§ 34B.263 Payment of Utilities Under Joint Meters

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a lease provision that may be used in a lease for a dwelling unit in a multiunit building or complex when the landlord or landlord's agent is aware that gas or electrical service provided through a tenant's meter serves areas outside the tenant's unit. It is designed to meet the requirements of Civ. Code § 1940.9 [see [b], below].

This form advises the tenant that the leased premises are not served by a separate meter (or meters) and that the meter(s) for the leased premises provide gas, electrical, or gas and electrical service to outside areas as well as to the tenant's unit. This form sets forth four alternative provisions for payment of the utility charges for the outside areas. The first alternative may be used if the tenant agrees to pay all charges for service provided through the meter(s) for the tenant's premises, including charges for areas outside the premises. The second alternative may be used if the landlord is to (1) become the customer of record for the tenant's meter, and (2) pay all charges for the meter. The third alternative may be used if the landlord is to arrange for the separate metering of the areas outside the tenant's unit and is to become the customer of record for the meter(s) serving those outside areas. The fourth alternative may be used if the tenant is to pay specified portions of the costs for service through the meter(s) and the landlord is to pay the balance. The form may be adapted appropriately to reflect any other arrangements for payment agreed to by the parties.

[b] Statutory Requirements

The requirements of Civ. Code § 1940.9 apply when (1) the landlord does not provide separate gas and electrical meters for each tenant's dwelling unit that measure only the electrical or gas service to each individual unit, and (2) the landlord or the landlord's agent has knowledge that gas or electrical service provided through a tenant's meter serves an area outside the tenant's unit. In that case, the landlord must, before the inception of the tenancy or on discovery, explicitly disclose the above condition to the tenant and do one of the following [Civ. Code § 1940.9(a)]:

- Execute a mutual written agreement with the tenant for payment by the tenant of the cost of the gas or electrical services provided through the tenant's meter to areas outside the tenant's dwelling unit [see first alternative provision of form in [2], below]; or

- Make a written agreement with the tenant for other arrangements for payment for the gas or electrical service provided through the tenant's meter to serve areas outside the tenant's dwelling unit. These arrangements may include the landlord's becoming the customer of record for the tenant's meter [see second alternative provision of form in [2], below], or the landlord separately metering and becoming the customer of record for the area outside the tenant's dwelling unit [see third alternative provision of form in [2], below].

As mentioned in [a], above, this form includes another arrangement under which the tenant pays for specified portions of the costs and the landlord pays the balance [see fourth alternative provision of form in [2], below].

[c] Remedies for Failure to Comply

If a landlord fails to comply with the statutory requirements [see [b], above], the aggrieved tenant may bring an action in a court of competent jurisdiction [Civ. Code § 1940.9(b)]. The remedies the court may order include, but are not limited to, the following [Civ. Code § 1940.9(b)]:

- Requiring the landlord to be made the customer of record with the utility for the tenant's meter; and

- Ordering the landlord to reimburse the tenant for payments made by the tenant to the utility for service to areas outside the tenant's dwelling unit.

When the court makes an order for reimbursement, it must order the landlord to reimburse the tenant for all payments made from the date the landlord's obligation to disclose that gas or electrical service was being provided to areas outside the tenant's dwelling unit arose [Civ. Code § 1940.9(b)(2)]. In the ordinary case, this will be from the inception of the tenancy.

Nothing in Civ. Code § 1940.9 limits any remedies available to either a landlord or a tenant under other provisions of Civ. Code §§ 1940-1954.1, the rental agreement, or applicable statutory or common law [Civ. Code § 1940.9(c)].

[2] FORM

Payment of Utilities Under Joint Meters

Utility Charges

_____. In accordance with Civil Code Section 1940.9, Landlord hereby advises Tenant that the leased premises are not served by [a separate gas meter or a separate electrical meter or separate gas and electrical meters] that measure[s] only the service provided to the leased premises. Instead, the [gas meter or electrical meter or gas and electrical meters] for the leased premises provide[s] service to Tenant's unit and to certain areas outside the leased premises. Those outside areas include [describe outside areas, e.g., common areas of the building in which the leased premises are situated, including hallways, stairwells, lobbies, and vestibules or the following dwelling premises adjoining the Tenant's leased premises: _____ (description of adjoining premises)].

[First alternative; tenant is to pay all costs for service through meter(s).]

Tenant hereby agrees to pay all charges for [gas or electrical or gas and electrical] service provided through the meter[s] for the leased premises, including charges for service for areas outside the leased premises.

[Second alternative: landlord is to become customer of record for tenant's meter and pay for all charges.]

Landlord shall become customer of record for the [gas meter or electrical meter or gas and electrical meters] and shall pay all charges for [gas or electrical or gas and electrical] service charged to [that meter or those meters], regardless of whether the service is for the Tenant's leased premises or any other areas.

[Third alternative: landlord is to arrange for separate metering of outside areas and is to become customer of record for those areas.]

Landlord shall, within [specify, e.g., one month] of the execution of this lease, arrange for the separate metering of [gas or electrical or gas and electrical] service currently provided through the meter[s] for the leased premises to areas outside the leased premises. Landlord shall become the customer of record for the meter[s] serving those outside areas and shall pay all charges for service charged to [it or them]. Until the separate metering commences, _____[specify interim payment arrangement, e.g., Landlord shall pay all charges for _____ (gas or electrical or gas and electrical) service charged to the meter(s) for the leased premises].

Landlord shall become customer of record for the [gas meter or electrical meter or gas and electrical meters]. Tenant hereby agrees to pay a sum equal to [specify, e.g., 50 percent] of all charges for [gas or electrical or gas and electrical] service charged to [that meter or those meters]. Landlord shall provide Tenant with a statement showing the full amount of charges no later than [specify date, e.g., the 15th day of each month during the lease term], and Tenant shall pay the agreed portion of those charges on the same date as the rental payments required in this lease.

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a lease provision that may be used when the tenant, before the execution of the lease, has inspected the premises and discovered defects that the landlord has agreed to repair. It may be used in lieu of a separate inspection sheet to note defects [see § 34B.281[2] for the California Association of Realtors sample inspection sheet]. For a lease clause providing for the use of an inspection checklist (but not granting the tenant a right to cancel the lease), see § 34B.200[2], P 8(b).

The form in [2], below, describes each repair to be made by the landlord and states the date by which it must be completed. If any of the repairs are not completed on time, the tenant has the right to cancel the lease or to continue it in effect with an abatement of rent.

PRACTICE TIP:

Tenant's Right to Cancel Should Be Carefully Considered by Landlord. A provision granting the tenant the right to cancel the lease should the landlord fail to complete the repairs when promised is a subject for negotiation. Generally, a landlord will not agree to this type of provision because a delay in making repairs may be outside of the landlord's reasonable control. However, if (1) the repairs are crucial to the tenant's use of the property and (2) the landlord does not have many other tenants vying for the property, the landlord may decide to accept this provision. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

§ 34B.265 Insurance for Tenant's Personal Property

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a lease clause that notifies the tenant that the landlord's insurance for the leased premises does not cover the tenant's personal property, and that the tenant is responsible for insuring his or her own personal property. Unless the lease provides otherwise, the tenant has no obligation to procure insurance against any risk for the landlord's benefit, and neither party ordinarily has an interest in the insurance proceeds obtained by the other on his or her separate insurable interest [Alexander v. Security-First Nat. Bank (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 718, 723, 62 P.2d 735 ; see Russell v. Williams (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 487, 491, 24 Cal. Rptr. 859, 374 P.2d 827] . Most landlords of residential property procure and maintain all casualty and liability insurance coverage, and it is up to the tenants to obtain renter's insurance for their personal property. When the parties agree to this type of arrangement, the lease need not even include an insurance provision. However, residential leases often contain a provision notifying the tenant that the landlord is not providing insurance for the tenant's personal property [see form in [2], below]. For a similar clause, see § 34B.202, P 31.

Notwithstanding the above-mentioned provisions, the lease may state that either or both parties will provide certain types of insurance and that the insurance will protect the interests of either or both parties. For lease provisions setting forth a variety of alternative arrangements for insurance, see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases .

§ 34B.280 Application to Rent/Screening Fee (CAR)

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form, prepared by the California Association of Realtors (CAR), includes a combination "Application to Rent" and "Screening Fee" [CAR Form LRA, displayed/reprinted with permission, CALIFORNIA ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS(R) endorsement not implied].

PRACTICE TIP:

Getting in Touch With the California Association of Realtors. The California Association of Realtors has offices throughout California. Their headquarters are located at 525 South Virgil Ave., Los Angeles, CA. 90020, (213) 739-8200, www.car.org. Generally, the Association will sell their forms in packages to both members and non-members. Some local Associations, however, will not sell to non-members. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

Part I of the form in [2], below, requests a great deal of information regarding the prospective tenant, including personal information, employment and income history, and credit and bank account information. By signing the application, the applicant authorizes the landlord (1) to verify the information given, and (2) to obtain a credit report on the prospective tenant.

Part II of the form in [2], below, to be completed by the landlord, manager, or agent, specifies that the applicant has paid a nonrefundable screening fee in the amount noted. The screening fee is applied to such items as obtaining credit reports and processing the application. It may not exceed $30.00, except that the fee may be adjusted annually commensurate with an increase in the Consumer Price Index, beginning on January 1, 1998 [Civ. Code § 1950.6(b); see § 34B.19].

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form, prepared by the California Association of Realtors (CAR), is an inspection sheet that is to indicate the condition of various items on the property, including the building's exterior, doors, walls, ceilings, floors, windows, light fixtures, and numerous other items [CAR Form MIMO, displayed/reprinted with permission, CALIFORNIA ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS(R) endorsement not implied].

PRACTICE TIP:

Getting in Touch With the California Association of Realtors. The California Association of Realtors has offices throughout California. Their headquarters are located at 525 South Virgil Ave., Los Angeles, CA. 90020, (213) 739-8200, www.car.org. Generally, the Association will sell their forms in packages to both members and non-members. Some local Associations, however, will not sell to non-members. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

The form is designed to record the condition of the premises when the tenant moves in and again when he or she moves out. It may be used by a prospective tenant to note any damage or other defects in the leased premises discovered during an inspection by the tenant before occupancy. If the tenant has inspected the premises before the lease is signed, this form may be attached to the lease and incorporated by reference [see § 34B.202[1][b] for discussion of adding modifications to a lease].

An alternative to the use of a checklist is a lease provision indicating that the tenant has inspected the premises (including all furnishings, fixtures, appliances, and similar items) and found them to be in good condition and working order, with the exception of any defects that are listed in the provision [see § 34B.264[2]].

PRACTICE TIP:

Inspection by Tenant After Lease Is Signed. Sometimes a tenant will not inspect the premises until after the lease is signed. This may happen, for example, if a tenant is moving from outside of the area and is not available to inspect the premises before signing the lease. In this event, after the lease is signed but before the tenant takes possession, the tenant and the landlord, or the landlord's agent, will do a walk-through of the property together and any defects will be noted on the inspection sheet which is then signed by both parties. For alternative language which incorporates this possibility, see §§ 34B.200[2], P 8(b), 34B.201[2], P 7(b). By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

If the landlord agrees to make specified repairs to the premises before the execution of the lease, those repairs should be described in the lease. The parties also may wish to state the date by which the landlord must complete the repairs. For an illustrative repair provision, see § 34B.200[2], P 8(b).

The condition of the premises at the time the tenant moves out will establish the basis for the landlord's returning or withholding a part or all of the security deposit [see § 34B.230[1] for discussion of security deposits].

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form sets forth the provisions of Civ. Code §§ 1941-1942.1, which impose requirements relating to the tenantable condition of real property. It is designed to be used in conjunction with the form set forth in § 34B.261[2], which is a lease clause providing that any disputes regarding the tenantable condition of the leased premises may (by application of either party to the lease) be submitted to arbitration. This type of arbitration agreement must include the provisions of Civ. Code §§ 1941-1942.1. Because those provisions are quite lengthy, it would not be practical to include them in a lease. Consequently, the clause set forth in § 34B.261[2] provides for the attachment to the lease of a separate document setting forth the provisions of Civ. Code §§ 1941-1942.1 (this form), and incorporates by reference the provisions of the separate document.

For further discussion of Civ. Code §§ 1941-1942.1, see § 34B.26[2].

Statutory Provisions Relating to Tenantable Condition of Leased Premises

ATTACHMENT _____

Civil Code Section 1941*:

The lessor of a building intended for the occupation of human beings must, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary, put it into a condition fit for such occupation, and repair all subsequent dilapidations thereof, which render it untenantable, except such as are mentioned in Civil Code Section 1929.

Civil Code Section 1941.1*:

A dwelling shall be deemed untenantable for purposes of Section 1941 if it substantially lacks any of the following affirmative standard characteristics or is a residential unit described in section 17920.3 or 17920.10 of the Health and Safety Code:

(a) Effective waterproofing and weather protection of roof and exterior walls, including unbroken windows and doors.

(b) Plumbing or gas facilities that conformed to applicable law in effect at the time of installation, maintained in good working order.

(c) A water supply approved under applicable law that is under the control of the tenant, capable of producing hot and cold running water, or a system that is under the control of the landlord, that produces hot and cold running water, furnished to appropriate fixtures, and connected to a sewage disposal system approved under applicable law.

(d) Heating facilities that conformed with applicable law at the time of installation, maintained in good working order.

(e) Electrical lighting, with wiring and electrical equipment that conformed with applicable law at the time of installation, maintained in good working order.

(f) Building, grounds, and appurtenances at the time of the commencement of the lease or rental agreement, and all areas under control of the landlord, kept in every part clean, sanitary, and free from all accumulations of debris, filth, rubbish, garbage, rodents, and vermin.

(g) An adequate number of appropriate receptacles for garbage and rubbish, in clean condition and good repair at the time of the commencement of the lease or rental agreement, with the landlord providing appropriate serviceable receptacles thereafter and being responsible for the clean condition and good repair of the receptacles under his or her control.

(h) Floors, stairways, and railings maintained in good repair.

(i) A locking mail receptacle provided for each residential unit in a residential hotel, as required by Health & Safety Code § 17958.3.

Civil Code Section 1941.2*:

(a) No duty on the part of the landlord to repair a dilapidation shall arise under Civil Code Section 1941 or Section 1942 if the tenant is in substantial violation of any of the following affirmative obligations, provided the tenant's violation contributes substantially to the existence of the dilapidation or interferes substantially with the landlord's obligation under Civil Code Section 1941 to effect the necessary repairs:

(1) To keep that part of the premises which he occupies and uses clean and sanitary as the condition of the premises permits.

(2) To dispose from his dwelling unit of all rubbish, garbage and other waste, in a clean and sanitary manner.

(3) To properly use and operate all electrical, gas and plumbing fixtures and keep them as clean and sanitary as their condition permits.

(4) Not to permit any person on the premises, with his permission, to willfully or wantonly destroy, deface, damage, impair or remove any part of the structure or dwelling unit or the facilities, equipment, or appurtenances thereto, nor himself do any such thing.

(5) To occupy the premises as his abode, utilizing portions thereof for living, sleeping, cooking or dining purposes only which were respectively designed or intended to be used for such occupancies.

(b) Paragraphs (1) and (2) of subdivision (a) shall not apply if the landlord has expressly agreed in writing to perform the act or acts mentioned therein.

Civil Code Section 1941.3*:

(a) On and after July 1, 1998, the landlord, or his or her agent, of a building intended for human habitation shall do all of the following:

(1) Install and maintain an operable dead-bolt lock on each main swinging entry door of a dwelling unit. The dead-bolt lock shall be installed in conformance with the manufacturer's specifications and shall comply with applicable state and local codes including, but not limited to, those provisions relating to fire and life safety and accessibility for the disabled. When in the locked position, the bolt shall extend a minimum of 13/16 of an inch in length beyond the strike edge of the door and protrude into the doorjamb.

This section shall not apply to horizontal sliding doors. Existing dead bolts of at least one-half inch in length shall satisfy the requirements of this section. Existing locks with a thumb-turn deadlock that have a strike plate attached to the doorjamb and a latch bolt that is held in a vertical position by a guard bolt, a plunger, or an auxiliary mechanism shall also satisfy the requirements of this section. These locks, however, shall be replaced with a dead bolt at least 13/16 of an inch in length the first time after July 1, 1998, that the lock requires repair or replacement.

Existing doors which cannot be equipped with dead-bolt locks shall satisfy the requirements of this section if the door is equipped with a metal strap affixed horizontally across the midsection of the door with a dead bolt which extends 13/16 of an inch in length beyond the strike edge of the door and protrudes into the doorjamb. Locks and security devices other than those described herein which are inspected and approved by an appropriate state or local government agency as providing adequate security shall satisfy the requirements of this section.

(2) Install and maintain operable window security or locking devices for windows that are designed to be opened. Louvered windows, casement windows, and all windows more than 12 feet vertically or six feet horizontally from the ground, a roof, or any other platform are excluded from this subdivision.

(3) Install locking mechanisms that comply with applicable fire and safety codes on the exterior doors that provide ingress or egress to common areas with access to dwelling units in multifamily developments. This paragraph does not require the installation of a door or gate where none exists on January 1, 1998.

(b) The tenant shall be responsible for notifying the owner or his or her authorized agent when the tenant becomes aware of an inoperable dead-bolt lock or window security or locking device in the dwelling unit. The landlord, or his or her authorized agent, shall not be liable for a violation of subdivision (a) unless he or she fails to correct the violation within a reasonable time after he or she either has actual notice of a deficiency or receives notice of a deficiency.

(c) On and after July 1, 1998, the rights and remedies of tenant for a violation of this section by the landlord shall include those available pursuant to Civil Code Sections 1942, 1942.4, and 1942.5, an action for breach of contract, and an action for injunctive relief pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 526. Additionally, in an unlawful detainer action, after a default in the payment of rent, a tenant may raise the violation of this section as an affirmative defense and shall have a right to the remedies provided by Code of Civil Procedure Section 1174.2.

(d) A violation of this section shall not broaden, limit, or otherwise affect the duty of care owed by a landlord pursuant to existing law, including any duty that may exist pursuant to Civil Code Section 1714. The delayed applicability of the requirements of subdivision (a) shall not affect a landlord's duty to maintain the premises in safe condition.

(e) Nothing in this section shall be construed to affect any authority of any public entity that may otherwise exist to impose any additional security requirements upon a landlord.

(f) This section shall not apply to any building which has been designated as historically significant by an appropriate local, state, or federal governmental jurisdiction.

(g) Subdivisions (a) and (b) shall not apply to any building intended for human habitation which is managed, directly or indirectly, and controlled by the Department of Transportation. This exemption shall not be construed to affect the duty of the Department of Transportation to maintain the premises of these buildings in a safe condition or abrogate any express or implied statement or promise of the Department of Transportation to provide secure premises. Additionally, this exemption shall not apply to residential dwellings acquired prior to July 1, 1997, by the Department of Transportation to complete construction of state highway routes 710 and 238 and related interchanges.

Civil Code Section 1941.4*:

The lessor of a building intended for the residential occupation of human beings shall be responsible for installing at least one usable telephone jack and for placing and maintaining the inside telephone wiring in good working order, shall ensure that the inside telephone wiring meets the applicable standards of the most recent National Electrical Code as adopted by the Electronic Industry Association, and shall make any required repairs. The lessor shall not restrict or interfere with access by the telephone utility to its telephone network facilities up to the demarcation point separating the inside wiring.

"Inside telephone wiring" for purposes of this section, means that portion of the telephone wire that connects the telephone equipment at the customer's premises to the telephone network at a demarcation point determined by the telephone corporation in accordance with orders of the Public Utilities Commission.

Civil Code Section 1942*:

(a) If within a reasonable time after written or oral notice to the landlord or his agent, as defined in subdivision (a) of Civil Code Section 1962, of dilapidations rendering the premises untenantable which the landlord ought to repair, the landlord neglects to do so, the tenant may repair the same himself where the cost of such repairs does not require an expenditure more than one month's rent of the premises and deduct the expenses of such repairs from the rent when due, or the tenant may vacate the premises, in which case the tenant shall be discharged from further payment of rent, or performance of other conditions as of the date of vacating the premises. This remedy shall not be available to the tenant more than twice in any 12-month period.

(b) For the purposes of this section, if a tenant acts to repair and deduct after the 30th day following notice, he is presumed to have acted after a reasonable time. The presumption established by this subdivision is a rebuttable presumption affecting the burden of producing evidence and shall not be construed to prevent a tenant from repairing and deducting after a shorter notice if all the circumstances require shorter notice.

(c) The tenant's remedy under subdivision (a) shall not be available if the condition was caused by the violation of Civil Code Section 1929 or 1941.2.

(d) The remedy provided by this section is in addition to any other remedy provided by this chapter, the rental agreement, or other applicable statutory or common law.

Civil Code Section 1942.1*:

Any agreement by a lessee of a dwelling waiving or modifying his rights under Civil Code Section 1941 or 1942 shall be void as contrary to public policy with respect to any condition which renders the premises untenantable, except that the lessor and the lessee may agree that the lessee shall undertake to improve, repair or maintain all or stipulated portions of the dwelling as part of the consideration for rental.

The lessor and lessee may, if an agreement is in writing, set forth the provisions of Civil Code Sections 1941-1942.1, inclusive, and provide that any controversy relating to a condition of the premises claimed to make them untenantable may by application of either party be submitted to arbitration, pursuant to the provisions of Title 9 (commencing with Section 1280), Part 3 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and that the costs of such arbitration shall be apportioned by the arbitrator between the parties.

§ 34B.284 Lead-Based Paint and Lead-Based Paint Hazards Disclosure (CAR)

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is designed to satisfy federally required disclosure requirements regarding exposure to lead-based paints in the leased premises. It is prepared by the California Association of Realtors (CAR) [CAR Form FLD, displayed/reprinted with permission, CALIFORNIA ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS(R) endorsement not implied].

PRACTICE TIP:

Getting in Touch With the California Association of Realtors. The California Association of Realtors has offices throughout California. Their headquarters are located at 525 South Virgil Ave., Los Angeles, CA. 90020, (213) 739-8200, www.car.org. Generally, the Association will sell their forms in packages to both members and non-members. Some local Associations, however, will not sell to non-members. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

If the premises were constructed before 1978, federal law requires the landlord to provide certain disclosures, records, and reports, and a federally approved lead information pamphlet to the tenant before the tenant obligates himself or herself under the lease [see 42 U.S.C. § 4852d; 24 C.F.R. § 35.80 et seq. (HUD); 40 C.F.R. § 745.100 et seq. (EPA)]. For a complete discussion of the federal laws pertaining to this disclosure requirement, see California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 170, The Premises: Duties and Liabilities (Matthew Bender).

Before a tenant signs a lease for a property constructed before 1978, the landlord must do all of the following [24 C.F.R. § 35.88(a); 40 C.F.R. § 745.107]:

- Provide the tenant with an Environmental Protection Agency approved lead hazard information pamphlet, such as "Protect Your Family From Lead in Your Home";

PRACTICE TIP:

Sources for Federally Required Pamphlet. Copies of the EPA-approved pamphlet "Protect Your Family From Lead in Your Home" (EPA 747-K-94-001) can be obtained from the Government Printing Office, (202) 512-1800, GPO Stock #055-000-00507-9 ($26 for 50 copies), or from the National Lead Information Center, (800) 424-5323. The pamphlet can also be obtained from the EPA web site on the Internet at http://www.epa.gov/opptintr/lead/leadpbed.htm. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

- Disclose to the tenant the presence of any known lead-based paint or lead-based paint hazards in the housing being leased, along with any additional information available concerning that paint or hazard, such as the basis for determining that the lead-based paint or hazard exists, its location, and the condition of the painted surfaces;

- Disclose to each agent involved in the transaction the presence of any known lead-based paint or lead-based paint hazards in the housing being leased and the existence of any available records or reports pertaining to that paint or hazards. The landlord must also disclose any additional information available concerning the known lead-based paint or hazards, such as the basis for determining that lead-based paint or hazards exist, its location, and the condition of the painted surfaces; and

- Provide the tenant with any records or reports available to the landlord pertaining to lead-based paint or lead-based paint hazards in the housing being leased. This includes records and reports regarding common areas, and other residential dwellings in multifamily housing, provided that the information is part of an evaluation or reduction of lead-based paint or hazards in the housing as a whole.

If any of the above disclosure activities occurs after the tenant has made an offer to lease the housing, the landlord must (1) complete the required disclosure activities before accepting the tenant's offer and (2) allow the tenant an opportunity to review the information and possibly amend the offer [24 C.F.R. § 35.88(b); 40 C.F.R. § 745.107(b)].

[c] Lease Attachment

Each lease subject to the lead-based disclosure requirements must include an attachment [see [2], below] containing the following six elements [see 24 C.F.R. § 35.92(b); 40 C.F.R. § 745.113(b)]:

- A Lead Warning Statement in prescribed language;

- A statement by the landlord that either (1) discloses the presence of known lead-based paint or lead-based paint hazards in the target housing being leased, or (2) indicates no knowledge of the presence of any lead-based paint or hazards. The landlord must also disclose any additional information available concerning the known lead-based paint or hazards (for example, the basis for determining that the paint or hazards exist in the housing, the location of the paint or hazards, and the condition of the painted surfaces);

- A list of any records or reports available to the landlord and provided to the tenant pertaining to lead-based paint or paint hazards in the housing. If no records or reports are available, the landlord must so indicate;

- The tenant's statement affirming receipt of the information described above, as well as an

EPA-approved lead hazard information pamphlet [see [b], above];

- When the landlord is represented by an agent, a statement that (1) the agent has informed the landlord of the landlord's disclosure obligations under 42 U.S.C. § 4852d, and (2) the agent is aware of his or her duty to ensure compliance with those requirements; and

- The signatures of all parties and agents certifying the accuracy of their statements to the best of their knowledge, along with the dates of signature.

Agents and landlords must retain copies of the completed attachment for no less than three years from the start of the leasing period [24 C.F.R. § 35.92(c); 40 C.F.R. § 745.113(c)].

§ 34B.285 Notice of Application for Permit to Demolish Residential Dwelling Unit

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a notice to be provided by a landlord to a current or prospective tenant if the landlord intends to apply for a permit to demolish the residential dwelling unit. The owner of a residential dwelling unit or the owner's agent who applies to any public agency for a permit to demolish the unit must give written notice of that fact to a prospective tenant before entering into a rental agreement, requiring or accepting payment for an application screening fee, requiring or accepting any other fees, and requiring or accepting any writings that would initiate a tenancy [Civ. Code § 1940.6(a)(1)]. The owner or owner's agent must also give written notice to current tenants before applying to the public agency for the permit to demolish the residential dwelling unit. This requirement includes tenants who have entered into a rental agreement but not yet taken possession of the dwelling unit [Civ. Code § 1940.6(a)(2)]. The notice must include the earliest possible approximate date on which the owner expects the demolition to occur and the approximate date on which the owner will terminate the tenancy. The demolition may not occur before the earliest possible approximate date noticed [Civ. Code § 1940.6(b)].

For additional discussion, see § 34B.24[10].

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a notice of the right to request an inspection of a tenant's premises before the tenancy is terminated. Within a reasonable time after notification of either party's intention to terminate the tenancy, or before the end of the lease term, the landlord must notify the tenant in writing of his or her option to request an initial inspection and of his or her right to be present at the inspection [Civ. Code § 1950.5(f)(1)]. The purpose of the initial inspection is to allow the tenant an opportunity to remedy identified deficiencies in order to avoid deductions from the security. If the tenant chooses not to request an initial inspection, the landlord's duties with regard to that inspection are discharged [Civ. Code § 1950.5(f)(1)]. The landlord must give at least 48 hours prior written notice of the date and time of the inspection if either a mutual time is agreed on or if a mutually agreed time cannot be scheduled but the tenant still wishes an inspection. The tenant and landlord may agree to forgo the 48-hour prior written notice by both signing a written waiver. The landlord may proceed with the inspection whether the tenant is present or not, unless the tenant previously withdrew his or her request for the inspection [Civ. Code § 1950.5(f)(1)].

Based on the initial inspection, the landlord must give the tenant an itemized statement specifying repairs or cleaning that are proposed to be the basis of any deductions from the security. This statement must include the texts of Civ. Code § 1950.5(b)(1)-(4) concerning the permissible uses of the security deposit [Civ. Code § 1950.5(f)(2)]. The tenant must be given the opportunity during the period following the initial inspection until termination of the tenancy to remedy the identified deficiencies in order to avoid deductions from the security [Civ. Code § 1950.5(f)(3)]. These provisions do not prohibit a landlord from using the security for any permissible purpose that occurs between completion of the initial inspection and termination of the tenancy or that was not identified during the initial inspection due to the presence of a tenant's possessions [Civ. Code § 1950.5(f)(5)].

These initial inspection requirements do not apply when the tenancy is terminated pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2), (3) or (4) (unlawful detainer) [Civ. Code § 1950.5(f)(1); see § 35B.44 for discussion of unlawful detainer proceedings].

For further discussion and additional forms relating to security deposits, see §§ 34B.230-34B.234.

Notice of Right to Request Inspection Before Termination of Tenancy

NOTICE OF RIGHT TO REQUEST INSPECTION BEFORE TERMINATION OF TENANCY

TO: _____[name of lessee/tenant]
_____[street address]
_____[city, state, zip]

This notice is given in compliance with Civil Code Section 1950.5. This notice relates to certain residential real property (hereafter referred to as the "Rental Property") described as follows: _____[insert description, e.g., Apartment No. 1 of the building located at _____ (insert address, city, state, and zip code)]. This notice is to inform _____[name of tenant] ("you"), as a current tenant of the Rental Property, that you have the right to request an inspection of the premises before termination of the [rental agreement or lease]. On your request, and no earlier than two weeks before the end of the lease date, Landlord will make an initial inspection of the premises and provide you with an itemized statement specifying the repairs and cleaning proposed to be deducted from the security deposit you made on the Rental Property. You may remedy the identified deficiencies before the end of the lease date in order to avoid the itemized deductions from the security deposit. Landlord will give you at least 48 hours written notice of the inspection, unless you and landlord sign a written agreement to waive the 48-hour requirement.

Admitted to the California State Bar in 1977, Ms. Pierce practiced law for 10 years, specializing in real estate law. Her experience includes supervising the legal staff of a real estate law department for a major, multistate retailer. She has also worked as a residential real estate broker and is now a full time free lance writer.

(n50)Footnote . Myron Moskovitz is a Professor of Law at Golden Gate University School of Law in San Francisco. He received his law degree from Boalt Hall in 1964. In 1965, he served as a law clerk to Justice Ray Peters of the California Supreme Court. From 1966-1967, he was the directing attorney of the Marysville Office of California Rural Legal Assistance and between 1968 and 1972 served as the Chief Attorney for the National Housing Law Project.

Professor Moskovitz is the author of several publications including Winning an Appeal (Michie 1985), California Eviction Defense Manual (Cal. C.E.B. 1992), and CASES AND PROBLEMS IN CRIMINAL PROCEDURE (Matthew Bender 1995). He has litigated cases at both the trial and appellate level, including the California and United States Supreme Court.

(n51)Footnote . Benjamin Kaplan received his law degree from Hastings College of Law in 1968. He has been in private practice since that time with an office in San Francisco. He has served as the tenant's attorney for the Berkeley Tenants Union and as the lead attorney for the Haight-Ashbury Legal Project and the Tenant's Action Group. He was the first instructor in landlord-tenant law at the People's Law School in San Francisco.

Mr. Kaplan's practice has been primarily devoted to real estate and business litigation with a pronounced concentration in landlord-tenant and lease litigation. Since 1971, he has primarily represented the legal interests of landowners and lessors. He is a lecturer for the Continuing Education of the Bar and The Rutter Group in landlord-tenant law. He was also the first landlord's Chairperson of the State Bar Landlord-Tenant Committee of the Real Property Law Section of the State Bar and was subsequently a member of the Executive Committee of the Real Property Law Section.

This chapter covers retail, industrial, and office leases. Complete lease forms are provided for a percentage lease for retail purposes, a partially net industrial lease, and an office lease in a multitenant building. Discussion of the law applicable to these leases is included in the Legal Background and in the comments to the forms.

Also included in this chapter are discussion and forms for alternative and additional provisions to be used in commercial leases. Optional provisions are provided for frequently negotiated issues such as assignment and subletting, insurance matters, and use restrictions.

The terms "landlord" and "tenant," rather than their equivalents, "lessor" and "lessee," are used throughout this chapter. Retail, industrial, and office leases are referred to collectively as "nonresidential leases." Unless otherwise indicated, the requirements discussed throughout the chapter apply equally to retail, industrial, and office leases.

The former title of this chapter, Commercial, Industrial, and Office Leases, has been modified by changing "Commercial" to "Retail." The term "commercial" is a broad category that would include many forms of nonresidential leases including retail, industrial, and office leases. The new title describes the chapter's contents more specifically.

The income tax implications of leasing real property from both the landlord's and the tenant's point of view are beyond the scope of this chapter. For a thorough discussion of these issues, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, Ch. 190, Taxation of Landlords , and Ch. 191, Taxation of Tenants (Matthew Bender).

Shopping center leases are covered in Ch. 34E, Shopping Centers: Leasing and Operation . Other types of leases are covered in Ch. 34B, Residential Leases , Ch. 34D, Ground Leases , Ch. 36, Oil and Gas Rights and Leases , and Ch. 37, Farm Leases . For discussion and forms related to leases, see Ch. 34A, Prelease Forms , Ch. 35A, Assignment and Sublease of Leasehold Interests , Ch. 35B, Modification and Termination of Leases , and Ch. 38, Real Property

§ 34C.10 Attorney's Role in Lease Negotiations

The attorney's role in negotiations between a landlord and a tenant for a retail, industrial, or office lease may involve the following:

- Drafting or reviewing the lease;
- Negotiating the lease's terms; or
- Advising the client about specific terms of the lease.

These same functions may apply to other lease related documents, including, for example, a subordination, nondisturbance, and attornment agreement. The extent of the attorney's involvement depends on a number of factors, including the following:

- The state of lease negotiations;
- The lease's complexity; and
- The client's bargaining power, knowledge, and level of business sophistication.

The attorney may also become involved in lease negotiations if he or she represents related parties such as an assignee of either the landlord or tenant, a subtenant, or a lender to whom a security interest in the lease is being given.

PRACTICE TIP:

Make Sure Client Is Advised of Each Position Taken. Attorneys have traditionally been regarded in the business community as "beavers" who get into the flowing water and dam things up. If your client is heavily invested in obtaining a lease, the positions you take on that client's behalf, regardless of how well advised, are not going to be satisfactory if the landlord leaves the negotiating table to you alone. Therefore, you should be quite sure, at every stage of negotiations, that the client is advised of each position you are taking on any particular issue. You should be clear as to whether your client regards adherence to your position as a "deal breaker" and that the client is prepared to support you if the deal falls apart. Thus, before commencing negotiations on behalf of a client the attorney should obtain the following two things:

- Explicit and as detailed as possible instructions, inclusive of financial terms; and
- Maximum knowledge of the property and premises involved.

§ 34C.11 Use of Standard Forms

[1] Industry-Wide Preprinted Forms

Although printed lease forms are often used in residential transactions [see Ch. 34B, Residential Leases, § 34B.202 (California Association of Realtors printed lease form)], they are used less frequently in nonresidential transactions. Typically, printed lease forms for nonresidential transactions are used only for tenants leasing a relatively small amount of space for a short term. Furthermore, even if a printed lease form is used, the parties and their attorneys should examine each provision carefully to determine whether it expresses each party's intent, and consider whether all necessary or advisable provisions have been included.

Preprinted lease forms for nonresidential leases are published by the California Association of Realtors and are often used by the larger commercial real estate brokerage firms.

PRACTICE TIP:

Getting in Touch With the California Association of Realtors. The California Association of Realtors has offices throughout California. Their headquarters are located at 525 South Virgil Ave., Los Angeles, CA. 90020, (213) 739-8200. Generally, the Association will sell their forms in packages to both members and non-members. Some local Associations, however, will not sell to non-members. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

PRACTICE TIP: Using the "Preprinted Form." The "preprinted form" is often a negotiating technique designed to provide some impression of immutability. Such a form should be immediately document scanned into your computer. Often times at the commencement of serious interest, as expressed in a particular premise by viewing it, the prospective tenant should request a copy of the "standard form lease." In one instance involving our own offices, this was done and produced a 30 plus page form. The length of the form was not important, but the content certainly was. "Hidden" in what was an absolutely "standard" condemnation clause was a provision by which the landlord, a quasi-governmental corporation, had written a "thirty day" termination clause. Obviously, one would want that kicked from the lease, before going through the hassle of lease negotiations and hiring space planners. If we had not seen the lease until we had invested much effort and money into the premises, which the landlord knew, it would have been harder for us to deal with it. Instead, our prospective landlord said, "You caught us, we will take it out. The "M" legal department in the building missed it, but you guys caught it." This did not raise our level of confidence in the integrity of the persons with whom we were dealing, who incidentally were part of a major real estate brokerage.

This leads to another tip, which is to say if your prospective landlord or tenant pulls something that stinks, then they probably do themselves. In our instance, we requested a lease with a five-year term and a five-year option, and were told "we can give you a 4-4." When we finally received the final lease it was a "4-1". At that point, having expended thousands of dollars on space planners, not to mention negotiations, I informed the brokers that I was not going to sue them because I did not even want to be in the same courtroom as them. However, it is one thing to have this happen to oneself, it is another thing to have it happen to a client. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[2] Landlord's Standard Lease Forms

Landlords of multitenant buildings often create their own standard lease forms to avoid drafting a new lease for each tenant, and to minimize discrepancies among the various leases. Obviously, since such standard forms will be landlord oriented, a tenant's attorney should examine each provision carefully.

If the form requires extensive changes, the tenant's attorney may elect to redraft the lease. Deciding which side will have the primary responsibility for drafting the lease is sometimes a major negotiating hurdle in a lease negotiation. If the proposed changes are minor, the attorney may follow common practice by drafting the modifications in a separate rider or addendum to the standard lease form. In this event, the attorney should exercise caution to avoid internal inconsistencies between the standard lease form and the rider or addendum.

PRACTICE TIP:

Use Introductory Clause in Addendums. Although it is best to avoid internal inconsistencies between the standard lease form and the addendum, know that for purposes of interpretation typewritten provisions control over printed ones and handwritten provisions control over typewritten ones. It is best to have an introductory clause in the addendum that is to the effect that "if there is any inconsistency between the provisions of the Lease and the provisions of the addendum, then the provisions of the addendum control" [see Civ. Code § 1651]. By Benjamin Kaplan.

§ 34C.12 Lease as Both Conveyance and Contract

A lease is both a conveyance and a contract [Ellingson v. Walsh, O'Connor & Barneson (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 673, 675, 104 P.2d 507] . This dual character creates two distinct sets of rights and obligations. One set arises from the relationship of landlord and tenant created by the conveyance aspects of the lease and is based on "privity of estate." The other set arises from the express contractual stipulations of the lease and is based on "privity of contract" [Samuels v. Ottinger (1915) 169 Cal. 209, 211, 146 P. 638 ; Medico-Dental etc. Co. v. Horton & Converse (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 411, 418, 132 P.2d 457] . § 34C.13 Agreement to Lease

[1] Enforcement

Potential parties to a nonresidential lease may enter into what is known as "an agreement to lease." An agreement to lease will be enforced as a lease if it contains all the essential terms of a lease, and if the parties intended to be bound without executing a formal lease [Levin v. Saroff (1921) 54 Cal. App. 285, 289-291, 201 P. 961 ; see Gavina v. Smith (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 501, 503-505, 154 P.2d 681] . The essential terms of a lease are the following [Levin v. Saroff (1921) 54 Cal. App. 285, 289, 201 P. 961] :

- There must be a definite agreement as to the extent and boundary of the property leased;
- There must be a definite and agreed term; and
- There must be a definite and agreed price of rental, including the time and manner of payment.

An agreement to lease can be enforced as a lease even though the parties never executed a contemplated formal lease [Pacific Improvement Co. v. Jones (1912) 164 Cal. 260, 263-264, 128 P. 404] . However, the agreement to lease itself must be in writing and signed by the party to be charged if the intended term of the lease is longer than one year [Wolfsen v. W. L. Hathaway (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 632, 639, 198 P.2d 1 ; see Civ. Code § 1624(a)(3) (statute of frauds)].

The fact that the location of the premises is not stated in the agreement is irrelevant if the tenant has entered into possession, and the description of the commencement of the lease's term is sufficient if it is to start when construction is finished on improvements on the property [City of Santa Cruz v. MacGregor (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 45, 53, 2 Cal. Rptr. 727 ; see Pike v. Hayden (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 606, 612-613, 218 P.2d 578] . Possession by the tenant [City of Santa Cruz v. MacGregor (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 45, 54, 2 Cal. Rptr. 727] and payment of rent by the tenant [Pacific Improvement Co. v. Jones (1912) 164 Cal. 260, 264-265, 128 P. 404] are indications that a lease was intended. However, the wrongful entry on real property by potential tenants, after notice of the invalidity of their claim and of the fact that the land had been leased to other persons, is not sufficient to render an otherwise invalid oral lease enforceable [Wolfsen v. W. L. Hathaway (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 632, 647, 198 P.2d 1] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Letters of Intent. Typically an agreement to lease, also known as a "Letter of Intent" (LOI) may well contain all the essential terms required for an enforceable lease [see Ch. 34A, Prelease Forms, § 34A.225[2] (complete LOI form)]. Therefore, appropriate language must be included therein to insure that no issue regarding the enforceability of a LOI will arise. Such suggested language includes the following:

Tenant and Landlord acknowledge that they do not intend this Letter of Intent to be construed as a Lease, or to be bound by its terms except for the period while negotiations are taking place to implement this Letter of Intent. A Lease will not exist unless and until the parties have executed a formal written agreement containing all terms approved by their respective representatives and containing all essential items of the agreed-upon transaction. The parties acknowledge that they have neither set forth herein, nor agreed upon all essential terms relating to the Lease of the Premises, including without limitation, covenants, conditions, warranties and representations, conditions precedent, conditions subsequent, indemnities, insurance provisions, assignment and subletting, and other anticipated terms, and that all such essential terms will be the subject of further negotiations. Tenant and Landlord further acknowledge that it would be imprudent and unreasonable to rely upon the expectation of entering a Lease regarding the Premises. Further, efforts by either party to complete due diligence, negotiate, and obtain the services of design and construction consultants, computer installation specialists, or other associated experts and specialists on office design and improvements, or to prepare the Lease shall not be considered as evidence of intent by either party to be bound by the terms of this Letter of Intent. Finally, the performance of either party, prior to execution of a formal written Lease, of any of the obligations which may be included in a Lease between the parties when negotiations are completed shall not be considered as evidence of intent by either party to be bound by the terms of this Letter of Intent.

By Benjamin Kaplan.

[2] Agreement to Lease in Future

An agreement to lease in the future will not be construed as a present lease if it can be shown that the parties did not intend the agreement to be a present lease [Potter v. Mercer (1879) 53 Cal. 667, 672-674 , overruled on other grounds, Jordan v. Talbot (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 597, 608, 12 Cal. Rptr. 488, 361 P.2d 20 ; Regalia v. Mariani (1929) 100 Cal. App. 1, 5-6, 279 P. 455] , or if the agreement is too uncertain and incomplete because it lacks a date for commencement or a specified term [Martin v. Hall (1933) 219 Cal. 334, 338-339, 26 P.2d 288] . When a document recited, among other things, "the term of this lease shall be for a period of 10 years, commencing on the date of acquisition of title by Landlord," it was inferred by the court that the parties probably intended the document to be a binding lease without the execution of any other instrument and held to be a valid lease for a term to commence in the future [Corson v. Brown Motel Investments, Inc. (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 422, 426, 151 Cal. Rptr. 385] . However, the fact that the potential tenant has entered into possession does not necessarily mean that the agreement will be construed as a present lease [Regalia v. Mariani (1929) 100 Cal. App. 1, 5, 279 P. 455] .

§ 34C.14 Formal Requirements for Lease

Since a nonresidential lease is both a conveyance and a contract, it must generally comply with the requirements applicable to both [see § 34C.12]. As a conveyance (or "grant," as it is called in the Civil Code [see Civ. Code § 1053]), a lease must be in writing if it is for a term longer than one year [Civ. Code §§ 1091, 1624(a)(3); Code Civ. Proc. § 1971], and is not effective until it is delivered unconditionally [Civ. Code §§ 1054, 1056]. As a contract, a lease requires parties capable of contracting, the parties' consent, a lawful object, and a sufficient cause or consideration [Civ. Code § 1550].

For a general discussion of the essential terms needed to create an enforceable lease, including an adequate description of the property leased, the term of the lease, identification of the parties, and the amount of rent, see the Legal Background of Ch. 34B, Residential Leases. That chapter also contains further discussion of the requirement that a lease with a term longer than one year be in writing.

§ 34C.15 Description of Leased Premises

[1] Extent and Boundary of Property

A lease is required to contain a definite agreement as to the extent and boundary of the property to be leased [City of Santa Cruz v. MacGregor (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 45, 53, 2 Cal. Rptr. 727 ; Beckett v. City of Paris Dry Goods Co. (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 633, 637, 96 P.2d 122] . However, the extent of the leased premises, when ambiguous, may be established by the conduct of the parties [Golden West Baseball Company v. City of Anaheim (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 11, 41, n.32, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 378] . For example, an ambiguous or uncertain description may be cured by the tenant's taking possession and paying the stipulated rent when the parties' actions relate to particular premises [Beckett v. City of Paris Dry Goods Co. (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 633, 637, 96 P.2d 122 ; see Cal-Am Corp. v. Department of Real Estate (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 453, 458, 163 Cal. Rptr. 729] . If the lease fails entirely to describe the property, parol evidence may not be used to supply the necessary description, notwithstanding the fact that the tenant has taken possession [Kingston v. Colburn (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 623, 624, 293 P.2d 805] .

For an option to lease additional space or a right of first refusal to lease additional space, see §§ 34C.213 and 34C.214, respectively.

[2] Appurtenances and Easements

As a general rule, everything that belongs to or is used with, and appurtenant to, the leased premises and is "reasonably essential to their enjoyment" passes as incident to them, unless specifically reserved [Owsley v. Hamner (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 710, 717, 227 P.2d 263 ; Froomer v. Drollinger (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 90, 96-98, 19 Cal. Rptr. 891] . For a lease of a part of a building, the lease passes with it, as an incident thereto, everything necessarily used with or reasonably necessary to the enjoyment of the part leased. When a store is leased, everything then in use for the store, as an incident or appurtenance, passes by the lease [Owsley v. Hamner (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 710, 716, 227 P.2d 263] . A lease of an entire house or building is a lease of the land on which the building stands, at least as far as needed for its support. A lease of an entire house or building also includes the adjacent land belonging to the landlord that is used with the building as necessary to its proper occupation for the purpose for which it was intended [Bachenheimer v. Palm Springs etc. (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 580, 588, 254 P.2d 153] . A thing is deemed to be incidental or appurtenant to land when it is by right used with the land for its benefit, as in the case of a way or watercourse, or of a passage for light, air, or heat from or across the land of another [Civ. Code § 662].

Rights of ingress and egress pass to the tenant, even though they are not specifically mentioned in the lease and the word "appurtenances" is not included as part of the description of the leased premises [Mayer v. Hazzard (1935) 10 Cal. App. 2d 1, 3, 51 P.2d 189] . For example, a driveway on an adjoining lot was held to be a necessary appurtenance to the lease of a building and a shed behind it when the driveway was the most practical method of obtaining access to the shed for deliveries [Ng v. Warren (1947) 79 Cal. App. 2d 54, 61-62, 179 P.2d 41] . When a lease does not expressly create an easement, one may pass to the tenant by implication either from reasonable necessity or from the manifest intention of the parties [Sierad v. Lilly (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 770, 774, 22 Cal. Rptr. 580 (parties' actions evidenced intent to include adjacent parking spaces)].

The phrase, "reasonably essential to their enjoyment" is the crucial part of the general rule [Froomer v. Drollinger (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 90, 98, 19 Cal. Rptr. 891] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Lease Should Clearly Describe Appurtenances and Easements. To avoid disputes over which rights are included, by implication, in the lease as reasonably essential to the enjoyment of the premises, the lease should clearly set forth both the appurtenances and easements, if any, intended to pass, and the appurtenances and easements, if any, that are excepted or reserved. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

For a nonexclusive parking easement on adjoining land owned by the landlord, see § 34C.233.

[1] Primary and Option Terms

The complete lease forms for retail [see § 34C.200[2]], industrial [see § 34C.201[2]], and office [see § 34C.202[2]] purposes each provide for a fixed term and therefore create a tenancy for years. A tenancy for years is one for a definite period, which may be less than a year. It terminates at the end of the stated term without any requirement of notice [Camp v. Matich (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 660, 665, 197 P.2d 345] . For a discussion of the different types of tenancies that may be created under a lease and applicable statutory presumptions that apply when a term is not explicitly stated in a lease, see the Legal Background in Ch. 34B, Residential Leases.

For discussion and forms relating to specific commencement dates of the term and for an option to extend the term of the lease, see §§ 34C.210 (term to commence on occurrence of specified condition), 34C.211 (term to commence on completion of construction by landlord), and 34C.212 (option to extend term).

PRACTICE TIP:

Using Option Provisions. The exercise and enforcement of option provisions provide fertile grounds for disputes and potential litigation. A number of options as drafted are illusory as they fail to contain the same specifications required of an enforceable lease. Often the amount of rental payment is left to further agreement without any objective criteria in place to be used as a standard. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[2] Holdover Provision

The complete lease forms included in this chapter [see §§ 34C.200[2], 34C.201[2], 34C.202[2]] contain a holdover provision which provides that if the tenant remains in possession of the premises after expiration of the lease term, the tenancy under the lease is considered to be a month-to-month, or periodic, tenancy [see also Ch. 34B, Residential Leases, § 34B.221 (sample holdover provision)]. Holdover provisions are based on the statutory provision that when a tenant remains in possession after expiration of the lease and the landlord accepts rent, the parties are presumed to have renewed the lease on the same terms and for the same time, which may not exceed one month when the rent is payable monthly or one year in any other case [see Civ. Code § 1945].

PRACTICE TIP:

Landlords Should Use Care When Dealing With Holdovers. A tenant who remains in possession of the premises after the expiration of a lease for a term of years, but without the permission and consent of the landlord is not "a holdover tenant." A landlord who demands payment from such a person after the expiration of the term will establish a new tenancy, possibly not even under the same terms and conditions of the previous lease which has already expired. Therefore, because a landlord will usually have many protections under the preceding lease which would not exist under an oral tenancy agreement (e.g., no right of tenant to assign or sublet), a landlord should conduct himself or herself with great care and discretion in dealing with a holdover tenant. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[1] Definition

The term "net lease," although not a legal term, is commonly used in the real estate industry in the context of nonresidential leases. As one commentator on the characteristics of these leases has explained, "[a] net lease presumes the landlord will receive a fixed rent, without deduction for repairs, taxes, insurance, or any other charges, other than landlords' income taxes. Accordingly, the repair clause requires the tenant to make all repairs, inside and out, structural and otherwise, as well as all necessary replacements of the improvements on the premises (and to comply with all legal requirements affecting these improvements during the term). A lease is not 'net,' as this term is used in long-term leases, if the tenant's repair obligations are less than these" [1 Friedman on Leases (3d ed. 1990) Repairs, § 10.8, pp. 672-673]. The economic exchange supporting such "net" leases has been succinctly described as one under which "the landlord foregoes the speculative advantages of ownership in return for the agreed net rental. The tenant, in turn, gambles on the continued value of the location and the improvements ... and assumes all risks in connection therewith." (Van Doren, Some Suggestions for the Drafting of Long Term Net and Percentage Leases (1951) 51 Colum. L. Rev. 186) [Brown v. Green (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 812, 827, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 598, 884 P.2d 55] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Be Aware of Different Terminology. When the tenant is required under the lease to pay all of the above items, the lease is commonly referred to as a "true net lease" or a "triple-net lease." When the tenant is responsible for payment of only one or two of the expense items, the lease may be referred to as "partially net."

The counterpart of a net lease is a "gross" lease. Under a gross lease, the rent to the landlord is gross, that is, the landlord must pay from the rent all taxes, operating expenses, and insurance for the property. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

PRACTICE TIP: True Net Leases Are More Common in Leases of Freestanding Buildings. True net leases are common when a landlord leases a freestanding building to a single tenant for a retail, industrial, or office purpose. They are probably less common in leases of space in multitenant buildings, although some landlords do require net leases in which each tenant agrees to pay, from the time the lease commences and throughout the lease term, a pro rata share of the landlord's total operating expenses (including taxes and insurance) for the property. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

PRACTICE TIP: Leases of Multitenant Buildings Tend to be Hybrid of Net and Gross Leases. Most leases for space in a multitenant building fall between the two extremes of net and gross. Leases in this category require the tenant to pay a pro rata share of any increase in the landlord's operating expenses for the building. The increase may be measured against a base year agreed on by the parties, for example, the first year of the lease, or against a specific dollar amount agreed on by the parties, for example, the dollar amount of operating expenses for the first year of the lease term. Unlike a true net lease in which the tenant begins paying operating expenses at the beginning of the lease term, under these leases the tenant begins paying only at a subsequent time designated in the lease for determining the amount of any increase in the landlord's operating expenses, and then at regular intervals thereafter. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

PRACTICE TIP: Gross Nonresidential Leases Are Rare. Few nonresidential leases, with the exception of some office leases, are gross leases. In contrast, most residential leases, with the exception of some with a substantially long term, are gross leases. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

[2] Purpose

The triple-net or true net lease entitles the landlord to rent net of costs for maintenance, repair, replacement, insurance, and taxes [see Brown v. Green (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 812, 827, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 598, 884 P.2d 55] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Triple-net Lease Can Benefit Landlord. A triple-net lease protects the landlord against the rising costs of owning the property, since the tenant is responsible for paying all expenses of the property. For an owner seeking minimal management responsibilities, it can also provide a return on his or her investment without the active responsibilities of day-to-day management. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

PRACTICE TIP: Advantages of Triple-Net Lease to Tenant. From the standpoint of the tenant, a long-term net lease can be viewed as a financing device that gives the tenant the advantages of ownership without the investment of capital or direct obligation under a deed of trust. For example, a net lease may provide an attractive arrangement for a manufacturing company that needs all of its available capital for the purchase of expensive heavy equipment and cannot afford an initial outlay of cash for the outright purchase of property for its manufacturing plant. The long-term net lease may be used for an existing building or in a transaction in which either the landlord or the tenant is to build improvements on the real property. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

[1] Statutory Prohibition

A public entity cannot enforce or enact any measure constituting commercial rental control because the State of California has completely preempted the field [Civ. Code § 1954.27(a); see Civ. Code §§ 1954.25-1954.31; see also Civ. Code §§ 1954.27(b), 1954.28-1954.30 (clarifying application of prohibition to related laws)]. For these purposes, "commercial rental control" includes any action of a public entity taken by governmental enactment to establish, continue, implement, or enforce any control or system of controls on the price at which, or the term for which, commercial real property may be offered for rent, or that would designate a specific tenant, person, or entity with whom the owner must negotiate on the formation, extension, or renewal of a tenancy [Civ. Code § 1954.26(f)]. It should be noted that an appellate court upheld the constitutionality of a local commercial rent control ordinance before the enactment of the current statute prohibiting commercial rent control [see Rue-Ell Enterprises, Inc. v. City of Berkeley (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 81, 83, 194 Cal. Rptr. 919] .

For further discussion of rent control, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, Ch. 171, Rent and Rent Control (Matthew Bender), and CALIFORNIA FORMS OF PLEADING AND PRACTICE, Ch. 335, Landlord and Tenant: Rent Control (Matthew Bender).

[2] Permitted Local Ordinances

Notwithstanding the statutory prohibition against commercial rent control [see [1], above], a public entity may, by the enactment of an ordinance or similar law, establish a procedure that requires the tenant and landlord to provide specified notices relating to the pending expiration of the term of a lease of commercial real property [see Civ. Code § 1954.31]. However, the local enactment may not do any of the following [Civ. Code § 1954.31(c); see Civ. Code § 1954.31(a)(3)]:

- Provide for any extension of the term of a lease without the written consent of the owner and the tenant;

- Require either party to extend, renew, or negotiate an extension or renewal of the lease;
- Prohibit an action to recover possession by ejectment, unlawful detainer, or any other lawful means; or
- Provide for a remedy other than actual damages for a bad faith failure to comply with the enactment.

Furthermore, the local enactment will not apply to any lease or rental agreement that [Civ. Code § 1954.31(d)(1)]

- Is not in writing;
- Constitutes a tenancy at will;
- Is for a term of less than one year or for an unspecified term; or
- Is a month-to-month tenancy or a tenancy at sufferance.

§ 34C.19 Hazardous Substance Laws

[1] Lease Provisions

Various state and federal statutes impose requirements on the owner or possessor of property with respect to the presence, release, storage, and use or handling of certain hazardous substances and materials [see, e.g., 42 U.S.C. § 9601 et seq. (Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act of 1980 (CERCLA)); Health & Safety Code § 25300 et seq. (Hazardous Substances Account Act)]. Many of these requirements relate to disclosures and reporting [see, e.g., Health & Safety Code §§ 25359.7, 25915-25919.7]; others are prohibitions against release and requirements for cleanup and removal of the hazardous substances or materials [see, e.g., Health & Safety Code §§ 25320, 25321].

The parties to a nonresidential lease must be aware of these requirements not only for purposes of their own compliance, but also in case they decide to confirm or expand the respective responsibilities of either party in the lease itself. For example, a tenant may negotiate for an agreement by the landlord to indemnify the tenant against damage, loss, or liability arising from the presence of any hazardous or toxic substances not caused by the tenant [see § 34C.201[2], Section 4.01].

Alternatively, a landlord may prohibit the tenant from engaging in any use of the leased property that involves the use of toxic or hazardous substances [see § 34C.201[2], Section 4.01]. The parties also may want to include a lease provision that addresses the issue of who must perform and pay for any required cleanup or removal of a hazardous substance. For example, if a tenant will make its own improvements to the building, the tenant may negotiate for a lease provision that requires the landlord to pay for removing any asbestos that the tenant encounters in the building during the construction process.

For a discussion of responsibility as between tenant and landlord for complying with government mandated orders (for example, asbestos abatement) and of the judicial construction of typical "compliance with law" lease provisions, see § 34C.241[1].

For detailed coverage of hazardous substances laws, including disclosure requirements pertaining to asbestos, see CALIFORNIA ENVIRONMENTAL LAW AND LAND USE PRACTICE, Chs. 50- 59 (Matthew Bender).

PRACTICE TIP:

Toxins. You have to obtain some knowledge of the operation of your client's business. Visiting your clients current operation is therefore always helpful. It may not initially dawn on you, until you smell the smells, and see the materials, that your client has a number of materials that are toxic or hazardous. This gives rise to a great many potential issues including the disposal thereof, and the cost of disposal. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[2] Compliance Issues

[a] Written Disclosure Requirements

Any owner of nonresidential real property who knows, or has reasonable cause to believe, that any "release" [see [c], below] of hazardous substances has come to be located on or beneath that real property must, before the sale, lease, or rental of the real property by that owner, give written notice of that condition to each buyer or tenant of the real property [Health & Safety Code § 25359.7(a)]. Failure to give that notice when required subjects the owner to actual damages and any other remedies provided by law. When the owner has actual knowledge of the presence of any release of a material amount of a hazardous substance, the knowing and willful failure to give the notice subjects the owner to a civil penalty [Health & Safety Code § 25359.7(a)].

Any tenant of real property who knows or has reasonable cause to believe that any release of a hazardous substance has come or will come to be located on or beneath that real property must, within a reasonable period of time either before the release or following the discovery by the tenant of the presence or believed presence of the hazardous substance release, give written notice of that condition to the owner of the real property or to the landlord under the tenant's lease or rental agreement [Health & Safety Code § 25359.7(b)]. A tenant who fails to provide written notice to the owner or landlord when required by the statute is subject to actual damages and any other remedy provided by law [Health & Safety Code § 25359.7(b)(1)]. If the tenant has knowledge of the presence of a release of a material amount of a hazardous substance, or of a hazardous substance release that is required to be reported to a state or local agency, on or under the real property leased or rented by the tenant and knowingly and willfully fails to provide written notice to the owner or landlord when required by the statute, the following apply [Health & Safety Code § 25359.7(b)(2)]:

- The failure is deemed to constitute a default, on the owner's or landlord's written notice to the tenant, under the tenant's lease or rental agreement (except that this provision does not apply to tenants of property used exclusively for residential purposes); and

- The tenant is liable for a civil penalty not to exceed $5,000 for each separate violation.

These state statutory requirements, as well as the ones discussed in [b] and [c], below, are patterned after and substantially parallel the federal Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act of 1980 (CERCLA) [42 U.S.C. § 9601 et seq.]. For detailed coverage of these provisions, see CALIFORNIA ENVIRONMENTAL LAW AND LAND USE PRACTICE, chs. 50- 59 (Matthew Bender).

PRACTICE TIP:

Ensure That Appropriate Investigations Are Made. Do not think that because the hazardous substance situation may have "occurred" before the inception of the tenancy that the tenant will be free of legal responsibility. In any situation in which there is a possibility of a prior use of hazardous or toxic substances, appropriate investigation by trained technical personnel should be conducted. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[b] Curing a Default: Removal and Remedial Actions

A tenant may cure a default under the tenant's lease or rental agreement that resulted from a violation of the disclosure requirements [see [a], above] by promptly commencing and completing the removal of, or taking other appropriate remedial action with regard to, the hazardous substance release [Health & Safety Code § 25359.7(b)(3)]. The removal or remedial action must be conducted in accordance with all applicable laws and regulations and in a manner that is reasonably acceptable to, and is approved in writing by, the owner or landlord. The tenant's remedial action to cure a default under the lease or rental agreement does not relieve the tenant of any liability for actual damages or for any civil penalty under the statute [Health & Safety Code § 25359.7(b)(3)].

[c] "Release" Defined

"Release" is defined as any spilling, leaking, pumping, pouring, emitting, emptying, discharging, injecting, escaping, leaching, dumping, or disposing into the environment [Health & Safety Code § 25320]. The following are excluded from the definition of "release" [Health & Safety Code § 25321]:

- Any release that results in exposure to persons solely within a workplace, with regard to a claim those exposed persons may assert against their employer;

- Emissions from the engine exhaust of a motor vehicle, rolling stock, aircraft, vessel, or pipeline pumping station engine;

- Release of source, byproduct, or special nuclear material from a nuclear incident [see 42 U.S.C. § 2011 et seq. (Atomic Energy Act of 1954)], if that release is subject to designated federal requirements or regulation; and

- The normal application of fertilizer, plant growth regulators, and pesticides.

§ 34C.20 Bankruptcy of Tenant

[1] Lease Provisions

A tenant's insolvency or bankruptcy does not terminate a lease by operation of law [Farnum v. Hefner (1889) 79 Cal. 575, 580, 21 P. 955] . However, many commercial leases provide that the landlord may terminate a lease on the tenant's bankruptcy, insolvency, or other involuntary transfer, and those provisions have been upheld by the California courts [see, e.g., Ilkhchooyi v. Best (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 395, 404, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 766 ; Superior Motels, Inc. v. Rinn Motor Hotels, Inc. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1032, 1052, 241 Cal. Rptr. 487] . A lease provision permitting termination of the lease on the bankruptcy, insolvency, or receivership of a tenant protects the landlord against being forced into a relationship with a tenant not of his or her own choosing. Accordingly, forfeiture of a lease on appointment of a receiver for a sublessor even when the subtenant had continued to pay the rent was held to be justified when the sublessor was liable on the lease and consideration for the approval of the sublease was rendered valueless by the appointment [Superior Motels, Inc. v. Rinn Motor Hotels, Inc. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1032, 1052-1055, 241 Cal. Rptr. 487] .

Notwithstanding the validity under California law of lease clauses permitting termination by the landlord for a tenant's bankruptcy, the superseding federal Bankruptcy Code [see 11 U.S.C. § 101 et seq.] generally disallows enforcement of such a clause [see § 30C.20[2]].

PRACTICE TIP:

Using Clauses Permitting Termination Based on Bankruptcy. Notwithstanding the unenforceability of a termination clause based on bankruptcy under federal law, some practitioners continue to include this type of clause in a lease because it is valid under California law. However, if it is included, a landlord should be advised that it is generally unenforceable in a federal bankruptcy proceeding. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

[2] Federal Bankruptcy Code

The automatic stay provisions of the Federal Bankruptcy Code prevent a landlord from taking any legal action against a creditor once a petition for bankruptcy has been filed [11 U.S.C. § 362(a)(1), (3)]. Therefore, unless the lease has been terminated by the expiration of its stated term before or during a bankruptcy case [11 U.S.C. § 362(b)(10)], the rights of the landlord and the tenant are governed by the provisions of the Bankruptcy Code relating to executory contracts and unexpired leases [see 11 U.S.C. § 365]. Under those provisions, an unexpired lease of a debtor involved in proceedings under the Bankruptcy Code may not be terminated or modified [11 U.S.C. § 365(e)(1)]. In addition, any right or obligation under the lease may not be terminated or modified at any time after the commencement of the case solely because of a provision in the lease conditioned on any of the following [11 U.S.C. § 365(e)(1)]:

- The insolvency or financial condition of the tenant at any time before the closing of the case;
- The commencement of a case under the Bankruptcy Code; or
- The appointment of or taking possession by a trustee in a case under the Bankruptcy Code or a custodian before such a commencement.

The conditions under which a trustee or debtor-in-possession may assume an unexpired lease are set forth in detail in the Bankruptcy Code [see 11 U.S.C. § 365]. The bankruptcy trustee has the right to assume or reject the bankrupt tenant's lease, subject to the court's approval [11 U.S.C. § 365(a)]. If there has been a default in the lease, the trustee must provide (1) a cure to the default or adequate assurance of the default's cure, (2) compensation for any loss to the landlord or any party other than the debtor resulting from the default, and (3) assurance of future performance under the lease [11 U.S.C. § 365(b)(1); see 11 U.S.C. § 365(b)(2), (3)]. The trustee is not required to cure a default that is a breach of a non-monetary obligation, unless the default arises from a failure to operate in accordance with terms of the lease [11 U.S.C. § 365(b)(1)(A)].

When a lease of real property in a shopping center is involved, special assurances of future performance must be provided, including an assurance that any percentage rent due under the lease will not decline substantially [see 11 U.S.C. § 365(b)(3); see also Ch. 34E, Shopping Centers: Leasing and Operation].

If the trustee does not assume an unexpired nonresidential lease by the earlier of the date that is (1) 120 days after the date of the order for relief or (2) the date of the entry of an order confirming a plan, the lease is considered to have been rejected [11 U.S.C. § 365(d)(4)(A)]. However, the court may grant a 90-day extension before the expiration of the 120-day period, on the motion of the trustee or landlord for cause. The court may grant subsequent extensions only with the prior written consent of the landlord in each instance [11 U.S.C. § 365(d)(4)(B)].

The Bankruptcy Code specifically provides that, subject to certain exceptions [see 11 U.S.C. § 365(c)], a bankruptcy trustee may assign an unexpired lease of the debtor despite any terms in the lease agreement prohibiting assignment [11 U.S.C. § 365(f)(1)]. The trustee may only assign a lease if it has assumed the lease and provided adequate assurance of future performance, whether or not there has been a default under the lease [11 U.S.C. § 365(f)(2)]. Lease provisions permitting a party to terminate or modify the lease on account of an assignment are declared to be ineffective in the case of an assignment by the trustee [11 U.S.C. § 365(f)(3)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Obtain Services of Bankruptcy Practitioner. If a notice terminating tenancy is served before the filing of the Petition for Bankruptcy, and if the notice period has expired as provided by state law before the Petition's filing, the automatic stay may not apply. In any situation involving bankruptcy, a bankruptcy practitioner should be obtained, at least for counseling. By Benjamin Kaplan.

§ 34C.21 Toxic Mold Protection Act

[1] Development and Adoption of Exposure Limits, Standards, and Guidelines

The Toxic Mold Protection Act of 2001 [Health & Safety Code § 26101.7] requires the Department of Health Services to convene a task force to advise the Department on the development of permissible exposure limits to mold, standards for assessment of molds in indoor environments, and standards for identification and remediation of mold [Health & Safety Code § 26101.7]. If the Department determines that it is feasible, the Department must adopt permissible exposure limits to mold for indoor environments that avoid adverse health effects [Health & Safety Code § 26103]. The Department is required to report its progress on developing permissible exposure limits for molds by July 1, 2003 [Health & Safety Code § 26103(d)]. The Department is also required to develop guidelines for the identification of molds [Health & Safety Code §§ 26120-26125] and remediation guidelines [Health & Safety Code §§ 26131-26134].

[2] Landlord's Disclosure Requirements; Remedial Action

The Act imposes disclosure requirements on landlords of commercial and industrial property, commencing on the January 1 or July 1 that occurs at least six months after the Department adopts the requisite standards and guidelines [Health & Safety Code § 26141(e)]. After that date, landlords of commercial and industrial property must provide written disclosure to prospective and current tenants when the landlord knows that mold, both visible and invisible or hidden, is present that affects the unit or the building and the mold either exceeds permissible exposure limits to molds or poses a health threat according to guidelines developed by the Department [Health & Safety Code § 26141(a)]. The written notice must be provided to prospective tenants as soon as practicable and before entering into the rental agreement, and to current tenants in affected units as soon as is reasonably practical [Health & Safety Code § 26141(b)]. However, commercial and industrial landlords are exempt from providing written disclosure to prospective tenants if the presence of mold was remediated according to mold remediation guidelines developed by the Department [Health & Safety Code § 26141(c)].

Commercial and industrial landlords who know or have notice that mold is present in the building, heating system, ventilating or air-conditioning system, or appurtenant structures, or that there is a condition of chronic water intrusion or flood, have an affirmative duty to assess within a reasonable period of time the presence of mold or condition likely to result in the presence of mold and conduct any necessary remedial action [Health & Safety Code § 26143(a)]. These requirements go into effect on the January 1 or July 1 that occurs at least six months after the Department adopts the requisite standards and guidelines [Health & Safety Code § 26143(b)].

[3] Tenant Responsibilities

Any tenant of a commercial or industrial real property who knows that mold is present in the building, heating system, ventilating or air-conditioning system, or appurtenant structures, or that there is a condition of chronic water intrusion or flood, must inform the landlord of this knowledge in writing within a reasonable period of time. The tenant must make the property available to the landlord or his or her agents for appropriate assessment or remedial action as soon as is reasonably practicable if the landlord is responsible for maintenance of the property [Health & Safety Code § 26142(a)]. If the tenant is responsible for the property's maintenance, the tenant must inform the landlord in writing as soon as is reasonably practicable and correct the condition in compliance with the terms of the contract with the landlord [Health & Safety Code § 26145(a)]. These requirements go into effect on the January 1 or July 1 that occurs at least six months after the Department adopts the requisite standards and guidelines [Health & Safety Code §§ 26142(b), 26145(b)].

[4] Enforcement

Public health officers, code enforcement officers, environmental health officers, city attorneys, and any other appropriate government entities may respond to complaints about mold and may enforce the standards adopted by the Department [Health & Safety Code § 26154].

CHAPTER 34C RETAIL, INDUSTRIAL, AND OFFICE LEASES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

17-34C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 34C.22

AUTHOR: by Linda Breen Pierce Myron Moskovitz Benjamin Kaplan Practice Consultants

§ 34C.22 Application and Renewal Fees

A landlord may not require, demand, or cause to make payable the payment of "key money," however denominated, or the landlord's attorneys' fees incurred in preparing a lease or rental agreement, as a condition of initiating, continuing, or renewing a commercial lease or nonresidential rental agreement, unless the amount of payment is stated in the written lease or rental agreement [Civ. Code § 1950.8(a), (b)]. Any person who violates this prohibition is subject to a civil penalty of three times the amount of actual damages proximately suffered by the person seeking to obtain the lease or rental. In addition, that person is entitled to an award of costs, including reasonable attorneys' fees, reasonably incurred in connection with obtaining the civil penalty [Civ. Code § 1950.8(c)].

It is not unlawful under Civ. Code § 1950.8 for a landlord merely to make a demand for "key money." Rather, for liability to attach under the statute, a plaintiff must allege that the landlord (1) made a demand for "key money" as a condition of initiating, continuing, or renewing a lease or rental agreement, and (2) failed to state the amount of the demanded payment in the resulting new written lease or rental agreement between the parties [Edamerica, Inc. v. Superior Court (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 819, 828-829, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 921] .

The prohibition against a verbal demand of "key money" does not prohibit the advance payment of rent, if the amount and character of the payment are clearly stated in a written lease or rental agreement [Civ. Code § 1950.8(d)]. It also does not prevent any person from charging a reasonable amount incurred in connection with business activities relating to the initiating, continuing, or renewing of a lease or rental agreement for nonresidential real property, such as costs relating to verification of the tenant's creditworthiness or other qualifications, or cleaning fees reasonably incurred in connection with the hiring of the real property [Civ. Code § 1950.8(e)]. In addition, the prohibition does not bar a person from increasing a tenant's rent for nonresidential real property to recover building operating costs incurred on behalf of the tenant, if the right to the rent, the method of calculating the increase, and the period of time covered by the increase is stated in the lease or rental agreement [Civ. Code § 1950.8(f)].

1. Basic information about landlord and tenant, such as:

a. Name.

b. Addresses (mailing, delivery, e-mail).

c. Telephone numbers (voice, fax message, cellular).

d. Legal status, as any of the following:
(1) Individual.
(a) Marital status.

(b) Name of spouse, if married.

(2) Corporation.

(3) Limited partnership.

(4) General partnership.

(5) Limited liability company (LLC).

(6) Joint venture.

(7) Unincorporated association.

(8) Fictitious Business Name filing.

PRACTICE TIP:

Obtain Appropriate Business Filings. If an individual or partnership does business under a fictitious business name, a copy of any fictitious business name filing should be obtained from the County Clerk. In addition, the attorney should obtain all filings of public record if the entity is a Corporation, LLC, or Limited Partnership. If there is a probate, the probate files should be examined, and certified copies of pertinent filings should be obtained. By Benjamin Kaplan.

h. Hazardous waste and toxic investigation specialists.

3. Additional information concerning any parties who are not individuals, such as:

a. Type of entity.

b. Full legal name.

c. Address of main office or principal place of business.

d. Address of branch or office at which matters relating to this transaction will be handled.

e. Name, address, and title of persons to whom communications should be directed.

f. Name, address, and title of person authorized to bind entity.

4. Steps already taken by client in connection with transaction, for example:

a. Whether option or agreement to lease has been executed.

b. Whether lease has been executed.

c. If transaction involves purchase or construction by landlord, whether landlord has obtained preliminary or binding commitment for financing.

5. Steps that client wants attorney to perform, for example:

a. Negotiating terms of proposed transaction.

b. Drafting lease and related documents.

c. Reviewing lease and related documents drafted by another.

d. Advising client on rights under executed lease.

e. Coordinating transaction that requires construction of building or other improvements on leased premises.

17-34C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 34C.101

AUTHOR: by Linda Breen Pierce Myron Moskovitz Benjamin Kaplan Practice Consultants

§ 34C.101 Additional Facts Pertaining to Landlord

1. Date that landlord acquired property.

2. Manner in which landlord holds title, such as:

a. Corporation in corporate name.

b. Partnership in partnership name.

c. Partnership in name of one or more partners.

d. Limited liability company in name of limited liability company.

e. Unincorporated association [see Corp. Code § 18000 et seq.].

f. Individual.

g. Husband and wife in [see Fam. Code § 750]:
(1) Joint tenancy.

PRACTICE TIP:
Affidavit of Death of Joint Tenant. In any situation in which the property has been held by a husband and wife as joint tenants, and one has passed, do not assume that an Affidavit of Death of Joint Tenant has been recorded. Often it is overlooked. Such a recordation is to vest clear title in the surviving joint tenant. By Benjamin Kaplan.

(2) Tenancy in common.

(3) Community property.

(4) Community property with right of survivorship.

h. Co-owner in [see Civ. Code § 682]:

(1) Joint tenancy.

(2) Tenancy in common.

i. Executor or administrator of decedent's estate [see Prob. Code §§ 9940-9948].

j. Revocable inter vivos trust [see Prob. Code § 15200 et seq.].

3. Name in which landlord acquired title, if different from name in which landlord currently holds title [see Civ. Code § 1096].

4. Adverse claims against landlord's title, if any.

PRACTICE TIP:
Conduct Chain of Title Search. A chain of title search should pick up any Notice of Pendency of Action, as well as any Abstracts of Judgment related to the subject property. By Benjamin Kaplan.

5. Pending litigation affecting property, if any.

6. Easements burdening or benefiting property, if any.

PRACTICE TIP:
Easements. Easements that are not of record may be big problems if they surface after the transaction has closed. There is no substitute for "walking the property" as it may disclose the potential for problems, both of encroachments and ingress and egress. Moreover, the "standard" title insurance policies do not protect from easements that are not of record, and special endorsements must be obtained to deal with particular situations. By Benjamin Kaplan.

7. Other encumbrances or liens against property, if any.

8. For any existing loan on property:

a. Name of original lender.

b. Name of current holder or beneficiary, if different.

c. Approximate unpaid principal balance.

d. Nature of any existing delinquencies or defaults.

9. If landlord is a corporation:

a. Date and state of incorporation.

b. Date on which corporation approved or will approve lease.

c. That corporation is "active" and in good standing.

NOTE:
For discussion of the authority of a corporation to lease real property and for verification of its current active status, see Ch. 5, Directors' Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions .

10. If landlord is a partnership:

a. And partnership holds title in partnership name, names of partners authorized to sign lease.

b. And title is held in name of one or more of partners, names of these partners.

NOTE:
For discussion of the authority of a partnership to lease real property and for verification of its current active status, see Ch. 15, Part A, Formation of General Partnerships.

11. If landlord is a limited liability company [see Corp. Code § 17000 et seq.]:

a. Names of members.

b. Name of manager(s) if other than members.

c. That limited liability company is "active" and in good standing.

NOTE:
For discussion of the authority of a limited liability company to lease real property and for verification of its current active status, see Ch. 12C, Limited Liability Companies .

12. If landlord is an unincorporated association [see Corp. Code § 18000 et seq.]:

a. Names of members if articles or bylaws require approval by members.

b. Name of any officers authorized to execute lease on behalf of association.

NOTE:
For discussion of the authority of an unincorporated association to lease real property, see Ch. 34A, Prelease Forms .

13. If landlord is an estate:

a. Name of estate's guardian, conservator, executor, or administrator.

b. Name of attorney for guardianship, conservatorship, or probate.

c. Name and location of court with jurisdiction over estate.

PRACTICE TIP:

Use Caution When Dealing With an Estate. Do not accept anyone's oral or written representation as to whom or what has authority to do anything, unless you have a document that is a court filing, a public record, that you have personally obtained. Moreover, authority in probate proceedings vary. Some probates require prior court approval, or even public bidding on the transaction. Others have executors who are empowered to transact business and only subsequently report to the court what has occurred. Do not rely on anyone to do the task properly. By Benjamin Kaplan.

14. If landlord is a public entity:

a. Governing body for entity.

b. Date on which governing body approved or will approve lease.

15. Zoning classification of leased premises.

AUTHOR: by Linda Breen Pierce Myron Moskovitz Benjamin Kaplan Practice Consultants

§ 34C.102 Additional Facts Pertaining to Tenant

1. Type of business to be conducted by tenant on leased premises.

2. When tenant will be moving its existing business to premises to be leased under this transaction, including:

a. If tenant owns property on which existing business is located:
(1) Status of property's sale or lease.

(2) Date by which tenant must deliver possession to buyer or tenant.

b. If tenant leases its present business location:

(1) Whether any termination notice has been given to tenant, and if so, date of that lease's termination.

(2) Whether tenant has given landlord notice of intent to vacate, and if so, date of required vacation.

(3) Required notice period under lease for present business location for tenant to terminate lease.

(4) Whether tenant is currently in default under lease for current business location, and if so, nature of default.

c. Date by which tenant must have possession of premises to be leased under this transaction.

PRACTICE TIP:

Dispossessed Tenants. The entire issue of "timing" is critical. First, there is no guarantee that the tenant who is being dispossessed will in fact move. One must be careful in counseling your client to point this out. Moreover, various leases contain very heavy punitive clauses if the tenant does not move after termination of tenancy. Although one would think that this "cuts both ways" in terms of the tenant who is being dispossessed for your client, it rarely works that way. For example, it could be that the tenant being dispossessed does not have such a punitive lease clause in his/her lease and your client does. Serious thought should be given to the opportunity cost-benefit of retaining possession of your clients' premises until it appears that the other tenant is going to move. In any event, do not back your client up against a termination of a fixed-term tenancy. By Benjamin Kaplan.

3. If tenant is a corporation:

a. Date and state of incorporation.

b. Date on which corporation approved or will approve lease.

NOTE:

For discussion of the authority of a corporation to lease real property and for verification of its current active status, see Ch. 5, Directors' Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions .

4. If the tenant is a partnership, names of partners authorized to sign lease.

NOTE:

For discussion of the authority of a partnership to lease real property and for verification of its current active status, see Ch. 15, Part A, Formation of General Partnerships .

5. If tenant is a limited liability company [see Corp. Code § 17000 et seq.]:

a. Names of members.

b. Name of manager(s) if other than members.

NOTE:

For discussion of the authority of a limited liability company to lease real property and for verification of its current active status, see Ch. 12C, Limited Liability Companies .

6. If tenant is an unincorporated association [see Corp. Code § 18000 et seq.], names of officers or members authorized to execute lease.

NOTE:

For discussion of the authority of an unincorporated association to lease real property, see Ch. 34A, Prelease Forms .

§ 34C.103 Documents Pertaining to Landlord

1. Copy of any correspondence between landlord and tenant.

2. Deed to property.

3. Property profile or preliminary title report issued for property.

PRACTICE TIP:

Do Not Rely on Preliminary Title Report. A preliminary title report is "an offer to enter into a contract of insurance," not insurance. Thus, it is not something that should be relied upon. It is "a snapshot of title" at one point in time, and may not reflect a myriad of events which are material, but no longer of record for the purposes of the report. Mention must be made as to each entity as to the necessity of obtaining its current "status." By Benjamin Kaplan.

4. Any agreement creating easements burdening or benefiting property.

5. Instruments or documents creating or asserting liens against property.

6. Any notes, deeds of trust, mortgages, or other documents relating to existing security interests in property.

7. For multitenant building, copy of any building rules and regulations.

8. Copy of any recorded declaration or Covenants, Conditions, and Restrictions affecting property.

9. Any documents evidencing zoning relief, for example:

a. Conditional use permits.

b. Variances.

10. If landlord is a corporation, certified copy of resolution authorizing lease [see Ch. 5, Directors' Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions, § 5.249].

11. If landlord is a partnership holding title in its name, certified copy of statement of partnership authority filed in county where land is located [see Ch. 15, Part A, Formation of General Partnerships, § 15.285].

12. If landlord is a limited liability company:

a. Certified copy of articles of organization filed with Secretary of State.

b. Copy of operating agreement (if members have appointed manager for company).

13. If landlord is an unincorporated association:

a. Copy of articles of association.

b. Copy of bylaws.

c. Copy of recorded statement of unincorporated association.

14. If landlord is an estate or trust, copy of will or trust instrument naming executor or trustee and copies of Letters Testamentary and other filings that may be relevant.

15. If transaction involves new construction, copies of following, to extent available:

a. Contract between owner and design professional, for example, architect [see Ch. 30C, Agreements with Architects, Engineers, and Other Design Professionals].

b. Construction contract documents, including: [see Ch. 30D, Construction Contracts and Subcontracts]:

(1) Owner-general contractor agreement.

(2) Drawings and specifications.

(3) Building permits.

(4) Use permits.

c. For project financing, the following:

(1) Binding loan commitments for construction and permanent financing.

(2) Deed(s) of trust executed to secure construction or permanent financing.

PRACTICE TIP:

Obtain Copies of All Filings. In any transaction involving real property it is relatively inexpensive, and productive, to obtain copies of all filings since the landlord's acquisition of title, at the County Recorder's office. By Benjamin Kaplan.

1. Copy of any letters of intent or other correspondence between landlord and tenant.

2. Any option agreement for purchase of leased premises executed by landlord and tenant.

3. If tenant is a corporation, certified copy of resolution authorizing lease [see Ch. 5, Directors' Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions, § 5.249].

4. If tenant is a partnership, certified copy of statement of partnership authority filed in county indicating authority of partner to bind partnership to lease [see Ch. 15, Part A, Formation of General Partnerships, § 15.285].

5. If tenant is a limited liability company:

a. Certified copy of articles of organization filed with Secretary of State.

b. Copy of operating agreement (if members have appointed manager for company).

6. If tenant is an unincorporated association:

a. Copy of articles of association.

b. Copy of bylaws.

PRACTICE TIP:

Obtain Copies of All Documents From Your Client. Do not think that the caveats on obtaining documents are addressed solely to concerns related to "the other side." Your client is a potential source of misinformation. You need to obtain copies of all organic documents from your client. For example, just because a trust document identifies the properties that are held by a trust does not mean that title to such properties was ever transferred into the trust's name. By Benjamin Kaplan.

NOTE:
This Part is a list of issues to review and negotiate with the parties. The sections in this Part correspond with the sections in Part D, Drafting Guide, and the two Parts can be used together to determine what should be included in the lease agreement.

1. If either party is a corporation, determine whether board of directors has adopted resolution authorizing corporation to enter into lease [see Ch. 34A, Prelease Forms].

2. If either party is an unincorporated association, determine whether articles of association or bylaws require resolution by authorizing board and/or approval by association's members [see Ch. 34A, Prelease Forms].

NOTE:
For a detailed list of the determinations necessary to confirm required capacity and consent to enter into a lease, including those determinations that would apply to individuals, see the Transaction Guide to Ch. 34B, Residential Leases.

§ 34C.111 Conditions of Lease

1. Determine whether there any conditions to lease's effectiveness and commencement of its term, for example:

a. Delivery of possession of leased premises on or before specific date.

b. Ability to obtain zoning variance for tenant's intended business use.

c. Ability to obtain business or other license required for operation of tenant's business.

d. If landlord is required to construct new building, landlord's ability to obtain financing.

2. Ascertain deadline for satisfaction of conditions.

3. Determine what steps, if any, party must take to indicate satisfaction of condition (for example, written notice to other party).

4. Determine what effect failure of condition will have, such as:

a. Automatic cancellation of lease.

b. Cancellation on written notice.

c. Option or obligation of party intended to benefit from condition to do one of following:

(1) Extend deadline for satisfaction of condition.

(2) Cancel lease.

1. Ascertain lease's primary term, including:

a. Length of term.

b. Whether term commences on:
(1) Specified date.

(2) Occurrence of specified event.

(3) Completion of construction and delivery of premises.

2. Ascertain options to extend (number and duration).

3. Determine whether occurrence of any event (other than tenant's default) will give either party right to terminate lease before its natural expiration, for example:

a. Landlord's inability to obtain financing.

b. Tenant's inability to obtain use permit.

c. Tenant's loss of legal right to operate its particular business.

§ 34C.113 Rent and Other Payments to Landlord

1. For fixed or minimum rent under lease, ascertain:

    a. Amount of minimum rent.

    b. When rent commences.

    c. At what intervals rent is payable.

2. For retail lease, determine whether tenant will be required to pay percentage rent, and if so:

    a. Amount of percentage rent.

    b. When rent commences.

    c. At what intervals it is payable.

    d. On what basis percentage rent will be calculated, for example, gross receipts of tenant.

    e. Whether percentage rent is in addition to, in lieu of, or an offset against, minimum rent.

3. Ascertain whether amount of basic or minimum rent will increase over lease's term, by any of the following:

a. Fixed dollar amounts at scheduled intervals.

b. Increased market value of premises.

c. Increases tied to:
(1) Property taxes.

(2) Operating expenses.

(3) Consumer price index or some other index for inflation.

4. Determine whether tenant will be required to post security deposit, and if so, in what amount.

§ 34C.114 Use of Premises

1. Determine whether tenant's use of premises will be limited to specific business, and if so, what business.

2. Determine whether tenant will have right to change its use of premises during lease's term, and if so, subject to which of the following:

a. With landlord's prior approval.

b. Without landlord's prior approval.

c. Any other conditions.

3. Ascertain whether there will be any specific restrictions on tenant's use, such as prohibitions against:

a. Nuisance, waste, and unlawful purposes.

b. Use or storage of hazardous materials and substances.

c. Insurance hazards.

4. Determine whether tenant and/or landlord will be restricted from operating a similar business within certain radius of premises, and if so, how many miles is the radius.

5. Determine whether tenant will be required to continually operate business during certain hours, and if so, what hours.

6. Determine whether tenant's use will be restricted by any Covenants, Conditions, and Restrictions or building rules and regulations.

7. For other property owned by landlord:

a. Determine whether landlord will be restricted from leasing to other tenants operating similar businesses.

b. Ascertain whether landlord will be required to perform any affirmative acts on other property for tenant's benefit.

§ 34C.117 Improvements and Alterations

NOTE:
See Ch. 34D, Ground Leases , for a lease in which a tenant is required to construct a new building.

1. If landlord will be constructing a new building, determine:

a. Preparation, timing, and cost of preliminary and final plans and specifications and cost estimates.

b. Deadline for completing construction and delivering possession to tenant.

c. Whether tenant will have right to terminate if construction is not completed within certain time period.

PRACTICE TIP:
Be Aware of Construction Issues. In any situation regarding construction of a new building by the landlord, if your client is the tenant, you must advise your client of the probability of construction delays. If the tenant is sharing in the costs of construction then you should be taking steps to ascertain the degree of control the tenant will have in the process. The entire area of construction is replete with problems, delays, cost overruns, and any number of potential difficulties. By Benjamin Kaplan.

2. If landlord will be making improvements to existing building, determine:

a. Nature and scope of improvements to be made.

b. Deadline for completing improvements and delivering possession to tenant.

c. Whether tenant will have right to terminate if improvements are not completed within certain time period.

3. Ascertain tenant's rights to make alterations or improvements, including:

a. Type of alterations or improvements permitted, for example:

(1) Interior, nonstructural.

(2) Interior, including structural.

(3) Exterior, nonstructural.

(4) Exterior, including structural.

b. Any conditions to tenant's right, for example:

(1) Advance notice to be given to landlord.

(2) Landlord's prior written approval for:
(a) Any improvement or alteration.

(b) Only improvements or alterations exceeding specified dollar amount.

(c) Only structural improvements or alterations.

(3) Whether landlord's approval is not to be unreasonably withheld.

1. Ascertain which party will be obligated to pay the following:

a. Property taxes.

b. Utilities.

2. For multitenant building in which expenses for utilities and taxes are to be shared pro rata or on some other basis among tenants, determine formula to be used in determining each tenant's share.

3. Ascertain items that parties agree to include or exclude under each general category, for example:

a. For utilities:
(1) Air conditioning.

(2) Electricity.

(3) Gas.

(4) Water.

(5) Sewer.

(6) Garbage pickup and disposal.

1. Ascertain which party will be required to maintain and pay cost of insurance on:

    a. Leased premises.

    b. Any common areas.

2. For each party required to insure, ascertain:

    a. What types of insurance are required, for example:
    (1) Fire and extended coverage.

    (2) Public liability insurance.

    (3) Boiler and machinery insurance.

    (4) Products liability insurance.

    (5) Plate glass insurance.

    (6) Dramshop liability insurance.

    (7) Business interruption insurance.

(8) Earthquake insurance.

(9) Flood insurance.

(10) Personal property insurance.

b. What amounts of insurance are required.

PRACTICE TIP:

Insurance. The time for the tenant to ascertain the availability of coverage and the cost of coverage is before the tenant enters the lease. Obtaining the landlord's "standard" form lease, which contains the insurance clause in the beginning of the transaction is essential. Copies of all the insurance provisions (including by example only "waiver of subrogation" and "named additional insureds") should be immediately sent to tenant's insurance broker. It is amazing how leases demand primary coverage of types or in amounts which are not available, but may be accomplished by a less expensive umbrella policy not mentioned in the lease. Do not think about being able to rewrite the lease after you have entered it. By Benjamin Kaplan.

§ 34C.120 Repairs and Maintenance

1. Ascertain which party will be responsible for maintaining and repairing the following:

a. Leased premises, including:
(1) Structural portions, including roof, exterior walls, and foundation.

(2) Nonstructural portions.

(3) Plate glass.

(4) Janitorial services for leased space in multitenant building.

b. Common areas.

2. Ascertain which party will be responsible for making repairs and improvements required by governmental laws and regulations during lease's term, including:

a. Laws relating to tenant's specific use of premises.

b. Laws related to any business use of premises.

§ 34C.121 Destruction of Premises

1. Determine whether either party is obligated to repair or rebuild premises in event of:

    a. Partial destruction.

    b. Total destruction.

2. Determine whether either party has right to terminate lease for:

    a. Partial destruction.

    b. Total destruction.

3. Ascertain what destruction will give rise to obligation to rebuild, including:

    a. Type of destruction, such as:
    (1) From any cause.

    (2) From any cause for which lease requires either party to carry insurance.

    b. Extent of destruction.

4. Ascertain party to whom insurance proceeds will be paid to, for example:

a. Party obligated to rebuild.

b. Insurance trustee.

5. For reconstruction period, determine:

a. Commencement and completion dates.

b. Effect on rent, for example:

(1) Total or partial abatement.

(2) Continuation of full amount rent.

6. Ascertain any events that will give party obligated to rebuild a right to terminate lease in lieu of rebuilding, for example:

a. Destruction occurring during last part of lease term.

b. Destruction from uninsured cause.

c. Whether time required to rebuild will exceed length of time period agreed on in lease.

d. Whether rebuilding cost will exceed maximum dollar amount agreed on in lease.

1. For partial condemnation, determine:

    a. Whether lease will continue in effect as to any portion not condemned.

    b. Whether amount of rent payable will be reduced pro rata or on some other basis.

    c. Who will have obligation to do any necessary restoration.

2. Ascertain allocation of condemnation award, for example:

    a. Landlord and tenant will each recover award for its interests in lease.

    b. Landlord will receive entire award.

    c. Landlord will receive entire award, except that tenant will recover costs of removing fixtures and for amortized value of improvements made by tenant that are not removed.

§ 34C.124 Miscellaneous Provisions

1. If tenant is to be granted option or right of first refusal to purchase premises, determine:

a. When and how it may be exercised.

b. Purchase price stated either:
(1) As specific dollar amount; or

(2) By reference to a standard or a formula, for example:
(a) For option, property's fair market value at time option is exercised.

(b) For right of first refusal, at same price set forth in third-party bona fide offer to purchase property.

c. Other terms and conditions of purchase.

NOTE:

When a right of first refusal is conditioned on receipt of a bona fide third party offer to purchase the property, the right is not triggered by the mere conveyance of that property to a third party. Generally speaking, it is the concurrence of both an arms' length transaction and change in control of the property that characterizes a bona fide sale. The absence of the first factor, as in the case of a gift, or the second factor, as in the case of a transfer between entities owned and controlled by the same individuals, usually means that there was no sale, or no bona fide offer for sale, within the meaning of the typical right of first refusal. The court must look through the formalities of the transaction to determine its true nature. Courts will not tolerate schemes designed to avoid a contractual right. However, legitimate business or personal reasons, untainted by an intent to avoid a contractual preemptive right, weigh in favor of finding that the right was not triggered by the transaction [Hartzheim v. Valley Land and Cattle Co. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 383, 393, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 815 (right of first refusal to purchase property in commercial lease not triggered when family partnership transferred interest in property to grandchildren, because transfer was not made pursuant to a "bona fide offer from any third party for the purchase" of the property as required by parties' agreement)].

2. If tenant is to have option or right of first refusal to lease additional space, determine:

a. Size and location of additional space.

b. Rent for additional space.

c. Other terms and conditions.

3. If parties agree that some or all of disputes arising under lease will be settled by arbitration, determine which disputes must be submitted to arbitration, for example:

a. All disputes regarding lease.

b. Only specific disputes designated in lease.

4. Determine whether tenant will be required to subordinate lease to subsequent deeds of trust, and if so:

a. Whether landlord will be required to provide nondisturbance agreements.

b. Whether tenant will be required to attorn to lender or lender's successor.

5. Determine whether tenant will be required to execute estoppel certificates on landlord's request.

§ 34C.130 Representation of Both Parties to Lease

1. If requested to represent both parties to transaction:

a. Recommend that one party obtain separate counsel.

b. Determine whether or not potential for conflict exists.

2. If potential clients do not withdraw their request and do not appear to have conflicting or potentially conflicting interests, take both of the following steps [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310; Klemm v. Superior Court (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 893, 899, 142 Cal. Rptr. 509] :

a. Make full disclosure to each party of nature of representation of other party.

b. Obtain written consent from both parties to arrangement before accepting employment.

PRACTICE TIP:

Representing Both Parties to a Lease Is Not Advised. It is impossible to see how there can be an effective waiver of a conflict of interest that would permit any attorney to represent both parties to a lease transaction even if that attorney's role was "limited" to drafting an already reached agreement. Any attorney who enters into such an arrangement is simply looking for major problems with either or both clients. It would be akin to representing both parties in a dissolution of marriage proceeding in which substantial interests were involved. By Benjamin Kaplan.

1. Draft lease.

NOTE:
For a drafting guide for a nonresidential lease, see Part D of this Transaction Guide.

2. Execute lease.

NOTE:
The execution requirements for a lease depend on whether the landlord or tenant is an individual or other type of legal entity. These requirements are discussed in the Transaction Guide to Ch. 34B, Residential Leases.

3. Record Memorandum of Lease.

a. If representing tenant who desires to impart constructive notice of its leasehold interest, prepare Memorandum of Lease for recording purposes [see § 34C.203 for discussion and sample Memorandum of Lease].

b. Execute Memorandum of Lease with acknowledgment and certification of signatures of executing parties by authorized offer [see Gov. Code § 27287].

NOTE:
The same execution requirements that apply to the lease apply to a Memorandum of Lease. For an outline of these requirements, see the Transaction Guide to Ch. 34B,

NOTE:

This Part is a checklist of provisions that the attorney should or may include in a lease agreement. If the attorney is reviewing a lease prepared by another party, this list may be used to evaluate the sufficiency and scope of that lease. The attorney will need the information included in Part A, Client Interview--Facts and Documents, and a resolution of the issues referred to in Part B, Preliminary Determinations, to complete the lease drafting or review.

PRACTICE TIP:

Drafting Services. When an attorney is presented with a long lease for review, that attorney should not assume that the client wants full redrafting of the lease. It is very important that the attorney discuss with the client and memorialize the various consideration, legal and financial, which enter into a decision of the scope of the attorneys services before the work is undertaken. Keep in mind that attorneys almost always underestimate the amount of time which will be taken in drafting and review. Care must be taken not to leave the impression with the client that the attorney is entering into a fixed fee arrangement unless that is in fact the case. Estimates must therefore be carefully explained and the client kept advised as to how the work is progressing. When there is a limited budget for fees, the client must be informed of the dangers of a less than complete review, but may be compelled to limit the review to various identifiable "crucial" clauses. By Benjamin Kaplan.

§ 34C.146 Improvements and Alterations

NOTE:
For a form in which the tenant is required to construct a new building, see Ch. 34D, Ground Leases .

1. Draft provisions regarding initial construction/improvements to premises, for example:

a. New building to be constructed by landlord [see § 34C.243[2]].

b. Improvements to existing building to be made by landlord [see § 34C.202[2], P 8].

2. Prepare provisions regarding tenant's right to make alterations, such as:

a. Tenant can make alterations not impairing building's structure up to certain dollar amount without landlord's consent [see § 34C.240[2]].

b. Tenant can make nonstructural alterations with advance notice to landlord but structural alterations need landlord's consent [see § 34C.240[2]].

c. Tenant can make alterations with landlord's consent, not to be unreasonably withheld [see § 34C.200[2], Section 5.05].

d. Tenant needs landlord's consent to any alterations; no requirement that landlord be reasonable [see § 34C.202[2], P 6].

e. Tenant can make nonstructural alterations up to certain dollar amount without landlord's approval provided advance notice is given; nonstructural alterations that exceed specified dollar amount and all structural alterations need landlord's approval, not to be unreasonably withheld [see § 34C.201[2], Section 3.04].

3. Draft provisions regarding tenant's obligation to make repairs and/or capital improvements required by governmental laws and ordinances (compliance with laws), for example:

a. Tenant to make repairs and improvements triggered by tenant's specific use of premises [see §§ 34C.200[2], Section 3.05, 34C.201[2], Section 4.02].

b. Tenant to make all repairs and improvements required by governmental laws and ordinances, whether related to tenant's specific use or not [see § 34C.241[2]].

§ 34C.147 Taxes and Utilities

1. Draft utilities provision, for example:

   a. Tenant to pay for utilities [see §§ 34C.200[2], Section 4.01, 34C.201[2], Section 10.02].

   b. Landlord to provide and pay for utilities [see § 34C.202[2], P 13].

2. Draft provisions regarding real property taxes, such as:

   a. Tenant to pay all property taxes [see § 34C.221[2]].

   b. Tenant has right to contest amount of taxes [see § 34C.221[2]].

   c. Landlord to pay all property taxes; no reimbursement by tenant [see § 34C.200[2], Section 4.03].

   d. Tenant to pay landlord for any increase in taxes over base year [see § 34C.201[2], Section 2.02].

   e. Tenant to pay landlord prorata share of increase in operating expenses, which include taxes [see § 34C.202[2], P 3].

§ 34C.148 Insurance and Indemnity

1. Prepare provisions regarding fire and extended coverage, for example:

a. Tenant to procure and pay for this insurance [see §§ 34C.200[2], Section 6.04, 34C.201[2], Section 5.01].

b. Tenant to pay landlord prorata share of increase in operating expenses, which include insurance on building [see § 34C.202[2], P 3].

c. Landlord to procure and pay for this insurance [see § 34C.222[2]].

2. Set forth provision requiring tenant to maintain public liability insurance for leased premises and name landlord as additional insured [see §§ 34C.200[2], Section 6.02, 34C.201[2], Section 5.02, 34C.202[2], P 14].

3. Set forth provision requiring tenant to maintain personal property insurance on its fixtures and equipment [see §§ 34C.200[2], Section 6.03, 34C.201[2], Section 5.04, 34C.202[2], P 15].

4. If tenant is required to maintain business interruption insurance, include provision for this obligation [see § 34C.201[2], Section 5.03].

5. Set forth provision requiring tenant to maintain workers' compensation insurance [see § 34C.201[2], Section 5.05].

NOTE:

Various standard provisions related to indemnity and subrogation are included in § 34C.222[2] and in each of the complete leases in this chapter [see §§ 34C.200[2]-34C.202[2]].

§ 34C.150 Destruction of Premises

1. Draft provisions regarding restoration of leased premises in event of casualty, for example:

a. Landlord has obligation to rebuild, subject to right to terminate lease in certain events, for example [see §§ 34C.200[2], Sections 8.01-8.03, 34C.202[2], P 17].:
(1) Uninsured casualty exceeding specified dollar amount.

(2) Casualty occurring near end of term.

(3) Repairs cannot reasonably be made within certain time period.

b. Tenant has obligation to rebuild for casualty covered by fire and extended coverage insurance; landlord has obligation to rebuild for other casualties; either party has right to terminate lease if casualty occurs near end of term [see § 34C.201[2], Sections 6.01-6.05].

c. Tenant has obligation to rebuild for insured or uninsured casualties, subject to right to terminate lease in certain events, for example [see § 34C.244[2]]:

(1) Casualty occurs near end of term.

(2) Costs to rebuild will exceed stated percent of replacement value of premises.

§ 34C.151 Condemnation

1. Draft provisions regarding effect of condemnation of leased premises on lease, including:

a. For total condemnation, termination of lease.

PRACTICE TIP:
Termination Is Only Option for Total Condemnation. The termination of the lease on total condemnation is included in the complete lease forms in this chapter [see §§ 34C.200[2], Sections 9.01-9.04, 34C.201[2], Sections 7.01-7.06, 34C.202[2], P 18]. Although the parties are free to make their own agreement in the lease regarding condemnation [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.160], a termination of the lease is the only realistic alternative if the whole property is taken. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

b. For partial condemnation, for example:

(1) Tenant has right to terminate lease if more than certain percent of floor space or parking area is taken; if lease is not terminated, the following applies [see §§ 34C. 200[2], Sections 9.02, 9.03, 34C.262[2]]:
(a) Lease continues as to portion remaining.

(b) Landlord restores remaining premises.

(c) Rent is adjusted accordingly.

(2) Lease terminates as to portion of property that is taken, subject to the following [see §§ 34C.201[2],

Sections 7.02, 7.04, 34C.262[2]]:

(a) Lease continues in effect for portion of property not taken.

(b) Rent is adjusted accordingly.

(3) Landlord or tenant may terminate lease if any part is taken, except that tenant may not terminate unless remaining portion is rendered useless for uses permitted under lease [see § 34C.202[2], P 18].

2. Draft provisions regarding condemnation award, for example:

a. Landlord receives entire award and tenant waives its rights to any award [see §§ 34C.200[2], Section 9.04, 34C.202[2], P 18], 34C.262[2]].

b. Landlord receives entire award except that tenant may recover compensation for the following [see § 34C.201[2], Section 7.06]:

(1) Costs of removing tenant's trade fixtures.

(2) Value of improvements tenant has right to remove.

(3) Amortized value of improvements that cannot be removed.

c. Landlord and tenant are each entitled to award for their respective interests under Eminent Domain Law [see § 34C.262[2]].

1. Draft provisions regarding tenant's right to assign or sublet premises, for example:

a. Tenant has right to assign or sublet with landlord's consent, not to be unreasonably withheld [see §§ 34C.200[2], Section 10.01, 34C.201[2], Section 10.01, 34C.202[2], P 19, 34C.260[2]].

b. Tenant has no right to assign or sublet lease [see § 34C.260[2]].

c. Tenant has unrestricted right to assign or sublet lease [see § 34C.260[2]].

d. Tenant may assign or sublet, but must share any profits with landlord [see § 34C.260[2]].

e. Tenant may assign or sublet, subject to landlord's right to terminate lease (recapture clause) [see § 34C.260[2]].

§ 34C.153 Default and Termination

1. Draft provisions regarding tenant's default and landlord's right to terminate lease based on tenant's default, including:

a. Tenant's default defined as failure to cure monetary and non-monetary defaults within certain time periods; abandonment for certain time period; bankruptcy and related proceedings [see §§ 34C.200[2], Section 10.02, 34C.201[2], Section 9.03, 34C.202[2], P 20].

b. Landlord's right to terminate and recover damages [see §§ 34C.200[2], Section 10.03, 34C.201[2], Section 9.01(b), 34C.202[2], P 21(b), 34C.270[2]].

c. Landlord's right to continue lease in effect after tenant's breach and collect rent as it becomes due [see §§ 34C.200[2], Section 10.04, 34C.201[2], Section 9.01(a), 34C.202[2], P 21(a), 34C.271[2]].

NOTE:
If the landlord is to have this remedy, (1) the lease must provide for it, (2) the tenant's right to possession must not be terminated, and (3) the lease must permit the tenant the right to assign or sublet subject to reasonable conditions [see Civ. Code § 1951.4; see also § 34C.271[1] for discussion of this right].

§ 34C.200 Retail Lease

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a retail lease providing for percentage rent. It is for a freestanding building to be used by a single tenant for retail purposes. As is common for a retail lease, the tenant is required to pay "percentage rent" [see [d] and [e], below, for discussion of minimum and percentage rent issues].

For a retail lease of space in a shopping center, see Ch. 34E, Shopping Centers: Leasing and Operation . For discussion of the description of the premises, including any appurtenances or easements, see § 34C.15. For an example and discussion of an industrial lease, see § 34C.201. For discussion and an example of an office lease, see § 34C.202.

A tenant may want to record a short form or Memorandum of Lease to impart constructive notice of the lease's terms to all subsequent purchasers and mortgagees of the landlord [see § 34C.203 for discussion and a sample Memorandum of Lease].

[b] Term of Lease

This form provides for a fixed term [see Section 1.01 of form; see also § 34C.16 and Ch. 34B, Residential Leases , for discussion of the legal issues related to a lease's term]. For alternative provisions regarding the commencement of the lease term, see §§ 34C.210 (term to commence on occurrence of specified conditions) and 34C.211 (term to commence on completion of construction by landlord).

This form also grants the tenant a one-time option to extend the lease's term for an additional designated term [see Section 1.02 of form]. The minimum rent payable during the extended term is set forth in Section 2.01 of the form. The tenant's right to exercise the option is conditioned on the tenant's not being in default under the lease at the time the option is exercised. For alternative provisions granting a tenant successive options to extend the term of a lease or providing for alternative rental increases during the option periods, see § 34C.212.

PRACTICE TIP:

Provision for Extended Term. A provision to extend a lease term should expressly state when the tenant's notice of extension is effective; that is, whether the notice is effective when it is sent or when it is received [see, e.g., Section 1.02 of form]. This will avoid later litigation over whether the tenant met the notice requirement. By Myron Moskovitz.

For discussion and lease provisions granting the landlord or the tenant the right to terminate the lease on the occurrence of a stated event, see § 34C.272. For a specific provision granting the landlord the right to terminate the lease if financing cannot be obtained, see § 34C.251.

[c] Landlord's Duty to Deliver Possession

A covenant of quiet enjoyment and possession during the lease term is implied in every lease [Civ. Code § 1927; Baranov v. Scudder (1918) 177 Cal. 458, 462, 170 P. 1122] . The landlord's failure to put a tenant in possession of the leased premises justifies the tenant's termination of the lease [Dengler v. Michelssen (1888) 76 Cal. 125, 127, 18 P. 138] . The proper measure of damages for a landlord's failure to deliver possession of the leased premises is the difference between the agreed rent and the rental value of the premises during the lease's term [Foreman & Clark Corp. v. Fallon (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 875, 884, 92 Cal. Rptr. 162, 479 P.2d 362] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Landlord's Need for Flexibility in Delivering Possession. To avoid harsh consequences, landlords often insist on a lease provision that grants a landlord some flexibility in delivering possession when it may be needed, for example, when extra time is needed to evict a recalcitrant tenant or to complete tenant improvements the landlord is obligated to make. For example, the form in [2], below, specifies a commencement date, but specifies that if the landlord is unable to deliver possession by that date, the tenant may not terminate the lease and is not entitled to damages from the landlord [see Section 1.04 of form]. The tenant's only remedy is an abatement of rent until actual physical possession is delivered. However, if the landlord is unable to deliver possession within a stated grace period after the original commencement date, the tenant is granted the right to terminate the lease [see Section 1.05 of form]. If the projected date of delivery of possession is uncertain, as in the case of major construction to be completed by the landlord, the parties may want to provide for the alternative provision of a lease commencement date to coincide with delivery of possession [see § 34C.211]. The parties can also provide that the lease term would commence on the occurrence of some other event, such as obtaining a use permit or an alcoholic beverage license [see § 34C.210]. Another alternative provision that is more favorable to the tenant is to provide that the landlord must pay the tenant liquidated damages if there is a delay in delivery of possession [see § 34C.273]. For alternative provisions relating to the construction of the leased premises by the landlord, see § 34C.243. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

[d] Minimum Rent

[i] Amount of Minimum Rent

The amount of minimum rent, if any, required by a percentage lease is a matter of negotiation between the parties. This form provides for a basic fixed, or minimum rent [see Section 2.01 of form] in addition to a percentage rent [see [e], below]. The minimum and percentage rental obligations are also in addition to the tenant's obligation to pay for such items as personal property taxes [see Section 4.02 of form], insurance [see Sections 6.02-6.04 of form], and maintenance expenses [see Sections 5.03 and 5.04 of form].

The landlord (and the landlord's lender) may require the minimum rent to be an amount sufficient to cover the landlord's taxes, operating expenses, and loan payments. As an incentive, landlords may be willing to grant new tenants concessions in minimum rent during the early part of the lease term to permit the tenant to build up its business. The amount of minimum rent under a percentage lease is often lower than the fair market rental value of the leased premises.

For discussion and lease provisions relating to security deposits, see § 34C.220.

[ii] Increase Based on Consumer Price Index

Many landlords of retail leases insist on a method of adjusting rent to keep pace with inflation. One method is to increase the rent according to proportionate increases in national or local consumer price indices. Probably the most common standard used is the Consumer Price Index published monthly by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the U.S. Department of Labor. If the parties agree to employ the Consumer Price Index as the standard, they must determine which index they will use: the Consumer Price Index for Urban Wage Earners and Clerical Workers ("CPI-W") or the Consumer Price Index for All Urban Consumers ("CPI-U") [see Section 2.01(b) of form]. The parties must also decide whether to use the national index or the local index. The Department of Labor publishes local indices for the principal metropolitan areas. Although a local index may be more accurate, it may be necessary to provide an alternative index in case the index is modified or provides for too volatile an increase [see Section 2.01(d) of form].

The lease should also specify the figures being used as the base index and how often rent will be adjusted [see Section 2.01(b) of form]. To protect the landlord from the minimum rent falling below a designated level through a cost of living adjustment provided for in a lease, the lease generally includes a provision stating that the minimum rent, notwithstanding any adjustment, may not fall below either the minimum rent originally set in the lease or the amount of minimum rent payable under the lease immediately before the most recent adjustment [see Section 2.01(c) of form].

For an alternative provision that requires the tenant to pay additional rent based on increases in the landlord's operating expenses, see § 34C.202[2], P 3. For a provision that requires the tenant to pay additional rent based on increases in property taxes, see § 34C.201[2], Section 2.02.

[i] Calculating Amount

Most retail leases include a percentage rent provision in which the landlord collects as rent a specified percentage of the tenant's gross sales [Bostrom v. County of San Bernardino (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 1654, 1670, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669] . A percentage rent is advantageous to the landlord when a tenant operates a successful business because a higher generation of sales by a tenant results in the payment of increased rent to the landlord. Conversely, a percentage rent is advantageous to the tenant when a tenant experiences a downturn in business because the tenant pays lower rent under those circumstances.

A lease with percentage rent usually involves the payment of two separately computed amounts: (1) a fixed minimum rent [see [d], above] and (2) a percentage rent based on gross sales, gross receipts, gross revenues, or net profit [see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, Ch. 153, Drafting Commercial Leases (Matthew Bender)].

In this form, the tenant's percentage rent is the amount that a specified percent of the tenant's gross sales exceeds the minimum rent due [see Section 2.02(a) of form]. The term "gross sales" is defined [see Section 2.03 of form], as are items that may be excluded from gross sales [see Section 2.04 of form]. The form also provides that the tenant is required to maintain accurate books and records showing all gross sales made on the leased premises [see Section 2.05 of form] and to submit quarterly and annual statements to the landlord [see Section 2.06 of form]. The landlord has the right to have an audit performed of the tenant's books and records and, if an understatement of gross sales or rent in excess of a stated percentage is disclosed. In addition, the form provides that the landlord has the right to require the tenant to pay the costs and expenses of the audit [see Section 2.06 of form].

PRACTICE TIP:

Negotiate for Lease Provision That Keeps Records Confidential. The tenant's attorney might consider negotiating for a lease provision which provides that any information that the landlord obtains during an audit of the tenant's books and records must be kept confidential and used only to determine the proper percentage rent due, and must not be disclosed to any actual or potential competitor of the tenant. By Myron Moskovitz.

[ii] Amount and Time of Payment

When the parties to a lease have agreed to a percentage rent for the lease, they must determine whether the percentage rent will be based and paid on a monthly, quarterly, semi-annual, or annual basis.

PRACTICE TIP:

Annual vs. Monthly Sales as Basis for Percentage Lease. Tenants may prefer a basis of annual rather than monthly sales, so that heavy sales during peak seasons will be offset by lower sales during slow months. The landlord, however, may prefer a monthly basis, to obtain the percentage rent as it accrues rather than at the end of the year. In this form, percentage rent is payable monthly, but is subject to an annual adjustment if the tenant's monthly percentage rent payments exceed the total amount of percentage rent due on an annual basis [see Section 2.02(b) of form]. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

PRACTICE TIP: Industry Standards to Determine Amount of Percentage Rent. The precise percentage of gross sales payable to a landlord under a percentage lease is also a matter of negotiation between the parties. However, as a starting point for negotiation, the parties should be aware of the particular percentages customarily used for the specific business to be conducted on the leased premises. The percentages currently applicable to specific businesses are published periodically in real estate trade directories and should be available from a commercial real estate broker. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

[f] Use of Premises

A lease may limit the tenant's use of leased premises [Chandler v. Hart (1911) 161 Cal. 405, 413, 119 P. 516] . If the lease includes a percentage rent clause, it is in the landlord's interest to maximize the tenant's revenue; thus, a commercial lease commonly will specify the business the tenant is to engage in, and will prohibit the tenant from engaging in any other business [Bostrom v. County of San Bernardino (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 1654, 1670, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Broad "Use" Provision Is Beneficial to Tenant. The tenant's attorney should make sure that the "use" provision of the lease is broad enough to permit the sale of all products that the tenant plans to sell or might decide to sell during the lease's term--keeping in mind seasonal changes and possible changes in consumer tastes. By Myron Moskovitz.

In this form, the tenant's use is restricted to a particular type of retail business unless the tenant obtains the landlord's prior consent to another use [see Section 3.01 of form]. For discussion of the legal issues related to the use of the premises, including the statutory rules applicable to nonresidential leases, and for alternative lease provisions for restricting or permitting certain tenant uses, see § 34C.230.

Section 3.04 of the form is a provision prohibiting the tenant from committing waste or nuisance on the premises or using the premises for any unlawful purpose. For discussion of the law applicable to these issues, see § 34C.231[1].

PRACTICE TIP:

Tenant's Use of Premises. Unless there is good and substantial reason otherwise, the tenant should be permitted to make any lawful use of the premises, which does not conflict with the landlord's obligations to other tenants, and is suitable to the character of the building and the premises. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[g] Continuous Operation Provision

[i] Purpose

Because the amount of rent a landlord collects under a percentage lease is directly related to the success of a tenant's business, it is common for a landlord to require the tenant to continuously operate the business [see Section 3.02(a) of form]. Otherwise, as a general rule, there is no implied covenant on the tenant's part to continue to use the premises; the tenant may cease to use the premises for any purpose [Bostrom v. County of San Bernardino (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 1654, 1670, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669] .

However, as an exception to this general rule, even if a lease does not expressly include a covenant of continuous operation and/or a covenant restricting use of the premises to a particular purpose, the very fact that the lease provides for percentage rent may mean that such covenants may be implied [Bostrom v. County of San Bernardino (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 1654, 1670, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669] , especially in a lease in which there is no minimum rent or the minimum rent is not substantial [Lippman v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 136, 142-143, 280 P.2d 775] . "A substantial minimum" cannot be precisely defined [Lippman v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 136, 145, 280 P.2d 775] ; therefore factual information on this issue must be examined before a covenant will be implied.

PRACTICE TIP:

Limit Operation of Business Clauses. Operation of Business Clauses should be limited solely to a retail context. Moreover, you do not want a situation where your client, as a tenant, is the only business in the complex. It is amazing to see how such clauses appear in office building leases in which instance the landlord usually disclaims any knowledge that they were included. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[ii] Measure of Damages for Breach

The measure of damages for breach of the covenant to remain in business ordinarily is the amount that the landlord would have received from the landlord's share of the proceeds of the business had the tenant operated it in its usual and customary manner [Lippman v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 136, 146, 280 P.2d 775] . The parties, however, may provide a different measure of damages in the lease. For example, in one case the court found that the parties made specific provision for the payment of damages in the event the tenant ceased to occupy the premises in a case in which (1) the lease contained an implied covenant, (2) the tenant failed after nine years of a 10-year lease to use the property for a retail sales business, and (3) the tenant's subsequent use was solely for storing merchandise [Lippman v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 136, 146-147, 280 P.2d 775] . According to the lease in Lippman, if the tenant sublet or assigned the premises, the tenant would be entitled to receive "the average monthly rental paid by Tenant to Landlord during the twelve months' period last preceding such" subletting or assignment [Lippman v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 136, 146, 280 P.2d 775] . In the event the tenant abandoned the premises, the tenant agreed to pay as damages the difference between the best rent obtainable by the landlord from a reletting of them and "the rent herein reserved" [Lippman v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 136, 146, 280 P.2d 775] . In effect, these provisions liquidated the damages to the landlord from a loss of a percentage of the income from the tenant's business if it ceased to occupy the premises. The court determined that it was a reasonable implication from these provisions that the parties agreed on the same measure of damages when that loss resulted from abandonment of the integral purpose for which the lease was made [Lippman v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 136, 146-147, 280 P.2d 775] .

In addition to the tenant's covenant of continued business operation, this form also contains a provision for damages in the event of tenant's breach of this covenant [see Section 3.02(b) of form].

[h] Compliance With Laws

Section 3.05 of this form is a provision that obligates the tenant to comply with all laws and ordinances relating to the tenant's specific use of the premises, whether such laws are in existence at the time the lease is executed or subsequently enacted. For a discussion of the legal issues pertaining to this issue and an alternative provision allocating greater responsibility to the tenant, see § 34C.241.

[i] Noncompetition Clauses

Sections 3.06 and 3.07 of this form are reciprocal "radius restriction" noncompetition clauses. The landlord and the tenant agree that they will not operate a business similar to the tenant's business within a designated geographical radius. When the landlord receives percentage rent from the tenant's business, the landlord has an interest in the tenant generating maximum sales at the landlord's location rather than distributing sales among several competing locations. The tenant who agrees to a radius clause restricting its own operation is likely to insist on the landlord's reciprocal restriction to eliminate competition from the landlord.

For alternative noncompetition provisions and further discussion of noncompetition covenants, see § 34C.232.

PRACTICE TIP:

Noncompetition Clauses and Franchisees. A clause that landlord will not lease the premises to any competing business needs to be considered. If tenant is a franchisee, he or she may not have any control over the location of another franchise unless specified in its franchise agreement. Thus, any franchise agreement needs to be considered, including any clause drafted that takes such factors into account. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[j] Utilities and Taxes

Section 4.01 of this form requires the tenant to pay all utilities for the leased premises. This is common for the lease of a freestanding building. For a provision for a multitenant building that requires the tenant to pay a proportionate share of operating expenses that include utilities, see § 34C.202[2], P 3.

In the absence of an express agreement with regard to paying taxes, the landlord generally has the obligation to pay all taxes assessed against the leased premises during the lease's term [Lawrence v. F. W. Woolworth Co. (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 119, 121, 45 Cal. Rptr. 140, 403 P.2d 396] . An exception exists, however, for taxes on improvements constructed on the leased premises by the tenant when the tenant, by the terms of the lease, is permitted to remove the improvements during or at the end of the lease term. Unless the lease provides otherwise, the tenant has this liability even though the tenant proves that it is unlikely he or she will remove the improvements [Lawrence v. F. W. Woolworth Co. (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 119, 121-123, 45 Cal. Rptr. 140, 403 P.2d 396] .

In this form, the landlord is required to pay all real property taxes on the property [see Section 4.03 of form] and the tenant is required to pay all taxes or other charges imposed on personal property placed by the tenant on the premises [see Section 4.02 of form].

For a provision that may be used in a net lease to require the tenant to pay all real property taxes on the leased premises, see § 34C.221. For a provision that requires the landlord to pay all real estate taxes and the tenant to reimburse the landlord for any increase in taxes, see § 34C.201[2], Section 2.02.

[k] Repairs and Maintenance

This form requires the landlord to maintain and repair structural elements of the leased building [see Section 5.02 of form], and requires the tenant to maintain and repair nonstructural elements of the building and all other parts of the premises [see Section 5.03 of form], including plate window glass [see Section 5.04 of form].

PRACTICE TIP:

Pay Attention to Tenant's Obligations to Maintain Common Systems and Areas. When the tenant is obligating itself to maintain systems such as HVAC, then there has to be a great deal of care and attention to the history of those systems, as to whether they are to be exclusively used by tenant, under tenants control, or are even accessible to tenant without interference. The same concerns apply to "common areas," driveways, parking, and other paved surfaces. By Benjamin Kaplan.

For a lease provision that imposes all responsibility for repair and maintenance on a tenant, see § 34C.240. For alternative provisions and discussion of the legal obligations of the parties to make repairs or alterations mandated by existing or new laws and regulations, such as laws pertaining to seismic retrofitting, asbestos abatement, and access for disabled persons, see § 34C.241.

PRACTICE TIP:

Be Wary of Clause That Requires Acceptance of Premises in Their Present Condition. This form provides that the tenant must accept the premises, and improvements located on the premises, in their present condition [see Section 5.01]. However, this type of clause is a trap for the unwary. This is because other clauses in the lease interact with this clause which essentially says that there are no problems with the premises, which is unlikely at best, even in instances of new construction. By Benjamin Kaplan.

PRACTICE TIP: Compliance With Requirements Imposed by Government Agencies. Compliance with seismic upgrade or asbestos removal requirements imposed by a government agency might be extremely expensive. It is not clear whether a standard lease provision that requires the tenant to "comply with all applicable laws" imposes this expense on the tenant [compare Brown v. Green (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 812, 829-834, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 598, 884 P.2d 55 , with Hadian v. Schwartz (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 836, 846-850, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 589, 884 P.2d 46 ; see also Prudential Ins. Co. of America v. L.A. Mart (9th Cir. 1995) 68 F.3d 370, 373-374] . To avoid expensive litigation, it is better if the parties expressly provide for these contingencies in the lease. By Myron Moskovitz.

PRACTICE TIP: Tenants Should Be Wary of Compliance With Laws Clause. Any compliance with law clause is a potential financial disaster for the tenant. There may be any number of events that may trigger the need for substantial expense, be it seismic retrofitting, new code compliance, or ADA compliance. Even in instances when ADA compliance, and local law compliance regarding the disabled has already occurred for specific premises, there is no guarantee that the authorities will not find non-compliance even when nothing has changed respecting the prior compliance. Although it may be disputed whether such things as ADA are covered by such a clause, when the triggering event is an act by the tenant, more likely than not the obligation will be imposed on the tenant. By Benjamin Kaplan.

In the absence of contrary provisions in a lease, a tenant only has the duty to use ordinary care for preserving the premises in safe and good condition [see Civ. Code § 1928] and to repair all deteriorations or injuries to the premises caused by the tenant's want of ordinary care [Civ. Code § 1929; Lynn v. De Pue Warehouse Co. (1962) 198 Cal. App. 2d 742, 747, 17 Cal. Rptr. 841] . Otherwise, a tenant has no general duty to repair the premises or to correct defective conditions [Glenn R. Sewell Sheet Metal, Inc. v. Loverde (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 666, 671-672, 75 Cal. Rptr. 889, 451 P.2d 721] . However, a tenant must, as the possessor of land, act as a reasonable person in managing the property in view of the probability of injury to others [Civ. Code § 1714(a); Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 119, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561] .

This form requires the landlord's consent before any tenant alterations, and contains a covenant by the tenant to keep the premises free of mechanics' liens in the event alterations are made [see Section 5.05 of form; see also discussion of mechanics' liens in § 34C.240[1][d]]. It also provides that any alterations become the landlord's property, but that the landlord may require the tenant to remove alterations and repair damage caused by the removal on the lease's termination [see Section 5.05 of form]. For discussion of the law applicable to alterations made by a tenant to the leased premises, see § 34C.240[1]. For alternative provisions for alterations by a tenant, see § 34C.240[2].

[m] Insurance and Indemnity

In the lease in [2], below, the tenant is required to procure and maintain (1) public liability and property damage insurance and (2) fire and extended coverage insurance for the leased premises [see Sections 6.02 and 6.04 of form]. The tenant is also required to insure all of its own personal property [see Section 6.03 of form]. For a discussion of the rights and obligations of a tenant and landlord with regard to insurance, including the subjects of indemnity and insurance, and alternative insurance provisions for a lease, see § 34C.222.

[n] Signs and Trade Fixtures

This form gives the tenant maximum flexibility in installing signs on the leased premises, subject only to compliance with any applicable governmental restrictions or requirements for signs [see Section 7.03 of form]. Sign restrictions are usually more stringent for a multitenant building.

This form also provides that the tenant is permitted to install any trade fixtures it deems advisable and to remove the trade fixtures, provided removal does not result in structural damage to the building and is accomplished within a designated time period [see Sections 7.01 and 7.02 of form].

For a discussion of the law and alternative lease provisions relating to fixtures, including trade fixtures, see § 34C.242.

[o] Destruction of Premises

If the lease does not require either party to restore leased premises that are destroyed, either party may terminate the lease in the event of such destruction [Civ. Code §§ 1932(2), 1933(4); Harvey v. Weisbaum (1911) 159 Cal. 265, 267, 113 P. 656] . However, the parties to the lease may agree that one or the other party is obligated to rebuild the destroyed premises and the lease will continue in effect [see Glenn R. Sewell Sheet Metal, Inc. v. Loverde (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 666, 678, 75 Cal. Rptr. 889, 451 P.2d 721] . For further discussion of the law applicable to the destruction of the leased premises, see § 34C.244[1].

In this form, the landlord is required to rebuild the leased premises within a designated time if they are destroyed from any cause during the tenancy [see Section 8.01 of form]. However, the landlord is excused from this obligation and may elect instead to terminate the lease if any of the following occurs [see Section 8.02 of form]:

- The damage cannot be repaired within a designated time period agreed on by the parties;
- The cost to repair or rebuild from an uninsured cause exceeds a stated dollar amount; or
- The destruction occurs near the end of the lease term.

When the landlord is obligated to rebuild, a failure to complete construction within the time period agreed to by the parties gives the tenant the right to terminate the lease [see Section 8.01 of form]. During any period of construction in which the tenant is unable to operate its business, the rent under the lease abates; if the tenant is able to continue operation of its business during the construction period, the tenant must continue to pay percentage rent but receives a reduction in minimum rent [see Section 8.03 of form].

For lease provisions that require the tenant to rebuild if the leased premises are destroyed, see § 34C.244[2].

If the parties to a lease do not otherwise provide for the rights and obligations of the landlord and tenant in the event the leased premises are condemned [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.160], these matters are governed by applicable statutory law [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1230.010-1273.050] and case law. For a full discussion of the law applicable to the effect of condemnation on the lease and the parties' compensable interests, and for alternative lease provisions for condemnation, see § 34C.262.

This lease provides that it terminates if the leased premises are totally condemned [see Section 9.01 of form]. In the event of partial condemnation, the tenant has the right to terminate the lease if a minimum percentage of the building or premises is taken [see Section 9.02 of form]. Otherwise, the lease continues in effect for the portion of the premises not condemned with a proportionate reduction in rent [see Section 9.03 of form]. The full amount of the condemnation award belongs to the landlord and the tenant waives any right to share in the award [see Section 9.04 of form].

[q] Assignment and Subletting

A tenant under a nonresidential lease has an unrestricted right to sublease, assign, or otherwise transfer that leasehold interest unless the lease restricts or absolutely prohibits transfers [Civ. Code §§ 1995.210, 1995.230; see Civ. Code §§ 1995.010-1995.340; see also Civ. Code § 1044]. In this form, the tenant is required to obtain the landlord's consent before assigning the tenant's interest in the lease or subletting the leased premises. The lease expressly states that the landlord's consent must not be unreasonably withheld [see Section 10.01 of form]. It should be noted that the lease must provide for a tenant's right to assign or sublet the premises, subject only to reasonable limitations, for a landlord to take advantage of the statutory remedy to continue a lease in effect on the tenant's default [see § 34C.271].

This form also prohibits assignments or transfers that are involuntary or that occur by operation of law [see Section 10.01 of form].

PRACTICE TIP:

Termination Based on Tenant's Bankruptcy Unenforceable Under Federal Bankruptcy Code. Often a lease will include a provision prohibiting the assignment of a lease by operation of law, or whether assignment is voluntary or involuntary [see Section 10.01 of form]. This is the case notwithstanding the fact that at this time a prohibition against a transfer pursuant to a bankruptcy proceeding is unenforceable under the Federal Bankruptcy Code [see § 34C.20]. The landlord should be advised that this language does not prevent an assumption and assignment of the lease in a tenant's federal bankruptcy proceeding. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

PRACTICE TIP: Restrictions Against Subletting or Assignment. Is a landlord's refusal to consent to an assignment "unreasonable" [see Section 10.01 of form, last sentence] when the landlord demands some sort of payment? And, does it matter whether the payment is to reimburse the landlord for some legitimate type of expense (such as checking the assignee's credit) or is simply an attempt to obtain a windfall for the landlord? Disputes and litigation surrounding these questions might be avoided by dealing with these issues in the lease. By Myron Moskovitz.

For a discussion of the law applicable to restrictions on subletting and assignment, see § 34C.260[1]. For alternative lease provisions that entirely prohibit subletting and assignment or permit them only conditionally, see § 34C.260[2].

[r] Tenant's Default

Section 10.02 of this form lists acts and omissions by the tenant that are considered a default under the lease. In this form, a default is not considered to have occurred with respect to payment of rent or performance of any other term or condition of the lease until the landlord has given the tenant written notice of the act or omission and the tenant fails to cure within a time period agreed on in the lease [see Section 10.02(a), (c) of form]. Because of the substantial financial commitment of both parties involved in a nonresidential lease, this type of provision is common. If the purpose of the provision is to extend the three-day time to cure under the unlawful detainer statutes [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161 et seq.] and to require the landlord's notice as a condition to the tenant in being in default, those facts should be stated in the lease [see, e.g., Fifth & Broadway Partnership v. Kimny, Inc. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 195, 201, 162 Cal. Rptr. 271 (landlord's failure to give 90-day notice of default provided in lease was not a bar to unlawful detainer action against subtenant when 90-day notice requirement was optional and was not intended to replace landlord's rights under unlawful detainer statute)].

This form also contains a provision describing the circumstances under which the tenant will be deemed to have abandoned the premises and breached the lease [see Section 10.02(b) of form]. The fact of abandonment may be determined by a statutory procedure [see Civ. Code § 1951.3], but that procedure is not exclusive [see Civ. Code § 1951.3(f)].

Section 10.02(d) of this form lists other circumstances relating to the financial condition of the tenant that are considered a default under the lease. One of these is the filing of a bankruptcy petition by or against the tenant (unless it is dismissed within a stated time period). A provision permitting the landlord to terminate a lease because of the tenant's bankruptcy is, with few exceptions, unenforceable under federal bankruptcy law [see § 34C.20].

In the event of a lease termination, a landlord is entitled to recover damages provided by statute [see Civ. Code § 1951.2; Section 10.03 of form]. To recover certain damages, the lease must provide for their recovery [see Civ. Code § 1951.2(c)]. In addition, the landlord has a duty to mitigate certain damages [see Civ. Code § 1951.2(a)(2), (3), (c)]. The duty to mitigate and the remedy of damages on lease termination are discussed in § 34C.270[1].

Section 10.05 of this form provides for the landlord's right to relet the premises. Parties to a nonresidential lease may also provide for liquidated damages in the event of a breach or a failure of a condition [see Civ. Code § 1671(b)]. For discussion and a lease provision for liquidated damages, see § 34C.273.

[t] Continuation of Lease After Breach

Section 10.04 of this form gives the landlord the right to continue the lease in effect (and collect rent as it becomes due) instead of terminating the lease on the tenant's default. This provision will be valid only if the tenant also has the right to assign or sublet the lease, subject only to reasonable limitations [Civ. Code § 1951.4(b)]. For a full discussion of the law applicable to the landlord's right to continue the lease in effect, see § 34C.271[1].

[u] Miscellaneous Provisions

An attorneys' fees provision is included in this lease [see Section 11.02 of form]. For an alternative provision and a discussion of applicable law, see § 34C.274.

Other miscellaneous provisions included in Article 11 of this form are the following:

- A force majeure clause [see Section 11.01 of form; see also Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions, § 75.235].

- A provision describing the methods by which either party may give the other any notice required or permitted by the lease [see Section 11.03 of form; see also Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions, § 75.294].

PRACTICE TIP:

Notices. Many problems arise respecting the notice; as to when given, when effective, and when and if received. Thus, to the extent that any provision should be as specific as possible, the notice provisions require the greatest specificity. Actual notice should be the goal. Thus, in lieu of personal service, the first class U.S. Mail should not be the sole source of notice as if the envelope is delivered, it may be overlooked with junk mail or the like, the possibility of which could have untoward consequences. Therefore, a provision should be inserted that if personal service is not obtained, then in addition to first class mailed notice, there should be Express Mail or its private equivalent, which would permit a tracing of the delivery. Any party who mails first class mail should do so at the post office and obtain and retain a proof of mailing as evidence. By Benjamin Kaplan.

- A provision making the lease binding on successors of the parties [see Section 11.04 of form; see also Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions, § 75.282].

- A partial-invalidity clause [see Section 11.05 of form; see also Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions, § 75.271].

- A sole-and-only-agreement clause [see Section 11.06 of form; see also Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions, § 75.270].

- A time-is-of-the-essence clause [see Section 11.07 of form; see also Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements, § 23.200].

The following additional miscellaneous provisions may be added to the lease:

- Subordination, nondisturbance, and attornment agreements [see § 34C.250].

- Tenant to execute an estoppel certificate on the landlord's request [see § 34C.261].

- Parties to arbitrate all or certain specified disputes [see § 34C.280].

RETAIL LEASE

Preamble

This lease is made and entered into on _____[date], by and between _____[name or names], _____[legal status, e.g., a California corporation] ("Landlord"), and _____[name or names], _____[legal status, e.g., a California limited partnership] ("Tenant").

Landlord, for and in consideration of the rent to be paid by Tenant and of the covenants and provisions to be kept and performed by Tenant under this lease, hereby leases to Tenant, and Tenant agrees to lease from Landlord, the following: the real property commonly known as _____[street address], _____[city], California, and legally described on Exhibit "_____," attached hereto ("the Property"), together with _____[describe included improvements, appurtenances, and easements, e.g., the freestanding single-story building and paved parking on the north side of the building] (collectively referred to as "the Improvements") located on the Property. The term "Premises" as used in this lease shall mean both the Property and the Improvements.

ARTICLE 1 TERM OF LEASE

Original Term

Section 1.01. This lease shall be for a term of _____[number, e.g., 10] years, commencing at 12:01 A.M. on _____[date] ("Commencement Date"), and ending at 12:01 A.M. on _____[date] ("Original Term"), unless terminated earlier pursuant to the provisions of this lease.

Extended Term

Section 1.02. In the event Tenant is not then in default under this lease, Tenant shall have the option and right to extend the Original Term of this lease for one period of _____[number, e.g., five years], commencing on expiration of the Original Term. If Tenant elects to extend the term of this lease, Tenant must give Landlord written notice of Tenant's election to extend at least _____[time period, e.g., 30 days] before expiration of the Original Term. The written notice shall be deemed effective on personal delivery to Landlord or on the date it is deposited in the United States mail in accordance with the provisions of Section 11.03. During the Extended Term of this lease, if any, Landlord and Tenant shall be bound by all of the obligations, covenants, and agreements of this lease except that Tenant shall have no right to further extend the term of this lease beyond or after expiration of the one _____[specify period stated above, e.g., five-year] period granted under this section. References throughout this lease to "the term of this lease" shall include both the Original Term and the Extended Term, if any, unless otherwise indicated.

Holding Over

Section 1.03. In the event Tenant holds over and continues in possession of the Premises after expiration of the Original Term (when Tenant has not validly exercised its option to extend the term of the lease in accordance with Section 1.02) or after expiration of the Extended Term (when Tenant has validly exercised its option to extend the term of the lease in accordance with Section 1.02), Tenant's continued occupancy of the Premises shall be considered a month-to-month tenancy subject to all the terms and conditions of this lease.

Landlord's Inability to Deliver Possession

Section 1.04. If Landlord is for any reason unable to deliver possession of the Premises to Tenant on the Commencement Date set forth in Section 1.01 of this lease, this lease shall not be void or voidable nor shall Landlord be liable to Tenant for any loss or damage resulting from failure to deliver possession to Tenant so long as Landlord has exercised, and continues to exercise, reasonable diligence to deliver possession of the Premises to Tenant. No rent shall, however, accrue or become due from Tenant to Landlord under this lease until the actual physical possession of the Premises is delivered, or the right to actual unrestricted physical possession of the Premises under this lease is tendered by Landlord to Tenant. Furthermore, the term of this lease shall not be extended by Landlord's inability to deliver possession of the Premises to Tenant on the Commencement Date set forth in Section 1.01.

Termination for Failure of Possession

Section 1.05. Notwithstanding any provision of Section 1.04 of this lease, if Landlord for any reason fails to deliver actual physical possession of the Premises, or fails to tender actual unrestricted physical possession of the Premises under this lease, to Tenant _____[within _____ (number) days after _____ (the date specified in Section 1.01 of this lease for commencement of the term of this lease or before _____ (date)], Tenant may terminate this lease by giving Landlord written notice of its election to do so. In the event Tenant elects to so terminate this lease, this lease shall become null and void as of the date Tenant delivers its written notice of termination to Landlord, and thereafter neither party to this lease shall be under any further obligation or liability to the other because of this lease and Landlord shall return to Tenant any consideration received from Tenant pursuant to or for execution of this lease. If Tenant elects to terminate this lease in accordance with the provisions of this section, it shall give written notice of its election to terminate to Landlord _____[not later than _____ (number, e.g., five) days after the date specified in Section 1.01 of this lease for commencement of the term of this lease or before _____ (date)].

ARTICLE 2 RENT

Minimum Rent

Section 2.01. (a) Tenant agrees to pay to Landlord, in addition to the Percentage Rent provided for in Section 2.02 of this lease, a fixed minimum rental for the use and occupancy of the Premises (the "Minimum Rent"). The amount of Minimum Rent payable for each month during the Original Term shall be $ _____, and the amount of Minimum Rent payable for each month during the Extended Term, if any, shall be $ _____. The Minimum Rent shall be payable on the _____[specify, e.g., first] day of each and every month commencing _____[date] (the "Rent Commencement Date"), at the office of Landlord at _____[address], _____[city], California, or at any other place or places as Landlord may from time to time designate by written notice delivered to Tenant. Minimum Rent for partial calendar months occurring at the commencement and termination of the term of this lease shall be prorated accordingly.

(b) Commencing on _____[specify date for first increase to be effective, e.g., the first day of the sixth year of the lease term) and continuing each year thereafter ("the Rent Adjustment Date"), the minimum rent set forth in Section 2.01(a) shall be subject to adjustment as follows: The Consumer Price Index for _____ [specify e.g., Urban Wage Earners and Clerical Workers or All Urban Consumers or a local index] published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, United States Department of Labor for all items ("Index") in effect on _____[specify base date, e.g., June 1, 1998] shall be the Base Index. For each Rent Adjustment Date, the Index in effect immediately before that Rent Adjustment Date ("the Adjustment Index") shall be used for purposes of calculating the amount of adjustment, if any. If the Adjustment Index has increased over the Base Index, the minimum rent payable for the following year and until the next Rent Adjustment Date shall be increased by the same percentage as the Adjustment Index bears to the Base Index.

(d) If the Consumer Price Index, as now constituted, compiled, and published shall cease to be compiled and published during the term of this lease, or is calculated on a significantly different basis following the date of this lease, the most comprehensive official Index published that most closely approximates the rate of inflation shall be used for purposes of computing adjustments under this lease.

Percentage Rent

Section 2.02. (a) In addition to the Minimum Rent provided for in Section 2.01 of this lease, Tenant shall pay annually as hereinafter provided, as additional rent, the amount, if any, by which _____[specify percent, e.g., three] percent of Tenant's "gross sales" (as hereinafter defined) exceeds the Minimum Rent for the lease year. Such additional rent is hereafter referred to as "Percentage Rent." The Percentage Rent shall be paid by Tenant to Landlord at the same location described in Section 2.01(a) of this lease for the payment of Minimum Rent and shall be paid monthly, not later than _____[number, e.g., 10] days after the end of each calendar month.

(b) Tenant agrees to deliver to Landlord, within 15 days after the close of each lease year during the term of this lease, an "annual statement of gross sales" (as hereinafter defined) showing the gross receipts of Tenant during such lease year. If the total amount of monthly Percentage Rent payments exceeds the annual Percentage Rent due, Landlord shall pay to Tenant the excess Percentage Rent within _____[specify days, e.g., 15] days of receipt of Tenant's annual statement of gross sales. The "annual statement of gross sales" shall be a statement of Tenant's gross receipts for the lease year for which the same is required, prepared by Tenant's regularly employed accountant or bookkeeper and certified to be correct by an independent certified public accountant.

Gross Sales Defined

Section 2.03. For purposes of this Article, the term "gross sales" shall mean the total selling price of all merchandise or services sold or rendered in, on, or from the Premises by Tenant, its Subtenants, licensees, or concessionaires, whether for cash or on credit and if on credit whether or not paid, and shall include, without limitation:

(a) Proceeds from all automatic vending, weighing, and other machines owned and operated by Tenant in or on the Premises;

(b) Commissions received by Tenant from any automatic vending, weighing, and other machines not owned by

Tenant but operated in or on the Premises;

(c) Commissions received by Tenant from the operation of public telephones in or on the Premises; and

(d) Proceeds from sales based on orders solicited or taken from, in, or on the Premises for merchandise or services to be delivered or rendered off, or from sources outside, the Premises.

Gross Sales Exclusions

Section 2.04. Notwithstanding the provisions of Section 2.03 of this lease, the term "gross sales" shall not include the following items, and those items may be deducted from gross sales to the extent they have been included in a prior computation of gross sales on which a percentage rental has been paid under this lease to Landlord:

(a) Credits and refunds made to customers for merchandise returned or exchanged;

(b) Credits and amounts paid or allowed customers in settlement of claims for loss or damage to merchandise;

(c) Any sales or excise taxes otherwise includable in gross sales as defined in this Article because part of the total selling price of merchandise or services rendered in, from, or on the Premises when Tenant must account for and remit the taxes to the government entity or entities by which they are imposed;

(d) Any transfer of merchandise from the Premises to the manufacturer or supplier from whom it was obtained by Tenant; and

(e) Any sales to Tenant's employees at a discount off the retail price.

Books and Records

Section 2.05. Tenant shall at all times keep or cause to be kept on the Premises complete and accurate records and books of account showing the total amount of gross sales made in, on, or from the Premises. Tenant covenants that it shall cause to be installed accurate cash registers, which shall show and record each and every sale made on and within the Premises and which also shall show the total of all daily sales. Tenant agrees to maintain on the Premises for a period of three years following the close of each calendar month all records and books of account and all cash register tapes showing or in any way pertaining to the gross sales made in, on, or from the Premises during that calendar month.

Statement of Gross Sales and Audit

Section 2.06. (a) Tenant agrees to submit the following to Landlord: quarterly statements of gross sales received from the business operated on the Premises; a statement of yearly gross sales, within 30 days immediately following the end of the first and each succeeding full year of the term of this lease; and a statement of gross sales made since the last quarterly statement, within 30 days following the expiration or earlier termination of this lease. The first such yearly statement shall include gross sales for the first 12 whole months and any partial month immediately following the Rent Commencement Date of this lease. All such statements shall be signed by a responsible and authorized financial officer of Tenant certifying the amount of gross sales (as defined in this lease) defined for the period to be accounted for. If by any such yearly statement it appears that any percentage rent is due and payable to Landlord for the preceding yearly period, it shall be paid to Landlord within _____[designated period, e.g., 30 days] immediately following the date the yearly statement is rendered. All minimum and percentage rent shall be paid to Landlord without deduction or offset.

(b) Landlord may at any time within one year after receiving a statement from Tenant, at Landlord's own cost and expense, cause all books, records, and cash register tapes described in Section 2.05 of this lease for the calendar month purportedly covered by the statement to be audited by a public or certified public accountant selected by Landlord. On receiving written notice of Landlord's election for such an audit, Tenant shall deliver and make available all such books, records, and cash register tapes to the public or certified public accountant selected by Landlord. Furthermore, Tenant shall promptly on demand reimburse Landlord for the full cost and expense of the audit if the audit discloses that the questioned statement understated gross sales or the rent payable because of gross sales by _____[specify, e.g., five] percent or more.

Tenant's bookkeeper and/or accountant shall respond to all questions and inquiries of Landlord's certified public accountant with respect to the books and records being examined, and shall provide other further documentation as may be required by the Landlord's CPA.

(c) Landlord is entitled to take statements by deposition under oath of Tenant, Tenant's officers, or of any person who prepared the financial reports.

ARTICLE 3 USE OF PREMISES

Permitted Use

Section 3.01. During the term of this lease (including the Original Term and the Extended Term, if any), the Premises shall be used for the exclusive purpose of operating and conducting a _____[specify type of business, e.g., a retail drug store], for uses normally incident to that purpose, and for no other purpose. Tenant shall not use or permit the Premises to be used for any other purpose, without the prior written consent of Landlord. In conducting the business specified in this Section in and on the Premises, Tenant shall sell any merchandise and render any services that are customarily sold and rendered by the operators of businesses of the same type in _____[name of county in which premises are located] county.

Operation of Business

Section 3.02. (a) During the lease's term, Tenant shall, unless prevented by casualty loss to the building, strikes, or other conditions beyond Tenant's control, conduct business of the type and nature specified in Section 3.01 of this lease on the Premises in a diligent and business like manner and keep the Premises open for business from at least _____ A.M. to at least _____ P.M. each day [except Sundays and legal holidays]. Tenant shall at all times keep the business adequately stocked with current merchandise competitive with similar businesses in the area and shall employ a sufficient number of personnel to conduct the business in a manner consistent with sound business and management practices. Tenant shall also install and maintain, at all times during the term of this lease, attractive displays of merchandise in the display windows of the Premises and keep all display windows and all signs on the Premises well lighted from sundown until _____ P.M. each night [except Sundays and legal holidays].

(b) A breach by Tenant of the covenant contained in this Section shall not excuse Tenant from its obligation to pay the Minimum Rent and Percentage Rent required under this lease for the full term of the lease. In the event Tenant ceases to operate its business on the leased premises, the Percentage Rent payable annually [or quarterly or specify other period] by Tenant for the balance of the lease term occurring after the cessation of Tenant's business shall be based on the gross receipts [or other receipts specified in lease] of Tenant's business earned for the 12-month period [or quarter or other period for which percentage rent is calculated under lease] immediately preceding the cessation of business.

Insurance Hazards

Section 3.03. Tenant shall not commit or permit the commission of any acts on the Premises nor use or permit the use of the Premises in any manner that will increase the existing rates for or cause the cancellation of any fire, liability, or other insurance policy insuring the Premises or the improvements on the Premises. Tenant shall, at its own cost and expense, comply with any and all requirements of Landlord's insurance carriers necessary for the continued maintenance at reasonable rates of fire and liability insurance policies on the Premises and the improvements on the Premises.

Waste or Nuisance

Section 3.04. Tenant shall not commit or permit the commission by others of any waste on the Premises. Tenant shall not maintain, commit, or permit the maintenance or commission of any nuisance as defined in Civil Code Section 3479 on the Premises. Tenant shall not use or permit the use of the Premises for any unlawful purpose.

Compliance With Laws

Section 3.05. Tenant shall at Tenant's own cost and expense comply with all statutes, ordinances, regulations, and requirements of all governmental entities, both federal and state and county or municipal, relating to Tenant's specific use and occupancy of the Premises (and specifically excluding any such laws and requirements which would pertain to any lawful use and occupancy of the Premises in contrast to Tenant's specific use), whether those statutes, ordinances, regulations, and requirements are now in force or are subsequently enacted.

Noncompetition by Tenant

Section 3.06. Neither Tenant nor any entity that controls or is controlled by Tenant shall own, operate, control, or in any manner become financially involved in any business similar to that specified in Section 3.01 of this lease located within _____[number, e.g., five] miles in any direction of the Premises.

Noncompetition by Landlord

Section 3.07. Neither Landlord nor any entity that controls or is controlled by Landlord shall own, operate, control, or in any manner become financially involved in any business similar to that specified in Section 3.01 of this lease located within _____[number, e.g., five] miles in any direction of the Premises.

ARTICLE 4 TAXES AND UTILITIES

Utilities

Section 4.01. Tenant shall pay, and hold Landlord and the property of Landlord free and harmless from, all charges for the furnishing of gas, water, sewer, electricity, telephone service, garbage pickup and disposal, and other public utilities to the Premises during the term of this lease. All such charges shall be paid by Tenant directly to the provider of the service and shall be paid as they become due and payable but in any event before delinquency.

Personal Property Taxes

Section 4.02. Tenant shall pay before they become delinquent all taxes, assessments, and other charges levied or imposed by any governmental entity on the furniture, trade fixtures, appliances, and other personal property placed by Tenant in, on, or about the Premises including, without limiting the generality of the other terms used in this section, any shelves, counters, vaults, vault doors, wall safes, partitions, fixtures, machinery, plant equipment, office equipment, television or radio antennas, and communication equipment brought on the Premises by Tenant.

Real Property Taxes

Section 4.03. All real property taxes and assessments levied or assessed against the Premises by any governmental entity, including any special assessments imposed on or against the Premises for the construction or improvement of public works in, on, or about the Premises, shall be paid, before they become delinquent, by Landlord.

ARTICLE 5 ALTERATIONS AND REPAIRS

Condition of Premises

Section 5.01. Tenant accepts the Premises, as well as the Improvements located on the Premises, in their present condition and stipulates with Landlord that the Premises and Improvements are in good, clean, safe, and tenantable condition as of the date of this lease. Tenant further agrees with and represents to Landlord that the Premises have been inspected by Tenant, that it has received assurances acceptable to Tenant by means independent of Landlord or any agent of Landlord of the truth of all facts material to this lease, and that the Premises are being leased by Tenant as a result of its own inspection and investigation and not as a result of any representations made by Landlord or any agent of Landlord except those expressly set forth in this lease.

Maintenance by Landlord

Section 5.02. (a) Landlord shall, at its own cost and expense, maintain in good condition and repair the structural elements of the Building. For purposes of this section, "structural elements" shall mean the exterior roof, exterior walls (except show window glass), structural supports, and foundation of the Building. Landlord shall not be liable for any damages to Tenant or the property of Tenant resulting from Landlord's failure to make any repairs required by this section unless written notice of the need for those repairs has been given to Landlord by Tenant and Landlord has failed for a period of _____[number, e.g., 30] days after receipt of the notice, unless prevented by causes not the fault of the Landlord, to make the needed repairs. Notwithstanding anything in this Section to the contrary, Tenant shall promptly reimburse Landlord for the full cost of any repairs made pursuant to this Section required because of the negligence or other fault, other than normal and proper use, of Tenant or its employees or agents or subtenants, if any.

(b) Landlord and its agents shall have the right to enter the Premises at all reasonable times (and at any time during an emergency) for the purpose of inspecting them or to make any repairs required to be made by Landlord under this lease.

Maintenance by Tenant

Section 5.03. Except as otherwise expressly provided in Section 5.02 of this lease, Tenant shall at its own cost and expense keep and maintain all portions of the Premises and all Improvements located on the Premises in good order and repair and in as safe and clean a condition as they were when received by Tenant from Landlord, reasonable wear and tear excepted. Tenant's obligation to repair shall specifically include necessary repairs to the heating, ventilation, and air conditioning systems, interior walls, floor coverings, ceilings, painting and maintenance of exterior walls, the interior and exterior portions of all doors, paved driveways and parking areas, and landscaping for the Premises.

Maintenance of Plate Glass

Section 5.04. Tenant shall, at its own cost and expense, repair and replace any plate glass in any show window on the Premises that is broken regardless of any cause, except by fault of Landlord, or by fault of some employee or agent of Landlord. Furthermore, Tenant shall at Tenant's own cost and expense at all times during the term of this lease carry adequate plate glass insurance on the glass in all show windows on the Premises to perform the repair and replacement requirements of this section. Should Tenant fail to repair or replace any glass broken in a show window or fail to maintain adequate plate glass insurance on the glass in show windows on the Premises, Landlord may replace or repair the broken glass or secure that insurance and Tenant shall promptly reimburse Landlord for the cost of the repair, replacement, or insurance. In addition, Tenant shall pay Landlord interest on those costs at the rate of _____ percent per year from the date the costs were incurred by Landlord to the date they are reimbursed to Landlord by Tenant.

Alterations and Liens

Section 5.05. Tenant shall not make or permit any other person to make any alterations to the Premises or to any Improvements on the Premises without the prior written consent of Landlord. Landlord shall not unreasonably withhold this consent. Tenant shall keep the premises free and clear from any and all liens, claims, and demands for work performed, materials furnished, or operations conducted on the Premises at the instance or request of Tenant. Furthermore, any and all alterations, additions, improvements, and fixtures, except furniture and trade fixtures, made or placed in or on the Premises by Tenant or any other person shall on expiration or earlier termination of this lease, become the property of Landlord and remain on the Premises. Landlord shall have the option, however, on expiration or termination of this lease, of requiring Tenant, at Tenant's sole cost and expense, to remove any or all such alterations, additions, improvements, or fixtures from the Premises.

Inspection by Landlord

Section 5.06. Tenant shall permit Landlord or Landlord's agents, representatives, or employees to enter the Premises at all reasonable times for the purpose of inspecting the Premises to determine whether Tenant is complying with the terms of this lease, for the purpose of doing other lawful acts that may be necessary to protect Landlord's interest in the Premises, or for the purpose of performing Landlord's duties under this lease.

Surrender of Premises

Section 5.07. On expiration or earlier termination of this lease, Tenant shall promptly surrender and deliver the Premises to Landlord in as good condition as they are now at the date of this lease, excluding reasonable wear and tear, and repairs required to be made by Landlord under this lease.

ARTICLE 6 INDEMNITY AND INSURANCE

Hold-Harmless Clause

Section 6.01. Tenant agrees to protect, indemnify, and save Landlord harmless from and against any all liability to third parties resulting from Tenant's occupation and use of the Premises, specifically including, without limitation, any claim, liability, loss, or damage arising by reason of:

(a) The death or injury of any person or persons, including Tenant or any person who is an employee or agent of Tenant, or by reason of the damage to or destruction of any property, including property owned by Tenant or any person who is an employee or agent of Tenant, and caused or allegedly caused by either the condition of the Premises, or some act or omission of Tenant or of some agent, contractor, employee, servant, subtenant, or concessionaire of Tenant on the Premises;

(b) Any work performed on the Premises or materials furnished to the Premises at the instance or request of Tenant or any agent or employee of Tenant; and

(c) Tenant's failure to perform any provision of this lease.

Public Liability and Property Damage Insurance

Section 6.02. Tenant shall, at its own cost and expense, procure and maintain during the entire term of this lease public liability insurance and property damage insurance issued by an insurance company reasonably acceptable to Landlord and insuring Landlord against loss or liability caused by or connected with Tenant's occupation and use of the Premises under this lease in amounts not less than:

(a) $ _____ for injury to or death of one person and, subject to that limitation for the injury or death of one person, of not less than $ _____ for injury to or death of two or more persons as a result of any one accident or incident; and

(b) $ _____ for damage to or destruction of any property of others.

The insurance required under this Section shall be issued by a responsible insurance company or companies authorized to do business in California and shall be in a form reasonably satisfactory to Landlord. Tenant shall within _____[number, e.g., 10] days of the date of this lease, deposit with Landlord a certificate showing that insurance to be in full force and effect.

Tenant's Personal Property

Section 6.03. Tenant shall, during the full term of this lease and any renewals or extensions thereof, maintain at Tenant's own cost and expense an insurance policy issued by a reputable company authorized to conduct insurance business in California insuring for their full insurable value all fixtures and equipment and, to the extent possible, all merchandise that is, at any time during the term of this lease, in or on the Premises against damage or destruction by fire, theft, or the elements.

Fire and Extended Coverage Insurance

Section 6.04. Tenant shall, during the term of this lease, procure, carry, and pay for fire and extended coverage insurance, insuring the Building and other Improvements on the Premises for at least _____[number, e.g., 90] percent of their full replacement value. The policy shall name Landlord as an additional insured and shall be issued by a responsible insurance company authorized to do business in California. Landlord hereby waives any and all right of recovery against Tenant for any loss occurring to the Premises, and the insurance policy required by this Section shall contain an endorsement recognizing this release by Landlord and waiving all rights of subrogation by the insurer.

The term "extended coverage" as used herein shall mean any casualties that are commonly included under the term "extended coverage" as that term is known and used in the casualty insurance business.

Cancellation Requirements

Section 6.05. Each of the insurance policies shall be in a form reasonably satisfactory to Landlord and shall carry an endorsement that, before changing or canceling any policy, the issuing insurance company shall give Landlord at least 30 days' prior written notice. Duplicate originals or certificates of all such insurance policies shall be delivered to Landlord.

ARTICLE 7 SIGNS AND TRADE FIXTURES

Installation and Removal of Trade Fixtures

Section 7.01. Tenant shall have the right at any time and from time to time during the term of this lease, at Tenant's sole cost and expense, to install and affix in, to, or on the Premises any items, herein called "trade fixtures," for use in Tenant's trade or business that Tenant may, in Tenant's sole discretion, deem advisable. Any and all trade fixtures that can be removed without structural damage to the Premises or any building or improvements on the Premises shall, subject to Section 7.02 of this lease, remain the property of the Tenant and may be removed by Tenant at any time before the expiration or earlier termination of this lease, provided Tenant repairs any damage caused by the removal.

Unremoved Trade Fixtures

Section 7.02. Any trade fixtures described in this Article that are not removed from the Premises by Tenant within _____[specify, e.g., 30] days after the expiration or earlier termination regardless of cause, of this lease shall be deemed abandoned by Tenant and shall automatically become the property of Landlord as owner of the real property to which they are affixed.

Signs

Section 7.03. Tenant may erect, maintain, permit, and from time to time remove any signs in or about the Premises that Tenant may deem necessary or desirable, provided that any signs erected or maintained by Tenant shall comply with all requirements of any governmental authority with jurisdiction.

ARTICLE 8 DESTRUCTION OF PREMISES

Landlord's Obligation to Repair

Section 8.01. Except as otherwise provided in Section 8.02, below, if at any time during the Original Term of this lease or any Extended Term, the Building on the Premises is damaged or destroyed by any cause, Landlord shall promptly repair, rebuild, or restore the Building to substantially the same condition as the Building was delivered to Tenant at the commencement of this lease (i.e., exclusive of tenant fixtures and equipment) and shall be entitled for that purpose to any and all insurance proceeds. Landlord shall have the obligation to repair, rebuild, or restore described in this Section whether or not the insurance proceeds paid to Landlord are sufficient to cover the total cost of repair, restoration, or rebuilding. Landlord shall commence repair, restoration, or rebuilding, as appropriate, not later than [number, e.g., 60] days after occurrence of the event causing damage or destruction and shall cause construction to be completed not later than [number, e.g., 180] days after the occurrence of the event causing damage or destruction. Landlord's obligation to commence and complete construction within the time periods described in this Section shall not be extended by the fact that Landlord may not yet have been paid the insurance proceeds. In the event Landlord does not commence or complete construction within the time periods described in this section, Tenant shall have the right to terminate this lease by giving Landlord written notice within [number, e.g., 10] days after expiration of either time period.

Landlord's Right to Terminate Lease

Section 8.02. Notwithstanding Section 8.01, Landlord shall have the right to terminate this lease and shall have no obligation to repair, restore, or rebuild the Premises or the Building under any of the following circumstances:

(a) Damage or destruction from an insured casualty when the damage or destruction cannot reasonably be repaired, restored, or rebuilt within a period of _____[same number of days set forth in Section 8.01 for construction period, e.g., 180] days;

(b) Damage or destruction from an uninsured casualty when the cost of repair, restoration, or rebuilding exceeds a total of _____[specific dollar amount, e.g., $100,000 or formula, e.g., 45 percent of the then replacement cost of the Building]; or

(c) Damage or destruction from an insured or uninsured casualty occurring during the last _____[number, e.g., two] years of the Original Term of this lease, if Tenant has not before occurrence of the casualty elected to extend the Original Term of the lease, or occurring at any time during the Extended Term, if any, of this lease.

If Landlord elects to terminate this lease under any of the above circumstances, Landlord shall give written notice to Tenant not later than _____[number, e.g., 30] days after occurrence of the casualty.

Abatement of Rent

Section 8.03. If damage or destruction to the Premises renders the operation of Tenant's business impossible and Tenant in fact ceases to operate its business, the rent required under this lease shall abate during the period in which Landlord is required to perform repairs or restoration, or to rebuild. Tenant shall also be excused from the payment of taxes and insurance attributable to that repair, restoration, or rebuilding period. In the event Tenant is able to continue partial operation of its business, Tenant shall continue to pay the Percentage Rent provided for under Section 2.02 of this lease, but the minimum monthly rent shall be reduced during the period of repair, restoration, or rebuilding by the same percentage as the Tenant's gross sales for the full month preceding the event causing the damage bears to the Tenant's gross sales for the full month following the event causing the damage.

ARTICLE 9 CONDEMNATION

Total Condemnation

Section 9.01. If at any time during the term of this lease, title and possession of all of the Premises is taken under the power of eminent domain by any public or quasi-public agency or entity, this lease shall terminate as of 12:01 A.M. of the date actual physical possession of the Premises is taken by the agency or entity exercising the power of eminent domain, and both Landlord and Tenant shall thereafter be released from all obligations under this lease, except those described in Section 9.04.

Termination Option for Partial Condemnation

Section 9.02. If at any time during the term of this lease, title and possession of only a portion of the Premises is taken under the power of eminent domain by any public or quasi-public agency or entity, Tenant may, at Tenant's option, terminate this lease if more than [fraction or percentage, e.g., 35 percent] of the floor space of the Building or more than [fraction or percentage, e.g., 20 percent] of the parking area of the Premises is taken under the power of eminent domain. If Tenant elects to exercise the option granted under this section, Tenant shall give Landlord at least [number, e.g., 30] days prior written notice within [number, e.g., 14] days after Tenant receives notice of the taking that designates the precise area of the Premises to be taken. This lease shall terminate as of the date specified for termination in Tenant's notice, or on the date actual physical possession of the Premises is taken by the public or quasi-public agency or entity, whichever date is earlier.

Partial Condemnation Without Termination

Section 9.03. If Tenant fails to exercise the option described in Section 9.02 of this lease or if the portion of the Premises taken under the power of eminent domain is insufficient to give rise to the option described in Section 9.02 of this lease:

(a) This lease shall terminate as to the portion of the Premises taken by eminent domain as of 12:01 A.M. of the day actual physical possession of that portion of the Premises is taken by the agency or entity exercising the power of eminent domain (the "date of taking");

(b) The Minimum Rent specified in Section 2.01 of this lease, but not the Percentage Rent specified in Section 2.02 of this lease, shall, after the date of taking, be reduced by an amount that bears the same ratio to the minimum rent specified in Section 2.01 of this lease as the square footage ground area of the portion of the Premises taken under the power of eminent domain bears to the total square footage ground area of the Premises as of the date of this lease; and

(c) Landlord, at Landlord's own cost and expense, shall remodel and reconstruct the Building remaining on the portion of the Premises not taken by eminent domain into a single efficient architectural unit as soon after the date of taking, or before, as can be reasonably done; provided, however, that neither the Minimum nor Percentage Rent specified in this lease shall be abated or reduced, except as provided in subsection (b) of this section, during remodeling and reconstruction.

Condemnation Award

Section 9.04. If at any time during the term of this lease, title and possession of all or any portion of the Premises is taken under the power of eminent domain by any public or quasi-public agency or entity, the compensation or damages for the taking shall be awarded to and be the sole property of Landlord. Tenant hereby waives any and all rights to share in any damages or award.

ARTICLE 10 DEFAULT, ASSIGNMENT, AND TERMINATION

Restriction Against Subletting or Assignment

Section 10.01. Tenant shall not encumber, assign, sublet, or otherwise transfer this lease, any right or interest in this lease, or any right or interest in the Premises or any of the Improvements that may now or hereafter be constructed or installed on the Premises without first obtaining the express written consent of Landlord. Tenant shall not sublet the Premises or any part of the Premises or allow any other person, other than Tenant's agents, servants, and employees, to occupy the Premises or any part of the Premises without the prior written consent of Landlord. A consent by Landlord to one assignment, one subletting, or one occupation of the Premises by another person shall not be deemed to be a consent to any subsequent assignment, subletting, or occupation of the Premises by another person. Any encumbrance, assignment, transfer, or subletting without the prior written consent of Landlord, whether voluntary or involuntary, by operation of law or otherwise, is void and shall, at the option of Landlord, terminate this lease. The consent of Landlord to any assignment of Tenant's interest in this lease or the subletting by Tenant of the Premises or parts of the Premises shall not be unreasonably withheld.

Default Defined

Section 10.02. The occurrence of any of the following shall constitute a material default and breach of this lease by Tenant:

(a) Any failure by Tenant to pay the rent or to make any other payment required to be made by Tenant under this lease (when that failure continues for _____[number, e.g., 10] days after written notice of the failure is given by Landlord to Tenant).

(b) The abandonment or vacation of the Premises by Tenant (the absence of Tenant from or the failure by Tenant to conduct business on the Premises for a period in excess of _____[number, e.g., 14] consecutive days shall constitute an abandonment or vacation for purposes of this lease).

(c) A failure by Tenant to observe and perform any other provision of this lease to be observed or performed by Tenant, when that failure continues for _____[number, e.g., 30] days after written notice of Tenant's failure is given by Landlord to Tenant; provided, however, that if the nature of that default is such that it cannot reasonably be cured within _____[specify same time period for cure used above, e.g., a 30-day] period, Tenant shall not be deemed to be in default if Tenant commences that cure within the _____[same time period for cure used above, e.g., 30-day] period and thereafter diligently prosecutes it to completion.

(d) The making by Tenant of any general assignment for the benefit of creditors; the filing by or against Tenant of a petition to have Tenant adjudged a bankrupt or of a petition for reorganization or arrangement under any law relating to bankruptcy (unless, in the case of a petition filed against Tenant, it is dismissed within 60 days); the appointment of a trustee or receiver to take possession of substantially all of Tenant's assets located at the Premises or of Tenant's interest in this lease, when possession is not restored to Tenant within 30 days; or the attachment, execution, or other judicial seizure of substantially all of Tenant's assets located at the Premises or of Tenant's interest in this lease, when that seizure is not discharged within 30 days.

The notices provided for in subsections (a) through (c) of this Section 10.02 are not intended to replace, but rather are in addition to, any required statutory notices for unlawful detainer proceedings under Code of Civil Procedure Section 1161 et seq.

Termination of Lease and Recovery of Damages

Section 10.03. In the event of any default by Tenant under this lease, in addition to any other remedies available to Landlord at law or in equity, Landlord shall have the right to terminate this lease and all rights of Tenant hereunder by giving written notice of the termination. No act of Landlord shall be construed as terminating this lease except written notice given by Landlord to Tenant advising Tenant that Landlord elects to terminate the lease. In the event Landlord elects to terminate this lease, Landlord may recover from Tenant:

(a) The worth at the time of award of any unpaid rent that had been earned at the time of termination of the lease;

(b) The worth at the time of award of the amount by which the unpaid rent that would have been earned after termination of the lease until the time of award exceeds the amount of rental loss that Tenant proves could have been reasonably avoided;

(c) The worth at the time of award of the amount by which the unpaid rent for the balance of the term of this lease after the time of award exceeds the amount of rental loss that Tenant proves could be reasonably avoided; and

(d) Any other amount necessary to compensate Landlord for all detriment proximately caused by Tenant's failure to perform its obligations under this lease.

The term "rent" as used in this lease shall mean the Minimum Rent, the Percentage Rent, and all other sums required to be paid by Tenant pursuant to the terms of this lease. As used in subsections (a) and (b), above, the "worth at the time of award" is computed by allowing interest at the rate of 10 percent per year. As used in subsection (c), the "worth at the time of award" is computed by discounting that amount at the discount rate of the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco at the time of award plus 1 percent.

Landlord's Right to Continue Lease in Effect After Breach

Section 10.04. (a) If Tenant breaches this lease and abandons the Premises before the natural expiration of the term of this lease, Landlord may continue this lease in effect by not terminating Tenant's right to possession of the Premises, in which event Landlord shall be entitled to enforce all its rights and remedies under this lease, including the right to recover the rent specified in this lease as it becomes due under this lease. For as long as Landlord does not terminate this lease, Tenant shall have the right to assign or sublease the Premises with the Landlord's prior written consent. Landlord shall not unreasonably withhold consent.

(b) No act of Landlord, including but not limited to Landlord's entry on the Premises, efforts to relet the Premises, or maintenance of the Premises, shall be construed as an election to terminate this lease unless a written notice of that intention is given to Tenant or unless the termination of this lease is decreed by a court of competent jurisdiction.

Landlord's Right to Relet

Section 10.05. In the event Tenant breaches this lease, Landlord may enter on and relet the Premises or any part of the Premises to a third party or third parties for any term, at any rental, and on any other terms and conditions that Landlord in its sole discretion may deem advisable, and shall have the right to make alterations and repairs to the Premises. Tenant shall be liable for all of Landlord's costs in reletting, including but not limited to remodeling costs required for the reletting. In the event Landlord relets the premises, Tenant shall pay all rent due under and at the times specified in this lease, less any amount or amounts actually received by Landlord from the reletting.

Landlord's Right to Cure Tenant Defaults

Section 10.06. If, after receipt of the required notice as provided for in Section 10.02, Tenant breaches or fails to perform any of the covenants or provisions of this lease, Landlord may, but shall not be required to, cure Tenant's breach. Any sum expended by Landlord, with the then maximum legal rate of interest, shall be reimbursed by Tenant to Landlord with the next due rent payment under this lease.

Cumulative Remedies

Section 10.07. The remedies granted to Landlord in this Article shall not be exclusive but shall be cumulative and in addition to all remedies now or hereafter allowed by law or provided in this lease.

Waiver of Breach

Section 10.08. The waiver by Landlord of any breach by Tenant of any of the provisions of this lease shall not constitute a continuing waiver or a waiver of any subsequent breach by Tenant either of the same or another provision of this lease.

ARTICLE 11 MISCELLANEOUS

Force Majeure--Unavoidable Delays

Section 11.01. If the performance of any act required by this lease to be performed by either Landlord or Tenant is prevented or delayed by reason of an act of God, strike, lockout, labor troubles, inability to secure materials, restrictive governmental laws or regulations, or any other cause except financial inability that is not the fault of the party required to perform the act, the time for performance of the act will be extended for a period equivalent to the period of delay, and performance of the act during the period of delay will be excused. However, nothing contained in this section shall excuse the prompt payment of rent by Tenant as required by this lease or the performance of any act rendered difficult solely because of the financial condition of the party required to perform the act.

Attorneys' Fees

Section 11.02. If any litigation is commenced between the parties to this lease concerning the Premises, this lease, or the rights and duties of either in relation to the Premises or to this lease, the party prevailing in that litigation shall be entitled to, in addition to any other relief that may be granted in the litigation, a reasonable sum as and for its attorneys' fees in that litigation that are determined by the court in that litigation or in a separate action brought for that purpose.

Notices

Section 11.03. Except as otherwise expressly provided by law, any and all notices or other communications required or permitted by this lease or by law to be served on or given to either party to this lease by the other party to this lease shall be in writing and shall be deemed duly served and given when personally delivered to the party to whom they are directed, or in lieu of personal service, when deposited in the United States mail, first-class postage prepaid, addressed to Tenant at _____[address], _____[city], California _____[zip code] or to Landlord at _____[address], _____[city], California _____[zip code]. Either party, Tenant or Landlord, may change its address for the purpose of this section by giving written notice of that change to the other party in the manner provided in this section.

Binding on Heirs and Successors

Section 11.04. This lease shall be binding on and shall inure to the benefit of the heirs, executors, administrators, successors, and assigns of Landlord and Tenant, but nothing in this section shall be construed as a consent by Landlord to any assignment of this lease or any interest therein by Tenant except as provided in Section 10.01 of this lease.

Partial Invalidity

Section 11.05. If any provision of this lease is held by a court of competent jurisdiction to be either invalid, void, or unenforceable, the remaining provisions of this lease shall remain in full force and effect unimpaired by the holding.

Sole and Only Agreement

Section 11.06. This instrument constitutes the sole and only full, final, and complete agreement between Landlord and Tenant respecting the Premises, the leasing of the Premises to Tenant, or the lease term created under this lease, and correctly sets forth the obligations of Landlord and Tenant to each other as of its date. Any agreements or representations respecting the Premises or their leasing by Landlord to Tenant not expressly set forth in this instrument are null and void. All prior negotiations between the parties are subsumed into this lease to the extent they have been agreed to, and if not agreed to by the parties such negotiations are not set forth in the terms and conditions of this lease. This lease may not be extended, amended, modified, altered, or changed, except in a writing signed by Landlord and Tenant.

Time of Essence

Section 11.07. Time is expressly declared to be of the essence in this lease.

DIVISION II: REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 34C RETAIL, INDUSTRIAL, AND OFFICE LEASES
PART IV. FORMS
A. Complete Leases

17-34C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 34C.201

AUTHOR: by Linda Breen Pierce Myron Moskovitz Benjamin Kaplan Practice Consultants

§ 34C.201 Industrial Lease

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a complete industrial lease for a freestanding building. Long-term industrial leases are often net or partially net leases [see [b], below] under which the tenant assumes responsibility for payment of most or all taxes and costs of maintenance, repairs, replacement, and insurance [see § 34C.17 for discussion of net leases].

For an example and discussion of a retail lease, see § 34C.200. For discussion and an example of an office lease, see § 34C.202.

A tenant may want to record a short form or Memorandum of Lease to impart constructive notice of the terms of its lease to all subsequent purchasers and mortgagees of the landlord [see § 34C.203 for discussion and a sample Memorandum of Lease].

[b] Partially Net Lease

The industrial lease in this form is only a partially net lease, in which the tenant pays for only a portion of the "net" items such as property taxes, insurance, and maintenance [see § 34C.17]. Under its terms, the landlord must make structural repairs to the leased premises [see Section 3.02 of form] and repair the premises if they are destroyed by an uninsured cause [see Section 6.01 of form]. The landlord must also pay real property taxes levied on the leased premises, but the tenant must pay as additional rent the amount of any increase in the real property taxes on the premises over the amount of taxes for a base year agreed on by the parties [see Section 2.02 of form]. The tenant is also required to procure and maintain all insurance on the property [see Article 5 of form].

For alternative provisions that may be used to make this lease a fully net lease, see §§ 34C.221 (tenant to pay all real property taxes), 34C.240 (tenant required to perform all repairs and maintenance), and 34C.244 (tenant required to rebuild in event of destruction).

[c] Term of Lease

The lease in [2], below, is for a fixed term [see Section 1.01 of form; see also § 34C.16 for discussion of legal issues related to the term], and also contains an option to extend the lease's term [see Section 1.02 of form].

PRACTICE TIP:

Term for Industrial Lease Is Generally Longer Than for Retail or Office Lease. Because an industrial building or space is often built to the specifications of the individual user, and because industrial equipment and machinery is often large and expensive to move, industrial leases tend to be for a longer term than either retail or office leases. A 20 or 30 year primary term is not unusual. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

For alternative provisions regarding the commencement of the lease term, see §§ 34C.210 (term to commence on occurrence of specified conditions) and 34C.211 (term to commence on completion of construction by landlord). For discussion and lease provisions relating to an option to renew or extend a lease, see § 34C.212.

For discussion and lease provisions granting the landlord or the tenant the right to terminate the lease on the occurrence of a stated event, see § 34C.272. For a specific provision granting the landlord the right to terminate the lease if financing cannot be obtained, see § 34C.251.

[d] Right of First Refusal to Purchase Premises

Section 1.03 of this form grants the tenant a right of first refusal to purchase the leased premises [see § 34C.264[1] for discussion of this right]. In this form, the tenant may exercise this right either when the landlord gives the tenant notice of the landlord's election to sell, or when the landlord receives a bona fide offer from a third party acceptable to the landlord [see Section 1.03(a), (b) of form]. The terms and conditions of sale are to be as stated in the landlord's notice of election to sell or in the third-party offer.

PRACTICE TIP:

Landlords Should Avoid Rights of First Refusal. Landlords do not often appreciate how a first right of refusal severely inhibits the marketing of a property. Very few prospective purchasers go through all the steps to negotiate a lease, do due diligence and the like, only to have their offer given to the tenant in possession, who has a right of first refusal. To some extent this can be obviated by a procedure in which the tenant is offered a modified right of first refusal at the price which will be the initial listing price. The bottom line is that rights of first refusal should be avoided by the landlord as they provide tenants with the opportunity to tie up the property, causing mischief. A tenant with a right of first refusal can proceed to exercise that right in an attempt to create a situation in which the tenant can file a specific performance action with a notice of pendency of action, simply to prevent any sale to a third person and enhance their negotiating position. By Benjamin Kaplan.

For discussion of the law applicable to a tenant's right of first refusal to purchase the premises, see § 34C.264[1]. For discussion and lease provisions granting the tenant an option to purchase the leased premises, see § 34C.263.

The rent payable by the tenant in this form is a fixed sum for a period of years that escalates to a higher fixed sum for later years during the lease term [see Section 2.01 of form]. An alternative provision would be to increase the rent according to the Consumer Price Index [see § 34C.200[2], Section 2.01(b)-(d) for lease provision]. This form provides that if the tenant elects to exercise the right to extend, rent for the extended term is an agreed-on percentage of the property's fair market value as determined at the time of extension [see Section 2.01(b) of form].

For discussion and lease provisions relating to security deposits, see § 34C.220.

[f] Additional Rent for Increase in Taxes

[i] Rent Escalation Clauses

In this form, the tenant is required to pay as additional rent, throughout the lease's term and any extended term, the amount by which the real property taxes on the leased premises exceed the amount of taxes for a base year agreed on by the parties [see Section 2.02 of form]. This type of provision is a form of rent escalation clause commonly used in nonresidential leases. When a lease provision already obligates a tenant to pay all real property taxes for the property and its improvements, including any increases [see § 34C.221], a provision such as this one is not necessary.

A rent escalation clause should clearly describe the specific taxes to which it applies. For example, if the clause applies to both real property taxes assessed against the land and the improvements, that fact should be stated. Also, the lease should specifically state if the tenant is obligated to pay any increase in general and special assessments, since a general clause obligating the tenant to pay the increase in property taxes does not extend to increases for general and special assessments [see Wells v. Union Oil Co. (1938) 25 Cal. App. 2d 165, 166-167, 76 P.2d 696] . If the tenant's responsibility for tax increases is to be based on both (1) an increase in assessed valuation and (2) an increase caused by a change in the tax rate, that fact should be specifically stated in the lease [see Land & W. Co. v. Consumers R. & G. Co. (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 77, 79, 43 P.2d 281] .

For a rent escalation clause based on an increase in a consumer price index, see § 34C.200[2], Section 2.01(b). For a rent escalation clause based on an increase in the landlord's operating expenses, see § 34C.202[2], P 3.

[ii] Base Year

An industrial lease should describe a base year, against which increases in taxes are to be measured [see Section 2.02(b) of form]. Often the base year is the first full tax year during a lease term, but the parties may agree on any other base year. For example, if the tax assessment in effect at the time the parties execute the lease is based on wholly unimproved land or on a partially constructed or occupied building, the parties may agree that the base year will be the first tax year reflecting a completed or fully occupied building.

[iii] Tenant's Share of Increase

Section 2.02(b) of this form allows the parties to specify whether the tenant will be responsible for 100 percent or less of the total amount of the increase in taxes. A sole tenant of a freestanding building is commonly required to pay the full amount of any increase. For tenants of a multitenant building, each tenant may be required to pay a proportionate share of the increase that is based on a formula, such as the percentage of floor area occupied by the tenant.

[iv] Tenant's Right to Contest Taxes

Section 2.02(e) of this form grants a tenant the right to contest the amount or payment of any tax increase. Whereas a landlord might consider granting that right to a sole tenant of a freestanding building, he or she probably would not grant the right to individual tenants of a multitenant building.

[g] Condition of Premises at Lease Inception

Section 3.01 of the form provides that, as of the date of the lease, the premises have been delivered in good condition to the tenant. If there is the possibility of a delay in delivery of possession, the alternative provisions in § 34C.200[2], Sections 1.04 and 1.05 (delay entitles tenant to an abatement of rent and the right to terminate the lease after a certain grace period) or § 34C.211 (commencement of the lease term to correspond with delivery of possession) may be used.

Another alternative provision that is more favorable to the tenant is to provide that the landlord must pay the tenant liquidated damages if there is a delay in delivery of possession [see § 34C.273]. For alternative provisions relating to the construction of the leased premises by the landlord, see § 34C.243.

[h] Repairs and Maintenance

The responsibilities for repair and maintenance of the leased premises are divided between the landlord and tenant in this lease, with each assuming specific duties described in the lease [see Sections 3.02, 3.03 of form]. For a lease provision that imposes all responsibility for repair and maintenance on a tenant, see § 34C.240. For discussion of the duty to make repairs and improvements required by governmental laws and regulations, see [j][ii], below.

[i] Alterations, Improvements, and Trade Fixtures

In this form, the tenant is permitted to make nonstructural interior improvements to the building without the landlord's consent but is required to notify the landlord in advance of any construction to allow the landlord to post a notice of nonresponsibility for the improvements [see Section 3.04 of form]. Prior approval from the landlord is required for nonstructural interior improvements when the estimated cost exceeds a stated sum and for all other improvements. The tenant must comply with all applicable laws and ordinances in making the improvements [see Section 3.04 of form] and covenants to keep the premises free of mechanics' liens in the event improvements are made [see Section 3.06 of form; see also a discussion of mechanics' liens in § 34C.240[1][d]]. Any alterations become the landlord's property on termination of the lease, except that the tenant's trade fixtures may be removed [see Section 3.05 of form].

For discussion and alternative provisions relating to alterations made by a tenant to the leased premises, see § 34C.240. For discussion and alternative provisions relating to the tenant's trade fixtures, see § 34C.242.

[j] Use of Premises

[i] Restrictions

A lease may limit the tenant's use of leased premises [Chandler v. Hart (1911) 161 Cal. 405, 413, 119 P. 516] . In this form, the tenant's use is restricted to a specific type of industrial business use unless the landlord's prior consent to another use is obtained. Such consent may not be unreasonably withheld [see Section 4.01 of form; see also § 34C.230[1][b] for a discussion of the law applicable to restrictions on the tenant's use of the premises].

Other provisions require the tenant to comply with recorded restrictions governing the industrial park in which the premises are located [see Section 4.02 of form]. Provisions for signs that may be placed on the leased premises by the tenant are also included [see Section 4.03 of form].

Also included is a covenant by the tenant that it will not use any hazardous or toxic substances in its business on the leased premises [see Section 4.01 of form; see also discussion in § 34C.19]. For discussion and lease provisions prohibiting the tenant from committing waste or nuisance on the premises or using the premises for any unlawful purpose, see § 34C.231.

For discussion of the legal issues related to the use of the premises, including the statutory rules applicable to nonresidential leases, and for alternative lease provisions for restricting or permitting certain tenant uses, see § 34C.230.

[ii] Compliance With Laws

Section 4.02 of this form is a provision that obligates the tenant to comply with all laws and ordinances related to the tenant's specific use of the premises, whether such laws are in existence at the time the lease is executed or subsequently enacted. For alternative provisions and discussion of the legal issues pertaining to repairs or alterations mandated by existing or new laws and regulations (such as laws pertaining to seismic retrofitting, asbestos abatement, and access for disabled persons), see § 34C.241.

Section 4.02 also includes a provision that requires the tenant to comply with recorded restrictions of the industrial park in which the premises is located.

[k] Insurance and Indemnity

Article 5 of this form requires the tenant to procure and maintain the following types of insurance:

- Public liability;
- Property damage;
- Products liability;
- Fire and extended coverage for the leased premises;
- Personal property insurance;
- Workers' compensation; and
- Business interruption insurance.

PRACTICE TIP:

Need for Business Interruption Insurance. A landlord often requires a tenant to maintain business interruption insurance [see Section 5.03 of form] when the tenant is required to rebuild the premises in the event they are destroyed [see Section 6.01 of form]. This is so that the landlord will not suffer an interruption in rent during the construction period. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

For a discussion of matters relevant to insurance, including the subjects of subrogation and additional insureds, and for alternative insurance provisions for a lease, see § 34C.222.

Article 8 of this form contains reciprocal indemnification provisions by the landlord and tenant. For a discussion of indemnification, see § 34C.222[1][j].

[i] Requirement to Rebuild

In this form, the tenant is required to rebuild if the destruction is from a cause for which the lease requires insurance to be carried and the landlord is required to rebuild for destruction from any other cause [see Section 6.01 of form]. The tenant expressly waives the right granted by statute to terminate a lease because the leased premises are destroyed [see Civ. Code §§ 1931-1933].

The lease also describes certain exceptions to the landlord or tenant's obligation to rebuild [see Section 6.02 of form]. For example, the landlord may terminate the lease if the cost to rebuild from an uninsured loss exceeds a maximum dollar amount stated in the lease [see Section 6.02(a) of form]. The lease provides that either party may terminate the lease if the laws in existence at the time of destruction do not permit rebuilding or if the destruction occurs during the last part of the lease term [see Section 6.02(b) of form].

The rebuilding is required to be commenced and completed within a specified time period. Optional language is included that permits a tenant to terminate the lease if the landlord does not complete rebuilding within a designated time after the destruction [see Section 6.03 of form].

For further discussion of the effect on a lease when leased premises are destroyed and of agreements between landlord and tenant regarding destruction of the premises, see § 34C.244[1]. For alternative provisions that require the tenant to rebuild the premises in all events, see § 34C.244[2]. For lease provisions that require the landlord to restore the premises, see § 34C.200[2], Article 8.

[ii] Rent Abatement

For destruction from an uninsured loss requiring the landlord to rebuild, this form provides that the tenant is excused from paying rent for the period the tenant is unable to occupy the premises [see Section 6.04(a) of form]. For destruction from an insured loss requiring the tenant to rebuild, the tenant is not excused from paying rent [see Section 6.04(b) of form] and is required to carry business interruption insurance for this purpose [see Section 5.03 of form].

[iii] Payment of Insurance Proceeds

This form provides that insurance proceeds payable from a loss are to be paid directly to the tenant for purposes of repair and rebuilding if their amount does not exceed a stated sum. Proceeds in excess of a stated sum are to be paid to an insurance trustee for disbursement throughout the rebuilding and construction period [see Section 6.05 of form].

[m] Condemnation

If the parties to a lease do not otherwise provide for the rights and obligations of the landlord and tenant in the event the leased premises are condemned [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.160], these matters are governed by applicable statutory law [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1230.010-1273.050] and case law. For a discussion of the law applicable to the effect of condemnation on the lease and the parties' compensable interests, and for alternative lease provisions for condemnation, see § 34C.262.

This lease defines "total condemnation" for purposes of the lease as a taking of a certain percentage of the ground area of the premises [see Section 7.01 of form] and provides for the lease's automatic termination in the event of a total condemnation [see Section 7.03 of form]. "Partial condemnation" is defined in the lease as any condemnation that is less than a total condemnation as defined in the lease [see Section 7.02 of form]. For a partial taking, the lease terminates as to the portion of property taken but continues in effect, with a proportional reduction in rent, for the portion of the property not taken. The landlord is required to do any restoration or rebuilding, at its cost, necessary to render the portion of the premises not taken usable for the tenant's business [see Section 7.04 of form].

Section 7.06 of the form provides that the landlord will receive the full amount of any condemnation award, less certain amounts attributable to tenant improvements and trade fixtures.

[n] Tenant's Default

Section 9.03 of this lease lists acts and omissions by the tenant that are considered a default under the lease. It is substantially the same as the default provision contained in the retail lease in § 34C.200[2], Section 10.02. For a discussion of its separate items, see § 34C.200[1][r].

PRACTICE TIP:

Special Considerations When Dealing With an Industrial Lease. California law provides that if a tenant fails to pay rent, the landlord may require him or her to quit in three days [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1161(2)-(4), 1161.1]. For certain serious breaches of a lease, the landlord might simply require the tenant to leave in three days. However, because industrial leases typically involve the tenant's use of heavy equipment, it is not practical to require a tenant in these circumstances to move in only three days. Thus, a tenant's attorney should consider including in an industrial lease provisions for longer notice periods and longer grace periods. By Myron Moskovitz.

[o] Damages on Termination of Lease

On termination of a lease, a landlord is entitled to recover damages provided by statute [see Civ. Code § 1951.2; see also Section 9.01(b) of form]. To recover certain damages, the damages must be provided for in the lease [see Civ. Code § 1951.2(c)]. Furthermore, the landlord has a duty to mitigate damages in some cases [see Civ. Code § 1951.2(a)(2), (3), (c)]. For coverage of the duty to mitigate and the remedy of damages on lease termination, see § 34C.270.

Parties to a nonresidential lease may also provide for liquidated damages in the event of a breach or a failure of a condition [see Civ. Code § 1671(b)]. For discussion and a lease provision for liquidated damages, see § 34C.273.

[p] Continuation of Lease After Breach

Section 9.01(a) of this form gives the landlord the right to continue the lease in effect (and collect rent as it becomes due) instead of terminating the lease on the tenant's default. This provision will be valid only if the tenant also has the right to assign or sublet the lease, subject only to reasonable limitations [Civ. Code § 1951.4(b)]. For a full discussion of the law applicable to the landlord's right to continue the lease in effect, see § 34C.271[1].

A tenant under a nonresidential lease has an unrestricted right to sublease, assign, or otherwise transfer that leasehold interest unless the lease restricts or absolutely prohibits transfers [Civ. Code §§ 1995.210, 1995.230; see Civ. Code §§ 1995.010-1995.340; see also Civ. Code § 1044]. In this form, the tenant is required to obtain the landlord's consent before assigning the tenant's interest in the lease or subletting the leased premises. The lease expressly states that the landlord's consent must not be unreasonably withheld [see Section 10.01 of form]. The lease must provide for a tenant's right to assign or sublet the premises, subject only to reasonable limitations, for a landlord to take advantage of the statutory remedy to continue a lease in effect on the tenant's default [see § 34C.271[1] for discussion of legal requirements].

This lease form also prohibits assignments or transfers that are involuntary or that occur by operation of law. The landlord should be advised that this language does not prevent an assumption and assignment of the lease in a tenant's federal bankruptcy proceeding [see discussion of bankruptcy provisions in § 34C.20].

For a discussion of the law applicable to restrictions on subletting and assignment, see § 34C.260[1]. For alternative lease provisions that entirely prohibit subletting and assignment or permit them only conditionally, see § 34C.260[2].

[r] Miscellaneous Provisions

This form includes an attorneys' fees provision [see Section 10.04 of form]. For an alternative provision and a discussion of applicable law, see § 34C.274.

Other miscellaneous provisions included in Article 10 of this form are the following:

- A provision requiring the tenant to pay all utilities for the leased premises [see Section 10.02 of form].

- A provision describing the methods by which either party may give the other any notice required or permitted by the lease [see Section 10.03 of form; see also Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions, § 75.294].

- A provision making the lease binding on successors of the parties [see Section 10.05 of form; see also Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions, § 75.282].

- A time-is-of-the-essence clause [see Section 10.06 of form; see also Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements, § 23.200].

- A sole-and-only-agreement clause [see Section 10.07 of form; see also Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions, § 75.270].

The following miscellaneous provisions may also be added to this lease:

- Subordination, nondisturbance, and attornment agreements [see § 34C.250];

- Tenant to execute an estoppel certificate on the landlord's request [see § 34C.261]; and

- Parties to arbitrate all or certain specified disputes [see § 34C.280].

LEASE

Preamble

THIS LEASE is entered into on _____[date], by and between _____[name or names], _____[legal status, e.g., a California corporation or husband and wife or an unmarried man], (referred to in this lease as "Landlord") and _____[name or names], _____[legal status, e.g., a California corporation or a California limited partnership or an unmarried woman] (referred to in this lease as "Tenant").

Landlord hereby leases to Tenant on the terms and conditions set forth in this lease the real property located in the County of _____, California, described as follows: _____[insert legal description of leased premises], together with the _____[describe building, e.g., two-story] building and other improvements located on the real property, all of which are collectively referred to in this lease as "the Premises."

ARTICLE 1 TERM OF LEASE

Original Term

Section 1.01. The term of this lease shall be for a period of _____[number, e.g., 30] years commencing at 12:01 A.M. on _____[date], and ending at 12:01 A.M. on _____[date], unless terminated sooner as provided in this lease.

Option to Extend Term

Section 1.02. Tenant shall have a one-time option to extend the term of this lease for an additional period of _____[number, e.g., 10] years commencing on expiration of the original term specified in Section 1.01 of this lease provided:

(a) Tenant is not then in default under this lease.

(b) Written notice of Tenant's election to renew the term of this lease is delivered by Tenant to Landlord at least _____[number] days before expiration of the original term specified in Section 1.01 of this lease. This written notice shall be deemed effective on personal delivery to Landlord or on the date it is deposited in the United States mail in accordance with the provisions of Section 10.03.

(c) The renewed term of this lease shall be subject to the same terms and conditions as are contained in this lease, except that the amount of rent payable under this lease for the renewed term shall be adjusted based on the then fair market value of the Premises, which shall be determined in accordance with Section 2.01(b) of this lease.

Right of First Refusal to Purchase Premises

Section 1.03. (a) Landlord agrees that Landlord shall not sell the Premises during the term of this lease, except subject to the lease. Landlord further agrees that it will not sell the Premises to any person until Landlord has given to Tenant notice in writing of its intent to sell, specifying the price and terms of the contemplated sale. Within _____[number, e.g., 30] days after Landlord gives Tenant written notice of Landlord's intent to sell, Tenant shall have the right to purchase the Premises at the same price and on the same terms and conditions set forth in Landlord's written notice of intent to sell. To exercise its option, Tenant must, within the same _____[same time period as above, e.g., 30-day] period, deposit in escrow with any escrow [or title] company in _____ County, California, all moneys and instruments required by the terms of Landlord's notice of intent to sell to be paid or delivered to Landlord on close of escrow and shall also give Landlord written notice of the deposit. If Tenant fails to exercise the right in accordance with the provisions of this section, Landlord may sell the Premises to any other person for the price and on the terms contained in the notice.

(b) If at any time during the term of this lease Landlord receives from any third party a bona fide offer to purchase the Premises at a price and on terms acceptable to Landlord, Landlord shall give written notice of the offer to Tenant. Within _____[number, e.g., 30] days after Landlord gives Tenant written notice of the third-party offer, Tenant shall have the right to purchase the Premises at the same price and on the same terms and conditions set forth in the third-party offer. To exercise its right, Tenant must, within the same _____[same time period as above, e.g., 30-day] period, deposit in escrow with any escrow [or title] company in _____ County, California, all moneys and instruments required by the terms of the offer to be paid or delivered to Landlord on close of escrow and shall also give Landlord written notice of the deposit. In the event Tenant fails to exercise the option to purchase in accordance with the provisions of the Section, Landlord may sell the Premises to the third party making the offer on the same terms and conditions set forth in that offer. If for any reason, the Premises are not sold to the party making the offer, Landlord shall give Tenant the same right to purchase the Premises on receiving any subsequent offer from any third party that is acceptable to Landlord.

[Optional:]

(c) The right of first refusal granted to Tenant shall exclude all of the following transfers: any transfer resulting from the Landlord's death; any transfer by Landlord to Landlord's spouse or any of Landlord's children; and any transfer by Landlord to any entity in which Landlord holds a 51 percent or greater ownership interest. The right of first refusal granted to Tenant also shall not apply in the event of foreclosure (or a deed in lieu of foreclosure) or to a sale of the leased premises by a lender who has foreclosed.

[CONTINUE]

(d) Tenant may not assign the rights granted under this section, and any purported assignment shall be null and void.

(e) If this property is sold to any third party during the term of this lease, then the provisions of this section shall thereafter be of no further force or effect. The transfer of landlord's title to the Premises by will or intestacy shall not be deemed to be a sale under the provisions of this section.

Holding Over

Section 1.04. If Tenant holds over and continues in possession of the Premises after termination of the term of this lease, including any extended term, Tenant's continued occupancy of the Premises shall be deemed merely a tenancy from month-to-month at a minimum rental of $ _____ per month subject to all the terms and conditions, including the provisions for additional rent, but excluding the right of first refusal, contained in this lease.

ARTICLE 2 RENT AND TAXES

Fixed Rent

Section 2.01. (a) Tenant agrees to pay to Landlord during the original term of this lease specified in Section 1.01, rent in the following amounts:

(1) $ _____ per month on the first day of each and every month, commencing on the first day of _____[date], during the first _____[number] years of the term of this lease; and

(2) $ _____ per month on the first day of each and every month during the last _____[number] years of the term of this lease.

Tenant shall pay all rent without deduction to Landlord at the address set forth in this lease for mailing notices to Landlord, or at any other place or places that Landlord may from time to time designate by written notice given to Tenant.

(b) The amount of rent to be paid by Tenant under this lease during the extended term described in Section 1.02 shall be determined as provided in this section. At least [number, e.g., 90] days but not more than [number, e.g., 120] days before expiration of the original term of this lease described in Section 1.01, Landlord and Tenant shall each designate an appraiser who is a member of the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers. Within 10 days after selection of the last of the two appraisers, the two appraisers chosen shall select a third appraiser. If a third appraiser is not selected within the time allotted, a third appraiser shall be selected by the American Arbitration Association, the cost of which shall be shared equally by Landlord and Tenant. All appraisal costs shall be shared equally by Landlord and Tenant.

The Premises shall be appraised according to their use at the time of appraisal. The appraised value of the Premises for purposes of calculating the rent adjustment provided for under this section shall be the average of the three appraisals.

The annual rent for the renewed term shall be adjusted to _____[percentage agreed to by parties, e.g., 1.5] percent of the appraised value of the Premises. The annual rent for the renewed term shall be payable in equal monthly installments and otherwise paid in the same manner as rent is required under Section 2.01 to be paid during the original term of this lease.

Additional Rent for Increase in Taxes

Section 2.02. (a) Landlord shall pay all real property taxes and assessments levied or assessed against the leased premises during the term of this lease.

(b) In addition to the rent specified in Section 2.01 of this lease, Tenant agrees to pay to Landlord as additional rent for the use and occupancy of the Premises the amount, referred to in this lease as "additional rent," that is required to reimburse Landlord for [specify percentage of increase payable by tenant, e.g., the sole tenant of a freestanding building, 100] percent of the amount of all real property taxes (including general and special assessments) totaling more than $ _____ (which is acknowledged to be the amount of real property taxes and general and special assessments levied against the Premises (including land and improvements) for the base year agreed on by the parties on [date]) levied or assessed against the Premises each tax year during the term of this lease, including any renewed term of this lease. Tenant's responsibility for increases required under this section shall exist whether the increase is caused by an increase in assessed valuation of the land or the improvements of which the leased premises are a part, or by an increase in the tax rate.

(c) The additional rent shall be due and payable by Tenant to Landlord within [number, e.g., 30] days after service on Tenant by Landlord of written notice of the amount due under this section as additional rent, the manner in which that amount was computed by Landlord, and a receipt or other evidence showing the bill has been paid in full.

(d) For purposes of this section, all taxes and assessments levied or assessed against the Premises during the first and last years of the term of this lease shall be prorated as of 12:01 A.M. Pacific time on the dates of commencement and expiration, respectively, of the term of this lease.

(e) Tenant shall have the right, at Tenant's sole cost and expense, to protest or contest any tax or assessment, or any increase in any tax or assessment, levied or assessed against the Premises, but Tenant shall have no right to direct Landlord, pending final determination of the protest or contest, not to pay any tax or assessment before it becomes delinquent unless Tenant deposits with Landlord the full amount of that tax or assessment plus the amount of any penalty that will be imposed on the Premises for failure to timely pay the tax or assessment, and one year's interest at the rate charged by the government entity imposing the tax or assessment on the amount of the tax or assessment.

ARTICLE 3 REPAIRS AND MAINTENANCE

Present Condition of Premises

Section 3.01. Tenant agrees and hereby stipulates with Landlord that the Premises are in good and tenantable condition on the date of this lease and that the improvements on the Premises have been constructed by Landlord and delivered to Tenant in good and tenantable condition and in accordance with plans and specifications approved by Tenant.

Repairs by Landlord

Section 3.02. During the term of this lease and any renewal or extension of the term of this lease, Landlord shall, at Landlord's own cost and expense, keep the exterior roof, sidewalls, structural supports, and foundation of the building on the Premises in good repair and make all necessary repairs to, or replacements of, the plumbing, heating, air conditioning, and electrical systems on the Premises; provided, however, Landlord shall not:

(a) Be required to make any repairs to the exterior roof, sidewalls, structural supports, and foundations of the building on the Premises that are rendered necessary by the negligence of or abuse of that property by Tenant or any employees, agents, subtenants, or permittees of Tenant; or

(b) Be liable for any damages resulting from Landlord's failure to make any repairs required by this section to be made by Landlord, unless Tenant gives written notice to Landlord specifying the need for the repairs and Landlord fails to make the repairs or to commence making the repairs within [number, e.g., 45] days after Tenant gives notice.

Repairs by Tenant

Section 3.03. Except as provided in Section 3.02 of this lease, Tenant shall, at Tenant's own cost and expense, during the term of this lease or any extension of the term of this lease:

(a) Keep and maintain the Premises in good order, repair, and tenantable condition, including maintaining yards, grounds, paving, building doors, and glazing in good order and repair;

(b) Regularly employ a heating and air conditioning maintenance firm to service and maintain, except for major repairs and replacements, the heating and air conditioning system on the Premises in good working order;

(c) Repair any defects in the exterior roof, sidewalls, structural supports, and foundations of the building on the Premises caused by the negligence of or abuse of the building by Tenant or any employees, agents, subtenants, or permittees of Tenant; and

(d) Assume, and save Landlord harmless from the obligation of Landlord under the deed from _____[name] to Landlord recorded as Instrument Number _____ of the Official Records in the Office of the County Recorder of _____ County, California, to maintain an easement roadway serving the Premises.

Tenant Alterations

Section 3.04. Subject to the provisions of Section 3.06 of this lease, Tenant may make nonstructural alterations or improvements to the interior of the building deemed necessary by Tenant for Tenant's business without Landlord's approval, provided that Tenant notifies Landlord in writing at least three days before the date construction for alterations or improvements is to commence so that Landlord may post and record a notice of nonresponsibility, and further provided that all construction complies with the requirements of all appropriate government agencies. Before making any nonstructural alterations or improvements to the interior of the building that are estimated to exceed in cost the sum of $ _____[maximum dollar amount, e.g., 10,000] or any structural alterations or improvements to the interior of the building or any alterations or improvements to the exterior of the Building or before constructing any new improvements on the Premises, Tenant shall submit to and obtain Landlord's written approval on final construction plans and specifications for the alterations or improvements. Landlord shall not unreasonably withhold approval. All improvements or alterations made by Tenant on the Premises shall comply with the requirements of any federal, state, or municipal authority having jurisdiction.

Tenant Improvements and Trade Fixtures

Section 3.05. (a) Any alterations, improvements, or installations made by Tenant to the Premises shall at once become a part of the realty and belong to Landlord. On expiration or earlier termination of this lease, Tenant shall surrender the Premises and all improvements thereon to Landlord in good, sanitary, and neat order, condition, and repair, excluding ordinary wear and tear.

(b) Tenant shall have the right to remove its trade fixtures from the Premises at the expiration or earlier termination of this lease term provided Tenant is not then in default under this lease and provided that Tenant shall repair any damage to the Premises caused by that removal.

Liens

Section 3.06. (a) Tenant agrees to keep all of the Premises and every part thereof and the building and other improvements at any time located on the Premises free and clear of any and all mechanics', materialmen's, and other liens for or arising out of or in connection with work or labor done, services performed, or materials or appliances used or furnished for or in connection with any operations of Tenant, any alteration, improvement, or repairs or additions that Tenant may make or permit or cause to be made, or any work or construction by, for, or permitted by Tenant on or about the premises, or any obligations of any kind incurred by Tenant. Tenant further agrees to pay promptly and fully and discharge any and all claims on which any such lien may or could be based, and to save and hold Landlord and all of the Premises and the building and any other improvements on the Premises free and harmless from any and all such liens and claims of liens and suits or other proceedings pertaining thereto.

(b) If Tenant desires to contest any such lien, it shall notify Landlord of its intention so to do within _____[number, e.g., 10] days after the filing of that lien. In such a case, and provided that Tenant on demand of Landlord protects Landlord by a good and sufficient surety bond against any such lien and any costs, liability, or damage arising out of that contest, Tenant shall not be in default hereunder until _____[number, e.g., five] days after the final determination of the validity thereof, within which time Tenant shall satisfy and discharge that lien to the extent held valid. The satisfaction and discharge of any such lien shall not, in any case, be delayed until execution is had on any judgment rendered on the lien, and that delay shall be a default of Tenant under this lease. In the event of any such contest Tenant shall protect and indemnify Landlord against all loss, cost, expense, and damage resulting from the contest.

Landlord's Right of Inspection

Section 3.07. Landlord or Landlord's duly authorized agents may enter the Premises at any and all reasonable times during the term of this lease, including any extended term, to determine whether Tenant is complying with the terms and conditions of this lease or to perform any other acts authorized by this lease to be performed by Landlord or reasonably necessary to protect Landlord's rights under this lease.

Surrender of Premises

Section 3.08. On expiration or earlier termination of this lease, Tenant shall promptly surrender possession of the Premises to Landlord in as good condition as the Premises are on the date of this lease, reasonable wear and tear excepted.

ARTICLE 4 USE OF PREMISES

Permitted and Prohibited Use of Premises

Section 4.01. Tenant shall use the Premises for operating and conducting a _____[description of business, e.g., business for the manufacture of children's wooden toys] and for no other purpose without the written consent of Landlord. Landlord shall not unreasonably withhold consent. Under no circumstances during the term of this lease shall Tenant use or cause to be used in the business operated on the Premises any hazardous or toxic substances or materials, or store or dispose of any such substances or materials on the Premises. [Landlord hereby agrees to and does indemnify and hold Tenant harmless against all damage, loss or liability arising from the presence of any hazardous or toxic substances not caused by Tenant].

Compliance With Laws

Section 4.02. The Premises shall not be used or permitted by Tenant to be used in violation of any law or ordinance. Tenant shall maintain the Premises in a clean and sanitary manner and shall comply with:

(a) All laws, ordinances, rules, and regulations related to Tenant's specific use of the Premises, now in effect or subsequently enacted or promulgated by any public or governmental authority or agency having jurisdiction over the Premises (and specifically excluding any such laws and requirements which would pertain to any lawful use and occupancy of the Premises in contrast to Tenant's specific use); and

(b) The recorded restrictions governing the industrial park, _____[name of industrial park], in which the Premises are located, as amended from time to time.

Signs

Section 4.03. Tenant may erect and maintain any signs on the Premises relating to Tenant's business on the Premises, provided the signs so erected:

(a) Comply with the rules and regulations of the architectural or other committee of the industrial park having jurisdiction over such matters in which the Premises are located;

(b) Are removed at the sole cost and expenses of Tenant without damage to any building on the Premises or to the Premises on expiration or sooner termination of this lease;

(c) Are erected by Tenant and not by some other person on space leased by Tenant without Landlord's written consent to some other person for advertising purposes; and

(d) Comply with any law or ordinance of any governmental agency having jurisdiction over the Premises.

ARTICLE 5 INSURANCE

Fire Insurance

Section 5.01. (a) Tenant shall, at Tenant's own cost and expense, at all times during the full term of this lease and any extended term of this lease, keep all buildings, improvements, and other structures on the Premises insured for at least [number, e.g., 90 percent] of their full replacement cost against loss or destruction by fire and the perils, including vandalism and malicious mischief, commonly covered under the standard extended coverage endorsement in [name of county where the Premises are located] County, California. Any loss payable under any policy described in this section shall be paid by the insurance company to a trustee such as a joint control agency selected by the insurance company and used to fund the repair or replacement of the damaged building or improvement pursuant to Section 6.01 of this lease. Landlord shall be named as an additional insured on the policies and the policies shall also contain cross-liability endorsements.

(b) "Full replacement cost," as used in this section, shall mean the actual cost of replacement for the building and other improvements on the Premises, as determined from time to time. If at any time during the term of this lease, Landlord believes that the full replacement cost has increased, Landlord shall notify Tenant in writing. If Tenant agrees with the increased full replacement cost set forth in Landlord's notice, Tenant shall, within [number, e.g., 30] days of the notice, increase the amount of insurance carried to the amount stated in the notice. If the parties are unable to agree within the [same time period as above, e.g., 30-day] period, the increased full replacement cost, if any, shall be determined by the insurance carrier that is then carrying the largest amount of fire and extended coverage on the Premises. That determination shall be final and Tenant shall immediately increase the amount of insurance to the amount determined by that carrier. Increases in coverage pursuant to this section may be made not more often than every [number, e.g., three] years, unless otherwise agreed by Landlord and Tenant. Notwithstanding the preceding sentence, if Tenant makes improvements or alterations to the Premises during any given year of the term of this lease, Landlord may request an increase in coverage pursuant to the provisions of this section.

Liability Insurance

Section 5.02. Tenant shall, at Tenant's own cost and expense, secure and maintain during the entire term of this lease and any extended term of this lease, public liability, property damage, and products liability insurance, insuring Tenant and Tenant's employees against all bodily injury, property damage, personal injury, and other loss or liability caused by or connected with Tenant's occupation and use of the Premises under this lease in amounts not less than:

(a) $ _____ for injury to or death of one person and, subject to the limitation for the injury or death of one person, of not less than $ _____ for injury to or death of two or more persons as a result of any one accident or incident; and

(b) $ _____ for property damage.

Landlord shall be named as an additional insured and the policy or policies shall contain cross-liability endorsements.

In the event that Landlord determines, in Landlord's reasonable judgment, that the limits of the public liability, property damage, or products liability insurance then carried by Tenant are materially less than the amount or type of insurance typically carried by owners or tenants of properties located in the same county in which the Premises are located, which are similar to and operated for similar business purposes as the Premises, Landlord may elect to require Tenant to increase the amount of specific coverage, change the type of policy carried, or both. If Landlord so elects, Tenant shall be notified in writing of the specific change in policy amount or type required and shall have 30 days after the date of Landlord's notice to effect the change in amount or type of policy. Unless otherwise agreed by Landlord and Tenant, any adjustment under this section may be made not more often than every _____[number, e.g., two] years.

Business Interruption Insurance

Section 5.03. Tenant shall procure and maintain, at Tenant's cost, business interruption insurance for and during the term of this lease, ensuring the rent provided for in Section 2.01 will be paid to Landlord for a period of up to _____[time period, e.g., two years] in the event the Premises or the building is destroyed or damaged so as to render operation of Tenant's business impossible or impracticable by any casualty insured against by standard fire and extended coverage insurance.

Tenant's Personal Property

Section 5.04. Tenant shall at all times during the term of this lease and at Tenant's sole expense, keep all of Tenant's personal property, including trade fixtures and equipment and all merchandise of Tenant that may be in the Premises from time to time, insured against loss or damage by fire and by any peril included within fire and extended coverage insurance for an amount that will insure the ability of Tenant to fully replace the trade fixtures, equipment, and merchandise.

Workers' Compensation Insurance

Section 5.05. Tenant shall maintain in effect throughout the term of this lease, at Tenant's sole expense, Workers' Compensation insurance in accordance with the laws of California, and employers' liability insurance with a limit of not less than $ _____[minimum dollar amount, e.g., 1 million] per employee and $ _____[minimum dollar amount, e.g., 1 million] per occurrence.

Cancellation Clause

Section 5.06. Any policy of insurance required under this Article shall be written by insurance companies authorized to do business in California. Each policy of insurance procured by Tenant pursuant to this Article shall expressly provide that it cannot be canceled for any reason or altered in any manner unless at least _____[minimum notice period, e.g., 10 days'] prior written notice has been given by the insurance company issuing the policy to Landlord in the manner specified in this lease for service of notices on Landlord by Tenant.

Deposit of Insurance Policies With Landlord

Section 5.07. Promptly on the issuance, reissuance, or renewal of any insurance policy required by this lease, including fire and liability insurance policies, Tenant shall cause a duplicate copy of the policy or a certificate evidencing the policy and executed by the insurance company issuing the policy or its authorized agent to be given to Landlord.

Blanket Insurance Policy

Section 5.08. To satisfy its obligations under this Article, Tenant may at any time during the term of this lease, have in full force and effect a "blanket" policy of insurance insuring the Premises as well as other property owned or occupied by Tenant, provided the blanket policy does not in any way diminish the amount or coverage of the insurance required under this Article, and further provided that the blanket policy otherwise meets all requirements of this Article.

Landlord's Right to Procure Insurance

Section 5.09. If at any time Tenant fails to procure or maintain the insurance required by this Article, Landlord may obtain that insurance and pay the premiums on it for the benefit of Tenant. Any amounts paid by Landlord to procure or maintain insurance pursuant to this section shall be immediately due and repayable to Landlord by Tenant with the next then due installment of rent under this lease; failure to repay at that time any amount expended by Landlord shall be considered the same as a failure to pay rent and a default by Tenant under this lease.

ARTICLE 6 DESTRUCTION OF PREMISES

Duty to Repair or Restore

Section 6.01. If any improvements, including buildings and other structures, located on the Premises are damaged or destroyed during the term of this lease or any renewal or extension thereof, the damage shall be repaired as follows:

(a) If the damage or destruction is caused by a peril against which fire and extended coverage insurance is required to be carried by Section 5.01 of this lease, Tenant shall repair that damage as soon as reasonably possible and restore the Premises and improvements to substantially the same condition as existed before the damage or destruction, regardless of whether the insurance proceeds are sufficient to cover the actual cost of repair and restoration. If insurance required to be carried by Section 5.01 of this lease has lapsed or not been carried, Tenant shall be solely responsible for the full cost and expense of necessary repairs.

(b) If the damage or destruction is caused by a peril against which insurance is not required to be carried by this lease, Landlord, subject to its right to terminate this lease described in Section 6.02, shall repair that damage as soon as reasonably possible and restore the Premises to substantially the same condition as existed before the damage or destruction.

(c) If the damage or destruction is caused either by a peril against which fire and extended coverage insurance is required by this lease to be carried or by a peril against which insurance is not required to be carried by this lease, Tenant expressly waives any right under Civil Code Sections 1931-1933 to terminate this lease for damage or destruction to the Premises.

Termination of Lease for Certain Losses

Section 6.02. (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of this lease, if any improvements located on the Premises are damaged or destroyed to such an extent it will cost more than $ _____[maximum dollar amount, e.g., 100,000] to repair or replace them, and the damage or destruction is caused by a peril against which insurance is not required to be carried by this lease, Landlord may terminate this lease by giving Tenant written notice of the termination. The notice must be given within _____[number] days after occurrence of the damage or destruction.

(b) Tenant or Landlord shall have the right to terminate this lease under either of the following circumstances:

(1) If the Premises are damaged or destroyed from any cause whatsoever, insured or uninsured, and the laws then in existence do not permit the repair or restoration of the Premises provided for in this Article; or

(2) If the Premises are destroyed from any cause whatsoever, insured or uninsured, during the last _____ [number, e.g., two] years of the term of this lease (provided that Tenant has not elected before the date of damage or destruction to extend the term of this lease in accordance with the provisions of Section 1.02) or during the last _____[number, e.g., three] years of the extended term, if any, of this lease.

(c) Either party may terminate this lease by giving written notice of termination to the other not later than _____[notice period, e.g., 14 days] after occurrence of the event giving rise to terminate under subsection (b), and termination shall be effective as of the date of the notice of termination. In the event of a termination under subsection (b), Tenant shall not be entitled to collect any insurance proceeds attributable to insurance policies covering the Premises or improvements, except those proceeds attributable to Tenant's personal property and trade fixtures.

(d) If this lease is terminated pursuant to either subsection (a) or (b) above, rent, taxes, assessments, and other sums payable by Tenant to Landlord under this lease shall be prorated as of the termination date. If any taxes, assessments, or rent has been paid in advance by Tenant, Landlord shall refund it to Tenant for the unexpired period for which the payment has been made.

Time for Construction of Repairs

Section 6.03. Any and all repairs and restoration of improvements required by this Article shall be commenced by Landlord or Tenant, as the case may be, within a reasonable time after occurrence of the damage or destruction requiring the repairs or restoration; shall be diligently pursued after being commenced; and shall be completed within a reasonable time after the loss. If Landlord is required under this lease to perform the repairs and restoration, Landlord shall cause the repairs and restoration to be completed not later than _____[permitted time period for construction, e.g., 180 days] after occurrence of the event causing destruction [or Tenant shall have the right to terminate this lease].

Abatement of Rent

Section 6.04. (a) If the damage or destruction to the Premises is caused by a peril against which insurance is not required to be carried under this lease, rent shall be abated only for the time and to the extent Tenant is prevented from occupying the Premises for the uses authorized in this lease.

(b) If the damage or destruction is caused by a peril against which insurance is required to be carried by Section 5.01 of this lease, Tenant shall continue to pay the full amount of rent required under this lease notwithstanding the fact that damage or destruction renders the Premises either partially or completely uninhabitable for the uses authorized by this lease.

Payment of Insurance Proceeds

Section 6.05. For any damage to the Premises caused by a peril covered by insurance required under this lease to be carried and maintained by Tenant, the proceeds shall be paid directly to the Tenant for the purpose of making the necessary repairs to the Premises, provided that the total amount of the loss and proceeds payable for the loss do not exceed the amount of $ _____[maximum permitted dollar amount, e.g., 10,000]. For any insured peril for which the amount of the loss and proceeds payable for the loss exceed the amount of $ _____[same maximum permitted dollar amount, e.g., 10,000], the whole amount of the proceeds and the difference, if any, between the cost of the repairs or restoration and the amount of proceeds payable for the loss (for which Tenant is required to pay under Section 6.01(a)), shall be paid to an insurance trustee designated by the insurance carrier responsible for payment of the greatest amount of proceeds for the insured peril. The designated insurance trustee shall disburse the proceeds throughout the term of repair and reconstruction in accordance with its usual procedures. If the insurance proceeds payable for the insured loss are insufficient to cover the total cost of repair or restoration, Tenant, within 30 days of the occurrence of the event causing the damage or destruction, shall deposit a sum equal to the difference between the cost of restoration and the amount of insurance proceeds with the insurance trustee. Tenant shall pay all costs and fees of the insurance trustee. Both parties agree to execute documents requested by the insurance trustee as necessary to carry out the provisions of this section.

ARTICLE 7 CONDEMNATION

Total Condemnation Defined

Section 7.01. The term "total condemnation" as used in this Article shall mean the taking by eminent domain ("condemnation") by a public or quasi-public agency or entity having the power of eminent domain ("condemnor") of

(a) More than [percentage agreed to by parties, e.g., 35] percent of the ground area of the Premises; or

(b) Less than [percentage agreed to by parties, e.g., 35] percent of the ground area of the Premises at a time when the remaining buildings or improvements on the Premises cannot reasonably be restored to a condition suitable for

Tenant's occupancy for the uses permitted by this lease within [number, e.g., 90] normal eight-hour working days under all laws and regulations then applicable; or

(c) Less than [percentage agreed to by parties, e.g., 35] percent of the ground area of the Premises in such a manner that Tenant is substantially prevented from carrying on operations of a permitted use under this lease on the remaining portion of the Premises.

Partial Condemnation Defined

Section 7.02. The term "partial condemnation" as used in this Article shall mean any condemnation of a portion of the Premises that is not a total condemnation under Section 7.01 of this lease.

Termination for Total Condemnation

Section 7.03. In the event of a total condemnation of the Premises during the term of this lease, this lease shall terminate without further notice as of 12:01 A.M. on the date actual physical possession of the condemned property is taken by the condemnor. All rent payable under this lease shall be prorated as of 12:01 A.M. on that date and a prompt refund or payment of rent for the unexpired period of this lease shall be made by Landlord to Tenant. On the making of that rent adjustment, both Landlord and Tenant will be released and discharged from any and all further obligations under this lease.

Effect of Partial Condemnation

Section 7.04. In the event of a partial condemnation of the Premises, this lease shall terminate as to the portion of the Premises taken on the date actual physical possession of that portion is taken by the condemnor but shall remain in full force and effect as to the remainder of the Premises; provided, however, that promptly after the taking of actual physical possession by the condemnor of the portion taken by condemnation, Landlord shall restore, at Landlord's own cost and expense, the improvements on the remainder of the Premises to a condition making the Premises tenantable by Tenant for the uses permitted by this lease. Any rent payable under this lease after the date actual physical possession is taken by the condemnor of the portion of the Premises condemned shall be reduced by the percentage the ground area of the portion taken by eminent domain bears to the total ground area of the Premises on the date of this lease. In addition, the rent payable under this lease shall be further abated during the time and to the extent Tenant is prevented from occupying all of the remainder of the Premises by the work of restoration required by this section to be performed by Landlord.

Landlord's Power to Sell in Lieu of Condemnation

Section 7.05. Landlord may, without any obligation or liability to Tenant and without affecting the validity or continuation of this lease other than as expressly provided in this Article, agree to sell or convey to the condemnor, without first requiring that an action or proceeding for condemnation be instituted or tried, the portion of the Premises sought by the condemnor free from this lease and the rights of Tenant in the Premises other than as provided in this Article.

Condemnation Award

Section 7.06. All compensation and damages awarded or paid for the condemnation of the Premises or any portion of the Premises, or for any sale in lieu of condemnation as authorized by Section 7.05 of this lease, shall, except as otherwise expressly provided in this section, belong to and be the sole property of Landlord. Tenant hereby assigns to Landlord any claim Tenant might have except for this provision against Landlord, the leased Premises, or condemnor for diminution in value of the leasehold estate created by this lease or the value of the unexpired term of this lease; provided, however, that Tenant is entitled to seek to recover from the condemnor, but not from Landlord:

(a) The cost of removing any trade fixtures, furniture, or equipment from the portion of the Premises taken by condemnation;

(b) The value of any improvements installed by Tenant on the portion of the Premises taken by condemnation that Tenant has a right to remove under this lease but that Tenant elects not to remove; and

(c) The then amortized value of all improvements made by Tenant on the portion of the Premises taken by condemnation that could not be removed by Tenant on expiration of this lease either because of provisions of this lease or because the improvements would have no economic value on removal from the Premises.

ARTICLE 8 INDEMNIFICATION

Tenant's Hold-Harmless Clause

Section 8.01. Except as otherwise provided in Section 8.02, Tenant shall indemnify and hold Landlord and the property of Landlord, including the Premises, free and harmless from any and all liability, claims, loss, damages, or expenses, including counsel fees and costs, arising by reason of the death or injury of any person, including Tenant or any person who is an employee or agent of Tenant, or by reason of damage to or destruction of any property, including property owned by Tenant or any person who is an employee or agent of Tenant, caused or allegedly caused by (1) any cause whatsoever while that person or property is in or on the Premises or in any way connected with the Premises or with any improvements or personal property on the Premises; (2) some condition of the Premises or some building or improvement on the Premises; (3) some act or omission on the Premises of Tenant or any person in, on, or about the Premises with the permission and consent of Tenant; or (4) any matter connected with Tenant's occupation and use of the Premises.

Landlord's Hold-Harmless Clause

Section 8.02. Notwithstanding the provisions of Section 8.01 of this lease, Tenant shall be under no duty to indemnify and hold Landlord harmless from any liability, claims, or damages arising because of Landlord's failure to make any repairs required by this lease to be made by Landlord or because of any negligence or willful acts of misconduct by Landlord or by any person who is an agent or employee of Landlord acting in the course and scope of its agency or employment. Landlord agrees to indemnify, defend, protect, and hold Tenant free and harmless from and against any liability, claims, or damages arising from or in connection with Landlord's failure to make any repairs required by this lease to be made by Landlord or because of any negligence or willful acts of misconduct by Landlord or by any person who is an agent or employee of Landlord acting in the course and scope of its agency or employment.

ARTICLE 9 DEFAULT AND REMEDIES

Remedies on Tenant's Default

Section 9.01. If Tenant breaches this lease, Landlord, in addition to any other remedy given Landlord by law or equity, may

(a) Continue this lease in effect by not terminating Tenant's right to possession of the Premises, in which case Landlord shall be entitled to enforce all Landlord's rights and remedies under this lease, including the right to recover the rent specified in this lease as it becomes due under this lease;

(b) Terminate this lease and recover from Tenant

(1) The worth, at the time of award, of the unpaid rent that had been earned at the time of termination of the lease;

(2) The worth, at the time of award, of the amount by which the unpaid rent that would have been earned after termination of the lease until the time of award exceeds the amount of rental loss that Tenant proves could have been reasonably avoided;

(3) The worth, at the time of award, of the amount by which the unpaid rent for the balance of the term after the time of award exceeds the amount of rental loss that Tenant proves could be reasonably avoided; and

(4) Any other amount necessary to compensate Landlord for all detriment proximately caused by Tenant's failure to perform the obligations under this lease; or

(c) Terminate the lease and, in addition to any recoveries Tenant may seek under subsection (b) of this section, bring an action to reenter and regain possession of the Premises in the manner provided by the laws of unlawful detainer then in effect in California.

Termination by Landlord

Section 9.02. No act of Landlord, including but not limited to Landlord's entry on the Premises or efforts to relet the Premises, or the giving by Landlord to Tenant of a notice of default, shall be construed as an election to terminate this lease unless a written notice of the Landlord's election to terminate is given to Tenant or unless termination of this lease is decreed by a court of competent jurisdiction.

Default by Tenant

Section 9.03. All covenants and agreements contained in this lease are declared to be conditions to this lease and to the term hereby leased to Tenant. The following constitute a material default and breach of this lease by Tenant:

(a) Any failure to pay rent when due when the failure continues for _____[number, e.g., five] days after written notice to pay that rent or surrender possession of the Premises is served on Tenant by Landlord.

(b) Any failure to perform any other covenant, condition, or agreement contained in this lease when the failure is not cured within _____[number, e.g., 20] days after written notice of the specific failure is given by Landlord to Tenant.

(c) The bankruptcy or insolvency of Tenant, the making by Tenant of any general assignment for the benefit of creditors; the filing by or against Tenant of a petition to have Tenant adjudged a bankrupt or of a petition for reorganization or arrangement under the Bankruptcy Act (unless, in the case of a petition filed against Tenant, it is dismissed within _____[permitted time period, e.g., 60 days]); the appointment of a trustee or receiver to take possession of substantially all of Tenant's assets located at the Premises or of Tenant's interest in this lease, if possession is not restored to Tenant within _____[permitted time period, e.g., 30 days]; or the attachment, execution, or other judicial seizure of substantially all of Tenant's assets located at the Premises or of Tenant's interest in this lease, when that seizure is not discharged within _____[permitted time period, e.g., 15 days].

(d) The abandonment or vacating of the Premises by Tenant (which, for purposes of this lease, shall mean Tenant's failure to occupy and operate the Premises for business for a period of at least _____[permitted time period, e.g., 30 consecutive days]).

The notices provided for in subsections (a) and (b) of this Section 9.03 are not intended to replace, but rather are in addition to, any required statutory notices for unlawful detainer proceedings under Code of Civil Procedure Section 1161 et seq.

Cumulative Remedies

Section 9.04. The remedies granted to Landlord in this Article shall not be exclusive but shall be cumulative and in addition to all other remedies now or hereafter allowed by law or authorized in this lease.

Waiver of Breach

Section 9.05. The waiver by Landlord of any breach by Tenant of any of the provisions of this lease shall not constitute a continuing waiver or a waiver of any subsequent default or breach by Tenant either of the same or a different provision of this lease.

ARTICLE 10 MISCELLANEOUS

Assignment and Subletting

Section 10.01. Tenant shall not encumber, assign, sublet, or otherwise transfer this lease, any right or interest in this lease, or any right or interest in the Premises or any of the improvements that may now or hereafter be constructed or installed on the Premises without first obtaining the written consent of Landlord. Tenant shall not sublet the Premises or any part of the Premises nor allow any other person, other than Tenant's agents, servants, and employees, to occupy the Premises or any part of the Premises without the prior written consent of Landlord. Any encumbrance, assignment, transfer, or subletting without the prior written consent of Landlord, whether voluntary or involuntary, by operation of law or otherwise, is void and shall, at the option of Landlord, terminate this lease. The consent of Landlord to any assignment of Tenant's interest in this lease or the subletting by Tenant of the Premises or parts of the Premises shall not be unreasonably withheld.

Utilities

Section 10.02. Tenant shall pay all charges incurred for the furnishing of gas, electricity, water, telephone service, garbage or refuse service, and other public utilities to the Premises during the term of this lease. All payments shall be made directly to the service provider before their delinquency.

Notices

Section 10.03. Except as otherwise expressly provided by law, any and all notices or other communications required or permitted by this lease or by law to be served on or given to either party to this lease by the other party shall be in writing and shall be deemed duly served and given when personally delivered to the party to whom it is directed or to any managing employee or officer of that party or, in lieu of personal service, when deposited in the United States mail, first-class postage prepaid, addressed to Tenant at _____[address], _____[city], California _____[zip code] or to Landlord at _____[address], _____[city], California _____[zip code]. Either party, Landlord or Tenant, may change its address for purposes of this Ssection by giving written notice of that change to the other party in the manner provided in this section.

Attorneys' Fees

Section 10.04. If any litigation, including arbitration proceedings, is commenced between the parties to this lease concerning the Premises, this lease, or the rights and duties of either in relation to this lease, the party prevailing in that litigation shall be entitled, in addition to any other relief that may be granted in the litigation, to a reasonable sum as and for its attorneys' fees in the litigation, which shall be determined by the court in that litigation or in a separate action brought for that purpose.

Binding on Heirs and Successors

Section 10.05. This lease shall be binding on and shall inure to the benefit of the heirs, executors, administrators, successors, and assigns of each Landlord and Tenant, but nothing contained in this section shall be construed as a consent by Landlord to any assignment of this lease or any interest in this lease by Tenant.

Time of Essence

Section 10.06. Time is expressly declared to be of the essence in this lease.

Sole and Only Agreement

Section 10.07. This instrument constitutes the sole and only full, final, and complete agreement between Landlord and Tenant respecting the Premises, the leasing of the Premises to Tenant, and the lease terms contained in this lease, and correctly sets forth the obligations of Landlord and Tenant to each other as of its date. Any agreements or representations respecting the Premises or their leasing by Landlord to Tenant not expressly set forth in this instrument are null and void. All prior negotiations between the parties are subsumed into this lease to the extent they have been agreed to, and if not agreed to by the parties such negotiations are not set forth in the terms and conditions of this lease. This lease may not be extended, amended, modified, altered, or changed, except in a writing signed by Landlord and Tenant.

PART IV. FORMS
A. Complete Leases

17-34C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 34C.202

AUTHOR: by Linda Breen Pierce Myron Moskovitz Benjamin Kaplan Practice Consultants

§ 34C.202 Office Lease

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a lease for office space in a multitenant office building. The rent is a fixed monthly amount [see P 2 of form] plus the tenant's pro rata share of any increase (over a specified base year) in the landlord's operating expenses for the building [see P 3 of form; see also discussion of rent in [c], below]. Responsibilities for and rights in the common areas of the building are also described [see [i], below].

For an example and discussion of a retail lease, see § 34C.200. For discussion and an example of an industrial lease, see § 34C.201.

A tenant may want to record a short form or Memorandum of Lease to impart constructive notice of the terms of its lease to all subsequent purchasers and mortgagees of the landlord [see § 34C.203 for discussion and a sample Memorandum of Lease].

[b] Term of Lease

This lease is for a fixed term [see P 1 of form; see also § 34C.16 and Ch. 34B, Residential Leases , for discussion of the legal issues related to term]. For alternative provisions regarding the lease term's commencement, see § 34C.210 (term to commence on occurrence of specified conditions) and § 34C.211 (term to commence on completion of construction by landlord). For discussion and lease provisions relating to an option to renew or extend a lease, see § 34C.212. For discussion and lease provisions granting the landlord or the tenant the right to terminate the lease on the occurrence of a stated event, see § 34C.272. For a specific provision granting the landlord the right to terminate the lease if financing cannot be obtained, see § 34C.251[2].

[c] Rent

There is no uniform formula for rent under a lease for office space. What is available to a tenant is largely a matter of current market conditions, including the vacancy factor in the area where the tenant plans to lease space. Gross office leases, under which a tenant pays only a monthly or other periodic fixed rent and the landlord pays all operating expenses, taxes, and insurance are an increasing rarity.

This lease provides for a basic fixed rent [see P 2 of form] plus additional rent in the amount of increased operating expenses [see P 3 of form; see also [d], below]. Some office leases are fully "net" and require the tenant to pay a pro rata share of all operating expenses (including taxes and insurance) from the commencement of the lease [see discussion of net leases in § 34C.17].

For discussion and lease provisions relating to security deposits, see § 34C.220.

[d] Additional Rent for Increase in Operating Expenses

A common provision in office leases is a rent formula that requires the tenant to pay, in addition to a fixed periodic rent, a pro rata share of any increase in the landlord's operating expenses for the property. The increase for which the tenant is responsible is usually measured against a base year or a specific dollar amount agreed on by the parties. When the increase is based on a base year or specific dollar amount, the tenant should confirm that the specific year or dollar amount is an accurate reflection of representative costs. For example, if a building is not fully occupied, its tax valuation and taxes are generally less than for a fully occupied building. Operating expenses for a largely vacant building are likewise much less than for a fully occupied building. Also of concern to the tenant is precisely which expenses of the landlord can and cannot be classified as "operating expenses."

In this form [see P 3 of form], the tenant is required to pay, during each year of the lease term, a pro rata share of the amount, if any, by which the landlord's operating expenses increase over a base year, for example, the first year of the lease term. Permitted and prohibited operating expenses are defined and a formula for determining the tenant's pro rata share of expenses is described.

For an alternative provision to adjust rent based on the increase in property taxes only, see § 34C.201[2], Section 2.02. For a provision to adjust rent based on the Consumer Price Index, see § 34C.200[2], Section 2.01(b)-(d).

A lease may limit the tenant's use of leased premises [Chandler v. Hart (1911) 161 Cal. 405, 413, 119 P. 516] . In this form, the tenant's use is restricted to general office purposes unless the landlord's prior consent to another use is obtained [see P 4 of form].

This lease also contains provisions prohibiting the tenant from (1) engaging in any use that will increase the rates of insurance on any insurance carried for the building or that is unlawful and (2) committing waste or maintaining a nuisance [see P 5 of form]. For discussion and alternative provisions prohibiting the tenant from committing waste or nuisance on the premises or using the premises for any unlawful purpose, see § 34C.231.

For discussion of the legal issues related to the use of the premises, including the statutory rules applicable to nonresidential leases, and for alternative lease provisions for restricting or permitting certain tenant uses, see § 34C.230.

[f] Tenant Improvements

A tenant in an office building is often granted some amount of tenant improvement allowance from which the landlord will "build-out" the tenant's space to accommodate the tenant's specific business needs. Paragraph 8 of the form requires the landlord to make certain improvements to the leased space agreed on by the parties before commencement of the lease term. If the construction is not completed by the time the term commences, the tenant is not obligated to pay rent, but also is not entitled to terminate the lease. If possession of the premises is not delivered by expiration of a designated grace period, the tenant does have the right to terminate the lease [see P 8 of form]. For more detailed provisions requiring the landlord to construct a building or other improvements, see § 34C.243.

This form also provides that the tenant is not permitted to make any improvements or alterations to the leased space without the prior approval of the landlord [see P 6 of form]. For discussion of the law applicable to alterations made by a tenant to the leased premises, see § 34C.240[1]. For alternative provisions for alterations by a tenant, see § 34C.240[2].

[g] Landlord Improvements

In this form, the landlord is required to make certain improvements to the premises before commencement of the lease term [see P 8 of form]. If the landlord fails to complete the construction before the commencement date, the tenant's rent is abated for the duration of the delay and the tenant has a right to terminate the lease if the delay continues for a certain period thereafter.

If the projected date of completion of the landlord's improvements is uncertain, the parties may want to provide that the commencement of the lease term would coincide with delivery of possession [see § 34C.211]. Another alternative provision that is more favorable to the tenant is to provide that the landlord must pay the tenant liquidated damages if there is a delay in delivery of possession [see § 34C.273].

In this form, the landlord must provide regular cleaning service for the tenant's leased space [see P 9(d) of form] and must also maintain and repair the tenant's space, in addition to the common area [see P 9(b) of form]. Except for emergency repairs, the landlord is required to make repairs specified in a tenant's notice within a designated period of time [see P 9(c) of form]. If the landlord fails to make the repair within the required time, the tenant may have the repair made and be reimbursed by the landlord, or failing timely reimbursement, deduct the repair's cost from the next due installment of rent [see P 9(c) of form].

For a lease provision that imposes all responsibility for repair and maintenance on a tenant, see § 34C.240. For alternative provisions and discussion of the legal obligations of the parties to make repairs or alterations mandated by existing or new laws and regulations, such as laws pertaining to seismic retrofitting, asbestos abatement, and access for disabled persons, see § 34C.241.

[i] Common Areas

Because a multitenant building usually includes common areas for shared use among tenants, for example, lobby, hallways, and elevators, a lease for space in the building, unlike that for a single-tenant, freestanding building, must address the issues of who will maintain the common areas and who will pay the related costs. In this form, the common areas are described [see P 11(b) of form] and the landlord has responsibility for maintenance and repair of these areas [see P 11(c) of form].

Rules and regulations for use of the common area are incorporated by reference in the lease and set forth in an exhibit to the lease. Also included in this lease is a covenant by the tenant to abide by and obey all building rules and regulations [see P 11(d) of form].

[j] Parking

An underground parking garage is described in this lease form as a part of the common area for which the landlord has maintenance responsibilities [see P 12 of form]. The tenant is granted an exclusive right to use a designated number of spaces, and subject to availability may lease more parking spaces for an additional cost. The landlord may reconfigure the parking spaces, provided the number made available to the tenant is not reduced.

[k] Utilities

The party responsible for providing and paying the cost of utilities is a matter to be negotiated between the parties. In the lease in [2], below, the landlord must provide water, electricity, heating, and air conditioning for both the leased space and common areas [see P 13 of form]. The precise hours when the services must be made available are specified, since many office tenants need access to their offices during nontraditional working hours, for example, weekends. The cost of utilities is an operating expense of the landlord that is passed to the tenant in the form of additional rent [see P 3 of form].

Responsibility for procuring and maintaining insurance on leased property may be allocated to either party in a lease. In this form, the tenant is required only to carry liability insurance on the leased premises and to insure its own personal property [see PP 14 and 15 of form]. The tenant also covenants to indemnify the landlord against liability occurring in the leased space or common areas, except for liability resulting from acts or omissions of the landlord or the landlord's agents [see P 16 of form]. In this form, neither party is obligated to carry fire and extended coverage insurance. For alternative lease provisions and further discussion of insurance and indemnity, see § 34C.222. For additional alternative insurance provisions, see § 34C.200[2], Article 6, and § 34C.201[2], Article 5.

[m] Destruction of Premises

In this form, the landlord is required to rebuild in the event either the building or leased space is destroyed by any cause other than the fault of tenant and the tenant is entitled to an abatement of rent during any period the tenant is prevented from using its leased space [see P 17 of form]. However, if the necessary rebuilding cannot be accomplished within a stated time period, the landlord has the right to terminate the lease rather than rebuild. For discussion of the law applicable to the destruction of the leased premises, see § 34C.244[1]. For an alternative provision requiring the tenant to restore the leased premises, see § 34C.244[2].

[n] Condemnation

If the parties to a lease do not otherwise provide for the rights and obligations of the landlord and tenant in the event the leased premises are condemned [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.160], those matters are governed by applicable statutory law [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1230.010-1273.050] and case law. For a discussion of the law applicable to the effect of condemnation on the lease and the parties' compensable interests, and for alternative lease provisions for condemnation, see § 34C.262.

Paragraph 18 of this form provides that if a taking of the tenant's leased space results in the tenant's inability to use the space for the purposes stated in the lease, the tenant may terminate the lease by giving written notice to the landlord. For any other taking of the leased space, the lease continues in effect as to the portion not taken but the rent payable is reduced pro rata based on the floor space taken. If any portion of the building other than the leased space is taken, the landlord has the option to terminate the tenant's lease for the leased space. The form provides that any condemnation award is to belong solely to the landlord.

[o] Assignment and Subletting

A tenant under a nonresidential lease has an unrestricted right to sublease, assign, or otherwise transfer that leasehold interest unless the lease restricts or absolutely prohibits transfers [Civ. Code §§ 1995.210, 1995.230; see Civ. Code §§ 1995.010-1995.340; see also Civ. Code § 1044]. In this form, the tenant is required to obtain the landlord's consent before assigning the tenant's interest in the lease or subletting the leased premises. The lease expressly states that the landlord's consent must not be unreasonably withheld [see P 19 of form]. It should be noted that the lease must provide for a tenant's right to assign or sublet the premises, subject only to reasonable limitations, for a landlord to take advantage of the statutory remedy to continue a lease in effect on the tenant's default [see § 34C.271].

This lease form also prohibits assignments or transfers that are involuntary or that occur by operation of law. The landlord should be advised that this language does not prevent an assumption and assignment of the lease in a tenant's federal bankruptcy proceeding [see § 34C.20].

For a discussion of the law applicable to restrictions on subletting and assignment, see § 34C.260[1]. For alternative lease provisions that entirely prohibit subletting and assignment or permit them only conditionally, see § 34C.260[2].

[p] Tenant's Default

Paragraph 20 of this form lists acts and omissions by the tenant that are considered a default and breach under the lease. The provision is substantially the same as the default provision contained in a retail lease [see § 34C.200[2], Section 10.02]. For a discussion of this provision's separate items, see § 34C.200[1][r].

[q] Damages on Termination of Lease

In the event of a lease termination, a landlord is entitled to recover damages provided by statute [see Civ. Code § 1951.2; see also P 21(b) of form]. Certain damages must be provided for in the lease if they are to be recovered [see Civ. Code § 1951.2(c)] and for the recovery of certain damages, the landlord has a duty to mitigate damages [see Civ. Code § 1951.2(a)(2), (3), (c)]. The duty to mitigate and the remedy of damages on lease termination are discussed further in § 34C.270[1].

Parties to a nonresidential lease may also provide for liquidated damages in the event of a breach or a failure of a condition [see Civ. Code § 1671(b)]. For discussion and a lease provision for liquidated damages, see § 34C.273.

[r] Continuation of Lease After Breach

Paragraph 21(a) of this form gives the landlord the right to continue the lease in effect (and collect rent as it becomes due) instead of terminating the lease on the tenant's default. This provision will be valid only if the tenant also has the right to assign or sublet the lease, subject only to reasonable limitations [see Civ. Code § 1951.4(b)]. For a full discussion of the law applicable to the landlord's right to continue the lease in effect, see § 34C.271[1].

[s] Miscellaneous Provisions

An attorneys' fee provision is included in this form [see P 25 of form]. For an alternative provision and a discussion of the law applicable to an attorneys' fee provision, see § 34C.274.

Other miscellaneous provisions included in this lease are the following:

- A provision describing the methods by which either party may give the other any notice required or permitted by the lease [see P 24 of form; see also Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions, § 75.294].

- A provision making the lease binding on successors of the parties [see P 26 of form; see also Ch. 75,

Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions, § 75.282].

- A time-is-of-the-essence clause [see P 27 of form; see also Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements, § 23.200].

- A sole-and-only-agreement clause [see P 28 of form].

The following miscellaneous provisions may also be added to this lease:

- Subordination, nondisturbance, and attornment agreements [see § 34C.250].

- Tenant to execute an estoppel certificate on the landlord's request [see § 34C.261].

- Parties to arbitrate all or certain specified disputes [see § 34C.280].

OFFICE LEASE

Preamble

This lease is entered into on _____[date], by and between _____[name or names], _____[legal status, e.g., a corporation or husband and wife or an unmarried man], referred to in this lease as "Landlord," and _____[name or names], _____[legal status, e.g., a corporation or husband and wife or an unmarried woman], referred to in this lease as "Tenant."

Subject to the terms and conditions set forth in this lease, Landlord hereby leases to Tenant that certain space outlined in red on the plat map attached and marked Exhibit "A" on the _____[specific floor of building, e.g., eleventh] floor of the building located at _____[street address], _____[city], California, which is currently known as _____[name of building] Building ("the Building"). The leased space outlined in red on the attached marked Exhibit "A" referred to in this lease as the "Leased Space," is presently designated Suite _____[number], but Landlord reserves the right to renumber and redesignate at any time during this lease the number of any space in the Building, including the Leased Space.

Term

1. The term of this lease shall be a period of _____[number] years commencing at 12:01 A.M. on _____[date], and ending at 12:01 A.M. on _____[date], unless terminated earlier as provided in this lease. If Tenant holds over and continues in possession of the Premises after termination of the term of this lease, Tenant's continued occupancy of the Premises shall be deemed merely a tenancy from month-to-month at a minimum rental of $ _____ per month subject to all the terms and conditions, including the provisions for the rent increase provided in Paragraph 3, contained in this lease.

Basic Rent

2. Tenant agrees to pay to Landlord as basic rent, to be adjusted as provided in Paragraph 3 of this lease, for the use and occupancy of the Leased Space, the sum of $ _____ per month payable on the _____[specify, e.g., first] day of each and every month commencing _____[date], and continuing through the term of this lease. All rent shall be paid by Tenant at the office of Landlord in Room _____[number] of the Building or any other place or places that Landlord may from time to time designate by written notice given to Tenant.

Rent Increased by Operating Expense Increases

3. The basic rent specified in Paragraph 2 of this lease for each calendar year subsequent to the calendar year in which this lease is made shall be increased by Tenant's proportionate share of any increase in Operating Expenses incurred by Landlord for that year over the Operating Expenses incurred by Landlord for the calendar year in which this lease is made. The amount of the increase for the preceding calendar year shall be specified in a notice given to Tenant by Landlord on or before March 1 of the succeeding year and shall be payable by Tenant to Landlord at the place where the basic rent is then payable on or before March 31 of the year in which the notice is given. For the purposes of this paragraph,

(a) The term "Operating Expenses" shall mean all expenses incurred by Landlord each calendar year for the administration, operation, and maintenance of the Building, including, but not limited to,

(1) Personal property taxes and real property taxes and assessments (including general and special assessments) levied on the Building;

(2) The costs of all utilities required, by leases or otherwise, to be furnished by Landlord to the Building;

(3) Insurance premiums on insurance policies insuring the Building;

(4) The costs of janitorial services for the Building;

(5) Labor and costs incurred in managing the Building and maintaining its elevators, hallways, exterior walls, roof, and other parts, facilities, and appurtenances; and

(6) Capital improvements to the Building required by governmental authority.

The term "Operating Expenses" shall exclude _____[describe any exclusions, e.g., Landlord's cost of leasing and advertising costs for the Building and penalties of any type whatsoever assessed against Landlord].

(b) Tenant's proportionate share of any increase in Operating Expenses incurred by Landlord for any calendar year shall be determined by dividing the amount of floor space in the Leased Space by the total amount of rentable floor space in the Building and multiplying the total increase in Operating Expenses for the year by the resulting percentage figure. The total amount of rentable floor space in the Building shall be determined by excluding from the total interior floor space of the Building the area occupied by common hallways, rest rooms, the building lobby, and other common areas; the area required for the Building's heating and air conditioning equipment; the area required for storage of maintenance and janitorial supplies; and the basement of the Building but including the area occupied by Landlord's offices in the Building.

Use of Premises

4. The Leased Space shall be used for general office purposes by Tenant and for no other use or uses without the prior express written consent of Landlord.

Prohibited Uses

5. Tenant shall not commit or permit the commission of any acts on the Leased Space nor use or permit the use of the Leased Space in any way that

(a) Increases the existing rates for or causes cancellation of any fire, casualty, liability, or other insurance policy insuring the Building or its contents;

(b) Violates or conflicts with any law, statute, ordinance, or governmental rule or regulation, whether now in force or hereinafter enacted, governing the Leased Space or the Building;

(c) Obstructs or interferes with the rights of other tenants or occupants of the Building or injures or annoys them; or

(d) Constitutes the commission of waste on the Leased Space or the commission or maintenance of a nuisance as defined by the laws of California.

Alterations by Tenant

6. No alteration, addition, or improvement to the Leased Space shall be made by Tenant without the written consent of Landlord. Concurrently with requesting Landlord's consent to the proposed alteration, addition, or improvement, Tenant shall submit to Landlord preliminary plans for the alteration, addition, or improvement. Landlord shall, in its sole discretion, approve or disapprove the proposed alteration, addition, or improvement, within _____[time period, e.g., 30 days] after its receipt of Tenant's written request for approval. If Landlord fails to affirmatively approve or disapprove the proposed alteration, addition, or improvement within the same _____[same time period as above, e.g., 30-day] period, the proposed alteration, addition, or improvement shall be deemed disapproved. If Landlord gives such written consent to any alteration, addition, or improvement to the leased premises, Landlord and Tenant shall agree in writing at that time to the date when that undertaking shall be completed. Tenant shall obtain all necessary governmental permits required for any alteration, addition, or improvement approved by Landlord and shall comply with all applicable governmental law, regulations, ordinances, and codes. Any alteration, addition, or improvement made by Tenant after consent has been given, and any fixtures installed as part of the construction, shall at Landlord's option become the property of Landlord on the expiration or other earlier termination of this lease; provided, however, that Landlord shall have the right to require Tenant to remove the fixtures at Tenant's cost on termination of this lease. If Tenant is required by Landlord to remove the fixtures on termination of this lease, Tenant shall repair and restore any damages to the leased premises caused by such removal.

Mechanics' Liens

7. If Tenant causes any alterations, additions, or improvements to be made to the Leased Space, Tenant agrees to keep the Leased Space free of liens for both labor and materials. If a lien is placed on the Leased Space in connection with any construction, repair, or replacement work that Tenant may or must cause to be performed under this lease, which results in a final judgment, Landlord may pay the amount of that judgment. Tenant shall reimburse Landlord for the full amount paid within _____[number, e.g., 30] days after that amount is paid by Landlord; otherwise tenant shall be in default under this lease.

Alterations by Landlord

8. Before commencement of the lease term provided for in this lease, Landlord shall, at Landlord's sole cost and expense, make the following improvements to the leased premises: _____[describe improvements to be made by Landlord, e.g., replace the existing front door with a double-wide entrance door; replace the existing west window of the leased premises with a bay window; convert the existing southeast corner office to two offices of approximately equal size; and replace the existing carpet with new carpet previously selected by Tenant. Landlord shall cause all work to be performed in accordance with the final plans and specifications previously approved by Tenant and attached hereto as Exhibit "_____"]. If Landlord fails to complete construction required under this paragraph before commencement of the lease term, Tenant's obligation to pay rent shall not commence until that construction is completed, but Tenant shall have no right to cancel or otherwise terminate this lease. Notwithstanding the preceding sentence, if Landlord fails to complete construction and deliver possession of the premises on or before _____[date], Tenant shall have the right to terminate this lease by giving written notice to Landlord within _____ days after _____[same date as deadline for construction].

Maintenance and Repairs

9. (a) Subject to the duty of the Landlord under this lease to provide regular cleaning service for the Leased Space and to perform maintenance and repairs for the Leased Space as needed, Tenant shall during the term of this lease maintain the Leased Space, in a good, clean, and safe condition, and shall on expiration or earlier termination of this lease surrender the Leased Space to Landlord in as good condition and repair as existed on the date of this lease, reasonable wear and tear and damage by the elements excepted. Tenant, at Tenant's own expense, shall repair all deteriorations or injuries to the Leased Space or to the Building occasioned by Tenant's lack of ordinary care.

(b) Except as otherwise provided in this lease, Landlord shall perform, at Landlord's sole expense, all repairs and maintenance for the Leased Space and the Building. Any repairs by Landlord shall be made promptly with first-class materials, in a good and workmanlike manner, in compliance with all applicable laws of all governmental authorities, and in a style, character, and quality conforming to the existing construction. Except in the case of an emergency, Landlord shall not enter the Leased Space for the purpose of effecting the repairs, alterations, or improvements other than during normal business hours, and shall give Tenant 24-hours' notice of the intention to enter for those purposes.

(c) Except for cases of emergency, Landlord shall make all repairs required hereunder as soon as is practical. In the event Landlord has not made a repair referred to in a written notice from Tenant to Landlord within 30 days after the date of that notice, Tenant shall have the right to have the repair performed and be reimbursed by Landlord. If the full amount of reimbursement is not delivered by Landlord to Tenant within 10 days after Tenant's delivery to Landlord of a written statement or bill evidencing the cost of the repair, Tenant shall have the right to deduct the cost of the repair from the next monthly rent payable to Landlord.

(d) Cleaning maintenance for the Leased Space shall be regularly performed by Landlord _____[specify approximate times for cleaning, e.g., on a daily basis or on an as needed basis].

Inspection by Landlord

10. Tenant shall permit Landlord or Landlord's agents, representatives, or employees to enter the Leased Space at all reasonable times for the purpose of inspecting the Leased Space to determine whether Tenant is complying with the terms of this lease and for the purpose of doing other lawful acts that may be necessary to protect Landlord's interest in the Leased Space under this lease.

Common Areas of Building

11. (a) Landlord shall make available at all times during the term of this lease in any portion of the Building that Landlord from time to time designates or relocates, automobile parking and common areas (jointly referred to as "common areas," as that term is defined below) as Landlord shall from time to time deem appropriate. Tenant shall have the nonexclusive right during the term of this lease to use the common areas for itself, its employees, agents, customers, clients, invitees, and licensees.

(b) The term "common areas" means the portions of the Building that, at the time in question, have been designated and improved for common use by or for the benefit of more than one tenant of the Building, including the parking areas; access and perimeter roads; landscaped areas; exterior walks, roofs, stairways, elevators, escalators and/or ramps; interior corridors, elevators, stairs, and balconies; directory equipment; the main entry lobby; restrooms; and drinking fountains. Landlord reserves the right to redesignate a common area for a noncommon use or to designate as a common area a portion of the Building not previously designated a common area.

(c) All common areas shall be subject to the exclusive control and management of Landlord or any other persons or nominees that Landlord may have delegated or assigned to exercise management or control, in whole or in part, in Landlord's place and stead. Landlord shall have the right to close, if necessary, all or any portion of the common areas as is deemed necessary by Landlord to effect necessary repairs, maintenance, or construction, or to maintain the safety of tenants or the general public. Landlord will maintain the common areas in a clean, orderly, and sanitary manner. Landlord is responsible for all repairs of the common areas, except those required by the negligence of Tenant.

(d) Rules and Regulations. Landlord and Landlord's nominees and assignees shall have the right to establish, modify, amend, and enforce reasonable rules and regulations with respect to the common areas and the Building. Tenant shall fully and faithfully comply with and observe the rules and regulations for the common areas and the Building ("the Building Rules and Regulations"), of which the Leased Space is a part, including any additions or amendments to the Building Rules and Regulations that may be hereafter enacted by Landlord in Landlord's sole discretion. Tenant acknowledges receipt of a copy of the Building Rules and Regulations, which are attached to and made a part of this lease as Exhibit _____. Landlord shall not be liable in any way for failure of any other occupant of the Building of which the Leased Space is a part to comply with and observe these rules and regulations.

Parking Rights and Obligations

12. (a) Landlord agrees to maintain in good order, condition, and repair the underground parking garage for the Building. Landlord's obligation for maintenance shall include the following:

(1) Maintenance of the ground surfaces in a level, smooth, and evenly covered condition with the type of surfacing material originally installed or any substitute that in all respects is equal in quality, use, and durability.

(2) Removal of all papers, debris, filth, and refuse, and washing or sweeping the areas to the extent reasonably necessary to keep the parking garage in a neat, clean, and orderly condition.

(3) Placement, repair, and replacement of any necessary and appropriate directional signs, markers, and lines and any artificial lighting facilities that are reasonably required.

(4) Maintenance of, for the mutual benefit of Landlord and Tenant, general public liability and property damage insurance covering the common areas against claims for personal injuries, death, or property damage, in the amounts determined by Landlord in its sole discretion.

(5) Provision of adequate lighting.

(b) Included in the rent payable by Tenant under this lease for the Leased Space, Tenant shall have the exclusive right to _____[number, e.g., eight] parking spaces in the parking garage, for use by it and its employees. Subject to availability, Tenant may lease additional spaces at an additional cost of $ _____ per space. The _____[same number as above, e.g., eight] spaces to which Tenant is granted an exclusive right for parking are numbered spaces _____[insert description]. Landlord may in its sole discretion reconfigure the parking garage and renumber the parking spaces or reassign Tenant or other tenants different parking spaces, provided that Tenant at all times is entitled to _____[same number as above, e.g., eight] parking spaces and _____[describe any other restrictions, e.g., at least three of which shall be on the floor of the garage closest to the main entry lobby of the Building, presently numbered "P1"].

Utilities Furnished by Landlord

13. Landlord shall, at Landlord's own cost and expense, provide the following utilities to the Leased Space and the Building:

(a) Water and electricity for the Leased Space and the Building, available as follows: _____[describe hours and days of service, e.g., seven days a week, 24 hours a day, excluding national holidays];

(b) Heating and air conditioning for the Leased Space and Building, available as follows: _____[describe hours and days of service, e.g., seven days a week, 24 hours a day, excluding national holidays].

Tenant's Liability Insurance

14. For the mutual benefit of Landlord and Tenant, Tenant shall during the term of this lease cause to be issued and maintained public liability insurance in the sum of at least $ _____[minimum dollar amount, e.g., 500,000] for injury to or death of one person, and $ _____[minimum dollar amount, e.g., 1,000,000] for injury to or death of more than one person in any one accident, insuring the Tenant against liability for injury and/or death occurring in or on the Leased Space or the common areas. Landlord shall be named as an additional insured and the policy shall contain cross-liability endorsements. The Tenant shall maintain all such insurance in full force and effect during the entire term of this lease and shall pay all premiums for the insurance. Evidence of insurance and of the payment of premiums shall be delivered to Landlord.

Insurance for Tenant's Personal Property

15. Tenant agrees at all times during the term of this lease to keep, at Tenant's sole expense, all of Tenant's personal property, including trade fixtures and equipment of Tenant that may be on or in the Leased Space from time to time, insured against loss or damage by fire and by any peril included within fire and extended coverage insurance for an amount that will insure the ability of Tenant to fully replace the personal property, trade fixtures, and equipment.

Indemnification

16. (a) Landlord shall not be liable to Tenant, and Tenant hereby waives all claims against Landlord, for any injury or damage to any person or property in or about the Leased Space or any part of the Leased Space by or from any cause whatsoever, except injury or damage to Tenant resulting from the acts or omissions of Landlord or Landlord's authorized agents.

(b) Tenant shall hold Landlord harmless from and defend Landlord against any and all claims or liability for any injury or damage to any person or property whatsoever occurring in, on, or about the Leased Space or any part of it, and occurring in, on, or about any common areas of the Building when that injury or damage was caused in part or in whole by the act, neglect, fault of, or omission of any duty by Tenant, its agents, servants, employees, or invitees.

Destruction of Leased Space or Building

17. If the Leased Space or the Building of which it is a part is damaged or destroyed by any cause not the fault of Tenant, Landlord shall at Landlord's sole cost and expense promptly repair it, and the rent payable under this lease shall be abated for the time and to the extent Tenant is prevented from occupying the Leased Space in its entirety. Notwithstanding the foregoing, if the Leased Space or the Building is damaged or destroyed and repair of the damage or destruction cannot be completed within _____[maximum time permitted for construction, e.g., 180 days]:

(a) Landlord may, in lieu of making the repairs required by this paragraph, terminate this lease by giving Tenant _____[number] days' written notice of termination. A notice of termination must be given by Tenant not later than _____[notice period, e.g., 30 days] after the event causing the destruction or damage; or

(b) Tenant may terminate this lease by giving Landlord _____[number] days' written notice of termination.

Condemnation

18. (a) If all or any part of the Leased Space is taken by any public or quasi-public agency or entity under the power of eminent domain during the term of this lease

(1) Either Landlord or Tenant may terminate this lease by giving the other _____ [number] days' written notice of termination; provided, however, that Tenant cannot terminate this lease unless the portion of the Leased Space taken by eminent domain is so extensive as to render the remainder of the Leased Space useless for the uses permitted by this lease.

(2) If only a portion of the Leased Space is taken by eminent domain and neither Landlord nor Tenant terminates this lease, the rent thereafter payable under this lease shall be reduced by the same percentage that the floor area of the portion taken by eminent domain bears to the floor area of the entire Leased Space.

(b) If any portion of the Building other than the Leased Space is taken by eminent domain, Landlord may, at its option, terminate this lease by written notice to Tenant.

(c) Any and all damages and compensation awarded or paid because of a taking of the Leased Space or the Building shall belong to Landlord, and Tenant shall have no claim against Landlord or the entity exercising eminent domain power for the value of the unexpired term of this lease or any other right arising from this lease.

Assignment and Subletting

19. Tenant shall not encumber, assign, sublet, or otherwise transfer this lease, any right or interest in this lease, or any right or interest in the Leased Space without first obtaining the express written consent of Landlord. Furthermore, Tenant shall not sublet the Leased Space or any part of it or allow any other persons, other than Tenant's employees and agents, to occupy or use the Leased Space or any part of it without the prior written consent of Landlord. A consent by Landlord to one assignment, subletting, or occupation and use by another person shall not be deemed to be a consent to any subsequent assignment, subletting, or occupation and use by another person. Any encumbrance, assignment, transfer, or subletting without the prior written consent of Landlord, whether voluntary or involuntary, by operation of law or otherwise, is void and shall, at the option of Landlord, terminate this lease. The consent of Landlord to any assignment of Tenant's interest in this lease or the subletting by Tenant of the Leased Space shall not be unreasonably withheld.

Acts Constituting Breach by Tenant

20. The following shall constitute a default under and a breach of this lease by Tenant:

(a) The nonpayment of rent when due, when the nonpayment continues for _____[number, e.g., 10] days after written notice to pay rent or surrender possession of the Leased Space has been given by Landlord to Tenant;

(b) A failure to perform any provision, covenant, or condition of this lease other than one for the payment of rent, when that failure is not cured within _____[number, e.g., 30] days after written notice of the specific failure is given by Landlord to Tenant;

(c) The breach of this lease and abandonment of the Leased Space before expiration of the term of this lease;

(d) A receiver is appointed to take possession of all or substantially all of Tenant's property located at the Leased Space or of Tenant's interest in this lease, when possession is not restored to Tenant within _____[maximum permitted time period, e.g., 30 days];

(e) Tenant makes a general assignment for the benefit of creditors;

(f) The execution, attachment, or other judicial seizure of substantially all of Tenant's assets located at the Leased Space or of Tenant's interest in this lease, when the seizure is not discharged within _____[maximum permitted time period, e.g., 15 days]; or

(g) The filing by or against Tenant of a petition to have Tenant adjudged a bankrupt or of a petition for reorganization or arrangement under the federal bankruptcy law (unless, in the case of a petition filed against Tenant, it is dismissed within _____[maximum permitted time period, e.g., 60 days]).

The notices provided for in subparagraphs (a) and (b) of this Paragraph 20 are not intended to replace, but rather are in addition to, any required statutory notices for unlawful detainer proceedings under Code of Civil Procedure Section 1161 et seq.

Landlord's Remedies

21. If Tenant breaches or is in default under this lease, Landlord, in addition to any other remedies given Landlord by law or equity, may:

(a) Continue this lease in effect by not terminating Tenant's right to possession of the Leased Space and thereby be entitled to enforce all Landlord's rights and remedies under this lease including the right to recover the rent specified in this lease as it becomes due under this lease; or

(b) Terminate this lease and all rights of Tenant under the lease and recover from Tenant

(1) The worth at the time of award of the unpaid rent that had been earned at the time of termination of the lease;

(2) The worth at the time of award of the amount by which the unpaid rent that would have been earned after termination of the lease until the time of award exceeds the amount of rental loss that Tenant proves could have been reasonably avoided;

(3) The worth at the time of award of the amount by which the unpaid rent for the balance of the term after the time of award exceeds the amount of rental loss that Tenant proves could be reasonably avoided; and

(4) Any other amount necessary to compensate Landlord for all detriment proximately caused by Tenant's failure to perform Tenant's obligations under this lease; or

(c) In lieu of, or in addition to, bringing an action for any or all of the recoveries described in subparagraph (b) of this paragraph, bring an action to recover and regain possession of the Leased Space in the manner provided by the California law of unlawful detainer then in effect.

Termination Notice

22. No act of Landlord, including but not limited to Landlord's entry on the Leased Space or efforts to relet the Leased Space, or the giving by Landlord to Tenant of a notice of default, shall be construed as an election to terminate this lease unless a written notice of the Landlord's election to terminate this lease is given to Tenant.

Waiver of Breach

23. The waiver by Landlord of any breach by Tenant of any of the provisions of this lease shall not constitute a continuing waiver or a waiver of any subsequent default or breach by Tenant either of the same or a different provision of this lease.

Notices

24. Except as otherwise expressly provided by law, any and all notices or other communications required or permitted by this lease or by law to be served on or given to either party to this lease by the other party shall be in writing, and shall be deemed duly served and given when personally delivered to the party to whom it is directed or any managing employee of that party or, in lieu of personal service, when deposited in the United States mail, first-class postage prepaid, addressed to Landlord at _____[address], _____[city], California, _____[zip code] or to Tenant at _____[address], _____[city], California _____[zip code]. Either party may change its address for purposes of this paragraph by giving written notice of the change to the other party in the manner provided in this paragraph.

Attorneys' Fees

25. If any litigation is commenced between the parties to this lease concerning the Leased Space, this lease, or the rights and duties of either in relation to the Leased Space or the lease, the party prevailing in that litigation shall be entitled, in addition to any other relief granted, to a reasonable sum as and for its attorneys' fees in the litigation, which shall be determined by the court in that litigation or in a separate action brought for that purpose.

Binding on Heirs and Successors

26. This lease shall be binding on and shall inure to the benefit of the heirs, executors, administrators, successors, and assigns of the parties, but nothing in this paragraph shall be construed as a consent by Landlord to any assignment of this lease or any interest therein by Tenant except as provided in Paragraph 19 of this lease.

Time of Essence

27. Time is expressly declared to be of the essence in this lease.

Sole and Only Agreement

28. This instrument constitutes the sole and only full, final, and complete agreement between Landlord and Tenant respecting the Leased Space or the leasing of the Leased Space to Tenant, and correctly sets forth the obligations of Landlord and Tenant to each other as of its date. Any agreements or representations respecting the Leased Space or their leasing by Landlord to Tenant not expressly set forth in this instrument are null and void. All prior negotiations between the parties are subsumed into this lease to the extent they have been agreed to, and if not agreed to by the parties such negotiations are not set forth in the terms and conditions of this lease. This lease may not be extended, amended, modified, altered, or changed, except in a writing signed by Landlord and Tenant.

BUILDING RULES AND REGULATIONS

Halls and Stairways

1. Tenants shall not loiter in the halls and entryways, nor permit their employees or patrons to loiter in the halls and entryways, and shall not obstruct in any way the entryways, passages, stairways, elevators, and halls of the building or use them for any other purpose than ingress and egress to and from their respective offices.

Signs

2. No sign, placard, picture, name, advertisement, or notice visible from outside a Tenant's premises shall be displayed in or on the Building without the express written consent of Landlord, and Landlord may remove, at the expense of the offending Tenant, any sign, placard, picture, name, advertisement, or notice so displayed.

Locks and Keys

3. No additional lock or locks shall be placed on any door in the Leased Space by any Tenant without the express written consent of Landlord. Each Tenant shall receive, without cost, two keys to each door having a lock in the Tenant's Leased Space. If any Tenant desires extra keys to any door, Tenant must obtain them from Landlord and Landlord may impose a charge for them.

Wiring and Electricity

4. Wiring of any kind shall be introduced in the Building and connected only as directed by Landlord, and no boring or cutting for wires will be allowed except with the prior consent of Landlord. The location of all telephones and call boxes affixed to the Building shall be prescribed by Landlord.

Connection of Machinery

5. Tenant shall not connect any apparatus, machinery, or device with the electric wires, water, or air pipes of the Building without the consent of Landlord.

Moving Furniture and Equipment

6. Landlord shall prescribe the permissible times for moving equipment and furniture into the Building and Tenant's Leased Space. Tenant shall give the Building Manager at least 24-hours' advance notice of the time Tenant intends to move furniture or equipment into Tenant's Leased Space. Landlord shall not be liable for any damage or loss caused by the moving of the furniture or equipment, and any damage to Building or Leased Space caused by the moving of the furniture or equipment shall be repaired at Tenant's expense.

Directory

7. The directory in the lobby of the Building shall display only the names and suite numbers of Tenants of the Building. Landlord reserves the right to exclude any names other than those of Tenants themselves from the directory and to make a charge of $ _____ for each additional name a Tenant wishes displayed on the directory.

Obstructing Light

8. The glass doors, windows, lights, and skylights admitting light into the halls and other common areas of the Building shall not at any time be covered or obstructed by Landlord or any Tenant.

Landlord's Office and Employees

9. Any request of a Tenant for service or any other matter connected with the Building must be made to and at the office of the Manager for the Building in Suite _____ of the Building. Employees of Landlord shall perform no work or do anything outside their regular daily duties except on order of the Manager for the Building. No employee of Landlord shall admit any person, Tenant or otherwise, to any office in the Building without specific instructions from the Manager of the Building.

Locking of Entrance Doors

10. All entrance and exit doors of the Building shall be open and unlocked by Landlord during the following hours: _____[describe hours and days of week, e.g., Monday through Friday, from 6:00 A.M. to 7:00 P.M.; Saturday and Sunday, from 8:00 A.M. to 5:00 P.M.]. At all other times, including all national holidays, all entrance and exit doors shall be locked.

Entry After Building Closed

11. Any person entering or leaving the Building at any time when its entrance and exit doors are closed and locked may be questioned about his or her business in entering or leaving the Building, and may be required to sign the Building register by the security personnel. Any person not satisfying the security personnel that he or she has a right to enter the Building may be excluded from the Building.

Removal of Persons

12. Landlord reserves the right to exclude and expel from the Building any person who, in the judgment of Landlord, is intoxicated or under the influence of any intoxicating beverage or drug or who in any manner violates any of these rules and regulations or creates, in the judgment of Landlord, a disturbance in the Building.

No Canvassing or Soliciting

13. Canvassing, soliciting, and peddling in the Building are prohibited and each Tenant shall promptly report to the Building Manager any person found by him or her to be canvassing, soliciting, or peddling in the Building.

Further Rules and Regulations

14. Landlord reserves the right to amend these rules and regulations and to make any other and further rules and regulations for the Building that, from time to time in the judgment of Landlord, are required for the orderly and safe conduct of Building operations.

§ 34C.203 Memorandum of Lease

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a Memorandum of Lease, sometimes called a "short form of lease." A Memorandum of Lease is prepared in addition to a complete leases and is often used for recording purposes when the parties do not want to record their complete lease [see Practice Tips, below; see also §§ 34C.200, 34C.201, and 34C.202 for sample complete leases]. Any instrument or judgment affecting the title to or possession of real property may be recorded [Gov. Code § 27280] with the county recorder of the county in which the property affected is situated [Civ. Code § 1169]. A lease may be recorded since it is both a contract and a conveyance of an estate or interest in real property [Parker v. Superior Court (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 397, 400, 88 Cal. Rptr. 352] .

Every conveyance of real property or an estate for years in the property that is acknowledged, or proved and certified, and recorded as prescribed by law, gives constructive notice of its contents to subsequent purchasers and mortgages of the affected property from the time it is filed with the recorder [Civ. Code § 1213]. Conversely, every conveyance of real property or an estate for years in the property, other than a lease for a term not exceeding one year, is void as against subsequent purchasers or mortgagees of the same property who act in good faith and for valuable consideration, unless it is recorded before their subsequent purchase or mortgage is recorded [Civ. Code § 1214]. "Constructive notice" is the equivalent of actual knowledge; that is, knowledge of its contents is conclusively presumed [Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 355, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P.2d 1314] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Benefits of Using Memorandum of Lease. The parties to a lease may be reluctant to record an entire lease since, once recorded, it is a matter of public record and its specific terms (for example, the amount of rent) are no longer confidential. By preparing, acknowledging, and recording a Memorandum of Lease, the parties can avoid these problems while still giving constructive notice of the lease to subsequent purchasers and mortgagees of the property. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

PRACTICE TIP: Recording a Memorandum to Lease. In an office building or a shopping center context, it is often not critical that a memorandum to lease be recorded. Any inspection by a prospective purchaser should impart actual notice if the circumstances do not themselves impart inquiry notice. However, if the landlord has permitted other tenants to record memoranda, then the omission to record a memorandum may be of some significance. A search of the county recorders office should quickly disclose whether the landlord has permitted other memoranda of leases to be recorded. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[b] Required Contents

With certain exceptions not applicable to a Memorandum of Lease [see Gov. Code §§ 27282, 27285], to give constructive notice of its contents a recorded instrument must be a "conveyance" of real property or of an estate for years in the property [see Civ. Code § 1213]. The term "conveyance" means a written instrument by which an estate or interest in real property is created, alienated, mortgaged, or encumbered, or by which the title to real property may be affected, except wills [Civ. Code § 1215; see Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 355, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P.2d 1314] . Thus, a Memorandum of Lease is ineffective to give constructive notice to subsequent purchasers and mortgagees if it merely recites that the landlord "has leased" or "has demised" (or "will lease" or "will demise") certain real property to the tenant by some other instrument; it must be drafted as a present, active conveyance. To give constructive notice of its contents and of the lease, the Memorandum must actually convey or purport presently to convey the leasehold interest to the tenant [see Bowman, Ogden's Revised California Real Property Law, Ch. 12, Leases, § 12.5 (Cal. C.E.B. 1974); see also Dean, Nicholas, and Caplan, Commercial Real Property Lease Practice, Ch. 3, Commercial Real Property Lease Form with Comments, § 3.137 (Cal. C.E.B. 1976)].

As a present conveyance of a leasehold interest, the Memorandum must contain all the essential elements of a lease, including the following [see O'Shea v. Claude C. Wood Co. (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 903, 909-910, 159 Cal. Rptr. 125 ; see also Legal Background to Ch. 34B, Residential Leases]:

- The names of the parties;
- Operative words to create a lease;
- A description of the leased property; and
- The lease's term.

PRACTICE TIP:

Refer to Formal Unrecorded Lease. The Memorandum of Lease should also refer to the formal unrecorded lease between the parties, including the date of the lease, and a recitation of the fact that the Memorandum of Lease is subject to all terms and conditions of the unrecorded lease. This will put a subsequent purchaser or mortgagee of the leased property on inquiry as to the contents of the unrecorded lease. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

When the Memorandum of Lease is properly drafted and recorded, the subsequent purchaser or mortgagee is charged with constructive notice of its contents [see Civ. Code § 1213], including the reference to the formal unrecorded lease between the parties, and with notice of all material facts that an inquiry suggested by the reference to the unrecorded lease would have produced [see Bowman, Ogden's Revised California Real Property Law, Ch. 12, Leases, § 12.4 (Cal. C.E.B. 1974); see also Buehler v. Oregon-Washington Plywood Corp. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 520, 529, 131 Cal. Rptr. 394, 551 P.2d 1226] .

Depending on the lease's contents, additional information should be included in a Memorandum of Lease to impart constructive notice to third parties. For example, if the unrecorded lease contains an option to extend the lease term [see § 34C.212[2]] or an option or right of refusal to purchase the leased premises [see §§ 34C.263[2], 34C.264[2]], either fact should be recited in the Memorandum of Lease [see Gates Rubber Co. v. Ulman (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 356, 364, 262 Cal. Rptr. 630] . If the lease contains subordination provisions [see § 34C.250], reference to that fact should also be included in the Memorandum of Lease.

With certain exceptions not relevant to this discussion, before an "instrument" can be recorded, its execution must be acknowledged or proved and the acknowledgment or proof certified [Gov. Code § 27287; see Gov. Code § 27288 (execution, acknowledgment, and proof of agreements affecting realty); see also Civ. Code §§ 1198, 1199 (execution proved by handwriting)]. A Memorandum or short form of lease comes within the judicial and statutory definition of an "instrument," which the courts and Legislature have described as some written paper signed and delivered by one person to another, transferring the title to or creating a lien on property or giving a right to a debt or duty [Hoag v. Howard (1880) 55 Cal. 564, 565 ; see Gov. Code § 27279].

An acknowledgment is a statement that an instrument was in fact signed by the person whose signature appears on the document [see Civ. Code § 1189(a)]. A certificate of acknowledgment is a formal declaration by an authorized officer [see Civ. Code §§ 1180-1184], usually a notary public, that the executing party made the acknowledgment in the officer's presence and that the officer had satisfactory evidence that the party was the individual who was described in and who executed the instrument [Civ. Code § 1185(a); see [d], below].

[i] Form of Certificate

An officer taking an acknowledgment of an instrument must endorse on it or attach to it a certificate of acknowledgment substantially in the form prescribed by Civ. Code § 1189 [Civ. Code § 1188]. If the certificate of acknowledgment is taken within this state, it must be in the form set forth in Civ. Code § 1189(a) [Civ. Code § 1189(a)]. If the certificate is taken in another place, it will be sufficient in California if it is taken in accordance with the laws of the place where the acknowledgment is made [Civ. Code § 1189(b)]. On documents to be filed in another state or jurisdiction of the United States, a California notary public may complete any acknowledgment form as may be required in that other state or jurisdiction on a document, provided the form does not require the notary to determine or certify that the signer holds a particular representative capacity or make other determinations and certifications not allowed by California law [Civ. Code § 1189(c)]. Finally, an acknowledgment provided before January 1, 1993, and conforming to applicable provisions of former Civ. Code §§ 1189, 1190, 1190a, 1190.1, 1191, and 1192, as repealed by 1990 Stats., Ch. 335, will have the same force and effect as if those statutes had not been repealed [Civ. Code § 1189(d)]. Those repealed statutes set forth alternative certificate forms for use by individuals, corporations, partnerships, public agencies, and attorneys-in-fact. They have been replaced by the one form of certificate prescribed by the current version of Civ. Code § 1189.

For further discussion of certificates of acknowledgment, see Ch. 27, Deeds and Recording, § 27.271.

[ii] Certificate as Prima Facie Evidence

As a general rule, a certificate of acknowledgment is prima facie evidence of the facts recited in it and of the genuineness of the signatures contained on the document, if the certificate meets the requirements set forth in Civ. Code §§ 1180-1207 [Evid. Code § 1451]. If the certificate appears on an instrument executed on behalf of an incorporated or unincorporated entity by a duly authorized person in the form specified in Civ. Code § 1189, it will be prima facie evidence that the instrument is the duly authorized act of the entity named in the instrument, and conclusive evidence thereof in favor of any good faith purchaser, lessee, or encumbrancer. For these purposes, "duly authorized person," with respect to a domestic or foreign corporation, includes the president, vice president, secretary, and assistant secretary of the corporation [Civ. Code § 1190].

[e] Effect of Defective Certificate or Execution

When the acknowledgment or proof of the execution of an instrument is properly made but defectively certified, any interested party may bring an action in superior court to obtain a judgment correcting the certificate [Civ. Code § 1202]. However, one year after it has been copied into the proper book of record, any instrument affecting the title to real property that is kept in the office of any county recorder imparts notice of its contents to subsequent purchasers and encumbrancers, notwithstanding any defect, omission, or informality in the execution of the instrument or in the certificate of acknowledgment, or the absence of any certificate of acknowledgment [Civ. Code § 1207].

§ 34C.210 Lease Term to Commence on Occurrence of Specified Conditions

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a lease provision stating that the lease's term commences on the occurrence of a specified future event. The event used as an example in the form is the issuance of an alcoholic beverage license. This provision further provides that if the event does not occur before a specified date, either party may terminate the lease.

For a lease provision that makes commencement of the lease's term dependent on the landlord's completion of a building on the leased premises, see § 34C.211. For an alternative provision that does not postpone commencement of the lease term but merely abates the rent payable under the lease until the landlord is able to deliver possession of the premises to the tenant, see § 34C.200[2], Sections 1.04, 1.05.

PRACTICE TIP:

Include Provision as to Actual Date Lease Will Commence. When a lease is to commence on the happening of a particular event, consider including a provision in the executed lease whereby the parties are to complete the actual date the lease has commenced and initial the provision. This avoids disputes arising as to, for example, by which date an option for an additional term needed to be exercised. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[b] Conditions Precedent to Commencement of Lease Term

A condition precedent is one that is to be performed before either a right dependent thereon accrues or an act dependent thereon is performed [Civ. Code § 1436]. When commencement of a lease's term is subject to a condition precedent, the lease provides that its term does not commence until a particular event has occurred. Common examples of conditions precedent to commencement of a lease term include the following:

- The landlord's execution of a lease with a "key" tenant (usually a large, chain tenant with substantial customer draw) in a shoppi ng center (when the lease is for space in the shopping center) [see Cordonier v. Central Shopping Plaza Associates (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 991, 995-996, 147 Cal. Rptr. 558] ;

- Procuring a zoning change for the property to be leased; and

- Obtaining a necessary license or permit for the tenant to operate its business on the property to be leased.

[c] Effect of Rule Against Perpetuities

Before January 1, 1992, when the Uniform Statutory Rule Against Perpetuities became operative in California [see Prob. Code § 21200 et seq.], a lease that was to commence in the future was subject to the common law rule against perpetuities. Under this rule, if the leasehold interest was "nonvested," it was invalid unless, at the time the lease was created, the leasehold was certain to either vest or terminate within 21 years after the death of some person alive at the time of creation, or alternatively within 60 years after the creation [see former Civ. Code §§ 715.2, 715.6, repealed Jan. 1, 1992; see also Wong v. DiGrazia (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 525, 535-541, 35 Cal. Rptr. 241, 386 P.2d 817] . For purposes of applying this rule, an interest was "nonvested" if it was subject to an unsatisfied condition precedent and "vested" if it was owned free of all conditions precedent [see Recommendation Relating to Uniform Statutory Rule Against Perpetuities, 20 Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Reports 2501, 2552-2553 (1990); Black's Law Dictionary 1331 (6th ed. 1990)].

Under the Uniform Statutory Rule Against Perpetuities, however, most leases are not subject to the rule against perpetuities. This is because the Uniform Statutory Rule excludes most "nondonative" transfers from its application [see Prob. Code § 21225(a)]. For this purpose, a "nondonative" transfer is a commercial-type transaction that is supported by consideration, such as the typical commercial lease, an option to renew a lease, and a right of first refusal to purchase the property [Shaver v. Clanton (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 568, 571, 576, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 595] . A "donative" transfer, in contrast, is generally a transfer that is not supported by consideration [see Recommendation Relating to Uniform Statutory Rule Against Perpetuities, 20 Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Reports 2501, 2594-2595 (1990)].

For a detailed discussion of the rule against perpetuities in California, see the Legal Background to Ch. 67, Future Interests and Perpetuities.

[d] Other Time Limitations

Although leases supported by rent are not subject to the rule against perpetuities [see [c], above] many leases are subject to other time limitations. For example, under Civ. Code § 718, any lease of a town or city lot for which the term exceeds 99 years, including options to renew the lease, is invalid [Shaver v. Clanton (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 568, 576, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 595] .

Every lease that is to commence at a time certain or on the happening of a future event becomes invalid if its term does not actually commence in possession within 30 years after its execution [Civ. Code § 715].

§ 34C.211 Lease Term to Commence on Completion of Construction by Landlord

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a set of provisions requiring the term of a lease to commence on completion of a building to be constructed by the landlord on the leased premises. It includes alternative provisions for the ending date of the lease term, the standards for determining completion of the building, and the termination rights of the parties in the event the building is not completed within a specified time.

For a lease provision requiring commencement of the lease term on the occurrence of any other stated event, see § 34C.210. For an alternative provision that does not postpone commencement of the lease term but merely abates the rent payable under the lease until the landlord is able to deliver possession of the premises to the tenant, see § 34C.200[2], Sections 1.04, 1.05.

PRACTICE TIP:

Defining "Completion of Construction." When a lease is to commence on the completion of construction depends on whether one is the landlord or the tenant in respect to which event defines completion. If the landlord is doing the construction, then the tenant is not interested when the landlord believes it has completed or "substantially" completed its construction. The tenant is interested as to when it can commence business which is usually defined when a Certificate of Completion or Certificate of Occupancy has issued from a governmental agency. The landlord, however, wants to rent immediately and thus will define completion as being on the earliest possible date. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[b] Lease Term

The term of a lease is adequately stated if it is to commence on the completion of the premises, and any uncertainty about the term is removed by the completion of the premises [City of Santa Cruz v. MacGregor (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 45, 53, 2 Cal. Rptr. 727] . A lease that states that it is to begin when a building is constructed will begin when construction is complete, even if it is well after the date that the parties contemplated that construction would be complete [Fanta v. Maddex (1926) 80 Cal. App. 513, 517-518, 252 P. 630 ; Lang v. Pacific Brewing etc. Co. (1919) 44 Cal. App. 618, 623-625, 187 P. 81] .

For a discussion of the inapplicability of the rule of perpetuities for a lease supported by consideration, see § 34C.210[1][c].

Term of Lease

Section _____.01. The term of this lease shall be for a period of _____[number] years plus any fraction of a calendar month required by Section _____.04 of this lease. The term of this lease shall commence at 12:01 A.M. on the "Commencement Date" specified in Section _____.02 of this lease, and shall end at 12:01 A.M. on the date that is exactly _____[number, e.g., 12] calendar years after the date specified in Section _____.04 of this lease.

[CONTINUE]

Commencement Date of Lease

Section _____.02. The commencement date of this lease ("Commencement Date") shall be the date the building to be constructed on the premises under Article _____ of this lease is completed in accordance with the plans and specifications for it described in Article _____ of this lease. The building shall be deemed substantially completed on the first of the following to occur:

(a) The Architect engaged by Landlord to supervise construction of the building certifies in writing to Landlord and Tenant that the building has been substantially completed in conformity with the plans and specifications for it described in Article _____ of this lease; or

(b) Tenant accepts, either in writing or by continued occupancy, the building as being completed; provided, however, mere entry of Tenant or Tenant's employees into the building for purposes of installing trade fixtures or stocking merchandise shall not be sufficient occupancy of the building by Tenant to constitute an acceptance by Tenant of the building as being completed within the meaning of this provision.

[OR]

Commencement Date of Lease

Section _____.02. The Commencement Date of the term of this lease ("Commencement Date") shall be whichever of the following first occurs:

(a) The date that Tenant commences actual operation of its business, _____[describe business, e.g., a retail shoe store], on the premises; or

(b) _____[number, e.g., 30] days after a Certificate of Occupancy for the building to be erected on the premises under Article _____ of this lease is duly issued by the _____[specify agency or officer, e.g., Public Works Department or City Building Inspector or County Engineer] of the City [or County] of _____, California.

[CONTINUE]

Termination on Delay in Construction

Section _____.03. Notwithstanding any other provision of this lease, if the Commencement Date described in Section _____.02 of this lease does not occur [within _____ (number) months after the date of execution of this lease or before _____ (date)], then either party to this lease may, by giving written notice of termination to the other party to this lease, terminate this lease. Such termination, whether made by Tenant or Landlord, shall not, however, preclude or prevent Tenant from pursuing any rights or remedies, other than the right to specific performance of this lease, that Tenant may have against Landlord for unreasonable delay in completing the building to be erected on the premises in accordance with Article _____ of this lease.

[OR]

Termination on Delay in Construction

Section _____.03. Notwithstanding any other provision of this lease, if the Commencement Date described in Section _____.02 of this lease does not occur [within _____ (number) months from the date of execution of this lease by Tenant or before _____ (date)], then Tenant may, by giving written notice of termination to Landlord, terminate this lease and be relieved of all future obligations arising under this lease.

Term Extension for Fractional Month

Section _____.04. If the Commencement Date described in Section _____.02 of this lease occurs on a day other than the first day of a calendar month, then the term of this lease shall include the unexpired fraction of the calendar month in which the Commencement Date occurs plus _____[number, e.g., 12] full years from the first day of the calendar month immediately following the calendar month in which the Commencement Date occurs.

§ 34C.212 Option to Extend Term

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a lease provision granting the tenant the option to extend a fixed lease term, provided the tenant is not in default at the time the option is exercised. It contains alternative provisions for an increased amount of rent during the extended term.

[b] Increased Rent During Extended Term

A landlord who agrees to an option to renew or extend customarily will require that the tenant pay a higher amount of rent during the extended term. The parties may agree on a fixed amount, or agree to an adjustment based on a stated formula or standard. Common examples include rent increases that reflect the leased premises' increase in market value or that are based on changes in the consumer price index.

Whenever an option to renew or extend requires payment of an increased rent during the renewed or extended term, the specific amount or the formula or standard by which the amount of rent is to be determined must be included in the lease [see Ablett v. Clauson (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 280, 284-286, 272 P.2d 753 ; Etco Corp. v. Hauer (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 1154, 1161, 208 Cal. Rptr. 118] . A lease provision authorizing the lease's renewal at a rent to be determined in the future is enforceable only if, absent agreement of the parties concerning the amount of that rent, the lease sets forth an ascertainable standard for the determination of the rent. This rule recognizes that fluctuating market conditions often preclude the determination, at the time an initial lease is made, of an appropriate rent for a renewal period, yet prevents a court from engaging in the drafting of contracts for parties in the absence of guidelines permitting an objective determination of the rent [Etco Corp. v. Hauer (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 1154, 1161, 208 Cal. Rptr. 118] .

This form includes several alternatives for increased rent during the extended term [see P (a) of form]. Under the first alternative, the rent is increased to a stated fixed amount. The second alternative provides that the tenant's periodic rent is increased by an amount equal to the increase in real property taxes for the property from the first year through the last year of the original term preceding the extended term.

The third alternative is a lengthy provision that bases the increase on the then market value of the property as agreed on by the parties, or if they are unable to agree, as determined by an appraisal process. The appraisers are to determine the "full cash market value" of the property, defined as the price a willing buyer would pay to a willing seller for the leased premises for the uses specified in the lease, regardless of the highest and best potential use of the premises. If the lease is silent on the issue of what uses are to be considered by the appraisers in determining a value for the property, a court may conclude that the parties intended the property to be valued at its highest and best use, which could be considerably higher than the value of the property as used by the tenant [see Wu v. Interstate Consolidated Industries (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1511, 1514-1517, 277 Cal. Rptr. 546] .

[c] Renewal and Extension Distinguished

Strictly speaking, the renewal of a lease involves the execution of a new instrument and creates a new estate, while an extension is a continuation in possession under the provisions of the old lease [Estate of Fellows (1930) 106 Cal. App. 681, 684-685, 289 P. 887] . This distinction, however, is not always observed, and it has been held that the words "renewal" and "to renew" have no definite and fixed legal meaning that is binding as a matter of law on the parties who use them in a lease [Erickson v. Boothe (1947) 79 Cal. App. 2d 266, 273, 179 P.2d 611] . Rather, a lease, like any other contract, is to be enforced in accordance with the expressed intention of the contracting parties [Erickson v. Boothe (1947) 79 Cal. App. 2d 266, 273, 179 P.2d 611] .

Consequently, when a lease gives the tenant a right of "renewal" or a right to "extend" the lease, the trend is to ascertain the true intention of the parties by considering the entire document or set of documents, the surrounding circumstances, and the conduct of the parties [Smith v. Arthur D. Little, Inc. (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 391, 399, 81 Cal. Rptr. 140] . When the parties intend to execute a new lease on exercise of the tenant's option, the option, regardless of the language used in describing it, is an option to renew the lease [Robertson v. Drew (1917) 34 Cal. App. 143, 144-145, 166 P. 838 ; see Tay-Holbrook, Inc. v. Tutt (1933) 218 Cal. 600, 604-605, 24 P.2d 463] . If the parties did not contemplate executing a new lease on exercise of the tenant's option, the option (even though stated as an option to renew) is in reality an option to extend the lease [Smith v. Arthur D. Little, Inc. (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 391, 401, 81 Cal. Rptr. 140 ; Leonhardi-Smith, Inc. v. Cameron (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 42, 47, 166 Cal. Rptr. 135] .

[d] Effect of Renewal or Extension Option

A provision in a lease giving the tenant the option to extend or renew a lease creates only a contractual right [Klepper v. Hoover (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 460, 463-464, 98 Cal. Rptr. 482 ; Cicinelli v. Iwasaki (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 58, 64, 338 P.2d 1005] . An option is simply an offer by which a promisor binds himself or herself in advance to make a contract if the optionee accepts the offer on the terms and within the time designated in the option [Cicinelli v. Iwasaki (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 58, 67, 338 P.2d 1005 ; Hayward Lbr. & Inv. Co. v. Const. Prod. Corp. (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 221, 229]. It does not transfer any interest in the leased land until it is exercised [Dougherty v. California Kettleman, etc. (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 58 ; Klepper v. Hoover (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 460, 463-464, 98 Cal. Rptr. 482] .

Once the option to extend or renew the lease is exercised, the promise to renew ceases to be a mere personal covenant and becomes a covenant running with the land [Cicinelli v. Iwasaki (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 58, 64-65, 338 P.2d 1005] . Because it is a covenant running with the land, the legal successors of the tenant as well as the legal successors of the landlord are entitled to the benefits and are burdened with the duties and obligations the covenant conferred and imposed on the original parties to the lease [Cicinelli v. Iwasaki (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 58, 65, 338 P.2d 1005] .

Thus, when a tenant has exercised an option to renew or extend a lease, the tenant and his or her successors' rights to possession of the premises for the renewed or extended term of the lease cannot be defeated by any actions of the landlord or a successor of the landlord [Cicinelli v. Iwasaki (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 58, 65, 338 P.2d 1005] . The tenant or the tenant's successor in interest is entitled to specific performance of the covenant to renew or extend the lease [Cicinelli v. Iwasaki (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 58, 65, 338 P.2d 1005] .

A subtenant is a successor in interest of a tenant. When the subtenant and the tenant have exercised the options contained in their respective leases to renew or extend the terms of those leases, the subtenant becomes vested with the right to possession of his or her leased premises for the renewed or extended term of his or her lease [Cicinelli v. Iwasaki (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 58, 65, 338 P.2d 1005] . There is nothing the subtenant's landlord, the master tenant, can do to defeat that vested right; therefore, the master tenant cannot withdraw his or her exercise of the option to renew or extend the master lease after the subtenant has exercised his or her option to renew or extend the subtenant's lease [Cicinelli v. Iwasaki (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 58, 65, 338 P.2d 1005] .

[e] Manner of Exercising Renewal or Extension Option

Because the optionor, the landlord, is bound by the offer contained in the option, but the optionee, the tenant, is free to accept the offer or not as the tenant chooses [see [d], above], courts are strict in holding an optionee to exact compliance with the terms of the option [Hayward Lbr. & Inv. Co. v. Const. Prod. Corp. (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 221, 229, 255 P.2d 473] . For example, when a tenant attempts to vary the terms of the option in the tenant's notice purporting to exercise the option, the tenant in effect rejects the option, which is extinguished on expiration of the lease's original term [Hayward Lbr. & Inv. Co. v. Const. Prod. Corp. (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 221, 229, 255 P.2d 473] . The tenant's purported notice exercising the option in such a case is in reality a counter offer that may be rejected by the landlord [Hayward Lbr. & Inv. Co. v. Const. Prod. Corp. (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 221, 227, 255 P.2d 473] .

The courts are equally strict in enforcing the notice requirements for an option to renew the lease. The specification of a time period or deadline by which notice of exercise by the tenant of an option to renew the lease must be given is universally considered to be a condition precedent to the exercise of the option [Simons v. Young (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 170, 179, 155 Cal. Rptr. 460 ; see Palo Alto Town & Country Village, Inc. v. BBTC Company (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 494, 502, 113 Cal. Rptr. 705, 521 P.2d 1097] .

When an option in a lease is not timely exercised in the manner specified in the lease, the fact that the tenant made substantial improvements in the premises just before the option date is not sufficient to constitute notice to the landlord that the option was exercised when there was no showing that the landlord waived the notice requirement [Bekins Moving & Storage Co. v. Prudential Ins. Co. (1985) 176 Cal. App. 3d 245, 251, 221 Cal. Rptr. 738] . Equitable relief is not available to extend the option period, and relief from forfeiture is not appropriate because there is no vested right in an option, which is merely an offer [Bekins Moving & Storage Co. v. Prudential Ins. Co. (1985) 176 Cal. App. 3d 245, 253-254, 221 Cal. Rptr. 738 ; see Simons v. Young (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 170, 178-185, 155 Cal. Rptr. 460] .

When a lease containing an option for renewal or extension does not contain any provision as to the manner and time in which the option is to be exercised, the tenant may exercise the option before expiration of the original lease term by any act or course of conduct indicating to the landlord the tenant's intent to renew [Alhandy v. Genchi (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 806, 810, 21 Cal. Rptr. 167 ; Cicinelli v. Iwasaki (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 58, 67-68, 338 P.2d 1005] . For example, when a lease contains an option to renew at a higher rent but does not specify how and when the option is to be exercised nor require execution of a new agreement, remaining in possession with tender of the higher rent is sufficient notice of exercise of the option [ADV Corp. v. Wikman (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 61, 66, 223 Cal. Rptr. 262] . Similarly, when a lease contains an option to renew but does not specify the manner in which the option is to be exercised and does not require the execution of a new lease or the payment of new consideration, the lease is extended when the tenant remains in possession beyond expiration of the original lease term under the same terms and conditions as the original lease term [In re Marriage of Joaquin (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1529, 1534, 239 Cal. Rptr. 175] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Be Creative to Ensure Against Tenant Missing Option Exercise Deadline. Apparently, the exercise of an option will be strictly construed. It is best if one is representing the tenant to develop creative approaches to insuring against the tenant inadvertently missing the option exercise deadline. One possible way is that when there is an option exercise deadline, to provide in the lease that the landlord must send to the tenant a notice of the right to exercise the option, no earlier than 60 days before the option exercise due date and no later than 30 days before that date, informing the tenant of his or her right to exercise the option. The failure on the landlord's part to send this notice will extend the time that the tenant has to exercise the option to 30 days from the date the notice is finally mailed (which could actually mean after the end of the fixed term tenancy or during the holdover period thereof). By Benjamin Kaplan.

[f] Holdover Clause

In addition to the option for extension or renewal of the lease, the provisions in this form contain a "holdover" clause stating that the tenant will become a month-to-month tenant if the tenant remains in possession of the leased premises after expiration of the original term of the lease without exercising the option to extend [see P (c) of form].

PRACTICE TIP:

Holdover Clause Will Counter Argument That Option Was Exercised. A holdover clause should be included to confirm that the option to extend the lease term may be exercised only by the tenant's giving the landlord the notice required under the lease and that merely holding over after expiration of the original lease term or any extension period and paying rent will not be considered an exercise of the option. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

Even in the absence of a holdover clause, a tenant who holds over after expiration of the term becomes a tenant from month-to-month if the landlord accepts monthly rent payments in the amount specified in the expired lease [Civ. Code § 1945; Renner v. Huntington etc. Oil & Gas Co. (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 93, 102, 244 P.2d 895] . Furthermore, the existence of a holdover clause has no effect on the terms of a month-to-month tenancy created by holding over. Whether or not the lease contains a holdover clause (even if the clause provides for a month-to-month tenancy "on the same terms and conditions" as stated in the lease), the month-to-month tenant is not entitled to the same rights the tenant enjoyed as tenant during the fixed term of the expired lease [Spaulding v. Yovino-Young (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 138, 142, 180 P.2d 691] . Consequently, an option to purchase the leased premises or to renew the lease contained in a fixed term lease does not carry over and inure to the benefit of a tenant who holds over and becomes a month-to-month tenant, whether by operation of a holdover clause or otherwise [Spaulding v. Yovino-Young (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 138, 142, 180 P.2d 691] .

Option to Extend Lease

Option to Extend Lease Term

Section _____. (a) Tenant is hereby granted and shall, if not then in default under this lease, have an option to extend the term of this lease for an additional period of _____[number] years only from the original expiration date of this lease, [or in _____ (specify number) successive periods of _____ (number) years (or months) each as follows: _____ (enumerate)] but otherwise on the same terms, covenants, and conditions [and subject to the same exceptions and reservations] contained in this lease, except that the rent to be paid by Tenant to Landlord for the extended term shall be increased to the sum of $ _____ per _____[month or year].

[EITHER]

[OR]

except that the rent to be paid by Tenant to Landlord as _____[monthly or yearly] rent shall be increased by the amount of increase in the real property taxes and general and special assessments levied on the leased premises during the last tax year preceding the extension period over those levied on the leased premises during the first full tax year of the term of this lease.

[OR]

except that the annual rent to be paid by Tenant to Landlord shall be increased to an amount that equals _____ percent of the then full cash market value of the leased premises as agreed on by Tenant and Landlord, or if the parties are unable to agree, fixed by appraisal in the following manner:

(1) On or before _____ [number] days before commencement of the extended term, Landlord and Tenant shall each appoint an appraiser and give written notice of the name and address of that appraiser to the other party to this lease. The two appointed appraisers shall, within _____ [number] days after appointment of the last of the two appraisers to be appointed, appoint a third appraiser and serve written notice of the name and address of that appraiser on Landlord and Tenant in the manner prescribed by this lease for service of notice on one party to this lease by the other.

(2) All appraisers appointed under this section shall be, at the time of their appointment, members in good standing of the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers.

(3) Within _____ [number] days after the appointment of the third appraiser, the three appraisers shall confer and each shall submit in writing to Landlord and Tenant his or her appraisal of the full cash market value, as described in this section, of the leased premises. The term "full cash market value" as used in this section means the price a willing buyer would pay to a willing seller for the leased premises for the uses specified in this lease, regardless of the highest and best potential use of the premises, not necessarily in cash, but on the best terms then reasonably available for property in the county where the leased premises are located.

(4) The appraised value agreed on in writing by any two of the three appointed appraisers shall be conclusive and binding on the parties to this lease, and shall establish the full cash market value of the leased premises for purposes of this section. If no two of the three appraisers are able to agree on the full cash market value of the leased premises, both the highest appraisal and the lowest appraisal submitted by any of the three appraisers shall be disregarded and the remaining appraisal shall be binding and conclusive on the parties to this lease and shall establish the full cash market value of the leased premises for purposes of this section.

(5) If either Landlord or Tenant fails to appoint an appraiser as required by this section within _____ [number] days after service on that party of written demand to do so, the appraiser appointed by the other party shall act for both Landlord and Tenant. The decision in writing of that appraiser shall, in that event, be binding on both Landlord and Tenant and establish the full cash market value of the leased premises for purposes of this section.

(6) The rent payable by Tenant to Landlord each month during the extended term of this lease shall be an amount equal to _____ [specify percentage] percent of the full cash market value of leased premises as determined in accordance with either subsection (4) or subsection (5) of this Section.

(7) If the two appraisers appointed respectively by Landlord and Tenant fail, for any reason, to appoint a third appraiser within the time required by subsection (1) of this Section, either party may petition the Superior Court for the county in which leased premises are located to appoint the third appraiser.

(8) Landlord and Tenant shall each pay the fee and all expenses incurred by the appraiser appointed by each of them and one half of all expenses and the fee incurred by the third appraiser appointed in accordance with subsection (1) of this Section.

[CONTINUE]

(b) This option shall be exercised only by Tenant's delivering to Landlord [on or before _____ (date) or between the dates of _____ (date), and _____ (date), or before expiration of the term of this lease or _____ (number) days before expiration of the term of this lease], written notice of Tenant's election to renew the term of this lease as provided in this section. This written notice shall be deemed effective on personal delivery to Landlord or on the date it is deposited in the United States mail in accordance with the provisions of Section [insert section number for notices provision of lease].

(c) In the event that Tenant does not extend the term of this lease as herein provided, and holds over beyond the expiration of the term of this lease, that holding over shall be deemed a month-to-month tenancy only at the rental of $ _____ per month, payable on the [specify, e.g., first] day of each and every month thereafter until the tenancy is terminated in a manner provided by law.

§ 34C.213 Option to Lease Additional Space

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an option to lease additional space in a multitenant building. Requirements for a valid option and its legal effect, which are discussed in § 34C.263[1] in the context of an option to purchase, are equally applicable to an option to lease additional space. For a right of refusal to lease additional space, see § 34C.214.

[b] Obtaining Option

Whether a tenant is able to obtain an option or right of first refusal to lease additional space from a landlord depends on several factors, including overall economic leasing conditions and the strength of the tenant. A tenant with a long-term lease who leases a large amount of space and wants the right or option to acquire a substantial amount of additional space will probably have a stronger bargaining position with the landlord than would a short-term, small user. A landlord also may be more willing to grant a right of first refusal that requires the tenant to match the rent offered by a third party at the time the right is exercised than an option that locks the landlord into an amount of rent agreed on at the time the option is granted.

[c] Contents of Form

This form describes the additional space covered by the option, as well as the method (with time limits) required to exercise the option. The tenant is not permitted to exercise the option if the tenant is then in default under the lease. The rent to be paid for the additional space is fixed at an amount agreed on by the parties. In all other respects, the same terms and conditions of the tenant's lease apply to the lease of the additional space. If there are any exceptions, they should be clearly set forth in the lease provision. The term of the lease for the additional space is defined by reference to events, and this form provides that the parties agree to confirm the term in writing once the event that commences the lease term for the additional space has occurred. The form includes language that permits the tenant to terminate the lease for the additional space if the landlord fails to deliver possession by a certain date.

[2] FORM

Option to Lease Additional Space

Option to Lease Additional Space

Section _____. Landlord hereby grants to Tenant the option to lease approximately _____[number] square feet of rentable floor space ("the additional space") located in the Building of which the leased premises are a part. The additional space covered by this option shall be _____[describe location agreed on by the parties, e.g., located immediately adjacent to the leased premises and is presently referred to as _____ (identify suites or offices) or any contiguous space of approximately _____ (same number as above) square feet located anywhere on the _____ [number] floor of the building that becomes available for lease on or before _____ (date agreed on by the parties)]. This option shall be subject to the following terms and conditions:

(a) Landlord shall give Tenant written notice of availability of the additional space at least 30 days before the date the additional space is expected to be vacated. Within _____[number, e.g., 14] days after the date of landlord's notice, Tenant shall notify Landlord of its election to exercise the option to lease the additional space. Failure by the Tenant to notify Landlord within the required period shall constitute a conclusive election by Tenant not to exercise the option to lease the additional space. Tenant's written notice shall be deemed effective on personal delivery to Landlord or on the date it is deposited in the United States mail in accordance with the provisions of Section _____[insert section number for notices provision of lease].

(b) The term of the lease for the additional space and Tenant's obligation to pay rent for the additional space shall commence on the date Landlord actually delivers possession of the additional space to Tenant, whether or not Tenant actually begins to occupy the additional space on that date. If Landlord is unable to deliver possession of the additional space within _____[specify time period that gives landlord a reasonable extension of time, e.g., 60 days after the expected date of availability] after Landlord's notice to Tenant described in subsection (a), Tenant shall have the right to terminate the lease for the additional space. After Landlord has delivered possession of the additional space to Tenant, Landlord and Tenant agree to confirm the commencement date for the lease of additional space in a written memorandum executed by the parties. The term of the lease for the additional space shall terminate and expire on the same date as the termination date for this lease.

(c) The rent to be paid by Tenant for the additional space shall be $ _____ per square feet. All other terms and conditions of this lease shall apply to the lease by Tenant of the additional space except _____[describe any exceptions, e.g., Tenant shall have no further option to lease additional space in the Building once the option granted herein has been exercised].

(d) Tenant may exercise the option granted under this Section only if Tenant is not then in default under this lease.

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a provision granting a right of first refusal to lease additional space in a multitenant building. Requirements for and the legal effect of a right of first refusal to purchase leased property are discussed in § 34C.264[1]. That section also discusses the difference between a right of first refusal and an option. For an option to lease additional space, see § 34C.213.

A right of first refusal to lease additional space or property is the right of the tenant to meet any bona fide offer of a third party to lease it [Vandenbergh v. Davis (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 694, 697, 12 Cal. Rptr. 222] . The right of first refusal in this form describes the additional space covered by the right and the conditions under and method by which the right must be exercised. If the right is timely exercised by the tenant, the lease of the additional space will be on the same terms and conditions as a bona fide third-party offer, including the amount of rent and the term. The parties may agree that the right is either a one-time right, or that the tenant maintains the right during the term of the lease.

PRACTICE TIP:

Landlord Should Avoid Giving Tenant Right of First Refusal. A first right of refusal in a tenant is to be avoided by the landlord if possible. A first right of refusal creates definite problems for the marketability of the premises because few tenants are going to want to have their offer proffered to a tenant as part of the landlord's negotiating strategy. Even Letters of Intent are utilized by unethical landlords to get recalcitrant tenants to release their existing space at a higher rent, or to exercise their first right of refusal on adjoining space. You do not want your tenant client to be a shill for a landlord. By Benjamin Kaplan.

Right of First Refusal to Lease Additional Space

Right of First Refusal to Lease Additional Space

Section _____. In further consideration of the rent, covenants, and conditions to be paid, performed, and observed by Tenant, Landlord hereby grants to Tenant a right of first refusal to lease _____[specify, e.g., the entire third floor of the building in which the leased premises are located] (referred to in this lease as the "additional space"). In the event Landlord receives a bona fide offer from a third party to lease the additional space, which offer is acceptable to Landlord, Landlord shall promptly notify Tenant in writing of the offer, including the amount of rent offered and other terms and conditions of the offer. Tenant shall have _____[number, e.g., five] business days within which to notify Landlord in writing whether Tenant agrees to lease the additional space at the amount of rent and on the same terms and conditions as the third-party offer. In the event Tenant elects to lease the additional space, the lease of the additional space shall be subject to the same terms and conditions as the third-party offer, including but not limited to amount of rent, term, and commencement date. In the event Tenant fails to give written notice of its election to lease the additional space within the time required under this Section, Landlord shall be free to accept the bona fide offer and lease the additional space to the third-party offeror. If the additional space subsequently becomes available again during the term of this lease, Tenant shall have the same right of first refusal granted herein with respect to a bona fide offer to lease the additional space by a subsequent third-party offeror [or The right of first refusal granted to Tenant herein is a one-time right and shall not apply after Tenant has once been offered the opportunity to exercise the right but declined].

§ 34C.220 Security Deposit

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a provision for a nonresidential lease that requires the tenant to post a security deposit to secure performance of the lease. It incorporates the statutory requirements for the landlord's handling and disposition of the deposit [see Civ. Code § 1950.7; see also [b], below]. The last paragraph of this form requires the tenant to restore any amount of the security deposit that the landlord applied for a lawful purpose during the term of the tenancy.

[b] Statutory Requirements

[i] Type of Payments

Civ. Code § 1950.7 governs any payment or deposit of money the primary function of which is to secure the performance of a nonresidential rental agreement, other than a payment or deposit, including an advance payment of rent, made to secure the execution of a rental agreement [see Civ. Code § 1950.7(a)]. A different statute applies to security deposits for residential property [see Civ. Code § 1950.5].

[ii] Landlord's Right to Claim Deposit

The landlord may claim only amounts of the payment or deposit that are reasonably necessary to remedy tenant defaults in the payment of rent, to repair damages to the premises caused by the tenant, or to clean the premises on termination of the tenancy, if the payment or deposit is made for any or all of those specific purposes [Civ. Code § 1950.7(c)]. If the landlord's claim on the payment or deposit is only for defaults in the payment of rent, and the security deposit equals no more than one month's rent plus a deposit amount clearly described as the payment of the last month's rent, then any remaining portion of the payment or deposit must be returned to the tenant no later than 30 days after the date the landlord receives possession of the premises [Civ. Code § 1950.7(c)(1)]. If the landlord's claim on the payment or deposit is only for defaults in the payment of rent and the security deposit exceeds the amount of one month's rent plus a deposit amount clearly described as the payment of the last month's rent, then any remaining portion of the payment or deposit in excess of an amount equal to one month's rent must be returned to the tenant no later than two weeks after the date the landlord receives possession of the premises, with the remainder to be returned or accounted for within 30 days from the date the landlord receives possession of the premises [Civ. Code § 1950.7(c)(2)].

If the landlord's claim on the payment or deposit includes amounts reasonably necessary to repair damages to the premises caused by the tenant or to clean the premises, then any remaining portion of the payment or deposit must be returned to the tenant at a time mutually agreed on by the landlord and tenant, but in no event later than 30 days from the date the landlord receives possession of the premises [Civ. Code § 1950.7(c)(3)].

Parties to a commercial lease may waive Civ. Code § 1950.7 to provide that a security deposit may be held and applied against future rent damages [250 L.L.C. v. PhotoPoint Corp. (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 703, 712, 718-719, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 296] . In an action concerning a tenant's breach of a lease for commercial property, the landlord violated Civ. Code § 1950.7 by retaining the security deposit to cover its damages for future rent owed under the lease, because the lease contained no such waiver [250 L.L.C. v. PhotoPoint Corp. (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 703, 720, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 296] .

[iii] Termination of Landlord's Interest in Property

If the landlord's interest in the leased property terminates (whether by sale, assignment, death, appointment of receiver, or otherwise), the landlord or the landlord's agent must dispose of the security deposit within a reasonable time in accordance with one of the following methods [see Civ. Code § 1950.7(d)]:

- By transferring the portion of the payment or deposit after any lawful deductions [see [b][ii], above] to the landlord's successor in interest, and then notifying the tenant by personal delivery or certified mail of the transfer, of any claims made against the payment or deposit, and of the transferee's name and address [see Ch. 35A, Assignment and Sublease of Leasehold Interests, § 35A.223]. If the notice to the tenant is made by personal delivery, the tenant must acknowledge receipt of the notice and sign his or her name on the landlord's copy of the notice.

- By returning the portion of the payment or deposit remaining after any lawful deductions [see [b][ii], above] to the tenant.

On receipt of any portion of the payment or deposit, less lawful deductions, the landlord's successor in interest has all of the rights and obligations of a landlord with respect to the payment or deposit [Civ. Code § 1950.7(e)].

[iv] Damages for Bad Faith Retention of Funds

The bad faith retention by a landlord or transferee of a payment or deposit or any portion of a payment or deposit may subject the landlord or the transferee to statutory damages not to exceed $200, in addition to any actual damages [Civ. Code § 1950.7(f)].

[v] Tenant's Priority Over Landlord's Other Creditors

The landlord must hold any security payment or deposit of money for the tenant [Civ. Code § 1950.7(b)]. The claim of a tenant to that payment or deposit is prior to the claim of any creditor of the landlord, except a trustee in bankruptcy [Civ. Code § 1950.7(b)].

[2] FORM

Security Deposit

ARTICLE _____
SECURITY DEPOSIT

Receipt of Deposit

Section _____. Tenant has deposited with Landlord the sum of $ _____, receipt of which is hereby acknowledged by Landlord, as security for the full and faithful performance by Tenant of the terms, conditions, and covenants of this lease.

Deduction for Rent

Section _____. If at any time during the term of this lease Tenant defaults in the payment of rent, or any portion of rent, under this lease, Landlord shall [or may] appropriate and apply any portion of the security deposit reasonably necessary to remedy any such default in the payment of rent.

Deduction for Repairs

Section _____. If at any time during the term of this lease Tenant or Tenant's agents or employees damage the premises through want of ordinary care or any greater degree of culpability, then Landlord shall [or may] appropriate and apply any portion of the security deposit reasonably necessary to fund the necessary repair.

Deduction for Cleaning

Section _____. If on termination of this tenancy Tenant fails to leave the premises in a clean condition (i.e., comparable to the condition of the premises at the time Landlord delivered possession to Tenant at the commencement of this lease, excepting ordinary wear and tear), then Landlord shall [or may] appropriate and apply any portion of the security deposit reasonably necessary to put the premises in clean condition.

Custody of Deposit

Section _____. Landlord agrees to hold the security deposit for Tenant, free from the claim of any creditor of Landlord except a trustee in bankruptcy.

Transfer of Deposit

Section _____. If Landlord transfers Landlord's interest under this lease in any manner, Landlord or Landlord's agent shall do one of the following acts, either of which will relieve Landlord of further liability with respect to the deposit:

(a) Transfer the portion of the security deposit remaining after any deductions authorized by this article or otherwise authorized by law, if any, to Landlord's successor in interest, and thereafter notify Tenant by personal delivery or certified mail of that transfer, and of the transferee's name and address. If the notice is personally delivered to Tenant, Tenant shall acknowledge receipt of the notice and sign Tenant's name on Landlord's copy of the notice. On receipt of the security deposit, or any portion of it, transferred to Landlord's successor in interest, the transferee shall have all of the rights and obligations of Landlord with respect to the security deposit.

(b) Return the portion of the security deposit remaining after any deductions authorized by this article or otherwise authorized by law, if any, to Tenant.

Return of Deposit

Section _____. Landlord shall return to Tenant the portion of the security deposit remaining after any deductions authorized by this article or otherwise authorized by law, if any, in the following manner. If a deduction has been made only for the nonpayment of rent, the remaining portion, if any, shall be returned not later than two weeks after the date Landlord receives possession of the premises. If a deduction has been made for any other reason authorized by this article or otherwise authorized by law, the remaining portion, if any, shall be returned not later than 30 days from the date Landlord receives possession of the premises. Tenant shall not be entitled to any interest on any portion of the security deposit [or Tenant shall be entitled to interest on the security deposit at the rate of _____ percent per year].

Restoration of Security Applied by Landlord

Section _____. If, during the term of this lease, Landlord applies all or any portion of the security deposit for a purpose authorized by this article or otherwise authorized by law, Tenant agrees to restore the amount of the security so applied by Landlord with the next due payment of rent under this lease.

§ 34C.221 Tenant to Pay Property Taxes and Assessments

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a lease provision requiring the tenant to pay the real property taxes and assessments on leased property. By inserting these provisions in a lease, the lease will be "net," at least as to taxes and assessments [see § 34C.17]. This type of provision is used most frequently in long-term industrial or retail leases for a freestanding building. For multitenant buildings, the landlord usually pays the real property taxes and assessments for the property and building directly, but each tenant may be required to pay a proportionate share of this expense. For a provision requiring the landlord to pay all property taxes and assessments, see § 34C.200[2], Section 4.03.

[b] Liability for Taxes

[i] Landlord's Obligation

The parties to a lease may provide that one of them will pay the taxes assessed against the leased premises, or they may agree to an apportionment of the taxes between them. In the absence of an express agreement with regard to the payment of taxes, the landlord generally has the obligation to pay all taxes assessed against the leased premises during the term of the lease [Lawrence v. F. W. Woolworth Co. (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 119, 121, 45 Cal. Rptr. 140, 403 P.2d 396] .

[ii] Reimbursement by Tenant

In some cases, the lease provides that the tenant is to pay a percentage or portion of the taxes for the landlord's property, based on a relationship between the leased premises and the assessed parcel [see form in [2], below]. If the lease provides that the tenant is to reimburse the landlord for its portion of the taxes, the landlord must first make payment of the taxes before invoicing the tenant for the tenant's share, absent a lease provision authorizing advance billing [WDT-Winchester v. Nilsson (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 516, 529-531, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 511] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Sale of Property May Increase Tax Liability. The landlord's sale of a building, or an interest in a building, may trigger a Proposition 13 reassessment, and thus dramatically increase the amount to be paid in property taxes by the landlord. This will likely raise tenant's proportionate share of any increase in net operating expenses. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[iii] Increased Taxes Due to Tenant Improvements

Taxes on improvements constructed on the leased premises by the tenant, when the tenant by the lease's terms is permitted to remove the improvements during or at the end of the lease term, are excepted from the general rule requiring the landlord to pay taxes on the leased premises absent an agreement to the contrary [see [i], above]. In that case, absent an agreement to the contrary, the tenant has the obligation of paying the increase in taxes due to the improvements, and he or she cannot avoid liability by proving that it is unlikely that he or she will remove the improvements [Lawrence v. F. W. Woolworth Co. (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 119, 121-123, 45 Cal. Rptr. 140, 403 P.2d 396] .

[iv] Special Assessments

If a lease includes a covenant obligating the tenant to pay taxes and assessments, the extent of the tenant's liability depends on the words of the covenant, the context in which they occur, and the subject matter to which they are applied [Terminal Inv. Co. v. Pope Estate Co. (1932) 122 Cal. App. 281, 283, 10 P.2d 139] . The tenant's liability is limited to taxes legally assessed [Third & Broadway Bldg. Co. v. Southern California Edison Co. (1933) 132 Cal. App. 186, 192, 22 P.2d 574] . The obligation of a tenant under a lease to pay taxes on the leased premises, unless expressly provided in the lease, does not include special assessments imposed by an improvement district because a local improvement assessment is not a tax [Wells v. Union Oil Co. (1938) 25 Cal. App. 2d 165, 166-167, 76 P.2d 696] .

[v] Increases in Assessed Value and Tax Rate

If a lease contains a covenant that obligates the tenant to pay any increase in taxes due to an increase in the assessed value of the land, the tenant is not, unless expressly provided by the lease, required to pay increased taxes occasioned by an increase in the tax rate [Land & W. Co. v. Consumers R. & G. Co. (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 77, 79, 43 P.2d 281] . If the parties agree that the tenant will pay any increase in real property taxes during the lease term, the lease should specifically state that the obligation includes increases caused by either (1) an increase in the assessed value of the leased property or (2) an increase in the tax rate [see form in [2], below].

[c] Tenant's Right to Contest Taxes

Net leases requiring the tenant to pay all real property taxes and assessments for the leased property commonly permit the tenant to contest the validity or amount of any tax as long as the tenant protects the landlord and the property from any liability. This form contains such a provision and requires the tenant to post either cash or a surety bond with the landlord as protection against liability for unpaid taxes and penalties or other resulting liability.

PRACTICE TIP:

Potential Prop. 13 Consequences. The real danger is that the landlord will sell all or part of his or her interest in the property in which the premises are located. This will probably result in a significant Proposition 13 reassessment, if the landlord has held the property for a long term. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[d] Effect of Nonpayment by Tenant

This form contains a provision that permits the landlord to pay any taxes that the tenant is required to pay, if the tenant has failed to do so, and requires the tenant to reimburse the landlord for any amount paid, with the next due rent installment. The tenant's failure to make this reimbursement gives the landlord the right to terminate the lease. Under such a provision, the covenant to pay rent and the covenant to pay taxes are separate. Thus, if the landlord accepts the following month's rent but does not demand the delinquent tax, the landlord neither waives the default of the payment, nor is estopped from enforcing the lease's forfeiture for breach of the covenant to pay taxes [Fraser's Etc. P. Co. v. Ocean Park P. Co. (1921) 185 Cal. 464, 473-474, 197 P. 328] .

[2] FORM

Taxes to be Paid by Tenant

Taxes to Be Paid by Tenant

Section _____. (a) In addition to the rent specified in Section _____ of this lease, Tenant shall pay all real property taxes [and general and special assessments] levied or assessed against the Leased Premises during the term of this lease.

(b) Tenant's obligation to pay all real property taxes [and general and special assessments] on the Leased Premises shall also include the obligation to pay any increases in real property taxes [and general and special assessments], whether the increase results from an increase in the property tax rate and/or increase in the valuation of the Leased Premises.

(c) If the Leased Premises are assessed and taxed as part of a larger parcel of real property owned by Landlord (referred to in this lease as the "Tax Parcel"), the amount payable under this section by Tenant shall be the portion of the tax bill for the Tax Parcel that bears the same ratio to the total tax bill for the Tax Parcel as the value of the Leased Premises bears to the value of the entire Tax Parcel, determined from the worksheets of the county assessor for the county in which the Leased Premises are located or by appraisal by an independent real estate appraiser selected by the parties.

(d) The taxes and assessments levied against the Leased Premises during the first and last years of the term of this lease shall be prorated between Landlord and Tenant for purposes of this section as of 12:01 A.M. on date of commencement and termination respectively of this lease.

(e) If any tax, assessment, or charge may be paid in one sum or in installments, Tenant may elect either method of payment and its election shall be binding on Landlord. If tenant makes the election to pay any tax, assessment, or charge in installments and any installment is payable after termination of this lease, the unpaid installment shall be prorated as of the date of termination and the amount payable after the date of termination shall be paid by Landlord.

(f) Tenant shall not be required to pay any estate, gift, inheritance, succession, transfer, franchise, income, or other taxes of a similar nature that may be payable by Landlord or Landlord's legal representative, successors, or assigns. Tenant also shall not be required to pay any tax that might become due on account of Landlord's ownership of property other than the Leased Property, notwithstanding that tax may become a lien on the Leased Property or be collectible from it.

Right to Contest Taxes

Section _____. Tenant shall have the right, at Tenant's sole cost and expense, to protest or contest in good faith the amount of any tax or assessment or to defer payment of the tax or assessment until final determination of the issue. On final determination, Tenant shall immediately pay the amount of the judgment rendered and all costs, charges, interest, and related penalties. The right granted to Tenant in this section is conditioned on the following:

[EITHER]

Before any contest, Tenant shall deposit with Landlord the full amount of the tax or assessment, plus the amount of penalty that will be imposed on the Leased Premises for failure to pay the tax or assessment before it became delinquent, and one year's interest at the rate charged by the government entity imposing the tax or assessment on the amount of the tax or assessment.

[OR]

Before any contest, Tenant shall furnish Landlord a surety bond issued by an insurance company qualified to do business in California. The bond shall be in an amount not less than _____ percent of the total amount of real property taxes in dispute, shall hold Landlord and the Leased Premises harmless from any damage arising out of the contest or proceeding, and shall insure the payment of any judgment rendered in the contest or proceeding.

§ 34C.222 Insurance and Indemnity Provisions

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a set of provisions for insurance coverage of leased premises. The provisions in the form define the risks to be covered under the insurance, specify whether the landlord or tenant is required to procure and maintain the required insurance, and describe the disposition of any funds paid for a covered loss.

Alternative insurance provisions for a nonresidential lease can be found in the complete leases set forth in this chapter [see §§ 34C.200[2] (retail lease), 34C.201[2] (industrial lease), 34C.202[2] (office lease)].

[b] Obligation to Insure

In the absence of special provisions in the lease, the tenant has no obligation to procure insurance against fire or any other risk for the landlord's benefit, and neither the landlord nor the tenant has an interest in the proceeds of insurance obtained by the other on his or her own separate insurable interest [Alexander v. Security-First Nat. Bank (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 718, 723, 62 P.2d 735 ; see Russell v. Williams (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 487, 491, 24 Cal. Rptr. 859, 374 P.2d 827] . The parties to the lease, however, may agree that either or both will provide certain types of insurance and that the insurance will protect the interests of either or both parties.

The failure to maintain insurance as agreed in a lease constitutes a breach, giving rise to liability measured by the damage suffered from failure to secure indemnity from the promised insurance [Davidson v. Welch (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 220, 236-237, 75 Cal. Rptr. 676] . If a party in violation of the lease procures insurance that only protects that party's interest, the other party for whose benefit the agreement was made has an equitable lien on the proceeds of that insurance [Alexander v. Security-First Nat. Bank (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 718, 724, 62 P.2d 735] . If a lease requires the landlord and tenant to be named as additional insureds on a policy and the tenant's insurance company negligently fails to include the landlord as an insured, the landlord may sue the tenant's insurance company directly [Jackson v. Aetna Life & Casualty Co. (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 838, 847, 155 Cal. Rptr. 905] .

[c] Insured Risks

In drafting insurance provisions for a lease, the parties first need to agree on the types of risks to be covered by insurance. The possibilities include the following:

- Fire and extended coverage insurance;
- Earthquake insurance;
- Flood insurance;
- Boiler and machinery insurance;
- Sprinkler system leakage insurance;
- Plate glass insurance;
- Dramshop liability insurance;
- Business interruption insurance [see § 34C.201[2], Section 5.03]; and
- Liability insurance against third-party claims.

Specific coverage will be determined by the type of property subject to the lease and the nature of the lease itself.

PRACTICE TIP:

Insurance Broker Should Be Consulted for Coverage Options. In determining the insured risks for specific leased property, the landlord and tenant, or their representatives, should consult with a broker or agent knowledgeable about insurance for the type of property being leased (for example, retail, industrial, or office). Such a consultation is necessary to confirm that the parties have considered all necessary coverage for the subject property, and to determine adequate policy limits for each type of insurance. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

PRACTICE TIP: Brokers vs. Agents. Although most leases do not differentiate between primary and umbrella coverage, the distinction may have significant impact on the tenant. In some instances coverage in the amounts required by the lease may not be available except as excess coverage. Remember the essential distinction between a "broker" and an "agent." A broker is supposed to be working for you to obtain the best coverage at the lowest cost with any insurance carrier meeting the criteria rating of the lease. An "agent" usually works for a single carrier and tries to fit you into a specific cubby hole for that carriers benefit. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[d] Party Responsible for Premiums and Procuring Insurance

In a nonresidential lease, some or all of the obligation to insure is generally imposed on the tenant. For example, in a fully net lease [see § 34C.17], the tenant is required to carry all insurance on the property. Likewise, for a lease of a freestanding building, in contrast to a multitenant building, the tenant commonly has responsibility for most or all of the insurance on the property.

[e] Lender Requirements

In the absence of special provisions in the loan documents, a borrower has no obligation to procure insurance for the benefit of the mortgagee against fire or other risk [Alexander v. Security-First Nat. Bank (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 718, 723, 62 P.2d 735] . However, it is common for a lender with a security interest in leased premises to require that it be named as an additional insured on the policy obtained by either a tenant or landlord. For a discussion of the term "additional insured," see the discussion in [f], below.

Furthermore, the lender may insist that the lease contain a provision permitting the lender to apply insurance proceeds against any default on its loan to the landlord. However, this requirement will apply only to proceeds for insurance risks that are required by the lender to be carried by the borrower. For example, when a lender does not require in its contract that the borrower obtain earthquake insurance on the property securing the loan, it has no right under the contract to receive or control the insurance proceeds paid as a result of earthquake damage to the property [Ziello v. Superior Court (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 321, 326-330, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 251] .

[f] Named Insured, Additional Insured, and Subrogation Waivers

In addition to determining the risks to be insured against and the party responsible for procuring specific insurance and paying the premiums [see [c] and [d], above], the parties to a lease must also determine, and set forth in the lease, which party or parties are to have the benefit of the insurance. If, for example, only the landlord is named as the insured on a fire insurance policy and the tenant's negligence causes a fire, the insurance company will be liable to the landlord but may assert subrogation rights against the tenant [see, e.g., Parsons Manufacturing Corp. v. Superior Court (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 1151, 1160-1162, 203 Cal. Rptr. 419 ; Liberty Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Auto Spring Supply Co. (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 860, 864-866, 131 Cal. Rptr. 211] .

The tenant can protect itself against such an assertion by either requiring that it be made an additional insured on the insurance policy, or requiring that the landlord obtain the insurer's waiver of subrogation rights against the tenant [see Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Sizzler USA Real Property, Inc., (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 415, 421, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 715 (subrogation waiver); Liberty Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Auto Spring Supply Co. (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 860, 864-867, 131 Cal. Rptr. 211 ; Gordon v. J. C. Penney Co. (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 280, 283-285, 86 Cal. Rptr. 604 ; Sacramento-Yolo Port Dist. v. Cargill of California, Inc. (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 1004, 1010-1012, 84 Cal. Rptr. 822] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Review Insurance Policies for Subrogation Waivers. The parties to a lease should review contemplated insurance policies to determine whether the policies contain subrogation waiver clauses allowing the insured to waive the subrogation rights of the insurer in favor of third parties in advance of loss. If the policy does have a clause permitting the insured to waive subrogation, then an appropriate subrogation waiver clause, conforming to the authorization to waive granted in the policy, can be drafted and inserted into the lease. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

Another method of protecting the party to the lease who does not take out the policy is to have that party named as an additional insured under the policy, a device which usually does not involve increased premiums. This arrangement is as effective as a subrogation waiver; it prevents the insurance company from looking to the other party for a recovery, since the insurance company cannot sue its own insured [Pacific Indemnity Company v. United States (9th Cir. 1972) 463 F.2d 1213, 1214] . Inclusion of a cross-liability endorsement will allow one party, if damaged, to make a claim against the insurer, even though both parties are additional insureds under the same policy.

[g] Implied Waiver of Subrogation

Even when a lease does not contain a waiver of subrogation clause, there may be an implied waiver of subrogation protecting the tenant when the landlord is required to carry insurance that is either expressly or implicitly for the benefit of both the landlord and the tenant [Parsons Manufacturing Corp. v. Superior Court (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 1151, 1158-1162, 203 Cal. Rptr. 419 ; Liberty Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Auto Spring Supply Co. (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 860, 866, 131 Cal. Rptr. 211 ; Gordon v. J. C. Penney Co. (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 280, 283-285, 86 Cal. Rptr. 604] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Include Express Waiver in Lease. Although the cited implied waiver cases involved leases under which the landlord was required to obtain the insurance, the same principles should apply when the tenant is required to obtain the insurance. Notwithstanding the possibility of a court ultimately finding an implied waiver of subrogation in a lease, good practice requires including an express waiver in the lease when that is the agreement of the parties. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

[h] Proceeds of Insurance

PRACTICE TIP:

Landlord Should Consider Payment of Insurance Proceeds to Third Party Trustee. If each party to a lease agrees to insure only his or her own property and interest, and a loss occurs, that party should recover the insurance proceeds payable for the loss. When the situation is that simple, the lease may not even include provisions on the subject. However, other situations may call for different schemes of distribution, and the lease must set forth the agreement of the parties for these. For example, under a net lease [see § 34C.17], a tenant is generally required to carry at his or her expense all insurance on the leased premises, and also to rebuild or restore the leased premises in the event they are partially or totally destroyed. Under this type of arrangement, most landlords are reluctant to have a large lump sum of insurance proceeds payable to the tenant for the loss, even though the tenant needs those funds to rebuild. One common solution employed in business leases is to include a provision that designates a third party as an "insurance trustee" to receive the insurance proceeds when they exceed a given amount. The insurance trustee will then supervise repair or restoration of the property, disbursing the proceeds as they are needed. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

For the special situations in which the parties agree that proceeds for an insured loss are to be paid to someone other than the named insured, the agreement for payment of the proceeds is usually not included in the general insurance provisions of the lease, such as those included in this form, but rather in the portion of the lease relating to the circumstances under which the proceeds would be paid, for example, on destruction of the premises [see § 34C.244]. This form follows that format by cross-referring to appropriate sections of the lease.

[i] Allocation of Risk

When the parties to a lease decide who is to be responsible for obtaining insurance coverage for a particular risk, and the party obligated to take out the insurance agrees to look to this insurance to satisfy all losses, even if caused by the negligence of the other party, the parties are not primarily contracting for a release from negligence but rather for an allocation of responsibility to obtain insurance for both parties [Fred A. Chapin Lumber Co. v. Lumber Bargains, Inc. (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 613, 616, 11 Cal. Rptr. 634] . Such an arrangement does not violate any public policy [see discussion of Civ. Code § 1668 in [j], below] even if the negligence responsible for the loss involves a violation of law [Tuchman v. Aetna Casualty & Surety Co. (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 1607, 1616, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 274 ; Fred A. Chapin Lumber Co. v. Lumber Bargains, Inc. (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 613, 616, 11 Cal. Rptr. 634] .

All contracts that have as a direct or indirect object the exemption of anyone from responsibility for his or her own fraud, willful injury to the person or property of another, or violation of law, whether willful or negligent, are against public policy [Civ. Code § 1668]. General exculpatory clauses exonerating a landlord from damage to the tenant or tenant's property for any cause whatsoever have been held valid in commercial lease situations except when the landlord was guilty of willful misconduct or active negligence [see Burnett v. Chimney Sweep (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1057, 1066-1067, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 562 ; Mills v. Ruppert (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 58, 62, 333 P.2d 818 ; Barkett v. Brucato (1953) 122 Cal. App. 2d 264, 278, 264 P.2d 978 ; Butt v. Bertola (1952) 110 Cal. App. 2d 128, 138-140, 242 P.2d 32] .

In this form, the tenant agrees to absolve the landlord for all injury or damage on the leased premises, except that resulting from any act or omission of the landlord or the landlord's authorized agent. The tenant further agrees to indemnify and hold harmless the landlord for any liability not caused by the landlord's acts or omissions [see Inglis v. Garland (1936) 19 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 767, 770 , 64 P.2d 501] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Strong Tenant May Be Able to Negotiate Reciprocal Indemnification Provisions. If the tenant has a strong bargaining position, it may be able to negotiate for mutual indemnity clauses, when, for example, the tenant agrees to indemnify and hold harmless the landlord for any liability not caused by the landlord's acts or omissions, and the landlord reciprocally agrees to indemnify and hold harmless the tenant for liability caused by the landlord's acts or omissions. This form can be modified to include the landlord's obligations. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

Insurance

ARTICLE _____
INSURANCE

Landlord's Obligations

Section _____. Landlord shall, within _____[number] days from the date of this lease, secure from a good and responsible company or companies authorized to do insurance business in California, and maintain during the entire term of this lease, the following insurance coverage: _____[describe coverage, e.g.:]

Fire Insurance

(a) Fire and extended coverage insurance in an amount not less than _____[specify, e.g., 90 percent of the full replacement value of the building and other improvements on the leased premises], provided that insurance in that percentage can be obtained, and, if not, then the highest percentage that can be obtained less than the above-stated percentage.

Additional Insurance

(a) _____[specify any additional insurance landlord is required to maintain, e.g., earthquake or flood insurance]. Tenant's Obligations

Section _____. Tenant shall, within _____[number] days from the date of this lease, secure from a good and responsible company or companies authorized to do insurance business in California, and maintain during the entire term of this lease, the following insurance coverage:

[Describe required insurance, e.g.:]

Liability Insurance

(a) _____ [Public liability insurance in the minimum amount of $ _____ for loss from an accident resulting in bodily injury to or death of one person, and $ _____ for loss from an accident resulting in damage to or destruction of property, or Public liability, property damage (and products liability) insurance with a single combined liability limit in the minimum amount of $ _____, and property damage limits of not less than $ _____,] insuring against all Tenant liability arising out of Tenant's use or occupancy of the premises. At least every _____ number, e.g.three] years, but not more frequently, Tenant shall increase the amount of public liability (and property damage or, property damage, and products liability) insurance coverage, if at that time the existing coverage is not adequate in the reasonable opinion of Landlord's insurance broker or lender.

Fire Insurance for Tenant's Personal Property

(b) Fire and extended coverage insurance on Tenant's fixtures, goods, wares, and merchandise, in or on the leased premises, with coverage in an amount of not less than $ _____.

Plate Glass Insurance

(c) Plate glass insurance on all of the windows on the leased premises adequate to cover any repair and replacement requirements.

[CONTINUE]

Additional Insureds

Section _____. Landlord and Tenant agree that the other shall be named as an additional insured on the aforementioned policies of insurance and that the liability insurance policies described in this article shall contain cross-liability endorsements.

Subrogation Waiver

Section _____. Landlord and Tenant agree that in the event of loss due to any of the perils for which they have agreed to provide insurance, each party shall look solely to its insurance for recovery. Landlord and Tenant hereby grant to each other, on behalf of any insurer providing insurance to either of them with respect to the leased premises, a waiver of any right of subrogation that any such insurer of one party may acquire against the other by virtue of payment of any loss under that insurance.

Proof of Coverage

Section _____. On securing the above coverages, the parties shall each give the other written notice of the coverage, together with a certified copy of the appropriate policies [or The original policies may be retained by the insured, but the other party shall have the right to inspect any and all such policies, and the insured, on demand, agrees to furnish the other party proof of payment of the premium or premiums on any such policies].

Protection Against Cancellation

Section _____. Each party must give proof to the other, in accordance with the preceding Section of this lease, that each of the policies provided for in this section expressly provides that the policy shall not be canceled or altered without _____[specify, e.g., 30] days' prior written notice to the other party.

Failure to Secure

Section _____. If either party at any time during the term of this lease fails to secure or maintain the foregoing insurance, the other party shall be permitted to obtain that insurance in the defaulting party's name or as the agent of the defaulting party, and shall be compensated by the defaulting party for the cost of the insurance premiums. The defaulting party shall reimburse the paying party the full amount paid not later than _____[number] days from the date written notice is received that the premiums have been paid. A failure by the defaulting party to make reimbursement within the time required under this section shall be considered a default under this lease.

Proceeds

Section _____. Proceeds from any policy or policies shall be payable to [describe, e.g., the party responsible for the payment of insurance premiums or both Landlord and Tenant as their respective interests may appear or to the Insurance Trustee under Section _____ of this lease pertaining to destruction of the premises].

Waiver of Claims and Indemnification

Section _____. Landlord shall not be liable to Tenant, and Tenant hereby waives all claims against Landlord, for any injury or damage to any person or property on or about the leased premises by or from any cause whatsoever, excepting injury or damage to Tenant resulting from the acts or omissions of Landlord or Landlord's authorized agents. Tenant agrees to hold Landlord harmless from and defend Landlord against any and all claims or liability for any injury or damage to any person or property occurring in, on, or about the leased premises or any part of the leased premises, excepting any damage or injury caused in part or in whole by the act or omission of any duty by Landlord or Landlord's agents or employees.

§ 34C.230 Use Provisions

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a set of alternative provisions regarding permitted uses, and restrictions on use, by a tenant under a nonresidential lease. In addition to various retail uses, this form includes a provision restricting the placement of signs, a provision prohibiting auction or fire sales, and a provision prohibiting uses which would negatively impact insurance coverage for the premises. For a separate provision prohibiting the tenant from committing waste, maintaining a nuisance, or using the leased premises for any unlawful purpose, see § 34C.231.

[b] Limitations on Use

[i] Types of Restrictions

A lease may restrict the tenant's use of the leased premises [Civ. Code § 1997.210(a) (applicable only to nonresidential leases); Chandler v. Hart (1911) 161 Cal. 405, 413, 119 P. 516] . A restriction on the tenant's use of leased premises may be expressed in various ways. For example, the lease may do any of the following: [Civ. Code § 1997.020(c)]:

- Limit the use of the leased premises to a specified purpose;
- Mandate the use of the premises for a specified purpose;
- Prohibit the use of the premises for a specified purpose; or
- Limit or prohibit a change in the use of the premises.

If a lease does not restrict the tenant's use of the leased premises, the tenant can generally use the leased premises for any lawful purpose not materially different from the ordinary use of the premises or for which the premises are adapted or were constructed [Davidson v. Goldstein (1943) 58 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 909, 910, 136 P. 665].

If the premises are leased for a particular purpose, the tenant cannot generally use the premises for any other purpose. If the tenant does so, the landlord may recover damages or rescind the lease [Civ. Code § 1930; Keating v. Preston (1940) 42 Cal. App. 2d 110, 115, 108 P.2d 479] . However, incidental activities necessary to complete enjoyment of the premises for the purposes for which they were leased are permitted [DeLong v. Black's Package Co. (1927) 86 Cal. App. 80, 83, 260 P. 392] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Multitenant Buildings. The landlord is usually looking to protect itself from a tenant who will destroy the character of a muti-tenant building or who will "unreasonably" increase the burden on a multitenant building. Thus, government entities which might produce heavy traffic flows (for example, Passport Offices, Welfare oriented offices, and the like) are not likely to be good candidates for most Class AAA buildings. By Benjamin Kaplan.

PRACTICE TIP: Use Restrictions Beyond Control of the Parties. Some types of limitations on use may be necessitated by factors beyond the landlord or tenant's control, such as the type of property and applicable zoning or other ordinances, illegality of a contemplated use, or recorded restrictions against the property. Aside from these types of factors, the particular use of leased premises and any restrictions on that use are a matter of negotiation between the landlord and the tenant [see [ii], below]. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

PRACTICE TIP: Bargaining Positions of Landlord and Tenant on Use Restrictions. The tenant under a lease for a freestanding building, particularly a net lease [see § 34C.17] or ground lease [see Ch. 34D, Ground Leases], is generally more likely than a tenant of a multitenant building to obtain the landlord's agreement to a lease provision permitting flexible use. Under a percentage lease [see § 34C.200[2]] in which the amount of rent paid to the landlord depends on the revenue generated from the tenant's business, a landlord is particularly interested in the type of business to be operated by the tenant and its likelihood for profitability. In that case, the landlord may prohibit the tenant from operating any type of business on the premises other than that stated in the lease, or at least require the landlord's prior consent to a different type of business. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

PRACTICE TIP: Advantage of Flexible Use Provision to Tenant. From the tenant's standpoint, flexibility in use is always desirable. Flexibility enhances the tenant's ability to sublet the premises (assuming the lease permits subletting), and allows the tenant to change to a different business if its current business is financially unsuccessful. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

[ii] Statutory Rules for Nonresidential Leases

Use restrictions contained in nonresidential leases are subject to special rules set forth in Civ. Code §§ 1997.010-1997.270. These rules generally make restrictions on use enforceable [Civ. Code § 1997.210(a)]. However, they also provide that, if a nonresidential lease does not include a restriction on use, the tenant's rights under the lease include any reasonable use of the leased property [Civ. Code § 1997.210(b)]; and, if there is an ambiguity in a use restriction, the ambiguity must be construed in favor of unrestricted use [Civ. Code § 1997.220].

Under Civ. Code §§ 1997.010-1997.270, a restriction on the use of leased property may absolutely prohibit a change in use [Civ. Code § 1997.230] or provide that a change in use is subject to an express standard or condition [Civ. Code §

1997.240]. A use restriction in a nonresidential lease may also require the landlord's consent for a change in use subject to an express standard for giving or withholding consent [Civ. Code § 1997.250]. The standard or condition may, for example, be that the landlord's consent may not be unreasonably withheld, or that the landlord's consent may be withheld subject to express standards or conditions [Civ. Code § 1997.250]. If the lease requires the landlord's consent for a change in use but provides no standard for giving or withholding consent, the restriction must be construed to include an implied standard that the landlord's consent cannot be unreasonably withheld [Civ. Code § 1997.260]. Whether the landlord's consent has been unreasonably withheld in a particular case is a question of fact on which the tenant has the burden of proof. The tenant may satisfy the burden of proof by showing that, in response to the tenant's written request for a statement of reasons for withholding consent, the landlord has failed within a reasonable time to state in writing a reasonable objection to the change in use [Civ. Code § 1997.260].

The rules set forth in Civ. Code §§ 1997.010-1997.270 generally apply to all nonresidential leases, whether executed on, before, or after the effective date, January 1, 1992 [Civ. Code §§ 1997.010, 1997.050]. However, the rules relating to use restrictions that require the landlord's consent to a change in the use of the leased premises [see Civ. Code § 1997.260 discussed above] apply only to a restriction on use in a nonresidential lease executed on or after January 1, 1992. If a use restriction in a lease executed before that date requires the landlord's consent for a change in the use of leased premises but provides no standard for giving or withholding consent, the landlord has sole and absolute discretion to give or withhold consent [Civ. Code § 1997.270(a)]. If the terms of a use restriction are fixed by an option or other agreement, the restriction on change in use is deemed to be executed on the date of execution of the option or other agreement [Civ. Code § 1997.270(b)].

[c] Continuous Operation Provision

As a general rule, the fact that a lease is made for a particular purpose does not imply a covenant on the part of the tenant to continue to use the premises for the particular purpose, and the tenant may cease to use the premises for any purpose [Bostrom v. County of San Bernardino (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 1654, 1670, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669] . For a lease provision requiring the tenant to operate a specific business on the premises, see § 34C.200[2], Section 3.01.

ARTICLE _____
USE AND LIMITATIONS

Use of Premises

Section _____. The leased premises shall be used _____[exclusively] for the purpose of _____[describe permitted use, or choose, for example, one of the following alternatives:] operating and conducting a retail drugstore for the sale of merchandise to the public, including the sale of drugs, prescriptions, surgical apparatus, physicians' and hospital supplies, druggists' sundries, chemicals, extracts, tinctures, pomades, ointments, liniments, toilet articles, perfumeries, tobacco and tobacco products, confectionery, ice cream and ice cream products, books, magazines, newspapers, and all other merchandise generally sold in retail drugstores in the city [or county] of _____, California.

[For use as a drugstore:]

[OR, for use as a drive-in restaurant:] conducting and carrying on a drive-in restaurant and for the sale and consumption of food, drinks, and all other articles of merchandise usually sold in such an establishment and customarily sold in such establishments in the city [or county] of _____, California.

[OR, for use as a flooring supply business:] conducting and carrying on a flooring and acoustical supply business.

[OR, for use as a food warehouse:] conducting and carrying on a warehouse and storage operation, dealing primarily in the storage and warehousing and distribution of groceries, foodstuffs, delicatessen items, meats, liquor, fresh vegetables, and other items that are not considered foodstuffs but are ordinarily incident to and sold in supermarkets in the city [or county] of _____, California.

[OR, for use as a grocery store:] conducting and carrying on a retail grocery store for the purpose of selling to the public groceries, vegetables, fruits, meats, dairy products, ice cream and ice cream products, candies, alcoholic beverages, tobacco and tobacco products, housewares, hardware, small household appliances, health and beauty supplies, paper products, and any and all other merchandise customarily sold in supermarkets in the city [or county] of _____, California.

Limitations on Use

Section _____. Notwithstanding the provisions of Section [number of section that describes permitted use or uses] of this lease, Tenant shall not [without first obtaining the written consent of Landlord] do any of the following: [describe any restrictions on tenant's use, or choose, for example, any one or more of the following:]

[To prohibit the sale of alcoholic beverages:]

Display, stock, offer to sell, or sell, or permit the display, stocking, offering for sale, or sale of any alcoholic beverages, including beer and wine, in, on, or from the leased premises.

[OR, for a percentage lease, to prohibit any nonselling use:]

Use the leased premises or permit them to be used for office, warehouse, showroom, or any other nonselling purpose other than as reasonably necessary for the conduct of the [specify, e.g., retail sales] business permitted by this lease.

[OR, to prohibit the overloading of floors in the building:]

Overload, or permit the overloading of, any floor in the leased building.

[OR, to restrict placement of signs:]

Place or maintain, or permit the placing or maintaining of, any sign or advertising device of any kind, nature, or description in, on, or about the leased premises [or on the exterior walls or roof of the leased building or describe other prohibited locations], except that Tenant may place [, subject to the prior approval of Landlord,] the following signs: _____[describe any permitted signs and permitted locations]. Tenant shall at all times comply with any law, ordinance, or regulation of any governmental authority restricting signs or advertising on the leased premises.

Conduct or permit any auction or bankruptcy, fire, or going out of business sale on the leased premises.

[OR, to prohibit insurance hazards:]

Do or permit anything to be done in or about the leased premises or bring or keep anything on the leased premises that will in any way increase the existing fire, liability, and other insurance rates on the [leased premises or building in which the leased premises are situated], or that will cause a cancellation of any insurance policy covering the [leased premises or building in which the leased premises are situated].

§ 34C.231 Prohibition Against Waste, Nuisance, and Unlawful Use

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a provision that is customarily included in a lease to prohibit a tenant from committing waste, maintaining a nuisance on the leased premises, or using the leased premises for any unlawful purpose. For other provisions pertaining to and restricting a tenant's use of leased premises, see § 34C.230.

[b] "Waste" Defined

The term "waste" is not defined by statute but has been judicially defined as any unlawful act or omission on the part of a tenant that results in permanent injury to the premises [see Southern Pacific Land Co. v. Kiggins (1930) 110 Cal. App. 56, 60-61, 293 P. 708] . Waste occurs when the market value of property is substantially or permanently diminished or depreciated. The test to determine whether waste has occurred is applied flexibly and includes the quantity or quality of the estate, the nature and species of property, and the relation to it of the person charged to have committed the wrong [Dieterich International Truck Sales, Inc. v. J. S. & J. Services, Inc. (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 1601, 1609, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 388] .

Examples of waste include the severance and removal of oil and gas [see Haskell v. Wood (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 799, 804, 64 Cal. Rptr. 459] and the removal of timber [see Garibaldi v. Garibaldi (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 9, 14, 70 Cal. Rptr. 92] .

[c] "Nuisance" Defined

A "nuisance" is anything that is injurious to health, including, but not limited to, the illegal sale of controlled substances, or is indecent or offensive to the senses, or is an obstruction to the free use of property, that interferes with the comfortable enjoyment of life or property, or unlawfully obstructs the free passage or use in the customary manner of any navigable lake, river, bay, stream, canal, or basin, or any public park, square, street, or highway [Civ. Code § 3479; see Penal Code § 415 (disturbing the peace)].

[d] Illegal Uses

A lease, like any contract, must have a legal object [see Civ. Code § 1550(3)] and may be void for illegality [Salazar v. Maradeaga (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 1, 4]. The illegality may result from purposes unlawful in themselves, such as prostitution or gambling, or from lawful purposes carried on in an unlawful manner, such as leasing a hotel to be used for apartment purposes in violation of local and state laws [Shephard v. Lerner (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 746, 748-749, 6 Cal. Rptr. 433] . If a lease limits use of the premises to a use prohibited by statute or local ordinance, the courts will not enforce it [Becerra v. Hochberg (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 431, 433, 14 Cal. Rptr. 101] .

A landlord who leases property with the knowledge that it is being used for an illegal purpose may be guilty of a criminal offense. For example, any person who knowingly permits gambling in premises owned or leased by him or her is guilty of a misdemeanor [Penal Code § 331]. The fact that a lease contemplates action by governmental authorities before the property may be used for the purpose specified in it does not render the lease illegal [Stockburger v. Dolan (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 313, 316-317, 94 P.2d 33] . For example, leases of property for purposes not allowed by existing zoning regulations have been upheld when the leases were entered into on the agreement that application should be made for a variance as provided by the zoning ordinance [see Baldwin v. Kubetz (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 937, 943, 307 P.2d 1005 (oil and gas lease)].

[e] Landlord's Remedies

A landlord may recover treble damages from a tenant for life or years who commits certain types of waste on the leased premises [Code Civ. Proc. § 732]. Commission of waste or maintenance of a nuisance also establishes a basis for an unlawful detainer action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(4)]. A person who commits an offense relating to controlled substances, unlawful weapons or ammunition, or uses the premises to further the purposes of that offense is deemed to have committed a nuisance on the premises [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(4); see Civ. Code § 3485 (nuisance caused by illegal conduct involving an unlawful weapons or ammunition purpose on real property, repealed on January 1, 2014; Civ. Code § 3486 (until January 1, 2014, city prosecutor or city attorney in cities of Los Angeles, Long Beach, Palmdale, San Diego, Oakland and Sacramento may file action for unlawful detainer against any person in violation of nuisance or illegal purpose provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(4) with regard to a controlled substance; after that date, the authorization will apply only to the City of Los Angeles and only if the city has previously filed specified reports)]. In addition, if a person commits an act of domestic violence, sexual assault or stalking [see Civ. Code § 1708.7; Fam. Code § 6211; Pen. Code §§ 261, 261.5, 262, 286, 288a, 289 (definitions)] against another tenant or subtenant on the premises, there is a rebuttable presumption affecting the burden of proof that the person has committed a nuisance upon the premises. [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(4) (in effect until January 1, 2012)]. However, acts that legally constitute waste only support an unlawful detainer action if the acts result in a breach of a condition or covenant of the lease. Whether these acts constitute a breach of the lease is a question of fact [Freeze v. Brinson (1991) 3 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 1, 3 , 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 227] . Using leased premises for an unlawful purpose constitutes grounds for termination of the lease and for an unlawful detainer action by the landlord [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(4)].

A landlord can also recover damages against a third party for injury to the property, notwithstanding the fact that the landlord does not have a possessory interest in the property at the time the action is filed [see Civ. Code § 826; Smith v. Cap Concrete, Inc. (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 769, 775-777, 184 Cal. Rptr. 308] .

§ 34C.232 Noncompetition and Other Covenants Affecting Contiguous Property

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form sets forth a set of alternative provisions regarding a landlord's use of real property that is owned by him or her and is either contiguous to the leased premises or is property of which the leased premises are a part, as in the case of a shopping center or office building. The first alternative provision prohibits the landlord from leasing any portion of the property subject to the restriction to a third party who will conduct a business similar to the tenant's business [see [c], below; see also subsections (a)-(d) of form].

PRACTICE TIP:

Exclusive Use Provision. A tenant with substantial leverage may be able to negotiate for the right to operate a certain type of business exclusively within a certain development, building, or center. This type of provision has traditionally been used in percentage rental leases when it was believed that conduct of a competing business would cause a reduction of the gross receipts on the leased premises (and a corresponding reduction in the amount of percentage rent paid to the landlord). By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

The second alternative provision in this form expressly states that the landlord's use of premises adjacent to the leased premises is not to be restricted. It is appropriate for use when the parties wish to express their intent to negate any contrary implication that might otherwise be construed from the lease [see Keating v. Preston (1940) 42 Cal. App. 2d 110, 122, 108 P.2d 479 (language of lease construed as indicating intention of parties to grant tenant an exclusive right to operate a restaurant business in a hotel)].

The third alternative provision imposes affirmative obligations on the landlord to perform specified acts on premises adjacent to the leased premises. It may be appropriate when the landlord's failure to perform the specified acts would interfere with or detract from the tenant's intended use of the leased premises.

Also included in the form are fourth and fifth alternatives restricting the tenant and landlord from operating a similar business within a certain radius of the premises.

[b] Landlord's Covenants Binding on Successive Owners

Covenants by a landlord in a lease to do any act, or not to use or permit to be used any real property owned by the landlord that is contiguous to premises leased to a tenant, run with the land and are binding on successive owners of the land, provided statutory requirements are satisfied [see Civ. Code §§ 1469, 1470]. For either type of covenant, the lease must do all of the following [Civ. Code §§ 1469, 1470; see subsections (a) and (d) of form]:

- Describe the contiguous real property;
- Expressly state that successive owners and persons having an interest in the lease are bound by the covenant; and
- Be recorded in the county in which all or part of the contiguous real property is located.

These provisions may be included in a short form or Memorandum of Lease to satisfy the recording requirement [see § 34C.203 for discussion and a sample Memorandum of Lease].

In addition, for covenants requiring the landlord to do any act or acts on contiguous property owned by the landlord, each act must relate to the use, repair, maintenance, or improvement of, or payment of taxes and assessments on, that contiguous real property or some part of it [Civ. Code § 1469(c); see subsection (b) of form].

A covenant that runs with the land not only binds the covenantor and vests in the covenantee, but also binds the assignees of the covenantor and vests in the assignees of the covenantee in the same manner as if they had personally entered into the covenant [Civ. Code § 1460].

Even if a restrictive covenant in a lease is unenforceable because it does not comply with these statutory requirements, it may still be enforceable as an equitable servitude when the restriction is in writing in the lease and the person against whom it runs has actual notice of the covenant [Civ. Code § 1217; Hudson Oil Co. v. Shortstop (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 488, 493-496, 168 Cal. Rptr. 801] .

[c] Noncompetition Covenants

[i] Express or Implied Covenant

If the tenant wants a restrictive covenant for property retained by the landlord, the lease must clearly express this intention [Stockton Dry Goods Co. v. Girsh (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 677, 680-681, 227 P.2d 1] , although that covenant may be implied when language indicating the restrictive intent is used [Keating v. Preston (1940) 42 Cal. App. 2d 110, 122, 108 P.2d 479] . However, an implied covenant cannot rest solely on an inference from facts surrounding the lease's execution, but must have a basis in the contract itself [Stockton Dry Goods Co. v. Girsh (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 677, 680-681, 227 P.2d 1] .

Contractual restraints on trade competition are generally invalid under the provisions of Bus. & Prof. Code § 16600. That section, however, does not invalidate express restrictive covenants regarding the use of retained premises frequently incorporated in leases [Stockton Dry Goods Co. v. Girsh (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 677, 680, 227 P.2d 1 ; see Keating v. Preston (1940) 42 Cal. App. 2d 110, 123, 108 P.2d 479] . Express covenants by the landlord to refrain from engaging in a competing business or leasing other portions of the same premises or adjoining premises owned by him or her for a competing purpose are generally enforceable [see Kulawitz v. Pacific etc. Paper Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 664, 669, 155 P.2d 24 ; Medico-Dental etc. Co. v. Horton & Converse (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 411, 419-420, 132 P.2d 457] . Furthermore, a percentage rental lease may contain an implied covenant by both landlord and tenant not to compete in the same vicinity, if that competition is effected for the sole purpose of reducing the amount of gross sales below a specified sum that would justify cancellation of the lease by that party [see Carter v. Adler (1955) 138 Cal. App. 2d 63, 72-73, 291 P.2d 111] .

For discussion of the legal issues applicable to protective and restrictive covenants, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, Ch. 153, Drafting Commercial Leases , and Ch. 474, Shopping Centers (Matthew Bender).

[iii] Limitation to Noncompetition Covenant

A breach of a covenant not to permit a similar sales business to be conducted occurs if even one of several classes or articles sold in that business is permitted to be sold by the competitor [Kulawitz v. Pacific etc. Paper Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 664, 673, 155 P.2d 24] . For this reason, a landlord who agrees with one tenant to a covenant prohibiting the landlord from leasing to another tenant with the same or similar business must consider whether the covenant is too broad and could possibly extend to businesses that merely carry overlapping products. For example, a landlord who covenants not to lease to any other operator of a retail liquor store should be careful to exclude from the covenant other business establishments such as grocery stores and major drug stores that generally carry liquor in addition to their other merchandise [see subsection (b) of form].

[iv] Tenant's Duty to Pay Rent in Event of Landlord's Breach

The landlord's breach of a restrictive noncompetition covenant does not entitle the tenant to escape his or her obligation to pay rent accrued to the date of the breach [Kulawitz v. Pacific etc. Paper Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 664, 669, 155 P.2d 24] . However, when the exclusive right to conduct the tenant's business on the premises is the essence of the consideration for a tenant's payment of rent, breach of the restrictive covenant is so substantive that it goes to the whole of the consideration and supports a rescission of the contract, terminating the obligation to pay rent [Kulawitz v. Pacific etc. Paper Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 664, 670, 155 P.2d 24 ; see Medico-Dental etc. Co. v. Horton & Converse (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 411, 433-434, 132 P.2d 457] . On the other hand, default by the tenant in the payment of rent does not waive the landlord's performance of the restrictive covenant unless the lease provides expressly or by necessary implication that performance depends on the payment of rent [Kulawitz v. Pacific etc. Paper Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 664, 670, 155 P.2d 24] .

[OR]

Description of Adjoining Property

Section _____. (a) The leased premises are a part of other real property [or a building or shopping center] owned by Landlord and described as follows: _____[describe property], which is referred to in this lease as "the Adjoining Property."

[CONTINUE]

Covenants by Landlord

(b) Landlord covenants and agrees that during the entire term of this lease [and any extensions of the term], Landlord shall not rent or lease, or permit occupation by Landlord or others of, any portion of the Adjoining Property for the purpose of operating or conducting the primary business of _____[describe prohibited use, e.g., a retail grocery store or a temporary office help business]. [This covenant shall not restrict _____ (specify type of tenants, e.g., grocery store or drug store or other) tenants in the Adjoining Property from engaging in the incidental _____ (specify type of sales or service, e.g., sales of alcoholic beverages or service of arranging for occasional placement of office help)].

(c) Landlord further agrees that all leases with all other tenants in the Adjoining Property shall include this restrictive covenant.

Covenants Binding on Landlord's Assigns

(d) The covenants set out above shall be binding on Landlord and on each successive owner, if any, during his or her ownership of the Adjacent Property, or any portion of the Adjoining Property, and on each person having or acquiring any interest in the Adjoining Property derived through any owner of the Adjoining Property, for the benefit of the leased premises.

[Second alternative: No restrictions imposed on landlord's adjoining property.]

No Limitation on Use of Retained Premises

Section _____. It is expressly understood and agreed by the parties to this lease that nothing contained in this lease is to be construed as in any way prohibiting or limiting Landlord's right to use, rent, or lease any portion, or all, of the property [or building] of which the leased premises are a part, or any other property owned by Landlord, for any lawful purpose, whether or not that use is in competition, direct or otherwise, with Tenant.

[Third alternative: Requiring landlord to perform affirmative acts on adjoining property.]

Landlord's Covenant to Perform Act on Contiguous Property

Section _____. The following described real property is contiguous [except for an intervening _____ (public street or alley or sidewalk)] to the leased premises and is owned by Landlord: [describe property] (the "Adjoining Property"). Landlord hereby covenants and agrees to [describe affirmative acts landlord is to perform on adjoining property, e.g., clear all weeds, brush, and other unsightly vegetation and debris from the west 50 feet of the Adjoining Property bordering on U.S. Highway _____ so that motorists approaching from the south will have an unobstructed view of the leased premises (or building containing the leased premises) for a distance of 1,000 yards, and to keep that strip cleared of weeds, brush, and other unsightly vegetation and debris at all times during the term of this lease (and any extension of this lease)]. This covenant shall be binding on Landlord and on each successive owner, if any, during his or her ownership of the Adjoining Property or any portion of the Adjoining Property to which this covenant extends for the benefit of the leased premises.

[Fourth Alternative: Restricting tenant from operating similar business within certain radius of premises.]

Noncompetition by Tenant

Section _____. Neither Tenant nor any entity that controls or is controlled by Tenant shall own, operate, control, or in any manner become financially involved in any business similar to that specified in Section [specify section setting forth use of premises by tenant] of this lease located within [number, e.g., five] miles in any direction of the Premises.

[Fifth Alternative: Restricting landlord from operating similar business within certain radius of premises.]

Noncompetition by Landlord

Section _____. Neither Landlord nor any entity that controls or is controlled by Landlord shall own, operate, control, or in any manner become financially involved in any business similar to that specified in Section [specify section setting forth use of premises by tenant] of this lease located within [number, e.g., five] miles in any direction of the Premises.

§ 34C.233 Parking Easements

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form sets forth provisions granting the tenant a nonexclusive easement for parking on property owned by the landlord and located next to the building containing the tenant's leased space. The parking area described in the easement is to be used in common with other tenants of the same building and/or other buildings owned by the landlord. In this regard, the provisions in this form are similar to the parking and "common area" provisions usually found in shopping center leases [see Ch. 34E, Shopping Centers: Leasing and Operation].

The provisions of this form allow the tenant open use of the parking area for itself and its clients, subject only to the restriction that the tenant's employees park in areas designated for employees of the building. There are no restrictions on the specific number of parking spaces the tenant is entitled to use [see form in [2], below]. This type of arrangement is practical only when there is ample parking, such as in an office business park. In high-density areas where parking space is at a premium, an office tenant is likely to receive only a specific number of parking spaces based on availability [see § 34C.202[2], P 12(b)].

This form also gives the landlord the right to reconfigure or redesignate the precise location of the parking area, provided such a change does not interfere with reasonable access to the tenant's leased premises and provided a minimum number of spaces of a minimum size is maintained [see form in [2], below]. Such a provision effectively prevents the landlord from building a new building in the parking area without providing adequate alternative parking. Finally, this form grants the tenant a nonexclusive "easement" for parking rather than a mere license to use the adjoining property for parking purposes. The distinction between an easement and a license is discussed in [c], below.

[b] Creation of Easements

An easement is an interest in the land of another that entitles the owner of the easement to a limited use or enjoyment of the other's land [Goble v. Dotson (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 272, 277, 21 Cal. Rptr. 769] . An easement may be created by express grant, by implication, by adverse use, or by necessity [see Legal Background to Ch. 28A, Easements and Licenses]. The transfer of a tenant's interest in a lease will include any easement rights appurtenant to the lease [see Civ. Code § 1104].

[c] Easements Distinguished From Licenses

As a general rule, a license is a personal, revocable, and nonassignable right to do one or more acts on the land of another without possessing an interest in that land [Belmont County Water Dist. v. State of California (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 13, 17, 135 Cal. Rptr. 163] . Licenses are often distinguished from easements on the ground that licenses are revocable and easements are irrevocable [see, e.g., Colvin v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 1306, 1312, 240 Cal. Rptr. 142 ; but see Golden West Baseball Co. v. City of Anaheim (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 11, 36, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 378 (license held to be irrevocable)]. For a detailed discussion of easements and licenses, see Ch. 28A, Easements and Licenses .

PRACTICE TIP:

Benefits of Easement for Parking Rights. The primary benefit of structuring the tenant's parking rights as an easement rather than a license is that the benefit and burden of an appurtenant easement such as a parking easement will automatically pass with both the landlord's and the tenant's interests in the lease [see Civ. Code §§ 1104, 1107]. This avoids the necessity of a separate document to transfer the personal rights of a license to a tenant's assignee or subtenant. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

[d] Scope of Easements

The extent of an easement is determined by the terms of the grant creating it or the nature of the enjoyment by which it was acquired [Civ. Code § 806].

In most shopping center and retail store leases, the tenant's easement for use of a designated parking area in common with other tenants is created by an express grant in the lease itself. Thus, the extent or permitted extent of the easement's use is to be determined from the grant in the lease, and in construing an instrument conveying an easement, the rules applicable to deeds generally apply [Scruby v. Vintage Grapevine, Inc. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 697, 702, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810] . When the language in the grant is clear and explicit, parol evidence is unnecessary to show the nature and extent of the rights acquired [Scruby v. Vintage Grapevine, Inc. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 697, 702, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810] . However, when there is any ambiguity or uncertainty about the scope of an easement grant, the surrounding circumstances, including the physical conditions and character of the servient tenement and the requirements of the grantee, play a significant role in determining the controlling intent [Scruby v. Vintage Grapevine, Inc. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 697, 705, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810 ; see Buehler v. Oregon-Washington Plywood Corp. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 520, 528, 131 Cal. Rptr. 394, 551 P.2d 1226] .

An easement may be described in the grant in a lease by reference to an attached plat map [Wilson v. Abrams (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 1030, 1035, 82 Cal. Rptr. 272 ; Douglas v. Lewin (1933) 131 Cal. App. 159, 162, 20 P.2d 959] . Moreover, when the plat map contains markings indicating individual parking stalls, light stanchions, and areas of ingress and egress, the markings may serve to supply a specific and definitive description of the nature and quantity of the easement as well as its geographical boundaries [Wilson v. Abrams (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 1030, 1035, 82 Cal. Rptr. 272] . In contrast, in a case in which the grant of an easement or irrevocable license provided merely for a minimum of 12,000 parking spaces, this did not entitle the holder of the easement or license the right to specify the location of the parking spaces or otherwise control the parking area [Golden West Baseball Co. v. City of Anaheim (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 11, 37-40, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 378] .

When the extent of the easement is not specifically defined or is uncertain, the rules that govern the scope of an implied easement [see [e], below] should be applied [Camp Meeker Water System, Inc. v. Public Utilities Com. (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 845, 867, 274 Cal. Rptr. 678, 799 P.2d 758] . However, this rule is further tempered by the fact that only interests expressed in the grant of the easement in the lease and those necessarily incident to the grant pass from the owner of the fee to the tenant [Camp Meeker Water System, Inc. v. Public Utilities Com. (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 845, 867, 274 Cal. Rptr. 678, 799 P.2d 758 ; Pasadena v. California-Michigan etc. Co. (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 576, 579, 110 P.2d 983] . Thus, when the burden imposed on the servient land is not specifically defined in the grant or lease, the tenant's use of the easement is limited by the requirement that the use be reasonably necessary and consistent with the purpose for which the easement was granted [Pasadena v. California-Michigan etc. Co. (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 576, 582, 110 P.2d 983] .

[i] Extent of Implied Easements

When an easement is not expressly created in a lease, an easement may nevertheless pass to the tenant by implication [Sierad v. Lilly (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 770, 774, 22 Cal. Rptr. 580] . The extent of an easement created by implication is to be inferred from the circumstances that exist at the time of the conveyance and give rise to the implication. It includes such uses as the parties might reasonably have expected from the future uses of the dominant tenement. Accordingly, in determining the intent of the parties as to the extent of the grantee's rights, consideration must be given not only to the actual uses being made at the time of the grant, but also to such uses as the facts and circumstances show were within the reasonable contemplation of the parties at the time of the conveyance [Camp Meeker Water System, Inc. v. Public Utilities Com. (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 845, 866-867, 274 Cal. Rptr. 678, 799 P.2d 758] . Prior use of the property is one of the circumstances to be considered in determining the intent of the parties, but easements may be implied in situations in which there was no prior use of the premises [Fristoe v. Drapeau (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 5, 8-9, 215 P.2d 729] .

Therefore, as a general rule, everything that belongs to the leased premises or is used with them and is reasonably necessary to their enjoyment passes as an incident of the lease unless specially reserved [Bellon v. Silver Gate Theatres, Inc. (1935) 4 Cal. 2d 1, 11, 47 P.2d 462 ; Owsley v. Hamner (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 710, 717, 227 P.2d 263] .

[ii] Intent of Parties

The determination of what constitutes the leased premises or "belongs" to the leased premises is made from the intent of the parties, as ascertained from the circumstances existing at the time the lease is executed [Sierad v. Lilly (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 770, 773, 22 Cal. Rptr. 580] . An easement may be implied as passing from the landlord to the tenant either because it is reasonably necessary to enjoyment of the leased premises or because of the manifest intention of the parties at the time the lease was made [Sierad v. Lilly (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 770, 774, 22 Cal. Rptr. 580] . For example, an easement for parking behind a leased store is not implied in a lease that includes an express provision providing for parking at a different location [Froomer v. Drollinger (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 90, 95-96, 19 Cal. Rptr. 891] .

[iii] Enforcement of Implied Easements

An implied easement arising from a written lease is enforceable not only against the landlord, but also against a party who purchases the premises from the landlord [Owsley v. Hamner (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 710, 722, 217 P.2d 263] .

Parking Easement

Parking Easement

Section _____. Landlord hereby grants to Tenant for the term of this lease as a nonexclusive easement appurtenant to the leased premises, called "the parking easement," the right to use in common with other tenants of adjoining premises owned by Landlord the area marked "Common Area" on the plat map attached to this lease and marked as "Exhibit A." The parking easement, and the use of the parking easement by Tenant, shall be subject to the following terms and conditions:

(a) It shall be used only for vehicular parking and for vehicular and pedestrian ingress and egress to the leased premises by Tenant and Tenant's employees, suppliers, customers, and invitees.

(b) It shall be subject to all reasonable rules and regulations that Landlord may now or hereafter from time to time adopt.

(c) It shall be maintained by Landlord at Landlord's sole cost and expense.

(d) Vehicles owned or operated by Tenant or Tenant's employees shall be parked only in areas established and marked by Landlord for employee parking.

(e) Landlord shall have the right to make changes in the parking easement and the Common Area as shown on the attached plat, provided

(1) Ingress to and egress from the leased premises is not substantially impaired by those changes; and

(2) The Common Area as shown on that plat contains at all times not less than _____ [number, e.g., 350] vehicular parking spaces capable of holding automobiles _____ [describe dimensions, e.g., 12 feet by 15 feet in size].

§ 34C.240 Maintenance, Repairs, and Alterations by Tenant

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a series of provisions requiring the tenant to make all necessary repairs to the leased premises during the lease's term. It also contains provisions for alterations and improvements to the premises by the tenant.

[b] Repairs and Maintenance

PRACTICE TIP:

Allocation of Responsibility. Long-term net retail or industrial leases commonly require a tenant to make all necessary repairs to the leased premises [see § 34C.17]. Such a provision is much less common in a lease of office space in a multitenant building [see § 34C.202[2]]. Rather than requiring either the landlord or tenant to make all repairs, the parties may agree to share the responsibility in some manner. For example, the landlord may be required to make all structural repairs and the tenant may be required to make all nonstructural repairs [see § 34C.200[2], Sections 5.02, 5.03]. Alternatively, one party may be required to make repairs up to an agreed maximum cost, with the other party required to bear any excess cost. In a multitenant office building or retail shopping center, the lease might make the landlord responsible for all common areas and the tenant responsible for its individual leased space [see § 34C.202[2], PP 9, 11(c); see also Ch. 34E, Shopping Centers: Leasing and Operation , for "common area" lease provisions]. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

[i] Duties of Landlord

Absent specific laws or governmental orders, a property owner is under no general duty to repair and maintain the premises or correct defective conditions, and the fact that he or she leases the premises to another does not alter this rule [Glenn R. Sewell Sheet Metal, Inc. v. Loverde (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 666, 671, 75 Cal. Rptr. 889, 451 P.2d 721] . However, state statutes, state regulations, and local ordinances directed at protecting public health and safety may impose certain duties of maintenance and repair on the landlord [see, e.g., [ii], below; see also Health & Safety Code §§ 18901-18949.6; CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, Ch. 214, Government Regulation and Enforcement (Matthew Bender)]. For an extended discussion of the respective duties of landlord and tenant under a commercial lease to comply with applicable governmental law and regulations (including those requiring repairs and improvements to leased property), see § 34C.241[1].

A landlord may also be liable to a tenant for injuries caused by the landlord's failure to use ordinary care or skill in the management of property to avoid exposing persons on it to any unreasonable risk of harm [Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 119, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561 ; Becker v. IRM Corp. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 454, 472, 213 Cal. Rptr. 213, 698 P.2d 116] . A landlord's potential tort liability for leased premises is beyond the scope of this chapter. For coverage of this issue, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, Ch. 170, The Premises: Duties and Liabilities (Matthew Bender). For a sample complaint and additional allegations based on a landlord's negligence, see CALIFORNIA FORMS OF PLEADING AND PRACTICE, Ch. 334, Landlord and Tenant: Claims for Damages (Matthew Bender).

[ii] Statutory Duties

The landlord of a building intended for the occupation of human beings must put the premises into a condition fit for human occupancy, and repair all subsequent dilapidations that render the premises untenantable [Civ. Code § 1941]. The Legislature's use of the term "building intended for the occupation of human beings," in contrast to the narrower term "dwelling" used in related statutes, apparently indicates that the landlord's duty to maintain premises in a tenantable condition and a condition fit for human occupancy extends to commercial as well as residential property, since a commercial building as well as a residential dwelling is intended for the occupation of human beings. Thus, the applicable statutes [see Civ. Code §§ 1940-1954.1] are not to be construed as applying only to a tenancy in a dwelling unit unless the specific terms of a provision are expressly limited [Civ. Code § 1940(d)].

The remedy granted to the tenant by statute for a landlord's failure to maintain leased premises in a tenantable condition is to repair the condition and deduct the cost from the rent or to vacate [see Civ. Code § 1942].

[iii] Duties of Tenant

In the absence of contrary provisions in a lease, a tenant only has the duty to use ordinary care for the preservation of the premises in safe and good condition [see Civ. Code § 1928], and to repair all deteriorations or injuries to the premises caused by the tenant's want of ordinary care [Lynn v. DePue Warehouse Co. (1962) 198 Cal. App. 2d 742, 747, 17 Cal. Rptr. 841] . Otherwise, a tenant has no general duty to repair the premises or correct defective conditions [Glenn R. Sewell Sheet Metal, Inc. v. Loverde (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 666, 671-672, 75 Cal. Rptr. 889, 451 P.2d 721] or to repair portions of the premises over which he or she has no control or authority [Rathbun Co. v. Simmons (1928) 90 Cal. App. 692, 696, 266 P. 369] .

A tenant may covenant in a lease to keep the premises in repair [Western Motors Corp. v. Land Dev. etc. Co. (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 509, 510-511, 313 P.2d 927] or to return the premises in as good a condition as they were when leased [Dicker v. West (1958) 164 Cal. App. 2d 55, 61, 330 P.2d 106] . A tenant's covenant to repair generally will be interpreted to avoid placing any unwarranted burden of improvement of the landlord's premises on the tenant. Thus, a lease provision and amendment requiring a tenant of commercial property to maintain and repair the premises, including "make any improvement, correct any condition, or otherwise comply with any written notice" from the city or landlord regarding defects, did not require the tenant to replace the roofs on the premises [ASP Properties Group, L.P. v. FARD, Inc. (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 1257, 1271-1272, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 343] .

A general covenant by a tenant to repair will not be construed to require the tenant to replace and restore completely destroyed premises [Realty & Rebuilding Co. v. Rea (1920) 184 Cal. 565, 574-578, 194 P. 1024 ; see § 34C.244 (lease provision requiring tenant to rebuild destroyed premises)]. For an extended discussion of whether such a covenant will be construed to require the tenant to comply with statutes or ordinances governing the premises, see § 34C.241.

When a lease imposes the duty of maintenance and repair on the tenant, the landlord may insist that the tenant indemnify and hold the landlord harmless against third-party claims. Such a lease provision is generally enforceable [see Inglis v. Garland (1936) 19 Cal. App. 2d 767, 770]. Indemnification and hold harmless clauses in the context of a lease are discussed in § 34C.222[1][j].

Additionally, the tenant, as the possessor of land, must act as a reasonable person in the management of the property in view of the probability of injury to others [Civ. Code § 1714(a); Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 119, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 433 P.2d 561] .

[c] Alterations by Tenant

A tenant's right to make alterations to leased premises depends on the lease's specific terms [see Spring Street Realty Co. v. Trask (1932) 126 Cal. App. 765, 768, 15 P.2d 195] . Absent an express provision in the lease permitting or requiring alterations, the tenant may not make material alterations to the leased premises without the landlord's consent [see Metzler v. Thye (1912) 163 Cal. 95, 98-99, 124 P. 721 ; Briggs v. Sherman (1924) 65 Cal. App. 249, 251-252, 223 P. 581] . However, a tenant may make minor changes to the leased premises without violating a lease specifically prohibiting alterations by the tenant [see Briggs v. Sherman (1924) 65 Cal. App. 249, 251-252, 223 P. 581] .

The form in [2], below, contains two alternative provisions for alterations by the tenant. In the first, the tenant is permitted to make alterations that do not cost in excess of a maximum dollar amount; all other alterations require the prior written approval of the landlord. In the second alternative provision, the tenant is not permitted to make any alterations without the prior written approval of the landlord. An exception is permitted for nonstructural alterations if the tenant gives the landlord adequate prior notice to post a notice of nonresponsibility.

A tenant who makes alterations to the premises may become obligated to comply with governmental rules and regulations. For example, if a tenant voluntarily puts the leased premises to uses different from prior uses, he or she may cause the premises to fall within the scope of governmental rules and regulations that were previously inapplicable. The tenant then bears the burden of conforming the new use to the law, and of taking all actions necessary to rectify any subsequent instances of noncompliance [Glenn R. Sewell Sheet Metal, Inc. v. Loverde (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 666, 672, 75 Cal. Rptr. 889, 451 P.2d 721] . For alternative provisions and an extended discussion of the respective duties of landlord and tenant under a commercial lease to comply with applicable governmental law and regulations (including those requiring repairs and improvements to leased property), see § 34C.241. Compliance with governmental regulations is also discussed in CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, Ch. 214, Government Regulation and Enforcement (Matthew Bender).

In the form in [2], below, both alternative provisions for alterations by the tenant require the tenant to comply with all applicable ordinances, rules, and regulations in making any alterations or improvements to the leased premises. A tenant will be liable to a landlord for its failure to comply with building codes in making alterations without setoff for the value of the improvements to the landlord [Wolfen v. Clinical Data, Inc. (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 171, 180-181, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 684] .

It is well settled that unless there is an express covenant in the lease to the contrary, any improvements constructed on the leased premises are the landlord's property at the end of the term of the lease [Gett v. McManus (1873) 47 Cal. 56, 57-58 ; Wolfen v. Clinical Data, Inc. (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 171, 179-180, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 684] . In the first alternative in this form, landlord and tenant agree that any alterations or improvements made by the tenant during the tenancy belong to the landlord.

On the other hand, if a tenant covenants to restore the premises to the landlord in the same condition as at the inception of the lease, the tenant is obligated to remove any alterations to the premises and to restore the premises to their original condition on the lease's termination [see Worthington v. Kaiser Foundation Health Plan, Inc. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 435, 440, 87 Cal. Rptr. 272 ; Masonic T. Assn. v. Stockholders A. Corp. (1933) 130 Cal. App. 234, 237, 19 P.2d 865] . In the second alternative in this form, the landlord may require the tenant to agree to remove the improvement and restore any resulting damage as a condition of receiving the landlord's consent to make the alteration or improvement.

If a work of improvement is undertaken by a tenant, the landlord's interest in the property is subject to a lien unless the landlord posts a Notice of Nonresponsibility [see Civ. Code §§ 3094, 3129]. However, when a lease requires the tenant either to make substantial improvements for the landlord's benefit (that is, improvements that substantially enhance the value of the property) or be in breach of the lease, the landlord may be considered a participating owner. In such a case, the Notice of Nonresponsibility will not protect the landlord from liability [Los Banos Gravel Co. v. Freeman (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 785, 797-798, 130 Cal. Rptr. 180 ; Baker v. Hubbard (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 226, 235, 161 Cal. Rptr. 551] . The interest of the tenant who caused the work of improvement is, of course, subject to the lien [Civ. Code § 3128].

The first alternative provision in this form for alterations by the tenant contains a covenant by the tenant to keep the premises free from all mechanics' liens. The second alternative provision requires the tenant to give the landlord prior notice of any permitted alterations so that the landlord may post a Notice of Nonresponsibility, and also contains a covenant by the tenant to keep the leased premises free of all mechanics' liens.

[2] FORM

Maintenance, Repairs, and Alterations by Tenant

ARTICLE _____
REPAIRS, MAINTENANCE, AND ALTERATIONS

Present Condition of Premises

Section _____. Tenant hereby acknowledges that it has inspected the leased premises and all improvements on the leased premises, including any and all buildings on and appurtenances to the leased premises, and that the leased premises, improvements, buildings, and appurtenances are, on the date of this lease, in good order, repair, and condition.

Repairs and Maintenance by Tenant

Section _____. At all times during the term of this lease [and any renewals or extensions of the term of this lease], Tenant shall, at its own cost and expense and at no cost and expense to Landlord, maintain the leased premises and all portions of the leased premises in good order and repair, and make all repairs and replacements that may become necessary to the leased premises, any buildings or improvements on the leased premises, or any sidewalks, landscaping, driveways, or parking areas that are part of or appurtenant to the leased premises. Any and all repairs and replacements required by this section, both ordinary and extraordinary and both structural and nonstructural, shall be made promptly by Tenant as required and shall be of first-class quality and workmanship and shall comply with all applicable laws, regulations, and ordinances of any governmental authority with jurisdiction.

[Optional:]

Tenant further agrees that it will, at its own cost and expense, and during the full term of this lease, make any and all changes, additions, or modifications to any such building or improvements that may be lawfully required by the building ordinances of the [City of _____ (name of city in which leased premises are located) or County of _____ (name of county in which leased premises are located)] and by any laws of the State of California or the United States of America, or by the requirements and regulations of any other governmental authority. Any such change, addition, modification, or improvement required under this section shall be subject to Section [insert section number for provision relating to alterations by tenant to leased premises] of this lease. Under no circumstances shall Landlord be required to make any expenditure for any such change, addition, modification, or improvement.

[CONTINUE]

Repairs by Landlord for Tenant's Account

Section _____. If at any time during the term of this lease [or any renewals or extensions of the term of this lease], Tenant fails to maintain the leased premises or make any repairs or replacements as required by Section _____ of this lease, Landlord may, at Landlord's option, enter the leased premises and perform maintenance or make repairs or replacements for the account of Tenant. Any sums expended by Landlord in so doing, together with interest thereon at the highest legal rate from the date expended by Landlord until the date repaid by Tenant, shall be due and payable by Tenant to Landlord with the next due payment of rent under this lease.

Waiver of Duty to Keep Premises Tenantable

Section _____. Tenant hereby expressly waives the provisions of Civil Code Sections 1941 and 1942 and any other statute or law (1) requiring Landlord to put or maintain the leased premises in a condition fit for human occupancy and to repair all subsequent dilapidations of the premises that render them untenantable and (2) granting Tenant the right to offset against the rent due under this lease expenditures by Tenant for repairs.

[EITHER]

Alterations and Improvements

Section _____. Tenant shall have the right to make alterations and improvements to the leased premises, subject to the following terms and conditions:

(a) No alterations or improvements made by Tenant shall in any way impair the structural stability of any building or improvement on the leased premises or diminish the value of the leased premises.

(b) All alterations or improvements requiring an expenditure greater than $ _____[specify, e.g., 10,000] shall be first approved in writing by Landlord.

(c) Tenant shall keep the leased premises and every part of the leased premises free and clear of any mechanics' lien or materialmen's lien arising out of the construction of any such alterations, improvements, or repairs.

(d) All alterations and improvements made to the leased premises shall become the property of Landlord and shall remain on and be surrendered with the leased premises at the expiration or earlier termination of this lease [or any renewal or extension of this lease].

(e) All alterations and improvements shall comply with all applicable laws, ordinances, and regulations of any governmental authority with jurisdiction over the leased premises.

[OR]

Alterations and Improvements

Section _____. (a) Tenant shall make no alterations, improvements, or additions to the leased premises, or enter into any contract for the making of any alterations or improvements to the leased premises, without the prior written consent of Landlord. To obtain that consent, Landlord may require Tenant's written agreement to remove any requested alterations, additions, or improvements on expiration or earlier termination of this lease and to repair any damage to the leased premises caused by their removal, at Tenant's sole cost and expense. To the extent Landlord does not require any such removal agreement, all alterations, additions, and improvements made to the leased premises shall, on expiration or earlier termination of this lease, become the property of Landlord and remain on the leased premises; provided, however, that Landlord hereby consents to the making of any nonstructural alterations to the leased premises that Tenant may desire so long as Tenant complies with subsection (b) of this Section in making those alterations and also complies with all applicable laws, ordinances, and regulations of any governmental authority with jurisdiction over the leased premises.

(b) At least 10 days before any work commences or any materials are delivered for any alterations, additions, improvements, or repairs Tenant is making to the leased premises, Tenant shall give notice to Landlord when the work is to commence or the materials are to be delivered. Landlord shall then have the right to post and maintain on the leased premises any notices that are required to protect Landlord and Landlord's interest in the leased premises from any liens for work and labor performed or materials furnished in making the alterations, additions, improvements, or repairs; provided, however, that it shall be the duty of Tenant, and nothing contained in this section shall excuse performance of that duty, to keep the leased premises free and clear of all liens, claims, and demands for work performed, materials furnished, or operations conducted on the leased premises at the instance or request of Tenant.

[CONINUE]

Surrender of Premises

Section _____. On expiration of the term of this lease [or any renewal or extension of the term of this lease], or on earlier termination of this lease, Tenant shall surrender the leased premises, all building or improvements on the leased premises, and all things appurtenant to the leased premises, to Landlord in good repair and in a good, safe, and clean condition, reasonable wear and tear excepted.

§ 34C.241 Compliance With Laws Provision

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a provision to place on the tenant the obligation of complying with all laws pertaining to the premises, whether in existence or enacted after the lease's execution, and whether relating to the tenant's particular use and occupancy or not. It is particularly applicable to a true net lease [see § 34C.17].

For lease provisions that limit the tenant's responsibility to compliance with only those laws pertaining to the tenant's specific use of the premises, see §§ 34C.200[2], Section 3.05 and 34C.201[2], Section 4.02.

[b] Allocation of Responsibility

[i] Landlord's Obligation

As a general rule, since the property owner is initially under the duty to comply with all laws and orders, the owner, as landlord, remains subject to that duty unless it is assumed by the tenant [Glenn R. Sewell Sheet Metal, Inc. v. Loverde (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 666, 672, 75 Cal. Rptr. 889, 451 P.2d 721] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Distinction Between Laws Triggered by Tenant's Specific Use and Laws Pertaining to Any Commercial Use of Premises. It is not uncommon during the term of a nonresidential lease for new laws or regulations or a new use of the premises to result in a legal duty to make repairs or alterations to the premises. The duty to make these repairs or alterations may or may not be triggered by the particular use of the tenant's property. For example, a new law requiring earthquake retrofitting for all commercial buildings without regard to the specific use of the buildings is not triggered by the tenant's particular use, whereas a new law regulating the disposal of toxic chemicals used in a dry cleaning establishment is directly related or "triggered" by the tenant's specific use [see [iii], below]. Likewise, a change in the tenant's use may trigger a legal duty to comply with existing laws. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

[ii] Change of Use by Tenant

A tenant who does not expressly assume the duty to comply with all laws may still be obligated to make certain repairs or alterations. For example, a tenant who voluntarily puts the premises to uses different from those to which they were put before the creation of his or her tenancy, and thereby causes the premises to fall within the scope of existing laws not previously applicable to the premises, must bear the burden of conforming his or her new use to the requirements of the law and of taking all action necessary to rectify any subsequent instances of noncompliance. This rule applies whether the tenant's obligation is viewed as arising from an implied assumption of the landlord's initial duty not to alter the use of the premises under his or her control without complying with all applicable laws or whether it is viewed as reflecting an independent duty to comply with the particular laws made applicable by the tenant's new use of the premises [Glenn R. Sewell Sheet Metal, Inc. v. Loverde (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 666, 672-673, 75 Cal. Rptr. 889, 451 P.2d 721] .

[iii] Tenant's Use as Triggering Factor

If the tenant agrees in the lease to comply with all governmental compliance orders and if it is the tenant's particular use of the premises that leads to the compliance order, it is reasonable to impose responsibility on the tenant for compliance under a compliance with laws provision, at least under a lease in which the landlord specifically disclaims any responsibility for maintaining or repairing the leased premises [see Hadian v. Schwartz (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 836, 843-844, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 589, 884 P.2d 46 (discussing Glenn R. Sewell Sheet Metal, Inc. v. Loverde (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 666, 75 Cal. Rptr. 889, 451 P.2d 721 in which tenant's use as trailer park subjected premises to regulation of waste disposal system)].

[iv] Tenant's Use Not a Triggering Factor

Situations in which a tenant's use of the leased premises is not the triggering factor for the government's compliance order leads to uncertainty regarding the parties' responsibility for compliance. The general rule is that a tenant's unqualified covenant to comply with applicable laws, standing alone, does not constitute an assumption of the duty to comply with those laws that require curative actions of a substantial nature [Brown v. Green (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 812, 822, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 598, 884 P.2d 55 , citing Glenn R. Sewell Sheet Metal, Inc. v Loverde (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 666, 672-674, 75 Cal. Rptr. 889, 451 P.2d 721] . If the literal language of the lease appears to place the duty of compliance on the tenant, the court will consider the lease's overall provisions, as well as certain judicially developed factors to determine the probable intent of the parties and a reasonable construction of the lease terms. These factors are as follows [Brown v. Green (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 812, 830-834, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 598, 884 P.2d 55 ; Hadian v. Schwartz (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 836, 847-849, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 589, 884 P.2d 46] :

- The relationship of the curative action's cost to the rent reserved;
- The lease's term;
- The relationship of the benefit to the tenant to that of the landlord;
- Whether the curative action is structural or nonstructural in nature;
- The degree to which the tenant's enjoyment of the premises will be interfered with while the curative action is being undertaken; and

- The likelihood that the parties contemplated the application of the particular law or order involved.

[c] Drafting Considerations

Care should be taken to draft lease provisions that clearly set out the parties intentions regarding compliance with laws. If either party to a contemplated commercial lease agreement is aware of the applicability of a specific governmental mandate that is likely to or may require improvements or repairs to leased property, provisions should be included in the lease that assign compliance and financial responsibility for the specific repairs or improvements. For example, if the parties agree that the tenant's obligation for compliance with all laws also will include the cost of any government-required capital expenditures, for example, comprehensive fire safety and sprinkler improvements [see Cox, Castle & Nicholson, Allocating the Burden of Sprinkler Retrofit Costs Between Landlord and Tenant, 12 Real Prop. L. Rep. 148 (Cal. C.E.B. 1989)], that fact should be stated in the lease.

PRACTICE TIP:

Review Potential for Expensive Governmental Compliance Orders. Before executing a lease, the parties should be diligent in their preliminary inquiries as to not only the likelihood, but the possibility, that certain governmental mandates will be applied to particular leased property. This is especially true for those mandates that have become relatively commonplace and expensive, such as asbestos abatement, earthquake retrofitting, sprinkler requirements, improvements for disabled persons, and removing underground storage tanks. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

PRACTICE TIP: Tenant Considerations. As noted in the Practice Tip, above, the costs of seismic retrofitting, asbestos removal, and the like might be extremely high--high enough to eat up all profits to the side that must pay for them, and even make bankruptcy a serious possibility. Thus, before a tenant signs a lease that imposes liability for these potential costs on the tenant, the tenant should take the following steps:

- Obtain a complete history of the construction and all improvements to the property;
- Seek expert advice from seismic-safety, asbestos, or other appropriate persons; and
- Consult an insurance expert about whether the tenant might insure against such liability.

By Myron Moskovitz.

PRACTICE TIP: Potential Exposure for Tenant. Beware of events that trigger compliance statutes. These events can have a very substantial financial impact and are not readily ascertained by a simple reading of the proposed lease provisions. Changes in a single premise or unit in a multitenant building can trigger ADA compliance for the entire building. The landlord may shift such a burden to the tenant under general provisions of the lease. By Benjamin Kaplan.

This form may be used if the intent of parties is to assign the tenant all responsibility for any governmental mandates or compliance orders that may possibly affect the leased premises, irrespective of whether the mandate or order is "triggered" by the tenant's particular use of the premises. Additionally, care should be taken to ensure that other lease provisions (for example, provisions for repair and maintenance) are consistent with this intention and agreement of the parties.

[2] FORM

Compliance With Laws

Compliance with Laws

Section _____. Tenant shall at Tenant's own cost and expense comply with all statutes, ordinances, regulations, and requirements of all governmental entities, both federal and state and county or municipal, including but not limited to those requiring capital improvements to the Premises, [such as _____ (specify any known required improvements or repairs required by governmental mandate, e.g., seismic retrofitting)] relating to any use and occupancy of the Premises (and specifically not limited to Tenant's particular use and occupancy) whether those statutes, ordinances, regulations, and requirements are now in force or are subsequently enacted.

§ 34C.242 Fixtures and Trade Fixtures

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a set of provisions concerning ownership and removal of fixtures. These provisions address the issue of which party to a lease owns and has the right to remove fixtures, including trade fixtures, installed by the tenant on the leased premises. For lease provisions governing a tenant's right to make alterations or improvements to the leased premises (including the right to install fixtures), see § 34C.240.

[b] "Fixture" Defined

A fixture is tangible property that is affixed to and is deemed part of the real property to which it is affixed [see Civ. Code § 658(2)]. Property is deemed affixed to land in the following situations [Civ. Code § 660]:

- It is attached to it by roots, as in the case of trees, vines, or shrubs;
- It is imbedded in it, as in the case of walls;
- It is permanently resting on it, as in the case of buildings; or
- It is permanently attached to what is permanent, as by means of cement, plaster, nails, bolts, or screws.

Excepted from the above statutory definition, for the purposes of sale, are emblements, industrial growing crops, and things attached to or forming part of the land that are agreed to be severed before sale or under the contract of sale [Civ.

Code § 660].

In determining whether or not an article is a fixture, the following three criteria are considered [San Diego T. & S. Bank v. San Diego (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 142, 149, 105 P.2d 94 ; Overhead Electric Co. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 1230, 1232, 278 Cal. Rptr. 112] :

- The manner of its annexation;
- Its adaptability to the use and purpose for which the realty is used; and
- The intent of the party making the annexation.

For an article to be a permanent accession to land, it need not be perpetually annexed. It is sufficient if it appears that the article is intended to remain where fastened until worn out, until the purpose to which the realty is devoted has been accomplished, or until the article is superseded by another article more suitable for the purpose [San Diego T. & S. Bank v. San Diego (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 142, 151, 105 P.2d 94 ; Seatrain Terminals of California, Inc. v. County of Alameda (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 69, 78, 147 Cal. Rptr. 578] .

Moreover, portions of equipment that are not attached to the realty but that are used with and essential to other portions attached to the realty constitute a unit, and may be considered to be constructively annexed [Southern Cal. Tel. Co. v. State Board (1938) 12 Cal. 2d 127, 138, 82 P.2d 422 ; Seatrain Terminals of California, Inc. v. County of Alameda (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 69, 76, 147 Cal. Rptr. 578] .

[c] Effect of Property as Fixture

Because a fixture is deemed part of the real property to which it is affixed [Civ. Code § 658], it is transferred with the sale or grant of the real property [see Civ. Code §§ 1013, 1084]. Also, whether property is determined to be a fixture may affect (1) whether it is subject to a mechanic's lien [R. Barcroft & Sons Co. v. Cullen (1933) 217 Cal. 708, 711, 20 P.2d 665] , (2) whether it is taxable as real property [Simms v. County of Los Angeles (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 303, 309, 217 P.2d 936] , and (3) whether its value must be considered in determining the owner's compensation for land condemned for public use [City of Los Angeles v. Klinker (1933) 219 Cal. 198, 206, 25 P.2d 826] .

[d] "Improvements" Defined

Lease provisions often refer collectively to fixtures, improvements, and alterations. The word "improvement" is comprehensive enough to embrace all additions or alterations that a tenant may make for the convenience of the tenant's business on the premises. It is much more comprehensive than the word "fixture" and, while including these, also includes many things that may not be classified as fixtures [Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 609, 328 P.2d 953 (holding that under lease provision that all improvements made to the premises were to inure to landlord, and any subsequent addition, alteration, or repair to the premises during the tenancy would be included in the term "improvement")]. For separate lease provisions that cover the rights of the tenant to make alterations and improvements, see § 34C.240[2].

[e] Ownership and Removal of Fixtures

The general rule is that when a person affixes his or her property to the land of another, without an agreement permitting him or her to remove it, the thing affixed belongs to the land's owner unless the owner requires the person to remove the property [Civ. Code § 1013]. There is an exception to this general rule for any person who affixes improvements to the land of another, acting in good faith and erroneously believing because of a mistake either of law or fact that he or she has a right to remove the improvements. In that event, a person may bring an action for removal of the improvements, but must pay the owner (or owner's successor in interest) damages proximately caused by the affixing and removal of the improvements and the landlord's costs of suit and attorneys' fees, and in some cases must obtain the consent of certain lienholders [Civ. Code § 1013.5]. Another exception to the general rule also exists for trade fixtures [see [f], below].

Notwithstanding the above general rule and exceptions, the parties may provide by express agreement that the tenant may remove fixtures [see Civ. Code § 1013]. If the lease expressly permits the tenant to remove the fixtures, he or she may remove them at any time during or within a reasonable time after expiration of the lease term [Weisberg v. Loughridge (1967) 253 Cal. App. 2d 416, 432, 61 Cal. Rptr. 563] .

[f] Trade Fixtures

A trade fixture is a particular type of fixture specially permitted by law to be removed under certain circumstances by a tenant from the landlord's real property to which it has been annexed [Trabue Pittman Corp. v. County of L.A. (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 385, 393, 175 P.2d 512 ; County of Ventura v. Channel Islands State Bank (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 240, 249, 59 Cal. Rptr. 404] . A tenant may at any time during the continuance of his or her lease term, remove from the leased premises anything affixed to the premises for the purposes of trade, manufacture, ornament, or domestic use, if the removal can be effected without injury to the premises, unless the thing has become an integral part of the premises by the manner in which it is affixed [Civ. Code § 1019; see City of Beverly Hills v. Albright (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 562, 568, 7 Cal. Rptr. 706] .

A tenant's right to remove trade fixtures must be exercised within a reasonable time after the lease terminates or the right is lost [United Pacific Ins. Co. v. Cann (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 272, 275, 276 P.2d 858] . If the parties agree to a lease provision that fixtures, including trade fixtures, will belong to the landlord on the lease's termination due to the tenant's breach, the provision is valid and controlling [Goldie v. Bauchet Properties (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 307, 313, 124 Cal. Rptr. 161, 540 P.2d 1] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Trade Fixtures. What constitutes "trade fixtures" is often a matter of dispute. Therefore, a tenant who is going to install significant "trade fixtures" to the premises should attempt to specify by schedule, what "trade fixtures" there are and that the fixtures can be removed as is provided by the form in [2], below. The downside is that many trade fixtures once removed retain only a small fraction of their original value. It is probably better that the tenant obtain an agreement from the landlord to purchase the "trade fixtures" for a specified sum, such as a percentage of original acquisition cost. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[g] Improper Removal of Fixture or Improvement

The severance of fixtures and improvements from land changes the character of the property severed from real to personal, irrespective of the means by which it is accomplished. If the removal is tortious, the owner may treat the fixture as personalty and recover it by an action of replevin or recover its value by an action for conversion [Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 606, 328 P.2d 953] .

The proper measure of damages for the wrongful removal of a fixture by a tenant is the value of that fixture in its place as a part of the realty and not what it would sell for once removed from the building [Cornell v. Sennes (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 126, 135, 95 Cal. Rptr. 728] . Also, an injunction can be obtained to prevent a tenant from removing fixtures that belong to the owner of the property [see Gordon v. Cohn (1934) 220 Cal. 193, 30 P.2d 19] . However, a person who affixes property to the land of another, acting in good faith and erroneously believing, because of a mistake either of fact or law, that he or she has a right to remove the property, may have a right to remove the fixtures or improvements [see Civ. Code § 1013.5].

Ownership of Trade Fixtures

Ownership and Removal of Fixtures, Alterations, and Improvements

Section _____. Any alterations, additions, or improvements to the leased premises made by Tenant and any fixtures, except trade fixtures as described below, installed on the leased premises by Tenant, shall on expiration or earlier termination of this lease belong to Landlord without compensation to Tenant, provided, however, that Landlord shall have the right, to be exercised on expiration or sooner termination of this lease, to require Tenant, at Tenant's sole expense, to remove any or all such additions, improvements, or fixtures and to repair any damage to the leased premises caused by the removal. Tenant shall have the right to remove its trade fixtures ("Trade Fixtures") from the leased premises at any time during the term of this lease or within _____ days after expiration of the term of this lease, subject to repairing, at Tenant's expense, any damage caused to the leased premises by the removal. If Tenant's Trade Fixtures are not removed from the leased premises within _____ days after expiration of the term of this lease or after earlier termination of this lease, the Trade Fixtures remaining on the leased premises shall become the property of and belong to Landlord.

[Add the following if parties want to designate particular items of property as trade fixtures:]

For purposes of this lease, the parties agree that the following items of property and any replacement of that item during the term of this lease shall be considered Trade Fixtures: _____[describe specific items].

§ 34C.243 Landlord's Construction Obligations

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form contains lease provisions requiring a landlord to construct a building on the leased premises. For related provisions, see §§ 34C.211 (term of lease to commence on completion of building), 34C.250 (subordination of the lease to landlord financing for building), and 34C.251 (authorization of landlord to terminate lease if unable to secure construction financing). For a ground lease that requires the tenant to construct a building, see Ch. 34D, Ground Leases .

[b] Plans and Governmental Approvals

The first alternative in the form in [2], below, covers the preparation and cost of preliminary plans and cost estimates [see subsection (b) of form] and final plans for the construction [see subsection (c) of form], as well as governmental approval for the project [see subsection (d) of form]. Significant changes in the building or the building's cost required as a condition of governmental approval allow either the landlord or tenant the right to terminate the lease [see subsection (e) of form].

[c] Construction

The remaining sections of this form include the requirements for commencement and completion of the construction. Language is provided to describe the circumstances that permit delay in the construction, tenant changes in the plans, and the inspection by the tenant when the construction is substantially completed. Optional provisions are included for construction warranties and for liquidated damages if the building's construction is delayed beyond the required completion date [see § 34C.273 for discussion of requirements for liquidated damages provisions]. Finally, the form contains a provision that addresses the issue of which party will bear the excess cost if the actual cost of construction exceeds the estimated cost previously agreed on by the parties.

PRACTICE TIP:

Landlord's Construction Obligations. The complexities of the landlord constructing a building for a tenant are immense. Although a landlord may be prepared to absorb all the costs of construction this may not be entirely beneficial to the tenant. To the extent that the landlord's obligations to "build to plan" will be governed by the plans, it behooves the tenant to have its own architect involved from the inception. The more detailed the construction specifications are, the more likely there will not be "add ons" for the landlord to approve (or not approve). The long term tenant does not wish to end up with a building unsuitable for its intended use. Furthermore, no amount of documentation is going to prevent problems from arising. It is the nature of the beast. So if your tenant needs to be in premises by a particular date, building to suit may not be the way to go. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[2] FORM

Construction by Landlord

ARTICLE _____
CONSTRUCTION BY LANDLORD

Preliminary and Final Plans

Section _____. (a) Landlord shall construct [or make or have constructed or have made] on the leased real property [or premises or specify other] a building [or describe other improvements] in accordance with the Final Plans defined in this Section.

[First alternative: For use when parties have agreed on preliminary plans and cost estimates before executing lease.]

(b) Preliminary plans and specifications and preliminary cost estimates [or specify other] for the construction have been agreed on by the parties. Copies of these documents, signed by both Landlord and Tenant, are attached as Exhibit _____[specify Exhibit for plans and specifications] and made a part of this lease.

[Second alternative: For use when parties have not agreed on preliminary plans and cost estimates before executing lease.]

(b) Landlord [or Tenant] shall cause preliminary plans and specifications and preliminary cost estimates [or specify other] for the construction to be prepared, at Landlord's [or Tenant's] sole expense, within _____ days of the date of this lease [and shall promptly deliver them to Tenant. Tenant shall approve or disapprove the preliminary plans and specifications and preliminary cost estimates within _____ days after their delivery to Tenant by Landlord]. On approval of the preliminary plans and specifications [or specify other], each party to this lease shall sign them, and they shall, as of the date of signing, be deemed incorporated in and made a material part of this lease.

[CONTINUE]

(c) Within _____ days after the date _____[if first alternative above was used: of this lease or, if second alternative above was used: that both parties have approved and signed the preliminary plans and specifications and preliminary cost estimates], Landlord [or Tenant] shall cause final plans and specifications (including working drawings) and final cost estimates ("the Final Plans"), to be prepared, at Landlord's [or Tenant's]

sole expense, and delivered to Landlord. The Final Plans shall be based on the preliminary plans and specifications and preliminary cost estimates previously approved by the parties and shall be deemed to be a part of this lease and shall be attached to this lease as Exhibit _____[specify exhibit for plans and specifications].

(d) Landlord [or Tenant] shall be responsible for obtaining approval for the Final Plans from all necessary government agencies. The parties agree that they shall be bound by any change in the Final Plans ordered as a condition of government approval except for the following: _____ [set forth changes that will give either party the right to terminate the lease, e.g.:

(1) An increase in the cost to Landlord to construct the building (or describe other improvement) that is equal to or greater than _____ percent of the preliminary cost estimates agreed on by the parties shall give Landlord the right to terminate this lease.

(2) A change that will result in the building (or describe other improvements) being completed _____ (specify time period, e.g., 60 days or more) after the Completion Date required under Section _____ of this lease shall give Tenant the right to terminate this lease.

(3) A change that will result in a reduction in the total square footage of the building (or describe other improvements) equal to or greater than _____ percent of the total square footage of the building (or describe other improvements) as set forth in the Final Plans shall give Tenant the right to terminate this lease.]

(e) Termination of this lease by either party for a required governmental change set forth above shall be by written notice to the other, given not later than _____ days after notice of the required governmental change is given to the terminating party either by the governmental authority or the other party to this lease, whichever is earlier. If this lease is not terminated in accordance with this section, the parties agree to confirm and memorialize in writing the date on which the last required governmental approval is obtained (the "Final Approval Date"). If Landlord [or Tenant] is unable to obtain all required government approvals for the construction within _____ days of the date the Final Plans are approved by both Landlord and Tenant (the "Approval Period"), either party shall have the right to terminate this lease by written notice to the other given within _____ days of expiration of the Approval Period.

Commencement and Completion of Construction

Section _____. Landlord shall cause construction of the building [or improvements] to be commenced by a general contractor licensed to do business in California and selected by Landlord ("the Contractor") within _____ days of the Approval Date set forth in Section _____of this lease. The Contractor shall be required by its contract with Landlord to construct the building [or improvements] in accordance with the Final Plans and to complete construction not later than [number] days [or months] after the Approval Date ("the Completion Date"), subject only to delays permitted by Section [cross-refer to the following section of the lease that defines permitted delays].

Permitted Delays

Section _____. The construction period provided for in Section _____ above shall be extended by a number of days equal to the number of days during which construction is delayed by any of the following:

(a) Material shortages, labor shortages, strikes, lockouts, boycotts, other labor disruptions, governmental actions, war, riot, insurrection, rebellion, act of God, fire, flood, storm, earthquake, or any and all causes beyond the reasonable control of Landlord; or

(b) Any change in the Final Plans requested by Tenant.

Tenant Changes in Plans

Section _____. It is expressly understood and agreed by the parties that Landlord shall not be required to provide or pay for any construction in addition to that set forth in the Final Plans, and that Tenant shall not substantially delay or impede the construction by making changes or alterations in the Final Plans. Any changes requested by Tenant in the Final Plans must be approved by Landlord and any and all such changes or alterations shall be paid for solely by Tenant. Any additional time for construction required by Tenant's changes in the Final Plans shall be added to the time permitted for Landlord's completion of the building [or improvements].

Tenant Inspection and Punchlist

Section _____. When construction for the building [or improvements] is substantially complete, Landlord shall notify Tenant in writing. Within _____ days after the date of Landlord's written notice, Tenant shall inspect the building [or improvements] and shall prepare a "punchlist" of all items Tenant considers either defective or not completed. Within _____ days after Tenant delivers the punchlist to Landlord, Landlord shall cause all corrective work identified on the punchlist to be performed that, in the opinion of Landlord's architect, is necessary to bring the construction in substantial conformance with the Final Plans. If Tenant fails to deliver a punchlist to Landlord within the time period required by this section, Tenant shall be deemed to have inspected the building [or improvements] and accepted construction in the condition when inspected by Tenant.

Completion of Construction Defined

Section _____. The building [or improvements] shall be deemed completed and ready for occupancy by Tenant when a Certificate of Occupancy for the building [or improvements] has been issued by the [specify agency, e.g., Public Works Department or Building Inspection Department or County Engineer] of the City [or County] of _____, California, and Landlord has given Tenant written notice of the issuance of such a certificate.

Actual Cost of Construction

Section _____. If Landlord's actual cost of construction for the building [or improvements] exceeds [or exceeds by more than _____ percent] the total cost of construction set forth in the preliminary cost estimates referred to in Section _____ of this lease (excepting any overage caused by a Tenant change in the Final Plans for which Tenant is solely responsible for payment), the excess construction cost shall be paid:

[If Landlord is to pay additional construction cost:] solely by Landlord.

[OR, if additional cost will be shared by Landlord and Tenant:] half by Landlord and half by Tenant [or describe other arrangement].

[OR, if Tenant is to pay additional cost:] solely by Tenant.

[If first or second alternative, above, is used, add:]

Landlord shall bear the additional cost during the construction period, up to the Completion Date. Thereafter, Tenant shall pay [the or its share of the] excess construction cost by one of the following methods to be elected by Tenant within [number, e.g., 30] days after the Completion Date.

(a) The excess construction cost shall be paid in cash in one lump sum on or before [number, e.g., 90] days after the Completion Date.

(b) The total excess construction cost shall be divided by the number of months contained in the term of this lease and the dollar amount so computed shall be paid monthly by Tenant to Landlord, together with and in addition to the minimum monthly rent provided for in Section _____ of this lease.

For purposes of computing the Landlord's total construction cost and determining whether there has been any excess construction cost as defined in this Section, all construction costs of the Landlord shall be a permitted cost of construction, except that the following shall be excluded from the total cost of construction: [describe in detail any Landlord costs that are not to be figured in total of construction costs, e.g., the cost to remove any hazardous substance from the construction site, and any penalties or late charges assessed against Landlord during the construction period by Landlord's interim or permanent lender].

[Optional:]

Construction Warranties

Section _____. Landlord hereby makes the following warranties with respect to construction of the building [or improvements]:

(a) The construction shall substantially comply with the Final Plans, subject to insubstantial deviations that do not interfere with Tenant's use of the leased premises, changes requested by Tenant and approved by Landlord, and changes requested by governmental authority and approved by the parties.

(b) The construction shall comply with all building codes and other applicable laws, regulations, and rules of governmental authorities having jurisdiction over the construction, all requirements of Landlord's lender[s], and all insurers of both Landlord and Tenant.

(c) As between Landlord and Tenant, Landlord shall be responsible for compliance with the Mechanic's Lien Law of California. If any claims are filed against the leased premises, Landlord shall promptly pay the claims except for any claims that the Landlord is contesting in good faith. In any event, Landlord shall indemnify the Tenant for any damages suffered by Tenant as a result of a mechanics' lien.

[Optional:]

Liquidated Damages for Delay

Section _____. If the building is [or the improvements are] not completed by the Completion Date set forth in this lease, Landlord shall pay to Tenant the sum of $ _____ per day for each day beyond the Completion Date (as extended by delays permitted under this lease) until construction is completed. That sum shall be paid to Tenant as liquidated damages for all damages and injuries sustained by Tenant because of the delay in completion of the building [or improvements] and shall relieve Landlord from all liability for any other or further damages sustained by Tenant because of that delay.

§ 34C.244 Tenant to Rebuild Destroyed Premises

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form contains provisions requiring a tenant to repair or rebuild any part of the leased premises that may be damaged or destroyed during the lease term. Under certain circumstances the tenant is excused from the obligation to repair and rebuild and may instead elect to terminate the lease.

These types of lease provisions are most often used in a net or partially net long-term lease that also requires the tenant to make all ordinary repairs to the premises [see § 34C.240]. For a discussion of the nature and purpose of net leases, see § 34C.17. For provisions requiring the landlord to restore destroyed premises, see § 34C.200[2], Article 8. For provisions allocating the responsibility for restoration between the landlord and tenant, depending on the nature of the casualty, see § 34C.201[2], Article 6.

[b] Obligation of Parties Absent Lease Provision

Absent a lease provision requiring repair or restoration, either party may terminate the lease if the leased premises are destroyed [Civ. Code §§ 1932(2), 1933(4); Harvey v. Weisbaum (1911) 159 Cal. 265, 267, 113 P. 656] . In the absence of a covenant in the lease to the contrary, the landlord is under no obligation to rebuild the premises in the event of destruction by hazards such as fire [see Mattal v. American Trust Co. (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 645, 647, 25 Cal. Rptr. 517] . However, the parties to a lease may agree that either the landlord or the tenant must rebuild destroyed premises [see Glenn R. Sewell Sheet Metal, Inc. v. Loverde (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 666, 678, 75 Cal. Rptr. 889, 461 P.2d 721] .

A party cannot terminate a lease because the premises are destroyed when that party has assumed the risk of destruction by a covenant to repair [Glenn R. Sewell Sheet Metal, Inc. v. Loverde (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 666, 678, 75 Cal. Rptr. 889, 451 P.2d 721] . However, a general covenant to repair is not in itself sufficient to obligate the landlord or the tenant to restore or rebuild a completely destroyed structure [see Realty & Rebuilding Co. v. Rea (1920) 184 Cal. 565, 576, 194 P. 1024 ; Friedman v. Isenbruck (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 326, 334, 244 P.2d 718] .

[c] Duty to Repair or Rebuild

This form generally requires the tenant to repair any damage to the premises and to rebuild the premises if they are destroyed. Alternative language in the form permits the parties to limit the tenant's obligation to repair damage or destruction resulting from a cause for which the tenant is required by the lease to carry insurance, for example, fire. For a discussion of practical and legal considerations applicable to insurance provisions in a lease, see § 34C.222[1].

The form also provides exceptions to the tenant's general obligation to repair and restore. If the damage or destruction occurs during the last part of the lease term, for example, during the last year, the tenant has a right to terminate the lease if the cost of repair or rebuilding will exceed a maximum percentage of the building's replacement value (before the damage or destruction). Some commercial leases require a tenant to repair and rebuild only if the damaged portion of the building or premises does not exceed a maximum number of square feet or floor area; others require rebuilding only if it can be accomplished within a stated number of days and is permitted by then-existing law.

[d] Insurance Proceeds

This form states that insurance proceeds will be paid to tenant for purposes of repair or rebuilding, except that if the tenant elects to terminate the lease under the conditions permitted, the proceeds will be paid to the landlord. It further states that the tenant is responsible for the cost of repair or restoration, regardless of whether the insurance proceeds payable are sufficient to cover the entire cost.

PRACTICE TIP:

Insurance. There are particular endorsements to policies which are available to cover upgrades and the meeting of new code requirements. If the tenant is assuming the obligation to rebuild under certain circumstances, the question should be "rebuild to what and what standard?" By Benjamin Kaplan.

[e] Rent Abatement

In this form, the rent payable by the tenant during the period the tenant is required to repair or rebuild is not reduced or abated. Therefore, no specific time requirements for the rebuilding period are specified. The tenant is merely required to proceed promptly, and presumably would do so when faced with continuing rent payments during a period of interrupted business operations.

PRACTICE TIP:

Business Interruption Insurance for the Tenant Will Protect Landlord's Income. When the tenant receives no rent abatement or reduction during a period of major repair or rebuilding, the landlord should insist on a lease provision that requires the tenant to procure and maintain business interruption insurance during the term of the lease [see § 34C.201[2], Section 5.03]. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

[2] FORM

Tenant's Duty to Repair or Rebuild

ARTICLE _____
DESTRUCTION OF PREMISES

Tenant's Duty to Repair

Section _____. If the leased premises or any portion of the leased premises, or any building or improvement on the leased premises, is damaged or destroyed by any cause whatsoever [or by any cause for which Tenant is required under this lease to carry insurance], Tenant shall promptly, at Tenant's own cost and expense, repair the damage and restore the leased premises to at least the same condition that existed before that damage or destruction, regardless of whether any insurance proceeds paid for the damage or destruction are sufficient to cover the entire cost of repair or restoration. During repair and restoration this lease shall remain in full force and effect and the rent payable under this lease shall not be abated in any way or to any extent. The proceeds of any insurance covering the damage or destruction shall be made available to Tenant for the repair or restoration required under this Section.

Tenant's Option to Terminate Lease

Section _____. Notwithstanding any other provision of this lease, Tenant may terminate this lease if the building on the leased premises is damaged or destroyed by any cause [or by any cause for which Tenant is required to carry insurance under this lease] during the last year [or other time period, e.g., the last two years] of the term of this lease to such an extent that it will cost more than [specify, e.g., 25] percent of the replacement value of the building immediately before the damage or destruction to restore the building to the condition in existence immediately before the damage or destruction. Tenant may terminate this lease by giving written notice of termination to Landlord not later than [number, e.g., 30] days after the event causing the damage or destruction. The termination shall be effective on the date specified in the Tenant's notice or on the date Tenant completes vacating the leased premises, whichever is later. Tenant shall pay rent through the termination date provided for in this Section with no deduction or abatement. If Tenant terminates this lease pursuant to this section, all insurance proceeds payable because of the damage or destruction shall be paid to and be the property of Landlord.

§ 34C.250 Subordination, Nondisturbance, and Attornment Provisions

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a subordination, nondistrubance, and attornment provision for inclusion in a nonresidential lease. It includes the following:

- A provision subordinating the lease to a deed of trust;
- A requirement that the landlord obtain an agreement from the lender not to disturb the tenant's tenancy in the event of foreclosure ("nondisturbance agreement"); and
- The tenant's agreement to accept a new owner as its landlord ("attornment agreement").

For a lease provision giving the landlord the right to terminate the lease if he or she is unable by a specified date to secure construction and permanent financing, see § 34C.251[2]. Construction and permanent loans are discussed in Chs. 30A, Construction Financing , and 30D, Construction Contracts and Subcontracts .

For a discussion of the notices and captions required by statute for subordination clauses and agreements used in conjunction with loans of $25,000 or less [see Civ. Code §§ 2953.2, 2953.3], see Ch. 25B, Subordination, Assumption, and Assignment, §§ 25B.203, 25B.204, 25B.207-25B.210.

[b] Priority of Recorded Conveyances

Generally, every conveyance of real property or an estate for years in the property, other than a will or a lease for a term not exceeding one year, takes effect and ranks in priority according to the date it is recorded [Civ. Code §§ 1214, 1215]. In California, it is common for a lender to record the deed of trust it receives from an owner [see Ch. 25A, Security Instruments for Real Estate Financing]. Tenants who want to protect their leasehold rights as against all subsequent liens and interests will record a Memorandum of Lease [see § 34C.203].

A foreclosure sale terminates all rights in the real property that were created after the recording of the instrument creating the lien that is foreclosed [Miscione v. Barton Development Co. (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1320, 1326, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 280] . Accordingly, a leasehold interest is extinguished by a foreclosure sale under a lien to which the lease is subordinate [McDermott v. Burke (1860) 16 Cal. 580, 590] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Termination of Lease Through Foreclosure of Landlord's Property Can Disadvantage Lender. The loss of a leasehold interest through foreclosure is not only an obvious concern for a tenant who wants to maintain its leasehold interest in the premises, it can also be a critical issue for the lender who may be relying on the rental income from the lease for payment of its loan. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

A tenant can protect its interest through a nondisturbance agreement [see [e], below]. A lender can negotiate a number of alternatives to protect its interest in having a lease remain in place. One option is to provide for the subordination of its prior deed of trust to subsequent leases [see [h], below]. Even if the lease remains subordinate to the deed of trust, the lease may not be extinguished in the event of a foreclosure if the lease includes an attornment clause which requires the tenant to attorn to a new owner in a foreclosure action [see [g], below].

[c] Subordination of Lease to Financing Encumbrances

Parties to real estate transactions can contractually agree to alter the priorities otherwise fixed by law [Miscione v. Barton Development Co. (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1320, 1326, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 280] . A subordination agreement is an agreement by which one holding an otherwise senior lien or other real estate interest consents to a reduction in priority vis-a-vis another person holding an interest in the same real estate [Miscione v. Barton Development Co. (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1320, 1327, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 280] . For example, under the terms of a lease or a separate agreement, a tenant may agree to waive the priority of his or her leasehold interest to a subsequent lien on the fee [Security-First Nat. Bank v. Marxen (1938) 28 Cal. App. 2d 446, 453, 82 P.2d 727] . When the instrument by which a lease is subordinated to a subsequent lien is recorded, that instrument serves as constructive notice of subordination [see Civ. Code § 2934]. Subsection (d) of the form in [2], below, requires the Tenant to execute a separate form with the landlord or lender, if requested.

Typically, lenders require leases to be subordinated to their deeds of trust. Accordingly, a landlord often negotiates with the tenant for the lease to be subordinated to subsequent deeds of trust. subsection (a) of the form contains alternative provisions for the subordination of the lease to a deed of trust. The first alternative is an automatic subordination clause [see [d], below]. The second alternative provides that the lease is subordinate to the landlord's existing and subsequent encumbrances for financing of the property, without giving the lender the option to keep the lease in a superior position. Because mortgages and deeds of trust are functionally and legally the same, a lease will be extinguished by a trustee sale under a deed of trust even if the clause in the lease subordinates it to "mortgages which may now or hereafter affect" the property and does not mention deeds of trust [Aviel v. Ng (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 809, 817, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 200] .

[d] Automatic Subordination Clauses

The first alternative of subsection (a) of the form provides that the lease is subordinate to any deeds of trust unless the trust deed holder elects to have the lease be superior. This is commonly known as an automatic subordination [Miscione v. Barton Development Co. (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1320, 1329, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 280] . However, if the lender fails to comply with the notice provisions in the lease for such election before the foreclosure sale, the lease will be automatically extinguished on foreclosure on the deed of trust. The lender, or its successor, cannot later decide to make the lease superior to the deed of trust [see Dover Mobile Estates v. Fiber Form Products, Inc. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1494, 1498-1499, 270 Cal. Rptr. 183] .

[e] Nondisturbance Agreements

A tenant may protect itself against loss of the leasehold interest caused by the landlord's default under a superior lien by requiring the landlord to obtain from its lender a nondisturbance agreement in the tenant's favor. Under a nondisturbance agreement, a lender covenants that, in the event of a foreclosure, the tenant will remain on the leased premises so long as the tenant continues to comply with the lease's terms and the lease is not in default [Miscione v. Barton Development Co. (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1320, 1327, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 280] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Requirement to Provide Tenant Nondisturbance Agreement Should Be Included in Lease. Requiring a landlord to obtain a nondisturbance agreement from its lender for subsequent loans should be negotiated at the inception of the lease if the lease requires the tenant to subordinate the lease to subsequent loans. Subsection (b) of the form includes a provision for this purpose. Otherwise, the tenant is left with no leverage when it requests the nondisturbance agreement from the lender in exchange for a subordination to a subsequent loan. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

[f] Other Protections for Tenant

In addition to or in lieu of a nondisturbance agreement [see [e], above], a tenant may insist on a lease provision permitting the tenant to cure the landlord's default under a first deed of trust. A tenant may also negotiate with the landlord to limit the amount of future encumbrances to which the lease will be subordinate or to limit the real property of the landlord that may be given as security for a loan that is to have priority over the lease. Any of these restrictions limit a landlord's flexibility to obtain loans on the property but also gives the tenant some control over subordination that could impair its interest in the lease.

[g] Attornment Clause

Typically an attornment clause will accompany a nondisturbance agreement. Under an attornment clause, a tenant covenants with the lender that, in the event of foreclosure, the lease will not be extinguished but will continue as a lease between the lender (or any successor to it) and the tenant. The tenant, in other words, agrees to recognize that another party who would not otherwise have privity may enforce the lease agreement as though the third party were originally a beneficiary of the agreement [Miscione v. Barton Development Co. (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1320, 1328, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 280] .

In a situation in which a deed of trust is prior to a lease, an attornment clause may prevent a lease from being extinguished in a foreclosure action [see Miscione v. Barton Development Co. (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1320, 1327-1332, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 280 (attornment clause obligating tenant to attorn to a new owner who "acquired and accepted the property subject to the lease" in a foreclosure action prevented a lease which was subsequent to the prior deed of trust from being extinguished)].

[h] Subordination of Deed of Trust to Lease

A prospective tenant and a lender may agree to subordinate an existing deed of trust on the subject property to the lease [Bank of America v. Hirsch Merc. Co. (1944) 64 Cal. App. 2d 175, 182-183, 148 P.2d 110] . This type of agreement is effective to establish the priority of the tenant's lease, even though the deed of trust is recorded before the recording of the lease [Bank of America v. Hirsch Merc. Co. (1944) 64 Cal. App. 2d 175, 182-183, 148 P.2d 110] .

The subordination agreement, when recorded, serves as constructive notice of the agreement's terms [Civ. Code § 2934]. The effect of subordinating the deed of trust to the lease is that, in the event of foreclosure, the leasehold interest remains intact, subject to any limitations set forth in the subordination agreement [Bank of America v. Hirsch Merc. Co. (1944) 64 Cal. App. 2d 175, 182, 148 P.2d 110] .

Subordination, Nondisturbance, and Attornment Provisions

Subordination, Nondisturbance, and Attornment Provisions

[First alternative: Use if lease is automatically subordinated to all deeds of trust unless elected otherwise by the lender.]

Section _____. (a) This lease shall be subordinate and subject to all mortgages and deeds of trust on the leased premises, whether recorded before or after this lease; provided, that if any mortgagee or beneficiary elects to have this Lease superior to its mortgage or deed of trust and gives notice of its election to Tenant, then this Lease shall be superior to the lien of any such mortgage or deed of trust; and provided, further, that in the event this lease is subordinate to a mortgage or deed of trust, the conditions set forth in subsection (b), below, are satisfied.

[Second alternative: Use if lease is to be subordinate without giving the lender an option to subordinate its deed of trust.]

Section _____. (a) This lease shall be subordinate to the lien of all mortgages and deeds of trust, whether recorded before or after this lease; provided that the conditions set forth in subsection (b), below, are satisfied.

[CONTINUE]

(b) The subordination provided for under this Section is conditioned on and subject to the following requirement. For each mortgage or deed of trust, Landlord shall obtain from the mortgagee or beneficiary an agreement in writing that, in the event of foreclosure, or any sale under a foreclosure, this lease shall not be terminated and Tenant's right to possession under this lease shall not be disturbed, provided Tenant is not then in default under the lease.

(c) In consideration of the mortgagee or beneficiary's agreement described in subsection (b), Tenant hereby agrees to attorn to the purchaser at any foreclosure, sale, or other action or proceeding, provided that the purchaser accepts the Premises subject to this lease.

(d) The subordination described in this Section shall be effective without the necessity of having any further instruments executed by Tenant, but Tenant agrees to execute on demand any such further instruments evidencing subordination that Landlord or any mortgagee or beneficiary may reasonably request.

§ 34C.251 Landlord's Right to Terminate Lease if Unable to Procure Financing

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a lease provision that sets forth the landlord's right to terminate the lease if he or she cannot obtain financing for the building project by a specified date. It may be included in a lease that requires the landlord to construct a building or other substantial improvements on the leased property [see § 34C.243].

PRACTICE TIP:

Tenant Should Negotiate Reasonable Time Limit for Landlord's Finance Contingency. This type of provision is likely to be used only when the lease is executed at the very early stages of negotiation between a landlord and tenant. Because it allows the landlord to terminate the lease, a tenant should insist that the landlord's deadline for obtaining financing expire before the tenant is required to make any substantial expenditures with respect to the lease. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

For provisions subordinating the lease to any encumbrances given by the landlord to secure construction funds, see § 34C.250.

Termination if Financing Unavailable

Termination if Financing Unavailable

Section _____. Notwithstanding any other provision of this lease, if Landlord is in good faith unable to secure adequate construction financing and a binding commitment for adequate permanent or take-out financing within [number, e.g., 60] days after execution of this lease [or after approval by Tenant of final plans and specifications for the building], Landlord may terminate this lease by giving Tenant written notice not later than [number, e.g., five] days after expiration of the [time period for obtaining financing, e.g., 60-day period granted to landlord for obtaining financing]. The terms "adequate construction financing" and "adequate permanent or take-out financing" as used in this Section mean sufficient financing to finance at least _____ percent of the construction cost, including [or exclusive of] architectural and engineering fees, of the building supplied by a bank, insurance company, savings and loan association, or similar institutional lender.

§ 34C.260 Assignment and Subletting by Tenant

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form consists of alternative provisions relating to the assignment or subletting of nonresidential real property. The provisions include the options to prohibit, authorize without restriction, and restrict subletting and assignments by a tenant.

For assignment and subletting provisions that are tailored for use in ground leases, see Ch. 34D, Ground Leases . For transfer provisions that may be used in residential leases, see Ch. 34B, Residential Lease s. The subjects of assignment and subletting are fully covered in Ch. 35A, Assignment and Sublease of Leasehold Interests .

[b] Restrictions on Transfer of Interest

[i] Types of Restrictions

A tenant under a nonresidential lease has an unrestricted right to sublease, assign, or otherwise transfer that leasehold interest unless the lease restricts or absolutely prohibits transfers [Civ. Code §§ 1995.210, 1995.230; see Civ. Code §§ 1995.010-1995.340; see also Civ. Code § 1044]. The first and second alternative provisions in the form in [2], below, provide for an absolute prohibition and an unlimited right to transfer, respectively.

A transfer restriction may provide that the transfer is subject to any express standard or condition. For example, the lease may provide that the landlord is entitled to some or all of any consideration the tenant receives from a transferee in excess of the rent under the lease [Civ. Code § 1995.240]. "Consideration," as used in Civ. Code § 1995.240, was intended by the Legislature to refer to appreciated rentals or to the bonus value of a leasehold and not to consideration for the business operated on the leased premises [Ilkhchooyi v. Best (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 395, 407, 411, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 766 (landlord's demand for 75 percent of amount tenant was to receive in sale of his business for covenant not to compete was not authorized by Civ. Code § 1995.240 and was also unconscionable)]. A restriction may also require the landlord's consent to the transfer [see [ii], below, and the third alternative provision in the form], or provide the landlord with the right to terminate the lease following notice of a proposed transfer [see [iii], below, and the sixth alternative provision in the form]. Any ambiguity in a restriction on transfer must be construed in favor of transferability [Civ. Code § 1995.220; see Karbelnig v. Brothwell (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 333, 341, 53 Cal. Rptr. 335] .

[ii] Requirement of Landlord's Consent

A transfer restriction in a nonresidential lease may require the landlord's consent to the transfer [Civ. Code § 1995.250]. This consent may be made subject to an express standard or condition for giving or withholding consent. For example, the restriction may provide that the landlord's consent may not be unreasonably withheld, or that the consent may be withheld subject to express standards or conditions [Civ. Code § 1995.250]. The third alternative provision in the form provides for these options.

For all leases executed on or after September 23, 1983, if the landlord's consent to transfer is required and if the restriction provides no standard for giving or withholding consent, the transfer restriction must be construed to include an implied standard that the landlord's consent may not be unreasonably withheld [Civ. Code §§ 1995.260, 1995.270(b)]. If such a restriction was executed before September 23, 1983, however, the landlord's consent may be unreasonably withheld [Civ. Code § 1995.270(b)].

Whether the consent has been unreasonably withheld in a particular case is a question of fact on which the tenant has the burden of proof [Civ. Code § 1995.260]. The tenant may satisfy the burden of proof by showing that, in response to the tenant's written request for a statement of reasons for withholding consent the landlord has failed, within a reasonable time, to state in writing a reasonable objection to the transfer [Civ. Code § 1995.260]. If the landlord withholds consent unreasonably, the tenant has the remedies provided by law for breach of contract in addition to any remedies for breach of the lease [Civ. Code § 1995.310]. In these circumstances, the remedies for breach of contract include, but are not limited to, the right to recover contract damages caused by the landlord's breach and the right to terminate the lease [Civ. Code § 1995.310].

[iii] Recapture Clause

The statutes governing transfer restrictions permit the use of a recapture clause that gives the landlord the right to do the following [Carma Developers (Cal.), Inc. v. Marathon Development California, Inc. (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 342, 351-352, 371, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467, 826 P.2d 710 ; see Civ. Code §§ 1995.010-1995.340]:

- Terminate the lease following the receipt of a notice of the tenant's intention to sublet the premises or to assign its interests under the lease;

- Enter into a new lease covering the premises with the tenant's intended assignee or sublessee (or with any other person); and

- Keep all profits, if any, resulting from the termination and reletting.

A recapture clause containing the above elements was one of the types of transfer restrictions contemplated by the Legislature when it enacted the assignment and subletting statutes [Carma Developers (Cal.), Inc. v. Marathon Development California, Inc. (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 342, 369-371, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467, 826 P.2d 710] . A landlord's exercise of the right of termination granted in such a clause is not a breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing [

Carma Developers (Cal.), Inc. v. Marathon Development California, Inc. (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 342, 376, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467, 826 P.2d 710] .

The sixth alternative provision in the form provides for a landlord's right to terminate the lease and enter into a new lease with the proposed assignee or subtenant. Profit sharing is also another option which allows a tenant to assign or sublease its interest and split any profits with the landlord [see fourth alternative provision in the form]. The fifth alternative provision in the form combines the profit sharing option with the requirement that the Landlord's written consent be obtained.

[iv] Breach and Remedies

If a tenant transfers his or her interest in a nonresidential lease in violation of the landlord's rights, or if the landlord prevents the tenant from transferring his or her interest in the lease in violation of the tenant's rights, the aggrieved party may be entitled to redress. Remedies provided by law for violation of the rights of a landlord or tenant concerning the transfer of the tenant's interest in a lease are generally subject to any express provision in the lease that may affect the remedies. They are also subject to any applicable defense, whether legal or equitable, including the defenses of waiver and estoppel [Civ. Code § 1995.300].

If a nonresidential lease permits the tenant to transfer his or her interest in the lease only if the landlord consents, and if there is an express or implied requirement that the landlord's consent cannot be unreasonably withheld, the tenant may have the right to judicial relief if the landlord withholds his or her consent unreasonably [Civ. Code § 1995.310]. Conversely, if the tenant transfers his or her interest in the lease in violation of a restriction on transfer set forth in the lease, the landlord may be entitled to judicial relief [Civ. Code § 1995.320]. In either case, the aggrieved party is entitled to the remedies provided by law for breach of contract as well as breach of a lease [Civ. Code §§ 1995.310, 1995.320]. In these circumstances, the remedies for breach of contract include, but are not limited to, the right to recover contract damages caused by the other party's breach and the right to terminate the lease [Civ. Code §§ 1995.310(a), (b), 1995.320(a), (b)].

An assignee who receives or makes a transfer in violation of a restriction on transfer of a tenant's interest in a nonresidential lease is jointly and severally liable with the tenant for contract damages [Civ. Code § 1995.330(a); see Civ. Code § 1951.2]. Among other things, an impermissible transfer (or attempted transfer) of the tenant's interest under a nonresidential lease gives the landlord the right to terminate the lease [see Civ. Code § 1995.320(a), (b)]. The landlord's right to terminate the lease includes the right to terminate a transfer without terminating the lease itself [Civ. Code § 1995.330(b); see Civ. Code § 1995.320]. If the landlord terminates a transfer without terminating the lease, an assignee or subtenant who remains in possession will be guilty of unlawful detainer, and the landlord may obtain possession from the assignee or subtenant without terminating the right to possession of the tenant [Civ. Code § 1995.330(b)].

A restriction on transfer of a tenant's interest in a nonresidential lease generally applies to a subsequent transfer by a tenant, an assignee, or a subtenant, notwithstanding the landlord's consent to a prior transfer, or the landlord's waiver of a standard or condition for a prior transfer [Civ. Code § 1995.340(a)]. However, the restriction is not applicable to subsequent transfers if the lease expressly provides that the restriction is limited to the original tenant or if the landlord expressly states in writing that the consent or waiver applies to subsequent transfers [Civ. Code § 1995.340(b)].

[v] Insolvency and Bankruptcy

The United States Bankruptcy Code permits a trustee in bankruptcy, with certain conditions and exceptions, to assume or reject any executory contract or unexpired lease of a bankrupt debtor [11 U.S.C. § 365(a)]. It also provides that, notwithstanding a provision in an executory contract or unexpired lease prohibiting or restricting assignment of the contract or lease, a trustee in bankruptcy may assign the contract or lease in the manner provided in the Code [11 U.S.C.

§ 365(f)(1)]. For further discussion of the effect of the Bankruptcy Code, see § 34C.20.

[2] FORM

Assignment or Sublease

Assignment or Sublease

[First alternative: Prohibiting transfers.]

Section _____. Tenant shall not assign Tenant's interests under this lease or sublet all or any portion of the leased premises.

[Second alternative: Permitting transfers without restriction.]

Section _____. Tenant may sublet all or any portion of the leased premises or assign its interest in this lease.

[Third alternative: Requiring landlord's consent for transfer.]

Section _____. Tenant may sublet all or any portion of the leased premises or assign its interest in this lease, provided that Tenant first obtains the written consent of Landlord to do so. [_____ (If desired, set forth any express standard or condition governing the giving or withholding of consent, e.g., Landlord shall not unreasonably withhold consent to such an assignment or subletting).] Landlord's consent to one assignment or subletting shall not be deemed a consent to any subsequent assignment or subletting. Any assignment or subletting without the prior written consent of Landlord shall be void and shall, at the option of Landlord, terminate this lease.

[Fourth alternative: Imposing standard or condition (other than landlord's consent).]

Section _____. Tenant may sublet all or any portion of the leased premises or assign its interest in this lease, provided that [specify standard or condition, e.g., Tenant shall pay to Landlord one half of all rents received from the subtenant in excess of the rent payable by Tenant to Landlord under the lease; or one half of any sums to be paid by any assignee of Tenant in consideration of the assignment of this lease]. Any assignment or subletting that does not comply with the above shall be void and shall, at Landlord's option, terminate this lease.

[Fifth alternative: Requiring landlord's consent and additional standard or condition.]

Section _____. Tenant may sublet all or any portion of the leased premises or assign its interest in this lease, on the following terms and conditions:

(a) Tenant must first obtain the written consent of Landlord to the assignment or subletting. [_____ (If desired, set forth any express standard or condition governing the giving or withholding of consent, e.g., Landlord shall not unreasonably withhold consent to such an assignment or subletting).] A consent to one assignment or subletting by Landlord shall not be deemed a consent to any subsequent assignment or subletting. Any assignment or subletting without the prior written consent of Landlord shall be void and shall, at the option of Landlord, terminate this lease.

(b) [Specify one or more additional standards or conditions, e.g., Tenant shall pay to Landlord one half of all rents received from the subtenant in excess of the rent payable by Tenant to Landlord under the lease; or one half of any sums to be paid by any assignee of Tenant in consideration of the assignment of this lease]. Any assignment or subletting that does not comply with the foregoing shall be void and shall, at Landlord's option, terminate this lease.

Section _____. Tenant may sublet all or any portion of the leased premises, or assign its interest in this lease, on the following terms and conditions:

(a) Tenant must first give Landlord written notice ("Tenant's notice of intention") of the intention to sublet or assign. Tenant's notice of intention shall include the name and address of each proposed subtenant or assignee and shall specify the terms of the intended subletting or assignment. Landlord shall have the right to terminate this lease by giving Tenant a written termination notice not later than [number, e.g., 30] days after Landlord receives Tenant's notice of intention. Landlord's notice shall state the date by which Tenant is required to vacate and surrender the premises ("the termination date"), which must be at least [number, e.g., 30] days after the date of Landlord's notice. Tenant shall vacate and surrender the leased premises to Landlord on or before the termination date. If this lease is terminated in accordance with the provisions of this subsection, it shall be null and void as of the termination date or as of the date Tenant actually surrenders possession of the leased premises to Landlord, whichever is later. Before that time, the parties shall be bound by all terms, covenants, and conditions of this lease. Following the termination of this lease in accordance with this Subparagraph, Landlord shall have the right to enter into a new lease of the leased premises with any proposed subtenant or assignee identified in Tenant's notice of intention or with any other tenant. In that case, Tenant shall not be entitled to any portion of any profit Landlord may realize as a result of the termination and reletting.

(b) If Landlord does not terminate this lease in accordance with subsection (a) of this section, Tenant must still obtain the written consent of Landlord to the intended subletting or assignment. [_____ (If desired, set forth any express standard or condition governing the giving or withholding of consent, e.g., Landlord shall not unreasonably withhold consent to such a subletting or assignment).] A consent to one subletting or assignment by Landlord shall not be deemed a consent to any subsequent subletting or assignment. Any subletting or assignment without the prior written consent of Landlord shall be void and shall, at the option of Landlord, terminate this lease.

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a provision that requires the tenant to execute an estoppel certificate, sometimes referred to as an offset statement, when requested to do so by the landlord. The certificate may take various forms but is generally a statement of the tenant about the current status of its lease with the landlord. Estoppel certificates are most often required by a prospective buyer before a sale of the leased premises by the landlord. However, the certificates may also be required in non-sale situations, for example, by the landlord's lender when the landlord is obtaining a loan secured by the leased property.

When a tenant has the right to encumber his or her leasehold interest, the tenant may insist on a lease provision that requires the landlord to execute an estoppel certificate when requested by the tenant. This form may be adapted for that purpose.

The lease should require the tenant to execute an estoppel certificate in a form requested by the landlord or the landlord's lender. For example, lenders generally require execution of their own form of estoppel statement. Basic facts regarding the lease, such as its term, the amount of rent, and the amount of any security deposit or prepaid rent, are generally required in the certificate. In addition, the executing party is generally requested to confirm the lease's existence, to state whether any modifications or additions have been made to the original lease, and to describe any claims against the other party to the lease. For a form of estoppel certificate, see Ch. 35A, Assignment and Sublease of Leasehold Interests, § 35A.222.

Whenever estoppel certificates are required, whether in a loan or a sale situation, time is an important factor. Therefore, the lease should require the obligated party to deliver the estoppel certificate within a stated time period after receipt of the request for it. Many leases provide that if the obligor party fails to deliver the certificate within the required time period, the other party's representations about the status of the lease will be binding.

Estoppel Certificate

Estoppel Certificate

Section _____. Tenant agrees to execute, in recordable form, and deliver to Landlord, when requested by Landlord, an estoppel certificate regarding the status of the lease between the parties. The certificate shall be in the form designated by Landlord and shall contain at a minimum the following: the term of the lease, including any right to extend or renew contained in the lease; any modifications to the original lease; the date to which rent has been paid; the amount of any security deposit posted; and the amount of any prepaid rent. The certificate shall be delivered to the requesting party not later than [number, e.g., 10] business days after receipt of the written request for the certificate.

§ 34C.262 Condemnation of Leased Premises

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a set of lease provisions that describe the rights and obligations of the parties to the lease if the leased premises are totally or partially condemned, that is, taken under the power of eminent domain. If a lease provides for the rights and obligations of the parties in the event that all or a portion of the property is acquired for public use, the lease provisions prevail [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.160]. If the lease does not contain applicable provisions, the Eminent Domain Law [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1230.010-1273.050] and the case law discussed in the remainder of this section govern the rights and obligations of the parties to the lease [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.160].

In this form, the provisions for total condemnation provide for substantially the same result as applicable statutory law, that is, the lease terminates. The first alternative provision for division of any condemnation award is more favorable to the landlord than under statutory law; the second alternative incorporates the statutory scheme. The partial condemnation provisions provide that the lease terminates as to the portion of leased premises taken but continues as to the remainder of the premises. An optional clause permits the tenant to terminate the lease in the event of a partial taking if a stated minimum of the premises are taken.

For a full discussion of the subject of condemnation of leased premises, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, Condemnation Practice Handbook, Ch. 512, Compensation (Matthew Bender).

[b] Effect of Condemnation

[i] Total Taking

Property subject to a lease may be taken in whole or in part under the power of eminent domain [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.110]. If all the property subject to a lease is acquired for public use by condemnation, the lease terminates [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.110]. However, the statutory provision for the lease's termination [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.110] applies only to acquisitions by eminent domain and not to purchases by a public agency, unless the purchase is the substantial equivalent of condemnation [Peter Kiewit Sons' Co. v. Richmond Redevelopment Agency (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 435, 442-443, 223 Cal. Rptr. 728] .

The form in [2], below, provides that the lease terminates if all of the leased property is taken by condemnation. For purposes of the lease, a "taking" expressly includes a voluntary conveyance by the landlord to a public entity after threat of a taking under the power of eminent domain. Rent is required to be paid up until the time the condemnor takes physical possession of the property or takes title to the property, whichever is earlier.

[ii] Partial Taking

Except as provided below, this form provides that acquisition for public use of part of the property subject to a lease terminates the lease as to the part taken, but the lease remains in force as to the remainder. The rent reserved in the lease that is allocated to the part taken is extinguished [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.120]. Therefore, the amount of rent the tenant must pay is reduced pro rata according to the amount of the leasehold not taken. The provisions in this form follow the statutory result, that is, a partial taking terminates the lease as to the part of the property taken but the lease continues in effect for the remainder. Rent for the remaining leased property is reduced by a pro rata formula.

If only a part of the property subject to a lease is acquired for public use, either party to the lease may petition the court to terminate the entire lease. The court may do so if it determines that an essential part of the property subject to the lease is taken or that the remainder of the property subject to the lease is no longer suitable for the lease's purposes [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.130].

If the landlord and tenant agree that a partial taking will not terminate the lease, that fact should be clearly stated in the lease. The provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.130, permitting either party to petition the superior court to terminate the lease in the event of a partial taking, should be expressly waived in the lease [see form in [2], below].

[c] Time for Termination

Termination or partial termination of the lease under the statutory rules occurs at the time title to the property is taken by the person who will put it to public use, or at the time the condemnor is authorized to take possession of the property as stated in an order for possession, whichever is earlier [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.140].

[d] Compensation

[i] Respective Rights of Each Party

In the absence of an agreement to the contrary, the parties to the lease are each entitled to compensation for the taking of their respective rights [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1260.220(a), 1265.150]. A lease provision which provides that the lease will terminate in the event of a total taking does not deprive the tenant of any right it may have for compensation; such a provision is merely declarative of the statutory law for eminent domain [City of Vista v. Fielder (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 612, 616-618, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 861, 919 P.2d 151] . However, the landlord and tenant may contract for their own rights and obligations in the event of a total or partial taking, and such lease provisions will prevail over the statutory law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.160; City of Vista v. Fielder (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 612, 617-618, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 861, 919 P.2d 151] .

[ii] Tenant's Interest

The tenant's leasehold interest has what is called "bonus value" which may be defined as the present value of the difference between economic rent, that is, the value of market rental, and the contract rent through the remaining lease term [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.310; City of Vista v. Fielder (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 612, 616-617, n.1, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 861, 919 P.2d 151] . This bonus value is generally viewed as separate and distinct from the tenant's goodwill in its business [see [v], below, for discussion of tenant's goodwill interest]. However, some cases have determined that the value of cheap rental can be viewed as either bonus value or goodwill [see [v], below].

The bonus value usually assumes importance only in long-term commercial leases. Condemnation of the leased premises serves to terminate a lease, releasing the tenant from further obligation to pay rental; thus, the value of the lost possession must be offset by the value of the cancelled rental obligation. In short-term leases, the tenant will have at best a small claim against the condemning authority. In long-term leases, which typically involve commercial properties, the tenant may still have no claim if the lease rental equals or exceeds the market rental. But a landlord may sometimes forego increases in market rental over the lease term in exchange for a long-term commitment from the tenant. When this occurs in the negotiation of long-term leases, the lease bonus value may amount to a considerable sum [New Haven Unified School Dist. v. Taco Bell Corp. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1473, 1479, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 469] .

Accordingly, options to renew a lease must be considered in determining the fair market value of the leasehold interest to the extent that they enhance the value of the leasehold interest [People ex rel. Dept. of Water Resources v. Gianni (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 151, 158, 105 Cal. Rptr. 248 ; S.F. Bay Area Rapid Transit Dist. v. McKeegan (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 263, 272, 71 Cal. Rptr. 204 ; State of California v. Whitlow (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 490, 496, 52 Cal. Rptr. 336] .

[iii] Landlord's Interest

The value of a landlord's interest in leased property (the reversion) is also measured by the fair market value [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.310]. One approved formula for measuring this value is the sum of the following items [New Haven Unified School Dist. v. Taco Bell Corp. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1473, 1479, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 469] :

- The present worth of the future net income that the landlord is to receive for the life of the lease or, in other words, the discounted value of the income stream;

- The present worth of the value of the improvements at the lease's expiration that are to inure to the landlord's benefit; and

- The present worth of the land at the lease's expiration.

The relationship between the value of the landlord's interest and the tenant's interest is discussed in [vii], below.

[iv] Fixtures

All improvements pertaining to realty must be taken into account in determining compensation, notwithstanding the right or obligation of a tenant, as against the owner of any other interest in real property, to remove that improvement at the expiration of the lease term [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.210]. The term "improvements pertaining to realty" includes any machinery or equipment installed for use on property taken by eminent domain, or on the remainder if that property is part of a larger parcel, that cannot be removed without substantial economic loss or without substantial damage to the property on which it is installed, regardless of the method of installation [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.205(a); see Chhour v. Community Redevelopment Agency (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 273, 282-283, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 585] .

In determining whether particular property can be removed "without a substantial economic loss," the value of the property in place considered as a part of the realty will be compared with its value if it were removed and sold [Code

Civ. Proc. § 1263.205(b)]. However, improvements that are removed or destroyed by a defendant in the proceeding (whether it be landlord or tenant) before the condemnor takes title to or possession of the property or before the occupant of the property moves under an order for possession, are not taken into account in determining the compensation award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.230(b); see New Haven Unified School Dist. v. Taco Bell Corp. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1473, 1479, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 469] . If the removal or destruction damages the remaining property, the damage must be taken into account in determining compensation to the extent it reduces the remaining property's value [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.230(b)].

Improvements pertaining to the realty made after the date of service of summons in the eminent domain proceeding are likewise not taken into account in determining compensation except under limited circumstances, for example, the improvement is made with the condemnor's consent [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.240].

Business inventory may be compensable under limited circumstances, that is, when the loss results from the condemnatory act itself (for example, the inventory cannot be relocated) rather than the personal circumstances of the condemnee (for example, the owner has decided that he or she will not relocate) [Chhour v. Community Redevelopment Agency (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 273, 283, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 585] .

The tenant's compensable interest is in his or her right of ownership to the fixtures, which is separate and apart from the tenant's compensable possessory rights in the premises [Redevelopment Agency v. Diamond Properties (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 315, 318-319, 76 Cal. Rptr. 269] . Thus, if any fixtures, structures, or other improvements exist as of the date a summons is served, the tenant has a compensable interest in the property condemned, notwithstanding the fact that the tenant's possessory interest in the property under the lease is not interfered with and subsequently expires [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.210; State of California ex rel. Dept. of Water Resources v. Texaco, Inc. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 514, 519, 101 Cal. Rptr. 923] . Moreover, the condemnor cannot defeat the tenant's right and thus avoid paying for the fixtures, structures, or other improvements by negotiating a sale of the leased premises with the landlord free of improvements after it has unequivocally expressed its intention to take the property for public use. In such a case, the method used in obtaining the property constitutes condemnation or its substantial equivalent and Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.205 applies [City of Los Angeles v. Sabatasso (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 973, 979, 83 Cal. Rptr. 898 (analyzing former Code Civ. Proc. § 1248b, which is superseded by Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.205); see Redevelopment Agency v. Diamond Properties (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 315, 321, 76 Cal. Rptr. 269] .

[v] Tenant's Goodwill Interest

Absent lease provisions to the contrary, a tenant may be entitled to compensation for the loss of goodwill of operating his or her business on the leased premises [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.510; see also People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Muller (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 263, 270, 203 Cal. Rptr. 772, 681 P.2d 1340] . For purposes of the Eminent Domain Law, as stated in Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.510(b), goodwill "consists of the benefits that accrue to a business as a result of its location, reputation for dependability, skill or quality, and any other circumstances resulting in probable retention of old or acquisition of new patronage" [City of Vista v. Fielder (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 612, 616-617 n.1, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 861, 919 P.2d 151] .

Although goodwill as defined is conceptually distinct from leasehold bonus value [see [ii], above], the statutory definition has been construed to allow recovery of goodwill on a confusingly similar theory, that is, the benefits of location may include cheap rental [New Haven Unified School Dist. v. Taco Bell Corp. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1473, 1479, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 469 ; see People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Muller (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 263, 203 Cal. Rptr. 772, 681 P.2d 1340] .

Goodwill may be measured by the capitalized value of the net income or profits of a business or some similar method of calculating present value of anticipated profits. Valuation methods differ with the nature of the business and the purpose for which the evaluation is conducted. There is no single method to evaluate goodwill [People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Muller (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 263, 271, 203 Cal. Rptr. 772, 681 P.2d 1340 ; People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Leslie (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 918, 922-923, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 252] .

[vi] Other Interests of Tenant

If a lease contains an unexpired option to purchase, the tenant may be entitled to an amount equal to the difference between the total condemnation award and the option purchase price [see County of San Diego v. Miller (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 684, 691, 119 Cal. Rptr. 491, 532 P.2d 139 ; County of San Diego v. Miller (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 424, 162 Cal. Rptr. 480] . Certain relocation costs incurred for moving the tenant's business and personal property are also recoverable by the tenant from the condemning authority [see Gov. Code §§ 7260, 7262].

[vii] Separate Assessment of Interests

As a general rule, when there are divided interests in property acquired by eminent domain, the value of each interest and the injury, if any, to the remainder of that interest must be separately assessed and compensation awarded for it [Code Civ. Proc. § 1260.220(a)]. However, the condemning authority may require that the amount of compensation be first determined as between it and all defendants claiming an interest in the property. In that case, the trier of fact must in a separate proceeding determine the respective rights of the defendants in and to the amount of compensation awarded and must apportion the award accordingly [Code Civ. Proc. § 1260.220(b)].

The question arises as to whether the total amount of the separate interests to be awarded may exceed the value of the property if held by one owner in fee simple. Ordinarily the aggregate award to both landlord and tenant will equal market value of the property. When the lease rental falls below market value, the landlord will have a claim to less than the full market value of the property, since he or she is restricted to the present value of actual contract rental; but the tenant will have a right to recover the balance of the market value, above that recovered by the landlord, as lease bonus value [New Haven Unified School Dist. v. Taco Bell Corp. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1473, 1479, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 469] .

There is authority for two theories of dividing the value of the property between the landlord and the tenant. The "undivided fee rule" requires that the property be valued as if owned by a single person, regardless of the separate interests in the property. This single value is then apportioned between the landlord and the tenant [County of Los Angeles v. American Sav. & Loan Assn. (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 7, 11-12, 102 Cal. Rptr. 439] .

The "aggregate of interests rule" requires that the separate interests of the landlord and the tenant be valued separately and paid to each respective party regardless of the fact that the total paid may be more or less than the value of the property if owned by a single person [County of Los Angeles v. American Sav. & Loan Assn. (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 7, 11-12, 102 Cal. Rptr. 439] .

The "aggregate of interests rule" has been applied in a number of cases [see People ex rel. Dept. Pub. Wks. v. Lynbar, Inc. (1967) 253 Cal. App. 2d 870, 879-880, 62 Cal. Rptr. 320 ; County of Los Angeles v. American Sav. & Loan Assn. (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 7, 11-12, 102 Cal. Rptr. 439] . The use of the "undivided fee rule" has also been upheld [Costa Mesa Union Sch. Dist. v. Security First Nat. Bk. (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 4, 11, 62 Cal. Rptr. 113 ; see El Monte School Dist. v. Wilkins (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 47, 54-55, 1 Cal. Rptr. 715 ; People v. S. & E. Homebuilders, Inc. (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 105, 107-108, 298 P.2d 53] . The statutory scheme for the Eminent Domain Law does not specifically address this issue, and, to date, there has not been a definite case ruling holding that one rule prevails over the other.

[viii] Waiver of Rights

By a valid lease provision, either the landlord or the tenant can waive his or her right to compensation for the taking or otherwise establish the rights of the parties on condemnation [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.160; City of Vista v. Fielder (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 612, 617-618, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 861, 919 P.2d 151] . Thus, a lease provision waiving the right to any bonus value [see New Haven Unified School Dist. v. Taco Bell Corp. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1473, 1482-1483, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 469] and a provision setting the landlord's right to compensation at a certain amount and giving the tenant any amount of compensation above that amount [see City of Industry v. Willey (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 658, 663-664, 89 Cal. Rptr. 922] have been enforced.

[e] Lender's Security Interest

When there is a partial taking of property encumbered by a lien, the lender may share in the condemnation award only to the extent determined by the court to be necessary to prevent an impairment of the security, absent an agreement to the contrary between the landlord and the lender [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.225; People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Redwood Baseline, Ltd (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 662, 670-671, 149 Cal. Rptr. 11] . A lender's lien continues on the part of the property not taken as security for the unpaid portion of the indebtedness [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.225(a)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Deed of Trust Should Be Reviewed for Potential Conflict With Landlord's Interest in Condemnation Award. If a lender has a security interest in the leased property, the attorney representing the landlord should review the deed of trust to determine that on condemnation, the lender's rights will not conflict with the condemnation provisions that the landlord and tenant intend to include in the lease. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

[2] FORM

Eminent Domain

ARTICLE _____
EMINENT DOMAIN

Definitions

Section _____. (a) For purposes of this lease, "eminent domain" means the right of the people or government to take private property for public use. As used in this article, the words "condemned" and "condemnation" are coextensive with that right, and a voluntary conveyance by Landlord to the condemnor under threat of a taking under the power of eminent domain in lieu or after commencement of formal proceedings shall be deemed a taking within the meaning of this article.

(b) As used in this article, the terms "total condemnation" and "total taking" mean the taking of the entire leased premises under the power of eminent domain.

(c) As used in this article, the terms "partial condemnation" and "partial taking" mean any condemnation of the leased premises other than a total taking as defined in subsection (b) of this Section.

Total Condemnation

Section _____. (a) In the event that there is a total taking of the leased premises during the lease term [or any extension of the lease term] under the power of eminent domain, this lease shall terminate as of the date title or possession vests in the condemnor, or the purchaser, whichever is earlier (the "termination date").

(b) In the event of a total taking of the leased premises, [choose one of the following provisions:]

all compensation and damages awarded for a total taking of the leased premises shall belong to and be the sole property of Landlord, and Tenant shall have no claim to any amount or part of any award for its leasehold interest (bonus value), value of the goodwill for its business, leasehold improvements and fixtures, or any other interest [optional: except, however, that Tenant shall be entitled to receive the portion of any award attributable to the taking of those leasehold improvements and fixtures that Tenant has the right to remove under this lease but does not remove from the leased premises; or when the tenant does remove the fixtures or improvements, a reasonable amount for removal and relocation expenses, provided that amount does not exceed the market value of the improvements and fixtures]. Tenant hereby irrevocably assigns and transfers to Landlord any right Tenant may have to compensation or damages to which Tenant may become entitled [add if optional phrase above is included:, except as otherwise provided in this subsection (b)].

[OR, for a provision favoring tenant:]

Landlord and Tenant shall each be entitled to all compensation and damages awarded for each of their respective interests in the leased premises, as provided under the Eminent Domain Law (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1230.010-1273.050).

[CONTINUE]

(c) On termination of this lease by a total taking of the leased premises under the power of eminent domain, all rent and other charges payable by Tenant to or on behalf of Landlord under the provisions of this lease shall be paid up to the termination date defined in subsection (a). If Tenant has prepaid any rent to Landlord for a period covering the period beyond the termination date, Landlord shall refund the prepaid rent, less any lawful deductions, to Tenant not later than two weeks after the termination date. Thereafter, the parties to this lease shall be released from all further liability in relation to this lease.

Partial Condemnation

Section _____. (a) If there is a partial taking of the leased premises during the lease term [or any extension of the lease term] under the power of eminent domain, this lease shall terminate as to the portion of the leased premises so taken on the date title or possession vests in the condemnor, or the purchaser, whichever is earlier (the "termination date"). For the remainder of the leased premises not taken under the power of eminent domain, this lease shall continue in full force and effect, except that the rent payable under this lease shall be reduced as follows: [describe agreement for reduced rent, e.g., for a freestanding building, for each square foot, if any, taken from the building, the minimum monthly rent shall be reduced by $50.00; for each square foot, if any, taken from the leased premises exclusive of the building, the minimum monthly rent shall be reduced by $20.00]. Landlord [or Tenant] shall, with reasonable diligence, repair the portion of the leased premises so as to restore it to a condition reasonably suitable for Tenant's continued occupancy and business use. All restoration shall be at the expense of Landlord [or Tenant] and subject to all provisions of this lease, and Landlord [or Tenant] shall be entitled to the portion of any award of damages attributable to restoration of the Premises. During the restoration period, there shall be no abatement of rent [or the payment of rent by Tenant shall be abated].

[Add, if tenant will have option to terminate lease in the event of certain partial taking:]

(b) If more than [describe partial taking that will give tenant right to terminate lease, e.g., for a freestanding building, 30 percent of the floor area of the building on the leased premises, or more than 50 percent of the land area of the leased premises not covered with the building,] is taken by condemnation, Tenant may terminate this lease by giving Landlord written notice of termination not later than 30 days after Tenant receives written notice of the taking from Landlord. The lease shall terminate on the earlier of the termination date defined in subsection (a) or the date specified in Tenant's termination notice. Any date for termination of this lease designated by Tenant in its termination notice must be at least [minimum notice period, e.g., 30 days after but not more than 90 days after the date of Tenant's termination notice].

[CONTINUE]

(c) Landlord and Tenant agree that this Lease shall govern the rights and obligations of the parties in the event of a partial taking by eminent domain and that they each waive the provisions of Code of Civil Procedure Section 1265.130, permitting a party to a lease to petition the superior court for termination of a lease in the event of a partial taking of the leased premises.

(d) In the event of a partial taking of the leased premises, [choose one of the following provisions:]

all compensation and damages awarded for the partial taking shall belong to and be the sole property of Landlord, and Tenant shall have no claim to either and hereby irrevocably assigns and transfers to Landlord any right Tenant may have to compensation or damages for property condemned.

[OR, for a provision favoring tenant:]

Tenant shall be entitled to receive the following: the value of Tenant's lease term of the portion of the leased premises taken; any award that may be made for Tenant's trade fixtures and improvements made by Tenant to the leased premises that Tenant does not remove but has the right to remove under this lease; a reasonable amount for removal and relocation expenses if Tenant removes the fixtures or improvements (provided that amount shall not exceed the market value of the improvements and fixtures); [and] loss of goodwill for Tenant's business [optional when lease grants tenant option to purchased the leased premises:, and the value of the Tenant's unexpired option to purchase the leased premises]. [Add when lease continues in effect for portion of leased premises not condemned and tenant is required under lease to make all necessary restorations: If this lease is continued as to the portion of the premises not condemned, Tenant shall also be entitled to receive any award made for alterations, modifications, or repairs that may be reasonably required to place the remaining portion of the leased premises not taken in a suitable condition for the continuance of Tenant's tenancy.]

§ 34C.263 Option to Purchase Leased Premises

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a lease provision granting a tenant an option to purchase the leased premises. This type of option is more often included in a lease for a freestanding building than in a lease for space in a multitenant building. However, a tenant in a multitenant building might acquire an option to purchase the entire building or an option to purchase its individual space, such as an office condominium.

For a provision granting the tenant the first right of refusal to purchase the premises in the event the landlord decides to sell, see § 34C.264. For detailed coverage of options to purchase, see Ch. 22, Options to Purchase Real Property , and CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, Ch. 70, Options (Matthew Bender).

[b] Nature of Option to Purchase

An option to purchase real property, when supported by consideration, is a contract by which an owner gives another the exclusive right to purchase specified real property for a stipulated price within a specified time [County of San Diego v. Miller (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 684, 688, 119 Cal. Rptr. 491, 532 P.2d 139] . It is a right acquired by contract to accept or reject a present offer to sell real property within a limited time in the future [County of San Diego v. Miller (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 684, 688, 119 Cal. Rptr. 491, 532 P.2d 139] . The right to purchase created by an option is a substantial one: it is irrevocable by the property owner and may be exercised against the owner's successors following the owner's death [County of San Diego v. Miller (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 684, 688, 119 Cal. Rptr. 491, 532 P.2d 139] . Typically, the real property's owner is referred to as the "optionor" and the option's holder is referred to as the "optionee."

[c] Exercise of Option

Because the optionor is bound by the offer set forth in an option but the optionee is free to accept or reject the offer, courts are strict in holding an optionee to exact compliance with the terms of the option [Hayward Lbr. & Inv. Co. v. Const. Prod. Corp. (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 221, 229, 255 P.2d 473] . Therefore, the optionee's acceptance, that is, the optionee's exercise of the option, must be in accordance with the option agreement's terms and must be free of conditions the optionor is not bound to perform [Robbins v. Pacific Eastern Corp. (1937) 8 Cal. 2d 241, 276, 65 P.2d 42 ; Riverside Fence Co. v. Novak (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 656, 660, 78 Cal. Rptr. 536 ; Schomaker v. Osborne (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 887, 890, 58 Cal. Rptr. 827] .

A well-drafted option prescribes the method by which the option must be exercised. Some option provisions permit exercise by mere notice, while others require payment or tender of all or part of the purchase price. Unless required by the option, however, acceptance need not be accompanied by a tender of performance; exercise of an option is merely the communicated election of the optionee to accept the option [Riverside Fence Co. v. Novak (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 656, 661, 78 Cal. Rptr. 536] . Except as otherwise required by statute, acceptance or exercise of an option may be either written or oral. An oral acceptance of a written option to convey real property is valid [Riverside Fence Co. v. Novak (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 656, 661, 78 Cal. Rptr. 536] .

Disputes about whether an option has been validly exercised are decided by reference to the rules of offer and acceptance--which means the terms of the exercise must ordinarily be identical to terms of the offer [Arden Group, Inc. v. Burk (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1409, 1414, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 492] .

When an option agreement prescribes the particular manner in which the optionee is to exercise the option, the provisions must be strictly followed [Palo Alto Town & Country Village, Inc. v. BBTC Company (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 494, 498, 113 Cal. Rptr. 705, 521 P.2d 1097 ; see Wilson v. Gentile (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 759, 762-768, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 713 (provision for exercise "within 30 days prior to expiration" permits exercise during 30-day period immediately preceding expiration)]. However, when an option agreement does not prescribe any particular manner in which the option is to be exercised, any method of communicating an election to exercise the option to the landlord-optionor is proper [Riverside Fence Co. v. Novak (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 656, 661, 78 Cal. Rptr. 536] .

When the optionee exercises the option, an option agreement is converted from a unilateral contract to a bilateral contract of purchase and sale and the optionor is contractually bound to sell the property to the optionee [Claremont Terrace Homeowners' Assn. v. United States (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 398, 406, 194 Cal. Rptr. 216 ; Rollins v. Stokes (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 701, 711, 176 Cal. Rptr. 835] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Avoiding Disputes as to When Option Has Been Exercised. In the instance of an option to purchase, to avoid disputes as to when the option has been exercised, one may provide the following:

Optionee shall simultaneously with the exercise of the option open an escrow in the County of _____ with a licensed title/escrow company and provide notice to the Optionor of that escrow company, including the identity and address of the escrow company, the escrow officer if any, and the escrow number.

By Benjamin Kaplan.

[d] Consideration for Option

It is universally accepted that an option included in a lease agreement is a contract distinct from the lease to which the option relates [Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc. v. Brodel (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 766, 771, 192 P.2d 949 ; Ripani v. Liberty Loan Corp. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 603, 609, 157 Cal. Rptr. 272] . The general consideration for a lease, such as the covenant to pay rent or do other acts, supports an option to purchase contained in the lease and no further consideration is needed [Spaulding v. Yovino-Young (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 138, 141, 180 P.2d 691 ; Re v. Wells Fargo Bank (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 783, 787, 75 Cal. Rptr. 367] .

[e] Recording Option to Purchase

When including an option to purchase in a lease, the tenant should ensure that the option is recorded. By recording the option, the optionee's rights to purchase the property are protected against all subsequent purchasers or encumbrancers. Once an option is exercised, the optionee's right to acquire the property relates back to the time when the option was granted [Claremont Terrace Homeowners' Assn. v. United States (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 398, 406, 194 Cal. Rptr. 216] . Thus, when a purchaser or encumbrancer acquires an interest in the property after an option is granted but before it is exercised, and the option is recorded, on exercise, the optionee's title relates back to the date the option was granted and extinguishes the interest of the purchaser or encumbrancer because of constructive notice [see Claremont Terrace Homeowners' Assn. v. United States (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 398, 406, 194 Cal. Rptr. 216] .

When an option is recorded it becomes a cloud on the optionor's title, even if it is not exercised. However, a statute provides that a recorded option expires if no conveyance or other instrument that gives notice of the option's exercise, or that extends the option, is recorded within six months after the option expires by its terms; or, if the option provides no expiration date, six months after the date the option is recorded [Civ. Code § 884.010]. After the option expires of record, the recorded instrument that creates or gives constructive notice of the option ceases to be notice to any person. The recorded instrument ceases to put any person on inquiry notice with regard to the exercise or existence of the option or of any other writing or conveyance that may have been executed under the option [Civ. Code § 884.020].

If the parties choose to record the option agreement, they can either add the basic terms of the option agreement to the Memorandum of Lease (and entitle the document "Memorandum of Lease and Option Agreement") [see § 34C.203[1] for discussion of a Memorandum of Lease], or they can record an abstract of the option agreement [see Ch. 22, Options to Purchase Real Property , for abstract form].

[f] Covenant Running With Land

An option to purchase the leased premises is a covenant running with the land and thus is binding on successors of both the landlord and tenant [Bewick v. Mecham (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 92, 96, 156 P.2d 757] . In the absence of express restrictions to the contrary, an assignment of a lease also generally includes an assignment of the option to purchase the leased premises contained in the lease [Maron v. Howard (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 473, 484, 66 Cal. Rptr. 70] , at least when the option requires the purchase price to be paid in all cash [see Chapman v. Great Western Gypsum Co. (1932) 216 Cal. 420, 424-425, 14 P.2d 758] . However, a lease provision prohibiting assignments applies equally to the lease and to the option [Gatley v. Shockley (1932) 215 Cal. 604, 611, 12 P.2d 436] .

[g] Extension of Option to Purchase

It is unclear whether renewal or extension of a lease under an option to renew or extend contained in the lease also extends an option to purchase the leased premises contained in the lease, in the absence of words expressing a clear intent to do so [see Spaulding v. Yovino-Young (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 138, 142, 180 P.2d 691] . If the option to purchase is, according to its own terms, exercisable during the lease "or any option of renewal of said lease," the parties clearly intended the option to purchase to continue during any renewal term of the lease [Riverside Fence Co. v. Novak (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 656, 663, 78 Cal. Rptr. 536] . However, a lease holdover clause that provides for a month-to-month tenancy on the same terms and conditions as stated in the lease in the event the tenant holds over after expiration of the original lease term, does not extend an option to purchase beyond the expiration of the original lease term [Spaulding v. Yovino-Young (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 138, 141-142, 180 P.2d 691] .

[h] Purchase Price for Property

At the time the parties to a lease agree to include an option to purchase in the lease, they must agree either on a fixed purchase price for the property or on the method by which the purchase price can be determined with certainty at the time the option is exercised, for example, by appraisal, arbitration, or a third person [see Peebler v. Seawell (1954) 122 Cal. App. 2d 503, 504, 265 P.2d 109 ; see also Bewick v. Mecham (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 92, 97-98, 156 P.2d 757] . An option that provides that the purchase price is to be "payable as mutually agreed by both parties" is too uncertain and cannot be specifically enforced by the tenant [Bonk v. Boyajian (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 153, 155-157, 274 P.2d 948] .

When a lease provision contains an option to purchase that can be exercised during the lease's term by payment of a purchase price equal to the then fair market value of the premises, and that further requires the fair market value to be determined by arbitration, the issue of whether the fair market value of the property should be reduced by the encumbrance of the remaining term of the existing lease arises. When the evidence is found to overcome the equitable presumption that a tenant did not intend a merger with the landlord's estate on exercising an option to purchase, the property should be valued as unencumbered by the lease [Summit Industrial Equipment, Inc. v. Koll/Wells Bay Area (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 309, 316-320, 230 Cal. Rptr. 565] .

[i] Other Terms of Purchase

In addition to setting forth the purchase price for the property, an option to purchase contained in a lease should contain the terms of the purchase and sale, just like any real property sales contract [see Gatley v. Shockley (1932) 215 Cal. 604, 610-611, 12 P.2d 436 ; see also Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements].

PRACTICE TIP:

Specific Terms to Include in Option to Purchase Provision. The method by which the purchase price must be paid (for example, all cash, or cash and notes) should be described in the lease. Provisions for escrow in the event the option is exercised, such as establishment of the escrow, payment of escrow fees, proration of rents and property taxes, and the time for closing escrow, should be included. In addition, the required state of title to the property at the time of closing should be described and a provision requiring title insurance for the property as agreed on by the parties should be included. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

[j] Arbitration Clause Requirements

If a lease contains an option to purchase as well as provisions requiring binding arbitration of any dispute between the landlord and tenant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1298(a)], the arbitration provision must comply with certain statutory format requirements and the lease must contain a notice required by statute regarding arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1298-1298.8]. These format and notice requirements are discussed in § 34C.280[1][e].

Option to Purchase Premises

Option to Purchase Premises

Section _____. Landlord hereby grants to Tenant an option to purchase the Premises on the following terms and conditions:

(a) Tenant may exercise this option on or before [termination date of option exercise period], but not earlier than [commencement date of option exercise period], provided Tenant is not then in default under this lease, by opening escrow with and by depositing in escrow at the [insert description or location] office of the [name] Title Company a copy of this lease together with an initial deposit of $ _____ (to be applied toward the purchase price for the Premises), and by giving written notice to Landlord that those deposits have been made in escrow.

(b) The full purchase price for the Premises shall be the sum of $ _____, payable as follows:

(1) The sum of $ _____, less the amount of the initial deposit paid by Tenant into escrow at the time the option is exercised, shall be paid in cash on or before the close of escrow.

(2) The balance of the purchase price shall be evidenced by a promissory note executed by Tenant in the form attached and labeled "Exhibit _____." The note shall bear interest at the rate of _____ percent per annum and shall be payable to Landlord in equal monthly installments of principal and interest commencing _____ [number, e.g., 30] days after close of escrow, and shall be due and payable _____ [number, e.g., 15] years after the close of escrow. Tenant shall have the right at any time to prepay all or any portion of the balance on the note without penalty.

(c) The promissory note described in subsection (b) of this Section shall be secured by a deed of trust in the usual and customary form supplied by the [name] Title Company for use in _____ County, California, and shall be a first lien on the Premises.

(d) On close of the escrow opened by Tenant to exercise this option, Landlord shall convey to Tenant good and marketable title to the Premises, as evidenced by a standard form CLTA title insurance policy in the full amount of the purchase price issued by the [name] Title Company, subject only to current real estate taxes and assessments and [set forth any other easements or restrictions of record agreed on by the parties as exceptions to title].

(e) All real property taxes levied or assessed against the Premises as shown by the latest available tax bill shall be prorated between Tenant and Landlord on the basis of 30-day months as of 12:00 midnight on the date of the close of escrow. Any bonds or improvement assessments that constitute a lien on the Premises shall, on the close of escrow, be assumed by Tenant.

(f) On exercise of this option and close of the escrow for the sale of the Premises to Tenant:

(1) Landlord shall pay the full cost of the title insurance policy required by this section, the full cost of preparing as well as executing and acknowledging any deeds or other instruments required to convey title to the Premises to Tenant, and any tax imposed on the conveyance of title to Tenant under the Documentary Transfer Tax Act.

(2) Tenant shall pay the full cost of preparing as well as executing and acknowledging the promissory note and deed of trust required by this section and shall also pay the cost of recording the deed or other instrument conveying title to the premises to Tenant and the cost of recording the deed of trust required by this section.

(3) Any escrow fee charged by the escrow holder in addition to the cost of the title insurance policy required by this section shall be paid by Landlord and Tenant in equal proportions.

(g) Escrow for the sale of the Premises shall close on or before [describe escrow period, e.g., 60 days after the date escrow is opened by Tenant in accordance with subsection (a)].

§ 34C.264 Right of First Refusal to Purchase Leased Premises

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form grants the tenant a right of first refusal to purchase the leased premises. The tenant may exercise this right either when the landlord gives the tenant notice of the landlord's election to sell the property, or when the landlord receives a bona fide offer from a third party acceptable to the landlord. The terms and conditions of sale are to be as stated in the landlord's notice of election to sell or in the third-party offer.

A right of refusal is generally only granted by a landlord to a tenant of a freestanding, rather than multitenant, building. Furthermore, tenants of a freestanding building who enter into long-term leases with the landlord may be most successful in bargaining for a right of first refusal.

For lease provisions granting the tenant an option to purchase the leased premises, see § 34C.263.

[b] Distinguished From Option to Purchase

A grant of a right of first refusal to purchase (or to lease) property has been upheld as valid [Nelson v. Reisner (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 161, 166-167, 331 P.2d 17] . A right of first refusal is not the same as an option to purchase. An option to purchase the leased premises [see § 34C.263] is an agreement by which an owner vests another with the exclusive right to buy certain property at a stipulated price, within a limited time [C. Robert Nattress & Associates v. CIDCO (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 55, 66, 229 Cal. Rptr. 33 ; see Arden Group, Inc. v. Burk (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1409, 1414, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 492] . A right of first refusal, however, usually does not give the tenant an unconditional option to purchase the property, but is worded so as to be conditioned on the owner's desire or election to sell [Purdy v. Carlson (1953) 118 Cal. App. 2d 526, 528, 258 P.2d 94] . Thus, when the owner decides to sell after granting a right of first refusal to a tenant, he or she is required to offer the property to the tenant first [Mercer v. Lemmens (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 167, 170, 40 Cal. Rptr. 803] . The events which typically trigger the landlord's obligation to offer the property to a tenant include the owner's receipt of a bona fide offer of sale from a third party and/or the landlord's stated intention to sell the property on certain terms and conditions [see form in [2], below].

When a right of first refusal is conditioned on receipt of a bona fide third party offer to purchase the property, the right is not triggered by the mere conveyance of that property to a third party. Generally speaking, it is the concurrence of both an arms' length transaction and change in control of the property that characterizes a bona fide sale. The absence of the first factor, as in the case of a gift, or the second factor, as in the case of a transfer between entities owned and controlled by the same individuals, usually means that there was no sale, or no bona fide offer for sale, within the meaning of the typical right of first refusal. The court must look through the formalities of the transaction to determine its true nature. Courts will not tolerate schemes designed to avoid a contractual right. However, legitimate business or personal reasons, untainted by an intent to avoid a contractual preemptive right, weigh in favor of finding that the right was not triggered by the transaction [Hartzheim v. Valley Land and Cattle Co. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 383, 393, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 815 (right of first refusal to purchase property in commercial lease not triggered when family partnership transferred interest in property to grandchildren, because transfer was not made pursuant to a "bona fide offer from any third party for the purchase" of the property as required by parties' agreement)].

[c] Exercise of Right of First Refusal

The specific events that will enable a tenant to exercise a right of first refusal should be described. For example, a tenant may be granted the right to purchase the leased property if the landlord elects to sell the property [see subsection (a) of form] and/or if the landlord wants to sell the property and receives a bona fide offer to purchase from a third party [see subsection (b) of form].

In addition to describing the events that will or will not enable the tenant to exercise the right of first refusal, the lease should set forth the time limitations for the tenant's exercise.

[d] Price and Terms

Unlike an option to purchase, a provision granting a right of first refusal usually does not specify a purchase price and terms of purchase. Rather, the provision typically declares that the price and terms are to be determined by the event giving rise to the tenant's right to exercise the right, for example, the same as those offered by a third party purchaser. The price and terms become definite and ascertainable on the occurrence of the event or events specified in the lease [see Moreno v. Blinn (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 852, 856, 185 P.2d 332] . For example, the terms are sufficiently ascertainable when the purchase price is determinable by the tenant being given the right to purchase the premises on the terms and conditions of any bona fide offer to purchase the property by any third person [Purdy v. Carlson (1953) 118 Cal. App. 2d 526, 527, 258 P.2d 94] .

[e] Exclusions From Right

If the landlord wants to exclude certain transfers from the tenant's right of first refusal to purchase the leased premises, the lease should describe the exclusions. For example, a landlord might want to exclude transfers by the landlord to his or her specific relatives, to an entity owned by the landlord, or on the landlord's death. A lender with a security interest in the landlord's property may insist that the right of first refusal contained in a lease not apply to a foreclosure by the lender, a deed in lieu of foreclosure, or a sale of the leased premises by the lender who has foreclosed. subsection (c) of this form includes the above exclusions.

[f] Matching Terms of Third-Party Offer

In contrast to an option to purchase, under which the terms of the exercise must ordinarily be identical to terms of the offer, no such matching is required for the exercise of a right of first refusal. Because the party exercising a right of first refusal is stepping into a contract made by a third party, the court must consider commercial realities and allow modifications consistent with the intent of the parties whose contract created the right of first refusal [Arden Group, Inc. v. Burk (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1409, 1414, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 492 (court upheld right of first refusal notwithstanding modifications to third party offer based on intended use of the property)].

Furthermore, the covenant of good faith and fair dealing implied in every contract requires the landlord to offer an existing tenant who has a right of first refusal the same terms included in a third party offer agreed to by the landlord [Mitchell v. Exhibition Foods, Inc. (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1033, 1043-1044, 229 Cal. Rptr. 535 (landlord's refusal to offer existing tenant the options to extend included in proposed lease with third party breached the covenant of good faith and fair dealing, citing Seaman's Direct Buying Service, Inc. v. Standard Oil Co. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 752, 768, 206 Cal. Rptr. 254, 686 P.2d 1158)].

[g] Covenant Running With the Land and Assignability

Like an option to purchase, a right of first refusal is generally assignable by the tenant, subject to restrictions contained in the lease [C. Robert Nattress & Associates v. CIDCO (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 55, 69, 229 Cal. Rptr. 33] and is a covenant running with the land [Maron v. Howard (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 473, 484, 66 Cal. Rptr. 70] . If the landlord wants to limit assignability, the lease must set forth specific limitations. In subsection (d) of this form, the tenant is restricted from assigning the right of first refusal. subsection (e) of this form also provides that the right terminates on a sale of the premises by the landlord.

[2] FORM

Right of First Refusal to Purchase Premises

Right of First Refusal to Purchase Premises

Section _____. (a) Landlord agrees that Landlord shall not sell the Premises during the term of this lease, except subject to the lease. Landlord further agrees that it will not sell the Premises to any person until Landlord has given to Tenant notice in writing of its intent to sell, specifying the price and terms of the contemplated sale. Within [number, e.g., 30] days after Landlord gives Tenant written notice of Landlord's intent to sell, Tenant shall have the right to purchase the Premises at the same price and on the same terms and conditions set forth in Landlord's written notice of intent to sell. To exercise its option, Tenant must, within the same [same time period as above, e.g., 30-day] period, deposit in escrow with any escrow [or title] company in _____ County, California, all moneys and instruments required by the terms of Landlord's notice of intent to sell to be paid or delivered to Landlord on close of escrow and shall also give Landlord written notice of the deposit. If Tenant fails to exercise the right in accordance with the provisions of this section, Landlord may sell the Premises to any other person for the price and on the terms contained in the notice.

(b) If at any time during the term of this lease Landlord receives from any third party a bona fide offer to purchase the Premises at a price and on terms acceptable to Landlord, Landlord shall give written notice of the offer to Tenant. Within [number, e.g., 30] days after Landlord gives Tenant written notice of the third-party offer, Tenant shall have the right to purchase the Premises at the same price and on the same terms and conditions set forth in the third-party offer. To exercise its right, Tenant must, within the same [same time period as above, e.g., 30-day] period, deposit in escrow with any escrow [or title] company in _____ County, California, all moneys and instruments required by the terms of the offer to be paid or delivered to Landlord on close of escrow and shall also give Landlord written notice of the deposit. In the event Tenant fails to exercise the option to purchase in accordance with the provisions of this section, Landlord may sell the Premises to the third party making the offer on the same terms and conditions set forth in that offer. If for any reason the Premises are not sold to the party making the offer, Landlord shall give Tenant the same right to purchase the Premises on receiving any subsequent offer from any third party that is acceptable to Landlord.

[Optional:]

(c) The right of first refusal granted to Tenant shall exclude the following transfers: any transfer resulting from the Landlord's death; any transfer by Landlord to Landlord's spouse or any of Landlord's children; and any transfer by Landlord to any entity in which Landlord holds a 51 percent or greater ownership interest. The right of first refusal granted to Tenant also shall not apply in the event of foreclosure (or a deed in lieu of foreclosure) or to a sale of the leased premises by a lender who has foreclosed.

[CONTINUE]

(d) Tenant may not assign the rights granted under this Section either separately or together with a transfer of Tenant's leasehold interest, and any purported assignment shall be null and void.

(e) If this property is sold to any third party during the term of this lease, then the provisions of this section shall thereafter be of no further force or effect. The transfer of landlord's title to the Premises by will or intestacy shall not be deemed to be a sale under the provisions of this section.

§ 34C.270 Landlord's Damages on Termination of Lease

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a provision for a landlord's recovery if the lease is terminated due to the tenant's breach. That recovery is prescribed by Civ. Code § 1951.2 which states that certain damages are recoverable only if the lease provides for them. A lease that provides for statutory damages in the event the lease is terminated [see form in [2], below] may also contain a provision that permits the landlord to continue a lease in effect after the tenant abandons the property and breaches the lease [see § 34C.271].

For full coverage of abandonment and termination, see Ch. 35B, Modification and Termination of Leases .

[b] Statutory Damages

Except when a lease provides that a landlord may continue the lease in effect after a breach and abandonment by the tenant [see Civ. Code § 1951.4; see also § 34C.271], if a tenant breaches the lease and abandons the property before the end of the lease term, or if the tenant's right to possession is terminated by the landlord because of a breach of the lease, the lease terminates [Civ. Code § 1951.2]. On termination, the landlord may recover from the tenant four basic types of damages [see Civ. Code § 1951.2(a)].

First, the landlord may recover the worth at the time of the award of the unpaid rent that had been earned at the time of the termination [Civ. Code § 1951.2(a)(1)]. This language means unpaid rent earned up to the time of termination of a lease pursuant to abandonment or an unlawful detainer action; the statutory language "at the time of award" refers to the time of an award for damages under the statute and not to the time of an unlawful detainer award [California Safety Center, Inc. v. Jax Car Sales (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 992, 998-999, 211 Cal. Rptr. 39] . The "worth at the time of award" is computed by allowing interest at the rate specified in the lease or, if no such rate is specified, at the legal rate [Civ. Code § 1951.2(a)(1), (b)].

Second, the landlord may recover the worth at the time of the award of the amount by which the unpaid rent that would have accrued between the time of termination and the time of the award exceeds the amount of rental loss that the tenant proves the landlord could have reasonably avoided [Civ. Code § 1951.2(a)(2); see [d], below, for discussion of landlord's duty to mitigate]. This standard for damages covers unpaid rent accruing between the lease's termination and the time of a judgment for damages under Civ. Code § 1951.2 [California Safety Center, Inc. v. Jax Car Sales (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 992, 998-999, 211 Cal. Rptr. 39] . The "worth at the time of award" is computed by allowing interest at the rate specified in the lease or, if no such rate is specified, at the legal rate [Civ. Code § 1951.2(a)(1), (b)].

Third, the landlord may recover the worth at the time of the award of the amount by which the unpaid rent for the balance of the term after the time of the award exceeds the amount of rental loss that the tenant proves could be reasonably avoided [Civ. Code § 1951.2(a)(3), (c); see [d], below, for discussion of landlord's duty to mitigate]. "Worth at the time of the award" of future damages is computed by discounting the amount of the award at the discount rate of the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco at the time of the award plus 1 percent [Civ. Code § 1951.2(b)].

Finally, the landlord may recover any other amounts necessary to compensate him or her for all the damages proximately caused by the tenant's failure to perform his or her lease obligations or that, in the ordinary course of things, would be likely to result from the tenant's failure to perform [Civ. Code § 1951.2(a)(4)].

For purposes of the second and third items of damages discussed above, the amount of rental loss that could be, or could have been, reasonably avoided is computed by taking any reasonable use of the leased property into account [Civ. Code § 1997.040(a)]. However, if the lease contains a legally enforceable restriction on use, the computation must take into account the restricted use, except to the extent that the tenant proves that under all the circumstances enforcement of the restriction would be unreasonable. Restrictions related to any building or complex in which the leased property is located must be taken into consideration as well as restrictions related to the leased property itself [Civ. Code § 1997.040(a)]. For a general discussion of restrictions on use, see § 34C.230[1].

[c] Effect of Unlawful Detainer Action or Tenant Remaining in Possession

The landlord's right to recover damages for loss of the benefits of the lease under Civ. Code § 1951.2 is independent of his or her right to bring an action for unlawful detainer to recover the possession of the property. The damages are recoverable in a separate action in addition to any damages recovered as part of the unlawful detainer action [Walt v. Superior Court (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1667, 1672-1673, 1678, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 278 ; Danner v. Jarrett (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 164, 166-167, 192 Cal. Rptr. 535] .

Likewise, if the landlord allows the tenant to remain in possession after the lease's forfeiture, the landlord may still recover damages for loss of the benefits of the lease. The language of Civ. Code § 1951.2 does not require a termination of actual possession for the landlord to recover damages. All that is required is the tenant's breach and a termination of the tenant's right of possession [Walt v. Superior Court (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1667, 1678, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 278] .

A judgment in unlawful detainer declaring the forfeiture of the lease or agreement does not relieve the tenant from liability under Civ. Code § 1951.2 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.5].

[d] Landlord's Duty to Mitigate

[i] Nature of Duty

A landlord has the duty to mitigate damages for unpaid rent accruing after the time a lease is terminated, that is, rent accruing from the time of termination until the time of a damages award [see Civ. Code § 1951.2(a)(2)] or from the time of termination through the lease term's balance [see Civ. Code § 1951.2(a)(3), (c)]. The tenant is entitled to offset against the damages otherwise recoverable by the landlord, amounts the landlord has received or will receive from a reletting and amounts the tenant proves could have been obtained by the landlord in a good faith and reasonable effort to relet the leased premises [Green v. Smith (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 392, 396, 67 Cal. Rptr. 796] . Although a landlord has a duty to mitigate damages, the tenant has the burden of proving any claimed offset [see Civ. Code § 1951.2(a)(2), (3)]. Efforts by the landlord to mitigate the damages caused by the tenant's breach of the lease do not waive the landlord's right to recover damages provided for by statute [Civ. Code § 1951.2(d); see [b], above].

[ii] Notice of Reletting the Premises

Under limited circumstances, a landlord is required to give a tenant notice that the landlord has relet the premises. The notice is required by statute only if the following occurs [Civ. Code § 1951.7(b)]:

- The tenant has made an "advance payment," that is, a prepayment of rent or a deposit to secure faithful performance of the lease's terms, or another substantially equivalent payment, but excluding any payment that does not exceed the amount of one month's rent [see Civ. Code § 1951.7(a)];

- The lease is terminated in accordance with Civ. Code § 1951.2 (termination on tenant's breach);

- The tenant has made a written request to the landlord that the tenant be given notice of reletting; and

- The amount of rent due and unpaid at the time of termination does not exceed the amount of the advance payment [see Civ. Code § 1951.7(c)].

The contents of the notice and its required method of delivery are prescribed by statute [see Civ. Code § 1951.7(c)].

[e] Other Remedies

Civ. Code § 1951.2 does not affect the right of the landlord to equitable relief, when appropriate [Civ. Code § 1951.8], or to valid liquidated damages [see Civ. Code §§ 1671, 1951.5; see also § 34C.273]. Subject to certain limitations for double recovery, Civ. Code § 1951.2 also does not affect actions for unlawful detainer, forcible entry, and forcible detainer [Civ. Code § 1952(b)]. The subject of unlawful detainer is covered in CALIFORNIA FORMS OF PLEADING AND PRACTICE, Ch. 333, Landlord and Tenant: Eviction Actions (Matthew Bender).

Termination and Remedy in Damages

Termination and Remedy in Damages

Section _____. If Tenant breaches this lease and abandons the property before the end of the term, or if Tenant otherwise breaches this lease, Landlord shall have the right to terminate this lease by giving written notice of termination to Tenant. On termination, Landlord may recover from Tenant:

(a) The worth at the time of award of the unpaid rent that had been earned at the time of termination;

(b) The worth at the time of award of the amount by which the unpaid rent that would have been earned after termination until the time of award exceeds the amount of rental loss that Tenant proves could have been reasonably avoided;

(c) The worth at the time of award of the amount by which the unpaid rent for the balance of the term after the time of award [or designate shorter period] exceeds the amount of rental loss for that period that Tenant proves could have been reasonably avoided; and

(d) Any other amount necessary to compensate Landlord for all the detriment proximately caused by Tenant's failure to perform the obligations under this lease, or that in the ordinary course of things would be likely to result therefrom.

Measure of Damages

Section _____. The "worth at the time of award" of the amounts referred to in subsections (a) and (b) of Section [number of preceding section] of this lease shall be computed by allowing interest at the rate of _____ percent [insert a lawful rate or state: at the then-legal rate]. The "worth at the time of award" of the amount referred to in subsection (c) of Section [number of preceding section] is computed by discounting that amount at the discount rate of the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco at the time of award plus one percent.

§ 34C.271 Landlord's Right to Continue Lease in Effect

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form sets forth provisions granting a landlord the right to continue a lease in effect and collect rent as it becomes due after a tenant's breach and abandonment. This remedy is available to a landlord only if the lease provides for it [Civ. Code § 1951.4(a); see [b], below]. Otherwise, the lease terminates after the abandonment and breach, and the landlord is entitled to recover statutory damages from the tenant [Civ. Code § 1951.2; see § 34C.270].

The availability of the remedy of continuing the lease in effect after breach and abandonment depends not only on its inclusion in the lease, but is also subject to two other conditions: (1) the landlord may not terminate the tenant's right to possession [see [d], below], and (2) the tenant must have the right to assign the lease or sublet the premises, subject only to reasonable limitations [see Civ. Code § 1951.4; see also § 34C.260[1] for discussion of the tenant's right to assign or sublet].

[b] Provision for Remedy

If a landlord is to have the statutory remedy of continuing a lease in effect and recovering rent as it becomes due after a breach and abandonment, the lease must contain a provision providing for this remedy [Civ. Code § 1951.4(a)]. The provision may be of any type that describes the remedy. In addition, a provision in the lease in substantially the following form satisfies the requirement [Civ. Code § 1951.4(a)]:

> The lessor has the remedy described in California Civil Code Section 1951.4 (lessor may continue lease in effect after tenant's breach and abandonment and recover rent as it becomes due, if tenant has right to sublet or assign, subject only to reasonable limitations).

This statutory language has been incorporated, with minor stylistic modifications, into the form in [2], below.

[c] Tenant's Right to Assign or Sublet

The remedy of continuing a lease in effect after a tenant's breach and abandonment is not available unless at least one of the following conditions is satisfied:

- The lease permits (or does not prohibit or otherwise restrict) subletting, assignment, or both [Civ. Code § 1951.4(b)(1)];

- The lease permits subletting, assignment, or both, subject to express standards or conditions, provided the standards and conditions are reasonable at the time the lease is executed [see Civ. Code § 1951.4(b)(2) (an express standard or condition is presumed to be reasonable, and this presumption affects the burden of proof)] and the landlord does not require compliance with any standard or condition that has become unreasonable at the time the tenant seeks to sublet or assign [Civ. Code § 1951.4(b)(2)]; or

- The lease permits subletting, assignment, or both, with the landlord's consent, and the lease either provides that the consent will not be unreasonably withheld or includes a standard implied by law that consent will not be unreasonably withheld [Civ. Code § 1951.4(b)(3)].

The provisions for assignment and subletting based on these statutory provisions are included in § 34C.260[2].

[d] Continuation of Right of Possession

The remedy of continuing a lease in effect after a tenant's breach and abandonment is conditioned, among other requirements, on the landlord's not terminating the tenant's right to possession [see Civ. Code § 1951.4(b)]. Even though a tenant has breached the lease and abandoned the property, the lease continues in effect for as long as the landlord does not terminate the tenant's right to possession, and the landlord may enforce all the landlord's rights and remedies under the lease, including the right to recover the rent as it becomes due under the lease, provided the lease contains such a remedy [see [b], above] and permits, subject only to reasonable limitations, the tenant to assign or sublet [Civ. Code § 1951.4(b); see [c], above].

For this purpose, the following do not constitute a termination of the tenant's right to possession [Civ. Code § 1951.4(c)]:

- Acts of maintenance or preservation;

- Efforts to relet the property;

- The appointment of a receiver on initiative of the landlord to protect the landlord's interest under the lease; and

- Withholding consent to a subletting or assignment, or terminating a subletting or assignment, if the withholding or termination does not violate the tenant's rights to sublet or assign.

[e] Inconsistent Remedies as Not Incompatible

The remedy of terminating the lease for abandonment and breach [see Civ. Code § 1951.2; see also § 34C.270[1]] and the alternative remedy of the landlord's continuing the lease in effect [see Civ. Code § 1951.4] are inconsistent, but may be contained within the same lease [see Walt v. Superior Court (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1667, 1671-1672, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 278] . In that event, the landlord has a choice about how to handle the tenant's abandonment and breach. A statutory procedure for determining that the tenant has in fact abandoned the premises, and for terminating the lease, is set forth in Civ. Code § 1951.3 [see Ch. 35B, Modification and Termination of Leases].

[f] Other Remedies

Neither of the remedies in Civ. Code § 1951.4 (continuing the lease) or Civ. Code § 1951.2 (terminating lease and recovering damages) prevents a landlord from obtaining equitable relief, if appropriate [Civ. Code § 1951.8]. The landlord may also bring actions for forcible entry or detainer, or unlawful detainer [Civ. Code § 1952]. However, if the landlord obtains possession of the property under a judgment for restitution of the premises [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1174], he or she is no longer entitled to continue the lease in effect [see Civ. Code § 1951.4] unless the tenant thereafter petitions for and obtains restoration to the premises [see Civ. Code § 1952(c); Code Civ. Proc. § 1179].

Landlord's Right to Continue Lease in Effect

Landlord's Right to Continue Lease in Effect

Section _____. If Tenant breaches this lease and abandons the leased premises, Landlord shall have the right to continue this lease in effect for as long as Landlord does not terminate Tenant's right to possession of the leased premises, and Landlord may enforce all of Landlord's rights and remedies under this lease, including the right to recover the rent as it becomes due.

Nonterminating Actions

Section _____. No action by Landlord, except a written notice of termination given to Tenant, shall be deemed a termination of this lease. Specifically, the following do not constitute a termination of Tenant's right to possession:

(a) Landlord's acts of maintenance or preservation of the property.

(b) Landlord's efforts to relet the property.

(c) The appointment of a receiver on Landlord's initiative to protect Landlord's interest under this lease.

(d) Landlord's withholding of consent to a subletting or assignment, or terminating a subletting or assignment, if the withholding or termination does not violate Tenant's rights to sublet or assign as specified in this lease.

§ 34C.272 Right to Cancel Lease on Occurrence of Stated Event

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a set of alternative lease provisions that grant the landlord, the tenant, or both, the right to cancel the lease before expiration of its term on the occurrence of a stated event. The sale of the leased premises is an example of an event entitling the landlord to cancel the lease. For a specific provision giving the landlord the right to terminate the lease if the landlord is unable to obtain financing, see § 34C.251.

Another provision of the form permits the landlord to terminate a percentage rent lease if the gross receipts from the tenant's business fall below a minimum stated amount for a specified period [see Carter v. Adler (1955) 138 Cal. App. 2d 63, 67, 291 P.2d 111] . For a discussion of percentage rent leases, see § 34C.200[1][e]. For a percentage rent provision, see § 34C.200, Section 2.02.

In the form in [2], below, loss of the tenant's business license or a governmental prohibition against operation of the tenant's business are examples of events giving rise to the tenant's right of cancellation.

PRACTICE TIP:

Tenant Should Evaluate Risk of Not Obtaining Business License. Although landlords are usually opposed to granting a tenant a right to cancel the lease if the tenant is unable to obtain a license for its intended use, a tenant operating a business such as an adult bookstore or theater that is at risk of losing a business license or encountering governmental prohibition may want to insist on inclusion of such a provision. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

[b] Effect on Lease of Right to Cancel

A provision in a lease authorizing the landlord or tenant to cancel the lease on certain conditions does not negate the existence of a lease or create a mere tenancy at will [Crocker-Anglo Nat. Bank v. Roberts (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 614, 616, 2 Cal. Rptr. 568] . For example, the lease of store premises in one case provided that the landlord could terminate during a four-month period in each of three years of the lease on 60 days' notice, but only if the landlord sold the building containing the leased premises or leased a major portion of it for a term of years. The court stated that because the landlord could cancel only at limited periods and only on the sale or lease of the building, thus limiting the landlord's own freedom of action, the landlord clearly conferred on the tenant rights amounting to a leasehold interest. The right to cancel is a condition that does not negate the existence of a lease [Crocker-Anglo Nat. Bank v. Roberts (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 614, 616, 2 Cal. Rptr. 568] .

[2] FORM

Cancellation of Lease

ARTICLE _____
CANCELLATION OF LEASE

Cancellation by Landlord

Section _____. Landlord shall have the right to cancel or terminate this lease before expiration of its original term [or any extended term] as follows: [choose one of following alternatives, or otherwise describe circumstances giving rise to right:]

[First alternative: If landlord has right to cancel the lease on sale of leased premises.]

At any time on or after [date], Landlord may sell the leased premises to a third party and terminate this lease in accordance with the provisions of this Section. To exercise this right, Landlord shall give Tenant a written notice of the pending sale and termination of this lease. The notice shall state the date by which Tenant is required to vacate and surrender the premises ("the termination date"), which must be at least [number, e.g., 30] days after the date of Landlord's written notice to Tenant. As a further condition to Landlord's right to terminate this lease under this Section, Landlord shall:

(a) Prorate as of the termination date and refund to tenant any advance rent paid by Tenant that is not yet due before the termination date, and the bonus paid by Tenant to Landlord on execution of this lease and described in Section [section number of lease pertaining to bonus];

(b) Refund the security deposit deposited by Tenant to Landlord, under the provisions of Section [section number of lease pertaining to security deposit]; and

(c) Pay to Tenant the sum of $ _____ as a bonus for the cancellation of this Lease.

Tenant agrees to vacate and surrender the leased premises on or before the termination date specified in Landlord's termination notice. Landlord shall make any payment to Tenant required by this Section on or before [number, e.g., 10] days after Tenant surrenders possession of the premises to Landlord. The provisions of this section shall not apply to any forced sale of the leased premises, such as foreclosure or condemnation.

[Second alternative: If lease is percentage lease, and landlord has the right to cancel if tenant's gross receipts fall below stated amount.]

If the gross receipts of Tenant's business conducted on the leased premises fall below the sum of $ _____ per month for a period of [define applicable time period, e.g., three consecutive months], Landlord shall have the right to terminate this lease. Landlord shall exercise this right by giving a notice to Tenant of the termination. The notice shall include the date by which Tenant is required to vacate and surrender the premises ("the termination date"), which shall be at least [number, e.g., 30] days after the date of Landlord's termination notice to Tenant. Tenant shall vacate and surrender the leased premises to Landlord on or before the termination date.

Cancellation by Tenant

Section _____. Tenant shall have the right to cancel or terminate this lease at any time [on or after _____ (date)], on the happening of any one or more of the events set forth below, by giving to Landlord written notice of Tenant's election to terminate this lease. The notice shall specify a termination date that shall be at least [number, e.g., 60] days after the date of Tenant's notice to Landlord. On or before the termination date, Tenant shall vacate and surrender the premises to Landlord [and shall pay to Landlord the sum of $ _____ as a bonus for each full _____ (year or month) or portion thereof of the unexpired term of this lease].

(a) On the loss by Tenant of Tenant's license or permit to conduct on the leased premises the business described in Section _____ of this lease [or to conduct the business of _____ (specify) on the leased premises], whether that loss is by forfeiture, suspension, or revocation, or by refusal of the appropriate governmental agency or bureau to renew that license or permit on its expiration.

(b) On the prohibition, by statute, ordinance, administrative rule or regulation, as now exists or hereafter may provide, of Tenant's conducting on the leased premises [the business described in Section _____ of this lease or the business of _____ (specify)].

(c) If the gross receipts of Tenant's business conducted on the leased premises fall below the sum of $ _____ per month for a period of [define applicable time period, e.g., three consecutive months], notwithstanding Tenant's good faith efforts to maximize gross receipts.

(d) [Describe any other events that will entitle tenant to prematurely terminate the lease].

Effect of Termination

Section _____. If this lease is terminated in accordance with the provisions of this article, it shall be null and void as of the termination date set forth in Landlord's or Tenant's notice of termination or as of the date Tenant actually surrenders possession of the leased premises to Landlord, whichever is later. Before that time, the parties shall be bound by all terms, covenants, and conditions of this lease.

§ 34C.273 Liquidated Damages Provision

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a liquidated damages provision for use in a nonresidential lease. It should be modified as appropriate to reflect the particular nature of the property, the circumstances of the contemplated lease, and the agreement of the parties. However, the customized provision must conform to certain rules discussed in [b][i], below, governing the validity of liquidated damages provisions in leases.

For further discussion of the law applicable to liquidated damages provisions in leases, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, Ch. 152, Drafting Basic Lease Provisions (Matthew Bender).

For a lease provision that provides for liquidated damages in the event the landlord fails to construct a building within the time specified in the lease, see § 34C.243[2]. A liquidated damages provision for a residential lease is included in Ch. 34B, Residential Leases.

[b] Liquidated Damages

[i] Statutory Rules: Residential vs. Nonresidential Property

The statutory rules for liquidated damages applicable to leases [see Civ. Code §§ 1671, 1951.5] depend on whether the lease is one for residential or for nonresidential property. A liquidated damages provision in a lease of real property for use as a dwelling by the party against whom damages are sought or those dependent on the party for support [see Civ. Code § 1671(c)(2)] is void except when the parties to the lease agree in the lease on an amount that will be presumed to be the amount of damage sustained by a breach of the lease, when, from the nature of the case, it would be impracticable or extremely difficult to fix the actual damages [Civ. Code §§ 1671(d), 1951.5].

However, with respect to leases of nonresidential property, a provision liquidating damages for a breach of the lease is valid unless the party seeking to invalidate the provision establishes that the provision is unreasonable under the circumstances existing at the time the lease was made [Civ. Code § 1671(b)].

[ii] Burden of Proof

The party seeking to invalidate a liquidated damages provision has the burden of proving that the provision is unreasonable [see Civ. Code § 1671(b)]. All the circumstances existing at the time of the contract's making are considered, including the relationship that the damages provided in the contract bear to the range of harm that reasonably could be anticipated at the time of the making of the contract. Other relevant considerations in the determination of whether the amount of liquidated damages is so high or so low as to be unreasonable include, but are not limited to, the relative equality of the bargaining power of the parties, whether the parties were represented by lawyers at the time the contract was made, the anticipation of the parties that proof of actual damages would be costly or inconvenient, the difficulty of proving causation and foreseeability, and whether the liquidated damages provision is included in a form contract [Weber, Lipshie & Co. v. Christian (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 645, 654-655, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 677] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Include Factual Basis for Liquidated Damages. Many practitioners find it prudent to memorialize in the liquidated damages clause the factual basis and circumstances for the parties' agreement to a specific amount of liquidated damages, and to recite the parties' agreement that the amount specified is reasonable under the circumstances stated in the lease. Their rationale is that the challenging party will have a much more difficult time proving the invalidity of the provision after having agreed in writing to its specific factual and circumstantial basis. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

[iii] Pre-July 1, 1978 Leases

The rules on liquidated damages discussed in [b][i], above, apply to all leases executed on or after July 1, 1978 [Civ. Code § 1951.5 (operative July 1, 1978)]. Liquidated damages provisions in leases executed on or after July 1, 1971, but before July 1, 1978, are governed by the same requirements applicable to residential leases executed on or after July 1, 1978 [former Civ. Code § 1670 (repealed effective July 1, 1978, Stats. 1977, ch. 198, § 2); now see Civ. Code § 1671 (amended effective July 1, 1978, Stats. 1977, ch. 198, § 5)]. For leases executed before July 1, 1971, liquidated damages provisions are generally invalid [see 9 Cal. Law Rev. Comm. 170, 419 (1969)].

§ 34C.274 Attorneys' Fees Provision

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a provision awarding attorneys' fees to the party prevailing on an action on a lease. Except as otherwise provided by statute, in the absence of a contractual attorneys' fees provision, the party employing an attorney must pay that attorney's fees [Trope v. Katz (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 274, 278, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 241, 902 P.2d 259 ; International Industries, Inc. v. Olen (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 218, 221-222, 145 Cal. Rptr. 691, 577 P.2d 1031 ; see Civ. Code § 1021]. For a general discussion of attorneys' fees provisions in leases, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, Ch. 152, Drafting Basic Lease Provisions (Matthew Bender).

PRACTICE TIP:

Tip for Landlord's Attorneys' Fees. In drafting the form for attorneys' fees, the landlord's attorney should keep in mind the essential principle that "tort" causes of action are unlikely to be available against any tenant, but that a tenant may well wish to utilize such causes of action against the landlord. Thus, the landlord's attorney would wish, in view of the California Supreme Court decision in Santisas v. Goodin [see Santisas v. Goodin (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 599, 614, 616-619, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 830, 951 P.2d 399] , to narrowly draft the attorneys' fees clause to limit causes of action sounding in contract, including actions for unlawful detainer. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[b] Attorneys' Fees

[i] Entitlement

If a contract provides that attorneys' fees and costs incurred to enforce the contract will be awarded either to one of the parties or to the prevailing party, then in any action on the contract the party who is determined to be the party prevailing on the contract [see [ii], below] will be entitled to reasonable attorneys' fees and other costs, whether or not he or she is the party specified in the contract [Civ. Code § 1717(a)]. Such an attorneys' fees provision will be construed as applying to the entire contract, unless each party was represented by counsel in the negotiation and execution of the contract, and the fact of that representation is specified in the contract [Civ. Code § 1717(a)].

Contractual provisions for attorney fees will not be inflexibly enforced and the form of the judgment is not necessarily controlling, but must give way to equitable considerations [Hsu v. Abbara (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 863, 873, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 824, 891 P.2d 804 ; see Ecco-Phoenix Electric Corp. v. Howard J. White, Inc. (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 266, 272, 81 Cal. Rptr. 849, 461 P.2d 33 (notwithstanding attorney's fees provision in contract, fees could be recovered only to the extent necessary to protect the defendant's rights and that when the plaintiff is partially successful, the plaintiff's liability is limited to fees for the part of the defense which was successful)].

When a party sues for breach of a lease but the court rules that there is no enforceable lease, the other party may recover attorneys' fees if there was an attorneys' fee clause in the unenforceable lease. This result follows from the fact that the party attempting to enforce the lease would have been able to recover attorneys' fees had it prevailed [Care Constr. Inc. v. Century Convalescent Centers, Inc. (1976) 54 Cal. App. 3d 701, 704-707, 126 Cal. Rptr. 761 ; see Hastings v. Matlock (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 826, 841, 217 Cal. Rptr. 856 ; Star Pacific Investments, Inc. v. Oro Hills Ranch, Inc. (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 447, 459-460, 176 Cal. Rptr. 546] .

[ii] Prevailing Party

The court, on notice and motion by a party, determines who is the party prevailing on the contract, whether or not the suit proceeds to final judgment. The party prevailing on the contract will be the party who recovered a greater relief in the action on the contract [Civ. Code § 1717(b)], with the following exceptions:

- The court may determine that there is no party prevailing on the contract [Civ. Code § 1717(b)(1); see Hsu v. Abbara (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 863, 876, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 824, 891 P.2d 804 (those parties whose litigation success is not fairly disputable may claim attorneys' fees as a matter of right under Civ. Code § 1717; trial court has the discretion to find no prevailing party only when the results of the litigation are mixed)].

- If the defendant's answer alleges that he or she tendered to the plaintiff the full amount to which the plaintiff was entitled, the defendant deposits the amount so tendered in court for the plaintiff, and the defendant's allegation is found to be true, then the defendant will be deemed to be the party prevailing on the contract. When a deposit has been made pursuant to this exception, the court must, on the application of any party to the action, order the deposit to be invested in an insured, interest-bearing account. Interest on the amount will be allocated to the parties in the same proportion as the original funds are allocated [Civ. Code § 1717(b)].

In addition, a voluntary dismissal of a complaint that is based on contract causes of action will not result in the existence of any prevailing party [Santisas v. Goodin (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 599, 614, 619, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 830, 951 P.2d 399] . However, a voluntary dismissal of a complaint containing claims sounding in tort will not insulate a plaintiff from the award of contractually based fees related to tort causes of action [Santisas v. Goodin (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 599, 614, 616-619, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 830, 951 P.2d 399] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Effect of Settlement Agreement That Does Not Waive Recovery of Fees. A settlement agreement that does not contain a specific waiver of the recovery of attorneys fees and/or costs, or does not contain a provision to the effect that "each party is to bear their own attorneys fees and costs," may well expose a party to the award of fees, particularly if some of the causes of action sound in "tort." By Benjamin Kaplan.

A litigant does not necessarily have to be a signatory to the contract sued on to be considered the "prevailing party" and entitled to recover attorneys' fees under Civ. Code § 1717 [see Reynolds Metals Co. v. Alperson (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 124, 128, 158 Cal. Rptr. 1, 599 P.2d 83 ; Real Property Services Corp. v. City of Pasadena (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 375, 380-382, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 536 ; Manier v. Anaheim Business Center Co. (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 503, 507, 207 Cal. Rptr. 508] .

The purposes of Civ. Code § 1717 require that it be interpreted to provide a reciprocal remedy for a nonsignatory defendant, sued on a contract as if he or she were a party to it, when a plaintiff would clearly be entitled to attorneys' fees should he or she prevail in enforcing the contractual obligation against the defendant [see Reynolds Metals Co. v. Alperson (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 124, 128, 158 Cal. Rptr. 1, 599 P.2d 83] . For example, attorneys' fees were properly awarded in a case where a tenant in a shopping center sued a cotenant and the landlord to enforce a restrictive covenant assumed by the cotenant for the tenant's benefit. In that case, the tenant was allowed the benefit of the attorneys' fee provision contained in the cotenant's lease with the landlord [Lewis v. Alpha Beta Co. (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 29, 31-32, 189 Cal. Rptr. 840] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Accounting for Expert Witness Fees in Addition to Attorneys' Fees. Counsel might also provide that expert witness fees may be recovered by the prevailing party. These fees are often incurred in commercial evictions, for example, accounting experts to prove what percentage rents were due and construction experts to prove that certain repairs were needed or properly made. By Myron Moskovitz.

[iii] Amount and Waiver

Reasonable attorneys' fees must be fixed by the court, and will be an element of the costs of suit [Civ. Code § 1717(a)]. The allowance for attorneys' fees extends to legal services rendered for an appeal as well as for trial [Beverly Hills Nat. Bank v. Glynn (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 859, 870, 73 Cal. Rptr. 808] .

Attorneys' fees provided for by Civ. Code § 1717 cannot be waived by the parties to any contract entered into after January 1, 1988, and any provision in such a contract that provides for a waiver of attorneys' fees is void [Civ. Code § 1717(a)].

[iv] Other Damages

In an action that seeks relief in addition to that based on a contract, if the party prevailing on the contract has damages awarded against it on causes of action not in the contract, the amounts awarded to the party prevailing on the contract under Civ. Code § 1717 will be deducted from any damages awarded in favor of the party who did not prevail on the contract. If the amount awarded under Civ. Code § 1717(c) exceeds the amount of damages awarded the party not prevailing on the contract, the net amount will be awarded the party prevailing on the contract and judgment may be entered in favor of the party prevailing on the contract for that net amount [Civ. Code § 1717(c)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Countervailing Awards of Attorneys' Fees. It is thus possible under the ruling in Santisas [Santisas v. Goodin (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 599, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 830, 951 P.2d 399] to have countervailing awards of attorneys fees. A plaintiff who prevails on contract causes of action may get an award based thereon, and a cross-complainant who prevails on tort causes of action may also get an attorneys' fees award based thereon. By Benjamin Kaplan.

Attorneys' Fees

Section _____. If any action or proceeding arising out of or relating to this lease, including an action for declaratory relief, is commenced by either party to this lease, then as between Landlord and Tenant the prevailing party shall be entitled to recover from the other party, in addition to any other costs and relief that may be granted, the reasonable attorneys' fees incurred in the action or proceeding by the prevailing party. That recovery shall include court costs and attorneys' fees on appeal.

§ 34C.280 Arbitration Provision

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a binding arbitration provision that may be included in a lease, and a statutory heading and notice that must accompany the provision under certain circumstances [see [e], below, for discussion of statutory requirements]. The arbitration provision incorporates by reference the rules of the American Arbitration Association. For further discussion of arbitration and an alternative arbitration clause that provides for the use of the rules set forth in the California Arbitration Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1280-1294.2], see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements , and CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, Ch. 152, Drafting Basic Lease Provisions (Matthew Bender).

[b] Content of Form

A lease may provide for the arbitration of disputes arising under it [Sawday v. Vista Irrigation Dist. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 833, 836, 52 Cal. Rptr. 1, 415 P.2d 816] . A general arbitration agreement is independently enforceable, and has a life of its own outside the judicial system. The rules pertaining to the selection of arbitrators and the conduct of the hearings are matters almost entirely subject to the mutual desires of the parties [In re Marriage of Assemi (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 896, 917-918, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 265, 872 P.2d 1190 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2]. If the agreement to arbitrate does not set forth the procedure for initiating and conducting the arbitration, then statutory provisions govern these matters [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1282-1284.2].

The arbitration provision in the form in [2], below, provides that the parties will submit all controversies relating to the lease to binding arbitration to be conducted in accordance with the rules of the American Arbitration Association. Alternatively, the parties may agree that only specific matters designated in the lease will be submitted to arbitration.

The form in [2], below, provides that each party is required to select an arbitrator and the two arbitrators are then required to select a third arbitrator. The decision of two of the three arbitrators is binding on the parties. The arbitrators are also granted the power to apportion the costs and expenses of the arbitration between the parties.

As discussed in [e], below, when a lease containing an option to purchase or a ground lease coupled with improvements contains an arbitration provision, that provision must conform to statutory requirements for the heading and type size of the provision. The lease must also contain a notice required by statute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1298; see also form in [2], below].

PRACTICE TIP:

Using a General Arbitration Provision. If the attorneys include a general arbitration provision--requiring arbitration of all disputes--this will delay any filing of an unlawful detainer action until all arbitration proceedings are completed. The landlord's attorney should thus be sure to advise his or her client of this, before the lease is executed. By Myron Moskovitz.

PRACTICE TIP: Exceptions to Arbitration. Even general arbitration clauses often contain exceptions to arbitration. Such exceptions have commonly included the following:

- A judicial or non-judicial foreclosure or other action or proceeding to enforce a deed of trust or other security instrument, or real property sales contract;
- Unlawful detainer actions;
- Actions to foreclose a mechanic's lien; and
- Any matter within the jurisdiction of the probate court.

Moreover certain other exclusions may also be appropriate that are designed in instances in which arbitration offers no protection. Thus, exclusions are also made for declaratory relief actions, the filing of an action so that a lis pendens may be recorded, provisional remedies and attachment orders, and actions for injunctive relief actions. By Benjamin Kaplan.

PRACTICE TIP: Provide for Rules to Be Used. With regard to the form in [2], below, it is best to provide exactly which rules of the American Arbitration Association are to be utilized, for example, "Commercial Rules." By Benjamin Kaplan.

PRACTICE TIP: Arbitration Clauses and Discovery. Unless your arbitration clause specifies that there will be deposition discovery rights under Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.05, or rights to utilize interrogatories, requests for admissions, and requests for production of documents, your client will probably be deprived of any discovery rights. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[c] Enforceability

Arbitration has traditionally been praised by courts as an expeditious and economical method of relieving overburdened civil calendars [see Madden v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 699, 706-707, 131 Cal. Rptr. 882, 552 P.2d 1178] . However, in cases not involving leases, contract clauses requiring mandatory arbitration have been held to be invalid adhesion contracts when one party's bargaining strength was clearly less than the other [see Spence v. Omnibus Industries (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 970, 973-974, 119 Cal. Rptr. 171 (home remodeling contract); Wheeler v. St. Joseph Hospital (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 345, 356-357, 133 Cal. Rptr. 775 (hospital admission contract)]. Arbitration provisions in commercial contracts that provide for an arbitrator closely connected with one party have also been criticized or held invalid as unconscionable [see Graham v. Scissor-Tail, Inc. (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 807, 821-824, 826-828, 171 Cal. Rptr. 604, 623 P.2d 165 ; Hope v. Superior Court (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 147, 154-155, 175 Cal. Rptr. 851 , cert. denied, 456 U.S. 910 (1982)] .

An agreement providing for the settlement of disputes by arbitration is specifically enforceable by either party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2; Kustom Kraft Homes v. Leivenstein (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 805, 810, 92 Cal. Rptr. 650] . However, if a party to an arbitration agreement can establish that he or she was induced to sign the arbitration agreement through the misrepresentation or fraud of the other party, arbitration may be denied [see Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 974-981, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903] . If the agreement provides that the decision of the arbitrator will be final, a submission to and determination by the arbitrator is contractually binding on the parties [Silva v. Mercier (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 704, 708, 204 P.2d 609] .

[d] Waiver

The right to arbitration granted under a contract may be waived when the party seeking to compel arbitration does any of the following:

- Takes steps inconsistent with an intent to invoke arbitration [see, e.g., Case v. Kadota Fig Assn. (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 596, 604-606, 220 P.2d 912 ; Titan Enterprises, Inc. v. Armo Construction, Inc. (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 828, 832, 108 Cal. Rptr. 456] ;

- Causes unreasonable delays undertaking the procedure [see, e.g., Sawday v. Vista Irrigation Dist. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 833, 836-837, 52 Cal. Rptr. 1, 415 P.2d 816] ; or

- Acts in bad faith or with willful misconduct [Davis v. Blue Cross of Northern California (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 418, 425-426, 158 Cal. Rptr. 828, 600 P.2d 1060] .

The right may also be waived by a repudiation or denial of the lease in which the arbitration clause is contained [Bertero v. Superior Court (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 213, 218, 30 Cal. Rptr. 719] .

Whether there has been a waiver of a right to arbitrate is ordinarily a question of fact [Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 983, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903] . To establish a waiver of the right to arbitration based on unreasonable delay, the delay must be substantial, unreasonable, and in spite of the claimant's own reasonable diligence. The burden is on the one opposing the arbitration agreement to prove that the other party's dilatory conduct rises to such a level of misfeasance as to constitute a waiver and such waiver is not to be lightly inferred [Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 984, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903] .

[e] Statutory Requirements

The statutory requirements discussed below apply to a lease that grants the tenant an option to purchase [see § 34C.263] or a ground lease that includes improvements [see Ch. 34D, Ground Leases] if the lease or ground lease contains a provision for binding arbitration of any dispute between the landlord and tenant [Code Civ. Proc. § 1298(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1298.8 (requirements are applicable only to contracts or agreements entered into on or after July 1, 1989); see also Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements]. For those leases:

- The arbitration provision must be clearly titled "ARBITRATION OF DISPUTES" [Code Civ. Proc. § 1298(a)];

- The statutory arbitration notice [see form in [2], below] must appear immediately before the line or space provided for the parties to indicate their assent or nonassent to the arbitration provision, and immediately following that arbitration provision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1298(c)]; and

- Both the statutory notice and the arbitration provision must be set out in capital letters if the contract is typed. If the contract is printed, the provision must be set out in at least 8-point bold type or in contrasting red in at least 8-point type, and the notice must be set out in at least 10-point bold type or in contrasting red in at least 8-point bold type [Code Civ. Proc. § 1298(a), (c)].

These requirements also apply to a variety of other contracts that convey or are contemplated to convey real property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1298(a)]. For further discussion of these requirements and other affected contracts, see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements .

FOOTNOTES:

(n58)Footnote *. Linda Breen Pierce obtained a B.A. degree from the University of California at Berkeley and a J.D. from Hastings College of Law in 1977. Admitted to the California State Bar in 1977, Ms. Pierce practiced law for 10 years, specializing in real estate law. Her experience includes supervising the legal staff of a real estate law department for a major, multistate retailer. She has also worked as a residential real estate broker and is now a full time free lance writer.

(n59)Footnote . Benjamin Kaplan received his law degree from Hastings College of Law in 1968. He has been in private practice since that time with an office in San Francisco. He has served as the tenant's attorney for the Berkeley Tenants Union and as the lead attorney for the Haight-Ashbury Legal Project and the Tenant's Action Group. He was the first instructor in landlord-tenant law at the People's Law School in San Francisco.

Mr. Kaplan's practice has been primarily devoted to real estate and business litigation with a pronounced concentration in landlord-tenant and lease litigation. Since 1971, he has primarily represented the legal interests of landowners and lessors. He is a lecturer for the Continuing Education of the Bar and The Rutter Group in landlord-tenant law. He was also the first landlord's Chairperson of the State Bar Landlord-Tenant Committee of the Real Property Law Section of the State Bar and was subsequently a member of the Executive Committee of the Real Property Law Section.

(n60)Footnote . Myron Moskovitz is a Professor of Law at Golden Gate University School of Law in San Francisco. He received his law degree from Boalt Hall in 1964. In 1965, he served as a law clerk to Justice Ray Peters of the California Supreme Court. From 1966-1967, he was the directing attorney of the Marysville Office of California Rural Legal Assistance and between 1968 and 1972 served as the Chief Attorney for the National Housing Law Project.

Professor Moskovitz is the author of several publications including Winning an Appeal (Michie 1985), California Eviction Defense Manual (Cal. C.E.B. 1992), and CASES AND PROBLEMS IN CRIMINAL PROCEDURE (Matthew Bender). He has litigated cases at both the trial and appellate level, including the California and United States Supreme Court.

This chapter covers ground leases, which are a unique type of nonresidential lease. The Legal Background discusses advantages and disadvantages of ground leases, financing considerations, and tax consequences of entering into a ground lease. The Transaction Guide includes procedural and drafting guides for ground leases. The Forms section contains a complete ground lease, as well as additional and alternative lease provisions.

Nonresidential leases other than ground leases are covered in Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases . Residential leases are discussed in Ch. 34B, Residential Leases . Shopping center leases are covered in Ch. 34E, Shopping Centers: Leasing and Operation . For additional chapters relating to leasing, see Ch. 34A, Prelease Forms , Ch. 35A, Assignment and Sublease of Leasehold Interests , and Ch. 35B, Modification and Termination of Leases .

The income tax implications of leasing real property from both the landlord's and the tenant's point of view are beyond the scope of this chapter. For a thorough discussion of these issues, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, ch. 190, Taxation of Landlords , and Ch. 191, Taxation of Tenants (Matthew Bender).

The terms "landlord" and "tenant," rather than their equivalents "lessor" and "lessee," are used throughout this chapter. Retail, industrial, and office leases (sometimes also referred to as "commercial leases") are referred to collectively in this chapter as "nonresidential leases."

§ 34D.10 Nature of Ground Lease

[1] Undeveloped Land

A ground lease refers to the long-term lease of a parcel of land. Ground leases are most often used for undeveloped or underdeveloped land by a tenant-developer who will construct new improvements on the undeveloped land or who will demolish existing but virtually worthless improvements on underdeveloped land, and then construct new improvements. Under this scheme, the tenant-developer then ordinarily subleases space in the improvements to subtenants. Alternatively, a tenant may lease land under a ground lease and purchase existing improvements located on the land.

[2] Title to Improvements

One distinguishing feature of a ground lease, as compared to other nonresidential leases, is that during the term of a ground lease, title to the improvements is in or becomes vested in the tenant although the landlord retains title and ownership to the underlying land. On termination of the ground lease, title in the improvements usually reverts to the landlord, but the lease may require the tenant to remove the improvements from the land. Some ground leases give the ground tenant an option to purchase, or right of first refusal to purchase, the landlord's underlying fee interest during the term of the ground lease [see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, §§ 34C.64 (right of first refusal to purchase), 34C.263 (option to purchase)].

[3] Similarity to Fee Ownership

During a ground lease's term, the tenant has many of the rights normally associated with ownership. In addition, the tenant ordinarily is responsible for all expenses generally associated with ownership, including maintenance and repair of the property, property taxes, and insurance on the property and on the improvements. In this sense, ground leases are true net leases [see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.17 (net leases)].

[4] Residential Ground Lease

A ground lease of a residential property is extremely rare. In the event a residential lease is contemplated, see Ch. 34B, Residential Leases , for discussion of disclosure and other requirements for residential leases.

[5] Implied Duty of Good Faith

The implied duty of good faith and fair dealing exists in virtually every commercial lease [Carma Developers (Cal.), Inc. v. Marathon Development California, Inc. (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 342, 372, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467, 826 P.2d 710] , including a ground lease. In a ground lease, this covenant imposes a reciprocal duty on the parties to do everything that the ground lease presupposed they would do to accomplish its purpose [Ocean Services Corporation v. Ventura Port District (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1762, 1781, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 750] .

§ 34D.11 Tenant's Considerations

The potential advantages to a tenant of entering into a ground lease rather than purchasing the land outright include reducing the tenant's initial cash investment in the transaction, thereby increasing the tenant's overall financial leverage. Financing under a ground lease usually requires little or no down payment, and payment for the use of the land is extended for a longer period of time than is possible with a conventional loan [see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, Ch. 154, Complete Commercial Leases (Matthew Bender); see also § 34D.13[1]]. Furthermore, a tenant under a ground lease may receive substantial tax advantages. For example, the entire rent paid under the lease is deductible for purposes of federal and state income tax, and the improvements constructed on the land are depreciable [see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, Ch. 191, Taxation of Tenants (Matthew Bender)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Lease vs. Purchase. Compare the income tax advantages of ground leases with outright purchase. Although land rent is deductible, land is not depreciable. By Myron Moskowitz.

One of the potential disadvantages to a ground lease tenant is that the tenant generally must concede to the landlord some degree of control over operation of the improvement project, and must follow the landlord's restrictions on use of the property. Also, if a tenant falls behind in rent payments under a ground lease, the lease may provide for termination in a far shorter time than foreclosure could be accomplished if the tenant were the fee owner and fell behind in its mortgage payments. Furthermore, lease payments made over the entire term of a ground lease may ultimately cost the tenant more than if the tenant had purchased the land outright.

§ 34D.12 Landlord's Considerations

The potential advantages to a landlord under a ground lease include a guaranteed secure return with a minimum amount of management, and the ability to keep pace with inflation by rent increases, participation by the landlord in the project's profits through percentage rent, or both. A ground lease may also provide an attractive alternative to a landowner who would otherwise pay income taxes on selling the property outright to the tenant [see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, Ch. 154, Complete Commercial Leases (Matthew Bender)].

If a landlord subordinates its fee interest in the land to the tenant's financing on the improvements [see § 34D.13[1][b]], the landlord could lose the property through foreclosure because of a default by the tenant under its loan. Thus, the ground lease landlord should carefully evaluate the financial stability of the ground lease tenant (and any prospective subtenants) [see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, Ch. 154, Complete Commercial Leases (Matthew Bender)].

[1] Methods

[a] Mortgage of Leasehold Interest

Because a ground lease significantly reduces the substantial cash outlay otherwise needed to acquire and develop a parcel of real property, it is commonly characterized as a financing device rather than a conventional lease. A ground tenant may obtain financing either (1) by mortgaging its leasehold interest, or (2) by having the ground landlord join in and subordinate its fee interest to the mortgage [see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, Ch. 154, Complete Commercial Leases (Matthew Bender)].

Because any interest in real property that is capable of being transferred may be mortgaged [see Civ. Code § 2947], the leasehold interest itself, that is, an estate for years, may be the subject of a mortgage from an institutional lender [see Matthews v. Hinton (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 736, 741, 44 Cal. Rptr. 692 ; Chapman v. Great Western Gypsum Co. (1932) 216 Cal. 420, 425, 14 P.2d 758 ; see also Civ. Code §§ 2920 ("mortgage" defined), 2924f(a) ("property" defined)]. With leasehold financing, the lender generally requires that it may cure any defaults on the part of the ground tenant, or obtain a new ground lease on the same terms on termination due to the tenant's default [see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, Ch. 154, Complete Commercial Leases ; ch. 420, Financing Construction and Development (Matthew Bender); see also [2], below].

A suggested form for a leasehold mortgage can be found in Civ. Code § 2948. However, that section specifies a form that "may" be used. The word "may" in the statute shows that the form is not mandatory. For example, a leasehold mortgage may be created by a UCC-1 financing statement that specifically states that it covers the leasehold interest [Lovelady v. Bryson Escrow, Inc. (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 25, 29-30, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371] . For further discussion of leasehold mortgages, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, Ch. 111, Deeds of Trust and Mortgages (Matthew Bender).

PRACTICE TIP:

Financing Conditions Should Be Integral Part of Lease Negotiations. At the inception of negotiations respecting the lease it would be prudent to either make the coming into force of the lease contingent on obtaining financing, or have the financing in place at the time of the lease's execution. Any duties or obligations that the tenant would wish to impose on the landlord must be clearly provided for in the lease itself. This would include provisions to approve the financing, subordinate the landlord's interest to the financing, or other terms and conditions that the lender may impose on the tenant. Although it is always possible to have objective criteria for the landlord's approval of financing, such criteria are not a substitute for the tenant obtaining the landlord's approval before the lease comes into effect. Also, it is not uncommon to anticipate that there may be a refinancing of the lease over the lease's term. The refinancing may be made "automatic" without the approval of the landlord if the terms of that refinancing are materially the same as the terms of the prior loan (except as to amount), and some provision is made to establish how much the tenant may borrow against the security. By Benjamin Kaplan.

PRACTICE TIP: Consider Possibility of Interim Construction Loan. In all probability, the first loan obtained by the tenant will be a construction loan that will have a shorter repayment term and higher interest rate than an eventual permanent loan. The lease should anticipate this eventuality and provide for the landlord having already given consent to that change. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[b] Fee Subordination

With fee subordination financing, the ground lease obligates the landlord to subordinate its reversionary fee interest in the property to a construction or development loan [see Matthews v. Hinton (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 736, 741, 44 Cal. Rptr. 692 ; see also Mead v. Sanwa Bank California (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 561, 568-569, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 625] . Although a ground landlord may be reluctant to subordinate its fee interest to the mortgage, many more loans are granted when the fee is subordinated than when it is not [see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, Ch. 154, Complete Commercial Leases (Matthew Bender)].

If the ground tenant defaults under the mortgage and the landlord has subordinated its reversionary interest to the tenant's leasehold mortgage, the foreclosure sale is of the entire fee and not merely the leasehold interest [see Matthews v. Hinton (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 736, 741-742, 44 Cal. Rptr. 692] . The landlord, therefore, should evaluate the financial stability of the tenant before subordinating its fee interest, and should reserve the right to cure any defaults on the part of the tenant [see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, Ch. 154, Complete Commercial Leases ; ch. 420, Financing Construction and Development (Matthew Bender)].

[2] Lender Requirements

When a lender's only security is the tenant's leasehold interest, the lender may require that the ground lease contain certain provisions to protect its security. The lender wants to prevent a premature termination of the lease, since termination effectively terminates the lender's security. Even when the lender has the additional security of the landlord's fee title interest, it still may require inclusion of the same protective provisions in the ground lease. Otherwise, if the lease is terminated because of a default by the tenant, the lender loses any rights it had under the ground lease and is left only with the option of foreclosing on the landlord's fee title interest. A lease that does not include the provisions required by a lender will not be "financeable." For a list of some of the most common lender requirements, which are set forth in the complete ground lease form in this chapter, see § 34D.200[1][h].

PRACTICE TIP:

Lender's Right to Cure Default. A lender may well insist that the tenant's default not prejudice the lender's position if the lender chooses to cure. Thus, any lease must have appropriate provisions for the lender to cure a default of the tenant, particularly, but not limited to, a monetary default. The lender will also usually insist that its position be restored to "status quo ante." For example, if a default triggers the imposition of a higher interest rate, then the lender upon cure would go back to the lower pre-default rate. By Benjamin Kaplan.

PRACTICE TIP: Lender's Approval of Lease Terms. It is not uncommon for the lender to place limitations on the collection of advanced rent by the tenant, the term for which premises or part thereof may be leased, and provisions respecting leasing at market value. Often long term tenant leases are made subject to approval of the lender. Thus, it is probably best that the landlord provides the lender with a "standard" form lease in advance of the financing agreement so that at least the form of that lease will be pre-approved. Major national anchor tenants will have their own lease forms; therefore, some provision should be included in the lease documentation and financial agreements to provide for same. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[3] Leasehold Mortgage Document

From the standpoint of the lender, the provisions of the actual deed of trust, mortgage, or other security instrument executed by the tenant in favor of the lender to secure the tenant's financing must be compatible with the provisions of the ground lease. A lender with a leasehold security interest will review a ground lease with particular attention to the rights of the tenant, since its security is the tenant's leasehold interest and the lender may be faced with the prospect of succeeding to the tenant's interest under the lease [see [2], above]. For example, the lender may require that the condemnation provision of a ground lease allocate a certain portion of the award to the tenant under specific circumstances, to insure compatibility with its deed of trust provision requiring the tenant to use any proceeds from a condemnation award to pay off or reduce the balance of the lender's loan [see § 34D.200[1][l]].

In some cases, the contents of the deed of trust or mortgage may be prescribed by the ground lease. For example, when a landlord agrees under a ground lease to subordinate its fee title interest to tenant financing [see [1][b], above], the subordination may be conditioned on the mortgage containing a provision that (1) exempts the landlord from personal liability on the mortgage and underlying note, and (2) confirms that the landlord's execution of the mortgage is for the sole purpose of encumbering its fee title interest [see § 34D.212].

CHAPTER 34D GROUND LEASES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

17-34D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 34D.14

§ 34D.14 Drafting Ground Lease

Like any other lease, a ground lease is both a conveyance and a contract [see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.12]. Unlike other types of leases, however, it is also a financing device [see § 34D.13]. For this reason, an attorney drafting a ground lease must possess the necessary expertise to ensure that the interests of his or her client, whether landlord or tenant, are adequately protected, and must also work in close coordination with a lender, who will require certain provisions in the lease to protect its interest and security [see § 34D.13[2], [3]]. If a ground lease is not "financeable," its purpose is defeated.

As with any lease, the specific provisions of a ground lease depend on the particular transaction. However, the key features will always be the following [see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, ch. 154, Complete Commercial Leases (Matthew Bender); see also § 34D.15]:

- Rent provisions;
- Provisions for construction if the land is unimproved;
- Assignment and sublease provisions;
- Provisions for repair and maintenance;
- Provisions regarding destruction of the premises and condemnation; and
- Provisions regarding ownership of the improvements.

For a comprehensive list of ground lease provisions, see Part D (Drafting Guide) of the Transaction Guide. For additional discussion of ground lease provisions and an example of a complete ground lease, see § 34D.200.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 34D.15 Lease Provisions

[1] Term of Lease

A ground lease is a long-term lease, generally for at least 50 years, that may contain renewal options [see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, ch. 154, Complete Commercial Leases (Matthew Bender)]. When the security for the tenant's financing is the tenant's leasehold interest [see § 34D.13[1][a]], regulatory law for certain financial institutions requires that the term of the ground lease exceed the term of the loan by a stated period [see, e.g., Fin. Code § 1227 (banks)].

Certain types of property are restricted by law as to the maximum length of a lease term [see, e.g., Civ. Code §§ 718, 719 (leases of city property)]. For a summary of some of these restrictions and a discussion of the effect of the rule against perpetuities on the term of a lease, see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.210[1][c], [d].

[2] Rent

Like other nonresidential leases, a ground lease generally provides for minimum rent and some additional rent [see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.200[1][d], [e]]. The minimum rent in a ground lease is often based on the appraised value of the land [see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, ch. 153, Drafting Commercial Leases (Matthew Bender)].

Nonresidential leases, including ground leases, also typically contain an escalation or similar clause that provides for an increase in the minimum rent during the term of the lease [see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.200[2]]. An escalation clause may provide for a rent increase based on any of the following [see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, ch. 153, Drafting Commercial Leases (Matthew Bender)]:

- A reappraisal of the property's value [see, e.g., Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.221[2]];

- Proportionate increases in national or local consumer price indices; or
- A schedule set forth in the lease.

To evaluate its risk in making a loan to the tenant, a lender may require the total amount of any rent increases to be ascertainable in advance. The complete ground lease form set forth in § 34D.200[2] provides for minimum rent to increase by stated amounts at stated intervals over the lease's term.

[3] Use of Premises

[a] Any-Lawful-Purpose Requirement

Ground leases often grant the ground tenant the right to use the premises for any lawful purpose [see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, ch. 154, Complete Commercial Leases (Matthew Bender)]. If the lease does not specify the tenant's use, the tenant may use the property for any lawful purpose, including the following [see Keating v. Preston (1940) 42 Cal. App. 2d 110, 115, 108 P. 2d 479] :

- A purpose that is not materially different from the purposes for which the premises are usually employed;
- A purpose to which the premises are adapted; or
- A purpose for which the premises were constructed.

[b] Continuous Use of Premises

The fact that a lease is made for a particular purpose does not imply a covenant on the part of the tenant to continue to use the premises for that particular purpose, and the tenant may cease to use the premises for any purpose [Bostrom v. County of San Bernardino (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 1654, 1670, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669] .

However, if the rent under a nonresidential lease is a specified but insubstantial minimum plus a percentage, the tenant's covenant of continuous business operation may be implied [Bostrom v. County of San Bernardino (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 1654, 1670, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669] , especially in a lease in which there is no minimum rent or the minimum rent is not substantial [Lippman v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 136, 142-143, 280 P.2d 775] . "A substantial minimum" cannot be precisely defined [Lippman v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 136, 145, 280 P.2d 775] . Therefore factual information on this issue must be examined before a covenant will be implied.

[c] Use Restrictions

A ground lease may expressly restrict the use of the premises for specified purposes [Chandler v. Hart (1911) 161 Cal. 405, 413, 119 P. 516] . Under a percentage rent lease, for example, a landlord is likely to limit the tenant's use to the particular business stated in the lease, and permit a change of use only with the landlord's written consent [see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, ch. 153, Drafting Commercial Leases (Matthew Bender)]. Furthermore, use provisions may require compliance with applicable laws and ordinances, prohibit waste and nuisance, and prohibit use or storage of hazardous or toxic substances. For further discussion and examples of use provisions and restrictions, see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, §§ 34C.230-34C.233.

PRACTICE TIP:

Use Clauses for Multiuse Projects. "Use" in terms of subtenancies may be subject to non-competition clauses as well as appropriate "subtenant mixed uses." Careful attention should be paid for projects with potential multiuse, multipurpose development, such as shopping centers or other retail facilities. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[4] Condemnation

If a ground lease provides for the rights and obligations of the parties in the event that all or a portion of the property is acquired for public use, the lease provisions prevail [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.160]. Otherwise, the Eminent Domain Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1230.010 et seq.] and applicable case law govern the rights and obligations of the parties to the lease [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.160; see also Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.262].

For a full discussion of the subject of condemnation of leased premises, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, ch. 509, Evidence: Transactions , and ch. 512, Compensation (Matthew Bender).

A lender under a ground lease, particularly one whose only security is the tenant's leasehold interest, will be concerned with the circumstances that may lead to a termination of the lease and thereby terminate the lender's security. Ordinarily, a lender wants its loan to be paid off to the greatest possible extent if the property is taken in whole or in part. If the property is taken in part and the lease continues in effect, the lender wants to ensure that its portion of the remaining security will be adequate. Therefore, the interests of the landlord on the one hand and the lender and tenant on the other must be satisfactorily resolved in the negotiating process.

A lender with a leasehold mortgage may require a provision in its mortgage instrument that, in the event of a total condemnation or of a partial condemnation that results in termination of the lease, any amount paid to the tenant for the improvements and the tenant's leasehold interest must be applied toward the lender's loan [see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, ch. 152, Drafting Basic Lease Provisions (Matthew Bender)]. In the event of a partial taking that does not result in termination of the lease, a lender may agree to the tenant's use of the proceeds for necessary reconstruction or restoration. For further discussion of the division of a condemnation award between the various parties, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, ch. 512, Compensation (Matthew Bender).

[5] Assignment and Subletting

[a] Restrictions on Tenant's Rights

A tenant under a nonresidential lease has an unrestricted right to sublease, assign, or otherwise transfer that leasehold interest unless the lease restricts or absolutely prohibits transfers [Civ. Code §§ 1995.210, 1995.230; see Civ. Code §§ 1995.010-1995.340; see also Civ. Code § 1044]. Ambiguities in a restriction on transfer must be construed in favor of transferability [Civ. Code § 1995.220]. For the types of restrictions that may be placed on transfer of a tenant's interest in a lease, see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.260.

If a ground lease contains restrictions on tenant's ability to assign its interest in the lease, a leasehold lender will be concerned that a prohibited assignment will cause the tenant to be in default and give the landlord the right to terminate the lease. From the tenant's standpoint, freedom to assign his or her interest is desired given the long-term nature of the ground lease. For these reasons, assignment provisions in a ground lease usually grant the tenant more flexibility in the area of assignment than do the provisions of an ordinary nonresidential lease.

[b] Landlord Requirements

If a tenant-developer enters into a ground lease for the purpose of developing and operating a commercial project such as a shopping center, the lease should contain a provision granting the ground tenant the right to sublease space in the improvements [see § 34D.200[2], Section 10.03]. Although a tenant may bargain for an unrestricted right, the landlord may insist that each sublease meet certain requirements or that each sublease be subject to the landlord's prior approval, or both. For example, the landlord may require that the rent under any sublease be at least equal to fair market value rent and may also limit the amount of prepaid rent the ground tenant may collect from its subtenants [see § 34D.213].

[c] Nondisturbance of Subtenants

In conjunction with the ground tenant's right to sublease, the lease should provide for nondisturbance of the subtenants by the landlord in the event the ground lease is terminated. It may require the landlord or the mortgagee or both to execute a nondisturbance agreement for each sublease. Correspondingly, each subtenant should agree to perform all of the ground tenant's obligations under the ground lease and attorn to the ground landlord on the ground tenant's default under the ground lease [see Dean, Long Term Commercial Ground Leases-- An Alternate Method of Acquiring Real Property, 2 Cal. Real Prop. J. No. 1, p. 4 (State Bar of California, Real Property Law Section) (Winter 1984); Undenberg, Ground Leasing Makes Dollars and Sense for Developers, 1 Real Est. Rev. No. 2, p. 53 (Summer 1971)]. In the context of a ground lease, "attornment" is an agreement by a subtenant to be bound directly to the ground landlord for the performance of all obligations under the sublease in the event of the ground tenant's default [see Rabkin & Johnson, CURRENT LEGAL FORMS WITH TAX ANALYSIS, Ch. 23, Real Estate Leases (Matthew Bender)].

[6] Arbitration Provisions

If a ground lease also covers improvements and contains a provision for binding arbitration of any dispute between the principals in the transaction, the arbitration clause in the lease must comply with statutory requirements regarding content and type size [Code Civ. Proc. § 1298]. These requirements apply to covered agreements and contracts entered into on or after July 1, 1989 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1298.8], and are discussed in Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.280[1].

§ 34D.16 Escrow and Title Insurance

A ground lease transaction is usually handled through an escrow in the same manner as the sale of real property [see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements]. The escrow process provides a mechanism for effecting concurrent performance of the parties' respective obligations. For example, one of the tenant's obligations would be to obtain acceptable financing [see § 34D.210]. For discussion of real property escrows, see Ch. 26, Real Property Escrows .

Like a commercial lender financing a party's purchase of real property, a lender with a leasehold security interest under a ground lease will require title insurance insuring its fee title interest in the improvements and its leasehold interest in the land. Also, the tenant should obtain title insurance for its leasehold interest. Before issuing title insurance, the title company will require recordation of either the ground lease itself or a memorandum of the lease. For a discussion of the requirements for recording a lease and an illustrative memorandum of lease, see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.203. The subject of title insurance is covered in Ch. 26A, Title Insurance .

§ 34D.17 Tenant's Bankruptcy

Lease clauses that permit the landlord to terminate a lease because of the tenant's bankruptcy or insolvency are valid under California law [see Ilkhchooyi v. Best (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 395, 404, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 766 ; Superior Motels, Inc. v. Rinn Motor Hotels, Inc. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1032, 1052, 241 Cal. Rptr. 487] , but are generally not enforceable under the superseding federal Bankruptcy Code [see 11 U.S.C. § 365(e)(1)]. That code also specifically provides that, subject to certain exceptions [see 11 U.S.C. § 365(c)], a bankruptcy trustee may assign an unexpired lease of the debtor despite any terms in the lease agreement prohibiting assignment [11 U.S.C. § 365(f)(1)].

A bankruptcy trustee also has the right to assume or reject the bankrupt tenant's lease, subject to the court's approval [11 U.S.C. § 365(a)]. If the trustee does not assume an unexpired nonresidential lease by the earlier of the date that is (1) 120 days after the date of the order for relief or (2) the date of the entry of an order confirming a plan, the lease is considered to have been rejected [11 U.S.C. § 365(d)(4)(A)]. However, the court may grant a 90-day extension before the expiration of the 120-day period, on the motion of the trustee or landlord for cause. The court may grant subsequent extensions only with the prior written consent of the landlord in each instance [11 U.S.C. § 365(d)(4)(B)]. At least one court has held that once the lease is rejected, the lease is terminated and the leasehold interest of the lender is extinguished [see In re Bernard (Bankr. D. Haw. 1986) 69 B.R. 13] . In an effort to avoid these consequences, a lender may require that the ground lease include a provision that the landlord must enter into a new ground lease with the lender (on the same terms as the original lease) if the landlord terminates the lease before the time the lender's loan is satisfied [see § 34D.200[2], Section 6.08].

For further discussion of the effect of a tenant's bankruptcy on a nonresidential lease, see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.20.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

17-34D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 34D.18

AUTHOR: Linda Breen Pierce Benjamin Kaplan Myron Moskovitz Practice Consultants

§ 34D.18 Hazardous Substance Laws

The owner and possessor of property are subject to state and federal statutory requirements regarding the presence, release, storage, and use or handling of certain hazardous substances and materials. Some of the statutes require disclosures and reporting [see, e.g., Health & Safety Code §§ 25359.7, 25915-25919.7]; others prohibit release of or impose requirements for the cleanup and removal of the hazardous substances or materials [see, e.g., Health & Safety Code §§ 25320, 25321]. For additional discussion of state regulation in this area, see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.19. For coverage of environmental investigation and cleanup liabilities and their effect on real estate transactions, see Ch. 33, Contamination Considerations in Real Property Transactions .

The parties to any nonresidential lease must be aware of these requirements not only for purposes of their own compliance, but also in case they confirm or expand the respective responsibilities of either party in the lease itself. Concern over hazardous substances is especially acute for parties to a ground lease, given the lengthy term of a ground lease and the fact that the tenant's lender lends on the security of the lease.

A tenant or lender may insist that the landlord warrant that no toxic substances or hazardous materials exist on the leased premises, and agree to indemnify the tenant against damage, loss, or liability arising from the presence of any hazardous or toxic substances not caused by the tenant. In turn, the landlord or lender may prohibit the tenant from engaging in any use of the leased property that involves the use of toxic or hazardous substances [see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.201[2], Section 4.01]. Also, the lease may include a provision addressing the issue of who must perform and pay for any required cleanup or removal of a hazardous substance. For a discussion of responsibility as between tenant and landlord for compliance with government mandated orders (for example, asbestos abatement) and of the judicial construction of typical "compliance with law" lease provisions, see Ch. 34C, Retail, Office, and Industrial Leases, § 34C.241.

a. Tenant financing cannot exceed certain maximum amounts.

b. Rent under lease will be higher than if landlord did not subordinate.

§ 34D.112 Escrow and Title Insurance

NOTE:

A ground lease transaction, like a real property sale and purchase, is usually handled through an escrow. The tenant's lender will require title insurance whether the financing is secured only by the tenant's leasehold interest or by both the landlord's fee title interest and the leasehold interest. Also, the tenant should obtain title insurance for its leasehold interest.

1. If escrow has been opened by either party, determine the following:

a. Name of escrow company.

b. Name of escrow officer.

c. Location of escrow office.

d. Date for closing.

2. Ascertain whether a preliminary title report insuring tenant's leasehold interest has been ordered or received.

3. Determine whether any exceptions to title exist for tenant's leasehold interest.

NOTE:

If the landlord's title is subject to an encumbrance that would have priority over the tenant financing for constructing the improvements, the tenant's lender will require, before funding the loan, either that the encumbrance be paid off and removed or that it be subordinated to the tenant financing before funding the tenant's loan.

1. Determine purpose of ground lease, such as:

a. Sale and leaseback of land on which there is an existing building used by tenant for its own commercial or industrial business [see Bullock's, Inc. v. Security-First Nat. Bk. (1958) 160 Cal. App. 2d 277, 279-281, 325 P.2d 185] .

b. Sale and leaseback of land on which there is an existing office, apartment, or other multitenant building that tenant will rent out to subtenants.

NOTE:
For a discussion of construction and development financing involving ground leases and sale-leasebacks, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, ch. 420, Financing Construction and Development (Matthew Bender).

c. Lease of land on which tenant intends to build building for its own industrial or commercial operations.

d. Lease of land on which tenant intends to construct shopping center or other income-producing project [see § 34D.200].

    b. Delivery of possession of leased premises on or before specific date.

    c. Ability to obtain zoning variance for tenant's intended business use.

    d. Ability to obtain business or other license required for operation of tenant's business.

2. Ascertain deadline for satisfaction of conditions.

3. Determine what steps, if any, party must take to indicate satisfaction of condition (for example, written notice to other party).

4. Determine what effect failure of condition will have, such as:

    a. Automatic cancellation of lease.

    b. Cancellation on written notice.

    c. Option or obligation of party intended to benefit from condition to do one of

following:

(1) Extend deadline for satisfaction of condition; or

§ 34D.115 Term of Lease

1. Ascertain lease's term, including:

    a. Length of term.

    b. Whether term commences on:
    (1) Specified date; or

    (2) Occurrence of specified event.

2. Ascertain options to extend (number and duration).

3. Determine whether occurrence of any event (other than tenant's default) will give either party right to terminate lease before its natural expiration, for example:

    a. Tenant's inability to obtain financing.

    b. Tenant's inability to obtain use permit.

§ 34D.116 Rent and Other Payments to Landlord

1. For fixed or minimum rent under lease, ascertain:

    a. Amount of minimum rent.

    b. When rent commences.

    c. At what intervals rent is payable.

2. For an income producing project, for example, a shopping center, determine whether tenant will be required to pay percentage rent, and if so:

    a. Amount of percentage rent.

    b. When rent commences.

    c. At what intervals it is payable.

    d. On what basis percentage rent will be calculated, for example, gross receipts of tenant.

    e. Whether percentage rent is in addition to, in lieu of, or an offset against, minimum rent.

3. Ascertain whether amount of basic or minimum rent will increase over lease's term, by any of the following:

a. Fixed dollar amounts at scheduled intervals.

b. Increased market value of premises.

c. Increases tied to Consumer Price Index or some other index for inflation.

4. Determine whether tenant will be required to post security deposit, and if so, in what amount.

§ 34D.117 Use of Premises

1. Determine whether tenant's use of premises will be limited to specific development or business, and if so, what business.

2. Determine whether tenant will have right to change its use of premises during lease's term, and if so, subject to which of the following:

a. With landlord's prior approval.

b. Without landlord's prior approval.

c. Any other conditions.

3. Ascertain whether there will be any specific restrictions on tenant's use, such as prohibitions against:

a. Nuisance, waste, and unlawful purposes.

b. Use or storage of hazardous materials and substances.

c. Insurance hazards.

§ 34D.118 Ownership of Improvements

NOTE:

One of the unique features of a ground lease is that the tenant owns the improvements during the lease's term, while the landlord continues to own the underlying land. When the lease terminates, most ground leases provide that title to the improvements reverts to the landlord [see § 34D.10[2]]. Responsibilities of the tenant toward the improvements during the lease term and at the expiration of the lease are matters to be agreed on by the parties. For example, some ground leases require the tenant to deliver the improvements intact at the end of the term, although others give the tenant the right to demolish economically obsolete improvements and the option to rebuild new improvements. A ground lease may also require the tenant to demolish and improve the improvements at the end of the lease term and to deliver the land to the landlord in its raw state.

1. During lease term, determine what tenant's responsibilities are if improvements are damaged or destroyed, such as:

a. Repair and rebuild.

b. Demolish and either rebuild or not rebuild.

c. Demolish and clear.

d. Do nothing.

2. At end of lease term (or earlier termination on tenant's default), determine whether:

a. Improvements must be delivered to landlord intact.

b. Tenant has right to remove improvements before that time.

§ 34D.119 Condemnation

1. For partial condemnation, determine:

    a. Whether lease will continue in effect as to any portion not condemned.

    b. Whether amount of rent payable will be reduced pro rata or on some other basis.

    c. Who will have obligation to do any necessary restoration.

2. Ascertain allocation of condemnation award, for example:

    a. Landlord and tenant will each recover award for its interests in lease.

    b. Landlord will receive entire award.

    c. Landlord will receive entire award, except that tenant will recover costs of removing fixtures and for amortized value of improvements made by tenant that are not removed.

1. Determine whether there will be any restrictions on tenant's right to assign lease, for example:

    a. Whether landlord's consent will be required.

2. Determine whether there will be any restrictions on tenant's right to sublet premises.

1. If tenant is to be granted option or right of first refusal to purchase premises [see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.264], determine the following:

a. When and how option or right may be exercised.

b. Purchase price stated either:
(1) As specific dollar amount; or

(2) By reference to a standard or a formula, for example:
(a) For option, property's fair market value at time option is exercised.

§ 34D.130 Representation of Both Parties to Lease

1. If requested to represent both parties to transaction:

a. Recommend that one party obtain separate counsel.

b. Determine whether or not potential for conflict exists.

2. If potential clients do not withdraw their request and do not appear to have conflicting or potentially conflicting interests, take both of the following steps [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310; Klemm v. Superior Court (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 893, 899, 142 Cal. Rptr. 509] :

a. Make full disclosure to each party of nature of representation of other party; and

b. Obtain written consent from both parties to arrangement before accepting employment.

PRACTICE TIP:
Representing Both Parties to a Lease Is Not Advised. It is impossible to see how there can be an effective waiver of a conflict of interest that would permit any attorney to represent both parties to a lease transaction even if that attorney's role was "limited" to drafting an already reached agreement. Any attorney who enters into such an arrangement is simply looking for major problems with either or both clients. It would be akin to representing both parties in a dissolution of marriage proceeding in which substantial interests were involved. By Benjamin Kaplan.

PRACTICE TIP: More on Conflicts of Interest. Lawsuits against attorneys based on

"conflicts of interest" are becoming more frequent. When a deal goes bad, some party is bound to impugn someone, with the attorney being the most likely target. Certain conflicts of interest may not be waivable. The fees involved in representing both parties to the transaction should more than justify the hiring of an independent ethics counsel to advise as to the propriety of the representation and, if appropriate, to draft the conflict of interest waivers. If it is the intention of the parties to "save" on attorneys' fees by employing the same counsel, then the parties should be willing to spring for the fees to have adequate disclosures made in respect to matters fundamental to the relationship. At the very least, the attorney should have an opinion by independent counsel of the propriety of proceeding where the interests of the parties are so fundamentally at variance. By Benjamin Kaplan.

§ 34D.131 Reviewing Escrow Arrangements

NOTE:
For the requirements and procedure for opening and closing a real property escrow, see Ch. 26, Real Property Escrows .

1. Participate in drafting, or review, escrow instructions to confirm that following matters are covered:

    a. Proration of taxes and utilities, if any.

    b. Deposit of loan instruments and commitments.

    c. Deposit of any prepaid rent, security deposit, escrow fees, closing costs, or other money required by ground lease or tenant's loan.

    d. Any other matters required by ground lease.

2. Confirm that instructions recite any conditions to close of escrow, for example:

    a. Funding of tenant's loan(s).

    b. Title insurance for tenant's lender and tenant.

    c. Landlord's subordination of existing encumbrance on land.

3. If term of lease is not to commence until escrow closes, authorize escrow agent to insert operative date in lease (and memorandum of lease) on close of escrow.

4. Instruct escrow agent to record memorandum of lease in recorder's office of county in which leased land is located [see § 34D.133].

5. Confirm that title insurance is issued at close of escrow.

NOTE:

The tenant's lender will require title insurance for its loan(s). The tenant should also obtain separate title insurance for its leasehold interest. The subject of title insurance is covered in Ch. 26A, Title Insurance .

PRACTICE TIP:

Escrow Practices. An escrow, whether it be a title company or escrow agent, is not there to protect your client. An attorney should not expect an escrow to do anything other than that which is provided in the usually prepared instructions, at least as to financial terms, on the escrow company's own forms. Therefore, the attorney should take very seriously his or her obligation to review proposed instructions before the client executes terms, and attempt to obtain the instructions in draft form as far in advance of the closing as is possible. For most major transactions, it is not unusual to pay a daily visit to the escrow officer handling the escrow if the office is not far away. Last minute panic reactions may be saved by ascertaining what is in the escrow file (to the extent it may be disclosed to you), with particular attention to the documents required for closing that the escrow has not received. Try to avoid closing dates that are in proximity to any dates that your funding is due to expire. It is good practice to send periodic confirming faxes to the escrow officer. Not only will this tend to move the escrow file to the top of the pile, but it will also instill in the escrow officer an impetus to close quickly and cleanly, if only not to have to address your faxes.

In addition, always instruct the escrow officer to provide you with certified copies of the documents that are recorded and/or "recorded as" conformed stamped copies. This simple expedient may save aggravation if the document is needed before it is returned to "the recording party." You may not, in any event, be representing "the recording party." By Benjamin Kaplan.

    a. Consistent with negotiated terms; and

    b. Legally sufficient.

§ 34D.133 Drafting and Execution of Lease; Recording Memorandum of Lease

1. Draft lease.

NOTE:
For a drafting guide for a ground lease, see Part D of this Transaction Guide.

2. Execute lease.

NOTE:
The execution requirements for a lease depend on whether the landlord or tenant is an individual or other type of legal entity. These requirements are discussed in the Transaction Guide to Ch. 34B, Residential Leases.

PRACTICE TIP:
Execution of Lease. There is a trap for the unwary in respect to the authorization of certain types of entity/owners to execute leases. By example only, a corporation as a party to a lease may require at least two signatures by corporate officers [see Corp. Code § 313], and real property owned by a husband and wife may require both their signatures [see Fam. Code § 1102(a)]. By Benjamin Kaplan.

3. Prepare and record Memorandum of Lease as follows:

a. If representing tenant who desires to impart constructive notice of its leasehold interest, prepare Memorandum of Lease for recording purposes [see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Offices Leases, § 34C.203, for discussion and sample Memorandum of Lease].

b. Execute Memorandum of Lease with acknowledgment and certification of signatures of executing parties by authorized offer [see Gov. Code § 27287].

NOTE:
The same execution requirements that apply to the lease apply to a Memorandum of Lease. For an outline of these requirements, see the Transaction Guide to Ch. 34B, Residential Leases.

c. Record Memorandum of Lease in county where property is located [Civ. Code §§ 1169, 1170].

PRACTICE TIP:
Recording and Notorizing Lease. Although it is more common to record a Memorandum of Lease rather than the entire lease itself, if it is the tenant's intention to have the lease in recordable form, then it must be notarized. By Benjamin Kaplan.

This Part is a checklist of provisions that an attorney may or should include in a ground lease for undeveloped land on which the tenant will construct improvements. For an example of a complete ground lease, see § 34D.200[2]. If the attorney is reviewing a lease prepared by another party, this list may be used to evaluate the sufficiency and scope of that lease. This Part includes cross-references to forms in Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases , because many of the same provisions are typically included in both a ground lease and any other type of nonresidential lease. The focus of the guide below is on provisions unique to a ground lease.

1. Begin lease with introductory paragraph or preamble setting forth all of the following [see Preamble and Recitals in § 34D.200[2]]:

a. Date of execution of lease.

b. Information concerning parties, including:
(1) Full names.

(2) Status and capacity, for example:
(a) California corporation.

(b) California limited partnership.

(c) Husband and wife.

(d) Unmarried man or woman.

c. Agreement of parties to lease.

2. Include legal description of land to be leased, either:

a. In body of lease; or

b. By attaching exhibit and incorporating it by reference [see Preamble and Recitals in § 34D.200[2]].

3. Recite fact that lease extends only to land and any described appurtenances, and not to improvements to be constructed by tenant on land [see § 34D.200[2], Section 1.01].

4. If desired, include clause stating general purpose of lease [see Preamble and Recitals in § 34D.200[2] (lease of land for purpose of constructing shopping center)].

§ 34D.141 Term of Lease

1. State length of lease term [see § 34D.200[2], Section 1.03].

NOTE:

Ground leases have a longer term than other types of nonresidential leases and commonly range from a minimum of 35 years to a maximum of 99 years. Before agreeing on a specific term, the parties should consult with the tenant's lender. When institutional lenders lend on the security of a leasehold interest, the term of the lease may be required to extend a designated number of years beyond the maturity date of the tenant's loan, for example, 10 years [see, e.g., Fin. Code § 1227 (banks)]. Also, the term of lease for certain types of property is limited [see § 34D.15[1]].

2. Describe when lease term is to commence, such as:

NOTE:

In most cases, the parties will elect not to have the term commence until the tenant's financing for construction of the improvements is obtained and escrow closes for the transaction. Since it is usually impossible to predict at the time the lease is drafted the particular date on which this will occur, a lease does not generally recite a specific date for its commencement. It is also unusual for a ground lease to postpone commencement of its term until completion of tenant improvements, although it is not uncommon for rent to be postponed until that time.

a. On specified date.

b. At close of escrow for ground lease transaction, after tenant's loan is approved [see § 34D.200[2], Section 1.03].

c. On completion of construction of improvements on land.

3. Specify whether tenant has any right to extend term, and if so [see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.212]:

a. When right may be exercised.

b. How right must be exercised.

c. Length of extended term.

d. Terms and conditions, including amount of rent, for extended term.

1. Provide for periodic rent under lease, specifying [see § 34D.200[2], Section 2.01]:

a. Amount.

b. Date of commencement.

c. At what intervals it is payable.

2. If fixed rent will escalate during term of lease, include provision that:

a. Rent increases to be based on:
(1) Stated dollar amounts; or

NOTE:
Many lenders prefer increases based on specific dollar amounts to project at the time the loan is made the amount of total rent payable over the term of the lease.

(2) Consumer price index or other index for inflation.

b. States intervals at which increases are to be determined and paid.

3. If tenant is required to pay percentage rent under lease, include following information [see § 34D.200[2], Section 2.02]:

a. Basis for calculation, for example, tenant's gross receipts.

b. Intervals for calculation and payment.

c. Percentage of amount calculated that must be paid to landlord.

d. When payment commences.

4. If tenant is required to post security deposit [see § 34D.200[2], Section 2.04; see also Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.220], state the following:

a. Amount of deposit.

b. Rights of landlord regarding use of deposit during lease term.

c. Obligation of tenant to restore any amount used by landlord during lease term.

d. Obligations of landlord for disposition of deposit on termination of lease.

5. Allocate responsibility for payment of the following:

NOTE:
A ground lease is usually a true net lease in which the tenant is required to pay all expenses normally associated with ownership, including those listed below [see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases*, § 34C.17*].

a. Property taxes [see § 34D.200[2], art. 4; see also Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.221].

§ 34D.143 Use of Premises

NOTE:

Because of the long-term nature of a ground lease, such a lease usually permits greater flexibility in use than do comparable provisions of other types of nonresidential leases. The tenant's lender, in addition to the tenant, will customarily bargain for maximum flexibility in use, since the lender may succeed to the tenant's interest under the lease. Provisions for use are related to the tenant's right under a ground lease, if any, to make alterations to or to demolish the improvements, and to the tenant's duty, if any, to rebuild improvements in the event of destruction [see § 34D.144]. When a landlord is entitled to percentage rent under the ground lease from the tenant's business operations, he or she may be less flexible in agreeing to changes in use by the tenant.

1. Describe particular purpose and use for which tenant is constructing improvements, for example:

a. Shopping center [see § 34D.200[2], Section 3.01].

b. Hotel.

c. Office building.

2. State whether tenant is permitted to change use during term of lease, and if so, describe any applicable conditions [see § 34D.200[2], Section 3.01], for example:

a. Use must be permitted by law and zoning then in effect.

b. Use must provide amount of percentage rent comparable to that provided by initial use.

c. Use must be approved in advance by landlord.

d. Change will be permitted only if premises are destroyed during lease term.

e. Change will be permitted only during last part of lease term.

3. Describe any restrictions on use, such as prohibitions against:

a. Waste, nuisance, or unlawful purpose [see § 34D.200[2], Section 3.03; see also Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.231].

b. Use or storage of hazardous materials and substances [see § 34D.18; see also Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.201[2], Section 4.01].

4. Set forth any affirmative rights (with any corresponding limitations) of tenant to use premises or improvements, for example:

a. Right to demolish or reconstruct improvements.

b. Right to petition governmental authorities for:
(1) Change in zoning.

(2) Use permits.

(3) Change in assessments or reassessments.

c. Right to enter into agreements for the premises that:

(1) Grant easements.

(2) Restrict use.

§ 34D.144 Tenant's Rights and Duties Relating to Improvements

NOTE:

Ground lease provisions governing the rights or duties of a tenant with regard to maintenance and repair of the improvements, alterations to the improvements, and damage to or destruction of the premises, are related to the lease provisions governing the tenant's use of the premises [see § 34D.143] and must therefore be consistent.

1. State that during lease term tenant is to have title to improvements constructed by tenant on land [see § 34D.200[2], Section 5.12].

NOTE:

To depreciate the improvements for tax purposes, the tenant must own the improvements [see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, ch. 191, Taxation of Tenants (Matthew Bender)].

2. Include provision that characterizes improvements as real property notwithstanding their separate ownership.

3. Set forth in detail tenant responsibilities for constructing new improvements on premises [see § 34D.200[2], art. 5].

NOTE:

In most ground leases, the tenant is responsible for performing the construction and for paying all costs and expenses. For alternative provisions making the landlord responsible for construction, see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.243.

4. Regarding maintenance of and repairs and alterations to improvements [see § 34D.200[2], art. 7]:

a. Describe affirmative obligations of tenant, for example:
(1) Obligation to repair and maintain premises throughout term of lease.

(2) Duty to perform minor or major renovations as required or at stated intervals.

NOTE:
If major renovations are permitted or required, the same standards and requirements for the initial construction of improvements should apply to the subsequent renovation.

(3) Obligation to comply with all applicable laws.

(4) Duty to keep premises free of mechanics' liens.

(5) Duty to complete any construction in timely manner.

b. Describe any remedies of landlord for failure by tenant to perform required affirmative acts, for example:

(1) Performance of required acts and reimbursement for cost by tenant.

(2) Termination of lease.

c. List any rights of tenant regarding alteration of improvements, for example:

(1) Right to remodel.

(2) Right to demolish improvements and either rebuild or not rebuild new replacement improvements.

d. Set forth any limitations on tenant's rights to alter improvements, for example:

(1) Landlord's consent will be required for alterations exceeding stated cost or affecting certain percentage of improvements.

(2) Any special restrictions applicable to last portion of lease term.

5. Regarding damage to or destruction of premises [see § 34D.200[2], art. 7], include the following:

a. Describe effect on lease of damage or destruction.

NOTE:
In the absence of lease provisions to the contrary, either party may terminate a lease if the leased premises are destroyed [Civ. Code §§ 1932(2), 1933(4); Harvey v. Weisbaum (1911) 159 Cal. 265, 267, 113 P. 656] . Absent a lease provision requiring either party to rebuild, neither party has an obligation to rebuild destroyed premises [see Mattal v. American Trust Co. (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 645, 647, 25 Cal. Rptr. 517] . However, the parties to a lease may agree that either one of the parties has the obligation to rebuild [see Glenn R. Sewell Sheet Metal, Inc. v. Loverde (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 666, 678, 75 Cal. Rptr.

889, 451 P.2d 721] . Under most ground leases, the tenant is required to rebuild if the premises are destroyed at any time during the lease's term, except possibly during the latter part of the term. The lease must clearly state this obligation; otherwise, the tenant has a right to terminate the lease if the premises are destroyed. The remainder of this section assumes that the tenant will have the obligation to rebuild.

b. Describe obligation of tenant to rebuild, including:

(1) Events giving rise to that obligation, for example:
(a) Damage or destruction from cause covered by insurance;

(b) Damage or destruction from cause not covered by insurance; or

(c) Either of above.

(2) Standards for rebuilding.

NOTE:
The lease provisions for the initial construction are usually made applicable to any rebuilding or repair.

(3) Commencement and completion dates.

(4) Effect on rent under lease.

c. Set forth any exceptions to tenant's obligation to rebuild.

NOTE:
For example, the tenant may be allowed to terminate the lease, rather than rebuild, after damage or destruction that occurs during the last part of the lease term [see § 34D.200[2], Section 7.04].

d. Describe disposition of insurance proceeds payable from damage or destruction, for example:

(1) If tenant is required to rebuild, include provision requiring proceeds to be used for repair or reconstruction rather than payment of tenant's loan.

(2) If tenant is not required to rebuild, include provision reflecting parties' agreement that proceeds will be:

(a) Divided between landlord and tenant;

(b) Paid entirely to landlord;

(c) Paid to tenant's lender to satisfy loan; or

(d) Otherwise disposed of.

PRACTICE TIP:
Naming Lender as Named Insured or Named Additional Insured. The lender should be named as a named insured or a named additional insured with appropriate notice provisions if there is a change in the terms of the policy or if a cancellation or termination notice should issue. By Benjamin Kaplan.

6. Specify rights and duties of parties on expiration or earlier termination of lease, for example:

a. Title to improvements remaining on land will automatically revert to landlord with no compensation to tenant [see § 34D.200[2], Section 5.12].

b. Tenant is required, at landlord's election, to remove any improvements and restore land to its original state.

c. Tenant has right, but not duty, to remove improvements.

NOTE:

Disposition of the improvements on expiration or earlier termination of the lease is a matter to be negotiated by the parties. For any termination of the ground lease occurring before the natural expiration of the lease term, for example, as a result of condemnation or the tenant's default, the lease usually requires delivery of the improvements intact since they constitute all or part of the lender's security. Whether delivery of the improvements intact at expiration of the lease term will benefit the landlord's property value depends on, among other factors, the age and condition of the improvements. By that time, the tenant's loan(s) on the property will usually have been paid off.

§ 34D.145 Tenant Financing

1. If security for tenant financing will be tenant's leasehold interest (to which landlord does not agree to subordinate its fee title interest), include the following:

a. Provision that expressly grants tenant the right to encumber its leasehold interest and improvements to be constructed by tenant [see § 34D.200[2], Section 6.01].

b. Any conditions applicable to tenant's right, for example:
(1) Tenant's mortgage must be subject to all provisions of ground lease, including all rights of landlord in lease.

(2) Notice of any mortgage or copies of mortgage and promissory note(s) secured by mortgage must be given to landlord.

(3) Any proceeds paid for damage or destruction to improvements must be used by tenant to repair or rebuild and not to pay tenant's mortgage.

2. If landlord agrees to join in tenant financing and subordinate its fee title interest [see § 34D.212], include the following provisions:

a. Landlord's agreement to subordinate its fee to specific loans of tenant, for example, construction and permanent loan for improvements to be constructed by tenant on premises.

b. Landlord's agreement to execute tenant's mortgage but not promissory note secured by mortgage for sole purpose of pledging landlord's fee title interest as security.

c. Landlord's agreement to execute documents and instruments required by tenant's lender or by title company insuring interest of tenant or tenant's lender to carry out agreed-on subordination.

d. Conditions that are applicable to landlord's agreement, for example:

(1) Terms of construction and permanent loan must meet specific requirements set forth in ground lease [see § 34D.212].

(2) Landlord is not required to subordinate to construction loan until tenant has binding commitment for permanent loan.

(3) Landlord will have no personal liability on tenant's mortgage or underlying promissory note.

(4) Landlord's agreement to subordinate extends only to financing for original construction, and not to subsequent refinancings or other loans by tenant during term of lease.

e. Specific provisions landlord requires to be included in tenant's mortgage (and promissory note(s) as applicable), for example:

(1) Any terms of construction and permanent loan described in ground lease.

(2) That landlord will have no personal liability on tenant's mortgage or underlying promissory note.

(3) That none of following may occur without prior written consent of landlord:
(a) Extension of loan due date;

(b) Future advances or additions to balance of original loan(s);

(c) Refinancing by tenant of loan; and

(d) Modifications to loan documents.

(4) That any proceeds paid for damage or destruction to improvements must be used by tenant to repair or rebuild and not to pay tenant's mortgage.

(5) That landlord must receive notice of any default or notice of sale.

(6) That landlord must have right to cure any tenant default that is curable.

3. State any limitations on landlord's right to encumber fee title after recording of original tenant financing [see § 34D.211].

NOTE:
If the ground lease permits the tenant to obtain subsequent financing over the term of the lease on the security of its leasehold interest, the landlord should be restricted from encumbering its fee title interest, since those encumbrances would then have priority over the tenant's subsequent financing. Some ground leases prohibit the landlord from encumbering its fee title during the ground lease's term, although others permit the encumbrances but require the landlord's agreement to subordinate the encumbrances to subsequent financing by the tenant. Problems of enforceability may exist for the latter method [see § 34D.212[1][e]].

4. If applicable, include landlord's agreement to consent to changes in ground lease required by tenant's lender, provided those changes do not substantially diminish rights or increase obligations of either party under lease.

NOTE:

Such a provision is useful when the parties draft or execute the lease before the time specific commitments for financing are obtained.

5. Include lender "protective" provisions required by specific lender involved [see § 34D.200[2], Sections 6.02-6.12], for example:

a. Agreement by landlord and tenant that ground lease may not be modified or amended without consent of lender.

b. Prohibition against cancellation of lease by tenant (for reason permitted in the lease, such as destruction of premises) without prior written consent of lender.

c. Requirement that notice of any default by tenant under ground lease be given promptly to lender and that lender be given an opportunity to cure default.

d. Agreement by landlord to execute new lease (containing same terms as original ground lease) with lender as ground tenant, at lender's election, on termination of lease for default or on foreclosure of lender's deed of trust.

e. Right of lender to foreclose or make assignment in lieu of foreclosure and right after foreclosure to freely assign or sublease.

f. Provision limiting lender's obligation to perform terms of lease only during its period of possession, that is, from the time it acquires leasehold interest until it assigns to successor.

g. Provision protecting interest of lender in insurance proceeds.

NOTE:

For a casualty that damages or destroys the improvements at any time except during the latter part of the lease term, the lender will usually agree to permit the proceeds to be applied toward the rebuilding if that is the agreement between landlord and tenant. However, for damage or destruction occurring during the latter part of the lease term, the lender may insist that proceeds be used to pay its loan balance.

h. Provision protecting interest of lender in event of condemnation.

NOTE:

Although the chances of condemnation during the lease term may be remote, lenders usually insist on adequate protective lease provisions under these circumstances [see § 34D.200[1][l]].

i. Agreement that there will be no merger of leasehold estate and fee estate in leased land if both interests are at any time acquired by same party unless lender expressly consents to such a merger [see 6424 Corp. v. Commercial Exchange Property, Ltd. (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 1221, 1223-1224, 217 Cal. Rptr. 803] .

j. Provisions permitting flexibility in use of premises.

k. If landlord's fee title interest will be subordinated to tenant financing, specific terms of tenant loans to which subordination is to apply.

l. Any other provisions required by specific lender.

6. If applicable, add provision authorizing landlord to terminate lease if tenant does not obtain financing by specified date [see § 34D.210].

NOTE:

With this type of provision, the landlord can arrange for alternative disposition of the land if the tenant fails to obtain financing within the specified period.

§ 34D.146 Condemnation

NOTE:

If the lease does not specify the effect that a total or partial condemnation of the premises will have on the lease and does not state the respective rights and obligations of the parties (including division of any condemnation award), these matters are determined by applicable law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1230.010 et seq. (Eminent Domain Law); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.160]. For discussion of that law, see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases*, § 34C.262[1]*.

For a checklist of condemnation provisions that should be considered for inclusion in a ground lease, see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases*, § 34C.151*. In addition to the items in that checklist, the parties to a ground lease must consider the interest of the lender in the event of condemnation, which may be controlling with regard to condemnation provisions ultimately included in the ground lease [see § 34D.200[2], art. 9].

§ 34D.147 Assignment and Subleasing

NOTE:

Assignment and subleasing provisions in a ground lease are usually more permissive than those in other types of nonresidential leases. The tenant needs increased flexibility due to the extremely long term of most ground leases, and the tenant's lender usually insists on flexibility since it may succeed to the tenant's interest under the lease in the event of the tenant's default. For lease provisions that prohibit or only conditionally permit assignment or subleasing, see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.260.

1. Set forth provision giving tenant right to assign interest in lease, subject to the following:

    a. Assignee being subject to all terms and conditions of ground lease.

    b. Any other conditions agreed on by parties [see § 34D.200[2], Section 10.01].

2. Add provision granting tenant right to sublease premises, subject to the following:

    a. Subtenant's agreement to attorn to lender in event of tenant's default.

NOTE:

In the context of a ground lease, "attornment" is an agreement by a subtenant to be bound directly to the ground landlord for the performance of all obligations under the sublease in the event of the ground tenant's default [see Rabkin & Johnson, CURRENT LEGAL FORMS WITH TAX ANALYSIS, ch. 23, Real Estate Leases (Matthew Bender)].

b. Any other conditions agreed on by parties [see § 34D.200[2], Section 10.03; see also § 34D.213].

§ 34D.148 Breach and Remedies for Breach

NOTE:

Provisions in a ground lease for a tenant's breach and the landlord's remedies are substantially the same as in any other type of nonresidential lease. For a list of generally applicable provisions, see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, §§ 34C.270, 34C.271. In a ground lease, however, the lender is granted certain rights in the event of a default by the tenant, such as the right to cure the tenant's default. These lender rights are discussed in § 34D.200[1][n].

§ 34D.200 Ground Lease

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a complete ground lease that requires the tenant to construct improvements, in the form of a shopping center, on the land leased from the landlord. It authorizes the tenant to secure financing for construction of these improvements by its leasehold interest in the ground lease. This method of financing is commonly referred to as "leasehold financing." For an alternative method of financing in which the landlord agrees to join in the tenant financing and to subordinate its fee interest to the tenant's loans (commonly referred to as "fee subordination"), see § 34D.212.

Alternative form provisions that may be used with this ground lease are set forth in §§ 34D.210-34D.213. For a discussion of the relative merits of using a ground lease, see §§ 34D.10 (nature of ground lease), 34D.11 (tenant's considerations), and 34D.12 (landlord's considerations).

[b] Term of Lease

The form in [2], below, provides for a fixed term of years [see [2], Section 1.03, below], which, for ground leases, is generally quite lengthy compared to other nonresidential leases. For certain types of property, the maximum length of the lease term is restricted by statute. Furthermore, if the security for the tenant's financing is the tenant's leasehold interest, regulatory law for certain institutional lenders may require that the term of the ground lease exceed the term of the loan by a stated period [see § 34D.15[1]].

[c] Rent and Security Deposit

The form in [2], below, requires the tenant to pay (1) base rent during the term of the lease, which escalates by stated amounts and at stated intervals throughout the lease's term [see [2*], Section 2.01, below*], and (2) percentage rent based on gross income from the tenant's operation of the shopping center [see [2*], Section 2.02, below*]. For discussion of other types of rent escalation clauses, see § 34D.15[2].

The form in [2], below, also requires the tenant to post a security deposit [see [2], Section 2.04, below]. For a discussion of the statutory requirements applicable to a security deposit for a nonresidential lease, see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.220[1].

[d] Use of Premises

In the form in [2], below, the tenant's use of the premises is limited to a commercial shopping center [see [2*], Section 3.01, below*]. The tenant cannot make any change in use without the landlord's prior written consent. When a tenant is required to pay percentage rent [see [2*], Section 2.02, below*], the landlord has an interest in limiting use to that on which the landlord's expectation for a certain amount of percentage rent is based.

The tenant is required to comply with all laws and ordinances affecting the property and improvements during the lease term [see [2*], Section 3.02, below*]. For a discussion of the legal effect of this provision, see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.241. Furthermore, the lease prohibits the tenant from engaging in any illegal uses and from committing waste or maintaining a nuisance on the premises [see [2*], Section 3.03, below*]. For a provision that prohibits a tenant from using or storing any hazardous or toxic substances on leased premises, see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.201[2], Section 4.01.

For further discussion of issues relating to the use of the leased premises, see § 34D.15[3].

[e] Taxes and Utilities

Because most ground leases are "net" leases [see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.17 (net leases)], the form in [2], below, requires the tenant to pay all real property taxes on the land and improvements for the duration of the lease term, in addition to all utilities for the leased premises [see Article 4, below]. It specifically provides that the tenant's obligation for taxes includes both general and special assessments and any increases in taxes, whether caused by an increase in assessed valuation or an increase in the tax rate [see [2*], Section 4.01, below* ; see also Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.221].

[f] Construction of Improvements

Under many ground leases the tenant is required to construct improvements on the premises. Article 5 of the lease in [2], below, describes the tenant's specific obligations with regard to preparation and approval of plans, changes in plans, construction requirements, compliance standards, and time for completion. These provisions are similar to those contained in the form in Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.243[2]. For discussion of construction issues that are equally applicable to nonresidential and ground leases, see § 34C.243[1].

[g] Financing

Article 6 of the ground lease in [2], below, authorizes what is commonly referred to as "leasehold financing" [see § 34D.13[1][a]]. The tenant is authorized to encumber its leasehold interest during the lease term to obtain loans to construct improvements on the premises or for other purposes [see [2*],Section 6.01, below*]. That authorization is subject only to the conditions that (1) the loans are subject to all terms of the ground lease, and (2) the tenant notify the landlord of any loan and deliver a copy of the corresponding security instrument to the landlord [see [2*], Section 6.01, below*]. For an alternative provision for use when the landlord agrees to subordinate its fee title interest in the premises to the tenant financing, see § 34D.212.

For further discussion of financing under a ground lease, see § 34D.13.

PRACTICE TIP:

Approval of Ground Lease by Lender. As a matter of practice, many ground leases are not approved by the leasehold lender before their execution by the landlord and tenant. For that reason, the tenant's attorney should consider including a provision in the ground lease that requires the landlord to agree to any changes in the lease required by the tenant's lender, provided the changes do not substantially diminish the rights or obligations of either tenant or landlord. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

[h] Lender Protection

Because different lenders may require different provisions to protect their security for tenant financing, coordination with the tenant's lender is crucial in drafting a ground lease [see § 34D.13[2], [3]]. This lease contains the following provisions, which are commonly required by lenders [see [2], art. 6, below]:

- The landlord is required to mail a copy to the lender of any notice mailed to the tenant, including any notice of default [see [2*], Section 6.02, below*];

- The landlord may not modify or cancel the lease without the lender's prior written consent [see [2], Section 6.03, below];

- The lender has the right to foreclose on its security interest or to accept an assignment in lieu of foreclosure, and in connection with either, the right to assign the leasehold interest to a third party [see [2], Sections 6.04, 6.07, below];

- The lender's duty to fulfill the tenant's duties under the lease is limited to the period the lender actually has possession or ownership [see [2], Section 6.04, below];

- The lender has the right to cure a default by the tenant [see [2*], Section 6.05, below*], but is not required to cure those defaults that are not curable (for example, a tenant's bankruptcy or insolvency);

PRACTICE TIP:

Lender's Role in Determining Tenant's Default. The tenant's attorney should be cognizant that any significant dispute between the landlord and tenant may turn into an incident of default with the lender. Tenant's attorneys should therefore be very careful in attempting to negotiate with the lender any limitations on what the lender may declare as a default. Otherwise, the tenant may find that the lender becomes the "handmaiden," if not enforcer, for the landlord in such a manner as to place the tenant at the will and whim of the landlord. By Benjamin Kaplan.

- The lender has the right to forestall a termination of the lease by the landlord by commencing foreclosure proceedings against the tenant (and paying all money due the landlord during pendency of the foreclosure proceeding) [see [2*], Section 6.06, below*];

- If the landlord terminates the lease with the tenant, the landlord must, if the lender makes a request within a stated period of time and cures the tenant default, enter into a new lease with the lender containing the same terms and conditions as the original ground lease [see [2], Section 6.08, below ; see also § 34D.17];

- The tenant's leasehold estate and the landlord's fee title will not merge, even though both are acquired by same person or entity, unless the lender consents [see [2], Section 6.09, below ; see also 6424 Corp. v. Commercial Exchange Property, Ltd. (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 1221, 1223-1224, 217 Cal.

Rptr. 803] ; and

- All rights of the lender described in the ground lease will accrue to any subsequent purchasers or assignees [see [2*], Section 6.11, below*].

This lease also provides that, if there is more than one lender and their rights under the lease conflict, the lender with the senior encumbrance will prevail [see [2*], Section 6.12, below*].

[i] Repairs and Maintenance

[i] Tenant's Repair Obligations

The lease in [2], below, requires the tenant to repair and maintain the premises throughout the term of the lease [see [2*], Section 7.01, below*], and to comply with all applicable laws affecting the premises, including those that require alterations, improvements, or additions [see [2*], Section 7.02, below*]. Both the landlord and the tenant's lender are likely to insist on this type of provision, since (1) the value of the landlord's property is enhanced by well-maintained improvements, (2) title to the improvements usually reverts to the landlord on the lease's termination, and (3) the lender's security interest consists of the improvements and the tenant's leasehold interest. For discussion of the respective duties of landlord and tenant under a nonresidential lease to comply with applicable governmental law and regulations (including those requiring repairs and improvements to leased property), see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.241[1].

[ii] Renovation of Improvements

Some ground leases require the tenant to renovate improvements at, for example, a shopping center or a hotel, at stated intervals throughout the lease's term. The purpose of this type of provision is so that the improvements on the premises can be maintained in a modern, first-class condition. When this provision is included, the requirements for the renovation are usually similar to those for the tenant's original construction. For illustrative provisions of this type, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, ch. 153, Drafting Commercial Leases (Matthew Bender).

[j] Destruction of Improvements

If the improvements are damaged or destroyed from any cause, the tenant is required to restore them to their condition as originally constructed by the tenant, subject to certain modifications permitted under the lease [see [2], Section 7.03, below]. However, if the damage or destruction is substantial (according to a formula in the lease) and occurs during a specified period at the end of the lease term, the tenant is excused from rebuilding and may instead terminate the lease [see [2], Section 7.04, below].

The application of insurance proceeds payable on destruction of the premises is likely to be a heavily negotiated point among the landlord, tenant, and lender. The landlord is likely to insist that the proceeds be used by the tenant for rebuilding, although the lender may prefer the proceeds be used to pay off its loan [see [k], below]. The provision set forth in this form is a compromise that may be acceptable to both parties. It provides that under circumstances described in the lease requiring the tenant to rebuild, the insurance proceeds are to be paid to the tenant for the express purpose of rebuilding [see [2*], Section 7.05, below*]. An alternative would be to require the proceeds be paid to an insurance trustee for distribution to the tenant during the rebuilding process. If circumstances permit the tenant to terminate the lease rather than rebuild, the proceeds must be used to pay off the lender's loan [see [2*], Section 7.05, below*].

[k] Insurance

The provisions for insurance in the lease form in [2], below, are typical of a "net" lease, that is, they require the tenant to maintain and pay the premiums for all required insurance on the premises [see [2], art. 8, below]. Unlike an ordinary commercial lease [see, e.g., Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.200[2]], the ground lease in [2], below, does not require that the landlord be named as an additional insured under the fire and extended coverage insurance, and does not state that the insurance is for the benefit of both landlord and tenant, since the improvements are owned by the tenant. The fire and casualty policy carried by the tenant is required to contain a standard lender's endorsement and cannot be canceled without prior notice to both the landlord and the lender [see [2], Section 8.03, below].

PRACTICE TIP:

Insurance Broker Should Review Insurance Provisions Before Lease Execution. Before the execution of any lease, the tenant should have its insurance broker review all the insurance clauses of the proposed lease. The tenant should then have the broker obtain a commitment from an insurance carrier that it will insure against the risks as outlined in the lease, in the amounts of coverage as specified in the lease, and at a premium as stated in advance of entering into the lease. Tenants often enter long term leases without the slightest attempt to investigate whether the coverage required under the lease is available, or whether they are going to have to fly to Lloyd's of London to obtain it at some significant premium. By Benjamin Kaplan.

Payment of insurance proceeds following an insured casualty is of significant concern to a lender [see Section 7.05 of form; see also [j], above]. Although a lender may prefer to have casualty proceeds used to reduce or pay off its loan balance, it may consent to a ground lease provision that requires the tenant to restore damaged improvements. However, the lender may insist that the tenant's obligation to restore be limited to the amount of insurance proceeds actually paid. If the landlord requires the tenant to restore the improvements under any and all circumstances, the lender may require that it be exempt from this provision and required to restore only to the extent of available insurance proceeds or a specific dollar amount. If there are excess insurance proceeds following a required restoration, the lender may require that the ground lease provide for their payment to the tenant and that the mortgage instrument securing the tenant's financing provide for their payment to reduce the lender's loan [see York, The Ground Lease and the Leasehold Mortgagee, 99 Banking L.J. 713, 713-714 (1982)].

For further discussion of general insurance considerations, see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.222[1].

Article 9 of the form in [2], below, sets forth the rights and obligations of the parties in the event the premises are totally or partially condemned. If a lease provides for the rights and obligations of the parties in the event that all or a portion of the property is acquired for public use, the lease provisions prevail [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.160]. Otherwise, the Eminent Domain Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1230.010 et seq.] and applicable case law govern the rights and obligations of the parties to the lease [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.160; see also § 34D.15[4]].

A "total taking," defined in the lease in [2], below, as a taking of fee title to all of the premises, all of the improvements, or all of the tenant's leasehold interest, results in termination of the lease [see [2*], Section 9.01, below*]. A partial taking is any taking less than a total taking. For certain partial takings, the tenant is required to restore any damage to remaining improvements and to replace taken improvements with new construction, to the extent permitted by then-applicable law [see [2*], Sections 9.02*, 9.03, below]. For more substantial takings, as defined in the lease, the tenant is permitted to terminate the lease [see [2], Section 9.04, below]. If the lease continues in effect after a partial taking, a provision is included that provides for a partial abatement of rent [see [2*], Section 9.06, below]. Section 9.05* of the form addresses the matter of how any condemnation award is to be divided between the landlord and the tenant.

PRACTICE TIP:

Consider Cost Allocation Provision as Part of Condemnation Award. Provision should be made when providing for the division of cost recovery to take into account the fees and costs which may be expended in obtaining the award in a contested action. There should be some apportionment method for the fees and costs incurred paralleling the division of the award or the compensation to be received by the respective parties. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[m] Assignment and Subletting

Unless a nonresidential lease includes a restriction on the assignment, sublease, or other voluntary or involuntary transfer or encumbrance of all or a part of a tenant's interest in the lease [see Civ. Code § 1995.020(e) ("transfer" defined)], a tenant's rights under the lease include unrestricted transfer of the tenant's interest in the lease [Civ. Code § 1995.210(b)]. Ambiguities in a restriction on transfer must be construed in favor of transferability [Civ. Code § 1995.220].

The form in [2], below, provides that an assignment by the tenant is subject to the landlord's consent, which may not be unreasonably withheld. However, the landlord is required to consent to certain assignees, that is, those with operational experience and financial qualifications described in the lease [see [2*], Section 10.01, below*]. This form also provides that the tenant has the right to sublease without the landlord's consent [see [2], Section 10.03, below].

For an alternative transfer provision, and discussion of restrictions on transfer [see Civ. Code §§ 1995.210-1995.270], see § 34D.213. For further discussion of transfer issues generally, see § 34D.15[5].

PRACTICE TIP:

Change of Ownership of Tenant Entity. It is not usual for a tenant to change the form of its business organization over the course of the lease, or to merge with or be purchased by another business entity. Provision should be made such that a change of business or merger would not trigger any clause limiting assignment of the lease. Often times this is expressed in terms of whether the "owners" still maintain a "controlling interest," which in some corporate contexts may be as little as 10 percent of the outstanding shares. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[n] Default and Remedies

The default and remedies provisions of the ground lease in [2], below [see [2], art. 11, below], are substantially the same as those for any nonresidential lease. For a discussion of those provisions, see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, §§ 34C.200[1][r]-[t], 34C.270, 34C.271. For discussion of the provisions used by lenders to protect their security interest on tenant default [see [2], art. 6, below], see [h], above. For detailed coverage and forms for use in unlawful detainer actions, see CALIFORNIA FORMS OF PLEADING AND PRACTICE, ch. 333, Landlord and Tenant: Eviction Actions (Matthew Bender).

Among the listed acts constituting default by the tenant is the voluntary or involuntary filing of bankruptcy [see [2], Section 11.03, below]. This provision is generally not enforceable under a federal bankruptcy proceeding [see 11 U.S.C. § 365(e)(1)]. However, to protect itself against a possible termination of the lease because of the tenant's bankruptcy, a lender usually requires a provision in the ground lease that requires the tenant to execute a new lease if the landlord terminates the lease with the tenant for the tenant's default [see § 34D.17].

[o] Miscellaneous Provisions

The form in [2], below, includes a provision for attorneys' fees [see [2*], Section 12.02, below*]. For an alternative provision and a discussion of the applicable law, see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases § 34C.274.

Also included is a provision requiring the parties to execute and record a memorandum of the ground lease [see [2*], Section 12.10, below*]. Even without this specific provision, the lender would require that the memorandum or lease itself be recorded. For a form of memorandum of lease and a discussion of its effect, see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.203.

Other miscellaneous provisions included in Article 12 of this form are the following:

- A force majeure clause [see [2*], Section 12.01, below* ; see also Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions , § 75.235];

- A provision describing the methods by which either party may give the other any notice required or permitted by the lease [see [2], Sections 12.03, 12.04, below ; see also Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions , § 75.294];

PRACTICE TIP:

Delivery Options Should Include Those With Tracking. To permit any party to serve a [critical] notice by the U.S. mail, first class, is to invite not only disaster, but possible wrongdoing. If one considers that the party mailing the notice need only swear that it has been done, and that many inadvertencies can occur which might result in the notice [innocently] never really being mailed, the potential consequences of permitting service by first class mail must be avoided. It is suggested that any notice, or particularly any notice which is a notice of default or an exercise of a right, be served either personally or by first class mail and express mail. This would then permit the tracking and verification of both deposit and delivery. By Benjamin Kaplan.

- A provision stating that California law will apply in interpreting the lease [see [2*], Section 12.05, below* ; see also Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions , § 75.273];

- A provision making the lease binding on successors of the parties [see [2*], Section 12.06, below* ; see also Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions , § 75.282];

- A partial invalidity clause [see [2*], Section 12.07, below* ; see also Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions , § 75.271];

- A sole and only agreement clause [see [2], Section 12.08, below ; see also Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions , § 75.270]; and

- A time is of the essence clause [see [2], Section 12.09, below ; see also Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements , § 23.200].

GROUND LEASE

Preamble and Recitals

This lease is entered into on _____[date] by and between _____[name(s)], _____[legal status, e.g., a California general partnership], referred to in this lease as "Landlord," and _____[name(s)], _____[legal status, e.g., a California corporation], referred to in this lease as "Tenant."

A. Landlord is the owner of certain real property in the County of _____, State of California, described on Exhibit "_____," which is attached and made a part of this lease (referred to in this lease as "the Premises").

B. Tenant desires to lease the Premises (together with certain appurtenant rights and easements) for the purpose of constructing a commercial shopping center ("the Shopping Center"), appurtenant parking areas, and other related improvements (collectively referred to in this lease as "the Improvements") in accordance with the agreement of the parties as set forth in this lease.

ARTICLE 1 LEASE OF PREMISES AND TERM OF LEASE

Agreement to Lease

Section 1.01. For and in consideration of the rents to be paid and covenants to be performed by Tenant under this lease, Landlord agrees to lease the Premises to Tenant, and Tenant agrees to lease the Premises from Landlord, on the terms and conditions set forth in this lease. Except as expressly otherwise provided in this lease, "the Premises" includes the real property plus any appurtenances and easements described in Exhibit "_____" of this lease [cross-refer to same exhibit referred to in Recital A, containing legal description of real property], exclusive of any Improvements now or subsequently located on the Premises, notwithstanding that any Improvements may or shall be construed as affixed to and as constituting part of the described Premises, and without regard to whether ownership of the Improvements is in Landlord or in Tenant.

Status of Title

Section 1.02. Title to the leasehold estate created by this lease is subject to all exceptions, easements, rights, rights-of-way, and other matters of record set forth on the Preliminary Title Report issued by _____[name of title company], dated _____, a copy of which is attached as Exhibit "_____."

Term of Lease

Section 1.03. The term of this lease shall be for a period of _____[number, e.g., 60 years] commencing on the date close of escrow for this transaction occurs (Escrow # _____[number], _____[name of escrow company, address, city, and state]) and continuing _____[same number as above, e.g., 60 years] after escrow closes, unless terminated earlier as provided in this lease.

ARTICLE 2 RENT

Minimum Rent

Section 2.01. In addition to any percentage rent required under Section 2.02 of this lease, Tenant agrees to pay to Landlord minimum annual rent ("Minimum Rent") for each year during the term of this lease in the following amounts:

(a) $_____ per year for each of the first _____[number, e.g., 10 years] of this lease;

(b) $_____ per year for the next _____[specify, e.g., 10 years] of this lease; and

(c) $_____ per year for the _____[specify, e.g., twenty-first] and each ensuing year of this lease.

[If tenant will not be required to pay minimum rent before completion of construction or for any other agreed-on period at commencement of lease term, add:]

Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this section, Tenant shall not be required to pay Minimum Rent for the period from the date the term of this lease commences and continuing through _____[specify date, or the date Tenant completes construction of the Shopping Center or the date Tenant commences the operation of business at the Shopping Center].

[CONTINUE]

Percentage Rent

Section 2.02 (a). In addition to the Minimum Rent, Tenant shall pay to Landlord each Calendar Year (defined in subsection (f), below) or partial Calendar Year during the term of this lease, _____[agreed-on percentage, e.g., 10] percent of Tenant's gross income [or specify other, e.g., gross sales] from operation of the Shopping Center [if percentage will apply only to amounts in excess of stated dollar amount, add: in excess of the sum of $_____ (agreed-on dollar amount, e.g., $2 million)].

(b) Gross income consists of the total, as determined under the cash method of accounting, of the following:

(1) All rents, participation in sales, deposits not refunded and not required to be refunded at a later date, and other amounts passing to Tenant chargeable or collected under any Sublease (defined in Section 10.03) of the Premises or of the Improvements; and

(2) An amount equal to the fair market rental value for any space occupied by Tenant.

(c) Percentage rent for one lease year is not subject to adjustment by reason of any transaction or adjustment occurring in any subsequent lease year. All amounts paid by Tenant for common area maintenance, insurance, taxes and similar charges (to the extent that Tenant is separately reimbursed for those amounts by its Subtenants [defined in Section 10.03] and that reimbursement is gross income) shall be excluded from gross income.

(d) On or before March 31 of each year during the term of this lease, beginning in the first year during which the Shopping Center has been open for business for at least _____[number, e.g., 90 days] preceding the March 31 date, Tenant shall, without notice or demand from Landlord, deliver to Landlord in the manner prescribed in this lease for giving notices, a statement prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles consistently applied and by a Certified Public Accountant acceptable to Landlord showing the gross income and deductions as provided in subsections (a) through (c) of this section for the preceding Calendar Year (defined in subsection (f), below) and shall simultaneously pay the percentage rent due Landlord under this lease for that calendar year. Payment shall be made in United States currency, or by check or other order as is then customary in business transactions and is otherwise acceptable to Landlord in its reasonable discretion. Delivery by mail or other means shall be deemed made in accordance with the definition of delivery set forth in this Lease.

(e) Tenant shall keep accurate records of the gross income and deductions as provided in subsections (a) through (c) of this section. All records relating to the management, operation, maintenance, repair, construction, or alteration of, or addition to the Premises and Improvements shall be kept at the principal business office of Tenant for not less than _____[number, e.g., three years] after delivery of the required annual report. Landlord shall have the right, at its own cost and at any reasonable time and from time to time after giving prior written notice to Tenant, to do or cause to be done any of the following: to audit the records or to cause an audit of the records to be made; to make abstracts from the records; to make copies of any or all of the records; and to examine and make copies of any or all Subleases. Tenant shall make all records specified in the notice available at the time specified in the notice, if reasonable, and at the place where the records are to be kept in accordance with this section. All information obtained by Landlord or otherwise obtained under the percentage rent provisions of this lease shall be treated as confidential except in any litigation or arbitration proceedings between Landlord and Tenant or Landlord and any Subtenant, concessionaire, or licensee. However, Landlord may divulge the information to a prospective buyer or encumbrancer of the Premises or of Landlord's interest in the lease or to a governmental agency demanding the information. If the audit discloses that the gross income was understated, Tenant shall immediately pay the additional Percentage Rent to Landlord, together with interest on the additional amount from the date it was due at the maximum interest rate then permitted by law, and in addition, if the error was in excess of _____[agreed on percentage, e.g., 2 percent], Tenant shall pay Landlord's reasonable audit costs.

(f) For purposes of computing and paying Percentage Rent under this lease, a "Calendar Year" shall be considered to begin on the first day of January of the year in which the Shopping Center is open for business and each subsequent anniversary date of the beginning of the first Calendar Year. Partial years preceding the first Calendar Year and following the last full Calendar Year of the term of this lease, for purposes of computing and paying Percentage Rent, shall be included in and with the nearest whole Calendar Year.

Time and Place for Payment of Rent

Section 2.03. All Minimum Rent provided for in Section 2.01 of this lease shall be paid by Tenant on a monthly [or quarterly] basis on the first day of each calendar month [or quarter]. All Percentage Rent shall be paid at the times set forth in Section 2.02. All rent required under this lease (Minimum and Percentage) shall be paid to Landlord at _____[street address and city], California, or any other place or places that Landlord may designate by written notice to Tenant.

Security Deposit

Section 2.04. Tenant has, contemporaneously with the execution of this lease, deposited with Landlord a security deposit ("the Security Deposit") in the sum of $_____, receipt of which is acknowledged by Landlord, to be held and applied by Landlord in the following manner:

(a) If, at any time during the term of this lease, any of the rent payable by Tenant to Landlord under this lease should be overdue and unpaid, or if any other sums payable by Tenant to Landlord under the terms of this lease should be overdue and unpaid, Landlord may, at Landlord's option, appropriate and apply any portion of the Security Deposit, up to the whole amount of that deposit, to the payment of the overdue rent or sums. In the event of any such appropriation and application by Landlord, Tenant shall promptly, on receipt of written demand by Landlord, restore the amount so appropriated or applied to the Security Deposit. Tenant's failure to do so within _____[number] days after receipt of the written demand by Landlord, shall constitute a breach of this lease by Tenant.

(b) Should Tenant, at any time during the term of this lease, be in default in the performance of any of the terms, covenants, and conditions of this lease, Landlord may, after terminating this lease, appropriate and apply any portion of the Security Deposit, up to the whole amount of the Security Deposit, that may be required to compensate Landlord for damages caused by Tenant's breach to the payment of those damages to Landlord.

(c) Should Tenant fully and faithfully perform all the terms, covenants, and conditions of this lease, including the prompt payment of rent as required, Landlord shall, on expiration or earlier termination of this lease, return the full amount of the Security Deposit without interest to Tenant.

No Partnership or Joint Venture

Section 2.05. Nothing in this lease shall be construed to render Landlord in any way or for any purpose a partner, joint venturer, or associate in any relationship with Tenant other than that of Landlord and Tenant, nor shall this lease be construed to authorize either to act as agent for the other.

ARTICLE 3 USE OF PREMISES

Permitted Use

Section 3.01. Tenant shall use the Premises solely for the purpose of constructing, maintaining, and leasing for profit a first-class commercial Shopping Center. Tenant shall not change the use of the Premises without first obtaining the written consent of Landlord. Tenant shall use its best efforts to use and permit use of the Premises for purposes permitted by this Section 3.01, which in Tenant's reasonable opinion will maximize gross income (defined in Section 2.02(b)).

Compliance With Laws

Section 3.02. Tenant shall, at Tenant's own cost and expense, comply with all statutes, ordinances, regulations, and requirements of all governmental entities, both federal and state and county or municipal, including those requiring capital improvements to the Premises or Improvements, relating to any use and occupancy of the Premises (and specifically not limited to any particular use or occupancy by Tenant), whether those statutes, ordinances, regulations, and requirements are now in force or are subsequently enacted. If any license, permit, or other governmental authorization is required for the lawful use or occupancy of the Premises or any portion of the Premises, Tenant shall procure and maintain it throughout the term of this lease. The judgment of any court of competent jurisdiction, or the admission by Tenant in a proceeding brought against Tenant by any government entity, that Tenant has violated any such statute, ordinance, regulation, or requirement shall be conclusive as between Landlord and Tenant and shall constitute grounds for termination of this lease by Landlord.

Prohibited Uses

Section 3.03. Tenant shall not use or permit the Premises or any portion of the Premises to be improved, developed, used, or occupied in any manner or for any purpose that is in any way in violation of any valid law, ordinance, or regulation of any federal, state, county, or local governmental agency, body, or entity. Furthermore, Tenant shall not maintain, commit, or permit the maintenance or commission of any nuisance as now or hereafter defined by any statutory or decisional law applicable to the Premises or any part of the Premises.

ARTICLE 4 TAXES AND UTILITIES

Tenant to Pay Taxes

Section 4.01. Tenant shall pay during the term of this lease, without abatement, deduction, or offset, any and all real and personal property taxes, general and special assessments, and other charges (including any increase caused by a change in the tax rate or by a change in assessed valuation) of any description levied or assessed during the term of this lease by any governmental agency or entity on or against the Premises, the Improvements located on the Premises, personal property located on or in the Premises or Improvements, and the leasehold estate created by this lease.

Proration of First and Last Year Taxes

Section 4.02. Notwithstanding the provisions of Section 4.01 of this lease, all taxes, assessments, or other charges levied or assessed during the tax years in which the term of this lease commences and ends shall be prorated between Landlord and Tenant as of 12:01 A.M. on the date the term commences and on the date the term ends, respectively, on the basis of tax years that commence on July 1 and end on June 30 of each year. Landlord shall pay the taxes, assessments, or other charges for the year in which the term of this lease commences and Tenant shall promptly, on service of written request by Landlord, reimburse Landlord for Tenant's share of those taxes, assessments, or other charges. Tenant shall pay the taxes, assessments, and other charges for the year in which this lease is to end; and Landlord shall promptly, on service of written request by Tenant, reimburse Tenant for Landlord's share of those taxes, assessments, and other charges.

Separate Assessment of Leased Premises

Section 4.03. Should the Premises be assessed and taxed with or as part of other property owned by Landlord before the commencement of the term of this lease, Landlord shall arrange with the taxing authorities to have the Premises taxed and assessed as a separate parcel distinct from any other real or personal property owned by Landlord. Should the Premises be assessed and taxed for the year in which this lease is to commence with or as part of other property owned by Landlord, the share of the taxes, assessments, or other charges for which Tenant is liable to pay under Section 4.02 shall be determined as follows: Tenant shall pay an amount equal to that portion of the taxes, assessments, and other charges that bears the same ratio to the total of the taxes, assessments, and other charges as the ground area of the Premises bears to the ground area of the total taxed property.

Payment Before Delinquency

Section 4.04. Any and all taxes and assessments and installments of taxes and assessments required to be paid by Tenant under this lease shall be paid by Tenant at least _____[number, e.g., 10 days] before each such tax, assessment, or installment of tax or assessment becomes delinquent. [On the written request of Landlord,] Tenant shall deliver to Landlord the official and original receipt evidencing the payment of any taxes, assessments, and other charges required under this Article [or Tenant shall retain at its sole cost and expense for the term of this lease a tax service to notify Landlord whether the taxes, assessments, and other charges have been paid by Tenant as required under this Article].

Taxes Payable in Installments

Section 4.05. Should any special tax or assessment be levied on or assessed against the Premises that may be either paid in full before a delinquency date within the term of this lease or paid in installments over a period either within or extending beyond this lease, Tenant shall have the option of paying the special tax or assessment in installments. The fact that the exercise of the option to pay the tax or assessment in installments will cause the Premises to be encumbered with bonds or will cause interest to accrue on the tax or assessment is immaterial and shall not interfere with the free exercise of the option by Tenant. Should Tenant exercise the option to pay any such tax or assessment in installments, Tenant shall be liable to pay only those installments becoming due during the term of this lease. Landlord shall cooperate with Tenant and on written request of Tenant execute or join with Tenant in executing any instruments required to permit any such special tax or assessment to be paid in installments.

Contest of Tax

Section 4.06. Tenant shall have the right to contest, oppose, or object to the amount or validity of any tax, assessment, or other charge levied on or assessed against the Premises or any part of the Premises; provided, however, that the contest, opposition, or objection must be filed before the tax, assessment, or other charge at which it is directed becomes delinquent and that written notice of the contest, opposition, or objection must be given to Landlord at least _____[number, e.g., 10 days] before the date the tax, assessment, or other charge becomes delinquent. Landlord shall, on written request of Tenant, join in any such contest, opposition, or objection if Tenant determines that joinder is necessary or convenient for the proper prosecution of the proceedings. Tenant shall be responsible for and shall pay all costs and expenses in any contest or legal proceeding instituted by Tenant. In no event shall Landlord be subjected to any liability for costs or expenses connected to any contest by Tenant, and Tenant agrees to indemnify and hold Landlord harmless from any such costs and expenses. Furthermore, no such contest, opposition, or objection shall be continued or maintained after the date the tax, assessment, or other charge at which it is directed becomes delinquent unless Tenant has done one of the following:

(a) Paid the tax, assessment, or other charge under protest before its becoming delinquent;

(b) Obtained and maintained a stay of all proceedings for enforcement and collection of the tax, assessment, or other charge by posting a bond or other security required by law for such a stay; or

(c) Delivered to Landlord a good and sufficient surety bond in an amount specified by Landlord and issued by a bonding corporation licensed to do business in California, conditioned on the payment by Tenant of the tax, assessment, or charge together with any fines, interest, penalties, costs, and expenses that may have accrued or been imposed thereon within 30 days after final determination of Tenant's contest, opposition, or objection to the tax, assessment, or other charge.

Tax Returns and Statements

Section 4.07. Tenant shall, as between Landlord and Tenant, have the duty of attending to, preparing, making, and filing any statement, return, report, or other instrument required or permitted by law in connection with the determination, equalization, reduction, or payment of any taxes, assessments, or other charges that are or may be levied on or assessed against the Premises, the Improvements located on the Premises, personal property located on or in the Premises or Improvements, and the leasehold estate created by this lease.

Tax Hold-Harmless Clause

Section 4.08. Tenant shall indemnify and hold Landlord and Landlord's property, including the Premises and any Improvements now or subsequently located on the Premises, free and harmless from any liability, loss, or damage resulting from any taxes, assessments, or other charges required by this Article to be paid by Tenant and from all interest, penalties, and other sums imposed thereon and from any sales or other proceedings to enforce collection of any such taxes, assessments, or other charges.

Utilities

Section 4.09. Tenant shall pay or cause to be paid, and hold Landlord and Landlord's property including the Premises free and harmless from, all charges for the furnishing of gas, water, electricity, telephone service, and other public utilities to the Premises during the lease's term and for the removal of garbage and rubbish from the Premises during the term of this lease.

Payment by Landlord

Section 4.10. Should Tenant fail to pay within the time specified in this Article any taxes, assessments, or other charges required by this Article to be paid by Tenant, Landlord may, without notice to or demand on Tenant, pay, discharge, or adjust that tax, assessment, or other charge for the benefit of Tenant. In that event, Tenant shall promptly on written demand of Landlord reimburse Landlord for the full amount paid by Landlord in paying, discharging, or adjusting that tax, assessment, or other charge together with interest thereon at the then-maximum legal rate from the date of payment by Landlord until the date of repayment by Tenant. If this Article does not specify the time within which Tenant must pay any charge required by this Article, Tenant shall pay that charge before it becomes delinquent.

ARTICLE 5 CONSTRUCTION BY TENANT

Duty to Construct

Section 5.01. Tenant shall, at Tenant's sole cost and expense, construct or cause to be constructed on the Premises, a first-class regional retail Shopping Center in the manner and according to the terms and conditions specified in this Article.

Requirement of Landlord's Written Approval

Section 5.02. No structure or other improvement of any kind shall be constructed on the Premises unless and until the plans, specifications, and proposed location of that structure or improvement have been approved in writing by Landlord. Furthermore, no structure or other improvement shall be constructed on the Premises that does not comply with plans, specifications, and locations approved in writing by Landlord.

Preparation and Submission of Plans

Section 5.03. Tenant shall, at Tenant's own cost and expense, engage a licensed architect or engineer to prepare plans and specifications for the Shopping Center and shall submit the following to Landlord for approval:

(a) Within _____[number] days after execution of this lease, two copies of the following:

(1) Drawings and materials in the form of plans, elevations, sections, and rendered perspectives sufficient to convey the architectural design of the Shopping Center to Landlord; and

(2) A statement of estimated construction costs for the Shopping Center prepared by the engaged architect or engineer.

(b) Within _____[number] days after approval by Landlord of the items specified in subsection (a) of this Section and the obtaining by Tenant of any variance permits, use permits, or rezoning required for the Shopping Center, two copies of the following:

(1) Detailed working drawings, plans, and specifications for the Shopping Center; and

(2) A revised statement of estimated construction costs for the Shopping Center prepared by the engaged architect or engineer.

Landlord's Approval or Rejection of Plans

Section 5.04. Within _____[number] days after receipt by Landlord of any of the documents submitted to Landlord for approval under Section 5.03 of this lease, Landlord shall either approve those documents by endorsing Landlord's approval on each such document and returning one set of the documents to Tenant, or Landlord shall give written notice to Tenant of any objections Landlord may have to those documents. Landlord's failure to give written notice to Tenant within that _____-day period of any objections Landlord may have to the documents shall constitute approval of the documents by Landlord. Within _____[number] days after service on Tenant of the written notice of Landlord's objections, Tenant may deliver corrective amendments to the documents to Landlord and Landlord shall, within _____[number] days after receiving the corrective amendments, serve written notice on Tenant of Landlord's approval or rejection of the documents as so amended. Failure of Landlord to serve written notice on Tenant within that _____-day period after receipt of the corrective amendments shall constitute approval by Landlord of the documents as so amended.

Changes in Plans

Section 5.05. After approval by Landlord of the documents pertaining to the Shopping Center described in Section 5.03(b) of this lease, any substantial change in the plans or specifications for the Shopping Center shall be approved by Landlord. For purposes of this Section, "substantial change" means one that materially changes the exterior appearance of the Shopping Center or one that results in a decrease in construction costs of $_____[amount, e.g., 50,000] or more. Landlord's failure to give written notice to Tenant of any objections Landlord may have to any proposed changes within _____[number] days after a written statement of the proposed changes has been given to Landlord by Tenant shall constitute Landlord's approval of the changes. Minor changes in work or materials not constituting a substantial change need not be approved by Landlord but a copy of the altered plans and specifications reflecting those changes shall be given to Landlord.

All Work on Written Contract

Section 5.06. All work required in the construction of the Shopping Center, including any site preparation work, landscaping work, and utility installation work, as well as actual construction work on the Shopping Center, shall be performed only by competent contractors licensed under the laws of the State of California and shall be performed in accordance with written contracts with those contractors. Each such contract shall provide that the final payment under the contract due to the contractor shall be in an amount equaling at least _____[specify percentage, e.g., 10 percent] of the full amount payable under the contract and shall not be paid to contractor until whichever of the following last occurs:

(a) The expiration of 35 days from the date of recording by Tenant as owner of a Notice of Completion of the Shopping Center, Tenant agreeing to record that Notice of Completion promptly within the time specified by law for the recording of that notice; or

(b) The settlement and discharge of all liens of record claimed by persons who supplied either labor or materials for the construction of the Shopping Center.

Performance and Lien Bonds

Section 5.07. Each contractor engaged by Tenant to perform any services for construction of the Shopping Center, including any construction, site preparation, utility installation, landscaping, or parking lot construction services, shall furnish to Tenant, who shall deliver copies of both of the following to Landlord, at the contractor's own expense at the time of entering a contract with Tenant for those services:

(a) A bond issued by a corporate surety authorized to issue surety insurance in California in an amount equal to _____[specify percentage, e.g., 100 percent] of the contract price payable under the contract securing the faithful performance by the contractor of its contract with Tenant; and

(b) A bond issued by a corporate surety authorized to issue surety insurance in California in an amount equal to _____[specify percentage, e.g., 50 percent] of the contract price payable under the contract securing the payment of all claims for the performance of labor or services on, or the furnishing of materials for, the performance of the contract.

Compliance With Law and Standards

Section 5.08. The Shopping Center shall be constructed, all work on the Premises shall be performed, and all buildings or other improvements on the Premises shall be erected in accordance with all valid laws, ordinances, regulations, and orders of all federal, state, county, or local governmental agencies or entities having jurisdiction over the Premises; provided, however, that any structure or other improvement erected on the Premises, including the Shopping Center, shall be deemed to have been constructed in full compliance with all such valid laws, ordinances, regulations, and orders when a valid final Certificate of Occupancy entitling Tenant and subtenants of Tenant to occupy and use the structure or other improvement has been duly issued by proper governmental agencies or entities. All work performed on the Premises under this lease, or authorized by this lease, shall be done in a good workmanlike manner and only with new materials of good quality and high standard.

Time for Completion

Section 5.09. Tenant shall cause construction of the Shopping Center to be commenced no later than _____[number] days after approval by Landlord of the documents described in Section 5.03(b) of this lease, shall then cause construction of the Shopping Center to be diligently pursued without unnecessary interruption, and shall cause the Shopping Center to be completed and ready for occupancy not later than _____[number] days after commencement of its construction. Tenant shall be excused for any delays in construction or commencement of construction caused by the act of Landlord, the act of any agent of Landlord, the act of any governmental authority, the act of any public enemy, acts of God, the elements, war, war defense conditions, litigation, strikes, walkouts, or other causes beyond Tenant's control. Tenant shall, however, use reasonable diligence to avoid any such delay and to resume construction as promptly as possible after the delay.

Mechanics' Liens

Section 5.10. At all times during the term of this lease, Tenant shall keep the Premises and all Improvements now or hereafter located on the Premises free and clear of all liens and claims of liens for labor, services, materials, supplies, or equipment performed on or furnished to the Premises. Should Tenant fail to pay and discharge or cause the Premises to be released from any such lien or claim of lien within _____[specify, e.g., 20 days] after service on Tenant of written request from Landlord to do so, Landlord may pay, adjust, compromise, and discharge any such lien or claim of lien on any terms and in any manner that Landlord may deem appropriate. In that event, Tenant shall, on or before the first day of the next calendar month following any such payment by Landlord, reimburse Landlord for the full amount paid by Landlord in paying, adjusting, compromising, and discharging that lien or claim of lien, including any attorneys' fees or other costs expended by Landlord, together with interest at the then-maximum legal rate from the date of payment by Landlord to the date of repayment by Tenant.

Zoning and Use Permits

Section 5.11. Should Tenant deem it necessary or appropriate to obtain any use permit, variance, or rezoning of the Premises to construct or operate the Shopping Center, Landlord agrees to execute any documents, petitions, applications, and authorizations that may be necessary or appropriate and hereby appoints Tenant as Landlord's attorney in fact to execute in the name and on behalf of Landlord any such documents, petitions, applications, or authorizations; provided, however, that any such permits, variances, or rezoning shall be obtained at the sole cost and expense of Tenant and Tenant agrees to protect and save Landlord and the property of Landlord, including the Premises, free and harmless from any such cost and expense.

Ownership of Improvements

Section 5.12. Title to all Improvements, including the Shopping Center, to be constructed on the Premises by Tenant shall be owned by Tenant until expiration of the term or earlier termination of this lease. All Improvements, including the Shopping Center, on the Premises at the expiration of the term or earlier termination of this lease shall, without compensation to Tenant, then automatically and without any act of Tenant or any third party become Landlord's property. Tenant shall surrender the Improvements to Landlord at the expiration of the term or earlier termination of this lease, free and clear of all liens and encumbrances, other than those, if any, permitted under this lease or otherwise created or consented to by Landlord. Tenant agrees to execute, acknowledge, and deliver to Landlord any instrument requested by Landlord as necessary in Landlord's opinion to perfect Landlord's right, title, and interest to the Improvements and the Premises.

ARTICLE 6 ENCUMBRANCE OF LEASEHOLD ESTATE

Tenant's Right to Encumber

Section 6.01. Tenant may, at any time and from time to time during the term of this lease, encumber to any institutional lender regulated by state or federal authority (referred to in this lease as "Lender"), by deed of trust or mortgage or other security instrument, all of Tenant's interest under this lease and the leasehold estate hereby created in Tenant (referred to in this lease as a "Leasehold Encumbrance") for any purpose or purposes without the consent of Landlord. However, no Leasehold Encumbrance incurred by Tenant in accordance with this section shall, and Tenant shall not have power to incur any encumbrance that shall, constitute in any way a lien or encumbrance on Landlord's fee interest in the Premises. Any Leasehold Encumbrance shall be subject to all covenants, conditions, and restrictions set forth in this lease and to all rights and interests of Landlord, except as is otherwise provided in this lease. Tenant shall give Landlord prior written notice of any Leasehold Encumbrance, together with a copy of the deed of trust, mortgage, or other security interest evidencing the Leasehold Encumbrance.

Notice to and Service on Lender

Section 6.02. Landlord shall mail to any Lender who has given Landlord written notice of its name and address, a duplicate copy of any and all notices Landlord may from time to time give to or serve on Tenant in accordance with or relating to this lease, including but not limited to any notice of default, notice of termination, or notice regarding any matter on which Landlord may predicate or claim a default. Any notices or other communications permitted by this or any other section of this lease or by law to be served on or given to Lender by Landlord shall be deemed duly served on or given to Lender when deposited in the United States mail, first-class postage prepaid, addressed to Lender at the last mailing address for Lender furnished in writing by Lender to Landlord.

No Modification Without Lender's Consent

Section 6.03. For as long as there is any Leasehold Encumbrance in effect, Tenant and Landlord hereby expressly stipulate and agree that they will not modify this lease in any way nor cancel this lease by mutual agreement without the written consent of Lender having that Leasehold Encumbrance.

Right of Lender to Realize on Security

Section 6.04. A Lender with a Leasehold Encumbrance shall have the right at any time during the term of this lease and the existence of the encumbrance to do both of the following:

(a) Any act or thing required of Tenant under this lease, and any such act or thing done and performed by Lender shall be as effective to prevent a forfeiture of Tenant's rights under this lease as if done by Tenant; and

(b) Realize on the security afforded by the leasehold estate by foreclosure proceedings, accepting an assignment in lieu of foreclosure, or other remedy afforded in law or in equity or by the security instrument evidencing the Leasehold Encumbrance (referred to in this lease as "the Security Instrument"), and

(1) To transfer, convey, or assign the title of Tenant to the leasehold estate created by this lease to any purchaser at any foreclosure sale, whether the foreclosure sale is conducted under court order or a power of sale contained in the Security Instrument, or to an assignee under an assignment in lieu of foreclosure; and

(2) To acquire and succeed to the interest of Tenant under this lease by virtue of any foreclosure sale, whether the foreclosure sale is conducted under a court order or a power of sale contained in the Security Instrument, or by virtue of an assignment in lieu of foreclosure.

The Lender or any person or entity acquiring the leasehold estate shall be liable to perform Tenant's obligations under this lease only during the period, if any, in which that entity or person has ownership of the leasehold estate or possession of the Premises.

Right of Lender to Cure Defaults

Section 6.05. For as long as there is in effect any Leasehold Encumbrance, before Landlord may terminate this lease because of any default under or breach of this lease by Tenant, Landlord must give written notice of the default or breach to Lender and afford Lender the opportunity after service of the notice to do one of the following:

(a) Cure the breach or default within _____[number] days after expiration of the time period granted to Tenant under this lease for curing a default, when the default can be cured by the payment of money to Landlord or some other person;

(b) Cure the breach or default within _____[number] days after expiration of the time period granted to Tenant under this lease for curing a default, when the breach or default must be cured by something other than the payment of money and can be cured within that time; or

(c) Cure the breach or default in any reasonable time that may be required when something other than money is required to cure the breach or default and cannot be performed within _____[specify same number recited in subparagraph (b), above] days after expiration of the time period granted to the tenant under this lease for curing a default, provided that acts to cure the breach or default are commenced within that time period after service of notice of default on Lender by Landlord and are thereafter diligently continued by Lender.

Foreclosure in Lieu of Curing Default

Section 6.06. Notwithstanding any other provision of this lease, a Lender under a Leasehold Encumbrance may forestall termination of this lease by Landlord for a default under or breach of this lease by Tenant by commencing proceedings to foreclose the Leasehold Encumbrance. The proceedings so commenced may be for foreclosure of the Leasehold Encumbrance by order of court or for foreclosure of the Leasehold Encumbrance under a power of sale contained in the Security Instrument. The proceedings shall not, however, forestall termination of this lease by Landlord for the default or breach by Tenant unless all of the following conditions are met:

(a) The proceedings are commenced within _____[number] days after service on Lender of the notice described in Section 6.05 of this lease;

(b) The proceedings are, after having been commenced, diligently pursued in the manner required by law to completion; and

(c) Lender keeps and performs all of the terms, covenants, and conditions of this lease requiring the payment or expenditure of money by Tenant until the foreclosure proceedings are complete or are discharged by redemption, satisfaction, payment, or conveyance of the leasehold estate to Lender.

Assignment Without Consent on Foreclosure

Section 6.07. A transfer of Tenant's leasehold interest under this lease to any of the following shall not require the prior consent of Landlord:

(a) A purchaser at a foreclosure sale of the Leasehold Encumbrance, whether the foreclosure sale is conducted under court order or a power of sale in the instrument creating the encumbrance, provided Lender under the Leasehold Encumbrance gives Landlord written notice of the transfer, including the name and address of the purchaser and the effective date of the transfer;

(b) An assignee of the leasehold estate of Tenant under an assignment in lieu of foreclosure, provided Lender under the Leasehold Encumbrance gives Landlord written notice of the transfer, including the name and address of the assignee and the effective date of the assignment; or

(c) A purchaser or assignee of the purchaser at a foreclosure sale of the Leasehold Encumbrance or of the assignee of the leasehold estate of Tenant acquired under an assignment in lieu of foreclosure, provided the purchaser or assignee delivers to Landlord its written agreement to be bound by all of the provisions of this lease.

New Lease to Lender

Section 6.08. Notwithstanding any other provision of this lease, should this lease terminate because of any default under or breach of this lease by Tenant, Landlord agrees to enter into a new lease for the Premises with Lender under a Leasehold Encumbrance, as Tenant, provided all of the following conditions are satisfied:

(a) A written request for the new lease is served on Landlord by Lender within _____[number] days after service on Lender of the notice described in Section 6.05 of this lease;

(b) The new lease

(1) Is for a term ending on the same date the term of this lease would have ended had this lease not been terminated;

(2) Provides for the payment of rent at the same rate that would have been payable under this lease during the remaining term of this lease had this lease not been terminated; and

(3) Contains the same terms, covenants, conditions, and provisions as are contained in this lease (except those that have already been fulfilled or are no longer applicable);

(c) Lender, on execution of the new lease by Landlord, shall pay any and all sums that would at the time of the execution of the new lease be due under this lease but for its termination and shall otherwise fully remedy, or agree in writing to remedy, any other defaults under or breaches of this lease committed by Tenant that can be remedied;

(d) Lender, on execution of the new lease, shall pay all reasonable costs and expenses, including attorneys' fees and court costs, incurred in terminating this lease, recovering possession of the Premises from Tenant or the representative of Tenant, and preparing the new lease;

(e) The new lease shall be subject to all existing subleases between Tenant and subtenants, provided that for any sublease, the subtenant agrees in writing to attorn to Lender (or its assignee); and

(f) The new lease shall be assignable by Lender but not by any assignee of Lender without the prior written consent of Landlord.

No Merger of Leasehold and Fee Estates

Section 6.09. For as long as any Leasehold Encumbrance is in existence, there shall be no merger of the leasehold estate created by this lease and the fee estate of Landlord in the Premises merely because both estates have been acquired or become vested in the same person or entity, unless Lender otherwise consents in writing.

Lender as Assignee of Lease

Section 6.10. No Lender under any Leasehold Encumbrance shall be liable to Landlord as an assignee of this lease unless and until Lender acquires all rights of Tenant under this lease through foreclosure, an assignment in lieu of foreclosure, or as a result of some other action or remedy provided by law or by the instrument creating the Leasehold Encumbrance.

Lender as Including Subsequent Security Holders

Section 6.11. Except for purposes of Section 6.08, the term "Lender" as used in this lease shall mean not only the institutional lender that loaned money to Tenant and is named as beneficiary, mortgagee, secured party, or security holder in the Security Instrument creating any Leasehold Encumbrance, but also all subsequent purchasers or assignees of the leasehold interest secured by the Leasehold Encumbrance.

Two or More Lenders

Section 6.12. In the event two or more Lenders each exercise their rights under this lease and there is a conflict that renders it impossible to comply with all requests of Lenders, the Lender whose Leasehold Encumbrance would have senior priority in the event of a foreclosure shall prevail.

ARTICLE 7 REPAIRS AND RESTORATION

Maintenance by Tenant

Section 7.01. At all times during the term of this lease Tenant shall, at Tenant's own cost and expense, keep and maintain the Premises, all Improvements, and all appurtenances (including landscaped and parking areas) now or hereafter on the Premises in a first-class condition, in good order and repair, and in a safe and clean condition.

Requirements of Governmental Agencies

Section 7.02. At all times during the term of this lease, Tenant, at Tenant's own cost and expense, shall do all of the following:

(a) Make all alterations, additions, or repairs to the Premises or the Improvements on the Premises required by any valid law, ordinance, statute, order, or regulation now or hereafter made or issued by any federal, state, county, local, or other governmental agency or entity;

(b) Observe and comply with all valid laws, ordinances, statutes, orders, and regulations now or hereafter made or issued respecting the Premises or the Improvements on the Premises by any federal, state, county, local, or other governmental agency or entity;

(c) Contest if Tenant, in Tenant's sole discretion, desires by appropriate legal proceedings brought in good faith and diligently prosecuted in the name of Tenant, or in the names of Tenant and Landlord when appropriate or required, the validity or applicability to the Premises of any law, ordinance, statute, order, or regulation now or hereafter made or issued by any federal, state, county, local, or other governmental agency or entity; provided, however, that any such contest or proceeding, though maintained in the names of Tenant and Landlord, shall be without cost to Landlord, and Tenant shall protect the Premises and Landlord from Tenant's failure to observe or comply during the contest with the contested law, ordinance, statute, order, or regulation; and

(d) Indemnify and hold Landlord and the property of Landlord, including the Premises, free and harmless from any and all liability, loss, damages, fines, penalties, claims, and actions resulting from Tenant's failure to comply with and perform the requirements of this section.

Tenant's Duty to Restore Premises

Section 7.03. If at any time during this lease's term, any Improvements now or hereafter on the Premises are destroyed in whole or in part by fire, theft, the elements, or any other cause not the fault of Landlord, this lease shall continue in full force and effect and Tenant, at Tenant's own cost and expense, shall repair and restore the damaged Improvements. Any restoration by Tenant shall comply with original plans for the Improvements described in Article 5, except as may be modified by Tenant to comply with the terms of any sublease of the Improvements, or except as may be otherwise modified by Tenant and approved in writing by Landlord. The work of repair and restoration shall be commenced by Tenant within _____[time period, e.g., 120 days] after the damage or destruction occurs and shall be completed with due diligence not later than _____[time period, e.g., one year] after the work is commenced. In all other respects, the work of repair and restoration shall be done in accordance with the requirements for original construction work on the Premises set forth in Article 5 of this lease. Tenant's obligation for restoration described in this section shall exist whether or not funds are available from insurance proceeds.

Option to Terminate Lease for Destruction

Section 7.04. Notwithstanding Section 7.03 of this lease, Tenant shall have the right to terminate this lease if, during the last _____[time period, e.g., five years] of the lease's term, the Improvements are damaged or destroyed by a casualty for which Tenant is not required under this lease to carry insurance and the cost to repair or restore the damaged or destroyed Improvements exceeds _____[agreed-on percentage, e.g., 50 percent] of the fair market value of the Improvements immediately before the damage or destruction.

Application of Insurance Proceeds

Section 7.05. Any and all fire or other insurance proceeds that become payable at any time during the term of this lease because of damage to or destruction of any Improvements on the Premises shall be paid to Tenant and applied by Tenant toward the cost of repairing and restoring the damaged or destroyed Improvements in the manner required by Section 7.03 of this lease, or, if this lease is terminated under Section 7.04, applied by Tenant toward payment of the Leasehold Encumbrance(s).

ARTICLE 8 INDEMNITY AND INSURANCE

Indemnity Agreement

Section 8.01. Tenant shall indemnify and hold Landlord and Landlord's property, including the Premises and Improvements now or hereafter on the Premises, free and harmless from any and all liability, claims, loss, damages, or expenses resulting from Tenant's occupation and use of the Premises, specifically including, without limitation, any liability, claim, loss, damage, or expense arising by reason of the following:

(a) The death or injury of any person, including Tenant or any person who is an employee or agent of Tenant, or by reason of the damage to or destruction of any property, including property owned by Tenant or by any person who is an employee or agent of Tenant, from any cause whatever while that person or property is in or on the Premises or in any way connected with the Premises or with any of the Improvements or personal property on the Premises;

(b) The death or injury of any person, including Tenant or any person who is an employee or agent of Tenant, or by reason of the damage to or destruction of any property, including property owned by Tenant or any person who is an employee or agent of Tenant, caused or allegedly caused by either (1) the condition of the Premises or some building or improvement on the Premises, or (2) some act or omission on the Premises of Tenant or any person in, on, or about the Premises with the permission and consent of Tenant;

(c) Any work performed on the Premises or materials furnished to the Premises at the instance or request of Tenant or any person or entity acting for or on behalf of Tenant; or

(d) Tenant's failure to perform any provision of this lease or to comply with any requirement of law or any requirement imposed on Tenant or the Premises by any duly authorized governmental agency or political subdivision.

Liability Insurance

Section 8.02. Tenant shall, at Tenant's own cost and expense, procure and maintain during the entire term of this lease a broad form comprehensive coverage policy of public liability insurance issued by an insurance company licensed by the State of California insuring Tenant and Landlord against loss or liability caused by or connected with Tenant's occupation and use of the Premises under this lease in amounts not less than the following:

(a) $_____ for injury to or death of one person and, subject to that limitation for the injury or death of one person, of not less than $_____ for injury to or death of two or more persons as a result of any one accident or incident; and

(b) $_____ for damage to or destruction of any property.

Fire and Casualty Insurance

Section 8.03. Tenant shall, at Tenant's own cost and expense, at all times during the term of this lease, keep all Improvements on the Premises insured for their full replacement value [or for _____ (number) percent of their full replacement value] by insurance companies authorized to do business in the State of California against loss or destruction by fire and the perils commonly covered under the standard extended coverage endorsement to fire insurance policies in the county where the Premises are located. For as long as there is any Leasehold Encumbrance in existence, that policy shall also contain a standard lender endorsement.

Specific Perils to Be Insured

Section 8.04. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in Section 8.03 of this lease, the insurance required by Section 8.03 of this lease shall, whether or not included in the standard extended coverage endorsement referred to in Section 8.03, insure all Improvements on the Premises against loss or destruction by windstorm, cyclone, tornado, hail, explosion, riot, riot attending a strike, civil commotion, malicious mischief, vandalism, aircraft, fire, smoke damage, and sprinkler leakage. Furthermore, the insurance required by Section 8.03 of this lease during the construction of the Shopping Center described in Article 5 shall include coverage for course of construction, vandalism, and malicious mischief, insuring the Shopping Center during its construction and all materials delivered to the site of the Shopping Center for their full insurable value.

Deposit of Insurance With Landlord and Lender

Section 8.05. Tenant shall, within 10 days after the execution of this lease and promptly thereafter when any such policy is replaced, rewritten, or renewed, deliver to Landlord and Lender a true and correct copy of each insurance policy required by this Article of this lease or a certificate executed by the insurance company or companies or their authorized agent evidencing that policy or policies.

Notice of Cancellation of Insurance

Section 8.06. Each insurance policy required under this Article shall contain a provision that it cannot be cancelled for any reason unless at least _____[minimum notice period, e.g., 10 days'] prior written notice of the cancellation is given to Landlord and to Lender in the manner required by this lease for service of notices on Landlord by Tenant.

ARTICLE 9 CONDEMNATION

Total Condemnation

Section 9.01. If, during the term of this lease, fee title to all of the Premises or to all of the Improvements, or the entire leasehold estate of Tenant is taken under the power of eminent domain by any public or quasi-public agency or entity (a "Total Taking"), this lease shall terminate as of 12:01 A.M. on whichever of the following occurs first: (1) the date legal title becomes vested in the agency or entity exercising the power of eminent domain, or (2) the date actual physical possession is taken by the agency or entity exercising the power of eminent domain. Thereafter, both Landlord and Tenant shall be released from all obligations under this lease, except those specified in Section 9.05.

Partial Taking--Parking Areas

Section 9.02. If, at any time during the term of this lease, a taking occurs that is less than a Total Taking and affects the parking areas for the Shopping Center, all compensation and damages payable for that taking shall be made available to and used, to the extent reasonably needed, by Tenant to repair any portion of the remaining parking areas damaged by the taking and to replace the parking areas taken with other new parking areas on the portion of the Premises not taken, provided that replacement is then permitted by existing law. Plans and specifications for the replacement parking areas must first be approved in writing by Landlord but may include, when practicable and when permitted by law, deck parking facilities to replace ground level parking facilities taken by eminent domain. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this section, if the portion of the parking areas taken by eminent domain results in a net loss of _____[specify, e.g., 10 percent] or more of the area of the Premises that can, after considering any replacement parking areas that can be lawfully constructed on the remaining portion of the Premises by reasonable methods, be devoted to parking areas as compared with the area devoted to those parking areas immediately before the taking, Tenant may terminate this lease in the manner prescribed by Section 9.04 of this lease.

Partial Taking--Improvements

Section 9.03. If at any time during the term of this lease a taking occurs that is less than a Total Taking and affects the rentable portion of the Improvements on the Premises, all compensation and damages payable for that taking (excluding any portion payable for a taking of parking areas) shall be made available to and used, to the extent reasonably needed, by Tenant to repair any portion of the remaining rentable portion of the Improvements damaged by the taking and to replace the rentable portion of the Improvements taken with other new rentable space on the portion of the Premises not taken, provided that replacement is then permitted by existing law. Plans and specifications for the replacement rental space must be compatible, in terms of architecture and quality of construction, with the Improvements not taken and must be first approved in writing by Landlord. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this Section, if the rentable portion of the Improvements taken by eminent domain results in a net loss of _____[specify, e.g., 10 percent] or more of the area of the Premises that can, after considering any replacement rentable space that can be lawfully constructed on the remaining portion of the Premises, be devoted to rentable space as compared with the area devoted to that rentable space immediately before the taking, Tenant may terminate this lease in the manner prescribed by Section 9.04 of this lease.

Termination for Partial Taking

Section 9.04. Tenant may terminate this lease for the reasons stated in either Section 9.02 or Section 9.03 of this lease, or both, by serving written notice of termination on Landlord within _____[time period, e.g., 90 days] after Tenant has received from Landlord or from the condemning authority written notice of an intended taking that sets forth the extent and scope of the intended taking. If Tenant elects to terminate this lease, the effective date of termination shall be the earlier of (1) the date of termination specified in Tenant's notice to Landlord or (2) the date the condemning authority takes physical possession of the portion of the Premises taken by eminent domain. On termination of this lease under this Section, all subleases and subtenancies in or on the Premises or any portion or portions of the Premises created by Tenant under this lease shall also terminate and the Premises shall be delivered to Landlord free and clear of all such subleases and subtenancies; provided, however, that Landlord may, at Landlord's option, by mailing written notice to any subtenant, allow the subtenant to attorn to Landlord and continue its occupancy on the Premises as a tenant of Landlord. On termination of this lease under this Section, both Landlord and Tenant shall be released from all obligations to the other under this lease except those specified in Section 9.05.

Condemnation Award

Section 9.05. Any compensation or damages awarded or payable because of the taking of all or any portion of the Premises by eminent domain shall be allocated between Landlord and Tenant as follows:

(a) All compensation or damages awarded or payable for the taking by eminent domain of any land that is part of the Premises shall be paid to and be the sole property of Landlord, free and clear of any claim of Tenant or any person claiming rights to the Premises through or under Tenant.

(b) All compensation or damages awarded or payable because of any Improvements constructed or located on the portion of the Premises taken by eminent domain when only a portion of the Premises is taken by eminent domain and Tenant is not entitled to or does not terminate this lease shall be applied in the manner specified in Section 9.02 or Section 9.03 toward the replacement of those Improvements with equivalent new Improvements on the remaining portions of the Premises.

(c) All compensation or damages awarded or payable because of any Improvements constructed or located on the portion of the Premises taken by eminent domain when this lease is terminated because of the taking by eminent domain, whether all or only a portion of the Premises is taken by eminent domain, shall be allocated between Tenant and Landlord as follows:

(1) That percentage of the compensation or damages awarded or payable because of the Improvements that equals the percentage of the full term of this lease that has, at the time of the taking, not expired shall belong to and be the sole property of Tenant.

(2) That percentage of the compensation or damages awarded or payable because of the Improvements that equals the percentage of the full term of this lease that has, at the time of the taking, expired shall belong to and be the sole property of Landlord.

(3) The term "time of taking" as used in this subparagraph shall mean 12:01 A.M. of whichever of the following shall first occur: the date that title, or the date that physical possession of the portion of the Premises on which the Improvements are located, is taken by the agency or entity exercising the eminent domain power.

(d) Any severance damages awarded or payable because only a portion of the Premises is taken by eminent domain shall be

(1) The sole and separate property of Tenant during the first _____ [number] years of the term of this lease;

(2) Equally divided, except to the extent needed to replace any Improvements taken by eminent domain with equivalent Improvements on the remaining portion of the Premises when Tenant cannot or does not terminate this lease, between Landlord and Tenant during the _____ [number] to _____ [number] years of the term of this lease; and

(3) The sole and separate property of Landlord during the last _____ [number] years of the term of this lease.

Rent Abatement for Partial Taking

Section 9.06. If title and possession of only a portion of the Premises is taken under the power of eminent domain by any public or quasi-public agency or entity during the term of this lease and Tenant does not or cannot under Section 9.02 or Section 9.03 terminate this lease, then this lease shall terminate as to the portion of the Premises taken under eminent domain as of 12:01 A.M. on whichever of the following first occurs: the date title is taken, or the date actual physical possession of the portion taken by eminent domain is taken, by the agency or entity exercising the eminent domain power. Furthermore, the rent payable under this lease shall, as of that time, be reduced in the same proportion that the value of the portion of the Premises taken by eminent domain bears to the full value of the Premises at that time; provided, however, that Tenant shall, subject to the provisions of Sections 9.02 and 9.03 of this lease, replace any Improvements or facilities with equivalent new facilities on the remaining portion of the Premises and do all other acts at Tenant's own cost and expense required by the eminent domain taking to make the remaining portion of the Premises fit for the uses specified in this lease.

Voluntary Conveyance in Lieu of Eminent Domain

Section 9.07. A voluntary conveyance by Landlord of title to all or a portion of the Premises to a public or quasi-public agency or entity in lieu of and under threat by that agency or entity to take it by eminent domain proceedings shall be considered a taking of title to all or any portion of the Premises under the power of eminent domain subject to the provisions of this Article.

ARTICLE 10 ASSIGNMENT AND SUBLEASING

No Assignment Without Landlord's Consent

Section 10.01. Tenant may assign this lease or any interest in this lease, subject to the prior written consent of Landlord. Landlord shall not unreasonably withhold or delay its consent, and shall grant consent if the proposed assignee is financially qualified and has sufficient experience in the operation and management of commercial shopping centers to perform all the agreements, undertakings, and covenants of this lease and all other agreements entered into by Tenant which relate to the management, operation, maintenance, construction, and restoration of the Improvements and the Premises. To assist Landlord in determining whether or not the proposed assignee is so qualified, Tenant shall furnish to Landlord at no expense to Landlord, before that assignment, detailed and complete financial statements of the proposed assignee, audited by a certified public accountant reasonably satisfactory to Landlord (if the proposed transferee causes its statements to be so audited in its normal course of business), together with detailed and complete information about the business of the proposed assignee, including its experience in operating commercial shopping centers, the use to be made of the Premises and Improvements by the proposed assignee, projections by the proposed assignee of the sources of funds to be used to repay any indebtedness of Tenant that the proposed assignee will assume or take subject to, or agree to pay to Tenant, and other claims on and requirements for those funds, together with any other information as Landlord may reasonably require to assist Landlord in determining whether or not the proposed assignee is so qualified. Landlord shall have _____[time period for approval, e.g., 30 days] after receipt of the information described above to notify Tenant of whether it consents or does not consent to the proposed assignment. Absent any such notification by Landlord during the _____[same time period set forth in preceding sentence, e.g., 30-day period], Landlord shall be conclusively deemed to have consented to the assignment. A consent by Landlord to one assignment shall not be deemed to be a consent to any subsequent assignment. Any assignment made contrary to the terms of this section shall be null and void unless otherwise permitted by this Article.

Leasehold Encumbrances and Subsequent Transfers

Section 10.02. Notwithstanding the provisions of Section 10.01 of this lease, Tenant may without the prior written consent of Landlord transfer and assign all Tenant's interest under this lease and Tenant's leasehold estate created under this lease to a Lender under a Leasehold Encumbrance (as defined in Section 6.01 of this lease). Any transfer, conveyance, or assignment resulting from a foreclosure or acceptance of a deed in lieu of foreclosure by any Lender (as defined in Section 6.01 of this lease), or any transfer, conveyance, or assignment by any Lender following its acquisition of this lease and the leasehold estate of Tenant created by this lease as a result of foreclosure or acceptance of a deed in lieu of foreclosure shall not require the prior consent of Landlord.

Tenant's Right to Sublease

Section 10.03. Tenant shall have the right to sublease all or any portion of the Premises from time to time, and at all times during the term of this lease, without Landlord's consent; provided, however, that the following conditions are met:

(a) The term of any sublease shall not extend beyond the term of this lease;

(b) Any and all subleases shall be expressly made subject to all of the terms, covenants, and conditions of this lease; and

(c) Any subtenant shall be required to attorn to Landlord in the event of Tenant's default under this lease.

Transfers to or by Corporation

Section 10.04. Notwithstanding Section 10.01 of this lease, Tenant may, without the prior consent of Landlord, transfer and assign all of Tenant's interest under the lease and the leasehold estate created under this lease to a corporation now or hereafter organized in which Tenant owns at least _____[agreed-on percentage, e.g., 80 percent] of all outstanding shares of stock. If Tenant is a corporation, or if Tenant's interest in this lease is assigned to a corporation under the sentence above, any transfer or assignment of any stock or interest in the corporation totaling in the aggregate more than _____[specify, e.g., 25 percent] of all such stock or interest in the corporation shall be considered an assignment of this lease requiring the prior written consent of Landlord and subject to the standards set forth in Section 10.01; provided, however, that any transfer of shares to a shareholder's spouse, children, or grandchildren caused by the shareholder's death shall be excepted from this requirement.

ARTICLE 11 DEFAULT AND REMEDIES

Continuation of Lease in Effect

Section 11.01. Should Tenant breach this lease and abandon the Premises before the natural expiration of the lease's term, Landlord may continue this lease in effect by not terminating Tenant's right to possession of the Premises, in which event Landlord shall be entitled to enforce all Landlord's rights and remedies under this lease, including the right to recover the rent specified in this lease as it becomes due under this lease.

Termination and Unlawful Detainer

Section 11.02. In the event of a tenant default under this lease, Landlord may terminate this lease by written notice to Tenant and may also do the following:

(a) Bring an action to recover the following from Tenant:

(1) The worth at the time of award of the unpaid rent that had been earned at the time of termination of the lease;

(2) The worth at the time of award of the amount by which the unpaid rent that would have been earned after termination of the lease until the time of award exceeds the amount of rental loss that Tenant proves could have been reasonably avoided;

(3) The worth at the time of award of the amount by which the unpaid rent for the balance of the term after the time of award exceeds the amount of rental loss that Tenant proves could be reasonably avoided; and

(4) Any other amount necessary to compensate Landlord for all detriment proximately caused by Tenant's failure to perform Tenant's obligations under this lease; and

(b) Bring an action, in addition to or in lieu of the action described in subsection (a) of this section, to reenter and regain possession of the Premises in the manner provided by the laws of unlawful detainer of the State of California then in effect.

Breach and Default by Tenant

Section 11.03. All covenants and agreements contained in this lease are declared to be conditions to this lease and to the term hereby leased to Tenant. Should Tenant fail to perform any covenant, condition, or agreement contained in this lease and the default is not be cured within _____[number, e.g., 30 days] after written notice of the default is served on Tenant by Landlord, then Tenant shall be in default under this lease. In addition to Tenant's failure to perform any covenant, condition, or agreement contained in this lease within the cure period permitted by this section, the following shall constitute a default by Tenant under this lease:

(a) The appointment of a receiver to take possession of the Premises or Improvements, or of Tenant's interest in, to, and under this lease, the leasehold estate or of Tenant's operations on the Premises for any reason, including, without limitation, assignment for benefit of creditors or voluntary or involuntary bankruptcy proceedings, when not released within _____[number, e.g., 60 days];

(b) An assignment by Tenant for the benefit of creditors; or the voluntary filing by Tenant or the involuntary filing against Tenant of a petition, other court action, or suit under any law for the purpose of (1) adjudicating Tenant a bankrupt, (2) extending time for payment, (3) satisfaction of Tenant's liabilities, or (4) reorganization, dissolution, or arrangement on account of, or to prevent, bankruptcy or insolvency; provided, however, that in the case of an involuntary proceeding, if all consequent orders, adjudications, custodies, and supervisions are dismissed, vacated, or otherwise permanently stayed or terminated within _____[number, e.g., 90 days] after the filing or other initial event, then Tenant shall not be in default under this Section; and

(c) The subjection of any right or interest of Tenant to or under this lease to attachment, execution, or other levy, or to seizure under legal process when the claim against Tenant is not released within _____[number, e.g., 90 days].

Cumulative Remedies

Section 11.04. The remedies given to Landlord in this Article shall not be exclusive but shall be cumulative with and in addition to all remedies now or hereafter allowed by law and elsewhere provided in this lease.

Waiver of Breach

Section 11.05. The waiver by Landlord of any breach by Tenant of any of the provisions of this lease shall not constitute a continuing waiver or a waiver of any subsequent breach by Tenant of either the same or a different provision of this lease.

Surrender of Premises

11.06. On expiration or earlier termination of this lease, Tenant shall surrender the Premises and all Improvements in or on the Premises to Landlord in as good, safe, and clean condition as practicable, reasonable wear and tear excepted.

ARTICLE 12 OTHER PROVISIONS

Force Majeure

Section 12.01. Except as otherwise expressly provided in this lease, if the performance of any act required by this lease to be performed by either Landlord or Tenant is prevented or delayed by reason of any act of God, strike, lockout, labor trouble, inability to secure materials, restrictive governmental laws or regulations, or any other cause (except financial inability) not the fault of the party required to perform the act, the time for performance of the act will be extended for a period equivalent to the period of delay and performance of the act during the period of delay will be excused. However, nothing contained in this section shall excuse the prompt payment of rent by Tenant as required by this lease or the performance of any act rendered difficult or impossible solely because of the financial condition of the party required to perform the act.

Attorneys' Fees

Section 12.02. Should any litigation be commenced between the parties to this lease concerning the Premises, this lease, or the rights and duties of either in relation thereto, the party prevailing in that litigation shall be entitled, in addition to any other relief that may be granted in the litigation, to a reasonable sum as and for that party's attorneys' fees in that litigation that shall be determined by the court in that litigation or in a separate action brought for that purpose.

Notices to Landlord

Section 12.03. Except as otherwise expressly provided by law, any and all notices or other communications required or permitted by this lease or by law to be served on or given to Landlord by Tenant or any Lender described in Article 6 of this lease shall be in writing and shall be deemed duly served and given when personally delivered to Landlord, to any managing employee of Landlord, or, in lieu of personal service, when deposited in the United States mail, first-class postage prepaid, and sent by express mail that allows for tracking, addressed to Landlord at _____[address]. Landlord may change Landlord's address for the purpose of this Section by giving written notice of that change to Tenant in the manner provided in Section 12.04; Tenant shall then transmit a copy of that notice to any Lender described in Article 6 of this lease.

Notices to Tenant

Section 12.04. Except as otherwise expressly provided by law, any and all notices or other communications required or permitted by this lease or by law to be served on or given to Tenant by Landlord shall be in writing and shall be deemed duly served and given when personally delivered to Tenant, any managing employee of Tenant, or, in lieu of personal service, when deposited in the United States mail, first-class postage prepaid, and sent by express mail that allows for tracking, addressed to Tenant at _____[address]. Tenant may change its address for the purpose of this section by giving written notice of that change to Landlord in the manner provided in Section 12.03 of this lease.

Governing Law

Section 12.05. This lease, and all matters relating to this lease, shall be governed by the laws of the State of California in force at the time any need for interpretation of this lease or any decision or holding concerning this lease arises.

Binding on Heirs and Successors

Section 12.06. This lease shall be binding on and shall inure to the benefit of the heirs, executors, administrators, successors, and assigns of the parties hereto, but nothing in this section shall be construed as a consent by Landlord to any assignment of this lease or any interest in the lease by Tenant except as provided in Article 10 of this lease.

Partial Invalidity

Section 12.07. If any provision of this lease is held by a court of competent jurisdiction to be invalid, void, or unenforceable, the remaining provisions of this lease shall remain in full force and effect unimpaired by the holding.

Sole and Only Agreement

Section 12.08. This instrument constitutes the sole and only agreement between Landlord and Tenant respecting the Premises, the leasing of the Premises to Tenant, the construction of the Shopping Center described in this lease on the Premises, and the lease terms set forth in this lease, and correctly sets forth the obligations of Landlord and Tenant to each other as of its date. Any agreements or representations respecting the Premises, their leasing to Tenant by Landlord, or any other matter discussed in this lease not expressly set forth in this instrument are null and void.

Time of Essence

Section 12.09. Time is expressly declared to be of the essence of this lease.

Memorandum of Lease for Recording

Section 12.10. Neither Landlord nor Tenant shall record this lease without the written consent of the other. However, Landlord and Tenant shall, at the request of either at any time during the term of this lease, execute a memorandum or "short form" of this lease for purposes of, and in a form suitable for, recordation. The memorandum or "short form" of this lease shall describe the parties, set forth a description of the leased premises, specify the term of this lease, incorporate this lease by reference, and include any other provisions required by Lender(s).

§ 34D.210 Landlord's Right to Terminate Lease on Tenant's Failure to Obtain Financing

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a ground lease provision that authorizes the landlord to terminate the lease if the tenant is unable to obtain financing for construction of improvements on the land by a specified date. It is a condition similar to that generally used in real property sales agreements [see, e.g., Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements , § 23.201]. With this provision, the landlord can give the tenant a reasonable time to obtain financing, but also limit the time period during which the landlord is contractually bound to the tenant. After expiration of the specified period, the landlord is free to consider other offers or opportunities related to use or disposition of the land. Limitations on the time period for obtaining financing may motivate the tenant to expedite those financing matters under its control.

For a complete ground lease, see § 34D.200[2].

[b] Use of Escrow in Ground Lease Transaction

Most ground lease transactions are handled through an escrow in the same manner as the sale of real property [see § 34D.16]. If the lease is not executed until after the opening of escrow, both the lease and the escrow instructions should provide that the tenant's financing is a condition precedent to the effectiveness of the lease and to the closing of escrow. If the lease is executed before opening escrow or will be transacted without an escrow, the financing provision should be included in the lease for the landlord's protection.

[c] Use of Memorandum of Lease in Ground Lease Transaction

If the lease authorizes the recording of a memorandum of lease [see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.203; see also § 34D.16] immediately after execution of the ground lease, the landlord should require the tenant to concurrently execute in recordable form a quitclaim deed to the landlord, which the landlord is authorized to record if the landlord cancels the lease due to the tenant's failure to obtain financing within the specified time period.

[2] Form

Landlord's Right to Terminate Lease on Tenant's Failure to Obtain Financing

Lease Termination for Inability to Finance

Section _____. Notwithstanding any other provision of this lease, the effectiveness of this lease is expressly conditioned on the ability of Tenant to obtain a written, binding commitment for financing described in Section _____[state appropriate provision of lease] on or before _____[date]. In the event Tenant fails to obtain financing by that date, Landlord shall have the absolute right to terminate this lease by giving written notice of termination to Tenant not later than _____[number] days after expiration of the period in which Tenant is required to obtain financing. In the event of that termination, this lease shall be null and void and neither party shall have any rights or obligations under this lease.

[Add, if lease authorizes recordation of memorandum of lease immediately following execution of ground lease:]

Concurrently with execution of this lease, Tenant shall execute and deliver to Landlord a quitclaim deed in favor of Landlord, in recordable form, which shall relinquish all of Tenant's right, title, and interest in, to, and under this lease and the premises. In the event Landlord terminates this lease under this section, Landlord shall have the right to immediately record the quitclaim deed.

§ 34D.211 Landlord's Covenant Against Encumbrances

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is the landlord's covenant against encumbrances. For a tenant to obtain financing at the commencement of a ground lease on the security of the tenant's leasehold interest, the landlord's fee title interest, or both, the tenant's lender generally will insist on a first encumbrance. Thus, the landlord's title must be free and clear, or any prior encumbrances must be subordinated to the tenant's new financing [see § 34D.212].

For a complete ground lease, see § 34D.200[2].

[b] Subsequent Encumbrances

A separate problem of priority may arise during the term of the lease if the lease permits the tenant to obtain further financing after the initial financing on the security of the leasehold interest or the landlord's fee title interest, for purposes such as remodeling of improvements or refinancing. If the landlord is also permitted to freely encumber the premises throughout the lease's term, any landlord encumbrances made before the tenant's subsequent financing will have priority over the subsequent financing. One method of protecting against this intervening priority is to prohibit the landlord from making any encumbrances on the premises after commencement of the lease term [see [2], below]. Another method is to permit the landlord to encumber the premises, but to provide that those encumbrances will be subject and subordinate to subsequent financing by the tenant permitted under the lease. If the latter method is used, a problem of enforcement may arise as with any agreement or promise to subordinate [see § 34D.212[1][e]].

Landlord's Covenant Against Encumbrances

Landlord's Covenant Against Encumbrances

Section _____ (a). Landlord covenants that the Premises shall be free and clear of all encumbrances or liens [except for those specifically permitted under this lease] on the commencement date of this lease.

(b) For as long as Tenant is permitted by the terms of this lease to encumber its leasehold interest, Landlord covenants and agrees that it shall not encumber Landlord's fee title to the Premises.

CHAPTER 34D GROUND LEASES
PART IV. FORMS
B. Alternative and Additional Lease Provisions

17-34D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 34D.212

AUTHOR: Linda Breen Pierce Benjamin Kaplan Myron Moskovitz Practice Consultants

§ 34D.212 Subordination of Fee Interest to Tenant Financing

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, contains provisions for a ground lease that may be used when the tenant is required to construct new improvements on the leased land and the landlord agrees to subordinate its fee title interest in the leased premises to the tenant's financing. This method of financing is commonly referred to as "fee subordination." When the landlord will not agree to subordinate its fee title interest, a tenant may be able to obtain financing on the security of the tenant's leasehold interest under the lease [see § 34D.200[2], Section 6.01]. That method of financing is commonly referred to as "leasehold financing" [see § 34D.13[1][a]].

For a complete ground lease, see § 34D.200[2].

PRACTICE TIP:

Landlord's Representative for Subordination Requests. It is not unusual over the term of 30 or more years for the ownership of the underlying fee to become fractionalized, by devise or other transfer. Oftentimes, there may not be a single party or entity that may be approached by the tenant to obtain a future consent to subordination. Thought should be given to providing some mechanism by which a special attorney is empowered to act in the absence of a single person or entity to execute such a subordination. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[b] Agreement to Subordinate

In the form in [2], below, the landlord's agreement to subordinate extends only to the construction and permanent financing for the improvements to be initially constructed by the tenant. It does not extend to any subsequent loans, future advances, or refinancing by the tenant [see [2], Section _____.01, below]. The landlord agrees to execute the necessary instruments required to effect the subordination and, subject to specified conditions [see [c], [d], below], to execute the deed of trust or mortgage evidencing the tenant's loan.

[c] Required Loan Terms

The landlord's agreement to subordinate is conditioned on the tenant acquiring construction and permanent loans that conform to specified terms and conditions [see [2], Section _____.03, below; see also [e], below]. A construction loan is a short-term or interim loan that is repaid with the proceeds from permanent loans [see Ch. 30A, Construction Financing]. A permanent or take-out loan is a long-term loan, payable in installments over a period of years, that is used to pay off, or "take out," an interim construction loan [see Jones v. Sacramento Sav. & Loan Assn. (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 522, 527, 56 Cal. Rptr. 741] . Although the permanent loan is made when construction is completed, a lender may make a written commitment to make the loan before the construction lender proceeds with a construction loan. However, permanent commitments are quite difficult to obtain before the commencement of construction. The two loans may be made by the same lender, or, more commonly, by different lenders, with the construction lender receiving the security of the permanent loan commitment [see Ch. 30A, Construction Financing]. The need for certainty regarding the basic terms of the subordinating loan [see [e], below] applies to permanent loans as well as construction loans [see California Real Property Sales Transactions, ch. 5, Seller Financing, § 5.51 (Cal. C.E.B. 1981)].

For further discussion of permanent financing, see Ch. 30A, Construction Financing .

[d] Required Mortgage Provisions

As a further condition of the landlord's agreement to subordinate its fee title interest, the form in [2], below, requires that the instruments evidencing the tenant's loans contain several provisions. These include a provision that the landlord's execution of the tenant's mortgage is for the sole purpose of encumbering the landlord's fee title interest and that the landlord is to have no liability on the mortgage or underlying promissory note. Additionally, the lender may not make any future advances to the tenant, refinance the loan, extend the loan due date, or otherwise modify or amend the original mortgage instrument without the landlord's prior consent. Finally, the lender is required to give the landlord notice of any tenant default under the mortgage and the landlord is to have the right to cure the default. The mortgage must also contain a request by the landlord that any notice of default or notice of sale given by the lender under the mortgage also be given to the landlord in accordance with statutory requirements [see Civ. Code § 2924b; see also [2], Section _____.04, below].

[e] Promise-to-Subordinate Clause

The agreement of the landlord to subordinate its fee title interest in the premises to the tenant's financing in this form is similar to what is commonly referred to as an "executory subordination" or "promise to subordinate" clause. In that type of clause, a lender promises to execute a separate instrument subordinating its mortgage or deed of trust to a subsequent mortgage or deed of trust at the time the subsequent mortgage or deed of trust is to be recorded. To make an executory subordination or "promise to subordinate" clause specifically enforceable and not merely an agreement to agree in the future, the permissible terms, conditions, and purposes of the loan to which the mortgage or deed of trust containing the "promise to subordinate" clause is to be subordinated must be specified in the clause in some detail [Handy v. Gordon (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 578, 581, 55 Cal. Rptr. 769, 422 P. 2d 329 ; see Ch. 25B, Subordination, Assumption, and Assignment]. Furthermore, an enforceable subordination clause must contain terms that will define and minimize the risk that the subordinating liens will impair or destroy the seller's security. These terms may include limits on the use to which the proceeds may be put to insure that their use will improve the value of the land [Swiss Property Management Co., Inc. v. Southern California Ibew-Neca Pension Plan (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 839, 842, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 587] .

These terms, which include the maximum principal amount, maximum interest rate, maximum loan fees, repayment terms, and any restrictions on use of the loan proceeds are discussed more fully in Ch. 25B, Subordination, Assumption, and Assignment.

[f] Statutory Requirements

Except for subordination clauses or agreements that expressly state that a subordinating loan will exceed $25,000 or that are executed in connection with a loan that exceeds $25,000 [see Civ. Code § 2953.5], every real property security instrument [see Civ. Code § 2953.1(a) (definition)] that contains or has attached to it a subordination clause [see Civ. Code § 2953.1(b) (definition)] and every subordination agreement [see Civ. Code § 2953.1(c) (definition)] must contain notices and captions prescribed by statute [Civ. Code §§ 2953.2, 2953.3]. For a full discussion of these requirements and for the forms of notice, see Ch. 25B, Subordination, Assumption, and Assignment , §§ 25B.203, 25B.204 (trust deed subordination provisions), and 25B.207-25B.210 (subordination agreements and related notices).

Subordination of Fee Interest to Tenant Financing

ARTICLE _____
TENANT FINANCING AND LANDLORD'S SUBORDINATION

Landlord's Agreement to Subordinate

Section _____.01. Promptly after written request from Tenant, Landlord agrees that it shall subordinate Landlord's fee title interest in the Premises (as defined in Section _____[specify applicable section, e.g., 1.01] of this lease) and the leasehold created by this lease (including rent and other benefits to Premises under this lease) to the lien of a first encumbrance represented by a construction loan and a permanent loan to be obtained by Tenant (collectively referred to in this lease as "Tenant's Mortgage"), provided that the construction loan and permanent loan satisfy and comply with all provisions of this Article. Landlord's agreement to subordinate is limited to the construction loan and permanent loan described in Section _____.03, below, for the initial construction and permanent financing of the _____[specify, e.g., Shopping Center] to be constructed by Tenant under this lease, and does not extend to any subsequent loans obtained by Tenant or any additional advances or refinancing of the original construction and permanent loan described in Section _____.03, below.

Documentation for Subordination

Section _____.02. To effect the subordination described in Section _____.01, above, Landlord agrees to execute in recordable form and deliver to Tenant a deed of trust, mortgage, or other security instrument and any other agreement or instrument as required by a Lender (as defined in Section _____[specify applicable section] of this lease) or by the title company insuring Tenant's Mortgage, or both, to effect the subordination described in this Article, provided any such deed of trust, mortgage, or other security instrument and any other agreement or instrument is compatible with the provisions of and does not in any way abridge the rights of Landlord under this lease. Landlord shall execute Tenant's Mortgage (but not the promissory note secured by Tenant's Mortgage), provided Tenant's Mortgage meets all of the requirements and conditions set forth in Section _____.04, below.

Authorized Tenant Financing

Section _____.03. Tenant financing that is authorized by this lease and to which Landlord agrees to subordinate its fee title interest under Section _____.01, above, shall mean the following:

(a) A deed of trust, mortgage, or other security instrument to be executed by Tenant covering the premises and to be recorded in the Office of the County Recorder of _____[name of county where premises are located], to secure a loan ("Construction Loan") from a state or federal bank, life insurance company, federal or state savings and loan association, or other institutional lender regulated by federal or state authority ("Construction Lender"), for the purpose of constructing _____[specify, e.g., a Shopping Center] as required under this lease, provided

[EITHER]

(1) The total amount of the Construction Loan shall not exceed $_____;

[OR]

(1) The Construction Loan shall not exceed _____ [number] percent of the anticipated value of the premises after completion of the Improvements for which the loan was obtained, as determined by the Permanent Lender referred to in subparagraph (b), below;

[CONTINUE]

(2) Any funds derived from the Construction Loan shall be used only for the construction on the premises of a Shopping Center described in Section _____ of this lease, having a value, as determined by the Permanent Lender referred to in subparagraph (b), below, of at least $_____, and to the extent permitted in this article, for the loan fees, interest, or other charges directly connected with the construction of the Shopping Center. "Construction of the Shopping Center" shall include the usual appurtenances for a commercial shopping center, including parking facilities, driveway, and fencing and the construction of all common area facilities; shall encompass all costs of labor and materials for the above, all aggregate costs of general improvements, including engineering fees, architectural fees, drafting fees, permit and inspection fees, and all costs of utility hookup and assessment charges (exclusive of monthly charges) in respect to the use of those facilities; and shall specifically exclude all off-site improvements [or shall specifically include off-site physical improvements required by the city (or county) of _____ (name), California, including, but not limited to, roads, storm drains, sidewalks, curbs and gutters, underground utilities, water systems, sewage systems, drainage and erosion control facilities, and fencing, provided that not more than $_____ (specify maximum) of the loan proceeds may be used for those off-site improvements];

(3) No portion of the Construction Loan shall be used to pay loan fees, interest, or other charges not directly connected with the construction of the Shopping Center on the portion of the property encumbered by the Construction Loan;

(4) The maximum loan fees, interest, or other loan charges that may be deducted from the principal amount of the Construction Loan are as follows:

(a) Loan fees: _____ [number] percent of the principal amount of the Construction Loan;

(b) Interest: _____ [number] percent per annum; and

(c) Other loan charges: a sum not to exceed _____ [number] percent of the principal amount of the Construction Loan;

(5) No Construction Loan shall bear interest, exclusive of late charges, penalties, or fees payable in case of default, greater than _____ [number] percent per annum;

(6) The Construction Loan shall be payable in equal monthly installments of principal and interest [or specify other repayment schedule] over a period of time of not less than _____ [number] months or more than _____ [number] years from the date of the Construction Loan, with the total unpaid balance all due and payable at the end of that period;

(7) Additional payments may be made, without penalty, on the principal and accrued interest of the Construction Loan at any time before maturity [or specify maximum prepayment penalty or other prepayment terms];

(8) The total payments of principal and interest due on the Construction Loan shall not exceed $_____ per month;

(9) The proceeds of any Construction Loan shall be disbursed by the Construction Lender either through its own offices or through a bonded disbursement control agency only after inspection of the work completed on the property and presentation of vouchers signed by Tenant or its successors in interest for the cost of work, labor, or materials actually performed or used in the construction of Improvements on the property;

(10) The remaining terms and provisions of any Construction Loan shall be as required by the Construction Lender; and

(11) Tenant has delivered to Landlord a binding written commitment from an institutional lender to make a permanent loan on the property, further described below, on completion of the Shopping Center.

(b) A deed of trust, mortgage, or other security instrument to be executed by Tenant on completion of the Shopping Center, covering the premises as improved, and to be recorded in the Office of the County Recorder of _____[name of county where property is located], to secure a permanent loan ("Permanent Loan") from a state or federal bank, life insurance company or correspondent thereof, federal or state savings and loan association, or other institutional lender regulated by federal or state authority ("Permanent Lender"), provided

(1) The proceeds of the Permanent Loan shall be used first to pay in full any Construction Loans on the premises, and any mechanics' liens or other charges levied or leviable against the premises because of any Improvements made on the premises by Tenant or its successors in interest and the premises shall be reconveyed from the Construction Loan deed of trust, mortgage, or other security instrument described in subparagraph (a), above, of this lease;

[EITHER]

(2) The total amount of the Permanent Loan shall not exceed $_____;

[OR]

(2) The total amount of the Permanent Loan shall not exceed _____ percent of the value, as determined by the Permanent Lender, of the property as improved by Tenant or his or her successor in interest;

[CONTINUE]

(3) The maximum loan fees, interest, or other loan charges that may be deducted from the principal amount of the Permanent Loan are as follows: (a) loan fees: _____ [number] percent of the principal amount of the loan; (b) interest: _____ [number] percent per annum; (c) other loan charges: a sum not to exceed _____ [number] percent of the principal amount of the loan;

(4) The Permanent Loan shall not bear interest, exclusive of late charges, penalties, or fees payable in case of default, greater than _____ [number] percent per annum;

(5) The Permanent Loan shall be payable in equal monthly installments of principal and interest [or specify other repayment schedule] over a period of time of not less than _____ months or more than _____ years from the date of the Permanent Loan, with the total unpaid balance all due and payable at the end of that period;

(6) Additional payments of principal and accrued interest on the Permanent Loan may be made, without penalty, at any time before maturity [or specify maximum prepayment penalty or other prepayment terms];

(7) The total payments of principal and interest due on the Permanent Loan shall not exceed $_____ per month;

(8) The proceeds of the Permanent Loan shall be disbursed by the Permanent Lender either through its own offices or through a bonded disbursement control agency; and

(9) The remaining terms and provisions of the Permanent Loan shall be as required by the Permanent Lender.

Requirements for Tenant's Mortgage

Section _____.04. In addition to the ordinary and customary provisions regularly required by a Lender or the title company insuring Lender's interest under a mortgage similar to Tenant's Mortgage (defined in Section _____.01, above), Tenant's Mortgage (and the promissory note secured by Tenant's Mortgage when indicated) shall contain all of the following:

(a) A provision stating that Landlord shall have no personal liability on Tenant's Mortgage or the promissory note(s) secured by Tenant's Mortgage or for any provision contained in the note(s) or Tenant's Mortgage;

(b) A provision stating that Landlord has executed Tenant's Mortgage for the sole purpose of encumbering Landlord's fee title interest in the Premises;

(c) A provision stating that without Landlord's prior written consent, Tenant shall have no right to refinance any unpaid balance on Tenant's Mortgage or to obtain any amounts under Tenant's Mortgage except as permitted by Section _____.03;

(d) A provision stating that the due date of Tenant's Mortgage or the promissory note(s) secured by Tenant's Mortgage may not be extended and that the loan documents for Tenant's Mortgage may not be amended or modified in any way, except with the prior written consent of Landlord;

(e) Any and all notices of default under Tenant's Mortgage or under the promissory note(s) secured by Tenant's Mortgage must be given in writing to both Tenant and Landlord and Landlord shall have the right to cure any default not cured by Tenant within _____[specify, e.g., 30 days] after expiration of the period granted to Tenant to cure a default; and

(f) A request that a copy of any notice of default and any notice of sale under Tenant's Mortgage be delivered by Lender to Landlord in accordance with the statutory requirements then in effect under the laws of the State of California.

17-34D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 34D.213

AUTHOR: Linda Breen Pierce Benjamin Kaplan Myron Moskovitz Practice Consultants

§ 34D.213 Subleasing and Nondisturbance of Subtenants

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, contains ground lease provisions that (1) permit the tenant to sublease improvements covered by the ground lease, subject to minimal restrictions, and (2) prohibit the landlord from disturbing the subtenant's possession (that is, terminating the sublease) if the landlord terminates the ground lease before its natural expiration.

For a complete ground lease, see § 34D.200[2]. For an alternative provision for subleasing by the tenant, see § 34D.200[2], Section 10.03. For a series of alternative assignment and sublease provisions that may be used for any type of nonresidential lease, see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.260. A discussion of the tenant's rights to sublease and the permissible restrictions on that right is discussed in § 34D.15[5].

[b] Restrictions on Tenant's Right to Sublease

The right to sublease under a ground lease is important because the ground tenant is often a developer who leases unimproved property, constructs income-producing improvements, and then subleases space in the improvements to subtenants. Consequently, ground leases typically grant the ground tenant the right to sublease, and impose minimal, if any, restrictions on this right [see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW AND PRACTICE, ch. 153, Drafting Commercial Leases (Matthew Bender)].

The form in [2], below, contains the following restrictions on the ground tenant's right to sublease:

- Each sublease must contain the same attornment and nondisturbance requirements set forth in the "nondisturbance" provision of this form [see [c], below];

- The ground tenant must promptly notify the ground landlord of any subleasing; and

- The ground tenant may not accept more than one month's prepaid rent from any subtenant. By limiting the amount of prepaid rent that a ground tenant may collect from a subtenant, the landlord can ensure that it will not encounter any interruption in rent if the ground tenant defaults under the ground lease and the ground landlord becomes the landlord under the sublease.

[c] Nondisturbance Provision

A ground lease subtenant generally wants assurance that its sublease will remain in effect following a premature termination of the ground lease. To be able to provide this assurance to subtenants, the ground tenant should bargain for a nondisturbance provision in the ground lease at the time the lease is executed.

A lease nondisturbance provision typically provides that, if the master lease is terminated before its natural expiration, the master landlord will not disturb the subtenants' possession and the subtenants will attorn to the master landlord. In the context of a ground lease, "attornment" is an agreement by a subtenant to be bound directly to the ground landlord for the performance of all obligations under the sublease in the event of the ground tenant's default [see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.250].

The form in [2], below, provides a general guaranty by the landlord that, in the event the ground lease is terminated before its natural expiration, the landlord will not disturb the possession of any subtenant not then in default under its sublease. It further provides that the landlord succeeds to the rights of the ground tenant (the sublessor), that the subtenants will be deemed to have attorned to the landlord, and that the subtenants need not pay rent to the landlord until the landlord has notified the subtenants of the ground lease's termination. The nondisturbance provision must also be included in any sublease entered into by the ground tenant [see Ch. 35A, Assignment and Sublease of Leasehold Interests, § 35A.210 (sublease with attornment and nondisturbance provisions)]. This form includes optional language requiring the landlord, on request of the ground tenant, to deliver a written instrument confirming the landlord's nondisturbance agreement to any subtenant or prospective subtenant.

[2] Form

Subleasing and Nondisturbance of Subtenants

Tenant's Right to Sublease

Section _____.01 During the term of this lease, Tenant shall have the right to sublease all or any portion of the premises without Landlord's consent, provided the following requirements are satisfied:

(a) Tenant shall not accept or require, directly or indirectly, more than one month's prepaid rent from any subtenant;

(b) After execution of each sublease, Tenant shall promptly notify Landlord of the subtenant's name and mailing address, and provide Landlord with a copy of the sublease; and

(c) Each sublease shall contain a provision stating that in the event of a default by Tenant under this lease, the subtenant shall attorn to Landlord, or in the event of any proceeding to foreclose a Leasehold Encumbrance (as defined in Section _____ of this lease), shall attorn to Lender (as defined in Section _____ of this lease) or any successor in interest of Lender designated in a written notice by Lender to a subtenant, effective on the date the subtenant receives notice from Landlord or a Lender that Tenant is in default under this lease and instructing Tenant to pay rent to Landlord, Lender, or Lender's designee.

Nondisturbance and Attornment

Section _____.02 If this lease is terminated for any reason before the natural expiration of its term, the termination shall not terminate nor affect the validity of any then-existing sublease of all or any portion of the premises made by Tenant as sublessor, provided the sublease meets the requirements set forth in Section _____[specify applicable section] of this lease. In that case, all of Tenant's interest as sublessor under any and all existing valid and enforceable subleases of all or any portion of the premises shall be deemed automatically assigned, transferred, and conveyed to Landlord. Landlord shall thereafter be bound on the subleases to the same extent Tenant (as sublessor) was bound on the subleases, and shall have all the rights that Tenant (as sublessor) had under each sublease, including the right to terminate any sublease then or thereafter in default. [Landlord shall, at Tenant's request, execute and deliver to any subtenant of all or any portion of the premises, a written instrument reciting in substance the contents of this section.]

CHAPTER 34E SHOPPING CENTERS: LEASING AND OPERATION

17-34E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide Scope

AUTHOR: Benjamin Kaplan Myron Moskovitz Practice Consultants

Scope

Benjamin Kaplann* Myron Moskovitzn Practice Consultants Scope

This chapter discusses shopping centers. The focus is on shopping center leasing and operations. The chapter also considers, to a very limited extent, the development of shopping centers. The bulk of the chapter consists of forms, which include a shopping center lease and a reciprocal easement agreement and declaration of covenants, conditions, and restrictions for a shopping center (commonly referred to as an "REA"). The forms part also includes illustrative rules and regulations and sign criteria that may be appended to a shopping center lease or an REA. The comments to the forms and the Legal Background examine relevant law. The Transaction Guide contains drafting guides for a shopping center lease and an REA.

For shopping center lease transactions [see § 34E.15], this chapter should be used in conjunction with Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, and Ch. 34D, Ground Leases.

This chapter does not cover practical development matters relevant to a shopping center, such as site selection and optimal tenant mixes, since the role of an attorney in a shopping center transaction does not usually extend to those matters. The only aspect of shopping center development covered in this chapter is the drafting of a shopping center REA that grants easements and imposes covenants, conditions, and restrictions relating to the use of the shopping center. The REA included in this chapter [see § 34E.200[2]] also includes provisions relating to the initial construction and development of a shopping center. These provisions are sometimes included in a separate development agreement rather than in the REA itself.

Other chapters in this publication cover development-related topics that are generally relevant to the development of a shopping center. These chapters and topics include the following:

- Acquisition of land [see Ch. 22, Options to Purchase Real Property ; Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements ; Ch. 24, Exchanges of Real Property];

- Real estate loans and security instruments [see Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans ; Ch. 25A, Security Instruments for Real Estate Financing ; Ch. 25B, Subordination, Assumption, and Assignment ; Ch.

§ 34E.10 Types of Shopping Centers

Commercial shopping centers generally fall into one of two basic types: the regional center, or the "strip center." The regional center usually contains an enclosed mall and serves a relatively large, regional geographical area. One or more large chain or other retail users typically "anchor" the center and may participate in the center as owners in fee. The regional center also contains a variety of smaller commercial and service tenants.

A strip center is smaller than a regional center, usually serves a neighborhood or community, and is not enclosed. It may be anchored by one or more of the following: a grocery store; a drug store; or one of the larger retail chains.

§ 34E.11 Multiple Owners of Shopping Center

[1] Reciprocal Easement Agreements (REAs)

Multiple owners are often involved in the development and operation of a shopping center. For example, it is not uncommon for a key department store or other large retailer to own the real property on which its store will be located, and to participate in the development of the shopping center with other owners of real property that will be included in the shopping center. Whenever multiple owners are or will be involved, it is necessary to provide by agreement for the integration of their multiple interests into a unified plan for the development, use, and operation of the shopping center. For a retail shopping center with one or more major owner-occupants, this is usually accomplished by negotiating and executing a mutual or reciprocal easement agreement (REA) at or around the time of acquisition of the interests in the property.

Generally, REAs are informal arrangements between adjoining landowners under which the landowners agree to share the use of stairways, driveways, waterways, or other appurtenances [see Porto v. Vosti (1955) 136 Cal. App. 2d 395, 397, 288 P.2d 618 (agreement to share water from well); Dierssen v. McCormack (1938) 28 Cal. App. 2d 164, 169-170, 82 P.2d 212 (agreement to share water flow in ditch); O'Neil v. Edwards (1928) 95 Cal. App. 523, 524, 272 P. 1099 (agreement to share use of driveway)], or to allow for the passage of light or air between buildings [Knoch v. Haizlip (1912) 163 Cal. 146, 151-152, 124 P. 998] . Rights analogous to easements sometimes arise when landowners enter into oral agreements for revocable licenses which thereafter become irrevocable [See Cooke v. Ramponi (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 282, 286, 239 P.2d 638] . Under such circumstances, the licensee has rights in the land of the licensor that, for practical purposes, are identical to the rights that might be embraced in an easement.

[2] Declarations

For developments not involving a large owner-retailer, such as a mixed-use commercial development, the implementation of a scheme for the common use and development of the project by future multiple owners is more likely to be achieved by a declaration of covenants, conditions, and restrictions (CCandRs). The primary difference between a declaration and an REA is that an REA is a negotiated agreement among owners, while a declaration is not.

The declaration is drafted and recorded by the original owner (declarant) of all of the real property slated for development. Thereafter, subsequent purchasers of individual parcels in the shopping center take their parcels subject to the declaration, absent an agreement by the declarant to amend or modify the original declaration. This is the same type of arrangement commonly used for residential subdivisions [see Ch. 30, Subdivision Regulation].

§ 34E.12 Enforceability of Covenants, Conditions, and Restrictions in REA or Declaration

To serve their intended purpose of binding all successive owners of a shopping center, the covenants, conditions, and restrictions in an REA or a declaration must be enforceable as covenants running with the land or as equitable servitudes, or both. The requirements for enforceability are discussed in § 34E.200[1].

§ 34E.13 Davis-Stirling Common Interest Development Act

[1] Applicability

The Davis-Stirling Common Interest Development Act [Civ. Code §§ 1350-1376] (the "Act") regulates the creation and essential attributes of common interest developments [see Civ. Code § 1352]. For comprehensive coverage of the requirements of the Act, see Ch. 33D, Planned Developments , and Ch. 34, Condominiums .

[2] Definitions

[a] "Common Interest Development"

A "common interest development" is any of the following [Civ. Code § 1351(c)]:

- A planned development [see [b], below];
- A community apartment project [see Civ. Code § 1351(d)];
- A condominium project [see Civ. Code § 1351(f)]; or
- A stock cooperative [see Civ. Code § 1351(m)].

Of these types of common interest developments, the planned development is the only one that potentially includes certain types of shopping centers.

[b] "Planned Development"

Under the Act, a planned development is a development (other than a community apartment project, a condominium project, or a stock cooperative) that has either or both of the following features [Civ. Code § 1351(k)]:

(1) The common area [see definition, below] is owned either (a) by an association [see Civ. Code § 1351(a) (an association is a nonprofit corporation or unincorporated association created for the purpose of managing a common interest development)], or (b) in common by the owners of the separate interests [see definition, below], who possess appurtenant rights to the beneficial use and enjoyment of the common area; and/or

(2) The association has the power to enforce any obligation of an owner of a separate interest relating to the beneficial use and enjoyment of the common area by means of an assessment on the owner's lot, parcel, area, or space [see Civ. Code §§ 1367, 1367.1].

For these purposes, a "separate interest" in a planned development is a separately owned lot, parcel, area, or space [Civ. Code § 1351(l)(3)]. The "common area" is the entire planned development other than the separately owned lots [Civ. Code § 1351(b)].

Alternatively, if the owners' association of the planned development has the power to levy an assessment against a separately owned lot to enforce an obligation of the lot's owner relating to the beneficial use and enjoyment of the common area [see item (2), above], the common area may consist of mutual or reciprocal easement rights appurtenant to the separately owned lots [Civ. Code § 1351(b)]. An estate in the common area may be a fee, a life estate, an estate for years, or any combination of these interests [Civ. Code § 1351(b)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Common Areas. In determining whether or not the above definitions apply to a particular shopping center, counsel should be aware that, even though most shopping center declarations refer to common areas, these areas are not necessarily common areas for purposes of the Act. It is also important to remember that under the Act, ownership of the common areas refers to an estate in fee, a life estate, an estate for years, or any combination of these estates [see Civ. Code § 1351(b)]. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

[3] Requirements for Creation of Common Interest Development

A planned development or other common interest development is created on the occurrence of both of the following conditions [Civ. Code § 1352]:

- The conveyance of a separate interest (coupled with an interest in the common area or membership in the association); and

- The recordation of (1) a final or parcel map (if required under the Subdivision Map Act) [Gov. Code § 66410 et seq.; see § 34E.15[2]] and (2) a declaration.

The Davis-Stirling Act requires the declaration to contain certain information [see Civ. Code § 1353].

[4] Inapplicability of Certain Provisions to Commercial Development Certain requirements of the Act do not apply to common interest developments that are (1) expressly zoned as commercial developments and (2) limited in use to commercial purposes [see Civ. Code § 1373 (also applicable to industrial developments)]. The typical shopping center would clearly be considered such a commercial development. The Legislature created these exceptions after finding that the specified requirements protect purchasers in residential common interest developments, but that they are not necessary to protect purchasers in commercial (or industrial) developments and would result in unnecessary burdens and costs for those types of developments [see Civ. Code § 1373

].

The provisions inapplicable to a commercial development relate to all of the following:

- Amendment of a declaration [see Civ. Code § 1356];
- Association financial statements [see Civ. Code § 1365];
- Review of association operating and reserve accounts [see Civ. Code § 1365.5];
- Prohibitions against excessive fees and penalties [see Civ. Code § 1366.1];
- Delivery of certain documents to new purchasers [see Civ. Code § 1368];
- Association budgets [see Civ. Code § 1363(b)]; and
- Restrictions on raising assessments [see Civ. Code § 1366(b)].

§ 34E.14 Inapplicability of Subdivided Lands Act

The Subdivided Lands Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11000 et seq.] regulates the sale of subdivided lands [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 11004.5(c); see also Ch. 34, Condominiums]. However, the Act does not apply to the proposed sale or lease of lots or other interests in a subdivision in which the lots or other interests have been limited to commercial uses by zoning or by a recorded declaration of covenants, conditions, and restrictions [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11010.3]. This exception applies to shopping centers.

CHAPTER 34E SHOPPING CENTERS: LEASING AND OPERATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

17-34E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 34E.15

§ 34E.15 Shopping Center Leases

[1] Standard Leases

Shopping center leases are usually standardized for use by all tenants except large "key" or "anchor" tenants. Anchor tenants, such as department stores, typically have the leverage to negotiate more favorable terms than those contained in standard leases.

For the most part, the coverage of leases in this chapter is limited to matters specifically relevant to a retail shopping center lease. Because a shopping center lease is a form of commercial lease, much of the coverage in Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, is equally applicable to a shopping center lease and should be used in conjunction with this chapter. For example, Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, covers the following topics, all relevant to a shopping center lease:

- The legal requirements for creating a lease and the legal effect of a lease [see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.14];
- Net leases [see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.17];
- Rent provisions, including percentage rent and commercial rent control [see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial and Office Leases, §§ 34C.18, 34C.200[1][d], [e]];
- The effect of hazardous substance laws on leases [see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.19];
- The effect of a tenant's bankruptcy on a lease [see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.20]; and

- Financing considerations [see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, §§ 34C.250, 34C.251].

Chapter 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, also contains several alternative lease provisions that may be included in a shopping center lease.

[2] Inapplicability of Subdivision Laws

The leasing of stores or similar space in a commercial building is specifically exempt [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 11000] from the requirements of the Subdivided Lands Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11000 et seq.]. Also, the Subdivision Map Act [Gov. Code § 66410 et seq.] does not apply to the financing or leasing of offices, stores, or similar space in a commercial building [see Gov. Code § 66412(a)].

DIVISION II: REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 34E SHOPPING CENTERS: LEASING AND OPERATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

17-34E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 34E.16

AUTHOR: Benjamin Kaplan Myron Moskovitz Practice Consultants

§ 34E.16 Covenant of Continuous Business Operation

[1] Inclusion of Covenant Is Subject to Negotiation

An REA or a lease for a shopping center may contain a covenant by an owner-occupant or a tenant of the shopping center to continuously operate its business for a stated period of time. In the case of a lease, this period would be the term of the lease. The inclusion of such a clause is likely to be the subject of negotiations. Most owner-occupants and tenants are reluctant to give the covenant. On the other hand, a developer-owner or landlord often seeks to extract such a covenant from major owner-occupants or large tenants, since continued operation in the shopping center by those occupants or tenants is a draw for other tenants and customers to the shopping center. The lender for a developer or landlord may also bargain for inclusion of covenants by major operators since their continued operation enhances the lender's security interest in the shopping center. For an operating covenant for a major occupant-owner of a shopping center, see § 34E.200[2].

PRACTICE TIP:

Another Reason for Wanting Covenant. It would appear that the owner wants the covenant for one more reason: to get the higher rent that sales will produce. The percentage of sales as rent is usually higher than the minimum. (This is certainly implied by the cases in [2], below.) By Myron Moskovitz.

PRACTICE TIP: "Continuous Operation" Should Be Defined. The lessor may also have a gross sales percentage clause which would be effected by the lessee limiting store hours to less cost effective days or times. "Continuous operation" therefore needs to be carefully defined in terms of not only which days and hours, but also which holidays. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[2] Implied Covenant

Most, if not all, reported cases in California involving an operating covenant have considered implied covenants in leases. As a general rule, the fact that a lease is made for a particular purpose does not imply a covenant on the part of the tenant to continue to use the premises for the particular purpose, and the tenant may cease to use the premises for any purpose. However, when the rent under a commercial lease is a specified but unsubstantial minimum plus a percentage, the tenant's covenant of continued operation may be implied [Lippman v. Sears. Roebuck & Co. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 136, 142-143, 280 P.2d 775 ; College Block v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1376, 1380, 254 Cal. Rptr. 179] . The rationale behind the finding of an implied covenant is that when a landlord agrees to a nominal minimum rent plus a percentage, the landlord's consideration for entering into the lease is based on receiving a fair rental return from its percentage of the tenant's sales, which requires that the tenant continue to operate in order to generate the sales [see College Block v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1376, 1380, 254 Cal. Rptr. 179] .

An implied operating covenant has not yet been extended by the courts to a situation involving multiple-fee owner-occupants of a shopping center. However, when the developer, as an inducement to have large retailers locate in the center, grants major financial concessions (such as a below-market original purchase price for the land, a reduction in construction and development costs, and/or a reduction in or exclusion from required contributions to common area operating costs), the situation is arguably analogous to a landlord-tenant relationship in which the landlord charges nominal basic rent plus a percentage. As discussed in the preceding paragraph, a covenant of continued operation may be implied under those circumstances.

PRACTICE TIP:

Don't Rely on Implied Covenants. Unless one is seeking litigation, a drafter should never rely on any implied covenant, including, but not limited to, one for "continuous operation." By Benjamin Kaplan.

PRACTICE TIP: Agreement Should Specify Intent of Parties. If an operating covenant is not intended in any transaction between owners of the shopping center or in a shopping center lease, the applicable instrument should include an express provision to that effect. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

[3] Remedies for Breach

[a] Damages

The measure of damages for breach of the covenant to remain in business ordinarily is the amount that the landlord would have received from the landlord's share of the proceeds of the business had the tenant operated it in its usual and customary manner [Lippman v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 136, 146, 280 P.2d 775 ; see College Block v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1376, 1383 n.9, 254 Cal. Rptr. 179] . The parties, however, may provide a different measure of damages in the lease. For example, in one case the California Supreme Court found that the parties made specific provision in the lease for the payment of damages in the event that the tenant ceased to occupy the premises. Under the lease, if the tenant sublet or assigned the premises, the landlord was entitled to receive the average monthly rental paid by the tenant to the landlord during the 12-month period immediately preceding the subletting or assignment. In the event the lessee abandoned the premises, it was obligated to pay as damages the difference between the best rent obtainable by the landlord from a reletting of them and the rent provided for under the lease. In the Court's view, these provisions in effect liquidated the damages to the landlord from a loss of a percentage of the income from the tenant's business if the business ceased to occupy the premises. The Court determined that it was reasonably implied by these provisions that the parties agreed on the same measure of damages when that loss resulted from abandonment of the integral purpose for which the lease was made [Lippman v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 136, 146-147, 280 P.2d 775] .

Where a lease for premises in a shopping center included a liquidated damages clause and a covenant of "Continuous Operation," and the tenant ceased operations before the end of its lease term, a liquidated damages clause in the lease was enforceable as compensation for breach of the covenant of continuous operation. Although the tenant's evidence may have given rise to an inference that the clause was arbitrary, the evidence was not conclusive, and was countered by expert testimony introduced by the owner of the shopping center that the clause was intended to reimburse it for the loss in synergy, goodwill, and patronage the shopping center and other tenants would lose if the tenant ceased operation [El Centro Mall LLC v. Payless Shoesource Inc. (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 58, 65, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 43] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Damages. If the lease includes provisions for formulaic damages after breach, such as pursuant to Civ. Code § 1954.2, it should clearly be stated that the damages are not in lieu of other damages which may be sought under other provisions of the lease. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[b] Specific Performance

California cases have not yet ordered specific performance or injunctive relief for breach of either an implied or express operating covenant. However, in other jurisdictions, specific performance has been both denied [see Madison Plaza, Inc. v. Shapira Corp. (1979) 387 N.E.2d 483, 487] and granted [see Dover Shopping Center, Inc. v. Cushman's Sons, Inc. (1960) 164 A.2d 785, 791] , at least for express operating covenants.

§ 34E.17 Restrictive and Exclusive Use Provisions

Inclusion of a provision in a shopping center lease or an REA that restricts certain uses or grants exclusive rights of operation to a specific occupant requires consideration of whether the provision is likely to violate federal and state antitrust law. Because of the evolving nature of this area of the law, counsel must research current law for any particular transaction. As a general proposition under antitrust law, all circumstances of a case are considered in determining whether a restriction constitutes an unreasonable restraint of trade or unreasonably restricts competition.

An "exclusive" use clause that grants an occupant the exclusive right to operate a particular business in a shopping center or to sell a particular type of merchandise and excludes all others from operating the same or similar business or from selling the protected type of merchandise may or may not be enforceable under applicable antitrust laws. For example, in one case, two tenants in a shopping center entered into an agreement with the landlord. Under the agreement, a tenant operating a coffee shop agreed not to sell beer or wine in its shop, and a tenant operating a liquor store agreed not to sell Middle Eastern grocery items in its store. The landlord required the parties to enter into the agreement before it would execute a lease with the liquor store operator. The liquor store operator breached its agreement and began selling Middle Eastern products, and, in the ensuing case, asserted as its defense that the agreement constituted an illegal restraint of trade. The court rejected the defendant's argument, holding that the agreement did not involve the public welfare, did not unreasonably restrain either tenant, had a trivial non-competitive effect, was not directed at price, and did not per se constitute an illegal restraint of trade [Martikian v. Hong (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 1130, 1133-1134, 211 Cal. Rptr. 66] .

A lease granting the tenant the exclusive right to a market business in a shopping center, basing the rent on a percentage of receipts, and granting either party the right to cancel if sales fell below a certain level was interpreted to prohibit the landlord from expanding the shopping center and establishing a competing market in the newly acquired area [Carter v. Adler (1955) 138 Cal. App. 2d 63, 70-74, 291 P.2d 111] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Be Sure to Prohibit Use From Other Tenants. If you grant an exclusive use to one tenant, be sure to include language in all other leases prohibiting those tenants from engaging in that use. By Myron Moskovitz.

PRACTICE TIP: Again, Be Sure to Prohibit Use From Other Tenants. When there are a number of retail tenants, the landlord may forget instances in which one or more have exclusive use provisions. Therefore, if an attorney is called on to draft a retail lease, one should obtain affirmative representations in writing from the landlord, that he/she has examined the other leases and that none contain any exclusive use clauses or contain only such provisions as are not in conflict with the prospective tenant's use. By Benjamin Kaplan.

PRACTICE TIP: Use Clauses for Multiuse Projects. "Use" in terms of subtenancies may be subject to non-competition clauses as well as appropriate "subtenant mixed uses." Careful attention should be paid for projects with potential multiuse, multipurpose development, such as shopping centers or other retail facilities. By Benjamin Kaplan.

For a sample use provision and discussion of the legal issues related to the use of the premises, including lease provisions for restricting or permitting certain tenant uses, see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.230. Noncompetition and other covenants affecting contiguous property, such as in a shopping center, are discussed in § 34C.232. For a general discussion of the law applicable to restraints of trade, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, ch. 565, Unfair Competition (Matthew Bender).

§ 34E.18 Merchants' Association

[1] Purposes of Merchants' Association

A merchants' association may be formed for a shopping center to coordinate and foster the common promotional and advertising activities of the merchants. With the aid of an effective merchants' association, the owner-developer can (1) work at creating an image for the shopping center, (2) coordinate advertisements promoting the center as a whole rather than just the individual merchants, and (3) resolve any conflicting self-interests of the store owners that could injure the efficient operation of the center. It is usually organized either as an unincorporated association or as a nonprofit membership corporation [see Corp. Code § 7111] under the Nonprofit Mutual Benefit Corporation Law [Corp. Code § 7110 et seq.]. For articles and bylaws for a nonprofit mutual benefit corporation, see Ch. 13, Nonprofit Corporations . Chapter 13A, Nonprofit Unincorporated Associations, contains governing instruments for an unincorporated association.

[2] Mandatory Membership

Every tenant of a shopping center should be required by its lease to be and remain a member of the association [see, e.g., § 34E.201 [2], P 10.01]. Some large "key" tenants of a center may resist mandatory membership in the association. In response to this problem, a landlord may include in the governing documents for the association, a provision that grants the "key" tenant the continuing right to designate or select a director of the board of the association. If the association is formed as a nonprofit mutual benefit corporation, up to one third of its directors may hold office by virtue of designation or selection (as provided by the corporate articles or bylaws) rather than by election by the membership at large [Corp. Code § 7220(d)].

[3] Governing Instruments

The governing instruments of a merchants' association typically grant it the power to set the amount of assessments payable by tenants on an annual or other basis by apportioning its expenses among its members on the basis of a stated formula. One commonly used formula prorates the total association expenses among the tenants on the basis of the amount of square feet in the center occupied by each, after first deducting from the total expenses any amount the landlord is required to contribute to the association. Another formula bases the proration on a tenant's gross sales [see California Real Estate Law and Practice, ch. 474, Shopping Centers (Matthew Bender)]. Different formulas may apply to large "key" tenants.

The governing documents usually require the landlord to be a member of the association and to contribute on a regular basis to the association. The amount of the required contribution is usually a stated percentage of the association expenses for a given period or a stated percentage of total assessments assessed against all tenants for a given period, subject to a "cap" dollar amount.

§ 34E.19 Public Access to Shopping Centers

[1] Right to Restrict Access Is Limited

Even though shopping centers are normally private property, the right of a shopping center to restrict public access is limited by both constitutional and other law. Owners of a shopping center must be aware of applicable limitations in promulgating and enforcing rules and regulations for the shopping center [see § 34E.203[2]].

[2] Protected Activities

[a] United States Supreme Court Decisions

When a privately owned shopping center prohibited the distribution inside the shopping center of handbills that were unrelated to the center's operation, the United States Supreme Court upheld the center's right to regulate handbill distribution, finding that property does not lose its private character merely because the public is generally invited to use it for designated purposes [see Lloyd Corp. v. Tanner (1972) 407 U.S. 551, 569, 92 S. Ct. 2219, 33 L. Ed. 2d 131] . In Lloyd, the Court noted several factors relevant to its decision [Lloyd Corp. v. Tanner (1972) 407 U.S. 551, 564-570, 92 S. Ct. 2219, 33 L. Ed. 2d 131] :

- First, the handbills, invitations to the public to attend a draft protest, had no relation to any purpose for which the center was being used.

- Second, there were other public places available for handbill distribution.

- Third, the Court noted that the shopping center was not dedicated generally to the public. Instead, the public was invited to the premises only to do business with the establishments there.

- Finally, the Court stated that even when public property is involved, the state has the power to preserve the property for its lawfully dedicated purpose, and thus to control its use to some extent.

Subsequently, the Supreme Court ruled that the constitutional guarantee of free expression did not give striking union members an absolute right to enter a shopping center and picket their employer's retail outlet in the center [see Hudgens v. NLRB (1976) 424 U.S. 507, 513-521, 96 S. Ct. 1029, 47 L. Ed. 2d 196] . In a later case, the Court held that a union may not, under the National Labor Relations Act (NLRA), distribute handbills advocating a total boycott of a shopping center because of a dispute between a union and a single tenant involving construction of the tenant's store [see Edward J. De Bartolo Corp. v. NLRB (1983) 463 U.S. 147, 153-157, 103 S. Ct. 2926, 77 L. Ed. 2d 535] . However, in that case, the Court ultimately held that the specific activities under consideration were permitted under the NLRA because they did not violate the NLRA (1) by inducing or encouraging employees of other tenants to strike, or (2) by threatening, coercing, or restraining customers from shopping at the mall [see DeBartolo v. Fla. Gulf Coast Tr. Coun. (1988) 485 U.S. 568, 577-588, 108 S. Ct. 1392, 99 L. Ed. 2d 645] .

[b] California Supreme Court Decisions

The California Supreme Court has limited the right of a shopping center to restrict public use of the premises. First, the Court has ruled that the California Constitution protects speech and petitioning reasonably exercised in shopping centers, even when the centers are privately owned [Robins v. Pruneyard Shopping Center (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 899, 910, 153 Cal. Rptr. 854, 592 P.2d 341 , aff'd, 447 U.S. 74, 100 S. Ct. 2035, 64 L. Ed. 2d 741 (1980)] . Second, the Court has held that a shopping center may not eject any person on the basis of arbitrary discrimination [In re Cox (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 205, 216, 90 Cal. Rptr. 24, 474 P.2d 992 ; see [3], below].

The Pruneyard case in 1979 examined the issues resolved by the United States Supreme Court in Lloyd [see [a], above]. The California Supreme Court held that Lloyd did not define or recognize any property right of a shopping center, but merely defined the parameters of the free speech protection afforded by U.S. Const., amend. I. Therefore, there is no reason why California law cannot afford more protection to free speech than does the First Amendment and require shopping centers to permit free speech on the shopping center premises. The California Court then found that greater protection is provided by Cal. Const., art. I, §§ 2 and 3, and that those sections protect speech and petitioning that is reasonably exercised in shopping centers, even when the centers are privately owned [Robins v. Pruneyard Shopping Center (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 899, 910, 153 Cal. Rptr. 854, 592 P.2d 341 , aff'd, 447 U.S. 74, 100 S. Ct. 2035, 64 L. Ed. 2d 741 (1980) ; see H-CHH Associates v. Citizens for Representative Government (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1193, 238 Cal. Rptr. 841 , cert. denied, 485 U.S. 971 (1988) (shopping center land and parking facilities publicly owned)].

[c] Pruneyard Affirmed

The United States Supreme Court affirmed the California Supreme Court in Pruneyard [see [b], above]. It found that Lloyd does not limit a state's right to grant more expansive personal liberties than those conferred by the Federal Constitution. It also held that a state's expansion of these rights does not result in a taking of a center's property without just compensation [Pruneyard Shopping Center v. Robins (1980) 447 U.S. 74, 81, 84, 100 S. Ct. 2035, 64 L. Ed. 2d 741] .

[3] Arbitrary Discrimination Prohibited

The California Supreme Court has ruled that, under the Unruh Civil Rights Act [Civ. Code § 51], a business generally open to the public may not arbitrarily exclude a prospective customer and subject him or her to criminal conviction under a local trespass ordinance for refusal to leave. However, a business establishment need not tolerate disruptive behavior and may promulgate reasonable deportment regulations that are rationally related to the services performed and the facilities provided [see In re Cox (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 205, 216-217, 90 Cal. Rptr. 24, 474 P.2d 992] . A shopping center performs an important public function, and our modern society has become so interdependent and interrelated that those who perform a significant public function may not erect barriers of arbitrary discrimination in the marketplace [In re Cox (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 205, 218, 90 Cal. Rptr. 24, 474 P.2d 992] .

§ 34E.120 Representation

1. If requested to represent more than one party to transaction:

a. Recommend that other party or parties obtain separate counsel.

b. Determine whether or not potential for conflict exists.

2. If potential clients do not withdraw request and do not appear to have conflicting or potentially conflicting interests, take following steps [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310; Klemm v. Superior Court (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 893, 898, 142 Cal. Rptr. 509] :

a. Make full disclosure to each party of nature of representation of other party or parties; and

b. Obtain written consent of parties to arrangement before accepting employment.

PRACTICE TIP:
Representing Both Parties to Shopping Center Lease Is Not Advised. It would seem hard to conjure up a situation in which the conflict of interest existing between two clients could be more fundamental than that involved in a commercial shopping center lease. Regardless of the nature and scope of the written waivers there is really no way that an attorney can ethically represent both parties other than where the already agreed terms are solely rent, duration, and signature and the attorney acts solely as a scrivener. The attorney can not participate in negotiation or mediation between two clients with conflicting interests. By Benjamin Kaplan.

NOTE:

When a party to a lease or an REA is an entity rather than an individual, the entity must approve the transaction. Specific requirements for different types of entities are imposed by law and/or the governing instruments for the entity. For coverage of the statutory approval requirements pertaining to leases, which apply in many cases to REAs as well, see the Transaction Guide to Ch. 34B, Residential Leases. § 34E.122 Review of REA or Lease Drafted by Other Party

1. If REA or lease has not yet been drafted by other party, assist client in negotiations with other party.

2. On receipt of REA or lease drafted by other party's attorney, review it to ensure that it is:

   a. Consistent with client's previously stated requirements and objectives.

   b. Otherwise acceptable to client.

   c. Legally sufficient.

   NOTE:
   For a drafting guide that may be used as a checklist of provisions that must or should be included in a shopping center REA, see § 34E.130. For a drafting guide for a nonresidential lease, see § 34E.131 and the Transaction Guide to Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases.

3. Communicate and negotiate with other party's attorney regarding any changes in document requested by client to determine whether or not requested changes are acceptable to other party.

4. For requested changes that are not acceptable to other party, confer with client to determine client's position:

   a. Drop request for change.

   b. Insist on change and terminate negotiations if change remains unacceptable to other party.

c. Compromise on stated terms and conditions.

5. For requested changes that are acceptable to other party, confer with other party's attorney for mechanics of implementing change.

NOTE:

The drafting attorney may (1) agree to draft the proposed change for the attorney requesting the change, or (2) request that the other attorney submit a draft of the proposed change. Alternatively, the attorneys may jointly draft a proposed change, by phone or otherwise.

6. Obtain client's approval of final changes to document.

§ 34E.125 Priority of REA and Title Insurance

1. If applicable, verify that following have been or will be subordinated to REA:

a. Any existing mortgage or deed of trust on shopping center land.

b. Any existing lease (e.g., ground lease) covering any parcel in shopping center.

NOTE:
It is essential that the REA have priority over any preexisting mortgage, trust deed, or lease of record on the shopping center property. A lender or lessee is usually willing to subordinate its interest to an REA since implementation of the REA provides for uniform development of the land as a shopping center and thereby enhances the value of the property. However, the lender will require that the REA contain certain protective provisions [see § 34E.200[1][q]].

2. Obtain, or verify that some other party has obtained, commitment from title company to issue title policy on shopping center land providing, for example, following types of protection:

NOTE:
For comprehensive coverage of title insurance, see Ch. 26A, Title Insurance .

a. Standard A.L.T.A. owner's coverage.

b. Dating and issuing of policy to cover all documents that must be recorded to complete overall integration of shopping center.

c. Extension of protection not only to vested owner-occupant of center, but also to successors or assigns who may obtain controlling interest in owner's business other than through outright sale of assets.

d. Insurance of contiguity of all adjacent parcels of shopping center area.

e. Identity of parcels to those on particular survey maps.

f. Assurance that currently existing zoning ordinance covers all commercial uses of the parcels.

g. Assurance that easements and covenants contained in the REA [see § 34E.200[2]] are [see Civ. Code § 1468]:

(1) Valid.

(2) Valid interests in land covered by them.

(3) Mutually binding on servient and dominant tenements.

§ 34E.127 Recordation of REA

NOTE:

For the covenants contained in an REA to run with the land, the REA must be recorded [see Civ. Code § 1468(d); see also § 34E.200[1][c]]. For a covenant to be enforceable as an equitable servitude, the covenant must be contained in a recorded declaration or deed [see § 34E.200[1][d]].

1. Determine whether entire REA or only short form or memorandum of REA will be recorded.

NOTE:

The parties to an REA may be reluctant to record the entire REA since, once recorded, it is a matter of public record and its specific terms are no longer confidential. By preparing, acknowledging, and recording a short form or memorandum of REA, the parties can avoid making unwanted disclosures. However, if a short form of the REA is to be recorded, it must contain all of the covenants, conditions, and restrictions the parties want to be enforceable by and against their successors in interest to the property. The remainder of this Transaction Guide assumes that the entire REA will be recorded.

2. At time REA is executed, arrange for acknowledgment of REA by executing parties and for certification of acknowledgments by authorized officer [see Gov. Code § 27287].

NOTE:

Before an instrument can be recorded, its execution must be acknowledged (or proved) and the acknowledgment (or proof) certified [Gov. Code § 27287; see Civ. Code § 1170].

3. Have REA recorded in county in which property is located [Civ. Code §§ 1169, 1170].

NOTE:

The REA must be recorded by the county recorder of the county in which the subject real property is situated [see Civ. Code § 1169].

D. Drafting Guide

17-34E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 34E.130

AUTHOR: Benjamin Kaplan Myron Moskovitz Practice Consultants

§ 34E.130 Shopping Center REA

NOTE:

This drafting guide is for a reciprocal easement agreement and declaration of covenants, conditions, and restrictions (REA) for a shopping center consisting of separate contiguous parcels, each of which is already separately owned. As discussed in § 34E.11, this type of document is usually negotiated among the multiple owners of the parcels before the initial construction and development of the center.

Covenants, conditions, and restrictions may also be imposed and easements may be granted for a shopping center or mixed-use development as a whole by the owner of the land slated for development prior to the time any separate parcels are created or conveyed. In that case, the owner, as declarant, uses a declaration of covenants, conditions, and restrictions (CCandRs) to unilaterally impose the covenants, conditions, and restrictions and to grant easements that will be binding on any successor in interest to any parcel in the development. A separate declaration or CCandRs for a shopping center, as described in this paragraph, is not included in this chapter because of space limitations. That document would include many of the same provisions listed below and set forth in § 34E.200[2], but would be in the traditional format used for a subdivision declaration [see, e.g., Ch. 33D, Planned Developments , § 33D.200 (declaration of CC&Rs for planned development)].

[1] Parties to Agreement

1. Include following persons or entities as original parties to agreement:

a. Every fee owner of every parcel in shopping center.

b. Any ground or other lessee of any parcel in center.

c. Any other person with any legal ownership interest in any parcel in center (e.g., holder of life estate).

2. For each party, include [see § 34E.200[2], first (unnumbered) P]:

a. Full name.

b. Legal status and capacity.

3. For any parcel involving split interests (e.g., interests of fee owner and ground tenant), clarify responsibility of each owner of interest for specific affirmative obligations under agreement [see, e.g., § 34E.200[2], P 2.05].

NOTE:
For example, when a fee owner has leased its parcel to a ground tenant who will operate a business in the improvements to be constructed by the tenant, the REA should provide that the obligations it imposes relating to this construction and operation of the business are the ground tenant's obligations, at least for so long as the ground lease is in effect.

4. For parcels jointly owned (whether presently or in future), specify how responsibility for performance of terms of agreement is to be allocated among joint owners [see § 34E.200[2], P 2.06].

5. If distinction is to be made between parties who will be large occupants ("majors") of shopping center and other parties:

a. Describe qualifications for being classified as a "major" [see § 34E.200[2], P 1.03].

b. In connection with individual provisions of agreement, set forth special approval or other rights of majors.

[2] Description of Land Covered by REA

1. Identify each parcel in shopping center by [see § 34E.200[2], Recitals A-C]:

a. Legal description, either included in body of instrument or referred to and incorporated by reference.

b. Reference to either:
(1) Site plan for shopping center; or

(2) Recorded parcel map.

2. For each parcel, describe specific ownership or other interest held by identified parties [see § 34E.200[2], Recitals A-C].

[3] Common Plan

1. Include express statement that purpose of agreement is to establish common plan for joint development and operation of land as unified shopping center [see § 34E.200[2], Recitals D, E].

2. Indicate how plan is to be implemented, e.g., through [see § 34E.200[2], Recital E]:

a. Imposition of certain covenants, conditions, and restrictions (as further described in agreement) on all shopping center land, for benefit of each parcel and each party [see § 34E.200[2], P 17.01].

b. Granting of certain reciprocal easements (as further defined in agreement) [see § 34E.200[2], art. 3].

3. If declaration or similar document has previously been recorded for any portion of shopping center land, include provision stating that REA supersedes any previously recorded instrument, if that is intended effect of REA.

[4] Transfer Limitations, Rights, and Obligations

1. Include provision that prohibits transfer by party of any right, power, or obligation created by agreement without simultaneous transfer of that party's parcel or interest in parcel [see § 34E.200[2], P 2.01].

2. Describe transfers that will:

a. Result in transferor remaining obligated to perform all terms and conditions of agreement [see § 34E.200[2], P 2.05].

b. Result in transferee becoming obligated to perform all terms and conditions under agreement [see § 34E.200[2], P 2.04].

3. Set forth general requirements for transfers, such as [see § 34E.200[2], PP 2.01, 2.07]:

a. Delivery by transferor of notice of transfer to other parties.

b. Execution by transferee of written assumption agreement containing required information.

c. Execution of instrument of conveyance containing statement that property or interest is subject to REA, as recorded.

4. Describe any specific transfer restrictions, such as [see § 34E.200[2], P 2.02]:

a. For any party obligated to perform construction work, prohibition against transfer until completion of construction.

b. Prohibition against further subdivision of shopping center by developer.

5. Consider adding provision that requires each party obligated to construct shopping center to assume personal liability for construction notwithstanding a transfer [see § 34E.200[2], P 2.03].

6. For benefit of lenders and subsequent purchasers, include provision that exempts a transferee from liability for default occurring prior to date transferee acquires title [see § 34E.200[2], P 2.07(b)].

[5] Reciprocal Easements

1.For each easement to be granted, identify or describe [see § 34E.200[2], PP 3.01, 3.02]:

a. Its grantor.

b. Its grantee.

c. Parcel benefited by easement (dominant estate).

d. Parcel burdened by easement (servient estate).

e. Location.

f. Purpose, such as:
(1) Ingress and egress to shopping center.

(2) Parking.

(3) Utilities.

g. Duration.

h. Responsibility for maintenance [see § 34E.200[2], P 3.03].

i. Right to relocate, if any [see § 34E.200[2], P 3.03].

2. Characterize each easement as appurtenant to parcel that it benefits or in gross [see § 34E.200[2], P 3.02].

3. Identify persons to be benefited by easement [see § 34E.200[2], P 3.02]:

a. Grantee.

b. Grantee's:

(1) Successors in interest.

(2) Tenants.

(3) Customers.

4. If temporary encroachments are permitted, describe [see § 34E.200[2], P 3.05]:

a. Permitted encroachments; and

b. Their duration.

[6] Covenants for Operation and Use

NOTE:
For any covenant to be enforceable as a covenant running with the land or as an equitable servitude, certain statutory requirements (covenant running with the land) or judicial requirements (equitable servitude) must be satisfied. For a discussion of these requirements, see § 34E.200[1][c],[d].

1. Include provisions that cover, at a minimum, following matters relating to use and operation of shopping center:

a. Shopping center name [see § 34E.200[2], P 4.01].

b. Sign restrictions [see § 34E.200[2], P 4.02; see also § 34E.202[2]].

c. Access between parcels in shopping center [see § 34E.200[2], P 4.04].

d. Permitted uses [see § 34E.200[2], P 4.06].

e. Prohibited uses and activities [see § 34E.200[2], P 4.07].

2. Include clause that grants owners authority to promulgate rules and regulations for shopping center, and that specifies [see § 34E.200[2], P 4.05]:

a. Person or persons to whom foregoing authority is granted.

b. Persons or persons responsible for enforcement.

3. For any "major" occupant-owner that agrees to give a covenant of business operation, include provisions that:

a. Describe precisely what major covenants to do [see § 34E.200[2], P 8.01(a)].

b. State period during which covenant is to be in effect [see § 34E.200[2], P 8.01(b)].

c. Set forth circumstances under which major will be excused or released from covenant [see § 34E.200[2], PP 8.02, 8.03].

d. Subordinate covenant to lien of any mortgage or deed of trust on that major's parcel [see § 34E.200[2], P 8.04].

[7] Covenants for Buildings and Other Improvements

1.Impose requirement that no building or other improvements may be constructed unless they comply with uniform plan for shopping center, as established and implemented by REA [see § 34E.200[2], P 5.01].

2. Describe general building specifications and restrictions to which all improvements are subject, such as:

a. Location of specific "buildable" area for each parcel [see § 34E.200[2], P 5.02].

b. Building size limitations [see § 34E.200[2], P 5.03], described both by:
(1) Maximum gross floor area or similar measure; and

(2) Maximum permitted height in stories.

c. Other requirements, e.g.:

(1) Fire safety [see § 34E.200[2], P 5.06].

(2) Sidewalks [see § 34E.200[2], P 5.05].

3. For parking areas of shopping center [see § 34E.200[2], P 5.08]:

a. Designate location.

b. Define specific improvements that are to be considered part of parking areas.

c. Set forth minimum parking ratio.

d. Describe any rights or restrictions on reconfiguring parking areas.

e. Designate party responsible for its maintenance.

4. For each party, describe specific obligations for construction [see § 34E.200[2], P 6.02], including:

a. Type of commercial building, if any, to be constructed.

b. Common area improvements, if any.

c. Completion date [see § 34E.200[2], P 6.10].

5. Delegate responsibility for maintenance of:

a. Separate commercial buildings in shopping center [see § 34E.200[2], P 5.07].

b. Common areas of shopping center [see § 34E.200[2], art. 9].

[8] Development and Initial Construction

1. Allocate responsibility for:

a. Initial construction of [see § 34E.200[2], P 6.02]:
(1) Each commercial building.

(2) Service facilities appurtenant to commercial buildings.

(3) Sidewalks and landscape areas adjacent to commercial buildings.

(4) Common areas.

(5) Required off-site improvements.

b. Installation and hook-up of utility systems and facilities.

c. Payment of construction costs.

d. Obtaining necessary governmental approvals and permits.

e. Preparation and cost of preliminary and final plans.

2. For construction plans [see § 34E.200[2], PP 6.04, 6.05], describe:

a. Any required contents of plans.

b. Timing of preparation and submission.

c. Approval procedure.

3. For each party required to perform construction, require [see § 34E.200[2], PP 6.06, 6.07]:

a. Compliance with final approved plans and all other terms of REA.

b. Compliance with all applicable laws, regulations, or ordinances of governmental entities with jurisdiction.

c. Diligent commencement and completion.

d. Completion by specified date [see § 34E.200[2], P 6.10].

e. Standards for determining whether construction is completed.

f. Barricades around construction areas [see § 34E.200[2], P 6.08].

g. Lien-free completion.

h. Insurance for improvements being constructed, e.g. [see § 34E.200[2], P 6.12]:

(1) Fire and extended coverage.

(2) Public liability.

(3) Workers' compensation.

i. Indemnification of each other party by party performing construction [see § 34E.200[2], P 6.13].

4. When common area improvements will be constructed by developer for benefit of multiple owners in shopping center, consider including additional requirements for developer's construction, such as [see § 34E.200[2], P 6.07]:

a. Parties' right to approve developer's contract with general contractor.

b. Performance and lien bonds.

c. Periodic progress reports.

d. Parties' right to inspect and audit books and records.

[9] Leasing and Opening of Shopping Center

1. For multi-tenant building(s) located in shopping center [see § 34E.200[2], P 7.01]:

a. Identify party responsible for leasing.

b. Describe specific obligations for leasing that will apply:
(1) Prior to opening of shopping center.

(2) After opening of shopping center.

c. List any matters that must be included in tenant's lease.

2. For opening of shopping center and individual businesses, describe [see § 34E.200[2], P 7.02]:

a. When each party is required or permitted to open.

b. Any circumstances that will permit delay in opening.

[10] Operation and Maintenance of Shopping Center Common Areas

1. Define common areas [see § 34E.200[2], P 1.02].

2. Designate party responsible for maintenance and operation [see § 34E.200[2], P 9.01].

3. Describe specific management and maintenance responsibilities, including:

a. Responsibility for obtaining and maintaining insurance for common areas [see § 34E.200[2], P 9.03];

b. Duty to keep shopping center lien-free [see § 34E.200[2], P 9.07]; and

c. All other specific responsibilities [see § 34E.200[2], P 9.01].

4. Indicate whether party responsible for management and maintenance is permitted to delegate its responsibility in whole or in part to third parties, and, if so, describe any requirements or restrictions for third party contracts [see § 34E.200[2], P 9.02].

5. For common area operational costs [see § 34E.200[2], P 9.04]:

a. Define costs that may be included.

b. Set forth payment obligation of each party.

c. Describe accounting and billing requirements.

d. Consider including provision that grants parties right to audit books and records of party responsible for maintenance and operation.

6. Describe remedies for failure of manager-party to carry out duties [see § 34E.200[2], P 9.06].

7. Include method by which successor manager is to be designated [see § 34E.200[2], P 9.06].

[11] Taxes and Insurance

1. For real property taxes and assessments on shopping center [see § 34E.200[2], art. 10]:

a. Allocate responsibility for payment.

b. Require payment of taxes prior to delinquency.

c. Consider including a provision that permits nondefaulting parties to pay taxes not paid by defaulting party and that requires defaulting party to reimburse paying party for amount paid (plus interest).

d. If party responsible for payment of taxes is to have right to contest taxes, describe extent of right and any applicable conditions.

2. For each party, describe insurance to be procured and maintained [see § 34E.200[2], art. 11].

a. Type:
(1) Fire and extended coverage.

(2) Public liability.

(3) Other.

b. Portion of shopping center to be covered:

(1) Individual commercial buildings.

(2) Common area improvements.

c. Amount.

d. Other policy requirements:

(1) No cancellation without prior notice to other parties.

(2) Permissible insurers.

(3) Maximum deductible amounts.

(4) Designation of named or additional insureds.

(5) Subrogation rights (including waiver of these rights).

(6) Proof of insurance.

(7) Payment and use of policy proceeds.

3. Set forth indemnification agreement, if any, of each party [see § 34E.200[2], P 11.05].

[12] Damage and Destruction

1. Describe types and timing of damage or destruction that will give rise to obligation to rebuild [see § 34E.200[2], P 12.01].

2. For specific damage or destruction, designate party obligated to repair and rebuild [see § 34E.200[2], P 12.01].

3. For costs of rebuilding, include provisions for:

a. Payment of insurance proceeds to:
(1) Party obligated to rebuild.

(2) Insurance trustee.

b. Payment of any rebuilding costs not covered by insurance.

4. For rebuilding work, describe [see § 34E.200[2], P 12.02]:

a. Applicable construction standards.

b. Permitted time period for commencement and completion.

5. Describe circumstances under which rebuilding is not required [see § 34E.200[2], P 12.01].

6. Describe obligations, if any, of party that is not required or does not elect to rebuild [see § 34E.200[2], P 12.03].

7. For benefit of lenders, limit obligation to rebuild or restore following damage or destruction occurring after lender (or purchaser from lender) acquires title [see § 34E.200[2], P 12.04].

[13] Condemnation

1. Describe takings that will permit a party to terminate REA with respect to portion of property taken [see § 34E.200[2], P 13.01], such as taking of all or specified portion of:

a. Separate commercial buildings.

b. Common areas of shopping center.

2. When party is entitled to terminate REA with respect to portion of property taken [see § 34E.200 [2], P 13.01], set forth:

a. Method for termination.

b. Time period during which right must be exercised.

c. Date termination is to take effect.

3. Describe obligations of parties for any necessary reconstruction or rebuilding of portion of shopping center not taken [see § 34E.200[2], P 13.01], including:

a. Identity of party obligated to rebuild or restore.

b. Responsiblity for payment of cost.

c. Right, if any, of party obligated to rebuild or repair to receive portion of condemnation award.

d. Time period for commencement and completion of construction.

e. Standards for construction.

4. For each parcel in shopping center, set forth respective rights of parties in any condemnation award [see § 34E.200[2], P 13.02].

NOTE:

The owner of property acquired by eminent domain is entitled to compensation as provided under the Eminent Domain Law [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1230.010-1273.050], but that Law does not affect any rights the owner may have under any other statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.010]. If two or more statutes provide compensation for the same loss, the person entitled to compensation may be paid only once for that loss [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.010(b)].

[14] Default, Termination, and Remedies

1. Expressly state that default or breach does not give any person right to cancel or terminate agreement [see § 34E.200[2], P 14.04].

2. State when agreement is to terminate [see § 34E.200[2], P 14.05]:

a. After specified period of time.

b. On written agreement of all parties.

3. List persons required to join in any modification, amendment, or cancellation of agreement [see § 34E.200[2], P 14.05]:

a. Parties.

b. Lenders.

c. Others.

4. For breach of agreement, describe:

a. Remedies [see § 34E.200[2], P 14.01].

b. Any applicable cure period given to defaulting party [see § 34E.200[2], P 14.02].

c. Any right of nondefaulting party to cure [see § 34E.200[2], P 14.03].

5. Set forth agreement of parties relating to:

a. Unavoidable delays in performance [see § 34E.200[2], P 14.06].

b. Attorneys' fees [see § 34E.200[2], P 14.07].

[15] Effect of REA on Lenders and Rights of Lenders

NOTE:
A lender will insist that the REA include certain provisions intended to protect its security interest. Specific provisions depend on the particular lender involved, but those listed in Paragraphs 3-9, below, are typical of some of the more common requirements.

1. State that REA is to have priority over any subsequent deed of trust or mortgage [see § 34E.200[2], P 15.01].

2. If there are any existing deeds of trust or mortgages, include provision requiring their subordination to REA [see § 34E.200[2], P 15.01].

3. Require that any notice of default be given to lender for defaulting party [see § 34E.200[2], P 15.02].

4. Grant lender right to cure any default and specify applicable cure period for different types of defaults (e.g., those that can be cured by payment of money and those that cannot) [see § 34E.200[2], P 15.04].

5. Limit lender's responsibility to perform obligations under REA to period during which it has title to encumbered property [see § 34E.200[2], P 15.01].

6. Describe rights of lender to foreclose or to make assignment in lieu of foreclosure [see § 34E.200[2], P 15.03].

7. Set forth rights of lender in event of damage or destruction to improvements on encumbered property [see § 34E.200[2], P 12.04].

8. If REA includes operating covenant of major, include provision that subordinates covenant to lender's security interest [see § 34E.200[2], P 8.04].

9. If required by lender, include provision that prohibits any amendment, modification, or cancellation of any provision of REA without lender's prior written consent [see § 34E.200[2], P 14.05].

[16] Merchants' Association

1. If merchants' association is to be formed for shopping center, delegate responsibility for formation and organization [see § 34E.200[2], P 16.01].

2. For association itself, set forth:

a. Type of legal entity [see § 34E.200[2], P 16.01].

b. Membership obligations of [see § 34E.200[2], P 16.02]:
(1) Parties to REA.

(2) Tenants in shopping center.

c. Formula for determining dues and assessments to be paid by [see § 34E.200[2], P 16.02]:

(1) Tenants.

(2) Parties to REA.

3. List any matters that must be included in tenant leases [see § 34E.200[2], P 16.02].

4. For governing instruments of association [see § 34E.200[2], P 16.03], describe:

a. Any limitations on power of association.

b. Any right of approval or other rights granted to parties to REA.

[17] Recordation and Miscellaneous Provisions

1. Include provision that requires REA (or memorandum) to be recorded and that specifies [see § 34E.200[2], P 17.07]:

a. Party responsible for recording.

b. County in which it is to be recorded.

c. When it is to be recorded.

d. Method of allocation of recording costs.

2. Set forth agreement of parties regarding:

a. Method of giving required or permitted notices [see § 34E.200[2], P 17.04].

b. Approval period for matters required by terms of REA to be approved [see § 34E.200[2], P 17.05].

§ 34E.131 Drafting Guide for Shopping Center Lease

NOTE:

For a drafting guide for a commercial lease, which is equally applicable to the drafting of a shopping center lease, see Part IV of the Transaction Guide to Chapter 34C, Commercial, Industrial, and Office Leases. To avoid unnecessary repetition, only matters not covered in that drafting guide are included below.

[1] Maintenance and Use of Common Areas

1. Grant tenant nonexclusive right to use common areas, subject to compliance with landlord's rules and regulations [see § 34E.201[2], P 5.03].

2. Describe common areas [see § 34E.201[2], P 5.02].

3. Set forth landlord's responsibilities for and rights in common areas [see § 34E.201[2], P 5.01].

4. Describe any restrictions on parking by tenant employees [see § 34E.201[2], P 5.04].

5. Require tenant to contribute to landlord's cost of maintaining common areas [see § 34E.201[2], P 4.06], specifying:

a. Formula by which tenant's pro rata share is to be determined.

b. When tenant's share is payable.

[2] Miscellaneous Provisions

1. For landlord, consider including provision that limits landlord's liability under lease to shopping center and excludes any other assets of landlord [see § 34E.201[2], P 14.01].

2. When shopping center is subject to REA or similar instrument (e.g., declaration or operating agreement), state that fact and fact that lease is subordinate to foregoing instrument [see § 34E.201[2], P 14.02].

3. For landlord, consider including disclaimer by landlord that any major occupant of center will [see § 34E.201[2], P 14.03]:

a. Open (for new shopping center); or

b. Continue to operate (for existing shopping center).

§ 34E.200 Reciprocal Easement Agreement and Declaration of Restrictions and Covenants (REA)

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an agreement between multiple owners of contiguous parcels of real property that the owners intend to develop as a shopping center. In this agreement, commonly referred to as a reciprocal easement agreement or an "REA," the parties grant reciprocal easements to each other and make specific covenants regarding their development and use of the land, all for the purpose of establishing a uniform plan for the development, maintenance, and operation of the shopping center. To that end, this form includes uniform design standards, common area management and maintenance provisions, use restrictions, and operating covenants [see § 34E.11].

This form also includes provisions relating to the initial construction and development of the shopping center [see § 34E.200[2], art. 6]. Alternatively, these provisions are sometimes integrated into a separate development agreement executed between the developer and other owners of the shopping center.

For illustrative purposes only, this agreement assumes that three fee owners own three separate parcels that will make up the shopping center. One owner is the developer. The other two owners will be major occupants, such as department store operators, in the shopping center. This form refers to the two major occupants as "majors" [see § 34E.200[2], P 1.03] and grants them special approval and other rights. It also requires each major to construct, on its respective parcel, a building for its store, and certain related improvements immediately adjacent to its building. The developer is obligated to construct (1) a multi-tenant building on its parcel for leasing to individual tenants, and (2) all common area improvements (such as parking areas) for the shopping center, including common area improvements located on the parcels owned by the majors. After the completion of the initial construction for the shopping center, the developer must maintain all common areas in the center [see § 34E.200[2], art. 9].

As is true for any agreement, the specific provisions included in an REA must be based on the actual parties and circumstances involved. For example, an REA for a small neighborhood strip center is likely to be much shorter in length and less comprehensive than the one set forth below. Abbreviated forms of an REA may contain basic provisions for easements for the common areas, and for building and design or architectural restrictions. Further, an abbreviated REA may require each owner to construct its building and common area improvements on its parcel, and to maintain all improvements on its parcel.

[b] Davis-Stirling Common Interest Development Act

This REA has not been drafted to comply with the requirements of the Davis-Stirling Common Interest Development Act (the "Act") [Civ. Code §§ 1350-1373] governing declarations and similar instruments. For discussion of the circumstances under which a shopping center might be considered a "common interest development," and therefore subject to the Act, see Section 34E.13.

[c] Covenants Running With Land

Paragraph 14.05 of this form provides that all of the provisions of the form (except certain easement clauses) are to remain effective for a stated period of years unless the parties terminate or modify the agreement prior to the expiration of that period. If the various covenants relating to land use set forth in this form are to achieve their intended purpose of binding all owners of the shopping center and all successors in interest to the land contained within the shopping center, they must run with the land [see discussion below] and/or constitute equitable servitudes [see [d], below].

In order for covenants made among owners of land to run with the land, certain requirements imposed by Civil Code Section 1468 must be satisfied. Section 1468 allows two (or more) landowners to create burdens on land by covenants that bind subsequent grantees. More specifically, that statute applies to a covenant to do or refrain from doing some act on the covenantor's own land, when (1) the foregoing act is expressed to be for the benefit of the covenantee's land, (2) certain conditions (discussed below) are met, and (3) the covenant is made by the following: an owner of land with the owner of other land; a grantor of land with the grantee of the land conveyed; or the grantee of land conveyed with the grantor of the land [Civ. Code § 1468].

The following are the conditions that must be satisfied if the covenant is to run with the land [Civ. Code § 1468]:

> (1) The land of the covenantor that is to be affected by the covenants, and the land of the covenantee that is to be benefited, must be particularly described in the instrument containing the covenants [see § 34E.200[2], Recitals A-C].
>
> (2) The instrument containing the covenants must state that successive owners of the land are to be bound by the covenants for the benefit of the land owned by, granted by, or granted to the covenantee [see § 34E.200[2], P 17.01].
>
> (3) Each act must relate to (a) the use, repair, maintenance, or improvement of, or payment of taxes and assessments on, the land or some part of it; or (b), if the land owned by or granted to each consists of undivided interests in the same parcel or parcels, the suspension of the right of partition or sale in lieu of partition for a period that is reasonable in relation to the purpose of the covenant.
> (4) The instrument containing the covenants must be recorded in the office of the recorder of each county in which the affected land or some part of it is located [see § 34E.200[2], P 17.07].

If the foregoing conditions are satisfied, the covenant will run with both the land owned by or granted to the covenantor and the land owned by or granted to the covenantee. Further, the covenant will benefit or be binding on each successive owner, during his or her ownership, of any portion of the land affected by the covenant and on each person having any interest in the land derived through any owner of the land, except as provided by Civil Code Section 1466 (regarding nonliability for breaches before acquisition of the estate or after parting with it), or as specifically provided in the instrument creating the covenant, and notwithstanding the provisions of Civil Code Section 1465 (regarding persons bound by a covenant running with the land) [Civ. Code § 1468].

For additional coverage of covenants running with the land, see California Real Estate Law & Practice, Chapter 470, Subdivisions (Matthew Bender).

[d] Equitable Servitudes

[i] In General

If covenants and restrictions affecting the land are not enforceable at law as covenants running with land [see [c], above], they may still be enforceable in equity as equitable servitudes [Russell v. Palos Verdes Properties (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 754, 762-763, 32 Cal. Rptr. 488 ; see Marra v. Aetna Construction Co. (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 375, 378, 101 P.2d 490] . In practice, the judicially crafted requirements for enforcement of a covenant or restriction as an equitable servitude [see [ii]-[v], below] are very similar to those required for enforcement as a covenant running with the land [see [c], above].

[ii] Creation by Written Instrument

Equitable servitudes may be created only by a written agreement between property owners [see McBride v. Freeman (1923) 191 Cal. 152, 158, 215 P. 678 ; Russell v. Palos Verdes Properties (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 754, 762, 32 Cal. Rptr. 488] or by a deed [see Arrowhead Mut. Service Co. v. Faust (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 567, 581, 67 Cal. Rptr. 325] . In addition, the agreement or deed must meet the requirements discussed in [iii]-[v], below.

Special requirements apply when a declaration is recorded by the owner of property and (1) the owner intends, but has yet to, subdivide the property, or (2) the owner has subdivided the property but has yet to convey a parcel created by the subdivision. In either case, the mere recording of a declaration of covenants, conditions, and restrictions (or similar instrument) does not impose its covenants, conditions, or restrictions on the property described in the declaration until the following occur: the first parcel or lot in the larger tract of land is conveyed; and the deed expressly recites that the property conveyed by it is subject to the declaration [see Riley v. Bear Creek Planning Committee (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 500, 506-507, 131 Cal. Rptr. 381, 551 P.2d 1213 ; see also Scaringe v. J.C.C. Enterprises, Inc. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 1536, 1545-1547, 253 Cal. Rptr. 344] . In the case of a recorded declaration that describes multiple lots or parcels in a subdivision, relevant case law is ambiguous as to whether (1) the restrictions are enforceable against each lot in the subdivision if the first deed to the first lot or parcel contains a reference to the recorded declaration ("first deed only" theory), or (2) the reference to the recorded declaration must be included in the first deed to each of the lots or parcels in the subdivision ("all first deeds" theory) [Miller & Starr, California Real Estate 2d, Ch. 22, Covenants, Conditions, and Restrictions]. In these situations, when the subdivider has control over the deeds to the individual lots or parcels, this uncertainty can be eliminated by referring to and incorporating by reference the recorded declaration in each deed to the individual lots or parcels [see [v], below].

[iii] Notice to Grantee

A covenant may not be enforced as an equitable servitude by the covenator against its grantee unless the grantee had notice of the covenant or restriction at the time the grantee acquired title to the property affected by the covenant or restriction [see Martin v. Holm (1925) 197 Cal. 733, 746-748, 242 P. 718] . If a recorded declaration exists for the property, a deed to the property should incorporate by reference or otherwise refer to the recorded declaration [see Murry v. Lovell (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 30, 35, 281 P.2d 316] .

Even when the grantee's deed does not refer to restrictions contained in a recorded declaration, the grantee may, under certain circumstances, be deemed to have notice of the restrictions. For example, a purchaser whose deed did not contain any reference to recorded restrictions was held to have constructive notice of restrictions that were referred to in an earlier deed in the grantee's chain of title [see Wayt v. Patee (1928) 205 Cal. 46, 49, 269 P. 660] .

[iv] Description of Dominant Estate

The creation of an equitable servitude requires a designation or description of the dominant tenement [Werner v. Graham (1919) 181 Cal. 174, 181-182, 183 P. 945] . The deed to the benefited property must describe, or designate by map or some other means, the dominant tenement owned by the grantor [see Wing v. Forest Lawn Cemetery Assn. (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 472, 483, 101 P.2d 1099] . Without such a description or designation, the recital of a common plan by the grantor and the making of similar deeds is ineffective because the grantor has not bound himself or herself to continue to impose the restrictions on any specific property [see Wing v. Forest Lawn Cemetery Assn. (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 472, 480-481, 101 P.2d 1099] .

[v] Statement of Common Plan

To be enforceable as equitable servitudes, restrictions must also be part of some general common plan applicable to and for the common benefit of all owners of separate parcels in the designated larger tract [Werner v. Graham (1919) 181 Cal. 174, 183-184, 183 P. 945 ; see § 34E.200[2], Recitals D, E and P 17.01]. An express statement of the common plan must be included in a recorded declaration or similar instrument and in any subsequent deeds [see Werner v. Graham (1919) 181 Cal. 174, 183-184, 183 P. 945 ; see also Riley v. Bear Creek Planning Committee (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 500, 505-507, 131 Cal. Rptr. 381, 551 P.2d 1213] . A subsequent deed may itself contain the express statement of the common plan or it may incorporate by reference the statement contained in a recorded declaration or similar instrument [see Riley v. Bear Creek Planning Committee (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 500, 505-507, 131 Cal. Rptr. 381, 551 P.2d 1213] . The intent of a grantor alone to create a common plan is not sufficient; the grantees must also have the intent [Werner v. Graham (1919) 181 Cal. 175, 184, 183 P. 945 ; Riley v. Bear Creek Planning Committee (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 500, 506, 131 Cal. Rptr. 381, 551 P.2d 1213] .

The courts strictly adhere to the joint intent requirement. For example, in one case, the court refused to enforce a view protection restriction contained in a recorded instrument against a purchaser of the affected land as either a covenant running with the land or as an equitable servitude because there was no written instrument showing a joint intent to be bound by the restriction (either between the owner seeking to enforce the restriction and its grantor or between the owner against whom enforcement was sought and its grantor) [see Scaringe v. J.C.C. Enterprises, Inc. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 1536, 1546-1547, 253 Cal. Rptr. 344] . In that case, the grant deed to the owner seeking to enforce the restriction did not refer to the recorded restrictions on the property, but the owner was aware of them. The grant deed to the owner against whom enforcement was sought did not contain any reference to recorded restrictions [see Scaringe v. J.C.C. Enterprises, Inc. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 1536, 1541, 1546-1547, 253 Cal. Rptr. 344] . Several other cases involving similar fact situations have reached the same conclusion [see, e.g., Anderson v. Pacific Avenue Inv. Co. (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 260, 264, 19 Cal. Rptr. 829 ; Murry v. Lovell (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 30, 32, 281 P.2d 316 ; Trahms v. Starrett (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 766, 771, 110 Cal. Rptr. 239] .

In view of these decisions, prudent practice indicates that for a covenant, condition, or restriction affecting land to be enforceable as a covenant running with the land or an equitable servitude, one should (1) strictly adhere to the statutory requirements of Civil Code Section 1468 [see [c], above] in drafting the instrument that imposes the covenant (whether an REA, declaration, or similar instrument), and (2) in any (or at least the first) deed or lease for the affected land to a subsequent purchaser or tenant, refer to and incorporate by reference the recorded covenant, condition, or restriction. This form requires that any instrument of transfer executed by a party refer to and incorporate by reference the recorded REA and state that the transfer is subject to the recorded REA [see § 34E.200[2], P 2.01].

[e] Reciprocal Easements

In this form, each owner grants to the other owners easements across the common areas of the grantor's parcel for the following activities relating to the use of the shopping center: parking, ingress, egress, and the installation, maintenance, removal, and replacement of utilities [see § 34E.200 [2], P 3.01]. Each easement is expressly stated to be appurtenant [see Civ. Code § 801] to the benefited parcels and for the benefit of successors and assigns of the owners of the benefited parcels. Each easement is to continue in effect until abandoned for a stated period of years [see § 34E.200[2], P 3.04]. The agreement also permits temporary encroachments on each parcel by each of the parties during the period the shopping center is being constructed [see § 34E.200[2], P 3.05].

For a discussion of the law relating to easements, see Volume 6, Chapter 28, Easements, Covenants, and Adjoining Owners.

[f] Transfer Restrictions and Rights

Article 2 of this form governs the sale, assignment, or other transfer by an owner of its parcel. No transfer of any right, power, or obligation created by the agreement may be made except in conjunction with the transfer of an owner's parcel or interest in the parcel [see § 34E.200[2], P 2.01]. Also, any transfer instrument must state that the parcel or interest in it is subject to the agreement, and refer to and incorporate by reference the agreement (as recorded) [see § 34E.200[2], P 2.01; see also [d][v], above].

This form contains a provision prohibiting the developer from subdividing its parcel on or after the effective date of the agreement [see § 34E.200[2], P 2.02]. An optional clause prohibits each owner from making any transfer of his or her parcel that will, pursuant to other provisions of the agreement discussed below, result in that party ceasing to be a party to the agreement. This prohibition applies until the owner has completed construction of its building and opened for business, or, in the case of the developer, until the developer has completed construction of its building and leased a specified percentage of it to tenants [see § 34E.200[2], P 2.02(b)]. A separate optional clause provides that for the same period, each party agrees to remain personally liable for the initial construction of its building, even if the party transfers its parcel or any interest in it [see § 34E.200[2], P 2.03].

If an owner assigns, sells, leases, or otherwise transfers its parcel without retaining any beneficial interest in it (other than under a mortgage or deed of trust) or without simultaneously acquiring a possessory interest, the transferee becomes a party to the agreement on its written assumption of the original party's obligations under the agreement [see § 34E.200[2], PP 2.04, 2.07]. If an owner encumbers his or her parcel or transfers the parcel while simultaneously acquiring a possessory interest (such as a leasehold interest under a sale-leaseback arrangement), the owner remains a party to the agreement [see § 34E.200[2], P 2.05].

This form also contains a provision that applies to jointly owned parcels and requires the appointment of an agent by the joint owners to act on their behalf in carrying out the provisions of the agreement [see § 34E.200[2], P 2.06]. Paragraph 2.07 of the form sets forth the conditions for release of an owner as a party to the agreement and requires a transferee to assume the obligations of the transferring party under the agreement.

[g] Covenant of Continuous Business Operation

This form contains an express covenant by each major occupant-owner to continue to operate its store in the shopping center under its same name and in the same physical size for a stated period of time, unless it is released from the covenant on the occurrence of certain specified events (discussed below). Notwithstanding this covenant, a major is not required to remain open during any period in which closure is required due to damage, destruction, or other cause beyond the major's control [see § 34E.200[2], P 8.01]. While many large retailers refuse or are reluctant to give this type of covenant, a lender for the developer or an occupant-owner may insist on such a covenant. Since a large shopping center occupant who gives an operating covenant is likely to be concerned about any restrictive effect the covenant may have on its ability to operate its business, this form grants the covenantor maximum flexibility and autonomy for the specifics of its internal operation [see § 34E.200[2], P 8.01(c)].

When an operating covenant is included in an REA, the document must describe any events that will result in the covenantor being released from the covenant. For example, these might include certain defaults by the developer, a continuing failure by the developer to maintain a certain occupancy level in its multi-tenant building, a failure by any other major to actually open for business in the shopping center or to operate for a stated period, or a release from, or default under, a covenant of continuous business operation made by another major [see § 34E.200[2], P 8.02]. What seem to be liberal provisions in this regard may be necessary for a major to agree to inclusion of an operating covenant.

The operating covenants in this agreement are expressed to be both covenants running with the land and to be personal to the covenantors. Consequently, each covenant is binding on the covenantor even after a transfer of the covenantor's parcel in the shopping center [see § 34E.200[2], P 8.03(a)]. However, an exception to continuing personal liability is often permitted for certain transfers to related, controlled, or controlling entities of the covenantor if the transferee assumes liability for performance of the covenant.

When an operating covenant is included in an agreement, the covenantor should make clear for whose benefit all or any part of the covenant is to run (for example, for all parties or only for the developer). This form includes alternative language that restricts the benefit of the covenant to the developer only, exclusive of the majors [see § 34E.200[2], P 8.03(b)]. In an attempt to limit remedies for breach of the operating covenant to damages, optional language excludes specific performance as a remedy for breach [see § 34E.200[2], P 8.03(c)].

Because a lender will not want to be burdened by an operating covenant in the event it succeeds to the interest of the covenator in the affected land, the agreement expressly provides for subordination of the covenant to the lender's security interest [see § 34E.200[2], P 8.04].

If the parties to an REA or similar agreement do not intend to give or create an operating covenant, the agreement should state that fact. For a discussion of circumstances under which operating covenants have been implied by the courts, see P 34E.16[2].

[h] Other Covenants for Operation and Use

Article 4 of this form contains various covenants regarding the operation and use of the shopping center. Some of these relate to permitted signs [see § 34E.200[2], P 4.02; see also § 34E.202[2]], required access between parcels [see § 34E.200[2], P 4.04], and prohibitions against sound and light projections from stores and buildings [see § 34E.200[2], P 4.03].

This form includes alternative provisions that define the uses generally permitted in the shopping center [see § 34E.200[2], P 4.06]. One alternative permits only retail sales and services. The other alternative is a mixed-use clause that allows retail uses and other uses often found in a neighborhood or community strip center, such as financial institutions, service businesses, and professional offices.

Activities and uses that are prohibited by this form include those that constitute a nuisance, involve the use or storage of hazardous substances, or violate any law or ordinance [see § 34E.200[2], P 4.07(a)]. This form also prohibits other uses that are incompatible with a commercial center, such as manufacturing, industrial, residential, and warehouse uses.

Several clauses in this form exclude certain types of businesses from the shopping center or restrict them to specified geographical locations in the shopping centers [see § 34E.200[2], P 4.07(b), (c)]. Certain types of businesses may be barred from the center because of the increased parking requirements associated with them and the fact that they do not normally draw customers to the center for the benefit of the retail merchants. These businesses may include certain types of entertainment businesses (for example, a bowling alley) or educational or training businesses (for example, a beauty college). One method of remedying the parking problems associated with these uses is to require the user to provide the additional parking required by its business.

An optional "exclusive" clause in this form [see § 34E.200[2], P 4.07(d)] may be used when one party to the agreement wishes to operate a specific type of business (for example, a grocery store) and to prohibit operation of the same or a similar type of business in the shopping center. The clause should be narrowly drafted to avoid violating federal or state antitrust laws [see § 34E.17]. The exclusive use clause in this form is to be effective only for so long as the operator continues to operate its specific business in the shopping center. If applicable, the clause should describe with particularity any permitted overlaps in merchandise carried by another business. For example, the operator of a drug store in the center may be permitted to carry some merchandise usually carried in a grocery store, such as alcoholic beverages and packaged food, provided the primary business of the drug store remains a drug store.

[i] Covenants for Buildings and Other Improvements

To achieve the goal of developing a shopping center under a uniform plan, an REA must contain covenants regulating the construction of any building or other improvements in the shopping center [see § 34E.200[2], art. 5]. In this form, each party covenants that any building or other improvements constructed on its parcel will comply with all terms of the REA and will otherwise be architecturally and aesthetically compatible with all other buildings and improvements in the center [see § 34E.200[2], P 5.01]. Buildings may be constructed only on designated portions of each parcel (referred to as "Commercial Areas") [see § 34E.200[2], P 5.02], and must comply with height and floor area limitations [see § 34E.200[2], PP 5.03, 5.04]. Parking areas may be located only on designated portions of the common areas for each parcel. Further, each parcel (and the shopping center as a whole) must maintain a minimum parking ratio at all times [see § 34E.200[2], P 5.08].

In this form, each party also covenants to maintain and keep in good condition the building constructed by it on its parcel [see § 34E.200[2], P 5.07]. Responsibility for maintaining the common areas of the shopping center is delegated to the developer [see § 34E.200[2], art. 9; see also [l], below].

[j] Construction Obligations of Each Party

How multiple owners of a shopping center divide responsibility for development and construction of the shopping center is a matter for agreement between those parties. Initial development and construction of the shopping center may be covered in the REA itself [see § 34E.200[2], art. 6] or in a separate development agreement between the parties.

As mentioned in [a], above, this form assumes that the shopping center consists of three parcels, each owned by a separate person or entity. The developer is one of the owners and is obligated to (1) construct a multi-tenant building on its parcel, (2) construct all common area improvements located on all three parcels [see § 34E.200[2], art. 6], and (3) maintain the common areas [see § 34E.200[2], art. 9; see also [l], below]. Each of the other two owners is required to construct a building for its own store on its respective parcel of land [see § 34E.200[2], art. 6]. In some relatively small shopping centers, each owner of a parcel must construct its own building and any common area improvements on its respective parcel, and must covenant to maintain its entire parcel, including any common areas located on it.

When, as in this REA, a developer will develop and construct improvements for the common benefit of all owners, the owners must reach an agreement regarding their respective contributions to the costs and expenses of the common improvements. This agreement may be incorporated into the declaration, as is the case in this form [see § 34E.200[2], P 6.07(c)], or into separate "side" agreements between the developer and individual owners. Often, as an inducement to attract desirable owner-occupants, the developer will agree to absorb more than its otherwise pro rata share (and sometimes, all) of the construction costs for the common areas. If confidentiality regarding any specific agreement between the developer and an owner-occupant is desired, the terms of their agreement should be included in a separate agreement rather than in the REA.

Article 6 of this form defines the construction obligations of each party and includes representative provisions for the selection of architects, plan preparation and approval, and standards and requirements for the actual construction. All construction must comply with applicable law [see § 34E.200[2], PP 6.06, 6.07(a)(3)] and with all provisions of the REA, including the site plan, exterior elevation specifications, construction specifications, and architectural style specifications referred to and incorporated by reference in the agreement [see § 34E.200[2], P 6.04]. Further, the construction must be completed free and clear of mechanic's liens [see § 34E.200[2], PP 6.02(e), 6.07(e)]. The form also specifies completion dates and standards for determining completion [see § 34E.200[2], P 6.10]. For its respective construction work, each party must maintain prescribed insurance [see § 34E.200[2], P 6.12] and indemnify the other parties from any liability [see § 34E.200[2], P 6.13].

For alternative construction provisions that are designed for inclusion in a lease but that are adaptable for use in a fee situation, see Chapter 34C, Commercial, Industrial, and Office Leases , § 34C.243 (landlord to construct building), and Chapter 34D, Ground Leases, § 34D.220 (ground lease requiring tenant to construct improvements). For separate coverage of constructions contracts in general, see Chapter 31, Construction Contracts .

[k] Opening of Shopping Center and Leasing Obligations of Developer

A shopping center that opens at maximum occupancy benefits the owners and all occupants of the center. In this form, the developer agrees to lease out a specified percentage of its multi-tenant building within a designated number of days after its completion date, and to thereafter use its best efforts to maintain maximum occupancy of the building [see § 34E.200[2], P 7.01].

The parties to this REA agree to coordinate efforts for a grand opening for the shopping center [see § 34E.200[2], P 7.02(a)]. However, in the case of the owners who will operate their own stores in the shopping center, this obligation to open is conditioned on the developer fulfilling its initial leasing obligation and completing the common areas [see § 34E.200 [2], P 7.02(b)]. Conversely, the developer's obligation to open its building for business is conditioned on at least one of the majors being ready to open for business. This form also includes language that excuses the majors from opening during certain time periods.

This form ties the majors' operating covenants to the developer's continuing obligation to keep its building leased. The majors are released from their operating covenants if (1) the developer fails to achieve the initial occupancy level required under the declaration, or (2) the developer achieves that level but its building subsequently falls below a certain occupancy level and continues below that level for a specified period of time [see § 34E.200[2], P 8.02 (a),(b)].

[l] Operation and Maintenance of Common Areas

An REA or a declaration must provide for the continuing operation, maintenance, and management of the shopping center common areas. This form obligates the developer to perform these duties [see § 34E.200[2], art. 9]. Alternatively, in a relatively small shopping center, each owner may be responsible for maintaining any common areas located on its own land.

The agreement should also describe all duties of the developer (or other obligated party) relating to the operation and maintenance of the common areas, including insurance obligations and the duty to keep the common areas free of liens [see § 34E.200[2], PP 9.01, 9.03, 9.07]. The REA should also describe the developer's authority to delegate duties to third parties [see § 34E.200[2], P 9.02], and its responsibilities for accurate recordkeeping [see § 34E.200[2], P 9.05].

The REA must also cover the respective obligations of each of the owners to contribute to the costs of maintaining the common area. This form uses a formula based on a ratio of the maximum gross floor area permitted on a parcel compared to the maximum gross floor area permitted on all parcels in the shopping center [see § 34E.200[2], P 9.04].

In some shopping centers, major occupants pay only a nominal amount compared to what they would otherwise pay on a pro rata basis, and the developer agrees to absorb the additional cost.

The REA should provide for the payment of "common area operational costs" and describe the obligations of the other owners to share those costs with the developer [see § 34E.200[2], P 9.04(a)]. A capital expenditure exceeding a specified dollar amount is not considered a common area operational cost under this form unless it is first approved by all of the parties in writing. Optional language provides that a management fee for the developer is to be included in the costs and expenses shared by the other owners [see § 34E.200[2], P 9.04(b)].

Paragraph 9.06 of this form provides for the transfer of management responsibilities to a party other than the developer on agreement of the parties or in the event that the developer fails to perform its duties.

[m] Taxes and Insurance

This REA requires each party to pay all taxes and assessments on the land owned by it, permits each party to pay any taxes not paid by a defaulting party and to be reimbursed for such a payment, and grants each party the right to contest any taxes or assessments [see § 34E.200[2], art. 10].

The parties to an REA must agree on the insurance obligations of the owners, including responsibility for coverage, the specific types of insurance, and the amounts to be carried. Consultation with an insurance broker specializing in shopping centers is recommended. In Article 11 of this form, each owner is required to carry fire and extended coverage insurance for its entire parcel and public liability insurance for its building [see § 34E.200[2], PP 11.01, 11.03]. The developer must carry public liability insurance for the shopping center common areas [see § 34E.200[2], PP 9.03, 11.03(b)]. This form also states the maximum amount of a deductible under any required insurance [see § 34E.200[2], P 11.04]. The parties should insist that proof of insurance required of each of them be furnished to the other parties, and that no policy be cancelable without prior advance notice to the others [see § 34E.200[2], P 11.04].

The insurance article of this form also contains a waiver of subrogation clause [see § 34E.200[2], P 11.02] and an indemnification clause [see § 34E.200[2], P 11.05]. For coverage of these subjects, see Chapter 34C, Commercial, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.222[1].

[n] Damage and Destruction

The parties must provide for their respective obligations in the event that any part of the shopping center is damaged or destroyed during the term of the REA. Under Paragraph 12.01 of this form, a major must repair and rebuild if damage or destruction to its parcel occurs during the period in which the major's operating covenant [see § 34E.200[2], art. 8; see also [g], above] is still in effect. Further, the developer is required to repair or rebuild its parcel if it suffers damage or destruction during the period in which any major's operating covenant is still in effect. In either case, optional language exempts a major or a developer from the obligation to repair and rebuild if the damage or destruction occurs near the end of the term of the operating covenant (for example, during the last two or three years) [see § 34E.200[2], P 12.01].

For damage or destruction occurring at a time other than the periods described above, the affected party may repair and rebuild, but is not required to do so, with one important exception. The one exception applies to the developer. It must repair and rebuild the improvements on its parcel if (1) no major's parcel was affected by the damage, and the majors execute a written instrument reinstating their covenants of operation for a specific period of years, or (2) one or more majors' parcels was affected by the damage, and at least one major elects to and does in fact rebuild [see § 34E.200[2], P 12.01].

Any required rebuilding must conform to all provisions of the REA [see § 34E.200[2], P 12.02]. If a party is not required to or elects not to rebuild, the damaged improvements must be razed and cleared and the parcel landscaped [see § 34E.200[2], P 12.03].

Specific provisions for damage and destruction must be tailored to the actual parties involved. For example, the provisions in this form, which are tied to the existence of majors' operating covenants, would be inappropriate in an REA that does not contain any operating covenants by the majors. Also, damage and destruction provisions are of particular importance to a lender for the shopping center. In Paragraph 12.04 of this form, a lender (or its purchaser) is not obligated to rebuild or repair unless the damage or destruction occurs after it (or its purchaser) acquires title to the affected parcel.

[o] Condemnation

Article 13 of this form sets forth the rights and duties of each party in the event that any portion of the shopping center is taken by eminent domain. A lender for a shopping center usually requires that an REA grant its borrower-party the right to terminate the REA for substantial takings of the property securing the lender's security interest. Under what circumstances a partial taking entitles the affected owner to terminate the REA (at least with respect to the portion of land taken) is a matter for agreement among the parties. Such an agreement is likely to be strongly influenced by the lenders involved.

In this form, a taking of more than a specified percentage of any building in the center obligates the owner to replace the floor area taken with unused remaining building area, if any, on the parcel. If it is not possible to restore the building to at least a specified percentage (for example, 90 percent) of the total floor area existing prior to the taking, the owner is permitted to terminate the REA with respect to its parcel [see § 34E.200[2], P 13.01(a)].

A taking of the parking areas of the shopping center will require the parties to agree on a plan for replacement, if possible, if the taking (1) causes the remaining parking areas to violate the parking ratios required by the REA or then-applicable zoning laws governing the size, number, layout, or other aspects of the parking areas, or (2) results in closure of ingress or egress to the shopping center. If the parties cannot reach an agreement within a specified time period, the owner of the affected parcel has the right to terminate the REA with respect to its parcel [see § 34E.200[2], P 13.01(b)].

The damages or compensation for a taking by eminent domain are to be awarded to each party as set forth in any applicable agreement, judgment, verdict, or order [see § 34E.200[2], P 13.02]. The Eminent Domain Law [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1230.010-1273.050] contains specific provisions relating to compensation for a taking by eminent domain [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1263.010-1263.770]. Those provisions do not affect any rights the owner of property acquired by eminent domain may have under any other statute. However, when two or more statutes provide compensation for the same loss, the person entitled to compensation may be paid only once for that loss [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.010(b)].

[p] Default, Termination, and Remedies

To assure continuity of the provisions of an REA necessary to achieve its intended purpose, the REA must provide that a breach by any party of its provisions does not terminate the agreement [see § 34E.200[2], P 14.04]. Otherwise, parties should be entitled to pursue any remedy at law or in equity against a breaching party [see § 34E.200[2], P 14.01]. This form grants a defaulting party a period within which to cure any default [see § 34E.200[2], P 14.02]. It also gives any party the right to (1) cure another party's default after the expiration of the defaulting party's cure period and any cure period granted a lender [see § 34E.200[2], P 15.04], and (2) record a claim of lien against the defaulting party's parcel for the amount expended by the curing party [see § 34E.200[2], P 14.03(b)].

The term of this REA is stated to be for a fixed number of years agreed on by the parties [see § 34E.200[2], P 14.05]. That number should be substantial. The REA may not be terminated or otherwise modified prior to the expiration of that period without the consent of all of the parties. Optional language is included for use if a lender's consent will also be required for termination or modification. Finally, the REA should specifically provide that the consent of any tenant or other non-party occupant of the shopping center is not required for termination or modification [see § 34E.200 [2], P 14.05].

[q] Lender Protective Provisions

This form contains several provisions intended to protect a lender's security interest in the shopping center [see § 34E.200[2], art. 15]. For example, although this form provides that a lender's mortgage or deed of trust is subordinate to the REA, it also states that a breach of the REA does not defeat or render invalid any mortgage or trust deed [see § 34E.200[2], P 15.01]. Lenders are usually willing to subordinate their security interest to an REA, provided it contains adequate protective provisions for the lender, since the value of the shopping center as a whole, and the property securing its interest, is enhanced by its operation as an integrated whole in accordance with the covenants, conditions, and restrictions imposed by the REA. If encumbrances exist on any portion of the shopping center prior to the date the REA is recorded, the borrower-party should be required to obtain its lender's subordination to the REA in a separate instrument [see § 34E.200[2], P 15.01]. This form also includes a provision that grants the fee owner under a sale-leaseback arrangement the same rights as a lender during the period a lease is in effect [see § 34E.200[2], P 15.06].

Under this form, a lender must be given notice of any default under the agreement by its borrower-party [see § 34E.200[2], P 15.02], and must also be given a period of time within which to cure the default or to commence curative action [see § 34E.200[2], P 15.04(a)]. This cure period must extend beyond the cure period granted to the defaulting party to cure its own default [see § 34E.200[2], P 14.02]. In lieu of curing the default, the lender may commence foreclosure proceedings during the cure period, but only if it cures all monetary defaults and performs all monetary obligations of its borrower-party until title to the affected parcel is transferred through foreclosure [see § 34E.200[2], P 15.04(b)].

Paragraph 14.03 of this form permits a nondefaulting party to cure a default of a party (but only after notice to the party and to the lender and expiration of the applicable cure periods for both), and to record a claim of lien on the defaulting party's parcel for costs and expenses incurred by the curing party. However, the form also provides that any claim of lien so recorded is subordinate to a first mortgage or deed of trust, whether recorded before or after the claim of lien [see § 34E.200[2], P 15.05(a)]. The same priority over a claim of lien is granted to the fee owner under a sale-leaseback arrangement [see § 34E.200[2], P 15.05(b)].

This form grants lenders other rights in addition to those set forth in Article 15. For example, it contains optional language that may be included if a lender's consent is to be required for any amendment, modification, or termination of the agreement [see § 34E.200[2], P 14.05]. Since a lender will typically insist that it not be burdened by an operating covenant given by its borrower-party in the event that the lender obtains title to the borrower's parcel, the agreement also subordinates any covenant to the lender's mortgage or trust deed [see § 34E.200[2], P 8.04]. Also, a lender (or fee owner under a sale-leaseback arrangement) is obligated to repair or restore damaged or destroyed improvements only if the damage or destruction occurs after the lender or fee owner (or purchaser from either) acquires title to the affected parcel [see § 34E.200[2], P 12.04].

[r] Merchants' Association

This form contains an optional article requiring the developer to organize a merchants' association for the shopping center [see § 34E.200[2], art. 16]. When this subject is covered in an REA, the REA should state whether the association will be unincorporated or incorporated. In California, most merchants' associations organized as corporations are incorporated under the Nonprofit Mutual Benefit Corporation Law [Corp. Code §§ 7110-8910].

When an REA requires the organization of a merchant's association, the owners should agree on the purpose of the association. In this form, the association's purpose is limited to promoting the common business interests of the merchants through advertising and other forms of promotion. The REA should also define the respective obligations of each of the parties and tenants in the shopping center for membership and dues in the association. The tenants' leases should require them to be members of the association [see, e.g., § 34E.201[2], P 10.01]. If exceptions for required membership or dues will exist for major occupants or tenants, the REA should clearly describe those exceptions.

For additional coverage of merchants' associations, see § 34E.18.

D. The Parties intend to develop the real property owned by each of them and described in Recitals A through C of this Agreement ("the Parcels") into a unified commercial shopping center ("the Shopping Center"), as set forth on the site plan (the "Site Plan") contained in Exhibit _____, which is attached to this Agreement and hereby incorporated by reference. The Shopping Center and each Parcel of real property contained in the Shopping Center will contain both Commercial Areas and Common Areas, as more particularly described in this Agreement.

E. By entering into this Agreement, the Parties desire to establish a common, general plan for the joint protection, development, maintenance, and improvement of the parcels in the Shopping Center as an integrated, retail shopping center. To this end, each Parcel shall be subject to certain protective provisions, covenants, conditions, and restrictions described in this Agreement, for the mutual benefit of the Parties and of each Parcel. Further, each Party shall grant to the others certain reciprocal easements in, to, over, under, and across the Common Areas located on each of the Parcels.

In consideration of the mutual covenants and agreements contained in this Agreement, the Parties agree as follows:

ARTICLE 1. DEFINITIONS

"Commercial Areas"

1.01. The term "Commercial Areas" means the portion of each Parcel and the portions of the Shopping Center designated as Commercial Areas on the Site Plan set forth in Exhibit _____. Commercial Areas are those portions of the Shopping Center designated for (1) the construction by the Parties of buildings (including loading docks and delivery areas appurtenant to those buildings), and (2) the use by the Parties or other Occupants for commercial purposes or other purposes related to the Shopping Center. The term "Commercial Areas" excludes Common Areas.

"Common Areas"

1.02. The term "Common Areas" means the portion of each Parcel and the portion of the Shopping Center designated as Common Areas on the Site Plan set forth in Exhibit _____. Common Areas are those portions of the Shopping Center designated for the nonexclusive use of the Parties, Occupants, and Users in common. Common Areas include all of the following: Parking Areas; roadways; sidewalks; walkways; malls; landscaped areas; public restrooms that are both directly accessible from pedestrian passageways and not located in the retail space of any Occupant; Shopping Center signs; and all other similar facilities provided for the convenience of Users. The term "Common Areas" does not include any Commercial Areas.

"Majors"

1.03. For purposes of this Agreement, Owner #2 and Owner #3 are each a "Major," and are hereafter collectively referred to as the "Majors." Each shall continue to be a Major for the period during which each operates on its respective Parcel a [specific type of business, e.g., retail department store] devoted exclusively to that Major's business and containing at least the minimum gross floor area required under Paragraph 6.02 of this Agreement for that Parcel. Any Person who becomes a Party to this Agreement (determined pursuant to the provisions of Article 2) as a successor in interest to any original Major named in this Agreement shall be a Major for so long as the successor Party operates a [specific type of business, e.g., retail department store] devoted exclusively to that Party's business and containing at least the minimum gross floor area required under Paragraph 6.02 of this Agreement for that Parcel. [Add if applicable: Any successor in interest described in Paragraph 8.03 of this Agreement to a Major originally named in this Agreement shall also be a Major for purposes of this Agreement.]

"Maximum Gross Floor Area"

1.04. The term "maximum gross floor area" means the maximum number of square feet of floor area permitted under Paragraph 5.03 of this Agreement for a building constructed on the Commercial Area of a Parcel, whether (1) all of that floor area is used in initial construction of the building, or (2) part of that floor area is used in initial construction of the building and the balance is held for expansion.

"Minimum Gross Floor Area"

1.05. The term "minimum gross floor area" means the minimum number of square feet of floor area required for a building initially constructed on the Commercial Area of a Parcel, as set forth in Paragraph 6.02 of this Agreement.

"Occupant"

1.06. The term "Occupant" means each of the Parties to this Agreement and any Person entitled at any time to the use and occupancy of any portion of the Commercial Areas in the Shopping Center under this Agreement or under any lease, license, concession agreement, or other instrument or arrangement.

"Party"

1.07. The term "Party" means each Person executing this Agreement, or that Person's successor in interest to a Parcel, as shown by the Official Records of the County of _____, State of California, and determined as of the time in question by the provisions of Article 2 of this Agreement.

"Person"

1.08. The term "Person" means an individual or a partnership, firm, association, corporation, trust, or any other form of legal or business entity.

"Shopping Center"

1.09. The term "Shopping Center" means the Parcels described in Recitals A through C. The Shopping Center contains both Common Areas and Commercial Areas as set forth in the Site Plan contained in Exhibit _____.

"Users"

1.10. The term "Users" means all Persons who have been granted permission to use the Common Areas, including the Parties, Occupants, employees, service and other personnel, invitees, customers, agents, and contractors.

ARTICLE 2. TRANSFER LIMITATIONS, RIGHTS, AND OBLIGATIONS

Limits on Transfer

2.01. No Party may transfer or assign any right, power, or obligation created under this Agreement without also transferring its own Parcel or its interest in that Parcel. Further, the transfer or assignment must comply with this Agreement. Any instrument of transfer or assignment shall state that the transfer or assignment is subject to this Agreement and shall refer to and incorporate by reference this Agreement. Any such reference shall recite the recording information for this Agreement, or for any memorandum of this Agreement, including the date and location of recordation and the instrument number.

Special Transfer Restrictions

2.02. Developer shall not subdivide or otherwise split or divide its Parcel at any time during the term of this Agreement, unless the Majors first approve the subdivision, split, or division. [Add if applicable: Notwithstanding any other provision of this Agreement, no Party shall make a transfer of its Parcel or an interest in its Parcel that, pursuant to the other provisions of this Article 2, results in the Party ceasing to be a Party to this Agreement, unless (1) in the case of the Developer, it has leased at least _____ (same number used in P 7.01(b), e.g., 40) percent of the leaseable retail store space in its building, or (2) in the case of a Major, it has completed all construction required of it under Article 6 and has opened for business.]

[Optional]

Personal Liability

2.03. Notwithstanding any other provisions of this Article 2, each Party is and shall remain personally liable to construct all improvements required of it under Article 6. A transfer of any right, title, or interest in a Party's Parcel (whether or not the transfer results in the Party remaining a Party pursuant to the provisions of this Article 2) shall not relieve the Party of its personal liability under this Paragraph if the transfer occurs prior to the following: (1) in the case of the Developer, the leasing of at least [same number used in P 7.01(b), e.g., 40] percent of the leaseable retail store space in its building, or (2) in the case of a Major, the completion of all construction required of it under Article 6 and its opening for business.

[Continue with the following:]

Transfer of Whole Interest

2.04. This Paragraph applies if a Party (1) conveys any leasehold interest in its Parcel, or (2) assigns, transfers, or conveys its whole interest in its Parcel without retaining any beneficial interest (other than under the terms of a deed of trust or mortgage), or without simultaneously acquiring a new interest by way of leasehold, life estate, or other possessory interest. In either case, the powers, rights, and interest conferred on that Party by this Agreement shall be assigned, transferred, or conveyed to the transferee, assignee, grantee, or lessee, and the obligations under this Agreement shall be assumed, pursuant to Paragraph 2.07 of this Agreement, by the transferee, assignee, grantee, or lessee.

Retention of Interest

2.05. This Paragraph applies if a Party (1) assigns, transfers, or conveys its whole interest in its Parcel but simultaneously acquires a new interest in the Parcel under a lease or similar possessory arrangement, or (2) conveys its interest in its Parcel or any part of it by deed of trust or other security instrument as security for indebtedness. In either case, none of the powers or obligations conferred on that Party pursuant to this Agreement shall be assigned, transferred, or conveyed with the interest assigned, transferred, or conveyed by the Party. All of the powers, rights, interests, and obligations provided for under this Agreement shall remain in the transferring Party for so long as that Party, (1) under the first set of circumstances described above, retains the new leasehold or other possessory interest in and to the Parcel; or, (2) under the second set of circumstances described above, remains the beneficial owner of its Parcel.

Multiple Owners of Parcel

2.06. (a) This Paragraph applies if at any time during the term of this Agreement a Party conveys or transfers its whole or any portion of its interest in its Parcel so as to vest ownership of the Parcel or any interest in the Parcel in more than one Person. In that case, those Persons, hereafter referred to as "Joint Owners of the Parcel," shall be considered a single Party under this Agreement and shall jointly appoint one of their number to act as Agent on behalf of all of them in carrying out the provisions of this Agreement. The appointment of an Agent pursuant to this Paragraph must be in a writing that is duly executed and acknowledged by each Joint Owner of the Parcel and is recorded in the Office of the Recorder of [county in which shopping center is located], California. Further, a copy of this writing must be given to every other Party to this Agreement in the manner required under Paragraph 17.04 of this Agreement. If an appointed Agent dies, is removed, becomes incapacitated, or is dissolved, the remaining Joint Owners of the Parcel shall promptly appoint a new Agent. If they fail to do so, an Agent shall be appointed pursuant to Subparagraph (d) of this Paragraph.

(b) The performance or exercise of rights under this Agreement by the Agent appointed to represent Joint Owners of the Parcel is binding on each Joint Owner of the Parcel and on each Person having an interest in a Joint Owner of the Parcel. So long as the appointment of an Agent remains in effect, each Joint Owner of the Parcel shall act only through its appointed Agent, and the other Parties to this Agreement shall have the right to deal exclusively with and to rely solely on the acts or omissions of the Agent in the performance of this Agreement. However, the appointment of an Agent pursuant to Subparagraph (a) of this Paragraph shall not relieve any Joint Owner of the Parcel from any of the obligations created under this Agreement.

(c) In the event an Agent is required to be appointed under the provisions of Subparagraph (a) of this Paragraph but none is appointed, the acts of any Party whose original exclusive interest in a Parcel is subsequently divided shall be binding on all Persons having an interest in the Parcel, whether or not the original Party retains any interest in the Parcel, until such time as written notice of the appointment of an Agent is given in the manner described in Subparagraph (a) of this Paragraph and is recorded in the Office of the Recorder of _____ County, California.

(d) If the Joint Owners of the Parcel do not appoint an Agent within [number, e.g., 30] days after they become obligated to make such an appointment, the other Parties to this Agreement, or any one of them if they are unable to act jointly, may appoint an Agent in the manner required under Subparagraph (a) of this Paragraph. That Agent shall be a Party to this Agreement for so long as the appointment is in effect. The appointment shall be binding and remain in full force and effect until the Joint Owners of the affected Parcel appoint a new Agent pursuant to Subparagraph (a) of this Paragraph.

(e) The Joint Owners of the Parcel may at any time revoke the previous appointment of an Agent and appoint a new one in the manner prescribed in Subparagraph (a) of this Paragraph.

(f) An Agent appointed by the Joint Owners of the Parcel shall be the agent of each of its principals. Service of any process, writ, summons, order, or other mandate of any nature relating to any action, suit, or proceeding arising out of this Agreement, or any demand for arbitration relating to this Agreement, may be made on the Agent. Service on the Agent constitutes due and proper service of any matter on each of its principals, provided a copy of the matter is also mailed to each principal at its last address known to the sender.

Release on Transfer

2.07. (a) If a Party conveys, assigns, sells, or otherwise transfers its entire right, title, and interest in its Parcel, that Party shall be released from any obligations arising under this Agreement subsequent to the date of the transfer, provided the transferring Party delivers written notice of the transfer and a written assumption statement, in recordable form and executed by the transferee, to all other Parties to this Agreement. If the transferring Party is obligated to operate and maintain the Common Areas of the Shopping Center, that Party shall not be released from its obligations under this Agreement until it also delivers a final summary statement of all costs and expenses for the Common Areas as of the effective transfer date. The written notice of transfer, the assumption statement, and, if applicable, the final summary statement for the Common Areas, shall be delivered prior to or at the time the instrument effecting the transfer is filed for recording with the County of _____[name of county where shopping center is located], California. The written assumption statement referred to in this Subparagraph shall be executed by the transferee in recordable form, shall contain an express statement that the transferee expressly assumes and agrees to be bound by the covenants and restrictions contained in this Agreement, and shall be delivered to the transferring Party prior to or at the time the instrument effecting the transfer of title or interest is filed for recording. A transferee's failure to comply with these requirements relating to assumption statements constitutes a default under this Agreement by the transferee, but does not modify or negate that transferee's liability under this Agreement or affect the running of any covenants with the land provided for under this Agreement.

(b) Any transferee shall not be liable for any default of its transferring Party occurring prior to the time the transferee acquires its right, title, or interest in a Parcel, with the following exception: the acquired right, title, or interest shall be subject to any prior recorded claim of lien described in Paragraph 14.03 of this Agreement.

ARTICLE 3. EASEMENTS

Common Area Easements

3.01. Each Party, as grantor, grants to the other Parties, as grantees, the following nonexclusive easements over, across, in, under, and through the Common Areas of the grantor's Parcel:

(a) For parking motor vehicles in those portions of the Common Areas that are from time to time designated as Parking Areas.

(b) For ingress and egress over, across, in, and through the Common Areas by vehicular and pedestrian traffic.

(c) For the installation, maintenance, removal, and replacement of water mains, telephone lines, gas mains, sewers, electrical systems or conduits, water drainage systems or structures, and other public utilities and services (collectively referred to as "Utility System(s)"). Except when not feasible, all Utility Systems shall be located underground. The location of any Utility System that must be located above ground must be placed so as to not interfere with the use of the Common Areas.

Nature of Easements

3.02. For purposes of the easements granted in Paragraph 3.01 of this Agreement, the Parcels benefited by each easement constitute the dominant estate, and the Parcel burdened by each easement constitutes the servient estate. The grant of an easement to a Party for that Party's benefit shall also be a grant to and for the benefit of that Party's successors, heirs, assigns, Occupants, and Users. Each easement granted in Paragraph 3.01 of this Agreement is appurtenant to and for the benefit of each Parcel owned by each grantee of the easement. No easement may be transferred, assigned, or encumbered except as an appurtenance to the benefited Parcels.

Relocation and Maintenance of Utility Systems

3.03. The grantee of any easement for Utility Systems shall be responsible for all maintenance and repairs performed or made in connection with the easement. All maintenance and repairs shall be performed so as not to interfere or obstruct the business of or access to and from the Parcel burdened by the easement. Each Party may relocate utility drains, mains, lines, sewers, and related equipment located on its Parcel, provided the following conditions and requirements are satisfied: (1) the Party pays the sole cost and expense of the relocation; the relocation is performed only after [number, e.g., 30] days' written notice has been given to the grantee of the easement in question; the relocation does not reduce or unreasonably impair the usefulness or function of the Utility facilities; the relocation does not interrupt the Utility services to the grantee; and the relocation will not interfere with the grantee's business operations or the business operations of any tenant of the grantee.

Duration of Easements

3.04. Each easement granted under this Article shall continue in effect both as to any Parcel benefited and as to any Parcel burdened by the easement until the use of the easement for the benefit of a particular Parcel is abandoned for a period of at least [time period, e.g., two years].

Temporary Encroachments

3.05. Each Party agrees that during the construction of improvements on the Common Areas and the Commercial Areas as required under this Agreement, certain minor and temporary encroachments on the Common Areas may occur due to the use of equipment (such as ladders, scaffolds, and barricades) in connection with construction, and that these temporary encroachments shall be permitted on the Parcels for only a limited time and only to the extent necessary for the construction involved. For the same purpose and the same limited time and extent, the Parties further agree that the Common Areas located on each Parcel may be used for ingress and egress by construction-related vehicles and personnel and for the temporary storage of construction materials and equipment.

ARTICLE 4. OPERATIONS AND USE

Name of Shopping Center

4.01. The name of the Shopping Center is [specify]. This name may not be changed without the written consent of all of the Parties.

Signs

4.02. (a) Except as provided in Subparagraph (b) of this Paragraph, no sign, symbol, advertisement, or billboard may be constructed, used, maintained, erected, posted, displayed, or permitted on or about any portion of the Shopping Center, with the following exception: one storefront sign may be used for each retail establishment in the Shopping Center, provided the sign (1) identifies the name, business, or symbol of the establishment, (2) does not advertise any particular item of merchandise (other than as may be contained in the store's trade name), (3) is harmonious with the general exterior architectural style of the buildings in the Shopping Center, (4) is of a type, size, and design commonly found in first-class regional [or neighborhood] shopping centers in [geographical region], and (5) otherwise complies with the sign criteria approved by the Parties [if sign criteria has been approved and will be part of Agreement, add: and set forth in Exhibit _____, which is attached to this Agreement and hereby incorporated by reference].

(b) Notwithstanding Subparagraph (a) of this Paragraph, each Major shall have the right to affix to its building its usual and customary signs and/or logos, whether or not the signs or logos conform to the sign criteria otherwise approved by the Parties.

(c) Monument or pylon signs advertising the Shopping Center may be placed only in those locations so designated on the Site Plan. The size, content, and other physical characteristics of the signs shall be approved by the Parties.

Sound and Light Projections

4.03. No Occupant may operate or maintain any system or electronic device (such as loudspeakers or search lights) that projects sound or light beyond the confines of the Occupant's retail establishment. A sound system for the Shopping Center as a whole, as approved by the Parties, may be installed for general promotional purposes.

Access Between Parcels

4.04. Except as otherwise provided in this Agreement, no hedge, fence, wall, or similar barrier may be placed, installed, or constructed on a Parcel if the barrier would block or otherwise interfere with access between that Parcel and any other Parcel.

Rules for Common Areas

4.05. (a) The Parties [or The Majors] may from time to time adopt rules and regulations pertaining to the use of all Common Areas of the Shopping Center by Occupants and Users, provided that no rule or regulation shall abrogate, abridge, or otherwise modify the rights granted to any Party under this Agreement. [If rules and regulations have already been adopted, add: Unless and until modified by the Parties (or the Majors), the rules and regulations attached to this Agreement as Exhibit _____ and hereby incorporated by reference shall be in force and effect.] As part of its obligation to manage, operate, and maintain the Common Areas, Developer shall enforce all rules and regulations for the Common Areas.

(b) No portion of the Common Areas may be used for any commercial purpose by any Occupant or User except as may be permitted by this Agreement or by the rules and regulations adopted for use of the Common Areas pursuant to this Agreement.

[Choose one of the following paragraphs:]

[If retail uses only will be permitted, use:]

Permitted Uses

4.06. Subject to any limitations set forth in this Article, the Shopping Center may be used for retail purposes only, and is limited to the development, construction, leasing, operation, and maintenance of retail business establishments and related facilities (such as the Common Areas).

[OR]

[If retail and limited office uses will be permitted, use:]

Permitted Uses

4.06. Except as otherwise provided in this Agreement, the Shopping Center may be used only for the development, construction, leasing, operation, and maintenance of the following: retail stores; service businesses customarily located in a first-class regional [or neighborhood] shopping center; professional offices; and financial institutions.

[Continue with the following:]

Prohibited Operations and Nuisances

4.07. (a) No Party may conduct or permit any activity or use on its Parcel that constitutes a private or public nuisance, emits any noise or sound that is objectionable due to intermittence, beat, frequency, shrillness, or loudness; emits any obnoxious odor; involves the use of any noxious, toxic, caustic, hazardous, or corrosive fuel, gas, or other substance; produces dust or dirt; involves a risk of fire, explosion, or other dangerous hazard; involves the burning or incineration of garbage or refuse; or violates any law, ordinance, or regulation of any governmental entity with jurisdiction over the Shopping Center. No Parcel may be used for storage or warehouse purposes, except that a retail establishment may temporarily store goods and merchandise intended for sale at its establishment, subject to any limitations set forth in the Occupant's lease. Manufacturing, industrial, or residential uses shall all be prohibited on every Parcel. The Common Areas shall not be used for the display of merchandise by any Occupant or for any related commercial activity of any Occupant, except when either is conducted as part of a common promotional plan for the Shopping Center instituted by Developer [or the Merchants' Association for the Shopping Center] and approved by the Parties [or the Majors].

(b) Entertainment or recreational uses are not permitted on or in the Shopping Center [if applicable, add:, except on the Commercial Area of Parcel _____ (number)]. Uses subject to this prohibition include: bowling alleys; skating rinks; theaters; video or other game arcades; health spas, studios, or gyms; massage parlors; pool or billiard halls; and card rooms. Further, uses for general educational, training, or instructional purposes (such as beauty schools, barber colleges, or other facilities oriented primarily toward students or trainees rather than customers) are not permitted [if applicable, add:, except on the Commercial Area of Parcel _____ (number)].

(c) "Fast-food" establishments [select the appropriate provision below]

[EITHER]

are not permitted in the Shopping Center.

[OR]

are permitted in the Shopping Center, subject to the following limitation[s]: _____[describe geographical or other limitations, e.g., these establishments shall be permitted only on the Commercial Area of Parcel(s) _____ or these establishments shall be permitted only in the portion of the Commercial Area designated "Food Court" in the Site Plan attached to this Agreement as Exhibit _____ or no fast-food establishment may be located within _____ (distance, e.g., 200 feet) of any perimeter boundary of the Commercial Area(s) of Parcel(s) _____].

[Continue with the following:]

For purposes of this Agreement, a "fast-food" establishment is one that specializes in the preparation and sale of food primarily intended for off-premises consumption, and includes any establishment that has any walk-up, drive-up, or drive-through counter, window, or similar facility for serving or dispensing food. Any Occupant operating a fast-food establishment within the Shopping Center shall, at the Occupant's sole cost and expense, keep the Common Areas at all times free of trash and debris caused by the establishment. No portion of this cost may be included in the Common Area Maintenance Costs. Any lease to an Occupant operating a fast-food establishment shall contain provisions incorporating the preceding requirements.

(d) Restaurants are [select the appropriate provision below]

[EITHER]

not permitted in the Shopping Center.

[OR]

are permitted in the Shopping Center, subject to the following limitation[s]: [describe geographical or other limitations, e.g., a restaurant may be located only on the Commercial Area of Parcel(s) _____ or a restaurant may be located only in the portion of the Commercial Area designated "Food Court" in the Site Plan attached to this Agreement as Exhibit _____ or no restaurant may be located within _____ (distance, e.g., 200 feet) of any perimeter boundary of the Commercial Area of Parcel(s) _____].

[Continue with the following:]

For purposes of this Agreement, a "restaurant" is an establishment that prepares and serves food primarily for consumption on the premises and that is not included in the definition of a "fast-food" establishment set forth in Subparagraph (c) of this Paragraph. Any Occupant operating a restaurant within the Shopping Center shall, at the Occupant's sole cost and expense, keep the Common Areas at all times free of trash and debris caused by the restaurant. No portion of this cost may be included in the Common Area Maintenance Costs. Any lease to an Occupant operating a restaurant shall contain provisions incorporating the preceding requirements.

[If desired, add following protective use covenant for specific type of business conducted by a party to agreement:]

(e) The Parties covenant for themselves and their successors and assigns, for the benefit of [name of benefited party,

e.g., Owner #2] and its successors and assigns, that for so long as the business of a [type of business, e.g., grocery supermarket] is operated on [specify parcel, e.g., Owner #2's Parcel], no other portion of the Shopping Center may be used to operate [describe prohibited businesses, e.g., any store or business that is or may reasonably be considered to be a grocery supermarket, grocery store, grocery market, supermarket, or similar establishment, however denominated; or any store primarily engaged in the sale of alcoholic beverages for consumption off-premises].

[Describe any exceptions to foregoing prohibition, e.g.:]

Notwithstanding the foregoing, nothing in this Subparagraph shall prohibit [exception, e.g., the sale of packaged food items and alcoholic beverages by a drug store operated on _____ (specify parcel, e.g., Owner #3's Parcel), provided the primary business of the _____ (type of establishment, e.g., drug store) is not the sale of packaged food items and alcoholic beverages].

[Continue optional Subparagraph (e) with the following:]

The restriction described in this Subparagraph shall continue in effect unless and until the [type of business protected by restriction, e.g., grocery supermarket] ceases to operate on [specify parcel, e.g., Owner #2's Parcel] for a period of at least [number, e.g., 365] consecutive days, except when operation ceases because of one of the following events: remodeling of the building containing the [type of business, e.g., grocery supermarket] by its Occupant; major damage or destruction to the building containing the [type of business, e.g., grocery supermarket], provided the Occupant commences repair and restoration within a reasonable time period; or acts that are beyond the reasonable control of the building's Occupant and are described in Paragraph 14.06 of this Agreement.

ARTICLE 5. BUILDING AND RELATED IMPROVEMENTS

Uniform Plan for Shopping Center

5.01. The Parties agree that a primary purpose of this Agreement is to create a uniform plan for development of the Shopping Center. To this end, any construction performed by a Party on its Parcel or on the Common Areas of any Parcel shall comply with all terms, covenants, and conditions of this Agreement, and shall otherwise at all times be architecturally and aesthetically compatible with all other buildings and improvements in the Shopping Center. Construction work subject to these requirements includes construction of a new building or other improvement, and construction involving the remodeling of or alterations or additions to an existing building or other improvement.

Limit Lines for Buildings

5.02. Any building or other structure may be constructed only on and above the surface of ground area designated as a Commercial Area on the Site Plan set forth in Exhibit _____. Notwithstanding the foregoing, minor encroachments beyond the boundary of any Commercial Area are permitted, provided all of the following apply:

(1) Any such encroachment is caused by a building overhang, canopy, eave, foundation, or footing;

(2) Any encroaching foundation or footing does not extend more than five feet beyond the boundary of the Commercial Area;

(3) The encroachment is designated in plans approved pursuant to the provisions of Article 6; and

(4) If the encroachment is on or over another Party's Parcel, the encroachment does not interfere with that Parcel and has been approved in writing by the Parcel's owner.

Building Size Limits

5.03. Any building constructed on the Commercial Area of a Parcel shall not contain more than the Maximum Gross Floor Area permitted for that Commercial Area, which is as follows:

COMMERCIAL AREA	MAXIMUM GROSS FLOOR AREA
Owner #2's Parcel	_____ square feet
Owner #3's Parcel	_____ square feet

Building Height Limits

5.04. Any building constructed on the Commercial Area of a Parcel shall not exceed the following height, in number of stories and/or in total height:

PARCEL	MAXIMUM STORIES	MAXIMUM HEIGHT
Developer's Parcel
Owner #2's Parcel	_____	_____
Owner #3's Parcel	_____	_____

For purposes of this Paragraph, the height of any building shall be measured from the finish grade of the pad to the highest point of the building, including any sign or other structure or equipment affixed to the building.

Sidewalks

5.05. Concrete sidewalks constructed under this Agreement by any of the Parties shall be not less than [number, e.g., 12] feet in width. Any sidewalk located on the Common Areas shall be part of the Common Areas, even if the sidewalk was constructed by a particular Party in connection with the construction by that Party of a building on its Parcel.

Fire Safety

5.06. Any building constructed on the Commercial Area of a Parcel shall be constructed in such a manner that its exterior walls are considered standard fire walls, so as to permit the Parties owning buildings immediately adjacent to the subject building, or Occupants of those adjacent buildings, to procure fire insurance for their buildings as separate structures without the payment of additional premiums required because of their location adjacent to the subject building. Automatic fire sprinklers shall be installed and maintained in each building constructed by a Party. These sprinklers shall satisfy any applicable local requirements and any requirements imposed by insurance companies.

Building Maintenance

5.07. Each Party shall, at that Party's sole cost and expense, maintain in a first-class manner the exterior of any building(s) located on the Commercial Area of that Party's Parcel. This obligation includes regular painting and all of the following, as necessary: reroofing, repair and replacement of stucco and wood surfaces, and removal of graffiti.

Parking Areas

5.08. (a) The Shopping Center as a whole and each Parcel in the Shopping Center shall at all times contain Parking Areas that contain at least [number, e.g., five] parking spaces, adequate in size for full-size domestic automobiles, for each [number, e.g., 1,000] square feet of maximum gross floor area permitted under this Agreement in the Commercial Areas of the Shopping Center and of each Parcel.

(b) The term "Parking Areas" means that portion of the Common Areas used for the parking of motor vehicles, including any roads, sidewalks, walkways, curbs, and landscaped areas contained within these Parking Areas. Parking Areas do not include truck ramps, loading docks, or delivery areas located in Common Areas and immediately adjacent to buildings in Commercial Areas.

(c) Subject to prior approval of the Parties [or Majors], any Party shall have the right to relocate or reconfigure Parking Areas located on its Parcel, provided the reconfigured Parking Areas comply at all times with Paragraphs 5.02, 5.03, and 5.04 of this Agreement and Subparagraph (a) of this Paragraph, and provided further that any relocation or reconfiguration (1) does not affect the traffic flow between Parcels; (2) does not block the view of any building on any other Parcel; and (3) is architecturally and aesthetically compatible with other improvements in the Shopping Center.

ARTICLE 6. INITIAL DEVELOPMENT AND CONSTRUCTION OF SHOPPING CENTER

Uniform Development Plan

6.01. In order to implement a uniform plan for the design, construction, and development of the Shopping Center, each Party shall comply with all requirements of this Agreement governing the design, construction, and development of any building or other improvement on the Commercial Area of its Parcel and on the Common Areas of its Parcel, to the extent applicable.

General Construction Obligations of Each Party

6.02. (a) Developer, at its sole cost and expense, shall construct or cause to be constructed in the Commercial Area of its Parcel, a [number of floors, e.g., one-story] building containing a minimum gross floor area of at least [number] square feet of leasable retail store space. Developer shall also construct or cause to be constructed all improvements required under this Agreement for all Common Areas of the Shopping Center.

(b) Owner #2, at its sole cost and expense, shall construct or cause to be constructed in the Commercial Area of its Parcel, a retail store containing a minimum gross floor area of at least [number] square feet.

(c) Owner #3, at its sole cost and expense, shall construct or cause to be constructed in the Commercial Area of its Parcel, a retail store containing a minimum gross floor area of at least [number] square feet.

(d) The obligation of each Party to construct a building on its Parcel (and corresponding obligation to pay all expenses and costs) includes all necessary pad work and the installation of all Utility Systems located on the Commercial Area of each Party's Parcel. The hook-up or connection of Utility Systems to Utility Systems located on the Common Areas (and the corresponding cost and expense) shall be the Developer's responsibility. Each Party shall, at that Party's sole cost and expense, develop and construct any perimeter sidewalks (excluding the street curb) and landscape areas immediately adjacent to and contiguous with the exterior of its building, and any loading docks, delivery areas, or other service facilities for the exclusive use of its building.

(e) Each Party shall at all times keep its Parcel and all improvements erected on the Parcel free and clear of all liens and claims of liens for labor, services, materials, supplies, or equipment furnished to the Parcel in connection with the construction performed by each Party on its Parcel.

(f) Any exterior remodeling or repair and any rebuilding of a building in the Shopping Center permitted or required under this Agreement is subject to and shall conform to all requirements of this Agreement to the extent not rendered inapplicable under any then-applicable laws, regulations, and ordinances of a governmental entity having jurisdiction over the Shopping Center.

Designation of Architects

6.03. Each Party shall designate an architect to prepare the plans and specifications for the building to be constructed on the Commercial Area of its Parcel (the "Commercial Area Plans"). Each Party shall pay all costs, expenses, and fees for the Commercial Area Plans for its Parcel. Developer shall designate an architect to prepare the plans and specifications for the Common Areas ("Project Architect"). This architect may or may not be the same architect any Party has designated to prepare Commercial Area Plans for its Parcel. Designation of a Project Architect must be approved by the Parties, and the contract for architectural services entered into between the Developer and the Project Architect must be approved by the Parties. Any Party except Developer may at any time change its previous designation of an architect, provided the Party gives written notice of the change to each of the other Parties. Developer may not change its designation of a Project Architect previously approved by the Parties without the approval of the Parties.

Preparation and Approval of Plans

6.04. (a) Not later than [number, e.g., 90] days after the effective date of this Agreement (as defined in Paragraph 17.07 of this Agreement), each Party shall cause final Commercial Area Plans for its Parcel to be prepared and submitted to each of the other Parties for review. Commercial Area Plans for each Parcel are deemed approved by each of the other Parties, provided they meet all requirements of the following: the Site Plan attached to this Agreement as Exhibit _____; the exterior elevation specifications contained in Exhibit _____; the construction specifications contained in Exhibit _____; the architectural style specifications for the Shopping Center set forth in Exhibit _____; and all other requirements of this Agreement.

(b) Not later than [number, e.g., 60] days after the effective date of this Agreement (as defined in Paragraph 17.07 of this Agreement), Developer shall cause preliminary plans for the Common Areas to be prepared and submitted to the Parties for their approval. The preliminary plans shall conform to the requirements of the following: the Site Plan attached to this Agreement as Exhibit _____; the exterior elevation specifications contained in Exhibit _____; the construction specifications contained in Exhibit _____; the architectural style specifications for the Shopping Center set forth in Exhibit _____; and all other requirements of this Agreement. Further, the preliminary plans shall include the following:

> (1) All access roadways, exterior boundary walls or fences, signs, walkways, malls, curbs, curb cuts, entrance driveways, interior roadways, Parking Areas, Utility System lines located on the Common Areas that will serve Common Area improvements (and, when designated by a Party in its Commercial Area Plans, any building located on the Commercial Area of a Parcel), fire hydrants, lighting facilities, and other similar facilities for common use located on the Common Areas.

(2) The location of all facilities for common use in the Common Areas, if the fixing of the location is reasonably possible, or, when the precise location cannot be shown, specifications for the location.

(3) A comprehensive rough and final grading plan for the Common Areas and any required soil compaction or other preparation (including soil tests).

(4) A composite parking layout for the entire Shopping Center, including paving, striping, bumpers, curbs, the location of lighting systems, and the designation of any areas that may be separately illuminated from time to time at the request and sole cost and expense of any Party.

(5) A composite landscaping plan prepared by a landscape architect and specifying overall plant materials and planting, but excluding planting areas immediately adjacent and contiguous to the building to be constructed by the Parties under this Agreement.

(6) The conditions, standards, and architectural treatment that shall govern the location, construction, or installation of improvements on the Common Areas and that shall conform with the requirements of this Agreement and with all minimum requirements of the County of _____ or other governmental entity having jurisdiction over the performance of the foregoing work in the Shopping Center.

(7) Any off-site improvements required by the local entity with jurisdiction over the Shopping Center, and any extensions of off-site facilities, such as sewer or utility lines or drainage systems, serving the Common Areas.

Approval of Plans for Common Areas

6.05. (a) Each Party shall have [number, e.g., 30] days after its receipt of the preliminary plans for the Common Areas (the "Approval Period") to advise the Project Architect in writing either that it approves the preliminary plans as submitted or that it recommends changes to the preliminary plans. In the latter case, the Party must describe in detail the recommended change. In the absence of any written communication from the Parties during the Approval Period, the preliminary plans shall be deemed approved as submitted. If the Project Architect receives in writing a recommended change to the preliminary plans from any Party prior to the expiration of the Approval Period, the Project Architect shall promptly call a meeting of all Parties for the purpose of considering and either incorporating or not incorporating the recommended change in the final plans for the Common Areas. The Parties shall not unreasonably object to a recommended change, provided the change as implemented conforms to all requirements of this Agreement.

(b) Within [number, e.g., 60] days from the date the preliminary plans are approved by the Parties, the Project Architect shall prepare and deliver to the Parties final plans for the Common Areas (the "Final Plans"). The Final Plans shall incorporate the approved preliminary plans. The requirements set forth in Subparagraph (a) of this Paragraph governing the approval of the preliminary plans shall also apply to the approval of the Final Plans [when shorter approval period will apply, add:, except that the applicable approval period shall be _____ (number less than one used for preliminary plans, e.g., 15) days]. Once Final Plans for the Common Areas have been approved by the Parties, no change may be made to the Final Plans without the written consent of the Parties.

Construction for Commercial Areas

6.06. At its sole cost and expense, each Party shall construct or cause to be constructed the building described in the applicable Subparagraph of Paragraph 6.02 of this Agreement on the Commercial Area of its Parcel in accordance with the final Commercial Area Plans for the building prepared and approved pursuant to Paragraph 6.04 of this Agreement. Each Party shall diligently commence and expeditiously pursue construction to enable it to complete construction on or before the Completion Dates set forth in Paragraph 6.10 of this Agreement. Further, each Party shall comply with all requirements of any building codes, zoning laws, and any other laws, regulations, ordinances, or rules of any authority with jurisdiction, and shall apply for and obtain all necessary permits and licenses required for construction.

Construction for Common Areas

6.07. (a) Developer shall construct or cause to be constructed all improvements on the Common Areas required under this Agreement in accordance with the Final Plans for the Common Areas prepared and approved pursuant to Paragraphs 6.04 and 6.05 of this Agreement. Developer shall solicit bids for the construction work in the Common Areas from at least [number, e.g., three] general contractors duly licensed under the laws of the State of California. The Parties (including Developer) shall select a general contractor ("Contractor") for the work and shall approve a construction contract for performance of construction work in the Common Areas. Thereafter, Developer shall enter into the contract with the Contractor. The contract between the Developer and the Contractor shall provide for the construction of all improvements on the Common Areas in accordance with the Final Plans for the Common Areas and all other provisions of this Agreement. The contract shall also contain provisions for the following:

(1) The final payment under the contract due to the Contractor shall be in an amount equal to at least

_____ [number expressed as percent, e.g., 10] percent of the full amount payable under the contract and shall not be paid to the Contractor until the construction work for the Common Areas has been completed, free of liens and claims of liens.

(2) Prior to commencing construction for the Common Areas, the Contractor shall furnish to the Parties (excluding Developer) [or to the Majors], at its own cost and expense, the following bonds:

(i) A bond issued by a corporate surety authorized to issue surety insurance in California in an amount equal to

_____ [specify percentage, e.g., 100] percent of the contract price payable under the contract securing the faithful performance by the Contractor of its contract with Developer; and

(ii) A bond issued by a corporate surety authorized to issue surety insurance in California in an amount equal to _____ [specify percentage, e.g., 50] percent of the contract price payable under the contract securing the payment of all claims for the performance of labor or services on, or the furnishing of materials for, the performance of the contract. For any claim, right, or cause of action under either bond described above, the Parties (excluding Developer) [or the Majors] shall have the right, in either their name or the name of the Developer, to enforce, settle, receive payments of money, or make payments toward the debt on the contract, as the case may be, in any matter under the bond. Any such action shall be binding on and without liability to Developer.

(3) All work performed on the Common Areas and all improvements constructed on the Common Areas shall comply with all valid laws, ordinances, regulations, and orders of all federal, state, county, or local governmental agencies or entities having jurisdiction over the Shopping Center.

(4) There shall be no change made to the Final Plans for the Common Areas without the prior written approval of the Parties [or the Majors].

(5) All construction work for the Common Areas shall be completed on or before the Completion Dates set forth in Paragraph 6.l0 of this Agreement.

(b) Developer shall furnish the Parties with written [periodic frequency, e.g., weekly or monthly] reports on the progress of the construction for the Common Areas. The periodic reports shall contain a summary of work performed during the covered period by the Contractor and Developer and shall also contain a status report on the progress of required governmental approvals for the work and any problems known to Developer that are likely to cause a delay in the progress of the construction.

(c) Developer shall pay all costs and expenses of construction to be performed for the Common Areas, subject to Developer's right to be reimbursed by the other Parties as provided in this Subparagraph. Each Party shall pay a percentage share of the total costs and expenses as follows:

Party	% of Total
Party #2	_____%
Party #3	_____%

At the end of each [period agreed on by parties, e.g., calendar month], Developer shall furnish each Party with a written statement of its total costs and expenses for the preceding [same period as above, e.g., month] and of each Party's share of the total costs and expenses. Developer's statement shall be accompanied by copies of all bills and invoices paid by Developer for the covered [same period as above, e.g., month]. Each Party shall pay its share due to Developer not later than [number, e.g., 30] days after the date of Developer's written statement. "Costs and expenses of construction for the Common Areas" means all amounts reasonably expended by Developer for construction and development of the Common Areas, including payments to the Contractor, the Project Architect, engineers, and governmental and utility entities.

(d) Developer shall at all times during construction of the Common Areas and for at least [number, e.g., three] years after construction is completed, maintain detailed books and records of account that itemize all of its costs and expenses of construction for the Common Areas. Any Party or its authorized agent shall have the right during normal business hours to inspect and make copies of these books and records. Each Party may also cause an audit to be performed of these books and records. If an audit discloses that a Party has been overcharged for any given payment period, either because Developer has overstated the actual amount of costs and expenses for the Common Areas or has overstated the share due from a Party, Developer shall immediately refund the amount of overpayment to the Party. If an audit discloses that Developer has for any given payment period overstated by [number, e.g., 3] percent or more either the actual amount of costs and expenses of construction for the Common Areas or the amount of the share of costs and expenses owed by the Party causing the audit to be performed, Developer shall pay the cost of the audit.

(e) Developer shall at all times keep each Parcel free and clear of liens and claims of liens for labor, services, materials, supplies, or equipment performed on or furnished to any Parcel in connection with the construction performed by Developer for the Common Areas. Developer may contest a claim of lien on any Parcel only if it first records a bond issued by a responsible corporate surety in an amount required to release the lien. Developer agrees to defend, indemnify, and hold the other Parties harmless from any liability, damage, loss, and other costs and expenses relating to claims of lien arising out of any labor, services, materials, supplies, or equipment furnished to any Parcel in connection with the construction performed by Developer for the Common Areas.

(f) When construction of improvements for the Common Areas is substantially complete, Developer shall notify each of the Parties in writing. Within _____ days after the date of Developer's written notice, the Parties shall inspect the improvements and shall prepare a "punchlist" of all items the Parties consider either defective or not completed. The Project architect shall review the punchlist and indicate on it the corrective work that, in the architect's opinion, is necessary to bring the construction into substantial conformance with the Final Plans for construction in the Common Areas. Within _____ days after the Parties deliver the punchlist to Developer, Developer shall cause the corrective work identified by the architect to be performed. On performance of the corrective work, the Parties shall accept as complete the construction of improvements for the Common Areas. This acceptance shall be in writing. If the Parties, or any of them, fail to deliver a punchlist to Developer within the time period required by this Subparagraph, that Party shall be deemed to have inspected the improvements for the Common Areas and accepted the improvements as complete.

Erection of Barricades

6.08. During the construction of a building on a Parcel, the Party responsible for the work shall erect and maintain a solid barrier around the perimeter of the work site to protect the safety of all Users of the Shopping Center and to protect existing improvements in the Shopping Center from dust and other debris. The barrier shall satisfy all minimum requirements of any applicable local ordinance. If there are no such local requirements, the barrier shall be at least [number, e.g., eight] feet in height and constructed of wood or other solid material that is at least as durable as wood. In any event, the barricade shall be painted a color that is aesthetically compatible with the other buildings and improvements in the Shopping Center.

Separate Works of Improvement

6.09. For purposes of the mechanics' lien law of the State of California, construction of improvements on the Common Areas by Developer and construction of improvements on the Commercial Area of a Parcel by a Party shall each be deemed to be a separate and distinct "work of improvement" as defined in Civil Code Section 3106 or its successor statute.

Completion Dates

6.10. All construction work for the Common Areas shall be completed on or before _____[date]. All buildings required to be constructed on the Commercial Area of a Parcel shall be completed on or before _____[date]. In the case of any building to be constructed on the Commercial Area of a Parcel, construction work shall be deemed completed by the appropriate Party on the date the controlling governmental agency issues a certificate of occupancy [or comparable final approval] for the building. Construction work for the Common Areas shall be deemed complete when all on-site and off-site improvements for the Common Areas have been completed and are ready for use and the Parties indicate, in writing, that they accept as complete the construction of the improvements for the Common Areas.

Cooperation Among Parties

6.11. Each Party agrees that it shall perform construction required of it under this Agreement in a manner that will not interrupt or interfere with any other Party's performance of construction required under this Agreement. Each Party agrees to allow access across its Parcel by each of the other Parties so that each of the other parties may perform any construction required by this Agreement. The Parties agree to coordinate construction schedules and to otherwise cooperate in the overall construction of the Shopping Center for the common goal of completing all construction work on or before the Completion Dates set forth in Paragraph 6.10 of this Agreement.

Insurance

6.12. From the time any Party commences construction on its Parcel and continuing until completion of the construction, each Party shall procure and maintain, at its sole cost and expense, public liability insurance and fire and extended coverage insurance applicable to the construction work to be performed by it under this Agreement. This coverage shall meet all requirements for insurance set forth in Article 11 of this Agreement. Each Party shall also procure and maintain workers' compensation insurance in the minimum amounts established by law.

Indemnification

6.13. Each Party agrees to defend, indemnify, and hold each other Party harmless from any liability, damage, injury, or other costs and expenses arising from or alleged to have arisen from any act or omission of the indemnifying Party in connection with the construction work to be performed by it on its Parcel.

ARTICLE 7. OPENING AND LEASING OF SHOPPING CENTER

Leasing by Developer

7.01. (a) Developer shall procure binding leases with tenants for occupancy in the building(s) located on the Commercial Area of Developer's Parcel. The tenants shall be appropriate in mix and experience for a first-class regional [or neighborhood] shopping center in [Southern California or Northern California or California]. During the period in which any Major's operating covenant described in Paragraph 8.01 of this Agreement is in effect and for so long afterwards as any Major continues to operate for business in the Shopping Center, Developer shall use its best efforts to procure and maintain maximum tenant occupancy of the gross floor area of the Commercial Area on Developer's Parcel. [If desired, add: Developer, as Landlord, shall require in its leases with tenants that each tenant maintain the same business hours (both with respect to number and days) as those maintained from time to time by the Majors.]

(b) Prior to the opening of the Shopping Center, Developer shall procure binding leases with tenants for occupancy of at least [number, e.g., 40] percent of the leasable retail store space in Developer's building. The leases shall require the tenants to open for business not later than _____[time period, e.g., 30 days after the Completion Date for the building to be constructed by Developer on Developer's Parcel], unless Developer, as Landlord, requests a postponement in openings by tenants so that their openings coincide with a grand opening for the Shopping Center arranged pursuant to Paragraph 7.02(a) of this Agreement. All tenants and all leases referred to in this Subparagraph shall also comply with any requirements for tenants and leases set forth in Subparagraph (a) of this Paragraph.

Opening for Business

7.02. (a) Each Party agrees that a unified grand opening for the Shopping Center would be beneficial to all Parties and further agrees that it will cooperate in all scheduling and other matters necessary to participate in a grand opening, provided the grand opening date is not later than [specify deadline, expressed either as specific date or as date determined by reference to particular event, e.g., 30 days after the latest Completion Date set forth in Paragraph 6.10 of this Agreement]. Otherwise, a Party may open for business at any time after completion of the construction of (1) the building located on its Commercial Area; and (2) the improvements on the Common Areas.

(b) No Party shall be obligated to open for business until _____[describe any circumstances under which a party is permitted to delay opening, e.g.,, in the case of Owner #2 or Owner #3, Developer has completed construction for the Common Areas and has leased at least 40 percent of the gross floor area of its building to Occupants who are ready to immediately open for business; and in the case of Developer, Owner #2 or Owner #3 is ready to immediately open for business. Neither Owner #2 nor Owner #3 shall be required to open during the following time periods: _____ (specify dates)].

ARTICLE 8. COVENANTS BY MAJORS FOR CONTINUOUS BUSINESS OPERATION

Majors' Covenant of Continuous Operation

8.01. (a) Owner #1, as a Major, covenants and agrees that for a period of [number, e.g., 10] years, commencing on the date it opens its retail department store in the Shopping Center for business, it will operate or cause to be operated on its Parcel a retail department store containing not less than the minimum gross floor area required under Paragraph 6.02 of this Agreement, under the trade name used by it for all [or substantially all] of its other department stores located in [designated geographical area, e.g., California], unless it is earlier released from performing the covenant pursuant to Paragraph 8.02 of this Agreement.

(b) Owner #2, as a Major, covenants and agrees that for a period of [number, e.g., 10] years, commencing on the date it opens its retail department store in the Shopping Center for business, it will operate or cause to be operated on its Parcel a retail department store containing not less than the minimum gross floor area required under Paragraph 6.02 of this Agreement, under the trade name used by it for all [or substantially all] of its other department stores located in [designated geographical area, e.g., California], unless it is earlier released from performing the covenant pursuant to Paragraph 8.02 of this Agreement.

(c) Notwithstanding the covenant given by any Major in this Paragraph, each Major shall have the right to operate its retail department store in the manner deemed appropriate by it in its sole and absolute discretion. This right shall extend to all operational matters, including business hours to be maintained, types of merchandise to be stocked and sold, and the types of departments contained within the store.

(d) Notwithstanding the covenant given by any Major in this Paragraph, no Major shall be required to remain open for business during any period in which it is repairing, restoring, or rebuilding its store because of damage or destruction, or during any period when closure of its store is required by any cause that is beyond its reasonable control and is described in Paragraph 14.06 of this Agreement.

Early Release From Covenant Obligations

8.02. A Major shall be released from its covenant obligations under Paragraph 8.01 of this Agreement prior to the time the covenant would otherwise expire as provided in Paragraph 8.01, on the occurrence of any of the following:

[List all circumstances or events that will permit release, e.g.:]

(a) Developer fails to perform any of its obligations under Paragraph 2.02, Paragraph 7.01(b), Article 9, or Article 12 of this Agreement, and either of the following applies:

(1) The failure to perform is capable of being cured within a period of

_____ [number that may be same as or greater than number of days parties have to cure defaults pursuant to Paragraph 14.02] days after any Party gives written notice of the failure to Developer and gives copies of the notice to each of the other Parties, and Developer fails to cure the default during that period; or

(2) The failure is not capable of being cured within the foregoing _____ [same number as above]-day time period, and the Developer fails (i) to begin to cure the default within that time period; and (ii) to complete the cure within a reasonable time not to exceed _____ days after the date of the written notice describing Developer's failure to perform.

(b) At any time after a Major opens its store for business, less than [number, e.g., 60] percent of leasable store space in Developer's building is leased, occupied, and open for business; provided, however, that Developer shall have [time period, e.g., nine months] after written notice from any Party regarding Developer's failure to maintain the foregoing occupancy level within which to raise the occupancy level to the minimum required under this Subparagraph. Any tenant lease procured by Developer during the period granted to Developer to raise the occupancy level that requires the tenant to open for business during that same period shall be counted toward the requirement that Developer raise the occupancy level to the minimum required under this Subparagraph.

(c) Any other Major fails for any reason to actually open for business as required under this Agreement, notwithstanding any exceptions to performance otherwise provided for in this Agreement.

(d) Any other Major ceases for any reason to operate its store for a continuous period of at least [time period, e.g., six months], except when all of the following apply or are satisfied: the closure is caused by damage or destruction to the Major's store; the Major is required or elects to repair, restore, and rebuild the store; and the Major actually commences the repair, restoration, or rebuilding within the foregoing [same time period used above, e.g., six-month] time period and thereafter completes it with due diligence.

(e) Any other Major is released from its covenant of operation described in Paragraph 8.01 of this Agreement pursuant to the terms of this Agreement.

Nature of Covenants

8.03. (a) Each covenant of a Major set forth in Paragraph 8.01 of this Agreement shall constitute a covenant running with the land and shall also be personally binding on the Major, even if the Major transfers all or any portion of its Parcel. However, a Major shall be relieved of its personal obligations under the covenant in the event _____[describe any transfer circumstances that will release major, e.g., any Person acquires the Major's statewide (or national) business and assumes the obligations of the Major's covenant].

(b) Each covenant of a Major set forth in Paragraph 8.01 of this Agreement shall be for the benefit of each of the other Parties to this Agreement and their respective Parcels [or for the benefit of only the Developer and Developer's Parcel].

(c) In the event of a default or breach by a Major of a covenant set forth in Paragraph 8.01 of this Agreement, each Party agrees that specific performance of the covenant shall not be available as a remedy and that no party may or shall seek to enforce that remedy against the Major.

Subordination of Covenants

8.04. Each covenant of a Major set forth in Paragraph 8.01 of this Agreement shall be subordinate to the lien of any deed of trust or mortgage recorded on the Major's Parcel. A Lender (as defined in Paragraph 15.01 of this Agreement) [or Any person (including a Lender as defined in Paragraph 15.01 of this Agreement)] who acquires title to the Parcel through foreclosure proceedings, a power of sale, or a deed in lieu of foreclosure shall take title free and clear of the covenant of the Major.

ARTICLE 9. OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE OF COMMON AREAS

Management and Maintenance Duties

9.01. Developer shall manage, maintain, and operate all Common Areas located within the Shopping Center, and will keep the Common Areas in good condition and repair and clean and free of rubbish and other hazards to Users. Developer's obligation to maintain and operate the Common Areas includes the following:

(a) Maintenance of the surfaces of all paved portions of the Common Areas, including sidewalks and curbs, so that the surfaces are level, smooth, and evenly covered with the type of surfacing material originally installed or a substitute material that is equal in quality, appearance, and durability.

(b) Removal of all papers, debris, filth, and refuse from the Common Areas, and washing or thorough sweeping of paved areas, as required to maintain the Common Areas in a first-class and clean condition.

(c) Placement, repair, replacement, and repainting as necessary of entrances, exits, directional signs, striping, markers, and lights in the Parking Areas and other Common Areas.

(d) Maintenance and cleaning of all landscaped areas in the Common Areas, including: the regular pruning, weeding, fertilizing, and watering of trees and shrubbery; repair and replacement of the irrigation system; and maintenance and replacement of seasonal bedding plants in designated "color spot" areas of the landscaped areas to maintain blooms in these areas throughout the year.

(e) Maintenance and repair of the monument sign that bears the name of the Shopping Center and is located at the entrance to the Shopping Center, and any other sign subsequently erected on the Common Areas that bears only the name of the Shopping Center.

(f) Maintenance of all Common Areas free from any obstructions not required or permitted under this Agreement, including any obstructions relating to the sale or display of merchandise outside the exterior limits of retail establishments in the Shopping Center; provided, however, that the Parties may waive the prohibition against obstructions in the Common Areas for promotional activities in the Shopping Center.

(g) Payment of all electrical, water, and other utility charges or fees for services furnished to the Common Areas.

(h) Maintenance, cleaning, and repairing of all common utility lines, storm drains, sewers, and other Utility Systems located in the Common Areas.

(i) Performance of any other specific duties described under this Agreement that require the Developer to manage, operate, and maintain the Common Areas.

[Include the following Subparagraphs if shopping center has enclosed mall:]

(j) Heating, cooling, ventilating, and illuminating the enclosed mall, maintaining its air-conditioning system, and maintaining the temperature and humidity throughout the enclosed mall at a reasonably comfortable level, consistent with the minimum standards of the American Society of Heating, Refrigeration, and Air Conditioning Engineers in effect at the time construction of the Shopping Center is completed for the area in which the Shopping Center is located.

(k) Maintaining the glass, floors, and walls of the enclosed mall (excluding any portion of the walls and windows that also constitute a part of a retail establishment), and the stairways, elevators, escalators, and roof of the enclosed mall, in clean and good condition and repair.

Developer's Contracts With Third Parties

9.02. Developer may contract with a third party to perform some or all of its obligations listed in Paragraph 9.01 of this Agreement, provided the contract is in writing and includes clauses that provide for the following: the right of either the Developer or any other Party to terminate the contract on [number, e.g., 30] days' written notice; the right of all Parties to this Agreement [or the Majors] to approve the third party contract; and an acknowledgment and agreement by the third party that Developer is not an agent of the Parties and that only the Developer (and not any other Parties to this Agreement) is obligated to perform the provisions of the contract (including all payments of money). If Developer enters into such a contract with a third party, Developer shall be and remain, as between itself and the other Parties to this Agreement, liable and responsible for performance of all of Developer's obligations under this Agreement and for performance by any third party with whom it contracts. Developer agrees to indemnify, defend, and hold harmless all other Parties to this Agreement from any and all claims, damages, liabilities, costs, or expenses (including amounts for reasonable attorneys' fees) arising from or in connection with Developer's contract with a third party.

Insurance for Common Areas

9.03. Developer shall maintain public liability insurance for all of the Common Areas insuring against the risks of bodily injury, property damage, and personal injury liability occurring or arising during the policy period. The insurance required under this Paragraph shall have a minimum combined single limit of liability of at least $ [dollar amount] and a general aggregate limit of at least $ [dollar amount], and shall include [describe any required additional coverage, e.g., blanket contractual coverage and broad form property damage coverage]. The premiums for the public liability policy or policies are a Common Areas Operational Cost (as defined in Paragraph 9.04 of this Agreement). Each Party shall be listed as an additional insured on the policy or policies. Each public liability policy or policies shall contain a provision prohibiting cancellation of the policy or policies except on [number, e.g., 30] days' prior written notice to each Person listed as an additional insured. Developer shall furnish each Party with a copy of any policy or policies of public liability insurance described in this Paragraph or a certificate of insurance from the insurer. As required by law, Developer shall maintain workers' compensation insurance covering all employees hired or used by Developer to fulfill its obligations for maintenance and operation of the Common Areas.

Common Areas Operational Costs

9.04. (a) Developer shall pay, prior to delinquency, all costs, charges, and expenses incurred in managing, operating, and maintaining the Common Areas as required under this Agreement. Each Party other than Developer shall reimburse Developer an amount equal to that Party's pro rata share of the total costs, charges, and expenses incurred by Developer to operate and maintain the Common Areas. Each Party's pro rata share of Common Areas Operational Costs shall be calculated on the basis of a ratio of the Maximum Gross Floor Area on that Party's Parcel to the Maximum Gross Floor Area on all Parcels contained in the Shopping Center.

(b) For these purposes, "Common Areas Operational Costs" means the total of all items of direct cost and expense necessarily and reasonably expended by Developer for the supervision, operation, maintenance, and repair of the Common Areas required under this Agreement, excluding any real property taxes or assessments described in Article 10. The term includes costs and expenses for the following: maintenance, replacement, and reconstruction work as required to preserve the condition and status of the Common Areas and its equipment; all rental charges for equipment; the cost of small tools and supplies; all costs for police security protection, traffic direction and control, and parking regulations; costs of cleaning and removal of rubbish, dirt, and debris from the Common Areas; the cost of landscaping, and supplies required for landscaping; all charges for utility services used in connection with the Common Areas; and all premiums for public liability insurance covering the Common Areas. Any repair or replacement of the Common Areas estimated to cost in excess of $ [maximum dollar amount, e.g., $10,000] shall be considered an extraordinary expense and shall not be made by Developer unless and until approved in writing by the other Parties to this Agreement. Extraordinary expenses approved by the Parties shall be considered a Common Areas Operational Cost. Any cost incurred by Developer for the operation of its own office, accounting service, or any other service or cost not directly related to operation and maintenance of the Common Areas shall not be considered a Common Areas Operational Cost.

[Add following provision if other parties are to pay pro rata shares of management fee for developer-manager:]

Notwithstanding the preceding provision, for each Accounting Period (defined below) Developer shall be paid for its managerial services for the Common Areas an amount equal to [e.g., 3] percent of the total of Common Areas Operational Costs for that Accounting Period ("Management Fee"), except that any costs for [describe cost items that are to be excluded, e.g., depreciation, public liability insurance premiums, and any Extraordinary Expense defined above] shall first be excluded from the total of Common Areas Operational Costs before the amount of the Management Fee is calculated. The Management Fee shall be added to and paid by the Parties in the same manner as the Common Areas Operational Costs.

Accounting and Recordkeeping

9.05. (a) At the end of each quarter [or month] of each Accounting Period, Developer shall submit a statement to each Party showing the amount due to Developer for that Party's pro rata share of Common Areas Operational Costs. The quarterly [or monthly] statement shall summarize by category the amounts expended by Developer for the operation and maintenance of the Common Areas during that quarter [or month]. Not later than [number, e.g., 30] days after the date of the statement, each Party shall pay to Developer the amount set forth on the Party's statement. For these purposes, "Accounting Period" means each calendar year occurring during the term of this Agreement, except that: the first Accounting Period shall begin on the date any Party first opens its business in the Shopping Center to the public and shall end on December 31 of the same year; and if this Agreement terminates on any date other than December 31, the last Accounting Period shall end on the date this Agreement terminates.

(b) Not later than [number, e.g., 60] days after the end of each Accounting Period, Developer shall prepare and submit to each of the Parties an itemized statement of actual Common Areas Operational Costs for that entire Accounting Period ("the Annual Statement"). This statement shall also include actual totals for each quarter [or month] in that Accounting Period. Developer shall attach to the Annual Statement necessary documentation that will enable the Parties to verify the accuracy of the Statement. The Annual Statement shall set forth the amounts actually paid by each Party as its pro rata share of Common Areas Operational Costs for that Accounting Period, and the amounts actually due from each Party as its pro rata share of Common Areas Operational Costs for that Accounting Period. If there is any difference between the two amounts for any Party, the following rules will apply: the amount of an underpayment by the Party shall be paid by that Party to Developer within [number, e.g., 30] days after the date of the Annual Statement; an overpayment by the Party will be credited to the amount otherwise payable by that Party for the next quarterly [or monthly] statement, unless the overpayment is noted in the last Annual Statement prepared pursuant to this Agreement; and, in the case of an overpayment noted in the last Annual Statement prepared pursuant to this Agreement, the Developer shall promptly refund the overpayment to the Party.

(c) Developer shall maintain complete and accurate books of account and supporting documentation for each and every amount expended for maintaining and operating the Common Areas as required under this Agreement. For each Accounting Period, all books and records shall be kept by Developer for at least [time period, e.g, two years] following the end of that Accounting Period.

(d) Each Party, at that Party's sole cost and expense, shall have the right to inspect or audit the books and records of Developer. Any inspection or audit shall be performed only during reasonable business hours. [If desired, add: Further, at least _____ (minimum notice period, e.g., 48 hours before the time the Party wishes to perform the inspection or audit), the Party must provide Developer with notice of the election to perform the inspection or audit.]

Transfer of Responsibility for Common Areas

9.06. If one or more of the Parties are dissatisfied with Developer's performance of its duties and obligations for the Common Areas set forth in this Article, the dissatisfied Party or Parties may give Developer written notice containing the following: an itemization of all matters giving rise to the dissatisfaction; the time period within which Developer must correct the matters giving rise to the dissatisfaction [optional:, which shall not in any event be shorter in duration than the Cure Period provided for in Paragraph 14.02 of this Agreement]; and the name of the Person who will assume the Developer's responsibilities under this Agreement for the Common Areas ("the Assuming Party") in the event of the Developer's failure to correct the situation. When only one Party gives the notice of dissatisfaction to Developer, that Party shall be the Assuming Party; when more than one Party joins in giving the notice of dissatisfaction, the Assuming Party shall be the Party jointly designated by those Parties. Developer must correct the matters giving rise to the dissatisfaction within the time period set forth in the notice or, if a matter cannot be corrected within that time period, must commence appropriate corrective action within that period. If Developer, within that time period, fails to correct the foregoing matters or fails, in the reasonable estimation of the complaining Party or Parties, to commence appropriate corrective action, the following shall apply: the Assuming Party shall assume responsibility for the maintenance, management, and operation of the Common Areas; Developer shall be liable to the Parties for all costs, expenses, and damages resulting to the Parties from Developer's failure to fulfill its obligations under this Agreement; and Developer shall promptly transfer to the Assuming Party all books and records pertaining to the Common Areas and all equipment and supplies used by Developer in connection with the operation and maintenance of the Common Areas. Assumption of responsibility for the Common Areas by an Assuming Party shall not relieve Developer of its obligation, as a Party to this Agreement, to pay its pro rata share of Common Areas Operational Costs or to perform all other terms of this Agreement (except those relating to maintenance and management of the Common Areas). An Assuming Party shall have all of the rights, duties, and obligations with respect to the Common Areas that are set forth for the Developer in this Article. At any time after Developer has been replaced by an Assuming Party pursuant to this Paragraph, responsibility for maintenance, operation, and management of the Common Areas may be transferred for any reason to another Party (including Developer) pursuant to the method and for the reasons outlined in this Paragraph, or on the unanimous consent of all Parties.

Liens

9.07. In carrying out its responsibilities under this Agreement for the maintenance, management, and operation of the Common Areas, Developer shall keep the Parcels free and clear from any liens arising out of any work performed, materials furnished, or other obligations incurred by Developer. If any lien is imposed, Developer shall pay the lien within [number not more than 30, e.g., 10] days after its imposition unless Developer elects to contest the lien. Developer shall have the right to contest a lien imposed on any Parcel only if Developer first records a bond of a responsible corporate surety in an amount sufficient to release the lien from the affected Parcel or Parcels within [same number used in preceding sentence] days after the date the lien is imposed.

ARTICLE 10. PROPERTY TAXES AND ASSESSMENTS

Obligation for Payment

10.01. Each party will pay, prior to delinquency, all real property taxes, assessments, and other charges that may be levied, assessed, or charged against the Parcel owned by it in the Shopping Center, including any taxes, assessments, or other charges levied, assessed, or charged against any portion of the Common Areas located on that Party's respective Parcel. If a Party fails to pay taxes or assessments owed by it prior to its delinquency, any other Party may pay the taxes or assessments. In that case, the nonpaying Party shall reimburse the paying party for the full amount paid, plus interest at the maximum legal rate then prevailing, within _____ days after the paying Party gives the nonpaying Party written demand for the amount paid.

Right to Contest

10.02. Each Party shall have the right, at that Party's sole cost and expense, to protest or contest in good faith the amount of any tax or assessment levied on that Party's Parcel and to defer payment of the tax or assessment until final determination of the contest. On final determination of the contest, the contesting Party shall immediately pay the amount of the judgment rendered and all costs, charges, interest, and penalties related to the contest. The contesting Party shall also defend, indemnify, and hold each of the other Parties harmless from any damage, cost, or expense arising out of the contest.

ARTICLE 11. INSURANCE

Fire Insurance

11.01. (a) Each Party shall procure and maintain fire and extended coverage insurance with an endorsement for [type of required endorsement(s), e.g., vandalism] on all buildings and other improvements located on the Commercial Area and Common Areas of that Party's Parcel. The amount of coverage shall be equal to at least [number, e.g., 90] percent of the full replacement cost of all included buildings and other improvements.

(b) In the event a Party is required by this Agreement to rebuild, repair, or restore a damaged or destroyed building or other improvement on the Commercial Area or Common Areas of that Party's Parcel, the insurance proceeds paid for an insured loss shall be used for the purpose of the rebuilding, repair, or restoration. The proceeds shall be paid to the insured Party, with the following exception: if the amount of insurance proceeds payable for an insured loss exceeds $ [ dollar amount, e.g., $50,000], the proceeds shall be paid to an insurance trustee designated by the insured Party's Lender for disbursement throughout the period of rebuilding, repair, or restoration.

Waiver of Subrogation

11.02. Each Party agrees that in the event of loss due to any of the perils for which they each have agreed to provide insurance, each Party shall look solely to its insurance for recovery. Each Party grants to each other Party, on behalf of its insurer, a waiver of any right of subrogation that any insurer of one Party may acquire against any other Party by virtue of payment of any loss under the insurance. Each insurance policy shall contain this express waiver endorsement.

Public Liability Insurance

11.03. (a) Each Party shall procure and maintain at all times during the term of this Agreement comprehensive general public liability insurance covering the Commercial Areas located on the Party's Parcel and insuring against the risks of bodily injury, property damage, and personal injury liability occurring or arising during the policy period. The insurance required under this Paragraph shall have a minimum combined single limit of liability of $ _____ and a general aggregate limit of at least $ _____. Further, the insurance shall include [describe any required additional coverage, e.g., broad form contractual liability coverage insuring against the Party's indemnity obligations under this Agreement]. Each policy shall designate each of the other Parties as an additional insured, shall provide that the insurance is primary and noncontributory, shall provide for severability of interests, and shall provide that an act or omission by the insured party or any additional insured does not void or reduce coverage afforded the insured party or any additional insured.

(b) Developer shall procure and maintain public liability insurance for the Common Areas of each Parcel in accordance with the provisions of Paragraph 9.03 of this Agreement.

Policy Requirements

11.04. Any insurance a Party is required under this Agreement to procure and maintain shall be issued by a responsible insurance company or companies licensed to do business in the State of California [optional: and rated A+XII or better in Best's Insurance Guide], and shall provide that it may not be cancelled, terminated, or changed except after [number, e.g., 30] days' prior written notice to each of the other Parties. The amount of a deductible under any insurance required under this Article shall not exceed [maximum amount expressed as dollar amount or percentage of coverage]. Any Party may maintain all or part of the insurance required under this Article by means of a blanket insurance policy so long as all provisions of this Article are satisfied. For any insurance required of a Party under this Agreement, the Party shall deliver to each of the other Parties a certificate of insurance that recites in summary form compliance with all requirements set forth in this Article relating to specific insurance coverage.

Indemnity

11.05. (a) Developer shall defend, indemnify, protect, and hold each other Party harmless from any and all damages, claims, causes of action, costs, expenses, and any other liability arising from, related to, or incurred in connection with the death of any person or the injury or damage to any person or property occurring in or on the Common Areas located on each other Party's Parcel, unless the liability is caused by the negligence or willful act or omission of the indemnified Party, the agents or employees of the indemnified Party, or any Occupant of the indemnified Party.

(b) Each Party other than Developer shall defend, indemnify, protect, and hold each other Party harmless from any and all damages, claims, causes of action, costs, expenses, and any other liability arising from, related to, or incurred in connection with the death of any person or the injury or damage to any person or property occurring in or on the Commercial Areas of the indemnifying Party's Parcel, unless the liability is caused by the negligence or willful act or omission of the indemnified Party, the agents or employees of the indemnified Party, or any Occupant of the indemnified Party.

ARTICLE 12. DAMAGE AND DESTRUCTION

Obligation to Rebuild and Repair

12.01. (a) A Major shall, at its sole cost and expense, repair, restore, or rebuild any building or other improvements on the Commercial Area or Common Areas of its Parcel that are damaged or destroyed by any cause, whether or not any casualty causing the damage or destruction is covered by insurance, provided the damage or destruction occurs while that Major's operating covenant (as described in Paragraph 8.01 of this Agreement) is in effect [if desired, add:, and provided further that the covenant has a remaining term of at least _____ (number, e.g., three) years from the date of damage or destruction]. Similarly, the Developer shall, at its sole cost and expense, repair, restore, or rebuild any building or other improvements on the Commercial Area or Common Areas of its Parcel that are damaged or destroyed by any cause, whether or not any casualty causing the damage or destruction is covered by insurance, provided the damage or destruction occurs while any Major's operating covenant (as described in Paragraph 8.01 of this Agreement) is in effect [if desired, add:, and provided further that any such covenant has a remaining term of at least _____ (number, e.g., three) years from the date of damage or destruction].

(b) If damage or destruction to any building or other improvement on the Commercial Area or Common Areas of any Major's Parcel occurs at a time when that Major's Operating Covenant is no longer in effect [if optional language in (a), above is used, add: or at a time when less than _____ (number, e.g., three) years remain in the term of the operating covenant], that Major shall have no obligation, but may elect, to repair, restore, or rebuild the damaged portion of the building or other improvement on its Parcel. If damage or destruction to any building or other improvement on the Commercial Area or Common Areas of the Developer's Parcel occurs at a time when any Major's Operating Covenant is no longer in effect [if optional language in (a), above is used, add: or at a time when less than _____ (number, e.g., three) years remain in the term of any Major's Operating Covenant still in effect], the Developer may elect, but shall have no obligation, to repair, restore, or rebuild the damaged portion of the building or other improvement on its Parcel. Notwithstanding the foregoing, Developer shall be required to repair, restore, or rebuild the damaged portion of any building or other improvement on its Parcel under the following circumstances:

(1) No building or other improvement on the Parcel of any Major is damaged or destroyed and each [or at least one] Major[s] executes a written instrument, in recordable form, agreeing to reinstate its Operating Covenant for a minimum period of _____ [number, e.g., 10] years from the date of the instrument.

(2) A building or other improvement on the Parcel of at least one Major is damaged or destroyed and at least one of the Majors affected by the damage or destruction (i) elects to rebuild, repair, or restore the destroyed or damaged building or improvement, and (ii) gives written notice to Developer of its election to repair or rebuild within

_____ [number, e.g., 90] days after occurrence of the event causing the damage or destruction. If a Major who has given notice to Developer of its intention to repair, rebuild, or restore any damaged or destroyed building or other improvement located on the Major's Parcel does not actually commence the repair, rebuilding, or restoration within _____ [time period, e.g., 180 days after occurrence of the event causing the damage or destruction], Developer shall be relieved of its obligation to rebuild, restore, and repair any damage or destruction of a building or other improvement located on the Commercial Area or Common Areas of Developer's Parcel.

Standards for Rebuilding, Repair, or Replacement

12.02. Any rebuilding, repair, or replacement of a building or other improvement on a Party's Parcel required or permitted under this Agreement shall be commenced as soon as possible after occurrence of the event causing the damage or destruction and completed as expeditiously as possible thereafter. Any restoration, repair, or rebuilding for a Parcel shall comply with all applicable requirements of this Agreement, including those relating to plan approval set forth in Paragraph 6.04 of this Agreement.

Obligations When Rebuilding Not Required or Elected

12.03. If any Party is not required to or elects not to rebuild, repair, or restore all or any portion of any damaged or destroyed building or other improvement located on the Commercial Area or Common Areas of that Party's Parcel, the Party shall raze and demolish the damaged or destroyed building or other improvement and clear all debris from the affected area of that Party's Parcel. The affected area shall then either be landscaped with ground cover or fenced off from the remaining portion of the Shopping Center, as determined by a majority of the other Parties to this Agreement.

Obligations of Lender and Fee Owner-Lessor

12.04. (a) Any Lender or Fee Owner-Lessor under a sale-leaseback arrangement described in Paragraph 15.06 of this Agreement, or a purchaser from either, who acquires title to a Parcel by foreclosure, deed in lieu of foreclosure, or as a result of a lease termination under the sale-leaseback arrangement, shall be obligated to perform any repair, restoration, or rebuilding required under this Agreement, provided the damage or destruction necessitating the repair, restoration, or rebuilding occurs after the date the foregoing Lender, Fee Owner-Lessor, or purchaser acquired title to the Parcel.

(b) Any Lender or Fee Owner-Lessor under a sale-leaseback arrangement described in Paragraph 15.06 of this Agreement, or a purchaser from such a Lender or Fee Owner-Lessor, who acquires title in the manner described in Subparagraph (a) of this Paragraph and who is not required or elects not to rebuild under this Agreement, shall comply with Paragraph 12.03 of this Agreement. However, imposition of this obligation on the Person acquiring title in the manner described in this Paragraph shall in no way relieve the Party from whom the Parcel was acquired from compliance with Paragraph 12.03 of this Agreement.

ARTICLE 13. CONDEMNATION

Restoration or Termination

13.01. (a) If a taking by eminent domain (or purchase in lieu of a taking by eminent domain) occurs with respect to [specify percentage, e.g., 10] percent or more of the gross floor area of any building on the Commercial Area of any Parcel [or any Major's Parcel], the affected Party [or Major] shall, at that Party's [or Major's] sole cost and expense, be required to utilize remaining Commercial Area, if any, on its Parcel to restore the gross floor area of the building to at least [number, e.g., 90] percent of what existed in the building prior to the taking. If the Party [or Major] is unable to make the restoration to the extent required under this Paragraph, the Party [or Major] may terminate this Agreement with respect to its Parcel by giving written notice of its election to terminate to each of the other Parties.

(b) This Subparagraph applies when a taking by eminent domain (or purchase in lieu of a taking by eminent domain) occurs with respect to either of the following: (1) Parking Areas located on the Common Areas of any Parcel, if the Parking Areas remaining on any Parcel or for the Shopping Center as a whole after the taking violate either the then-applicable zoning law as to size, location, layout, or otherwise, or the required parking ratio set forth in Paragraph 5.08(a) of this Agreement; or (2) any portion of the Common Areas, if the taking results in a closure of ingress and egress from adjacent public streets to the Shopping Center. Following such a taking, the Parties shall in good faith endeavor to agree, as the case may be, on a plan (1) to bring the remaining Parking Areas into compliance with the then-applicable zoning law (either through obtaining a variance or exception to the zoning law or by providing additional substitute Parking Areas) or with the required parking ratio set forth in Paragraph 5.08(a) of this Agreement; or (2) to provide new ingress and egress routes to and from the Shopping Center and the adjacent public streets in a way that complies with the then-applicable zoning law [describe any other requirements for plan, e.g., and that does not substantially decrease public ingress and egress to and from any building located on the Commercial Area of any Major's Parcel]. The portion of any award for a taking by eminent domain received by a Party attributable to a taking of the Common Areas on that Party's Parcel shall be used for any corrective work to the Common Areas described above and agreed on by the Parties, regardless of whether the corrective work will or will not be performed on that Party's Parcel. Any excess cost of corrective work shall be shared equally by the Parties. A decision regarding a specific plan for the corrective work adopted by a majority of the Parties shall be binding on all of the other Parties. If a majority of the Parties are unable to agree on a plan for corrective work within [number, e.g., 120] days after definitive written notice of the intended taking is given by the condemning authority, any Party whose Parcel is affected by the taking shall have the right to terminate this Agreement with respect to its Parcel by giving written notice of its election to terminate within [number, e.g., 30] days after expiration of the above [same number used above for corrective work approval period, e.g., 120]-day period.

(c) If any Party elects to terminate this Agreement with respect to its Parcel pursuant to the provisions of this Paragraph, the effective termination date shall be as determined by the terminating Party, except that it may be no earlier than [number, e.g., 180] days after the Party's written notice of its election to terminate. At the request of any Party who elects to terminate this Agreement with respect to its Parcel pursuant to this Paragraph, each of the Parties shall execute in recordable form a written instrument prepared by the terminating Party reciting the fact that this Agreement is terminated with respect to the terminating Party's Parcel.

(d) Except as otherwise expressly permitted in this Paragraph, no taking by eminent domain of any Parcel or any portion of a Parcel shall entitle any Party to terminate this Agreement with respect to its Parcel.

Distribution of Award

13.02. This Paragraph applies to any award of damages or compensation made for a taking by eminent domain of any Parcel, whether the award is obtained by agreement prior to, or during the time of, any court action, or by judgment, verdict, or order resulting from or entered after any such court action resulting from the taking by eminent domain of a Parcel (or any portion of a Parcel). Any such award shall be distributed among the Parties and any other Person having an interest in the award, in accordance with the terms and conditions of the agreement, judgment, verdict, or order. For purposes of this Agreement, in the event any Parcel (or portion of a Parcel) is sold in lieu of a taking by eminent domain, the sale shall be considered a taking by eminent domain and the sales price for the Parcel, less selling expenses, shall be considered the award of damages or compensation made for a taking by eminent domain.

ARTICLE 14. DEFAULT, TERMINATION, & REMEDIES

Legal and Equitable Remedies

14.01. In the event of any actual or threatened violation, default, or breach (hereafter collectively referred to as a "default") of or under any of the terms, restrictions, covenants, or conditions of this Agreement by any Party or by the Occupants of any Party's Parcel, any other Party shall have the right, in addition to specific remedies described in this Agreement, to pursue any available legal or equitable remedy, including damages, injunctions, and restraining orders. All remedies shall be cumulative, and the pursuit of any available remedy shall not constitute a waiver or election of remedies with respect to all other available remedies. A Party shall be responsible for any default by an Occupant of the Party's parcel.

Notice as Prerequisite to Breach

14.02. Except as otherwise provided in this Agreement, a Party shall not be deemed to be in default under this Agreement until that Party has been given a written notice, prepared by any other Party or Parties, that describes the act or omission constituting the default, and (1) the Party fails to cure the default within [number] days after the date of the notice of default (the "Cure Period"), or (2) in the case of a default that is not capable of being cured within the Cure Period, the Party fails to commence the cure within the Cure Period and to diligently pursue it to completion within a reasonable time thereafter.

Right of Nondefaulting Party to Cure

14.03. (a) Except as provided below, any Party shall have the right, but not the obligation, to cure a default of any other Party on behalf of and at the sole expense of the defaulting Party. In that case, the defaulting Party shall pay to the curing Party (1) all costs and expenses reasonably incurred in effecting the cure, plus interest at the then-maximum legal rate, and (2) all court costs and expenses, including reasonable attorneys' fees, incurred by the curing Party. The right to cure described in this Paragraph may not be exercised by a Party until (1) the Cure Period described in Paragraph 14.02 of this Agreement has elapsed and the defaulting Party has neither cured nor commenced a cure of the default as provided in that Paragraph; and, (2) to the extent applicable, the Additional Cure Period described in Paragraph 15.04 of this Agreement has elapsed and the Lender has neither cured nor commenced a cure of the default or commenced foreclosure proceedings within the Additional Cure Period or the extended period provided for in that same Paragraph.

(b) All costs and expenses described in Subparagraph (a) of this Paragraph incurred by a curing Party shall constitute a lien on the Parcel of the defaulting Party or on the interest of the defaulting Person in the Parcel, effective on the date the curing Party records a claim of lien in _____ County, California. The claim of lien shall set forth, at a minimum, a legal description of the Parcel of the defaulting Party, a reference to this Agreement (as recorded), a statement that the lien is authorized by this Agreement, the amount of the lien, and descriptions of the default and the curative action taken. The curing Party shall (1) give a copy of the claim of lien to the defaulting Party in the manner and at the address specified in Paragraph 17.04 of this Agreement, and (2) mail a copy to the address of record in the County of _____ for the mailing of tax statements for the Parcel or interest against which the lien is filed. Any lien created under this Paragraph shall be subordinate to any right, title, or interest in a Parcel created or acquired of record prior to the date the claim of lien is recorded, even if the claim of lien relates to matters that occurred prior to the time any right, title, or interest in the Parcel was created or acquired of record.

Termination Not Permitted for Breach

14.04. It is expressly agreed that any breach of this Agreement shall not entitle any Party or Person to cancel, rescind, or otherwise terminate this Agreement or any of its provisions. However, this limitation shall not in any way affect any other rights or remedies that a Party or Person may have for a breach of this Agreement.

Termination and Amendment

14.05. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Agreement to the contrary, all provisions of this Agreement (except those relating to certain easements described in Article 3 that shall terminate as provided in that Article) shall terminate [number, e.g., 60] years after the date this Agreement [or a memorandum of this Agreement] is recorded pursuant to Paragraph 17.07 of this Agreement. Except as otherwise provided in this Agreement, this Agreement and its Exhibits may be cancelled, modified, or amended only by a writing that is executed by all of the Parties [if approval of lender and fee owner-lessor under sale-leaseback is required, add: and, for so long as any first lien of a Lender or any lease of a Fee Owner-Lessor described in Paragraph 15.06 of this Agreement is in effect for a Parcel in the Shopping Center, by the Lender or Fee Owner-Lessor of the affected Parcel]; and recorded in the County of _____[name of county where shopping center is located], California. No cancellation, modification, or amendment shall require the prior approval or consent of any Occupant or User.

Force Majeure

14.06. Except as otherwise provided in this Agreement, any Party shall be excused from a delay in any performance required of the Party under this Agreement caused by any of the following: the act of any public enemy; war; war defense condition; act of God; the elements; strike; walkout; or other causes beyond the Party's reasonable control. However, each Party shall use reasonable diligence to avoid any such delay and to resume its performance required under this Agreement as promptly as possible after the delay.

Attorneys' Fees

14.07. If any action is commenced between any Parties to this Agreement concerning this Agreement or for the enforcement of rights and duties of any Party, the Party prevailing in the action shall be entitled to, in addition to any other relief that may be granted, a reasonable sum as and for its attorneys' fees. The sum shall be determined by the court in the action or in a separate action brought for that purpose.

ARTICLE 15. RIGHTS OF LENDERS AND OTHERS

Breach Not to Defeat Mortgage

15.01. This Agreement and all of its provisions shall be superior and senior to any lien (including a mortgage or deed of trust) placed on any Parcel or a portion of any Parcel. [If mortgage or trust deed has been recorded on any parcel, add: Any Party who has encumbered its Parcel with a mortgage or deed of trust prior to the effective date of this Agreement (as defined in Paragraph 17.07 of this Agreement) shall cause its Lender(s) to execute, in recordable form, and record in the Official Records of the County of _____ (county where shopping center is located), State of California, a written instrument subordinating its encumbrance to this Agreement]. The mortgagee under a mortgage or the beneficiary under a deed of trust (referred to in this Agreement as a "Lender") shall not be obligated to perform any of the terms, covenants, or conditions of its borrower-Party under this Agreement unless and until the Lender acquires title to the borrower-Party's Parcel, and then, only for the period during which the Lender retains title to the Parcel. Any Person (including a Lender) who acquires title to a Parcel as a result of a default under a mortgage or deed of trust shall be obligated to perform all terms, covenants, and conditions of the defaulting borrower-Party under this Agreement, commencing when the Person acquires title to the Parcel and continuing for so long as the Person owns the Parcel. A breach of any of the terms, conditions, covenants, or restrictions of this Agreement shall not defeat or render invalid the lien of any mortgage or deed of trust made in good faith and for value, but the violated term, condition, covenant, or restriction shall be binding on and effective against any Person (including any Lender) who acquires title to a Parcel or portion of a Parcel by foreclosure, trustee's sale, deed in lieu of foreclosure, or otherwise. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this Paragraph, neither the making of a mortgage or deed of trust by a borrower-Party on its Parcel nor the subsequent foreclosure of any mortgage or deed of trust shall relieve the borrower-Party of its liability under this Agreement.

Notice to and Service on Lender

15.02. A duplicate copy of any and all notices a Party may from time to time give to or serve on any other Party pursuant to or relating to this Agreement, including any notice of default or notice regarding any matter on which the Party may predicate or claim a default, shall be mailed to any Lender (as that term is defined in Paragraph 15.01 of this Agreement) for the affected Parcel, provided the Lender has first given the noticing Party a written notice containing the Lender's name, address, and a description of the Lender's security interest in the Parcel (the "Request for Notices"). Any notices or other communications permitted or required by this or any other Paragraph of this Agreement or by law to be served on or given to a Lender by a Party shall be deemed given to the Lender when delivered or mailed in accordance with Paragraph 17.04 of this Agreement to the Lender at the last mailing address for the Lender furnished in writing by the Lender to the Party.

Right of Lender to Realize on Security

15.03. A Lender for an affected Parcel shall have the right at any time during which its lien is in effect to take any of the following actions:

(a) Perform any act required of its borrower-Party under this Agreement, in which case the act performed by the Lender shall be as effective to prevent a breach of this Agreement by its borrower-Party under this Agreement as if done by the borrower-Party;

(b) Realize on its security interest by commencing foreclosure proceedings, agreeing to an assignment in lieu of foreclosure, or pursing any other remedy afforded in law or in equity or by the security instrument evidencing the lien, and to take the following related actions:

> (1) Transfer, convey, or assign title to the Parcel or its interest in the Parcel secured by the security instrument evidencing its lien to any purchaser at any foreclosure sale, whether the foreclosure sale is conducted pursuant to court order or pursuant to a power of sale contained in the security instrument, or to an assignee pursuant to an assignment in lieu of foreclosure; and
> (2) Acquire and succeed to the interest of any borrower-Party under this Agreement by virtue of any foreclosure sale, whether the foreclosure sale is conducted pursuant to a court order or pursuant to a power of sale contained in the security instrument, or by virtue of an assignment in lieu of foreclosure.

Right of Lender to Cure Defaults

15.04. (a) This Subparagraph applies if (1) any Party has given any other Party a notice of default described in Paragraph 14.02 of this Agreement, (2) the defaulting Party fails to cure or to commence to cure the default within the Cure Period provided for in that Paragraph, and (3) a Lender with a lien on the defaulting Party's Parcel has given the noticing Party a Request for Notices described in Paragraph 15.02 of this Agreement. In that case, the noticing Party shall give to the Lender an additional notice stating that the defaulting Party has failed to cure or commence cure of the default within the Cure Period. On receipt of the additional notice, the Lender shall have the right to do any of the following:

(1) Cure the breach or default within

_____ [number] days after the date of the additional notice ("the Additional Cure Period"), if the default can be cured by the payment of money;

(2) Cure the breach or default within the Additional Cure Period, when the breach or default must be cured by something other than the payment of money and can be cured within that time; or

(3) Cure the breach or default in a reasonable time when something other than money is required to cure the breach or default and the cure cannot be performed within the Additional Cure Period, provided that acts to cure the breach or default are commenced within the Additional Cure Period and are thereafter diligently continued by the Lender.

(b) Notwithstanding Subparagraph (a) of this Paragraph, a Lender may, in lieu of curing a default of its borrower-Party, commence proceedings to foreclose its lien (either through foreclosure by order of court or under a power of sale contained in the security instrument evidencing its lien). In that case, the commencement of foreclosure proceedings shall be deemed a cure of its borrower-Party's default, provided the following requirements are met:

(1) The proceedings are commenced within the Additional Cure Period (except that commencement may be extended by a period equal to any delay caused by bankruptcy or insolvency proceedings or any other judicial process);

(2) After having been commenced, the proceedings are diligently pursued in the manner required by law to completion (except that completion may be extended by a period equal to any delay caused by bankruptcy or insolvency proceedings or any other judicial process); and

(3) The Lender keeps and performs all of the terms, covenants, and conditions of this Agreement requiring the payment or expenditure of money by its borrower-Party until the foreclosure proceedings are complete or are discharged by redemption, satisfaction, payment, or conveyance of title to the Lender or other Person.

Subordination of Lien Claims to First Encumbrances

15.05. (a) Any lien created pursuant to Paragraph 14.03 of this Agreement on a Parcel shall be subordinate to the interest of any Lender under a first mortgage or first deed of trust recorded on that Parcel (or a portion of that Parcel) in good faith and for fair value, whether the claim of lien described in Paragraph 14.03 of this Agreement is recorded before or after the first mortgage or first deed of trust.

(b) The interest of a Fee Owner under a sale-leaseback arrangement with a Party (as described in Paragraph 15.06 of this Agreement) shall have the same priority described in Subparagraph (a) of this Paragraph over a claim of lien created in a Parcel pursuant to Paragraph 14.03 of this Agreement, provided the Party-lessee's transfer of title to its Parcel (or a portion of the Parcel) is not subject to any secured obligation for the payment of money other than real estate taxes.

Rights of Fee Owner in Sale-Leaseback

15.06. This Paragraph applies if (1) any Party transfers title to all or part of its Parcel for the purpose of financing the improvements to be constructed on the Parcel, (2) the Party, as lessee, simultaneously leases back the entire Parcel (or portion of it) from the then-fee owner ("Fee Owner"), and (3) the Party agrees, as part of the sale-leaseback arrangement, to assume all obligations under this Agreement. In that case, the Fee Owner of the Parcel (or portion of it) shall, for purposes of this Agreement, have all of the rights and privileges under this Agreement of a Lender (as defined in Paragraph 15.01 of this Agreement) for so long as the lease remains in existence. If the leasehold interest is terminated, and notwithstanding any provision in the lease purporting to prohibit a merger of title in the Fee Owner, the Fee Owner shall be obligated to perform all terms, covenants, and conditions of the Party-lessee under this Agreement; provided, however, that imposition of this liability on the Fee Owner shall in no way relieve the Party-lessee of its liability under this Agreement.

[Optional]

ARTICLE 16. MERCHANTS' ASSOCIATION

Organization

16.01. Developer shall organize a merchants' association (the "Association") for the Shopping Center for the purpose of advancing and coordinating the common promotional interests of merchants in the Shopping Center. The Association shall be [an unincorporated association or a nonprofit mutual benefit corporation], organized [if corporation, add: and incorporated] under the laws of the State of California.

Membership

16.02. (a) Developer, as Landlord, shall require in all leases entered into between Developer and tenants that all tenants be members of the Association and maintain membership in good standing during the term of the lease. Tenants shall be required to pay monthly dues and assessments to the Association, based on the number of square feet of gross floor area leased by the tenants. The annual amount of these dues and assessments shall not be less than $ _____ per square foot. Each lease with a tenant shall also require the tenant to (1) make an initial contribution to the Association, in a dollar amount determined by Developer, at the commencement of the lease term, and (2) expend at least [number] percent of its annual gross sales (as that term is defined in the lease) on advertising its business.

(b) Developer shall be a member of and actively participate in the Association. Further, Developer shall contribute to the Association annually an amount equal to _____ [set forth formula for determining amount, e.g., 25 percent of the total dues and assessments collected by the Association from Majors and from members other than Landlord]; provided, however, that Landlord shall not be required to contribute more than $ _____ for any calendar year.

(c) Subject to the provisions of Paragraph 16.03 of this Agreement, each Major shall be a member of the Association for so long as the Association exists and the Major continues to operate its retail department store on its Parcel. The amount of total annual dues and assessments paid to the Association by any Major shall not exceed $ _____ per square foot of the maximum gross floor area of the Commercial Area of each Major's Parcel.

Governing Instruments

16.03. Developer shall draft governing instruments for the Association. The governing instruments shall not contain any provision that grants the Association power to abrogate, modify, or otherwise affect any right granted to a Major or Developer under this Agreement. The governing instruments shall provide that the board of directors for the Association shall consist of not more than [number, e.g., five] directors, and shall grant each Party to this Agreement the right to appoint one director to the Association's board of directors.

[Continue with the following:]

ARTICLE 17. MISCELLANEOUS

Covenants Run With Land

17.01. The covenants, restrictions, conditions, and provisions contained in this Agreement (whether affirmative or negative in nature) (1) are made for the direct, mutual, and reciprocal benefit of each Parcel in the Shopping Center; (2) shall constitute and be enforceable as mutual equitable servitudes on each Parcel in the Shopping Center in favor of every other Parcel; (3) shall constitute covenants running with the land; (4) shall bind every person having any fee, leasehold, or other interest in a Parcel, to the extent that the covenants, restrictions, conditions, or provisions apply to the Parcel; and (e) shall inure to the benefit of the Parties and their respective successors and assigns.

No Public Dedication

17.02. Nothing contained in this Agreement shall be deemed to be a gift or dedication of any portion of the Shopping Center to the general public, for the general public or for any public purpose whatsoever, it being the intention of the Parties that this Agreement shall be strictly limited to and for the purposes expressed in the Agreement.

No Partnership or Joint Venture

17.03. This Agreement shall not be construed or deemed to create a relationship of partnership or joint venture among the Parties or between any of them.

Notices

17.04. All notices, statements, demands, requests, approvals, or other communications (collectively referred to in this Agreement as "notices") to be given under or pursuant to this Agreement shall be in writing, addressed to the Parties at their respective addresses set forth below. Further, the notices shall be delivered in person, or by certified or registered mail, return receipt requested and postage prepaid. Notices shall be deemed given on the date personal delivery is made or, in the case of mailed notices, the date of delivery indicated on the requested return receipt.

Notices to Parties shall be sent to the following addresses unless and until a Party changes its address by written notice given to all other Parties:

_____[address]

OWNER #3
_____[name]
_____[address]

Any Person who becomes a Party to this Agreement by virtue of the provisions of Article 2 shall give written notice of his, her, or its address to each of the other Parties.

Approvals

17.05. Whenever the approval or consent of any Party (hereafter referred to as an "approval") is required under this Agreement, the approval shall not be unreasonably withheld except as otherwise provided in this Agreement. Unless this Agreement requires a particular approval to be made within a specific time period, the approval must be given within [number, e.g., 30] days after the date of a written request for the approval. Except as otherwise provided in this Agreement, if a Party fails to indicate, within the foregoing _____ -day period, whether or not it approves of a particular matter, the party will be deemed to have given its approval. If a Party disapproves a particular matter, the reasons for the disapproval must be stated in writing.

Severability

17.06. If any provision of this Agreement is held to be invalid by any court of competent jurisdiction, the remaining provisions shall remain in full force and effect.

Recordation and Effective Date

17.07. [If memorandum will be recorded, include the following: A memorandum of this Agreement, in recordable form, shall be executed by each of the Parties concurrently with the execution of this Agreement.] _____[Name of party] shall (1) cause this Agreement [or the memorandum] to be recorded, as soon as possible after the execution of this Agreement, in the Official Records of the County of _____, California, and (2) thereafter deliver copies of the Agreement [or memorandum], showing recordation, to each of the other Parties. The effective date of this Agreement shall be the date on which it [or the memorandum] is recorded. The cost of recording shall be shared equally by the Parties.

DIVISION II: REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 34E SHOPPING CENTERS: LEASING AND OPERATION
PART IV. FORMS

17-34E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 34E.201

AUTHOR: Benjamin Kaplan Myron Moskovitz Practice Consultants

§ 34E.201 Shopping Center Lease

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a retail lease for a shopping center. Because a shopping center lease is a type of commercial lease, much of the coverage in Chapter 34C, Commercial, Industrial, and Office Leases, including its alternative lease provisions, is applicable to the use of this form. This comment makes appropriate cross-references to that chapter when necessary.

As a practical matter, most tenant leases for a shopping center contain, on the whole, provisions more favorable to the landlord than to the tenant. This lease reflects that reality. The remainder of this comment identifies provisions in this form that favor the landlord (or, less frequently, the tenant).

[b] Uniform Lease for All Tenants

Most shopping centers use a standardized, uniform lease for all tenants. As a general rule, only large "anchor" tenants are able to successfully negotiate their own individual terms for a lease. However, depending on market conditions and the financial strength or reputation of a tenant, even a small tenant may be able to bargain for and obtain modifications to an otherwise standardized lease.

From a practical standpoint, uniformity in the tenant leases for a shopping center makes it easier to manage the center and to market it to prospective purchasers. Also, prospective tenants may be more likely to accept a lease containing provisions that are binding on other tenants as well.

[c] Description of Leased Premises

To avoid potential title problems, a shopping center lease should simply lease space in a building, and not lease the building itself or the underlying land. Further, a shopping center lease usually does not contain a legal description of the land on which the shopping center is located. Instead, a site plan for the shopping center is typically attached to the lease and incorporated by reference [see § 34E.201[2], P 1.02].

In addition to its retail space, the tenant should be granted a nonexclusive right in common with others to use the common areas of the shopping center [see § 34E.201[2], P 1.03], subject to the tenant's compliance with rules and regulations governing the use of these areas [see § 34E.201[2], P 5.03].

[d] Term of Lease

This lease provides for a fixed term of years, beginning on the commencement date of the lease. This date is the earlier of the date the tenant is required under the lease to open for business, or the date the tenant actually opens for business [see § 34E.201[2], P 3.01]. If the shopping center is new, the landlord may want to secure the tenant's agreement to participate in a grand opening for the shopping center [see optional language in § 34E.201 [2], P 3.01]. When a conditional commencement date (see discussion above) makes it impossible to specify the exact termination date of a fixed lease term until the commencement date has been established, the lease should contain a provision requiring the parties to memorialize in writing the exact commencement and termination dates of the lease once they have been determined [see § 34E.201[2], P 3.03]. For a lease clause granting a tenant the right to extend the term of a lease and a discussion of applicable laws, see Chapter 34C, Commercial, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.212

This form refers to the interim period between the date of the lease and the commencement date as the preliminary term of the lease [see § 34E.201[2], P 3.02]. During that term, the tenant is not required to pay rent and other charges, but is obligated to construct its own improvements and to install fixtures suitable for its business.

[e] Possession of Premises

The failure by a landlord to put a tenant in possession of leased premises justifies the termination of the lease by the tenant [see Dengler v. Michelssen (1888) 76 Cal. 125, 127, 18 P. 138] . The proper measure of damages for a landlord's failure to deliver possession of the leased premises is the difference between the agreed rent and the rental value of the premises during the term of the lease [Foreman & Clark Corp. v. Fallon (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 875, 884, 92 Cal. Rptr. 162, 479 P.2d 362] . In light of these consequences, a landlord should insist on some flexibility under the lease in delivering possession to the tenant. For example, this form specifies a definite possession date, but provides that the tenant is not entitled to terminate the lease or to any other remedy if the landlord fails to deliver by that date. Only if the landlord fails to deliver possession before expiration of a specified grace period is the tenant entitled to cancel the lease [see § 34E.201[2], P 3.04].

[f] Rent and Other Charges

[i] In General

In addition to a basic fixed rent [see [ii], below] and a percentage rent [see [iii], below], a tenant in a shopping center usually must also pay a pro rata share of the landlord's common area operating expenses and real property taxes for the shopping center [see [iv]-[vi], below]. Further, the landlord may require a security deposit at the commencement of the lease term [see [vii], below]. For any rent or other required charge, the lease must clearly set forth the amount of the rent or charge (or formula for determining the amount), when and to whom the amount is payable, and the circumstances, if any, that excuse or postpone the payment of any amount.

[ii] Fixed Rent

This form requires the tenant to pay an annual minimum fixed rent. This rent is payable in equal monthly installments on the first day of each month [see § 34E.201[2], P 4.01].

[iii] Percentage Rent

The percentage rent provision in this form requires the tenant to pay the landlord a percentage of the portion of its gross sales that exceeds a specified base dollar amount [see P 4.02]. For a percentage rent provision that requires the payment of a stated percent of the amount, if any, by which the tenant's annual gross sales exceed an agreed-on amount or formula (for example, four times the minimum rent), see Chapter 34C, Commercial, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.200[2], P 2.02. For discussion of the purpose of percentage rent and the different ways in which it may be calculated, see the Legal Background to Chapter 34C, Commercial, Industrial, and Office Leases.

The lease must clearly define the term "gross sales" (or alternative term) for purposes of the percentage rent provision. Further, it should describe all transactions or amounts that are to be included or are excludable [see § 34E.201[2], P 4.03]. The lease should also require the tenant to maintain accurate books and records of its gross sales on the premises [see § 34E.201 [2], P 4.05], and to provide the landlord with statements of its gross sales on a periodic basis [see § 34E.201[2], P 4.04].

The lease should also grant the landlord reasonable access to the tenant's books and records and the right to conduct an audit of the tenant's gross sales [see § 34E.201[2], P 4.05]. It should describe remedies for any discrepancies (disclosed by an audit) in the amount of a tenant's gross sales or in the amount of percentage rent paid by the tenant [see § 34E.201[2], P 4.05(b)]. Common provisions require the tenant to pay for the audit if a discrepancy equal to or greater than a specified percentage is disclosed. For even higher or repeated discrepancies, the landlord may insist on a provision giving it the right to terminate the tenant's lease.

[iv] Tenant's Share of Common Area Maintenance Costs

A shopping center lease usually requires the tenant to contribute to the landlord's cost of operating and maintaining common areas of the center. Typically, a tenant's pro rata share of total common area maintenance costs is determined on the basis of floor area occupied by the tenant in relationship to the total leasable floor area in the shopping center. For purposes of the calculation, the lease may exclude the floor area of major occupants or tenants, such as department stores, from the total leasable floor area in the shopping center before the tenant's share is calculated [see optional language in § 34E.201[2], P 4.06]. The reason for this exclusion is that a "key" tenant or owner-occupant usually negotiates its own agreement with the owner of the shopping center regarding a contribution to common area maintenance costs. In order to induce a large tenant or occupant to locate in the shopping center, a developer or landlord may agree to significantly reduce the amount that the tenant or occupant would otherwise be required to pay on the basis of leasable floor area occupied in the shopping center.

The lease should describe the costs and expenses for which the tenant is required to contribute a pro rata share [see § 34E.201[2], P 4.06(c)]. The landlord will normally want to include as many items as possible, while the tenant may bargain for the exclusion of certain items that do not contribute to the tenant's beneficial use of the shopping center. For example, a tenant may bargain to exclude (1) attorneys' fees incurred by the landlord to enforce other individual tenant leases, or (2) costs incurred to perform any required cleanup of hazardous substances in the shopping center not caused by the tenant. On the other hand, a landlord may insist on the inclusion of all costs and expenses of complying with any environmental law or regulation, including the removal of any hazardous substances from the shopping center [see § 34E.201[2], P 4.06(c)].

A limited liability company that was the owner of a shopping center was not entitled under the lease to charge its tenants the cost of its LLC taxes and fees as shares of "common area operating expenses." The LLC fees and taxes did not qualify as costs "relating to the ownership and operation" of a shopping center within the meaning of the lease term "Common Area Operating Expenses"; LLC taxes and fees are not the costs of owning property but the costs of operating a business in a form that limits the personal liability of its principal [Tin Tin Corp. v. Pacific Rim Park LLC, (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 1220, 1231, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 816] .

[v] Real Property Taxes and Assessments

In the absence of an express agreement between a landlord and tenant regarding responsibility for the payment of property taxes, the general rule is that the landlord has the obligation to pay all taxes assessed against the leased premises during the term of the lease [Lawrence v. F.W. Woolworth Co. (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 119, 121, 45 Cal. Rptr. 140, 403 P.2d 396] . A limited exception exists for tax increases caused by certain improvements made by a tenant [see Ch. 34C, Commercial, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.221].

In a shopping center, each owner of the property in the center (including the landlord) commonly pays the property tax assessed against its land [see, e.g., § 34E.200[2], P 10.01]. The landlord then requires in its leases with tenants that tenants each pay a pro rata share of the property taxes [see § 34E.201[2], P 4.08(b)]. It is important that the lease specify all taxes that are to be included in or excluded from the computation in determining the tenant's share [see § 34E.201[2], P 4.08(a)]. For example, the obligation of a tenant under a lease to pay "taxes" on the leased premises does not, unless expressly provided in the lease, include special assessments imposed by an improvement district since a local improvement assessment is not a tax [Wells v. Union Oil Co. (1938) 25 Cal. App. 2d 165, 166-167, 76 P.2d 696] .

[vi] Utilities

A landlord may furnish some utilities to a shopping center tenant. In that case, the lease should require the tenant to contribute to the cost [see § 34E.201[2], P 4.07(b)]. For other utilities, the tenant should be required to contract with local utility providers and to pay the cost of service [see § 34E.201[2], P 4.07(a)].

[vii] Security Deposit

The security deposit provision in this form reflects statutory requirements governing the handling and disposition of a security deposit for a nonresidential lease [see Civ. Code § 1950.7; § 34E.201[2], P 4.10]. For coverage of these requirements, see Chapter 34C, Commercial, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.200[1].

This form also requires the tenant to restore any amount of the deposit used by the landlord during the term of the lease. While this type of provision is neither authorized nor prohibited by statute, it is commonly included in a nonresidential lease. Finally, the lease should indicate whether or not the landlord will pay the tenant interest on the deposit. The payment of interest is not required under current law or under this form.

[g] Financing Considerations

If, as is often the case, a lender will finance the shopping center for the landlord, the lender will generally condition financing on its review and approval of existing and future leases. This review will permit the lender to confirm that the leases are compatible with its loan documents, and to assess its security risk in the event the landlord defaults and the lender assumes the position of landlord under the leases. The lender will want to hold the property with a minimum of ownership concerns if it eventually acquires title through foreclosure. For this reason, lenders usually view with disfavor (1) restrictions on the landlord resulting from an "exclusive" use clause granted to a tenant, and (2) obligations of a landlord to perform certain affirmative acts in favor of a particular tenant. Further, since most lenders are not in the business of operating shopping centers, they require lease provisions that will protect and enhance the value of the shopping center and thereby increase its marketability.

For further discussion of financing as it affects the provisions of a lease, see the Legal Background to Chapter 34C, Commercial, Industrial, and Office Leases. For coverage of financing considerations applicable to a ground lease, see the Legal Background to Chapter 34D, Ground Leases.

[h] Tenant's Use of Premises

[i] Restriction as to Type of Business

It is to the tenant's advantage to have maximum flexibility in its use of the leased premises. On the other hand, a landlord may insist on a provision that restricts the tenant's use to a particular type of business, especially when the specific percentage requirements used in a percentage lease are based on a particular type of business to be conducted by the tenant. Although this lease restricts the tenant's use of the premises to a particular type of business, it permits the sale of collateral merchandise, provided gross sales from the collateral merchandise do not exceed an agreed-on percentage of total gross sales from the tenant's business [see § 34E.201[2], P 2.01].

If a lease does not limit the uses that the tenant may make of the leased premises, the tenant may use the premises for any lawful purpose not materially different from the ordinary use of the premises or uses for which the premises are adapted or for which they were constructed [Davidson v. Goldstein (1943) 58 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 909] .

[ii] Operating Covenant

Because the amount of rent a landlord collects under a percentage lease is directly related to the success of the tenant's business, the landlord may bargain for a provision requiring the tenant to continuously operate the business during the term of the lease [see § 34E.201[2], P 8.10; see also Ch. 34C, Commercial, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.200[1][g]]. Absent such a provision, there is, as a general rule, no implied covenant on the part of the tenant to continue to use the premises, and the tenant may cease to use the premises for any purpose. However, under an important exception to the general rule, a tenant's covenant of continued operation may be implied when the rent under a commercial lease is a specified but unsubstantial minimum plus a percentage [Lippman v. Sears Roebuck & Co. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 136, 142-143, 280 P.2d 775 ; College Block v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1376, 1380, 254 Cal. Rptr. 179 ; see § 34E.16].

[iii] Radius Restriction

A radius restriction lease clause restricts the tenant (or landlord) from operating a business similar to the tenant's business within a designated geographical radius [see, e.g., Ch. 34C, Commercial, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.200[2], PP 3.06, 307]. The intent behind this provision is to cause the tenant to generate maximum sales at the landlord's location, and to restrict the tenant's ability to distribute sales among several competing locations. Alternatively, a lease may provide that if the tenant opens a similar business within a designated geographical radius, the gross sales from that business will be counted together with the gross sales from the business conducted on the leased premises for purposes of computing percentage rent [see § 34E.201[2], P 8.09].

[iv] Prohibited Activities

The lease should prohibit certain activities that constitute a nuisance or violation of law and that otherwise interfere with the business and operation of the shopping center. For such a provision, see [2], P 8.04, below .

[v] Hazardous Substances

Most retail leases contain a standard provision prohibiting the tenant from using or storing hazardous materials on the leased premises [see, e.g., § 34E.201[2], P 8.04(h)]. The hazardous substances provision should designate the party responsible for performing any necessary cleanup of hazardous materials and for paying the cost of the cleanup [see § 34E.201[2], P 14.04]. A tenant may bargain for (1) a warranty by the landlord that no hazardous materials are located on the premises, and (2) the landlord's agreement to indemnify the tenant against any damage or loss caused by the presence of hazardous materials found on the leased premises and not caused by the tenant.

For a discussion of hazardous substance laws and their effect on a landlord and tenant under a lease, see the Legal Background to Chapter 34C, Commercial, Industrial, and Office Leases.

[vi] Compliance With Law and Other Affirmative Obligations

An owner of real property has a duty to comply with laws and orders regarding the condition of the premises unless the tenant expressly assumes this obligation [Glenn R. Sewell Sheet Metal Inc. v. Loverde (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 666, 672, 75 Cal. Rptr. 889, 451 P.2d 721] . If a tenant covenants in a lease to comply with all laws and ordinances pertaining to the leased premises, that covenant, standing alone, does not constitute an assumption of the duty to comply with laws that require actions of a "substantial" nature [see Glenn R. Sewell Sheet Metal, Inc. v. Loverde (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 666, 674, 75 Cal. Rptr. 889, 451 P.2d 721] . Therefore, if it is the intent of the parties that the tenant's obligation to comply with all laws is to include the responsibility to make and pay for any or certain government-required capital expenditures (for example, comprehensive fire safety and sprinkler improvements), the lease should state that fact [see § 34E.201[2], P 8.05]. For an extended discussion of the California Supreme Court's interpretation of a compliance with laws clause similar to the one in Paragraph 8.05 of this form (which may or may not reflect particular parties' intended use of the clause) and the allocation of responsibility as between tenant and landlord for compliance with government mandated orders, see Chapter 34C, Commercial, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.241. If a tenant agrees to assume the burden of complying with applicable laws and regulations pertaining to the leased premises but fails to do so, the landlord can recover from the tenant the expenses of putting the premises in a condition that meets the regulatory standard [Strecker v. Barnard (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 149, 240 P.2d 345] .

The lease should impose affirmative obligations governing the tenant's operation of its business and use of the premises, such as obligations relating to merchandising, the condition of the premises, and hours of operation [see § 34E.201[2], PP 8.01-8.03]. Further, it should require the tenant to comply with any rules and regulations adopted by the landlord [see § 34E.201[2], P 8.07]. For an illustrative set of rules and regulations, see § 34E.203[2].

[vii] Signs and Form of Advertising

To maintain uniformity in tenant signs in a shopping center and to enhance the overall appearance of the center, a lease must obligate the tenant to comply with established sign criteria regarding size, placement, and content [see § 34E.201[2], P 8.06]. For illustrative sign criteria that may be included with a lease as an exhibit, see § 34E.202[2].

[i] Maintenance and Use of Common Areas

The lease should provide that the landlord has exclusive control of the common areas (as defined) [see § 34E.201[2], PP 5.01, 5.02]. It should list the actions the landlord must or may take in connection with the use of the common areas, and should clearly describe any limitations on the landlord's control and use of these areas. The landlord should also retain the right to make changes to the common areas. For example, it should be permitted to reduce the size of the common areas, to demolish or construct buildings, and to designate additional portions of the center as common areas. Further, the lease should also authorize the closure by the landlord of all or a portion of the common areas under specific circumstances (for example, during repair and construction work), and should provide that any such closure does not give the tenant the right to terminate the lease or to an abatement of rent [see § 34E.201[2], P 5.01].

A lease provision should grant tenants a nonexclusive right to use these areas in common with other tenants and users of the shopping center [see § 34E.201[2], P 5.03]. The lease should require the tenant to abide by any rules and regulations adopted by the landlord for the shopping center [see § 34E.201[2], P 5.03; see also § 34E.203[2] (rules and regulations)]. It should also set forth requirements governing the use of parking spaces by tenants and their employees [see § 34E.201[2], P 5.04].

[j] Initial Construction Responsibilities for Leased Space

A shopping center lease typically requires the landlord or tenant to complete, within a specified period of time, construction of improvements necessary for the conduct of the tenant's business on the leased premises. The lease may require one or both parties to pay construction costs.

This form requires the tenant, at the tenant's sole cost and expense, to perform the necessary construction work in accordance with plans and specifications approved by the landlord [see § 34E.201[2], P 6.02(a), (b)]. It also sets forth related requirements governing the tenant's insurance, lien-free completion of construction, standards for construction, liability for design or construction defects, and personal liability for construction work [see § 34E.201[2], P 6.02(c)-(f)]. For alternative lease provisions that require the landlord to construct improvements on the leased premises, see Chapter 34C, Commercial, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.243

[k] Alterations and Improvements

Absent an express provision in the lease permitting or requiring alterations or improvements, a tenant may not make material alterations to the leased premises without the landlord's consent [see Metzler v. Thye (1912) 163 Cal. 95, 98-99, 124 P. 721] . This form requires the tenant to obtain the landlord's prior consent to any tenant alteration, and also provides that the tenant, in making any approved alteration or improvement, must comply with all requirements of the lease governing the tenant's initial construction work [see § 34E.201[2], P 6.04; see also § 34E.201[2], P 6.02 (initial construction work)]. Any alterations or improvements made by the tenant become the property of the landlord [see § 34E.201[2], P 6.06]. A landlord may also want to insert a provision that grants the landlord the option of requiring the tenant to remove alterations and repair damage caused by the removal on termination of the lease [see Ch. 34C, Commercial, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.200[2], P 5.05]. For coverage of the laws governing the ownership of improvements made by a tenant and the ownership of a tenant's trade fixtures, see Chapter 34C, Commercial, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.242. For alternative alteration provisions, see Chapter 34C, Commercial, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.240.

To obtain maximum flexibility for the landlord with respect to future improvements to the shopping center, the landlord should insist that the lease grant it the right to make alterations and improvements to the shopping center as it deems appropriate [see § 34E.201[2], P 6.03].

[l] Repairs

Paragraph 6.05 of this form covers the respective responsibilities of landlord and tenant for repairs to the premises. In the absence of lease provisions to the contrary, a tenant only has the duty (1) to use ordinary care to preserve the premises in safe and good condition [see Civ. Code § 1928] and (2) to repair all deteriorations or injuries to the premises caused by the tenant's want of ordinary care [Lynn v. DePue Warehouse Co. (1962) 198 Cal. App. 2d 742, 747, 17 Cal. Rptr. 841] . Otherwise, a tenant has no general duty to repair the premises or to correct defective conditions [Glenn R. Sewell Sheet Metal, Inc. v. Loverde (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 666, 671-672, 75 Cal. Rptr. 889, 451 P.2d 721] . However, as the possessor of land, the tenant must act as a reasonable person in the management of the property in view of the probability of injury to others [Civ. Code § 1714; Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 119, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 433 P.2d 561] . For further discussion of the respective duties of the landlord and tenant for repair and maintenance, absent contrary lease provisions, see Chapter 34C, Commercial, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.240[1].

[m] Destruction of Premises

If the lease does not require either party to restore leased premises that are destroyed, either party may terminate the lease in the event the premises are destroyed [Civ. Code §§ 1932(2), 1933(4); Harvey v. Weisbaum (1911) 159 Cal. 265, 267, 113 P. 656] . However, the parties to the lease may agree that either party is obligated to rebuild the destroyed premises [see Glenn R. Sewell Sheet Metal, Inc. v. Loverde (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 666, 678, 75 Cal. Rptr. 889, 451 P.2d 721] .

Except as otherwise discussed below, this lease requires the landlord to rebuild the leased premises within a designated time if they are destroyed from any casualty covered by the landlord's fire and extended coverage insurance, at least to the extent the cost of rebuilding does not exceed the landlord's net insurance proceeds. The failure by the landlord to commence or complete construction within the specified time period gives the tenant the right to terminate the lease [see § 34E.201 [2], P 7.02].

Notwithstanding the above, the landlord may elect to terminate this lease (instead of repairing and rebuilding the premises) under certain circumstances [see § 34E.201[2], P 7.03]. These circumstances include the following: damage or destruction to the leased premises resulting from an uninsured casualty; damage or destruction to the leased premises or to the building containing the premises, if the cost of repair exceeds a certain percent of the building's replacement cost; or damage or destruction to a specified percentage of the leasable floor space contained in the shopping center. In addition, either party has the right to terminate the lease if the premises are damaged or destroyed from any cause during the last part of the lease term. Paragraph 7.03 of this form describes the procedure for terminating the lease due to damage or destruction.

Another clause in this lease provides for the continuation or abatement of rent if the lease continues in effect after damage or destruction [see § 34E.201[2], P 7.04]. A landlord (and a landlord's lender) may be amenable to an abatement of rent during a period of rebuilding. If a tenant is required to pay rent during such a period, the landlord should include a provision requiring the tenant to obtain business interruption insurance. As a practical matter, the tenant should consider obtaining this coverage even if it is not required under the lease.

When either party is required to rebuild following damage or destruction to the leased premises, the lease should set forth standards and a time frame for the rebuilding [see § 34E.201[2], P 7.05]. For example, rebuilding required by the landlord under this lease only extends to the original "shell" for the premises delivered to the tenant at the commencement of the lease [see § 34E.201[2], P 7.05].

Of particular concern to a landlord's lender is how insurance proceeds will be disbursed following a casualty causing damage to or destruction of the leased premises. The lease provisions should not conflict with those contained in the lender's security instrument [see § 34E.201[2], P 7.06]. A lender may or may not require that the proceeds be applied to the outstanding balance of its loan. In some cases, the lender may require that the proceeds be paid to an insurance trustee for distribution during the construction period, rather than directly to the insured.

For alternative lease provisions that require the tenant to rebuild in the event that the leased premises are destroyed, see Chapter 34C, Commercial, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.244

[n] Indemnity and Insurance

Article 9 of this form contains provisions for insurance and indemnity that are similar to those set forth in Chapter 34C, Commercial, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.222. The comment to that form is equally applicable to the use of Article 9 of this form, and includes a full discussion of the rights and obligations of a tenant and landlord with respect to insurance, including the issues of subrogation, indemnity, and additional and named insureds.

[o] Merchants' Association

If a merchants' association exists for the shopping center [see § 34E.18], the tenant's lease should require the tenant to be and remain a member of the association. The lease should also describe all amounts that the tenant must pay to the association, such as regular dues and an initial contribution [see § 34E.201[2], P 10.01(a)]. The parties may wish to add additional provisions governing tenant voting and other rights of a tenant in the association. If large major tenants-members of the shopping center are subject to different obligations or have different rights in the association, that fact should probably be stated in the standard lease used for the other tenants, although the details should not be disclosed.

In most merchants' associations, the landlord is also required to be a member of the association and to contribute a designated amount to the association on a regular basis. In this form, the required contribution is a designated percentage of the total amount contributed by all tenants (which must not exceed a stated maximum amount) [see § 34E.201[2], P 10.01(b)]. When a shopping center has owners other than the landlord who are also occupants of the shopping center, the lease must also specify their respective contributions to the merchant's association [see, e.g., § 34E.200[2], art. 16].

[p] Condemnation

Unless the lease provides otherwise [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.160], statutory requirements and case law govern the rights and obligations of the landlord and tenant in the event the leased premises are condemned [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1230.010-1273.050]. For coverage of the applicable laws, including a consideration of the practical factors the parties should consider in negotiating a condemnation provision, see Chapter 34C, Commercial, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.262[1]. That form also contains alternative lease provisions for condemnation.

This form provides that the lease terminates if the leased premises are totally condemned or if the condemnation of a designated percentage substantially prevents the tenant from conducting its business [see § 34E.201[2], P 12.02]. Certain takings of the shopping center's leasable area or of the common areas or parking areas of the shopping center also justify termination of the lease [see § 34E.201[2], P 12.03].

Under Paragraph 12.02 of this lease, if a taking of less than a specified percentage of the gross floor area of the premises occurs and does not render the premises unsuitable for the conduct of the tenant's business, the lease will terminate as to the portion taken but will continue in effect for the remainder of the premises. When a lease contains such a provision, it should also include a waiver by the tenant of its statutory right [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.130] to petition the court for termination of the lease following the partial taking [see § 34E.201[2], P 12.05]. For discussion of that statutory right, see Chapter 34C, Commercial, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.262[1].

This form provides that the full amount of any condemnation award belongs to the landlord, except for certain amounts attributable to a tenant's improvements to the premises [see § 34E.201 [2], P 12.04]. For coverage of the laws governing the division of a compensation award in the absence of a contrary lease provision, see Chapter 34C, Commercial, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.262[1]

[q] Subletting and Assignment

A tenant under a nonresidential lease has an unrestricted right of transfer unless the lease restricts or absolutely prohibits transfers [Civ. Code § 1995.210(b)]. This lease requires the tenant to obtain the landlord's consent prior to (1) assigning the tenant's interest in the lease or (2) subletting the leased premises [see § 34E.201[2], P 8.08(a)]. Alternative language states that the landlord will not unreasonably withhold its consent, or that the landlord may withhold consent in its sole discretion. If a transfer restriction in a lease requires the landlord's consent but provides no standard for giving or withholding the consent, the consent must not be unreasonably withheld if the lease was executed on or after September 23, 1983 [Civ. Code § 1995.270(b); see Cohen v. Ratinoff (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 321, 329, 195 Cal. Rptr. 84] . If the lease was executed before that date, the consent may be unreasonably withheld [Civ. Code § 1995.270(b)].

For alternative lease provisions governing subletting and assignments and a discussion of the laws governing transfer restrictions, see Chapter 34C, Commercial, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.260. That form and comment also discuss the effectiveness of a lease provision that prohibits assignment in the event of a tenant's insolvency, bankruptcy, or death [see 11 U.S.C. § 365].

This form includes optional language that requires the tenant to pay to the landlord any profit from a sublease or assignment. For these purposes, "profit" means any amount the tenant receives from a subtenant or assignee over the amount of rent the tenant is obligated to pay to landlord [see § 34E.201[2], P 8.08(b)]. This arrangement appears to be consistent with the principle, affirmed by the California Supreme Court, that nothing bars the parties to a commercial lease transaction from making their own arrangements respecting the allocation of appreciated rentals if there is a transfer of the leasehold [see Kendall v. Ernest Pestana, Inc. (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 488, 505, n.17, 220 Cal. Rptr. 818, 709 P.2d 837] .

[r] Subordination

This form contains a clause stating that the tenant's lease is subordinate to any mortgage or deed of trust that has been or may be placed by the landlord on all or any portion of the shopping center. It requires the tenant to execute any documents deemed necessary by the landlord or the landlord's lender to effect the subordination, provided the lender agrees to a nondisturbance agreement for the tenant [see § 34E.201[2], P 11.01(a)]. A typical nondisturbance agreement provides that although the lease is subordinate to a superior lien, the holder of the lien will not, by foreclosure or otherwise, disturb the tenant's possession, as long as the tenant is not then in default under the lease.

This form also grants the lender the right to subordinate its lien to the lease [see § 34E.201[2], P 11.01(b)]. For a discussion of the reasons why a lender might make this election, see Chapter 34C, Commercial, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.250[1].

[s] Default by Tenant

[i] In General

This form lists acts and omissions by the tenant that are considered a default under the lease [see § 34E.201[2], P 13.01]. As a general rule, a failure to pay rent or perform any other term or condition of the lease does not constitute a default unless (1) the landlord has given the tenant written notice of the act or omission, and (2) the tenant fails to cure within a specified time period. Because of the substantial financial commitment of both parties involved in a retail lease, this type of provision is not uncommon in a nonresidential lease.

This lease also contains a provision describing the circumstances under which the tenant will be deemed to have abandoned the premises and breached the lease [see § 34E.201[2], P 13.01(b)]. The fact of abandonment may be determined by a statutory procedure [see Civ. Code § 1951.3], but that procedure is not exclusive [see Civ. Code § 1951.3(f)]. For full coverage of abandonment and termination, see Chapter 35B, Modification and Termination of Leases , Part B.

Paragraph 13.01(d) of this form lists other circumstances relating to the financial condition of the tenant that are considered a default under the lease. One of these is the filing of a bankruptcy petition by or against the tenant (unless the petition is dismissed within a stated time period). A provision permitting the landlord to terminate a lease because of the tenant's bankruptcy is, with few exceptions, unenforceable under federal bankruptcy law [see 11 U.S.C. § 365; see also the Legal Background to Ch. 34C, Commercial, Industrial, and Office Leases].

[ii] Damages on Termination of Lease

If a lease is terminated due to the tenant's breach, the landlord is entitled under certain circumstances to recover statutory damages from the tenant [see Civ. Code § 1951.2; § 34E.201[2], P 13.02]. To recover certain damages, the lease must provide for their recovery [see Civ. Code § 1951.2(c)]; for others, the landlord has a duty to mitigate damages [see Civ. Code § 1951.2(a)(2), (3), (c)]. For comprehensive coverage of those damages, see Chapter 34C, Commercial, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.270[1].

[iii] Continuation of Lease in Effect After Breach

Rather than terminate the lease if the tenant breaches it and abandons the premises, the landlord may wish to continue the lease in effect and collect rent as it becomes due. However, this statutory remedy is available only if all of the following apply [Civ. Code § 1951.4]:

(1) The lease provides for it;

(2) The landlord does not terminate the tenant's right to possession; and

(3) The lease permits the tenant the right to sublet or assign, subject to reasonable limitations.

For complete coverage of this remedy, see Chapter 34C, Commercial, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.271[1].

[t] Personal Liability of Landlord

This lease provides that in the event of the landlord's default, a tenant will look solely to the landlord's interest in the shopping center and not to other assets of the landlord for satisfaction of any judgment or other tenant remedy [see § 34E.201[2], P 14.01]. It is not uncommon in a shopping center or other commercial lease for a landlord to bargain for inclusion of such a provision limiting its liability exposure.

[u] Lease Subject to Landlord's Operating Agreements

When an REA [see § 34E.200[2]] or comparable instrument (such as a declaration or an operating agreement) has been or will be recorded for the shopping center by the landlord or by the landlord and other owners of the center, the lease should specifically state that it is subject to the REA or other instrument [see § 34E.201[2], P 14.02]. Language included in this form recites that a tenant is not a third party beneficiary to any REA or similar instrument entered into by the landlord, and that the landlord has no obligation to enforce a declaration or similar instrument for the benefit of the tenant [see § 34E.201[2], P 14.02].

[v] Representations Regarding Major Occupants

The presence of chain department stores or other large national or regional occupants in a shopping center has a beneficial effect on the center's ability to draw other tenants. When negotiating with prospective tenants prior to the opening of the shopping center and prior to the time any major occupants have actually located there, the landlord and its agents should be very wary of making representations to potential tenants regarding the occupancy of space in the center by major stores. Further, even when certain majors are already located in the center, the landlord should avoid making any representations or guarantees that the majors will continue to operate in the center. This lease contains a provision in which the tenant acknowledges that no such representations have been made [see § 34E.201[2], P 14.03].

The lease should constitute the entire agreement between the landlord and tenant and should state all the material terms and conditions on which the lease is based. Otherwise, there is a danger the tenant can allege and prove fraud in the inducement to sign the lease on the basis of representations made concerning the shopping center [see Lawson v. Town & Country Shops, Inc. (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d 196, 323 P.2d 843] .

[w] Recording of Lease

A lease should indicate whether it (or a memorandum of lease) must or may be recorded. This form provides that either party may record a memorandum of the lease and that each party will, on the request of the other party, execute such a memorandum [see § 34E.201[2], P 14.08].

For a discussion of the reasons why a tenant should consider recording a lease and an illustrative memorandum of lease, see Chapter 34C, Commercial, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.203.

[x] Attorneys' Fees

This form includes an attorneys' fee provision [see § 34E.201[2], P 13.10]. For an alternative version and a discussion of applicable laws, see Chapter 34C, Commercial, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.274.

[y] Miscellaneous Provisions

The following miscellaneous provisions appear in Article 14 of this form:

(1) A provision for brokerage commissions [see § 34E.201[2], P 14.07];

(2) A clause providing for the payment of interest on any monetary obligation that is not paid when due [see § 34E.201 [2], P 14.09];

(3) A provision describing the methods by which either party may give the other any notice required or permitted by the lease [see § 34E.201[2], P 14.10; see also Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions];

(4) A provision making the lease binding on successors of the parties [see § 34E.201[2], P 14.11; see also Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions, § 75.282];

(5) A partial invalidity clause [see § 34E.201[2], P 14.15];

(6) A sole and only agreement clause [see § 34E.20[2], P 14.13; see also Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions, § 75.270]; and

(7) A time is of essence clause [see § 34E.201[2], P 14.12; see also Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements, § 23.200[2]].

SHOPPING CENTER LEASE

THIS Lease is entered into on _____[date], by and between _____[name], [legal status, e.g., a California corporation] ("Landlord"), and _____[name], [legal status, e.g., a California corporation] ("Tenant").

ARTICLE 1. LEASED PREMISES

Agreement to Lease

1.01. In consideration of the agreements and covenants contained in this Lease to be kept and performed by both Landlord and Tenant, Landlord leases to Tenant and Tenant leases from Landlord the Premises described in Paragraph 1.02 of this Lease.

"Premises" Defined

1.02. "Premises" means the retail store space that is designated as Store Number _____ on the site plan (described below) of the shopping center known as _____[name of shopping center] ("Shopping Center"), located in _____[city], _____ County, California. [Add if applicable: Store Number _____ (repeat number set forth above) is in Building _____ on Level _____ of the Shopping Center.] The site plan mentioned above is attached to this Lease as Exhibit _____ and is hereby incorporated by reference. The Premises contain approximately _____ square feet of gross floor area, measured as follows: the frontage dimensions of the Premises are measured from the center [or outside] of the side walls of the Premises, and the depth dimensions of the Premises are measured from the outside of the rear perimeter wall to the outside of the front perimeter wall [or, when the premises contain a storefront instead of a front perimeter wall, to the point where the front of the Premises joins the Common Areas (defined below) of the Shopping Center, as designated on Exhibit _____ (same designation for site plan indicated above) to this Lease]. "Premises" does not include, and Tenant has no right in, the land or improvements below the floor slab of the Premises or above the interior ceiling of the Premises.

Right to Use Common Areas

1.03. Tenant has the nonexclusive right to use, in common with others, the Common Areas of the Shopping Center. The term "Common Areas" is defined in Paragraph 5.02 of this Lease.

ARTICLE 2. TENANT'S BUSINESS USE AND NAME

Permitted Business Use

2.01. Tenant is leasing the Premises to operate and conduct the following business: [describe permitted business, e.g., a drugstore, the operation of which will involve any or all of the following: (1) servicing, filling, and refilling of pharmaceutical prescriptions by licensed pharmacists only, (2) retailing of other over-the-counter medicines and any or all other commercial products relating primarily to personal health care and hygiene, and (3) collateral merchandising of publications, electronic equipment, sundries, photographic equipment and accessories, take-out food, dessert items, jewelry, cosmetics, hardware, toys, groceries, and candies, so long as this collateral merchandising does not at any time account for more than _____ percent of the inventory on display for sale (or for more than _____ percent of the gross sales of any month)]. Tenant may not use the Premises or permit the Premises to be used for any other purpose. Landlord does not represent or warrant that Tenant's permitted business use is presently permitted or will be permitted in the future by applicable laws and regulations.

Tenant's Business Name

2.02. The name of Tenant's business is _____[trade name]. Tenant may not change its business name during the term of this Lease without the written consent of Landlord. If Landlord consents to a change in the name, Tenant shall be solely responsible for all costs of changing the name, including costs of changing the name as it appears in any signs of the Shopping Center or in any business, advertising, or similar materials generated by the Merchants' Association for the Shopping Center.

ARTICLE 3. TERM OF LEASE

Commencement Date and Term

3.01. The Original Term of this Lease shall be for a period of [number, e.g., five] years, beginning on the Commencement Date. The Commencement Date is the earlier of the following: (1) the day following the Completion Date for Tenant's Work as specified in Paragraph 6.02(a) of this Lease, or (2) the day on which Tenant actually opens for business on the Premises. If the Commencement Date falls on a day other than the first day of the month, the period between the Commencement Date and the first day of the first calendar month in the term shall be added to the [repeat number, e.g., five]-year period described above.

[If shopping center is new and there is to be a grand opening, add the following:]

Notwithstanding the above, if Landlord requests in writing that Tenant delay opening for business until a later date that coincides with a grand opening for the Shopping Center, Tenant agrees to delay its opening of business until the date specified in Landlord's notice [, provided the date for the grand opening is on or before _____ (date)]. If Tenant delays opening its business until the date requested in Landlord's notice, the Commencement Date of this Lease shall be the date on which Tenant opens for business.

[Continue with the following:]

Preliminary and Original Term

3.02. The period beginning on the date of this Lease first written above and ending on the date immediately prior to the Commencement Date shall be the "Preliminary Term" of this lease. The period beginning on the Commencement Date and continuing until the stated expiration date or the earlier termination of this Lease shall be the "Original Term" of this Lease. Unless otherwise specified, references in this Lease to "the term of this Lease" include both the Preliminary Term and the Original Term. Tenant's obligation to pay rent and other monetary amounts required under this Lease shall be abated during the Preliminary Term (except that Tenant shall pay Landlord the cost of any utilities furnished by Landlord to Tenant for Tenant's Work during the Preliminary Term); otherwise, all provisions, covenants, and conditions of this Lease shall apply to Tenant during the Preliminary Term.

Confirmation of Term

3.03. Following determination of the Commencement Date and termination date for the Original Term of this Lease, Landlord and Tenant shall each execute, at the option of Landlord, a written statement prepared by Landlord and in recordable form, confirming those dates.

Delivery of Possession

3.04. Landlord shall deliver possession of the Premises to Tenant no later than _____[date] (the "Possession Date"). If Landlord fails to deliver possession on or before the Possession Date, this Lease shall not be void or voidable nor shall Landlord be liable to Tenant for any loss or damage resulting from failure to deliver possession to Tenant. Instead, the Possession Date shall be extended to the actual date Landlord delivers possession. In the case of such an extension, the Parties shall each confirm in writing the extended Possession Date. Notwithstanding the foregoing, if Landlord does not deliver possession of the Premises to Tenant on or before _____[date], Tenant may cancel this Lease on written notice to Landlord given within [number, e.g., five] days after that date.

ARTICLE 4. RENT AND OTHER CHARGES

Fixed Rent

4.01. Beginning on the Commencement Date and continuing throughout the term of this Lease, Tenant shall pay an annual minimum fixed rent to Landlord of $ [annual dollar amount] ("Fixed Rent"). Tenant shall pay the Fixed Rent in equal monthly installments on the first day of each month. Each monthly installment of Fixed Rent shall be paid in advance, without prior demand by Landlord, and without any deduction or setoff. If the Commencement Date falls on a day other than the first day of the month, the first monthly installment of Fixed Rent shall be adjusted for that month only on a per diem basis calculated on a 30-day month. If the Fixed Rent payable under this Lease is abated for any portion of any month pursuant to the terms of this Lease, the amount of the monthly installment of Fixed Rent for that month shall also be adjusted on a per diem basis calculated on a 30-day month. All rent payable under this Lease shall be paid (1) to Landlord at the address set forth in this Lease for giving notices to Landlord (as may be changed by written notice from time to time), or (2) to Landlord's agent at the address designated in writing by Landlord.

Percentage Rent

4.02. In addition to the Fixed Rent and all other charges and amounts payable under this Lease, Tenant shall pay a percentage rent to Landlord for each lease year in the Original Term of this Lease. The percentage rent for a year shall be equal to _____ percent of the amount, if any, by which Tenant's annual Gross Sales (defined in Paragraph 4.03 of this Lease) for that lease year exceed $ [specify base amount] (the "Gross Sales Base Amount"). Except as noted below, the term "lease year" means the twelve full calendar months commencing on the first day of January immediately following the Commencement Date and ending on the thirty-first day of December of that calendar year; and each successive twelve-month period. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the first lease year shall begin on the Commencement Date and end on the immediately following thirty-first day of December, and the last lease year shall end on the termination date of this Lease. If a lease year contains less than 12 full calendar months, the Gross Sales Base Amount for that lease year shall be determined by multiplying the Gross Sales Base Amount by a fraction, the numerator of which is the number of days in the partial lease year and the denominator of which is 365. The Percentage Rent shall be paid by Tenant to Landlord monthly, as provided in Paragraph 4.04(a) of this Lease.

"Gross Sales" Defined

4.03. (a) "Gross Sales" means the gross dollar amount generated by the sale, rental, or leasing of all goods and merchandise and the charges for all services performed by Tenant, from all business conducted by Tenant on, in, at, or from the Premises, whether the consideration for the goods, merchandise, or services is paid by cash or check or on credit. "Gross sales" includes all amounts from the following: (1) any order that originates and is accepted by Tenant on or from the Premises, including an order that is delivered to or filled from a location other than the Premises or is solicited by an employee of Tenant or otherwise on behalf of Tenant at a location outside the Premises; (2) any order that is received at or billed from the Premises by mail, telephone, or other similar device; and (3) unless excluded under Subparagraph (b) of this Paragraph, any other transaction that Tenant would in the ordinary course of its business attribute to its business on the Premises, including a transaction involving a finance charge or a customer deposit that is not refunded to the customer. Any installment sale or credit sale by Tenant shall be deemed a sale for the full sale price in the month during which the sale occurs, regardless of when Tenant actually receives payment for the sale.

(b) The following matters may be excluded or deducted, as the case may be, from Gross Sales:

(1) Discounts on sales to employees.

(2) Cash or credit refunds to customers on transactions previously included in Gross Sales.

(3) City, state, county, or federal sales tax actually paid by Tenant, provided the tax is added to the selling price and separately stated to the customer.

(4) Receipts from vending machines, pay telephones, or other equipment (to the extent permitted under this Lease) located on the Premises for the exclusive use of Tenant's employees.

(5) Sales of used fixtures and similar items of business operations not held as stock-in-trade and not sold in the ordinary course of Tenant's business.

(6) Returns to shippers or manufacturers.

[When tenant has multiple stores, add:]

(7) Any exchange of merchandise between Tenant's other stores made to facilitate the operation of Tenant's business, provided the exchange is not for the purpose of a sale on or from the Premises.

[Continue with the following:]

If Tenant has previously included any item listed above in Gross Sales on a statement for an accounting period, Tenant may deduct the previously included amount from the statement for the month in which Tenant becomes aware of the excludable item. No franchise or capital stock tax and no other tax based on income, profits, or gross sales of Tenant may be excluded or deducted from Gross Sales.

(c) For purposes of this Paragraph, "Tenant" means Tenant and any subtenant, concessionaire, or licensee of Tenant.

Statements and Payment of Gross Sales

4.04. (a) No later than [number, e.g., 10] days after the end of each calendar month in the Original Term of this Lease, Tenant shall submit to Landlord an itemized written statement for the preceding calendar month showing the Gross Sales from Tenant's business and all permissible deductions or exclusions (the "Monthly Statement"). If the Commencement Date of this Lease falls on a date other than the first day of a month, the Gross Sales from the partial month shall be added to, and the partial month shall be included in, the Monthly Statement for the first full calendar month in the Original Term. The Monthly Statement shall be certified by Tenant or Tenant's duly authorized officer or agent to be true and accurate. Concurrently with the delivery of the Monthly Statement to Landlord, Tenant shall pay Landlord the amount of Percentage Rent calculated for the month represented by the Monthly Statement.

(b) No later than [month and day] of each lease year in the Original Term of this Lease, Tenant shall submit to Landlord an itemized written statement for the preceding lease year showing the Gross Sales from Tenant's business and all permissible deductions or exclusions for the lease year, broken down by month (the "Annual Statement"). The Annual Statement shall be certified by Tenant or Tenant's duly authorized officer or agent to be true and accurate and shall be certified by an independent certified public accountant. If the amount of Percentage Rent paid by Tenant for a lease year is less than that stated as due on the Annual Statement covering that lease year, Tenant shall, concurrently with delivery of the Annual Statement to Landlord, pay the amount of the underpayment to Landlord. If the amount of Percentage Rent paid by Tenant for a lease year is more than that stated as due on the Annual Statement covering that lease year, Landlord shall, within [number, e.g., 10] days after its receipt of the Annual Statement, refund the amount of the overpayment to Tenant; provided, however, that if Tenant is then in default or otherwise indebted to Landlord under this Lease, Landlord may deduct the amount owed to it from the overpayment.

Tenant's Books and Records

4.05. (a) Tenant shall keep and maintain accurate books and records of account in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles for all business conducted on the Premises. Tenant shall also keep all supporting documentation for Gross Sales and exclusions or deductions from Gross Sales, including daily receipts, sealed cash register rolls, and serialized sales slips. Tenant shall keep and maintain the foregoing books, records, and supporting documentation pertaining to each lease year for at least [number, e.g., three] years after expiration of that lease year. Notwithstanding the foregoing, if any books, records, or supporting documentation kept and maintained by Tenant are the subject of an audit requested by Landlord or an unresolved controversy involving Landlord, Tenant shall keep and maintain them until the audit or controversy is terminated.

(b) Landlord's accountants or representatives may examine the books and records of Tenant for the purpose of conducting an audit of Gross Sales, provided that (1) at least [number, e.g., 10] days' advance written notice is given to Tenant, and (2) an audit is not performed more frequently than [frequency and time period, e.g., once each year]. If an audit discloses that the actual Gross Sales generated by Tenant for the period in question are greater than Gross Sales previously reported by Tenant to Landlord, Tenant shall pay the excess amount to Landlord. If the excess amount is greater than [number, e.g., three percent], Tenant shall pay the full cost of the audit; otherwise, Landlord shall pay the full cost of the audit. If the excess amount is greater than [higher number, e.g., five percent], then Landlord shall have the right to terminate this Lease. Any information obtained by Landlord in conducting an audit of Tenant's books and records shall be treated as confidential except in any litigation or proceeding between Landlord and Tenant. Landlord may also disclose information from an audit performed by it to prospective purchasers of the Shopping Center, to existing or prospective lenders, or pursuant to any judicial proceeding or subpoena.

(c) Landlord may examine under oath the Chief Financial Officer, the Accountant and/or the bookkeeper who was involved in the particular record keeping, and any other persons who may have been involved in the preparation of the Gross Sales reports and calculations related thereto under the Lease.

Common Area Maintenance Costs

4.06. (a) Tenant shall pay to Landlord, as additional rent, a proportionate share of Common Area Maintenance Costs (defined below). For each lease year, Tenant's proportionate share of these costs shall be a sum equal to the product obtained by multiplying (1) the total Common Area Maintenance Costs for the lease year [when contributions made by major department stores in the center are to be deducted from costs, add: (less any contributions to Common Area Maintenance Costs by the owners or operators of the department stores in the Shopping Center)] by (2) a fraction, the numerator of which is the number of square feet of gross floor area of the Premises, and the denominator of which is the number of total square feet of gross floor area of all areas in the Shopping Center that are available for the exclusive use and occupancy of Tenants of the Shopping Center [when floor area of department stores in center is to be excluded from computation, add: (excluding the gross floor area of the department stores in the Shopping Center)] and that are open for business and occupied as of the last day of the lease year.

(b) Concurrently with its monthly payment of Fixed Rent to Landlord, Tenant shall pay its proportionate share of Common Area Maintenance Costs in the amount determined and billed by Landlord. The amount billed monthly shall be based on Landlord's estimate of Common Area Maintenance Costs for the current calendar year. That estimate shall not exceed by more than [number, e.g., 10] percent the total Common Area Maintenance Costs for the immediately preceding calendar year. Within [number, e.g., 90 days] after the end of each calendar year, Landlord shall deliver to Tenant an itemized statement of the total Common Area Maintenance Costs for the preceding calendar year. If the statement discloses an underpayment by Tenant for the calendar year covered by the statement, Tenant shall pay Landlord the amount of the underpayment within [number, e.g., 30 days] from the date of the statement. If the statement discloses an overpayment by Tenant, Landlord shall pay to Tenant the amount of the overpayment within [number, e.g., 30 days] from the date of the statement; provided, however, that if Tenant is then in default or otherwise indebted to Landlord under this Lease, Landlord may deduct the amount owed it from the overpayment.

(c) "Common Area Maintenance Costs"means the cost and expense of managing, operating, and maintaining the Common Areas (defined in Paragraph 5.02) in a manner deemed reasonable and appropriate by Landlord, including all costs and expenses of or relating to the following: [specify, e.g., operating, heating, cooling, ventilating, repairing, cleaning, replacing, lighting, painting, and maintaining the Common Areas; security services for the Shopping Center; garbage and trash removal for the Shopping Center; the insurance described in Paragraph 9.01 of this Lease; regulation of traffic; repairing and replacing paved surfaces, roofs, landscaping, drainage, escalators, elevators, electrical lines, and heating and air-conditioning systems; all on-site personnel used for the management, operation, and maintenance of the Shopping Center; trucks and other equipment used for the management, operation, and maintenance of the Shopping Center; depreciation of machinery, equipment, and other non-real estate assets used in the maintenance and operation of the Shopping Center; and measures undertaken by Landlord to comply with any environmental or similar law, ordinance, or regulation, including the removal of any hazardous substance from the Shopping Center. Further, "Common Area Maintenance Costs" shall include a management fee paid to Landlord or to a management company employed by Landlord and equal to _____ (number, e.g., 20) percent of the total Common Area Maintenance Costs].

Utility Services and Charges

4.07. (a) Except for utility services provided by Landlord pursuant to Subparagraph (b) of this Paragraph, Tenant shall apply to the appropriate local utility companies to begin service on the Premises on or before the Commencement Date, and shall pay the cost of any required deposit, hook-up fee, metering charge, or other charge by the utility provider. Throughout the term of this Lease, Tenant shall pay, prior to delinquency, the cost of all utilities used on the Premises, whether supplied by a local utility company or by Landlord. When any service is separately metered and supplied by a local utility company, Tenant shall arrange for the utility company to bill Tenant directly. In the case of any utility services provided by Landlord directly to Tenant, Landlord shall bill Tenant for those services monthly at the same time Landlord bills Tenant for its proportionate share of Common Area Maintenance Costs, and Tenant shall pay the bill for those services at the same time Tenant pays its share of Common Area Maintenance Costs. For utility services provided by Landlord that are not separately metered and that are used by Tenant in common with other Tenants, Tenant shall pay Landlord a proportionate share based on total square footage of gross floor area of all Tenants using the common utility services.

(b) Landlord shall furnish, at Tenant's expense, the following utilities to the Premises: _____[describe, e.g., electricity, heating, and air conditioning]. Further, Landlord may elect at any time during the term of this Lease to furnish, or to select an agent or independent contractor to furnish, other utilities to the Premises. In that case, Tenant agrees to accept the furnished utility services to the exclusion of any other provider, provided the charge to Tenant for the furnished service is competitive with other providers or has been approved by the appropriate regulatory agency. On at least [number, e.g., 30] days' prior written notice to Tenant, Landlord may discontinue furnishing any utility service previously provided to Tenant. In that event, Landlord shall be responsible for connecting the Premises to a new provider, but shall have no other responsibility toward Tenant. Landlord has no responsibility for the curtailment or suspension of any utility services to the Premises provided by a local utility company, or in the case of services furnished by Landlord, for any curtailment or suspension necessitated by repairs, action of public authority, strikes, acts of God or public enemy, other similar causes, or a default by Tenant under this Lease. Curtailment or suspension of utility services does not constitute a constructive eviction under this Lease.

Taxes

4.08. (a) Landlord shall pay all Taxes (defined below) that may be levied or assessed against the land, buildings, or other improvements in the Shopping Center; provided, however, that Tenant shall pay a proportionate share of Taxes as provided in this Paragraph. "Taxes" means any real property taxes, assessments, and other levies or charges imposed by a governmental entity that are or may be levied, assessed, imposed, become a lien on, or arise in connection with the use, occupancy, or possession of all or any portion of the Shopping Center or the land, buildings, or other improvements in the Shopping Center. [If major tenant is obligated to pay all taxes on its parcel to taxing authority or to Landlord, and those taxes are to be excluded from definition of taxes, add: Notwithstanding the foregoing, "Taxes" do not include any taxes attributable (1) to a parcel in the Shopping Center not owned by Landlord or (2) to space in the Shopping Center containing a gross floor area of at least _____ (number that is minimum number of square feet for a major tenant, e.g., 15,000) square feet occupied exclusively by a single Tenant who is required to pay all taxes attributable to that space either to Landlord or directly to the taxing authority]. Further, "Taxes" do not include any inheritance, estate, succession, transfer, gift, franchise, corporation, income, or profit tax that is or may be levied or imposed on Landlord; provided, however, that the term "Taxes" does include any tax, assessment, or charge (1) that is imposed or levied on Landlord (directly or indirectly) by a taxing authority with jurisdiction over the Shopping Center, and (2) that is measured, computed, or determined in whole or in part based on rents paid by Tenants in the Shopping Center.

(b) Tenant's annual share of Taxes for each Tax Year (defined below) in the Original Term of the lease shall be a sum equal to the product obtained by multiplying the total amount of all Taxes payable during a Tax Year by a fraction, the numerator of which is a number equal to the total square feet of gross floor area in the Premises, and the denominator of which is a number equal to the total square feet of gross floor area in the Shopping Center designed exclusively for the use and occupancy of Tenants that is open for business on the first day of the Tax Year. [When optional language in Subparagraph (a), above, excludes taxes paid by major tenant from computation of taxes, add: For purposes of this computation, the total square feet of gross floor area in the Shopping Center shall not include any gross floor area of a building in the Shopping Center containing a gross floor area of at least _____ (repeat number set forth in Subparagraph (a), e.g., 15,000) square feet occupied exclusively by a single Tenant who is required to pay all taxes attributable to that building either to Landlord or directly to the taxing authority.] Tenant's annual share of Taxes shall be paid in advance on a monthly basis in equal installments in the amount billed by Landlord, concurrently with Tenant's payment of Fixed Rent under this Lease. At Landlord's option, Landlord may estimate the amount of Tenant's monthly share of Taxes, provided the estimate does not exceed by more than [number, e.g., 10] percent the actual amount of Taxes for the same calendar month in the immediately preceding Tax Year. An official tax bill or copy of the tax bill shall be conclusive evidence of any amount taxed or levied. No later than _____[date and month] of each Tax Year, Landlord shall present Tenant with a written statement for the preceding Tax Year, showing the total Taxes, the amount of Taxes actually paid by Tenant for that Tax Year, and the amount of any underpayment or overpayment for that Tax Year ("Annual Tax Statement"). Tenant shall pay the amount of any underpayment to Landlord within [number, e.g., 30] days after the date of the Annual Tax Statement. In the case of an overpayment, Landlord shall refund the amount of the overpayment to Tenant within the same _____ -day period governing underpayments; provided, however, that if Tenant is then in default under this Lease or otherwise indebted to Landlord, Landlord may deduct the amount owed to it from the overpayment.

(c) "Tax Year" means the twelve full calendar months of the term beginning on January first immediately following the Commencement Date and ending on December thirty-first of that same calendar year, and each successive twelve-month period in the Original Term of this Lease; provided, however, that the first Tax Year under this Lease shall begin on the Commencement Date and shall end on December thirty first of the same calendar year. When the Commencement Date is a date other than January first or when this Lease terminates on a date other than December thirty first, Tenant's proportionate share of Taxes for either year, as the case may be, shall be equitably prorated.

(d) Tenant shall not and shall have no right to contest the amount of any Tax assessed or levied or the underlying valuation giving rise to the Tax for purposes of obtaining a Tax reduction or for any other purpose. If Landlord obtains a refund of Taxes previously paid for a Tax Year and for which Tenant has fully paid its proportionate share, Landlord shall refund to Tenant its net proportionate share after first deducting all costs and expenses incurred by Landlord in obtaining the refund, including attorneys' and appraisers' fees. Landlord shall have no duty to contest the amount of any Taxes imposed or levied on the Shopping Center.

Additional Rent

4.09. In addition to the Fixed Rent and Percentage Rent payable by Tenant under this Lease, any other monetary sum required under this Lease to be paid by Tenant to Landlord or to others is deemed under this Lease to be additional rent payable by Tenant under this Lease (''Additional Rent''), whether or not the monetary sum is so designated as Additional Rent. Unless otherwise provided, all Additional Rent is due and payable at the same time as Fixed Rent, and Landlord has the same remedies for Tenant's failure to pay Additional Rent as it has for Tenant's failure to pay Fixed Rent.

Security Deposit

4.10. Landlord acknowledges receipt from Tenant of $ _____ to be held by Landlord as security for the full and faithful performance by Tenant of the terms, conditions, and covenants of this Lease. If at any time during the term of this Lease Tenant defaults in the payment of rent, or Tenant or Tenant's agents or employees damage the Premises, Landlord may appropriate and apply all or so much of the deposit as is necessary to remedy the default or to repair the damage. After Tenant delivers possession of the Premises to Landlord, Landlord shall return the Security Deposit, less any amounts lawfully deducted, to Tenant within the time period then required by law. If during the term of this Lease Landlord applies all or any portion of the Security Deposit for a purpose authorized by this Paragraph or otherwise by law, Tenant agrees to restore the amount of the security so applied by Landlord at the same time Tenant is required to make the next payment of rent under this Lease. Landlord shall hold the security deposit, without interest, for Tenant, free from the claim of any creditor of Landlord (except a trustee in bankruptcy). If Landlord transfers its interest in the Premises, Landlord shall be relieved of liability with respect to the Security Deposit if it (1) transfers the Security Deposit, less any deductions authorized by this Paragraph or otherwise authorized by law, to its transferee with notice required by law to Tenant of the transferee's name and address; or (2) returns the Security Deposit, less any deductions authorized by this Paragraph or otherwise by law, to Tenant.

ARTICLE 5. MAINTENANCE AND USE OF COMMON AREAS

Maintenance and Control

5.01. All Common Areas (defined in Paragraph 5.02 of this Lease) of the Shopping Center are subject to the exclusive control of Landlord. Landlord shall construct, maintain, operate, illuminate, and manage the Common Areas in a manner determined appropriate by Landlord in its sole discretion. Landlord reserves the right from time to time during the term of this Lease to (1) reduce or change the number, type, size, location, and use of any facilities in the Common Areas; (2) construct new improvements, buildings, or facilities; or (3) remove existing improvements, buildings, or facilities in the Common Areas, provided the change, construction, or removal does not permanently and unreasonably interfere with Tenant's ingress and egress to the Premises. Landlord may employ and discharge all personnel hired in connection with the Common Areas; police, and maintain security services for, the Common Areas; use and allow others to use the Common Areas for any purpose; regulate parking by Tenants and other occupants (including their respective employees) and by customers of the Shopping Center; establish, modify, and enforce rules and regulations for the Common Areas; and close the Common Areas when necessary to make repairs, changes, or alterations to the Common Areas or to prevent the acquisition of public rights in the Common Areas. In the event of a temporary closure of the Common Areas or the alteration, rearrangement, or other change in the facilities of the Common Areas (1) Landlord shall not be liable to Tenant for any resulting loss or damage; (2) Tenant shall not be entitled to any abatement of rent or other compensation; and (3) the closure, alteration, rearrangement, or other change shall not constitute an actual or constructive eviction of Tenant or other grounds for Tenant to terminate this Lease.

"Common Areas" Defined

5.02. "Common Areas" means all areas, facilities, space, equipment, and signs made available by Landlord at any time for the common and joint use and benefit of Landlord, Tenant, and other tenants and occupants of the Shopping Center, including their respective employees, agents, customers, and invitees. "Common Areas" includes the following, to the extent provided by Landlord: parking areas, driveways, access roads, landscaped areas, truck serviceways, loading facilities, pedestrian malls, stairs, ramps, sidewalks, public restrooms, elevators, escalators, and [other facilities, e.g., enclosed corridors and malls].

Tenant's Right to Use

5.03. For the term of this Lease, Landlord grants Tenant and its employees, agents, customers and invitees, the nonexclusive right, in common with Landlord and all others to whom Landlord has or may grant the right, to use the Common Areas, subject to Tenant's compliance with any rules and regulations enacted or modified by Landlord that govern the use of the Common Areas. Tenant agrees to abide by and to use its best efforts to cause its employees, agents, customers, and invitees to abide by Landlord's rules and regulations for the Common Areas.

Tenant and Employee Parking

5.04. Tenant and its employees shall park only in those areas that are designated by Landlord as employee parking areas. Tenant shall at all times during the term of this Lease keep Landlord furnished with a current list of license plate numbers for the cars of Tenant and its employees. Landlord may charge Tenant $ [dollar amount, e.g., 10] per day per car for each violation of this Paragraph after giving Tenant written notice of the violation.

ARTICLE 6. CONSTRUCTION AND REPAIRS

Condition of Premises

6.01. Tenant has inspected the Premises and accepts it in its "as is" condition. Landlord makes no representations or warranties regarding the condition of the Premises, and Tenant acknowledges that neither Landlord nor Landlord's agent has made any representations to Tenant regarding the present or future condition of the Premises.

Tenant's Construction

6.02. (a) At its sole cost and expense, Tenant shall commence and complete construction of all improvements to the Premises that are necessary for the conduct of Tenant's business on the Premises ("Tenant's Work"). Tenant's Work includes [describe specific improvements, e.g., new flooring, new paint on interior walls, and a new storefront identification sign]. All Tenant's Work must be performed in strict accordance with the following: plans and specifications prepared by Tenant and approved in writing by Landlord; the construction specifications attached to this Lease as Exhibit _____; and all other provisions of this Lease. Tenant's Work shall be completed no later than [number] days after the Possession Date (the "Completion Date"). Tenant shall open for business no later than the day immediately following the Completion Date [when landlord may request a delay in opening pursuant to Paragraph 3.01, add:, except when Tenant is requested by Landlord to delay opening for purposes of a grand opening as provided in Paragraph 3.01].

(b) Within [specify, e.g., thirty days] after the date of this Lease first written above, Tenant shall submit [number, e.g., two] set(s) of plans and specifications for Tenant's Work ("the Plans") to Landlord for Landlord's approval. Landlord's approval shall not be unreasonably withheld. Within [number, e.g., 10] days after Landlord's receipt of the Plans, Landlord shall return the Plans to Tenant and advise Tenant in writing that the Plans are approved as submitted or are approved subject to specific changes required to be made by Tenant. In the latter event, Tenant shall submit to Landlord revised Plans incorporating the changes required by Landlord within [number, e.g., 10] days of its receipt of the conditionally approved Plans. Landlord shall approve the revised Plans, provided they contain all required changes, no later than [number, e.g., 10] days after its receipt of them. Thereafter, Landlord shall promptly return the Plans to Tenant and advise Tenant in writing that the Plans are approved. No later than [number, e.g., 10] days after Tenant receives the approved Plans from Landlord, Tenant shall apply for required permits and otherwise commence construction to enable it to complete Tenant's Work no later than the Completion Date. At the time Tenant submits the Plans to Landlord for its approval, Tenant shall pay Landlord the sum of $ _____ as reimbursement for Landlord's expenses for review of the Plans.

(c) During the period beginning on the date Tenant commences construction and ending on the date Tenant completes construction (the "Construction Period"), Tenant shall procure and maintain, in addition to the insurance described in Paragraph 9.02 of this Lease, builder's risk insurance for the Premises. This insurance shall cover the full replacement value of all work performed and all fixtures and equipment installed on the Premises. Tenant or Tenant's subcontractors shall also maintain in effect workers' compensation insurance as required by the laws of the State of California.

(d) Tenant shall promptly pay all contractors involved in Tenant's Work and shall notify each contractor and subcontractor in writing that (1) Tenant is solely responsible for payment of all Tenant's Work, and (2) Landlord has no liability for that work. If a mechanic's lien or other encumbrance relating to Tenant's work is filed against Landlord, the Premises, or any other portion of the Shopping Center, Tenant shall, at Tenant's sole cost and expense, cause the lien or other encumbrance to be discharged of record or bonded within [number, e.g., 10] days after Landlord's written notice to Tenant. If Tenant fails to discharge or bond a lien or other encumbrance within the required time period, Landlord has the right (but not the obligation) to pay the amount of the lien or encumbrance or to otherwise discharge it by deposit or bonding. If Landlord pays or otherwise causes discharge of the lien or encumbrance, Tenant shall reimburse Landlord, on Landlord's written demand, for the amount expended by Landlord (including all attorneys' fees and expenses), plus interest, at the then-maximum legal rate of interest, accruing from the date of Landlord's expenditure until paid by Tenant. Landlord's right to pay or otherwise discharge such a lien or encumbrance does not preclude Landlord from exercising any other rights or remedies under this Lease, at law, or in equity.

(e) In performing or causing Tenant's Work to be performed, Tenant, at Tenant's sole cost and expense, shall comply with the construction specifications attached to this Lease as Exhibit _____; and all applicable laws, regulations, orders, and requirements of any governmental entity having jurisdiction. Further, Tenant shall obtain all necessary permits required by governmental entities or utility companies. Tenant shall use or cause to be used only new materials in Tenant's Work. At all times during the Construction Period, Tenant shall insure that its construction does not in any way interfere with the normal business operation of the Shopping Center. Any materials, equipment, or other items used in the construction shall be kept at all times in the interior of the Premises. The Premises shall be barricaded at the storefront line by full-height barricades so as to prevent access by the public or other non-construction personnel. All debris and rubbish shall be confined to the interior of the Premises and shall be removed at regular intervals by Tenant. If any portion of Tenant's Work is damaged or destroyed by any cause during the Construction Period, Tenant shall immediately, at its sole cost and expense, repair or rebuild the damaged portion. Tenant's Work shall be deemed complete when a certificate of occupancy [or comparable final local approval] for the Premises is filed for record.

(f) Landlord's approval of Tenant's Plans or of Tenant's Work shall in no way be deemed to mean that Tenant's Plans are adequate, Tenant's construction is structurally sound, or that the Plans or construction comply with applicable governmental requirements for building, safety, or otherwise. Tenant shall be solely responsible for any defect in construction or design of Tenant's Work. [If desired, add: Each contractor or subcontractor for Tenant's Work shall guarantee in its written contract with Tenant or the contractor, as the case may be, that its work will be free from any defects in quality or materials for a period of at least one year.]

(g) Tenant assumes all liability for personal injury or property damage in any way arising out of the performance of Tenant's Work. Further, Tenant agrees to defend, indemnify, and hold harmless Landlord against all damages, liabilities, or other costs or expenses (including legal fees and costs) that Landlord may pay or incur as a result of any claim or lawsuit arising from Tenant's Work.

Alterations and Improvements by Landlord

6.03. Landlord may at any time make additions or alterations to any building in the Shopping Center, including the building containing the Premises. Landlord may also construct additional improvements or buildings in the Shopping Center, expand or reduce the size of the Shopping Center, construct multi-level above-ground and/or below-ground parking facilities or garages, and enclose any open areas of the Shopping Center. Further, Landlord may at any time use any part of the exterior walls, roof, or air space above the finished ceiling of the Premises to carry out any construction described in this Paragraph or any repairs described in Paragraph 6.05 or Article 7.

Alterations and Improvements by Tenant

6.04. Except for Tenant's Work described in Paragraph 6.02 of this Lease, Tenant may not make any alterations or improvements to the Premises during the term of this Lease without first obtaining the written consent of Landlord. Landlord's consent to any such alterations or improvements shall not be unreasonably withheld. Any alterations or improvements approved by Landlord shall be performed pursuant to plans and specifications previously approved by Landlord for the specific alterations or improvements, shall not in any way interfere with the normal business operation of Tenant or the Shopping Center, and in all respects shall comply with the requirements for Tenant's Work described in Paragraph 6.02 of this Lease.

Repairs to Premises

6.05. (a) Landlord shall maintain and keep in good order, condition, and repair the foundations [and or,] exterior walls (excluding the storefront wall, windows, doors, and plate glass) [when premises are located on top story of multi-story building, add:, and the roof] of the Premises [describe any other portion of premises, e.g.,, as well as the air conditioning system installed in the Premises by Landlord]. Landlord's obligation for repairs under this Paragraph extends only to damage not caused by Tenant or Tenant's employees, customers, contractors, agents, or invitees. Landlord is not obligated to make any repair, except in the case of emergency, until it receives written notice from Tenant of the necessity for the repair. In making any repairs, Landlord shall use its best efforts to perform the work with a minimum of disruption to Tenant's business.

(b) At its sole cost and expense, Tenant shall maintain the Premises in good order and repair. This obligation to maintain and repair extends, but is not limited, to the following portions of the Premises: [specify, e.g., the interior of all walls, floors, and ceilings; the interior and exterior of all doors and windows and the storefront; all plumbing and sewage facilities that exclusively serve the Premises; and air conditioning and heating systems]. Tenant's obligation to maintain and repair does not extend to any areas or portions of the Premises that Landlord is required under this Lease to maintain and repair. If Tenant fails to make any necessary repairs within [number, e.g., 10] days after written notice from Landlord, or after reasonable notice to Tenant in the event of an emergency, Landlord may make the repairs and Tenant shall pay the cost of the repair to Landlord as Additional Rent. This payment shall accompany the next due monthly payment of Fixed Rent and shall include interest at the then-maximum legal rate.

Ownership of Improvements

6.06. All alterations, additions, and improvements, except for Tenant's stock in trade, trade fixtures, furniture, and furnishings, made or placed in or on the Premises by Tenant or any other person shall on expiration or earlier termination of this Lease, become the property of Landlord and remain on the Premises. Landlord shall have the option, however, on expiration or termination of this Lease, of requiring Tenant, at Tenant's sole cost and expense, to remove any or all such alterations, additions, and improvements from the Premises.

ARTICLE 7. DESTRUCTION OF PREMISES OR SHOPPING CENTER

Notice of Damage

7.01. Within [number, e.g., 24] hours of its occurrence, Tenant shall notify Landlord of any damage or accident occurring on the Premises.

Damage or Destruction From Insured Casualty

7.02. Subject to the limitations set forth in this Paragraph, if at any time during the term of this Lease, the Premises are damaged or destroyed by fire or any other casualty covered by Landlord's fire and extended coverage insurance, Landlord shall promptly repair, rebuild, or restore the Premises to substantially the same condition as was originally delivered to Tenant under this Lease. Notwithstanding the foregoing, Landlord shall not be obligated to expend for repairs or rebuilding an amount in excess of the net insurance proceeds for damage to the Premises recovered by it. "Net insurance proceeds" means the total amount of proceeds recovered and attributable to the Premises, less any expenses incurred by Landlord in recovering the proceeds; and less any amounts required to be paid to Landlord's Lender (defined in Paragraph 11.01 of this Lease). Landlord shall commence repair, restoration, or rebuilding work, as appropriate, not later than [number, e.g., 60] days after the occurrence of the event causing damage or destruction, and shall cause construction to be completed not later than [number, e.g., 180] days after the occurrence of the event causing damage or destruction. If Landlord does not commence or complete construction within the time periods described in this Paragraph, Tenant shall have the right to terminate this Lease by giving Landlord written notice within [number, e.g., 10] days after expiration of the applicable time period.

Right to Terminate Lease

7.03. Notwithstanding Paragraph 7.02 of this Lease, Landlord shall have the right to terminate this Lease and shall have no obligation to repair, restore, or rebuild the Premises or the Shopping Center, as the case may be, under any of the following circumstances:

(a) The Premises are damaged or destroyed by a casualty not covered by Landlord's insurance.

(b) Either the Premises or the building in the Shopping Center containing the Premises is damaged or destroyed by any cause (whether or not the damage or destruction actually includes the Premises), and the cost of repair, restoration, or rebuilding exceeds a total of [formula, e.g., 45 percent of the then-replacement cost of the building].

(c) At least [number, e.g., 50] percent of the gross leasable floor area of the Shopping Center is destroyed or damaged by any cause, whether or not the damage or destruction actually includes the Premises.

(d) The Premises are damaged in whole or in part by any cause during the last [number, e.g., two] years of the Original Term of this Lease.

If Landlord elects to terminate this Lease under any of the above circumstances, Landlord shall give written notice to Tenant not later than [number, e.g., 30] days after occurrence of the casualty. This notice shall set forth the date on which the termination is to be effective. That date shall be not less than [number, e.g., 30] days nor more than [number, e.g., 60] days after the date of the termination notice. If the type of partial or total destruction described in Subparagraph (d) of this Paragraph occurs, Tenant shall have the same right as Landlord to terminate this Lease, subject to the same notice requirements, provided that Tenant gives its notice of termination prior to the time Landlord commences repairs to or restoration of the Premises.

Abatement of Rent

7.04. If damage or destruction to the Premises renders the operation of Tenant's business wholly impossible and Tenant in fact ceases to operate its business, the Fixed Rent payable under this Lease shall abate either during the period beginning on the date of the casualty and ending on the date Landlord completes repairs, restoration, or rebuilding; or, if the damage or destruction results in the termination of this Lease, on the date of termination. If Tenant is able to continue partial operation of its business, the Fixed Rent shall be abated proportionately based on the percentage of floor area of the Premises Tenant is able to occupy. Notwithstanding any abatement or partial abatement of Fixed Rent provided for under this Paragraph, Tenant shall not be excused from continuing to pay Percentage Rent, its proportionate share of Taxes or Common Areas Maintenance Costs, or other Additional Rent required under this Lease.

Obligations for Repair or Rebuilding

7.05. If this Lease is not terminated pursuant to the provisions of this Article, Landlord's obligation to repair and rebuild is limited to construction of the perimeter walls, floor, [and ceiling or ceiling, and roof] of the Premises, and excludes any interior finishing and the storefront for the Premises. The Premises as completed by Landlord shall contain approximately the same amount of gross floor area as existed prior to the damage or destruction. Tenant must, at its own cost and expense, repair and rebuild the Premises to the extent not repaired or rebuilt by Landlord, in accordance with plans and specifications approved by Landlord and in all other respects in accordance with Paragraph 6.02 of this Agreement relating to Tenant's Work. Tenant shall commence its repair and rebuilding and diligently pursue the work to completion promptly after receiving written notice from Landlord that Landlord has completed its repair and rebuilding obligations.

Payment of Insurance Proceeds

7.06. All insurance proceeds payable with respect to the Premises shall belong to and be payable to Landlord. If Landlord does not elect to terminate this Lease, the insurance proceeds, subject to any prior rights of Landlord's Lender (defined in Paragraph 11.01), shall be disbursed in the following order: first, to Landlord's cost of rebuilding or restoration; second, to Tenant's cost of rebuilding or restoration, excluding costs covered by Tenant's insurance and also excluding the cost of any Tenant trade fixtures or stock in trade; and third, to Landlord, as Landlord's sole property. No amount shall be paid to Tenant until after the completion of Tenant's work and the expiration of the period during which a mechanic's lien arising from Tenant's Work could be filed.

ARTICLE 8. USE OF PREMISES

Merchandising

8.01. (a) Tenant shall maintain at all times throughout the term of this Lease a full stock of current and seasonal merchandise on the Premises and a staff of employees that is appropriate for Tenant's business and sufficient to maximize Gross Sales from Tenant's business.

(b) Tenant shall maximize space in the Premises for retail use. Tenant shall reserve space for administrative, warehousing, and other nonpublic needs only to the extent actually required by Tenant's business operation. Tenant may store on the Premises only goods and merchandise intended for retail sale by Tenant from and on the Premises [add when Tenant has other stores and is permitted to temporarily store merchandise for those stores on leased premises:; provided, however, that Tenant may temporarily store goods and merchandise intended for transfer to other stores of Tenant not located in the Shopping Center].

Condition of Premises

8.02. Tenant shall at all times keep the Premises (including the interior and exterior storefront surfaces) in a clean, safe, sanitary, and orderly condition. At its sole expense, Tenant shall replace any cracked or broken storefront glass on the Premises with glass equal in quality and similar in kind to that originally installed on the Premises.

Business Hours

8.03. Tenant shall be open for business during the same hours that the Shopping Center is open for business, which are as follows:

Monday through Friday: _____ A.M. through _____ P.M.

Saturday: _____ A.M. through _____ P.M.

Sunday: _____ A.M. through _____ P.M.

Landlord reserves the right to change at any time the hours during which the Shopping Center is open for business.

Tenant agrees to keep its business open during any new hours selected by Landlord, whether the new hours are less or more than the hours listed in this Paragraph. Landlord specifically reserves the right to decrease or increase the hours listed in this Paragraph in the case of legally recognized holidays. Tenant shall illuminate all storefront windows located on the Premises during the hours Tenant is required to be open for business.

Prohibited Actions

8.04. Tenant may not do any of the following on the Premises:

(a) Permit or commit any waste.

(b) Operate, cause, or permit to be operated any catalogue, mail, or telephone order sales in or from the Premises, except for the incidental sale of merchandise that Tenant is permitted to sell on the Premises to customers.

(c) Permit or conduct any public or private auction on the Premises or any sale that would or would tend to indicate that Tenant is going out of business, is bankrupt, or has lost its lease.

(d) Place or permit the placement of any pay telephones, vending machines [when machines are permitted for employee use, add: (except those intended for the exclusive use of Tenant's employees)], or amusement or video games on the Premises, without the prior written consent of Landlord.

(e) Use or permit the Common Areas adjacent to the Premises to be used for the display or sale of merchandise or for any other business purpose.

(f) Permit the making of any noise or sounds that carry beyond the boundaries of the Premises, whether through loudspeakers, other types of electronic devices, or otherwise.

(g) Conduct or permit any type of unlawful conduct on the Premises.

(h) Store or use any hazardous substances or materials on the Premises.

Compliance With Laws

8.05. At its sole expense, Tenant shall comply with all governmental laws, rules, regulations, orders, and ordinances relating to the Premises and to the use and occupancy of the Premises, including [or excluding] any requiring a capital expenditure for or capital improvement to the Premises. Tenant shall also maintain and keep in force all licenses and permits required by governmental authorities and shall comply with all requirements, recommendations, and regulations of Landlord's and Tenant's insurance companies.

Signs and Advertising

8.06. (a) Tenant shall include the name of the Shopping Center in any advertising of its business, except that permitted signs located on the Premises need not contain the name of the Shopping Center. Prior to the Commencement Date, Tenant shall install on the Premises a storefront identification sign that complies with the _____[size and design requirements adopted by Landlord (or the Merchants' Association) or sign criteria attached to this Lease as Exhibit _____]. Other than the one storefront identification sign, Tenant shall not place, install, or maintain any other sign, awning, canopy, advertising, or other matter on the exterior of the Premises (including the storefront window and door), or in any place inside the Premises that is visible from the exterior storefront, unless it obtains the prior approval of Landlord [or the Merchants' Association]. Tenant shall maintain all signs and other items described in this Paragraph in good condition and repair.

(b) Tenant shall at all times during the term of this Lease maintain seasonal merchandise in the display window of the Premises, exhibited in an attractive and professional manner. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Lease, Tenant may place professionally printed signs on the floor of its display window, provided they are of a reasonable size and contain prices and descriptions of merchandise offered for sale and exhibited in the display window.

Rules and Regulations

8.07. Landlord shall have the right from time to time to adopt, amend, or supplement rules and regulations relating to the Premises, the Common Areas, and the Shopping Center. Rules and regulations in effect as of the date of this Lease are attached to this Lease as Exhibit _____ and are hereby incorporated by reference. Landlord shall notify Tenant in writing of any amendment or modification made to the rules and regulations. Rules and regulations shall apply uniformly to all tenants in the Shopping Center [describe any exceptions, e.g.,, except that different rules may apply to major department stores located in the Shopping Center]. Tenant agrees to comply with all rules and regulations; a failure by Tenant to so comply shall constitute a breach under this Lease.

Assignment and Sublease

8.08. (a) Tenant shall not do any of the following without first obtaining the written consent of Landlord: assign, sell, mortgage, or in any other manner transfer this Lease or any interest of Tenant in the lease; sublet the whole or any part of the Premises; or permit all or any part of the Premises to be used or occupied by others (whether through the grant of a concession, license, or otherwise). Any consent requested from Landlord shall not be unreasonably withheld [or may be given or withheld by Landlord as Landlord in its sole discretion determines]. Any consent given by Landlord under this Paragraph applies only to the specific transfer transaction for which it is given, and Landlord's consent to a specific transfer transaction does not relieve or excuse Tenant from the requirement that Tenant obtain the prior written consent of Landlord for any subsequent transaction. Any transfer described in this Paragraph, whether made with or without Landlord's prior written consent, does not relieve Tenant of personal liability for the performance as a Tenant of applicable terms and covenants under this Lease (including the payment of rent), unless Landlord executes a written agreement for a specific transfer that provides otherwise. The prohibitions against transfer described in this Paragraph include any transfer transaction described above that occurs by operation of law, legal process, receivership, bankruptcy, or otherwise, whether voluntary or involuntary.

(b) Without in any way waiving its right to approve or disapprove any transfer transaction described in this Paragraph, Landlord may (1) collect rent from an assignee, subtenant, user, or occupant of the Premises following any transfer described in this Paragraph, whether or not Landlord gave its prior written consent for the transfer, and (2) apply the collected amount to the rent due from Tenant under this Lease. [If tenant is prohibited from profiting from sublease, add: In addition, if the rent or other consideration payable to Tenant by a subtenant, assignee, licensee, or other transferee exceeds the rent payable under this Lease, Tenant shall pay to Landlord an amount equal to the excess of the amount of rent or other consideration payable to Tenant over the amount of rent payable under this Lease by Tenant to Landlord.]

(c) Any sublease, assignment, or other transfer agreement described in this Paragraph must recite the following: that it is subject and subordinate to this Lease; and that the termination by Landlord of this Lease will, at Landlord's sole option, terminate the sublease, assignment, or other transfer agreement.

[If tenant is a corporation, add:]

(d) The transfer of corporate shares of Tenant by assignment, sale, bequest, inheritance, operation of law, or other disposition shall not be considered a prohibited transfer transaction under this Lease if it results in Tenant holding at least 51 percent of the voting power of the corporation. [If tenant is a subsidiary of another corporation, add: Further, the assignment of this Lease to or Tenant's merger with _____[name of parent corporation], which is Tenant's parent corporation, shall not constitute a prohibited transfer transaction under this Lease.]

[If tenant must pay a fee for any transfer transaction approved by landlord, add:]

(e) Tenant shall pay Landlord a fee of $ [specify, e.g., 500] to cover Landlord's administrative costs, overhead, and attorneys' fees in connection with an assignment, sublease, or other transfer transaction approved by Landlord. Tenant shall pay this fee before Landlord executes the document evidencing Landlord's consent to the transfer.

[Optional]

Competitive Business

8.09. Tenant acknowledges that Landlord's expectation of receiving fair and equitable rent for the Premises is dependent on Tenant generating maximum Gross Sales from the business Tenant will conduct on the Premises. Tenant further acknowledges that if Tenant were to conduct a similar business in close proximity to the Shopping Center, the Gross Sales generated on the Premises would be adversely affected. Therefore, if Tenant or any entity that controls or is controlled by Tenant owns, operates, manages, controls, or engages in any business that is similar to or competes with the business conducted by Tenant on the premises and that is located within a radius of [distance, e.g., 10 miles] from the outer perimeters of this Shopping Center, then, at Landlord's option, (1) Tenant's Gross Sales (as defined in Paragraph 4.03 of this Lease) in, on, or from the similar or competing business shall be added to, included in, and deemed to be a part of Tenant's Gross Sales under this Lease, and (2) the foregoing sales shall be computed and accounted for to Landlord in the same manner as is provided in this Lease for the computation and accounting of Tenant's Gross Sales from its business conducted on the Premises. Any such handling of Gross Sales from a similar or competing business shall be in addition to and cumulative with all other rights and remedies of Landlord.

[Optional]

Covenant of Continuous Business Operation

8.10. (a) Tenant shall conduct its business in a businesslike and efficient manner. Further, because the adequacy of the rent payable by Tenant under this Lease is dependent on the amount of Gross Sales generated by Tenant on the Premises, Tenant shall, except as otherwise provided in this Lease, continuously, actively, and diligently operate its business on the Premises in a manner intended to maximize Tenant's Gross Sales on the Premises.

(b) Landlord and Tenant acknowledge that (1) Landlord does not consider the Fixed Rent provided for under this Lease in itself to be fair and adequate compensation for the leasing of the Premises to Tenant, and (2) Landlord's consideration for entering into this Lease is based on the expectation that the Percentage Rent to be paid by Tenant will supplement the Fixed Rent so as to provide Landlord with a fair and adequate rental return on the Premises. Therefore, if Tenant either fails to open for business on the date required under this Lease or, after opening, fails to continuously operate its business on the Premises as required under this Lease, then, at Landlord's option, (1) Tenant shall be in default under this Lease, and (2) Landlord shall have the right to collect, in addition to all other sums due from Tenant under this Lease, liquidated damages from Tenant equal to _____[measure of damages agreed on by parties, e.g., one thirtieth of the monthly amount of Fixed Rent payable by Tenant under this Lease] for each day Tenant fails to open after the required opening date or for each day Tenant fails to operate its business after it has opened.

ARTICLE 9. INSURANCE

Insurance by Landlord

9.01. Landlord shall procure and maintain during the entire term of this Lease, the following insurance coverage: [specify, e.g., fire and extended coverage insurance in an amount equal to not less than _____ (minimum coverage, e.g., 90 percent of the full replacement value of all improvements constructed or installed by Landlord in the Shopping Center and by Tenant in the Premises (excluding Tenant's trade fixtures)]. In addition to the foregoing insurance, Landlord in its sole discretion may procure and maintain other insurance covering the Shopping Center, including the following: [specify, e.g., liability insurance for personal injury, death, and property damage; workers' compensation insurance covering personnel; fidelity bonds for personnel; insurance against liability for defamation and claims of false arrest occurring in and about the Common Areas; and plate glass insurance for glass located in or on the Common Areas]. The cost of any insurance procured by Landlord for the Shopping Center, whether mandatory or optional under this Paragraph, is a Common Areas Maintenance Cost for which Tenant is obligated to contribute its proportionate share as described in Paragraph 4.06 of this Lease.

Insurance by Tenant

9.02. (a) Tenant shall, at its own cost and expense, procure and maintain during the entire term of this Lease the following insurance coverage: _____ [specify, e.g.,

(1) Comprehensive general public liability insurance insuring against the risks of bodily injury, property damage, and personal injury liability occurring on the Premises or arising out of Tenant's use or occupancy of the premises, with a combined single limit of liability of at least $ _____ and a general aggregate limit of at least $

_____ , and including

_____ [describe any additional coverage, e.g., an endorsement for libel, slander, and false imprisonment]. At least every _____ [number, e.g., three] years, but not more frequently, Tenant shall increase the amount of public liability coverage, if at that time the existing coverage is not adequate in the opinion of Landlord's insurance broker or Lender.

(2) Fire and extended coverage insurance, and vandalism and malicious mischief insurance, insuring Tenant's fixtures, goods, wares, and merchandise in or on the Premises for 100 percent of their full insurable and replacement cost, without deduction for depreciation.

(3) Plate glass insurance covering all plate glass on the Premises.

(4) Business interruption insurance, payable in the event of a loss covered by the fire and extended coverage or vandalism and malicious mischief insurance Tenant is required to maintain, in an amount not less than the amount of Tenant's Fixed Rent and proportionate share of Taxes and Common Area Maintenance Costs for a 12-month period following any damage or destruction.

(5) Workers' compensation insurance as required by the laws of the State of California].

[Continue with the following:]

Tenant's policy of liability insurance shall list Landlord as an additional [or a named] insured and shall also contain an endorsement that although Landlord is listed as an additional [or a named] insured, Landlord shall be entitled to recover under the policy for any loss or damage occasioned to it or its agents or employees by reason of Tenant's negligence.

(b) Any insurance policy Tenant is required to procure and maintain under this Lease shall be issued by a responsible insurance company or companies licensed to do business in the State of California. Further, each such policy shall provide that it may not be canceled, terminated, or changed except after [number, e.g., 10] days' prior written notice to Landlord. Tenant may maintain all or part of the insurance required under this Lease by means of a blanket insurance policy so long as the provisions of this Article are satisfied. Tenant must deliver to Landlord duplicate originals or certificates of all insurance policies procured by Tenant.

(c) Tenant may not do, omit to do, permit to be done, or keep anything in or on the Premises that will violate the provisions of Landlord's fire and extended coverage insurance policy or otherwise adversely affect the premiums paid by Landlord or Landlord's ability to maintain the insurance in effect. If any such act or omission by Tenant results in an increase in Landlord's premiums for any policies on the Premises or the Shopping Center, Tenant shall pay the amount of the increase. Landlord may also, at Landlord's option, rectify the condition causing the increase if Tenant fails to do so. In that case, on demand of Landlord, the amount expended by Landlord shall be immediately due and payable by Tenant as Additional Rent.

(d) If during the term of this Lease Tenant fails to secure or maintain the insurance required under this Lease, Landlord may obtain the insurance for the Premises in Tenant's name or as the agent of Tenant, and Tenant shall compensate Landlord for the cost of the insurance premiums. Tenant shall reimburse Landlord the full amount paid no later than [number] days from the date written notice is received that the premiums have been paid. A failure by Tenant to make reimbursement within the time required under this Subparagraph shall be considered a default under this Lease.

Subrogation Waiver

9.03. Landlord and Tenant agree that in the event of loss due to any of the perils for which they have agreed to provide insurance, each party shall look solely to its insurance for recovery. Landlord and Tenant hereby grant to each other, on behalf of any insurer providing insurance to either of them with respect to the Premises, a waiver of any right of subrogation that any such insurer of one party may acquire against the other by virtue of payment of any loss under that insurance.

Proceeds

9.04. Except as otherwise provided in this Lease, proceeds from any policy or policies shall be payable to the party responsible for the payment of insurance premiums [or either or both Landlord and Tenant as their respective interests may appear].

Indemnification

9.05. Landlord shall not be liable to Tenant, and Tenant hereby waives all claims against Landlord, for any injury or damage to any person or property on or about the Premises by or from any cause whatsoever, excepting injury or damage to Tenant resulting from the acts or omissions of Landlord or Landlord's authorized agents. Tenant agrees to hold Landlord harmless from and defend Landlord against any and all claims or liability for any injury or damage to any person or property occurring in, on, or about the Premises or any part of the Premises, excepting any damage or injury caused in part or in whole by the act or omission of any duty by Landlord or Landlord's agents or employees.

ARTICLE 10. MERCHANTS' ASSOCIATION

Membership

10.01. (a) During the term of this Lease, Tenant shall be a member of the _____[name of merchants' association] ("Association"), a nonprofit association of merchants in the Shopping Center organized for the purpose of promoting their common business interests in the Shopping Center, to the extent consistent with rights of Landlord and other owners of the Shopping Center. Tenant shall pay monthly dues and assessments required by the Association, which shall not be less than an annual amount of $ _____ per square foot of the gross floor area of the Premises. In addition to regular dues and assessments, Tenant shall pay, on Landlord's written demand, an initial contribution of $ _____ to the Association to defray expenses of the Association in advertising or otherwise promoting the opening of Tenant's business on the Premises.

(b) Landlord shall be a member of the Association in accordance with the provisions of the Association's governing instruments, and shall pay to the Association annually an amount equal to [set forth specific amount or formula for determining amount, e.g., 25 percent of the total dues and assessments collected by the Association from members other than Landlord and department stores located in the Shopping Center]; provided, however, that for any given year Landlord shall not be required to contribute more than the sum of $ _____.

Advertising Expenditures

10.02. In addition to dues and assessments paid to the Association by Tenant, Tenant shall expend at least _____ percent of its annual gross sales on advertising the business conducted by Tenant on the Premises.

ARTICLE 11. SUBORDINATION, ATTORNMENT, AND ESTOPPEL CERTIFICATES

Subordination

11.01. (a) Except as provided in Subparagraph (b) of this Paragraph, this Lease and all of Tenant's rights in the lease shall be subject and subordinate to any mortgage, deed of trust, ground lease, or other instrument of encumbrance (collectively referred to in this Paragraph as a "security instrument") that is now or hereafter placed against any part of the real property on which the Shopping Center is located, the Premises, or any or all of the buildings currently or in the future located in the Shopping Center. On written request of the holder of any security instrument ("Lender") or Landlord, Tenant shall execute, acknowledge, and deliver any documents evidencing subordination that the Lender or Landlord may reasonably request. For each security instrument, the Lender shall agree in writing that, in the event of a default under the security instrument, Lender shall not terminate this Lease and shall not disturb Tenant's right to possession under this Lease, provided Tenant is not then in default under this Lease and continues thereafter to fully perform all of its obligations under this Lease.

(b) Notwithstanding the provisions of Subparagraph (a) of this Paragraph, any Lender may subordinate its security instrument to this Lease by executing and recording a written document subordinating its security instrument to this Lease as provided in the document. In that case, this Lease shall be deemed prior to the security instrument as provided in the document, without regard to the execution, delivery, or recording dates of the subordination document or the security instrument. Subordination of a security instrument described in this Subparagraph shall not require the consent of Tenant, but Tenant agrees to execute and deliver, in recordable form, any instrument requested by Lender or Landlord to confirm or acknowledge the subordination.

Attornment

11.02. If Landlord transfers its interest in the Premises or if any proceeding is brought to foreclose any mortgage, deed of trust, or instrument to secure debt affecting the Premises or any ground lease made by Landlord, Tenant shall attorn to the purchaser or transferee of Landlord's interest.

Estoppel Certificates

11.03. Tenant agrees to execute, in recordable form, and deliver to Landlord or a Lender (as defined in Paragraph 11.01 of this Lease), when requested by Landlord or a Lender, an estoppel certificate regarding the status of this Lease. The certificate shall be in the form designated by Landlord or the Lender and shall contain at a minimum the following: (1) a statement that the lease is in full force and effect with no modifications, or a statement that the lease is in full force and effect as modified, together with a description of the modifications; (2) the Commencement Date and expiration date of this Lease; (3) the amount of advance rent, if any, paid by Tenant, and the date to which the rent has been paid; (4) the amount of any security deposit deposited with Landlord; (5) a statement indicating whether or not Landlord is, in Tenant's good faith opinion, in default under any of the terms of this Lease, and if so, a description of the alleged default and of any defense or offset claimed by Tenant; and (6) any other information reasonably required by Landlord or Lender. Tenant shall deliver the certificate to the requesting party not later than [number, e.g., 15] days after the date of the written request for the statement. Tenant's failure to deliver the certificate within the foregoing time period shall constitute an acknowledgment by Tenant that this Lease has not been assigned or modified; that the lease is in full force and effect; and that all rent payable under this Lease has been fully paid up to but not beyond the due date immediately preceding the date of Landlord or Lender's written request for the statement. Such an acknowledgment may be relied on by any person holding or intending to acquire any interest in the Premises or the Shopping Center. Tenant's failure to timely deliver the required certificate shall also constitute, as between Tenant and the persons entitled to rely on the statement and as between Tenant and Landlord, a waiver of any defaults by Landlord or of Tenant defenses or offsets against the enforcement of this Lease that may exist prior to the date of the written request for the statement. Landlord may also treat Tenant's failure to deliver the certificate as a default under this Lease.

ARTICLE 12. CONDEMNATION

Termination of Lease

12.01. If at any time during the term of this Lease, title and possession of all of the Premises or of _____ percent or more of the gross floor area of the Premises is taken under the power of eminent domain by any public or quasi-public agency or entity, this Lease shall terminate as of 12.01 A.M. of the date actual physical possession of the Premises is taken by the agency or entity exercising the power of eminent domain. Thereafter, both Landlord and Tenant shall be released from all obligations under this Lease, subject to the provisions of Paragraph 12.04 of this Lease.

Continuation of Lease

12.02. If the portion of the Premises taken under the power of eminent domain is less than [same percentage used above] percent of the gross floor area of the Premises, the following will occur:

(a) This lease shall terminate as to the portion taken as of 12:01 A.M. of the day actual physical possession of that portion of the Premises is taken by the agency or entity exercising the power of eminent domain (the "date of taking").

(b) This lease shall continue in effect for the remainder of the Premises not taken. Beginning on the day and at the time described in Subparagraph (a) of this Paragraph, the Fixed Rent payable by Tenant under this Lease shall be reduced by the same proportion that the gross floor area taken bears to the gross floor area of the Premises prior to the taking. Promptly after the taking described above, Landlord shall, at Landlord's expense, restore the Premises not taken by eminent domain to a condition making the Premises tenantable by Tenant for the uses permitted by this Lease; and Tenant shall, at Tenant's expense, make all necessary repairs to Tenant's fixtures, equipment, and furnishings.

Option to Terminate Lease

12.03. Landlord [or Landlord or Tenant] shall have the right to terminate this Lease if title and possession of the following is taken under the power of eminent domain, whether or not the taking includes any portion of the Premises:

(a) More than [number, e.g., 33 or 50] percent of the gross floor area of the building containing the Premises;

(b) More than [number, e.g., 33 or 50] percent of the Common Areas of the Shopping Center;

(c) More than [number, e.g., 33 or 50] percent of the leasable floor area of the Shopping Center; or

(d) All or a portion of the parking area of the Shopping Center, provided the taking causes the Shopping Center to violate the requirements of the then-applicable zoning law governing the size, location, layout, or other features of the parking area. Notwithstanding the foregoing, this Lease shall continue in full force and effect if Landlord, immediately after the agency or entity exercising the power of eminent domain takes actual physical possession of the parking area, commences to correct the circumstances giving rise to the right to terminate this Lease, either through obtaining a variance or an exception to the then-applicable zoning law or by providing additional substitute parking areas. This action must be at Landlord's sole cost and expense.

Landlord [or Landlord or Tenant] may exercise the foregoing right to terminate this Lease by giving written notice to Tenant [or to the other party] at least [number, e.g., 30] days prior to the termination date, which shall be the date actual physical possession of the Premises is taken by the agency or entity exercising the power of eminent domain.

Condemnation Award

12.04. If at any time during the term of this Lease, title and possession of all or any portion of the Premises or the Shopping Center is taken under the power of eminent domain, the compensation or damages for the taking shall[, except as provided below,] be awarded to and be the sole property of Landlord, and Tenant shall have no right or claim to that compensation or damages. [Add if desired: Notwithstanding the foregoing, Tenant shall have a right or claim to any amount attributable to the reasonable value of Tenant improvements or alterations installed at Tenant expense that Tenant has a right to remove but elects not to remove; or, if Tenant elects to remove any such Tenant improvements or alterations, to an amount equal to the reasonable removal and relocation costs, not to exceed market value.]

Waiver on Condemnation

12.05. Landlord and Tenant each agree that this Lease shall govern the respective rights and obligations of each party in the event of a taking by eminent domain. Landlord and Tenant each hereby waives any right either may have at law to petition the court for termination of this Lease in the event of a partial taking of the Premises.

ARTICLE 13. DEFAULT AND TERMINATION

"Default" Defined

13.01. The occurrence of any of the following constitutes a default and breach of this Lease by Tenant:

(a) Any failure by Tenant to pay the rent or to make any other payment required to be made by Tenant under this Lease, when the failure continues for [number, e.g., 10 or more days] after written notice from Landlord to Tenant.

(b) The abandonment of the Premises by Tenant. For these purposes, the absence of Tenant from or the failure by Tenant to conduct business on the Premises for a period in excess of [number, e.g., 14 consecutive days] shall constitute an abandonment.

(c) A failure by Tenant to observe or perform any other provision of this Lease to be observed or performed by Tenant, when the failure continues for [number, e.g., 30 days] or more after written notice of Tenant's failure is given by Landlord to Tenant; provided, however, that if the default cannot reasonably be cured within the [same time period for cure used above, e.g., 30-day] cure period, Tenant shall not be deemed to be in default if Tenant commences the cure within the [same time period for cure used above, e.g., 30-day] cure period and thereafter completes the curative action within a reasonable time.

(d) The making by Tenant of any general assignment for the benefit of creditors; the filing by or against Tenant of a petition to have Tenant adjudged a bankrupt or of a petition for reorganization or arrangement under any law relating to bankruptcy (unless, in the case of a petition filed against Tenant, it is dismissed within [number, e.g., 60 days]); the appointment of a trustee or receiver to take possession of substantially all of Tenant's assets located at the Premises or of Tenant's interest in this Lease, when possession is not restored to Tenant within [number, e.g., 30 days]; or the attachment, execution, or other judicial seizure of substantially all of Tenant's assets located at the Premises or of Tenant's interest in this Lease, when that seizure is not discharged within [number, e.g., 30 days].

Termination of Lease and Recovery of Damages

13.02. In the event of any default by Tenant under this Lease, in addition to any other remedies available to Landlord at law or in equity, Landlord shall have the right to terminate this Lease and all rights of Tenant under this Lease by giving written notice of the termination. No act of Landlord shall be construed as terminating this Lease except written notice given by Landlord to Tenant advising Tenant that Landlord elects to terminate the lease. In the event Landlord elects to terminate this Lease, Landlord may recover the following from Tenant:

(a) The worth at the time of award of any unpaid rent that had been earned at the time of termination of the lease;

(b) The worth at the time of award of the amount by which the unpaid rent that would have been earned after termination of the lease until the time of award exceeds the amount of rental loss that Tenant proves could have been reasonably avoided;

(c) The worth at the time of award of the amount by which the unpaid rent for the balance of the term of this Lease after the time of award exceeds the amount of rental loss that Tenant proves could be reasonably avoided; and

(d) Any other amount necessary to compensate Landlord for all detriment proximately caused by Tenant's failure to perform its obligations under this Lease.

The term "rent" as used in this Paragraph shall mean the Fixed Rent, the Percentage Rent, and all other sums required to be paid by Tenant pursuant to the terms of this Lease. As used in Subparagraphs (a) and (b) of this Paragraph, the "worth at the time of award" is computed by allowing interest at the rate of 10 percent per year. As used in Subparagraph (c) of this Paragraph, the "worth at the time of award" is computed by discounting the amount at the discount rate of the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco at the time of award plus 1 percent.

Landlord's Right to Continue Lease in Effect

13.03. If Tenant breaches this Lease and abandons the Premises before the natural expiration of the term of this Lease, Landlord may continue this Lease in effect by not terminating Tenant's right to possession of the Premises, in which event Landlord shall be entitled to enforce all its rights and remedies under this Lease, including the right to recover the rent specified in this Lease as it becomes due under this Lease. For as long as Landlord does not terminate this Lease, Tenant shall have the right to assign or sublease the Premises, subject to the requirements of Paragraph 8.08 of this Lease. No act of Landlord (including an entry on the Premises, efforts to relet the Premises, or maintenance of the Premises) shall be construed as an election to terminate this Lease unless a written notice of termination is given to Tenant or the termination of this Lease is decreed by a court of competent jurisdiction.

Landlord's Right to Relet

13.04. In the event Tenant breaches this Lease, Landlord may enter on and relet the Premises or any part of the Premises to a third party for any term, at any rental, and on any other terms and conditions that Landlord in its sole discretion may deem advisable, and shall have the right to make alterations and repairs to the Premises. Tenant shall be liable for all of Landlord's costs in reletting, including remodeling costs required for the reletting. In the event Landlord relets the premises, Tenant shall pay all rent due under and at the times specified in this Lease, less any amount or amounts actually received by Landlord from the reletting.

Landlord's Right to Cure Tenant Defaults

13.05. If Tenant breaches or fails to perform any of the covenants or provisions of this Lease, Landlord may, but shall not be required to, cure Tenant's breach. Any sum expended by Landlord, with the then-maximum legal rate of interest, shall be reimbursed by Tenant to Landlord with the next due rent payment under this Lease.

Cumulative Remedies

13.06. The remedies granted to Landlord in this Article shall not be exclusive but shall be cumulative and in addition to all remedies now or hereafter allowed by law or provided in this Lease.

Waiver of Breach and Estoppel

13.07. (a) No waiver of any provision of this Lease shall be implied by any failure of Landlord to enforce any remedy for the violation of that provision, even if that violation continues or is repeated. Any waiver by Landlord of any provision of this Lease must be in writing. Such written waiver shall affect only the provision specified and only for the time and in the manner stated in writing. The acceptance of rent hereunder by Landlord shall not be a waiver of any preceding breach of Tenant of any provision hereof other than the failure of Tenant to pay the particular rent so accepted, regardless of Landlord's knowledge of such preceding breach at the time of acceptance of such rent.

(b) The Landlord's neglect or omission to provide notice to the Tenant as to why the Landlord is not enforcing any provision of this Lease, or the Landlord's neglect or failure to enforce any provision of this Lease, whether known to Landlord or not, and any statement made by the Landlord or conduct by the Landlord herein that the Landlord is not enforcing any provision of this Lease, shall not act as an estoppel on the Landlord to enforce any provision of this Lease.

Surrender on Termination

13.08. On expiration of the term of this Lease or the earlier termination of this Lease, Tenant agrees to surrender the Premises in good order and condition (reasonable wear and tear excepted). Further, Tenant shall, at Tenant's expense, remove all of its merchandise, inventory, and trade fixtures, and repair any damage caused by the removal. Landlord shall also have the right to require Tenant, at Tenant's expense, to remove any improvements made to the Premises by Tenant and to repair any damage caused by the removal.

Holdover Tenancy

13.09. If Tenant remains in possession of the Premises after expiration of the term of this Lease without renewing or extending this Lease or entering into a new lease with Landlord, Tenant's continued occupancy of the Premises, at Landlord's option, shall be considered a month-to-month tenancy that may be terminated by either party on 30 days' prior notice to the other. All terms of this Lease shall be fully applicable to the month-to-month tenancy insofar as consistent with a month-to-month tenancy [when tenant must pay an increase in rent and/or other charges, describe the increase, e.g.,, except that Tenant must pay 150 percent of the Fixed Rent, Percentage Rent, proportionate share of Common Areas Maintenance Costs and Taxes, and any Additional Rent provided for under this Lease].

Attorneys' Fees

13.10. If any litigation is commenced between the parties to this Lease concerning the Premises, this Lease, or the rights and duties of either in relation to the Premises or the lease, the party prevailing in that litigation shall be entitled, in addition to any other relief that may be granted in the litigation, to a reasonable sum as and for its attorneys' fees in the litigation, which shall be determined by the court in that litigation or in a separate action brought for that purpose.

ARTICLE 14. MISCELLANEOUS

[Optional]

No Personal Liability of Landlord

14.01. Tenant agrees that Landlord shall have no personal liability with respect to any provision of this Lease, and that in the event Landlord fails to perform any obligation under this Lease or otherwise breaches this Lease, Tenant shall look solely to Landlord's ownership interest in the real property and improvements constituting the Shopping Center for satisfaction of any judgment or any other remedy of Tenant, subject to any prior rights of any holder of a mortgage or deed of trust covering the Shopping Center. No other assets of Landlord shall be subject to levy, execution, or other judicial process for the satisfaction of Tenant's claim.

[Optional]

Landlord's Operating Agreements With Others

14.02. Landlord has entered into various agreements with the owners of or occupants of other premises located in the Shopping Center relating to the operation and use of the Shopping Center (hereafter collectively referred to in this Paragraph as "Operating Agreements"). These Operating Agreements include reciprocal easement agreements, development agreements, and leases. This lease shall be subject at all times to these Operating Agreements. Landlord shall not be liable to Tenant for the breach of any Operating Agreement by any owner or occupant of other premises located in the Shopping Center, and shall not be required for Tenant's benefit to institute efforts to enforce any party's obligations under an Operating Agreement or to terminate any Operating Agreement because of a party's default.

[Optional]

Other Covenants of Continuous Operation

14.03. This lease shall not be deemed or interpreted to contain, implicitly or otherwise, any representation or agreement by Landlord that any other tenant (including any department store or national or regional chain retail store) shall open for business or occupy or continue to occupy any portion of the Shopping Center at any time during the term of this Lease. Tenant agrees and affirms that it is not relying on any such representation or agreement in entering into this Lease, and waives any claim with respect to any such agreement or representation.

[Optional]

Removal of Hazardous Materials

14.04. If any hazardous materials or substances prohibited by law are found to exist on the Premises and the presence of the materials or substances has not been caused by Tenant or by Tenant's use of the Premises, Landlord shall, at Landlord's sole cost and expense, perform necessary removal and cleanup as required by law. If any hazardous materials or substances prohibited by law are found to exist on the Premises and the presence of the materials or substances has been caused by Tenant or by Tenant's use of the Premises, Tenant shall be responsible for any required cleanup or removal and for the cost of the foregoing.

[Continue with the following:]

Landlord-Tenant Relationship

14.05. This lease establishes a Landlord-Tenant relationship between the parties. It shall not be construed or deemed to create any other type of relationship between them, including one of agency, partnership, or joint venture.

Landlord's Right of Entry

14.06. At any time Tenant is open for business or is required by this Lease to be open for business, Landlord shall have the right to enter the Premises to inspect the Premises; show the Premises to a third party; or perform any repairs Landlord is permitted or required to make under this Lease, whether to the Premises, adjoining premises, or the building containing the Premises. For any entry made while Tenant is open for business, Landlord shall use its best efforts to minimize interference with the conduct of Tenant's business. Repairs required or permitted to be made by Landlord may, at Landlord's option, be scheduled for times when Tenant's business is not open, provided prior written notice is given to Tenant. In the case of an emergency, Landlord may enter the Premises at any time without prior notice to Tenant, but shall notify Tenant promptly afterwards of its emergency entry.

Brokerage Commissions

14.07. Neither Tenant nor Landlord has had any dealings or negotiations with any broker or finder with respect to the Premises [if any exceptions exist, add:, except with _____ (name of finder or broker), to whom Tenant (or Landlord) shall be solely responsible for any payment or other compensation]. In the event of any claim for payment or compensation by any agent or broker with respect to Tenant's lease of the Premises [when broker or finder is named above, add: other than _____ (repeat name of finder or broker)], each party agrees to defend, indemnify, and hold the other harmless from and against all costs, fees, liabilities, and other claims incurred by the indemnified party as a result of the claim.

Recording of Lease

14.08. On the request of either Landlord or Tenant, the parties agree to execute a short form or memorandum of this Lease, in recordable form, which may be recorded by either party at that party's expense.

Interest on Obligations

14.09. The payment of any sum due to Landlord under this Lease, however designated, shall be due promptly as provided for in this Lease. Any payment that is not paid promptly shall bear interest from its due date until paid at the then-maximum legal rate of interest.

Notices

14.10. Except as otherwise expressly provided by law, any and all notices or other communications required or permitted by this Lease or by law to be served on or given to either party to this Lease by the other party to this Lease shall be in writing and shall be deemed duly served and given when personally delivered to the party to whom they are directed or any managing employee of that party, or in lieu of personal service, when deposited in the United States mail, first-class postage prepaid, addressed to Landlord at _____[mailing address] or to Tenant at _____[mailing address]. Either party may change its address for purposes of this Paragraph by giving written notice of that change to the other party in the manner provided in this Paragraph.

Binding on Heirs and Successors

14.11. This lease shall be binding on and shall inure to the benefit of the heirs, executors, administrators, successors, and assigns of Landlord and Tenant, but nothing in this Paragraph shall be construed as a consent by Landlord to any assignment of this Lease or any interest in this Lease by Tenant except as provided in Paragraph 8.08 of this Lease.

Time of Essence

14.12. Time is expressly declared to be of the essence in this Lease.

Sole and Only Agreement

14.13. This lease, together with the Exhibits described in Paragraph 14.14 of this Lease, constitutes the sole and only agreement between Landlord and Tenant respecting the Premises, the leasing of the Premises to Tenant, or the lease term created under this Lease, and correctly sets forth the obligations of Landlord and Tenant to each other as of its date. Any agreements or representations respecting the Premises or their leasing by Landlord to Tenant not expressly set forth in this instrument are null and void. This lease may be modified or amended only by an instrument in writing signed by both Landlord and Tenant.

Exhibits

14.14. The following exhibits are incorporated by reference in and constitute a part of this Lease: [list exhibits, e.g:
EXHIBIT A: Site Plan for Shopping Center
EXHIBIT B: Construction Specifications
EXHIBIT C: Sign Criteria
EXHIBIT D: Rules and Regulations]

Invalidity or Unenforceability

14.15. If any provision of this Lease is held by a court of competent jurisdiction to be either invalid, void, or unenforceable, the remaining provisions of this Lease shall remain in full force and effect.

Waivers

14.16. No waiver of any term, condition, or covenant of this Lease shall be presumed or implied. Any such waiver must be expressly made in writing by the party waiving the term, condition, or covenant. The acceptance by Landlord from Tenant of any amount paid for any reason under this Lease in a sum less than what is actually owing shall not be deemed a compromise, settlement, accord and satisfaction, or other final disposition of the amount owing unless Landlord agrees otherwise in writing.

Captions

14.17. The captions and numbers of the Articles and Paragraphs of this Lease are for convenience only and are not intended to reflect in any way on the substance or interpretation of the provisions of this Lease.

DIVISION II: REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 34E SHOPPING CENTERS: LEASING AND OPERATION
PART IV. FORMS

17-34E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 34E.202

AUTHOR: Benjamin Kaplan Myron Moskovitz Practice Consultants

§ 34E.202 Sign Requirements

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form contains illustrative sign requirements for a retail shopping center. It it presented here as a separate document that may be attached as an exhibit to either an REA [see § 34E.200 [2]] or a shopping center lease [see § 34E.201 [2]]. If included with either, the primary document should specifically refer to it and incorporate it by reference.

Uniformity in signs in a shopping center enhances the overall appearance of the center and should be strictly enforced. From both a management and compliance standpoint, it is useful to standardize the applicable requirements prior to entering into tenant leases for the shopping center.

[2] FORM

Sign Requirements

SIGN REQUIREMENTS FOR
_____ [name of shopping center]

No sign may be placed, installed, or erected in the Shopping Center by any tenant or other occupant ("Occupant") unless it meets the criteria set forth below.

ARTICLE 1. GENERAL REQUIREMENTS FOR ALL STORES

1.01. No signs, advertising placards, banners, pennants, names, insignia, trademarks, or other descriptive material may be affixed to or maintained on the glass panes and supports of the storefront windows or on the exterior walls of buildings without the prior written permission of [person or entity authorized to grant approval, e.g., Landlord].

1.02. Prior to the fabrication of any sign, Occupant shall provide [person or entity authorized to grant approval, e.g., Landlord] with at least two copies of detailed drawings indicating, to the extent applicable, the location, size, layout, design, color, lettering, and graphics of the proposed sign.

1.03. Occupant shall obtain any necessary permits for signs and/or their installation.

1.04. Any sign placed, installed, or erected in violation of these criteria shall be removed at the sole cost and expense of the Occupant, and any damage caused by the removal shall be repaired by Occupant at its sole cost and expense. Failure to remove a sign within [number, e.g., 10] days after written notice from [authorized person or entity, e.g., Landlord] shall constitute a default under the Occupant's lease or other occupancy agreement.

ARTICLE 2. GENERAL SPECIFICATIONS FOR ALL STORES

2.01. The following shall not be permitted:

(a) Flashing, moving, or audible signs.

(b) Pylon or pole signs.

(c) Exposed tubing or raceways.

2.02. All electrical signs shall bear the UL label, and their installation shall comply with all local building and electrical codes.

2.03. All cabinets, conduits, conductors, transformers, and other equipment shall be concealed.

2.04. Electrical service to all signs shall be on the Occupant's separate meter.

ARTICLE 3. CONSTRUCTION REQUIREMENTS FOR ALL STORES

3.01. All signs, bolts, fastenings, and clips shall be of hot dipped galvanized iron, stainless steel, aluminum, brass, or bronze, and no black iron materials of any type shall be permitted.

3.02. All exterior letters or signs exposed to the elements shall be mounted at least [distance in inches, e.g., three fourths of an inch] but not more than [distance in inches, e.g., one and one-half inches] from the building wall to permit water drainage.

3.03. The location of all openings or conduit and sleeves in sign panels of building walls shall be indicated by the sign contractor on submitted drawings. The sign contractor shall install them in accordance with the approved drawings.

3.04. Labels shall be permitted on the exposed surface of signs only if they are required by local ordinance and are placed in an inconspicuous location.

3.05. All penetrations of the building structure required for sign installation shall be neatly sealed in a watertight condition.

3.06. The sign contractor shall repair any damage to any other work or improvement caused by the contractor's own work.

3.07. Occupant shall be responsible for the operations of Occupant's sign contractors.

ARTICLE 4. ENTRYWAY REQUIREMENTS FOR ALL STORES

4.01. Any door to an Occupant's premises that is provided for customer ingress and egress may contain a sign that (1) is not larger than [maximum size in square inches, e.g., 144 square inches], and (2) indicates, in gold leaf or decal application lettering not exceeding [number, e.g., two] inches in height, the Occupant's hours of business and emergency telephone numbers.

4.02. Each Occupant who has a noncustomer door for receiving merchandise shall have stenciled on the door, in [number in inches, e.g., two-inch] high block letters, the Occupant's business name and address. For any door used by more than one Occupant, the business name and address of each shall be applied. All lettering shall be in the color [specify, e.g., black] and shall be located in a position on the door as illustrated in the architectural drawings for receiving doors attached to these sign criteria.

ARTICLE 5. DESIGN REQUIREMENTS FOR ALL STORES

5.01. Each sign shall be placed only in the location designated by Occupant in its detailed drawings submitted to and approved by [person or entity authorized to approve signs, e.g., Landlord].

5.02. The maximum total horizontal dimension of any storefront sign shall not exceed [maximum width, e.g., one half of the width] of the store frontage, and shall be located at least [number, e.g., 36] inches from each side boundary of the Occupant's premises.

5.03. The background of any storefront sign shall be in a solid color only, as indicated in Occupant's detailed drawings submitted to and approved by [person or entity authorized to approve signs, e.g., Landlord].

5.04. No signs perpendicular to the face of the building shall be permitted. Only one horizontal storefront sign is permitted for each Occupant. The precise dimensions of each storefront sign, its elevation above floor level, and its location and style of lettering shall be uniform in the Shopping Center and shall comply with the requirements set forth in the attached architectural drawings for storefront sign criteria.

5.05. Script lettering shall be permitted on any storefront sign only when it is a part of an Occupant's established trade script signature.

5.06. No sign of any type shall be permitted on canopy roofs or building roofs.

5.07. No storefront sign shall include the product sold by Occupant (for example, shoes or dresses), except when the product sold is part of Occupant's business or trade name.

5.08. No sign or any portion of any sign shall project above the parapet or top of the wall on which it is mounted.

ARTICLE 6. SPECIAL DESIGN REQUIREMENTS--
DEPARTMENT STORES AND FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS

6.01. Department stores and financial institutions located in the Shopping Center shall have the right to affix to the building or space occupied by them their usual signs or logos customarily used for their other stores or bank locations in [geographical region, e.g., Southern California or Northern California or California], as the case may be, whether or not the signs or logos otherwise conform to these criteria. However, the location and size of each sign shall be subject to the prior written approval of [authorized person or entity, e.g., Landlord].

CHAPTER 34E SHOPPING CENTERS: LEASING AND OPERATION
PART IV. FORMS

17-34E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 34E.203

AUTHOR: Benjamin Kaplan Myron Moskovitz Practice Consultants

§ 34E.203 Rules and Regulations for Use of Shopping Center

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a set of rules and regulations for a shopping center. It is presented here in a self-contained format so that it may be attached as an exhibit to, and incorporated by reference in, an REA [see § 34E.200 [2]] or a shopping center lease [see § 34E.201 [2]]. An REA should contain a provision authorizing its parties to adopt rules and regulations governing the use of the shopping center by the parties and other occupants of the shopping center [see § 34E.200 [2], P 4.05]. Similarly, a shopping center lease should require tenants to abide by rules and regulations adopted by the landlord [see § 34E.201 [2], P 8.07]. When the rules and regulations are appended as an exhibit to an REA or a shopping center lease, rather than included in the body of the primary instrument, its provisions should supplement the specific provisions relating to use contained in the REA or lease.

The rules and regulations in this form are fairly representative of a typical shopping center. For the most part, they are intended to minimize automobile and pedestrian traffic flow problems, to promote safety, to prevent nuisances, to maintain an overall desirable appearance and ambience for the shopping center, and to facilitate the transaction of shopping center-related business. Although most of the rules and regulations relate to the use of the common areas in the shopping center, some relate to the individual premises leased by tenants.

Responsibility for enforcement of rules and regulations for a shopping center is usually delegated to the developer in an REA [see § 34E.200[2], P 4.05] and to the landlord in a lease [see § 34E.201 [2], P 8.07]. This responsibility may in turn be delegated to a property management company, and in some instances may be implemented by a private security agency.

[b] Right of Public Access

Even though shopping centers are usually private property, constitutional and other legal restraints place limitations on the right of a shopping center owner to restrict public access to the center [see § 34E.19]. Paragraph 17(b) of this form is intended to provide necessary flexibility with respect to protected activities.

[2] FORM

Rules and Regulations for Use of Shopping Center

RULES AND REGULATIONS
FOR _____
[name of shopping center]

Thoroughfares

1. No person shall use any roadway or walkway located in the Shopping Center except as a means of egress from or ingress to the Commercial Areas and Parking Areas within the Shopping Center or adjacent public streets. Roadways and walkways shall be used in an orderly manner and in accordance with directional or other signs or guides. The speed limit for automobiles on the roadways shall not exceed [number, e.g., 15] miles per hour. Parking or stopping on roadways is prohibited except for the immediate loading or unloading of passengers. Walkways are limited to pedestrian use.

Parking Areas

2. Parking in the Parking Areas of the Shopping Center is limited to those persons using the Shopping Center, and shall be permitted only for the period during which the person is patronizing, conducting business related to, or otherwise using the Shopping Center. All automobiles shall be parked in an orderly manner within the painted lines defining the individual parking spaces. Parking may be limited by length of time in designated portions of the Parking Areas. Only automobiles, vans, and trucks not exceeding three quarters of a ton may park in the Parking Areas.

Employee Parking

3. Every tenant or other occupant of the Shopping Center ("Occupant") or the employee of any Occupant shall park his or her automobile only in the portions of the Common Areas designated as "Employee Parking" on the attached Exhibit _____. The location of employee parking may be changed from time to time by written notice given [by the management company for the Shopping Center or, for a lease, by Landlord].

Delivery Areas

4. Delivery areas, loading docks, and service roads shall be used only for making deliveries or providing other services (including management and security services) to the retail establishments in the Shopping Center. Except for deliveries made when the Shopping Center is not open for business, all deliveries made to retail establishments in the Shopping Center shall be made through the delivery areas located at the rear of the buildings in the Commercial Areas of the Shopping Center and designated for Occupants' use.

Business Hours

5. Except for the Major Occupants, all retail establishments shall be open on the days and during the hours from time to time established by [the management company for the Shopping Center or, for a lease, Landlord]. All Occupants shall illuminate their window displays, exterior signs, and exterior advertising displays during all hours in which the Shopping Center is open for business. "Major Occupant" means any single Occupant of retail space consisting of at least [number, e.g., 50,000] square feet of gross floor area.

Exterior of Buildings [or Premises]

6. The exterior of [any building in the Shopping Center or, for a lease, the Premises], including all entrances, doors, storefront windows, plate glass, and fixtures, shall at all times be maintained in a safe, neat, and clean condition.

Plumbing

7. Plumbing facilities shall not be used for any purpose other than that for which they are constructed.

Removal of Trash and Litter

8. All trash, refuse, and waste materials shall be regularly removed from [each building in the Shopping Center or, for a lease, the Premises] by its Occupant. Until removed, the foregoing materials shall be stored in adequate containers and placed where they cannot be seen by customers of the Shopping Center, in a manner that will not constitute a health or fire hazard or nuisance to any Occupant or user of the Shopping Center. Burning of trash, refuse, or waste materials is strictly prohibited.

Residential Uses

9. No portion of the Shopping Center shall be used for any residential or lodging purposes.

Industrial and Manufacturing Uses

10. No portion of the Shopping Center shall be used for any industrial or manufacturing purpose. Warehousing uses shall not be permitted except as otherwise provided in [a written agreement between an Occupant or Occupants and the Owners of the Shopping Center or an Occupant's lease].

Displays on Common Areas

11. The Common Areas (including the sidewalks and walkways of the Common Areas) may not be used by any Occupant to display, sell, store, or place any merchandise, equipment, or other items. No merchandise or other items may be placed outside the exterior walls of [any building in the Shopping Center or, for a lease, the Premises] for purposes of sale, display, or otherwise.

Promotional Events

12. Notwithstanding any provision in Paragraph 11 to the contrary, portions of the Common Areas may be used for special promotional events, but only if the specific event is first approved in writing by [the Shopping Center management company or, for a lease, Landlord]. If approved, any promotional event shall be conducted only (1) in those portions of the Common Areas, and during those hours, specifically approved for the promotion, and (2) in accordance with any other conditions set forth in [the management company's or, for a lease, Landlord's] approval of the event. Except as provided below, nothing in this Paragraph shall be interpreted to require [the management company or, for a lease, Landlord] to approve any requested promotional event. Any Major Occupant (as defined in Paragraph 5) shall have the right to conduct a special promotional event in the Common Areas located immediately in front of its main [or mall] entrance, provided the following requirements are met: _____[set forth applicable conditions, e.g., the Major Occupant first gives at least _____ (number, e.g., three) months' advance written notice to _____ (the management company or, for a lease, Landlord); the promotional event does not last more than three consecutive days; the promotional event does not unreasonably interfere with pedestrial or vehicular ingress and egress to and from the Shopping Center; and the Major Occupant does not conduct more than two promotional events in any one calendar year].

Advertising

13. No form of advertising medium (including flashing light, searchlight, loudspeaker, phonograph, radio, or television) shall be maintained on the Common Areas. No sound or light may be transmitted beyond the boundaries of [any building in the Shopping Center or, for a lease, the Premises].

Close-Out Promotions

14. No auction, fire, bankruptcy, or going-out-of-business sale shall be conducted in, at, on, or about the Shopping Center or [any building in the Shopping Center or, for a lease, the Premises].

Unlawful Uses

15. Neither the Shopping Center nor [any building in the Shopping Center or, for a lease, the Premises] shall be used for any purpose that violates any law, ordinance, or regulation or that constitutes a nuisance.

Hazardous Substances

16. Hazardous substances shall not be used or stored [in any building in the Shopping Center or, for a lease, on the Premises] or any other portion of the Shopping Center.

Other Unauthorized Activities

17. (a) Subject to Subparagraph (b) below, no person shall do any of the following in or on any part of the Common Areas:

(1) Sell, distribute, or solicit orders for sale or distribution of any merchandise, device, service, periodical, book, pamphlet, or other matter.

(2) Exhibit any sign placard, banner, notice, or other written material.

(3) Distribute any circular, booklet, handbill, placard, or other material.

(4) Solicit membership in any organization, group, or association or a contribution for any purpose.

(5) Parade, patrol, picket, demonstrate, rally, or engage in any conduct that might tend to (i) interfere with or impede the use of any of the Common Areas by any user of the Shopping Center, (ii) create a disturbance, (iii) attract attention, or (iv) harass, annoy, disparage, or be detrimental to the interest of any of the retail establishments within the Shopping Center.

(6) Use any Common Area for any purpose at a time when no retail establishment in the Shopping Center is open for business or employment.

(7) Throw, discard, or deposit any paper, glass, or extraneous matter of any kind, except in designated receptacles, or create litter or hazards of any kind.

(8) Use any sound-making device of any kind or create or produce in any manner noise or sound that is annoying, unpleasant, or distasteful to Occupants or users of the Shopping Center.

(9) Deface, damage, or demolish any sign, light standard, fixture, landscaping material, or other improvement within the Center or the property of any Occupant or user located in the Shopping Center.

(b) Subparagraphs(a)(1) through (5) of this Paragraph 17 shall not apply (and shall not be interpreted or construed) to (1) prevent any access to the Common Areas by any person when the access is required or permitted by law, or (2) prohibit the conduct of any activity that is permitted by law. However, _____ [responsible party, e.g., the management company for the Shopping Center or Landlord) shall have the right to take reasonable measures permitted by law to minimize any disruption or interference with the business of the Shopping Center caused by the access or conduct.

This chapter covers assignments and subleases of leasehold interests. It discusses general rules governing the transferability of leasehold interests, distinctions between assignments and subleases, and rules relating to the transfer of the lessor's and the lessee's interests in a lease. This chapter discusses in detail the rules applicable to the transfer of a residential leasehold, lease provisions requiring the lessor (or landlord) to consent to a particular assignment or sublease by the lessee (or tenant), and rules governing the enforceability of such a requirement. This chapter includes forms for assigning a lease, assigning rents to be received under a lease, assigning a lessor's interest in a lease as security for a loan obligation, and subleases.

For coverage of real property leases and lease provisions, including forms, see Ch. 34B, Residential Leases , and Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases . For coverage of the modification and termination of leases, see Ch. 35B, Modification and Termination of Leases .

DIVISION II: REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 35A ASSIGNMENT AND SUBLEASE OF LEASEHOLD INTERESTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Transfer of Leasehold Interests

18-35A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 35A.10

AUTHOR: Benjamin Kaplan Myron Moskovitz Practice Consultants

§ 35A.10 Transferability of Leasehold

A lease has a dual character: it is both a contract between the lessor and the lessee for the possession and use of the subject property and a conveyance of an estate in the land [Parker v. Superior Court (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 397, 400, 88 Cal. Rptr. 352] . In the absence of a condition or covenant forbidding the transfer of an interest in a lease, a leasehold interest is generally transferable in the same manner as any other interest in property [Chandler v. Hart (1911) 161 Cal. 405, 415, 119 P. 516 ; Morris v. Iden (1913) 23 Cal. App. 388, 395, 138 P. 120 ; see Civ. Code § 1044]. Although a leasehold is an estate in real property [Civ. Code § 761; Callahan v. Martin (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 110, 118, 43 P.2d 788] , it is not "real property" in the strict sense of that term. Rather, it is classified by statute as a "chattel real" [see Civ. Code § 765] and, as such, is a form of personal property [Pacific Southwest Realty Co. v. County of Los Angeles (1991) 1 Cal. 4th 155, 162-163, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 536 ; Callahan v. Martin (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 110, 118, 43 P.2d 788] . Thus, a transfer of an interest in a lease is not subject to the general rules governing the sale of real property but is governed by the rules relating to the transfer of personal property [Potts Drug Co. v. Benedict (1909) 156 Cal. 322, 328, 104 P. 432 ; Weaver v. Superior Court (1949) 93 Cal. App. 2d 729, 734, 209 P.2d 830, 210 P.2d 246] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Importance of Including Express Assignability Language. When drafting a lease for a landlord, if you want to restrict assignability in any way, you must include express language in the lease that does so. Failure to include this language will make the lease freely assignable by the tenant. By Myron Moskovitz.

§ 35A.11 Assignment by Lessee and Sublease Distinguished

[1] Terms of Conveyance Determine Type of Transfer

The terms of a conveyance, rather than its designation as an assignment or a sublease, determine whether a transfer is an assignment or a sublease [Barkhaus v. Producers' Fruit Co. (1923) 192 Cal. 200, 206, 219 P. 435 ; Reed v. South Shore Foods, Inc. (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 705, 710-711, 40 Cal. Rptr. 575] . It is the interest transferred by the lessee that distinguishes an assignment from a sublease [see Williams v. Hinckley (1930) 109 Cal. App. 574, 576, 293 P. 644] . An assignment transfers the whole of a lessee's interest in a lease for the entire unexpired duration of the lease [Hartman Ranch Co. v. Associated Oil Co. (1937) 10 Cal. 2d 232, 242, 73 P.2d 1163 ; Reed v. South Shore Foods, Inc. (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 705, 710, 40 Cal. Rptr. 575] ; when an assignment is made, the lessee retains no reversionary interest or right of reentry [Flynn v. Mikelian (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 305, 310, 25 Cal. Rptr. 138] . A sublease transfers only a portion of the lessee's interest, even if the transfer is for the whole of the unexpired duration of the lease [see Hartman Ranch Co. v. Associated Oil Co. (1937) 10 Cal. 2d 232, 243, 73 P.2d 1163 ; see also Barkhaus v. Producers' Fruit Co. (1923) 192 Cal. 200, 206, 219 P. 435] ; if the lessee reserves the right of reentry for breach of conditions, a sublease arises [see Hartman Ranch Co. v. Associated Oil Co. (1937) 10 Cal. 2d 232, 243, 73 P.2d 1163 ; Reed v. South Shore Foods, Inc. (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 705, 710, 40 Cal. Rptr. 575] .

[2] Consequences of Classification

The classification of a transfer as an assignment or a sublease is important because different legal consequences flow from the classification. When the lessee's interest in a lease is assigned, the assignee comes into privity of estate with the prime lessor and the lessee-assignor does not become the assignee's landlord [Reed v. South Shore Foods, Inc. (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 705, 710, 40 Cal. Rptr. 575] . When a sublease is made, however, the transferor-sublessor becomes the landlord, the transferee-sublessee becomes the subtenant, and there is no privity between the transferee-sublessee and the prime lessor [Reed v. South Shore Foods, Inc. (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 705, 710, 40 Cal. Rptr. 575] . Thus, a sublease may also transfer all of the leased premises (a portion of the lessee's interest) for a part of the unexpired term.

For discussion of "privity" issues, including the distinction between "privity of estate" and "privity of contract" and when a landlord-assignee relationship is in privity, see California Real Estate Law and Practice, ch. 172, Assigning and Subletting Leasehold Interests (Matthew Bender).

PRACTICE TIP:

Assignment Does Not Relieve Tenant of Obligations. An assignment does not relieve the tenant of his or her obligations to the landlord under the lease--unless the tenant obtains a release from the landlord. By Myron Moskovitz.

§ 35A.12 Formal Requirements

[1] Assignment

[a] Statute of Frauds

A lease for a term in excess of one year may be assigned only by operation of law [see [b], below] or by an instrument in writing subscribed by the party to be charged or by the party's agent [see Civ. Code §§ 1091, 1624(a)(3)]. An agent may not sign the document unless the principal first authorizes that act in writing [Civ. Code § 1624(a)(3); Code Civ. Proc. § 1971].

[b] Assignment by Operation of Law

An assignment by operation of law may arise from the landlord's acceptance of a new tenant with the original tenant's consent, even when there has been no express assignment by the original tenant [Maron v. Howard (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 473, 484, 66 Cal. Rptr. 70] . An assignment by operation of law may also result from the lessee's insolvency [see 11 U.S.C. § 365(f)(1), (3)]. For discussion of the effect of bankruptcy, see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases .

PRACTICE TIP:

Effect of Bankruptcy on Assignment. Most provisions of a lease that attempt to effectuate either lease termination or assignment by operation of law as a result of the filing of the Petition in Bankruptcy will not be effective. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[c] Delivery

To be effective, an assignment of a lease must be delivered to the assignee [Green v. Shulman (1924) 66 Cal. App. 284, 286, 225 P. 891] and accepted by the assignee [see Canale v. Copello (1902) 137 Cal. 22, 23-24, 69 P. 698] .

Delivery of the lease is not required [Hess v. Sausser (1928) 206 Cal. 15, 17, 272 P. 1059] .

[2] Sublease

Because a sublease is actually a lease between a present tenant and a third party, it must comply with the requirements governing leases. Thus, if its term exceeds one year, the sublease must conform to the statute of frauds; that is, it must be in writing and signed by the sublessor [Civ. Code §§ 1091, 1624(a)(3); Code Civ. Proc. § 1971; see Fam. Code § 1102 (both spouses must execute instrument leasing community property for longer than one year)]. Further, the sublease must, as a general rule, comply with the requirements governing contracts and conveyances [see Beckett v. City of Paris Dry Goods Co. (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 633, 636, 96 P.2d 122] . For further discussion of the statute of frauds and formal requirements for leases, see Ch. 34B, Residential Leases .

PRACTICE TIP:

Community Property Interests. When a married landlord maintains that the property in which the leased premises are situated is separate property, and even in instances where record title may confirm this, the fact is that there may still be a community property interest held by the other spouse. Therefore, the lessee/assignee should either obtain the recordation of a quitclaim deed from the other spouse, or a waiver of any community property interest, to insure that the lease or assignment is effective. In the absence of a written agreement authorizing recordation, the lessor is under no obligation to consent thereto or present or sign any instrument in recordable form. By Benjamin Kaplan.

§ 35A.13 Recording of Assignment or Sublease

Any instrument affecting the title to or possession of real property may be recorded [Gov. Code § 27280] with the county recorder of the county in which the affected property is situated [Civ. Code § 1169]. An assignment of lease is a recordable instrument, as is a sublease [see Parker v. Superior Court (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 397, 400, 88 Cal. Rptr. 352] . Recordation gives constructive notice of the instrument's contents to subsequent purchasers, mortgagees, and assignees [Civ. Code §§ 1213, 1214; see Central Construction Co. v. Hartman (1935) 7 Cal. App. 2d 703, 708, 47 P.2d 484] .

Before an instrument may be recorded, its execution must be properly acknowledged or proved and the acknowledgment or proof must be certified as prescribed by law [see Gov. Code §§ 27287, 27288]. When the instrument to be recorded is a sublease, a "short form" of lease is generally recorded in place of the longer formal instrument. For a complete discussion of recordation, see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases .

PRACTICE TIP:

Recording the Assignment. If the lease has already been recorded before the assignment, the assignment itself should be recorded. Be sure to have the assignment executed in recordable form. If the lease has not been previously recorded then the "short form," or what is usually referred to as a "Memorandum of Lease," should be recorded [see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases, § 34C.203 (sample Memorandum of Lease)]. The assignment should ideally contain thereon the landlord's consent to assignment as part of the same document, which consent is also subject to the requirements of it being in recordable form. By Benjamin Kaplan.

§ 35A.14 Restrictions on Transfer of Interest in Nonresidential Lease

[1] Validity of Transfer in Absence of Restriction

A tenant under a nonresidential lease has an unrestricted right to sublease, assign, or otherwise transfer that leasehold interest unless the lease restricts or absolutely prohibits transfers [Civ. Code §§ 1995.210, 1995.230; see Civ. Code §§ 1995.010-1995.340; see also Civ. Code § 1044].

[2] Transfer Restrictions Subject to Standard or Condition

A transfer restriction may provide that the transfer is subject to any express standard or condition. For example, the lease may provide that the landlord is entitled to some or all of any consideration the tenant receives from a transferee in excess of the rent under the lease [Civ. Code § 1995.240]. "Consideration," as used in Civ. Code § 1995.240, was intended by the Legislature to refer to appreciated rentals or to the bonus value of a leasehold and not to consideration for the business operated on the leased premises [Ilkhchooyi v. Best (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 395, 407, 411, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 766 (landlord's demand for 75 percent of amount tenant was to receive in sale of his business for covenant not to compete was not authorized by Civ. Code § 1995.240 and was also unconscionable)]. A restriction may also require the landlord's consent to the transfer [see § 35A.15], or provide the landlord with the right to terminate the lease following notice of a proposed transfer [see § 35A.16]. Any ambiguity in a restriction on transfer must be construed in favor of transferability [Civ. Code § 1995.220; see also Karbelnig v. Brothwell (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 333, 341, 53 Cal. Rptr. 335] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Recaputure of Consideration. If the market in commercial leased premises is rapidly increasing, the landlord will have more of an incentive to "recapture" any consideration the tenant receives from a transferee. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[3] Effect of Prohibition of Transfer

A restriction on transfer in a lease applies to all subsequent transfers notwithstanding the lessor's consent to a prior transfer or any waiver for a prior transfer, unless the lease expressly limits the restriction to the original lessee or the lessor expressly states in writing that the consent or waiver applies to a subtenant [Civ. Code § 1995.340]. If the lease absolutely prohibits transfers, the lessor will not be able to continue the lease in effect following the lessee's breach of the lease and abandonment of the leased premises [see Civ. Code §§ 1951.4(a), (b)(1), 1995.230; see also § 35A.18]. However, if an assignment of a lease is made in breach of a covenant against assignment without the lessor's consent, the lessor has the option to declare a forfeiture of the lease [People v. Klopstock (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 897, 901, 151 P.2d 641] . The prohibited assignment, however, is merely voidable, not void, and is valid and binding unless the landlord elects to declare a forfeiture [People v. Klopstock (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 897, 901, 151 P.2d 641] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Issues of Waiver and Estoppel. In a case of breach, the lessor must be very careful not to waive the breach or do anything that would or could leave the lessee or assignee to claim that an estoppel exists that would prevent the lessor from exercising any right to evict or claim a forfeiture. However, because "the law abhors a forfeiture," the lessor's conduct in regard to a breach will be carefully scrutinized by the court. A great deal depends on the existence of provisions in the lease that govern "waiver" or "estoppel." Most commercial leases fail to even include "estoppel" provisions (one is not here discussing "estoppel statements" which are obtained for the benefit of lenders and which are totally unrelated) in this context. Thus, the lessor's conduct should not be such as to admit a claim that the lessee or assignee detrimentally relied on the lessor's conduct or statements.

"Acceptance of rent" in the absence of a "waiver" provision that permits the acceptance of rant without waiving the breach is one of the more common situations in which "waiver" may occur. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[4] Remedies for Tenant's Breach

If a tenant transfers the tenant's interest in a nonresidential lease in violation of a restriction on transfer set forth in the lease, the landlord may be entitled to judicial relief in the form of the remedies provided by law for breach of contract as well as breach of a lease [Civ. Code § 1995.320]. In these circumstances, the remedies for breach of contract include, but are not limited to, the right to recover contract damages caused by the tenant's breach and the right to terminate the lease [Civ. Code § 1995.320(a), (b); see Civ. Code § 1951.2]. Furthermore, an assignee who receives or makes a transfer in violation of a restriction on transfer of a tenant's interest in a nonresidential lease may be jointly and severally liable with the tenant for contract damages [Civ. Code § 1995.330(a)]. For further discussion of breach and available remedies, see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases .

§ 35A.15 Requirement of Landlord's Consent to Transfer in Nonresidential Lease

[1] Giving or Withholding Consent Subject to Standard or Condition

A transfer restriction in a nonresidential lease may require the landlord's consent to the transfer [Civ. Code § 1995.250]. This consent may be made subject to an express standard or condition for giving or withholding consent. For example, the restriction may provide that the landlord's consent may not be unreasonably withheld, or that the consent may be withheld subject to express standards or conditions [Civ. Code § 1995.250].

[2] Implied Standard That Consent Will Not Be Unreasonably Withheld; Tenant's Remedies

For all leases executed on or after September 23, 1983, if the landlord's consent to transfer is required and if the restriction provides no standard for giving or withholding consent, the transfer restriction must be construed to include an implied standard that the landlord's consent may not be unreasonably withheld [Civ. Code §§ 1995.260, 1995.270(b)]. If such a restriction was executed before September 23, 1983, however, the landlord's consent may be unreasonably withheld [Civ. Code § 1995.270(b)]. Whether the consent has been unreasonably withheld in a particular case is a question of fact on which the tenant has the burden of proof [Civ. Code § 1995.260]. The tenant may satisfy the burden of proof by showing that, in response to the tenant's written request for a statement of reasons for withholding consent [see § 35A.224], the landlord has failed, within a reasonable time, to state in writing a reasonable objection to the transfer [Civ. Code § 1995.260]. If the landlord withholds consent unreasonably, the tenant has the remedies provided by law for breach of contract in addition to any remedies for breach of the lease [Civ. Code § 1995.310]. In these circumstances, the remedies for breach of contract include, but are not limited to, the right to recover contract damages caused by the lessor's breach and the right to terminate the lease [Civ. Code § 1995.310].

PRACTICE TIP:

Landlord Should Obtain Qualifications of Assignee. Because the entire area of assignment/subletting is fraught with the possibility of litigation, if such transfer is refused, it is better for the landlord to have very specific indicia of the assignee's qualifications. This is particularly so if the lease provides that the lessee is not, on assignment, released from the lessee's financial responsibilities under the lease. If specific indicia regarding the "credit worthiness," "net worth," or "experience," were not included as specific indicia under the lease, under these circumstances, questions will arise as to the lessor's reasonableness should an assignment be refused. The lessee is in a credible position to argue that since he or she is not "off the hook," the ostensible credit worthiness of the assignee should not be in issue when the standard of consent of "reasonableness" is applied. Although there are valid arguments against that position (e.g., the landlord will still have to deal with a defaulting assignee by eviction or notices, or otherwise attend to the matter with all the disruption and cost and expense), it is better to preclude such issues from even arising. The loss of an advantageous sale may create significant exposure to a lessor who withholds its consent. By Benjamin Kaplan.

PRACTICE TIP: Issues Surrounding Lessor's Consent. When the lease itself provides for time periods for the lessor to exercise his or her right to consent, those time periods should be strictly complied with. Performance by the lessor in advance of the deadline dates is preferred. When the lease does not provide for deadline dates for the lessor to exercise his or her right of consent, the lessor should act speedily and expeditiously to inform the lessee of its position.

It is appropriate to include in the requirement to obtain the lessor's consent that the lessor must be presented with a fully executed "Purchase and Sale Agreement" of the business executed by the prospective assignee subject to the obtaining of the lessor's consent. Therefore, the lessor's consent will be predicated on the executed agreement and not some "pig in the poke" in which the terms of the assignment may not be fully disclosed to lessor, who may have rights to any bonus being paid by the assignee. In drafting the provisions of the lease one must be careful to include specific language which would prohibit the lessee from characterizing as "goodwill" or some other category, what is in fact the bonus value of the lease itself. By Benjamin Kaplan.

§ 35A.16 Recapture Clause in Nonresidential Lease

The statutes governing transfer restrictions permit the use of a recapture clause that gives the landlord the right to do all of the following [Carma Developers (Cal.), Inc. v. Marathon Development California, Inc. (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 342, 351-352, 371, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467, 826 P.2d 710 ; see Civ. Code §§ 1995.010-1995.340]:

- Terminate the lease following the receipt of a notice of the tenant's intention to sublet the premises or to assign its interests under the lease;

- Enter into a new lease covering the premises with the tenant's intended assignee or sublessee (or with any other person); and

- Keep all profits, if any, resulting from the termination and reletting.

A recapture clause containing the above elements was one of the types of transfer restrictions contemplated by the Legislature when it enacted the assignment and subletting statutes [Carma Developers (Cal.), Inc. v. Marathon Development California, Inc. (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 342, 369-371, 826 P.2d 710] . A landlord's exercise of the right of termination granted in such a clause is not a breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing [Carma Developers (Cal.), Inc. v. Marathon Development California, Inc. (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 342, 376, 826 P.2d 710] .

For further discussion of recapture clauses and an illustrative recapture provision, see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases .

§ 35A.17 Transfer of Interest in Residential Lease

Unlike nonresidential leases, residential leases are not subject to specific statutory provisions governing subletting and assignment [see § 35A.14]. However, the statutes appear to implicitly recognize the right of a residential landlord to prohibit subletting and assignment. For example, Civ. Code § 1951.4 permits a lessor of real property to continue to recover rent after the lessee has breached or abandoned the premises if the lease permits (or does not prohibit) assignment or subletting and certain other conditions are satisfied [see Civ. Code § 1951.4(b)(1); see also § 35A.18]. Similarly, Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(4) provides that a tenant is guilty of unlawful detainer if the tenant continues in possession after subleasing, assigning, or committing waste contrary to covenants of the lease and after being served with a three-day notice demanding surrender of possession.

Until reported decisions or statutes address the issue of the transferability of residential leases, counsel may wish to refer to commercial lease cases for guidance in this area. For discussion of commercial cases, see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases . For additional coverage of the transferability of interests in residential leases, see Ch. 34B, Residential Leases .

PRACTICE TIP:

Make Sure Provision Against Assignment or Subletting Is in Writing. In the absence of an agreement not to assign or sublet, the lessee may do so without restriction. This agreement need not be in writing unless otherwise subject to the Statute of Frauds. However, because of difficulties of proof in the absence of any writing (it may be contained in a document other than a lease or rental agreement so long as signed "by the party to be charged"), establishing such an oral term would be difficult to prove. Certain local eviction control jurisdictions have "required" that provisions against assignment or subleasing be in writing although they have not defined what constitutes a writing. It is highly questionable whether a local jurisdiction can require a writing if such is not required by state law as that entire area of law would appear to be preempted. By Benjamin Kaplan.

§ 35A.18 Continuation of Transferable Lease Following Tenant's Breach

A lessor of real property has the right to continue to collect rent and otherwise continue the lease in effect following the tenant's breach of the lease and abandonment of the leased premises if the lease permitting subletting or assignment provides for this remedy and the landlord does not terminate the lessee's right of possession [Civ. Code § 1951.4(a), (b)]. For further discussion of this remedy, see Ch. 34B, Residential Leases . If the statutory prerequisites to this remedy are not satisfied, the lease terminates after the lessee's abandonment and breach, and the lessor may recover statutory damages from the lessee [*see Civ. § 35A.30 Assignment by Lessee

[1] Contractual Obligations of Assignor and Assignee

[a] Privity of Estate

The assignment of a lessee's interest in a lease terminates the privity of estate between the prime lessor and the lessee-assignor and all obligations arising out of that privity [see Flynn v. Mikelian (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 305, 310, 25 Cal. Rptr. 138 ; Gilman v. Nemetz (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 81, 86, 21 Cal. Rptr. 317 ; but see [b], below (assignor may still have liability because of privity of contract)]. After an assignment has been made, the assignee and the lessor are in privity of estate, and the assignee is liable for all covenants running with the land [Flynn v. Mikelian (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 305, 310, 25 Cal. Rptr. 138 ; see Civ. Code §§ 1460-1471 (covenants running with land)]. Although these covenants include the covenant to pay rent [Civ. Code § 1463; see Ellingson v. Walsh, O'Connor & Barneson (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 673, 676, 104 P.2d 507] , the assignee is liable for rent only so long as the assignee remains in possession of the property; no one merely by reason of having acquired an estate subject to a covenant running with the land is liable for a breach of the covenant before that person acquired the estate, or after that person has parted with or ceased to enjoy its benefits [Civ. Code § 1466; see Tyler v. Wilson (1943) 58 Cal. App. 2d 583, 586, 137 P.2d 33] . Consequently, the assignee who does not assume the lease's contractual obligations remains liable on covenants running with the land only during the period of the assignee's occupancy [Civ. Code § 1466], and may terminate that liability by assignment to someone else [Johnson v. Sherman (1860) 15 Cal. 287, 290] or by reassignment to the lessee [Dengler v. Michelssen (1888) 76 Cal. 125, 127, 18 P. 138] . For further discussion of covenants running with the land, see California Real Estate Law and Practice, ch. 172, Assignment and Subletting Leasehold Interests (Matthew Bender).

[b] Privity of Contract

[i] Liability of Assignor

The assignment of the lessee's interest in the lease does not in itself terminate the lessee's contractual obligations under the lease. In the absence of some special agreement on the lessor's part, the lessee-assignor remains liable for rent during the full term of the lease [Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 602, 328 P.2d 953 ; Munzinger v. Caffrey (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 180, 185-186, 121 P.2d 13] . Neither the lessor's consent to the assignment nor the assignee's express assumption of the contractual obligations of the lease relieve the lessor-assignor from that liability [Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 602, 328 P.2d 953] . Consequently, the lessee becomes a surety for the assignee's obligation to pay the rent [Samuels v. Ottinger (1915) 169 Cal. 209, 212, 146 P. 638] and remains a primary obligor under the lessee's own express contract to pay rent [Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 602, 328 P.2d 953] . However, the lessee can be released from all further liability on the lease if the lease so provides [see Beckjord v. Slusher (1937) 22 Cal. App. 2d 559, 566-567, 71 P.2d 820 ; see also O'Donnell v. Weintraub (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 352, 355-357, 67 Cal. Rptr. 274] , or the parties effect a novation [see Civ. Code §§ 1530-1533]. The mere assignment of a lease does not operate as a novation absent some evidence of an agreement or contract on the lessor's part to relieve the lessee from further liability on the lease [see Wellman v. Conroy (1920) 50 Cal. App. 141, 143, 194 P. 728 (involving lease of personal property)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Effect of Modification. Although the assignor remains liable as a surety if the assignee fails to pay the rent, the assignor is probably relieved from liability if the landlord and assignee agree to any significant modification of the lease. The landlord should take this into account before agreeing to any modification. By Myron Moskovitz.

[ii] Liability of Assignee

If the assignee does not assume the obligations of the lease, there is no privity of contract between the assignee and the lessor [Farber v. Greenberg (1929) 98 Cal. App. 675, 685, 277 P. 534] , and the assignee is not ordinarily bound by the lease's contractual obligations [Ellingson v. Walsh, O'Connor & Barneson (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 673, 676, 104 P.2d 507] .

If the assignee expressly assumes the obligations of the lease, the assignment is a contract for the lessor's benefit, or the lessor's subsequent grantee. In that case, the lessor (or subsequent grantee) may enforce the lease's covenants against the assignee [Hartman Ranch Co. v. Associated Oil Co. (1937) 10 Cal. 2d 232, 244-245, 73 P.2d 1163 ; Rosenkranz v. Pellin (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 650, 653, 222 P.2d 249] . An assuming assignee will not be relieved of liability merely by assigning the lease to another [Lopizich v. Salter (1920) 45 Cal. App. 446, 449, 187 P. 1075] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Responsibilities of Lessee. A lessor may not create obligations in the lessee/assignor larger than those imposed by the existing lease. Thus, if the lessor extends the lease's initial term, or the lease term that is then in effect, or provides an additional option term, such will not be, in the absence of the lessor's written consent, the contractual responsibility of the lessee. The execution of other agreements, even contemporaneously made with the assignment and consent of these agreements, may effect a novation when the parties to the agreement are the lessor and the assignee. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[2] Landlord's Remedies Against Lessee's Assignees

Any remedy that a lessor may have against the lessee for the breach of any agreement in the lease, or to recover possession of the property, may be pursued against the lessee's assignee for any cause of action occurring while the assignment is in effect, except when the assignment is made as security for a loan and is not accompanied by possession of the premises [Civ. Code § 822]. Notwithstanding this rule, however, an assignee who has not assumed a contractual obligation under a lease is liable only for the obligations that arise out of privity of estate and not those that arise out of privity of contract. Such an assignee is thus bound to perform only those covenants running with the land [see Lutton v. Rau (1918) 37 Cal. App. 429, 430, 173 P. 1111 ; see also Civ. Code §§ 1460-1471 (covenants running with land)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Make Sure Communications and Notices Are Sent to Lessee/Assignor. Careful consideration should be given to insuring that appropriate communications and notices to the assignee are also conveyed or served on the lessee/assignor. Failure to so notify the assignor or serve the assignor with notices may be fatal if and when the lessor acts against the lessee/assignor. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[3] Assignee's Remedies Against Landlord

Any remedy a lessee may have against a lessor for breach of any agreement in the lease may also be pursued by any assignee of the lessee, except for breach of covenants against encumbrances or relating to the title or possession of the premises [Civ. Code § 823]. Similarly, any remedy that the lessee may have against the assignees of the lessor may also be pursued by the assignees of the lessee, with the exceptions noted [Civ. Code § 823].

§ 35A.31 Assignment by Lessor

[1] Assignment of Rents and Other Rights

A lessor may assign rents due or to become due under existing leases [Silverstein v. Oakland Title Ins. Etc. Co. (1932) 122 Cal. App. 73, 78, 9 P.2d 846] . Accrued rents are a chose in action, which may be assigned orally [Hibernia Sav. & Loan Soc. v. Belcher (1935) 4 Cal. 2d 268, 275, 48 P.2d 681] . A right of reentry, or of repossession for breach of condition subsequent, may also be transferred [Civ. Code § 1046].

A grant of rents, of a reversion, or of a remainder is good and effectual without attornments of the tenants [Civ. Code § 1111]. An "attornment" is an act by which a lessee agrees to become the tenant of (that is, acknowledges obligations to) a stranger who has acquired the fee in the leased land, the right to the rents from that land, or similar rights [see Black's Law Dictionary (6th ed. 1990), p. 130]. However, Civ. Code § 1111 also provides that "no tenant who, before notice of the grant, shall have paid rent to the grantor, must suffer any damage" from the grant.

[2] Lessor's Assignment of Rents in Connection With Loan Secured by Property

[a] Written Assignment Is Effective to Create Present Security Interest

A written assignment of interest in leases, rents, issues, or profits of real property made in connection with a loan secured by real property is, on execution and delivery by the assignor, effective to create a present security interest in existing and future leases, rents, issues, or profits of that real property. This is true irrespective of whether the assignment is denoted as absolute, absolute conditioned on default, additional security for an obligation, or otherwise [Civ. Code § 2938(a); see Civ. Code § 2938(i) (Civ. Code § 2938 applies to contracts entered into on or after January 1, 1997, and former Civ. Code §§ 2938 and 2938.1, as they were in effect before January 1, 1997, govern contracts entered into before January 1, 1997, and govern actions and proceedings initiated on the basis of these contracts)].

[b] Consequences of Recording Assignment

The assignment may be recorded [Civ. Code § 2938(b)]. This recording has two statutory consequences [Civ. Code § 2938(b)]:

- First, the assignment will be deemed to give constructive notice of the assignment's content and effect; and

- Second, the interest granted by the assignment will be deemed perfected as of the date of recordation (and this remains true notwithstanding a provision of the assignment or a provision of law that would otherwise preclude or defer enforcement of the rights granted the assignee under the assignment until the occurrence of a subsequent event, including the assignor's subsequent default, or the assignee's obtaining possession of the real property or the appointment of a receiver).

[c] Enforcement of Assignment

If the assignor under the obligation secured by the assignment defaults, the assignee is entitled to enforce the assignment by a number of alternative methods prescribed by statute, such as the appointment of a receiver [see Civ. Code § 2938(c)].

[3] Remedies of Lessor's Transferee

A person to whom real property is transferred on which rent has been reserved, or to whom any such rent is transferred, is entitled to the same remedies for recovery of rent, for nonperformance of any of the terms of the lease, or for any waste or cause of forfeiture, as the grantor might have had [Civ. Code § 821].

The lessor's sale of real property during the unexpired term of a lease does not of itself abrogate the lease; usually, all the original lessor's rights are granted to the reversion's grantee, with the grantee becoming the landlord by operation of law and the tenant becoming a tenant of the reversion's grantee [see Rosenkranz v. Pellin (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 650, 652, 222 P.2d 249] . However, if in the purchase and sale agreement there is an express reservation by the lessor of the landlord's rights under the lease, the grantee does not become the landlord by operation of law [Commonwealth Memorial, Inc. v. Telophase Society of America (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 867, 871, 134 Cal. Rptr. 58] .

[4] Lessee's Remedies Against Lessor's Transferee

Whatever remedies a lessee of any real property may have against the immediate lessor for the breach of any agreement in the lease, the lessee may have against the assigns of the lessor, except on covenants against encumbrances or relating to the title or possession of the premises [Civ. Code 823]. The assigns of the lessee also have those remedies against the lessor and the lessor's assigns [Civ. Code § 823].

§ 35A.40 Introduction to Subleases

[1] Definition of Sublease

A sublease is a transfer of a portion of a lessee's interest in a lease [Reed v. South Shore Foods, Inc. (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 705, 710, 40 Cal. Rptr. 575] . For example, the sublessor may do any of the following [see Barkhaus v. Producers' Fruit Co. (1923) 192 Cal. 200, 206, 219 P. 435] :

- Transfer only a portion of the premises covered by the master lease;
- Provide for a shorter term than the one applicable to the master lease;
- Create new conditions or new causes of forfeiture; or
- Reserve a reversionary interest such as a right of reentry for a breach of conditions.

[2] Nature of Relationship Under Sublease

Under a sublease, the original lessee becomes a sublessor and the transferee becomes a sublessee [Reed v. South Shore Foods, Inc. (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 705, 710, 40 Cal. Rptr. 575] . A landlord-tenant relationship exists between these parties [see Reed v. South Shore Foods, Inc. (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 705, 710, 40 Cal. Rptr. 575] .

§ 35A.41 Relationship Between Original Lessor and Parties to Sublease

[1] Nature of Relationship

A lease is both a conveyance of an estate for years and a contract between the landlord and the tenant. Consequently, the original lease creates dual obligations: contractual obligations from the terms of the lease (privity of contract) and legal obligations from the creation of the tenancy (privity of estate) [see Ellingson v. Walsh, O'Connor & Barneson (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 673, 675, 104 P.2d 507] . A sublease terminates the privity of estate between the original lessor and the sublessor, but not the privity of contract [see Munzinger v. Caffrey (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 180, 185-186, 121 P.2d 13] . Consequently, the sublessor remains obligated to the original lessor under the terms of the master lease [Barkhaus v. Producers' Fruit Co. (1923) 192 Cal. 200, 207, 219 P. 435] , and is responsible for any violations by the sublessee of the covenants contained in the master lease [Smith v. United Crude Oil Co. (1919) 179 Cal. 570, 573, 178 P. 141] . A sublessee's breach of the covenants of the master lease could result in a forfeiture of the master lease [Hartman Ranch Co. v. Associated Oil Co. (1937) 10 Cal. 2d 232, 262, 73 P.2d 1163 ; see McNeece v. Wood (1928) 204 Cal. 280, 283-285, 267 P. 877 (no forfeiture when sublessor was not a participant in sublessee's nonconforming use and had taken steps to abate it)].

[2] Potential Liability of Lessor and Subtenant

As a general rule, there is no privity of contract or estate between the original lessor and the sublessee [Reed v. South Shore Foods, Inc. (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 705, 710, 40 Cal. Rptr. 575 ; but see Melchor Investment Co. v. Rolm Systems (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 587, 592-593, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 343 (sublessee who remains occupant of property is bound to arbitrate with lessor by privity of estate)], and the sublessee is not liable to the original lessor for breach of the covenants in the master lease or the sublease [Hartman Ranch Co. v. Associated Oil Co. (1937) 10 Cal. 2d 232, 242, 73 P.2d 1163 ; Webb v. Jones (1927) 88 Cal. App. 20, 28, 263 P. 538] . However, if the sublessee expressly assumes the contractual obligations of the master lease, a privity of contract exists between the original lessor and the sublessee [Hartman Ranch Co. v. Associated Oil Co. (1937) 10 Cal. 2d 232, 244-245, 73 P.2d 1163 ; see Johnson v. Couch (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 687, 691-692, 11 Cal. Rptr. 645 (merely stating that sublease is subject to all terms and conditions of master lease does not effect assumption)]. In that case, the original lessor, as a third-party beneficiary of the assumption agreement, has a direct right of action against the sublessee [Hartman Ranch Co. v. Associated Oil Co. (1937) 10 Cal. 2d 232, 244-246, 73 P.2d 1163 ; see Bennett v. Leatherby (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 449, 452, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 340] .

Furthermore, if the original lessor has expressly agreed to a sublease, the sublessee is a third-party beneficiary to the implied covenant of quiet enjoyment in the master lease and has the right to sue the landlord directly for breach of that covenant [Marchese v. Standard Realty & Dev. Co. (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 142, 147, 141 Cal. Rptr. 370] . The covenant of quiet enjoyment requires the landlord to provide the tenant with the quiet possession of the premises during the lease's term [see Civ. Code § 1927].

§ 35A.42 Relationship Between Sublessor and Sublessee

[1] Sublessor's Rights

A landlord-tenant relationship exists between a sublessor and a sublessee [see Reed v. South Shore Foods, Inc. (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 705, 710, 40 Cal. Rptr. 575] . Therefore, all covenants in the sublease that inure to the benefit of the original tenant as sublessor (for example, a covenant to pay rent) are enforceable against the sublessee [Cox v. Hollywood Film Enterprises, Inc. (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 320, 323, 240 P.2d 713] . If the sublessee breaches the sublease, the sublessor may use unlawful detainer proceedings to obtain possession of the premises [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161; Reed v. South Shore Foods, Inc. (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 705, 711, 40 Cal. Rptr. 575] , or rely on the other remedies available to any landlord. For further discussion of these remedies, see California Real Estate Law and Practice, ch. 210, Unlawful Detainer , and ch. 211, Contractual Remedies (Matthew Bender).

[2] Sublessee's Rights

The sublessor is liable (1) in damages for any breach of a covenant in the sublease inuring to the sublessee's benefit [Gilman v. Nemetz (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 81, 90-92, 21 Cal. Rptr. 317] and (2) for any damages resulting from any act or omission of the sublessor that results in the termination by the original lessor of the master lease [Dimas v. Irvine (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 78, 80, 334 P.2d 82] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Liability of Sublessor on Breach by Landlord. Suppose the original landlord breaches a provision of the lease, damaging the sublessee. Is the sublessor liable to the sublessee? One case found that a tenant can be held liable to his or her subtenant for damages caused by the original landlord's interference with the subtenant's possession, if the sublessor requested the interference [Riechhold v. Sommarstrom Invest. Co. (1927) 83 Cal. App. 173, 177-178, 256 P. 592] . By Myron Moskovitz and Publisher's Editorial Staff.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Sublease

18-35A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 35A.43

AUTHOR: Benjamin Kaplan Myron Moskovitz Practice Consultants

§ 35A.43 Applicability of Master Lease Provisions

The provisions of a sublease are subordinate to the provisions of the master lease [Julian v. Schwartz (1936) 16 Cal. App. 2d 310, 331, 60 P.2d 887 ; Johnson v. Couch (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 687, 691, 11 Cal. Rptr. 645 ; see § 35A.210 [2], P 7]. Although there is no privity of contract between an original lessor and a sublessee, the sublessee is charged with notice of the master lease's existence, and is bound by its terms and conditions [Pedro v. Potter (1926) 197 Cal. 751, 760, 242 P. 926 ; Scott v. Mullins (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 51, 56, 27 Cal. Rptr. 269] . A sublease that expressly provides that it is subject to the master lease's terms and conditions merely states the rule set forth above, and does not create a contractual relation between the original lessor and sublessee [Johnson v. Couch (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 687, 691, 11 Cal. Rptr. 645] . Consequently, any provisions in the master lease that are found to have been included for the personal benefit of the original tenant-sublessor will not be implied in the sublease [Pedro v. Potter (1926) 197 Cal. 751, 758-759, 242 P. 926 ; see, e.g., Reed v. South Shore Foods, Inc. (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 705, 712-713, 40 Cal. Rptr. 575 (master lease provision for 30-day grace period for correcting breaches did not carry over to sublessee despite "subject to" clause in sublease)]. Instead, these types of provisions must be specifically set out in the sublease if they are to apply to the sublease transaction [Pedro v. Potter (1926) 197 Cal. 751, 758-759, 242 P. 926] .

§ 35A.44 Termination of Sublessee's Rights

[1] Expiration of Master Lease's Term

A sublease may not extend beyond the master lease's term [Hart v. Fuller (1920) 45 Cal. App. 618, 620, 188 P. 611] , even if the sublease provides for a longer term [see Georgeous v. Lewis (1912) 20 Cal. App. 255, 259, 128 P. 768] . The expiration of the master lease's term terminates the sublessee's right to possession [Buck v. Morrossis (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 461, 466, 250 P.2d 270 ; see Civ. Code § 1108].

[2] Forfeiture

If the original lessor declares a forfeiture of the master lease based on the sublessor's nonperformance of contractual obligations, the original lessor may also terminate the sublease because the sublessee holds the premises subject to performing the original lease's terms and conditions [Scott v. Mullins (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 51, 55, 27 Cal. Rptr. 269] . Consequently, following such a forfeiture, the landlord is entitled to possession as against the sublessee [Scott v. Mullins (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 51, 55, 27 Cal. Rptr. 269] . Of course, the original lessor may enter into a nondisturbance agreement or otherwise agree not to terminate subleases following a default by the sublessor [see § 35A.210[1][b]].

PRACTICE TIP:
Sublessee's Right to Cure. Note, however, that a landlord must give a sublessee the opportunity to cure a sublessor's breach, for example, to pay the rent. The unlawful detainer statutes and cases require this as a precondition to evicting a sublessee. By Myron Moskovitz.

[3] Surrender of Sublease

A sublease, like a lease, may be surrendered voluntarily or by operation of law. A surrender is a yielding up of an estate for life or years to the reversioner or remainderman [Scott v. Mullins (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 51, 55, 27 Cal. Rptr.

269] . A surrender yields the estate as distinguished from the possession, and can be accomplished either by express written consent of the parties or by operation of law when the parties' actions imply their consent [Scott v. Mullins (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 51, 55, 27 Cal. Rptr. 269] . For example, acceptance of a new sublease by the sublessee is an effective surrender by operation of law of the premises demised in the original sublease [Scott v. Mullins (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 51, 55, 27 Cal. Rptr. 269 ; see Ch. 35B, Modification and Termination of Leases].

§ 35A.50 Transfer or Return of Security for Residential Lease

[1] Statutory Procedure, Generally

When a landlord's interest in leased residential premises terminates for any reason, the landlord will be relieved of further liability with respect to the security if, within a reasonable time after the termination, the landlord or the landlord's agent follows either of the procedures described in [2] or [3], below [see Civ. Code § 1950.5(h)].

[2] Transfer of Deposit

The landlord may be relieved of further liability with respect to the security deposit if the portion of the security deposit remaining after any lawful deductions [see Civ. Code § 1950.5(b), (e); see also § 35A.52[1]] is transferred to the landlord's successor in interest, and thereafter the tenant is notified by personal delivery or first-class mail (postage prepaid) of the transfer, of any claims made against the security, of the amount of the security deposited, and of the names, addresses, and telephone numbers of the successors in interest. If the notice is personally served, the tenant must acknowledge receiving the notice and sign the landlord's copy of the notice [Civ. Code § 1950.5(h)(1)].

For a sample notice of the transfer of a security deposit, see § 35A.223[2].

PRACTICE TIP:

Use of Escrows When Transferring Security Deposits. It is a fairly common occurrence for an unsophisticated lessor/seller to believe that the transfer of security deposits in escrow is enough to comply with the provisions of Civ. Code § 1950.5(h), absent other requirements contained therein. In fact, an escrow only does what it is told to do, and you should be careful to advise your lessor/seller to comply with the appropriate provisions to escape future liability. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[3] Return of Deposit

The landlord may be relieved of further liability with respect to the security deposit if the portion of the security remaining after any lawful deductions is returned to the tenant, together with the required written accounting [Civ. Code § 1950.5(h)(2); see Civ. Code § 1950.5(b), (e) (lawful deductions), (g) (written accounting)].

§ 35A.51 Transfer of Payment or Deposit Securing Performance of Nonresidential Lease

On termination of the landlord's interest in nonresidential property, the landlord or the landlord's agent must transfer or return the money, as described below, within a reasonable time to be relieved of further liability with regard to the payment or deposit [see Civ. Code § 1950.7]. The landlord will be relieved of further liability with regard to the payment or deposit if the money, less lawful deductions [see Civ. Code § 1950.7(c)], is transferred to the landlord's successor in interest, and thereafter the tenant is notified by personal delivery or certified mail of the transfer, of any claims made against the payment or deposit, and of the transferee's name and address [Civ. Code § 1950.7(d)(1)]. If the notice is personally delivered, the tenant must acknowledge receiving the notice and sign the landlord's copy of the notice [Civ. Code § 1950.7(d)(1)]. Alternatively, the landlord will be relieved of further liability if the portion of the payment or deposit remaining after making any lawful deductions is returned to the tenant [Civ. Code § 1950.7(d)(2)].

§ 35A.52 Amounts Deductible From Security

[1] Residential Leases

A residential real property landlord may deduct from the security deposit only those amounts that are reasonably necessary to do any of the following [Civ. Code § 1950.5(b), (e)]:

- Compensate the landlord for the tenant's default in the payment of rent;
- Repair damages to the premises (exclusive of ordinary wear and tear) caused by the tenant or the tenant's guest or licensee;
- Clean the premises on termination of the tenancy (for tenancies as to which the tenant's right to occupy begins after January 1, 2003, the security deposit may be used for cleaning of the premises "necessary to return the unit to the same level of cleanliness it was in at the inception of the tenancy"); or
- Remedy future defaults by the tenant in any obligation under the lease to restore, replace, or return personal property or appurtenances, exclusive of ordinary wear and tear, if the lease authorizes the security deposit's application in this manner.

The landlord may not assert a claim against the tenant or the security for damages to the premises or any defective conditions that existed before the tenancy, for ordinary wear and tear or its effects (whether the wear and tear existed before the tenancy or occurred during the tenancy), or for the cumulative effects of ordinary wear and tear occurring during any one or more tenancies [Civ. Code § 1950.5(e)].

PRACTICE TIP:

"Cleaning Deposits" vs. "Security Deposits." Often one sees a lease or rental agreement that refers to one payment made for a "Cleaning Deposit" and another payment made for a "Security Deposit." Both are "security deposits" under the law; however, that portion of the "security deposits" which is a "Cleaning Deposit" may limit the lessor to its use only for that limited purpose, i.e. "cleaning" and not "to remedy a default in rent." The best practice is to denominate everything as a "security deposit" and simply state the statutory and contractual agreement to apply the security deposit. By Benjamin Kaplan.

PRACTICE TIP: Pay Attention to Local Ordinances. Warning: Many jurisdictions have local ordinances regarding the segregation of security deposits and the payment of interest thereon, even in respect to non-rent controlled premises. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[2] Nonresidential Lease

A nonresidential real property landlord may claim only those amounts from the security payment or deposit that are reasonably necessary to remedy tenant defaults in the payment of rent, to repair damages to the premises caused by the tenant, or to clean the premises on termination of the tenancy, if the payment or deposit is made for any or all of those specific purposes [Civ. Code § 1950.7(c)].

§ 35A.53 Rights of Successor in Interest to Security

On receiving any portion of the security payments or deposits, the landlord's successor in interest has all of the rights and obligations of a landlord holding the security with regard to the security [Civ. Code §§ 1950.5(k) (residential security), 1950.7(e) (nonresidential security)]. Before voluntarily transferring any interest in the premises, a landlord must deliver to the successor in interest a written statement regarding the status of the security deposits [*see Civ. § 35A.54 Liability of Successor in Interest--Effect of Noncompliance

If the requirements of Civ. Code § 1950.5(h) are not complied with [see § 35A.50], the landlord's successors in interest are jointly and severally liable with the landlord for repayment of the security or that portion of the security to which the tenant is entitled. A landlord's successor in interest may not require the tenant to post any security to replace that amount not transferred to the tenant or his or her successors in interest unless and until the landlord's successor in interest first makes restitution of the initial security or provides the tenant with an accounting [Civ. Code § 1950.5(j)].

The provision set forth above, however, does not preclude a successor in interest from recovering from the tenant compensatory damages that are in excess of the security received from the landlord previously paid by the tenant to the landlord. Nonetheless, if, on inquiry and reasonable investigation, a landlord's successor in interest has a good faith belief that the lawfully remaining security deposit is transferred to him or her or returned to the tenant, the successor in interest is not liable for damages or for any security not transferred [Civ. Code § 1950.5(j); see Civ. Code § 1950.5(h)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Liability of Buyers. Civ. Code § 1950.5(j) and (k) implies that a buyer has no obligation to a tenant for the return of a security deposit given earlier to a seller unless the buyer actually receives the deposit. Thus, a buyer should check what security deposits are held by the seller and make sure these are transferred to the buyer. Even though buyers might not be liable to tenants if they do not get the security deposits from the sellers, these buyers will face some very unhappy tenants if they seek new security deposits and/or fail to return deposits to tenants who already paid them to a prior landlord. By Myron Moskovitz.

PRACTICE TIP:

Independent Confirmation of Facts Is Good Practice. "Facts" do not mean what your client tells you they mean. Facts are only "facts" if they are independently determined to exist separate and apart from any representations made to you. Thus, if a client states that a particular corporation (wholly owned by the client) is "in good standing" that statement is not a fact until you have confirmed it by access to the Secretary of States' website and thereafter obtained a certified Statement of Good Standing from the Secretary of State. The same type of ascertaining of "facts" pertains to any filing requirement, recordation requirement (for example, "Fictitious Business Name Statement"), licensing requirement, issuing requirement, reporting requirement, and the like. In all instances you as the attorney must come from Missouri, "The Show Me State."

In addition, access to public records, such as the Grantor/Grantee index, should occur in all instances involving real property interests. The number of situations in which an individual lessor represents that he/she is the owner, when in fact the property had been transferred to a trust of which that person is the Trustee (and other similar situations), is quite amazing. As an attorney for the prospective lessee or assignee you would want to make sure that the lessor is in fact of record title to the property. Do not rely on any oral statement or representation of your client as it is not worth the paper it is written on. Moreover, having the client sign a document that you are relying on the client's representation may provide you with an argument in the future that you did not do the work because you were informed to rely on the representations, but it may not cause you to escape your liability for any act or omission. By Benjamin Kaplan.

NOTE:
For discussion of a tenant's right to assign, sublease, or otherwise transfer the tenant's interest in a nonresidential lease, see §§ 35A.14-35A.16 [see Civ. Code §§ 1995.010-1995.340]. For discussion of the transferability of interests in residential leases, see § 35A.17 and Ch. 34B, Residential Leases **.

a. If lessor's consent to assignment of lease is required, ascertain limitation, if any, on lessor's right to refuse.

b. Determine other conditions, if any, imposed on right to assign.

2. Review lease's purpose to ascertain that proposed use of premises is not restricted or prohibited by lease's terms, provisions in other recorded leases or grants of lessor, statutes, administrative regulations, or ordinances.

3. Ascertain existence of restrictions on use of property, and restrictions, if any, on use of property retained by lessor.

4. Review duties of parties to lease, including duty to repair, restore, and comply with laws.

5. Ascertain whether lease's terms, covenants, and conditions bind heirs, administrators, executors, successors, and assigns of parties.

6. Ascertain existence of and review any provisions concerning security deposit.

7. Ascertain existence of and review any provisions concerning subordination.

8. Review property description.

9. Review lease's term, including:

a. Balance remaining.

b. Effect of holding over.

c. Existence of options to renew or extend.

10. Determine total amount of rent reserved, remaining, and required to be paid by assignor-lessee to or on behalf of lessor.

PRACTICE TIP:

Be Sure to Obtain Only Fully Executed Documents. A document which does not clearly bear all the signatures of the parties is not to be relied on. It does not matter that the client swears on a stack of bibles that the particular lease was the one that he/she executed. If you do not have a fully executed document then one should be obtained. At times the obtaining of such a document from the other party or its agent may present "sticky" problems, including whether or not you wish those persons to know that you do not have a fully executed copy. How that is handled is a matter of judgment, but the bottom line is that you cannot rely on any unexecuted document. Also, if the signatures appear by the same persons under different names and are not made in the form for Attorneys in Fact, then other issues are raised as well. In any instance when someone has signed as an Attorney in Fact, you need to obtain the executed and/or recorded Attorney in Fact. The instances are legion in which I have found that Attorneys at Law have permitted clients to sign as "Attorneys in Fact" when no such written authority for same ever existed. By Benjamin Kaplan.

§ 35A.111 Additional Determinations Before Assignment by Lessee

1. Determine effect of any modifications to lease on proposed transfer.

2. Verify that lease has not been terminated due to:

    a. Expiration of lease term.

    b. Unremedied default by lessor or lessee.

    c. Surrender of premises.

    d. Abandonment of lease.

    e. Operation of law.

    f. Other.

3. Determine effect of any liens, encumbrances, easements, or other rights against leased premises, including subordination of lease to another encumbrance on leased property; if all or some of these rights can or should be removed, determine by whom, how, and when.

4. If any subleases bind or inure to benefit of assignee, determine whether:

    a. Any sublessee has assumed to discharge any of lessee's obligation under lease; if so, which sublessee and which obligations.

b. Any sublessee is in default under terms of sublease; if so, what effect default will have on assignment.

5. Determine effect of assumption of lease obligations by assignee:

a. If, by assignment's terms, assignee does not expressly consent to assume all contractual obligations of lessee under lease, following obligations will nevertheless be binding on assignee:
(1) Covenants running with land.

(2) Covenants implied by law.

(3) Obligations imposed by reason of lease providing that its terms, covenants, and conditions must be binding on heirs, administrators, executors, successors, and assigns of parties.

b. If, by assignment's terms, assignee assumes all contractual obligations of lessee under lease, lessee's liability may be altered as follows:

(1) Lease may provide that assignment with lessor's consent releases lessee from all obligations under lease.

(2) Lessor's express consent to releasing lessee from liability on assignment may result in novation [see Civ. Code §§ 1530-1533].

6. Determine whether assignment will be recorded [see § 35A.13].

§ 35A.112 Assignment of Lessor's Interest in Lease to Lender

NOTE:
This section applies when the interest of an owner-lessor of rental property in leases on the property is assigned to a lender as additional security for a loan obligation. Although this type of assignment is generally used in connection with the long-term financing of a commercial building, it may also be used in connection with loans on other types of rental properties. As a practical matter, an assignment of rents made in connection with a real estate loan is almost always a conditional pledge of additional security rather than an absolute assignment [see Ch. 25A, Security Instruments for Real Estate Financing], and this Part reflects that practice [see P 3, below]. For discussion of the effect of an assignment of rents [see Civ. Code § 2938], see § 35A.31[2].

1. Review each lease and any modifications to it, paying attention to provisions affecting or relating to assignment by lessor, including:

a. Restrictions, if any, on use of property retained by lessor.

b. Duties of parties, including duty to repair, restore, and comply with laws.

c. Whether lease's terms, covenants, and conditions bind heirs, administrators, executors, successors, and assigns of parties.

d. Subordination provision, if any.

e. Term of lease remaining:
(1) Effect of holding over.

(2) Existence of options to renew or extend.

f. Total amount of rent reserved, remaining, and required to be paid by lessee to or on behalf of lessor.

g. Security deposit provision, if any.

2. Ascertain that lessor and lessee are in compliance with lease's terms and conditions.

3. Determine whether assignment of lease interest is sufficient additional security for loan, considering:

a. Term remaining under each lease.

b. Total amount of remaining rent payable under each lease, taking into account any known charges or offsetting claims against lessor.

4. Determine rights, duties, and other terms and conditions to be included in assignment agreement [see § 35A.203].

5. Determine whether assignment of lease interest will be recorded [see § 35A.13].

§ 35A.113 Assignment by Lessor of Rent or of Interest in Lease as Condition of Sale

NOTE:

For further discussion of assigning a lessor's interest in a lease made as a condition of sale of the leased premises, see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements , and Ch. 26, Real Property Escrows **.

1. Review lease for provisions affecting assignment of rents or interest in lease, including provisions regarding:

a. Lease's term.

b. Total amount of rent reserved, remaining, and required to be paid by lessee.

c. Rent reduction provision, if any.

d. Subordination.

e. Lease's cancellation on sale of premises.

f. Duties of lessor and lessee.

g. Security deposit.

h. Whether terms, covenants, and lease's conditions bind heirs, administrators, executors, successors, and assigns of parties.

2. Ascertain whether anyone other than lessor has claim to rent:

a. Determine existence of any:
(1) Liens or encumbrances.

(2) Prior assignments by lessor.

(3) Set-offs or other charges.

b. If any claim exists, determine whether claim should or can be removed or eliminated before assignment, and manner in which this should be done.

3. Determine whether lessor and lessee are in compliance with lease's terms and conditions:

a. Confer with lessor and lessee.

b. When assignment of lessor's interest in lease is condition of sale of leased premises, deliver to existing tenants and have them execute estoppel certificate [see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements].

PRACTICE TIP:
Estoppel Certificates. Remember, unless the lease provides for the lessee to execute an estoppel certificate, there is no way to compel a lessee to do so. This is something to keep in mind when dealing with a prospective purchaser or prospective lender. By Benjamin Kaplan.

(1) Lessor's consent to sublease is required, and if it is, ascertain limitation, if any, on lessor's right to refuse.

(2) Any other conditions are imposed on right to sublease.

b. Lease's purpose to determine if proposed use of premises is restricted or prohibited by lease terms, statutes, administrative regulations, or ordinances.

4. Determine effect of any liens, encumbrances, easements, or other rights against leased premises:

a. Determine effect of any subordination of lease to another encumbrance on leased property.

b. If all or some of these rights can or should be removed, determine by whom, how, and when.

5. Ascertain obligations to be assumed by sublessor and sublessee under lease, including whether sublessee will assume all or some of sublessor's obligations and covenants under master lease.

Estoppel certificates should be sent to lessees before the assignment agreement's execution. 2. Have parties execute assignment agreement [see §§ 35A.201-35A.203].

3. Send to each lessee notice of assignment [see §§ 35A.220, 35A.221] and notice of transfer of any security payment or deposit [see § 35A.223].

4. Consider recording assignment.

NOTE:

§ 35A.200 Assignment of Lease by Lessee

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is an assignment by a lessee of the lessee's interest in a lease. It provides that the assignment is to be under the same terms and conditions as the parent or master lease and that the assignee expressly assumes all the obligations under the lease. It also contains a provision for the lessor's consent to the assignment since that consent is generally required by a master lease [see § 35A.15]. For assignments of other interests, see §§ 35A.201-35A.203. For discussion of the distinction between an assignment and a sublease, see § 35A.11.

§ 35A.201 Assignment of Lessor's Interest in Lease--As Condition of Sale of Leased Property

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an assignment that may be used by a seller when a contract for the sale of commercial or residential rental property requires the seller to execute and deliver a written assignment of existing leases to the buyer [see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements]. However, even without that requirement in the contract of sale, a real property grant carries with it, unless otherwise expressly reserved in the deed, the grantor's rights and remedies as landlord under leases encumbering the property, without the necessity of the tenants' attornments to the purchaser [see Civ. Code §§ 821, 1111; Plummer v. Agoure (1912) 20 Cal. App. 319, 321, 128 P. 1014] . Before the assignment is executed, a signed estoppel certificate should be obtained from each tenant [see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements]. During escrow, the buyer will also ordinarily instruct escrow to notify the tenants of the change in ownership [see Ch. 26, Real Property Escrows].

PRACTICE TIP:

Deeds of Trust Include Assignment of Rents Provisions. When the purchase/sale agreement of the property contemplates the inclusion of an assignment of rents provision, and the transaction involves a preexisting Deed of Trust on the subject property, it should be kept in mind that such Deeds of Trust themselves contain an assignment of rents provision in the case of default [see § 35A.203]. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[b] Provision Cancelling Lease on Sale of Property

Although a sale by a lessor of real property during an unexpired term does not of itself usually abrogate the lease [Rosenkranz v. Pellin (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 650, 652, 222 P.2d 249] , some leases contain a provision reserving the right of the lessor, the lessee, or both, to cancel the lease if the premises are sold. The lease should be reviewed to determine whether a sale of the leased premises will prematurely terminate the lease.

[2] FORM

Assignment of Lessor's Interest in Lease--As Condition of Sale of Leased Property

ASSIGNMENT OF LESSOR'S INTEREST IN LEASES

This assignment is made on _____[date], from [name of assignor], [legal status], (the "Assignor"), to [name of assignee], [legal status], (the "Assignee").

Recitals

[name of assignor], as Lessor, has executed leases, referred to below as "the leases," of various units in that certain building, known as _____[e.g., The _____ (name) Building] and referred to below as "the premises," consisting of _____[description of building, e.g., _____ (number) stories and a total of _____ (number) rental units], described as follows: _____[specify legal description of real property or location, e.g., located at _____ (street address, city, state, zip)];

The existing leases were executed by and between Assignor, as Lessor, and the following Lessees on the following dates:

Name of Lessee	Lease Execution Date
_____ Exhibit A	_____
_____ Exhibit B	_____

A copy of each existing lease, with any written modifications to it, is attached to this assignment as Exhibits A through _____ as described above and made a part of this assignment; and,

Assignor, as a condition of the Contract of Sale for the premises entered into on _____[date], between Assignor and Assignee, has agreed to assign the leases to Assignee in fulfillment of this condition;

THEREFORE, Assignor agrees as follows:

Assignment of Leases

1. For value received, Assignor assigns and transfers to Assignee all of Assignor's right, title, and interest in and to the leases; provided, however, that if Assignor and Assignee fail to complete their purchase and sale of the premises by _____ [last date for closing of escrow or other date], this assignment shall be void and of no further effect, and Assignor shall remain liable and responsible for all of Assignor's right, title, and interest in and to the leases.

2. Assignor states that no other assignment by Assignor exists in connection with the leases.

Executed at _____, California, on the day and year first above written.

§ 35A.202 Assignment of Rents

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form of assignment may be used by a lessor to assign the lessor's right to receive rents from leased property to a third party. Rents due or to become due under existing leaseholds are assignable by the lessor [Silverstein v. Oakland Title Ins. etc. Co. (1932) 122 Cal. App. 73, 78, 9 P.2d 846] , and an assignee is entitled to the same remedies for recovering rent as the assignor may have had [Civ. Code § 821; Reios v. Mardis (1912) 18 Cal. App. 276, 281, 122 P. 1091] . An assignment of rents is not required to be in any particular form [Silverstein v. Oakland Title Ins. etc. Co. (1932) 122 Cal. App. 73, 78, 9 P.2d 846] . Moreover, an assignment of rents that does not name the assignee, but that is signed by the assignor and delivered to the assignee, is prima facie evidence of the assignee's right of ownership [Walmsley v. Holcomb (1943) 61 Cal. App. 2d 578, 584, 143 P.2d 398] .

[b] Notice to Lessees

Grants of rents are good and effectual without the tenants agreeing to the grants; however, no tenant who, before notice of the grant, has paid rent to the grantor, may suffer any damage thereby [Civ. Code § 1111]. Therefore, all lessees of property, the rents on which have been assigned by the lessor, should be notified of the assignment immediately after its execution. Commonly, an assignment of rents agreement provides that the lessor-assignor notify the lessees that the rents on the leased property have been assigned. However, the assignee of rents may give the notice to the lessees, and should certainly do so if the assignor fails or delays in giving the notice. For a notice to lessee of assignment of rents, see § 35A.220.

Assignment of Rents

ASSIGNMENT OF RENT

Assignment

1. For value received, Assignor, [name of assignor], assigns and transfers to Assignee, [name of assignee], all rents and sums due and to become due under the terms of that certain lease, referred to below as "the lease," a copy of which is attached to this assignment as Exhibit A, by and between [name of assignor], as Lessor, and _____[name of lessee], as Lessee, executed on _____[date], and subsequently recorded in Book _____, Page _____, of the County Recorder of _____ County, California, for the lease of the following described property: [describe].

Rental Payments Made and Due

2. Assignor states that Lessee has made all rental payments due to and including _____[date to which rent has been paid] and that, as of the date of this assignment, the total unpaid balance of rental payments due and to become due under the lease is $_____, payable in [monthly or other] installments of $_____.

[EITHER]

No Liens, Encumbrances, Claims, or Set-offs

3. Assignor states that no other assignment by Assignor exists in connection with the lease, that the rental property and rental payments and sums due and to become due under the lease are free from liens, encumbrances, claims, and set-offs, and that Assignor shall not sell or encumber the rental property or subject it to liens without first [notifying or obtaining the consent of] Assignee.

[OR]

Liens, Encumbrances, Claims, or Set-offs

3. Assignor states that no other assignment by Assignor exists in connection with the lease, that the rental property and rental payments and sums due and to become due under the lease are free from liens, encumbrances, claims, and set-offs, except as follows: [describe]. In addition, Assignor shall not sell or encumber the rental property or subject it to liens without first [notifying or obtaining the consent of] Assignee.

§ 35A.203 Assignment to Lender of Lessor's Interest in Lease as Security for Loan Obligation

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an assignment to a lender by an owner of rental property of the leases on the property as additional security for a loan obligation. This type of assignment is frequently used in connection with long-term financing of a commercial building, but may also be used in connection with loans on other types of rental properties. Although the lease assignment is similar to the assignment of rents provision contained in most deeds of trust, the separate lease assignment is preferred by lenders because it gives the lender more than just the right to collect rents, and therefore, provides the lender with greater security if there is a default by the property owner. For example, the lender who has a separate lease assignment as security may take over the owner's position and take control of the property, making any necessary modifications or terminations of leases to preserve the value of the security if foreclosure proceedings will be necessary. The lender normally gives the lessee or lessees notice of the lease assignment [see § 35A.221]. Before making the loan, the lender should also obtain from the lessee or lessees an estoppel certificate containing appropriate representations concerning the lease [see § 35A.222].

[b] Effect of Assignment of Interest in Leases, Rents, Issues, or Profits

This form reflects the usual practice in that the assignment of rents is a conditional pledge of additional security rather than an absolute assignment [see Ch. 25A, Security Instruments for Real Estate Financing]. However, regardless of whether a written assignment of an interest in leases, rents, issues, or profits of real property made in connection with an obligation secured by real property is denoted as absolute, absolute conditioned on default, additional security for an obligation, or otherwise, the assignment is, on its execution and delivery by the assignor, effective to create a present security interest in existing and future leases, rents, issues, or profits of that real property [Civ. Code § 2938(a); see former Civ. Code §§ 2938, 2938.1 in effect before January 1, 1997, for contracts entered into before January 1, 1997, and actions and proceedings initiated on the basis of those contracts (Civ. Code § 2938(i))]. If the assignor under the obligation secured by the assignment defaults, the assignee is entitled to enforce the assignment by a number of alternative methods prescribed by statute [see Civ. Code § 2938(c)]. For additional discussion of the assignment of rents, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages , pt. III (Matthew Bender).

[c] Recording

To protect its interest against subsequent purchasers or encumbrancers, the lender normally records the lease assignment. An assignment of an interest in leases, rents, issues, or profits of real property may be recorded in the records of the county recorder in which the underlying real property is located in the same manner as any other conveyance of an interest in real property [Civ. Code § 2938(b)]. The assignment must be properly acknowledged or proved, and the acknowledgment or proof certified as prescribed by law, before it may be recorded [see Civ. Code §§ 1180-1207; Gov. Code §§ 27287, 27288]. Once recorded, the assignment gives constructive notice of its contents, and the interest granted by the assignment is deemed fully perfected as of the time of recordation [Civ. Code § 2938(b)].

[2] FORM

Assignment to Lender of Lessor's Interest in Lease as Security for Loan Obligation

ASSIGNMENT OF LESSOR'S INTEREST IN LEASE

This Assignment is made on _____[date], by and between [name of assignor], called "Assignor," and [name of assignee], called "Assignee."

The parties agree as follows:

Assignment of Lease Interest

1. For value received, the Assignor grants, transfers, and assigns to the Assignee, its successors, and assigns all of the right, title, and interest of the Assignor in and to [that certain Lease or those certain Leases], with modifications, if any, described in Schedule A, covering premises (called "the premises") briefly described as _____[description of leased premises such as name of building, street address, city, and state], together with any extensions and any guaranties of the [Lessee's or Lessees'] obligations [add if more than one lease: , each of the Leases, together with all the guaranties, modifications, and extensions, referred to below as "the Lease"].

Purpose of Assignment

2. This Assignment is made for both of the following purposes:

(a) To secure payment of all the sums now or at any time hereafter due the Assignee and secured by a certain mortgage or deed of trust made by the Assignor to, or to a trustee for, the Assignee dated

_____ , this Assignment, or by any other mortgage or deed of trust hereafter affecting the premises (each of these mortgages or deeds of trust being referred to below as "the Mortgage"); and

(b) To secure performance and discharge of each obligation, covenant, and agreement of the Assignor contained in this Assignment or in the Mortgage or any note or bond secured thereby.

Collection of Rents

3. So long as there shall exist no default by the Assignor in the payment of any indebtedness secured hereby or in the performance of any obligation of the Assignor herein or in the Mortgage or any other instrument securing the indebtedness, the Assignor shall have the right to collect, but not more than 30 days before accrual, all rents, issues, and profits from the premises and to retain, use, and enjoy the same.

Payment in Full

4. On the payment in full of all indebtedness secured hereby, as evidenced by the recording or filing of an instrument of satisfaction or full release of the Mortgage without the recording of another Mortgage in favor of the Assignee affecting the premises, this Assignment shall become and be void and of no effect.

Performance by Assignor

5. The Assignor shall do all of the following:

(a) Fulfill or perform each and every condition and covenant of the Lease by Lessor to be fulfilled or performed;

(b) Give prompt notice to the Assignee of any notice of default by the Assignor under the Lease received by the Assignor together with a complete copy of any such notice;

(c) At the sole cost and expense of the Assignor, enforce, short of the Lease's termination, the performance or observance of each and every covenant and condition of the Lease by the Lessee to be performed or observed;

(d) Not modify nor in any way alter the Lease's terms;

(e) Not terminate the Lease's terms nor accept a surrender of the Lease unless required to do so by the Lease's terms;

(f) Not anticipate the rents under the Lease for more than 30 days before accrual; and

(g) Not waive nor release the Lessee from any obligations or conditions by the Lessee to be performed.

Rights Assigned

6. The rights assigned in this Assignment include all the Assignor's right and power to modify the Lease or to terminate the term or to accept the Lease's surrender or to waive or release the Lessee from the performance or observance by the Lessee of any obligation or condition of the Lease or to anticipate rents under the Lease for more than 30 days before accrual.

Defense of Actions

7. At the Assignor's sole cost and expense, the Assignor shall appear in and defend any action growing out of or in any manner connected with the Lease or the obligations or liabilities of the Lessor, Lessee, or any guarantor under the lease.

Rights of Assignee

8. Should the Assignor fail to make any payment or to do any act as provided in this Assignment, then the Assignee, but without obligation to do so and without notice to or demand on the Assignor and without releasing the Assignor from any obligation in this Assignment, may make or do the same, including specifically, without limiting its general powers, appearing in and defending any action purporting to affect the security hereof or the rights or powers of the Assignee and performing any obligation of the Lessor in the Lease contained, and in exercising any such powers paying necessary costs and expenses, employing counsel and incurring and paying reasonable attorneys' fees. The Assignor shall pay immediately on demand all sums expended by the Assignee under the authority of this paragraph, together with interest thereon at _____ percent per annum, and the same shall be added to the indebtedness and shall be secured hereby and by the Mortgage.

Acceleration

9. The whole of the indebtedness shall become due at either of the following times:

(a) On the election by the Assignee to accelerate the maturity of the indebtedness in accordance with the provisions of the note or bond secured by the Mortgage, or of the Mortgage, or any other instrument that may be held by the Assignee as security for the indebtedness; or

(b) At the Assignee's option, after any attempt by the Assignor to exercise any of the rights described in Paragraph 6 or after any default by the Assignor hereunder and the continuance of such default for 10 days after notice and demand.

Remedies of Assignee

10. (a) After any attempt by the Assignor to exercise any of the rights described in Paragraph 6 or after any default by the Assignor in paying the indebtedness or in performing any obligation of the Assignor herein or in the Mortgage or any other instrument securing said indebtedness, the Assignee may exercise any legal rights or remedies available to Assignee under then existing law. Without limiting the above, the Assignee, at its option, without notice, irrespective of whether Declaration of Default under any deed of trust has been delivered to the trustee thereunder, and without regard to the adequacy of security for the indebtedness hereby secured, either in person or by agent with or without bringing any action or proceeding, or by a receiver to be appointed by a court, may do all of the following:

(1) Enter on, take possession of, and operate the premises;

(2) Make, enforce, modify, and accept the surrender of leases;

(3) Obtain and evict tenants;

(4) Fix or modify rents; and

(5) Do any acts that the Assignee deems proper to protect the security hereof.

(b) The Assignor has the right to act in accordance with (a), above, until all indebtedness secured hereby is paid in full, and may further either with or without taking possession of the premises, in its own name, sue for or otherwise collect and receive all rents, issues, and profits, including those past due and unpaid, and apply the same, less costs and expenses of operation and collection, including reasonable attorneys' fees, on any indebtedness secured hereby in the order as the Assignee may determine.

(c) Any income received from the premises by the Assignee in excess of the amount necessary to meet all obligations of the Assignor secured hereby, including any accelerated indebtedness, and of the amount estimated by the Assignee to be necessary to meet these obligations for the subsequent six months' period shall be paid over by the Assignee to the Assignor promptly after the expiration of each six months' period following the date of the entry. The entering on and taking possession of the property, the collection of the rents, issues, and profits and the application thereof as stated above, shall not cure or waive any default or waive, modify, or affect any notice of default under the Mortgage or invalidate any act done under the notice.

Merger

11. The Assignor, without the prior written consent of the Assignee, shall not cause or permit the leasehold estate under the Lease to merge with the Assignor's reversionary interest.

Warranties

12. The Assignor warrants:

(a) The Assignor has not executed any prior assignment of any of its rights under the Lease;

(b) The Assignor has not done anything that might prevent the Assignee from or limit the Assignee in operating under any of the provisions of this Assignment;

(c) The Assignor has not accepted rent under the Lease more than 30 days in advance of its due date;

(d) So far as the Assignor knows, there is no present default by the Lessee under the Lease; and

(e) The Lease is in full force and effect, unmodified except as set forth in Schedule A.

Indemnification

13. The Assignee shall not be obligated to perform or discharge any obligation under the Lease, or under or by reason of this Assignment, and the Assignor agrees to indemnify the Assignee against and hold it harmless from any and all liability, loss, or damage that it may or might incur under the Lease or under or by reason of this Assignment and of and from any and all claims and demands whatsoever that may be asserted against it by reason of any alleged obligation or undertaking on its part to perform or discharge any of the terms of the Lease. If the Assignee incurs any such liability, loss, or damage under the Lease or under or by reason of this Assignment, or in defense against any such claims or demands, the amount thereof, including costs, expenses, and reasonable attorneys' fees, together with interest thereon at _____ percent per annum, shall be secured hereby and by the Mortgage, and the Assignor shall reimburse the Assignee therefor immediately on demand.

Successors and Assigns

14. This Assignment shall inure to the benefit of the Assignee's successors and assigns and shall bind the Assignor's legal representatives, successors, and assigns.

Notices

15. The parties agree that all notices, demands, or documents that are required or permitted to be given or served under this Assignment shall be in writing and shall be deemed given when sent by registered mail addressed to the Assignor at _____[address], and to the Assignee at _____[address] with a copy to _____[name] at _____[address]. These addresses may be changed from time to time by either party by serving notice as provided in this paragraph.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties have duly executed this Assignment at _____, California on the day and year first above written.

18-35A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 35A.210

§ 35A.210 Sublease

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a short form of sublease that may be used when the sublease transaction is to be subject to most of the terms and conditions governing the master lease. It includes provisions for the lessor's consent to the sublease [see § 35A.15], the sublessee's assumption of specified obligations under the master lease [see § 35A.41], and authorization for the sublessee to take any action necessary to prevent a default by the sublessor under the terms of the master lease [see § 35A.42[2]].

For additional discussion of approval clauses and other restrictions or prohibitions on subleases or assignments, see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases , and California Real Estate Law and Practice, ch. 172, Assignment and Subletting Leasehold Interests (Matthew Bender).

[b] Nondisturbance Agreement

Some leases that permit subletting contain or authorize the issuance of a nondisturbance agreement. A nondisturbance agreement provides that the master lease's lessor will not disturb sublessees (that is, will not terminate their subleases) if the lessor terminates the master lease before its expiration, and that the sublessees will attorn to the lessor. An attornment is an agreement by a sublessee to be bound directly to the lessor under the master lease for the performance of all obligations under the sublease if the sublessor defaults [see Rabkin & Johnson, Current Legal Forms with Tax Analysis, ch. 23, Real Estate Leases (Matthew Bender)]. Nondisturbance agreements are commonly used in connection with ground leases [see Ch. 34D, Ground Leases].

If the lessor under the master lease does not wish to enter into any type of nondisturbance agreement, the sublease should contain a provision providing for its termination on the termination of the master lease; this provision is contained in the first alternative Paragraph 11 of this form. There are two basic types of nondisturbance clauses. The first consists of a general guaranty, set forth in the master lease and repeated in each sublease, that no sublessee will be disturbed if the sublessor defaults on the master lease; the second alternative Paragraph 11 of this form is an example of this type of provision.

The second type of nondisturbance clause provides for the use of a separate nondisturbance agreement. In that case, the lease and every sublease should provide that the lessor will not disturb any sublessee who has entered into a nondisturbance agreement with the lessor; the third alternative Paragraph 11 of this form is an example of this type of provision. Under this type of provision, the lease and every sublease typically require the sublessee to submit a written request for a nondisturbance agreement, and provide the lessor with some discretion in deciding whether or not to enter into the agreement. For example, this form states that the lessor will issue a nondisturbance agreement if the lessor is satisfied with the sublessee's integrity and financial stability. For an illustrative nondisturbance agreement, see § 35A.211.

[c] Protection of Sublessee's Possession

A sublessee's continued possession of the subleased premises depends not only on the status of the sublease but also on the master lease's continuation. Therefore, the sublease should afford the sublessee some protection against a default by the sublessor under the master lease. The nature of the protective provisions will depend on the bargaining positions of the parties. This form protects the sublessee in several ways. Specifically, Paragraph 9 provides that the sublessee has the right to take action, at the sublessor's expense, to prevent a default by the sublessor, and any right of the sublessor to terminate the master lease (for example, in the case of destruction of the premises) is transferred to the sublessee. Paragraph 10 provides that the sublessor agrees to maintain the master lease, and to obtain the sublessee's consent before modifying or surrendering the master lease.

[d] Attorneys' Fees

Code Civ. Proc. § 1021 provides that the award of attorney's fees is a matter of agreement between the parties. In the landlord-tenant context, the recovery of attorney's fees is generally dependent on the specific provisions in the lease [Bank of America etc. Ass'n v. Moore (1937) 18 Cal. App. 2d 522, 529-530, 64 P.2d 460] . If the lease fails to include provisions for the recovery of attorneys' fees, the general rule is that fees will be awarded to the prevailing party [see, e.g., Civ. Code § 1942.4(b) ("prevailing party" entitled to reasonable attorney's fees in action based on untenantable dwelling); Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1021.5 ("successful party" entitled to attorney's fees in action affecting public interest), 1174.2 (concerning "prevailing party" when tenant raises habitability as affirmative defense)]. Paragraph 12 of the form in [2], below, provides that the prevailing party in any litigation relating to the sublease will be entitled to attorney's fees.

Chapter 34, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases , § 34C.274, includes discussion and a form for awarding attorneys' fees to the party prevailing in an action on a lease. For detailed coverage of attorney's fees generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees (Matthew Bender).

PRACTICE TIP:

Expert Witness Fees. The fees provision in this form [see [2], P 12, below] might also include a provision for recovery of expert witness fees, which are often incurred in commercial landlord-tenant disputes. This is true especially if there is an issue regarding valuation or damages. By Myron Moskovitz.

[2] FORM

Sublease

SUBLEASE

This sublease is executed on _____[date], by and between _____[name of sublessor], [legal status] (the "Sublessor"), whose address is _____[street address, city, state, zip], and _____[name of sublessee], [legal status] (the "Sublessee"), whose address is _____[street address, city, state, zip].

Recitals

_____[Name of original lessor], as Lessor, and _____[name of sublessor], as Lessee, executed a lease on _____[date] (the "Master Lease"), which was recorded on _____[date] as Instrument No. _____ in Book _____, Page _____, Official Records of _____ County, California, and is attached to this sublease as Exhibit A and incorporated into this Sublease by this reference;

By the terms of the Master Lease, the real property described in Paragraph 1 of this Sublease [if sublease covers only portion of property subject to master lease, add: and in Paragraph _____ of the Master Lease] was leased to _____[name of sublessor] for a term of [specify], commencing on _____[date], and ending on _____[date], subject to earlier termination as provided in the Master Lease;

Sublessor desires to sublease to Sublessee [all or a portion] of the property currently occupied by Sublessor under the terms of the Master Lease, and Sublessee desires to lease that property from Sublessor; and

The Lessor under the Master Lease shall consent to this sublease by executing the "Consent of Lessor" provision at the end of this sublease.

THEREFORE, Sublessor and Sublessee agree as follows:

Leasing and Description of Property

1. Subject to the terms, conditions, and covenants set forth in this sublease, Sublessor hereby leases to Sublessee, and Sublessee hereby leases from Sublessor, the property located in _____ County, California, described as follows: [description] (the "subleased premises").

Term

2. This sublease shall commence on _____[date], and shall end on the date on which the Master Lease terminates or on _____[date], whichever is earlier.

Rent

3. Sublessee shall pay to Sublessor as rent for the subleased premises a rental of $_____ per month payable in advance on the [e.g., first] day of each calendar month during the term, commencing on _____[date]. Rent shall be paid to Sublessor at _____[address where payment should be made], or at any other place designated in writing by Sublessor. The installment rent payable for any portion of a calendar month shall be a pro rata portion of the installment payable for a full calendar month.

Use of Premises

4. Sublessee shall use the subleased premises [state purpose, e.g., as a single-family residence or for business office purposes] and for no other purpose.

Quiet Enjoyment

5. Sublessor covenants that Sublessee shall be entitled to quiet enjoyment of the premises, provided that Sublessee complies with the terms of this sublease.

Condition of Premises

6. Sublessee agrees that Sublessee's act of taking possession will be an acknowledgment that the subleased premises are in a tenantable and good condition. Sublessee will, at Sublesse e's own expense, maintain the subleased premises in a thorough state of repair and in good and safe condition.

Applicability of Master Lease

7. This Sublease is subject and subordinate to the terms and conditions of the Master Lease. Further, the following paragraphs of the Master Lease are hereby incorporated by reference: [specify].

Assumption

8. Sublessee expressly assumes and agrees to perform and comply with all the obligations required to be kept or performed by the Lessee under the provisions of the Master Lease identified in Paragraph 7 of this sublease, to the extent that they are applicable to the subleased premises [if some obligations are not assumed, add: , with the following exceptions: _____ (specify, e.g., (1) the obligation and covenant to pay rent to the Lessor required by Paragraph _____ of the Master Lease shall be considered performed by Sublessee to the extent and in the amount rent is paid to Sublessor in accordance with Paragraph 3 of this sublease, and (2) Sublessee shall not be responsible for the payment of rentals or taxes provided for in the Master Lease)].

Sublessee's Rights Regarding Continuing Possession

9. Sublessee shall have the right at any time, at Sublessor's expense, to take any action required to be taken, but not timely taken, by Sublessor, that may be necessary to prevent a default under the terms of the Master Lease. If Sublessor is provided with the right, under the terms of the Master Lease, to terminate the Master Lease before the expiration of its term, Sublessee rather than Sublessor shall have the right to make that decision. Nothing contained in this sublease shall be construed so as to deprive Sublessee of Sublessee's right to surrender or otherwise terminate this Sublease as provided by law.

Obligations of Sublessor

10. Sublessor agrees to maintain the Master Lease during the entire term of this Sublease, subject, however, to any earlier termination of the Master Lease without the fault of Sublessor. Sublessor also agrees [state specific obligations, e.g., to pay all rentals and taxes] as provided for in the Master Lease in accordance with its terms, and to comply with or perform all obligations of the Lessor under the Master Lease that Sublessee has not assumed under this sublease. Further, Sublessor agrees not to modify or surrender the Master Lease without the prior consent of Sublessee. Any modification or surrender made without that consent shall be null and void and shall have no effect on the rights of Sublessee under this sublease.

[EITHER, if sublessor will assume lessor's obligations under master lease:]

Sublessor further agrees to assume and to perform all of those obligations required to be kept or performed by the Lessor under the Master Lease to the extent that they apply to the subleased premises under the terms of this Sublease.

[OR, if sublessor will not assume lessor's obligations under master lease:]

Sublessor does not assume the obligations required to be kept or performed by the Lessor under the Master Lease.

[EITHER]

Termination of Master Lease

11. If the Master Lease is terminated, this Sublease shall terminate simultaneously and the Sublessor and Sublessee shall thereafter be released from all obligations under this Sublease, and Sublessor shall refund to Sublessee any unearned rent paid in advance.

[OR]

Nondisturbance and Attornment

11. If the Master Lease is terminated for any reason before the natural expiration of its term, and Sublessee is not then in default under the terms of this Sublease, the termination shall not terminate or affect the continuing validity of this Sublease. In that case, all Sublessor's interest as sublessor under this Sublease shall be deemed automatically assigned, transferred, and conveyed to the Lessor under the Master Lease. Lessor shall thereafter be bound on this Sublease to the same extent Sublessor was bound on this Sublease, and shall have all the rights that Sublessor had under this Sublease. Further, Sublessee shall be deemed to have attorned to Lessor, provided that Sublessee shall be under no obligation to pay rent to Lessor until Sublessee receives written notice from Lessor that it has succeeded to the Sublessor's rights under this Sublease.

[OR]

Issuance of Nondisturbance Agreement and Attornment

11. If the Master Lease is terminated for any reason before the natural expiration of its term, the termination shall not terminate or affect the continuing validity of this Sublease, if the Lessor under the Master Lease has entered into a nondisturbance agreement with Sublessee. If Sublessee desires to enter into such an agreement, Sublessee shall submit to Lessor a written request for a nondisturbance agreement, stating the reason or reasons it is desired and including a copy of this Sublease. The request must be submitted to Lessor at the following address: _____. Within [number] days after Lessor receives the request, Lessor shall, if Lessor is satisfied with Sublessee's integrity and financial stability, notify Sublessee of this decision and arrange to enter into a nondisturbance agreement with Sublessee. The agreement shall be in the form set forth as Exhibit B to this Sublease. Among other things, that agreement provides that the following shall apply on termination of the Master Lease:

(1) All Sublessor's interests under this Sublease shall be deemed automatically assigned, transferred, and conveyed to Lessor;

(2) Lessor shall be bound on this Sublease to the same extent Sublessor was bound on it; provided, however, that any amendments to this Sublease made after Lessor and Sublessee enter into the nondisturbance agreement shall not be binding on Lessor; and

(3) Sublessee shall attorn to Lessor, provided that Sublessee shall be under no obligation to pay rent to Lessor until Sublessee receives written notice from Lessor that Lessor has succeeded to the interests of Sublessor under this Sublease.

If Lessor does not enter into a nondisturbance agreement with Sublessee and the Master Lease is terminated for any reason before the natural expiration of its term, the following shall occur: this Sublease shall immediately terminate; after termination, Sublessor and Sublessee shall be released from all obligations under this Sublease; and, Sublessor shall refund to Sublessee any unearned rent paid in advance.

[Continue with the following:]

Attorney's Fees

12. If any action or other proceeding arising out of this Sublease is commenced by either party to this Sublease concerning the subleased premises, then as between Sublessor and Sublessee, the prevailing party shall be entitled to receive from the other party, in addition to any other relief that may be granted, the reasonable attorney's fees, costs, and expenses incurred in the action or other proceeding by the prevailing party.

18-35A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 35A.211

§ 35A.211 Nondisturbance Agreement

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a nondisturbance agreement. A nondisturbance agreement is an agreement by a lessor under a master lease (often a ground lease) to refrain from terminating a sublease if the lessor terminates the master lease before its expiration. This form is designed to be used in conjunction with the sublease form [see § 35A.210]. The sublease form contains a provision that the lessor will enter into a nondisturbance agreement with any qualified sublessee who requests such an arrangement, and states that on early termination of the master lease because of the lessee's default, the lessor will not disturb any sublessee who has entered into such an agreement with the lessor [see § 35A.210[2], P 11 (third alternative)]. Although this form assumes that the master lease is a ground lease, it may be easily modified for use in conjunction with another type of master lease. For further discussion of nondisturbance agreements, see § 35A.210[1][b].

[2] FORM

Nondisturbance Agreement

NONDISTURBANCE AGREEMENT

Preamble

This agreement is made on _____[date], between _____[name of ground lessor] (the "Ground Lessor"), whose address is _____[street address, city, state, zip], and _____[name of sublessee] (the "Sublessee"), whose address is _____[street address, city, state, zip].

Recitals

Ground Lessor, as lessor, and _____[name of ground lessee/sublessor], as lessee (the "Ground Lessee"), executed a ground lease on _____[date] (the "Ground Lease"), a copy of which is attached to this agreement as Exhibit A and is incorporated into it by this reference. [A memorandum of the or The] Ground Lease was recorded on _____[date], as Instrument No. _____ in Book _____, Page _____, Official Records of _____ County, California.

By the terms of the Ground Lease, the real property described in Paragraph _____ of the Ground Lease was leased to Ground Lessee for a term of [specify], commencing on _____[date], and ending on _____[date], subject to earlier termination as provided in the Ground Lease.

Sublessee, as sublessee, and Ground Lessee, as sublessor, entered into a sublease on _____[date] (the "Sublease"), a copy of which is attached to this agreement as Exhibit B and is incorporated into it by this reference. [A memorandum of the or The] Sublease was recorded on _____[date], as Instrument No. _____ in Book _____, Page _____, Official Records of _____ County, California.

By the terms of the Sublease, Sublessee subleased the real property described in Paragraph _____ of the Sublease (the "subleased premises").

Paragraph _____ of the Ground Lease and Paragraph _____ of the Sublease provide that Ground Lessor will, on request, enter into a nondisturbance agreement with any sublessee of Ground Lessee who requests that Ground Lessor enter into such an agreement, provided Ground Lessor is satisfied with the Sublessee's integrity and financial stability.

Sublessee is not in default under the Sublease, desires to enter into a nondisturbance agreement with Ground Lessor, and has submitted an appropriate request to Ground Lessor.

Ground Lessor is satisfied with Sublessee's integrity and financial stability and desires to enter into a nondisturbance agreement with Sublessee.

THEREFORE, Ground Lessor and Sublessee agree as follows:

Nondisturbance

1. So long as Sublessee is not in default in the performance of any of the terms, covenants, or conditions of the Sublease, Ground Lessor will not join Sublessee as a party defendant in any action or proceeding for the purpose of terminating Sublessee's interest and estate under the Sublease because of any default by Lessee under the Ground Lease.

Attornment

2. If the Ground Lease is terminated for any reason, all Ground Lessee's interests as sublessor under the Sublease shall be deemed automatically assigned, transferred, and conveyed to Lessor. Lessor shall thereafter be bound on the Sublease to the same extent Lessee (as sublessor) was bound on the Sublease, and shall have all the rights under the Sublease that Lessee (as sublessor) had under the Sublease; provided, however, that any amendments to the Sublease made after this agreement's issuance shall not be binding on Ground Lessor. Further, on such a termination, Sublessee shall be bound to Ground Lessor under all the conditions of the Sublease for the balance of the Sublease's term with the same force and effect as if Ground Lessor were the landlord under the Sublease. As a part of this process, Sublessee attorns to Ground Lessor as Sublessee's landlord. This attornment will become effective immediately when Ground Lessor succeeds to the Lessee's interest under the Sublease, and shall not require the execution of any additional instruments by the parties to this agreement. However, Sublessee shall be under no obligation to pay rent to Ground Lessor until Sublessee receives written notice from Ground Lessor that it has succeeded to Lessee's interest under the Sublease. The respective rights and obligations of Sublessee and Ground Lessor on attornment shall for the balance of the term of the Sublease be the same as they are currently set forth in the Sublease.

Obligations

3. If the Ground Lease is terminated for any reason and Ground Lessor succeeds to the Lessee's interest under the Sublease, Ground Lessor shall be bound to Sublessee under all of the Sublease's terms, and Sublessee shall, from and after that event, have the same remedies against Ground Lessor for the breach of any agreement contained in the Sublease that Sublessee might have had under the Sublease against the Lessee. However, Ground Lessor shall not be liable for any act or omission of Lessee, shall not be subject to any offsets or defenses that Sublessee might have against Lessee, and shall not be bound by any rent or additional rent that Sublessee might have paid to Lessee for more than the current month.

Executed at _____, California, on the date specified in the first paragraph of this agreement.

§ 35A.220 Notice to Lessee of Assignment of Rent

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a notice to a lessee that the lessor has assigned the rents under their lease to a third party and that the tenant should therefore make future payments of rent to the assignee. Grants of rents are good and effectual without tenants agreeing to the grants; however, no tenant who, before notice of the grant, has paid rent to the grantor, may suffer any damage thereby [Civ. Code § 1111]. This form may be used by the assignor or by the assignee.

§ 35A.221 Notice to Lessee of Assignment of Lease as Security for Loan

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a notice to a lessee of the lessor's assignment of interest in their lease to a lender. It is appropriate for use by a lender, who will normally notify all lessees of an assignment at the time that the loan is made and the lease assignments are received from the lessor. For further discussion of the use of a lease assignment as security for a loan obligation, see § 35A.203[1].

Lease dated _____, between _____[name of lessor], Lessor, and _____[name of lessee], Lessee.

You are hereby notified that in accordance with the terms and provisions of that "Assignment of Lessor's Interest in Lease," referred to below as "Assignment," a copy of which is attached to this notice and delivered to you with it so that you may be fully advised of its terms, there was duly assigned and transferred to the undersigned, _____[name of lender], referred to below as "the Lender," the entire interest of Lessor in and to the above-mentioned Lease, more particularly referred to and described in the attached copy of Assignment, and referred to below as the "Lease."

You are further notified that all rental payments under the Lease shall be paid as heretofore in accordance with the terms thereof unless and until you are otherwise notified in writing by the Lender.

Your attention is also called particularly to the following points:

(1) That by the Assignment there has been assigned to the Lender all the Lessor's right and power to modify the Lease, or to terminate the Lease's term, or accept the Lease's surrender, or to waive the performance or observance by the Lessee of any obligation or condition of the Lease, or to anticipate rents under the Lease.

(2) That the Lessor's interest in the Lease has been assigned to the Lender solely as security for the purposes specified in the Assignment and the Lender assumes no duty, liability, or obligation whatever under the Lease either by virtue of the Assignment or by any subsequent receipt or collection of rents under the Lease.

Please date and sign the attached acknowledgment of receipt and return it in the enclosed envelope.

§ 35A.222 Estoppel Certificate Executed by Lessee

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an estoppel certificate to be executed by a tenant whose landlord intends to assign to a lender the landlord's interest in the lease. This type of certificate is frequently required by a lender who takes an assignment of a lease interest as additional security for a loan on rental property [see § 35A.203]. It is a statement by the tenant setting forth the tenant's current rights and liabilities with regard to the lease. It states all of the following [see generally California Real Estate Law and Practice, ch. 90, Representing Clients in Sales Transactions (Matthew Bender)]:

- That neither the tenant nor the landlord is in breach of the lease;
- That the tenant has no claims against the landlord;
- That the lease is in full force and effect and has not been modified except as specified in the certificate;
- That the lessee is in possession of the leased premises;
- That the lessee has not paid rent more than 30 days in advance; and
- That the lessee has no offsetting claims or charges against the rent due to the lessor under the lease.

[b] Practical Considerations

A properly executed certificate estops the tenant from later making any assertions contrary to those stated in the certificate [Evid. Code § 623], provided that the estoppel applies only to existing facts and not to promises or future events [Berverdor, Inc. v. Salyer Farms (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 459, 464, 218 P.2d 138] . Furthermore, if any tenant refuses to sign an estoppel certificate on the basis that the statements contained in it are not true, the lender will be alerted to potential problems and may insist that the matter in dispute be resolved before accepting the assignment of the lessor's interest in the lease as security for the loan. Therefore, to maximize the benefit of using an estoppel certificate, a lender should require delivery of the certificates before making the loan.

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a notice to be used by a landlord or the landlord's agent to notify a tenant that a security payment or deposit paid by the tenant (less any lawful deductions) has been transferred to the landlord's successor in interest. Statutes regulate the disposition by a landlord of security for a rental agreement of residential property [see Civ. Code § 1950.5], and the disposition by a landlord of a security payment or deposit for a nonresidential rental agreement [see Civ. Code § 1950.7]. § 35A.224 Request for Statement of Reasons for Refusal to Consent to Transfer of Interest in Nonresidential Lease

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a request by a tenant under a nonresidential lease for a statement of reasons for the landlord's refusal to consent to a transfer of the tenant's interest in the lease. The purpose of the request is to determine whether or not the landlord has a reasonable objection to the transfer [see Civ. Code § 1995.260]. A tenant may make this request when (1) the lease requires the landlord's consent to a subletting, assignment, or other transfer of the tenant's interest in the lease, and (2) the restriction either provides that the consent may not be unreasonably withheld or does not provide a standard for giving or withholding consent [Civ. Code § 1995.260]. Whether or not the consent has been unreasonably withheld in a particular case is a question of fact on which the tenant has the burden of proof. The tenant may satisfy the burden of proof by showing that, in response to the tenant's written request for a statement of reasons for withholding consent (this form), the landlord has failed, within a reasonable time, to state in writing a reasonable objection to the transfer [Civ. Code § 1995.260; see § 35A.15].

Benjamin Kaplann* Myron Moskovitzn Practice Consultants Scope

This chapter covers the modification, surrender, termination, and abandonment of real property leases. It discusses general rules governing a lease's modification, distinctions between modifications and other actions and agreements, and rules regarding the surrender and termination of a lease and abandonment of leased premises by a tenant that may or may not result in the lease's termination. Also covered are the rules regarding the disposition of personal property abandoned on the leased premises. Detailed coverage of the procedures to recover possession of leased premises is beyond the scope of this chapter. However, this chapter includes a brief review of actions to recover possession of the premises, including unlawful detainer notices to quit.

This chapter includes forms for modification of a lease agreement, surrender of a leasehold, notices of abandonment of leased premises and personal property, nonabandonment of leased premises and personal property, the public sale of a tenant's personal property, unlawful detainer notices to quit, and termination and reletting notices.

For general coverage of real property leases and lease provisions, including forms, see Ch. 34B, Residential Leases , and Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases . Assignments and subleases are covered in Ch. 35A, Assignment and Subleases of Leasehold Interests .

§ 35B.10 Modification--Definition

"Modification" is an alteration or change in one or more regards that introduces new elements into the details of a contract, or cancels some of them, but leaves the general purpose and effect of the contract undisturbed [Grant v. The Aerodraulics Co. (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 68, 74, 204 P.2d 683] .

18-35B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 35B.11

AUTHOR: Benjamin Kaplan Myron Moskovitz Practice Consultants

§ 35B.11 Governing Law

A lease has a dual character: it is both a contract between the lessor and the lessee for the possession and use of the subject property and a conveyance of an estate in the land [Pacific Southwest Realty Co. v. County of Los Angeles (1991) 1 Cal. 4th 155, 163, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 536, 820 P.2d 1046 ; Parker v. Superior Court (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 397, 400, 88 Cal. Rptr. 352] . Thus, a lease's modification is subject to the principles of contract law [see Civ. Code §§ 1697 (bilateral modification of oral contracts), 1698 (bilateral modification of written contracts); see also Civ. Code § 827 (unilateral modification by landlord of certain short-term leases)].

Contracts entered into before January 1, 1977 are governed by the Civil Code provisions in effect before that date [see Stats. 1976, ch. 109, § 5; Civ. Code §§ 1697, 1698]. For discussion of the applicable Civil Code sections in effect from January 1, 1977, see § 35B.13.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Modification of Leases

18-35B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 35B.12

AUTHOR: Benjamin Kaplan Myron Moskovitz Practice Consultants

§ 35B.12 Modification Distinguished From Other Actions and Agreements

[1] Modification Requires New Consideration

Modification must be distinguished from changes contemplated by the original contract. A modification generally requires new consideration, while a change in accordance with the terms of a contractual provision that authorizes and sets forth a method for revising the contract is simply a change in the contract's terms that was bargained for by the parties at the time they entered the agreement and is supported by the same consideration that supported the contract [Busch v. Globe Indus. (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 315, 320, 19 Cal. Rptr. 441] .

[2] Modification vs. Independent and Supplemental Agreements

A modification should be distinguished from an independent, collateral agreement that is entered into after the original contract but that does not vary the contract's terms [see Lacy Mfg. Co. v. Gold Crown Mining Co. (1942) 52 Cal. App. 2d 568, 577, 126 P.2d 644] . A modification should also be distinguished from a supplemental written agreement that merely explains a prior written contract, because the same consideration that supports the original contract also supports the supplemental agreement [Cutter Laboratories, Inc. v. Twining (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 302, 311, 34 Cal. Rptr. 317] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Effect of Parol Evidence Rule. Note that the "parol evidence rule" does not exclude evidence of a modification of a lease after the lease is made. The parol evidence rule bars evidence of prior agreements that are inconsistent with a contract, but has no effect on subsequent agreements. By Myron Moskovitz.

[3] Modification vs. Termination

Modification differs from a contract's termination. To terminate a contract means to abrogate so much of it as remains unperformed, thereby doing away with the existing agreement on the terms and with the consequences agreed on [

Grant v. The Aerodraulics Co. (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 68, 75, 204 P.2d 683] . Modification also differs from a novation, which involves extinguishing the entire contract and substituting new obligations for the previously existing ones [see Civ. Code § 1530].

AUTHOR: Benjamin Kaplan Myron Moskovitz Practice Consultants

§ 35B.13 Modification of Written Lease

[1] By Written Contract

A written lease may be modified by a contract in writing [Civ. Code § 1698(a)]. To be a contract, a written modification must be supported by consideration [Civ. Code § 1550; Main St. & Agricultural Park R.R. Co. v. Los Angeles Traction Co. (1900) 129 Cal. 301, 305, 61 P. 937] . If the modification adds to or varies the original contract's terms so that new and onerous terms are imposed on one of the parties, the consideration may consist either of a new consideration or some favorable modification of the original contract [Main St. & Agricultural Park R.R. Co. v. Los Angeles Traction Co. (1900) 129 Cal. 301, 305, 61 P. 937] . The surrendering of prior rights of the parties also may be sufficient consideration [Gardner v. Shreve (1949) 89 Cal. App. 2d 804, 808, 202 P.2d 322] .

[2] By Executed Oral Agreement

A written lease may also be modified by an oral agreement to the extent that the oral agreement is executed by the parties [Civ. Code § 1698(b)]. In contrast to modification by a written contract, an executed oral agreement modifies the original written lease without regard to the presence or absence of consideration [Julian v. Gold (1931) 214 Cal. 74, 76-79, 3 P.2d 1009] . To be "executed," the agreement must be fully performed by both sides [Klein Norton Co. v. Cohen (1930) 107 Cal. App. 325, 330, 290 P. 613 (construing former Civ. Code § 1698, substantially reenacted as Civ. Code § 1698(a), (b))].

In the case of an oral agreement to reduce the amount of rent payable under a written lease, the oral agreement is considered executed only as to the reduced rent for past months that has actually been paid by the tenant and accepted by the landlord under the oral agreement [Julian v. Gold (1931) 214 Cal. 74, 76-79, 3 P.2d 1009] , and is not considered executed for rents to become due in the future [Stoltenberg v. Harveston (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 264, 266-267, 34 P.2d 472] .

An executed oral agreement may modify the original lease even though the lease provides that all changes must be approved in writing [see Miller v. Brown (1955) 136 Cal. App. 2d 763, 775, 289 P.2d 572] .

[3] Oral Agreement Supported by New Consideration

Unless the lease expressly provides otherwise, a written lease may be modified by an oral agreement supported by new consideration [Civ. Code § 1698(c)]. However, under these circumstances, the statute of frauds must be satisfied if the lease as modified is within its provisions [Civ. Code § 1698(c); see Civ. Code § 1624 (statute of frauds)]. Thus, for example, if the lease as modified is for more than one year, it must be in writing [see Civ. Code § 1624(a)(3)]. Conversely, if the lease as modified is for one year or less, modification may be in the form of an oral agreement supported by new consideration, unless the lease is subject to the statute of frauds for some other reason [Civ. Code § 1698(c); see Civ. Code § 1624].

PRACTICE TIP:

Satisfying Statute of Frauds Without New Consideration. Note the general rule that the statute of frauds may be satisfied by detrimental reliance on an oral promise by the promisee--even without a new consideration. By Myron Moskovitz.

§ 35B.20 Surrender--Definition

"Surrender" is a yielding up of an estate for life or for years to the reversioner (lessor) or remainderman [Scott v. Mullins (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 51, 55, 27 Cal. Rptr. 269] . A lease's surrender is a consensual termination of the lease before the termination date set forth in the lease [see Welcome v. Hess (1891) 90 Cal. 507, 513, 27 P. 369 ; Kulawitz v. Pacific Woodenware & Paper Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 664, 670-671, 155 P.2d 24] . Surrender relieves the parties of any further contractual obligations under the lease after the surrender date [see Welcome v. Hess (1891) 90 Cal. 507, 513, 27 P. 369 ; Kulawitz v. Pacific Woodenware & Paper Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 664, 670-671, 155 P.2d 24 ; see also § 35B.21]. It can be accomplished by express consent of the parties in writing, or by operation of law when the parties do something that implies they have consented [Code Civ. Proc. § 1971; *Scott v. § 35B.21 Effect of Surrender

Surrender relieves the tenant of any further liability under the lease, including any rent that may otherwise be due after the date of surrender [Dorcich v. Time Oil Co. (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 677, 683, 230 P.2d 10 ; Welcome v. Hess (1891) 90 Cal. 507, 514, 27 P. 369] . It also relieves the landlord of his or her obligations under the lease [see Kulawitz v. Pacific Woodenware & Paper Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 664, 670, 155 P.2d 24] . When there is an executed surrender of a leasehold agreement, the tenant is obligated to leave the premises within the time set for the lease's surrender. If the tenant retains possession beyond the surrender date, the tenant is guilty of unlawful detainer and the landlord may use unlawful detainer proceedings to obtain possession of the premises [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(5)]. For forms of notices that must precede the filing of an unlawful detainer action, see §§ 35B.230-35B.232.

For detailed coverage of the remedy of unlawful detainer, including several forms of complaint, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, ch. 333, Landlord and Tenant: Eviction Actions (Matthew Bender). Unlawful detainer is also discussed in detail in California Real Estate Law and Practice, ch. 210, Unlawful Detainer (Matthew Bender).

§ 35B.22 Surrender by Express Written Consent

Surrender by express written consent of the parties occurs when a lessor and a lessee agree, in writing, to terminate their lease in advance of the termination date set forth in the lease [Scott v. Mullins (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 51, 55, 27 Cal. Rptr. 269] . A lease for a term exceeding one year may be surrendered only by a writing subscribed by the lessor and lessee or their properly authorized lawful agents, or by operation of law [*Code Civ. § 35B.23 Surrender by Operation of Law Surrender by operation of law occurs when the parties do something that implies they have consented to a surrender and that would not be valid unless the lease term were ended [Welcome v. Hess (1891) 90 Cal. 507, 512, 27 P. 369] . Surrender by operation of law is inferred from acts that would not be valid unless the lease were terminated [Welcome v. Hess (1891) 90 Cal. 507, 512, 27 P. 369] . For example, there is a surrender when the lessor gives a new lease of the property to a third party with the tenant's consent [Security-First Nat'l Bank of Los Angeles v. Marxen (1938) 28 Cal. App. 2d 446, 453, 82 P.2d 727] . Abandonment of the premises by the lessee can, under certain circumstances, result in a surrender by operation of law [see Welcome v. Hess (1891) 90 Cal. 507, 512, 27 P. 369 ; see also § 35B.25[2]].

§ 35B.24 Abandonment--Definition

"Abandonment" is the voluntary giving up of a thing by the owner because the owner no longer wants to possess it or to assert any right or dominion over it and is entirely indifferent as to what may become of it or as to who may thereafter possess it [Martin v. Cassidy (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 106, 110, 307 P.2d 981] . Abandonment occurs when the lessee leaves the premises vacant with the avowed intention not to be bound by his or her lease [Kassan v. Stout (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 39, 43, 106 Cal. Rptr. 783, 507 P.2d 87] . Abandonment differs from surrender in that surrender requires an acceptance by the landlord, either by express agreement or by an unequivocal act that is so inconsistent with the lease as to imply an agreement to surrender [Martin v. Cassidy (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 106, 111, 307 P.2d 981] .

§ 35B.25 Abandonment--Governing Law

[1] Governing Law Depends on Date of Execution of Lease

The options open to a lessor when a lessee abandons leased property depend, generally, on whether the lease involved was executed before, or on or after, July 1, 1971. Leases executed before that date and leases executed on or after that date but the terms of which were fixed by a lease, option, or other agreement executed before that date are subject to the traditional law on abandonment [see Civ. Code § 1952.2; see also [2], below]. All other leases are subject to the statutory law on abandonment [see Civ. Code §§ 1951-1952.2; see also [3], below].

[2] Traditional Law

Whether the elements of an abandonment existed in a given case has traditionally been a question of fact [Boral v. Caldwell (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 157, 162, 35 Cal. Rptr. 689 ; Flynn v. Mikelian (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 305, 311, 25 Cal. Rptr. 138] .

When the tenant expressed or was found to have expressed an intention to abandon the premises, the abandonment was viewed as being merely an offer to surrender [Welcome v. Hess (1891) 90 Cal. 507, 513, 27 P. 369] . Under these circumstances, the landlord had one of the following three possible remedies [Kulawitz v. Pacific Woodenware & Paper Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 664, 671, 155 P.2d 24 ; see Dorcich v. Time Oil Co. (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 677, 683, 230 P.2d 10] :

- To consider the lease as still in existence and sue for the unpaid rent as it came due;
- To treat the lease as terminated and retake possession for the landlord's own account (resulting in a surrender by operation of law); or
- To retake possession for the tenant's account and relet the premises, holding the tenant responsible for the difference between the lease rentals and what the landlord was able in good faith to procure by reletting.

Thus, under the traditional concept of abandonment, the landlord's actions after a tenant's abandonment determine whether or not the abandonment results in a surrender of the lease by operation of law.

[3] Statutory Law

[a] Introduction to Lessor's Remedies

Legislation enacted since 1970 has substantially revised the lessor's remedies when a lessee has breached the lease and abandoned the premises, and has provided a statutory procedure for determining whether abandonment has in fact occurred [see Civ. Code §§ 1951-1952.3]. Legislation now provides that, if a lessee breaches the lease and abandons the premises, the lease terminates and the lessor is entitled to recover prescribed damages [see Civ. Code § 1951.2(a); see also [e], below]. When the rent on leased real property has been due and unpaid for at least 14 consecutive days, and the landlord reasonably believes that the tenant has abandoned the property, the landlord may give a notice of belief of abandonment to the tenant [Civ. Code § 1951.3(b)].

[b] Notice by Landlord of Belief of Abandonment

The notice must be in substantially the form prescribed by statute [Civ. Code § 1951.3(d); see § 35B.212]. It must specify the date on which the lease will terminate and this date must not be less than 15 days after the notice's personal service, or not less than 18 days after deposit in the mail, as appropriate [Civ. Code § 1951.3(b)].

The notice must be personally delivered to the lessee or sent by first-class mail, postage prepaid, to the lessee at his or her last known address and, if there is reason to believe that the notice sent to that address will not be received by the lessee, it must also be sent to any other address known to the landlord where the lessee may reasonably be expected to receive the notice [Civ. Code § 1951.3(c)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Landlord Should Give Statutory Notice. The landlord is not required to give the statutory notice of abandonment to take possession of abandoned premises [see Civ. Code § 1951.3(b)]. However, lessors gain a substantial advantage by doing so. If the landlord fails to give the notice, he/she takes a risk: if the landlord takes possession and turns out to be wrong--i.e., the tenant has not in fact abandoned the property--the landlord might be liable for damages for trespass, forcible entry, and/or forcible detainer. These are strict liability claims, and the landlord's good faith belief is no defense. Proper compliance with the statutory notice requirements protects the landlord from such claims even if it turns out that the premises were not in fact abandoned [see [d], below (standards for determining abandonment)]. By Myron Moskovitz.

[c] Response Required From Tenant

After giving notice of belief of abandonment, the property will be deemed abandoned unless the lessee, by the termination date, (1) replies with written notice of his or her intention not to abandon the premises [see § 35B.213], (2) pays all or a portion of the unpaid rent, or (3) proves either that no rent was 14 days overdue or that the lessor's belief in abandonment was not reasonable [Civ. Code § 1951.3(a), (e); but see [f], below (lease's continuation as alternative to termination)].

[d] Standards for Determining Abandonment

Real property will not be deemed abandoned if the tenant proves any of the following [Civ. Code § 1951.3(e)]:

- At the time the notice of belief of abandonment was given, the rent was not due and unpaid for 14 consecutive days;

- At the time the notice of belief of abandonment was given, it was not reasonable for the landlord to believe that the tenant had abandoned the real property. That the landlord knew the tenant left personal property on the real property does not, of itself, justify a finding that the landlord did not reasonably believe that the tenant had abandoned the real property;

- Before the date specified in the landlord's notice, the tenant gave written notice to the landlord stating an intent not to abandon the real property and stating an address at which he or she may be served by certified mail in any action for unlawful detainer of the real property; or

- During the period commencing 14 days before the time the notice of belief of abandonment was given, and ending on the date the lease would have terminated under the notice, the tenant paid to the landlord all or a portion of the rent due and unpaid on the real property.

None of the statutory standards listed above for determining whether an abandonment has occurred preclude the landlord from otherwise proving that the lessee abandoned the property for purposes of recovering statutory damages [Civ. Code § 1951.3(f); see Civ. Code § 1951.2 (damages)].

[e] Damages Recoverable by Landlord

[i] Statutory Standard

On a lease's termination that results from the tenant's breach and abandonment, the landlord may ordinarily recover from the tenant any of four types of damages specified by statute [see Civ. Code § 1951.2(a)(1)-(4); see also Walt v. Superior Court (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1667, 1671-1673, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d. 278 (purpose of statutory damages)]. These are enumerated in [ii]-[v], below.

The landlord has a burden of mitigating damages, but the tenant has the burden of proof concerning the landlord's reasonable mitigation [see Civ. Code § 1951.2].

For sample forms and additional discussion of a landlord's damages on the termination of a lease under Civ. Code § 1951.2, see Ch. 34B, Residential Leases , and Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases .

[ii] Worth at Time of Award

First, the landlord may recover the worth at the time of the award of the unpaid rent that had been earned at the time of termination [Civ. Code § 1951.2(a)(1)]. This figure is computed by adding the amount of the rent owed at the date of termination to interest on that amount computed at the rate specified in the lease or, if no such rate is specified, at the legal rate [Civ. Code § 1951.2(a)(1), (b); see Cal. Const. art. XV, § 1 (legal rate of interest)]. The phrase "at the time of award" refers to the time of the award under Civ. Code § 1951.2 and not to the time of the unlawful detainer award [California Safety Center, Inc. v. Jax Car Sales (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 992, 998-999, 211 Cal. Rptr. 39] . Thus, damages recoverable under these circumstances apply to unpaid rent earned up to the time of a lease's termination in accordance with abandonment or an unlawful detainer action [California Safety Center, Inc. v. Jax Car Sales (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 992, 998-999, 211 Cal. Rptr. 39] .

[iii] Damages Accrued From Time of Termination to Time of Award

Second, the landlord may recover damages accrued from the time of termination to the time of the award [Civ. Code §

1951.2(a)(2)]. These damages are the worth at the time of the award of the amount of the rent that would have accrued between the time of termination and the time of the award, minus the amount of lost rental that the tenant proves the landlord could have reasonably avoided [Civ. Code § 1951.2(a)(2)]. The worth at the time of the award is based on the actual amount owed plus interest at the rate specified in the lease or, if no amount is specified, at the legal rate [Civ. Code § 1951.2(b); see Cal. Const. art. XV, § 1 (legal rate of interest)]. Under these circumstances, "the time of award" applies to unpaid rent accruing between the lease's termination and the time of a judgment in accordance with Civ. Code § 1951.2 [California Safety Center, Inc. v. Jax Car Sales (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 992, 998-999, 211 Cal. Rptr. 39 ; see Civ. Code § 1951.2(a)(2)].

[iv] Damages for Rent Due From Time of Award to End of Lease Term

Third, the landlord may recover damages for rent due from the time of the award to the end of the lease term if (1) the lease specifically allows the landlord to collect the damages, or (2) the landlord relets in a good faith attempt to mitigate the damages, subject to any limitations in the lease [Civ. Code § 1951.2(a)(3), (c)]. If one of these conditions is met, the landlord may recover the worth at the time of the award of the difference between the unpaid rent for the balance of the term, or a shorter period if so provided in the lease, and the amount of the rental loss that the tenant proves could have been avoided [Civ. Code § 1951.2(a)(3); see Civ. Code § 1951.2(b) (computation of worth at time of award)]. Under these circumstances, "the time of award" applies to unpaid rent that accrues after the Civ. Code § 1951.2 judgment until the lease term's expiration [California Safety Center, Inc. v. Jax Car Sales (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 992, 998-999, 211 Cal. Rptr. 39] .

[v] Other Amounts

Fourth, the landlord may also recover any other amount necessary to compensate him or her for all the detriment proximately caused by the tenant's failure to perform lease obligations or which were reasonably foreseeable [Civ. Code § 1951.2(a)(4)].

[vi] Landlord May Also Be Entitled to Liquidated Damages, Equitable Relief, and Other Remedies Available in Unlawful Detainer Proceedings

Neither the statutory remedy [Civ. Code § 1951.2] nor the remedy of continuing the lease as an alternative to termination [Civ. Code § 1951.4; see [f], below] precludes a lessor from recovering damages under a valid liquidated damages clause in a lease [see Civ. Code § 1951.5], or from obtaining equitable relief when it is appropriate [Civ. Code § 1951.8]. In addition, these statutory remedies do not affect, with limited exceptions, actions for unlawful detainer, forcible entry, and forcible detainer [see Civ. Code §§ 1952-1953].

[f] Continuation of Lease as Alternative to Termination

As an alternative to terminating the lease and recovering statutory damages as a result of the tenant's breach and abandonment, a landlord may elect to continue the lease, collecting the rent on abandoned property as it becomes due under the lease [Civ. Code § 1951.4]. This remedy is available if (1) the lease specifically provides for it [Civ. Code § 1951.4(a)], (2) the lessor does not terminate the lessee's right to possession [Civ. Code § 1951.4(b)], and (3) any of three additional conditions regarding the lessee's rights to sublet the property or assign the lessee's lease interest is satisfied [see Civ. Code § 1951.4(b)].

In general, for the lessor to continue the lease in effect, the tenant must be permitted by the lease to sublet or assign the tenant's lease interest, either at will, or with the landlord's consent, which may not be unreasonably withheld [see Civ. Code § 1951.4(b)]. Under this option, the lease will continue in effect in spite of the tenant's breach, as long as the landlord does not terminate the lessee's right to possession [Civ. Code § 1951.4(b); see Civ. Code § 1951.4(c) (acts not constituting termination of lessee's right of possession)]. However, the option to continue the lease in effect terminates when the lessor evicts the tenant, in which case it appears that the lessor is entitled to recover statutory damages [see

Civ. Code § 1951.2(b); see also 9 Cal. Law Rev. Comm. 168 (1969)].

For further discussion of continuing the lease as an alternative to termination, see Ch. 34B, Residential Leases .

PRACTICE TIP:

Be Sure Lease Preserves This Remedy. When drafting a lease for a landlord of commercial space, be sure to include the language indicated in Civ. Code § 1951.4, in order to preserve this optional remedy for the landlord. By Myron Moskovitz.

§ 35B.26 Termination by Notice

[1] Statutory Requirements Govern

Termination of certain types of tenancies is governed by statute and requires that notice first be given to the tenant [see Civ. Code § 789; Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(1) (tenancy at will); see also Civ. Code §§ 1946, 1946.1 (periodic tenancy)]. Other types of tenancies do not require this notice [see Camp v. Matich (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 660, 665, 197 P.2d 345 (tenancy for fixed term); McLeran v. Benton (1887) 73 Cal. 329, 340, 14 P. 879 (tenancy at sufferance)].

Termination requirements of the various tenancies are enumerated in [2]-[5], below. For further discussion of the different types of tenancies, see Ch. 34B, Residential Leases , and California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 150, Types of Tenancies (Matthew Bender).

[2] Tenancy at Will

[a] Definition

A tenancy at will is an estate that confers, with the lessor's consent, the right to possess the premises leased for an indefinite period of time, with no express reservation of rent [Covina Manor, Inc. v. Hatch (1955) 284 P.2d 580 ; Blum v. Robertson (1864) 24 Cal. 128, 144-145] . Because the lessee holds at the lessor's will, the tenancy must be created by either express grant or agreement [Blum v. Robertson (1864) 24 Cal. 128, 144-145] . Termination of a tenancy at will is governed by statute [Civ. Code § 789] and may only be effected by a proper notice of termination [see [b], below; see also § 35B.240].

[b] Notice Requirement

A tenancy at will, however created, may be terminated by the landlord's giving written notice to the tenant, in the manner prescribed by statute, to remove from the premises within a period of not less than 30 days, to be specified in the notice [Civ. Code § 789; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1162 (methods of service); see also § 35B.240[1][d]].

[3] Periodic Tenancy

[a] Definition

A periodic tenancy is an estate that lasts for a certain term, and unless seasonably terminated before the term's end, repeats for another like term. The term may be for any length of time, for example, a year, a month, or a week [see Black's Law Dictionary (6th ed. 1990) p. 1139].

A periodic tenancy may be established by written agreement, by oral agreement, or by statutory presumption when the tenant holds over at the end of the lease term and continues to pay rent with the landlord's consent [Civ. Code §§ 1945, 1945.5; Miller v. Stults (1956) 143 Cal. App. 2d 592, 598-599, 300 P.2d 312] . Termination of this type of tenancy is governed by statute [Civ. Code § 1946], which permits either lessor or tenant to terminate the tenancy by giving proper notice of termination to the other party [see [b]-[d], below; see also § 35B.240].

[b] Notice Requirements--Month-to-Month Tenancy

A tenancy from month-to-month may be terminated at any time by a 30-day written notice from either party, landlord or tenant, to the other [Civ. Code § 1946]. When the tenancy is terminated by a 30-day notice given other than 30 days before the end of any month term, the tenancy terminates at the end of the 30 days specified in the notice, and rent is due and payable up to and including the date of termination [Civ. Code § 1946].

Notwithstanding the above, the parties to the tenancy may agree at the time the tenancy is created that it may be terminated by a notice given at any time not less than seven days before a recurring term of the tenancy expires [Civ. Code § 1946].

Notwithstanding Civ. Code § 1946 an owner must give notice at least 60 days (not 30 days) before the proposed date of termination of a periodic tenancy if the tenant has been living in the dwelling for at least one year [Civ. Code § 1946.1(a)-(c)]. In any case, a tenant must give notice for a period at least as long as the term of the periodic tenancy before the proposed date of termination [Civ. Code § 1946.1(b), (e)]. Notice must be sent by certified or registered mail or given in the manner prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1162 [Civ. Code § 1946.1(f)].

The 60-day notice requirement for longer term renters does not apply if (1) the dwelling or unit is alienable separate from the title to any other dwelling unit; (2) the owner has contracted to sell the dwelling or unit to a bona fide purchaser for value, and has established an escrow with a licensed escrow agent or a licensed real estate broker; (3) the purchaser is a natural person or persons; (4) the notice is given no more than 120 days after escrow is established; (5) notice was not previously given to the tenant in accordance with Civ. Code § 1946.1; and (6) the purchaser in good faith intends to reside in the property for at least one full year after the tenancy's termination [Civ. Code § 1946.1(d)]. These provisions do not affect the authority of a public entity to regulate or monitor the basis for eviction [Civ. Code § 1946.1(g)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Service of Notice Terminating Month-to-Month Tenancy. Clients often have what is a common misconception, which is that the notice terminating a month-to-month tenancy must be served prior to the first day of the month if rent is due on the first day of the month. If the client insists on the notice being served in that manner the client should be warned not to accept rent for the full monthly term or else the notice will be vitiated. By Benjamin Kaplan.

PRACTICE TIP:

Thirty-Day Notice May Be Given at Any Time. Note that the 30-day notice may be given at any time.

Thus, even though a month-to-month tenancy might run from the 1st of each month, either party may give the notice on some day other than the 1st, in which case it will terminate the tenancy 30 days later. The rent for the portion of the subsequent month before termination will be apportioned. By Myron Moskovitz.

PRACTICE TIP:

Notice Requirements for Commercial vs. Residential Tenancies. Although there is some latitude in altering statutory notice provisions respecting commercial leases, as contained in the Civil Code and Code of Civil Procedure, the same latitude is not accorded residential leases. Therefore, if the residential lease has provisions contrary to that provided by statute, those provisions should probably be disregarded unless demonstrably more favorable to the tenant. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[c] Notice Requirements--Other Periodic Tenancies

Any periodic tenancy other than a month-to-month tenancy, such as a year-to-year or a week-to-week tenancy, may be terminated unilaterally only at the end of one of its recurring terms [Civ. Code § 1946]. In the absence of an agreement between the parties, the notice required to terminate a periodic tenancy, other than one from month-to-month, must be given either 30 days before one of the recurring terms expires or as long before expiration as one of the terms as the term itself [Civ. Code § 1946]. For example, in the absence of an agreement between the parties, a year-to-year tenancy may be terminated only by a written notice given at least 30 days before the end of one of its yearly terms and a week-to-week tenancy may be terminated only by a written notice given at least one week before the end of one of its weekly terms [see Civ. Code § 1946].

An owner must give notice at least 60 days before the proposed date of termination if the tenant has been living in the dwelling for at least one year. The tenant must give notice for a period at least as long as the term of the periodic tenancy before the proposed date of termination [Civ. Code § 1946.1(b), (e); see § 35B.26[3][b]].

Notwithstanding the above, the parties to any type of periodic tenancy may agree at the time the tenancy is created that it may be terminated by a notice given at any time not less than seven days before a recurring term of the tenancy expires [Civ. Code § 1946].

[d] Service of Notice

[i] Manner of Giving Notice

The notice to terminate a periodic tenancy must be given in either of the following ways [Civ. Code §§ 1946, 1946.1]:

- In the manner prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1162 [see below]; or
- By sending a copy by certified or registered mail addressed to the other party.

Service of the notice, by either the landlord or the tenant, in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1162, must be given as follows:

- By delivering a copy to the party personally [Code Civ. Proc. § 1162(1)];
- If the party is absent from his or her residence and usual place of business, by (1) leaving a copy with some person of suitable age and discretion at either place and (2) sending a copy through the mail addressed to the tenant at his or her place of residence [Code Civ. Proc. § 1162(2)]; or
- If the party's places of residence and business cannot be ascertained, or a person of suitable age or discretion cannot be found at either place, by affixing a copy in a conspicuous place on the property, delivering a copy to a person residing on the property (if one can be found), and mailing a copy to the tenant at the leased premises [Code Civ. Proc. § 1162(3)].

If the tenant is the party giving the notice, he or she is permitted to give notice by sending a copy by certified or registered mail addressed to the lessor's agent to whom the lessee has paid rent for the month before the date of the notice or by delivering a copy to the agent personally [Civ. Code § 1946]. However, a tenant giving notice pursuant to Civ. Code § 1946.1 (regarding termination of tenancies when tenant has been living in dwelling for at least one year), must give notice in the manner specified by Code Civ. Proc. § 1162 or by certified or registered mail [Civ. Code § 1946.1(f); see § 35B.26[3][b]].

PRACTICE TIP:

Notice to Terminate vs. Three-Day Notice to Quit or Pay Rent. Do not confuse service of a 30-day notice under Civ. Code § 1946 or a 60-day notice under Civ. Code § 1946.1 with service of a three-day notice to quit or pay rent under the unlawful detainer statute. A three-day notice may be served at any time within one year after the rent becomes due [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2)]. By Myron Moskovitz and Publisher's Editorial Staff.

PRACTICE TIP: Actual Notice Should Be Goal. Many problems arise regarding the notice in terms of factual determinations. These include (1) when it was given, (2) when it was effective, and (3) when and if it was actually received. Actual notice should be the goal. Since many actions fail due to improper service, service must be effectuated in all the possible available manners pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1162. Any party who mails first class mail should do so at the post office and obtain and retain a post office issued Certificate of Mailing as evidence. Often times after obtaining service in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1162(2) or (3), the tenants guard will be down as the tenant will think that they have already been served. At that point, personal service should be effected. Thus, ideally, one would have service by posting and mailing, also service on a competent person and mailing, also service by certified or registered mail, and "service" (not really "service") by First Class Mail, Certificate of Mailing. The First Class Mailing is a "fall-back" in an instance in which the tenant denies receipt by other means, and is designed to have more of a "psychological" rather than legal effect on the court as a tenant (or landlord) denying receipt of such mail will usually appear to be a liar. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[ii] Service of Notice on Cotenants and Subtenants

Service of notice by the landlord on one cotenant is notice to the other cotenant(s) [University of So. Cal. v. Weiss (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 759, 769-770, 25 Cal. Rptr. 475] . Notice by one cotenant to the landlord, however, does not function as notice by the other cotenant who continues as a tenant until the landlord terminates the tenancy as to him or her [Schmitt v. Felix (1958) 157 Cal. App. 2d 642, 647, 321 P.2d 473] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Serve as Many Cotentants as You Can. Although only one cotenant need be served, it is a good idea to serve as many cotenants as you can. If one cotenant shows that service was improper for some reason, you might be able to rely on service on another cotenant. By Myron Moskovitz.

PRACTICE TIP:

Again, Serve All Tenants. Although service on one "co-tenant" may well be service on the other co-tenants your practice should be to insure that all tenants are served regardless of their tenancy status or character of their tenancy. Also, keep in mind that under certain local eviction control ordinances claims may arise that all tenants need to be served with notices. By Benjamin Kaplan.

If a subtenant is involved, the 30-day notice of termination is not required to be served on the subtenant [Four Seas

Inv. Corp. v. International Hotel Tenants' Assn. (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 604, 611-612, 146 Cal. Rptr. 531] .

[4] Tenancy for Years

A tenancy for years, also known as a tenancy for a fixed term, is one created for a definite term. To be effectively created, the duration must be capable of exact computation when it becomes possessory [Camp v. Matich (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 660, 665, 197 P.2d 345] . This type of tenancy terminates automatically at the lease term's end, and no notice of termination is necessary, unless either party seeks to prematurely terminate the lease for cause [Ryland v. Appelbaum (1924) 70 Cal. App. 268, 270, 233 P. 356] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Termination of Tenancy for Years. If, at the expiration of the tenancy for years the lessor accepts rent, then the tenancy can only thereafter be terminated by notice as there would be a new tenancy created by the acceptance of rent. In all likelihood that new tenancy would be a tenancy from month-to-month, pursuant to the terms of the then existing lease or presumptively under the Civil Code. However, the determination of what type of tenancy is created by the lessor's acceptance of rent after the termination of a fixed term tenancy must always be independently determined. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[5] Tenancy at Sufferance

A tenancy at sufferance arises when one comes lawfully into possession of land but keeps it afterward without any title and without the lessor's consent [Hull v. Laugharn (1934) 3 Cal. App. 2d 310, 314, 39 P.2d 478 ; Gartlan v. C.A. Hooper & Co. (1918) 177 Cal. 414, 426, 170 P. 1115] . There is no notice requirement for terminating this type of tenancy; the lessor may therefore terminate it at any time [Vandenbergh v. Davis (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 694, 699, 12 Cal. Rptr. 222] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Tenancy at Sufferance May Be Protected by Eviction Control Law. There exist many traps for the unwary. In regard to a tenancy at sufferance, such tenancy may be "protected" by eviction control laws. See San Francisco Rent Stabilization and Arbitration Ordinance § 37.2(t), which defines "Tenant" as "[a] person entitled by written or oral agreement, subtenancy approved by the landlord, or by sufferance [emphasis supplied], to occupy a residential dwelling unit to the exclusion of others." Such a tenant by sufferance is thus entitled not only to notice under the Ordinance, but that notice must be premised on one of the denominated "just cause" grounds thereof. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[6] Property in Foreclosure

Notwithstanding the unlawful detainer provisions of Civ. Code § Code Civ. Proc. § 1161 [see § 35B.44], a tenant or subtenant in possession of a rental housing unit at the time the property is sold in foreclosure must be given 60 days' written notice to quit in the manner set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1162 before the tenant or subtenant may be removed from the property through unlawful detainer proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161b(a)]. However, this notice requirement does not apply if any party to the note remains in the property as a tenant, subtenant, or occupant [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161b(b)]. Section1161b was enacted in 2008 in a statute intended to ameliorate the deleterious effects on the state economy and local economies and the California housing market resulting from the foreclosures of residential properties in unprecedented numbers resulting from subprime lending practices [2008 Stats., Ch. 69, sec. 1(d)]. It is in effect until January 1, 2013, and as of that date is repealed, unless a later enacted statute, that is enacted before January 1, 2013, deletes or extends that date [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161b(c)]. For discussion of SB 1137, see § 25D.31.

In 2009, Congress established a 90-day notice to vacate requirement in the Protecting Tenants at Foreclosure Act [P.L. 111-22, S. 896]. This requirement applies to any foreclosure on a federally-related mortgage loan or on any dwelling or residential real property after May 20, 2009 [P.L. 111-22, sec. 702, 123 Stats. 1660-1661; see also P.L. 111-22, sec.

703, 123 Stats. 1661, amending 42 U.S.C. § 1437f(o)(7) (following foreclosure, successor in interest may terminate section 8 tenancy on 90 days' notice if owner will occupy property as primary residence)]. In addition, the Act provides that any immediate successor in interest in the property pursuant to the foreclosure assumes that interest subject to the rights of any bona fide tenant as of the date of the notice of foreclosure, under any bona fide lease entered into before the notice of foreclosure, to occupy the premises until the end of the remaining term of the lease [P.L. 111-22, sec. 702(a)(2), 123 Stats. 1661]. However, a successor in interest may terminate a lease effective on the date of sale of the unit to a purchaser who will occupy the unit as a primary residence, subject to the receipt by the tenant of a 90-day notice to vacate [P.L. 111-22, sec. 702(a)(2), 123 Stats. 1661]. A lease or tenancy is considered bona fide if (1) the mortgagor or the child, spouse, or parent of the mortgagor under the contract is not the tenant; (2) the lease or tenancy was the result of an arms-length transaction; and (3) the lease or tenancy requires the receipt of rent that is not substantially less than fair market rent for the property or the unit's rent is reduced or subsidized due to a federal, state, or local subsidy [P.L. 111-22, sec. 702(b), 123 Stats. 1661]. These provisions are repealed on December 31, 2012 [P.L. 111-22, sec. 704, 123 Stats. 1662]. As of August 2009, the California Legislature was in the process of amending Code Civ. Proc. § 1161b to extend the notice period from 60 to 90 days if required by any other provision of state or federal law [SB 483, Corbett].

§ 35B.27 Special Rules Relating to Termination of a Hiring

[1] Hiring--Definition

A hiring is a contract by which one gives to another the temporary possession and use of property, and the latter agrees to return the property to the former at a future time [Civ. Code § 1925]. Leases come within this definition of a hiring [see Santa Monica Rent Control Board v. Bluvshtein (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 308, 316, 281 Cal. Rptr. 298 ; Cooperative Bldg. Materials v. Robbins & Larkey (1947) 80 Cal. App. 2d 832, 839, 183 P.2d 81] .

[2] Presumptions Related to Term of Hiring

When there is no custom or usage on the subject, a hiring of real property, other than lodgings and dwelling houses, is presumed to be a month-to-month tenancy unless otherwise designated in writing, with one exception. In the case of real property used for agricultural or grazing purposes, a hiring is presumed to be for one year from its commencement, unless otherwise expressed in the hiring [Civ. Code § 1943].

A hiring of lodgings or a dwelling house for an unspecified term is presumed to have been for the length of time as the parties adopt for the rent's estimation. Thus, a hiring at a monthly rate of rent is presumed to be for one month. Absent an agreement regarding the length of time or the rent, the hiring is presumed to be monthly [Civ. Code § 1944].

PRACTICE TIP:

Recovery of Attorneys' Fees If the client tells you that the tenancy is an oral month-to-month agreement, do not assume that there is no possibility of recovering attorneys' fees. Ask if the tenant is holding over after a prior lease ended. If so, and if the prior lease contained an attorney's fee provision, then Civ. Code § 1945 (regarding implied renewal of leases) [see [3], below] will permit recovery of these fees in any present litigation. By Myron Moskovitz.

[3] Implied Renewal of Term

If a lessee remains in possession after the hiring expires and the lessor accepts rent from him or her, the parties are presumed to have renewed the hiring on the same terms and for the same time, not exceeding one month when the rent is payable monthly nor in any case one year [Civ. Code § 1945; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2) (holding of agricultural lands)].

A hiring for a term not specified by the parties is deemed renewed as stated above at the end of the term implied by law, unless one of the parties gives written notice of intention to terminate [Civ. Code § 1946; see § 35B.26].

[4] Termination

[a] Statutory Grounds Generally

As a hiring, a lease terminates on the occurrence of any of the following [Civ. Code § 1933]:

(1) At the end of the term agreed on;

(2) By the mutual consent of the parties;

(3) By the hirer (tenant) acquiring a title to the thing hired superior to that of the letter (lessor); or

(4) By the destruction of the thing hired.

For example, a lease terminates when there is a merger of the tenant's interest as tenant, with his or her interest as lessor, after he or she acquires the lessor's interest [Vucinich v. Gordon (1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 434, 437, 124 P.2d 868] . Additionally, if the property is let for a particular purpose, the lessee must not use it for any other purpose, and if the lessee does, he or she is liable to the letter (lessor) for all damages resulting from such use, or the lessor may treat the contract as rescinded [Civ. Code § 1930; Isom v. Rex Crude Oil Co. (1905) 147 Cal. 659, 661, 82 P. 317 ; but see Keating v. Preston (1940) 42 Cal. App. 2d 110, 117, 108 P.2d 479 (requirement that Civ. Code § 1930 be read in connection with Civ. Code § 1689, stating grounds on which contract may be rescinded)].

[b] Premature Termination

A letter (lessor) may prematurely terminate a hiring when the hirer (tenant) uses or permits a use of the thing hired in a manner contrary to the parties' agreement, or when the hirer does not, within a reasonable time after request, make such repairs as he or she is bound to make [Civ. Code § 1931]. A hirer may terminate the hiring before the term's end when either of the following conditions are met [Civ. Code § 1932]:

- The lessor does not, within a reasonable time after request fulfill his or her obligations, if any, as to placing and securing the lessee in the quiet possession of the thing hired, or putting it into good condition, or repairing; or

- The greater part of the thing hired, or that part which was and which the letter had at the time of the hiring reason to believe was the material inducement to the hirer to enter into the contract, perishes from any other cause than the want of the hirer's ordinary care.

§ 35B.28 Termination by Destruction of Premises

Although destruction of the premises is cause for a lease's termination [Civ. Code §§ 1932(2), 1933(4); see § 35B.27[4]], lease provisions may alter the governing effect of these statutes. For example, if the lease expressly requires the lessor to rebuild the demised premises if they are totally destroyed by fire, then the lease does not terminate [Mattal v. American Trust Co. (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 645, 647-650, 25 Cal. Rptr. 517] . Alternatively, if the lessee assumes, by his or her covenants to repair, the risk of the destruction of the premises, he or she may not terminate the lease [see Glenn R. Sewell Sheet Metal, Inc. v. Loverde (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 666, 674-678, 75 Cal. Rptr. 889, 451 P.2d 721] . However, a general covenant to repair is insufficient to prevent the lease's termination on destruction [Realty & Rebuilding Co. v. Rea (1920) 184 Cal. 565, 574-578, 194 P. 1024] .

If the premises are only partially destroyed, the destruction must be to the part of the property that is being leased. For example, if the tenant has a ground lease, the building's destruction does not terminate the lease, unless the lease provides the contrary [Hamer v. Ellis (1919) 40 Cal. App. 57, 60, 180 P. 30] .

§ 35B.29 Termination by Death or Incapacity

If a lease is terminable at the pleasure of one of the parties, it is terminated by notice to the other of his or her death or incapacity to contract [Civ. Code § 1934]. Thus, a tenancy at will or at sufferance may be terminated because of death or incapacity to contract. However, absent a contrary lease provision, the death or incapacity to contract of either party does not terminate a tenancy for a fixed term [*Joost v. Castel (1939) 33 Cal. § 35B.30 Termination by Commercial Frustration

The doctrine of frustration arises from a commercial necessity of excusing performance in cases of extreme hardship. Unlike the doctrine of impossibility, which involves physical impossibility and extreme impracticability, performance excused by commercial frustration remains possible, but the expected value of the performance to the party seeking to be excused has been destroyed by a chance event, which supervenes to cause an actual but not literal failure of consideration [Lloyd v. Murphy (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 48, 53, 153 P.2d 47] . The doctrine of frustration is usually limited to cases of extreme hardship so that business people, who must make their arrangements in advance, can rely with certainty on their contracts [Lloyd v. Murphy (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 48, 54, 153 P.2d 47] . However, if the parties contract in reference to the frustrating event, even if the event is beyond their imagination, the doctrine of frustration may not be used [see Glenn R. Sewell Sheet Metal, Inc. v. Loverde (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 666, 675-678, 75 Cal. Rptr. 889, 451 P.2d 721] .

§ 35B.31 Termination by Bankruptcy

The Bankruptcy Code of 1978 [11 U.S.C. § 101 et seq.] provides, with limited exceptions, that an executory contract or unexpired lease of a bankrupt debtor may not be terminated solely because of (1) a provision in the contract or lease that is conditioned on the insolvency or financial condition of the debtor, (2) the filing of bankruptcy by or against the debtor, or (3) the appointment of or taking possession of the debtor's property by a trustee in bankruptcy or a custodian before bankruptcy [11 U.S.C. § 365(e)(1); see 11 U.S.C. § 365(e)(2) (exceptions)]. § 35B.32 Termination by Condemnation Property subject to a lease may be taken in whole or in part under the power of eminent domain. Absent a valid lease provision to the contrary [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.160], when all the property subject to a lease is acquired for public use, the lease terminates [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.110]. Unless the parties to a lease provide otherwise in their lease [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.160], when part of the property subject to a lease is taken for public use, the lease terminates as to the part taken and remains in force as to the remainder, and the rent reserved in the lease that is allocable to the part taken is extinguished [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.120]. However, the court may, on petition of any party to the lease, terminate the lease if the court determines that an essential part of the property subject to the lease is taken, or that the remainder of the property subject to the lease is no longer suitable for the lease's purposes [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.130]. For comprehensive treatment of the subject of condemnation, see California Real Estate Law and Practice, chs. 500- 513, Condemnation Practice Handbook (Matthew Bender).

PRACTICE TIP:

"Standard" Termination Clauses in Cases of Condemnation. I have actually seen leases that contain what are "standard" termination clauses if condemnation should occur. When the character of the lessor was examined it was determined that the lessor was either a governmental or quasi-governmental agency who had written a 30-day termination clause into a lease ostensibly for years, where the plan was for that agency to gradually reoccupy other floors of the building it owned and controlled. By Benjamin Kaplan.

§ 35B.33 Termination by Actual or Constructive Eviction

[1] When Actual or Constructive Eviction Occurs

Actual eviction occurs when the lessor or someone with paramount title ousts the tenant from possession [McAlester v. Landers (1886) 70 Cal. 79, 82-83, 11 P. 505] . Partial eviction, when the tenant is forcibly evicted from a substantial portion of the leased premises, but continues to occupy the remainder under the lease, is also possible [see Giraud v. Milovich (1938) 29 Cal. App. 2d 543, 547-548, 85 P.2d 182] .

Constructive eviction occurs if, as a result of any disturbance of the tenant's possession by the lessor, or at the lessor's procurement, which renders the premises unfit for the purposes for which they were demised, or which has the effect of depriving the tenant of the beneficial enjoyment of the premises, the tenant vacates the premises within a reasonable time [Pierce v. Nash (1954) 126 Cal. App. 2d 606, 612-613, 272 P.2d 938 ; see Civ. Code § 1927 (covenant of quiet enjoyment implied); McDowell v. Hyman (1897) 117 Cal. 67, 70, 48 P. 984 (covenant means tenant will not be wrongly evicted or disturbed in his or her possession by lessor or persons deriving title from lessor)]. Constructive eviction may also result if the tenant vacates the premises in response to an improper notice to quit threatening an unlawful detainer action, even if the lessor does not physically substantially interfere with the tenant's possession and quiet enjoyment [see Asell v. Rodrigues (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 817, 823, 108 Cal. Rptr. 566] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Tenant Must Vacate. Remember that there is no "constructive eviction" in the absence of an actual vacating by the tenant [see, e.g., Dussin Investment Co. v. Bloxham (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 308, 315-316, 157 Cal. Rptr. 646] . By Benjamin Kaplan.

PRACTICE TIP: Effect of Breach of Covenant of "Quiet Enjoyment" on Eviction Action. The breach of the covenant of "quiet enjoyment" is not an independent grounds for asserting constructive eviction, nor does it provide a defense to an eviction action. In one case, the court barred the use of such a claim as an affirmative defense, ruling that there was no breach unless and until the tenant vacated within a reasonable time (that is, actual constructive eviction) [Petroleum Collections Inc. v. Swords (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 841, 846-848, 122 Cal. Rptr. 114] . The Petroleum decision is in keeping with the general policy in unlawful detainer actions that strictly limits the scope of "defenses" that will be entertained in summary proceedings [see, e.g., Knowles v. Robinson (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 620, 625-627, 36 Cal. Rptr. 33 (affirmative defenses restricted to preserve summary nature of unlawful detainer action); D'Amico v. Riedel (1949) 95 Cal. App. 2d 6, 9, 212 P.2d 52 (fraud defense not allowed)]. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[2] Effect of Actual or Constructive Eviction

Actual or constructive eviction may, but does not necessarily, result in a lease's termination [see, e.g., Lindenberg v. MacDonald (1950) 34 Cal. 2d 678, 678-683, 214 P.2d 5 (no termination when landlord served notice to quit in bad faith)]. If there is a constructive eviction, the tenant is relieved of any further liability for the payment of rent after abandonment of the premises [Veysey v. Moriyama (1921) 184 Cal. 802, 805-807, 195 P. 662] . The tenant also has the option of standing on the lease and claiming damages for breach of the covenant of quiet enjoyment, rather than vacating the premises [Guntert v. City of Stockton (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 131, 138-141, 126 Cal. Rptr. 690 ; Slater v. Conti (1959) 171 Cal. App. 2d 582, 585, 341 P.2d 395 ; Riechhold v. Sommarstrom Invest. Co. (1927) 83 Cal. App. 173, 177, 256 P. 592] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Tenant Has Options. Before claiming constructive eviction and terminating the lease, the tenant should examine the economic value of the lease by comparing the required rent to the present market rent for similar premises. If the lease is valuable, the tenant might be better off staying in place and suing the landlord for damages. By Myron Moskovitz.

For further discussion of actual and constructive eviction, including its effect on termination and the tenant's obligation to pay rent, see California Real Estate Law and Practice, ch. 200, Termination: Causes and Procedures (Matthew Bender).

§ 35B.34 Termination by Breach of Lease Covenant

[1] Termination by Landlord

A tenant's continued neglect or failure to perform the covenants or conditions of a lease, including one to pay rent, provides a landlord with a basis for terminating a lease. The lease is terminated on expiration of the three-day notice to perform or quit [see §§ 35B.230, 35B.231 (sample three-day notices)]. On expiration of the three-day notice, the landlord may bring an action for unlawful detainer, which will give him or her the right to possession [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2), (3); see also § 35B.44].

[2] Termination by Tenant

A tenant may have cause to terminate the lease because of the lessor's breach of a covenant of the lease [see Fong v. Rossi (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 20, 23, 195 P.2d 854 (lessor's failure to fulfill material condition of lease as material failure of consideration); Garetson v. Hester (1943) 57 Cal. App. 2d 39, 43-46, 133 P.2d 863 (violation of provision offering tenant first option to purchase as grounds for terminating lease)]. For a tenant to terminate a lease, the lessor's breach must be of a dependent, and not an independent, covenant [see Medico-Dental Bldg. Co. of Los Angeles v. Horton & Converse (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 411, 418-424, 132 P.2d 457] .

§ 35B.40 Four Types of Actions

A lessor who wants to evict a tenant to regain possession of the premises may pursue any one of four methods:

- The nonjudicial remedy of self-help [see § 35B.41];
- The judicial method of suit in ejectment [see § 35B.42];
- The judicial method of an action to quiet title [see § 35B.43]; and

§ 35B.41 Self-Help

The remedy of self-help consists of physically evicting or ousting the tenant. Its use is discouraged in California because (1) the law takes a dim view of breaches of the peace and (2) enactment of the statutory unlawful detainer procedure [see § 35B.44] obviates the need for any resort to self-help [Kassan v. Stout (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 39, 44, 106 Cal. Rptr. 783, 507 P.2d 87] . Although leases may contain a provision permitting a lessor to reenter the premises and remove the tenant and his or her possessions for a breach of a covenant or condition of the lease [see Civ. Code §§ 790, 791], orderly procedure and preservation of the peace require that actual possession not be disturbed except by legal process [Jordan v. Talbot (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 597, 605, 12 Cal. Rptr. 488, 361 P.2d 20] . Thus, even when a right of reentry provision is contained in the lease, self-help through reentry may be resorted to by lessors only when the tenant has voluntarily surrendered the premises [Jordan v. Talbot (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 597, 604, 12 Cal. Rptr. 488, 361 P.2d 20] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Self-Help on Landlord's Use of Abandonment Procedure. There is one more situation when the landlord may use self-help: when the landlord has properly used the statutory notice of abandonment procedure (even if the tenant has not in fact abandoned) [see Civ. Code §§ 1951-1952.3; see also § 35B.25[3]]. By Myron Moskovitz.

§ 35B.42 Suit in Ejectment

A suit in ejectment is an action designed to restore possession to the person entitled to it [see Black's Law Dictionary (6th ed. 1990) pp. 516-517]. The plaintiff must not only establish the right of possession in himself or herself, but must also establish that the defendant is in (wrongful) possession, thereby disposing the plaintiff [see Black's Law Dictionary (6th ed. 1990) pp. 516-517]. A suit in ejectment may be maintained at any time after the right of reentry accrues and without serving notice [Civ. Code §§ 791, 793]. Such a suit is infrequently used as a method of obtaining possession because, as a traditional civil action, it is time consuming and often cumbersome.

For further discussion of ejectment actions, see California Real Estate Law and Practice, ch. 210, Unlawful Detainer (Matthew Bender), and California Forms of Pleading and Practice, ch. 241 Ejectment (Matthew Bender).

PRACTICE TIP:

Suit in Ejectment vs. Unlawful Detainer Action. A suit in ejectment may be maintained without prior compliance with the statutory notice procedures required for an unlawful detainer lawsuit [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161]. Nevertheless, ejectment is rarely used, because it is not accorded any priority for trial, as unlawful detainer is. By Myron Moskovitz.

PRACTICE TIP:

Suit in Ejectment vs. Unlawful Detainer Action. There may be certain instances in which a suit in ejectment may be one of the only remedies available for the plaintiff owner to obtain possession. The action for unlawful detainer is wholly statutory and there are many instances in which it will not be available. One example, is where the owner acquires title to the premises by means of bidding at a tax sale conducted by the County Tax Collector's office after the previous owner defaulted in the payment of taxes. By Benjamin Kaplan.

18-35B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 35B.43

§ 35B.43 Action to Quiet Title

An action to quiet title is a proceeding to establish the plaintiff's title to land by bringing into court and compelling an adverse claimant to set forth his or her claim so that it may be determined by decree. It embraces every sort of claim whereby the plaintiff might be deprived of his or her property, the property's title clouded, or its value depreciated, or whereby the plaintiff might be disturbed by assertion of an outstanding title already held or grown out of adverse possession [Bank of America Nat. Trust & Savings Assn. v. Town of Atherton (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 268, 271-272, 140 P.2d 678] . Thus, an action to quiet title may be maintained by a lessor if the lessee has forfeited his or her rights under the lease by not complying with its covenants or conditions [Andrews v. Russell (1927) 85 Cal. App. 149, 154, 259 P. 113] . In the lessor's action to quiet title, the lessor establishes a prima facie case by proof of his or her title; if denied, the lessee must then prove his or her interest by introducing the lease, and then the lessor may prove matters in the lease's avoidance [Riedman v. Barkwill (1934) 139 Cal. App. 564, 567, 34 P.2d 744] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Remedy Is Not Exclusive. Quiet title actions are statutory [see Code Civ. Proc. § 760.010 et seq.] and have a detailed schema. However, the remedy so provided is cumulative, not exclusive, and any form or right of action or proceeding provided by law for quieting title or establishing title to property is also permitted [Code Civ. Proc. § 760.030(a)]. By Benjamin Kaplan.

PRACTICE TIP:

Action to Quiet Title Is Infrequently Used. Like a suit in ejectment [see § 35B.42], an action to quiet title is infrequently used as a method of obtaining possession of the premises because, as a traditional civil action, it is time consuming and often cumbersome. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

§ 35B.44 Unlawful Detainer

[1] Purpose of Proceeding; Strict Compliance With Statutory Provisions Is Required

The summary proceeding of unlawful detainer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1161-1179a] is an optional procedure for evicting a tenant who holds the premises after the expiration or in violation of a lease's terms. Its primary purpose is to recover possession of the premises [Childs v. Eltinge (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 843, 853, 105 Cal. Rptr. 864] . Any landlord pursuing this remedy must comply strictly with the statutory provisions since the proceeding provides for the forfeiture, in certain cases, of valuable rights [Woods-Drury, Inc. v. Superior Court (1936) 18 Cal. App. 2d 340, 344, 63 P.2d 1184] . As a summary proceeding, an unlawful detainer action has "precedence" over most other civil actions on a court's calendar [Code Civ. Proc. § 1179a]. Thus, the unlawful detainer action is used more frequently as an eviction proceeding than either the suit in ejectment [see § 35B.42] or the action to quiet title [see § 35B.43].

PRACTICE TIP:

Speedy Nature of Unlawful Detainer Actions. Note that the unlawful detainer suit gets more than priority. Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.5 requires the court clerk to set the case for trial within 20 days after an "at-issue" memorandum is filed. Thus, the action is far speedier than either ejectment or quiet title. By Myron Moskovitz.

[2] Conduct by Tenant Resulting in Unlawful Detainer

Conduct that may render a tenant (and a subtenant, if the subtenant is in actual possession of the premises) guilty of unlawful detainer includes any of the following:

- Continuing in possession after defaulting in the payment of rent and after being served with a three-day written notice that requires payment of rent or surrender of possession, if he or she fails to comply with the three-day notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2); see § 35B.230];

- Continuing in possession after failing to perform a covenant of the lease (other than the covenant to pay rent), if covenant can still be performed, and after being served with a three-day written notice that requires the covenant's performance or surrender of possession [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(3); see § 35B.231];

- Continuing in possession after a noncurable breach of a condition or covenant of the lease or agreement under which the property is held and after being served with a three-day notice to surrender possession [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(3); see § 35B.232];

- Continuing in possession after subleasing, assigning, or committing waste contrary to covenants of the lease under which the property is held, or maintaining, committing, or permitting the maintenance or commission of a nuisance on the premises or using the premises for an unlawful purpose, and after being served with a three-day notice demanding surrender of possession [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(4); see § 35B.232]; or

- Continuing in possession after giving written notice to the landlord, pursuant to statute, of the tenant's intent to terminate the lease or making a written offer to surrender that is accepted in writing by the landlord [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(5); see Civ. Code § 1946 (methods of notice)].

The lessor must generally serve a notice on the tenant (or possessor, in certain circumstances) before the tenant will be guilty of unlawful detainer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161; see also §§ 35B.230-35B.232]. However, this does not apply to an eviction which takes place on the tenant failing to vacate after the expiration of a fixed term commercial lease.

For discussion of the litigation aspects of an unlawful detainer proceeding and of forcible detainer and forcible entry, see California Real Estate Law and Practice, ch. 210, Unlawful Detainer , and ch. 212, Forcible Entry, Forcible Detainer, and Other Torts (Matthew Bender); and California Forms of Pleading and Practice, ch. 333, Landlord and Tenant: Eviction Actions (Matthew Bender).

§ 35B.50 Statutory Procedures Governing Disposition of Abandoned Personal Property

[1] Disposition of Property by Landlord: Notice to Tenant Is Required

If the tenant who is believed by the landlord to have abandoned the leased premises has left personal property on the premises, the landlord may elect to dispose of the property remaining on the premises in accordance with an optional statutory procedure requiring the lessor to give the tenant a notice of the tenant's right to reclaim the abandoned personal property [Civ. Code §§ 1983, 1993.03; see Civ. Code §§ 1980 et seq. (applicable to residential property), 1993 et seq. (applicable to commercial property); see also §§ 35B.51, 35B.214, 35B.215]. However, this procedure is not available in situations specifically governed by other statutes [Civ. Code §§ 1981, 1993.02]. For example, it may not be used for unclaimed property in a hospital [see Civ. Code § 1862.5], for any manufactured home, mobilehome, or any commercial modular [see Health & Safety Code §§ 18007 (manufactured home defined), 18008 (mobilehome defined), 18001.8 (commercial modular defined)], or for the lost property, which must be disposed of in accordance with the lost property statutes [see Civ. Code §§ 1982, 1993.01, 2080-2080.9].

[2] Disposition of Property by Former Tenants

An alternative statutory procedure for disposing of a former tenant's personal property must be initiated by the former tenant [see Civ. Code § 1965; see also §§ 35B.52, 35B.217]. This procedure is not available if the disposition of the personal property has been initiated or completed by the landlord, in accordance with the optional procedure described in [1], above [Civ. Code § 1965(c)], or if the tenancy was in a hotel, motel, or residency club where the innkeeper retained a right of access to the dwelling unit or provided certain services [see Civ. Code § 1940(b)]. Further, this remedy is not exclusive and will not preclude either the landlord or the tenant from pursuing any other remedy provided by law [Civ. Code § 1965(f)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Disposition of Abandoned Personal Property

18-35B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 35B.51

AUTHOR: Benjamin Kaplan Myron Moskovitz Practice Consultants

§ 35B.51 Landlord's Optional Statutory Procedure to Dispose of Abandoned Personal Property

[1] Required Notice of Tenant's Right to Reclaim Abandoned Property

Notice of right to reclaim the property may be either a separate notice or it may be combined with the landlord's notice of belief of abandonment [Civ. Code §§ 1991, 1993.09; see §§ 35B.214 (separate notice), 35B.215 (combined notice)]. For further discussion of the required contents of the notice and its service, see § 35B.214.

[2] Procedure After Giving Notice to Tenant

[a] Options of Landlord

After the notice is given [see [1], above], the landlord may do any of the following [see Civ. Code §§ 1986-1988, 1993.01, 1993.07]:

- Leave the property on the vacated premises [Civ. Code §§ 1986, 1993.06];
- Store the property until it is claimed by the former tenant or person reasonably believed by the landlord to be its owner [Civ. Code §§ 1986, 1993.06]; or
- Sell the property at public sale [Civ. Code §§ 1988(a), 1993.07; see [b], below].

If the property is not claimed by the former tenant or the person believed to be its owner and is reasonably believed by the landlord to have total resale value of less than $300 (for residential property) or the lesser of $750 or $1 per square foot of the premises (for commercial property), the landlord may retain the property for the landlord's own use or dispose of it in any manner [Civ. Code §§ 1988(a), 1993.07(a)(2)].

[b] Public Sale of Property

[i] Notice of Public Sale

If the abandoned personal property is to be sold at public sale, notice of the sale must be given [Civ. Code §§ 1988(b), 1993.07(b)]. Notice of the time and place of the public sale must be given by publication in a newspaper of general circulation published in the county where the sale is to be held, with the last publication occurring not less than five days before the sale is to be held [Civ. Code §§ 1988(b), 1993.07(b)]. The notice of sale may not be published before the last of the dates specified in the lessor's notice for taking possession of the property [Civ. Code § 1988(b), 1993.07(b)]. It must describe the property to be sold in a manner reasonably adequate to permit the property owner to identify it [Civ. Code § 1988(b), 1993.07(b)].

[ii] Payment of Proceeds After Sale

After the abandoned property's public sale in the manner prescribed by statute, any balance of the sale's proceeds, after deducting the costs of storage, advertising, and sale, must be paid into the treasury of the county in which the sale took place not later than 30 days after the date of sale, if not claimed by the former tenant or the property owner [Civ. Code §§ 1988(c), 1993.07(c)]. The former tenant or other owner of the property has one year from the date the landlord pays the proceeds of the sale into the county treasury to claim the proceeds from the county. If the county pays the proceeds in whole or in part to a claimant, neither the county nor any county officer or employee will be liable to any other claimant as to the amount paid [Civ. Code §§ 1988(c), 1993.07(c)].

Nothing in the sale requirements applicable to property left on commercial premises precludes a landlord or tenant from bidding on the property at the public sale [Civ. Code § 1993.07(d)].

[3] Liability of Landlord

A landlord who follows the procedures regarding the giving of notice of the right to reclaim abandoned personal property will not be liable for property properly released or disposed of [Civ. Code §§ 1989, 1993.08]. The landlord may be liable, however, to a person to whom a notice of right to reclaim was not given if that person can prove that, before releasing or disposing of the property, the landlord believed or reasonably should have believed that this person had an interest in the property and that the landlord knew or should have known on reasonable investigation the person's address [Civ. Code §§ 1989(b)(2), (c)(2), 1993.08(b)(2), (c)(2)].

If only a portion of the property is described in the notice, the limited liability discussed above [see Civ. Code §§ 1989, 1993.08] does not protect the landlord from any liability for disposing of property not described in the notice, unless the undescribed property is contained in certain specified containers that deter immediate access to the contents [Civ. Code §§ 1983(b), 1993.03(b)].

§ 35B.52 Tenant's Optional Statutory Procedure to Reclaim Personal Property

[1] Procedure for Return of Personal Property

If a tenant vacates residential premises and leaves personal property not owned by the landlord on the premises, the landlord must surrender the personal property to the tenant, or to the tenant's duly authorized representative, if all of the following occur [Civ. Code § 1965(a)]:

(1) Within 18 days after vacating the premises, the tenant requests, in writing, the surrender of the personal property;

(2) The request includes a description of the personal property held by the landlord and specifies the tenant's mailing address;

(3) The landlord or the landlord's agent has control or possession of the tenant's personal property at the time the request is received;

(4) The tenant, before the surrender of the personal property by the landlord and on proper written demand by the landlord, tenders payment of all reasonable costs associated with the landlord's removal and storage of the personal property [see [3], below]; and

(5) The tenant agrees to claim and remove the personal property at a reasonable time mutually agreed by the landlord and tenant, but not later than 72 hours after the tender described in item (4), above.

[2] Limitations on Use of Procedure

The tenant's optional statutory procedure to reclaim personal property may not be used when either of the following exist [Civ. Code § 1965(c)]:

- The personal property's disposition has been initiated or completed in accordance with the alternative optional statutory procedure initiated by the landlord [see Civ. Code §§ 1980-1991; see also § 35B.51]; or

- The relevant tenancy was in a hotel, motel, or residence club where the innkeeper retained a right of access to the dwelling unit or provided certain services [see Civ. Code § 1940(b)].

[3] Costs of Removal and Storage

Under the tenant's optional statutory procedure to reclaim personal property, the tenant must comply with a proper demand by the landlord to tender payment of all reasonable costs associated with the landlord's removal and storage of the personal property [Civ. Code § 1965(a)(3); see [1], above]. The landlord's demand for payment must be in writing and must itemize all charges, specifying the nature and amount of each item of cost. Further, the landlord must transmit the demand to the tenant within five days after actually receiving the tenant's request for the return of the personal property, unless the landlord elects to return the property before that five-day deadline. The landlord must (1) mail the demand to the tenant at the address provided by the tenant in his or her request or (2) personally present the demand to the tenant or the tenant's authorized representative [Civ. Code § 1965(a)(3)].

For these purposes, "reasonable costs associated with the landlord's removal and storage of the personal property" include, but are not limited to, the following [Civ. Code § 1965(b)]:

(1) Reasonable costs actually incurred, or the reasonable value of labor actually provided, or both, in removing the personal property from its original location to the place of storage, including disassembly and transportation; and

(2) Reasonable storage costs actually incurred, which must not exceed the fair rental value of the space reasonably required for the storage of the personal property.

[4] Compliance by Landlord

A landlord who complies with the statutory procedure governing the return of a tenant's personal property will not be liable to any person with regard to any personal property belonging to that person that is given to another [Civ. Code § 1965(d)]. In the event of conflicting demands, the first timely request for surrender of personal property received by the landlord will prevail [Civ. Code § 1965(d)].

[5] Damages for Violations by Landlord

A landlord who retains personal property in violation of the statutory procedure governing the return of a tenant's personal property will be liable to the tenant in a civil action for both of the following [Civ. Code § 1965(e)]:

- Actual damages, up to the value of the personal property, if the personal property is not surrendered by the later of either (1) the passage of a reasonable period of time [see Civ. Code § 1965(e)(1) (three days is presumed to be reasonable time in absence of contrary evidence)] after the tenant's request for surrender of the personal property, or (2) if applicable, the later of the tenant's tender of the payment of the landlord's reasonable costs of removal and storage [see [3], above] and the tenant's timely removal of the personal property [see [1], above]; and

- An amount not exceeding $250 for each bad faith violation of the statute. In determining the amount of the award, the court must consider proof of matters as justice may require.

In addition, the court may award reasonable attorneys' fees and costs to the prevailing party [Civ. Code § 1965(e)(3)].

1. Determine whether original lease is oral or written.

2. Review lease's term, including:

    a. Balance remaining.

    b. Effect of holding over.

    c. Existence of options to renew or extend.

3. Determine total amount of rent reserved, remaining, or required to be paid to or on behalf of lessor.

4. Review property description.

5. Review existing modifications, if any.

6. Determine permissible methods of modifying lease:

    a. If lease is oral, lease may be modified by written consent of parties, without new consideration [Civ. Code § 1697].

    b. If lease is written, lease may be modified by [Civ. Code § 1698]:

(1) Written contract.

(2) Oral agreement executed by parties.

(3) Oral agreement supported by new consideration, unless lease expressly provides otherwise.

NOTE:
For modification of a written contract by oral agreement executed by the parties, the statute of frauds must be satisfied if the lease as modified is within its provisions [Civ. Code § 1698(c); see Civ. Code § 1624 (statute of frauds)].

c. If lease is for month-to-month term or less, landlord may change lease's terms by giving tenant proper written notice [see Civ. Code § 827].

[1] Facts

1. General information.

NOTE:
See § 35B.100[1] for general facts to obtain in the client interview.

2. For surrender of leasehold by written agreement:

a. Effective date of surrender.

b. Consideration payable, if any.

c. Identity of any possessor other than tenant.

3. For abandonment of premises by tenant:

a. Last known address of tenant, or if unknown, other address where tenant may reasonably be expected to receive notice, if any.

b. For any abandoned personal property:
(1) Description of property.

(2) Address where property may be claimed.

(3) Name and address of presumed owner, if other than tenant.

c. Basis for landlord's belief that premises have been abandoned [see § 35B.25[3][d]].

d. Period for which unpaid rent is due, if any.

e. If premises have been or will be relet for tenant's account:

(1) Date and amount of advance payment made by tenant, if any.

(2) Address where tenant may be notified of reletting.

(3) Date of reletting.

(4) Name and address of new lessee.

(5) Rental payment of new lessee.

4. For lease's termination (when surrender or abandonment is not involved):

a. Whether tenant has failed to pay rent that is due; if so:

(1) Amount of rent in default.

(2) Rental periods represented by amount of rent in default.

(3) Last day for which rent was due and paid.

(4) Name of person to whom rent is to be paid, if other than lessor.

b. Whether tenant has defaulted in covenant or condition other than to pay rent; if so:

(1) Nature of default(s).

(2) Whether effective waiver of default has been made.

(3) Whether default can be cured.

(4) If there is proposed remedy for default, determine by whom, how, and when.

c. If periodic tenancy or tenancy at will, amount of notice required to terminate.

d. If lease is for fixed term, whether it contains provision authorizing premature termination.

5. Whether landlord has defaulted in lease's covenants or conditions; if so:

a. Nature of default(s).

b. Whether effective waiver of default has been made.

c. Whether default can be cured.

d. If there is proposed remedy for default, determine by whom, how, and when.

[2] Documents

1. General documents.

NOTE:
See § 35B.100[2] for a list of documents of a general nature regarding the lease to be obtained in the client interview.

2. Copy of any and all notices lessor or tenant received, including:

a. Notice of belief of abandonment.

b. Notice or right to reclaim abandoned personal property.

c. Request for notice of reletting.

d. Notice to quit.

e. Notice to pay rent or quit.

f. Notice to perform covenant or quit.

g. Notice of termination of periodic tenancy or tenancy at will.

PRACTICE TIP:
Get Any and All Notices. Note that the wording in P 2, above, is to obtain "any and all" notices. There are different statutory rules applying to different modes of service. Although a single notice produced by a client may indicate one thing in relationship to a deadline, another identical notice served in a different manner may well indicate another thing in relationship to a deadline.

Note, too, that a request for any and all notices should also be accompanied by a request to see the envelopments or other documents with which they were delivered. By Benjamin Kaplan.

3. Copy of any prior lease entered into between parties.

§ 35B.150 Surrender of Leasehold by Mutual Agreement

1. Review lease and its modifications, if any, to verify that:

a. Proposed date of surrender is before termination date specified in lease.

b. Parties are not in default on any obligations.

2. Determine whether any sublease or assignment of lease is in effect; if so:

NOTE:
A lease's surrender does not impair or destroy a sublessee's rights, who may retain possession of the premises and sometimes may not be liable for rent [see Buttner v. Kasser (1912) 19 Cal. App. 755, 759-761, 127 P. 811 ; City Inv. Co. v. Pringle (1925) 73 Cal. App. 782, 788, 239 P. 302] .

a. Determine whether party other than lessor and lessee should be notified or should join in execution of surrender agreement.

b. Advise lessor of alternative means of gaining possession or protecting rents, such as [Buttner v. Kasser (1912) 19 Cal. App. 755, 760, 127 P.811] :
(1) Refusing to consent to lease's surrender.

(2) Demanding that surrender of actual possession of premises accompany or precede surrender.

(3) Taking assignment of rental under sublease.

3. Determine whether possession of premises will be surrendered simultaneously with execution of surrender agreement.

NOTE:

Surrender of the leasehold differs from surrender of possession of the premises [Scott v. Mullins (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 51, 55, 27 Cal. Rptr. 269] . If the tenant retains possession of the premises beyond the date of surrender, the tenant is guilty of unlawful detainer [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(5); see § 35B.44].

4. Determine whether surrender agreement will be recorded.

§ 35B.151 Abandonment

1. Determine whether lease is subject to current statutory law or to traditional law on abandonment.

NOTE:

Leases executed (except for those the terms of which were fixed by an agreement executed before such date) on or after July 1, 1971, are subject to a special statutory procedure for abandonment and breach [Civ. Code § 1952.2]. Leases executed, or leases the terms of which were fixed by an agreement executed, before that date, however, are still subject to the traditional law on the subject. For further discussion of the governing law, see § 35B.25.

2. If lease is subject to traditional law, determine whether elements of abandonment exist [Martin v. Cassidy (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 106, 110, 307 P.2d 981] :

a. Ascertain whether tenant has vacated premises; and

b. Ascertain whether tenant had express intent to abandon property.

NOTE:

Express intent to abandon property may be inferred by a complete indifference as to what may become of the property or who may thereafter possess it [Martin v. Cassidy (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 106, 110, 307 P.2d 981] .

3. If lease is subject to current statutory law on abandonment [see § 35B.25[3]], determine whether abandonment has occurred [see Civ. Code §§ 1951-1952.3]:

a. Ascertain whether rent has been due and unpaid for at least 14 consecutive days; and

b. Ascertain whether landlord reasonably believes tenant has abandoned premises.

NOTE:
The fact that the lessor knew that the lessee left personal property on the real property does not, of itself, justify a finding that the lessor did not reasonably believe that the lessee had abandoned the real property [Civ. Code § 1951.3(e)(2)].

§ 35B.152 Termination and Unlawful Detainer Notices

1. Determine type of tenancy involved.

a. Tenancy for years (fixed term).
(1) Unexpired.

NOTE:
To maintain an unlawful detainer action under a lease with an unexpired fixed term, the landlord must first serve the tenant with one of the required three-day notices to quit [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2)-(5); see also §§ 35B.230-35B.232].

(2) Expired.

NOTE:
When the tenant holds over after the expiration of a fixed term for years, with the permission and consent of the landlord, one of the tenancies described below will result. None of these tenancies requires a special notice to quit if the notice of termination required for each is given to the tenant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(1)].

b. Month-to-month or other periodic tenancy.

NOTE:
A notice of termination of tenancy [see § 35B.240] is sufficient to maintain an unlawful detainer action in the case of a periodic tenancy; no three-day notice to quit is required by statute [Hennessy v.

Gleason (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 616, 619, 184 P.2d 913 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(1), (5)].

c. Tenancy of sufferance.

NOTE:

Under a tenancy at sufferance, the landlord may commence an unlawful detainer action at once without serving any notice on the tenant [Ryland v. Appelbaum (1924) 70 Cal. App. 268, 270, 233 P. 356] .

d. Tenancy at will.

NOTE:

A 30-day notice of termination of tenancy [see § 35B.240] is required to terminate the lease, and must be served before a tenant is guilty of unlawful detainer [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(1)]. No further notice to quit is required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(1)].

2. Determine if lease has provision authorizing lessor to reenter premises.

NOTE:

The landlord must, notwithstanding such a provision, give the tenant an appropriate three-day notice to quit [Jordan v. Talbot (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 597, 604-605, 12 Cal. Rptr. 488, 361 P.2d 20] .

3. Determine if subtenant is in possession of premises.

NOTE:

The appropriate notice to quit must be served on a subtenant as well as on a tenant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2)-(4)].

4. Determine whether a forfeiture of lease clause is to be included in notice [see § 35B.230[1][b][ii]].

5. Determine whether property is to be sold in foreclosure [see 35B.240[1][e]].

NOTE:

A tenant or subtenant in possession of a rental housing unit at the time the property is sold in foreclosure must be given 60 days' written notice to quit before the tenant or subtenant may be removed from the property through unlawful detainer proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161b(a), (c) (in effect until January 1, 2013)]. However, this notice requirement does not apply if any party to the note remains in the property as a tenant, subtenant, or occupant [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161b(b) (in effect until January 1, 2013)].

NOTE:

In 2009, Congress established a 90-day notice to vacate requirement in the Protecting Tenants at Foreclosure Act [P.L. 111-22, S. 896]. This requirement applies to any foreclosure on a federally-related mortgage loan or on any dwelling or residential real property after May 20, 2009 [P.L. 111-22, sec. 702, 123 Stats. 1660-1661; see also P.L. 111-22, sec. 703, 123 Stats. 1661, amending 42 U.S.C. § 1437f(o)(7) (following foreclosure, successor in interest may terminate section 8 tenancy on 90 days' notice if owner will occupy property as primary residence)]. As of August 2009, the California Legislature was in the process of amending Code Civ. Proc. § 1161b to extend the notice period from 60 to 90 days if required by any other provision of state or federal law [SB 483, Corbett]. The federal provisions are repealed on December 31, 2012 [P.L. 111-22, sec. 704, 123 Stats. 1662].

§ 35B.161 Abandonment

1. If tenant has abandoned premises, advise lessor of alternative actions available under traditional law [Kulawitz v. Pacific Woodenware & Paper Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 664, 671, 155 P.2d 24] :

NOTE:
If the tenant is found not to have abandoned the premises and actions enumerated in Paragraph (a) or (b), below, are taken, the landlord is guilty of forcible entry and may be guilty of forcible detainer [see Martin v. Cassidy (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 106, 108-110, 307 P.2d 981] , even if the lease contains a provision granting the landlord a right of reentry [see Jordan v. Talbot (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 597, 605-608, 361 P.2d 20] .

a. Treating lease as in existence, sue for unpaid rent for unexpired portion of lease term as it becomes due.

b. Treating lease as terminated, retake possession for lessor's own account.

c. Holding tenant for difference between lease rentals and what landlord is able in good faith to procure by reletting, retake possession for lessee's account and relet premises.

NOTE:
The lease is considered as continuing in existence if the landlord notifies the tenant that the landlord intends to continue to hold the tenant as a tenant and is reletting the premises in the tenant's account [Dorcich v. Time Oil Co. (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 677, 684, 230

P.2d 10] . If the landlord fails to give the tenant notice, the landlord's actions will result in a surrender by operation of law, terminating the lease [Dorcich v. Time Oil Co. (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 677, 684, 230 P.2d 10] .

2. If tenant has abandoned premises, advise lessor of alternative actions available under current statutory law:

a. Continue lease in effect.

NOTE:

The landlord may continue to recover rent after the tenant has breached or abandoned the premises if (1) the lease provides for that remedy [Civ. Code § 1951.4(a)], (2) the landlord does not terminate the tenant's right to possession [Civ. Code § 1951.4(b)], and (3) any of three additional conditions is satisfied [see Civ. Code § 1951.4(b)(1)-(3)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 34B, Residential Leases **.

b. Terminate lease and recover statutory damages [see Civ. Code § 1951.2].

NOTE:

The lessor may terminate the lease and recover statutory damages if (1) the rent on the property has been due and unpaid for at least 14 consecutive days [Civ. Code § 1951.3(b), (e)(1)]; (2) the lessor reasonably believes that the lessee has abandoned the property [Civ. Code § 1951.3(b), (e)(2)]; and (3) the lessor sends a statutory notice of belief of abandonment to the tenant, and the tenant fails to respond within the required time [Civ. Code § 1951.3(a), (b); see § 35B.212]. Further, the statutory procedure for terminating a lease because of the tenant's abandonment does not preclude the lessor from serving a notice requiring the lessee to pay rent or quit [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1161, 1162] nor affect the time and manner of giving any other notice required or permitted by law [Civ. Code § 1951.3(g)]. A notice of belief of abandonment does not, however, satisfy the requirements of an unlawful detainer notice to pay rent or quit [Civ. Code § 1951.3(g)].

c. If terminating lease:

(1) Send notice of belief of abandonment [see § 35B.212].

NOTE:

If the tenant has left personal property on the premises, the landlord may combine a notice of right to reclaim personal property with a notice of belief of abandonment [see § 35B.215], or send a separate notice of right to reclaim personal property [see § 35B.214] simultaneously with the notice of belief of abandonment [Civ. Code § 1991]. For discussion of the landlord's optional procedure for disposing of personal property left on abandoned or vacated premises, see § 35B.51. For discussion of the tenant's optional procedure to reclaim personal property, see § 35B.52. If the tenant does not within the required time either respond with a notice of his or her intention not to abandon [see § 35B.213] or pay all or a portion of unpaid rent, then the lease terminates [Civ. Code § 1951.3(a), (e)(3), (4)].

d. If lease is terminated, send notice to tenant of landlord's initial reletting of premises when [Civ. Code § 1951.7(a), (b); see § 35B.244]:

(1) Tenant has made an advance payment;

NOTE:

The term "advance payment" means moneys paid to the landlord as prepayment of rent, or as a deposit to secure faithful performance of the lease's terms, or another payment that is the substantial equivalent of either of these. However, payment that is not in excess of one month's rent is not an advance payment [Civ. Code § 1951.7(a)].

(2) Lease is terminated in accordance with statute providing for termination of lease if tenant abandons property and breaches lease [see Civ. Code § 1951.2];

(3) Lessee has made written request to lessor that he or she be given notice of reletting [see § 35B.243]; and

(4) Amount of rent due and unpaid at time of termination is less than or equal to amount of advance payment.

2. Serve three-day notice to pay rent or quit any time within one year after rent becomes due [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2)].

3. Use any one of following means to serve appropriate three-day notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 1162]:

a. Deliver copy to tenant personally.

b. If tenant is absent from both residence and usual place of business:
(1) Leave copy with some person of suitable age and discretion at either place; and

(2) Send copy through mail addressed to tenant at place of residence.

c. If tenant's places of residence and business cannot be ascertained, or a person of suitable age or discretion cannot be found at either place:

(1) Affix copy in conspicuous place on property;

(2) Deliver copy to any person residing on property; and

(3) Mail copy to tenant at leased premises.

§ 35B.200 Modification of Lease Agreement

[1] Comment--Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is an agreement to modify an existing lease. As a contract as well as a conveyance, a lease must be modified in the manner prescribed for contracts [Parker v. Superior Court (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 397, 400, 88 Cal. Rptr. 352 ; Wright v. Coberly (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 31, 35, 58 Cal. Rptr. 213] . An oral contract entered into on or after July 1, 1977, may be modified by the written consent of the parties, without new consideration [Civ. Code § 1697]. A written contract entered into on or after July 1, 1977, may be modified by a written contract by the parties [Civ. Code § 1698(a); see Civ. Code § 1698(b), (c) (modification by oral agreement)]. Thus, this form may be used as the written consent or contract required to modify either an existing oral or written lease entered into on or after July 1, 1977.

This form is not appropriate for modifying a lease entered into before January 1, 1977. For these contracts, the provisions of Civ. Code §§ 1697 and 1698 in effect before that date continue to govern [see Stats. 1976, ch. 109, § 5].

Certain short-term leases of a period less than a month may be unilaterally modified by a landlord on written notice to the tenant [see Civ. Code § 827]. For the form of notice to be used to modify these short-term leases, see § 35B.201.

§ 35B.201 Notice to Tenant Changing Terms of Month-to-Month or Lesser Period Tenancy

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a notice to a tenant changing the terms of a month-to- month or lesser period tenancy. For these types of leases, the landlord may, by giving the tenant proper written notice, change the terms of the lease [Civ. Code § 827].

When properly served on a tenant, the notice itself establishes the terms specified in the notice as a part of the lease, if the tenant continues to hold the premises after the notice takes effect [Civ. Code § 827].

PRACTICE TIP:

Effect of Rent Control Ordinances. Be careful before using this form to change terms of a residential tenancy in a jurisdiction that has a rent control ordinance. Most such ordinances bar any change in terms that works to the disadvantage of the tenant (called a "reduction in services") without a corresponding reduction in rent. By Myron Moskovitz.

[b] When Change Takes Effect

Unless the parties have previously agreed otherwise in writing, the change in the lease terms effected by this written notice takes effect as follows [Civ. Code § 827(a)]: (1) for tenancies for less than one month, on the expiration of a period at least as long as the term of the hiring itself; (2) for tenancies from month-to-month, on the expiration of not less than 30 days. However, if the change takes effect within a rental term, the rent accruing from the first day of that term to the date of the change must be computed at the rental rate immediately before the change [Civ. Code § 827(a)], with one exception. If the parties provide by written agreement that a notice changing the agreement's terms may be given at any time not less than seven days before the term expires, the change is effective on the term's expiration [Civ.

Code § 827(a)].

Commencing on January 1, 2001, the amount of the rent increase determines the notice period required with regard to residential leases. If the proposed rent increase for a tenant is 10 percent or less of the rental amount charged to that tenant at any time during the 12 months before the effective date of the increase, either in and of itself or when combined with any other rent increases for the 12 months before the effective date of the increase, the notice must be delivered at least 30 days before the effective date of the increase, and subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 (extension of time to respond) if served by mail [Civ. Code § 827(b)]. If the increase in rent is greater than 10 percent, the minimum notice period is increased by an additional 30 days, and subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 (extension of time to respond) if served by mail [Civ. Code § 827(b)]. However, this additional 30-day period does not apply to an increase in rent caused by a change in a tenant's income or family composition as determined by a recertification required by statute or regulation [Civ. Code § 827(b)(2)].

If a state or federal statute, state or federal regulation, recorded regulatory agreement, or contract provides for a longer period of notice regarding a rent increase than that provided above, the personal service or mailing of the notice must be in accordance with the longer period [Civ. Code § 827(c)].

[c] Service of Notice

For nonresidential leases, the landlord may serve the notice in one of the following ways [Code Civ. Proc. § 1162]:

(1) By delivering a copy to the tenant personally;

(2) If the tenant is absent from his or her residence and usual place of business, by (a) leaving a copy with some person of suitable age and discretion at either place, and (b) sending a copy through the mail addressed to the tenant at his or her place of residence; or

(3) If the tenant's places of residence and business cannot be ascertained, or a person of suitable age or discretion cannot be found at either place, by (a) affixing a copy in a conspicuous place on the property, (b) delivering a copy to a person residing on the property (if one can be found), and (c) mailing a copy to the tenant at the leased premises.

Commencing on January 1, 2001, for residential leases the landlord may serve the notice in either one of the following ways [Civ. Code § 827(b)]:

(1) By delivering a copy of the notice to the tenant personally; or

(2) By serving a copy by mail under the procedures set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1013.

§ 35B.210 Surrender of Leasehold

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a surrender of leasehold agreement. By this surrender agreement, a landlord and a tenant agree to terminate their lease in advance of the termination date set forth in the lease, relieving the parties of all further obligations under the lease after the surrender date [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1971 (surrender defined); Scott v. Mullins (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 51, 55, 27 Cal. Rptr. 269] .

For further discussion of the law regarding a lease's surrender, see §§ 35B.20-35B.23, and California Real Estate Law and Practice, ch. 201, Surrender and Abandonment (Matthew Bender).

[b] Practice Tips

[i] Effect of Surrender on Sublease

Before entering into a surrender of leasehold agreement, the landlord should ascertain whether the tenant has subleased the premises. The lease's surrender does not impair or destroy the sublessee's rights, who may retain possession of the premises on compliance with the conditions of his or her lease and may in some cases not be liable for rent [see Buttner v. Kasser (1912) 19 Cal. App. 755, 759-761, 127 P. 811 ; see also City Inv. Co. v. Pringle (1925) 73 Cal. App. 782, 788, 239 P. 302] . Thus, if before signing this agreement the landlord knows that there is a sublessee, the landlord may either refuse to consent to the lease's cancellation unless it is accompanied by a surrender of actual possession of the premises, or he or she may take an assignment of the rentals under the sublease [Buttner v. Kasser (1912) 19 Cal. App. 755, 760, 127 P. 811] .

[ii] Recording Surrender Agreement

If the original lease was recorded, this agreement should also be recorded [see Ch. 34C, Retail, Industrial, and Office Leases].

SURRENDER OF LEASEHOLD

Preamble

This Agreement is made _____[date], at _____[city], California, by _____[name], referred to in this Agreement as "Lessor," and _____[name], referred to in this Agreement as "Lessee."

Recitals

A. Lessor is the owner of certain real property situated in _____ County, referred to in this Agreement as "the property," _____[commonly known as _____ (street address), or, if property has no street address, located in] _____[city], California.

B. Lessor and Lessee executed a lease on _____[date].

[If the lease was recorded:]

C. The lease was recorded on _____[date] [insert Book _____, Page _____, if so designated by recorder of county of recording], by the County Recorder of [county], California.

[Continue with the following:]

D. By the terms of the lease, the property was leased to Lessee for a term of [term of lease], beginning on _____[date], and ending on _____[date].

E. Lessee desires to surrender this lease and all rights to the possession of the property and to release Lessor from its obligations under the lease.

F. Lessor desires to accept Lessee's surrender and to release Lessee from its obligations under the lease.

THEREFORE, Lessor and Lessee agree as follows:

Terms of Surrender

[EITHER, if the terms of surrender do not include the payment of any monies by the lessee:]

1. In consideration of the mutual promises contained in this Agreement, Lessee agrees to surrender the lease and vacate the property as of _____[date]; and Lessor agrees to accept Lessees's surrender of the lease and of the property; and Lessor and Lessee agree to discharge each other from all obligations under the lease, effective as of _____[date].

[OR, if the terms of surrender include the payment of monies by the lessee:]

1. In consideration of the mutual promises contained in this Agreement, and in consideration of Lessee's paying Lessor the sum of $_____[e.g., this sum may represent amount lessee agrees to pay for right to be released from obligations under lease; or it may represent rent that lessee owes until date of surrender], Lessee agrees to surrender the lease and vacate the property as of _____[date]; and Lessor agrees to accept Lessees's surrender of the lease and of the property; and Lessor and Lessee agree to discharge each other from all obligations under the lease, effective as of _____[date].

[Continue with the following:]

Notices

2. (a) Unless otherwise provided in this Agreement, any notice, tender, or delivery to be given under this Agreement by either party to the other may be effected by personal delivery in writing or by registered or certified mail, postage prepaid, return receipt requested, and shall be deemed communicated as of _____[mailing or actual receipt or _____ (number) hours from mailing]. Mailed notices shall be addressed as set forth below, but each party may change its address by written notice in accordance with this paragraph.

(b) Notice to Lessor shall be addressed as follows: _____.

(c) Notice to Lessee shall be addressed as follows: _____.

Entire Agreement

3. This instrument [add, if lease is attached: and Exhibit A] constitute the entire agreement between the parties regarding the leasehold's surrender. Any prior agreements, promises, negotiations, or representations not expressly set forth in this Agreement are of no force and effect. Any amendment to this Agreement shall be of no force and effect unless it is in writing and signed by the Lessor and Lessee.

Attorney's Fees

4. If any legal action or proceeding arising out of or relating to this Agreement is brought by either party to this Agreement, the prevailing party shall be entitled to receive from the other party, in addition to any other relief that may be granted, the reasonable attorneys' fees, costs, and expenses incurred in the action or proceeding by the prevailing party.

Binding Effect

5. This Agreement shall be binding on and inure to the benefit of the parties to this Agreement and their heirs, personal representatives, successors, and assigns.

§ 35B.211 Notice to Lessee of Lessor's Intention to Relet Premises for Lessee's Account

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a notice to a lessee that the lessor intends to relet the leased premises for the lessee's account following the lessee's abandonment of the property. The lessor must give this type of notice if the lease was executed before July 1, 1971 [Dorcich v. Time Oil Co. (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 677, 683-684, 230 P.2d 10], and may, but is not required to, give this notice, as appropriate, if the lease was executed on or after that date [see Civ. Code § 1951.4(a), (b)].

[b] Pre-July 1, 1971 Leases

If a lessee under a lease executed before July 1, 1971, abandons the premises, the lessor may retake possession on the lessee's behalf and relet the premises for the lessee's account. In that case, the lessee is responsible for the difference between the rent specified in the lessee's lease and the amount the lessor is able in good faith to procure by reletting [Kulawitz v. Pacific etc. Paper Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 664, 671, 155 P.2d 24 ; see Dorcich v. Time Oil Co. (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 677, 683, 230 P.2d 10] . The lessor must notify the lessee that the retaking is on the lessee's behalf, and that the landlord intends to relet the premises on behalf of the lessee to mitigate damages [Dorcich v. Time Oil Co. (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 677, 683-684, 230 P.2d 10] .

For further discussion of abandonment pertaining to leases executed before July 1, 1971, see § 35B.25[2].

[c] Post-July 1, 1971 Leases

Under statutory law enacted since 1970, a lessor of real property may not continue the lease in effect following the lessee's breach of the lease and abandonment of the leased premises unless all of the following factors are met [Civ. Code § 1951.4(a), (b)]:

- The lease provides for this remedy [see Ch. 34B, Residential Leases];
- The lease permits subletting or assignment; and
- The lessor does not terminate the lessee's right of possession.

For these purposes, the following do not constitute a termination of the lessee's right to possession [Civ. Code § 1951.4(c)]:

- Acts of maintenance or preservation of the property;
- Efforts to relet the property;
- The appointment of a receiver on the lessor's initiative to protect the lessor's interest under the lease; and
- Withholding consent to a subletting or assignment, or terminating a subletting or assignment, if the withholding or termination does not violate the lessee's rights.

The landlord is not required to give the tenant notice of the landlord's election to continue the lease in effect and to relet the property [see Civ. Code § 1951.4(a), (b)]. However, the landlord may want to send this type of notice as a reminder to the tenant that a lease clause provides for this remedy and as notification of the landlord's election to continue the lease.

§ 35B.212 Notice to Tenant of Landlord's Belief of Abandonment of Leased Premises

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a notice of (1) the lessor's belief that a lessee has abandoned leased property, and (2) the lessor's intention to terminate the lease. The notice must be in substantially the form prescribed by statute [Civ. Code § 1951.3(d)].

When the rent on leased real property has been due and unpaid for at least 14 consecutive days, and the landlord reasonably believes that the tenant has abandoned the property, the landlord may give a notice of belief of abandonment (this form) to the tenant [Civ. Code § 1951.3(b); see Civ. Code § 1951.3(e) (standards for determining abandonment); see also § 35B.25[3][d]].

Use of this form and its implementing procedure neither precludes the lessor from serving a notice requiring the lessee to pay rent or quit nor affects the time and manner of giving any other notice required or permitted by law [Civ. Code § 1951.3(g); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1161, 1162 (notice to pay rent or quit); see also § 35B.230].

PRACTICE TIP:

Landlord Should Give Statutory Notice. The landlord is not required to give the statutory notice of abandonment to take possession of abandoned premises [see Civ. Code § 1951.3(b)]. However, lessors gain a substantial advantage by doing so. If the landlord fails to give the notice, he/she takes a risk: if the landlord takes possession and turns out to be wrong--that is, the tenant has not in fact abandoned the property--the landlord might be liable for damages for trespass, forcible entry, and/or forcible detainer. These are strict liability claims, and the landlord's good faith belief is no defense. Proper compliance with the statutory notice requirements protects the landlord from such claims even if it turns out that the premises were not in fact abandoned. By Myron Moskovitz.

This form is not appropriate for use when the lease was executed before July 1, 1971, or when the lease was executed after that date, but its terms were fixed by an agreement executed before July 1, 1971. For discussion of the law on abandonment as it pertains to those leases, see § 35B.25[2], and California Real Estate Law and Practice, ch. 201, Surrender and Abandonment (Matthew Bender). For further discussion of the law of abandonment as it pertains to leases executed on or after July 1, 1971, see § 35B.25[3].

For a notice stating the tenant's intent not to abandon the real property and stating an address at which he or she may be served by certified mail in any action for unlawful detainer of the real property, see § 35B.213.

[b] Contents of Notice

[i] Date

The notice must specify the date on which the lease will terminate. This date must not be less than 15 days after personal service of the notice, or not less than 18 days after deposit in the mail, as appropriate [Civ. Code § 1951.3(b)].

[ii] Notice to Reclaim Abandoned Personal Property

When a tenant has left personal property on the premises and the lessor elects to dispose of the property in accordance with an optional statutory procedure [see Civ. Code §§ 1980 et seq. (residential property), 1993 et seq. (parallel procedure applicable to commercial property); see also § 35B.51], the lessor may combine the notice in this form with a notice to the tenant of his or her right to reclaim the abandoned personal property [Civ. Code §§ 1991, 1993.09; see § 35B.215], or may concurrently send this notice and a separate notice of the tenant's right to reclaim the property [see Civ. Code § 1951.3 (belief of abandonment of leased premises); Civ. Code §§ 1983, 1984 (notice to former residential tenant of right to reclaim abandoned personal property), 1993.03, 1993.04 (notice to former commercial tenant of right to reclaim abandoned personal property); see also § 35B.214].

For further discussion of the law governing the procedure for notifying a tenant and disposing of abandoned property, see §§ 35B.51 and 35B.214. For discussion of an alternative statutory procedure for disposing of a former tenant's personal property, which must be initiated by the former tenant [see Civ. Code § 1965], see §§ 35B.52 and 35B.217.

[c] Service of Notice

A landlord's notice of belief of abandonment must be personally delivered to the tenant or sent by first-class mail, postage prepaid, to the tenant at his or her last known address and, if there is reason to believe that the notice sent to that address will not be received by the tenant, it must also be sent to any other address known to the landlord where the tenant may reasonably be expected to receive the notice [Civ. Code § 1951.3(c)].

§ 35B.213 Notice by Tenant of Nonabandonment of Leased Premises

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a notice by a tenant of the tenant's intention not to abandon leased property. It is a reply to a landlord's notice of belief of abandonment of premises [see § 35B.212]. By providing written notice of the intention not to abandon the premises, the tenant may prevent the lease's termination on the date specified in the landlord's notice.

This form is not appropriate for use when the lease was executed before July 1, 1971, or when the lease was executed after that date, but its terms were fixed by an agreement executed before July 1, 1971. For discussion of the law on abandonment pertaining to those leases, see § 35B.25[2], and California Real Estate Law and Practice, ch. 201, Surrender and Abandonment (Matthew Bender). For discussion of the statutory law on abandonment, see § 35B.25[3], and California Real Estate Law and Practice, ch. 201, Surrender and Abandonment (Matthew Bender).

[b] Contents of Notice

The notice must include an address at which the tenant may be served by certified mail in any action for unlawful detainer [Civ. Code § 1951.3(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 415.47(a), (b) (service of unlawful detainer summons)].

§ 35B.214 Notice to Tenant or Personal Property Owner of Right to Reclaim Abandoned Personal Property

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The form in [2], below, is a notice informing a tenant (or person believed to be the owner of abandoned property) who has vacated leased premises that he or she left behind personal property that may be reclaimed. Under the optional statutory procedure for disposing of abandoned personal property [see Civ. Code §§ 1980 (applicable to personal property left at residential property), 1993 et seq. (parallel procedures applicable to commercial property)], the landlord must give written notice to the tenant and to any other person whom the landlord reasonably believes to be the property's owner [Civ. Code §§ 1983(a), 1993.03(a)]. If the property remaining on the premises consists of records as defined in Civ. Code §§ 1980(e) and 1993(f) ("records" means any material, regardless of the physical form, on which information is recorded or preserved by any means, including in written or spoken words, graphically depicted, printed, or electromagnetically transmitted; it does not include publicly available directories containing information an individual has voluntarily consented to have publicly disseminated or listed, such as name, address, or telephone number) the tenant is presumed to be the owner of the records [Civ. Code §§ 1983(a), 1993.03(a)].

Although the notice of right to reclaim abandoned personal property is ordinarily given only after the tenancy has terminated and the tenant has vacated the premises, it may be given at the same time as a notice of belief of abandonment, even though the tenancy does not terminate until the end of the period specified in the notice of belief of abandonment [Civ. Code §§ 1991, 1993.09]. For a notice of belief of abandonment, see § 35B.212. For a combined notice of the landlord's belief of abandonment and of the tenant's right to reclaim abandoned property, see § 35B.215.

The landlord need not give this notice if the alternate statutory procedure for the surrender of a former tenant's personal property, which must be initiated by the former tenant, has been initiated or completed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(f); see Civ. Code § 1965 (tenant's optional statutory procedure to reclaim personal property)]. For a discussion of that procedure, see §§ 35B.52 and 35B.217.

Further, this optional statutory procedure for the disposition of personal property remaining on the premises after a tenancy has terminated and the premises have been vacated by a tenant is not available in situations specifically governed by other statutes [Civ. Code § 1981]. For example, it may not be used for unclaimed property in a hospital [see Civ. Code § 1862.5], for any manufactured home, mobilehome, or any commercial modular [see Health & Safety Code §§ 18007 (manufactured home defined), 18008 (mobilehome defined), 18001.8 (commercial modular defined)], or for the lost property, which must be disposed of in accordance with the lost property statutes [see Civ. Code §§ 1982, 1993.01, 2080-2080.9].

[b] Contents of Notice

The contents of the notice are substantially prescribed by statute [see Civ. Code §§ 1983, 1984, 1993.03, 1993.04]. The notice must do both of the following [Civ. Code §§ 1983(b), 1993.03(b)]:

- Describe the property in a manner reasonably adequate to permit the property's owner to identify it and may describe all or a portion of the property; and

- Advise the person to be notified (1) that reasonable costs of storage may be charged before the property is returned, (2) where the property may be claimed, and (3) the date before which the claim must be made.

The date specified in the notice must be not less than 15 days after the notice is personally delivered or not less than 18 days after the notice is deposited in the mail [Civ. Code §§ 1983(b), 1993.03(b)].

[c] Service of Notice

The notice of right to reclaim abandoned property must be personally delivered to the person to be notified or sent by first-class mail, postage prepaid, to the person to be notified at his or her last known address [Civ. Code §§ 1983(c), 1993.03(c)]. If there is reason to believe that the notice sent to that address will not be received, the notice also must be sent to any other address, if any is known to the landlord, where the person may reasonably be expected to receive the notice [Civ. Code §§ 1983(c), 1993.03(c)]. If the notice is sent by mail to the former tenant, one copy must be sent to the premises vacated by the tenant [Civ. Code §§ 1983(c), 1993.03(c)].

[EITHER:]

If you fail to reclaim the property, it will be sold at a public sale after notice of the sale has been given by publication. You have the right to bid on the property at this sale. After the property is sold and the cost of storage, advertising, and sale is deducted, the remaining money will be paid over to the county. You may claim the remaining money at any time within one year after the county receives the money.

[OR, if the personal property has an estimated value of less than $300 (for residential property) or the lesser of $750 or $1 per square foot of the premises (for commercial property):]

Because this property is believed to be worth less than [$300 or _____ (amount calculated for personal property left at commercial premises)], it may be kept, sold, or destroyed without further notice if you fail to reclaim it within the time indicated above.
