that the [mortgage on or lien on or security interest in] your home has been canceled, and we must return to you any money or property you have given to us or to anyone else in connection with this transaction.

You may keep any money or property we have given you until we have done the things mentioned above, but you must then offer to return the money or property. If it is impractical or unfair for you to return the property, you must offer its reasonable value. You may offer to return the property at your home or at the location of the property. Money must be returned to the address below. If we do not take possession of the money or property within 20 calendar days of your offer, you may keep it without further obligation.

How to Cancel

If you decide to cancel this transaction, you may do so by notifying us in writing, at _____[creditor's name and business address].

You may use any written statement that is signed and dated by you and states your intention to cancel; you may use this notice by dating and signing below. Keep one copy of this notice because it contains important information about your rights.

If you cancel by mail or telegram, you must send the notice no later than midnight of _____[date] (or midnight of the third business day following the latest of the three events listed above). If you send or deliver your written notice to cancel some other way, it must be delivered to the above address no later than that time.

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a notice to a consumer of his or her right, under the Truth in Lending Act (TILA) [15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.], to rescind a closed-end credit transaction in which (1) an original debt that was subject to a security interest in the consumer's principal dwelling is being refinanced, (2) the security interest will be retained, and (3) the new amount financed exceeds a specified amount [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.23(a)(1) n.47, (f)(2); see also [b], below]. The creditor must give two copies of the notice to rescind to any consumer involved in the credit transaction [15 U.S.C. § 1635(a); 12 C.F.R. § 226.23(b)]. This form also includes a blank form for a notice that the consumer may use to exercise the right to rescind.

For the definition of a closed-end credit transaction and discussion of TILA and the right to rescind closed-end transactions, see § 25.23.

[b] Amount Financed

As a general rule, the right to rescind does not apply to a refinancing or consolidation by the same creditor of an extension of credit already secured by the consumer's principal dwelling [see § 25.23[5][b], [c]]. However, the right does apply to the extent that the new amount financed exceeds the unpaid principal balance, plus any earned unpaid finance charge on the existing debt, plus amounts attributable solely to the costs of the refinancing or consolidation [12 C.F.R. § 226.23(f)(2)].

[c] Format

Your Right to Cancel

You are entering into a new transaction to increase the amount of credit previously provided to you. Your home is the security for this new transaction. You have a legal right under federal law to cancel this new transaction, without cost, within three business days from whichever of the following events occurs last:

(1) The date of the new transaction, which is _____; or

(2) The date you received your new Truth in Lending disclosures; or

(3) The date you received this notice of your right to cancel.

If you cancel this new transaction, it will not affect any amount that you presently owe. Your home is the security for that amount. Within 20 calendar days after we receive your notice of cancellation of this new transaction, we must take the steps necessary to reflect the fact that your home does not secure the increase of credit. We must also return any money you have given to us or anyone else in connection with this new transaction.

You may keep any money we have given you in the new transaction until we have done the things mentioned above, but you must then offer to return the money at the address below. 10-25 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 25.232

§ 25.232 Notice of Right to Rescind (and Notice Rescinding) Open-End Credit Account Granting Security Interest in Consumer's Principal Dwelling

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a notice to a consumer of his or her right, under the Truth in Lending Act (TILA) [15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.], to rescind the establishment of an open-end credit account [see § 25.23[5][a]] in which the consumer has agreed to give the creditor a security interest in the consumer's principal dwelling. The creditor must give two copies of such a notice to any consumer involved in the credit transaction [15 U.S.C. § 1635(a); 12 C.F.R. § 226.15(b)]. This form also includes a blank form for a notice that the consumer may use to exercise the right to rescind.

For discussion of the applicability of TILA to consumer credit transactions, see § 25.23.

[b] Form and Content of Notice

The notice of right of rescission in open-end credit transactions must identify the transaction or occurrence subject to rescission and clearly and conspicuously disclose the retention or acquisition of a security interest in the consumer's principal dwelling. It must also describe how to exercise the right to rescind, include a form for that purpose, and designate the address of the creditor's place of business. Finally, the notice must disclose the effects of rescission, and the date on which the rescission period expires [12 C.F.R. § 226.15(b); see 15 U.S.C. § 1635(a)].

Regulation Z does not specify language for the notice or require that it be in any particular style or size of type. The form in [2], below, is a model form recommended by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System for use in open-end credit transactions in which the creditor is granted a security interest in the consumer's principal dwelling [see 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, app. G-5] and satisfies the regulatory requirements for the notice.

A consumer may exercise the right of rescission until the later of midnight of the third business day following consummation of any of the transactions giving rise to that right, delivery of notice of the right, or delivery of all material disclosures [12 C.F.R. § 226.15(a)(3); see also § 25.23[5]]. For discussion of the extension of this deadline, see [d], below.

When more than one consumer has the right to rescind, the exercise of the right by one of them is effective as to all of them [12 C.F.R. § 226.15(a)(4)]. Notice of the exercise of the right may be given by mail, telegram, or other writing. Notification by mail is considered given at the time of mailing; notification by telegram is given at the time of filing for transmission; notification by other writing is given at the time of delivery to the creditor's designated place of business [12 C.F.R. § 226.15(a)(2)].

If notice of the right to rescind and the material disclosures are not delivered, the right to rescind expires three years after consummation of the transaction giving rise to the right, on transfer of all of the consumer's interest in the property involved, or on sale of the property, whichever occurs first [12 C.F.R. § 226.15(a)(3)]. On the issue of delivery, written acknowledgment of receipt of the notice of the right of rescission does no more than create a rebuttable presumption of delivery, notwithstanding any rule of evidence [15 U.S.C. § 1635(c)].

When the consumer is entitled to rescind under TILA and the creditor fails to give notice of the right to rescind or to take the action required on receipt of a notice of rescission, the consumer may collect, in addition to actual damages, the statutory penalty of twice the amount of the finance charge imposed in connection with the transaction [15 U.S.C. § 1640(a)(2)(A)(i)]. The consumer also may recover the costs of the action, together with a reasonable attorney's fee as determined by the court [15 U.S.C. § 1640(a)(3)].

[e] Delay of Performance by Creditor

Except when a consumer has waived or modified his or her right to rescind a transaction [12 C.F.R. § 226.15(e); see also § 25.23[5][f]], in any transaction subject to TILA, no money may be disbursed other than in escrow, no services may be performed, and no materials may be delivered until the rescission period has expired and the creditor is reasonably satisfied that the customer has not rescinded [12 C.F.R. § 226.15(c)].

(1) The opening date of your account, which is _____; or

(2) The date you received your Truth in Lending disclosures; or

(3) The date you received this notice of your right to cancel the account.

If you cancel the account, the [mortgage on or lien on or security interest in] your home is also canceled. Within 20 days of receiving your notice, we must take the necessary steps to reflect the fact that the [mortgage on or lien on or security interest in] your home has been canceled. We must also return to you any money or property you have given to us or anyone else in connection with the account.

You may keep any money or property we have given you until we have done the things mentioned above, but you must then offer to return the money or property. If it is impractical or unfair for you to return the property, you must offer its reasonable value. You may offer to return the property at your home or at the location of the property. Money must be returned to the address shown below. If we do not take possession of the money or property within 20 calendar days of your offer, you may keep it without further obligation.

If you decide to cancel the account, you may do so by notifying us in writing, at _____[creditor's name and business address].

You may use any written statement that is signed and dated by you and states your intention to cancel; you may use this notice by dating and signing below. Keep one copy of this notice no matter how you notify us because it contains important information about your rights.

If you cancel by mail or telegram, you must send the notice no later than midnight of _____[date] (or midnight of the third business day following the latest of the three events listed above). If you send or deliver your written notice to cancel some other way, it must be delivered to the above address no later than that time.

The form in [2], below, is a notice to a consumer of his or her right, under the Truth in Lending Act (TILA) [15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.], to rescind the extension of additional credit under an existing open-end credit account agreement in which the creditor already has a security interest in the consumer's principal dwelling [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.15(a)(1)(i)]. The creditor must give the consumer two copies of such a notice of the right to rescind [15 U.S.C. § 1635(a); 12 C.F.R. § 226.15(b)]. This form also includes a blank form for a notice that the consumer may use to exercise the right to rescind.

This form is a model form recommended by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System for use in open-end credit transactions in which additional extensions of credit are made [see 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, app. G-6] and satisfies the regulatory requirements for the notice [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.15(a)(1)(i)]. For discussion of those requirements, see § 25.232[1][c].

[2] FORM

Notice of Right to Rescind (and Notice Rescinding) Extension of Additional Credit on Existing Open-End Credit Account Involving Security Interest in Consumer's Principal Dwelling

NOTICE OF RIGHT TO CANCEL

Your Right to Cancel

We have extended credit to you under your open-end credit account. This extension of credit will increase the amount you owe on your account. We already have a [mortgage on or lien on or security interest in] your home as security for your account. You have a legal right under federal law to cancel the extension of credit, without cost, within three business days after the latest of the following events:

(1) The date of the additional extension of credit, which is _____; or

(2) The date you received your Truth in Lending disclosures; or

(3) The date you received this notice of your right to cancel the additional extension of credit.

If you cancel the additional extension of credit, your cancellation will apply only to the additional amount and to any increase in the [mortgage or lien or security interest] that resulted because of the additional amount. It will not affect the amount you presently owe, and it will not affect the [mortgage on or lien on or security interest in] your home that we already have. Within 20 calendar days after we receive your notice of cancellation, we must take the necessary steps to reflect the fact that any increase in the [mortgage on or lien on or security interest in] your home has been canceled. We must also return to you any money or property you have given to us or to anyone else in connection with this extension of credit.

You may keep any money or property we have given you until we have done the things mentioned above, but you must then offer to return the money or property. If it is impractical or unfair for you to return the property, you must offer its reasonable value. You may offer to return the property at your home or at the location of the property. Money must be returned to the address shown below. If we do not take possession of the money or property within 20 calendar days of your offer, you may keep it without further obligation.

If you decide to cancel the additional extension of credit, you may do so by notifying us in writing, at _____[creditor's name and business address].

You may use any written statement that is signed and dated by you and states your intention to cancel; you may use this notice by dating and signing below. Keep one copy of this notice no matter how you notify us because it contains important information about your rights.

Notice of Right to Rescind (and Notice Rescinding) Increase of Credit Limit on Existing Open-End Credit Account Involving Security Interest in Consumer's Principal Dwelling

NOTICE OF RIGHT TO CANCEL

Your Right to Cancel

We have agreed to increase the credit limit on your open-end credit account. We have a [mortgage on or lien on or security interest in] your home as security for your account. Increasing the credit limit will increase the amount of the [mortgage on or lien on or security interest in] your home. You have a legal right under federal law to cancel the increase in your credit limit, without cost, within three business days after the latest of the following events:

(1) The date of the increase in your credit limit, which is _____; or

(2) The date you received your Truth in Lending disclosures; or

(3) The date you received this notice of your right to cancel the increase in your credit limit.

If you cancel, your cancellation will apply only to the increase in your credit limit and to the [mortgage or lien or security interest] that resulted from the increase in your credit limit. It will not affect the amount you owe at present, and it will not affect the [mortgage on or lien on or security interest in] your home that we already have. Within 20 calendar days after we receive your notice of cancellation, we must take the necessary steps to reflect the fact that any increase in the [mortgage on or lien on or security interest in] your home has been canceled. We must also return to you any money or property you have given to us or to anyone else in connection with this increase.

You may keep any money or property we have given you until we have done the things mentioned above, but you must then offer to return the money or property. If it is impractical or unfair for you to return the property, you must offer its reasonable value. You may offer to return the property at your home or at the location of the property. [2] FORM

Notice of Right to Rescind (and Notice Rescinding) Increase in Amount of Security Interest in Consumer's Principal Dwelling Under Existing Open-End Credit Account

NOTICE OF RIGHT TO CANCEL

Your Right to Cancel

You have agreed to increase the amount of the [mortgage on or lien on or security interest in] your home that we hold as security for your open-end credit account. You have a legal right under federal law to cancel the increase, without cost, within three business days after the latest of the following events:

(1) The date of the increase in the security, which is _____; or

(2) The date you received your Truth in Lending disclosures; or

(3) The date you received this notice of your right to cancel the increase in the security.

If you cancel the increase in the security, your cancellation will apply only to the increase in the amount of the [mortgage or lien or security interest]. It will not affect the amount you presently owe on your account, and it will not affect the [mortgage on or lien on or security interest in] your home that we already have. Within 20 calendar days after we receive your notice of cancellation we must take the necessary steps to reflect that any increase in the [mortgage on or lien on or security interest in] your home has been canceled. We must also return to you any money or property you have given to us or to anyone else in connection with this increase.

You may keep any money or property we have given you until we have done the things mentioned above, but you must then offer to return the money or property. If it is impractical or unfair for you to return the property, you must offer its reasonable value. You may offer to return the property at your home or at the location of the property. Money must be returned to the address shown below. If we do not take possession of the money or property within 20 calendar days of your offer, you may keep it without further obligation.

If you decide to cancel the increase in security, you may do so by notifying us in writing, at _____[creditor's name and business address].

You may use any written statement that is signed and dated by you and states your intention to cancel; you may use this notice by dating and signing below. Keep one copy of this notice no matter how you notify us because it contains important information about your rights.

If you cancel by mail or telegram, you must send the notice no later than midnight of _____[date] (or midnight of the third business day following the latest of the three events listed above). CHAPTER 25 REAL ESTATE LOANS
PART IV. FORMS
D. Federal Disclosure Requirements

§ 25.237 Home Equity Loan Plan Disclosures

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a model disclosure form containing information regarding a home equity loan plan, which is any open-end consumer credit plan [see § 25.23[5][a]] (also referred to as a credit line) that provides for an extension of credit secured by the consumer's dwelling [15 U.S.C. § 1637a(a); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5b(a)]. Creditors (and certain third parties) must (1) provide detailed information regarding the home equity plan and (2) observe stringent substantive limitations on the way in which the plan is structured [15 U.S.C. § 1647; 12 C.F.R. § 226.5b(f)].

This form is recommended by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System [see 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, app. G-14A] and satisfies the disclosure requirements. For the purpose of illustration, it describes a plan offering a 10-year draw period, which is followed by a five-year repayment period. Payments are based on a fraction of the outstanding balance.

[b] Dwelling Defined

The disclosure requirement applies when an open-end consumer credit plan provides for an extension of credit that is secured by the consumer's dwelling [15 U.S.C. § 1637a(a); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5b(a)], which includes not only a principal dwelling but also any second or vacation home [15 U.S.C. § 1637a(d)].

[c] Creditors and Third Parties

The disclosure requirements apply to creditors [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.5b; see also 12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(17)(i) (creditor defined); § 25.111]. A third person who provides applications to consumers for home equity plans also must provide the consumer with a required home equity brochure [see § 25.137[1][d]] along with the application [12 CF.R. § 226.5b(c)]. Further, if the creditor has provided the third person with home equity disclosures for its home equity plan [see § 25.137[1][d]], that person must provide those disclosures to the consumer along with the application and the brochure [

12 C.F.R. § 226.5b(c)].

[d] Disclosures to Be Provided With Application

The creditor normally must provide the consumer with both of the following documents at the time of providing the consumer with an application for a home equity plan [15 U.S.C. § 1637a(b)(1)(A)]:

- Detailed disclosures regarding the creditor's home equity plan [see 15 U.S.C. § 1637a(a); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5b(d) (required disclosures)]; and

- A brochure describing home equity plans, which has been prepared by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, or a suitable substitute that provides substantially similar information to the information set forth in that brochure [see 15 U.S.C. § 1637a(e); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5b(e)].

However, in the case of telephone applications, applications contained in magazines or other publications, or applications provided by a third person, the required disclosures must be delivered or placed in the mail not later than three business days following the creditor's receipt of the consumer's completed application [15 U.S.C. § 1637a(b)(1)(B); *12 C.F.R. § 226.5b(b)*n.10a].

The required disclosures describe the payment terms, including the method of computation of the minimum payment, the frequency of payments, the length of the draw period, and any repayment period [12 C.F.R. § 226.5b(d)(5); see 15 U.S.C. § 1637a(a)(8)-(11)]. They also provide information regarding fees imposed by the creditor [15 U.S.C. § 1637a(a)(3); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5b(d)(7)], variable rates [15 U.S.C. § 1637a(a)(2); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5b(d)(12)], and balloon payments [15 U.S.C. § 1637a(a)(10); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5b(d)(5)(ii)]. The required information must be provided only to the extent applicable [12 C.F.R. § 226.5b(d)].

The disclosures regarding the creditor's home equity plan must be provided on the application or on a separate form [15 U.S.C. § 1637a(b)(2)(A); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5b(a)(1); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.5(a)(1) n.8 (disclosures need not be in a form that the consumer can keep)]. They must be made clearly and conspicuously and must be grouped together and segregated from all unrelated information [15 U.S.C. § 1637a(b)(2)(B); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5b(a)(1)]. Certain items must precede the other required disclosures [see 15 U.S.C. § 1637a(b)(2)(C); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5b(a)(2)].

[e] Additional Information Provided Before First Transaction

The creditor must provide the consumer with an additional set of disclosures before the home equity plan is opened. These additional disclosures repeat some of the information set forth in the creditor's first disclosure statement (for example, payment information), and must be provided along with the initial disclosures that must be furnished to a consumer when any open-end credit account subject to TILA is opened [15 U.S.C. § 1637(a)(8); 12 C.F.R. § 226.6(e)]. For a model initial disclosure statement and further discussion, see Ch. 46, Credit Card and Other Open-End Credit Transactions .

[f] Substantive Limitations on Home Equity Plans

The creditor may not change, by contract or otherwise, the annual percentage rate after the plan is opened unless the change is based on an index that is not under the creditor's control and the index value is available to the general public [15 U.S.C. § 1647(a); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5b(f)(1)].

The creditor may not, by contract or otherwise, terminate an account and demand repayment of the entire outstanding balance in advance of the original term, unless one of the following has occurred [15 U.S.C. § 1647(b); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5b(f)(2)]:

- There has been fraud or material misrepresentation by the consumer in connection with the plan.

- The consumer has failed to meet the repayment terms of the agreement.

- The consumer acts or fails to act in a way that adversely affects the creditor's security for the plan, or any right of the creditor in the security.

The creditor may not change, by contract or otherwise, any term of the plan, except that the creditor may do the following [12 C.F.R. § 226.5b(f)(3)]:

- Provide in the initial agreement that it may prohibit additional extensions of credit or reduce the credit limit during any period in which the maximum annual percentage rate is reached.

- Provide in the initial agreement that specified changes will occur if a specified event takes place.

- Change the index and margin used under the plan if the original index is no longer available, historical fluctuations in the two indices were substantially similar, and the new index and margin will produce an annual percentage rate substantially similar to the rate in effect at the time the original index became available [see 15 U.S.C. § 1647(c)(2)(A)].

- Make a specified change if the consumer specifically agrees in writing to the change at that time.

- Make a change that will unequivocally benefit the consumer throughout the remainder of the agreement [see 15 U.S.C. § 1647(c)(2)(F), (4)].

- Make an insignificant change to terms [see 15 U.S.C. § 1647(c)(1)].

- Temporarily prohibit additional extensions of credit or reduce the credit limit in six specified circumstances [see 15 U.S.C. § 1647(c)(2)(B)-(E)].

Home Equity Loan Plan Disclosures

IMPORTANT TERMS OF OUR HOME EQUITY LINE OF CREDIT

This disclosure contains important information about our Home Equity Line of Credit. You should read it carefully and keep a copy for your records.

Availability of Terms: To obtain the terms described below, you must submit your application before _____[date].

If these terms change (other than the annual percentage rate) and you decide, as a result, not to enter into an agreement with us, you are entitled to a refund of any fees that you have paid to us or anyone else in connection with your application.

Security Interest: We will take a mortgage on your home. You could lose your home if you do not meet the obligations in your agreement with us.

Possible Actions: Under certain circumstances, we can (1) terminate your line, require you to pay us the entire outstanding balance in one payment, and charge you certain fees; (2) refuse to make additional extensions of credit; and (3) reduce your credit limit.

If you ask, we will give you more specific information concerning when we can take these actions.

Minimum Payment Requirements: You can obtain advances of credit for 10 years (the "draw period"). During the draw period, payments will be due monthly. Your minimum monthly payment will equal the greater of $100 or 1/360th of the outstanding balance plus the finance charges that have accrued on the outstanding balance.

After the draw period ends, you will no longer be able to obtain credit advances and must pay the outstanding balance over five years (the "repayment period"). During the repayment period, payments will be due monthly. Your minimum monthly payment will equal 1/60th of the balance that was outstanding at the end of the draw period plus the finance charges that have accrued on the remaining balance.

Minimum Payment Example: If you made only the minimum monthly payments and took no other credit advances, it would take 15 years to pay off a credit advance of $10,000 at an ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE of 12 percent. During that period, you would make 120 monthly payments varying between $127.78 and $100.00 followed by 60 monthly payments varying between $187.06 and $118.08.

Fees and Charges: To open and maintain a line of credit, you must pay the following fees to us:

Application fee: $150 (due at application)
Points: 1 percent of credit limit (due when account opened)
Annual maintenance fee: $75 (due each year)

You also must pay certain fees to third parties to open a line. These fees generally total between $500 and $900. If you ask, we will give you an itemization of the fees you will have to pay to third parties.

Minimum Draw and Balance Requirements: The minimum credit advance you can receive is $500. You must maintain an outstanding balance of at least $100.

Tax Deductibility: You should consult a tax advisor regarding the deductibility of interest and charges for the line.

Variable-Rate Information: The line has a variable-rate feature, and the annual percentage rate (corresponding to the periodic rate) and the minimum payment can change as a result.

The annual percentage rate includes only interest and not other costs.

The annual percentage rate is based on the value of an index. The index is the monthly average prime rate charged by banks and is published in the Federal Reserve Bulletin. To determine the annual percentage rate that will apply to your line, we add a margin to the value of the index.

Ask us for the current index value, margin, and annual percentage rate. After you open a credit line, rate information will be provided on periodic statements that we will send you.

Rate Changes: The annual percentage rate can change each month. The maximum ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE that can apply is 18 percent. Except for this 18 percent "cap," there is no limit on the amount by which the rate can change during any one-year period.

Maximum Rate and Payment Examples: If you had an outstanding balance of $10,000 during the draw period, the minimum monthly payment at the maximum ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE of 18 percent would be $177.78. This annual percentage rate could be reached during the first month of the draw period.

If you had an outstanding balance of $10,000 at the beginning of the repayment period, the minimum monthly payment at the maximum ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE of 18 percent would be $316.67. This annual percentage rate could be reached during the first month of the repayment period.

Historical example: The following table shows how the annual percentage rate and the minimum monthly payments for a single $10,000 credit advance would have changed based on changes in the index over the past 15 years. The index values are from [month] of each year. While only one payment amount per year is shown, payments would have varied during each year.

The table assumes that no additional credit advances were taken, that only the minimum payments were made each month, and that the rate remained constant during each year. It does not necessarily indicate how the index or your payments will change in the future.

PART IV. FORMS
D. Federal Disclosure Requirements

§ 25.238 RESPA Good Faith Estimate of Settlement Charges

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a good faith estimate of settlement charges that a borrower is likely to incur in a transaction subject to the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act (RESPA) [12 U.S.C. § 2601 et seq.]. The lender in most transactions involving federally related mortgage loans [see § 25.238[1][b]] must provide the borrower with such an estimate [12 U.S.C. § 2604(c); see § 25.238[1][f]]. This version of the good faith estimate is the form in Appendix C of Regulation X [see 24 C.F.R. pt. 3500]. For further discussion of RESPA, see § 25.24.

[b] RESPA Application to Federally Related Mortgage Loan

RESPA applies to all transactions involving a federally related mortgage loan [12 U.S.C. § 2602(1); 24 C.F.R. § 3500.5(b)], which is any loan (other than temporary financing, such as a construction loan) that meets the requirements discussed below [12 U.S.C § 2602(1)].

First, the loan must be secured by a first lien or subordinate lien on residential real property (including a refinancing of a secured loan) on which there is located any structure designed principally for occupancy by one-to-four families (including individual units of condominiums and cooperatives) or a manufactured home. Alternatively, this requirement regarding the improvement on the real property may be satisfied by using the loan proceeds, following settlement, to construct the structure or place the manufactured home on the property [12 U.S.C. § 2602(1)(A); 24 C.F.R. § 3500.2 (definition of federally related mortgage loan: see par. (1)(i)(B))].

Second, the loan must be either:

- Made by a lender that is regulated by, or whose deposits or accounts are insured by, any agency of the United States [12 U.S.C. § 2602(1)(B)(i)]; or

- Made, insured, guaranteed, supplemented, or assisted in any way, by any officer or agency of the United States or under or in connection with a housing or urban development program administered by HUD or a housing or related program administered by any other officer or agency of the United States [12 U.S.C. § 2602(1)(B)(ii)]; or

- Intended to be sold by the originating lender to the Federal National Mortgage Association, the Government National Mortgage Association, the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation, or a financial institution from which the loan is to be purchased by the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation [12 U.S.C. § 2602(1)(B)(iii)]; or

- Made by a creditor [see 15 U.S.C § 1602(f) (definition)] that makes or invests in residential real estate loans aggregating more than $1,000,000 per year [12 U.S.C. § 2602(1)(B)(iv); see 24 C.F.R. § 3500.2 (definition of federally related mortgage loan: see par. (1)(ii)(D)--state agency or state instrumentality is not creditor, and residential real estate loan is any loan secured by residential property, including single-family and multifamily residential property)]; or

- Originated either by a dealer or, if the obligation is to be assigned to any maker of mortgage loans specified above, by a mortgage broker [24 C.F.R. § 3500.2 (definition of federally related mortgage loan: see par. (1)(ii)(E))]; or

- Subject to a home-equity conversion mortgage (also commonly called a reverse mortgage) issued by any maker of mortgage loans specified above [24 C.F.R. § 3500.2 (definition of federally related mortgage loan: see par. (1)(ii)(F))].

[c] Settlement Services

Settlement, in the present context, is the process of executing legally binding documents regarding a lien on property that is subject to a federally related mortgage loan. This process may also be called closing or escrow in different jurisdictions [24 C.F.R. § 3500.2 (definition of settlement)]. For comprehensive coverage of escrows, see Ch. 26, Real Property Escrows .

Settlement services include any service provided in connection with a real estate settlement, such as the origination of a federally related mortgage loan, including the taking of a loan application, loan processing, and the underwriting and funding of the loan [12 U.S.C. § 2602(3)].

RESPA does not apply to any of the following transactions [24 C.F.R. § 3500.5(b); see § 25.112]:

- A loan on property constituting 25 or more acres.

- An extension of credit primarily for a business, commercial, or agricultural purpose.

- Temporary financing, such as a construction loan.

- Any loan secured by vacant or unimproved land, unless within two years from the date of the settlement of the loan, a structure or a manufactured home will be constructed or placed on the real property using the loan proceeds.

- Any assumption in which the lender does not have the right expressly to approve a subsequent person as the borrower on an existing federally related mortgage loan.

- Any conversion of a federally related mortgage loan to different terms that are consistent with provisions of the original mortgage instrument, provided a new note is not required, even if the lender charges an additional fee for the conversion.

- A bona fide transfer of a loan obligation in the secondary market, except as otherwise set forth in RESPA and Regulation X.

[e] Lender's Duties

A lender, when making a loan, must (1) provide a "Special Information Booklet," prepared by HUD, to each person applying for a loan covered by RESPA [12 U.S.C. § 2604(d); see § 25.142] and (2) provide a good faith estimate of probable settlement charges to each person [12 U.S.C. § 2604(c); see § 25.238[1][f]].

The lender, or a settlement agent, also must provide a standard HUD-1 or HUD-1A settlement statement, unless the transaction is exempt from this requirement [see 12 U.S.C. § 2603; 24 C.F.R. § 3500.10; see also § 25.144].

[f] Disclosure Requirement

The lender normally must provide the borrower with a good faith estimate of the amount of or range of charges for the specific settlement services that the borrower is likely to incur in the transaction [12 U.S.C. § 2604(c); 24 C.F.R. § 3500.7(a)]. The lender must provide this estimate, either by delivering it or by placing it in the mail to the loan applicant, not later than three business days after the application is received or prepared [24 C.F.R. § 3500.7(a)(1), (2)]. If the lender denies the application, or the applicant withdraws the application, before the end of the three-day period, however, the lender need not provide a good faith estimate [24 C.F.R. § 3500.7(a)(3)].

If a mortgage broker has provided a good faith estimate, the lender is not required to provide an additional good faith estimate. If there is a mortgage broker, and the lender has not provided a good faith estimate, the mortgage broker must provide a good faith estimate not later than three business days after the mortgage broker receives either an application or information sufficient to complete an application. The lender is responsible for ascertaining whether the good faith estimate has been provided [24 C.F.R. § 3500.7(b)(1)]. However, the mortgage broker is not required to provide the applicant with a good faith estimate if, before the end of the three-business-days period, either the mortgage broker or lender denies the application, or the applicant withdraws the application [24 C.F.R. § 3500.7(b)(3)]. The mortgage broker is not permitted to require, as a condition for providing a good faith estimate, that the applicant submit supplemental documentation to verify the information provided on the application [24 C.F.R. § 3500.7(b)(5)].

For a mortgage loan disclosure statement that satisfies California laws governing mortgage loan transactions and also includes a good faith estimate, see § 25.251.

[g] Format and Contents

This form is a copy of the good faith estimate form that is set out in Appendix C of Regulation X. The loan originator must prepare the good faith estimate in accordance with the requirements of 24 C.F.R. § 3500.7 and the instructions in Appendix C, which allow for flexibility in the preparation and distribution of the good faith estimate in hard copy and electronic format [24 C.F.R. § 3500.7(d)].

This form is a notice that should be included in a notice of adverse action given by a lender to a borrower in connection with a real estate loan application [see 12 C.F.R. § 202.9(a)(2), (b)]. A creditor may not unlawfully discriminate against any applicant for credit [see 15 U.S.C. § 1691(a); see also § 25.20], must notify the applicant of action on the application within 30 days of the receipt of the application, and must, if applicable, provide the applicant with a statement of reasons for denying the application [15 U.S.C. § 1691(d)].

Any notification given to an applicant against whom adverse action is taken must be in writing and must contain the following [12 C.F.R. § 202.9(a)(2)]:

- A statement of the action taken.
- The name and address of the creditor.
- The name and address of the federal agency that administers creditor compliance with this requirement.
- Either a statement of specific reasons for the action taken or a disclosure of the applicant's right to a statement of reasons within 30 days after receipt by the creditor of a request made within 60 days of the notification (with the disclosure to include the name, address, and telephone number of the person or office from which the statement of reasons can be obtained).
- A statement of the provisions of 15 U.S.C. § 1601(a).

This form consists of regulatory language that satisfies this particular disclosure requirement [12 C.F.R. § 202.9(b)(1)].

EQUAL CREDIT OPPORTUNITY ACT NOTICE

The federal Equal Credit Opportunity Act prohibits creditors from discriminating against credit applicants on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex, marital status, or age (provided the applicant has the capacity to enter into a binding contract); or because all or part of the applicant's income derives from any public assistance program; or because the applicant has in good faith exercised any right under the Consumer Credit Protection Act. The federal agency that administers compliance with this law concerning this creditor is [name and address of appropriate agency; see Appendix A to 12 C.F.R. pt. 202].

§ 25.250 Mortgage Loan Disclosure Statement [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10241; 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2840]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is one of two disclosure statements approved by the Department of Real Estate (DRE) for use in meeting the requirements of Bus. & Prof. Code § 10241 [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2840(a); see also § 25.251]. It is designated as Form RE 882. A mortgage loan broker must present a mortgage loan disclosure statement to a prospective borrower whenever the broker negotiates a loan that is to be secured by a lien on real property [see § 25.250[1][b]]. A real estate broker must obtain DRE approval for the use of a form that differs from an approved version [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2840(c)].

ELECTRONIC FORMS NOTE

ELECTRONIC FORMS NOTE: Electronic copies of Form RE 882, which can be printed out and filled in for use, can be obtained at the web site of the Department of Real Estate, located at http://www.dre.ca.gov/. You may also obtain a copy of this form via email by contacting Matthew Bender & Co. at (800) 424-0651, ext. 405, or e-mailing us at cal.custquest@bender.com and requesting an electronic copy of CLF Form 25.250. Please be sure to include your email address along with your request and we will provide the form via return email. To view and print these forms, your computer system will need Adobe Acrobat Reader version 3.0 or higher.

[b] Mortgage Broker Disclosure Requirements

For purposes of the disclosure requirement, a mortgage loan broker is any real estate broker who solicits borrowers, or causes borrowers to be solicited, through express or implied representations that the broker will act as an agent in arranging a loan, but who in fact makes the loan from his or her own funds [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10240(b); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10131(d)]. If a loan negotiated by such a broker is to be secured directly or indirectly by a lien on real property, then the broker must deliver a disclosure statement to the borrower within three business days after receipt of a completed loan application, or before the borrower becomes obligated on the note, whichever is earlier [Bus. & Prof.

Code §§ 10240(a), 10241; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10245; see also 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2842.5]. For these purposes, a loan application will be considered complete when (1) the broker receives or has prepared a written application on any form normally used by the lender for a federally related mortgage loan or (2) in the case of a non-federally related mortgage loan, when the broker receives or has prepared a written application on any form normally used by a lender or the broker [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2842.5].

In a federally regulated residential mortgage loan transaction in which the principal loan amount exceeds the principal loan levels set forth in Bus. & Prof. Code § 10245, a real estate broker meets the disclosure requirements of Bus. & Prof. Code § 10240 if the borrower receives all of the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10240(c)]:

- A good faith estimate of settlement charges that meets the requirements of the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act of 1974 [12 U.S.C. § 2601 et seq.] and sets forth the broker's real estate license number and a clear and conspicuous statement on the face of the document stating that the good faith estimate does not constitute a loan commitment.[see § 25.251]

- All applicable disclosures required by the Truth in Lending Act [15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.].

- If the loan contains a balloon payment provision, the disclosure described in Bus. & Prof. Code § 10241(h), the balloon disclosure required for that loan by Fannie Mae or Freddie Mac, or an alternative disclosure determined by the Department of Real Estate to satisfy the requirements of the Truth in Lending Act.

In addition, before becoming obligated on the loan, the borrower must acknowledge, in writing, receipt of the good faith estimate of settlement charges and all applicable disclosures required by the Truth in Lending Act. The real estate broker must retain on file for three years true and correct copies of the signed acknowledgment, the good faith estimate, and all applicable disclosures required by the Truth in Lending Act, as acknowledged by the borrower [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10240].

[c] Required Contents

The mortgage loan disclosure statement must set forth separately all of the items specified in Bus. & Prof. Code § 10241.

If the broker elects to make a loan that consists wholly or in part of broker-controlled funds, the broker must advise the borrower of that fact not later than the next business day after making the election, but in any event before the close of escrow of the loan transaction [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10241.2].

Additional disclosure requirements require a seller of residential real property who knows that any release of an illegal controlled substance has come to be located on or beneath that real property to give written notice advising of that condition to the buyer before sale of the property [Civ. Code § 1102.18(b)]. An illegal controlled substance is a drug, substance, or immediate precursor listed in specified schedules [see Health & Safety Code § 11053 et seq.], or an emission or waste material resulting from the unlawful manufacture or attempt to manufacture of an illegal controlled substance, which does not include marijuana [Civ. Code § 1102.18(a)(1)]. A release of such a substance is any spilling, leaking, pumping, pouring, emitting, emptying, discharging, injecting, escaping, leaching, dumping, or disposing of the illegal controlled substance in a structure or into the environment [Civ. Code § 1102.18(b)(1)].

The seller of any real property subject to the disclosure requirements of Civ. Code § 1102 et seq. must also make disclosures if the property being transferred is subject to a continuing lien securing the levy of special taxes pursuant to the Mello-Roos Community Facilities Act [Gov. Code § 53111 et seq.] or to a fixed lien assessment collected in installments to secure bonds issued under the Improvement Bond Act of 1915 [Sts. & Hy. Code § 8500 et seq.], which concerns street improvements, or to a contractual assessment program authorized pursuant to Sts. & Hy. Code § 5898.24 [Civ. Code § 1102.6b(a)(2)].

A seller may satisfy the disclosure notice requirements by delivering a disclosure notice obtained from a nongovernmental source that satisfies the specified requirements [Civ. Code § 1102.6d(d)(1); see Civ. Code § 1102.6d(d)(3) (provision does not change ability to make disclosures pursuant to Civ. Code § 1102.4)]. With regard to each type of required disclosure, a notice provided by a private entity other than a designated office, department, or bureau of the levying entity may be modified as needed to clearly and accurately describe either of the following [Civ. Code § 1102.6d(d)(2)].

- The notice may describe a special tax pursuant to the Mello-Roos Community Facilities Act levied against the property, or clearly and accurately consolidated information about two or more districts that levy or are authorized to levy a special tax pursuant to the Mello-Roos Community Facilities Act against the property. The notice must include the name of the district levying taxes against the property, the annual Mello-Roos tax due for the current tax year, the maximum tax that may be levied against the property in any year, the percentage by which the maximum Mello-Roos tax may increase per year, the date until which the Mello-Roos tax may be levied against the property, and a contact telephone number, if available, for further information about the Mello-Roos tax.

- The notice may describe special assessments and bonds pursuant to the Improvement Bond Act of 1915 levied against the property, or clearly and accurately consolidated information about two or more districts that levy or are authorized to levy the special assessments and bonds against the property. The notice must include the name of the special assessments and bonds, the current annual tax on the property for the special assessments and bonds, and a contact telephone number, if available, for further information about the special assessments and bonds.

The Toxic Mold Protection Act of 2001 [Health & Safety Code § 26100 et seq.] will eventually require any person who sells specified types of residential, commercial, or industrial real property to provide written disclosures to potential buyers concerning mold problems in the real property [see Health & Safety Code § 26140 et seq.].

[d] Execution and Delivery

The statement must be signed by the borrower and either the loan broker negotiating the loan or a real estate licensee acting for the broker in negotiating the loan [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10240; see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2842.5]. An exact copy of the executed statement must be delivered to the borrower at the time of its execution. The broker negotiating the loan must retain on file for three years a true and correct copy of the statement as signed by the borrower and a signed acknowledgment that the buyer has received a true and correct copy of the good faith estimate and all applicable disclosures required by the Truth in Lending Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10240].

[e] Other Statutory Requirements

If the mortgage loan is to be secured by a dwelling, the additional requirements noted in this subsection apply [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10240.1]. For these purposes, a dwelling is either of the following units owned by a signatory to the mortgage or deed of trust secured by the dwelling unit at the time of execution of the mortgage or trust deed: a single dwelling unit in a condominium or cooperative; or any parcel containing only residential buildings if the total number of units on the parcel is four or fewer [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10240.2].

Credit life insurance or credit disability insurance may not be required as a condition to making the loan [Bus. & Prof.

Code § 10241.1(a)]. The borrower may consent to credit life or credit disability insurance, provided the insurance does not exceed an amount reasonably necessary to discharge the loan and is for a term not exceeding of the term of the loan [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10241.1].

The maximum amount of charges and expenses to be paid by the borrower in connection with the making of the loan [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242(a), (b)], and the maximum amount of late charges [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242.5(a)] are set by statute.

In any loan transaction in which a fee is charged to a borrower for an appraisal of the real property that will serve as security for the loan, a copy of the appraisal report must be given by or on behalf of the broker to both the borrower and the lender at or before the closing of the loan transaction [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10241.3].

Interest on the loan may not be charged for any period before the date that the proceeds of the loan are made available to the borrower or are deposited in escrow [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242(c)].

Balloon payments are not allowed for installment loans with a term shorter than three years, or with a term shorter than six years when the loan is secured by an owner-occupied dwelling of fewer than three units. The installment payments must be substantially equal, with no installment (including the final one) being greater than twice the amount of the smallest installment [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 10244, 10244.1]. Notes given to the seller as part of the purchase price are exempt from the statutory prohibitions on balloon payments [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 10244, 10244.1]. Certain loans for financing the development of residential, commercial, or industrial buildings on the property are also exempt from the statutory restrictions on balloon payments and charges on renewed or refinanced loans [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10244].

If the loan provides for a balloon payment and an agreement has been reached regarding an extension of the loan term or a refinancing of the loan, a written disclosure regarding the balloon payment and the agreement must be made before the borrower becomes obligated on the loan, unless the agreement is set forth in the promissory note or in a rider to the note [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10241.4; see also § 25.252[2]].

When a loan with a maturity of less than three years is renewed or refinanced, the total charges to be paid on both the original and renewal loans may not exceed those prescribed by Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10244]. If the renewal or refinancing is through the same person who negotiated the original loan, the total costs and expenses on both loans may not exceed the aggregate costs and expenses set forth in Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242(a) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10244].

Prepayment penalties on loans secured by real property consisting of a single-family, owner-occupied dwelling are prohibited except for prepayments made within seven years of the execution of the loan. Within the seven year period, an amount not exceeding 20 percent of the unpaid balance may be prepaid in any 12 month period, and a prepayment charge may be imposed on any amount prepaid in any 12 month period in excess of 20 percent of the unpaid balance. The charge may not exceed an amount equal to the payment of six months advance interest on the amount prepaid in excess of 20 percent of the unpaid balance [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242.6(a)]. However, a prepayment penalty may not be charged to a borrower pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242.6 if (1) the dwelling securing the loan cannot be occupied due to damage caused by a natural disaster, (2) the governor has declared a state of emergency in connection with the disaster [see Gov. Code § 8550 et seq.], and (3) the prepayment is causally related to the disaster [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242.6(b)].

For any violation by the broker, the borrower may recover three times the amount charged in excess of the amount permitted by statute or the amount charged and prohibited by statute, plus costs and reasonable attorneys' fees, except in the case of bona fide error, in which case only the excess or prohibited amount may be recovered [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10246]. In the alternative, if the loan is negotiated in violation of any provision of the law, the borrower may demand that the broker return any bonus, brokerage, or commission paid or payable for the negotiation of the loan [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10248.2(b)]. Since each of these remedies is mutually exclusive, the borrower may elect one or the other for a single breach but not both [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10248.2(b)]. In the case of the first remedy, there is a two year limitation period that begins to run from the date that the prohibited or excess charge was received [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10246(c)]. The second remedy is subject to a two year limitation period that begins to run when the loan matures [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10248.2(d)].

If the loan is not consummated because the borrower fails to disclose the outstanding liens of record or the correct current vested title that is material to the loan on real property, the borrower is liable for the costs and expenses of making the loan that have been paid or incurred, and is liable for the payment of half of the total of the bonuses, brokerage fees, or commissions for negotiating, procuring, or arranging or making the loan [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10243].

This form may be presented to a prospective borrower by a mortgage loan broker when the requirements of Bus. & Prof. Code § 10241 apply [see § 25.250[1]], if the loan transaction is subject to the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act (RESPA) [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10240(c); 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2840(a); see also 12 U.S.C. § 2601 et seq. (RESPA)]. For discussion of RESPA, including the disclosure requirements imposed on mortgage brokers [see 24 C.F.R. § 3500.7(a), (b)], see § 25.238[1].

This form is designated as Form RE 883 by the Department of Real Estate. A different form must be used when the transaction is not subject to RESPA [see § 25.250[2]]. For discussion of the statutory and regulatory requirements that apply to both forms, including execution and delivery requirements, see § 25.250[1].

ELECTRONIC FORMS NOTE: Electronic copies of Form RE 883, which can be printed out and filled in for use, can be obtained at the web site of the Department of Real Estate, located at http://www.dre.ca.gov/. You may also obtain a copy of this form via email by contacting Matthew Bender & Co. at (800) 424-0651, ext. 3405, or e-mailing us at cal.custquest@bender.com and requesting an electronic copy of CLF Form 25.251. Please be sure to include your email address along with your request and we will provide the form via return email. To view and print these forms, your computer system will need Adobe Acrobat Reader version 3.0 or higher.

§ 25.252 Mortgage Loan Disclosures--Balloon Payment and Agreement Regarding Extension, Refinancing, or Renegotiation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10241.4]

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form must be provided to a borrower if all of the following conditions are satisfied:

- The loan is secured by a dwelling, provides for a balloon payment, and is otherwise subject to Bus. & Prof. Code § 10240 [see § 25.250[1]].

- An agreement has been reached that includes a promise, representation, or similar undertaking to extend or seek the extension of the loan term or refinancing of the loan.

- The undertaking is not set forth in the promissory note evidencing the loan or in a rider to that note.

Under these circumstances, the undertaking must be in writing, and this notice must be provided to the borrower before he or she becomes obligated on the loan [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10241.4(a)].

The notice must include a statement regarding the balloon payment, which must be in at least 10-point boldface capital letters [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10241.4(b)]. The notice must also contain, in at least 10-point boldface capital letters, a statement describing the extension, refinancing, or renegotiation agreement. The latter statement is to the effect that either (1) the lender or note holder has agreed to an extension, refinancing, or renegotiation or (2) the broker has agreed to use his or her best efforts to obtain a future extension, refinancing, or renegotiation--whichever better describes the nature of the undertaking [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10241.4(c)].

§ 25.253 Request for Payoff Demand Statement [Civ. Code § 2943]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a request for a payoff demand statement, which is a written statement, prepared by the beneficiary of a trust deed or a mortgagee in response to a written request by the grantor of the deed of trust or mortgage, setting forth the amounts required, as of the date of preparation, to fully satisfy all obligations secured by the deed of trust or mortgage that is the subject of the statement [Civ. Code § 2943(a)(5)]. This type of statement is used when the secured obligation is to be paid in full--for example, when the seller of real property needs to make arrangements to pay off an existing loan and obtain a reconveyance under the deed of trust. For an illustrative payoff demand statement, see § 25.254.

A request can be made by a person acting as agent (for example, escrow agent) for or successor in interest to the grantor [see Civ. Code § 2943(a)(4)]. An assignee can exercise the rights and perform the duties of the beneficiary of the deed of trust or mortgagee [see Civ. Code § 2943(a)(1)].

Civ. Code § 2943 includes provisions that, until January 1, 2014 [Civ. Code § 2943(g); see 2009 Stats., ch. 43, § 5 (eff. Jan. 1, 2010)], allow escrow agents to obtain valid payoff statements in short-sale transactions. In a case subject to those provisions, there is a "short-pay agreement" in effect, which is a written agreement by the beneficiary (or mortgagee) to release its lien on a property in return for payment of an amount less than the secured obligation [Civ. Code § 2943(a)(6)]. In a short-sale transaction, the person in possession of the short-pay agreement, or an escrow agent on that person's behalf, would submit a "short-pay request" asking the beneficiary to provide a "short-pay demand statement" [Civ. Code § 2943(a)(7),(8)]. The form in § 25.253[2] may be used for making a short-pay request, provided the form is modified to show specifically that it requests a "short-pay demand statement." If this form is used without specifying a short-pay demand statement in lieu of a payoff demand statement, then the beneficiary must treat it as a request for a normal payoff demand statement [Civ. Code § 2943(e)(1)]. The short-pay demand statement will be similar to a normal payoff demand statement but will set forth the amount that the beneficiary has agreed to accept in lieu of the whole outstanding debt, together with any terms and conditions under which the beneficiary will execute and deliver a reconveyance of the deed of trust securing the note that is the subject of the short-pay demand statement [Civ. Code §

2943(a)(7)]. For further discussion, see California Real Estate Law and Pracrice, Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages, § 555.53[4] (Matthew Bender), or California Real Estate Law and Pracrice, Ch. 123, Nonjudicial Foreclosure, § 123.13[7] (Matthew Bender).

[b] Beneficiary Statement

If an existing obligation is to be assumed rather than paid in full, a so-called beneficiary statement should be requested instead of a payoff demand statement [see Civ. Code § 2943(a)(2); see also Ch. 25B, Subordination, Assumption, and Assignment]. If a request for a statement does not specify a beneficiary statement, the beneficiary of the deed of trust or the mortgagee must treat the request as a request for a payoff demand statement [Civ. Code § 2943(e)(1)].

If beneficiary of the deed of trust or the mortgagee has more than one branch, office, or other place of business, the request must be made to the branch or office address set forth in the payment billing notice or payment book. In that case, the statement, unless it specifies otherwise, will be deemed to apply only to the unpaid balance of the single obligation named in the request and secured by the deed of trust or mortgage that is payable at the branch or office specified in the billing notice or payment book [Civ. Code § 2943(e)(5)].

Within 21 days after receiving the written request for the payoff demand statement, the beneficiary or mortgagee must prepare and deliver the statement [Civ. Code § 2943(c)] by either mailing it or faxing it [see Civ. Code § 2943(a)(3)]. However, if the deed of trust or mortgage is subject to a recorded notice of default or a filed complaint commencing a judicial foreclosure, the beneficiary or mortgagee need not prepare and deliver the statement unless the written request is received before the first publication of a notice of sale or the notice of the first date of sale established by a court [Civ. Code § 2943(c)].

[d] Copy of Deed of Trust or Mortgage

This form includes a request for a copy of the deed of trust or mortgage. That request must be honored at no additional charge [Civ. Code § 2943(e)(2)].

CHAPTER 25 REAL ESTATE LOANS
PART IV. FORMS
E. California Disclosure Requirements

§ 25.254 Payoff Demand Statement [Civ. Code § 2943]

[1] Comment

This form is a payoff demand statement, to be delivered in response to the request exemplified in § 25.253[2].

A charge up to $30 may be collected for furnishing the statement, unless the secured loan is FHA-insured or VA guaranteed [Civ. Code § 2943(e)(6)].

[b] Demand for Proof of Entitlement

Before delivering the statement, the beneficiary of the deed of trust or the mortgagee may require reasonable proof that the person making the request is entitled to make it. After demanding proof, the beneficiary or mortgagee will have 21 days after receipt of the proof to deliver the statement [Civ. Code § 2943(e)(3)].

A written statement appointing an authorized agent will constitute reasonable proof of the identity of an agent if it is signed by an entitled person and delivered personally to the beneficiary or mortgagee or delivered by registered return-receipt mail. Similar delivery of a policy of title insurance, preliminary report issued by a title company, original or photographic copy of a grant deed, or certified copy of letters testamentary, letters of guardianship, or letters of conservatorship will constitute reasonable proof of the identity of a successor in interest, provided the person requesting the statement is named as successor in interest in the document [Civ. Code § 2943(e)(3)].

[c] Required Contents

A payoff demand statement must set forth the amounts required (as of the date of preparation of the statement) to fully satisfy all obligations secured by the deed of trust or mortgage that is the subject of the payoff demand. It must include information reasonably necessary to compute the payoff amount on a per diem basis for the period of time, not to exceed 30 days, during which the per diem amount is not changed by the terms of the note [Civ. Code § 2943(a)(5); see

California National Bank v. Havis (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 1122, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 245 (letter acknowledging receipt of "payoff funds" but failing to state amount required to pay off loan or per diem interest rate was not a payoff demand statement)].

The payoff demand statement must also include a demand for the fee for the trustee, beneficiary, or mortgagee; otherwise, the fee may not be charged [Civ. Code § 2941(e)(3)]. The trustee, beneficiary, or mortgagee may charge a reasonable fee to the trustor or mortgagor, or the owner of the land, as the case may be, for all services involved in the preparation, execution, and recordation of the full reconveyance. Fees may be charged for, but are not limited to, document preparation and forwarding services rendered to effect the full reconveyance, as well as official fees. The fee may be made payable no earlier than the opening of a bona fide escrow, or no more than 60 days before the full satisfaction of the obligation secured by the deed of trust or mortgage [Civ. Code § 2941(e)(1)]. If the fee charged does not exceed $45, it is conclusively presumed to be reasonable [Civ. Code § 2941(e)(2)].

[d] Copy of Deed of Trust or Mortgage

If the request for the payoff demand statement includes a request for a copy of the deed of trust or mortgage, that request must be honored at no additional charge [Civ. Code § 2943(e)(2)].

[e] Reliance on Statement and Amendments

A payoff demand statement may be relied on in accordance with its terms. It may also be relied on for the purpose of establishing the amount necessary to pay the obligation in full. If the beneficiary or mortgage subsequently delivers notice of any amendment to the statement, then the amended statement may be relied on in accordance with its terms [Civ. Code § 2943(d)(1)]. If notice of an amendment is not given in writing, the beneficiary or mortgagee must deliver a written amendment to the statement no later than the next business day after that notice [Civ. Code § 2943(d)(2)].

[f] Continuing Unsecured Obligations

On the dates specified below, any sums that were due and for any reason not included in the statement or an amendment will continue to be recoverable by the beneficiary or mortgagee as an unsecured obligation of the obligor pursuant to the terms of the note and existing provisions of law [Civ. Code § 2943(d)(3); see Cathay Bank v. Fidelity Nat. Title Ins. Co. (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 266, 270, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 595] :

- If the transaction is voluntary, the obligor or an agent of the obligor may rely on the statement or an amendment on the earlier of (1) the close of escrow; (2) transfer of title; or (3) recordation of a lien.

- If the loan is subject to a recorded notice of default or a filed complaint commencing a judicial foreclosure, the obligor or an agent of the obligor may rely on the statement or an amendment on the acceptance of the last and highest bid at a trustee's sale or a court-supervised sale.

[g] Violations by Beneficiary or Mortgagee

The beneficiary of the deed of trust or the mortgagee, on willful failure to prepare and deliver a payoff demand statement within 21 days after receiving a valid request (or within 21 days after receiving proof of entitlement [see Civ. Code § 2943(e)(3); [b], above]), is liable for all damages that the entitled person may sustain by reason of the refusal and must forfeit $300 to the entitled person, whether or not actual damages are sustained. Each failure to prepare and deliver the statement creates a separate cause of action, but a judgment awarding the entitled person a forfeiture, or damages and forfeiture, for any failure to prepare and deliver a statement bars recovery of damages and forfeiture for any other failure to prepare and deliver a statement, with respect to the same obligation, in compliance with a request made within six months before or after the request that resulted in the award. A willful failure is an intentional failure to comply with the requirements of Civ. Code § 2943 without just cause or excuse [Civ. Code § 2943(e)(4)].

DIVISION II: REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 25 REAL ESTATE LOANS
PART IV. FORMS
E. California Disclosure Requirements

§ 25.255 Seller Financing Addendum and Disclosure

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is the California Association of Realtors form entitled "Seller Financing Addendum and Disclosure" (which is reprinted with permission of the California Association of Realtors, no endorsement implied). It satisfies the disclosure requirements that apply to any transaction involving the purchase of a dwelling for not more than four families when the purchase includes seller financing and there is an arranger of credit [Civ. Code § 2956; see Civ. Code § 2957(d) (arranged credit must involve finance charge or be payable in more than four installments)]. The disclosures pertain primarily to the terms of the seller financing [see [d], below].

[b] Arranger of Credit

An arranger of credit is a person, not a party to the credit transaction, who is involved in developing or negotiating credit terms and in completing the credit documents, and who directly or indirectly receives compensation for these services or from any transaction or transfer of real property that is facilitated by these services. Excluded from this definition are attorneys who represent the parties, persons acting as escrow holders in the transaction, and escrow holders who do not act as arrangers of credit [see Civ. Code § 2957(a)]. If a real estate licensee or a licensed attorney is a party, that person is considered an arranger of credit unless neither party to the transaction is represented by a real estate licensee [Civ. Code § 2957(a)(2)].

[c] Exceptions

The disclosures need not be made to a purchaser or seller entitled to receive alternative disclosures pursuant to the Truth in Lending Act [15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.], the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act [12 U.S.C. § 2601 et seq.], selected sections of the Business and Professions Code pertaining to mortgage loan transactions [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 10232.4, 10232.5, 10240; see also §§ 25.250[1], 25.260[1]], or the qualification or exemption requirements of Corp. Code § 25110 [Civ. Code § 2958]. For discussion of the qualification and exemption requirements of the corporate securities law, see Ch. 6, Securities Regulation Issues .

Before the execution of any note or security documents [see Civ. Code § 2959], the disclosures must be made to the purchaser by the arranger of credit and the seller, and to the seller by the arranger of credit and the purchaser [Civ. Code §§ 2956, 2959, 2963].

The disclosure statement must set forth all of the following:

- An identification of the note or other credit documents or security documents and of the property that is the security for the transaction [Civ. Code § 2963(a)].
- A description or copy of the terms of the promissory note or other credit documents [Civ. Code § 2963(b)].
- The principal terms and conditions of each recorded encumbrance that constitutes a lien that is or will be senior to the financing being arranged, including, as available [Civ. Code § 2963(c)]:
  - The original balance.
  - The current balance.
  - The periodic payment.
  - Any balloon payment.
  - The interest rate (and any provisions governing variations in the interest rate).
  - The maturity date.
  - Whether or not there is any current default in payment on that encumbrance.
- If refinancing would be required as a result of lack of full amortization under the terms of any existing or proposed loans: a warning that the refinancing might be difficult or impossible in the conventional mortgage marketplace [Civ. Code § 2963(d)].
- If negative amortization may result from any variable-rate or adjustable-rate financing being arranged, clear disclosure of this fact and an explanation of its potential effect [Civ. Code § 2963(e)].
- If the financing involves an all-inclusive deed of trust, a statement indicating [Civ. Code § 2963(f)]:
  - Whether the credit or security documents specify who is liable for payment or responsible for defense in the case of an attempted acceleration by a lender or other obligee under a prior encumbrance.
  - Whether the credit or security documents specify the responsibilities and rights of the parties in the event of a loan prepayment on a prior encumbrance that may result in a requirement for refinancing, a prepayment penalty, or a prepayment discount.

- If the credit or security documents contain such specifications of rights and responsibilities, a recital of the provisions that apply.

- If the financing being arranged, or any financing represented by a prior encumbrance, could result in a balloon payment, or in an acceleration of the principal balance: a disclosure of the date and amount of the balloon payment or the amount that would be due on the exercise of the right to accelerate, and a statement that there is no assurance that new financing or a loan extension will be available at the time of the balloon payment or acceleration [Civ. Code § 2963(g)].

- If the financing being arranged involves an all-inclusive deed of trust or real property sales contract [Civ. Code § 2963(h)]:

    - A disclosure of the party to whom payments must be made and who will be responsible for remitting these funds to payees under prior encumbrances and vendors under this transaction.

    - A warning that if that person is not a neutral third party, the parties may wish to agree to have a neutral third party designated for these purposes.

- A disclosure of the identity, occupation, employment, and income of the prospective purchaser, and credit data regarding that purchaser, as represented to the arranger by the prospective purchaser, or a disclosure that the arranger makes no representation about the creditworthiness of the specific prospective purchaser [Civ. Code § 2963(i)].

- A warning that Code Civ. Proc. § 580b may limit any recovery by the vendor to the net proceeds of the sale of the security property in the event of foreclosure [Civ. Code § 2963(i)].

- A statement that either [Civ. Code § 2963(j)]:

    - Loss-payee clauses have been added to property insurance protecting the vendor; or

    - Instructions have been or will be sent to the escrow holder (if any) or the appropriate insurance carriers for the addition of loss-payee clauses; or

    - The vendor should consider protecting himself or herself by having loss-payee clauses added.

- A statement that a request for notice of default under Civ. Code § 2924b has been recorded or, if a request has not been recorded, a statement that the vendor should consider recording such a request [Civ. Code § 2963(k)].

- A statement that either (1) a policy of title insurance has been obtained or will be obtained and furnished to the vendor and purchaser, insuring their respective interests, or (2) the vendor and purchaser individually should consider obtaining a policy of title insurance [Civ. Code § 2963(l)].

- A statement that either (1) the vendor should make alternative arrangements to determine whether property taxes have been paid or (2) a tax service has been arranged to report to the vendor whether property taxes have been paid on the property, identifying the person who will be responsible for the continued retention and compensation of the tax service [Civ. Code § 2963(m)].

- A disclosure of whether the security documents on the financing being arranged have been or will be recorded pursuant to Gov. Code § 27280, or a statement that the vendor's security may be subject to intervening liens or judgments that may occur after the note is executed and before any resort to security occurs if the security documents are not recorded [Civ. Code § 2963(n)].

- A statement, if applicable, that the purchaser is to receive cash from the proceeds of the transaction, specifying the amount, the source of the funds, and the purpose of the disbursement as represented by the purchaser [Civ. Code § 2963(o)].

- A statement that a request for notice of delinquency under Civ. Code § 2924e has been made, or, if such a request has not been made, a statement that the vendor should consider making such a request [Civ. Code § 2963(p)].

[e] Notice of Balloon Payment

When a balloon payment note with a repayment term of greater than one year is given in the type of transaction that is subject to the disclosure requirement, the holder of the note must give prior notice to the payor of the pending balloon payment [Civ. Code § 2966]. For a form for a notice, see Ch. 25A, Security Instruments for Real Estate Financing .

Every balloon payment note that is subject to the provisions of Civ. Code § 2966 must include a statement reciting that the holder of the note is required by statute to give notice of the balloon payment within a prescribed period [see Civ. Code § 2966(d)]. The required statutory language for the statement is set forth in Ch. 25A, Security Instruments for Real Estate Financing .

§ 25.260 Disclosure Statement to Lender or Note Purchaser [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.5; 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2846]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a disclosure statement prescribed by the Department of Real Estate, and designated as Form RE 851A, for use by a real estate broker in soliciting a lender to originate a real estate loan.

ELECTRONIC FORMS NOTE

ELECTRONIC FORMS NOTE: Electronic copies of Form RE 851A, which can be printed out and filled in for use, can be obtained at the web site of the Department of Real Estate, located at http://www.dre.ca.gov/. You may also obtain a copy of this form via email by contacting Matthew Bender & Co. at (800) 424-0651, ext. 405, or e-mailing us at cal.custquest@bender.com and requesting an electronic copy of CLF Form 25.260. Please be sure to include your email address along with your request and we will provide the form via return email. To view and print these forms, your computer system will need Adobe Acrobat Reader version 3.0 or higher.

[b] Basic Disclosure Requirement

In making a solicitation to a particular person and in negotiating with that person to make a loan secured by real property or to purchase a real property sales contract or a note secured by a trust deed, a real estate broker must deliver to the person solicited a completed disclosure statement [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.4(a)]. The contents of the statement will vary depending on the type of transaction involved [see [d]-[h], below]. The disclosure statement should be given as early as practicable before the person becomes obligated to make the loan or purchase; and, except as provided in Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.4(c), it must be given before the receipt by or on behalf of the broker of any funds from the person [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.4(a)].

A disclosure statement need not be provided when the prospective lender is any of the following persons [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.4(b)]:

- Any bank (or subsidiary), bank holding company (or subsidiary), savings bank or savings association holding company (or subsidiary), trust company, savings bank or savings and loan association (or subsidiary), credit union, industrial bank or industrial loan company, personal property broker, commercial finance lender, consumer finance lender, or insurance company doing business under the authority of, and in accordance with, the laws of California, any other state, or the United States, relating to banks, trust companies, savings banks or savings associations, credit unions, industrial banks or industrial loan companies, commercial finance lenders, or insurance companies, as evidenced by a license, certificate, or charter issued by the United States or any state, district, territory, or commonwealth of the United States.

- The United States or any state, district, territory, or commonwealth of the United States; any city, county, city and county, public district, public authority, public corporation, public entity, or political subdivision of a state, district, territory, or commonwealth of the United States; or any agency or corporation or other instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing, including the Federal National Mortgage Association, the Government National Mortgage Association, the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation, and the Department of Veterans Affairs.

- Trustees of a pension, profit sharing, or welfare fund, if the fund has a net worth of not less than $15,000,000.

- Any corporation with outstanding securities registered under Section 12 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 [see 15 U.S.C. § 78a et seq.] or any wholly owned subsidiary of that corporation.

- A licensed residential mortgage lender or servicer when acting under the authority of that license.

A disclosure statement need not be provided to the prospective purchaser of a security offered under authority of a permit issued pursuant to applicable provisions of the Corporate Securities Law of 1968 [Corp. Code § 25000 et seq.] for the offering, if one of the conditions of the exemption is that each prospective purchaser of the security be given a disclosure statement prescribed by the regulation before the prospective purchaser becomes obligated to purchase the security [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.4(b)].

The form in [2], below, was published by the Department of Real Estate in order to aid real estate licensees in providing information of significance to prospective lenders and purchasers of promissory notes secured by real property and real property sales contracts in a uniform and effective manner [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2846(b); see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2846(a)]. Alternative disclosure statement forms can be approved, but only if the broker seeking approval establishes that the request for approval is made on behalf of 25 or more real estate brokers who are subject to the requirements of Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232(d) (relating to brokers who are not under common management, direction, or control) [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2846(b)].

[e] Transaction Involving New Loan

The form in [2], below, should be used for a loan origination or new loan transaction. For these purposes, a broker is involved in a new loan transaction if he or she performs acts described in Bus. & Prof. Code § 10131(d) (that is, soliciting borrowers or lenders, collecting payments, or performing services for borrowers, lenders, or note owners) in negotiating a loan to be secured by a lien on real property [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.5(a); see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 10131(d)]. The disclosure statement for such a transaction must include the following information [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.5(a)]:

- Address or other means of identification of the real property that is to be the security for the borrower's obligation.

- Age, size, type of construction, and description of improvements to the property, if contained in the appraisal or as represented to the broker by the prospective borrower.

- Identity, occupation, employment, income, and credit data about the prospective borrower as represented to the broker by the prospective borrower.

- Terms of the promissory note to be given to the lender.

- Pertinent information concerning all encumbrances that constitute liens against the property.

- Provisions for servicing of the loan, if any, including disposition of the late-payment charge and prepayment penalty paid by the borrower; and

- Detailed information concerning any proposed arrangement under which the prospective lender, along with persons not otherwise associated with the lender, will be joint beneficiaries or obligees.

The disclosure statement also must include the estimated fair market value of the property as determined by an appraisal, a copy of which must be provided to the lender. However, a lender may waive the requirement of an independent appraisal in writing, on a case-by-case basis; and in that case, the real estate broker must provide the broker's written estimated fair market value of the property, which must include the objective data on which the broker's estimate is based [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.5(a)(2)].

The disclosure statement also must include pertinent information about other loans that the borrower expects or anticipates will result in a lien being recorded against the property, to the extent that the broker has actual knowledge of the other loans. For these purposes, actual knowledge is knowledge gained by the broker through arranging another loan or receipt of written notification of another loan. In this regard, the broker must also provide to the prospective lender the option to apply to purchase a title insurance policy or an endorsement to an existing title insurance policy covering the property, and a copy of a written loan application, and a credit report [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.5(a)(6)].

If the solicitation is subject to Bus. & Prof. Code § 10231.2 [see [f], below], the disclosure statement also must include a detailed statement of the intended use and disposition of the funds being solicited, including an explanation of the nature and extent of the benefits to be directly or indirectly derived by the broker [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.5(a)(9)].

[f] Transaction Involving Sale of Real Property Sales Contract or Secured Promissory Note

Special requirements govern the contents of a disclosure statement prepared by a real estate broker who is performing acts described in Bus. & Prof. Code § 10131(e) or Bus. & Prof. Code § 10131.1 in negotiating the sale of a real property sales contract or a promissory note secured directly or collaterally by a lien on real property [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.5(b)]. The relevant acts described in Bus. & Prof. Code § 10131(e) consist of selling, buying, or offering to sell or buy a real property sales contract or secured promissory note [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10131(e)]. The relevant Bus. & Prof. Code § 10131.1 acts consist of engaging as a principal in the business of buying these contracts or notes from, or selling them to, the public or making loans secured by real property to the public[see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10131.1(a)]. A disclosure statement subject to the foregoing requirements must include the following information [Bus.

& Prof. Code § 10232.5(b); see DRE Form 851B (disclosure statement for sale of existing note), available at http://www.dre.ca.gov/frm_forms.html]:

- Address or other means of identification of the real property that is the security for the trustor's or vendee's obligation.

- Age, size, type of construction, and a description of improvements to the real property, if known by the broker.

- Information available to the broker relating to the ability of the trustor or vendee to meet the contractual obligations under the note or contract, including the trustor's or vendee's payment history under the note or contract.

- Terms of the contract or note, including the principal balance owing.

- Provisions for servicing of the note or contract, if any, including disposition of late charge, prepayment penalty, or other fees or charges paid by the trustor or vendee.

- A statement regarding whether the dealer is acting as a principal or an agent in the transaction with the prospective purchaser.

- Estimated fair market value of the securing property as determined by an appraisal, a copy of which must be provided to the lender.

However, a lender may waive the requirement of an independent appraisal in writing, on a case by case basis; and in that case, the real estate broker must provide the broker's written estimated fair market value of the securing property, which must include the objective data on which the broker's estimate is based [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.5(b)].

The disclosure statement also must include detailed information concerning any proposed arrangement under which the prospective purchaser, along with persons not otherwise associated with the prospective purchaser, will be joint beneficiaries or obligees. In this regard, the broker must also provide to the prospective purchaser the option to apply to purchase a title insurance policy or an endorsement to an existing title insurance policy covering the real property and, if available from the seller of the note or contract or from the original lender, a copy of a written loan application, and a credit report [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.5(b)].

A special disclosure requirement applies to any real estate broker who acts as a principal while engaging in certain loan or sales transactions and who intends to directly or indirectly obtain the use or benefit of funds solicited in the transaction [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10231.2]. The requirement applies to any real estate broker who, through the use of specified representations, proposes to solicit and accept funds, or to cause the solicitation and acceptance of funds, to be applied to a purchase or loan transaction in which the broker will directly or indirectly obtain the use or benefit of the funds other than for commissions, fees, and costs and expenses provided by law for the broker's services as an agent. The proposal must be made through express or implied representations that the broker or salesperson acting on the broker's behalf is engaging in the real estate brokerage activities described in Bus. & Prof. Code § 10131(d) and (e) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10231.2(a); see [e], above].

Any broker subject to this requirement, before the making of any representation, solicitation, or presentation of a lender/purchaser disclosure statement, must submit to the Department of Real Estate a true copy of the appropriate disclosure statement [see [a], above], complete except for the signature of the prospective lender or purchaser, and a statement that the submittal is being made pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 10231.2 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10231.2(a)]. Thereafter, the broker, when making a solicitation, must make certain that the completed disclosure statement is delivered to the person solicited not less than 24 hours before the earlier of (1) the acceptance of any funds from that person by or on behalf of the broker and (2) the execution of any instrument obligating the person to make the loan or purchase. The statement must be signed by the prospective lender or purchaser and by the real estate broker or, on the broker's behalf, by a real estate salesperson licensed to the broker. An exact copy of the executed statement must be given to the prospective lender or purchaser, and the broker must retain a true copy of the executed statement for four years [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10231.2(b)].

The special disclosure requirement is not applicable under the following circumstances: First, if the type of solicitation discussed above is made by a corporate real estate broker, the broker is exempt from this disclosure requirement unless the funds solicited are intended for the direct or indirect use or benefit of an officer or director of the corporation or a person with at least a 10-percent ownership interest in the corporation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10231.2(d)]. Second, the disclosures are not required in the case of an offering of a security authorized pursuant to the provisions of the Real Estate Law relating to a claim of exemption from securities qualification for a series of notes or interests secured by the same real property [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10237 et seq.; see also [h], below] or the applicable provisions of the Corporate Securities Law of 1968 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10231.2(c); see Corp. Code § 25000 et seq.; see also Ch. 6, Securities Regulation Issues ; Ch. 6H, Qualification of Securities].

Any transaction involving a sale of or an offer to sell a series of notes secured directly by an interest in the same California real property, or a sale of undivided interests in a note secured directly by California real property equivalent to a series transaction, must comply with specified requirements [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10237; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10238 et seq.]. The terms "sale" and "offer to sell" have the same meaning as in Corp. Code § 25017 and include the acts of negotiating and arranging the transaction [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10239.2(d)]. Qualifying transactions are subject solely to regulation by the Department of Real Estate and are exempted from supervision by the Department of Corporations under Corp. Code § 25110 [Corp. Code § 25102.5]. A broker or person who becomes the servicing agent for notes or interests sold under these provisions, on which payments due during any period of three consecutive months in the aggregate exceed $125,000 or the number of persons entitled to payments exceeds 120, must file the required notice within 30 days after becoming the servicing agent [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10238(b); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10238(a)].

For discussion of the transactions and property subject to these requirements, as well as required notices, restrictions on advertising and promotional claims, restrictions on the terms of the notes, restrictions on the number of sales, and requirements and specifications of individuals who may purchase these notes, see California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 110, Notes (Matthew Bender).

[i] Signature and Delivery Requirements

The disclosure statement must be signed by the prospective lender or purchaser and by the real estate broker or, on the broker's behalf, by a real estate salesperson licensed to the broker. The statement must be delivered as early as practicable before the lender or purchaser becomes obligated to make the loan or purchase and, except as provided in Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.4(c) [see [j], below], before the receipt by or on behalf of the broker of any funds from that person. An exact copy of the executed statement must be given to the lender or purchaser. The broker must retain a true copy of the executed statement for four years [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.4(a)].

[j] Disbursements From Escrow Depository or Trust Fund Account

Special signature and delivery requirements apply when the broker has custody of funds of a prospective lender or purchaser that were received and are being maintained with the express permission of the owner and in accordance with law, and the broker retains the funds in an escrow depository or a trust fund account pending receipt of the owner's express written instructions to disburse the funds for a loan or purchase. Under those circumstances, the broker must deliver the disclosure statement to the owner and obtain the owner's written consent to a proposed disbursement before making any disbursement. The broker must transmit to the owner, not later than 25 days after receipt, all funds then in the broker's custody for which the owner has not given written instructions authorizing disbursement, unless the broker and owner have entered into a written agreement that authorizes the broker to retain the funds for a longer period [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.4(c); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10231.1 (governing written agreements authorizing broker to retain funds for longer than 25 days)].

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is an annual report, designated as Form RE 881, that must be filed with the Department of Real Estate by real estate brokers who engage in certain transactions involving the negotiation or sale of secured obligations, such as mortgage loan brokerage transactions [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 10131(d), 10232.2(c); 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2849.01; see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 10131(e), 10131.1].

ELECTRONIC FORMS NOTE

ELECTRONIC FORMS NOTE: Electronic copies of Form RE 881, which can be printed out and filled in for use, can be obtained at the web site of the Department of Real Estate, located at http://www.dre.ca.gov/. You may also obtain a copy of this form via email by contacting Matthew Bender & Co. at (800) 424-0651, ext. 405, or e-mailing us at cal.custquest@bender.com and requesting an electronic copy of CLF Form 25.261. Please be sure to include your email address along with your request and we will provide the form via return email. To view and print these forms, your computer system will need Adobe Acrobat Reader version 3.0 or higher.

[b] Brokers Required to Report

The annual reporting requirement applies to a real estate broker who intends or reasonably expects in any successive 12 months to engage in any of three categories of activities [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.2; see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232(a), (b)]. Persons under common management, direction, or control in conducting any of the activities described above are considered as one person for the purpose of applying these criteria [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232(a)].

One category involves the collection of at least $250,000 in payments on behalf of (either or both) owners of promissory notes secured directly or collaterally by liens on real property and owners of real property sales contracts [

Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232(a)(2)]. These activities are typically performed by mortgage loan brokers [see § 25.250[1][b]].

A second category involves the collection of at least $250,000 in payments on behalf of (either or both) obligors of promissory notes secured directly or collaterally by liens on real property and lenders of real property sales contracts [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232(a)(3)].

The third category involves the negotiation of any combination of 10 or more of the following transactions pursuant to certain provisions of the Real Estate Law [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 10131(d), (e), 10131.1] in an aggregate amount of more than $1,000,000 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232(a)(1)]:

- Loans secured directly or collaterally by liens on real property or on business opportunities as agent for another or others [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10131(d)].

- Sales or exchanges of real property sales contracts or promissory notes secured directly or collaterally by liens on real property or on business opportunities as agent for another or others [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10131(e)].

- Sales or exchanges of real property sales contracts or promissory notes secured directly or collaterally by liens on real property as the owner of those notes or contracts [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10131.1].

The second and third categories apply to certain trust deed and real property sales contract transactions performed for compensation or in expectation of compensation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10131] by real estate brokers who may, but do not necessarily, engage in mortgage loan brokerage transactions as well.

There is a rebuttable presumption that a broker intends to conduct the volume of business specified in Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232(a) if the broker negotiates either (1) any combination of two or more new loans and sales or exchanges of existing promissory notes and real property sales contracts having an aggregate amount of more than $250,000 in any three successive months or (2) any combination of five or more new loans and sales or exchanges of existing promissory notes and real property sales contracts having an aggregate amount of more than $500,000 in any successive six months [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232(b)]. The presumption is based on the fact that these levels of business would satisfy the criteria of Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232(a)(1) if maintained for a year.

In determining whether a broker satisfies the criteria of Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232(a) and (b) [see [b], above], the following factors should be taken into account:

First, if two or more real estate brokers who are not under common management, direction, or control, cooperate in the negotiation of a loan or the sale or exchange of a promissory note or real property sales contract and share in the compensation for their services, the dollar amount of the transaction must be allocated according to the ratio that the compensation received by each broker bears to the total compensation received by all brokers for their services in negotiating the loan, sale, or exchange [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232(d)].

Second, for purposes of the annual reporting requirement and certain related requirements [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 10232.2, 10232.25; see also § 25.261[1][f]], loans and sales negotiated by a broker, or for which a broker collects payments or provides other servicing for the owner of the note or contract, are not counted in making that determination in any of the following cases [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232(c)]:

- The loan or sale is negotiated, or the loan or contract is being serviced for the owner, under authority of a permit issued pursuant to the provisions concerning a claim of exemption from securities qualification for series of notes or interests secured by same real property [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10237 et seq.; see also § 25.260[1][h]] or applicable provisions of the Corporate Securities Law of 1968 [Corp. Code § 25000 et seq.].

- The transaction is subject to the disclosure requirements of Civ. Code § 2956 et seq.

- The lender or purchaser is any of the following:

    - The Federal National Mortgage Association, the Government National Mortgage Association, the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation, the Federal Housing Administration, or the federal Department of Veterans Affairs.

    - A bank, savings association, credit union, or similar entity [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232(c)(1)(B)].

    - The trustees of a pension, profit-sharing, or welfare fund, if the fund has a net worth of at least $15,000,000.

    - Any corporation with outstanding securities registered under Section 12 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 [see 15 U.S.C. § 78 l], or any wholly owned subsidiary of such a corporation.

    - Any syndication or other combination of any of the foregoing entities that is organized to purchase the promissory note.

    - The California Housing Finance Agency or any local housing finance agency organized under the Health and Safety Code.

    - A licensed residential mortgage lender or servicer acting under the authority of that license.

    - An institutional investor that issues mortgage-backed securities, as specified in Fin. Code § 50003(j)(11).

    - A licensed real estate broker selling all or part of the loan, the note, or the contract to any of the lenders or purchasers listed above.

The reporting requirement also does not apply to the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10230(a)]:

- The negotiation of a loan by or on behalf of a real estate broker in connection with a qualifying sale or exchange of real property in which the broker acted as the agent of one or more of the parties to the sale or exchange.

- The sale or exchange, by or on behalf of the broker, of a promissory note created for the purpose of financing a qualifying real property sale or exchange transaction in which the broker acted as the agent of one or more of the parties to the qualifying real property sale or exchange, regardless of the time of the sale or exchange of the promissory note.

A qualifying sale or exchange of real property is one that is subject to the requirements of the statutory provisions governing disclosures on purchase money liens on residential property [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10230(a); see Civ. Code § 2956 et seq.].

These exemptions for brokers acting as agents for parties to the sale or exchange of real property do not apply to the negotiation of loans or to sales or exchanges of promissory notes in connection with the financing of a real property sale or exchange transaction in which the broker had a direct or indirect monetary interest as a party [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10230(b)].

The annual report must contain specified information relating to the business conducted by the broker while engaging in any of the activities described in Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 10131(b) and (d) and 10131.1 [see § 25.261[1][b]]. The report must set forth the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.2(c); see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2849.01]:

- Number and aggregate dollar amount of loan, trust deed sales, and real property sales contract transactions negotiated.

- Number and aggregate dollar amount of promissory notes and contracts serviced by the broker or an affiliate of the broker.

- Number and aggregate dollar amount of late payment charges, prepayment penalties, and other fees or charges collected and retained by the broker under servicing agreements with beneficiaries and obligees.

- Default and foreclosure experience in connection with promissory notes and contracts subject to servicing agreements between the broker and beneficiaries or obligees.

- Commissions received by the broker for services performed as agent in negotiating loans and sales of promissory notes and real property sales contracts.

- Aggregate costs and expenses as referred to in Bus. & Prof. Code § 10241 and paid by borrowers to the broker.

[e] Time for Filing and Failure to File

The annual report must be completed and submitted within 90 days after the end of the broker's fiscal year or within whatever additional time the Department of Real Estate may allow for good cause [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.2]. If the broker fails to file within that time period, the Real Estate Commissioner may have an examination and report prepared, and then charge the broker 150 percent of the cost of the examination and report [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.2(e)]. In determining the hourly cost incurred for conducting an examination and preparing the report, the Commissioner may use the estimated average hourly cost for all department audit staff performing audits of real estate brokers. If a broker fails to pay the amount within 60 days following the mailing of a notice of billing, the Commissioner may suspend the broker's license or delay renewal of the broker's license. The suspension or delay must remain in effect until the amount due is paid or the broker's right to renew a license has expired. The Commissioner may maintain an action for the recovery of the amount in any court of competent jurisdiction [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.2(e)].

[f] Newly Qualifying Broker's Report

A broker who meets, for the first time, any of the criteria of Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232(a) and (b) [see § 25.261[1][b]] must notify the Department of Real Estate in writing of that fact within 30 days [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232(e)]. A broker who violates this requirement can be fined, and may have his or her license suspended or revoked for failure to pay the fine [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10236.2].

[g] Section 10232(a) Broker's Reports

Brokers meeting the criteria of Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232(a) ("Section 10232(a) brokers") [see § 25.261[1][b]] must also submit one of the following documents [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.2; but see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232(c)(1) (for purposes of this requirement, certain loans or sales are not counted in determining whether brokers meet foregoing criteria)]:

- An annual report, prepared by a licensed California independent public accountant, that reviews the broker's trust fund financial statements, which must generally be filed within 90 days after the end of the broker's fiscal year or within whatever additional time the Department of Real Estate may allow for good cause [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.2(a); see also 10 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 2846.5, 2846.7]; or

- A notarized, sworn statement attesting to the fact that the broker did not receive for the benefit of a person to whom the broker is a trustee, any trust funds in cash or in a form convertible to cash during the fiscal year. This statement must be filed within 30 days after the end of the broker's fiscal year or within whatever additional time the Department of Real Estate may allow for good cause [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.2(b)].

A Section 10232(a) broker is also required to file a trust funds status report within 30 days after the end of each of the first three fiscal quarters of the broker's fiscal year, or within whatever additional time the Department of Real Estate may allow for good cause [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.25(a); but see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232(c)(1) (for purposes of this requirement, certain loans or sales are not counted in determining whether brokers meet foregoing criteria)]. Specified information must be included in the report [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.25(a), (b)], and the report should be prepared by the broker's accountant. If a broker fails to file the report on time, the Real Estate Commissioner may order an examination and report and then charge the broker 150 percent of the cost of making the examination and report [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.25(c)].

The report need not be submitted by a broker who, in carrying out the activities described in Bus. & Prof. Code § 10131(d) and (e) [see § 25.261[1][b]], did not during a fiscal quarter accept for the benefit of a person to whom the broker is a trustee, any payment or remittance in a form convertible to cash by the broker [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.25(d)]. Instead, the broker must submit a statement under penalty of perjury on an official form attesting to the fact that the broker meets the criteria of the exemption [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.25(d)].

A broker meeting the criteria of Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232(a) who undertakes to service a promissory note secured directly or collaterally by a lien on real property or a real property sales contract must comply with the following requirements [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10233]:

- The broker must have a written authorization from the borrower, the lender, or the owner of the note or contract, that is included in the terms of a written servicing agreement that satisfies the requirements of Bus. & Prof. Code § 10238(k).

- The broker must provide the lender or the owner of the note or contract with at least an accounting of the unpaid principal balance at the end of each year and an accounting of collections and disbursements received and made during each year. Each accounting must identify the person who holds the original note or contract and the deed of trust evidencing and securing the debt or obligation for which the accounting has been provided.

- The broker must provide to the lender or the owner of the note or contract written notification within 15 days of the occurrence of any of the following events:

    - Recording of a notice of default.

    - Recording of a notice of trustee's sale.

    - Receipt of any payment constituting an amount greater than or equal to five monthly payments, together with a request for partial or total reconveyance of the real property, in which case the notice must also indicate any further transfer or delivery instructions.

    - Delinquency of any installment or other obligation under the note or contract for over 30 days.

[h] Trust Funds Reports

A special trust fund reporting requirement applies to any broker who engages in any of the activities specified in Bus. & Prof. Code § 10131(d) and (e) [see § 25.261[1][b]], but who is not a Section 10232(a) broker [see § 25.261[1][g]] because the annual dollar volume of those activities does not exceed the threshold prescribed by Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232(a) [see § 25.261[1][b]]. Although the broker is not required to file trust fund status reports [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.5(a)], he or she is required to prepare those reports in accordance with either the requirements of Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.25(a) and (b) or the requirements established by the lender or note owner, if the lender or note owner (1) requires monthly reconciliations of trust account balances, (2) requires annual, CPA-audited financial statements, and (3) maintains a contractual right to audit the trust accounts held by the broker on behalf of the lender or note owner. The broker must keep those reports on file at the broker's office, where they must be subject to inspection by the Department of Real Estate on 24 hours' notice [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.25(e)].

In making a solicitation to a particular person and in negotiating with that person to make a loan secured by real property or to purchase a real property sales contract or a note secured by a deed of trust, any real estate broker subject to Bus. & Prof. Code § 10230 et seq. must provide prospective purchasers and lenders with a disclosure statement containing specified information [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 10232.4, 10232.5; see also § 25.260[2]].

No broker subject to Bus. & Prof. Code § 10230 et seq. may place an advertisement disseminated primarily in California for a loan unless the broker's license number, as well as the unique identifier assigned to that broker by the Nationwide Mortgage Licensing System and Registry (if the broker's license has a mortgage loan originator endorsement), under which the loan would be made or arranged, are disclosed (1) within the printed text of the advertisement, or (2) in the case of a radio or television advertisement, in the oral text of the advertisement [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10235.5; see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2847.3 (statements satisfying this requirement)]. The broker may submit a copy of proposed advertising for approval [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.1(a); see § 25.261[1][k]]. In addition, every licensed real estate broker must do the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10236.4]:

- In compliance with Bus. & Prof. Code § 10235.5, display his or her license number, along with the unique identifier assigned to that broker by the Nationwide Mortgage Licensing System and Registry (if the broker's license has a mortgage loan originator endorsement), in all advertisements in connection with a solicitation of borrowers or potential investors; and

- Disclose both the broker's license number and the department's license information telephone number, along with the mortgage loan originator's unique identifier, if any, whenever a borrower or investor signs any documents related to a loan negotiated by the broker.

[j] Required Notification That Broker No Longer Services or Arranges Loans

A real estate broker must notify the Department of Real Estate when he or she is no longer servicing or arranging loans subject to the reporting requirements of Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232. If the broker has already made required reports in the year, he or she must continue making reports for that year but must notify the department before the expiration of that year that he or she will no longer be servicing or arranging loans for which reports are required. The department's records, including those that may be disclosed by calling the department's license information telephone number, may then be appropriately updated [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10236.5].

[k] Proposed Advertising

A real estate broker, before using any proposed advertisement in connection with the conduct of activities described in Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 10131(d) and (e) and 10131.1 [see § 25.261[1][b]], may submit a true copy of the advertisement to the Department of Real Estate for approval. The submission must be accompanied by a fee [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.1(a)].

For purposes of this approval requirement, an advertisement includes dissemination in any newspaper, circular, form letter, brochure, or similar publication, display, sign, radio broadcast, or telecast, that concerns (1) the use, terms, rates, conditions, or the amount of any loan or sale involved in a Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232 activity or (2) the security, solvency, or stability of any person carrying on such an activity [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.1(a)]. Advertisements do not include a letter or brochure that is either of the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.1(b)]:

- Restricted in distribution to other real estate brokers and to persons for whom the broker has previously acted as agent in arranging a loan secured by real property or in the purchase, sale, or exchange of a deed of trust or real property sales contract; or

- Restricted in content to the identification and a description of the terms of loans, mortgages, deeds of trust, and real property sales contracts offered for funding or purchase through the broker as agent.

The submittal and approval requirements do not apply to advertising that is used exclusively in connection with an offering authorized by permit issued pursuant to provisions of the Real Estate Law relating to real property securities dealers [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10237 et seq.] or applicable provisions of the Corporate Securities Law of 1968 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.1(c); see Corp. Code § 25000 et seq.; see also Ch. 6H, Qualification of Securities].

In administering Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.1, the Real Estate Commissioner will take any action that is appropriate to prevent or halt the publication of advertising that is false, misleading, or deceptive in itself or through the omission of information necessary to make a presentation not misleading in the context in which it is used. To this end, the Commissioner may disapprove or require verification of representations in advertising submitted pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 10231.1. In determining whether an advertisement is likely to create a false impression, the Commissioner will consider not only the actual text but also such factors as format, pictorial display, and emphasis [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2848].

If disapproval of a proposed advertisement is not communicated to the broker within 15 calendar days after receipt of the copy of the proposed advertisement, the proposed advertisement will be deemed approved. The Commissioner, however, will not be estopped from disapproving a later publication or other use of the same or similar advertising [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.1(a)].

CHAPTER 25A SECURITY INSTRUMENTS FOR REAL ESTATE FINANCING

10-25A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide Scope

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

Scope

This chapter covers the principal security instruments used in real estate transactions. Its focus is on promissory notes, deeds of trust (including all-inclusive trust deeds and notes), mortgages, and installment real property sales contracts. The forms section includes complete security instruments, alternative and additional provisions for those instruments, and related notices, requests, and other documents that may be executed concurrently with or subsequent to a security instrument.

This chapter does not consider the following related subjects: sale-leasebacks [see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements (sale-leaseback provisions for sales agreement); see also Rabkin & Johnson, Current Legal Forms, Ch. 21, Sales and Exchanges (Matthew Bender)]; letters of credit [see Rabkin & Johnson, Current Legal Forms, Ch. 5C, Letters of Credit and Commercial Paper (Matthew Bender)]; or guaranties [see California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 112, Guaranty and Suretyship (Matthew Bender)].

For detailed coverage of real estate loans, see Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans . That chapter describes the various types of loans and sets forth the procedure for obtaining a loan. It also discusses federal and state law applicable to real estate loans, including required lender disclosures under the federal Truth in Lending Act [15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.] and the federal Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act of 1974 [12 U.S.C. § 2601 et seq.]. In addition, Chapter 25 examines state requirements governing mortgage loan transactions and real property securities dealers.

Ch. 25B, Subordination, Assumption, and Assignment , covers the subordination of one trust deed to another, the assumption of loans, and the assignment of notes and trust deeds. Full and partial releases and reconveyances of deeds of trust and the substitution of trustees under trust deeds are covered in Ch. 25C, Release and Reconveyance . For a detailed discussion of the foreclosure procedure applicable to security instruments, see Ch. 25D, Foreclosure .

§ 25A.10 Overview of Security Instruments

[1] Deed of Trust

The deed of trust is the most widely used real property security device in California. Under a trust deed, the debtor (trustor) conveys title to real property to a trustee as security for a debt owed to the creditor (beneficiary) [see Hohn v. Riverside County Flood Control etc. Dist. (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 605, 611, 39 Cal. Rptr. 647]. However, title is conveyed for security purposes only [Bank of Italy etc. Assn. v. Bentley (1933) 217 Cal. 644, 654, 20 P.2d 940]. Thus, the trustor retains all incidents of ownership, including the right to possession [see Sacramento Bank v. Alcorn (1898) 121 Cal. 379, 383, 53 P. 813], to further encumber the property, and to transfer the property subject to the trust deed [see Davidow v. Corporation of America (1936) 16 Cal. App. 2d 6, 10-11, 60 P.2d 132]. The trustee is essentially a common agent of the trustor and beneficiary [Lupertino v. Carbahal (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 742, 747, 111 Cal. Rptr. 112], and ordinary principles of agency determine the trustee's obligations and liabilities [Kerivan v. Title Ins. & Trust Co. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 225, 229, 195 Cal. Rptr. 53 ; for coverage of agency principles, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 427, Principal and Agent (Matthew Bender)].

Deeds of trust typically grant the trustee the power of sale on default of the trustor, and can be foreclosed either judicially by court action [Code Civ. Proc. § 725a] or nonjudicially by exercise of the power of sale in the manner prescribed by statute [Civ. Code § 2924; see § 25A.210[1][c]].

The trust deed is usually evidenced by a separate promissory note [see § 25A.17]. A trust deed is a contract that is to be interpreted together with the note and any other document that is part of the same transaction (e.g., a sales agreement) [Huckell v. Matranga (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 471, 481, 160 Cal. Rptr. 177].

[2] Mortgage

A mortgage is a contract by which the mortgagor (debtor) as owner hypothecates or pledges specific property, including an estate for years in real property, for the performance of an act, without the necessity of a change of possession of the property [Civ. Code § 2920(a); see § 25A.11[2]]. "Mortgage" also means any instrument other than a trust deed, including a real property sales contract, that has a power of sale affecting real property [Civ. Code § 2920(b); see Civ. Code §§ 2924-2924h; § 25A.18]. It is similar to a trust deed except that (1) there are only two parties (the mortgagor/debtor and the mortgagee/creditor), (2) the mortgagee has only a lien against the property as security for the payment of the debt [Civ. Code § 2926], and (3) the mortgagor retains title to the property [see Civ. Code § 2888]. The lien of a mortgage is "special," unless the parties expressly agree that it is "general" [Civ. Code § 2923]. A special lien may be enforced only for the performance of the particular act or obligation specified in the mortgage contract [Civ. Code § 2875; see Civ. Code § 2874 (general lien may be enforced as security for all obligations of the owner)].

After a default by the mortgagor, the mortgagee must first attempt to satisfy the obligation by enforcing the lien, either by suit for foreclosure [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 725a-730.5] or, if the instrument contains a power of sale, by nonjudicial foreclosure [see Civ. Code §§ 2924-2924h, 2932; see also § 25A.214[2]]. For further discussion of foreclosure, see Ch. 25D, Foreclosure .

A "reverse mortgage" as defined and governed by statute is a nonrecourse loan secured by real property that meets all of the following criteria [Civ. Code § 1923; see Civ. Code § 1923.10 (applicable to reverse mortgage loans executed after 1997)]:

- The loan provides cash advances to a borrower based on the borrower's equity in, or on the value of, the borrower's owner-occupied principal residence [see Civ. Code § 1923.4 (property may be held in trust of which occupant is beneficiary)].

- The loan requires no payment of principal or interest until the entire loan becomes due and payable.

- The loan is made by a lender licensed or chartered pursuant to the laws of California or the United States.

A reverse mortgage constitutes a lien against the subject property to the extent of all advances made pursuant to the borrower and all interest accrued on the advances, and that lien has priority over any lien filed or recorded after recordation of the reverse mortgage [Civ. Code § 1923.3]. For purposes of determining eligibility and benefits under means-tested programs, reverse mortgage loan payments made to a borrower are treated as proceeds from a loan and not as income, and undisbursed reverse mortgage funds are treated as equity in the borrower's home and not as proceeds from a loan, resources, or assets [see Civ. Code § 1923.9].

Any person engaged in a trade or business who negotiates primarily in Spanish, Chinese, Tagalog, Vietnamese, or Korean, orally or in writing, in the course of entering into any of several specified kinds of contracts, including reverse mortgages, must deliver to the other party to the contract or agreement, before the execution of it, a translation of the contract or agreement in the language in which it was negotiated, which includes a translation of every term and condition in that contract or agreement [Civ. Code § 1632(b)(5)]. A lender may not make a reverse mortgage loan without first complying with, or in the case of brokered loans ensuring compliance with, the requirements of Civ. Code § 1632, if applicable [Civ. Code § 1923.2(l)].

The lender and the loan must comply with requirements concerning the terms of the loan [see Civ. Code § 1923.2(a)-(d)] and disclosures to be made in the loan documents [see Civ. Code §§ 1923.2(h), 1923.5, 1923.6]. If a lender fails to make loan advances as required in the loan documents, and fails to cure an actual default after notice as specified in the loan documents, the lender must forfeit to the borrower three times the amount wrongfully withheld plus interest at the legal rate [Civ. Code § 1923.2(e)]. However, no arrangement, transfer, or lien may be invalidated solely because of the lender's failure to comply with these requirements, although other civil penalties may apply [Civ. Code § 1923.7].

A reverse mortgage loan may become due and payable on the occurrence of any of these events [Civ. Code § 1923.2(f); see Civ. Code § 1923.2(g) (additional conditions governing repayment)]:

- The home securing the loan is sold or title to the home is otherwise transferred [see Civ. Code § 1923.4].
- All borrowers cease occupying the home as a principal residence [see Civ. Code § 1923.2(g)(1) (excluding temporary absences)].
- Any fixed maturity date agreed to by the lender and the borrower occurs.
- An event occurs that is specified in the loan documents and jeopardizes the lender's security.

A lender may not require an applicant for a reverse mortgage to purchase an annuity as a condition of obtaining a reverse mortgage loan. A reverse mortgage lender or a broker arranging a reverse mortgage loan may not [Civ. Code § 1923.2(i)]:

- Offer an annuity to the borrower before the closing of the reverse mortgage or before the expiration of the right of the borrower to rescind the reverse mortgage agreement; or
- Refer the borrower to anyone for the purchase of an annuity before the closing of the reverse mortgage or before the expiration of the right of the borrower to rescind the reverse mortgage agreement.

Before accepting a final and complete application for a reverse mortgage loan or assessing any fees, a lender must refer the prospective borrower to a housing counseling agency approved by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for counseling. The counseling must meet the standards and requirements established by HUD for reverse mortgage counseling. The lender must provide the borrower with a list of at least five housing counseling agencies approved by HUD, including at least two agencies that can provide counseling by telephone [Civ. Code § 1923.2(j)].

A lender may not accept a final and complete application for a reverse mortgage loan from a prospective applicant or assess any fees on a prospective applicant without first receiving a certification from the applicant or the applicant's authorized representative that the applicant has received counseling from a HUD-approved agency. The certification must be signed by the borrower and the agency counselor, and must include the date of the counseling and the name, address, and telephone number of both the counselor and the borrower. (An electronic facsimile copy of the housing counseling certification can meet this requirement.) The lender must maintain the certification in an accurate, reproducible, and accessible format for the term of the reverse mortgage [Civ. Code § 1923.2(k)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Federal Rules Regarding Reverse Mortgages. In addition to the usual good faith disclosures governing loan transactions, 15 U.S.C. § 1648 imposes additional disclosure requirements on lenders who offer reverse mortgages. Those requirements include projections using three appreciation rates and which take into consideration the borrower's life expectancy. Lenders should be careful to comply with these statutory requirements as courts have been willing to scrutinize the offering of reverse mortgages, particularly to elderly borrowers, as constituting predatory practices. Some communities, such as the City of Oakland, have considered legislation to protect against the misuse of these loan products. Commentary by Timothy F. O'Leary.

DIVISION II: REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 25A SECURITY INSTRUMENTS FOR REAL ESTATE FINANCING
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

10-25A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 25A.11

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 25A.11 Deeds of Trust and Mortgages

[1] Comparison

The technical differences between a mortgage and deed of trust are now primarily a matter of historical rather than functional significance. The same rules that are generally applied to deeds of trust are applied to mortgages since there is now virtually no legal difference between the two [Domarad v. Fisher & Burke, Inc. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 543, 553, 76 Cal. Rptr. 529 ; see § 25A.11[3]-[6]]. Case law has emphasized the practical and theoretical similarities between trust deeds and mortgages and largely ignored the theoretical differences. For example, although a trust deed (unlike a mortgage) results in a conveyance of legal title to the trustee, the trustor is regarded as the legal owner except as to the trustee, and title passes to the trustee only to the degree necessary to secure the property and to permit the trustee to convey the property to a purchaser following the trustor's default [Bank of Italy etc. Assn. v. Bentley (1933) 217 Cal. 644, 655-656, 20 P.2d 940]. Thus, the California Supreme Court has referred to the deed of trust as practically and substantially only a mortgage with a power of sale [Bank of Italy etc. Assn. v. Bentley (1933) 217 Cal. 644, 654, 20 P.2d 940 ; see § 25A.214; for further discussion, see California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 111, Deeds of Trust and Mortgages (Matthew Bender)].

One of the few remaining differences between a mortgage with a power of sale and a deed of trust is that the lapse of the statute of limitations on the secured obligation will extinguish a mortgage but will not affect the power of sale in a trust deed [Carson Redevelopment Agency v. Adam (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 608, 610-612, 186 Cal. Rptr. 615 (trust deed); Faxon v. All Persons (1913) 166 Cal. 707, 715-717, 137 P. 919 (mortgage)]. Other differences exist in the method of clearing title free of the lien when the obligation is satisfied [see Ch. 25C, Release and Reconveyance], and in the applicability of Civ. Code § 3289 (interest on obligation after breach) to a note secured by a mortgage, but not one secured by a trust deed [Civ. Code § 3289].

In the past, trust deeds were used to avoid certain protections available to mortgagors. Although this historical reason no longer applies [see Bank of Italy etc. Assn. v. Bentley (1933) 217 Cal. 644, 657-658, 20 P.2d 940], the trust deed is still used in the vast majority of California real estate transactions.

[2] Property Interest Encumbered

Any interest in real property that is capable of being transferred may be mortgaged or may provide the security for a trust deed [Civ. Code § 2947; see, e.g., Tripler v. MacDonald Lumber Co. (1916) 173 Cal. 144, 147, 159 P. 591]. Because the trust deed requires a transfer of title, the property interest provided as security is normally some form of present ownership interest [see, e.g., Caito v. United California Bank (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 694, 701, 144 Cal. Rptr. 751, 576 P.2d 466]. However, the parties may expressly agree in the security instrument to create a lien on real property not yet acquired or not yet in existence. In that case, the lien attaches when the property is acquired [Civ. Code § 2883(a); see Hosford v. Henry (1951) 107 Cal. App. 2d 765, 774, 238 P.2d 91 ; but see Civ. Code § 2883(b) (agreement by beneficiary of estate subject to administration to create lien on undistributed property in estate creates no lien until property is distributed to that beneficiary)].

Several code sections pertaining to the creation and enforcement of real property trust deeds and mortgages specifically authorize the hypothecation of estates for years in real property by trust deeds or mortgages [see Civ. Code §§ 2920(a) (definition of "mortgage"), 2924b (copies of notices of sale and default), 2924c (reinstatement after default)]. These provisions were enacted to abrogate the holding in Taylor v. Bouissiere [Taylor v. Bouissiere (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1197, 241 Cal. Rptr. 253] that the enforcement rights in leasehold mortgages are governed by the rules regarding personal property [Stats. 1989, ch. 698, § 15; see Taylor v. Bouissiere (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1197, 1200, 241 Cal. Rptr. 253]. The Legislature found that the holding of Taylor (1) was inconsistent with the legislative history and provisions of several statutes governing trust deeds and mortgages, and (2) would have resulted in a gap in the method of enforcement of those security instruments, because the rules regarding enforcement of personal property interests specifically do not apply to leasehold mortgages [Stats. 1989, ch. 698, § 15].

Any fixtures on the encumbered real property are subject to the lien of the security instrument [see Civ. Code §§ 658-660; Trask v. Moore (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 365, 368-372, 149 P.2d 854 ; Harper v. Buckles (1937) 19 Cal. App. 2d 481, 484-485, 65 P.2d 947]. The security instrument may also create a security interest in personal property that does not constitute a fixture, if the instrument satisfies certain requirements of the Commercial Code [see Com. Code § 9502]. However, it is advisable to use a separate security instrument for personal property pursuant to the requirements of the Commercial Code, because a mortgage or trust deed will not comply with the procedures for creating and perfecting liens on personal property and therefore will not be effective against third persons who purchase or encumber the personal property without notice [Margolis v. Superior Court (1959) 151 Cal. App. 2d 333, 336, 313 P.2d 29 (decided under prior law); see Com. Code § 9401 et seq.]. For discussion of the Commercial Code requirements governing the creation of security interests in personal property and fixtures, see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 503, Sales: Secured Transactions (Matthew Bender).

Title acquired by the mortgagor or trustor after the execution of the security instrument inures to the beneficiary or mortgagee as security as if it had been acquired before the execution [Civ. Code § 2930; Barberi v. Rothchild (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 537, 538-540, 61 P.2d 760 ; California Bank v. Bell (1940) 38 Cal. App. 2d 533, 537-538, 101 P.2d 724]. This rule also applies when the trustor reacquires fee title after a foreclosure sale [Barberi v. Rothchild (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 537, 538-540, 61 P.2d 760 (trust deed); Jensen v. Duke (1925) 71 Cal. App. 210, 211-212, 234 P. 876 (mortgage)].

Both a deed of trust and a mortgage must be in writing, must describe the secured property [see § 25A.11[4]], and must be signed by the party to be charged (that is, the trustor or mortgagor) [Civ. Code §§ 2922, 1091-1092; Code Civ. Proc. § 1971]. Further, the security instrument must contain sufficient information regarding the secured obligation to ascertain the extent of the encumbrance [D'Oyly v. Capp (1893) 99 Cal. 153, 157, 33 P. 736 ; see § 25A.11[5]].

In the case of a mortgage, a simple statutory form may be used [Civ. Code § 2948; see § 25A.213] but is not required. There is no statutory form of trust deed, but standard "short" and "long" versions of trust deeds prepared by title companies are widely used. Further, institutional lenders generally use their own standard documents [for discussion of the use of fictitious security instruments by title companies and institutional lenders, see § 25A.12]. When loans by institutional lenders will be sold in the secondary loan market, the lender must use the uniform security instruments prepared by the Federal National Mortgage Association (FNMA, or "Fannie Mae") or the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation (FHLMC, or "Freddie Mac"). For larger and more complicated transactions, security instruments are usually custom-drafted based on negotiations between the parties.

[4] Description of Property

To be effective, a deed of trust or mortgage must contain a description of the property to be encumbered that is sufficient to identify the property [Sepulveda v. Apablasa (1938) 25 Cal. App. 2d 381, 387, 77 P.2d 526 (trust deed); Scott v. Woodworth (1917) 34 Cal. App. 400, 408-410, 167 P. 543 (mortgage)]. Absent the express written statement of the grantor contained in the instrument or document, the consolidation of separate and distinct legal descriptions of real property contained in one or more deeds, trust deeds, mortgages, or other instruments of conveyance or security documents into a subsequent single deed, trust deed, mortgage, or other instrument of conveyance or security document (by use of an individual listing of legal descriptions in the subsequent single instrument, or by means of a consolidated legal description composed of more than one previously separate and distinct legal description) does not affect or alter the separate and distinct nature of the described real property [Civ. Code § 1093].

[5] Necessity and Description of Obligation

The validity of the trust deed or mortgage depends on the existence of an enforceable underlying obligation [Turner v. Gosden (1932) 121 Cal. App. 20, 22, 8 P.2d 505] since the lien of the security is merely an incident to and is measured by the performance of the obligation [Coon v. Shry (1930) 209 Cal. 612, 615, 289 P. 815 ; see Civ. Code § 2909]. The obligation is usually the payment of money evidenced by a promissory note, but all that is required is that the instrument secure the performance of an act [see Civ. Code § 2872].

A valid deed of trust or mortgage must contain sufficient information to determine the extent of the obligation [D'Oyly v. Capp (1893) 99 Cal. 153, 157, 33 P. 736]. However, a statement that the trust deed is given to secure a note of a certain date from one party to another, according to the terms of the note, is sufficient to identify the obligation [Security Loan etc. Co. v. Mattern (1901) 131 Cal. 326, 331, 63 P. 482]. It is common practice to also refer to the amount of the promissory note. A minor variance between a secured note and its description contained in a trust deed or mortgage does not invalidate the security [Rogers v. Evans (1934) 137 Cal. App. 538, 545, 31 P.2d 233 (note payable to husband alone was described in security instrument as payable to husband and wife)].

[6] Delivery and Recording

A mortgage or deed of trust must be delivered to the mortgagee or beneficiary to be effective [see Stirton v. Pastor (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 232, 234, 2 Cal. Rptr. 135 ; Hahn v. Hahn (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 97, 101, 266 P.2d 519 ; see also Burns v. Peters (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 619, 623, 55 P.2d 1182 (delivery to trustee is not required)]. The delivery must comply with the requirements governing the delivery of deeds in general [see Hahn v. Hahn (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 97, 101, 266 P.2d 519 ; see also Stirton v. Pastor (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 232, 234, 2 Cal. Rptr. 135 (delivery must be unconditional)]. For discussion of these requirements, see Ch. 27, Deeds and Recording ; see also California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 80, Deeds and Transfer of Title (Matthew Bender).

As between its parties and as to a subsequent grantee or lienor with actual notice, a trust deed or mortgage does not have to be acknowledged or recorded in order to be valid [see Civ. Code § 1217]. However, both should be acknowledged and recorded, since acknowledgment is a prerequisite to recording [Gov. Code § 27287] and recording is necessary to protect the priority of the security instrument from later bona fide purchasers for value [see Civ. Code § 1214].

As a general rule, mortgages and trust deeds may be acknowledged and recorded in the same manner as grants of property [Civ. Code § 2952; see Ch. 27, Deeds and Recording]. An additional recordation requirement applicable solely to security instruments with a power of sale provides that they must contain the address of the trustor or mortgagor and a request for notice of default under Civ. Code § 2924b [Gov. Code § 27321.5(b)]. For discussion of the recordation of fictitious security instruments, see § 25A.12.

All acknowledgments of deeds, quitclaim deeds, or deeds of trust affecting real property (other than a trustee's deed resulting from a decree of foreclosure or a nonjudicial foreclosure pursuant to Civ. Code § 2924, or a deed of reconveyance) require the right thumbprint of the party signing the document [see Gov. Code § 8206(a)(2)(G); see Gov.Code § 8214.23 (notary public is subject to civil penalty for failure to obtain thumbprint)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Electronic Deeds of Trust. For similar reasons of convenience and security, mortgage lenders who fund numerous loans occasionally employ "electronic" deeds of trust for the protection of their credit facilities, or more commonly, their investors. Such instruments are signed and stored electronically by the mortgage broker to provide an unrecorded, junior security interest in the property that is the subject of the loan. The mortgage broker's intent is to "warehouse" and then package the loan for sale and assignment to a credit facility. If the broker petitions for bankruptcy relief, the security instrument is then recorded and provides the broker's investors with priority against other unsecured debtors. Commentary by Timothy F. O'Leary

§ 25A.12 Fictitious Mortgage or Deed of Trust

Fictitious mortgages or trust deeds may be recorded in any county [see Civ. Code § 2952]. These "fictitious instruments" are generally recorded by title insurance companies or institutional lenders and contain all standard provisions utilized by the title company or lender. If a subsequent mortgage or trust deed recorded in the same county incorporates by reference any provisions of the fictitious instrument, the parties are bound by the referenced provisions just as though the provisions were fully set forth in the mortgage or trust deed. For the benefit of the parties, the provisions of the fictitious instrument are typically included in the subsequent mortgage or trust deed, but are preceded by instructions to the county recorder to not record the portion of the security instrument containing the referenced provisions [see § 25A.211[1][b]].

§ 25A.13 Liens Created by Mortgage or Deed of Trust

[1] As Incident of Debt

The lien created by a mortgage [see § 25A.10[2]] or trust deed [see § 25A.10[1]] is accessory to the act for the performance of which it is security [Civ. Code § 2909]. Stated differently, the lien is an incident of the debt. If the note itself is unenforceable, the mortgage does not give it validity [Coon v. Shry (1930) 209 C. 612, 615, 289 P. 815].

[2] Priority

The lien of a trust deed or mortgage has priority according to the date of its creation, all other things being equal [Civ. Code § 2897], subject to the operation of the recording laws [Civ. Code § 1214]. An exception is provided by statute for purchase money mortgages, which have priority over all other liens created against the purchaser, subject to operation of the recording laws [Civ. Code § 2898(a)]. The priority of the lien of a mortgage or trust deed on an estate for years in real property is determined in the same manner used for determining the priority of a lien of a mortgage or trust deed on real property [Civ. Code § 2898(b)].

Priority is generally given under the recording laws to the person who first records his or her instrument, provided that person is a bona fide purchaser or encumbrancer without notice of prior interests [Civ. Code §§ 1213-1215]. For a discussion of the priority status of additional advances made by a senior creditor after recordation of a junior lien, see § 25A.224[1]. For further discussion of the priority of liens, see California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 121, Priorities of Liens (Matthew Bender).

The expiration date for the lien of a mortgage, deed of trust, or other real property security instrument is fixed by statute [see Civ. Code § 882.020(a); see also Civ. Code § 2911]. However, the expiration date may be postponed by recording a notice of intent to preserve the security interest [Civ. Code § 880.310; see Ch. 27, Deeds and Recording]. Once the lien has expired, it is unenforceable by any means; expiration of the lien is equivalent for all purposes to a certificate of satisfaction, reconveyance, release, or other discharge of the security interest. However, the execution and recording of a certificate of satisfaction, reconveyance, release, or other discharge is not necessary to terminate or evidence the termination of the security interest [Civ. Code § 882.030]. The reference to expiration of a "lien" in Civ. Code § 882.030 includes only the security interest enforceable through judicial foreclosure pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 725a, which is subject to the four-year statute of limitations in Civ. Code § 2911, and does not extinguish the power of sale in a deed of trust [Ung v. Koehler (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 186, 196, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 311].

§ 25A.14 Defeasible Deeds

A security may be created by the execution of a deed coupled with an agreement that the deed is to only constitute security for the payment of the indebtedness of the grantor to the grantee rather than an absolute conveyance [Civ. Code §§ 2924(a), 2925; Banta v. Wise (1901) 135 Cal. 277, 279, 67 P. 129]. Pursuant to the agreement, the creditor must reconvey the property to the debtor when the debt is paid in full. An oral agreement that the deed is merely security for the debt is effective between the debtor and creditor, but is not binding on third parties unless they have actual or constructive notice of the agreement [see Civ. Code § 2925]. To give effective notice, an instrument reciting that the deed is defeasible must be recorded in the county where the property is located [Civ. Code § 2950; see §§ 25A.216 (condition of defeasance contained in deed), 25A.215 (separate instrument)].

A junior lienholder who has recorded a proper and timely request is entitled to receive a copy of any notice of default and sale recorded by a senior lienholder [see Civ. Code § 2924b; see also Ch. 25D, Foreclosure (request for notice of default and sale)]. This enables the junior lienholder to take steps to protect its interest in the property prior to the sale of the property through nonjudicial foreclosure.

The right of a junior lienholder to request and obtain a notice of delinquencies in payments on an obligation securing the senior lien is governed by Civ. Code § 2924e. Specifically, the beneficiary or mortgagee of any trust deed or mortgage may, with the written consent of the trustor or mortgagor, submit a written request to the beneficiary or mortgagee of any lien that is senior to the lien of the requesting party, requesting written notice of delinquencies of four months or more in payments of principal or interest on any obligation secured by the senior lien. The request must contain specified information [see Civ. Code § 2924e(b)] and may be made notwithstanding the fact that the loan secured by the lien of the requesting party is not then in default as to payments of principal or interest [Civ. Code § 2924e(a)]. Statutory provisions govern the period of effectiveness (including renewals) of the request and the procedure for responding to it [see Civ. Code § 2924e(b), (c)]. A lienholder who has made such a request must notify the senior lienholder in writing if the obligation secured by the junior lien is subsequently satisfied [Civ. Code § 2924e(g)]. For further discussion of these requirements and an illustrative request for notice, see § 25A.242[1].

PRACTICE TIP:

Subordinated Interests. Practitioners representing subordinated interests, such as lessees or the dominant tenement of an easement, occasionally recommend recording a request that their clients receive a written notice of default. The receipt of a notice of a default provides the recipient with an opportunity to intervene in the event of foreclosure to protect the subordinated interest. However, one could equally argue that the recording of such a request only calls attention to the subordinated interest, and in the process, may jeopardize it. If the senior lender forecloses without providing notice to the holder of the dominant tenement, the easement may survive the foreclosure sale even if the easement was recorded after the trust deed that the lender foreclosed upon. If the holder of the subordinated interest does not realistically entertain notions of saving the property if a default is recorded, recording a written request for receipt of a notice of default may be unnecessary because the holder of the subordinated interest will receive notice of the default by the senior lender anyway; and if the holder does not receive a copy of the notice of default, the holder has an argument that its subordinated interest survives the foreclosure sale. Commentary by Timothy F. O'Leary

§ 25A.16 Beneficiaries' Agreement to Be Governed by Majority Interest Holders

[1] Nature of Agreement

Civ. Code § 2941.9 establishes a process through which all of the beneficiaries under a trust deed may agree to be governed by beneficiaries holding more than 50 percent of the record beneficial interest of a series of notes secured by the same real property or of undivided interests in a note secured by real property equivalent to a series transaction, exclusive of any notes or interests of a licensed real estate broker that is the issuer or servicer of the notes or interests or any affiliate of that licensed real estate broker [Civ. Code § 2941.9(a); see Civ. Code § 2941.9(e) ("affiliate of the licensed real estate broker" includes any person defined in Corp. Code § 25013 who is controlled by, or is under common control with, or who controls, a licensed real estate broker; "control" means the direct or indirect possession of the power to direct or cause the direction of management and policies)]. This publication uses the term "majority interest holders" to refer to the beneficiaries granted this authority. Under Civ. Code § 2941.9, all holders of notes secured by the same real property or series of undivided interests in notes secured by real property equivalent to a series transaction must agree in writing to be governed by the above majority interest holders, with respect to actions to be taken on behalf of all holders in the event of default or foreclosure for matters that require direction or approval of the holders, including designation of the broker, servicing agent, or other person acting on their behalf, and the sale, encumbrance, or lease of real property owned by the holders resulting from foreclosure or receipt of a deed in lieu of foreclosure [Civ. Code § 2941.9(b); see § 25A.247]. A description of this agreement must be disclosed pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.5 (governing the contents of disclosure statements given to prospective lenders or purchasers in certain transactions involving the negotiation and/or sale of secured obligations) [see Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans , § 25.260], and must be included in a recorded document, such as the deed of trust or the assignment of interests [Civ. Code § 2941.9(c)].

For coverage of a related procedure that permits the substitution of a trustee by majority interest holders [see Civ. Code § 2934a], see Ch. 25C, Release and Reconveyance .

[2] Majority Action Affidavit

Actions taken pursuant to the authority granted in Civ. Code § 2941.9 are not effective unless all of the parties agreeing to the action sign, under penalty of perjury, a separate written document entitled "Majority Action Affidavit." A majority action affidavit must state the following [Civ. Code § 2941.9(d); see § 25A.248]:

- The action has been authorized pursuant to Civ. Code § 2941.9.

- None of the undersigned is a licensed real estate broker or an affiliate of the broker that is the issuer or servicer of the obligation secured by the deed of trust.

- The undersigned together hold more than 50 percent of the record beneficial interest of a series of notes secured by the same real property or of undivided interests in a note secured by real property equivalent to a series transaction.

- Notice of the action was sent by certified mail, postage prepaid, with return receipt requested, to each holder of an interest in the obligation secured by the deed of trust who has not joined in the execution of the document.

The document must be recorded in the office of the county recorder of each county in which the real property described in the deed of trust is located. Once the document is recorded, it constitutes conclusive evidence of compliance with the requirements of Civ. Code § 2941.9(d) in favor of trustees acting pursuant to Civ. Code § 2941.9, substituted trustees acting pursuant to Civ. Code § 2934a [see Ch. 25C, Release and Reconveyance], subsequent assignees of the obligation secured by the deed of trust, and subsequent bona fide purchasers or encumbrancers for value of the real property described in the document [Civ. Code § 2941.9(d)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Broker as Substitute Trustee. Though the "Majority Action Affidavit" precludes the counting of the broker's stock (or affiliates) toward the majority, nothing in the statute precludes the broker from serving as the trustee on the appointment of the majority of the remaining members. Commentary by Timothy F. O'Leary

DIVISION II: REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 25A SECURITY INSTRUMENTS FOR REAL ESTATE FINANCING
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

10-25A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 25A.17

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 25A.17 Promissory Notes

[1] Requirements

A promissory note is the instrument generally used to evidence the indebtedness that is secured by a deed of trust or mortgage on real property. Notes are subject to the requirements of both contract and negotiable instrument law; these basic requirements are briefly discussed [see § 25A.17[2]-[6]]. However, the emphasis in this chapter is on the special requirements applicable to a promissory note used in a secured real property transaction.

A negotiable note allows a buyer to take the note free of many personal claims and defenses the maker might have against the original creditor. A "negotiable instrument" is an unconditional promise or order to pay a fixed amount of money, with or without interest or other charges described in the promise or order, provided all of the following apply [Com. Code § 3104(a)]:

- It is payable to bearer or to order at the time it is first issued or first comes into possession of a holder.

- It is payable on demand or at a definite time.

- It does not state any other undertaking or instrument by the person promising or ordering payment to do any act in addition to the payment of money. However, the promise or order may contain (1) an undertaking or power to give, maintain, or protect collateral to secure payment; (2) an authorization or power to the holder to confess judgment or realize on or dispose of collateral; or (3) a waiver of the benefit of any law intended for the advantage or protection of an obligor.

For further discussion of these requirements, see Ch. 55, Negotiable Instruments , and California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 110, Notes (Matthew Bender).

[3] Secured by Residential Property

Federal and state requirements for loans secured by residential property are generally more restrictive and more protective of the borrower than the parallel requirements for commercial property. Special areas of regulation include prepayment penalties [see § 25A.222[1]], prohibitions against lender acceleration of the loan on the buyer's sale or encumbrancing of the property [see § 25A.221[1]], impound accounts [see § 25A.228[1]], and the commencement of interest on a note [see Civ. Code § 2948.5]. For purposes of most governmental regulation in this area, "residential property" includes property containing one to four dwelling units [see, e.g., Civ. Code § 2948.5 (prohibiting commencement of interest for more than one day before recording of mortgage or trust deed or funds are available for withdrawal)]. In some instances, the term means a single-family, owner-occupied dwelling [see, e.g., Civ. Code § 2949 (prohibiting acceleration due to further encumbrance)].

The interest rate for a promissory note may remain constant or vary during the term of the loan. With either type of interest rate, there are several variations based on how and when the principal and interest will be paid over the term of the loan [see §§ 25A.200-25A.205]. Under a third type of interest arrangement, the rate at the beginning of the loan term is variable, but the borrower may "convert" the rate to a fixed term at specified times during the loan term.

Long term promissory notes with fixed interest rates and fixed payments were traditionally the principal type of note used in a secured real property transaction. This type of loan, with its fixed equal periodic payments of principal and interest, fully amortizes over the loan term [see § 25A.201].

By contrast, nonamortized [see Fin. Code § 7504(a)(3)] or partially amortized notes [see Fin. Code § 7504(a)(5)] have a due date prior to a full amortization term and require the payment of a lump sum or "balloon payment" on the earlier due date [see §§ 25A.200 (straight note), 25A.202 (note with increasing periodic payments and balloon payment), 25A.203 (note with interest only payments and interest tied to prime rate)]. For a discussion of the special statutory notice requirements applicable to a balloon payment note [Civ. Code § 2924i], see §§ 25A.225[1] and 25A.240[1].

The various types of real estate loans, including variable interest rate loans [see Civ. Code §§ 1916.5, 1916.6], adjustable payment, adjustable rate loans [see Civ. Code § 1916.7], adjustable rate loans [see 12 C.F.R. §§ 34.20, 34.21], and shared appreciation loans [see Civ. Code § 1917 et seq.] are described and discussed in the Legal Background to Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans .

For loans secured by a mortgage or trust deed on real property improved with one to four residential dwelling units, interest may not be charged for a period in excess of one day before recording of the mortgage or trust deed, if the loan proceeds are paid into escrow, or if there is no escrow, the date on which the loan proceeds have been made available for withdrawal as a matter of right [Civ. Code § 2948.5(a)]. For these purposes, an electronically transmitted document that specifies that final settlement has occurred constitutes written notice as to an individual item [Ins. Code § 12413.1(d)]. Interest may commence to accrue on the business day immediately preceding the day of recording if both of the following occur [Civ. Code § 2948.5(b)]:

- The borrower affirmatively requests, and the lender agrees, that the recording will occur on Monday, or on a day immediately following a bank holiday.

- The borrower receives disclosure information concerning the amount of additional per diem interest charged to facilitate recording on Monday or the day following a holiday, as the case may be, and stating that it may be possible to avoid the additional per diem interest charge by recording the deed of trust on a day immediately following a business day, and the borrower acknowledges receipt of this information by signing a copy of the disclosure document before placing funds in escrow.

In any case, these provisions do not apply to loans made or negotiated by real estate brokers that are subject to Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242(c), which prohibits charging interest until the date the proceeds of the loan are made available to the lender or are deposited in escrow [Civ. Code § 2948.5(c)].

[6] Series of Notes or Interests Secured by Same Real Property

Any transaction involving a sale of or an offer to sell a series of notes secured directly by an interest in the same California real property, or a sale of undivided interests in a note secured directly by California real property equivalent to a series transaction, must comply with specified requirements [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10237; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10238 et seq.]. The terms "sale" and "offer to sell" have the same meaning as in Corp. Code § 25017 and include the acts of negotiating and arranging the transaction [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10239.2(d)]. Qualifying transactions are subject solely to regulation by the Department of Real Estate and are exempted from supervision by the Department of Corporations under Corp. Code § 25110 [Corp. Code § 25102.5]. A broker or person who becomes the servicing agent for notes or interests sold under these provisions, on which payments due during any period of three consecutive months in the aggregate exceed $125,000 or the number of persons entitled to payments exceeds 120, must file the required notice within 30 days after becoming the servicing agent [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10238(b); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10238(a)].

For discussion of transactions and property subject to these requirements, as well as required notices, restrictions on advertising and promotional claims, restrictions on the terms of the notes, restrictions on the number of sales, and requirements and specifications of individuals who may purchase these notes, see California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 110, Notes (Matthew Bender).

§ 25A.18 Real Property Sales Contracts

A "real property sales contract" is an agreement under which one party agrees to convey title to real property to another party on the satisfaction of specified conditions set forth in the contract, and that does not require conveyance of title within one year from the date of formation of the contract [Civ. Code § 2985(a)]. This statutory definition encompasses what is commonly referred to as an installment land sale contract, under which the buyer pays the purchase price in installments over a period of time and the seller retains title to the property as security for the payments until all or a portion of the payments are made. The contract not only contains the basic buy-sell agreement, but also acts as the security device guaranteeing payment of the purchase price by permitting the seller to retain legal title until the buyer has made the required payments. A form of real property sales contract is set forth in § 25A.230[2]. The requirements applicable to the contract are fully discussed in § 25A.230[1].

Because developers could have difficulty financing large-scale residential condominium developments that comprise attached units, if Civil Code provisions governing installment land sale contracts [Civ. Code § 2985 et seq.] were applied to a pre-sale agreement for a unit in such a project, those provisions do not apply to such an agreement that was made in consequence of a conditional public report for the condominium project issued by the Department of Real Estate pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 11018.12 [Civ. Code § 2985(b); see generally Assem. Comm. on Judiciary, Analysis of Sen. Bill No. 504 (2005-2006 Reg. Sess.) as amended Jan. 19, 2006; see also California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 424, Regulation of Subdivided Land Sales, § 424.80 (Matthew Bender)(issuance of conditional public report)].

A sale of real property is considered to be an installment sale for income tax purposes if at least one payment is to be received after the close of the taxable year in which the sale occurs [I.R.C. § 453(b)(1); see Rev. & Tax. Code § 24667]. Income from an installment sale must be reported under the installment method unless the seller elects to report the income from the sale in full in the year of sale [I.R.C. § 453(a); see I.R.C. § 453(d)]. The seller might make this election if he or she anticipates a large loss in the year of the sale that would otherwise be unused, or significant increases in income in future years when payments are to be received. In general, the installment method permits the seller to recognize income when payments are actually received, rather than when the buyer incurs the contractual duty to pay.

When a seller reports gain from a sale of real property on the installment method, the amount of income recognized in any taxable year is the proportion of the payment received in that year that the gross profit bears to the total contract price [I.R.C. § 453(c); see Rev. & Tax. Code § 17551].

If an installment sale of depreciable property is made to a person or entity related to the seller [see I.R.C. § 453(f)(1) ("related person" defined)], the sale generally will not qualify for installment-method reporting [see I.R.C. § 453(g)]. Further, with certain exceptions, if a seller makes an installment sale to a related person or entity who then sells the property within two years after the original sale and before paying the original seller in full, the amount realized from the second sale is treated as having been received by the original seller at the time of the second sale [see I.R.C. § 453(e)].

Real property sales contracts should not be confused with "marketing contracts," which provide for the immediate transfer of title to the buyer in exchange for payment of the purchase price. For detailed coverage of these agreements, see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements .

§ 25A.19 Vendor's Lien

To the extent a seller of real property does not have a consensual lien, a vendor's lien exists in favor of the seller for the unpaid balance of the purchase price [Civ. Code §§ 3046-3048; see Dingley v. Bank of Ventura (1881) 57 Cal. 467] . A vendor's lien offers little security to the seller because it is unwritten and unrecorded and not binding on subsequent bona fide purchasers and encumbrancers for value [Civ. Code § 3048]. Subsequent purchasers or encumbrancers with actual or constructive knowledge that the balance of the original purchase price remains unpaid have sufficient notice to be subject to the lien [Edwards-Town, Inc. v. Dimin (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 87, 87 Cal. Rptr. 726].

§ 25A.20 Rent Skimming

"Rent skimming" means using revenue received from the rental of a parcel of residential real property at any time during the first-year period after the acquisition of that property without first applying the revenue or an equivalent amount to the payments due on all mortgages and trust deeds encumbering that property [Civ. Code § 890(a)]. Certain persons with a security interest in the real property and tenants of the property may bring a civil action against any person who engages in rent skimming with respect to that property [see Civ. Code § 891]. Multiple acts of rent skimming may result in criminal prosecution [see Civ. Code § 892]. Certain statutory affirmative defenses exist for both the civil and criminal actions, including payment by a defendant of the rental revenue received to a health care provider for necessary medical treatment for the defendant or his or her family [see Civ. Code § 893]. For further coverage, including forms for use in proceedings based on rent skimming, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages (Matthew Bender).

PRACTICE TIP:

Rent Skimming. Unlike a common-law claim for waste, an action for rent skimming is not barred by the "one-action" rule [Civ. Code § 891(g)]. The statute thus provides a powerful remedy that is not extinguished by a foreclosure sale. Commentary by Timothy F. O'Leary

§ 25A.21 Inspection of Real Property Security

[1] Right of Entry

A secured lender [see Civ. Code § 2929.5(e)(5) (definition)], subject to statutory limitations, may enter and inspect the real property security for the purpose of determining the existence, location, nature, and magnitude of any past or present release or threatened release of any hazardous substance into, onto, beneath, or from the real property security [Civ. Code § 2929.5(a); see Civ. Code § 2929.5(e)(2), (4) (definitions of "hazardous substance" and "release")]. The lender may exercise this right under either of the following circumstances [Civ. Code § 2929.5(a)]:

- On reasonable belief of the existence of a past or present release or threatened release of any hazardous substance into, onto, beneath, or from the real property security not previously disclosed in writing to the secured lender in conjunction with the making, renewal, or modification of a loan, extension of credit, guaranty, or other obligation involving the borrower.

- After the commencement of nonjudicial or judicial foreclosure proceedings against the real property security.

The lender must not abuse the right of entry and inspection or use it to harass the borrower or tenant of the property. Further, the lender must give the borrower or tenant reasonable notice of the lender's intent to enter, and may enter only during the borrower's or tenant's normal business hours, except (1) in case of an emergency, (2) when the borrower or tenant has abandoned the premises, or (3) if it is impracticable to give that notice or enter during those hours. Twenty-four hours notice is presumed to be reasonable notice in the absence of evidence to the contrary [Civ. Code § 2929.5(b)]. Finally, the lender must reimburse the borrower for the cost of repair of any physical injury to the real property security caused by the entry and inspection [Civ. Code § 2929.5(c)].

[2] Court Order

If the lender is refused the right of entry and inspection by the borrower or tenant of the property, or is otherwise unable to enter and inspect the property without a breach of the peace, the lender may, on petition, obtain an order from a court of competent jurisdiction to exercise the lender's rights under Civ. Code § 2929.5(a). That action will not constitute an action within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 726(a) (the "one form of action" rule) [Civ. Code § 2929.5(d); see Ch. 25D, Foreclosure ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 564(c)- (e) (receiver may be appointed in such an action)].

[3] Related Remedies

A secured lender may bring an action against the borrower for breach of any environmental provision made by the borrower, for the recovery of damages, and for the enforcement of the environmental provision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 736]. Further, when the real property security is environmentally impaired and the borrower is in default, the lender may (1) waive its lien against the impaired security and exercise the rights and remedies of an unsecured creditor, or (2) exercise the rights and remedies of a secured creditor [see Code Civ. Proc. § 726.5]. For further discussion of these remedies, see Ch. 25D, Foreclosure .

The Homeowners Protection Act of 1998 [12 U.S.C. § 4901 et seq.; see Pub. L. No. 105-216, § 13 (effective July 29, 1999)] prescribes guidelines for mandatory termination of private mortgage insurance (PMI) for a residential mortgage when the principal balance is first scheduled to reach or actually reaches 80 percent of the original value of the property securing the mortgage loan. The Act's guidelines address the following [see 12 U.S.C. § 4902]:

- Situations in which the mortgagor's written request to the mortgage servicer for cancellation of PMI must be given effect.
- Situations in which PMI must be automatically terminated.
- The requirement that in all cases PMI must be terminated at the midpoint of the amortization period if the mortgagor is then current on the mortgage payments.
- The date as of which no further PMI payments can be required.
- The return of unearned PMI premiums to the mortgagor.

High-risk loans, as defined by statute, are exempted from these provisions [see 12 U.S.C. § 4902(g)].

The Act further prescribes disclosure requirements for PMI amortization schedules, including schedules for the following [12 U.S.C. § 4903]:

- New mortgages at the time of the transaction.
- High-risk mortgages.

- Mortgage transactions entered into before enactment of the Act.
- Annual written updates.
- PMI cancellation or termination.
- Mortgage insurance paid for by the lender.

No fees may be charged for these disclosures [12 U.S.C. § 4906]. In addition, any mortgage servicer, mortgagee, or mortgage insurer who violates the Act's provisions is subject to civil liability for damages incurred by each mortgagor to whom the violation relates [12 U.S.C. § 4907].

The Act preempts state law governing PMI, unless the state law requires PMI termination at an earlier date or when a lower mortgage loan principal balance is achieved. The Act also preempts servicing agreements entered into by the Federal National Mortgage Association, the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation, or any private investor or note holder [12 U.S.C. § 4908].

The Act further prescribes enforcement guidelines for federal banking agencies [12 U.S.C. § 4909].

A consumer loan that is secured by real property may be subject to additional regulation [see Fin. Code § 4970 et seq.]. For the loan to be covered by the governing provisions, the real property securing the loan must be (1) used or intended to be used as the principal dwelling by the consumer, (2) located in California, and (3) improved by a one-to-four unit residential building [Fin. Code § 4970(d)]. In addition, one of the following conditions must be met [Fin. Code § 4970(b)]:

- The annual percentage rate at consummation of the transaction will exceed by more than 8 percentage points the yield on Treasury securities having comparable periods of maturity on the fifteenth day of the month immediately preceding the month in which the application for the extension of credit is received by the creditor.

- The total points and fees payable by the consumer at or before closing will exceed 6 percent of the total loan amount [see Fin. Code § 4970(c) (items included in "points and fees"); Wolski v. Fremont Investment & Loan (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 347, 350, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 500 (transaction was not covered loan when total points and fees exceeded 6 percent only if yield-spread premium was included)].

For these purposes, a consumer loan does not include (1) a reverse mortgage, (2) an open line of credit as defined by Regulation Z [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.1 et seq.], (3) a consumer credit transaction that is secured by rental property or second homes, or (4) a bridge loan, that is, any temporary loan, having a maturity of one year or less, for the purpose of acquisition or construction of a dwelling intended to become the consumer's principal dwelling [Fin. Code § 4970(d)].

Loans that are subject to these regulations and prohibitions must satisfy detailed requirements with regard to limitations on prepayment fees or penalties [Fin. Code § 4973(a)], permissible payment schedules [Fin. Code § 4973(b)], and prohibited terms and provisions [Fin. Code § 4973(c)- (e)], among other requirements. In addition, before giving the loan the lender must satisfy conditions concerning the lender's reasonable belief in the loan recipient's ability to repay the loan [Fin. Code § 4973(f)]. The lender must also provide the borrower with required disclosures, and is subject to enforcement and penalties for violations of the law [Fin. Code § 4973(j)]. For additional discussion of this law and its application, see Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans .

§ 25A.113 Federal and State Disclosure Requirements

1. Determine applicability of following federal disclosure statutes to transaction:

a. Federal Truth in Lending Act [15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.].

NOTE:
For a discussion of the applicability of the Truth in Lending Act, see "Disclosures Required Under Federal Truth in Lending Act" and subsequent headings in the Legal Background to Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans . The factors in determining applicability of the Act are outlined in Part II(B) of the Transaction Guide to Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans .

b. Federal Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act [12 U.S.C. §§ 2601-2617].

NOTE:
For coverage of the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act, see "Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act (RESPA)--In General" and succeeding headings in the Legal Background to Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans. The factors in determining applicability of the Act are outlined in Part II(C) of the Transaction Guide to Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans .

2. Determine applicability of following state statutory disclosure requirements:

a. Disclosures required when transaction involves [see Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans]:

(1) Dwelling containing up to four units;

(2) Seller financing; and

(3) Participation of "arranger of credit."

b. Disclosures required for adjustable payment, adjustable rate loans [see Civ. Code § 1916.7; see also "Disclosures for Adjustable Payment, Adjustable Rate Residential Loans" in Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans].

c. Disclosures required for transactions involving mortgage loan brokers [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 10240, 10232.4, 10232.5; see also "Mortgage Loan Brokers--In General" and subsequent headings in Legal Background to Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans].

§ 25A.120 Promissory Note and Security Instrument

NOTE:

If the promissory note and trust deed or mortgage must be drafted, Part D of this Transaction Guide should be used in conjunction with the following procedural guide. Also, if the note and security instrument are executed in connection with the purchase of real property, which is usually the case, counsel should consult Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements , and Ch. 26, Real Property Escrows .

1. Review note and security instrument to confirm that they do not provide for waiver of following nonwaivable rights of debtor:

a. Rights under Civ. Code § 2924, which include right to require recordation of notice of default and publication of notice of sale [see Civ. Code § 2953; see also §§ 25D.202[1] (notice of default), 25D.206[1] (notice of sale)].

b. Rights under Civ. Code § 2924b, which include right to receive copy of notices of default and sale [see Civ. Code § 2953; see also § 25A.15].

c. Rights under Civ. Code § 2924c, which include rights to [see Civ. Code § 2953; see also § 25D.202[1]]:

(1) Reinstate trust deed or mortgage prior to foreclosure; and

(2) Have notice of rescission of declaration of default recorded.

d. "One form of action" protection under Code Civ. Proc. § 726 [see Civ. Code § 2953; see also §

e. Antideficiency protection of purchase money obligations under Code Civ. Proc. § 580b [Freedland v. Greco (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 462, 289 P.2d 463].

f. Antideficiency protection after nonjudicial foreclosure under Code Civ. Proc. § 580d [Freedland v. Greco (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 462, 289 P.2d 463].

g. Right of redemption from a lien [Civ. Code § 2889].

2. Confirm provisions of note and security instrument are:

a. Consistent with terms of purchase agreement or other applicable agreement for real property; and

b. Are otherwise acceptable to client.

3. If secured note will be junior lien on property, determine unpaid balance on senior lien by obtaining statement of unpaid balance from holder of senior lien [see Civ. Code § 2943; see also Ch. 25B, Subordination, Assumption and Assignment, §§ 25B.220, 25B.221].

4. Before consummation of transaction, confirm that lender has given debtor disclosure statements required by following federal statutes (as applicable):

a. Truth in Lending Act [15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.; see § 25A.113(1)(a); see also Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans]:

(1) General disclosure statement regarding loan [12 C.F.R. §§ 226.17-226.19; see Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales].

(2) Notice to debtor of right to rescind credit transaction, together with a blank notice of rescission for debtor's use [12 C.F.R. §§ 226.15, 226.23; see Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans].

b. Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act: [12 U.S.C. § 2601 et seq.; see § 25A.113(1)(b).]

(1) Federal booklet describing nature and costs of settlement services [12 U.S.C. § 2604(d)].

(2) Good-faith estimate of settlement charges [12 U.S.C. § 2604(c)].

(3) Uniform settlement statement as part of a closing in escrow [see 12 U.S.C. § 2603(a)].

5. Confirm that lender has given debtor disclosure statements required under state law (as applicable):

a. If transaction involves "arranger of credit," seller financing, and residential property of four or fewer units [see Civ. Code §§ 2956-2967; see also § 25A.113(2)(a)]:

(1) General disclosure statement [Civ. Code § 2963].

NOTE:

The California Association of Realtors and other real estate boards offer standardized forms designed to satisfy these disclosure requirements [see Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans].

(2) Disclosure regarding balloon payment [Civ. Code § 2966; see § 25A.225].

b. Disclosures regarding adjustable payment, adjustable rate loans [see Civ. Code § 1916.7; see also Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans].

c. Disclosures involving mortgage loan brokers [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 10240, 10232.4, and 10232.5; see also Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans].

6. Have client execute promissory note [see §§ 25A.200-25A.205] and trust deed or mortgage [see §§ 25A.210-25A.214].

NOTE:

The name of the trustor on the trust deed or the mortgagor on the mortgage should be the same as it will appear on the grant deed conveying title to the property. If the real property secured by the trust deed or mortgage is community property, both spouses must execute any instrument that encumbers the property [Fam. Code § 1102(a); see Fam. Code § 1102(e) (statute does not preclude spouse from encumbering his or her interest in community real property, as provided in Fam. Code § 2033, to pay reasonable attorneys' fees to retain or maintain legal counsel in proceeding for dissolution of marriage, for nullity of marriage, or for legal separation of parties)]. For discussion of additional requirements governing execution of an instrument affecting real property by a partnership, corporation or unincorporated association, see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements .

7. If lien being created is junior to another, have holder of junior lien:

a. Mail actual notice of junior lien [see § 25A.241] to holder of senior security.

NOTE:

Unless the junior lienor delivers actual notice of his or her junior security to the holder of the senior security, any advances made by the senior to the trustor subsequent to the execution of the junior security will be prior to the lien of the junior security. Actual notice does not include the constructive notice afforded by recording the junior security [see § 25A.241[1]].

b. Execute and record separate request for notices of default and sale [see § 25D.200[2]; see also Civ. Code § 2924b] if request is not inserted in junior trust deed.

c. Execute and record request for notice of delinquencies under senior lien [Civ. Code § 2924e; see § 25A.242].

8. Record trust deed [Civ. Code § 2952] in every county where any portion of real property is located [Civ. Code § 1169; see § 25A.12[6]].

NOTE:

Although a trust deed is effective as between the trustor and beneficiary as of the date of execution, the beneficiary can only protect his or her priority as against subsequent encumbrancers and transferees of the trustor by recording the trust deed [Civ. Code §§ 1214, 1215; see § 25A.13[2]].

§ 25A.121 Real Property Sales Contracts

NOTE:
When the real property sales contract must be drafted rather than merely reviewed, § 25A.132 should be used in conjunction with this section.

1. Order preliminary title report or commitment from title company to verify [see Ch. 26A, Title Insurance]:

a. Existing liens and encumbrances against property.

b. Record owner of property.

2. If contract is subject to existing liens on property, determine unpaid balance on each lien by obtaining following from holder of lien [see Civ. Code § 2943]:

a. Payoff demand statement, if existing lien is to be paid in full with funds provided by purchaser [see Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans].

b. Beneficiary statement, if purchaser is to assume existing lien [see Ch. 25B, Subordination, Assumption, and Assignments].

3. Confirm provisions of contract are:

a. Consistent with agreement negotiated by or on behalf of client; and

b. Otherwise acceptable to client.

4. Confirm contract contains statement of [Civ. Code § 2985.5]:

a. Number of years required to complete payment in accordance with terms of contract.

b. Basis on which tax estimate is made.

5. If contract is to contain arbitration provision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1298(a), (c); see § 25A.233]:

NOTE:
Disclosure requirements apply only when the real property sales contract contains a provision for binding arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1298(a)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements .

a. Use following heading for provision: "ARBITRATION OF DISPUTES."

b. Insert statutory arbitration notice:
(1) Immediately before line or space provided for parties to indicate their assent or nonassent to arbitration provision; and

(2) Immediately following arbitration provision.

c. Observe following format requirements:

(1) If contract is typed, set out provision and statutory notice in capital letters.

(2) If contract is printed:
(a) Set out arbitration provision in at least 8-point bold type or in contrasting red in at least 8-point type; and

(b) Set out statutory notice in at least 10-point bold type or in contrasting red in at least 8-point bold type.

6. If contract is for sale of unimproved, previously divided property [see Civ. Code § 2985.51(e), (f)], confirm contract contains statement of compliance with or nonapplicability of Subdivision Map Act [Civ. Code § 2985.51; see Gov. Code § 66410 et seq. (Subdivision Map Act); see also §§ 25A.133(14), 25A.232].

7. If contract is for sale of residential lot in a subdivision, verify contract does not prohibit prepayment by buyer except during 12-month period following sale [Civ. Code § 2985.6(a)].

8. When contract is for sale of land in subdivision, include any provisions required by Subdivided Lands Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11000 et seq.] and its implementing regulations [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2791.9; see also § 25A.230[1][l][ii]].

9. Have buyer deliver cashier's check for down payment to escrow holder (or seller's attorney if no escrow holder) to hold in trust pending recordation of contract and issuance of title policies.

NOTE:

The contract by its terms usually acknowledges receipt of this sum by the seller [see § 25A.230[2]].

10. Have parties execute contract.

11. Record entire contract or memorandum of contract [see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements] in every county in which any portion of real property is located [Civ. Code § 1169].

NOTE:

A memorandum of the contract rather than the contract itself should be recorded only if this is acceptable to the title company insuring the seller's and buyer's interest in the contract.

12. Concurrently with recordation of contract, obtain policy of title insurance insuring client's (whether buyer or seller) interest in contract [see Ch. 26A, Title Insurance].

13. If contract is subject to existing liens, execute and record separate request for notices of default and sale [see Ch. 25D, Foreclosure ; see also Civ. Code § 2924b] for each lien, if request is not inserted in contract.

§ 25A.130 Promissory Notes

NOTE:
The following provisions are included in all of the illustrative promissory notes set forth in this chapter [see §§ 25A.200-25A.205], unless otherwise indicated.

1. Begin promissory note with provision setting forth:

a. Full names of payor and payee.

b. Payee's promise to pay obligation.

c. In the case of an all-inclusive note, description of "first" or "underlying" note and security instrument [see § 25A.205].

2. Include provision describing terms of obligation:

a. Original principal amount.

b. Interest rate.

c. Whether interest rate is fixed or will change during term of loan.

d. Term of loan.

3. Specify method of repayment:

NOTE:

If the note is secured by a trust deed or mortgage on real property improved with one to four residential dwelling units, there are statutory restrictions governing the commencement of interest on the note [see § 25A.17[5]].

a. Payment of entire principal (with accrued interest) on certain date [see § 25A.200].

b. Payment of interest only in regular installments during term of loan and payment of principal in one or more lump sums [see § 25A.203].

c. Payments of principal and interest in equal monthly or other periodic installments [see § 25A.201].

d. Payment on demand [see § 25A.204].

4. Specify amount and due date of each payment during term of loan.

5. Include provision for payment by debtor of attorneys' fees in event of debtor's default under note.

6. Add statutory notice regarding balloon payment [see § 25A.225] if [Civ. Code § 2966]:

a. Note has repayment term longer than one year;

b. Note is given to seller of residential dwelling for not more than four families; and

c. An "arranger of credit" participates in transaction [see Civ. Code § 2957(a)(1) ("arranger of credit" defined)].

7. Consider including provision under which creditor waives personal liability of debtor for obligation [see § 25A.220].

NOTE:

The creditor may agree to such a provision when antideficiency legislation restricts the creditor to proceeding only against the secured real property and prohibits personal judgments against the debtor. For discussion of deficiency judgments, see Ch. 25D, Foreclosure ; see also California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 122, Antideficiency Legislation (Matthew Bender).

8. If desired, insert "due-on-sale" and/or "due-on-encumbrance" provision [see § 25A.221].

NOTE:

A "due-on-sale" provision gives the lender the option to accelerate the entire balance of the note if the debtor sells or otherwise transfers the underlying real property. A "due-on-encumbrance" provision gives the lender the same option in the event the debtor further encumbers the secured property.

9. If debtor will have (pursuant to law or agreement of parties) right to prepay all or any portion of debt, add provision [see § 25A.222]:

a. Stating this fact; and

b. If appropriate, describing prepayment penalty.

10. If desired, include late charge provision [see § 25A.223].

11. If drafting an all-inclusive note:

a. Provide for payment of underlying obligation, e.g. [see § 25A.205[1][d]]:
(1) Require holder of all-inclusive documents to make payments on underlying instrument, to extent payor under all-inclusive documents provides holder with necessary funds [see § 25A.205]; or

(2) Have escrow holder accept payments from payor and make above payments.

b. Confirm that all-inclusive documents are consistent with underlying documents [see § 25A.205[1][c]].

§ 25A.131 Trust Deeds

NOTE:
This section refers solely to deeds of trust, since they are used much more frequently in California than mortgages. However, all requirements for a deed of trust discussed below, unless otherwise noted, are equally applicable to a mortgage.

1. Begin with introductory paragraph setting forth:

a. Name and legal status of trustor, trustee, and beneficiary.

b. Name of trustor's spouse, if married.

NOTE:
The trustor's spouse must execute the trust deed if the secured property is community property [Fam. Code § 1102(a); see Fam. Code § 1102(e) (statute does not preclude spouse from encumbering his or her interest in community real property, as provided in Fam. Code § 2033 (regarding "family law attorney's real property lien"), to pay reasonable attorneys' fees to retain or maintain legal counsel in proceeding for dissolution of marriage, for nullity of marriage, or for legal separation of parties)].

c. Trustor's address.

NOTE:
The trust deed will not be accepted for recording unless it contains this information [Civ. Code § 2924b;

Gov. Code § 27321.5(b); see § 25A.210[1][b]].

2. Include clause granting power of sale to trustee [see § 25A.210[2], 2nd P; see also § 25A.210[1][c]].

3. Describe property to be secured by setting forth [see § 25A.210[1][d]]:

a. Legal description, either:

(1) In body of text of trust deed; or

(2) As exhibit to be attached to trust deed.

b. County, and city or unincorporated area where property is located.

NOTE:

For discussion of the hypothecation of estates for years in real property by trust deeds or mortgages [see, e.g., Civ. Code § 2920(a)], see § 25A.11[2].

4. Specify obligations that trust deed is to secure [see § 25A.210[1][d]:

a. Date and amount of obligation being incurred contemporaneously with execution of trust deed [see § 25A.210[2], 3d P].

b. Preexisting obligations, if any.

c. Any future advances made by beneficiary to trustor [see § 25A.224[1]].

5. Include provisions setting forth affirmative obligations of trustor under trust deed:

a. To keep property in good condition and repair and to not commit waste [see § 25A.210[2], P (A)(1); see also § 25A.210[1][e]].

b. To procure and maintain fire insurance on property [see § 25A.210[2], P (A)(2); see also § 25A.210[1][f]].

c. To appear in and defend any action affecting security of trust deed [see § 25A.210[2], P (A)(3); see also § 25A.210[1][g]].

d. To pay taxes, assessments, and prior liens before delinquency [see § 25A.210[2], P (A)(4); see also § 25A.210[1][g]].

e. To reimburse beneficiary or trustee for any sums expended under trust deed [see § 25A.210[2], P (A)(5)].

6. Add clause providing for assignment of proceeds of any condemnation award to beneficiary [see § 25A.210[2], P (B)(1); see also 25A.210[1][h]].

7. Consider including following provisions relating to late payments by trustor:

a. Acceptance by beneficiary of late payment as not waiving right to declare default for late payment [

b. Imposition of late charge for late payment [see § 25A.223[1].

8. Add provision requiring trustee to execute full reconveyance to trustor on request of beneficiary and full payment by trustor [Civ. Code § 2941; see § 25A.210[2], P (B)(4); see also § 25A.210[1][k]].

9. Include provision under which trustor assigns rents and profits to beneficiary [see Civ. Code § 2938; see also § 25A.210[1][l]].

10. Add provision outlining [see § 25A.210[2], P (B)(6)]:

a. Remedies of beneficiary on default by trustor; and

b. Procedure for nonjudicial foreclosure.

11. Insert following provisions relating to trustee:

a. Acceptance by trustee of duties under trust deed [see § 25A.210[2], P (B)(8)]; and

b. Procedure for substituting one trustee for another [see § 25A.210[2], P (B)(9); see also § 25A.210[1][m]].

NOTE:
For the procedure for substituting a trustee in a deed of trust, see §§ 25C.140-25C.143.

12. If trust deed is to be subordinated to another deed of trust, insert provisions [see § 25A.210[1][j]]:

NOTE:
An agreement to subordinate often occurs in a purchase/sale situation when the seller agrees to accept a trust deed from the purchaser as part of the purchase price and to subordinate that trust deed to a deed of trust securing a construction loan to be obtained by the purchaser to develop the property. For coverage of subordination, see Ch. 25B, Subordination, Assumption, and Assignment **.

a. Providing for:

(1) "Automatic subordination" of trust deed to subsequent trust deed securing future loan [see §§ 25B.200, 25B.202-25B.206]; or

(2) Subordination to trust deed being recorded concurrently [see § 25B.205[2]]; and

b. Complying with statutory notice and other requirements, if applicable [see Civ. Code § 2953.2; see also §§ 25B.201[2], 25B.202[2]].

NOTE:
When a trust deed is to be subordinated to an existing loan, it may be necessary to execute a separate subordination agreement [see § 25B.207[2]]. A subordination agreement may be subject to statutory notice and other requirements [see Civ. Code § 2953.3; see also §§ 25B.208-25B.211].

13. If parties have agreed that portions of property are to be released from trust deed on payment of designated portions of purchase price, insert partial release provision [see § 25A.210[1][j]; see also §§ 25C.220-25C.224].

14. If promissory note secured by trust deed is a purchase money encumbrance, insert provision stating that fact [see § 25A.210[2], P (B)(14)].

15. If trustor will not be personally liable under note secured by trust deed, include provision stating that fact [see § 25A.220].

16. Consider including due-on-sale clause [see § 25A.221].

17. If there is senior lien of record, either:

a. Add request for copies of notice of default and sale for senior lien [see § 25A.210[2], P (B)(15)]; or

b. Execute separate request for notice [see § 25D.200[2]].

18. Include signature blocks for parties, with appropriate form of acknowledgment for each party [see § 25A.210 for individual, corporate, and partnership forms of acknowledgment].

§ 25A.132 Real Property Sales Contracts

1. Begin contract with introductory paragraph or preamble setting forth [see § 25A.230[2] (preamble of form)]:

a. Execution date of contract.

b. Information concerning parties:
(1) Full names (spelled correctly).

NOTE:
If the seller acquired title in one name but has since changed his or her name, that fact should be recited in the preamble of the contract in the same manner as it should be recited in a deed by seller conveying the title [Civ. Code § 1096; see Ch. 27, Deeds and Recording].

(2) Status and capacity, e.g.:

(a) California corporation.

(b) A California limited partnership.

(c) Husband and wife.

(d) A single man or woman.

(e) Other.

c. Agreement of parties to purchase and sell real property.

2. Describe property being sold by:

a. Providing legal description, either:

(1) In introductory paragraph; or

(2) In exhibit that is attached to contract and incorporated by reference; and

b. Designating county and city or unincorporated area in which property being sold is located.

3. Include purchase price provision [see § 25A.230[2], § 1] that:

a. States total purchase price.

b. Describes method by which purchase price is to be paid:

(1) Amount of payment, if any, to be made on execution of contract.

(2) Amount of each installment to be made under contract by buyer.

(3) Whether buyer may prepay without penalty any installments due under contract.

NOTE:
This will dictate whether the words "or more" should be included in the contract following specification of the amount of each installment or whether a separate prepayment penalty clause should be included in the contract [see § 25A.222*].

If the property being sold consists of a lot in a residential subdivision and the lot contains a dwelling for not more than four families, the buyer has a statutory right of prepayment that cannot be waived [Civ. Code § 2985.6]. However, notwithstanding this right, the seller, by an agreement in writing with the buyer, may prohibit prepayment for up to a 12-month period following the sale [Civ. Code § 2985.6].

(4) Frequency with which and date on which each installment is to be paid.

(5) Rate of interest to be charged on unpaid principal balance of purchase price.

(6) Whether interest is included in each installment or is to be paid in addition to each installment.

NOTE:
When interest is included in each installment, the contract should provide that each installment will be credited first to the payment of interest and then to the reduction of the unpaid principal balance of the purchase price.

(7) Place or places where each installment is to be paid.

(8) Number of years that will be required for buyer to complete payment of purchase price under contract, disregarding any prepayment privileges or provisions [Civ. Code § 2985.5(a); see § 25A.230[2], § 1(b)].

4. Include provision setting forth buyer's responsibilities for payment of real property taxes:

a. Date when taxes will be prorated between buyer and seller [see § 25A.230[2], § 5].

b. Method by which buyer will pay taxes [see § 25A.230[2], § 5].

c. Whether impound fund is to be established for payment of taxes and insurance [see § 25A.231[2]].

NOTE:
If the property being sold is subject to a trust deed that requires an impound for taxes, the contract must provide for an impound fund [see § 25A.231*].

d. Basis on which tax estimate is made [Civ. Code § 2985.5(b)].

e. Interest rate to be charged on amounts paid by seller for taxes, insurance, etc., following buyer's failure to satisfy its obligation to pay these amounts prior to delinquency [see § 25A.230[2], § 7].

5. Include provisions setting forth other affirmative obligations of buyer under contract, e.g.:

a. To keep property in good condition and repair and to not commit waste [see § 25A.230[2], § 11].

b. To procure and maintain fire insurance on property [see § 25A.230[2], § 6].

6. Add clause assigning proceeds of any condemnation award to seller [see § 25A.230[2], § 8; see also § 25A.210[1][h]].

7. Consider including provisions relating to late payments by buyer:

a. Acceptance by seller of late payment as not waiving right to declare default for late payment [see § 25A.210[2], P (B)(2)].

b. Imposition of late charge for late payment [see § 25A.223[1]].

8. Include provision under which buyer assigns rents to beneficiary [see Civ. Code § 2938; see also § 25A.210[1][l]].

9. Consider inserting clause in which trustee is granted power of sale [see § 25A.210[1][c]].

10. When power of sale is included, add provisions for:

a. Powers of trustee [see § 25A.230[2], § 2].

b. Remedies of seller on default by buyer and procedure for sale by nonjudicial foreclosure [see § 25A.230[2], § 17].

c. Acceptance by trustee of duties under trust deed [see § 25A.230[2], § 18].

d. Procedure for substituting one trustee for another [see § 25A.230[2], § 19].

NOTE:
For the procedure for substituting a trustee in a trust deed, see §§ 25C.140-25C.143.

11. If agreed on by parties, include provision setting forth conditions under which seller will convey legal title to property to buyer and accept promissory note secured by trust deed on property being sold in substitution of installment contract [see § 25A.230[2], § 22].

12. State which party is to procure and pay for title insurance policy [see § 25A.230[2], § 21].

13. Identify each existing encumbrance against property and party responsible for payment of encumbrance [see § 25A.230[2], § 3].

NOTE:
Every installment sales contract relating to the sale by a subdivider of real property in a subdivision must clearly set forth any encumbrances outstanding at the date of the contract [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11200]. When any property being sold under an installment sales contract is subject to an existing trust deed or mortgage, the buyer should record a request for notice of default and sale [see § 25D.200[2]*].

14. If real property that is subject of contract is unimproved [see Civ. Code § 2985.51(e)] and resulted from division of real property, add appropriate statutory statement regarding compliance with or nonapplicability of Subdivision Map Act [Civ. Code § 2985.51; see § 25A.232; see also Gov. Code §§ 66410-66499.37 (Subdivision Map Act)], depending on when division occurred:

a. If division occurred on or after January 1, 1978, statement that division creating parcel or parcels to be conveyed was [Civ. Code § 2985.51(a)]:

(1) Made in compliance with Subdivision Map Act [Gov. Code § 66410 et seq.] and local ordinances adopted pursuant thereto.

(2) Not subject to Subdivision Map Act and local ordinances.

(3) Exempt from the Subdivision Map Act and regulations.

(4) Subject of waiver of requirements of Subdivision Map Act and local ordinances.

NOTE:
Each of the above statements must include specific additional information [see Civ. Code § 2985.51(a); see also § 25A.232[2]].

b. If division occurred before January 1, 1978, contract must: [Civ. Code § 2985.51(b)(1), (2)]

(1) Contain or be attached to, signed statement by vendor that relevant parcel or parcels:

(a) Have been created in compliance with Subdivision Map Act and any local ordinances adopted thereto, or any applicable prior law regulating division of land;

(b) Are covered by waiver of foregoing laws; or

(c) Were exempt from or not otherwise subject to any such law at time of their creation, or

(2) Include description of real property being conveyed as entire lot or parcel by referencing recorded final or parcel map creating parcel or parcels being conveyed.

NOTE:

If the parcel or parcels that are the subject of the real property sales contract were not created in compliance with the Subdivision Map Act and local ordinances adopted pursuant thereto, or any other prior law regulating the division of land, and were not exempt from, or were otherwise subject to any such law at the time of their creation, the real property sales contract must contain a statement signed by the vendor and vendee acknowledging that fact [Civ. Code § 2985.51(b)(3)]. In addition, the vendor must attach to the real property sales contract a conditional certificate of compliance issued pursuant to Gov. Code § 66499.35 [Civ. Code § 2985.51(b)(3)]. These requirements are fully discussed in § 25A.232[1]; illustrative forms for the required statements are included in § 25A.232[2].

15. When contract is for sale of land in subdivision, include any provisions required by Subdivided Lands Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11000 et seq.] and its implementing regulations [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2791.9; see also § 25A.230[1][l][ii]].

16. Include signature blocks and appropriate forms of acknowledgment for each signatory [see § 25A.210 for individual, corporate, and partnership forms of acknowledgment].

§ 25A.140 Statement of Account for Impound or Trust Account Funds

NOTE:

The requirements outlined in this section apply to trust deeds, mortgages, and real property sales contracts [Civ. Code § 2954(b)]. The term "creditor," as used below, includes a beneficiary under a deed of trust, a mortgagee under a mortgage, and the seller under a real property sales contract. The term "debtor," as used below, includes a trustor, mortgagor, and a buyer under a real property sales contract.

1. On receipt of written request from debtor, have creditor, within 60 days after end of calendar year, furnish statement for calendar year containing itemized accounting of [Civ. Code § 2954(b); see § 25A.245]:

a. Moneys received for interest and principal repayment; and

b. Moneys received and held in or disbursed from an impound or trust account, if any, for payment of property taxes, insurance premiums, or other purposes relating to the property.

NOTE:

Transmission by the creditor to a debtor of a monthly statement or passbook showing moneys received for interest and principal repayment and received and held in and disbursed from an impound or trust account, if any, constitutes compliance with this disclosure requirement [Civ. Code § 2954(b)].

If the creditor willfully or repeatedly violates this requirement, he or she will be subject to a civil fine [see Civ. Code § 2954(b)].

2. On receipt of written request and of advance payment required by statute [see Civ. Code § 2954(b)], have creditor furnish statement for period other than calendar year [Civ. Code § 2954(b)].

NOTE:

The debtor is entitled to only one free statement per calendar year [Civ. Code § 2954(b)].

§ 25A.141 Annual Statement of Creditor

NOTE:

The requirements outlined below apply to purchase money deeds of trust, mortgages, and real property sales contracts for real property containing only a one-to-four-family residence, and to the refinancing of the foregoing security instruments [see Civ. Code §§ 2954.2(a), 2954.2(b)(1)]. Therefore, the term "creditor," as used below, includes a beneficiary under a trust deed, a mortgagee under a mortgage, and the seller under a real property sales contract. The term "debtor," as used below, includes a trustor, mortgagor, and a buyer under a real property sales contract.

1. Unless creditor selects option discussed in (2), below, have creditor furnish to debtor, within 60 days after end of calendar year, written statement that [Civ. Code § 2954.2(a); see § 25A.246[2]]:

a. Shows amount of moneys received for interest and principal repayment and late charges;

b. Shows amount of moneys received and held in or disbursed from an impound account, if any, for payment of property taxes, insurance premiums, bond assessments, or other purposes relating to property, and interest credited to account; and

c. Contains notice in 10-point type that debtor may request additional accountings pursuant to Civ. Code § 2954 [see § 25A.140].

NOTE:

The debtor is entitled to receive one statement for each calendar year without charge and without request [Civ. Code § 2954.2(a)].

2. Advise client that creditor may, in lieu of furnishing above statement, transmit to debtor cumulative statements or receipts that, for each calendar year, provide in one of the statements or receipts the information required by statute [Civ. Code § 2954.2(a)].

NOTE:

If this alternative method of complying with the statute is used, the 10-point notice advising the debtor that additional accountings can be requested under Civ. Code § 2954 [see P (1)(c), above], should be added to the cumulative statements or receipts [Civ. Code § 2954.2(a)].

§ 25A.142 Request for Notice of Delinquencies

NOTE:

A beneficiary or mortgagee of any deed of trust or mortgage on real property may request a notice of delinquency on a senior trust deed or mortgage if (1) the subject real property contains one to four residential units, or (2) the trust deed or mortgage was given to secure an original obligation of up to $300,000 [Civ. Code § 2924e(a)]. Although all references below are to a trust deed and the trustor and beneficiary, all requirements are equally applicable to a mortgage, mortgagor, and mortgagee.

1. Draft instrument requesting notice of any or all delinquencies of four months or more on senior lien and containing [Civ. Code § 2924e(b); see § 25A.242[2]]:

a. Identification of ownership or security interest of requester.

b. Date on which requester's interest will terminate as evidenced by maturity date of note of trustor in favor of requester.

c. Name of trustor.

d. Name of current owner of security property if different from trustor.

e. Street address or other description of security property.

f. Loan number (if available to requester) of loan secured by senior lien.

g. Name and address to which notice is to be sent.

2. Obtain trustor's written consent for beneficiary to receive notice of delinquencies through either [Civ. Code § 2924e(a)]:

a. Signed and dated agreement, separate and apart from other loan and security documents; or

b. Disclosure made to trustor in at least 10-point type in loan or other security document signed by trustor.

3. Send following by certified mail [see Civ. Code § 2924e(a)] to beneficiary or its agent designated to receive loan payments at address specified for receipt of payments, if known, or if not known, at address shown on recorded trust deed [Civ. Code § 2924e(a), (b)]:

a. Request for notice of delinquencies [see § 25A.242[2]].

b. Signed written consent of trustor.

c. Required statutory fee.

4. Record request for notice of delinquencies [§ 25A.242[2]] in office of county recorder of county in which security real property is located [Civ. Code § 2924e(b)].

NOTE:

A request remains valid until withdrawn in writing and is applicable to all delinquencies of four months or more that occur before the date on which the requester's interest terminates as specified in the request or the expiration date of the request, as appropriate. A request for notice is effective for five years from whichever date is later; that of the mailing or that of the recording of the request, and may be renewed [Civ. Code § 2924e(b); see P (5), below].

5. If necessary to renew request for notice, take following steps within six months before expiration date of original request [Civ. Code § 2924e(b)]:

a. Send following to beneficiary (or its agent) at address to which original requests for notice are to be sent:

(1) Signed statement that request is renewed [see § 25A.243[2]];

(2) Copy of original request; and

(3) Statutory renewal fee; and

b. Record renewal request in office of county recorder of county in which property is located.

NOTE:

Timely submittal of a renewal request for notice continues the effectiveness of the original request for five years from the time when it would otherwise have lapsed. Succeeding renewal requests may be submitted in the same manner as described above [Civ. Code § 2924e(b)].

6. On satisfaction of obligation secured by junior lien, have "junior" beneficiary notify "senior" beneficiary in writing [

Civ. Code § 2924e(g)]:

a. Of satisfaction of junior lien; and

b. That senior beneficiary is no longer required to provide notice of delinquencies pursuant to above request for notice of delinquencies.

§ 25A.143 Notice of Balloon Payment

NOTE:

This section outlines the procedure for giving notice of a balloon payment under Civ. Code § 2924i. Almost identical notice is required under Civ. Code § 2966 in transactions that involve an "arranger of credit" [see Civ. Code § 2957(a)(1)] and seller financing [see § 25A.240[1]]. The only unique provision in Civ. Code § 2966 requires the inclusion in the promissory note of an additional notice of the balloon payment [Civ. Code § 2966(d); see § 25A.225; see also § 25A.120(5)(a)(2)].

The following requirements are equally applicable to a mortgage, the mortgagee, and the mortgagor [see Civ. Code § 2924i(a)].

1. Advise holder of note of duty to give notice of final (balloon) payment [see § 25A.240[2]] to trustor or trustor's successor in interest if [Civ. Code § 2924i; see § 25A.240]:

a. Trust deed is on real property that contains one to four residential units, at least one of which (at time loan is made) is or is to be occupied by borrower;

b. Loan is for period in excess of one year; and

c. Loan is a balloon payment loan, i.e.:

(1) Loan provides for final payment as originally scheduled that is more than twice amount of any of immediately preceding six regularly scheduled payments; or

(2) Loan contains a call provision that is exercised by holder of loan.

NOTE:

A "call provision" is a loan contract term that provides the holder of the loan with the right to call the loan due and payable either after a specified period has elapsed following closing or after a specified date [Civ. Code §§ 2924i(d)(2), 2957(c)].

The obligation under Civ. Code § 2924i to give notice of a balloon payment does not extend to open end credit transactions as defined in Regulation Z, whether or not the transaction is otherwise subject to Regulation Z [see Civ. Code § 2924i(d)(3)* for definition of "Regulation Z"], transactions subject to Civ. Code § 2956 ("arrangers of credit"), and loans made for the principal purpose of financing the construction of one or more residential units [Civ. Code § 2924i(b)].

2. Draft notice of balloon payment [see § 25A.240[2]] that contains [Civ. Code § 2924i(c)]:

a. Name and address of person to whom final payment must be paid.

b. Date on or before which final payment must be paid.

NOTE:

If the due date of the final loan payment is extended before the time notice is otherwise required, the notice requirement applies only to the due date as extended (or as subsequently extended) [Civ. Code § 2924i(c)].

c. Amount of final payment, or if exact amount is unknown, good faith estimate of amount, including unpaid principal, interest, and any other charges.

NOTE:

This amount must be determined assuming timely payment in full of all scheduled installments coming due between the date the notice is prepared and the date when the final payment is due [Civ. Code § 2924i(c)(3)].

d. If borrower has contractual right to refinance final payment, statement to that effect.

3. At least 90 days but not more than 150 days before due date of final payment, deliver or mail by first-class mail, notice of balloon payment [see § 25A.240[2]] to trustor or successor in interest at last known address [Civ. Code § 2924i(c)].

NOTE:

If the notice is mailed, a certificate of mailing must be obtained from the United States Postal Service [Civ. Code § 2924i(c)]. For a discussion of the effect on the security instrument of a beneficiary's failure to give notice of the balloon payment and the statutory remedies against the beneficiary, see § 25A.240[1].

§ 25A.144 Inspection of Property to Determine Existence of Release of Hazardous Waste

1. Notify secured lender of its right to enter and inspect real property security ("property") for purpose of determining existence, location, nature, and magnitude of any past or present release or threatened release of hazardous substance into, onto, beneath, or from property, provided this right is exercised [Civ. Code § 2929.5(a)]:

NOTE:

For these purposes, "secured lender" means the beneficiary under a trust deed against the real property security, or the mortgagee under a mortgage against that security, and any successor in interest of the beneficiary or mortgagee [Civ. Code § 2929.5(e)(5)]. "Real property security" means any real property and improvements, other than a separate interest and any related interest in the common area of a residential common interest development [see Civ. Code § 1351 (applicable definitions of "separate interest," "common area," and "common interest development")], or real property consisting of one acre or less that contains up to 15 dwelling units [Civ. Code § 2929.5(e)(3)]. "Hazardous substance" means (1) any "hazardous substance" as defined in Health & Safety Code § 25281(h), (2) any "waste" as defined in Water Code § 13050(d), or (3) petroleum, including crude oil, natural gas, natural gas liquids, liquefied natural gas, or synthetic gas usable for fuel, or any mixture of the foregoing [Civ. Code § 2929.5(e)(2)]. "Release" means any spilling, leaking, pumping, pouring, emitting, emptying, discharging, injecting, escaping, leaching, dumping, or disposing into the environment, including continuing migration, of hazardous substances into, onto, or through soil, surface water, or groundwater [Civ. Code § 2929.5(e)(4)].

a. On reasonable belief of existence of past or present release or threatened release of any hazardous substance into, onto, beneath, or from property not previously disclosed in writing to lender in conjunction with the making, renewal, or modification of loan, extension of credit, guaranty, or other obligation involving borrower.

b. After commencement of nonjudicial or judicial foreclosure proceedings against property [see Ch. 25D, Foreclosure].

2. If lender elects to exercise this right, give borrower or tenant of property reasonable notice of lender's intent to enter, except under following circumstances [Civ. Code § 2929.5(b)]:

NOTE:
Twenty-four hours notice will be presumed to be reasonable notice in the absence of evidence to the contrary [Civ. Code § 2929.5(b)].

a. In an emergency;

b. If borrower or tenant has abandoned premises; or

c. If it is impracticable to do so.

3. Instruct lender to enter only during borrower's or tenant's normal business hours, except under circumstances described in (2), above [Civ. Code § 2929.5(b)].

4. Instruct lender not to abuse right of entry and inspection or use it to harass borrower or tenant [see Civ. Code § 2929.5(b)].

5. Instruct lender to reimburse borrower for cost of repair of any physical injury to property caused by entry and inspection [Civ. Code § 2929.5(c)].

6. If lender is refused right of entry and inspection by borrower or tenant, or is otherwise unable to enter and inspect property without breach of the peace, bring action to enforce lender's rights [see Civ. Code § 2929.5(d); Code Civ. Proc. § 564(c)- (e) (appointment of receiver in such an action)].

§ 25A.145 Beneficiaries' Agreement to Be Governed by Majority Interest Holders

1. If all beneficiaries wish to be governed by "majority interest holders" [see NOTE, below], take following steps:

NOTE:

Civ. Code § 2941.9 establishes a process through which all of the beneficiaries under a trust deed may agree to be governed by beneficiaries holding more than 50 percent of the record beneficial interest of a series of notes secured by the same real property or of undivided interests in a note secured by real property equivalent to a series transaction, exclusive of any notes or interests of a licensed real estate broker that is the issuer or servicer of the notes or interests or any affiliate of that licensed real estate broker [Civ. Code § 2941.9(a); see § 25A.16]. This publication uses the term "majority interest holders" to refer to the beneficiaries granted this authority under § 2941.9.

a. Prepare beneficiaries' agreement to be governed by majority interest holders, and have it executed by all holders of notes secured by same real property or series of undivided interests in notes secured by real property equivalent to series transaction [Civ. Code § 2941.9(b); see § 25A.247[2]].

NOTE:

All of these holders must agree to be governed by majority interest holders with respect to actions to be taken on behalf of all holders in the event of default or foreclosure for matters that require direction or approval of the holders, including designation of the broker, servicing agent, or other person acting on their behalf, and the sale, encumbrance, or lease of real property owned by the holders resulting from foreclosure or receipt of a deed in lieu of foreclosure [Civ. Code § 2941.9(b)].

b. Disclose existence of this agreement pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.5 (governing contents of disclosure statements given to prospective lenders or purchasers in certain transactions involving the negotiation and/or sale of secured obligations) [Civ. Code § 2941.9(c); see Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans, § 25.260].

c. Include description of agreement in a recorded document, such as deed of trust or assignment of interests [Civ. Code § 2941.9(c)].

2. When majority interest holders wish to take action pursuant to Civ. Code § 2941.9, take following steps [Civ. Code § 2941.9(d)]:

a. Have them sign, under penalty of perjury, a separate "Majority Action Affidavit" containing statements required by statute [see § 25A.248[2]].

b. Have Majority Action Affidavit recorded in office of county recorder of each county in which real property described in deed of trust is located.

§ 25A.200 Straight Promissory Note

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a promissory note that provides that the entire principal amount and accrued interest are due on a certain date. No interim or periodic payments of principal or interest are required before that date. This type of note is generally referred to as a "straight" or "flat" note.

For a promissory note that requires the payment of interest only during its term, see § 25A.203. For a fully amortized note with equal periodic payments of principal and interest, see § 25A.201. Other forms of promissory notes are set forth in §§ 25A.202 (increasing periodic payments and a balloon payment), 25A.204 (demand note), and 25A.205 (note secured by all-inclusive trust deed).

For additional provisions that may be included in a promissory note and a trust deed or mortgage securing the note, see §§ 25A.220-25A.228. Forms for trust deeds and mortgages are set forth in §§ 25A.210-25A.216.

[b] Prepayment

If the payor is to have the right to prepay the indebtedness without penalty, the term "on or before" should appear immediately before the payment date. If not prohibited by statute, a prepayment penalty provision may be added to the note [see § 25A.222].

[c] Other Applicable Laws

For discussion of restrictions on when interest may commence on a promissory note given as part of the purchase price of property improved with one to four residential dwelling units [see Civ. Code § 2948.5], see § 25A.17[5]. For an overview of other statutory limits on loans secured by residential property, see § 25A.17[3].

For a summary of the credit transactions subject to the disclosure requirements of the federal Truth in Lending Act [15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.], see the discussion under "Disclosures Required under Federal Truth in Lending Act" and subsequent headings in the Legal Background to Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans ; see also Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales , for a detailed discussion of the Truth in Lending Act.

§ 25A.201 Fully Amortized Promissory Note

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is an installment promissory note for use when a loan is to fully amortize over the loan term in equal installments. The periodic installment payments include both principal and interest, and the amount of the periodic payments is the same throughout the term of the note.

An interest-only note is set forth in § 25A.203. For a description of other illustrative notes set forth in this chapter, see § 25A.200[1][a].

If the note is to be secured by a trust deed, see §§ 25A.210 (long form trust deed), 25A.211 (short form), and 25A.212 (all-inclusive). For mortgages that may be used to secure a promissory note, see §§ 25A.213 and 25A.214.

Other provisions that may be included in a promissory note or trust deed are set forth in §§ 25A.220-25A.228.

[b] Prepayment

If the borrower is permitted to prepay all or a portion of the loan without a prepayment penalty, the words "or more" should be inserted immediately after the dollar amount of the regular periodic payment. Without an "or more" clause, the creditor is not required to accept early payment [see Record Mach. & Tool Co. v. Pageman Holding Corp. (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 227, 232, 266 P.2d 1]. For further discussion, see § 25A.222[1].

§ 25A.202 Promissory Note With Increasing Periodic Payments and Balloon Payment

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a promissory note that requires "interest only" payments during the early part of the loan term, equal periodic payments of principal and interest for the duration of the loan term, and a final "balloon payment." For a fully amortized note with equal periodic payments of principal and interest throughout the loan term, see § 25A.201. An "interest only" note with interest tied to the prime rate is set forth in § 25A.203. For a demand note and a note secured by an all-inclusive trust deed, see §§ 25A.204 and 25A.205. Additional provisions for promissory notes and trust deeds, such as a due-on-sale provision [see § 25A.221[2]] and late charge provision [see § 25A.223[2]] are set forth in §§ 25A.220-25A.228.

[b] Notice Requirements for Balloon Payment Loans

[i] Definitions

For purposes of the disclosure requirements discussed below, a "balloon payment loan" or "balloon payment note" is a loan or note that (1) provides for a final payment as originally scheduled that is more than twice the amount of any of the immediately preceding six regularly scheduled payments or (2) that contains a call provision [Civ. Code §§ 2924i, 2957(b)]. However, if a call provision is not exercised by the holder of the loan, the existence of the unexercised call provision does not cause the loan to be deemed a balloon payment loan or note [Civ. Code §§ 2924i(d)(1), 2957(b)]. "Call provision" means a loan or note contract term that provides the holder of the loan with the right to call the loan due and payable either after a specified period has elapsed following closing or after a specified date [Civ. Code §§ 2924i(d)(2), 2957(c)].

[ii] Arranger of Credit

When an "arranger of credit" [see Civ. Code § 2957(a)] is involved in a loan transaction for the purchase of a dwelling for not more than four families and the seller accepts a balloon payment note with a repayment period in excess of one year, the holder of the note must give notice to the borrower within a specified period of time before thematurity date of the note that the balloon payment under the note is due [Civ. Code §§ 2966, 2956(a); see § 25A.240[2] (form of notice)]. Under these circumstances, the note itself must also contain a statutory statement advising the borrower of the right to notice of the balloon payment under Civ. Code § 2966 [Civ. Code § 2966(d); see § 25A.225[1]]. This form contains the statutory statement.

[iii] Borrower-Occupied Residential Property

Notice of a balloon payment before a note's maturity date is also required for any balloon payment loan with a term longer than one year that is secured by a trust deed or mortgage on real property containing one to four residential units, at least one of which, at the time the loan is made, is or is to be occupied by the borrower [Civ. Code § 2924i; see § 25A.240]. The following are exempt from this notice requirement: (1) open credit transactions as defined in Regulation Z, whether or not the transaction is otherwise subject to Regulation Z [see Civ. Code 2924i(d)(3) for definition of Regulation Z]; (2) transactions subject to Civ. Code § 2956 [see discussion under "--Arrangers of Credit and Seller Financing" in the Legal Background to Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans]; and (3) loans made for the principal purpose of financing the construction of one or more residential units [Civ. Code § 2924i(b)].

[iv] Procedure

For a step-by-step guide to the procedure for giving notice of a balloon payment before the note's maturity date, see § 25A.143.

§ 25A.203 Promissory Note With Interest Only Payments and Interest Tied to Prime Rate

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a promissory note that requires the borrower to make periodic payments of "interest only" during the term of the note. On the maturity date of the note, the entire principal sum is due.

The interest in this note is tied to the prime rate; this arrangement is most often used for construction loans. The use of a variable rate provision that changes by reference to an external index may impair the negotiability of the note. Because it is necessary to look outside the scope of the instrument to determine the applicable interest rate, the note may not be considered an unconditional promise to pay a fixed amount of money, as required for negotiability [see Com. Code § 3104(a)]. For further discussion, see § 25A.17[2].

For a promissory note that requires "interest only" payments during the early part of the loan term, equal periodic payments of principal and interest for the duration of the loan term, and a final "balloon payment," see § 25A.202. For other complete promissory notes, see §§ 25A.200, 25A.201, and 25A.204. Additional provisions that may be included in a promissory note or trust deed are set forth in §§ 25A.220-25A.228.

[b] Statutory Notice Required for Balloon Payment Notes

A "balloon payment loan" or "balloon payment note" is a loan or note with a term in excess of one year that provides for a final payment as originally scheduled that is more than twice the amount of any of the immediately preceding six regularly scheduled payments or that contains a call provision [Civ. Code §§ 2924i, 2957(b)]. The holder of a balloon payment note secured by residential property must give notice to the borrower within a specified period of time before the maturity date of the note that the balloon payment under the note is due [Civ. Code §§ 2924i, 2966]. Under certain circumstances, the note itself must contain a notice advising the borrower of the statutory right to receive notice of the due date of the balloon payment [see § 25A.225]. For further discussion of these requirements, see § 25A.202[1][b].

Promissory Note With Interest Only Payments and Interest Tied to Prime Rate

PROMISSORY NOTE [SECURED BY DEED OF TRUST]

On or before _____[date], for value received, the undersigned ("Borrower") promises to pay to _____[name of lender] ("Holder"), or order, at [place of payment], or any other place designated in a writing submitted by Holder to Borrower, the principal sum of $_____, or so much thereof as may be advanced, plus interest on the unpaid principal balance according to the terms contained in this Note.

Interest on the principal sum of this Note from time to time outstanding will be computed on the basis of a 365-day year and actual days elapsed from date of disbursement until paid, at the per annum rate of _____ percent in excess of the Prime Rate of _____[name and location of financial institution] from time to time in effect. Interest only for the monthly period ending on the last day of the preceding month shall be calculated on a daily basis and shall be payable monthly on the _____ day of each calendar month, beginning on the _____ day of [month], [year], and continuing until the _____ day of [month], _____[year; insert same maturity date set forth above], at which time the then unpaid balance of principal and interest shall all be due and payable. Increases or decreases in the rate of interest shall be effective on the effective day of each change in the Prime Rate announced by _____[name and location of financial institution].

"Prime Rate" means that rate that from time to time is announced by [name and location of financial institution] as its prime rate and is not necessarily the lowest lending rate of that [type of financial institution, e.g., bank]. Should [name and location of financial institution] cease to exist or fail to announce a Prime Rate, the Prime Rate shall be the rate announced by [name and location of alternate financial institution] as its prime rate.

Should Borrower fail to pay any interest as provided for in this Note, that interest shall thereafter bear like interest as the principal. Interest shall, at the option of Holder, be payable on demand on any principal balance from and after its maturity date. Should Borrower default in the payment of any installment of interest when due, then the whole sum of principal and interest shall, at the option of Holder, become immediately due. Principal and interest are payable in lawful money of the United States.

Borrower expressly agrees that this Note, or any payment under this Note, may be extended from time to time and consents to the acceptance and/or release of further security for this Note, all without in any way affecting the liability of the Borrower. Borrower waives the rights of presentment and notice of dishonor. "Presentment" means the right to require the Holder to demand payment of amounts due. "Notice of dishonor" means the right to require Holder to give notice to other persons that amounts due have not been paid.

This Note may be prepaid at any time, in whole or in part, without any prepayment penalty.

Whether or not suit is filed, Borrower agrees to pay all reasonable attorneys' fees, costs of collection, costs, and expenses incurred by Holder in connection with the enforcement or collection of this Note. Borrower further agrees to pay all costs of suit and the sum adjudged as attorneys' fees in any action to enforce payment of this Note or any part of it.

[Add following clause if note is secured by trust deed:]

This note is secured by a [add if purchase money obligation: purchase money] Deed of Trust, dated _____, to _____[name of trustee] as Trustee, executed by Borrower in favor of Holder [add if purchase money obligation: and is given as part of the purchase price for the real property described in that Deed of Trust].

[Add following statement if note is subject to Civ. Code § 2966 (see § 25A.225[1]):]

This note is subject to Civil Code § 2966, which requires Holder to give written notice to the trustor, or the trustor's successor in interest, of prescribed information at least 90 and not more than 150 days before any balloon payment is due.

§ 25A.204 Demand Note

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a demand note that is payable on demand by the holder of the note, or on a specified date if no demand is made. For other forms of promissory notes, see §§ 25A.200-25A.203. Additional and alternative provisions for promissory notes and trust deeds are set forth in §§ 25A.220-25A.228.

[b] Statutory Notice Required for Balloon Payment Notes

A "balloon payment loan" or "balloon payment note" is a loan or note with a term in excess of one year that provides for a final payment as originally scheduled that is more than twice the amount of any of the immediately preceding six regularly scheduled payments or that contains a call provision [Civ. Code §§ 2924i, 2957(b)]. "Call provision" means a note or loan contract term that provides the holder of the note or loan with the right to call the note or loan due and payable either after a specified period has elapsed following closing or after a specified date [Civ. Code §§ 2924i(d)(2), 2957(c)]. However, a note or loan with a call provision is not deemed a balloon payment for these purposes if the call provision is not exercised by the holder of the note or loan [Civ. Code §§ 2924i(d)(1), 2957(b)].

The holder of a balloon payment note secured by residential property must give notice to the borrower within a specified period of time before the maturity date of the note that the balloon payment under the note is due [Civ. Code §§ 2924i, 2966; see § 25A.240]. Under certain circumstances, the note itself must contain a notice advising the borrower of the statutory right to receive notice of the due date of the balloon payment [see § 25A.225]. For further discussion of these requirements, see § 25A.202[1][b].

§ 25A.205 Promissory Note Secured by All-Inclusive Deed of Trust

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a promissory note that is to be secured by an "all-inclusive" deed of trust. For a compatible all-inclusive deed of trust, see § 25A.212. For other forms of promissory notes, see §§ 25A.200-25A.203. Additional and alternative provisions for promissory notes and deeds of trust are set forth in §§ 25A.220-25A.228.

[b] All-Inclusive Trust Deeds

An "all-inclusive" deed of trust, also known as an "overlapping" or "overriding" trust deed or a "wraparound" mortgage, is a financing device primarily used during periods of high interest rates when it is advantageous to borrowers to retain existing loans on the property that are at lower rates than prevailing market interest rates. The "all-inclusive" trust deed secures a promissory note in a face amount equal to the loan balance of an existing obligation (for example, a trust deed) on the same real property, plus the amount of funds actually advanced or promised to be advanced by the wraparound lender [see California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 100, Methods of Financing (Matthew Bender)].

All-inclusive notes and trust deeds are most often used in purchase/sale situations, as illustrated by the following example. The buyer purchases property from the seller for a total purchase price of $600,000. The property is subject to an existing first trust deed (on which the seller is trustor) of $300,000. The buyer pays the $600,000 purchase price with a $100,000 cash down payment and an all-inclusive note and trust deed for $500,000 in favor of the seller. The $500,000 all-inclusive note includes the balance of the $300,000 obligation secured by the existing first trust deed. The seller continues to make payments under the existing first trust deed but receives the funds to make the payments from the buyer under the all-inclusive note. The difference between $500,000 and $300,000 is referred to as the seller's equity, i.e., the amount loaned by the seller to the buyer.

Both the following form and the companion trust deed set forth in § 25A.212 assume that there is only one obligation secured by a trust deed senior to the all-inclusive deed of trust and that the one obligation is evidenced by one promissory note. An all-inclusive deed of trust is probably most often a second trust deed on the property, subject to the outstanding included ("underlying") first trust deed. However, if there is more than one outstanding prior trust deed, the all-inclusive may be a third, fourth, or even lower order of trust deed.

[c] Consistency Between Underlying Documents and All-Inclusive Documents

In drafting an all-inclusive note and trust deed, the attorney should confirm that the all-inclusive documents are consistent with the underlying trust deed and note. It is particularly important that the documents contain consistent provisions regarding the method of repayment of the underlying obligation and related financial obligations of the parties [see §§ 25A.130(3)- (9), 25A.131(4)- (7)]. For example, if the underlying note requires a penalty for prepayment, the all-inclusive note should also require the same penalty [but see discussion of an alternative arrangement in [d], below].

Once the all-inclusive note and trust deed are drafted, they should be reviewed and approved by the institutional trustee and the title company that may be used to insure title following foreclosure. For a discussion of the importance of foreclosure provisions on a title company's willingness to insure title, see § 25A.212[1].

This form requires the lender (i.e., the holder of the all-inclusive note and trust deed) to make the payments on the underlying first trust deed, but only to the extent that the borrower (i.e., the payor under the all-inclusive trust deed) provides the holder with the necessary funds. If the lender fails to make the required payments on the first trust deed, the borrower is permitted to make the payments directly to the holder of the first trust deed. Some all-inclusive notes and trust deeds require the borrower to make all payments to a neutral escrow and further instruct the escrow holder, rather than the lender, to make all payments on the underlying prior deed of trust.

A borrower who makes payments directly to the lender has no assurance that the lender is making the required payments on the first trust deed. Therefore, the borrower should execute and record a request for notice of default and sale on the first deed of trust [see Civ. Code § 2924b; see also § 25D.200[2] (request for notice)]. Section 25A.212 (all-inclusive deed of trust) includes such a request.

When computing the amortization schedule for the all-inclusive note, the parties should confirm that the balance of that note will always exceed the balance of the underlying note. Otherwise, the balance of the underlying note could eventually exceed the balance on the all-inclusive note [see Rohan, Real Estate Financing, Ch. 10, The Wrap-Around Mortgage (Matthew Bender)].

As discussed in [c], above, if the underlying senior obligation contains restrictions regarding prepayment of the underlying obligation, the all-inclusive note and trust deed should include the same restrictions. In the alternative, the all-inclusive instruments may permit prepayment to the extent of the holder's equity above the amount of the senior included debt and then provide that the borrower is subject to the prepayment restrictions of the underlying senior obligation. Whether or not the borrower has the right to prepay the all-inclusive note, a provision should be included specifying that the borrower is entitled to a reconveyance of the all-inclusive deed of trust when the unpaid balance of the all-inclusive note is equal to the balance due on the senior underlying note [for discussion of reconveyances, see Ch. 25C, Release and Reconveyance].

If the interest rate on a wraparound note exceeds the interest rate on the underlying senior obligation or obligations, the wraparound lender gets additional interest from the "spread" in rates. When additional interest is computed on the wraparound lender's equity, the result may be to increase the yield to a usurious interest rate. When the wraparound secures a purchase money loan, the argument against usury is stronger; there may be no loan under the time-sale doctrine or it may be easier for the court to find that the seller has advanced the full amount of the note by giving title and use of the property to a buyer who has invested only a down payment [see Comment, The Wrap-Around Mortgage: A Critical Inquiry, 21 UCLA. L. Rev. 1529, 1537-1539 (1974)]. There is also the argument that a sale of property is not a "loan or forbearance of money" under the usury laws and that an all-inclusive note given to a seller as part of the purchase price of the property is not subject to the limitations of the usury law [see Comment, The Wrap-Around Mortgage: A Critical Inquiry, 21 UCLA L. Rev. 1529, 1535-1539 (1974)].

For more detailed coverage of usury, see California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 104, Usury (Matthew Bender).

PROMISSORY NOTE SECURED BY ALL-INCLUSIVE DEED OF TRUST

PROMISSORY NOTE SECURED BY ALL-INCLUSIVE
DEED OF TRUST

DO NOT DESTROY THE ORIGINAL OF THIS NOTE: When paid, the Original Note, together with the Deed of Trust securing it, must be surrendered to the Trustee for cancellation and retention before reconveyance will be made.

This Note is secured by a deed of trust ("All-Inclusive Deed of Trust") that is junior and subordinate to a deed of trust recorded on _____[date], in Book _____, Page _____, Official Records of _____ County, California ("First Deed of Trust") securing a certain promissory note dated _____, given by _____[name of payor] in favor of _____[name of payee], in the original principal amount of $_____ ("First Note"). Copies of the First Deed of Trust and First Note are attached to this Note as Exhibits A and B, respectively.

The original principal amount of this Note includes the unpaid principal balance of the First Note as of the date the All-Inclusive Deed of Trust securing this Note is recorded and the sum amount of all payments (other than principal payments) of any type due to the holder of the First Note before _____[insert date or description, e.g., the first day of the calendar month immediately following the date the All-Inclusive Deed of Trust is recorded].

In installments as described in this Note, the undersigned ("Borrower") promises to pay to _____[name of payee] ("Holder") at [place for payment], or at any other place designated in a writing submitted to Borrower by Holder, the principal sum of $_____, with interest from _____[date], as hereafter provided, payable as follows: _____[describe method for payment of principal and interest, incorporating terms of First Note, e.g., interest only in installments of $_____ or more on the first day of each calendar month, commencing on _____ [date], and continuing until _____[date]; thereafter, principal and interest payable in installments of $_____ or more on the first day of each calendar month, commencing on _____[date], and continuing until _____[date], on which date the unpaid principal balance of this Note together with all interest accrued on that balance shall be fully due and payable]. Interest on the unpaid principal balance of the Note shall be payable at the rate of _____ percent per annum. If the First Note, or any successor or substitute note secured by a first deed of trust on the real property ("Real Property") described in the All-Inclusive Deed of Trust securing this

Note, shall provide for a different date for the payment of the entire principal balance of the note, then the entire principal balance payable under this Note shall be payable on the same date, rather than on _____[date], as provided above, but in no event shall that other date be earlier than _____.

All payments of principal and interest under this Note shall be payable in lawful money of the United States. Any payment made shall be credited first on interest then due and the remainder on principal; and interest shall immediately cease on the principal so credited.

The Holder shall pay when due the principal and interest of the First Note and all taxes, assessments [add if appropriate:, and insurance premiums] payable under the terms of the First Note or First Deed of Trust, provided all payments under this Note are paid promptly by Borrower when due. The foregoing obligation of the Holder of this Note shall cease when there is no sum secured by the All-Inclusive Deed of Trust other than sums that may be or become due to the holder of the First Note and First Deed of Trust.

Borrower shall pay to the Holder of this Note, at least 10 days before its due date, the balloon payment required by the First Note and First Deed of Trust to be paid on _____[due date of balloon payment]. The sum so paid by Borrower shall then be paid by the Holder of this note to the holder of the First Note. The principal due under this Note shall be reduced by the amount of the balloon payment paid by the Borrower, but the balloon payment shall not satisfy or reduce the payment of any periodic installment payment due under this Note.

If the Holder of this Note fails to make any payments under the First Note and First Deed of Trust as required by this Note, the Borrower shall have the right to pay directly to the holder of the First Note any payments that the Holder of this Note fails to make. Any payments so made by the Borrower shall be credited to the installments of principal and interest next accruing under this Note. The right of the Borrower to make payments on the First Note directly to the holder of the First Note pursuant to this paragraph is in addition to any other rights or remedies the Borrower may have for failure by the Holder of this Note to make payments on the First Note as required by this Note. For so long as the Borrower is not in default with respect to any payments required to be made under this Note, the Holder of this Note shall indemnify, hold harmless, and defend Borrower of and from any and all loss, cost, damage, liability, and expense, including attorneys' fees, arising out of any actual or alleged default by the Holder of this Note in the payment of the First Note.

Should Borrower default in the payment of any installment when due or in the performance of any other obligation called for in this Note or in the All-Inclusive Deed of Trust securing this Note, the whole sum of principal and interest under this Note shall, at the option of Holder, become immediately due and payable.

If any action is instituted to enforce payment of this Note, or if any proceeding is commenced to foreclose the All-Inclusive Deed of Trust securing the Note through exercise of the power of sale, judicial foreclosure, or otherwise, Borrower promises to pay all costs incurred in the action or proceeding, including without limitation all attorneys' fees. Furthermore, if Holder is required to pay, or becomes obligated to pay, any penalties, late charges, or interest under the terms of the First Note by reason of Borrower's failure to make timely payments under this Note, Borrower promises to pay the amount of the penalties, late charges, or interest to Holder on demand.

This Note is secured by an All-Inclusive Deed of Trust executed on this date and given to _____[name of trustee], as Trustee.

§ 25A.210 Deed of Trust--Long Form

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a deed of trust with a power of sale clause and an assignment of rents clause. It is referred to as a "long form" deed of trust because it contains the full text of several "standard" provisions commonly used in trust deeds. These standard provisions are recorded along with the remainder of the trust deed. For a short form of deed of trust that incorporates by reference several "standard" provisions set forth in a previously-recorded fictitious trust deed, see § 25A.211.

Standard printed versions of both the long and short forms of trust deeds are available from title companies. Institutional lenders generally insist on use of their own forms; however, in larger loan transactions, the lender and debtor typically negotiate modifications of specific provisions.

Additional and alternative provisions for trust deeds, such as due-on-sale and late charge clauses, are set forth in §§ 25A.220-25A.228. Subordination clauses for trust deeds and related notices are contained in Ch. 25B, Subordination, Assumption, and Assignment. For partial release provisions that may be included in a trust deed, see Ch. 25C, Release and Reconveyance . For illustrative mortgages, see §§ 25A.213[2] and 25A.214[2].

[b] Execution and Recording

The trust deed should be executed by the trustor in the same manner as his or her name appears of record as the owner of the property. The spouse of the trustor must also execute the trust deed if the property is community property, whether or not the spouse's name appears of record [Fam. Code § 1102(a); see Fam. Code § 1102(e) (statute does not preclude spouse from encumbering his or her interest in community real property, as provided in Fam. Code § 2033, to pay reasonable attorneys' fees to retain or maintain legal counsel in proceeding for dissolution of marriage, for nullity of marriage, or for legal separation of the parties); see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements].

The trust deed should also be acknowledged and then recorded in every county in which any portion of the property is located [Civ. Code §§ 1169, 2952]. A deed of trust will not be accepted for recordation unless it contains the address of the trustor and a request for notice of default under Civ. Code § 2924b [Gov. Code § 27321.5(b); see [n], below].

All acknowledgments of deeds, quitclaim deeds, or deed of trust affecting real property (other than a trustee's deed resulting from a decree of foreclosure or a nonjudicial foreclosure pursuant to Civ. Code § 2924, or a deed of reconveyance) require the right thumbprint of the party signing the document [see Gov. Code § 8206(a)(2)(G)].

[c] Power of Sale Clause

In the second introductory paragraph of this form, the trustor irrevocably grants and assigns the secured real property, with the power of sale, to the trustee in trust. The power of sale is the power of the trustee to sell the property pledged as security if the trustor defaults under the deed of trust. The option of foreclosing through the statutory nonjudicial foreclosure method [Civ. Code §§ 2924-2924h] in lieu of through the judicial foreclosure process [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 725a, 726] is available to a trustee only if the mortgage or deed of trust contains a power of sale [see Civ. Code § 2924(a)]. All deeds of trust contain or should contain a power of sale clause.

Paragraph B(6) of this form summarizes the powers and duties of the trustee with respect to a foreclosure. For a detailed discussion of the foreclosure process, see Ch. 25D, Foreclosure .

The first two introductory paragraphs of this form require insertion of the name, address, and legal status of the trustor [see [b], above], the beneficiary, and the trustee; the complete legal description of the real property to be encumbered; and the amount of the debt to be secured. A valid trust deed must contain a sufficient description of the property and of the underlying obligation [see § 25A.12[4], [5]].

The third introductory paragraph of this form states that the deed of trust secures not only the original debt but also any extensions or renewals of it, any additional amounts loaned by the beneficiary to the trustee in the future (provided these amounts are evidenced by notes reciting that they are so secured), and the performance of all covenants made by the trustor in the trust deed. For a discussion of the effect and use of a future advances clause under which the original trust deed secures future amounts advanced by the lender, see § 25A.224[1].

[e] Maintenance of Property and Waste

Under this form, the trustor covenants to keep the secured property in good condition, to comply with all laws and regulations affecting the property, and to not commit waste on the property [see P A(1) of Form]. Any person whose interest is subject to the lien of a mortgage may not do any act that will substantially impair the mortgagee's security [Civ. Code § 2929].

The beneficiary may enjoin the trustor from committing waste that impairs the security [Hill v. Taylor (1863) 22 Cal. 191, 193 (receiver appointed); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564, 745; Osuna v. Albertson (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 71, 75-78, 184 Cal. Rptr. 338 (in addition to its traditional definition, waste may include failure to pay property taxes)]. The remedies of a beneficiary for waste depend on whether the trustor or a third party has committed the waste and whether the beneficiary's security interest in the real property is impaired [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages (Matthew Bender)].

This form obligates the trustor to procure and maintain fire insurance on the property and to name the beneficiary as loss payee [see P A(2) of Form]. It includes language permitting the beneficiary the choice of either applying the proceeds to any debt the trust deed secures in any order he or she may determine, or releasing part or all of the proceeds to the trustor. When this provision is used, the covenant of good faith and fair dealing implied in every contract allows the beneficiary to retain the insurance proceeds only to the extent that the security was impaired; to the extent the security is not impaired, the beneficiary has no right to the proceeds [Schoolcraft v. Ross (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 75, 77, 146 Cal. Rptr. 57] .

A lender may not require a borrower, as a condition of receiving or maintaining a loan secured by real property, to provide hazard insurance coverage against risks to the improvements on the real property in an amount exceeding the replacement value of the improvements on the property [Civ. Code § 2955.5(a)]. The lender must give the borrower a written disclosure of this provision as soon as practicable and in any case before execution of any note or security documents [Civ. Code § 2955.5(b)]. For these purposes, "hazard insurance coverage" means (1) insurance against losses caused by perils that are commonly covered in policies described as, among other things, a "Homeowner's Policy" or a "General Property Form," or (2) comparable insurance coverage protecting the real property against loss or damage from fire and other perils covered by a standard extended coverage endorsement [Civ. Code § 2955.5(e)(1); see Civ. Code § 2955.5(e)(2) ("improvements" defined)]. This statutory restriction on lenders was imposed in response to the common lender practice of requiring borrowers to procure and maintain hazard insurance in an amount equal to the lender's loan. A person harmed by a lender's violation of the statutory requirement may obtain injunctive relief and recover damages and reasonable attorneys' fees and costs [Civ. Code § 2955.5(c)]. However, violations do not affect the validity of the loan or the security instrument [Civ. Code § 2955.5(d)].

Paragraph B(6) of this form permits the beneficiary to accelerate the indebtedness and foreclose following the trustor's failure to perform any act under the deed of trust. Many security instruments in common use contain such a provision. In a case involving a similar provision, it was held that (1) a trustee or beneficiary may not foreclose under an acceleration provision in a trust deed when the trustor fails to provide fire insurance for the security property, unless the failure to provide the insurance impairs the security of the trust deed; and (2) it is a question of fact whether the lack of fire insurance impairs the security of the trust deed [Freeman v. Lind (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 791, 806, 226 Cal. Rptr. 515] . However, the Legislature has effectively abrogated that holding, at least for institutional lenders. Statutes now provide that state or nationally chartered banks and savings and loan associations may accelerate the maturity date of a loan due to the nonpayment of insurance, taxes, rent, or assessments, even if no impairment of the security results [Fin. Code §§ 1227.2, 1227.3, 7461, 7462].

The provisions of any trust deed or mortgage on real property that authorize any beneficiary, trustee, mortgagee, or agent or successor in interest of the foregoing to receive and control the disbursement of the proceeds of any policy of fire, flood, or other hazard insurance respecting the property will be enforceable whether or not the event that caused the insurance proceeds to become payable impaired the security interest in the property [Civ. Code § 2924.7(b)]. This code provision further abrogates the holding in Freeman v. Lind to the extent that the holding and similar cases [see, e.g., Kreshek v. Sperling (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 279, 204 Cal. Rptr. 30] in any way restrict the right of a beneficiary or mortgagee under a trust deed or mortgage on real property to enforce the express provisions of the security instrument [see Civ. Code § 2924.7]. For discussion of related provisions, see [g], below.

[g] Payment of Defense Costs, Taxes, Liens, and Other Costs

This form requires the trustor to appear in and defend any action affecting the security of the deed of trust [see P A(3) of Form]; to pay related costs and attorneys' fees [see P A(3) of Form]; to promptly pay all taxes, assessments, and other liens on the property [see P A(4) of Form]; and to reimburse the beneficiary or trustee for all sums expended by either in exercising rights specified in the trust deed [see P A(5) of Form]. A related provision requires the trustor to pay attorneys' fees in the event of a foreclosure [see P B(12) of Form].

If a contract contains a provision specifically providing that attorneys' fees and costs shall be awarded to either of the parties, then the party prevailing on the contract is entitled to reasonable attorneys' fees and other costs [Civ. Code § 1717(a)]. An attorneys' fee provision contained in a contract is construed as applying to the entire contract unless each party was represented by counsel in the negotiation and execution of the contract, and the fact of that representation is specified in the contract [Civ. Code § 1717(a)]. Consequently, a trustor is entitled to attorneys' fees after prevailing in an action to enjoin a nonjudicial foreclosure because the trustee could have recovered attorneys' fees if the trustee had successfully foreclosed [Valley Bible Center v. Western Title Ins. Co. (1983) 138 Cal. App. 3d 931, 932-933, 188 Cal. Rptr. 335] .

Paragraph A(4) of this form requires the trustor to pay, before delinquency, all taxes and assessments on the property and all superior encumbrances, charges, and liens on the property. Under that provision, if the trustor fails to make the required payments, the trustee and beneficiary may make the necessary payments, and the amount of any such payments will be added to the amount of the secured debt [Civ. Code § 2876; Savings & L. Soc. v. Burnett (1895) 106 Cal. 514, 536, 39 P. 922 (taxes); Windt v. Covert (1907) 152 Cal. 350, 353-354, 93 P.67 (senior liens)]. For a discussion of the right of institutional lenders to accelerate the maturity date of a loan due to the nonpayment of insurance, taxes, rent, or assessments, see [f], above.

The provisions of any trust deed or mortgage on real property that authorize any beneficiary, trustee, mortgagee, or agent or successor in interest of the foregoing to accelerate the maturity date of the principal and interest on any loan secured by the security instrument or to exercise any power of sale or other remedycontained in that instrument on the trustor's or mortgagor's failure to pay or reimburse, at the times provided for under the terms of the trust deed or mortgage, any (1) taxes, rents, assessments, or insurance premiums with respect to the property or the loan [see P A(4) of Form], or (2) advances made by the beneficiary, mortgagee, or his or her agent or successor in interest [see P A(5) of Form], will be enforceable whether or not the trustor's or mortgagor's failure to pay the taxes, rents, assessments, insurance premiums, or advances impaired the security interest in the property [Civ. Code § 2924.7(a)].

The condemnation provision in this form [see P B(1) of Form] is typical of that contained in many standard deeds of trust and provides that the proceeds of any condemnation award to the trustor are assigned to the beneficiary as security for the obligations secured by the trust deed. However, the assignment is subject to the trustor's ownership rights. The enforceability of this provision and the effect of condemnation of the secured property is governed by statute [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1265.210-1265.250].

[i] Late Payments

Under this form, the beneficiary does not waive any right to prompt payment of amounts due by accepting any payment after its due date [see P B(2) of Form]. For a trust deed provision that assesses the trustor a late charge for late payments, see § 25A.223[2].

[j] Partial Release and Subordination

This form grants the trustee, among other powers, the power to execute a deed of partial reconveyance on a portion of the secured property and the power to join in the execution of an instrument subordinating the lien created by the trust deed to another lien [see P B(3) of Form]. However, the trustee may not exercise these powers unless it receives (1) the beneficiary's written request and instructions for the exercise of these powers, and (2) the trust deed and promissory note for proper endorsement by the trustee.

The foregoing provision is found in most standardized, preprinted trust deeds. Although it may be sufficient to govern the respective rights and duties of the beneficiary and the trustee for a partial release and subordination, it does not address the more significant rights and duties between the beneficiary and the trustor for a partial release or subordination. If the beneficiary and trustor agree to subordination of the trust deed or if they agree to partial releases from under the trust deed, the provisions relating to either must be clearly and carefully drafted and comply with judicially-crafted standards of clarity and fairness. In the case of subordination, certain notices and language may be required by statute [see Civ. Code §§ 2953.1-2953.5]. For detailed coverage of subordination, including illustrative subordination clauses that may be inserted into trust deeds, see Ch. 25B, Subordination, Assumption, and Assignment . For discussion of requirements relating to partial releases (and partial release clauses for trust deeds), see Ch. 25C, Release and Reconveyance .

[k] Full Reconveyance

This form obligates the trustee to reconvey the secured property to the trustor when the trustee receives a reconveyance request from the beneficiary stating thatall sums under the trust deed have been paid [see P B(4) of Form]. When the obligation has been paid in full, the beneficiary must deliver the request for reconveyance and the original note and trust deed to the trustee [Civ. Code § 2941(b)]. The trustee must then, subject to certain exceptions, execute and record a deed of full reconveyance [Civ. Code § 2941(b)]. For a deed of full reconveyance and further discussion, see § 25C.201.

[i] Assignment of Rents

The trustor under a trust deed is entitled to possession of the secured property and to the rents accruing from the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 774; Civ. Code § 2927; Kinnison v. Guaranty Liquidating Corp. (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 256, 260, 115 P.2d 450] unless there is a foreclosure and sale of the property under the deed of trust [Belcher v. Aaron (1937) 8 Cal. 2d 180, 182, 64 P.2d 402] . However, the possessory rights of the trustor, including the right to rents and profits from the property, may be changed by the parties in the security agreement or by a separate agreement [Kinnison v. Guaranty Liquidating Corp. (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 256, 260, 115 P.2d 450] .

Most trust deeds (including this form) contain some type of assignment of rents clause that provides that the beneficiary, his or her agent, or a court-appointed receiver has the right on default to take possession of the premises and to sue for or collect the rents, issues, and profits from the property [see P B(5) of Form]. If the security or separate agreement does not give the beneficiary the right to take possession and collect or sue for the rents and profits, he or she may not do so [Locke v. Klunker (1898) 123 Cal. 231, 235, 55 P. 993] .

Written assignments of rents and profits entered into after 1996 are subject to Civ. Code § 2938 [Civ. Code § 2938(i); see [ii]-[iv], below]. Former Civ. Code §§ 2938 and 2938.1 continue to govern contracts entered into prior to 1997 [Civ. Code § 2938(i); see [v], below].

The following subsections summarize the applicable statutory requirements. For more extensive coverage of these requirements, see California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 111, Deeds of Trust and Mortgages (Matthew Bender).

[ii] Written Assignment Creates Present Security Interest

A written assignment of an interest in leases, rents, issues, or profits of real property made in connection with an obligation secured by real property, irrespective of whether the assignment is denoted as absolute, absolute conditioned on default, additional security for an obligation, or otherwise, is, on execution and delivery by the assignor, effective to create a present security interest in existing and future leases, rents, issues, or profits of that real property. For these purposes, the term "leases, rents, issues, and profits of real property" includes the cash proceeds of the foregoing. The term "cash proceeds" means cash, checks, deposit accounts, and the like [Civ. Code § 2938(a)].

Civ. Code § 2938 applies to contracts entered into after 1996. Former Civ. Code §§ 2938 and 2938.1, as those sections were in effect before 1997, govern contracts entered into, and actions and proceedings initiated on the basis of those contracts, before 1997 [Civ. Code § 2938(i); see [v], below].

[iii] Recordation and Perfection of Assignment

An assignment of an interest in leases, rents, issues, or profits of real property may be recorded in the records of the county recorder in which the underlying real property is located in the same manner as any other conveyance of an interest in real property, whether the assignment is in a separate document or part of a deed of trust or mortgage [Civ. Code § 2938(b)]. When the assignment is duly recorded in accordance with the methods, procedures, and requirements for recordation of conveyances of other interests in real property, (1) the assignment will be deemed to give constructive notice of the content of the assignment with the same force and effect as any other duly recorded conveyance of an interest in real property, and (2) the interest granted by the assignment will be deemed fully perfected as of the time of recordation with the same force and effect as any other duly recorded conveyance of an interest in real property, notwithstanding any provision of the assignment or any provisions of law that would otherwise preclude or defer enforcement of the rights granted the assignee under the assignment until the occurrence of a subsequent event, including, but not limited to, a subsequent default of the assignor, the possession of the property by the assignee, or the appointment of a receiver [Civ. Code § 2938(b)].

On default of the assignor under the obligation secured by the assignment of leases, rents, issues, and profits, the assignee is entitled to enforce the assignment in accordance with Civ. Code § 2938, which permits enforcement by one or more of several steps, including the appointment of a receiver [see Civ. Code § 2938(c)]. On and after the date the assignee takes one or more of these enforcement steps, the assignee is entitled to collect and receive all rents, issues, and profits that have accrued but remain unpaid and uncollected by the assignor or its agents or for the assignor's benefit on that date, and all rents, issues, and profits that accrue on or after that date [Civ. Code § 2938(c)]. As a general rule, monies receive by the assignee pursuant to these enforcement procedures must be applied by the assignee to the debt or otherwise in accordance with the assignment or the promissory note, deed of trust, or other instrument evidencing the obligation [see Civ. Code § 2938(c)].

The application of rents, issues, or profits to the secured obligation satisfies the secured obligation to the extent of those rents, issues, or profits, and, notwithstanding any provisions of the assignment or other loan documents to the contrary, must be credited against any amounts necessary to cure any monetary default for purposes of reinstatement under Civ. Code § 2924c [Civ. Code § 2938(e)].

Former Civ. Code §§ 2938 and 2938.1, as those sections were in effect before 1997, continue to govern contracts entered into, and actions and proceedings initiated on the basis of those contracts, before 1997 [Civ. Code § 2938(i)]. Under former Civ. Code § 2938.1, an assignment of the rents, issues, and profits of real property that was executed after 1992 and that stated that it was given as additional security, was perfected by recording, in the county in which the real property was located, an instrument granting the assignment. Recordation perfected the assignment without requiring the beneficiary to obtain possession of the property, and without appointing a receiver, or taking any other action [former Civ. Code § 2938.1(a)]. The assignment could be contained in a mortgage, trust deed, or other recorded instrument [former Civ. Code § 2938.1(c)]. The beneficiary could not exercise any rights under this type of assignment until and unless the trustor was in default of its obligation to the beneficiary [former Civ. Code § 2938.1(b)].

The above provisions did not invalidate assignments as additional security that were perfected by other means before 1993, and they did not apply to absolute assignments of rents, issues, and profits [former Civ. Code § 2938.1(d)]. An assignment of rents, issues, and profits made in connection with a loan secured by real property that was expressly absolute, was deemed to constitute a present transfer of the assignor's interest in existing and future rents, issues, and profits of that real property effective when the assignment was executed and delivered by the assignor [former Civ. Code § 2938(a)]. Such an assignment could be recorded in the county in which the real property was located in the same manner as any other conveyance of an interest in real property, whether the assignment was in a separate document or part of a mortgage or deed of trust. When recorded, the assignment constituted constructive notice of the content and effect of the assignment with the same force and effect as any other recorded interest in real property. The interest granted by the assignment was deemed perfected as of the date it was recorded, notwithstanding any provision of the assignment or of any other provision of law that would otherwise preclude or defer enforcement of the rights granted the assignee under the assignment until the occurrence of a subsequent event, including, but not limited to, a subsequent default of the assignor [former Civ. Code § 2938(b)].

This form contains a clause providing for the substitution of the trustee under the trust deed [see P B(9) of Form]. The clause sets forth a procedure that is similar to one of the two alternative statutory procedures for substitution of a trustee. Under that statutory method, the trustee may be substituted by recording in the county in which the property is located a substitution document executed and acknowledged by all of the beneficiaries under the trust deed, or their successors in interest. That substitution is effective notwithstanding any contrary provision in any trust deed executed after 1967 [Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(1)(A)]. For a substitution of trustee form that complies with the statutory requirements and further discussion, see Ch. 25C, Release and Reconveyance .

[n] Request for Notice of Default

If there is a senior encumbrance on the property, the trust deed should contain a request for notices of default and sale under the senior encumbrance. This form contains such a request, in accordance with the requirements of Civ. Code § 2924b(a). The request may also be recorded as a separate instrument [see § 25D.200].

DEED OF TRUST

THIS DEED OF TRUST is made _____[date], between _____[name of trustor] (the "Trustor"), whose address is _____[street address, city, state, zip], and _____[name of beneficiary] (the "Beneficiary"), whose address is _____[street address, city, state, zip], and

_____[name of trustee], [a California corporation] (the "Trustee") [add if trustee is an individual:, whose address is _____ (street address, city, state, zip)];

TRUSTOR HEREBY irrevocably grants, transfers, and assigns to Trustee, in trust, with power of sale, all that property in the [add if applicable: City of _____,] County of _____, State of _____, described as: [set forth legal description of property in the center of the page], (the "Property"), together with rents, issues, and profits of the Property, subject, however, to the right, power, and authority given to and conferred on Beneficiary to collect and apply these rents, issues, and profits.

FOR THE PURPOSE OF SECURING:

(1) Payment of the indebtedness evidenced by a promissory note executed by Trustor on _____[this date or specify other date], in the principal sum of $_____, and any renewal, extension, or modification of the promissory note (the "Note");

(2) Any additional sums and interest that may hereafter be loaned to the then record owner of the Property by Beneficiary, when evidenced by another note or notes reciting that it or they are so secured; and

(3) The performance of each agreement contained in this Deed of Trust.

A. TO PROTECT THE SECURITY OF THIS DEED OF TRUST, TRUSTOR AGREES:

Maintenance and Repair

(1) To keep the Property in good condition and repair; not to remove or demolish any buildings on the Property; to complete or restore promptly and in good and workmanlike manner any building that may be constructed, damaged, or destroyed on the Property; to pay when due all claims for labor performed and materials furnished for the Property; to comply with all laws affecting the Property or requiring any alterations or improvements to be made on the Property; not to commit or permit waste of the Property; not to commit, suffer, or permit any act on the Property in violation of law; and to cultivate, irrigate, fertilize, fumigate, prune, and do all other acts that from the character or use of the Property may be reasonably necessary.

Fire Insurance

(2) To provide, maintain, and deliver to Beneficiary fire insurance satisfactory to and with loss payable to Beneficiary. The amount collected under any fire or other insurance policy may be applied by Beneficiary on any indebtedness secured by this Deed of Trust and in any order determined by Beneficiary, or at the option of Beneficiary the entire amount so collected or any part of that amount may be released to Trustor. This application or release shall not cure or waive any default or notice of default under this Deed of Trust or invalidate any act done pursuant to such a notice.

Defense of Security

(3) To appear in and defend any action or proceeding purporting to affect the security of this Deed of Trust or the rights or powers of Beneficiary, or Trustee; and to pay all costs and expenses, including cost of evidence of title and attorneys' fees in a reasonable sum, in any such action or proceeding in which Beneficiary or Trustee may appear, and in any suit brought by Beneficiary to foreclose this Deed of Trust.

Payment of Liens and Taxes

(4) To pay, at least [e.g., 10] days before delinquency, all taxes and assessments affecting the Property, including assessments on appurtenant water stock; all encumbrances, charges, and liens, with interest, on the Property or any part of the Property, which appear to be prior or superior to this Deed of Trust; and all costs, fees, and expenses of this Trust.

If Trustor fails to make any payment or to do any act as provided in this Deed of Trust, then Beneficiary or Trustee may (but is not obligated to) make the payment or do the act in the required manner and to the extent deemed necessary by Beneficiary or Trustee to protect the security of this Deed of Trust. The performance by Beneficiary or Trustee of such an act shall not require notice to or demand on Trustor and shall not release Trustor from any obligation under this Deed of Trust. Beneficiary or Trustee shall also have the following related rights and powers: to enter on the Property for the foregoing purposes; to appear in and defend any action or proceeding purporting to affect the security of this Deed of Trust or the rights or powers of Beneficiary or Trustee; to pay, purchase, contest, or compromise any encumbrance, charge, or lien that in the judgment of either appears to be prior or superior to this Deed of Trust; to employ counsel; and to pay necessary expenses and costs, including attorneys' fees.

Reimbursement of Costs

(5) To pay immediately and without demand all sums expended by Beneficiary or Trustee pursuant to this Deed of Trust, with interest from date of expenditure at the amount allowed by law in effect at the date of this Deed of Trust, and to pay any amount demanded by Beneficiary (up to the maximum allowed by law at the time of the demand) for any statement regarding the obligation secured by this Deed of Trust.

B. THE PARTIES AGREE THAT:

Condemnation Award

(1) Any award of damages in connection with any taking or condemnation, or for injury to the Property by reason of public use, or for damages for private trespass or injury to the Property, is hereby assigned and shall be paid to Beneficiary as further security for all obligations secured by this Deed of Trust. On receipt of any such proceeds, Beneficiary may hold the proceeds as further security, or apply or release them in the same manner and with the same effect as provided in this Deed of Trust for the disposition of proceeds of fire or other insurance.

Waiver of Late Payments

(2) By accepting payment of any sum secured by this Deed of Trust after its due date, Beneficiary does not waive its right either to require prompt payment when due of all other sums so secured or to declare default for failure to pay any indebtedness secured by this Deed of Trust.

Trustee's Powers

(3) On written request of Beneficiary and presentation of this Deed of Trust and the Note for endorsement, Trustee may (a) reconvey all or any part of the Property; (b) consent to the making and recording, or either, of any map or plat of all or any part of the Property; (c) join in granting any easement on the Property; or (d) join in or consent to any extension agreement or any agreement subordinating the lien, encumbrance, or charge of this Deed of Trust. Trustee need not provide Trustor with notice before taking any of the foregoing actions, and shall not be liable for the proper performance of the act. The exercise by Trustee of any of the foregoing powers shall not affect the personal liability of any person for payment of the indebtedness secured by this Deed of Trust, or the lien of this Deed of Trust on the remaining property as security for the repayment of the full amount secured by this Deed of Trust.

Full Reconveyance

(4) On written request of Beneficiary stating that all sums secured by this Deed of Trust have been paid, surrender of this Deed of Trust, the Note, and any other notes secured by this Deed of Trust to the Trustee for cancellation and retention, and payment of Trustee's fees and charges, Trustee shall reconvey, without warranty, the Property then subject to this Deed of Trust. The recitals in the reconveyance shall be conclusive proof of the truthfulness of the recitals. The grantee in the reconveyance may be described as "the person or persons legally entitled thereto." Five years after issuance of the full reconveyance, Trustee may destroy the Note and this Deed, unless directed in the request to retain them.

Assignment of Rents

(5) As additional security, Trustor hereby gives to and confers on Beneficiary the right, power, and authority during the continuance of these Trusts, to collect the rents, issues, and profits of the Property, but reserves the right, prior to any default by Trustor in payment of any indebtedness secured by this Deed of Trust or in the performance of any agreement under this Deed of Trust, to collect and retain these rents, issues, and profits as they become due and payable. On any such default, Beneficiary may pursue any of the enforcement mechanisms specified in Civil Code Section 2938(c). The exercise of these enforcement rights by Beneficiary shall not cure or waive any default or notice of default under this Deed of Trust or invalidate any act done pursuant to such a notice.

Default in Foreclosure

(6) On default by Trustor in the payment of any indebtedness secured by this Deed of Trust or in the performance of any obligation under this Deed of Trust, Beneficiary may declare all sums secured by this Deed of Trust immediately due and payable by delivering to Trustee a written declaration of default and demand for sale and a written notice of default and election to sell the Property. Trustee shall cause the notice of default and election to sell to be recorded. Beneficiary also shall deposit with Trustee this Deed of Trust, the Note, and all documents evidencing any additional expenditures secured by this Deed of Trust.

After the required time period has lapsed following the recordation of the notice of default, and after notice of sale has been given as required by law, Trustee, without demand on Trustor, shall sell the Property at the time and place specified in the notice of sale, either as a whole or in separate parcels, and in any order determined by Trustee, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash in lawful money of the United States, payable at the time of sale. Trustee may postpone sale of all or any portion of the Property by public announcement at the time and place of sale, and from time to time thereafter may postpone the sale by public announcement at the time fixed by the preceding postponement. Trustee shall deliver to the purchaser at the auction its deed conveying the Property sold, but without any covenant or warranty, express or implied. The recital in the deed of any matter or fact shall be conclusive proof of the truthfulness of the recital. Any person, including Trustor, Trustee, or Beneficiary, may purchase at the sale.

After deducting all costs, fees, and expenses of Trustee and Beneficiary under this paragraph, including costs of procuring evidence of title incurred in connection with sale, Trustee shall apply the proceeds of sale to payment of: all sums expended under the terms of this Deed of Trust, not then repaid, with accrued interest at the amount allowed by law in effect at the date of this Deed of Trust; all other sums then secured by this Deed of Trust; and the remainder, if any, to the person or persons legally entitled to the remaining proceeds.

General Provisions

(7) This Deed applies to, inures to the benefit of, and binds all parties to this Deed of Trust and their heirs, legatees, devisees, administrators, executors, successors, and assigns. The term "Beneficiary" shall mean the holder and owner, including pledgee, of the Note secured by this Deed of Trust, whether or not named as a beneficiary in this Deed of Trust, and the heirs, legatees, devisees, administrators, executors, successors, and assigns of any such person. In this Deed, whenever the context so requires, the masculine gender includes the feminine and/or neuter, and the singular number includes the plural.

Acceptance by Trustee

(8) Trustee accepts this Trust when this Deed, duly executed and acknowledged, is made a public record as provided by law. Trustee is not obligated to notify any party to this Deed of Trust of pending sale under any other deed of trust or of any action or proceeding in which Trustor, Beneficiary, or Trustee shall be a party unless brought by Trustee.

Substitution of Trustees

(9) Beneficiary, or any successor in ownership of any indebtedness secured by this Deed of Trust, may from time to time, by written instrument, substitute a successor or successors to any Trustee named in or acting under this Deed of Trust. The substitution instrument shall set forth the following: the date of recordation of this Deed of Trust; the name of the Trustor; the book and page where this Deed of Trust is recorded; and the name of the new Trustee. When executed by Beneficiary and duly acknowledged and recorded in the office of the recorder of the county or counties where the Property is situated, the substitution instrument shall be conclusive proof of proper substitution of the successor Trustee or Trustees. Any successor Trustee or Trustees shall, without conveyance from the Trustee predecessor, succeed to all its title, estate, rights, powers, and duties.

Cumulative Powers and Remedies

(10) The powers and remedies conferred in this Deed of Trust are concurrent and cumulative to all other rights and remedies provided in this Deed of Trust or given by law. These powers and remedies may be exercised singly, successively, or together, and as often as deemed necessary.

Conclusiveness of Recitals

(11) The recitals contained in any reconveyance, trustee's deed, or any other instrument executed by the Trustee from time to time under the authority of this Deed of Trust or in the exercise of its powers or the performance of its duties under this Deed of Trust, shall be conclusive evidence of their truth, whether stated as specific and particular facts, or in general statements or conclusions. Further, the recitals shall be binding and conclusive on the Trustor, the Trustor's heirs, executors, administrators, successors, and assigns, and all other persons.

Attorney's Fees

(12) If any action is brought for the foreclosure of this Deed of Trust or for the enforcement of any provision of this Deed of Trust (whether or not suit is filed), Trustor agrees to pay all costs and expenses of Beneficiary and Trustee, including reasonable attorney's fees; and these sums shall be secured by this Deed of Trust.

Cotrustees

(13) If two or more persons are designated as Trustee in this Deed of Trust, any, or all, power granted in this Deed of Trust to Trustee may be exercised by any of those persons, if the other person or persons are unable, for any reason, to act. Any recital of this inability in any instrument executed by any of those persons shall be conclusive against Trustor and Trustor's heirs and assigns.

[Add following clause if trust deed is purchase money encumbrance:]

Purchase Money Encumbrance

(14) The promissory note secured by this Deed of Trust is given as a part of the purchase price of the Property.

[Add following clause if there is senior trust deed or mortgage recorded against property:]

Request for Notices of Default and Sale

(15) In accordance with Civil Code Section 2924b, request is hereby made that a copy of any Notice of Default and a copy of any Notice of Sale under that Deed of Trust [or Mortgage] executed by _____[name] as Trustor [or Mortgagor], and recorded _____[date], as Instrument No. _____ in Book _____, Page _____, Official Records of _____ County, California, in which _____[name] is named as Beneficiary [or Mortgagee], [add if security instrument is deed of trust: and _____ (name) as Trustee,] be mailed to:

§ 25A.211 Deed of Trust--Short Form

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a short form deed of trust that incorporates by reference provisions of a fictitious deed of trust that has been previously recorded in the office of the county recorder where the short form deed of trust is to be recorded [see Civ. Code § 2952]. Fictitious deeds of trust are recorded by institutional lenders, title companies, and escrow companies and contain several "standard" provisions that commonly appear in trust deeds. Thereafter, the entity may use a short form trust deed that incorporates by reference the standard clauses of the fictitious trust deed into the short form deed without the necessity of recording the full text of the provisions [see [b], below]. However, for the convenience of the parties, the text of the provisions is generally set forth on the back of standardized, preprinted short forms.

The short form deed of trust, like any deed of trust, should be executed and acknowledged by the trustor and recorded in the office of the county recorder where the real property is located [Civ. Code §§ 1169, 2952; see § 25A.210[1][b]].

For a long form trust deed containing many standard clauses, see § 25A.210. All of the significant provisions in this form (other than the identifying information regarding the fictitious trust deed) also appear in § 25A.210, and are discussed in the comment to that form. For additional provisions that may be included in a trust deed, see §§ 25A.220-25A.228.

[b] Reference to Fictitious Trust Deed

When a short form trust deed or mortgage incorporates by reference any provisions of a fictitious trust deed or mortgage, the reference must contain a statement of the date the fictitious instrument was recorded; the county recorder's office and the book or volume and the page where it is recorded, and a statement (by paragraph numbers or similar method) that will definitely identify the specific provisions of the fictitious instrument that are being adopted [Civ. Code § 2952]. The form in [2], below, provides for the inclusion of the above information [see P (1) under "TO PROTECT THE SECURITY OF THIS DEED OF TRUST, TRUSTOR AGREES:"].

DEED OF TRUST

THIS DEED OF TRUST made this _____ day of _____, [month and year], between _____[name of trustor] (the "Trustor"), whose address is _____[street address, city, state, zip], and _____[name of beneficiary] (the "Beneficiary"), whose address is _____[street address, city, state, zip], and _____[name of trustee], [a California corporation] (the "Trustee") [add if trustee is an individual: , whose address is _____ (street address, city, state, zip)];

TRUSTOR HEREBY irrevocably grants, transfers, and assigns to Trustee, in trust, with power of sale, all that property in the [add if applicable: City of _____,] County of _____, State of _____, described as: [set forth legal description of property in the center of the page], (the "Property"), together with the rents, issues, and profits of the Property, subject, however, to the right, power, and authority given to and conferred on Beneficiary by Paragraph [specify applicable paragraph number in recorded fictitious trust deed] of the provisions incorporated in this Deed of Trust by reference to collect and apply those rents, issues, and profits.

FOR THE PURPOSE OF SECURING:

(1) Performance of each agreement of Trustor incorporated by reference or contained in this Deed of Trust;

(2) Payment of the indebtedness evidenced by one promissory note, and any extension or renewal of that note, in the principal sum of $_____, executed by Trustor _____[on this date or on _____ (date)] in favor of Beneficiary or order; and

(3) Payment of any further sums that the then record owner of the Property hereafter may borrow from Beneficiary, when evidenced by another note or notes reciting it is so secured.

TO PROTECT THE SECURITY OF THIS DEED OF TRUST, TRUSTOR AGREES:

(1) By the execution and delivery of this Deed of Trust and the note secured by this Deed of Trust, that provisions _____ to [beginning and ending numbers of provisions in fictitious trust deed described below], inclusive, of the fictitious Deed of Trust recorded on _____[date], in Book _____ at Page _____, of the Official Records of _____ County [county in which trust deed is to be recorded], California, hereby are adopted and incorporated by reference;

(2) That [he/she] acknowledges receipt of a full copy of the provisions numbered _____ to _____, inclusive, referred to above, and understands them;

(3) That [he/she] will observe and perform those provisions; and

(4) That the references to property, obligations, and parties in those provisions shall be construed to refer to the Property, obligations, and parties set forth in this Deed of Trust.

The undersigned Trustor requests that a copy of any Notice of Default and of any Notice of Sale under this Deed of Trust be mailed to [him/her] at the address of the Trustor set forth above.

[Add following clause if transfer by trustor will accelerate entire indebtedness (see § 25A.221[2] for alternative provision):]

In the event that all or any part of the Property, or any interest in the Property, is sold, agreed to be sold, conveyed, transferred, disposed of, further encumbered, or alienated by Trustor, or by the operation of law or otherwise, without the prior written consent of Beneficiary, all sums secured by this Deed of Trust shall, at the option of Beneficiary, immediately become due and payable. Consent to one such transaction shall not be deemed to be a waiver of the right to require consent to future or successive transactions.

The promissory note secured by this Deed of Trust is given as a part of the purchase price of the Property.

[Add following if there is senior trust deed or mortgage recorded against property:]

In accordance with Civil Code Section 2924b, request is hereby made by the undersigned Trustor that a copy of any Notice of Default and a copy of any Notice of Sale under the Deed of Trust [or Mortgage] recorded _____[date of recordation], in Book _____, Page _____, Official Records of _____ County, California, executed by _____[name] as Trustor [or Mortgagor] in which _____[name of beneficiary or mortgagee] is named as Beneficiary [or Mortgagee], and _____[name of trustee; omit if mortgage] as Trustee, be mailed to _____[name of person to whom notice is to be mailed, normally beneficiary of this junior trust deed], whose address is _____[street, city, state, zip].

NOTICE:

A copy of any notice of default and of any notice of sale will be sent only to the address contained in this recorded request. If your address changes, a new request must be recorded.

10-25A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 25A.212

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 25A.212 All-Inclusive Deed of Trust

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is an "all-inclusive" deed of trust that is compatible for use with the all-inclusive promissory note set forth in § 25A.205. The discussion in the comment to that form defines an all-inclusive deed of trust and fully explains its use, and is therefore equally applicable to use of this form. For a discussion of the standard provisions for a general deed of trust, see § 25A.210[1].

This form assumes, as does the form in § 25A.205 (all-inclusive note), that there is only one obligation secured by a deed of trust senior to the all-inclusive deed of trust and that the one obligation is evidenced by one promissory note [see § 25A.205[1][b]].

The provisions of the all-inclusive note and deed of trust must be consistent with the underlying trust deed and note. For discussion of several areas for which this is especially important, see § 25A.205[1][c].

A title company will frequently require that an all-inclusive deed of trust contain special foreclosure provisions before the title company will act as trustee or insure title of the purchaser at a trustee's sale. One concern to title companies is the amount of credit bid the holder of the all-inclusive trust deed needs to make at a trustee's sale, that is, whether it should include the amount of the underlying obligation (this form provides that this amount need not be included) [see P C(6) of Form]. A second concern is whether a sale under the all-inclusive trust deed will be subject to the underlying first lienor and whether the senior lien will be paid out of the sale proceeds (under this form, the sale is subject to the underlying lien) [see P C(6) of Form]. A third concern is whether the title company should reconvey the property from the all-inclusive trust deed when the unpaid balance due on the all-inclusive note is equal to the unpaid balance of the underlying senior lien (this form provides for such a reconveyance) [see P C(4) of Form]. The terms of the all-inclusive deed of trust should specifically address and clarify these issues [see Armsey v. Channel Associates, Inc. (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 833, 838, 229 Cal. Rptr. 509] . The terms of the trust should also be reviewed in advance by the title company to be named as trustee.

In a case involving an all-inclusive deed of trust that did not contain specific foreclosure provisions, the beneficiary bid the amount of his equity in the all-inclusive trust deed (which was an amount less than the face amount of the all-inclusive deed of trust). There had been a fire on the property, and the issue in the case was who was entitled to the insurance proceeds. The court held that the debt owed to the beneficiary was the full face amount of the all-inclusive note, and that if a beneficiary bids less than the full amount of the obligation owing to him or her, a deficiency balance of the debt remains to which the beneficiary may seek entitlement from insurance proceeds. It further stated that Code Civ. Proc. § 580b did not prevent the beneficiary from realizing on the insurance policy, which was additional security for the loan, up to the amount of the indebtedness remaining after the foreclosure sale [see Armsey v. Channel Associates, Inc. (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 833, 837-839, 229 Cal. Rptr. 509] .

Since a borrower who makes payments directly to the holder of the all-inclusive note has no assurance that the holder is making the required payment on the underlying senior obligation, the borrower should execute and record a request for notice of default and sale on the underlying senior obligation. This form includes a request for these notices. Alternatively, the request may be recorded as a separate instrument [see § 25D.200].

ALL-INCLUSIVE DEED OF TRUST AND ASSIGNMENT OF RENTS

THIS ALL-INCLUSIVE DEED OF TRUST AND ASSIGNMENT OF RENTS is made this _____ day of [month], [year], by and between _____[name of trustor] (the "Trustor"); _____[name of beneficiary] (the "Beneficiary"); and _____[name of trustee] (the "Trustee");

TRUSTOR HEREBY irrevocably grants, transfers, and assigns to Trustee, in trust, with power of sale, all that property in the [add if applicable: City of _____,] County of _____, State of _____, described as: [set forth legal description of property in the center of the page], (the "Property"), together with rents, issues, and profits of the Property, subject, however, to the right, power, and authority given to and conferred on Beneficiary to collect and apply these rents, issues, and profits.

FOR THE PURPOSE OF SECURING:

(1) Payment of the indebtedness evidenced by a promissory note executed by Trustor on _____[this date or _____ (date)], in the principal sum of $_____, and any renewal, extension, or modification of the promissory note (the "All-Inclusive Note");

(2) Any additional sums and interest that may hereafter be loaned to the then record owner of the Property by Beneficiary, when evidenced by another note or notes reciting that it or they are secured by this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust; and

(3) The performance of each agreement contained in this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust and of each agreement contained in the All-Inclusive Note, the provisions of which are hereby incorporated by reference.

A. TRUSTOR AND BENEFICIARY HEREBY AGREE that this is an All-Inclusive Deed of Trust and is subject and subordinate to the deed of trust now of record and referred to as the First Deed of Trust in the All-Inclusive Note and that the First Deed of Trust secures that certain promissory note referred to in the All-Inclusive Note as the First Note. Pursuant to the terms of the All-Inclusive Note, Beneficiary has agreed to pay the principal and interest of the First Note and all taxes, assessments [add if appropriate: and insurance premiums] payable under the terms of the First Note or First Deed of Trust, provided Trustor makes all payments under the All-Inclusive Note when due. If Beneficiary defaults in the payment or performance of any obligation called for under the First Deed of Trust, Trustor may make the payments (including any late charges, penalties, advances, and impounds) direct to Beneficiary or the obligee or holder, as appropriate, and the payments shall be credited against the payments next due under the All-Inclusive Note secured by this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust.

B. TO PROTECT THE SECURITY OF THIS ALL-INCLUSIVE DEED OF TRUST:

Maintenance and Repair

(1) Trustor shall:

(a) Keep the Property in good condition and repair;

(b) Not remove or demolish any buildings on the Property;

(c) Complete or restore promptly and in good and workmanlike manner any building that may be constructed, damaged, or destroyed on the Property;

(d) Pay when due all claims for labor performed and materials furnished for the Property;

(e) Comply with all laws affecting the Property or requiring any alterations or improvements to be made on the Property;

(f) Not commit or permit waste of the Property;

(g) Not commit, suffer, or permit any act on the Property in violation of law; and

(h) Cultivate, irrigate, fertilize, fumigate, prune, and do all other acts that from the character or use of the Property may be reasonably necessary.

Fire Insurance

(2) Trustor shall provide, maintain, and deliver to Beneficiary fire insurance satisfactory to and with loss payable to Beneficiary. The amount collected under any fire or other insurance policy may be applied by Beneficiary on any indebtedness secured by this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust and in any order determined by Beneficiary, or at the option of Beneficiary the entire amount so collected or any part of that amount may be released to Trustor. This application or release shall not cure or waive any default or notice of default under this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust or invalidate any act done pursuant to such a notice.

Defense of Security

(3) Trustor shall appear in and defend any action or proceeding purporting to affect the security of this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust or the rights or powers of Beneficiary, or Trustee; and to pay all costs and expenses, including cost of evidence of title and attorneys' fees in a reasonable sum, in any such action or proceeding in which Beneficiary or Trustee may appear, and in any suit brought by Beneficiary to foreclose this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust.

Payment of Liens and Taxes

(4) Trustor shall pay to Beneficiary, at least [e.g., 20] days before delinquency, as required under the First Note or the First Deed of Trust, all taxes and assessments affecting the Property, including assessments on appurtenant water stock; all encumbrances, charges, and liens, with interest, on all or any part of the Property, which appear to be prior or superior to this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust; and all costs, fees and expenses of this Trust.

Beneficiary shall pay when due all taxes, assessments, and other liens on the Property as required under the First Deed of Trust or First Note, provided Trustor makes all of the payments described in the preceding paragraph when due. If Trustor fails to make any payment or to do any act as provided in this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust, then Beneficiary or Trustee may (but is not obligated to) make the payment or do the act in the required manner and to the extent deemed necessary by Beneficiary or Trustee to protect the security of this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust. The performance by Beneficiary or Trustee of such an act shall not require notice to or demand on Trustor and shall not release Trustor from any obligation under this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust. Beneficiary or Trustee shall also have the following related rights and powers: to enter on the Property for the foregoing purposes; to appear in and defend any action or proceeding purporting to affect the security of this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust or the rights or powers of Beneficiary or Trustee; to pay, purchase, contest, or compromise any encumbrance, charge, or lien that in the judgment of either appears to be prior or superior to this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust; to employ counsel; and to pay necessary expenses and costs, including attorneys' fees.

Reimbursement of Costs

(5) Trustor shall pay immediately and without demand all sums expended by Beneficiary or Trustee pursuant to this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust, with interest from date of expenditure at the amount allowed by law in effect at the date of this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust, and shall pay any amount demanded by Beneficiary (up to the maximum allowed by law at the time of the demand) for any statement regarding the obligation secured by this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust. Trustor further agrees to pay Beneficiary the cost of any penalty or other charge imposed by the holder of the First Note and First Deed of Trust for Beneficiary's default under either, when the default was caused by Trustor's failure to promptly pay any sum required under this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust.

C. IT IS MUTUALLY AGREED THAT:

Condemnation Award

(1) Any award of damages in connection with any taking or condemnation, or for injury to the Property by reason of public use, or for damages for private trespass or injury to the Property, is hereby assigned and shall be paid to Beneficiary as further security for all obligations secured by this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust. On receipt of any such proceeds, Beneficiary may hold the proceeds as further security, or apply or release them in the same manner and with the same effect as provided in this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust for the disposition of proceeds of fire or other insurance.

Waiver of Late Payments

(2) By accepting payment of any sum secured by this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust after its due date, Beneficiary does not waive its right either to require prompt payment when due of all other sums so secured or to declare default for failure to pay any indebtedness secured by this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust.

Trustee's Powers

(3) On written request of Beneficiary and presentation of this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust and the Note for endorsement, Trustee may (a) reconvey all or any part of the Property; (b) consent to the making and recording, or either, of any map or plat of all or any part of the Property; (c) join in granting any easement on the Property; or (d) join in or consent to any extension agreement or any agreement subordinating the lien, encumbrance, or charge of this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust. Trustee need not provide Trustor with notice before taking any of the foregoing actions, and shall not be liable for the proper performance of the act. The exercise by Trustee of any of the foregoing powers shall not affect the personal liability of any person for payment of the indebtedness secured by this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust, or the lien of this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust on the remaining property as security for the repayment of the full amount secured by this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust.

Full Reconveyance

(4) At any time when the unpaid principal balance of the All-Inclusive Note secured by this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust and accrued interest on that note is equal to or less than the unpaid principal balance of the First Note and accrued interest on the First Note, Beneficiary shall, on demand by Trustor or its successors, surrender this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust and the All-Inclusive Note to Trustee and shall cause Trustee to execute and record a full reconveyance without warranty of the Property. The recitals in the reconveyance shall be conclusive proof of the truthfulness of the recitals. The grantee in the reconveyance may be described as "the person or persons legally entitled thereto." Five years after issuance of the full reconveyance, Trustee may destroy the All-Inclusive Note and this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust, unless directed in the request to retain them.

Assignment of Rents

(5) As additional security, Trustor hereby gives to and confers on Beneficiary the right, power, and authority during the continuance of these Trusts, to collect the rents, issues, and profits of the Property, but reserves the right, prior to any default by Trustor in payment of any indebtedness secured by this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust or in the performance of any agreement under this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust, to collect and retain these rents, issues, and profits as they become due and payable. On any such default, Beneficiary may, without notice and without regard to the adequacy of the security for the indebtedness secured by this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust, either personally or by agent or court-appointed receiver, do the following: enter on and take possession of the Property or any part of the Property; sue for or otherwise collect all rents, issues, and profits, including those past due and unpaid; and apply these rents, issues, and profits, less costs and expenses of operation and collection (including reasonable attorneys' fees), on any indebtedness secured by this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust, in any order determined by Beneficiary. The exercise of the foregoing rights by Beneficiary shall not cure or waive any default or notice of default under this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust or invalidate any act done pursuant to such a notice.

Default in Foreclosure

(6) On default by Trustor in the payment of any indebtedness secured by this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust or in the performance of any obligation under this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust, Beneficiary may declare all sums secured by this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust immediately due and payable by delivering to Trustee a written declaration of default and demand for sale and a written notice of default and election to sell the Property. Default in the payment of any indebtedness secured by this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust or in the performance of any agreement under this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust constitutes a default only under this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust and the All-Inclusive Note and does not constitute a default under the First Note or First Deed of Trust. Trustee shall cause the notice of default to be recorded. Beneficiary also shall deposit with Trustee this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust, the All-Inclusive Note, and all documents evidencing any additional expenditures secured by this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust.

After the required time period has lapsed following the recordation of the notice of default, and after notice of sale has been given as required by law, Trustee, without demand on Trustor, shall sell the Property at the time and place specified in the notice of sale, either as a whole or in separate parcels, and in any order determined by Trustee, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash in lawful money of the United States, payable at the time of sale. Trustee may postpone sale of all or any portion of the Property by public announcement at the time and place of sale, and from time to time thereafter may postpone the sale by public announcement at the time fixed by the preceding postponement. Trustee shall deliver to the purchaser at the auction its deed conveying the Property sold. That deed and the purchaser's ownership interest in the Property shall be subject to the First Note and First Deed of Trust. Further, the deed shall be without any covenant or warranty, express or implied. The recital in the deed of any matter or fact shall be conclusive proof of the truthfulness of the recital. Any person, including Trustor, Trustee, or Beneficiary, may purchase at the sale.

After deducting all costs, fees, and expenses of Trustee and Beneficiary under this Paragraph, including costs of procuring evidence of title incurred in connection with sale, Trustee shall apply the proceeds of sale to payment of: all sums expended under the terms of this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust, not then repaid, with accrued interest at the amount allowed by law in effect at the date of this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust; all other sums then secured by this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust; and the remainder, if any, to the person or persons legally entitled to the remaining proceeds.

Notwithstanding any other provision of this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust or the All-Inclusive Note, any demand for sale delivered to the Trustee for the foreclosure of this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust shall be reduced by the unpaid balance, if any, at the time of the Trustee's sale, of the principal and interest due on the First Note and of any other sums payable under the terms of the First Note or First Deed of Trust. Satisfactory evidence of the unpaid balance (which may consist of the written statement of the holder of the First Note) must be submitted to the Trustee prior to sale.

Beneficiary agrees that, in the event of foreclosure of this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust, Beneficiary shall, at any Trustee's sale, bid an amount not in excess of the amount then due on the obligation secured by this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust, including late charges, penalties, and/or advances, minus the balance then due on the First Note, including late charges, interest penalties, advances, and/or impounds.

General Provisions

(7) This All-Inclusive Deed of Trust applies to, inures to the benefit of, and binds all parties to this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust and their heirs, legatees, devisees, administrators, executors, successors, and assigns. The term "Beneficiary" shall mean the holder and owner, including pledgee, of the All-Inclusive Note, whether or not named as a beneficiary in this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust, and the heirs, legatees, devisees, administrators, executors, successors, and assigns of any such person. In this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust, whenever the context so requires, the masculine gender includes the feminine and/or neuter, and the singular number includes the plural.

Acceptance by Trustee

(8) Trustee accepts this Trust when this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust, duly executed and acknowledged, is made a public record as provided by law. Trustee is not obligated to notify any party to this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust of pending sale under any other deed of trust or of any action or proceeding in which Trustor, Beneficiary, or Trustee shall be a party unless brought by Trustee.

Substitution of Trustees

(9) Beneficiary, or any successor in ownership of any indebtedness secured by this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust, may from time to time, by written instrument, substitute a successor or successors to any Trustee named in or acting under this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust. The substitution instrument shall contain the name of the original Trustor, Trustee, and Beneficiary under this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust, the book and page where this Deed is recorded, and the name and address of the new Trustee. When executed by Beneficiary and duly acknowledged and recorded in the office of the recorder of the county or counties where the Property is situated, the substitution instrument shall be conclusive proof of proper substitution of the successor Trustee or Trustees. Any successor Trustee or Trustees shall, without conveyance from the Trustee predecessor, succeed to all its title, estate, rights, powers, and duties.

Cumulative Powers and Remedies

(10) The powers and remedies conferred in this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust are concurrent and cumulative to all other rights and remedies provided in this Deed of Trust or given by law. These powers and remedies may be exercised singly, successively, or together, and as often as deemed necessary.

Conclusiveness of Recitals

(11) The recitals contained in any reconveyance, trustee's deed, or any other instrument executed by the Trustee from time to time under the authority of this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust or in the exercise of its powers or the performance of its duties under this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust, shall be conclusive evidence of their truth, whether stated as specified and particular facts, or in general statements or conclusions. Further, the recitals shall be binding and conclusive on the Trustor, the Trustor's heirs, executors, administrators, successors, and assigns, and all other persons.

Attorney's Fees

(12) If any action is brought for the foreclosure of this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust or for the enforcement of any provision of this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust (whether or not suit is filed), Trustor agrees to pay all costs and expenses of Beneficiary and Trustee, including reasonable attorney's fees; and these sums shall be secured by this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust.

Cotrustees

(13) If two or more persons are designated as Trustee in this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust, any, or all, power granted by this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust to the Trustee may be exercised by any of those persons, if the other person or persons are unable, for any reason, to act. Any recital of this inability in any instrument executed by any of those persons shall be conclusive against Trustor and the Trustor's assigns.

[Add following clause if trust deed is purchase money encumbrance:]

Purchase Money Encumbrance

(14) The promissory note secured by this All-Inclusive Deed of Trust is given as a part of the purchase price of the Property.

[Add following clause if there is senior trust deed or mortgage recorded against property:]

Request for Notices of Default and Sale

(15) In accordance with Section 2924b of the California Civil Code, request is hereby made that a copy of any Notice of Default and a copy of any Notice of Sale under that Deed of Trust [or Mortgage] executed by _____[name] as Trustor [or Mortgagor], and recorded _____[date], as Instrument No. _____ in Book _____, Page _____, Official Records of _____ County, California, in which _____[name] is named as Beneficiary [or Mortgagee], [add if security instrument is a deed of trust: and _____ (name) as Trustee,] be mailed to:

§ 25A.213 Statutory Mortgage [Civ. Code § 2948]

[1] Comment--Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is the statutory form of mortgage prescribed by Civ. Code § 2948. Since this form contains very few provisions concerning the rights and liabilities of the parties, it is seldom used except in situations involving small sums of money. For a more comprehensive mortgage, see § 25A.214.

A mortgage should be executed and acknowledged by the mortgagor and recorded in the office of the county recorder where all or a portion of the real property is located [Civ. Code §§ 1214, 1215; see § 25A.214[1][c]].

§ 25A.214 Mortgage With Power of Sale

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a mortgage with a power of sale provision. The option of foreclosing by the statutory nonjudicial method [see Civ. Code §§ 2924-2924h] rather than by court action [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 725a, 726] is available to a mortgagee only if the mortgage contains a power of sale [see Civ. Code § 2924(a)]. A mortgage may confer a power of sale on the mortgagee or any other person. The power permits the person to sell the property pledged as security after a breach of the secured obligation [Civ. Code § 2932].

Many of the provisions of this form are substantially similar to those in the long form deed of trust set forth in § 25A.210[2]. Therefore, the discussion in the comment to that form regarding specific provisions is equally applicable to this form.

For the statutory form for a mortgage, see § 25A.213[2].

[b] Required Contents

A mortgage must be created in writing [Civ. Code § 2922]. The mortgage should contain a complete and precise legal description of the real property [see Scott v. Woodworth (1917) 34 Cal. App. 400, 408-410, 167 P. 543 ; see also § 25A.11[4]] and sufficient information to determine the extent of the underlying obligation [D'Oyly v. Capp (1893) 99 Cal. 153, 157, 33 P. 736 ; see § 25A.11[5]; see also [c], below].

[c] Execution and Recordation

The mortgage should be executed and acknowledged by the mortgagor and recorded in the county where all or part of the real property is located [Civ. Code §§ 1214, 1215]. To be accepted for recordation, a mortgage with a power of sale must contain the mortgagor's address and a request for notice of default under Civ. Code § 2924b [Gov. Code § 27321.5(b); see § 25A.11[6]].

[d] Deed of Trust Distinguished

A mortgage with a power of sale is quite similar to a deed of trust. For discussion of the few differences between these two types of security instruments, see § 25A.11[1].

MORTGAGE

THIS MORTGAGE, made this _____ day of _____ [month], _____ [year] between _____[name of mortgagor], (the "Mortgagor"), whose address is _____[street address, city, state, zip], and _____[name of mortgagee], (the "Mortgagee");

MORTGAGOR HEREBY mortgages to Mortgagee [add if power of sale: with power of sale], all that property located in the [if applicable: City of _____,] County of _____, California, described as: _____[set forth legal description of property in center of page], (the "Property"), together with rents, issues, and profits of the Property, subject, however, to the right, power, and authority given to and conferred on Mortgagee to collect and apply these rents, issues, and profits.

FOR THE PURPOSE OF SECURING:

(1) The payment of the indebtedness evidenced by a promissory note of this date, executed by Mortgagor in favor of Mortgagee in the original principal amount of $_____ (the "Note");

(2) The payment of any additional sums and interest that may hereafter be loaned to Mortgagor or the Mortgagor's successors or assigns by Mortgagee, when evidenced by another note or notes reciting that it or they are secured by this Mortgage; and

(3) The performance of each agreement contained in this Mortgage.

TO PROTECT THE SECURITY OF THIS MORTGAGE, MORTGAGOR AGREES:

Maintenance and Repair

(1) To keep the Property in good condition and repair; not to remove or demolish any buildings on the Property; to complete or restore promptly and in good and workmanlike manner any building that may be constructed, damaged, or destroyed on the Property; to pay when due all claims for labor performed and materials furnished for the Property; to comply with all laws affecting the Property or requiring any alterations or improvements to be made on the Property; not to commit or permit waste of the Property; not to commit, suffer, or permit any act on the Property in violation of law; and to cultivate, irrigate, fertilize, fumigate, prune, and do all other acts that from the character or use of the Property may be reasonably necessary.

Fire Insurance

(2) To provide, maintain, and deliver to Mortgagee fire insurance satisfactory to and with loss payable to Mortgagee. The amount collected under any fire or other insurance policy may be applied by Mortgagee on any indebtedness secured by this Mortgage and in any order determined by Mortgagee, or at the option of Mortgagee the entire amount so collected or any part of that amount may be released to Mortgagor. This application or release shall not cure or waive any default or notice of default under this Mortgage or invalidate any act done pursuant to such a notice.

Defense of Security

(3) To appear in and defend any action or proceeding purporting to affect the security of this Mortgage or the rights or powers of Mortgagee, and to pay all costs and expenses, including cost of evidence of title and attorneys' fees in a reasonable sum, in any such action or proceeding in which Mortgagee may appear, and in any suit brought by Mortgagee to foreclose this Mortgage.

Payment of Liens and Taxes

(4) To pay, at least _____ [e.g., 10] days before delinquency, all taxes and assessments affecting the Property, including assessments on appurtenant water stock; all encumbrances, charges, and liens, with interest, on the Property or any part of the Property, which appear to be prior or superior to this Mortgage; and all costs, fees, and expenses of this Mortgage.

If Mortgagor fails to make any payment or to do any act as provided in this Mortgage, then Mortgagee may (but is not obligated to) make the payment or do the act in the required manner and to the extent deemed necessary by Mortgagee to protect the security of this Mortgage. The performance by Mortgagee of such an act shall not require notice to or demand on Mortgagor and shall not release Mortgagor from any obligation under this Mortgage. Mortgagee shall also have the following related rights and powers: to enter on the Property for the foregoing purposes; to appear in and defend any action or proceeding purporting to affect the security of this Mortgage or the rights or powers of Mortgagee; to pay, purchase,contest, or compromise any encumbrance, charge, or lien that in the judgment of either appears to be prior or superior to this Mortgage; to employ counsel; and to pay necessary expenses and costs, including attorneys' fees.

Reimbursement of Costs

(5) To pay immediately and without demand all sums so expended by Mortgagee, with interest from date of expenditure at the amount allowed by law in effect at the date of this Mortgage, and to pay any amount demanded by Mortgagee (up to the maximum allowed by law at the time of the demand) for any statement regarding the obligation secured by this Mortgage.

Condemnation Award

(6) Any award of damages in connection with any taking or condemnation, or for injury to the Property by reason of public use, or for damages for private trespass or injury to the Property, is hereby assigned and shall be paid to Mortgagee as further security for all obligations secured by this Mortgage. On receipt of any such proceeds, Mortgagee may hold the proceeds as further security, or apply or release them in the same manner and with the same effect as provided in this Mortgage for the disposition of proceeds of fire or other insurance.

Waiver of Late Payments

(7) By accepting payment of any sum secured by this Mortgage after its due date, Mortgagee does not waive its right either to require prompt payment when due of all other sums so secured or to declare default for failure to pay any indebtedness secured by this Mortgage.

Mortgagee's Powers

(8) At any time and from time to time, Mortgagee may (a) release any part of the Property from this Mortgage; (b) consent to the making of any map or plat of the Property; (c) join in granting any easement on the Property; or (d) join in any extension agreement or any agreement subordinating the lien or charge of this Mortgage. Mortgagee need not provide Mortgagor with notice before taking any of the foregoing actions, and shall not be liable for the proper performance of the act. The exercise by Mortgagee of any of the foregoing powers shall not affect the personal liability of any person for payment of the indebtedness secured by this Mortgage, or the lien of this Mortgage on the remaining property as security for the repayment of the full amount secured by this Mortgage.

Certificate of Discharge

(9) When all sums secured by this Mortgage have been paid in full, the lien created by this Mortgage shall cease and become void, and Mortgagee shall cause a certificate of discharge to be entered of record stating that all sums secured by this Mortgage have been fully paid, satisfied, and discharged, and that the Property has been released from the lien of this Mortgage. At that time, Mortgagee shall also cancel the note secured by this Mortgage and shall return this Mortgage and the note to Mortgagor.

Assignment of Rents

(10) As additional security, Mortgagor hereby gives to and confers on Mortgagee the right, power, and authority during the continuance of this Mortgage, to collect the rents, issues, and profits of the Property, but reserves the right, prior to any default by Mortgagor in payment of any indebtedness secured by this Mortgage or in the performance of any agreement under this Mortgage, to collect and retain these rents, issues, and profits as they become due and payable. On any such default, Mortgagee, without notice and without regard to the adequacy of the security for the indebtedness secured by this Mortgage, either personally or by agent or court-appointed receiver, may do the following: enter on and take possession of the Property or any part of the Property; sue for or otherwise collect all rents, issues, and profits, including those past due and unpaid; and apply these rents, issues, and profits, less costs and expenses of operation and collection (including reasonable attorneys' fees), on any indebtedness secured by this Mortgage, in any order determined by Mortgagee. The exercise of the foregoing rights by Mortgagee shall not cure or waive any default or notice of default under this Mortgage or invalidate any act done pursuant to such a notice.

Default and Foreclosure

(11) On default by Mortgagor in payment of any indebtedness secured by this Mortgage or in the performance of any obligation under this Mortgage, Mortgagee may declare all sums secured by this Mortgage immediately due and payable by instituting legal proceedings for judicial foreclosure of this Mortgage, in which case the net proceeds from the sale under the direction and decree of a court of competent jurisdiction shall be applied to the indebtedness secured by this Mortgage.

[Include following if mortgage is to contain power of sale:]

As an alternative to court foreclosure, on such a default, Mortgagee may declare all sums secured by this Mortgage immediately due and payable by recording a written notice of default. After the required time period has lapsed following the recordation of the notice of default, and after notice of sale has been given as required by law, Mortgagee, without demand on Mortgagor, shall sell the Property at the time and place specified in the notice of sale, either as a whole or in separate parcels, and in any order determined by Mortgagee, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash in lawful money of the United States, payable at the time of sale. Mortgagee may postpone sale of all or any portion of the Property by public announcement at the time and place of sale, and from time to timethereafter may postpone the sale by public announcement at the time fixed by the preceding postponement. Mortgagee shall deliver to the purchaser at the auction its deed conveying the Property sold, but without any covenant or warranty, express or implied. The recital in the deed of any matter or fact shall be conclusive proof of the truthfulness of the recital. Any person, including Mortgagor or Mortgagee, may purchase at the sale.

After deducting all costs, fees, and expenses of Mortgagee under this paragraph, including costs of procuring evidence of title incurred in connection with the sale, Mortgagee shall apply the proceeds of sale to payment of: all sums expended under the terms of this Mortgage, not then repaid, with accrued interest at the amount allowed by law in effect at the date of this Mortgage; all other sums then secured by this Mortgage; and the remainder, if any, to the person or persons legally entitled to the remaining proceeds.

General Provisions

(12) This Mortgage applies to, inures to the benefit of, and binds all parties to this Mortgage and their heirs, legatees, devisees, administrators, executors, successors, and assigns. In this Mortgage, whenever the context so requires, the masculine gender includes the feminine and/or neuter, and the singular number includes the plural.

The undersigned Mortgagor requests that a copy of any notice of default and of any notice of sale under this Mortgage be mailed to Mortgagor at the Mortgagor's address set forth above.

[Add following clause if mortgage is purchase money mortgage:]

The promissory note secured by this Mortgage is given as a part of the purchase price of the Property.

[Insert following paragraph if mortgage is junior encumbrance on property:]

Request for Notices of Default and Sale

(13) In accordance with California Civil Code Section 2924b, request is hereby made that a copy of any Notice of Default and a copy of any Notice of Sale under that Deed of Trust [or Mortgage] executed by _____[name] as Trustor [or Mortgagor], and recorded _____[date], as Instrument No. _____ in Book _____, Page _____, Official Records of _____ County, California, in which _____[name] is named as Beneficiary [or Mortgagee], [add if security instrument is deed of trust: and _____ (name) as Trustee,] be mailed to:

§ 25A.215 Agreement for and Notice of Deed Intended as Mortgage

The form in [2], below, is an agreement and notice that a deed absolute on its face has been given only for security purposes and is intended as a mortgage. A security may be created by the execution of a deed with an agreement that the deed is to only constitute security for the payment of the grantor's indebtedness to the grantee [Civ. Code §§ 2924(a), 2925; Banta v. Wise (1901) 135 Cal. 277, 279, 67 P. 129] . When a grant of real property purports to be an absolute conveyance, but is intended to be defeasible on the performance of certain conditions, the grant is not defeated or affected as against any person other than the grantee or his or her heirs or devisees, or persons having actual notice, unless an instrument of defeasance (this form), duly executed and acknowledged, has been recorded in the office of the county recorder of the county where the property is situated [Civ. Code § 2950]. The fact that a transfer was made subject to defeasance on a condition may, for the purpose of showing the transfer to be a mortgage, be proved (except as against a subsequent purchaser or encumbrancer for value and without notice), though the fact does not appear by the terms of the instrument [Civ. Code § 2925].

This form is a separate agreement of defeasance which should be recorded when the grant deed is recorded. An alternative method of creating and recording a defeasance is to insert a defeasance provision in the deed itself stating that the deed will be void on payment of the debt [see § 25A.216].

[1] Comment--Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a provision that may be inserted in a grant deed when the deed is executed solely for the purpose of securing payment of an indebtedness owing by the grantor to the grantee. When a grant of real property purports to be an absolute conveyance, but is intended to be defeasible on the performance of certain conditions (such as full payment of a debt), the grant is not defeated or affected as against any person other than the grantee or his or her heirs or devisees, or persons having actual notice, unless an instrument of defeasance, duly executed and acknowledged, is recorded in the office of the county recorder of the county where the property is located [Civ. Code § 2950]. One way to accomplish this is to insert a defeasance provision (this form) in the deed itself stating that the deed will be void on payment of the debt. An alternative method is to record a separate agreement of defeasance [see § 25A.215].

For discussion of deeds in general, see Ch. 27, Deeds and Recording .

§ 25A.220 Note Provision for Waiver of Personal Liability

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a provision that may be inserted in a promissory note if the lender agrees to waive personal liability of the debtor on the note. If the funds from a loan are used toward the purchase of the secured property, the trust deed may be a "purchase money" security for purposes of antideficiency legislation and thereby protect the debtor from personal liability on the debt [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 580b, 726; see also [b], below], whether or not a promissory note waives personal liability of the debtor. Conversely, even if the trust deed states that it is a "purchase price" or "purchase money" deed of trust, a court could determine that the funds were not in fact applied to the purchase price of the property [see Davis v. Myre (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 616, 39 Cal. Rptr. 682] .

[b] "Purchase Money" Security Defined

In the general sense, a purchase money security is a mortgage or trust deed given for the price of real property at the time of its conveyance [see, e.g., Civ. Code § 2898]. For purposes of the antideficiency statute, a "purchase money" security is a mortgage or deed of trust that is security for a debt incurred by the buyer for the purchase of real property when (1) the debt is owed to the seller by the buyer; or (2) the debt is owed to a third-party lender and the real property purchased is a dwelling for not more than four families that is occupied entirely or in part by the buyer [Code Civ. Proc. § 580b]. It is also an installment land sales contract under which the seller retains title until the buyer pays all or a large portion of the purchase price, since such a contract serves essentially the same function as a mortgage or trust deed [Venable v. Harmon (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 297, 300, 43 Cal. Rptr. 490 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 580b].

For a detailed discussion of the antideficiency statutes, see Ch. 25D, Foreclosure , and California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 122, Antideficiency Legislation (Matthew Bender).

Note Provision for Waiver of Personal Liability

The Borrower under this Note assumes no personal liability for the payment of this Note, for any other default under the Deed of Trust securing this Note, or for the payment of any deficiency established after judicial foreclosure or after a Trustee's sale under the Deed of Trust. The Holder of this Note, by accepting this Note and the Deed of Trust securing it, waives any personal liability of Borrower and agrees to look solely to the security of the Deed of Trust for payment of this Note. In the event of any default by Borrower under the terms of this Note or the Deed of Trust, the sole recourse of Holder for any and all such defaults shall be by judicial foreclosure or by the exercise of Trustee's power of sale.

§ 25A.221 Due-on-Sale Clause

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is an acceleration clause that may be included in a promissory note that is secured by a deed of trust (or mortgage) on real property. The clause permits the holder of the promissory note, at its option, to declare the entire unpaid balance of the note immediately due and payable should the maker of the note sell, transfer, convey, or further encumber the real property that is subject to the trust deed or mortgage securing the note. This type of clause is commonly referred to as a "due-on-sale" clause [see Tucker v. Lassen Sav. & Loan Assn (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 629, 631 n.1, 116 Cal. Rptr. 633, 526 P.2d 1169] , but is technically also a "due-on-encumbrance" clause since it permits acceleration on further encumbrancing of the property [see [e], below].

An acceleration clause applicable to residential property must be included both in the promissory note and in the trust deed or mortgage [Civ. Code § 2924.5; see [f][i], below]. With minor modifications, this form may be inserted in a trust deed or mortgage.

For discussion of statutory changes permitting a lender to accelerate a loan following a trustor's or mortgagor's failure to pay taxes, rents, assessments, or insurance premiums [see Civ. Code § 2924.7], see § 25A.210[1][g].

[b] Purpose

The intended purpose of a due-on-sale clause is to prevent the maker of the note from selling the real property securing the note to irresponsible parties who might either (1) destroy or commit waste on the property, or (2) be in such a precarious financial position as to make foreclosure practically inevitable [see La Sala v. American Sav. & Loan Assn (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 864, 879-880, 97 Cal. Rptr. 849, 489 P.2d 1113] . The purpose of making the entire unpaid balance of the note due and payable on further encumbrancing of the property is to prevent the maker of the note from becoming

"over-indebted" and unable to make payments on the note as they mature [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages (Matthew Bender)]. A due-on-sale clause also enables a lender in a period of rising interest rates to maintain its real estate loan portfolio at the current market rate of interest by requiring real estate loans to be refinanced at higher market rates of interest as the original borrowers sell or convey the mortgaged properties [see La Sala v. American Sav. & Loan Assn (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 864, 880 n.17, 97 Cal. Rptr. 849, 489 P.2d 1113] . For all of these reasons, a seller or lender may insist on inclusion of a due-on-sale and/or due-on-encumbrance clause in the security instruments to be executed by the buyer or borrower.

[c] Effect on Prepayment Penalty

If a lender elects to enforce a due-on-sale clause, it may not also impose a prepayment penalty [12 C.F.R. § 591.5(b)(2)]. For a discussion of the circumstances under which a prepayment penalty can and cannot be charged in connection with the enforcement of a due-on-sale clause, see § 25A.222[1][e].

[d] Validity of Due-on-Sale Clause under 1982 Garn Act

[i] Preemption of State Law

Under Section 341 of the Garn-St. Germain Depository Institutions Act of 1982 [12 U.S.C. § 1701j-3] ("Garn Act") and implementing regulations of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board ("FHLBB") [12 C.F.R. §§ 591.1-591.6], all lenders may enforce a due-on-sale clause in any contract involving a real property loan that was made on or after October 15, 1982, with certain exceptions [12 U.S.C. § 1701j-3; see 12 C.F.R. § 591.5; see also 12 C.F.R. § 591.2(b) (definition of "due-on-sale clause")]. Although these federal laws permanently preempt conflicting state laws [12 U.S.C. § 1701j-3(b)(1); 12 C.F.R. § 591.1(b)], certain loans made before the above date (i.e., during a "window period") were, for a limited time, subject to state prohibitions on the exercise of due-on-sale clauses.

Under the Garn Act, the exercise of the option under a due-on-sale clause is exclusively governed by the terms of the loan contract, and all rights and remedies of the lender and the borrower are fixed and governed by the contract [12 U.S.C. § 1701j-3(b)(2); 12 C.F.R. §§ 591.3(b), 591.4(b)]. The FHLBB's regulations exclusively govern the due-on-sale practices of all lenders without regard to limitations imposed by state law, including prohibitions against restraints on alienation, penalties and forfeitures, equitable restrictions, and state law dealing with equitable transfers [12 C.F.R. § 591.5(a)].

[ii] Prohibitions on Enforcement

The preemptive FHLBB regulations prohibit enforcement of a due-on-sale clause in any real property loan (including a window-period loan) secured by a lien on residential real property containing less than five dwelling units and occupied or to be occupied by the borrower under any of the following circumstances [12 U.S.C. § 1701j-3(d); 12 C.F.R. § 591.5]:

- The creation of an encumbrance that is junior to the lender's security (if no transfer of occupancy rights is involved).
- The creation of a purchase-money security interest for household appliances.
- A transfer by devise, descent, or operation of law on the death of a joint tenant or tenant by the entirety.
- The granting of a leasehold interest of three years or less not containing an option to purchase.
- A transfer in which the transferee occupies or will occupy the property and (1) the transfer is to a relative resulting from the death of the borrower; (2) the spouse or children become an owner of the property; or (3) the transfer results from a decree of dissolution of marriage, legal separation agreement, or an incidental property settlement agreement by which the spouse becomes an owner of the property.

- A transfer into an inter vivos trust in which the borrower is and remains the beneficiary and occupant, unless, as a condition precedent, the borrower refuses to provide the lender with reasonable means acceptable to the lender by which the lender will be assured of timely notice of any subsequent transfer of the beneficial interest or change in occupancy.

If one of the above exceptions applies, but a subsequent event disqualifies the transfer from the previously applicable exception, then the lender will no longer be prevented from enforcing a due-on-sale clause [12 C.F.R. § 591.5(b)(5)].

[iii] Waiver and Release

A lender waives its option to exercise a due-on-sale clause as to a specific transfer if, before the transfer, the lender and the existing borrower's prospective successor in interest agree in writing that (1) the successor in interest will be obligated under the terms of the loan; and (2) interest on sums secured by the lender's security interest will be payable at a rate the lender will request. Thereafter, the lender must release the existing borrower from all obligations under the loan instruments, and the lender is deemed to have made a new loan to the existing borrower's successor in interest [12 C.F.R. § 591.5(b)(4)]. These waiver and release rules apply to all loans secured by homes occupied by borrowers made by a federal association after July 31, 1976, and to all loans secured by homes occupied by borrowers made by other lenders after May 13, 1983 [12 C.F.R. § 591.5(b)(4)].

[e] Due-on-Encumbrance Clauses

A due-on-encumbrance clause differs from a due-on-sale clause in that it grants the creditor the option of accelerating the loan if the debtor encumbers the property without the creditor's consent. The Garn Act preempts state law with respect to the enforceability of due-on-encumbrance clauses since its definition of a due-on-sale clause is broad enough to encompass encumbrances [see Witkin, Summary of California Law, vol. 4, Security Transactions in Real Property, § 91 (10th ed. 2005)].

As mentioned above, the Garn Act prohibits acceleration on the creation of a junior encumbrance, but only when the loan is secured by a lien on residential real property containing less than five dwelling units and occupied or to be occupied by the borrower [12 U.S.C. § 1701j-3(d); 12 C.F.R. § 591.5; see [d][ii], above]. State law applies to the creation of a junior encumbrance when the loan is secured by commercial or industrial property or residential property containing five or more units. Although California statutes do not limit encumbrance-based accelerations of loans secured by these types of properties, the general rule imposed by the California courts for these properties is that a due-on-encumbrance clause can be enforced by a lender only if it is reasonably necessary to protect the lender's security [La Sala v. American Sav. & Loan Assn (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 864, 877-882, 97 Cal. Rptr. 849, 489 P.2d 1113] .

California statutes do regulate loans secured by single-family, owner-occupied dwellings or residential property containing four or fewer units, in a manner that does not appear to be inconsistent with the above Garn Act requirements [see [f]-[g], below].

[f] California Requirements

[i] Inclusion of Acceleration Clause in Both Trust Deed and Note

To be valid, an acceleration clause in a security transaction encumbering real property containing four or fewer residential units, or encumbering real property on which four or fewer residential units are to be constructed, must be set forth in full in both the deed of trust or mortgage encumbering the property and the promissory note or other document evidencing the secured obligation [Civ. Code § 2924.5]. Civ. Code § 2924.5 applies only to trust deeds and mortgages executed on or after July 1, 1972, and specifically to clauses that accelerate the secured obligation on the sale, conveyance, alienation, lease, succession, assignment, or other transfer of the property subject to the trust deed or mortgage [Civ. Code § 2924.5]. The purpose of Civ. Code § 2924.5 is to provide notice to the borrower of a due-on-sale clause.

In cases not covered by the statute, it is not essential to include the acceleration clause in both the promissory note and the security instrument [but see the discussion of recordation in the next paragraph]. A promissory note and the mortgage or trust deed securing it are to be construed together as one contract [First-Trust Joint S.L. Bk. of Chicago v. Meredith (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 214, 218, 53 P.2d 958 ; San Gabriel Val. Bk. v. Lake View etc. Co. (1906) 4 Cal. App. 630, 632, 89 P. 360] . Therefore, in cases not subject to the statute, an acceleration clause contained only in a mortgage or trust deed is sufficient to accelerate the unpaid balance due on the promissory note secured by the mortgage or trust deed [First-Trust Joint S.L. Bk. of Chicago v. Meredith (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 214, 218, 53 P.2d 958] . Similarly, in cases not covered by the statute, an acceleration clause contained only in a promissory note is sufficient to enable the mortgage or trust deed securing the note to be foreclosed at the time the holder of the note accelerates payment of the note under the acceleration clause [San Gabriel Val. Bk. v. Lake View etc. Co. (1906) 4 Cal. App. 630, 632, 89 P. 360] .

Notwithstanding the above decisions, many practitioners consider it good practice to include the acceleration clause in both the security instrument and the note because of the laws governing recordation and constructive notice. Specifically, inclusion of an acceleration clause in a promissory note but not in the security instrument presents problems because (1) a promissory note is not an instrument affecting the title to or possession of real property and therefore cannot be recorded [Gov. Code § 27280] and (2) there appears to be some question as to the extent reference to the note in the recorded trust deed or mortgage imparts constructive notice of the contents of the promissory note and especially any acceleration clauses that may be contained in the note. If, however, the acceleration clause is set forth in the trust deed or mortgage as well as in the promissory note, it may be recorded as part of the security instrument. Recording of the acceleration clause as part of the trust deed or mortgage will give constructive notice of it to all prospective purchasers or encumbrancers of the real property subject to the trust deed or mortgage [see Civ. Code § 2952; see also § 25A.11[6]].

[ii] Limitations on Acceleration

A mortgage or deed of trust on real property containing only a single-family, owner-occupied dwelling may not be declared in default, nor may the maturity date of the indebtedness secured by the mortgage or deed of trust be accelerated, solely because the owner has further encumbered all or any part of the real property with a junior mortgage or junior deed of trust [Civ. Code § 2949(a)]. For these purposes, a single-family, owner-occupied dwelling is a dwelling that will be owned and occupied by a signatory to the mortgage or trust deed encumbering the dwelling within 90 days of the execution of the security instrument [Civ. Code § 2949(b)]. The statute applies only to mortgages and deeds of trust executed after March 7, 1973, and cannot be waived [Stats. 1972, ch. 698, § 2].

Under a later-enacted statute, an obligee may not accelerate the maturity date of the principal and accrued interest on a loan secured by a mortgage or trust deed on residential real property (i.e., property containing four or fewer housing units) solely by reason of certain specified transfers in title to the real property [Civ. Code § 2924.6(a)]. These transfers include all of the following [Civ. Code § 2924.6(a)]:

- A transfer resulting from the death of an obligor to the obligor's spouse who is also an obligor;
- A transfer by an obligor when the spouse becomes a co-owner of the property;
- A transfer resulting from a decree of dissolution of the marriage or legal separation, or from a property settlement agreement incidental to such a decree that requires the obligor to continue to make the loan payments by which a spouse who is an obligor becomes the sole owner of the property;

- A transfer by an obligor or obligors into an inter vivos trust in which the obligor or obligors are beneficiaries; and

- Making the real property or any portion of the property subject to a junior encumbrance or lien.

The statute applies only to loans executed or refinanced on or after January 1, 1976 [Civ. Code § 2924.6(d)], and its provisions may not be waived [Civ. Code § 2924.6(b)].

Comparison of Civ. Code § 2949 and Civ. Code § 2924.6 reveals some ambiguity as to which statute governs loans made after January 1, 1976, on single-family residences. Civ. Code § 2949 requires the borrower to reside on the property within 90 days of the loan's execution, while Civ. Code § 2924.6 has no such requirement. In view of its later enactment and less restrictive language, Civ. Code § 2924.6 probably controls as to loans made on single-family residences after January 1, 1976.

If inconsistent with the Garn Act, the state statutes discussed above would be preempted by the Act. However, in view of their apparent compatibility with the provisions of the Garn Act [see [d] and [e], above], the statutes are probably not preempted.

[g] Summary of Prior California Law

Although California law regarding due-on-sale clauses has been superseded by federal law [see [d][i], above], the attorney will probably come across numerous references to prior state law when researching acceleration clauses. Consequently, the attorney may find the following summary of prior law useful.

In 1978, the California Supreme Court held that a due-on-sale clause contained in a promissory note or trust deed could not be enforced by an institutional lender on the occurrence of an outright sale unless the lender could demonstrate that enforcement was reasonably necessary to protect against impairment to its security or the risk of default [Wellenkamp v. Bank of America (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 943, 953-954, 148 Cal. Rptr. 379, 582 P.2d 970] . In 1982, the California Supreme Court held that the Wellenkamp rule against automatic enforcement of due-on-sale clauses applied to private lenders, not just institutional lenders, and to loans to purchase investment property, not just residential property. The Court held that the reasons for the Wellenkamp rule applied in these situations and that there was no basis for distinguishing Wellenkamp [Dawn Investment Co. v. Superior Court (1982) 30 Cal. 3d 695, 700-703, 180 Cal. Rptr. 332, 639 P.2d 974] . Using the same rationale, another court held that the Wellenkamp rule applied to an individual homeowner who sold his or her home and took back a promissory note and deed of trust [West v. Buffo (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 93, 96, 188 Cal. Rptr. 535] .

§ 25A.222 Prepayment Penalty Provision

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, consists of alternative versions of a provision commonly referred to as a "prepayment penalty clause." A lender should insert such a clause in a promissory note and trust deed (or mortgage) if a borrower is to be charged for payment of the loan before its original maturity date. Although the provisions of this form are designed to be inserted into a promissory note, they may be easily modified for use in a trust deed or mortgage.

In general, there is no right to prepay a loan unless prepayment is authorized by statute or by the parties to the promissory note [see Civ. Code § 1490; see also Williams v. Fassler (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 7, 10, 167 Cal. Rptr. 545] . Prepayment fees also may be established by statute or by the provisions of the promissory note. This comment examines the California statutes authorizing and regulating prepayments, and also considers federal restrictions and court-imposed limitations on prepayment penalties that are not regulated by statute. The California requirements have been incorporated into the first two alternative provisions set forth in this form. The remaining provisions may be used when the loan is not subject to these specific statutory requirements [see [c][iii], below].

One purpose of a prepayment penalty clause is to discourage refinancing of loans by borrowers when interest rates drop. Another purpose is to provide the lender with additional compensation to cover costs associated with reinvestment of funds generated from early payment of loan funds.

[b] Federal Statutes

Regulations of the Office of Thrift Supervision, which preempt state law and apply to loans by federal savings and loan associations, permit imposition of a prepayment penalty as provided in the loan contract [12 C.F.R. § 545.34(c)].

Under Section 341 of the Garn-St. Germain Depository Institutions Act of 1982 [12 U.S.C. § 1701j-3] (the "Garn Act") and its implementing regulations [12 C.F.R. §§ 591.1-591.6; see § 25A.221[1]], applicable to all lenders, a lender who declares by written notice that a loan is due pursuant to a due-on-sale clause or seeks payment in full as a result of invoking such a clause, cannot also impose a prepayment penalty or equivalent fee [12 C.F.R. § 591.5(b)(2)]. A lender also may not impose a prepayment penalty or equivalent fee when (1) the lender (or the party acting on the lender's behalf) fails to approve within 30 days the completed credit application of a "qualified transferee" of the secured property to assume the loan in accordance with the terms of the loan, and (2) thereafter the borrower transfers the secured property to that transferee and prepays the loan in full within 120 days after receipt by the lender of the completed credit application. A "qualified transferee" is a person who qualifies for the loan under the lender's applicable underwriting standards and who occupies or will occupy the secured property [12 C.F.R. § 591.5(b)(3)].

[i] Transactions Involving Single-Family, Owner-Occupied Dwelling and Mortgage Loan Broker (First Alternative)

For a loan that is secured by real property consisting of a single-family, owner-occupied dwelling and that is negotiated by a mortgage loan broker for compensation [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 10248.3, 10131(d), 10240(b)], a borrower has the right to prepay in whole or in part at any time the principal and accrued interest on the loan. However, the lender has a limited right to charge a prepayment penalty for any prepayment made within seven years of the date of execution of the mortgage or trust deed. During that period, an amount not exceeding 20 percent of the unpaid balance may be prepaid in any 12-month period without penalty, but a prepayment charge may be imposed on any amount exceeding this 20-percent/12-month limitation. The charge may not exceed an amount equal to the payment of six months' advance interest on the amount subject to the prepayment penalty [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242.6(a); see 1st alternative P in [2], below]. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the prepayment penalty described above may not be charged to a borrower if the dwelling securing the loan cannot be occupied due to damage caused by a natural disaster; the Governor has declared a state of emergency in connection with the disaster [see Gov. Code §§ 8550-8668]; and the prepayment is causally related to the disaster [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242.6(b)].

For these purposes, "owner-occupied dwelling" means a dwelling that will be owned and occupied by a signatory to the mortgage or trust deed secured by the dwelling within 90 days of the execution of the mortgage or trust deed [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242.6(c)].

[ii] Owner-Occupied Residential Property Containing Four or Fewer Units (Second Alternative)

Except as provided in Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242.6 [see [i], above], prepayment of the principal and accrued interest on a loan secured by a mortgage or trust deed on owner-occupied residential real property containing four or fewer units may be made in whole or in part at any time, but only prepayments made within five years of the date of execution of the mortgage or trust deed are potentially subject to a penalty. Within that five-year period, a prepayment charge may be imposed on any amount prepaid in any 12-month period that exceeds 20 percent of the original principal amount of the loan. This charge must not exceed an amount equal to the payment of six months' advance interest on the amount subject to the penalty. An amount not exceeding 20 percent of the original principal amount may be prepaid in any 12-month period without penalty [Civ. Code § 2954.9(b); see 2nd alternative P in [2], below].

Notwithstanding the above, a prepayment penalty may not be charged to a borrower if (1) the residential structure securing the loan cannot be occupied due to damage caused by a natural disaster; (2) the Governor has declared a state of emergency in connection with the disaster [see Gov. Code §§ 8550-8668]; and (3) the prepayment is causally related to the disaster [Civ. Code § 2954.9(c)].

[iii] Other Residential Property of Four or Fewer Units (Third Through Fifth Alternatives)

Except as otherwise provided by statute [see [i] and [ii], above], when the original obligation is a loan for residential property of four or fewer units, the borrower under any note or evidence of indebtedness secured by a trust deed, mortgage, or any other lien on real property may repay at any time the whole or any part of the balance due, together with accrued interest [Civ. Code § 2954.9(a)(1)]. However, a borrower may obligate himself or herself, by a written agreement, to pay a prepayment charge [Civ. Code § 2954.9(a)(2)]; see 3rd to 5th alternative PP of form in [2], below]. In addition, the right to prepay does not apply during any calendar year to a bona fide loan secured by a trust deed or mortgage given back during that calendar year to the seller by the purchaser on account of the purchase price if the seller does not take back four or more trust deeds or mortgages during that same calendar year [Civ. Code § 2954.9(a)(3)]. Stated differently, the seller's protection from prepayment during the year of the loan does not apply if the seller takes back four or more trust deeds or mortgages during the calendar year. The statute specifically provides that it must not be construed to prohibit a borrower from obligating himself or herself to pay a prepayment charge by an agreement in writing with the lender [Civ. Code § 2954.9(a)(3)]. Notwithstanding the above, the prepayment penalty may not be charged to a borrower if (1) the residential structure securing the loan cannot be occupied due to damage caused by a natural disaster; (2) the Governor has declared a state of emergency in connection with the disaster [see Gov. Code §§ 8550-8668]; and (3) the prepayment is causally related to the disaster [Civ. Code § 2954.9(c)].

When the borrower agrees in writing to pay a prepayment charge pursuant to the above requirements, there are no additional statutory requirements governing the prepayment obligation. However, the parties should confirm that any negotiated arrangement does not violate court-imposed limitations [see [d], below]. The third, fourth, and fifth alternative provisions in this form offer alternative prepayment arrangements that comply with the judicial restrictions.

[iv] Variable Interest and Adjustable-Rate Loans

If a lender other than a supervised financial organization [see Civ. Code § 1916.5(d)(1) (definition); see also § 25A.226[1][b]] makes a variable interest rate loan that secures the purchase or construction of four or fewer residential units, the security instrument and note evidencing the loan must grant the borrower the right to prepay the loan in whole or in part without a prepayment charge within 90 days after the borrower receives notice of an increase in the interest rates [see Civ. Code § 1916.5(a)(5), (b)(1)]. Borrowers under adjustable-payment, adjustable-rate loans [see Civ. Code § 1916.7] secured by borrower-occupied residential property containing four or fewer units may prepay the loan in whole or in part without a prepayment charge at any time [Civ. Code § 1916.7(b)(8)].

The variable interest rate loans and adjustable-payment, adjustable-rate loans referred to above are created by state statute and must be distinguished from the federal adjustable rate mortgages (ARMs). State regulation of non-fixed interest rate loans is more restrictive than comparable federal legislation. Because the ARMs allow higher interest rate changes per year and are generally more favorable to a lender, the above state-regulated loans have been rendered largely superfluous [see California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 101, Conventional Financing Loans (Matthew Bender)]. For discussion of other requirements applicable to variable interest rate loans and adjustable-payment, adjustable-rate loans, see § 25A.226[1].

[v] Cal-Vet Loans

Real estate loans made under the California Veterans' Farm and Home Purchase Act (Cal-Vet loans) may be prepaid without penalty [see Mil. & Vet. Code §§ 987, 987.71]. For a description of Cal-Vet Loans, see "--Cal-Vet Loans" in the Legal Background to Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans .

[vi] Real Property Sales Contracts

A real property sales contract [see Civ. Code § 2985] for land that has been subdivided into a residential lot or lots that contain a dwelling for not more than four families may be prepaid in whole or in part at any time without penalty, except that the contract may prohibit prepayment during the first 12-month period after the sale. Any other waiver of the statutory right by the buyer is void [Civ. Code § 2985.6]. For illustrative real property sales contracts, see §§ 25A.230[2] and 25A.234[2].

[vii] Interaction With Due-on-Sale Clauses

For discussion of statutory limitations on the imposition of a prepayment fee following the exercise of an acceleration clause [see Civ. Code § 2954.10], see [e], below.

[d] Judicial Enforcement of Prepayment Penalties

In the absence of applicable statutory restrictions, borrowers and lenders have a relatively free hand in setting the amount of any prepayment penalty. Although dicta in several cases suggest that unconscionable prepayment penalties will not be upheld [see Hellbaum v. Lytton Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 456, 459, 79 Cal. Rptr. 9 (disapproved on other grounds in Wellenkamp v. Bank of America (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 943, 953, 148 Cal. Rptr. 379, 582 P.2d 970)], parties clearly have the right to establish penalties that are reasonable at the time of formation. For example, an agreement between private parties specifying a 50 percent prepayment penalty was upheld when the penalty was reasonably related to the obligee's anticipated risk of incurring increased tax liability on prepayment [Williams v. Fassler (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 7, 13, 167 Cal. Rptr. 545] .

The imposition of prepayment penalties in connection with the refinancing of promissory notes is not an unreasonable restraint on alienation because it is reasonably related to certain legitimate interests of lenders. Specifically, lenders need to cover their costs due to potential lag time and administrative processing before making new loans [Sacramento Sav. & Loan Assn v. Superior Court (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 142, 146-147, 186 Cal. Rptr. 823] . The California court that reached these conclusions was examining a prepayment penalty that was assessed against commercial borrowers. That penalty was computed using the statutory formula applicable to the prepayment of loans on owner-occupied residential dwellings [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242.6; see also [c][i], [ii], above]. Because the Legislature considered that prepayment formula reasonable when applied to the purchaser of a home, the court concluded that it was also reasonable when applied to commercial borrowers [Sacramento Sav. & Loan Assn. v. Superior Court (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 142, 146-147, 186 Cal. Rptr. 823] .

[e] Effect of Exercise of Due-on-Sale Clauses

The exercise of due-on-sale clauses contained in loans originated on or after October 15, 1982, is governed by Section 341 of the Garn-St. Germain Depository Institutions Act of 1982 [12 U.S.C. § 1701j-3] and its implementing regulations [12 C.F.R. §§ 591.1-591.6; see § 25A.221[1]]. As discussed in [b], above, a lender may not impose a prepayment penalty when it elects to exercise a due-on-sale clause in a loan [12 C.F.R. § 591.5(b)(2)].

Under certain circumstances, California law prohibits an obligee who exercises a contractual right to accelerate the maturity date of the principal and accrued interest on any loan secured by a mortgage or trust deed on real property from claiming, exacting, or collecting any charge, fee, or penalty for any prepayment resulting from that acceleration [Civ. Code § 2954.10]. This statutory prohibition does not apply to loans (other than those secured by residential real property containing four or fewer units) in which the obligor has (1) expressly waived, in writing, the right to repay in whole or in part without penalty or (2) expressly agreed in writing to pay a prepayment penalty on acceleration. Any such waiver or agreement must be separately signed or initialed by the obligor, and its enforcement must be "supported by evidence of a course of conduct by the obligee of individual weight to the consideration in that transaction for the waiver or agreement" [Civ. Code § 2954.10]. The California prohibition also does not apply in cases governed by preemptive federal regulations [see [b], above].

[f] VA and FHA Loans

Federal regulations for prepayment penalties apply to Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) loans [see 38 C.F.R. §

36.4310] and Federal Housing Administration (FHA) loans [see 24 C.F.R. § 207.253]. For detailed coverage of these loans, see Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans .

Prepayment Penalty Provision

[First Alternative (see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242.6):]

Borrower reserves the right to make additional payments on the principal and accrued interest of this indebtedness at any time prior to maturity; provided, however, that if these additional payments exceed, during any 12-month period within seven years of the date of execution of the deed of trust securing this Note, 20 percent of the unpaid balance of this Note, Borrower must first pay to the Holder of this Note a sum equal to six months' advance interest on the excess amount prepaid.

[Second Alternative (see Civ. Code § 2954.9(b)):]

Borrower reserves the right to make additional payments on the principal and accrued interest of this indebtedness at any time prior to maturity; provided, however, that if these additional payments exceed, during any 12-month period within five years of the date of execution of the deed of trust securing this Note, 20 percent of the original principal amount of this Note, Borrower must first pay to the Holder of this Note a sum equal to six months' advance interest on the amount prepaid in excess of 20 percent of the original principal amount.

Borrower shall have the right to make additional payments on the principal and accrued interest of this indebtedness at any time prior to maturity; provided, however, that if these additional payments during [specify period, e.g., any 12-month period] should aggregate more than _____ percent of the unpaid balance, Borrower must first pay to the Holder of this Note a sum equal to _____ percent of the amount of all prepayments in excess of this _____ percent.

[Fourth Alternative (charging unearned interest):]

Borrower may pay this Note in full at any time by paying principal, accrued interest, plus unearned interest equal to _____ days' interest on this Note as consideration for the right to make the prepayment.

[Fifth Alternative (imposing charge and providing for decreasing fee):]

Borrower may prepay this Note in whole or in part after _____ years from the date of this Note, provided Borrower pays to the Holder of this Note a prepayment fee equal to _____ percent of the amount of the principal prepaid. [Add if desired: For each year after _____ years from the date of this Note, the amount of the fee for prepayment shall decrease by _____ percent, except the fee shall never be less than _____ percent.]

§ 25A.223 Late Charge Provision

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a provision for a late charge that may be included in a promissory note. Notes used in real estate transactions commonly contain a clause providing for the imposition of a late charge when a payment is not made when due or is not made within a specified number of days of its due date.

Late charges are designed to serve a dual purpose [see Garrett v. Coast & Southern Fed. Sav. & Loan Assn. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 731, 739-740, 108 Cal. Rptr. 845, 511 P.2d 1197]:

- To compensate the lender for its administrative expenses and the cost of the money wrongfully withheld.

- To encourage the borrower to make timely future payments.

[b] Late Charges as Liquidated Damages

Since a late charge provision imposes an additional charge on the borrower on default, it is subject to the requirements of Civ. Code § 1671 [Garrett v. Coast & Southern Fed. Sav. & Loan Assn. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 731, 738, 108 Cal. Rptr. 845, 511 P.2d 1197]. Under § 1671, a liquidated damages provision in a contract is valid unless the party seeking to invalidate the provision establishes that the provision was unreasonable under the circumstances existing at the time the contract was made [Civ. Code § 1671(b); for a more detailed discussion of liquidated damage provisions in general, see Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contract Provisions, § 75.251].

[c] State Statutory Restrictions

[i] Amount of Late Charge

A late charge imposed under a loan secured by a mortgage or trust deed on property containing only a single-family, owner-occupied dwelling may not exceed the greater of $5 or the equivalent of 6 percent of the installment due that is applicable to payment of principal and interest on the loan [Civ. Code § 2954.4(a)]. A payment may not be treated as a "late payment" until at least 10 days following the due date of the installment, and a late charge may not be imposed more than once for the late payment of the same installment [Civ. Code § 2954.4(a)]. These restrictions on the amounts of late charges do not apply to loans made by credit unions, industrial loan companies, consumer finance lenders, or commercial finance lenders, or to loans made or negotiated by a real estate broker subject to specific provisions of the Business and Professions Code [Civ. Code § 2954.4(e)].

[ii] Required Notice to Borrower

Before a lender may impose the first late charge on a delinquent payment of a loan secured by real property, the borrower must either (1) be notified in writing and given at least 10 days from the mailing of the notice in which to cure the delinquency or (2) be informed, by a billing or notice sent for each payment due on the loan, of the date after which such a charge will be assessed [Civ. Code § 2954.5(a)]. The notice sent to the borrower must contain the amount of the late charge or the method by which it is calculated [Civ. Code § 2954.5(a)]. If a subsequent payment becomes delinquent, the borrower must be notified in writing that the charge will be imposed if payment is not received, or the borrower must be notified at least semiannually of the total amount of late charges imposed during the period covered by the notice [Civ. Code § 2954.5(b)].

The notice of the late charge must be sent to the address specified by the borrower, or, if no address is specified, to the borrower's address as shown in the lender's records [Civ. Code § 2954.5(c)]. When there are multiple borrowers, notice mailed to one of them is deemed to comply with the statutory requirements [Civ. Code § 2954.5(d)]. Failure of the lender to give the required notice does not excuse or defer the borrower from complying with obligations under the loan, other than the obligation to pay a late payment charge [Civ. Code § 2954.5(e)].

[d] Loans by Federal Savings Associations

The state statutory restrictions discussed above do not apply to loans made by federal savings and loan associations, since federal law is preemptive in this area. For loans by a federal savings and loan association on the security of a home to be occupied by the borrower, no late charge may be collected unless the monthly billing, coupon, or notice regarding the payments due discloses the date after which the charge may be assessed. A late charge cannot be assessed for any payment received within 15 days of the due date of the payment [12 C.F.R. § 560.33].

[2] FORM

Late Charge Provision

Late Charge Provision

Borrower agrees to pay a late charge to the Holder of this Note for any amount of principal or interest due under this Note and not received by Holder on or before the [number, e.g., 15th] day of each month. This date is _____ calendar days after the date the installment is due. The amount of the late charge is $[or _____ percent of the overdue amount]. This late charge is a reasonable sum that takes into consideration all of the circumstances existing on the date of this Note and is a fair and reasonable estimate of the costs and expenses that will be incurred by Holder due to Borrower's failure to make timely payments. The parties to this Note agree that it would be impracticable or extremely difficult to fix the actual damages resulting to Holder from Borrower's failure to make timely payments.

§ 25A.224 Provision for Future Advances

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a provision that may be included in a trust deed to specify the obligations (including future advances) that are to be secured by the trust deed. Specifically, it recites that, in addition to the principal obligation being created contemporaneously with the borrower's execution of the trust deed, the deed of trust also secures additional amounts that may be advanced to the borrower in the future. The portion of the provision referring to the advance of additional future amounts is commonly referred to as a "future advance" clause. Although this type of provision may be referred to as a "dragnet" clause, the classic dragnet clause differs from this form in that it covers not only present and future obligations between the borrower and lender, but also past, preexisting obligations [see [b], below].

With minor modifications, the following provision may be inserted into a mortgage rather than a trust deed.

[b] Future Advance Clauses

[i] Validity

A future advance clause secures other debts owed by the trustor to the beneficiary arising after the execution of the trust deed [see Wong v. Beneficial Sav. & Loan Asso. (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 286, 292, 128 Cal. Rptr. 338] . These clauses have long been held valid in California [see Civ. Code § 2884; Union Bank v. Wendland (1976) 54 Cal. App. 3d 393, 398, 126 Cal. Rptr. 549] . To be valid, the clause must state that it secures future advances, but need not specify the amount or number of future advances [Imhoff v. Title Ins. & Trust Co. (1952) 113 Cal. App. 2d 139, 144, 247 P.2d 851 ; Oaks v. Weingartner (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 598, 601-602, 234 P.2d 194] . The most common form of future advance clause provides, as does this form, that it only secures later loans that specifically refer to the deed of trust.

The clause will be valid even if (1) there was no specified loan made at the time the trust deed was executed [see Moss v. Odell (1901) 134 Cal. 464, 466, 66 P. 581] , or (2) the future advances are to be made only at the beneficiary's discretion [Langerman v. Puritan Dining Room Co. (1913) 21 Cal. App. 637, 647, 132 P. 617] . However, if the clause specifies a limitation, a future advance that does not comply with the express limitation is not secured [see Keese v. Beardsley (1923) 190 Cal. 465, 470, 213 P. 500] .

[ii] Priority

A subsequent loan covered by a future advance clause has the same priority as the trust deed itself if the subsequent loan was obligatory rather than optional on the part of the beneficiary. However, if the subsequent loan was not obligatory, it is subordinate to an intervening junior trust deed or other interest, if at the time the beneficiary made the subsequent loan, he or she had been given actual notice of the existence of the junior trust deed [Pike v. Tuttle (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 746, 751, 96 Cal. Rptr. 403] .

Advances that are not obligatory but are made for the actual improvement of the property have priority over mechanics' liens that attached before the advances were made [Civ. Code § 3136]. This priority for nonobligatory future advances that improve the property has also been extended by case law to the situation in which the junior lienor who would have priority is the holder of a second deed of trust rather than the beneficiary of a mechanics' lien [Turner v. Lytton Sav. & Loan Asso. (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 457, 459, 51 Cal. Rptr. 552 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1188.1, which had identical language to Civ. Code § 3136)].

[c] Dragnet Clauses

A dragnet clause essentially makes the trust deed security for all other debts owed by the trustor to the beneficiary, regardless of when they arose or arise [see Wong v. Beneficial Sav. & Loan Asso. (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 286, 292, 128 Cal. Rptr. 338] . Thus, it secures preexisting, present, and future obligations between the borrower and lender. If the borrower has several loans with the same lender, each containing a dragnet clause, the effect is to make each deed of trust security for all of the loans and conversely to secure each loan with all of the trust deeds. In addition, any unsecured loans become secured by each trust deed containing a dragnet clause [Wong v. Beneficial Sav. & Loan Asso. (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 286, 292, 128 Cal. Rptr. 338] .

When presented with the question of which multiple obligations of a debtor are secured by a dragnet clause, the courts normally attempt to uphold the intentions of the parties rather than enforce the literal wording of the provision, and place on the proponent the burden of showing that both parties intended an unspecified loan to be included by the dragnet clause [see Wong v. Beneficial Sav. & Loan Asso. (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 286, 294, 128 Cal. Rptr. 338] . In the absence of expressed intent, the courts commonly attempt to determine (1) whether the unspecified loan bears a relationship to the principal or specified loan; and (2) whether the unspecified loan was made in reliance on the security [Wong v. Beneficial Sav. & Loan Asso. (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 286, 295-296, 128 Cal. Rptr. 338] . Under the first test, if the loans are similar in nature or have some close connection (e.g., two home improvement loans), the requisite intent may be inferred to exist [Wong v. Beneficial Sav. & Loan Asso. (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 286, 295-296, 128 Cal. Rptr. 338 ; Union Bank v. Wendland (1976) 54 Cal. App. 3d 393, 404, 126 Cal. Rptr. 549] . Under the second test, if the unspecified loan is expressly secured by a different security, there is an inference that the parties did not intend that the unspecified loan be secured by the security provided for the specified loan [Wong v. Beneficial Sav. & Loan Asso. (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 286, 296, 128 Cal. Rptr. 338 ; Union Bank v. Wendland (1976) 54 Cal. App. 3d 393, 404-405, 126 Cal. Rptr. 549] .

Because it is easy to include specific existing obligations in the dragnet clause if the parties so intend, failure to do so constitutes strong grounds for inferring that no such intent existed, or that if it did, it was a secret intent harbored by the creditor and not shared with the debtor [see Wong v. Beneficial Sav. & Loan Asso. (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 286, 293-294, 128 Cal. Rptr. 338 ; Gates v. Crocker-Anglo Nat. Bk. (1968) 257 Cal. App. 2d 857, 858, 860-861, 65 Cal. Rptr. 536 ; see also California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 111, Deeds of Trust and Mortgages (Matthew Bender)].

§ 25A.225 Statutory Statement for Balloon Payment Note [Civ. Code § 2966]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a notice that must be included in a balloon payment promissory note when the note has a repayment term longer than one year and is given to a seller of a residential dwelling for not more than four families as part of a transaction involving an "arranger of credit" [see Civ. Code §§ 2956, 2966(a), (d); see also [b], below]. Before the due date of any balloon payment, the holder of the note must also give a notice to the borrower containing information on the balloon payment [Civ. Code § 2966(a); see § 25A.240].

Failure to include this notice in a balloon payment promissory note does not invalidate the note [Civ. Code § 2966(d)].

[b] Statutory Definitions

An "arranger of credit" is a person, other than a party to the credit transaction, who is involved in developing or negotiating credit terms, participates in the completion of the credit documents, and directly or indirectly receives compensation (1) for arrangement of the credit, or (2) from any transaction or transfer of the real property that is facilitated by the extension of credit [Civ. Code § 2957(a)(1)]. The term does not include either an attorney representing one of the parties to the credit transaction [Civ. Code § 2957(a)(1)] or an escrow holder in the transaction [Civ. Code § 2957(a)(3)]. However, "arranger of credit" does include a party to the transaction who is either a licensed attorney or a real estate licensee, if neither party is represented by a licensed broker [see Civ. Code § 2957(a)(2), (4)].

In most situations, the only persons who will meet the definition of "arranger of credit" are the real estate licensees involved in the negotiations, since they will participate in the negotiations and receive compensation in the form of their commission. As a general rule, the requirements of Civ. Code § 2966 therefore apply when a real estate licensee is involved in the sales transaction and the seller participates in the financing by taking a balloon payment note [see

California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 110, Notes (Matthew Bender)].

A "balloon payment note" is a loan that provides for a final payment that, as originally scheduled, is more than twice the amount of any of the immediately preceding six regularly scheduled payments or that contains a call provision [Civ. Code §§ 2924i(d)(1), 2957(b)]. A "call provision" is a loan contract term that provides the holder of the loan with the right to call the loan due and payable either after a specified period has elapsed following closing or after a specified date [Civ. Code §§ 2924i(d)(2), 2957(c)]. However, if the call provision is not exercised by the holder of the loan, the existence of the unexercised call provision will not cause the loan to be deemed a balloon payment loan [Civ. Code §§ 2924i(d)(1), 2957(b)].

§ 25A.226 Variable Interest Rate Provisions

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, consists of variable interest rate provisions that may be inserted in a note secured by a trust deed or mortgage on real property. Civ. Code § 1916.5 sets forth specific requirements for variable interest rate provisions contained in a mortgage contract, deed of trust, real estate sales contract, or any note or negotiable instrument issued in connection with any of the foregoing, when (1) the lender is not a supervised financial organization [see Civ. Code § 1916.5(d)(1) ("supervised financial organization" defined); see also [b], below]; and (2) the purpose of the document containing the variable interest rate provision is to finance the purchase or construction of real property containing four or fewer residential units or on which four or fewer residential units are to be constructed [see Civ. Code § 1916.5(a), (b)(1)]. The specific statutory requirements for the variable interest rate provisions include restrictions on when and by how much the interest may change and grant the borrower the right to prepay the loan in whole or in part within 90 days of notification of any increase in the rate of interest [see Civ. Code § 1916.5(a)]. These requirements are incorporated into this form.

Variable interest rate provisions subject to Civ. Code § 1916.5 must be included in both the evidence of debt (e.g., the note) and the security document (e.g., the trust deed) in order to be valid [Civ. Code § 1916.5(a)]. Both the evidence of debt and the security document must also contain an appropriate notice to the borrower [Civ. Code § 1916.5(a)(6); see § 25A.227].

[b] Exemptions

As mentioned in [a], above, Civ. Code § 1916.5 does not apply to a lender that is a supervised financial organization [Civ. Code § 1916.5(a)]. For these purposes, "supervised financial organization" means a state-regulated or federally regulated bank, savings association, savings bank, or credit union; a state-regulated industrial loan company, personal property broker, consumer finance lender, or holding company, affiliate, or subsidiary of the foregoing; or an institution of the Farm Credit System [Civ. Code § 1916.5(d)(1); see 12 U.S.C. § 2002(a) (composition of the Farm Credit System)].

The following are also exempt from the provisions of Civ. Code § 1916.5:

- Unamortized construction loans with an original term of two years or less [Civ. Code § 1916.5(b)(2)].

- Loans made for the purchase or construction of improvements to existing residential dwellings [Civ. Code § 1916.5(b)(2)].

- Nonprofit public corporations [Civ. Code § 1916.5(f)].

- A loan with an interest rate that is less than the then current market rate for a similar loan, when (1) the loan is made in order to accommodate the borrower because of a special relationship (such as an employment or business relationship) between the borrower and the lender or the borrower and a customer of the lender, and (2) the rate of interest will increase only on the termination of the special relationship [Civ. Code § 1916.5(g)].

[c] Further Regulations

Certain classes of lenders may be subject to further regulations concerning variable interest rate provisions [see, e.g., 10 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 107.500-107.505 for regulations applicable to California savings and loan associations]. The Commissioner of Financial Institutions and the Insurance Commissioner are authorized by statute to adopt regulations setting forth the prescribed standards on which variations in the interest rate will be based [see Civ. Code § 1916.5(c) (version operative July 1, 1997; before that date, earlier version of statute granted this authority to Savings and Loan Commissioner instead of Commissioner of Financial Institutions)].

Variable Interest Rate Provisions

Variable Interest Rate Provisions

It is agreed that the interest rate provided in this Note is variable and that after six months from the date of this Note the Holder of the Note may decrease or increase, from time to time, the interest rate specified in this Note by _____[specify amount of change and standard to which the change in interest rate is keyed, e.g., 1/10 of 1 percent per annum for each 1/10 of 1 percent per annum cumulative decrease or increase in the weighted average cost of savings, borrowings, and Federal Home Loan Bank advances to California members of the Federal Home Loan Bank of San Francisco as computed from statistics tabulated by the Federal Home Loan Bank of San Francisco as of the last day of the semiannual calendar period immediately preceding the date of this Note. If Federal Home Loan Bank statistics are not available for any semiannual calendar period, the weighted average cost of the Holder's savings, borrowings, and Federal Home Loan Bank advances shall be substituted for Federal Home Loan Bank statistics in the computation]. Any decrease or increase shall go into effect as of the payment date during the second calendar month following availability of the statistics. If a change in interest rate becomes effective, the Holder may decrease or increase the monthly payment payable under this Note so that the loan evidenced by this Note will be paid in full in regular monthly installments by the end of the amortization period in effect at the time of the change; provided, however, that the borrower may extend the term of the loan for any additional period that may be required to amortize the loan without increasing the existing monthly payment, up to a maximum loan term of 40 years. Any increase or decrease in the interest rate shall not exceed 1/4 of 1 percent per annum in any semiannual period, nor shall any such increase or decrease be less than 1/10 of 1 percent per annum except for increases or decreases not previously invoked in full by reason of the 1/4 of 1 percent per annum maximum limitation. Any change in the interest rate shall not result in a rate more than 2.5 percentage points greater than the rate for the first loan payment due after the closing of the loan evidenced by this Note. There shall be only one change in the interest rate in any one semiannual period, and at least six months shall elapse between each such change. The fact that the Holder may not have invoked a permissible increase, in whole or in part, shall not be deemed a waiver of the Holder's right to invoke an increase at any time thereafter within the limits provided in this Note.

Notwithstanding anything to the contrary set forth in this Note, the balance owing under this Note may be paid in full without prepayment charge during the 90-day period following notice of any increase in interest rate payable under this Note. Any notice described in this Note shall be deemed given to Borrower when it is deposited in the United States mail, postage prepaid, addressed to the owner of the property described in the Deed of Trust [or other security document] securing this Note as the owner's name and address appear on Holder's records at the time the notice is given.

§ 25A.227 Notice to Borrower of Provision for Variable Interest Rate [Civ. Code § 1916.5]

[1] Comment--Use of Form

The form in [2], below, consists of a prescribed statement that must be attached to security documents and evidences of debt that (1) are used by lenders other than supervised financial organizations [see Civ. Code § 1916.5(a), (d)(1)], (2) contain variable interest provisions, and (3) involve the financing of residential real property of four or fewer units [Civ. Code § 1916.5(a)(6), (b)]. For these purposes, "security document" means a mortgage contract, deed of trust, or real estate sales contract [Civ. Code § 1916.5(d)(4)]. "Evidence of debt" means a note or negotiable instrument [Civ. Code § 1916.5(d)(5)]. For further discussion of the applicability of this disclosure requirement and related restrictions on variable interest rate loans, see § 25A.226[1].

The statement must be printed or written in a size equal to at least 10-point bold type [Civ. Code § 1916.5(a)(6)]. If the following statement and the other specific statutory provisions regarding the frequency and amount of the change in interest rate [Civ. Code § 1916.5(a); see § 25A.226] are not included in the security document and evidence of debt, any increase in interest provided for in the variable interest clause is not valid [Civ. Code § 1916.5(a)]. However, any decrease will apparently be valid and enforceable by the borrower.

§ 25A.228 Impound Provision

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is an impound provision for use in a deed of trust (or mortgage). It provides the lender with a reserve account from which to make required payments for taxes and insurance. In a typical impound situation, the lender will periodically make an estimate of the funds that will be required for these purposes during a given year and adjust the borrower's monthly payment on the trust deed by an amount necessary to provide these funds.

Although this form assumes that the security instrument is a trust deed, it may be easily modified for insertion in a mortgage.

[b] Capacity of Lender

A question has arisen in a number of cases as to whether a lender that requires borrowers to maintain impound accounts acts in the capacity of a trustee and must segregate the impound funds and pay interest on them or account for profits made from the investment of the impound funds. The issue of whether or not the lender holds the impound funds as a trustee depends on the intentions of the parties [see Marsh v. Home Fed. Sav. & Loan Assn. (1977) 66 Cal. App. 3d 674, 680, 136 Cal. Rptr. 180] . Under the typical impound provision in a deed of trust, such as the one set forth in this form, the courts will normally find that a trust relationship rather than a debtor-creditor relationship exists with respect to the impound funds, unless there is some evidence of a contrary intention of the parties [see Marsh v. Home Fed. Sav. & Loan Assn. (1977) 66 Cal. App. 3d 674, 682, 136 Cal. Rptr. 180] . Further, if the impound provision empowers the lender-trustee to commingle the funds with its general funds and if it provides that no interest will be paid on the funds, then these provisions will be upheld by the courts (when the account is of the type not subject to interest payment requirements) [see [c][ii], below; see also Marsh v. Home Fed. Sav. & L. Assn. (1977) 66 Cal. App. 3d 674, 684-687, 136 Cal. Rptr. 180] .

[c] Statutory Requirements

[i] When Impound May Be Required

Several statutes govern the use of impound accounts and the reporting of impound balances held by beneficiaries under trust deeds. Civ. Code § 2954 prohibits lenders and sellers from requiring impound, trust, or other types of accounts for the payment of taxes on the property, insurance premiums, or other purposes relating to the property as a condition of a real property sales contract or a loan secured by a trust deed or mortgage on real property containing only a single-family, owner-occupied dwelling. Notwithstanding this general prohibition, impound accounts are permitted under Civ. Code § 2954 under the following circumstances [Civ. Code § 2954(a)]:

- An impound account is required by a state or federal regulatory authority.
- A loan is made, guaranteed, or insured by a state or federal governmental lending or insuring agency.
- The purchaser or borrower has failed to pay two consecutive tax installments on the property before the delinquency date for such payments.
- The original principal amount of the loan is 90 percent or more of the sale price, if the property involved is being sold, or of the appraised value of the property securing the loan.
- The combined principal amount of all loans secured by the real property exceeds 80 percent of the appraised value of the property securing the loans.
- A loan is made in compliance with the requirements for higher-priced mortgage loans established in Regulation Z [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.35 (prohibited acts or practices in connection with higher-priced mortgage loans)], whether or not the loan is a higher-priced mortgage loan.
- A loan is refinanced or modified in connection with a lender's home-ownership preservation program or a lender's participation in such a program sponsored by a federal, state, or local government authority or a nonprofit organization.

The parties may establish an impound account on mutually agreeable terms if, prior to the execution of the loan or sales agreement, the seller or lender furnishes to the purchaser or borrower a written statement (set forth in the loan application or in a separate document) that states (1) that the establishment of the account is not required as a condition to the execution of the loan or sales agreement, and (2) whether or not interest will be paid on the funds in the account [Civ. Code § 2954(a)(1)].

[ii] Required Interest Payments on Impounded Funds

For loans secured by real property containing only a one-to-four family residence located in California, a lender who receives money in advance for payment of taxes and assessments on the property, for insurance, or for other purposes relating to the property, must pay interest to the borrower on the amount so held [Civ. Code § 2954.8]. The interest on this amount must be at the rate of at least 2 percent simple interest per annum and must be credited to the borrower's account annually or on termination of the account, whichever is earlier [Civ. Code § 2954.8(a)]. Any fee charged by the lender in connection with the maintenance or disbursement of money received in connection with the impound account may not reduce the interest rate obligation to less than 2 percent [Civ. Code § 2954.8(b)]. The obligation to pay interest on impound funds does not apply to moneys that are required by a state or federal regulatory authority to be placed by a lender other than a bank in a non-interest-bearing demand trust fund account of a bank [Civ. Code § 2954.8(d)(2)].

[iii] Restrictions on Amount and Use of Funds

Civ. Code § 2954.1 prohibits a lender (or person who purchases obligations secured by real property) who maintains an impound account from requiring the borrower to deposit in the account in any month an amount in excess of that which would be permitted in connection with a federally-related mortgage loan pursuant to Section 10 of the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act of 1974 (RESPA) [see 12 U.S.C. § 2609; see also 12 U.S.C. § 2601 et seq. (RESPA)]. Section 2954.1 also prohibits the same person from: (1) requiring the sums maintained in the account to exceed at any time the amount or amounts reasonably necessary to pay obligations as they become due; or (2) making payments from the account in a manner that would cause the cancellation of any insurance policy or cause property taxes or other similar payments to become delinquent [Civ. Code § 2954.1].

[iv] Limitations Regarding Deposits

Money held by a mortgagee or a beneficiary of a deed of trust on real property in California, or held by a vendor on a contract of sale of real property in California, in an impound account for the payment of taxes and assessments, insurance premiums, or other purposes on or relating to the property, must be retained in California. Further, if that money is invested, it must be invested only with (1) residents of California, in the case of individuals, or (2) partnerships, corporations, or other persons (or the branches or subsidiaries of these entities or persons) that are engaged in business within California [Civ. Code § 2955(a)].

Notwithstanding the above, a mortgagee or beneficiary of a trust deed secured by a first lien on real property may deposit money held for the payment of taxes and assessments, insurance premiums, or other purposes in an impound account in an out-of-state depository institution insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation if the mortgagee or beneficiary is any one of the following [Civ. Code § 2955(b)]:

- The Federal National Mortgage Association, the Government National Mortgage Association, the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation, the Federal Housing Administration, or the Department of Veterans Affairs.

- A bank (or subsidiary of a bank), bank holding company (or subsidiary), trust company, savings bank or savings and loan association (or subsidiary), savings bank or savings association holding company (or subsidiary), credit union, industrial bank or industrial loan company, commercial finance lender, personal property broker, consumer finance lender, or insurer doing business under the authority of, and in accordance with, the laws of California, any other state, or of the United States relating to banks, trust companies, savings banks or savings associations, credit unions, industrial banks or industrial loan companies, commercial finance lenders, personal property brokers, consumer finance lenders, or insurers, as evidenced by a license, certificate, or charter issued by the United States or a state, district, territory, or commonwealth of the United States.

- Trustees of a pension, profit-sharing, or welfare fund, if the fund has a net worth of at least $15,000,000.

- A corporation with outstanding securities registered under Section 12 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 [15 U.S.C. § 78a et seq. (Act); see 15 U.S.C. § 78l (§ 12 of Act)], or any wholly owned subsidiary of the corporation.

- A syndication or other combination of any of the entities described in the four items listed above, that is organized to purchase the promissory note.

- The California Housing Finance Agency or a local housing finance agency organized under the Health and Safety Code.

- A licensed real estate broker selling all or part of the loan, note, or contract to any of the lenders or purchasers described in the items listed above.

- A licensed residential mortgage lender or servicer when acting under the authority of that license.

- A mortgagee or beneficiary of a trust deed who deposits funds held in trust in an out-of-state depository institution in accordance with the requirements discussed above must make available, in California, the books, records, and files pertaining to those trust accounts to the appropriate state regulatory department or agency, or pay the reasonable expenses for travel and lodging incurred by the regulatory department or agency in order to conduct an examination at an out-of-state location [Civ. Code § 1955(c)].

The Attorney General may bring an action to enjoin a violation of Civ. Code § 2955(a) or (b) [Civ. Code § 2955(d)].

General Impound Requirements

(_____) Trustor agrees to pay to Beneficiary monthly advance installments of taxes, assessments, and insurance premiums for the purpose of accumulating a fund (commonly known as a reserve or impound account) to insure payment when due or before delinquency, of any or all of the taxes, assessments, and insurance premiums mentioned in Paragraph [specify] of this Deed of Trust. The parties agree, however, that this impound requirement shall not require Trustor to pay Beneficiary in any month an amount in excess of that which would be permitted in connection with a federally-related mortgage loan pursuant to Section 10 of the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act of 1974 or require the sums maintained in the account to exceed at any time the amount(s) reasonably necessary to pay the above obligations as they become due. Further, Beneficiary shall not make payments from the account in a manner that would cause the cancellation of any insurance policy or that would cause property taxes or other similar payments to become delinquent.

If the amounts paid to Beneficiary are insufficient to discharge Trustor's obligation to pay the premiums, taxes, and assessments as they become due, Trustor shall pay to Beneficiary on its demand any additional sums it may require to discharge Trustor's obligation to pay premiums, taxes, and assessments. Should Trustor fail to pay to Beneficiary these additional sums, Beneficiary may, at its sole option, pay them and add amounts so paid to the principal indebtedness secured by this Deed of Trust. These amounts added to the principal indebtedness shall bear interest at the rate provided for in the Note. Beneficiary is not responsible for shortages in this reserve account, nor is Beneficiary responsible for any representations by builders, real estate agents, or their representatives as to the amount of the reserve payment.

At the option of Beneficiary, all moneys paid to Beneficiary under the terms of this Paragraph may be held by Beneficiary in trust in the general funds without interest, to pay the premiums, taxes, and assessments before they become delinquent, and on payment by Beneficiary of taxes, assessments, and insurance premiums, the amount so paid shall be charged to the principal due on the Note.

Beneficiary may increase the above monthly advance installment payment at any time in order to insure payment of insurance, taxes, and assessments; provided, however, that any increase in the monthly installments shall not cause (1) the amount paid to be in excess of that permitted under this paragraph; (2) the sums maintained in the account to exceed at any time the amount(s) reasonably necessary to pay the above obligations as they become due; (3) the cancellation of any insurance policy; or (4) property taxes or other similar payments to become delinquent. Any sum held in excess of the reasonable amount shall be refunded within 30 days [or specify other agreement of the parties regarding the refund of any excess amounts]. At the option of Beneficiary, refunds of prepaid or other interest or return premiums from insurance may be added to the above fund and used for any purpose allowed under this Deed of Trust or under Paragraph _____ [specify paragraph relating to disposition of impound funds on default]. If Trustor fails to pay the installment provided for in this Paragraph, the failure shall constitute a default under this Deed of Trust.

Disposition of Impound on Default

(_____) In the event of default in the payment of any of the moneys to be paid under the terms of the Note or this Deed of Trust or in the performance of any of the covenants and obligations of this Deed of Trust, then any funds in the possession of Beneficiary under the provisions of Paragraph _____ [insert number of paragraph relating to the impound requirement], may, at the option of Beneficiary, be applied to the payment of principal and/or interest or any other amount due on the obligation secured by this Deed of Trust in lieu of being applied to any of the purposes for which the fund established under Paragraph _____ [identify impound provision] is established.

§ 25A.230 Installment Real Property Sales Contract--With Power of Sale Clause

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a real property sales contract [see § 25A.230[1][b]] under which the buyer agrees to pay the purchase price to the seller in installments over a period of time, the buyer obtains possession immediately on execution of the contract, and the seller retains title to the property as security until the purchase price is paid in full.

For an installment sales contract used by the California Department of Veterans Affairs, see § 25A.234. For alternative and additional provisions for a real property sales contract, see §§ 25A.231 (provision for impound of taxes and insurance) and 25A.232 (notice required for sale of unimproved real property that has been previously divided).

[b] Real Property Sales Contracts

A "real property sales contract" (also referred to as an installment land sales contract or installment real property sales contract) is an agreement that provides for the conveyance of title to real property on the satisfaction of conditions set forth in the contract and that does not require conveyance of title within one year from the date of execution of the contract [see Civ. Code § 2985(a)]. Most real property sales contracts (including this form) condition the transfer of title on the payment in full of monthly or other periodic installments of the purchase price, permit the seller to retain title to the property as security for the payments until all or a portion of them are made, and do not provide for an escrow. Thus, in addition to serving as the basic purchase-sale agreement, the contract acts as the security device guaranteeing payment.

Because developers could have difficulty financing large-scale residential condominium developments that comprise attached units, if Civil Code provisions governing installment land sale contracts [Civ. Code § 2985 et seq.] were applied to a pre-sale agreement for a unit in such a project, those provisions do not apply to such an agreement that was made in consequence of a conditional public report for the condominium project issued by the Department of Real Estate pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 11018.12 [Civ. Code § 2985(b); see generally Assem. Comm. on Judiciary, Analysis of Sen. Bill No. 504 (2005-2006 Reg. Sess.) as amended Jan. 19, 2006; see also California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 424, Regulation of Subdivided Land Sales, § 424.80 (Matthew Bender)(issuance of conditional public report)].

[c] Real Property Sales Agreements

Real property sales agreements are used more frequently than real property sales contracts in California. A real property sales agreement, also known as a marketing contract, provides for the immediate transfer of title to the buyer in exchange for payment of the purchase price. For detailed coverage of these agreements, see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements .

[d] Power of Sale

This form is similar to a deed of trust in that it contains provisions appointing a trustee and granting the trustee the power to sell the real property subject to the contract in a nonjudicial foreclosure sale in the event of the buyer's default under the contract [for a trust deed containing a power of sale clause, see § 25A.210]. A real property sales contract containing a power of sale is a "mortgage" subject to the statutory provisions governing the exercise of a power of sale in a nonjudicial foreclosure [Civ. Code § 2920(b); see Civ. Code §§ 2924-2924h; see also § 25A.230[2], sec. 17]. For a detailed discussion of the nonjudicial foreclosure process, see Ch. 25D, Foreclosure .

The statute providing that real property sales contracts with a power of sale are "mortgages" subject to the statutory nonjudicial foreclosure provisions [Civ. Code § 2920(b)] became effective January 1, 1987, and was enacted in response to a California Supreme Court decision holding that even a willfully defaulting buyer had the unconditional right to redeem the property by paying the seller the entire amount due on the sales contract plus interest and damages [Petersen v. Hartell (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 102, 114, 219 Cal. Rptr. 170, 707 P.2d 232] . The holding was superseded by a statute granting the buyer the right to reinstate the land sales contract by paying the amount then due, plus interest and costs [see Civ. Code § 2924c; see also § 25D.204].

The purchaser under a real property sales contract should have the contract recorded. Recordation provides constructive notice of the contents of the contract to subsequent purchasers and mortgagees [Civ. Code § 1213; see Civ. Code §§ 1214, 1215, 1217; see also § 23.224[1]]. Another important reason for recordation is the fact that the purchaser will not be able to obtain title insurance on his or her equitable ownership interest in the property unless the contract is recorded [see Ch. 26A, Title Insurance]. This form requires the trustee to have the contract recorded [see § 25A.230[2], sec. 20].

A real estate broker who negotiates, sells, or exchanges a "real property sales contract" [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10029 (definition)] must either record the contract or recommend to the principal that the contract be recorded [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10234]. In addition, in the placing of any loan, a broker must deliver or cause to be delivered conformed copies of any deed of trust to both the investor or lender and the borrower within a reasonable amount of time from the date of recording [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10234.5].

If the contract is not recorded, the seller is limited as to the amount of encumbrances he or she may place on the property without the purchaser's consent [Civ. Code § 2985.2; see also § 25A.230[1][g]].

[f] Limitations on Transfers and Assignments

[i] By Seller

The fee owner of the real property may not transfer a real property sales contract without also transferring the real property that is the subject of the contract, and the real property may not be transferred unless accompanied by an assignment of the contract [Civ. Code § 2985.1]. The California Supreme Court has construed this provision to mean that the linkage between the seller's title and buyer's contractual interest must continue until the contractual interest has been terminated by conveyance of title to the buyer, by a foreclosure sale, or by strict foreclosure [Petersen v. Hartell (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 102, 116, 219 Cal. Rptr. 170, 707 P.2d 232] . Thus, the seller cannot unilaterally declare the contract breached and terminate the buyer's right to redeem. For a detailed discussion of the buyer's remedies under an installment land sales contract, see California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 113, Installment Land Sale Contracts (Matthew Bender).

Notwithstanding the above statutory prohibition, the seller may assign or pledge the real property sales contract to the holder of the first lien on the property as security or for collection [Civ. Code § 2985.1], and may transfer the fee title to the property in trust without concurrently assigning the installment contract [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2791.9 (applicable to subdivision interests)].

[ii] By Buyer

Many installment real property sales contracts provide that the buyer may not assign the contract without the seller's consent. This restriction has been attacked as an invalid restraint on the buyer's equitable title to the land covered by the contract. No California court appears to have ruled directly on the validity of such a provision, although it has been held that this type of provision is for the benefit of the seller only and does not affect the validity of an assignment without consent as between the buyer and his or her assignee [Johnston v. Landucci (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 63, 68, 130 P.2d 405] . The courts have strictly construed these provisions against the seller. Thus, unless the provision specifically provides otherwise, it does not prohibit the buyer from leasing the premises [see Stevinson v. Joy (1912) 164 Cal. 279, 128 P. 751] or from selling his or her equitable interest to a third party under a sales contract [see Covington v. Clark (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 449, 346 P.2d 229] .

If a buyer transfers or sells under a Department of Veterans Affairs installment contract [see § 25A.234], the Department can accelerate and either demand payment of the balance of the contact or terminate the contract. The Department need not show harm or impairment of the security resulting from the transfer [Mil. & Vet. Code §§ 987.72, 987.73(a), 987.77; Department of Veterans Affairs v. Duerksen (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 149, 155-156, 187 Cal. Rptr. 832] . For a discussion of due-on-sale clauses in general, see § 25A.221[1].

[g] Penalty for Encumbering Land Subject to Unrecorded Installment Contract Without Purchaser's Consent

Any person who sells land under an unrecorded installment land sales contract and thereafter, without the purchaser's written consent, encumbers the land, is subject to both civil and criminal penalties if (1) the total amount of the new encumbrance and any preexisting encumbrances on the land exceeds the amount then due under the contract; or (2) the aggregate amount of any periodic payments on the new encumbrance and any preexisting encumbrances exceeds the periodic payments due on the contract, excluding any pro rata amount for insurance and taxes [Civ. Code § 2985.2].

[h] Seller's Duties Regarding Contract Payments

A seller under an installment real property sales contract (or his or her assignee) who receives an installment payment on the contract and fails to apply it to any payment then due on any obligation secured by an encumbrance on the property subject to the contract, is subject to civil and criminal penalties [Civ. Code § 2985.3; see Pen. Code § 506b]. A seller under an installment contract who receives pro rata payments for insurance and taxes must hold the amounts in trust for the designated purpose and may not disburse them for any other purpose without the consent of the buyer and any person or corporation holding an encumbrance on the property [Civ. Code § 2985.4]. The foregoing requirement regarding taxes and insurance does not apply to a state- or federally-supervised assignee of a seller who, as agent for the seller, receives and disburses payments [Civ. Code § 2985.4]. For a provision for the impound of taxes and insurance, see § 25A.231.

[i] Taxes

This form provides that the buyer will pay all taxes and assessments on the property [see § 25A.230[2], sec. 5]. If the required payments are not made within 10 days of their due date, the seller may make the payments and add the amount paid to the balance owed by the buyer [see § 25A.230[2], sec. 7]. Real estate taxes are the seller's responsibility under an installment land sales contract unless the parties agree otherwise in the contract [Parr-Richmond Industrial Corp. v. Boyd (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 157, 168, 272 P.2d 16] . If the buyer has contractually agreed to pay the taxes, he or she has the legal duty to do so [see Estate of Backesto (1923) 63 Cal. App. 265, 269-270, 218 P. 597] .

For discussion of statutory changes authorizing the enforcement of provisions in a trust deed or mortgage that permit a lender to accelerate a loan following a trustor's or mortgagor's failure to pay taxes, rents, assessments, or insurance premiums [see Civ. Code § 2924.7], see § 25A.210[1][g].

[j] Insurance

This form requires the buyer to obtain and maintain fire insurance for the property [see § 25A.230[2], sec. 6]. A lender may not require a borrower under a loan secured by real property to provide hazard insurance coverage on that property in an amount exceeding the replacement value of the improvements on the property as established by the property insurer selected by the borrower [Civ. Code § 2955.5(a)]. The lender must give the borrower a written disclosure of this provision as soon as practicable and in any case before execution of any note or security documents [Civ. Code § 2955.5(b)].

In the absence of a contractual provision to the contrary, a seller who pays the insurance premiums on his or her insurable interest in the property is entitled to any proceeds, and the proceeds are not an offset against the purchase price payable by the buyer under the contract [White v. Gilman (1903) 138 Cal. 375, 377, 71 P. 436] .

For discussion of the circumstances under which lenders may require borrowers to obtain or maintain hazard insurance [see Civ. Code § 2955.5], see § 25A.210[1][f]. For discussion of statutory changes permitting the enforcement of provisions in a trust deed or mortgage on real property that authorize any beneficiary, trustee, mortgagee, or agent or successor in interest of the foregoing to receive and control the disbursement of the proceeds of any policy of fire, flood, or other hazard insurance respecting the property [see Civ. Code § 2924.7(b)], see § 25A.210[1][f]. For discussion of related changes permitting a lender to accelerate a loan following a trustor's or mortgagor's failure to pay taxes, rents, assessments, or insurance premiums [see Civ. Code § 2924.7], see § 25A.210[1][g].

[k] Years to Complete Payment and Basis of Tax Estimate

An installment real property sales contract must contain a statement of the number of years required to complete payment in accordance with the terms of the contract [see § 25A.230[2], sec. l(b)] and the basis on which the tax estimate is made [Civ. Code § 2985.5; see § 25A.230[2], sec. 5].

[l] Special Requirements for Subdivision Interests

[i] Subdivision Map Act

If unimproved property that resulted from a division of property is the subject of a real property sales contract, the contract must contain a statement indicating that the division (1) complied with the Subdivision Map Act ("Act") [Gov. Code § 66410 et seq.], (2) was not subject to the Act, (3) was exempt from the Act, or (4) was the subject of a waiver of the Act's requirements [Civ. Code § 2985.51]. Willful violation of this requirement subjects the seller to civil and criminal penalties [Civ. Code § 2985.51(d)]. For the required statements and further discussion, see § 25A.232.

[ii] Subdivided Lands Act

Under the Subdivided Lands Act ("Act") [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11000 et seq.], every installment land sales contract dealing with the purchase and sale of real property in a subdivision must clearly set forth the legal description of the property, the encumbrances outstanding at the date of the contract, and the terms of the contract [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11200]. The Act and its implementing regulations also set forth requirements intended to insure that the subdivider will be able to deliver clear title to the buyer of a subdivision interest once the buyer has fulfilled the contractual obligations. These requirements apply to all subdivisions, not only those being sold under installment land sales contracts. However, they only apply to a subdivider selling an original subdivision interest in a new subdivision, and do not apply to subsequent individual resales of the subdivision interests by the original purchasers.

The applicability of specific statutory provisions intended to secure the safety of purchase money paid by buyers and to insure the subdivider's ability to deliver clear title to the property depend on whether the property is encumbered by a "blanket encumbrance" [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 11013 (definition)] or is not so encumbered [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 11013.4; see also Ch. 30, Subdivision Regulation ; California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 113, Installment Land Sale Contracts (Matthew Bender)]. Regulations supplement these statutory requirements [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 2791-2791.8; see also 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2791.9 (applicable solely to real property sales contracts)].

Under these statutes and regulations, the subdivider may be required to maintain all purchase money received from purchasers in a neutral escrow, transfer title to the property in trust pending conveyance of title to the purchaser, post a bond, or comply with other acceptable alternatives [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 11013.2, 11013.4; 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2791.9; see also Ch. 30, Subdivision Regulation].

[iii] Buyer's Statutory Right to Prepay

The buyer under a real property sales contract for the purchase of a subdivision residential lot or lots containing a dwelling for not more than four families may prepay all or any part of the balance due on the contract. However, the seller may prohibit prepayment for up to a 12-month period following the sale if the buyer agrees in writing to this limitation [Civ. Code § 2985.6(a)]. Although any waiver by the buyer of these statutory protective provisions is against public policy and void, such a waiver does not in any way affect the validity of the remainder of the contract [Civ. Code § 2985.6(b)].

The above statutory limitations are the only ones specifically applicable solely to installment real property sales contracts. For discussion of prepayment restrictions that apply to contracts in general, see § 25A.222[1].

[m] Truth in Lending Disclosures

Under the federal Truth in Lending Act [15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.], creditors must disclose the terms and cost of credit to any person to whom credit is extended. For these purposes, a creditor is a person who regularly offers or extends credit to consumers when the credit (1) is subject to a finance charge or is payable pursuant to a written agreement in more than four installments, and (2) is primarily for personal, family, or household purposes [see 15 U.S.C. § 1602(f); 12 C.F.R. § 226.1(c)(1); see also 12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(17)(i), n.3]. TILA specifically applies to credit extended in connection with loans and sales of property [15 U.S.C. § 1602(f)]. For additional coverage of TILA, see Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans .

[n] Seller's Transfer Disclosure Statements

The transferor of any real property containing at least one but not more than four dwelling units must deliver to the prospective transferee a statutory disclosure statement setting forth detailed information concerning the property [Civ. Code §§ 1102, 1102.3; see Civ. Code § 1102.6 (statutory form)]. When the transfer is effected by an installment real property sales contract, the statement must be delivered as soon as practicable before execution of the contract [Civ. Code § 1102.3; see Civ. Code § 1102].

If a transfer transaction is subject to the foregoing disclosure requirement, the city or county in which the property is located may require the transferor to provide additional disclosures regarding the property on a statutory form (called the "Local Option Real Estate Transfer Disclosure Statement") or on an alternative form required by the applicable local ordinance [Civ. Code § 1102.6a(a)].

Certain disclosures of natural hazards must be made on the transfer of any real property or any residential stock cooperative improved with or consisting of one to four dwelling units. This applies to transfers by sale, exchange, installment land sale contract as defined in Civ. Code § 2985, lease with an option to purchase, any other option to purchase, or ground lease coupled with improvements [Civ. Code § 1103(a); see Civ. Code §§ 1103.1, 1103.2 (transfers not covered; form)]. These requirements also apply to resale of a manufactured home or mobilehome that is classified as personal property intended for use as a residence if the transaction was entered into after 1999 [Civ. Code § 1103(b); see Health & Safety Code §§ 18007, 18008].

Additional disclosure requirements require a seller of residential real property who knows that any release of an illegal controlled substance has come to be located on or beneath that real property to give written notice advising of that condition to the buyer before sale of the property [Civ. Code § 1102.18(b)]. "Illegal controlled substance" means a drug, substance, or immediate precursor listed in specified schedules [see Health & Safety Code §§ 11054-11058], or an emission or waste material resulting from the unlawful manufacture or attempt to manufacture of an illegal controlled substance, which does not include marijuana [Civ. Code § 1102.18(a)(1)]. "Release" means any spilling, leaking, pumping, pouring, emitting, emptying, discharging, injecting, escaping, leaching, dumping, or disposing of an illegal controlled substance in a structure or into the environment [Civ. Code § 1102.18(a)(2)].

The seller of any real property subject to the disclosure requirements of Civ. Code § 1102 et seq. must also make disclosures if the property being transferred is subject to a continuing lien securing the levy of special taxes pursuant to the Mello-Roos Community Facilities Act [Gov. Code § 53311 et seq.] or to a fixed lien assessment collected in installments to secure bonds issued under the Improvement Bond Act of 1915 [Sts. & Hy. Code § 8500 et seq.], which concerns street improvements, or to a contractual assessment program authorized pursuant to Sts. & Hy. Code § 5898.24 [Civ. Code § 1102.6b(a)(2)]. A seller may satisfy the disclosure notice requirements by delivering a disclosure notice obtained from a nongovernmental source that satisfies the specified requirements [Civ. Code § 1102.6b(d)(1); see Civ. Code § 1102.6b(d)(3) (provision does not change ability to make disclosures pursuant to Civ. Code § 1102.4)].

It is the sole responsibility of the seller of any residential real property in a transfer that is subject to Civ. Code § 1102 et seq. [see § 23.300[1][b]], or the seller's agent, to deliver to the prospective purchaser a prescribed disclosure notice concerning supplemental property tax bills, in addition to any other disclosure required by Civ. Code § 1102 et seq. [Civ. Code § 1102.6c(a)]. For further discussion and a form, see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements, § 23.300A.

Further, the Toxic Mold Protection Act of 2001 [Health & Safety Code § 26100 et seq.] will eventually require any person who sells, transfers, or rents specified types of residential, commercial, or industrial real property to provide written disclosures to potential buyers, prospective tenants, renters, and landlords concerning mold problems in the real property [see Health & Safety Code § 26140 et seq.].

For statutory disclosure statements and further discussion, see §§ 23.200, 23.201.

[o] Installation of Smoke Detector Prior to Sale

Every single-family dwelling and all factory-built housing [see Health & Safety Code § 19971] that is transferred under a real property sales contract must have an operable smoke detector. The seller must provide the transferee with a written statement indicating compliance with this requirement [Health & Safety Code § 13113.8(a), (b)]. For further discussion and an illustrative notice, see § 23.202.

[p] Earthquake Hazards Disclosures

A copy of the official Homeowner's Guide to Earthquake Safety [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10149] and an earthquake hazards disclosure form must be provided to a prospective purchaser or other transferee by the transferor of any real property containing any residential dwelling that (1) was built before January 1, 1960, (2) contains one to four living units, and (3) is of conventional light-frame construction, as defined in Chapter 25 of the 1991 Edition of the Uniform Building Code of the International Conference of Building Officials [Gov. Code § 8897.1(a); but see Gov. Code § 8897.1(c) (exceptions)]. The transferor must provide the earthquake hazards disclosure statement as soon as practicable before execution of the real property sales contract [Gov. Code § 8897.1(b); see Gov. Code § 8897.2 (required contents)]. For additional coverage and a model disclosure form, see § 23.208.

[q] Broker's Duty to Inspect Property

Licensed real estate brokers who deal with real property sales contracts [see Civ. Code § 2079.1] for residential real property consisting of one to four dwelling units have certain statutory inspection and disclosure duties [see Civ. Code §§ 2079-2079.10]. For a detailed discussion of these duties, see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements .

[2] FORM

Installment Real Property Sales Contract

Installment Real Property Sales Contract--With Power of Sale Clause

CONTRACT OF SALE

CONTRACT OF SALE entered into _____[date], by and between _____[name(s)], [status, e.g., a California corporation or husband and wife], of _____ County, California, (the "Seller") _____[name(s)], [status, e.g., a single woman], of _____ County, California, (the "Buyer") and _____[name(s)], [status, e.g., a California corporation], ("Trustee").

Seller agrees to sell to Buyer, and Buyer agrees to purchase from Seller, the real property situated in the City of [or an unincorporated area of], _____ County, California (the "Property"), described as follows: [insert legal description of property] on the following terms and conditions:

Purchase Price

Section 1. The total purchase price for the Property is $_____, payable as follows:

(a) The sum of $_____ on execution of this Contract. Seller hereby acknowledges receipt of this sum.

(b) The balance of $_____ shall be paid in installments of $_____ (or more) per month, payable on or before the _____ day of every month commencing _____[date], and continuing until the full amount of the purchase price together with interest from the date of this Contract on the remaining unpaid principal balance of the purchase price at the rate of _____ percent per annum has been paid, not exceeding [number] years. Each installment shall be payable to Seller at _____[address], California, or any other place or places designated by Seller from time to time by written notice. When received by Seller, each installment shall be credited by Seller first to the payment of the interest on the then remaining unpaid principal balance of the purchase price due to the date of receipt of the installment, then to the reduction of the unpaid principal balance of the purchase price. Interest on the amount credited to the payment on the principal balance of the purchase price shall thereafter cease. This Contract shall require _____ years and _____ months to complete in accordance with its terms.

Appointment and Powers of Trustee

Section 2. On recordation of this contract, Buyer and Seller irrevocably grant, transfer, and assign their respective right, title, and interest in the Property to Trustee for the purpose of securing Buyer's and Seller's obligations under this Contract and hereby confer on Trustee the following powers:

(a) Power to convey to Buyer legal title to the Property on full satisfaction of Buyer's obligations to Seller, on written instructions from Seller or its successor in interest; and

(b) Power to foreclose under power of sale pursuant to Section 17 of this Contract, and to issue a deed on foreclosure and sale. The deed shall convey the property without covenant or warranty, expressed or implied, and any recitals contained in the deed of any matters or facts shall be conclusive proof of the truthfulness of the recitals.

Outstanding Encumbrances

[EITHER]

Section 3. The Property is not subject to any encumbrances that are outstanding at the date of this Contract.

[OR]

Section 3. The Property is subject to the following encumbrance[s] that [is or are] outstanding at the date of this Contract and will be paid by Seller according to [its or their] terms: _____[list encumbrances, e.g., A Deed of Trust recorded in Book _____ at Page _____ of the Official Records in the Office of the County Recorder of _____ County, California, securing a promissory note dated _____, in the principal amount of $_____, which has an approximate unpaid principal balance of approximately $_____, and which is payable, together with interest on the remaining unpaid principal balance, at the rate of _____ percent per annum, to _____ (name of payee of note) in installments of $_____ (or more) on the _____ day of each month.]

[CONTINUE]

Encumbrances by Seller

Section 4. Seller, after the date of this Contract, shall not in any manner [add if there are existing encumbrances: further] encumber the Property without the written consent of Buyer.

Taxes and Assessments

Section 5. The tax estimate on which this Contract is based is the tax bill for the fiscal year. Except as otherwise provided in this Contract, Buyer shall pay, at least 10 days before their due date, all general and special taxes, liens, and charges, including all assessments of every nature, levied, assessed, or accruing on the Property after the execution of this Contract. For these purposes, all taxes, assessments, and insurance premiums pertaining to the Property shall be prorated on the basis of a 30-day month as of the date of this Contract.

Insurance

Section 6. Buyer, during the continuance of this Contract, shall insure and keep insured, at Buyer's own cost and expense, for their full replacement value, all buildings and improvements located on the Property against loss by fire or the elements, with an insurance company acceptable to Seller and for Seller's benefit as Seller's interest may appear.

Payments by Seller

Section 7. If Buyer fails to satisfy _____[his or her] obligation under this Contract to pay any amount for taxes, assessments, or insurance before the amount becomes delinquent, Seller may, at _____[his or her] option, declare Buyer in default under this Contract or pay the amount. If Seller pays the amount, Seller may add the amount to the balance due Seller under the terms of this Contract. Any amount paid by Seller pursuant to this Section shall bear interest from the date of payment by Seller to the date of reimbursement or repayment by Buyer at the rate of _____ percent per annum.

Destruction or Condemnation of Property

Section 8. Destruction of, or damage to, any building or other improvement now or hereafter placed on the Property, or of any personal property described in this Contract, whether from fire or any other cause, including the taking of the Property, or any part of the Property, for public use, shall not release Buyer from any of _____[his or her] obligations under this Contract. It is expressly understood that Buyer bears all risk of loss of, or damage to, the Property. If any part of the Property is taken for public use, the portion of the condemnation award remaining after payment of reasonable expenses of procuring the award, shall be paid to Seller and applied as payment on the purchase price under this Contract [add if applicable: or by payment to the beneficiary of the prior encumbrance listed in Section 3 of this Contract as required by the terms of that encumbrance], unless Seller [add if appropriate: and the beneficiary] elect [s] to allow Buyer to apply all or a portion of the condemnation award to the rebuilding or restoration of any improvements damaged by the taking. In case of damage or destruction from a peril insured against, the proceeds of the insurance remaining after payment of the reasonable expenses of procuring the insurance and the proceeds shall be devoted to the restoration or rebuilding of the improvements within a reasonable time unless Buyer elects that the proceeds shall be paid to Seller [add if applicable: or beneficiary of the prior encumbrance listed in Section 3 of this Contract].

Good Condition and Repair

Section 9. Buyer agrees that the Property and the buildings and improvements on the Property are, at the date of this Contract, in good condition, reasonable wear and tear excepted, and that Buyer shall, at Buyer's own cost and expense, maintain the Property and the buildings and improvements on the Property in the same condition that they are in on the date of this Contract.

Right of Inspection

Section 10. Seller shall have the right to enter on and inspect the Property and the buildings and improvements onthe Property at least once each calendar month. All repairs required on the Property or the foregoing buildings and improvements noted by Seller shall be made by Buyer, at Buyer's own cost and expense, within 10 days after Buyer receives written notice from Seller.

Waste and Removal of Buildings

Section 11. Buyer shall not remove or permit the removal from the Property of any building or other improvement located on the Property without Seller's prior written consent, nor shall Buyer commit or permit to be committed any waste of the Property or of any building or improvement on the Property.

Alterations Prohibited

Section 12. Buyer will not renovate, remodel, or alter any building or improvement now or hereafter situated on the Property, or construct any additional building or improvement on the Property without first providing Seller with written notice and plans for the work and getting Seller's written approval of the plans.

Mechanics' Liens

Section 13. Buyer shall indemnify and hold Seller and the property of Seller, including Seller's interest in the Property, free and harmless from liability for any and all mechanics' liens or other expenses or damages resulting from any renovations, alterations, buildings, repairs, or other work placed on the Property by Buyer.

Personal Injuries

Section 14. Buyer shall indemnify and hold Seller free and harmless from any and all demands, loss, or liability resulting from the injury to or death of any person or persons because of the negligence of Buyer or the condition of the Property at any time after the date possession of the Property is delivered to Buyer.

Possession and Legal Title

Section 15. Buyer shall be entitled to enter into possession of the Property on the date this Contract is recorded [or on _____ (date)] and to continue in possession of the Property so long as Buyer is not in default in the performance of this Contract. Seller shall retain legal title as a security interest in the Property until Buyer has paid the balance of the purchase price as required by this Contract.

Assignment of Rents

Section 16. As additional security, Buyer hereby gives to and confers on Seller the right, power, and authority during the continuance of the Trust created by this Contract, to collect the rents, issues, and profits of the Property, but reserves the right, prior to any default by Buyer in the payment of any indebtedness secured by this Contract or in the performance of any agreement under this Contract, to collect and retain the rents, issues, and profits as they become due and payable. On any such default, Seller may, without notice and without regard to the adequacy of the security for the indebtedness secured by this Contract, either personally or by agent or court-appointed receiver, do the following: enter on and take possession of the Property or any part of the Property; sue for or otherwise collect the rents, issues, and profits, including those past due and unpaid; and apply the rents, issues, and profits, less costs and expenses of operation and collection (including reasonable attorneys' fees), on any indebtedness secured by this Contract, in any order determined by Seller. The exercise of the foregoing rights by Seller shall not cure or waive any default or notice of default under this Contract or invalidate any act done pursuant to such a notice.

Default in Foreclosure

Section 17. On default by Buyer in the payment of any indebtedness secured by this Contract or in the performance of any agreement under this Contract, Seller may declare all sums secured by this Contract immediately due and payable by delivering to Trustee a written declaration of default and demand for sale and a written notice of default and election to sell the Property. Trustee shall cause the notice of default and election to sell to be recorded. Seller also shall deposit with Trustee this Contract and all documents evidencing expenditures secured by this Contract.

After the lapse of the time then required by law following the recordation of the notice of default, and after notice of sale has been given as then required by law, Trustee, without demand on Buyer, shall sell the Property at the time and place fixed by it in the notice of sale, either as a whole or in separate parcels, and in any order determined by Trustee, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash in lawful money of the United States, payable at the time of sale. Trustee may postpone sale of all or any portion of the Property by public announcement at the original time and place of sale, and from time to time thereafter may postpone the sale by public announcement at the time fixed by the preceding postponement. Trustee shall deliver to the purchaser at the auction its deed conveying the Property sold, but without any covenant or warranty, express or implied. The recitals in the deed of any matters or facts shall be conclusive proof of the truthfulness of the recitals. Any person, including Buyer, Trustee, or Seller, may purchase at the sale.

After deducting all costs, fees, and expenses of Trustee and of this Trust, including costs of procuring evidence of title incurred in connection with the sale, Trustee shall apply the proceeds of sale to payment of all sums expended under the terms of this Contract not then repaid, with accrued interest at the rate allowed by law in effect at the date of this Contract, all other sums then secured by this Contract, and the remainder, if any, to the person or persons legally entitled to the proceeds.

Acceptance by Trustee

Section 18. Trustee accepts this Trust when this Contract, duly executed and acknowledged, is made a public record as provided by law. Trustee is not obligated to notify any party to this Contract of pending sale under any other contract or of any action or proceeding in which Buyer, Seller, or Trustee shall be a party unless brought by Trustee.

Substitution of Trustee

Section 19. Seller, or any successor in ownership of any indebtedness secured by this Contract, may from time to time, by written instrument, substitute a successor or successors to any Trustee named in or acting under this Contract. The substitution instrument must contain the name of the original Buyer, Trustee, and Seller under this contract, the book and page where this Contract is recorded, and the name and address of the new Trustee. When executed by Seller and duly acknowledged and recorded in the office of the recorder of the county or counties where the Property is situated, the substitution instrument shall be conclusive proof of proper substitution of the successor Trustee or Trustees. Any successor Trustee or Trustees shall, without conveyance from the Trustee predecessor, succeed to all its title, estate, rights, powers, and duties.

Recordation and Title Insurance

Section 20. On the execution of this Contract by the parties, Trustee shall cause it to be recorded in the Office of The County Recorder of _____ County, California. On recordation, Seller and Buyer shall obtain title insurance policies issued by _____[name of title company] insuring their interests in this Contract. This shall be done at the expense of [Buyer or Seller].

Conveyance on Full Performance

Section 21. When the purchase price and all other amounts to be paid by Buyer pursuant to this Contract are fully paid as provided in this Contract, Seller will execute and deliver to Buyer a good and sufficient deed conveying to Buyer good and marketable title to the Property as evidenced by a California Land Title Association standard coverage [or specify other form of policy] title insurance policy in the full amount of the purchase price. The title policy shall be paid for by Seller [or Buyer].

Deed of Trust in Lieu of Contract

Section 22. When the full sum of $_____, including the amount paid by Buyer on execution of this Contract, has been paid by Buyer on the principal amount of the purchase price specified in this Contract, Seller will, on request of Buyer, execute and deliver to Buyer a good and sufficient deed conveying to Buyer good and marketable title to the Property as evidenced by a California Land Title Association standard coverage [or specify other form of policy] title insurance policy in the full amount of the purchase price procured and paid for by Seller [or Buyer], and will accept in substitution of this Contract a promissory note in the amount of the then unpaid principal balance of the purchase price containing terms for interest and payment similar to those contained in this Contract and secured by a first Deed of Trust on the Property. The promissory note and Deed of Trust shall be in the usual form now being supplied by the _____ Title Company for use in _____ County, California.

Entire Agreement

Section 23. Both Buyer and Seller agree that this Contract constitutes the sole and only agreement between them respecting the Property and correctly sets forth their obligations to each other as of its date.

Attorneys' Fees

Section 24. If any action arising out of or relating to this Contract is commenced by either party to this Contract, then as between Buyer and Seller, the prevailing party shall be entitled to receive from the other party, in addition to any other relief that may be granted, the reasonable attorneys' fees, costs, and expenses incurred in the action.

Notices

Section 25. Any and all notices or other communications required or permitted by this Contract or by law to be served on or given to either party by the other party shall be in writing and shall be deemed duly served and given when personally delivered to the party to whom it is directed, or in lieu of personal service when mailed by first-class mail, postage prepaid, addressed to Buyer at the address of the Property or to Seller at _____, California. Either party may change that party's address for these purposes by giving written notice of the change to the other party in the manner provided in this Section.

Binding on Heirs and Successors

Section 26. This Contract shall be binding on and shall inure to the benefit of the heirs, executors, administrators, successors, and assigns of the parties to this Contract; provided, however, that nothing contained in this Section shall be construed as a consent by Seller to any assignment of this Contract or of any interest in this Contract by Buyer except as provided in Section 23 of this Contract.

Assignments Prohibited

Section 27. Buyer shall not transfer, sell, or assign Buyer's interest in the Property unless the transfer, sale, or assignment may be consummated without acceleration of any senior encumbrance on the Property. In the event of an acceleration of any senior encumbrance by reason of a transfer, sale, or assignment by Buyer, the total amount of unpaid principal and interest due under this Contract shall be immediately due and payable to Seller in order to protect Seller against the loss of Seller's security interest in this Contract.

Time of Essence

Section 28. Time is expressly declared to be of the essence.

Waiver

Section 29. The waiver of any breach of this Contract by either party shall not constitute a continuing waiver or a waiver of any subsequent breach either of the same or another provision of this Contract.

Prepayment Penalty

Section 30. Buyer may pay to Seller the full remaining unpaid principal balance of the purchase price specified in this Contract at any time before it becomes due by paying in addition to that principal amount the interest that has accrued on that amount to the date of the payment and an additional sum equal to _____ percent of the unpaid principal balance.

[Add the following if there is a senior trust deed or mortgage recorded against the property that the buyer will assume as part of the purchase price:]

§ 25A.231 Purchase Price Provision Requiring Impound for Taxes and Insurance

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a provision that may be inserted in an installment real property sales contract [see § 25A.230] if the buyer agrees to deposit amounts in an impound account maintained by the seller for the payment of taxes and insurance on the property. It allocates the total purchase price to be paid under the contract among amounts for taxes, insurance, interest, and principal.

Every seller of improved or unimproved real property under a real property sales contract who receives pro rata payments for insurance and taxes must hold these amounts in trust for the purpose designated. These amounts may not be disbursed for any other purpose without the consent of the payor and any person or corporation holding an encumbrance on the property [Civ. Code § 2985.4]. The above restrictions do not apply to a state or federally supervised assignee of a seller who, as agent for the seller, receives and disburses payments [Civ. Code § 2985.4]. On request of the purchaser under a real property sales contract, the seller must furnish a statement containing an itemized account of moneys received by the seller during a calendar year for principal, interest, taxes, and insurance [Civ. Code § 2954(b); see § 25A.245[2]].

[b] Statutory Requirements

[i] When Impound Account May Be Required

Numerous statutes govern the use of impound accounts and the reporting of impound balances held by beneficiaries under trust deeds and sellers under real property sales contracts. Impound accounts may be required by a seller of a single-family, owner-occupied dwelling only under certain circumstances. In the absence of one of these circumstances, an impound account is permitted only if the buyer consents to it [see Civ. Code § 2954]. For a detailed discussion of these requirements, see § 25A.228[1][c][i].

[ii] Required Interest Payments on Impounded Funds

With certain exceptions, a lender who requires advance payments for taxes and insurance under a loan secured by real property containing only a one-to-four family residence, must pay interest on the impounded amounts [see Civ. Code § 2954.8]. For coverage of these requirements, see § 25A.228[1][c][ii].

[iii] Amount, Use, and Maintenance of Impounded Funds

Statutory restrictions govern the amount that may be impounded and the ways in which the lender may use the impounded funds [see Civ. Code §§ 2954.1, 2955]. For discussion of these limitations, see § 25A.228[1][c][iii].

Total Purchase Price

Section _____. The total purchase price for the Property is $_____, payable as follows: $_____ on execution of this Contract, receipt of which is hereby acknowledged by Seller, and the balance in installments of $[add if balance may be prepaid without penalty: or more] per month payable to Seller, at any place designated in writing by Seller, on the _____ day of each month commencing _____[date], and continuing for a period not exceeding _____ years from that date until the full purchase price together with interest as provided in this Contract has been paid. Each monthly installment shall be credited by Seller as follows:

Taxes

(a) First, to a trust fund for the payment of taxes and assessments that are levied or assessed or that accrue against the Property during the continuance of this Contract. The amount of each installment to be credited to the trust fund is to be determined by dividing the latest tax bill for the Property then available by 12. Should any taxes or assessments be increased at any time during the continuance of this Contract, the monthly installments to be paid by Buyer shall thereafter be increased by the amount that is necessary to pay the tax or assessment increase.

Insurance

(b) Second, to a trust fund for the payment of premiums on insurance policies issued by insurance companies selected by Seller insuring all buildings and improvements on the Property for their full replacement value against loss by fire, with loss payable to Seller. All moneys collected by Seller from any such insurance policy shall be applied by Seller to the payment of the then unpaid principal balance of this Contract and interest on that amount in any order selected by Seller.

Interest

(c) Third, to interest at the rate of _____ percent per annum from the date of this Contract on the then remaining unpaid principal balance of the purchase price recited in this Contract.

Principal

(d) Fourth, to reduction of the then remaining unpaid principal balance of the purchase price recited in this Contract.

§ 25A.232 Statement Regarding Subdivision Map Act

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, consists of alternative statements, one of which must be included in any real property sales contract entered into on or after January 1, 1978, when the real property that is the subject of the contract resulted from a division of real property [see Civ. Code § 2985.51; see also [b], below]. The statements indicate whether the divided property complied with, was not subject to, was exempt from, or was the subject of a waiver of the requirements of, the Subdivision Map Act [Gov. Code §§ 66410-66499.37] or applicable prior law. As discussed below, the precise statement required by statute depends on whether the division occurred on or after, or prior to, January 1, 1978 [see Civ. Code § 2985.51].

[b] Disclosure Requirement

[i] Definitions

For purposes of this disclosure requirement, a "real property sales contract" is an agreement under which one party agrees to convey title to unimproved real property to another party on the satisfaction of conditions set forth in the contract and that does not require the conveyance of title within one year from the date of the formation of the contract. "Unimproved real property" means real property that does not contain any permanent structures intended for human occupancy or commercial use [Civ. Code § 2985.51(e)].

[ii] Exemption

A real property sales contract is exempt from this disclosure requirement if it (1) requires either a good faith down payment and a single payment of the balance of the purchase price or a single payment of the purchase price on completion of the contract, and (2) does not require periodic payments of principal or interest [Civ. Code § 2985.51(f)].

[c] Statements for Divisions of Property on or After January 1, 1978

[i] Compliance With Act

If the division complied with the Subdivision Map Act [for a detailed discussion of the Act's requirements, see Ch. 30, Subdivision Regulation], the statement in the contract must expressly refer to the location, in the records of the county recorder for the county in which the real property is located, of a previously recorded certificate of compliance or conditional certificate of compliance issued pursuant to the Act. Alternatively, the statement may describe the real property to be conveyed as an entire lot or parcel by referencing the recorded final or parcel map creating the parcel or parcels to be conveyed. When the statement refers to a recorded parcel map and the approval of the map was conditioned on the construction of specified offsite and onsite improvements, the statement must expressly set forth all the required offsite and onsite improvements if these improvements have not been completed prior to the date the real property sales contract is executed [Civ. Code § 2985.51(a)(1); see 1st alternative P of form in [2], below].

[ii] Other Statements

If the division was not subject to the Subdivision Map Act [see § 30.20[1]; see also § 30.110[1]], the statement must set forth the basis for the nonapplicability [Civ. Code § 2985.51(a)(4); see 2nd alternative P of form in [2], below]. If the division was exempt from the Act [see § 30.20[3]; see also § 30.110[1]], the statement must set forth the basis for the exemption [Civ. Code § 2985.51(a)(2); see 3rd alternative P of form in [2], below].

If the Act's requirements were waived by the appropriate local agency for the real property division, a copy of the document issued by the local agency and granting the waiver must be attached to the contract. The statement must also specify all offsite and onsite improvements that have not been completed before the execution of the real property sales contract but were required as a precondition of the waiver [Civ. Code § 2985.51(a)(3); see 4th alternative P of form in [2], below].

[d] Statements for Divisions of Property Prior to January 1, 1978

If the real property that is the subject of the real property sales contact is unimproved and resulted from a division of property that occurred before January 1, 1978, statements similar to those required for post-January 1, 1978, divisions must be included in or attached to the contract [see Civ. Code § 2985.51(b); for coverage of these requirements, see § 25A.132(14)(b)]. The alternative statements set forth in the form below may be adapted for use for these earlier divisions.

[e] Civil and Criminal Sanctions

If a buyer under a real property sales contract reasonably relies on a statement by the seller that the subject property was divided in compliance with or was exempt from the Subdivision Map Act, and it is subsequently determined that neither statement was accurate, the buyer may recover from the seller the costs of complying with the Act or may void the contract and sue for damages. A civil penalty may also be imposed against the seller [Civ. Code § 2985.51(c)]. A seller who willfully provides a buyer with a false statement regarding applicability of the Act is guilty of a misdemeanor [Civ. Code § 2985.51(d)].

§ 25A.233 Arbitration Provision and Related Statutory Notice

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, consists of (1) a binding arbitration provision that may be included in a real property sales contract [see § 25A.230] and (2) a statutory heading and notice that must accompany such a provision [see [b], below]. The arbitration provision incorporates by reference the rules of the American Arbitration Association. For further discussion of arbitration and an alternative arbitration clause that provides for the use of rules set forth in the California Arbitration Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1280-1294.2], see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements .

[b] Statutory Heading and Notice

If a contract to convey real property or contemplated to convey real property in the future, including a real property sales contract, contains a provision for binding arbitration, the following requirements must be satisfied [Code Civ. Proc. § 1298(a); see Civ. Code § 2985 ("real property sales contract" defined); Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1298.8 (these requirements apply only to contracts or agreements entered into on or after July 1, 1989)]:

- The arbitration provision must be clearly titled "ARBITRATION OF DISPUTES" [Code Civ. Proc. § 1298(a)].

- The statutory arbitration notice (set forth as the indented paragraphs of this form) must appear immediately following the arbitration provision and immediately before the line or space provided for the parties to indicate their assent or nonassent to the arbitration provision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1298(c)].

- Both the statutory notice and the arbitration provision must be set out in capital letters if the contract is typed. If the contract is printed, the provision must be set out in at least 8-point bold type or in contrasting red in at least 8-point type, and the notice must be set out in at least 10-point bold type or in contrasting red in at least 8-point bold type [Code Civ. Proc. § 1298(a), (c)].

For further discussion of these requirements, see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements .

§ 25A.234 Installment Real Property Sales Contract--California Department of Veterans Affairs

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is the real property sales contract used by the California Department of Veterans Affairs for its Cal-Vet loan program. It is reproduced here for illustrative purposes. Cal-Vet loan forms are available on the Internet at http://www.cdva.ca.gov/calvetloans.

For a detailed discussion of the procedures involved in obtaining a Cal-Vet loan, including forms that must be submitted to the Department of Veterans Affairs to obtain approval of the loan, see Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans .

[b] Cal-Vet Loan Procedure

Under the Veterans' Farm and Home Purchase Act of 1974 [Mil. & Vet. Code § 987.50 et seq.], the California Department of Veterans Affairs operates a purchase program commonly known as "Cal-Vet loans" to assist California veterans in acquiring farms or homes. Unlike financing programs of the Federal Housing Administration or the United States Veterans Administration, the California Department of Veterans' Affairs does not merely guarantee loans made to veterans by a lender but actually advances the funds, obtained from the issuance and sale of bonds under various veterans bond acts [see Mil. & Vet. Code § 996.971 et seq.], for the purchase of homes and farms by veterans.

After a qualified veteran has been approved by the Department for a Cal-Vet loan, the veteran selects the home or farm he or she wishes to purchase and submits the selection to the Department for approval, as the Department prescribes. The Department has the sole responsibility for underwriting and approving all farm or home loans [Mil. & Vet. Code § 987.59(a)]. The Department is directed by statute to achieve efficient processing and approval of loans and to ensure the optimal participation of qualified mortgage brokers and other qualified financial institutions [see Mil. & Vet. Code § 987.59(b)]. The Department, if it approves the selection, then purchases the property in its own name [Mil. & Vet. Code § 987.60] and sells it to the veteran under an installment real property sales contract [Mil. & Vet. Code § 987.69].

[c] Advantages of Cal-Vet Financing

The advantages generally associated with Cal-Vet financing are low interest rates, low-cost fire and hazard insurance, and the assurance, through inspection and approval of the property by the Department of Veterans Affairs, that the property is suitable for the veteran and his or her family. The term over which a purchase contract executed by the Department with a qualified veteran is made payable may not by statute exceed 40 years for farms or homes or 30 years for mobilehomes [Mil. & Vet. Code § 987.71(b)], although the Department provides that the length of these loans is as follows:

- Single Family Home--Thirty-year term loan.
- Farm Loan--Thirty-year term loan.
- New Mobilehome--Twenty-year term loan (maximum).
- Used Mobilehome--Ten to 15-year term loan (maximum depends on age of mobilehome).

[d] Assignment of Cal-Vet Contracts

A Cal-Vet purchase contract may not be assigned, voluntarily or involuntarily, by operation of law or otherwise, without the written consent of the Department of Veterans Affairs [Mil. & Vet. Code § 987.73; see [2], below, P 18]. The Department will consent to an assignment only for the following types of assignments [12 Cal. Code Reg. § 342; see Mil. & Vet. Code § 987.73]:

- To another qualified veteran.
- To the veteran and spouse, and no other party or parties, in joint tenancy, tenancy in common, or as community property.
- To a non-veteran spouse when the entire beneficial interest in the Cal-Vet property is awarded in a dissolution of marriage, legal separation, or nullity proceeding; however, the interest rate will be raised for spouses not eligible for the veterans' rate.
- To eligible heirs, devisees, or personal representatives.
- To a non-veteran spouse if the veteran purchaser qualifies as a person in long-term care as defined in Welf. & Inst. Code § 14050.3 and the Department is satisfied that the interest of the veteran is adequately protected [see Mil. & Vet. Code § 987.73(c)].

When the Department consents to an assignment, the rate of interest chargeable to veteran purchasers may not be made applicable to a non-veteran assignee. Instead, the Department must fix a new rate for the non-veteran assignee [Mil. & Vet. Code § 987.72].

[e] Default of Buyer

On default of the veteran buyer, the Department of Veterans Affairs may cancel the contract. On cancellation of the contract, the purchaser forfeits all right to the property, and all payments previously made are deemed rental paid for occupancy [Mil. & Vet. Code § 987.77; see [2], below, P 15]. Paragraph 16 of this form requires the Department to give the purchaser at least 30 days' written notice of its intention to cancel the contract.

§ 25A.240 Notice of Balloon Payment

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a notice of the due date of a balloon payment under a promissory note. This type of notice must be provided for certain loans secured by owner-occupied residential property [see Civ. Code § 2924i(a); see also [d], below] and for certain loans involving an "arranger of credit" and seller financing [see Civ. Code § 2966; see also [c], below]. Requirements under both of the applicable statutes for notice of a balloon payment are essentially the same. The one notable exception is that a promissory note subject to Civ. Code § 2966 must additionally include a statutory statement reciting the fact that the note is subject to the statute [see [f], below].

This form assumes that the security instrument is a trust deed. However, it may be easily modified for use in conjunction with a mortgage.

[b] Statutory Definitions

A "balloon payment note" is a loan that provides for a final payment that, as originally scheduled, is more than twice the amount of any of the immediately preceding six regularly scheduled payments or that contains a call provision [Civ. Code §§ 2924i(d)(1), 2957(b)]. A "call provision" is a loan contract term that provides the holder of the loan with the right to call the loan due and payable either after a specified period has elapsed following closing or after a specified date [Civ. Code §§ 2924i(d)(2), 2957(c)]. However, if the holder of the loan does not exercise the call provision, the existence of the unexercised call provision will not cause the loan to be deemed a balloon payment loan [Civ. Code §§ 2924i(d)(1), 2957(b)].

[c] Applicability of Section 2966 Requirements

The notice requirement of Civ. Code § 2966 applies to transactions for the purchase of a dwelling for not more than four families when (1) there is an "arranger of credit," and (2) the seller extends credit by accepting a balloon payment note with a repayment term of greater than one year [see Civ. Code §§ 2956, 2966]. An "arranger of credit" is a person, other than a party to the credit transaction, who develops or negotiates credit terms, participates in the completion of the credit documents, and directly or indirectly receives compensation for arrangement of the credit or from any transaction or transfer of the real property that is facilitated by the extension of credit [Civ. Code § 2957(a)(1)]. The term does not include either an attorney representing one of the parties to the credit transaction [Civ. Code § 2957(a)(1)] or an escrow holder in the transaction [Civ. Code § 2957(a)(3)]. However, a party to the transaction who is either a licensed attorney or a real estate licensee is an arranger of credit if the party is represented by a licensed broker [see Civ. Code § 2957(a)(2), (4)].

In most situations, the only persons who will meet the definition of "arranger of credit" are the real estate licensees involved in the negotiations since they will participate in the negotiations and receive compensation in the form of their commission. Therefore, as a general rule, the requirements of Civ. Code § 2966 apply when a real estate licensee is involved and the seller participates in the financing by taking a balloon payment note [see California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 110, Notes (Matthew Bender)].

[d] Applicability of Section 2924i Requirements

Civ. Code § 2924i applies to loans secured by a trust deed or mortgage on real property containing one to four residential units, at least one of which at the time the loan is made is or is to be occupied by the borrower, if the loan is for a period in excess of one year and is a balloon payment loan [Civ. Code § 2924i(a)]. However, Civ. Code § 2924i does not apply to [Civ. Code § 2924i(b)]:

- Transactions subject to the "arranger of credit" disclosure requirements of Civ. Code § 2956 [see Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans , Legal Background, "--Arrangers of Credit and Sales of Dwellings"].

- Loans made for the principal purpose of financing the construction of one or more residential units.

- Open-end credit as defined in Regulation Z, whether or not the transaction is otherwise subject to Regulation Z. "Regulation Z" means any rule, regulation, or interpretation promulgated by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System under the Federal Truth in Lending Act [15 U.S.C. §§ 1601-1667e] and any interpretation or approval issued by an authorized official or employee of the Federal Reserve System [Civ. Code § 2924i(d)(3); see Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans , Legal Background, "Disclosures Required Under Federal Truth in Lending Act--Purpose and Coverage of Act" and succeeding headings; see also Ch. 46, Credit Card and Other Open-End Credit Transactions].

[e] Contents and Delivery of Notice

The holder of a balloon payment loan must provide the trustor or his or her successor in interest with a notice regarding the balloon payment. The notice must include all of the following [Civ. Code §§ 2924i(c), 2966(a)]:

- A statement of the name and address of the person to whom the final payment must be paid.

- The date on or before which the final payment must be paid.

- The amount of the final payment, or if the exact amount is unknown, a good faith estimate of the amount, including unpaid principal, interest, and any other charges. These amounts must be determined assuming timely payment in full of all scheduled installments coming due between the date the notice is prepared and the date when the final payment is due.

- If the borrower has a contractual right to refinance the final payment, a statement to that effect, including, for Civ. Code § 2966 notes [see [c], above], a summary of the actual terms of the refinancing or an estimate or approximation of those terms, to the extent known.

The holder must deliver or mail the notice by first-class mail, with a certificate of mailing obtained from the United States Postal Service, to the trustor or successor at his or her last known address. This must take place at least 90 days but not more than 150 days prior to the due date of the final payment on the loan. However, if the due date of the final payment is extended before notice is otherwise required, then the notice requirement applies only to the due date as extended (or as subsequently extended) [Civ. Code §§ 2924i(c), 2966(a)].

[f] Statement Required for Section 2966 Notes

Every note that is subject to the provisions of Civ. Code § 2966 [see [c], above] must include a statement reciting that the holder of the note is required by statute to give notice of the balloon payment within a prescribed period [see Civ. Code § 2966(d)]. The required statutory language for the statement is set forth in § 25A.225. Failure to include the notice does not invalidate the note [Civ. Code § 2966(d)].

[g] Violation of Notice Requirements

Failure to provide notice of a balloon payment in the manner required by statute does not extinguish any obligation of payment by the borrower, but does extend the due date for any balloon payment to the later of (1) the date specified in the balloon payment note; (2) 90 days from the date of delivery or mailing of the required notice; or (3) the due date specified in the required notice. If the failure to give timely notice acts to extend the term of any note, interest continues to accrue for the extended term at the contract rate, payments continue to be due at any periodic interval and on any payment schedule specified in the notice, and the payments must be credited to principal or interest under the terms of the note. Default in any extended periodic payment is considered a default under terms of the note or security instrument [Civ. Code §§ 2924i(e), 2966(b)]. For Civ. Code § 2966 notes, a failure to give notice does not affect the validity of a sale in favor of a bona fide purchaser or the rights of an encumbrancer for value and without notice [Civ. Code § 2966(c)].

Any credit or security document subject to the statutory balloon payment notice requirements is not invalidated solely because any person fails to comply with these requirements. However, any person who willfully violates any of the requirements is liable for actual damages suffered by the debtor as the proximate result of the violation, and, if the debtor prevails in any suit under Civ. Code § 2924i to recover that amount, for reasonable attorneys' fees [Civ. Code §§ 2924i(f)(1), 2965]. No person may be held liable in any action under the statutory provisions if it is shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the violation was not intentional and resulted from a bona fide error notwithstanding the maintenance of procedures reasonably adopted to avoid such an error [Civ. Code §§ 2924i(f)(2), 2965].

§ 25A.241 Notice to Senior Lender of Junior Lien

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a notice of the existence of a junior lien. This notice should be given by a junior lienholder to the holder of the senior lien when the junior lienholder wants to confirm priority of its lien against nonobligatory advances made to a borrower under a senior trust deed after creation of the junior lien.

Because the trust deed is the most widely used real property security device in California, this form assumes that the relevant security instruments are trust deeds. If either or both instruments are mortgages, minor modifications in the description of the instrument and the parties must be made to this form.

[b] Priority of Junior Lien

When a senior trust deed (or mortgage) contains a future advance clause, a junior lien will have priority over future advances made after recordation of the junior lien if (1) the junior lienor gives actual, not constructive, notice to the senior lienholder of the junior lien, and (2) the future advances after the junior lien are not obligatory on the senior lienor [Pike v. Tuttle (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 746, 751, 96 Cal. Rptr. 403] . Advances that are not obligatory but are made for the actual improvement of the property have priority over mechanics' liens that attached before the advances were made [Civ. Code § 3136]. This priority for nonobligatory future advances that improve the property has also been extended by case law to the situation in which the junior lienor who would have priority is the holder of a second deed of trust rather than the beneficiary of a mechanics' lien [Turner v. Lytton Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 457, 459, 51 Cal. Rptr. 552 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1188.1, which had identical language to Civ. Code § 3136)].

§ 25A.242 Request for Notice of Delinquencies

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a request by a junior lienholder for notice of delinquencies in payments on an obligation securing the senior lien. This form of request satisfies the requirements of Civ. Code § 2924e, which grants the right of notice to certain junior lienholders on residential property [see [b], below]. The receipt of notice of delinquencies on a senior lien enables a junior lienor to take steps to protect his or her position before a notice of default on the senior lien is recorded.

This form assumes that the relevant security instruments are trust deeds, as is almost invariably the case. However, it may be easily modified for use in conjunction with mortgages.

[b] Overview of Statutory Provisions

Under Civ. Code § 2924e, the beneficiary or mortgagee of any trust deed or mortgage either (1) on real property containing one to four residential units, or (2) given to secure an original obligation of up to $300,000 may, with the written consent of the trustor or mortgagor, submit a written request to the beneficiary or mortgagee of any lien that is senior to the lien of the requesting party, requesting written notice of delinquencies of four months or more in payments of principal or interest on any obligation secured by the senior lien. The request may be made notwithstanding the fact that the loan secured by the lien of the requesting party is not then in default as to payments of principal or interest [Civ. Code § 2924e(a)].

The rights and obligations set forth in Civ. Code § 2924e inure to the benefit of, or pass to, successors in interest of the parties specified in that statute [Civ. Code § 2924e(b); see [i], below].

[c] Contents of Request

The request for notice must identify [Civ. Code § 2924e(b)]:

- The requester's ownership or security interest.
- The date on which the requester's interest will terminate as evidenced by the maturity date of the note of the trustor or mortgagor in favor of the requester.
- The name of the trustor or mortgagor and the name of the current owner of the security property if different from the trustor or mortgagor.
- The street address or other description of the security property.
- The loan number (if available to the requester) of the loan secured by the senior lien.
- The name and address to which notice is to be sent.

[d] Procedure for Making Request

The request for notice must be sent by certified mail to the "senior" beneficiary or mortgagee, or any agent designated by the beneficiary or mortgagee for the purpose of receiving loan payments. The request must be sent to the address specified for the receipt of the loan payments. However, if that address is not known, it must be sent to the address shown on the recorded trust deed or mortgage [Civ. Code § 2924e(a)]. If any beneficiary or mortgagee (or designated agent) has been succeeded in interest by any other person, any request for notice must be transmitted promptly to that person [Civ. Code § 2924e(e)].

The request for notice must include the signed written consent of the trustor or mortgagor and be accompanied by the $40 statutory fee [Civ. Code § 2924e(b); see [e], below]. Further, it must be recorded in the office of the county recorder of the county in which the security real property is located [Civ. Code § 2924e(b)].

[e] Consent of Trustor or Mortgagor

The required written consent of the trustor or mortgagor [see [c], above] must be either (1) effected through a signed and dated agreement that is separate from other loan and security documents, or (2) disclosed to the trustor or mortgagor in at least 10-point type [Civ. Code § 2924e(a)]. To be useful, this consent should be obtained as a part of the original loan transaction because the debtor does not have any incentive for signing such a consent at a later date [see California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 111, Deeds of Trust and Mortgages (Matthew Bender)].

[f] Period of Effectiveness and Renewals

Unless withdrawn in writing, a request for notice of delinquencies is effective for five years from the date the request is mailed or the date it is recorded, whichever is later. However, it may be renewed within six months prior to its expiration date by sending the beneficiary or mortgagee (or agent) a copy of the earlier request for notice together with a signed statement that the request is renewed [see § 25A.243].

A request for notice is applicable to all delinquencies that occur prior to the termination date of the requester's interest (as specified in the request) or the statutory expiration date for the request, as appropriate [Civ. Code § 2924e(b)].

[g] Notice of Satisfaction of Obligation

If an obligation secured by a junior lien is satisfied after the junior lienholder has submitted a written request to the senior lienholder for notice of delinquencies, the requester must notify the senior lienholder in writing of the foregoing satisfaction. The notification must also state that the senior lienholder is no longer required to provide the junior lienholder with a notice of delinquencies pursuant to the prior request for such a notice [Civ. Code § 2924e(g)].

[h] Notice of Delinquencies

[i] Procedural Requirements

A senior beneficiary or mortgagee must give the requester written notice of any uncured delinquency that exists or occurs on or after 10 days from the date the request is mailed or the date on which it is recorded, whichever is later. The notice must also state the amount of the delinquency. It must be given within 15 days following the end of four months from any delinquency in payments of principal or interest, by personal service or first-class mail (postage prepaid). After a notice of default [see § 25D.202[2]] has been recorded pursuant to Civ. Code § 2924(a)(1) with respect to a delinquency, no notice or further notice is required [Civ. Code § 2924e(c)].

If the senior beneficiary or mortgagee of an obligation secured by nonresidential property [see [b], above] has sent five or more notices before the expiration of the effective period of the request, he or she may charge a fee of up to $15 for each subsequent notice [Civ. Code § 2924e(b)].

[ii] Failure to Give Notice

If the beneficiary or mortgagee of any senior lien fails to give the requester the required notice of deficiencies [see [i], above], and a subsequent foreclosure or trustee's sale of the security property occurs, the beneficiary or mortgagee is liable to the requester for damages consisting of a statutory penalty plus any monetary damage that the requester has sustained (as a result of the failure to provide timely notice) from the date on which notice should have been given to the earlier of (1) the date on which the notice is given, or (2) the date of the recording of the notice of default [see Civ. Code § 2924(a)(1)]. A showing by the beneficiary or mortgagee, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the failure to provide timely notice resulted from a bona fide error notwithstanding the maintenance of procedures reasonably adapted to avoid such an error, is a defense to any liability for that failure [Civ. Code § 2924e(d)].

Any failure to give proper notice of delinquencies does not affect the validity of a sale in favor of a bona fide purchaser or the rights of an encumbrancer for value and without notice [Civ. Code § 2924e(f)].

[i] Successors in Interest

The rights and obligations created by Civ. Code § 2924e inure to the benefit of, or pass to, as the case may be, successors in interest of parties specified in that statute. Any successor in interest of a party entitled to notice of delinquencies under Civ. Code § 2924e must file a request for that notice with any beneficiary or mortgagee of the senior lien and must pay a processing fee prescribed by statute. Under these circumstances, the trustor or mortgagor need not submit a new written consent from the trustor or mortgagor [Civ. Code § 2924e(b); see [c], above].

§ 25A.243 Renewal of Request for Notice of Delinquencies

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a renewal of a previously-recorded request for notice of delinquencies under a senior lien. A beneficiary or mortgagee of a deed of trust or mortgage on real property may request a notice of delinquency if (1) the subject real property contains one to four residential units, or (2) the trust deed or mortgage was given to secure an original obligation of up to $300,000 [Civ. Code § 2924e(a)]. These lienholders may then take steps to protect their junior position before a notice of default is recorded for the senior lien. For further discussion and a form for a request for notice of delinquencies, see § 25A.242.

[b] Procedure for Renewal

The original request for notice is effective for five years from the mailing of the request or the recording of that request, whichever occurs later. It may be renewed within six months before its expiration date by sending the following (in the manner described below) to the beneficiary or mortgagee or any agent that the beneficiary/mortgagee has designated to receive loan payments [see Civ. Code § 2924e(b)]:

- A copy of the earlier request for notice;
- A signed statement that the request is renewed; and
- A $15 renewal fee.

The requester must send the renewal of the request by certified mail to the beneficiary, mortgagee, or agent at the address specified for the receipt of these payments, if known. If that address is not known, the renewal must be sent to the address shown on the recorded trust deed or mortgage [Civ. Code § 2924e(a)]. The renewal must be recorded in the county recorder's office for the county in which the secured real property is located [Civ. Code § 2924e(b)].

When a renewal request for notice is timely submitted, the effectiveness of the original request is continued for five years from the time when it would otherwise have lapsed. Succeeding renewal requests may be submitted in the same manner [Civ. Code § 2924e(b)].

If an obligation secured by a junior lien is satisfied after the junior lienholder has submitted a written request to the senior lienholder for notice of delinquencies, the requester must notify the senior lienholder in writing of the foregoing satisfaction. The notification must also state that the senior lienholder is no longer required to provide the junior lienholder with a notice of delinquencies pursuant to the prior request for such a notice [Civ. Code § 2924e(g)].

§ 25A.244 Agreement for Modification of Existing Loan

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is an agreement for use by a borrower and lender to modify the terms of an existing loan. The modification agreement should specifically describe the existing promissory note and the trust deed (or mortgage) securing it, and should set forth the terms of modification. Institutional lenders are restricted as to the type of loans that may be modified and the purposes for which modification may be made [see, e.g., 10 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 107.700-107.702 (state savings and loan associations)].

This form assumes that the relevant security instrument is a trust deed. However, it may be easily modified for use in conjunction with a mortgage.

[b] Effect on Junior Lien

This modification agreement is conditioned on the fact that no liens or encumbrances exist against the secured property except the lien created by the loan being modified. The modification agreement therefore has no effect on junior liens since there are none.

If there are junior liens and the modification agreement provides for the advance of additional funds on the loan that are to be secured by the original trust deed, the advances may or may not be superior to the junior liens. If future advances are obligatory on the lender, the lien of the original trust deed or mortgage is superior to liens of other encumbrancers that attach subsequent to execution of the trust deed or mortgage but prior to the making of the future advances [Fickling v. Jackman (1928) 203 Cal. 657, 662, 265 P. 810] . Conversely, if the future advances are merely optional with the lender, the lien of the trust deed or mortgage as to such future advances is inferior to liens or encumbrances that have attached subsequent to the execution of the trust deed or mortgage but prior to the making of the future advances, provided the lender has notice of the existence of the junior liens [Lumber & Builders Supply Co. v. Ritz (1933) 134 Cal. App. 607, 610-611, 25 P.2d 1002] .

MODIFICATION AGREEMENT

Loan No. _____

THIS AGREEMENT is made this _____ day of _____, [month], [year], by and between _____[name of lender] (the "Lender") and _____[name of borrower] (the "Borrower").

RECITALS

A. Lender has loaned to Borrower certain moneys evidenced by a promissory note (the "Note") dated _____, for $_____, which is secured by a Deed of Trust (the "Deed of Trust") to _____[name] as Trustee, recorded as Instrument No. _____ in Book _____, Page _____, Official Records of _____ County, California; and

B. Borrower desires to modify the terms of the Note and to remedy defaults, if any, in the Note.

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual covenants contained in this Agreement, Lender and Borrower agree as follows:

1. Borrower hereby acknowledges that the unpaid principal balance of the Note is $_____ and that the interest on that sum is payable at the rate of _____ percent per annum from _____[date], and hereby (a) waives (if and to the fullest extent such a waiver is permitted by law) the benefit of the statutes of limitations as now existing or hereafter amended in relation to the Note or any payments, extensions, or renewals of the Note; and (b) agrees and guarantees that any extensions, renewals, or forbearance of any portion of the obligation evidenced by the Note shall in no way affect Borrower's liability under the Note; and (c) agrees to pay all principal and interest of the Note in the time and manner set forth in Paragraph 2, below.

2. The terms for payment of the unpaid balance owing on the Note and interest on that amount are modified as follows: _____[set forth terms of modification, e.g., The principal of the Note and all accrued interest shall be due and payable on or before _____ [date], unless extended as provided in this paragraph. Provided no default exists under the Note or the Deed of Trust, the date for payment of principal may be extended to _____[date] on the payment of an extension fee of $_____]. In any event, the entire amount of unpaid principal and interest on the Note shall be due and payable on _____[date].

3. Borrower expressly represents that the Property described in the Deed of Trust is subject to no encumbrances subsequent to the Deed of Trust except taxes for the present fiscal year if not delinquent and that no one other than Borrower has any interest in the Property except as follows: [set forth exceptions, if any]. This agreement is executed by Lender and is to be effective only on the foregoing conditions.

4. Lender hereby agrees to the amendment of the terms of the Note to the extent specifically set forth in this Agreement, but only on the conditions stated in Paragraph 2, above and on the further condition that the amendment shall not prejudice any present or future rights, remedies, benefits, or powers belonging or accruing to Lender under the terms of the Note as hereby amended or of the Deed of Trust.

5. Except as otherwise provided in this Agreement, the Note and Deed of Trust shall remain unaffected, unchanged, and unimpaired by reason of the foregoing extension and amendment.

6. In this agreement, whenever the context so requires, the masculine gender includes the feminine and/or neuter, and the singular number includes the plural.

§ 25A.245 Statement of Account for Impound or Trust Account Funds

[1] Comment--Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a statement of account regarding funds received from a borrower during a calendar year and disbursed from an impound or trust account for the payment of taxes and insurance on property subject to a mortgage, trust deed, or real property sales contract [see Civ. Code § 2954(b)]. Every mortgagee, beneficiary, or seller under a real property sales contract, must, on request of the mortgagor, trustor, or buyer, furnish the requester with an itemized accounting of moneys (1) received for interest and principal repayment and (2) received and held in or disbursed from an impound or trust account, if any, for payment of taxes on the property, insurance premiums, or other purposes relating to the subject property. The statement must be furnished with 60 days after the end of the calendar year for which it is given [Civ. Code § 2954(b)].

The recipient of the statement may request a statement for a period covering a period other than a calendar year but must pay for such a special statement. Only one account statement for each calendar year must be provided free of charge [Civ. Code § 2954(b)].

In lieu of furnishing the above statement, the mortgagee, beneficiary, or seller may furnish a monthly statement or passbook showing moneys (1) received for interest and principal repayment and (2) received and held in and disbursed from an impound or trust account, if any [Civ. Code § 2954(b)].

An increase in the monthly rate of payment of a mortgagor, trustor, or buyer on a real property sales contract for impound or trust accounts is not effective until after the mortgagee, beneficiary, or seller has furnished the borrower with an itemized accounting of the moneys presently held by it in the accounts, a statement of the new monthly rate of payment, and an explanation of the factors necessitating the increase [Civ. Code § 2954(b)].

A person who willfully or repeatedly violates the statute requiring the statement of account is subject to a fine [Civ.

Code § 2954(b)].

For other requirements applicable to impound accounts, see § 25A.228[1].

§ 25A.246 Annual Statement of Creditor for Purchase-Money Obligations Secured by Residential Property

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a statement of account that must be given to borrowers by creditors of purchase-money obligations secured by residential real property. Specifically, the statement must be given to a mortgagor by every mortgagee when the mortgage is given as part of the purchase price for property containing only a one- to four-family residence (or to refinance such a mortgage) [Civ. Code § 2954.2(a)]. For these purposes, "mortgagee" includes a beneficiary under a trust deed, a seller under a real property sales contract, and an organization that services a mortgage or trust deed by receiving and disbursing payments for the mortgagee or beneficiary [Civ. Code § 2954.2(b)(1)]. "Mortgage" includes a first or second mortgage, a first or second trust deed, and a real property sales contract [Civ. Code § 2954.2(b)(2)].

[b] Contents of Notice

Within 60 days after the end of each calendar year, the mortgagee must give the mortgagor a written statement showing the amount of (1) moneys received for interest and principal repayment and late charges, (2) moneys received and held in or disbursed from an impound account, if any, for the payment of taxes on the property, insurance premiums, bond assessments, or other purposes relating to the property, and (3) any interest credited to such an impound account. Transmittal by the mortgagee to the mortgagor of cumulative statements or receipts that, for each calendar year, provide in one of the statements or receipts the information required by the statute, satisfies these disclosure requirements [Civ. Code § 2954.2(a)].

The statement must also include a notification in 10-point type that the mortgagor may request additional accountings pursuant to Civ. Code § 2954 [see § 25A.245]. The mortgagor is entitled to receive one statement for each calendar year without charge and without request [Civ. Code § 2954.2(a)].

§ 25A.247 Beneficiaries' Agreement to Be Governed by Majority Interest Holders [Civ. Code § 2941.9(b)]

[1] Comment--Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is an agreement under which all of the beneficiaries under a trust deed agree to be governed by beneficiaries holding more than 50 percent of the record beneficial interest of a series of notes secured by the same real property or of undivided interests in a note secured by real property equivalent to a series transaction, exclusive of any notes or interests of a licensed real estate broker that is the issuer or servicer of the notes or interests or any affiliate of that licensed real estate broker [Civ. Code § 2941.9(a); see Civ. Code § 2941.9(e) ("affiliate of the licensed real estate broker" defined)]. This publication uses the term "majority interest holders" to refer to the beneficiaries granted this authority. Under Civ. Code § 2941.9, which establishes this process, all holders of notes secured by the same real property or series of undivided interests in notes secured by real property equivalent to a series transaction must agree in writing (this form) to be governed by the foregoing majority interest holders with respect to actions to be taken on behalf of all holders in the event of default or foreclosure for matters that require direction or approval of the holders, including designation of the broker, servicing agent, or other person acting on their behalf, and the sale, encumbrance, or lease of real property owned by the holders resulting from foreclosure or receipt of a deed in lieu of foreclosure [Civ. Code § 2941.9(b)].

A description of this agreement must be disclosed pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 10232.5 (governing the contents of disclosure statements given to prospective lenders or purchasers in certain transactions involving the negotiation and/or sale of secured obligations) [see Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans, § 25.560], and must be included in a recorded document, such as the deed of trust or the assignment of interests [Civ. Code § 2941.9(c)].

Actions taken pursuant to the authority granted in Civ. Code § 2941.9 are not effective unless all of the parties agreeing to the action sign, under penalty of perjury, a separate written document entitled "Majority Action Affidavit" [see Civ. Code § 2941.9(d)]. For such a document, see § 25A.248.

§ 25A.248 Majority Action Affidavit [Civ. Code § 2941.9(d)]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a "Majority Action Affidavit" reflecting the requirements of Civ. Code § 2941.9 [for coverage of these requirements, see § 25A.247[1]]. Actions taken pursuant to the authority granted in Civ. Code § 2941.9 are not effective unless all the parties agreeing to the action sign, under penalty, a separate written document (this form) entitled "Majority Action Affidavit" stating the following [Civ. Code § 2941.9(d)]:

- The action has been authorized pursuant to Civ. Code § 2941.9.
- None of the undersigned is a licensed real estate broker or an affiliate of the broker that is the issuer or servicer of the obligation secured by the deed of trust.
- The undersigned together hold more than 50 percent of the record beneficial interest of a series of notes secured by the same real property or of undivided interests in a note secured by real property equivalent to a series transaction.
- Notice of the action was sent by certified mail, postage prepaid, with return receipt requested, to each holder of an interest in the obligation secured by the deed of trust who has not joined in the execution of the document.

[b] Recordation and Effect

The Majority Action Affidavit must be recorded in the office of the county recorder of each county in which the real property described in the deed of trust is located. Once it is recorded, it constitutes conclusive evidence of compliance with the requirements of Civ. Code § 2941.9(d) in favor of trustees acting pursuant to Civ. Code § 2941.9, substituted trustees acting pursuant to Civ. Code § 2934a [see Ch. 25C, Release and Reconveyance], subsequent assignees of the obligation secured by the deed of trust, and subsequent bona fide purchasers or encumbrancers for value of the real property described in the document [Civ. Code § 2941.9(d)].

This chapter covers the subordination, assumption, and assignment of trust deeds and mortgages. It includes the forms and procedure for effecting a subordination both through a clause in a deed of trust and through a separate subordination agreement. Statutory notices required for certain subordination clauses and agreements are also discussed.

This chapter also covers the assumption of obligations secured by real property and the assignment of the rights and interests in promissory notes and the mortgages or trust deeds securing the notes.

For detailed coverage of deeds of trust in general and other security instruments used in real property financing, see Ch. 25A, Security Instruments for Real Estate Financing . Partial release provisions, which are often included in a deed of trust containing a subordination clause, are covered in Ch. 25C, Release and Reconveyance .

DIVISION II: REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 25B SUBORDINATION, ASSUMPTION, AND ASSIGNMENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Subordination

10-25B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 25B.10

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 25B.10 Subordination Defined

"Subordination" refers to the establishment of priority between different existing encumbrances on the same parcel of property by some means other than the basic priority principles ordinarily applicable to competing liens [Middlebrook-Anderson Co. v. Southwest Sav. & Loan Assn. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 1023, 1030, 96 Cal. Rptr. 338]. When the owner of an interest in real property agrees to subordinate that interest to another interest in the same property, the owner is agreeing to place his or her interest in a lesser position or status in relation to the other interest, making his or her interest subject or subservient to the other interest. In effect, the agreement to subordinate one encumbrance to another allows the second encumbrance to usurp the priority of the encumbrance that is to be subordinated [Connell v. Zaid (1969) 268 Cal. App. 2d 788, 792, 74 Cal. Rptr. 371]. The importance of priority is illustrated by the fact that the foreclosure of a lien on real property having priority over other liens on the same property may extinguish the other liens [see Rheem Mfg. Co. v. United States (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 621, 625, 21 Cal. Rptr. 802, 371 P.2d 578]. For discussion of rights and remedies of junior lienholders faced with foreclosure of the senior lien, see California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 120, Representing a Client After Default (Matthew Bender).

DIVISION II: REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 25B SUBORDINATION, ASSUMPTION, AND ASSIGNMENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Subordination

10-25B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 25B.11

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 25B.11 Priority of Mortgages and Trust Deeds

[1] "First in Time, First in Priority" Rule

A mortgage on real property creates a lien, vested in the mortgagee, on the encumbered real property [see Bank of Italy etc. Ass'n v. Bentley (1933) 217 Cal. 644, 654, 20 P.2d 940]. A deed of trust on real property given for security purposes conveys to the trustee a peculiar type of legal title to the property much like the lien created by a mortgage [see Bank of Italy etc. Ass'n v. Bentley (1933) 217 Cal. 644, 654-658, 20 P.2d 940]. For purposes of subordination and priority, the title obtained by a trustee under a trust deed given for security purposes is treated the same as the lien created by a mortgage [see Fickling v. Jackman (1928) 203 Cal. 657, 661, 265 P. 810].

Other things being equal, different liens on the same property have priority according to the time of their creation, except in cases of bottomry and respondentia [Civ. Code § 2897; see Harb. & Nav. Code §§ 450, 470 (cases of bottomry and respondentia arise only in relation to ships and their cargoes)]. Therefore, the first mortgage or trust deed creating a lien on real property has priority over all other mortgages, trust deeds, or liens on the same property, "other things being equal." The limited situations in which "other things" are not considered "equal" are if the subsequently created lien is for unpaid taxes [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 2192.1] or is entitled to priority because of the recording laws. Under the recording laws, a subsequently created lien is entitled to priority only if it was recorded before the earlier mortgage or trust deed and was acquired for a valuable consideration in good faith without notice of the existence of the unrecorded mortgage or trust deed [see Civ. Code § 1214].

The time when a lien created by a real property mortgage or trust deed comes into existence and attaches to the encumbered real property is the later of (1) the performance of the last act required to make the obligation secured by the mortgage or trust deed binding on the lender, or (2) the recordation and delivery of the mortgage or trust deed to the mortgagee or beneficiary [see Western Loan & Bldg. Co. v. Scheib (1933) 218 Cal. 386, 389-390, 23 P.2d 745 ; Fickling v. Jackman (1928) 203 Cal. 657, 662, 265 P. 810 . For example, if a mortgage or trust deed to secure future advances is recorded before the advances are loaned to the trus]tor, and the making of the advances is obligatory on the part of the mortgagee or beneficiary, the lien of the security instrument attaches to the encumbered real property as of the date the instrument was recorded or delivered. However, if the making of the advances is optional with the mortgagee or beneficiary, the lien of the mortgage or trust deed does not attach to the encumbered property until the date or dates the advances are actually made [Fickling v. Jackman (1928) 203 Cal. 657, 662, 265 P. 810].

[2] Purchase Money Security Instruments

An exception to the "first in time, first in priority" rule applicable to liens and encumbrances is the special statutory priority given to a real property purchase money mortgage or trust deed. A mortgage or trust deed given for the price of real property at the time of the conveyance of the property to the purchaser has priority over all other liens created against the purchaser, subject to the operation of the recording laws [Civ. Code § 2898; see Tolman v. Smith (1890) 85 Cal. 280, 285-286, 24 P. 743].

The purpose of this exception is to prevent a trust deed or mortgage given by the purchaser and recorded before delivery of the deed conveying the property to him or her from gaining priority over the purchaser's contemporaneous mortgage or trust deed to the vendor securing the unpaid purchase price [see Walley v. P.M.C. Inv. Co. (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 218, 220, 68 Cal. Rptr. 711]. For purposes of establishing priority, the deed to the purchaser and his or her purchase money mortgage or trust deed back to the seller are considered contemporaneous acts, and no lien or charge against the purchaser can be prior to the rights of the vendor under his or her mortgage or trust deed [Walley v. P.M.C. Inv. Co. (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 218, 220, 68 Cal. Rptr. 711]. Thus, a deed or mortgage given by the purchaser and recorded before delivery of the deed to him or her is subject and subordinate to the mortgage or deed of trust given by the purchaser, contemporaneously with conveyance of title to him or her, to the property seller as security for the unpaid purchase price of the property [Ludy v. Zumwalt (1927) 85 Cal. App. 119, 125, 259 P. 52]. In like manner, an abstract of judgment against the purchaser recorded before delivery of the grant deed to the purchaser creates a lien on all property owned by the purchaser, but does not gain priority over a purchase money deed of trust executed and delivered by the purchaser at the time title to the purchased property was conveyed to him or her [Mercantile Collection Bureau v. Roach (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 355, 359, 15 Cal. Rptr. 710].

The statute giving a purchase money mortgage or deed of trust priority over all other liens is subject to operation of the recording laws [see Civ. Code § 2898]. Therefore, a purchase money mortgage or trust deed does not have priority over a subsequently created lien in favor of a person who parted with value in good faith for the lien, that was recorded before the purchase money mortgage or trust deed [see Middlebrook-Anderson Co. v. Southwest Sav. & Loan Assn. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 1023, 1030, 96 Cal. Rptr. 338].

§ 25B.12 Use of Subordination Clauses and Agreements

Any person owning an interest in real property can agree to subordinate that interest to some other interest in that property owned by another person. Most commonly, however, it is the interest of the holder of a mortgage, trust deed, or other lien that is subordinated to a later mortgage, trust deed, or lien on the subject property [Miller, Starr & Regalia, Subordination Agreements in California, 13 U.C.L.A. L. Rev. 1298 n.1 (1966)].

The subordination of one mortgage or trust deed to another may be useful in a number of situations. For example, the owner of real property may seek to have the holder of a junior trust deed on the property subordinate that security instrument to a new "first" deed of trust so that the property owner can use the new first loan proceeds to pay off the existing first (and any other superior) trust deeds on the property and reduce the owner's monthly payments [see Connell v. Zaid (1969) 268 Cal. App. 2d 788, 791-792, 74 Cal. Rptr. 371]. However, the usual situation involving a subordination clause or agreement occurs when real property is sold for commercial development or subdivision purposes [see Connell v. Zaid (1969) 268 Cal. App. 2d 788, 792, 74 Cal. Rptr. 371].

Until a development or subdivision is complete, a developer is usually unable to borrow enough money from a commercial lending institution on the security of the land and proposed development to pay for both the purchase price of the land and the costs of constructing improvements on the land. Therefore, the seller of the land intended for development typically agrees to accept a promissory note secured by a trust deed or mortgage on the land for a portion of its purchase price, and the developer obtains from a commercial lending institution a construction loan or loans to finance construction of the proposed development or subdivision [see Ch. 30A, Construction Financing].

Construction loans made by commercial lenders are generally conditioned on the construction loan being granted first priority lien status. Therefore, if the borrower/developer has already given a purchase money deed of trust (or mortgage) to the seller of the property, the developer generally cannot finance the development of the property without finding a way to make the purchase money trust deed subordinate, subject to, and subservient to the construction loan trust deeds required by the construction lenders [see Miller, Starr & Regalia, Subordination Agreements in California, 13 U.C.L.A.

The two common methods of arranging for the construction lender to hold the first lien on the property to be developed are (1) executing an express subordination agreement in which the land seller agrees to make the lien of his or her purchase money encumbrance subject to the construction loan, and (2) recording the construction loan encumbrance before recording the purchase money encumbrance [Middlebrook-Anderson Co. v. Southwest Sav. & Loan Assn. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 1023, 1030, 96 Cal. Rptr. 338]. It appears that the same rules on enforcement and recognition of subordination agreements apply to both methods of subordinating a purchase money mortgage or trust deed to a construction loan mortgage or trust deed [Middlebrook-Anderson Co. v. Southwest Sav. & Loan Assn. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 1023, 1034, 96 Cal. Rptr. 338].

To summarize, in the normal subordination situation, the vendor provides the land, the purchaser provides the expertise, and the purchaser's lender provides the capital, all for the mutually beneficial purpose of developing the land and disposing of it (usually by sale, but occasionally by rental). This arrangement produces a fund out of which the vendor is paid for the land, the lender is repaid its loan with interest, and the purchaser receives compensation for his or her efforts and skill [Miller v. Citizens Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 655, 662-663, 56 Cal. Rptr. 844].

§ 25B.13 Statutory Restrictions on Subordination Clauses and Agreements

Subject to certain exceptions, every real property security instrument that contains or has attached to it a subordination clause, and every subordination agreement, must contain prescribed notices and descriptive captions [see Civ. Code §§ 2953.1-2953.3]. A subordination clause or subordination agreement subject to these statutes that does not comply with their requirements is voidable by the person whose security interest is to be subordinated [Civ. Code § 2953.4]. For the statutory requirements for the notices and captions, see §§ 25B.201, 25B.202, 25B.208, and 25B.209. For a form that may be used to give notice of noncompliance with the statutory requirements, see § 25B.210.

Exempt from these statutory requirements are subordination clauses or agreements that expressly state that the subordinating loan will exceed $25,000 [Civ. Code § 2953.5(a)] or that are executed in connection with a loan that exceeds $25,000 [Civ. Code § 2953.5(b)]. Although the statutory requirements therefore have little or no effect on most real estate subdivision and commercial development projects in California [Miller, Starr & Regalia, Subordination Agreements in California, 13 U.C.L.A. L. Rev. 1298, 1300 n.6 (1966)], they are nevertheless commonly complied with by large institutional lenders.

For these purposes, a "subordination clause" is a clause in a real property mortgage, trust deed, or installment sales contract in which the mortgagee, beneficiary, or installment seller agrees either that (1) on the happening of specified conditions, his or her security interest in the land will become subordinated to the lien of another mortgage, trust deed, or land contract encumbering the land, or (2) on the happening of specified conditions, he or she will execute an agreement subordinating the security interest to the lien of another mortgage, trust deed, or land contract encumbering the land [Civ. Code § 2953.1(b)]. A "subordination agreement" is defined as a separate agreement or instrument by which the holder of a security interest under a real property mortgage, deed of trust, or installment sales contract agrees either that (1) the existing security interest is subordinate to the lien of another mortgage or deed of trust encumbering the same land, or (2) on the occurrence of specified conditions the security interest will become subordinated to the lien of another mortgage or deed of trust, or (3) on the occurrence of specified conditions he or she will execute an agreement subordinating the interest to the lien of another mortgage or deed of trust [Civ. Code § 2953.1(c)].

§ 25B.14 Subordination Clauses in Trust Deeds

[1] Types of Subordination Clauses

The types of subordination clauses commonly used in California real property mortgages and deeds of trust have been described and labeled differently by different authorities [see Middlebrook-Anderson Co. v. Southwest Sav. & Loan Assn. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 1023, 1030, 96 Cal. Rptr. 338 ; see also Lascher, Subordination Clauses in Court: Is California Unfair to Unfairness?, 1 U. San Fernando Valley L. Rev. 1 (1967)]. Basically, however, there are two types of subordination clauses commonly used in California real property mortgages and trust deeds. The first type is generally referred to as an "automatic subordination" clause [see Woodworth v. Redwood Empire Sav. & Loan Assn. (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 347, 351, 99 Cal. Rptr. 373]. The second type has been called an "executory subordination" or "promise to subordinate" clause [Miller, Starr & Regalia, Subordination Agreements in California, 13 U.C.L.A. L. Rev. 1298, 1300 (1966)].

[2] Automatic Subordination Clauses

An automatic subordination clause provides that the mortgage or deed of trust in which it is contained will automatically be subordinated to the lien of a subsequently executed and recorded mortgage or trust deed containing certain specified terms or securing a loan not exceeding a specified amount repayable on specified terms. An automatic subordination clause is specifically enforceable only if it specifies the terms of the loan to which the trust deed will be subordinated [Handy v. Gordon (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 578, 581, 55 Cal. Rptr. 769, 422 P.2d 329 ; see § 25B.16[1]]. For a complete list of those required terms, see § 25B.18.

A purchaser who intends to develop the land commercially or for subdivision purposes usually bargains for inclusion of this type of subordination clause in the purchase money trust deed, to avoid having to return to the seller after a construction loan is obtained and negotiate the seller's subordination of the purchase money trust deed. Notwithstanding the inclusion of such a clause, lending institutions and title companies, as a condition to making and insuring the loan secured by the subsequently executed mortgage or deed of trust, invariably require the holder of the mortgage or trust deed containing an automatic subordination clause to execute a separate subordination instrument, just as if the subordination clause were executory [see § 25B.16[4]].

[3] Executory Subordination Clauses

An "executory subordination" or "promise to subordinate" clause is a clause by which the mortgagee or beneficiary of the mortgage or trust deed in which the clause is contained promises to execute a separate instrument subordinating the mortgage or trust deed to a subsequent mortgage or trust deed at the time the subsequent security instrument is to be recorded [see Miller, Starr, & Regalia, Subordination Agreements in California, 13 U.C.L.A. L. Rev. 1298, 1300 (1966)]. To be specifically enforceable and not merely an agreement to agree in the future, the executory subordination or "promise to subordinate" clause must include details of the permissible terms, conditions, and purposes of the loan to which the mortgage or trust deed containing the "promise to subordinate" clause is to be subordinated [Handy v. Gordon (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 578, 581, 55 Cal. Rptr. 769, 422 P.2d 329 ; see § 25B.17]. For a complete list of those required terms, see § 25B.18.

§ 25B.15 De Facto Subordination

"De facto" subordination is a common way to subordinate purchase money real property mortgages and trust deeds without using either an automatic or executory subordination clause in the trust deed. Under this method, the parties agree (usually in the land sale contract or in escrow instructions) to record the construction loan mortgage or deed of trust before the purchase money mortgage or trust deed, giving priority to the earlier-recorded instrument. The same rules and limitations applicable to subordination achieved through an automatic subordination or "promise to subordinate" clause also apply to a de facto subordination [Middlebrook-Anderson Co. v. Southwest Sav. & Loan Assn. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 1023, 1034, 96 Cal. Rptr. 338 ; see § 25B.16].

A variation of the de facto subordination method is the insertion in a deed of trust or mortgage of a clause expressly stating that it is subject and subordinate to another specifically described trust deed or mortgage [see § 25B.205]. Such a provision cannot be used, of course, unless the mortgage to have priority is in existence at the time the subordinated mortgage or trust deed is drafted.

§ 25B.16 Effectiveness of "Automatic Subordination" Clauses

[1] Enforceability

Two primary issues have arisen in California courts concerning the enforceability and effectiveness of automatic subordination clauses in contracts for the sale of real property.

The first issue is the enforceability by specific performance of the seller's obligation to accept a mortgage or trust deed containing an automatic subordination clause as security for payment of the purchase price. A contract of sale is not specifically enforceable against the seller unless it specifies in detail the terms of the loan to which the mortgage or deed of trust will be subordinated [Handy v. Gordon (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 578, 581, 55 Cal. Rptr. 769, 422 P.2d 329 (specific terms of subordinating loan required in executory subordination clause); Woodworth v. Redwood Empire Sav. & Loan Assn. (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 347, 361, 99 Cal. Rptr. 373 (Handy principles of fair dealing for executory subordination agreements applicable to automatic subordination agreements); see § 25B.17]. For a complete list of terms that must be described, see § 25B.18. A buyer may be able to waive an invalid subordination provision unconditionally and obtain specific performance of the remainder of the sales contract [see Reeder v. Longo (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 291, 295-297, 182 Cal. Rptr. 287 ; see also § 25B.17].

The second issue concerns the effectiveness of an automatic subordination clause contained in an executed and recorded security instrument to give priority to a subsequent mortgage or trust deed. Under an automatic subordination clause, a subsequently executed mortgage or deed of trust gains priority over the mortgage or trust deed containing the clause without further action by the original mortgagee or trust deed beneficiary, provided that the subsequently executed instrument complies with the terms specified in the automatic subordination clause [Carpenson v. Najarian (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 856, 864-865, 62 Cal. Rptr. 687]. This is true despite the fact that the automatic subordination clause may be too indefinite to allow a contract of sale requiring the seller to accept a trust deed containing the clause to be specifically enforced against the seller. Once the mortgage or trust deed containing the clause has been executed, delivered, accepted, and recorded the question is not one of prospective enforcement but compliance by a subsequent mortgage or trust deed with the subordination conditions, however scanty, contained in the clause [Jones v. Sacramento Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 522, 527 n.4, 56 Cal. Rptr. 741].

PRACTICE TIP:

Advances. Lenders should identify in the trust deed what additional advances necessary to protect the senior lender's security interest are considered obligatory, and thus would have priority over junior lienholders. Payments of delinquent property taxes, insurance premiums, and prior encumbrances are obvious examples of obligatory advances that would maintain the senior lender's priority. Senior lenders should expand this list to include the payment of mechanic's lienholders with claims of priority, receivership fees and expenses, and necessary building repairs. While not necessarily determinative of what constitutes an obligatory payment, the clause places junior lenders on notice and should help protect the advance's priority. Commentary by Timothy F. O'Leary

[2] Noncomplying Loan

Rights of priority under an agreement of subordination extend to and are limited strictly by the express terms and conditions of the subordination agreement [Irvine v. California Cotton Credit Corp. (1937) 18 Cal. App. 2d 761, 763, 64 P.2d 782]. A subsequently executed mortgage or trust deed that does not comply with the terms specified in an automatic subordination clause does not gain priority over the mortgage or trust deed containing the clause [Miller v. Citizens Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 655, 663, 56 Cal. Rptr. 844 ; Jones v. Sacramento Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 522, 526, 56 Cal. Rptr. 741 ; Collins v. Home Savings & Loan Ass'n (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 86, 95, 22 Cal. Rptr. 817].

[3] Misapplication of Construction Loan Funds

If the automatic subordination clause provides for subordination only to a trust deed or mortgage that secures a construction loan, a construction lender who allows proceeds of the construction loan to be misapplied to other purposes may lose the priority otherwise afforded the mortgage or trust deed by the automatic subordination clause [Miller v. Citizens Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 655, 664, 56 Cal. Rptr. 844]. However, the construction lender may be given an equitable lien having priority over the trust deed or mortgage containing the automatic subordination clause for the portion of the construction loan funds actually used in the construction of improvements on the encumbered property [Jones v. Sacramento Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 522, 529-530, 56 Cal. Rptr. 741], or the loan may be held to have lost priority only as to the amounts misapplied to purposes other than construction of improvements on the encumbered property [Miller v. Citizens Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 655, 665, 56 Cal. Rptr. 844].

A construction lender's claim that its construction loan trust deed or mortgage is entitled to priority over the purchase money mortgage or trust deed containing a subordination clause is based on principles of the law of contract, not the law of negligence. The lender's claim to priority flows from the subordination provisions of the mortgage or trust deed contract between the land seller and buyer. It is only as a result of the seller's waiver in that instrument of the statutory right to a first lien that the construction lender is entitled to claim priority. Thus, to the extent the construction lender does not comply with the conditions of the seller's waiver as set forth in the subordination clause, the construction lender's mortgage or trust deed is not entitled to priority over that of the seller. One condition of the seller's waiver is the proper use of the construction loan funds secured by the construction lender's mortgage or trust deed, and consequently the priority of the construction loan mortgage or trust deed does not vest until those funds are applied to the construction purpose [Middlebrook-Anderson Co. v. Southwest Sav. & Loan Assn. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 1023, 1033, 96 Cal. Rptr. 338].

Strong public policy reasons exist to protect the holder of a subordinated purchase money mortgage or trust deed. As between the land seller and the construction lender, the construction lender, usually a financial institution constantly engaged in professional construction lending, is in a better position by far to control use of the construction loan proceeds. The lender, unlike the seller, can require documented evidence before making any disbursements of the construction loan funds that expenses have been incurred, and can corroborate that evidence by on-site inspections [Middlebrook-Anderson Co. v. Southwest Sav. & Loan Assn. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 1023, 1036-1037, 96 Cal. Rptr. 338]. Therefore, the construction lender's trust deed should not be advanced or preferred over the seller's interest in the land if an implied agreement can and, in equity, should be spelled out, and the construction lender has no reason to believe its trust deed conferred any lien to which the seller's interest was subordinate other than to the extent of money spent for construction purposes [Middlebrook-Anderson Co.v. Southwest Sav. & Loan Assn. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 1023, 1037, 96 Cal. Rptr. 338]. The Middlebrook-Anderson case has been interpreted as imposing on a construction lender an implied agreement that its mortgage or trust deed has priority over the subordinated purchase money mortgage or trust deed only to the extent construction loan amounts are properly expended for construction purposes [Gluskin v. Atlantic Savings & Loan Assn. (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 307, 314, 108 Cal. Rptr. 318].

Any limitation on the use of loan proceeds must be expressly described in the subordination clause or agreement [Roskamp Manley Associates, Inc. v. Davin Development & Investment Corp. (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 513, 521, 229 Cal. Rptr. 186 ; see § 25B.18]. If the subordination agreement authorizes application of a part of the loan proceeds to purposes other than construction or development, the part so applied retains its priority [Schneider v. Ampliflo Corp. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 637, 639-640, 196 Cal. Rptr. 172]. Similarly, the construction lender does not lose priority over a purchase money mortgage or deed of trust if the holder of the otherwise subordinated purchase money security instrument actively participates in borrowing and misapplying the construction loan funds [Woodworth v. Redwood Empire Sav. & Loan Assn. (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 347, 364-365, 99 Cal. Rptr. 373].

The same public policy reasons that impose a duty on a construction lender to see that construction loan funds are not misapplied also preclude the construction lender from making a material modification in the construction loan without the consent of the holder of a purchase money mortgage or trust deed that has been subordinated to the construction loan, if the modification will affect the rights of the holder [Gluskin v. Atlantic Savings & Loan Assn. (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 307, 314, 108 Cal. Rptr. 318]. Such a modification, made without the consent of the holder of the purchase money security instrument, destroys the priority that the construction loan mortgage or trust deed would otherwise have over the subordinated purchase money security instrument [Gluskin v. Atlantic Savings & Loan Assn. (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 307, 314, 108 Cal. Rptr. 318 ; see Lennar Northeast Partners v. Buice Irrevocable Trust (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1576, 1588, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 435 (material modification resulted in loss of priority only for modification, when the liens were held by hard-money lenders; court distinguished Gluskin on ground that it involved subordinating seller)].

[4] Separate Subsequent Subordination Agreements

In dealing with a purchase money mortgage or deed of trust that contains an automatic subordination clause, a construction lender and its title company almost universally require the holder of the purchase money security instrument to execute a separate agreement at the time a construction loan is actually made on the encumbered property, specifically subordinating the purchase money mortgage or trust deed to the specifically described construction loan mortgage or trust deed [see Miller et al., Subordination Agreements in California, 13 U.C.L.A. L. Rev. 1298, 1300 (1966)]. Without this separate agreement, the title company will not insure the priority of the lender's lien, and without insurance, the lender will not make the loan.

If there is a variation between the seller's original agreement to subordinate and the subsequent agreement required by the title company and lender, the new agreement must be intended as a novation and supported by new consideration in order to be enforceable. Otherwise, the two agreements will be interpreted together as two parts of a single transaction, as if the new agreement were intended to make the original clause specific or to implement it [Miller v. Citizens Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 655, 661, 56 Cal. Rptr. 844]. For an example and discussion of a subordination agreement intended to supersede an automatic subordination clause in a deed of trust, see § 25B.207.

§ 25B.17 Effectiveness of "Executory" or "Promise to Subordinate" Clauses

Under an executory or "promise to subordinate" clause, the mortgagee or beneficiary of the purchase money mortgage or trust deed promises to execute a subsequent instrument subordinating the security instrument to a subsequently executed mortgage or trust deed. It appears that if the "promise to subordinate" clause is a promise to subordinate to a construction loan, and the purchase money mortgagee or beneficiary fulfills the promise and executes an instrument specifically subordinating the purchase money mortgage or trust deed to a construction loan mortgage or trust deed, the construction lender has the same duty as it has under an automatic subordination clause--to see that the construction loan funds are not misapplied [see § 25B.16[3]; see also Middlebrook-Anderson Co. v. Southwest Sav. & Loan Assn. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 1023, 1036-1037, 96 Cal. Rptr. 338]. Thus, the construction lender loses priority over the subordinated purchase money mortgage or trust deed as to any portion of the construction loan fund not used for construction purposes [Middlebrook-Anderson Co. v. Southwest Sav. & Loan Assn. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 1023, 1037, 96 Cal. Rptr. 338]. The lender also loses priority over the purchase money mortgage or trust deed if, without the consent of the holder of the purchase money security instrument, the construction lender consents to a major modification in the construction loan and the modification materially affects rights under the subordinated purchase money mortgage or trust deed [Gluskin v. Atlantic Savings & Loan Assn. (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 307, 314, 108 Cal. Rptr. 318 ; see Lennar Northeast Partners v. Buice Irrevocable Trust (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1576, 1588, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 435].

Similarly, it appears that if the holder of a purchase money mortgage or trust deed refuses to fulfill a "promise to subordinate" clause contained in the instrument, the same rules applicable to a contract for the sale of real property that requires the seller to accept a purchase money mortgage or trust deed containing a subordination clause should apply to specific performance of the clause. A contract of sale containing a clause subordinating a seller's trust deed to other trust deeds securing loans for construction and permanent financing must be just and reasonable to be specifically enforceable [see Civ. Code § 3391(2)]. The subordination clause must contain terms that will define and minimize the risk that the subordinating liens will impair or destroy the seller's security [Handy v. Gordon (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 578, 581, 55 Cal. Rptr. 769, 422 P.2d 329]. Those terms may include (1) limits on the use to which the proceeds of the subordinating loans may be put to insure that their use will improve the value of the land, (2) maximum amounts so that the loans will not exceed the contemplated value of the improvements they finance, (3) requirements that the loans not exceed some specified percentage of the construction cost or value of the property as improved, and (4) specified amounts per square foot of construction, or other limits designed to protect the purchase money security [Handy v. Gordon (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 578, 581, 55 Cal. Rptr. 769, 422 P.2d 329]. Subsequent cases have followed the Handy rationale, further determining what loan terms must be included in a "just and reasonable" subordination clause [see § 25B.18].

However, in Thomas v. Fox [Thomas v. Fox (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 361, 368, 180 Cal. Rptr. 253], a case not involving a construction loan, the court specifically enforced a contract containing a subordination clause that did not set forth the terms of the subordinating loan. The buyer had agreed to purchase a trailer park for $450,000. Because the seller wished to negotiate a tax-free exchange under I.R.C. § 1031, the buyer agreed to pay $400,000 in cash and to give the seller a note and trust deed for $50,000. If the seller could find a party willing to exchange other property for the $50,000 trust deed, the trust deed would be subordinated to a new loan not to exceed 60 percent of the purchase price of $400,000 and assigned to the exchanging party. Otherwise, the buyer would pay the seller an additional $50,000 in cash. The subordination clause did not expose the seller to any risks, since the subordinated trust deed would either be transferred to the exchanging party in escrow or the seller would receive all cash for the property. Therefore, the contract was held to be fair and reasonable to the seller even in the absence of detailed loan provisions [Thomas v. Fox (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 361, 367, 180 Cal. Rptr. 253]. However, this holding was limited to a unique fact situation in which the seller had little or no risk of loss. Generally, the same issue of the seller's risk of loss applies to non-construction, as well as construction, subordinating loans [see Miller & Starr, California Real Estate (3d ed. West Group 2000), Ch. 11, Recording and Priorities, § 11:191].

A subsidiary question not present in the case of a wholly executory contract of sale requiring the seller to accept a purchase money mortgage or trust deed containing an indefinite subordination clause, exists in the case of an indefinite "promise to subordinate" clause contained in an already executed purchase money mortgage or trust deed. The courts have held that if a contract of sale requires the seller to accept a purchase money deed of trust or mortgage containing a subordination clause, and the subordination clause as described in the contract is too indefinite and uncertain, and therefore not just and reasonable to the seller [see Handy v. Gordon (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 578, 581, 55 Cal. Rptr. 769, 422 P.2d 329], the entire contract is unenforceable [Magna Development Co. v. Reed (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 230, 238, 39 Cal. Rptr. 284]. Furthermore, the contract cannot be made specifically enforceable by the buyer's conditional waiver of the invalid subordination provisions [Magna Development Co. v. Reed (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 230, 242, 243, 39 Cal. Rptr. 284]. In Magna Development Co. v. Reed [(1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 230, 242, 39 Cal. Rptr. 284], the court held that the buyer's agreement to waive the subordination provision only if the court found that the provision, as a matter of law, made the sales contract uncertain was merely a conditional waiver made on the eve of a summary judgment procedure. However, a buyer may waive an invalid subordination provision and obtain specific performance of the remaining provisions of a real estate sales contract if (1) the subordination provision was inserted solely for the buyer's benefit, and (2) the waiver is complete and unconditional [Reeder v. Longo (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 291, 295-297, 182 Cal. Rptr. 287]. In Reeder, a large down payment and small purchase money note indicated that the subordination provision was inserted solely for the buyer's benefit. Moreover, a complete and unconditional waiver was indicated by the fact that the subordination clause was drafted by the seller's attorney, and that the buyer agreed to the identical agreement minus the subordination clause [Reeder v. Longo (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 291, 295-297, 182 Cal. Rptr. 287] .

In a completed real estate transaction, when the seller has already conveyed title to the buyer and accepted back a mortgage or trust deed as security for payment of the purchase price, the question arises whether or not the transaction is void in its entirety if the purchase money mortgage or trust deed contains a "promise to subordinate" clause that is too indefinite and uncertain to be specifically enforced. The California courts have apparently not, as yet, had to answer this subordination question. However, in a related situation, the courts have held that if a partial release clause contained in a purchase money mortgage or trust deed is too indefinite to be specifically enforced, a sale that is already otherwise complete will not be invalidated [Lawrence v. Shutt (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 749, 763-764, 75 Cal. Rptr. 533], even though such a clause would invalidate an executory contract of sale [see White Point Co. v. Herrington (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 458, 469, 73 Cal. Rptr. 885].

§ 25B.18 Required Contents of Subordination Clauses and Agreements

The volume and complexity of reported cases indicate the difficulty that real estate developers and their attorneys have encountered in drafting satisfactory subordination agreements and clauses. This difficulty is attributable to a conflict between the legitimate needs and goals of real estate developers and the equally legitimate needs of sellers. To develop a parcel or tract successfully, a developer must obtain financing [see § 25B.12]. Since the terms under which lending institutions are willing to extend financing vary greatly, it is difficult for a developer to know at the time the sale contract is executed how much money will actually be lent, what the interest rate will be, and what "points" the lender will charge. A seller, on the other hand, must be able to determine with some degree of certainty what the terms and conditions of the subordinating loan will be, to be able to decide whether the sale transaction, with the defined terms of the subordination agreement or clause, represents an acceptable risk. In the ongoing struggle between developers and sellers, the courts have extended special protections to the sellers, citing "strong public policy reasons" [Middlebrook-Anderson Co. v. Southwest Sav. & Loan Assn. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 1023, 1036, 96 Cal. Rptr. 338]. Without those protections, the seller is forced to rely entirely on the buyer's good faith and ability as a developer to ensure that the seller will not lose both the land and the purchase price [Handy v. Gordon (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 578, 581, 55 Cal. Rptr. 769, 422 P.2d 329].

An enforceable subordination agreement or clause must at least specify the maximum principal, maximum interest rate, maximum term, and mode of repayment of the subordinating loan [Cummins v. Gates (1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 532, 540, 45 Cal. Rptr. 417 ; see Miller & Starr, California Real Estate (3d ed. West Group 2000), Ch. 11, Recording and Priorities, § 11:191]. However, it must also be just and reasonable to the seller [Handy v. Gordon (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 578, 581, 55 Cal. Rptr. 769, 422 P.2d 329]. Although there is no "magic number" of terms that will insure a just and reasonable subordination clause or agreement as a matter of law [Roskamp Manley Associates, Inc. v. Davin Development & Investment Corp. (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 513, 521, 229 Cal. Rptr. 186], the courts have repeatedly stated that an enforceable subordination clause or agreement must contain terms that define and limit the seller's risk [Handy v. Gordon (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 578, 581, 55 Cal. Rptr. 769, 422 P.2d 329 ; see § 25B.17] and that leave no material element to the future agreement of the parties [Krasley v. Superior Court (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 425, 431, 161 Cal. Rptr. 629]. Therefore, an enforceable subordination agreement or clause should, at the minimum, specify all of the following [see Roskamp Manley Associates, Inc. v. Davin Development & Investment Corp. (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 513, 518, 229 Cal. Rptr. 186]:

- The maximum principal amount of the subordinating loan;
- The maximum interest rate to be charged under the subordinating loan;
- The term (that is, the maturity date) of the subordinating loan;
- Maximum loan fees and costs and whether they are to be paid from the principal amount of the subordinating loan;
- Repayment terms, including any provisions for balloon payments;
- Prepayment terms, such as maximum prepayment penalties;
- That the proceeds of the development loan may not be used for any purpose other than construction on or development of the subject property, or other restrictions on use of loan proceeds;
- Existence and terms of any commitment for "take-out" or permanent financing after completion of the construction or development; and
- That the new loan will be made by a bank, life insurance company or correspondent thereof, building and loan association, savings and loan association, or other institutional lender [see Starr v. Mooslin (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 988, 1000, 92 Cal. Rptr. 583 (attorney found negligent when subordination clause did not require loan from institutional lender)].

§ 25B.19 Effectiveness of Recording Subordinating Construction Loan First

One method used to avoid the problems incidental to automatic subordination and "promise to subordinate" clauses in purchase money mortgages and trust deeds is to hold escrow for the sale of property open until construction financing has been arranged by the buyer and then, pursuant to an agreement with the seller, record the construction loan mortgage or trust deed before recording the purchase money mortgage or trust deed [see Middlebrook-Anderson Co. v. Southwest Sav. & Loan Assn. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 1023, 1030, 96 Cal. Rptr. 338 ; see also § 25B.15]. Whether or not this procedure constitutes "subordination" is the subject of some dispute.

According to one view, no subordination in fact has taken place since the seller of the property never had a first lien to "subordinate" to the construction loan. Proponents of this view cite in its support a 1963 case [see Spaziani v. Millar (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 667, 681, 30 Cal. Rptr. 658]. In Spaziani, the court held that a lender's first recorded trust deed did not lose priority over a subsequently recorded purchase money trust deed because the lender's loan was not for construction purposes. However, the only subordination agreement involved in that case was a recital in a purchase contract that the seller's trust deed would be subordinate to a deed of trust securing a loan for a specified sum, with no reference to construction purposes. The seller's only remedy was a suit for breach of contract against the buyer; he or she had no remedy against the construction lender [see Miller, Starr & Regalia, Subordination Agreements in California, 13 U.C.L.A. L. Rev. 1298, 1301, 1309-1312 (1966)].

Another view is that recording the construction loan mortgage or trust deed before recording the purchase money mortgage or trust deed constitutes a subordination of the purchase money mortgage or trust deed, and the provision in the sales contract or escrow instructions authorizing such a procedure is a subordination clause. Therefore, if an institutional lender making a construction loan on real property knows that payment to the land's seller of a portion of the purchase price of the property has been deferred, the construction lender should incur the same liabilities for misapplication of the construction loan funds whether the lender's construction loan mortgage or trust deed was recorded ahead of the purchase money mortgage or trust deed or the purchase money mortgage or trust deed was recorded first and subordinated under an automatic subordination clause in it to the lender's construction loan mortgage or trust deed [Middlebrook-Anderson Co. v. Southwest Sav. & Loan Assn. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 1023, 1034, 96 Cal. Rptr. 338]. The Middlebrook court held that there is no justification, legal or otherwise, that would call for a different result when the seller in a joint transaction records his or her mortgage or trust deed first and agrees it will be subordinated to a construction loan, and when the seller agrees the construction lender may achieve priority by recording its construction loan mortgage or trust deed before his or her purchase money security instrument is recorded [Middlebrook-Anderson Co. v. Southwest Sav. & Loan Assn. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 1023, 1034, 96 Cal. Rptr. 338]. In either case, the court held, a subordination agreement exists and the lender has a duty to protect the seller's security interest by seeing to the fair application of the construction loan funds [Middlebrook-Anderson Co. v. Southwest Sav. & Loan Assn. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 1023, 1037-1038, 96 Cal. Rptr. 338]. Since this decision was rendered by the same court that rendered the decision in Spaziani v. Millar, the court itself attempted to distinguish the Spaziani case, primarily on the grounds that in Spaziani there was no subordination agreement between the seller and lender and the loan was a purchase assistance loan rather than a construction loan [see Middlebrook-Anderson Co. v. Southwest Sav. & Loan Assn. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 1023, 1035, 96 Cal. Rptr. 338].

PRACTICE TIP:

Insuring Priority. Sellers and their counsel will avoid the potential risk of a loss of priority by purchasing an appropriate title policy insuring the priority of the purchase money mortgage. Commentary by Timothy F. O'Leary

§ 25B.20 Liability of Attorney or Escrow Agent for Wrongful Subordination

An attorney or an escrow agent can be held liable to a land seller for the loss resulting to the seller from the wrongful or negligent subordination of his or her purchase money mortgage or trust deed to another loan that has since been foreclosed.

In a case affirming a malpractice judgment against an attorney, the appellate court criticized the subordination clause contained in escrow instructions drafted by the attorney for his client, the seller of the land in question. The court stated that no attorney with knowledge of the most elementary rules of law governing real estate sales transactions and subordination would have failed to insist on adequate provisions to insure that all of the proceeds of the loan to which the client's purchase money trust deed was to be subordinated would be used to improve the encumbered property. The attorney's negligence was emphasized by the fact that there was no requirement in the subordination clause that the construction loan to which his client's purchase money trust deed was to be subordinated was to be obtained from an institutional lender that could be relied on to see that the proceeds of the loan were properly used to improve the real property [Starr v. Mooslin (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 988, 1000, 92 Cal. Rptr. 583]. A concurring justice opined that the subordination clause in the case was so one-sided and unfair as to be only slightly less fraudulent than the land buyers who took advantage of it. According to that justice, an attorney who has been employed to represent the interests of the seller must provide advice and counsel that will enable the client to protect himself or herself against the foregoing dangers, and if the attorney does not adequately do this he or she may become liable for losses suffered by the client as a result of the attorney's negligence [Starr v. Mooslin (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 988, 1003, 92 Cal. Rptr. 583].

An escrow holder is the agent to both parties in a real estate transaction, occupies a fiduciary relationship to both parties, and must follow the escrow instructions explicitly. If a contract of sale and escrow instructions state that the land seller will accept a purchase money trust deed containing an automatic subordination clause for its subordination to a construction loan, the escrow holder violates his or her duty to the seller by recording a construction loan trust deed before recording the purchase money trust deed, knowing that not all the construction loan funds are to be used for construction purposes [Ruth v. Lytton Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 831, 842-843, 72 Cal. Rptr. 521 , modified, 272 Cal. App. 2d 24]. In that case, had the trust deed for the improper construction loan not been recorded before the purchase money trust deed, it would not, under the automatic subordination clause, have gained priority over the purchase money trust deed and the seller would not have suffered loss on foreclosure of the construction loan trust deed [see Ruth v. Lytton Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 831, 843, 72 Cal. Rptr. 521 , modified, 272 Cal. App. 2d 24].

An escrow agent may also be held liable to a seller for negligence when it acts on incomplete and ambiguous instructions in allowing a purchase money mortgage or trust deed to be subordinated to another security instrument at the close of escrow. In closing the escrow on incomplete and ambiguous instructions, the escrow agent is exercising authority without first determining the conditions under which the authority might be exercised or, in other words, is disposing of the seller's property without instructions to do so because the incomplete and ambiguous instructions were meaningless [Spaziani v. Millar (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 667, 683, 30 Cal. Rptr. 658].

For further discussion of escrows, including the fiduciary duties and responsibilities of escrow agents, see Ch. 26, Real Property Escrows .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

10-25B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 25B.21

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 25B.21 Deficiency Judgment for Subordinated Seller

A deficiency judgment against a defaulting borrower is prohibited after the foreclosure, either by sale under a nonjudicial power of sale clause or by sale under a judicial foreclosure action of a purchase money mortgage or trust deed [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 580b, 580d].

A purpose of this antideficiency legislation is to discourage land sales that are unsound because the land is overvalued and, in the event of a depression in land values, to prevent the aggravation of the downturn that would result if defaulting purchasers lost the land and were burdened also with personal liability in the form of a deficiency judgment for the balance of the purchase price of the land not realized on the foreclosure sale [Bargioni v. Hill (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 121, 123, 28 Cal. Rptr. 321, 378 P.2d 593]. Thus, the legislation places the risk of inadequate security for the purchase price on the purchase money mortgagee, usually the land vendor. This discourages a vendor from overvaluing the security. It also discourages precarious land promotion schemes, because the security value of the land gives purchasers a clue to its true market value [Roseleaf Corp. v. Chierighino (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 35, 42, 27 Cal. Rptr. 873, 378 P.2d 97].

A personal judgment is also precluded against a land purchaser for the loss suffered by the holder of a purchase money "second" mortgage or trust deed that has become valueless because of the foreclosure of the "first" mortgage or trust deed to which it was subordinate [Brown v. Jensen (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 193, 198, 259 P.2d 425]. In the standard purchase money mortgage transaction involving a purchase money "second" mortgage or trust deed, the borrower has been unable to give the vendor a normal cash down payment and obtain the balance of the purchase price required by the vendor from a third party lender. The reason the purchaser has been unable to obtain the balance from a lender is because it exceeds the security value of the property. Thus, the purchaser normally will obtain a third party loan equal to the security value of the property secured by a first trust deed on the property and finance the balance of the purchase price demanded by the vendor by giving the vendor a promissory note secured by a second trust deed on the property for the difference between the full amount of the purchase price less any down payment made and the amount obtained from the third party lender [see Spangler v. Memel (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 603, 612, 102 Cal. Rptr. 807, 498 P.2d 1055]. In this situation, the purchaser's inability to obtain the purchase price from a third party lender using the land as security should warn the seller that he or she is perhaps overvaluing the land. If the seller insists on receiving a premium price by means of a second trust deed, the seller does so at his or her peril [see Spangler v. Memel (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 603, 612, 102 Cal. Rptr. 807, 498 P.2d 1055].

In one case, a waiver of Code Civ. Proc. § 580b protection was found when a vendor subordinated its deed of trust to a construction loan, and after the purchaser subsequently sold the property a week before foreclosure, the vendor provided the purchaser with a deed of reconveyance so that escrow could close. The court held that the purchaser could not extinguish the security interest by inducing the vendor to execute a deed of reconveyance, and then invoke Code Civ. Proc. § 580b to shift the loss to the vendor. The court also held that the Code Civ. Proc. § 580b protection was waived when the vendor agreed to subordinate its lien to the purchaser's construction loan, because the subordination agreement contemplated a change of use of the property [Jack Erickson & Associates v. Hesselgesser (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 182, 188-189, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 591].

Different issues exist when the seller agrees to accept a purchase money mortgage or trust deed containing a subordination clause subordinating it to a construction loan. Typically, the seller is selling the property for commercial development, and the true market value of the land depends on the likelihood of the success of the commercial development. In this factual context, the security value of the property at the time of the sale gives no clue to the true market value of the land. That depends, in large part at least, on the competence, diligence, and good faith of the developing purchaser. Effective prevention of overvaluation in a sale of property for commercial development using a subordination clause lies in forcing the purchaser-developer to make realistic assessments of the likelihood of the project's success and in inducing the purchaser-developer to exert his or her highest efforts in carrying it out. This can be accomplished by placing the risk of failure on the purchaser-developer and permitting the holder of the subordinated purchase money mortgage or trust deed to recover a deficiency judgment against the purchaser-developer on the promissory note secured by the purchase money security instrument after the development has failed and the construction lender has caused the property to be foreclosed and sold [see Spangler v. Memel (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 603, 613, 102 Cal. Rptr. 807, 498 P.2d 1055].

[1] Effect on Original Debtor and Assuming Grantee

A trustor or mortgagor may convey or otherwise transfer the real property that is subject to the trust deed or mortgage [Moss v. Minor Properties, Inc. (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 847, 855, 69 Cal. Rptr. 341]. Following such a conveyance, the property remains subject to the debt and the transferor/original debtor continues to be personally liable for the debt, unless the creditor agrees to a novation [see Civ. Code §§ 1530-1533] or to release the transferor from liability [see Civ. Code §§ 1541-1543; Ward v. De Oca (1898) 120 Cal. 102, 105, 52 P. 130 ; see also § 25B.223[1]]. As discussed below, the grantee is not personally liable for the debt unless (1) he or she assumes the debt and (2) there has been no break in the chain of assumption.

A grantee of real property "assumes" an existing encumbrance against real property by agreeing to pay and discharge the debt that the original debtor is liable for and that is secured by the mortgage or trust deed [Williams v. Naftzger (1894) 103 Cal. 438, 440, 37 P. 411]. The most common assumption arrangement involves an agreement by the purchaser of real property subject to a trust deed or mortgage to assume the encumbrance as part of the purchase price [see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements, § 23.221; see also [3], below].

Under the "equitable subrogation" theory, the assuming grantee becomes personally liable for the debt to the mortgagee or beneficiary, but only if the original debtor and any intervening grantees also assumed the encumbrance [see Ward v. De Oca (1898) 120 Cal. 102, 104-106, 52 P. 130 ; Case v. Egan (1922) 57 Cal. App. 453, 454, 207 P. 388] . Thus, unless there was a break in the chain of assumption, the assuming grantee becomes the principal debtor and the original mortgagor or trustor becomes a surety on the debt. A creditor may thereafter treat both the original debtor and the assuming grantee as debtors, but must recognize the suretyship relationship in subsequent dealings with either [Everts v. Matteson (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 437, 447-448, 132 P.2d 476 ; see Birkhofer v. Krumm (1935) 4 Cal. App. 2d 43, 47-50, 40 P.2d 553 ; Civ. Code §§ 2787-2855 (suretyship)].

Under suretyship law, a surety faced with a foreclosure action may require the mortgagee or beneficiary to proceed first against the assuming grantee [Civ. Code § 2845; Hamburger v. Ellingson (1934) 139 Cal. App. 311, 313-315, 33 P.2d 850] . For further discussion of suretyship principles, see Ch. 79, Suretyship, Guaranty, and Indemnity ; see also California Forms of Pleading & Practice, Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings, § 538.10 et seq. (Matthew Bender).

Other results of the equitable subrogation theory are that the assuming grantee has the following protections just as if he or she were the original debtor: (1) the right to force the creditor to foreclose against the property before suing on the indebtedness [Code Civ. Proc. § 726; Security-First Nat. Bank v. Chapman (1939) 31 Cal. App. 2d 182, 188-189, 87 P.2d 724]; (2) the immunity from a deficiency judgment in a judicial foreclosure if the encumbrance is a "purchase money" obligation incurred by the original debtor at the time the debtor acquired the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 580b; see Weaver v. Bay (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 559, 561, 31 Cal. Rptr. 211]; and (3) the immunity from a deficiency judgment in a nonjudicial foreclosure under a power of sale [Code Civ. Proc. § 580d]. For coverage of foreclosures of mortgages and trust deeds and deficiency judgments, see Ch. 25D, Foreclosure .

If the original debtor pays the sum due on the note following the assumption, the note is discharged and the original debtor is subrogated to (that is, he or she acquires) all of the rights of the mortgagee or beneficiary [Union Bank v. Gradsky (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 40, 45, 71 Cal. Rptr. 64].

[2] Written Agreement

Under the Statute of Frauds, an assumption agreement must be in writing and executed by the assuming grantee. A separate written instrument is not required if the assumption is expressly set forth in the conveyance instrument [Civ. Code § 1624(a)(6); see § 25B.222; see also Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements, § 23.221].

[3] Practical and Other Considerations

A buyer's ability to assume an existing loan may be restricted by the presence of a due-on-sale clause in the promissory note and security instrument. Such a clause allows the lender to accelerate the loan in the event of a sale or other transfer of the property. The enforceability of due-on-sale clauses is regulated under the Garn-St. Germain Depository Institutions Act of 1982 [12 U.S.C § 1701j-3] and implementing regulations of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board [see 12 C.F.R. §§ 591.1-591.6]. For coverage of these laws, see § 25A.221[1].

Whether the purchaser should assume an existing loan or obtain a new loan for the purchase depends, among other factors, on refinancing costs, the potential assessment of a prepayment penalty, and the difference between the prevailing market interest rate and the interest rate of the existing loan. For a detailed discussion of the factors to be considered before assuming a loan, see California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 1, Analysis of Real Estate Investments, § 1.75 (Matthew Bender).

[4] Usurious Obligations

A purchaser of real property who assumes an existing encumbrance on the property as part of the purchase price is estopped from asserting that the obligation secured by the encumbrance is usurious [Barnes v. Hartman (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 215, 223, 54 Cal. Rptr. 514]. The one apparent exception to this rule is when the assuming party is a corporation in which the original obligor is a shareholder. The corporation is allowed to assert a claim of usury based on the original obligor's retained interest as a shareholder in the obligation [see Roesch v. De Mota (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 563, 572-574, 150 P.2d 422].

[5] Taking Property "Subject to" Encumbrance

If a transferee of real property takes the property "subject to" an existing encumbrance, he or she does not assume or agree to pay the debt secured by the mortgage or deed of trust [Wolfert v. Guadagno (1933) 130 Cal. App. 661, 663, 20 P.2d 360] and does not become personally liable for the payment of the debt [Braun v. Crew (1920) 183 Cal. 728, 731, 192 P. 531 ; Cornelison v. Kornbluth (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 590, 599, 125 Cal. Rptr. 557, 542 P.2d 981]. Instead, the property becomes the primary security for the obligation [Birkhofer v. Krumm (1935) 4 Cal. App. 2d 43, 50, 40 P.2d 553], and the transferor (if he or she is the original trustor or mortgagor) remains personally liable as a surety for the property itself [Braun v. Crew (1920) 183 Cal. 728, 731, 192 P. 531]. Thereafter, the transferor can force the creditor to foreclose against the property before suing on the underlying indebtedness [Code Civ. Proc. § 726; see Braun v. Crew (1920) 183 Cal. 728, 731, 192 P. 531]. If the encumbrance was created at the time of the original purchase by the transferor, he or she will not be subject to a deficiency judgment on judicial foreclosure [Code Civ. Proc. § 580b], or on nonjudicial foreclosure by exercise of the power of sale [Code Civ. Proc. § 580d; Weaver v. Bay (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 559, 561, 31 Cal. Rptr. 211].

If the transferor (as the original trustor or mortgagor) pays the sum due on the mortgage or trust deed, the transferor is subrogated to the mortgagee's or beneficiary's right to foreclose against the property [Vincent v. Garland (1936) 14 Cal. App. 2d 725, 727-728, 58 P.2d 1320 ; see Civ. Code §§ 2848 (on payment of obligation, surety entitled to enforce every remedy creditor has against principal), 2849 (surety entitled to benefit of security held by creditor)].

A recitation in a deed that the property is "subject to" a trust deed or mortgage does not constitute an assumption of the debt secured by the trust deed or mortgage [Snidow v. Hill (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 803, 807, 197 P.2d 801 (trust deed); Andrews v. Robertson (1918) 177 Cal. 434, 439, 170 P. 1129 (mortgage)]. If, however, a deed containing such a recitation also contains an express covenant by the grantee to pay the debt, there is an assumption by the grantee [Everts v. Matteson (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 437, 448, 132 P.2d 476] unless the covenant is placed in the deed without the grantee's knowledge or consent [Fishback v. J.C. Forkner Fig Gardens (1934) 137 Cal. App. 211, 215-219, 30 P.2d 586].

PRACTICE TIP:

"Subject to" Sales. "Subject to" transactions are inherently risky and expose the participants to liability. Purchasers acquire property "subject to" the existing loan generally because they have poor credit which disqualifies them from obtaining a loan in their name. When the buyer defaults or becomes delinquent in the payment of monthly obligations, the sellers, who are still identified as the obligors by the lender and other creditors, receive the dunning letters, and at a minimum, their credit rating suffers. If the buyers petition for bankruptcy relief, the sellers do not receive the benefit of the automatic stay. The sellers must continue to discharge the obligations without any of the benefits because they are no longer occupying the property.

A promissory note secured by a "wrap around" deed of trust (in which a default in the senior encumbrance triggers a default in the junior note) may be the best solution. However, the "wrap around" trust deed is still junior to, and may violate the terms of, the senior financing which the buyers took "subject to." Commentary by Timothy F. O'Leary.

§ 25B.32 Overview of Assignments

An assignment transfers the assignor's title or ownership, or some right or interest in either, to the assignee [see Commercial Discount Co. v. Cowen (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 610, 614,116 P.2d 599]. Thereafter, the assignor may not maintain an action on the claim, his or her right to demand performance is extinguished, and the assignee acquires that right [McCown v. Spencer (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 216, 225, 87 Cal. Rptr. 213]. An assignment may be an outright and absolute assignment or an assignment for security purposes only. This Part focuses on the outright assignments of mortgages and of the beneficial interests under trust deeds [see § 25B.33]. Although assignments for security purposes are covered in detail in other chapters of this publication, this Part presents a brief discussion of such assignments [see § 25B.33].

§ 25B.33 Absolute Assignment of Security Instruments and Notes

[1] Method of Assignment

Both a mortgage and the beneficial interest under a trust deed may be assigned and recorded [for discussion of the rights and obligations of assignors and assignees, see § 25B.230[1][c][i]]. However, the effective assignment of a security instrument is dependent on the assignment of the secured debt for two reasons. First, neither a mortgage nor a trust deed may be assigned apart from the debt it secures [Kelley v. Upshaw (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 179, 192, 246 P.2d 23]. Second, an assignment of the debt effectively assigns the security [Civ. Code § 2936 (assignment of debt secured by mortgage carries with it the security); Lewis v. Booth (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 345, 349, 44 P.2d 560 (assignment of note secured by trust deed transfers trust deed to assignee without further assignment); see also § 25B.222[1]]. Consequently, although it is essential that the promissory note be assigned (as discussed below), a formal assignment of the security instrument is not required [Lewis v. Booth (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 345, 349, 44 P.2d 560].

The assignment of a promissory note may be made in the note itself, in a separate instrument, or by delivery [Hays v. Plummer (1899) 126 Cal. 107, 110, 58 P. 447]. The fact that possession of the note is not transferred does not render the assignment ineffective [Kent v. Kent (1935) 6 Cal. App. 2d 488, 490, 44 P.2d 445]. However, a failure to deliver and endorse the note may prevent the transfer from being considered a "negotiation" and therefore deprive the assignee of the rights available to a "holder in due course" [see Com. Code §§ 1201(b)(15), (27), 3201, 3203, 3301, 3302]. Consequently, the most effective and widely used method of assignment is for the assignor to endorse and deliver the note to the assignee and to execute a separate written instrument assigning the note and the security instrument [see § 25B.222].

[2] Effect of Recordation

A recorded assignment of a mortgage or beneficial interest in a trust deed imparts constructive notice to all persons from the time of recordation [Civ. Code § 2934]. However, mere recordation of the assignment of the note and security does not constitute notice of the assignment to the debtor or his or her heirs or personal representatives so as to invalidate subsequent payments made by any of them to a person holding the note [Civ. Code § 2935; see § 25B.232 (notice to debtor of assignment)]. It does, however, constitute sufficient notice to the debtor to invalidate payments made by him or her to an assignor who no longer holds (that is, retains physical possession of) the note [Rodgers v. Peckham (1898) 120 Cal. 238, 241-242, 52 P. 483]. The protection of a debtor without notice of the assignment therefore only extends if he or she pays the person who actually holds the note.

Any person transferring the servicing of the indebtedness on a note, bond, or other instrument secured by a mortgage or trust deed on residential real property containing up to four units to a different servicing agent, and any person assuming from another person the responsibility for servicing the instrument evidencing the indebtedness, must give written notice of the transfer to the borrower or subsequent obligor before the borrower or subsequent obligor becomes obligated to make payments to the new servicing agent [Civ. Code § 2937(a), (b); see § 25B.233]. This disclosure requirement reduces the risk that a debtor will pay a person who no longer holds the note.

The recordation of an assignment does not of itself constitute notice of a defense, claim in recoupment, or claim to the instrument [Com. Code § 3302(b); see Com. Code § 3302(a) ("holder in due course") means the holder of an instrument who, among other things, took the instrument without the type of notice described above); see also Ch. 55, Negotiable Instruments].

[3] Effect of Usury Law

Both the lender and the assignee of an usurious obligation may be sued [see Burr v. Capital Reserve Corp. (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 983, 992-993, 80 Cal. Rptr. 345, 458 P.2d 185]. However, if a usurious note is transferred to a holder in due course to whom the maker is compelled to make payment, the original payee is the proper defendant and the holder in due course takes free of any claim of usury by the debtor [Liebelt v. Carney (1931) 213 Cal. 250, 254, 2 P.2d 144].

§ 25B.34 Reassignments by Financial Institutions

A financial institution may not enter into a contract that provides for reassignment [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17350]. For these purposes, "reassignment" is the right of a financial institution that is the assignee of a contract secured by real property to return the contract to the person assigning it to the financial institution, or to assign it to any other person, on the default of one or more of the parties to the contract [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17351(b)]. The following financial institutions are subject to this prohibition: banks, savings and loan associations, credit unions chartered under the laws of California or the United States, and any other person or organization making loans on the security of real property [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17351(a)]. The purpose of this legislation is to discourage financial institutions from making loans to consumers who are credit risks [see Review of Selected 1979 California Legislation, 11 Pacific L.J. 392-393 (1980)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Reassignments. Most mortgage brokers have a clause in their agreement with the credit facility obligating the broker to "repurchase" the loan if the borrower defaults shortly after the loan is funded. The purpose of the provision is to penalize brokers for procuring borrowers who clearly lack the resources to discharge the indebtedness. Most brokers accept their responsibility to repurchase such loans, even if they did not participate in the underwriting decision. The brokers fear that if they refuse to repurchase loans issued to borrowers who default in the first 60 or so days, the credit facility will terminate the broker's lending agreement, even though such repurchases appear to violate the cited section prohibiting reassignment. Commentary by Timothy F. O'Leary

§ 25B.35 Assignments for Security Purposes

When an assignment is made solely for the express purpose of securing performance of an obligation, the assignment grants the assignee present rights in specified property but permits the assignor to continue to enjoy the benefits of the property until and unless the assignor defaults in its obligations to the assignee. For example, an assignment of rents clause in a trust deed that assigns the rents from encumbered property to the assignee/beneficiary but allows the assignor/trustor to collect and retain the rents unless and until the trustor defaults in his or her obligations to the beneficiary under the trust deed is customarily included in standard forms of trust deeds [see § 25A.210]. For related forms, see Ch. 35A, Assignment and Sublease of Leasehold Interests, §§ 35A.203 (assignment to lender of lessor's interest in lease as security for loan obligation),35A.221 (notice to lessee of assignment of lease as security for loan).

As a condition to making a construction loan, the lender may require that the trustor assign to it for security purposes all of the trustor's right, title, and interest in the trustor's construction contract, in the trustor's agreement with the architect for the project, and in the plans and specifications for the construction project. For a combined form of deed of trust, assignment of rents, and security agreement for a construction loan, see Ch. 30A, Construction Financing, § 30A.204.

A promissory note and deed of trust may be assigned by the payee/beneficiary for security purposes, but the security interest given is not "perfected" and protected against general creditors of the payee simply by recordation of the assignment in the county where the trust deed is recorded. The security interest in the note and trust deed is a security interest in "instruments" under the California Commercial Code, and a security interest in instruments can be perfected only by the taking of possession of the instruments by the secured party [see Matter of Staff Mortgage & Inv. Corp. (9th Cir. 1977) 550 F.2d 1228, 1230]. For further discussion of security instruments in notes and trust deeds, see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions, §§ 42.200 (security agreement creating nonpossessory security interest in promissory note or other indebtedness), 42.203 (security agreement creating possessory security interest in collateral consisting of promissory notes secured by trust deeds or land sale contracts).

§ 25B.100 Facts Required for Deed of Trust to Be Subordinated

NOTE:

When the seller of property accepts a purchase money promissory note from the buyer as part of the purchase price for the property and agrees to subordinate the promissory note to a subsequent new loan to be obtained by buyer, provisions reflecting that agreement generally are included in the purchase/sale contract itself [see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements]. Similar and conforming provisions are then inserted in the trust deed given to the seller at the close of escrow or inserted in a separate subordination agreement.

1. Information concerning promissory note to be secured by subordinated deed of trust:

    a. Names of payees.

    b. Legal status of payees, e.g., husband and wife, a corporation, etc.

    c. Total amount of principal payable.

    d. Interest payable.

    e. Due dates and amounts of periodic payments of principal and interest.

    f. Any other terms of note.

2. Name and status of trustor.

a. If a corporation:

(1) Date and state of its incorporation.

(2) Date on which its board of directors or shareholders have approved or will approve execution and delivery of trust deed.

b. If a partnership:

(1) Whether partnership is or has acquired title to real property to be encumbered in partnership name or in names of individual partners.

(2) Whether statement of partnership (for a general partnership) [see Corp. Code § 16303(e); see also Ch. 15, Part A, Formation of General Partnerships , Part A] or certificate of limited partnership (for a limited partnership) [see Corp. Code § 15902.01(e) (ULPA '08); Corp. Code § 15621(d) (CRLPA, repealed January 1, 2010); see also Ch. 16, Formation of Limited Partnerships] has been recorded in office of county recorder where property to be encumbered is located.

(3) Which partners are authorized to sign deed of trust [see Corp. Code §§ 16302(a), 16303(a)(1)(D)] on partnership property or if signature of each partner is needed on trust deed.

(4) Whether all partners have approved or will approve of execution of trust deed and its terms.

c. If husband and wife, determine whether both will approve and sign trust deed.

d. If married person purportedly dealing with his or her separate property:

(1) Name of his or her spouse.

(2) Whether his or her spouse will approve and sign trust deed.

3. Legal description of property that trust deed is to encumber.

4. Size, location, and general characteristics of property that trust deed is to encumber.

5. Purpose of subordination:

a. Construction of improvements on encumbered property, e.g.:

(1) Subdivision homes.

(2) Single family residence.

(3) Shopping center.

(4) Apartment complex or building.

(5) Residential duplex or triplex.

(6) Office or multipurpose commercial building.

(7) Single purpose commercial building.

(8) Industrial park.

(9) Mobilehome park.

b. Other purposes.

6. Reputation and ability of trustor as developer.

a. Experience in developing property.

b. Financial ability and worth.

c. Prior developments.

d. Reputation among lenders, builders, and developers.

7. Anticipated fair market value that encumbered real property will have after completion of project to be financed by loan to which trust deed is to be subordinated.

8. Person or corporation that will serve as trustee under trust deed.

9. Any special provisions, such as partial release clauses, that parties wish incorporated in trust deed [see Ch. 25C, Release and Reconveyance].

§ 25B.101 Additional Facts Required for Previously Recorded Subordinated Deed of Trust

NOTE:

Notwithstanding that a trust deed containing provisions for its subordination to another subsequent deed of trust may be of record, lending institutions and title companies generally require at the time of making the new loan secured by the subordinating trust deed that the holder of the subordinated security instrument execute a separate agreement specifically subordinating to the new loan, as a condition to making and insuring the subordinating loan [see Miller, Starr & Regalia, Subordination Agreements in California, 13 UCLA L. Rev. 1298, 1300 (1966); see also §§ 25B.16[4], 25B.207].

1. Name and status of beneficiary or beneficiaries on recorded subordinated trust deed.

2. Name and status of trustor on recorded subordinated deed of trust.

3. Recording information for subordinated deed of trust:

    a. Date recorded.

    b. Instrument or Book and Page Number.

    c. County.

4. Date and amount of promissory note that is secured by subordinated deed of trust.

5. Content of subordination provisions contained in recorded subordinated deed of trust.

§ 25B.102 Facts Required for Subordinating Loan

NOTE:

To be enforceable, a subordination clause or agreement must set forth the terms of the subordinating loan [Handy v. Gordon (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 578, 581-582, 55 Cal. Rptr. 769, 422 P.2d 329 ; see § 25B.18]. The extent to which this information is available depends on whether a final commitment for the subordinating loan has been obtained as of the time a subordination agreement is included in a trust deed or a subordination agreement is drafted. When the particular terms of the loan are not known at that time, the instrument containing the subordination provisions must nevertheless contain specific guidelines for the subordinating loan [see § 25B.121 (1)].

1. Terms of subordinating loan.

a. Name and status of lender.

b. Purpose of loan.

c. Amount of principal.

d. Interest rate.

§ 25B.110 Determinations for Deed of Trust Subordination Clause

NOTE:

This portion of the Transaction Guide relates only to the preliminary determinations required for drafting the subordination clause of a trust deed. For the preliminary determinations required for drafting other portions of the trust deed, see § 25A.110 et seq. If the subordination clause that is to be inserted into a trust deed is being drafted as part of a contract between the seller and buyer for the sale of the property that is to be encumbered by the trust deed, § 25B.110 should be used in conjunction with Part B., Transaction Guide, for Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements .

1. Determine whether loan to be subordinated does, or subordinating loan will, exceed $25,000.

NOTE:

Certain statutory notices must be included in a subordinated trust deed unless the trust deed either (1) expressly states that the loan to which it may be subordinated will exceed $25,000 or (2) secures a loan exceeding $25,000 [Civ. Code § 2953.5; see § 25B.13].

2. Determine purpose of subordinating loan.

a. Construct improvements on encumbered property.

b. Permit trustor under subordinated and subordinating trust deed to make payments on existing liens on property, including subordinated loan or others.

c. Other.

3. Ascertain which type of subordination clause should be included in trust deed [see § 25B.14[1]].

a. "Automatic subordination" clause [see § 25B.14[2]].

b. "Executory" or "promise to subordinate" clause [see § 25B.14[3]].

PART III. TRANSACTION GUIDE
B. Preliminary Determinations

10-25B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 25B.111

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 25B.111 Determinations Regarding Subordination Agreement

NOTE:

This section assumes that a commitment for a subordinating loan has already been made, and that the lending institution requires a subordination agreement specifically to subordinate an existing recorded trust deed to the new deed of trust securing the subordinating loan [see § 25B.16[4]].

1. Determine whether loan to be subordinated does, or subordinating loan will, exceed $25,000.

NOTE:

Certain statutory notices must be included in a subordination agreement unless the agreement either (1) expressly states that the subordinating loan will exceed $25,000 or (2) is executed in connection with a loan exceeding $25,000 [Civ. Code § 2953.5; see § 25B.13].

2. Determine whether recorded trust deed to be subordinated under agreement contains subordination clause and, if so, specific terms and conditions of clause.

3. Determine whether terms of subordinating loan, to be listed in subordination agreement, differ from those required by subordination clause in subordinated deed of trust.

NOTE:

If there is a variation between the new and original subordination agreements, the new agreement will be unenforceable unless it is supported by new consideration [Miller v. Citizens Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 655, 661, 56 Cal. Rptr. 844 ; see § 25B.207[1][d]].

4. Determine whether subordination agreement is intended as novation of prior subordination clause or agreement.

NOTE:

A new subordination agreement must be intended as a novation, and supported by new consideration [see (3), above], in order to be enforceable. Otherwise, the two agreements will be interpreted together as two parts of a single transaction, as if the new agreement were intended to make the original clause specific or to implement it [Miller v. Citizens Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 655, 661, 56 Cal. Rptr. 844]. The determination of a novation is based on intent [see § 25B.207[1]].

1. Determine whether existing debtor is personally liable on secured obligation.

2. If existing debtor is personally liable on obligation, determine whether creditor is willing to release him or her from personal liability [see § 25B.31[1]; see also § 25B.223].

3. Determine whether promissory note and security instrument contain due-on-sale clause potentially restricting buyer's ability to assume existing loan [see § 25B.31[3]; see also § 25B.222[1][a]].

10-25B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 25B.120

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 25B.120 Deed of Trust Subordination Clause

1. Include following terms of subordinating loan, as agreed on by parties, in subordination clause in deed of trust:

NOTE:
To be enforceable, a subordination clause or agreement must set forth the terms of the subordinating loan [Handy v. Gordon (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 578, 581-582, 55 Cal. Rptr. 769, 422 P.2d 329 ; see § 25B.18]. If a loan commitment has already been made, the terms of the subordinating loan can be specified with particularity. However, when no loan commitment has yet been received, the parties must agree on the terms or specify maximums for dollar amounts and parameters for other terms of the loan [see § 25B.200].

a. Maximum principal amount of subordinating loan.

b. Maximum ratio of loan to anticipated fair market value of improved property.

c. Maximum interest rate to be charged under subordinating loan.

d. Term (i.e., maturity date) of subordinating loan.

e. Maximum loan fees and costs and whether they are to be paid from principal amount of subordinating loan.

f. Repayment terms, including any provisions for balloon payments.

g. Prepayment terms, such as maximum penalties, if any.

h. Restrictions on use of loan proceeds.

NOTE:
If the loan is for construction purposes only, the subordination clause should state that the proceeds must be used only for the construction of improvements on the property [see § 25B.200[1][[c][v]].

i. Terms of any commitment for "take-out" or permanent financing after completion of construction or development.

j. Loan disbursement provisions.

k. That new loan will be made by bank, life insurance company or correspondent thereof, building and loan association, savings and loan association, or other institutional lender [see Starr v. Mooslin (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 988, 1000, 92 Cal. Rptr. 583 (attorney found negligent when subordination clause did not require loan from institutional lender)].

2. If required [see § 25B.110 (1)], insert statutory notices regarding existence of subordination clause in trust deed [see Civ. Code § 2953.2].

NOTE:
Each required notice must be set forth in a particular location in the deed [Civ. Code § 2953.2; see §§ 25B.201[2], 25B.202[2] for these notices].

3. Have deed of trust executed and notarized and record it in county where encumbered property is located.

§ 25B.121 Subordination Agreement

1. Include all of following in agreement:

a. Recitals regarding purpose of agreement [see § 25B.207[2]].

b. Terms of subordinating loan:

NOTE:
To be enforceable, a subordination clause or agreement must set forth the terms of the subordinating loan [Handy v. Gordon (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 578, 581-582, 55 Cal. Rptr. 769, 422 P.2d 329 ; see § 25B.18]. Because the developer usually has received a loan commitment by the time a subordination agreement is executed, the specific terms of the loan for which a commitment has been received are ascertainable and must be specified with particularity [see California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 114, Subordination*, § 114.51* (Matthew Bender); see also § 25B.207[2]].

(1) Name and status of lender.

(2) Purpose of loan.

(3) Amount of principal.

(4) Interest rate.

(5) Term (i.e., maturity date) of loan.

(6) Repayment terms, including any provisions for balloon payments.

(7) Prepayment terms, such as maximum penalties, if any.

(8) Loan fees and other loan charges.

(9) Whether loan fees and charges will be paid from principal.

(10) Ratio of loan to anticipated fair market value of improved property.

(11) Any commitment for "take-out" or permanent financing after completion of construction.

(12) Any restrictions on use of proceeds.

(13) Loan disbursement provisions.

c. Recital of new consideration, if agreement is intended to supersede subordination clause in recorded deed of trust [see § 25B.207[2], P 4].

d. Statement of novation, if agreement is intended to supersede subordination clause in recorded deed of trust [see § 25B.207[2], P 4].

e. Statutory notices regarding subordination provisions, if required [see § 25B.110 (1)].

NOTE:

Any required statutory notices must be set forth in particular locations in the agreement [see Civ. Code § 2953.3; see also §§ 25B.208[2], 25B.209[2] for examples of those notices].

2. Have beneficiary and trustor execute subordination agreement in presence of notary and have signatures acknowledged.

3. Prepare escrow instructions that require simultaneous recording of subordination agreement and subordinating deed of trust.

NOTE:

For a guide to drafting escrow instructions, see Ch. 26, Real Property Escrows .

4. Deliver executed originals of agreement and escrow instructions to escrow agency handling escrow for construction loan.

5. Deliver copies of agreement and escrow instructions to the following parties:

a. Beneficiary of subordinated deed of trust, and/or beneficiary's attorney.

b. Trustor, and/or trustor's attorney.

c. Lending institution.

d. Title company.

§ 25B.122 De Facto Subordination

NOTE:

"De facto" subordination occurs when the subordinating deed of trust (usually for a construction loan) is recorded before the trust deed to be subordinated (typically a purchase money trust deed to the seller) pursuant to agreement between the parties (normally contained in the sales contract, escrow instructions, or deposit receipt) [see §§ 25B.16, 25B.19].

1. Consider including following in purchase money trust deed to be subordinated:

NOTE:

Although these statements are not required, they provide notice of subordination and use of loan proceeds in a recorded instrument, in addition to the agreement regarding recording order set forth in the sales contract or escrow instructions [see § 25B.205[1]].

a. Statement that trust deed is subordinate to lender's trust deed [see § 25B.205[2]].

b. Statement that all funds from lender's loan must be used for specified purposes only [see § 25B.206[2]].

2. Have lender's trust deed recorded before purchase money trust deed.

10-25B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 25B.123

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 25B.123 Assumption of Note and Deed of Trust

NOTE:

This section refers solely to deeds of trust since they are used much more frequently in California than mortgages. However, all requirements for a trust deed discussed below, unless otherwise noted, are equally applicable to a mortgage.

Any references to a beneficiary should be deemed to refer to a mortgagee as well [see Civ. Code § 2943; see also § 25B.220[1][e]].

1. Request following documents from beneficiary of trust deed to be assumed [see Civ. Code § 2943; see also § 25B.220[2] for form of request]:

a. Beneficiary statement [see Civ. Code § 2943(a)(2) (definition)] of unpaid balance on secured note; and

NOTE:

A beneficiary statement is essentially a statement of the unpaid balance of an obligation secured by a mortgage or deed of trust [see Civ. Code § 2943(a)(2)]. Only an "entitled person" may request a beneficiary statement from the beneficiary [Civ. Code § 2943(a)(4); see § 25B.220[1][e]]. The request may be made (1) at any time before, or within two months after, the recording of a notice of default under the mortgage or trust deed; or (2) more than 30 days before the entry of a decree of foreclosure [Civ. Code § 2943(b)(2)]. The beneficiary may require reasonable proof that the person making the request is an entitled person [Civ. Code § 2943(e)(3); see § 25B.221[1][d].

If the obligation secured by the mortgage or deed of trust is to be paid in full rather than assumed, a payoff demand statement should be used instead of a beneficiary statement [see Civ. Code § 2943(a)(5), (c); see also Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans*, §§ 25.253, 25.254*]. If an entitled person requests a statement pursuant to Civ. Code § 2943 and does not specify whether he or she is seeking a beneficiary statement or a payoff demand statement, the beneficiary must treat the request as a request for a payoff demand statement [Civ. Code § 2943(e)(1)].

b. If desired, copy of trust deed.

NOTE:

When the request for a beneficiary statement includes a specific request for a copy of the trust deed (or mortgage), the beneficiary must furnish the copy along with the beneficiary statement at no additional charge [Civ. Code § 2943(e)(2)].

2. Confirm receipt of following within 21 days after beneficiary's receipt of request for beneficiary statement [Civ. Code § 2943(b)(1)]:

a. Beneficiary statement indicating [Civ. Code § 2943(a)(2); see § 25B.221]:

NOTE:

If the beneficiary requires reasonable proof that the person making the request is an entitled person, the beneficiary must provide the beneficiary statement within 21 days of his or her receipt of the proof [Civ. Code § 2943(e)(3); see § 25B.221[1][d]]. If the beneficiary fails to provide the statement within the applicable 21-day period, he or she is liable to the person making the request for damages and the sum of $300 [Civ. Code § 2943(e)(4); see § 25B.221[1][h]].

(1) Amount of unpaid principal and interest.

(2) Interest rate.

(3) Amount of overdue payments of principal and interest, if any.

(4) Amounts of periodic payments of principal and interest, if any.

(5) Date on which obligation is due in whole or part.

(6) Date to which real property taxes and special assessments have been paid (to extent known by beneficiary).

(7) Amount, term, and premiums of hazard insurance (to extent known by beneficiary).

(8) Amount in account, if any, maintained by beneficiary for accumulation of funds with which to pay taxes and insurance premiums.

(9) Nature and, if known, amount of any additional charges, costs, or expenses paid or incurred by beneficiary that have become a lien on real property.

(10) Whether or not obligation secured by trust deed can or may be transferred to new borrower.

b. Copy of promissory note, including any modification.

c. Copy of trust deed (if requested).

3. Have parties execute appropriate instrument of assumption [see § 25B.222[2]; see also § 25B.223[2]], which, in case of institutional lenders, is generally provided by lender.

NOTE:

An assumption by the transferee without a novation [see Civ. Code §§ 1530-1533] or release [Civ. Code §§ 1541-1543] by the creditor will not remove the transferor from any liability on the encumbrance that he or she might have had prior to the assumption since the transferor is still liable on the debt as a surety [Ward v. De Oca (1898) 120 Cal. 102, 105, 52 P. 130 ; Birkhofer v. Krumm (1935) 4 Cal. App. 2d 43, 50, 40 P.2d 553]. If the creditor is an institutional lender, it may consent to remove the transferor from liability on the encumbrance [see § 25B.223], but the more general method is to cancel the original note, record a full reconveyance to the transferor, and have the transferee execute a new note and security.

c. Sets forth amounts of unpaid principal balance and other outstanding obligations.

2. Have search performed at Recorder's Office in County where property is located to determine existence of any previous assignments of record.

3. Execute escrow instructions [see Ch. 26, Real Property Escrows] requiring deposit of following into escrow:

a. Properly endorsed promissory note.

NOTE:
For a discussion of the endorsement of promissory notes, see § 25B.230[1].

b. Duly executed and acknowledged assignment instrument [see §§ 25B.230 (assignment of note and trust deed), 25B.231 (assignment of note and mortgage)].

c. Assignee's consideration, if any.

4. Instruct escrow to record assignment instrument in county where encumbered property is located.

5. Notify debtor of assignment [see § 25B.232].

§ 25B.130 Voiding Subordination Clause or Agreement

NOTE:

A subordination clause or agreement not exempt from statutory notice requirements is voidable by the person whose security interest was to be subordinated, or his or her successor in interest, if it does not contain statutory notices regarding subordination [Civ. Code § 2953.4(a); see §§ 25B.110(1),25B.111(1)]. However, no person may void the clause or agreement if he or she had actual knowledge of the existence and terms of that subordination clause or agreement [Civ. Code § 2953.4(a)].

1. Prepare notice stating all of following [Civ. Code § 2953.4(b); see § 25B.210[2]]:

a. That provisions required by Civ. Code §§ 2953.2 (subordination clause) or 2953.3 (subordination agreement) have not been complied with;

b. That person signing notice is holder of security instrument to be subordinated, or his or her successor in interest; and

c. That he or she elects to void effect of subordination clause or agreement.

2. Have notice executed and acknowledged.

3. Record notice within two years of date on which subordinating instrument was executed [Civ. Code § 2953.4(a)].

§ 25B.131 Waiving Noncompliance With Statutory Notice Requirements

NOTE:

The holder of a security interest to be subordinated may waive his or her right to void the subordination clause or agreement on the basis of noncompliance with required statutory notices [Civ. Code § 2953.4(c); see § 25B.130].

1. Prepare waiver stating all of following [Civ. Code § 2953.4(c); see § 25B.211[2]]:

a. That holder of subordinated security interest knows of existence and terms of subordinating clause or agreement; and

b. That he or she waives right to void subordination clause or agreement on basis of noncompliance with statutory notices [see Civ. Code §§ 2953.1-2953.4].

2. Have waiver executed and acknowledged.

§ 25B.200 Short Form Deed of Trust Containing Automatic Subordination Clause

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a short form deed of trust containing an "automatic subordination" clause. It is intended for use when, as is often the case, the purchaser of undeveloped property gives the seller a purchase money deed of trust for a portion of the purchase price, and the seller agrees to subordinate its trust deed to a construction loan to be obtained by the purchaser for developing the property.

The subordination clause in this form provides that the trust deed containing it be automatically subordinated, without further action by its beneficiary, to a subsequent trust deed placed on the encumbered real property by the trustor to secure a "construction loan" complying with the terms specified in the subordination clause. A subsequently executed deed of trust securing a "construction loan" or other loan that does not comply with the terms specified in the foregoing subordination clause will not gain priority over the trust deed containing the subordination clause [see § 25B.16[2]]. For a definition of the term "automatic subordination clause" and descriptions of other types of subordination clauses that may be included in a trust deed or used in real estate transactions, see § 25B.14.

[b] Short Form of Deed of Trust

This form includes the provisions of a standard short form of deed of trust used by title companies. A short form trust deed incorporates by reference certain provisions of fictitious trust deeds recorded in each county in California. A standard short form trust deed used by a title company generally contains the text of those provisions on the back side of the printed form [see § 25A.211]. This form recites that a copy of the provisions is attached to and made a part of the trust deed.

This form also includes subordination provisions. As an alternative, counsel may elect to use a standard printed short form trust deed supplied by a title company, containing a statement on the front side that subordination provisions are attached to and made a part of the trust deed. However, if this method is used, all statutory captions and notices required for nonexempt subordination provisions must be set forth on the face of the trust deed in the required manner [see [d], below].

[c] Required Subordination Provisions

[i] Minimum Terms

A seller, by agreeing to subordinate his or her security to that of a lender, takes the risk that the subordinating lien will impair or destroy the seller's security [see Handy v. Gordon (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 578, 581, 55 Cal. Rptr. 769, 422 P.2d 329]. As a result, courts have developed certain guidelines for the minimum terms of a subordinating loan that is to take priority over the seller's lien [see § 25B.18]. To be enforceable, a subordination clause or agreement must at least specify the maximum principal, maximum interest rate, maximum term, and the mode of repayment of the subordinating loan [Cummins v. Gates (1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 532, 540, 45 Cal. Rptr. 417]. Even when these terms are clearly specified, the agreement may not be enforceable if it is not just and reasonable to the seller [Handy v. Gordon (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 578, 582, 55 Cal. Rptr. 769, 422 P.2d 329].

Although there is no "magic number" of terms that will insure a just and reasonable subordination clause as a matter of law, an enforceable subordination agreement should, at a minimum, specify each of the terms set forth below [see Roskamp Manley Associates, Inc. v. Davin Development & Investment Corp. (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 513, 522, 229 Cal. Rptr. 186]. The need for certainty regarding the basic terms of the subordinating loan applies to permanent loans as well as construction loans [see Miller, Starr & Regalia, Subordination Agreements in California, 13 U.C.L.A. L. Rev. 1298, 1305 (1966); see also § 25B.204[1]]. If, at the time the subordination agreement or clause is executed, the buyer has received a loan commitment, those terms should be specified with particularity [see, e.g., § 25B.207]. However, when no loan commitment has yet been received, the drafter must approximate the following terms, or at least specify maximums:

- The maximum principal amount of the subordinating loan [see P 2 of subordination provisions of form; see also [c][ii], below].

- The maximum interest rate to be charged under the subordinating loan [see P 6 of subordination provisions of form; see also [c][ii], below].

- The term (i.e., maturity date) of the subordinating loan [see P 8 of subordination provisions of form; see also [c][iii], below].

- Maximum loan fees and costs and whether they are to be paid from the principal amount of the subordinating loan [see PP 6, 7 of subordination provisions of form; see also [c][iv], below].

- Repayment terms, including any provisions for balloon payments [see P 8 of subordination provisions of form; see also [c][vi], below].

- Prepayment terms, such as maximum penalties, if any [see P 9 of subordination provisions of form; see also [c][vi], below].

- Restrictions on use of proceeds, such as requiring proceeds of the development loan to be used only for construction on or development of the subject property [see P 3 of subordination provisions of form; see also [c][v], below].

- Existence and terms of any commitment for "take-out" or permanent financing after completion of the construction or development [see, e.g., § 25B.204; see also [c][vii], below].

- That the new loan must be made by a bank, life insurance company or correspondent thereof, building and loan association, savings and loan association, or other institutional lender [see P 11 of subordination provisions of form; see also Starr v. Mooslin (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 988, 1000, 92 Cal. Rptr. 583 (attorney found negligent when subordination clause did not require loan from institutional lender)].

[ii] Principal and Interest of Subordinating Loan

The amount of the subordinating loan's principal and interest must be specified, since the court will not resort to custom or usage to determine a maximum amount [Roskamp Manley Associates, Inc. v. Davin Development & Investment Corp. (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 513, 521, 229 Cal. Rptr. 186]. The drafter may have some leeway in specifying the maximum principal amount and the maximum interest rate of the subordinating loan. In case of doubt about the amount a lender may be willing to lend, the drafter may specify a higher rather than a lower maximum. It is not sufficient, however, to specify the amount in terms of a maximum amount per lot, as the number of lots may not be determinable with precision at the time the agreement is signed [Handy v. Gordon (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 578, 581-582, 55 Cal. Rptr. 769, 422 P.2d 329]. The maximum principal amount may be set at a percentage of appraised value of the improved property, and the interest rate may be specified in terms of a certain percentage above prime, or at the prevailing rate in the business community at the time of construction or development [Roskamp Manley Associates, Inc. v. Davin Development & Investment Corp. (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 513, 522, 229 Cal. Rptr. 186].

[iii] Term of Subordinating Loan

The term (or maturity date) of the loan should not be stated as a maximum, because the seller's risk under a subordination agreement (and therefore the fairness of the agreement to the seller) will depend on the cumulative effect of the term and the interest rate. A loan with a relatively short term could endanger the seller's security, either because it provides for a balloon payment at the end of the short term, or because the payments called for are unusually large. A loan with a long term, if coupled with a high interest rate, could also be detrimental to the seller's security, as it would prolong the time during which the seller's security interest would be subordinated and increase the total amount of interest payable. If the term of the construction loan is to be stated as a maximum, a minimum term should also be specified, so the actual term will lie somewhere between the stated maximum and minimum [see California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 114, Subordination, § 114.51 (Matthew Bender)].

[iv] Fees, Costs, and Interest Paid From Subordinating Loan

If the buyer is allowed to pay the costs of financing and interest accruing during the construction period from the proceeds of the loan, that fact should be specifically stated. A limitation on the interest rate is not sufficient protection to the seller unless the loan fees are also limited, since the lender may compensate for a lower interest rate by charging a higher loan fee [see Collins v. Home Savings & Loan Ass'n (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 86, 91, 22 Cal. Rptr. 817 (seller unaware of 13.5 percent loan fee)]. The net effect would be an interest rate that exceeds the maximum rate specified in the agreement [Miller, Starr & Regalia, Subordination Agreements in California, 13 U.C.L.A. L. Rev. 1298, 1304 (1966)].

[v] Restrictions on Use of Loan Proceeds

Because the proceeds of the subordinating loan are typically used to promote the mutual interests of the buyer and seller in developing the property and increasing its value [see § 25B.12], the subordination agreement should contain terms that limit use of the proceeds of the subordinating loan to development of the property [see Handy v. Gordon (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 578, 581-582, 55 Cal. Rptr. 769, 422 P.2d 329]. If for some reason a seller agrees to subordinate his or her purchase money trust deed to a loan that may be used for purposes apart from development of the property, that agreement must be spelled out with particularity [Miller v. Citizens Savings & Loan Ass'n (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 655, 663, 56 Cal. Rptr. 844]. The agreement should also specify any amounts that are to be used for off-site improvements, such as streets, sidewalks, and utilities [California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 114, Subordination, § 114.42[1] (Matthew Bender); see § 30.200[1]]. Likewise, if any of the proceeds may be used as an advance to pay part of the land's purchase price, that amount should be specified [Ruth v. Lytton Savings & Loan Ass'n (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 831, 841, 72 Cal. Rptr. 521 , op. corrected, 272 Cal. App. 2d 24, 76 Cal. Rptr. 926].

[vi] Payment Charges

Prepayment terms, charges, and late penalties should be specified if possible. However, the seller will receive some additional protection regarding these terms if the source of the new loan funds is limited to an insurance company, or a federal or state bank or savings and loan. Those lenders are subject to government regulation, and tend to use standardized loan documents [see Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans ; see also Ch. 30A, Construction Financing].

[vii] Commitment for "Take-Out" Financing

A subordinating loan intended to pay for construction costs will generally be limited to a short term for completion of construction, and permanent financing will be necessary to pay off the construction loan. The seller, who may want assurance that the buyer has a commitment for permanent financing, also known as "take-out" financing, often benefits from a lender requirement that permanent financing be arranged before the construction loan is made [Miller, Starr & Regalia, Subordination Agreements in California, 13 U.C.L.A. L. Rev. 1298, 1305 (1966)]. For an example and discussion of subordination to both a construction loan and a take-out loan, see § 25B.204.

[viii] Disbursement Provisions

Although a provision regarding disbursement of the loan proceeds is not a required term for a valid subordination agreement, such a provision is often included. The voucher system required by this form [see P 11 of form] is frequently adopted by lenders. Alternatives to that system include requiring that the buyer furnish a surety bond of which the seller is an obligee, or using an independent third party to disburse the construction proceeds [see Ch. 30A, Construction Financing].

[d] Required Statutory Notices

The statutory notices required in California to be set forth at the beginning and end of certain trust deeds containing subordinating provisions are included as part of the deed of trust set forth in this form. These statutory notices may be excluded from the deed of trust when either the loan secured by the trust deed containing the subordination clause or the loan to which the trust deed is to be subordinated exceeds $25,000 [see § 25B.13]. For further discussion of those notices, see §§ 25B.201, 25B.202.

NOTICE:
THIS SUBORDINATED DEED OF TRUST CONTAINS A SUBORDINATION CLAUSE WHICH MAY RESULT IN YOUR SECURITY INTEREST IN THE PROPERTY BECOMING SUBJECT TO AND OF LOWER PRIORITY THAN THE LIEN OF SOME OTHER OR LATER SECURITY INSTRUMENT.

THIS SUBORDINATED DEED OF TRUST, made this _____ day of _____[month], _____[year], between _____[name of trustor], hereafter called "Trustor," whose address is _____[street, city, state, zip], and _____[name of beneficiary], hereafter called "Beneficiary," whose address is _____[street, city, state, zip], and _____[name of trustee], [a California corporation,] hereafter called "Trustee" [add if trustee is an individual:, whose address is _____ (street, city, state, zip)];

WITNESSETH: That Trustor irrevocably grants, transfers, and assigns to Trustee, in trust, with power of sale, all that property in the [add if applicable: City of _____,] County of _____, State of _____, described as: _____[set forth legal description of the property in the center of the page], together with the rents, issues, and profits thereof, subject, however, to the right, power, and authority given to and conferred on Beneficiary by Paragraph _____[specify applicable paragraph number in recorded fictitious trust deed] of the provisions incorporated herein by reference to collect and apply those rents, issues, and profits.

FOR THE PURPOSE OF SECURING:

(1) Performance of each agreement of Trustor incorporated by reference or contained herein;

(2) Payment of the indebtedness evidenced by a promissory note dated _____, and any extension or renewal of that note, in the principal sum of $_____, executed by Trustor in favor of Beneficiary or order and given as a part of the purchase price of the property described above; and

(3) Payment of any further sums that the then record owner of the property hereafter may borrow from Beneficiary, when evidenced by another note or notes reciting that it is so secured.

TO PROTECT THE SECURITY OF THIS DEED OF TRUST, TRUSTOR AGREES:

(1) By the execution and delivery of this Deed of Trust and the note secured hereby, that Provisions _____ through _____[beginning and ending numbers of provisions in fictitious trust deed described below], inclusive, of the fictitious deed of trust recorded on _____[date], in Book _____ at Page _____, of the Official Records of _____ County [county in which trust deed is to be recorded], California, are hereby adopted and incorporated by reference;

(2) That Trustor acknowledges receipt of a full copy of the Provisions numbered _____ through _____, inclusive, referred to above and attached to this Deed of Trust as Exhibit "A," and understands them;

(3) That Trustor will observe and perform those provisions; and

(4) That the references to property, obligations, and parties in those provisions shall be construed to refer to the property, obligations, and parties set forth in this Deed of Trust.

[Set forth subordination provisions, expressly subordinating the deed of trust to a designated security instrument (see § 25B.205) or using an automatic subordination clause, such as the following:]

TRUSTOR AND BENEFICIARY AGREE AS FOLLOWS:

This Subordinated Deed of Trust shall be automatically subordinate to a deed of trust, to be executed by Trustor or Trustor's successor in interest and recorded in _____[county where property is located] County, California, to secure a loan (hereafter referred to as a "construction loan") obtained for the purpose of the construction of improvements on the property, provided that the conditions listed below are satisfied. For purposes of this Deed of Trust, "construction loan" shall include any advance of funds to Trustor by the Lender for the purpose of the construction of improvements on the property and secured by a lien on the property, whether in the form of a mortgage, deed of trust, or other security instrument in favor of Lender. The following are the conditions to this subordination:

(1) At the time of recordation of the deed of trust securing the construction loan, no unrescinded Notice of Default of this Deed of Trust appears of record.

(2) The total amount of the construction loan shall not exceed $_____.

(3) Any funds derived from the construction loan secured by the property shall be used only for the construction of improvements on the property and, to the extent permitted in this Deed of Trust, for the payment of loan fees, interest, or charges directly connected with the construction of improvements on the property. "Construction of improvements" as used in this Deed of Trust shall mean _____[define in detail, e.g., for a commercial building: the actual costs of labor and materials to construct a three-story commercial building with the usual appurtenances, including parking facilities, driveway, and fencing; aggregate costs of general improvements, including engineering fees, architectural fees, drafting fees, and permit and inspection fees; and costs of utility hookup and assessment charges (exclusive of monthly charges) in respect to the use of these facilities].

(4) The total amount of the construction loan shall not exceed _____ percent of the anticipated value of the property after completion of the construction of improvements financed by the construction loan, as determined by the Lender.

(5) No portion of the construction loan shall be used to pay loan fees, interest, or other charges not directly connected with the construction of improvements on the property.

(6) The maximum loan fees, interest, or other loan charges that may be deducted from the principal amount of the construction loan are as follows:

(a) Loan fees: _____ percent of the principal amount of the construction loan.

(b) Interest: _____ percent per annum.

(c) Other loan charges: A sum not to exceed _____ percent of the principal amount of the construction loan [or $_____].

(7) The construction loan shall not bear interest, exclusive of late charges, penalties, or fees payable in case of default, greater than _____ percent per annum.

(8) The construction loan shall be payable in equal monthly installments of principal and interest [or specify other repayment schedule] over a period of time of not less than _____ months or more than _____ years from the date of the construction loan, with the total unpaid balance all due and payable at the end of that period.

(9) Additional payments may be made, without penalty, on the principal and accrued interest of the construction loan at any time prior to maturity [or specify maximum prepayment penalty or other prepayment terms].

(10) The total payments of principal and interest due on the construction loan shall not exceed $_____ per month.

(11) The construction loan shall be made by a federal or state bank, life insurance company or correspondent thereof, federal or state savings and loan association, or other institutional lender regulated by federal or state authority (referred to throughout this Deed of Trust as "Lender").

(12) The proceeds of the construction loan shall be disbursed by the Lender either through its own offices or through a bonded disbursement control agency only after inspection of the work completed on the property and presentation of vouchers signed by the Trustor or his or her successors in interest for the cost of work, labor, or materials actually performed or used in the construction of improvements on the property.

(13) The remaining terms and provisions of the construction loan shall be as required by the Lender.

Beneficiary, within 10 days after receipt of a written request therefor from Trustor, shall execute a separate agreement of subordination, in recordable form, in favor of the construction loan to which this Deed of Trust is hereby subordinated, and deliver the subordination agreement to the Lender or Lender's title company designated by Trustor. The terms of any such subordination agreement shall prevail over the subordination provisions provided for in this subordinated deed of trust.

THE FOLLOWING ARE ADDITIONAL PROVISIONS OF THIS DEED OF TRUST:

The undersigned Trustor requests that a copy of any Notice of Default and of any Notice of Sale under this Deed of Trust or under any Deed(s) of Trust to which this Deed of Trust shall become subordinate pursuant to the terms of this Deed of Trust, be mailed to the undersigned Trustor at the address of the Trustor set forth above.

[Add following if there is existing senior trust deed or mortgage recorded against property:]

In accordance with California Civil Code Section 2924b, request is hereby made by the undersigned Trustor that a copy of any Notice of Default and a copy of any Notice of Sale under the Deed of Trust [or Mortgage] recorded _____[date], in Book _____, Page _____, Official Records of _____ County, California, as affecting the property described above, executed by _____[name], as Trustor [or Mortgagor] in which _____[name of beneficiary or mortgagee] is named as Beneficiary [or Mortgagee], and _____[name of trustee; omit if mortgage] as Trustee, be mailed to _____[name of person to whom notice is to be mailed, normally the beneficiary of this junior trust deed], whose address is _____[street, city, state, zip].

NOTICE:

A copy of any notice of default and of any notice of sale will be sent only to the address contained in this recorded request. If your address changes, a new request must be recorded.

[Add following clause if transfer by trustor will accelerate entire indebtedness:]

In the event that all or any of the property described in this Deed of Trust, or any interest in that property, is sold, agreed to be sold, conveyed, or alienated by Trustor, or by the operation of law or otherwise, without the prior written consent of Beneficiary, all sums secured by this Deed of Trust shall, at the option of Beneficiary, immediately become due and payable. Consent to one such transaction shall not be deemed to be a waiver of the right to require consent to future or successive transactions.

[If subordination clause allows funds from subordinating loan to be used for any purpose other than defraying costs of improvement of the real property security, add following notice in capital letters if typewritten or in at least eight-point boldface type if printed, unless (1) subordination clause expressly states that subordinating loan will exceed $25,000, or (2) deed of trust is being executed for loan that exceeds $25,000 (see Civ. Code §§ 2953.2(c), 2953.5):]

NOTICE:

THIS SUBORDINATED DEED OF TRUST CONTAINS A SUBORDINATION CLAUSE THAT ALLOWS THE PERSON OBLIGATED ON YOUR REAL PROPERTY SECURITY INSTRUMENT TO OBTAIN A LOAN, A PORTION OF WHICH MAY BE EXPENDED FOR OTHER PURPOSES THAN IMPROVEMENT OF THE LAND.

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a statutory notice that must be included in any real property security instrument that contains a subordination clause or has such a clause attached to it [see Civ. Code § 2953.2(b)]. However, this notice requirement and related statutory requirements do not apply to any subordination clause or subordination agreement that expressly states that the subordinating loan will exceed $25,000 or that is executed in connection with a loan that exceeds $25,000 [Civ. Code § 2953.5].

[b] Subordination Clause Defined

For these purposes, "subordination clause" means a clause in a real property security instrument whereby the holder of the security interest under the instrument agrees that on the occurrence of specified conditions or circumstances his or her security interest will become subordinate to, or he or she will execute an agreement subordinating his or her interest to, the lien of another real property security instrument that would otherwise be of lower priority than his or her lien or security interest [Civ. Code § 2953.1(b)]. A "real property security instrument" includes any mortgage, trust deed, or land contract in or on real property [Civ. Code § 2953.1(a)]. For the statutory definition of a subordination agreement [see Civ. Code § 2953.1(c)], see § 25B.208[1][b].

[c] Notice and Related Disclosures

The notice and related disclosures must appear on the instrument as follows:

- At the top of the instrument, the word "subordinated" must appear in at least 10-point boldface type unless it is typewritten. If the instrument is typewritten, the term must appear in capital letters and must be underlined [Civ. Code § 2953.2(a)].

- Immediately following the term "subordinated," the type of security instrument being used must be described [Civ. Code § 2953.2(a)].

- Immediately below the above information, the statutory notice (this form) must appear in capital letters if typewritten and in at least 8-point boldface type otherwise [Civ. Code § 2953.2(b)].

If a subordination clause contained or attached to a security instrument allows the trustor to use the funds from a subsequent loan for any purpose other than defraying the costs of improvement of the property, the security instrument must contain a notice to that effect [Civ. Code § 2953.2(c); see § 25B.202].

[d] Effect of Violation

Any subordination clause or subordination agreement that violates the above statutory requirements is voidable by the person whose security interest is to be subordinated, or by that person's successor in interest [see Civ. Code § 2953.4]. For a discussion of the precise circumstances under which the election to void a subordination clause or agreement may be made and the procedure for exercising the election, see § 25B.210[1].

[e] Waiver of Requirements

The holder of the security interest that is or may become subordinated may waive the statutory requirements discussed in this Comment by recording a statement prescribed by statute [see Civ. Code § 2953.4(c)]. For further discussion of these waiver requirements, see § 25B.211[1].

§ 25B.202 Notice in Security Instrument That Lien May Be Subordinated for Purposes Other Than Improvement of Land [Civ. Code § 2953.2(c)]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a notice that a lien may be subordinated for purposes other than improvement of land. With certain exceptions, discussed in [c], below, every real property security instrument that contains or has attached to it a subordination clause allowing the trustor to use the funds from a subsequent loan for any purpose other than defraying the costs of improvement of the real property security must contain a notice of that fact [Civ. Code § 2953.2(c); see Civ. Code § 2953.1(a) (definition of "real property security instrument"), Civ. Code § 2953.1(b) (definition of "subordination clause")]. This form contains the notice expressly prescribed by statute.

An additional statutory notice required at the beginning of every security instrument containing a subordination clause is set forth as § 25B.201. For a discussion of related statutory requirements for subordination clauses, see §§ 25B.13, 25B.201[1].

[b] Required Placement and Format

The following notice must appear directly above the signature of the person (beneficiary) whose lien is to be subordinated. Furthermore, if the security instrument is in printed form, the notice must be in at least eight-point boldface type. If the instrument is typed, the notice must be entirely in capital letters [Civ. Code § 2953.2(c)].

[c] Exemptions From Statute

If the subordination clause expressly states that the subordinating loan will exceed $25,000 or if the loan secured by the instrument containing the subordination clause actually exceeds that amount, the notice requirements do not apply [Civ.

Code § 2953.5]. Although a large number of real estate transactions fall within this exempt category, many institutional lenders and title insurance companies as a matter of course include the notice provisions in all subordination documents.

§ 25B.203 Alternative Subordination Provision for Deed of Trust--Subordination on Recordation of Subdivision Map for Encumbered Property

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a subordination provision specifying that the deed of trust in which it is contained will be subordinated to a construction loan deed of trust on the date of recordation of a final subdivision map for the encumbered property. It may be used as an alternative to the "automatic" subordination provision set forth in § 25B.200.

For a general discussion of the purpose of subordination clauses, see § 25B.12. For a discussion of subdivisions and the Subdivision Map Act [Gov. Code §§ 66410-66499.37], see Ch. 30, Subdivision Regulation . For a provision providing for the partial release of individual lots in a subdivision from a deed of trust, see § 25C.221[2].

[b] Required Subordination Provisions

To be enforceable, a subordination clause or agreement must specify enough terms of the subordinating loan to be just and reasonable to the seller [Handy v. Gordon (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 578, 582, 55 Cal. Rptr. 769, 422 P.2d 329]. For a discussion of those terms, see § 25B.200[1][c]. One of the terms that must be specified is the amount of principal and interest for the subordinating loan [Roskamp Manley Associates, Inc. v. Davin Development & Investment Corp. (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 513, 521, 229 Cal. Rptr. 186]. It is not sufficient to specify the amount in terms of a maximum amount per lot, as the number of lots may not be determinable with precision at the time a subordination agreement or deed of trust with a subordination clause is executed [Handy v. Gordon (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 578, 581-582, 55 Cal. Rptr. 769, 422 P.2d 329]. Therefore, when a final subdivision map showing the exact number of lots has not been recorded before executing the subordinated deed of trust, the maximum number of lots permitted should be specified if reference is made to a loan amount for each lot.

All security instruments containing a subordination clause and all subordination agreements, unless exempt by statute, must contain prescribed captions and notices [see Civ. Code §§ 2953.1-2953.5]. For a discussion of those requirements and for the forms of notice, see §§ 25B.201, 25B.202 (trust deed subordination provisions),25B.208-25B.211 (subordination agreements and related notices).

Alternative Subordination Provision for Deed of Trust--Subordination on Recordation of Subdivision Map for Encumbered Property

On the date that a final subdivision map is recorded for the property described in this Deed of Trust in the Office of the County Recorder of _____[name of county where property is located], County, California, provided that an unrescinded Notice of Default under the terms of this Deed of Trust does not appear of record, this Deed of Trust, hereafter called "Purchase Money Deed of Trust," shall automatically be subordinated to one or more deeds of trust hereafter executed by the Trustor covering any lot or group or groups of lots into which the property then has been subdivided as shown on a subdivision map filed for record in _____ County, the total number of lots not to exceed _____[specify maximum number of lots], to secure loans, hereafter called "construction loans," to finance the construction of improvements on lots shown on that subdivision map, provided:

(1) The total amount of all construction loans shall not exceed $_____. The maximum amount of any loan on a single lot shall be $_____.

(2) Any funds derived from any construction loans shall be used only for the construction of improvements on the lot or lots that the construction loan encumbers and to the extent permitted under this Deed of Trust, for the payment of loan fees, interest, or charges directly connected with the construction of improvements. "Construction of improvements" as used in this Deed of Trust shall mean _____[define in detail, e.g., for a commercial building: the actual costs of labor and materials to construct a three-story commercial building with the usual appurtenances, including parking facilities, driveway, and fencing; aggregate costs of general improvements, including engineering fees, architectural fees, drafting fees, permit and inspection fees, and costs of utility hookup and assessment charges (exclusive of monthly charges) with respect to the use of these facilities)].

(3) No construction loan placed on any lot or lots shall exceed _____ percent of the anticipated value, as determined by the lending institution making the construction loan, of the lot or lots after completion of the construction of improvements for which the loan was obtained.

(4) No portion of any construction loan shall be used to pay loan fees, interest, or other charges not directly connected with the construction of improvements on the lot or lots encumbered by the construction loan.

(5) The maximum loan fees, interest, or other loan charges that may be deducted from the principal amount of any construction loan are as follows:

(a) Loan fees: _____ percent of the principal amount of the construction loan.

(b) Interest: _____ percent per annum.

(c) Other loan charges: A sum not to exceed _____ percent of the principal amount of the construction loan [or $_____ (dollar amount)].

(6) No construction loan shall bear interest, exclusive of late charges, penalties, or fees payable in case of default, greater than _____ percent per annum.

(7) Each construction loan shall be payable in equal monthly installments of principal and interest [or specify other repayment schedule] over a period of time of not less than _____ months or more than _____ years from the date of the construction loan, with the total unpaid balance all due and payable at the end of that period.

(8) Additional payments may be made, without penalty, on the principal and accrued interest of any construction loan at any time prior to maturity [or specify maximum prepayment penalty or other prepayment terms].

(9) The total payments of principal and interest due on all construction loans shall not exceed $_____ per month.

(10) Each construction loan shall be made by a federal or state bank, life insurance company or correspondent thereof, federal or state savings and loan association, or other institutional lender regulated by federal or state authority (referred to throughout this Deed of Trust as a "Lender").

(11) The proceeds of any construction loan shall be disbursed by the Lender either through its own offices or through a bonded disbursement control agency only after inspection of the work completed on the property and presentation of vouchers signed by the Trustor or his or her successors in interest for the cost of work, labor, or materials actually performed or used in the construction improvements on the property.

(12) The remaining terms and provisions of any construction loan shall be as required by the Lender.

Within 10 days after receipt of a written request therefor from Trustor, Beneficiary shall execute a separate agreement of subordination, in recordable form, in favor of the construction loan to which this Deed of Trust is hereby subordinated, and deliver the subordination agreement to the Lender or Lender's title company designated by Trustor. The terms of any such subordination agreement shall prevail over the subordination provisions provided for in this subordinated deed of trust.

§ 25B.204 Alternative Subordination Provision for Deed of Trust--Subordination to Both a Construction and a "Take-Out" Loan

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a subordination clause for insertion in a deed of trust that is to be subordinated to deeds of trust securing both construction and permanent, or "take-out," loans. It may be used as an alternative to the subordination clause in § 25B.200.

For a general discussion of the function of subordination clauses, see § 25B.12.

[b] Required Subordination Provisions

To be enforceable, a subordination clause or agreement must specify enough terms of the subordinating loan to be just and reasonable to the seller [Handy v. Gordon (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 578, 582, 55 Cal. Rptr. 769, 422 P.2d 329]. For a discussion of those terms, see § 25B.200[1][c].

All security instruments containing a subordination clause and all subordination agreements, unless exempt by statute, must contain prescribed captions and notices [see Civ. Code §§ 2953.1-2953.5]. For a discussion of those requirements and for the forms of notice, see §§ 25B.201, 25B.202 (trust deed subordination provisions),25B.208-25B.211 (subordination agreements and related notices).

[c] Provisions Regarding "Take-Out Loan"

This form contains provisions for subordination of the purchase money deed of trust to both a construction loan and a permanent loan, called a take-out loan. A construction loan is generally a short-term or interim loan that is repaid with the proceeds from permanent loans [see discussion under "Construction Loans Generally" in the Legal Background to Ch. 30A, Construction Financing]. A permanent or take-out loan is a long-term loan, payable in installments over a period of years, which is used to pay off, or "take out," an interim construction loan [see Jones v. Sacramento Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 522, 527, 56 Cal. Rptr. 741]. Although the take-out loan is made when construction is completed, a lender may make a written commitment to make the loan before the construction lender proceeds with a construction loan. However, permanent commitments are quite difficult to obtain before the commencement of construction [see discussion under "Long-Term Financing--Permanent or Take-Out Loans" in the Legal Background to Ch. 30A, Construction Financing]. The two loans may be made by the same lender, or, more commonly, by different lenders, with the construction lender receiving the security of the permanent loan commitment [see discussion under "Relationship Between Construction and Permanent Loans" in the Legal Background to Ch. 30A, Construction Financing]. The need for certainty regarding the basic terms of the subordinating loan [see [b], above] applies to permanent loans as well as construction loans [see Miller, Starr & Regalia, "Subordination Agreements in California," 13 UCLA L. Rev. 1298, 1305 (1966)].

For further discussion of permanent financing, see Ch. 30A, Construction Financing .

Alternative Subordination Provision for Deed of Trust--Subordination to Both a Construction and a "Take-Out" Loan

SUBORDINATION

Subject to the following provisions and provided no unrescinded notice of default under the terms of this Subordinated Deed of Trust then appears of record, this Subordinated Deed of Trust shall, with no further action of the Beneficiary, be subordinate to the following:

(1) A deed of trust, to be hereafter executed by Trustor, or his or her successor in interest, covering the property, and to be recorded in the Office of the County Recorder of _____[name of county where property is located], to secure a loan (hereafter called "construction loan") from a state or federal bank, life insurance company or correspondent thereof, federal or state savings and loan association, or other institutional lender regulated by federal or state authority (hereafter called "Lender") for the purpose of constructing improvements on the property, provided:

(a) The total amount of the construction loan shall not exceed $_____;

(b) Any funds derived from the construction loan shall be used only for the construction on the property of _____ [describe type of facility, e.g., an apartment building containing at least 10 units], having a value, as determined by the institutional lender making the permanent or take-out loan on the property, of at least $_____, and to the extent permitted in this Deed of Trust, for the loan fees, interest, or other charges directly connected with the construction of the _____ [type of facility];

(c) The construction loan securing the property shall not exceed _____ percent of the anticipated value of the property after completion of the improvements for which the loan was obtained, as determined by the lender making the permanent loan on the property;

(d) No portion of the construction loan shall be used to pay loan fees, interest, or other charges not directly connected with the construction of _____ [describe type of facility] on the portion of the property encumbered by the construction loan;

(e) The maximum loan fees, interest, or other loan charges that may be deducted from the principal amount of the construction loan are as follows:

(i) Loan fees: _____ percent of the principal amount of the construction loan.

(ii) Interest: _____ percent per annum.

(iii) Other loan charges: A sum not to exceed _____ percent of the principal amount of the construction loan.

(f) The construction loan shall not bear interest, exclusive of late charges, penalties, or fees payable in case of default, greater than _____ percent per annum.

(g) The construction loan shall be payable in equal monthly installments of principal and interest [or specify other repayment schedule] over a period of time of not less than _____ months or more than _____ years from the date of the construction loan, with the total unpaid balance all due and payable at the end of that period.

(h) Additional payments may be made, without penalty, on the principal and accrued interest of the construction loan at any time before maturity [or specify maximum prepayment penalty or other prepayment terms].

(i) The total payments of principal and interest due on the construction loan shall not exceed $_____ per month.

(j) The proceeds of the construction loan shall be disbursed by the Lender either through its own offices or through a bonded disbursement control agency only after inspection of the work completed on the property and presentation of vouchers signed by the Trustor or his or her successors in interest for the cost of work, labor, or materials actually performed or used in the construction of improvements on the property.

(k) Trustor has delivered to the Trustee or Beneficiary a binding written commitment from an institutional lender to make a permanent loan on the property, further described below, on completion of _____ [describe type of improvements].

(l) The remaining terms and provisions of the construction loan shall be as required by the Lender.

Within 10 days after receipt of a written request therefor from Trustor, Beneficiary shall execute a separate agreement of subordination, in recordable form, in favor of the construction loan to which this Deed of Trust is hereby subordinated, and deliver the subordination agreement to the Lender or Lender's title company designated by Trustor. The terms of any such subordination agreement shall prevail over the subordination provisions provided for in this Deed of Trust.

(2) A deed of trust, to be hereafter executed by Trustor (or his or her successor in interest) on completion of _____[describe type of facility], covering the property as improved, and to be recorded in the Office of the County Recorder of _____[name of county where property is located], to secure a permanent loan (hereafter called "permanent loan") from a state or federal bank, life insurance company or correspondent thereof, federal or state savings and loan association, or other institutional lender regulated by federal or state authority (hereafter called "Lender"), provided:

(a) The proceeds of the permanent loan shall be used first to pay in full any construction loans on the property, and any mechanics' liens or other charges levied or leviable against the property because of any improvements made on the property by Trustor, or his or her successors in interest, and the property shall be reconveyed from any construction loan deed of trust to which this Deed of Trust is subject;

(b) The total amount of the permanent loan shall not exceed $_____;

(c) The total amount of the permanent loan shall not exceed _____ percent of the value, as determined by the Lender making the permanent loan, of the property as improved by Trustor or his or her successor in interest;

(d) The maximum loan fees, interest, or other loancharges that may be deducted from the principal amount of the permanent loan are as follows:

(i) Loan fees: _____ percent of the principal amount of the loan.

(ii) Interest: _____ percent per annum.

(iii) Other loan charges: A sum not to exceed _____ percent of the principal amount of the loan.

(e) The permanent loan shall not bear interest, exclusive of late charges, penalties, or fees payable in case of default, greater than _____ percent per annum;

(f) The permanent loan shall be payable in equal monthly installments of principal and interest [or specify other repayment schedule] over a period of time of not less than _____ months or more than _____ years from the date of the permanent loan, with the total unpaid balance all due and payable at the end of that period.

(g) Additional payments of principal and accrued interest on the permanent loan may be made, without penalty, at any time prior to maturity [or specify maximum prepayment penalty or other prepayment terms].

(h) The total payments of principal and interest due on the permanent loan shall not exceed $_____ per month.

(i) The proceeds of the permanent loan shall be disbursed by the Lender either through its own offices or through a bonded disbursement control agency; and

(j) The remaining terms and provisions of the permanent loan shall be as required by the Lender.

Within 10 days after receipt of a written request therefor from Trustor, Beneficiary shall execute a separate agreement of subordination, in recordable form, in favor of the permanent loan to which this Deed of Trust is hereby subordinated, and deliver the subordination agreement to the Lender or Lender's title company designated by Trustor. The terms of any such subordination agreement shall prevail over the subordination provisions provided for in this Deed of Trust.

§ 25B.205 Alternative Subordination Provision for Deed of Trust--Subordination to Deed of Trust Being Concurrently Recorded

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a provision stating that the deed of trust or mortgage in which it is contained is subordinate in priority to another mortgage or deed of trust being recorded concurrently. This type of provision may be used when, at the close of escrow for the sale of property, a purchase money mortgage or trust deed given to the seller by the buyer is to be recorded immediately after the recording of a construction loan mortgage or trust deed on the same property given by the buyer and in favor of a construction lender.

To protect the seller from misapplication of the construction loan funds [see §§ 25B.16[3], 25B.19], a provision requiring those proceeds to be used exclusively for construction purposes should be used in conjunction with this form [see § 25B.206]. The issue of misapplication applies to "de facto" subordination discussed below as well as to any other form of subordination [Middlebrook-Anderson Co. v. Southwest Sav. & Loan Assn. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 1023, 1034, 96 Cal. Rptr. 338 ; see § 25B.19].

[b] Purpose of Form

A mortgage or deed of trust containing an automatic subordination clause is not subordinated to a subsequently recorded deed of trust securing a later loan on the same property unless the second loan strictly complies with the terms and restrictions specified in the automatic subordination clause [see § 25B.16[2]]. An "executory" or "promise to subordinate" clause contained in a mortgage or deed of trust may be deemed by a court too indefinite or unfair to be specifically enforced when the holder of the mortgage or deed of trust refuses to fulfill his or her promise to execute an instrument subordinating his or her security interest to the deed of trust securing a later loan [see § 25B.17].

One method sometimes used to avoid these problems is for the purchaser and seller to agree to subordinate the purchase money mortgage or deed of trust to the deed of trust securing a construction loan for development of the property by recording the construction loan deed of trust immediately before recording the purchase money deed of trust [see § 25B.12]. To carry out this method of "de facto" subordination, the developer-purchaser of the property must arrange for a construction loan to be made on the property prior to the close of escrow for the purchase of the property. Joint escrow instructions from the purchaser, seller, and construction lender are then executed instructing the escrow holder first to record the deed conveying the property to the purchaser, then to record the deed of trust securing the construction loan, and then immediately to record the purchase money deed of trust encumbering the property.

A problem potentially present under the above method of subordination is that a mortgage or trust deed given for the price of real property at the time of its conveyance to the buyer has priority over all other liens against the purchaser, subject to operation of the recording laws [Civ. Code § 2898; see § 25B.11[1]]. The recording laws only prevent a purchase money mortgage or deed of trust from having priority over a subsequent mortgage or trust deed recorded before the purchase money mortgage or trust deed when the subsequent mortgagee or trust deed beneficiary parted with value in good faith for the mortgage or deed of trust security interest [Civ. Code § 1214]. It is doubtful whether a construction lender could, when its deed of trust is recorded as part of the same escrow before recordation of the purchase money deed of trust, claim priority over the purchase money deed of trust simply by operation of the recording laws. It would appear the construction lender's claim to priority must depend on the land seller's agreement, contained in the sales contract or escrow instructions, to allow the construction loan deed of trust to be recorded before recordation of the purchase money deed of trust [see Middlebrook-Anderson Co. v. Southwest Sav. & Loan Assn. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 1023, 1033, 96 Cal. Rptr. 338].

To effectuate fully the land seller's agreement to allow the construction loan to have priority and to make the agreement a matter of public record, a statement or memorandum of the agreement should be included in a recorded instrument relating to the transaction. By including a provision such as the one set forth below in the subordinated purchase money deed of trust, that objective is achieved. The inclusion of such a provision in the deed of trust gives constructive notice that the normal priorities between a construction loan and purchase money deed of trust have been altered by agreement of the parties and that the purchase money deed of trust, containing the provision set forth in this form, is inferior to and subject to the specifically described construction loan deed of trust recorded almost concurrently.

[c] Loss of Priority by Misapplication of Construction Loan

There is a split in scholarly authority in California over the effect of a subsequent misapplication of construction loan funds on a subordination achieved by recording a purchase money deed of trust immediately after recording the construction loan deed of trust on the same property. Some legal experts argue that the priority of the construction loan deed of trust cannot be affected by subsequent misapplication of the construction loan funds. Other experts argue the contrary [see § 25B.19].

§ 25B.206 Alternative Subordination Provision for Deed of Trust--Provision Requiring Subordinating Loan to Be Used for Improvements on Property

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a provision requiring the proceeds of the subordinating loan to be used exclusively for improvements on encumbered property intended to be developed as a subdivision. This type of provision is intended for insertion in a purchase money mortgage or deed of trust containing a provision such as that set forth in § 25B.205, providing that the purchase money deed of trust is subordinate to a construction loan deed of trust on the same property being recorded immediately prior to the purchase money deed of trust.

When subordination is accomplished through this method, known as "de facto" subordination, there is some question about whether the subsequent misapplication of construction loan funds does or does not destroy the priority of the construction loan deed of trust over the purchase money deed of trust. The knowing disbursement by the construction lender of construction loan funds for purposes other than the making of improvements in violation of a provision to the contrary in the subordinated deed of trust apparently does cause the construction loan deed of trust to lost its priority over the purchase money mortgage or deed of trust containing the provision [see § 25B.19].

[b] Off-Site Improvements

If the developer is permitted to use the loan proceeds for off-site improvements such as streets, sidewalks and utilities, the agreement should also specify the amounts that are to be used for those improvements [see § 25B.200[1][c][v]; see also Ch. 30, Subdivision Regulation, § 30.220[1][f][viii] (discussion of subdivision off-site improvements)]. This form contains an alternative provision authorizing the use of loan proceeds for off-site improvements.

[c] Statutory Requirements for Subordination

When neither the subordinating construction loan nor the subordinated purchase money loan exceeds $25,000, certain notices prescribed by statute must appear in boldface type or all capital letters in the subordinated security interest instrument [see § 25B.13]. One of the notices is required by statute when the security interest created by the instrument may, by terms of the subordination clause in the instrument, be subordinated to a loan for purposes other than making improvements on the encumbered property [Civ. Code § 2953.3(c)]. A form for that notice is set forth in §§ 25B.202 and 25B.209.

Alternative Subordination Provision for Deed of Trust--Provision Requiring Subordinating Loan to Be Used for Improvements on Property

Any and all funds derived from the loan secured by the subordinating deed of trust [or mortgage] shall be used only for the construction of improvements on the real property that it encumbers; and no portion of that loan shall be used to pay loan fees, interest, or other charges not directly connected with the construction of improvements on the encumbered real property. "Construction of improvements" shall mean the construction of residential structures on each of the lots designated in the final subdivision map for the property recorded on _____[date], in _____ County, California, with the usual appurtenances, including parking facilities, driveway, and fencing, and the construction of all common area facilities; shall encompass all costs of labor and materials for the foregoing, all aggregate costs of general improvements, including engineering fees, architectural fees, drafting fees, permit and inspection fees, and all costs of utility hookup and assessment charges (exclusive of monthly charges) with respect to the use of these facilities; and shall specifically exclude all off-site subdivision improvements [or shall specifically include off-site physical subdivision improvements required by the city (or county) of _____, California, including, but not limited to, roads, storm drains, sidewalks, curbs, gutters, underground utilities, water systems, sewage systems, drainage and erosion control facilities, and fencing, provided that not more than $_____ (specify maximum) of the loan proceeds may be used for these off-site improvements].

§ 25B.207 Subordination Agreement Subordinating Recorded Deed of Trust to Deed of Trust for Specific New Loan

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a subordination agreement in which the seller agrees to subordinate its recorded deed of trust to a new deed of trust that will be recorded contemporaneously with the subordination agreement. Even when the seller's deed of trust contains an automatic subordination clause [see § 25B.14[2]], title companies and institutional lenders almost universally require the seller to execute at the time the new subordinating lien is to be recorded a separate subordination agreement that specifically subordinates the seller's lien to the pending new lien [Miller, Starr & Regalia, Subordination Agreements in California, 13 UCLA L. Rev. 1298, 1300 (1966); see § 25B.16[4]]. Many title companies and institutional lenders require that their own standard form be used for this purpose.

[b] Required Subordination Provisions

To be enforceable, a subordination clause or agreement must specify enough terms of the subordinating loan to be just and reasonable to the seller [Handy v. Gordon (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 578, 582, 55 Cal. Rptr. 769, 422 P.2d 329]. For a discussion of those terms, see § 25B.200[1][c].

[c] Statutory Requirements for Notices

This form contains various statutory notices designed to protect the holder of the subordinated deed of trust and is required to be included in every nonexempt subordination agreement [see Civ. Code §§ 2953.3, 2953.5]. For a discussion of those notices, see §§ 25B.208[1] (notice following title),25B.209[1] (notice above signature).

[d] New Consideration Required for Agreement When Terms Vary From Original Subordination Clause

A real property deed of trust containing an automatic subordination clause will not be subordinated to a subsequently executed deed of trust and the loan it secures unless the subsequent loan strictly complies with the terms, conditions, and restrictions set forth in the automatic subordination clause [Miller v. Citizens Savings & Loan Ass'n (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 655, 663, 56 Cal. Rptr. 844 ; see § 25B.16[2]]. Therefore, a new subordination agreement between the trustor and beneficiary may be used to ensure the priority of the new deed of trust when the loan secured by the lender's deed of trust does not strictly comply with the terms specified in the automatic subordination clause. However, if there is a variation between the seller's original agreement to subordinate and the subsequent agreement between the trustor and beneficiary (whether required by the title company or institutional lender or otherwise), the new agreement must be intended as a novation and supported by new consideration to be enforceable. Otherwise, the two agreements are interpreted together as two parts of a single transaction, as if the new agreement were intended to make the original clause specific or to implement it [Miller v. Citizens Savings & Loan Ass'n (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 655, 661, 56 Cal. Rptr. 844]. The question whether a novation [see Civ. Code §§ 1530-1533] has taken place is one of intention [Collins v. Home Savings & Loan Ass'n (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 86, 100, 22 Cal. Rptr. 817]. The provisions of this form expressly state that intention and provide for new consideration [see P 4 of Form].

NOTICE:
THIS SUBORDINATION AGREEMENT RESULTS IN YOUR SECURITY INTEREST IN THE PROPERTY BECOMING SUBJECT TO AND OF LOWER PRIORITY THAN THE LIEN OF SOME OTHER OR LATER INSTRUMENT.

THIS SUBORDINATION AGREEMENT is made between _____[name of trustor], hereafter called "Trustor," and _____[name of beneficiary], hereafter called "Beneficiary."

WHEREAS, Trustor executed a Deed of Trust, dated _____, in favor of Beneficiary, which was recorded on _____[date], as Instrument No. _____ in Book _____, Page _____, Official Records of _____ County, California, hereafter called the "Subordinate Deed of Trust";

WHEREAS, the Subordinate Deed of Trust was security for a promissory note in the amount of $_____ executed on _____[date] by Trustor in favor of Beneficiary;

WHEREAS, Trustor is the owner of the real property subject to the Subordinate Deed of Trust, hereafter called "Real Property," which is located in the [if applicable, City of _____,] County of _____, California, and is more particularly described as follows: _____[set forth legal description in the center of the page];

WHEREAS, Trustor desires to obtain a loan, hereafter referred to as the "Construction Loan," in the amount of $_____ from _____[name of lender], hereafter referred to as "Lender," and has executed or shall execute concurrently with this Subordinate Deed of Trust a note for the amount of the Construction Loan and a deed of trust in favor of Lender, hereafter referred to as the "Superior Deed of Trust," securing and evidencing the Construction Loan; and

WHEREAS, Lender is willing to make the Construction Loan provided the deed of trust securing it (the Superior Deed of Trust) is a lien or charge on the Real Property prior and superior to the lien or charge of the Subordinate Deed of Trust, and provided further that Beneficiary specifically and unconditionally subordinates the lien or charge of the Subordinate Deed of Trust to the Superior Deed of Trust; and

WHEREAS, it is mutually beneficial to Beneficiary and Trustor that Lender make the Construction Loan to Trustor and Beneficiary is willing to subordinate the lien of the Subordinate Deed of Trust, insofar as it encumbers the Real Property, to the Superior Deed of Trust in order that Trustor may obtain the Construction Loan from Lender;

NOW, THEREFORE, the parties to this instrument agree as follows:

Terms of Subordinating Loan

1. The terms of the Construction Loan from Lender to Trustor are as follows:

(a) The total amount of the construction loan is $_____, which is _____ percent of the anticipated value of the property after completion of the improvements for which the loan is being obtained, as determined by Lender.

(b) Any funds derived from the construction loan shall be used only for the construction of improvements on the property that it encumbers. Construction of improvements shall mean: _____ [describe in detail (see, e.g., P 1 of subordination provisions in § 25B.200)].

(c) No portion of the construction loan shall be used to pay loan fees, interest, or other charges not directly connected with the construction of improvements on the property encumbered by the construction loan.

(d) The maximum loan fees, interest, or other loan charges that may be deducted from the principal amount of the construction loan are as follows:

(i) Loan fees: $_____, which is _____ percent of the principal amount of the construction loan.

(ii) Interest: _____ percent per annum.

(iii) Other loan charges: $_____, which shall be paid for _____ [specify breakdown of charges, e.g., recording costs and processing fees].

(e) The construction loan bears interest, exclusive of late charges, penalties, or fees payable in case of default, at the rate of _____ percent per annum [or specify applicable interest provision].

(f) The construction loan is payable in equal monthly installments of principal and interest [or specify other repayment schedule] over a period of time of not less than _____ months or more than _____ years from the date of the construction loan, with the total unpaid balance all due and payable at the end of that period.

(g) Additional payments may be made, without penalty, on the principal and accrued interest of the construction loan at any time before maturity [or specify maximum prepayment penalty or other prepayment terms].

(h) The total payment of principal and interest due on the construction loans is $_____ per month.

(i) The proceeds of the construction loan must be disbursed by the Lender either through its own offices or through a bonded disbursement control agency only after inspection of the work completed on the property and presentation of vouchers signed by the Trustor or his or her successors in interest for the cost of work, labor, or materials actually performed or used in the construction of the improvements on the property.

(j) _____ [Set forth any remaining terms and provisions required by the lender].

Beneficiary hereby approves all the terms of the loan.

Subordination

2. Beneficiary hereby subordinates the Subordinate Deed of Trust to the Superior Deed of Trust, which shall be recorded concurrently with this instrument in the Office of the County Recorder of _____ County, California. Beneficiary further declares that the lien of the Superior Deed of Trust shall be and is in all respects prior and superior to the lien of the Subordinate Deed of Trust and that the Superior Deed of Trust and any renewals or extensions of the Superior Deed of Trust and the note secured by it shall be and remain at all times a lien or charge on the Real Property, prior and superior to the lien or charge of the Subordinate Deed of Trust.

Acknowledgment of Subordination

3. Beneficiary acknowledges that _____[he or she] hereby intentionally waives, relinquishes, and subordinates the priority and superiority of the lien or charge of the Subordinate Deed of Trust in favor of the lien or charge of the Superior Deed of Trust, and that _____[he or she] understands that in reliance on and in consideration of this waiver, relinquishment, and subordination specific loans and advances are being and will be made, and that specific monetary and other obligations are being and will be entered into by third parties, that would not be made or entered into but for that reliance on the waiver, relinquishment, and subordination. Beneficiary further acknowledges that an endorsement has been placed on the note secured by the Subordinate Deed of Trust and that the Subordinate Deed of Trust has by this instrument been subordinated to the lien or charge of the Superior Deed of Trust.

Conflict With Deed of Trust

4. [Add if terms of subordinating loan vary from those specified in subordination clause of Subordinate Deed of Trust: In consideration of _____ (specify new consideration),] Beneficiary and Trustor hereby further agree that this Subordination Agreement shall supersede and operate as a novation of all of those provisions of the Subordinate Deed of Trust, if any, that provide for the automatic subordination of the lien of the Subordinate Deed of Trust to the lien or liens of a mortgage or deed of trust, or mortgages or deeds of trust, affecting all or a portion of the Real Property.

Entire Agreement

5. This agreement contains the whole agreement between the parties relating to the deed of trust loans, and the priority of those loans. There are no agreements, written or oral, outside or separate from this agreement, and all prior negotiations, if any, are merged into this agreement.

Binding Effect

6. This Subordination Agreement shall inure to the benefit of Lender, its legal representatives, successors, and assigns, and shall be binding on Beneficiary and Trustor, their respective heirs, legal representatives, successors, and assigns.

Dated: _____.

[If subordination clause allows funds from subordinating loan to be used for any purpose other than defraying costs of improvement of real property security, add following notice in capital letters if typewritten or in at least eight-point boldface type if printed, unless (1) subordination agreement expressly states that subordinating loan will exceed $25,000, or (2) agreement is being executed in connection with loan that exceeds $25,000 (see Civ. Code §§ 2953.3(c), 2953.5):]

§ 25B.208 Statutory Notice Following Title of Subordination Agreement [Civ. Code § 2953.3(a), (b)]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a statutory notice provision that must follow the title of a subordination agreement, unless the loan to be subordinated exceeds $25,000 [Civ. Code § 2953.5(b)] or the subordination agreement expressly provides that the subordinating loan must exceed $25,000 [Civ. Code § 2953.5(a)]. It must be inserted immediately below the title of every nonexempt subordination agreement [Civ. Code § 2953.3(b)].

Some subordination agreements subject to this notice requirement must contain an additional statutory notice above the signature line. For discussion of that notice, see § 25B.209[1].

[b] Subordination Agreement Defined

For these purposes, a "subordination agreement" is a separate agreement or instrument whereby the holder of a security interest under a real property mortgage, deed of trust, or installment sales contract agrees that (1) his or her existing security interest is subordinate to the lien of another mortgage or trust deed encumbering the same land, (2) on the occurrence of specified conditions his or her security interest will become subordinated to the lien of another mortgage or trust deed, or (3) on the occurrence of specified conditions he or she will execute an agreement subordinating his or her interest to the lien of another mortgage or trust deed [Civ. Code § 2953.1(c)].

[c] Requirements for Notice

If the subordination agreement is typed, the notice provision must be entirely in capital letters; but if the subordination agreement is a printed form, the notice provision must be in at least 8-point boldface type [Civ. Code § 2953.3(b)].

[d] Form of Title of Subordination Agreement

The title of the subordination agreement must be the words "Subordination Agreement" [Civ. Code § 2953.3(a)]. If the subordination agreement is typed, the title must be entirely in capital letters and underlined; if the subordination agreement is printed, the title must be at least 10-point boldface type [Civ. Code § 2953.3(a)].

[e] Failure to Comply With Requirements

If the subordination agreement fails to meet the statutory notice requirements, the beneficiary of the subordinated deed of trust may record a notice of failure of compliance within two years from the date of execution of the instrument to which his or her interest is subordinated. This procedure allows the beneficiary of the subordinated trust deed to void the violating subordination agreement but only if he or she is without actual knowledge of the existence and terms of the subordination agreement [Civ. Code § 2953.4(a), (b)]. For a notice of noncompliance with subordination notice requirements, see § 25B.210.

[f] Waiver

The beneficiary of the subordinated lien may waive the statutory notice requirements by the subsequent execution and recordation of a waiver [Civ. Code § 2953.4(c)]. For a waiver of noncompliance with the prescribed notice requirements, see § 25B.211.

§ 25B.209 Statutory Notice Required Above Signature Line of Subordination Agreement [Civ. Code § 2953.3(c)]

[1] Comment--Use of Form

Unless the loan to be subordinated exceeds $25,000 [Civ. Code § 2953.5(b)] or the subordination agreement expressly provides that the subsequent subordinating loan must exceed $25,000 [Civ. Code § 2953.5(a)], and if the subordination agreement permits the trustor to use the proceeds of the loan for any purpose other than defraying the actual contract costs for improvement of the secured real property, the notice in this form must appear directly above the signature of the person (beneficiary) whose security is being, or will be, subordinated [Civ. Code § 2953.3(c)]. If the subordination agreement is typed, the notice provisions must be entirely in capital letters; but if the subordination agreement is a printed form, the notice provision must be in at least eight-point boldface type [Civ. Code § 2953.3(b)].

The notice provision in § 25B.208[2] and the title requirement discussed in § 25B.208[1] must also appear in any nonexempt subordination agreement. For a discussion of the remedy available for failure to comply with the notice requirements and of the requirements and procedure for waiving those requirements, see §§ 25B.210[1], 25B.211[1].

§ 25B.210 Notice of Noncompliance by Deed of Trust or Subordination Agreement With Statutory Notice Requirements

[1] Comment--Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a notice that certain statutory requirements for a subordination clause or agreement have not been satisfied. Statutes in California place certain restrictions on mortgages or trust deeds containing subordination clauses and on subordination agreements when neither the loan whose security interest is to be subordinated nor the loan to which it is to be subordinated exceeds $25,000 [see § 25B.13].

Noncompliance with the statutory requirements by a mortgage, trust deed, or subordination agreement subject to the statutes enables the person whose security interest was to be subordinated to void the subordination clause or agreement within two years after execution of the security instrument to which his or her interest was to be subordinated [Civ. Code § 2953.4(a)]. However, he or she cannot void the subordination clause or agreement if, in spite of the noncompliance with the statutory requirements, he or she had actual knowledge of the existence and terms of the subordination clause or agreement [Civ. Code § 2953.4(a)]. To exercise the election to invalidate the subordination clause or agreement, the person whose security interest was to be subordinated must record a notice that the provisions of the statute have not been complied with, that he or she is the holder of the security interest that is or was to be subordinated, and that he or she elects to void the effect of the subordination clause or subordination agreement [Civ. Code § 2953.4(b)].

For other notices required by related statutes, see §§ 25B.201, 25B.202, 25B.208, 25B.209, and 25B.211.

§ 25B.211 Waiver by Beneficiary of Subordinated Deed of Trust of Noncompliance by Deed of Trust or Subordination Agreement With Statutory Notice Requirements

[1] Comment--Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a statement that may be used by the beneficiary under a subordinated deed of trust to waive compliance with certain statutory notice requirements for subordination. Statutes in California place certain restrictions on mortgages or trust deeds containing subordination clauses and on subordination agreements when neither the loan to be subordinated nor the loan to which it is to be subordinated exceeds $25,000 [see § 25B.13].

The statutory requirements may, however, be waived by the person whose mortgage or deed of trust is, under the noncomplying subordination clause or subordination agreement, to be subordinated [Civ. Code § 2953.4(c)]. To waive the statutory requirements, the holder of the mortgage or trust deed that is to be subordinated must, after execution and recordation of the noncomplying mortgage, trust deed, or subordination agreement execute and record a statement that he or she knows of the existence of the subordination clause or agreement, knows of its terms, and waives the statutory provisions and requirements [Civ. Code § 2953.4(c)].

Other notices required by the statutes are set forth in §§ 25B.201, 25B.202, 25B.208, and 25B.209. A notice of noncompliance with the statutory requirements, by which the person whose security interest was to be subordinated voids the subordination clause or agreement, is set forth in § 25B.210.

§ 25B.220 Request for Beneficiary Statement [Civ. Code § 2943]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a request for a beneficiary statement. A beneficiary statement is essentially a statement of the unpaid balance of an obligation secured by a mortgage or deed of trust [see Civ. Code § 2943(a)(2); for an illustrative beneficiary statement, see § 25B.221]. The statement is used when the trust deed or mortgage is to be assumed and the parties wish to determine the precise amount of the debt [see § 25B.221[1][a]].

This form assumes that the "entitled person" requesting the statement is the trustor or mortgagor of the mortgaged or trust property, or the successor in interest of the trustor or mortgagor [see [e], below]. However, if the assumption occurs in connection with the purchase of the property securing the obligation, it is quite possible that the escrow holder will, as another "entitled person," prepare and submit the request. For a request that is made by an escrow agent, see Ch. 26, Real Property Escrows .

[b] Payoff Demand Statement

Civ. Code § 2943, which governs beneficiary statements, also sets forth requirements for a related disclosure document referred to as a "payoff demand statement." A payoff demand statement is used when the obligation secured by a mortgage or deed of trust is to be paid in full [see Civ. Code § 2943(a)(5), (c); see also Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans]. If an entitled person requests a statement pursuant to Civ. Code § 2943 and does not specify whether he or she is seeking a beneficiary statement or a payoff demand statement, the beneficiary must treat the request as a request for a payoff demand statement [Civ. Code § 2943(e)(1)].

[c] Owner's Statement

The disclosure requirements of Civ. Code § 2943 apply only to beneficiaries, mortgagees, and their assignees [see Civ. Code § 2943(a)(1)]. For discussion of a nonstatutory request for confirmation of a debt that may be submitted to a trustor or mortgagor by a proposed assignee of the beneficiary or mortgagee, see § 25B.221[1][b].

[d] Request Procedure

Any entitled person or his or her authorized agent may prepare and deliver to the beneficiary [for the definitions of "entitled person," "beneficiary," and "delivery," see [e], below] or the beneficiary's authorized agent a written request or demand for a beneficiary statement. The request may be made (1) at any time before, or within two months after, the recording of a notice of default under the mortgage or trust deed; or (2) more than 30 days prior to the entry of a decree of foreclosure [Civ. Code § 2943(b)(2)].

If the beneficiary has more than one branch, office, or other place of business, then the request must be made to the branch or office address set forth in the payment billing notice or payment book. In that case, the statement, unless it specifies otherwise, will be deemed to apply only to the unpaid balance of the single obligation named in the request and secured by the mortgage or trust deed that is payable at the branch or office whose address appears on the above billing notice or payment book [Civ. Code § 2943(e)(5)].

The beneficiary may charge up to $30 for furnishing the statement, unless the mortgage or trust deed is insured by the Federal Housing Administrator or guaranteed by the Administrator of Veterans Affairs [Civ. Code § 2943(e)(6)].

This form includes an optional request for a copy of the trust deed or mortgage. When such a request is included, the beneficiary must furnish the copy of the security instrument along with the beneficiary statement at no additional charge [Civ. Code § 2943(e)(2)].

[e] Definitions

Under Civ. Code § 2943, "beneficiary" means a mortgagee or beneficiary of a mortgage or trust deed, or his or her assignees [Civ. Code § 2943(a)(1)]. "Entitled person" means any of the following [Civ. Code § 2943(a)(4); see Ch. 26, Real Property Escrows]:

- The trustor or mortgagor of the mortgaged or trust property, or that person's successor in interest;
- Any beneficiary under a trust deed;
- Any person having a subordinate lien or encumbrance of record;
- Any escrow holder licensed as an agent; or
- Any person who is acting as an escrow holder and is exempt from the licensing requirements of the Escrow Law [see Fin. Code § 17000 et seq. (Escrow Law); Fin. Code § 17006 (exemptions)].

The "date of sale" established under Civ. Code § 2924g (governing sales under a power of sale) is not changed as a result of the preparation and delivery of a beneficiary statement or a payoff demand statement [Civ. Code § 2943(f)].

"Delivery" means (1) depositing or causing to be deposited in the United States mail an envelope with postage prepaid, containing a copy of the document to be delivered, addressed to the person whose name and address are set forth in the request for the document, or (2) faxing the document to that person [Civ. Code § 2943(a)(3)].

§ 25B.221 Beneficiary Statement [Civ. Code § 2943]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a beneficiary statement. If requested to do so by an "entitled person" [see § 25B.220[1][e] (definition)], the beneficiary or mortgagee under a trust deed or mortgage must deliver to the requesting party a beneficiary statement setting forth the unpaid balance of the obligation secured by the mortgage or trust deed and certain other information [Civ. Code § 2943(b)(1); see [e], below]. The statement is generally obtained when a person proposes to purchase property encumbered by the lien of the beneficiary or mortgagee, and the prospective purchaser intends to assume the existing obligation as part of the purchase price [see § 25B.31]. The purpose of the statement is to establish for the benefit of the proposed purchaser/grantee the amount of the outstanding debt and all other pertinent information concerning the note or other evidence of indebtedness.

If the proposed purchaser/grantee or another party wishes to pay off the existing obligation, he or she should request a "payoff demand statement" instead of a beneficiary statement [see § 25B.220; see also Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans].

[b] Owner's Statement

For an "owner's statement" that contains information similar to the one below, but that is completed by the debtor/owner of the property, see Ch, 26, Real Property Escrows . An owner's statement is generally requested by a proposed assignee of the beneficiary or mortgagee in order to confirm the status of the debt and to determine whether the debtor is claiming any offsets against the beneficiary or mortgagee. However, there is no statutory authority requiring a debtor to furnish such a statement; Civ. Code § 2943 only applies to requests directed to beneficiaries and mortgagees [see Civ. Code § 2943(a)(1), (b)(1)].

[c] Delivery of Statement and Related Documents

In response to a valid written request [see § 25B.220], the beneficiary or the beneficiary's authorized agent must, within 21 days of the receipt of the request, deliver to the requesting party a beneficiary statement and a true, correct, and complete copy of (1) the promissory note or other evidence of indebtedness, and (2) any modification to that note or other document [Civ. Code § 2943(b)(1)]. Further, if the written request includes a request for a copy of the trust deed or mortgage, the beneficiary must furnish that document with the beneficiary statement at no additional charge [Civ. Code § 2943(e)(2)].

For these purposes, "delivery" means (1) depositing or causing to be deposited in the United States mail an envelope with postage prepaid, containing a copy of the document to be delivered, addressed to the person whose name and address are set forth in the request for the document, or (2) faxing the document to that person [Civ. Code § 2943(a)(3)].

The beneficiary may charge up to $30 for furnishing each required statement, unless the mortgage or trust deed is insured by the Federal Housing Administrator or guaranteed by the Administrator of Veterans Affairs [Civ. Code § 2943(e)(6)].

[d] Proof of "Entitled Person" Status

Only "entitled persons" or their authorized agents have the right to request a beneficiary statement [Civ. Code § 2943(b); see § 25B.220[1][e] (definition)]. Before delivering a beneficiary statement, the beneficiary may require reasonable proof that the person making the request is, in fact, an entitled person or an authorized agent of an entitled person. If the beneficiary does so, he or she will have 21 days after receipt of the foregoing proof to deliver the beneficiary statement [Civ. Code § 2943(e)(3)].

A written statement appointing an authorized agent will constitute reasonable proof of the identity of an agent if it is signed by the entitled person and delivered personally to the beneficiary or delivered by registered return receipt mail. Similar delivery of a policy of title insurance, preliminary report issued by a title company, original or photographic copy of a grant deed, or certified copy of letters testamentary, of guardianship, or of conservatorship will constitute reasonable proof of the identity of a successor in interest, provided the person requesting the statement is named as successor in interest in the document [Civ. Code § 2943(e)(3)].

[e] Required Contents

A beneficiary statement must be in writing and must indicate all of the following [Civ. Code § 2943(a)(2)]:

- The amount of the unpaid balance of the obligation secured by the mortgage or trust deed and the interest rate, together with the total amounts, if any, of all overdue installments of principal or interest, or both.
- The amounts of periodic payments, if any.
- The date on which the obligation is due in whole or in part.
- The date to which real estate taxes and special assessments have been paid, to the extent the information is known to the beneficiary.
- The amount of hazard insurance in effect and the term and premium of that insurance, to the extent the information is known to the beneficiary.
- The amount in an account, if any, maintained for the accumulation of funds with which to pay taxes and insurance premiums.

- The nature and, if known, the amount of any additional charges, costs, or expenses paid or incurred by the beneficiary that have become a lien on the real property involved.

- Whether or not the obligation secured by the mortgage or trust deed can or may be transferred to a new borrower [for a detailed discussion of due-on-sale clauses, see Ch. 25A, Security Instruments for Real Estate Financing].

[f] Reliance on Statement and Amendments

A beneficiary statement may be relied on by the entitled person or that person's authorized agent in accordance with its terms. Similarly, if the beneficiary notifies the entitled person or his or her authorized agent of any amendment to the statement, then the amended statement may be relied on by the entitled person or his or her authorized agent in accordance with its terms [Civ. Code § 2943(d)(1)].

If the notification of an amendment is not given in writing (for example, verbally), then the beneficiary must deliver a written amendment to the statement to the entitled person or his or her authorized agent no later than the next business day after the initial notification [Civ. Code § 2943(d)(2)].

[g] Continuing Unsecured Obligations

On the dates specified below, any sums that were due and for any reason not included in the statement or amended statement will continue to be recoverable by the beneficiary as an unsecured obligation of the obligor pursuant to the terms of the note and existing provisions of law [Civ. Code § 2943(d)(3); see Cathay Bank v. Fidelity Nat'l Title Ins. Co. (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 266, 270, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 595]. However, the remaining debt is no longer secured according to the terms of the original note in any circumstance [Cathay Bank v. Fidelity Nat'l Title Ins. Co. (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 266, 270, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 595]:

- If the transaction is voluntary, the entitled party or his or her authorized agent may rely on the statement or amended statement on the earlier of (1) the close of escrow, (2) transfer of title, or (3) recordation of a lien.

- If the loan is subject to a recorded notice of default or a filed complaint commencing a judicial foreclosure, the entitled party or his or her authorized agent may rely on the statement or amended statement on the acceptance of the last and highest bid at a trustee's sale or a court supervised sale.

[h] Violations by Beneficiary

If a beneficiary willfully fails to prepare and deliver a statement within 21 days of the receipt of a proper request, or, if applicable, within 21 days of receipt of proof of the requesting party's entitled person status [Civ. Code § 2943(e)(3); see [d], above], he or she (1) is liable to the entitled person for all damages that the entitled person may sustain by reason of the refusal, and (2) must forfeit $300 to the entitled person, whether or not actual damages are sustained. Each failure to prepare and deliver the statement creates a separate cause of action, but a judgment awarding an entitled person a forfeiture, or damages and forfeiture, for any failure to prepare and deliver a statement bars recovery of damages and forfeiture for any other failure to prepare and deliver a statement, with respect to the same obligation, in compliance with a request therefor made within six months before or after the request that resulted in the award. For these purposes, "willfully" means an intentional failure to comply with the requirements of Civ. Code § 2943 without just cause or excuse [Civ. Code § 2943(e)(4)].

§ 25B.222 Assumption Agreement for Execution by Seller, Purchaser, and Lender

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a three-party assumption agreement for use by the beneficiary of an existing deed of trust on real property being sold and by the seller and the purchaser of the property. It provides that the purchaser will assume the promissory note secured by the trust deed and that the beneficiary will not exercise its right under either the trust deed or promissory note to accelerate the unpaid balance of the secured indebtedness [see § 25B.31[3]].

This form assumes that the security instrument will be a deed of trust because trust deeds are used much more frequently in California than mortgages. However, this form may be easily modified for use in conjunction with the assumption of a note secured by a mortgage.

[b] Grantee's Liability

A grantee of real property subject to an existing deed of trust or mortgage who "assumes" the encumbrance agrees to pay and discharge the secured debt that the original debtor (grantor) is liable for [Williams v. Naftzger (1894) 103 Cal. 438, 440, 37 P. 411]. The grantee's liability on the mortgage is established under the "equitable subrogation" theory [see Ward v. De Oca (1898) 120 Cal. 102, 104-106, 52 P. 130]. Under this theory, the assuming grantee is personally and primarily liable for the encumbrance, but only if all intervening grantees between the assuming grantee and the original debtor had each assumed the encumbrance [see Ward v. De Oca (1898) 120 Cal. 102, 104-106, 52 P. 130 ; Case v. Egan (1922) 57 Cal. App. 453, 454, 207 P. 388 ; see also § 25B.31[1]].

[c] Continuing Liability of Original Debtor

Under the form in [2], below, the seller is not released from liability on the promissory note being assumed by the buyer. The original debtor on an assumed encumbrance may be released from liability only if the creditor agrees to a novation [see Civ. Code §§ 1530-1533] or to release the original debtor from liability [see Civ. Code §§ 1541-1543; see also Ward v. De Oca (1898) 120 Cal. 102, 52 P. 130]. For a provision that may be inserted into this form when a creditor agrees to release the original obligor from liability, see § 25B.223. Without such a release, the original debtor becomes a surety on the debt [Everts v. Matteson (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 437, 447-448, 132 P.2d 476 ; see § 25B.31[1]].

[d] Assumption Agreement in Writing

To be valid and enforceable, an assumption agreement must be in writing and subscribed by the party to be charged (or his or her agent) [Civ. Code § 1624(a)(6); see Katz v. Haskell (1961) 196 Cal. App. 2d 144, 157, 16 Cal. Rptr. 453]. A separate written instrument is not required if the assumption is specifically provided for in the conveyance instrument [Civ. Code § 1624(a)(6)].

ASSUMPTION AND ASSIGNMENT AGREEMENT

This Agreement is made among _____[name and legal status of seller], hereafter called "Seller," _____[name and legal status of purchaser], hereafter called "Purchaser," and _____[name and legal status of beneficiary], hereafter called "Lender."

RECITALS

A. WHEREAS, Seller is presently the owner of the property (hereafter called the "Property") described in a Deed of Trust dated _____, executed by _____[name] as Trustor, in which _____[name] is named as Beneficiary and _____[name] as Trustee, and recorded on _____[date], as Instrument No. _____ in Book _____, Page _____, Official Records of _____ County, California (hereafter called the "Deed of Trust"), which Deed of Trust is security for a promissory note dated _____, executed by _____[name] as Maker, payable to _____[name], in the principal sum of $_____ (hereafter called the "Promissory Note");

B. WHEREAS, Seller and Purchaser have entered into a real property sales agreement under which Purchaser has agreed to purchase the Property and to assume the Promissory Note and Deed of Trust as part of the purchase price for the Property to be paid by Purchaser to Seller [add if assumption is contingent on lender's waiver of due-on-sale clause (see Recital C and Paragraph 3, below) and/or lender's agreement to release seller from liability (see § 25B.223):, subject to the conditions stated in this Agreement]. [Add the following if the promissory note or trust deed contains a "due-on-sale" provision:]

C. WHEREAS, Buyer's obligation to assume the Promissory Note is conditioned on Lender's agreement not to exercise its option under the terms of the Promissory Note and Deed of Trust to accelerate the unpaid balance of the Promissory Note as a result of the above transfer.

[Continue with the following:]

THE PARTIES HEREBY AGREE AS FOLLOWS:

Unpaid Balance of Note

1. The total unpaid principal balance on the Promissory Note is $_____. A beneficiary statement prepared by Lender pursuant to Civil Code Section 2943 is attached to this Agreement as Exhibit A.

Assumption of Liability

2. Buyer hereby assumes and agrees to pay the obligation represented by the Promissory Note; acknowledges that the Real Property described in the Deed of Trust shall remain subject to the Deed of Trust; acknowledges that nothing in this Agreement shall affect the priority of the lienof the Deed of Trust over other liens and encumbrances against the Real Property; and agrees to be bound by all of the conditions and covenants contained in the Promissory Note and Deed of Trust. Buyer also agrees that the Deed of Trust shall secure all other sums that Buyer may borrow in the future from Lender when such sums are evidenced by another note or notes stating that they are so secured.

[Add if a due-on-sale provision appears in the promissory note or deed of trust:]

Consent to Transfer

3. Lender hereby consents to the transfer of the Real Property described in the Deed of Trust [add if applicable: and the Promissory Note] and waives its right to accelerate the entire unpaid balance of the Promissory Note by reason of the transfer; provided, however, that this consent shall not be deemed a waiver of the right to require consent to future transactions.

[Continue with the following:]

Seller's Continued Liability

4. In consideration of the execution and acceptance of this Agreement, Seller hereby agrees that the liability of Seller on the Promissory Note shall not be affected by this Agreement. Seller waives presentation, demand of payment protest, and notice of nonpayment of the above indebtedness, and expressly consents to and waives the right to notice of the following: a delay or change in the performance of any of the provisions of the Deed of Trust, or in the time of payment of all or any installment of the principal; a change in the amount of one or more installments; [add if trust deed contains partial release provision: partial releases of the property authorized by the Deed of Trust;] the acceptance of additional security for the Promissory Note; a reduction or increase of the interest rate or principal of the Promissory Note; and subsequent assumption agreements.

[Add if funds have been impounded by the lender to pay insurance, taxes, and other matters:]

Assignment by Seller

5. Seller hereby transfers and assigns to Purchaser all of its right, title, and interest in and to any and all refunds and credits that may at any time accrue under the Deed of Trust [add if appropriate: or under the contract of insurance on the Deed of Trust by the Federal Housing Administration].

[Continue with the following:]

Governing Law

6. All questions about the construction of this Agreement, and the right and liabilities of the parties to this Agreement, shall be governed by the laws of the State of California.

Binding on Successors

7. This Agreement shall inure to the benefit of, and shall be binding on, the assigns, successors in interest, personal representatives, estates, heirs, and legatees of each of the parties.

Entire Agreement

8. This Agreement contains the entire agreement of the parties, and supersedes any prior written or oral agreements between them concerning the subject matter of this Agreement. There are no representations, agreements, arrangements, or understandings, oral or written, among the parties, relating to the subject matter of this Agreement, that are not fully expressed in this Agreement.

§ 25B.223 Alternative Provision for Assumption Agreement--Release of Original Debtor From Liability

[1] Comment--Use of Form

The form in [2], below, consists of provisions that may be inserted into the assumption agreement set forth in § 25B.222[2] (in the manner described below) when (1) the original debtor under a promissory note secured by a trust deed is selling the secured property to a buyer who is assuming liability on the note and trust deed, and (2) the lender agrees to release the original debtor (seller) from liability under the secured note. Absent such a release by the lender [see Civ. Code §§ 1541-1543] or a novation [see Civ. Code §§ 1530-1533], the original debtor is not relieved from this liability [see Ward v. De Oca (1898) 120 Cal. 102, 52 P. 130 ; see also § 25B.31[1]].

The provisions in this form may be included in § 25B.222[2] by including the Recital paragraph as Recital D and by substituting the release provision for Paragraph 4 of that form.

§ 25B.230 Assignment of Note and Deed of Trust

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is an assignment of a promissory note and the beneficial interest under a trust deed. It is designed to be used in conjunction with the relevant note [see [b], below] and a notice of assignment [see [e], below].

For an assignment of a mortgage and promissory note, see § 25B.231.

[b] Assignment of Security Instrument

An assignment of any interest in real property must be in writing and subscribed by the assignor or the assignor's lawful agent [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1971; see also Cockerell v. Title Ins. & Trust Co. (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 284, 291, 267 P.2d 16 (assignment must manifest intention to presently transfer assignor's interest without further action)]. Because an assignment of a trust deed or mortgage is not effective without assignment of the note [Kelley v. Upshaw (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 179, 192, 246 P.2d 23], this form assigns both the security instrument and the note. As a practical matter, only the note need be assigned [see [c], below], because the assignment of a debt secured by a mortgage or trust deed effectively assigns the security [Civ. Code § 2936 (mortgage); Lewis v. Booth (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 345, 349, 44 P.2d 560 (trust deed); see § 25B.33]. A formal assignment of the security instrument is not required [Lewis v. Booth (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 345, 349, 44 P.2d 560 ; Pitman v. Walker (1922) 187 Cal. 667, 671, 203 P. 739]. However, it is good practice to (1) endorse and deliver the note [see [c][ii], [iii], below], (2) prepare an assignment instrument that refers to the security and the note (this form), and (3) have the assignor acknowledge the assignment instrument in order that the assignee can record the assignment to protect the priority of the security over subsequent encumbrancers or transferees of the assignor [see Civ. Code § 2934; see also [e], below]. An assigned instrument must be used in this context to protect priority because a promissory note is not an instrument affecting the title to or possession of real property and therefore cannot be recorded [see Gov. Code § 27288].

[c] Assignment of Promissory Note

[i] Effect and Methods

The assignment of a promissory note transfers title to the instrument to the assignee, gives the assignee all of the rights of the assignor, and subjects the assignee to all the defenses available against the assignor [see Commercial Discount Co. v. Cowen (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 610, 614, 116 P.2d 599]. The assignor loses the right to maintain an action on the claim or to demand performance [McCown v. Spencer (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 216, 225, 87 Cal. Rptr. 213].

The assignment of a promissory note may be made in the note itself [see [iii], below], in a separate instrument (this form), or by delivery [Hays v. Plummer (1899) 126 Cal. 107, 110, 58 P. 447 ; see [ii], below]. Although only one of these options need be selected, the most effective and widely used method is to endorse and deliver the note to the assignee and to execute a separate assignment instrument [see [b], above].

[ii] Delivery and Negotiation

An assignment of a note is fully effective without transfer of possession of the note itself [Kent v. Kent (1935) 6 Cal. App. 2d 488, 490, 44 P.2d 445]. However, a promissory note payable "to order" will not be negotiated unless it is delivered and endorsed [see [iii], below], and a note payable "to bearer" must be delivered in order to be negotiable [Com. Code § 3203(a)]. For these purposes, "delivery" means the voluntary transfer of possession to the assignee [Com. Code § 1201(b)(15)].

Negotiation is a special form of transfer by which an instrument that is negotiable in form passes to the transferee. The transferee becomes a holder [see Com. Code §§ 1201(b)(21), 3203(a)] and may enjoy the status of a holder in due course [see Com. Code § 3302] if certain additional conditions are met. Holders and holders in due course, unlike ordinary transferees, take the note and security instrument free from personal defenses, such as lack of consideration [see Security Pacific Nat'l Bank v. Chess (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 555, 562, 129 Cal. Rptr. 852]. For a detailed discussion of the rights of holders and holders in due course and the requirements for negotiation, see Ch. 55, Negotiable Instruments , and California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 110, Notes (Matthew Bender).

[iii] Endorsement

An endorsement must be written (1) by or on behalf of the holder and (2) on the instrument or on a paper so firmly affixed to the instrument as to become a part of it. An endorsement on an affixed paper is valid and effective even if there is sufficient space on the instrument to write the endorsement [Com. Code § 3204(a)]. Words of assignment, condition, waiver, guaranty, limitation, or disclaimer of liability accompanying an endorsement do not affect its character as an endorsement [Com. Code § 3204(a)].

There are three types of endorsement: (1) special [see Com. Code § 3205(a)]; (2) in blank [see Com. Code § 3205(b)]; and (3) restrictive [see Com. Code § 3206]. A special endorsement specifies by name the person to whom or to whose order it makes the instrument payable [Com. Code § 3205(a)]. If there is a special endorsement, the instrument becomes payable to the order of the special endorsee and may be further negotiated only by the endorsement of that endorsee [Com. Code § 3205(a)].

An endorsement in blank, on the other hand, does not specify a particular endorsee and may consist of a mere signature. An instrument payable to order and endorsed in blank becomes payable to bearer and may be negotiated by delivery alone until specially endorsed [Com. Code § 3205(b)].

The final type of endorsement is the restrictive endorsement. An endorsement is restrictive if it has any of the following characteristics [Com. Code § 3206]:

- It is conditional.
- It purports to prohibit further transfer of the instrument.
- It includes the words "for collection," "for deposit," "pay any bank," or similar terms signifying a purpose of deposit or collection.
- It otherwise states that it is for the benefit or use of the endorser or of another person.

Unless otherwise agreed, any transfer for value of an instrument not then payable to bearer gives the transferee the specifically enforceable right to have the unqualified endorsement of the transferor [Com. Code § 3203(c)].

For a detailed discussion of endorsements, see Ch. 55, Negotiable Instruments , and California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 110, Notes (Matthew Bender).

[d] Notice of Default and Notice of Sale

This form includes a provision requesting that copies of any recorded notice of default or notice of sale of a senior lien be given to the assignee [see Civ. Code § 2924b]. This provision should be used if the trust deed is a junior lien against the property, so that the assignee will receive any such notice recorded by the senior lienor [see § 25D.200].

[e] Recording Assignment

Although execution of an assignment makes the assignment effective between the assignor and the assignee, the assignment does not affect the rights of third parties who may subsequently acquire an interest in the assignor's beneficial interest in the note unless and until the assignment is recorded. Therefore, the assignment should be acknowledged and recorded in order to impart constructive notice to third parties [see Civ. Code §§ 2934, 2952; see § 25B.33[2]]. However, recording the assignment does not constitute actual notice to the debtor so as to invalidate future payments made by the debtor to the person actually holding the note [Civ. Code § 2935]. Therefore, the assignee should give separate notice to the debtor of the assignment [see § 25B.232].

[1] Comment--Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is an assignment of all rights under a mortgage and the note or notes secured by the mortgage. It may be recorded in the county where the secured property is located [see Civ. Code § 2934]. Separate notice of the assignment should be given to the debtor [see § 25B.232[2]] since recordation of the assignment does not constitute notice so as to invalidate payments made on the note by the debtor to the person holding the note [Civ. Code § 2935; see also § 25B.232[1]].

For a discussion of the importance of delivering and endorsing a promissory note to the assignee and of preparing a separate assignment instrument, see § 25B.230[1]. For discussion of other requirements for and effects of assignments, see § 25B.33.

§ 25B.232 Notice to Debtor of Assignment

[1] Comment--Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a notice that the beneficial interest under a trust deed and the promissory note secured by the trust deed have been assigned. If the relevant security instrument is a mortgage, counsel should make appropriate changes to the description of the security [for an illustrative reference to a mortgage, see § 25B.231[2]].

This separate form of notice is customarily given to a debtor since the mere recordation of the assignment of a trust deed is not, in itself, sufficient notice to the debtor to invalidate any payments made thereafter by him or her to the person holding the note [Civ. Code § 2935]. If the promissory note secured by the assigned trust deed is to remain in the assignor's possession, it is especially important to the assignee that notice of the assignment be given directly to the debtor/trustor since payments made by a debtor without notice to the assignor in possession of the note must be credited against the balance owing on the note, even though the assignee has received nothing from the debtor [see Civ. Code § 2935].

Any person transferring the servicing of the indebtedness on a note, bond, or other instrument secured by a mortgage or trust deed on residential real property containing up to four units to a different servicing agent, and any person assuming from another person the responsibility for servicing the instrument evidencing indebtedness, must give written notice of the transfer to the borrower or subsequent obligor before the borrower or subsequent obligor becomes obligated to make payments to the new servicing agent [Civ. Code § 2937(a), (b); see § 25B.33[2]]. This disclosure requirement reduces the risk that a debtor will pay a person who no longer holds the note. In addition, any person transferring the servicing of indebtedness of this nature to a different servicing agent must provide the new servicing agent with all existing insurance policy information that the person is responsible for maintaining, including, but not limited to, flood and hazard insurance policy information [Civ. Code § 2937(d)].

The statutory protection given a debtor without notice of an assignment applies only if the debtor pays the person who holds the note. If a debtor does not have knowledge of the assignment and pays a person who no longer holds the note, the payment does not discharge the note [Rodgers v. Peckham (1898) 120 Cal. 238, 241-242, 52 P. 483 ; Title Ins. etc. Co. v. Kuchenbeiser (1912) 20 Cal. App. 11, 12, 127 P. 1039]. Although a payment to the assignor without possession of the note may not reduce the principal amount owing on the note, it also is an amount that is not received by the assignee. It follows from the above that it is in the best interest of the assignee to give the debtor notice of the assignment whenever the assignee is to receive payments under the note, whether the assignor does or does not retain possession of the note.

§ 25B.233 Notice to Debtor of Transfer of Servicing of Loan

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a notice of the transfer of the servicing of the indebtedness on a note secured by a mortgage or deed of trust on real property containing one to four residential units located in California. Any person transferring the servicing of such an indebtedness to a different servicing agent, and any person assuming from another person the responsibility for servicing the instrument evidencing indebtedness, must give written notice of the transfer (this form) to the borrower or subsequent obligor before the borrower or subsequent obligor becomes obligated to make payments to the new servicing agent [Civ. Code § 2937(a), (b)]. If a notice of default has been recorded or a judicial foreclosure proceeding has been commenced, additional requirements apply [Civ. Code § 2937(c); see [d], below]. In addition, any person transferring the servicing of indebtedness of this nature to a different servicing agent must provide the new servicing agent with all existing insurance policy information that the person is responsible for maintaining, including, but not limited to, flood and hazard insurance policy information [Civ. Code § 2937(d)].

The term "servicing" is not defined in Civ. Code § 2937 or elsewhere in the California codes. However, it is generally used to refer to the supervision and administration of a loan after it has been made. This supervision and administration typically includes the performance of some or all of the following tasks: the collection of payments, the maintenance of accounting records, the computation of interest and principal, and the foreclosure of defaulted loans [see California Department of Real Estate Reference Book, Glossary at http://www.dre.ca.gov/pdf_docs/ref29.pdf].

For a notice that the beneficial interest under a trust deed and the related promissory note have been assigned, see § 25B.232. For discussion of promissory notes and security instruments, see Ch. 25A, Security Instruments for Real Estate Financing .

[b] Contents and Delivery

The notice must contain all of the following information [Civ. Code § 2937(e)]:

- The name and address of the new servicing agent.
- The date the transfer was or will be completed.
- The address where all payments pursuant to the transfer are to be made.
- The due date of the next payment (this item must be included only when the notice is given by the new servicing agent) [Civ. Code § 2937(f)].

The notice must be sent by first-class mail, postage prepaid, to the borrower's or subsequent obligor's address designated for loan payment billings or, if escrow is pending, as provided in escrow [Civ. Code § 2937(e)].

[c] Liability for Payments

The borrower or subsequent obligor will not be liable to the holder of the note, bond, or other instrument or to any servicing agent for payments made to the previous servicing agent or for late charges if (1) these payments were made before the borrower's or subsequent obligor's receipt of written notice of the transfer, and (2) the payments were otherwise on time [Civ. Code § 2937(g)]. This statutory protection of a debtor who pays a previous servicing agent is significant because, under the laws governing assignments of beneficial interests under trust deeds and related promissory notes, a debtor without notice of an assignment who pays the assignor/original creditor is protected only if the assignor still holds the note [Rodgers v. Peckham (1898) 120 Cal. 238, 241-242, 52 P. 483 ; Title Ins. etc. Co. v. Kuchenbeiser (1912) 20 Cal. App. 11, 12, 127 P. 1039 ; see § 25B.232[1]].

[d] Defaults

If a notice of default has been recorded or a judicial foreclosure proceeding has been commenced, the person transferring the servicing of the indebtedness and the new servicing agent must given written notice to the trustee or attorney named in the notice of default or judicial foreclosure of the transfer. A notice of default, notice of sale, or judicial foreclosure will not be invalidated solely because the servicing agent is changed during the foreclosure process [Civ. Code § 2937(c)].

For purposes of Civ. Code § 2937, the term "servicing agent" does not include a trustee exercising a power of sale pursuant to a deed of trust [Civ. Code § 2937(h)].

This chapter covers the reconveyance of trust deeds and the discharge or satisfaction of mortgages. In addition to considering full reconveyances and discharges, which clear the title of record following the full payment and satisfaction of the underlying obligation, this chapter also examines arrangements for the partial release of a portion of the encumbered property from the lien of the security instrument. Finally, the chapter discusses the substitution of a trustee under a trust deed, which may be necessary in conjunction with either a full or partial reconveyance.

For a detailed discussion of trust deeds, mortgages, and other security instruments, see Ch. 25A, Security Instruments for Real Estate Financing . For materials that are relevant to the large numbers of reconveyances that occur in sales situations, see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements and Ch. 26, Real Property Escrows . The procedure for foreclosing a trust deed or mortgage, which may require the substitution of the trustee before or during the proceedings, is covered in Ch. 25D, Foreclosure . Finally, since most trust deeds with partial release provisions also contain subordination clauses, the reader may wish to refer to Ch. 25B, Subordination, Assumption, and Assignment.

§ 25C.10 Termination of Security Instrument and Clearing of Record Title

A trust deed terminates and title automatically revests in the trustor on the satisfaction of the underlying obligation [see Snider v. Basinger (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 819, 823, 132 Cal. Rptr. 637 ; Tyler v. Currier (1905) 147 Cal. 31, 36, 81 P. 319 ; Prob. Code § 15407; see also Windt v. Covert (1907) 152 Cal. 350, 354, 93 P. 67 ("satisfaction" means payment or discharge)]. The legal effect of a subsequent reconveyance of the trust deed and title [see Civ. Code § 2941; see also § 25C.11] is merely to clear the title of record [see Snider v. Basinger (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 819, 823, 132 Cal. Rptr. 637]. Similarly, a mortgage is extinguished by the satisfaction of the obligation secured by the mortgage, and the legal effect of a certificate of discharge [see Civ. Code § 2939; see also § 25C.11]] is simply the clearing of record title [see Civ. Code § 2909; McMillan v. Richards (1858) 9 Cal. 365].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

10-25C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 25C.11

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 25C.11 Full Reconveyance and Discharge

After the trustor pays in full the obligation secured by a deed of trust, the beneficiary and trustee must follow a process to reconvey the trust deed and title to the trustor. First, within 30 calendar days after the obligation has been satisfied, the beneficiary or the beneficiary's assignee must execute and deliver to the trustee the original note and trust deed and a request for a full reconveyance [Civ. Code § 2941(b); see § 25C.200[2]; see also Civ. Code § 2941(f) ("original" may include optically imaged reproduction under certain circumstances)]. There is no requirement that the trustor submit a request for the performance of this obligation. The procedures to "cause" the full reconveyance or certificate of discharge to be recorded include, but are not limited to, sending the material by certified mail with the U.S. Postal Service, or by an independent courier service using its tracking service that provides documentation of receipt and delivery, including the signature of the recipient. The full reconveyance or certificate of discharge must be sent in recordable form, together with payment for all required fees, in an envelope addressed to the county recorder's office of the county in which the deed of trust or mortgage is recorded. The county recorder must stamp and record the full reconveyance or certificate of discharge within two business days of receipt [Civ. Code § 2941(c); see Evid. Code § 641 (properly addressed and mailed letter is presumed to be received)]. Civ. Code § 2941 creates a hierarchical system for issuing reconveyances. Thus, title insurers may record a release of obligation only if both the lender/beneficiary and the trustee, after proper request, have failed or refused to comply with their statutory duties within the specified periods [Trustors Sec. Serv. v. Title Recon Tracking Serv. (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 592, 607, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 793].

When a mortgage is satisfied, the mortgagee must record a certificate of discharge [see § 25C.203] stating that the mortgage has been paid [Civ. Code §§ 2939-2941].

The final payoff of the obligation secured by a trust deed or mortgage and giving rise to the full reconveyance or discharge may occur at the end of the original term of the obligation or before the end of the original term, such as when the obligation is paid in full with the proceeds from the sale of the real property securing the obligation.

A mortgagee, beneficiary, or trustee who fails to record a full reconveyance or certificate of discharge is subject to both civil [Civ. Code § 2941(d)] and criminal liability [Civ. Code § 2941.5]. The violation makes the violator liable to the person affected for all damages that person may sustain by reason of the violation, and requires that the violator forfeit $500 to the affected person [Civ. Code § 2941(d)].

§ 25C.12 Bond Procedure for Absent or Uncooperative Creditors

An alternative procedure governs releases whenever (1) the obligation secured by a mortgage or trust deed has been fully satisfied and the present mortgagee or beneficiary of record cannot be located after diligent search, or refuses to execute and deliver a proper certificate of discharge or request for reconveyance, or (2) a specified balance, including principal and interest, remains due and the mortgagor or trustor (or successor in interest of either) cannot, after diligent search, locate the then mortgagee or beneficiary of record. In those cases, the lien of the security instrument must be released when the mortgagor or trustor (or successor in interest of either) records a corporate bond accompanied by a declaration and, in the case of a trust deed, a reconveyance [Civ. Code § 2941.7]. For a step-by-step guide to the relevant procedure, see §§ 25C.120-25C.122. See also §§ 25C.210-25C.213 (forms).

However, an unauthorized reconveyance to a purchaser with notice may be set aside by a court of equity [Firato v. Tuttle (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 136, 139, 308 P.2d 333 ; *see Phelps v. American Mortg. The same rule applies when the trustee reconveys the trust deed in reliance on a forged request for reconveyance [see Stephans v. Herman (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 671, 673, 37 Cal. Rptr. 746].

A beneficiary must deliver to the trustee the original promissory note and trust deed concurrently with a request for reconveyance [see Civ. Code § 2941(b); see also Civ. Code § 2941(g) ("original" may include optically imaged reproduction under certain circumstances)]. If the original note has been lost or destroyed, the trustee should and is entitled to obtain adequate indemnity before executing the reconveyance to protect the trustee from liability for a potentially improper reconveyance [*see Huckell v. An affidavit by the beneficiary or its assignee that the note has been lost and not negotiated or assigned to any other person may be acceptable to some trustees, but a trustee may insist on an indemnity bond by a corporate surety [*see Huckell v. DIVISION II: REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 25C RELEASE AND RECONVEYANCE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

10-25C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 25C.15

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 25C.15 Partial Releases

[1] Definition

A partial release clause is a provision in a trust deed or mortgage permitting the trustor or mortgagor to have a portion of the encumbered property released from the lien of the security instrument on the payment of a specified sum to the beneficiary or mortgagee. A partial reconveyance of a lot or parcel releases that lot or parcel from the lien while leaving the remaining parcels or lots encumbered for the duration of the secured obligation [see California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 115, Release and Reconveyance (Matthew Bender)].

Unless a trust deed or mortgage contains a partial release clause, the borrower is not entitled to have any portion of the encumbered property released from the lien of the security instrument until he or she has paid the entire debt [Karlsen v. American Sav. & Loan Assn. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 112, 115, 92 Cal. Rptr. 851 ; Bradbury v. Thomas (1933) 135 Cal. App. 435, 442, 27 P.2d 402 ; see Civ. Code § 2912 (partial performance does not extinguish lien)]. Although partial releases and reconveyances are neither authorized nor prohibited by statute, they are recognized as valid if they comply with stringent judicially crafted standards of certainty and fairness. These requirements are discussed below.

[2] Role in Subdivision Process

Partial release clauses are most often found in mortgages or trust deeds given by a developer to a seller to secure the purchase of land intended for development as a subdivision. The developer may use the partial release provisions to obtain the release and reconveyance of a portion of the property before paying the entire obligation secured by the whole of the property. In so doing, the developer can obtain free and clear a portion of the property and then resell or develop it, which in either case enables the developer to finance development of the remainder of the property or to reduce the obligation on the remaining encumbered property. Partial release clauses also permit a subdivider to have individual lots in the property released after it is subdivided in order to convey free and clear title to the lot purchasers.

Partial releases and reconveyances affecting subdivided lands normally must also satisfy the requirements of the Subdivision Map Act [Gov. Code § 66410 et seq.; see § 25C.17] and the Subdivided Lands Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11000 et seq.; see § 25C.16].

When a developer purchasing land for development as a residential subdivision finances the purchase by giving the seller a promissory note secured by a trust deed on the land for a portion of the land's purchase price, the trust deed, in most cases, will contain a subordination clause as well as a partial release clause. The subordination clause will require the seller/lender to subordinate its trust deed to the construction loan for the subdivision to be obtained by the developer. The construction loan will generally be secured by deeds of trust on the individual lots in the subdivision and will provide for release of the individual lots on their sale to third parties and the payment to the construction lender of the appropriate amount of sales proceeds. For further discussion of subordination, see Ch. 25B, Subordination, Assumption, and Assignment .

[3] Requirement of Certainty and Fairness

For a court of equity to decree that an obligation is specifically enforceable, the terms of the obligation must be complete and certain in all particulars essential to its enforcement [Lawrence v. Shutt (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 749, 761, 75 Cal. Rptr. 533]. The terms of the obligation must be sufficiently certain to make the precise act to be done clearly ascertainable [Civ. Code § 3390; White Point Co. v. Herrington (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 458, 465, 73 Cal. Rptr. 885 ; Hiller v. King (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 181, 190-191, 232 P.2d 905]. Further, specific performance cannot be enforced against a party to a contract if the contract is not just and reasonable as to that party [Civ. Code § 3391(2)].

[4] Type of Certainty Required for Specific Performance

The basic reason that partial release clauses drafted for mortgages and trust deeds are often uncertain and unenforceable is the difficulty involved in describing the various parcels of land that may be released from the lien of the mortgage or trust deed and the order in which the parcels may be released [see Hiller v. King (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 181, 193, 232 P.2d 905]. As a practical matter, different parcels of the property encumbered by a purchase money mortgage or deed of trust are seldom of equal value. Differences in terrain or roadway access, for example, may render one acre of the encumbered property more valuable than another [White Point Co. v. Herrington (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 458, 467, 73 Cal. Rptr. 885].

PRACTICE TIP:

Certainty of Description. Describing the released parcel with certainty is particularly difficult during the development phase when the precise boundaries of each parcel are still being mapped. The development process may require increasing or decreasing the number of units per acre, thus forcing the developer to redraw the parcel descriptions. Drafting a release clause which entitles the borrower to release each parcel as it is developed and sold is nearly impossible at the early development stages. Typically developers will obtain a second round of financing that "takes out" the pre-development financing once the parcels have been drawn and approved. When accurate legal descriptions become available, the developer can draft clauses that enable the borrower to release individual parcels from the security instrument. Commentary by Timothy F. O'Leary

To satisfy the requirements governing certainty and fairness [see [3], above], a partial release clause should protect the seller by allowing releases only in return for the reasonable value of the land [see §§ 25C.220[1][e], 25C.221[1][b]]. Further, the clause should specify the order of release of designated parcels or place other limitations on the buyer's authority to select parcels for release; otherwise, the buyer could obtain releases in a manner that would leave the remainder of the security worth less than the amount secured [see § 25C.220[1][e]]. The clause should also clearly specify the terms relating to the consideration to be paid for the release. For example, the clause should specify whether the payments made for a release are to be applied to interest or principal [see Chapman College v. Wagener (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 796, 801-802, 291 P.2d 445] and whether any cash down payment or regular payments on the note made by the buyer/trustor will or will not apply to the release price [see San Diego Construction Co. v. Mannix (1917) 175 Cal.

548, 554-558, 166 P. 325 ; see also § 25C.222].

[5] Examples of Unenforceable Clauses

The courts have found a number of broadly worded partial release clauses to be unenforceable as uncertain or unfair. For example, a clause providing for releases at a specified sum per acre without describing the parcels that may be released or the order of release was held to be uncertain and unfair to the beneficiary and therefore unenforceable. The court noted that the clause would permit the purchaser to secure the release of only the choicest parcels and could leave the seller with security on only relatively valueless and undesirable parcels [White Point Co. v. Herrington (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 458, 465-468, 73 Cal. Rptr. 885]. A clause permitting the release of parcels of a specified size provided they were contiguous with previously released parcels was also found to be unenforceable because the contiguity requirement would not prevent the purchaser from obtaining the release of only the valuable parcels [see Lawrence v. Shutt (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 749, 760-763, 75 Cal. Rptr. 533 ; see also Eldridge v. Burns (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 396, 428-430, 142 Cal. Rptr. 845].

[6] Enforcement Before and After Execution of Security Instrument

The question of the enforceability of a partial release clause by specific performance may arise either before or after execution of the trust deed or mortgage in which it is to be contained. For example, a specific performance action will lie, in a proper case, to enforce a seller's obligation under a land sales contract to convey title to the land to the purchaser and accept a trust deed containing a partial release clause as security for payment of the purchase price of the land [see White Point Co. v. Herrington (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 458, 465, 73 Cal. Rptr. 885]. It may also be necessary to bring a specific performance action after execution of a purchase money trust deed containing a partial release clause to compel the trust deed's beneficiary to request and the trust deed's trustee to execute a partial reconveyance from the lien of the trust deed as required by the partial release clause [see Lawrence v. Shutt (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 749, 761, 75 Cal. Rptr. 533]. The question whether a partial release clause is sufficiently certain to be specifically enforced may therefore arise either before or after execution of the security instrument in which it is contained and is more or less the same in both instances [Lawrence v. Shutt (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 749, 763, 75 Cal. Rptr. 533].

[7] Effect of Uncertainty or Unfairness on Contract

If an executory land sales contract provides that the seller will accept a trust deed containing either partial release or subordination provisions as security for payment of the purchase price, those provisions, as described in the contract, are material parts of the contract [White Point Co. v. Herrington (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 458, 467-468, 73 Cal. Rptr. 885 ; Magna Development Co. v. Reed (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 230, 238, 39 Cal. Rptr. 284]. Consequently, if either the partial release clause or the subordination provision as described in the contract is too uncertain or unfair to be specifically enforced, the entire land sales contract is unenforceable in equity. Waiver by the purchaser of the subordination or partial release provision will not cure the defect and make the contract enforceable against the seller [White Point Co. v. Herrington (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 458, 468-469, 73 Cal. Rptr. 885 ; Magna Development Co. v. Reed (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 230, 242-243, 39 Cal. Rptr. 284].

Under different circumstances, an uncertain or unfair release clause will not necessarily render the entire contract unenforceable. The seller may thus bring an action for breach of contract, and the buyer cannot defend on the basis of the unenforceability of the clause or the unfairness to the seller because the clause is for the buyer's benefit [see Yackey v. Pacific Development Co. (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 776, 783, 160 Cal. Rptr. 430]. On the other hand, a seller who has already conveyed title to the purchaser and accepted a trust deed containing an uncertain release clause cannot use the clause as a basis for rescission when there is no evidence that the seller would be prejudiced by enforcement of the remainder of the contract and the buyers are willing to waive the release clause [Lawrence v. Shutt (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 749, 766, 75 Cal. Rptr. 533].

[8] Right to Release After Default

Partial release provisions commonly provide that the trustor or mortgagor may have portions of the encumbered property released from the lien of the trust deed or mortgage only when the trustor or mortgagor is not in default of the security instrument [see Bradbury v. Thomas (1933) 135 Cal. App. 435, 443, 27 P.2d 402]. Such a provision notwithstanding, if the trustor makes the required payment for a partial release and then defaults, the subsequent default does not destroy the trustor's right to the partial release. The right to the partial reconveyance in such a situation accrues at the time the trustor makes the payment, not when he or she requests the partial release [Conley v. Poway Land & Inv. Co. (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 22, 27, 42 Cal. Rptr. 636].

If the partial release clause does not prohibit partial releases following a default by the trustor or mortgagor, he or she is entitled to a partial release on payment of the required consideration for the release, whether or not he or she is in default [see Sacramento S.F.L. Co. v. Whaley (1920) 50 Cal. App. 125, 194 P. 1054].

CHAPTER 25C RELEASE AND RECONVEYANCE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

10-25C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 25C.16

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 25C.16 Requirements of Subdivided Lands Act

[1] Definitions

Under the Subdivided Lands Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11000 et seq.], to lawfully sell or lease lots or parcels in a "subdivision" that is subject to a "blanket encumbrance", either (1) the blanket encumbrance or some supplemental agreement must unconditionally provide that the purchaser or lessee of the lot or parcel may obtain the legal title or other applicable interest free and clear of the blanket encumbrance [see [2], below], or (2) the developer must comply with one of several stringent statutory requirements [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 11013.2; see also [3], below].

For these purposes, "subdivision" means improved or unimproved land situated within California that is divided or proposed to be divided into five or more lots orparcels for the purpose of immediate or future sale, lease, or financing [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11000(a); see Ch. 30, Subdivision Regulation]. "Blanket encumbrance" means a trust deed, mortgage, or any other lien or encumbrance securing or evidencing the payment of money and affecting either land that is to be subdivided or more than one lot or parcel of already subdivided land [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11013]. That term also includes any agreement affecting more than one lot or parcel of subdivided land by which the owner or subdivider holds the subdivision under an option, contract to sell, or trust agreement [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11013].

[2] Unconditional Release Clauses

An unconditional release clause must unconditionally provide that the purchaser or lessee of a lot or parcel may obtain legal title (or other interest) free and clear of the blanket encumbrance, on compliance with the terms and conditions of the purchase or lease [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 11013.1]. A release clause that permits lots in a subdivision to be released from the lien of a blanket encumbrance only if the subdivider is not in default on the blanket encumbrance does not give the lot purchaser such an "unconditional" right [19 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 65, 66 (1952)] .

As a practical matter, it would be rare to encounter a blanket encumbrance containing a release clause deemed "unconditional" by the above statutory standard. Instead, subdividers and lenders commonly elect to comply with one of the alternative statutory methods for assuring delivery of free and clear title to the purchaser [see [3], below].

[3] Statutory Alternatives to Unconditional Clauses

When neither the blanket encumbrance nor a supplemental agreement contains an unconditional partial release clause, the subdivider must do one of the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11013.2]:

- Deposit into escrow the entire amount of money paid or advanced by the lot purchaser in an escrow depository until a proper release from the blanket encumbrance is obtained or the money can be returned to the purchaser [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 2791, 2791.1, 2791.4].

- Transfer title to the individual lots or parcels to an authorized trust until a proper release from the blanket encumbrance is obtained [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2791.6].

- Post a bond with the California Real Estate Commissioner payable to the State of California for the return of the purchaser's money in the event a release from the blanket encumbrance cannot be eventually obtained [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2791.2].

- Comply with any other condition or method acceptable to the Real Estate Commissioner that carries out the intent and provisions of the statute, which is to ensure that the buyer will obtain title to the lot or parcel free and clear of the blanket encumbrance.

According to the Department of Real Estate, the first of the alternatives above is the one most often used, and posting a bond is the second most preferred method. Under the first method, all funds deposited by purchasers must be maintained in escrow until escrow is in a position to issue title free and clear of all liens except the buyer's new first loan to be placed on the property through and at the close of escrow. The Department of Real Estate must review and approve the escrow instructions during the subdivision approval process [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2791].

§ 25C.17 Requirements of Subdivision Map Act

Under the Subdivision Map Act [Gov. Code § 66410 et seq.], the definition of "subdivision" includes the division of a unit of land, as shown on a county assessment roll, for the purpose of sale, lease, or financing [Gov. Code § 66424]. This definition is broad enough to include a partial release from a blanket encumbrance [see 58 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 408, 412 (1975) (placement of separate trust deeds on different portions of unit of land is division for purpose of sale or financing)]. Therefore, partial releases covering previously undivided property will trigger the applicability of the Subdivision Map Act. The Act generally requires local approval of both a tentative map and a final map for any subdivision containing five or more parcels [Gov. Code § 66426]. Subdivisions that are not subject to the final map requirement must have a parcel map approved by the local legislative body unless the local subdivision ordinance waives the statutory parcel map requirement [Gov. Code § 66428]. For detailed coverage of the Subdivision Map Act, see Ch. 30, Subdivision Regulation .

§ 25C.18 Substitution of Trustees

[1] Functions of Trustee

The functions of a trustee under a deed of trust are generally passive in nature, with two major exceptions. Pursuant to the terms of a typical trust deed, the trustee is empowered to sell the real property securing the trust deed in a nonjudicial foreclosure proceeding, and to execute a reconveyance for the real property on full payment of the obligation secured by the trust deed. Either power may generally be exercised by the trustee only following authorization from the beneficiary.

It may be necessary to replace a trustee in conjunction with and before either the commencement of a nonjudicial foreclosure proceeding [see Ch. 25D, Foreclosure] or the full or partial reconveyance of a trust deed. This need may arise for a number of reasons, including the death of an individual trustee, the uncooperativeness of an institutional trustee, or the reluctance of a trustee to commence foreclosure proceedings or to execute a reconveyance as requested by a beneficiary.

[2] Alternative Statutory Methods

There are two statutory methods for substituting a trustee who is acting under a trust deed on real property or an estate for years in real property that was given to secure an obligation to pay money and that confers no other duties on the trustee other than those that are incidental to the exercise of power of sale conferred [Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(1)]. Under the first method, the trustee may be substituted by recording in the county in which the property is located a substitution document executed and acknowledged by all of the beneficiaries under the trust deed, or their successors in interest. Such a substitution will be effective notwithstanding any contrary provision in any trust deed executed on or after January 1, 1968 [Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(1)(A); see § 25C.230[2]].

Under the second statutory method, the trustee may be substituted by recording in the county in which the property is located a substitution document executed and acknowledged by the holders of more than 50 percent of the record beneficial interest of a series of notes secured by the same real property or of undivided interests in a note secured by real property equivalent to a series transaction, exclusive of any notes or interests of a licensed real estate broker that is the issuer or servicer of the notes or interests or of any affiliate of that licensed real estate broker ("majority interest holders") [Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(1)(B); see Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(3) ("affiliate of the licensed real estate broker" defined)]. A substitution by this method is not effective unless all the parties signing the substitution document also sign, under penalty of perjury, a separate written document containing specified information regarding compliance with the pertinent statutory requirements [see Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(2); see also § 25C.231[2]]. For coverage of a related procedure established by Civ. Code § 2941.9 that may be used by all beneficiaries under a trust deed to agree to be governed by majority interest holders, see Ch. 25A, Security Instruments for Real Estate Financing .

[3] Nonstatutory Methods

A substitution of the trustee pursuant to the terms of a substitution clause included in a trust deed is valid even if it does not conform to the requirements of the statutory method [U.S. Hertz, Inc. v. Niobrara Farms (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 68, 83-85, 116 Cal. Rptr. 44]. However, the procedure required by such a substitution clause is frequently similar to the first statutory method described under [2], above [see § 25C.233[2]]. In most cases it is possible to replace a trustee and simultaneously comply with both the statutory requirements and the trust deed provisions, given the similarity and the simple requirements of both methods of substitution.

Another nonstatutory method of substitution is the joint execution, acknowledgment, and recordation of an instrument of substitution by the trustor and beneficiary [see § 25C.234[2]]. This method also is valid without regard to the requirements of the statutory method [Pacific S. & L. Co. v. N. American etc. Co. (1940) 37 Cal. App. 2d 307, 308-311, 99 P.2d 355].

[4] After Commencement of Nonjudicial Foreclosure

If a substitution document is executed, but not recorded, before or concurrently with the recording of the notice of default, the beneficiary or beneficiaries or their authorized agents must cause notice of the substitution to be mailed, before or concurrently with the recording of the substitution document, to all persons to whom a copy of the notice of default would be required to be mailed [Civ. Code § 2934a(b)]. If the substitution is effected after a notice of default has been recorded but before the recording of the notice of sale, the beneficiary or beneficiaries or their authorized agents must cause a copy of the substitution document to be mailed, before or concurrently with the recording of that document, to the trustee then of record and to all persons to whom a copy of the notice of default would be required to be mailed [Civ. Code § 2934a(c)]. An affidavit must be attached to the substitution document, stating that notice has been given to the persons and in the manner required [Civ. Code § 2934a(b), (c); see Civ. Code § 2924b (requirements for mailing); § 25C.232[2] (form of declaration in lieu of affidavit)].

A trustee named in a recorded substitution document must be deemed to be authorized to act as the trustee under the mortgage or deed of trust for all purposes from the date the substitution document is executed by the mortgagee, beneficiaries, or by their authorized agents. Nothing in Civ. Code § 2934a requires that a trustee under a recorded substitution document accept the substitution. Once recorded, the substitution document constitutes conclusive evidence of the authority of the substituted trustee or his or her agents to act [Civ. Code § 2934a(d)].

Unless a new notice of sale containing the name, street address, and telephone number of the substituted trustee is given pursuant to Civ. Code § 2924f after execution of the substitution document, any sale conducted by the substituted trustee will be void [Civ. Code § 2934a(e)].

For further discussion of nonjudicial foreclosures, see Ch. 25D, Foreclosure . For an illustrative notice of sale, see § 25D.206[2].

2. If drafting security instrument, determine type of partial release clause desired by client:

NOTE:
A security instrument may contain any or all of the following types of partial release clauses. For further discussion of security instruments in general, see Ch. 25A, Security Instruments for Real Estate Financing .

a. Clause for release of acreage before its development or subdivision [see § 25C.220[2]].

b. Clause for release of lots designated on final subdivision map [see § 25C.221[2]].

c. Clause providing that down payment will be credited toward [see § 25C.222[2]]:
(1) Amount required for release of a specific portion of property; and

(2) Principal amount owning on secured promissory note.

d. "Unconditional" clause for conveyance of title to purchaser free and clear of encumbrance on purchaser's fulfillment of contractual obligations.

NOTE:

Lenders rarely agree to the use of such a clause because it may be exercised when the subdivider is in default [see 19 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 65, 66 (1952) ; see also § 25C.16].

3. If drafting partial release clause, determine order in which parcels of land should be released from lien and price of each parcel so that [see § 25C.15[4]]:

a. Security of trust deed or mortgage will not be unduly impaired;

b. Remaining encumbered property will not be without access to public roads or streets and other utilities; and

c. Proposed development may proceed in reasonable and profitable manner.

4. Determine whether or not transaction is subject to Subdivided Lands Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11000 et seq.; see § 25C.16; see also Ch. 30, Subdivision Regulation].

5. If Subdivided Lands Act applies and release clause is not "unconditional," determine which statutory procedure will be followed for handling of purchase monies and/or title [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 11013.2; see also § 25C.16[3]].

6. Ascertain whether mortgagor or beneficiary of record can be located [see Civ. Code § 2941.7; see also § 25C.122(1), (2)].

7. Determine whether trustor or mortgagor is in default of security instrument [see § 25C.15[8]].

8. Ascertain whether security instrument contains or is to contain subordination clause [see § 25C.15[2]].

9. Determine whether Subdivision Map Act [Gov. Code § 66410 et seq.] and applicable local subdivision ordinance require final map or parcel map.

NOTE:

The definition of "subdivision" set forth in the Act includes a partial release from a blanket encumbrance [see 58 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 408, 412 (1975) ; see also § 25C.17].

§ 25C.112 Substitution of Trustee

1. Determine whether substitution will be effected:

a. Pursuant to either of the following statutory methods:
(1) Recordation of substitution instrument executed and acknowledged by all beneficiaries under trust deed [see Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(1)(A); see also § 25C.230[2]].

(2) Recordation of the following [see Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(1)(B)]:
(a) Substitution instrument [see § 25C.230[2]] executed and acknowledged by holders of more than 50 percent of record beneficial interest of series of notes secured by same real property or of undivided interests in note secured by real property equivalent ot a series transaction ("majority interest holders"); and

(b) Separate document containing specified information regarding compliance with relevant statutory requirements and executed, under penalty of perjury, by all parties signing substitution instrument [see § 25C.231].

b. Pursuant to express provisions of trust deed [see § 25C.233[2]].

NOTE:
A substitution of trustee pursuant to the terms of a deed of trust is valid whether or not the substitution procedure conforms to the statutory methods [see Bennett v. Ukiah Fair Asso. (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 43, 44-45, 59 P.2d 805]. However, substitution clauses commonly require essentially the same information and procedures as the statutory method described in (a)(1), above.

c. By mutual agreement between trustor and beneficiary [see § 25C.234[2]].

NOTE:

If the beneficiary and trustor mutually agree to a substitution of the trustee, they may effect the substitution without the trustee's consent and without regard to the requirements of the statutory methods [Pacific S. & L. Co. v. N. American etc. Co. (1940) 37 Cal. App. 2d 307, 308-311, 99 P.2d 355].

2. Determine whether either notice of default or notice of sale has been recorded against trust deed in which trustee will be replaced.

NOTE:

Special notice requirements apply when a substitution of trustee is effected before a notice of default has been recorded in a nonjudicial foreclosure proceeding or before the giving of the notice of sale [see Civ. Code § 2934a(b), (c); see also § 25C.230[1][c]].

§ 25C.120 Trust Deeds

1. Within 30 days after full payment of debt, have beneficiary or beneficiary's assignee deliver following to trustee, or to title company conducting escrow substituted for trustee of record [Civ. Code § 2941(b)(1)]:

NOTE:
A beneficiary, in accordance with the requirements and procedures of Civ. Code § 2934a, may substitute the title company conducting the escrow through which the obligation is satisfied for the trustee of record, in which case the title company assumes the obligation of trustee, and may collect the authorized fee [Civ. Code § 2941(b)(7); see P 3, below].

Additionally, in lieu of delivering the original note and deed of trust to the trustee within 30 days of loan satisfaction, a beneficiary who executes and delivers to the trustee a request for full reconveyance within 30 days of loan satisfaction may, within 120 days of loan satisfaction, deliver the original note and deed of trust either to the trustee or trustor. In that case, on satisfaction of the note and deed of trust, the note and deed of trust must be altered to indicate that the obligation is paid in full [Civ. Code § 2941(b)(8)].

a. Duly executed request for full reconveyance of trust deed [see § 25C.200[2]], specifying in reconveyance instrument one of following options for delivery of instrument [Civ. Code § 2941(b)(1)(B)]:

NOTE:
The recorder has no duty to validate the addresses specified in either of these options [

Civ. Code § 2941(b)(1)(B)].

(1) That recorder should deliver recorded instrument to trustor's or successor in interest's address, pursuant to Gov. Code § 27321, together with information on that person's last known address.

(2) That the recorder should deliver recorded instrument to trustee's address. If trustee's address is specified for delivery, trustee must mail recorded instrument to trustor or successor in interest to last known address for that party.

b. Original promissory note.

NOTE:
For these purposes, "original" may include an optically imaged reproduction when (1) the trustee is an affiliate or subsidiary of the beneficiary or the beneficiary's assignee, (2) the optical image storage media used to store the document is "nonerasable write once, read many (WORM)" optical image media that does not allow changes to the stored document, (3) the optical image reproduction is made consistent with the minimum standards of quality approved by the National Institute of Standards and Technology or the Association for Information and Image Management, and (4) written authentication identifying the reproduction as an unaltered copy of the note or trust deed is stamped or printed on the reproduction [Civ. Code § 2941(f)].

c. Original trust deed [see P b, NOTE, above].

d. Any other documents that are necessary to reconvey trust deed or cause it to be reconveyed.

2. If request for reconveyance is to be delivered to trustee other than trustee named in original trust deed, confirm that instrument substituting new trustee for original trustee has been recorded in county in which property is located [see Civ. Code § 2934a(a); see also §§ 25C.140-25C.143].

NOTE:
From the time the substitution is filed for record, the new trustee succeeds to all the powers, duties, authority, and title granted and delegated to the trustee named in the trust deed [Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(4)].

3. Advise trustee and beneficiary that either may do the following [Civ. Code § 2941(e)(1)]:

a. Charge fee to trustor (or owner of land) for all services rendered in connection with preparation, execution, or recordation of full reconveyance, including, but not limited to, document preparation and forwarding services rendered to effect full reconveyance.

b. Include demand for fee in payoff demand statement [Civ. Code § 2941(e)(3); see Civ. Code § 2943; see also Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans].

NOTE:
This fee may be made payable no earlier than the opening of a bona fide escrow or no more than 60 days prior to the full satisfaction of the obligation secured by the trust deed [Civ. Code § 2941(e)(1)]. If the fee does not exceed $45, it is conclusively presumed to be reasonable [Civ. Code § 2941(e)(2)].

c. Collect official fees.

4. Instruct trustee to take following steps on receipt of documents described in P 1, above, and of fee described in P 3, above (if any) [Civ. Code § 2941(b)(1)]:

a. Execute and acknowledge deed of full reconveyance [see § 25C.201[2]].

b. Record or cause to be recorded full reconveyance in office of county recorder in which deed of trust is recorded within 21 calendar days after trustee's receipt of original note, deed of trust, request for full reconveyance, fee that may be charged [see P 3, above], recorder's fees, and other items and documents necessary to reconvey deed of trust.

NOTE:

The procedures to "cause" the full reconveyance or certificate of discharge to be recorded include, but are not limited to, sending the material by certified mail with the U.S. Postal Service, or by an independent courier service using its tracking service that provides documentation of receipt and delivery, including the signature of the recipient. The full reconveyance or certificate of discharge must be sent in recordable form, together with payment for all required fees, in an envelope addressed to the county recorder's office of the county in which the deed of trust or mortgage is recorded. The county recorder must stamp and record the full reconveyance or certificate of discharge within two business days of receipt [Civ. Code § 2941(c); see Evid. Code § 641 (properly addressed and mailed letter is presumed to be received)].

5. Instruct trustee to deliver or cause to be delivered, on written request of trustor or trustor's heirs, successors, or assignees [see § 25C.202[2]], original note and deed of trust [Civ. Code § 2941(b)(1)(C)].

NOTE:

Violation by a beneficiary or trustee (or the assignee of either) of the requirements of Civ. Code § 2941 (discussed throughout this section) results in both civil [see Civ. Code § 2941(d)] and criminal [see Civ. Code § 2941.5] penalties. With regard to civil penalties, violation of these provisions makes the violator liable to the person affected by the violation for all damages that the person may sustain by reason of the violation, and also requires that the violator forfeit $500 to the affected person [Civ. Code § 2941(d)]. Notwithstanding any other penalties, if a beneficiary collects a fee for reconveyance and thereafter has knowledge, or should have knowledge, that no reconveyance has been recorded, the beneficiary must cause the reconveyance to be recorded, or if a release of obligation is earlier and timely recorded, the beneficiary must refund to the trustee the fee charged to perform the reconveyance. Evidence of knowledge includes, but is not limited to, notice of a release of obligation [Civ. Code § 2941(j); see Civ. Code § 2941(b)(3) (release of obligation)].

§ 25C.121 Mortgages

1. On full payment of debt, instruct mortgagee (or assignee) to execute and acknowledge certificate of discharge [see § 25C.203[2]] containing [see Civ. Code §§ 2939, 2941(a)]:

a. Statement that mortgage has been paid, satisfied, or discharged.

b. Reference to book and page where mortgage is recorded [see (3), below].

2. Advise mortgagee of right to do the following [see Civ. Code § 2941(e)(1)]:

a. Charge fee to mortgagor (or owner of land) for all services rendered in connection with preparation, execution, or recordation of certificate of discharge of mortgage, including, but not limited to, document preparation and forwarding services rendered to effect discharge, and include demand for fee in payoff demand statement [Civ. Code § 2941(e)(3); see Civ. Code § 2943 (payoff demand statement); see also Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans].

NOTE:
This fee may be made payable no earlier than the opening of a bona fide escrow or no more than 60 days prior to the full satisfaction of the obligation secured by the mortgage [Civ. Code § 2941(e)(1)]. If the fee does not exceed $45, it is conclusively presumed to be reasonable [Civ. Code § 2941(e)(2)].

b. Collect official fees.

3. Have certificate of discharge recorded in office of county recorder in which mortgage is recorded [Civ. Code §§ 2940, 2941(a)].

4. When mortgagee named in original mortgage has foreign executor, administrator, or guardian, instruct personal representative to produce and record in office of county recorder of county in which mortgage is recorded, duly certified and authenticated copy of its letters testamentary, or of administration or of guardianship, stating that letters have not been revoked [Civ. Code § 2939.5].

NOTE:

For these purposes, "guardian" includes a foreign conservator, committee, or comparable fiduciary [Civ. Code § 2939.5].

5. Instruct mortgagee to deliver, on written request of mortgagor (or mortgagor's heirs, successors, or assignees) [see § 25C.204[2]], original note and mortgage to person making request [Civ. Code § 2941(a)].

NOTE:

For these purposes, "original" may include an optically imaged reproduction when (1) the optical image storage media used to store the document is "nonerasable write once, read many (WORM)" optical image media that does not allow changes to the stored document, (2) the optical image reproduction is made consistent with the minimum standards of quality approved by the National Institute of Standards and Technology or the Association for Information and Image Management, and (3) written authentication identifying the reproduction as an unaltered copy of the note or mortgage is stamped or printed on the reproduction [Civ. Code § 2941(f)]. A violation by a mortgagee or assignee of the requirements of Civ. Code § 2941 (discussed throughout this section) results in both civil [see Civ. § 25C.122 Special Procedure for Absent or Uncooperative Mortgagee or Beneficiary

1. Notify client of necessity of filing bond and declaration to obtain reconveyance or discharge if [Civ. Code § 2941.7]:

a. Obligation secured by mortgage or trust deed has been fully satisfied and present mortgagee or beneficiary of record:
(1) Cannot be located after diligent search [see P 2, below]; or

(2) Refuses to execute and deliver proper certificate of discharge or request for reconveyance.

b. Specified balance, including principal and interest, remains due and mortgagor or trustor (or successor in interest of either) cannot, after diligent search [see P 2, below], locate the then mortgagee or beneficiary of record.

2. If mortgagee or beneficiary is absent, conduct "diligent search" as follows [Civ. Code § 2941.7(d)]:

a. Check telephone directory for city where mortgagee or beneficiary maintained last known address or place of business.

b. If mortgagee or beneficiary (or successor in interest of either) is corporation, check records of:

(1) California Secretary of State; and

(2) Secretary of state in state of incorporation if other than California.

c. If mortgagee or beneficiary is state or national bank or state or federal savings and loan association, contact regulatory authority for financial institution.

d. Give notice of recordation of declaration and bond [see P 5, below].

3. Obtain bond that [Civ. Code § 2941.7(a)]:

NOTE:

There is no specific statutory requirement as to how long the bond must be enforceable [but see P 8(c), below, for coverage of the minimum term of the bond when the present trustee of record cannot be located and is being substituted], but the Court of Appeal has held that a 60-day bond is insufficient as a matter of law to satisfy the statutory requirement that the bond protect the beneficiary's interest [Carter v. Continental Land Title Co. (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1597, 1599, 285 Cal. Rptr. 413].

a. Is acceptable to trustee.

b. Is issued by corporation lawfully authorized to issue surety bonds in California.

c. Is in sum equal to greater of either:

(1) Two times amount of original obligation secured by mortgage or trust deed and any additional principal amounts, including advances, shown in any recorded amendment thereto; or

(2) One half of total amount computed pursuant to (1), above, and any accrued interest on that amount.

d. Is conditioned for payment of any sum that mortgagee or beneficiary may recover in action on secured obligation, with costs of suit and reasonable attorneys' fees.

e. Names as obligees:

(1) Mortgagee (or successor in interest); or

(2) Trustee who will execute reconveyance [see PP 7, 8, below] and beneficiary (or successor in interest).

f. Contains following information regarding trust deed or mortgage:

(1) Recording date and instrument number or book and page number.

(2) Names of original mortgagor and mortgagee or trustor and beneficiary.

(3) Amount shown as original principal sum.

(4) Recording information and new principal amount shown in any recorded amendment to instrument.

4. Prepare and have mortgagor or trustor execute (under penalty of perjury) declaration [see § 25C.210[2]] that states [Civ. Code § 2941.7(b)]:

a. That it is recorded pursuant to Civ. Code § 2941.7.

b. Name of original mortgagor or trustor and mortgagee or beneficiary.

c. Declarant's name and address.

d. Either:

NOTE:
If the trustee will be substituted for purposes of recording the execution of the reconveyance [see Civ. Code § 2941.7(f); see also P 8, below], the declaration must contain a statement regarding the satisfaction of the obligation and the absence of the trustee and mortgagee or beneficiary, in lieu of the alternative statements described in this subparagraph (d) [Civ. Code § 2941.7(f)(2)].

(1) That obligation secured by mortgage or trust deed has been fully satisfied and that present mortgagee or beneficiary of record:
(a) Cannot be located after diligent search; or

(b) Refuses to execute and deliver proper certificate of discharge or request for reconveyance as required under Civ. Code § 2941; or

(2) That specified balance, including principal and interest, remains due and that mortgagor or trustor (or successor in interest of either), after diligent search, cannot locate the then mortgagee or beneficiary.

e. That declarant has mailed to persons, by method described in P 5, below, notice of recording declaration and bond [see § 25C.211[2]], which informs recipient of [Civ. Code § 2941.7(b)(5)]:

(1) Name and address of mortgagor or trustee, if any.

(2) Right to:

(a) Record written objection with respect to release of lien of mortgage [see § 25C.212[2]]; or

(b) Notify trustee in writing of any objection to reconveyance of trust deed.

f. Date any notices were mailed pursuant to (e), above, and names and addresses of all persons to whom mailed.

5. Prepare and mail notice described in P 4(e), above, by certified mail, return receipt requested, to [Civ. Code § 2941.7(b)(5), (d)(1)]:

a. Last address of person to whom payments under mortgage or trust deed were made.

b. Last mortgagee or beneficiary of record at address shown on instrument creating, assigning, or conveying interest.

c. Any other address that declarant has used to correspond with or contact mortgagee or beneficiary.

6. Cause bond and declaration to be recorded in office of county recorder of county in which encumbered property is located [Civ. Code § 2941.7].

7. For a trust deed, instruct trustee to execute and record deed of reconveyance [§ 25C.201[2]] if [Civ. Code § 2941.7(c); see P 8, below, for the procedure for the substitution of an absent trustee]:

a. At least 30 days have elapsed since recordation of corporate bond and declaration [see P 6, above];

b. Trustee has not received, during that 30-day period, written objection to reconveyance from beneficiary of record;

c. Trustee has been paid any usual reconveyance fees plus costs; and

d. Trustee has received demand for reconveyance [see § 25C.213[2]].

NOTE:

It is unclear from the language of Civ. Code § 2941.7(c) whether a separate demand for reconveyance is required or whether the recording of the required bond and declaration constitutes sufficient demand for the reconveyance. An attorney representing a mortgagor or trustor may elect to send a separate demand rather than making the potentially erroneous assumption that the unclear statutory language does not require such a separate demand.

The trustee has no liability to any person by reason of its execution of a reconveyance in reliance on a trustor's (or successor in interest's) substantial compliance with the applicable statute. The sole remedy of any person damaged by reason of the reconveyance is against the trustor, the affiant, or the bond [Civ. Code § 2941.7(c)].

8. If present trustee of record and present mortgagee or beneficiary of record cannot be located after diligent search, take following steps to substitute trustee solely for purposes of executing the reconveyance pursuant to § 2941.7 [Civ. Code § 2941.7(f)].

NOTE:

The substitution will not confer any duties on the substitute trustee other than those that are incidental to the execution of the reconveyance [Civ. Code § 2941.7(f)].

a. Add the following to the declaration to be executed by trustor [see P 4, above]:

(1) Statement that declaration is filed pursuant to Civ. Code § 2941.7(f).

(2) In lieu of either statement specified in Civ. Code § 2941.7(b)(4) [see P 4(d), above], statement that obligation secured by trust deed has been fully satisfied and present trustee of record and present beneficiary of record cannot be located after diligent search.

b. Obtain consent of title insurance company to serve as substitute trustee.

NOTE:

The substitute trustee must be a title insurance company that agrees to accept the substitution. Civ. Code § 2941.7(f) does not impose a duty on a title insurance company to accept such a substitution [Civ. Code § 2941.7(f)(3)].

c. Obtain bond that, in addition to satisfying requirements set forth in P 3, above, is for a period of at least five years.

9. For mortgage, advise mortgagee that mortgage is satisfied of record when 30 days have expired following recordation of corporate bond and accompanying declaration, provided mortgagee does not record an objection to satisfaction of mortgage [see § 25C.212[2]] within that period [Civ. Code § 2941.7(c)].

NOTE:

A bona fide purchaser or encumbrancer for value takes the interest conveyed free of the mortgage, provided the bond and declaration have been properly recorded [see Civ. Code § 2941.7(a), (b)] and the deed to the purchaser recites that no objections by the mortgagee have been recorded [Civ. Code § 2941.7(c)]. The attorney for a grantee under such a deed should always verify with the title company that the grantee's insured ownership interest will be free and clear of such a mortgage.

NOTE:

Unlike a full reconveyance, which is required by statute when the obligation secured by a trust deed is paid in full [Civ. Code § 2941(b); see §§ 25C.120-25C.122], a partial reconveyance is neither required nor prohibited by statute. Unless a trust deed (or mortgage) contains a partial release provision, the borrower is not entitled to have any portion of the encumbered property released from the lien of the trust deed or mortgage until he or she has paid in full the obligation secured by the trust deed (or mortgage) [Karlsen v. American Sav. & Loan Assn. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 112, 115, 92 Cal. Rptr. 851 ; Bradbury v. Thomas (1933) 135 Cal. App. 435, 442, 27 P.2d 402 ; see Civ. Code § 2912 (partial performance as not extinguishing lien)].

This Part D focuses exclusively on the procedure for the reconveyance of a portion of the real property subject to a trust deed and does not consider partial releases under mortgages, because (1) trust deeds are much more common than mortgages in California, and (2) there are no unique requirements governing partial releases under mortgages.

a. Enter into agreement for unconditional release of individual subdivided lots; or

NOTE:
The agreement (set forth in the "blanket encumbrance" or a supplemental agreement) must unconditionally provide that the purchaser or lessee of the lot or parcel can obtain the legal title or other applicable interest free and clear of the blanket encumbrance, on compliance with the terms and conditions of the purchase or lease [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11013.1]. As a practical matter, it is unlikely that the parties would reach such an agreement [see § 25C.16[2]].

b. Select statutory method for handling purchase monies and/or title [see § 25C.16[3]].

2. If statutory method is selected [see 1(b), above], monitor compliance with applicable requirements.

1. Confirm that trustor has:

a. Paid sum required under trust deed for partial reconveyance; and

b. Satisfied all other conditions precedent to partial reconveyance specified in trust deed.

NOTE:
A standard condition precedent to a partial reconveyance is that the trustor not be in default [see § 25C.15[8]]. Other conditions may include the performance of a survey for the property to be released [see § 25C.220[2]].

2. Have beneficiary deliver following to trustee:

a. Duly executed request for partial reconveyance [see § 25C.223[2]] containing:

(1) Legal description of specific property to be reconveyed.

(2) Request that trustee endorse partial reconveyance on back of original trust deed and original promissory note and return both to beneficiary.

b. Original promissory note that is secured by trust deed.

c. Original recorded copy of trust deed.

d. Other documents, if any, required by trustee for execution of deed of partial reconveyance.

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 25C.140 Alternative Statutory Methods

1. If every beneficiary (or successor in interest) agrees to substitution, take following steps:

a. Have them execute and acknowledge substitution instrument [see § 25C.230[2]] containing the following [Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(1), (4)]:

NOTE:
Such a substitution will be effective notwithstanding any contrary provision in any trust deed executed on or after January 1, 1968 [Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(1)(A)].

(1) Date of recordation of trust deed.

(2) Trustor's name.

(3) Book and page or instrument number where trust deed is recorded.

(4) Name of new trustee.

b. Record substitution instrument in county in which property is located [Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(1)(A)].

NOTE:
With respect to multiple deeds of trust that are recorded in the same county in which the substitution is being recorded and that all have the same trustee and beneficiary or beneficiaries, a substitution may be accomplished by recording a single document complying with the requirements of Civ. Code § 2934a substituting trustees for all those deeds of trust [Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(4)].

2. As alternative to procedure described in P 1, above, take following steps (if appropriate):

a. Prepare substitution instrument containing information described in P 1(a), above, and have it executed and acknowledged by holders of more than 50 percent of record beneficiary interest of series of notes secured by same real property or of undivided interests in note secured by real property equivalent to a series transaction ("majority interest holders") [Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(1)(B), (4)].

NOTE:

The notes and interests referred to above do not include any notes or interests of a licensed real estate broker that is the issuer or servicer of the notes or interests or of any affiliate of that licensed real estate broker [Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(1)(B); see Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(3) ("affiliate of licensed real estate broker" defined)].

b. Have parties signing substitution instrument also sign, under penalty of perjury, separate written document stating the following [Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(2)]:

(1) Substitution has been signed pursuant to Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(1)(B).

(2) None of the undersigned is a licensed real estate broker or an affiliate of the broker that is the issuer or servicer of obligation secured by trust deed.

(3) Undersigned together hold more than 50 percent of record beneficial interest of series of notes secured by same real property or of undivided interests in note secured by real property equivalent to series transaction.

(4) Notice of substitution was sent by certified mail, postage prepaid, with return receipt requested to each holder of an interest in obligation secured by trust deed who has not joined in execution of substitution or separate document.

c. Attach separate document described in P 2(b), above, to substitution instrument, and record these documents in office of country recorder of each county in which real property described in trust deed is located [Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(1)(B), (2)].

NOTE:

Once the "separate" document is recorded, it constitutes conclusive evidence of compliance with the requirements of Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(2) in favor of (1) substituted trustees acting pursuant to Civ. Code § 2934a, (2) subsequent assignees of the obligation secured by the deed of trust and (3) subsequent bona fide purchasers or encumbrancers for value of the described real property [Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(2)].

A substitution may be accomplished, with respect to multiple deeds of trust that are recorded in the same county in which the substitution is being recorded and that all have the same trustee and beneficiary or beneficiaries, by recording a single substitution instrument, complying with the requirements of Civ. Code § 2934a, substituting trustees for all those deeds of trust [Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(4)].

3. Regardless of statutory method, if substitution instrument is executed, but not recorded, before or concurrently with recording of notice of default, take following steps before or concurrently with recording of substitution instrument [

Civ. Code § 2934a(b)]:

a. Have beneficiary or beneficiaries or their authorized agents mail notice of substitution by registered or certified mail, postage prepaid [see Civ. Code § 2924b], to all persons entitled under Civ. Code § 2924b to receive notice of default [see § 25D.202[2] (notice of default)].

NOTE:
No particular form of notice of substitution is required. Sending a copy of the substitution instrument would be effective.

b. Attach to substitution instrument, affidavit or declaration that notice has been mailed to persons and in manner required by statute [see § 25C.232[2]].

4. Regardless of statutory method used, if notice of default for trust deed has been recorded in nonjudicial foreclosure proceeding but notice of sale has yet to be recorded, take following steps before recordation of substitution instrument [Civ. Code § 2934a(c); see P 5, below]:

a. Have beneficiary or beneficiaries or their authorized agents mail copy of substitution instrument by registered or certified mail, postage prepaid [see Civ. Code § 2924b], to current trustee and to all persons entitled under Civ. Code § 2924b to receive notice of default [see § 25D.202[2] (notice of default)].

b. Attach to substitution instrument, affidavit or declaration that copy has been mailed to persons and in manner required by statute [see § 25C.232[2]].

5. Regardless of statutory method used, if substitution is recorded after notice of sale has been given in nonjudicial foreclosure proceeding, give new notice of sale pursuant to Civ. Code § 2924f [Civ. Code § 2934a(e); see § 25D.206[2] (notice of sale)].

NOTE:
If a new notice of sale is not given, any sale conducted by the new trustee will be void [Civ. Code § 2934a(e)].

NOTE:
A substitution of trustee pursuant to a substitution clause contained in a trust deed is valid whether or not it conforms to the requirements of the statutory methods [U.S. Hertz, Inc. v. Niobrara Farms (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 68, 83-85, 116 Cal. Rptr. 44].

1. Review trust deed for requirements for substitution of trustee.

2. Have party required by trust deed (usually beneficiary) execute and acknowledge substitution instrument containing information required by trust deed [see § 25C.233[2]; see also U.S. Hertz, Inc. v. Niobrara Farms (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 68, 83-85, 116 Cal. Rptr. 44], specifically:

NOTE:
Standard deeds of trust typically require the inclusion of the following information in substitution instruments.

a. Names of original trustor, trustee, and beneficiary.

b. Name and address of new trustee.

c. County (and book and page) where deed of trust is recorded.

3. If notice of default for trust deed has been recorded in nonjudicial foreclosure proceeding but notice of sale has yet to be recorded, consider providing notice of substitution in manner required by statute [see

Civ. Code § 2934a(c); see also § 25C.140, P 4] before recording the following:

NOTE:
Although the notice requirements of Civ. Code § 2934a(c) apply only to the statutory methods of substitution, it is recommended that they be followed for a nonstatutory substitution as well.

a. Notice of sale; and

b. Substitution instrument.

4. Record substitution in location specified by trust deed, which is generally every county in which any portion of real property is located.

5. If substitution is recorded after notice of sale has been given in nonjudicial foreclosure proceeding, give new notice of sale pursuant to Civ. Code § 2924f [Civ. Code § 2934a(e); see § 25D.206[2] (notice of sale)].

NOTE:
If a new notice of sale is not given under these circumstances, any sale conducted by the new trustee will be void [Civ. Code § 2934a(e)].

§ 25C.200 Request by Beneficiary for Full Reconveyance

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a request by a beneficiary under a deed of trust that the trustee execute a full reconveyance of title to the property subject to the trust deed. Within 30 days following satisfaction of the obligation secured by a trust deed, the beneficiary or the beneficiary's assignee must execute and deliver to the trustee a request for reconveyance (this form), the original promissory note, and the original trust deed [see Civ. Code § 2941(b)(1); see also [d], below (such a reproduction may be used in lieu of the original note or trust deed under certain circumstances)]. The beneficiary or assignee should also deliver to the trustee any other evidences of the debt secured by the trust deed and any other documents that are necessary to reconvey, or cause to be reconveyed, the deed of trust [Civ. Code § 2941(b)(1)].

The legal effect of a reconveyance is to clear the title of record; the trust deed itself terminates and title automatically revests in the trustor when the underlying obligation is satisfied [Snider v. Basinger (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 819, 823, 132 Cal. Rptr. 637 ; see § 25C.10]. However, the request for reconveyance and the other reconveyance documents typically do not mention record title or the vesting of title. Instead, they simply provide for the reconveyance of the estate held by the trustee under the trust deed.

[b] Contents of Request

The request for reconveyance should authorize the trustee to reconvey without warranty to the trustor the estate held by the trustee under the trust deed and to either record the deed of full reconveyance [see § 25C.201] or deliver it to a designated escrow for recording [see Civ. Code § 2941(b), (c); see also § 25C.201[1][b]].

After the trustee has recorded the deed of full reconveyance or delivered it to the appropriate escrow, the trustee must deliver, or cause to be delivered, on the written request of the trustor or the trustor's heirs, successors, or assignees, the original note and trust deed to the person making the request [Civ. Code § 2941(b)(1)(C); see § 25C.202[2]; see also [d], below]. Although a technical reading of this requirement indicates that a separate request for delivery is necessary, the delivery request is often included (as in this form) in the beneficiary's request to the trustee for full reconveyance.

The request for reconveyance should also include any language or statements specified in the trust deed as prerequisite to a reconveyance of the trust deed by the trustee.

[c] Fees for Full Reconveyance

The trustee or beneficiary may charge a reasonable fee to the trustor (or the owner of the land) for all services rendered in connection with the preparation, execution, or recordation of a request for full reconveyance, including, but not limited to, document preparation and forwarding services rendered to effect the full reconveyance, and, in addition, may collect official fees [Civ. Code § 2941(e)(1)]. The trustee or beneficiary's fee may be made payable no earlier than the opening of a bona fide escrow or no more than 60 days prior to the full satisfaction of the obligation secured by the trust deed [Civ. Code § 2941(e)(1)]. If the fee does not exceed $45, it is conclusively presumed to be reasonable [Civ. Code § 2941(e)(2)]. The fee may not be charged unless demand for the fee was included in the payoff demand statement [Civ. Code § 2941(e)(3); see Civ. Code § 2943 (payoff demand statement); see also Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans].

[d] Optically Imaged Reproductions

As mentioned above, Civ. Code § 2941 imposes requirements governing the handling and return of the original note and trust deed. For these purposes, "original" may include an optically imaged reproduction when (1) the trustee is an affiliate or subsidiary of the beneficiary or the beneficiary's assignee, (2) the optical image storage media used to store the document is "nonerasable write once, read many (WORM)" optical image media that does not allow changes to the stored document, (3) the optical image reproduction is made consistent with the minimum standards of quality approved by the National Institute of Standards and Technology or the Association for Information and Image Management, and (4) written authentication identifying the reproduction as an unaltered copy of the note or trust deed is stamped or printed on the reproduction [Civ. Code § 2941(f)].

[e] Civil and Criminal Penalties

A beneficiary or the assignee of a beneficiary who fails to execute and deliver to the trustee the original note, trust deed, and request for a full reconveyance when the obligation secured by the trust deed has been satisfied is subject to both civil [see Civ. Code § 2941(d)] and criminal [see Civ. Code § 2941.5] penalties. With regard to civil penalties, violation of these provisions makes the violator liable to the person affected by the violation for all damages that the person may sustain by reason of the violation, and also requires that the violator forfeit $500 to the affected person [Civ. Code § 2941(d)]. Notwithstanding any other penalties, if a beneficiary collects a fee for reconveyance and thereafter has knowledge, or should have knowledge, that no reconveyance has been recorded, the beneficiary must cause the reconveyance to be recorded, or if a release of obligation is earlier and timely recorded, the beneficiary must refund to the trustee the fee charged to perform the reconveyance. Evidence of knowledge includes, but is not limited to, notice of a release of obligation [Civ. Code § 2941(j); see Civ. Code § 2941(b)(3) (release of obligation)].

[f] Deed of Full Reconveyance

For discussion of a trustee's obligation to record a deed of full reconveyance on receipt from the beneficiary of a request for reconveyance, see § 25C.201[1].

PART IV. FORMS
A. Full Reconveyance and Discharge
1. Standard Procedure

10-25C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 25C.201

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 25C.201 Deed of Full Reconveyance

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a deed of reconveyance that may be used by a trustee under a deed of trust to reconvey the trust deed and title to the trustor. A trustee must execute a deed of reconveyance following the trustee's receipt of a request for full reconveyance from the beneficiary or assignee of the beneficiary [Civ. Code § 2941(b)(1); see § 25C.200] or after the trustor has, because of the beneficiary's absence or lack of cooperation, satisfied the reconveyance requirements of Civ. Code § 2941.7 [see § 25C.200[1]].

The trustee must deliver a copy of the reconveyance to the beneficiary, its successor in interest, or its servicing agent, if known [Civ. Code § 2941(b)(1)(B)]. The reconveyance instrument must specify one of the following options for delivery of the instrument; the recorder has no duty to validate the addresses given with either option [Civ. Code § 2941(b)(1)(B)]:

- That the recorder should deliver the recorded instrument pursuant to Gov. Code § 27321 to the trustor or successor in interest, at that person's last known address as stated.

- That the recorder should deliver the recorded instrument to the trustee's address, in which case the trustee must mail the recorded instrument to the trustor or the successor in interest to the last known address for that party.

[b] Recording

After execution of a full reconveyance by a trustee under a trust deed, the trustee must record or cause to be recorded the full reconveyance in the office of the county recorder in which the trust deed is recorded within 21 calendar days after receipt by the trustee of the original note, deed of trust, request for full reconveyance, the fee that may be charged, recorder's fees, and other documents necessary to reconvey the deed of trust [Civ. Code § 2941(b)(1)(A)]. The procedures to "cause" the full reconveyance or certificate of discharge to be recorded include, but are not limited to, sending the material by certified mail with the U.S. Postal Service, or by an independent courier service using its tracking service that provides documentation of receipt and delivery, including the signature of the recipient. The full reconveyance or certificate of discharge must be sent in recordable form, together with payment for all required fees, in an envelope addressed to the county recorder's office of the county in which the deed of trust or mortgage is recorded. The county recorder must stamp and record the full reconveyance or certificate of discharge within two business days of receipt [Civ. Code § 2941(c); see Evid. Code § 641 (properly addressed and mailed letter is presumed to be received)]. Failure to record the full reconveyance properly subjects the trustee to both civil [see Civ. Code § 2941(d)] and criminal [see Civ. Code § 2941.5] penalties. With regard to civil penalties, violation of these provisions makes the violator liable to the person affected by the violation for all damages that the person may sustain by reason of the violation, and also requires that the violator forfeit $500 to the affected person [Civ. Code § 2941(d)]. Notwithstanding any other penalties, if a beneficiary collects a fee for reconveyance and thereafter has knowledge, or should have knowledge, that no reconveyance has been recorded, the beneficiary must cause the reconveyance to be recorded, or if a release of obligation is earlier and timely recorded, the beneficiary must refund to the trustee the fee charged to perform the reconveyance. Evidence of knowledge includes, but is not limited to, notice of a release of obligation [Civ. Code § 2941(j); see Civ. Code § 2941(b)(3) (release of obligation)].

[c] Fees for Recordation of Full Reconveyance

The trustee may charge a fee to the trustor for all services rendered in connection with the preparation, execution, or recordation of a full reconveyance, including, but not limited to, document preparation and forwarding services rendered to effect the full reconveyance [Civ. Code § 2941(e)(1)]. This fee may be made payable no earlier than the opening of a bona fide escrow or no more than 60 days prior to the full satisfaction of the obligation secured by the trust deed [Civ. Code § 2941(e)(1)]. If the fee does not exceed $45, it is conclusively presumed to be reasonable [Civ. Code § 2941(e)(2)]. The fee may not be charged unless demand for the fee was included in the payoff demand statement [Civ. Code § 2941(e)(3); *see Civ. § 25C.202 Trustor's Request for Delivery of Promissory Note and Deed of Trust

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a request by the trustor under a deed of trust that the trustee deliver the original promissory note and trust deed to the trustor. After receiving the original note and trust deed and a request for reconveyance from the beneficiary or beneficiary's assignee [see § 25C.200[1][a]] and recording a deed of reconveyance [see § 25C.201[2]], the trustee must then deliver, or cause to be delivered, on the written request of the trustor or the trustor's heirs, successors, or assignees, the original note and trust deed to the person making the request [Civ. Code § 2941(b)(1)(C)].

As a practical matter, a separate request by the trustor for delivery of the promissory note and trust deed may not be necessary if, as is common practice, the beneficiary's request to the trustee for reconveyance [see § 25C.200[2]] instructs the trustee to directly (or through escrow) deliver the note and trust deed to the trustor (or escrow acting on behalf of the trustor).

[b] Optically Imaged Reproductions

The trustee is required to deliver to the trustor the original promissory note and trust deed. For these purposes, "original" may include an optically imaged reproduction when (1) the trustee is an affiliate or subsidiary of the beneficiary or the beneficiary's assignee, (2) the optical image storage media used to store the document is "nonerasable write once, read many (WORM)" optical image media that does not allow changes to the stored document, (3) the optical image reproduction is made consistent with the minimum standards of quality approved by the National Institute of Standards and Technology or the Association for Information and Image Management, and (4) written authentication identifying the reproduction as an unaltered copy of the note or trust deed is stamped or printed on the reproduction [Civ. Code §

[c] Civil and Criminal Penalties

Violation by a trustee of any of the requirements of Civ. Code § 2941, including failure to comply with this type of written request for delivery of the original note and trust deed, subjects the trustee to both civil [see Civ. Code § 2941(d)] and criminal [see Civ. Code § 2941.5] penalties. With regard to civil penalties, violation of these provisions makes the violator liable to the person affected by the violation for all damages that the person may sustain by reason of the violation, and also requires that the violator forfeit $500 to the affected person [Civ. Code § 2941(d)]. Notwithstanding any other penalties, if a beneficiary collects a fee for reconveyance and thereafter has knowledge, or should have knowledge, that no reconveyance has been recorded, the beneficiary must cause the reconveyance to be recorded, or if a release of obligation is earlier and timely recorded, the beneficiary must refund to the trustee the fee charged to perform the reconveyance. Evidence of knowledge includes, but is not limited to, notice of a release of obligation [Civ. Code § 2941(j); see Civ. Code § 2941(b)(3) (release of obligation)].

§ 25C.203 Certificate of Discharge of Mortgage

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a certificate of discharge of a mortgage. A mortgagee or mortgagee's assignee must execute, acknowledge, and record such a certificate following the satisfaction of the mortgage [Civ. Code §§ 2939, 2941(a)]. The certificate must state that the mortgage has been paid, satisfied, or discharged, and must refer to the book and page where the mortgage is recorded. Further, the certificate must be signed by the mortgagee or the mortgagee's personal representatives or assigns, and acknowledged or proved and certified [Civ. Code § 2939]. This form provides for the inclusion of an acknowledgment [see Civ. Code § 1180 et seq.; for coverage of acknowledgments, see Ch. 27, Deeds and Recording].

[b] Recording

An executed certificate of discharge must be recorded in the office of the recorder for the county in which the mortgage is recorded [Civ. Code §§ 2940, 2941(a)]. The procedures to "cause" the full reconveyance or certificate of discharge to be recorded include, but are not limited to, sending the material by certified mail with the U.S. Postal Service, or by an independent courier service using its tracking service that provides documentation of receipt and delivery, including the signature of the recipient. The full reconveyance or certificate of discharge must be sent in recordable form, together with payment for all required fees, in an envelope addressed to the county recorder's office of the county in which the deed of trust or mortgage is recorded. The county recorder must stamp and record the full reconveyance or certificate of discharge within two business days of receipt [Civ. Code § 2941(c); see Evid. Code § 641 (properly addressed and mailed letter is presumed to be received)].

[c] Authorized Fees

The mortgagee may charge a fee to the mortgagor for all services rendered in connection with the recordation of the certificate of discharge, including, but not limited to, document preparation and forwarding services rendered to effect the discharge, and, in addition, may collect official fees [see Civ. Code § 2941(e)(1)]. The fee may not be charged unless demand for the fee was included in the payoff demand statement [Civ. Code § 2941(e)(3); see Civ. Code § 2943 (payoff demand statement); see also Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans]. The mortgagee's fee may be made payable no earlier than the opening of a bona fide escrow or no more than 60 days prior to the full satisfaction of the obligation secured by the mortgage [Civ. Code § 2941(e)(1)]. If this fee does not exceed $45, it is conclusively presumed to be reasonable [Civ. Code § 2941(e)(2)].

[d] Civil and Criminal Penalties

Failure by the mortgagee or his or her assignee to properly execute and record a certificate of discharge after the mortgage has been satisfied subjects the mortgagee (or assignee) to both civil [see Civ. Code § 2941(d)] and criminal [see Civ. Code § 2941.5] penalties. With regard to civil penalties, violation of these provisions makes the violator liable to the person affected by the violation for all damages that the person may sustain by reason of the violation, and also requires that the violator forfeit $500 to the affected person [Civ. Code § 2941(d)]. Notwithstanding any other penalties, if a beneficiary collects a fee for reconveyance and thereafter has knowledge, or should have knowledge, that no reconveyance has been recorded, the beneficiary must cause the reconveyance to be recorded, or if a release of obligation is earlier and timely recorded, the beneficiary must refund to the trustee the fee charged to perform the reconveyance. Evidence of knowledge includes, but is not limited to, notice of a release of obligation [Civ. Code § 2941(j); see Civ. Code § 2941(b)(3) (release of obligation)].

§ 25C.204 Mortgagor's Request for Delivery of Promissory Note and Mortgage

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a request by a mortgagor (or successor in interest) that the mortgagee deliver the original promissory note and mortgage instrument to the requester following the discharge of the mortgage [see Civ. Code § 2941(a)]. A recorded mortgage is discharged by the recordation of a certificate of discharge stating that the mortgage has been paid, satisfied, or discharged [Civ. Code §§ 2939, 2940, 2941; see § 25C.203[2]]. After the recordation of the certificate of discharge, the mortgagee, on the written request of the mortgagor or the mortgagor's heirs, successors, or assignees, as the case may be, must then deliver the original note and mortgage to the person making the request [see Civ. Code § 2941(a); see also [b], below].

For further discussion of the requirements relating to a certificate of discharge, see § 25C.203[1].

[b] Optically Imaged Reproduction

Civ. Code § 2941 requires (in part) that the mortgagee deliver the original note and mortgage to the mortgagor or other requestor. For these purposes, "original" may include an optically imaged reproduction when (1) the optical image storage media used to store the document is "nonerasable write once, read many (WORM)" optical image media that does not allow changes to the stored document, (2) the optical image reproduction is made consistent with the minimum standards of quality approved by the National Institute of Standards and Technology or the Association for Information and Image Management, and (3) written authentication identifying the reproduction as an unaltered copy of the note or trust deed is stamped or printed on the reproduction [*Civ. § 25C.210 Declaration for Release of Lien [Civ. Code § 2941.7]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a declaration that may be used by a trustor or mortgagor, in conjunction with a bond required by statute, to effect a reconveyance of a trust deed or a discharge of a mortgage when the beneficiary or mortgagee cannot be located or is uncooperative. Specifically, this type of declaration must be used when:

- The obligation secured by a mortgage or trust deed has been fully satisfied and the present mortgagee or beneficiary of record cannot be located after diligent search [see Civ. Code § 2941.7(d) ("diligent search" defined); see also § 25C.122, P 2];

- The secured obligation has been fully satisfied and the present mortgagee or beneficiary of record refuses to execute and deliver a proper certificate of discharge or request for reconveyance; or

- A specified balance, including principal and interest, remains due and the mortgagor or trustor (or the mortgagor's or trustor's successor in interest) cannot, after diligent search, locate the then mortgagee or beneficiary of record.

Under these circumstances, the lien of the mortgage or trust deed is released when the mortgagor or trustor (or successor in interest of either) records or causes to be recorded, in the office of the county recorder of the county in which the encumbered property is located, a corporate bond accompanied by a declaration (this form) [see Civ. Code § 2941.7(b)], and with respect to a trust deed, a reconveyance [Civ. Code § 2941.7]. The mortgagor or trustor must sign the declaration under penalty of perjury [Civ. Code § 2941.7(b)].

For a step-by-step guide to the above procedure, see § 25C.122.

[b] Nonexclusive Statutory Procedure

The special statutory procedure outlined in Civ. Code § 2941.7 and discussed in this comment is not an exclusive procedure for the issuance of reconveyances and the issuance of bonds and declarations to release the lien of a mortgage and does not affect any other procedures, statutory or otherwise, for the issuance of reconveyances and the issuance of bonds and declarations to release the lien of a mortgage [Civ. Code § 2941.7(e)].

[c] Required Contents of Declaration

The declaration accompanying the corporate bond recorded by the mortgagor or trustor (or successor in interest of either) must state [Civ. Code § 2941.7(b)]:

- That it is recorded pursuant to Civ. Code § 2941.7.
- The name of the original mortgagor or trustor and mortgagee or beneficiary.
- The name and address of the person making the declaration.
- Unless the declaration contains the statement described in the next item below, that the obligation secured by the mortgage or trust deed has been fully satisfied and the current mortgagee or beneficiary of record cannot be located after diligent search, or refuses to execute and deliver a proper certificate of discharge or request for reconveyance as required under Civ. Code § 2941.
- Unless the declaration contains the statement described in the item above, that a specified balance, including principal and interest, remains due and the mortgagor or trustor (or successor in interest of either) cannot, after diligent search, locate the then mortgagee or beneficiary.
- That the declarant has mailed a notice of recording of the declaration and bond [see § 25C.211] to the last address of the person to whom payments under the mortgage or trust deed were made and to the last mortgagee or beneficiary of record at the address for the mortgagee or beneficiary shown on the instrument creating, assigning, or conveying the interest, and at any other address that the declarant has used to correspond with or contact the mortgagee or beneficiary [see Civ. Code § 2941.7(d)(1)], the date of mailing, and the name and address of each person to whom the notice was mailed.

For additional and alternative contents that must be included in the declaration when the present trustee of record cannot be located and is being substituted, see [e], below.

[d] Corporate Bond

The bond must be acceptable to the trustee and must comply with statutory requirements [see Civ. Code § 2941.7(b)]. For a discussion of these requirements, which prescribe, among other things, the minimum amount of the bond, see § 25C.122, P 3.

[e] Substitution of Absent Trustee of Record

[i] Requirements for Substitution

If the present trustee of record and the present mortgagee or the beneficiary of record cannot be located after diligent search [see Civ. Code § 2941.7(d)], the trustor or the trustor's successor-in-interest may substitute the trustee without conferring any duties on the substitute trustee other than those that are incidental to the execution of a reconveyance pursuant to Civ. Code § 2941.7. The substitute trustee must be a title insurance company that agrees to accept the substitution; a title insurance company has no duty to accept the substitution. Further, both of the following additional requirements must be met [Civ. Code § 2941.7(f)]:

- The declaration must state that it is filed pursuant to Civ. Code § 2941.7(f) and contain, in lieu of one of the alternative statements described in Civ. Code § 2941.7(b)(4) [see the fourth and fifth items under [c], above], a statement indicating that the obligation secured by the trust deed has been fully satisfied and the present trustee of record and present beneficiary of record cannot be located after diligent search.

- The corporate bond must be for a period of five or more years.

[ii] Effect of Recording Bond and Declaration

After the expiration of 30 days following the recording of the corporate bond and accompanying declaration, delivery to the trustee of the usual reconveyance fees plus costs, and a demand for reconveyance [see § 25C.213[2]], the trustee must execute and record, or otherwise deliver as provided in Civ. Code § 2941 [see § 25C.202[1]], a reconveyance in the same form as if the beneficiary had delivered to the trustee a proper request for reconveyance, provided that the trustee has not received a written objection to the reconveyance from the beneficiary of record. A trustee is not liable to any person by reason of its execution of are conveyance in reliance on a trustor's (or successor in interest's) substantial compliance with Civ. Code § 2941.7. The sole remedy of any person damaged by reason of the conveyance is against the trustor, the affiant, or the bond [Civ. Code § 2941.7(c)].

A mortgage is satisfied of record when 30 days have expired following recordation of the corporate bond and the accompanying declaration, provided the mortgagee has not recorded an objection to satisfaction [see § 25C.212[2]] within that period. A bona fide purchaser or encumbrancer for value takes the interest conveyed free of the mortgage, provided (1) the requirements of Civ. Code § 2941.7 (discussed throughout this comment) have been satisfied and (2) the deed to the purchaser recites that no objections by the mortgagee have been recorded [Civ. Code § 2941.7(c)].

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a notice of the recordation of a bond and declaration which may be used in connection with the execution of a reconveyance of a trust deed or the discharge of a mortgage when the beneficiary or mortgagee is absent or uncooperative [see Civ. Code § 2941.7]. The mailing of such a notice is one of the steps that must be taken by the trustor or mortgagor (or successor in interest of either) under those circumstances [see Civ. Code § 2941.7(b)(5), (d)(1)]. For a detailed discussion of the relevant procedure, see § 25C.210[1].

[b] Required Contents

The notice of recordation must inform the recipient of the name and address of the mortgagor or trustee, if any, and of either (1) the right (in the case of a mortgage) to record a written objection with respect to the release of the lien of the mortgage [see § 25C.212[2]], or (2) the right (in the case of a trust deed) to notify the trustee in writing of any objection to the reconveyance of the trust deed [Civ. Code § 2941.7(b)(5)].

[c] Mailing of Notice

The notice must be mailed by certified mail, return receipt requested to [Civ. Code § 2941.7(b)(5), (d)(1)]:

- The last address of the person to whom payments under the mortgage or trust deed were made.

- The last mortgagee or beneficiary of record at the address for the mortgagee or beneficiary shown on the instrument creating, assigning, or conveying the interest.

- Any other address that the declarant has used to correspond with or contact the mortgagee or beneficiary.

The related declaration [see § 25C.210[2]] must state the date the notices were mailed and the names and addresses of all persons to whom mailed [Civ. Code § 2941.7(b)(5)].

§ 25C.212 Objection to Satisfaction of Record of Mortgage

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is an objection by a mortgagee to the satisfaction of record of a mortgage sought by a mortgagor under Civ. Code § 2941.7. That statute permits a mortgagor to have a mortgage satisfied of record when the mortgagee is absent or uncooperative. For discussion of this procedure, see § 25C.210[1].

This form may be modified for use as an objection by a trustee to the reconveyance of a trust deed under Civ. Code § 2941.7 [see [c], below].

[b] Recordation

The mortgagee's objection must be recorded in the office of the county recorder of the county in which the encumbered property is located [see Civ. Code § 2941.7] within 30 days of the date the mortgagor records a bond and declaration pursuant to Civ. Code § 2941.7 [Civ. Code § 2941.7(c); see § 25C.210[2] (declaration)]. If the mortgagee does not record an objection within that period, the mortgage is satisfied of record when 30 days have expired following the mortgagor's recordation of the required bond and accompanying declaration [Civ. Code § 2941.7(c)].

[c] Objection to Reconveyance

A trustee, within the 30-day period following the recordation of a corporate bond and accompanying declaration pursuant to Civ. Code § 2941.7, may notify the trustee in writing of any objection to the reconveyance of the trust deed [Civ. Code § 2941.7(c); see Civ. Code § 2941.7(b)(5); see also § 25C.210[1]]. Unlike an objection to the release of the lien of a mortgage, an objection to reconveyance need not be recorded. Thus, counsel may adapt this form for use by a trustee by deleting the recording information at the beginning of the form, making appropriate changes in terminology, and omitting the acknowledgment.

§ 25C.213 Demand by Trustor for Reconveyance

[1] Comment--Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a demand by a trustor under a trust deed that the trustee execute a reconveyance of the trust deed pursuant to Civ. Code § 2941.7 [see § 25C.11]. That statute permits a trustor to secure a reconveyance when the beneficiary cannot be located or is uncooperative [for a detailed discussion of this reconveyance procedure, see § 25C.210[1]]. Among other things, Civ. Code § 2941.7 requires the trustor to record a bond and declaration [see § 25C.210] and to make a demand for reconveyance [Civ. Code § 2941.7(c)]. Because it is not clear from the statutory language whether the bond and declaration in themselves constitute a demand on the trustee for the reconveyance or whether a separate demand, such as this form, is required, a cautious trustor should provide the trustee with a separate demand.

In addition to the above steps, the trustor must provide the trustee with the usual reconveyance fees plus costs [Civ. Code § 2941.7(c)]. For discussion of these fees [see Civ. Code § 2941(e)], see § 25C.200[1][c].

After the expiration of 30 days following the recording of the bond and declaration and the trustee's receipt of the reconveyance demand and reconveyance fees, the trustee must execute, record, and deliver a reconveyance [see § 25C.201[2]] in the same form as if the beneficiary had delivered to the trustee a proper request for reconveyance [see § 25C.200[2]], provided that the trustee has not received a written objection to the reconveyance from the beneficiary of record [Civ. Code § 2941.7(c)].

§ 25C.220 Partial Release Provision--Parcels of Acreage

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a partial release provision that may be included in a purchase money deed of trust covering property that is planned to be developed as a subdivision. It is designed for use when, as is often the case, a subdivision map has not been recorded for the property before the time the partial release provision is included in the trust deed given to the seller of the property. Thus, this form provides for the release of parcels of acreage. However, it also provides that no such release may occur until a parcel or final subdivision map has been recorded for the property [see [f], below].

For a clause that provides for the release of individual lots designated on a final subdivision map, see § 25C.221[2]. The parties may agree to include both types of partial release provisions in the trust deed [see § 25C.221[1][b]]. Both forms are compatible for use with a contract for sale of undeveloped land for subdivision or other development and its partial release provisions [see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements].

For a partial release provision that credits a buyer/trustor's cash down payment against the consideration required for the release of a portion of the property from a purchase money deed of trust, see § 25C.222[2].

[b] Trust Deed Terminology

This comment uses trust deed terminology in reference to both trust deeds and mortgages because the legal principles discussed throughout this comment apply to both types of security instruments and trust deeds are much more common than mortgages in California.

[c] Purpose of Partial Release Provisions

By obtaining the release of a portion of the undeveloped property, a developer has the flexibility to sell the released portion to another developer or to develop and sell or begin selling lots or units in the released portion of the property. This generally enables the developer to help service the debt on the remainder of the property and help capitalize future development of the still-encumbered portion of the property [see § 25C.15].

[d] Requirements of Fairness and Certainty

A partial release provision in a seller's trust deed must be "just and reasonable" as to the seller to be specifically enforceable, and should contain terms that define and minimize the risk that the seller's security will be impaired [see Elridge v. Burns (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 396, 428-431, 142 Cal. Rptr. 845 ; Civ. Code § 3391(2)]. Because all acreage or lots in a subdivision are generally not of the same value, the provision must prevent the subdivider from taking only the best acreage or lots and leaving the trust deed beneficiary with insufficient security to protect his or her purchase money promissory note [White Point Co. v. Herrington (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 458, 467, 73 Cal. Rptr. 885].

The terms of the obligation under a partial release provision must be sufficiently certain to make the precise act to be done clearly ascertainable [White Point Co. v. Herrington (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 458, 465, 73 Cal. Rptr. 885 ; Hiller v. King (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 181, 190-191, 232 P.2d 905]. If the provision is uncertain, it may render the entire sales agreement unenforceable [see White Point Co. v. Herrington (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 458, 465-467, 73 Cal. Rptr. 885 (contract containing uncertain release clause cannot be enforced by buyer); but see Yackey v. Pacific Development Co. (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 776, 784, 160 Cal. Rptr. 430 (seller may bring action for damages for breach even though contract contains uncertain release clause)]. For a detailed discussion of these requirements, see § 25C.15[3]-[7].

[e] Release Price and Order

This form includes a schedule that may be used to fix different "release prices" that must be paid for specific parcels. The price differential for separate parcels is appropriate for use when the parcels differ in value due to location or other factors. The schedule also requires specification of the legal description and sizes of parcels that may be released; however, these items are subject to adjustment based on a recorded subdivision map to be obtained by the buyer/trustor [see discussion under [f] and [g], below]. To prevent the buyer-subdivider from having the more valuable parcels released first and leaving the beneficiary with parcels inadequate to protect the secured obligation, subsection (h) of this form requires that the parcels be released in a specified order. This type of provision may be necessary to maximize the value of the still-encumbered property by maintaining it as a contiguous "block" (rather than in noncontiguous parcels) or by insuring that it does not become landlocked or isolated from necessary or essential services.

[f] Requirements of Subdivision Map Act

The Subdivision Map Act [Gov. Code § 66410 et seq.] defines "subdivision" to include the division of a unit of land, as shown on a county assessment roll, for the purposes of sale, lease, or financing [Gov. Code § 66424]. This definition encompasses a partial release from a blanket encumbrance [see 58 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 408, 412 (1975) (placement of separate trust deeds on different portions of unit of land is division for purpose of sale or financing)]. The Act generally requires local approval of both a tentative map and a final map for any subdivision containing five or more parcels [Gov. Code § 66426]. Subdivisions not subject to the final map requirement must have a parcel map approved by the local legislative body unless the local subdivision ordinance waives the statutory parcel map requirement [Gov. Code § 66428]. For detailed coverage of subdivisions, see Ch. 30, Subdivision Regulation .

[g] Description of Parcels Before Subdivision

If a purchase money trust deed containing a partial release provision is being drafted before the subdivision of the property, the drafters are presented with the problem of describing with certainty the parcels to be reconveyed. This form offers the following solutions to this drafting problem.

Subsection (h) of this form provides for the inclusion of a legal description for each parcel to be released. The "release parcels" referred to in that provision are not the parcels or lots that will ultimately be shown on a recorded subdivision map but are parcels of acreage on the property, as so designated by agreement of the seller/beneficiary and buyer/trustor.

Subsection (d) of this form provides that notwithstanding the foregoing legal description of each "release parcel," any reconveyance may consist only of one or more whole legal lots or parcels as shown on a recorded parcel or final map. It further provides that in order for the buyer/trustor to satisfy this condition, it may request reconveyance of only so much of the "release parcel" as contains whole, legally divided lots or parcels. This may result in the reconveyance of less than an entire "release parcel" because, for example, the boundary line of the release parcel may split one or more legally separate lots or parcels. Nevertheless, this form requires the buyer/trustor to pay the entire release price for the release parcel designated in the partial release provision. However, any amount paid for acreage not reconveyed will be credited against the principal amount owing to the beneficiary and toward the payment of the release price for the parcel containing the unreleased acreage.

PARTIAL RELEASE OF PARCELS

Section _____. At any time when an unrescinded Notice of Default of this Purchase Money Deed of Trust (hereafter referred to as the "Deed of Trust") is not of record, on written request of the Trustor, partial reconveyances from the lien or charge of the Deed of Trust shall be granted by the Beneficiary (through the Trustee), subject to the following:

(a) Trustor's request for reconveyance shall contain a certificate (hereafter referred to as the "Certificate") by a civil engineer licensed to practice in California specifying in acres and fractions of acres the size of each parcel of the property requested to be reconveyed (hereafter referred to as the "Parcel" or "Parcels"); this Certificate shall be conclusive as to the precise number of acres and fractions of acres in computing the amount to paid pursuant to Subsection (e) of this Section.

(b) Trustor shall, at Trustor's sole expense, satisfy all requirements of the Subdivision Map Act of the State of California, and local ordinances under it, arising in connection with the reconveyance.

(c) No Parcel shall be reconveyed if, by reason of the reconveyance, the portion of the Property remaining subject to this Deed of Trust would be left without legal access to a public street or road.

(d) No reconveyance shall be of less than an entire Parcel as described in the schedule set forth in Subsection (h) of this Section (hereafter referred to as the "Schedule"), except that any reconveyance under this Section shall be only of one or more whole lots or parcels as set forth in a recorded parcel or final subdivision map. The Trustor shall have the right to request that the Beneficiary (through the Trustee) release and reconvey only those whole lots or parcels set forth in a recorded parcel or final subdivision map and that are contained within a Parcel described in the Schedule below, notwithstanding that the Trustor would otherwise have the right to have the entire Parcel released and reconveyed. If less than a Parcel described in the Schedule is released and reconveyed pursuant to this Subsection (d), Trustor shall pay the full release price for the applicable Parcel designated in the Schedule below, but the amount attributable to acreage in the Parcel not released pursuant to this Subsection (d) shall be credited and applied toward the payment of (1) the principal of the promissory note secured by this Deed of Trust and (2) the Release Price required to obtain the release of a subsequent Parcel designated in the Schedule and containing the unreleased acreage.

(e) Trustor shall pay the Beneficiary (through the Trustee) a sum to be applied toward the payment of the principal of the promissory note secured by this Deed of Trust and equal to the amount per acre for each acre or fraction of an acre to be reconveyed for the Parcel to be reconveyed as specified for that Parcel in the Schedule.

(f) Trustor shall pay to the Beneficiary (through the Trustee) a sum to be applied to the interest accrued on the promissory note secured by this Deed of Trust. This sum shall be equal to the interest accrued on the promissory note to the date of the request for the reconveyance at the rate of _____ percent per year on the unpaid principal balance of the promissory note.

(g) Trustor shall pay to the Trustee the costs of executing and recording the partial reconveyance.

(h) The following is the Schedule of Parcels that may be reconveyed pursuant to this Section _____. The Parcels may be released only in the order in which they appear on this Schedule.

§ 25C.221 Partial Release Provision--Individual Lots on Subdivision Map

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a partial release provision that may be included in a purchase money deed of trust securing property intended to be developed as a subdivision. It provides for the release of individual lots designated on a final subdivision map.

For a clause that provides for the release of parcels of acreage, see § 25C.220[2]. The parties may agree to include both types of partial release provisions in the trust deed [see [b], below].

This form and the form in § 25C.220[2] are compatible for use with § 23.201 (contract for sale of undeveloped land for subdivision or other development) and its partial release provisions [see § 23.201[2] PP 1.06, 1.07] in Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements .

For a partial release provision that credits the buyer/trustor's cash down payment against the "release price" required for a partial release of property, see § 25C.222[2].

[b] Release Price and Order of Release

Subsection (a) of this form contains alternative provisions for the amount required to be paid to obtain the release of a lot. The first alternative, intended for use when a final subdivision map for the property has not yet been recorded and in conjunction with the provision set forth in § 25C.220[2], bases the release price on the per acre equivalent of the schedule set forth in subsection (h) of § 25C.220[2]. The second alternative in subsection (a) may be used when a final subdivision map for the property has been recorded and sets a specific release price for each lot. Both alternatives reflect the fact that the lots in a subdivision are seldom of the same exact value due to location or other factors and that the subdivider should be required to pay a higher release price for the more valuable lots.

This form does not require that the lots be released in any specific order. Because all the lots to be released are designated on a recorded final subdivision map, it is highly unlikely that there will be any lots in the approved subdivision without access to public roads or utilities. Thus, the seller/trustee need not be concerned that unreleased parcels will be landlocked or isolated. Any difference in value among the lots due to other factors should be taken into account when setting the different release prices to be paid for individual lots pursuant to this form. If the subdivision is a multi-phase project, the seller/beneficiary may insist that all or a majority of the lots in the first phase be released before the any lots in the second or subsequent phases.

For a discussion of the important considerations applicable to the release price and order of release that may affect the enforceability of a partial release clause, see §§ 25C.15[3], [4], 25C.220[1][d].

[c] Subdivision Requirements

For so long as property being developed as a subdivision is subject to a blanket encumbrance, a subdivider cannot sell or lease lots or parcels in the subdivision unless the blanket encumbrance contains an unconditional release clause (which virtually none do) or unless the subdivider complies with one of the alternative requirements of the Subdivided Lands Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11000 et seq.] to assure that the purchaser obtains title to the lot or parcel free and clear of the blanket encumbrance. A blanket encumbrance is a trust deed, mortgage, or any other lien or encumbrance securing the payment of money and affecting land to be subdivided or more than one lot or parcel of subdivided land [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11013]. For a discussion of these requirements, see § 25C.16. For a discussion of the applicability of the Subdivision Map Act [Gov. Code § 66410 et seq.] to partial releases from a deed of trust, see § 25C.220[1][f]. For coverage of all aspects of subdivision regulation, see Ch. 30, Subdivision Regulation .

[Use if final subdivision map has not yet been recorded and provision set forth in § 25C.220 is also to be included in trust deed:]

(a) Trustor shall pay to the Beneficiary (through the Trustee) a sum to be applied toward the payment of the principal of the promissory note secured by this Deed of Trust. This sum shall be equal to the amount required under the Schedule set forth in Subsection (h) of Section _____, for the acreage contained in the lot to be reconveyed.

[Or use if final subdivision map has been recorded:]

(a) For each lot to be conveyed, Trustor shall pay to the Beneficiary (through the Trustee) a sum to be applied toward the payment of the principal of the promissory note secured by this Deed of Trust and equal to the amount per

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a partial release provision for inclusion in a purchase money deed of trust encumbering land being purchased for subdivision purposes. It provides that on payment by the trustor to the beneficiary of a specified sum, the beneficiary will reconvey to the trustor a specific portion of the property designated on an existing recorded final or parcel subdivision map. It also provides that the cash down payment made by the buyer/trustor for the purchase of the property securing the trust deed is to be credited toward the amount the trustor must pay for the partial reconveyance, and that the difference between the full release price and the cash down payment is to be applied toward the principal amount owing on the promissory note secured by the trust deed.

This form describes the portion of the property to be released by reference to a recorded final or parcel subdivision map for the property. For a form of partial release that may be used when a subdivision map has not been recorded prior to the time the partial release clause is drafted, see § 25C.220. For a partial release clause that provides for the release of individual lots described in a recorded final subdivision map, see § 25C.221.

[b] Alternative Release on Close of Escrow

In lieu of inserting this form into a trust deed, the buyer and seller could agree that a portion of the property being sold be conveyed free and clear to buyer at the closing of escrow, that is, never included under the trust deed in favor of seller, in consideration of buyer's cash down payment. Such an arrangement is possible when a buyer/trustor and seller/beneficiary are able to agree before the close of escrow on the release of a specified portion of the property. This method would avoid any enforcement problems arising from an uncooperative beneficiary in fulfilling its future obligation to reconvey [see [c], below]. However, when the buyer/subdivider is unable to deliver the required amount of cash to the seller/beneficiary before the close of escrow, a provision in the trust deed such as the following may be a practical alternative.

[c] Requirements of Certainty and Fairness

The problem of enforcing a partial release clause may arise if the clause is too unclear or uncertain to permit specific enforcement, for example, if it is unclear which parcel a beneficiary is required to reconvey. Enforcement problems may also arise if the reconveyance results in unfairness to the beneficiary, because the property, remaining encumbered after a partial reconveyance, constitutes insufficient security to the beneficiary for payment of the obligation owed by the trustor. For a discussion of the important considerations applicable to the certainty and fairness requirements for a partial release, which affect the enforceability of a partial release clause, see §§ 25C.15[3], [4], 25C.220[1][d].

[d] Subdivision Requirements

When a partial reconveyance is made under a trust deed covering property being developed as a subdivision, the Subdivision Map Act [Gov. Code § 66410 et seq.] and the Subdivided Lands Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11000 et seq.] generally apply. For discussion of these Acts, see §§ 25C.16, 25C.17. For detailed coverage of subdivisions, see Ch. 30, Subdivision Regulation .

PARTIAL RELEASE OF PARCEL

Section _____. At any time when an unrescinded notice of default of this Purchase Money Deed of Trust (hereafter referred to as the "Deed of Trust") is not of record, on written request of the Trustor, a partial reconveyance of one parcel of the Property from the lien or charge of this Deed of Trust shall be granted by Beneficiary, subject to the following:

(a) The following is a description of the Parcel that may be released pursuant to this Section (hereafter referred to as "the Parcel"): _____[insert legal description referring to recorded parcel or final map, e.g., Parcel 1 of Parcel Map No. 123, recorded on January 1, 1988, as Instrument No. 88-456789 of Official Records of San Diego County, California].

(b) Trustor, at Trustor's sole expense, shall satisfy all requirements of the Subdivision Map Act of the State of California, and local ordinances under it, arising in connection with the reconveyance.

(c) No reconveyance shall be of less than the entire Parcel.

(d) The Parcel shall not be reconveyed if, by reason of the reconveyance, the portion of the Property remaining subject to this Deed of Trust would be left without legal access to a public street or road.

(e) Trustor shall pay to the Beneficiary (through the Trustee) a sum equal to $_____ (hereafter referred to as the "Total Release Price"), less the amount of $_____, which shall have been paid in cash by the Trustor to the Beneficiary prior to or concurrently with recordation of this Deed of Trust (hereafter the "Cash Down Payment"). The amount equal to the difference between the Total Release Price and the Cash Down Payment shall be applied toward the payment of the principal of the promissory note secured by this Deed of Trust.

(f) Trustor shall pay to the Beneficiary (through the Trustee) a sum to be applied to the interest accrued on the promissory note secured by this Deed of Trust. This sum shall be equal to the interest accrued on the promissory note to the date of the request for the reconveyance at the rate of _____ percent per year on the unpaid principal balance of the promissory note.

(g) Trustor shall pay to the Trustee the costs of executing and recording the partial reconveyance.

§ 25C.223 Request for Partial Reconveyance

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a request by the beneficiary under a trust deed that the trustee execute a deed of reconveyance for a specified portion of the property encumbered by the trust deed. Unless there is an enforceable agreement between the beneficiary and the trustor providing for partial releases, the beneficiary has no obligation to release any part of the encumbered property from the lien of the trust deed until the trustor has paid in full the secured obligation [Karlsen v. American Sav. & Loan Assn. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 112, 92 Cal. Rptr. 851 ; see Civ. Code § 2912 (partial performance does not extinguish lien)]. The agreement between the beneficiary and trustor for a partial release is generally contained in the trust deed itself but may be in a separate duly acknowledged and recorded document [Woodward v. Brown (1897) 119 Cal. 283, 298, 51 P. 542].

For further discussion of partial releases, see § 25C.15.

[b] Contents

The request for a partial release should identify the deed of trust and include the legal description of the property to be reconveyed. Further, it is customary to include a request that the trustee (1) endorse the reconveyance on the back side of the original promissory note and trust deed (provided by the beneficiary), and (2) return the note and trust deed to the beneficiary.

§ 25C.224 Deed of Partial Reconveyance

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a deed of partial reconveyance for execution by a trustee after the trustee has received the following documents from the beneficiary: a request for a partial reconveyance, the original promissory note and deed of trust, and all other documents specifically required under the trust deed for a partial reconveyance. A deed of partial reconveyance is identical to a deed of full reconveyance [see § 25C.201[2]] except that a partial reconveyance conveys only a specified portion of the real property subject to a trust deed whereas a full reconveyance conveys all of the property subject to the trust deed. Therefore, counsel should carefully and specifically describe the portion of the real property to be reconveyed.

For a procedural guide to the granting of a partial reconveyance, see §§ 25C.130-25C.132.

[b] Recording

After executing and acknowledging the deed of partial reconveyance, the trustee should follow the instructions for recording contained in the beneficiary's request for partial reconveyance [see § 25C.223[2]]. These may require the trustee to record the deed in the county where the deed of trust is recorded or to deliver the deed to an escrow company designated by the beneficiary or to the beneficiary for recording.

§ 25C.230 Statutory Substitution of Trustee: Substitution Instrument [Civ. Code § 2934a]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a substitution of a trustee in a deed of trust. It is designed for use when the parties are utilizing one of the two alternative statutory methods for substituting trustees [see Civ. Code § 2934a]. Specifically, this form may be used for the first statutory method, which requires the consent and participation of all of the beneficiaries (or the sole beneficiary, when appropriate) [see [b][ii], below]. Alternatively, this form may be easily modified to satisfy the requirements governing the second statutory method, which permits substitution by holders of more than 50 percent of the record beneficial interest of a series of notes secured by the same real property or of undivided interests in a note secured by real property equivalent to a series transaction [see [b][iii], below]. Most of the statutory requirements governing the contents, execution, and recordation of the substitution instrument (discussed below) apply to both statutory methods.

In addition to these statutory methods, there are two other methods of substituting trustees in a trust deed: (1) by mutual agreement between the beneficiary and trustor [see § 25C.234[2]], and (2) pursuant to the terms of the trust deed itself [see § 25C.233[2]].

[b] Statutory Methods

[i] Alternatives

As mentioned in [a], above, there are two statutory methods for substituting a trustee who is acting under a trust deed on real property or an estate for years in real property that was given to secure an obligation to pay money and that confers no other duties on the trustee other than those that are incidental to the exercise of power of sale conferred [Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(1)]. These methods are described below.

[ii] Substitution by Sole Beneficiary or All Beneficiaries

The trustee may be substituted by recording in the county in which the property is located a substitution executed and acknowledged by all of the beneficiaries under the trust deed, or their successors in interest. Such a substitution will be effective notwithstanding any contrary provision in any trust deed executed on or after January 1, 1968 [Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(1)(A)]. For the required contents of the substitution instrument, see [iv], below.

[iii] Substitution by Majority Interest Holders

Alternatively, the trustee may be substituted by recording in the county in which the property is located a substitution executed and acknowledged by the holders of more than 50 percent of the record beneficial interest of a series of notes secured by the same real property or of undivided interests in a note secured by real property equivalent to a series transaction, exclusive of any notes or interests of a licensed real estate broker that is the issuer or servicer of the notes or interests or of any affiliate of that licensed real estate broker ("majority interest holders") [Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(1)(B); see Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(3) ("affiliate of the licensed real estate broker" includes any person defined in Corp. Code § 25013 that is controlled by, or under common control with, or who controls, a licensed real estate broker; "control" means direct or indirect possession of the power to direct or cause the direction of management and policies)]. For the required contents of the substitution instrument, see [iv], below.

A substitution executed under this method is not effective unless all the parties signing the substitution also sign, under penalty of perjury, a separate written document containing specified information regarding their compliance with the relevant statutory requirements [see Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(2); see also § 25C.231[2]]. The separate document must be attached to and recorded with this substitution instrument [Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(2)].

For coverage of a related procedure established by Civ. Code § 2941.9 that may be used by all beneficiaries under a trust deed to agree to be governed by majority interest holders, see Ch. 25A, Security Instruments for Real Estate Financing .

[iv] Contents of Substitution Instrument; New Trustee's Powers

Regardless of the statutory method used, the substitution instrument must include the date of recordation of the trust deed, the name of the trustor, the book and page or instrument number where the trust deed is recorded, and the name of the new trustee [Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(4)].

From the time the substitution is filed for record, the new trustee succeeds to all the powers, duties, authority, and title granted and delegated to the trustee named in the deed of trust [Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(4)].

[c] Notice of Substitution

If a substitution instrument is executed, but not recorded, before or concurrently with the recording of the notice of default, the beneficiary or beneficiaries or their authorized agents must cause notice of the substitution to be mailed, before or concurrently with the recording of the substitution instrument, to all persons to whom a copy of the notice of default would be required to be mailed [Civ. Code § 2934a(b)].

If the substitution is effected after a notice of default has been recorded but before the recording of the notice of sale, the beneficiary or beneficiaries or their authorized agents must cause a copy of the substitution instrument to be mailed, before or concurrently with the recording of that document, to the trustee then of record and to all persons to whom a copy of the notice of default would be required to be mailed [Civ. Code § 2934a(c)].

An affidavit must be attached to the substitution document, stating that notice has been given to the persons and in the manner required [Civ. Code § 2934a(b), (c); see § 25C.232[2] (form of declaration in lieu of affidavit)]. These persons include, among others, all persons recording a separate request for notice of default and the trustor [see Civ. Code § 2924b]. The mailing must comply with Civ. Code § 2924b [Civ. Code § 2934a(b), (c)]. For coverage of these mailing requirements and the persons entitled to receive notice, see § 25D.202[1].

[d] Substitution After Giving of Notice of Sale

When a notice of sale is given and there is a subsequent replacement of the trustee named in the notice, any sale conducted by the substitute trustee is void unless a new notice of sale containing the name, street address, and telephone number of the substitute trustee is given pursuant to Civ. Code § 2924f [Civ. Code § 2934a(e)]. For a notice of sale, see § 25D.206[2].

[e] Multiple Deeds of Trust

A substitution for multiple deeds of trust may be made if the deeds are recorded in the same county in which the substitution is being recorded and if they all have the same trustee and beneficiary or beneficiaries [Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(4)]. A single substitution document, substituting trustees for all the trust deeds and containing all of the information required by statute [see [b][iv], above] may be recorded under these circumstances [Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(4)].

[f] Substitution by Court

Application for substitution of trustees may also be made to the court under the statutes governing private trusts, when the trustee vacates his or her position or refuses to act [Prob. C. § 15660; see Mutual B. & L. Ass'n v. Wiborg (1943) 59 Cal. App. 2d 325, 330, 139 P.2d 73] . For further discussion and forms relating to the procedure for court appointment of substitute trustees to a private trust, see California Forms of Pleading & Practice, Ch. 560, Trusts: Express, Public, Charitable, and Totten Trusts (Matthew Bender).

§ 25C.231 Statutory Substitution of Trustee: Additional Document Regarding Compliance With Statutory Requirements by Majority Interest Holders [Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(2)]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a document that must accompany a substitution instrument when the substitution is being performed by majority interest holders. For discussion of this statutory method of substitution, see § 25C.230[1].

[b] Required Contents

A substitution performed pursuant to the statutory procedure described above is not effective unless all the parties signing the substitution also sign, under penalty of perjury, a separate written document (this form) stating the following [Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(2)]:

- The substitution has been signed pursuant to Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(1)(B).
- None of the undersigned is a licensed real estate broker or an affiliate of the broker that is the issuer or servicer of the obligation secured by the trust deed.
- The undersigned together hold more than 50 percent of the record beneficial interest of a series of notes secured by the same real property or of undivided interests in a note secured by real property equivalent to a series transaction.
- Notice of the substitution was sent by certified mail, postage prepaid, with return receipt requested to each holder of an interest in the obligation secured by the trust deed who has not joined in the execution of the substitution or the separate document.

[c] Attachment, Recordation, and Effect

This separate document must be attached to the substitution instrument and must be recorded in the office of the county recorder of each county in which the real property described in the deed of trust is located. Once this document is recorded, it constitutes conclusive evidence of compliance with the requirements of Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(2) in favor of (1) substituted trustees acting pursuant to Civ. Code § 2934a, (2) subsequent assignees of the obligation secured by the deed of trust, and (3) subsequent bona fide purchasers or encumbrancers for value of the described real property [*Civ. § 25C.232 Declaration of Mailing

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a declaration that should be attached to and recorded with the substitution of trustee instrument [see § 25C.230[2]] when the beneficiary uses one of the statutory substitution methods and either (1) the substitution instrument is executed, but not recorded, before or concurrently with the recording of the notice of default [see Civ. Code § 2934a(b)], or (2) the substitution takes place after a notice of default has been recorded in a nonjudicial foreclosure proceeding [see Civ. Code § 2934a(c)]. Under these circumstances, the beneficiary or beneficiaries or their authorized agents must give due notice of the substitution [see § 25C.230[1]] and attach an affidavit (or declaration pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) [see [b], below] to the substitution instrument. The affidavit/declaration (this form) must state that notice has been given to the persons and in the manner required by statute [Civ. Code § 2934a(b), (c)].

[b] Use of Declarations

Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 permits the use of a declaration in lieu of any affidavit required by law. This form utilizes the declaration option because a declaration, unlike an affidavit, need not be made before an authorized officer [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2003 ("affidavit" is a written declaration under oath), 2012 (affidavit may be taken before any officer authorized to administer oaths)]. § 25C.233 Unilateral Substitution of Trustee Pursuant to Deed of Trust Provision

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is an instrument that replaces a trustee under a deed of trust through the beneficiary's unilateral action. This method of substitution is one commonly provided for in many standard deeds of trust. Substitution of a trustee pursuant to the terms of a trust deed is valid whether or not it conforms to the requirements of the statutory methods [see Bennett v. Ukiah Fair Ass'n (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 43, 44-45, 59 P.2d 805 ; see also U.S. Hertz, Inc. v. Niobrara Farms (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 68, 83-85, 116 Cal. Rptr. 44].

There are three additional methods of replacing trustees in a deed of trust. The first two are alternative statutory methods of substitution. They permit substitution either (1) by all of the beneficiaries (or the sole beneficiary, when appropriate), or (2) by holders of more than 50 percent of the record beneficial interest of a series of notes secured by the same real property or of undivided interests in a note secured by real property equivalent to a series transaction [Civ. Code § 2934a; see § 25C.230]. Under the third (nonstatutory) method, if the beneficiary and trustor mutually agree to a substitution of the trustee, they may effect the substitution without the consent of the trustee and without regard to the substitution procedure set forth in the trust deed [Pacific S. & L. Co. v. N. American etc. Co. (1940) 37 Cal. App. 2d 307, 308-311, 99 P.2d 355]. For a substitution instrument that reflects the statutory methods, see § 25C.230[2]; for a form for substitution to be jointly executed by the beneficiary and trustor, see § 25C.234[2].

[b] Required Contents

Standard substitution clauses found in many trust deeds generally require that the substitution instrument contain the names of the original trustor, trustee, and beneficiary, the name and address of the new trustee, and the book and page where the trust deed is recorded. These standard clauses also generally require that the instrument be acknowledged by every beneficiary under the trust deed and recorded in every county in which the trust deed is recorded. A particular trust deed should be carefully reviewed by counsel for any additional substitution requirements.

As a practical matter, standard substitution clauses in many trust deeds require essentially the same information and procedure as the statutory methods [see Civ. Code § 2934a(a)(1)(A)]. For example, most trust deeds permit substitution by the beneficiaries without the consent of the trustor, as does the statutory method. Therefore, it is possible in most cases to replace a trustee and simultaneously comply with the statutory requirements and the specific provisions of the trust deed.

[c] Effect of Substitution on Nonjudicial Foreclosure Proceeding

If one of the statutory methods of substitution is used [see Civ. Code § 2934a; see also § 25C.230[1]] after a notice of default has been recorded in a nonjudicial foreclosure proceeding, a copy of the substitution must be mailed by the beneficiary or beneficiaries or their authorized agents to the current trustee and to all persons entitled to receive the notice of default [see Civ. Code § 2934a(c); for further discussion of this requirement, see § 25C.230[1]]. While this distribution requirement applies specifically to the statutory methods of substitution, it is recommended that notice be given in the same manner in the case of a nonstatutory substitution.

Notwithstanding any provision in any trust deed, when a notice of sale is given and there is a subsequent substitution of the trustee named in the notice, any sale conducted by the substituted trustee is void unless a new notice of sale containing the name, street address, and telephone number of the substituted trustee is given pursuant to Civ. Code § 2924f [Civ. Code § 2934a(e)]. For further discussion of nonjudicial foreclosures, see Ch. 25D, Foreclosure .

PART IV. FORMS
C. Substitution of Trustees

10-25C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 25C.234

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 25C.234 Substitution of Trustee by Joint Agreement

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a substitution of trustee designed for use when both the beneficiary and trustor under the trust deed wish to effect the substitution without the consent of the trustee and without regard to the requirements of the statutory methods of substitution [see Pacific S. & L. Co. v. N. American etc. Co. (1940) 37 Cal. App. 2d 307, 308-311, 99 P.2d 355].

There are three additional methods of replacing trustees in a deed of trust. The first two are alternative statutory methods of substitution. They permit substitution either (1) by all of the beneficiaries (or the sole beneficiary, when appropriate), or (2) by holders of more than 50 percent of the record beneficial interest of a series of notes secured by the same real property or of undivided interests in a note secured by real property equivalent to a series transaction [Civ. Code § 2934a; see § 25C.230]. Under the third (nonstatutory) method, a trustee may be replaced pursuant to the terms of the applicable trust deed [see Bennett v. Ukiah Fair Ass'n (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 43, 44-45, 59 P.2d 805 (this method need not comply with foregoing statutory requirements)]. For example, many trust deeds permit the beneficiary to unilaterally substitute a trustee without the trustor's consent [see § 25C.233].

[b] Execution and Recording

Both the trustor and beneficiary should execute and acknowledge this type of substitution instrument. Thereafter, the instrument should be recorded in each county where the real property is located and the trust deed is recorded [see Pacific S. & L. Co. v. N. American Etc. Co. (1940) 37 Cal. App. 2d 307, 308-311, 99 P.2d 355].

[c] Effect of Substitution on Nonjudicial Foreclosure Proceeding

If a substitution of the trustee is effected pursuant to one of the statutory methods [see Civ. Code § 2934a; see also § 25C.230[1]] after a notice of default has been recorded in a nonjudicial foreclosure proceeding, the beneficiary or beneficiaries or their authorized agents must mail a copy of the substitution to the current trustee and to all persons entitled to receive the notice of default [see Civ. Code § 2934a(c); see also § 25C.230[1]]. While the above requirement applies specifically to the statutory methods of substitution, it is recommended that in the case of a nonstatutory substitution, the beneficiary give notice to the concerned parties in the same manner as is required for statutory substitutions.

Notwithstanding any provision in any trust deed, when a notice of sale is given and there is a subsequent substitution of the trustee named in the notice, any sale conducted by the substituted trustee is void unless a new notice of sale containing the name, street address, and telephone number of the substituted trustee has been given pursuant to Civ. Code § 2924f [Civ. Code § 2934a(e)]. For further discussion of nonjudicial foreclosures, see Ch. 25D, Foreclosure .

Scope

§ 25DSA.01 Special Alert--Mortgage Foreclosure Consultants

On and after July 1, 2009, the business of mortgage foreclosure consultants [see § 25D.29] in California will be more strictly regulated [see 2008 Stats., ch. 278]. A future release of this publication will incorporate the following changes at appropriate places in this chapter.

- Foreclosure consultants will be required to be registered with the California Department of Justice and to be bonded by a corporate surety [Civ. Code § 2945.45(a)(1),(2)].

- A foreclosure-consulting contract will have to be written in another language as well as in English, if the parties negotiated in another language [Civ. Code § 2945.3(c)].

- The owner's notice of cancellation of the contract will be effective if given by fax or e-mail, in lieu of regular mail [Civ. Code § 2945.2(b),(c)].

- A foreclosure consultant will no longer be permitted to enter into an agreement to assist the owner in arranging, or to arrange for the owner, the release of surplus funds after the trustee's sale is conducted [Civ. Code § 2945.4(h)].

This chapter covers foreclosures arising from defaults under deeds of trust and mortgages secured by real property. The primary emphasis is on nonjudicial foreclosures and the procedure and forms required to effect them. The chapter also discusses judicial foreclosures as a remedy available to a creditor; however, a detailed discussion of that topic is beyond the scope of this chapter. For complete coverage of judicial foreclosures, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages (Matthew Bender).

§ 25D.10 Types of Foreclosure

"Foreclosure" commonly refers to the enforcement of a deed of trust or mortgage in any manner provided by law. Following a default under the terms of a trust deed or mortgage and the underlying obligation, the method of enforcement is the sale of the encumbered real property.

In many cases, a creditor may elect to proceed with either nonjudicial foreclosure or judicial foreclosure. Nonjudicial foreclosure, which culminates in the private sale of the real property, is available only if the trust deed or mortgage securing the obligation contains a clause or provision granting a power of sale [see Civ. Code § 2924(a)]. As a matter of practice, most security instruments used in California do contain a power of sale. Judicial foreclosure must be initiated by filing a complaint for foreclosure [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 725a, 726] in the county in which the property is located [see Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(2)]. For an illustrative complaint that may be used to commence a judicial foreclosure, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages (Matthew Bender).

Several code sections pertaining to the creation and enforcement of real property trust deeds and mortgages specifically authorize the hypothecation of estates for years in real property by trust deeds or mortgages. The statutes include several discussed throughout this chapter, including those governing the following:

- Reinstatement [see Civ. Code § 2924c; see also § 25D.16].
- Copies of notices of sale and default [see Civ. Code § 2924b; § 25D.200; see also Civ. Code § 2924.3; § 25D.121, P 10].
- Deficiency judgments [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 580b, 580d; see also § 25D.20].
- The "one form of action" rule [see Code Civ. Proc. § 726; see also § 25D.13].

A member of the State Bar of California must not directly or indirectly purchase property at a foreclosure sale if the member or any other member of the State Bar affiliated by reason of personal, business, or professional relationship with that member or with that member's law firm (1) is an attorney for a party, or (2) is acting as trustee or in a similar capacity [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-300].

§ 25D.11 Effect of Foreclosure

A properly executed nonjudicial foreclosure extinguishes all junior liens. The buyer at the sale takes title free and clear of all liens on the property junior to the lien foreclosed [Hohn v. Riverside County Flood Control and Water Conservation Dist. (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 605, 613, 39 Cal. Rptr. 647]. A decree of judicial foreclosure also extinguishes all junior liens [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 701.630, 729.080(e)]. However, after a judicial foreclosure, the judgment debtor and any successor in interest may have a right of redemption [see § 25D.17[1]].

§ 25D.12 Nonjudicial and Judicial Foreclosures Compared

Because judicial foreclosure requires court proceedings, it is generally more expensive and time consuming than nonjudicial foreclosure. It is possible to comply with the statutory notice and other requirements and to sell property in a nonjudicial foreclosure in approximately 120 days.

Another disadvantage to a judicial foreclosure is that the debtor may have the right to redeem the property for a specified period of time following the sale [see § 25D.17]. There is no right of redemption after property is sold in a nonjudicial foreclosure proceeding.

The only advantage generally associated with judicial foreclosure is that it may be possible to obtain a deficiency judgment against the debtor if the proceeds from the sale of the property are insufficient to satisfy the debt [see § 25D.20[3]], whereas nonjudicial foreclosure precludes obtaining a deficiency judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 580d].

PRACTICE TIP:

Judicial Foreclosure. Selecting judicial foreclosure instead of the less-expensive and time-consuming remedy of non-judicial foreclosure involves the consideration of a number of factors:

- Will there be a substantial deficiency judgment justifying a judicial foreclosure?
- Even if a deficiency judgment is available, will the debtor have sufficient assets to satisfy the judgment?
- How much is the client willing to spend in appraisal fees and the like to proceed with judicial foreclosure?
- Is the client willing to accept the right of the debtor to redeem the property after the judicially-supervised sale concludes?

The law firm advising the client should ask at a minimum these questions to ensure that the client is weighing the relative advantages of the two options. Commentary by Timothy F. O'Leary

§ 25D.13 "One Form of Action" Rule

[1] Applicability

Code Civ. Proc. § 726(a) extends the applicability of the "one form of action" rule to an action for the recovery of a debt or the enforcement of a right secured by a mortgage on an estate for years in real property [for discussion of types of foreclosure, see § 25D.10]. The same rule applies if the security instrument is a deed of trust on real property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 725a; see also Bank of Italy Nat'l Trust & Sav. Ass'n v. Bentley (1933) 217 Cal. 644, 657-658, 20 P.2d 940]. The rule was enacted to protect mortgagors from harassment in repeated litigation [Salter v. Ulrich (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 263, 266, 138 P.2d 7]. It effectively prevents a creditor from bringing a lawsuit on the promissory note secured by a trust deed or mortgage rather than judicially foreclosing on the security instrument. If the creditor attempts to ignore the security and sue directly on the underlying obligation, the debtor may plead Code Civ. Proc. § 726(a) as an affirmative defense and thereby force the creditor to exhaust the security before seeking a personal judgment against the debtor for a deficiency [Walker v. Community Bank (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 729, 734, 111 Cal. Rptr. 897, 518 P.2d 329 ; Hartman v. Smith (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 415, 416-417, 33 Cal. Rptr. 147].

Some types of proceedings short of a lawsuit may be considered an "action" for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 726(a) [see Bank of America v. Daily (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 767, 771, 199 Cal. Rptr. 557 ("set-off" by bank treated as equivalent of action)].

[2] Exception for Certain Fraud Cases

Notwithstanding Code Civ. Proc. § 726 or any other provision of law to the contrary, any person authorized to make or arrange loans secured by real property who originates, acquires, or purchases any such loan may bring an action for damages against a borrower based on fraud that induced the original lender to make the loan. The damages may include exemplary damages of up to 50 percent of the actual damages [Code Civ. Proc. § 726(f)]. Such an action does not constitute a money judgment for deficiency, or a deficiency judgment within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 580a, 580b, and 580d [Code Civ. Proc. § 726(h)]. This right of action does not apply if (1) the loan is secured by single-family, owner-occupied residential real property, (2) the property is actually occupied by the borrower as represented to the lender, and (3) the loan is for less than $150,000 as adjusted annually [Code Civ. Proc. § 726(g)].

[3] Later Worthless Security Exception

When the security for a mortgage or deed of trust is destroyed after being granted, the creditor can sue directly on the obligation without foreclosing first [see Cohen v. Marshall (1925) 197 Cal. 117, 123, 239 P. 1050] . There is also no requirement that a creditor proceed first with foreclosure if the creditor becomes unsecured by a senior lienor's foreclosure of the security [Roseleaf Corp. v. Chierighino (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 35, 39, 27 Cal. Rptr. 873, 378 P.2d 97].

A junior lienholder was not barred from suing directly on the underlying obligation when its security was extinguished by the foreclosure of a senior lien, even though the junior lienholder had commenced foreclosure proceedings before the senior lienholder's foreclosure and had postponed its foreclosure sale to allow the senior lienholder to complete its foreclosure sale first [Bank of America v. Graves (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 607, 610, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 288]. The junior lienholder's failure to complete its own foreclosure proceedings was not an affirmative act leading to the loss of the security, and the mere commencement of the foreclosure proceedings was not an election of remedies that precluded a suit on the deficiency [Bank of America v. Graves (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 607, 614-615, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 288].

The fact that the security was insufficient when taken or becomes insufficient because of a decline in its value does not preclude application of Code Civ. Proc. § 726; the debt is still secured even though the security is not adequate [Barbieri v. Ramelli (1890) 84 Cal. 154, 156, 23 P. 1086 ; Giandeini v. Ramirez (1936) 11 Cal. App. 2d 469, 471, 54 P.2d 91].

[4] Enforceability of Letters of Credit

If an obligation is secured by a mortgage or trust deed on real property (or on an estate for years in real property) and is also supported by a letter of credit, the following acts will not constitute an action within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 726(a) or a failure to comply with any other statutory or judicial requirement to proceed first against security [Code Civ. Proc. § 580.5(b); see Western Security Bank v. Superior Court (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 232, 252, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 243, 933 P.2d 507 (Code Civ. Proc. § 580.5 merely clarifies existing law and therefore applies to letters of credit issued before its effective date of September 16, 1994)]:

- The presentment, receipt of payment, or enforcement of a draft or demand for payment under the letter of credit by the beneficiary of the letter of credit.

- The honor or payment of, or the demand for reimbursement, receipt of reimbursement, or enforcement of any contractual, statutory, or other reimbursement obligation relating to, the letter of credit by the issuer of the letter of credit.

This exemption from the one form of action rule applies whether the above acts occur before or after the judicial or nonjudicial foreclosure of the mortgage or trust deed, or a conveyance in lieu of foreclosure [Code Civ. Proc. § 580.5(b)]. However, notwithstanding this exemption, a letter of credit will not be enforceable by any party to the letter of credit in a loan transaction in which all of the following circumstances exist [Code Civ. Proc. § 580.7(b)]:

- The loan is secured by a purchase money trust deed or purchase money mortgage on real property containing one to four residential units, at least one of which is owned and occupied, or was intended at the time the loan was made to be occupied, by the customer.

- The customer is a natural person.

- The letter of credit is issued to the beneficiary to avoid a default of the existing loan.

- The letter of credit is issued after January 1, 1995 (the operative date of Code Civ. Proc. § 580.7).

Code Civ. Proc. § 580.5 also exempts letter of credit transactions from the antideficiency statutes [see § 25D.22].

For further discussion of this exemption, see California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 122, Antideficiency Legislation (Matthew Bender). For coverage of letters of credit, see Ch. 56, Letters of Credit and Electronic Fund Transfers .

[5] Waiver of Defense and Sanctions

The benefits of the single form of action rule cannot be waived by the mortgagor in connection with making or renewing the loan [Civ. Code § 2953; see Winklemen v. Sides (1939) 31 Cal. App. 2d 387, 404, 88 P.2d 147]. However, the rule is an affirmative defense that must be asserted in a demurrer or raised in the answer. If a debtor fails to plead the existence of a mortgage in a timely manner, the defense is lost [Salter v. Ulrich (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 263, 268, 138 P.2d 7 ; Spector v. National Pictures Corp. (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 217, 226, 20 Cal. Rptr. 307]. Once the defense is waived, the creditor may receive a valid personal judgment against the debtor on the obligation sued on. The so-called sanction aspect of Code Civ. Proc. § 726(a) prevents the creditor from then foreclosing on the security [see Salter v. Ulrich (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 263, 268, 138 P.2d 7].

[6] Attachment Allowable as Remedy

In an action to foreclose a mortgage or deed of trust on real property or an estate for years in real property, and subject to the restrictions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 580b and 580d, pursuit of a remedy relating to attachment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 481.010 et seq.] does not constitute an action for the recovery of a debt secured by a mortgage or deed of trust under Code Civ. Proc. § 726(a) or a failure to comply with other statutory or judicial requirements to proceed first against the security [Code Civ. Proc. § 483.012].

§ 25D.14 Multiple Notes and Multiple Securities

If multiple securities exist for a single debt, a creditor bringing a foreclosure action should judicially foreclose on all the securities, because the creditor may not later foreclose on any remaining security [see Stockton Sav. & Loan Soc'y v. Harrold (1900) 127 Cal. 612, 616, 60 P. 165]. In contrast, a nonjudicial foreclosure on only part of the security does not prevent the creditor from foreclosing, either judicially or nonjudicially, on the remaining security. However, the creditor is not entitled to obtain a deficiency judgment on the subsequent foreclosure, even if none of the security was purchase money security, because nonjudicial foreclosure on any portion of the security prevents a deficiency judgment on the remaining security under Code Civ. Proc. § 580d [Hatch v. Security-First Nat'l Bank (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 254, 260-262, 120 P.2d 869].

If there are multiple notes, each representing a separate debt, the applicability of the antideficiency legislation to each note must be considered separately. For a discussion of the factors involved in determining whether debts are separate, see California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 122, Antideficiency Legislation (Matthew Bender).

§ 25D.15 Enforcement of Mixed Collateral Debts

[1] Separate Foreclosures

If an obligation is secured by a security interest in personal property or fixtures [see Com. Code § 9334] and also by an interest or estate in real property, the secured party may elect to foreclose separately on the real property and on the personal property or fixtures, or to foreclose on the real property and the personal property or fixtures in a unified action [see Com. Code § 9604(a)(1)(A), (B)]. Alternatively, the secured party may foreclose on some personal property separately and on other personal property in a unified action with the real property [Com. Code § 9604(a)(1)(C)].

[2] Applicability of Various Laws

Except as otherwise provided in the Commercial Code, provisions and limitations of any law respecting real property and obligations secured by an interest or estate in real property do not apply to (1) the obligation, or (2) any personal property or fixtures, other than personal property or fixtures subject to a unified action. The real property provisions and limitations mentioned above specifically include the following [Com. Code § 9604(a)(2)(A)]:

- The "one form of action" rule [Code Civ. Proc. § 726; see § 25D.13[1]; see also Com. Code § 9604(a)(5), (8)].
- Provisions regarding acceleration or reinstatement of obligations secured by an interest or estate in real property.
- Prohibitions against deficiency judgments.
- Limitations on deficiency judgments based on the value of the collateral.
- Limitations on the right to proceed as to collateral and requirements that a creditor resort either first or at all to its security.

However, if an obligation secured by personal property or fixtures would otherwise become unenforceable by reason of Code Civ. Proc. § 726 or any requirement that a creditor resort first to its security, then, notwithstanding that statute or requirement, the obligation will nevertheless remain enforceable to the full extent necessary to permit a secured party to proceed against personal property or fixtures securing the obligation in accordance with the secured party's rights and remedies as permitted under the Commercial Code [Com. Code § 9604(a)(2)(B)].

The requirements of Com. Code § 9604(a)(2) do not limit the application or deprive the debtor of the protection of certain antideficiency laws [see Com. Code § 9604(a)(3); see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 580a, 580b, 580d; Com. Code § 9604(a)(8)]. Furthermore, the requirements of Com. Code § 9604(a)(2) do not excuse compliance with the reinstatement provisions of Civ. Code § 2924c [see Com. Code § 9604(a)(3)(C); § 25D.16] or affect any law respecting real property or obligations secured by real property with respect to a loan or a credit sale made to any individual primarily for personal, family, or household purposes [Com. Code § 9604(a)(3)(E)].

If the secured party commences an action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 22 ("action" defined)] that seeks a monetary judgment on the debt [see Com. Code § 9604(a)(6) ("monetary judgment on the debt" defined)], Com. Code § 9604(a)(2) does not prevent the debtor's assertion of any right to require the inclusion in the action of any interest or estate in real property securing the debt. If a monetary judgment on the debt is entered in the action, Com. Code § 9604(a)(2) does not prevent the debtor's assertion of the subsequent unenforceability of the encumbrance on any interest or estate in real property securing the debt and not included in the action [Com. Code § 9604(a)(3)(B)].

If the secured party violates any statute or rule of law that requires a creditor who holds an obligation secured by an interest or estate in real property to resort first to its security before resorting to any property of the debtor that does not secure the obligation, Com. Code § 9604(a)(2) does not prevent (1) the debtor's assertion of any right to require correction of the violation, (2) any right of the secured party to correct the violation, (3) the debtor's assertion of the subsequent unenforceability of the encumbrance on any interest or estate in real property securing the obligation, or (4) the debtor's assertion of the subsequent unenforceability of the obligation except to the extent that the obligation is preserved by Com. Code § 9604(a)(2)(B) [Com. Code § 9604(a)(3)(G)]. Under Com. Code § 9604(a)(2)(B), if an obligation secured by personal property or fixtures would otherwise become unenforceable by reason of Code Civ. Proc. § 726 or any requirement that a creditor resort first to its security, then, notwithstanding that section or any similar requirement, the obligation will nevertheless remain enforceable to the full extent necessary to permit a creditor to proceed against personal property or fixtures securing the obligation in accordance with the creditor's rights and remedies as permitted under the Commercial Code [*Com. § 25D.16 Right of Reinstatement "Reinstatement" refers to the right of a debtor or a junior beneficiary or lienholder to cure a default by paying the amounts in default under the trust deed or mortgage, all amounts in default on recurring obligations, permitted costs and expenses, and trustee's or attorneys' fees. Once the default is cured, the secured obligation and the security instrument are reinstated in full force and effect, as if no acceleration had occurred, and any pending foreclosure proceedings must be dismissed or discontinued. However, when the beneficiary or mortgagee has made no advances on defaults that would constitute recurring obligations, the beneficiary or mortgagee may require the trustor or mortgagor to provide reliable written evidence that the required amounts have been paid prior to reinstatement [Civ. Code § 2924c(a)(1); see §§ 25D.204[2], 25D.205[2]].

In a nonjudicial foreclosure, the debtor may exercise the right to reinstate at any time from the date of recordation of the notice of default until five business days before the date of sale set forth in the initial recorded notice of sale [Civ. Code § 2924c(e); *but see Bank of America N.A. v. La Jolla Group II (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 706, 712, 28 Cal. § 25D.17 Right of Redemption

[1] Definition

The right of redemption generally refers to the statutory right of a debtor to redeem the property sold at a judicial foreclosure sale after the sale. This right is usually considered a significant disadvantage to creditors electing judicial foreclosure. In contrast, debtors are granted no right of redemption following a sale in a nonjudicial foreclosure proceeding.

[2] Following Judicial Foreclosure Sale

If the decree of foreclosure of a mortgage or trust deed on real property determines that a deficiency judgment may be ordered against the defendant, the real property mustbe sold subject to a right of redemption, unless the property is a leasehold estate with an unexpired term of less than two years at the time of levy [Code Civ. Proc. § 729.010(a)]. Property sold subject to the right of redemption may be redeemed by only the judgment debtor or the judgment debtor's successor in interest; the purchaser of the property at the foreclosure sale is not a successor in interest [Code Civ. Proc. § 729.020]. The redemption period ends three months after the date of sale if the sale proceeds are sufficient to satisfy the secured indebtedness with interest and costs of action and of sale, or one year after the date of sale if the proceeds do not satisfy the secured indebtedness with interest and costs of action and of sale [Code Civ. Proc. § 729.030]. For further discussion of the right of redemption and the amount necessary to redeem property after a judicial sale, see California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 124, Judicial Foreclosure (Matthew Bender).

[3] Before Nonjudicial Foreclosure Sale

Although a debtor does not have a right to redeem property after it is sold at a nonjudicial foreclosure sale, he or she does have a right of redemption beginning on expiration of the reinstatement period provided by Civ. Code § 2924c [see § 25D.16] and ending just before the actual sale of the property [see Civ. Code § 2903]. The debtor may exercise this right by paying or offering to pay the entire amount due, plus creditor's expenses [see Civ. Code § 2905].

§ 25D.18 Possession During Default

During the existence of a trust deed, the trustor, in the absence of a contrary agreement, retains all ownership rights in the encumbered property, including the right to possession and any rents and profits of the property [Civ. Code § 2927; Code Civ. Proc. § 744; Kinnison v. Guaranty Liquidating Corp. (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 256, 260, 115 P.2d 450]. However, most trust deeds and mortgages provide that in the event of a default by the debtor, the creditor may take possession and collect the rents and profits to reduce the debt. Creditors generally enforce this right by having a receiver appointed either before foreclosure [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9)] or pursuant to a foreclosure action [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(2)]. For detailed coverage of the appointment of receivers, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages (Matthew Bender).

§ 25D.19 Effect of Trustor's Bankruptcy

When bankruptcy proceedings are in effect against the debtor/owner of real property, there is an automatic stay against the beneficiary and trustee that prohibits the commencement or continuation of all foreclosure proceedings [see 11 U.S.C. § 362(a)(4)]. In an action filed in the bankruptcy court to remove an automatic stay, the beneficiary generally has the burden of proving (1) "cause" for the removal (including the lack of adequate protection of the beneficiary's interest in the property); (2) that the trustor does not have an equity in the property and the property is not necessary to an effective reorganization; or (3) that the filing of the petition was part of a scheme to delay, hinder, and defraud creditors that involved either transfer of all or part ownership of, or other interest in, the real property without the secured creditor's consent or court approval, or multiple bankruptcy filings affecting the property [see 11 U.S.C. § 362(d); see also 11 U.S.C. § 326(g)]. A court may grant relief from an automatic stay when a debtor files Chapter 11 proceedings for the sole purpose of obtaining the automatic stay preventing foreclosure, at least if there is no equity in the real property over and above obligations owed the beneficiary [see In re Zed, Inc. (U.S. Bank. Ct. [N.D. Cal.] 1982) 20 B.R. 462, 464]. For detailed coverage of the effect of bankruptcy on a foreclosure proceeding, including the procedure and forms required to obtain relief from an automatic stay, see Collier Bankruptcy Practice Guide, Ch. 38, Automatic Stay/Relief From Stay (Matthew Bender).

§ 25D.20 Deficiency Judgments

[1] Definition

A deficiency judgment is a judgment rendered against a borrower in an amount equal to the balance owed on the loan after a foreclosure sale has been conducted and the sale proceeds have been applied to the outstanding loan balance. California's antideficiency laws [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 580a, 580b, 580d, 726(b)] severely limit the availability of deficiency judgments.

[2] Nonjudicial Foreclosure

If a mortgagee or trustee sells real property under a power of sale contained in the mortgage or deed of trust, a deficiency judgment may not be obtained on a note secured by the mortgage or trust deed [Code Civ. Proc. § 580d]. The Legislature's use of the limited term "note" in Code Civ. Proc. § 580d indicates a clear intention that the section not apply to obligations other than promissory notes [Willys of Marin Co. v. Pierce (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 826, 831, 296 P.2d 25 (deed of trust given as security for performance of lease)]. The prohibition against deficiency judgments for nonjudicial foreclosures also does not extend to a trust deed, mortgage, or other lien given to secure the payment of bonds or other evidences of indebtedness authorized or permitted to be issued by the Commissioner of Corporations, or made by a public utility subject to the provisions of the Public Utilities Act [see Code Civ. Proc. § 580d; see also Pub. Util. Code § 201 et seq. (Public Utilities Act)].

For further discussion, see California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 122, Antideficiency Legislation , Part E (Matthew Bender), and California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages (Matthew Bender).

[3] Judicial Foreclosure

A deficiency judgment may be obtained after most judicial foreclosures unless the relevant deed of trust or mortgage is a "purchase money" security, that is, security given to (1) the seller to secure payment of the balance of the purchase price of real property, or (2) a third party lender to secure repayment of a loan used to pay all or part of the purchase price of a dwelling containing up to four units and occupied in whole or in part by the buyer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 580b].

If a deficiency judgment is allowed in a particular judicial foreclosure action, the recovery is subject to the procedural requirements and monetary limitations set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 726(b) [see § 25D.21].

For further discussion, see California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 122, Antideficiency Legislation , Part D (Matthew Bender), and California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages (Matthew Bender).

[4] Installment Land Sale Contracts

A deficiency judgment may not be obtained following the failure of a purchaser of real property to complete a contract of sale [Code Civ. Proc. § 580b]. For purposes of this rule, a contract of sale is an installment land sales contract under which the seller retains title until the buyer pays all or a large portion of the purchase price. This prohibition exists because these contracts serve essentially the same function as a mortgage or deed of trust [Venable v. Harmon (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 297, 300, 43 Cal. Rptr. 490]. For further discussion, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 569, Vendor and Purchaser of Real Property (Matthew Bender).

§ 25D.21 Limits on Amount of Deficiency Judgment

The amount of the deficiency judgment available against a defendant found personally liable in a judicial foreclosure will be the amount by which the indebtedness (including interest, costs of levy and sale, and costs of the action) exceeds the fair value of the property or interest sold as of the date of sale. However, the judgment (excluding interest from the date of sale and costs) must not exceed the difference between the price paid for the property and the entire outstanding secured indebtedness [Code Civ. Proc. § 726(b)].

For these purposes, "fair value" means the intrinsic value of the property, taking into consideration all of the circumstances affecting the underlying worth of the property at the time of the sale (including the market value of the property), but without consideration of the impact of foreclosure proceedings on this fair value [Rainer Mortgage v. Silverwood, Ltd. (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 359, 367, 209 Cal. Rptr. 294].

Both the plaintiff and defendant may present evidence of the fair value of the property or property interest sold as of the date of sale. The court is required on motion of any party, and may on its own motion, appoint a probate referee to appraise the property or property interest sold as of the time of sale. This appraisal is admissible in evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 726(b)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 580a, pertaining to nonjudicial foreclosures, contains language similar to Code Civ. Proc. § 726 regarding the effect of value on the amount of a deficiency judgment, referring to "fair market value" rather than to "fair value." However, because subsequently enacted Code Civ. Proc. § 580d precludes (subject to very limited exceptions) any deficiency judgment on a note secured by a deed of trust or obligation after a nonjudicial foreclosure, Code Civ. Proc. § 580a may only be applicable to actions for a deficiency on non-note obligations, such as a lease, and to the situations specifically excepted from the purview of Code Civ. Proc. § 580d [see § 25D.20[2]].

§ 25D.22 Exemption From Antideficiency Statutes for Letter of Credit Transactions

If an obligation is secured by a mortgage or trust deed on real property (or on an estate for years in real property) and is also supported by a letter of credit, the following acts will not constitute a deficiency judgment within the meaning of the antideficiency statutes [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 580a, 580b, 580d, 726(b)] or a violation of those statutes [Code Civ. Proc. § 580.5(b); see Western Security Bank v. Superior Court (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 232, 252, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 243, 933 P.2d 507 (Code Civ. Proc. § 580.5 merely clarifies existing law and therefore applies to letters of credit issued before its effective date of September 16, 1994); see also Stats. 1994, ch. 611, § 5 (legislative intent)]:

- The presentment, receipt of payment, or enforcement of a draft or demand for payment under the letter of credit by the beneficiary of the letter of credit.

- The honor or payment of, or the demand for reimbursement, receipt of reimbursement, or enforcement of any contractual, statutory, or other reimbursement obligation relating to, the letter of credit by the issuer of the letter of credit.

This exemption from the antideficiency statutes applies whether the above acts occur before or after (1) the judicial or nonjudicial foreclosure of the mortgage or trust deed or (2) a conveyance in lieu of foreclosure [Code Civ. Proc. § 580.5(b)]. However, notwithstanding this exemption, a letter of credit will not be enforceable in a loan transaction when the loan is secured by a purchase money trust deed or mortgage on owner-occupied, one-to-four unit residential property and certain other circumstances exist [see Code Civ. Proc. § 580.7(b); see also § 25D.13[4]].

Code Civ. Proc. § 580.5 also exempts the above letter of credit transactions from the "one form of action" rule [see Code Civ. Proc. § 726(a); see also § 25D.13[4]].

For coverage of letters of credit, see Ch. 56, Letters of Credit and Electronic Fund Transfers . For further discussion of this exemption, see California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 122, Antideficiency Legislation (Matthew Bender).

§ 25D.23 Amounts Mistakenly Omitted From Payoff Demand

Code Civ. Proc. § 580b does not operate as an absolute bar to the recovery of amounts mistakenly omitted from a payoff demand on a note secured by a deed of trust on real property [Ghirardo v. Antonioli (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 39, 52, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 687, 924 P.2d 996]. After payoff and reconveyance, any omitted amount is no longer a secured obligation, and Code Civ. Proc. § 580b does not apply. In this situation, recovery may be based on unjust enrichment [Ghirardo v. Antonioli (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 39, 50, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 687, 924 P.2d 996]. The relevant inquiry is whether the creditor's mistake was one of fact and whether the person benefitting knew or should have known about the mistake [Ghirardo v. Antonioli (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 39, 52, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 687, 924 P.2d 996]. Allowing recovery for unjust enrichment does not contradict the policy of requiring the creditor to rely on the property to secure the debt, because any unjust-enrichment recovery may not exceed the value of the property [Ghirardo v. Antonioli (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 39, 53, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 687, 924 P.2d 996 ; First Nationwide Savings v. Perry (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 1657, 1664-1665, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 173].

The principles of unjust enrichment, mistake, and estoppel have been incorporated into Civ. Code § 2943, which governs payoff demands [see Ghirardo v. Antonioli (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 39, 51, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 687, 924 P.2d 996 ; Freedom Financial Thrift & Loan v. Golden Pacific Bank (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 1305, 1315, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 235]. Civ. Code § 2943 provides that any amounts that were due and for any reason not included in the statement or amended statement must continue to be recoverable by the beneficiary as an unsecured obligation of the obligor pursuant to the terms of the note andexisting provisions of law [Civ. Code § 2943(d)(3)]. As with the common law cause of action, Code Civ. Proc. § 580b does not bar recovery under Civ. Code § 2943 for mistakes of fact in payoff demands with respect to purchase money obligations [Ghirardo v. Antonioli (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 39, 53 n.5, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 687, 924 P.2d 996].

§ 25D.24 Environmentally Impaired Security

[1] Additional and Alternative Remedies

Several unique remedies and related rights are available to a secured lender when the real property security has become environmentally impaired. As a general rule, these remedies are not subject to the "one form of action" rule [see Code Civ. Proc. § 726(a); § 25D.13[1]]. Because many of the remedies include judicial proceedings, a detailed discussion of them is beyond the scope of this publication. However, the following subsections present an overview of the various remedies.

[2] Inspection of Secured Property

A secured lender may, subject to statutory limitations, enter and inspect the real property security for the purpose of determining the existence, location, nature, and magnitude of any past or present release or threatened release of any hazardous substance [see Civ. Code § 2929.5(e)(2), (4) (definitions of "hazardous substance" and "release")] into, onto, beneath, or from the real property security. The lender may exercise this right under either of the following circumstances [Civ. Code § 2929.5(a)]:

- On reasonable belief of the existence of a past or present release or threatened release of any hazardous substance into, onto, beneath, or from the real property security not previously disclosed in writing to the secured lender in conjunction with the making, renewal, or modification of a loan, extension of credit, guaranty, or other obligation involving the borrower; or

- After the commencement of nonjudicial or judicial foreclosure proceedings against the real property security.

The lender must comply with notice and reimbursement requirements when exercising the right to enter and inspect [see Civ. Code § 2929.5(b), (c)]. If the lender is refused the right of entry and inspection, it may, on petition, obtain a court order to exercise these rights. That action will not constitute an action within the meaning of the "one form of action" rule [Civ. Code § 2929.5(d); see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(c), (d) (appointment of receiver in such an action)].

For further discussion, see Ch. 25A, Security Instruments for Real Estate Financing .

[3] Alternative Remedies on Borrower's Default

Notwithstanding the "one form of action" rule or any other provision of law, a secured lender may elect to do either of the following when the real property security is environmentally impaired and the borrower is in default:

- Waive its lien against any parcel of real property security that is environmentally impaired or is an affected parcel [see Code Civ. Proc. § 726.5(e)(1) (affected parcel essentially means a parcel that is contiguous to, within 2000 feet of, or a part of a subdivision that contains an environmentally impaired parcel)], and against all or any portion of the fixtures and personal property attached to the parcels, and exercise the rights and remedies of an unsecured creditor (including reduction of its claim against the borrower to judgment) and any other rights and remedies permitted by law [Code Civ. Proc. § 726.5(a)(1)]; or

- Exercise the rights and remedies of a creditor secured by a trust deed or mortgage and, if applicable, a lien against fixtures or personal property attached to the real property security, and any other rights and remedies permitted by law [Code Civ. Proc. § 726.5(a)(2)].

"Environmentally impaired" means that the estimated costs to clean up and remediate a past or present release or threatened release of any hazardous substance [see Code Civ. Proc. § 726.5(e)(3) (definition)] into, onto, beneath, or from the real property security, not disclosed in writing to, or otherwise actually known by, the secured lender prior to the making of the loan or extension of credit secured by the real property security, exceeds 25 percent of the higher of the aggregate fair market value of all security for the loan or extension of credit (1) at the time of the making of the loan or extension of credit, or (2) at the time of the lender's discovery of the release or threatened release. For purposes of this definition, the estimated costs to clean up and remediate the contamination caused by the release or threatened release must include only those costs that would be incurred reasonably and in good faith. Further, the fair market value of the security must be determined without giving consideration to the release or threatened release, and must be exclusive of the amount of all liens and encumbrances against the security that are senior in priority to the lender's lien. Notwithstanding the above, credit secured by a single parcel of real property that is included in the National Priorities List pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 9605 or in any list published by the Department of Toxic Substances Control pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 25356 will be deemed to be environmentally impaired [Code Civ. Proc. § 726.5(e)(3)].

Before the lender may waive its lien against any parcel of real property security on the basis of environmental impairment, the lender must provide written notice of the default to the borrower. Further, the value of the subject real property security must be established and its environmentally impaired status must be confirmed by an order of a court of competent jurisdiction in an action brought by the lender against the borrower. The complaint for a valuation and confirmation action may include causes of action for a money judgment for all or part of the secured obligation, in which case the above waiver of the lender's liens will result only if and when the lender obtains a final money judgment against the borrower [Code Civ. Proc. § 726.5(b)].

If a secured lender elects the rights and remedies of an unsecured creditor [Code Civ. Proc. § 726.5(a)(1)], and the borrower's obligations are also secured by other real property security, fixtures, or personal property, the lender must first foreclose against the additional collateral to the extent required by applicable law. In that case, the amount of the judgment obtained by the lender will be limited to the extent Code Civ. Proc. §§ 580a, 580d, and 726(b) apply to the foreclosures of additional real property security. The borrower may waive or modify these foreclosure requirements provided that the waiver or modification is in writing and signed by the borrower after default [Code Civ. Proc. § 726.5(c)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 726.5 will not be applicable if both of the following are true [Code Civ. Proc. § 726.5(d)]:

- The release or threatened release [see Code Civ. Proc. § 726.5(e)(7) ("release" defined)] was not knowingly or negligently caused or contributed to, or knowingly or willfully permitted or acquiesced to, by any of the following: the borrower or any related party; or any affiliate or agent of the borrower or any related party.

- In conjunction with the making, renewal, or modification of the loan, extension of credit, guaranty, or other secured obligation, neither the borrower, any related party, nor any affiliate or agent of either of the foregoing had actual knowledge or notice of the release or threatened release, or if such a person had knowledge or notice of the release or threatened release, the borrower made written disclosure of the release to the lender after the lender's written request for information concerning the environmental condition of the real property security, or the lender otherwise obtained actual knowledge of the release, prior to the making, renewal, or modification of the obligation.

Code Civ. Proc. § 726.5 must not be construed to invalidate or otherwise affect in any manner any rights or obligations arising under contract in connection with a loan or extension of credit, including provisions limiting recourse [Code Civ. Proc. § 726.5(f)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 726.5 applies only to loans, extensions of credit, guaranties, or other obligations secured by real property security made, renewed, or modified after 1991 [Code Civ. Proc. § 726.5(g)].

[4] Action for Breach of Contract

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, a secured lender may bring a breach of contract action against a borrower for breach of any environmental provision made by the borrower relating to the real property security. The action may also seek the recovery of damages and the enforcement of the environmental provision [Code Civ. Proc. § 736(a)]. For these purposes, "environmental provision" means any written representation, warranty, indemnity, promise, or covenant (hereafter collectively referred to as a "representation") by a borrower relating to (1) the existence, location, nature, use, generation, manufacture, storage, disposal, handling, or past, present, or future release or threatened release [see Code Civ. Proc. § 736(f)(5) ("release" defined)], of any hazardous substance [see Code Civ. Proc. § 736(f)(3) ("hazardous substance" defined)] into, onto, beneath, or from the real property security, or (2) past, present, or future compliance with any law relating to the foregoing. The representation must have been made by the borrower in conjunction with the making, renewal, or modification of a loan, extension of credit, guaranty, or other obligation involving the borrower. Code Civ. Proc. § 736 applies to such a representation whether or not it is or was contained in or secured by the trust deed or mortgage, and whether or not the trust deed or mortgage has been discharged, reconveyed, or foreclosed upon [Code Civ. Proc. § 736(f)(2)].

This type of action will not constitute an action within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 726(a), or constitute a money judgment for a deficiency or a deficiency judgment within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 580a, 580b, 580d, and 726(b). No injunction for the enforcement of an environmental provision may be issued after (1) the obligation secured by the real property security has been fully satisfied, or (2) all of the borrower's rights, title, and interest in and to the real property security have been transferred in a bona fide transaction to an unaffiliated third party for fair value [Code Civ. Proc. § 736(a)].

The damages a lender may recover in such an action are limited to reimbursement for cleanup, remediation, or other response action costs [see Code Civ. Proc. § 736(b)(1), (2)], attorneys' fees and costs [Code Civ. Proc. § 736(b)(4)], and indemnification against liabilities of the lender to third parties relating to the breach [see Code Civ. Proc. § 736(b)(3)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 736 is not intended to establish, abrogate, modify, limit, or otherwise affect any other cause of action that a secured lender may have against a borrower under an environmental provision [Code Civ. Proc. § 736(d)]. Code

Civ. Proc. § 736 applies only to environmental provisions contracted in conjunction with loans, extensions of credit, guaranties, or other obligations made, renewed, or modified after 1991 [Code Civ. Proc. § 736(e)]. Notwithstanding the foregoing, Code Civ. Proc. § 736 may not be construed to validate, invalidate, or otherwise affect in any manner the rights and obligations of the parties to, or the enforcement of, environmental provisions contracted before 1992 [Code Civ. Proc. § 736(e)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Environmentally Impaired Property. The reason that lenders favor the alternative remedies referred to in this section is the fear that if the lender acquires environmentally impaired property through foreclosure, the lender will become exposed under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act (CERCLA) [42 U.S.C. § 9601 et seq.] to remediate the environmental hazards. These additional remedies help the lender obtain relief without exposing it to liability to federal, state, and local regulators. Commentary by Timothy F. O'Leary

§ 25D.25 Additional Remedies for Rent Skimming

It is unlawful to engage in rent skimming in California [see Civ. Code §§ 890-894]. "Rent skimming" means using revenue received from the rental of a parcel of residential real property at any time during the first year after the acquisition of that property without first applying the revenue or an equivalent amount to the payments due on all mortgages and deeds of trust encumbering that property [Civ. Code § 890(a)]. Civil remedies are available to certain persons affected by rent skimming, including [Civ. Code § 891(a)-(d)]:

- The seller of an interest in the residential real property who either receives an evidence of indebtedness secured by a lien on the property or reacquires the property interest from the rent skimmer;

- A mortgagee or beneficiary under a deed of trust encumbering residential real property affected by rent skimming; and

- The tenant of residential real property affected by rent skimming.

Criminal charges may also be brought for multiple acts of rent skimming [see Civ. Code § 892].

PRACTICE TIP:
Rent Skimming. Actions for rent skimming are not barred by the "one-form of action rule" [Civ. Code § 891(g)]. Commentary by Timothy F. O'Leary

§ 25D.26 Deed in Lieu of Foreclosure

A "deed in lieu of foreclosure" is a deed executed by a trustor to a beneficiary in order to avoid having the beneficiary foreclose on a deed of trust. Although such a deed may appear to a creditor to be less costly and more expedient than foreclosure, the creditor, among other risks, may face claims from junior lienholders that the deed was not effective to extinguish their claims and claims that the deed is invalid because a debtor-creditor relationship still exists. In addition, a title company insuring title of the creditor/owner under the deed will require either special recitals in the deed or an estoppel affidavit from the debtor before it will insure the deed. For a discussion of considerations applicable to accepting a deed in lieu of foreclosure, see California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 120, Representing a Client After Default (Matthew Bender).

§ 25D.27 Notice of Nonacceptance of Deed

A holder of a security interest may execute and record a notice of nonacceptance of a recorded deed. The notice must identify the security interest and the parties to the deed, and must set forth a legal description of the property, the date of recordation of the deed, the county in which the project is located, and the county assessor's parcel number of the real property referenced in the deed. The notice must be recorded with the recorder of the county in which the real property is located [Civ. Code § 1058.5(a)]. A creditor may wish to record a notice of nonacceptance if, for example, the debtor recorded a deed in lieu of foreclosure without the creditor's consent to escape liability for a deficiency judgment resulting from a judicial foreclosure. Although such a deed would not be valid and effective because of the grantee's failure to accept it [see Marshall v. Marshall (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 475, 479, 295 P.2d 131 ; see also Ch. 27, Deeds and Recording], its recordation could present title problems. The subsequent recordation of a notice of nonacceptance should help resolve those problems.

§ 25D.29 Foreclosure Consultants

"Foreclosure consultants" are persons who, for compensation, offer to perform services relating to a foreclosure proceeding for an owner of residential real property in foreclosure [see Civ. Code § 2945.1]. Several persons and entities are excluded from this definition, including various categories of persons licensed by the state or acting under authority of a branch of the federal government, certain financial institutions, and escrow companies [Civ. Code § 2945.1(b)].

In response to harsh practices in the past by foreclosure consultants, who often secured payment of high fees with a deed of trust on the defaulting homeowner's residence and in return performed no service (or a service that was essentially worthless), the Legislature has required a foreclosure consultant to be registered with the California Department of Justice and to be bonded by a corporate surety [Civ. Code § 2945.45(a)(1), (2)]. In addition, the Legislature has strictly regulated the conduct of foreclosure consultants [see Civ. Code § 2945 et seq.]. This regulation extends to matters such as contract requirements [see Civ. Code § 2945.3; see also §§ 25D.220[2], 25D.221[2]], allowable compensation [see Civ. Code § 2945.4], cancellation rights of an owner [see Civ. Code § 2945.2], liability of a foreclosure consultant [see Civ. Code §§ 2945.9, 2945.10], and disclosures by a representative of a foreclosure consultant [see Civ. Code § 2945.11; see also § 25D.222[2]]. Civil actions and criminal penalties are authorized for violations [see Civ. Code §§ 2945.6, 2945.7]. The statutes regulating foreclosure consultants only apply after foreclosure proceedings have commenced; if no notice of default is recorded, the restrictions are not applicable [Tomlin v. Cole (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 556, 559, 199 Cal. Rptr. 632].

§ 25D.30 Protections for Active Duty Service Members Under State and Federal Law

[1] Purpose and Application of Protections

In 2002, the California Legislature enacted special protections for officers and enlisted members of the National Guard called or ordered into active state or federal service and reservists of the United States Military Reserve who have been called to full-time active service or duty [see 2002 Stats., ch. 60, § 1; Mil. & Vet. Code § 400 et seq.]. This legislation establishes special protection from foreclosure and other civil liabilities for active service members and reservists who are found by a court to need assistance because of the demands of their military service [Mil. & Vet. Code § 408]. The legislation includes many provisions that are similar to those included in the federal Servicemembers Civil Relief Act (SCRA) [50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq.; see 50 U.S.C. App. §§ 502, 511], which is discussed in [4], below. However, the SCRA has many more provisions than the California law covering a greater variety of topics.

The California provisions apply to service members on active service or duty since September 11, 2001. However, the protections apply prospectively from June 20, 2002 (date bill was signed into law) [Mil. & Vet. Code § 420]. Dependents of service members are also entitled to these benefits unless the court finds that the dependents' ability to comply with the terms of the obligation has not been materially impaired by the military service of the person on whom the applicants are dependent [Mil. & Vet. Code § 414].

[2] Actions to Foreclose on Mortgage or Deed of Trust

The protections apply to obligations secured by mortgage, trust deed, or other security in the nature of a mortgage on real or personal property owned by a service member at the commencement of the period of the military service and still owned by the service member [Mil. & Vet. Code § 408(a)]. In any proceeding commenced in any court during the period of military service to enforce that obligation, arising out of nonpayment of any sum due or out of any other breach of the terms of the mortgage, trust deed, or other security occurring before or during the period of service, the court may, after hearing and in its discretion on its own motion, and must, on application by the service member or some person on the defendant's behalf (1) stay the proceedings for any period as the court deems just, and (2) make any other disposition of the case as may be equitable to conserve the interests of all parties [Mil. & Vet. Code § 408(b)]. The court may deny the stay if it finds that the ability of the defendant to comply with the terms of the obligation is not materially affected by the military service [Mil. & Vet. Code § 408(b)].

No sale, foreclosure, or seizure of property for nonpayment of any sum due under any obligation described above will be valid if made during the period of military service or within three months thereafter, except pursuant to an agreement between the parties or on an order previously granted by the court and a return thereto made and approved by the court [Mil. & Vet. Code § 408(c)]. Any person who knowingly makes or causes to be made a sale, foreclosure, or seizure of property in violation of these provisions is guilty of a misdemeanor [Mil. & Vet. Code § 408(d)].

[3] Actions to Rescind or Terminate Contract for Purchase

A seller or other person who holds the contract may not exercise any right or option to rescind or terminate a contract for the purchase of real or personal property, if the person or the person's assignor has received a deposit or purchase price installment from a person who has entered military service after the date of payment of the deposit or installment. Additionally, the person who holds the contract may not exercise any right or option under that contract to resume possession of the property for nonpayment of any installment due. This prohibition is applicable to any breach of the contract's terms occurring before or during the period of that military service. The only exercise may be an action in a court of competent jurisdiction [Mil. & Vet. Code § 407(a)]. Violation of these provisions subjects the violator to a fine and potential imprisonment [Mil. & Vet. Code § 407(c)].

A court, on the hearing of the action, may order the repayment of prior installments or deposits or any part of these, as a condition of terminating the contract and resuming possession of the property. The court must take this action on application to it by the service member or some person on the service member's behalf. Otherwise, the court may take this action on its own motion and discretion [Mil. & Vet. Code § 407(b)]. Alternatively, the court may order a stay of proceedings as the court deems just, unless in the court's opinion, the defendant's ability to comply with the terms of the contract is not materially affected by reason of the service; or it may make any other disposition of the case as may be equitable to conserve the interests of all parties [Mil. & Vet. Code § 407(b)].

[4] Federal Provisions

The federal Servicemembers Civil Relief Act (SCRA) [50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq.; see 50 U.S.C. App. §§ 502, 511 (applicable to current military personnel)] provides for the temporary suspension of judicial and administrative proceedings and transactions that may adversely affect the civil rights and liabilities of servicemembers during their military service, so that they can devote their entire energy to national defense [50 U.S.C. App. § 502]. Among the Act's protections are many similar to those afforded by the 2002 California legislation discussed in [1]-[3], above.

With regard to mortgages and similar instruments, both the SCRA and California's Military and Veterans Code give a court authority to allow an eligible service member to postpone making payments on mortgages that were entered before the member began active duty, on property that was owned before that time, and that is still owned by the member, if the member's ability to pay the mortgage is affected by his or her service [see 50 U.S.C. App. §§ 532, 533, 591; Mil. & Vet. Code §§ 407, 408]. Similarly, under both the federal and state Acts:

- Active service members are allowed to apply to a court for a stay of proceedings to collect real property taxes or assessments [see 50 U.S.C. App. §§ 561, 591; Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.2]; and

- A court can cap interest rates at 6 percent on all obligations of active service members (including mortgages) incurred before active duty [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 527; Mil. & Vet. Code § 405].

The SCRA allows for the stay of many civil legal proceedings if the service member demonstrates that his or her military service has materially affected the member's ability to appear for the court proceedings, including proceedings concerning mortgage foreclosures [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 522]. Of course, the length of the stay is at the court's discretion based on the service member's showing. The SCRA also offers protections against eviction from residential property rented by a service member, as well as lawful termination of leases for members entering active duty [see 50 U.S.C. App. §§ 531, 535].

Relevant forms for relief under the provisions of the federal and state Acts are provided in California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages . These forms include a petition for relief from a mortgage or installment contract for the purchase of real property, an application for a stay of proceedings to collect real property taxes or assessments, and a stay of action on an obligation secured by a mortgage, trust deed, or similar instrument.

CHAPTER 25D FORECLOSURE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

10-25D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 25D.31

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 25D.31 Foreclosure Protection

[1] Foreclosure Assistance

In July 2008, the Governor of California signed into law SB 1137, intended to ameliorate the deleterious effects on the state economy and local economies and the California housing market resulting from the foreclosures of residential properties in unprecedented numbers resulting from subprime lending practices [2008 Stats., Ch. 69, sec. 1(d)]. In SB 1137, the Legislature found and declared that residential property foreclosures increased sevenfold from 2006 to 2007; that more than 84,375 properties were lost to foreclosure in California in 2007; and that 254,824 loans went into default, the first step in the foreclosure process [2008 Stats., Ch. 69, sec. 1(a)]. SB 1137 modified the foreclosure process to require mortgagees, beneficiaries, or authorized agents to provide notice to certain borrowers and explore options that could avoid foreclosure.

[2] Contacting Borrowers

Effective September 6, 2008 [2008 Stats., Ch. 69, sec. 10], a mortgagee, trustee, beneficiary, or authorized agent may not file a notice of default pursuant to Civ. Code § 2924 [see § 25D.202 (form)] until 30 days after the mortgagee, beneficiary, or authorized agent initially contacted the borrower in person or by telephone in order to assess the borrower's financial situation and explore options for the borrower to avoid foreclosure [Civ. Code § 2923.5(a)(1), (2)]. The borrower must be provided the toll-free telephone number made available by the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to find a HUD-certified housing counseling agency. However, a notice of default may be filed when a mortgagee, beneficiary, or authorized agent failed to contact the borrower as required despite the due diligence of the mortgagee, beneficiary, or authorized agent [Civ. Code § 2923.5(g); see Civ. Code § 2329.5(g)(1)-(5) (actions required for due diligence)].

A notice of default must include a declaration that the mortgagee, beneficiary, or authorized agent has contacted the borrower, or has tried with due diligence to contact the borrower as required by Civ. Code § 2923.5(g), or that no contact was required pursuant to Civ. Code § 2923.5(h) [Civ. Code § 2923.5(b)].

These requirements apply to a loan that is secured by a mortgage or deed of trust recorded from January 1, 2003, to December 31, 2007, inclusive, on real property that is the principal residence of the borrower (as indicated to the lender in loan documents) containing no more than four dwelling units [Civ. Code § 2923.5(i)]. However, these requirements do not apply in any of the following cases [Civ. Code § 2923.5(h)]:

- The borrower has surrendered the property as evidenced by either a letter confirming the surrender or delivery of the keys to the property to the mortgagee, trustee, beneficiary, or authorized agent.

- The borrower has contracted with an organization, person, or entity, whose primary business is advising people who have decided to leave their homes and who need advice on how to extend the foreclosure process and avoid their contractual obligations to mortgagees or beneficiaries.

- The borrower has filed a case under Chapter 7, 11, 12, or 13 of the Bankruptcy Code, and the bankruptcy court has not entered an order closing or dismissing the case or granting relief from a stay of foreclosure.

Civ. Code § 2923.5 is in effect until January 1, 2013, and as of that date is repealed, unless a later enacted statute, that is enacted before January 1, 2013, deletes or extends that date [Civ. Code § 2923.5(j)].

[3] Loan Modifications

Under specified circumstances, mortgage lenders and servicers are authorized under their pooling and servicing agreements to modify mortgage loans when the modification is in the best interest of investors. Generally, that modification may be deemed to be in the best interest of investors when the net present value of the income stream of the modified loan is greater than the amount that would be recovered through the disposition of the real property security through a foreclosure sale [Stats. 2008, Ch. 69, sec. 1(c); see California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 93, Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act (Matthew Bender)]. In SB 1137, the Legislature found and declared that any duty that servicers may have to maximize net present value under their pooling and servicing agreements is owed to all parties in a loan pool, or to all investors under a pooling and servicing agreement, not to any particular party in the loan pool or investor under a pooling and servicing agreement, and that a servicer acts in the best interests of all parties to the loan pool or investors in the pooling and servicing agreement if it agrees to or implements a loan modification or workout plan as to which both of the following apply: (1) The loan is in payment default, or payment default is reasonably foreseeable; and (2) anticipated recovery under the loan modification or workout plan exceeds the anticipated recovery through foreclosure on a net present value basis [Civ. Code § 2923.6(a)]/ The Legislature declared its intent that the mortgagee, beneficiary, or authorized agent offer the borrower a loan modification or workout plan if such a modification or plan is consistent with its contractual or other authority [Civ. Code § 2923.6(b)]. Section 2923.6 is in effect until January 1, 2013, and as of that date is repealed, unless a later enacted statute, that is enacted before January 1, 2013, deletes or extends that date [Civ. Code § 2923.6(c)].

[4] Notice of Foreclosure to Residents

Effective September 6, 2008 [2008 Stats., Ch. 69, sec. 10], on posting a notice of sale pursuant to Civ. Code § 2924f, a trustee or authorized agent must also post, in the manner required for posting the notice of sale on the property to be sold [see § 25D.206], a specified notice in English and the languages described in Civ. Code § 1632 [Civ. Code § 2924.8(a); see § 25D.211 (notice)]. Concurrently with the mailing of the notice of sale pursuant to Civ. Code § 2924b, the mortgagee, trustee, beneficiary, or authorized agent must send, by first-class mail, a copy of that posted notice in an envelope addressed to the "resident of property subject to foreclosure sale" [Civ. Code § 2924.8(a)]. It is an infraction to tear down the notice within 72 hours of posting. Violators are subject to a fine of $100 [Civ. Code § 2924.8(b)].

These notice requirements apply only to loans secured by residential real property, and if the billing address for the mortgage note is different than the property address [Civ. Code § 2924.8(d)]. Section 2923.8 is in effect until January 1, 2013, and as of that date is repealed, unless a later enacted statute, that is enacted before January 1, 2013, deletes or extends that date [Civ. Code § 2923.8(e)].

[5] Maintenance of Vacated Property

A legal owner is required to maintain vacant residential property [see Civ. Code § 2929.3(g)] purchased by that owner at a foreclosure sale, or acquired by that owner through foreclosure under a mortgage or deed of trust [Civ. Code § 2929.3(a)(1)]/ A governmental entity may impose a civil fine of up to $1,000 per day for a violation [see Civ. Code § 2929.3(a)(1) (entity must give notice of alleged violation and intent to assess fine)]. The governmental entity must provide a period of not less than 30 days for the legal owner to remedy the violation prior to imposing a civil fine and must allow for a hearing and opportunity to contest any fine imposed. In determining the amount of the fine, the governmental entity shall take into consideration any timely and good faith efforts by the legal owner to remedy the violation. The maximum civil fine is $1,000 for each day that the owner fails to maintain the property, commencing on the day following the expiration of the period to remedy the violation established by the governmental entity [Civ. Code § 2929.3(a)(2); see Civ. Code § 2929.3(b) ("failure to maintain" defined)]. A governmental entity may establish different compliance periods for different conditions on the same property in the notice of alleged violation mailed to the legal owner [Civ. Code § 2929.3(a)(3)].

A governmental entity may provide less than 30 days' notice to remedy a condition before imposing a civil fine if it determines that a specific condition of the property threatens public health or safety and provided that notice of that determination and time for compliance is given [Civ. Code § 2929.3(c)]. Fines may not be imposed under both section 2929.3 and a local ordinance, and these provisions do not preempt any local ordinances [Civ. Code § 2929.3(e), (f)]. The rights and remedies provided in section 2929.3 are cumulative and in addition to any other rights and remedies provided by law [Civ. Code § 2929.3(h)]. Section 2929.3 is in effect until January 1, 2013, and as of that date is repealed, unless a later enacted statute, that is enacted before January 1, 2013, deletes or extends that date [Civ. Code § 2929.3(i)].

[6] Notice to Quit

Notwithstanding the unlawful detainer provisions of Civ. Code § Code Civ. Proc. § 1161 [see Ch. 35B, Modification and Termination of Leases], a tenant or subtenant in possession of a rental housing unit at the time the property is sold in foreclosure must be given 60 days' written notice to quit in the manner set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1162 before the tenant or subtenant may be removed from the property through unlawful detainer proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161b(a)]. However, this notice requirement does not apply if any party to the note remains in the property as a tenant, subtenant, or occupant [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161b(b)]. Section1161b is in effect until January 1, 2013, and as of that date is repealed, unless a later enacted statute, that is enacted before January 1, 2013, deletes or extends that date [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161b(c)].

In 2009, Congress established a 90-day notice to vacate requirement in the Protecting Tenants at Foreclosure Act [P.L. 111-22, S. 896]. This requirement applies to any foreclosure on a federally-related mortgage loan or on any dwelling or residential real property after May 20, 2009 [P.L. 111-22, sec. 702, 123 Stats. 1660-1661; see also P.L. 111-22, sec. 703, 123 Stats. 1661, amending 42 U.S.C. § 1437f(o)(7) (following foreclosure, successor in interest may terminate section 8 tenancy on 90 days' notice if owner will occupy property as primary residence)]. In addition, the Act provides that any immediate successor in interest in the property pursuant to the foreclosure assumes that interest subject to the rights of any bona fide tenant as of the date of the notice of foreclosure, under any bona fide lease entered into before the notice of foreclosure, to occupy the premises until the end of the remaining term of the lease [P.L. 111-22, sec. 702(a)(2), 123 Stats. 1661]. However, a successor in interest may terminate a lease effective on the date of sale of the unit to a purchaser who will occupy the unit as a primary residence, subject to the receipt by the tenant of a 90-day notice to vacate [P.L. 111-22, sec. 702(a)(2), 123 Stats. 1661]. A lease or tenancy is considered bona fide if (1) the mortgagor or the child, spouse, or parent of the mortgagor under the contract is not the tenant; (2) the lease or tenancy was the result of an arms-length transaction; and (3) the lease or tenancy requires the receipt of rent that is not substantially less than fair market rent for the property or the unit's rent is reduced or subsidized due to a federal, state, or local subsidy [P.L. 111-22, sec. 702(b), 123 Stats. 1661]. These provisions are repealed on December 31, 2012 [P.L. 111-22, sec. 704, 123 Stats. 1662]. As of August 2009, the California Legislature was in the process of amending Code Civ. Proc. § 1161b to extend the notice period from 60 to 90 days if required by any other provision of state or federal law [SB 483, Corbett].

B. Preliminary Determinations

10-25D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 25D.110

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 25D.110 Status of Property, Debt, and Debtor

1. Determine condition of title of property by obtaining following from title insurance company:

a. Trustee's sale guarantee (for nonjudicial or judicial foreclosure) [see § 26A.235]; or

b. Litigation guarantee (for judicial foreclosure) [see § 26A.230].

NOTE:
Trustee's sale guarantees and litigation guarantees list all matters of record affecting the property, such as liens (including federal and state tax liens), abstracts of judgment, and tax delinquencies. Also included are a legal description of the property and the identity of the record owner of the property. A trustee or beneficiary may purchase a trustee's sale guarantee at a rate meeting the standards contained in Ins. Code §§ 12401.1 and 12401.3. The cost of either guarantee is recoverable from the debtor in a foreclosure proceeding [see Civ. Code § 2924c(c)*].

2. Determine whether debtor is currently in military service or was in service within preceding three months.

NOTE:
The Servicemembers Civil Relief Act [50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq.] precludes foreclosure of property for nonpayment of any amount due and secured by a mortgage or deed of trust while the debtor is in military service or within 90 days thereafter except on court order. However, this provision applies only if the obligation was incurred before the debtor entered military service [50 U.S.C. App. § 533].

3. Determine whether loan is insured or guaranteed by federal government under Federal Housing Administration (FHA) or Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) program.

NOTE:

Because federal procedures and regulations prevail to the extent inconsistent with California laws relating to foreclosure procedures and antideficiency protection [see United States v. Shimer (1961) 367 U.S. 374, 381, 81 S. Ct. 1554, 6 L. Ed. 2d 908], counsel should contact the appropriate federal agency before the commencement of foreclosure procedures and follow federal procedures as necessary [see 12 U.S.C. § 1707 et seq. (FHA); 38 U.S.C. § 3701 et seq. (VA); 24 C.F.R. pt. 200 et seq. (FHA); 28 C.F.R. pt. 36 (VA)].

4. Determine whether notice regarding balloon payment has been or must be delivered to debtor/borrower; that is, whether loan [see Civ. Code § 2924i; see also Ch. 25A, Security Instruments for Real Estate Financing]:

a. Is secured by trust deed or mortgage on real property containing up to four residential units, at least one of which at time loan was made was (or was to be) occupied by borrower;

b. Is for period in excess of one year; and

c. Is a "balloon payment loan."

NOTE:

A "balloon payment loan" is a loan that provides for a final payment as originally scheduled that is more than twice the amount of any of the immediately preceding six regularly scheduled payments or that contains a call provision. However, if the holder of a loan with a call provision does not exercise the provision, the existence of the unexercised provision will not cause the loan to be deemed to be a balloon payment loan [Civ. Code § 2924i(d)(1)].

5. Determine whether debt is guaranteed by guarantor.

NOTE:

For a discussion of the effect of foreclosure proceedings, including antideficiency legislation, on a guarantor, surety, endorser, or similar party, see California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 122, Antideficiency Legislation (Matthew Bender).

6. If secured obligation is also supported by letter of credit:

a. Determine whether draws on letter will be exempt from one form of action rule and antideficiency statutes [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 580.5, 580.7; see also §§ 25D.13[4], 25D.22].

b. Determine whether loan is insured or guaranteed by federal government under Federal Housing Administration (FHA) or Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) program.

7. Determine whether loan is secured by mortgage or deed of trust recorded from January 1, 2003, to December 31, 2007, inclusive, on real property that is principal residence of borrower (as indicated to lender in loan documents) containing no more than four dwelling units [Civ. Code § 2923.5(i)].

a. If yes, call or meet with borrower at least 30 days prior to filing notice of default to assess the borrower's financial situation and explore options for the borrower to avoid foreclosure [Civ. Code § 2923.5(a)].

NOTE:

A notice of default may be filed when a mortgagee, beneficiary, or authorized agent has failed to contact the borrower as required despite due diligence [Civ. Code § 2923.5(g); see Civ. Code § 2329.5(g)(1)-(5) (actions required for due diligence)].

b. File notice of default at least 30 days after initially contacting borrower, and include declaration from mortgagee, beneficiary, or authorized agent that it has contacted borrower, or has tried with due diligence to contact borrower as required by Civ. Code § 2923.5(g), or that no contact was required pursuant to Civ. Code § 2923.5(h) [Civ. Code § 2923.5(b); see § 25D.202 (notice of default form)].

c. If billing address for the mortgage note is different than the property address [Civ. Code § 2924.8(d)], post specified notice on property subject to the foreclosure sale [Civ. Code § 2924.8(a); see § 25D.211[2] (form of notice)].

Note:

Concurrently with the mailing of the notice of sale pursuant to Civ. Code § 2924b, the mortgagee, trustee, beneficiary, or authorized agent must send, by first-class mail, a copy of that posted notice, in an envelope addressed to the "resident of property subject to foreclosure sale" [Civ. Code § 2924.8(a)].

d. Provide at least 60 days' notice to quit before commencing unlawful detainer proceedings.

Note:

Notwithstanding the unlawful detainer provisions of Civ. Code § Code Civ. Proc. § 1161 [see Ch. 35B, Modification and Termination of Leases], a tenant or subtenant in possession of a rental housing unit at the time the property is sold in foreclosure must be given at least 60 days' written notice to quit pursuant in the manner set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1162 before the tenant or subtenant may be removed from the property through unlawful detainer proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161b(a)]. However, this notice requirement does not apply if any party to the note remains in the property as a tenant, subtenant, or occupant [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161b(b)].

Note:

In 2009, Congress established a 90-day notice to vacate requirement in the Protecting Tenants at Foreclosure Act [P.L. 111-22, S. 896]. This requirement applies to any foreclosure on a federally-related mortgage loan or on any dwelling or residential real property after May 20, 2009 [P.L. 111-22, sec. 702, 123 Stats. 1660-1661; see also P.L. 111-22, sec. 703, 123 Stats. 1661, amending 42 U.S.C. § 1437f(o)(7) (following foreclosure, successor in interest may terminate section 8 tenancy on 90 days' notice if owner will occupy property as primary residence)]. As of August 2009, the California Legislature was in the process of amending Code Civ. Proc. § 1161b to extend the notice period from 60 to 90 days if required by any other provision of state or federal law [SB 483, Corbett]. The federal provisions are repealed on December 31, 2012 [P.L. 111-22, sec. 704, 123 Stats. 1662].

§ 25D.111 Electing Nonjudicial or Judicial Foreclosure

1. Review deed of trust or mortgage to determine whether it contains power of sale clause.

NOTE:
The option of nonjudicial foreclosure is available only if the security instrument contains such a clause [see Civ. Code § 2924(a)].

2. If debt in default is secured by mortgage, confirm that statute of limitations has not run on underlying debt.

NOTE:
If the obligation on which the debtor has defaulted is secured by a mortgage, the lien created by the mortgage is extinguished by the running of the statute of limitations on the underlying debt [see Civ. Code § 2911]. Therefore, even if the mortgage contains a power of sale, the debtor may enjoin the threatened sale [Faxon v. All Persons (1913) 166 Cal. 707, 715, 137 P. 919]. If the obligation in default is secured by a deed of trust and the statute of limitations has run on the underlying obligation, the statute operates as a defense to any action brought by the creditor to enforce his security interest [Flack v. Boland (1938) 11 Cal. 2d 103, 106, 77 P.2d 1090], but it does not affect the trustee's right to exercise the power of sale in the security instrument [Hohn v. Riverside County Flood Control etc. (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 605, 614, 39 Cal. Rptr. 647].

3. If proceeds from sale may be insufficient to satisfy entire debt, determine whether any of the following conditions will exist and therefore preclude deficiency judgment:

a. Sale of property is to be effected through nonjudicial foreclosure of promissory note and trust deed or mortgage [Code Civ. Proc. § 580d].

b. Sale of property is to be effected through judicial foreclosure and [Code Civ. Proc. § 580b; see § 25D.20[3]]:
(1) Debtor/purchaser failed to complete contract of sale; or

(2) Trust deed or mortgage was given:
(a) To seller to secure payment of balance of purchase price of property; or

(b) To lender to secure repayment of loan that was used to pay all or part of purchase price of one- to four-unit dwelling occupied, entirely or in part, by debtor/purchaser.

4. If deficiency judgment is permitted, before tentatively deciding to proceed with judicial foreclosure, consider and balance benefit of deficiency judgment against following disadvantages normally associated with judicial foreclosure:

a. More time-consuming because of required court proceedings.

b. More expensive.

NOTE:
If the amount of the underlying debt is very large, the amount of trustee's or attorneys' fees permitted by statute after a nonjudicial foreclosure sale [see Civ. Code § 2924d(a), (b)] may approach the litigation costs of a judicial foreclosure.

c. Debtor has right to redeem property for, depending on circumstances, three months or one year after date of sale [Code Civ. Proc. § 729.030; see § 25D.17[2]].

NOTE:
For detailed coverage of the procedures governing judicial foreclosures, which are beyond the scope of this chapter because they require the commencement of a court action, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages (Matthew Bender).

10-C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide Scope

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

Scope

NOTE: This Part sets forth the procedure for the nonjudicial foreclosure of a deed of trust rather than a mortgage. The same procedure should be followed for the foreclosure of a mortgage containing a power of sale, with two variations: (1) the mortgagee or other authorized person must perform all functions of a trustee; and (2) the mortgagee need not give notices or directions to a nonexistent trustee.

Although this Procedural Guide is directed primarily to an attorney representing a beneficiary rather than a trustor, it should prove useful to a trustor's attorney in monitoring the required proceedings for a nonjudicial foreclosure. For coverage that specifically considers the perspective of the attorney for the trustor/debtor, see California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 120, Representing a Client After Default (Matthew Bender).

§ 25D.120 Request for Sale

1. Prepare and have beneficiary execute request to trustee to institute proceedings for nonjudicial foreclosure (request for sale) [§ 25D.201[2]], which should [see Civ. Code § 2924(a)(1)]:

a. Declare that breach of secured obligation has occurred.

b. Describe each breach actually known to beneficiary [see § 25D.121, P 3b].

c. State beneficiary's election to sell property to satisfy foregoing obligation and any other obligation secured by deed of trust.

d. Request that trustee sell property in a nonjudicial foreclosure.

2. Submit request for sale to trustee, together with:

a. Promissory note(s).

b. Deed(s) of trust.

c. Any other evidences of indebtedness secured by deed of trust.

d. Affidavit of nonmilitary status [see NOTE in § 25D.110, P 2; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages (Matthew Bender), for a form of affidavit].

§ 25D.121 Notice of Default

1. Have trustee order and obtain trustee's sale guarantee from a title company [see NOTE in § 25D.110, P 1b].

2. If original trustee named in deed of trust is to be replaced, have beneficiary execute substitution of trustee [see §§ 25C.230-25C.234 (forms)].

NOTE:
Although most deeds of trust permit a substitution of trustee to be executed by the beneficiary alone, some require the beneficiary and original trustee to execute the substitution of trustee jointly.

3. Prepare notice of default [see § 25D.202[2]] containing [Civ. Code § 2924(a)(1)]:

a. The following information concerning deed of trust:
(1) Name(s) of trustor(s); and

(2) Either of the following:
(a) Book and page where deed of trust is recorded; or

(b) Description of trust property.

b. Statement that breach of secured obligation has occurred.

c. Description of nature of each breach actually known to beneficiary.

NOTE:

There is a rebuttable presumption that the beneficiary actually knew of all unpaid loan payments on the obligation owed to the beneficiary and secured by the deed of trust subject to the notice of default. However, the failure to include an actually known default will not (1) invalidate the notice of sale, or (2) preclude the beneficiary from asserting a claim to the omitted default or defaults in a separate notice of default [Civ. Code § 2924(e)]. In any case, in performing the required acts, the trustee will not incur liability for any good faith error resulting from reliance on information provided in good faith by the beneficiary regarding the nature and amount of the default under the secured obligation, deed of trust, or mortgage [Civ. Code § 2924(b)]. Additionally, the trustee is not subject to the provisions governing fair debt collections practices [see Civ. Code § 1788 et seq.] when performing the required acts [Civ. Code § 2924(b)].

d. Declaration of beneficiary's election to sell property (or cause it to be sold) to satisfy:

(1) Obligation that has been breached; and

(2) Any other obligation secured by same trust deed.

e. If default is curable under reinstatement provision of Civ. Code § 2924c [see § 25D.122], statutory statement regarding right of reinstatement required by Civ. Code § 2924c(b)(1) [see § 25D.202[2]].

4. Have beneficiary, trustee, or authorized agent of beneficiary or trustee execute and acknowledge notice of default [see Civ. Code § 2924(a)(1)].

5. Record notice of default in office of recorder of each county in which all or any part of property is situated [Civ. Code § 2924(a)(1); see § 25D.202[1]].

6. Record substitution of trustee, if appropriate [see P 2, above], concurrently with notice of default.

7. Instruct trustee, beneficiary, or authorized agent of foregoing to send copies of notice of default (showing recording date) as follows:

a. Within 10 business days following recordation of notice, by registered or certified mail, postage prepaid, to:

(1) Each person who has recorded a separate request for notice of default [see Civ. Code § 2924b(a); see also § 25D.200[2]], directed to address designated in request [Civ. Code § 2924b(b)(1), (g)].

NOTE:
Each recorded request for a notice of default will be listed in the trustee's sale guarantee obtained from the title company [see P 1, above].

(2) Each person who is entitled to notice under terms of trust deed, directed to address designated in trust deed [Civ. Code § 2924b(d)].

(3) Each trustor, at address specified in trust deed or at his or her last known address, if different than address specified in trust deed [Civ. Code § 2924b(e)].

NOTE:
The trustee, beneficiary, or agent must simultaneously send an additional copy by first-class mail (postage prepaid) to each trustor at the address described above, and then execute and retain an affidavit or declaration of mailing [§ 25D.207[2]] for the additional copy [Civ. Code § 2924b(e)].

b. Within one month following recordation, by registered or certified mail, postage prepaid, to following persons with recorded interest in property [Civ. Code § 2924b(c)(1), (2)]:

NOTE:
The copies must be sent to the return addresses set forth in the recorded instruments evidencing the interests [Civ. Code § 2924b(c)(1)].

(1) Successor in interest (in whole or part) of trustor.

(2) Beneficiary or mortgagee (and assignee of either) of any recorded junior trust deeds or mortgages.

(3) Vendee of any contract of sale, or lessee of any lease, junior to trust deed being foreclosed, and their successors in interest, if any.

(4) Sacramento Office of the Controller if, as of recording date of notice, a notice of lien for postponed property taxes has been recorded against real property to which notice of default applies.

8. If trust deed does not contain mailing address of trustor or mortgagor named in it and if trustor has not recorded separate request for notice, instruct trustee to [Civ. Code § 2924b(d)]:

a. Have notice of default published once a week for at least four weeks in newspaper of general circulation in county in which property is situated, commencing within 10 days after filing of notice.

b. In lieu of publication, either:

(1) Personally deliver copy of notice of default to trustor:
(a) Within 10 days after filing of notice; or

(b) At any time before publication is completed.

(2) Post notice of default in conspicuous place on the property and mail notice to trustor's last known address.

9. Have trustee mail to trustor, at his or her last known address, statutory default statement required by Civ. Code § 2924f(c) [see § 25D.203[2]] if:

a. Trust deed is secured by single-family, owner-occupied residence;

b. Obligation secured by trust deed is contained in contract for goods or services subject to Unruh Act; and

c. Default is not cured within 30 days after recordation of notice of default.

10. Instruct any agent who collects obligor's payments under promissory note secured directly or collaterally by trust deed for beneficiary to mail following notices, postage prepaid, to beneficiary [Civ. Code § 2924.3(a)]:

NOTE:

These disclosure requirements apply to an agent of a beneficiary, mortgagee, or owner of a promissory note secured directly or collaterally by a mortgage or trust deed on real property or an estate for years in real property, who has undertaken to make collections of payments from an obligor under the note [Civ. Code § 2924.3(a)].

The agent need not mail the following notices if he or she knows or reasonably believes that the default has already been cured by or on behalf of the obligor [Civ. Code § 2924.3(c)] or if the following apply: (1) the beneficiary is entitled to receive notice pursuant to Civ. Code § 2924b(c) [see P 7b, above] or has had a request for notice recorded for him or her pursuant to Civ. Code § 2924b(b) [see P 7a(1), above]; and (2) the agent reasonably believes that the beneficiary's last known address [see Civ. Code § 2924b(b)(3) (definition of "last known address")] is the current business or residence address of that person [Civ. Code § 2924.3(b)].

Failure to comply with these reporting requirements will not affect the validity of a sale in favor of a bona fide purchaser or the rights of an encumbrancer for value and without notice [Civ. Code § 2924.3(d)].

a. A copy of notice of default, within 15 days after it is recorded [see P 5, above]; and

b. Notice that a notice of default of superior lien has been recorded, within 15 days after it is recorded or within three business days after agent receives the information, whichever is later.

1. If trustor wishes to cure default and reinstate debt, instruct trustor to pay all of following to beneficiary (or beneficiary's successor in interest) before date of sale set forth in initial recorded notice of sale [Civ. Code § 2924c(a)(1), (e); see § 25D.204]:

a. All amounts of principal, interest, taxes, assessments, insurance premiums, or advances in default under terms of trust deed.

b. All amounts in default on recurring obligations [see Civ. Code § 2924c(a)(1)].

§ 25D.123 Notice of Sale

1. If at least three months have elapsed since recordation of notice of default, and default has not been cured, prepare notice of sale containing [Civ. Code §§ 2924(a)(2), (3), 2924f(b); see § 25D.206[2]]:

NOTE:

Starting June 15, 2009, until January 1, 2011, in some cases in which the delinquent loan is secured by residential real property, the normal three-month delay between recording the notice of default and giving notice of the sale is extended an additional 90 days, in order to allow the parties to pursue a loan modification so as to prevent the impending foreclosure [Civ. Code § 2923.52(a); see Civ. Code § 2923.52(d), (e) (operative date and sunset date)]. For discussion, see § 25D.206[1][c][vii].

In addition to satisfying the requirements discussed below, the notice of sale must conform to the minimum typeface and heading requirements set forth in Gov. Code § 6043 [Civ. Code § 2924f(b)(1)]. For further discussion, see § 25D.206[1].

a. Description of property, which must include:
(1) Street address or other common designation, if any, and county assessor's parcel number.

(2) If property has no street address or other common designation:
(a) Legal description of property.

(b) Name and address of beneficiary at whose request sale is to be conducted.

(c) Statement that directions may be obtained on written request submitted to beneficiary within 10 days from first publication of notice.

NOTE:
Directions are deemed reasonably sufficient to locate the property if its location is given with reference to the direction and approximate distance from the nearest crossroads, frontage road, or access road. If the notice contains a legal description or a county assessor's parcel number and either a street address or another common designation of the property, the validity of the notice and the validity of the sale will not be affected by the fact that the street address, other common designation, name and address of the beneficiary, or the directions are erroneous or omitted [Civ. Code § 2924f(b)(1)].

b. Name, street address in California (which may reflect agent of trustee), and either toll-free telephone number or telephone number in California of trustee.

c. Name of original trustor.

d. Time of sale.

NOTE:
The sale must be held between 9 A.M. and 5 P.M. on any business day, Monday through Friday [Civ. Code § 2924g(a); see Civ. Code § 9 ("business day" defined)]. Although the minimum advance notice required by Civ. Code § 2924f is 20 days, the date for the sale should be set at least 31 days in advance (from expiration of the three-month period following recording of notice of default), because federal tax liens filed more than 30 days before the date of the trustee's sale are not extinguished by the sale unless appropriate notice is given to the Internal Revenue Service at least 25 days before the date of sale [see I.R.C. § 7425(b), (c); see also P 3a, below].

e. Street address and specific place at that address where sale will be held.

f. Statement of:

(1) Total amount of unpaid balance of obligations secured by the property; and

(2) Reasonably estimated costs, expenses, and advances at time of initial publication of notice of sale.

g. Description of personal property or fixtures to be sold, if sale is to be a unified sale of real property and personal property [see Civ. Code § 2924f(b)(2); Com. Code § 9604(a)(1)(B); see also § 25D.15].

h. Statutory statement regarding default [see Civ. Code § 2924f(c)(3); see also § 25D.203[2]].

2. Order a "date down" from title company that issued trustee's sale guarantee [see § 25D.121, P 1], confirming that record is to be searched as of 31 days before sale to determine whether any federal tax liens were filed more than 30 days from date of sale [see the NOTE to P 1d, above].

3. Instruct trustee to send copies of notice of sale in following manner:

a. At least 25 days before date of sale, send notice to Internal Revenue Service, by registered or certified mail or by personal service, if there is a federal tax lien on property [I.R.C. § 7425(c)].

NOTE:
If notice is not given, the Internal Revenue Service has the right to redeem the property within 120 days from the date of sale [I.R.C. § 7425(d)].

b. At least 20 days before date of sale, send notice by registered or certified mail, with postage prepaid, to [Civ. Code § 2924b(b)(2), (c)(3), (d), (e)]:

(1) Each person who has recorded a separate request for notice of default [see § 25D.200[2]], directed to address designated in request;

(2) Each person who is entitled to notice under terms of deed of trust, directed to address designated in trust deed;

(3) Each trustor, at address specified in trust deed or at trustor's last known address, if different;

(4) Sacramento office of any state taxing agency that has recorded notice of tax lien before recording date of notice of default against real property to which notice of default applies; and

(5) Each person to whom a copy of notice of default was mailed pursuant to Civ. Code § 2924b(c)(1), (2) [see § 25D.121, P 7b].

NOTE:
Until January 1, 2013 [Civ. Code § 2924.8(e)], when the notice of sale is mailed pursuant to Civ. Code § 2924b, the mortgagee, trustee, beneficiary, or authorized agent must concurrently send, by first class mail, a copy of a different notice [see § 25D.211], in an envelope addressed to "Resident of property subject to foreclosure sale" [Civ, Code § 2924.8(a)].

c. Simultaneously with mailing described in P 3b, above [Civ. Code § 2924b(c)(3)]:

(1) Send trustor an additional copy of notice by first-class mail, at same address to which notice is sent by registered or certified mail [see P 3b(3), above]; and

(2) Execute and retain affidavit of mailing containing specified information [see § 25D.207[2]].

4. Post notice at least 20 days before date of sale in following locations [Civ. Code § 2924f(b)(1)]:

a. In one public place in city (or judicial district if no city) in which property is to be sold.

b. In conspicuous place on property to be sold.

NOTE:
If the property to be sold is a single-family residence, the notice must be posted on a door of the residence, unless this action is not possible or is restricted, in which case the notice must be posted in a conspicuous place on the property. However, if access to the property is denied because a common entrance to the property is restricted by a guard gate or similar impediment, the notice may be posted at that place [Civ. Code § 2924f(b)(1)].

NOTE:

Effective September 6, 2008 [Stats. 2008, ch. 69, § 10], on posting a notice of sale pursuant to Civ. Code § 2924f, a trustee or authorized agent must also post, in the manner required for posting the notice of sale on the property to be sold, a specified notice in English and the languages described in Civ. Code § 1632 [Civ. Code § 2924.8(a) (in effect until January 1, 2013); see § 25D.211 (notice)].

5. Publish notice once a week for three consecutive calendar weeks, with first publication occurring at least 20 days before date of sale, in newspaper of general circulation published [Civ. Code § 2924f(b)(1)]:

a. In city, judicial district, or county in which property is situated, if there is such a newspaper; or

b. If property is not within a city, in newspaper for appropriate judicial district [Civ. Code § 2924f(b)(1)]; or

c. If newspaper of general circulation does not exist in above locations, in newspaper of general circulation published in California county that:

(1) Is contiguous to county in which all or part of property is situated; and

(2) Has highest population of all similarly contiguous counties.

NOTE:

The determination of the populations of the contiguous counties must be based on the total county populations as determined by the most recent federal decennial census published by the Bureau of the Census [Civ. Code § 2924f(b)(1)].

6. Record notice with county recorder of county in which property or some part thereof is situated at least 20 days before date of sale [Civ. Code § 2924f(b)(1)].

7. After mailing, posting, publishing, and recording notice of sale, have trustee execute or obtain appropriate declarations regarding mailing and posting of notice of sale [see § 25D.207[1]] and obtain an affidavit or declaration of publication from newspaper in which notice was published.

8. Provide copy of notice of sale to Internal Revenue Service if "Notice of Federal Tax Lien under Internal Revenue Laws" has been recorded, after deed of trust or mortgage being foreclosed, against subject real property [Civ. Code § 2924b(c)(4)].

NOTE:

The mortgagee, trustee, or other person authorized to record the notice of default must provide a copy of the notice of sale to the Internal Revenue Service, in accordance with I.R.C. § 7425 and any applicable federal regulations, if a "Notice of Federal Tax Lien under Internal Revenue Laws" has been recorded, after the deed of trust or mortgage being foreclosed, against the real property to which the notice of sale applies. The failure to provide the Internal Revenue Service with a copy of the notice of sale is sufficient cause to rescind the trustee's sale and invalidate the trustee's deed, at the option of either the successful bidder at the trustee's sale or the trustee, and in either case with the beneficiary's consent. Any option to rescind the trustee's sale under this provision must be exercised before any transfer of the property by the successful bidder to a bona fide purchaser for value. The rescission of the trustee's sale may be recorded in a notice of rescission pursuant to Civ. Code § 1058.5 [Civ. Code § 2924b(c)(4)].

§ 25D.124 Postponements of Sale

1. Notify trustee that trustee is authorized to postpone sale in accordance with any of following [Civ. Code § 2924g(c)(1)]:

a. On order of any court of competent jurisdiction.

b. If stayed by operation of law.

c. By mutual agreement, whether oral or in writing, of any trustor and any beneficiary or any mortgagor and any mortgagee.

d. At trustee's discretion.

2. Instruct trustee that sale proceedings may be postponed, including postponement on instruction by beneficiary to trustee that sale proceedings be postponed, at any time before completion of sale for any period of time not to exceed total of 365 days from date set forth in notice of sale [Civ. Code § 2924g(c)(1)].

NOTE:
In the event that the sale proceedings are postponed for a period or periods totaling more than 365 days, the scheduling of any further sale proceedings must be preceded by giving a new notice of sale in the manner prescribed in Civ. Code § 2924f. New fees incurred for the new notice of sale must not exceed the amounts specified in Civ. Code §§ 2924c and 2924d and must not exceed reasonable costs that are necessary to comply with these requirements [Civ. Code § 2924g(c)(2)].

3. If sale is postponed, instruct trustee to [Civ. Code § 2924g(d); see Civ. Code § 2924g(e) (postponement of sale until expiration of bankruptcy stay)]:

a. Make public announcement at time and place specified in notice of sale of postponement, reason for it, and date, time, and place of rescheduled sale.

NOTE:
The place of sale must remain unchanged. No other notice of the postponement is required. If the postponement was caused by an injunction, restraining order, or stay, the sale must be conducted no sooner than the seventh day after the earlier of (1) dismissal of the action, or (2) expiration or termination of the injunction, restraining order, or stay (which required postponement of the sale), whether by entry of a court order, operation of law, or otherwise, unless the injunction, restraining order, or subsequent order expressly requires the sale to be held within that seven-day period. The seven-day period does not include the day the action is dismissed or the day the injunction, restraining order, or stay expires or is terminated. If the sale had been scheduled to occur during the above seven-day period and the foregoing rules prohibit it from being conducted during that period, a new notice of postponement must be given [Civ. Code § 2924g(d)]. Notwithstanding these time periods, if postponement of a sale is based on a stay granted under the Bankruptcy Code, the sale may be conducted no sooner than the expiration of that stay, and the seven-day provision of Civ. Code § 2924g(d) does not apply [Civ. Code § 2924g(e)].

b. Maintain record of postponement and reason for it.

§ 25D.125 Conducting Sale

NOTE:

When the deed of trust confers the power of sale on the trustee, the trustee's attorney or any duly authorized agent may conduct the sale and act in the sale as the auctioneer for the trustee [Civ. Code § 2924a].

A trustee or any other person may state that property subject to a recorded notice of default or subject to a nonjudicial foreclosure sale is being sold in an "as-is" condition [Civ. Code § 2924h(g)].

1. Hold sale at time and location specified in notice of sale (or in public announcement made following postponement of earlier sale) [Civ. Code § 2924g(a)].

NOTE:

The sale must be held between the hours of 9:00 A.M. and 5:00 P.M. on any business day, in the county in which some or all of the property is situated [Civ. Code § 2924g(a)]. If the property is in two or more counties, the public sale of all of the property may be held in any one of the counties [Civ. Code § 2924g(b)].

2. If property consists of more than one lot or parcel, sell each separately unless [Civ. Code § 2924g(b)]:

a. Deed of trust or mortgage provides otherwise; or

b. Third person claims a portion of the property and requires it to be sold separately.

NOTE:

If the property consists of several known lots or parcels that may be sold to advantage separately, and the trustor is present at the sale, he or she may (unless the deed of trust or mortgage provides otherwise) specify the order in which the property must be sold, and the trustee must comply. After sufficient property has been sold to satisfy the indebtedness, no more can be sold [Civ. Code § 2924g(b)].

3. If trustee scheduled sale of more than one parcel for same time and location [Civ. Code § 2924g(a)]:

a. Announce any postponement of any sales at time published in notice of sale.

b. Commence first sale at time published in notice of sale or immediately after announcement of any postponement.

c. Conduct each subsequent sale as soon as possible after completion of preceding sale.

4. Notify trustee of right to enforce one of the following bidding procedures for sale:

NOTE:
Each bid made at a trustee's sale constitutes an irrevocable offer by the bidder to purchase the property for the amount of the bid, but a second or subsequent bid by the same bidder or any other bidder for a higher amount cancels the prior bid [Civ. Code § 2924h(a)]. Any postponement or discontinuance of the sale proceedings cancels the last bid [Civ. Code § 2924h(e)].

a. Conditionally accept and hold (for duration of sale) evidence of each bidder's ability to deposit with trustee full amount of his or her final bid, with payment of bid to be made after completion of sale and on demand by trustee [Civ. Code § 2924h(b), (d); see P 8, below].

b. Require last and highest bidder to deposit, if not deposited previously, full amount of bidder's final bid immediately before completion of sale [Civ. Code § 2924h(b)].

5. Require payment of bids by one of following methods [Civ. Code § 2924h(b), (d)]:

a. Cash.

b. Cashier's check drawn on a state or national bank.

c. Check drawn by a state or federal credit union, state or federal savings and loan association, savings association, or savings bank [see Fin. Code § 5102 (definition)] authorized to do business in California.

d. Cash equivalent that has been designated in notice of sale as acceptable to trustee before and as a condition to recognition of the bid.

6. Accept any "credit" bid only from present beneficiary of deed of trust in foreclosure and only in amount not exceeding total amount due beneficiary (including trustee's fees and expenses) [see Civ. Code § 2924h(b)].

7. Sell property to highest bidder [Civ. Code § 2924g(a)] and complete sale by announcement, fall of hammer, or in another customary manner [Civ. Code § 2924h(b)].

8. If not deposited before completion of sale, demand delivery of full amount of final bid [Civ. Code § 2924h(d)].

NOTE:

This amount must be in one of the forms described in P 5, above. If the last and highest bidder fails to deliver the final bid when demanded, that bidder is liable to the trustee for all damages that the trustee may sustain as a result of the failure, including any court costs and reasonable attorneys' fees. Further, if the failure is willful, or if the last and highest bidder cancels an instrument submitted to the trustee as a cash equivalent, the bidder is guilty of a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not more than $2,500 [Civ. Code § 2924h(d)].

9. If successful bidder deposited a cash equivalent or check drawn by credit union or savings and loan association, have trustee:

a. Withhold issuance of trustee's deed to successful bidder until funds become available to payee or endorsee as matter of right [Civ. Code § 2924h(c)].

NOTE:

For these purposes, the sale will be deemed final on the acceptance of the last and highest bid, and will be deemed perfected as of 8 a.m. on the actual date of sale if the trustee's deed is recorded within 15 calendar days of the sale [Civ. Code § 2924h(c)]. However, as discussed in P 9b, below, the sale will be subject to an automatic rescission under certain circumstances.

b. If funds are not "available for withdrawal" [Civ. Code § 2924h(c); see Ins. Code § 12413.1]:

NOTE:

The sale is subject to an automatic rescission for a failure of consideration if the funds are not "available for withdrawal" as defined in Ins. Code § 12413.1 [Civ. Code § 2924h(c); see Ins. Code § 12413.1(e) (when a draft has been submitted for collection, "available for withdrawal" means when the draft has been submitted for collection and payment received), (g) (incorporating by reference definition set forth in 12 C.F.R. § 229.2(d), as that regulation existed on January 1, 1990)].

If the last and highest bidder cancels an instrument submitted to the trustee as a cash equivalent, the bidder will be guilty of a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not more than $2,500 [Civ. Code § 2924h(d)].

(1) Send notice of rescission for failure of consideration to last and highest bidder.

NOTE:

The trustee must send the notice to the last and highest bidder who submitted the check or alternative instrument, if the trustee knows the bidder's address. Following the automatic rescission, the interest of any lienholder must be reinstated in the same priority as if the previous sale had not occurred [Civ. Code § 2924h(c)].

(2) Prepare new notice of sale [Civ. Code § 2924f(b); see § 25D.206[2]].

NOTE:

If the notice is being given following the cancellation by the last and highest bidder of an instrument submitted to the trustee as a cash equivalent, the trustee will be entitled to recover the costs of the new notice of sale as provided in Civ. Code § 2924c [Civ. Code § 2924h(d); see § 25D.206[1][l]].

(3) Conduct new sale.

10. Unless sale is rescinded [see P 9, above], have trustee execute and deliver trustee's deed to purchaser [see § 25D.209].

§ 25D.126 Distributing Proceeds and Handling Conflicting Claims

1. If a dispute exists regarding proceeds of sale, ask trustee to decide whether to:

a. File interpleader action [Civ. Code § 2924j(e)].

NOTE:
If the trustee decides to file an interpleader action in order to resolve the dispute, the requirements of Civ. Code § 2924j [see PP 2-6, below] will not apply [Civ. Code § 2924j(e)]. For comprehensive coverage of interpleader, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 314, Interpleader (Matthew Bender).

b. Comply with requirements of Civ. Code §§ 2924j and 2924k [see PP 2-8, below].

NOTE:
The remainder of § 25D.126 applies only if the trustee elects to comply with Civ. Code §§ 2924j and 2924k.

2. Determine whether or not there will be proceeds remaining after trustee pays [see Civ. Code §§ 2924j(a), 2924k(a)(1), (2)]:

NOTE:
To the extent required by the Unclaimed Property Law, a trustee in possession of surplus proceeds that are not required to be deposited with the court pursuant to Civ. Code § 2924j(b) must comply with the Unclaimed Property Law [Civ. Code § 2924j(g); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1500 et seq.].

a. Costs and expenses of sale [see P 7a, below].

b. Obligations secured by trust deed that was subject of sale [see P 7b, below].

3. If there will be proceeds remaining after payment of amounts described in P 2a and b, above, prepare notice informing each "entitled person" [see P 4, below] that [Civ. Code § 2924j(a); see § 25D.210[2]]:

a. There has been a trustee's sale of described real property.

b. Person may have claim to all or portion of sale proceeds remaining after payment of amounts described in P 2a and b, above.

c. Person may contact trustee at address provided in notice to pursue any potential claim.

d. Before the trustee can act, the noticed person may be required to present proof that the person holds the beneficial interest in the obligation and the security interest for the obligation; and the noticed person must also submit a written claim to the trustee, executed under penalty of perjury, containing [Civ. Code § 2924j(a)]:

NOTE:

In the case of a promissory note secured by a deed of trust, proof that the person holds the beneficial interest may include the original promissory note and assignment of beneficial interests related to the note [Civ. Code § 2924j(a)].

(1) Statement of amount of claim to date of trustee's sale.

(2) Itemized statement of principal, interest, and other charges.

(3) Statement that claims must be received by trustee at address stated in notice no later than 30 days after date trustee sent notice.

4. Send notice described in P 3, above, by first-class mail, postage prepaid, to following persons, if they possessed recorded interests in subject real property as of date immediately prior to trustee's sale ("entitled persons") [Civ. Code § 2924j(a); see Civ. Code § 2924b(b), (c)]:

NOTE:

The notices must be sent to the return addresses set forth in the recorded instruments evidencing the interests of the following persons [Civ. Code § 2924j(a); see Civ. Code § 2924b(c)(1)]. In addition, the mortgagee, trustee, or other person authorized to record the notice of default must provide a copy of the notice of sale to the Internal Revenue Service, in accordance with I.R.C. § 7425 and any applicable federal regulation, if a "Notice of Federal Tax Lien under Internal Revenue Laws" has been recorded, after the deed of trust or mortgage being foreclosed, against the real property to which the notice of sale applies. The failure to provide the Internal Revenue Service with a copy of the notice of sale is sufficient cause to rescind the trustee's sale and invalidate the trustee's deed, at the option of either the successful bidder at the trustee's sale or the trustee, and in either case with the beneficiary's consent. Any option to rescind the trustee's sale under this provision must be exercised before any transfer of the property by the successful bidder to a bona fide purchaser for value. The rescission of the trustee's sale may be recorded in a notice of rescission pursuant to Civ. Code § 1058.5 [Civ. Code § 2924b(c)(4)].

a. Each person who has recorded separate request for notice of default [see Civ. Code § 2924b(a), (b)(1); see also § 25D.121, P 7a(1)].

b. Each trustor [see Civ. Code § 2924b(b)(1)].

c. Successor in interest (in whole or part) of trustor [see Civ. Code § 2924b(c)(2)(A)].

d. Beneficiary or mortgagee (and assignee of either) of any recorded junior trust deeds or mortgages [see Civ. Code § 2924b(c)(2)(B), (C)].

e. Vendee of any contract of sale, or lessee of any lease, junior to trust deed being foreclosed, and their successors in interest, if any [see Civ. Code § 2924b(c)(2)(D), (E)].

f. Sacramento Office of Controller if, as of recording date of notice, a notice of lien for postponed property taxes has been recorded against real property to which notice applies [see Civ. Code § 2924b(c)(2)(F)].

5. Instruct trustee to use due diligence [see Civ. Code § 2924j(f); see also P 6, NOTE, below] to determine priority of written claims received in response to foregoing notice [Civ. Code § 2924j(b); see Civ. Code § 2924k; see also P 7, below (statutory order of distribution of proceeds)].

6. If, after due diligence, trustee cannot determine priority of above written claims or trustee determines that there is a conflict between potential claimants:

NOTE:

For these purposes, "due diligence" means that the trustee (1) researched the written claims submitted or other evidence of conflicts and (2) determined that a conflict of priorities exists between two or more claimants that the trustee is unable to resolve [Civ. Code § 2924j(f)].

a. Send (by first-class mail, postage prepaid) notice to all entitled persons [see P 4, above] that [Civ. Code § 2924j(d)]:

(1) States that trustee intends to deposit funds with clerk of superior court.

(2) Provides that claim for funds must be filed with court within 30 days from date of notice.

(3) Sets forth address of court in which funds were deposited.

(4) Includes phone number for obtaining further information.

b. Prepare proof of service of above notice of right to file claim on all entitled persons [Civ. Code § 2924j(c)].

c. Prepare declaration of unresolved claims that contains [Civ. Code § 2924j(c)]:

(1) Date of trustee's sale.

(2) Description of property.

(3) Names and addresses of all entitled persons who were sent notice of potential claim [see P 4, above].

(4) Statement that trustee exercised due diligence in attempting to determine priority of written claims [see P 5, above].

(5) Statement that trustee provided written notices regarding:
(a) Potential claims [see Civ. Code § 2924j(a); see also P 3, above].

(b) Right to file claim [see Civ. Code § 2924j(d); see also a, above].

(6) Amount of sales proceeds trustee deposited with superior court [see d(3), below].

NOTE:
The trustee will deposit the proceeds at the same time he or she files this declaration with the superior court [see P d(3), below].

d. Have trustee file or deposit following with clerk of superior court of county in which sale occurred:

(1) Proof of service of notice of right to file claim [Civ. Code § 2924j(c); see b, above].

(2) Declaration of unresolved claims [Civ. Code § 2924j(c); see c, above].

(3) Portion of sales proceeds that trustee cannot distribute, less any fees charged by clerk for performance of activities relating to deposited funds [Civ. Code § 2924j(c)].

NOTE:
The trustee may deposit (1) the total proceeds of the trustee's sale, less any fees charged by the clerk, if a conflict or conflicts exist with respect to the total proceeds, or (2) that portion that cannot be distributed after due diligence, less any fees charged by the clerk [see Civ. Code § 2924j(f) ("due diligence" defined); see also P 6, NOTE, above]. The deposit of these funds with the superior court discharges the trustee of further responsibility for the disbursement of the deposited funds. Thereafter, the clerk will deposit the funds with the county treasurer or in a bank trust account [see Gov. Code § 77009(a)(2)] subject to the order of the superior court on the application of any interested party. The clerk may charge a reasonable fee for the performance of activities relating to these deposited funds equal to the fee for filing an interpleader action [Civ. Code § 2924j(c); see Gov. Code § 70611 (filing fee)].

The court will schedule a hearing on the deposited funds. The clerk will serve written notice of the hearing by first-class mail on all claimants identified in the trustee's declaration at the addresses specified in that declaration. The court will consider all claims filed at least 15 days before the date of the hearing. This review must take place within 90 days after the deposit of the funds. Finally, the court will distribute the funds to the entitled claimants [Civ. Code § 2924j(d)].

(4) Copy of trustee's sale guarantee and any information relevant to identity, location, and priority of potential claimants [Civ. Code § 2924j(c)].

NOTE:
A trustee's sale guarantee is a special report prepared and issued by a title insurer to supply and guarantee the accuracy of title information relating to property that is subject to foreclosure. For an illustrative trustee's sale guarantee and further discussion, see § 26A.235.

7. Have trustee distribute any sales proceeds not deposited with court in following order of priority [Civ. Code § 2924k(a)]:

NOTE:
This order of priority also applies to any distribution of sales proceeds by a superior court clerk pursuant to a court order [Civ. Code § 2924k(a); see P 6(d)(3), NOTE, above].

a. To costs and expenses of exercising power of sale and of sale, including trustee's fees and attorneys' fees [see Civ. Code §§ 2924d(b), 2924k(b); see also P 8, below].

b. To payment of obligations secured by trust deed that is subject of sale.

c. To satisfy outstanding balance of obligations secured by any junior liens or encumbrances in order of their priority.

d. To trustor or trustor's successor in interest.

NOTE:
If the property has been sold or transferred to another, this distribution should be to the vested owner of record at the time of the sale [Civ. Code § 2924k(a)(4)].

8. Notify trustee of right to charge [Civ. Code § 2924k(b)]:

a. Costs and expenses for such items as mailing.

b. Reasonable fee for services rendered in connection with distribution of proceeds, including:

NOTE:
If the fee charged for services rendered does not exceed $100 or $125 if there are obligations secured by any junior liens or encumbrances [see Civ. Code § 2924k(a)(3)], it will be conclusively presumed to be reasonable [Civ. Code § 2924k(b)].

(1) Investigation of priority and validity of claims.

(2) Distribution of funds.

§ 25D.200 Request for Notices of Default and Sale [Civ. Code § 2924b]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a statutory request for a copy of any notice of default [see § 25D.202[2]] and of any notice of sale [see § 25D.206[2]] required by Civ. Code § 2924 to be given in a nonjudicial foreclosure. The request may be made by any person at any time subsequent to recordation of a deed of trust or mortgage containing the power of sale and before recordation of a notice of default [Civ. Code § 2924b(a) (applicable to default under trust deed or mortgage on real property on or an estate for years in real property)]. Each person whose name and address are set forth in a duly recorded request must be provided with a copy of any notice of default or notice of sale within specified periods of time prior to the sale [see Civ. Code § 2924b(b)(1), (2), (c)(3); see also §§ 25D.121, P 7a(1), 25D.123, P 3b(1)].

[b] Special Considerations

Many standard deeds of trusts and mortgages used by title companies and financial institutions contain a provision requesting that copies of any notice of default and notice of sale be sent to the trustor or mortgagor at the address specified in the security instrument. In that case, the trustor or mortgagor need not execute and record this separate form of request since the inclusion of a request in the security instrument triggers the same obligation to provide notice that applies following the filing of a separate request [Civ. Code § 2924b(d)].

If there is an address change for the trustor or mortgagor from that specified in the deed of trust or mortgage, the trustor or mortgagor should file and record the separate form of request set forth below, since the person authorized and required to mail the notices of default and sale is required to send them only to the trustor's or mortgagor's last known address if different from the address specified in the deed of trust or mortgage [see Civ. Code § 2924b(b)]. "Last known address" of each trustor or mortgagor means the last business or residence physical address actually known by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or other person authorized to record the notice of default. A physical address does not include an e-mail address or any form of electronic address for a trustor or mortgagor. An address is "actually known" if it is contained in the original deed of trust or mortgage, or in any subsequent written notification of a change of physical address from the trustor or mortgagor pursuant to the deed of trust or mortgage [Civ. Code § 2924b(b)(3)]. Similarly, if a person records a request for notices and then changes his or her address, that person must file a new request, since the notices will be sent only to the address contained in the previously recorded request [Civ. Code § 2924b(a)].

[c] Contents of Request

The request must be in substantially the form set forth in Civ. Code § 2924b(a). Further, the request must specify the name and address of the person to whom the notice is to be mailed, and must identify the deed of trust or mortgage by stating (1) the names of the parties to it; (2) the date of recordation of the security instrument; and (3) the book and page where the deed of trust or mortgage is recorded or the recorder's number. Finally, the person making the request must sign and acknowledge it [Civ. Code § 2924b(a)].

[d] Recording of Request

The request must be recorded in any county in which any part or parcel of the real property is located [Civ. Code § 2924b(a)]. The recording of the request does not affect the title of the property, and does not give notice that the person recording the request has any right, title, or interest in or lien or charge on the property [Civ. Code § 2924b(f)].

§ 25D.200A Request by Homeowners' Association to Receive Copy of Trustee's Deed [Civ. Code § 2924b(f)]

[1] Comment--Use of Form

The form in [2], below, may be used by a homeowners' association [see Civ. Code § 1351(a) (definition)] to request a copy of any trustee's deed in the event of a sale concerning any separate interest governed by the association. With respect to separate interests governed by a homeowners' association, the association may cause to be filed in the office of the recorder, in the county in which the separate interests are situated, a request that a mortgagee, trustee, or other person authorized to record a notice of default regarding any of those separate interests, mail to the association a copy of any trustee's deed on a sale concerning a separate interest. Subsequent requests by an association will supersede prior requests [Civ. Code § 2924b(f)].

The request must include a legal description or the assessor's parcel number of the separate interests and must include the name and address of the association and a statement that it is a homeowners' association [Civ. Code § 2924b(f)].

To be effective, the request must be recorded before the filing of a notice of default. The mortgagee, trustee, or other authorized person must mail the requested information to the association within 15 business days following the date the trustee's deed is recorded. Failure to mail the request, however, will not affect the title to real property [Civ. Code § 2924b(f)].

The document must meet format requirements prescribed for recordable documents (for instance, a half-inch margin on each vertical side and the top 2 inches of the first page left blank for recording information) [see Gov. Code § 27361.6]. For discussion, see Ch. 27, Deeds and Recording .

§ 25D.201 Declaration of Default and Request for Sale

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is (1) a declaration by a beneficiary under a deed of trust that a default has occurred under the trust deed, and (2) a request that the trustee sell the property in order to satisfy the indebtedness. The purpose of the form is to provide the trustee with the authorization and necessary information to prepare a notice of default [see § 25D.202].

[b] Required Contents of Related Notice of Default

This form sets forth the following items of information, which must appear in the notice of default [see Civ. Code § 2924(a)(1); see also § 25D.202[1][b]]:

- A statement that a breach of the secured obligation has occurred.
- A description of the nature of each breach actually known to the beneficiary.
- A declaration of the beneficiary's election to sell the property to satisfy the foregoing obligation and any other obligation secured by the trust deed.
- Identifying information regarding the deed of trust.

If the deed of trust being foreclosed requires additional statements, recitals, or information from the beneficiary as a condition to the sale, those should be added to this form.

Concurrently with delivery of the request for sale, the beneficiary should deliver to the trustee the original deed of trust, the promissory note(s), and any other evidences of indebtedness secured by the trust deed. The trustee may also require the beneficiary to deposit in advance some or all of the trustee's anticipated costs and expenses of sale.

§ 25D.202 Notice of Default [Civ. Code §§ 2924(a)(1), 2924c]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a notice of default, which must be recorded at least three months before the recordation of a notice of sale [see § 25D.206] to sell property through the nonjudicial foreclosure of a deed of trust or mortgage [Civ. Code § 2924(a)(2), (3)]. The notice must be executed either by the trustee, beneficiary, or mortgagee, or the authorized agent of any of the above, and must be recorded in every county in which any portion of the real property is located [Civ. Code § 2924(a)(1)].

[b] Required Contents

The notice of default must identify the mortgage or deed of trust by stating the name of each mortgagor or trustor and giving (1) the book and page where the mortgage or deed of trust is recorded, or (2) a description of the mortgaged or trust property. It must also state that a breach of the obligation for which the mortgage or transfer in trust is security has occurred, and must set forth the nature of each breach actually known to the beneficiary [see [c], below] and the mortgagee's or beneficiary's election to sell the security or to cause it to be sold to satisfy the foregoing obligation and any other obligation secured by the mortgage or trust deed that is in default [Civ. Code § 2924(a)(1)]. The last paragraph of the following form contains the above information.

If the default can be cured by the payment of money, the notice of default must also contain a statutory statement regarding the debtor's right to pay the amount in default and to reinstate the obligation and deed of trust or mortgage [Civ. Code § 2924c(a)(1); see [d], below]. Although this requirement does not apply to other types of defaults, it is common to include the statutory reinstatement provision in all notices of default [see [d][ii], below].

[c] Known Defaults

As mentioned in [b], above, the notice of default must set forth, among other things, the nature of each breach actually known to the mortgagee or beneficiary. There is a rebuttable presumption that the mortgagee or beneficiary actually knew of all unpaid loan payments on the obligation owed to the mortgagee or beneficiary and secured by the mortgage or trust deed subject to the notice of default. However, the failure to include an actually known default will not invalidate the notice of sale or preclude the mortgagee or beneficiary from asserting a claim to this omitted default or defaults in a separate notice of default [Civ. Code § 2924(e)]. In any case, in performing the required acts, the trustee will not incur liability for any good faith error resulting from reliance on information provided in good faith by the beneficiary regarding the nature and amount of the default under the secured obligation, deed of trust, or mortgage [Civ. Code § 2924(b)]. Additionally, the trustee is not subject to the provisions governing fair debt collections practices [see Civ. Code § 1788 et seq.] when performing the required acts [Civ. Code § 2924(b)].

[d] Notice of Right to Reinstate

[i] Statutory Statement

If the default is curable under the reinstatement provisions of Civ. Code § 2924c [see [ii], below], the notice of default must begin with the reinstatement notice set forth in that statute [see Civ. Code § 2924c(b)(1)]. This statutory statement notifies the debtor of the right of reinstatement (discussed below) and of other legal rights. The form in [2], below, with the exception of the last paragraph, is the required statement.

[ii] Types of Curable Defaults

Following a default under the terms of a trust deed or mortgage on real property or on an estate for years in real property, Civ. Code § 2924c permits the debtor to reinstate the obligation and the trust deed or mortgage, provided the default can be cured by the payment of money. Specifically, the right to reinstate is triggered on the election of the beneficiary to accelerate the outstanding indebtedness as a result of a monetary default, that is, a failure to pay any of the following pursuant to the terms of the obligation or the relevant security instrument: interest, any installment of principal, taxes, assessments, insurance premiums, or advances made by the beneficiary or mortgagee. The debtor may reinstate the secured obligation and trust deed or mortgage following such a default by paying the entire amount due, at the time payment is tendered, with respect to [Civ. Code § 2924c(a)(1)]:

- All amounts of principal, interest, taxes, assessments, insurance premiums, or advances shown in the notice of default and actually known by the beneficiary to be, and that are, in default under the terms of the trust deed or mortgage and the secured obligation. The trustor or mortgagor need not pay, as a condition of reinstatement, any portion of the principal that, but for the acceleration on default, would not then be due.

- All amounts in default on recurring obligations not shown in the notice of default. For these purposes, "recurring obligations" means: all amounts of principal and interest on the loan, or rents, subject to the trust deed or mortgage in default due after the notice of default is recorded; all amounts of principal and interest or rents advanced on senior liens or leaseholds that are advanced after the recordation of the notice of default; and payments of taxes, assessments, and hazard insurance advanced after recordation of the notice of default.

- All reasonable costs and expenses that are actually incurred in enforcing the terms of the underlying obligation or the trust deed or mortgage, subject to Civ. Code § 2924c(c) [see § 25D.204[1][c][ii]].

- Trustee's or attorney's fees, subject to Civ. Code § 2924c(d) [see § 25D.204[1][c][iii]].

[iii] Other Defaults

A literal reading of Civ. Code § 2924c indicates that the statutory reinstatement notice must be included in a notice of default only for defaults that can be cured by the payment of money. However, given the fact that the statutory statement itself directs the recipient to contact the beneficiary or mortgagee "to find out the amount you must pay, or to arrange for payment to stop the foreclosure, or if your property is in foreclosure for any other reason" [Civ. Code § 2924c(b)(1)], prudent practice is to include the required statutory statement in a notice of default for any type of default, including a nonmonetary default.

[iv] Type and Print Requirements

The statutory reinstatement notice must, if printed, appear in at least 12-point boldface type, with the following exception: the language set forth in the form below in all capital letters must appear in 14-point boldface type if printed, or in capital letters if typed [Civ. Code § 2924c(b)(1)].

[v] Spanish Language Requirements

The reinstatement notice must be in Spanish under either of the following circumstances. First, it must be in Spanish if the trustor or mortgagor "received" a Spanish translation of the secured agreement under Civ. Code § 1632(b)(1) or (4) [Civ. Code § 2924c(b)(1); see Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans, § 45.64]. The term "received" is set out in quotation marks above because Civ. Code § 2924c uses the word "requested" instead, and consequentially does not reflect the provisions of Civ. Code § 1632. Section 1632 has been amended to delete the requirement that the trustor or mortgagor (or other eligible recipient) must request a Spanish translation of the secured agreement (or other document subject to Civ. Code § 1632). Although Civ. Code § 2924c has not been revised to reflect that change, counsel should assume that the reinstatement notice must be in Spanish if the trustor or mortgagor received (as opposed to requested) a Spanish translation of the secured agreement under Civ. Code § 1632(b)(1) or (4). This follows, since under § 1632, the translation is required to include a translation of every term and condition in that contract or agreement, with specified exceptions [Civ. Code § 1632(a)]. In addition, effective July 1, 2004, the scope of Civ. Code § 1632 now applies to any person who negotiates primarily in Chinese, Tagalog, Vietnamese, or Korean, orally or in writing, in the course of entering into specified types of contracts or agreements [Civ. Code § 1632(b); see 2003 Stats., ch. 330, § 2; see also 2003 Stats., ch. 589, § 2].

Second, the reinstatement notice must be in Spanish if the secured contract was principally negotiated in Spanish and is a home improvement contract subject to the Unruh Act [Civ. Code § 2924c(b)(1); see Civ. Code § 1801 et seq. (Unruh Act); Bus. & Prof. Code § 7151.2 ("home improvement contract" defined); see also Ch. 89, Home Improvement and Specialty Contracts]. The assignee of any covered home improvement contract and the person authorized to record the notice of default do not incur any obligation or liability for failing to mail a notice in Spanish unless Spanish is specified in the contract or the assignee or person has actual knowledge that the secured obligation was principally negotiated in Spanish [Civ. Code § 2924c(b)(1)].

[vi] Violations

Failure to comply with the notice provisions of Civ. Code § 2924c(b) does not affect the validity of a sale in favor of a bona fide purchaser or the rights of an encumbrancer for value and without notice [Civ. Code § 2924c(b)(2)].

[e] Mailing of Notice

[i] To Trustors and Persons Requesting Notice

The mortgagee, trustee, or other person authorized to record the notice of default must, within 10 business days [see Civ. Code § 9 (definition of "business day")] after recordation of the notice, send by registered or certified mail, postage prepaid, copies of the notice (containing the recording date) to (1) each person whose name and address are set forth in a duly recorded request therefor, directed to the address designated in that request; and (2) each trustor or mortgagor at the address specified in the trust deed or mortgage [Civ. Code § 2924b(d)] or at his or her last known address if different from the address specified in the trust deed or mortgage [Civ. Code § 2924b(b)(1), (3)].

"Last known address" of each trustor or mortgagor means the last business or residence physical address actually known by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or other person authorized to record the notice of default. A physical address does not include an e-mail address or any form of electronic address for a trustor or mortgagor. An address is "actually known" if it is contained in the original deed of trust or mortgage, or in any subsequent written notification of a change of physical address from the trustor or mortgagor pursuant to the deed of trust or mortgage [Civ. Code § 2924b(b)(3)]. The beneficiary must inform the trustee of the trustor's last address actually known by the beneficiary. However, the trustee incurs no liability for failing to send any notice to the last address unless the trustee has actual knowledge of it [Civ. Code § 2924b(b)(3)].

Simultaneously with the mailing of a copy of the notice of default by registered or certified mail to the trustor or mortgagor, the mortgagee, trustee, or other person authorized to record the notice of default, must send an additional copy of the notice of default by first-class mail (postage prepaid) to each trustor or mortgagor at the same address, and then execute and retain an affidavit or declaration [see § 25D.207[2]] indicating compliance with this requirement [Civ. Code § 2924b(e)].

[ii] To Other Specified Persons

Copies of the notice of default containing the recording date must also be mailed by registered or certified mail, postage prepaid, to certain persons with a recorded interest in the property, within one month after recordation of the notice of default [Civ. Code § 2924b(c)(1)]. Specifically, copies must be sent to [Civ. Code § 2924b(c)(2)]:

- The successor in interest, as of the recording date of the notice of default, of all or any part of the estate or interest of the trustor or mortgagor of the trust deed or mortgage being foreclosed.

- The beneficiary or mortgagee of any trust deed or mortgage recorded subsequent to the trust deed or mortgage being foreclosed or recorded prior to or concurrently with the trust deed or mortgage being foreclosed but subject to a recorded agreement or a recorded statement of subordination to the trust deed or mortgage being foreclosed.

- The assignee of any interest of the junior beneficiary or junior mortgagee described above, as of the recording date of the notice of default.

- The vendee of any contract of sale or the lessee of any lease of the estate or interest being foreclosed that is recorded subsequent to the trust deed or mortgage being foreclosed, or that is recorded before or concurrently with the trust deed or mortgage being foreclosed but is subject to a recorded agreement or statement of subordination to the trust deed or mortgage being foreclosed.

- The successor in interest to the vendee or lessee described above, as of the recording date of the notice of default.

- The Office of the Controller in Sacramento if, as of the recording date of the notice of default, a "Notice of Lien for Postponed Property Taxes" has been recorded against the encumbered real property.

The address to which a copy of the notice of default must be mailed for each of the above persons is the address indicated in the recorded instrument evidencing the person's recorded interest and to which the county recorder is instructed to return the instrument after recording [Civ. Code § 2924b(c)(1)].

If there is a successor in interest of the trustor or mortgagor described in the first bulleted item, above, an additional copy of the notice of default must be mailed by first-class mail, postage prepaid, to the successor in interest of record, and an affidavit or declaration of mailing [see § 25D.207] must be executed [see Civ. Code § 2924b(e)].

[f] Publication or Personal Delivery of Notice

A copy of the notice of default must be published if (1) the deed of trust or mortgage does not contain a mailing address of the trustor or mortgagor named in it; and (2) the trustor or mortgagor has not recorded a request for notice under Civ. Code § 2924b(a) [see § 25D.200]. The copy of the notice must be published once a week for at least four weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in the county in which the property is located. The publication must commence within 10 days after the filing of the notice of default [Civ. Code § 2924b(d)]. In lieu of publication, either of the following may be done: (1) a copy of the notice of default may be delivered personally to the trustor or mortgagor within 10 days after the filing of the notice or at any time before publication is completed; or (2) a copy of the notice of default may be posted in a conspicuous place on the property and another copy may be mailed to the trustor's or mortgagor's last known address [Civ. Code § 2924b(d)].

[g] Privileged Communications

The mailing, publication, and delivery of the notice of default, and the performance of related statutory procedures, constitute privileged communications within the meaning of Civ. Code § 47 [Civ. Code § 2924(d)].

[h] Notices Required by Collection Agents

An agent who collects payments under a secured promissory note for a mortgagee, beneficiary, or owner of the note must send a copy of the notice of default and other notices to the mortgagee, beneficiary, or owner under certain circumstances [see Civ. Code § 2924.3 (applicable to default under trust deed or mortgage on real property or on an estate for years in real property); see also § 25D.121, P 10].

[i] Notices Addressed to Attorneys, Agents, or Employees

The statutory procedure for mailing of the notice of default does not impose on any licensed attorney, agent, or employee of any person entitled to receive the notice of default any duty to communicate that notice to the person entitled to receive it by virtue of the fact that the mailing address used by the county recorder is the address of the attorney, agent, or employee [Civ. Code § 2924b(c)(5)].

[j] Declaration in Compliance With Temporary Foreclosure-Relief Provisions for Residential Properties

A mortgagee, trustee, beneficiary, or authorized agent, is required to comply with several temporary provisions in the Civil Code for the relief of homeowners facing foreclosure of their mortgage loans. Those relief provisions are discussed in California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages, § 555.51A (Matthew Bender), and in California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 123, Nonjudicial Foreclosure, § 123.08 (Matthew Bender).

One of those provisions applies to a loan that is secured by a mortgage or deed of trust recorded from January 1, 2003, to December 31, 2007, inclusive, on real property that is the principal residence of the borrower (as indicated to the lender in loan documents) containing no more than four dwelling units [Civ. Code § 2923.5(i)]. In such a case, a mortgagee, trustee, beneficiary, or authorized agent may not file a notice of default until 30 days after initial contact was made with the borrower, in person or by telephone, in order to assess the borrower's financial situation and explore options for the borrower to avoid foreclosure, or until 30 days after satisfying due-diligence requirements as described in Civ. Code § 2923.5(g) [Civ. Code § 2923.5(a)]. A notice of default must include a declaration that the mortgagee, beneficiary, or authorized agent has contacted the borrower, or has tried with due diligence to contact the borrower as required by Civ. Code § 2923.5(g), or that no contact was required pursuant to Civ. Code § 2923.5(h) [Civ. Code § 2923.5(b)]. Regarding the provisions of Civ. Code § 2923.5(g) and (h), see § 25D.31[2].

This provision will remain in effect only until January 1, 2013, and as of that date is repealed, unless a later enacted statute, that is enacted before January 1, 2013, deletes or extends that date [Civ. Code § 2923.5(j)].

[If default is curable pursuant to Civ. Code § 2924c, insert following typed or printed statement (if printed, use at least 12-point type unless otherwise indicated). Capitalized boldface material immediately below must be set in 14-point boldface type if printed, or in capital letters if typed.]

IMPORTANT NOTICE

IF YOUR PROPERTY IS IN FORECLOSURE BECAUSE YOU ARE BEHIND IN YOUR PAYMENTS, IT MAY BE SOLD WITHOUT ANY COURT ACTION, and you may have the legal right to bring your account in good standing by paying all of your past due payments plus permitted costs and expenses within the time permitted by law for reinstatement of your account, which is normally five business days prior to the date set for the sale of your property. No sale date may be set until three months from the date this notice of default may be recorded (which date of recordation appears on this notice). This amount is _____ as of _____[date], and will increase until your account becomes current.

While your property is in foreclosure, you still must pay other obligations (such as insurance and taxes) required by your note and deed of trust or mortgage. If you fail to make future payments on the loan, pay taxes on the property, provide insurance on the property, or pay other obligations as required in the note and deed of trust or mortgage, the beneficiary or mortgagee may insist that you do so in order to reinstate your account in good standing. In addition, the beneficiary or mortgagee may require as a condition to reinstatement that you provide reliable written evidence that you paid all senior liens, property taxes, and hazard insurance premiums.

Upon your written request, the beneficiary or mortgagee will give you a written itemization of the entire amount you must pay. You may not have to pay the entire unpaid portion of your account, even though full payment was demanded, but you must pay all amounts in default at the time payment is made. However, you and your beneficiary or mortgagee may mutually agree in writing before the time the notice of sale is posted (which may not be earlier than the end of the three-month period stated above) to, among other things, (1) provide additional time in which to cure the default by transfer of the property or otherwise; (2) establish a schedule of payments in order to cure your default; or both (1) and (2).

Following the expiration of the time period referred to in the first paragraph of this notice, unless the obligation being foreclosed upon or a separate written agreement between you and your creditor permits a longer period, you have only the legal right to stop the sale of your property by paying the entire amount demanded by your creditor.

To find out the amount you must pay, or to arrange for payment to stop the foreclosure, or if your property is in foreclosure for any other reason, contact:

_____ [name of beneficiary or mortgagee]
_____ [mailing address]
_____ [telephone]

If you have any questions, you should contact a lawyer or the government agency that may have insured your loan.

Notwithstanding the fact that your property is in foreclosure, you may offer your property for sale, provided the sale is concluded prior to the conclusion of the foreclosure.

[Capitalized boldface material immediately below must be set in 14-point boldface type if printed, or in capital letters if typed.]

§ 25D.203 Statement of Default Under Unruh Act Contract [Civ. Code § 2924f(c)]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a statement, prescribed by statute, describing the consequences of a default under an obligation arising out of a contract for goods or services subject to the Unruh Act [Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.]. The statement must be used in addition to a notice of default when (1) the obligation is contained in the type of contract described above; (2) the obligation is secured by a deed of trust or mortgage on real property containing a single-family, owner-occupied residence; and (3) the default has not been cured within 30 days of the recordation date of the notice of default. The trustee or mortgagee must mail a copy of the statutory statement (this form) to the trustor or mortgagor at his or her last known address [Civ. Code § 2924f(c)].

This statement must also be included in the trustee's notice of sale [Civ. Code § 2924f(b); see § 25D.206].

The exercise of a power of sale in a trust deed or mortgage described above must, as a general rule, comply with the requirements for nonjudicial foreclosures discussed throughout this chapter [see Civ. Code § 2924f(c)(1), (2)]. However, the sale must also comply with the special statutory requirements and procedures discussed in [b], below.

[b] Special Statutory Sale Requirements

The sale of real property pursuant to a power of sale in any deed of trust or mortgage described in Civ. Code § 2924f(c) [see [a], above] must be held in the county where the residence is located and must be made to the person making the highest offer. The trustee may receive offers during the 10-day period immediately before the date of sale. If any offer is accepted in writing by both the trustor or mortgagor and the beneficiary or mortgagee before the time set for sale, the sale must be postponed to a specified date. Prior to that date, the trustor may convey the property to the offeror according to the terms of the offer. The offer is revocable until accepted. The acceptance of the offer and conveyance of the property to the offeror terminate any further proceedings under the notice of sale, and the notice is deemed revoked [Civ. Code § 2924f(c)(4)].

In addition to the regular trustee fee authorized by statute [see § 25D.204[1]], the trustee or mortgagee may charge an additional fee of $50 [Civ. Code § 2924f(c)(5)].

§ 25D.204 Tender of Sum in Default

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a written tender that may be used to reinstate a debt pursuant to Civ. Code § 2924c. The reinstatement provisions of § 2924c apply when there has been (1) a default in the payment of principal, interest, or certain other sums required under a trust deed or mortgage on real property or on an estate for years in real property, and (2) a resulting acceleration of the outstanding indebtedness. In that case, the mortgagor or trustor (or successor in interest of either) or a junior beneficiary or lienholder may cure the default by paying to the beneficiary or mortgagee (or successor in interest of either) the amounts in default under the trust deed or mortgage, all amounts in default on recurring obligations, permitted costs and expenses, and trustee's or attorneys' fees [see [c], below].

Once the default is cured, the secured obligation and the security instrument are reinstated in full force and effect, as if no acceleration had occurred, and any pending foreclosure proceedings must be dismissed or discontinued. However, if the beneficiary or mortgagee has made no advances on defaults that would constitute recurring obligations [see [c][i], below], the beneficiary or mortgagee may require the trustor or mortgagor to provide reliable written evidence that the required amounts have been paid prior to reinstatement [Civ. Code § 2924c(a)(1)].

This form assumes that the underlying security instrument is a deed of trust. It may be easily modified for use in a transaction involving a mortgage.

[b] Reinstatement Period

In the case of a nonjudicial foreclosure, reinstatement may be made at any time within the period commencing with the date of recordation of the notice of default [§ 25D.202[2]] until five business days before the date of sale set forth in the initial recorded notice of sale [Civ. Code § 2924c(e)]. For judicial foreclosures, reinstatement may be made at any time prior to entry of the decree of foreclosure [Civ. Code § 2924c(a)(1)].

If the sale does not occur on the date set forth in the initial recorded notice of sale [see § 25D.206[2]], or if a subsequent recorded notice of sale must be given, the right of reinstatement is revived as of the date of recordation of the subsequent notice of sale, and continues from that date until five business days before the date of sale set forth in the subsequently recorded notice of sale [Civ. Code § 2924c(e)].

If the sale is postponed on the date of sale set forth in either an initial or any subsequent notice of sale, or is postponed on the date declared for sale at an immediately preceding postponement of sale, and the postponement is for more than five business days from the date set forth in the notice of sale or declared at the time of postponement, the right of reinstatement is revived as of the date of postponement and continues from that date until five business days before the date of sale declared at the time of the postponement [Civ. Code § 2924c(e)].

There is no right of reinstatement during the period of five business days prior to the date of sale, whether the date of sale is noticed in a notice of sale or declared at a postponement of sale. Consequently, no beneficiary, trustee, mortgagee, or agent or successor of the foregoing, or any beneficiary under a subordinate deed of trust or mortgage or any other person having a subordinate lien or encumbrance of record, is liable to a trustor, mortgagor, or his or her agent or successor for failing to allow a reinstatement during that five-day period [Civ. Code § 2924c(e)].

[c] Amount Required to Reinstate

[i] Secured and Recurring Obligations

To reinstate the obligation and trust deed or mortgage declared in default, the trustor or mortgagor (or successor in interest of either) or the holder of a junior lien interest must pay the following [Civ. Code § 2924c(a)(1)]:

- All amounts of principal, interest, taxes, assessments, insurance premiums, or advances shown in the notice of default and actually known by the beneficiary to be, and that are, in default under the terms of the trust deed or mortgage and the secured obligation. The trustor or mortgagor need not pay, as a condition of reinstatement, any portion of the principal that, but for the acceleration on default, would not then be due.

- All amounts in default on recurring obligations not shown in the notice of default. For these purposes, "recurring obligations" means all amounts of principal and interest on the loan, or rents, subject to the trust deed or mortgage in default due after the notice of default is recorded; all amounts of principal and interest or rents advanced on senior liens or leaseholds that are advanced after the recordation of the notice of default; and payments of taxes, assessments, and hazard insurance advanced after recordation of the notice of default.

- All reasonable costs and expenses that are actually incurred in enforcing the terms of the underlying obligation or the trust deed or mortgage, subject to Civ. Code § 2924c(c) [see [ii], below].

- Trustee's or attorneys' fees, subject to Civ. Code § 2924c(d) [see [iii], below].

[ii] Costs and Expenses

Costs and expenses that may be charged pursuant to Civ. Code § 2924 et seq. are limited to the costs incurred for recording, mailing, publishing, and posting notices pursuant to the statutory requirements [see Civ. Code §§ 2924-2924i], and for any request for postponement made pursuant to Civ. Code § 2924g. The fee recoverable for each such postponement cannot exceed $50. A fee for a trustee's sale guarantee or, in the event of judicial foreclosure, a litigation guarantee, may also be charged to the debtor. A trustee or beneficiary may purchase a trustee's sale guarantee at a rate meeting the standards contained in Ins. Code §§ 12401.1 and 12401.3 [Civ. Code § 2924c(c)].

[iii] Trustee's or Attorneys' Fees

The trustee's or attorneys' fees that may be charged as a condition for reinstatement in a nonjudicial foreclosure proceeding differ depending on whether reinstatement occurs before or after the notice of sale [see § 25D.206[2]] is mailed. Before the mailing of the notice of sale, the limitations on trustee's or attorneys' fees cannot exceed the following limits: $300 if the unpaid principal sum secured is $150,000 or less, or $250 if the unpaid principal sum secured exceeds $150,000, plus one half of one percent of this sum exceeding $50,000 up to and including $150,000, plus one quarter of one percent of any portion of this sum exceeding $150,000 up to and including $500,000, plus one eighth of one percent of any portion of this sum exceeding $500,000. Any charge for trustee's or attorneys' fees is conclusively presumed to be lawful and valid if the charge does not exceed the amounts specified above. The unpaid principal sum secured must be determined as of the date the notice of default is recorded [Civ. Code § 2924c(d)].

The following table summarizes these fee limitations:

Authorized Fee	Unpaid Principal
$300 base amount	Up to $150,000
$250 base amount	Over $150,000

Plus the following added to base amount:

1/2 of 1%	$50,001-$150,000
1/4 of 1%	$150,001-$500,000
1/8 of 1%	$500,001 and up

The limitations above also apply to any trustee's or attorneys' fees that are charged, as a condition to reinstatement, at any time before the entry of a foreclosure decree in a judicial foreclosure proceeding [Civ. Code § 2924c(d)].

For discussion of the amount of trustee's or attorneys' fees that may be charged after the mailing of a notice of sale or after the sale of the property pursuant to a power of sale, see § 25D.206[1].

[d] Notice of Rescission

If the trustor, mortgagor, or other authorized person cures the default, the beneficiary or mortgagee must, within 21 days following the reinstatement, execute and deliver to the "trustee" [see discussion, below] a notice of rescission that rescinds the declaration of default and demand for sale and advises the trustee of the date of reinstatement. The trustee must cause the notice of rescission to be recorded within 30 days of receipt of the notice of rescission and of all allowable fees and costs [Civ. Code § 2924c(a)(2); see § 25D.205[2]].

As mentioned above, Civ. Code § 2924c(a)(2) requires the beneficiary or mortgagee to deliver the notice of rescission to the "trustee," and provides that the trustee must cause that notice to be recorded. Of course, if the underlying security instrument is a mortgage, there will be no trustee. Civ. Code § 2924c(a)(2) has not yet been amended to clarify the procedure that should be followed when the transaction involves a mortgage.

[e] Right to Beneficiary's Statement or Payoff Demand Statement

Certain entitled persons have the right to demand and obtain a beneficiary statement or a payoff demand statement from a mortgagee or a beneficiary under a trust deed [Civ. Code § 2943(b) (beneficiary statement), (c) (payoff demand statement)]. For these purposes, "entitled persons" means the trustor or mortgagor (or successor in interest of either), subordinate lienholders, and certain escrow holders [see Civ. Code § 2943(a)(4) (definition)]. A beneficiary statement is requested when an existing obligation is to be assumed rather than paid in full [see Civ. Code § 2943(a)(2) (definition and required contents); see also Ch. 25B, Subordination, Assumption, and Assignment]. A payoff demand statement sets forth the amounts required (as of the date of the preparation of the statement) to satisfy fully all obligations secured by the loan that is the subject of the payoff demand statement [Civ. Code § 2943(a)(5); see Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans], and is requested when the obligation will be paid off through the sale of the property.

§ 25D.205 Notice of Rescission of Notice of Default

[1] Comment--Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a notice of rescission that may be used by a beneficiary or mortgagee to rescind a notice of default and demand for sale [see § 25D.202] recorded in a nonjudicial foreclosure proceeding. If the trustor, mortagor, or other authorized person cures the default [see § 25D.204], the beneficiary or mortgagee must, within 21 days following the reinstatement, execute and deliver to the "trustee" a notice of rescission (this form) that (1) rescinds the declaration of default and demand for sale, and (2) advises the trustee of the date of reinstatement. Thereafter, the trustee must cause the notice of rescission to be recorded within 30 days of receipt of the notice of rescission and of all allowable fees and costs. The trustor or mortgagor may not be charged (except for the recording fee) for the execution and recordation of the notice of rescission [Civ. Code § 2924c(a)(2)].

As mentioned above, Civ. Code § 2924c(a)(2) requires the beneficiary or mortgagee to deliver the notice of rescission to the "trustee," and provides that the trustee must cause that notice to be recorded. Of course, if the underlying security instrument is a mortgage, there will be no trustee. Civ. Code § 2924c(a)(2) has not yet been amended to clarify the procedure that should be followed when the transaction involves a mortgage.

§ 25D.206 Notice of Trustee's Sale [Civ. Code § 2924f]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a notice of a sale of property to be made under a power of sale contained in a deed of trust. It may be adapted for use to give notice of a sale under a power of sale contained in a mortgage. The notice must be mailed, posted, published, and recorded in accordance with the statutory requirements discussed throughout this comment before the sale may take place or before any resale resulting from a rescission of a previously held sale [see Civ. Code §§ 2924f, 2924h].

A notice of sale may not be given until three months have elapsed from the date of recordation of a notice of default [see Civ. Code § 2924(a)(2), (3); see also § 25D.202[2] (notice of default)].

For the procedures for conducting a sale, see § 25D.125.

[b] Heading and Typeface

The notice of sale must conform to the minimum requirements of Gov. Code § 6043 [Civ. Code § 2924f(b)(1)]. Thus, it must be set in type that is not smaller than nonpareil. Further, it must be preceded with words (that is, a heading) that (1) are printed in black-face type that is not smaller than nonpareil, and (2) describe or express in general terms the purport or character of the notice intended to be given [Gov. Code § 6043].

[c] Contents of Notice

[i] Time and Place of Sale

The notice of sale must state the time of sale and the street address and specific place at that address where the sale will be held [Civ. Code § 2924f(b)(1)]. The sale may be held anywhere in the county where the property (or a portion of it) is located. The time of sale must be between the hours of 9:00 A.M. and 5:00 P.M. on any business day, Monday through Friday [Civ. Code § 2924g(a)].

[ii] Information Relating to Trustor and Person Conducting Sale

The notice of sale must contain the trustee's name, street address in California (which may reflect an agent of the trustee), and telephone number in California (or a toll-free telephone number). The notice of sale must also contain the name of the original trustor and the notice of default set forth in Civ. Code § 2924f(c)(3) [Civ. Code § 2924f(b)(1)].

[iii] Property Description and Designation

In addition to any other description of the property that may be set forth in the notice of sale, the notice must describe the property by giving (1) its street address, if any, or other common designation, if any, and (2) a county assessor's parcel number [Civ. Code § 2924f(b)(1)]. If the property has no street address or other common designation, the notice must contain a legal description of the property, the name and address of the beneficiary at whose request the sale is to be conducted, and a statement that directions may be obtained pursuant to a written request submitted to the beneficiary within 10 days from the first publication of the notice. Directions are deemed reasonably sufficient to locate the property if information about the location of the property is given by reference to the direction and approximate distance from the nearest crossroads, frontage road, or access road [Civ. Code § 2924f(b)(1)]. However, if the notice contains a legal description or a county assessor's parcel number and either a street address or another common designation of the property, the validity of the notice is not affected by the fact that the street address, other common designation, name and address of the beneficiary, or the directions obtained from the beneficiary are erroneous or omitted [Civ. Code § 2924f(b)(1)].

A trustee or any other person may state that a property subject to a recorded notice of default or subject to a nonjudicial foreclosure sale is being sold in an "as-is" condition [Civ. Code § 2924h(g)].

[iv] Statement of Unpaid Balance of Obligation and Expenses

The notice of sale must contain a statement of the total amount of the unpaid balance of the secured obligation and reasonably estimated costs, expenses, and advances at the time of the initial publication of the notice of sale [see § 25D.206[1][l]]. If the notice of sale is being republished pursuant to a cancellation of the cash equivalent bid by the highest bidder at a previous sale [see § 25D.206[1][p]], the notice must also contain a reference to that fact [Civ. Code § 2924f(b)(1)] and include the costs of giving the new notice [see Civ. Code § 2924h(d)]. The trustee, however, does not incur any liability for any good faith error in stating the proper amount, including any amount provided in good faith by or on behalf of the beneficiary. Furthermore, an inaccurate statement of the amount will not affect the validity of any sale to a bona fide purchaser for value [Civ. Code § 2924f(b)(1)].

[v] Description of Personal Property or Fixtures

If the sale is to be a unified sale of real property and personal property [see Com. Code § 9604(a)(1)(B)], the notice of sale must also contain a description of the personal property or fixtures to be sold. If all of the personal property or fixtures are to be sold, the description of the personal property or fixtures will be sufficient if it is the same as the description of the personal property or fixtures contained in the agreement creating the security interest in or encumbrance on the personal property or fixtures or the filed financing statement relating to the personal property or fixtures. In all other cases, the description will be sufficient if it would be a sufficient description of the personal property or fixtures under Com. Code § 9108 [Civ. Code § 2924f(b)(2)]. A description of personal property is sufficient, whether or not it is specific, if it reasonably identifies what is described. Personal property may be referred to by general kind or class if the property can be reasonably identified as falling within the general kind or class, or if it can be so identified when it is acquired by the debtor [Com. Code § 9108(a)]. There are a variety of ways in which a description may reasonably identify personal property. A description reasonably identifies the property if it describes it by [Com. Code § 9108(b)]:

- Specific listing.
- Category.
- A type of collateral defined in the Commercial Code [see Com. Code § 9108(e) (exception)].
- Quantity.
- Computational or allocational formula or procedure.
- Any other method, if the identity of the property is objectively determinable [see Com. Code § 9108(c) (exception)].

Inclusion in the notice of a reference to or a description of personal property or fixtures will not constitute an election by the secured party to conduct a unified sale pursuant to Com. Code § 9604(a)(1)(B), will not obligate the secured party to conduct a unified sale pursuant to that statute, and will not render defective or noncomplying either that notice or a sale pursuant to that notice by reason of the fact that the sale includes none or less than all of the personal property or fixtures referred to or described in the notice [Civ. Code § 2924f(b)(2)].

This form assumes that the sale will involve only real property. For additional coverage of unified sales, see § 25D.15.

[vi] Statement of Default

The notice of sale must contain the statement required by Civ. Code § 2924f(c)(3) [see § 25D.203], which warns the property owner that he or she is in default, states that the property may be sold, and suggests that the owner consult an attorney [Civ. Code § 2924f(b)(1)]. Although the statute does not require the statement to be printed in large or boldface type, it is set forth in all capital letters in the following form since that is how it appears in the statute [see Civ. Code § 2924f(c)(3)].

[vii] Statement Regarding Extraordinary Extension of Time

Normally a notice of sale cannot be given until after the passage of three months from the date of filing of the notice of default [Civ. Code § 2924(a)(2),(3); see § 25D.206[1][a]]. However, starting June 15, 2009, until January 1, 2011, in some cases in which the delinquent loan is secured by residential real property, that mandatory delay is extended an additional 90 days, in order to allow the parties to pursue a loan modification so as to prevent the impending foreclosure [Civ. Code § 2923.52(a); see Civ. Code § 2923.52(d),(e) (operative date and sunset date)]. The notice of sale may nevertheless be given after the passage of three months from the date of filing of the notice of default, if (among other conditions that could be satisfied for the exception to apply) the delinquent loan is serviced by a mortgage loan servicer that has obtained a temporary or final order of exemption from the appropriate regulatory agency, and that order is current and valid at the time the notice of sale is given [Civ. Code §§ 2923.52(b), 2923.53]. A notice of sale filed pursuant to Civ. Code § 2924f must include a declaration from the trustee, mortgagee, or other mortgage loan servicer, stating (1) whether or not a final or temporary order of exemption was obtained pursuant to Civ. Code § 2923.53 and is current and valid on the date the notice of sale is filed and (2) whether the 90-day extension for giving notice of sale, specified in Civ. Code § 2923.52(a), applies or does not apply [Civ. Code § 2923.54(a)].

For further discussion of the extraordinary provisions of Civ. Code §§ 2923.52-2923.55, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages, § 555.54[1][f] (Matthew Bender).

[d] Posting of Notice

The notice of sale must be posted at least 20 days before the date of sale in the following locations: (1) in one public place in the city (or judicial district if the sale will not take place in a city) where the property is to be sold; and (2) in some conspicuous place on the property to be sold, if this is possible and not restricted for any reason. If the property to be sold is a single-family residence, the posting must be on a door of the residence, unless this action is not possible or is restricted, in which case the notice must be posted in a conspicuous place on the property. However, if access to the property is denied because a common entrance to the property is restricted by a guard gate or similar impediment, the notice may be posted at that place [Civ. Code § 2924f(b)(1)].

[e] Publication of Notice

The notice of sale must be published once a week for three consecutive calendar weeks, with the first publication occurring at least 20 days preceding the date of sale. Publication must be in a newspaper of general circulation published in the city in which the property is situated (or judicial district if the property is not located in a city), if there is such a newspaper. If there is no such newspaper, the notice must appear in a newspaper of general circulation published in the county in which some or all of the property is located. If no newspaper of general circulation is published in the city, judicial district, or county, publication must be in a newspaper of general circulation published in the California county that is contiguous to the county in which all or part of the property is situated and that has the highest population of all similarly contiguous counties. The determination of the populations of the contiguous counties must be based on the total county populations as determined by the most recent federal decennial census published by the Bureau of the Census [Civ. Code § 2924f(b)(1)].

[f] Recordation of Notice

At least 20 days before the date of sale of the property, the notice of sale must be recorded with the county recorder of the county in which the property (or a part of the property) is located [Civ. Code § 2924f(b)(1)].

[g] Mailing of Notice

The mortgagee, trustee, or other person authorized to record the notice of default must, at least 20 days before the date of sale, send copies of the notice by registered or certified mail with postage prepaid to each of the following:

- Each person whose name and address are set forth in a duly recorded request for notice, directed to the address designated in the request;

- Each trustor or mortgagor, directed to the address designated in the deed of trust or mortgage [Civ. Code § 2924b(d)] or to his or her last known address if different from the address specified in the security instrument [Civ. Code § 2924b(b)(2); see Civ. Code § 2924b(b)(3) ("last known address" defined)];

- The Sacramento office of any state taxing agency that has recorded a notice of tax lien before the recording date of the notice of default against the real property to which the notice of default applies; and

- Certain other persons who have a recorded interest in the property [Civ. Code § 2924b(c)(2), (3)]. For discussion of the persons entitled to a copy of the notice of sale by virtue of a recorded interest in the property, see § 25D.202[1].

Simultaneously with the mailing by registered or certified mail, the mortgagee, trustee, or other person must send an additional copy of the notice of sale by first-class mail (postage prepaid) to each trustor or mortgagor at the same address, and then execute and retain an affidavit or declaration [see § 25D.207[2]] indicating compliance with this requirement [Civ. Code § 2924b(e)].

[h] Notice of Sale to Internal Revenue Service

The mortgagee, trustee, or other person authorized to record the notice of default must provide a copy of the notice of sale to the Internal Revenue Service, in accordance with I.R.C. § 7425 and any applicable federal regulation, if a "Notice of Federal Tax Lien under Internal Revenue Laws" has been recorded, after the deed of trust or mortgage being foreclosed, against the real property to which the notice of sale applies. The failure to provide the Internal Revenue Service with a copy of the notice of sale is sufficient cause to rescind the trustee's sale and invalidate the trustee's deed, at the option of either the successful bidder at the trustee's sale or the trustee, and in either case with the beneficiary's consent. Any option to rescind the trustee's sale under this provision must be exercised before any transfer of the property by the successful bidder to a bona fide purchaser for value. The rescission of the trustee's sale may be recorded in a notice of rescission pursuant to Civ. Code § 1058.5 [Civ. Code § 2924b(c)(4)].

[i] Privileged Communications

The mailing, publication, and delivery of the notice of sale, and the performance of related statutory procedures, constitute privileged communications within the meaning of Civ. Code § 47 [Civ. Code § 2924(d)].

[j] Special Requirements for Collection Agents

An agent who collects payments under a secured promissory note for a mortgagee, beneficiary, or owner of the note must send notice of the time and place scheduled for the trustee's sale to the mortgagee, beneficiary, or owner under certain circumstances [see Civ. Code § 2924.3(a); see also § 25D.121, P 10].

[k] Notice to Federal Government

If the federal government has a tax lien on the property, the Internal Revenue Service must be given notice of the sale at least 25 days before the date of sale [I.R.C. § 7425(c)]. If that is not done, the federal tax lien will not be disturbed by the sale and the Internal Revenue Service will have the right to redeem the property within 120 days from the date of sale [I.R.C. § 7425(b), (d); see § 25D.123, P 3a].

[l] Costs, Expenses, and Fees

[i] After Mailing of Notice but Before Sale

Commencing with the date that the notice of sale is mailed, and until the property is sold pursuant to the power of sale, the beneficiary, trustee, mortgagee, or his or her agent or successor in interest may demand and receive certain costs, expenses, trustee's fees, and attorneys' fees. Those charges may be demanded of the trustor or mortgagor, his or her agent or successor in interest, any beneficiary under a subordinate deed of trust, or any other person having a subordinate lien or encumbrance of record [Civ. Code § 2924d(a)].

Costs and expenses that may be charged pursuant to Civ. Code § 2924 et seq. are limited to the costs incurred (1) for recording, mailing, publishing, and posting notices pursuant to the statutory requirements [see Civ. Code §§ 2924-2924i], (2) for any request for postponement made pursuant to Civ. Code § 2924g (provided the charge does not exceed $50 per postponement), and (3) for a trustee's sale guarantee [Civ. Code § 2924c(c)].

The maximum trustee's or attorneys' fees that can be demanded are as follows [Civ. Code § 2924d(a)]:

- $425 base amount, if the unpaid principal sum secured is $150,000 or less, or $360 base amount if the unpaid principal sum secured is more that $150,000, plus the sum of the bulleted items below.

- One percent of any portion of the sum exceeding $50,000 up to and including $150,000.

- One half of one percent of any portion of the sum exceeding $150,000 up to and including $500,000.

- One quarter of one percent of any portion of the sum above $500,000.

The unpaid principal sum secured must be determined as of the date the notice of default is recorded [Civ. Code § 2924d(a)].

Trustee's or attorneys' fees that do not exceed the statutory maximum are conclusively presumed to be lawful and valid. The maximum fees are in lieu of and not in addition to those authorized to be charged for reinstatement after a notice of default has been filed but prior to the mailing of a notice of sale [Civ. Code § 2924d(a); see § 25D.206[1]]. They are also in lieu of the charges that may be collected after a sale pursuant to a power of sale [Civ. Code § 2924d(b); see § 25D.206[1][l][ii]].

[ii] After Foreclosure Sale

If property is sold pursuant to a power of sale, the trustee or his or her agent or successor in interest may demand and receive from the beneficiary, or the beneficiary's successor in interest, or may deduct from the sale proceeds certain costs, expenses, and trustee's or attorneys' fees. Specifically, the trustee may recover reasonable costs and expenses if they are actually incurred in enforcing the terms of the obligation and are for recording, mailing, publishing, and posting required notices or for a trustee's sale guarantee [Civ. Code § 2924d(b); see Civ. Code § 2924c(c)]. The trustee may also recover a fee no greater than $50 for any postponement of sale requested by the trustor [Civ. Code § 2924d(b); see Civ. Code § 2924c(c)]. Trustee's or attorneys' fees may be recovered provided they do not exceed $425 or one percent of the unpaid principal sum secured, whichever is greater [Civ. Code § 2924d(a)]. Any charge for trustee's or attorneys' fees that falls within the statutory maximum is conclusively presumed to be lawful and valid. The unpaid principal sum secured must be determined as of the date the notice of default is recorded. These trustee's or attorneys' fees are in lieu of and not in addition to those charges authorized for reinstatement prior to the mailing of the notice of sale [Civ. Code § 2924c(d); see § 25D.206[1]] and those charges authorized after the notice of sale has been mailed and before the property is sold [Civ. Code § 2924d(a), (b); see § 25D.206[1][l][i]].

[m] Prohibition Against Referral Rebates and Kickbacks

No person may pay, offer to pay, or collect any rebate or kickback for the referral of business involving the performance of any act required by the statutes regulating foreclosures of trust deeds and mortgages secured by real property. A violator is liable to the trustor for three times the amount of any rebate or kickback, plus reasonable attorneys' fees and costs, in addition to any other remedies provided by law. A violation does not affect the validity of a sale in favor of a bona fide purchaser or the rights of an encumbrancer for value without notice [Civ. Code § 2924d(c)].

[n] Payments by Trustee to Trustee's Agents

A trustee may pay or offer to pay a fee to an agent or subagent for work performed by the agent or subagent in discharging the trustee's obligations under the terms of the deed of trust. Any such payment is conclusively presumed to be lawful and valid if the fee, when combined with other fees of the trustee, does not exceed in the aggregate the trustee's fee authorized by statute [Civ. Code § 2924d(d); see § 25D.206[1][l][i]].

[o] New Notice of Sale Required After Postponements Exceeding 365 Days

The trustee has authority to postpone sale proceedings [see Civ. Code § 2924g(c)(1)], as described in § 25D.124. In the event that the sale proceedings are postponed for a period or periods totaling more than 365 days, the scheduling of any further sale proceedings must be preceded by giving a new notice of sale in the manner prescribed in Civ. Code § 2924f. New fees incurred for the new notice of sale must not exceed the amounts specified in Civ. Code §§ 2924c and 2924d and must not exceed reasonable costs that are necessary to comply with these requirements [Civ. Code § 2924g(c)(2)].

[p] Notice of Sale Required for Resales

A notice of sale must be given prior to any resale resulting from (1) a rescission of a previous sale due to a failure of consideration [Civ. Code §§ 2924f(b), 2924h(c); see § 25D.208]; or (2) the cancellation of an instrument submitted to the trustee as a cash equivalent by the last and highest bidder at a sale [Civ. Code § 2924h(d); see Civ. Code § 2924h(c); see also § 25D.125, P 9].

[q] New Notice of Sale Required for Substituted Trustee

Notwithstanding any provision in a trust deed, if the trustee in a trust deed is substituted after a notice of sale has been given, a new notice of sale containing the name, street address, and telephone number of the substituted trustee must be given pursuant to Civ. Code § 2924f. If this notice is not given, any sale conducted by the substituted trustee will be void [Civ. Code § 2934a(e)]. If the substitution of trustee occurs after a notice of default [§ 25D.202[2]] has been recorded but before the recording of the notice of sale, a copy of the substitution instrument must be mailed to the current trustee and to all persons entitled to receive the notice of default [Civ. Code § 2934a(c)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 25C, Release and Reconveyance .

PART IV. FORMS
A. Nonjudicial Foreclosure

10-25D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 25D.207

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 25D.207 Declaration of Mailing Notices

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a declaration stating that a notice of default or a notice of sale has been sent by first-class mail to a trustor or mortgagor. Any person required to send a copy of a notice of default or notice of sale by registered or certified mail to a trustor or mortgagor pursuant to Civ. Code § 2924b(b) or (c) [see §§ 25D.202[1][e], 25D.206[1][g]] must simultaneously mail an additional copy of the required notice by first-class mail (postage prepaid) to the trustor or mortgagor at the same address. That person must also execute and retain an affidavit (or declaration pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) [see [b], below] identifying the notice mailed and showing the following [Civ. Code § 2924b(e)]:

- The name and residence or business address of that person.
- That he or she is over 18 years old.
- The date of deposit in the mail.
- The name and address of the trustor or mortgagor to whom sent.
- That the envelope was sealed and deposited in the mail with postage fully prepaid.

In the absence of fraud, this affidavit/declaration establishes a conclusive presumption of mailing [Civ. Code § 2924b(e)].

[b] Effect of Declarations

Although Civ. Code § 2924b(e) requires the use of an affidavit of mailing, Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 permits the use of a declaration in lieu of any affidavit required by law. This form uses the declaration option because a declaration, unlike an affidavit, need not be made before an authorized officer [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2003 ("affidavit" is a written declaration under oath), 2012 (affidavit may be taken before any officer authorized to administer oaths)].

A declaration must be in writing and must be signed by the declarant. Further, the declaration must recite that the information contained in the declaration is true under penalty of perjury. The declaration must also (1) state the date and place of execution, if it is executed within California, or (2) state the date of execution and that it is a declaration under the laws of the State of California, if it is executed within or outside California [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5; see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5(a), (b) (model declarations)].

[c] Declaration for Other Mailings, Posting, and Publishing

Although there is no statutory requirement that the mailings of a notice of default or notice of sale by registered or certified mail or the posting or publishing of a notice required by statute in a nonjudicial foreclosure proceeding be documented by an affidavit or declaration, many practitioners elect to so document those facts [see § 25D.123, P 7] since the affidavits or declarations might be admissible as evidence that the requirements were satisfied [see Evid. Code §§ 1237, 1271]. This form may be modified to document the fact that those other requirements have been satisfied.

10-25D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 25D.208

§ 25D.208 Notice of Rescission of Sale

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a notice that a previously conducted sale of property is rescinded. It reflects the requirements of Civ. Code § 2924h(c). That statute applies only if the last and highest bidder at a trustee's sale submits a cash equivalent designated in the notice of sale or a check drawn on a credit union or a savings and loan association. In that case, the trustee's sale will be deemed final on the acceptance of the last and highest bid, and will be deemed perfected as of 8 A.M. on the actual date of sale if the trustee's deed is recorded within 15 calendar days of the sale. However, the sale is subject to an automatic rescission for a failure of consideration if the funds are not "available for withdrawal" as defined in Ins. Code § 12413.1 [see [b], below]. Following an automatic rescission, the trustee must send a notice of the rescission to the last and highest bidder submitting the check or alternative instrument, if the trustee knows the address of the bidder [Civ. Code § 2924h(c)].

If a sale results in an automatic right of rescission for the failure of consideration, the interest of any lienholder must be reinstated in the same priority as if the previous sale had not occurred [Civ. Code § 2924h(c)].

[b] Availability of Funds

As mentioned in [a], above, automatic rescission results when the funds are not "available for withdrawal" as defined in Ins. Code § 12413.1 [Civ. Code § 2924h(c)]. Under § 12413.1, when a draft (other than a share draft) has been submitted for collection, "available for withdrawal" means when the draft has been submitted for collection and payment received [Ins. Code § 12413.1(e)]. Further, § 12413.1 adopts by reference the definition of "available for withdrawal" set forth in 12 C.F.R. § 229.2(d), as that regulation existed on January 1, 1990 [Ins. Code § 12413.1(g)]. The version of § 229.2(d) in effect on that date has not been revised. It defines the foregoing term to mean "available for all uses generally permitted to the customer for actually and finally collected funds under the bank's account agreement or policies, such as for payment of checks drawn on the account, certification of checks drawn on the account, electronic payments, withdrawals by cash, and transfers between accounts" [12 C.F.R. § 229.2(d)].

PART IV. FORMS
A. Nonjudicial Foreclosure

10-25D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 25D.209

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 25D.209 Trustee's Deed

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a trustee's deed, which should be executed by a trustee in favor of the purchaser of property sold at a nonjudicial foreclosure sale. If the trustee accepts a check drawn by a credit union or a savings and loan association or a cash equivalent designated as acceptable by the trustee in the notice of sale, the trustee is authorized to and absolutely should withhold issuance of the trustee's deed to the successful bidder until funds become "available for withdrawal" as defined in Ins. Code § 12413.1 [see Civ. Code § 2924h(c); see also § 25D.208[1][b]].

For purposes of the documentary transfer tax, a separate declaration containing the amount of consideration paid and the amount of the unpaid debt must accompany a trustee's deed if that information is not set forth in the deed itself [Rev. & Tax. Code § 11926]. For a separate declaration, see Ch. 27, Deeds and Recording .

[b] Effect of Trustee's Deed

A trustee's deed is generally "without warranty" since the trustee has no duty to guarantee the title to the property [Brown v. Busch (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 200, 204, 313 P.2d 19]. Title passed by a trustee's deed is title held by the trustor as of the date of execution of the deed of trust plus any after-acquired title, rather than title held by the trustor as of the date of the foreclosure sale [Hohn v. Riverside County Flood Control etc. Dist. (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 605, 612, 39 Cal. Rptr. 647]. For a discussion of the effect of a foreclosure sale on existing liens, see § 25D.11.

A recital in the trustee's deed of compliance with certain legal requirements (identified below) constitutes prima facie evidence of compliance with those requirements and conclusive evidence of that compliance in favor of bona fide purchasers and encumbrancers for value and without notice. This requirement applies to recitals of compliance with all requirements of law regarding any of the following [Civ. Code § 2924(c)]:

- The mailing of copies of notices.
- The publication of a copy of the notice of default.
- The personal delivery of the copy of the notice of default.
- The posting of copies of the notice of sale.
- The publication of a copy of the notice of sale.

The ultimate validity and effect of the above provision in Civ. Code § 2924 regarding recitals in trustee's deeds have been expressly left open to question by the California Supreme Court [Garfinkle v. Superior Court (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 268, 279 n.16, 146 Cal. Rptr. 208, 578 P.2d 925 ; see Tomczak v. Ortega (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 902, 907, 50 Cal. Rptr. 20 (trust deed provision that recital is conclusive held to be invalid as violating Civ. Code § 2953); but see Pierson v. Fischer (1955) 131 Cal. App. 2d 208, 216-217, 280 P.2d 491 (trust deed provision that recital is conclusive held not to violate Civ. Code § 2953)].

For further discussion of the execution of a trustee's deed and the rights of a purchaser of nonjudicially foreclosed property after the sale, see California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 123, Nonjudicial Foreclosure (Matthew Bender).

[c] Notice of Rescission of Trustee's Deed

When a trustee's deed is invalidated by a pending bankruptcy or otherwise, recordation of a notice of rescission of the trustee's deed will restore the condition of record title to the real property described in the trustee's deed and the existence and priority of all lienholders to the status quo before the recordation of the trustee's deed on sale. Only the trustee or beneficiary causing the trustee's deed to be recorded, or his or her successor in interest, may record a notice of rescission [Civ. Code § 1058.5(b)]. The notice must do all of the following [Civ. Code § 1058.5(b)]:

- Identify the deed of trust;
- Include the identification numbers used by the recorder or the books and pages at which the trustee's deed and deed of trust are recorded;
- Contain the names of all trustors and beneficiaries;
- Identify the location of the property subject to the deed of trust; and
- Specify the reason for rescission.

Further discussion of the invalidity of a trustee's deed is beyond the scope of this publication. For coverage of void nonjudicial foreclosure sales and actions to set aside completed foreclosure sales, see California Forms of Pleading & Practice, Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages (Matthew Bender).

§ 25D.210 Notice of Potential Entitlement to Proceeds of Sale Subject to Conflicting Claims

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a notice from a trustee informing the intended recipients that they may have a claim to the proceeds of a trustee's sale. The trustee involved in the sale must prepare and distribute this notice if there will be sales proceeds remaining after the trustee pays (1) the costs and expenses of the sale, and (2) any obligations that are secured by the trust deed that was the subject of the sale [Civ. Code § 2924j(a); see Civ. Code § 2924k(a)(1), (2); see also [b], below]. The trustee need not give this notice or comply with the other requirements of Civ. Code § 2924j, however, if the trustee files an interpleader action in order to resolve a dispute regarding the proceeds of the sale [Civ. Code § 2924j(a), (e)].

Although this form assumes that the trustee's sale was made under a power of sale contained in a deed of trust, it may be easily adapted for use in a transaction involving a mortgage instead of a trust deed.

[b] Entitled Persons and Method of Distribution

The trustee must give this notice to every "entitled person." An entitled person is a person who had a recorded interest in the subject real property as of the date immediately prior to the trustee's sale and who is any of the following [see Civ. Code § 2924j(a) (requiring notice to be sent to each person possessing a recorded interest who would be entitled to notice under Civ. Code § 2924b(b) or (c))]:

- A person who has recorded a separate request for notice of default [see Civ. Code § 2924b(a), (b)(1); see also § 25D.121, P 7a(1)].

- A trustor under the trust deed being foreclosed [see Civ. Code § 2924b(b)(1)].

- A successor in interest (in whole or part) of such a trustor [see Civ. Code § 2924b(c)(2)(A)].

- A beneficiary or mortgagee (and assignee of either) of any recorded junior trust deeds or mortgages [see Civ. Code § 2924b(c)(2)(B), (C)].

- A vendee of any contract of sale, or lessee of any lease, junior to the trust deed being foreclosed, and their successors in interest, if any [see Civ. Code § 2924b(c)(2)(D), (E)].

- The Sacramento Office of the Controller if, as of the recording date of the notice, a notice of lien for postponed property taxes has been recorded against the real property to which the notice applies [see Civ. Code § 2924b(c)(2)(F)].

The trustee must send the notice by first-class mail, postage prepaid, to each entitled person at the return address set forth in the recorded instrument evidencing the entitled person's recorded interest [Civ. Code § 2924j(a) (requiring notice to be sent by first-class mail in the manner provided in Civ. Code § 2924b(c)(1))].

In addition, the mortgagee, trustee, or other person authorized to record the notice of default must provide a copy of the notice of sale to the Internal Revenue Service, in accordance with I.R.C. § 7425 and any applicable federal regulation, if a "Notice of Federal Tax Lien under Internal Revenue Laws" has been recorded, after the deed of trust or mortgage being foreclosed, against the real property to which the notice of sale applies. The failure to provide the Internal Revenue Service with a copy of the notice of sale is sufficient cause to rescind the trustee's sale and invalidate the trustee's deed, at the option of either the successful bidder at the trustee's sale or the trustee, and in either case with the beneficiary's consent. Any option to rescind the trustee's sale under this provision must be exercised before any transfer of the property by the successful bidder to a bona fide purchaser for value. The rescission of the trustee's sale may be recorded in a notice of rescission pursuant to Civ. Code § 1058.5 [Civ. Code § 2924b(c)(4)].

To the extent required by the Unclaimed Property Law, a trustee in possession of surplus proceeds that are not required to be deposited with the court pursuant to Civ. Code § 2924j(b) must comply with the Unclaimed Property Law [Civ. Code § 2924j(g); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1500 et seq.].

[c] Required Contents

The notice must inform each entitled person of the following [Civ. Code § 2924j(a)]:

- There has been a trustee's sale of the described real property.

- The entitled person may have a claim to all or a portion of the sale proceeds remaining after payment of (1) costs and expenses of the sale, including the trustee's fees and attorneys' fees [see Civ. Code § 2924k(a)(1)], and (2) obligations secured by the trust deed that was the subject of sale [Civ. Code § 2924k(a)(2)].

- The entitled person may contact the trustee at the address provided in the notice to pursue any potential claim.

- Before the trustee can act, the noticed person may be required to present proof that the person holds the beneficial interest in the obligation and the security interest for the obligation (which, in the case of a promissory note secured by a deed of trust, may be proved by the original promissory note and assignment of beneficial interests related to the note), and the noticed person must also submit a written claim to the trustee, executed under penalty of perjury, containing (1) a statement of the amount of the claim to the date of the trustee's sale; (2) an itemized statement of principal, interest, and other charges; and (3) a statement that claims must be received by the trustee at the address stated in the notice no later than 30 days after the date the trustee sent the notice to the potential claimant.

§ 25D.211 Notice to Residents of Property in Foreclosure

[1] Comment -- Use of Form

This form is a notice to the residents of certain property that the property is in foreclosure. Effective September 6, 2008 [Stats. 2008, ch. 69, § 10], on posting a notice of sale pursuant to Civ. Code § 2924f, a trustee or authorized agent must also post, in the manner required for posting the notice of sale on the property to be sold [see 25D.206[1][d] (posting of notice of sale)], the notice set forth in § 25D.211[2], in English and the languages described in Civ. Code § 1632 [Civ. Code § 2924.8(a)]. Concurrently with the mailing of the notice of sale pursuant to Civ. Code § 2924b, the mortgagee, trustee, beneficiary, or authorized agent must send, by first-class mail, a copy of the notice in § 25D.211[2], in an envelope addressed to the "resident of property subject to foreclosure sale" [Civ. Code § 2924.8(a)]. It is an infraction to tear down the notice within 72 hours of posting. Violators are subject to a fine of $100 [Civ. Code § 2924.8(b)].

These notice requirements apply only to loans secured by residential real property, and if the billing address for the mortgage note is different than the property address [Civ. Code § 2924.8(d)]. These requirements are in effect until January 1, 2013, and as of that date are repealed, unless a later enacted statute, that is enacted before January 1, 2013, deletes or extends that date [Civ. Code § 2923.8(e)].

[2] FORM

Notice to Residents of Property in Foreclosure

Foreclosure process has begun on this property, which may affect your right to continue to live in this property. Twenty days or more after the date of this notice, this property may be sold at foreclosure. If you are renting this property, the new property owner may either give you a new lease or rental agreement or provide you with a 60-day eviction notice. However, other laws may prohibit an eviction in this circumstance or provide you with a longer notice before eviction. You may wish to contact a lawyer or your local legal aid or housing counseling agency to discuss any rights you may have.

§ 25D.220 Statutory Notice and Statement Required in Contract With Foreclosure Consultant [Civ. Code § 2945.3]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a notice and statement required by statute [Civ. Code § 2945.3] to be in every contract with a foreclosure consultant [see Civ. Code § 2945 et seq.]. Foreclosure consultants are persons who, for compensation, perform foreclosure-related services for owners of residential real property in foreclosure [see Civ. Code § 2945.1]. Contracts between owners and foreclosure consultants and the activities of those consultants are subject to a number of statutory requirements [see Civ. Code § 2945 et seq.; see also § 25D.29].

For discussion of certain disclosures that a representative of a foreclosure consultant must make before the transfer of any interest in real property that is the subject of a contract between a foreclosure consultant and the owner of residential real property in foreclosure [see Civ. Code § 2945.11(a); see also Civ. Code §§ 2945.9, 2945.10], see § 25D.222[1].

[b] Contract Requirements

Every contract between a foreclosure consultant and the record title owner of the residential real property in foreclosure at the time the notice of default was recorded [Civ. Code § 1695.1; see Civ. Code § 2945.1(g)] must be in writing and fully disclose the exact nature of the foreclosure consultant's services and the total amount and terms of compensation [Civ. Code § 2945.3(a)]. In addition to other requirements [see Civ. Code § 2945.3], the contract must contain the notice set forth below, which must be printed in at least 14-point boldface type and printed immediately above the statutory statement (also set forth below) advising the owner of his or her cancellation rights [Civ. Code § 2945.3(b)]. The statutory statement regarding cancellation must be set forth in immediate proximity to the space reserved for the owner's signature and must be in a size equal to at least 10-point boldface type [Civ. Code § 2945.3(d)]. Until the foreclosure consultant has complied with these requirements, the owner may cancel the contract [Civ. Code § 2945.3(h)].

The contract must be written in the same language as principally used by the foreclosure consultant to describe his or her services or to negotiate the contract. In addition, the foreclosure consultant must provide the owner, before the owner signs the contract, with a copy of a completed contract written in any other language used in any communication between the foreclosure consultant and the owner and in any language described in Civ. Code § 1632(b) and requested by the owner. (Those languages are Spanish, Chinese, Tagalog, Vietnamese, and Korean.) If English is the language principally used by the foreclosure consultant to describe the foreclosure consultant's services or to negotiate the contract, the foreclosure consultant must notify the owner orally and in writing before the owner signs the contract that the owner has the right to ask for a completed copy of the contract in one of those other languages [Civ. Code § 2945.3(c)].

For a separate notice of cancellation that must accompany every contract between a foreclosure consultant and an owner, see § 25D.221[2].

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a statutory notice of cancellation that must accompany every contract between a foreclosure consultant and a residential property owner [Civ. Code § 2945.3(f)]. For additional discussion of these contracts and a statutory notice and statement that must be included in them, see § 25D.220.

For discussion of certain disclosures that a representative of a foreclosure consultant must make before the transfer of any interest in real property that is the subject of a contract between a foreclosure consultant and the owner of residential real property in foreclosure [see Civ. Code § 2945.11(a); see also Civ. Code §§ 2945.9, 2945.10], see § 25D.222[1].

[b] Required Contents and Format

The statutory notice of cancellation must be attached in duplicate to the contract and must be easily detachable. Further, the statement must be written in the same language as used in the contract and set forth in at least 10-point type [Civ. Code § 2945.3(f)]. Finally, the foreclosure consultant must provide the owner with a copy of the contract and the attached notice of cancellation [Civ. Code § 2945.3(g)]. Until the foreclosure consultant has complied with these requirements, the owner may cancel the contract [Civ. Code § 2945.3(h)].

Cancellation occurs when the owner gives written notice of cancellation to the foreclosure consultant by mail at the address specified in the contract; and notice of cancellation given by mail is effective when deposited in the mail properly addressed with postage prepaid. Cancellation occurs also when the owner gives written notice of cancellation to the foreclosure consultant by fax or e-mail at the number or address identified in the contract; and if given by fax or e-mail, notice of cancellation is effective when successfully transmitted [Civ. Code § 2945.2(b),(c)]. Notice of cancellation given by the owner need not take the particular form that is provided with the contract and, however expressed, is effective if it indicates the intention of the owner not to be bound by the contract [Civ. Code § 2945.2(d)].

CHAPTER 25D FORECLOSURE
PART IV. FORMS
B. Foreclosure Consultants

10-25D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 25D.222

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 25D.222 Statement by Representative of Foreclosure Consultant [Civ. Code § 2945.11(a)]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a statement by a foreclosure consultant's representative, indicating that the representative has a real estate license and is bonded. As discussed in more detail below, if a foreclosure consultant and a record title owner of residential real property in foreclosure have entered into a contract, any representative of the consultant must present this statement to the consultant and the property owner, and must present related proof to the owner [Civ. Code § 2945.11(a)(2); see Civ. Code § 2945.1(a) ("foreclosure consultant" defined)].

For discussion of the laws regulating foreclosure consultants, see § 25D.220[1].

[b] Definition of "Representative"

For these purposes, "representative" means a person who in any manner solicits, induces, or causes [Civ. Code § 2945.9(b)]:

- Any owner to contract with a foreclosure consultant;
- Any owner to pay any consideration or transfer title to the residence in foreclosure to the foreclosure consultant; or
- Any member of the owner's family or household to induce or cause any owner to pay any consideration or transfer title to the residence in foreclosure to the foreclosure consultant.

[c] Disclosure Requirements

Any representative deemed to be the agent, employee, or agent and employee of a foreclosure consultant must provide both of the following [Civ. Code § 2945.11(a)]:

- Written proof to the owner that the representative has a valid current California real estate sales license and that the representative is bonded by an admitted surety insurer in an amount equal to at least twice the fair market value of the real property that is the subject of the contract.

- A written statement (this form), under penalty of perjury, that the representative has a valid current California real estate sales license, is bonded by an admitted surety insurer in an amount equal to at least twice the value of the real property that is the subject of the contract, and has complied with the requirements regarding proof described in the item above. The representative must provide this statement to all parties to the contract prior to the transfer of any interest in the real property that is the subject of the contract.

The failure to comply with these disclosure requirements will (1) at the option of the owner, render the contract void, and (2) cause the foreclosure consultant to be liable to the owner for all damages proximately caused by the failure to comply [Civ. Code § 2945.11(b)].

[d] Liability of Foreclosure Consultant for Damages Resulting From Representative's Acts or Statements

A foreclosure consultant is liable for all damages resulting from any statement made or act committed by the foreclosure consultant's representative in connection with the foreclosure consultant's (1) performance, offer to perform, or contract to perform any of the foreclosure-related services regulated by statute [see Civ. Code § 2945.1(a)], (2) receipt of any consideration or property from or on behalf of an owner, or (3) performance of any act prohibited by the laws regulating foreclosure consultants [Civ. Code § 2945.9(a); see Civ. Code § 2945 et seq.]. Any contractual provision that attempts or purports to limit this liability will be void and, at the option of the owner, will render the contract void. Further, the foreclosure consultant will be liable to the owner for all damages proximately caused by that void provision. Finally, any contractual provision that attempts or purports to require arbitration of any dispute arising under the laws regulating foreclosure consultants will be void at the option of the owner, but only if grounds exist for the revocation of the contract [Civ. Code § 2945.10(a); see Civ. Code § 2945.10(b)].

This chapter deals with the practical and legal aspects of escrows, with particular emphasis on those that are pertinent to the drafting, interpretation, and execution of escrow instructions. It covers the use of escrows to consummate agreements for the sale or transfer of interests in real property, but does not include specific coverage of the use of escrows in real property exchange transactions or in transactions involving the sale or transfer of businesses, securities, or other types of personal property.

Real property exchange transactions are covered in Ch. 24, Exchanges of Real Property . Real property sales agreements are discussed in detail in Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements . Joint control agreements are addressed in Ch. 30E, Joint (Builders') Control Agreements.

§ 26.10 Nature of Escrow

An escrow is essentially a procedural device that provides a mechanism for effecting concurrent performance of the obligations assumed by the parties to an agreement or transaction involving the sale or transfer of an interest in property. It allows the parties to make performance of their respective obligations conditional on performance by the other party or parties. In a transaction that utilizes an escrow, the parties deposit the instruments, documents, funds, and other items necessary to effect full performance of their respective obligations with a neutral third party who serves as a mutual agent. They authorize and direct the agent to perform their respective obligations when the agent is fully authorized and able to effect full performance of the other parties' obligations. When all of the necessary items and authorizations have been received, the agent proceeds to consummate the agreement by taking the steps necessary to complete the transfer of title to the buyer or transferee, deliver the consideration to the seller or transferor, and perform the other terms and conditions of the agreement.

The essential legal characteristic of an escrow is that the neutral third party serving as a depository acquires, in its capacity as the mutual agent of the parties, dominion and control over instruments, funds and other items that they have deposited. Once a valid escrow has been created, a party may not unilaterally revoke a deposit [Wittenbrock v. Cass (1895) 110 Cal. 1, 6-7, 42 P. 300 ; Cannon v. Handley (1887) 72 Cal. 133, 140-141, 13 P. 315] .

§ 26.11 Terms and Definitions

[1] "Escrow"

Adopting the technical common law meaning, the Civil Code defines an escrow as a grant that has been placed by the grantor in the possession of a third person and that is to take effect on the performance of a condition [Civ. Code § 1057]. However, the term is more commonly used and understood to refer to the overall transaction in which instruments, funds, and other items are deposited with a neutral third party for delivery on the occurrence of specified conditions [Lee v. Title Ins. & Trust Co. (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 160, 162, 70 Cal. Rptr. 378] . This broader meaning is used in the Escrow Law [Fin. Code § 17000 et seq.; see § 26.18], which defines an escrow as any transaction in which one person, for the purpose of effecting the sale, transfer, encumbrance, or leasing of real or personal property to another person, delivers a written instrument, evidence of title, money, or other thing of value to a third person to be held by the third person until the happening of a specified event or the performance of a prescribed condition, when it is to be delivered to a grantee, grantor, promisee, promisor, obligee, obligor, bailee, bailor, or the agent or employee of one of those parties [Fin. Code § 17003(a)]. With regard to Internet escrow companies, "escrow" also includes any transaction in which one person, for the purpose of effecting the sale or transfer of personal property or services to another person, delivers money (or its Internet-authorized equivalent) to a third person to be held by that third person until the happening of a specified event or the performance of a prescribed condition, when it is then to be delivered by that third person to a grantee, grantor, promisee, promisor, obligee, obligor, bailee, bailor, or any agent or employee of any of those persons [Fin. Code § 17003(b)].

The term "escrow" is also used in a loose, nontechnical sense to refer to the totality of the functions performed by the neutral third party serving as the depository. Thus the retention of the neutral third party and the taking of other steps preparatory to the actual deposit of instruments and funds is frequently referred to as "opening an escrow," even though, as a technical matter, these steps are not sufficient to create an escrow. Similarly, the recording, disbursement, and delivery of instruments and funds that have been deposited and the performance of other ministerial and clerical functions necessary to complete the underlying transaction is often referred to as "closing the escrow," even though, technically, an escrow terminates on the performance or fulfillment of all of the specified conditions.

[2] "Escrow Holder" and "Escrow Agent"

The neutral third party with whom the parties to an escrow transaction deposit the instruments and funds necessary to complete a sale or transfer of property is usually called the "escrow holder" or "escrow agent." In the Escrow Law [Fin. Code § 17000 et seq.], the term "escrow agent" is used in a technical sense to denote a person or entity who performs escrow services for compensation [Fin. Code § 17004].

[3] "Business Location" and "Business Office Location"

"Business location" and "business office location" mean a facility or other place of business where a person engages in the business of receiving an escrow for deposit or delivery. These terms do not include a customer contact center [Fin. Code § 17005.2].

[4] "Customer Contact Center"

"Customer contact center" means a facility operated by an Internet escrow agent that exists solely for the purpose of responding to customer electronic messages and telephone inquiries, but where no receipt or disbursements relating to an escrow are made from the facility. In addition, any documentation or other material generated, transmitted, or otherwise sent from the facility must be able to be reviewed at any time from the business location of the Internet escrow agent [Fin. Code § 17005.3].

§ 26.12 Usefulness of Escrow

A party who performs unilaterally under an agreement for the sale or transfer of property takes a substantial risk: if the other party fails to perform, return of the property or consideration that has been transferred can only be compelled by means of a lawsuit, an expensive, time consuming, and frequently ineffective remedy. By providing a mechanism for effecting concurrent performance and giving a neutral third party the power to control performance of the parties' respective obligations, the use of an escrow largely eliminates this risk.

The use of an escrow also provides a convenient solution to another practical problem: frequently, the parties to an agreement for the sale or transfer of property cannot perform their obligations until the other parties have performed. In a typical real property sales transaction, for example, the seller needs to use the funds to be paid by the buyer to remove encumbrances and liens and convey clear title, while the buyer needs to receive clear title in order to provide the security required by a lender and obtain the funds to make the purchase. By making concurrent performance possible, an escrow enables the parties to use the fruits of the other parties' performance to perform their own obligations.

When an escrow is handled by a professional escrow agent, as almost all escrows are, the agent usually oversees and monitors the performance of the conditions of the agreement, handles communications with the parties and other interested persons, keeps appropriate records, and takes responsibility for the actual recording, delivery, and disbursement of instruments, documents and funds. The use of an escrow thus provides the parties with a convenient method of securing the performance of all of the various administrative and clerical tasks necessary to implement an agreement for the sale or transfer of property.

Because of the important functions they perform, escrows have become an almost universal feature of real property transactions in California. A prudent attorney or real estate broker handling a California real property transaction will invariably employ some form of escrow.

§ 26.13 Creation of Escrow

As a technical and legal matter, an escrow is created, and the subject instruments and funds are irrevocably placed under the control of a third party serving as the mutual agent of the parties, only when all of the elements of an escrow are present. The mere designation of a transaction as an escrow will not make it one if an essential element is missing [Security-First Nat. Bk. v. Clark (1935) 8 Cal. App. 2d 709, 712, 48 P.2d 167] . Unless a valid escrow has been created, a neutral third party with whom instruments or funds have been deposited serves only as the agent for the depositor, and the depositor may therefore revoke a deposit at any time [Fitch v. Bunch (1866) 30 Cal. 208, 213-214 ; Security-First Nat. Bk. v. Clark (1935) 8 Cal. App. 2d 709, 712, 48 P.2d 167] .

§ 26.14 Essential Elements of Escrow

[1] Binding and Enforceable Contract

For a valid escrow to exist, there must first be a binding and enforceable contract between the parties to the escrow [Fitch v. Bunch (1866) 30 Cal. 208, 212 ; Elliott v. Title Ins. & Trust Co. (1923) 64 Cal. App. 508, 511, 222 P. 175] . A set of escrow instructions may be sufficient to satisfy this requirement if it contains all of the elements of a valid and enforceable contract [Tuso v. Green (1924) 194 Cal. 574, 581, 229 P. 327 ; Leiter v. Eltinge (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 306, 314, 54 Cal. Rptr. 703] . An irrevocable option may also be sufficient [Caras v. Parker (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 621, 626, 309 P.2d 104] .

[2] Agreement on Conditions of Escrow

An agreement by the parties to the escrow that the subject instruments and funds will be deposited with a neutral third party for delivery upon the occurrence of certain specified conditions is a second indispensable element of a valid escrow [Fitch v. Bunch (1866) 30 Cal. 208, 213 ; Sousa v. First California Co. (1950) 101 Cal. App. 2d 533, 538-539, 225 P.2d 955] . If the parties are not in agreement on all of the terms and conditions of the contract or instructions governing the retention and delivery of the instruments and funds to be deposited in escrow, a deposit will not create an escrow [Security-First Nat. Bk. v. Clark (1935) 8 Cal. App. 2d 709, 712, 48 P.2d 167 ; House v. Lala (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 412, 417, 4 Cal. Rptr. 366] .

[3] Deposit With and Acceptance by Third Party

The actual deposit of instruments or funds with a third party and the third party's acceptance of that deposit in accordance with the agreement of the parties to the escrow is a third prerequisite to the creation of a valid escrow [Sousa v. First California Co. (1950) 101 Cal. App. 2d 533, 538-539, 225 P.2d 955 ; House v. Lala (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 412, 417, 4 Cal. Rptr. 366] . The depository must be a neutral third party, that is, he or she must not be a party to the underlying transaction [Civ. Code § 1507; Fin. Code § 17003; Roberts v. Carter & Potruch (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 370, 373, 295 P.2d 515] . Even when a conditional delivery is intended, the delivery of a grant to the grantee will not establish an escrow and will ordinarily operate to vest the grantee with absolute title [Mowry v. Heney (1890) 86 Cal. 471, 475-476, 25 P. 17] .

[4] Intent to Transfer Dominion and Control Irrevocably

The final element of a valid escrow is an intent on the part of the party depositing an instrument or funds to transfer dominion and control irrevocably to the neutral third party depository. If the depositor retains the right to revoke unilaterally the deposit, no escrow is created [Keyes v. Meyers (1905) 147 Cal. 702, 704-706, 82 P. 304 ; Ragan v. Ragan (1915) 29 Cal. App. 63, 65, 154 P. 479] .

CHAPTER 26 REAL PROPERTY ESCROWS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

11-26 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26.15

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 26.15 Termination of Escrow

[1] Manner and Effect of Termination

An escrow terminates when all of the conditions of the escrow have been performed or fulfilled, when it is abandoned or canceled by mutual agreement of the parties, or when it is canceled by one party due to another party's failure to perform a term or condition of the escrow agreement. When an escrow is terminated, the dual agency relationship between the escrow holder and the parties ceases and the right to possession and control of instruments and funds that have been deposited shifts to the parties respectively entitled to the delivery or return of the instruments or funds [see, e.g., Todd v. Vestermark (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 374, 377, 302 P.2d 347 ; Vineland Homes, Inc. v. Barish (1956) 138 Cal. App. 2d 747, 750, 292 P.2d 941] .

[2] Performance of Conditions of Escrow

When the conditions of an escrow have been fully performed or fulfilled, the escrow is terminated. At that point, regardless of whether there have been any steps taken to record, deliver, or disburse instruments and funds deposited, title to the subject property passes to the buyer or transferee, the seller or transferor becomes entitled to any funds or consideration deposited, and the escrow holder holds any instrument or consideration that has been deposited solely as the agent of the party entitled thereto [Shreeves v. Pearson (1924) 194 Cal. 699, 707, 230 P. 448 ; Todd v. Vestermark (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 374, 377, 302 P.2d 347] . Once the escrow has been completed by the performance or fulfillment of all conditions, the parties have no power to rescind or cancel it [Gelber v. Cappeller (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 113, 120, 326 P.2d 521] .

[3] Cancellation by Mutual Agreement

Ordinarily, the parties to an escrow can abandon or cancel it by mutual agreement at any time before the conditions of the escrow have been performed [Whitney v. Sherman (1918) 178 Cal. 435, 437-438, 173 P. 931 ; Wilshire Realty Co. v. Kry Corp. (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 269, 276-277, 58 Cal. Rptr. 469] . Even when an escrow agreement is made expressly for the benefit of a third party, the parties may rescind the agreement and cancel the escrow at any time before the agreement is enforced by the third party beneficiary [Orloff v. Metropolitan Trust Co. (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 484, 487, 110 P.2d 396 ; Wilshire Realty Co. v. Kry Corp. (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 269, 276-277, 58 Cal. Rptr. 469] . However, when there has been an irrevocable change of position by the third party as a result of the escrow and the other elements are present, the doctrine of equitable estoppel may be applied to preclude a party or the escrow holder from relying on the cancellation [Feinberg v. Intrastate Escrow Corp. (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 80, 85, 30 Cal. Rptr. 781] .

[4] Cancellation for Nonperformance or Nonfulfillment of Condition

Most escrow agreements or instructions contain express provisions permitting cancellation of an escrow if the conditions of the escrow are not performed or fulfilled, and such provisions are generally given effect [see, e.g., Weaver v. Casad (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 593, 595, 195 P.2d 81 ; Petre v. Roegner (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 288, 291-292, 33 Cal. Rptr. 82] . Even in the absence of an express provision for cancellation, a nondefaulting party is ordinarily entitled to cancel when the conditions of the escrow are not performed or fulfilled within the time specified by the escrow agreement or instructions [Moss v. Minor Properties, Inc. (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 847, 853-854, 69 Cal. Rptr. 341 ; Edmunds v. Hysong (1931) 110 Cal. App. 746, 749-750 ; 294 P. 1078] or, if no time is specified, within a reasonable time [First Nat. Bank v. Caldwell (1927) 84 Cal. App. 438, 446, 258 P. 411] . However, a party who has defaulted cannot rely on the failure of conditions he or she has failed to perform to cancel against a nondefaulting party [Wales v. Greene (1954) 125 Cal. App. 2d 387, 390, 270 P.2d 534] . If both parties are in default or if one party has defaulted before another's performance is due, a party must ordinarily perform or tender performance in order to be entitled to cancel [Diamond v. Huenergardt (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 214, 220-221, 346 P.2d 37] .

Provisions of an escrow agreement or instructions that specify the manner of effecting a cancellation of the escrow are generally controlling. Thus, if an escrow agreement provides for cancellation by written notice to the escrow holder, a party entitled to cancel need not give notice to the other parties in order to make the cancellation effective [Weaver v. Casad (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 593, 595, 195 P.2d 81] . Similarly, if an escrow agreement provides that an escrow cannot be canceled for nonperformance of conditions until the parties have been given notice and an opportunity to perform the conditions, an attempt to cancel without affording a defaulting party the requisite notice and opportunity to cure is ineffective [Weisberg v. Ashcraft (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 793, 796, 36 Cal. Rptr. 188] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Interpleader Action. Even if the escrow instructions allow the escrow company to terminate the escrow and return the funds due to lack of performance, generally escrow companies are loath to cancel the escrow without mutual consent. If the time for closing escrow has passed and the parties have communicated their intent to the escrow company that they will not be closing escrow, generally one of the parties will institute an action against the other. Most real estate contracts in California provide for the arbitration of real estate disputes. The escrow is simply put on hold while the matter is litigated.

In a rare instance, the parties will abandon the escrow, leaving the escrow company with an open escrow indefinitely. In that situation, the escrow company should commence an action in interpleader under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b). The escrow company would appear as plaintiff and name as defendants the parties to the transaction. The amount that was deposited with the escrow company would be deposited with the clerk of the court. The escrow holder would request a dismissal of the action against it [Code Civ. Proc. § 386.5]. The parties to the transaction would remain to litigate any lingering issues. The escrow company could request attorney's fees at the time it seeks dismissal pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6. By Timothy F. O'Leary.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

11-26 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26.16

§ 26.16 The Escrow Holder

[1] Qualifications

For a valid escrow to exist, the person or entity undertaking to serve as the escrow holder must be a stranger to the underlying transaction [Civ. Code § 1057; Fin. Code § 17003(a); Roberts v. Carter & Potruch (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 370, 373, 295 P.2d 515] . Except for this requirement, the statutory and case law has not expressly made the validity of the escrow dependent on the escrow holder having any particular qualifications [see Civ. Code § 1057].

As discussed below [see § 26.18], professional escrow agents, persons or entities that perform escrow services for compensation, must be licensed, have specified qualifications, and comply with the applicable regulations [see, e.g., Fin. Code § 17000 et seq.; Escrow Institute of Cal. v. Pierno (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 361, 365-369, 100 Cal. Rptr. 880] . The Escrow Law expressly provides that the revocation, suspension, surrender, or expiration of an escrow agent's license does not impair or affect preexisting escrows lawfully contracted; but no provision of the Escrow Law authorizes the acceptance of further funds or documents into escrow subsequent to the revocation, surrender, or expiration of the license or during any period of suspension of the license [Fin. Code § 17609]. A recognition that violations of the Escrow Law may give an injured party a right to rescind under some circumstances seems implicit in this provision.

[2] Nature of Relationship to Parties

Until a valid escrow has been created, the escrow holder receives and retains instruments or funds that are deposited only in a capacity as the agent for the party making the deposit [see Fitch v. Bunch (1866) 30 Cal. 208, 213-214 ; Security-First Nat. Bk. v. Clark (1935) 8 Cal. App. 2d 709, 712, 48 P.2d 167] . Once an escrow is created, the escrow holder becomes the mutual agent of the parties and retains control over instruments and funds that have been deposited in that capacity until the conditions of the escrow are performed or the escrow is otherwise validly terminated [Shreeves v. Pearson (1924) 194 Cal. 699, 708, 230 P. 448 ; Leiter v. Eltinge (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 306, 315, 54 Cal. Rptr. 703] . When the conditions of an escrow have been performed or when the escrow is terminated, the escrow holder holds any instrument or consideration that has been deposited solely as the agent of the party entitled to its delivery or return [Shreeves v. Pearson (1924) 194 Cal. 699, 707, 230 P. 448 ; Todd v. Vestermark (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 374, 377, 302 P.2d 347] .

[3] Obligations to Parties

The escrow holder is an agent of the parties to the escrow and thus owes them obligations determined by the application of general rules of agency [Rianda v. San Benito Title Guar. Co. (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 170, 173, 217 P.2d 25 ; Spaziani v. Millar (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 667, 682, 30 Cal. Rptr. 658] . As an agent, the escrow holder has a fiduciary relationship with the parties [Common Wealth Ins. Systems, Inc. v. Kersten (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 1014, 1030, 115 Cal. Rptr. 653 ; Spaziani v. Millar (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 667, 682, 30 Cal. Rptr. 658] . However, the agency is a special agency and the agency relationship and the escrow holder's obligations as an agent are defined and limited by the joint instructions of the parties [Siegel v. Fidelity Nat. Title Ins. Co. (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1181, 1194, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 84 (escrow agent not liable for failure to report liens against property if not required to do that by escrow instructions); Schaefer v. Manufacturers Bank (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 70, 77, 163 Cal. Rptr. 402 ; Blackburn v. McCoy (1934) 1 Cal. App. 2d 648, 654-655, 37 P.2d 153] .

By accepting, preparing, or offering to perform escrow instructions, the escrow holder is also contracting with the parties to perform the instructions and, consequently, has contractual obligations to them as well [Amen v. Merced County Title Co. (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 528, 532, 25 Cal. Rptr. 65, 375 P.2d 33] .

In general, the escrow holder is obligated to comply strictly with the express and implied terms of the parties' instructions and to exercise reasonable skill and ordinary diligence in performing his or her undertaking [Amen v. Merced County Title Co. (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 528, 531-532, 25 Cal. Rptr. 65, 375 P.2d 33 ; Gordon v. D & G Escrow Corp. (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 616, 621-623, 122 Cal. Rptr. 150 ; Wade v. Lake County Title Co. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 824, 829, 86 Cal. Rptr. 182] . The escrow holder, however, has no obligation to do things that are not required by the terms of the instructions [Siegel v. Fidelity Nat. Title Ins. Co. (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1181, 1194, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 84 ; Schaefer v. Manufacturers Bank (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 70, 77-78, 163 Cal. Rptr. 402 ; Axley v. Transamerica Title Ins. Co. (1978) 88 Cal. App. 3d 1, 9, 151 Cal. Rptr. 570] . If there is a dispute between the parties concerning the meaning or effect of the instructions, the escrow holder is not required to resolve the dispute and proceed to execute the instructions, but may institute an interpleader action to determine his or her obligations [Security Trust Etc. Bank v. Carlsen (1928) 205 Cal. 309, 314, 467 P.2d 547] .

[4] Duty to Disclose Material Facts

An escrow holder that, in the course of the agency relationship with the parties, acquires information that may affect their decisions relating to the escrow, has an obligation to communicate that information to the parties [Amen v. Merced County Title Co. (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 528, 534, 25 Cal. Rptr. 65, 375 P.2d 33 ; Contini v. Western Title Ins. Co. (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 536, 547, 115 Cal. Rptr. 257] . However, this obligation is limited in two important ways. First, the escrow holder is only obligated to disclose information received or acquired in a capacity as the escrow holder for the parties [Siegel v. Fidelity Nat. Title Ins. Co. (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1181, 1194, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 84 ; Blackburn v. McCoy (1934) 1 Cal. App. 2d 648, 654-655, 37 P.2d 153] . Second, the escrow holder is only obligated to disclose information that relates to the state of the escrow or to the performance or fulfillment of the conditions of the escrow [Schaefer v. Manufacturers Bank (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 70, 77, 163 Cal. Rptr. 402 ; Axley v. Transamerica Title Ins. Co. (1978) 88 Cal. App. 3d 1, 9, 151 Cal. Rptr. 570] .

[5] Liability for Breach of Duties

An escrow holder that breaches its obligation to follow the instructions of the parties, or that breaches or negligently performs its duties as an agent, will be liable to the parties for any damages proximately caused by the breach [Amen v. Merced County Title Co. (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 528, 532, 25 Cal. Rptr. 65, 375 P.2d 33 ; Zang v. Northwestern Title Co.

(1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 159, 166, 185 Cal. Rptr. 176] . The damages that may be recovered by the parties include attorneys' fees and litigation costs incurred in connection with legal actions they were required to bring or defend as a result of the breach [Prentice v. North Amer. Title Guar. Corp. (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 618, 620-621, 30 Cal. Rptr. 821, 381 P.2d 645 ; Ruth v. Lytton Sav. & Loan Asso. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 831, 845, 72 Cal. Rptr. 521] .

Under some circumstances, an escrow holder may be held liable to a third party for failing to observe the agreement or instructions of a party to the escrow. Thus, an escrow holder that has knowledge that escrowed funds have been assigned to a third party will be liable to the third party if it disburses or uses the assigned funds in a manner that is contrary to the terms of the assignment. Liability in these circumstances rests on the theory that an agent's obligation to disburse proceeds held by the agent for its principal is coextensive with the principal's obligation to disburse those proceeds to the assignee [Builders' Control Service of No. Cal., Inc. v. North American Title Guar. Co. (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 68, 73, 22 Cal. Rptr. 712 ; see Summit Financial Holdings, Ltd. v. Continental Lawyers Title Co. (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 705, 714, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 541, 41 P.3d 548] . However, an escrow holder does not owe a fiduciary duty to persons who are not parties to the escrow [Summit Financial Holdings, Ltd. v. Continental Lawyers Title Co. (2002) 27 Cal.4th 705, 712-714, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 541, 41 P.3d 548 (disapproving of Kirby v. Palos Verdes Escrow Co. (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 57, 227 Cal. Rptr. 785 to the extent Kirby held otherwise)].

An attorneys' fee clause in escrow instructions giving the escrow agent the right to recover fees if a party failed to pay escrow costs supported an award of attorneys' fees to the purchaser [Kangarlou v. Progressive Title Co. (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 1174, 1179, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 754] . The purchaser sued the escrow agent and holder for breach of fiduciary duty based on allegations that the purchaser's real estate agent, real estate broker, and loan broker were not properly licensed and the defendants violated Bus. & Prof. Code § 10137 by transacting business through unlicensed persons or entities and by paying them commissions. In holding that the purchaser could recover fees under the contract pursuant to Civ. Code § 1717, the court concluded that the defendants' fiduciary duties arose out of and were not outside the contract [Kangarlou v. Progressive Title Co. (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 1174, 1179, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 754 ; see Fairchild v. Park (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 919, 925-926, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 442 (breach of fiduciary duty may be both a breach of contract and a tort)]. The duty of an escrow holder to obtain evidence that a real estate broker is regularly licensed before delivering compensation arises from Bus. & Prof. Code § 10138, and the defendants assumed that duty only by entering the contract to execute the escrow for plaintiff purchaser and the seller. Furthermore, the defendants' duty to communicate facts learned about the broker's licenses arose only because of the duty to obtain such evidence. Since the duty to obtain such evidence was not outside the contract, the duty to communicate those findings also was not outside the contract. Finally, the defendants' obligation to exercise reasonable skill and diligence in carrying out the escrow instructions, and to comply strictly with the depositor's written instructions, were within the duties undertaken in the contract [Kangarlou v. Progressive Title Co. (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 1174, 1179, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 754] .

Contractual provisions exculpating professional escrow agents from liability for negligence have been held to be contrary to public policy and thus invalid when they are contained in standardized printed escrow instructions prepared bythe agents [Akin v. Business Title Corp. (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 153, 156-159, 70 Cal. Rptr. 287] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Exculpatory Clauses. While escrow companies cannot enforce exculpatory clauses because they violate public policy, escrow companies can delineate the extent of their responsibilities. Limiting the scope of the obligations that the escrow company has assumed for the parties does not constitute an exculpatory provision. A provision which reads that the escrow company is not liable even if it breaches one of its obligations is void as against public policy, however. By Timothy F. O'Leary.

[6] Imputation of Knowledge to Parties

As a consequence of the agency relationship and the duty of disclosure, knowledge acquired by the escrow holder in the course of the agency may be imputed to the parties [In re Marriage of Cloney (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 429, 440, 110

Cal. Rptr. 2d 615 ; Bonaccorso v. Kaplan (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 63, 69, 32 Cal. Rptr. 69 ; Boswell v. Reid (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 705, 712, 19 Cal. Rptr. 29] . However, the scope of the knowledge that will be imputed to the parties is limited by the scope of the escrow holder's duty of disclosure; knowledge possessed by the escrow holder is not imputed to a party unless the escrow holder is obligated to disclose it to the party [Vigli v. Davis (1947) 79 Cal. App. 2d 237, 257, 179 P.2d 586 ; see Menzel v. Salka (1960) 179 Cal. App. 2d 612, 4 Cal. Rptr. 78] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Lender Contractual Liability. In Summit Financial Holdings, Ltd. v. Continental Lawyers Title Co. (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 705, 713-714, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 541, 41 P.3d 548 , the California Supreme Court held that an escrow company owed no responsibility to a lender to whom a note and deed of trust had been signed. The parties to the escrow had instructed the escrow company to use the proceeds to satisfy the loan. The escrow company was aware that the loan had been assigned to the plaintiff. However, consistent with the instructions, the escrow company paid over the proceeds to the former lender. The assignee of the loan sued the escrow company, but its suit was dismissed. The California Supreme Court held that the escrow company owed no duties of due care to the assignee-lender and correctly followed the instructions given to it by the parties.

Subsequently, the court of appeal in Money Store Investment Corp. v. Southern Cal. Bank (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 722, 730-733, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 58 ruled on a case where the lender provided instructions to the defendant escrow holder to pay over the loan proceeds to an attorney for one of the parties. The transaction involved the purchase of a business. The instructions from the lender required the bank to provide an estimated closing statement to the lender. The court of appeal held that a triable issue of material fact existed as to whether the bank breached itscontractual obligations to the lender when it distributed the loan proceeds in a manner that was inconsistent with the lender's instructions and failed to provide the bank with an estimated closing statement to the lender. The court of appeal distinguished Summit Financial because it found that the Bank had assumed a contractual obligation to the lender which became binding when the lender had performed by depositing the loan proceeds with the Bank. The court of appeal dismissed the lender's independent claims for negligence and promissory estoppel. By Timothy F. O'Leary.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

11-26 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26.17

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 26.17 Regulation of Professional Escrow Holders

[1] Escrow Agents

The principal sources of regulation of professional escrow holders are California's Escrow Law [Fin. Code § 17000 et seq.] and its implementing regulations [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1709 et seq.]. All persons and entities who are engaged in the business of receiving escrows for deposit or delivery for compensation are classified by the Escrow Law as "escrow agents" [Fin. Code §§ 17003, 17004] and, unless they fall within one of the classes specifically exempted, are subject to its restrictions and requirements [Fin. Code § 17005.4]. Escrow agents include joint control agents and Internet escrow agents [Fin. Code § 17005.6; see Fin. Code § 17004 (exemptions)]. An "Internet escrow agent" is any person engaged in the business of receiving escrows for deposit or delivery over the Internet [Fin. Code § 17004.5]. Internet escrow agents are subject to the Escrow Law [Fin. Code § 17005.4; see § 26.18[2]].

It is unlawful for any person or entity other than a corporation licensed under the Escrow Law to act as an escrow agent in California [Fin. Code § 17200]. Acting as an escrow agent "in California" in this context means doing any act related to receiving an escrow for deposit or delivery that either [Fin. Code § 17005.5]:

- Is directed to persons in California or originates from California (and is directed to persons outside the state); or

- Leads to the formation of a contract, and the offer or acceptance of the offer is directed to a person in California, whether from inside or outside the state and whether the offer was made inside or outside the state.

[2] Exemptions from Application of Escrow Law

Only four classes of professional escrow holders are exempted from the application of the Escrow Law [Fin. Code § 17006(a)]:

- Persons and entities doing business under California or federal laws relating to banks, trust companies, building and loan or savings and loan associations, or insurance companies.

- Persons who are licensed to practice law in California, who have a bona fide client relationship with a principal in a real estate or personal property transaction, and who are not actively conducting an escrow agency.

- Persons and entities whose principal business is preparing abstracts or conducting title searches to be used as the basis for the issuance of title insurance policies by a title insurance company doing business under California laws relating to insurance companies.

- Licensed real estate brokers or agents who are performing acts in the course of or incidental to their real estate business.

The exemptions described in the second and fourth items are subject to two limitations. First, they are personal to the persons listed, and those persons must not delegate any duties other than duties performed under their direct supervision. Second, they are not available for any arrangement entered into for the purpose of performing escrows for more than one business [Fin. Code § 17006(b)].

Each of the exempt classes described above is subject to a separate regulatory scheme that, like the Escrow Law, is designed to maintain minimum standards of competency, security, and financial stability [Escrow Institute of Cal. v. Pierno (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 361, 365-369, 100 Cal. Rptr. 880] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Purchase Deposits. Though real estate agents are exempt from the Escrow Law, agents are well advised to properly use deposits towards purchases of property. Generally, buyers hand to their agent the initial deposit to be placed into escrow. Occasionally agents are dilatory in depositing these funds with the appropriate escrow company. The delay may cause the agent to violate the applicable law or assume duties to the seller which the agent would not want to assume. Agents should instruct the buyer to make out the check to the escrow company, immediately deposit the funds with that escrow company, and obtain a receipt from the escrow company confirming the deposit and identifying the escrow number. By Timothy F. O'Leary.

[3] Notification of Enforcement Action Against Escrow Holder

Whenever the Commissioner of Real Estate takes any enforcement or disciplinary action against a licensed escrow holder that is related to escrow services provided pursuant to Fin. Code § 17006(a)(4), the Commissioner must notify the Insurance Commissioner and the Commissioner of Corporations concerning the action taken when the action is final. The purpose of this notification is to alert the departments that enforcement or disciplinary action has been taken, if the licensee seeks or obtains employment with entities regulated by the other departments [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10176.1(a)(1)]. In turn, the Commissioners of the Department of Corporations and the Department of Insurance are required to provide information to the Department of Real Estate and the other departments concerning persons who have been subject to enforcement or disciplinary action for malfeasance or misconduct related to the escrow industry [see Fin. Code § 17423.1; Ins. Code § 12414.31].

In addition to the notification, the Commissioner must also provide the other Commissioners with a copy of the written accusation, a statement of issues, or the order issued or filed in the matter, as well as additional requested materials concerning the relevant facts of the enforcement or disciplinary action [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10176.1(a)(2)]. This information is available on a website established and maintained by the Department of Real Estate, with hyperlinks to websites established by the Department of Corporations and the Department of Insurance [www.dre.ca.gov/cons_escrow.html; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10176.1(c) (no liability for release of false information unless done with knowledge and malice)].

§ 26.18 Regulation Under the Escrow Law

[1] Regulation of Escrow Agents

Under the Escrow Law, a corporation applying for a license as an escrow agent must demonstrate that it has been organized lawfully and for the purpose of providing legitimate escrow agent services; that it is solvent and financially stable; that its directors, officers, and managers have sufficient experience and are generally fit to engage in the escrow agent business; and that issuance of the license will be in the public interest [Fin. Code §§ 17209, 17209.3]. Once it receives a license, it must continue to meet the criteria for issuance of a license [Fin. Code § 17608(b)], must maintain a specified minimum net worth and minimum tangible assets [Fin. Code § 17400], and must maintain and make available for inspection books and records that are sufficiently clear and detailed to show whether it is complying with the applicable regulations [Fin. Code §§ 17404-17409].

As discussed in [5], below, the Escrow Law places a number of restrictions on the preparation and use of escrow instructions and the handling of documents and funds deposited in escrow. Other important regulatory provisions of the Escrow Law prohibit false or misleading advertising or statements [Fin. Code §§ 17210.2, 17402-17403.1], require disclosure of potential conflicts [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1740.1], and prohibit payment of referral fees or similar fees [Fin. Code § 17420].

The Commissioner of Corporations is charged with the responsibility of reviewing and determining applications for escrow agent licenses [Fin. Code §§ 17200-17209.3] and enforcing, by appropriate disciplinary or legal action, the regulatory provisions of the Escrow Law [see, e.g., Fin. Code §§ 17415, 17416, 17601-17609.2]. When issuing a license or order under the Escrow Law, the Commissioner may impose conditions that are necessary and appropriate to carry out the provisions and purposes of the Escrow Law and, with respect to Internet escrow agents, are also consistent with the intent of the legislature to protect consumers and resolve issues presented by laws and regulations that may hamper the development of electronic commerce [Fin. Code § 17215; see Stats. 1999, ch. 876, § 1(b)]. Pursuant to authority conferred by the Escrow Law [Fin. Code § 17400], the Commissioner has adopted an extensive set of administrative regulations that supplement its provisions [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1709 et seq.].

An escrow agent's license is effective until it is surrendered, revoked, or suspended [Fin. Code § 17600(a)]. A license is not transferable or assignable and may not be acquired, either in whole or in part, directly or indirectly, through stock purchase, foreclosure pursuant to a pledge or hypothecation, or other devices without the consent of the Commissioner. Before the transfer of 10 percent or more of the shares of an escrow agent, the escrow agent must file a new application for a license as required by Fin. Code § 17201. However, a new application for a license is not required to be filed by the escrow agent if the transfer of 10 percent or more of the shares of the escrow agent will be made by an existing shareholder to another existing shareholder who also owns 10 percent or more of the shares of the escrow agent before the transfer [Fin. Code § 17213].

[2] Regulation of Internet Escrow Agents, Electronic Records, and Electronic Transfers

[a] Electronic Records and Transfers

"Internet escrow agents," defined as persons engaged in the business of receiving escrows for deposit or delivery over the Internet [Fin. Code § 17004.5], are subject to the Escrow Law and implementing regulations [Fin. Code § 17005.4; 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1710]. In enacting laws governing Internet escrow agents, the Legislature intended that the state government recognize the unique and rapid technological advances changing electronic commerce (commonly called e-commerce) and facilitate the development of Internet-related commerce. While maintaining consumer protection as its highest priority, the Legislature is working to resolve issues presented by laws and regulations that may hamper the development of e-commerce [Stats. 1999, ch. 441, § 1(b); see Fin. Code § 17215].

All records required by the Escrow Law may be retained by an Internet escrow agent and provided to the Commissioner in electronic format [Fin. Code § 17403.5(a)]. All transfers by an Internet escrow agent between trust accounts and interest-bearing accounts, and between escrow accounts, may be made electronically [Fin. Code § 17403.5(b)]. A statement of account may be delivered by an Internet escrow agent to a customer by electronic mail or otherwise by the Internet, unless the customer requests otherwise [Fin. Code § 17403.5(c)]. With regard to Internet escrow companies, transfers to trust accounts by commercial banks and from operating accounts to cover losses may be made through wire transfer, and receipts for those transactions may be maintained in electronic form [Fin. Code § 17409.1(a)].

An escrow agent must comply with, at a minimum, the following procedures for wire transfers, which are also known as "electronic fund transfers" [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1738(b)]:

- The instructions of the principals authorizing the wire transfer must contain, at a minimum (1) the amount of the funds to be wire transferred, (2) the name of the financial institution, (3) the account number, and (4) the account name receiving the funds.

- The escrow agent must retain confirmation of the wire transfer from the financial institution that contains, at a minimum (1) the amount of the funds wire transferred and (2) the account number and name of the account to which the funds were wire transferred.

- If necessary, the escrow books must be properly adjusted to reflect the wire transfer of funds from the escrow account.

- The escrow agent must maintain (1) a property audit trail and (2) adequate controls and safeguards for funds disbursed by wire transfer.

[b] Internet Escrow Agent Special Accounts

All money received by an Internet escrow agent from a credit card or Automated Clearing House (ACH) transfer as part of an escrow transaction must be deposited on receipt in a bank, savings bank, or savings and loan association in a separate account that is designated "trust" or "escrow" account [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1737.1(a)]. No funds other than those received from a credit card or ACH transfer as part of an escrow transaction may be deposited in the account or otherwise commingled with any other escrow money [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1737.1(a)]. An Internet escrow agent may not withdraw, pay out, or transfer monies from a particular escrow for deposits received by credit card or ACH transfer before the deposit of the funds into the trust or escrow bank account [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1737.1(b)].

An Internet escrow agent is required to establish a reserve made up of general account funds for the purpose of covering losses that result from the acceptance of credit cards and ACH deposits, including, but not limited to, charge backs, disputed charges, fraudulent transactions, and other debits [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1737.1(c)]. The reserve must be at least equal to 10 percent of the average monthly credit card and ACH receipts. If actual losses exceed 10 percent of the average monthly credit card and ACH receipts, the Internet escrow agent must immediately increase the reserve to a least equal to the percentage of actual losses to the average monthly credit card and ACH receipts. An Internet escrow agent may request the Commissioner's approval to reduce the required reserves, and the Commissioner may approve the request if, in his or her opinion, the Internet escrow agent has submitted sufficient evidence to demonstrate that the lower reserve will be sufficient to cover anticipated losses [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1737.1(c); see Fin. Code § 17210 (tangible net worth and liquid assets also required)]. The Internet escrow agent must deposit funds from the required reserves into the escrow trust account to cover any losses that result from credit cards or ACH deposits on or before the close of the next full working day after receiving notification of the debit. This does not apply if the debit is against funds received from a credit card or ACH deposit that remains in the escrow account [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1737.1(d)].

[c] Escrow Instructions Transmitted Over Internet and Electronic Signatures

Internet escrow agents may accept escrow instructions that are created, generated, sent, communicated, received, or stored by electronic means provided that the principals to the transaction agree to conduct the transaction electronically [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1738.6(a)]. The Internet escrow agent must require that the principals to the transaction acknowledge that they are able to electronically receive, download, and print the escrow instructions [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1738.6(b)]. If a principal to the transaction is not able to electronically receive, download, and print the escrow instructions, the Internet escrow agent must mail a true and correct copy of the instructions to the person within 24 hours of executing the document. The Internet escrow agent must maintain a record of the principal's acknowledgment, and a record of each mailing [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1738.6(b)].

The principals to the transaction may execute the escrow instructions and other escrow documents with an electronic signature that complies with the federal Electronic Signatures in Global and National Commerce Act (E-Sign Act) [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1738.6(c); see 15 U.S.C. § 7001 et seq.].

[d] Customer Contact Centers Notice

An Internet escrow agent must give the Commissioner a written notice that specifies the business address of a customer contact center at least 10 days before commencing business at that location. Similarly, at least 10 days before an intended change in the location of any customer contact center, an Internet escrow agent must give written notification to the Commissioner of the new business address [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1709.1; see § 26.11[4]].

[e] Electronic Transmission of Escrow Receipts and Statements

An Internet escrow agent must issue consecutively numbered receipts for all escrow money or checks deposited with or mailed to the Internet escrow agent [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1741.1(b)]. An Internet escrow agent may deliver the receipts electronically over the Internet to the person depositing the funds into escrow. If a person is not able to electronically receive the receipt, the Internet escrow agent must mail a true and correct copy of the receipt within 24 hours of execution, and may retain the receipt electronically [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1741.1(b); see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1737.3

(electronic receipts)].

[3] Experienced Persons Required in Escrow Offices

Within the organization of each escrow agent corporation, there must be one or more persons possessing a minimum of five years of responsible escrow or joint control experience stationed at the corporation's main office, and one or more persons possessing a minimum of four years of responsible escrow or joint control experience at each branch. The qualified person may be an owner, officer, or employee [Fin. Code § 17200.8(a)]. At least one of the required qualified persons must be stationed on duty at each licensed business location during the time the location is open for business [Fin. Code § 17200.8(a)]. A person who has satisfied educational requirements established by the Commissioner may substitute education for up to one year of experience [Fin. Code § 17200.8(a)]. Different rules apply to an Internet escrow agent with regard to escrows involving personal property [see Fin. Code § 17200.8(b)].

[4] Separate Escrow Accounts for Each Licensed Location

Separate escrow trust accounts must be maintained for each location licensed under the Escrow Law. Transfers between accounts are prohibited except by the actual writing of a check from one escrow to the other, and by depositing the check for the account of the escrow to which the funds are being transferred and writing a receipt for that deposit. Each transfer must be properly supported and documented in escrow files by inclusion of escrow instructions executed by the principals authorizing the transfer [Fin. Code § 17409.1(a)]. With regard to Internet escrow companies, transfers to trust accounts by commercial banks and from operating accounts to cover losses may be made through wire transfer, and receipts for all of these transactions may be maintained in electronic form [Fin. Code § 17409.1(b)].

[5] Preparation and Use of Escrow Instructions

The Escrow Law imposes a number of restrictions on the preparation and use of escrow instructions. Escrow instructions must be dated [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1738.3]. All written escrow instructions and all escrow instructions transmitted electronically over the Internet executed by a buyer or seller, whether or not the agent is subject to the requirements of the Escrow Law, must contain a statement in at least 10-point type that includes the license name and department issuing the license, or the authority under which the person is operating [Fin. Code § 17403.4; Civ. Code § 1057.7 (requirement inapplicable to supplemental escrow instructions or modifications to escrow instructions)]. Escrow instructions may not contain any blank to be filled in after they are executed [Fin. Code § 17403.2(a)]. Once they are executed, they may not be altered unless the alteration is signed or initialed by all persons who initially executed them [Fin. Code § 17403.2(a)]. An Internet escrow agent may not solicit or accept electronically over the Internet an escrow instruction or amended or supplemental escrow instruction containing any blank to be filled in after executing that escrow instruction or amended or supplemental escrow instruction [Fin. Code § 17403.2(b); see [2][e], above]. Similarly, an Internet escrow agent may not permit any person to electronically, over the Internet, make any addition to, deletion from, or alteration of an escrow instruction or amended or supplemental escrow instruct unless it is executed by all persons who had executed the escrow instruction before the addition, deletion, or alteration [Fin. Code § 17403.2(b)].

Copies of escrow instructions, and of any amended or supplemental instructions, must be delivered to each person executing them at the time of execution [Fin. Code § 17403.3(a)]. Internet escrow agents must deliver electronically over the Internet a copy of each executed escrow instruction or amended or supplemental escrow instruction to all persons executing the instruction [Fin. Code § 17403.3(b); see [2][e], above]. If a person is not able to electronically receive the instructions, the Internet escrow agent must mail a true and correct copy of the instructions to the person within 24 hours of execution [Fin. Code § 17403.3(b)].

The following must be on the face or first page of the escrow instructions, or attached as a separate amendment to the escrow instructions, if the escrow agent proposes to act according to these instructions [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1738.5]:

- An authorization or direction to disburse any money except to an authorized subagent before recordation of instruments in escrows relating to real property or before consummation of sale in escrows relating to bulk sales of personal property.

- An authorization or direction to deliver, except to a duly authorized subagent, or record instruments affecting ownership or interest in real or personal property, before deposit with the escrow agent or an authorized subagent of the full sum of money required to be deposited in escrow under escrow instructions.

- An instruction authorizing disbursements in payment of services, or other items of expense, not including commissions payable to brokers or agents.

- An instruction (which must be in not less that 8-point bold type) that states: "The principals to the transaction agree that if no additional instructions are received from one or both of the principals to the transaction within 120 days from the date escrow is to close, the escrow holder shall consider the escrow canceled and is authorized to take a cancellation fee in the amount specified in the instruction and disburse any remaining deposits to the parties specified in the instruction."

For the instruction to be valid, it must be initialed or electronically executed by the principals to the transaction. The principals to the transaction are the buyer and seller or the borrower and lender [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1738.5].

Except as otherwise indicated above, the restrictions imposed by the Escrow Law on the preparation and use of escrow instructions do not apply to attorneys, real estate brokers and other classes of professional escrow agents exempted from the Escrow Law by Fin. Code § 17006 [see § 26.17[2]].

[6] Handling of Documents and Funds Deposited in Escrow

The basic requirement imposed by the Escrow Law is that an escrow agent may only use documents and property deposited in escrow as directed by the written escrow instructions of the parties, as directed by court order, or, with respect to those matters not covered by written instructions or court order, in accordance with sound escrow practice [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1738.2].

Funds that are received in escrow must be deposited before the close of the next full working day in a bank, savings association or savings and loan account that is specifically designated as a trust or escrow account. They may not be commingled with any non-escrow funds [Fin. Code § 17411; 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1737(a)]. Funds deposited in a trust or escrow account cannot be withdrawn except in accordance with the written instructions of the parties or pursuant to court order [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1738]. Prior to the actual closing and completion of an escrow, escrowed funds cannot be disbursed to pay for contingent fees or commissions [Fin. Code § 17420], but may be used for other purposes if the written instructions of all parties to the transaction so provide [Fin. Code § 17421].

§ 26.19 Selection of Escrow Holder

Ordinarily, a contract for the sale or transfer of a real property interest will specify the particular person or entity who is to serve as escrow holder. Occasionally, though, a contract may provide that the escrow holder is to be selected by a particular party or even by a lender or other third party.

In California, almost all real estate escrows are established with professional escrow agents. In Northern California, most escrows are handled by escrow departments of title companies, while in Southern California most are handled by independent escrow companies. A significant number of escrows, particularly in refinancing transactions, are handled by escrow departments or subsidiaries of banks or other financial institutions.

In selecting a entity to serve as an escrow agent, the most important considerations are usually the financial strength and stability of the entity; the knowledge, experience, and competence of its escrow officers; and the likelihood that its handling of the escrow will be impartial and will not be affected by any dealings or ongoing business relationship that the entity may have with a party or a party's agent. In choosing between entities that are comparable in terms of these factors, location and accessibility may be important considerations. Ordinarily, there is not a substantial difference in the fees that various escrow agents charge. Consequently, cost is seldom a significant factor in the selection of an escrow agent, except possibly in large transactions in which fees are more likely to be subject to negotiation.

California has enacted two statutory measures designed to discourage the selection of escrow holders on the basis of commissions, rebates, or other direct financial benefits that may be received by a party or agent who may be in a position to control the selection because of superior knowledge or a superior bargaining position. First, an escrow agent regulated under the Escrow Law is prohibited from paying any kind of commission, rebate, or similar fee to a person referring escrow business [Fin. Code § 17420]. Second, a real estate developer is prohibited from requiring a buyer of residential real property to use an escrow entity in which the developer has a financial interest [Civ. Code § 2995].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 26.20 Escrow Instructions

[1] Nature and Function

Escrow instructions authorize and direct the escrow holder to act as the agent of the parties to an agreement and to take the specific steps that must be taken to carry out the agreement. They define and limit the authority and the obligations of the escrow holder [Axley v. Transamerica Title Ins. Co. (1978) 88 Cal. App. 3d 1, 8-9, 151 Cal. Rptr. 570 ; Mefford v. Security Title Ins. Co. (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 578, 585, 18 Cal. Rptr. 877 ; Blackburn v. McCoy (1934) 1 Cal. App. 2d 648, 655, 37 P.2d 153] .

[2] Common Forms

In most of the simpler California real estate transactions, the escrow agent prepares the escrow instructions by inserting information about the specific details of particular transactions on preprinted forms it has developed. Frequently, these preprinted form instructions are supplemented by riders or addenda drafted by escrow agents or attorneys to cover atypical conditions or circumstances. Escrow instructions prepared wholly by attorneys tend to be used more in those transactions that are particularly complex, that involve large sums of money, or that implement settlements of potential legal claims or pending litigation.

In Northern California transactions, the prevailing practice is to prepare separate escrow instructions for the buyer and the seller. In Southern California transactions, the prevailing practice is to prepare one set of joint escrow instructions for execution by both the buyer and the seller.

In Northern California, a set of escrow instructions usually takes the form of a document that is separate and distinct from the underlying agreement. As a general rule, the underlying agreement is not incorporated into the escrow instructions or otherwise deposited with the escrow holder. In Southern California, escrow instructions are frequently drafted concurrently with the underlying agreement and incorporated into the agreement, so that the agreement itself also serves as the instructions for the escrow that will be opened to implement the agreement.

[3] Relationship Between Underlying Agreement and Subsequent Escrow Instructions

In general, it is presumed that escrow instructions are merely a customary and convenient means of carrying out an underlying agreement and that they are not intended to supersede it [King v. Stanley (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 584, 589, 197 P.2d 321 ; Katemis v. Westerlind (1953) 120 Cal. App. 2d 537, 542, 261 P.2d 553] . This rule has two important implications. First, the escrow instructions are considered as evidence of the meaning and intent of the agreement and thus may be looked to in order to ascertain the contractual obligations of the parties when the agreement is unclear or silent on a particular point [King v. Stanley (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 584, 588-589, 197 P.2d 321 ; Leiter v. Handelsman (1954) 125 Cal. App. 2d 243, 250, 270 P.2d 563] . Second, the omission of certain terms or conditions from escrow instructions will not, in and of itself, operate to change the terms of the agreement [King v. Stanley (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 584, 591, 197 P.2d 321 ; Keelan v. Belmont Co. (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 6, 12, 165 P.2d 930] . However, notwithstanding the general rule, terms contained in escrow instructions may supersede inconsistent terms of an underlying agreement if it appears that the parties intended to modify the agreement [Neher v. Kauffman (1925) 197 Cal. 674, 683, 242 P. 713 ; Hawes v. Lux (1931) 111 Cal. App. 21, 24, 294 P. 1080] .

Even though the contractual obligations of the parties are ordinarily determined by the underlying agreement, the obligations of the escrow holder are defined by the escrow instructions that have been conveyed by the parties [Axley v. Transamerica Title Ins. Co. (1978) 88 Cal. App. 3d 1, 8-9, 151 Cal. Rptr. 570 ; Mefford v. Security Title Ins. Co. (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 578, 585, 18 Cal. Rptr. 877 ; Blackburn v. McCoy (1934) 1 Cal. App. 2d 648, 655, 37 P.2d 153] . Therefore, unless the underlying agreement is incorporated or included in the escrow instructions in some manner, the escrow holder is not usually obligated to ascertain or perform terms and conditions of the agreement that are not set forth in the escrow instructions [see Bailey v. Security Trust Co. (1919) 179 Cal. 540, 549, 177 P. 444 ; Contemporary Investments, Inc. v. Safeco Title Ins. Co. (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 999, 1003-1005, 193 Cal. Rptr. 822] . However, an escrow holder who has notice of a party's claim that the terms of the escrow instructions do not conform to the terms of the agreement due to an error in the preparation of the instructions has an obligation to permit the parties to correct the error or resolve any dispute before proceeding to close the escrow [Diaz v. United California Bank (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 161, 171, 139 Cal. Rptr. 314 ; Spaziani v. Millar (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 667, 681-682, 30 Cal. Rptr. 658] .

[4] Validity

Escrow instructions deposited or conveyed by one party are not binding until all parties have either communicated their acceptance of the instructions to the escrow holder or have deposited or conveyed their own instructions [see Security-First Nat. Bk. v. Clark (1935) 8 Cal. App. 2d 709, 712, 48 P.2d 167 ; Altadena Escrow Corp. v. Beebe (1960) 181 Cal. App. 2d 743, 745, 5 Cal. Rptr. 530] . Even when all parties have deposited or conveyed escrow instructions, they will not be effective if they contain conflicting provisions concerning a material term or condition of the escrow [Security-First Nat. Bk. v. Clark (1935) 8 Cal. App. 2d 709, 712, 48 P.2d 167 ; House v. Lala (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 412, 417, 4 Cal. Rptr. 366] .

Ordinarily, escrow instructions are not required to be in writing, and oral instructions are therefore valid [Cannon v. Handley (1887) 72 Cal. 133, 144-145, 13 P. 315 ; Zang v. Northwestern Title Co. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 159, 168, 185 Cal. Rptr. 176] . However, an oral modification of written escrow instructions may be ineffective if the written instructions require that any modification be in writing [Davis v. Stulman (1945) 72 Cal. App. 2d 255, 268, 164 P.2d 787] .

[5] Interpretation

In general, an escrow holder is entitled to have its obligations determined by a fair and liberal construction of the escrow instructions and other documents placed in escrow [Bailey v. Security Trust Co. (1919) 179 Cal. 540, 549, 177 P. 444] . Separate escrow instructions are to be read and construed together [Neher v. Kauffman (1925) 197 Cal. 674, 683, 242 P. 713 ; Tuso v. Green (1924) 194 Cal. 574, 581, 229 P. 327] . When printed instruction forms are used, provisions that are subsequently typed or written in will control over inconsistent printed provisions [Welk v. Fainbarg (1968) 255 Cal. App. 2d 269, 275, 63 Cal. Rptr. 127] . In the absence of express provisions, the escrow holder's obligations with respect to the furnishing of deeds, title insurance policies, prorating of taxes and other incidental matters are determined by custom [Domino v. Mobley (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 24, 29, 300 P.2d 324] .

[6] Modification

As a general rule, escrow instructions can be modified or withdrawn at any time with the consent of all of the parties to the escrow [King v. Stanley (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 584, 589, 197 P.2d 321 ; Zlozower v. Lindenbaum (1929) 100 Cal. App. 766, 773, 281 P. 102] . However, once valid instructions have initially been deposited with the escrow holder, a party may not modify or withdraw his or her instructions without the consent of all other parties, and an attempted unilateral modification will be ineffective [Diaz v. United California Bank (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 161, 166, 139 Cal. Rptr. 314 ; Wade v. Lake County Title Co. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 824, 828, 86 Cal. Rptr. 182] . If the instructions initially deposited require that modifications be approved in writing by all parties, a modification that has been made or approved verbally will also be ineffective [Davis v. Stulman (1945) 72 Cal. App. 2d 255, 268, 164 P.2d 787 ; Anderson v. Southern Title & Trust Co. (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 700, 702, 184 P.2d 949] .

CHAPTER 26 REAL PROPERTY ESCROWS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

11-26 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26.21

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 26.21 Performance of Conditions of Escrow

[1] Sufficiency of Performance

Title to the property or funds that are the subject of an escrow will not pass unless the terms and conditions of the escrow have been fully and strictly performed or fulfilled [Shreeves v. Pearson (1924) 194 Cal. 699, 711, 230 P. 448 ; Todd v. Vestermark (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 374, 377, 302 P.2d 347] . The doctrine of substantial performance does not apply [Love v. White (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 192, 194, 14 Cal. Rptr. 442, 363 P.2d 482 ; Todd v. Vestermark (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 374, 377, 302 P.2d 347] . The requirement of strict performance will not be satisfied by a showing that a party had the ability to perform [Spangler v. Castello (1956) 147 Cal. App. 2d 49, 53, 304 P.2d 752 ; Watts v. Mohr (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 256, 262, 194 P.2d 758] .

[2] Timeliness of Performance

When instructions that require performance within a specified period or by a specified date declare that time is of the essence, the conditions of the escrow must be performed or fulfilled within the specified time [Weisberg v. Ashcraft (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 793, 795, 36 Cal. Rptr. 188 ; Pothast v. Kind (1933) 218 Cal. 192, 195, 24 P.2d 771] . However, when the last day specified for performance falls on a Sunday or another holiday, the time for performance is extended up to and including the next day that is not a holiday [Civ. Code §§ 7-12; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 10-13; Law v. Title Guarantee & Trust Co. (1928) 91 Cal. App. 621, 625-626, 267 P. 565 ; Kells v. Pearson (1922) 56 Cal. App. 502, 505, 205 P. 888] .

Ordinarily, time is not of the essence in the performance of escrow instructions unless the instructions contain a clear and express declaration to that effect; a provision that merely requires performance within a specified period does not render time of the essence [Katemis v. Westerlind (1953) 120 Cal. App. 2d 537, 543, 261 P.2d 553 ; Leiter v. Handelsman (1959) 125 Cal. App. 2d 243, 251, 270 P.2d 563] . When time is not of the essence, performance within a reasonable time after the date or period specified in the instructions is timely [Leiter v. Handelsman (1954) 125 Cal. App. 2d 243, 251, 270 P.2d 563 ; see also Fowler v. Ross (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 472, 479, 191 Cal. Rptr. 183] .

When the escrow instructions do not specify the time for performance of terms and conditions of the escrow, a reasonable period of time will be allowed [Civ. Code § 1657; Rockefeller v. Smith (1930) 104 Cal. App. 544, 549, 286 P. 487] . What will be considered a reasonable period of time depends on the nature of the terms and conditions to be performed and the surrounding circumstances [First Nat. Bank v. Caldwell (1927) 84 Cal. App. 438, 444, 258 P. 411] .

[3] Waiver

A party to an escrow may waive the right to performance of conditions of the escrow and performance of a condition is not required when it has been waived by the party or parties it was intended to benefit [Wolf v. Price (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 165, 173, 52 Cal. Rptr. 889 ; Jolin v. Spira (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 356, 360, 210 P.2d 704] . However, a party may not waive a condition that is intended, in whole or part, to benefit another party [see Spangler v. Castello (1956) 147 Cal. App. 2d 49, 52, 304 P.2d 752] .

A waiver may be express or may be implied from acts or circumstances indicating a intent to waive [Wolf v. Price (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 165, 173, 52 Cal. Rptr. 889 ; Jolin v. Spira (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 356, 360, 210 P.2d 704] . When the required elements are present, the doctrine of equitable estoppel may be applied to preclude a party who has led another party to believe a condition has been waived from asserting a right to performance of the condition [Boshes v. Miller (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 332, 334-335, 259 P.2d 447 ; Security-First Nat. Bk. v. Clark (1935) 8 Cal. App. 2d 709, 714, 48 P.2d 167] .

CHAPTER 26 REAL PROPERTY ESCROWS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

11-26 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26.22

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 26.22 Passage of Title

The deposit of instruments or funds into escrow does not pass title to the funds or the subject property. Although the escrow holder acquires possession and control of items deposited into escrow, title remains vested in the depositor unless and until the conditions of the escrow are performed or fulfilled [Love v. White (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 192, 194, 14 Cal. Rptr. 442, 363 P.2d 482 ; Promis v. Duke (1929) 208 Cal. 420, 425, 281 P. 613] . If the conditions of the escrow have not been performed or fulfilled, delivery or recordation of instruments or funds by the escrow holder is a nullity and does not pass title [Todd v. Vestermark (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 374, 377, 302 P.2d 347 ; Montgomery v. Bank of America (1948) 85 Cal. App. 2d 559, 563, 193 P.2d 475] . In the absence of a contrary agreement, the depositor retains the incidents of ownership and the risk of loss pending the performance or fulfillment of the escrow conditions [see, e.g., Hildebrand v. Beck (1925) 196 Cal. 141, 145, 236 P. 301 ; Todd v. Vestermark (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 374, 377, 302 P.2d 347 ; Turney v. Collins (1941) 48 Cal. App. 2d 381, 390, 119 P.2d 954] .

Title to instruments and funds deposited in escrow passes by operation of law when the conditions of the escrow are performed or fulfilled, not when the instruments or funds are subsequently delivered or recorded [Todd v. Vestermark (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 374, 377, 302 P.2d 347 ; Holman v. Toten (1942) 54 Cal. App. 2d 309, 313-314, 128 P.2d 808] . In some cases, the "relation back" doctrine may be invoked to avoid injustice or hardship to a party and title will be deemed to have passed when instruments or funds were deposited in escrow [see, e.g., Borgonovo v. Henderson (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 220, 229-230, 6 Cal. Rptr. 236 ; Miller & Lux, Inc., v. Sparkman (1932) 128 Cal. App. 449, 454-455, 17 P.2d 772] . However, the relation back doctrine will not be applied to defeat the rights of a bona fide purchaser [Hibberd v. Smith (1885) 67 Cal. 547, 561-562, 4 P. 473 ; see also Borgonovo v. Henderson (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 220, 229-230, 6 Cal. Rptr. 236] .

CHAPTER 26 REAL PROPERTY ESCROWS
PART III. TRANSACTION GUIDE
B. Preliminary Determinations

11-26 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26.110

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 26.110 Basic Determinations for All Parties

1. Select escrow holder, if one is not specified by contract.

a. Determine type of entity desired:
(1) Escrow department of title insurance company.

(2) Independent escrow company.

NOTE:
In most Northern California transactions, escrows are handled by escrow departments of title insurance companies, while in most Southern California transactions they are handled by independent escrow companies.

(3) Escrow department or subsidiary of financial institution.

NOTE:
In some cases, financial institutions financing a transaction will require that the escrow be handled by their escrow departments or subsidiaries. In others, particularly if the financing arrangements and contingencies are unusually complex or timing is critical, use of a lender's escrow department or subsidiary may be advantageous because it will facilitate the funding of the loan.

(4) Real estate broker.

NOTE:

Real estate brokers usually lack the specialized expertise, and sometimes the objectivity and impartiality, that an escrow holder should possess and use of a real estate broker is not recommended.

(5) Attorney.

NOTE:

Attorneys for the parties may also lack the objectivity and impartiality that an escrow holder should possess, and it may cost considerably more to have an escrow processed by an attorney than by a professional escrow agent.

b. Evaluate potential escrow holders in terms of:

(1) Financial strength and stability.

(2) Experience and expertise of escrow officers.

NOTE:

Usually the two most important considerations are the financial strength and stability of the prospective escrow holders and the experience and expertise of their escrow officers.

(3) Reputation.

(4) Impartiality.

NOTE:

Escrow holders who may be influenced by a long-standing or lucrative relationship with the real estate brokers or attorneys for the other party should be avoided.

(5) Accessibility to parties and attorneys.

(6) Cost.

NOTE:

Although the charges that will be imposed by prospective escrow holders should always be ascertained before a selection is made, the difference in cost will rarely be significant.

2. Determine whether to submit joint or separate escrow instructions by evaluating and weighing:

a. Prevailing customs and practices in locality.

NOTE:

Separate escrow instructions are used in most Northern California transactions. Joint escrow instructions are used in the majority of Southern California transactions.

b. Preference of escrow holder.

c. Other party's willingness to submit joint instructions.

d. Probable length and complexity of instructions.

NOTE:

Separate escrow instructions are generally less complex and easier to prepare than joint escrow instructions. However, any savings in initial drafting time must be weighed against the additional time that may be required to review separate instructions and eliminate any material inconsistencies between the seller's and buyer's instructions [see g. and h., below*].

e. Ability to work smoothly and efficiently with other party or that party's attorney.

f. Additional time and expense likely to be entailed by drafting of joint instructions.

g. Likelihood of material conflicts if separate instructions are used.

h. Importance of avoiding material conflicts in initial instructions.

3. Determine obligations that must be performed by seller under terms of contract before buyer is obligated to pay purchase price.

a. State of title to be conveyed to buyer.

b. Type and amount of title insurance, and exceptions permitted [see Ch. 26A, Title Insurance].

c. Conveyances of interests in adjoining real property to buyer:

(1) Easement.

(2) Party wall agreement.

(3) Boundary agreement.

(4) Other agreements.

d. Conveyances of personal property to buyer.

e. Assignment or transfer of membership in homeowner's association to buyer.

f. Assignment or transfer of stock or subscription in mutual or private water company to buyer.

g. Type of pest control clearance or corrective work to be obtained or done by seller.

h. Type of building and/or health code inspection and clearance or corrective work to be obtained by seller.

i. Insurance policies to be transferred to buyer.

j. Maintenance agreements or other service contracts to be assigned to buyer.

k. Assignment and delivery of leases or rental agreements to buyer.

l. Delivery of rent statement or schedule to buyer.

m. Delivery of statement or schedule of security deposits to buyer.

n. Other conditions to be performed by seller.

4. Determine obligations that must be performed by buyer under terms of contract before seller is obligated to convey property.

a. Deposit(s) to be made by buyer.

b. Amount of cash payment to be made to seller.

c. Execution of secured promissory note to seller.

(1) Amount, due date, and other terms and conditions of note.

(2) Terms and conditions of deed of trust securing note.

(3) Priority of deed of trust securing note.

(4) Type and amount of title insurance and exceptions permitted.

(5) Type and amount of insurance coverage to be placed on property for benefit of seller.

d. Separate conveyances or agreements to be executed in favor of seller or third party by buyer:

(1) Easement.

(2) Party wall agreement.

(3) Boundary agreement.

(4) Other agreements.

e. Other conditions to be performed by buyer.

5. Determine date or time specified in contract for close of escrow.

6. Determine whether contract requires any obligations imposed on seller or buyer to be performed before close of escrow.

7. Determine whether any other provisions of contract make contract or a party's obligation to perform contingent on occurrence or nonoccurrence of the following (or other) events or conditions:

a. Buyer obtaining loan commitment on specified terms.

b. Buyer obtaining building permit, variance, or other approval from governmental agency for proposed addition to or use of property.

c. Buyer's approval of terms of loan to be assumed.

d. Buyer's approval of additional items on preliminary title report.

e. Buyer's approval of reports of contractors, engineers, or others.

f. Buyer's approval of leases or other agreements affecting property.

g. Buyer's sale of present residence or other property.

h. Seller's purchase of other residence.

8. If contract is made contingent on any of above conditions (or others), determine:

a. Effect of failure of condition:

(1) Contract will be automatically canceled unless condition occurs; or

(2) Contract will remain effective unless a party affirmatively asserts right to cancel.

b. Method, if any, prescribed for:

(1) Establishing occurrence or nonoccurrence of condition; and/or

(2) Asserting right to cancel.

c. Date by which or time within which condition must be satisfied or fulfilled.

9. Based on factors listed below, determine for each condition precedent or contingency provision whether escrow holder should be instructed as to contingency, or whether parties should determine satisfaction or fulfillment of contingency outside of escrow.

a. Nature of condition or contingency.

b. Likelihood of determining satisfaction or failure before escrow instructions are deposited.

c. Likelihood of determining satisfaction or failure before funds, instruments, or documents are deposited.

d. Potential for dispute over satisfaction or failure of condition or contingency.

e. Potential consequences of any such dispute.

f. Mechanism provided by contract for establishing satisfaction or failure.

g. Desirability and feasibility of having escrow holder determine satisfaction or failure.

NOTE:

Assuming that an appropriate mechanism can be found for making the determination, having the escrow holder determine the satisfaction or failure of a contingency can often avoid disputes that can tie up funds or important documents in an escrow that should be canceled or delay the processing of an escrow that should proceed. However, escrow holders generally should not, and as a matter of policy usually will not, make determinations that involve the exercise of judgment or the use of discretion. Thus, it is usually feasible to have the escrow holder determine the satisfaction or failure of the contingency only if the parties can agree on some procedure for making a determination that is consistent with the provisions of the underlying contract and that only requires the escrow holder to determine the existence or nonexistence of specified facts from a specified source.

h. Effect of dealing with condition or contingency in escrow on lenders and other interested third parties authorized to receive copies of escrow instructions and documents.

10. Determine whether contract requires proration of following (or other) costs or expenses of maintaining or using property:

a. Real property taxes.

b. Special assessments.

c. Maintenance fees.

d. Homeowner's dues.

e. Premiums for insurance policies to be transferred to buyer.

f. Utility bills.

11. Determine whether contract requires proration of following (and any other) items of income attributable to use of property:

a. Rents paid in advance for rental period or periods in which escrow closes.

b. Rents owing for rental period or periods in which escrow closes.

12. Based on factors listed below, determine whether any costs, expenses, or items of income required to be prorated should be prorated by parties outside of escrow:

a. Nature and probable amount of cost or item.

NOTE:

Proration through escrow is less important if the amount that is likely to be credited or debited is nominal or small in relation to other amounts involved in the transaction. In such a case, a party may prefer to take the risk of a dispute outside of escrow rather than complicate and possibly delay the processing of the escrow.

b. Prevailing custom or practice in locality.

c. Feasibility of having creditor prorate and separately bill costs and expenses.

d. Nature of information required for proration.

NOTE:

The feasibility of having the escrow holder prorate a particular item must be determined in light of the nature of the information that it must obtain in order to make the necessary determinations and calculations. If the necessary information will be difficult for the escrow holder to secure or analyze, or if it may be unavailable prior to the time escrow is to close, it may not be feasible to have the escrow holder prorate a particular item.

e. Availability of information required for proration prior to date set for close of escrow.

f. Feasibility of having escrow holder prorate cost of item.

NOTE:

The feasibility of having the escrow holder prorate a particular item essentially depends on whether having a particular item prorated through escrow is likely to unnecessarily complicate or delay the escrow, either as a result of dispute between the parties over how the item should be prorated or as a result of problems the escrow holder may have in obtaining the necessary information or making the necessary calculations or determinations.

g. Likelihood of potential problems in reaching agreement or obtaining payment from other party.

13. Determine whether contract requires any other credits or debits for following (or other) items:

a. Difference between estimated balance and actual balance of loan to be assumed by buyer.

b. Monies retained in impound account as result of buyer's assumption of a loan made to seller.

c. Buyer's assumption of liability for security deposits held by seller.

d. Rents owing for rental periods ending before close of escrow.

14. Determine who is obligated, under terms of contract, to pay following (and other) costs and expenses of sale and escrow:

a. Real estate commission.

b. Cost of preliminary report and title insurance policy.

c. Initial pest control report.

d. Corrective pest control work, if any.

e. Fees for building and/or health code inspection and report and cost of necessary corrective work.

f. Documentary transfer tax and any local transfer tax.

g. Fee for reconveyance of existing deed of trust.

h. Recording fees.

i. Fees and charges for services of escrow holder.

15. Based on factors listed below, determine whether any of above costs and expenses should be paid by parties outside of escrow:

a. Nature and probable amount of cost or expense.

NOTE:

Some necessary costs or expenses may have to be paid outside of escrow because the creditor requires payment for the particular services or items involved before the time escrow is to close. Some costs and expenses may be so small that the effort required to provide for their payment out of escrow simply is not justified.

b. Prevailing custom or practice in locality.

c. Feasibility of having creditor bill party directly.

d. Creditor's willingness to bill party directly.

e. Assignment of or lien against escrowed funds.

NOTE:

If a party has assigned escrowed funds to a creditor or granted a creditor a lien against escrowed funds and the escrow holder has knowledge of the assignment or the lien, the escrow holder will be liable to the third party if it disburses the assigned funds in a manner that is contrary to the terms of the assignment or fails to pay the lien [Builders' Control Service of No. Cal., Inc. v. North American Title Guar. Co. (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 68, 73, 22 Cal. Rptr. 712] . Consequently, in the absence of a written release from the assignee or lien claimant, an escrow holder with knowledge of an assignment or lien will usually insist that payment be made to the creditor out of escrow or, in the event that a party disputes the creditor's claim or asserts that payment has been made, that funds equal to the amount of the assignment or lien be retained in escrow.

f. Likelihood of dispute concerning validity or amount or costs or expenses.

g. Effect of providing for payment out of escrow in event of dispute.

C. Procedural Guide to Representation of Party to Real Estate Sale Escrow

11-26 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26.120

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 26.120 Initial Steps for All Parties

NOTE:

This transaction guide assumes that the seller and buyer are represented by attorneys. [Escrows for transactions in which the parties are represented only by real estate brokers or in which they are representing themselves are usually processed in a much different manner.] In such transactions, the escrow is typically "opened" either without instructions or with the purchase contract serving as a set of interim instructions. Requesting the parties to the escrow to provide information or deposit documents or funds as needed, the escrow holder proceeds to prepare or obtain the instruments and documents needed to complete the sale, using standard preprinted forms. It handles the dealings with lenders, lien claimants, and other involved third parties. Contingencies are handled by the parties outside of escrow. When the necessary arrangements have been made with third parties and the escrow is ready to close, the escrow holder will meet with the parties and have them review and sign the escrow instructions and all of the instruments and documents necessary to complete the sale. Usually, the deed and the other instruments will be recorded and escrow will close within one or two days after this meeting.

1. Contact escrow agent and:

a. Open escrow file.

b. Secure assignment of escrow number as reference for all future communications and dealings.

2. Obtain and review preliminary title report [see § 26A.200].

NOTE:

The preliminary title report shows the outstanding liens, encumbrances, restrictions, and other title defects that have been disclosed by the title insurer's investigation and that would be excepted from any policy of title insurance issued. This information is ordinarily needed by the seller because the seller is obligated to secure title insurance that excepts only those items the buyer has agreed to accept and therefore must secure the removal of any other liens, encumbrances, restrictions, or defects. It is ordinarily needed by the buyer because the buyer has agreed to take title subject to certain liens and restrictions and the buyer's escrow instructions must describe those items precisely in specifying the terms of the title insurance required as a condition to the close of escrow.

3. Prepare draft of escrow instructions [see §§ 26.200 (seller's instructions), 26.201 (buyer's instructions), or 26.202 (joint instructions)].

4. Exchange drafts with attorney for other party (if separate instructions are used) and request escrow holder to review draft.

5. Make any revisions necessary to reconcile inconsistencies or meet concerns of other party or escrow holder.

6. Have instructions executed by client and approved by other party.

7. Deposit instructions with escrow holder.

8. Have escrow holder acknowledge receipt of and agreement to instructions.

NOTE:
This guide is intended for use in escrows in which the parties are represented by attorneys [see note to § 26.120].

1. Order title insurance policy required by contract [see §§ 26A.120-26A.123].

NOTE:
In an escrow transaction for the purchase or simultaneous exchange of real property, if a policy of title insurance is not to be issued to the buyer or to the parties to the exchange, the buyer or parties must be given a statutory notice (in a separate document) indicating that it may be advisable to obtain a policy of title insurance. The recipients must sign and acknowledge the notice [Civ. Code § 1057.6; see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements].

2. If required, take (or direct seller to take) steps necessary to obtain structural pest control certification:

NOTE:
Real property sales contracts usually require that a structural pest control report be ordered and that a certification ("termite clearance") be obtained. The contract may provide that the cost of any repair work will be paid by one of the parties or prorated between the parties in a specified manner.

Even if the parties themselves do not require a report or a certification, lenders commonly require that one be obtained and deposited into escrow as a condition of lending funds for the purchase of the property.

a. Order pest control report, if not previously ordered.

b. Arrange for corrective work necessary to secure required certification.

c. If necessary, arrange for reinspection following completion of work.

d. Deposit certification in escrow when obtained.

3. If required, take (or direct seller to take) steps necessary to obtain city or county building and/or health code clearance:

a. Arrange for initial inspection, if not done previously.

b. Arrange for any corrective work necessary to bring property into compliance.

c. If necessary, arrange for reinspection.

d. Deposit report or certificate establishing clearance into escrow when obtained.

4. Make arrangements for transfer of fire and physical damage insurance policies to buyer.

5. Prepare and deposit in escrow notices of satisfaction or waiver of conditions as required by instructions [see §§ 26.260 (notice of satisfaction) or 26.261 (notice of waiver)].

NOTE:
For a general discussion of contingencies, see § 26.201[1].

6. Prepare following conveyances and agreements (as appropriate) to be executed by seller; have seller execute them and deposit them in escrow:

a. Grant deed [see Ch. 27, Deeds and Recording].

b. Grant of easement over adjoining real property [see §§ 28A.200-28A.202].

c. Party wall agreement [see §§ 28B.200-28B.203].

d. Boundary agreement [see §§ 28B.210-28B.211].

e. Bill of sale for personal property to be conveyed to buyer [see § 23.323].

f. Assignment of maintenance agreements or other service contracts relating to property [see § 76.200].

g. Assignment of homeowner's association membership [see § 76.200].

h. Assignment of stock or subscription in mutual or private water company [see § 76.200].

i. Assignment of rights under leases or rental agreements [see §§ 35A.201, 35A.203].

j. Assignment of security deposits [see § 76.200; see also § 35A.223[1]].

7. If seller is financing portion of purchase price, prepare promissory note and deed of trust and deposit them in escrow for execution by buyer [see §§ 25A.200-25A.205, 25A.210-25A.212, 25A.240-25A.247].

8. Obtain necessary instruments and agreements from third parties and deposit them in escrow:

a. Quitclaim deed conveying interest of record owner, spouse, or other potential claimant to seller [see § 27.203].

b. Instruments or documents discharging and removing liens that will not be paid off and removed through escrow [see §§ 25B.220-25B.223; see also §§ 31.250-31.258 (mechanic's liens)].

9. Obtain additional instruments and documents required by title insurer and deposit them in escrow.

a. Statement of identity.

b. Power of attorney [see § 27.272].

c. Copy of court decree or order authorizing sale.

d. Certified copy of statement of partnership [see § 15.285].

e. Certified copy of corporate resolution [see §§ 5.241, 5.249].

10. Have seller prepare schedules of rents and security deposits and deposit them in escrow.

11. Deposit statements, invoices, receipts, and other documents furnished by seller to establish amount and payment of costs and expenses to be prorated in escrow.

12. Contact escrow holder to confirm close of escrow.

13. Contact seller to confirm disbursement of balance of purchase price.

14. Review closing statement and instruments, agreements, documents, and statements delivered by escrow holder or returned following close of escrow to verify that instructions have been carried out.

NOTE:
This guide is intended for use in escrows in which the parties are represented by attorneys [see note to § 26.120].

1. Order any additional inspections or reports provided for by contract.

2. Instruct buyer to make deposits required by contract and instructions.

3. Prepare conveyances and agreements to be executed by buyer; have buyer execute them and deposit them in escrow.

b. Grant of easement over adjoining real property [see §§ 28A.200-28A.202].

c. Party wall agreement [see §§ 28B.200-28B.203].

d. Boundary agreement [see §§ 28B.210-28B.211].

4. If buyer is obtaining loan or if seller is financing portion of purchase price:

a. Review instruments and loan documents deposited in escrow for execution by buyer; if acceptable, have buyer execute them.

b. Order title insurance required by lender or seller [see §§ 26A.120-26A.123].

c. Make arrangements for issuance of fire and physical damage insurance required by lender or seller.

5. File preliminary change of ownership report [see § 23.306].

6. Have buyer deposit additional amounts of cash sufficient to pay balance of purchase price and escrow fees and costs that buyer is obligated to pay.

7. If transaction is contingent on obtaining building permit, variance, or other approval required for proposed addition or use, take (or direct buyer to take) steps necessary to complete application and secure determination:

a. File application or supplemental application.

b. Provide required materials and information in support of application.

c. Comply with additional conditions.

d. Attend meetings or hearing on application.

8. Contact escrow holder and verify close of escrow.

9. Review closing statement and instruments, agreements, documents, and statements delivered by escrow holder or returned following close of escrow to verify that instructions have been carried out.

10. Give tenants notice of assignment of leases and transfer of security deposits [see §§ 35A.201, 35A.203].

11. If maintenance, service, or other contracts have been assigned, give notice of assignment to obligor [see § 76.200].

12. File change in ownership statement if required [see § 23.306[1]].

§ 26.200 Seller's Escrow Instructions

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a set of escrow instructions that may be used by the seller in a transaction in which the seller and buyer submit separate instructions to the escrow holder pursuant to a contract for the sale of residential or commercial property. For separate buyer's instructions, see § 26.201.

This form and the other escrow instruction forms in this chapter are designed for escrows in which, due to the complexity of the transaction, the amounts involved, or other considerations, the instructions are to be prepared by the attorneys representing the parties. Title companies and other professional escrow agents generally offer to prepare escrow instructions on behalf of the parties using printed form instructions they have developed. In some simple transactions, these printed forms may be adequate.

[b] Separate Instructions

Separate escrow instructions are used in most Northern California transactions. They are generally less complex and easier to prepare than joint escrow instructions, which are used in the majority of Southern California transactions. For joint seller's and buyer's instructions, see § 26.202.

When the seller and buyer submit separate escrow instructions, they will be read and construed together to ascertain the terms and conditions of the escrow [Neher v. Kauffman (1925) 197 Cal. 674, 683, 242 P. 713 ; Tuso v. Green (1924) 194 Cal. 574, 581, 229 P. 327] . If the respective instructions of the parties are not in agreement as to the essential terms and conditions of the escrow, they will not operate to create a valid escrow [House v. Lala (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 412, 417, 4 Cal. Rptr. 366 ; Security-First Nat. Bk. v. Clark (1935) 8 Cal. App. 2d 709, 712, 48 P.2d 167] . However, in the absence of express provisions, the escrow holder's obligations with respect to the furnishing of deeds and title insurance policies, the prorating of taxes and expenses, and other incidental matters, are determined by custom [Domino v. Mobley (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 24, 29, 300 P.2d 324] .

[c] Drafting and Contents

[i] Implementation of Contract Provisions

Ordinarily, the purpose of escrow instructions is to carry out the terms and conditions of an existing contract [King v. Stanley (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 584, 589, 197 P.2d 321 ; Katemis v. Westerlind (1953) 120 Cal. App. 2d 537, 542, 261 P.2d 553] . In a given transaction, therefore, the content of the escrow instructions must usually be dictated in large part by the terms of the underlying contract. This form contains instructions that can be used to implement provisions that are commonly found in contracts for the sale of residential and commercial real property [for discussion of real property sales contracts, see Ch. 23, Real Property Sale Agreements]. Whether these instructions are applicable to a particular transaction will depend on the terms of the sales contract.

[ii] Legal Requirements

When escrow instructions are drafted by the attorneys for the parties, the law does not require, as a general rule, the inclusion of any particular terms or conditions or the use of any particular form or language. However, all written escrow instructions (other than supplemental escrow instructions or modifications to escrow instructions) and all escrow instructions transmitted electronically over the Internet that are executed by a buyer or seller, whether prepared by an attorney or other person exempt from the Escrow Law [Fin. Code § 17000 et seq.; see Fin. Code § 17006 (exemptions), § 26.17[2] (discussion)] or by a professional escrow agent licensed under the Escrow Law, must contain a statement in not less than 10-point type setting forth the name of the license or other authority under which the agent or preparer is operating and, if applicable, the name of the department issuing the license [Fin. Code § 17403.4; Civ. Code § 1057.7].

Further, professional escrow agents licensed under the Escrow Law are prohibited from accepting or using instructions that are not dated [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1738.3], that contain blanks to be filled in after they are executed [Fin. Code § 17403.2(a)], or that contain alterations that have not been initialed by all persons executing them [Fin. Code § 17403.2(a)]. In addition, an Internet escrow agent may not solicit or accept electronically over the Internet an escrow instruction or amended or supplemental escrow instruction containing any blank to be filled in after executing that escrow instruction or amended or supplemental escrow instruction [Fin. Code § 17403.2(b)]. Similarly, an Internet escrow agent may not permit any person to electronically, over the Internet, make any addition to, deletion from, or alteration of an escrow instruction or amended or supplemental escrow instruct unless it is executed by all persons who had executed the escrow instruction before the addition, deletion, or alteration [Fin. Code § 17403.2(b)].

If the escrow agent proposes to act according to any of the following instructions, the instruction must be contained on the face or first page of the escrow instructions, or attached as a separate amendment [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1738.5]:

- An authorization or direction to disburse any money except to an authorized subescrow agent before recordation of instruments in escrows relating to real property or before consummation of sale in escrows relating to bulk sales of personal property.

- An authorization or direction to deliver, except to a duly authorized subescrow agent, or record instruments affecting ownership or interest in real or personal property, before deposit with the escrow agent or an authorized subescrow agent of the full sum of money required to be deposited in escrow under escrow instructions.

- An instruction authorizing disbursements in payment of services, or other items of expense, not including commissions payable to brokers or agents.

- An instruction in not less than 8 point bold type stating: "The principals to the transaction agree that if no additional instructions are received from one or both of the principals to the transaction within 120 days from the date escrow is to close, the escrow holder shall consider the escrow canceled and is authorized to take a cancellation fee in the amount specified in the instruction and disburse any remaining deposits to the parties specified in the instruction."

[iii] Drafting Considerations

In drafting a set of escrow instructions, the primary concerns of the attorney should be that they accurately reflect the terms and conditions of the underlying contract, that they are sufficiently complete to enable the escrow holder to carry out the contract, and that they preserve the rights and remedies of the client. The instructions should also define and limit the obligations of the escrow holder in such a way that they will be acceptable to the escrow agent who will be handling the escrow. Finally, the instructions should be clear and unambiguous, so that the escrow agent can ascertain its obligations without having to request additional instructions from the parties and so that disputes over their meaning will be minimized.

[d] Deposit Clause

Paragraph 3 of this form contains the deposit clause. The primary purpose of this clause is to identify the instruments, documents, and other items that the seller is depositing or will deposit in escrow in order to enable the escrow holder to comply with the conditions that must be performed or fulfilled by the seller before the buyer will authorize payment of the purchase price or other consideration. Conditions typically required by the buyer are discussed in § 26.201[1].

In addition to the instruments and documents required by the buyer, the seller must also deposit any additional instruments and documents that may be required by the title insurer that is to insure buyer's title or by the buyer's lender [see § 26.220]. If the buyer is to give the seller a promissory note and deed of trust for a portion of the purchase price or to execute some other type of agreement or conveyance in seller's favor, the seller will usually prepare the pertinent instruments or agreements and deposit them in escrow for execution by buyer.

Once instruments, documents, and other items are deposited into escrow, the escrow agent acquires dominion and control over them and the depositor may not unilaterally revoke the deposit and obtain the return of the items deposited [Wittenbrock v. Cass (1895) 110 Cal. 1, 6-7, 42 P. 300 ; Cannon v. Handley (1887) 72 Cal. 133, 140-141, 13 P. 315] . If a dispute arises as to whether the escrow of the underlying contract has been terminated or canceled, a party who has deposited items in escrow will usually have to institute a lawsuit and obtain a court order to secure the return of those items. Consequently, to minimize the risk of having them tied up indefinitely in an escrow, funds and important instruments, agreements, certificates, and documents usually are not deposited in escrow until shortly before the deadline imposed by the underlying contract.

[e] Arrangements With Existing Lenders and Lien Claimants

If the property is encumbered by a deed of trust that secures a purchase money or other loan made to the seller, the seller will usually instruct the escrow holder to contact the lender and make the arrangements that are necessary to complete the sale. Paragraph 4 of this form contains a provision for use in a transaction in which the seller needs to obtain a reconveyance of a deed of trust securing an existing loan, and an alternative provision for use in a transaction in which the buyer will assume the existing loan.

If the seller needs to obtain a reconveyance of the deed of trust in order to convey clear title, the escrow holder will be instructed to secure a payoff demand and request the lender to deposit the reconveyance into the escrow, together with instructions authorizing the escrow holder to record the reconveyance when it is prepared to disburse the balance demanded by the lender. For an escrow holder's request for a payoff demand, see § 26.240[2]. For instructions to be submitted by the lender with the payoff demand and the reconveyance, see § 26.221[1].

If the buyer is going to assume the deed of trust or take the property subject to the deed of trust, the escrow holder will be instructed to secure a beneficiary's statement setting forth and itemizing the obligations secured by the deed of trust and to credit the balance owing against the purchase price or to adjust the purchase price accordingly. For a request for a beneficiary's statement, see § 26.242[2].

If there are other liens against the property that must be cleared, the seller will usually instruct the escrow holder to contact the lien holder in order to secure a payoff demand and to arrange for the lien holder to deposit the instruments or documents necessary to discharge and clear the lien into escrow along with instructions authorizing the escrow holder to record and deliver them when it is prepared to disburse the amount demanded by the lienholder. Paragraph 5 of this form instructs the escrow holder to make the arrangements necessary to clear an existing lien. For an escrow holder's request for a lien claimant's payoff demand, see § 26.241[2]. For instructions to be submitted by the lien claimant with the payoff demand, see § 26.230[2].

[f] Termite or Pest Control Clearance

A structural pest control clearance usually will be required by the buyer, the buyer's lender, or both. In order to obtain such a clearance, it may be necessary to have corrective work performed during the escrow period and paid out of escrow. Paragraphs 6, 7, and 8 of this form govern the treatment of the structural pest control inspection, corrective work, and certification. These paragraphs correspond to those in § 26.201, the buyer's separate instructions. For discussion of these provisions, and the underlying assumptions on which they are based, see § 26.201[1][e][ii].

[g] Treatment of Buyer's Deposit

Real property sales agreements usually require the buyer to make an initial deposit toward the purchase price. They may also require the buyer to make an additional deposit toward the payment of the purchase price prior to the close of escrow. The deposit requirement may be an important test of the buyer's good faith or financial ability to complete the transaction. For that reason, a seller's escrow instructions should generally make compliance with the deposit requirement a condition of the escrow and should clearly spell out the seller's right to cancel the escrow if the buyer fails to comply. Paragraph 9 of this form instructs the escrow holder concerning the deposit requirement of an underlying contract, and provides that if the buyer fails to make a required deposit, the seller has the option of terminating the agreement and canceling the escrow by giving notice within a designated period.

If the underlying contract contains a liquidated damages clause, the seller will become entitled to all or part of the deposit if the contract is terminated due to the buyer's default. It is unlikely that an escrow holder will be willing to determine who is entitled to the deposit if there is a dispute as to whether the buyer has defaulted. However, if instructed to do so, an escrow holder will retain the deposit in escrow until entitlement is determined in a legal action or by agreement of the parties. Suing to establish entitlement to a deposit held in escrow is a much better remedy for the seller than the pursuit of a damage claim against the buyer, since it will avoid collection problems. Accordingly, the seller's escrow instructions should contain provisions that instruct the escrow holder, in the event of cancellation of the escrow, to hold the deposit in escrow until entitlement to the deposit is determined by court order or agreement of the parties.

[h] Conditions Precedent to Delivery of Deed

Paragraph 10 of this form specifies the conditions precedent to the recording and delivery of the deed. The seller's instructions should specify clearly the terms and conditions of the underlying contract that must be performed or fulfilled before the escrow holder is authorized to take the steps necessary to convey the seller's property to the buyer. The most important condition, of course, is that the escrow holder must have received funds sufficient to pay the purchase price in escrow and must be authorized and able to disburse the purchase price to the seller on the close of escrow.

Occasionally, a real property sales contract will require the buyer to execute a separate instrument or agreement conveying some type of right or interest in the property to seller or another owner or adjoining real property. The most common examples of such conditions are requirements that the buyer convey an easement across the property for ingress and egress purposes or execute a party wall or boundary agreement for the benefit of an adjoining property. If the contract contains such a provision, the seller's escrow instructions should require that the buyer must have executed and deposited in escrow the necessary instruments and agreements and that the escrow holder must be authorized and prepared to record and deliver them upon the close of escrow.

If the underlying contract provides that the buyer is to give the seller a note secured by a deed of trust on the property for a portion of the purchase price, the seller's instructions should require that the buyer have executed the note and deed of trust in escrow and that the escrow holder be authorized and prepared to record and deliver them to seller on the close of escrow. The seller's escrow instructions should also require that a title insurer be obligated and prepared to issue any title insurance required by the underlying contract and that the escrow holder have received and be prepared to deliver the insurance policy providing any physical damage insurance required by the contract.

If the underlying contract is contingent on the occurrence or nonoccurrence of a specified condition or event for the seller's protection, the seller's escrow instructions should require that the seller have deposited in escrow a written notice or statement verifying the occurrence or nonoccurrence of the condition or event at issue.

[i] Prorations and Adjustments

Paragraph 11 of this form instructs the escrow holder to prorate certain specified expenses or items and credit or debit the accounts of the parties accordingly. Most real property sales contracts provide for the proration of property taxes, assessments, maintenance fees, and similar fees and charges paid or assumed by one party or another for a period during which ownership of the property changes. Most contracts for the sale of income-producing property similarly provide for the proration of rents and other income. Usually the escrow holder is instructed to make the necessary prorations and credit and debit the respective accounts of the parties accordingly. In such cases, the escrow instructions should specify clearly the particular fees, charges, costs and expenses that are to be prorated, the date as of which they are to be prorated, and the nature of any documentation or evidence required to establish the amount or payment of a particular item.

Paragraphs 13, 14, and 15 of this form instruct the escrow holder concerning other credits to be given in escrow. When an underlying contract provides that one party or another is entitled to a credit as a result of the assumption of a liability or the incidental transfer of an asset, the credit will usually be made through the escrow. If the precise amount of the credit cannot be ascertained initially, the escrow holder can either be instructed to determine the amount of the credit or to await supplemental instructions specifying the amount.

[j] Costs and Expenses to Be Paid by Seller

Paragraphs 16 and 17 of this form respectively authorize the escrow holder to pay the amounts necessary to obtain a reconveyance of a deed of trust encumbering the property and to remove a lien against the property. Under most real property sales contracts, the seller is obligated to deliver clear title, and thus must pay any cost of removing outstanding liens and encumbrances. If the property is encumbered by a deed of trust or an outstanding lien, the seller's instructions should specifically provide for payment of the balance of the secured loan or the amount necessary to discharge the lien. Authorization to make the payments should be conditioned on the deposit in escrow of the instruments and documents necessary to remove the lien or encumbrance and discharge the underlying obligation.

Paragraph 18 of this form authorizes the escrow holder to pay, on the seller's behalf, the escrow fees and charges and other costs of sale that the seller is required to pay. Responsibility for the payment of escrow fees and other costs, charges, and fees of processing the escrow and completing the sale is ordinarily dependent on the agreement of the parties and is usually fixed by the underlying sales contract. The seller's instructions should identify and authorize payment of those items that are the responsibility of the seller. Unless the escrow holder requires that the seller make an initial deposit to cover the cost of the items that are to be paid by the seller, the seller's instructions should provide that the escrow holder may deduct the charges for these items from the funds to be disbursed to the seller for the purchase price.

[k] Cancellation of Escrow

[i] Grounds and Manner of Cancellation

In order to avoid uncertainty and potential litigation over the status of an escrow, escrow instructions should clearly define the grounds for cancellation of an escrow and the manner in which a cancellation may be effected. Paragraph 24 of this form contains general provisions permitting cancellation by mutual agreement of the parties, permitting a nondefaulting party to cancel the escrow if the terms and conditions of the escrow are not performed or fulfilled before a specified date, and prescribing the specific steps that must be taken to effect a cancellation. If the underlying agreement grants a party the right to cancel the escrow prior to the date set for close of escrow due to the occurrence or nonoccurrence of a specified event or condition, this right and the way in which it is to be exercised should be set forth separately in special provisions. For an example of this kind of special cancellation provision, see P 9 of this form, which grants the seller the right to cancel the escrow for the buyer's failure to make a required deposit.

[ii] For Failure to Perform Terms and Conditions Within Specified Time

If escrow instructions do not require performance within a specified period or by a specified date, performance of the terms and conditions of an escrow will be considered timely as long as it is rendered within a reasonable time [Civ. Code § 1657; Rockefeller v. Smith (1930) 104 Cal. App. 544, 549, 286 P. 487] . Even when the time for performance is specified, performance within a reasonable period of time after the specified deadline will be considered timely unless the escrow instructions expressly provide that time is of the essence [Leiter v. Handelsman (1954) 125 Cal. App. 2d 243, 251, 270 P.2d 563 ; see also Fowler v. Ross (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 472, 479, 191 Cal. Rptr. 183] . What constitutes a reasonable period of time for performance depends on the nature of the terms and conditions to be performed and the surrounding circumstances [First Nat. Bank v. Caldwell (1927) 84 Cal. App. 438, 444, 258 P. 411] . Thus, when a reasonable period of time is allowed for performance, the parties and the escrow holder cannot, as a practical matter, determine when performance is due or when cancellation is proper.

On the other hand, when instructions require performance within a specified period or by a specified date and declare that time is of the essence, the conditions of the escrow must be performed or fulfilled within the specified time [Weisberg v. Ashcraft (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 793, 795, 36 Cal. Rptr. 188 ; Pothast v. Kind (1933) 218 Cal. 192, 195, 24 P.2d 771] . Accordingly, this form contains provisions expressly declaring time to be of the essence [see P 25 of form], fixing a specific date by which the terms and conditions of the escrow must be performed or fulfilled [see P 23 of form], and permitting a nondefaulting party to cancel the escrow if they are not performed or fulfilled on or before that date [see P 24 of form]. Such provisions are usually given effect by the courts [see, e.g., Weaver v. Casad (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 593, 595, 195 P.2d 81 ; Petre v. Roegner (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 288, 291-292, 33 Cal. Rptr. 82] .

[iii] Manner of Effecting Cancellation

When cancellation of an escrow is permitted, provisions of escrow instructions prescribing the manner in which the cancellation must be effected are usually controlling and an attempt to effect a cancellation in some other way ordinarily will be ineffective [see, e.g., Weaver v. Casad (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 593, 595, 195 P.2d 81 ; Weisberg v. Ashcraft (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 793, 796, 36 Cal. Rptr. 188] . Paragraph 24 of this form contains alternative provisions that represent the three most common approaches to the effecting of a cancellation for lack of timely performance of the terms and conditions of escrow: (1) automatic cancellation; (2) permitting a nondefaulting party to cancel the escrow by giving the prescribed notice of cancellation, absent such notice, the escrow will proceed; or (3) permitting a nondefaulting party to give the other party notice that escrow will be canceled if the other party fails to secure the performance or fulfillment of the terms and conditions at issue within a specified period, otherwise escrow will proceed. For a notice of cancellation of an escrow for a default or failure of a condition, see § 26.270.

This form also authorizes cancellation by mutual agreement of the parties, but requires that it be effected by giving a prescribed notice. For a notice of cancellation of an escrow by mutual agreement, see § 26.271. Even in the absence of a specific provision, the parties ordinarily would have the right to cancel an escrow by mutual agreement [Whitney v. Sherman (1918) 178 Cal. 435, 437-438, 173 P. 931 ; Wilshire Realty Co. v. Kry Corp. (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 269, 276-277, 58 Cal. Rptr. 469] .

[l] Amendments and Supplemental Instructions

In the absence of a provision requiring written instructions, oral instructions are generally valid [Cannon v. Handley (1887) 72 Cal. 133, 144-145, 13 P. 315 ; Zang v. Northwestern Title Co. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 159, 168, 185 Cal. Rptr. 176] . However, when written escrow instructions require any amendments or modifications to be in writing, an attempt to amend or supplement them orally is ineffective [see, e.g., Davis v. Stulman (1945) 72 Cal. App. 2d 255, 268, 164 P.2d 787 ; Anderson v. Southern Title & Trust Co. (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 700, 702, 184 P.2d 949] . Escrow instructions should generally require any amendments to be in writing so that the parties and the escrow holder can ascertain the terms of the instructions with certainty and so that the risk of disputes resulting from oral amendments or purported oral amendments can be avoided. Paragraph 37 of this form contains provisions requiring all amendments and supplemental instructions to be in writing.

Once the parties to an escrow have deposited their initial instructions and a valid escrow has been created, a party may not unilaterally amend his or her escrow instructions [Diaz v. United California Bank (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 161, 166, 139 Cal. Rptr. 314 ; Wade v. Lake County Title Co. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 824, 828, 86 Cal. Rptr. 182] . Accordingly, P 37 of this form provides that an amendment or supplemental instruction is not valid unless all parties either sign it or approve it in a signed writing deposited in escrow. For an amendment to escrow instructions, see § 26.250[2]. For supplemental escrow instructions, see § 26.251.

[m] Waiver

A party to an escrow may waive the right to performance of conditions of the escrow, and performance of a condition is not required when it has been waived by the party or parties it was intended to benefit [Wolf v. Price (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 165, 173, 52 Cal. Rptr. 889 ; Jolin v. Spira (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 356, 360, 210 P.2d 704] . However, a party may not waive a condition that is intended, in whole or part, to benefit another party [see Spangler v. Castello (1956) 147 Cal. App. 2d 49, 52, 304 P.2d 752] . In the absence of provisions to the contrary, a waiver may be implied from acts or circumstances indicating a intent to waive [Wolf v. Price (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 165, 173, 52 Cal. Rptr. 889 ; Jolin v. Spira (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 356, 360, 210 P.2d 704] . So that the parties can determine with certainty whether a particular term or condition of an escrow has been waived, and to eliminate disputes over whether a waiver can be implied from particular conduct, this form provides that any purported waiver of a term or condition of escrow is ineffective unless it is in writing and is signed or approved in a signed writing by each party that the term or condition was intended to benefit [see P 38 of Form]. For a notice of an express waiver, see § 26.261[2].

[n] Provisions Limiting Obligations of Escrow Holder

This form provides that the escrow holder (1) is entitled to act upon instruments and documents received in the course of processing the escrow without making an independent determination as to whether they are genuine [see P 27 of form]; and (2) is not obligated to resolve conflicting claims or demands concerning the validity or interpretation of the escrow instruction or the sufficiency of a party's performance [see PP 33, 34 of form]. Provisions similar to these are contained in virtually all of the printed instructions prepared by professional escrow agents. Most professional escrow agents will not agree to serve under escrow instructions that do not contain these limitations on the obligations of the escrow holder.

[o] Approval by Buyer

Below the seller's signature block, this form provides a space for the buyer to acknowledge his or her approval of the seller's instructions. There is no legal requirement that the buyer approve the seller's escrow instructions. However, having the buyer review and approve the seller's instructions before they are submitted will enable the parties to identify and resolve any substantial conflicts at the outset and may validate provisions of the seller's instructions that would otherwise be ineffective due to the lack of parallel provisions in buyer's instructions.

[p] Acceptance by Escrow Holder

To create a valid escrow, the escrow holder must agree to accept and dispose of deposits made into escrow in accordance with the terms and conditions of the escrow instructions [Sousa v. First California Co. (1950) 101 Cal. App. 2d 533, 538-539, 225 P.2d 955 ; House v. Lala (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 412, 417, 4 Cal. Rptr. 366] . Moreover, an escrow holder who accepts and agrees to escrow instructions has a contractual obligation to perform them as well as the legal obligations imposed by reason of the agency relationship [Amen v. Merced County Title Co. (1978) 58 Cal. 2d 528, 532, 25 Cal. Rptr. 65, 375 P.2d 33] . Accordingly, a party submitting escrow instructions should request the escrow holder to acknowledge its acceptance of the instructions and its agreement to perform them. Paragraph 39 of this form requests the escrow holder to acknowledge its acceptance of the instructions and its agreement to perform them. The final paragraph of this form sets forth the acknowledgment and acceptance to be executed by the escrow holder.

Mail Seller a copy of the statement as soon as it is received in escrow.

[Continue with the following:]

Other Claimants' Demands

5. As soon as possible after opening escrow, contact _____[name and address of other lien claimant] and request that _____[he/she/it] place in escrow the following: a statement and demand for payment of the amount required to _____[satisfy or discharge or other appropriate characterization] the _____[judgment or tax lien or other description of lien] shown as _____[exception or item or other designation] No. _____ on the Preliminary Title Report attached to these instructions as Exhibit A; a duly executed _____[instrument required to clear lien, e.g., acknowledgment of satisfaction of judgment] in recordable form; and escrow instructions authorizing you to _____[action required to clear lien, e.g., file and record the acknowledgment of satisfaction of judgment] when you are prepared to disburse the amount demanded. Mail Seller copies of the statement and demand and the escrow instructions as soon as they are received in escrow.

[If close of escrow is conditioned on performance of corrective structural pest control work and deposit of structural pest control certification, add:]

Structural Pest Control Certification

6. The close of this escrow is conditioned on the deposit in escrow of a certification by a licensed structural pest control operator, pursuant to the requirements of Business and Professions Code Section 8519, that the Subject Real Property is free of evidence of active infestation or infection in the visible and accessible areas. The parties have retained _____[name of structural pest control operator] to conduct an inspection of the Subject Real Property and prepare a report in accordance with the requirements of Business and Professions Code Section 8516. A copy of that report _____[is being or will be or has been] deposited into escrow pursuant to Paragraph 3. The parties _____[have authorized or will authorize] _____[name of structural pest control operator] to perform _____[all corrective work listed in that report as a condition of obtaining a certification that the property is free from active infestation or infection in the visible and accessible areas or describe work by referring to specific items in report, e.g., the corrective work described in Items _____ (list by number) of the report], at the price stated in the report. When the corrective work has been completed, _____[Buyer or Seller or the parties] will obtain a certification that the Subject Real Property is free of evidence of active infestation or infection in the visible and accessible areas, and will deposit with you a true and complete copy of the certification.

[If cost of corrective work and/or pest control certification is to be paid out of escrow, add:]

Disbursement of Payment for [Inspections and] Corrective Work

7. You are authorized to disburse to _____[name of structural pest control operator], in accordance with Paragraph 8, the sums necessary to pay the fees and charges for the corrective work described in Paragraph 6 [, and for the reinspection of the Subject Real Property and the preparation and delivery of the required certification,] if, and only if, all of the following apply:

(a) You have closed escrow and recorded the grant deed conveying all of Seller's right, title, and interest in the Subject Real Property to Buyer;

(b) _____[Buyer or Seller] has [or The parties have] deposited into escrow the certification of _____[name of structural pest control operator] pursuant to Business and Professions Code Section 8519 that the Subject Real Property is free of evidence of active infestation or infection in the visible and accessible areas;

(c) _____[name of structural pest control operator] has deposited in escrow _____[his or her or its] invoice or statement setting forth the fees and charges for the corrective work described in Paragraph 6 [and for the reinspection of the Subject Real Property and the preparation and delivery of the required certification]; and

(d) The total of the fees and charges made by _____[name of structural pest control operator] for the corrective work [and for the reinspection of the Subject Real Property and the preparation and delivery of the required certification] does not exceed the price for those repairs as stated in the inspection report [, plus any standard inspection, reinspection, and certification fees, as applicable].

[If cost of corrective work or pest control certification is to be paid out of escrow, add:]

Responsibility for Expense of [Certification and] Corrective Work

8. Fees and charges for the corrective work listed in Paragraph 6, up to but not exceeding the price specified in the inspection report for performance of that work [, as well as any fees for (the inspection and) any reinspection of the Subject Real Property and the preparation and delivery of the required certification], subject to the conditions specified in Paragraph 7, will _____[select the appropriate alternative below]

[If cost is to be borne solely by one party, use:] be the sole responsibility of _____[Seller or Buyer] and shall be paid from funds held for _____[Seller's or Buyer's] account at the close of escrow.

[OR]

[If cost is to be split between the parties, use:] be borne one half by Seller and one half by Buyer, and will be paid from the respective funds held for the accounts of the parties at the close of escrow.

[OR]

[If one party is to pay cost up to a specified limit and other party is to pay balance, use:] be paid as follows: _____[Seller or Buyer] will pay the fees and charges, up to a limit of $_____; and _____[other party] shall pay any charges in excess of $_____[repeat amount specified above], up to but not exceeding the full price specified in the inspection report for performance of the corrective work described in Paragraph 6. Payment shall be made from the respective funds held for the accounts of the parties at the close of escrow.

[Continue with the following:]

Buyer's Deposit

9. Buyer must pay into escrow, on or before _____[date], the sum of $_____ to be held by you as an initial deposit toward the payment of the purchase price for the Subject Real Property. [If buyer is required to increase deposit prior to close of escrow, add: Buyer must also pay into escrow, on or before _____ (date), the sum of $_____ to be held by you as an additional deposit toward the payment of the purchase price.] If Buyer fails to make the initial deposit described above on or before _____[date], [add, if applicable: or if Buyer fails to make the additional deposit described above on or before _____ (date),] you must notify Seller immediately and Seller will have the right to cancel this escrow by notifying you in writing, within _____ days after you have given _____[him or her or it] notice of Buyer's failure to make the required deposit, that _____[he or she or it] is exercising the right to cancel. [If the underlying contract contains a liquidated damage clause, add: Notwithstanding any other provisions of your escrow instructions, if this escrow is canceled due to a default by Buyer, you are authorized and directed to hold any funds that Buyer has paid into escrow as or for an initial (add, if applicable: or additional) deposit, up to a limit of $_____ (specify amount of liquidated damages fixed by underlying contract), until you receive joint instructions from Buyer and Seller or a final order or judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction directing or determining the manner in which the funds are to be disbursed.]

Conditions Precedent to Delivery of Deed and Other Instruments Effecting Conveyance

10. You are authorized to close escrow and to record and deliver the grant deed conveying all of Seller's right, title, and interest in the Subject Real Property to Buyer [if applicable, describe other instruments to be recorded to vest clear title in buyer or effect the conveyance to buyer, e.g., and the grant of easement granting Buyer an easement across adjoining real property owned by Seller for purposes of ingress and egress] when, and only when, all of the following apply:

(a) You hold for Seller's account in available funds, and are authorized and prepared to disburse to or on behalf of Seller, the sum of $_____[amount to be deposited into escrow by buyer for purchase price; if instructions require credits or debits to seller's account (as opposed to disbursements to be made on seller's behalf), add:, plus any other sums that you are required to credit to the account of Seller under the escrow instructions you receive, minus any sums for which you are required to debit the account of Seller under the escrow instructions you receive];

[If buyer is to make conveyance or agreement benefitting property retained by seller:]

(b) The _____[describe conveyance or agreement, e.g., grant of easement or party wall agreement] deposited in escrow by Seller has been executed and returned to you by Buyer in recordable form and without modification or deletion and you are authorized and prepared to record it and deliver it to Seller;

[If seller is financing portion of purchase price, add (c) through (f), below, as appropriate:]

(c) The promissory note deposited in escrow by Seller for execution by Buyer has been executed and returned to you by Buyer without modification or deletion and you are authorized and prepared to deliver it to Seller;

(d) The deed of trust deposited in escrow by Seller for execution by Buyer has been executed by Buyer and returned to you in recordable form without modification or deletion and you are authorized and prepared to record it and deliver it to Seller;

(e) _____[You are or _____ (name of title insurer) is] prepared and obligated to issue, when the deed of trust is recorded, a California Land Title Association joint protection policy [or American Land Title Association lender's policy] insuring that title to the Subject Real Property is vested in Buyer and that the deed of trust that Buyer has executed for the benefit and security of Seller is an encumbrance against the Subject Real Property that is subject and subordinate only to _____[describe all superior liens and encumbrances contemplated by contract and escrow instructions];

(f) You have received in escrow, and are authorized and prepared to deliver to Seller, an original policy of insurance providing _____[describe required coverage and type of policy] coverage for the Subject Real Property in an amount that is not less than $_____, [specify term if applicable, e.g., for a term of not less than three years] with a _____[specify particular type or form if applicable, e.g., ISO Form 438BFU NS] lender's loss payable endorsement naming Seller as the _____[first or second or other priority] loss payee;

[If seller's obligation to sell is contingent on a condition other than buyer's performance:]

(g) Seller has deposited in escrow a written statement, executed by Seller, either verifying that _____[specify facts or events establishing satisfaction of condition, e.g., Seller has completed the purchase of another residence] or stating Seller's election to waive the right _____[specify, e.g., to cancel the contract of purchase and sale and this escrow if _____ (he or she) did not complete the purchase of another residence by _____ (date)] and proceed to close escrow [or describe other method selected by parties to establish satisfaction or waiver of condition].

[If seller is to transfer security deposits in connection with sale of income-producing or rented property:]

(h) Buyer has acknowledged receipt of the security deposits transferred by Seller by executing one copy of the assignment deposited in escrow by Seller.

Proration of Certain Expenses

11. Prorate on the basis of a 30-day month, as of the date on which escrow closes [or specify other agreed-upon date], the following costs, charges, expenses, and items of income; credit or debit the respective accounts of Seller and Buyer accordingly. Prorate the following costs, charges and expenses on the basis of bills, statements, canceled checks, receipts, and other satisfactory types of documentary evidence of their existence, amount, and payment that is deposited in escrow by Seller or Buyer:

[If property taxes are to be prorated:]

(a) Real property taxes on the Subject Real Property for the tax fiscal year _____-_____;

[If special assessments that have been paid or are due are to be prorated:]

(b) _____[Describe assessment] on the Subject Real Property for _____[specify period for which assessment is made];

[If maintenance fees are to be prorated:]

(c) Fees or charges of _____[name of person or entity providing service] for maintenance of the Subject Real Property for the period _____[specify period for which fees or charges have been or will be incurred];

[If homeowner's association dues are to be prorated:]

(d) _____[name of association] dues for _____[specify period for which dues will be paid or due];

[If premium for insurance to be assigned or transferred to buyer is to be prorated:]

(e) The premium for _____[name of insurer] _____[type of insurance, e.g., fire and extended special coverage] Policy No. _____, for the policy period from _____ to _____[dates];

[If rents are to be prorated in connection with a sale of income-producing or rental property, add (f) and (g), below:]

(f) Rents paid in advance for the rental period[s] in which this escrow closes, in accordance with the rent schedule deposited in escrow by Seller; credit the account of Buyer and debit the account of Seller with the portion of the rent attributable to the portion of the rental period after the close of escrow; and

(g) Rents owing for the rental period[s] in which this escrow closes, in accordance with the rent schedule deposited in escrow by Seller; credit the account of Seller, and debit the account of Buyer with the portion of the rent attributable to the portion of the rental period before the close of escrow.

Proration Outside of Escrow

12. _____[Describe specific items to be prorated out of escrow, e.g., Utility bills, telephone bills] and other costs, charges, expenses, and items of income arising from or attributable to the use or maintenance of the Subject Real Property that you have not been expressly instructed to prorate shall, if proration is required, be prorated by Seller and Buyer outside of this escrow.

[Add the following provision if buyer is to assume existing loan:]

Adjustments Based on Existing Loan

13. (a) The contract between Seller and Buyer provides that Buyer is to pay a total purchase price of $_____ and that the balance of the existing loan from _____[name of existing lender] that Buyer will assume is to be credited against that total purchase price. In preparing their instructions, the parties have estimated that the balance of the existing loan will be $_____ as of the close of escrow and that Buyer will therefore be required to deposit the sum of $_____ into escrow for payment of the purchase price. You are to determine the precise amount that Buyer will be required to deposit into escrow for the purchase price, however, by crediting the actual balance of the existing loan as of the date of the close of escrow against the total purchase price of $_____. If the actual balance of the existing loan as of the close of escrow is greater than $_____[parties' estimate of balance], you will credit the difference against the amount that these instructions require Buyer to deposit for the purchase price and debit the account of Seller accordingly; if it is less than $_____[parties' estimate of balance], you will debit the difference against the amount that these instructions require Buyer to deposit for the purchase price and credit the account of Seller accordingly.

[Choose one of the following paragraphs:]

[If parties contemplate that lender will return funds in impound account to seller:]

(b) These instructions assume that _____[name of existing lender] will return to Seller the funds it is presently holding in the tax and insurance impound account established for the existing loan when the existing loan is assumed by Buyer and that Buyer will make a separate payment to _____[name of existing lender] of the funds required for the maintenance of the impound account. If _____[name of existing lender] retains the funds it is presently holding in the impound account and applies them for the benefit of Buyer, any funds so retained and applied by _____[name of existing lender] shall be debited against the amount that these instructions require Buyer to deposit for the purchase price and the account of Seller shall be credited accordingly.

[Or, if parties contemplate that lender will retain funds in impound account and that seller will receive a credit in the amount of the funds retained:]

(b) The funds presently held by _____[name of existing lender] in the tax and insurance impound account established for the existing loan will be retained in that impound account by _____[name of existing lender] and applied to the maintenance of the account for the benefit of Buyer. The funds so retained and applied by _____[name of existing lender] shall be debited against the amount that these instructions require Buyer to deposit for the purchase price and the account of Seller shall be credited accordingly.

Credits to Seller's Account

14. Credit the account of Seller and debit the account of Buyer with the following items:

[If seller is to receive credit for past due rents in connection with sale of income-producing or rented property:]

(a) An amount equal to the total of all rents owing from tenants of the Subject Real Property for rental periods ending before the date on which this escrow closes;

[If monies held in impound account are to be retained by lender because of buyer's assumption of loan:]

(b) An amount equal to the amount of the funds retained by _____[name of lender] in the tax and insurance impound account established for the loan secured by the first [or second or other priority] deed of trust on the Subject Real Property shown as _____[exception/item/or other designation] on the Preliminary title report attached to these instructions as Exhibit A; and

(c) [List any other sums or items to be credited to seller.]

Credits to Buyer's Account

15. Credit the account of Buyer and debit the account of Seller with the following items:

[If buyer is to receive credit for prepaid rents and security deposits for which liability is assumed in connection with sale of income-producing or rented property, use (a) and (b), below:]

(a) An amount equal to the total of all rents prepaid by tenants of the Subject Real Property for rental periods commencing after the date on which this escrow closes;

(b) An amount equal to the total of all security deposits held for tenants of the Subject Real Property for which Buyer is to assume responsibility, in accordance with the schedule deposited in escrow by Seller; and

(c) [List any other sums or items to be credited to buyer.]

Payoff of Existing Lender

16. You are authorized to disburse to _____[*name of lender or holde*r] on behalf of Seller, from the funds held for Seller's account, an amount equal to the balance due on the loan secured by the deed of trust shown as _____[exception or item or other designation] No. _____ on the Preliminary Title Report attached to these instructions as Exhibit A, as shown on the payoff demand statement that _____[name of lender or holder] has placed in escrow [or, if the payoff figure has been determined: an amount equal to the unpaid principal balance of $_____, plus interest thereon at a rate of $_____ per day from _____ to _____ (*date*s), plus a prepayment penalty of $_____, minus the impound account balance of $_____], when, and only when:

(a) You are otherwise authorized, under Seller's escrow instructions, to record and deliver the grant deed deposited by Seller and close escrow;

(b) You have received in escrow, and are authorized and prepared to cancel and deliver to Seller, the original promissory note evidencing the loan;

(c) You have received in escrow, and are authorized and prepared to deliver to Seller, the original of the deed of trust securing the loan; and

(d) You have recorded and delivered to Seller a duly executed reconveyance of the deed of trust securing the loan.

Payoff of Other Lien Claimant

17. You are authorized to disburse to _____[name and address of other lien claimant] on behalf of Seller, from the funds held for Seller's account, _____[the amount necessary to _____ (satisfy or discharge or other appropriate characterization); or, if amount has been determined: the sum of $_____, in full satisfaction of] the _____[description of lien or underlying obligation, e.g., judgment or tax lien or mechanic's lien] shown as _____[exception or item or other designation] No. _____ on the Preliminary Title Report attached as Exhibit A, as set forth in the itemized statement and demand for payoff that _____[name of lien claimant] has placed in escrow, when, and only when:

(a) You are otherwise authorized, under Seller's escrow instructions, to record and deliver the grant deed deposited by Seller and close escrow;

(b) You have _____[action required to clear lien, e.g, filed and recorded, recorded] a duly executed _____[instrument required to clear lien, e.g., acknowledgment of satisfaction of judgment, release of mechanic's lien] and are authorized and prepared to deliver it to Seller; and

(c) [Specify other conditions, such as receipt in escrow of duly executed release.]

Disbursements From Funds Held for Seller

18. When you have closed escrow and recorded the grant deed conveying all of Seller's right, title, and interest in the Subject Real Property to Buyer, you are authorized to disburse on behalf of Seller, from the funds held for Seller's account at the close of escrow, the sums necessary to pay the following costs, charges, expenses, and items:

[Select appropriate provisions from those below:]

(a) The real estate broker's commission of $_____ owing to _____[name and address of real estate broker; if commission is to be split, add: and the real estate broker's commission of $_____ owing to _____ (name and address of real estate broker)];

(b) The documentary transfer tax and [if local taxes are to be split: one half of] any local transfer tax imposed as a result of the conveyance of the Subject Real Property to Buyer;

(c) The reconveyance fees charged by _____[name of trustee] for the reconveyance of the deed of trust shown as _____[exception or item or other designation] No. _____ on the Preliminary Title Report attached as Exhibit A;

(d) The recording fees charged for the recording of the _____[specify instruments for which seller is to pay recording fees, e.g., reconveyance of the deed of trust];

(e) The notary fees for any notary services performed for Seller;

(f) [If title insurance costs are to be split: One half of] The premium and any other fees and costs charged by _____[you or name of title insurer] for the issuance of the preliminary report and title insurance policy insuring Buyer's title to the Subject Real Property;

(g) [If escrow fees are to be split: One-half of] Your fees and charges for the escrow services you have performed in connection with this escrow;

(h) Fees and charges for corrective pest control work [add, if applicable:, the inspection and reinspection of the Subject Real Property, and the preparation and delivery of the required pest control certification,] that you are authorized to pay on Seller's behalf under the provisions of Paragraphs 6, 7, and 8; and

(i) [List any other costs, charges, or expenses to be paid out of escrow by seller.]

Disbursement of Balance to Seller

19. When you have closed escrow and disbursed the sums necessary to pay the costs, charges, expenses, and items that you have been authorized to pay on Seller's behalf under the provisions of these instructions, you shall disburse the remaining balance of the funds held for the account of Seller to Seller in the following manner: _____[select the appropriate provision below or specify other method of disbursement:]

[If seller will pick up check:]

Notify Seller by [telephone or telegram or specify other means of communication] that you are prepared to disburse those funds, draw a check to Seller on your escrow account for the balance of the funds held for Seller's account, and hold that check for Seller at your office at _____[specify address]. The check will be picked up at your office by Seller [or specify name of designated officer, employee, or agent who will pick up check for seller].

[Or, if check will be mailed to seller:]

Draw a check to Seller on your escrow account for the balance of the funds held for Seller's account; mail that check to Seller _____[specify type of mail to be used, e.g., by certified mail, return receipt requested] at _____[address to which check is to be mailed].

[Or, if check will be deposited in seller's bank account:]

Draw a check to Seller on your escrow account for the balance of the funds held for Seller's account; deposit that check in _____[name of bank or financial institution] account no. _____, a _____[type of account] maintained in the name of Seller, at the _____[name of branch] of _____[name of bank or financial institution], which is located at _____[address of branch at which account is maintained]. Mail written confirmation of the deposit, and a copy of the deposit slip evidencing the deposit, to Seller as soon as the deposit is made.

Instruments to Be Recorded for Seller

20. When you have closed escrow and recorded the grant deed conveying the Subject Real Property to Buyer [if pertinent, specify other instruments, e.g., and the first deed of trust executed for the security and benefit of _____ (name of lender),] record, in the order set forth below, the following instruments and documents:

[If seller is financing a portion of the purchase price, use (a), (b), and (c), below:]

(a) The _____[first or second or specify other priority] deed of trust executed by Buyer for the security and benefit of Seller;

(b) Seller's request pursuant to Civil Code Section 2924b for a copy of any notice of default or any notice of sale under the _____[describe prior deed of trust, e.g., first deed of trust executed by Buyer for the security and benefit of _____ (name of lender)];

(c) Seller's request pursuant to Civil Code Section 2924e for written notice of any and all delinquencies in payment of principal or interest on the obligation secured by the _____[describe prior deed of trust, e.g., first deed of trust executed by Buyer for the security and benefit of _____ (name of lender)].

[If buyer is to execute instrument or agreement benefitting adjoining property retained by seller:]

(d) The _____[party wall agreement or boundary agreement or grant of easement or specify other instrument or agreement relating to adjoining real property retained by seller] executed by Buyer that _____[specify purpose of agreement, e.g., provides for the construction and maintenance of a wall between the Subject Real Property and certain adjoining real property owned by Seller]; and

(e) [List and describe other instruments and documents that should be recorded to protect seller's interests.]

Delivery of Instruments and Documents to Seller

21. When you have closed escrow and recorded all instruments and documents that are to be recorded, you are to deliver to Seller, or cause to be delivered to Seller, the following instruments and documents:

[If seller is financing portion of purchase price, include (a) through (f), below:]

(a) The request for a copy of any notice of default or any notice of sale under the _____[describe prior deed of trust, e.g., first deed of trust executed by Buyer for the security and benefit of _____ (name of lender)];

(b) The request for written notice of any and all delinquencies on the obligation secured by the _____[describe prior deed of trust, e.g., first deed of trust executed by Buyer for the security and benefit of _____ (name of lender)];

(c) The promissory note executed in favor of Seller by Buyer;

(d) The _____[first or second or specify other priority] deed of trust executed by Buyer for the benefit of Seller to secure payment and performance of the obligations evidenced by the promissory note;

(e) The title insurance policy insuring Seller's beneficial interest in the _____[first or second or specify other priority] deed of trust that Buyer has executed for the benefit and security of Seller;

(f) The policy of insurance providing _____[describe required coverage and type of policy, e.g., fire and extended physical damage] coverage for the Subject Real Property and naming Seller as the _____[first or second or other priority] loss payee.

[If buyer is to execute instrument or agreement benefitting adjoining property retained by seller:]

(g) The _____[party wall agreement or boundary agreement or grant of easement or specify other instrument or agreement relating to adjoining real property retained by seller] executed by Buyer that _____[specify purpose of agreement, e.g., provides for the construction and maintenance of a wall between the Subject Real Property and certain adjoining real property owned by Seller];

[If seller is paying off existing loan, add (h) through (j), below:]

(h) The original promissory note evidencing the loan made to Seller by _____[name of lender];

(i) The deed of trust securing the loan made to Seller by _____[name of lender];

(j) The reconveyance of the deed of trust securing the loan made to Seller by _____[name of lender];

[If seller is paying off other lien claimants, add (k) and (l), below:]

(k) The _____[instrument required to clear lien, e.g., acknowledgment of satisfaction of judgment or release of mechanic's lien] executed by _____[name of lien claimant];

(l) _____[other documents to be deposited in escrow to evidence satisfaction or release of underlying obligation, e.g., The general release executed by _____ (name of lien claimant)];

[If seller is to transfer security deposits in connection with sale of income-producing or rented property:]

(m) The copy of the assignment that Buyer has executed to acknowledge the assignment and receipt of security deposits now held by Seller under leases in effect between Seller and the present tenants of the Subject Real Property;

[If fees or charges for corrective pest control work or pest control certification are to be paid out of escrow:]

(n) Copies of all bills, invoices, statements, and receipts evidencing the fees and charges for the corrective structural pest control work and final certification ordered pursuant to these instructions;

[If seller is to pay all or part of cost of title insurance policy:]

(o) Copies of all bills, invoices, statements, and receipts evidencing the premium and any other fees and costs charged by _____[you or name of title insurer] for the issuance of the preliminary report and title insurance policy insuring Buyer's title to the Subject Real Property;

[If seller is to pay escrow fees or other costs:]

(p) Your itemized statement showing your fees and charges for the escrow services you have performed in connection with this escrow and the sums that you have paid on behalf of Seller for _____[specify applicable items, e.g., transfer taxes, reconveyance fees, recording fees, notary fees,] and other costs, fees, charges, and expenses incurred in completing this escrow or complying with these instructions.

Close of Escrow

22. For the purposes of these instructions, this escrow shall be deemed to have closed when the grant deed conveying the Subject Real Property to Buyer has been recorded and the date on which the grant deed is recorded shall be deemed to be the date of the close of escrow. This escrow shall be considered to be in a condition to close when you are authorized under Seller's and Buyer's instructions, and when you are otherwise able, to record the grant deed.

Time for Close of Escrow

23. As soon as this escrow is in a condition to close, you are to proceed forthwith to close it. This escrow must be _____[in a condition to close or closed] no later than _____[date].

Cancellation of Escrow

24. (a) By mutual agreement of Seller and Buyer, this escrow may be canceled at any time before the close of escrow either by means of supplementary escrow instructions directing you to cancel the escrow or by means of a written notice of cancellation.

(b) If this escrow is not _____[in a condition to close or closed] on or before _____[date], _____[select the appropriate provision below:]

[If escrow is to be automatically canceled:]

it shall be immediately and automatically canceled; no instructions from or notice to any party shall be required in order to effect the cancellation.

[Or, if affirmative action by party is necessary to effect cancellation:] you shall proceed with the escrow and close the escrow as soon as possible unless the escrow is canceled in accordance with these instructions.

[If affirmative action is necessary to effect cancellation, include one of the following paragraphs:]

(c) If this escrow is not _____[in a condition to close or closed] on or before _____[date], because a party has defaulted in the performance of a term or condition of the escrow or of these instructions or because, without any fault on the part of a party, a condition of the escrow has not occurred or been fulfilled, a party who is not in default may cancel this escrow by giving you written notice that he or she is exercising the right to cancel the escrow.

[OR]

(c) If this escrow is not _____[in a condition to close or closed] on or before _____[date], because a party has defaulted in the performance of a term or condition of the escrow or of these instructions, or because a condition of the escrow has not occurred or been fulfilled, you shall give the parties notice stating that escrow _____[was not in a condition to close or could not be closed] on that date and specifying the particular terms or conditions of the escrow or of these instructions that had not been performed or that had not occurred or been fulfilled. Unless the terms and conditions specified in the notice are performed or have occurred or been fulfilled within _____[specify period, e.g., five days], a party who is not in default may cancel this escrow by giving you written notice that he or she is exercising the right to cancel the escrow.

[If affirmative action is necessary to effect cancellation, also include the following paragraph:]

(d) A cancellation of this escrow can only be effected by means of supplementary escrow instructions or a written notice complying with the respective provisions of these instructions relating to amendment of instructions and notices. Any purported oral cancellation of this escrow shall be ineffective and invalid.

[Continue with the following:]

(e) If this escrow is not closed on or before _____[date], and if the parties do not deposit any additional funds, instruments, documents, instructions, or other items in escrow or take any other steps to place the escrow in a condition to close for a period of six months thereafter, you may, at your option, cancel this escrow by giving notice to the parties that you are exercising your right to cancel.

(f) Upon cancellation of the escrow, you shall return to Seller all funds, instruments, documents, and other items that Seller has deposited into escrow.

[If time is to be made of the essence:]

25. Time is of the essence with respect to each and every provision of these instructions and in the performance, occurrence, fulfillment, or satisfaction of each and every term and condition of this escrow and these instructions.

Cooperation of Parties

26. Seller and Buyer shall cooperate with you in carrying out the instructions they deposit with you and completing this escrow. Seller and Buyer shall deposit into escrow, upon request, any additional funds, instruments, documents, instructions, authorizations, or other items that are reasonably necessary to enable you to comply with demands made on the escrow by third parties, to secure policies of title insurance, or to otherwise carry out the terms of their instructions and close this escrow.

Genuineness of Documents

27. You are authorized and entitled to assume that instruments, documents, and other writings that are deposited in escrow or that you receive in the course of carrying out your instructions are genuine and are in fact signed by the person or persons purporting to execute them, and you are authorized and entitled to act upon or use such instruments, documents, and writings, unless and until you have actual knowledge of facts or circumstances that would cause a reasonably prudent person to suspect that they are not genuine.

Recording of Documents

28. You are authorized to record any instrument, agreement, or document the recording of which is necessary or appropriate to secure the issuance of any policy of title insurance required by Seller's or Buyer's instructions or to comply with any other term or condition of Seller's or Buyer's instructions.

Furnishing of Copies

29. You are authorized to furnish copies of Seller's instructions, and of any instruments, documents, or writings deposited in escrow, to _____[identify by name and capacity persons who you want be able to obtain copies of any instructions or documents on request, e.g., the prospective title insurer, buyer, buyer's lender, and the attorneys and real estate brokers for the parties]. You are authorized to furnish copies of Seller's instructions, and of any instruments, documents, or writings deposited in escrow, to other persons or entities if and to the extent that you determine, in the good faith exercise of your judgment, that it is necessary or appropriate in order to secure the issuance of any policy of title insurance required by Seller's or Buyer's instructions or to comply with any other term or condition of Seller's or Buyer's instructions.

Deposit of Funds in Escrow

30. (a) You are authorized and instructed to deposit all funds you receive in escrow in a general escrow [if appropriate, add: or trust] account that is maintained in your name at _____[identify types of financial institutions in which funds may be deposited, e.g., a State or National Bank insured by an agency of the United States Government] and to retain those funds in such an account until they are disbursed pursuant to the instructions of the parties. However, you are authorized to transfer escrowed funds held in one general escrow [if appropriate, add: or trust] account to any other general escrow [if appropriate, add: or trust] account maintained in your name at _____[identify types of financial institutions in which funds may be deposited].

(b) For the purposes of these instructions, funds deposited into escrow in the form of cash or its equivalent are deemed deposited when they are delivered to you; funds deposited into escrow in the form of a check, draft, or similar instrument are deemed deposited when the collectibility of the funds has been confirmed and they are available for disbursement. Provided, however, that the deposit into escrow of a written commitment to deliver a check or funds into this escrow that is made to you or to a party to the escrow by a bank, savings and loan association, insurance company, or other lender may, in your sole discretion, be deemed to be the equivalent of a deposit into escrow of the funds that the lender has committed to deposit.

Disbursement of Funds Held in Escrow

31. You shall not make any disbursements from funds held in escrow unless they are authorized by the instructions you have received from Seller and Buyer. Unless a prior disbursement is specifically authorized by the instructions you have received from Seller and Buyer, you shall not make any disbursements from funds held in escrow until you have closed escrow. Any disbursement made from funds held in escrow shall be made in the form of a check drawn on the general escrow [if appropriate, add: or trust] account in which the escrowed funds are held.

Notices

32. (a) Unless another form of notice or another manner of giving notice is required or expressly authorized by other provisions of these instructions, any notice that is required or permitted under these instructions must be in writing, must be signed by the party giving the notice, and must be personally delivered or sent by certified or registered mail, postage prepaid, return receipt requested [or specify other manner of giving notice], to each party to whom notice is to be given at the addresses set forth below. An attempted or purported notice that does not comply with these requirements shall be invalid and ineffective. Notice shall be deemed to have been given at the time it is personally delivered or, if given by mail, at the time it is deposited in the United States Mail.

(b) Notices that are to be given to you are to be personally delivered or mailed to _____[you or specify particular person to whom notice is to be delivered or mailed] at _____[address].

(c) Notices that are to be given to Seller are to be personally delivered or mailed to _____[seller or name of authorized agent to whom notice is to be delivered] at _____[address].

(d) Notices that are to be given to Buyer are to be personally delivered or mailed to Buyer [or name of authorized agent to whom notice is to be delivered; or, if buyer is to designate an agent, add: or to an agent authorized under Buyer's written instructions to receive notice on Buyer's behalf], at _____[specify address or state: at the address designated in Buyer's written instructions].

Conflicting Instructions

33. If there is a material conflict between the instructions that you receive from Seller and the instructions that you receive from Buyer, you shall notify Seller and Buyer forthwith of the precise nature of the conflict by telephone and by mail and you shall take no further action to carry out the particular instructions that are the subject of the conflict until the conflict has been resolved or eliminated by a valid amendment to the conflicting instructions or by a final order or judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction.

Conflicting Demands or Claims

34. You are not obligated to determine or resolve conflicting demands or claims to funds, instruments, documents, or items deposited in escrow or conflicting demands or claims concerning the validity, interpretation, or performance of the escrow instructions you have received or conflicting demands or claims concerning your obligations as escrow holder. Until any such conflicting demands or claims have been determined, resolved, or eliminated by written agreement of the parties, a valid amendment or supplement to your escrow instructions, or a final order or judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction, you are authorized to refrain from carrying out any instructions or performing any duties, and to retain in escrow any funds, instruments, documents, or items, that are the subject of the conflict or that may be dependent upon or affected by the resolution of the conflict.

Revocability of Instructions Until Deposit of Buyer's Instructions

35. Until Buyer has deposited with you signed written instructions that are sufficient to enable you to complete the sale of the Subject Real Property on the conditions set forth in these instructions, Seller shall have the right to revoke these instructions and shall have the right to the return of any instruments, documents, items or funds deposited with you.

Sole Instructions

36. Unless and until they are subsequently amended or canceled in the manner provided in these instructions, these instructions and the written instructions initially deposited with you by Buyer shall constitute the complete escrow instructions, and the only escrow instructions, of Seller and Buyer, and shall revoke and supersede any prior oral instructions you may have received.

Amendments

37. Once these instructions and Buyer's initial written instructions have been deposited with you, the respective instructions of Seller and Buyer may only be amended, supplemented, or modified by means of a written amendment that has either been signed or approved in writing by both Seller and Buyer. No written amendment, supplement, or modification of Seller's instructions or Buyer's instructions shall be effective or valid unless and until it has been deposited with you and unless and until Seller and Buyer have either signed it or approved it in a signed writing that has been deposited with you. Any purported oral amendment, supplement, or modification of the Seller's or Buyer's written instructions shall be ineffective and invalid.

Waiver

38. Any term or condition of this escrow or the instructions deposited by Seller and Buyer may be waived, but only with the agreement of each party the term or condition was intended to benefit. A term or condition of this escrow or the instructions deposited by Seller and Buyer can only be waived by means of a written waiver that has either been signed or approved in writing by the party or parties the term or condition was intended to benefit. No written waiver shall be effective or valid unless and until it has been deposited with you and unless and until each party it was intended to benefit has either signed it or approved it in a signed writing that has been deposited with you. Any purported oral waiver shall be ineffective and invalid.

Preparation of Instructions

[Set forth following provision in at least 10-point type:]

39. These escrow instructions were prepared by _____[name of attorney], attorney for Seller and an active member of the State Bar of California (State Bar Number _____).

Request for Acknowledgment of Acceptance

40. CHAPTER 26 REAL PROPERTY ESCROWS
PART IV. FORMS
A. Complete Escrow Instructions
1. Sale of Real Property

11-26 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26.201

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 26.201 Buyer's Escrow Instructions

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a set of escrow instructions that may be used by the buyer in a transaction in which the seller and buyer submit separate instructions to the escrow holder pursuant to a contract for the sale of residential or commercial property. For a corresponding set of separate seller's instructions, see § 26.200[2]. For a discussion of separate instructions and the general considerations relevant to the use and adaption of this form, see § 26.200[1].

This form, like the other escrow instructions in this chapter, is designed for an escrow in which the instructions will be drafted by the attorneys for the parties. Most escrow agents prepare and make available their own preprinted escrow instructions. The Escrow Law [Fin. Code § 17000 et seq.] imposes certain legal requirements and restrictions on instructions that will be prepared or used by escrow agents subject to its provisions. For a discussion of these restrictions, see § 26.200[1].

[b] Construction and Operation of Separate Instructions

When the seller and buyer submit separate escrow instructions, they will be read and construed together to ascertain the terms and conditions of the escrow [Neher v. Kauffman (1925) 197 Cal. 674, 683, 242 P. 713 ; Tuso v. Green (1924) 194 Cal. 574, 581, 229 P. 327] . If the respective instructions of the parties are not in agreement as to the essential terms and conditions of the escrow, they will not operate to create a valid escrow [Security-First Nat. Bk. v. Clark (1935) 8 Cal. App. 2d 709, 712, 48 P.2d 167 ; House v. Lala (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 412, 417, 4 Cal. Rptr. 366] . The buyer's instructions contained in this form are drafted and organized to correspond with the separate seller's instructions set out in § 26.200[2].

[c] Deposit Clauses

The buyer's deposit clauses [see Paragraphs 3, 4, and 5 of form] specify the funds and identify the instruments, documents, and other items that the buyer is depositing or will deposit into escrow in order to enable the escrow holder to comply with the conditions that must be performed or fulfilled by the buyer before the seller will authorize the recording and delivery of the deed.

The seller will require that funds sufficient to pay the purchase price be deposited into escrow. Accordingly, the buyer will have to deposit funds sufficient to pay that portion of the purchase price that is not being paid from the proceeds of a loan or being financed by the seller, and to cover the escrow fees and costs that the buyer is obligated to pay. For a discussion of other conditions that might be imposed by the seller, see § 26.200[1].

If the purchase price is being financed by a third party lender or by the seller, the buyer ordinarily will be required to execute and deposit in escrow a note and deed of trust, an insurance policy or policy memorandum, and other agreements or statements required by the seller or the lender. Usually, these instruments and documents will be prepared by the third party lender or the seller and deposited in escrow for execution by the buyer.

To minimize the risk of having funds tied up indefinitely in an escrow in the event of a dispute, funds generally are not deposited into escrow until shortly before the deadline imposed by the underlying contract. For a general discussion of deposits in escrow, see § 26.200[1].

[d] Processing of Escrow

[i] Arrangements With New Lender

If a portion of the purchase price will be paid from the proceeds of a new loan that is to be obtained by the buyer, the buyer will usually instruct the escrow holder to contact the lender and request that it place in escrow the instruments, agreements and documents that it will require the buyer to execute, together with the loan proceeds and instructions authorizing disbursement of the loan proceeds when the buyer has complied with the conditions imposed by the lender. Paragraph 6 of this Form instructs the escrow holder to contact the buyer's lender and arrange for the completion of the loan transaction. For a set of new lender's instructions, see § 26.220[2].

[ii] Arrangements With Existing Lender

A buyer who is to assume an existing loan will usually instruct the escrow holder to obtain a beneficiary's statement setting forth and itemizing the obligations secured by the existing deed of trust and to credit the balance owing against the purchase price or adjust the purchase price accordingly. Frequently, particularly if the sale is made contingent upon the lender permitting an assumption, the buyer will instruct the escrow holder to request the lender to place in escrow an assumption agreement and a statement of any assumption fee or other charges to be paid by buyer. Paragraph 7 of this Form instructs the escrow holder to secure a beneficiary's statement and arrange for buyer's assumption of an existing loan. Paragraph 15 of this Form instructs the escrow holder to adjust the purchase price to reflect the difference between the estimated loan balance used by the parties and the actual loan balance shown by the beneficiary's statement. For a request for a beneficiary's statement, see § 26.242[2].

[iii] Contingencies

Real property sales contracts usually contain provisions making the buyer's obligation to purchase the property contingent on the occurrence or nonoccurrence of specified events or conditions other than the seller's performance. For example, a contingency provision may make the buyer's obligation contingent on the buyer's obtaining a written commitment for a loan, on the sale of the buyer's present residence, or on the buyer's approval of a soils report or a structural engineer's report. For discussion of the contingency provisions most commonly found in real property sales contracts, see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements .

In many cases, some (or even all) of the conditions imposed by contingency provisions will be satisfied or waived before the escrow instructions are drafted and need not be dealt with in the instructions. However, if the sale is still contingent when the buyer's instructions are drafted, they should instruct the escrow holder that the underlying contract and the escrow are contingent on the occurrence or nonoccurrence of the specified condition. This is particularly important if the buyer may be required to deposit funds into escrow before the occurrence or nonoccurrence of the condition can be determined.

The buyer's instructions should also provide a clear procedure, consistent with that provided in the underlying contract, for canceling the escrow pursuant to the contingency provision. Paragraph 11 of this form contains alternative provisions embodying the two most common approaches found in contingency provisions: (1) a provision instructing the escrow holder that the escrow is to be canceled if the buyer gives written notice of the occurrence or nonoccurrence of the specified condition and the buyer's intent to exercise the right to cancel; and (2) a provision instructing the escrow holder that the escrow is to be canceled automatically unless the buyer gives written notice, within a specified period, that the contingency has been satisfied or waived.

[e] Conditions Precedent to Close of Escrow and Disbursement of Funds

[i] Terms and Conditions

Paragraph 12 of this form sets forth the conditions precedent to the transfer and disbursement of the funds deposited in escrow by or on behalf of the buyer. The buyer's instructions should clearly specify the terms and conditions that must be performed or fulfilled before the escrow holder is authorized to disburse the funds deposited by or on behalf of the buyer. From the buyer's point of view, the two most important conditions are usually that: (1) the escrow holder must have recorded the grant deed or other instrument conveying the property to buyer and must be authorized and prepared to deliver it to buyer; and (2) a title insurer must be obligated and prepared to issue in buyer's favor a policy of title insurance providing the coverage required by the underlying contract. The disbursement of the funds should also be conditioned on the performance of the other material obligations assumed by seller under the terms of the contract and the satisfaction or fulfillment of conditions and contingencies that are designed to protect the buyer's interest.

[ii] Separate Conveyances and Agreements Benefitting Property

If the contract calls for the seller to execute a separate grant of easement, party wall or boundary agreement, or some other separate instrument or agreement benefitting the property to be conveyed to the buyer, the instructions should require that the seller have executed the agreement; that, if recordable, it have been recorded; and that the escrow holder be authorized and prepared to deliver it to the buyer. If the contract provides for the conveyance of personal property or the assignment of a maintenance or service contract affecting the property, authority to disburse should also be conditioned on the seller's execution of a bill of sale or assignment and its deposit in escrow for delivery to the buyer.

[iii] Termite or Pest Control Clearance

Most real property sales transactions are contingent on obtaining some form of termite or structural pest control clearance; usually a certificate complying with Bus. & Prof. Code § 8519. Ordinarily the buyer will require such a clearance as an assurance that the property is free from termite damage, dryrot, and similar defects. Furthermore, most lenders will independently require that a structural pest control clearance be deposited into escrow as a condition of making the loan, regardless of whether the buyer requires such a clearance.

If the initial inspection reveals damage that must be fixed before the structural pest control operator will issue a clearance, it may be necessary to pay the cost of the corrective work out of escrow. If the seller is required to pay for the work, he or she may not have sufficient cash on hand and may have to rely on the proceeds from the sale. On the other hand, if the buyer is required to pay for all or any part of the work, he or she will want to be sure that escrow will close and the sale will actually be consummated before his or her funds are disbursed for that purpose.

Paragraphs 8, 9, and 10 of this form govern structural pest control clearances. These provisions assume that the parties have already ordered and received an initial inspection report that specifies a price for any necessary corrective work, and that they have agreed on how responsibility for payment of that cost will be allocated between buyer and seller. Paragraph 8 instructs the escrow holder concerning the existence of a pest control certification contingency and the procedure to be followed to complete necessary corrective work and secure the certification. Paragraph 9 authorizes the disbursement of funds from escrow to pay for the corrective work and certification, but only after (1) close of escrow and recordation of the deed, (2) deposit of the clearance, and (3) receipt of the operator's fee statement. In addition, disbursement is authorized only if the operator's charges do not exceed the amount of its original estimate. This last condition is designed to protect the parties in the event that during the course of performing the corrective work the structural pest control operator discovers additional damage that was not visible during the initial inspection and that will cause the repair costs to significantly exceed the original figure. If this should occur, the parties may have to reconsider whether to go forward with the sale on the original terms, and how the additional costs should be apportioned. The effect is to require the parties to submit supplemental escrow instructions dealing with the extra cost if this situation should occur; this is fairer to both parties than initially requiring one or the other to pay unanticipated and possibly substantial additional costs. Paragraph 10 instructs the escrow holder as to how the cost for the corrective work and certification is to be apportioned.

If the sale is contingent on the seller obtaining a particular type or clearance or performing particular corrective work, the escrow holder should receive separate instructions concerning the buyer's right to cancel the contract. The contingency provisions set forth in Paragraph 11 of this form should be used for this purpose.

[iv] Other Contingencies

If the buyer's obligation to purchase the property is still subject to other contingencies when the escrow instructions are deposited, the disbursement of the funds should be expressly conditioned on buyer's deposit of a written notice that the contingencies have been satisfied or waived. For a notice of satisfaction of a contingency, see § 26.260[2]. For a notice of waiver of a contingency, see § 26.261[2].

[v] Owner's Association Membership

If the property is a condominium or townhouse, the buyer's instructions should require that the seller must have properly endorsed and deposited in escrow for delivery to the buyer any membership certificates, assignment, or other documents needed to transfer the seller's membership in the condominium or townhouse owner's association to the buyer.

[vi] Deposit of Leases and Rent Statements

If the property is rental property or other income-producing property, the contract will usually require the seller to deliver all of the leases or rental agreements that are in effect and schedules or statements showing the status of all rents, all security deposits held, and other obligations owed under the leases or rental agreements. In such cases, the disbursement of the buyer's funds should be conditioned on the seller's deposit of the leases, rental agreements, schedules, and statements into escrow for delivery to the buyer.

[f] Standard Provisions

This form contains standard provisions, appropriate for use by either party, concerning prorations and adjustments [see Paragraphs 13-17 of form], payment of escrow fees and costs [see Paragraph 18 of form], cancellation of escrow [see Paragraph 24 of form], amendments and supplemental instructions [see Paragraph 37 of form], waiver [see Paragraph 38 of form], limitations on the escrow holder's obligations [see Paragraphs 27, 33, and 34 of form], approval of instructions by the other party [see paragraph following buyer's signature block], and acceptance by escrow holder [see Paragraph 39 and final paragraph of form]. For a general discussion of these standard provisions, see § 26.200[1].

[OR]

[if cost is to be split between the parties, use:] be borne one half by Seller and one half by Buyer, and will be paid from the respective funds held for the accounts of the parties at the close of escrow.

[OR]

[if one party is to pay cost up to a specified limit and other party is to pay balance, use:] be paid as follows: _____[Seller or Buyer] will pay the fees and charges, up to a limit of $_____; and _____[other party] shall pay any charges in excess of $_____[repeat amount specified above], up to but not exceeding the full price specified in the inspection report for performance of the corrective work described in Paragraph 8. Payment shall be made from the respective funds held for the accounts of the parties at the close of escrow.

[If any contingencies specified in the contract of sale remain to be satisfied or fulfilled, include a separate provision such as the one below for each such contingency:]

_____ [ Nature of contingency, e.g., Loan] Contingency

11. The agreement for the purchase and sale of the Subject Real Property and this escrow are conditioned on

_____[characterize contingency, e.g., Buyer obtaining a written commitment for a fixed rate loan of $150,000, payable in equal monthly installments over a 30 year term, at an interest rate not to exceed 12 percent per annum and with loan fees not to exceed $3,000]. [Select the appropriate provision below:]

[If escrow is to proceed unless buyer affirmatively notifies escrow holder of failure of condition, use:]

If Buyer notifies you in writing _____[on or before _____ (date), or before the close of escrow] that _____[specify facts establishing failure of condition, e.g., the required loan commitment has not been obtained] and that _____[he or she or it] is exercising the right to cancel the escrow, this escrow will be immediately and automatically canceled and no further instructions from or notice to any party will be required to make the cancellation effective.

[OR]

[If escrow is to be canceled unless buyer affirmatively establishes satisfaction of condition, use:]

This escrow will be immediately and automatically canceled on _____[date], without any further instructions from or notice to any party, unless, before that date, Buyer _____[describe method of establishing satisfaction of condition, e.g., notifies you in writing that the required loan commitment has been obtained] [if desired, add: or notifies you in writing that _____ (he or she) is waiving the right to condition the sale and the escrow on _____ (describe contingency)].

[Continue with the following:]

If the escrow is canceled, you must return to Buyer all funds, instruments, and other items that Buyer has deposited into escrow.

Conditions Precedent to Close of Escrow and Disbursement of Buyer's Funds

12. You are authorized to disburse to Seller, from the funds held for Buyer's account at the close of escrow, the sum of $_____[amount to be deposited into escrow for purchase price], plus or minus any other sums that you are required to credit or debit to Seller's account under the escrow instructions you receive, when, and only when, all of the following apply:

(a) You have recorded a grant deed conveying all of Seller's right, title, and interest in the Subject Real Property to Buyer;

(b) _____[You are or _____ (Name of title insurer) is] prepared and obligated to issue _____[your or its] California Land Title Association standard coverage [or specify other form of policy] title insurance policy in the amount of $_____ insuring that title to the Subject Real Property is vested in Buyer free and clear of all title defects, liens, encumbrances, conditions, covenants, restrictions, and adverse interests except the following: _____[list, describing with specificity, any exceptions or items shown in preliminary title report that buyer has agreed to accept, any deeds of trust or mortgages that will be recorded to secure obligations buyer has incurred to finance the purchase, and any easements, covenants, or other interests that buyer is to convey or assume under the terms of the escrow];

(d) Seller has executed and deposited into escrow, and you are authorized and prepared to deliver to Buyer, a bill of sale conveying to Buyer _____[describe personal property to be conveyed or incorporate attached exhibit describing personal property by reference];

[If seller is to transfer or assign rights under conditional sales contract, service contract, or other contract relating to property:]

(e) Seller has executed and deposited in escrow, and you are authorized and prepared to deliver to Buyer, the original of the _____[describe contract, e.g., the elevator service contract, dated March 18, 1987, between Seller and ABC Corporation] and a duly executed assignment transferring and assigning to Buyer all of Seller's interest in and rights under that contract;

[If property is income-producing property or is otherwise leased or rented:]

(f) Seller has deposited in escrow, and you are authorized and prepared to deliver to Buyer, the originals of all leases now in effect between Seller and the present tenants of the Subject Real Property [or, if entire property leased under one lease: the original of the lease between Seller and _____ (name or names of lessees), the present tenant[s] of the Subject Real Property];

[If adjustments or prorations are to be made for rents that are delinquent or paid in advance in connection with sale of income-producing property:]

(g) Seller has deposited a rent schedule showing the status of rental payments under the leases in effect between Seller and the present tenants of the Subject Real Property in escrow [if buyer must approve rent schedule, add: and the rent schedule has been examined and approved in writing by Buyer];

[If seller is to transfer security deposits in connection with sale of income-producing or rented property:]

(h) Seller has deposited in escrow, and you are authorized and prepared to deliver to Buyer, a schedule showing the security deposits now held by Seller under leases in effect between Seller and the present tenants of the Subject Real Property and a duly executed assignment of those security deposits to Buyer;

[If property is part of a condominium or planned unit development:]

(i) Seller has properly endorsed for transfer to Buyer and deposited into escrow, and you are authorized and prepared to deliver to Buyer, _____[name of condominium or planned unit development owner's association] Certificate No. _____[or specify other document evidencing transfer of association membership];

[If property is served by a mutual or private water company:]

(j) Seller has properly endorsed for transfer to Buyer and deposited in escrow _____[name of mutual or private water company] stock certificate No. _____[or specify other documents evidencing assignment or transfer];

[If purchase is to be financed by a third party loan:]

(k) Buyer's lender has deposited into escrow, and you have credited to Buyer's account, loan proceeds in the sum of $_____[if loan fees and charges are to be deducted by lender before loan proceeds are deposited, add:, less the deductions made by Buyer's lender for the _____ (describe known individual charges, e.g., tax and insurance impound account payment, loan fee, credit report fee, and tax service contract charge,) and other costs, charges, fees, and expenses that Buyer is required to pay to Buyer's lender in connection with the loan];

[If pest control certification is to be deposited in escrow:]

(l) You have received in escrow, in accordance with Paragraph 8 of these instructions, the written certification of _____[name of structural pest control operator or the licensed structural pest control operator retained by the parties], pursuant to Business and Professions Code Section 8519, that the _____[describe improvements, e.g., house, garage, toolshed,] and other improvements located on the Subject Real Property are free of evidence of active infestation or infection in the visible and accessible areas; and

[If buyer's obligation to purchase is contingent on condition other than seller's performance:]

(m) Buyer has executed and deposited in escrow a written notice either verifying that _____[specify facts or events establishing satisfaction of condition, e.g., the escrow established to complete the sale of Buyer's present residence has closed] or stating Buyer's election to (i) waive the right _____[specify, e.g., to cancel the contract of purchase and sale and this escrow if the escrow established to complete the sale of Buyer's present residence did not close by _____ (date)], and (ii) proceed to close escrow [or describe other method selected by parties to establish satisfaction or waiver of condition].

Proration of Certain Expenses

13. Prorate on the basis of a 30-day month, as of the date on which escrow closes [or specify other agreed-upon date], the costs, charges, expenses, and items of income described below, and credit or debit the respective accounts of Seller and Buyer accordingly. Prorate the following costs, charges and expenses on the basis of bills, statements, canceled checks, receipts, and other satisfactory types of documentary evidence of their existence, amount and payment that is deposited in escrow by Seller or Buyer:

[If property taxes are to be prorated:]

(a) Real property taxes on the Subject Real Property for the tax fiscal year _____-_____;

[If special assessments that have been paid or are due are to be prorated:]

(b) _____[Describe assessment] on the Subject Real Property for _____[specify period for which assessment is made];

[If maintenance fees are to be prorated:]

(c) Fees or charges of _____[name of person or entity providing service] for maintenance of the Subject Real Property for the period _____[specify period for which fees or charges have been or will be incurred];

[If homeowner's association dues are to be prorated:]

(d) _____[name of association] dues for _____[specify period for which dues paid or due];

[If premium for insurance to be assigned or transferred to buyer is to be prorated:]

(e) The premium for _____[name of insurer] _____[type of insurance, e.g., fire and extended special coverage] Policy No. _____, for the policy period from _____ to _____[dates];

[If rents are to be prorated in connection with a sale of income-producing or rental property, include (f) and (g), below:]

(f) Rents paid in advance for the rental period[s] in which this escrow closes, in accordance with the rent schedule deposited in escrow by Seller; credit the account of Buyer and debit the account of Seller with the portion of the rent attributable to the portion of the rental period after the close of escrow; and

(g) Rents owing for the rental period[s] in which this escrow closes, in accordance with the rent schedule deposited in escrow by Seller; credit the account of Seller, and debit the account of Buyer with the portion of the rent attributable to the portion of the rental period before the close of escrow.

Proration Outside of Escrow

14. _____[Describe specific items to be prorated out of escrow, e.g., Utility bills, telephone bills] and other costs, charges, expenses and items of income arising from or attributable to the use or maintenance of the Subject Real Property that you have not been expressly instructed to prorate shall, if proration is required, be prorated by Seller and Buyer outside of this escrow.

[Add the following Paragraph 15 if buyer is to assume existing loan:]

Adjustments Based on Existing Loan

15. (a) The contract between Buyer and Seller provides that Buyer is to pay a total purchase price of $_____ and that the balance of the existing loan from _____[name of existing lender] that Buyer will assume is to be credited against that total purchase price. In preparing these instructions, the parties have estimated that the balance of the existing loan will be $_____ as of the close of escrow and that Buyer will therefore be required to deposit the sum of $_____ into escrow for payment of the purchase price. You are to determine the precise amount that Buyer will be required to deposit into escrow for the purchase price, however, by crediting the actual balance of the existing loan as of the date of the close of escrow against the total purchase price of $_____. If the actual balance of the existing loan as of the close of escrow is greater than $_____[parties' estimate of balance], you will credit the difference against the amount that these instructions require Buyer to deposit for the purchase price and debit the account of Seller accordingly; if it is less than $_____[parties' estimate of balance], you will debit the difference against the amount that these instructions require Buyer to deposit for the purchase price and credit the account of Seller accordingly.

[Choose one of the following paragraphs:]

[If parties contemplate that lender will return funds in impound account to Seller:]

(b) These instructions assume that _____[name of existing lender] will return to Seller the funds it is presently holding in the tax and insurance impound account established for the existing loan when the existing loan is assumed by Buyer, and that Buyer will make a separate payment to _____[name of existing lender] of the funds required for the maintenance of the impound account. If _____[name of existing lender] retains the funds it is presently holding in the impound account and applies them for the benefit of Buyer, any funds so retained and applied by _____[name of existing lender] shall be debited against the amount that these instructions require Buyer to deposit for the purchase price and the account of Seller shall be credited accordingly.

[Or, if parties contemplate that lender will retain funds in impound account and that seller will receive a credit in amount of funds retained:]

(b) The funds presently held by _____[name of existing lender] in the tax and insurance impound account established for the existing loan will be retained in that impound account by _____[name of existing lender] and applied to the maintenance of the account for the benefit of Buyer. The funds so retained and applied by _____[name of existing lender] shall be debited against the amount that these instructions require Buyer to deposit for the purchase price and the account of Seller shall be credited accordingly.

Credits to Seller's Account

16. Credit the account of Seller and debit the account of Buyer with the following items:

[If seller is to receive credit for past due rents in connection with sale of income-producing or rented property:]

(a) An amount equal to the total of all rents owing from tenants of the Subject Real Property for rental periods ending prior to the date on which this escrow closes;

[If monies held in impound account are to be retained by lender due to buyer's assumption of loan:]

(b) An amount equal to the amount of the funds retained by _____[name of lender] in the tax and insurance impound account established for the loan secured by the first [or second or other priority] deed of trust on the Subject Real Property shown as _____[exception or item or other designation] on the Preliminary Title Report attached as Exhibit A; and

(c) [List any other sums or items to be credited to seller.]

Credits to Buyer's Account

17. Credit the account of Buyer and debit the account of Seller with the following items:

[If buyer is to receive credit for prepaid rents and security deposits for which liability is assumed in connection with sale of income-producing or rented property, include (a) and (b), below:]

(a) An amount equal to the total of all rents prepaid by tenants of the Subject Real Property for rental periods commencing after the date on which this escrow closes;

(b) An amount equal to the total of all security deposits held for tenants of the Subject Real Property for which Buyer is to assume responsibility, in accordance with the schedule deposited in escrow by Seller; and

(c) [List any other sums or items to be credited to buyer.]

Other Disbursements From Funds Held for Buyer

18. When you have closed escrow and recorded the grant deed conveying all of Seller's right, title, and interest in the Subject Real Property to Buyer, and when you are otherwise authorized and prepared to disburse the funds that are to be credited to Seller's account as and for the purchase price, you are authorized to disburse, on behalf of Buyer, from the funds held for Buyer's account, the sums necessary to pay the following costs, charges, expenses, and items:

[If buyer is to assume existing loan:]

(a) Any fees or charges assessed by _____[name of lender or holder] in connection with Buyer's assumption of the loan secured by the existing _____[specify priority, e.g., first or second or other priority] deed of trust shown as _____[exception or item or other designation] No. _____ on the Preliminary Title Report attached as Exhibit A;

[If buyer is to obtain new loan, and loan fees and costs are to be paid directly by buyer:]

(b) The _____[describe known individual charges, e.g., tax and insurance impound account payment, loan fee, credit report fee, tax service contract charge,] and other costs, charges, fees, and expenses payment of which is required by _____[name of buyer's lender] as a condition of making the loan that Buyer is to obtain from it to finance the purchase price of the Subject Real Property;

[If buyer is to pay all or part of transfer taxes:]

(c) [If documentary transfer tax will be split: One half of] The documentary transfer tax and [if local taxes are to be split: one-half of] any local transfer tax imposed as a result of the conveyance of the Subject Real Property to Buyer;

(d) The recording fees charged for the recording of _____[specify instruments for which buyer is to pay recording fees, e.g., the grant deed conveying the Subject Real Property to Buyer];

(e) The notary fees for any notary services performed for Buyer;

[If buyer is to pay all or part of title insurance costs:]

(f) [If title insurance costs are to be split: One half of] The premium and any other fees and costs charged by _____[you or name of title insurer] for the issuance of the preliminary report and title insurance policy insuring Buyer's title to the Subject Real Property;

[If buyer is to pay all or part of escrow fees:]

(g) [If escrow fees are to be split: One half of] Your fees and charges for the escrow services you have performed in connection with this escrow;

[If buyer is to pay all or part of cost of pest control corrective work or certification:]

(h) Fees and charges for corrective pest control work [add, if applicable:, the inspection and reinspection of the Subject Real Property, and the preparation and delivery of the required pest control certification] that you are authorized to pay on Buyer's behalf under Paragraphs 8, 9, and 10;

[List any other individual items, then continue with the following:]

(i) Any costs, charges, expenses, or items that Buyer is to pay as a result of any proration or adjustment required by these instructions; and

(j) Any other costs, charges, expenses, or items that Buyer is required to pay under the terms of these instructions.

Disbursement of Balance to Buyer

19. When you have closed escrow and disbursed the sums necessary to pay the costs, charges, expenses, and items that you have been authorized to pay on Buyer's behalf under the provisions of these instructions, you shall disburse any remaining balance of the funds held for the account of Buyer by drawing a check to Buyer on your escrow account for the balance of the funds held for Buyer's account and mailing that check to Buyer _____[specify type of mail to be used, e.g., by certified mail, return receipt requested] at _____[address] [or specify other method of disbursement or delivery].

Instruments to Be Recorded

20. When you are prepared to close escrow, you are authorized and instructed to record the following instruments and documents in the order set forth below provided that, if the issuance of a policy of title insurance or the making of a loan that is to be used to finance the purchase is conditioned upon their being recorded in some other order, you shall notify all parties immediately and refrain from proceeding until you have received further instructions resolving or eliminating the conflict:

[If conveyances to seller must be made or recorded to vest clear title in seller:]

(a) The quitclaim deed quitclaiming all of _____[name of grantor]'s right, title, and interest in the Subject Real Property to Seller [or specify other conveyance necessary to vest clear title in seller];

[If seller is paying off existing loan:]

(b) The reconveyance of the deed of trust securing the loan made to Seller by _____[name of lender];

[If seller is paying off other lien claimants:]

(c) The _____[instrument required to clear lien, e.g., acknowledgment of satisfaction of judgment or release of mechanic's lien] executed by _____[name of lien claimant];

(d) The grant deed conveying all of Seller's right, title, and interest in the Subject Real Property to Buyer;

[If seller is to execute a separate instrument or agreement conveying some additional property interest:]

(e) The _____[party wall agreement or boundary agreement or grant of easement or specify other instrument or agreement relating to adjoining real property retained by seller] executed in favor of Buyer by Seller and _____[specify purpose of agreement, e.g., providing for the construction and maintenance of a wall between the Subject Real Property and certain adjoining real property owned by Seller];

[If buyer is to execute instrument or agreement benefitting adjoining property retained by seller:]

(f) The _____[party wall agreement or boundary agreement or grant of easement or specify other instrument or agreement relating to adjoining real property retained by seller] executed by Buyer that _____[specify purpose of agreement, e.g., provides for the construction and maintenance of a wall between the Subject Real Property and certain adjoining real property owned by Seller];

[If purchase is to be financed by third party lender:]

(g) The first [or specify other priority] deed of trust executed by Buyer to secure the repayment of the purchase money loan to be made by _____[name of lender]; and

[If seller is financing part of purchase price:]

(h) The _____[first or second or specify other priority] deed of trust executed by Buyer to secure the payment of the portion of the purchase price to be financed by Seller.

Delivery of Instruments and Documents to Buyer

21. When you have closed escrow and recorded all instruments and documents that are to be recorded, you are to deliver to Buyer, or cause to be delivered to Buyer, the following instruments and documents:

(a) The grant deed conveying all of Seller's right, title, and interest in the Subject Real Property to Buyer;

(b) The original California Land Title Association standard coverage [or specify other form of policy] title insurance policy] that _____[you have or _____ (name of title insurer) has] issued in accordance with the requirements of these instructions insuring that title to the Subject Real Property is vested in Buyer;

[If seller is to execute a separate instrument or agreement conveying some additional property interest:]

(c) The _____[party wall agreement or boundary agreement or grant of easement or specify other instrument or agreement relating to adjoining real property retained by seller] executed in favor of Buyer by Seller and _____[specify purpose of agreement, e.g., providing for the construction and maintenance of a wall between the Subject Real Property and certain adjoining real property owned by Seller];

[If seller is to convey personal property to buyer:]

(d) The bill of sale conveying to Buyer _____[describe personal property to be conveyed or incorporate attached exhibit describing personal property by reference];

[If seller is to transfer or assign rights under conditional sales contract, service contract, or other contract relating to property:]

(e) The _____[describe contract, e.g., elevator service contract, dated March 18, 1987, between Seller and ABC Corporation] and the assignment transferring and assigning to Buyer all of Seller's interest in and rights under that contract;

(f) The leases in effect between Seller and the present tenants of the Subject Real Property;

[If seller is required to furnish a rent schedule:]

(g) The rent schedule showing the status of rental payments under the leases in effect between Seller and the present tenants of the Subject Real Property;

[If seller is to transfer security deposits in connection with sale of income-producing or rented property:]

(h) The schedule showing the security deposits now held by Seller under leases in effect between Seller and the present tenants of the Subject Real Property and the assignment of those security deposits to Buyer;

[If property is part of a condominium or planned unit development:]

(i) _____[name of condominium or planned unit development owner's association] Certificate No. _____[or specify other document evidencing transfer of association membership];

[If property is served by a mutual or private water company:]

(j) _____[Name of mutual or private water company] Stock Certificate No. _____[or specify other documents evidencing assignment or transfer];

[If pest control certification is to be deposited in escrow:]

(k) The written certification of _____[name of structural pest control operator or the licensed structural pest control operator retained by the parties] pursuant to Business and Professions Code Section 8519 that the _____[describe improvements, e.g., house, garage, and toolshed,] and other improvements located on the Subject Real Property are free of evidence of active infestation or infection in the visible and accessible areas.

[If property taxes are to be prorated:]

(l) Copies of all bills, invoices, statements, and receipts evidencing the real property taxes assessed on the Subject Real Property for the tax fiscal year _____-_____ and any payment of those taxes;

[If special assessments that have been paid or are due are to be prorated:]

(m) Copies of all bills, invoices, statements, and receipts evidencing the _____[describe assessment] on the Subject Real Property for _____[specify period for which assessment is made] and any payment of that assessment;

[If maintenance fees are to be prorated:]

(n) Copies of all bills, invoices, statements, and receipts evidencing the fees or charges of _____[name of person or entity providing service] for maintenance of the Subject Real Property for the period _____[specify period for which fees or charges have been or will be incurred] and any payment of those fees and charges;

[If owners' association dues are to be prorated:]

(o) Copies of all bills, invoices, statements, and receipts evidencing _____[name of association] dues for _____[specify period for which dues paid or due] and any payment of those dues;

[If premium for insurance to be assigned or transferred to buyer is to be prorated:]

(p) Copies of all bills, invoices, statements, and receipts evidencing the premium for _____[name of insurer] _____[type of insurance, e.g., fire and extended special coverage] Policy No. _____, for the policy period from _____[date], to _____[date], and any payment of that premium;

(s) Copies of all bills, invoices, statements, and receipts evidencing the premium and any other fees and costs charged by _____[you o*r set forth name of title insurer*] for the issuance of the preliminary report and title insurance policy insuring Buyer's title to the Subject Real Property;

[If buyer is to pay escrow fees or other costs:]

(t) Your itemized statement showing your fees and charges for the escrow services you have performed in connection with this escrow and the sums that you have paid on behalf of Buyer for _____[specify applicable items, e.g., transfer taxes, reconveyance fees, recording fees, notary fees,] and other costs, fees, charges, and expenses incurred in completing this escrow or complying with these instructions.

Close of Escrow

22. For the purposes of these instructions, this escrow shall be deemed to have closed when the grant deed conveying the Subject Real Property to Buyer has been recorded, and the date on which the grant deed is recorded shall be deemed to be the date of the close of escrow. This escrow shall be considered to be in a condition to close when you are authorized under Seller's and Buyer's instructions, and when you are otherwise able, to record the grant deed.

Time for Close of Escrow

23. As soon as this escrow is in a condition to close, you are to proceed forthwith to close it. This escrow must be _____[in a condition to close or closed] no later than _____[date].

Cancellation of Escrow

24. (a) This escrow may, by mutual agreement of Seller and Buyer, be canceled at any time before the close of escrow by means of supplementary escrow instructions directing you to cancel the escrow or by means of a written notice of cancellation signed by both Seller and Buyer.

(b) If this escrow is not _____[in a condition to close or closed] on or before _____[date], _____[if escrow is to be automatically canceled: it shall be immediately and automatically canceled; no instructions from or notice to any party shall be required in order to effect the cancellation or, if affirmative action by party is necessary to effect cancellation: you shall proceed with the escrow and close the escrow as soon as possible unless the escrow is canceled in accordance with these instructions].

(c) If this escrow is not _____[in a condition to close or closed] on or before _____[date], because a party has defaulted in the performance of a term or condition of the escrow or of these instructions or because, without any fault on the part of a party, a condition of the escrow has not occurred or been fulfilled, a party who is not in default may cancel this escrow by giving you written notice that he or she is exercising the right to cancel the escrow.

[OR]

(c) If this escrow is not _____[in a condition to close or closed] on or before _____[date], because a party has defaulted in the performance of a term or condition of the escrow or of these instructions, or because a condition of the escrow has not occurred or been fulfilled, you shall give the parties notice stating that escrow _____[was not in a condition to close or could not be closed] on that date and specifying the particular terms or conditions of the escrow or of these instructions that had not been performed or that had not occurred or been fulfilled. Unless the terms and conditions specified in the notice are performed or have occurred or been fulfilled within _____[specify period, e.g., five days], a party who is not in default may cancel this escrow by giving you written notice that he or she is exercising the right to cancel the escrow.

[If affirmative action is necessary to effect cancellation, also include the following paragraph:]

(d) A cancellation of this escrow can only be effected by means of supplementary escrow instructions or a written notice complying with the respective provisions of these instructions relating to amendment of instructions and notices. Any purported oral cancellation of this escrow shall be ineffective and invalid.

[Continue with the following:]

(e) If this escrow is not closed on or before _____[date], and if the parties do not deposit any additional funds, instrument, documents, instructions, or other items in escrow or take any other steps to place the escrow in a condition to close for a period of six months thereafter, you may, at your option, cancel this escrow by giving notice to the parties that you are exercising your right to cancel.

(f) Upon cancellation of the escrow, you shall return to Buyer all funds, instruments, documents, and other items that Buyer has deposited into escrow.

[If time is to be made of the essence:]

Time of Essence

25. Time is of the essence with respect to each and every provision of these instructions and in the performance, occurrence, fulfillment, or satisfaction of each and every term and condition of this escrow and these instructions.

Cooperation of Parties

26. Seller and Buyer shall cooperate with you in carrying out the instructions they deposit with you and completing this escrow. Seller and Buyer shall deposit into escrow, on request, any additional funds, instruments, documents, instructions, authorizations, or other items that are reasonably necessary to enable you to comply with demands made on the escrow by third parties, to secure policies of title insurance, or to otherwise carry out the terms of their instructions and close this escrow.

Genuineness of Documents

27. You are authorized and entitled to assume that instruments, documents, and other writings that are deposited in escrow or that you receive in the course of carrying out your instructions are genuine and are in fact signed by the person or persons purporting to execute them, and you are authorized and entitled to act upon or use such instruments, documents, and writings, unless and until you have actual knowledge of facts or circumstances that would cause a reasonably prudent person to suspect that they are not genuine.

Recording of Documents

28. You are authorized to record any instrument, agreement, or document, the recording of which is necessary or appropriate to secure the issuance of any policy of title insurance required by Buyer's or Seller's instructions or to comply with any other term or condition of Buyer's or Seller's instructions.

Furnishing of Copies

29. You are authorized to furnish copies of Buyer's instructions, and of any instruments, documents, or writings deposited in escrow, to _____[identify by name and capacity persons who you want be able to obtain copies of any instructions or documents upon request, e.g., the prospective title insurer, buyer's lender, seller, the attorneys and real estate brokers for the parties]. You are authorized to furnish copies of Buyer's instructions, and of any instruments, documents, or writings deposited in escrow, to other persons or entities if and to the extent that you determine, in the good faith exercise of your judgment, that it is necessary or appropriate in order to secure the issuance of any policy of title insurance required by Buyer's or Seller's instructions or to comply with any other term or condition of Buyer's or Seller's instructions.

Deposit of Funds in Escrow

30. (a) You are authorized and instructed to deposit all funds you receive in escrow in a general escrow [if appropriate, add: or trust] account that is maintained in your name at _____[identify types of financial institutions in which funds may be deposited, e.g., a State or National Bank insured by an agency of the United States Government] and to retain those funds in such an account until they are disbursed pursuant to the instructions of the parties. However, you are authorized to transfer escrowed funds held in one general escrow [if appropriate, add: or trust] account to any other general escrow [if appropriate, add: or trust] account maintained in your name at _____[identify types of financial institutions in which funds may be deposited].

(b) For the purposes of these instructions, funds deposited into escrow in the form of cash or its equivalent are deemed deposited when they are delivered to you; funds deposited into escrow in the form of a check, draft, or similar instrument are deemed deposited when the collectibility of the funds has been confirmed and they are available for disbursement. Provided, however, that the deposit into escrow of a written commitment to deliver a check or funds into this escrow that is made to you or to a party to the escrow by a bank, savings and loan association, insurance company, or other lender may, in your sole discretion, be deemed to be the equivalent of a deposit into escrow of the funds that the lender has committed to deposit.

Disbursement of Funds Held in Escrow

31. You shall not make any disbursements from funds held in escrow for Buyer's account unless they are authorized by the instructions you have received from Buyer. Unless a prior disbursement is specifically authorized by the instructions you have received from Buyer, you shall not make any disbursements from funds held in escrow for Buyer's account until you have closed escrow. Any disbursement made from funds held in escrow shall be made in the form of a check drawn on the general escrow [if appropriate, add: or trust] account in which the escrowed funds are held.

Notices

32. (a) Unless another form of notice or another manner of giving notice is required or expressly authorized by other provisions of these instructions, any notice that is required or permitted under these instructions must be in writing, must be signed by the party giving the notice, and must be personally delivered or sent by certified or registered mail, postage prepaid, return receipt requested [or specify other manner of giving notice], to each party to whom notice is to be given at the addresses set forth below. An attempted or purported notice that does not comply with these requirements shall be invalid and ineffective. Notice shall be deemed to have been given at the time it is personally delivered or, if given by mail, at the time it is deposited in the United States Mail.

(b) Notices that are to be given to you are to be personally delivered or mailed to _____[you or specify particular person to whom notice is to be delivered or mailed] at _____[address].

(c) Notices that are to be given to Buyer are to be personally delivered or mailed to _____[buyer or name of authorized agent to whom notice is to be delivered] at _____[address].

(d) Notices that are to be given to Seller are to be personally delivered or mailed to Seller [or name of authorized agent to whom notice is to be delivered; or, if seller is to designate an agent, add: or to an agent authorized under Seller's written instructions to receive notice on Seller's behalf], at _____[specify address or state: at the address designated in Seller's written instructions].

Conflicting Instructions

33. If there is a material conflict between the instructions that you receive from Buyer and the instructions that you receive from Seller, you shall notify Buyer and Seller forthwith of the precise nature of the conflict by telephone and by mail and you shall take no further action to carry out the particular instructions that are the subject of the conflict until the conflict has been resolved or eliminated by a valid amendment or supplement to the conflicting instructions or by a final order or judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction.

Conflicting Demands or Claims

34. You are not obligated to determine or resolve conflicting demands or claims to funds, instruments, documents, or items deposited in escrow or conflicting demands or claims concerning the validity, interpretation, or performance of the escrow instructions you have received or conflicting demands or claims concerning your obligations as escrow holder. Until such conflicting demands or claims have been determined, resolved, or eliminated by written agreement of the parties, a valid amendment or supplement to your escrow instructions, or a final order or judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction, you are authorized to refrain from carrying out any instructions or performing any duties, and to retain in escrow any funds, instruments, documents, or items that are the subject of the conflict or that may be dependent upon or affected by the resolution of the conflict.

Revocability of Instructions Until Deposit of Seller's Instructions

35. Until Seller has deposited with you signed written instructions that are sufficient to enable you to complete the sale of the Subject Real Property on the conditions set forth in these instructions, Buyer shall have the right to revoke these instructions and shall have the right to the return of any instruments, documents, items, or funds deposited with you.

Sole Instructions

36. Unless and until they are subsequently amended or canceled in the manner provided herein, these instructions and the written instructions initially deposited with you by Seller shall constitute the complete escrow instructions, and the only escrow instructions, of Buyer and Seller and shall revoke and supersede any prior oral instructions you may have received.

Amendments

37. Once these instructions and Seller's initial written instructions have been deposited with you, the respective instructions of Buyer and Seller may only be amended, supplemented, or modified by means of a written amendment that has either been signed or approved in writing by both Buyer and Seller. No written amendment, supplement, or modification of Buyer's instructions or Seller's instructions shall be effective or valid unless and until it has been deposited with you and unless and until Buyer and Seller have either signed it or approved it in a signed writing that has been deposited with you. Any purported oral amendment, supplement, or modification of Buyer's or Seller's written instructions shall be ineffective and invalid.

Waiver

38. Any term or condition of this escrow or the instructions deposited by Buyer and Seller may be waived, but only with the agreement of each party the term or condition was intended to benefit. A term or condition of this escrow or the instructions deposited by Buyer and Seller can only be waived by means of a written waiver that has either been signed or approved in writing by the party or parties the term or condition was intended to benefit; no written waiver shall be effective or valid unless and until it has been deposited with you and unless and until each party it was intended to benefit has either signed it or approved it in a signed writing that has been deposited with you. Any purported oral waiver shall be ineffective and invalid.

Preparation of Instructions

[Set forth following provision in at least 10-point type:]

39. These escrow instructions were prepared by _____[name of attorney], attorney for Buyer and an active member of the State Bar of California (State Bar Number _____).

Request for Acknowledgment of Acceptance

40. DIVISION II: REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 26 REAL PROPERTY ESCROWS
PART IV. FORMS
A. Complete Escrow Instructions
1. Sale of Real Property

11-26 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 26.202

AUTHOR: Timothy F. O'Leary Practice Consultant

§ 26.202 Joint Escrow Instructions of Seller and Buyer

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a set of escrow instructions that may be used by the seller and the buyer in a transaction in which they submit joint escrow instructions to the escrow holder pursuant to a contract for the sale of residential or commercial property. Joint escrow instructions are used in most Southern California transactions, while separate escrow instructions are generally used in Northern California transactions. For separate seller's instructions, see § 26.200. For separate buyer's instructions, see § 26.201.

[b] Advantages and Disadvantages of Joint Instructions

The main advantage of joint instructions is that the process of drafting and submitting them usually requires the attorneys for the parties to confront and resolve inconsistencies and other potential problems at the outset; the processing of the escrow may be considerably facilitated if the escrow holder is guided by a single set of instructions and actual and potential conflicts are eliminated. On the other hand, because it may require the resolution of conflicts that prove to be immaterial and potential problems that never materialize, the process of drafting joint instructions can be a lengthy, time-consuming process that produces a set of instructions that is unnecessarily complex.

[c] Contents of Joint Instructions

From the point of view of the attorney preparing or reviewing them on behalf of a client, joint instructions should include virtually all of the provisions that normally would be included in separate instructions prepared for the client. Accordingly, this form essentially merges and consolidates the provisions of the seller's and buyer's instructions set out, respectively, in §§ 26.200[2] and 26.201[2]. For a discussion of those provisions, see §§ 26.200[1] (seller's instructions) and 26.201[1] (buyer's instructions).

Joint Escrow Instructions of Seller and Buyer

JOINT ESCROW INSTRUCTIONS OF SELLER AND BUYER

TO: _____[name of escrow holder]
_____[address]

_____[name of seller] (hereinafter sometimes referred to as "Seller") [if applicable, describe status, e.g., a California corporation or a limited partnership,] and _____[name of buyer] (hereinafter sometimes referred to as "Buyer") [if applicable, describe status, e.g., a California corporation or a limited partnership,] deposit with you the following joint escrow instructions:

ARTICLE 1. INTRODUCTORY PROVISIONS

Preliminary Recitals

Section 1.01. Seller has entered into a contract to sell to Buyer certain _____[residential or commercial] real property situated in the _____[describe geographical location, e.g., City of Oakland, County of Alameda, State of California], commonly known as and located at _____[street address, e.g., 2101 Webster Street, Oakland, California] and more particularly described in the Preliminary Title Report dated _____, attached as Exhibit "A" and by this reference incorporated herein, which real property is hereinafter sometimes referred to as the "Subject Real Property." Subject to the terms and conditions set forth below, Seller and Buyer hereby authorize and instruct you to open an escrow for the purpose of completing the sale of the Subject Real Property to Buyer and to complete the sale in accordance with the following directions.

[Add the following provision if underlying contract is not to be deposited in escrow:]

Disregard of Contract

Section 1.02. Your obligations as escrow holder are to be determined solely by these instructions and any subsequent amendments or supplemental instructions jointly submitted by Seller and Buyer. You are not responsible for knowing or interpreting any provisions of the contract on which these instructions are based, and shall not rely on any knowledge or understanding you may have of any such contractual provisions in ascertaining or performing your duties as escrow holder. You are not to accept in escrow any separate contract between Seller and Buyer for the purchase and sale of the Subject Real Property or any contract purporting to be a contract on which your escrow instructions are based.

ARTICLE 2. DEPOSITS INTO ESCROW

Seller's Deposits in Escrow

Section 2.01. _____[Seller hereby deposits into escrow or On or before _____ (date), Seller will deposit or cause to be deposited into escrow] the following:

Additional Deposits Into Escrow

Section 2.05. Seller and Buyer shall deposit into escrow, on receiving notification from you, any additional funds, instruments, documents, instructions, authorizations, or other items that are reasonably necessary to enable you to comply with demands made on the escrow by third parties, to secure policies of title insurance, or to otherwise carry out the terms of their instructions and close this escrow.

ARTICLE 3. PROCESSING OF ESCROW

[If purchase is to be financed by third party lender, include the following provision:]

Request for New Lender's Documents and Instructions

Section 3.01. The purchase price for the Subject Real Property is to be financed in part by a loan that Buyer will obtain from _____[name and address of lender; or, if buyer has not determined who lender will be: a third party lender to be selected and designated in writing by Buyer if lender has not previously been designated by shorthand reference, add: (hereafter referred to as "Buyer's lender")]. As soon as possible after opening this escrow [or, if Buyer has not determined who lender will be: after Buyer's lender is designated by Buyer], contact Buyer's lender and advise it that you have opened this escrow for the purpose of completing the sale of the Subject Real Property to Buyer. Request that it deposit in escrow as soon as possible escrow instructions setting forth the conditions under which it will authorize disbursement of the loan proceeds and the note, deed of trust, and other documents that it will require Buyer to execute.

[Choose one of the following alternative sections:]

[If existing loan is to be paid off:]

Lender's Payoff Demand Statement

Section 3.02. As soon as possible after opening escrow, contact _____[name and address of existing lender or holder] and request that it place in escrow a payoff demand statement prepared pursuant to Section 2943 of the California Civil Code and setting forth the amounts required to fully satisfy all obligations relating to the loan that is secured by the deed of trust shown as _____[exception or item or other designation] No. _____ on the Preliminary Title Report attached to these instructions as Exhibit A, the original promissory note evidencing the loan, a reconveyance of the deed of trust, duly executed and in recordable form, and escrow instructions authorizing you to cancel the note and record and deliver the reconveyance when you are prepared to disburse the amount of the balance due. Mail Seller copies of the statement and the escrow instructions as soon as they are received in escrow.

[OR]

[If buyer is to assume existing loan:]

Lender's Statement of Balance

Section 3.02. As soon as possible after opening escrow, contact _____[name and address of existing lender or holder] and request that it place in escrow a beneficiary statement setting forth the information required by California Civil Code Section 2943, including the unpaid principal balance of the loan secured by the deed of trust shown as _____[exception or item or other designation] No. _____ on the Preliminary Title Report attached to these instructions as Exhibit A. Mail Seller and Buyer copies of the statement as soon as it is received in escrow.

[Continue with the following:]

Other Claimants' Demands

Section 3.03. As soon as possible after opening escrow, contact _____[name and address of other lien claimant] and request that _____[he or she or it] place in escrow the following: a statement and demand for payment of the amount required to _____[satisfy or discharge or other appropriate characterization] the _____[judgment or tax lien or other description of lien] shown as _____[Exception or Item or other designation] No. _____ on the Preliminary Title Report attached to these instructions as Exhibit A; a duly executed _____[instrument required to clear lien, e.g., acknowledgment of satisfaction of judgment] in recordable form; and escrow instructions authorizing you to _____[action required to clear lien, e.g., file and record the acknowledgment of satisfaction of judgment] when you are prepared to disburse the amount demanded. Mail Seller copies of the statement and demand and the escrow instructions as soon as they are received in escrow.

[Add the following provision if close of escrow is conditioned on performance of corrective structural pest control work and deposit of structural pest control certification:]

Structural Pest Control Certification

Section 3.04. The close of this escrow is conditioned on the deposit in escrow of a certification by a licensed structural pest control operator, pursuant to the requirements of Business and Professions Code Section 8519, that the Subject Real Property is free of evidence of active infestation or infection in the visible and accessible areas. The parties have retained _____[name of structural pest control operator] to conduct an inspection of the Subject Real Property and prepare a report in accordance with the requirements of Business and Professions Code Section 8516. A copy of that report _____[is being or will be or has been] deposited into escrow pursuant to Section 2.01. The parties _____[have authorized or will authorize] _____[name of structural pest control operator] to perform _____[all corrective work listed in that report as a condition of obtaining a certification that the property is free from active infestation or infection in the visible and accessible areas or describe work by referring to specific items in report, e.g., the corrective work described in Items _____ (list by number) of the report], at the price stated in the report. When the corrective work has been completed, _____[Buyer or Seller or the parties] will obtain a certification that the Subject Real Property is free of evidence of active infestation or infection in the visible and accessible areas, and will deposit with you a true and complete copy of the certification.

[If cost of corrective work and/or pest control certification is to be paid out of escrow, add:]

Disbursement of Payment for [Inspections and] Corrective Work

Section 3.05. You are authorized to disburse to _____[name of structural pest control operator], in accordance with Section 3.06, the sums necessary to pay the fees and charges for the corrective work described in Section 3.04 [, and for the reinspection of the Subject Real Property and the preparation and delivery of the required certification,] if, and only if, all of the following apply:

(a) You have closed escrow and recorded the grant deed conveying all of Seller's right, title, and interest in the Subject Real Property to Buyer;

(b) _____[Buyer or Seller or The parties] has [or have] deposited into escrow the certification of _____[name of structural pest control operator] pursuant to Business and Professions Code Section 8519 that the Subject Real Property is free of evidence of active infestation or infection in the visible and accessible areas;

(c) _____[Name of structural pest control operator] has deposited in escrow _____[his or her or its] invoice or statement setting forth the fees and charges for the corrective work described in Section 3.04 [and for the reinspection of the Subject Real Property and the preparation and delivery of the required certification]; and

(d) The total of the fees and charges made by _____[name of structural pest control operator] for the corrective work [and for the reinspection of the Subject Real Property and the preparation and delivery of the required certification] does not exceed the price for those repairs as stated in the inspection report [, plus any standard inspection, reinspection, and certification fees, as applicable].

[If cost of corrective work and/or pest control certification is to be paid out of escrow, add:]

Responsibility for Expense of [Certification and] Corrective Work

Section 3.06. Fees and charges for the corrective work listed in Section 3.04, up to but not exceeding the price specified in the inspection report for performance of that work [, as well as any fees for (the inspection and) any reinspection of the Subject Real Property and the preparation and delivery of the required certification], subject to the conditions specified in Section 3.05, will _____[select the appropriate alternative below]

[if cost is to be borne solely by one party, use:] be the sole responsibility of _____[Seller or Buyer] and shall be paid from funds held for _____[Seller's or Buyer's] account at the close of escrow.

[OR]

[if cost is to be split between the parties, use:] be borne one half by Seller and one half by Buyer, and will be paid from the respective funds held for the accounts of the parties at the close of escrow.

[OR]

[if one party is to pay cost up to a specified limit and other party is to pay balance, use:] be paid as follows: _____[Seller or Buyer] will pay the fees and charges, up to a limit of $_____; and _____[other party] shall pay any charges in excess of $_____[repeat amount specified above], up to but not exceeding the full price specified in the inspection report for performance of the corrective work described in Section 3.04. Payment shall be made from the respective funds held for the accounts of the parties at the close of escrow.

[Continue with the following:]

Buyer's Deposit

Section 3.07. Buyer must pay into escrow, on or before _____[date], the sum of $_____ to be held by you as an initial deposit toward the payment of the purchase price for the Subject Real Property. [If buyer is required to increase deposit prior to close of escrow, add: Buyer must also pay into escrow, on or before _____ (date), the sum of $_____ to be held by you as an additional deposit toward the payment of the purchase price.] If Buyer fails to make the initial deposit described above on or before _____[date], [add, if applicable:, or if Buyer fails to make the additional deposit described above on or before _____ (date),] you must notify Seller immediately and Seller will have the right to cancel this escrow by notifying you in writing, within _____ days after you have given _____[him or her or it] notice of Buyer's failure to make the required deposit, that _____[he or she or it] is exercising the right to cancel. [If the underlying contract contains a liquidated damage clause, add: Notwithstanding any other provisions of your escrow instructions, if this escrow is canceled due to a default by Buyer, you are authorized and directed to hold any funds that Buyer has paid into escrow as or for an initial (add, if applicable: or additional) deposit, up to a limit of $_____ (specify amount of liquidated damages fixed by underlying contract), until you receive joint instructions from Buyer and Seller or a final order or judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction directing or determining the manner in which the funds are to be disbursed.]

[If any contingencies specified in the contract of sale remain to be satisfied or fulfilled, include a separate provision such as the one below for each such contingency:]

_____ [ Nature of contingency, e.g., Loan] Contingency

Section 3.08. The agreement for the purchase and sale of the Subject Real Property and this escrow are conditioned on _____[characterize contingency, e.g., Buyer obtaining a written commitment for a fixed rate loan of $150,000, payable in equal monthly installments over a 30 year term, at an interest rate not to exceed 12 percent per annum and with loan fees not to exceed $3,000].

[If escrow is to proceed unless party affirmatively notifies escrow holder of failure of condition:]

If _____[Seller or Buyer] notifies you in writing _____[on or before _____ [date], or before the close of escrow] that _____[specify facts establishing failure of condition, e.g., the required loan commitment has not been obtained] and that _____[he or she or it] is exercising the right to cancel the escrow, this escrow shall be immediately and automatically canceled, and no further instructions from or notice to any party shall be required to make the cancellation effective.

[Or, if escrow is to be canceled unless party affirmatively establishes satisfaction of condition:]

This escrow shall be immediately and automatically canceled on _____[date], without any further instructions from or notice to any party, unless, before that date, _____[Seller or Buyer] _____[describe method of establishing satisfaction of condition, e.g., notifies you in writing that the required loan commitment has been obtained for conditions other than party's agreement or approval, add: or notifies you in writing that _____ (he or she) is waiving the right to condition the sale and the escrow on _____ (describe contingency)].

[Continue with the following:]

If the escrow is canceled, you shall return to Seller and Buyer all funds, instruments, and other items that they have deposited into escrow.

ARTICLE 4. CONDITIONS PRECEDENT TO CLOSE OF ESCROW

(j) Seller has properly endorsed for transfer to Buyer and deposited in escrow _____[name of mutual or private water company] stock certificate No. _____[or specify other documents evidencing assignment or transfer];

[If purchase is to be financed by a third party loan:]

(k) Buyer's lender has deposited into escrow, and you have credited to Buyer's account, loan proceeds in the sum of $_____[if loan fees and charges are to be deducted by lender before loan proceeds are deposited, add:, less the deductions made by Buyer's lender for the _____ (describe known individual charges, e.g., tax and insurance impound account payment, loan fee, credit report fee, and tax service contract charge,) and other costs, charges, fees, and expenses that Buyer is required to pay to Buyer's lender in connection with the loan];

[If pest control certification is to be deposited in escrow:]

(l) You have received in escrow, in accordance with Section 3.04 of these instructions, the written certification of _____[name of structural pest control operator or the licensed structural pest control operator retained by the parties], pursuant to Business and Professions Code Section 8519, that the _____[describe improvements, e.g., house, garage, toolshed,] and other improvements located on the Subject Real Property are free of evidence of active infestation or infection in the visible and accessible areas; and

[If buyer's obligation to purchase is contingent on condition other than seller's performance:]

(m) Buyer has executed and deposited in escrow a written notice either verifying that _____[specify facts or events establishing satisfaction of condition, e.g., the escrow established to complete the sale of Buyer's present residence has closed] or stating Buyer's election to (i) waive the right _____[specify, e.g., to cancel the contract of purchase and sale and this escrow if the escrow established to complete the sale of Buyer's present residence did not close by _____ (date)], and (ii) proceed to close escrow [or describe other method selected by parties to establish satisfaction or waiver of condition].

ARTICLE 5. PRORATIONS AND ADJUSTMENTS

Proration of Certain Expenses

Section 5.01. Prorate on the basis of a 30 day month, as of the date on which escrow closes [or specify other agreed-on date], the costs, charges, and expenses described below, and credit or debit the respective accounts of Seller and Buyer accordingly. Prorate the following costs, charges, and expenses on the basis of bills, statements, canceled checks, receipts, and other satisfactory types of documentary evidence of their existence, amount, and payment that is deposited in escrow by Seller or Buyer:

[If property taxes are to be prorated:]

(a) Real property taxes on the Subject Real Property for the tax fiscal year _____-_____;

[If special assessments that have been paid or are due are to be prorated:]

(b) _____[Describe assessment] on the Subject Real Property for _____[specify period for which assessment is made];

[If maintenance fees are to be prorated:]

(c) Fees or charges of _____[name of person or entity providing service] for maintenance of the Subject Real Property for the period _____[specify period for which fees or charges have been or will be incurred:]

[If homeowner's association dues are to be prorated:]

(d) _____[name of association] dues for _____[specify period for which dues paid or due];

[If premium for insurance to be assigned or transferred to buyer is to be prorated:]

(e) The premium for _____[name of insurer] _____[type of insurance, e.g., fire and extended special coverage] Policy No. _____, for the policy period from _____ to _____[dates];

[If rents are to be prorated in connection with a sale of income-producing or rental property, include (f) and (g), below:]

(f) Rents paid in advance for the rental period[s] in which this escrow closes, in accordance with the rent schedule deposited in escrow by Seller; credit the account of Buyer and debit the account of Seller with the portion of the rent attributable to the portion of the rental period after the close of escrow; and

(g) Rents owing for the rental period[s] in which this escrow closes, in accordance with the rent schedule deposited in escrow by Seller; credit the account of Seller, and debit the account of Buyer with the portion of the rent attributable to the portion of the rental period before the close of escrow.

Proration Out of Escrow

Section 5.02. _____[Describe specific items to be prorated out of escrow, e.g., Utility bills, telephone bills] and any other costs, charges, expenses, and items of income arising from or attributable to the use or maintenance of the Subject Real Property, other than those costs, charges, expenses, and items of income that you have been expressly instructed to prorate, shall, if proration is required, be prorated by Seller and Buyer outside of this escrow.

[Add the following Section 5.03 if buyer is to assume existing loan:]

Adjustments Based on Existing Loan

Section 5.03(a) The contract between Buyer and Seller provides that Buyer is to pay a total purchase price of $_____ and that the balance of the existing loan from _____[name of existing lender] that Buyer will assume is to be credited against that total purchase price. In preparing these instructions, the parties have estimated that the balance of the existing loan will be $_____ as of the close of escrow and that Buyer will therefore be required to deposit the sum of $_____ into escrow for payment of the purchase price. You are to determine the precise amount that Buyer will be required to deposit into escrow for the purchase price, however, by crediting the actual balance of the existing loan as of the date of the close of escrow against the total purchase price of $_____. If the actual balance of the existing loan as of the close of escrow is greater than $_____[parties' estimate of balance], you will credit the difference against the amount that these instructions require Buyer to deposit for the purchase price and debit the account of Seller accordingly; if it is less than $_____[parties' estimate of balance], you will debit the difference against the amount that these instructions require Buyer to deposit for the purchase price and credit the account of Seller accordingly.

[If parties contemplate that lender will return funds in impound account to seller:]

(b) These instructions assume that _____[name of existing lender] will return to Seller the funds it is presently holding in the tax and insurance impound account established for the existing loan when the existing loan is assumed by Buyer, and that Buyer will make a separate payment to _____[name of existing lender] of the funds required for the maintenance of the impound account. If _____[name of existing lender] retains the funds it is presently holding in the impound account and applies them for the benefit of Buyer, any funds so retained and applied by _____[name of existing lender] shall be debited against the amount that these instructions require Buyer to deposit for the purchase price and the account of Seller shall be credited accordingly.

[Or, if parties contemplate that lender will retain funds in impound account and that seller will receive a credit in amount of funds retained:]

(b) The funds presently held by _____[name of existing lender] in the tax and insurance impound account established for the existing loan will be retained in that impound account by _____[name of existing lender] and applied to the maintenance of the account for the benefit of Buyer. The funds so retained and applied by _____[name of existing lender] shall be debited against the amount that these instructions require Buyer to deposit for the purchase price and the account of Seller shall be credited accordingly.

Credits to Seller's Account

Section 5.04. Credit the account of Seller and debit the account of Buyer with the following items:

[If seller is to receive credit for past due rents in connection with sale of income-producing or rented property:]

(a) An amount equal to the total of all rents owing from tenants of the Subject Real Property for rental periods ending prior to the date on which this escrow closes;

[If monies held in impound account are to be retained by lender due to buyer's assumption of loan:]

(b) An amount equal to the amount of the funds retained by _____[name of lender] in the tax and insurance impound account established for the loan secured by the first [or second or other priority] deed of trust on the Subject Real Property shown as _____[exception or item or other designation] on the Preliminary Title Report attached as Exhibit A; and

(c) [List any other sums or items to be credited to seller.]

Credits to Buyer's Account

Section 5.05. Credit the account of Buyer and debit the account of Seller with the following items:

[If buyer is to receive credit for prepaid rents and security deposits for which liability is assumed in connection with sale of income-producing or rented property, include (a) and (b), below:]

(a) An amount equal to the total of all rents prepaid by tenants of the Subject Real Property for rental periods commencing after the date on which this escrow closes;

(b) An amount equal to the total of all security deposits held for tenants of the Subject Real Property for which Buyer is to assume responsibility, in accordance with the schedule deposited in escrow by Seller; and

(c) [List any other sums or items to be credited to buyer.]
