Scope

by Ann S. Manheimer, J.D.n* Scope

This chapter discusses the basic procedures used by individual or institutional lenders, small or large, to create security interests in personal property and fixtures and nonpossessory statutory agricultural liens under Division 9 of California's Uniform Commercial Code (UCC). The Legal Background covers the nature of secured transactions and security agreements, classification of collateral, attachment of security interests and agricultural liens, rights and duties of debtors and secured parties, perfection, priorities among competing interests, and default. Secured interests in bankruptcy are also discussed. The Transaction Guide contains detailed checklists concerning the creation and perfection of security interests in various kinds of collateral. The chapter includes four types of forms: agreements dealing with the creation of security interests, the accompanying UCC forms necessary to perfect security interests, subordination agreements, and certain notices and waivers required or permitted under the UCC. UCC forms filed with the Secretary of State are standard and approved by the Secretary of State.

For more detailed coverage of secured transactions, see McDonnell, Secured Transactions Under the Uniform Commercial Code (Matthew Bender). For information on tax consequences of secured transactions, see Rabkin & Johnson, Current Legal Forms with Tax Analysis, Ch. 6, Credit and Finance (Matthew Bender).

Secured transactions involving real property are covered in Ch. 25A, Security Instruments for Real Estate Financing. Secured transactions involving sales of accounts receivable are discussed in Ch. 44, Accounts Receivable Financing and Factoring. Sales of goods under the UCC are discussed in Ch. 52, Sales of Goods Under the Uniform Commercial Code. Instruments normally used to finance automobiles or create interests in agricultural crops are discussed in Ch. 47, Automotive Financing, Ch. 48, Agricultural Financing, and Ch. 49, Agricultural Contracts.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

19-42 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 42.10

AUTHOR: by Ann S. Manheimer, J.D.

§ 42.10 Secured Transactions Under the California Uniform Commercial Code

[1] Nature of Secured Transactions and Security Agreements

The term "secured transaction" applies to any transaction (regardless of its form) that create a security interest (see discussion below) in personal property or fixtures by contract [see Com. Code § 9109(a)(1); see also § 42.11]. The security interest is designed to protect the secured party in the event that the debtor fails to pay or perform the underlying obligation. In addition, the term applies to each of the following [see Com. Code § 9109(a)]:

- An agricultural lien [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(5) (definition)].
- A sale of accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, or promissory notes [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(2), (11), (61), (65) (definitions)].
- A consignment [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(20) (definition)].
- A security interest arising under Com. Code § 2401 (seller's reservation of title to goods), Com. Code § 2505 (seller's shipment of goods under reservation), Com. Code § 2711(3) (buyer's security interest in rejected goods), or Com. Code § 10508(e) (lessee's security interest in goods in lessee's possession) [see Com. Code § 9110 (special rules applicable to security interests arising under Divisions 2 or 10)].
- A security interest arising under Com. Code § 4201 (agency status of collecting bank) or Com. Code § 5118 (issuer or nominated person's security interest).

A secured transaction creates two kinds of rights. First, it creates a "security interest" in specified property, termed "collateral" [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(12) ("collateral" defined; see also § 42.11)] that secures the payment or performance of an obligation [see Com. Code § 1201(b)(35)], and that gives the person in whose favor the security interest or agricultural lien was created the right to repossess and retain or dispose of the collateral if the person who owes the obligation fails to perform it [see § 42.16].

Security interests can be created in many forms, including interests in proceeds to which a security interest attaches; accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, and promissory notes that have been sold; and goods that are the subject of a consignment [Com. Code § 9102(a)(12); see Com. Code § 1201(b)(35) (security interest includes any interest of cosigner and buyer of accounts, chattel paper, a payment intangible, or promissory note in transactions subject to Com. Code § 9101 et seq.; see also [4][a], below)]. An agricultural lien can also create a security interest [see Com. Code § 9109(a)(2)].

Second, a secured transaction creates the right to be paid first among creditors to the extent that the collateral has value [see § 42.14[1], [2]]. For a detailed discussion of priority rights, see Secured Transactions Under the Uniform Commercial Code, Part III, Priority of Security Interests, Chs. 7A-7E (Matthew Bender).

[2] Definitions

[a] Security Agreement

An agreement that creates or provides for a security interest is referred to as a "security agreement" [Com. Code § 9102(a)(73)]. This term often was used colloquially in former Division 9 to refer to the document or writing that contained the debtor's security agreement. However, the revised Division 9, adopted in 1999 and operative on July 1, 2001 [see Stats. 1999 ch. 991, § 35; see also [3][b], below], eliminates this usage, reserving the term for the more precise meaning specified in the definition [see Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 3b)]. Whether or not an agreement creates a security interest is discussed in [4][a], below.

[b] Secured Party

The "secured party" includes any of the following [Com. Code § 9102(a)(72)]:

- A person in whose favor a security interest is created or provided for under a security agreement, whether or not any obligation to be secured is outstanding.
- A person that holds an agricultural lien [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(5) (definition)].
- A consignor.
- A person to which accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, or promissory notes have been sold [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(2), (11), (61), (65) (definitions)].
- A trustee, indenture trustee, agent, collateral agent, or other representative in whose favor a security interest or agricultural lien is created or provided for [see Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 2b) (providing examples of status of various types of representatives)].
- A person that holds a security interest arising under Com. Code § 2401 (seller's reservation of title to goods), Com. Code § 2505 (seller's shipment of goods under reservation), Com. Code § 2711(3) (buyer's security interest in rejected goods), or under Com. Code § 10508(e) (lessee's security interest in goods in lessee's possession).

Among other things, the definition of "secured party" controls which person has the duties and liabilities that the provisions governing default impose on a secured party [see Com. Code § 9601 et seq.; § 42.16].

The "debtor" is any one of the following [Com. Code § 9102(a)(28)]:

- A person having an interest, other than a security interest or other lien, in the collateral, whether or not the person is an obligor [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(59) ("obligor" defined)].
- A seller of accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, or promissory notes [see Com. Code § 9102 (definitions)].
- A consignee [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(19) (definition)].

By including in the definition of "debtor" all persons with a property interest (other than a security interest in or other lien on collateral), the definition includes transferees of collateral, whether or not the secured party knows of the transfer or the transferee's identity [Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 2a)]. Exculpatory provisions in Part 6 of Division 9 [Com. Code § 9101 et seq. (default and enforcement)] protect the secured party in that circumstance [see Com. Code §§ 9605, 9629].

[d] Obligor and Secondary Obligor

Revised Division 9, adopted in 1999 and operative on July 1, 2001 [see Stats. 1999 ch. 991, § 35; see also [3][b], below], added "obligor" and "secondary obligor." An "obligor" is a person who, with respect to an obligation secured by a security interest in or an agricultural lien on the collateral [Com. Code § 9102(a)(59)]:

- Owes payment or other performance of the obligation;
- Has provided property other than the collateral to secure payment or other performance of the obligation; or
- Is otherwise accountable in whole or in part for payment or other performance of the obligation. The term does not include issuers or nominated persons under a letter of credit.

A "secondary obligor" is an obligor to the extent that either of the following conditions are satisfied [Com. Code § 9102(a)(71)]:

- The obligor's obligation is secondary.
- The obligor has a right of recourse with respect to an obligation secured by collateral against the debtor, another obligor, or property of either.

In the context of Part 6 [Com. Code § 9601 et seq.], governing default and enforcement, the definitions of "debtor," "obligor," and "secondary obligor" distinguish among three classes of persons [Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 2a)]:

- Those who have a stake in the proper enforcement of a security interest by virtue of their non-lien property interest (typically an ownership interest) in all collateral;
- Those who may have a stake in the proper enforcement of the security interest because of their obligation to pay the secured debt; and
- Those who have an obligation to pay the secured debt but have no stake in the proper enforcement of the security interest.

Persons in the first class are debtors [Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 2a)]. Persons in the second class are secondary obligors if any portion of the obligation is secondary, or if the obligor has a right of recourse against the debtor or another obligor with respect to the obligation secured by collateral [Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 2a); see Ch. 79, Suretyship, Guaranty, and Indemnity (Matthew Bender) for discussion of whether an obligation is secondary]; see also Restatement 3d, Suretyship and Guaranty § 1 (1996)]. Obligors in the third class are neither debtors nor secondary obligors [Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 2a)]. With one exception [see Com. Code § 9616], the rights and duties of Com. Code § 9601 et seq. affect non-debtor obligors only if they are secondary obligors [Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 2a); see generally § 42.16].

[e] New Debtor and Original Debtor

Definitions of "new debtor" and "original debtor" are used in the special rules found in Com. Code § 9326 (priority) and Com. Code § 9508 (effectiveness of financing statement) [see §§ 42.15[16], 42.140[1]].

[3] Historical Background

[a] Security Devices Used Before Adoption of California Commercial Code

Most secured transactions in California are governed by Division 9 of the California Commercial Code [see Com. Code § 9101 et seq.], which is based on model legislation referred to as Article 9 of the Uniform Commercial Code (UCC). California established its Commercial Code, adopting major portions of the UCC, in 1963 to become effective on January 1, 1965 [see Stats. 1963 Stats. ch. 819, § 52]. Revised Division 9 was adopted in 1999 and became operative on July 1, 2001 [see Stats. 1999 ch. 991, § 35; see also [b], below].

Before the initial effective date of Division 9, California law used various types of devices to create security interests in different types of personal property. Division 9, as initially adopted, ignored these devices and their formal distinctions, and instead used the general concept of a security interest [see former Com. Code § 9105 (Cal. Code Comment); Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment 2 P 1)]. Division 9, as revised, continues this practice [see Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment 2 P 1)]. Nevertheless, because the terminology of the early security devices still appears in discussions of secured transactions, an understanding of those terms is helpful.

The various security devices used before the adoption of the UCC included the following [see former Com. Code § 9101 et seq. (introductory comment)]:

- Pledge [see former Civ. Code §§ 2986-3011]. This type of device now generally falls under the rubric of a possessory security interest. It secures an indebtedness by placing possession of the collateral with the secured party, or his or her agent, until the debt is paid.
- Chattel mortgage [see former Civ. Code §§ 2955-2978]. This device was used when the debtor possessed or was in the process of obtaining the property to be used as collateral, and the secured party held either title to or a lien on the collateral. This device has a direct descendant in the UCC's non-purchase money security interest in equipment and consumer goods.
- Conditional sale [see former Civ. Code §§ 2980-2980.5]. This device involved a sale of goods by a seller to a buyer in exchange for the buyer's promise to pay the agreed purchase price of the goods in stated installments, similar to a modern installment sales contract. The seller delivered the goods, but retained title to them as security. Its descendant is the UCC's "purchase money security interest" [see Com. Code § 9103 (definition); see also § 42.15[9]].

■ Trust receipt [see former Civ. Code §§ 3012-3016.16]. This device was used when goods, documents, or instruments were shipped by a manufacturer or distributor to a purchaser, but title did not pass to the purchaser until after payment to the financier who took title directly from the shipper. Its descendant can be found in one form of the UCC's purchase money security interest in inventory [see Com. Code § 9103(b)(2)].

■ Inventory lien [see former Civ. Code §§ 3030-3043]. This device was used when a lender held a nonpossessory lien on a borrower's merchandise. A security interest in inventory asserted under an after-acquired property clause (also referred to as non-purchase money security interest in inventory) under the UCC resembles this device [see Com. Code § 9324(b), (c); see also former Com. Code § 9312(3), (4)].

■ Assignment of accounts receivable [see former Civ. Code §§ 3017-3029]. Under this device, the financier was deemed to take the debtor's interest as assignee. The UCC covers security interests in accounts [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(2) ("account" defined)].

[b] Revised Division 9

A revised version of Division 9 was adopted in 1999, effective July 1, 2001 [see Stats. 1999 ch. 991, § 35]. For the most part, the revised division follows the general approach and retains much of the terminology of the former Division 9 [see Com. Code § 9101 (UCC Comment P 1)]. The division was substantially lengthened and reorganized into a format designed to promote clarity, understanding, and predictability in secured financing [see generally Com. Code § 9101 (UCC Comment)]. Transition from former Division 9 to the current division is particularly challenging in view of the current division's expanded scope [see [4], below], its modification of choice of law rules [see § 42.121 P 14] for perfection and priority, and its expansion of methods of perfection [see § 42.14]. Transition provisions are contained in Com. Code § 9701 et seq.

[4] Scope of Coverage of Division 9

[a] Transactions Governed by Division 9

Division 9 of the Commercial Code [Com. Code § 9101 et seq.] governs all transactions that create a security interest in personal property or fixtures by contract, except transactions expressly excluded by the Code [see Com. Code § 9109(a)(1); see also Com. Code § 9109(c), (d) (excluded transactions)]. A "security interest" is an interest in personal property or fixtures that secures payment or performance of an obligation [Com. Code § 1201(b)(35)].

Division 9 also covers agricultural liens. An "agricultural lien" is an interest in farm products that meets all of the following conditions [Com. Code § 9102(a)(5)]:

- It secures payment or performance of an obligation for either (1) goods or services furnished in connection with a debtor's farming operation; or (2) rent on real property leased by a debtor in connection with its farming operation.
- It is created by statute in favor of a person that does either of the following: (1) in the ordinary course of its business furnished goods or services to a debtor in connection with a debtor's farming operation; or (2) leased real property to a debtor in connection with the debtor's farming operation.
- Its effectiveness does not depend on the person's possession of the personal property.

In addition, Division 9 covers most sales of accounts [see § 42.11[2][e]], chattel paper [see § 42.11[2][f]], payment intangibles [see § 42.11[2][g]], or promissory notes [Com. Code § 9109(a)(2)-(4); see § 42.11[2][d]; see also Com. Code § 1201(b)(35) ("security interest" includes any interest of consignor or buyer of accounts, chattel paper, payment intangible, or promissory note in transaction subject to Com. Code § 9101 et seq.)].

As provided in Com. Code § 9110, Division 9 applies to security interests arising under Com. Code § 2401 (seller's reservation of title to goods); Com. Code § 2505 (seller's shipment of goods under reservation), Com. Code § 2711(3) (buyer's security interest in rejected goods), or under Com. Code § 10508(e) (lessee's security interest in goods in lessee's possession) [Com. Code § 9109(a)(5); see Com. Code § 1201(b)(35) (discussing acquisition of security interests under these provisions)]. Division 9 also applies to security interests arising under Com. Code § 4201 (agency status of collecting bank) or Com. Code § 5118 (issuer or nominated person's security interest) [Com. Code § 9109(a)(6)].

Whether an agreement creates a security interest depends on whether the transaction falls within the definition of "security interest" in Com. Code § 1201(b)(35), not on whether the parties intend the law to characterize the transaction as a security interest [see Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 3b); see also Com. Code § 9109(a)(1) (UCC Comment P 1)]. Whether a transaction in the form of a lease creates a security interest is determined by the facts of each case, in accordance with Com. Code § 1203 [Com. Code § 1201(b)(35)]. Thus, when a security interest is created, Division 9 applies regardless of the form of the transaction or the names that the parties have given to it [see Com. Code § 9109 (UCC Comment P 2)]. Division 9 also applies to a security interest in a secured obligation even if the obligation is itself secured by a transaction or interest that is not governed by Division 9 [Com. Code § 9109(b); see [b], below]. Further, the rights and obligations under Division 9 apply whether title to collateral is in the secured party or the debtor, except as otherwise provided with respect to consignments or sales of accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, or promissory notes [Com. Code § 9202; see, e.g., Com. Code §§ 9207(a), 9210(b), 9601(g), 9615(e) (special rules governing consignments, sales of accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, promissory notes)].

[b] Transactions Not Subject to Division 9

With few exceptions (such as nonconsensual agricultural liens), Division 9 of the California Commercial Code applies only to consensual security interests in personal property [Com. Code § 9109 (UCC Comment P 10); see [a], above].

Division 9 does not apply to the creation or transfer of an interest or lien on real property, including leases or rentals of real property, except to the extent that provision is made in Division 9 for liens on real property [see Com. Code § 9203, 9308], fixtures [see Com. Code § 9334], fixture filings [see Com. Code §§ 9501, 9502, 9512, 9516, 9519], or security agreements covering personal and real property [Com. Code § 9109(d)(11); see Com. Code § 9604 (procedure if security agreement covers real property or fixtures)]. These exclusions generally reiterate the limitations on coverage (that is, "by contract," "in personal property and fixtures") made explicit in Com. Code § 9109(a)(1) [Com. Code § 9109 (UCC Comment P 10); see [a], above]. For coverage of security interests in real property, see Ch. 25A, Security Instruments for Real Estate Financing.

In addition, several kinds of transactions and security interests that would otherwise be subject to Division 9 are expressly excluded from its coverage [see Com. Code § 9109(c), (d)(1)-(10), (12)-(17)]. For a detailed checklist of excluded transactions, see § 42.110, PP 1c, d.

Division 9 is limited in its application to security interests that arise solely under the divisions on sales and leases [Com. Code § 9113; see Com. Code § 2101 et seq. (sales), 10101 et seq. (leases); see also Com. Code § 1201(b)(35) (limitations); Com. Code § 10103 (definitions)]. Further, the application of Division 9 to statutory liens other than agricultural liens is limited [see Com. Code § 9109(d)(1), (2); see also Com. Code § 9333 (governing priorities between certain possessory suppliers' liens and security interests covered by Division 9)].

If an excluded transaction or interest is used as collateral to secure an obligation to a third party, Division 9 of the Commercial Code will apply to the new security interest created in favor of the third party [Com. Code § 9109(b); see, e.g., § 42.203].

[5] Other Applicable Law

Although a secured transaction is subject to the California Commercial Code, some aspects of the transaction may also be governed by other statutes and regulations. A transaction subject to Division 9 is subject to any applicable rule of law that establishes a different rule for consumers, and to any applicable consumer protection statute, regulation, or law [Com. Code § 9201(b)].

For example, a secured transaction may be subject to the federal Consumer Credit Protection Act, which includes the Truth in Lending Act [15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.; see Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales]. Under the Truth in Lending Act, a creditor who regularly extends or offers consumer credit that is payable by agreement in four or more installments or subject to a finance charge must make certain disclosures concerning those transactions [see 15 U.S.C. § 1604; see also 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.2(a)(17), 226.6-226.9, 226.17, 226.18]. The Truth in Lending Act, however, is inapplicable to extensions of credit for agricultural purposes [15 U.S.C. § 1603(1)]. A secured transaction in consumer goods may also be subject to the Federal Trade Commission Act [15 U.S.C. § 41 et seq.]. Under this act, it is an unfair or deceptive act or practice for a seller to take a consumer credit contract or to accept the proceeds of any purchase money loan in connection with any sale or lease of goods or services, unless the consumer credit contract includes a notice that the holder of the contract is subject to all the claims and defenses that the debtor could assert against the seller [16 C.F.R. § 433.2; see 15 U.S.C. § 45].

Other California laws may also govern a particular secured transaction in areas not covered by the Commercial Code [see Com. Code § 9201(b) (transactions subject to Division 9 are subject to other applicable laws relating to consumers or as specified), Com. Code § 10104 (personal property leases subject to other statutes); see also Com. Code § 9201 (UCC Comment P 3)]. For example, if a retail buyer and seller enter into a security agreement requiring the buyer to make four or more installment payments of the purchase price of goods or services used primarily for personal, family, or household purposes, the agreement constitutes a retail installment contract [see Civ. Code §§ 1802.1, 1802.6] and is subject to the Unruh Act [see Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.]. This Act governs retail installment sales, requires certain disclosures, and prohibits certain provisions [see Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.; see Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales].

Other state provisions that may govern the transaction include the following [Com. Code § 9201(b)]:

- Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. (regulation of unfair competition; enforcement).
- Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et seq. (advertising).
- The Automobile Sales Finance Act (Rees-Levering Act) [Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.; see Ch. 47, Automotive Financing and Vehicle Leasing].
- The Civil Code, Division Three, Part Four, Obligations Arising from Particular Transactions [Civ. Code § 1738 et seq.], with respect to the applicable provisions relating to, for example, consignment of fine art, credit cards, credit card disclosure and charge card disclosures, layaway practices, consumer credit reports, reporting agencies, computed interest, finance charges, credit sales, contracts for various lessons and services, creditor remedies, deposits, loans, and liens [see Com. Code § 9201(b)].
- The Industrial Loan Law [Fin. Code § 18000 et seq.].
- The Pawnbroker Law [Fin. Code § 21000 et seq.; see Ch. 102B, Pawnbrokers, Personal Property].

Brokers, and Secondhand Goods Dealers].

- The California Finance Lenders Law [Fin. Code § 22000 et seq.; see Ch. 102B, Pawnbrokers, Personal Property Brokers, and Secondhand Goods Dealers].
- The Mobilehomes-Manufactured Housing Act of 1980 [Health & Safety Code § 18000 et seq.; see Ch. 39, Mobilehome Parks, Ch. 40, Mobilehomes].
- Any applicable consumer protection statute, regulation, or law.

In case of conflict between Division 9 of the Commercial Code and one of the rules of law, statutes or regulations described in Com. Code § 9201(b), that rule of law, statute, or regulation controls [Com. Code § 9201(c)]. A failure to comply with any applicable regulatory statute has the effect specified in that statute, but does not automatically constitute a violation of Division 9 [Com. Code § 9201(c); see Com. Code § 9201 (UCC Comment P 3)]. Further, Division 9 does not validate violations under or extend the application of the other applicable laws [see Com. Code § 9201(d)].

The perfection of security interests in property may be governed by authority other than the Commercial Code [see Com. Code § 9311]. For discussion of applicable statutes, regulations, and treaties, see § 42.10[5]. For a detailed guide to perfecting security in multiple state transactions, refer to § 42.121, P 14.

DIVISION III: COMMERCIAL TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 42 SECURED TRANSACTIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

19-42 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 42.11

AUTHOR: by Ann S. Manheimer, J.D.

§ 42.11 Classification of Collateral

[1] In General

The kind of collateral used in a secured transaction affects the form of the transaction as well as the procedures necessary to make the security interest enforceable against third parties [see §§ 42.14, 42.120, 42.121]. Therefore, to take advantage of all the protections afforded by the Commercial Code, the interested parties must first classify the collateral used.

The collateral in a secured transaction subject to Division 9 of the Commercial Code is the property subject to a security interest or agricultural lien, including proceeds to which a security interest attaches; accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, and promissory notes that have been sold; and goods that are the subject of a consignment[Com. Code § 9102(a)(12)]. With few exceptions (such as nonconsensual agricultural liens), Division 9 of the California Commercial Code applies only to consensual security interests in personal property [see Com. Code § 9109; Com. Code § 9109 (UCC Comment P 10); see § 42.10[4][a]].

Former Com. Code § 9102(1) enumerated common categories of collateral in personal property, including goods [see [2][a], below], documents [see [2][c], below], instruments (which, under the expanded scope of revised Division 9, include promissory notes) [see [2][d], below], accounts [see [2][e], below], chattel paper [see [2][f], below], and general intangibles (which, under the expanded scope of revised Division 9, include payment intangibles and software) [see also [2][g], below]. The term "collateral" now also explicitly includes proceeds subject to a security interest [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(12); § 42.10[1]] and property subject to an agricultural lien [see Com. Code § 9109(a)(2)]. Although the revised basic scope provision, Com. Code § 9109(a)(1), no longer includes this list, "no change in meaning is intended" by its omission [see Com. Code § 9109(a)(1) (UCC Comment P 2)], and the list provides a useful framework to discuss the types of collateral in personal property that commonly give rise to security interests.

PRACTICE TIP:

Unlike the UCC comments to former Division 9, the comments to revised Division 9, effective July 1, 2001 [see Stats. 1999 ch. 991, § 35] do not dwell on the pre-UCC state of the law. For that reason the comments to former Division 9 remain of substantial historical value and interest [Com. Code § 9101 (UCC Comment P 1)]. They also remain useful in understanding the background and general conceptual approach to the current law [see Com. Code § 9101 (UCC Comment P 1)].

For this reason, comments to the former division may be cited in this chapter, usually when the revised statutory provisions have been combined and shortened, with no change in meaning intended [see, e.g., Com. Code § 9109 (UCC Comment P 2)].

Whether a transaction actually creates a "security interest" is determined by whether the transaction falls within the definition of "security interest" in Com. Code § 1201(b)(35) [see Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 3b); Com. Code § 9109 (UCC Comment P 2); see also Com. Code § 1201(b)(35) ("security interest" defined); § 42.10[4][a]].

For a detailed checklist of the kinds of collateral that may be involved in secured transactions, see § 42.110, P 1b.

[2] Specific Types of Collateral

"Goods" includes all things that are movable at the time that the security interest attaches [Com. Code § 9102(a)(44); see § 42.12]. The term includes fixtures; standing timber that is to be cut and removed under a conveyance or contract for sale; the unborn young of animals; crops grown, growing, or to be grown, even if the crops are produced on trees, vines, or bushes; and manufactured homes [Com. Code § 9102(a)(44)]. The term also includes a computer program embedded in goods and any supporting information provided in connection with a transaction relating to the program, if the program customarily is considered part of the goods, or if by becoming the owner of the goods, a person acquires a right to use the program in connection with the goods [Com. Code § 9102(a)(44)].

"Goods" does not include a computer program embedded in goods that consist solely of the medium in which the program is embedded [Com. Code § 9102(a)(44)]. The term also does not include accounts, chattel paper, commercial tort claims, deposit accounts, documents, general intangibles, instruments, investment property, letter-of-credit rights, letters of credit, money, or oil, gas, or other minerals before extraction [Com. Code § 9102(a)(44)].

"Fixtures" are goods that have become so related to particular real estate that an interest in them arises under real property law [Com. Code § 9102(a)(41); see Goldie v. Bauchet Properties (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 307, 314-316, 124 Cal. Rptr. 161, 540 P.2d 1 (decided under prior law)], other than ordinary building materials used to construct the building or other improvement [see Com. Code § 9334(a); see also Com. Code § 9334 (UCC Comment P 3)].

Also considered goods are "accessions," which are goods that are physically united with other goods in such a manner that the original identity of the goods is not lost [Com. Code § 9102(a)(1); see Com. Code § 9335 (UCC Comment P 2); see also Com. Code § 9335 (special priority and enforcement rules for accessions)], and "manufactured homes" [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(53) (definition); see also Com. Code § 9515 (permitting financing statement in "manufactured-home transaction" to be effective for 30 years)].

[b] Types of Collateral Consisting of Goods

Division 9 identifies the following four mutually exclusive types of collateral that consist of goods: consumer goods, farm products, inventory, and equipment [see Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 4a)]. This classification is relevant in many situations, including determining the rights of persons who buy goods from a debtor that are subject to a security interest [see Com. Code §§ 9320, 9323(d), (e); see also § 42.15[8]], resolving certain priority issues [see Com. Code §§ 9322-9324; see also § 42.15[1], [5]-[9]], determining the proper place to file [see Com. Code § 9501 et seq.; see also § 42.14[3][c]], and determining rights after default [Com. Code § 9601 et seq.; see also § 42.16].

"Consumer goods" are goods that are used or bought for use primarily for personal, family, or household purposes [Com. Code § 9102(a)(23); see Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 4a)]. In certain instances, special rules apply to consumer goods, consumer goods transactions, and consumer transactions [see, e.g., Com. Code § 9616 (duty to explain calculation of deficiency or surplus in consumer goods transaction); Com. Code § 9614 (special requirements for contents of notification of disposition and "plain English" form of notification for consumer goods transactions); see also § 42.241].

"Farm products" are goods, other than standing timber, if the debtor is engaged in a farming operation with respect to the goods [Com. Code § 9102(a)(34)]. Farm products include any of the following [Com. Code § 9102(a)(34)]:

- Crops grown, growing, or to be grown, including both crops produced on trees, vines, and bushes, and aquatic goods produced in aquacultural operations [see Com. Code § 9324 (UCC Comment P 11) (courts are free to classify aquatic goods as either crops or livestock on case-by-case basis)].
- Livestock, born or unborn, including aquatic goods produced in aquacultural operations.
- Supplies used or produced in a farming operation.
- Products of crops or livestock in their unmanufactured states.

"Inventory" means goods, other than farm products, that are leased by a person as lessor; held by a person for sale or lease or to be furnished under a contract of service; furnished by a person under a contract of service; or consist of raw materials, work in process, or materials used or consumed in a business (for example, fuel used in operations) [Com. Code § 9102(a)(48); see Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 4a); see also U.S. v. Handy and Harman (9th Cir. 1984) 750 F.2d 777, 781 n.2 (decided under former law)]. Implicit in the definition is the criterion that the sale or lease is or will be in the ordinary course of business. For example, machinery used in manufacturing is equipment (see below), not inventory, even though it is the debtor's policy to sell machinery when it becomes obsolete or worn [see Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 4a)].

"Equipment" includes goods that are not inventory, farm products, or consumer goods [Com. Code § 9102(a)(33)]. In general, goods used in a business are equipment if they are fixed assets or have, as identifiable units, a relatively long period of use. However, goods are inventory, even though not held for sale or lease, if they are used up or consumed in a short period of time in producing a product or providing a service [Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 4a)].

The four types of collateral consisting of goods are mutually exclusive; the same property cannot simultaneously belong to more than one category [Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 4a)]. In general, the classification of goods into one of the four categories depends on who holds the goods and for what reason. Goods can also fall into difference classes at different times. For example, a radio may be inventory in the hands of a dealer, but consumer goods in the hands of a consumer. In borderline cases in which an item may be classified in more than one category, its principal use determines its classification. Goods are "equipment" if they do not fall into another category [Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 4a)].

[c] Documents

A "document" is either a document of title or a warehouse receipt [Com. Code § 9102(a)(30); see Com. Code § 1201(b)(16) ("document of title" defined); Com. Code §§ 7201(b), 7202(a) (warehouse receipts)]. A "document of title" must purport to be issued by or addressed to a bailee and to cover goods in the bailee's possession that either are identified or are fungible portions of an identified mass [Com. Code § 1201(b)(16)]. "Fungible goods" are goods of which any unit, by nature or usage of trade, is the equivalent of any other like unit, or goods that by agreement are treated as equivalent [Com. Code § 1201(b)(18)]. Documents of title include bills of lading, dock warrants, dock receipts, warehouse receipts, or orders for the delivery of goods, and any other documents that, in the regular course of business or financing, are treated as adequate evidence that the person in possession of one of these documents is entitled to receive, hold, and dispose of the document and the goods it covers [Com. Code § 1201(b)(16); see Com. Code § 7401 (general obligations imposed on issuer)].

A "warehouse receipt," which is also a document of title [see Com. Code § 1201(b)(16)], is a receipt issued by a person engaged in the business of storing goods for hire [Com. Code § 1201(b)(42); see Com. Code § 7102(a)(13) ("warehouse" defined); Com. Code § 7102(a)(8) ("issuer"); Com. Code § 7102(a)(9) ("person entitled under the document"); Com. Code § 7201 (issuance of receipts); Com. Code § 7202 (form for receipt)]. If goods, including distilled spirits and agricultural commodities, are stored under a statute requiring a bond against withdrawal or a license for the issuance of receipts in the nature of warehouse receipts, a receipt issued for the goods is deemed to be a warehouse receipt, even if issued by a person that is the owner of the goods and is not a warehouse [Com. Code § 7201(b)].

Under Division 9, an "instrument" includes a negotiable instrument, such as a note, draft, check, certificate of deposit, or demand draft [Com. Code § 9102(a)(47); see Com. Code § 3104 ("negotiable instrument" defined)]. Under this division, an instrument also includes any other writing that evidences a right to the payment of money that is transferable by delivery with any necessary endorsement or assignment in the ordinary course of business and that is not itself a security agreement or lease [Com. Code § 9102(a)(47)]. The term does not include investment property [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(49) ("investment property" defined)], letters of credit [see Com. Code § 5102(a)(10) ("letter of credit" defined); see also Ch. 56, Letters of Credit and Electronic Fund Transfers], or writings that evidence a right to payment arising out of the use of a credit card or a charge card or information contained on or for use with the card [Com. Code § 9102(a)(47)]. Except in the case of chattel paper [see [f], below], the fact that an instrument is itself secured by a security interest or encumbrance on property does not change the character of the instrument as such or convert the combination of instrument and collateral into a separate classification of personal property [Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 5c)].

A "promissory note" is an instrument that evidences a promise to pay a monetary obligation, does not evidence an order to pay, and does not contain an acknowledgment by a bank that the bank has received for deposit a sum of money or funds [Com. Code § 9102(a)(65)]. The definition explicitly excludes obligations arising out of "orders" to pay (checks, for example), as opposed to "promises" to pay [Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 5c); see Com. Code § 3104 (definitions)]. Revised Division 9 includes the sale of promissory notes within its scope [see Com. Code § 9109(a)(3)].

Under revised Division 9, effective July 1, 2001 [see Stats. 1999 ch. 991, § 35; see also § 42.10[2][b]], the definition of "account" was expanded and reformulated. It is no longer limited to rights to payment relating to goods and services [Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 5a); cf. former Com. Code § 9106 (account is ordinary commercial account receivable)]. "Account" (except as used in the phrase "account for") now means a right to payment of a monetary obligation, whether or not earned by performance [Com. Code § 9102(a)(2)]:

- For property that has been or is to be sold, leased, licensed, assigned, or otherwise disposed of;
- For services rendered or to be rendered;
- For a policy of insurance issued or to be issued;

- For a secondary obligation incurred or to be incurred;
- For energy provided or to be provided;
- For the use or hire of a vessel under a charter or other contract [see Richmond Crane Rigging & Drayage Co. v. Liberty Nat. Bank (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 968, 974-977, 104 Cal. Rptr. 277 (decided under prior law)];
- Arising out of the use of a credit or charge card or information contained on or for use with the card;
or
- As winnings in a lottery or other game of chance operated or sponsored by a state or its governmental unit, or person licensed or authorized to operate the game by a state or its governmental unit.

"Account" includes health care insurance receivables [Com. Code § 9102(a)(2)]. A "health care insurance receivable" is an interest in, or claim under, an insurance policy that is a right to payment of a monetary obligation for health care goods or services provided or to be provided [Com. Code § 9102(a)(46)]. Although health care receivables are accounts, the rules generally applicable to account debtors on accounts do not apply to insurers obligated on health care insurance receivables [see Com. Code §§ 9404(c), 9405(d), 9406(i)].

Certain accounts are "as-extracted collateral" [Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 5a)]. That term refers to minerals and related accounts [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(6) (definition); Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 4c, Examples 6, 7)]. Division 9 contains special rules for perfecting security interests in minerals that attach on extraction and in accounts resulting from the sale of minerals at the wellhead or minehead [see, e.g., Com. Code § 9301(4) (perfection and priority); Com. Code § 9501(a)(1)(A) (place of filing); Com. Code § 9502 (contents of filing statement); Com. Code § 9519(d), (e) (indexing of records)].

"Account" does not include [Com. Code § 9102(a)(2)]:

- Rights to payment evidenced by chattel paper or an instrument;
- Commercial tort claims;
- Deposit accounts;
- Investment property;
- Letter-of-credit rights or letters of credit; or
- Rights to payment for money or funds advanced or sold, other than rights arising out of the use of a credit or charge card or information contained on or for use with the card [see Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 5a) (explaining that "funds," although undefined, is a broader concept than "money," which is essentially limited to currency); see also Com. Code § 1201(b)(24) ("money" defined)].

For example, when a lender credits a borrower's deposit account for the amount of a loan, the bank's advance of funds is not a transaction giving rise to an account [Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 5a)].

[f] Chattel Paper

"Chattel paper" consists of a monetary obligation together with a security interest in or a lease of specific goods if the obligation and security interest or lease are evidenced by a "record or records" [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(11)]. Chattel paper also includes records that evidence a monetary obligation and security interest in specific goods and software used in the goods or in specific goods and license of software used in the goods, or a monetary obligation together with a lease of specific goods and license of software used in the goods [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(11)]. "Monetary obligation" in this context means a monetary obligation secured by the goods or owed under a lease of the goods. It includes a monetary obligation with respect to software used in the goods [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(11)].

Charters or other contracts involving the use or hire of a vessel are expressly excluded from the definition of "chattel paper" [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(11); see also Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 5b) ("charter" defined)]; they are accounts [see Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 5b)]. Also excluded are records that evidence a right to payment arising out of the use of a credit card or charge card, or information contained on or for use with the card [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(11)].

Under former Division 9, an obligation could qualify as chattel paper only if the evidence of an obligation consisted of "a writing or writings" [see former Com. Code § 9105(1)(b)]. However, in the revised division, traditional written chattel paper is included in the definition of "tangible chattel paper" [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(78) ("tangible chattel paper" defined); Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 5b)].

"Electronic chattel paper" is chattel paper that is stored in an electronic medium instead of in a tangible form [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(31)]. The concept of an electronic medium is meant to be construed liberally to include electrical, digital, magnetic, optical, electromagnetic, or any other current or similar emerging technologies [see Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 5b)]. Further, the definition of electronic chattel paper does not dictate that it be created in any particular way. For example, a record consisting of a tangible writing may be converted to electronic form, for example, by creating electronic images of a signed writing. Or records may be created and executed in electronic form; for example, when a lessee authenticates an electronic record of a lease that is then stored in electronic form [see Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 5b)].

If a transaction is evidenced by records that include an instrument or series of instruments, the group of records taken together constitutes chattel paper [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(11)].

Chattel paper is typically created when a secured party wishes to borrow against or sell the security agreement along with its interest in the collateral received from the debtor [see former Com. Code § 9105 (UCC Comment PP 3, 4); see also Com. Code § 9101 (UCC Comment P 1) (noting that Comments to former Division 9 remain useful in understanding the background and general conceptual approach of revised Division 9)].

"General intangible" is the residual category of personal property that is not included in the other defined types of collateral [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(42); Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 5d)]. It specifically includes things in action, payment intangibles, and software [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(42)]. It also includes any personal property other than accounts, chattel paper, commercial tort claims, deposit accounts, documents, goods, instruments, investment property, letter-of-credit rights, letters of credit, money, and oil, gas, or other minerals before extraction [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(42); see also MLQ Investors LP v. Pacific Quadracasting, Inc. (9th Cir. 1998) 146 F.3d 746, 749 (creditor may obtain security interest in proceeds of sale of FCC license; such an interest constitutes "general intangible" that may be perfected prior to sale of license, decided under prior law)]. Examples include various categories of intellectual property and the right to payment of a loan of funds that is not evidenced by chattel paper or an instrument [see Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 5d)].

Commercial tort claims, deposit accounts, and letter-of-credit rights [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(13), (29), (51)]

(definitions)], which are excluded from the definition of general intangibles, are each separate types of collateral [see Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 5d)]. One important consequence of this exclusion is that tortfeasors (commercial tort claims), banks (deposit accounts), and persons obligated on letters of credit (letter-of-credit rights) are not "account debtors," having the rights and obligations set forth in Com. Code §§ 9404, 9405, and 9406, governing assignment and discharge of account debtors [see Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 5d); see also Com. Code § 9108 (requiring greater specificity of description in security agreement for these types of collateral); § 42.12[2][c]].

A "payment intangible" is a general intangible under which the account debtor's principal obligation is monetary [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(61)]. Even though almost any intangible right could give rise to payment of money if the account debtor were in breach of its obligation, the term "payment intangible" embraces only those general intangibles "under which the account debtor's principal obligation is a monetary obligation" [Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 5d) (emphasis in original; discussing how to classify intangible collateral)]. The sale of a payment intangible is subject to Division 9 [see Com. Code § 9109(a)(3)].

§ 42.12 Attachment of Security Interests and Agricultural Liens

[1] Requirements for Attachment

In order for a security agreement to be enforceable against the debtor or third parties with respect to the collateral, the security interest must "attach" [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(73) ("security agreement" defined); Com. Code § 9203(a) (security agreement attaches to collateral when it becomes enforceable against debtor with respect to collateral, unless an agreement postpones time of attachment); see also Bank of Stockton v. Diamond Walnut Growers, Inc. (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 144, 152-153, 244 Cal. Rptr. 744 (decided under prior law)]. The term "attach" is used to describe the point at which the property becomes subject to a security interest [Com. Code § 9308 (UCC Comment P 2)].

With specified exceptions, a security interest attaches and is enforceable against the debtor and third parties with respect to the collateral only if each of following conditions is satisfied [Com. Code § 9203(b); see Com. Code § 9203(c)-(i) (exceptions)]:

- Value has been given [Com. Code § 9203(b)(1)].
- The debtor has rights in the collateral or the power to transfer rights in the collateral to a secured party [Com. Code § 9203(b)(2)].
- There is an agreement, plus satisfaction of one of the following evidentiary tests [see Com. Code § 9203(b)(3); Com. Code § 9203 (UCC Comment PP 2-4); see also Com. Code § 9203(e) (enforcement requirements of Com. Code § 9203(b)(3) are met when new debtor becomes bound under original debtor's security agreement); Com. Code § 9203(d) (explaining when new debtor becomes bound)]:
 - Authenticated security agreement: The debtor has authenticated a security agreement that provides a description of the collateral and, if the security interest covers timber to be cut, a description of the land concerned [Com. Code § 9203(b)(3)(A)].

■ Possession pursuant to the agreement: The collateral is not a certificated security and is in the possession of the secured party under Com. Code § 9313 (perfection by possession or delivery without filing), in accordance with to the debtor's security agreement [Com. Code § 9203(b)(3)(B)].

■ Delivery pursuant to the agreement: The collateral is a certificated security in registered form and the security certificate has been delivered to the secured party under Com. Code § 8301 (delivery of security), in accordance with the debtor's security agreement [Com. Code § 9203(b)(3)(C); see Com. Code § 8102(a)(4) ("certificated security" defined); Com. Code § 8102(a)(16) "security certificate" defined)].

■ Control pursuant to the agreement: The collateral is deposit accounts, electronic chattel paper, investment property, letter-of-credit rights, or electronic documents, and the secured party has control under Com. Code §§ 7106 and 9104-9107, in accordance with the debtor's security agreement [Com. Code § 9203(b)(3)(D); see Com. Code § 9102 (definitions)].

Com. Code § 9203(b)(3)(A) represents the most basic of the evidentiary alternatives, under which the debtor must authenticate a security agreement that provides a description of the collateral [see Com. Code § 9203(b)(3)(A); Com. Code § 9203 (UCC Comment P 3); see also Com. Code § 9102(a)(73) ("security agreement" is "an agreement that creates or provides for a security interest"); Com. Code § 9102(a)(7) ("authenticate" means to sign or execute or otherwise adopt or accept a record)].

The other alternatives in Com. Code § 9203(b)(3) dispense with the requirement of an authenticated security agreement and provide alternative evidentiary tests. Under Com. Code § 9203(b)(3)(B), the secured party's possession substitutes for the authentication under Com. Code § 9203(b)(3)(A) if the secured party's possession "is pursuant to the debtor's security agreement" [see Com. Code § 9203(b)(3)(B); Com. Code § 9203 (UCC Comment P 4); see also Com. Code § 9313 (possession for these purposes)]. That phrase refers to the debtor's agreement to the secured party's possession for the purpose of creating a security interest. The phrase should not be confused with the phrase "debtor has authenticated a security agreement," used in Com. Code § 9203(b)(3)(A), which contemplates the debtor's authentication of a record [Com. Code § 9203 (UCC Comment P 4)]. In the unlikely event that possession was obtained without the debtor's agreement, possession would not suffice as a substitute for an authenticated security agreement. However, once the security interest has become enforceable and has attached, it is not impaired by the fact that the secured party's possession is maintained without the agreement of a subsequent debtor [Com. Code § 9203 (UCC Comment P 4)].

Com. Code § 9203(b)(3)(C) provides that delivery of a certificated security to the secured party under Com. Code § 8301 pursuant to the debtor's security agreement is sufficient as a substitute for an authenticated security agreement [Com. Code § 9203(b)(3)(C); see Com. Code § 9203 (UCC Comment P 4)]. Similarly, under Com. Code § 9203(b)(3)(D), control of investment property, a deposit account, electronic chattel paper, a letter-of-credit right or an electronic document, satisfies the evidentiary test if control is pursuant to the debtor's agreement [Com. Code § 9203(b)(3)(D); see Com. Code § 9203 (UCC Comment P 4)].

Attachment occurs automatically as soon each of the required conditions of Com. Code § 9203(b) is satisfied, unless an agreement expressly postpones the time of attachment [Com. Code § 9203(a); see, e.g., Bank of the West v. Commercial Credit Fin. Serv., Inc. (9th Cir. 1988) 852 F.2d 1162, 1166-1167 (creditor had no interest in inventory and accounts until debtor acquired business, decided under prior law)]. However, the order in which the events establishing the attachment of a security interest occur is immaterial [Komas v. Future Systems, Inc. (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 809, 813, 139 Cal. Rptr. 669 (decided under prior law)].

Special provisions govern attachment when the collateral is securities [see Com. Code § 9206], when a collecting bank holds the security interest [see Com. Code § 4210], when an issuer or nominated person has a security interest in a document presented under a letter of credit [see Com. Code § 5118], when a security interest arises under Com. Code § 2101 et seq., governing sales, or under Com. Code § 10101 et seq., governing personal property leases [Com. Code § 9203(c); see Com. Code § 9110 (security interests arising under Commercial Code Divisions 2 and 10)]. These provisions are discussed in [3], below. For a guide to attachment procedures, see § 42.120.

Additional rules exist for supporting obligations [see Com. Code § 9203(f); [2][e], below], transfer of an obligation [see Com. Code § 9203(g); [2][f], below], and investment property [see Com. Code § 9203(h), (i); [3][a], below].

For discussion of agricultural liens, see § 42.14[3][a].

[2] Validity of Security Agreements

[a] In General

A security agreement is effective according to its terms between the parties, against purchasers of the collateral, and against creditors, unless the Commercial Code provides to the contrary [Com. Code § 9201(a)]. Exceptions to the general rule arise when there is an overriding provision in this division or in another division [Com. Code § 9201 (UCC Comment P 2)]. For example, the Commercial Code operates to invalidate disclaimers of the duty of good faith [see Com. Code § 1302(b); see also Com. Code § 1203 (every contract or duty within Commercial Code imposes obligation of good faith in its performance and enforcement)], to subordinate a security interest that has not been perfected [see Com. Code § 9317; see also § 42.14[2]], or to subordinate certain security interests to other security interests and to the interests of purchasers [see Com. Code § 3101 et seq.]. This general rule also does not validate any rate, charge, agreement, or practice that violates a rule of law, statute, or regulation described in Com. Code § 9201(b) [see § 42.10[5]], or extend the application of any such statute, rule of law, or regulation to a transaction not otherwise subject to it [Com. Code § 9201(d)].

[b] Sufficiency of Agreement

In order to make a security interest enforceable [see [1], above], there must be a binding security agreement [Komas v. Future Systems, Inc. (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 809, 813, 139 Cal. Rptr. 669 (decided under prior law); Needle v. Lasco Industries, Inc. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 1105, 1108, 89 Cal. Rptr. 593 (decided under prior law)] and compliance with an evidentiary requirement in the nature of the Statute of Frauds [Com. Code § 9203(b)(3); see Com. Code § 9203 (UCC Comment P 3)]. A security agreement is one that creates or provides for a security interest [Com. Code § 9102(a)(73); see § 42.10[2][a]].

The Commercial Code does not specify the language or the terms that must be included in a security agreement, and does not require that the terms of the agreement be set forth in a single document; no special form is necessary to create or provide for a security interest [Komas v. Future Systems, Inc. (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 809, 814-816, 139 Cal. Rptr. 669 (decided under prior law); In re Amex-Protein Dev. Corp. (9th Cir. 1974) 504 F.2d 1056, 1058-1060 (decided under prior law); see New West Fruit Corp. v. Coastal Berry Corp. (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 92, 97-98, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 664 (there is no requirement that security agreement be in writing when collateral is in the secured party's possession, and no express requirements for agreement's form or content)]. Rather, the Commercial Code broadly defines the term "agreement" to mean the bargain between the parties in fact, as found in their language, or inferred from other circumstances, including course of performance, course of dealing, or usage of trade as provided in Com. Code § 1303 [Com. Code § 1201(b)(3)].

The test for the sufficiency of a security agreement is whether the transaction falls within the definition of "security interest" in Com. Code § 1201(b)(35), not whether the parties intend to characterize the transaction as a security interest [see Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 3b); Com. Code § 9109 (UCC Comment P 2); see also Com. Code § 1201(b)(35) ("security interest" includes any interest of consignor or buyer of accounts, chattel paper, payment intangible, or promissory note in transaction subject to Com. Code § 9101 et seq.)). Whether a transaction in the form of a lease creates a security interest is determined under Com. Code § 1203 [Com. Code § 1201(b)(35)].

A security agreement need not be contained in a single document. For example, an effective security agreement can consist of multiple documents, such as an agreement between the creditor and the debtor and a financing statement, or a promissory note together with invoices, provided that the documents together create or provide for a security interest and give adequate notice of the security interest to third parties [see Biggins v. Southwest Bank (S.D. Cal. 1971) 322 F. Supp. 62, 67-68, modified, 490 F.2d 1304 (9th Cir. 1973) (decided under prior law); In re Amex-Protein Dev. Corp. (9th Cir. 1974) 504 F.2d 1056, 1058-1060 (decided under prior law); see also [c], below].

The description of the personal or real property collateral that must be included in a security agreement does not need to be specific. With specified exceptions, the description is sufficient, whether or not it is specific, if it reasonably identifies the collateral described [Com. Code § 9108(a); see Com. Code § 9108(c)-(e) (exceptions); see also Com. Code § 9108(f) (additional requirements for investment property collateral and consumer goods)]. The test of the sufficiency of the description is whether the description provides information adequate to lead a reasonable inquirer to the identity of the collateral [In re Amex-Protein Dev. Corp. (9th Cir. 1974) 504 F.2d 1056, 1060-1061 (decided under prior law); see Com. Code § 9108 (UCC Comment P 2) (test is that "the description ... make possible the identification of the collateral described")]. For example, an agreement setting forth a security interest in "new and used automobiles" is sufficient to identify the property covered by a security agreement [Biggins v. Southwest Bank (S.D. Cal. 1971) 322 F. Supp. 62, 67-69, modified, 490 F.2d 1304 (9th Cir. 1973) (decided under prior law)]. However, if the security interest covers timber to be cut, the agreement must contain a description of the land concerned [Com. Code § 9203(b)(3)(A)]. Moreover, if the description identifies the location of the property, it must do so accurately [see, e.g., Matter of California Pump & Mfg. Co., Inc. (9th Cir. 1978) 588 F.2d 717, 719 (description is insufficient when collateral is not located in city identified in description, decided under prior law)].

There are a variety of ways in which a description may reasonably identify collateral. With specific exceptions related to a security entitlement, securities account, or commodity account [see Com. Code § 9108(d)], a description reasonably identifies the collateral if it describes it by any of the following [Com. Code § 9108(b)]:

- Specific listing.
- Category.
- Except as otherwise provided in Com. Code § 9108(e) for a commercial tort claim or a consumer transaction, a type of collateral defined in the Commercial Code.
- Quantity.
- Computational or allocational formula or procedure.
- Except as otherwise provided in Com. Code § 9108(c) (see below), any other method, if the identity of the collateral is objectively determinable.

However, a description of collateral as "all the debtor's assets" or "all the debtor's personal property" or similar words does not reasonably identify the collateral and is not sufficient for purposes of a security agreement [see Com. Code § 9108(c)]. Note, however, that under Com. Code § 9504, a financing statement sufficiently indicates collateral if it "covers all assets or all personal property" [see Com. Code § 9504(2)].

With specified exceptions for a commercial tort claim or a consumer transaction [see Com. Code § 9108(e)], a description of a security entitlement, securities account, or commodity account is sufficient if it describes either the collateral by those terms or as investment property, or the underlying financial asset or commodity contract [Com. Code § 9108(d)]. Thus, the use of the wrong terminology [see Com. Code § 8101 et seq. (investment securities)] does not render a description invalid. For example, a security agreement intended to cover a debtor's "security entitlements" is sufficient if it refers to the debtor's "securities" [Com. Code § 9108 (UCC Comment P 4)]. Note that given the broad definition of "securities account," a security interest in a securities account also includes all other rights of the debtor against the securities intermediary arising out of the securities account [Com. Code § 9108 (UCC Comment P 4); see Com. Code § 8501) ("securities account" defined)]. Moreover, describing collateral as a securities account is a simple way of describing all of the securities entitlements carried on the account [Com. Code § 9108 (UCC Comment P 4)].

Greater specificity of description, however, is required when dealing with either a commercial tort claim, or, in a consumer transaction, consumer goods, a security entitlement, a securities account, or a commodity account [see Com. Code § 9108(e)]. In those cases, a description only by type of collateral defined in the Commercial Code is an insufficient description [Com. Code § 9108(e)]. For example, "all existing and after-acquired investment property" or "all existing and after-acquired security entitlements," without more, would be insufficient in a consumer transaction to describe a securities entitlement, securities, account, or commodity account [Com. Code § 9108 (UCC Comment P 5); see Com. Code § 9203(h), (i) (if collateral consists of securities account or commodity account, description of account is sufficient to cover all existing and future entitlements or commodity contracts carried on account); see also [1], above].

In addition to the requirements governing the sufficiency of the description of collateral set forth in Com. Code § 9108, a description of investment property collateral also must meet the applicable requirements of Civ. Code § 1799.103 (limitations on security interest in investment property in consumer credit contract or guarantee), and a description of consumer goods also must meet the applicable requirements of Civ. Code § 1799.100 (security interests in household goods and personal property in connection with consumer credit contract or other consumer credit obligation) [Com. Code § 9108(f)].

The requirements applicable to the description of collateral in financing statements are discussed in § 42.14[3][b].

[d] After-Acquired Property and Future Advances

Although the general rule is that a security interest cannot attach unless the parties agree and an evidentiary requirement is met, value is given, and the debtor has rights in the collateral or the power to transfer rights in the collateral to a secured party [see Com. Code § 9203(b); [1], above], the Commercial Code expressly permits a security agreement to create or provide for a security interest in after-acquired collateral [see Com. Code § 9204(a)]. However, a security interest does not attach under an after-acquired property clause to a commercial tort claim [Com. Code § 9204(b)(2); see Com. Code § 9102(a)(13) (definition); Waltrip v. Kimberlin (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 517, 528-529, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 460 (security interest in commercial tort claim cannot attach unless claim is in existence when security agreement is authenticated; after-acquired property clause in agreement antedating claim cannot create such security interest except by modification of agreement once claim exists)]. A security interest also does not attach under an after-acquired property clause to consumer goods, other than an accession [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(1) (definition); see also Com. Code § 9335 (security interests in accessions)] when given as additional security, unless the debtor acquires rights in the property within 10 days after the secured party gives value [Com. Code § 9204(b)(1)].

A security agreement may provide that collateral secures, or that accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, or promissory notes are sold in connection with, future advances or other value, whether or not the advances or value are given pursuant to commitment [Com. Code § 9204(c)]. An advance is made pursuant to commitment when the secured party is obliged to make it, whether or not a subsequent event within the party's control has relieved or many relieve the secured party from its obligation [Com. Code § 9102(a)(68)]. Determining the obligations secured by collateral is solely a matter of construing the parties' agreement under applicable law [Com. Code § 9204 (UCC Comment P 5)].

[e] Proceeds From Disposition of Collateral; Supporting Obligations

The attachment of a security interest in collateral gives the secured party the rights to proceeds as provided by Com. Code § 9315 [Com. Code § 9203(f)]. Under Com. Code § 9315(a), a security interest or agricultural lien continues in collateral despite the sale, lease, license, exchange, or other disposition of the collateral, unless the secured party authorized the disposition free of the security interest or agricultural lien [see Com. Code § 9315(a)(1); see also Com. Code § 2403(2) (exception when buyer entrusts possession of goods to merchant with power to transfer all rights to buyer in ordinary course of business)]. The security interest attaches to any identifiable proceeds of collateral [Com. Code § 9315(a)(2)]. "Proceeds" include [Com. Code § 9102(a)(64); see Com. Code § 9315(b) (commingled proceeds); see also In the Matter of Munger (9th Cir. 1974) 495 F.2d 511, 512-513 (proceeds includes federal farm subsidies, decided under prior law)]:

- Whatever is acquired upon the sale, lease, license, exchange, or other disposition of collateral.
- Whatever is collected on, or distributed on account of, collateral.
- Rights arising out of collateral.
- To the extent of the value of collateral, claims arising out of the loss, nonconformity, or interference with the use of, defects or infringement of rights in, or damage to, the collateral.
- To the extent of the value of collateral and to the extent payable to the debtor or the secured party, insurance payable by reason of the loss or nonconformity of, defects or infringement of rights in, or damage to, the collateral.

The attachment of a security interest in collateral is also attachment of a security interest in a supporting obligation for the collateral [Com. Code § 9203(f)]. "Supporting obligation" means a letter-of-credit right or secondary obligation that supports the payment or performance of an account, chattel paper, document, general intangible, instrument, or investment property [Com. Code § 9102(a)(77)]. Implicit in Com. Code § 9203(f) is the principle that the secured party's interest in a supporting obligation extends to the supporting obligation only to the extent that it supports the collateral in which the secured party has a security interest [Com. Code § 9203 (UCC Comment P 8)]. Complex issues may arise, however, if a supporting obligation supports many separate obligations of a particular account debtor, and if the supporting obligations are separately assigned as security to several secured parties. Division 9 does not contain provisions dealing with competing claims to a limited supporting obligation. In these circumstances, the law of suretyship and the agreement of the parties will control [see Com. Code § 9203 (UCC Comment P 8; see also Ch. 79, Suretyship, Guaranty, and Indemnity ; Restatement 3d, Suretyship and Guaranty (1996))].

[f] Security Interest or Other Lien on Personal or Real Property

The attachment of a security interest in a right to payment or performance secured by a security interest or other lien on personal or real property is also attachment of a security interest in the security interest, mortgage, or other lien [Com. Code § 9203(g)]. Thus, the transfer of an obligation secured by such a security interest or other lien also transfers the security interest or lien [see Com. Code § 9203 (UCC Comment P 9)].

[g] Securities and Commodities Accounts

The attachment of a security interest in a securities account is also attachment of a security interest in the security entitlements carried in the securities account [Com. Code § 9203(h); see Com. Code § 8501(a) ("securities account" defined)]. Similarly, the attachment of a security interest in a commodity account is also attachment of a security interest in the commodity contracts carried in the commodity account [Com. Code § 9203(i); see Com. Code § 9102(a)(14) ("commodities account" defined)].

[h] Floating Liens

The Code expressly validates the concept of a "floating lien" on shifting collateral [Com. Code § 9205 (UCC Comment P 2)]. A security interest is not invalid or fraudulent against the debtor's creditors by reason of the debtor's right or ability to use, commingle, or dispose of all or part of the collateral, including returned or repossessed goods [Com. Code § 9205(a)(1)(A)]. The same is true when the debtor is at liberty to collect, compromise, enforce, or otherwise deal with collateral, to accept the return of goods or make repossessions, or to use, commingle, or dispose of proceeds of the collateral [Com. Code § 9205(a)(1)(B)-(D)]. Further, the failure of the secured party to require the debtor to account for the proceeds or replace the collateral neither invalidates the security interest or renders it fraudulent against other creditors of the debtor [Com. Code § 9205(2)]. However, the fact that floating liens are valid under the Code does not alter the requirements of possession if attachment, perfection, or enforcement of a security interest depends on possession of the collateral by the secured party [Com. Code § 9205(b); see §§ 42.14, 42.121].

[3] Special Provisions Governing Attachment of Certain Interests

[a] Investment Property

A security interest in favor of a securities intermediary attaches to a person's security entitlement if the person buys a financial asset through the securities intermediary in a transaction in which the person is obligated to pay the purchase price to the securities intermediary at the time of the purchase, and the securities intermediary credits the financial asset to the buyer's securities account before the buyer pays the securities intermediary [Com. Code § 9206(a)]. A "securities intermediary" is either a clearing corporation or a person, including a bank or broker, that in the ordinary course of its business maintains securities accounts for others and is acting in that capacity [Com. Code § 8102(a)(14)]. This security interest in favor of a securities intermediary secures the person's obligation to pay for the financial asset [Com. Code § 9206(b)]. These rules codify the indirect holding system commonly known as the "broker's lien" [Com. Code § 9206 (UCC Comment P 2)].

A security interest is also created in favor of persons who deliver certificated securities [Com. Code § 8102(a)(4) (definition)] or other financial assets in physical form, such as money market instruments, if the agreed payment is not received [see Com. Code § 9206(c); Com. Code § 9206 (UCC Comment P 3)]. This security interest secures the seller's right to receive payment for delivery [see Com. Code § 9206(d)].

Attachment rules for security interests arising in the purchase or delivery of a financial asset [see Com. Code § 9206] override the general attachment rules of Com. Code § 9203 [see Com. Code § 9203(c); see also [1], above]. A securities intermediary's security interest is perfected by control without further action [see Com. Code § 9206(a); Com. Code § 9206 (UCC Comment P 4); see also Com. Code § 8106 (control of security); Com. Code § 9314 (perfection by control)]. A security interest arising in the delivery of a financial asset under Com. Code § 9206(c) is automatically perfected [see Com. Code § 9309(9); see also Com. Code § 9206 (UCC Comment P 4)].

[b] Security Interests Held by Collecting Banks

When a collecting bank holds the security interest, the interest attaches without a security agreement and has priority over conflicting interests in the instrument [Com. Code § 4210(c); see Com. Code § 9203(c)]. Collecting banks have security interests in any item and accompanying documents or the proceeds of either in the following circumstances [Com. Code § 4210(a)]:

- When the item is deposited in an account, to the extent to which credit given for the item has been withdrawn or applied.
- When credit has been given for an item available for withdrawal as a matter of right, to the extent of the credit given, regardless of whether or not the credit is drawn upon and whether or not there is a right of chargeback.
- If the bank makes an advance on or against the item.

[c] Sales or Leases of Goods

Division 9 governs a security interest that arises under Com. Code §§ 2401 or 2505, or under Com. Code § 2711(3), or Com. Code § 10508(e) is subject to Division 9 [Com. Code §§ 9110, 9203(c)].

Com. Code § 2505 explains how a seller of goods may reserve a security interest in them [see Com. Code § 2505; Com. Code § 9110 (UCC Comment P 3)]. Com. Code § 2401 indicates that a reservation of title by the seller of goods, despite delivery to the buyer, is limited to a reservation of security interest [see Com. Code § 2401; Com. Code § 9110 (UCC Comment P 3)]. Division 9 governs a security interest arising solely under these provisions. However, until the buyer obtains possession of the goods, the security interest is enforceable even in the absence of a security agreement [see Com. Code § 9203(b)(3); [1], above], filing is not necessary to perfect the security interest, and the seller-secured party's rights on the buyer's default are governed by the Commercial Code Division on sales [Com. Code § 9110(1)-(3); see Com. Code § 2101 et seq.; see also Com. Code § 9110(4) (security interest has priority over conflicting security interest created by debtor); § 42.15].

Com. Code § 2711(3) and Com. Code § 10508(e) create a security interest in favor of the buyer or lessee in possession of goods that were rightfully rejected or as to which acceptance was justifiably revoked [see Com. Code §§ 2711(3), 10508(e); Com. Code § 9110 (UCC Comment P 3)]. Division 9 governs a security interest arising solely under these provisions. However, until the seller or lessor obtains possession of the goods, the security interest is enforceable even in the absence of a security agreement [see Com. Code § 9203(b)(3); [1], above], filing is not necessary to perfect the security interest, and the secured party's (buyer's or lessee's) rights on the debtor's (seller's or lessor's) default are governed by the Commercial Code Division on sales [see Com. Code § 2101 et seq.] or leases [Com. Code § 9110(1)-(3); see Com. Code § 10101 et seq.; see also Com. Code § 9110(4) (security interest has priority over conflicting security interest created by debtor)].

In general, a lease is enforceable according to its terms between the parties, against purchasers of goods, and against creditors of the parties, except as otherwise provided in Division 10 [Com. Code § 10301; see Com. Code §§ 1201(b)(35), 1203].

Whether a transaction in the form of a lease creates a lease or a security interest is determined by the facts of each case [Com. Code § 1203(a); see Com. Code § 1203(c) (transactions in lease form that do not, standing alone, create security interest)]. A transaction in the form of a lease creates a security interest if the consideration that the lessee is to pay for the right to possess and use the goods is an obligation for the term of the lease and is not subject to termination by the lessee, and if one of the following conditions is [Com. Code § 1203(b)]:

- The original term of the lease is equal to or greater than the remaining economic life of the goods.
- The lessee is bound to renew the lease for the remaining economic life of the goods or is bound to become the owner of the goods.

- The lessee has an option to renew the lease for the remaining economic life of the goods for no additional consideration or for nominal additional consideration on compliance with the lease agreement.
- The lessee has an option to become the owner of the goods for no additional consideration or for nominal additional consideration on compliance with the lease agreement.

There is no requirement for filing a lease [see Harris, The Interface Between Articles 2A and 9 Under the Official Text and the California Amendments, 22 U.C.C. L.J. 99, 103 (1989)].

§ 42.13 Rights and Duties of Secured Parties

[1] Duty of Care for Collateral in Secured Party's Possession; Rights of Secured Party Having Possession

A secured party in possession of collateral has a duty to use reasonable care in its custody and preservation [Com. Code § 9207(a); see Com. Code § 9207(d) (exception, in certain circumstances, if secured party is seller of accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, or promissory notes or consignor)]. The definitions of "collateral," "debtor," and "secured party" [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(12), (28), (72)] make this section applicable to collateral subject to an agricultural lien if the collateral is in the lienholder's possession [Com. Code § 9207 (UCC Comment P 2)]. The duty to exercise reasonable care may not be disclaimed by agreement, although the parties remain free to determine by agreement standards that are not manifestly unreasonable what constitutes reasonable care [see Com. Code § 1302(b); Com. Code § 9207 (UCC Comment P 2)]. Unless otherwise agreed, for a secured party in possession of chattel paper or an instrument [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(11), (47) (definitions)], reasonable care includes taking necessary steps to preserve rights against prior parties [Com. Code § 9207(a)].

A buyer of accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, or promissory notes, or a consignor, retains no interest in the collateral and thus is not disadvantaged by the secured party's noncompliance with the rights and duties set forth in Com. Code § 9207 [Com. Code § 9207 (UCC Comment P 7)]. Accordingly, a secured party's duty to use reasonable care in the custody and preservation of collateral [see Com. Code § 9207(a)] applies only to security interests that secure an obligation and to sales of receivables in which the buyer has recourse against the debtor [see Com. Code § 9207(d)(1); Com. Code § 9207 (UCC Comment P 7)].

Specific rules apply when the secured party is in possession of the collateral, or, in certain circumstances, when a secured party is in either possession or control, unless the parties otherwise agree [see Com. Code § 9207(b), (c)]. These rules address typical issues that may arise while a secured party is in possession of the collateral [Com. Code § 9207(b)(1)-(3); see § 42.121 P 11c]:

- Expenses, insurance, and taxes are chargeable to the debtor and secured by the collateral.

■ The risk of loss or damage is on the debtor, to the extent it is not covered by insurance; identifiable collateral must remain identifiable, but fungible collateral may be commingled. The secured party may use or operate the collateral for the purpose of preserving the collateral or its value, or as permitted by the court, or, except in the case of consumer goods, as agreed by the debtor [see Com. Code § 9207(b)(4)]. These rules are inapplicable to buyers of accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, or promissory notes or consignors [Com. Code § 9207(d)(2)].

In addition, a secured party having possession of the collateral or control of the collateral [see Com. Code §§ 7106, 9104, 9105, 9106, 9107] may hold as additional security any proceeds, except money or funds, received from the collateral, may create a security interest in the collateral, and must apply money or funds received from the collateral to reduce the secured obligation, unless remitted to the debtor [Com. Code § 9207(c)]. These rules are inapplicable to buyers of accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, or promissory notes, or consignors [Com. Code § 9207(d)(2)]. For further discussion of the rights of secured parties in possession of collateral, see § 42.121, P 11c.

[2] Duty to Relinquish Control

A secured party having control of collateral has additional duties in cases in which there is no outstanding secured obligation and the secured party is not committed to make advances, incur obligations, or otherwise give value [see Com. Code § 9208(a)].

A secured party who has control of a deposit account [see Com. Code § 9104(a)(2), (3)], electronic chattel paper [see Com. Code § 9105], investment property [see Com. Code §§ 8106(d)(2), 9106(b)], or a letter-of-credit right [see Com. Code § 9107] has a duty to relinquish control and to file or provide a termination statement for the financing statement within ten days after receiving an authenticated demand by the debtor [see Com. Code § 9208(b); cf. Com. Code § 9513 (duty to file termination statement)]. If the secured party fails to comply with these requirements, the debtor may recover actual and statutory damages [see Com. Code § 9625(b), (e)(1)].

Similarly, a secured party to whom receivables have been assigned [see Com. Code § 9406(a)] must free up collateral when there is no longer any outstanding secured obligation or any commitment to give value in the future, within 10 days after receiving an authenticated demand by the debtor [see Com. Code § 9209]. The secured party must provide an authenticated record that releases the account debtor from any further obligation to the secured party [Com. Code § 9209(b)]. This duty, however, does not apply to an assignment constituting the sale of an account, chattel paper, or payment intangible [Com. Code § 9209(c)].

[3] Duty to Provide Debtor with Information Concerning Secured Obligation and Collateral

A debtor may obtain from a secured party information about the secured obligation and the collateral in which the secured party may claim a security interest [see Com. Code § 9210(b)-(e) (procedures for complying with requests)]. Information concerning secured indebtedness is available to debtors, both before and after default [Com. Code § 9210 (UCC Comment P 2)]. The disclosure rules apply to secured parties, including those involved in agricultural lien transactions [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(12) ("collateral" defined); Com. Code § 9102(a)(28) ("debtor" defined); Com. Code § 9102(a)(72) ("secured party" defined)], but not to buyers of accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, or promissory notes, or to consignors [see Com. Code § 9210(a), (c)]. For further discussion of requests for an accounting, or for a list of collateral, or a statement of account, and appropriate forms, see §§ 42.230 and 42.231.

[4] Duties Relating to Default and Enforcement

Com. Code § 9601 et seq. specify additional duties of secured parties in connection with default and enforcement [see, e.g., Com. Code § 9616 (duty to explain calculation of deficiency or surplus in consumer goods transaction)]. For further discussion of these issues, see § 42.16.

CHAPTER 42 SECURED TRANSACTIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

19-42 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 42.14

AUTHOR: by Ann S. Manheimer, J.D.

§ 42.14 Perfection of Security Interests and Agricultural Liens

[1] Purpose of Perfecting Security Interest or Agricultural Lien

A secured party must look to the collateral to satisfy a secured obligation if the debtor defaults on the obligation [see § 42.16]. To obtain maximum protection against the claims of third parties with conflicting interests in the collateral, a secured party must perfect the security interest. Attachment of the security interest, that is, the point at which the property becomes subject to a security interest [see Com. Code § 9203 (requisites for attachment); see also § 42.12], does not by itself provide maximum protection for the secured party, because when the security interest attaches, it may be perfected or unperfected [see Com. Code § 9308 (UCC Comment P 2); [2], below].

Perfection generally protects the secured party against creditors and transferees of the debtor and, in particular, against any representative of creditors in insolvency proceedings instituted by or against the debtor [Com. Code § 9308 (UCC Comment P 2); see also Atascadero Factory Outlets Inc. v. Augustini (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 717, 721-722, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 911, decided under version of Division 9 in effect prior to July 1, 2001 (doctrine of unjust enrichment, a recognized exception to UCC lien priority system, did not apply so as to give law firm's lien priority; UCC immunizes secured creditors from unjust enrichment claims in all but rarest of cases)]. However, perfection does not provide protection against all possible conflicting claims. A security interest that has been perfected may still be subordinate to certain third party interests [Com. Code § 9308 (UCC Comment P 2); see, e.g., Com. Code § 9320 (buyer of goods in ordinary course of business); Com. Code § 9322 (priorities among conflicting security interests and agricultural liens in same collateral); see also § 42.15[8]].

[2] Priorities When Security Interest or Agricultural Lien Is Unperfected

A security interest that has attached [see Com. Code § 9203 (requisites for attachment); see also § 42.12], but as to which a required perfection step has not been taken [see [3], below] is "unperfected" [Com. Code § 9317 (UCC Comment P 2)].

In general, an unperfected security interest is subordinate to the rights of a person entitled to priority under Com. Code §

9322, governing priorities among conflicting security interests in and agricultural liens on the same collateral [Com. Code § 9317(a); see Com. Code § 9317 (UCC Comment P 3) (noting that security interests given priority under Com. Code § 9322 take priority in general over perfected security interests; thus, they would also automatically take priority over unperfected security interests); see also § 42.15[7]].

An unperfected security interest generally is also subordinate to the rights of a person who becomes a lien creditor before the earlier of the time the security interest or agricultural lien is perfected, or one of the evidentiary conditions specified in Com. Code § 9203(b)(3) is met [see § 42.12[2][b]] and a financing statement covering the collateral is filed [Com. Code § 9317(a); see Com. Code § 9317(e) (exception for person who files financing statement with respect to money purchase interest, if specified conditions are met)]. A "lien creditor" is a creditor that has acquired a lien on the property involved by attachment, levy, or the like, an assignee for benefit of creditors from the time of assignment, a trustee in bankruptcy from the date of the filing of the petition, or a receiver in equity from the time of appointment [Com. Code § 9102(a)(52)(A)]. A creditor that by filing a notice with the Secretary of State has acquired only an attachment or judgment lien on personal property, or both, is not considered a lien creditor for the purposes of this statute [Com. Code § 9102(a)(52)(B)].

Certain purchasers (other than secured parties) have priority over an unperfected security interest [see Com. Code § 9317(b)-(d)]. For example, with one exception, a buyer (other than a secured party) of tangible chattel paper, tangible documents, goods, instruments, or a security certificate takes free of the security interest or agricultural lien if the buyer gives value and receives delivery of the collateral without knowledge of the security interest or agricultural lien and before it is perfected [Com. Code § 9317(b); see Com. Code § 9317(e) (exception for person who files financing statement with respect to money purchase interest, if specified conditions are met)].

Similarly, a lessee of goods generally takes free of a security interest or agricultural lien if the lessee gives value and receives delivery of the collateral without knowledge of the security interest or agricultural lien and before it is perfected [Com. Code § 9317(c); see Com. Code § 9317(e) (exception for person who files financing statement with respect to money purchase interest, if specified conditions are met)].

A licensee of a general intangible or a buyer, other than a secured party, of accounts, electronic chattel paper, electronic documents, general intangibles, or investment property other than a certificated security also takes free of a security interest if the licensee or buyer gives value without knowledge of the security interest and before it is perfected [Com. Code § 9317(d)].

For discussion of priorities involving perfected security interests or agricultural liens, see § 42.15. As between conflicting unperfected security interests or agricultural liens, the first to attach or become effective has priority [Com. Code § 9322(a)(3); see § 42.15[1]].

[3] Means of Perfecting Security Interest or Agricultural Lien

[a] In General

With specified exceptions, a security interest is perfected if it has attached [see § 42.12] and the secured party has taken all the procedural steps required to perfect the interest [Com. Code § 9308(a); see Com. Code §§ 9310-9316 (requirements for perfection)]. If the procedural steps are taken before the security interest attaches, as when the secured party files a financing statement before giving value or before the debtor acquires rights in the collateral, the interest is perfected at the time of attachment [see Com. Code § 9308(a)].

An agricultural lien is perfected if it has become effective and all of the applicable requirements for perfection in Com. Code § 9310 have been satisfied [Com. Code § 9308(b)]. If the applicable requirements are met before the agricultural lien becomes effective, the lien is perfected when it becomes effective [Com. Code § 9308(b)].

A security interest or agricultural lien is perfected continuously if it is originally perfected by one method under Division 9 and is later perfected by another method under Division 9, without an intermediate period during which it was unperfected [Com. Code § 9308(c); see, e.g., Com. Code § 9308 (UCC Comment P 4)].

In general, to perfect a security interest or agricultural lien, the secured party must file a financing statement (Form UCC-1) [see § 42.211 (form)] at the appropriate public office [see Com. Code § 9310(a); Com. Code § 9501 et seq. (filing); see [c], below]. However, filing is not necessary to perfect a security interest that is perfected by another permissible method [see Com. Code § 9310(b)], nor does filing ordinarily perfect a security interest in a deposit account, letter-of-credit right, money, insurance policy, or health care insurance receivable [see Com. Code § 9312(b); see also Com. Code § 9102(a)(46) ("health care insurance receivable" defined)]. For further discussion of exemptions from filing, see [e], below. For a detailed guide to the procedures for perfecting a security interest in the various kinds of collateral, see § 42.121.

The perfection of security interests in certain property may be governed by authority other than the Commercial Code [see Com. Code § 9311]. If the transaction is subject to any federal statute, regulation, or treaty that establishes a system of filing or registration under federal law, perfection of a relevant security interest generally may be achieved only through compliance with that system; filing under this division is not an alternative [see Com. Code § 9311(a)(1); see, e.g., 49 U.S.C. § 44107 (recordation, conveyances, leases, and security interests in civil aircraft of the United States); see also Com. Code § 9311(d) (exception for inventory covered by certificate of title); § 42.121; but see Moldo v. Matsco, Inc. (In re Cybernetic Servs.) (9th Cir. 2001) 252 F.3d 1039, 1059, decided under version of Division 9 in effect prior to July 1, 2001 (holder of security interest in patent is not required to record that interest with federal Patent and Trademark Office in order to perfect interest as against subsequent lien creditor)]. Compliance with the requirements of these statutes, regulations, or treaties is equivalent to the filing of a financing statement under Division 9, and a security interest so perfected remains perfected despite a change in the use or transfer of possession of the collateral [Com. Code § 9311(b); see also Com. Code §§ 9311(d) (exception for inventory covered by certificate of title), Com. Code § 9313 (exception for negotiable documents, goods, instruments, money or tangible chattel paper perfected by possession and for security interest in certified securities perfected by delivery), Com. Code § 9316(d), (e) (exception for security interest in goods covered by certificate of title perfected under law of another jurisdiction)]. Transactions governed by certain California certificate-of-title statutes are also exempt from the filing requirements of Division 9. Filing under Division 9 is not necessary or effective to perfect a security interest in collateral subject to the Vehicle Code provisions that require registration of a vehicle or vessel [see Veh. Code §§ 5600, 6300, 6301; Ch. 102D, Registration and Transfer of Vehicles, Vessels, and Aircraft], or the Health and Safety Code provisions that require registration of a mobilehome or commercial coach [see Com. Code § 9311(a)(2), (3); see Health & Safety Code § 18075 et seq.; see Ch. 39, Mobilehome Parks, Ch. 40, Mobilehomes]. However, during any period in which the collateral is inventory, the filing provisions of Com. Code § 9501 et seq. apply to a security interest in that collateral [Com. Code § 9311(a)(2)(B)]. In addition, filing is not necessary to perfect a security interest in property subject to the Health and Safety Code provisions that require registration of all interests in approved air contaminant emission reductions [Com. Code § 9311(a)(2)(C); see Health & Safety Code §§ 40709-40713].

Similarly, a transaction subject to a certificate-of-title statute of another jurisdiction is exempt from the filing requirements of Division 9 [see Com. Code § 9311(a)(3)].

If a transaction has a reasonable relation to California and to another state or nation, the parties' agreement may specify the law that will govern their rights and duties [Com. Code § 1301(a)]. However, Com. Code §§ 9301-9307 govern perfection, the effect of perfect or nonperfection, and the priority of security interests and agricultural liens; and a contrary agreement is effective only to the extent permitted by those provisions [Com. Code § 1301(b)].

For a guide to choice of law rules, including perfecting security in multiple state transactions, see § 42.121, P 14.

[b] Contents of Financing Statements; Required Authorization

The UCC's use of filing as a method of perfecting many security interests is based on the concept of notice [see Com. Code § 9502 (UCC Comment P 2); Borg-Warner Acceptance Corp. v. Bank of Marin (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 286, 288-289, 111 Cal. Rptr. 361 (decided under prior law)]. The security agreement itself is not filed; instead, the only document that must be filed is a simple record indicating that the secured party who has filed may have a security interest in the collateral indicated [see Com. Code § 9502 (UCC Comment P 2)].

The simple, formal requirements for an effective financing statement are as follows [Com. Code § 9502(a)]:

- The debtor's name.
- The name of the secured party or the secured party's representative.
- An indication of the collateral.

With respect to the last of the above requirements, a financing statement sufficiently indicates collateral if it provides either a "description" of the collateral [see Com. Code § 9108 (adequacy of description); § 42.12[2][c]] or an indication that the financing statement covers all assets or all personal property [Com. Code § 9504(2)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Such a "super-generic" description of collateral, while a sufficient indication of collateral in a financing statement, is inadequate for purposes of a security agreement [see Com. Code §§ 9108, 9203; § 42.12[2][c]; see also Com. Code § 9101 (UCC Comment P 4h)].

Additional requirements apply to real property-related filings [see Com. Code § 9502(b)].

A uniform national written form, known as form UCC-1 [see § 42.211], has been adopted. Form UCC-1 must be accepted by a filing office that accepts written records [see Com. Code § 9521 (sample form); see also Cassel v. Kolb (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 568, 576, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 878 (holding that original UCC-1 was adequate to perfect bank's security interest in accounts receivable, decided under prior law)]. The California Secretary of State's Office has stated that use of Form UCC-1 is mandatory for financing statement filings made in California after July 1, 2001. For an illustration of Form UCC-1 and the accompanying official instructions, with commentary, see § 42.211; see also § 42.131.

There is no requirement that the debtor's signature (or other evidence of authorization) appear on the filing statement [see Com. Code § 9502 (UCC Comment P 3); cf. former Com. Code § 9402(1)], except to the extent that filing offices may chose to employ authentication procedures in connection with electronic communications [Com. Code § 9101 (UCC Comment P 4h)]. Elimination of the signature requirement facilitates paperless filing [Com. Code § 9502 (UCC Comment P 3)]. However, the fact that Division 9 does not require that an authenticating symbol be contained in the public record does not mean that all filings are authorized. Rather, a person may file an initial financing statement, an amendment that adds collateral covered by a financing statement, or an amendment that adds a debtor to a financing statement only if the debtor authorizes the filing in an authenticated record, or the person holds an agricultural lien that has become effective at the time of filing and the financing statement covers only collateral in which the person holds an agricultural lien [Com. Code § 9509(a)]. However, the debtor's authentication of (or becoming bound by) a security agreement, by itself, constitutes the debtor's authorization of the filing of the financial statement covering the collateral described in the security agreement or any identifiable proceeds of that collateral; the secured party is not required to obtain a separate authorization [Com. Code § 9509(b)]. Similarly, by acquiring collateral in which a security interest or agricultural lien continues [see Com. Code § 9315(a)(1); § 42.121[2]-[4]], the debtor authorizes the filing of an initial financing statement, and an amendment, covering the collateral and the property that becomes collateral [Com. Code §

9509(c); see Com. Code § 9315(a)(1)]. Further, a person other than the debtor is entitled to file a termination statement only if the secured party of record authorizes the filing [see Com. Code § 9509(d)]. A person who files an unauthorized record in violation of Com. Code § 9509(a) is liable for a statutory penalty and damages [see Com. Code § 9625(b), (e)(3); see also Com. Code § 9518 (procedure for filing correction statement concerning inaccurate or wrongly filed record)]. Moreover, a filing has legal effect only to the extent it is authorized [see Com. Code § 9510(a)].

A financing statement that substantially complies with the requirements discussed above is effective even if it contains minor errors or omissions, unless the errors or omissions make the financing statement seriously misleading [Com. Code § 9506(a)]. A financing statement that fails sufficiently to provide the debtor's name in accordance with the statutory rules [see Com. Code § 9503(a)] is seriously misleading as a matter of law [Com. Code § 9506(b)]. However, if the financing statement would be discovered in a search under the debtor's correct name, using the filing office's standard search logic, if any, then as a matter of law, the incorrect name does not make the financing statement seriously misleading [Com. Code § 9506(c)].

In determining the extent to which a financing statement naming an original debtor is effective against a new debtor, the sufficiency of the financing statement should be tested against the name of the new debtor [see Com. Code § 9506(d); Com. Code § 9506 (UCC Comment P 3); see also Com. Code § 9508 (effectiveness of financing statement if new debtor becomes bound by security agreement)].

[c] Filing of Financing Statements

Communication of a record to a filing office and tender of the filing fee or acceptance of the record by the filing office constitutes filing [Com. Code § 9516(a)]. A filing office must refuse to accept a record for filing, and may refuse to accept a filing, only for the reasons set forth in Com. Code § 9516(b), for example, if the financing statement is lacking an address for the debtor or the secured party [Com. Code § 9520(a), see Com. Code § 9516(b) (specifying required information)]. However, if the filing office accepts the record, it is effective nevertheless [Com. Code § 9520(c); see also Com. Code § 9338 (priority of security interest or agricultural lien perfected by effective, but flawed financing statement)]. For a list of grounds on which the filing office may reject a record, see § 42.131.

A financing statement may be filed before a security agreement is made or before the security interest otherwise attaches [Com. Code § 9502(d)]. The reason for filing a financing statement before the security interest attaches is to obtain the earliest possible priority date as against conflicting security interests. Generally, conflicting perfected security interests and agricultural liens rank according to priority in time of filing or time of perfection, whichever is earlier [see Com. Code § 9322(a)(1); § 42.15[1]].

For a detailed guide to procedures for filing financing statements in California, see § 42.131. For an illustration of the standard UCC-1 financing statement, and commentary on its use in California, see § 42.211.

[d] Duration and Effectiveness of Financing Statements

With specified exceptions, a financing statement is effective for a period of five years after the date of filing [Com. Code § 9515(a)], unless its effectiveness is continued [see Com. Code § 9515(d)] or terminated [see Com. Code § 9513 (duty of secured party to file or send termination statement)].

There are three exceptions to this five-year period, as follows:

- A financing statement is effective for 30 years if it relates to a public finance transaction or a manufactured home transaction and so indicates [Com. Code § 9515(b)].
- A financing statement filed against a transmitting utility remains effective indefinitely, until a termination statement is filed [Com. Code § 9515(f)].

- A mortgage effective as a fixture filing remains effective until the mortgage is released or satisfied or its effectiveness terminates under real property law [Com. Code § 9515(g)].

To extend the effective period of a financing statement, the secured party may file a continuation statement within six months before the end of the five-year period or the 30-year period, whichever is applicable [Com. Code § 9515(c); see also § 42.214]. This statement is filed on Form UCC-3, which is illustrated in § 42.214. A continuation statement that is not filed with the prescribed six-month period is ineffective [Com. Code § 9510(c)]. On timely filing of a continuation statement, the effectiveness of the initial financing statement continues for a period of five years beginning on the day on which the financing statement would have become ineffective in the absence of the filing. Succeeding continuation statements may be filed in the same manner to continue the effectiveness of the initial financing statement [Com. Code § 9515(e)].

The effectiveness of a financing statement lapses when the period of effectiveness expires [Com. Code § 9515(c)]. On lapse, a financing statement ceases to be effective and any security interest or agricultural lien that was perfected by the financing statement becomes unperfected, unless the security interest is perfected otherwise [Com. Code § 9515(c)]. A security interest or agricultural lien that becomes unperfected on lapse is deemed never to have been perfected as against a purchaser of the collateral for value [Com. Code § 9515(c)].

[e] Perfection by Methods Other than Filing

Certain security interests may be perfected without filing a financing statement because they are perfected [Com. Code § 9310(b); see Com. Code § 9310 (UCC Comment P 3)]:

- Automatically on attachment [Com. Code § 9310(b)(2), (9); see Com. Code § 9309 (security interests perfected on attachment); Com. Code § 9315(c) (proceeds)].
- On the occurrence of another event [Com. Code § 9310(b)(1), (5); see Com. Code § 9308(d) (supporting obligation for collateral); Com. Code § 9308(e) (security interest, mortgage, or other lien on personal or real property securing right to payment or performance); Com. Code § 9308(f) (security entitlements carried in securities account); Com. Code § 9308(g) (commodity contracts carried in commodity account); Com. Code § 9312(e), (f), (g) (security interests in certified securities, documents, goods, or instruments); Com. Code § 9315(d), (e) (proceeds)].
- Under the law of another jurisdiction [Com. Code § 9310(b)(3), (10); see Com. Code § 9311 (property subject to specified statutes, regulations, or treaties); Com. Code § 9316 (continued perfection following change in governing law); see also [3][a], above].
- By another method, such as by the secured party taking possession or control [Com. Code § 9310(b)(3)-(8), (11); see Com. Code § 9311 (property subject to specified statutes, regulations, or treaties); Com. Code § 9312(d)(1), (2) (goods in possession of bailee); Com. Code § 9312(e)-(g) (certified securities; negotiable documents in possession of bailee); Com. Code § 9313 (negotiable documents, certain goods, instruments, money, tangible chattel paper in secured party's possession or security interest in certificated security perfected by delivery); Com. Code § 9314 (deposit accounts, electronic chattel paper, electronic documents, investment property or letter-of-credit rights); Com. Code § 9312(b)(4) (insurance policies)].

For a detailed guide to the procedures for perfecting a security interest in the various kinds of collateral, see § 42.121.

DIVISION III: COMMERCIAL TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 42 SECURED TRANSACTIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

19-42 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 42.15

AUTHOR: by Ann S. Manheimer, J.D.

§ 42.15 Priorities of Perfected Security Interests and Agricultural Liens

A perfected security interest or agricultural lien may be or may become subordinate to conflicting third-party security interests in or liens against the same collateral [see Com. Code § 9322]. Three general rules, subject to specified exceptions, govern priorities among conflicting security interests or agricultural liens [see Com. Code § 9322(a); see also Com. Code § 9709(b) (transition provision affecting application of Com. Code § 9322(a) to filing occurring before effective date of revised Division 9, which would be ineffective to perfect security interest under former Division 9 but is effective under this Division); Com. Code § 9317 et seq. (rules governing priority of security interests and agricultural liens)].

- First, when there is more than one perfected security interest, the security interests rank according to time of filing or perfection. Priority dates from the earlier of the time a filing covering the collateral is first made or the security interest or agricultural lien is first perfected [Com. Code § 9322(a)(1)]. The form of the claim to priority, that is, filing or perfection, will be based on the first filing or perfection, as long as there is no intervening period without filing or perfection [see Com. Code § 9322(a)(1); Com. Code § 9322 (UCC Comment P 4)]. "Filing" refers to filing an effective financing statement [see § 42.14[3][c]]. "Perfection" refers to the acquisition of a perfected security interest, that is, one that has attached and to which any required perfection step has been taken [see Com. Code § 9308; § 42.14[1]].

- Second, a perfected security interest has priority over an unperfected interest [Com. Code § 9322(a)(2)].

- Third, if both security interests are unperfected, the first to attach has priority [Com. Code § 9322(a)(3)].

Rules that override these general rules include those applicable to money-purchase interests [see Com. Code § 9324; [9], below] and those that govern types of collateral qualifying for special priority, including, for example, deposit accounts [see Com. Code § 9327; [10], below], investment property [see Com. Code § 9328; [11], below], letter-of-credit rights [see Com. Code § 9329; [12], below], chattel paper and instruments [see Com. Code § 9330; [13], below], and fixtures [see Com. Code § 9334; § 42.221]. In addition, the general rules contained in Com. Code § 9322 are subject to priority rules governing security interests arising under Division 2 [see Com. Code § 2101 et seq. (sales)], Division 10 [see Com. Code § 10101 et seq. (leases)], Division 4 [see Com. Code § 4210 (security interest of collecting bank)], and Division 5 [Com. Code § 9322(f); see Com. Code § 5118 (security interest of issuer or nominated person); see also [14], below].

For a more detailed discussion of the complex question of priorities among conflicting security interests under the UCC, see McDonnell, Secured Transactions Under the UCC, pt. III, Priority of Security Interests, Chs. 7A-7F (Matthew Bender).

[2] Special Rules Applicable to Agricultural Liens

Statutes other than Division 9 may purport to grant priority to an agricultural lien as against a conflicting security interest or agricultural lien. If another statute grants priority to an agricultural lien, the agricultural lien has priority only if the same statute creates the agricultural lien and the agricultural lien is perfected [Com. Code § 9322(g)]. Otherwise, the same priority rules under Com. Code § 9322(a) apply to an agricultural lien as to a security interest, regardless of whether the agricultural lien conflicts with a security interest or with another agricultural lien [see Com. Code § 9322(a); [1], above].

[3] Proceeds

For purposes of the rule governing priority of perfected interests, the time of filing or perfection in the security interest in the collateral is also the time of filing or perfection of a security interest in the proceeds, except as otherwise provided [Com. Code § 9322(b)(1); see Com. Code § 9322(c)-(e) (exceptions)]. However, a perfected security interest in proceeds becomes unperfected on the 21st day after the security interest attaches to the proceeds unless specified statutory conditions are satisfied [see Com. Code § 9315(d), (e); see also Cassel v. Kolb (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 568, 577, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 878 (under former Com. Code § 9306(3)(a), now see Com. Code § 9315(d)(1) security interest in stock was perfected by operation of law); see also see § 42.121, P 5d].

PRACTICE TIP:

Note that attachment cannot occur [see Com. Code § 9203; § 42.12] (and, therefore, perfection cannot occur [see Com. Code § 9308; § 42.14]) as to particular collateral until the collateral itself comes into existence and the debtor has rights to it [see Com. Code § 9322 (UCC Comment P 6)]. Thus, a security interest in proceeds of original collateral does not attach and is not perfected until the proceeds come into existence and the debtor has acquired rights to them [see Com. Code § 9322 (UCC Comment P 6, Example 4); see also Com. Code § 9324 (governing extent to which special purchase-money priority in goods or software carries over into proceeds of original collateral)].

Additional priority rules exist for proceeds of collateral in situations in which the temporal (first-in-time) rules of Com. Code § 9322(a)(1) [see [1], above] are not appropriate. These rules distinguish what the UCC Comments refer to as "nonfiling collateral" from that they call "filing collateral" [see Com. Code § 9322 (UCC Comment P 7)]. As used in the UCC Comments, nonfiling collateral is collateral for which perfection may be achieved by a method other than filing (possession or control, mainly) and for which secured parties who so perfect generally do not expect or need to conduct a filing search [see Com. Code § 9322 (UCC Comment P 7)]. More specifically, nonfiling collateral is chattel paper, deposit accounts, negotiable documents, instruments, investment property, and letter-of-credit rights [see Com. Code § 9322(c); Com. Code § 9322 (UCC Comment P 7)]. Under the baseline priority rule for proceeds of non-filing collateral, which applies if the secured party has taken the steps required for non-temporal priority over a conflicting priority in the original non-filing collateral (for example, control in the case of deposit accounts, letter-of-credit rights and investment property) [see Com. Code § 9322(c); Com. Code § 9322 (UCC Comment P 7)], the priority in the original collateral continues in proceeds if the security interest in the proceeds is perfected and the proceeds are cash proceeds or proceeds "of the same type" as the original collateral [Com. Code § 9322(c)(2); see Com. Code § 9322 (UCC Comment P 8, Example 6)] ("type" should be read broadly, e.g., security is "of the same type" as a "security entitlement;" investment property or a promissory security entitlement is "of the same type" as a draft, that is, an instrument)].

However, if a security interest in nonfiling collateral is perfected by a method other than filing (control or possession, for example), it does not retain its priority over a conflicting security interest in proceeds that are filing collateral [see Com. Code § 9322(d); Com. Code § 9322 (UCC Comment P 9)]. Moreover, it is not entitled to priority in proceeds under the first-to-file-or-perfect rule of Com. Code § 9322(a)(1), (b). Instead, priority is determined by another first-to-file rule [see Com. Code § 9322(d); see, e.g., Com. Code § 9322 (UCC Comment P 9, Example 12); see also Com. Code § 9322(e) (limitation on Com. Code § 9322(d))].

Because no agricultural lien on proceeds arises under this division, the priority rules governing proceeds [see Com. Code § 9322(b)-(e)] do not apply to proceeds of agricultural liens [see Com. Code § 9322 (UCC Comment P 12)]. However, if an agricultural lien has priority under Com. Code § 9322(g) [see [2], above], and the statute creating the agricultural lien gives the secured party a lien on the proceeds of the collateral subject to the lien, a court should apply the principle of Com. Code § 9322(g) and award priority in the proceeds to the holder of the perfected agricultural lien [see Com. Code § 9322 (UCC Comment P 12)].

[4] Supporting Obligations

Similar to the general rule governing priority of proceeds [see [3], above], the time of filing or perfection of a security interest in collateral supported by a supporting obligation is also the time of filing or perfection of a security interest in the supporting obligation [see Com. Code § 9322(b)(2); Com. Code § 9322(c)(1)]. A "supporting obligation" is a letter-of-credit right or secondary obligation that supports the payment or performance of an account, chattel paper, document, general intangible, instrument, or investment property [Com. Code § 9102(a)(77)]. However, this general rule is subject to the special rule governing the priority of security interests in letter-of-credit rights [see Com. Code § 9322(f)(3)]. Under that rule, a security interest held by a secured party having control of the letter-of-credit right under Com. Code § 9107 has priority to the extent of its control over a conflicting security interest held by a secured party that does not have control, while security interests perfected by control under Com. Code § 9314 rank according to priority in time of obtaining control [Com. Code § 9329].

[5] After-Acquired Property

Priority in after-acquired property [see Com. Code § 9204(a) (security interest in after-acquired collateral)] must be considered separately for each item of collateral [Com. Code § 9322 (UCC Comment P 5)]. Priority does not depend only on time of perfection but may also be based on priority in filing before perfection [see Com. Code § 9322 (UCC Comment P 5)]. When after-acquired property is encumbered by more than one security interest, one of the security interests is often a money-purchase security interest that is entitled to special priority under Com. Code § 9324 [Com. Code § 9322 (UCC Comment P 5); see Com. Code § 9324 (priority of money purchase interests); [9], below].

[6] Future Advances

A security agreement may provide that collateral secures future advances [see Com. Code § 9204(c); § 42.12[2][d]]. In general, the first-to-file-or-perfect rule of Com. Code § 9322(a)(1) does not distinguish among various advances made by the secured party. The priority of each advance dates from the earlier of filing or perfection [see Com. Code § 9322 (UCC Comment P 4)]. However, in rare instances, the priority of an advance dates from the time the advance is made, if the advance is made without commitment and while the security interest is perfected only temporarily under Com. Code § 9312(e), (f), or (g) [see Com. Code § 9323(a); Com. Code § 9322 (UCC Comment P 4, Example 3); Com. Code § 9323 (UCC Comment P 3)]. Specific rules in determining priorities in future advances among competing lien creditors and competing buyers and lessees are discussed in [7] and [8], respectively, below.

[7] Conflicting Liens

The priority of the security interest for future advances over a lien creditor [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(52) (definition); § 42.14[2]] is absolute for 45 days regardless of the knowledge of the secured party concerning the lien [see Com. Code § 9323(b); Com. Code § 9323 (UCC Comment P 4)]. If, however, the advance is made after 45 days, the advance will not have priority unless it was made or committed without knowledge of the lien [see Com. Code § 9323(b); Com. Code § 9323 (UCC Comment P 4)].

A "possessory lien" on goods has priority over a security interest in the goods unless the possessory lien is created by a statute that expressly provides otherwise [Com. Code § 9333(b)]. For these purposes, a "possessory lien" is a common-law or statutory lien, other than a security interest or agricultural lien, whose effectiveness depends on the lienor's possession of the goods with respect to which the lienor provided services or furnished materials in the ordinary course of that its business [Com. Code § 9333(a)]. If the statute creating the possessory lien is silent as to its priority relative to a security interest, this statute provides a rule of interpretation that the possessory lien takes priority, even if the statute has been construed judicially to make the possessory lien subordinate [see Com. Code § 9333 (UCC Comment P 2)].

The priority of attachment or judgment liens acquired by the filing of a notice with the Secretary of State is governed by special provisions outside of the Commercial Code [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.500(c) (attachment lien); Code Civ. Proc. § 697.590(b)-(f) (judgment lien)]. In general, the priority between a judgment lien on personal property and a conflicting security interest or agricultural lien in the same property is determined by the time of filing or perfection. For a judgment lien, priority dates from the time filing is first made covering the personal property. For a security interest or agricultural lien, priority dates from the earlier of the time a filing is first made covering the personal property or the time the security interest or agricultural lien is first perfected, if there is no period thereafter when there is neither filing nor perfection [Code Civ. Proc. § 697.590(b)].

[8] Priorities of Competing Buyers and Lessees of Goods

Certain buyers of goods take the goods free of perfected security interests. For example, a person who buys goods in the ordinary course of business takes the goods free of any security interest created by the buyer's seller, even if the buyer has actual knowledge of the security interest [Com. Code § 9320(a); see Com. Code § 9320(e) (exception for security interest in goods perfected by possession of secured party under Com. Code § 9313)]. A "buyer in the ordinary course of business" is a buyer other than a pawnbroker who, in good faith and without actual knowledge that the sale violates the rights of another person in the goods, buys goods from a seller who is in the business of selling goods of that kind (primarily inventory) [Com. Code § 1201(b)(9); see Com. Code § 9320 (UCC Comment P 3)]. Thus, the buyer can take the goods free of security interests, even though perfected, and even though the buyer knows the security interest exists, provided that the buyer does not know that the sale violated a term of the security agreement with the secured party [see Com. Code § 9320 (UCC Comment P 3)]. Similarly, a licensee of general intangibles and a lessee of goods in the ordinary course of business take free of a security interest, even if the security interest is perfected and the licensee or lessee knows of its existence [see Com. Code § 9321 (repealed as to licensees in the ordinary course of business eff. January 1, 2013)].

This provision, however, does not enable a buyer of farm products to take free of a security interest created by the seller, even if the buyer is a buyer in the ordinary course of business. However, a buyer of farm products may take free of a security interest under the Food Security Act of 1985 [see Com. Code § 9320 (UCC Comment P 4); 7 U.S.C. § 1281 et seq.].

A buyer of goods other than a buyer in the ordinary course of business generally takes the goods free of security interests to the extent that they secure future advances made after the secured party acquires knowledge of the purchase or more than 45 days after the purchase [Com. Code § 9323(d)]. However, a security interest in future advances will continue to apply if the advances were made in accordance with a commitment entered into before the expiration of the 45-day period and without knowledge of the purchase [Com. Code § 9323(e)]. An analogous rule is provided for lessees [see Com. Code § 9323(f), (g)].

[9] Purchase Money Security Interests

Purchase money security interests [see Com. Code § 9103 (when security interest enjoys purchase-money status); see also Com. Code § 9101 (UCC Comment P 4e (discussing meaning of "purchase money security interest"))] are subject to special priority rules in a variety of contexts [see Com. Code §§ 9317(e), 9324]. A purchase money interest can be created only in goods, including fixtures, and software [see Com. Code § 9103(b), (c)].

Com. Code § 9324 affords a special, non-temporal priority to those purchase money security interests that satisfy the statutory conditions. In most cases, priority will be over a security interest asserted under an after-acquired property clause [see Com. Code § 9324; Com. Code § 9324 (UCC Comment P 2); see also Com. Code § 9204 (governing extent to which security interests asserted under after-acquired clause are validated)].

A perfected purchase money interest in goods other than inventory and livestock, as well as a perfected security interest in its identifiable proceeds, generally takes priority over a conflicting security interest in the same goods if the purchase money security interest is perfected when the debtor receives possession of the collateral or within 20 days after receipt [Com. Code § 9324(a); see Com. Code § 9324(g) (special rule applicable when more than one security interest qualifies for priority in same collateral); Com. Code § 9327 (exception for deposit accounts)]. A purchase money security interest qualifies for priority under this provision, even if the purchase money secured party knows that a conflicting security interest has been created or that the holder of the conflicting interest has filed a financing statement covering the collateral [see Com. Code § 9324 (UCC Comment P 3)]. Further, if a purchase money security interest is perfected by filing no later than 20 days after the debtor receives delivery of the collateral, the security interest takes priority over the rights of buyers, lessees, or lien creditors that arise between the time the security interest attaches and the time of filing [Com. Code § 9317(e); see Com. Code §§ 9320, 9321 (exception for buyers and lessees of goods and licensees of general intangibles)].

A money purchase interest in inventory (and most chattel paper or instruments constituting proceeds of the inventory, as well as identifiable cash proceeds) can achieve priority over an earlier-filed security interest in the same collateral if the purchase money security interest is perfected when the debtor receives possession of the inventory [see Com. Code § 9324(b)(1); see also Com. Code § 9324(g) (exceptions)], and if the purchase money secured party gives notification to a holder of a conflicting security interest who filed against the same item or type of inventory before the purchase money secured party filed or its security interest became perfected temporarily under Com. Code § 9312(f) [see Com. Code § 9324(b)(2)-(4), (c)].

The purchase money priority rules for security interests in livestock are patterned on the purchase money priority rules for inventory [see Com. Code § 9324(b), (c)] and include a requirement that the purchase money secured party notify earlier-filed parties [see Com. Code § 9324(d), (e)].

A purchase money interest in software (and in most of its identifiable proceeds) has the same priority as a purchase money interest in the goods in which the software was acquired for use [see Com. Code § 9324(f)]. This priority is determined under Com. Code § 9324(b), (c) for inventory, or under Com. Code § 9324(a) for goods [see Com. Code § 9324(f); Com. Code § 9324 (UCC Comment P 12)]. A purchase money security interest in software arises only if the debtor acquires its interest in the software for the principle purpose of using the software in goods subject to a purchase money security interest [Com. Code § 9103(c)].

If more than one security interest qualifies for priority in the same collateral under any of the provisions discussed above [see Com. Code § 9324(a), (b), (d), (f)], a security interest securing an obligation incurred as all or part of the price of the collateral has priority over a security interest securing an obligation incurred for value given to enable the debtor to acquire rights in, or the use of, collateral [Com. Code § 9324(g)(1)]. In all other cases, the first-to-file-or-perfect rule of Com. Code § 9322(a) [see [1], above] applies to the qualifying security interests [Com. Code § 9324(g)(2)].

[10] Deposit Accounts

The following rules govern priority among conflicting interests in the same deposit accounts [Com. Code § 9327; see Com. Code § 9102(a)(29) ("deposit account" is a demand, time, savings, passbook or similar account maintained with a bank; it does not include investment property or accounts evidenced by an instrument)]:

- A security interest held by a secured party having control of the deposit account [see Com. Code § 9104 (control)] has priority over a conflicting security interest held by a secured party that does not have control (for example, identifiable cash proceeds under Com. Code § 9315).
- Except as otherwise provided in the two paragraphs below, security interests perfected by control under Com. Code § 9314 (investment property, deposit accounts, letter-of-credit rights, electronic chattel paper, or electronic documents) rank according to priority in time of obtaining control. This provision covers the rare case in which a bank enters a control agreement as specified in Com. Code § 9104(a)(2) with more than one secured party. If the bank is solvent and the control agreements are well-drafted, the bank will be liable to each secured party and this priority rule will have no practical effect [see Com. Code § 9327 (UCC Comment P 3)].
- Except as otherwise provided in the paragraph below, a security interest held by the bank with which the deposit account is maintained has priority over a conflicting security interest held by another secured party. A rule of this kind makes it possible for banks to extend credit to their depositors without the need to examine either the public record or their own records to determine whether another party might have an interest in the deposit account [see Com. Code § 9327 (UCC Comment P 4)].
- A security interest perfected by control under Com. Code § 9104(a)(3) (control of deposit account by becoming bank's customer with respect to deposit account) has priority over a security interest held by the bank with which the deposit account is maintained [cf. Com. Code § 9339 (secured party can achieve same result by obtaining subordination agreement from bank)].

[11] Investment Property

"Investment property" means a security, whether certificated or uncertificated, a security entitlement, securities account, commodity contract, or commodity account [Com. Code § 9102(a)(49)]. The general rule governing priority in investment property is that the secured party who obtains control [see Com. Code §§ 8106, 9106] has priority over a secured party who does not obtain control [see Com. Code § 9328(1)]. Additional rules address the priority of conflicting security interests each of which is perfected by control [see Com. Code § 9328(2)-(4)], the priority of a certificated security that is perfected by delivery but not control [see Com. Code § 9328(5)], priority in the relatively unusual circumstance in which a broker, securities intermediary, or commodities intermediary has created conflicting security interests none of which is perfected by control [see Com. Code § 9328(6)], and priority in cases not covered by the specific provisions governing priority in investment property [see Com. Code § 9328(7); see also Com. Code §§ 9322, 9323 (rules applicable in these circumstances)]. Generally, security interests perfected by control rank according to the time that control is obtained or, in the case of a security entitlement or a commodity contract carried in a commodity account, the time when the control arrangement is entered into [see Com. Code § 9328(2); see also Com. Code § 9101 (UCC Comment P 4e)]. However, a security intermediary's security interest in a securities entitlement that it maintains for the debtor is senior to a security interest held by another secured party [see Com. Code § 9328(3)].

[12] Letter-of-Credit Rights

A security interest perfected by control (that is, one that takes an assignment of proceeds and obtains consent of the issuer or any nominated person under Com. Code § 5114(c)) [see Com. Code § 9107]) has priority over one perfected in another manner (that is, one that is perfected automatically in which the letter-of-credit rights are supporting obligations under Com. Code § 9308(d)) [see Com. Code § 9329(1)].

Security interests in a letter-of-credit right perfected by control [see Com. Code §§ 9107, 9314(a)] rank according to the time that control is obtained [Com. Code § 9329(2)]. However, the rights of a transferee beneficiary or a nominated person are independent and superior to the extent provided by Com. Code § 5114 [see Com. Code § 9109(c)(2)].

[13] Priorities of Purchasers of Chattel Paper and Instruments

Different priority rules apply to purchasers of chattel paper who give new value and take possession (or, in the case of electronic chattel paper, obtain control) of the collateral depending on whether a conflicting security interest in the collateral is "claimed merely as proceeds" or claimed other than merely as proceeds [see Com. Code § 9330(a); see also Com. Code § 9330 (UCC Comment P 3) (noting that section does not elaborate on meaning of "merely as proceeds")].

A purchaser of chattel paper has priority over a security interest in the chattel paper that is claimed merely as proceeds of inventory subject to a security interest if, in good faith and in the ordinary course of the purchaser's business, the purchaser gives new value and takes possession of the chattel paper or obtains control of the electronic chattel paper [see Com. Code § 9105], and the chattel paper does not indicate that it has been assigned to an identified assignee other than the purchaser [Com. Code § 9330(a); see Com. Code § 9102(a)(43) ("good faith" defined)]. "New value" is money, money's worth in property, services, or new credit, or release by a transferee of an interest in property previously transferred to the transferee. The term does not include an obligation substituted for another obligation [Com. Code § 9102(a)(57)].

A purchaser of chattel paper has priority over a security interest in the chattel paper which is claimed other than merely as proceeds of inventory subject to a security interest if the purchaser gives new value and takes possession of the chattel paper or obtains control of the electronic chattel paper [see Com. Code § 9105] in good faith, in the ordinary course of the purchaser's business, and without knowledge that the purchase violates the rights of the secured party [Com. Code § 9330(b); see Com. Code § 9330(f) (purchaser of chattel paper or instrument has knowledge that purchase violates rights of secured party if chattel paper or instrument indicates that it has been assigned to identified secured party other than purchaser)].

For purposes of either of the rules discussed above, the holder of a purchase money security interest in inventory is deemed to give "new value" for chattel paper constituting proceeds of the inventory [Com. Code § 9330(e)]. Accordingly, the purchase-money secured party may qualify for priority under Com. Code § 9330(a) or (b), whichever, is applicable, even if it does not make an additional advance against the chattel paper [see Com. Code § 9330 (UCC Comment P 3); see also [9], above (purchase money security interests); [6], above (future advances)].

The priority afforded to a purchaser of chattel paper under Com. Code § 9330(a) and (b), discussed above, extends to the proceeds of the chattel paper if the purchaser would have priority under the normal priority rules applicable to the proceeds [see Com. Code § 9322; [1], above], or if the proceeds consist of the specific goods covered by the chattel paper or cash proceeds of the specific goods, even if the purchaser's security interest in the proceeds is unperfected [

Com. Code § 9330(c)].

A purchaser of an instrument has priority over a security interest in the instrument perfected by a method other than possession (for example, by filing, temporarily, under Com. Code § 9312(e) or (g), as proceeds under Com. Code § 9315(d), or automatically on attachment under Com. Code § 9309(4) if the security instrument arises out of the sale of an instrument) if the purchaser gives value (not new value) and takes possession of the instrument in good faith and without knowledge that the purchase violates the rights of the secured party [Com. Code § 9330(d); see Com. Code § 9330 (UCC Comment P 7); see also Com. Code § 9330(f) (purchaser of chattel paper or instrument has knowledge that purchase violates rights of secured party if chattel paper or instrument indicates that it has been assigned to identified secured party other than purchaser)]. However, this rule does not limit the right of a holder in due course under Article 3, governing negotiable instruments [see Com. Code § 9330(d); Com. Code § 9331(a); see also Com. Code § 3101 et seq. (negotiable instruments)]. Thus, in the rare case in which a purchaser of an instrument qualifies for priority under this provision, but another person has the rights of a holder of due course of the instrument, the other person takes free of the purchaser's claim [see Com. Code § 9330 (UCC Comment P 7); see also Com. Code § 3306 (holder of due course takes free of other claims of property or possessory rights in instrument)].

[14] Priorities of Collecting Banks, Issuer or Nominated Person under Letter of Credit, and Security Interests Arising under Division 2 and Division 10

Special rules govern the priority of security interests arising under Division 2 [see Com. Code § 2101 et seq. (sales)], Division 10 [see Com. Code § 10101 et seq. (leases)], Division 4 [see Com. Code § 4210 (security interest of collecting bank)], and Division 5 [Com. Code § 9322(f); see Com. Code § 5118 (security interest of issuer or nominated person)].

A security interest arising under Com. Code § 2401 (seller's reservation of title to goods); Com. Code § 2505 (seller's shipment of goods under reservation), Com. Code § 2711(3) (buyer's security interest in rejected goods), or under Com. Code § 10508(e) (lessee's security interest in goods in lessee's possession) is subject to Division 9 [Com. Code § 9110]. However, until the debtor obtains possession of the goods, a security interest arising under one of these statutory sections has priority over a conflicting security interest created by the debtor [Com. Code § 9110(4)]. Thus, a security interest arising under Com. Code §§ 2401 or 2505 has priority over a conflicting security interest in the buyer's after-acquired goods, even if the goods in question are inventory [see Com. Code § 9110 (UCC Comment P 4)]. Similarly, a security interest under Com. Code § 2711(3) or Com. Code § 10508(e) has priority over security interests claimed by the seller's or lessor's secured lender [see Com. Code § 9110 (UCC Comment P 4)]. In the event that a security interest referred to in Com. Code § 9110 conflicts with a security interest that is created by a person other than the debtor, the rule governing priority of security interests in transferred collateral [see Com. Code § 9325] applies [see Com. Code § 9110 (UCC Comment P 4)].

A collecting bank has a perfected security interest, without the requirements of a security agreement or filing, in certain items, documents, and proceeds it holds in deposit [Com. Code § 4210(a), (c)(1), (2)]. Therefore, regardless of the time that the conflicting interest is filed or perfected, the collecting bank has priority over conflicting perfected security interests to the extent that the bank does not receive final settlement for the item or does not give up possession of the item or possession or control of the accompanying documents for purposes other than collection [Com. Code § 4210(c)(3)].

Com. Code § 5118 governs priority with respect to security interests of an issuer or nominated person in certain documents presented under letters of credit. Under this provision, if the document (1) is presented in a written or tangible medium, (2) is not a certificated security, chattel paper, a document of title, an instrument, or a letter of credit, and (3) is not in the debtor's possession, the secured interest is perfected and has priority over a conflicting security interest [Com. Code § 5118(3)]. If the document is the type of tangible collateral that is excluded from this perfection and priority rule, the issuer or nominated person must comply with the normal method of perfection (for example, possession of an instrument) and is subject to the applicable Division 9 priority rules [see Com. Code § 5118 (UCC

[15] Perfected Security Interests Arising under Federal Loan Programs

In the absence of a federal statute establishing priority in specific cases, perfected security interests arising from federal loan programs do not take precedence over private perfected security interests. When the United States acts as a lender or guarantor, it does so voluntarily and with detailed knowledge of the borrower's financial status and the accompanying risks. In this respect, it is similar to a private lender and is fully capable of establishing terms that will secure repayment. Therefore, state law is ordinarily the appropriate rule for setting priorities of competing federal and private security interests [United States v. Kimbell Foods, Inc. (1979) 440 U.S. 715, 729-733, 99 S. Ct. 1448, 59 L. Ed. 2d 711 (decided under prior law)].

[16] Miscellaneous Priority Provisions

Division 9 also includes a number of miscellaneous priority provisions, such as:

- Clarifications of selected good-faith purchase and similar issues [see Com. Code §§ 9317, 9331].
- Priority rules to deal with the "double debtor" problem, arising when a debtor creates a security interest in collateral acquired by the debtor subject to a security interest created by another person [see Com. Code § 9325].
- Priority rules to deal with the problems created when a change in an entity's structure results in a new entity that has become bound by the original debtor's after-acquired property agreement [see Com. Code § 9326].
- A provision enabling most transferees of funds from a deposit account or money to take free of a security interest [see Com. Code § 9332].
- Priority rules dealing with accessions and commingled goods [see Com. Code §§ 9335, 9336].
- Priority rules for security interests in goods covered by a certificate of title perfected in another jurisdiction [see Com. Code § 9337].
- Provisions designed to ensure that priority provisions in deposit accounts will not extend to most transferees of funds on deposit or payees from deposit accounts and will not otherwise "clog" the payment system [see Com. Code §§ 9341, 9342].

DIVISION III: COMMERCIAL TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 42 SECURED TRANSACTIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

19-42 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 42.16

AUTHOR: by Ann S. Manheimer, J.D.

§ 42.16 Default

[1] Acts Constituting Default

The Commercial Code does not specifically define default in the context of a security agreement [see Com. Code § 9601]. Generally, default is the failure of the debtor to perform the requirements imposed by the security agreement in a timely manner. Division 9 also leaves to the agreement of the parties the circumstances giving rise to a default [see Com. Code § 9601 (UCC Comment P 3); see also § 42.200]. Events of default under a security agreement typically include (1) default under the terms of the secured obligation, such as a failure to make payments; (2) failure to maintain or insure the collateral; and (3) unauthorized removal of collateral. The particular events constituting default under a security agreement must be negotiated between the debtor and the secured party [see Com. Code § 9601 (UCC Comment P 3); McDonnell, Secured Transactions Under the UCC, Ch. 8, The Secured Party and Default Proceedings Under Article 9 (Matthew Bender)].

The Commercial Code provisions governing default and enforcement provide parallel treatment for security interests and agricultural liens. However, because agricultural liens are statutory rather than consensual, the code draws a few distinctions between these liens and security interests (see, e.g., Com. Code § 9601(e)(3)) [see Com. Code § 9601 (UCC Comment P 6)]. A default occurs in connection with an agricultural loan at the time the secured party becomes entitled to enforce the lien in accordance with the statute under which it was created [Com. Code § 9606].

[2] Debtor's or Obligor's Rights and Remedies After Default

[a] Eligible Debtors and Obligors

The Commercial Code grants certain rights and remedies to the defaulting debtor and obligor [see Com. Code §§ 9601(d), 9602; see also Com. Code § 1201(b)(34) (rights includes remedies)]. A debtor, for these purposes, is any person with a non-lien interest in collateral [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(28)(A); Com. Code § 9601(g) see also Com. Code § 9101 (UCC Comment P 4i)]. An obligor is a person that, with respect to an obligation secured by a security interest in or an agricultural lien on the collateral, (1) owes payment or other performance of the obligation, (2) has provided property other than the collateral to secure payment or other performance of the obligation, or (3) is otherwise accountable in whole or in part for payment or other performance of the obligation [Com. Code § 9102(a)(59)]. The term does not include issuers or nominated persons under a letter of credit [Com. Code § 9102(a)(59)].

[b] Secondary Obligors

With one exception, the rights (and duties) in this part of the Commercial Code [see Com. Code § 9601 et seq. (default and enforcement)] affect non-debtor obligors only if they are "secondary obligors" [see Com. Code § 9101 (UCC Comment P 4i); see also Com. Code § 9616(b)(2), (d) (exception for consumer obligor)]. A "secondary obligor" is defined to include one who is secondarily obligated on the secured obligation, for example, a guarantor, or one who has a right of recourse against the debtor or another obligor with respect to an obligation secured by collateral [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(71)(B)].

[c] Secured Party Relieved of Duty

The secured party is relieved from any duty or liability to a debtor or obligor unless the secured party knows [see Com. Code § 1202(b) ("knowledge" means actual knowledge)] that the person is a debtor or obligor [see Com. Code §§ 9605(1), 9628(b)(1)]. Similarly, the secured party is relieved from duties to a secured party or lienholder who has filed a financing statement against the debtor, if the secured party does not know about the debtor [see Com. Code §§ 9605(2), 9628(b)(2); see also Com. Code § 9605 (UCC Comment P 2 (example))].

[d] Available Rights and Remedies; Expansion and Waiver of Statutory Rights

After default, a debtor and an obligor have the rights and remedies provided by Com. Code § 9207 (rights and duties of secured party having possession or control of collateral) and Com. Code § 9601 et seq. (default and enforcement), as well as those provided by the security agreement [see Com. Code § 9601(d)]. For a guide to the rights and remedies of the parties on default, see §§ 42.141 and 42.142. For a guide to drafting a security agreement, including permissible provisions varying or waiving the parties' rights and remedies on default, see § 42.130.

A security agreement may expand the rights of the debtor or the obligor on default, but it may not waive or alter the rights provided in the Commercial Code, except as expressly permitted by the Code [Com. Code § 9602; see Com. Code § 9602 (UCC Comment P 2)]. With limited exceptions, the following rules may not be waived or varied to the extent that they give rights to the debtor or obligor and impose duties on the secured party [Com. Code § 9602; see Com. Code § 9624 (exceptions relating to some dispositions and redemptions of collateral)]:

- The rule dealing with the use and operation of the collateral by the secured party [see Com. Code § 9207(b)(4)(C)].
- The rules dealing with requests for an accounting and requests concerning a list of collateral and statement of account [see Com. Code § 9210].
- The rules requiring that a secured party proceed in a commercially reasonable manner in exercising its collection and enforcement rights [see Com. Code § 9607(c)].
- The rules dealing with application or payment of noncash proceeds of collection, enforcement, or disposition [see Com. Code §§ 9608(a), 9615].
- The rules dealing with the accounting for or payment of surplus proceeds of collateral [see Com. Code §§ 9608(a), 9615(d)].

- The rule imposing on a secured party that takes possession of collateral without judicial process the duty to do so without breach of the peace [see Com. Code § 9609].
- The rules dealing with the disposition of collateral [see Com. Code §§ 9610(b), 9611, 9613, 9614; but see Com. Code § 9624(a) (waiver of right of notification under Com. Code § 9611)].
- The rule dealing with the calculation of a deficiency or surplus when a disposition is made to the secured party, a person related to the secured party, or a secondary obligor [see Com. Code § 9615(f) ("low-price" dispositions)].
- The rule dealing with the secured party's required explanation of the calculation of a surplus or deficiency [see Com. Code § 9616].
- The rules dealing with the acceptance of collateral in satisfaction of an obligation [see Com. Code §§ 9620-9622; but see Com. Code § 9624(b) (waiver of right to require disposition under Com. Code § 9620(e))].
- The rule dealing with the redemption of collateral [see Com. Code § 9623; but see Com. Code § 9624(c) (waiver of right to redeem non-consumer collateral under Com. Code § 9623)].
- The rule dealing with permissible waivers [see Com. Code § 9624].
- The rules dealing with the existence of a deficiency and with the secured party's liability for failure to comply with Division 9 [see Com. Code §§ 9625, 9626].

Statutory rules not enumerated above [see Com. Code § 9602] are subject to Com. Code § 1302(b), which specifies that, with exceptions relating to good faith, diligence, reasonableness, and care, the immediate parties, between themselves, may vary Commercial Code provisions by agreement [see Com. Code § 1302(b); Com. Code § 9602; see also Com. Code § 1103(b) (supplementary principles of general law are applicable); Com. Code § 9603 (parties may determine, by agreement, standards measuring fulfillment of rights and duties under Com. Code § 9602 if standards are not manifestly unreasonable)].

[e] Credit Disability Insurance

If the debtor has bought credit disability insurance from the creditor, or if the creditor arranged for or received compensation for such a sale, the creditor may not impose late charges, accelerate a due date, collect any credit balance, or enforce any security interest in any manner until three calendar months after the earlier of (1) the date that the first missed payment is due, or (2) the date that the insurer pays or rejects the debtor's claim [see Civ. Code § 1812.402(a); see also Civ. Code §§ 1812.401(d), 1812.403-1812.407; Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales].

[3] Secured Party's Rights and Remedies After Default

[a] In General

After default by the debtor, the secured party may exercise the rights and remedies granted under the default provisions of Division 9, and, except as otherwise provided in Com. Code § 9602 [see [2], above], the rights provided by the security agreement [Com. Code § 9601(a); see [1], above (discussing what constitutes default)]. These statutory rights include [see Com. Code § 9601(a), (b)]:

- The right to reduce a claim to judgment, foreclose, or otherwise to enforce the claim, security interest, or agricultural lien by any available judicial procedure [see Com. Code § 9601(e) (judicial lien relates back to earlier of date of filing or date of perfection, thus, giving secured party who enforces security interest by judicial process the benefit of Com. Code § 9322(a)(1)'s first-to-file-or-perfect priority rule); Com. Code § 9601(f) (execution sale is appropriate method of foreclosure under Com. Code § 9601 et seq., but is governed by law other than Division 9)].

- If the collateral is documents, the right to proceed either as to the documents or as to the goods they cover.

- If the secured party is in possession of collateral or control of collateral [see Com. Code §§ 9104-9107 (control)], the rights and duties provided in Com. Code § 9207 [see § 42.13[1]].

These statutory rights are cumulative and may be exercised simultaneously [Com. Code § 9601(c)].

With the exception of the rules requiring that a secured party proceed in a commercially reasonable manner in exercising its collection and enforcement rights [see Com. Code § 9607(c)], the statutory provisions governing default [see Com. Code § 9601 et seq.] impose no duties on a secured party that is a consignor or is a buyer of accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, or promissory notes [Com. Code § 9601(g)].

Generally, the secured party must account to and pay a debtor for any surplus [see Com. Code § 9608(a)(4), (b); see also Com. Code § 9615(d)(1), (e) (specifying manner in which proceeds of collection and enforcement must be applied); and [j], below; but see Code Civ. Proc. § 701.040(b)]. With some limitations, the secured party also may seek a deficiency judgment against the obligor when the underlying transaction secures an indebtedness [see Com. Code §§ 9608(a)(4), 9615(d)(2); [j], below; see also Com. Code § 9626(b) (special rules for consumer transactions)].

If an obligation is secured by both personal property or fixtures [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(41) (definition)] and an interest or estate in real property, the secured party may proceed, in any sequence [Com. Code § 9604(a)]:

- (1) As to the real property security, in accordance with the secured party's rights and remedies in respect of the real property and, as to the personal property or fixtures, in accordance with the default and enforcement provisions of Division 9;
- (2) As to both some or all of the real property and some or all of the personal property or fixtures, in accordance with the secured party's rights and remedies with respect to the real property, by including the selected portion of the personal property or fixtures in the judicial or nonjudicial foreclosure of the real property; or
- (3) In accordance with Paragraph 1, above, as to part of the personal property or fixtures, and, in accordance with Paragraph 2, above, as to another part of the personal property or fixtures.

A secured party that exercises rights under the default and enforcement provisions of Division 9 [see Com. Code § 9601 et seq.] with respect to personal property does not prejudice any rights under real property law [see Com. Code § 9604(a)(1)(B)].

In general, statutory provisions and limitations governing real property and obligations secured by real property do not apply to personal property or fixtures other than personal property or fixtures as to which the secured party has proceeded (or is proceeding) in accordance with the secured party's rights and remedies under the default provisions of Division 9, or to the obligations secured by the personal property or fixtures [Com. Code § 9604(a)(2)(A); see Code Civ. Proc. § 726]. These statutory provisions and limitations include, but are not limited to, Code Civ. Proc. § 726, governing foreclosure actions in general, provisions governing acceleration or reinstatement of obligations, prohibitions against deficiency judgments, limitations on deficiency judgments based on the value of the collateral, limitations on the right to proceed against the collateral, and requirements that the creditor resort either first or not at all to the security [Com. Code § 9604(a)(2)(A)].

PRACTICE TIP:

CAUTION. The three-month time limit for seeking a deficiency judgment after a real property judicial foreclosure sale set forth in Code of Civ. Proc. § 726(b) does not apply to a mixed collateral obligation when the real property is sold in a nonunified sale [Florio v. Lau (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 637, 653, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 409 (deciding, in case of first impression, that Code of Civ. Proc. § 726(b) may not be applied in its entirety to mixed collateral situation without running afoul of Legislature's stated purpose in enacting mixed collateral statutes)].

These limitations, however, do not deprive the debtor of the statutory protection against a deficiency judgment following a sale of the real property collateral, and do not apply to a loan or credit sale made to an individual primarily for personal, family, or household purposes [see Com. Code § 9604(a)(3); see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 580a, 580d].

For a detailed guide to the rights and remedies of the parties on default, see §§ 42.141 and 42.142. For a guide to drafting a security agreement, including permissible provisions varying or waiving the parties' rights and remedies on default, see § 42.130.

[b] Execution of Judgment

If the secured party reduces the claim to judgment, any resulting judgment lien made on the collateral will relate back to the earliest of any of the following [Com. Code § 9601(e)]:

- The date of perfection of the security interest or agricultural lien in the collateral.
- The date of filing a financing statement covering the collateral.
- Any date specified in a statute under which the agricultural lien was created.

Because the judicial lien relates back to earlier of the date of filing or the date of perfection, the secured party who enforces the security interest by judicial process has the benefit of the first-to-file-or-perfect priority rule of Com. Code § 9322(a)(1) [see Com. Code § 9601 (UCC Comment P 6)]. Because agricultural liens are statutory rather than consensual, the statute creating an agricultural lien would govern whether and the date to which an execution lien relates back [see Com. Code § 9601(e)(3); Com. Code § 9601 (UCC Comment P 6); see also Com. Code § 9606 (explaining when default occurs in agricultural lien context); [1], above].

A judicial sale pursuant to the execution of judgment is considered a foreclosure of the security interest or agricultural lien by judicial procedure [Com. Code § 9601(f); see also [c], below]. The secured party may purchase the collateral at the sale and, after the sale, hold the property without having to comply with the other requirements of Division 9 governing procedures on default, such as notice. Therefore, the restrictions imposed on the right of a secured party to buy collateral at a sale [see Com. Code § 9610] do not apply in this context [see Com. Code § 9601(f); Com. Code § 9601 (UCC Comment P 8); see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 683.010, 683.020, 699.510, 712.010]. For a detailed discussion of execution of judgments, including forms, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgment (Matthew Bender).

[c] Foreclosure or Other Judicial Enforcement

If the secured party elects to foreclose or to enforce the claim under any available judicial procedure, the proceedings are governed by state law outside of Division 9 of the Commercial Code [see Com. Code § 9601(f); Com. Code § 9601 (UCC Comment P 8)], such as those provisions governing foreclosure of mortgages [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 725a-730] and execution of judgments [see Com. Code § 9601(f); see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 683.010-683.050, 699.510 et seq., 712.010 et seq.]. For a detailed guide to these procedures, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgment and Sales, pt. IV (Matthew Bender). For a detailed guide to procedures governing deficiency judgments, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 503, Sales: Secured Transactions (Matthew Bender).

Absent agreement to the contrary, a secured party has the right to take possession of collateral after default, or without removal, render equipment unusable and dispose of collateral on a debtor's premises, or to do both [Com. Code § 9609(a); see Com. Code § 9610 (disposition after default)]. The secured party may take possession without judicial process, if it is possible to do so without a breach of the peace; otherwise, the secured party may proceed through a court action [Com. Code § 9609(b); Com. Code § 9609 (UCC Comment P 3) (examples of conduct courts have held to constitute breach of peace); see also Com. Code § 9625(b), (c); Com. Code § 9625 (UCC Comment P 3) (damages based on secured party's breach of peace in connection with taking possession of collateral)].

If so agreed, and in any event after default, a secured party may require the debtor to assemble the collateral and make it available to the secured party at a place to be designated by the secured party which is reasonably convenient to both parties [Com. Code § 9609(c); see Com. Code § 9609 (UCC Comment P 8) (debtor's agreement to assemble and make available collateral and secured party's right to disassemble equipment and dispose of collateral on debtor's premises are likely topics for agreement on standards under Com. Code § 9603)]. For further discussion of repossessing collateral without judicial process, see Secured Transactions Under the UCC, Ch. 8, The Secured Party and Default Proceedings (Matthew Bender).

A secured party in possession of collateral has a duty, even after default, to use reasonable care in its custody and preservation [Com. Code § 9207(a); see Com. Code § 9601(b); Com. Code § 9207 (UCC Comment P 4) (reasonable care following default); see also Com. Code § 9207(d) (exception if secured party is seller of accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, or promissory notes or consignor)]. For further discussion of the rights and duties of a secured party having possession or control of the collateral, see § 42.13[1].

[e] Acceptance of Collateral in Satisfaction of Obligation

A secured party generally may accept collateral in partial satisfaction, as well as full satisfaction, of the obligations secured, if specified conditions relating to consent by the debtor and any secondary obligor or holder of a junior interest or lien are met [see Com. Code § 9620(a)]. This right is sometimes referred to as the right of "strict foreclosure," a procedure by which the secured party acquires the debtor's interest in the collateral without the need of a sale or other disposition [see Com. Code § 9620 (UCC Comment P 2); see also Com. Code § 9610 (disposition of collateral after default), [h], below]. The simplified procedure for strict foreclosures in revised Division 9, effective on July 1, 2001 [see Stats. 1999 ch. 991, § 35; see also § 42.10[2][b]] reflects the belief that strict foreclosures should be encouraged and often will produce better results than a disposition for all concerned [see Com. Code § 9620 (UCC Comment P 2); cf. former Com. Code § 9505].

[f] Conditions for Acceptance of Collateral

Except in consumer transactions [see Com. Code § 9620(g) (secured party may not accept collateral in partial satisfaction of obligation it secures)], a secured party may accept collateral in full or partial satisfaction of the obligation it secures if all of the following conditions are satisfied [Com. Code § 9620(a)(1)-(3)]:

- The debtor consents to the acceptance [see Com. Code § 9620(c) (conditions to effective acceptance)].
- The secured party does not receive, within the prescribed time period [see Com. Code § 9620(d)], a notification of objection to the proposal to accept the collateral, authenticated by either a person to which the secured party was required to send the proposal or any other person, other than the debtor, holding an interest in the collateral subordinate to the security interest that is the subject of the proposal [see Com. Code § 9621 (notification requirements)].
- If the collateral is consumer goods, the collateral is not in the possession of the debtor when the debtor consents to the acceptance.
- Com. Code § 9620(e), which imposes an obligation on the secured party to dispose of consumer goods under certain circumstances, does not require the secured party to dispose of the collateral or the debtor waives the requirement [Com. Code § 9620(a)(4); see Com. Code § 9624 (waiver)].

To ensure that the debtor cannot unilaterally cause an acceptance of collateral, the statute also provides that compliance with the conditions enumerated above [see Com. Code § 9620(a)] is necessary, but not sufficient to cause an acceptance of collateral [see Com. Code § 9620(b)(2); Com. Code § 9620 (UCC Comment P 5)]. Rather, acceptance does not occur unless, in addition, the secured party consents to the acceptance in an authenticated record or sends the debtor a proposal [see Com. Code § 9620(b)(1)].

PRACTICE TIP:

For the above reason, a mere delay in collection or disposition of collateral does not constitute a "constructive" foreclosure. Instead, delay is a factor relating to whether the secured party acted in a commercially reasonable manner under Com. Code §§ 9607 and 9610 [see Com. Code § 9620 (UCC Comment P 5); see also [h], below].

Once all of these conditions [see Com. Code § 9620(a), (b)] have been met, the secured party need take no further action in order to accept collateral. Absent circumstances indicating a contrary intent, the fact that the conditions have been met provides a sufficient indication that the secured party has consented or proposed and that the debtor has consented or failed to object. Following a proposal, acceptance of collateral is automatic on the secured party's becoming bound and the time for objection passing [see Com. Code § 9620(c) (conditions to effective acceptance); Com. Code § 9620(d) (when objection is timely and thus prevents acceptance of collateral from taking effect)].

PRACTICE TIP:

As a matter of good business practice, an enforcing secured party may wish to memorialize its acceptance following a proposal, for example, by notifying the debtor that the strict foreclosure is effective or by placing a written record to that effect in its files [see Com. Code § 9620 (UCC Comment P 6)].

Special rules apply in consumer cases. The secured party in consumer transactions is prohibited from accepting collateral in partial satisfaction of the obligation it secures [Com. Code § 9620(g)]. Also, unless the debtor agrees to waive the requirements in an authenticated record after default, the secured party must, in certain cases, dispose of consumer goods collateral that has been repossessed [see Com. Code § 9620(e), (f)]. For further discussion of the rules on consumer transactions, see § 42.247.

[g] Effect of Acceptance of Collateral

A secured party's acceptance of collateral in full or partial satisfaction of the obligation it secures discharges the obligation to the extent consented to by the debtor [Com. Code § 9622(a)(1)]. In addition, acceptance of collateral effects other property rights and interests as follows [Com. Code § 9622(a)(2)-(4)]:

- It transfers to the secured party all of a debtor's rights in the collateral [cf. Com. Code § 9617(a) (rights of transferee of collateral)].
- It discharges the security interest or agricultural lien that is the subject of the debtor's consent and any subordinate security interest or other subordinate lien.
- It terminates any other subordinate interest.

A subordinate interest is discharged or terminated by the secured party's acceptance of the collateral, even if the secured party fails to comply with this division [Com. Code § 9622(b)].

For a detailed guide to the procedures for retaining collateral after default, see § 42.141, P 8. For related forms, see §§ 42.245-42.247.

After default, a secured party may sell, lease, license, or otherwise dispose of some or all of the collateral, either in its present condition or following any commercially reasonable preparation or processing [Com. Code § 9610(a)]. Every aspect of a disposition of collateral, including the method, manner, time, place, and other terms, must be commercially reasonable [Com. Code § 9610(b); see Com. Code § 9627 (circumstances under which disposition is "commercially reasonable"); see also Com. Code § 2706 (UCC Comment PP 2-9) (seller's obligation to make resale in good faith and in commercially reasonable manner)]. If commercially reasonable, a secured party may dispose of collateral by public or private proceedings, by contract, as a unit or in parcels, and at any time and place and on any terms [Com. Code § 9610(b)]. The secured party has the duty to obtain the best price possible under the circumstances prevailing at the time of the disposition [J.T. Jenkins Co. v. Kennedy (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 474, 480 n.15, 119 Cal. Rptr. 578 (decided under prior law)], but is not liable for a decrease in value [Hutchison v. Southern California First Nat. Bank (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 572, 583, 103 Cal. Rptr. 816 (decided under prior law)].

The provisions governing default maintain two distinctions between "public" and other dispositions [see Com. Code § 9610 (UCC Comment P 7)]. First, the secured party may purchase collateral at a public disposition without limitation [see Com. Code § 9610(c)(1)], but may purchase collateral at a private disposition only if the collateral is of a kind that is customarily sold on a recognized market or the subject of widely distributed standard price quotations [Com. Code § 9610(c)(2)]. Second, the debtor is entitled to notification of "the time after which" a private disposition or other intended disposition is to be made [see Com. Code § 9613(1)(E); see also Com. Code § 9617(b) (unitary standard applies to transferees acting in good faith in both private and public dispositions)].

The transferee in a disposition enjoys the benefit of any title, possession, quiet enjoyment, and similar warranties that would have accompanied the disposition by operation of non-Division 9 law, had the disposition been conducted under other circumstances [Com. Code § 9610(d); see Com. Code § 9610 (UCC Comment P 11) (examples); see also Com. Code § 9619 (transfer of record or legal title)]. These warranties may be disclaimed either under other applicable law or by communicating a record containing an express disclaimer. The record need not be written, but an oral communication would not be sufficient [see Com. Code § 9610(e); see also Com. Code § 9610(f) (sample wording sufficient to disclaim warranties under this provision)].

A transfer of record or legal title to a secured party, however, is not of itself a disposition under the provisions governing default. This rule applies regardless of the circumstances under which the transfer occurred [Com. Code § 9619(c)].

[i] Notification of Disposition

Unless the collateral is perishable, threatens to decline speedily in value, or is of a type customarily sold on a recognized market, a secured party must send a reasonable, authenticated notification of a disposition of collateral to the debtor, any secondary obligor, and to other secured parties and lienholders who have filed financing statements against the debtor covering the collateral [Com. Code § 9611(b)-(d); see Com. Code § 9612 (timeliness of notification); Com. Code § 9613 (form of notification for non-consumer transactions); Com. Code § 9314 (form of notification for consumer goods transactions); see also Union Safe Deposit Bank v. Floyd (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 25, 32, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 36 (bank's notice was defective under former Com. Code § 9504(3) when it failed to state, expressly or impliedly, whether sale would be public or private, decided under prior law)]. However, the secured party satisfies its notification duty if the secured party undertakes a search of the records and a report of the results is unreasonably delayed [see Com. Code § 9611(e)].

For further discussion of the notification procedure and statutory forms of notification for non-consumer and for consumer goods transactions, see §§ 42.240 and 42.241.

[j] Application of Proceeds; Surplus or Deficiency

The proceeds of the disposition [see Com. Code § 9610] must be used in the prescribed order [see Com. Code § 9615(a)]: First, to reimburse the secured party for the reasonable expenses of retaking, holding, preparing for disposition, processing, and disposing, and, to the extent provided for by agreement and not prohibited by law, reasonable attorneys' fees and legal expenses incurred by the secured party [Com. Code § 9615(a)(1)]. Second, to satisfy the obligations secured by the security interest or agricultural lien under which the disposition is made [Com. Code § 9615(a)(2)]. Third, to satisfy the obligations secured by any subordinate security interest in or other subordinate lien on the collateral and to satisfy any subordinate attachment lien or execution lien, if specified conditions are met [see Com. Code § 9615(a)(3); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 701.040(b) (payment of excess property, payments, or proceeds)].

Further, the enforcing secured party must pay excess proceeds first to subordinate secured parties or lienholders whose interests are senior to that of the consignor, and, finally to the consignor [see Com. Code § 9615(a), (d)]. Because the consignor is the owner of the collateral, secured parties and lienholders whose interests are junior to the consignor's interest will not be entitled to any proceeds [see Com. Code § 9615 (UCC Comment P 2)]. Similarly, the debtor is not entitled to a surplus when the enforcing secured party is required to pay over proceeds to a consignor [Com. Code § 9615(d)(1)].

In addition, the obligor may be liable for any deficiency resulting from the disposition of the collateral [see Com. Code § 9615(d)(2)]. In a consumer goods transaction, a secured party must provide the debtor with a notification of how it calculated a deficiency at the time it first undertook to collect the deficiency [see Com. Code § 9616]. When the secured party, a person related to the secured party [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(72) (definition)], or a secondary obligor acquires the collateral at a foreclosure disposition, the Code provides a special method for calculating a deficiency or surplus to adjust for any lack of incentive on the part of the secured party to maximize the proceeds of the disposition [see Com. Code § 9615(f); Com. Code § 9615 (UCC Comment P 6)]. This rule applies to dispositions that comply with the procedural requirements of Division 9 (for example, they are conducted in a commercially reasonable manner following reasonable notice), but nevertheless fetch a low price [see Com. Code § 9615 (UCC Comment P 6)]. In non-consumer transactions, another special rule applies to calculating the deficiency claim of a secured party who fails to bear the burden of proving that its collection, enforcement, disposition, or acceptance complied with the relevant provisions under Com. Code § 9601 et seq. [see Com. Code § 9626 ("rebuttable presumption" rule); see also Com. Code § 9628 (nonliability and limitation on liability of secured party)].

If the underlying transaction is a sale of accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, or promissory notes, however, the debtor is not entitled to any surplus, and the obligor is not liable for any deficiency [Com. Code § 9615(e)(1)]. In these circumstances, any attachment liens or execution liens [see Code Civ. Proc. § 701.040] relating to the payment of proceeds and the liability of the secured party apply only if the security agreement provides that the debtor is entitled to any surplus [Com. Code § 9615(e)(2)].

[k] Effect of Disposition

When the collateral is disposed of by a secured party after default, the disposition transfers to a purchaser for value all of the debtor's rights in the collateral, discharges the security interest under which the disposition was made, and discharges any other subordinate security interest in or lien against the collateral [Com. Code § 9617(a)]. A transferee acting in good faith takes free of all these rights and interests, even if the secured party fails to comply with the statutory requirements for disposition or the requirements of any judicial proceeding [Com. Code § 9617(b)]. An aggrieved party (for example, the holder of a subordinate security interest to whom the notification required by Com. Code § 9611 was not sent) has a right to recover any loss under Com. Code § 9625(b) [see Com. Code § 9617 (UCC Comment P 2); Com. Code § 9625(b)]. If a transferee does not take free of these rights and interests (that is, a transferee who does not act in good faith), the transferee takes the collateral subject to the rights of debtor, the security interest or agricultural lien under which the disposition is made, and other security interests or liens [Com. Code § 9617(c)].

§ 42.17 Security Interests in Bankruptcy

[1] Grounds for Invalidating Security Interests After Bankruptcy Filing

A security interest may be challenged on one of several grounds if a bankruptcy action is filed by or against a debtor [see, e.g., 11 U.S.C. §§ 544-548]. Trustees generally rely on three grounds [see McDonnell, Secured Transactions Under the Uniform Commercial Code, Ch. 2, The Intelligent Lawyer's Guide to Secured Transactions (Matthew Bender)], discussed individually below.

First, the bankruptcy trustee may avoid a security interest that is unperfected at the time the bankruptcy proceeding is begun. In this case, the bankruptcy trustee is said to have the rights that a state law lien creditor would have if the lien had been established at the time of the bankruptcy. This position, in effect, defeats the priority of unperfected security interests [see 11 U.S.C. § 544(a)].

Second, the bankruptcy trustee may avoid a security interest when there has been a fraudulent conveyance within two years of the date the petition was filed [see 11 U.S.C. § 548]. A fraudulent conveyance occurs when the debtor makes a transfer (including any transfer to or for the benefit of an insider under an employment contract) or incurs an obligation (including any obligation to or for the benefit of an insider under an employment contract) with the actual intent to hinder, delay, or defraud any entity to which the debtor was indebted, or when the debtor receives less than a reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the granting of an interest either to an insider or at a time when the debtor was financially troubled [11 U.S.C. § 548(a)(1)].

Third, a transfer of the debtor's property that is entered into to pay or secure an earlier debt, and that is entered into close in time to the filing of a bankruptcy petition, may be made ineffective as a preferential transfer [see 11 U.S.C. § 547; see also Cent. Va. Cmty. College v. Katz (2006) 126 S. Ct. 990, 994, 163 L. Ed. 2d 945 (proceeding initiated by bankruptcy trustee to set aside preferential transfers by debtor to state agencies is not barred by sovereign immunity)]. A preferential transfer contains six distinct elements: (1) it is a transfer of the debtor's property, (2) to or for the benefit of a creditor, (3) for or on account of an antecedent debt, (4) while the debtor is insolvent, (5) during the preference period, (6) which improves the position of the creditor as to other similarly situated creditors [see 11 U.S.C. § 547(b)]. The acquisition of a security interest under an after-acquired property clause can be a preferential transfer [see 11 U.S.C. § 547(c)(3), (5)].

For the purposes of a preferential transfer, the preference period affecting most creditors is 90 days before the bankruptcy [11 U.S.C. § 547(b)(4)(A); see 11 U.S.C. § 547(f)]; however, the preference period is one year for insiders [11 U.S.C. § 547(b)(4)(B)]. "Insiders" are persons and entities closely related to the debtor. For example, an individual debtor's insiders are his or her general partners; relatives of the debtor or of the debtor's general partners; and partnerships and corporations in which the debtor is a general partner, director, officer, or person in control [11 U.S.C. § 101(31)(A)].

Certain preferential transfers cannot be avoided, regardless of when they are made [11 U.S.C. § 547(c)]. For example, a transfer cannot be avoided if it is part of a substantially contemporaneous exchange for new value [11 U.S.C. § 547(c)(1)]. A transfer creating a security interest is not avoidable to the extent that it is a purchase money security interest acquired with new value and perfected within 10 days after the debtor acquired the collateral [11 U.S.C. § 547(c)(3)]. An otherwise avoidable grant of a security interest in inventory or receivables is not avoidable to the extent that it does not improve the secured party's position [11 U.S.C. § 547(c)(5)].

For a detailed discussion of the grounds for avoiding security interests in bankruptcy, and a discussion of protections against avoidance, see McDonnell, Secured Transactions Under the Uniform Code, Ch. 9, The Impact of Bankruptcy Law on Secured Financing & Equipment Leasing (Matthew Bender).

The secured party may not obtain automatic access to the collateral after a bankruptcy filing, even when the secured claim cannot be avoided. The filing of the petition initiates the bankruptcy stay, which bars acts to enforce any claims against the debtor or the debtor's property that were or could have been filed before the commencement of the bankruptcy [11 U.S.C. § 362(a)].

During the course of the stay, the debtor has wide-ranging authority to use, sell, borrow against, or lease the collateral [see 11 U.S.C. §§ 361, 363-365]. Thus, under the stay, the secured party may not correct mistakes in documenting or in filing, because to do so would be an attempt to create or perfect a security interest [see 11 U.S.C. § 362(a)(4), (5)]. Similarly, the secured party may not attempt to shore up its position by seeking additional collateral [see 11 U.S.C. § 362(a)(4), (5)], or attempting collection [see 11 U.S.C. § 362(a)(6)]. However, presentment and requests for payment that do not involve coercion or harassment may be allowed [Morgan Guar. Trust Co. v. American Sav. and Loan (9th Cir. 1986) 804 F.2d 1487, 1491, cert. denied, 482 U.S. 929 (1987)].

Although exceptions to a bankruptcy stay are permitted [see 11 U.S.C. § 362(b)], most exceptions are not suitable to secured parties [see, e.g., 11 U.S.C. § 362(b)(1) (criminal proceedings permitted)]. However, secured parties may perfect interests in accordance with certain grace period provisions [see 11 U.S.C. § 362(b)(3)]. In addition, relief from the stay may be permitted for cause, including a lack of adequate protection of an interest in property [see 11 U.S.C. § 362(d)].

For a detailed discussion of the impact of bankruptcy on security interests, see McDonnell, Secured Transactions Under the Uniform Code, Ch. 9, The Impact of Bankruptcy Law on Secured Financing & Equipment Leasing (Matthew Bender).

19-42 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 42.100

AUTHOR: by Ann S. Manheimer, J.D.

§ 42.100 Facts

1. Identity of debtor, obligor, or secondary obligor.

NOTE:

The definitions of "debtor," "obligor," and "secondary obligor" are important in the context of Part 6 of Division 9 [Com. Code § 9601 et seq.], governing default and enforcement. For further discussion, see § 42.10[2].

The "debtor" is any one of the following [Com. Code § 9102(a)(28)]:

- A person having an interest, other than a security interest or other lien, in the collateral, whether or not the person is an obligor [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(59) ("obligor" defined)].
- A seller of accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, or promissory notes [see Com. Code § 9102 (definitions)].
- A consignee [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(19) (definition)].

Revised Division 9, effective on July 1, 2001 [see Stats. 1999 ch. 991, § 35; see also § 42.10[2][b]], added "obligor" and "secondary obligor." An "obligor" is a person who, with respect to an obligation secured by a security interest in or an agricultural lien on the collateral [Com. Code § 9102(a)(59)]:

- Owes payment or other performance of the obligation;
- Has provided property other than the collateral to secure payment or other performance of the obligation; or
- Is otherwise accountable in whole or in part for payment or other performance of the obligation.

The term does not include issuers or nominated persons under a letter of credit.

A "secondary obligor" is an obligor to the extent that either of the following conditions are satisfied [Com. Code § 9102(a)(71)]:

- The obligor's obligation is secondary.
- The obligor has a right of recourse with respect to an obligation secured by collateral against the debtor, another obligor, or property of either.

a. Name, address, and telephone number.

b. Legal status, such as:

- (1) Corporation.
- (2) Partnership.
- (3) Trustee or other fiduciary.
- (4) Other entity (e.g., limited liability company or limited liability partnership).
- (5) Individual.

c. If debtor, obligor, or secondary obligor is corporation:

- (1) Date and state of incorporation.
- (2) Name, title, and telephone number of officer or employee who will handle transaction.

d. If debtor, obligor, or secondary obligor is partnership, names of partners.

e. If debtor, obligor, or secondary obligor is another type of entity (e.g., a limited liability company):

- (1) Date and state of registration.
- (2) Name, title, and telephone number of manager or employee who will handle transaction.

f. If debtor is individual whose spouse has ownership interest in collateral, name and address of spouse.

2. Identity of secured party.

NOTE:

The "secured party" includes any of the following [Com. Code § 9102(a)(72)]:

- A person in whose favor a security interest is created or provided for under a security agreement, whether or not any obligation to be secured is outstanding.
- A person that holds an agricultural lien [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(5) (definition)].
- A consignor.
- A person to which accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, or promissory notes have been sold [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(2), (11), (61), (65) (definitions)].
- A trustee, indenture trustee, agent, collateral agent, or other representative in whose favor a security interest or agricultural lien is created or provided for [see Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 2b) (providing examples of status of various types of representatives)].
- A person that holds a security interest arising under Com. Code § 2401 (seller's reservation of title to goods), Com. Code § 2505 (seller's shipment of goods under reservation), Com. Code § 2711(3) (buyer's security interest in rejected goods), or under Com. Code § 10508(e) (lessee's security interest in goods in lessee's possession).

The definition of "secured party" controls, among other things, which person has the duties and liabilities that the provisions governing default [see Com. Code § 9601 et seq.] impose on a secured party [see § 42.16[2], [3]].

a. Name, address, and telephone number.

b. Legal status, such as:

- (1) Corporation.
- (2) Partnership.
- (3) Trustee or other fiduciary.
- (4) Other entity (e.g., limited liability company or limited liability partnership).
- (5) Individual.

c. If secured party is legal entity:

- (1) Date and state of incorporation or registration, as applicable.

(2) Name, title, and telephone number of officer or employee who will handle transaction.

d. Business or occupation of secured party, such as:

(1) Commercial lender.

(2) Other business enterprise.

(3) Private individual.

3. Information concerning proposed collateral, including:

a. Description and value of collateral.

b. Location of collateral.

c. Current owner of collateral.

4. Purpose of secured transaction, such as:

a. To finance purchase of collateral from secured party.

b. To finance purchase of collateral from third person.

c. To finance purchase of property other than collateral from secured party.

d. To finance purchase of property other than collateral from third person.

e. To provide working capital for business.

f. To secure existing obligation owing from debtor or obligor to secured party.

g. To consolidate debts.

h. To finance medical or other personal, family, or household expenses or obligations.

i. To finance purchase of inventory.

PART III. TRANSACTION GUIDE

B. Preliminary Determinations

19-42 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 42.110

AUTHOR: by Ann S. Manheimer, J.D.

§ 42.110 Applicable Law

1. Determine whether Division 9 of California Commercial Code applies to contemplated transaction [see Com. Code § 9101 et seq.].

NOTE:

Security interests can be created in many forms, including interests in proceeds to which a security interest attaches; accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, and promissory notes that have been sold; and goods that are the subject of a consignment [Com. Code § 9102(a)(12) ("collateral defined"); see Com. Code § 1201(b)(35) ("security interest" includes any interest of cosigner and buyer of accounts, chattel paper, a payment intangible, or promissory note in transactions subject to Com. Code § 9101 et seq.]. An agricultural lien can also create a security interest [see Com. Code § 9109(a)(2); see generally § 42.10[1]].

Whether an agreement creates a security interest depends on whether the transaction falls within the definition of "security interest" in Com. Code § 1201(b)(35), not on whether the parties intend the law to characterize the transaction as a security interest [see Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 3b); see also Com. Code § 9109 (UCC Comment P 2)]. Whether a transaction in the form of a lease creates a security interest is determined by the facts of the case [Com. Code §§ 1201(b)(35), 1203(a); see Com. Code § 1203(b) (factors that determine when lease creates security interest); § 42.12[3][c]]. Thus, when a security interest is created, Division 9 applies regardless of the form of the transaction or the names that the parties have given to it [Com. Code § 9109 (UCC Comment P 2)]. Division 9 also applies to a security interest in a secured obligation even if the obligation is itself secured by a transaction or interest that is not governed by Division 9 [Com. Code §

a. Determine whether transaction will involve:

(1) Security interest created by contract, in [Com. Code § 9109(a)(1); see § 42.10[4]]:

(a) Personal property.

(b) Fixtures.

(2) Security interest arising under [Com. Code § 9109(a)(1); see Com. Code § 9110] (special rules applicable to security interests arising under Divisions 2 or 10); see also § 42.10[4]:

(a) Com. Code § 2401 (seller's reservation of title to goods).

(b) Com. Code § 2505 (seller's shipment of goods under reservation).

(c) Com. Code § 2711(3) (buyer's security interest in rejected goods).

(d) Com. Code § 10508(e) (lessee's security interest in goods in lessee's possession).

(e) Com. Code § 4201 (agency status of collecting bank) or Com. Code § 5118 (issuer or nominated person's security interest).

(3) Agricultural lien [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(5) (definition)].

(4) Sale of accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, or promissory notes [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(2), (11), (61), (65) (definitions)].

(5) Consignment.

NOTE:

Many, but not all, "true" consignments (that is, bailments for the purpose of sale by the bailee) are security interests covered by Division 9 [see Com. Code § 9109(a)(4); Com. Code § 9101 (UCC Comment P 4a); see also Com. Code § 9102(a)(20) ("consignment" defined)]. If a transaction is a "sale or return" as defined in Com. Code § 2326(1)(b), it is not a consignment [see Com. Code § 9109 (UCC Comment P 6)].

b. Determine proper classification of collateral [see § 42.11].

NOTE:

The collateral in a secured transaction subject to Division 9 of the Commercial Code is the property subject to a security interest or agricultural lien [Com. Code § 9102(a)(12)]. The term includes proceeds to which a security interest attaches; accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, and promissory notes that have been sold; and goods that are the subject of a consignment [Com. Code § 9102(a)(12)]. With few exceptions (such as nonconsensual agricultural liens), Division 9 of the California Commercial Code applies only to consensual security interests in personal property [see Com. Code § 9109; Com. Code § 9109 (UCC Comment P 10); see § 42.10[4][a]].

Former Com. Code § 9102(1) (repealed eff. July 1, 2001) enumerated common categories of collateral in personal property, including goods [see P 1, below], documents [see P 2, below], instruments (which, under the expanded scope of revised Division 9, include promissory notes) [see P 3, below], accounts [see P 4, below], chattel paper [see P 5, below], and general intangibles (which, under the expanded scope of revised Division 9, include payment intangibles and software) [see P 6, below]. The term "collateral" now also explicitly includes proceeds subject to a security interest [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(12); § 42.10[1]] and property subject to an agricultural lien [see Com. Code § 9109(a)(2)]. Although the revised basic scope provision, Com. Code § 9109(a)(1), no longer includes the above list of common categories, "no change in meaning is intended" by its omission [see Com. Code § 9109(a)(1) (UCC Comment P 2)], and the list provides a useful framework to discuss the types of collateral in personal property that commonly give rise to security interests. For further discussion and definitions, see §§ 42.10, 42.11.

(1) Determine whether collateral is goods, such as [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(44); see also § 42.11[2][a]]:

NOTE:

"Goods" includes all things that are movable at the time that the security interest attaches [Com. Code § 9102(a)(44); see § 42.12 (attachment)]. The term includes fixtures; standing timber that is to be cut and removed under a conveyance or contract for sale; the unborn young of animals; crops grown, growing, or to be grown, even if the crops are produced on trees, vines, or bushes; and manufactured homes [Com. Code § 9102(a)(44)]. The term also includes a computer program embedded in goods and any supporting information provided in connection with a transaction relating to the program, if the program customarily is considered part of the goods, or if by becoming the owner of the goods, a person acquires a right to use the program in connection with the goods [Com. Code § 9102(a)(44)]. For further discussion of goods, including classes of goods, refer to § 42.11[2][a].

"Goods" does not include a computer program embedded in goods that consist solely of the medium in which the program is embedded [Com. Code § 9102(a)(44)]. The term also does not include accounts, chattel paper, commercial tort claims, deposit accounts, documents, general intangibles, instruments, investment property, letter-of-credit rights, letters of credit, money, or oil, gas, or other minerals before extraction [Com. Code § 9102(a)(44)].

(a) Fixtures [see Com. Code § 9334(a)].

(b) Standing timber that is to be cut and removed under a conveyance or contract for sale.

(c) "Farm products," including [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(34), (44)]:

NOTE:

Goods, other than standing timber, are "farm products" if the debtor is engaged in a farming operation with respect to the goods [Com. Code § 9102(a)(34)]. Goods that are farm products cannot be classified as inventory or equipment [Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 4a); see (P g), (P h), below].

- (i) Livestock, including unborn young of animals.
 - (ii) Crops grown, growing, or to be grown, even if the crops are produced on trees, vines, or bushes.
 - (iii) Aquatic goods produced in agricultural or farming operations.
 - (iv) Supplies used or produced in farming operation.
 - (v) Products of crops or livestock in their unmanufactured state.
- (d) Manufactured homes [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(53) (definition)].
- (e) Computer program embedded in goods and any supporting information provided in connection with transaction relating to the program.

NOTE:

A computer program embedded in goods and any supporting information are "goods" if the program customarily is considered part of the goods, or if by becoming the owner of the goods, a person acquires a right to use the program in connection with the goods [Com. Code § 9102(a)(44)].

- (f) Consumer goods.

NOTE:

"Consumer goods" are goods that are used or bought for use primarily for personal, family, or household purposes [Com. Code § 9102(a)(23); see Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 4a)].

- (g) Inventory.

NOTE:

"Inventory" means goods, other than farm products, that are leased by a person as lessor; held by a person for sale or lease or to be furnished under a contract of service; furnished by a person under a contract of service; or consist of raw materials, work in process, or materials used or consumed in a business (for example, fuel used in operations) [Com. Code § 9102(a)(48); see Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 4a); see also United States v. Handy and Harman (9th Cir. 1984) 750 F.2d 777, 781 n.2 (decided under former law)]. Implicit in the definition is the criterion that the sales or lease are or will be in the ordinary course of business. For example, machinery used in manufacturing is equipment, not inventory, even though it is the debtor's policy to sell machinery when it becomes obsolete or worn [Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 4a)].

- (h) Equipment.

NOTE:

"Equipment" includes goods that are not inventory, farm products, or consumer goods [Com. Code § 9102(a)(33)]. In general, goods used in a business are equipment if they are fixed assets or have, as identifiable units, a relatively long period of use. However, goods are inventory, even though not held for sale or lease, if they are used up or consumed in a short period of time in producing a product or providing a service [Com. Code § 9102].

(UCC Comment P 4a); see P g, above].

(i) Accessions [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(1) (definition)].

(2) Determine whether collateral is document, including [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(30) (definition); see also § 42.11[2][c]]:

(a) Document of title, such as [Com. Code § 1201(b)(16)]:

NOTE:

In order to be a document of title, the document must purport to be issued by or addressed to a bailee and purport to cover goods in the bailee's possession that either are identified or are fungible portions of an identified mass [Com. Code § 1201(b)(16); see Com. Code § 7102(a)(9) ("person entitled under the document" defined)].

(i) Bill of lading.

(ii) Dock warrant.

(iii) Dock receipt.

(iv) Warehouse receipt.

(v) Order for delivery of goods.

(vi) Any other document that in course of business or financing is treated as adequately evidencing that person in possession of it is entitled to receive, hold, and dispose of document and goods it covers.

(b) Warehouse receipt issued by owner of goods [see Com. Code § 7201(b)].

(3) Determine whether collateral is instrument, including [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(47) (definition); see § 42.11[2][d]]:

NOTE:

Under Division 9, an "instrument" includes a negotiable instrument, such as a note, draft, check, certificate of deposit, or demand draft [Com. Code § 9102(a)(47); see Com. Code § 3104 ("negotiable instrument" defined)]. Under this division, an instrument also includes any other writing that evidences a right to the payment of money that is transferable by delivery with any necessary endorsement or assignment in the ordinary course of business and that is not itself a security agreement or lease [Com. Code § 9102(a)(47)]. The term does not include investment property [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(49) (definition)], letters of credit [see Com. Code § 5102(a)(10) (definition)], or writings that evidence a right to payment arising out of the use of a credit card or a charge card or information contained on or for use with the card [Com. Code § 9102(a)(47)].

Except in the case of chattel paper [see [5], below], the fact that an instrument is itself secured by a security interest or an encumbrance on property does not change the character of the instrument as such or convert the combination of instrument and collateral into a separate classification of personal property [Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 5c)].

(a) Negotiable instrument, such as [see Com. Code § 3104]:

- (i) Draft.
- (ii) Check.
- (iii) Certificate of deposit.
- (iv) Note.
- (v) Demand draft.

(b) Other writing evidencing right to payment of money that is, in ordinary course of business, transferred by delivery with any necessary indorsement and assignment and that is not itself security agreement or lease.

(c) Promissory note.

NOTE:

A "promissory note" is an instrument that evidences a promise to pay a monetary obligation, does not evidence an order to pay, and does not contain an acknowledgment by a bank that the bank has received for deposit a sum of money or funds [Com. Code § 9102(a)(65)]. The definition explicitly excludes obligations arising out of "orders" to pay (checks, for example), as opposed to "promises" to pay [Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 5c); see Com. Code § 3104 (definitions)]. Revised Division 9 includes the sale of promissory notes within its scope [see Com. Code § 9109(a)(3); see also § 42.11[2][c]].

(4) Determine whether collateral is account or accounts, that is, a right to payment of a monetary obligation, whether or not earned by performance [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(2); see also § 42.11[2][e]]:

- (a) For property that has been or is to be sold, leased, licensed, assigned, or otherwise disposed of.
- (b) For services rendered or to be rendered.
- (c) For a policy of insurance issued or to be issued, e.g., health care receivables.

NOTE:

A health care insurance receivable is an interest in, or claim under, an insurance policy that is a right to payment of a monetary obligation for health care goods or services provided or to be provided [Com. Code § 9102(a)(46)]. Although health care receivables are accounts, the rules generally applicable to account debtors on accounts do not apply to insurers obligated on health care insurance receivables [see Com. Code §§ 9404(c), 9405(d), 9406(i)].

- (d) For a secondary obligation incurred or to be incurred.
- (e) For energy provided or to be provided.
- (f) For the use or hire of vessel under charter or other contract.

(g) Arising out of use of credit or charge card or information contained on or for use with that card.

(h) As winnings in lottery or other game of chance operated, sponsored, or authorized by state, or state governmental unit.

(i) As-extracted collateral.

NOTE:

"As-extracted collateral" refers to minerals and related accounts [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(6) (definition); Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 4c, Examples 6, 7)]. Division 9 contains special rules for perfecting security interests in minerals that attach on extraction and in accounts resulting from the sale of minerals at the wellhead or minehead [see, e.g., Com. Code § 9301(4) (perfection and priority); Com. Code § 9501(a)(1)(A) (place of filing); Com. Code § 9502 (contents of filing statement); Com. Code § 9519(d), (e) (indexing of records)].

(5) Determine whether collateral is chattel paper [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(11) (definition); see § 42.11[2][ff]], including:

NOTE:

"Chattel paper" consists of a monetary obligation together with a security interest in or a lease of specific goods if the obligation and security interest or lease are evidenced by a "record or records" [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(11)]. Chattel paper also includes records that evidence a monetary obligation and security interest in specific goods and software used in the goods or in specific goods and license of software used in the goods, or a monetary obligation together with a lease of specific goods and license of software used in the goods [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(11)]. "Monetary obligation" in this context means a monetary obligation secured by the goods or owed under a lease of the goods; it includes a monetary obligation with respect to software used in the goods [Com. Code § 9102(a)(11)].

Chattel paper typically is created when a secured party wishes to borrow against or sell the security agreement along with his or her interest in the collateral received from the debtor [see former Com. Code § 9105 (UCC Comment PP 3, 4); see also Com. Code § 9101 (UCC Comment P 1) (noting utility of former Division 9 Comments to explain background and general conceptual approach of revised Division 9)].

(a) "Tangible chattel paper" [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(78) (definition)].

(b) "Electronic chattel paper" [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(31) (definition)].

NOTE:

The concept of an electronic medium is meant to be construed liberally to include electrical, digital, magnetic, optical, electromagnetic, or any other current or similar emerging technologies [see Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 5b)]. Further, the definition of electronic chattel paper does not dictate that it be created in any particular way. For example, a record consisting of a tangible writing may be converted to electronic form by creating electronic images of a signed writing. Or records may be created and executed in electronic form, for example, when a lessee authenticates an electronic record of a lease that is then stored in electronic form [Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 5b)].

(6) Determine whether collateral is general intangible [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(42) (definition); see also § 42.11[2][g]], including:

NOTE:

"General intangible" is the residual category of personal property that is not included in the other defined types of collateral [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(42); Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 5d)].

(a) Things in action.

(b) Payment intangibles.

NOTE:

A "payment intangible" is a general intangible under which the account debtor's principal obligation is monetary [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(61)]. Even though almost any intangible right could give rise to payment of money if the account debtor were in breach of its obligation, the term payment intangible embraces only those general intangibles "under which the account debtor's principal obligation is a monetary obligation" [Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 5d) (emphasis in original; discussing how to classify intangible collateral)]. The sale of a payment intangible is subject to Division 9 [see Com. Code § 9109(a)(3)].

(c) Software.

(d) Any personal property, including things in action, other than accounts, chattel paper, commercial tort claims, deposit accounts, documents, goods, instruments, investment property, letter-of-credit rights, letters of credit, money, and oil, gas, or other minerals before extraction.

NOTE:

Examples are various categories of intellectual property and the right to payment of a loan of funds that is not evidenced by chattel paper or an instrument [Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 5d)].

(7) Determine whether collateral is of type not listed in PP b(1)-(6), above, such as:

(a) Commercial tort claims [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(13) (definition)].

(b) Deposit accounts [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(29) (definition)].

(c) Letter-of-credit rights [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(51) (definition)].

NOTE:

Commercial tort claims, deposit accounts, and letter-of-credit rights [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(13), (29), (51) (definitions)], which are excluded from the definition of general intangibles, are each separate types of collateral [see Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 5d)]. One important consequence of this exclusion is that tortfeasors (commercial tort claims), banks (deposit accounts), and persons obligated on letters of credit (letter-of-credit rights) are not "account debtors," having the rights and obligations set forth in Com. Code §§ 9404, 9405, and 9406, governing assignment and discharge of account debtors [see Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 5d); see also Com. Code § 9108 (requiring greater specificity of description in security agreement for these types of collateral)].

(d) Proceeds subject to a security interest [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(12); § 42.10[1]].

(e) Property subject to an agricultural lien [see Com. Code § 9109(a)(2)].

c. Determine whether contemplated transaction is subject to any of following conditions that exclude it from coverage of Division 9 of Commercial Code [Com. Code § 9109(c); see § 42.10[4][b]]:

NOTE:

An excluded transaction or interest can serve as collateral in a subsequent secured transaction that is subject to Division 9 [see Com. Code § 9109(b); see also § 42.10[4][b]].

(1) Statute, regulation, or treaty of the United States that preempts Division 9.

(2) Rights of a transferee beneficiary or nominated person under letter of credit that are independent and superior under Com. Code § 5114.

d. Determine whether contemplated transaction or interest is any one of following, to which Division 9 does not apply [see Com. Code § 9109(d)]:

NOTE:

An excluded transaction or interest can serve as collateral in a subsequent secured transaction that is subject to Division 9 [see Com. Code § 9109(b); see also § 42.10[4][b]].

(1) Landlord's lien, other than an agricultural lien.

(2) Lien, other than agricultural lien, given by statute or other rule of law for services or materials.

NOTE:

However, Com. Code § 9333 applies with respect to priority of the lien [see Com. Code § 9109(d)(2)].

(3) Assignment of claim for wages, salary, or other compensation of an employee.

(4) Sale of accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, or promissory notes as part of sale of business out of which they arose.

(5) Assignment of accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, or promissory notes which is for purpose of collection only.

(6) Assignment of right to payment under contract to assignee that is also obligated to perform under the contract.

(7) Assignment of single account, payment intangible, or promissory note to assignee in full or partial satisfaction of preexisting indebtedness.

(8) Any loan made by insurance company pursuant to provisions of policy or contract issued by it and on sole security of that policy or contract.

(9) Assignment of right represented by judgment, other than judgment taken on right to payment that was collateral.

(10) Right of recoupment or setoff, provided that both of following apply:

(a) Com. Code § 9340 applies with respect to effectiveness of rights of recoupment or setoff against deposit accounts; and

(b) Com. Code § 9404 applies with respect to account debtor's defenses or claims.

(11) Creation or transfer of interest in or lien on real property, including lease or rents thereunder, except to extent that provision is made for each of following:

(a) Liens on real property in Com. Code §§ 9203 and 9308.

(b) Fixtures in Com. Code § 9334.

(c) Fixture filings in Com. Code §§ 9501, 9502, 9512, 9516, and 9519.

(d) Security agreements covering personal and real property in Com. Code § 9604.

(12) Assignment of claim arising in tort, other than commercial tort claim.

NOTE:

However, in this circumstance, Com. Code §§ 9315 and 9322 apply with respect to proceeds and priorities in proceeds [Com. Code § 9109(d)(12); see § 42.15[3]].

(13) Assignment of deposit account in consumer transaction.

NOTE:

However, in this circumstance, Com. Code §§ 9315 and 9322 apply with respect to proceeds and priorities in proceeds [Com. Code § 9109(d)(13); see § 42.15[3]].

(14) Any security interest created by assignment of benefits of any public construction contract under Sts. & Hy. Code § 5000 et seq. (Improvement Act, Division 7).

(15) Transition property, as defined in Pub. Util. Code § 840(g)(1), except to extent that Division 9 provisions are referred to in Pub. Util. Code § 840 et seq. (Article 5.5).

(16) Recovery property, as defined in Pub. Util. Code § 848, except to extent that Division 9 provisions are referred to in Pub. Util. Code § 848 et seq. (Article 5.6).

(17) Claim or right of employee or employee's dependents to receive workers' compensation under Lab. Code § 50 et seq. or Lab. Code § 3200 et seq.

(18) Transfer by government or governmental unit.

2. Determine whether contemplated transaction is subject to other laws in addition to Division 9 of California Commercial Code [see § 42.10[5]].

a. Determine whether any aspect of contemplated transaction is governed by federal statute, such as:

(1) Any applicable rule of law that establishes rule for consumers that is different Division 9 rules [Com. Code § 9201(b)].

NOTE:

For example, a secured transaction may be subject to the federal Consumer Credit Protection Act, which includes the Truth in Lending Act [15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.; see Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales]. Under the Truth in Lending Act, a creditor who regularly extends or offers consumer credit that is payable by agreement in four or more installments or subject to a finance charge must make certain disclosures concerning those transactions [see 15 U.S.C. § 1604; see also 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.2(a)(17), 226.6-226.9, 226.17, 226.18]. The Truth in Lending Act, however, is inapplicable to extensions of credit for agricultural purposes [15 U.S.C. § 1603(1)].

A secured transaction in consumer goods may also be subject to, for example, the Federal Trade Commission Act [15 U.S.C. § 41 et seq.]. Under this act, it is an unfair or deceptive act or practice for a seller to take a consumer credit contract or to accept the proceeds of any purchase money loan in connection with any sale or lease of goods or services, unless the consumer credit contract includes a notice that the holder of the contract is subject to all the claims and defenses that the debtor could assert against the seller [16 C.F.R. § 433.2; see 15 U.S.C. § 45].

(2) Securities laws [see 15 U.S.C. § 77b(a)(3); see also Ch. 6, Securities Regulation Issues; Ch. 6K, Nonissuer Transactions in Investment Securities].

(3) Any federal statute, regulation, or treaty that provides for adequate system of filing or registration in lieu of perfection under Division 9 [see Com. Code § 9311(a)(1); see, e.g., 49 U.S.C. § 44107 (recordation, conveyances, leases, and security interests in civil aircraft of the United States); see also Com. Code § 9311(d) (exception for inventory covered by certificate of title); § 42.121, P 14].

NOTE:

Com. Code § 9311(a)(1) explicitly provides that the filing requirement of Division 9 defers only to federal statutes, regulations, or treaties whose requirements for a security interest's obtaining priority over rights of a lien creditor with respect to the property preempt the requirements of Com. Code § 9310(a) that a financing statement be filed to perfect all security interests and agricultural liens [Com. Code § 9311(a)(1)]. Compliance with the requirements of any such statute, regulation, or treaty for obtaining priority over the rights of lien creditor is equivalent to the filing of a financing statement under Division 9 [Com. Code § 9311(b)]. With few exceptions, a security interest in property subject to any such statute, regulation, or treaty may be perfected only by compliance with those requirements; filing under this division is not an alternative. A security interest so perfected remains perfected despite a change in the use or transfer of possession of the collateral [Com. Code § 9311(b); see also Com. Code §§ 9311(d), 9313, 9316(d), (e) (exceptions)].

The Assignment of Claims Act of 1940 [see 31 U.S.C. § 3727; 41 U.S.C. § 15] does not preempt the Division 9 provisions concerning perfection. An assignee of a claim against the United States may benefit from compliance with the Assignment of Claims Act. However, regardless of whether the assignee complies with that act, the assignee must file under Division 9 to perfect its security interest against creditors and transferees of an assignor [Com. Code § 9311 (UCC Comment P 2)].

b. Determine whether contemplated transaction is subject to other applicable California laws relating to consumers or as specified in Com. Code § 9201, such as [Com. Code § 9201(b); see Com. Code § 10104 (personal property leases subject to other statutes)]:

NOTE:

The following statutes generally apply along with Division 9 of the California Commercial Code. To the extent of any conflict, however, these statutes take precedence over Division 9 [Com. Code § 9201(b), (c)].

(1) Unruh Act, governing retail installment sales [Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.; see Ch. 45, Consumer and Installment Loans and Credit Sales; Ch. 46, Credit Card and Other Open-End Transactions].

(2) Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. (regulation of unfair competition; enforcement).

(3) Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et seq. (advertising).

(4) Automobile Sales Finance Act (Rees-Levering Act) [Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.; see Ch. 47, Automotive Financing].

(5) Civil Code, Division Three, Part Four, Obligations Arising from Particular Transactions [Civ. Code § 1738 et seq.], with respect to the applicable provisions relating to, for example, consignment of fine art, credit cards, credit card disclosure and charge card disclosures, layaway practices, consumer credit reports, reporting agencies, computed interest, finance charges, credit sales, contracts for various lessons and services, creditor remedies, deposits, loans, and liens [see Com. Code § 9201(b)].

(6) Industrial Loan Law [Fin. Code § 18000 et seq.].

(7) Pawnbroker Law [Fin. Code § 21000 et seq.; see Ch. 102B, Pawnbrokers, Personal Property Brokers, and Secondhand Goods Dealers].

(8) California Finance Lenders Law [Fin. Code § 22000 et seq.; see Ch. 102B, Pawnbrokers, Personal Property Brokers, and Secondhand Goods Dealers].

(9) Mobilehomes-Manufactured Housing Act of 1980 [Health & Safety Code § 18000 et seq.; see Ch. 39, Mobilehome Parks, Ch. 40, Mobilehomes].

(10) Any applicable consumer protection statute, regulation, or law.

c. Determine whether transaction is governed by another division of Commercial Code, such as [see Com. Code § 9110; see § 42.12[3][c]]:

(1) Division on sales [see Com. Code § 2101 et seq.].

(2) Division on leases [see Com. Code § 10101 et seq.; see also Com. Code §§ 1201(b)(35), 1203].

d. Determine whether perfection of security interests in this transaction is governed by authority other than Commercial Code, such as [see Com. Code § 9311]:

(1) California certificate of title statutes [see Com. Code § 9311(a)(2); see also Com. Code § 9311(d) (exception for inventory covered by certificate of title)]:

(a) Vehicle Code provisions that require registration of vehicle or vessel [see Veh. Code §§ 5600, 6300, 6301; Ch. 102D, Registration and Transfer of Vehicles, Vessels, and Aircraft].

(b) Health and Safety Code provision that require registration of mobilehome or commercial coach [see Com. Code § 9311(a)(2), (3); see Health & Safety Code § 18075 et seq.; see Ch. 39, Mobilehome Parks, Ch. 40, Mobilehomes].

NOTE:

However, during any period in which collateral (i.e., the mobilehome or commercial coach) is inventory, the filing provisions of Com. Code § 9501 et seq. apply to a security interest in that collateral [Com. Code § 9311(a)(2)(B)].

(c) Health and Safety Code provisions that require registration of all interests in approved air contaminant emission reductions [see Health & Safety Code §§ 40709-40713].

(2) Another jurisdiction's certificate of title statute that provides for security interest to be indicated on certificate as condition or result of security interest's obtaining priority over rights of lien creditor with respect to property at issue [see Com. Code § 9311(a)(3); see also Com. Code § 9311(d) (exception for inventory covered by certificate of title)].

3. Determine whether secured transaction is multiple state transaction [see Com. Code §§ 9307 (location of debtor), 9316 (continuing perfection of security interest following change in governing law)].

NOTE:

If the transaction has a reasonable relation to California and also to another state or nation, the parties' agreement may specify the law that will govern their rights and duties [Com. Code § 1301(a)]. However, Com. Code §§ 9301-9307 govern perfection, the effect of perfect or nonperfection, and the priority of security interests and agricultural liens; and a contrary agreement is effective only to the extent permitted by those provisions [Com. Code § 1301(b)].

PART III. TRANSACTION GUIDE

B. Preliminary Determinations

19-42 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 42.111

AUTHOR: by Ann S. Manheimer, J.D.

§ 42.111 Rights of Third Persons in Collateral

1. Determine whether any third person has current security interest in proposed collateral.

a. Review copies of current security agreements and UCC financing statements supplied by client [see § 42.101, P 10].

b. Obtain official information concerning current UCC financing statements covering collateral.

(1) Determine which filing officers should have received any previous financing statements covering collateral [see Com. Code § 9501(a) (filing office); see also § 42.121, P 13].

(2) Search records for current UCC financing statements covering collateral.

(a) Search each filing officer's index for financing statements naming debtor [see Com. Code § 9519(c), (d) (indexing records); see also Com. Code § 9514 (assignment of record of security interest)].

(b) Request filing officer's certificate showing current financing statements naming debtor [see Com. Code § 9523(c)].

NOTE:

If the search is being requested at the time a financing statement (Form UCC-1) is being filed, the search request may be made directly on the UCC-1 form by including the appropriate information [for discussion, see § 42.211[c]]. If the search is not being requested at the time a financing statement covering the debtor in question is being filed, the request is made on standard Form UCC-11. For detailed information on filing Form UCC-11, and an illustration of the Secretary of State's official form and instructions, see § 42.216.

The filing office may communicate information in any medium. However, if requested, the filing office must communicate the information by issuing its written certificate [Com. Code § 9523(d)]. The filing office must communicate the information required by statute [see Com. Code § 9523(a)-(d)] no later than two business days after receiving the request [Com. Code § 9523(e)].

c. If proposed collateral is deposit account, ascertain from bank or other organization with whom deposit account is maintained if notice of other security interest has been received [see Com. Code § 9310(b)(8); see also Com. Code § 9104 (control of deposit account)].

d. If proposed collateral is interest in, or claim under, insurance policy, ascertain from insurer who issued policy whether notice of other security interest has been received [see Com. Code § 9310(b)(11); see also Com. Code § 9312(b)(4) (perfection by written notice to insurer)].

e. If proposed collateral is investment property [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(49) ("investment property" defined)], ascertain whether security interest has been perfected without filing [see under Com. Code § 9309(10), (11) (perfection on attachment)].

f. If proposed collateral is automobile or boat not held in inventory, obtain and inspect registration from Department of Motor Vehicles or certificate of documentation from Coast Guard [see Ch. 102D, Registration and Transfer of Vehicles, Vessels, and Aircraft].

g. If proposed collateral is aircraft, obtain and inspect conveyance or instrument affecting title from Federal Aviation Administration Aircraft Registry [see Ch. 102D, Registration and Transfer of Vehicles, Vessels, and Aircraft].

h. Ascertain who has possession of proposed collateral.

(1) Ascertain whether collateral is in possession of any third person holding security interest [see Com. Code §§ 9312(c), (d), 9313(c)].

(2) If proposed collateral is proceeds in possession of debtor, ascertain whether debtor has had possession for fewer than 21 days [see Com. Code § 9315(d)].

(3) If proposed collateral is certificated security, negotiable document or instrument, or certain goods in possession of bailee, ascertain whether bailee has had possession for less than 20 days [see Com. Code § 9312(e), (f)].

NOTE:

A security interest in tangible negotiable documents, goods, instruments, money, tangible chattel paper, or certificated securities may be perfected [see § 42.14] by delivering possession of the collateral to the secured party [see Com. Code § 9313(a), (b)]. Perfection of a security interest in goods in the possession of a bailee who has issued a negotiable document of title covering the goods may be perfected by perfecting a security interest in the document [Com. Code § 9312(c)(1)]. Perfection of a security interest in goods in the possession of a third party who has issued a nonnegotiable document covering the goods may be perfected by issuance of a document in the name of the secured party, or the bailee's receipt of notification of the secured party's interest, or filing [see Com. Code § 9312(d)]. Therefore, when a third party has possession, a conflicting security interest ordinarily will be readily apparent. However, in certain circumstances, collateral may be in the temporary possession of a third party who is not the secured party's agent [see Com. Code § 9313(c)]. For further coverage of perfection by possession, see §§ 42.14[3][e], 42.121 P 8.

i. If third party holds current security interest in proposed collateral, determine whether, and on what terms, he or she is willing to subordinate interest to that of prospective secured party [see Com. Code § 9339].

2. Determine whether any third person is likely to claim any interest in collateral in future.

a. Ascertain whether any person is in position to claim lien on collateral, such as:

(1) Persons providing materials or services in connection with collateral [see Civ. Code § 2872 et seq. (liens)].

(2) Warehouseman's lien [see Com. Code §§ 7209, 7210].

(3) Creditor who effects levy of writ of execution after judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 699.010-701.830].

(4) Creditor who obtains lien by attachment other than filing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.500(a)].

b. Ascertain whether debtor plans or has agreed to transfer collateral to any third person.

3. Determine whether:

a. Debtor is insolvent or has begun or plans to begin bankruptcy proceedings [see 11 U.S.C. § 301].

NOTE:

Under some conditions, the debtor's trustee in bankruptcy can avoid a transfer of a security interest that favors the secured party over other creditors of the debtor [see, e.g., 11 U.S.C. §§ 544-548]. For further discussion, see § 42.17[1].

b. Any creditor has begun or is likely to begin bankruptcy proceedings against debtor [see 11 U.S.C. § 303].

§ 42.120 Attachment of Security Interest

NOTE:

A security interest attaches and is enforceable against the debtor and third parties with respect to the collateral only if specified conditions are satisfied [Com. Code § 9203(b); see Com. Code § 9203(c)-(i) (exceptions)]. For a list of these conditions, see § 42.12[1]. Attachment occurs automatically as soon as these events have taken place, unless an agreement expressly postpones the time of attachment [Com. Code § 9203(a); see, e.g., Bank of the West v. Commercial Credit Fin. Serv., Inc., 852 F.2d 1162 (9th Cir. [Cal.] 1988) 852 F.2d 1162, 1166-1167 (creditor had no interest in inventory and accounts until debtor acquired business, decided under prior law)]. However, the order in which the events establishing the attachment of a security interest occur is immaterial [Komas v. Future Systems, Inc. (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 809, 813, 139 Cal. Rptr. 669 (decided under prior law)].

Special provisions govern attachment when the collateral is securities [see Com. Code § 9206], when a collecting bank holds the security interest [see Com. Code § 4210], when an issuer or nominated person has a security interest in a document presented under a letter of credit [see Com. Code § 5118], when a security interest arises under Com. Code § 2101 et seq., governing sales, or under Com. Code § 10101 et seq., governing personal property leases [Com. Code § 9203(c); see Com. Code § 9110 (security interests arising under Commercial Code Divisions 2 and 10)]. These provisions are discussed in § 42.12[3]. Additional rules exist for "supporting obligations" [see Com. Code § 9203(f); § 42.12[2][e]], transfer of an obligation [see Com. Code § 9203(g); § 42.12[2][f]], and investment property [see Com. Code § 9203(h), (i); § 42.12[3]].

For discussion of agricultural liens, see § 42.121 NOTE.

1. Draft security agreement, and have debtor and secured party sign agreement [Com. Code §

9203(b)(3)(A); see §§ 42.12[2], 42.130, 42.200-42.203].

2. Have secured party give value or performance required under security agreement [see Com. Code § 9203(b)(1)].

3. Have debtor take necessary steps to obtain rights in collateral or power to transfer those rights to secured party [see Com. Code § 9203(b)(2); see also Bakersfield Westar Ambulance, Inc. v. Parker (9th Cir. 1997) 123 F.3d 1243, 1246-1247 (bank may obtain valid security interest in one of its own deposit accounts under former Com. Code § 9203(1)(c) (repealed July 1, 2001), now see Com. Code § 9203(b)(2) (security interest is not enforceable and does not attach unless, among other things, debtor have rights in collateral); bank's interest attaches to intangible personal property right or "general intangible" of depositor, not bank's own property, decided under former law)].

§ 42.121 Perfection of Security Interest or Agricultural Lien

NOTE:

With specified exceptions, a security interest is perfected if it has attached [see § 42.12] and the secured party has taken all the procedural steps required to perfect the interest [Com. Code § 9308(a); see Com. Code §§ 9310-9316 (requirements for perfection)]. If the procedural steps are taken before the security interest attaches, as when the secured party files a financing statement before giving value or before the debtor acquires rights in the collateral, the interest is perfected at the time of attachment [see Com. Code § 9308(a)].

An agricultural lien is perfected if it has become effective and all of the applicable requirements for perfection in Com. Code § 9310 have been satisfied [Com. Code § 9308(b)]. If the applicable requirements are met before the agricultural lien becomes effective, the lien is perfected when it becomes effective [Com. Code § 9308(b)].

1. Advise party that security interest may be perfected:

- a. By filing [see PP 10, 13 below].
- b. Automatically on attachment [see P 2, below].
- c. On occurrence of event other than filing or attachment [see PP 3-5, below].
- d. Under law of another jurisdiction [see P14, below].
- e. By another method, such as by secured party taking possession or control [see PP 8, 9,

2. Advise party that security interest is perfected automatically on attachment [see Com. Code § 9310(b)(2), (9); see also Com. Code § 9315(a)(2)]:

a. If security interest is purchase money security interest in consumer goods [see Com. Code § 9309(1); see also Com. Code § 9311(b) (exception for consumer goods subject to certain statutes or treaties)].

b. If security interest is assignment of accounts or payment intangibles that does not by itself or in conjunction with other assignments to same assignee transfer significant part of assignor's outstanding accounts or payment intangibles [see Com. Code § 9309(2); see also Com. Code § 9102(a)(2) ("account" defined); Com. Code § 9102(a)(61) ("payment intangible" defined); Ch. 44, Accounts Receivable Financing and Factoring].

c. If security interest is sale of payment intangible [see Com. Code § 9309(3); see also Com. Code § 9102(a)(61) ("payment intangible" defined)].

d. If security interest is sale of promissory note [see Com. Code § 9309(4); see also Com. Code § 9102(a)(65) ("promissory note" defined)].

e. If security interest is created by assignment of health care insurance receivable to provider of health care goods or services [see Com. Code § 9309(5); see also Com. Code § 9102(a)(46) ("health care insurance receivable" defined)].

f. If security interest arises under Com. Code § 2401 (seller's reservation of title to goods), Com. Code § 2505 (seller's shipment of goods under reservation), Com. Code § 2711(3) (buyer's security interest in rejected goods), or under Com. Code § 10508(e) (lessee's security interest in goods in lessee's possession), until debtor obtains possession of collateral [see Com. Code § 9309(6)].

g. If security interest is that of collecting bank [see Com. Code § 9309(7); see also Com. Code § 4210 (security interest of collecting bank)].

h. If security interest is that of issuer or nominated person [see Com. Code § 9309(8); see also Com. Code § 5118 (security interest of issuer or nominated person)].

i. If security interest arises in delivery of financial asset [see Com. Code § 9309(9); see also Com. Code § 9206(c) (delivery of financial asset)].

j. If security interest is in investment property created by broker or securities intermediary [see Com. Code § 9309(10); see also Com. Code § 9102(a)(49) ("investment property" defined)].

NOTE:

Perfection of a security interest in a securities account also perfects the security interest in the security entitlements carried in the securities account [see Com. Code § 9308(f)].

k. If security interest is in commodity contract or commodity account created by commodity intermediary [see Com. Code § 9309(11); see also Com. Code § 9102(a)(14) ("commodity account" defined); Com. Code § 9102(a)(15) ("commodity contract" defined)].

NOTE:

Perfection of a security interest in a commodity account also perfects a security interest in the commodity contracts carried in the commodity account [Com. Code § 9308(g)].

l. If security interest is assignment for benefit of all creditors of transferor and subsequent transfers by assignee thereunder [see Com. Code § 9309(12)].

m. If security interest is created by an assignment of beneficial interest in decedent's estate [see Com. Code § 9309(13)].

n. If security interest is sale by individual of account that is a right to payment of lottery winnings or winnings in another game of chance [Com. Code § 9309(14)].

o. If security interest is interest in proceeds [see Com. Code § 9315(c) see also Com. Code § 9102(a)(64) ("proceeds" defined)].

3. Advise party that perfection of security interest in collateral also perfects security interest in collateral's supporting obligation [see Com. Code § 9308(d)].

4. Advise party that perfection of security interest in right to payment or performance also perfects security interest in security interest, mortgage, or other lien on personal or real property securing that right [see Com. Code § 9308(e)].

5. Advise party that security interest is temporarily perfected:

a. If security interest is in certificated securities, negotiable documents, or instruments, for 20 days from date of attachment, without filing, control, or possession, to extent that interest arises for new value given under authenticated security agreement [see Com. Code § 9310(b)(5); Com. Code § 9312(e); see also Com. Code § 9102(a)(57) ("new value" defined)].

b. If perfected security interest is in negotiable documents or goods in possession of bailee, other than one that has issued negotiable document for the goods, for 20 days, without filing, if secured party makes available to debtor goods, or documents representing goods, for either [see Com. Code § 9310(b)(4); Com. Code § 9312(f)]:

(1) Ultimate sale or exchange; or

(2) Loading, unloading, storing, shipping, transshipping, manufacturing, processing, or otherwise dealing with them preliminary to their sale or exchange.

c. If perfected security interest is in certificated security or instrument, for 20 days, without filing, if secured party delivers security certificate or instrument to debtor for either [see Com. Code § 9310(b)(5); Com. Code § 9312(g)]:

(1) Ultimate sale or exchange; or

(2) Presentation, collection, enforcement, renewal, or registration of transfer.

NOTE:

After the 20-day period specified in Com. Code § 9312(e), (f), or (g) [see PP a, b, c, above] expires, perfection depends upon compliance with this division [Com. Code § 9312(h)]. For a guide to perfecting beyond the 20-day grace period, see P 13, below.

d. If perfected security interest is in proceeds, for 20 days after security interest attaches to proceeds, unless any one of specified conditions is satisfied [see Com. Code § 9315(d)].

NOTE:

A perfected security interest in proceeds becomes unperfected on the 21st day after the security interest attaches to the proceeds unless any of the following conditions is satisfied [Com. Code § 9315(d)]:

- A filed financing statement covers the original collateral, the proceeds are collateral in which a security interest may be perfected by filing in the office in which the financing statement has been filed, and the proceeds are not acquired with cash proceeds [Com. Code § 9315(d)(1)];
- The proceeds are identifiable cash proceeds [Com. Code § 9315(d)(2)]; or
- The security interest in the proceeds is perfected other than under Com. Code § 9315(c) when the security interest attaches to the proceeds or within 20 days thereafter [Com. Code § 9315(d)(3); see Com. Code § 9315(c) (security interest in proceeds is perfected if security interest in original collateral was perfected)].

If a filed financing statement covers the original collateral, a security interest in proceeds that remains perfected under Com. Code § 9315(d)(1) [see list, above] becomes unperfected at the later of (1) the date when the effectiveness of the filed financing statement lapses or is terminated [see Com. Code § 9515 (lapse); Com. Code § 9513 (termination)]; or (2) the 21st day after the security interest attaches to the proceeds [Com. Code § 9315(e)].

6. Have secured party perfect security interest in accordance with any non-UCC provisions applicable to security interest, such as interests in [see Com. Code § 9311; see also § 42.110, P 2]:

a. Collateral governed by federal statute or treaty that provides for filing or registration [see Com. Code § 9311(a)(1), (b); § 42.110, P 2a; see also Ch. 102D, Registration and Transfer of Vehicles, Vessels, and Aircraft; but see Moldo v. Matso, Inc. (In re Cybernetic Servs.) (9th Cir. 2001) 252 F.3d 1039, 1059, decided under version of Division 9 in effect prior to July 1, 2001 (holder of security interest in patent is not required to record that interest with federal Patent and Trademark Office in order to perfect interest as against subsequent lien creditor)].

b. Vehicles or boats not held as inventory that must be registered under Vehicle Code [see Veh. Code §§ 4000 et seq., 9840 et seq.; see also 46 U.S.C. § 12101 et seq.].

NOTE:

For a detailed discussion of sales of motor vehicles, see Ch. 47, Automotive Financing and Vehicle Leasing. The transfer and registration of vehicles, aircraft, and boats are discussed in Ch. 102D, Registration and Transfer of Vehicles, Vessels, and Aircraft.

c. Mobilehomes or commercial coaches not held as inventory that must be registered under Health and Safety Code [see Health & Safety Code § 18000 et seq.].

NOTE:

The procedure for perfecting a security interest in a mobilehome is discussed in Ch. 39, Mobilehome Parks, and Ch. 40, Mobilehomes.

If the collateral is motor vehicles, boats, mobilehomes, or commercial coaches held as inventory, perfection of the security interest must be accomplished by filing a financing statement [Com. Code § 9311(a)(2)(B); Com. Code § 9311(d); see Com. Code § 9501 et seq. (filing) see P 13, below].

d. Certificate of title governed by statute of jurisdiction other than California that requires indication of security interest on certificate as condition of perfection [Com. Code § 9311(a)(3)].

e. Approved air contaminant emission reduction that must be registered under Health and Safety Code [Com. Code § 9311(a)(2)(C); see Health & Safety Code §§ 40709-40713].

7. Advise party that security interest will be perfected when notice of security interest is given in:

NOTE:

Purchase money security interests in inventory will achieve priority over earlier conflicting interests if all of the following conditions are satisfied: the security interest is perfected before the debtor obtains the inventory; the secured party gives authenticated notification to the holder of a conflicting security interests in the inventory; the holder receives the notification within five years before the debtor receives possession of the inventory; and the notification states that the person sending the notification has or expects to acquire a purchase money security interest from the debtor and describes the inventory [Com. Code § 9324(b); see § 42.211]. For a guide to procedures, see P 13b, below.

a. Goods in possession of bailee, excluding goods covered by a negotiable document [see Com. Code § 9312(d)(2)].

NOTE:

While goods are in the possession of a bailee that has issued a nonnegotiable document covering the goods, a security interest in the goods may be perfected by the issuance of a document in the name of the secured party, or by the bailee's receipt of notification of the secured party's interest [Com. Code § 9312(d)(1), (2)]. Perfection may also be achieved by filing as to the goods [Com. Code § 9312(d)(3)].

b. Any policy of insurance including unearned premiums [see Com. Code § 9310(b)(11); Com. Code § 9312(b)(4); see also Ch. 43, Commercial Loans].

NOTE:

Such a security interest may be perfect only by giving written notice of the security interest or claim to the insurer [Com. Code § 9312(b)(4)]. However, this rule providing for perfection by written notice does not apply to a health insurance receivable [Com. Code § 9312(b)(4); see also Com. Code § 9102(a)(46) ("health care insurance receivable" defined)]. A health insurance receivable may be perfected only as otherwise provided in Division 9 [Com. Code § 9312(b)(4); see P 2e, above].

8. Advise party that security interest will be perfected by secured party taking possession, without filing, if collateral is [see Com. Code § 9313(a)]:

- a. Tangible negotiable documents.

NOTE:

Tangible negotiable documents may be, and usually are, delivered to the secured party. The secured party's act of taking possession will suffice as a perfection step [see Com. Code § 9313(a)]. However, as is the case with tangible chattel paper [see P d, below], a security interest in a negotiable document may be perfected by filing [see Com. Code § 9312 (UCC Comment P 3)].

- b. Goods [see Com. Code §§ 9313(b), 9316(d)] (special rules relating to goods covered by certificate of title issued by state of California).

- c. Money.

- d. Tangible chattel paper.

9. Advise party that security interest will be perfected by secured party taking control, without filing, if collateral is [see Com. Code § 9314(a)]:

- a. Investment property [see Com. Code § 9106 (control)].
- b. Deposit accounts [see Com. Code § 9104 (control)].
- c. Letter-of-credit rights [see Com. Code § 9107 (control)].
- d. Electronic chattel paper [see Com. Code § 9105 (control)].
- e. Electronic documents of title [see Com. Code § 7106 (control)].

10. Advise party that security interest or agricultural lien may be perfected by filing [see P 13, below], if collateral is [see Com. Code § 9312(a)]:

NOTE:

Perfection by filing does not protect the secured party against levies on accounts under Code Civ. Proc. § 488.470, which are effected by notice to the account debtor [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.470; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 488.500 (creation, duration, scope, and priority of attachment lien)]. The secured party should, therefore, consider requiring the debtor to warrant that there are no levies.

- a. Chattel paper.

- b. Negotiable Document.

NOTE:

Perfection by filing does not limit the rights of a holder in due course of a negotiable instrument, a holder to which a negotiable document of title has been negotiated, or a protected purchaser of a security [see Com. Code § 9331(a)].

- c. Instrument.

d. Investment property.

e. Farm products subject to agricultural lien [see Com. Code §§ 9308(b), 9310(a); see Com. Code § 9102(a)(5) ("agricultural lien" defined)].

11. If secured party will perfect security interest by taking possession of collateral:

a. Have secured party take possession of collateral [see Com. Code § 9313; see also P 8, above].

b. Advise secured party of duty to use reasonable care in custody and preservation of collateral [Com. Code § 9207(a); see Com. Code § 9207(d) (exception, in certain circumstances, if secured party is seller of accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, or promissory notes or consignor)].

NOTE:

Unless otherwise agreed, for a secured party in possession of chattel paper or an instrument [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(11), (47) (definitions)], reasonable care includes taking necessary steps to preserve rights against prior parties [Com. Code § 9207(a)].

c. Advise parties that:

NOTE:

Paragraphs (1)-(7), below, do not apply if the secured party is a buyer of accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, or promissory notes or a consignor [Com. Code § 9207(d)(2)].

(1) Debtor will be liable for all reasonable expenses (including taxes and insurance premiums) incurred by secured party in custody, preservation, use, and operation of collateral [see Com. Code § 9207(b)(1)].

(2) Debtor bears any risk of loss or damage not covered by insurance, unless loss is caused by secured party's failure to meet certain obligations [see Com. Code § 9207(b)(2)].

(3) Secured party may use or operate collateral to [see Com. Code § 9207(b)(4)]:

(a) Preserve collateral or its value.

(b) As permitted by court order.

(c) Except in case of consumer goods, in manner and to extent agreed by debtor.

(4) Secured party must keep collateral identifiable, except that fungible collateral may be commingled with secured party's property [see Com. Code § 9207(b)(3)].

NOTE:

"Fungible" collateral would be goods of which any unit, by nature or usage of trade, is the equivalent of any other like unit, or goods that by agreement are treated as equivalent [Com. Code § 1201(b)(18)].

(5) Secured party may hold as additional security any proceeds, except money or funds, received from collateral [see Com. Code § 9207(c)(1)].

(6) Secured party must apply money or funds received from collateral to reduce secured obligation, unless remitted to debtor [see Com. Code § 9207(c)(2)].

(7) Secured party may create a security interest in the collateral [see Com. Code § 9207(c)(3)].

12. If secured party will perfect security interest by taking control of collateral:

a. Have secured party take control of collateral [see Com. Code § 9314; see also P 9, above].

b. Advise parties that:

NOTE:

Paragraphs (1)-(3), below, do not apply if the secured party is a buyer of accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, or promissory notes or a consignor [Com. Code § 9207(d)(2)].

(1) Secured party may hold as additional security any proceeds, except money or funds, received from collateral [see Com. Code § 9207(c)(1)].

(2) Secured party must apply money or funds received from collateral to reduce secured obligation, unless remitted to debtor [see Com. Code § 9207(c)(2)].

(3) Secured party may create a security interest in the collateral [see Com. Code § 9207(c)(3)].

13. If secured party will perfect security interest by filing financing statement:

NOTE:

The filing of a financing statement serves as notice to others of the security interest [see Borg-Warner Acceptance Corp. v. Bank of Marin (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 286, 288-289, 111 Cal. Rptr. 361 (decided under prior law); see also § 42.14[3][b]].

If a security interest is created in goods that are, or are to become, fixtures, a financing statement that is filed as a fixture filing must satisfy conditions in addition to those required of a standard financing statement [see Com. Code § 9502(b); see also Com. Code § 9334 (priority of security interests in fixtures)].

a. Advise secured party to file financing statement [see Com. Code §§ 9501 et seq.; see also §§ 42.131, 42.211 (form)] as early as possible, without waiting for security interest to attach [see Com. Code § 9502(d)].

NOTE:

Generally, when there is more than one perfected security interest, the security interests rank according to time of filing or perfection. Priority dates from the earlier of the time a filing covering the collateral is first made or the security interest or agricultural lien is first perfected. [Com. Code § 9322(a)(1)]. The form of the claim to priority, that is, filing or perfection, will be based on the first filing or perfection, as long as there is no intervening period without filing or perfection [see Com. Code § 9322(a)(1); Com. Code § 9322 (UCC Comment P 4)]. "Filing" refers to filing an effective financial financing statement [see § 42.14[3][b][ii]]. "Perfection" refers to the acquisition of a perfected security interest, that is, one that has attached and to which any required perfection step has been taken [see Com. Code § 9308; 42.14]. For further discussion of priorities of perfected security interests and agricultural liens, see § 42.15.

b. If security transaction involves purchase money security interest in inventory:

NOTE:

If the purchase money secured party complies with the following procedure in addition to filing the financing statement, the purchase money security interest will have priority over a conflicting security interest in the same inventory, over a conflicting security interest in chattel paper or an instrument constituting proceeds of the inventory and in proceeds of the chattel paper [see Com. Code § 9330], and, except as otherwise provided [see Com. Code § 9327], in identifiable cash proceeds received on or before the delivery of the inventory to a buyer [Com. Code § 9324(b); see Com. Code § 9324(c) (limitations)]. To achieve priority, the purchase money security interest must be perfected when the debtor receives possession of the inventory [Com. Code § 9324(b)(1)].

(1) Prepare authenticated notice that [see Com. Code § 9324(b)(4); see § 42.210 (form)]:

(a) States that person sending notice has or expects to acquire purchase money security interest in debtor's inventory.

(b) Describes inventory by item or type.

(2) Send authenticated notification to all persons who have filed financing statements covering debtor's inventory [see Com. Code § 9324(c); see § 42.111]:

NOTE:

The holder of the conflicting security interest must receive the notification within five years before the debtor receives possession of the inventory [see Com. Code § 9324(b)(3)].

(a) Before date of filing made by purchase money secured party; or

(b) Before beginning of 20-day grace period in which purchase money security interest is temporarily perfected without filing or possession [see Com. Code § 9312(f)].

c. Prepare financing statement [see Com. Code § 9502 (contents); see also §§ 42.131, 42.211].

NOTE:

The requisites for a financing statement are discussed in §§ 42.131 and 42.211. As discussed in those sections, financing statements are filed on Form UCC-1. A financing statement covering as-extracted collateral (including oil, gas, and other minerals, and certain accounts arising out of sale at the minehead or wellhead) [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(6)], timber to be cut, or that is filed as a fixture filing must meet additional requirements [see Com. Code § 9502(b); see also §§ 42.131 P 6, 42.211[1][d]].

There is no requirement that the debtor's signature (or other evidence of authorization) appear on the filing statement [see Com. Code § 9502 (UCC Comment P 3); cf. former Com. Code § 9402(1)], except to the extent that filing offices may choose to employ authentication procedures in connection with electronic communications [Com. Code § 9101 (UCC Comment P 4h)]. Elimination of the signature requirement facilitates paperless filing [Com. Code § 9502 (UCC Comment P 3)]. For further discussion of authentication issues, see § 42.14[3][b].

d. File financing statement and pay required fees [see Com. Code § 9501 (filing office); Com. Code § 9525 (fees); see also § 42.211[1][j]] as follows:

NOTE:

A financing statement that substantially satisfies the requirements of Division 9 is effective, even if it has minor errors or omissions, unless the errors or omissions make the financing statement seriously misleading [Com. Code § 9506(a)]. For further discussion of these issues, see § 42.14[3][b][i].

The fee for filing and indexing a record is set forth in Gov. Code § 12194(a)-(d). The amount of the fee is based on the number of pages of the document being filed. There is no fee with respect to a record of a mortgage which is effective as a financing statement filed as a fixture filing or as a financing statement covering as-extracted collateral or timber to be cut [Com. Code § 9525(d); see Com. Code § 9502(c)]. However, the recording and satisfaction fees that otherwise would be applicable to the record of the mortgage apply [Com. Code § 9525(d)].

(1) At office designated for filing or recording of record of mortgage on related real property, if [see Com. Code § 9501(a)(1)]:

(a) Collateral is as-extracted collateral or timber to be cut; or

(b) Financing statement is filed as fixture filing and collateral is goods that are (or are to become) fixtures [see § 42.131 P 6].

NOTE:

However, a financing statement in which the collateral is goods that are or are to become fixtures that is not filed as a fixture filing must be filed at the Office of the California Secretary of State [Com. Code § 9501(a)(2)].

(2) At Office of California Secretary of State in all other cases [see Com. Code § 9501(a)(2)].

NOTE:

The Office of the Secretary of State is the designated filing location for a financing statement to perfect a security interest in collateral, including fixtures, of a transmitting utility [see Com. Code § 9501(b); see also Com. Code § 9102(a)(80) (definition)].

e. Advise secured party of duration of effectiveness of financing statement [see § 42.14[3][d]].

(1) With three exceptions [see PP 2-4, below], financing statement lapses after five years, unless [see Com. Code § 9515(a); see also § 42.140[2]]:

(a) Its effectiveness is continued [see Com. Code § 9515(d)]; or

(b) Terminated [see Com. Code § 9513 (duty of secured party to file or send termination statement)].

(2) If real estate mortgage is filed as fixture filing [see Com. Code § 9501(a)(1)(B); § 42.131 P 6], financing statement remains effective as fixture filing until mortgage is released, satisfied, or otherwise terminated [see Com. Code § 9515(g)].

(3) If debtor is transmitting utility [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(80) (definition)] and is identified as such by financing statement, filing is effective until termination statement is filed [see Com. Code § 9515(f); see § 42.215].

(4) If initial financing statement relates to public finance transaction or manufactured home transaction and so indicates, filing is effective for 30 years after date of filing [see Com. Code § 9515(b)].

14. If security interest involves multiple state transaction, advise secured party that choice of law rule governing:

a. Perfection (i.e., where to file) for most collateral is law of jurisdiction in which debtor is located [see Com. Code § 9301].

b. Location of debtor is debtor's place of business (or chief executive office if debtor has more than one place of business) [see Com. Code § 9307(b)(2), (3)], except that:

(1) "Registered organization" (e.g., corporation or limited liability company) is located in state under whose law debtor is organized (e.g., corporate debtor's state of incorporation) [see Com. Code § 9307(e)].

(2) Individual debtor is located at his or her principal residence [see Com. Code § 9307(b)(1)].

NOTE:

In addition, there are special rules for determining the location of the United States and registered organizations organized under the law of the United States [see Com. Code § 9307(f), (g)].

c. Location of non-U.S. debtors is deemed to be District of Columbia [see Com. Code § 9307(c)].

NOTE:

If a debtor is located in a jurisdiction whose law does not require public notice as a condition of perfection of a nonpossessory security interest, the debtor is deemed located in the District of Columbia [see Com. Code § 9307(c)]. Thus, to the extent that this division applies to non-U.S. debtors, perfection could be accomplished in many cases by a domestic filing [see Com. Code § 9101 (UCC Comment P 4c)].

This discussion presumes that each transaction bears an appropriate relation to the forum state. In the absence of such a relation, the forum state's entire UCC, including the forum provisions of Article 9 [Com. Code §§ 9301-9307 (California Division 9)], will not apply [see Com. Code § 9109 (UCC Comment P 9); Com. Code § 9307(c) (UCC Comment P 3)].

d. Priority and effect of perfection and nonperfection is determined:

(1) In general, by local law of jurisdiction in which debtor is located [see Com. Code § 9307 (determining debtor's location)], for tangible and intangible collateral, whether perfected by filing or automatically [see Com. Code § 9301(1)].

NOTE:

This general rule is subject to several exceptions. It does not apply to choice-of-law matters for goods covered by certificates of title [see Com. Code § 9303]. Further, other choice-of-law rules, similar to those for investment property under Division 8 [see Com. Code § 8110 (governing security interests in uncertificated securities and in securities entitlements or securities accounts)], govern choice-of-law matters for deposit accounts [see Com. Code § 9304], investment property [see Com. Code § 9305], and letter-of-credit rights [see Com. Code § 9306]. The general rule also does not apply to possessory security interests, i.e., security interests that the secured party has perfected by taking possession of the collateral [see Com. Code § 9301(2); P 2, below; see also Com. Code § 9301(3)(C); P 7, below], security interests perfected by filing a fixture filing [see Com. Code § 9301(3)(A); P 4, below], security interests in timber to be cut [see Com. Code § 9301(3)(B); P 5, below], or security interests in as-extracted collateral [see Com. Code § 9301(4); P 6, below].

"Local" law, for these purposes, refers to the substantive law of a particular jurisdiction and not to its choice of law rules [see Com. Code § 9301 (UCC Comment 2)].

(2) For possessory security interests, by local law of jurisdiction in which collateral is located [see Com. Code § 9301(2)].

(3) For collateral subject to agricultural lien, by local law of jurisdiction in which farm products subject to agricultural lien are located [see Com. Code § 9302].

(4) For security interest perfected by fixture filing, by local law of jurisdiction in which fixtures are located [see Com. Code § 9301(3)(A)].

(5) For timber to be cut, by local law of jurisdiction in which timber is located [see Com. Code § 9301(3)(B)].

NOTE:

This rule applies only to "timber to be cut," not to timber that has been cut. Consequently, once timber has been cut, the general choice of law rule in Com. Code § 9301(1) [see P 1, above] becomes applicable [see Com. Code § 9301 (UCC Comment P 5c)].

(6) For security interest in minerals that are as-extracted collateral, by local law of jurisdiction in which wellhead or minehead is located [see Com. Code § 9301(4)].

(7) For nonpossessory security interest in goods (including fixtures), documents, instruments, money, negotiable documents, and tangible chattel paper, by local law of jurisdiction in which collateral is located [see Com. Code § 9301(3)(C); Com. Code § 9301 (UCC Comment P 7)].

15. If collateral is or may be subject to third party's security interest and if third party is agreeable [see § 42.111], have debtor and third party either:

a. File amended financing statement to clarify that third party's security interest does not cover present collateral [see § 42.140[1]]; or

b. Execute agreement subordinating third party's security interest to that of secured party in present transaction [see § 42.220].

NOTE:

Division 9 of the Commercial Code does not preclude subordination by agreement by a person entitled to priority [Com. Code § 9339].

§ 42.130 Security Agreement

NOTE:

In order to make a security interest enforceable [see § 42.12[1], there must be a binding security agreement [Komas v. Future Systems, Inc. (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 809, 813, 139 Cal. Rptr. 669 (decided under prior law); Needle v. Lasco Industries, Inc. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 1105, 1108, 89 Cal. Rptr. 593 (decided under prior law)] and compliance with an evidentiary requirement in the nature of the Statute of Frauds [Com. Code § 9203(b)(3); see Com. Code § 9203 (UCC Comment P 3)]. A "security agreement" is one that creates or provides for a security interest [Com. Code § 9102(a)(73); see § 42.10[2]].

The Commercial Code does not specify the language or the terms that must be included in a security agreement, and does not require that the terms of the agreement be set forth in a single document; no special form is necessary to create or provide for a security interest [Komas v. Future Systems, Inc. (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 809, 814-816, 139 Cal. Rptr. 669 (decided under prior law); In re Amex-Protein Dev. Corp. (9th Cir. 1974) 504 F.2d 1056, 1058-1060 (decided under prior law); see New West Fruit Corp. v. Coastal Berry Corp. (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 92, 97-98, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 664 (no requirement that security agreement be in writing when collateral is in the secured party's possession, and no express requirements for agreement's form or content)]. Rather, the Commercial Code broadly defines the term "agreement" (as distinguished from contract [see Com. Code § 1201(b)(12) (definition)]) to mean the bargain between the parties in fact, as found in their language, or inferred from other circumstances, including course of performance, course of dealing, or usage of trade as provided in Com. Code § 1303 [Com. Code § 1201(b)(3)]. However, to avoid misunderstanding between the parties, and difficulties of proof in the event of a conflict over the agreement's terms, counsel should advise clients to enter into a written agreement. The degree of specificity suggested in some of the paragraphs below is based on the more detailed requirements applicable to financing statements, which are covered in § 42.131. These requirements, although not strictly applicable to security agreements, suggest an appropriate level of detail and may be instructive as a guide. In addition, use of these requirements as guidelines in drafting the security agreement may make completion of the financing statement itself easier.

Note that a financing statement alone is not sufficient as a security agreement [see Komas v. Future Systems, Inc. (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 809, 813, 139 Cal. Rptr. 669 (decided under former law)]. For example, a financing statement sufficiently indicates collateral if it provides either a "description" of the collateral [see Com. Code § 9108 (adequacy of description)] or an indication that the financing statement covers all assets or all personal property [Com. Code § 9504(2)]. Such a "super-generic" description of collateral, however, is inadequate for purposes of a security agreement [see Com. Code §§ 9108, 9203; see also Com. Code § 9101 (UCC Comment P 4h)].

For a detailed discussion of security agreements constituting a sale or assignment of accounts or chattel papers, including forms, see Ch. 43, Commercial Loans, Ch. 44, Accounts Receivable Financing and Factoring, and Ch. 45, Consumer and Installment Loans and Credit Sales. For information and forms concerning vehicle financing, see Ch. 47, Automotive Financing and Vehicle Leasing.

1. Identify debtor or debtors, stating [see Com. Code § 9502(a)(1); see also Com. Code § 9516(b)(3)(A), (C); Com. Code § 9520(a)]:

NOTE:

For purposes of a financing statement [see § 42.131], the name of a debtor entity (its "organizational name") must be provided as specified by statute. For example, if the debtor is a "registered organization" (defined to include corporations, partnerships, limited partnerships, and limited liability companies [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(70)]), the debtor's name is the name shown on the public records of the debtor's "jurisdiction of organization" [Com. Code § 9503(a)(1); see Com. Code § 9503(a)(2) (rules for decedent's estates); see Com. Code § 9503(a)(3) (rules for common-law trusts); see also Com. Code § 9102(a)(50) ("jurisdiction of organization" defined)]. A financing statement that provides only the debtor's trade name does not sufficiently provide the name of the debtor [Com. Code § 9503(c)].

If a person other than the debtor is accountable in whole or in part for payment or other performance of the obligation, the debtor and the obligor, or secondary obligor [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(28), (59), (71) (definitions); see also § 42.10[2]] should be identified. A financing statement may provide the name of more than one debtor [Com. Code § 9503(e)].

a. Name.

NOTE:

The filing office is required to reject an initial filing statement or amendment adding an individual debtor if the office cannot index the record because it cannot identify the debtor's last name (e.g., it is unclear whether the debtor's name is Samuel John or John Samuel) [see Com. Code § 9516(b)(3)(C)].

b. Mailing address.

NOTE:

If the debtor lists a post office as the mailing address, obtain a street address as well.

2. Identify secured party (or parties) or secured party's representative, stating [see Com. Code § 9502(a)(2); see also Com. Code § 9516(b)(4)]:

a. Name.

NOTE:

A financing statement may provide the name of more than one secured party [Com. Code § 9503(e)]. Failure to indicate the representative capacity of a secured party or representative of a secured party does not affect the sufficiency of a financing statement [Com. Code § 9503(d)].

b. Address at which secured party will make available information concerning security interest.

NOTE:

The lack of a mailing address for the secured party of record requires the filing office to reject an initial financing statement [Com. Code §§ 9516(b)(4); 9520(a)]. However, the failure to include an address for the secured party of record does not render a financing statement ineffective [see Com. Code § 9502(a)]. The function of the address is not to identify the secured party of record, but rather to provide an address to which others can send required notifications, e.g., of a purchase-money security interest in inventory or of the disposition of collateral [see Com. Code § 9516 (UCC Comment 5)].

3. Identify collateral [see Com. Code § 9502(a)(3)].

a. Describe collateral [see Com. Code § 9504(1)], including specific information, if possible, such as serial numbers, make and model names or numbers, number of items involved, and value of collateral, in one or more of following ways [see Com. Code § 9108(b)]:

NOTE:

With specified exceptions, the description is sufficient, whether or not it is specific, if it reasonably identifies the collateral described [Com. Code § 9108(a); see Com. Code § 9108(c)-(e) (exceptions); see also Com. Code § 9108(f) (additional requirements for investment property collateral and consumer goods)]. The test of the sufficiency of the description is whether the description provides information adequate to lead a reasonable inquirer to the identity of the collateral [In re Amex-Protein Dev. Corp. (9th Cir. 1974) 504 F.2d 1056, 1060-1061 (decided under prior law); see Com. Code § 9108 (UCC Comment P 2) (test is that "the description ... make possible the identification of the collateral described")].

(1) Specific listing.

(2) Category.

(3) Except as otherwise provided in Com. Code § 9108(e) for a commercial tort claim or a consumer transaction, a type of collateral defined in the Commercial Code.

(4) Quantity.

(5) Computational or allocational formula or procedure.

(6) Except as otherwise provided in Com. Code § 9108(c) (see below), any other method, if the identity of the collateral is objectively determinable.

NOTE:

A description of collateral as "all the debtor's assets" or "all the debtor's personal property" or similar words does not reasonably identify the collateral and is not sufficient for purposes of a security agreement [see Com. Code § 9108(c)]. Note, however that in contrast, under Com. Code § 9504, a financing statement sufficiently indicates collateral if it "covers all assets or all personal property" [see Com. Code § 9504(2)].

b. If collateral is timber to be cut, describe land concerned [see Com. Code § 9203(b)(3)(A); see also § 42.131, PP 4-6].

NOTE:

If the security interest covers timber to be cut, the financing statement must contain a description of the land concerned [Com. Code § 9203(b)(3)(A)]. Moreover, if the description identifies the location of the property, it must do so accurately [see, e.g., Matter of California Pump & Mfg. Co., Inc. (9th Cir. 1978) 588 F.2d 717, 719 (description is insufficient when collateral is not located in city identified in description, decided under prior law)].

c. If collateral is as-extracted collateral [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(6) (definition)], timber to be cut, or filed as a fixture filing [see Com. Code § 9501(a)(1)(B); § 42.131 P 6] and covers goods that are or are to become fixtures [see Com. Code § 9502(b); see also Com. Code § 9516(b)(3)(D); § 42.131, PP 4-6]:

NOTE:

A record of a mortgage is effective, from the date of recording, as a financing statement filed as a fixture filing or as a financing statement covering as-extracted collateral or timber to be cut only if all of the following conditions are satisfied [Com. Code § 9502(c)]:

- The record indicates the goods or accounts that it covers.
- The goods are or are to become fixtures related to the real property described in the record or the collateral is related to the real property described in the record and is as-extracted collateral or timber to be cut.
- The record satisfies the requirements for a financing statement in this section other than an indication that it is to be filed in the real property records.
- The record is duly recorded.

(1) Indicate that agreement or statement covers this type of collateral.

(2) Indicate that statement is to be recorded in real property records.

(3) Provide description of real property to which collateral is related sufficient to give constructive notice of mortgage under California law if description were contained in record of the mortgage of real property.

(4) If the debtor does not have interest of record in the real property, provide name of record owner.

d. State whether collateral will include:

(1) Proceeds [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(64) (definition); Com. Code § 9315(a)(2), (b)].

NOTE:

A security interest attaches to any identifiable proceeds of collateral [Com. Code § 9315(a)(2); see Com. Code § 9315(b) (proceeds commingled with other property)]. To avoid misunderstandings, the security agreement should state whether any proceeds will be subject to the security interest created by the agreement, and should describe the type of property constituting those proceeds.

For discussion of the time of filing or perfection of the security interest in the proceeds of collateral, see § 42.15[3].

(2) After-acquired property [see Com. Code § 9204(a)].

NOTE:

A security agreement may create or provide for a security interest in after-acquired collateral [Com. Code § 9204(a)]. However, a security interest under an after-acquired property clause does not attach to consumer goods, other than an accession if given as additional security, unless the debtor acquires rights in them within 10 days after the secured party gives value [Com. Code § 9204(b)(1)]. A security interest under an after-acquired property clause also does not attach to a commercial tort claim [Com. Code § 9204(b)(2); see Com. Code § 9102(a)(13) (definition); Waltrip v. Kimberlin (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 517, 528-529, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 460 (security interest in commercial tort claim cannot attach unless claim is in existence when security agreement is authenticated; after-acquired property clause in agreement antedating claim cannot create such security interest except by modification of agreement once claim exists)].

Priority in after-acquired property is covered in § 42.15[5].

(3) Future advances [see Com. Code § 9204(c)].

NOTE:

A security agreement may provide that collateral secures, or that accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, or promissory notes are sold in connection with, future advances or other value, whether or not the advances or value are given pursuant to commitment [Com. Code § 9204(c); see § 42.12[2][d]].

For discussion of perfection and priorities of advances made by the secured party, see § 42.15[6].

4. Include grant of security interest.

NOTE:

The security agreement must include a grant of a security interest [see Komas v. Future Systems, Inc.

(1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 809, 813-816, 139 Cal. Rptr. 669 (decided under prior law)]. However, no specific language is required to create the grant of the security interest [see In re Amex-Protein Development Corporation (9th Cir. 1974) 504 F.2d 1056, 1058-1060 (decided under prior law)].

a. If security interest is being given to secure obligation of debtor, clearly show parties' intent not to make absolute transfer of title to secured party.

b. If transaction is outright sale (e.g., of accounts or chattel paper), state that debtor (seller) transfers legal title to collateral to secured party (buyer) [see Com. Code §§ 1201(b)(35), 9109(a)(3)].

5. Identify value given or to be given by secured party to debtor [see Com. Code § 9203(b)(1)].

6. If desired, include provision delaying attachment of security interest to specified date [see Com. Code § 9203(a)].

NOTE:

Unless otherwise agreed, the security interest will attach when the debtor has rights in the collateral, value has been given, and one of the following conditions is met:

- The debtor has authenticated a security agreement that provides a description of the collateral and, if the security interest covers timber to be cut, a description of the land concerned [Com. Code § 9203(b)(3)(A)].

- The collateral is not a certificated security and is in the possession of the secured party under Com. Code § 9313 (perfection by possession or delivery without filing), in accordance with to the debtor's security agreement [Com. Code § 9203(b)(3)(B)].

- The collateral is a certificated security in registered form and the security certificate has been delivered to the secured party under Com. Code § 8301 (delivery of security), in accordance with the debtor's security agreement [Com. Code § 9203(b)(3)(C); see Com. Code § 8102(a)(4) ("certificated security" defined); Com. Code § 8102(a)(16) "security certificate" defined)].

- The collateral is deposit accounts, electronic chattel paper, investment property, letter-of-credit rights, or electronic documents, and the secured party has control under Com. Code §§ 7106 and 9104-9107, in accordance with the debtor's security agreement [Com. Code § 9203(b)(3)(D); see Com. Code § 9102 (definitions)].

For further discussion of attachment, see § 42.12[1].

7. If transaction is other than outright sale, identify debtor's obligations secured by collateral, including if applicable:

NOTE:

The security agreement need not describe the terms of the debt or obligation. It is sufficient if the agreement simply shows an intention to grant a security interest to the secured party [see New West Fruit Corp. v. Coastal Berry Corp. (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 92, 97-98, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 664 (decided under prior law)]. However, to avoid misunderstanding, the agreement should refer to the promissory note, contract, or other document that sets forth the terms of the obligation.

- a. Pre-existing obligations.
- b. Obligations to repay future advances to be made by secured party [see P 3d(3), above].
- c. Whether other persons are liable for obligations [see P 1, above].

8. Set forth desired provisions regarding preservation of collateral, such as:

- a. Secured party's right to inspect collateral.
- b. Debtor's obligation to assemble collateral and make it available for inspection by secured party.
- c. Limitations, if any, on location of collateral or on debtor's use of collateral.
- d. Debtor's or secured party's duty to insure against loss of or damage to collateral.
- e. Debtor's duty to protect, maintain, and repair collateral.
- f. Debtor's duty to maintain collateral free of taxes, liens, and other obligations.
- g. Debtor's right to sell, exchange, or dispose of collateral.
- h. Debtor's duty to reimburse secured party for expenses incurred in protecting collateral.
- i. If secured party is in possession of collateral, modification of statutory duties of secured party with respect to collateral [see Com. Code § 9207(a)-(c)].

NOTE:

The Commercial Code sets forth the rights and duties of the parties when the collateral is in the possession of the secured party [see Com. Code § 9207]. However, some of these responsibilities may be altered by agreement [see Com. Code § 9207(a), (c); see also Com. Code §§ 9601(a), 9602]. For further discussion of the rights and duties of secured parties, see § 42.13.

9. State any desired limitations on secured party's right to assign security interest, including:

- a. Effect of attempted assignment.
- b. Debtor's right to receive notice of assignment.

10. If desired, make collection and enforcement rights available to secured party, even if default has not occurred [see Com. Code § 9607 (collection and enforcement rights)].

NOTE:

Secured parties are entitled to collect and enforce rights against account debtors before default, as long as the debtor has so agreed [see Com. Code § 9607(a); Com. Code § 9607 (UCC Comment P 4)].

11. Include default provisions, such as:

- a. Provision defining events of default.

- b. Provision indicating whether or under what circumstances acceleration of obligation will take place.
- c. Provision defining curable defaults.
- d. Provision that waiver of event of default does not act as waiver of future events of default.
- e. If desired, provisions modifying secured party's statutory remedies [see Com. Code § 9601(a); see also Com. Code § 9602 (waiver and variance of rights and duties); Com. Code § 9603 (agreement on standards concerning rights and duties)], such as:

NOTE:

For a detailed discussion of statutory remedies, see § 42.16[2], [3]. Generally, the statutory remedies cannot be varied by agreement [see Com. Code § 9602; see also Com. Code § 9601 et seq.].

(1) Right to take possession of collateral on default [see Com. Code § 9609(a)(1)].

(2) Right to demand that defaulting debtor assemble collateral and make it available to secured party at reasonably convenient place designated by secured party [see Com. Code § 9609(c)].

(3) Right to render equipment unusable and to dispose of collateral on debtor's premises [Com. Code § 9609(a)(2); see Com. Code § 9610 (disposition of collateral after default)].

(4) Right to apply proceeds of disposition of collateral to reimbursement of secured party's reasonable attorneys' fees and expenses incurred in repossessing and disposing of collateral [Com. Code § 9607(d)].

- f. If desired, provisions expanding or limiting debtor's statutory rights on default, such as [see Com. Code § 9624]:

NOTE:

Except as permitted by statute, the debtor's rights cannot be varied or waived [see Com. Code §§ 9601(d), 9602, 9624; § 42.16[2]]. However, the parties may agree on reasonable standards by which they can measure the fulfillment of the debtor's statutory rights [Com. Code § 9603].

(1) Waiver of right to notification of disposition of collateral [see Com. Code § 9611].

NOTE:

This right may be waived only by an agreement to that effect entered into and authenticated after default [Com. Code § 9624(a)].

- (2) Waiver of right to require disposition of collateral [see Com. Code § 9620(e)].

NOTE:

This right may be waived only by an agreement to that effect entered into and authenticated after default [Com. Code § 9624(b)].

(3) Except in consumer-goods transaction, waiver of right to redeem collateral [see Com. Code § 9623].

NOTE:

This right may be waived only by an agreement to that effect entered into and authenticated after default [Com. Code § 9624(c)].

12. Provide for expiration of agreement on debtor's satisfaction of debts or other obligations [see P 7, above] and state that expiration terminates security interest [see also Com. Code § 9513(a), (c) (termination statement for financing statement)].

13. If desired, include choice of law provision [see Com. Code § 1301(a)].

NOTE:

In a multistate transaction, the parties' agreement cannot modify the statutory rules governing perfection of security interests [Com. Code §§ 1301(c), 9301-9307; see § 42.121, P 14].

14. If agreement finances purchase of consumer goods, add provisions needed to comply with consumer protection laws [see, e.g., 15 U.S.C. §§ 45, 1604; 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.2(a), 226.6-226.9, 226.17, 226.18; 16 C.F.R. §§ 433.1-433.3; Com. Code § 1801 et seq.; see also § 42.10[5]; Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales, and Ch. 47, Automotive Financing and Vehicle Leasing].

15. If security agreement includes interest in real estate, include provisions in accordance with requirements for documents relating to real property [see Ch. 25A, Security Instruments for Real Estate Financing; see also § 42.203].

16. Obtain signatures of debtor, obligor, and secondary obligor, as applicable, and, if desired, secured party.

19-42 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 42.131

AUTHOR: by Ann S. Manheimer, J.D.

§ 42.131 Financing Statement (Form UCC-1)

NOTE:

After July 1, 2001, all financing statements filed in California must be filed on the official financing statement form [see Com. Code § 9521(b)], known as Form UCC-1, provided by the office of the Secretary of State. The Secretary of State's Office has advised that nonstandard filings, which previously were accepted for an additional fee, are no longer accepted. For an illustration of Form UCC-1 and the Secretary of State's official instructions, see § 42.211. Copies are also available online at the Secretary of State's website, which is listed in § 42.211[1][a].

Com. Code § 9502(c) creates one exception to the preceding rule by providing that a record of a mortgage is effective, from the date of recording, as a financing statement filed as a fixture filing or covering as-extracted collateral, provided specified requirements are satisfied. For a list of these requirements, see § 42.130, P 3a and NOTE to P 3a.

A financing statement that substantially complies with the statutory requirements is effective, even if it contains minor errors, unless the errors or omissions make the filing statement seriously misleading [Com. Code § 9506(a); see Com. Code § 9506(b) (failure to sufficiently provide debtor's name in accordance with Com. Code § 9503(a) is seriously misleading); see also In re Pacific Trencher & Equipment, Inc. (9th Cir. 1984) 735 F.2d 362, 364 (decided under former law)].

Revised Division 9 contains no signature requirement for a financing statement. For discussion of authorization issues, see § 42.14[3][b].

1. Identify debtor or debtors, stating [see Com. Code § 9502(a)(1); see also Com. Code §§ 9516(b)(3)(A), (C), 9520(a)]:

NOTE:

The name of a debtor entity (its "organizational name") must be provided as specified by statute. For example, if the debtor is a "registered organization" (defined to include corporations, partnerships, limited partnerships, and limited liability companies [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(70)]), the debtor's name is the name shown on the public records of the debtor's "jurisdiction of organization" [Com. Code § 9503(a)(1); see Com. Code § 9503(a)(2) (rules for decedent's estates); see Com. Code § 9503(a)(3) (rules for common-law trusts); see also Com. Code § 9102(a)(50) ("jurisdiction of organization" defined)]. A financing statement that provides only the debtor's trade name does not sufficiently provide the name of the debtor [Com. Code § 9503(c)].

A financing statement may provide the name of more than one debtor [Com. Code § 9503(e)].

a. Debtor's exact legal name (do not abbreviate) [see Form UCC-1, Official Instructions, Items 1-1b; reproduced in § 42.211[2]], either:

(1) For organization debtor:

(a) Sole proprietorship is not an organization and must be listed as individual debtor, even if it does business under a trade name.

(b) If debtor is partnership, enter exact full legal name of partnership and do not enter names of individual partners as additional debtors.

(c) If debtor is registered organization (corporation, limited partnership, limited liability company), enter name as it appears in debtor's current filed charter documents.

(2) For individual debtor:

NOTE:

The filing office is required to reject an initial filing statement or amendment adding an individual debtor if the office cannot index the record because it cannot identify the debtor's last name (e.g., it is unclear whether the debtor's name is Samuel John or John Samuel) [see Com. Code § 9516(b)(3)(C)].

(a) Enter sole proprietorship as an individual debtor under name of proprietor, even if proprietorship is operating under a trade name.

(b) Do not use prefixes, (e.g., "Mr.," "Mrs.," "Ms").

(c) Use suffix title only for lineage (e.g., "Jr.," "Sr.," "III") and not for other suffixes or titles (e.g., "M.D.").

(d) Use married woman's personal name (e.g., "Mary Smith," not "Mrs. John Smith").

b. Mailing address [see Form UCC-1, Official Instructions, Items 1c; reproduced in § 42.211[2]].

c. Debtor's taxpayer ID number (social security number or employer's identification number) [see Form UCC-1, Official Instructions, Items 1d; reproduced in § 42.211[2]].

d. For organizations [see Form UCC-1, Official Instructions, Items 1e, f, g; reproduced in § 42.211[2]]:

(1) Type of organization.

(2) Jurisdiction of organization.

e. If debtor is trust or a trustee acting with respect to property held in trust, enter debtor's name, attach Addendum (Form UCC-1AD, reproduced in § 42.211[2]) and check appropriate box in Item 17 [see Form UCC-1, Official Instructions, Note; reproduced in § 42.211[2]].

f. If debtor is a decedent's estate, enter name of deceased individual, enter decedent's enter debtor's name, attach Addendum (Form UCC-1AD, reproduced in § 42.211[2]) and check appropriate box in Item 17 [see Form UCC-1, Official Instructions, Note; reproduced in § 42.211[2]].

g. If debtor is a transmitting utility or financing statement is filed in connection with a manufactured home transaction or a public finance transaction, attach Addendum (Form UCC-1AD, reproduced in § 42.211[2]) and check appropriate box in Item 18 [see Form UCC-1, Official Instructions, Note; reproduced in § 42.211[2]].

h. If additional debtor is included, enter information on additional debtor in Item 2 of UCC-1 form, as specified in (a) through (g), above [see Form UCC-1, Official Instructions, Item 2; reproduced in § 42.211[2]].

i. If more than one additional debtor is included, enter information on first additional debtor in Item 2 of UCC-1 form [see (h), above], and attach addendum listing additional debtors, using format indicated in (a) through (g), above [see Form UCC-1, Official Instructions, Item 2; reproduced in § 42.211[2]].

NOTE:

The instructions to Form UCC-1 suggest the use of Form UCC-1AD, reproduced in § 42.211[2], or other additional pages, using format indicated in (a) through (g), above [see Form UCC-1, Official Instructions, Item 2; reproduced in § 42.211[2]]. However, the Secretary of State's office has promulgated a California-specific addendum to use when adding additional debtors or secured parties. The California addendum is illustrated in § 42.213.

2. Identify secured party (or parties) or secured party's representative, stating [see Com. Code § 9502(a)(2); see also Com. Code § 9516(b)(4)]:

a. Name, using rules specified in P 1(a), above [see Form UCC-1, Official Instructions, Item 3; reproduced in § 42.211[2]].

NOTE:

A financing statement may provide the name of more than one secured party [Com. Code § 9503(e)].

Failure to indicate the representative capacity of a secured party or representative of a secured party does not affect the sufficiency of a financing statement [Com. Code § 9503(d)].

b. Address at which secured party will make available information concerning security interest, as specified in P 1(b), above [see Form UCC-1, Official Instructions, Item 3; reproduced in § 42.211[2]].

NOTE:

The lack of a mailing address for the secured party of record requires the filing office to reject an initial financing statement [Com. Code §§ 9516(b)(4), 9520(a)]. However, the failure to include an address for the secured party of record does not render a financing statement ineffective [see Com. Code § 9502(a)]. The function of the address is not to identify the secured party of record, but rather to provide an address to which others can send required notifications, e.g., of a purchase-money security interest in inventory or of the disposition of collateral [see Com. Code § 9516 (UCC Comment 5); see also § 42.211].

c. Other information as specified in P 1(c) through (g), above [see Form UCC-1, Official Instructions, Item 3; reproduced in § 42.211[2]].

d. If there is more than one secured party, enter information on additional secured parties as stated in P 1(i), above [see Form UCC-1, Official Instructions, Item 3; reproduced in § 42.211[2]].

NOTE:

The instructions to Form UCC-1 suggest the use of Form UCC-1AD, reproduced in § 42.211[2], or other additional pages, using format indicated in (a) through (g), above [see Form UCC-1, Official Instructions, Item 2; reproduced in § 42.211[2]]. However, the Secretary of State's office has promulgated a California-specific addendum to use when adding additional debtors or secured parties. The California addendum is illustrated in § 42.213.

e. If there has been a total assignment of secured party's interest prior to filing UCC-1 form, do one of following; either [see Form UCC-1, Official Instructions, Item 3; reproduced in § 42.211[2]]:

(1) Enter assignor secured party's name and address in Item 3 of UCC-1 form, and then file an amendment form (Form UCC-3) [see §§ 42.140, 42.214]; or

(2) Enter total assignee's name and address in Item 3 of UCC-1 form and, if desired, attach addendum (Form UCC-1AD, reproduced in § 42.211[2]) giving name and address of assignor secured party in Item 12.

3. Identify collateral [see Com. Code § 9502(a)(3); see also § 42.130, P 3; see also Form UCC-1, Official Instructions, Item 4; reproduced in § 42.211[2]].].

NOTE:

A financing statement sufficiently indicates the collateral that it covers if the financing statement provides either a description of the collateral pursuant to Com. Code § 9108 [see § 42.130, P 3a (NOTE)], or an indication that the financing statement covers all assets or all personal property [Com. Code § 9504].

Although "all assets or all personal property" is an adequate description of collateral for purposes of a financing statement, it is insufficient for purposes of a security agreement [see Com. Code §§ 9108, 9203; see also Com. Code § 9101 (UCC Comment P 4h)].

If the space provided on the UCC-1 form is insufficient to include a full description of the collateral, the person preparing the financing statement should put the entire collateral description or continuation of the collateral description on either an addendum (Form UCC-1AD, reproduced in § 42.211[2]) or other attached additional pages [see Form UCC-1, Official Instructions, Item 4; reproduced in § 42.211[2]].

4. If collateral is as-extracted collateral [see Com. Code § 9502(b); Com. Code § 9516(b)(3)(D); see also Com. Code § 9102(a)(6) (definition)]:

NOTE:

A record of a mortgage is effective, from the date of recording, as a financing statement covering as-extracted collateral only if specified conditions are satisfied [see Com. Code § 9502(c); P 7, below].

- a. Indicate that financing statement covers this type of collateral.
- b. Indicate that statement is to be recorded in real property records.
- c. Provide description of real property to which collateral is related.

NOTE:

The description of the real estate must be specific enough to satisfy the requirements for giving constructive notice if it were contained in a record of the mortgage of the real estate [Com. Code § 9502(b)(3)].

- d. If the debtor does not have interest of record in the real property, provide name of record owner.

5. If collateral is timber to be cut [see Com. Code § 9502(b); see also Com. Code § 9516(b)(3)(D)]:

NOTE:

A record of a mortgage is effective, from the date of recording, as a financing statement covering timber to be cut only if specified conditions are satisfied [see Com. Code § 9502(c); P 7, below]:

- a. Indicate that financing statement covers this type of collateral.
- b. Indicate that statement is to be recorded in real property records.
- c. Provide description of real property to which collateral is related.

NOTE:

The description of the real estate must be specific enough to satisfy the requirements for giving constructive notice if it were contained in a record of the mortgage of the real estate [Com. Code § 9502(b)(3)].

- d. If debtor does not have interest of record in the real property, provide name of record owner.

6. If financing statement is filed as fixture filing and covers collateral in goods that are or are to become fixtures [see Com. Code § 9502(b); see also Com. Code § 9516(b)(3)(D); Form UCC-1, Official Instructions, Item 6; reproduced in § 42.211[2]].]:

NOTE:

A "fixture filing" is the filing of a financing statement covering goods that are or are to become fixtures and satisfying Com. Code § 9502(a), (b) [see PP 1-3, above, and PP a-d, below]. The term includes the filing of a financing statement that covering goods of a transmitting utility that are, or are to become fixtures [Com. Code § 9102(a)(40)]. Filing is in the office in which the record of a mortgage on the related real estate would be filed [see Com. Code § 9501(a)(1)(B)].

A record of a mortgage is effective, from the date of recording, as a financing statement filed as a fixture filing only if all of the specified conditions are satisfied [Com. Code § 9502(c); see P 7, below].

- a. Indicate that financing statement covers this type of collateral.
- b. Indicate that statement is to be recorded in real property records.
- c. Provide description of the real property to which collateral is related.

NOTE:

The description of the real estate must be specific enough to satisfy the requirements for giving constructive notice if it were contained in a record of the mortgage of the real estate [Com. Code § 9502(b)(3)].

- d. If debtor does not have interest of record in the real property, provide name of record owner.

7. If filer desires (at filer's option) to use titles of "lessee and lessor," or "consignee and consignor," or "bailee and bailor" instead of usual titles of "debtor and secured party," check appropriate box in Item 5 of UCC-1 form [see Form UCC-1, Official Instructions, Item 5; reproduced in § 42.211[2]].

8. If search reports are desired on one or more debtors listed in financing statement, check box in Item 7 of UCC-1 form, and file search report copy of Form UCC-1 (in addition to other filed copies) for each debtor for whom a search is being requested [see Form UCC-1, Official Instructions, Item 7; reproduced in § 42.211[2]].

NOTE:

For discussion of debtor search reports, see §§ 42.111 P 1b, 42.216.

9. If record of mortgage is to be filed in lieu of financing statement as fixture filing or as financing statement covering as extracted collateral or timber to be cut, make certain that [Com. Code § 9502(c)]:

- a. Record indicates goods or accounts that it covers; and
- b. Goods are or are to become fixtures related to real property described in record; or collateral is related to real property described in record and is as-extracted collateral or timber to be cut; and
- c. Record satisfies requirements for financing statement in Com. Code § 9502, other than indication that it is to be filed in the real property records; and
- d. Record is recorded.

§ 42.139 Inaccurate or Wrongfully Filed Financing Statement or Other Record (Certificate of Correction)

1. If debtor believes that financing statement or other record indexed under debtor's name is inaccurate or has been wrongfully filed, advise debtor that debtor may file "correction statement" with respect to that record [see Com. Code § 9518].

NOTE:

The filing of a correction statment does not affect the effectiveness of an initial financing statement or other filed record [Com. Code § 9518(c)]. It does, however, afford an aggrieved person the opportunity to state its position in the public record [see UCC § 9-518, Official Comment 2]. The correction statement becomes part of the financing statement as defined in Com. Code § 9102(a)(39) [see UCC § 9-518, Official Comment 2].

The filing of a correction statement does not displace other provisions of Article 9 that impose liability for making unauthorized filings, or failing to file or send a termination statement, nor displace any available judicial remedies [see UCC § 9-518, Official Comment 2].

2. Complete official correction statement form, Form UCC-5 [see § 42.215 for official Form UCC-5 and instructions], making certain that following statutory requirements for correction statements are satisfied [see Com. Code § 9518(b)]:

NOTE:

For additional requirements imposed by the Secretary of State's office with respect to the format and content of UCC-5 forms, see the discussion in § 42.215[1] and the official instructions reproduced in § 42.215[2].

a. Identify record to which correction statement relates by both of following:

(1) File number assigned to initial financing statement to which record relates; and

(2) Date and time on which initial financing statement was filed or recorded, if all of following conditions exist:

(a) Correction statement relates to a record filed or recorded in office designated for filing or recording of a record of a mortgage on the related real property;

(b) Filing is either [see Com. Code § 9501(a)(1)]:

(i) As-extracted collateral or timber to be cut; or

(ii) A fixture filing and collateral is goods that are or are to become fixtures; and

(c) Correction statement is also filed in same filing office in (a), above.

b. Indicate that statement is a correction statement.

c. Either:

(1) Provide basis for debtor's (or other filer's) belief that record is inaccurate, and indicate manner in which debtor believes record should be amended to cure inaccuracy; or

(2) Provide basis for debtor's (or other filer's) belief that record was wrongfully filed.

3. File completed correction statement (Form UCC-5) in office where original record was filed [see Com. Code § 9518].

NOTE:

In California, this will normally be the Secretary of State's office [Com. Code § 9501(a)(2)], unless the collateral is as-extracted timber to be cut or the financing statement is filed as a fixture filing and the collateral is goods that are or are to become fixtures, in which case the filing office will be the county recorder's office in which a mortgage on the related real property would be recorded Com. Code § 9501(a)(1)].

4. Include appropriate filing fee.

NOTE:

The UCC-5 form must be accompanied by a fee of $10 ($20 if it is more than 2 pages long) [Com. Code § 9525; Gov. Code § 12194(b)].

§ 42.140 Changes in Filed Financing Statements

[1] Amendment of Financing Statement

1. Determine whether financing statement should be amended because it contains erroneous information.

NOTE:

As a general matter, post-filing changes that render a financing statement inaccurate and seriously misleading have no effect on a financing statement [see Com. Code § 9507(b)]. This rule is subject to two exceptions: (1) when a new debtor becomes bound by a security agreement entered into by another person (the "original" debtor)) [see Com. Code § 9508]; and (2) when the name change of the debtor (not a new debtor) renders the financing statement seriously misleading [see Com. Code § 9507(c)].

- a. Determine whether name change of debtor renders the financing statement seriously misleading [see Com. Code § 9507(c)].

NOTE:

A financing statement that fails sufficiently to provide the name of the debtor in accordance with subdivision Com. Code § 9503(a) is seriously misleading [see Com. Code § 9506; see also Com. Code § 9503(a); § 42.131 P 1 (NOTE)].

- b. If new debtor becomes bound by security agreement entered into by another person, determine whether differences in their names causes filed financial statement to be seriously misleading [see Com. Code § 9508(b)].

NOTE:

If the differences between the names of the new debtor and the original debtor cause the financing statement be seriously misleading [see P a (NOTE), above], the financing statement is effective to perfect a security interest in collateral acquired by the new debtor before, and within four months after, the new debtor becomes bound [Com. Code § 9508(b); see Com. Code § 9203(d) (when debtor becomes bound)]. The financing statement is not effective to perfect a security interest in collateral acquired by the new debtor more than four months after the new debtor becomes bound unless an initial financing statement providing the name of the new debtor is filed before the expiration of that time [Com. Code § 9508(b)]. These rules do not apply to collateral that is sold, exchanged, leased, licensed, or otherwise disposed of and in which a security interest or agricultural lien continues [see Com. Code §§ 9507(a), 9508(c)].

A financing statement that is amended to add a debtor is effective as to the added debtor only from the date of filing of the amendment [Com. Code § 9512(d)].

- c. Determine whether parties wish to add new collateral.

NOTE:

A security interest may attach to new collateral either under a new security agreement or under an after-acquired property clause in the original security agreement. An amendment to the financing statement is necessary to perfect the security interest only if a new kind of collateral is added. No amendment is needed to add new collateral of a kind already described in the original financing statement [see former Com. Code § 9402 (UCC Comment P 4); Com. Code § 9512 (UCC Comment P 3)]. An amendment that adds new kinds of collateral is effective as to the added collateral only from its date of filing [Com. Code § 9512(c)].

- d. Determine whether parties wish to make other corrections to financing statement.

2. If amendment of financing statement is necessary, complete official amendment form (Form UCC-3) as follows:

NOTE:

After July 1, 2001, all financing statement amendments filed in California must be filed on the official financing statement amendment form [see Com. Code § 9521(b)], known as Form UCC-3, provided by the office of the Secretary of State. The Secretary of State's Office has advised that nonstandard filings, which previously were accepted for an additional fee, are no longer accepted. For an illustration of Form UCC-3 and the Secretary of State's official instructions, see § 42.214. Copies are also available online at the Secretary of State's website, which is listed in § 42.214[1][a].

- a. Enter file number of initial financing statement to which amendment relates [see Form UCC-3, Official Instructions, Item 1a; reproduced in § 42.214[2]].
- b. If amendment is to be filed or recorded in real estate records [see Form UCC-3, Official Instructions, Item 1b; reproduced in § 42.214[2]]:
 - (1) Check box in Item 1b of UCC-3 form; and
 - (2) Attach addendum (Form UCC-3Ad, reproduced in § 42.214[2]) and enter debtor's name using the same format used in the original financing statement [see § 42.131 P1].

c. To change name or address of a party [see Form UCC-3, Official Instructions, Items 5-7; reproduced in § 42.214[2]]:

- (1) Check box in Item 5 of UCC-3 form;
- (2) Enter name of affected party in Items 6a or 6b, as appropriate; and
- (3) Give new name or address in Item 7 as appropriate.

d. To delete a party [see Form UCC-3, Official Instructions, Items 5,6; reproduced in § 42.214[2]]:

- (1) Check box in Item 5 of UCC-3 form;
- (2) Enter name of deleted party in Items 6a or 6b, as appropriate.

e. To add a party [see Form UCC-3, Official Instructions, Items 5,7; reproduced in § 42.214[2]]:

NOTE:

If multiple debtors or secured parties are being added, the California UCC addendum, reproduced in § 42.213, should be used for this purpose.

(1) Check box in Item 5 of UCC-3 form to indicate whether a debtor or secured party is being added; and

(2) Give name of address of new party in Item 7 as appropriate [for proper format for description of parties in a financing statement, see § 42.131 P1].

f. To changes the collateral covered by the financing statement, describe change in Item 8 of Form UCC-3 [see Form UCC-3, Official Instructions, Item 8; reproduced in § 42.214[2]], by one of following means, clearly indicating which of following means is chosen:

- (1) Describing collateral to be added or deleted; or
- (2) Setting forth description in full as it is to be effective after amendment is filed.

NOTE:

If the space on the UCC-3 form is insufficient for the above purpose, attach an addendum (Form UCC-3Ad, reproduced in § 42.214[2]).

g. Enter name of party of record authorizing amendment (usually secured party of record) in Item 9 of UCC-3 form [see Form UCC-3, Official Instructions, Item 9, reproduced in § 42.214[2]].

(1) If there is more than one authorizing secured party, give additional name(s) in Item 13 of addendum (Form UCC-3Ad, reproduced in § 42.214[2]) [see § 42.131, P1, for rules governing use of names in financing statements].

(2) If amendment is authorized by debtor and adds a debtor or collateral, check box in Item 9 of UCC-3 form and enter name of debtor authorizing amendment.

(3) If amendment is to be filed or recorded in real estate records, enter name of secured part of record in Item 13 of addendum (Form UCC-3Ad, reproduced in § 42.214[2]).

3. File amendment and pay filing fee [see Com. Code § 9525 (fees); see also § 42.215[1][c]].

[2] Continuation Statement

1. Determine whether filing of continuation statement is appropriate.

NOTE:

In most circumstances, a filed financing statement is effective for a period of five years from the date of filing [see Com. Code § 9515(a); see also Com. Code § 9515(b) (30 year period for initial financing statements filed in connection with public finance or manufactured home transaction)]. A continuation statement may be filed only within six months before the expiration of the applicable period [Com. Code § 9515(d)]. For further discussion, including exceptions to the general rule, see § 42.14[3][d].

Timely filing of a continuation statement extends the effectiveness of the financing statement for five years, beginning on the day on which the financing statement would have become ineffective in the absence of filing [Com. Code § 9515(e)]. Successive continuation statements may be filed in the same manner to continue the effectiveness of the original statement [see Com. Code § 9515(e)].

a. Determine whether security interest still attaches [see § 42.12].

b. Verify that original financing statement was filed:

NOTE:

The following time periods should be measured from the filing date of the original financing statement, regardless of any intervening amendments. An amendment [see P [1], above] does not extend the effectiveness of the original financing statement [see Com. Code §§ 9512(b), 9515(c)].

(1) Not more than five years before contemplated filing date for continuation statement [see Com. Code § 9515(d)].

NOTE:

When the financing statement lapses, the security interest or agricultural lien becomes unperfected, unless the security interest is perfected otherwise. A new financing statement is then necessary to perfect a security interest, unless it is perfected without filing [see Com. Code § 9515(c)].

A security interest that becomes unperfected on the lapse of a financing statement is deemed to have been unperfected as against a purchaser of the collateral for value [Com.

Code § 9515(c); see Growth Properties v. Lempert (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 983, 987, 193 Cal. Rptr. 102 (decided under prior law)].

(2) At least four years and six months before contemplated filing date for continuation statement [see Com. Code § 9515(d)].

2. If continuation statement is appropriate, complete official amendment form (Form UCC-3) as follows:

NOTE:

After July 1, 2001, all financing statement continuations filed in California must be filed on the official financing statement amendment form [see Com. Code § 9521(b)], known as Form UCC-3, provided by the office of the Secretary of State. The Secretary of State's Office has advised that nonstandard filings, which previously were accepted for an additional fee, are no longer accepted. For an illustration of Form UCC-3 and the Secretary of State's official instructions, see § 42.214. Copies are also available online at the Secretary of State's website, which is listed in § 42.214[1][a].

a. For general information on completing UCC-3 form, see § 42.140[1], P 2, above.

b. For continuation statement, check box 3 on UCC-3 form [see Form UCC-3, Official Instructions, Item 3, reproduced in § 42.214[2]].

c. Enter name of party of record in Item 9 of UCC-3 form [see Form UCC-3, Official Instructions, Items 3, 9, reproduced in § 42.214[2]; see also § 42.140[1] P 2(g), above].

3. File continuation statement and pay filing fee [see Com. Code § 9525 (fees); see also § 42.215[1][c]].

[3] Statement of Assignment

1. If secured party has assigned all or part of security interest covered by filed financing statement [see Com. Code § 9514(b)], prepare statement of assignment using Form UCC-3, as follows [see § 42.214]:

NOTE:

After July 1, 2001, all financing statement continuations filed in California must be filed on the official financing statement amendment form [see Com. Code § 9521(b)], known as Form UCC-3, provided by the office of the Secretary of State. The Secretary of State's Office has advised that nonstandard filings, which previously were accepted for an additional fee, are no longer accepted. For an illustration of Form UCC-3 and the Secretary of State's official instructions, see § 42.214. Copies are also available online at the Secretary of State's website, which is listed in § 42.214[1][a].

When record of a mortgage is effective as a financing statement filed as a fixture filing [see Com. Code § 9502(c)], then an assignment of record of the security interest may be made only in the manner in which an assignment of record of the mortgage may be made under local real property law [Com. Code § 9514(c)].

It appears uncertain under the Commercial Code as adopted in California whether the assignment of a promissory note also acts as an assignment of the chattel mortgage or security interest securing payment of the note [see Civ. Code §§ 2936, 2944].

a. For general information on completing UCC-3 form, see § 42.140[1], P 2, above.

b. To assign all or part of assignors interest [see Form UCC-3, Official Instructions, Item 4, reproduced in § 42.214[2]]:

(1) Check box in item 4 of UCC-3 form.

(2) Enter name of assignee in Item 7a of UCC-3 form if assignee is an organization, or Item 7b if assignee is an individual.

(3) Enter assignee's address in Item 7c.

(4) Enter name of assignor in Item 9.

(5) If partial assignment affects only some but not all collateral covered by financing statement, check appropriate box in Item 8 of UCC-3 form and indicate affected collateral in Item 8.

2. File statement of assignment and pay filing fee [see Com. Code § 9525 (fees); see also § 42.215[1][c]].

[4] Termination Statement

1. Determine whether termination statement is required.

NOTE:

Except in the case of a financing statement covering accounts or chattel paper that has been sold, or goods that are the subject of a consignment, the security interest is terminated if there is no remaining outstanding secured obligation and the secured party is under no commitment to make advances, incur obligations, or otherwise give value [see Com. Code § 9513(a)(1), (c)(1); see also Com. Code § 9513(c)(2) (accounts or chattel paper); Com. Code § 9513(c)(3) (goods that are subject of consignment)].

The secured party of record must file a termination statement if the financing statement covers consumer goods and either the security interest is terminated [see Com. Code § 9513(a)(1)] or the debtor did not authorize the filing of the initial financing statement [see Com. Code § 9513(a)(2)]. Otherwise, the secured party of record must send a termination statement to the debtor or file a termination statement only on receipt of an authenticated demand from the debtor [see Com. Code § 9513(c)]. The liability imposed on a secured party for failing to file or send a termination statement, as required, is identical to that imposed for the filing of an unauthorized financing statement or amendment [see Com. Code § 9625(e)].

2. If client is debtor:

a. Make authenticated demand on secured party for termination statement [see Com. Code § 9513(c); see also P 1 (NOTE), above; § 42.260].

b. If secured party of record does not file or send termination statement, as required [see P 1] (NOTE), above], file, or have debtor prepare and file termination statement [see P 3, below] and pay filing fee [see Com. Code § 9525 (fees); see also § 42.215[1][c]].

NOTE:

If a termination statement is not forthcoming from the secured party of record, the person named as debtor may authorize the filing [see Com. Code § 9509(d)(2); Com. Code § 9513 (UCC Comment P 3)].

3. If client is secured party and termination statement is required or desired:

a. Prepare termination statement on Form UCC-3 [see Com. Code § 9521(b); § 42.215[2]].

NOTE:

After July 1, 2001, all termination statements filed in California must be filed on the official financing statement amendment form [see Com. Code § 9521(b)], known as Form UCC-3, provided by the office of the Secretary of State. The Secretary of State's Office has advised that nonstandard filings, which previously were accepted for an additional fee, are no longer accepted. For an illustration of Form UCC-3 and the Secretary of State's official instructions, see § 42.214. Copies are also available online at the Secretary of State's website, which is listed in § 42.214[1][a].

(1) For general information on completing UCC-3 form, see § 42.140[1], P 2, above.

(2) To terminate effectiveness of financing statement with respect to security interest of authorized third party, check box 3 on UCC-3 form [see Form UCC-3, Official Instructions, Item 3, reproduced in § 42.214[2]].

(3) Enter name of party of record in Item 9 of Form UCC-3 [see Form UCC-3, Official Instructions, Item 9, reproduced in § 42.214[2]]:

(a) If party of record is secured party, enter secured party's name [see § 42.131, P 1, for rules governing use of names in financing statements].

(b) If termination statement is being authorized by debtor [see P 2, above], check appropriate box in Item 9 of UCC-3 form and enter name of debtor authorizing amendment.

(c) If termination statement is to be filed or recorded in real estate records, enter name of secured part of record in in Item 13 of addendum (Form UCC-3Ad, reproduced in § 42.214[2]).

b. File and pay filing fee [see Com. Code § 9525 (fees)] or send statement to debtor, as required [see Com. Code § 9513(a), (c)].

NOTE:

A termination statement for a financing statement covering consumer goods must be filed either within one month after there is no obligation secured by the collateral covered by the financing statement and no commitment to make an advance, incur an obligation, or otherwise give value, or, if earlier, within 20 days after the secured party receives an authenticated demand from a debtor [Com. Code § 9513(b)].

In all other cases, a termination statement must be filed or sent to the debtor within 20 days after a secured party receives an authenticated demand from a debtor [Com. Code § 9513(c)].

PART III. TRANSACTION GUIDE

E. Related and Subsequent Procedures

19-42 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 42.141

AUTHOR: by Ann S. Manheimer, J.D.

§ 42.141 Secured Party's Remedies on Default by Debtor

1. If debtor is in default under security agreement [see § 42.16[1]], ascertain remedies available to secured party, including [see Com. Code § 9601(a), (b); see also § 42.16[3]]:

NOTE:

After default by the debtor, the secured party may exercise the rights and remedies granted under the default provisions of Division 9, and, except as otherwise provided in Com. Code § 9602 [see § 42.16[2]], the rights provided by the security agreement [Com. Code § 9601(a)]. These statutory rights are cumulative and may be exercised simultaneously [Com. Code § 9601(c)].

a. Right to reduce claim to judgment, foreclose, or otherwise to enforce claim by any available judicial procedure.

NOTE:

A judicial lien relates back to the earlier of date of filing or the date of perfection, thus, giving the secured party who enforces security interest by judicial process the benefit of Com. Code § 9322(a)(1)'s first-to-file-or-perfect priority rule [see Com. Code § 9601(e); see also Com. Code § 9601(f) (execution sale is appropriate method of foreclosure under Com. Code § 9601 et seq., but is governed by law other than this Division)].

b. If collateral is documents, right to proceed either as to documents or as to goods they cover.

c. If secured party is in possession or control of collateral [see Com. Code §§ 9104-9107 (control)], the rights and duties provided in Com. Code § 9207 [see § 42.13[1]].

NOTE:

With the exception of the rules requiring that a secured party proceed in a commercially reasonable manner in exercising its collection and enforcement rights [see Com. Code § 9607(c)], the statutory provisions governing default [see Com. Code § 9601 et seq.] impose no duties on a secured party that is a consignor or is a buyer of accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, or promissory notes [Com. Code § 9601(g)].

d. If collateral consists of personal property and interest in real property, remedies available regarding real property [see Com. Code § 9604(a); see also Ch. 25A, Security Instruments for Real Estate Financing ; Ch. 25D, Foreclosure].

NOTE:

If the collateral includes personal property and an interest in real property, the secured party may proceed, in any sequence, in accordance with the secured party's rights and remedies in respect of real property as to the real property security, and in accordance with this the provisions of Com. Code § 9601 et seq. as to the personal property or fixtures [Com. Code § 9604(a)(1)(A) see Com. Code § 9604(a)(1)(B), (C); see also Ch. 25D, Foreclosure]. However, there are limitations on the applicability of statutory provisions governing real property to personal property or the obligations secured by personal property [see Com. Code § 9604(a)(2), (3)]. The three-month time limit for seeking a deficiency judgment after a real property judicial foreclosure sale set forth in Code of Civ. Proc. § 726(b) does not apply to a mixed collateral obligation, when the real property is sold in a nonunified sale [Florio v. Lau (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 637, 653, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 409 (decided under prior law; Code of Civ. Proc. § 726(b) may not be applied in its entirety to mixed collateral situation without running afoul of Legislature's stated purpose in enacting mixed collateral statutes)].

2. If debtor is in default under security agreement [see § 42.16[1]], ascertain which of secured party's rights to collect or enforce collateral, including accounts, chattel paper, and payment intangibles, are applicable to situation at hand [see Com. Code § 9607(a)]:

NOTE:

The following rights are only the baseline rights of the secured party vis-a-vis the debtor. The secured party is entitled to enforce after default, or earlier if so agreed [see Com. Code § 9607(a); Com. Code § 9607 (UCC Comment P 6)]. Com. Code § 9607 should not be understood to regulate the duties of an account debtor or other person obliged on the collateral [see Com. Code § 9607(e); Com. Code § 9607 (UCC Comment P 6)]. For example, the secured party may be unable to exercise the debtor's rights under an instrument if the debtor is in possession of the instrument, or under a non-transferable letter of credit if the debtor is the beneficiary [see Com. Code § 9607 (UCC Comment P 6)].

a. Right to notify account debtor or other person obligated on collateral to make payment to or otherwise render performance for benefit of secured party [see § 42.245].

b. Right to take any proceeds to which secured party is entitled [see Com. Code § 9315 (secured party's rights on disposition of collateral and in proceeds)].

c. Right to enforce obligations of account debtor and exercise debtor's rights with respect to account debtor's obligation to make payment or otherwise render performance to debtor, and with respect to any property that secures account debtor's obligations, for example:

(1) Right to take possession and accept or dispose of collateral [see Com. Code § 9609-9610, 9620; see also PP 6, 9, below].

(2) If collateral consists of personal property and interest in real property, make use of remedies available regarding real property [see Com. Code § 9604(a); P 1d, above; see also Com. Code § 9607(b) (right to enforce mortgage nonjudicially); Ch. 25A, Security Instruments for Real Estate Financing; Ch. 25D, Foreclosure].

d. If secured party holds security interest in deposit account perfected by control under Com. Code § 9104(a)(1), right to apply balance of deposit account to obligation secured by deposit account.

e. If secured party holds security interest in deposit account perfected by control under Com. Code § 9104(a)(2), (3), right to instruct bank to pay balance of deposit account to or for secured party's benefit.

3. If secured party undertakes to collect or enforce debtor's obligation on collateral [see Com. Code § 9607(a); P 2c, above]:

a. Advise secured party that collections must be made in commercially reasonable manner [see Com. Code § 9607(c)(1); see also Com. Code § 9627 (determination of whether conduct was commercially reasonable)].

b. Advise secured party that it is entitled to charge back uncollected collateral or otherwise to full or limited recourse against debtor or secondary obligor [see Com. Code § 9607(c)(2)].

c. Have secured party deduct reasonable expenses of collection and enforcement from amounts collected and credited toward debtor's defaulted obligation [see Com. Code § 9607(d)].

NOTE:

These expenses may include reasonable attorneys' fees and legal expenses incurred by the secured party [Com. Code § 9607(d)].

4. If enforcing party recovers proceeds of collateral, advise party that:

NOTE:

Recovered proceeds must be applied in substantially the same manner as the dispositions of collateral [see Com. Code § 9615(a), (e); P 9, below].

a. Enforcing party must apply or pay over for application cash proceeds of collection or enforcement under Com. Code § 9607 [see P 3, above] in following order to [see Com. Code § 9608(a)(1)]:

NOTE:

A secured party need not apply or pay over for application noncash proceeds of collection and enforcement [see Com. Code 9607; P 2, above] unless the failure to do so would be commercially unreasonable [Com. Code § 9608(a)(3)]. A secured party that applies or pays over for application noncash proceeds must do so in a commercially reasonable manner [Com. Code § 9608(a)(3)].

(1) Reasonable expenses of collection and enforcement and, to extent provided for by agreement and not prohibited by law, secured party's reasonable attorneys' fees and legal expenses.

(2) Satisfaction of obligations secured by security interest or agricultural lien under which collection or enforcement is made.

(3) If secured party receives authenticated demand for proceeds before distribution of proceeds is completed, satisfaction of obligations secured by any subordinate security interest in or other lien on collateral subject to security interest or agricultural lien under which collection or enforcement is made.

NOTE:

If requested by a secured party, a holder of a subordinate security interest or other lien must furnish reasonable proof of the interest or lien within a reasonable time. Unless the holder complies, the secured party is not required to comply with the holder's demand [Com. Code § 9608(a)(2)].

b. Enforcing party must account to and pay debtor for any surplus.

NOTE:

A secured party must account to and pay a debtor for any surplus; and, except as provided for a consumer transaction [see Com. Code § 9626(b)], the obligor generally is liable for any deficiency [see Com. Code § 9608(a)(4)]. However, if the underlying transaction is a sale of accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, or promissory notes, the debtor is not entitled to any surplus, and the obligor is not liable for any deficiency [Com. Code § 9608(b)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 701.040(b) relating to the payment of proceeds applies only if the security agreement provides that the debtor is entitled to any surplus [Com. Code § 9608(b)].

5. If secured party is not already in possession of collateral, have secured party to proceed as follows:

a. Take possession of collateral [see Com. Code § 9609(a)(1)].

b. If collateral consists of equipment, render collateral unusable or dispose of it on debtor's premises [see Com. Code § 9609(a)(2)].

NOTE:

This provision is of particular assistance when the physical removal of collateral is impractical or the storage of the equipment pending resale would be impractically expensive, for example, when the collateral is heavy equipment. In proceeding under this statutory provision, the secured party must act in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner [see Com. Code § 9610 (all aspects of disposition must be commercially reasonable)].

c. Take possession pursuant to judicial process [see Com. Code § 9609(b)(1)].

d. Take possession without judicial process, without breach of peace [see Com. Code § 9609(b)(2)].

- e. Have secured party demand that debtor assemble collateral and make it available at reasonably convenient place designated by secured party [see Com. Code § 9609(c)].
- 6. Advise secured party who has obtained possession of collateral [see P 5, above] of duty to use reasonable care in custody and preservation of collateral and other rights and duties arising from secured party's possession [see Com. Code § 9207(a)].
- 7. Advise secured party who has obtained possession of collateral [see P 5, above] that debtor or any other secured party may redeem collateral unless otherwise agreed in writing after default [see Com. Code § 9623; see § 42.142, P 1].
- 8. After secured party obtains possession of collateral [see P 5, above], if secured party wishes to retain collateral in full or partial satisfaction of debt [see Com. Code § 9620; § 42.16[3][e]; see also §§ 42.247, 42.248]:

NOTE:

In a consumer transaction, a secured party may not accept collateral in partial satisfaction of the obligation it secures [Com. Code § 9620(g)].

- a. Advise secured party that it may accept collateral in full or partial satisfaction of debt only if all of following conditions are met:

NOTE:

If the collateral is consumer goods, the collateral is not in the possession of the debtor when the debtor consents to the acceptance [Com. Code § 9620(a)(3)].

(1) Debtor consents to acceptance [see Com. Code § 9620(a)(1); see Com. Code § 9620(c) (acceptance procedure)].

(2) Secured party does not receive, within specified time [see Com. Code § 9620(d)], authenticated notification of objection to proposal [see Com. Code § 9620(a)(2)].

NOTE:

The notification of objection to proposal must be authenticated by either a person to which the secured party was required to send a proposal [see Com. Code § 9621], or any other person, other than the debtor, holding an interest in the collateral subordinate to the security interest that is the subject of the proposal [Com. Code § 9620(a)(2)].

(3) Secured party consents to debtor's acceptance in authenticated record or sends proposal to debtor [see Com. Code § 9620(b)(1); see also Com. Code § 9621 (required notification of others who have or claim to have interest in collateral)].

- b. Advise secured party that if it takes possession of collateral, it must dispose of collateral [see Com. Code § 9610; P 9, below] within 90 days after taking possession, or as otherwise agreed in authenticated agreement entered into after default, if either of following conditions has been satisfied [see Com. Code § 9620(e), (f)]:

(1) For purchase money security interest in consumer goods, 60 percent of cash price has been paid.

(2) For nonpurchase money security interest in consumer goods, 60 percent of obligation's principal amount has been paid.

9. Advise secured party that after default, it may sell, lease, license, or otherwise dispose of any or all of collateral in its present condition or following any commercially reasonable preparation or processing [see Com. Code § 9610(a); see also Com. Code § 9610(d)-(f) (contract for sale, lease, license, or other disposition includes warranties relating to title, possession, and quiet enjoyment, unless disclaimed or modified)].

NOTE:

Every aspect of a disposition of collateral, including the method, manner, time, place, and other terms, must be commercially reasonable [Com. Code § 9610(b); see Com. Code § 9627 (determining whether conduct is commercially reasonable)]. If commercially reasonable, a secured party may dispose of collateral by public or private proceedings, by one or more contracts, as a unit or in parcels, and at any time and place and on any terms [Com. Code § 9610(b)]. A secured party may purchase any type of collateral at a public disposition, but may purchase collateral at a private disposition only if the collateral is of a kind that is customarily sold on a recognized market or the subject of widely distributed standard price quotations [Com. Code § 9610(b)].

A secured party who wishes to dispose of collateral must send "a reasonable authenticated notification" to specified persons, subject to specified exceptions [see Com. Code § 9611]. The notification must be reasonable in the manner in which it is sent [see Com. Code § 9611(b)], its timeliness [see Com. Code § 9612 (timeliness of notification)], and its content [see Com. Code § 9613 (contents of notification generally); Com. Code § 9614 (contents of notification in consumer goods transaction)]. For further discussion and forms of notification, see §§ 42.240, 42.241.

10. Advise secured party that proceeds of disposition must be paid in following order [see § 42.16[3]]:

- a. First, to expenses of disposition [see Com. Code § 9615(a)(1)].
- b. Second, to the obligation secured by the security interest that is being enforced [see Com. Code § 9615(a)(2)].
- c. Third, in specified circumstances, to interests that are subordinate to that security interest [see Com. Code § 9615(a)(3)].

11. If proceeds of disposition exceed balance due on obligation, advise secured party to pay surplus to debtor or to consignor, as required [see Com. Code § 9615(d)(1); see also Com. Code § 9615(a)(4); § 42.16[3][j]].

NOTE:

Payments of surplus proceeds under these circumstances are subject to the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 701.040 concerning judgment lien creditors [Com. Code § 9615(d)(1); see Com. Code § 9615(e)(2)].

If the underlying transaction is a sale of accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, or promissory notes, the debtor is not entitled to any surplus [Com. Code § 9615(e)(1)(A)].

In addition, a secured party is not required to apply or pay over for application noncash proceeds of collection and enforcement [see Com. Code 9607; P 2, above] unless the failure to do so would be commercially unreasonable [Com. Code § 9608(a)(3)]. A secured party that applies or pays over for application noncash proceeds must do so in a commercially reasonable manner [Com. Code § 9608(a)(3)].

12. If balance due on obligation exceeds proceeds from disposition, advise secured party that obligor is liable for any deficiency.

NOTE:

However, in a consumer transaction, the debtor or any secondary obligor is liable for any deficiency only in specified circumstances [see Com. Code § 9626(b)(2)].

In addition, if the underlying transaction is a sale of accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, or promissory notes, the debtor is not liable for any deficiency [Com. Code § 9615(e)(1)(B)].

§ 42.142 Debtor's Rights After Default and Remedies After Disposition

1. If debtor wishes to redeem collateral after secured party has obtained possession after default:

NOTE:

Except in a consumer-goods transaction, a debtor or secondary obligor may waive the right to redeem collateral [see Com. Code § 9623] only by an agreement to that effect entered into and authenticated after default [Com. Code § 9624(c)].

a. Advise debtor that it may redeem collateral at any time before secured party has [see Com. Code § 9623(c)]:

NOTE:

In addition to the debtor, any secondary obligor, or any other secured party or lienholder may redeem collateral [Com. Code § 9623(a)].

(1) Collected collateral [see Com. Code § 9607; § 42.141 P 3].

(2) Disposed of collateral or entered into contract for its disposition [see Com. Code § 9610; § 42.141 P 9].

(3) Accepted collateral in full or partial satisfaction of obligation it secures [see Com. Code § 9622; § 42.16[3][e]].

b. Advise debtor that to redeem collateral, debtor must [see Com. Code § 9623(b)]:

- (1) Fulfill all obligations secured by collateral.
- (2) Tender reasonable expenses and attorneys' fees.

NOTE:

Expenses include those incurred by the secured party relating to retaking, holding, preparing for disposition, processing, and disposing of collateral. Reasonable expenses also include the secured party's reasonable attorneys' fees and legal expenses, to the extent provided for in the agreement and legal expenses incurred by the secured party [Com. Code § 9623(b); see Com. Code § 9615(a)].

2. If it is established that secured party did not comply with Division 9 [see Com. Code § 9101 et seq.], advise debtor that:

- a. Court may order or restrain collection, enforcement, or disposition of collateral on appropriate terms and conditions [see Com. Code § 9625(a)].
- b. Debtor may recover from secured party any loss caused by failure to comply with this division [see Com. Code § 9625(b); see also Com. Code § 9625(e), (f) (supplemental damages)].

NOTE:

In addition to the debtor, a person who, at the time of the failure, was an obligor, or held a security interest in or other lien on the collateral may recover damages for its loss [Com. Code § 9625(c); see Com. Code § 9628 (nonliability or limitation on secured party's liability)].

A debtor whose deficiency is eliminated in an action in which deficiency or surplus is in issue [see Com. Code § 9626] may recover damages for the loss of any surplus [Com. Code § 9625(d)]. However, in a transaction other than a consumer transaction, a debtor or secondary obligor whose deficiency is eliminated or reduced in such an action may not otherwise recover under Com. Code § 9625(b) for noncompliance with the provisions of the statutes relating to collection, enforcement, disposition, or acceptance [Com. Code § 9625(d)].

3. If amount collected by secured party after collections [see Com. Code § 9607] or disposition [see Com. Code § 9609] exceeds amount owed on obligation, advise debtor that debtor is:

- a. Entitled to accounting of surplus [see Com. Code §§ 9608(a)(4), 9615(d)(1)].
- b. Entitled to payment or surplus proceeds of collateral [see Com. Code §§ 9608(a)(4), 9615(d)(1)].

NOTE:

If the underlying transaction is a sale of accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, or promissory notes, the debtor is not entitled to any surplus [Com. Code § 9615(e)(1)(A)].

PART IV. FORMS

A. Creating Security Interests

19-42 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 42.200

AUTHOR: by Ann S. Manheimer, J.D.

§ 42.200 General Nonpossessory Security Agreement and Note

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a security agreement for use in granting a nonpossessory security interest in collateral owned or to be owned by the debtor. The form can be adapted for use with virtually any kind of collateral. For security agreements granting possessory security interests, see §§ 42.202 and 42.203. For security agreement granting security interests in specific types of collateral, see §§ 42.201 (business equipment), 42.202 (certificated stock), and 42.203 (notes secured by deeds of trust or land sale). The security agreements illustrated in this chapter are agreements securing indebtedness. For agreements constituting sales of accounts or chattel papers, see Ch. 43, Commercial Loans, 44, Accounts Receivable Financing and Factoring, and 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales, and Ch. 47, Automotive Financing and Vehicle Leasing.

[b] Purpose

In order to make a security interest enforceable [see § 42.12[1], there must be a binding security agreement [Komas v. Future Systems, Inc. (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 809, 813, 139 Cal. Rptr. 669 (decided under prior law); Needle v. Lasco Industries, Inc. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 1105, 1108, 89 Cal. Rptr. 593 (decided under prior law)] and compliance with an evidentiary requirement in the nature of the Statute of Frauds [Com. Code § 9203(b)(3); see Com. Code § 9203 (UCC Comment P 3)]. A "security agreement" is one that creates or provides for a security interest [Com. Code § 9102(a)(73); see § 42.10[2]].

Special rules apply when the collateral is securities [see Com. Code § 9206], when a collecting bank holds the security interest [see Com. Code § 4210], when an issuer or nominated person has a security interest in a document presented under a letter of credit [see Com. Code § 5118], and when a security interest arises under Com. Code § 2101 et seq., governing sales [see also Ch. 52, Sales of Goods Under the Uniform Commercial Code], or under Com. Code § 10101 et seq., governing personal property leases [Com. Code § 9203(c); see Com. Code § 9110 (security interests arising under Commercial Code Divisions 2 and 10)]. These provisions are discussed in § 42.12[3].

[c] Validity of Security Agreements Generally

A security agreement is effective according to its terms between the parties, against purchasers of the collateral, and against creditors, unless the Commercial Code provides to the contrary [Com. Code § 9201(a)]. Exceptions to the general rule arise when there is an overriding provision in this division or in another division [Com. Code § 9201 (UCC Comment P 2)]. For example, the Code operates to invalidate disclaimers of the duty of good faith [see Com. Code § 1302(b); see also Com. Code § 1203 (every contract or duty within Commercial Code imposes obligation of good faith in its performance and enforcement)], to subordinate a security interest that has not been perfected [see Com. Code § 9317; see also § 42.14[2]], or to subordinate certain security interests to other security interests and to the interests of purchasers [see Com. Code § 3101 et seq.]. This general rule also does not validate any rate, charge, agreement, or practice that violates a rule of law, statute, or regulation described in Com. Code § 9201(b) [see § 42.10[5]], or extend the application of any such statute, rule of law, or regulation to a transaction not otherwise subject to it [Com. Code § 9201(d)].

The Commercial Code does not specify the language or the terms that must be included in a security agreement, and does not require that the terms of the agreement be set forth in a single document; no special form is necessary to create or provide for a security interest [Komas v. Future Systems, Inc. (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 809, 814-816, 139 Cal. Rptr. 669 (decided under prior law); In re Amex-Protein Dev. Corp. (9th Cir. 1974) 504 F.2d 1056, 1058-1060 (decided under prior law); see New West Fruit Corp. v. Coastal Berry Corp. (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 92, 97-98, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 664 (there is no requirement that security agreement be in writing when collateral is in the secured party's possession, and no express requirements for agreement's form or content)]. Rather, the Commercial Code broadly defines the term "agreement" to mean simply the bargain between the parties in fact, as found in their language, or inferred from other circumstances, including course of performance, course of dealing, or usage of trade as provided in Com. Code § 1303 [Com. Code § 1201(b)(3)].

When the secured party does not have possession of the collateral (as in the illustrative agreement in [2], below), a financing statement normally is drafted and executed with the security agreement so that the security interest created may be properly perfected, except in the circumstances set forth in the code [see Com. Code § 9301; see also §§ 42.14, 42.121]. The standard financing statement form approved by the California Secretary of State is Form UCC-1 [see § 42.211]. This form includes the information that must appear on the financing statement, and, once gathered, may be used to complete that form. The financing statement requirements, although not strictly applicable to security agreements, suggest an appropriate level of detail and may be instructive as a guide. In addition, use of these requirements as guidelines in drafting the security agreement may make completion of the financing statement itself easier.

The promissory note illustrated as part of this form can be used either in a purchase money transaction or in connection with a loan made on the security of property already owned by the borrower. For additional promissory notes for use with secured transactions, see Ch. 55, Negotiable Instruments .

[e] Essential Elements; Sufficiency of Agreement

The security agreement must include a description of the collateral [see Com. Code § 9203(b)(3)(A)] and a grant of a security interest [Komas v. Future Systems, Inc. (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 809, 813, 139 Cal. Rptr. 669 (decided under former law)]. The description of the personal or real property collateral does not need to be specific. With specified exceptions, the description is sufficient, whether or not it is specific, if it reasonably identifies the collateral described [

Com. Code § 9108(a); see Com. Code § 9108(c)-(e) (exceptions)]. However, a description of collateral as "all the debtor's assets" or "all the debtor's personal property" or similar words does not reasonably identify the collateral and is not sufficient for purposes of a security agreement [see Com. Code § 9108(c)]. Note, however that under Com. Code § 9504, a financing statement sufficiently indicates collateral if it "covers all assets or all personal property" [see Com. Code § 9504(2); see also § 42.211].

In addition to the requirements governing the sufficiency of the description of collateral set forth in Com. Code § 9108, a description of investment property collateral also must meet the applicable requirements of Civ. Code § 1799.103 (limitations on security interest in investment property in consumer credit contract or guarantee), and a description of consumer goods also must meet the applicable requirements of Civ. Code § 1799.100 (security interests in household goods and personal property in connection with consumer credit contract or other consumer credit obligation) [Com. Code § 9108(f); see [c], below]. For further discussion of the description of collateral in a security agreement, see § 42.12[2][c].

In general, the agreement may include terms typical of any loan agreement. The test for the sufficiency of a security agreement is whether the transaction falls within the definition of "security interest" in Com. Code § 1201(b)(35), not whether the parties intend the law to characterize the transaction as a security interest [see Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 3b); Com. Code § 9109 (UCC Comment P 2); see also Com. Code § 1201(b)(35) (security interest includes any interest of consignor or buyer of accounts, chattel paper, payment intangible, or promissory note in transaction subject to Com. Code § 9101 et seq.)]. Thus, an agreement that the parties characterize as a "lease" of goods may be a "security agreement," despite the parties' stated intention that the law treat the transaction as a lease and not as a secured transaction [see Com. Code § 9102 (UCC Comment P 3b)].

For a detailed guide to drafting security agreements, see § 42.130.

[f] Consumer Credit Contracts

If the security agreement finances the retail purchase of consumer goods or services, counsel should adapt this form to meet the requirements of applicable consumer protection laws [see § 42.10[5]]. For example, the contract will be subject to the Federal Trade Commission Act's "holder in due course" rule [15 U.S.C. § 45; 16 C.F.R. §§ 433.1-433.3]. Under this rule, it is unfair or deceptive for a seller of consumer goods or services to take a consumer credit contract, such as a security agreement, or accept the proceeds of any purchase money loan in connection with any sale or lease of goods or services, unless the contract includes a notice that the holder of the contract is subject to all claims and defenses the debtor could assert against the original seller [16 C.F.R. § 433.2].

If a retail buyer and seller enter into a security agreement requiring the buyer to make four or more installment payments [see Civ. Code § 1802.6] to purchase consumer goods or services [see Civ. Code §§ 1802.1, 1802.2], the agreement is subject to the Unruh Retail Installment Sales Act [see Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.]. The Act imposes numerous requirements on the terms and form of the agreement. For a security agreement that complies with the Unruh Retail Installment Sales Act, see Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales.

[g] Sale of Credit Disability Insurance by Lender

A lender may want to protect its position through the use of credit disability insurance covering the debtor. However, the credit disability insurance will have an adverse effect on the creditor's right to enforce the debt in the event of default if the insurance were sold or arranged for by the creditor or if the creditor received compensation for its sale [see Civ. Code §§ 1812.400, 1812.402]. In addition, specified disclosures must be made at the time of sale [see Civ. Code §§ 1812.401(d), 1812.402-1812.407; see § 42.14[2][a]]. For a discussion and form, see Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales.

[2] FORMGeneral Nonpossessory Security Agreement and Note*GENERAL SECURITY AGREEMENT

This Security Agreement is entered into on _____ [date], between _____ [name of debtor], ("Debtor"), _____ [street address], _____ [city], _____ County, State of _____, and _____ [name of secured party], ("Secured Party"), _____ [street address], _____ [city], _____ County, State of _____, as follows:

For value received, the Debtor grants to the Secured Party a security interest in the following described property, referred to in this Security Agreement as the Collateral: _____ [list and describe personal property serving as collateral as accurately and precisely as possible, e.g., inventory of refrigerators, stoves, and other electrical appliances owned by the Debtor on the date of this Security Agreement; if collateral is crops growing or to be grown, timber to be cut, minerals, accounts from sale of minerals at wellhead or minehead, or fixtures, describe the land concerned] to secure:

- (1) The Debtor's note of $_____ to the Secured Party of _____ [date], payable as to principal and interest as provided in the note;
- (2) Future advances by the Secured Party to the Debtor, to be evidenced by similar notes;
- (3) All expenditures by the Secured Party for taxes, insurance, and repairs to and maintenance of the Collateral incurred by the Secured Party in the collection and enforcement of the note and other indebtedness of the Debtor; and
- (4) All liabilities of the Debtor to the Secured Party now existing or incurred in the future, matured or unmatured, direct or contingent, and any renewals, extensions, and substitutions of those liabilities.

The Debtor warrants:

[Have debtor initial the blank preceding any statement applicable to this agreement:]

_____ The Collateral is to be used for personal, family, or household purposes.

_____ The Collateral is to be used in business other than farming operations.

_____ The Collateral is equipment used in farming operations, or farm products, or accounts, contract rights, or general intangibles arising from or relating to the sale of farm products by a farmer.

_____ The Collateral is accounts, and the records concerning the accounts are kept at _____ [address].

_____ The Collateral is a fixture attached to or to become attached to the above-described land.

_____ The Collateral is being acquired by the Debtor from the Secured Party or is being acquired with the proceeds of the advance evidenced by this Security Agreement.

[Continue with the following:]

The Debtor's residence is located at _____ [residence address].

The Collateral will be kept at _____ [address].

The Debtor's chief place of business is located at _____ [address] .

The Debtor agrees as follows:

Title

1. Except for the security interest granted by this agreement, the Debtor has, or on acquisition will have, full title to the Collateral free from any lien, security interest, encumbrance, or claim, and the Debtor, at the Debtor's cost and expense, will defend any action that may affect the Secured Party's security interest in, or the Debtor's title to, the Collateral.

Financing Statement

2. No financing statement covering the Collateral or any part of it or any proceeds of it [add, if applicable: other than the financing statement executed in conjunction with this Security Agreement] is on file in any public office. [If financing statement has not yet been executed and filed, include: At the Secured Party's request, the Debtor will join in executing and pay the filing fees required for all necessary financing statements in forms satisfactory to the Secured Party and will further execute all other instruments deemed necessary by the Secured Party.] [If collateral is timber to be cut, minerals such as oil or gas, or accounts from sale of minerals at wellhead or minehead, or fixtures, add: The _____ (Debtor or Secured Party) will file the financing statement in the real estate records in the office where the mortgage on the real property described in this Security Agreement is filed or recorded.]

Sale, Lease, or Disposition of Collateral

3. The Debtor will not sell, contract to sell, lease, encumber, or dispose of the Collateral or any interest in it without the written consent of the Secured Party until this Security Agreement and all debts secured by it have been fully satisfied.

Insurance

4. Until final termination of this Security Agreement, the Debtor, at the Debtor's own cost and expense, will insure the Collateral with companies acceptable to the Secured Party against the casualties and in the amounts that the Secured Party will reasonably require, with a loss payable clause in favor of the Debtor and Secured Party as their interests may appear. The Secured Party is authorized to collect sums that may become due under any of the insurance policies and apply them to the obligations secured by this Security Agreement. Debtor must deliver a duplicate copy of each such policy must to the Secured Party.

Protection of Collateral

5. The Debtor will keep the Collateral in good order and repair and will not waste or destroy the Collateral or any part of it. The Debtor will not use the Collateral in violation of any statute or ordinance, and the Secured Party will have the right to examine and inspect the Collateral at any reasonable time.

Taxes and Assessments

6. The Debtor will pay promptly when due all taxes and assessments on the Collateral, or any part of the Collateral, or for its use and operation.

Location and Identification

7. The Debtor will keep the Collateral separate and identifiable and at the address shown above, and will not remove the Collateral from that address without the Secured Party's written consent, for as long as this Security Agreement remains in effect.

Security Interest in Proceeds and Accessions

8. The Debtor grants to the Secured Party a security interest in and to all proceeds, increases, substitutions, replacements, additions, and accessions to the Collateral and to any part of the Collateral. This provision shall not be construed to mean that the Debtor is authorized to sell, lease, or dispose of the Collateral without the prior written consent of the Secured Party.

Decrease in Value of Collateral

9. If, in the Secured Party's judgment, the Collateral has materially decreased in value or if the Secured Party at any time determines that the Secured Party is financially unstable, the Debtor will either provide enough additional Collateral to satisfy the Secured Party or reduce the total indebtedness by an amount sufficient to satisfy the Secured Party.

Reimbursement of Expenses

10. At the option of the Secured Party, the Secured Party may discharge taxes, liens, interest, or perform or cause to be performed for and on behalf of the Debtor any actions and conditions, obligations, or covenants that the Debtor has failed or refused to perform. In addition, the Secured Party may pay for the repair, maintenance, and preservation of the Collateral. The Secured Party also may enter the premises where the Collateral or any part of it is located and cause to be performed as agent and on the account of the Debtor any acts that the Secured Party deems necessary for the proper repair or maintenance of the Collateral or any part of it. All sums expended by the Secured Party under this paragraph, including but not limited to, attorneys' fees, court costs, agent's fees, or commissions, or any other costs or expenses, will bear interest from the date of payment at the annual rate of _____ percent, will be payable at the place designated in the Debtor's note, and will be secured by this Security Agreement.

Payment

11. The Debtor will pay the note secured by this Security Agreement and any renewal or extension of it and any other indebtedness secured by this agreement in accordance with the terms and provisions of the indebtedness. The Debtor also will repay immediately all sums expended by the Secured Party in accordance with the terms and provisions of this Security Agreement. On full payment by the Debtor of all indebtedness secured by this agreement in accordance with this Security Agreement, this Security Agreement will expire, and the Secured Party's security interest in the Collateral, as set forth in this Security Agreement, will terminate.

Change of Residence or Place of Business

12. The Debtor will promptly notify the Secured Party of any change of the Debtor's residence, chief place of business, or place where records concerning the collateral are kept.

[If secured party will be allowed to make collections regardless of whether debtor defaults on security agreement (see generally Com. Code § 9607); see also 42.130 P 10), add:]

Attorney-in-Fact

13. The Debtor appoints the Secured Party as the Debtor's attorney-in-fact to do any act that the Debtor is obligated by this Security Agreement to do, to exercise all rights of the Debtor in the Collateral, to make collections, to execute all papers and instruments, and to do all other things necessary to preserve and protect the Collateral, to make collections, and to protect the Secured Party's security interest in the Collateral.

Time of Performance and Waiver

14. In performing any act under this Security Agreement and the note secured by it, time is of the essence. The Secured Party's acceptance of partial or delinquent payments, or the failure of the Secured Party to exercise any right or remedy, will not constitute a waiver of any obligation of the Debtor or right of the Secured Party and will not constitute a waiver of any other similar default that occurs later.

Default

15. The Debtor will be in default under this Security Agreement on the occurrence of any of the following events or conditions:

- (a) Default in the payment or performance of any note, obligation, covenant, or liability secured by this Security Agreement;
- (b) Any warranty, representation, or statement made or furnished to the Secured Party by or on behalf of the Debtor proves to have been false in any material respect when made or furnished;
- (c) Any event that results in the acceleration of the maturity of the indebtedness of the Debtor to others under any indenture, agreement, or undertaking;

(d) Loss, theft, substantial damage, destruction, sale, or encumbrance to or of any of the Collateral, or the making of any levy, seizure, or attachment of or on the Collateral;

(e) Any time the Secured Party reasonably believes that the prospect of payment or any indebtedness secured by this Security Agreement or the performance of this Security Agreement is impaired; or

(f) Death, dissolution, termination of existence, insolvency, business failure, appointment of a receiver for any part of the Collateral, assignment for the benefit of creditors, or the commencement of any proceeding under any bankruptcy or insolvency law by or against the Debtor or any guarantor or surety for the Debtor.

Remedies

16. On the occurrence of any event of default, and at any later time, the Secured Party may declare all obligations secured due and payable immediately and may proceed to enforce payment and exercise any and all of the rights and remedies provided by the California Commercial Code as well as other rights and remedies either at law or in equity possessed by the Secured Party.

The Secured Party may require the Debtor to assemble the Collateral and make it available to the Secured Party at any place to be designated by the Secured Party that is reasonably convenient to both parties. Unless the Collateral is perishable, threatens to decline speedily in value, or is of a type customarily sold on a recognized market, the Secured Party will give the Debtor reasonable notice of the time and place of any public sale or of the time after which any private sale or any other intended disposition of the Collateral is to be made. The requirements of reasonable notice will be met if the notice is mailed, postage prepaid, to the address of the Debtor shown at the beginning of this Security Agreement at least 10 days before the time of the sale or disposition. Expenses of retaking, holding, preparing for sale, selling, or the like will include the Secured Party's reasonable attorneys' fees and legal expenses.

Governing Law

17. This Security Agreement will be construed in accordance with the California Commercial Code and other applicable laws of the State of California. All obligations of the parties created under this Security Agreement are performable in _____ County, California.

Parties Bound

18. This Security Agreement will be binding on and inure to the benefit of the parties and their respective heirs, executors, administrators, legal representatives, successors, and assigns as permitted by this Security Agreement.

Attorneys' Fees

19. If _____ [any litigation or specify more limited provision, e.g., any legal action based in contract law] is begun between the parties to this Security Agreement concerning the Collateral, this Security Agreement, or the rights and duties of either party, the prevailing party will be entitled to a reasonable sum as reimbursement for that party's attorneys' fees and legal expenses.

Validity and Construction

20. If any one or more of the provisions contained in this Security Agreement is for any reason held to be invalid, illegal, or unenforceable, the invalidity, illegality, or unenforceability of that provision will not affect any other provision of this Security Agreement, and this Security Agreement will be construed as if the invalid, illegal, or unenforceable provision had never been contained in it.

Sole Agreement

21. This Security Agreement constitutes the only agreement of the parties, and supersedes any prior understandings or written or oral agreements between the parties, respecting the subject matter of this Security Agreement.

Commercial Code Definitions Applicable

22. All terms used in this Security Agreement that are defined in the California Commercial Code will have the same meaning in this Security Agreement as in the Code.

§ 42.201 Nonpossessory Security Interest in Business Equipment

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This security agreement, which is similar to an installment sales contract, is for use by any seller for the sale of business equipment. It may be used for the sale of farm equipment unless the farm equipment is bought for personal, family, or household purposes [see 15 U.S.C. §§ 1602(h), 1603; Civ. Code §§ 1802.1, 1802.5, 1802.6; Com. Code § 9102(a)(23) ("consumer goods" defined); Com. Code § 9102(a)(33) ("equipment" defined)]. Because the form illustrated here does not comply with the Unruh Installment Sales Act [see Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.] or the federal Truth in Lending Act [see 15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.], it cannot be used for the sale of consumer goods by a person in the business of making retail sales of consumer goods or extending credit [see §§ 42.10[4], 42.200[1][f]]. For a retail installment sales contract complying with the Unruh Installment Sales Act and the Truth in Lending Act, see Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales. For a contract complying with the Rees-Levering Act [Civ. Code §§ 2981-2984.4], covering the retail sale of automobiles under installment sales contracts, refer to Ch. 47, Automotive Financing and Vehicle Leasing.

This form meets the requirements of a financing statement [see Com. Code § 9502], unless the financing statement covers as-extracted collateral, or timber to be cut, or is filed as a fixture filing and covers goods that are, or are to become fixtures [see Com. Code § 9502(b); § 42.130 P 3; see also § 42.131 PP 4-6].

Nonpossessory Security Interest in Business Equipment

SECURITY AGREEMENT

This Security Agreement is entered into on _____ [date], between _____ [name of seller], _____ [legal status, e.g., a California corporation] ("Seller"), _____ [street address], _____ [city], _____ County, State of _____, and _____ [name of buyer], _____ [legal status, e.g., a California corporation] ("Buyer"), _____ [street address], _____ [city], _____ County, State of _____, as follows:

Sale and Purchase

1. The Seller will sell to the Buyer and the Buyer will purchase from the Seller the goods described as follows: _____ [describe goods], referred to in this Agreement as the "Goods," on the terms and conditions set forth in this Agreement.

Purchase Price

2. The total purchase price to be paid by the Buyer to the Seller for the Goods is the sum of $ _____, payable as follows:

The sum of $ _____ on execution of this Agreement, receipt of which is acknowledged by the Seller, and the balance in equal monthly installments of $ _____ each on the _____ day of each month beginning on _____ [date] and continuing until the entire unpaid balance of the purchase price, together with interest at the rate of _____ percent per year from the date of this Agreement, has been paid. Each payment is to be credited first to the payment of interest then accrued, and then to the reduction of the principal balance of the purchase price.

Title and Security Interest

3. The Seller retains title to the Goods until the Buyer has performed all of the obligations owing to the Seller under this Agreement, and until the purchase price of the Goods has been fully paid. The Seller retains a security interest in the Goods, and in all accessions to, replacements of, and proceeds from the Goods, as security for the performance by the Buyer of all of the Buyer's obligations arising under this Agreement.

Receipt in Good Condition

4. The Buyer acknowledges that it has received possession of the Goods and that, at the time of receipt, the Goods were, and each part of them was, in good repair and in a safe, workable, and clean condition.

Use of Goods

5. The Buyer acknowledges that the Goods are not being purchased primarily for personal, family, or household use, but for lawful use in the Buyer's business. The goods will be located at the Buyer's place of business at _____ [street address], City of _____, State of California, unless and until written consent to a change of their location is obtained from the Seller.

Risk of Loss

6. The Buyer assumes all risks of loss of the Goods and will not be released from any obligation or obligations under this Agreement because of any loss, damage, or disrepair suffered by the Goods or any part of the Goods.

Maintenance

7. The Buyer will maintain the Goods and each part of the Goods in good repair at the Buyer's cost and expense. The Buyer will not use the Goods or any part of the Goods in a manner that would subject them to waste or undue deterioration.

Insurance

8. During the continuance of this Agreement, the Buyer, at its own cost and expense, will keep the Goods and all parts of them insured for their full insurable value against loss or damage caused by fire, theft, the elements, or any other risk to which the Goods, or any part of them, might foreseeably be exposed. Insurance must be by insurance policies that are acceptable to the Seller. The Seller will be named as a loss payee under each policy obtained by the Buyer in fulfillment of its obligations under this paragraph.

Taxes and Assessments

9. The Buyer, at its own cost and expense, will pay as they become due, all taxes, assessments, or other charges levied or assessed on the Goods, or any part of them, during the continuance of this Agreement.

Sale of Goods

10. The Buyer will keep the Goods, and all parts of them, separate and identifiable from other property owned by the Buyer or located on the same premises as the Goods. The Buyer will not sell, lease, encumber, or otherwise dispose of any part of the Goods or of any of the Seller's rights under this Agreement without the prior written consent of the Seller, until all of the Buyer's obligations under this Agreement have been fully performed.

Inspection Rights

11. The Seller, either in person or by agent, may enter the premises where the Goods, or any part of them, are located, at any reasonable hour, and may inspect the Goods.

Financing Statement

12. The parties will execute any Financing Statements that may be required by the Uniform Commercial Code as enacted in California to perfect the security interest in the Goods retained by the Seller under this Agreement. The Financing Statements will be on forms approved by the California Secretary of State, will be executed with this Agreement, and will be filed as required by the Uniform Commercial Code as enacted in California.

Default

13. The Buyer will be in default under this Security Agreement on the occurrence of any of the following events or conditions:

- (a) Default in the payment or performance of any obligation, covenant, or liability secured by this Agreement;
- (b) Any warranty, representation, or statement made or furnished to the Seller by or on behalf of the Buyer proves to have been false in any material respect when made or furnished;
- (c) Any time the Seller reasonably believes that the prospect of payment of any indebtedness secured by this Agreement or the performance of this Agreement is impaired; or
- (d) Death, dissolution, termination of existence, insolvency, business failure, or the commencement of any proceeding under any bankruptcy or insolvency law by or against the Buyer or any guarantor or surety for the Buyer.

Remedies

14. On the occurrence of any event of default, and at any later time, the Seller may, at the Seller's option and without demand or notice to the Buyer, declare all amounts remaining unpaid under this Agreement to be immediately due and payable, and the Seller may proceed to enforce payment and exercise any and all of the rights and remedies provided by the California Commercial Code as well as other rights and remedies either at law or in equity possessed by the Seller. Specifically, the Seller may exercise the following rights:

- (a) Enter the Buyer's premises, render the Goods unusable, and dispose of the Goods on the Buyer's premises in the manner provided by the California Commercial Code.
- (b) Apply the proceeds received from the sale or other disposition of the Goods to, in addition to the items specified in Division 9 of the California Commercial Code, payment of reasonable attorneys' fees and legal expenses incurred by the Seller as a result of the Buyer's default.

Waiver

15. The Seller's acceptance of partial or delinquent payment, or the failure of the Seller to exercise any right or remedy will not be a waiver of any obligation of the Buyer or right of the Seller, will not be a modification of this Agreement or of any of buyer's obligations under this Agreement, and will not constitute a waiver of any other similar default that occurs later.

Attorneys' Fees

16. If _____ [any litigation or specify more limited provision, e.g., any legal action based in contract law] is begun between the parties to this Agreement concerning the Goods, this Agreement, or the rights and duties of either party in relation to them, the prevailing party will be entitled to a reasonable sum as reimbursement for its attorneys' fees and legal expenses.

Notices

17. Except as otherwise expressly provided in this Agreement or by law, any notice or other communication required or permitted by this Agreement or by law to be served on, given to, or delivered to either party to this Agreement by the other party will be in writing and will be considered served, given, delivered, and received when personally delivered to the party to whom it is directed or, in lieu of personal delivery, when it is deposited in the United States mail, first-class postage prepaid, addressed to the Buyer at _____[street address], City of _____, State of California, or to the Seller at _____[street address], City of _____, State of California. Either party, Buyer or Seller, may change its address for the purpose of this paragraph by giving written notice of the change to the other party in the manner provided in this paragraph.

Time of Essence

18. Time is expressly declared to be of the essence of this Agreement.

Governing Law

19. This Agreement will be construed in accordance with the Uniform Commercial Code as enacted in California and other applicable laws of the State of California.

Validity and Construction

20. If one or more of the provisions contained in this Agreement for any reason is held invalid, illegal, or unenforceable, the invalidity, illegality, or unenforceability of that provision will not affect any other provision of this Agreement; and this Agreement will be construed as if the invalid, illegal, or unenforceable provision had never been contained in it.

Definitions

21. All terms used in this Agreement that are defined in the California Commercial Code will have the same meaning in this Security Agreement as in the Code.

Effect on Heirs and Assigns

22. This Agreement and each of its provisions will be binding on the heirs, executors, administrators, legal representatives, successors, and assigns of each of the parties to this Agreement. Nothing contained in this paragraph, however, will be deemed a consent to the sale, assignment, or transfer of the Goods or obligations under this Agreement by the Buyer.

Sole Agreement

23. This instrument constitutes the only agreement between the Buyer and Seller respecting the Goods. It correctly sets forth the rights, and duties of each to the other with respect to the Goods as of its date. Any prior agreements, promises, negotiations, or representations concerning the Goods or payment for the Goods not expressly set forth in this Agreement are no longer in effect.

§ 42.202 Pledge Agreement--Possessory Security Interest in Stock Certificates

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is for use in pledging stock certificates as collateral [see Com. Code § 8102(a)(4) ("certificated security" is security represented by certificate)].

This form is, in essence, a common law pledge agreement [see § 42.10[3][a]]. It uses the common law terminology, which may be preferred by counsel or parties; however, the terminology of the Commercial Code, referring to the lender as the "secured party" and the borrower as the "debtor" may be substituted. The pledgee then would be referred to as the secured party, and the pledgor as the debtor. This pledge agreement is structured as a "hard pledge" [see [b], below].

A financing statement is not used in conjunction with this form [see [c], below], and the form does not contain all the information required of a financing statement.

[b] Secured Financing Arrangements

Secured financing arrangements can be implemented in various ways. In some circumstances, lenders may require that the transactions be structured as "hard pledges," in which securities are transferred on the books of a clearing corporation from the debtor's account to the lender's account or to a special pledge account for the lender in which they cannot be disposed of without the lender's consent. In other circumstances, lenders are content with so-called "agreement to pledge" or "agreement to deliver" arrangements, in which the debtor retains the positions in its own account, but reflects on its books that the positions have been hypothecated and promises that the securities will be transferred to the secured party's account on demand [see Com. Code § 9309 (UCC Comment P 6)]. Hard pledge arrangements are covered by the concept of control [see Com. Code §§ 9314, 9106, 8106; see also [c], below].

Non-control secured financing arrangements for securities firms are covered by the automatic perfection rule of Com. Code § 9309(10) [see Com. Code § 9309 (UCC Comment P 6); see also [c], below].

[c] Perfection of Security Interest in Investment Property

A security interest in investment property, including certificated securities, uncertificated securities, security entitlements, and securities accounts [see Com. Code § 9102 (definitions)] may be perfected by filing [see Com. Code § 9312(a)]. However, security interests created by brokers, security intermediaries [see Com. Code § 8102(a)(14) ("securities intermediary" defined)], or commodity intermediaries [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(17) ("commodity intermediary" defined)] are automatically perfected; filing is of no effect [see Com. Code § 9309(10), (11)]. A security interest in all kinds of investment property may also be perfected by control [see Com. Code §§ 9106, 9314(a)]; and a security interest in a certificated security may also be perfected by secured party's taking delivery under Com. Code § 8301 [see Com. Code § 9313(a); see also Com. Code § 8301].

A security interest perfected only by filing is subordinate to a security interest perfected by control or delivery [see Com. Code § 9328(1), (5)]. Thus, although filing is a permissible method of perfection, a secured party who perfects by filing takes the risk that the debtor has granted or will grant a security interest in the same collateral to another party who obtains control [see Com. Code § 9312 (UCC Comment P 4)]. Perfection by filing would not give the secured party protection against other types of adverse claims, because the Division 8 [see Com. Code § 8101 et seq.] adverse claim cutoff rules require control [see Com. Code § 8510].

For a detailed guide to perfecting security interests, see § 42.121. For discussion of the transfer of investment securities, see Ch. 6K, Nonissuer Transactions in Investment Securities. For other pledge agreement forms, see Ch. 6K, Nonissuer Transactions in Investment Securities, §§ 6K.205-6K.207.

Pledge Agreement--Possessory Security Interest in Stock Certificates

PLEDGE AGREEMENT

This AGREEMENT is entered into on _____ [date], between _____ [name of pledgor] ("Pledgor"), _____ [address of pledgor], and _____ [name of pledgee] ("Pledgee"), _____ [address of pledgee].

Recitals

At the time of the execution of this Agreement, the Pledgee lent the Debtor $ _____, evidenced by the promissory note of the Pledgor dated _____ [date].

To induce the Pledgee to make the loan, the Pledgor has agreed to pledge certain stock to the Pledgee as security for the repayment of the loan.

It is therefore agreed:

Pledge

1. In consideration of the sum of $ _____ lent to the Pledgor by the Pledgee, receipt of which is acknowledged, the Pledgor grants a security interest to the Pledgee in instruments of the following description:

_____[describe by name, number and type of shares and certificate numbers], endorsed in blank and delivered to the Pledgee with this Agreement. The Pledgor appoints the Pledgee _____ its attorney-in-fact to arrange for the transfer of the pledged shares on the books of the issuer to the name of the Pledgee. The Pledgee will hold the pledged shares as security for the repayment of the loan, and will not encumber or dispose of the shares except in accordance with the provisions of Paragraph 8 of this Agreement.

Dividends

2. During the term of this pledge, all dividends and other amounts received by the Pledgee as a result of the Pledgee's record ownership of the pledged shares will be applied to the payment of the principal and interest on the loan.

Voting Rights

3. During the term of this pledge, and as long as the Pledgor is not in default in the performance of any of the terms of this Agreement or in the payment of the principal or interest of the loan, the Pledgor will have the right to vote the pledged shares on all corporate questions. The Pledgee will execute timely proxies in favor of the Pledgor to this end.

Representations

4. The Pledgor warrants that there are no restrictions on the transfer of any of the pledged shares, other than those that may appear on the face of the certificates, and that the Pledgor has the right to transfer the shares free of any encumbrances and without obtaining the consents of the other shareholders.

Adjustments

5. In the event that, during the term of this pledge, any share dividend, reclassification, readjustment, or other change is declared or made in the capital structure of the company that has issued the pledged shares, all new, substituted, and additional shares or other securities issued by reason of any change will be held by the Pledgee in the same manner as the shares originally pledged under this Agreement.

Warrants and Rights

6. In the event that during the term of this pledge, subscription warrants or any other rights or options will be issued in connection with the pledged shares, the warrants, rights, and options will be immediately assigned by the Pledgee to the Pledgor, and if exercised by the Pledgor, all new shares or other securities so acquired by the Pledgor will be immediately assigned to the Pledgee to be held in the same manner as the shares originally pledged under this Agreement.

Payment of Loan

7. On payment at maturity of the principal and interest of the loan, less amounts received and applied by the Pledgee in reduction of the loan, the Pledgee will transfer to the Pledgor all the pledged shares and all rights received by the Pledgee as a result of the Pledgee's record ownership of the pledged shares.

Default

8. In the event that the Pledgor defaults in the performance of any of the terms of this Agreement, or in the payment at maturity of the principal or interest of the loan, the Pledgee will have the rights and remedies provided in the California Commercial Code. In this connection, the Pledgee may, on 10 days written notice to the Pledgor, and without liability for any diminution in price that may have occurred, sell all the pledged shares in the manner and for the price that the Pledgee may determine. At any bona fide public sale the Pledgee will be free to purchase all or any part of the pledged shares. Out of the proceeds of any sale the Pledgee may retain an amount equal to the principal and interest then due on the loan, plus the amount of the expenses of the sale, and will pay any balance of the proceeds of any sale to the Pledgor. If the proceeds of the sale are insufficient to cover the principal and interest of the loan plus expenses of the sale, the Pledgor will remain liable to the Pledgee for any deficiency, in accordance with the provisions set forth in Commercial Code Section 9615.

PART IV. FORMS

A. Creating Security Interests

19-42 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 42.203

AUTHOR: by Ann S. Manheimer, J.D.

§ 42.203 Pledge Agreement--Possessory Security Interest in Notes Secured by Deeds of Trust or Land Sale Contracts

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a security agreement creating a possessory interest in promissory notes secured by real estate deeds of trust or land sales contracts. The agreement is, in essence, a form of pledge agreement [see § 42.10[3][a]]. For a discussion of the terminology used in pledge agreements, see § 42.202[1][a].

[b] Security Interest in Obligation Secured by Non-Division 9 Transaction

Division 9 applies to a security interest in a secured obligation even if the obligation is itself secured by a transaction or interest that is not governed by Division 9 [Com. Code § 9109(b)]. The following example provides an illustration of the circumstances that might arise in connection with the type of agreement set forth in [2], below [see Com. Code § 9109 (UCC Comment 7, Example 1)]:

EXAMPLE:

O borrows $10,000 from M and secures its repayment obligation, evidenced by a promissory note, granting to M a mortgage on O's land. Division 9 does not apply to the creation of the real property mortgage [see Com. Code § 9109(d)(11)]. However, if M sells the promissory note to X or gives a security interest in the note to secure M's own obligation to X, Division 9 does apply to the security interest created in favor of X [see Com. Code § 9109(a)(3)]. The security interest in the promissory note is covered by Division 9, even though the note is secured by a real property mortgage [see Com. Code § 9109(b)]. Also, X's security interest in the note gives X an attached security interest in the mortgage lien that secures the note and, if the security interest in the note is perfected, the security interest in the mortgage lien is likewise perfected [see Com. Code §§ 9203, 9308].

It is implicit from Com. Code § 9109(b) that one cannot obtain a mortgage interest or a lien, such as a mortgage on real property, that is not also coupled with an equally effective security interest in the secured obligation [see Com. Code § 9109 (UCC Comment 7)].

Neither Division 9 nor the definition of "security interest" in Com. Code § 1201(b)(35) provide rules for distinguishing sales transactions from those that create a security interest securing an obligation. Division 9 applies to both transactions. The principal effect of this coverage is to apply Division 9's perfection and priority rules [see Com. Code § 9309(4) (perfection on attachment)] to the sales transactions [see Com. Code § 9109 (UCC Comment 5); Com. Code § 9318 (UCC Comment 2)].

A security interest created by an instrument, including promissory notes [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(65) ("promissory note" defined)] may be perfected by secured party taking possession of the collateral [see Com. Code § 9313(a)]. In addition, a security interest in instruments may be perfected by filing [see Com. Code § 9312(a)]. This rule represents an important change from former Division 9, under which the secured party's possession of an instrument was the only method of achieving long-term perfection [see former Com. Code §§ 9304(1), 9305; see also former Com. Code § 9304(4), (5) (temporary perfection without possession)]. This rule is likely to be particularly useful in transactions involving large number of notes that a debtor uses as collateral but continues to collect from the makers [see Com. Code § 9312 (UCC Comment 2)].

A security interest perfected by filing, however, is subject to defeat by certain subsequent purchasers (including secured parties). For example, purchasers who take possession of an instrument without knowledge that the purchase violates the right of the secured party generally would achieve priority over a security interest in the instrument perfected by filing [see Com. Code § 9330(d)]. In addition, filing a financial statement does not constitute notice that would preclude a subsequent purchaser from becoming a holder in due course and taking free of the claims of Com. Code § 3306, governing claims to instruments [see Com. Code § 9331(c)].

Even though a financing statement need not be prepared and filed to perfect the security interest created by this form, a promissory note ordinarily will be drafted and executed by the debtor contemporaneously with the agreement in this form, to evidence the obligation secured by it. For promissory notes for use with secured transactions, see § 42.200[2] and Ch. 55, Negotiable Instruments.

For a discussion of the requirements for a security agreement, see §§ 42.12 and 42.200[1]. For a detailed guide to drafting security agreements, see § 42.130.

[d] Reasonable Care Requirement

Once in possession of the collateral, the secured party must use reasonable care in the custody and preservation of the collateral. In the case of an instrument, reasonable care includes taking the necessary steps to preserve rights against third parties unless otherwise agreed [Com. Code § 9207(a); see § 42.121]. However, the secured party is not liable for a decline in the value of the instrument even if timely action could have prevented the decline [Hutchison v. Southern Cal. First Nat. Bank (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 572, 581, 103 Cal. Rptr. 816 (decided under prior law)].

[e] Personal and Real Property as Collateral

Because this security agreement is a pledge of promissory notes (classified in the Commercial Code as instruments [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(65)]), secured by interests in real property, the security interest involves the law of both real and personal property. Division 9 applies when an excluded interest, such as real estate, is used as collateral to secure an obligation to a third party [see Com. Code § 9109(b); [b], above].

If an obligation is secured by both personal property or fixtures [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(41) (definition)] and an interest or estate in real property, the secured party may proceed, in any sequence [Com. Code § 9604(a)]:

(1) As to the real property security, in accordance with the secured party's rights and remedies in respect of the real property and, as to the personal property or fixtures, in accordance with the default and enforcement provisions of Division 9;

(2) As to both some or all of the real property and some or all of the personal property or fixtures, in accordance with the secured party's rights and remedies with respect to the real property, by including the selected portion of the personal property or fixtures in the judicial or nonjudicial foreclosure of the real property; or

(3) In accordance with Paragraph 1, above, as to part of the personal property or fixtures, and, in accordance with Paragraph 2, above, as to another part of the personal property or fixtures.

A secured party that exercises rights under the default and enforcement provisions of Division 9 [see Com. Code § 9601 et seq.] with respect to personal property does not prejudice any rights under real property law [see Com. Code § 9604(a)(1)(B)].

For further discussion of the procedure if the security agreement covers real property or fixtures, see §§ 42.16[3][a] and 42.141. For detailed discussions of real property procedures and security instruments, see Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements, and Ch. 25A, Security Instruments for Real Estate Financing, and Ch. 25D, Foreclosure.

[2] FORM

Pledge Agreement--Possessory Security Interest in Notes Secured by Deeds of Trust or Land Sale Contracts

PLEDGE AGREEMENT

This PLEDGE AGREEMENT is entered into on _____ [date], between _____ [name of pledgee] ("Pledgee"), _____ [address of pledgee], and _____ [name of pledgor] ("Pledgor"), _____ [address of pledgor].

Recitals

The Pledgor desires to borrow from the Pledgee, and the Pledgee desires to lend to the Pledgor, the sum of $_____, to be secured by the land sale contracts and promissory notes secured by deeds of trust described in this Pledge Agreement, which are to be pledged as collateral for the obligation described in this paragraph.

It is therefore agreed:

Pledge

1. In consideration of any financial accommodations given or to be given or continued to the Pledgor by the Pledgee, and as collateral security for the payment of any indebtedness, obligation, or liability of the Pledgor to the Pledgee, including but not limited to the obligation of the Pledgor to the Pledgee under the promissory notes executed concurrently with this Pledge Agreement, the Pledgor assigns, transfers to, and deposits with the Pledgee the promissory note(s), deed(s) of trust, and land sale contract(s) described in this Paragraph, delivered by the Pledgor to the Pledgee, or currently held by the Pledgee, and any additional property as may later be delivered by the Pledgor to the Pledgee during the existence of this Pledge Agreement. The note(s), deed(s) of trust, and land sale contract(s) referred to in this paragraph (the "Collateral") are described as follows: _____[describe each item of collateral].

Warranties

2. The Pledgor warrants and represents the following with respect to the Collateral:

- (1) The Pledgor is the absolute owner of the Collateral and the obligations described in the documents that compose the Collateral are due and payable as stated in those documents, and the obligor(s) under the Collateral _____ [is or are] not now in default in any respect as to any obligations under the Collateral.
- (2) The Collateral is not subject to any prior assignment, claim, lien, or security interest, and the Pledgor will not make any further assignment of the Collateral or create any further security interest in the Collateral, and will not permit its rights in the Collateral to be reached by attachment, levy, garnishment, or other judicial process.
- (3) The obligations of the obligors under the Collateral are not subject to any claim for credits, allowances, or adjustments.
- (4) No notice of the bankruptcy or insolvency of any obligor(s) under the Collateral has been received by the Pledgor. On the Pledgor's receipt of any such notice, the Pledgor will immediately give the Pledgee written notice.
- (5) The Pledgor has maintained and will continue to maintain accurate and complete records and accounts of all obligations given as the Collateral, and agrees to permit the Pledgee to inspect these records and accounts. The Pledgor further agrees to submit statements of these account to the Pledgee in any reasonable form prescribed by the Pledgee.

Power of Sale

3. The power of sale and all other powers granted by the Pledgor in this Pledge Agreement will apply to all collateral of any kind, including all moneys, negotiable instruments, bonds, stocks, and commercial paper, credits, choses in action, claims or demands of every kind at any time during the existence of this Pledge Agreement deposited with or in the possession or control of the Pledgee or any of its agents.

Substitution of Collateral

4. If, with the consent of the Pledgee, the Pledgor substitutes or exchanges other collateral, including but not limited to securities or instruments, in the place of the Collateral described in Paragraph 1, then all of the rights of the Pledgee and all of the obligations of the Pledgor under this Pledge Agreement will be applicable to the substituted or exchanged collateral, and will be the same in all respects as the rights and obligations concerning the Collateral originally pledged.

Collection of Collateral

5. The Pledgee will have the right to notify the obligor(s) under the Collateral to make payment directly to it and to take control of all the proceeds of the Collateral, or any part of it, and to enforce any of the obligations of the obligor(s) under the Collateral. The Pledgee may exercise the rights described in this Paragraph at any time, whether or not the Pledgor is then in default under this Pledge Agreement and whether or not the Pledgor had been making collections on the Collateral. Until such time as the Pledgee elects to exercise these rights by mailing written notice to the Pledgor, the Pledgor is authorized to collect payments and to enforce all rights under the Collateral concerning current and past-due payments, but is not authorized to collect any prepayments, fire insurance proceeds, or condemnation awards without the prior written consent of the Pledgee. The costs of collection and enforcement, including attorneys' fees and legal expenses, will be at the expense of the Pledgor. The Pledgor will reimburse any costs or expenses, including attorneys' fees and legal expenses, that are incurred by the Pledgee.

Fire Insurance

6. All fire insurance required to be maintained by the obligor(s) under the terms of the Collateral will be written with loss payable to the Pledgee. The policies, or certificates evidencing the policies, will be furnished to the Pledgee in a form satisfactory to it. If the obligor(s) and Pledgor fail to pay any premium on any such insurance, the Pledgee may, but will not be required to, pay the premium and may add the amount of the premium to the debt secured by this Pledge Agreement. The Pledgor appoints the Pledgee to be its attorney-in-fact to endorse any draft or check that may be payable to the Pledgor in order to collect the proceeds of any such insurance or any condemnation award, and any balance of proceeds remaining after payment in full of all amounts secured by this Pledge Agreement will be paid to the Pledgor. The amount collected under any fire or any other insurance policy and any condemnation award may be applied by the Pledgee to any indebtedness secured by this Pledge Agreement, in any order that the Pledgee may determine, or, at the option of the Pledgee, any or all of the entire amount collected may be released to the Pledgor.

Default

7. The Pledgor will be in default under this Pledge Agreement on the occurrence of any of the following events or conditions:

(a) Default in the payment or performance of any of the obligations, covenants, or liabilities secured by this Pledge Agreement.

(b) Any warranty, representation, or statement made or furnished to the Pledgee by or on behalf of the Pledgor proves to have been false in any material respect when made or furnished.

(c) Death, dissolution, termination of existence, insolvency, business failure, appointment of a receiver for any part of the Collateral, assignment for the benefit of creditors, or the commencement of any proceeding under any bankruptcy or insolvency law by or against the Pledgor.

(d) Any default by any obligor(s) under the terms of the Collateral.

Remedies

8. On the occurrence of any event of default, and at any later time, the Pledgee may declare all the obligations and liabilities of the Pledgor under this Pledge Agreement to become immediately due and payable, notwithstanding any credit or extension of time allowed to the Pledgor by any instrument evidencing any of these liabilities. In addition, the Pledgee may proceed to enforce payment and may exercise any rights and remedies provided by the California Commercial Code, as well as other rights and remedies either at law or in equity possessed by the Pledgee, including but not limited to the following rights:

(a) On notice to the Pledgor as required by the California Commercial Code, the Pledgee may sell or otherwise dispose of the Collateral. The sale may be as a unit or in parts, at any time and place and on any terms, provided the Pledgee acts in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner. Out of the proceeds of any sale, the Pledgee may retain an amount equal to the principal and interest then due on the loan, plus the amount of the expenses of the sale, and will pay any balance of the proceeds of any sale to the Pledgor. The Pledgor agrees to pay to the Pledgee, on demand, whatever balance may be owing on the indebtedness secured by this Pledge Agreement after the sale of the Collateral and the application of the proceeds as provided by this Paragraph and as required by law.

(b) On notice as required by the California Commercial Code, the Pledgee may accept the Collateral in satisfaction of all obligations of the Pledgor secured by this Pledge Agreement. If the Pledgor or other person entitled to receive notice objects in writing within 20 days after notice was sent, the Pledgee must dispose of the Collateral under the terms and conditions provided in paragraph (1), above, or as otherwise authorized by law. In the absence of any written objection, the Pledgee may accept the collateral, without any right of redemption, in full satisfaction of the Pledgor's obligations and indebtedness to the Pledgee.

Attorneys' Fees

9. In the event of _____ [any litigation or specify more limited provision, e.g., any legal action based in contract law] between the parties to this Pledge Agreement, or involving any of them, regarding the rights and obligations of the parties under this Pledge Agreement or any obligation secured by this Pledge Agreement, the prevailing party will be entitled to recover its reasonable attorneys' fees and legal expenses as determined by the court.

Waiver of Rights by Pledgor

10. Each Pledgor, if there is more than one, waives any right to require the Pledgee to (1) proceed against any person, (2) proceed or exhaust any collateral, or (3) pursue any other remedy in the Pledgee's power. Each Pledgor also waives any defense arising from any disability or other defense of any other Pledgor or any other person. Each Pledgor authorizes the Pledgee to (1) take and hold security, other than the Collateral, for the payment of the indebtedness or any part of the indebtedness, and exchange, enforce, waive, and release the Collateral or any part of it or any other security, and (2) release or substitute any other Pledgor.

Prior Agreements Superseded

11. This Pledge Agreement constitutes the only agreement of the parties and supersedes any prior understandings or written or oral agreements between the parties respecting the subject matter of this Pledge Agreement.

Parties Bound

12. This Pledge Agreement is binding on and inures to the benefit of the parties and their respective heirs, executors, administrators, legal representatives, successors, and assigns as permitted by this Pledge Agreement.

Assignment

13. This Assignment of a security interest in the Collateral will be for the benefit of the Pledgee and its successors or assigns. In the event that the Pledgee assigns, endorses, sells, or transfers to any other person or entity the Collateral, or any other notes, evidences of indebtedness, bonds, stocks, or other securities deposited under this Pledge Agreement or secured or intended to be secured by this Pledge Agreement, or any part of it, the assignment or transfer will automatically constitute an assignment and transfer of this Pledge Agreement and all of the rights granted by this Pledge Agreement. The assignee, endorsee, transferee, or successor of the Pledgee will have all of the rights given to the Pledgee in accordance with the terms of this Pledge Agreement.

Time of the Essence

14. Time is of the essence in this Pledge Agreement.

Payments and Notices

15. All payments and notices under this Pledge Agreement or otherwise required by law will be made to the Pledgee at _____[address], and to the Pledgor at _____[address], or to any other address as the party entitled to the payment or notice may designate to the other party in writing.

Satisfaction of Obligation

16. On the satisfaction of all obligations of the Pledgor to the Pledgee, the Pledgee will return to the Pledgor the Collateral and all other documents and securities given as collateral under this Pledge Agreement, and will endorse all instruments to the Pledgor and give an assignment of all of the Collateral, in recordable form.

Applicable law

17. This Pledge Agreement will be construed in accordance with the Uniform Commercial Code as enacted in California and other applicable laws of the State of California.

Validity and Construction

18. In case one or more of the provisions contained in this Agreement will for any reason be held invalid, illegal, or unenforceable in any respect, the invalidity, illegality, or unenforceability of that provision will not affect any other provision of this Pledge Agreement, and this Pledge Agreement will be construed as if the invalid, illegal, or unenforceable provision had never been contained in it.

Commercial Code Definitions Apply

19. All terms used in this Pledge Agreement that are defined in the California Commercial Code will have the same meaning in this Pledge Agreement as in the Code.

§ 42.210 Notice of Intention to Finance Purchase of Inventory

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is for use by a secured party holding a perfected purchase money security interest in inventory. It is a notice of intention to finance the purchase of the inventory.

[b] Priority of Money Purchase Interests in Inventory

A money purchase interest in inventory (and most chattel paper or instruments constituting proceeds of the inventory, as well as identifiable cash proceeds) can achieve priority over an earlier-filed security interest in the same collateral if the purchase money security interest is perfected when the debtor receives possession of the inventory [see Com. Code § 9324(b)(1); see also Com. Code § 9324(g) (exceptions)], and if the purchase money secured party gives notification to a holder of a conflicting security interest who filed against the same item or type of inventory before the purchase money secured party filed or its security interest became perfected temporarily under Com. Code § 9312(f) [see Com. Code § 9324(b)(2)-(4), (c); see also [c], below]. For further discussion of priorities in purchase money security interests, see § 42.15[9].

[c] Timing of Notification to Conflicting Inventory Secured Party

The perfected purchase money security interest achieves priority over a conflicting interest only if the holder of the conflicting security interest receives a notification within five years before the debtor receives possession of the purchase money collateral [Com. Code § 9324(b)(3)]. If the debtor never receives possession, the five year period never begins, and the purchase money security interest has priority, even if notification were not given [see Com. Code § 9324(b)(3); Com. Code § 9324 (UCC Comment P 5)]. However, if the purchase money inventory financing began by the purchase money secured party's possession of a document of title, to retain priority, the secured party must give the required notification at or before the usual time, that is, when the debtor gets possession of the inventory, even though the security interest remains perfected for 20 days under Com. Code § 9312(e) or (f) [see Com. Code § 9324(c); Com. Code § 9324 (UCC Comment P 5)].

[d] Address for Notification

The holder of a purchase money security interest may satisfy the requirement to "send" [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(74) (definition)] notification to the holder of a conflicting security interest in inventory by sending notification to the address provided as that of the secured party on a filed financing statement, even if the address is, or becomes, incorrect [see Com. Code § 9324 (UCC Comment P 5); see also Com. Code §§ 9516(b)(4), 9520(a) (lack of mailing address requires filing office to reject an initial financing statement); Com. Code § 9516 (UCC Comment 5) (function of address); § 42.131 P 2b (NOTE)]. Similarly, because the address is "held out [by the holder of the conflicting security interest] as the place of receipt of these communications [i.e., communications relating to security interests]," the holder is deemed to have "received" a notification sent to that address [Com. Code § 9324 (UCC Comment P 5)].

§ 42.211 National Financing Statement--Form UCC-1

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a reproduction of the national financing statement form (Form UCC-1) approved by the California Secretary of State. The general instructions prepared for use of the form, as well as the filing statement addendum (Form UCC-1Ad) and addendum instructions, are also reproduced below. A California UCC addendum form has also been prepared by the Secretary of State's office for use in connection with the UCC-1 and UCC-3 forms when the names of additional debtors or secured parties. For a reproduction of the California addendum form, see § 42.213.

The Secretary of State's Office advises that use of Form UCC-1 is mandatory for all financing statement filings after July 1, 2001. Non-standard filings will no longer be accepted [see Com. Code §§ 9516(b)(1), 9521(a); see also [d], below].

PRACTICE TIP

ELECTRONIC FORMS NOTE: Electronic copies of this form that may be filled in and printed out for filing can be obtained at the official website of the California Secretary of State, Business Programs Division, which is located at <http://www.sos.ca.gov/business/ucc/ucc.htm>. You may also obtain a copy of this form via email by contacting Matthew Bender & Co. at (800) 424-0651, ext. 405, or emailing us at cal.custquest@bender.com and requesting an electronic copy of CLF Form 42.211. Please be sure to include your email address along with your request and we will provide the form via return email. To view and print these forms, your computer system will require Adobe Acrobat Reader version 3.0 or higher.

For a detailed guide to drafting financing statements, see § 42.131.

[b] Purpose of Financing Statement

The financing statement is the basic tool in the notice-filing scheme of Division 9 of the California Commercial Code for perfecting security interests in collateral [see Com. Code § 9502; Com. Code § 9502 (UCC Comment P 2)]. By filing a financing statement, the secured party puts on record mention of a security interest in generally described collateral and places a duty on third parties to inquire into that security interest [see Borg-Warner Acceptance Corp. v. Bank of Marin (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 286, 288-289, 111 Cal. Rptr. 361 (decided under prior law)]. With specified exceptions, a financing statement must be filed to perfect all security interests and agricultural liens [see Com. Code § 9310(a); see also Com. Code § 9310(b) (exceptions); § 42.14[3]]. For a procedural guide to perfecting security interests, see § 42.121. For a detailed guide to preparing and filing financing statements, see § 42.131.

[c] Debtor Search Reports

Form UCC-1 may also be used to request debtor search reports on some or all debtors named in the financing statement [see Com. Code § 9523(c); Item 7 in [2], below]. A search report will list all financing statements on file against the designated debtor on the date of the report, including the financing statement being filed statement [see Com. Code § 9523(c)]. An additional fee is charged for each report. The Secretary of State's office advises that not all states perform such searches, and not all states will honor a search request using this form (some require a separate request form) [see Item 7 in Instructions in [2], below]. For additional filing information, see [i], below.

Requests for debtor search reports that are not made in conjunction with the filing of a UCC-1 financing statement should be made by filing form UCC-11 [see § 42.216]. Prior to July 1, 2001, debtor search requests were made using the then-current version of Form UCC-3. After July 1, 2001, form UCC-3 is no longer used for this purpose [see § 42.214].

[d] Use of Official Form Required

All financing statements filed after July 1, 2001, must be filed using the official version of Form UCC-1 reproduced here, except that the filing office may not refuse to file a written initial financing statement in the form and format of the Form UCC-1 reproduced here but lacking a space identified for the disclosure of the social security number [Com. Code § 9521(a)]. Prior to July 1, 2001, the Secretary of State's office accepted nonstandard UCC forms for filing, for an additional fee [see former Gov. Code § 12194(b) (repealed eff. July 1, 2001)]. However, the Secretary of State's Office advises that after July 1, 2001, nonstandard filings will no longer be accepted [see Com. Code §§ 9516(b)(1), 9521(a)]. All forms other than the one reproduced here, including national transitional UCC forms, are obsolete and will be rejected by the filing office.

[e] Format of UCC-1 Form

This form contains a special barcode patch in the upper left hand corner. The Secretary of State's office advises that for microfilming purposes, this barcode patch should be clearly printed and kept free of damage. If the barcode patch is altered, including by stapling or photocopying, it causes delays in the Secretary of State's microfilm processing time. The Secretary of State's office recommends that to preserve the effectiveness of the barcode patch, users frequently check their printer's ink quality. Use of dot matrix printers for this purpose is not recommended.

In addition to the barcode patch, the UCC-1 form must be produced in the format prescribed by the Secretary of State's office. It must be 8 1/2 " by 11" and printed on white paper. Submittals that do not conform to these specifications will be rejected.

The Secretary of State's office recommends that all documents filed with that office be filled in by typing or printing on a laser printer, in order to provide sufficient contrast and legibility for microfilming purposes.

If attachments are necessary, use of the Addendum (Form UCC-1Ad, reproduced below) is encouraged. To add additional debtors or secured parties, the California UCC Addendum, reproduced as Form 43.213, should be used.

See the official instructions (reproduced in [2], below) for important additional information on completing Form UCC-1.

[f] Required Information in General

All financing statements must provide the debtor's name [see Com. Code §§ 9502(a)(1), 9516(b)(3)(A); see also Item 1 in [2], below] and mailing address [see Com. Code § 9516(b)(5)(A); see also Item 1c in [2], below]; the name of the secured party and an address from which information about the security interest may be obtained [see Com. Code §§ 9502(a)(2), 9516(b)(4), 9520(a) (lack of mailing address requires filing office to reject an initial financing statement); see also Item 3 in [2], below]; and a statement indicating the types or describing the items of the collateral [see Com. Code § 9502(a)(3); see also Item 4 in [2], below].

A financing statement sufficiently indicates collateral if it provides either a "description" of the collateral [see Com. Code § 9108 (adequacy of description); see also § 42.14[3][b][ii]] or an indication that the financing statement covers all assets or all personal property [Com. Code § 9504(2)]. Such a "super-generic" description of collateral, however, while a sufficient indication of collateral in a financing statement, is inadequate for purposes of a security agreement [see Com. Code §§ 9108, 9203; see also § 42.12[2][c]; Com. Code § 9101 (UCC Comment P 4h))].

A financing statement that substantially satisfies the requirements of Division 9 is effective, even if it has minor errors or omissions, unless the errors or omissions make the financing statement seriously misleading [Com. Code § 9506(a)]. For further discussion of these issues, see § 42.14[3][b][i].

[g] Additional Requirements for Real Property-Related Filings

Additional requirements apply to real property-related filings [see Com. Code § 9502(b)]. If the security interest covers timber to be cut, the financing statement must contain a description of the land concerned [Com. Code § 9203(b)(3)(A)]. Moreover, if the description identifies the location of the property, it must do so accurately [see, e.g., Matter of California Pump & Mfg. Co., Inc. (9th Cir. 1978) 588 F.2d 717, 719 (description is insufficient when collateral is not located in city identified in description, decided under prior law)].

If financing statement is filed as fixture filing [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(40) (definition)] and covers collateral in goods that are or are to become fixtures, the financing statement must [see Com. Code § 9502(b); see also Com. Code § 9516(b)(3)(D)]:

- Indicate that the financing statement covers this type of collateral.
- Indicate that the statement is to be recorded in real property records.
- Provide a description of the real property to which the collateral is related.

The description of the real estate must be specific enough to satisfy the requirements for giving constructive notice if it were contained in a record of the mortgage of the real estate [Com. Code § 9502(b)(3)].

[h] Signature Not Required

There is no statutory requirement that the debtor's signature (or other evidence of authorization) appear on the financing statement [see Com. Code § 9502 (UCC Comment P 3); cf. former Com. Code § 9402(1)], except to the extent that filing offices may choose to employ authentication procedures in connection with electronic communications [Com. Code § 9101 (UCC Comment P 4h)]. Elimination of the signature requirement facilitates paperless filing [Com. Code § 9502 (UCC Comment P 3)]. Accordingly, the form reproduced here does not require a signature.

[i] Copies

If an acknowledgment copy is desired [see Com. Code § 9523(a)], the Secretary of State's office advises that the person filing the statement should send one copy with the original and mark it "acknowledgment copy." If a search is being requested using form UCC-1 [see [c], above], an additional copy for each debtor name to be searched should be included. These additional copies should be marked "search copy."

Separate copies should be made for the debtor and secured party if desired. The version of form UCC-1 in effect prior to July 1, 2001, included separate, appropriately labeled copies for these parties, but the current official form does not.

[j] Fees

The fee for filing and indexing a record is set forth in Gov. Code § 12194(a)-(d) and current fees are listed on the Secretary of State's website which is given in [a], above. Note that current fee amounts are based on the number of pages being filed.

There is no fee with respect to a record of a mortgage which is effective as a financing statement filed as a fixture filing or as a financing statement covering as-extracted collateral or timber to be cut [Com. Code § 9525(d); see Com. Code § 9502(c)]. However, the recording and satisfaction fees that otherwise would be applicable to the record of the mortgage apply [Com. Code § 9525(d)].

[k] Who May File Statement

A person may file an initial financing statement only if one of the following conditions is satisfied [Com. Code § 9509(a)]:

- The debtor authorizes the filing in an authenticated record in accordance with Com. Code § 9509(b) or (c) (discussed below); or
- The person holds an agricultural lien that has become effective at the time of filing and the financing statement covers only collateral in which the person holds an agricultural lien.

By authenticating or becoming bound as debtor by a security agreement, the debtor is deemed by statute to have authorized the filing of an initial financing statement (and an amendment) covering the collateral described in the security agreement or any identifiable proceeds of that collateral; the secured party is not required to obtain a separate authorization [Com. Code § 9509(b)]. Similarly, by acquiring collateral in which a security interest or agricultural lien continues [see Com. Code § 9315(a)(1); § 42.121], the debtor authorizes the filing of an initial financing statement [Com. Code § 9509(c); see Com. Code § 9315(a)(1)].

A person who files an unauthorized record in violation of Com. Code § 9509(a) is liable for a statutory penalty and damages [see Com. Code § 9625(b), (e)(3); see also Com. Code § 9518 (procedure for filing correction statement concerning inaccurate or wrongly filed record)]. Moreover, a filing has legal effect only to the extent it is authorized [see Com. Code § 9510(a)].

[1] Filing Procedure

Financing statements are filed centrally in the Secretary of State's office, or locally, for real estate related collateral, in the office where real estate mortgages are recorded [see Com. Code § 9501(a); see also Com. Code § 9501(d) (special filing provisions for transmitting utilities); § 42.121, P 13d]. The original and acknowledgment copy of the form [see [i], above] are to be sent to the filing officer with the correct filing fee [see [j], above]. The copy will be returned, stamped with the filing date and time. For a detailed guide to the filing procedures, see § 42.121, P 13.

Com. Code § 9519 imposes various filing and indexing requirements on the Secretary of State's office, including a requirement for a two-day turnaround after the Secretary's office initially receives a financing statement [Com. Code § 9519(h)]. The Secretary of State's office has stated that the latter requirement will not be met until an extensive automation project in that office is completed.

§ 42.214 UCC Financing Statement Amendment--Form UCC-3

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a reproduction of the national financing statement amendment form (Form UCC-3) approved by the California Secretary of State. The general instructions prepared for use of the form, as well as the filing statement addendum (Form UCC-3Ad) and addendum instructions, are also reproduced below. A California UCC addendum form has also been prepared by the Secretary of State's office for use in connection with the UCC-1 and UCC-3 forms when the names of additional debtors or secured parties. For a reproduction of the California addendum form, see § 42.213.

Form UCC-3 is used to change information that previously was filed on a financing statement (UCC-1) form [see § 42.211]. It may be used to amend a financing statement [see Com. Code § 9512], to continue a financing statement [see Com. Code § 9515], to terminate [see Com. Code § 9513], or to assign [see Com. Code § 9514] a security interest. The Secretary of State's office will accept only one type of change per form; if more than one change needs to be made, separate forms must be filed.

If a debtor or other person believes that a previous UCC filing indexed under that person's name is inaccurate or was wrongfully filed, that person should file a correction statement [Com. Code § 9518] on Form UCC-5, which is reproduced in § 42.215[2].

The Secretary of State's office has stated that use of Form UCC-3 is mandatory after July 1, 2001.

PRACTICE TIP

ELECTRONIC FORMS NOTE: Electronic copies of this form that may be filled in and printed out for filing can be obtained at the official website of the California Secretary of State, Business Programs Division, which is located at <http://www.sos.ca.gov/business/ucc/ucc.htm>. You may also obtain a copy of this form via email by contacting Matthew Bender & Co. at (800) 424-0651, ext. 405, or emailing us at cal.custquest@bender.com and requesting an electronic copy of CLF Form 42.214. Please be sure to include your email address along with your request and we will provide the form via return email. To view and print these forms, your computer system will require Adobe Acrobat Reader version 3.0 or higher.

The form illustrated here is a reproduction of the Secretary of State's online form referred to above. For important information regarding use of copies of this online form, see [b], below.

This version of Form UCC-3 is the successor to old Form UCC-2. Prior to July 1, 2001, Form UCC-2 was used to record changes in UCC-1 filings, and a different Form UCC-3, Request for Information (Debtor Search Certificate), was in use. After July 1, 2001, Form UCC-2 was superseded by the new Form UCC-3 that is reproduced here, and the former Form UCC-3 was superseded by Form UCC-11, which is now used to request debtor searches [see § 42.216].

[b] Format of UCC-3 Form

This form contains a special barcode patch in the upper left hand corner. The Secretary of State's office advises that for microfilming purposes, this barcode patch should be clearly printed and kept free of damage. If the barcode patch is altered, including by stapling or photocopying, it causes delays in the Secretary of State's microfilm processing time. The Secretary of State's office recommends that to preserve the effectiveness of the barcode patch, users frequently check their printer's ink quality. Use of dot matrix printers for this purpose is not recommended.

In addition to the barcode patch, the UCC-3 form must be produced in the format prescribed by the Secretary of State's office. It must be 8 1/2 " by 11" and printed on white paper. Submittals that do not conform to these specifications will be rejected.

The Secretary of State's office recommends that all documents filed with that office be filled in by typing or printing on a laser printer, in order to provide sufficient contrast and legibility for microfilming purposes.

If attachments are necessary, use of the Addendum (Form UCC-3Ad, reproduced below) is encouraged.

See the official instructions (reproduced in [2], below) for important additional information on completing Form UCC-3.

[c] Copies

If an acknowledgment copy is desired, the Secretary of State's office advises that the person filing the statement should send one copy with the original and mark it "acknowledgment copy."

[d] Fees

The fee for filing and indexing a record is set forth in Gov. Code § 12194(a)-(d) and current fees are listed on the Secretary of State's website which is given in [a], above. Note that current fee amounts are based on the number of pages being filed.

[e] Who May File Statement

For discussion of who may file an initial financing statement [Com. Code § 9509], see § 42.211[1][j]. The same rules apply to amendments adding collateral or a debtor to a financing statement [Com. Code § 9509(a)].

A person may file an amendment other than an amendment that adds collateral covered by a financing statement or an amendment that adds a debtor to a financing statement only if either of the following conditions is satisfied [Com. Code § 9509(d)]:

- The secured party of record [see Com. Code § 9511] authorizes the filing. The secured party of record is required to file a termination statement when the underlying obligation terminates or other specified conditions have been met [see Com. Code § 9513(a), (c)].
- The amendment is a termination statement for a financing statement as to which the secured party of record has failed to file or send a termination statement as required by Com. Code § 9513(a) or (c), the debtor authorizes the filing, and the termination statement indicates that the debtor authorized it to be filed [Com. Code § 9509(d)]. If there is more than one secured party of record for a financing statement, each secured party of record may authorize such a filing [Com. Code § 9509(e)].

[f] Filing Procedure

For discussion of filing procedures for UCC forms filed with the Secretary of State's office, see § 42.211[1][k].

§ 42.215 Financing Statement Correction Statement--Form UCC-5

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is the Secretary of State's official Financing Statement Correction Statement, Form UCC-5. A correction statement may be filed by a debtor when the debtor believes that a previous UCC filing is inaccurate or was wrongfully filed [Com. Code § 9518]. For amendments to a previously filed financing statement when information changes [Com. Code §§ 9509, 9512], continuation statements [Com. Code § 9515], and termination statements [Com. Code § 9513], Form UCC-3 (reproduced in § 42.214) should be used.

PRACTICE TIP

ELECTRONIC FORMS NOTE: Electronic copies of this form that may be printed out and filled in for filing can be obtained at the official website of the California Secretary of State, Business Programs Division, which is located at <http://www.sos.ca.gov/business/ucc/ucc.htm>. You may also obtain a copy of this form via email by contacting Matthew Bender & Co. at (800) 424-0651, ext. 405, or emailing us at cal.custquest@bender.com and requesting an electronic copy of CLF Form 42.215. Please be sure to include your email address along with your request and we will provide the form via return email. To view and print these forms, your computer system will require Adobe Acrobat Reader version 3.0 or higher.

The form illustrated here is a reproduction of the Secretary of State's online form referred to above. For important information regarding use of copies of the online form, see [d], [e], below. Use of the official form is mandatory in California after July 1, 2001. Submissions that do not conform to the form specifications stated below will be rejected.

[b] Statutory Requirements

Com. Code § 9518(a) provides that a person may file in the filing office a correction statement with respect to a record indexed there under the person's name if the person believes that the record is inaccurate or was wrongfully filed. A correction statement, in order to be valid, must do all of the following [Com. Code § 9518(b)]:

- Identify the record to which it relates by both (1) the file number assigned to the initial financing statement to which the record relates; and (2) if the correction statement relates to a record filed or recorded in a filing office described in Com. Code § 9501(a)(1) (relating to as-extracted goods, timber to cut, and fixture filings), the date that the initial financing statement was filed or recorded, and the information specified in Com. Code § 9502(b) [see [e], below, and Item 3 in the form].
- Indicate that it is a correction statement.
- Provide the basis for the person's belief that the record is inaccurate, and indicate the manner in which the person believes the record should be amended to cure any inaccuracy or provide the basis for the person's belief that the record was wrongfully filed.

[c] Effect of Correction on Initial Financing Statement or Other Record

The filing of a correction statement does not affect the effectiveness of an initial financing statement or other filed record [Corp. Code § 9518(c)]. It does, however, afford an aggrieved person the opportunity to state its position in the public record [see UCC § 9-518, Official Comment 2]. The correction statement becomes part of the financing statement as defined in Com. Code § 9102(a)(39) [see UCC § 9-518, Official Comment 2].

The filing of a correction statement does not displace other provisions of Article 9 that impose liability for making unauthorized filings, or failing to file or send a termination statement, nor displace any available judicial remedies [see UCC § 9-518, Official Comment 2].

[d] Printing Requirements

The Secretary of State's office requires that UCC-5 forms must be printed on 8 1/2 " x 11" white paper. The Secretary of State's office also strongly recommends that the form be printed out on a quality laser printer and kept free of damage, so that the special barcode patch located in the upper left hand corner of the form will be clear for microfilming purposes. Use of dot matrix printers is discouraged, and the office recommends that printer ink quality be checked frequently to assure that the barcode patch will be effective. Altering the barcode patch, including by being stapled or photocopied, can cause delays in the Secretary of State's microfilm processing times.

[e] Completing the Form

The official form must be completed as described below to assure that the requirements of Com. Code § 2518 [see [b], above] are met. For additional information, see the official instructions to the form, which are reproduced in [2], below.

- Completion of Items 1 and 4 is mandatory. Either item 2a or 2b must also be completed. Item 3 is required under specified circumstances.
- The type of record involved (financing statement or amendment) must be entered in Item 1a. Additional information, such as the filing date and number, may also be entered. The filing number of the initial financing statement must be entered in Item 1b. Only one filing number may be entered.
- If the correction statement is being filed in the belief that the original statement is inaccurate, Box 2a should be checked. The filer should state the basis for that belief and indicate the manner in which the record should be amended to cure the inaccuracy.

- If the correction statement is being filed in the belief that the original statement was wrongfully filed, the filer should check Box 2b and provide the basis for that belief.

- If the correction statement relates to a record filed or recorded in the office designated for the filing or recording of a record of a mortgage on the related real property, the filing is either (1) as-extracted collateral or timber to be cut, or (2) a fixture filing and the collateral is goods that are or are to become fixtures [see Com. Code § 9501(a)(1)], and the correction statement is also filed in such a filing office, Item 3 must be completed to specify the date and time on which the initial financing statement was filed or recorded.

- The name of the person who authorized the filing of the correction statement must be entered in Item 4. This name must be the same as the name under which the record is indexed.

[f] Fees

The UCC-5 form must be accompanied by a fee of $10 ($20 if it is more than 2 pages long) [Com. Code § 9525; Gov. Code § 12194(b)].

§ 42.216 Information Request--Form UCC-11

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is the Secretary of State's official Information Request, Form UCC-11. This form is used for two purposes:

- To request a search report on a particular debtor [see Com. Code § 9523(c)]; and/or
- To obtain copies of UCC records on file with the Secretary of State's office.

PRACTICE TIP

ELECTRONIC FORMS NOTE: Electronic copies of this form that may be printed out and filled in for filing can be obtained at the official website of the California Secretary of State, Business Programs Division, which is located at <http://www.sos.ca.gov/business/ucc/ucc.htm>. You may also obtain a copy of this form via email by contacting Matthew Bender & Co. at (800) 424-0651, ext. 405, or emailing us at cal.custquest@bender.com and requesting an electronic copy of CLF Form 42.216. Please be sure to include your email address along with your request and we will provide the form via return email. To view and print these forms, your computer system will require Adobe Acrobat Reader version 3.0 or higher.

The form illustrated here is a reproduction of the Secretary of State's online form referred to above. For important information regarding use of copies of the online form, see [d]-[f], below. This version of the national UCC-11 form has been customized by the Secretary of State's office for use in California; filing offices in other states may offer variations in filing options. Use of the official form is mandatory in California after July 1, 2001.

Prior to July 1, 2001, debtor search requests were made using the then-current version of Form UCC-3. These requests should how be made using Form UCC-11 (this form), or, if the search is being requested in conjunction with the filing of a UCC-1 financing statement, by indicating on the UCC-1 form that a search request also is being made [see [b], below]. The current Form UCC-3 [see § 42.214] is completely different from its predecessor of the same number and is no longer used for this purpose.

[b] Debtor Search Made in Conjunction With Filing of Financing Statement

If a debtor search request is being made in conjunction with the filing of a financing statement, the request may be made on the UCC-1 form itself; it is not necessary to file a separate UCC-11 form. For information on requesting search reports on a debtor named in a UCC-1 financing statement at the time the UCC-1 statement is filed, see § 42.211[1][c].

[c] Information Contained in Debtor Search Report

Form UCC-11 may be used to request a search report on a particular debtor (except when the debtor search is made in conjunction with the filing of a UCC-1 financing statement, as discussed in [b], above). Com. Code § 9523(c) provides that the filing office must communicate or otherwise make available in a record all of the following information to any person that requests it:

- Whether there is on file on a date and time specified by the filing office, but not a date earlier than three business days before the filing office receives the request, any financing statement that satisfies all of the following conditions:
 - It designates a particular debtor or, if the request so states, designates a particular debtor at the address specified in the request.
 - It has not lapsed under Com. Code § 9515 with respect to all secured parties of record.
 - If the request so states, it has lapsed under Com. Code § 9515 and a record of which is maintained by the filing office under Com. Code § 9522(a).
- The date and time of filing of each financing statement.
- The information provided in each financing statement.

The filing office may communicate information in any medium. If requested, however, the filing office must communicate information by issuing a written certificate [Com. Code § 9523(d)].

[d] Submitting Request

The Secretary of State requests that the form be typed in or printed on a laser printer.

Each request must relate to one specific debtor. Separate requests must be submitted for each debtor name or variation of a debtor name.

As indicated in the attached instructions [see Item 1 in attached instructions], the exact legal debtor name should be used. The Secretary of State's office notes that there may be records on file in which the exact legal name is not used. It may be possible to address this problem by filing a separate UCC-11 form for each possible name variation.

[e] Requirements for Debtor Search Request

When a search request is being requested, the requesting party must choose one of the following options [see Item 2 and 3 in attached instructions]:

- The box in Item 2a should be checked for a complete search at any address. Searches include unexpired and expired records.
- If the box in Item 3a is checked, the search report will not be produced until the accompanying document and all other documents received on that day have been filed and can be certified.
- If the box in Item 3b is checked, the debtor search is limited to a specific street address. The complete address must be indicated on the UCC-11 form. The Secretary of State will not search by city alone.
- If the box in Item 3c is checked, the debtor search will be limited to a specific date range. The starting and ending dates of that range should be indicated.
- If the box in Item 3d is checked, the debtor search will be limited to a debtor with a specific social security number or federal tax ID number.

All searches by the Secretary of State's office will be certified; hence that box is already checked on the official California version of the UCC-11 form.

[f] Requirements for Copy Request

When copies are being requested, one of the following options in the form must be checked [see Item 2 and 3 in attached instructions]:

- To request copies of records appearing in the search report, check box 2B on the form; or
- To request copies of other records, complete Item 2B for each specific record to be copied. The Secretary of State's office requires that the UCC-1 file number be referenced. There is a limit of 10 file numbers for each UCC-11 form.

[g] Fees

Fees are required for each request, and must accompany the request. The search fee for each request is $10 [Com. Code § 9525; Gov. Code § 12194(a)], and the copy fee for each request is $1 for the first page of record and 50 cents for each additional page [Gov. Code § 12178.1(a)]. Copy fees are based on the number of fees in a record, and exact fees cannot be determined until after reproduction. The Secretary of State advises enclosing a check with the notation "not to exceed $ _____" and states that $35 usually is sufficient. Once the fees have been determined, the check will be completed and a detailed billing sheet returned with the information. The Secretary of State's office requires pre-approval for all requests estimated to exceed $50.

A security interest in fixtures, even if unperfected, has priority over the conflicting interest of a mortgagee or owner of the real estate if either (1) the debtor has a right to remove the goods or (2) the owner or mortgagee has consented in an authenticated record [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(7) ("authenticate" defined); Com. Code § 9102(a)(69) ("record" defined)] to the security interest or has disclaimed an interest in the goods as fixtures [Com. Code § 9334(f)]. This form contains the consent of the owner or mortgagee to the secured party's security interest.

PART IV. FORMS

D. Statement of Account or List of Collateral

19-42 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 42.230

AUTHOR: by Ann S. Manheimer, J.D.

§ 42.230 Request for Statement of Account or List of Collateral

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form includes a request for an accounting of unpaid obligations, a request for a statement of the amount due on the debtor's obligations secured by collateral, and a request regarding a list of collateral securing an obligation [see Com. Code § 9210(a)]. The debtor may choose among the requests, as appropriate.

For discussion of the secured party's reply to the request, see § 42.231.

[b] Requests by Debtors Only

Because the creditors of and prospective purchasers from a debtor may need more information than that disclosed by a financing statement filed under Com. Code § 9501 et seq. [see § 42.131 (detailing limited information disclosed in financing statement)], the debtor may submit a request for an accounting of unpaid obligations, a request for a statement of the amount due on the debtor's obligations secured by collateral, or a request regarding a list of collateral securing an obligation [see Com. Code § 9210(a)]. However, because the secured party should not be under a duty to disclose details of the debtor's financial affairs to any casual inquirer or competitor, the debtor, alone, has the right to request this information [see Com. Code § 9210 (UCC Comment 3)].

[c] Permitted Types of Requests

The debtor may request three types of information by submitting three types of "requests" [see Com. Code § 9210(a)(1) ("request" defined)] to the secured party. First, the debtor may request the secured party to prepare and send an "accounting" [Com. Code § 9210(a)(2); see Com. Code § 9102(a)(4) ("accounting" defined)]. A "request for an accounting" is a record authenticated by a debtor requesting that the recipient provide an accounting of the unpaid obligations secured by collateral and reasonably identifying the transaction or relationship that is the subject of the request [Com. Code § 9210(a)(2)]. An "accounting" in this context must indicate the aggregate unpaid secured obligations as of a date not more than 35 days earlier or 35 days later than the date of the record [Com. Code § 9102(a)(4)].

Second, the debtor may submit to the secured party a list of collateral for the secured party's approval or correction [Com. Code § 9210(a)(3)]. A "request regarding a list of collateral" is a record authenticated by a debtor requesting that the recipient approve or correct a list of what the debtor believes to be the collateral securing an obligation and reasonably identifying the transaction or relationship that is the subject of the request [Com. Code § 9210(a)(3)].

Third, the debtor may submit to the secured party for its approval or correction a statement of the aggregate amount of unpaid secured obligations [Com. Code § 9210(a)(4)]. A "request regarding a statement of account" is a record authenticated by a debtor requesting that the recipient approve or correct a statement indicating what the debtor believes to be the aggregate amount of unpaid obligations secured by collateral as of a specified date and reasonably identifying the transaction or relationship that is the subject of the request [Com. Code § 9210(a)(4)].

Because a secured party may have numerous transactions and relationships with a debtor, each request must identify the relevant transaction or relationships [see Com. Code § 9210(a)(2)-(4)].

The secured party must respond to a request within 14 days following receipt of the request [see Com. Code § 9210(b), (c); see also § 42.231]. Similarly, a party that receives a request, claims no interest in the collateral or the obligations when it receives the request, but claimed an interest in the collateral or obligations at an earlier time, must respond within 14 days after receipt [see Com. Code § 9210(d), (e); § 42.231[1][c]].

[d] No Waiver of Request Rights Permitted

The debtor's rights under this statutory provision may not be waived or varied [see Com. Code § 9602(2); see also Com. Code § 9625(f) (remedies for noncompliance)].

[e] Limitation on Free Responses to Requests

A debtor is entitled to receive from the secured party one free response to each type of request (that is, three free responses) during a six-month period [see Com. Code § 9210(f)].

§ 42.231 Secured Party's Reply to Debtor's Request for Statement and Request for Payment of Charge

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is for use by a secured party in reply to the debtor's request for an accounting of unpaid obligations, a request for a statement of the amount due on the debtor's obligations secured by collateral, or a request regarding a list of collateral securing an obligation [see Com. Code § 9210(a); see also § 42.230].

For a debtor's forms for request, see § 42.230.

[b] Contents of Reply

In the case of a request for an accounting, the secured party, other than a buyer of accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, or promissory notes or a consignor, must comply with the request by authenticating and sending to the debtor an accounting [Com. Code § 9210(b)(1)]. In the case of a request regarding a list of collateral or a request regarding a statement of account, the secured party, other than a buyer of accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, or promissory notes or a consignor, must comply by authenticating and sending to the debtor an approval or correction [Com. Code § 9210(b)(2)]. A secured party that claims a security interest in all of a particular type of collateral owned by the debtor may comply with a request regarding a list of collateral by sending to the debtor an authenticated record including a statement to that effect [Com. Code § 9210(c)].

An "accounting" in this context must indicate the aggregate unpaid secured obligations as of a date not more than 35 days earlier or 35 days later than the date of the record [Com. Code § 9102(a)(4)].

[c] Recipients Claiming No Interest in Transaction

A debtor may be unaware that a creditor with whom it has dealt has assigned its interest or the secured obligation. Recipients of requests for an accounting or regarding a list of collateral or a statement of account have a duty to inform the debtor that they claim no interest in the collateral or secured obligation, respectively, and to inform the debtor of the name and mailing address of any known assignee or successor to the recipient's interest in the collateral [see Com. Code § 9210(d), (e)].

[d] Timeliness of Reply

The secured party must respond to a request within 14 days following receipt of the request [see Com. Code § 9210(b), (c); see also Com. Code § 9625(f) (remedies for noncompliance)].

[e] Limitation on Free Responses to Requests

A debtor is entitled to receive from the secured party one free response to each type of request (that is, three free responses) during a six-month period [see Com. Code § 9210(f)].

19-42 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 42.240

AUTHOR: by Ann S. Manheimer, J.D.

§ 42.240 Notice Before Disposition of Collateral--General

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is for use by a secured party to notify specified persons of the disposition of collateral after default [see Com. Code § 9610; see also § 42.16[3][h]]. This form is for use when the disposition does not involve a consumer goods transaction [see Com. Code § 9613]. For a notification relating to disposition of collateral in a consumer goods transaction, see § 42.241.

For discussion of default generally, see § 42.16. For a detailed guide to procedures on default, see § 42.141.

[b] Secured Party's Right to Dispose of Collateral After Default

A secured party after default may sell, lease, or otherwise dispose of any or all of the collateral in its present condition or following any commercially reasonable preparation or processing [Com. Code § 9610(a)].

Unless the collateral is perishable, threatens to decline speedily in value, or is of a type customarily sold on a recognized market [Com. Code § 9611(d)], the secured party must send a reasonable authenticated notification of disposition [Com. Code § 9611(b); see Com. Code § 9610(b) (every aspect of disposition, including method, manner, place, and other terms, must be commercially reasonable)]. The notification must be reasonable in the manner in which it is sent, that is, a reasonable time before the disposition is to take place [see Com. Code § 9612 (timeliness of notification); see also [c], below] and in its content [see Com. Code § 9613 (contents of notification generally); see also [d], below; Com. Code § 9614 (contents of notification in consumer goods transactions); § 42.241].

If commercially reasonable, a secured party may dispose of collateral by public or private proceedings, by one or more contracts, as a unit or in parcels, and at any time and place and on any terms [Com. Code § 9610(b)].

[c] Timeliness of Notification

Whether a notification is sent within a reasonable time is generally a question of fact [Com. Code § 9612(a)]. However, in a transaction other than a consumer transaction, a notification of disposition sent after default and 10 days or more before the earliest time of disposition set forth in the notification is sent within a reasonable time before the disposition [Com. Code § 9612(b)].

[d] Contents of Notification

Except in a consumer-goods transaction, the contents of a notification of disposition are sufficient if the notification does all of the following [Com. Code § 9613(1)]:

- Describes the debtor and the secured party.
- Describes the collateral that is the subject of the intended disposition.
- States the method of intended disposition.
- States that the debtor is entitled to an accounting of the unpaid indebtedness and states the charge, if any, for an accounting.
- States the time and place of a public sale or the time after which any other disposition is to be made.

Whether the contents of a notification that lacks any of the required information are nevertheless sufficient is a question of fact [Com. Code § 9613(2)]. However, the contents of a notification providing substantially the required information is sufficient, even if the notification includes either information not specified by Com. Code § 9613(1) or minor errors that are not seriously misleading [Com. Code § 9613(3)].

No particular phrasing of the notification is required [Com. Code § 9613(4)]. However, except in a consumer goods transaction, the contents of a notification that includes the information contained in [2], below, is sufficient as a matter of law, unless the parties agree otherwise [see Com. Code § 9613(5); Com. Code § 9613 (UCC Comment P 2)]. The required contents of a form of notification before disposition of collateral in a consumer goods transaction is contained in § 42.241[2].

[e] Parties Entitled to Notification

The secured party must send notification of disposition to all of the following persons:

- The debtor [Com. Code § 9611(c)(1)].
- Any secondary obligor [Com. Code § 9611(c)(2)].
- If the collateral is other than consumer goods to both of the following persons:
 - Any other person from which the secured party has received, before the notification date [see Com. Code § 9611(a) (definition)], an authenticated notification of a claim of an interest in the collateral [Com. Code § 9611(c)(3)(A)].
 - Any other secured party or lienholder that, ten days before the notification date, held a security interest in or other lien on the collateral perfected by the filing of a financing statement that (1) identified the collateral; (2) was indexed under the debtor's name as of that date, and (3) was filed in the office in which to file a financing statement against the debtor covering the collateral as of that date [Com. Code § 9611(c)(3)(B); see Com. Code § 9611(e) (safe harbor provision)].

- Any other secured party that, 10 days before the notification date, held a security interest in the collateral perfected by compliance with a statute, regulation, or treaty described in Com. Code § 9311(a), such as a certificate-of-title statute [Com. Code § 9611(c)(3)(C); see § 42.14[3]].

A secured party, however, is relieved of the duty to send notification to a debtor or secondary obligor unknown to the secured party [Com. Code § 9605].

In addition, there is a "safe harbor" provision that takes into account the delays that may be attendant to receiving information from a public filing office. A secured party generally will be deemed to have satisfied its notification duty under Com. Code § 9611(c)(3)(B) (see discussion, above) if it requests a search from the proper office at least 20, but not more than 30 days before sending notification to the debtor and it also sends a notification to all secured parties (and other lienholders) reflected in the search report [Com. Code § 9611(e)(1)]. The secured party's duty under this provision will also be satisfied if the secured party requests, but does not receive, a search report before the notification is sent to the debtor [Com. Code § 9611(e)(2)]. However, this safe harbor provision has no effect on the requirements of other paragraphs of Com. Code § 9611(c) [see Com. Code § 9611(e); Com. Code § 9611 (UCC Comment P 4)].

[f] Remedies for Noncompliance

The holder of a conflicting security interest may have the right to recover any loss caused by the secured party's failure to comply with these notification provisions [see Com. Code § 9625(b)].

[g] Waiver

A debtor or secondary obligor may waive the right to notification only by a post-default authenticated agreement [see Com. Code § 9624(a); § 42.242].

CHAPTER 42 SECURED TRANSACTIONS

PART IV. FORMS

E. Remedies After Default by Debtor

19-42 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 42.241

AUTHOR: by Ann S. Manheimer, J.D.

§ 42.241 Notice Before Disposition of Collateral--Consumer Goods Transaction

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is for use by a secured party to notify specified persons of the disposition of collateral after default [see Com. Code § 9610; see also § 42.16[3][h]]. This form is for use when the disposition involves a consumer goods transaction [see Com. Code § 9614]. For a form for notification relating to disposition of collateral in transaction that is not a consumer goods transaction, see § 42.240[2].

For discussion of the secured party's right of disposition after default, see § 42.240[1][b]. For further discussion of notification before disposition of collateral, including timeliness of notification, parties entitled to notification, remedies for noncompliance, and waiver, see § 42.240[1][c]-[g]. For coverage of default generally, see § 42.16. For a detailed guide to procedures on default, see § 42.141.

[b] Contents of Notification in Consumer Goods Transaction

In a consumer goods transaction, a notification of disposition must provide all of the following information [Com. Code § 9614(1)]:

- Description of the debtor and the secured party.
- Description of the collateral that is the subject of the intended disposition.
- Statement of the method of intended disposition.
- Statement that the debtor is entitled to an accounting of the unpaid indebtedness and states the charge, if any, for an accounting.

- Statement of the time and place of a public sale or the time after which any other disposition is to be made.
- Description of any liability for a deficiency of the person to which the notification is sent.
- Telephone number from which the amount that must be paid to the secured party to redeem the collateral is available [see Com. Code § 9623 (right to redeem collateral)].
- Telephone number or mailing address from which additional information concerning the disposition and the obligation secured is available.

A particular phrasing of the notification is not required [Com. Code § 9614(2)]. However, a notification that lacks any of the information set forth above is insufficient as a matter of law [see Com. Code § 9614(1); Com. Code § 9614 (UCC Comment P 2); cf. Com. Code § 9613(2) (trier of fact may find notification to be sufficient even if it lacks some information listed in Com. Code § 9613(1); § 42.240[1][d]]].

The notification form in [2], below [see Com. Code § 9614(3) (statutory form)], when completed, provides sufficient information [Com. Code § 9614(3)]. It is sufficient even if additional information appears at the end of the form [Com. Code § 9614(4)]. In addition, this form of notification is sufficient even if it includes errors in information not required by Com. Code § 9614(1) (see above), unless the error is misleading with respect to rights arising under Division 9 [Com. Code § 9614(5)]. However, if a notification before disposition of collateral in a consumer goods transaction is not in the form in [2], below, law other than Division 9 determines the effect of including information not required by Com. Code § 9614(1) [Com. Code § 9614(6)].

[c] Strict Compliance Required

Strict compliance with these notice requirements has been deemed necessary by the courts under the version of Division 9 in effect prior to July 1, 2001 [see C.I.T. Corp. v. Anwright Corp. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1420, 1422-1424, 237 Cal. Rptr. 108 (decided under prior law)]. In one case, a California appellate court held that a bank's notice failed to comply with the specific notice requirements of former Com. Code § 9504(3) (now see Com. Code §§ 9611-9614) because it failed to state, expressly or impliedly, whether the sale would be public or private. The bank's notice stated in part: "Notice Is Hereby Given of the undersigned's intent to sell the repossessed motor vehicle at the expiration of 5 days from the date this notice was mailed ... and 'by private or public sale whichever deems [sic] necessary at redemption address at close of business day.' " The court found that the content of the notice was defective because it did not contain sufficient information to ascertain with specificity the type of sale the bank intended to undertake. The language of the notice arguably suggested either a public or a private sale. It specified the time and place of a possible public sale, but also might be read to indicate the date after which a private sale would take place. The court noted that California law mandates strict compliance with the (former) Com. Code § 9504(3) (now see Com. Code § 9611-9614) notice requirement; it does not permit the creditor to leave the debtor guessing regarding the type of sale contemplated [Union Safe Deposit Bank v. Floyd (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 25, 29-31, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 36 (decided under prior law)].

Although there is as yet no authority expressly applying a strict compliance standard to the revised Division 9 that became effective on July 1, 2001, it would appear that this approach is still applicable, at the very least, to consumer transactions [see [b], above].

[d] Disposition of Motor Vehicle at Public Sale Generally

If the collateral is a motor vehicle, a public disposition includes, but is not limited to, the following defined categories [

Com. Code § 9614(7)]:

- Retail disposition by a retail seller of motor vehicles who offers the collateral for sale or lease to the general public in the same manner as goods that the seller disposes of on the seller's own behalf.
- Retail disposition made subsequent to advertising in a publication with a recognized ability to attract retail motor vehicle buyers and lessees and in a manner designed to reach the retail buying and leasing public for vehicles of that type and condition.

For these dispositions, the secured creditor must ensure that the consumer has reasonable access to the motor vehicle in question in order to be able to exercise the right to inspect the motor vehicle [Com. Code § 9614(8)].

Nothing in these provisions is to be construed to alter or disturb any right to inspect a consumer good prior to sale under existing law [Com. Code § 9614(9)]. In addition, nothing in this statute is to be construed to alter or disturb the holding in Bank of America v. Lallana (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 203, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 910, 960 P.2d 1133 (discussed in [e], below) [see Stats. 2000 ch. 188, § 2]. This statute does not define "public" and "private" sales and dispositions in general, but describes a limited subset of "public" sales and dispositions when the consumer goods collateral is a motor vehicle [see Stats. 2000 ch. 188, § 2]. In addition, nothing in this statute is to be construed to alter or disturb any applicable requirements contained in the Rees-Levering Automobile Sales Finance Act [see Stats. 2000 ch. 188, § 2; see also Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.; [e], below].

[e] Disposition Pursuant to Rees-Levering Act

To obtain a deficiency judgment, a secured creditor who sells a defaulting debtor's repossessed car must comply with both the provisions of the Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act [see Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.; Ch. 47, Automotive Financing and Vehicle Leasing] and with any relevant provisions in Division 9 of the Commercial Code [Bank of America v. Lallana (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 203, 206, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 910, 960 P.2d 1133] . Civ. Code § 2983.2(a) requires a creditor to give the debtor written notice of its intent to dispose of a repossessed car. Civ. Code § 2983.2(a) specifies that except as otherwise provided in Civ. Code § 2983.8, the debtor will be liable for any deficiency after disposition of the repossessed motor vehicle if the creditor gives the debtor requisite timely notice and provides statutorily specified information. Civ. Code § 2983.8 provides that no deficiency judgment will lie after any sale or other disposition of a motor vehicle unless the court has determined that the sale or other disposition was in conformity with the provisions of both the Rees-Levering Act and the relevant provisions of Division 9, including Com. Code § 9504.

In Bank of America v. Lallana [Bank of America v. Lallana (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 203, 206, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 910, 960 P.2d 1133] , the debtor's car was sold at a public auction. The California Supreme Court determined that the secured creditor gave proper notice pursuant to the Rees-Levering Act, but because it failed to give the debtor proper notice of a public sale pursuant to former Com. Code § 9504(3) (notice of both the time and place of sale; now see Com. Code § 9611, 9614), it was precluded from obtaining a deficiency judgment [Bank of America v. Lallana (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 203, 206, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 910, 960 P.2d 1133] . For further discussion, see Ch. 47, Automotive Financing and Vehicle Leasing, § 47.203.

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is for use by a debtor or any secondary obligor to waive its right to notification of an intended disposition of collateral by the secured party after the debtor has defaulted on the obligation [see Com. Code § 9624(a)].

The debtor may waive this right of notification only by an agreement to that effect, entered into and authenticated after default [Com. Code § 9624(b)].

For discussion of the secured party's right to dispose of the collateral after default, see § 42.240[1][b]. For a notice when the disposition does not involve a consumer goods transaction, see § 42.240[2]. For a form for notification relating to disposition of collateral in a consumer goods transaction, see § 42.241[2]. For discussion of default generally, see § 42.16. 19-42 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 42.243

AUTHOR: by Ann S. Manheimer, J.D.

§ 42.243 Demand by Subordinate Secured Party for Satisfaction of Subordinate Debt

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is for use by the holder of a subordinate security interest in or other subordinated lien on collateral to demand that the senior secured party satisfy the subordinate obligation from the proceeds of the disposition of the collateral securing both debts, after the debtor has defaulted [see Com. Code § 9615(a)(3)].

For a discussion of default procedures generally, see §§ 42.16, 42.141, and 42.142.

The proceeds of the disposition by the senior secured party of collateral after default must be applied as follows:

- First, to repay the reasonable expenses of the senior secured party in retaking, holding, preparing for disposition, and disposing of the collateral, including reasonable attorneys' fees and legal expenses if provided for in the agreement and not prohibited by law [Com. Code § 9615(a)(1)].
- Second, to satisfy the obligations secured by the security interest or agricultural lien under which the disposition is made [Com. Code § 9615(a)(2)].
- Third, to satisfy any subordinate security interest in or other lien on the collateral and to the satisfaction of any subordinate attachment lien or execution lien in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 701.040, if both of the following conditions are met [Com. Code § 9615(a)(3)]:
 - The secured party receives from the holder of the subordinate security interest or other lien an authenticated demand for proceeds or notice of the levy of attachment or execution before distribution of the proceeds is completed.

■ In a case in which a consignor [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(21) (definition)] has an interest in the collateral, the subordinate security interest or other lien is senior to the interest of the consignor.

Thus, this authenticated demand should be served on the senior secured party as soon as the holder of the subordinate security interest receives notice of the proposed disposition [see §§ 42.240, 42.241].

The secured party who conducts the distribution of proceeds may request that any person claiming a subordinate security interest furnish reasonable proof of the interest within a reasonable time [Com. Code § 9615(b); see § 42.244]. If the subordinate secured party fails to furnish the proof requested, the secured party is not required to comply with the demand for satisfaction of the obligations secured by the subordinate security interest or subordinate lien [Com. Code § 9615(b)]. Accordingly, this form includes data concerning the financing statement involved and states that a copy of the financing statement is enclosed.

§ 42.244 Request by Secured Party for Proof of Demand for Satisfaction of Subordinate Debt

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

If a subordinate secured party demands to share in the proceeds of a sale of collateral after default by the debtor [see § 42.243], the senior secured party conducting the sale may request reasonable proof of the subordinate party's interest in the collateral [see Com. Code § 9615(b)]. This form may be used to make such a request.

[b] Consequences of Noncompliance with Senior Secured Party's Request

PART IV. FORMS

19-42 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 42.246

AUTHOR: by Ann S. Manheimer, J.D.

§ 42.246 Notice of Intention to Accept Collateral in Satisfaction of Obligation

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is for use by a secured party who, after default, elects to accept collateral in full or partial satisfaction of the obligation it secures [see Com. Code § 9620(a); see [b], below]. This form is a notice of the secured party's proposal to accept the collateral, as required by the Commercial Code [see Com. Code §§ 9620, 9621].

Counsel should modify this form to fit the circumstances of the particular case. For example, if the security interest has been perfected by means other than the filing of a financing statement [see § 42.121], the reference to a financing statement should be deleted.

[b] Conditions for Acceptance

Except in consumer transactions [see Com. Code § 9620(g) (secured party may not accept collateral in partial satisfaction of obligation it secures); see also [c], below], a secured party may accept collateral in full or partial satisfaction of the obligation it secures if all of the following conditions are satisfied [Com. Code § 9620(a)(1)-(3)]:

- The debtor consents to the acceptance [see Com. Code § 9620(c) (conditions to effective acceptance); [c], below].
- The secured party does not receive, within the prescribed time period [see Com. Code § 9620(d)], a notification of objection to the proposal to accept the collateral, authenticated by either a person to which the secured party was required to send the proposal or any other person, other than the debtor, holding an interest in the collateral subordinate to the security interest that is the subject of the proposal [see Com. Code § 9621 (notification requirements)].

- If the collateral is consumer goods, the collateral is not in the possession of the debtor when the debtor consents to the acceptance.
- Com. Code § 9620(e), which imposes an obligation on the secured party to dispose of consumer goods under certain circumstances, does not require the secured party to dispose of the collateral, or the debtor waives the requirement [Com. Code § 9620(a)(4); see Com. Code § 9624(b) (waiver); § 42.248].

To ensure that the debtor cannot unilaterally cause an acceptance of collateral, the statute also provides that compliance with the conditions enumerated above [see Com. Code § 9620(a)] is necessary, but not sufficient to cause an acceptance of collateral [see Com. Code § 9620(b)(2); Com. Code § 9620 (UCC Comment P 5)]. Rather, acceptance does not occur unless, in addition, the secured party consents to the acceptance in an authenticated record, or sends the debtor a proposal [see Com. Code § 9620(b)(1); [2], below; see also Com. Code § 9102(a)(66) ("proposal" defined)].

Following a proposal, acceptance of collateral is automatic once the secured party becomes bound and the time for objection has passed [see Com. Code § 9620(c); see also Com. Code § 9620(d) (when objection is timely and thus prevents acceptance of collateral from taking effect); § 42.247].

[c] Effect of Acceptance

A secured party's acceptance of collateral in full or partial satisfaction of the obligation it secures does all of the following [Com. Code § 9622(a)]:

- Discharges the obligation to the extent consented to by the debtor.
- Transfers to the secured party all of a debtor's rights in the collateral.
- Discharges the security interest or agricultural lien that is the subject of the debtor's consent and any subordinate security interest or other subordinate lien.
- Terminates any other subordinate interest.

A subordinate interest is discharged or terminated, even if the secured party fails to comply with Division 9 [Com. Code § 9622(b)].

[d] Contents of Proposal

A proposal need not take any particular form, as long as it sets forth the terms under which the secured party is willing to accept collateral in satisfaction [see Com. Code § 9620 (UCC Comment P 4)]. A proposal to accept collateral should specify the amount (or a means of calculating the amount, such as by including a per diem accrual figure) of the secured transactions to be satisfied, state the conditions, if any, under which the proposal may be revoked, and describe any other applicable conditions [see Com. Code § 9620 (UCC Comment P 4)]. Note, however, that a conditional proposal generally requires the debtor's agreement in order to take effect [see Com. Code § 9620(c)(2)(A)].

[e] Persons Entitled to Notification

The secured party must send a proposal to the debtor only if the debtor does not agree to an acceptance in an authenticated record as described in Com. Code § 9620(c)(1) or Com. Code § 9620(c)(2). Under those provisions, the debtor may consent by agreeing to acceptance in writing after default [Com. Code § 9620(c)(1), (2)]. Alternatively, the debtor consents if the secured party sends a proposal to the debtor and does not receive an objection within 20 days [

Com. Code § 9620(c)(2)].

The secured party must send notification of its proposal to all of the following third parties [Com. Code § 9621(a)]:

- Any person from whom the secured party has received, before the debtor consented to the acceptance, an authenticated notification of a claim of an interest in the collateral.
- Any other secured party or lienholder that held, 10 days before the debtor consented to the acceptance, a security interest in or other lien on the collateral perfected by the filing of a financing statement that (1) identified the collateral; (2) was indexed under the debtor's name as of that date; and (3) was filed in the office or offices in which to file a financing statement against the debtor covering the collateral as of that date.
- Any other secured party that held, 10 days before the debtor consented to the acceptance, a security interest in the collateral perfected by compliance with a statute, regulation, or treaty described in Com. Code § 9311(a) [see § 42.14[3][a]].

A secured party that desires to accept collateral in partial satisfaction of the obligation it secures also must send its proposal to any secondary obligor [Com. Code § 9621(b)].

[f] Damages

A person to whom the required notice was not sent has the right to recover damages under Com. Code § 9625(b) [see Com. Code § 9625(b); Com. Code § 9620 (UCC Comment P 2)].

[g] Special Rules in Consumer Cases

Under some circumstances, the secured party has an obligation to dispose of consumer goods. A secured party that has taken possession of collateral must dispose of the collateral [see Com. Code § 9610 (disposition of collateral after default at public or private sale)] if 60 percent of the cash price has been paid in the case of a purchase money security interest in consumer goods, or if 60 percent of the principal amount of the obligation secured has been paid in the case of a nonpurchase money security interest in consumer goods [Com. Code § 9620(e)].

The secured party must dispose of this collateral within 90 days of taking possession, or within any longer period to which the debtor and all secondary obligors have agreed in an agreement entered into and authenticated after default [Com. Code § 9620(f)].

An effective acceptance of collateral cannot occur if such a disposition is required, unless the debtor waives this requirement [see Com. Code § 9624(b); § 42.248].

The secured party in consumer transactions may not accept collateral in partial satisfaction of the obligation it secures [Com. Code § 9620(g)]. If a secured party attempts an acceptance in partial satisfaction in a consumer transaction, the attempted acceptance is void [see Com. Code § 9620 (UCC Comment P 12)].

§ 42.247 Objection to Secured Party's Acceptance of Collateral

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form may be used by debtors and subordinate secured parties who receive notice of the senior secured party's intention to accept collateral in full or partial satisfaction of the obligation [see § 42.246] to object to the proposed acceptance of collateral.

For discussion of the acceptance of collateral in full or partial satisfaction of the obligation it secures, see § 42.246. For discussion of disposition of collateral after default, see § 42.240[1][b].

[b] Timeliness of Objection

To be effective, a notification of objection must be received by the secured party as follows [Com. Code § 9620(d)]:

- In the case of a person to which the proposal was sent in accordance with Com. Code § 9621 [see § 42.246[1][e]], within 20 days after notification was sent to that person.
- In the case of other objecting parties (that is, third parties who are not entitled to notification) (1) within 20 days after the last notification was sent in accordance with Com. Code § 9621, or, (2) if a notification was not sent, before the debtor agrees to acceptance in writing or is deemed to have consented by silence [see Com. Code § 9620(c); see also § 42.246[1][e]].

§ 42.248 Waiver or Modification of Right by Debtor Who Has Made Substantial Payments on Obligation Secured by Consumer Goods to Require Disposition of Collateral

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a waiver of the special right a debtor has after default to have the collateral sold in a commercially reasonable manner if the collateral is consumer goods and the debtor has paid at least 60 percent of the cash price, in the case of a purchase money security interest in consumer goods, or at least 60 percent of the principal amount of the obligation secured has been paid, in the case of a nonpurchase money security interest in consumer goods [Com. Code § 9624(b); see Com. Code § 9620(e)]. The waiver provision in this form must be signed by the debtor after default; it cannot be signed in advance or as part of the original security transaction [see Com. Code § 9624(b)].

[b] Effect of Failure to Consent to Waiver

In effect, the secured party must obtain the debtor's written consent to any retention of collateral after default in discharge of the debt. If the debtor refuses to sign a waiver, the secured party must dispose of this collateral within 90 days of taking possession, or within any longer period to which the debtor and all secondary obligors have agreed in an agreement entered into and authenticated after default [Com. Code § 9620(f); see Com. Code § 9610 (commercially reasonable disposition after default)].

For detailed coverage of default procedures, see §§ 42.141, 42.142.

Except in a consumer goods transaction, a debtor or secondary obligor may waive the right to redeem collateral [see Com. Code § 9623] only by an agreement to that effect entered into and authenticated after default [Com. Code § 9624(c)]. Thus, the waiver of the right to redeem cannot be executed in advance or as part of the original security agreement [see Com. Code § 9624(c)].

Absent such a waiver, the debtor or another secured party may redeem collateral as long as the secured party has not collected [see Com. Code § 9607], disposed of or contracted for the disposition of [see Com. Code § 9610], or accepted [see Com. Code § 9620] the collateral [Com. Code § 9623(c)]. To redeem the collateral, a party must tender fulfillment of all obligations secured, plus certain expenses [see Com. Code § 9623 (b)]

§ 42.260 Debtor's Demand for Termination Statement From Secured Party

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is for use by the debtor to demand a statement from the secured party of record that it no longer claims a security interest in the collateral.

For detailed coverage of termination procedures, see § 42.140[4]. For a termination statement, see § 42.214 (Form UCC-3).

[b] Secured Party's Duty to File or Send

The secured party of record must file a termination statement if the financing statement covers consumer goods and either the security interest is terminated [see Com. Code § 9513(a)(1)] or the debtor did not authorize the filing of the initial financing statement [see Com. Code § 9513(a)(2)]. Otherwise, the secured party of record must send a termination statement to the debtor or file a termination statement only on receipt of an authenticated demand from the debtor [see Com. Code § 9513(c)].

After the secured party receives an authenticated demand from the debtor, the secured party must send or file a termination statement if any of the following conditions is satisfied [Com. Code § 9513(c)]:

- Except in the case of a financing statement covering accounts or chattel paper that has been sold or goods that are the subject of a consignment, there is no obligation secured by the collateral covered by the financing statement and no commitment to make an advance, incur an obligation, or otherwise give value.

- The financing statement covers accounts or chattel paper that has been sold but as to which the account debtor or other person obligated has discharged its obligation.
- The financing statement covers goods that were the subject of a consignment to the debtor but are not in the debtor's possession.
- The debtor did not authorize the filing of the initial financing statement.

The liability imposed on a secured party for failing to file or send a termination statement, as required, is identical to that imposed for the filing of an unauthorized financing statement or amendment [see Com. Code § 9625(e)].

[c] Timeliness of Filing

A termination statement for a financing statement covering consumer goods must be filed either within one month after there is no obligation secured by the collateral covered by the financing statement and no commitment to make an advance, incur an obligation, or otherwise give value, or, if earlier, within 20 days after the secured party receives an authenticated demand from a debtor [Com. Code § 9513(b)].

In all other cases, a termination statement must be filed or sent to the debtor within 20 days after a secured party receives an authenticated demand from a debtor [Com. Code § 9513(c)].

This chapter discusses various kinds of commercial loans that are typically used in financing a business. The Legal Background describes the way businesses may be financed by these types of loans. The Transaction Guide includes guides for preparing financial information for loan applications as well as guides for drafting and executing loan agreements.

The forms in this chapter include loan applications and agreements; guaranty and subordination agreements; loans secured by margin stock; and assignments of payments, real property proceeds and fixtures, agricultural products, and probate interests. The chapter also contains forms for assigning insurance policies and for financing and assigning inventory and equipment. Forms for promissory notes used in commercial lending are also included.

For coverage of commercial loans made under the California Finance Lenders Law [see Fin. Code § 22000 et seq.], see Ch. 102B, Pawnbrokers, Finance Lenders, and Secondhand Goods Dealers .

Negotiable instruments and their use in business transactions are covered in Ch. 55, Negotiable Instruments . Other commercial lending practices are covered in Ch. 42, Secured Transactions , Ch. 44, Accounts Receivable Financing and Factoring , Ch. 47, Automotive Financing and Vehicle Leasing , and Ch. 49, Agricultural Financing . For discussion of the law governing negotiable bills of lading, see Ch. 54, Shipment of Property . For discussion of warehouse receipts, see Ch. 54A, Storage of Goods . Letters of credit and electronic fund transfers are covered in Ch. 56, Letters of Credit and Electronic Fund Transfers .

A "commercial loan" is a loan of a principal amount of $5,000 or more, or any loan under an open-end credit program [see Fin. Code § 22650], whether secured or unsecured, the proceeds of which are intended by the borrower for use primarily for other than personal, family, or household purposes. In determining whether a loan is a commercial loan, a lender may rely on any written statement of intended purpose signed by the borrower, and need not ascertain that the proceeds of the loan were actually used in accordance with the borrower's stated purpose [Fin. Code § 22502].

A commercial loan is essentially a short-term "business purpose" loan. It is traditionally intended to meet a specific business need, rather than to provide working capital for general current use (although it may have the incidental effect of doing so), and is expected to be repaid from a specific source related to the original need. It is normally granted for a period of 90 to 180 days, but the period may range from 30 days up to one year. A commercial loan may be either secured or unsecured, depending on the credit worthiness of the borrower and the amount of the loan. Most lenders will have different lending limits or authority for secured and unsecured loans.

[2] Truth in Lending Act Inapplicable to Commercial Loans

The federal Truth in Lending Act and its implementing regulation, Regulation Z, which require disclosures of the cost of consumer credit, do not apply to credit transactions involving extensions of credit primarily for business, commercial, or agricultural purposes [15 U.S.C. § 1603(1); 12 C.F.R. § 226.3(a)].

[3] Regulation of Commercial Loans

At the state level, commercial banks are regulated by the State Banking Department in the Business and Transportation Agency [see Fin. Code § 100 et seq.; see also 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 10.1 et seq. (regulation of banks)]. Specific statutes apply to commercial banks [see Fin. Code § 1200 et seq.]. Specific limits are placed on the amount that may be loaned to an individual [see Fin. Code § 1221; see also Fin. Code § 1226 (exceptions)] or to a group of borrowers [see Fin. Code § 1231]. There are limits on loans secured by real property [see Fin. Code §§ 1227, 1239], or by stocks and bonds [see Fin. Code § 1229]. Commercial banks may take a lien or pledge on property as additional security for a loan already made [see Fin. Code § 1234].

In addition, commercial loans are subject to the California Finance Lenders Law [see Fin. Code § 22000 et seq.]. Specific statutes apply to commercial loans [see Fin. Code § 22500 et seq.]. Specified portions of the Law do not apply to commercial loans [see Fin. Code §§ 22550, 22551]. For coverage of the California Finance Lenders Law, see Ch. 102B, Pawnbrokers, Finance Lenders, and Secondhand Goods Dealers .

At the federal level, commercial loans are subject to regulation by the National Bank Act and its implementing regulations [see 12 U.S.C. § 21 et seq.; see also 12 C.F.R.].

19-43 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 43.11

AUTHOR: Reviewed by the Honorable Walter L. Blackwell III Judge Blackwell is a judge of the San Bernardino County Superior Court in Barstow, California. He was also Executive Vice President and General Counsel for a large financial institution.

§ 43.11 Example of a Commercial Loan

An example of a commercial loan, showing the specific business need, loan term, and anticipated source of repayment related to the original need, is that of a retail store needing, at the end of September, $10,000 to pay a supplier for an inventory of Christmas merchandise. The loan will be repaid at the end of December of the same year from proceeds of sales of the Christmas merchandise. Most, but not all, inventory suppliers sell on credit. For example, an inventory supplier may sell on terms described as "2/10, n/30," which means that a 2-percent discount is allowed if payment is made within 10 days and, if payment is not made within 10 days, the entire amount is due within 30 days.

These terms vary significantly from industry to industry and even from supplier to supplier within the same industry. In fact, these terms are often the subject of negotiation. Taking advantage of the discount often means the difference between profitability and unprofitability for a small business. Failure to take the 2/10, n/30 discount amounts to paying interest at the annual rate of 36 percent for the remaining 20 days of the credit term. Therefore, unless the purchaser has an adequate cash balance to pay for the inventory within the 10-day discount period, a purchaser may prefer to obtain a commercial loan, pay for the inventory, and take advantage of the discount, in effect avoiding payment of a substantial rate of interest embodied in the inventory cost figure.

§ 43.12 Broad Concept of Commercial Loan

Apart from the example in § 43.11, there are numerous business purposes for which commercial loans are granted. Commercial loans are the most widely used of the various business purpose loans and the concept is a broad, flexible one.

Most California banks treat all loans as commercial loans if they do not fit within one of these specialized loan categories:

- Real estate loans.
- Installment loans (payable in more than one year).
- Automotive finance loans.
- Agricultural loans.
- International banking department loans.

Certain loans expected to fall within one of the above specialized categories nevertheless are handled as commercial loans by reason of the presence of certain factors or circumstances.

§ 43.13 Commercial Loan Used for Continuous Financing

Although a commercial loan usually is a one-time loan, it can also be used for continuous financing for a specific business purpose. One example is accounts receivable financing, whereby the lender advances credit to a business up to a specified limit against a continuing assignment of accounts receivable arising from sales of inventory [see Ch. 44, Accounts Receivable Financing and Factoring]. Other examples include chattel paper financing [see Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales], inventory financing [see § 43.19[1]], and the specialized type of inventory financing known as "floor planning" [see § 43.19[2]; see also Ch. 47, Automotive Financing and Vehicle Leasing]. These are types of revolving credit that are granted and reviewed on not longer than an annual basis. The financing discussed in this chapter is more directly related to the objective of providing working capital for the business.

§ 43.14 Origin of Commercial Loan Concept

The concept of the commercial loan as a short-term, business-purpose loan is derived from, and revolves around, the current asset and current liabilities transactions reflected in the balance sheet of the business. Current assets include, in addition to cash, other assets or resources that are reasonably expected to be converted into cash or sold or consumed in the regular operations of the business (generally one year for most businesses) [see Ch. 7, Corporate Records and Reports]. Current assets typically include marketable securities, accounts receivable, inventory, and prepaid expenses. Current liabilities are debts whose liquidation is reasonably expected to require within the same operating period the use of existing current assets or the creation of other current liabilities. Many inventory items, together with the accounts receivable arising therefrom on sale on credit, are turned over three or four times a year. Thus, this is the origin of the commercial loan, most frequently granted for a period of from 90 to 180 days.

§ 43.15 Commercial Loan Departments

Most banks have at least two lending departments, one for commercial loans (including short-term and installment loans payable in more than one year) and one for real estate loans. Each of the lending departments will adhere to the fundamentals of credit policy and general bank policy, but each department will have its own policies and procedures governing its lending operations.

Because of the volume of work and need for more specialized handling, large lending institutions are likely to disperse some of the functions performed in the smaller banks by the commercial loan department through creation of independent departments for agricultural loans, automotive loans, and the like. Notwithstanding this division of responsibility, there is likely to be some overlap of lending functions and supervision of loans among departments. Usually, the commercial loan department has the residual responsibility for all lending and takes responsibility for all types of loans that do not fit specifically into one of the other departments.

[1] Overview

A commercial loan borrower normally signs a standard promissory note promising to repay the principal amount loaned at a specific rate of interest either on the bank's demand or, in the absence of such a demand provision, by a scheduled maturity date such as "within 90 days after date." The rate of interest is a simple or "true" rate per annum, usually revolving at something higher than the prime rate, which is reserved for the most financially sound commercial borrowers. The bank will adjust this rate from time to time in accordance with Federal Reserve Bank rates of discount to member banks.

[2] Demand Note

Banks normally use a type of note known as the "demand note" for commercial loans. The distinguishing feature of the demand note is that the bank reserves the right to call the note at any time if it believes the borrower has become a credit risk or if the bank needs to redraft the note to reflect changed economic conditions. For a note providing for payment within a specified future period (the most usual practice for commercial loans), the parties legally contemplate that the loan will be repaid in full at maturity and not before. However, in the interest of good customer relations, the bank will normally permit the borrower to make interim payments on account towards principal or interest or both.

[3] Confession of Judgment

[a] In General

Though confession of judgment provisions are almost never written into commercial loan paper, a judgment by confession may be obtained in California. A confession of judgment may be entered without action for money due or to become due, or to secure a person against contingent liability on behalf of the debtor [Code Civ. Proc. § 1132]. Under Com. Code § 3104(c), a negotiable instrument may contain an authorization or power to the holder to confess judgment or realize on or dispose of collateral. For forms and additional discussion relating to confessions of judgment, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 318, Judgments (Matthew Bender).

To obtain a judgment by confession, the statutory requirements of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1132-1134 must be strictly followed. A written statement by the debtor confessing judgment must be filed with the clerk of the court in which judgment is to be entered [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1133, 1134]. The statement must be signed and verified by the debtor [Code Civ. Proc. § 1133]. The purpose of requiring that the confession be verified is to discourage a debtor from avoiding valid creditors by falsely confessing a judgment in favor of a false creditor [L.A. Adjustment Bureau v. Noonan (1960) 181 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 834, 839, 5 Cal. Rptr. 445 ; see Ataka America, Inc. v. Washington West Trade Corp. (1977) 66 Cal. App. 3d 419, 422, 136 Cal. Rptr. 71] .

When the confession of judgment is not verified by the debtor, a court (depending on the facts of the case) may hold that the confession is void. In one case, a confession of judgment was not signed or verified by the debtor and the court held that the confession was void [Barnes v. Hilton (1953) 118 Cal. App. 2d 108, 111, 257 P.2d 98] . However, when a debtor admitted at the time of hearing on a motion to vacate a judgment entered on an unverified confession that the amount involved was in fact owing, then the court held that the confession was enforceable [L.A. Adjustment Bureau v. Noonan (1960) 181 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 834, 839, 5 Cal. Rptr. 445] . When there was evidence that the judgment on a confession was for more than the amount then due, the unverified statement of confession was held invalid [Ataka America, Inc. v. Washington West Trade Corp. (1977) 66 Cal. App. 3d 419, 422, 136 Cal. Rptr. 71] .

For a valid confession of judgment, the statement confessing judgment must authorize the entry of judgment for a specified sum and, if it is for money due or to become due, it must state concisely the facts out of which it arose and show that the sum confessed is justly due or to become due [Code Civ. Proc. § 1133(1), (2)]. Vague statements of the facts do not serve the purpose of the statute, which is to put other creditors on inquiry and aid them in detecting fraud, if any. Thus a mere recitation that the creditor is the owner of a note, that it was given for goods sold and delivered by the creditor to the debtor, and that the consideration for the note was the transfer of the goods, is not sufficient. The statement must be supplemented with an indication of the kind, quantity, and price of the goods and the time of sale. If the consideration for the note consists of both the transfer of goods and money, the statement should state the amounts due severally for goods and for money and indicate when and under what circumstances the money was received. Failure to make a detailed statement as required by the statute creates a presumption of fraud, with the burden on the creditor to rebut this presumption [Pond v. Davenport (1872) 44 Cal. 481, 487] .

[c] Certification by Debtor's Attorney

In addition to these requirements, a judgment by confession is valid only if an attorney independently representing the debtor signs a certificate stating that the attorney has advised the debtor concerning the waiver of rights and defenses under the confession of judgment and has advised the debtor to sign the confession [Code Civ. Proc. § 1132(b)]. Even the possible appearance of inadvertent bias by an attorney is sufficient to invalidate the attorney's certificate. One court has held that an attorney who advised a debtor concerning the execution of a confession of judgment and who had in the past represented both the creditor and debtor involved, was not "independent" counsel as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1132(b) and that a judgment entered on reliance of the attorney's certificate was void [Wax v. Infante (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 138, 140-141, 187 Cal. Rptr. 686] .

[d] Due Process Requirement

Courts have imposed a due process requirement for the validity of a confession of judgment. The United States Supreme Court has held that a debtor company validly waived its due process rights when it signed a contract with a confession of judgment clause. In its ruling, the Court relied on the particular facts of the case: the debtor was a large corporation represented by counsel; there was equal bargaining power between the debtor and creditor; the inclusion of the confession of judgment clause was specifically negotiated by the parties; and the debtor received substantial consideration for the inclusion of this term in the contract [D.H. Overmyer Co. v. Frick Co. (1972) 405 U.S. 174, 184-187, 92 S. Ct. 775, 31 L. Ed. 2d 124] .

The California Supreme Court considered this issue in a different factual context and held that a confession of judgment by itself does not demonstrate a valid waiver of due process rights [Isbell v. County of Sonoma (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 61, 68, 145 Cal. Rptr. 368, 577 P.2d 188] . Unless the confession of judgment agreement itself shows that it was a negotiated agreement between equal bargainers, as in Overmyer, the mere existence of a signed and verified confession of judgment is insufficient to prove that the debtor did in fact make a voluntary, knowing, and intelligent waiver of due process rights [Isbell v. County of Sonoma (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 61, 68, 145 Cal. Rptr. 368, 577 P.2d 188] .

A California judgment based solely on a sister state judgment pursuant to a confession of judgment clause also is subject to attack on due process grounds [Commercial Nat. Bank of Peoria v. Kermeen (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 396, 398, 275 Cal. Rptr. 122] . When the confession of judgment clause is part of a preprinted bank promissory note, this suggests that the clause was not open to separate negotiation and that there was not equal bargaining power as in Overmyer [Commercial Nat. Bank of Peoria v. Kermeen (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 396, 401, 275 Cal. Rptr. 122] .

Furthermore, when the confession of judgment clause is placed without special conspicuousness in the body of the note and is in technical or legal language, a court will not assume that the debtor was even aware of the clause or understood its significance. In this situation, one court has held that the confession of judgment clause suggested overreaching by the creditor-bank rather than a free waiver of rights by the debtor, and vacated the judgment based on the confession of judgment provision [Commercial Nat. Bank of Peoria v. Kermeen (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 396, 401-402, 275 Cal. Rptr. 122 ; see Cole v. B.T. & G., Inc. (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 995, 999, 190 Cal. Rptr. 690 (order vacating judgment of confession is final judgment so that debtor is entitled to award of attorney's fees pursuant to parties' contract)].

§ 43.17 Commercial Installment Loans

Although commercial loan departments are most interested in short-term, single-payment business loans, they also make commercial installment loans, on either a short-term or intermediate-term basis. A commercial installment loan is an installment loan for other than personal or real estate purposes made by a lending officer with commercial installment lending authority. The loan is usually made on a simple interest basis, using a standard promissory note as in the case of the typical commercial loan. When made on a discounted basis, the interest for the entire term is computed and added to the actual amount of the loan, to arrive at the face amount of the note. The borrower repays this amount in installments, but receives the actual amount of the loan before the add-on of interest.

A commercial lending officer is responsible for the extension of credit, the documentation, and the interest rate. Sometimes these loans are handled by the installment loan department, which is responsible for the accounting on loans made on a discount basis. The commercial loan department services the loans made on a simple-interest basis.

§ 43.18 Collateral for Commercial Loan

[1] Use of Collateral

A commercial loan may be unsecured or secured, depending on the creditworthiness of the borrower and the amount of the loan. A bank making a commercial loan to a new business or small business is likely to require security.

Collateral is sought not with the view that it will constitute the sole source of repayment, but as an extra measure of security. Preferred forms of collateral include certificates of deposit, time deposits, savings accounts, bonds, stocks, cash value of life insurance policies, or other forms of liquid collateral, although the collateral acceptable is not limited to liquid collateral.

The preference for liquid collateral relates to the concept of the commercial loan as revolving around the current asset and current liability transactions of the business. However, it also relates to the ease of collectibility of the collateral. In general, a bank will accept anything as collateral that is readily marketable and has an easily ascertained value.

[2] Unacceptable Forms of Collateral

Some types of property are unacceptable as collateral for a loan, either because of law or bank policy. The following typically are not acceptable as collateral:

- Stock in the same bank from which the loan is sought.
- United States Savings Bonds.

- Property belonging to a minor.
- Securities not registered to an individual, or registered to individuals as joint tenants.
- National Service Life Insurance policies.
- An interest in a common trust fund.
- Collateral domiciled out of state.
- "Trustee" savings accounts.
- Anything that is not readily marketable.

DIVISION III: COMMERCIAL TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 43 COMMERCIAL LOANS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

19-43 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 43.19

AUTHOR: Reviewed by the Honorable Walter L. Blackwell III Judge Blackwell is a judge of the San Bernardino County Superior Court in Barstow, California. He received a B.A. in Business Administration and Economics from the University of Redlands, and a J.D. from U.C.L.A. Before being elected to the Superior Court, Judge Blackwell practiced in the areas of business and real estate transactions and litigation. He was also Executive Vice President and General Counsel for a large financial institution.

§ 43.19 Inventory and Equipment Financing Under the Commercial Code

[1] Inventory Financing

Inventory financing (also known as wholesale financing, dealer financing, or floor planning [see [2], below]) is credit extended by a bank or other financier, such as a factor or finance company, to a borrower for inventory requirements. Under the Commercial Code, goods, other than farm products, are inventory if they are any of the following [Com. Code § 9102(a)(48); see United States v. Handy and Harman (9th Cir. 1984) 750 F.2d 777, 781 (decided under prior law)]:

- Leased by a person as lessor.
- Held by a person for sale or lease to be furnished under a contract for services.
- Furnished by a person under a contract for services.
- Consist of raw materials, work in process, or materials used or consumed in a business.

Implicit in the definition of "inventory" is the criterion that the sales or leases are (or will be) in the ordinary course of business [Com. Code § 9102, UCC Comment 4a]. For example, machinery used in manufacturing is equipment, not inventory, even though it is the debtor's policy to sell machinery when it becomes obsolete or worn [Com. Code § 9102, UCC Comment 4a]. Inventory also includes goods that are used up or consumed in a short period of time in producing a product or providing a service, such as fuel used in operations [Com. Code § 9102, UCC Comment 4a].

Farm products are outside the definition of "inventory" if the debtor is engaged in farming operations with respect to the goods [Com. Code § 9102, UCC Comment 4a; see Com. Code § 9102(a)(48) ("inventory" defined); see also Com. Code § 9102(a)(34) ("farm products" defined); Com. Code § 9102(a)(35) ("farming operation" defined)]. However, crops, livestock, and their products cease to be "farm products" when the debtor ceases to be engaged in farming operations with them. For example, if crops, livestock, and their products come into possession of a marketing agency for sale or distribution, or of a manufacturer or processor as raw materials, they become inventory [Com. Code § 9102, UCC Comment 4a]. Products of crops or livestock also lose their status as farm products if they are subjected to the manufacturing process, even though they remain in possession of the person engaged in farming operations [see Com. Code § 9102, UCC Comment 4a (examples)].

Inventory financing is also distinguishable according to the purpose for which credit is extended. There are three classes of credit transactions. The most common is the preseasonal loan. An example of a preseasonal loan is the flooring credit extended to a new car dealer at the advent of the new model year so that the dealer may stock up on new models as they come off the assembly line, or to a toy or appliance dealer shortly before the Christmas sales period. These loans are usually liquidated within a relatively short time but, in any event, before the onset of the next annual season, and the collateral is secured under UCC procedures [see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions].

A second inventory financing situation arises when the lender learns that a regular borrower has suffered a temporary financial setback, and the financier makes available additional funds secured by inventory collateral, to help the client overcome the adverse conditions and simultaneously protect the lender's own interests. This type of loan is much less desirable than the seasonal loan, and generally is avoided by lenders.

In the third class of credit transactions, the borrower requires additional funds because of a substantial increase in business operations, and therefore needs further operating capital to bring inventory in line with the growth of merchandise turnover. This type of financing usually involves a reduced risk of loss and considerable profits for the lender because of the greater number of consumer installment contracts that are channeled to the lender by the borrower. Nonetheless, such growth inventory loans are also considered less desirable than seasonal loans because they usually are for a longer term, and recur on a practically permanent basis.

[2] Floor Planning

A major type of inventory financing is floor planning. "Floor planning" (also known as wholesale financing or dealer financing) is credit extended by a bank, factor, or finance company to a dealer for inventory requirements. Inventory financed in this manner may range from major household appliances to heavy construction machinery, but the method remains the same, regardless of the type of inventory financed [see, e.g., Ch. 42, Secured Transactions ; Ch. 47, Automotive Financing and Vehicle Leasing , §§ 47.207, 47.208 (dealer financing agreements); see also Com. Code § 9521(a) (UCC financing statement)].

For many dealers, floor planning is a necessity, and though flooring financing involves a higher risk than normal for the lender, requiring constant control and vigilance of the dealer's business practices and operations and yielding a relatively low rate of return, it is eagerly sought by financiers. This is because a dealer receiving flooring financing is expected to discount the retail installment paper with the same lender, and if the volume of the retail installment paper is satisfactory and defaults and/or repossessions are few, the lender may expect a profitable relationship with the dealer-borrower. If the lender is a bank, it is also likely to profit from the dealer's use of other bank facilities.

PRACTICE TIP:

Of the various types of commercial financing, "flooring" is the most intrusive from the borrower's point of view. The concept is that the lender advances money for inventory as needed and the money is repaid as the inventory is sold. The lender requires extensive and up-to-the-minute inventories and extensive reporting. Lenders even conduct spot inventories of their own, which can disrupt the business operations of the borrower. In addition, if a spot inventory reveals goods that have been sold "out of trust" or without having been reported to the lender, those goods must be paid for immediately.

If a dispute arises between the lender and the borrower or if the borrower experiences a cash flow problem, the flooring lender has the power to immediately close down the borrower's business by demanding payment of the outstanding amounts and by refusing to advance money for more inventory.

Thus, by entering into a flooring financing arrangement, the business owner loses a great deal of control over his or her business.

[3] Use of Negotiable or Nonnegotiable Bill of Lading

A dealer-borrower generally executes a security agreement and promissory note in the lender's favor [see §§ 43.310-43.317; see also Ch. 42, Secured Transactions]. At the same time, the dealer will order the goods from the manufacturer or wholesale distributor and advise the latter of the lender's commitment to pay for the goods. On arrival of the goods in the city where the dealer's place of business is located, but while they are still in the carrier's possession, the dealer will execute a trust receipt. When the carrier has issued a negotiable bill of lading for the goods, [see Ch. 54, Shipment of Property, §§ 54.230, 54.231 (bills of lading)], the lender's security interest in this document and thus the lender's title to the goods will be perfected for 20 days without filing or taking possession or control [Com. Code § 9312(e)]. When the carrier has issued a bill of lading in the lender's name, the lender will endorse the document over to the dealer. However, the lender's security interest in the goods will nonetheless remain perfected for a period of 20 days [see Com. Code § 9312(f)]. Consequently, the dealer may take possession of the goods.

To be deemed continuously perfected, the lender must file a security interest in the goods released to the dealer on or before expiration of the 20-day period [see Com. Code § 9308(c); see also Com. Code § 9312(h) (after expiration of 20-day period, perfection depends on compliance with this division)]. This will assure that no other secured party may acquire a security interest in the goods released to the dealer. Inasmuch as the lender's lien constitutes a purchase money security interest in goods [see Com. Code § 9103(b) (definition); see also [6], below], the lender will take priority over the rights of a buyer, lessee, or lien creditor which arise between the time the security interest attaches and the time of filing, provided that the lender files a financing statement before or within 20 days after the goods are delivered to the dealer [Com. Code § 9317(e); see Com. Code §§ 9320, 9321 (exceptions)].

[4] Proceeds

The term "proceeds" means any of the following property [Com. Code § 9102(a)(64); see also In the Matter of Munger (9th Cir. 1974) 495 F.2d 511, 513 (term "proceeds" to be given broad, flexible meaning, decided under prior law)]:

- Whatever is acquired upon the sale, lease, license, exchange, or other disposition of collateral.
- Whatever is collected on, or distributed on account of, collateral.
- Rights arising out of collateral.
- To the extent of the value of collateral, claims arising out of the loss, nonconformity, or interference with the use of, defects or infringement of rights in, or damage to, the collateral.
- To the extent of the value of collateral and to the extent payable to the debtor or the secured party, insurance payable by reason of the loss or nonconformity of, defects or infringement of rights in, or damage to, the collateral.

Thus, a security agreement that gives a lender a security interest in a debtor's inventory and the proceeds of the inventory gives the lender a security interest in the debtor's accounts receivable that arise because of sales of inventory items [Western Decor & Furnishings Industries, Inc. v. Bank of America (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 293, 300-302, 154 Cal. Rptr. 287 (decided under prior law)].

A security interest attaches to any identifiable proceeds of collateral [Com. Code § 9315(a)(2); see Com. Code § 9203(f) (security interest in collateral gives secured party rights to proceeds and is also attachment of security interest in supporting obligation for the collateral)]. Proceeds that are commingled with other property are identifiable if the proceeds are goods, to the extent provided by Com. Code § 9336, governing commingled goods, or, if the proceeds are not goods, to the extent that the secured party identifies the proceeds by a method of tracing, including application of equitable principles, as permitted by law [see Com. Code § 9315(b)].

A security interest in proceeds is a perfected security interest if the original collateral was perfected [Com. Code § 9315(c)]. However, a perfected security interest in the proceeds becomes unperfected on the 21st day after the security interest attaches to the proceeds unless any of the following conditions are satisfied [Com. Code § 9315(d)]:

- The filed financing statement covers the original collateral, and the proceeds are collateral in which a security interest may be perfected by filing in the office where the original financing statement was filed, and the proceeds are not acquired with cash proceeds [Com. Code § 9315(d)(1); see Com. Code § 9315(e)];
- The proceeds are identifiable cash proceeds; or
- The security interest in the proceeds is perfected other than under Com. Code § 9315(c) (providing for perfection of a security interest in proceeds if the security interest in the original collateral is perfected) when the security interest attaches to the proceeds or within 20 days thereafter.

The attachment of a security interest in collateral gives the secured party the rights to proceeds [see Com. Code § 9315] and is also attachment of a security interest in a supporting obligation for the collateral [Com. Code § 9203(f)]. However, if a filed financing statement covers the original collateral, a security interest in proceeds which remains perfected under Com. Code § 9315(d)(1), discussed above, becomes unperfected at the later of either of the following [Com. Code § 9315(e)]:

- When the effectiveness of the filed financing statement lapses under Com. Code § 9515 (governing lapsed financial statements) or is terminated under Com. Code § 9513 (governing termination).
- The 21st day after the security interest attaches to the proceeds.

Cash proceeds retain their character as cash proceeds while in the possession of a levying officer in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 481.010 et seq., governing attachment, or Code Civ. Proc. § 680.010 et seq., governing enforcement of judgments [Com. Code § 9315(f)].

PRACTICE TIP:

When attempting to claim a security interest or lien on personal property that has been seized under a writ of attachment, a writ of execution, a prejudgment or postjudgment writ of possession, or a writ of sale, a third party must follow the procedure established by Code Civ. Proc. § 720.210 et seq. The claim must be asserted before the levying officer sells the property, delivers possession of the property to the creditor or pays proceeds of collection to the creditor [Code Civ. Proc. § 720.220].

[5] Equipment Financing

Equipment financing is credit extended by a lender to a borrower to facilitate the purchase of equipment for a business. Under the Commercial Code, the term "equipment" means goods other than inventory, farm products, or commercial goods [Com. Code § 9102(a)(33); see Com. Code § 9102(a)(34) ("farm products" defined); Com. Code § 9102(a)(48) ("inventory" defined)]. An item of equipment is chiefly characterized by its stability; it does not change form during use by the business [see Com. Code § 9102, UCC Comment 4a].

Goods used in a business are equipment if they are fixed assets or have, as identifiable units, a relatively long period of use. For example, machinery used in manufacturing is equipment even though the manufacturer routinely sells the machinery when it becomes obsolete or worn. However, goods used in a business are not equipment, but rather are inventory, even though not held for sale or lease, if they are used up or consumed in a short period of time in producing a product or providing a service [Com. Code § 9102, UCC Comment 4a; see [1], above].

[6] Distinctions Between Inventory and Equipment Financing Under the UCC

[a] In General

In general, the same rules apply under the Commercial Code to the perfection of a lender's security interest in collateral, regardless of whether it is equipment or inventory. In most cases, priority will be over a security interest asserted under an after-acquired property clause [see Com. Code § 9324, UCC Comment 2; see also Com. Code § 9204 (discussing extent to which security interests in after-acquired property are validated)]. However, there are some distinctions in a lender's security interest, depending on whether the collateral is characterized as equipment or inventory.

[b] Purchase Money Security Interests

"Purchase money collateral" means goods or software that secures a purchase money obligation incurred with respect to that collateral [Com. Code § 9103(a)(1)]. "Purchase money obligation" means an obligation of an obligor incurred as all or part of the price of the collateral or for value given to enable the debtor to acquire rights in or the use of the collateral if the value is in fact so used [Com. Code § 9103(a)(2)]. These terms are essential to the description of what constitutes a purchase money interest under the Commercial Code, because the concept of "purchase money security interest" requires a close nexus between the acquisition of collateral and the secured obligation [see Com. Code § 9103, UCC Comment 3]. A security interest in goods is a purchase money security interest [Com. Code § 9103(b)]:

- To the extent that the goods are purchase money collateral with respect to that security interest.
- If the security interest is in inventory that is or was purchase money collateral, also to the extent that the security interest secures a purchase money obligation incurred with respect to other inventory in which the secured party holds or held a purchase money security interest.
- To the extent that the security interest secures a purchase money obligation incurred with respect to software in which the secured party holds or held a purchase money security interest.

A purchase money security interest can be created only in goods and software [see Com. Code § 9103(b), (c); Com. Code § 9324, UCC Comment 2].

With one relatively unusual exception, if the lender has a perfected purchase money security interest in goods other than inventory or livestock (for example, equipment), then that interest has priority over a conflicting security interest in the same goods [Com. Code § 9324(a)]. In addition, except as otherwise provided for security interests in deposit accounts [see Com. Code § 9327; see also Com. Code § 9102(a)(29) ("deposit account" defined)], if the lender has a perfected security interest in the goods' identifiable proceeds, that interest also has priority, if the purchase money security interest is perfected when the debtor receives possession of the collateral or within 20 days after possession [Com. Code § 9324(a)]. The exception to this rule exists in the case in which a lender creates two purchase money security interests in the same collateral and both security interests qualify for special priority [Com. Code § 9324(a); see Com. Code § 9324(g)].

A perfected purchase money security interest in inventory generally has priority (1) over a conflicting security interest in the same inventory, (2) over a conflicting security interest in chattel paper or an instrument constituting proceeds of the inventory and in proceeds of the chattel paper, if so provided in Com. Code § 9330 (governing priority of purchaser of chattel paper), and, (3) except as otherwise provided in Com. Code § 9327 (governing priority of security interests in deposit accounts), in identifiable cash proceeds of the inventory to the extent the identifiable cash proceeds are received on or before the delivery of the inventory to a buyer, provided all of the following conditions are satisfied [Com. Code § 9324(b)]:

- The purchase money security interest is perfected when the debtor receives possession of the inventory.
- The purchase money secured party sends an authenticated notification to the holder of the conflicting security interest.
- The holder of the conflicting security interest receives the notification within five years before the debtor receives possession of the inventory.
- The notification states that the person sending the notification has or expects to acquire a purchase money security interest in inventory of the debtor and describes the inventory.

This general rule is subject to two exceptions [Com. Code § 9324(b)]. First, the final three conditions enumerated above apply only if the holder of the conflicting security interest had filed a financing statement covering the same types of inventory as follows [Com. Code § 9324(b); see Com. Code § 9324(c); see also Mother Lode Bank v. General Motors Acceptance Corp. (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 807, 813-814, 120 Cal. Rptr. 429 (conflicting security interests in inventory collateral, decided under prior law); § 42.211]:

- If the purchase money security interest is perfected by filing, before the date of the filing.
- If the purchase money security interest is temporarily perfected without filing or possession under Com. Code § 9312(f) (perfected security interests in certain negotiable documents or goods in possession of bailee) [see § 43.19(3)], before the beginning of the 20-day period under that provision.

Second, an exception to this rule exists in the case in which a lender creates two purchase money security interests in the same collateral and both security interests qualify for special priority [Com. Code § 9324(b); see Com. Code § 9324(g)].

A perfected purchase money security interest in software generally has priority over a conflicting security interest in the same collateral; and, except as otherwise provided in Com. Code § 9327 (governing priority of security interests in deposit accounts), a perfected security interest in its identifiable proceeds also has priority, to the extent that the purchase money security interest in the goods in which the software was acquired for use has priority in the goods and proceeds of the goods under this section [Com. Code § 9324(f)]. The exception to this rule exists in the case in which a lender creates two purchase money security interests in the same collateral and both security interests qualify for special priority [Com. Code § 9324(f); see Com. Code § 9324(g)].

[c] Notification Requirement

The notification requirement of Com. Code § 9324(b) (formerly Com. Code § 9312(3)) protects the inventory financier who will typically make periodic advances to the debtor against incoming inventory as new inventory is received. A fraudulent debtor could apply to a prospective purchase money lender for advances on the inventory even though the inventory financier already has a security interest in the inventory [see Mother Lode Bank v. General Motors Acceptance Corp. (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 807, 809-810, 120 Cal. Rptr. 429 (automobile dealer fraudulently refinanced automobiles to a second lender, decided under prior law)].

[d] Equipment Affixed to Realty

In some circumstances, equipment affixed by a lessee to leased realty becomes the lessor's property or becomes subject to a security interest in the lessor's favor [see Goldie v. Bauchet Properties (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 307, 124 Cal. Rptr. 161, 540 P.2d 1 (decided under prior law)]. Com. Code § 9334 governs conflicting claims of lessors and secured parties to those fixtures. As to purchase money security interests, a perfected security interest in fixtures generally has priority over the conflicting interest of an encumbrancer or owner of the real property if the debtor has an interest of record in or is in possession of the real property and all of the following conditions are satisfied [Com. Code § 9334(d); see Com. Code § 9334(h) (exception for construction mortgage)]:

- The security interest is a purchase money security interest.
- The interest of the encumbrancer or owner arises before the goods become fixtures.
- The security interest is perfected by a fixture filing before the goods become fixtures or within 20 days after they become fixtures.

[e] Priority of Security Interests

The Commercial Code conflict of laws rules are contained in Com. Code § 9301 et seq. The general rule is that the law governing perfection of security interests in both tangible and intangible collateral (including, for example, both equipment and inventory), whether perfected by filing or automatically, is the law of the jurisdiction of the debtor's location [Com. Code § 9301(1); see Com. Code § 9307 (location of debtor)]. The general rule is subject to several exceptions. It does not apply to goods covered by certificate of title [see Com. Code § 9303], deposit accounts [see Com. Code § 9304], investment property [see Com. Code § 9305], or letter-of-credit rights [see Com. Code § 9306]. Nor does it apply to possessory security interests, that is, security interests that the secured party has perfected by taking possession of the collateral, security interests perfected by filing a fixture filing, security interests in timber, or security interests in as-extracted collateral [see Com. Code § 9301, UCC Comment 5; see also Ch. 42, Secured Transactions].

For detailed coverage of the priority of conflicting purchase money security interests, see BENDER'S Uniform Commercial Code Service(Matthew Bender).

DIVISION III: COMMERCIAL TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 43 COMMERCIAL LOANS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

19-43 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 43.20

AUTHOR: Reviewed by the Honorable Walter L. Blackwell III Judge Blackwell is a judge of the San Bernardino County Superior Court in Barstow, California. He received a B.A. in Business Administration and Economics from the University of Redlands, and a J.D. from U.C.L.A. Before being elected to the Superior Court, Judge Blackwell practiced in the areas of business and real estate transactions and litigation. He was also Executive Vice President and General Counsel for a large financial institution.

§ 43.20 Chattel Paper Financing Under the Uniform Commercial Code

The term "chattel paper" refers to a record or records that evidence both a monetary obligation and a security interest in specific goods, a security interest in specific goods and software used in the goods, a security interest in specific goods and license of software used in the goods, a lease of specific goods, or a lease of specific goods and license of software used in the goods [Com. Code § 9102(a)(11)]. For this purpose, "monetary obligation" means a monetary obligation secured by the goods or owed under a lease of the goods and includes a monetary obligation with respect to software used in the goods. The term does not include charters or other contracts involving the use or hire of a vessel. If a transaction is evidenced by records that include an instrument or series of instruments, the group of records taken together constitutes chattel paper [Com. Code § 9102(a)(11)].

Chattel paper financing occurs when a seller or lessor wants to convert an expectancy of payment into cash. The seller generally sells or assigns the chattel paper with or without recourse to the lender [see Com. Code § 9330 (priority of purchaser of chattel paper)]. When the chattel paper is assigned "with recourse," the assignor guaranties that the money owed pursuant to the chattel paper will be paid. On the other hand, "without recourse" means that the assignee will look to the obligor on the chattel paper for payment, not the assignor.

However, the seller may receive a direct loan from the lender, who will secure the loan transaction by perfecting a security interest in the payments due to the seller or by taking possession of the chattel paper [see Com. Code §§ 9312(a), 9313 (assignee may perfect its security interest by taking possession); Com. Code §§ 9314(a), 9105 (assignee may perfect its security interest by taking control)]. The perfection of security interests under the Commercial Code is covered in Ch. 42, Secured Transactions.

Generally, the seller and the lender will have entered into a continuing relationship under an agreement referred to as a "dealer agreement." These agreements, whether used in the commercial credit context or the consumer credit context, have the same general characteristics [see Com. Code § 9330, UCC Comment 3, 10, 11 (description of dealer arrangements)]. They provide either for full recourse (under which the dealer guaranties payment), limited recourse, or no recourse. These agreements contain warranties made by the dealer, and may provide for retention by the lender of a reserve for protection against losses. Lender-dealer agreements in the consumer credit context are covered in Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales, as are credit investigations and other pertinent considerations.

In financing retail businesses through the purchase of chattel paper, a lender may secure itself by taking physical possession of the paper or it may perfect its security interest by filing [see Com. Code §§ 9312(a), 9313; Com. Code § 9330, UCC Comment 2; see also Ch. 42, Secured Transactions]. In either case, a security interest must attach through the use of a security agreement to that effect before it can be perfected [see Com. Code § 9308]. A dealer agreement, as mentioned above, generally includes language making it a security agreement [see, e.g., Biggins v. Southwest Bank (9th Cir. 1973) 490 F.2d 1304, 1306-1307 (decided under prior law)].

§ 43.21 Securing After-Acquired Property and Future Advances: The Floating Lien

[1] Operation of Floating Lien

A security interest may attach to both existing and future collateral, and obligations described in a security agreement may include future advances whether or not given under a loan commitment [see Com. Code § 9204(a), (c)]. This type of security interest is called a "floating lien" because it does not attach to any particular item, but "floats" over a shifting stock of inventory [see Com. Code § 9205, UCC Comment 2; see Com. Code § 9102(a)(48) ("inventory" defined)]. A security agreement incorporating a floating lien creates a continuing security interest in the lender's favor in all present and future collateral [Com. Code § 9204(a); see Biggins v. Southwest Bank (9th Cir. 1973) 490 F.2d 1304, 1309-1311 (decided under prior law)].

Com. Code § 9204 contemplates the possibility of a continuing or revolving credit relationship between a lender and borrower in which the shifting inventory, in conjunction with the receivables generated by the inventory, constitutes the collateral pledged to the lender [Com. Code § 9204, UCC Comment 2; Com. Code § 9205, UCC Comment 2; see Biggins v. Southwest Bank (9th Cir. 1973) 490 F.2d 1304, 1309-1310 (decided under prior law)].

[2] Advantages of Floating Lien

A security agreement that establishes a continuing security interest in inventory, receivables, and other proceeds (a floating lien) is one of the most commonly used today. A floating lien attaches to existing and after-acquired collateral [Com. Code § 9204(a); see Biggins v. Southwest Bank (9th Cir. 1973) 490 F.2d 1304, 1309-1310 (decided under prior law)], and also covers future loans or advances extended to the borrower by the lender [Com. Code § 9204(c); see Gerber v. Spector (1959) 174 Cal. App. 2d 489, 501-502, 344 P.2d 890 (decided under prior law)]. A floating lien permits the borrower to exercise complete control over the inventory collateral (including returned or repossessed goods) without having to account for proceeds or substitute new collateral [see Com. Code § 9205(a)].

[3] "Dominion Rule" Abolished

Com. Code § 9205 abolished the "dominion rule" established in Benedict v. Ratner, which made floating liens void [Com. Code § 9205, UCC Comment 2; see Benedict v. Ratner (1925) 268 U.S. 353, 45 S. Ct. 566, 69 L. Ed. 991]. Although this provision negates Benedict, the filing and other perfection requirements provide for public notice that effectively overcomes any potential misleading effect of the debtor's use and control of collateral [Com. Code § 9205, UCC Comment 2; see Com. Code § 9301 et seq. (perfection and priority); Com. Code § 9501 et seq. (filing)]. Moreover, nothing in this provision prevents the debtor and secured party from agreeing to procedures by which the secured party polices or monitors collateral or to restrictions on the debtor's dominion. Rather, Com. Code § 9205 leaves these matters to agreement based on business considerations, not legal requirements [Com. Code § 9205, UCC Comment 2]. The parties to a floating lien may make their own terms and agree to strict accountability, segregation of collections, or daily reports, but this is not required by the Commercial Code [Com. Code § 9205, UCC Comment 5].

[4] Disadvantages of Floating Lien

The ease with which a floating lien can be established in all present and future collateral of the borrower can result in a stranglehold on the borrower's commercial activities. For example, a creditor secured by a floating lien may acquire rights in collateral whose value far exceeds the amount of the loans the creditor has granted and intends to grant to the borrower in the future. In these circumstances, manufacturers and other suppliers of inventory might hesitate to extend even normal credit terms to the borrower. A borrower may avoid this situation by preserving a cushion of assets free from the creditor's floating lien, or by providing otherwise in an agreement [see Com. Code § 9205, UCC Comment 2].

[5] Perfecting Floating Lien

To perfect a security interest in after-acquired property and future advances, a lender must file a financing statement [see Com. Code §§ 9310, 9204; see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions (financing statement)]. No further steps are necessary; the filing will validate the lender's lien in all collateral, whether the collateral exists at the time the security agreement is entered into or is acquired afterward [see Com. Code §§ 9310(a), 9204(a); see also Goldie v. Bauchet Properties (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 307, 319-320, 124 Cal. Rptr. 161, 540 P.2d 1 (decided under prior law)].

This filing will also secure all loans or advances made after the security agreement is signed, provided that the same type of collateral indicated in the filed financing statement is to be pledged against future loans or advances [see Com. Code §§ 9310(a), 9204(c); see also State Finance Co. v. Laugharn (9th Cir. 1940) 113 F.2d 59, 60-61 (decided under prior law)]. One important purpose of this filing requirement is to give other creditors notice that property of their borrower or prospective borrower is subject to secured claims [see Com. Code § 9205, UCC Comment 2; [3], above; see also Pace v. Threewit (1939) 31 Cal. App. 2d 509, 514, 88 P.2d 247 (decided under prior law); Menick v. Carson (S.D. Cal. 1951) 96 F. Supp. 817, 819 (decided under prior law)]. This perfection by filing will be good against any other of the borrower's creditors, with the possible exception of a conflicting purchase money security interest [see Com. Code § 9324; see § 43.19[6][b]].

The filed financing statement need not disclose the amount of the loan, the rate of interest, or other details of the agreement; this information may be kept confidential [see Com. Code § 9502(a)]. It must describe the collateral covered by the financing statement, but in general terms only [see Com. Code § 9502(a); see Com. Code § 9502(b) (additional requirements for as-extracted collateral or timber to be cut and for fixture filing which covers goods that are, or are to become, fixtures)]. This makes possible the shifting nature of the collateral. Finally, no itemization or detailed account of the amounts of future advances or the times when they will be made need be indicated in the original security agreement [see Com. Code § 9502(a)].

Financing business acquisitions and mergers was customarily accomplished by equity funding or debt financing through commercial finance companies; commercial banks did not generally engage in these credit transactions. However, large commercial banks are more often financing acquisitions and mergers than in the past. The number of companies willing to sell out to another company has also been increasing. One important reason for this change was the presence of the excess profits tax; in many instances the impact of this tax could be softened by transfer of the company to another company that showed higher earning than the company being acquired during the years constituting the base for computation of the excess profits tax.

Before financing a buyer of a business, a financier primarily wishes to ascertain the management ability of the purchaser. The acquiring enterprise may be either a business that is already established, in which case the parties involved in this transaction will usually call it a "merger," or it may be a new corporation specifically organized for the purpose of acquiring the existing business.

The purchase of a business may take either of two different forms. In one form the capital stock of the acquired business enterprise is purchased; the financier supplies a so-called "turn-around" or "facilitating" loan. This is a typical merger situation. Conventional financing follows, secured by collateral in the form of accounts receivable, inventory, and equipment of the now-combined company, and the new company assumes the liabilities of the acquired company.

In a second type of acquisition, purchase of the assets of the acquired or merged company only is effected, and its liabilities may or may not be assumed. No turn-around loan is required in this instance. Generally speaking, a financier will extend turn-around financing to the acquiring company to obtain its future conventional financing, which is usually more profitable than turn-around financing.

When inventory of the acquired or merged company represents collateral, the ascertained inventory turnover is an important factor for the financier to consider, as well as its currency and marketability. As in any other inventory financing, these factors will help to establish the potential increase in the cash flow of the acquiring company.

§ 43.23 Import and Export Financing

An added business complication in import and export sales transactions is that one of the trading partners is a national of a foreign country or has a place of business in a foreign country. However, as in the case of a domestic sale, these transactions involve three fundamental parts: (1) an agreed price of the goods imported or exported; (2) the time, place, and mode of delivery of the goods; and (3) the mode of payment.

The mode of payment for either imported or exported goods may be through the mechanism of unsecured or secured credit. Among the unsecured credit transactions is the establishment of an open account between buyer and seller, and the term draft transaction. Secured credit transactions are typified by the surrender of complying documents against payment collected through a bank, such as in a letter of credit arrangement. Letters of credit and related import-export transactions are covered in Ch. 56, Letters of Credit and Electronic Fund Transfers.

[1] In General

The major source of short-term credit other than commercial loans from banks is trade credit provided by suppliers of inventory, materials, and services. "Trade credit" is credit extended from a supplier to a purchaser purely for the purpose of purchasing what is offered by the supplier. Trade credit is frequently offered on an informal, flexible basis [see [2], below].

[2] When Trade Credit Is Employed

For most small businesses or new businesses, trade credit is preferable to bank credit. Banks normally will not loan money to these types of businesses because they have no track record and usually have little in the way of collateral. Therefore, in practical terms, trade credit may be the only credit available to many businesses.

Unlike banks, trade creditors are not limited in advancing credit by governmental regulation or by industry standards. Furthermore, unlike banks who only extend credit for the purpose of earning interest on the credit extended, trade creditors may extend credit for a variety of reasons. For example, a trade creditor may extend credit to encourage a new business to carry the trade creditor's product or to encourage the business to increase the amount of the trade creditor's product carried so as to cause the business not to carry the product of a competitor.

It is not unusual for a trade creditor to allow its customer to delay payment for six months or more and still receive a prompt payment discount if some reason exists for the delay. In fact, it is unusual for a trade creditor to require strict adherence to time limitations as a condition to taking a prompt payment discount.

Another advantage of trade credit is informality. Bank credit requires the execution of many highly technical documents. Trade credit, on the other hand, is often extended by a simple telephone conversation or even by acquiescence to a pattern and practice of payment.

Businesses should almost always approach their suppliers first when seeking credit to purchase inventory. The form of credit that may be granted by an inventory supplier is limited only by the imagination and negotiating abilities of the parties. Even the obtaining of inventory on consignment whereby it is not paid for until it is sold is a type of trade credit. However, a business will never receive trade credit unless it asks for it from its suppliers.

[3] Commercial Credit and Trade Credit Compared Commercial credit and trade credit have significant differences, which can be summarized as follows:

- Form of economic value. Bank credit represents money furnished to the borrower; trade credit is provided to purchase inventory, materials, or services from the trade supplier furnishing the credit, or to establish an ongoing business relationship.
- Repayment. Both a bank and a trade creditor are generally repaid in money, but the trade creditor may arrange to take back some merchandise if the account is unpaid. A bank cannot make a similar arrangement if the customer does not have funds to meet the obligations. However, when loans are made on a secured basis, a bank has the power to take as collateral the items that are purchased with the loan or that secure the loan.
- Term of exposure. Bank loan maturity periods are generally longer than trade credit terms. Payments for inventory are made in 30, 60, or 90 days according to industry characteristics or special arrangements between seller and buyer. Short-term bank loans usually extend for the entire seasonal needs of the borrower, with a minimum time of three months. During this same period the supplier's credit exposure may have been turned two or three times; each time the trade creditor has had the opportunity to review and modify the decision. As longer term bank loans are made, the bank ties up its risk for longer periods of time.
- Regulation. Banks are custodians of depositors' funds and are obligated to exercise care and prudence in their lending activities. In addition to their self-imposed criteria, banks are subject to regulations of state and federal authorities. Trade suppliers do not have these restrictions and may be willing to take greater risks in approving marginal accounts for credit.
- Dollar risk. A bank risks the full amount of its loan; a trade creditor with an account receivable of the same amount ordinarily risks considerably less because the gross profit is included in the amount of the receivable.
- Gross profit margin. Banks normally operate on much closer gross margins than trade creditors. A bank's gross profit is the amount of the interest earned from a loan. Thus, for example, on a commercial loan of $10,000 at 6 percent, the bank's gross profit would be $600 for one year and, of course, less for a shorter term. A trade creditor with a $10,000 account receivable payable in 30 days is likely to have a 30 percent gross profit, or $3,000, in a 30-day period. Trade creditors regularly offer a discount from the invoice price, but to gain the discount, payment typically must be made within 10 days of the invoice date and the amount of the discount is usually 2 percent. Even if the discount were taken, the trade creditor would have a 28-percent gross profit.
- Recovery of losses. Because bank profit margins are much lower than those of trade suppliers, a bad debt loss becomes significant to a bank; at the low profit margin, a greater amount of business must be written with other accounts to cover losses from a customer who does not pay. Accordingly, bank analysis of a credit risk will be detailed, and interpretation of the facts will be conservative, compared to a trade creditor's analysis.

§ 43.26 Sale of Credit Disability Insurance by Lender

A lender may wish to protect its position through the use of credit disability insurance covering the debtor [see Civ. Code § 1812.400 et seq.]. However, the presence of credit disability insurance will have an adverse effect on the creditor's right to enforce the debt in the event of default when the insurance was sold or arranged for by the creditor or when the creditor received compensation for its sale. In addition, certain disclosures must be made at the time of the sale. For discussion of credit disability insurance, see Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales .

§ 43.27 Commercial Credit Reports

Banks and other lending institutions frequently use commercial credit reports to verify information provided in loan applications by potential borrowers. The use of commercial credit reports is subject to specific regulation [see Civ. Code § 1785.41 et seq.] and is not subject to the Consumer Credit Reporting Agencies Act [Civ. Code § 1785.41; see Civ. Code § 1785.1 et seq.].

A "commercial credit report" is a report provided to a commercial enterprise for a legitimate business purpose, relating to the financial status or payment habits of the commercial enterprise that is the subject of the report [Civ. Code § 1785.42(a)]. A "commercial credit reporting agency" is a person who, for monetary fees, dues, or on a cooperative nonprofit basis, provides commercial credit reports to third parties [Civ. Code § 1785.42(b)]. The term "subject" refers to the commercial enterprise about which the commercial credit report has been compiled [Civ. Code § 1785.42(c)]. Commercial credit reporting agencies may protect the identity of sources of information used in commercial credit reports [Civ. Code § 1785.43(a)].

On the request of a representative of the subject of a commercial credit report, a commercial credit reporting agency must provide the subject with a printed copy of the report [Civ. Code § 1785.43(b)]. If the subject of a commercial credit report believes the report contains an inaccurate statement of fact, a representative may file a report with the credit reporting agency identifying the disputed statement and indicating the nature of the subject's disagreement with the report. Within 30 days of receiving the subject's statement, the credit reporting agency must delete the disputed item from the report or indicate in the report that the subject's statement of disagreement will be provided on request [Civ. Code § 1785.43(c)].

[1] Background of Principals

NOTE:

In deciding whether to extend credit, a loan analyst must try to determine whether the principals in a business are good moral risks, whether they possess sound business judgment, and whether the firm has the capacity to remain in business. The lender's appraisal of the borrower's personal reputation and business ability, therefore, weighs heavily in loan decisions. The legal form of the borrowing entity also affects creditor risk.

1. Name, address, telephone number, and fax number of firm.

2. Legal form of firm organization, such as:

- a. Sole proprietorship.
- b. Partnership.
- c. Corporation.

d. Limited liability company.

3. Names, addresses, telephone numbers, and fax numbers of principals in business.

4. General considerations:

a. Age of principals.

NOTE:

As a matter of law, banks may not discriminate in lending on the basis of age.

b. Compatibility of principals.

c. Distribution of duties.

d. Hidden ownership, if any.

5. Personal characteristics of principals:

a. Personal worths and income.

b. Other interests.

c. Relatives.

NOTE:

If a potential borrower does not show the financial strength to support a loan application, it may be possible to ask for the guaranty or endorsement of a relative.

d. Personal habits.

6. Business reputation:

a. Integrity.

b. Experience in particular business.

c. Bankruptcies.

d. Fraud.

e. Fire record.

[2] Background of Business

NOTE:

In addition to the personal characteristics of the principals, the loan analyst is interested in the business characteristics of the firm.

1. Characteristics affecting general image of business:

- a. Age of business.
- b. Firm reputation and performance record.
- c. Debt payment record.

2. Details of business operation:

- a. Industry standards.
- b. Function within industry.
- c. Marketing approach.
- d. Products or services offered.
- e. Terms offered.
- f. Lag factors in operation.
- g. Seasonal aspects of business.
- h. Fixed investments required by business.

3. Credit aspects of legal form of organization of firm:

NOTE:

Credit decisions are influenced by the legal form of entity of the business. The form of organization bears on management and control, continuity, financial operation, and liability of the firm and its principals.

a. Sole proprietorship:

NOTE:

Approximately 80 percent of all businesses in the United States are conducted as sole proprietorships.

- (1) Management and control by one person.
- (2) Continuity issues for business operated by one person.
- (3) Financial aspects tied solely to proprietor.
- (4) Unlimited personal liability.

b. Partnership:

- (1) Management and control by (likely) multiple experienced partners.
- (2) Continuity issues related to partnership agreement.
- (3) Financial standing of partners.
- (4) Liability of general partners.

NOTE:

Generally, the execution of personal guaranties by partners of partnership obligations is a redundancy that adds nothing to the obligations of the partnership. However, banks continue to require them on the theory that it reinforces in the minds of the partners their obligations.

c. Corporation:

- (1) Management and control by officers and directors.
- (2) Continuity of life of corporation.
- (3) Financial standing of shareholders.
- (4) Limited liability of shareholders.

NOTE:

One area of particular concern is that of personal guaranties of corporate obligations. Many new or small business owners wish to conduct their business through a corporation. One of the principal advantages of using a corporation to conduct business is the limitation of personal liability. Whenever an individual enters into a personal guaranty of a corporate obligation, he or she loses the corporate advantage of limiting liability. Therefore, individual guaranties of corporate obligations should be resisted. While almost all lenders will require the guaranties, a consistent resistance will eventually result in a successful corporation not needing the guaranties to obtain credit.

d. Limited liability company:

NOTE:

Limited liability companies are a relatively new type of business entity in California. They are a hybrid form, in that they provide limited liability to their members similar to that of a corporation, while allowing management and taxation similar to that of a partnership. For coverage of LLCs, see Ch. 12C, Limited Liability Companies.

- (1) Management and control by members or managers.
- (2) Continuity of life of company.
- (3) Financial standing of members.
- (4) Limited liability of members.

[3] Financial Data on BorrowerNOTE:

When applying for credit from a bank, most banks require the submission of a business plan. In preparing the business plan, the information and forms listed here and in [2], above, should be addressed.

Loan officers expect the applicant to be able to express a clear purpose for the loan. All information provided should be complete, accurate and truthful. If tax returns are requested, the complete return should be provided, not just selected portions of the return. Audited financial statements are not usually required. However, reviewed statements rather than simply compiled statements may be required, depending on the size of the loan requested.

It is important to understand that banks do not simply rely on the information supplied by the applicant. Independent sources are used to verify the information supplied by an applicant [see § 43.27 (commercial credit reports)]. Many times banks will require that the applicant authorize the bank to obtain copies of tax returns directly from the IRS. Those authorizations are used and altered tax returns will be discovered.

1. Balance sheet for current period, projected for two years.
2. Comparative balance sheet for past three years if age of business permits.
3. Income statement for current period, projected for two years.
4. Comparative income statement for past three years.
5. Statements of retained earnings for past three years.
6. Supporting schedules for respective financial statements.

NOTE:

The financial statements should take the form of an audit report of an independent public accountant.

7. Cash flow statement.
8. Cash budget.
9. Growth plan for firm.
10. If business is new, and unable to provide past financial data, financial manager should prepare pro forma statements and cash budget.
11. If firm is corporation, chart of entire stock structure and general composition of security holders and their holdings, accompanied by charter documents.
12. Summaries of contingent liabilities from litigation, leasing of assets, and like.

[4] Financial Data on Related Firms and Individuals

1. If business is parent or subsidiary of another firm, consolidated financial statements for past three years; separate financial statements for other firm should be made available.
2. If business is proprietorship, partnership, or limited liability company, statements of personal assets, liabilities, and net worth of principals.
3. Statements of personal assets, liabilities, and net worth of officers or relatives who may act as endorsers or guarantors.
4. Details of contractual relationships with suppliers, customers, promoters, and others.

[5] Inventory of Property Available as Collateral

1. Categorize collateral available for securing commercial loan:
 - a. Certificates of deposit.
 - b. Time deposits.
 - c. Savings accounts.
 - d. Bonds.
 - e. Stocks.
 - f. Cash value of life insurance policies.
 - g. Dealers' and brokers' due bills (not acceptable at all banks).
 - h. Other forms of liquid collateral.
 - i. Accounts receivable.
 - j. Contract rights.
 - k. Inventory.
 - l. Equipment.
 - m. Real property.
 - n. Other property.

NOTE:

In general, banks will accept as collateral any property that is readily marketable and that has an easily ascertainable value.

2. Allocate collateral to individual scheduled borrowings as considered appropriate:

- a. Collateral that must remain in physical possession of business.
- b. Collateral that will or must remain in third- party control regardless of security status.
- c. Collateral, such as stocks and bonds, that can be removed with lender's acquiescence from creditor control on exchange of equivalent value.
- d. Collateral that can be transferred physically to creditor but must be regained within limited period for use purposes.
- e. Collateral that produces continuous proceeds, rights to which must be retained by borrower and separated from security interest of creditor.
- f. Collateral that produces, or consists exclusively of, proceeds that should be arranged to pay down loan, either progressively or at maturity.
- g. Collateral that is unstable, or that degenerates or depreciates.
- h. Collateral with other special characteristics, such as controlling block of stock, that should be severed from security.
- i. Collateral value that will support large loan or several loans at once.
- j. Collateral that is, or can be, subject to one or more other priorities, of other creditors.

§ 43.111 Preparing for Interview With Loan Officer

1. Identify all possible sources of financing.
2. Acquire reliable data as to policies and characteristics of each source of financing.
3. Determine who will attend loan interview:
 - a. Owner of sole proprietorship.
 - b. Chief financial officer of corporation.
 - c. General partner of partnership.
 - d. Manager, officer, or member of limited liability company.
4. Have client prepare evidence of following factors by which credit risk is judged:
 - a. Client's character; that is, past record of honesty and integrity, particularly with respect to previous borrowing and payment history.

- b. Client's capacity or ability to manage, based on past business record.
 - c. Client's capital or general financial position, based on financial ratio analysis.
 - d. Value and type of collateral client can offer as security for credit.
 - e. General economic conditions at time client seeks loan.
5. Obtain and review firm's credit rating from Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., Lyons Mercantile Furniture Agency, Credit Exchange, Inc., or National Credit Office, as appropriate, to deal with any negative information appearing in credit rating.
6. Prepare thorough prefinance analysis based on considerations outlined above:
- a. Definition of firm's objectives.
 - b. Financial analysis.
 - c. Analysis of business:
 - (1) Products.
 - (2) Markets.
 - (3) Costs.
 - (4) Management.
 - (5) Personnel.
 - (6) Plant and assets.
 - (7) Purchasing.
 - (8) Research and development.

§ 43.120 Attending Interview With Loan Officer

1. Schedule interviews with financing sources.
2. Bring to interview business plan, financial statements, cash budget, growth plan, and other documents listed in § 43.101.
3. Formulate presentation to loan officer to demonstrate:
 - a. Need for financing.
 - b. Reasons for need.
 - c. Proposed source of repayment.

NOTE:

Avoid suggesting how financing should be arranged. That is the job of the loan officer.

4. In course of interview, expect loan officer to discuss following probable terms and conditions that would be imposed on loan, as appropriate:

- a. Interest rates.
- b. Term of loan.
- c. Repayment program.
- d. Disbursement plan.
- e. Collateral.
- f. Initial and follow-up inspections or appraisals of collateral.
- g. Assignments.
- h. Subordination of other debt or liens.
- i. Continuing guaranties or endorsements.
- j. Loan costs.
- k. Accounts to be maintained including compensatory balances or other business.
- l. Records and exhibits to be required initially and for follow-up.
- m. No split borrowing without bank's knowledge and consent.

§ 43.121 Determining Feasibility of Loan

1. Expect loan officer to determine by end of interview whether loan application appears feasible.

NOTE:

However, unless a business is an established customer of the bank, do not expect a final decision of approval of the loan at the time of the interview.

2. If application appears feasible to loan officer, prepare to await referral to credit department of bank for investigation, analysis, and report back to loan officer for decision.
3. If application does not appear feasible, expect loan officer to say so at conclusion of interview.

NOTE:

If the loan is not feasible, the applicant should ask why not. This will allow the applicant to correct any problem or identify another lending institution with a different policy about the matter in question.

§ 43.130 Checklist of Necessary Forms

NOTE:

A commercial loan will involve executing some or all of the following forms. Banks always require the use of their own preprinted forms.

1. Promissory note [see §§ 43.310-43.317].

2. Borrowing authorization:

a. If corporation, have borrower complete resolution to borrow, and affix corporate seal, if any [see § 43.204].

b. If partnership, have borrower execute partnership authorization to borrow [see § 43.205].

c. If limited liability company, have borrower execute LLC authorization to borrow [see § 43.205; see also Ch. 12C, Limited Liability Companies].

3. Subordination agreement, if necessary [see § 43.230].

4. Authorization to pay proceeds of note; lender will obtain signature of borrower if proceeds are disbursed to one of several makers, credited to account of one of several makers, paid to someone other than maker, or paid in cash.
5. Security or loan agreement [see §§ 43.131, 43.132].
6. Secured transaction filings [see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions].
7. Loan application and financial statement [see §§ 43.200-43.203].
8. Assignment of insurance policies [see §§ 43.270-43.273].

§ 43.131 Drafting Loan Agreement

NOTE:

In most secured loan situations, the parties will find a simple security agreement sufficient for their purposes; these are executed on bank-supplied forms [see § 43.132]. On the other hand, loan agreements are detailed, are drafted on an ad hoc basis, and, generally result from negotiations between the parties. Typically, they will contain provisions relating to the matters indicated here.

1. Loan terms.
2. Security in form of agreement to issue lender debentures or warrants.
3. Collateral statement.
4. Conditions and borrower's obligations.
5. Warranties by borrower.
6. Affirmative covenants of borrower.

7. Negative covenants of borrower.
8. Security agreement provisions.
9. Default provisions.
10. General provisions concerning notice, cumulative rights, assignment, construction, and severability.

§ 43.132 Executing Security Agreement

1. Inventory or flooring security agreement:

- a. Inventory loan security agreement typically used by banks [see § 43.282].
- b. Flooring security agreement [see Ch. 47, Automotive Financing and Vehicle Leasing].
- c. Agreement grants lender security interest so that it may attach to collateral enabling lender to perfect security interest.

NOTE:

The agreement should use a phrase such as "borrower grants to lender security interest in following property" [see Com. Code § 9203(b)(3)(A); see also Ch. 42, Secured Transactions].

- d. Ensure that agreement permits borrower to possess and sell inventory if lender has floating lien [see Com. Code § 9204].
- e. Avoid agreement providing for secured party retaining physical control of inventory under field warehousing arrangement.

NOTE:

In field warehousing, perfection may be had by possession of the document (negotiable or nonnegotiable) or by filing [see Com. Code §§ 9312, 9313]. If the agreement provides for field warehousing, the debtor's attorney should attempt to protect the debtor by providing against filing.

- f. Cover after-acquired property by including phrase "all inventory now owned or hereafter acquired."
- g. Define proceeds to specify exactly what is included, such as insurance proceeds, returns, and repossessions [see Com. Code §§ 9102(a)(64), 9315].
- h. Cover future advances, using phrase such as "the security interest granted in this security agreement is to secure all obligations of borrower to lender of every kind, due or to become due, now existing or hereafter arising."
- i. Ensure that agreement constitutes binding commitment to make future advances.

NOTE:

When there is no outstanding secured obligation and no commitment to make advances or incur obligations, the debtor may demand a termination statement from the lender, providing that the lender no longer claims a security interest [see Com. Code § 9513].

- j. Limit description of collateral to avoid endangering debtor's use of other collateral to obtain other credit.
- k. Purchase money considerations [see Com. Code § 9324]:

- (1) Purchase money seller obtains priority over inventory lender by filing before debtor possesses goods.

- (2) Seller must give notice of interest to inventory financier.

- (3) Inventory security agreement may prohibit such liens or require lender's prior approval.

- (4) Borrower should attempt to include agreement permitting such liens to facilitate trade credit.

- l. Financing commingled goods [see Com. Code §§ 9335 (accessions), 9336 (priority in commingled goods)]:

- (1) Seller-secured parties should resolve priority problems by separate agreement.

- (2) Subordination agreements are permitted [see Com. Code § 9339; see also § 43.230].

- 2. Equipment loan security agreement [see § 43.283]:

- a. Describe equipment in following manner:

- (1) Describe equipment with particularity if debtor will later seek financing for other equipment; or

- (2) Describe equipment generally as "all equipment now owned or hereafter acquired" if debtor will not later seek other financing.

- b. Include purchase money considerations [Com. Code § 9324(a)]:

(1) Lender may require loan proceeds to be paid by it directly to seller; or

(2) Lender may include provision by which borrower agrees to purchase described equipment only.

c. Financing existing equipment involves peril to lender that preexisting goods or services liens have priority; therefore, security agreement should include covenant that there are no such liens [see Com. Code § 9333].

d. Provide for dilution or diminution of interest through accessions [see Com. Code §§ 9335, 9336]:

(1) Debtor may wish freedom to install replacement parts or like; or

(2) As with liens, lender may wish to require that debtor keep equipment free of other security interests or encumbrances.

e. Include provisions covering equipment as fixture [see Com. Code § 9334]:

NOTE:

Equipment may be affixed to real estate without causing any subordination of the lender's purchase money security interest in the equipment if the security interest is perfected by a fixture filing before the goods become fixtures or within 20 days after the goods become fixtures [Com. Code § 9334(d); see Com. Code §§ 9310 (when filing is required to perfect security interest), 9501 (filing office), 9502 (financing statement)].

(1) Generally, lender will require provision stating that debtor will not affix equipment to real estate, or default will result.

(2) Lender may require subordination agreement from real estate secured party [see § 43.230].

f. Require debtor to pay promptly all taxes assessed.

g. Require debtor to avoid commingling, sale, or disposition of collateral.

h. Provide that debtor is to keep collateral in good condition and repair except for reasonable wear and tear.

i. Permit lender to inspect at reasonable times.

j. Permit lender to pay taxes, encumbrances, insurance costs; reimbursable to lender.

k. Define proceeds to include insurance payments occasioned by loss or damage to collateral.

l. Include provisions relating to movable equipment [see Com. Code §§ 9301, 9303]:

(1) Warranty concerning location.

(2) Require debtor to notify lender if moved.

m. Specify which acts other than failure to pay constitute default.

n. Specify remedies:

- (1) Provide for notice to debtor of sale.
- (2) Provide for or avoid provision for acceleration on default.
- (3) Specify repossession procedures.
- (4) Provide for removal of fixtures.
- (5) Provide for sale of perishables or liability therefor.
- (6) Specify procedures to be applicable on public or private sale.
- (7) Provide for disposition of sale proceeds.
- (8) Limit or cover debtor's liability for attorneys' fees and other legal expenses.

o. Waive debtor's defenses against assignees [see Com. Code § 9403; see also § 43.243].

19-43 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 43.200

AUTHOR: Reviewed by the Honorable Walter L. Blackwell III Judge Blackwell is a judge of the San Bernardino County Superior Court in Barstow, California. He received a B.A. in Business Administration and Economics from the University of Redlands, and a J.D. from U.C.L.A. § 43.200 Loan Presentation

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a loan presentation (also known as a summary report) of information in a loan application, used by a bank to evaluate whether to make a commercial loan. This form is not completed by the loan applicant, but rather is used as an evaluation sheet by a bank officer in deciding whether to offer credit to the applicant. This form is presented here to show the type of information banks use in evaluating the applicant's financial situation.

[b] Parts of Loan Application

An application for a commercial loan usually is divided into two parts. The presentation of loan information is not submitted by the borrower, but rather is composed by the lending officer who is arranging for the loan. The officer summarizes the major points of the desired loan based on the applicant's financial statement and on a conference with the applicant on a form such as this one. The applicant mainly is responsible for completing a financial statement and credit application [see § 43.201 (form for financial statement and credit application)] containing the information that is used by the loan officer to reach a decision on whether to approve the loan.

[c] Inapplicability of Truth in Lending Act to Commercial Credit

The bank is not required to include in this form any disclosure statement under the Truth in Lending Act regarding the cost of credit, because the Act and its implementing regulation, Regulation Z, apply only to consumer credit, not commercial credit [15 U.S.C. § 1603(1); 12 C.F.R. § 226.3(a)].

§ 43.201 Personal Financial Statement and Credit Application

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an illustrative combined financial statement and credit application to be completed by an individual applying for a commercial loan. The information contained in this form is used by the loan officer to generate the loan presentation that is the basis for deciding whether to offer credit to the applicant [see § 43.200]. For an application for a business loan, see § 43.202.

[b] Completing Application

Although the loan officer is primarily responsible for creating the loan presentation to submit on the applicant's behalf, the applicant must prepare and submit a detailed financial statement and credit application for the loan officer to use in preparing the presentation. The information contained in this financial statement and credit application is key in the decision-making process in the loan supervision department in considering the applicant's application. The bank may use a commercial credit report to verify this information [see § 43.29].

The applicant may use an accountant or the bank's loan department to assist in completing this type of form. If an audited financial statement has already been prepared, the applicant may attach a copy of the statement to this form on submission. Regardless of how prepared, the financial statement should portray an adequate listing in balance sheet form (assets and liabilities), give a meaningful running account of income and expenditures (profit and loss), and categorize the component figures into a representative number of schedules of types of property possessed in order to disclose the most accurate net worth of the applicant.

By filling out the application completely, the applicant will avoid the delays that will be caused by the loan officer's having to ask for additional information. The loan officer will not overlook information that is not supplied.

§ 43.202 Application for Business Loan

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an illustrative application for a business loan, for use when a business entity, rather than a principal of the business entity, is applying for the loan. For an illustrative commercial credit application for use by an individual, see § 43.201.

When a business entity, rather than a principal of the business entity, is applying for a business loan, a different credit application form typically is submitted to the bank. This form requires disclosure of the relation of personal worth of individuals involved in the organization structure to the assets of the enterprise as a whole. It is helpful to go beyond the basic information requests and attach any prepared audited financial statements.

[b] Completing Application

This application elicits a variety of information about the business, including the following:

- The purpose of the loan.
- The proposed repayment plan.
- The source of repayment.

- Information about collateral and guarantors.
- Business references.
- A business resume.
- Insurance information.
- Disclosures about the owners of the business.
- An agreement to allow release of credit information.

In addition, the applicant is encouraged to attach any necessary supporting financial statements and other relevant documents.

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is an attachment to either a personal or business credit application, used to list the applicant's real estate holdings. It elicits more detailed information concerning an applicant's ownership interests in real estate than the standard credit applications [see §§ 43.201, 43.202]. This information normally will be a part of any credit application.

§ 43.204 Corporate Resolution to Obtain Credit

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a bank form for a certified copy of a corporate resolution authorizing a corporation to apply for commercial credit.

So that there is no question as to the authority of corporate directors, officers, or agents to obtain credit on behalf of the corporation, banks usually require that the corporation provide it with a certified copy of this type of resolution covering the borrowing powers of corporate personnel applying for loans for the corporation. To ensure that the resolution complies with its requirements, a bank will usually draft the resolution (such as this one), which is presented to the corporation for completion. Alternatively, if acceptable to the bank, the corporation could draft its own resolution for approval by the bank before adoption.

This form includes the language of the resolution, as well as space for the name, title, and signature of persons authorized to act on behalf of the corporation.

A certified copy of a corporate resolution is prima facie evidence of the adoption of the resolution [Corp. Code § 314]. For further coverage of corporate resolutions, see Ch. 5, Directors' Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions .

§ 43.205 Partnership Authorization for Borrowing With Personal Guaranties

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an authorization for a partnership to borrow money for commercial purposes and a guaranty of the loan by the partners of the partnership. When a partnership wishes to borrow money in the name of the partnership, a bank will want to receive a formal authorization of this type signed by all the general partners for the loan.

With appropriate minor modifications in language, this form can be used as an authorization of a limited liability company to borrow money [see Ch. 12C, Limited Liability Companies].

[b] Purpose of Guaranty

This authorization expressly recites that the partners are all to be personal guarantors of the loan in an accompanying separate continuing guaranty arrangement. It also provides that a standard form of continuing guaranty must be attached to this form [see § 43.220]. Legally, the execution of personal guaranties by partners of partnership obligations is a redundancy that adds nothing to the obligations of the partners. Nonetheless, banks continue to require them on the theory that it reinforces in the minds of the partners their obligations.

The bank ordinarily will want to see a financial statement for each of the partners personally, as well as for the partnership business, unless the partnership financial statement is unusually adequate. For general discussion of rights and duties of a guarantor, see § 43.220[1].

[2] FORMPartnership Authorization for Borrowing With Personal Guaranties*COMBINED AUTHORITY AND INDIVIDUAL GUARANTY FOR PARTNERSHIP

To _____ [name of bank]:

To induce an extension of credit by you ("Bank") to the partnership ("Partnership") herein described, the undersigned, individually, and as members and on behalf of the Partnership, agree with Bank as follows:

The following agreements and authorizations are continuing and are to apply to all present and future indebtedness of the Partnership to Bank.

Authorization for Partnership Transactions

1. As members of the Partnership we jointly and severally represent to and agree with Bank that we are the owners of and the only ones interested in a partnership business conducted by us as partners under the firm name of _____ [name of partnership] at [location], that the business is not incorporated or organized as a limited liability company, and that a Certificate of Fictitious or Assumed Name of the Partnership has been filed if required by law.

It is agreed that _____ [name(s) and title(s) of person(s) authorized to take actions on behalf of partnership; indicate whether named persons may act by themselves or must act together, e.g., _____ (name) (partner), _____ (name) (partner), or _____ (name) (agent), acting individually as representatives of this Partnership, or, if persons must act together: _____ (name) (partner) and _____ (name) (partner), acting together,] [is or are] authorized by, on behalf of, and in the name of this Partnership:

(a) To borrow money from Bank in amounts and on terms that may be agreed on between Bank and these authorized person or persons and to execute and deliver or endorse evidences of indebtedness and renewals thereof bearing interest and containing other terms and conditions as may be required by Bank;

(b) To sell to, or discount or rediscount with, Bank any and all negotiable instruments, contracts, or instruments or evidences of debt at any time held or drawn by the Partnership and to draw, endorse, transfer, and deliver the same together with guaranties of payment or repurchase thereof to Bank and that Bank be authorized and directed to pay the proceeds of the sale, discount, or rediscount as directed by the endorsement without inquiring into the circumstances of their issue or endorsement or the disposition of the proceeds;

(c) To transfer, endorse, mortgage, pledge, or hypothecate to Bank any and all of the real, personal, or other property of the Partnership as security for any moneys borrowed or for any liability incurred by the Partnership to Bank, whether matured or not matured, absolute or contingent, and wherever payable;

(d) To withdraw, receive, and receipt for and to withdraw on security agreement on the responsibility and at the risk of the Partnership and to sign orders for the withdrawal, substitution, or exchange of any property pledged, assigned, transferred, or otherwise held for the Partnership's account; such withdrawals, substitutions or exchanges may also be made by the bearer of any order, receipt, or request so signed;

(e) To make, execute and deliver in the name of the Partnership any waivers, guaranties, and agreements as may be required by the Bank;

(f) To sign any financing statements as may be requested by Bank for the purpose of official filing; and

(g) To transact any other business with Bank incidental to the powers granted in this authorization. Bank is under no obligation to see to the application of funds in any case whatsoever. The foregoing authorizations are continuing and to remain in effect as to all transactions entered into until Bank receives at the place at which this instrument is held written notice to the contrary signed by one of us.

Individual Guaranty of Partnership Transactions

2. As individuals (not as partners), in consideration of all and any credit given by Bank to the Partnership, we hereby jointly and severally guaranty prompt payment when due of any and all indebtedness now due or that may later become due from the Partnership to the Bank, however created, or arising, or evidenced, and waive notice of the acceptance of this guaranty and of any and all indebtedness at any time covered by this guaranty. This is a continuing guaranty, and is subject to all the terms and conditions of Bank's usual form of continuing guaranty attached to and made a part of this authorization.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the undersigned individually and as partners have caused this instrument to be executed and delivered to Bank on _____[date].

§ 43.206 Business Loan Agreement

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an agreement between a borrower and a bank for a business loan. When a business loan application is approved by a bank, the bank and business enterprise enter into this type of agreement to formalize the understanding of the parties.

[b] Contents of Agreement

This agreement includes all of the following clauses:

- The nature of the borrower's business.
- The purpose of the loan.
- Information about owners and officers.
- Information about minimum working capital and net worth.
- Information about assets and capital equipment.

- Subordination of existing debt.
- Collateral.
- Representations.
- Default and acceleration events.
- Insurance coverage.
- Collection costs.

Typically, this type of agreement is presented to the borrower by the bank on its own preprinted form. All of the provisions apply to the borrower unless the bank waives compliance in writing.

This form limits, among other things, the amount that may be paid to principals as salaries or otherwise. Particular attention should also be paid to the representations section to be certain that they apply in each instance.

Business Loan Agreement

BUSINESS LOAN AGREEMENT

TO: _____ [name of bank] ("Bank")

In consideration of any financial accommodations given, or to be given or continued ("Credit") by Bank to the undersigned, _____ [name of borrower] ("Borrower") pursuant to the following described document(s): [specify] and any extensions, renewals or replacements thereof (Document(s)), Borrower hereby represents, warrants, and agrees as follows, unless Bank waives compliance in writing:

1. Nature of Business. Borrower is a [organizational form of business, e.g., corporation or limited liability company or partnership or sole proprietorship]; and the business operated by Borrower is a [type of business, e.g., machine shop] ("Business").

2. Purpose of Credit. Borrower shall maintain the Business as and in the form presently conducted and shall utilize the Credit only for the following purposes of the Business: [specify].

3. Owner's or Corporate Officers' Withdrawals, Salaries, Etc. Direct or indirect withdrawals, compensation, advances, or other distributions, from the Business, in cash or otherwise, shall not exceed the following amounts for the persons indicated, nor shall amounts in excess of the limits indicated be distributed, directly or indirectly, to any other person:

[_____ Insert name(s) of parties interested in business, such as owner, partners, or officers (generally does not include employees):]

Name	Monthly Payment
_____	$ _____
_____	$ _____

4. Minimum Working Capital and Net Worth. In the operation of the Business, a minimum tangible net worth of $_____ shall be maintained and current assets shall be maintained in excess of current liabilities by at least $_____.

5. Investment in Fixed Assets. In the operation of the Business, no investment shall be made in fixed assets in excess of $_____ in any 12 month period.

6. Lease of Capital Equipment. In the operation of the Business, no lease of personal property shall be entered into which would cause Borrower's aggregate annual rental obligations under all such leases to exceed $_____.

7. Subordination of Existing Debt: The following present indebtedness of Borrower shall be subordinated to amounts owing in respect of the Credit by a Subordination Agreement satisfactory to Bank:

Name of Creditor or Borrower	Amount
_____	$ _____
_____	$ _____

8. Security for Credit. As security for amounts owing in respect of the Credit, Borrower shall deliver to Bank the following collateral or duly executed instruments of security or guaranty, and shall comply with all terms conditions and provisions set forth in those instruments: [specify].

9. Representations and Warranties; Additional Covenants.

(a) Borrower is a [corporation or partnership or limited liability company or sole proprietorship] duly organized, validly existing and in good standing under the laws of the State of _____, with its principal place of business at _____[address]. Borrower has the lawful power to own its properties and to engage in the business it conducts, and is duly qualified and in good standing as a foreign corporation (or other applicable type of business entity) in the jurisdictions wherein the nature of the business transacted by it or property owned by it makes such qualification necessary.

(b) Borrower has full power and authority (corporate and other) to borrow the sums provided for under the Credit, to execute, deliver, and perform this agreement ("Agreement"), the Document(s), and all other instruments and agreements made in connection herewith and with the Credit (the Document(s) and other instruments and agreements hereinafter called "Related Documents").

(c) All action by Borrower, its directors, stockholders, members, or partners, as applicable, that is necessary for the authorization execution, delivery, and performance of this Agreement, and of the Related Documents have been duly taken.

(d) The officers or representatives of Borrower executing the Agreement and the Related Documents are duly and properly in office or acting as representatives and are fully authorized to execute the same.

(e) The Agreement has been duly authorized, executed, and delivered by Borrower, and is a legal, valid, and binding agreement of Borrower, enforceable against it in accordance with its terms, and the Related Documents have been so authorized and, when executed and delivered, shall be similarly valid, binding and enforceable against the parties thereto.

(f) There is no charter, bylaw, or capital stock provision of Borrower, and no provision of any indenture instrument, or agreement, written or oral, to which Borrower is a party or which governs the actions of Borrower or which is otherwise binding upon Borrower or Borrower's property, nor is there any statute, rule or regulation, or any judgment, decree, or order of any court or agency binding on Borrower or Borrower's property which would be contravened by the execution, delivery or performance of this Agreement, or of the Related Documents.

(g) There is no action, suit, or proceeding at law or in equity or by or before any governmental instrumentality or other agency now pending, or, to the knowledge of Borrower, threatened against or affecting Borrower, or any properties or rights of Borrower, which, if adversely determined, would materially impair the right of Borrower to carry on the Business substantially as now conducted or would materially adversely affect the financial condition of Borrower.

(h) No event has occurred and is continuing or would result from the extension of any part of the Credit which constitutes an Event of Default as described in Paragraph 10, or which, on the lapse of time or notice or both, would become such Event of Default.

(i) All financial statements, statements as to ownership, and other statements given to Bank by Borrower are true and correct and Borrower has full and complete title to any and all property in which Borrower may grant to Bank a security interest as security for amounts owing in respect of the Credit.

(j) Borrower shall maintain executive personnel and management for the Business satisfactory to Bank.

(k) Borrower shall keep books and records in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles, shall deliver to Bank [semi-annual or quarterly or monthly] balance sheets and income statements within _____ days of the end of each relevant fiscal period, and shall deliver an annual balance sheet and income statement within _____ days of the end of its fiscal year. Borrower shall deliver such other financial statements (in form satisfactory to Bank) and such other information as Bank may request from time to time and shall permit a representative on behalf of Bank to examine and audit the books of the Business. Borrower shall inform Bank of any litigation, claim, or other loss contingency involving Borrower, or any other circumstance, the adverse determination of which might substantially prejudice the payment of amounts due in respect of the Credit.

(l) Borrower shall pay all of its obligations when due and discharge all of its liabilities when finally determined.

(m) Borrower shall not, in the operation of the Business, incur other indebtedness for borrowed money, or act as guarantor for any indebtedness of others, or lend money, lease, sell, contract to sell or lease, transfer, mortgage, assign, hypothecate or encumber any assets except in the ordinary course of business. (For the purpose of this provision, sale of accounts receivable shall be deemed the incurring of indebtedness for borrowed money.)

(n) Borrower shall not pay any dividends on any of its outstanding shares, issue, purchase or retire any of its shares or interests, reorganize, merge or be the subject of change of control, or otherwise alter or amend its capital or partnership structure.

10. Events of Default and Acceleration. On the occurrence of any of the following events or circumstances, Bank at its election may terminate any or all commitments, and other obligations of Bank to Borrower and declare all amounts outstanding in respect of the Credit to be immediately due and payable without demand or notice to Borrower:

(a) Any failure on the part of Borrower to pay any amounts owing in respect of the Credit when due, or any breach or default by Borrower of or under any term, condition, provision, warranty; or representation made herein or in any of the Related Documents; or

(b) If Borrower or any guarantor of any part of the Credit dies, becomes insolvent, is generally not paying its debts as such debts become due, suffers a material adverse change of financial condition, or defaults with respect to any order, judgment, injunction, decree, writ or demand of any court or other public authority; or

(c) If Bank in good faith believes that the prospect of payment or performance in respect of the Credit or the Related Documents is impaired.

All amounts outstanding in respect of the Credit shall be in default, and immediately due and payable in full, and all commitments and other obligations of Bank to Borrower shall be terminated, without declaration, demand or notice to Borrower if Borrower or any guarantor of any part of the Credit:

(a) Makes an assignment for the benefit of creditors; or

(b) Is the subject of any voluntary or involuntary case commenced under the federal bankruptcy laws, as now constituted or hereafter amended, or any other proceeding under other applicable laws regarding bankruptcy, insolvency, reorganization, adjustment of debt or other forms of relief for debtors in any jurisdiction; or

(c) Consents to the appointment of a receiver, trustee, custodian or similar official for substantially all of its property or permits a decree ordering such appointment to remain in effect and unstayed for 60 days; or

(d) Is the subject of any dissolution or liquidation proceeding; or

(e) Has issued against it or its property any writ of attachment, execution, or other legal process involving an amount or risk deemed material by Bank; or

(f) Has filed or recorded against it or its property any notice of levy, notice to withhold, or other claim for taxes other than real property taxes not yet delinquent involving an amount deemed material by Bank.

The events described in this paragraph 10 shall be defaults notwithstanding the terms of any of the Related Documents.

11. Insurance.

(a) Physical. In connection with the Business, Borrower shall maintain, with financially sound and reputable insurers, insurance with respect to its properties and business against such casualties and contingencies, of such types (as fire and public liability, including products liability) and in such amounts as is customary in the case of businesses of established reputations engaged in the same or a similar business and similarly situated (but not less than, in the case of casualty insurance, the fair value of the insured property); and, in addition, Borrower shall take out and keep in force such other insurance in form and amounts, with companies, and against risks and liability, as Bank from time to time may require; and Borrower shall, upon request of Bank, deliver to it copies of the policies concerned, and, in any event, Borrower shall promptly notify Bank of the cancellation or modification of any insurance coverage required hereby. The policies, the proceeds of which are provided to Bank as security for amounts owing in respect of the Credit, shall have a loss payable clause in favor of Bank.

(b) Life and Disability. Borrower shall procure and maintain the life and/or disability insurance on each designated person, partner, or officer in the amounts set forth below:

Name	Amount	Type(s) of Insurance
_____	$ _____	_____

12. Collection Costs. If Bank incurs any legal or other expense in protecting or enforcing its rights hereunder or under any of the Related Documents, in addition to any other sum which Borrower may be required to pay, Borrower shall pay to Bank the amount of such legal or other expense.

13. Miscellaneous. On transfer of all or any part of the Credit or a participation interest therein, Bank may transfer all or any part of its interest herein. The Agreement benefits Bank's successors and assigns and binds Borrower's heirs, legatees, personal representatives, and successors. Borrower may not delegate or assign any of its obligations hereunder and may not assert against any assignee of Bank any claim or defense it may have against Bank. The Agreement shall be governed by the laws of the State of California. Titles preceding any paragraph of the Agreement are for convenience only and are not a part of the Agreement. The Agreement shall continue as long as any amounts owing in respect of the Credit remain unpaid. No consent or waiver under the Agreement shall be effective unless in writing. No waiver of any breach or default shall be deemed a waiver of any breach or default thereafter occurring. Unless otherwise provided in this Agreement, all accounting terms shall be construed in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles consistently applied.

14. Additional Provisions. Borrower agrees to additional provisions as follows:

§ 43.220 Continuing Guaranty

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a continuing guaranty, for use in spelling out the rights and responsibilities of a continuing guarantor in a form apart from the loan note itself. In general, this contract recites the legal obligations of a person in the position of a continuing guarantor [see [b], below].

A bank may require a continuing guaranty on a note regardless of whether other security has been provided. Generally, continuing guaranties are provided by insiders of a business entity who are in fact the financial substance of the enterprise, by spouses of proprietors, and by parent companies on behalf of their subsidiaries and affiliates.

An area of particular concern is that of personal guaranties of corporate obligations. Many new or small business owners wish to conduct their business through a corporation. One of the principal advantages of using a corporation to conduct business is the limitation of personal liability. Whenever the individual enters into a personal guaranty of a corporate obligation, he or she loses the corporate advantage of limiting liability. Therefore, individual guaranties of corporate obligations should be resisted. While almost all lenders will require the guaranties, a consistent resistance will eventually result in a successful corporation not needing the guaranties to obtain credit.

The guarantor is cautioned to review any form of guaranty carefully. A guarantor should never execute a continuing guaranty without fully understanding all of its obligations.

[b] "Continuing Guaranty" Defined

A "continuing guaranty" is a guaranty relating to a future liability of a principal under successive transactions that either continue the principal's liability or periodically renew it after it has been satisfied [Civ. Code § 2814]. A continuing guaranty is a form of suretyship obligation subject to all provisions of suretyship law [Civ. Code § 2787; see Civ. Code § 2787 et seq.; see also [c], below]. For example, in a case in which the principals of a corporation executed personal guaranties of payment on the corporation's commercial lease, the court found that the guaranty agreements were continuing guaranties of performance under the lease that also applied to lease amendments [Central Building, LLC v. Cooper (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1053, 1055, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 212] .

A continuing guaranty may be revoked at any time by the guarantor as to future transactions, unless there is a continuing consideration as to those future transactions that the guarantor has not renounced [Civ. Code § 2815].

[c] Guaranties Subject to General Law of Suretyship

The distinction between surety and guarantors has been abolished, and guaranties are subject to all provisions of law relating to suretyships [Civ. Code § 2787].

In general, a guaranty must be in writing, but it need not recite the consideration [Civ. Code § 2793]. If a guaranty is entered into at the same time as the original obligation, or with the acceptance of the original debt by the creditor, and forms a part of the consideration to the creditor, no separate consideration is required. In all other cases, there must be consideration distinct from the original obligation [Civ. Code § 2792].

A person may become a guarantor without the knowledge or consent of the principal [Civ. Code § 2788]. Unless notice of acceptance is expressly required, an offer to become a guarantor may be accepted by acting on the offer [Civ. Code § 2795].

For further discussion of the law of suretyship, see Ch. 79, Suretyship, Guaranty, and Indemnity .

[d] Guarantor's Liability

A guarantor's liability is unconditional unless the terms of the guaranty specify a condition precedent to liability [Civ. Code § 2806]. Once the guarantor assumes liability by signing the note or a separate agreement of guaranty, he or she is liable to the creditor immediately on the principal's default, without demand or notice [Civ. Code § 2807; see Com. Code §§ 3419, 3504]. A guarantor's liability may be equal to or less than, but not greater than, the liability of the principal [Civ. Code § 2809].

A guarantor remains liable, despite any personal disability of the principal, even if the disability makes the contract void as against the principal. However, a guarantor is not liable if, for any other reason, there is no liability on the part of the principal at the time of the execution of the contract, or if the liability of the principal thereafter ceases unless the guarantor assumed liability with knowledge of the existence of the defense [Civ. Code § 2810].

[e] Release of Guarantor

Performance, or an offer of performance, exonerates the guarantor [Civ. Code § 2839]. The guarantor is exonerated (except to the extent he or she is indemnified by the principal) [see Civ. Code § 2824] if the principal and creditor alter their original note in any way without the guarantor's consent, or if the creditor's rights and remedies against the principal are impaired or suspended. This provision does not supersede Civ. Code § 2822(b) [Civ. Code § 2819]. However, a guarantor is not exonerated by a change in the terms of the underlying indebtedness if the change is made with the guarantor's consent, which may be given in advance [American City Bank v. Tourtelot (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 585, 591, 150 Cal. Rptr. 361 ; see State Bd. of Equalization v. Carleton (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1607, 273 Cal. Rptr. 436 (advance consent to be bound despite extensions, waivers, or modifications negotiated between creditor and debtor)]. Paragraph 4 of this form provides that the guarantor authorizes the bank to change the terms of the underlying obligation without exonerating the guarantor.

A creditor's acceptance of a lesser amount in partial satisfaction of an obligation reduces the obligation of the guarantor, but does not otherwise affect it. However, if the guarantor is liable on only a portion of an obligation and the principal provides partial satisfaction of the obligation, the principal may designate the portion of the obligation that is to be satisfied [Civ. Code § 2822(a)].

For purposes of Civ. Code §§ 2819 and 2822, an agreement by a creditor to accept from the principal debtor a sum less than the balance owed on the original obligation, with the prior consent of the guarantor and without any other change to the underlying agreement between the creditor and the principal debtor, does not exonerate the guarantor for the lesser sum agreed on by the creditor and the principal debtor [Civ. Code § 2822(b)].

A guarantor's liability is not exonerated by discharge of the principal by operation of law (such as bankruptcy) [Civ. Code § 2825], delay by the creditor in proceeding against the debtor [Civ. Code § 2823], or recovery of a judgment by the creditor [Civ. Code § 2838]. An arbitration award rendered against the principal alone is not an award against the guarantor [Civ. Code § 2855]. Nevertheless, to the extent a guarantor is indemnified by the principal, the guarantor is liable to the creditor notwithstanding any modification of the contract or release of the principal [Civ. Code § 2824].

[f] Guarantor's Rights on Principal's Default

A creditor is entitled to the benefit of everything that the guarantor has received from the debtor as security for performance of the obligation. The creditor, on the maturity of the obligation, may compel application of the security to its satisfaction [Civ. Code § 2854]. A guarantor may compel the principal to perform the obligation when due [Civ. Code § 2846]. In addition, a guarantor may compel the principal to reimburse the guarantor for any amounts the guarantor has disbursed [Civ. Code § 2847]. On satisfying the obligation of the principal, the guarantor may enforce the creditor's remedies against the principal [Civ. Code § 2848], and have all the creditor's security under the obligation, whether the guarantor was aware of the security or not [Civ. Code § 2849]. If the guarantor receives that security, he or she has the rights and duties of the formerly secured party, and the transfer of collateral is not a sale or disposition of the collateral under Division 9 of the Commercial Code relating to secured transactions [see Com. Code § 9618(a)(2)].

In addition, a guarantor may require a creditor to proceed against the principal, or to pursue any other remedy in the creditor's power not available to the guarantor that would lessen the guarantor's liability. If the creditor fails to pursue these remedies, the guarantor is exonerated to the extent he or she is prejudiced [Civ. Code § 2845; see Code Civ. Proc. § 996.440 (notice requirements)].

Continuing Guaranty

CONTINUING GUARANTY

1. Obligations Guaranteed. For consideration, the adequacy and sufficiency of which is acknowledged, the undersigned ("Guarantor") unconditionally guaranties and promises (a) to pay to _____ [name of bank] ("Bank") on demand, in lawful United States money, all Obligations to Bank of _____ [name of borrower] ("Borrower") and (b) to perform all undertakings of Borrower in connection with the Obligations. "Obligations" is used in its most comprehensive sense and includes any and all debts, liabilities, rental obligations, and other obligations and liabilities of every kind of Borrower to Bank, whether made, incurred or created previously, concurrently or in the future, whether voluntary or involuntary and however arising, whether incurred directly or acquired by Bank by assignment or succession, whether due or not due, absolute or contingent, liquidated or unliquidated, legal or equitable, whether Borrower is liable individually or jointly or with others, whether incurred before, during or after any bankruptcy, reorganization, insolvency, receivership or similar proceeding ("Insolvency Proceeding"), and whether recovery thereof is or becomes barred by a statute of limitations or is or becomes otherwise unenforceable, together with all expenses of, for and incidental to collection, including reasonable attorneys' fees.

2. Limitation on Guarantor's Liability. Although this Guaranty covers all Obligations, Guarantor's liability under this Guaranty for Borrower's Obligations shall not exceed at any one time the sum of the following (the "Guaranteed Liability Amount"): (a) $_____ for Obligations representing principal and/or rent ("Principal Amount"); (b) all interest, fees and like charges owing and allocable to the Principal Amount as determined by Bank; and (c) without allocation in respect of the Principal Amount, all costs, attorneys' fees, and expenses of Bank relating to or arising out of the enforcement of the Obligations and all indemnity liabilities of Guarantor under this Guaranty. The foregoing limitation applies only to Guarantor's liability under this particular Guaranty. Unless Bank otherwise agrees in writing, every other guaranty of any Obligations previously, concurrently, or hereafter given to Bank by Guarantor is independent of this Guaranty and of every other such guaranty. Without notice to Guarantor, Bank may permit the Obligations to exceed the Principal Amount and may apply or reapply any amounts received in respect of the Obligation from any source other than from Guarantor to that portion of the Obligations not included within the Guaranteed Liability Amount.

3. Continuing Nature/Revocation/Reinstatement. This Guaranty is in addition to any other guaranties of the Obligations, is continuing and covers all Obligations, including those arising under successive transactions which continue or increase the Obligations from time to time, renew all or part of the Obligations after they have been satisfied, or create new Obligations. Revocation by one or more signers of this Guaranty or any other guarantors of the Obligations shall not (a) affect the obligations under this Guaranty of a non-revoking Guarantor; (b) apply to Obligations outstanding when Bank receives written notice of revocation, or to any extensions, renewals, readvances, modifications, amendments or replacements of such Obligations; or (c) apply to Obligations, arising after Bank receives such a notice of revocation, which are created pursuant to a commitment existing at the time of the revocation, whether or not there exists an unsatisfied condition to such commitment or Bank has another defense to its performance. All of Bank's rights pursuant to this Guaranty continue with respect to amounts previously paid to Bank on account of any Obligations which are thereafter restored or returned by Bank, whether in an Insolvency Proceeding of Borrower or for any other reason, all as though such amounts had not been paid to Bank: and Guarantor's liability under this Guaranty (and all its terms and provisions) shall be reinstated and revived, notwithstanding any surrender or cancellation of this Guaranty. Bank, at its sole discretion, may determine whether any amount paid to it must be restored or returned; provided, however, that if Bank elects to contest any claim for return or restoration, Guarantor agrees to indemnify and hold Bank harmless from and against all costs and expenses, including reasonable attorneys' fees, expended or incurred by Bank in connection with any such contest. No payment by Guarantor shall reduce the Guaranteed Liability Amount hereunder unless, at or prior to the time of that payment, Bank receives Guarantor's written notice to that effect. If any Insolvency Proceeding is commenced by or against Borrower or Guarantor, at Bank's election, Guarantor's obligations under this Guaranty shall immediately and without notice or demand become due and payable, whether or not then otherwise due and payable.

4. Authorization. Guarantor authorizes Bank, without notice and without affecting Guarantor's liability under this Guaranty, from time to time, whether before or after any revocation of this Guaranty, to (a) renew, compromise, extend, accelerate, release, subordinate, waive, amend and restate, or otherwise amend or change the interest rate, time or place for payments or any other terms of all or any part of the Obligations; (b) accept delinquent or partial payments on the Obligations; (c) take or not take security or other credit support for this Guaranty or for all or any part of the Obligations, and exchange, enforce, waive, release, subordinate, fail to enforce or perfect, sell, or otherwise dispose of any such security or credit support; (d) apply proceeds of any such security or credit support and direct the order or manner of its sale or enforcement as Bank, at its sole discretion, may determine; and (e) release or substitute Borrower or any guarantor or other person or entity liable on the Obligations.

5. Waivers. To the maximum extent permitted by law, Guarantor waives (a) all rights to require Bank to proceed against Borrower or proceed against, enforce or exhaust any security for the Obligations or to marshal assets or to pursue any other remedy in Bank's power whatsoever; (b) all defenses arising by reason of any disability or other defense of Borrower, the cessation for any reason of the liability of Borrower, any defense that any other indemnity, guaranty or security was to be obtained, any claim that Bank has made Guarantor's obligations more burdensome or more burdensome than Borrower's obligations, and the use of any proceeds of the Obligations other than as intended or understood by Bank or Guarantor; (c) all presentments, demands for performance, notices of nonperformance, protests, notices of protest, notices of dishonor, notices of acceptance of this Guaranty and of the existence or creation of new or additional Obligations, and all other notices or demands to which Guarantor might otherwise be entitled; (d) all conditions precedent to the effectiveness of this Guaranty; (e) all rights to file a claim in Connection with the Obligations in an Insolvency Proceeding filed by or against Borrower; (f) all rights to require Bank to enforce any of its remedies; and (g) until the Obligations are satisfied or fully paid, with such payment not subject to return, (i) all rights of subrogation, indemnification or reimbursement, (ii) all rights of recourse to tiny assets or property of Borrower, or to any collateral or credit support for the Obligations, (iii) all rights to participate in or benefit from any security or credit support Bank may have or acquire, and (iv) all rights, remedies and defenses Guarantor may have or acquire against Borrower. Bank may foreclose, either by judicial foreclosure or by exercise of power of sale, any deed of trust which secures any Obligations, and even though such foreclosure or exercise may destroy or diminish Guarantor's rights against Borrower, Guarantor shall remain liable for any part of the Obligations remaining unpaid after foreclosure.

6. Guarantor to Keep Informed. Guarantor warrants having established with Borrower adequate means of obtaining, on an ongoing basis, such information as Guarantor may require concerning all matters bearing on the risk of nonpayment or nonperformance of the Obligations. Guarantor assumes sole, continuing responsibility for obtaining such information from sources other than from Bank. Bank has no duty to provide any information to Guarantor until Bank receives Guarantor's written request or specific information in Bank's possession and Borrower has authorized Bank to disclose such information to Guarantor.

7. Subordination. All obligations of Borrower to Guarantor which presently or in the future may exist ("Guarantor's Claims") are hereby subordinated to the Obligations. At Bank's request, Guarantor's Claims will be enforced and performance thereon received by Guarantor only as a trustee for Bank, and Guarantor will promptly pay over to Bank all proceeds recovered for application to the Obligations without reducing or affecting Guarantor's liability under other provisions of this Guaranty.

8. Security. To secure Guarantor's performance under this Guaranty, other than for payment of Obligations which are subject to the disclosure requirements of the United States Truth in Lending Act, Guarantor grants Bank a security interest in all monies, general and special deposits, instruments and other property of Guarantor at any time maintained with or held by Bank and all proceeds of the foregoing.

9. Authorization. If Borrower is a corporation, partnership or other entity, Bank need not inquire into or verify the powers of Borrower or authority of those acting or purporting to act on behalf of Borrower, and this Guaranty shall be enforceable with respect to any Obligations Bank grants or creates in reliance on the purported exercise of those powers or authority.

10. Assignments. Without notice to Guarantor, Bank may assign the Obligations and this Guaranty in whole or in part, and may disclose to any prospective or actual purchaser of all or part of the Obligations any and all information Bank has or acquires concerning Guarantor, this Guaranty and any security for this Guaranty.

11. Counsel Fees and Costs. The prevailing party shall be entitled to attorneys' fees (including a reasonable allocation for Bank's internal counsel) and all other costs and expenses which it may incur in connection with the enforcement or preservation of its rights under, or defense of, this Guaranty or in connection with any other dispute or proceeding relating to this Guaranty whether or not incurred in any Insolvency Proceeding, arbitration, litigation or other proceeding.

12. Married Guarantors. By executing this Guaranty, a Guarantor who is married agrees that recourse may be had against his or her separate and community property for all his or her obligations under this Guaranty.

13. Multiple Guarantors/Borrowers. When there is more than one Borrower named herein or when this Guaranty is executed by more than one Guarantor, then the words "Borrower" and "Guarantor", respectively, shall mean all and any one or more of them, and their respective successors and assigns, including debtors-in-possession and bankruptcy trustees; words used herein in the singular shall be considered to have been used in the plural where the context and construction so requires in order to refer to more than one Borrower or Guarantor, as the case may be.

14. Arbitration.

(a) Mandatory Arbitration. Any controversy or claim between or among the parties, including but not limited to those arising out of or relating to this Guaranty, the Obligations, or any related agreements or instruments ("Subject Documents"), and also including any claim based on or arising from an alleged tort, shall be determined by arbitration in accordance with Title 9 of the United States Code and the Commercial Arbitration Rules of the American Arbitration Association ("AAA"); provided, however, that unless Bank and all parties to the Subject Documents consent to such a submission, this subparagraph 14(a) shall not apply if (i) the claim or controversy involves enforcement of this Guaranty with respect to Obligations which are incurred primarily for personal, family or household use; or (ii) the Obligations or any other obligations to Bank described in or covered by any of the Subject Documents are secured by real property. All statutes of limitation that would otherwise be applicable shall apply to any such arbitration proceeding. Judgment upon the award rendered may be entered in any court having jurisdiction.

(b) Judicial Reference. If the controversy or claim is not submitted to arbitration as provided and limited in subparagraph 14(a), but becomes the subject of a judicial action, any party may elect to have all decisions of fact and law determined by a reference in accordance with applicable law. If such an election is made, the parties shall designate to the court a referee or referees selected under the auspices of the AAA in the same manner as arbitrators are selected in AAA-sponsored proceedings. The referee or presiding referee of the panel shall be an active attorney or retired judge. Judgment upon the award rendered shall be entered in the court in which the proceeding commenced.

(c) Provisional Remedies, Self-Help, and Foreclosure. No provision of or the exercise of any rights under subparagraph 14(a) shall limit the right of any party to exercise self-help remedies such as setoff, to foreclose against any real or personal property collateral, or to obtain provisional or ancillary remedies such as injunctive relief or the appointment of a receiver from a court having jurisdiction before, during or after the pendency of any arbitration. At Bank's option, foreclosure under a deed of trust or mortgage may be accomplished either by exercise of power of sale under the deed of trust or mortgage, or by judicial foreclosure. The institution and maintenance of an action for judicial relief or pursuit of provisional or ancillary remedies or exercise of self-help remedies shall not constitute a waiver of the right of any party, including the plaintiff, to submit the controversy or claim to arbitration.

(d) Miscellaneous. Any arbitration questions arising under this paragraph 14 shall be governed in accordance with Title 9 of the United States Code. The provisions of this paragraph 14 shall survive any termination, amendment, or expiration of the Subject Documents unless the Bank and other parties otherwise expressly agree in writing.

15. Integration/Severability/Amendments. This Guaranty is intended by Guarantor and Bank as the complete, final expression of their agreement concerning its subject matter. It supersedes all prior understandings or agreements with respect thereto and may be changed only by a writing signed by Guarantor and Bank. No course of dealing, or parole or extrinsic evidence shall be used to modify or supplement the express terms of this Guaranty. If any provision of this Guaranty is found to be illegal, invalid or unenforceable, that provision shall be enforced to the maximum extent permitted, but if fully unenforceable, that provision shall be severable, and this Guaranty shall be construed as if that provision had never been a part of this Guaranty, and the remaining provisions shall continue in full force and effect.

16. Joint and Several Obligations. If more than one Guarantor signs this Guaranty, the obligations of each Guarantor under this Guaranty are joint and several, and independent of the Obligations and of the obligations of any other person or entity. A separate action or actions may be brought and prosecuted against any one or more guarantors, whether action is brought against Borrower or other guarantors of the Obligations, and whether Borrower or others are joined in any such action.

17. Notice. Any notice, including notice of revocation, given by any party under this Guaranty shall be effective only upon its receipt by the other party and only if (a) given in writing and (b) personally delivered or sent by United States mail, postage prepaid, and addressed to Bank or Guarantor at their respective addresses for notices indicated below. Guarantor and Bank may change the place to which notices, requests, and other communications are to be sent to them by giving written notice of that change to the other.

18. California Law to Apply. Subject to paragraph 14 of this Guaranty, this Guaranty shall be governed by and construed according to the laws of California, and Guarantor submits to the non-exclusive jurisdiction of the state or federal courts in California.

§ 43.221 Corporate Resolution to Guaranty Obligations of Third Party

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is an illustrative bank form for a certified copy of a corporate resolution authorizing the corporation to guaranty the obligations of a third party.

So that there is no question as to the authority of corporate directors, officers, or agents to guaranty the obligations of a third party (typically a subsidiary or affiliate of the corporation or a major supplier or customer), a bank usually requires that the corporation provide it with a certified copy of this type of resolution covering the continuing guarantee powers of corporate personnel. To ensure that the resolution complies with its requirements, a bank usually will draft the resolution (such as this one), which is presented to the corporation for completion. Alternatively, the corporation can draft its own resolution for approval by the bank before adoption, if the bank is willing to accept such a form and the form complies with the bank's requirements.

This form includes the language of the resolution, as well as space for the name, title, and signature of persons authorized to act on behalf of the corporation.

A certified copy of a corporate resolution is prima facie evidence of the adoption of the resolution [Corp. Code § 314]. For further coverage of corporate resolutions, see Ch. 5, Directors' Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions.

§ 43.230 Subordination of Third Party Creditor's Interest to Bank Loan

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an agreement providing for the subordination of a third party creditor's interest to a bank loan [see [b], below].

[b] Operation of Subordination Agreement

The agreement of a borrower's third-party creditor to subordinate to the bank's loan all indebtedness due the creditor from the borrower is like a guaranty in reverse. Assuming the borrower has the funds to pay the original creditor both past obligations and any incurred in the future, the agreement assures that the borrower's funds will be used to pay off the bank rather than the creditor. In addition, the creditor will not enforce any claims or apply any of the borrower's security in any other way except as trustee for the bank. This subordination agreement provides that it may be terminated by the creditor in writing but only as to bank claims arising after revocation [see [2], 16, below].

This type of agreement arises only when it is in the creditor's interest that the borrower receive new financing from the bank, ostensibly to put the borrower in a better position to repay the creditor after repaying the bank debt. Frequently the subordination is given by a parent corporation that is a "paper" creditor of one of its subsidiaries or affiliates. This agreement differs from subordination of a recorded or filed security interest [see Ch. 25B, Subordination, Assumption, and Assignment (subordination of deeds of trust)]. Nothing in Division 9 of the Commercial Code precludes subordination by agreement by a person otherwise entitled to priority [Com. Code § 9339].

[2] FORMSubordination of Third Party Creditor's Interest to Bank Loan*SUBORDINATION AGREEMENT

("Agreement")

TO: _____ [name of bank]
 _____ [address]

The undersigned, _____ [name of creditor] ("Creditor"), is interested in the financial success of _____ [name of debtor] ("Debtor") and acknowledges that _____ [name of bank] ("Bank") has entered or is presently intending to enter into certain financing arrangements with Debtor. Creditor agrees that the financing arrangements between Bank and Debtor are in Debtor's and Creditor's best interests, and in order to induce Bank to enter into or continue those financing arrangements, Creditor agrees as follows:

1. Obligations. The term "Obligations" is used in this Agreement in its broadest and most comprehensive sense, and shall mean all present and future indebtedness of Debtor which may be, from time to time, incurred by Debtor, including, but not limited to, any negotiable instruments evidencing the same, all guaranties, debts, demands, monies, indebtedness, liabilities and obligations owed or to become owing, including interest, principal, costs, and other charges, and all claims, rights, causes of action, judgements, decrees, remedies, security interests, or other obligations of any kind whatsoever and howsoever arising, whether voluntary, involuntary, absolute, contingent, direct, indirect, or by operation of law.

2. Creditor Obligations. The term "Creditor Obligations" shall mean all Obligations owing at any time by Debtor to Creditor.

3. Subordination of Creditor Obligations. Except as provided in Paragraph 5, below, the Creditor Obligations are hereby subordinated and subject, in the manner and to the extent described below, to any and all Obligations owed by Debtor to Bank, including, but not limited to, Obligations arising pursuant to any agreements between Bank and Debtor, now or hereafter existing, whether matured or not ("Bank Obligations"), so long as any Bank Obligations shall remain unpaid, in whole or in part, or Bank are committed or otherwise obligated to extend credit to Debtor.

4. Limitation on Action by Creditor. As long as any of the Bank Obligations remains unpaid, in whole or in part, or so long as Bank is committed or otherwise obligated to extend credit to Debtor, Creditor agrees that, except to the extent that payments under the Creditor Obligations are permitted under Paragraph 5, below, Creditor shall not do any of the following:

- (a) Collect, or receive payment upon, by setoff or in any other manner, all or any portion of the Creditor Obligations now or hereafter existing;
- (b) Sell, assign, transfer, pledge, or give a security interest in the Creditor Obligations (except subject expressly to this Agreement);
- (c) Declare or in any other manner find or hold Debtor in default under the Creditor Obligations;
- (d) Enforce or apply any security now or hereafter existing for the Creditor Obligations;

(e) Commence, prosecute or participate in any administrative, legal, or equitable action against Debtor concerning the Creditor Obligations;

(f) Join in any petition for bankruptcy, assignment for the benefit of creditors, or creditors' agreement;

(g) Take, maintain or enforce any lien or security which is senior to Bank's interest in any property, real or personal, to secure the Creditor Obligations; or

(h) Incur any obligation to, or receive any loans, advances, dividends, payments of any kind or gifts from, Debtor.

5. Employment Compensation. Notwithstanding the preceding paragraph, as long as Debtor has made each and every payment of principal and interest due and owing to Bank, is not in default under any of Debtor's agreements with Bank, and none of the following payments would cause such default, then (a) Creditor shall be entitled to receive regularly scheduled payments of principal and interest (i.e., not a prepayment or a payment resulting from acceleration) on the Creditor Obligations not exceeding $_____ per _____; and (b) Creditor shall be entitled to receive any and all employment compensation (regular salary, reasonable bonuses, and reimbursement for actual and necessary business expenses) which is or may be due to Creditor from Debtor; provided, however, that the aggregate amount of all payments made as employment compensation from Debtor to Creditor shall not exceed, during any fiscal year of Debtor, the sum of $_____.

6. Priority of Obligations. Except as otherwise expressly agreed to herein, all of the Bank Obligations now or hereafter existing shall be first paid by Debtor before any payment shall be made by Debtor on the Creditor Obligations. This priority of payment shall apply at all times until all of the Bank Obligations have been repaid in full. In the event of any assignment by Debtor for the benefit of Debtor's creditors, any bankruptcy proceedings instituted by or against Debtor, the appointment of any receiver for Debtor or Debtor's business or assets, or any dissolution or other winding up of the affairs of Debtor or of Debtor's business, and in all such cases, the officers of Debtor and any assignee, trustee in bankruptcy, receiver, or other person or persons in charge, respectively, are hereby directed to pay to Bank the full amount of the Bank Obligations before making any payments to Creditor.

7. Promissory Note. Creditor agrees that if part or all of the Creditor Obligations are evidenced, now or in the future, by a promissory note or other instrument, Creditor shall place or cause to be placed on its face a legend stating that the payment thereof is subject to the terms of this Agreement and is subordinate to the payment of all of the Bank Obligations. Creditor agrees to deliver to Bank a certification in form requested by Bank; and, at any time during the term of this Agreement, at the Bank's request, to deliver the original promissory note or instrument to Bank. Creditor agrees to mark all books of account in a manner that will indicate that payment thereof is subordinated pursuant to the terms of this Agreement. Creditor agrees to execute any recordable subordination agreements, financing statement amendments or other documents reasonably required by Bank to provide notice to others of this Agreement, and agrees to the recording of any such documents as Bank may require.

8. Bank's Power to Deal with Obligations. Creditor agrees that Bank shall have absolute power and discretion, without notice to Creditor, to deal in any manner with the Bank Obligations, including interest, costs and expenses payable by Debtor to Bank, and any security and guaranties therefor, including, but not limited to, release, surrender, extension, renewal, acceleration, compromise, or substitution. Creditor hereby waives and agrees not to assert against Bank any rights which a guarantor or surety could exercise; but nothing in this Agreement shall constitute Creditor a guarantor or surety. Creditor hereby waives the right, if any, to require that Bank marshal, or otherwise proceed to dispose of or foreclose upon, collateral Bank may have in any manner or order.

9. Bank's Power to Discontinue Credit. If, at any time hereafter, Bank, in its own judgement, shall determine to discontinue the extension of credit to or on behalf of Debtor, Bank may do so. This Agreement, the obligations of Creditor owing to Bank, and Bank rights and privileges hereunder shall continue until payment in full of all of the Bank Obligations owing to Bank by Debtor notwithstanding any action or non-action by Bank with respect to the Bank Obligations or with respect to any collateral therefor or any guaranties thereof. All rights, powers and remedies hereunder shall apply to all past, present and future Bank Obligations, including, under successive transactions, any of which may continue, renew, increase, decrease or from time to time create new Bank Obligations and notwithstanding that from time to time Bank Obligations theretofore existing may have been paid in full.

10. Additional Security Interests. Creditor further agrees that in case Creditor should, contrary to Paragraph 4, above, take or receive any additional security interest in, or additional lien by way of attachment, execution, or otherwise on, any property, real or personal, or should take or join in any other measure of advantage contrary to this Agreement, at any time prior to the payment in full of all of the Bank Obligations, Bank shall be entitled to have the same vacated, dissolved and set aside by such proceedings at law, or otherwise, as Bank may deem proper, and this Agreement shall be and constitute full and sufficient grounds therefor and shall entitle Bank to become a party to any proceedings at law, or otherwise, initiated by Bank or by any other party, in or by which Bank may deem it proper to protect its interests hereunder. Creditor agrees that if Creditor violates this Agreement, Creditor shall be liable to Bank for all losses and damages sustained by Bank by reason of that breach.

11. Receipt of Payments or Other Rights by Creditor. Except as otherwise expressly agreed to herein, if Creditor shall receive any payments, security interests, or other rights in any property of Debtor in violation of this Agreement, that payment or property shall be received by Creditor in trust for Bank and shall forthwith be delivered and transferred to Bank.

12. Warranties by Creditor. Creditor represents and warrants that Creditor has not previously subordinated the Creditor Obligations for the benefit of any other party, and agrees that any such subordinations hereafter executed shall be expressly made subject and subordinate to the terms of this Agreement. Creditor further warrants having established with Debtor adequate means of obtaining, on an ongoing basis, such information as Creditor may require which may affect the ultimate satisfaction by Debtor of the Creditor Obligations. Bank shall have no duty to provide any such information to Creditor.

13. Heirs and Assigns. This Agreement shall be binding upon the successors and assigns of Creditor and shall inure to the benefit of Bank's successors and assigns.

14. Governing Law. This Agreement and all rights and liabilities of the parties hereto shall be governed as to validity, interpretation, enforcement and effect by the laws of the State of California.

15. Attorney's Fees. In the event of any dispute under this Agreement, the prevailing party shall be entitled to recover its reasonable attorneys' fees and costs, whether or not a lawsuit is filed.

16. Duration. This Agreement shall remain in full force and effect until and unless Creditor delivers to Bank written notice that this Agreement has been revoked as to credit granted by bank subsequent to the delivery of that notice, but delivery of that notice shall not affect any of Creditor's obligations hereunder with respect to credit granted by Bank prior to delivery of that notice.

17. Arbitration. (a) Mandatory Arbitration. Any controversy or claim between or among the parties to this Agreement arising out of or relating to (i) this Agreement or any guaranties, subordination agreements, pledges or accommodation pledges, security documents and other agreements, documents and instruments of every kind relating in any way to the Bank Obligations (collectively the "Subject Documents"); (ii) any negotiations, correspondence or communications, whether or not incorporated or integrated into the Subject Documents, relating to the Subject Documents or any indebtedness evidenced thereby; or (iii) the administration or management of the Subject Documents or the credit evidenced thereby, and with respect to (i), (ii) and (iii) also including any such controversy or claim based on or arising out of an alleged tort, shall be determined by arbitration in accordance with Title 9 of the United States Code and the Commercial Arbitration Rules of the American Arbitration Association (AAA). All statutes of limitations and waivers that would otherwise be applicable shall apply to any arbitration proceeding under this subparagraph (a). Judgment upon the award rendered may be entered in any court having jurisdiction. This subparagraph (a) shall apply only if, at the time of the proposed submission to AAA, none of the obligations to Bank described in or covered by any of the Subject Documents are secured by real property collateral or, if so secured, all parties consent to such submission.

(b) Judicial Reference. If the controversy or claim is not submitted to arbitration as provided and limited in subparagraph (a), but becomes the subject of a judicial action, any party may elect to have all decisions of fact and law determined by a reference in accordance with applicable state law. If such an election is made, the parties shall designate to the court a referee or referees selected under the auspices of the AAA in the same manner as arbitrators are selected in AAA-sponsored proceedings. The referee, or presiding referee of the panel, shall be an active attorney or retired judge. Judgment upon the award rendered shall be entered in the court in which such proceeding was commenced.

(c) Provisional Remedies, Self-Help, and Foreclosure. No provision of, or the exercise of any rights under Subparagraph 17(a), shall limit the right of any party to obtain provisional or ancillary remedies, including but not limited to injunctive relief or the appointment of a receiver, from a court having jurisdiction before, during, or after the pendency of any arbitration. The institution and maintenance of an action for judicial relief or pursuit of provisional or ancillary remedies shall not constitute a waiver of the right of any party, including the plaintiff, to submit the controversy or claim to arbitration.

(d) Miscellaneous. Any arbitration questions arising under this Agreement shall be governed in accordance with Title 9 of the United States Code. To the extent any terms of this Paragraph 17 conflict with any terms of the Subject Documents, the terms of this Agreement shall prevail. The provisions of this Paragraph 17 shall survive any termination, amendment, or expiration of the Subject Documents, unless Bank and other parties otherwise expressly agree in writing. Subject to the award of the arbitrator or referee, each party shall pay an equal share of the arbitrators' or referees' fees. In this regard the arbitrator or referee shall have the power to award recovery to such prevailing party of all costs and fees (including attorneys' fees and a reasonable allocation for the costs of Bank's in-house counsel), administrative fees, arbitrators' or referee's fees, and court costs, all as determined by the arbitrator or referee, as the case may be. If any provision of this Paragraph 17 is found to be illegal, invalid or unenforceable, such provision shall be fully severable, and this Paragraph 17 shall be construed as if that provision had never been a part hereof; and, the remaining provisions of this Paragraph 17 shall remain in full force and effect and shall not be affected by the illegal, invalid or unenforceable provision or by severance from this Paragraph 17.

§ 43.231 Corporate Resolution to Subordinate

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a illustrative bank form for a certified copy of a corporate resolution authorizing the corporation to subordinate its claims against a borrower to a bank.

Before a corporation may subordinate its claims against a borrower to a bank, the bank will require a certified copy of a resolution to the effect that the corporate action has been officially approved by the Board of Directors, with the names of the appropriate personnel who are authorized to act for the corporation. This form fulfills the bank's requirements in this regard in having the corporation subordinate its claims against the borrower to the bank. To ensure that the resolution complies with its requirements, a bank will usually draft the resolution (such as this one), which is presented to the corporation for completion. Alternatively, the corporation could draft its own resolution for approval by the bank before adoption, if the bank is willing to accept such a form and the form complies with the bank's requirements.

This form includes the language of the resolution, as well as space for the name, title, and signature of persons authorized to act on behalf of the corporation.

A certified copy of a corporate resolution is prima facie evidence of the adoption of the resolution [Corp. Code § 314]. For further coverage of corporate resolutions, see Ch. 5, Directors' Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions.

[2] FORM

Corporate Resolution to Subordinate

CERTIFIED COPY OF CORPORATE RESOLUTIONS (TO SUBORDINATE)

I, _____ [name], hereby certify and declare to _____ [name of bank], a California banking corporation] (hereinafter "BANK"), that I am the Secretary of [subordinating corporation], a [e.g., California] corporation (hereinafter "the Corporation"), that on the _____ day of _____, the Board of Directors of the Corporation, at a properly convened meeting thereof called, noticed, and held according to all requirements of law and of the bylaws of the Corporation, properly passed and adopted resolutions, a full and accurate copy of which follows, at a meeting at which a quorum of the Board was present and voted in favor of these resolutions (or, if under the law or under the bylaws a greater than quorum attendance at that meeting or approval for these resolutions be required, then that greater attendance was had and that greater approval was voted); that these resolutions have been properly entered in the minutes of that meeting in the book of minutes of the Corporation; and that these resolutions have not been revoked, rescinded, or modified, and are now in full force and effect in the following form:

RESOLVED, that the President [or any Vice President], together with the Secretary or an Assistant Secretary [or specify other officers as appropriate] be and they are hereby authorized, empowered, and directed for and on behalf of and in the name and under the corporate seal of the Corporation and as its corporate act and deed, from time to time, to postpone or subordinate any and all debt, present or future, owing to the Corporation, and to accomplish such postponement or subordination by the execution of such instruments as may be required by _____ [name of bank] (hereinafter "BANK"), and in such a form and containing such terms and conditions as may be required by BANK (these instruments hereinafter referred to as "subordination agreements");

RESOLVED FURTHER, that all subordination agreements heretofore entered into by, or executed by, and delivered to Bank by the Corporation, together with all other existing obligations of the Corporation to BANK, are hereby expressly approved, ratified, and confirmed;

RESOLVED FURTHER, that in the event two or more resolutions of the Corporation authorize the entry into by, execution by, and delivery to BANK of subordination agreements, the provisions of those resolutions shall be deemed to be cumulative;

RESOLVED FURTHER, that a certified copy of these resolutions, certified by the Secretary or an Assistant Secretary of the Corporation, be delivered to BANK; and that these resolutions shall continue in full force and effect until written notice of their revocation by (together with a certified copy of) a resolution legally adopted by the Board of Directors of the Corporation shall have been actually received from the Corporation by BANK at its office designated and until all indebtedness and obligations by the Corporation to BANK, which indebtedness and obligations may have been incurred in connection with those subordination agreements, shall have been fully paid, satisfied, and discharged, and no such revocation, nor any receipt of any notice thereof, shall in any manner whatever affect any that indebtedness or obligation, or those subordination agreements, which (prior to actual receipt of the notice and resolution of revocation by BANK in the manner aforesaid) may have been incurred or executed as stated above;

RESOLVED FURTHER, that although the names of incumbents in designated offices may be set forth in these resolutions, that the authority hereby conferred inheres in the designated office and passes to any subsequent incumbent in those offices;

RESOLVED FURTHER, that the Secretary or an Assistant Secretary of the Corporation be and hereby is authorized and directed to certify to BANK (1) the names and specimen signatures of the persons presently incumbent in the corporate offices designated in these resolutions, and, if and when any change is made in the incumbent(s) of any such office(s), the fact of such change and the name and specimen signature of the new officer(s); and (2) the passage, adoption, and existence in full force and effect of the foregoing resolutions.

I hereby certify that the provisions of the foregoing resolutions are in conformity with the Articles of Incorporation, bylaws, minutes, and other records of the Corporation, and that the Corporation is organized and existing under the laws of the State of _____.

§ 43.240 Assignment of Savings Account or Time Deposit to Bank and Notice of Assignment

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an assignment of a borrower's interest in bank accounts to a lending bank as security for a loan. It provides for assignment of accounts in the lending bank as well as other banks. This form is presented by the lending bank to the borrower at the time the loan is made. This form also contains a notice of assignment, sent by the lending bank to other banks having assigned deposit accounts of the borrower.

This form of security typically will be accepted only from trusted bank clients, and care will be used to ascertain that the deposits are not held in a trustee account. Banks may easily place a "hold" on deposits of the debtor in their own possession, but must send the notice of assignment contained in this form to a different bank holding a deposit to be taken as security to protect their priority. For further discussion of assignment, see Ch. 76, Assignment of Rights and Obligations.

[b] Perfection of Security Interest in Bank Account

When a bank takes a security interest in a deposit account, the security interest is perfected when the bank has control of the deposit account [Com. Code §§ 9310(b)(8), 9312(b)(1); see Com. Code § 9314(a), (b) (perfection by control)]. Filing is ineffective, except as provided by Com. Code § 9315 with respect to proceeds [Com. Code § 9312, UCC Comment 5; see Com. Code § 9315 (secured party's rights on disposition of collateral and in proceeds)].

A secured party has control of a deposit account if any of the following conditions is satisfied [Com. Code § 9104(a)]:

- The secured party is the bank with which the deposit account is maintained.
- The debtor, secured party, and bank have agreed in an authenticated record that the bank will comply with instructions originated by the secured party directing disposition of the funds in the account without further consent by the debtor.
- The secured party becomes the bank's customer with respect to the deposit account.

A secured party that has satisfied any of these conditions has control, even if the debtor retains the right to direct the disposition of funds from the deposit account [Com. Code § 9104(b)].

A "deposit account" is a demand, time, savings, passbook, or like account maintained with a bank. The term does not include investment property or accounts evidenced by an instrument [Com. Code § 9102(a)(29)].

§ 43.241 Security Agreement and Assignment of Note

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a security agreement and assignment of a note. It is used when a lending bank has been given a security interest in a note in the possession of the borrower or a third party. This form is sent by the bank to the holder of the note to indicate that payments should be made directly to the bank, rather than to the borrower.

[b] Effect of Security Agreement

It is possible for a bank to take a security interest in a note that remains in the debtor's or another's possession. In this case, the security interest may be protected by filing, although the security interest remains perfected for 20 days without filing, when the creditor has given new value under an authenticated security agreement or has delivered the instrument to the debtor for sale or related transfers or transactions [see Com. Code § 9312(a), (e)-(g)]. After the 20-day period expires, perfection depends on filing a financing statement [see Com. Code § 9312(h)].

In the case of tangible negotiable instruments, it is advisable for the creditor to take and keep possession of the instrument. In this case, possession by or delivery to the secured party perfects the security interest without filing a financing statement [Com. Code § 9313(a)].

For important provisions concerning protection of associated security in real property, see Ch. 25A, Security Interests for Real Estate Financing.

[2] FORMSecurity Agreement and Assignment of Note*SECURITY AGREEMENT AND ASSIGNMENT OF NOTE

In consideration of any financial accommodations given, to be given or continued, the undersigned ("Assignor") grant a security interest in, deliver, indorse and assign to _____ [name of bank] ("Assignee"), its successors and assigns, the attached promissory note also described below, including but not limited to all prepayments and other moneys due and to become due thereunder, and the deed of trust referred to therein and securing it, together with all of the beneficial interest under the deed of trust and all rights accrued or to accrue under the deed of trust, and all increase in, profits and proceeds of all of the foregoing personal property (the "Collateral"). The security interest granted to Assignee secures payment of all indebtedness, obligations, and liabilities of Assignor to Assignee, except future "consumer credit" indebtedness under the federal Truth-in-Lending Act and regulations thereunder, unless the Collateral and the type of security interest acquired under this Assignment are disclosed at that time as then required by such Act and regulations, and except future obligations secured by a trust deed on real property to which California law applies, unless a separate agreement in writing states in effect that the future obligation is secured by this Assignment.

1. Warranties Regarding Collateral. Assignor warrants that no other person or entity has or claims any title, lien, or other interest in the Collateral. Assignor will defend any proceeding which may affect title to or Assignee's security interest in the Collateral or the real property securing the Collateral and will indemnify Assignee on demand against all claims, demands, and liabilities, including reasonable attorneys' fees, incurred as a result of any such proceedings. The Collateral is and will be genuine, enforceable in accordance with its terms, free from default, prepayment, defenses, and conditions precedent. All persons appearing to be obligated on the Collateral have authority and capacity to contract. Assignor will not compromise, settle, or adjust the Collateral, accept any payments from the maker(s) of the Collateral, permit any assumption of the obligations under Collateral by additional parties, or renew or extend the time of payment thereof without Assignee's prior written consent.

2. Waiver of Assignor's Rights. Assignor hereby waives any right to require Assignee to proceed against any other person or to exhaust the Collateral or to pursue any other remedy in Assignee's power, and further agrees that Assignee shall have no obligation to take action to preserve or assert any rights against prior parties with respect to the Collateral. Assignor hereby waives diligence, demand, presentment, and notice of non-payment and of non-performance with respect both to the Collateral and any obligations of Assignor secured thereby, and authorizes Assignee to grant extensions of time to the makers of the Collateral without notice to Assignor and without affecting Assignor's liability.

3. Assignee's Rights to Protect Collateral. Assignee is irrevocably appointed Assignor's attorney in fact at any time before or after default, without notice to Assignor, to obtain any insurance, discharge any lien, make any payment, and do any other act which Assignor is obligated to do under this agreement or which Assignee in good faith determines is necessary to protect the Collateral or its value, to exercise such rights as Assignor might exercise, to give notices to any persons obligated in the Collateral, to collect Collateral including proceeds, to execute and file in Assignor's name any filings, foreclosure notices, or other documents required to perfect Assignee's security interest in any Collateral or enforce the Collateral and to take any other reasonable action, all to protect and preserve the Collateral and Assignee's rights. No action or inaction by Assignee, nor any term of this agreement, shall relieve Assignor of the obligation to do any of the foregoing acts or impose on Assignee any such obligations. Assignor will immediately pay all Assignee's costs, and indemnify Assignee against all claims, demands, and liabilities including reasonable attorneys' fees, incurred in exercising any of the foregoing rights or by reason of being made a party to or intervening in any action or proceeding affecting any Collateral or Assignee's rights, with interest, on each item of cost and liability from the date paid by Assignee at the annual rate provided before or after default (as the case may be) in the promissory note evidencing the indebtedness of Assignor to Assignee to which the cost or liability is related, if any, and in all other cases at the annual rate of _____ percent. Without limiting Assignee in the exercise of any of the foregoing rights, Assignee may:

(a) Endorse, collect, and receive delivery or payment of the Collateral;

(b) Make extension agreements with respect to or affecting the Collateral, exchange it for other Collateral, release persons liable on it or security for the payment of it, compromise disputes in connection with it, and give receipts, releases and satisfactions, either in the name of Assignor or Assignee.

4. Events of Default and Acceleration. On the occurrence of any of the following events or circumstances, Assignee shall have the right to terminate any or all commitments and other obligations of Assignee to Assignor and to declare all or any part of the obligations secured by this Assignment immediately due and payable without demand or notice to Assignor:

(a) Any default in the payment or performance of any indebtedness, obligation, or liability secured by this Assignment pursuant to the first paragraph of this Agreement; or

(b) The untruth of any representation, or breach of any warranty, or agreement contained in this Assignment or in any other writing regarding the obligations secured by this Assignment or the Collateral; or

(c) Any failure in the payment or performance of any term or condition of the Collateral by any party obligated thereon; or

(d) Any sale, conveyance, lease, succession, assignment, or other transfer of all or any part of the real property securing the Collateral which Assignee in good faith believes will impair the prospect of payment or performance of any term or condition of the Collateral.

5. Rights on Default. Upon the occurrence of any of the events, circumstances, or defaults set forth in the preceding paragraph, Assignee shall have all rights provided on default in the California Uniform Commercial Code and otherwise available by law, may sue for the full amount of or all of the indebtedness, obligations, and liabilities secured by this Assignment without proceeding against any or all of the Collateral or sue for any deficiency remaining after disposition of any or all of the Collateral, may without notice or demand setoff and apply toward payment of and obligations owing to Assignee any property under Assignee's possession or control, and may sell in any commercially reasonable manner in one or more transactions any or all of the Collateral. Sales for cash or on credit, at public auction or private sale, are all commercially reasonable. It shall be commercially reasonable if the Collateral is sold for cash without warranties of any kind by Assignee at public auction to one purchaser with a degree of sophistication then required for a purchaser at a private offering under the Securities Act of 1933 and with a representation of investment intent and appropriate legend consistent with that Act. In addition, Assignee shall notify three mortgage brokers in the county where the real property encumbered by the Collateral is located of the public sale at least 30 days prior thereto but need take no other action to obtain bidders at the sale. Assignor will also immediately pay Assignee its reasonable expenses of preparing for sale and selling the Collateral and Assignee's reasonable attorney's fees and legal expenses relating to any of the foregoing actions or to the enforcement of this Assignment.

6. Multiple Borrowers. If more than one Assignor signs this Assignment, their liability under this Assignment is joint and several. Any Assignor who is a married person agrees to recourse against his or her separate property for all obligations secured by this Assignment. The breach of any provisions of this agreement by any Assignor shall be a breach by all Assignors unless waived by Assignee. Discharge of any Assignor (except for full payment) or any extension, forbearance, change of rate of interest, or acceptance, release or substitution of Collateral or any impairment or suspension of Assignee's rights against Assignor, or any transfer of Assignor's interest to another, shall not affect the liability of any other Assignor. All Assignors waive all of the following:

- (a) Any right to require Assignee to proceed against any Assignor before any other, or to pursue any other remedy;
- (b) Any right to the benefit of or to direct the application of any Collateral until all obligations secured by this Assignment shall have been paid; and
- (c) Any right of subrogation to Assignor until all such obligations shall have been paid or performed in full.

7. Modification and Waiver. Assignee's acceptance of partial or delinquent payments or failure of Assignee to exercise any right shall nor constitute a waiver of any of the obligations of Assignor or any right of Assignee, modify this agreement, or waive any other similar default. No waiver of any right or power of Assignee or modification of this agreement shall be valid unless in writing and signed by Assignee.

8. Assignment. On transfer of all or any part of the obligations secured by this Assignment or a participation interest therein, Assignee may transfer all or any part of or interest in the Collateral. Assignee may deliver all or any part of the Collateral to any Assignor at any time. Any such transfer or delivery shall discharge Assignee from all liability and responsibility with respect to the Collateral transferred or delivered. This agreement benefits Assignee's successors and assignees and binds Assignor's heirs, legatees, personal representatives, successors, and assignees. Assignor agrees not to assert against any assignee of Assignee any claim or defense that Assignor may have against Assignee.

9. Miscellaneous. Time is of the essence of this agreement and all its provisions. Assignor will execute any additional agreements, assignments, notices, filings, or documents reasonably required by Assignee to effectuate this agreement or to preserve and protect any Collateral and Assignee's rights. This agreement shall be governed by the laws of the State of California and, unless otherwise defined or provided herein, all words used in this agreement have the meanings given them in the California Uniform Commercial Code. Titles preceding any paragraph of this agreement are for convenience only and are not part of this agreement. Any written notice under this Assignment and any obligations secured by this Assignment shall be treated as given to Assignor when personally delivered to Assignor or when placed in the United States mails, first class postage prepaid, addressed to Assignor at the address shown below, or at any address of which Assignor has notified Assignee in writing, or at the address at which Assignee customarily communicates with Assignor. Unless separate notice is requested in writing by any Assignor, notice given to any Assignor shall constitute notice to all Assignors.

§ 43.242 Notice to Borrower's Contract Debtor of Assignment of Contract[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a notice to a borrower's contract debtor of assignment of the contract to a bank. It is used by a bank to notify an account debtor who is obligated on an account, chattel paper, or general intangible [Com. Code § 9102(a)(3) ("account debtor" defined)] that the underlying paper has been assigned to the bank. The term "chattel paper" includes records that evidence both a money obligation and a security interest in or lease of goods, as well as a security interest in or lease of specific goods and either software used in the goods or a license of software used in the goods [Com. Code § 9102(a)(11)]. An "account" includes a right to payment of a monetary obligation for various types of property and services, whether or not earned by performance, that are not evidenced by, among other things, an instrument or chattel paper [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(6)].

§ 43.243 Notice to Borrower's Debtor of Assignment of Accounts

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice to a borrower's debtor that the borrower's rights to payments on account from the debtor have been assigned to a lending bank. The bank will send this form to notify the borrower's debtor that all payments arising out of the subject matter of these accounts and due the bank's debtor should be paid directly to the bank.

[b] Assignment of Account

Under Division 9 of the Commercial Code governing secured transactions, an "account" includes a right to payment of a monetary obligation for various types of property and services, whether or not earned by performance, that are not evidenced by, among other things, an instrument or chattel paper [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(6)].

An agreement between an account debtor and an assignor not to assert against an assignee any claim or defense that the account debtor may have against the assignor generally is enforceable by an assignee that takes an assignment that satisfies all of the following conditions [Com. Code § 9403(b)]; see Com. Code § 9403(c) (exception for defenses of type that may be asserted against holder in due course of negotiable instrument under Com. Code § 3305(b)):

- It is taken for value.
- It is taken in good faith.

- It is taken without notice of a claim of a property or possessory right to the property assigned.
- It is taken without notice of a defense or claim in recoupment of the type that may be asserted against a person entitled to enforce a negotiable instrument under Com. Code § 3305(a) (governing enforcement of obligations; defenses; claims in recoupment).

This general rule is subject to law other than Division 9 of the Commercial Code that establishes a different rule for an account debtor who is an individual and who incurred the obligation primarily for personal, family, or household purposes [Com. Code § 9403(e); see Com. Code § 9403(f)] (this section does not displace other law that gives effect to non-consumer account debtor's agreement not to assert defenses against assignee, even if agreement would not qualify under Com. Code § 9403(b)).

§ 43.244 Statement and Transmittal of Collections Made by Borrower Under Assignment of Accounts

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a transmittal form to accompany collections made by a borrower payable to a lending bank under an assignment of accounts. It is used during an interim period when a borrower has assigned accounts to a bank and has continued to receive collections from debtors after the assignment, before the debtors have received notice of the assignment from the bank [see [b], below].

[b] When Transmittal Form Is Needed

When a borrower assigns contracts or accounts to a bank, the borrower will often continue to receive collections from his or her own debtors after the assignment, and these collections must then be sent on to the bank. Sometimes the collections come in during the interim between the assignment and the receipt by the debtors of the notice of assignment from the bank; in other circumstances it is simply impossible or inadvisable for the debtors to be notified, and it is more convenient to let them be unaware of the assignment and to continue to pay their original creditor, the borrower. In either case, the bank can supply the assignor with a form to accompany the periodic transmittals of collections under the assigned matters.

The bank does not immediately pay down the debt, but rather deposits the money received under the assignment into a trustee account. This account represents a converted form of the security, which nonetheless should remain as security and unapplied under the terms of the loan unless arrangement has been made to repay from remittances.

§ 43.245 Assignment of Borrower's Government Contract Claims to Bank

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an assignment of claims under a government contract. This form complies with the requirements of the federal Assignment of Claims Act of 1940 [41 U.S.C. § 15]. These assignments are also subject to requirements of Division 9 of the Commercial Code [Com. Code §§ 9310(c), 9311] regarding secured transaction filings. A copy of this form should be attached to a notice of assignment [see § 43.246] and sent to the relevant federal government agency.

This form also contains the required acknowledgment, for use by an attesting officer [see [b], below].

[b] Permissible and Prohibited Claims by Nonlenders

Claims against the United States generally may be assigned after the claims have been allowed, the amount due has been ascertained, and a warrant for payment has been issued (see the United States Assignment of Claims Act of 1908 [see 31 U.S.C. § 3727]). The transfers must be made freely and executed in the presence of at least two attesting witnesses. The assignment must recite the warrant for payment, must be acknowledged by the assignor before an officer able to take acknowledgments of deeds and must be certified by the officer. It must appear by the certificate that the officer, at the time of the acknowledgment, read and fully explained the transaction to the person acknowledging [31 U.S.C. § 3727].

Under the Assignment of Claims Act of 1940 [see 41 U.S.C. § 15], no contract or order may be transferred by the party to whom the federal government gave it, and any such transfer will annul the entire contract.

[c] Permissible and Prohibited Claims by Banks and Other Financial Institutions

Under both statutes regarding the assignment of claims [see 31 U.S.C. § 3727; 41 U.S.C. § 15], assignments to banks or other financial institutions of payments aggregating $1,000 or more are expressly exempted from the foregoing provisions under certain conditions. No assignment may be made when the contract itself expressly forbids an assignment. Unless expressly permitted by the contract, the assignment may not cover less than all amounts payable under the contract and not already paid, may not be made to more than one party, and may not be subject to further assignment. However, a single party may take assignment to hold as agent or trustee for multiple participants.

The assignee must file written notice of the assignment [see § 43.246] together with a copy of the assigning instrument (this form) with the contracting officer or head of the department or agency, the surety on any bond connected with the contract, and the disbursing officer who may be designated in the contract to make payment. An assignment is valid under either 31 U.S.C. § 3727 or 41 U.S.C. § 15 if it correctly conforms to the provisions of the specific statute, and there is no liability as to any money received on the part of the assignee to the government.

§ 43.260 Statement of Purpose of Loan Secured by Margin Stock--Federal Reserve Board Form U-1

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is Federal Reserve Board Form U-1, a statement of purpose for a bank loan secured by margin stock as required by the Federal Reserve Board. "Margin stock" includes the following [12 C.F.R. § 221.2; see 12 C.F.R. § 221.7 (OTC Margin Stocks)]:

- Equity securities registered or having unlisted trading privileges on a national securities exchange.
- OTC margin stock.
- OTC securities qualified for trading in the National Market System.
- Debt securities convertible into margin stocks.
- Warrants or rights to subscribe to or purchase margin stocks.
- Shares of certain registered investment companies.

The Federal Reserve Board regulates bank loans made for the purpose of purchasing or carrying a security [see 15 U.S.C. § 78g(d)]. Whenever a bank extends credit secured directly or indirectly by any margin stock, in an amount exceeding $100,000, the bank must require the borrower to execute this form. The form must be signed and accepted by a duly authorized officer of the bank acting in good faith [12 C.F.R. § 221.3(c): see [d], below].

If the bank extends credit of over $100,000 under a revolving-credit or other multiple-draw agreement secured directly or indirectly by any margin stock, this form may be executed either at the time each disbursement is made or at the time the credit arrangement is initially established [12 C.F.R. § 221.3(c)(1)]. For a discussion of the transactions exempted from the reporting requirement, see [c], below. For a complete discussion of the regulations governing bank loans secured by margin stocks, see Banking Law, Ch. 100, Registration and Regulatory Requirements of the 1934 Securities Exchange Act and Other Securities Statutes (Matthew Bender).

Special rules apply to extensions of credit by brokers and dealers [see 12 C.F.R. pt. 220]; other lenders are subject to restrictions similar to those applicable to banks [see 12 C.F.R. pt. 221; see also § 43.261].

[b] Restrictions on Extensions of Credit for Stock Purchases

Banks may not extend any purpose credit, secured directly or indirectly by any margin stock, in an amount that exceeds the maximum loan value of the margin stock offered as collateral [12 C.F.R. § 221.3(a)]. "Purpose credit" is any credit for the purpose, whether immediate, incidental, or ultimate, of buying or carrying margin stock [12 C.F.R. § 221.2]. The maximum loan value of any margin stock, except options, is 50 percent of its current market value [12 C.F.R. § 221.7(a)].

[c] Transactions Exempted From Coverage

Certain transactions are specifically exempted from the provisions of the Federal Reserve Board governing bank loans secured by margin stocks. A transaction is exempt, and the borrower need not complete this form, if purpose credit is extended [12 C.F.R. § 221.6]:

- To any bank.
- To any foreign banking institution.
- Outside the United States.
- To any qualified employee stock ownership plan [see I.R.C. § 401].
- To any "plan lender" [see 12 C.F.R. § 221.4], provided the bank has no recourse to any securities purchased pursuant to the plan.
- To any customer, other than a broker or dealer, to temporarily finance for the purchase or sale of securities for prompt delivery, if the credit is to be repaid in the ordinary course of business on completion of the transaction.
- Against securities in transit, if the credit is not extended to enable the customer to pay for securities purchased in an account subject to Title 12, Part 220 of the Code of Federal Regulations.
- To enable a customer to meet reasonably unforeseeable "emergency expenses" [see 12 C.F.R. § 221.6(h)], if the extension is supported by a statement executed by the customer and accepted and signed by a bank officer acting in good faith.

In addition, in certain specified instances, banks may extend special purpose credit to brokers and dealers without complying with reporting and maximum loan requirements [see 12 C.F.R. § 221.5].

[d] Bank's Right to Rely on Borrower's Statement

This form must be signed and accepted by a duly authorized officer of the bank acting in good faith [12 C.F.R. § 221.3(c)]. An officer has acted in good faith if he or she is alert to the circumstances surrounding the credit transaction; if further information suggests that an inquiry is called for, he or she must investigate and be satisfied that the statement is truthful [12 C.F.R. § 221.2; see 12 C.F.R. §§ 221.101, 221.106, 221.115 (interpretations of good faith requirements)].

§ 43.261 Statement of Purpose of Extension of Credit Secured by Margin Stock--Federal Reserve Board Form G-3

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is Federal Reserve Board Form G-3, a statement of purpose by a lender for an extension of credit secured by margin stock. "Margin stock" includes any of the following [12 C.F.R. §§ 221.2, 221.7]:

- Equity securities registered or having unlisted trading privileges on a national securities exchange.
- OTC margin stock.
- OTC securities qualified for trading in the National Market System.
- Debt securities convertible into margin stocks.
- Warrants or rights to subscribe to or purchase margin stocks.
- Shares of certain registered investment companies.

The Federal Reserve Board regulates extensions of credit by lenders when the extensions of credit are made for the purpose of purchasing or carrying a security [see 15 U.S.C. § 78g(d)]. Banks are regulated under Regulation U [12

C.F.R. Pt. 221]. Nonbank lenders formerly were regulated under Regulation G [former 12 C.F.R. Pt. 207]. When the National Securities Markets Improvement Act of 1996 [P.L. 104-290, § 104(b)] repealed Section 8(a) of the 1934 Act [former 15 U.S.C. § 78h(a)], which distinguished between bank and nonbank lenders with respect to broker-dealers, effective April 1, 1998, it eliminated the need for separate regulations. Regulation G therefore has been merged into Regulation U [12 C.F.R. Pt. 221]. A lender other than a bank, broker, or dealer is required to register with the Federal Reserve Board under Regulation U when, in the ordinary course of business, it extends or maintains credit secured, directly or indirectly, by any margin stock and (1) the amount of credit extended within a calendar quarter is $200,000 or more, or (2) the amount of credit outstanding during a calendar quarter is $500,000 or more [12 C.F.R. § 221.3(b)].

Whenever a lender extends credit secured directly or indirectly by any margin stock, the lender must require the borrower to execute this form. The form must be signed and accepted by a duly authorized representative of the lender acting in good faith [12 C.F.R. § 221.3(c)(1)(ii)]. A lender's representative has acted in good faith if the representative is alert to the circumstances surrounding the credit transaction; if further information suggests that an inquiry is called for, the representative must investigate and be satisfied that the statement is truthful [12 C.F.R. § 221.1].

If the lender extends credit under a revolving-credit or other multiple-draw agreement secured directly or indirectly by any margin stock, this form may be executed either at the time each disbursement is made or at the time the credit arrangement is initially established [12 C.F.R. § 221.3(c)(2)(ii)]. For a discussion of the transactions exempted from the reporting requirement, see [c], below.

Similar rules apply to extensions of credit by banks, which are required to file Form U-1 instead of Form G-3 [see, e.g., 12 C.F.R. § 221.3(c)(1)(i) see also § 43.260]. Brokers and dealers are subject to special rules [see 12 C.F.R. Pt. 220].

[b] Restrictions on Extensions of Credit for Stock Purchases

Lenders may not extend any purpose credit, secured directly or indirectly by any margin stock, in an amount that exceeds the maximum loan value of the margin stock offered as collateral [12 C.F.R. § 221.3(a)]. "Purpose credit" is any credit for the purpose, whether immediate, incidental, or ultimate, of buying or carrying margin stock [12 C.F.R. § 221.2]. The maximum loan value of any margin stock, except options, is 50 percent of its current market value [12 C.F.R. § 221.7].

[c] Transactions Exempted From Coverage

Certain transactions are specifically exempted from the provisions of Regulation G governing extensions of credit secured by margin stocks. A transaction is exempt, and the borrower need not complete this form, when the lender is a clearing agency regulated by the Securities and Exchange Commission or the Commodity Futures Trading Commission that accepts deposits of margin stock in connection with [12 C.F.R. § 221.1(b)(2)]:

- The issuance of, or guaranty of, or the clearance of transactions in, any security (including options on any security, certificates of deposit, securities index, or foreign currency).
- The guaranty of contracts for the purchase or sale of a commodity for future delivery or options on such contracts.

§ 43.262 Corporate Resolution to Sell and Assign Securities

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a certified copy of a corporate resolution authorizing a corporation to assign securities to a bank as security for a loan. A bank usually requires a corporation to provide a certified copy of this type of resolution before the bank will accept an assignment of securities as security for a loan. To ensure that the resolution complies with its requirements, the bank normally drafts the resolution, which is presented to the corporation for completion. Alternatively, the corporation can draft its own resolution for approval by the bank before adoption, if the bank is willing to accept such a form and the form complies with the bank's requirements.

This form includes the language of the resolution, as well as space for the name, title, and signature of persons authorized to act on behalf of the corporation.

A certified copy of a corporate resolution is prima facie evidence of the adoption of the resolution [Corp. Code § 314]. For further coverage of corporate resolutions, see Ch. 5, Directors' Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions.

[b] Perfecting Security Interest in Stock

The stock that is the subject of the assignment, whether assigned on the back of the certificate or on a separate form of assignment from the debtor, is an instrument [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(47)]. A security interest in the stock is generally perfected by possession by the creditor [see Com. Code § 9313(a)] and with no notice to the corporate issuer.

Subject to the provisions of Com. Code §§ 9110 and 9206 (security interests in investment property), a security interest is enforceable and can attach only if each of the following conditions is satisfied [Com. Code § 9203(b); see, e.g., LeFlore v. Grass Harp Productions Inc. (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 824, 835, 840, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 340 (arrangement characterized as "negative pickup" deal did not provide appellants with superior security interest in tangible film materials; failure to show all elements required by Com. Code § 9203(1) (see now Com. Code § 9203(b)), decided under prior law)]:

- Value has been given.
- The debtor has rights in the collateral or the power to transfer rights in the collateral to a secured party.
- One of the following conditions is met:
 - The debtor has authenticated a security agreement that provides a description of the collateral; or
 - The collateral is not a certificated security and is in the possession of the secured party under Com. Code § 9313 (governing when possession by or delivery to secured party perfects security interest without filing) in accordance with the debtor's security agreement; or
 - The collateral is a certificated security in registered form and the security certificate has been delivered to the secured party under Com. Code § 8301, governing delivery of securities, in accordance with the debtor's security agreement.
 - The collateral is deposit accounts, electronic chattel paper, investment property, or letter-of-credit rights, and the secured party has control [see Com. Code §§ 9104, 9105, 9106, 9107 (how secured party takes control of these types of collateral)] in accordance with the debtor's security agreement.

A security interest in investment property is perfected by control under Com. Code § 9106 from the time the secured party obtains control and remains perfected by control until both of the following conditions are satisfied [Com. Code § 9314(c)]:

- The secured party does not have control.
- One of the following occurs:
 - If the collateral is a certificated security, the debtor has or acquires possession of the security certificate; or
 - If the collateral is an uncertificated security, the issuer has registered or registers the debtor as the registered owner; or
 - If the collateral is a security entitlement, the debtor is or becomes the entitlement holder.

A security interest in a certificated security in registered form is perfected by delivery when delivery of the certificated security occurs under Com. Code § 8301, governing delivery of securities, and remains perfected by delivery until the debtor obtains possession of the security certificate [Com. Code § 9313(e); see Com. Code § 9206 (security interest arising in purchase or delivery of financial asset)].

A "certificated security" is a security that is represented by a certificate [Com. Code § 8102(a)(4)].

§ 43.263 Agreement Concerning Voting Rights of Stock Held as Loan Security

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an agreement regarding voting rights of stock held by a bank as security for a loan. This agreement is used to clarify that a borrower may vote the stock until default on the loan. At that time, the bank may exercise its right to vote the stock, in an effort to protect the security for the loan. This form will be presented by the bank to the borrower for completion at the time the stock is given as security for the loan.

[b] Use of Stock Voting Rights to Protect Collateral

While a bank will not ignore the maximum loan value standards on stocks set by an interested governmental regulatory authority [see §§ 43.260, 43.261] or its own internal management policy, even when the acceptable value of the stock collateral fully covers the loan, there is the necessity of determining the debtor's ability to service the loan apart from the security. A financial statement is often required regardless of the security value in order to aid in this type of analysis and to hedge against the likelihood that the bank will have to foreclose on any security.

An additional factor for consideration is whether the stock collateral represents a controlling or otherwise important interest in the particular corporation. In that case, the bank will confirm by the use of this form that the debtor may retain the voting rights attached to the stock, but only so long as the debtor is not in default on the note. On default, the bank may, after giving notice, exercise the voting power to any adequate extent available in the situation to protect or enhance the security, and therefore its debtor's position on the note, without necessarily having to foreclose.

§ 43.270 Assignment of Life Insurance Policy as Loan Security

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an assignment of a borrower's life insurance policy to a bank as security for a loan. This type of form ordinarily is a standardized bank form that the lending bank will present to the borrower at the time the loan is made.

[b] Operation of Assignment

In arranging for assignment of a life insurance policy as security for a loan, whether for benefit of the insured or the beneficiary, both parties must sign as assignors to the bank. The subscribing parties are also asked to declare that they have not made any assignment for benefit of creditors [Civ. Code § 3470]. The maker of a general assignment for the benefit of creditors may still exclude such policies from the assignment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 690.60, 690.9, 690.10]. A copy of the assignment sent to the insurer acts as adequate notice and will be sufficient to perfect the bank's security interest in the policy [see Com. Code § 9310(b)(11); Com. Code § 9312(b)(4)]. The insurer will have been alerted already by receipt and response to a life insurance assignment questionnaire previously sent by the bank, in which it requests information concerning the conditions and history of the policy and confirmation of the company's cooperation in servicing the security for the bank's convenience during the assignment [see § 43.271].

For further coverage of assignment, see Ch. 78, Assignment of Rights and Obligations.

[2] FORM

Assignment of Life Insurance Policy as Loan Security
ASSIGNMENT OF POLICY AS COLLATERAL SECURITY

1. For value received the undersigned hereby assign, transfer, and set over to _____ [name of bank], its successors or assigns (herein called the "Assignee"), Policy No. _____ issued by _____ [name of insurer] (herein called the Insurer"), and any supplementary contracts issued in connection with that policy (that policy and contracts being referred to in this instrument as the "policy"), upon the life of _____ [name], and all claims, options, privileges, rights, title and interest under and in that policy (except as provided in Paragraph 3 of this agreement), subject to all the terms and conditions of the policy and to all superior liens, if any, that the Insurer may have against the policy. The undersigned by this instrument jointly and severally agree and the Assignee by the acceptance of this assignment agrees to the conditions and provisions herein set forth.

2. It is expressly agreed that, without detracting from the generality of the foregoing, the following specific rights are included in this assignment and pass by virtue of this instrument:

(a) The sole right to collect from the Insurer such part of the net proceeds of the policy, when it becomes a claim by death or maturity, as may be required for the satisfaction of all indebtedness which is secured by the assignment of that policy and to collect any disability income, unless this right is waived by the Assignee in writing.

(b) The sole right to surrender the policy and receive the surrender value of the policy at any time provided by the terms of the policy and at such other times as the Insurer may allow.

(c) The sole right to obtain one or more loans or advances on the policy, either from the Insurer or from other persons, and to pledge or assign the policy as security for any such loans or advances, whether for the purpose of paying premiums, principal or interest upon outstanding loans, principal or interest upon any indebtedness of the Insured or beneficiary to the Assignee at any time owing, or otherwise, without limitation as to the amount of any such loan or loans and without any duty of the Insurer or other lender to see to the application of the proceeds thereof.

(d) The sole right to collect and receive, if any there be, all distributions, shares of surplus, dividend deposits or additions to the policy now or hereafter made or apportioned thereto, and to determine whether the cash value of any distributions, shares of surplus, dividend deposits or additions that may be used in accordance with the terms of the policy in payment of premiums shall be so used or shall be taken by the Assignee in cash; provided, that unless and until the Assignee shall notify the Insurer in writing to the contrary the distributions, shares of surplus, dividend deposits or additions shall continue on the plan in force at the time of this assignment.

(e) The sole right to exercise all non-forfeiture rights permitted by the terms of the policy or allowed by the Insurer and to receive all benefits and advantages derived therefrom.

3. It is expressly agreed that the following specific rights, so long as the policy has not been surrendered, are reserved and excluded from this assignment and do not pass by virtue of this instrument:

(a) The right to designate and change the beneficiary.

(b) The right to elect optional modes of settlement.

However, the reservation of these rights shall in no way impair the right of the Assignee to surrender the policy completely with all its incidents or impair any other right of the Assignee hereunder, and any designation or change of beneficiary or election of a mode of settlement shall be made subject to this assignment and to the rights of the Assignee under this assignment.

4. This assignment is made and the policy is to be held as collateral security for the payment of any and all liabilities of the undersigned or any of them [add reference to specific liabilities if desired] to the Assignee now or hereafter owing, however the same may be evidenced and in whatever form they may be, whether those liabilities are absolute or conditional, primary or secondary (all of which liabilities secured or to become secured are herein called "liabilities"). This assignment shall also secure any loans or advances made by the Insurer or by any other person to the Assignee under the provisions of paragraph 2(c), and the assignment of the policy by the Assignee, as provided by the terms of paragraph 2(c), shall subrogate the Insurer or any other person to all the rights and priorities of the Assignee under this instrument. All advances, charges, costs and expenses, including reasonable attorneys' fees incurred or paid by the Assignee in exercising any right, power or remedy conferred by this assignment, or in the enforcement of this assignment, shall become a part of the liabilities secured hereunder. It is expressly agreed that all sums received by the Assignee under the terms of this assignment, either in the event of death of the insured, the maturity or surrender of the policy, the obtaining of a loan or advance on the policy, or otherwise, shall first be applied to the payment of one or more of the following in that order of preference that the Assignee shall determine:

- (a) Principal of and/of interest on liabilities;
- (b) Premiums on the policy;
- (c) Principal of and/or interest on loans or advances made by the Insurer on the policy.

5. Assignee covenants and agrees with the undersigned as follows:

(a) If the Assignee shall receive any sum in excess of the absolute and primary indebtedness owing to it by the undersigned and thereafter the amount of the secondary or contingent indebtedness shall be reduced by payment by the primary obligor or the failure of the condition or otherwise, by reason of which the Assignee shall hold funds realized from the policy in excess of the amount required for the satisfaction of the liabilities secured thereby, or if for any reason any proceeds of the policy shall be received by the Assignee in excess of the amount required for the satisfaction of the liabilities hereby secured, the Assignee shall pay in one sum to the person then entitled to receive payments then currently payable under the terms of the policy the amount of that excess that may then be in its hands.

(b) The Assignee will not exercise either the right to surrender the policy or (except for the purpose of paying premiums) the right to obtain policy loans from the Insurer, until there has been a default in any of the liabilities or a failure to pay any premium when due, nor until 20 days after the Assignee has mailed, by first-class mail, to the undersigned at the addresses given in this instrument, notice of intention to exercise this right.

(c) The Assignee will upon request forward the policy to the Insurer without unreasonable delay, for endorsement of any designation or change of beneficiary or any election of an option mode of settlement.

6. The Insurer is hereby authorized to recognize the Assignee's claims to rights hereunder without investigating the reason for any action taken by the Assignee, or the validity or the amount of the liabilities or the existence of any default therein, or the giving of any notice under Paragraph 5(b) above or otherwise, or the application to be made by the Assignee of any amounts to be paid to the Assignee. The sole signature of the Assignee shall be sufficient for the exercise of any rights under the policy assigned hereby and the sole receipt of the Assignee for any sums received shall be a full discharge and release therefor to the Insurer. Checks for all or any part of the sums payable under the policy and assigned herein shall be drawn to the exclusive order of the Assignee, if, when, and in such amounts as may be requested by the Assignee. The amount of the interest of the Assignee in the proceeds of this policy when it becomes a claim by death or maturity shall be payable in cash in one sum, notwithstanding any stipulations or agreements now, or at that time, limiting or directing the mode of settlement or manner of payment, as between the Insurer and the beneficiaries or payees, and shall be established, so far as concerns the Insurer and the beneficiaries and payees named in the policy, by a sworn statement of any officer or any office manager or assistant office manager of the Assignee as to the amount of its interest, and in making any payment to the Assignee, in reliance upon such a sworn statement, the Insurer shall be fully protected and discharged to the amount thereof.

7. The undersigned agrees to pay, and the Assignee shall be under no obligation to pay, any and all premiums, and the principal of and interest on any loans or advances on the policy whether or not obtained by the Assignee, and any other charges on the policy, but any such amounts so paid by the Assignee from its own funds shall become a part of the liabilities hereby secured, shall be due immediately, and shall draw interest at a rate fixed by the Assignee from time to time not exceeding _____ percent per annum.

At the option of the Assignee, and without the necessity of demand or notice, all or any part of the liabilities shall become immediately due and payable on the happening of any of the following events:

- (a) Failure to keep or perform any of the terms or provisions of this assignment;
- (b) Default in the payment of principal or interest on the liabilities when due;
- (c) A levy of any attachment, execution, or other process, against the undersigned, or any of them, or any of the collateral securing the liabilities;
- (d) The death, insolvency, failure in business, commission of an act of bankruptcy, general assignment for the benefit of creditors, filing of a petition in bankruptcy or for relief under the provisions of the National Bankruptcy Act, of, by or against the undersigned, or any of them; or
- (e) Failure on the part of the undersigned either to pay, when due, the premiums on any or all of the policies assigned herein or to submit, not later than the expiration of 20 days from the due date of those premiums, proof of such payment to the Assignee.

8. The exercise of any right, option, privilege or power given herein to the Assignee shall be at the option of the Assignee, but (except as restricted by Paragraph 5(B), above) the Assignee may exercise any such right, option, privilege or power without notice to, or assent by, or affecting the liability of, or releasing any interest hereby assigned by the undersigned, or any of them.

9. Each of the undersigned hereby waives any right to require the Assignee to (a) proceed against any person, (b) proceed against or exhaust any collateral, or (c) pursue any remedy in the Assignee's power; and waives any defense arising by reason of any disability or other defense of any other of the undersigned or any other person, or by reason of the cessation from any cause whatsoever of liability of any other of the undersigned or any other person. Until all liabilities shall have been paid in full, none of the undersigned shall have any right of subrogation, and each of the undersigned waives any right to enforce any remedy which the Assignee now has or may hereafter have against any other of the undersigned or against any other person and any benefit of and any right to participate in any collateral or security whatsoever now or hereafter held by the Assignee. Each of the undersigned authorizes the Assignee without notice or demand and without affecting his obligation hereunder or on the liabilities, from time to time to do any or all of the following:

- (a) Renew, extend, accelerate or otherwise change the time for payment of, or otherwise change the terms of the liabilities, or any part thereof, including increase or decrease of the rate of interest thereon;
- (b) Take and hold security, other than the security herein described, for the payment of the liabilities, or any part thereof, and exchange, enforce, waive and release the security herein described, or any part thereof, or any such other security;

(c) Apply the proceeds of the policy hereby assigned or any amount received on account of the policy by the exercise of any right permitted under this assignment, or other security, and direct the order and manner of realization thereon as the Assignee in its discretion may determine; and

(d) Release or substitute any other of the undersigned or any of the endorsers or guarantors of the liabilities, or any part thereof, or any other parties thereto.

All authority, powers and rights herein granted to the Assignee shall be exercised only at its sole option, and the Assignee shall not be obligated or liable for any failure to exercise or for delay in the exercise of that authority and those powers and rights. Nothing in this instrument shall require the Assignee to institute any suit or legal action against the Insurer. The Assignee is hereby authorized and empowered to settle and compromise any claims which may arise against the Insurer, and on the surrender of the policy the Assignee may accept the cash value as may be determined by the Assignee or the Insurer at the time of the surrender.

10. In the event of any conflict between the provisions of this assignment and the provisions of the note or other evidence of any liability, with respect to the policy or rights of collateral security therein, the provisions of this assignment shall prevail.

11. Each of the undersigned declares that no proceedings in bankruptcy are pending against him or her and that his or her property is not subject to any assignment for the benefit of creditors.

§ 43.271 Life Insurance Assignment Questionnaire

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is an illustrative bank questionnaire regarding a borrower's life insurance policy. In arranging for an assignment of a life insurance policy as security for a loan [see § 43.270], the lending bank will send a form such as this life insurance assignment questionnaire to the insurer.

The questionnaire requests information concerning the amount of premiums due, cash value, policy loans (if any), and whether there are any existing assignments or restrictions on assignments of the policy. If the life insurance policy is subsequently assigned to the bank, a copy of the assignment is sent to the insurer and this operates as adequate notice to the insurer to perfect the bank's security interest in the policy [see Com. Code § 9310(b)(11); Com. Code § 9312(b)(4)].

§ 43.272 Statement of Marital Status Regarding Assignment of Life Insurance Policy

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a statement of marital status of a borrower of a commercial loan for use when the borrower is assigning an insurance policy to a bank as security for a loan. This type of form is used by a lending bank to obtain information about the borrower's marriage(s) and to ensure that there are no unknown former spouses who may have an interest in any insurance policy proceeds.

When a bank agrees to take a life insurance policy as security for a commercial loan, the bank will require a statement of marital status from the proposed borrower. This is to assure the bank that no other person may be able, under community property law or other law, to reach the proceeds of the assigned policy other than those who will be asked to join in the assignment [see Fam. Code § 760 et seq.].

§ 43.273 Endorsement to Property Insurance Policy to Pay Bank Creditor on Injury to Loan Collateral

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is an endorsement to a property insurance policy, stating that a lending bank is to be paid the proceeds of any insurance on property held by the bank as security for a borrower's loan.

In order to give the bank extra assurance concerning the physical protection of nonmonetary loan security, the borrower may need to request a special endorsement to any property damage liability policy on this collateral. It is particularly desirable when the bank is not given possession of the collateral that it receive this type of beneficial interest to guaranty the value of the security against its destruction. The customer may be requested to purchase a liability policy with this kind of rider. If the bank takes possession of the property and the customer does have a policy already, it is usually easy to require the extra condition that the customer provide the bank with a special endorsement to include the bank under its protection for the duration of the security agreement.

[2] FORM

Endorsement to Property Insurance Policy to Pay Bank Creditor on Injury to Loan Collateral

COMMODITY LOSS PAYABLE ENDORSEMENT

1. Loss or damage under this policy, to any property constituting security for loans, whether by warehouse receipts, bills of lading, security agreements, trust receipts, pledge agreements, liens, or any other evidence of title or debt, or in the case of property not represented by these documents in which the Lender has an insurable interest evidenced by written entries entered on the books of the Lender, will be adjusted with the named insured and also with the Lender, at the latter's option, and payment in settlement will be made solely to _____[name of bank], its successors and assigns (the "Lender") only to the extent of its insurable interest in the property and whether the interest be vested in the Lender in its individual or in its disclosed or undisclosed fiduciary or representative capacity, or otherwise, or vested in a nominee or trustee of the Lender (without the inclusion of the name or names of any other entity in any check or draft issued by this Company in making any such payment); and the Company, in making this payment, may rely on a written statement from the Lender of the amount due and is thereby discharged of all liability under this policy. In no event will the Company be liable for an amount greater than its proportion of the maximum limit(s) of liability specified in the policy at the time of loss.

2. The Lender's interest under this insurance policy will not be prejudiced, voided, or suspended (a) by any error, omission, or change in the ownership, description, possession, or location of the subject of the insurance, the interest therein, or the title thereto; (b) by commingling or by loss of identity of the insured goods, including but not limited to, through processing or manufacturing into other products; (c) by the commencement of foreclosure proceedings or any other action affecting title to or interest in any property covered by this policy; (d) by any breach of warranty, act, error, omission, neglect, or noncompliance with any of the provisions of this policy, by the named insured or others, or by the happening of any event permitted by them, or which they fail to prevent, whether occurring before or after the attachment of this endorsement, or whether before or after a loss, which under the provisions of this policy of insurance would prejudice, void or suspend the insurance as to the named insured, excluding, however, any acts or omissions of the Lender while exercising sole control and management of the property.

3. If the insured fails to pay any premium or additional premium that becomes due under the terms of this policy or on account of any change in occupancy or increase in hazard not permitted by this policy, the Company will notify the Lender in writing of this nonpayment within [e.g., 60 to 120] days after the premium's due date. When the Lender is notified in writing by the Company of the insured's failure to pay, the Lender will pay the premium due within [e.g., 10] days after receipt of the Company's written demand. If the Lender does not pay the premium or additional premium, the Lender's rights under this Commodity Loss Payable Endorsement will not terminate before [e.g., 10] days after receipt of written notice by the Lender.

4. Whenever the Company pays to the Lender for loss or damage under this policy and claims that no further liability to the insured exists, the Company, at its option, may pay to the Lender the whole principal sum and interest and other indebtedness due from the insured, whether secured or unsecured, (with refund of all interest not accrued), and the Company, to the extent of this payment, will receive a full assignment of the debt and all rights and securities held as collateral under it.

5. If there is other insurance on the property, the Company is liable under this policy to the Lender for the proportion of loss or damage that the sum hereby insured bears to the entire valid and collectible insurance of similar character on the property under policies held by or payable to the Lender. Any Contribution Clause included in this policy is hereby nullified as to the Lender's interest. After being paid the full amount of its claim, the Lender will subrogate to the Company (pro rata with all other insurers contributing to the payment) all of the Lender's rights of contribution under the other insurance.

6. The Company reserves the right to cancel this policy at any time, and in such a case, the policy will continue in force for [e.g., 10] days after written notice of cancellation is received by the Lender and will then cease.

7. This policy will remain in full force as to the Lender's interest for a period of [e.g., 10] days after its expiration unless an acceptable renewal policy with the terms of this Commodity Loss Payable Endorsement has been issued by an insurance company and accepted by the Lender.

8. If legal title to and beneficial ownership of any of the property covered under this policy becomes vested in the Lender or its agents, then insurance under this policy will continue for the full term, but any privileges granted by the Commodity Loss Payable Endorsement that are not also granted the insured under the terms and conditions of this policy will not apply to the insurance regarding that property.

9. Wherever the word "policy" is used in this Commodity Loss Payable Endorsement, it includes all endorsements relating to it.

10. All notices from the Company to the Lender regarding this policy and the Commodity Loss Payable Endorsement will be mailed, faxed, or delivered to the Lender at its office at _____[address].

§ 43.280 Agreement for Series of Loans Based on Bank's Purchase of Inventories on Borrower's Behalf

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an agreement between a retailer dealer (the borrower) and a bank (the lender), authorizing the bank to loan the dealer money by paying for the dealer's goods directly, and to be reimbursed by the dealer when the items are actually sold. This type of arrangement is known as "flooring" [see [b], below].

[b] Operation of Flooring Arrangement

Dealers in motor vehicles, boats, appliances, and other costly retail products typically have a good deal of money tied up in these goods on their receipt, and frequently do not have sufficient funds to pay for these shipments until they have resold the goods to consumers. These industries often have a predictable seasonal cycle of cash flow, and banks have arranged for continuous financing of this merchandise with the dealer's wholesaler.

This financing agreement calls for the bank to accept and pay drafts drawn on the dealer by the supplier, that the borrower (dealer) then has the option of immediately repaying with interest or of arranging for repayment through long-term financing. The loan arrangement is known as "flooring," and the bank most frequently takes short- or long-term commercial loan security in the goods subject to the draft, classified as "inventory," and requiring the filing of a financing statement for perfection [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(48) ("inventory" defined)]. The bank must follow up with an authorization to the supplier to present drafts drawn on the merchant to the bank for payment, which is assured until revoked as to future transactions [see § 43.281]. Retail buyers are protected by taking free of the wholesale security agreement [see Com. Code § 9320].

[c] Disadvantages of Flooring Arrangements

Of the various types of commercial financing, "flooring" is the most intrusive from the borrower's point of view. Under this arrangement, the lender advances money for inventory as needed and the money is repaid as the inventory is sold. The lender requires extensive and up-to-the-minute inventories and extensive reporting. Lenders even conduct spot inventories of their own which can disrupt the business operations of the borrower. In addition, if a spot inventory reveals goods that have been sold "out of trust" or without having been reported to the lender, those goods must be paid for immediately. If a dispute arises between the lender and the borrower or if the borrower experiences a cash flow problem, the flooring lender, in effect, has the power to close down the borrower's business immediately by demanding payment of the outstanding amounts and by refusing to advance money for more inventory. Thus, by entering into a flooring financing arrangement, the business owner loses a great deal of control over the business.

Agreement for Series of Loans Based on Bank's Purchase of Inventories on Borrower's Behalf

Date: _____

To: _____ [name of bank]
 _____ [city, state]

The undersigned, _____ [name], an authorized dealer for _____ [name of product], authorizes and directs you to execute and deliver to _____ [name] a letter of commitment covering purchases of the products of the manufacturer made by the undersigned and the drawing of drafts in connection with those purchases.

The undersigned agrees with you that:

On your receipt of the drafts, you may, but are not obligated to, pay them in accordance with their terms. If you do pay them, the undersigned will immediately on notice, either:

- (a) Pay to you the amount of the drafts plus your cost of handling and interest at the rate of _____ percent from the date when the amount of the draft will have been advanced by you, or by some correspondent bank on your behalf; or
- (b) Immediately execute and deliver to you a note and security agreement in your usual form in the amount of the drafts plus your cost of handling and interest at the rate of _____ percent from the date of advance to the date of delivery; the notes will have maturities and interest rates as may be agreed from time to time.

The undersigned will promptly on request execute and deliver to you any and all other instruments or documents that you may require to perfect your security interest pursuant to this transaction.

It is understood that the arrangements set forth in this agreement may be terminated at any time by notice from you to the undersigned, or from the undersigned to you, and that termination will not in any way affect the liability and responsibility for any drafts drawn before the receipt of [describe], of notice that these arrangements and the arrangements set forth in the attached commitment letter have been terminated.

Sincerely,

_____ [signature]

§ 43.281 Bank's Commitment to Purchase Inventories on Borrower's Behalf

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is commitment by a bank to pay a supplier for the inventory of a retail dealer. This form is used in a "flooring" financing arrangement, in which a bank loans a dealer money by paying for inventory directly, and being reimbursed by the dealer on the retail sale of the inventory. This form provides that the supplier will present drafts directly to the bank for payment [see [b], below]. For further discussion of flooring, see § 43.280[1].

[b] Use of Drafts in Flooring Arrangement

A draft is a negotiable instrument in the form of an order submitted by the drawer on the account of the drawee [see Com. Code § 3104]. It is not in itself an assignment of any funds in the drawee's hands, nor is the drawee liable until he accepts the draft [Com. Code § 3408].

In the case of flooring, when the bank has agreed with the drawee to accept the draft from the drawer, its acceptance engages that it will pay the instrument according to its tenor at that time, and acknowledges the existence of the payee and his or her capacity to endorse [see Com. Code § 3413]. Based on its agreement for financing with the merchant, the bank then sends authorization to the supplier of inventory to present drafts drawn on the merchant for deliveries, which authorization stands as a commitment until withdrawn as to drafts not yet presented.

§ 43.282 Loan and Security Agreement for Receivables and Inventory

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a loan and security agreement between a bank and a merchant to finance the purchase of materials to be used by the merchant as stock in trade. This agreement provides that the bank will advance funds from time to time as needed, and that it will have a security interest in future receivables, inventory, deposits, and proceeds. For discussion of inventory financing under the Commercial Code, see § 43.20[1]. For coverage of secured transaction procedures in general, see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions .

[b] Sale of Credit Disability Insurance by Lender

A lender may wish to protect its position through the use of credit disability insurance covering the debtor [see Civ. Code § 1812.400 et seq.; see also § 43.26]. However, the presence of credit disability insurance will have an adverse effect on the creditor's right to enforce the debt in the event of default when the insurance was sold or arranged for by the creditor or when the creditor received compensation for its sale. In addition, certain disclosures must be made at the time of the sale. For coverage of credit disability insurance, see Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales .

[2] FORM

Loan and Security Agreement for Receivables and Inventory

LOAN AND SECURITY AGREEMENT
(Receivables and Inventory)

This Agreement ("Agreement") is entered into as of _____ [date], between _____ [name of bank] ("Bank") and _____ [name of borrower] ("Borrower");

Article 1. Definitions

1.1. "Account Debtor" means the person or entity obligated upon a Receivable.

1.2. "Borrowing Base" means the lesser of the following:

(a) $[dollar amount]; or

(b) The total ("Receivables and Inventory Loan Value") of:

(1) _____ percent of the balance due on Eligible Receivables ("Receivables Loan Value"), and

(2) _____ percent of the value of Eligible Inventory, or if less $_____, not to exceed _____ percent of Receivables Loan Value ("Inventory Loan Value").

(c) For purposes of the foregoing computations:

(1) Whenever Eligible Receivables are used as a measure for Receivables Loan Value, the determination as to the amount of Eligible Receivables and Loans shall be computed as of the time in question; and

(2) Only Eligible Inventory shall be used to determine Inventory Loan Value and that value shall be based upon the lesser of Borrower's cost or Bank's independent determination of the resale value of that Inventory in such quantities and on such terms as Bank may deem appropriate.

1.3. "Closing Date" means the disbursement date of the first Loan under this Agreement.

1.4. "Collateral" means the property described in any Collateral Agreement as securing any of the Loans.

1.5. "Collateral Agreement" or "Collateral Agreements" means this Agreement and each security agreement or trust deed (if any) referred to in Article 3 of this Agreement.

1.6. "Deposits" means all demand, time, money market, savings or other similar accounts of Borrower maintained with Bank, or with any other financial institution, whether general or special, and whether or not containing proceeds of Collateral and all passbooks and other instruments and documents evidencing the foregoing.

1.7. "Eligible Inventory" means Inventory which:

(a) Is owned by Borrower free and clear of all security interests, liens, encumbrances and rights of others, except the security interest in favor of Bank.

(b) Is permanently located in the State[s] of California [and _____ (specify other states, if any)];

- (c) In Bank's opinion, is not obsolete, unsaleable, damaged, or unfit for further processing;
- (d) Has been owned by Borrower for not more than 12 months;
- (e) Is raw materials and/or finished goods; and
- (f) Is otherwise acceptable to Bank.

1.8. "Eligible Receivable" means a Receivable:

- (a) Arising from the sale of goods (other than cash or consignment sales) or the performance of services by Borrower in the ordinary course of its business;
- (b) Upon which Borrower's right to receive payment is absolute and not contingent upon the fulfillment of any condition whatever;
- (c) Against which is asserted no defense, counterclaim, discount, or setoff, whether well-founded or otherwise (except for those with respect to credit balances owed by Borrower to the Account Debtor for no Longer than _____ days which are otherwise acceptable to Bank);
- (d) That is a true and correct statement of a bona fide indebtedness in the amount of the Receivable incurred for merchandise sold and shipped and accepted by or for services performed for and accepted by, the Account Debtor obligated on that Receivable;
- (e) That is owned by Borrower and not subject to any right, claim, or interest of another other than the security interest in favor of Bank;
- (f) That does not arise from a sale or lease to or performance of services for an employee, affiliate, parent, officer, or subsidiary of Borrower;
- (g) That is not the obligation of a Account Debtor that is the federal government or a political subdivision thereof;
- (h) That is not the obligation of a Account Debtor located in a foreign country;
- (i) That does not arise from the sale of minerals or the like (including oil and gas) at the wellhead or minehead unless Bank shall agree to the contrary in writing;
- (j) That is not in default. A Receivable shall be deemed in default upon occurrence of any of the following:
 - (1) The Receivable is not paid in full within the _____ -day period starting on its invoice date; and if 25 percent or more of the balance due on all Receivables of the same Account Debtor at any one time outstanding are not paid within _____ days of their invoice date(s), then all Receivables of that Account Debtor shall be considered in default; or
 - (2) Any Account Debtor obligated upon such Receivable suspends business, makes a general assignment for the benefit of creditors, or fails to pay its debts generally as they come due; or
 - (3) Any petition is filed by or against any Account Debtor obligated upon that Receivable under any Bankruptcy law or any other law or laws for the relief of debtors;

(k) That does not, when added to all other Eligible Receivables that are obligations of the same Account Debtor, at any time result in a total sum that exceeds _____ percent of the total balance then due on all the Receivables; provided, however, that Bank, at its sole option, may consider a Receivable to be an Eligible Receivable even if this results in a total amount in excess of the limitations specified in this Subsection (k) if the creditworthiness of the Account Debtor is acceptable to Bank; and (l) That is otherwise acceptable to Bank.

1.9. "Event of Default" means any event listed in Article 7 of this Agreement.

1.10. "Indebtedness" shall mean and include, with respect to any person, including Borrower, all items of indebtedness which, in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles and practices, would be included in determining liabilities as shown on the liability side of the balance sheet of that person as of the date on which indebtedness is determined and shall also include all indebtedness and liabilities of others assumed or guaranteed by that person, or in respect of which that person is secondarily or contingently liable (other than by endorsement of instruments in the ordinary course of collection) whether by reason of any agreement to acquire that indebtedness or to supply or advance funds or otherwise.

1.11. "Inventory" means all of Borrower's goods and inventory (as inventory is defined in the California Commercial Code) and other personal property now or hereafter owned which is held for sale or lease or which is to be furnished under contract(s) of service, including that held for display or demonstration or out on lease or consignment, all raw materials, work in process, finished goods and materials used or consumed, or to be used or consumed, in Borrower's business (and all proprietary rights, patents, drawings and display materials relating thereto) and all documents of title and other documents covering any of the foregoing.

1.12. "Loan", and collectively "Loans", means the advances described in Article 2 of this Agreement.

1.13. "Loan Account" and "Loan Accounts" have the meanings specified in Section 2.4 of this Agreement.

1.14. "Obligations" means the Loans and any and all existing and future indebtedness and liability of every kind, nature and character, direct or indirect, absolute or contingent, joint or several (including all renewals, extensions and modifications thereof and all attorneys' fees, including allocated costs of in-house counsel, and expenses incurred by the Bank in connection with the collection or enforcement thereof including but not limited to the enforcement of this Agreement under provisions of the Bankruptcy Code whether by motion for relief from stay or otherwise), of the Borrower to the Bank however and whenever created, arising, evidenced or acquired.

1.15. "Receivables" means all rights to the payment of money now owned or hereafter acquired by Borrower, whether due or to become due and whether or not earned by performance including, but not limited to, accounts (as defined in the California Commercial Code), chattel paper, instruments, general intangibles, and all guaranties and security therefor and all contracts relating thereto and all returned and repossessed goods.

1.17. "Reference Rate" has the meaning specified in Section 2.5(a).

1.18. "Subordinated Debt" means Indebtedness of Borrower which has been subordinated to Borrower's Obligations in a manner which Bank has approved in writing.

1.19. "Tangible Net Worth" means the difference between (a) the gross book value of the assets of Borrower, and (b) the sum of (i) the amount of all intangibles such as goodwill, patents, trademarks, organization expense, treasury stock, unamortized debt discount and expense and deferred charges, (ii) the amount of reserves established by Borrower for anticipated losses and expenses, and (iii) the amount of all liabilities and indebtedness of Borrower, including accrued but deferred income taxes but excluding Subordinated Debt.

1.20. "Termination Date" has the meaning specified in Section 2.1.

1.21. All computations required under this Agreement shall otherwise be made in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles and practices consistently applied. Accounting terms used herein not otherwise defined shall have the meaning attributable thereto under generally accepted accounting principles, and practices.

Article 2. The Loans

2.1. From time to time, between the date of this Agreement and _____ [date] ("Termination Date"), upon request of Borrower, Bank may, at Bank's sole discretion, advance to Borrower sums which in the aggregate outstanding at any one time shall not exceed the Borrowing Base.

2.2. Each request for an advance under this Agreement ("Loan") shall be made in writing on a form acceptable to Bank or in any other manner acceptable to Bank; provided Bank is authorized to make Loans hereunder based on telephonic or other instructions of anyone purporting to be an officer, employee or other agent of Borrower.

2.3. Each Loan shall be made by a deposit to Borrower's commercial account No. _____ at the _____ office of Bank, unless Borrower shall otherwise direct Bank in writing; and if Loans are so disbursed, they are deemed to have been validly requested by Borrower.

2.4. Principal, interest, and all other sums due Bank and all sums advanced by Bank under this Agreement shall be evidenced by entries in records maintained by Bank, provided Bank may maintain separate records or ledgers with respect to advances made against Eligible Receivables and those made against Eligible Inventory (the "Loan Account" and collectively "Loan Accounts"). Each payment on and any other credits with respect to principal, interest, and all other sums due under this Agreement shall be evidenced by entries made by Bank to the appropriate Loan Account, and all such notations shall constitute prima facie evidence of the matters noted.

2.5. (a) Interest on the total outstanding principal due Bank on the Loans shall accrue daily at a rate per annum equal to the rate of interest publicly announced from time to time by Bank at its Head Office, as its reference rate ("Reference Rate") (1) plus _____ percent for Loans made against Eligible Receivables, and (2) plus _____ percent for Loans made against Eligible Inventory. Any change in the Reference Rate shall take effect with respect to the Loans on the day specified in the public announcement of that change. The Reference Rate is set by Bank from time to time as a means of pricing credit extensions to some customers and is neither tied to any external rate of interest or index nor necessarily the lowest rate of interest charged by Bank at any given time for any particular class of customers or credit extensions.

(b) Interest shall be computed on the basis of actual days elapsed over a [either: 360 (which results in greater interest than if a 365 day basis is used) or 365 (or as applicable 366)] day year.

(c) Borrower shall pay Bank on demand, or if no demand is made, on the 10th day of each month, a monthly service charge or interest for the preceding month in an amount equal to the greater of:

(1) $ _____ [dollar amount]; or

(2) An amount equal to interest calculated no accordance with Subsection 2.5(a).

(d) After maturity (whether by acceleration or otherwise), the Loans shall bear interest at a rate per annum equal to the rate(s) provided for in Section 2.5(a) above plus _____ percent, which rate(s) shall change as the Reference Rate changes.

(e) Borrower shall pay the entire outstanding principal amount of the Loans on demand or if no demand is made when otherwise due as provided herein.

(f) Borrower understands and agrees that interest which is not paid when due shall, at the option of Bank, be added to principal and shall bear interest at the rate(s) applied to principal evidenced by the applicable Loan Account.

2.6. Borrower agrees that, if at any time the amounts outstanding under this Agreement exceed the Borrowing Base, Borrower will immediately pay Bank the amount of the excess.

2.7. Loans under this Article are available on a revolving basis and subject to the provisions of this Agreement, Borrower may repay and reborrow as Borrower may elect.

2.8. Borrower authorizes Bank from time to time to charge against any and all Deposits of Borrower at any time maintained with Bank any amount payable by Borrower hereunder which is not paid promptly when due.

Article 3. Collateral

3.1. As security for Borrower's Obligations (including the Loans and all other sums due Bank under this Agreement), Borrower hereby grants Bank a security interest in Borrower's present and future Receivables, Inventory, Deposits, and all proceeds, products and accessions to any of these (and all insurance and proceeds covering any of the foregoing) and in such other real or personal property as Bank may require as security for the Loans pursuant to any other Collateral Agreement which provides such assets secure the Loans. As long as the Loans are outstanding, and until this Agreement is terminated as provided herein, Borrower will execute and deliver to Bank such assignments, notices, financing statements and other documents (including any original instruments, documents and chattel paper, endorsed or assigned as Bank shall specify) as Bank may request in order to perfect or confirm Bank's security interest in the Collateral or to give any third parties, including the Account Debtors, notice of Bank's interest in the Collateral.

3.2. Borrower will deliver to Bank duplicate invoices evidencing Receivables and delivery receipts and other documents with respect thereto in such form and at such times as Bank may request. Bank is authorized to destroy or return to Borrower, at Bank's option, all such documents six months after those documents are delivered to Bank.

Article 4. Conditions Precedent

4.1. Without detracting from Bank's right to refuse any requested Loan(s) hereunder, Bank's obligations hereunder are subject to the condition that, on the Closing Date, there shall have been delivered to Bank, in form and substance satisfactory to Bank, all of the following:

(a) The Collateral Agreement(s);

(b) Financing statement(s) executed by Borrower;

(c) Evidence that all security interests required to be provided in favor of Bank are valid, enforceable, and prior to the rights and interests of others.

(d) Evidence that the execution, delivery, and performance by Borrower of this Agreement and the execution, delivery, and performance by Borrower and any guarantor or subordinating creditor of any instrument or agreement required under this Agreement, as appropriate, have been duly authorized; and

(e) Such other documents, instruments and opinions as Bank may reasonably require.

4.2. As a condition precedent to each Loan including the first, under this Agreement, Bank, at its option, at any time and from time to time, may require that each request for a Loan be accompanied or preceded by the following:

(a) A certificate, in form and detail satisfactory to Bank, setting forth the Eligible Receivables and Eligible Inventory (and the related Receivables Loan Value and Inventory Loan Value) on which it is based, and

(b) Copies of the invoices for such Eligible Receivables.

4.3. Each request for a Loan under this Agreement shall be deemed a representation by Borrower that the representations and warranties contained in Section 5.1 through Section 5.6, and Section 5.8 through Section 5.10 and in any other agreement, instrument, or document executed and delivered in connection herewith are then true and accurate in all material respects as though made on and as of the day of such request, and that no further action, including any filing or recording of any agreement or statement, is necessary in order to establish and perfect Bank's first lien on, and prior perfected security interest in, all the Collateral.

Article 5. Representations and Warranties

Borrower represents and warrants that:

5.1. Borrower is duly organized and existing under the laws of the state of its organization and that the execution, delivery, and performance of this Agreement are within Borrower's powers, have been duly authorized, and are not in conflict with the terms of any charter, bylaw, partnership agreement, or other organization papers of Borrower.

5.2. The execution, delivery, and performance of this Agreement and of any instrument or agreement required by this Agreement are not in conflict with any law or any indenture, agreement, or undertaking to which Borrower is a party or by which Borrower is bound or affected.

5.3. All financial information submitted by Borrower to Bank is true and correct in all material respects and is complete insofar as may be necessary to give Bank true and accurate knowledge of the subject matter thereof.

5.4. Borrower is properly licensed and in good standing in each state in which Borrower is doing business; and Borrower has qualified under, and complied with, where required, the fictitious name statute of each state in which Borrower is doing business.

5.5. Borrower has complied with all federal, state, and local laws, rules, and regulations affecting the business of Borrower, including, but not limited to, laws regulating Borrower's sales or leases or the furnishing of services and disclosures in connection therewith.

5.6. All Collateral is owned by Borrower, free and clear of all clouds to title and of all security interests, liens, encumbrances and rights of others except the rights of Bank under the Collateral Agreements and those to which Bank has consented as provided in Section 6.14; and all Inventory and Receivables included in the Borrowing Base conform to the requirements of this Agreement for Eligible Receivables or Eligible Inventory, as the case may be, while so included.

5.7. Except for the due filing of a financing statement with respect to any Collateral Agreement, the delivery to Bank of any Collateral as to which possession is the only method of perfecting a security interest in or lien on that Collateral, and the recording of any Collateral Agreement describing Collateral that is real property, no further action is necessary in order to establish and perfect Bank's first lien on or prior perfected security interest in all property covered by any such Collateral Agreement.

5.8. There is no litigation, tax claim, proceeding or dispute pending, or, to the knowledge of Borrower, threatened, against or affecting Borrower or its property, the adverse determination of which might adversely affect Borrower's financial condition or operations or impair Borrower's ability to perform its obligations under this Agreement or under any instrument or agreement required hereunder.

5.9. No event has occurred and is continuing or would result from the making of the Loan which constitutes an Event of Default or which, upon lapse of time or notice or both, would become an Event of Default.

5.10. If Borrower's Inventory includes beer, wine or liquor, Borrower's sales for resale exceeded seventy-five percent in dollar volume of Borrower's total sales during the 12 months immediately preceding the filing of the financing statement perfecting Bank's security interest in Borrower's Inventory.

Article 6. Covenants

Borrower covenants and agrees that so long as the credit facility established under this Agreement shall remain available and until the full and final payment of the Loans and all other indebtedness incurred hereunder, Borrower will do all of the following, unless Bank waives compliance in writing:

6.1. Payments. Pay principal and interest on the Loans and all other sums due under this Agreement or under any Collateral Agreement according to the terms hereof or thereof.

6.2. Notice of Dispute. Promptly give written notice to Bank of any of the following:

- (a) Any substantial dispute which may exist between Borrower and any governmental or regulatory body or law enforcement authority;
- (b) An Event of Default or any event which, upon a lapse of time or notice or both, would become an Event of Default;
- (c) Any other matter that has resulted or might result in a material adverse change in Borrower's financial condition or operations; and
- (d) Any event that adversely affects the value of the Collateral, the ability of Borrower or Bank to dispose of any of the Collateral, or the rights and remedies of Bank in relation thereto, including, but not limited to, the levy of any legal process against any Collateral and the adoption of any marketing order, arrangement or procedure affecting the Collateral, whether governmental or otherwise.

6.3. Financial Information. In addition to the financial statements required under Section 8.11(a), deliver to Bank, in form and detail satisfactory to Bank, and in such number of copies as Bank may request, all of the following:

- (a) On the 15th day of each month, a Borrowing Base Certificate (Status Report), in format and detail satisfactory to Bank, setting forth the respective amount of Receivables and Inventory and other information with respect thereto as of the last day of the preceding month;
- (b) On the 15th day of each month, statements showing, as at the immediately preceding month end, an aging of Receivables and reconciliation of Receivables and collections to the applicable Borrowing Base Certificate (Status Report);
- (c) On the 15th day of each month, a statement showing an aging of accounts payable;

(d) On the 15th day of each month, a Report of Inventory Subject to Security Interest setting forth the amount of Inventory as of the last day of the preceding month;

(e) Each time collections are delivered to Bank, a schedule of the amounts so collected and delivered to Bank;

(f) Annual financial statements (in form and detail satisfactory to Bank) of each guarantor of Borrower's Obligations under this Agreement within such a reasonable time after the end of each year or fiscal year of that guarantor as Bank requests;

(g) Promptly upon request of Bank, such other statements, lists of property or accounts, budgets, forecasts, and reports as to Borrower (and as to each guarantor of Borrower's Obligations) as Bank may request; and

(h) If any Collateral is or becomes subject to any negotiable document of title, warehouse receipt or bill of lading, the original documents promptly upon issuance.

6.4. Expenses. Pay or reimburse Bank for all costs and expenses incurred by Bank in connection with this Agreement or any instrument or agreement or financing statement furnished in connection with this Agreement (including expenses incurred by Bank in the exercise of its rights under Section 6.13).

6.5. Intent. Perform, on request of Bank, such acts as may be necessary or advisable to perfect any liens or security interests provided for herein or otherwise to carry out the intent of this Agreement.

6.6. Existence. Maintain and preserve Borrower's existence and all rights, privileges and franchises now enjoyed, conduct Borrower's business in an orderly, efficient and customary manner, keep all Borrower's properties in good working order and condition, and from time to time make all needed repairs, renewals or replacements to those properties so that the efficiency of that property shall be fully maintained and preserved.

6.7. Insurance. Maintain and keep in force in adequate amounts of such insurance, including property and liability insurance, as is usual in the business carried on by Borrower, and furnish Bank with the most current copies of fire and hazard insurance policies on Borrower's Inventory. Each fire and hazard insurance policy shall have such endorsements (including loss payable endorsements in favor of Bank) as may be required by Bank and shall be in form and substance satisfactory to Bank and issued by insurance companies acceptable to Bank.

6.8. Records. Maintain adequate books, accounts and records and prepare all financial statements required hereunder in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles and practices consistently applied, and in compliance with the regulations of any governmental regulatory body having jurisdiction over Borrower or Borrower's business, including but not limited to laws regulating Borrower's sales or leases to or performance of services for Account Debtors and disclosures in connection therewith.

6.9. Information. Cause all financial information, including information relating to Receivables, upon submission by Borrower to Bank to be true and correct in all material respects and complete to the extent necessary to give Bank a true and accurate knowledge of the subject matter thereof.

6.10. Inspection and Disclosure of Discounts. Permit the Bank, by its representatives and agents, to inspect the Collateral, to examine and make copies of the records of the Borrower relating thereto, and to discuss the Collateral, and the records of the Borrower with respect thereto with, and to be advised as to the same by the Borrower's officers and, in the case of any Receivable, with any person or entity which is or may be obligated thereon, all at such reasonable times and intervals as the Bank may determine. If any discount, credit, agreement to make a rebate or to otherwise reduce the amount owing on a Receivable exists or if, to the knowledge of the Borrower, any dispute, setoff, claim, counterclaim or defense exists or has been asserted or threatened with respect to a Receivable, such fact shall be disclosed to the Bank in writing in connection with the inspection by the Bank of any records of the Borrower relating to that Receivable and in connection with any invoice or report furnished by the Borrower to the Bank relating to that Receivable.

6.11. Taxes. Pay when due all taxes, assessments and governmental charges and levies upon the Collateral, except those which are being contested in good faith by appropriate proceedings.

6.12. Notice of Default. Give prompt notice in writing to the Bank of the occurrence of any Event of Default and of any other development, financial or otherwise, which might materially adversely affect the Collateral, or the ability of Borrower to perform its Obligations.

6.13. Notification of Account Debtors. Upon the request of the Bank, notify all or such of the Account Debtors as Bank shall specify to make payment thereon at such place and in such manner as Bank shall specify.

6.14. Liens. Not create, incur, or suffer to exist any lien or encumbrance or security interest on any Collateral except for the security interests created by this Agreement and those consented to by Bank in writing.

6.15. Disposition of Collateral. Not sell, lease or otherwise dispose of the Collateral except, prior to the occurrence of an Event of Default:

- (a) Sales of Inventory in the ordinary course of business; and
- (b) Cash proceeds of Inventory and Receivables collected in the ordinary course of business.

6.16. Change In Location or Name. (a) Not have any Inventory at a location other than a location specified in Section 8.9(d);

(b) Not maintain records concerning the Receivables at a location other than a location specified in Section 8.9(b);

(c) Not maintain its chief executive office at a location other than that specified in Section 8.9(c);

(d) Not change its name; and

(e) Not change its mailing address without Bank's prior written consent.

6.17. Certain Agreements on Receivables. Not make or agree to make any discount, credit, rebate or other reduction in the original amount owing on a Receivable or accept in satisfaction of a Receivable less than the original amount thereof.

6.18. Other Activities. Not engage in any business activities or operations substantially different from or unrelated to Borrower's present business activities and operations.

Article 7. Events of Default

The occurrence of any of the following Events of Default shall, without notice to Borrower, terminate any obligation on the part of Bank to make or continue the Loans and, at the option of Bank, shall make all sums of interest any principal remaining on the Loans immediately due and payable, without notice of default, presentment or demand for payment, protest or notice of nonpayment or dishonor, or other notices or demands of any kind or character:

7.1. Borrower fails to pay, when due, any installment of interest or principal or any other sum due under this Agreement or any Collateral Agreement in accordance with the terms hereof or thereof.

7.2. Any representation or warranty herein or in any agreement, instrument or certificate executed pursuant hereto or in connection with any transaction contemplated hereby proves to have been false or misleading in any material respect when made.

7.3. Bank fails to have a valid and enforceable prior perfected security interest in (or first lien on) any Collateral unless Bank has agreed in writing to accept other than a first priority lien.

7.4. An involuntary lien or liens attach to the Collateral, or attach in the aggregate sum specified in Section 8.11(f) or more, to other assets or property of Borrower, except for taxes due but not in default, or for taxes which are being contested in good faith and by appropriate proceedings.

7.5. A judgment or judgments is or are entered against Borrower in the aggregate amount specified in Section 8.11(g) or more on a claim or claims not covered by insurance.

7.6. Borrower or any guarantor of any of Borrower's Obligations to Bank fails to pay Borrower's or, as the case may be, that guarantor's debts generally as they come due, or files any petition, proceeding, case, or action for relief under any Bankruptcy, reorganization, insolvency, or moratorium law, or any other law or laws for the relief of, or relating to, debtors.

7.7. An involuntary petition is filed under any Bankruptcy or similar statute against Borrower or any guarantor of any of Borrower's Obligations to Bank, or a receiver, trustee, liquidator, assignee, custodian, sequestrator, or other similar official is appointed to take possession of the properties of Borrower or that guarantor.

7.8. Borrower voluntarily suspends its business other than in the usual and normal course of Borrower's business.

7.9. Any governmental regulatory authority takes or institutes action which, in the opinion of Bank, will adversely affect Borrower's condition, operations or ability to repay the Loans.

7.10. Any default occurs under any other agreement involving the borrowing of money or the advance of credit to which Borrower may be a party as borrower or guarantor, if that default consists of the failure to pay any indebtedness when due or if that default gives to the holder of the obligation concerned the right to accelerate the indebtedness.

7.11. Any guaranty, subordination agreement, Collateral Agreement or other agreement or instrument required hereunder is breached, revoked or becomes ineffective or any default occurs under any that agreement or instrument.

7.12. Bank, in good faith, considers any Collateral to be unsafe or in danger of misuse to the extent that Bank's prospect of or right to payment or performance under this Agreement or any instrument or agreement required hereunder is impaired.

7.13. Borrower breaches, or is in default under, any term, condition, provision, representation or warranty contained herein not otherwise specifically referred to in this Article 7.

7.14. Bank, upon the occurrence of an Event of Default, in addition to any other right afforded a secured party by the California Commercial Code, may do any or all of the following:

(a) Immediately take possession of the Collateral wherever it may be found, with or without judicial process, or require Borrower to assemble the Collateral and make it available to Bank at a place designated by Bank which is reasonably convenient to Borrower and Bank;

(b) Sell, lease or otherwise dispose of the Collateral, following any preparation or processing bank determines to be necessary or desirable, in one or more transactions upon such terms and in such manner as Bank may determine, including public or private sales, sales for cash or on credit, and with or without the Collateral present at the place of transaction; and Bank may purchase the Collateral at any such sale, free from any right of redemption by Borrower (other than redemption rights mandated by applicable law which cannot be waived); and

(c) Retain the Collateral in full satisfaction of the Loans and other obligations secured hereby.

7.15. The cash proceeds resulting from the exercise of any of Bank's remedies, after deducting all charges, expenses and costs, including attorneys' fees (and the allocable costs of Bank's in-house counsel), incurred in repossessing, holding, preparing for sale or lease, and selling or leasing the Collateral, shall be applied by Bank to the payment of the Loans and other Obligations secured by this Agreement in such an order as Bank may elect, and Borrower shall remain liable to Bank for any deficiency. Bank shall not be liable to Borrower for any damage to real or personal property which is not Collateral caused by acts or omissions of Bank or its agents done in good faith in removing, storing, processing, preserving, or disposing of the Collateral, nor for damage to the Collateral. Borrower indemnifies and holds Bank harmless from any liabilities, losses, costs and expenses, including attorneys' fees, arising from claims of third persons resulting from any such acts and omissions. Bank shall have the right to enforce any one or more of its remedies hereunder successively or concurrently and the exercise of any one remedy shall not estop or prevent Bank from pursuing any other remedy provided hereunder or by the California Commercial Code or otherwise available by law. Bank may sue for the full amount of the Loans and other Obligations secured by this Agreement without proceeding against all or any part of the Collateral.

Article 8. Miscellaneous

8.1. Application of Collections. The proceeds of collections of Receivables, when received by Bank, shall be credited to interest, principal, and other sums due Bank under this Agreement in the order and proportion determined by Bank in its sole discretion. All such credits shall be conditioned upon collection and any returned items may, at Bank's option, be charged to Borrower.

8.2. Attorney in Fact. Borrower hereby makes, constitutes and appoints Bank its irrevocable, true and lawful attorney with the power:

(a) To receive, open and dispose of all mail addressed to Borrower;

(b) To endorse the name of Borrower upon any checks or other evidences of payment that may come into the possession of Bank with respect to the Receivables or as Inventory proceeds;

(c) To endorse the name of Borrower upon any document or instrument relating to the Collateral;

(d) In Borrower's name or otherwise, to make or give any presentment, demand or notice with respect to any of the Receivables and to agree to the compromise, adjustment or extension of the time for payment of any Receivables and release or exchange of any security for, or any party primarily or secondarily liable on, any Receivables;

(e) To prosecute, defend or settle any action, claim or proceeding with respect to the Receivables; and

(f) To do any and all things necessary or proper to carry out the purposes herein contemplated including those necessary to perfect Bank's security interest in the Collateral. Notwithstanding Bank's exercise of its rights to collect the Receivables and Inventory proceeds, Bank shall be under no duty to make or give any presentments, demands or notices or to take any steps to preserve rights against prior parties in connection with the Receivables and Inventory proceeds.

8.3. Collections. Until Bank exercises its rights to collect the Receivables and Inventory proceeds pursuant to Section 6.13 or Subsections (f) and (g) of Section 8.7 of this Agreement, Borrower will collect with diligence (and at its own cost and expense) all Receivables and Inventory proceeds, provided that no legal action shall be maintained thereon or in connection therewith without Bank's prior written consent. If a credit adjustment is made with respect to any Eligible Receivable, the amount of such adjustment shall no longer be included in the amount at such Eligible Receivable in computing the Borrowing Base. Any collection of Receivables or inventory proceeds by Borrower, whether in the form of cash, checks, notes or other instruments for the payment of money, shall be properly endorsed and assigned as requested by Bank to enable Bank to collect same and will be held in trust for Bank, and Borrower shall keep all such collections separate and apart from all other funds and property so as to be capable of identification as the property of Bank and deliver such collections daily to Bank in the identical form received. Collections in the form of cash, checks and similar proceeds shall be credited to the appropriate Loan Account when received by Bank, provided that all such credits shall be conditional credits (subject to collection) and returned items may, at Bank's option, be charged to Borrower's general account. Collections in the form of notes and similar proceeds shall be set forth on an itemized schedule prepared by Borrower and delivered to Bank with each collection showing the name of the Account Debtor the amount of each payment and such other information as Bank may request.

8.4. Notice of Disposition of Collateral. Notice at the time and place of any public sale or the time on or after which any private sale or other disposition of all or any part of the Collateral may be made shall be reasonable if sent to the Borrower, addressed as set forth in Section 8.10, at least five days prior to any such public sale or the time on or after which any such private sale or other disposition is to be made.

8.5. Compromises and Collection of Collateral. Borrower and Bank recognize that setoffs, counterclaims, defenses and other claims may be asserted by Account Debtors with respect to certain of the Receivables, that certain of the Receivables may be or become uncollectible in whole or in part and that the expense and probability of success in litigating a disputed Receivable may exceed the amount that reasonably may be expected to be recovered with respect to a Receivable. In view of the foregoing, the Borrower agrees that Bank may at any time and from time to time compromise with the Account Debtors on any Receivable, accept in full payment of any Receivable such amount as the Bank in its sole discretion shall determine, or may abandon any Receivable; and Borrower agrees any such action by the Bank shall be commercially reasonable as long as Bank acts in good faith based on information known to it at the time it takes any such action.

8.6. Use and Possession of Certain Premises Trademarks. Upon the occurrence of an Event of Default, Bank shall be entitled to occupy and use any premises owned or leased by the Borrower where any of the Collateral or any records relating to the Collateral are located until the Obligations are paid or the Collateral and the records relating thereto are removed therefrom, whichever occurs first. Bank shall have no obligation to pay the Borrower for such use and occupancy. Bank shall also be entitled, in connection with any assembly or disposition of the Collateral, to use, convey or assign any trademark, trade name, trade style, copyright, patent right or technical process used or utilized by Borrower.

8.7. Additional Optional Requirements. Borrower agrees that Bank may at any time, at Bank's sole option, whether or not Borrower is in default hereunder, do any of the following:

(a) Require Borrower to segregate all collections and proceeds of the Collateral so that they are capable of identification, and deliver daily such collections and proceeds to Bank in kind;

(b) Require Borrower to periodically deliver to Bank records and schedules, which show the status and condition of the Collateral, where it is located, or contracts or other matters that affect the Collateral;

- (c) Verify the Collateral and inspect the books and records of Borrower and make copies thereof or extracts therefrom;
- (d) Require Borrower to obtain Bank's prior written consent to any sale, contract of sale or other disposition of any Inventory or of any farm products or other goods covered by any document of title on such Inventory;
- (e) Notify any Account Debtor, any buyer of the Collateral or any other person of Bank's interest in the Collateral and the proceeds thereof;
- (f) Require Borrower to direct all Account Debtors to forward all remittances, payments and proceeds of the Collateral to a post office box under Bank's exclusive control;
- (g) Demand and collect directly any Receivables and any proceeds of the Collateral. In connection therewith Borrower irrevocably authorizes Bank to endorse or sign Borrower's name on all collections, receipts or other documents, take possession of and open the mail addressed to Borrower and remove therefrom payments of receivables and proceeds of the Collateral; and
- (h) Require Borrower to deliver to Bank any original instruments or chattel paper evidencing one or more Receivables.

8.8. Indemnity. Borrower hereby indemnifies Bank against, and holds Bank harmless from, all claims, actions, expenses and losses including attorneys' fees and costs incurred by Bank, arising from any contention, whether well-founded or otherwise, that there has been a failure to comply with any law regulating Borrower's sales or leases to, or performance of services for, Account Debtors or disclosures to be made in connection therewith.

8.9. Additional Information. Borrower represents and warrants to Bank as follows:

(a) Borrower is _____ [legal name], _____ [an individual or specify type of entity and state law under which it was organized; e.g., a California _____ (corporation or limited liability company or partnership)].

(b) Records relating to the Receivables of Borrower are maintained only at the following locations:

_____ [address]
 _____ [address]

(c) Borrower's chief executive office is located at:

_____ [address]

(d) Borrower maintains Inventory only at the following locations:

_____ [address]
 _____ [address]

(e) Borrower has conducted business only in the following other names:

_____ [name]
 _____ [name]

8.10. Notices. Any notice required or permitted to be given under this Agreement may be, and shall be deemed, given and sent when deposited in the United States mail, postage prepaid, or by telegraph or telex when delivered to the appropriate office for transmission, charges prepaid, addressed:

To Borrower as follows:

_____ [address]

Attention: _____

To Bank as follows:

_____ [address]

Attention: _____

8.11. Financial Provisions.

(a) Financial Statements. Borrower will provide Bank with all of the following:

(1) Within _____ days after the end of each fiscal year of Borrower, Borrower's annual financial statements prepared by an independent certified public accountant ("CPA") selected by Borrower and satisfactory to Bank, and

(2) Within _____ days after the end of each _____ [specify period, e.g., quarter] accounting period, Borrower's _____ [period; e.g., quarterly] financial statements prepared by a responsible financial officer of Borrower or its CPA. All such financial statements shall be in form and detail and shall include such types of statements and financial reporting as Bank may reasonably require.

(b) Lease Obligations. Borrower will not directly or indirectly incur, assume or have outstanding any Indebtedness to pay rent under lease(s), including lease obligations required to be capitalized on the lessee's balance sheet, if the aggregate of all such rents would exceed $_____ during any one fiscal year of Borrower.

(c) Fixed Asset Expenditures. Borrower will not purchase, acquire, or incur liability for the purchase of fixed assets, including those acquired under capitalized leases, in an aggregate amount in any consecutive 12-month period in excess of $_____.

(d) Salaries. Borrower will not make or permit direct or indirect withdrawals, salary, compensation, advances, or other distributions from Borrower to exceed the following amounts to the following persons:

Name	Monthly Payment
_____	_____
_____	_____
_____	_____

Nor will Borrower compensate others in excess of the foregoing amounts without Bank's prior written consent.

(e) Financial Covenants. Borrower will at all times while the Obligations are outstanding and until this Agreement is terminated:

(1) Maintain a Tangible Net Worth of not less than $_____ and a ratio of total Indebtedness to Tangible Net Worth of not more than _____ to _____.

(2) Maintain a ratio of current assets to current liabilities of not less than _____ to _____.

(3) Maintain a ratio of cash and cash equivalents plus trade receivables (net of bad debt reserves required to be maintained in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles and practices) to Borrower's total current Indebtedness of not less than _____ to _____.

(4) Maintain a working capital not less than $_____.

(5) _____ [add any other specialized covenants].

(f) Referring to Section 7.4 (Permitted involuntary liens): The aggregate sum of $_____.

(g) Referring to Section 7.5 (Judgments): The aggregate amount of $_____.

8.12. Miscellaneous. The following additional provisions shall apply:

(a) Successors. This Agreement shall bind and inure to the benefit of the parties hereto and their respective successors and assigns; provided, however, that Borrower shall not assign this Agreement or any of the rights, duties or obligations of Borrower hereunder without the prior written consent of Bank.

(b) Waivers. No consent or waiver under this Agreement shall be effective unless in writing. No waiver of any breach or default shall be deemed a waiver of any breach or default thereafter occurring.

(c) Governing Law. This Agreement shall be governed by and construed under the laws of the State of California.

(d) Costs. Borrower agrees to pay reasonable attorneys' fees and all other costs and expenses incurred by Bank to enforce this Agreement or any instrument or agreement required by this Agreement.

(e) Entire Agreement. This Agreement and any agreement, document or instrument attached hereto or referred to herein integrates all the terms and conditions mentioned in or incidental to this Agreement, and supersedes all oral negotiations and prior writings in respect to the subject matter of this Agreement. In the event of any conflict between the terms, conditions and provisions of this Agreement and any such agreement, documents or instrument, the terms, conditions and provisions of this Agreement shall prevail.

8.13. TERMINATION WITHOUT CAUSE. Upon _____ days prior written notice to the other party as set forth in Section 8.10 either Bank or Borrower, at its sole discretion, may without cause and without detracting from the demand nature of Borrower's Obligations hereunder or the discretionary nature of Bank's Obligation to make Loans, terminate the arrangement under this agreement with respect to Bank's making Loans, provided that such a termination will not affect Borrower's Obligations or Bank's rights under this agreement or any Collateral Agreements, including Bank's rights with respect to the Collateral, until all Borrower's Obligations are paid in full.

§ 43.283 Security Agreement for Business and Farm Collateral

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a general security agreement covering business and farm collateral, as specified by the parties in the form. This form illustrates the terms typically found in a general security agreement covering business and farm collateral such as equipment, inventory, accounts, chattel paper and instruments, purchase money security interests, and farm products. For coverage of secured transaction procedures under the Commercial Code, see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions.

[b] Importance of Reading Loan and Security Agreements

By the time the parties get to the point of executing the loan documentation, many practitioners and borrowers are so weary of the process that they fail to closely read the documents they are given to sign and simply assume that the documents are "standard" and need not be read. This is a mistake. There are no "standard" documents; there are only documents drafted by banks, which are later printed to look "standard." Banks draft documents to give them the maximum protection they can imagine. This approach is often not in the best interest of the borrower and severely limits the ability of the borrower to conduct business.

For example, if all of the boxes in this form regarding property covered by the security interest were initialed, the bank would be given a security interest in virtually everything the borrower owns. This may far exceed the amount necessary to secure the loan. It could also preclude the borrower from obtaining other loans from other lenders.

This agreement also provides that the security interest granted is to secure not only the subject loan but any other past, present, or future obligation of the borrower to the bank. This means that the bank may become a secured creditor of the borrower for some obligation not even contemplated by the borrower. This form also imposes a number of obligations on the borrower that, if not complied with, may allow the bank to declare the borrower in default. These may be obligations that the borrower did not even know existed. For instance, Paragraph 1 of the "Other Provisions" part provides that loan proceeds may be used only for purposes listed in the loan application unless approved by the bank.

Another example is contained in Paragraph 7 of the "Other Provisions" part. It provides for the payment of taxes "when due." Many taxes become due on one date but are not delinquent until a later date. The payment of those taxes on the later date, while permitted by the taxing authority, would be a default under the agreement.

While the borrower may accept the requirements of the agreement, he or she nevertheless must understand those requirements, in order to avoid inadvertent default.

[2] FORM

Security Agreement for Business and Farm Collateral

GENERAL SECURITY AGREEMENT (ALL BUSINESS AND FARM COLLATERAL)

I. Grant of Security Interest

In consideration of any financial accommodations given, to be given or continued, the undersigned ("Borrower") grants to _____[name of bank] ("Bank") a security interest in the following described personal property of Borrower now or hereafter existing or acquired (hereinafter individually and collectively called "Collateral" as the context may require):

1. Any and all tangible and intangible property in Bank's possession or control in any manner or for any purpose; and
2. Any and all of the kinds and classes of property initialed below:

[initial if applicable] (a) Equipment, including, without limitation, machinery, tools, furniture, fixtures, attachments, motor vehicles, and farm equipment.

[initial if applicable] (b) Inventory, including, without limitation, goods, merchandise and other personal property held or to be held for sale or lease, display or demonstration, or out on lease or consignment, or to be furnished under a contract of service or so furnished, and returns from sale, lease, consignment or service, vessels under construction, and raw materials, work in process and materials used or consumed in Borrower's business.

[initial if applicable] (c) Accounts, including, without limitation, accounts receivable, rights to payment or performance under invoices or contracts or to payment for goods sold or leased or for services rendered, whether or not yet earned by Borrower's performance, and all other forms of obligations of and receivables from others.

[initial if applicable] (d) Chattel paper; instruments, including notes, drafts and acceptances; documents of title and receipts, including bills of lading and warehouse receipts, and the goods relating thereto; money; general intangibles, including without limitation: cash value, return premiums, and other rights under insurance policies, causes of action, judgments, royalty contracts, contracts relating to the sale, finance or lease of real property, and demand, time, savings, or any other accounts maintained with Bank or any other financial institution.

[initial if applicable] (e) Farm products; timber to be cut; and minerals, including without limitation; crops now growing or to be grown, livestock, supplies and feed used or produced in farming operations, products of crops or livestock in their unmanufactured states, and oil and gas when extracted, which crops, timber and minerals, until severed, are located on or at the real property described below or in the schedule attached hereto and made a part hereof:

[initial if applicable] (f) Certain specific items of personal property set forth below or listed in the schedule attached to this agreement and made a part of this agreement (which specification is not intended to limit the generality of any description of collateral set forth above):

3. Any and all proceeds, accessions, replacements, increase, and products of the personal property specified in Paragraph 1, above, or initialed in Paragraph 2, above,

II. Obligations Secured

[initial if applicable] 1. Purchase Money Security Interest. By initialing this box, Borrower acknowledges that Bank is giving value to enable Borrower to acquire rights in, or the use of, the Collateral, and Borrower agrees to use this value only for the purpose of acquiring the rights in, or use of the Collateral for which it is given.

2. Obligations Secured. The security interest granted by Borrower to Bank secures payment and performance of all of Borrower's present and future debts, obligations and liabilities to Bank, whether absolute or contingent, direct or indirect, liquidated or unliquidated, whether or not secured by assets in addition to the Collateral, including without limitation:

(a) The obligations set forth below or listed in the schedule attached to and made a part of this Agreement:

(b) Obligations incurred by Borrower under any promissory notes or other agreements now or later payable or transferred to Bank, this agreement, any overdrafts, cash reserves or other liabilities arising out of any present or future deposit account relationships, any future advances and any other present or future contractual or other legal liabilities to Bank however evidenced or arising, except (i) any future "consumer credit" indebtedness under the Federal Truth in Lending Act and regulations thereunder unless the Collateral and type of security interest granted to Bank under this agreement is disclosed at the time incurred if and as then required by such Act and regulations; and (ii) obligations now or later secured by a trust deed on real property to which California law applies unless set forth or listed as an obligation in (a), above, or unless a separate agreement in writing now or later states in effect that the obligation is secured by any Collateral (the foregoing to be hereinafter collectively called "Obligations").

III. Other Provisions

Borrower warrants, represents and agrees as follows:

1. Use of Loan Proceeds. Borrower will use the proceeds of any loan made by Bank to Borrower and secured by the Collateral for the purpose indicated in any loan request or application and always in Borrower's business unless otherwise disclosed to and accepted by Bank in writing.

2. Ownership and Claims to Collateral. Borrower owns absolutely and has unrestricted power to encumber all Collateral unless Bank agrees otherwise in writing. No other person or entity has or claims any title, lien or other interest in any Collateral except for taxes not yet delinquent, and for any interest disclosed to and accepted by Bank in writing. Borrower will defend any proceeding which may affect title to or Bank's security interest in any Collateral. No financing statement containing any description which by its terms embraces the Collateral, including proceeds, is on file in any public office.

3. Collateral in Borrower's Possession. As to all Collateral now or later in Borrower's possession (unless specifically otherwise agreed by Bank in writing), Borrower will do all of the following:

(a) Keep the Collateral at the location(s) disclosed in writing to Bank and not remove the Collateral from that location except temporarily for use in Borrower's business or for repairs.

(b) Keep the Collateral separate and identifiable to the fullest extent possible.

(c) Maintain all of the Collateral (including equipment, inventory, farm products, and timber) in good and salable condition; repair the Collateral if necessary; clean, feed, shelter, water, medicate, fertilize, cultivate, irrigate, prune and otherwise deal with the Collateral in all ways considered good practice by owners of like property; use the Collateral lawfully, only in Borrower's business and as permitted by insurance policies; and permit Bank to inspect the Collateral at any reasonable time.

(d) Within 30 days after issuance of any certificate of registration or title to any Collateral, deliver any such certificate to Bank showing Bank's security interest noted thereon.

(e) Keep all Collateral (except growing crops, unsevered timber and minerals) as personal property or trade fixtures and keep it from becoming part of the real property where located, and obtain and deliver to Bank a waiver or subordination on Bank's standard form from any owner and encumbrancer of the real property of any rights in the Collateral, including farm products, and of any rights to prevent removal of the Collateral by Bank.

4. Crops and Timber. As to Collateral consisting of crops and timber, Borrower will prepare the crops or timber for market. At Bank's request Borrower will immediately notify Bank when the crops or timber are ready for market, follow Bank's instructions as to holding, shipping, storing, and marketing them, arrange for payment for such crops or timber directly to Bank and obtain the issuance of any documents of title in Bank's name. Bank, regardless of default, may take possession of the crops or timber as soon as harvested and market or otherwise handle them at Borrower's expense.

5. Inventory and Accounts. As to Collateral consisting of inventory and accounts, Borrower:

(a) May, until notice from Bank, sell or lease inventory Collateral in the ordinary course of trade only, and collect cash proceeds of inventory Collateral.

(b) At Bank's request, will deposit all cash proceeds as received in a general account with Bank or at Bank's option an account containing only those proceeds, and/or deliver statements identifying units of inventory acquired, disposed of and/or returned, accounts and names and addresses of account debtors.

(c) Will receive in trust, schedule on forms satisfactory to Bank, and deliver to Bank all noncash proceeds other than inventory received in trade.

6. Collateral Representing Obligations of Others. As to Collateral consisting of accounts, chattel paper, instruments, documents, general intangibles, and proceeds described in 5(c), above, at and after the time Borrower's rights under each item of such Collateral arise:

(a) All such Collateral is and will be genuine, enforceable in accordance with its terms, free from default, prepayment, defenses and conditions precedent (except as disclosed to and accepted by Bank in writing). Borrower will supply Bank with invoices or other evidence of Borrower's rights and with all originals of documents evidencing chattel paper and general intangibles on Bank's request.

(b) All persons appearing to be obligated on such Collateral have authority and capacity to contract.

(c) All chattel paper is and will be in compliance with law as to form, content and manner of preparation and execution, and properly registered and filed to perfect Borrower's interest thereunder.

(d) Bank shall be under no duty to make or give any presentments, demands for performance, notices of nonperformance, protests, notices of protest or notices of dishonor, to collect any Collateral or its proceeds, or to take any steps to preserve rights against prior parties in connection with the Collateral whether or not it has possession of the Collateral.

(e) Borrower will not compromise, settle or adjust any such Collateral or renew or extend the time of payment thereof without Bank's prior written consent.

7. Payment of Liens and Taxes. Borrower will pay when due all existing and future charges, liens or encumbrances on and all taxes and assessments now or hereafter imposed on or affecting the Collateral, including taxes on realty owned by Borrower on or at which Collateral is located.

8. Insurance of Collateral. Borrower will at all times keep the Collateral insured naming Bank as loss payee under policies in form and amounts, with companies, and against risks and liability satisfactory to Bank. In addition to amounts payable by reason of loss or damage to any Collateral (in which amounts Bank has a security interest as proceeds), Borrower hereby assigns to Bank as security for Borrower's Obligations all rights under such policies and any other policies constituting Collateral, will deliver such policies to Bank at Bank's request, and authorizes Bank to make any claim thereunder; to cancel the insurance on Borrower's default, and to receive payment of and endorse any instrument in payment of any loss, return premium or dividend. At Bank's request Borrower will obtain at Borrower's expense an endorsement to any such insurance if currently available.

9. Information From Borrower. Borrower will give Bank any information it reasonably requires from time to time regarding Borrower's financial condition or the Collateral and events which could affect either or both, and will permit Bank access at reasonable times to its records containing such information. All information received by Bank at any time from Borrower (including but not limited to the value, condition and ownership of Collateral, financial statements, financing statements, and statements made in documentary Collateral) is and will be correct and complete as of the time such information is supplied whether or not specifically requested by Bank, and Borrower will notify Bank of any later adverse change in any such information. Borrower will notify Bank in writing of any change of Borrower's name, residence, chief place of business, or mailing address before such a change occurs.

10. Bank's Rights to Protect Collateral. Bank is irrevocably appointed Borrower's attorney in fact at any time before or after default, without notice to Borrower, to obtain any insurance, discharge any lien, make any payment and do any other act which Borrower is obligated to do under this agreement, to exercise such rights as Borrower might exercise, to use such equipment as Borrower might use, to enter Borrower's premises to give notice of Bank's security interest, to collect Collateral including proceeds, to execute and file in Borrower's name any financing statements, other filings and amendments thereto, or applications for registration or like documents, required to perfect Bank's security interest in any Collateral, and to take any other reasonable action, all to protect and preserve the Collateral and Bank's rights. No action or inaction by Bank, nor any term of this agreement, shall relieve Borrower of the obligation to do any of the foregoing acts or impose on Bank any such obligations. Borrower will immediately pay all Bank's costs, and indemnify Bank against all claims, demands, and liabilities including reasonable attorneys' fees, incurred in exercising any of the foregoing rights or by reason of being made a party to or intervening in any action or proceeding affecting any Collateral or Bank's rights, with interest on each item of cost and liability from the date paid by Bank at the annual rate provided before or after default (as the case may be) in the promissory note evidencing the indebtedness of Borrower to Bank to which the cost or liability is related, if any, and in all other cases at the annual rate of _____ per cent. Without limiting the Bank in the exercise of any of the foregoing rights, Bank may do any or all of the following:

- (a) Endorse, collect and receive delivery or payment of instruments and documents constituting Collateral;
- (b) Make extension agreements with respect to or affecting Collateral, exchange it for other Collateral, release persons liable on it or security for the payment of it, and compromise disputes in connection with it;
- (c) Use or operate Collateral for the purpose of preserving any Collateral or its value or for preparing and disposing of Collateral, or abandon any Collateral.

11. Prohibited Transfers. Borrower will not sell, lease, contract to sell or lease, transfer or create any encumbrance, purchase money or other security interest in any Collateral (other than to sell or lease inventory Collateral as permitted by Paragraph 5) until all Obligations have been paid, even though Bank has a security interest in proceeds of such Collateral and regardless of whether any sale, lease, encumbrance or transfer is to an organization or person controlled by Borrower or its then principals. If Borrower is an organization, Borrower will not without Bank's prior written consent change the legal form of its organization or its business structure in any way which Bank in good faith decides might adversely affect the prospect of repayment of any of the Obligations, impair the continuing validity or perfection of its security interest as to any Collateral (including later-acquired property), or make a filed financing statement misleading, and Borrower will not without Bank's prior written consent merge with or into any other organization or be subject to a change of control by reason of a transfer of shares, voting power, or other means.

12. Events of Default and Acceleration. On the occurrence of any of the following events or circumstances, Bank shall have the right to terminate any or all commitments and other obligations of Bank to Borrower and to declare all or any part of the Obligations immediately due and payable without demand or notice to Borrower:

- (a) If Borrower fails to pay or perform any of the Obligations when due; or
- (b) If Borrower or any guarantor of any of the Obligations dies, becomes insolvent, is generally not paying his debts as such debts become due, suffers a material adverse change of financial conditions, or defaults with respect to any order, judgment, injunction, decree, writ or demand of any court or other public authority; or
- (c) If Bank in good faith believes that the prospect of payment or performance of any Obligations is impaired.

All Obligations shall be in default, and immediately due and payable in full, and all commitments and other obligations of Bank to Borrower shall be terminated, without declaration, demand or notice to Borrower if Borrower or any guarantor of any of the Obligations does any of the following:

- (a) Makes an assignment for the benefit of creditors;
- (b) Is the subject of any voluntary or involuntary case commenced under the federal bankruptcy laws, as now constituted or hereafter amended, or any other proceeding under other applicable laws regarding bankruptcy, insolvency, reorganization, adjustment of debt or other forms of relief for debtors in any other jurisdiction;
- (c) Consents to the appointment of a receiver, trustee, or similar official for substantially all of his or its property or permits a decree ordering such appointment to remain in effect and unstayed for 60 days;
- (d) Is the subject of any dissolution or liquidation proceedings;
- (e) Has issued against him or his property any writ of attachment, execution, or other legal process involving an amount of risk deemed material by Bank; or
- (f) Has filed or recorded against him or his property any notice of levy, notice to withhold, or other claim for taxes other than real property taxes not yet delinquent involving an amount deemed material by Bank. The events described in this Paragraph 12 shall be defaults under all Obligations notwithstanding the terms of any instrument evidencing any of the Obligations.

13. Bank's Rights on Default. Upon the occurrence of any of the events, circumstances or defaults set forth in paragraph 12 above, Bank shall have all rights provided in the California Uniform Commercial Code and otherwise available by law, may take possession of any Collateral and enter any premises where any Collateral is kept, with or without judicial process, may sue for the full amount of any or all of the Obligations without proceeding against any or all of the Collateral or sue for any deficiency remaining after disposition of any or all of the Collateral, may without notice or demand setoff and apply toward payment of any Obligations any and all demand, time, savings or any other deposit accounts, instruments, or other property under Bank's possession or control, and may sell or lease in any commercially reasonable manner in one or more transactions any or all of the Collateral in its then condition or following any commercially reasonable preparation or processing. Sales for cash or on credit to any wholesaler, retailer or user of the Collateral, or at public auction or private sale, are all commercially reasonable. Bank may require Borrower to assemble any or all of the Collateral and make it available to Bank at the entrance to the location of the Collateral, or at any office of Bank in the county where the Collateral is or should have been located under the terms of this agreement. Bank may sell or lease any or all of the Collateral without having it present at the place of the transaction. Whenever any Collateral is in Bank's possession, Bank may use, operate and consume it in any commercially reasonable manner or as it deems appropriate for paying or performing Borrower's Obligations. Bank shall have no liability to the Borrower for any damage to real or personal property which is not Collateral caused by acts or omissions of Bank or its agents done in good faith in the course of removing, storing, processing, maintaining, preserving, protecting or disposing of Collateral nor for any such damage to Collateral except as a result of Bank's failure to sell or lease Collateral in a commercially reasonable manner. Borrower will indemnify and hold Bank harmless from any claims, demands and liability, including attorney's fees, arising from claims of third persons resulting from such acts or omissions. Borrower will also immediately pay Bank its reasonable expenses of retaking, holding, preparing for sale or lease, selling, or leasing any Collateral and the like and its reasonable attorney's fees and legal expenses related to any such action. Interest on each item due from Borrower under this paragraph shall be payable on demand and accrue from the date paid by Bank at the rate provided in paragraph 10. Bank is not obligated to collect, take possession of, or otherwise realize on any Collateral.

14. Multiple Borrowers. If more than one Borrower signs, this agreement, their liability under this agreement is joint and several. The initials of any Borrower in one or more boxes at the beginning of this agreement operate to encumber all the described Collateral. Any Borrower who is a married person agrees to recourse against his or her separate property for all Obligations. The breach of any provisions of this agreement by any Borrower shall be a breach by all Borrowers unless waived by Bank. Discharge of any Borrower (except for full payment) or any extension, forbearance, change of rate of interest, or acceptance, release or substitution of Collateral or any impairment or suspension of Bank's rights against a Borrower, or any transfer of a Borrower's interest to another, shall not affect the liability of any other Borrower. All Borrowers waive:

- (a) Any right to require Bank to proceed against any Borrower before any other, or to pursue any other remedy;
- (b) Presentment, protest and notice of protest, demand and notice of nonpayment, demand of performance, notice of sale, and advertisement of sale;
- (c) Any right to the benefit of or to direct the application of any Collateral until all Obligations shall have been paid; and
- (d) Any right of subrogation to Bank until all Obligations shall have been paid or performed in full.

15. Modification and Waiver. Bank's acceptance of partial or delinquent payments or failure of Bank to exercise any right shall not constitute a waiver of any of the Obligations of Borrower or any right of Bank, modify this agreement, or waive any other similar default. No waiver of any right or power of Bank or modification of this agreement shall be valid unless in writing and signed by Bank.

16. Assignment. On transfer of all or any part of the Obligations or a participation interest therein, Bank may transfer all or any part of or interest in the Collateral. Bank may deliver all or any part of the Collateral to any Borrower at any time. Any such transfer or delivery shall discharge Bank from all liability and responsibility with respect to such Collateral transferred or delivered. This agreement benefits Bank's successors and assignees and binds Borrower's heirs, legatees, personal representatives, successors and assignees. Borrower agrees not to assert against any assignee of Bank any claim or defense Borrower may have against Bank.

17. Miscellaneous. Time is of the essence of this agreement and all its provisions. This agreement and any supplementary schedules incorporated in it contain the entire Security Agreement between Bank and Borrower with respect to all Collateral. Borrower will execute any additional agreements, assignments, notices, filings or documents reasonably required by Bank to effectuate this agreement or to preserve and protect any Collateral and Bank's rights. This agreement shall be governed by the laws of the State of California and, unless otherwise defined or provided herein, all words used in this agreement have the meanings given them in the California Uniform Commercial Code, but if perfection of the security interest in any Collateral is required by the law of any other state and not required in California, then to that extent the laws of the other state shall apply to this agreement although the meanings of words will nevertheless be determined by reference to the California Uniform Commercial Code. Titles preceding any paragraph of this agreement are for convenience only and are not a part of this agreement. Any written notice under this agreement and any Obligations shall be treated as given to Borrower when personally delivered to Borrower or when placed in the United States mails, first class postage prepaid, addressed to Borrower at the address shown below, or at any address of which Borrower has notified Bank in writing, or at the address at which Bank customarily communicates with Borrower. Unless separate notice is requested in writing by any Borrower, notice given to any Borrower shall constitute notice to all Borrowers.

Each Borrower acknowledges receipt of a copy of this Agreement.

§ 43.290 Bank's Instructions for Assignment of Borrower's Proceeds in Pending Escrow[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a notice in the form of escrow instructions sent to an escrow agent servicing a transaction in property through which a borrower (usually as seller) is entitled to proceeds that have been assigned to a bank. This form is used when the borrower has pledged these proceeds as security for a commercial loan. For further discussion of escrow instructions, see Ch. 26, Real Property Escrows.

An important consideration in preserving the security is the conduct of a title search to determine whether the borrower is entitled to these proceeds. For coverage of title searches, see Ch. 26A, Title Insurance.

§ 43.291 Severance Agreement Regarding Interest in Chattels on Real Property

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an agreement between a commercial borrower and a lending bank regarding chattels on real property that are security for a loan. This agreement is used to clarify that the bank has a security interest in the chattels apart from the real property and, if the borrower defaults on the loan, may enter onto the premises to claim them.

[b] Assignment of Chattels on Real Property

The assignment of chattels on real property most commonly arises in the case of business fixtures to be installed on the opening or remodeling of a retail business. Financing is generally for the improvements, which are normally classified as equipment [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(33) ("equipment" defined)]; the lender's security interest is perfected on the filing of a financing statement [Com. Code § 9310(a); see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions].

The borrower is usually a tenant of a third-party landlord, though it is sometimes the owner of the property, which is subject to mortgage beyond the security level. Most leases to businesses allow trade fixtures to remain in the possession of the tenant, but do not definitively describe what portion of the property constitutes the fixtures. Therefore, it is necessary to spell out the security fixtures not only in the agreement with the borrowing tenant, but also in a separate agreement with the landlord [see § 43.292]. The agreement may be considered to affect real property and may be recorded to further protect the bank's security interest in these chattels.

While the landlord's waiver [see § 43.292] still protects the lender against a landlord's claims to fixtures [Com. Code § 9334(d)-(g)], there are alternative means for such protection. A special financing statement known as a "fixtures filing" may be used to assure the lender's priority over any interest of the landlord or the landlord's successors [see Com. Code §§ 9310, 9334, 9501(b), 9502; see also Ch. 42, Secured Transactions].

§ 43.292 Waiver and Severance Agreement for Chattels on Real Property

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a waiver and severance agreement regarding chattels attached to real property. The agreement provides that each person having an interest in the real property agrees that the chattels, which are security for a bank loan, may be removed from the property by the bank at any time. This form must be completed by each owner and encumbrancer of the real property.

The bank's agreement with the tenant concerning the chattels is strengthened when the landlord is notified of the agreement and signs a waiver to any rights to the chattels. While the landlord's waiver still protects the lender against a landlord's claims to fixtures [Com. Code § 9334(d)-(g)], there are alternative means for such protection. A special financing statement known as a "fixtures filing" may be used to assure the lender's priority over any interest of the landlord or the landlord's successors [see Com. Code §§ 9310, 9334, 9501(b), 9502; see also Ch. 42, Secured Transactions].

For further discussion of security interests in chattels attached to real property, see § 43.291[1].

§ 43.300 Assignment of Interest in Pending Probate Proceedings

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is an agreement between a bank and a borrower, assigning to the bank the borrower's interest in an estate as security for a loan.

The bank trust department needs to examine the probate file for statutory regularity and the will of the decedent that has been accepted for probate, in particular, to determine the vested character of the interest to be assigned as security. This anticipated interest in an estate is a general intangible [Com. Code § 9102(a)(42) ("general intangible" defined)]. A financing statement need not be filed to perfect a security interest created by an assignment of a beneficial interest in a trust or a decedent's estate [Com. Code § 9310(b)(2); see Com. Code § 9309(13)].

Notice of the assignment with any documentation necessary to establish fairness of the loan transaction should be forwarded to the executor or administrator in time for his or her analysis, because the law allows (but does not require) for a hearing before distribution to an heir or devisee's assignee as to the propriety in terms of fairness of the transfer [see Prob. Code § 11604]. The executor should be asked to acknowledge receipt of the notice and acknowledge that there are no prior existing claims.

§ 43.310 Straight Note With Flat Interest Running Until Payment or Demand

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a note evidencing a commercial loan that provides for flat interest payments running until payment or demand of the note. Two alternative forms of this note are provided: one for use by an individual, and one for use by a partnership.

The basic type of commercial promissory document is the standard promissory note. This is the type of note normally drawn for preferred customers, such as large corporate accounts. This type of note is also commonly used in other secured kinds of financing; that is, when the collateral is frozen cash (for example, savings account) or appraised stocks or bonds in the bank's possession.

This type of note is appropriate for short seasonal loans that need to be made to trusted businesses that are short of cash while acquiring inventories but realize cash almost immediately on shipping merchandise and obtaining instant receivables. Notes are commonly drafted for three or six months after date of draw, and the interest is a true figure at slightly higher than prime rates, payable monthly or at maturity. The borrower typically repays substantial amounts of principal with interest payments. The notes may be considered for renewal at the end of their terms, but the bank is free to impose new terms and at a new interest rate.

For a selection of alternative notes and discussion of the Commercial Code governing negotiable instruments, see Ch. 55, Negotiable Instruments .

[b] Characteristics of a Negotiable Instrument

A negotiable instrument is an unconditional promise or order to pay a fixed amount of money, with or without interest or other charges, which complies with all of the following [Com. Code § 3104(a); see [c], below]:

- It is payable to bearer or to order when it is issued or first comes into the holder's possession.
- It is payable on demand or at a definite time.
- It does not state any other undertaking or instruction by the person promising or ordering payment, with limited exceptions [see Com. Code § 3104(a)(3)].

A negotiable instrument is a "note" if it is a promise [Com. Code § 3104(e)], which is a written undertaking to pay money signed by the person undertaking to pay [Com. Code § 3103(a)(9)].

[c] Payability

A promise is "payable on demand" if it (1) states it is payable on demand or at sight, or otherwise indicates that it is payable at the will of the holder, or (2) does not state any time for payment [Com. Code § 3108(a)]. If an instrument payable at a fixed date is also payable on demand before that date, it is payable on demand until the fixed date. If demand for payment is not made before the fixed date, the instrument becomes payable at a definite time on the fixed date [Com. Code § 3108(c)].

A promise is "payable at a definite time" if it is payable at the end of a definite period of time after sight or acceptance, at a fixed date or dates, or at a time or times readily ascertainable when the promise is issued. This is subject to the rights of prepayment, acceleration, extension at the option of the holder, or extension to a further definite time at the option of the maker or acceptor, or automatically [Com. Code § 3108(b)].

A promise is "payable to bearer" if it does any of the following [Com. Code § 3109(a)]:

- States that it is payable to bearer or the order of bearer, or otherwise indicates that the person in possession of the promise is entitled to payment.
- Does not state a payee.
- States that it is payable to cash or the order of cash, or otherwise indicates that it is not payable to an identified person.

A promise is "unconditional" unless it states [Com. Code § 3106(a)]:

- An express condition to payment;
- That the promise is subject to or governed by another writing; or
- That rights or obligations concerning the promise are stated in another writing.

The mere reference to another writing does not make the promise conditional [Com. Code § 3106(a)].

[d] Controlling Terms and Alteration

If an instrument contains contradictory terms, typewritten terms prevail over printed terms, handwritten terms prevail over typewritten and printed terms, and words prevail over numbers [Com. Code § 3114]. The parties to a negotiable instrument may modify, supplement, or nullify their obligation by a separate agreement [see Com. Code § 3117].

[e] Negotiability

"Negotiation" is the transfer of possession of an instrument by a person other than the issuer to a person who thereby becomes a holder [Com. Code § 3201(a)]. Transfer of an instrument vests in the transferee any right the transferor had to enforce the instrument [Com. Code § 3203(b)]. Negotiation of an instrument is effective even if obtained from an infant, a corporation exceeding its powers, or a person lacking capacity. Negotiation is also effective even if the instrument is obtained by fraud, duress, mistake, in breach of a duty, or illegally [Com. Code § 3202(a)]. A negotiable instrument may be antedated, postdated, or undated [Com. Code § 3113].

[f] Time for Payment

An instrument payable on demand becomes overdue at the earliest of (1) the day after the day demand for payment is made, (2) 90 days after its date, if it is a check, or (3) when the instrument has been outstanding for an unreasonably long period of time, if it is not a check [Com. Code § 3304(a)]. In general, an instrument payable at a definite time becomes overdue on default or on the day after the due date [Com. Code § 3304(b)].

[g] Discharge

An instrument is "paid" to the extent that payment is made (1) by or on behalf of a party obliged to pay the instrument and (2) to a person entitled to enforce the instrument. The obligation of a party obliged to pay an instrument is discharged to the extent of the payment [Com. Code § 3602(a); see Com. Code § 3602(b) (exceptions)]. The obligation to pay may also be discharged by a tender of payment [see Com. Code § 3603] or by an act or agreement [see Com. Code § 3604].

[h] Liability of Signers

A person is not liable on an instrument unless the person signed the instrument, or the person is represented by an agent or representative who signed the instrument, and the signature is binding [Com. Code § 3401(a); see Com. Code § 3402]. In some circumstances, the representative may also be liable for the instrument [see Com. Code § 3402(b)(2)]. In general, persons who have the same liability on an instrument are jointly and severally liable in the capacity in which they sign [Com. Code § 3116(a); see Com. Code § 3419 (liability of accommodation party)].

§ 43.311 Installment Note With Separate Schedules for Repayment of Principal and Interest

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an installment note that provides for the payment of principal and interest at different rates by the use of separate schedules. Two alternative versions of this note are provided: one for use by an individual, and one for use by a partnership.

A common variation of standard commercial note calls for specified repayments of principal and interest on separate schedules. This may be useful, for instance, in the case of a seasonal business that cannot foresee repayment of the note within a short, definite period, but is capable of paying minimum repayments of principal on a regular basis. In this illustration, a higher interest may be delayed and accumulated until periods when cash receivables are traditionally high for the borrower. Thus, the note may be drafted so that interest is payable quarterly or semiannually, while the principal is scheduled on a monthly basis of 12 equal installments. If the note is for a longer duration, the principal payments may be scheduled for equal sums spaced out over three- or six-month periods, with the interest being paid on a more regular basis in the interim.

§ 43.312 Installment Note With Single Schedule for Repayment of Principal and Interest Combined

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is an installment note that provides for a single schedule for the repayment of principal and interest at the same time. Two alternative forms of this note are provided: one for use by an individual, and one for use by a partnership.

This note, a common type of installment note used for commercial purposes, calls for equal scheduled payments combining principal and interest. This arrangement is based on the principle of the straight amortized loan, in which the installment figure remains the same, and, since (true) interest owing is higher at the beginning than at the end of the loan when less principal is outstanding, the ratio of principal to interest is different for each payment. However, at maturity, there may yet remain a large principal balance to be paid. The size of the payment must be computed so that an adequate amount of principal is repaid in each earlier installment so as to allow either for complete pay off by the last installment, or a manageable figure of principal remaining that the borrower can pay off or easily refinance on maturity of the note.

For a selection of alternative notes and discussion of the Commercial Code governing negotiable instruments, see Ch. 55, Negotiable Instruments .

§ 43.313 Installment Note With Payment of Principal at Maturity and Interest in Installments

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is an illustrative commercial installment note that provides for equal installment payments of interest with a lump sum payment of principal at maturity. For a note providing for payment of both interest and principal in installments, see § 43.312.

This form includes an acceleration clause reciting incidents of default that are grounds for acceleration of payment. The incidents of default relate to the debtor's failure to fulfill the obligations under the note, such as failure to pay interest or principal when due, and certain detrimental changes in the debtor's financial situation, such as the debtor's filing for bankruptcy.

FOR VALUE RECEIVED, the undersigned ("Debtor") promises to pay to the order of _____ [name of bank] ("Bank"), as indicated below, the principal sum of $ _____, or so much thereof as is disbursed, together with interest on the balance of that principal sum from time to time outstanding, at a per annum rate equal to Bank's Instructions for Assignment of Borrower's Proceeds in Pending Escrow [_____ percent or the Reference Rate plus _____ percent, that per annum rate to change as and when the Reference Rate shall change or specify other rate or formula]; provided, however, that Debtor shall pay total interest over the term of this note of not less than $ _____. [If applicable, add: As used herein, the term "Reference Rate" shall mean the rate announced by Bank from time to time at its corporate headquarters as its "Reference Rate." The Reference Rate is an index rate determined by Bank from time to time as a means of pricing certain extensions of credit and is neither directly tied to any external rate of interest or index nor necessarily the lowest rate of interest charged by Bank at any given time.] All computations of interest under this note shall be made on the basis of a year of 360 days, for actual days elapsed.

1. Principal Payments. Debtor shall pay principal in full on _____ [date]; however, at any time prior to the maturity of this note, Debtor may borrow, repay and reborrow hereon so long as the total outstanding at any one time does not exceed the principal amount of this note.

[Continue with the following:]

2. Interest Payments. Debtor shall pay interest on the _____ [e.g., first] day of each _____ [e.g., month] (commencing _____ [date first interest payment will be due]) [or specify other provisions for payment of interest].

3. Interest-Included Option. If a fixed rate of interest is applicable to this note and other principal and interest payment terms are not stated in the preceding paragraphs, Debtor shall pay principal and interest together in _____ installments of $ _____ each on the [e.g., first] day of each [e.g., month]

(commencing _____ [date first payment will be due]) and in a final installment of $_____ on _____ [date], on which date all principal and interest then unpaid shall be due and payable.

4. Manner and Time of Payment. Debtor shall pay all amounts due under this note in lawful money of the United States at Bank's _____ Office, or such other office as may be designated by Bank, from time to time.

5. Late Payments. If any installment payment required by the terms of this note is unpaid 10 days after due, Debtor shall at the option of Bank, pay a fee of $_____ to Bank.

6. Interest Rate Following Default. In the event of default, at the option of Bank, and, to the extent permitted by law, interest shall be payable on the outstanding principal under this note at a per annum rate equal to _____ percent in excess of the interest rate specified in the initial paragraph of this note, calculated from the date of default until all amounts payable under this note are paid in full.

7. Default and Acceleration of Time for Payment. Default shall include, but not be limited to, any of the following:

- (a) The failure of Debtor to make any payment required under this note when due;
- (b) Any breach, misrepresentation or other default by Debtor, any guarantor, co-maker, endorser, or any person or entity other than Debtor providing security for this note (hereinafter individually and collectively referred to as the "Obligor") under any security agreement, guaranty or other agreement between Bank and any Obligor;
- (c) The insolvency of any Obligor or the failure of any Obligor generally to pay that Obligor's debts as such debts become due;
- (d) The commencement as to any Obligor of any voluntary or involuntary proceeding under any laws relating to bankruptcy, insolvency, reorganization, arrangement, debt adjustment or debtor relief;
- (e) The assignment by any Obligor for the benefit of such Obligor's creditors;
- (f) The appointment, or commencement of any proceedings for the appointment, of a receiver, trustee, custodian or similar official for all or substantially all of any Obligor's property;
- (g) The commencement of any proceeding for the dissolution or liquidation of any Obligor;
- (h) The termination of existence or death of any Obligor;
- (i) The failure of any Obligor to comply with any order, judgment, injunction, decree, writ or demand of any court or other public authority;
- (j) The filing or recording against any Obligor, or the property of any Obligor, of any notice of levy, notice to withhold, or other legal process for taxes other than property taxes;
- (k) The default by any Obligor personally liable for amounts owed hereunder on any obligation concerning the borrowing of money;
- (l) The issuance against any Obligor, or the property of any Obligor, of any writ of attachment, execution, or other judicial lien; or

(m) The deterioration of the financial condition of any Obligor which results in Bank deeming itself, in good faith, insecure.

Upon the occurrence of any such default, Bank, in its discretion, may cease to advance funds hereunder and may declare all obligations under this note immediately due and payable; however, upon the occurrence of an event of default under (d), (e), (f), or (g), all principal and interest shall automatically become immediately due and payable.

8. Additional Agreements of Debtor. If any amounts owing under this note are not paid when due, Debtor promises to pay all costs and expenses, including reasonable attorneys' fees, incurred by Bank in the collection or enforcement of this note. Debtor and any endorser of this note, for the maximum period of time and the full extent permitted by law, (a) waive diligence, presentment, demand, notice of nonpayment, protest, notice of protest, and notice of every kind; (b) waive the right to assert the defense of any statute of limitations to any debt or obligation hereunder; and (c) consent to renewals and extensions of time for the payment of any amounts due under this note. If this note is signed by more than one party, the term "Debtor" includes each of the undersigned and any successors in interest thereof, all of whose liability shall be joint and several. Any married person who signs this note agrees that recourse may be had against the separate property of the person for any obligations hereunder. The receipt of any check or other item of payment by Bank, at its option, shall not be considered a payment on account until that check or other item of payment is honored when presented for payment at the drawee bank. Bank may delay the credit of that payment based upon Bank's schedule of funds availability, and interest under this note shall accrue until the funds are deemed collected. In any action brought under or arising out of this note, Debtor and any endorser of this note, including their successors and assigns, hereby consent to the jurisdiction of any competent court within the State of California, except as provided in any addendum attached hereto, and consent to service of process by any means authorized by California law. The term "Bank" includes, without limitation, any holder of this note. This note shall be construed in accordance with and governed by the laws of the State of California.

§ 43.314 Discount Note With Single Payment Schedule for Repayment

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a discount note that provides for a single payment of principal and interest on maturity of the note. Two alternative forms of this note are provided: one for use by an individual, and one for use by a partnership.

[b] Operation of Discount Notes

The discount note is a way of handling a loan scheduled for short-term payoff but in fact of more speculative duration. No interest payments are separately scheduled for the prescribed life of the note. Instead, the interest is figured into the maturity figure and made to represent the face amount of the note. In effect, while the bank disburses to the commercial borrower an agreed amount of proceeds, this figure does not appear on the note itself. Rather, the borrower signs a note to repay at a relatively short but projected comfortable distance, in a single installment, a figure higher than the amount borrowed, the difference representing the true bank interest. On prepayment, unearned interest is refundable.

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a discount note that provides for installment payments. Two alternative forms of this note are provided: one for use by an individual, and one for use by a partnership. For a general discussion of discount notes, see § 43.314[1][b].

When the maturity date on a discount note must be stretched out for a relatively long period, the bank prefers to arrange a schedule of installment repayments. No amortization is necessary, because the interest is due from the beginning as figured into the face payoff amount of the note. In addition, the installments do not have to retire the note entirely by the maturity date, but a remainder of principal that can comfortably be managed by the borrower on the due date can be left to accompany the final installment payment.

CHAPTER 43 COMMERCIAL LOANS

PART IV. FORMS

J. Promissory Notes for Commercial Lending

19-43 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 43.316

AUTHOR: Reviewed by the Honorable Walter L. Blackwell III Judge Blackwell is a judge of the San Bernardino County Superior Court in Barstow, California. He received a B.A. in Business Administration and Economics from the University of Redlands, and a J.D. from U.C.L.A. Before being elected to the Superior Court, Judge Blackwell practiced in the areas of business and real estate transactions and litigation. He was also Executive Vice President and General Counsel for a large financial institution.

§ 43.316 Prepayment Addendum

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a provision for a prepayment fee. If this form is used, the bank will be entitled to additional compensation if the debtor pays the note in advance. It provides that all prepayments will include payment of accrued interest on the principal that is prepaid, and that a prepayment fee is payable when prepayment occurs because of an acceleration of payment on the debtor's default.

[2] FORM

Prepayment Addendum

PREPAYMENT ADDENDUM

1. Prepayment. This Note may only be prepaid in whole or in part provided Bank has received not less than five business days prior written notice of an intention to make such a prepayment and the undersigned pays a prepayment fee to Bank in an amount equal to:

(a) The difference between:

(i) The interest rate on this Note on the principal amount which the undersigned intends to prepay; and

(ii) The return which Bank could obtain if it used the amount of the prepayment of principal to purchase at bid price regularly quoted United States Securities having a maturity date most closely coinciding with the maturity date of this Note and those United States Securities were held by Bank until the maturity date of this Note ("Yield Rate");

(b) The above difference, if greater than zero, is multiplied by a fraction, the numerator of which is the days in the period between the date of prepayment and the maturity date of this Note and the denominator of which is 360 days;

(c) The above product is multiplied by the amount of the principal so prepaid (except in the event that principal payments are required and have been made as scheduled under the terms of the Note, then the amount multiplied in this Paragraph shall be the lesser of the amount prepaid or 50 percent of the total of the amount prepaid and the amount of principal scheduled under the terms of this Note to be outstanding at the maturity date of this Note);

(d) The above product is then discounted to present value using the Yield Rate as the annual discount factor.

In no event shall Bank be obligated to make any payment or refund to the undersigned, nor shall the undersigned be entitled to any setoff or other claim against Bank, should the return which Bank could obtain under the prepayment formula exceed the interest that Bank would have received if no prepayment had occurred.

All prepayments shall include payment of accrued interest on the principal amount prepaid and shall be applied to payment of interest before application to principal.

Such prepayments, if any, shall also be payable if prepayment occurs as the result of the acceleration of the principal by Bank because of any default hereunder by the undersigned. If, following such an acceleration, all or any portion of the unpaid principal is satisfied, whether through sale of the property encumbered by any security agreement or other agreement securing this Note, if any, at a foreclosure held thereunder or through the tender of payment at any time following acceleration, but prior to such a foreclosure sale, then satisfaction of that portion of the principal shall be deemed an evasion of the prepayment prohibition set forth above, and Bank, automatically and without notice or demand, shall be entitled to receive, concurrently with that satisfaction the prepayment fee set forth above, and the obligation to pay that prepayment fee shall be added to the principal of this Note.

THE UNDERSIGNED HEREBY ACKNOWLEDGES AND AGREES THAT BANK WOULD NOT LEND TO THE UNDERSIGNED THE LOAN EVIDENCED BY THIS NOTE WITHOUT THE UNDERSIGNED'S AGREEMENT AS SET FORTH ABOVE IN THIS PARAGRAPH, TO PAY BANK A PREPAYMENT FEE UPON THE SATISFACTION OF ALL OR ANY PORTION OF THE PRINCIPAL BEARING INTEREST AT A FIXED INTEREST RATE FOLLOWING THE ACCELERATION OF THE MATURITY DATE HEREOF BY REASON OF A DEFAULT HEREUNDER. THE UNDERSIGNED HAS CAUSED THOSE PERSONS SIGNING THIS NOTE ON THE UNDERSIGNED'S BEHALF TO SEPARATELY INITIAL THE AGREEMENT CONTAINED IN THIS PARAGRAPH BY PLACING THEIR INITIALS BELOW:

INITIALS: _____

A determination by Bank as to the amount, if any, payable pursuant to this Paragraph, shall be conclusive on the undersigned.

2. Changes, Legal Restrictions. If Bank determines at any time in the future that the effect of any applicable law, rule or regulation, or change therein, or any change in the interpretation or administration thereof by any court or other governmental authority, central bank, or comparable agency charged with the interpretation or administration therefor, or compliance by Bank (or its lending office) with any request or directive (whether or not having the force of law) of any such authority, central bank or comparable agency is to increase the cost to Bank (or its lending office), of making or maintaining this loan or to reduce the amount of any sum received or receivable by Bank (or its lending office) with respect thereto by an amount deemed by Bank to be material and such cost or reduction is not already reflected in the interest rate charged by Bank for this loan, then the undersigned shall pay to Bank, on demand, such additional amounts as Bank may determine to be required to compensate Bank for that additional cost or reduction. Any additional payment under this clause will be completed from the effective date at which such additional costs have to be borne by Bank. For the purposes of this clause, the determination of Bank shall be conclusive if made reasonably and in good faith.

3. Amendment. Except as provided above, this Addendum and the provisions contained herein cannot be changed, modified or amended except by a written instrument executed by both the undersigned and the holder of this Note.

Scope

This chapter discusses, and provides forms for use in, advising a business owner about cash-flow financing transactions that are secured by, or involve the sale (or purported sale) of, the accounts receivable of the business. These transactions are of two general kinds:

- Ordinary accounts receivable financing, in which the business owner borrows against the accounts receivable, and the lender closely monitors operations of the business and usually collects loan repayments from the operating receipts on a daily basis.
- Factoring (also called discounting), in which the business owner sells the accounts receivable to a finance company (which may resell the accounts to another) that undertakes to collect from the account debtors and may have limited recourse to the business owner.

DIVISION III: COMMERCIAL TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 44 ACCOUNTS RECEIVABLE FINANCING AND FACTORING
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

19-44 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 44.20

§ 44.20 Accounts Receivable

[1] Nature of Accounts Receivable

A business owner's right to receive payment for particular goods or services that were sold on credit is commonly called an account receivable. The financial industry often refers to accounts receivable as just "receivables." Accounts receivable can be used by the cash-strapped business owner to raise short-term operating funds, through borrowing against the accounts or selling the accounts to a finance company, because the business owner needs money currently and cannot wait for the customers to pay what they owe.

Typically, commercial banks offer loans to be secured by accounts receivable. Other companies and individual financiers make a business of buying accounts receivable; this business is known as factoring. However, banks may engage in factoring as well as lending [see, e.g., 12 C.F.R. § 225.28(a), (b)(1)] (factoring is properly incidental to banking or managing or controlling banks and so may be engaged-in by bank holding company or its subsidiary)], and many finance companies can engage in lending as well as factoring. Industrial loan companies that engage in factoring or accounts-receivable financing are subject to special regulation [see § 44.22[5]].

A company in the factoring business may be called, or call itself, by any of numerous descriptive names, including but not limited to "finance company," "factoring company," "financial services company," "capital corporation," "credit corporation," and "acceptance corporation."

[2] Financing Arrangements

For the business owner, borrowing against accounts receivable entails not only the cost of paying interest, but also the administrative burden of undergoing the lender's oversight of the business operations. In normal cases, the lender monitors the business on a regular basis, usually daily, and regularly takes part of the receipts as repayment of the loan. Thus, the lender is in a position to act quickly (to sell the accounts securing the loan) in the event that receipts decline or the business operations otherwise deteriorate to the point where the lender feels threatened with a loss. The interest charge to the business owner would reflect not only the normal cost of borrowing but also the cost to the lender of overseeing the business operations.

Selling the accounts receivable [see § 44.22] entails virtually no administrative burden on the business owner. However, the business owner's total cost of funds usually is higher than for borrowing. The cost will reflect the debt-collection burden, which is being passed from the business owner, as well as the bad debt risk, and a present value discount of the aggregate face amount of the accounts. (Factoring and the selling of accounts receivable are sometimes spoken of in terms of "discounting" those accounts; see, for example, the Penal Code provisions cited in § 44.01[1][c] as well as Rev. & Tax. Code § 24438(c)(5), which defines a "lending or finance business" of a bank or other corporation as a "business of making loans or purchasing or discounting accounts receivable, notes, or installment obligations.")

Factoring can help to solve a business owner's cash flow problem if business borrowing has reached the owner's credit ceiling with regular lenders, or the business owner cannot get regular loans at all. Factoring is available even to a business in Chapter 11 bankruptcy proceedings; since factoring is not lending, the business owner's creditworthiness is not an issue (but the finance company will require that the customers of the business have good credit ratings). Moreover, the processing time for a factoring transaction is relatively short, compared with normal loan-approval procedures, so that a business owner in need of cash without delay can get it fairly fast from a factoring company. On the other hand, factoring may not be available if the business is very small or does not generate a steady stream of invoices to reliable customers.

DIVISION III: COMMERCIAL TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 44 ACCOUNTS RECEIVABLE FINANCING AND FACTORING
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

19-44 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 44.21

§ 44.21 Accounts Receivable Financing

[1] UCC Application

[a] Division 9

In the terminology of Division 9 of the Commercial Code, accounts receivable are simply accounts [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(2); [b], below]. In the case of normal accounts-receivable financing, Division 9 will apply because (but only because) the parties will create a security interest by contract [Com. Code § 9109(a)(1)]. For discussion of creating and perfecting the security interest, see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions .

Division 9 applies directly to a sale of accounts [Com. Code § 9109(a)(3)], which is the essential element in a factoring transaction [see § 44.22].

[b] Definition of Accounts

The term "account" is defined in Division 9 as a right to payment of a monetary obligation, whether or not earned by performance, when that obligation is for any of the following [Com. Code § 9102(a)(2)]:

- Is for property that has been or is to be sold, leased, licensed, assigned, or otherwise disposed of;
- Is for services rendered or to be rendered;
- Is for a policy of insurance issued or to be issued;
- Is for a secondary obligation incurred or to be incurred;
- Is for energy provided or to be provided;
- Is for the use or hire of a vessel under a charter or other contract;

- Arose out of the use of a credit or charge card or information contained on or for use with the card, or
- Arose as winnings in a lottery or other game of chance operated or sponsored by a state, governmental unit of a state, or person licensed or authorized to operate the game by a state or governmental unit of a state.

The term "account" also includes health care insurance receivables [Com. Code § 9102(a)(2); see Com. Code § 9102(a)(46) (definition)].

A person obligated on an account is called an "account debtor" in Division 9 [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(3)].

Transactions involving the following rights to payment of a monetary obligation are governed by laws apart from the Commercial Code or by provisions of that code apart from the Division 9 provisions concerning accounts. Therefore, "account" in Division 9 does not include any of the following items [Com. Code § 9102(a)(2); see [c], below]:

- Rights to payment evidenced by chattel paper [see [c][i], below] or an instrument [see [c][v], below].
- Commercial tort claims [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(13) (definition)].
- Deposit accounts [see [c][ii], below].
- Investment property [see [c][vi], below].
- Letter of credit rights or letters of credit [see [c][vii] below].
- Rights to payment for money or funds advanced or sold--except that accounts do include rights arising out of the use of a credit card or charge card or information contained on or for use with the card.

[c] Payment Rights Other Than Accounts

[i] Chattel Paper

Accounts, under Division 9 of the Commercial Code, are different from chattel paper [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(2)]. Under Division 9, chattel paper includes any record or records evidencing both a monetary obligation and one of the following, provided (in every case) the monetary obligation is secured by the goods or owed under the lease of the goods, including a monetary obligation with respect to software used in the goods [Com. Code § 9102(a)(11)]:

- A security interest in specific goods.
- A security interest in specific goods and software used in the goods.
- A security interest in specific goods and license of software used in the goods.
- A lease of specific goods.
- A lease of specific goods and license of software used in the goods.

In other words, when a transaction, which could result in creation of an account, involves the creation of a security interest in specific goods, the provisions of Division 9 concerning accounts will not apply, and the provisions concerning chattel paper will apply instead. For discussion of chattel paper transactions under Division 9, and related forms, see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions .

Chattel paper does not include charters or other contracts involving the use or hire of a vessel, or records evidencing a right to or payment arising out of the use of a credit or charge card or information for use with the card [Com. Code § 9102(a)(11)].

[ii] Deposit Accounts

Deposit accounts, which are not "accounts" for purposes of Division 9 of the Commercial Code [Com. Code § 9102(a)(2)], comprise demand, time, savings, passbook, and similar accounts maintained with a bank [Com. Code § 9102(a)(11)]. Some provisions in Division 9 concern security interests in deposit accounts. The rights and liabilities of deposit-account holders and their banks are governed by laws other than Division 9. For discussion, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 95, Banks, Deposits, and Checks (Matthew Bender).

Investment property and accounts evidenced by an instrument are not deposit accounts [Com. Code § 9102(a)(29)].

[iii] General Intangibles and Payment Intangibles

Division 9 of the Commercial Code contains provisions concerning "general intangibles." General intangibles are items of personal property, including things in action, that are not tangible--except for accounts (and a number of other specified items) [Com. Code § 9102(a)(2), (42)]. Thus, a provision of Division 9 concerning general intangibles would not necessarily apply to accounts and account debtors.

General intangibles include payment intangibles. A "payment intangible" is a general intangible under which a debtor's principal obligation is a monetary obligation [Com. Code § 9102(a)(61)].

[iv] Goods

Any provision concerning goods in Division 9 of the Commercial Code would not apply to accounts and account debtors, since the definition of "goods," for purposes of Division 9, excludes accounts [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(44)] (as well as other items mentioned in the foregoing and following subsections).

[v] Instruments

Instruments, which are excluded from the definition of accounts subject to Division 9 of the Commercial Code [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(2)], comprise not only negotiable instruments, but also all other writings evidencing a right to the payment of a monetary obligation, except for security agreements and leases, if the writing is of a type that in the ordinary course of business is transferred by delivery with any necessary endorsement or assignment [Com. Code § 9102(a)(47)]. Some provisions in Division 9 concern security interests in instruments. The rights and liabilities of issuers and holders of instruments are governed by other law. For discussion, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 385, Negotiable Instruments (Matthew Bender).

Instruments do not include investment property, letters of credit, or writings that evidence a right to payment arising out of the use of a credit or charge card or information contained on or for use with the card [Com. Code § 9102(a)(47)].

[vi] Investment Property

Investment property, which is excluded from the definition of accounts subject to Division 9 of the Commercial Code [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(2)], would be a security, whether certificated or uncertificated, or security entitlement, securities account, commodity contract, or commodity account [Com. Code § 9102(a)(49)]. Some provisions in Division 9 concern security interests in investment property. Transactions involving investment property are discussed in Ch. 6K, Nonissuer Transactions in Investment Securities .

[vii] Letter of Credit Rights

A letter of credit right, which is excluded from the definition of accounts subject to Division 9 of the Commercial Code [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(2)], is a right to payment and performance under a letter of credit, whether or not the beneficiary has demanded, or is at the time entitled to demand, payment or performance. The term does not include the right of a beneficiary to demand payment or performance under a letter of credit [Com. Code § 9102(a)(51)]. For discussion of letters of credit, see Ch. 56, Letters of Credit and Electronic Fund Transfers .

[2] Security Interest in Accounts

[a] Assignment of Accounts

In normal accounts receivable financing, the lender commonly will not require the business owner to make specific assignments of the accounts that stand as collateral. The financing agreement typically requires the business owner to forward the payments made by the account debtors (the customers of the business) to the lender, and the result is the same, in practice, as if the accounts had been assigned, provided the account debtors make their payments.

The lender normally will take a general assignment of the accounts, however. If the accounts are assigned to the lender, then either the lender or the business owner can elect to use a statutory notification procedure to divert the account debtors' payments away from the business owner and to the lender instead. In general, when an account has been assigned, the account debtor may discharge the account obligation by paying the assignor--the business owner, in the present context--until, but not after, the account debtor receives a notification, authenticated by either the assignor or the assignee (lender), that the amount due or to become due has been assigned and that payment is to be made to the assignee. After receipt of the notification, the account debtor may discharge the obligation by paying the assignee and may not discharge the obligation by paying the assignor [Com. Code § 9406(a)].

In a factoring transaction, on the other hand, the accounts are routinely and specifically assigned, and the notification to account debtors is routinely made [see § 44.22[1][d]]. Usually the business owner sends this notification along with, or as part of, a regular invoice or statement of account to the customer.

Except in the case of an assignment constituting the sale of an account [Com. Code § 9209(c)], if there is no outstanding secured obligation, and the secured party is not committed to make advances, incur obligations, or otherwise give value [Com. Code § 9209(a)], then within 10 days after receiving an authenticated demand by the debtor (the business owner, in this context), the secured party must send to any account debtor that has received notification of an assignment to the secured party as assignee under Com. Code § 9406(a) an authenticated record that releases the account debtor from any further obligation to the secured party [Com. Code § 9209(b)]. For a form for a demand, see § 44.201.

[b] Termination Statement

If a financing statement covers accounts as to which the account debtor, or another person obligated, has discharged the underlying obligation, and the secured party receives an authenticated demand from the debtor, then within 20 days after receiving that demand, the secured party must cause the secured party of record (usually the same party) to send to the debtor a termination statement for the financing statement or file the termination statement in the filing office [Com. Code § 9513(c)(2)]. For discussion and forms for a demand and the termination statement (Form UCC-3), see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions .

DIVISION III: COMMERCIAL TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 44 ACCOUNTS RECEIVABLE FINANCING AND FACTORING
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

19-44 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 44.22

§ 44.22 Factoring

[1] Nature of Transaction

[a] Financing as Essential Purpose

A factoring transaction is usually described as a sale of accounts receivable to a financier or finance company--called the factor (and the business owner usually is called a client). The transaction is better described as a sale of nothing more than the business owner's financial interest in the accounts. The finance company buys the right to collect from the account debtors; and the company then retains a fee out of what is collected and transmits the remainder to the business owner. The fee, sometimes called a commission, is the amount by which the accounts are discounted. The transaction is a financing transaction because the finance company does not step into the business owner's shoes relative to the account debtors, but only steps between those parties for the limited purpose of taking-over the debt-collection part of their relationship. (The factor is not a mere debt collector, however; the collection is done in the factor's own interest, not as an agent of the business owner.)

EXAMPLE:

Epsilon Distributing Company makes a factoring agreement for a 70-percent advance and a 5-percent fee. Epsilon subsequently ships a product to a customer and sends an invoice for $10,000 with payment due in 30 days; and the invoice carries a notification that payment is to be made directly to the finance company. A copy of the invoice is sent to the finance company. The finance company verifies with Epsilon's customer that the product was received and accepted and that payment will be sent to the finance company when the invoice comes due. The finance company immediately advances $7,000 to Epsilon and makes an accounting entry for a $3,000 reserve. One month later, the customer pays $10,000 to the finance company. The finance company retains its 5-percent fee ($500) and forwards the rest of the reserve ($2,500) to Epsilon.

The finance company will structure the transaction so that it clearly is neither a loan to the business owner nor an assumption by the finance company of the business owner's rights and liabilities relative to the account debtors. If the transaction could be characterized as a loan, then the finance company would be subject to many undesirable legal requirements, restrictions, and consequences prescribed for lenders; in particular, the company would be subject to the usury law [see, e.g., Baruch Inv. Co. v. Huntoon (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 485, 492, 65 Cal. Rptr. 131 ("accounts receivable financing is an uncertain area in the usury law and no exact tests have been formulated. The question whether a transaction is a sale or a usurious loan is one of fact and the trier of fact should look to substance rather than to form.")], and its fees (commissions, discounts) would be treated as interest income. Moreover, the business owner would then have a debt, whereas avoidance of debt is one of the sought-after advantages of factoring. If the transaction is properly structured, the finance company's factoring fee is not interest, which is a charge for the use of money, but is an administrative fee, which is charged for assuming the credit risk and the collection burden on the factored accounts.

If the transaction could be characterized as the finance company's assumption of the business owner's rights and liabilities, on the other hand, then the finance company would become, in effect, a principal in the business, which both parties would view as an undesirable result, for many reasons.

Therefore, in a factoring transaction, the finance company assumes only enough risk to avoid being a lender or a principal, namely, nothing more than the business owner's credit risk that the account debts will not be paid because of financial circumstances (such as a debtor's bankruptcy). All other risks arising from the business relationships underlying the accounts--that an account debtor might rescind a sale, that there might be a warranty claim, and so forth--remain with the business owner.

Factoring is sometimes described as "off balance sheet financing" because it is a device for converting accounts receivable into immediate cash without increasing the business's debt load.

[b] Types of Factoring

- "Accounts receivable factoring" is the purchase of a business's accounts receivable, normally without recourse. The finance company assumes the credit risk on approved accounts, but the business owner assumes the risk for disputes with customers. The finance company places emphasis on the credit quality of the account debtors.
- "Advance factoring" is this type, in which the finance company advances payment to the business owner, before the maturity date (usually an average maturity date) for the factored accounts.
- "Maturity factoring" is a transaction in which the finance company handles the credit and collection functions, and remits to the business owner each month on the average maturity date for the factored accounts.

In the financial industry, sometimes a distinction is made between "retail factoring" for a business with retail customers and "wholesale factoring" for a business that sells to manufacturers or distributors.

An exporting business may have two factors, one for domestic receivables and another for foreign receivables. This arrangement may be called "refactoring." That term could be applied as well when financiers and finance companies buy and resell factored accounts, in what can be described as inter-factor factoring transactions [see generally, e.g., Advance Industrial Finance Co. v. Western Equities, Inc. (1959) 173 Cal. App. 2d 420, 423, 343 P.2d 408]. It is possible, however, for a finance company to be in the same position as some other kind of business, with respect to selling its accounts receivable in a factoring transaction; or possibly a finance company selling its accounts receivable is simply selling assets deemed no longer worth holding [see, e.g., Coronet Credit Corp. v. West Thrift Co. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 631, 635, 53 Cal. Rptr. 433 (sale of conditional sales contracts, personal loan accounts, and chattel mortgages that selling company had charged-off as being of no value)]. In other words, a sale of accounts receivable by one finance company to another is not necessarily a resale of factored accounts.

[c] Limited Recourse (Chargeback)

Since the finance company will not have any control of the relationship between the business owner and the account debtors, the company will demand protection from the risk of loss arising from that relationship, apart from the credit risk. An account debtor could stop making payments because of a dispute with the business owner (for instance, regarding the quality of goods sold). This would be unrelated to the credit risk that the finance company assumed, and the company will want a right to rescind the factoring transaction as to that troublesome account, which the company would charge back to the business owner. (A chargeback right triggers a provision in Division 9 of the Commercial Code [see Com. Code § 9607(c); [2][e][ii], below].) In the event of a chargeback, the business owner is bound, in the usual case, to reimburse the amount that the finance company paid for the account; and if it is not reimbursed, that amount can be withheld from the aggregate reserves debited to the business owner on the finance company's books [see, e.g., Southern Cal. Thrift & Loan v. Sylvania Elec. Products, Inc. (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 642, 648, 56 Cal. Rptr. 706 ; Peskin v. Herron (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 482, 486, 26 Cal. Rptr. 821 (trial court found that it was customary practice of finance company, and agreed to by all the parties, that finance company would apply the reserve account to satisfy any uncollected accounts receivable upon which finance company had recourse); Peskin v. Phinney (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 632, 634-635, 6 Cal. Rptr. 389 (plaintiff financier factored accounts for lumber company, and 20 per cent of each account's face value was held by plaintiff in a general reserve fund to cover the plaintiff's costs, including losses from noncollection, involved in any dispute that might arise over the quality and quantity of lumber delivered to any customer); see also Produce Clearings v. Butler (1964) 231 Cal. App. 2d 494, 497, 42 Cal. Rptr. 114 (plaintiff finance company, on discovering that business owner had assigned some fictitious accounts under factoring agreement, recouped plaintiff's losses by charging the losses against a reserve fund held by plaintiff under the provisions of the factoring agreement)].

An attempt to get protection against the credit risk, however, by the use of any recourse device such as a guaranty of payment or a chargeback provision based simply on nonpayment, would put the finance company in jeopardy of an adverse finding that the transaction is really a loan, and possibly in violation of the usury law [see, e.g., Milana v. Credit Discount Co. (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 335, 339-342, 163 P.2d 869 ; Baruch Inv. Co. v. Huntoon (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 485, 494, 65 Cal. Rptr. 131); Axe v. Commercial Credit Corp. (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 216, 220-222, 38 Cal. Rptr. 558 ; but see Investors Thrift v. AMA Corp. (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 205, 207, 63 Cal. Rptr. 157 (Milana opinion distinguished); Advance Industrial Finance Co. v. Western Equities, Inc. (1959) 173 Cal. App. 2d 420, 428-429, 343 P.2d 408 (inter-factor transaction between finance companies, which had usual form of factoring transaction, was not really loan transaction merely because buying company was protected by guaranty of payment of factored accounts; Milana opinion distinguished)].

On the other hand, the finance company could safely use a recourse device, such as guaranty, if the factoring agreement clearly limited its use to accounts that the finance company bought without preapproval, and as long as the finance company strictly confined its use to that context [see Refinance Corp. v. Northern Lumber Sales (1958) 163 Cal. App. 2d 73, 80, 329 P.2d 109] .

[d] Notification of Assignment

The finance company will want each account debtor to be notified that the account has been assigned to the company, so that payments on the account will be sent directly to the finance company. Unless there has been proper notification of an assignment of an account, an account debtor has no legal duty to send payments to the assignee [see Com. Code § 9406(a); [4], below]. Usually the business owner sends this notification along with, or as part of, a regular invoice or statement to the account debtor [see § 44.204].

The fact that notification of the assignment was given to the account debtors would support a finding that the arrangement in question was a factoring transaction, not a lending transaction [see Baruch Inv. Co. v. Huntoon (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 485, 493, 65 Cal. Rptr. 131 ("but notice of assignment and collection by the 'buyer' are evidentiary factors for the trier of fact to consider in making its determination. Notification normally indicates a sale, and non-notification normally indicates a loan."}).

[2] UCC Application

[a] Sale of Accounts

Division 9 of the Commercial Code applies to a sale of accounts [Com. Code § 9109(a)(3)], which is the essential element in a factoring transaction. However, the provisions of Com. Code § 9601 et seq., which govern default, generally do not apply [see Com. Code § 9601(g); [e], below]. Division 9 does not apply to any of the following similar transactions:

- A sale of accounts as part of a sale of the business out of which they arose [Com. Code § 9109(d)(4); see Ch. 17, Buying and Selling a Business or Professional Practice].
- An assignment of accounts for the purpose of collection [Com. Code § 9109(d)(5); see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 60, Assignments (Matthew Bender)].
- An assignment of a single account to an assignee in full or partial satisfaction of a preexisting indebtedness [Com. Code § 9109(d)(7); see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 6, Accord and Satisfaction (Matthew Bender)].

Once accounts are sold, they become "collateral" for purposes of Division 9 [Com. Code § 9102(a)(12)(B)].

In general, except as otherwise provided in Com. Code § 9406 [see [4], below], unless otherwise agreed in a sale of goods, all rights of either seller or buyer can be assigned except when the assignment would materially change the duty of the other party, or increase materially the burden or risk imposed on the other party by his or her contract, or impair materially the other party's chance of obtaining return performance [Com. Code § 2210(2)].

[b] Seller's Status

A seller of accounts is treated as a "debtor" for purposes of Division 9 of the Commercial Code [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(28)(B)]. In general a debtor in that context is a person having any interest, other than a security interest or a lien, in collateral, whether or not that person is an obligor [Com. Code § 9102(a)(28)(A)].

[c] Buyer's Status

The interest of a buyer of accounts is a "security interest" (an interest in personal property or fixtures that secures payment or performance of an obligation), for purposes of Division 9 of the Commercial Code [Com. Code § 1201(36)(a)]. Therefore, the buyer is a secured party [Com. Code § 9102(a)(72)(D)].

[d] Effect of Possession of Collateral

After a sale of accounts, the accounts constitute collateral in the possession of the secured party for purposes of Division 9 of the Commercial Code. The general duty of a secured party in possession--which is to use reasonable care in the custody and preservation of the collateral [Com. Code § 9207(a)]-is not imposed in this case unless the buyer, as the secured party, is entitled under an agreement either (1) to charge back uncollected collateral or (2) otherwise to have full or limited recourse against the seller of the accounts, as the debtor, or against a secondary obligor based on the nonpayment or other default of an account debtor or other obligor on the collateral [Com. Code § 9207(d)(1)].

The buyer, as the secured party, does not have other duties normally imposed, or certain rights conferred, on a secured party in possession [see Com. Code § 9207(c),(d)(2)], except to whatever extent the parties' agreement created such rights or duties. Some general rules affecting the parties' interests also will not be applied [see Com. Code § 9207(b), (d)(2)], except to whatever extent the parties' agreement reiterated those rules.

[e] Rules After Default

[i] No Duties Imposed on Buyer

Com. Code § 9601 provides, confusingly, that except as otherwise provided in Com. Code § 9607(c) [see [ii], below], "this part" imposes no duties on a secured party that is a buyer of accounts [Com. Code § 9601(g)]. The object of that reference to "this part" is obscure, since the Commercial Code does not contain units denominated as parts, but apparently it is Chapter 6 of Division 9, governing default.

[ii] Effect of Having Recourse

The buyer of the accounts, as a secured party, has a statutory duty to proceed in a commercially reasonable manner when undertaking to collect from or enforce an obligation of an account debtor or other person obligated on collateral, if the buyer is entitled to charge back uncollected collateral or otherwise to have full or limited recourse against the debtor or a secondary obligor [Com. Code § 9607(c); cf. Western Decor & Furnishings Industries, Inc. v. Bank of America (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 293, 304-305, 154 Cal. Rptr. 287 (applying former Com. Code § 9502(2)(a); evidence supported finding that secured lender acted in commercially reasonable manner)].

[iii] No Surplus or Deficiency

Despite the preclusive language of Com. Code § 9601(g) [see [i], above], there is an additional applicable rule, twice stated, in Chapter 6 of Division 9. If the underlying transaction is a sale of accounts, the debtor is not entitled to any surplus, and the obligor is not liable for any deficiency. In addition, Code Civ. Proc. § 701.040(b), relating to the payment of proceeds, applies only if the security agreement provides that the debtor is entitled to any surplus [Com. Code §§ 9608(b), 9615(e)]. This rule is consistent with the intended effect of a factoring transaction and the usual lack of recourse for the buyer of accounts.

[3] Avoiding Defenses

[a] Account Debtor's Agreement to Waive Defenses

The following rules are subject to any law other than Division 9 of the Commercial Code insofar as that other law establishes a different rule for an account debtor who is an individual and who incurred the obligation primarily for personal, family, or household purposes [Com. Code § 9403(e)].

In general, an agreement between an account debtor and an assignor not to assert against an assignee any claim or defense that the account debtor may have against the assignor is enforceable by an assignee that takes an assignment for value [see Com. Code §§ 3303(a), 9403(a) (value defined)], in good faith, without notice of a claim of a property or possessory right to the property assigned, and without notice of a defense or claim in recoupment of the type that may be asserted against a person entitled to enforce a negotiable instrument under Com. Code § 3305(a) [Com. Code § 9403(b)]. This does not apply to defenses of a type that may be asserted against a holder in due course of a negotiable instrument under Com. Code § 3305(b) [Com. Code § 9403(c)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 55, Negotiable Instruments .

In a consumer transaction, if a record evidences the account debtor's obligation, and any law other than Division 9 of the Commercial Code requires that the record include a statement to the effect that the rights of an assignee are subject to claims or defenses that the account debtor could assert against the original obligee, but the record does not include such a statement, then the record has the same effect as if the record included such a statement, and the account debtor may assert against an assignee those claims and defenses that would have been available if the record included such a statement [Com. Code § 9403(d)]. Except to that extent, the rules in the preceding paragraph do not displace any law other than Division 9 that gives effect to an agreement by an account debtor not to assert a claim or defense against an assignee [Com. Code § 9403(f)].

[b] Absence of Agreement to Waive Defenses

The following rules are subject to any law other than Division 9 of the Commercial Code insofar as that other law establishes a different rule for an account debtor who is an individual and who incurred the obligation primarily for personal, family, or household purposes [Com. Code § 9404(c)].

In general, unless an account debtor has made an enforceable agreement not to assert defenses or claims, the rights of an assignee are subject to both of the following [but see Com. Code § 9404(e) (section does not apply to assignment of health care insurance receivable)]:

- All terms of the agreement between the account debtor and assignor and any defense or claim in recoupment arising from the transaction that gave rise to the contract [Com. Code § 9404(a)(1)]; and
- Any other defense or claim of the account debtor against the assignor that accrues before the account debtor receives a notification of the assignment authenticated by the assignor or the assignee [Com. Code § 9404(a)(2); see [4], below].

The claim of an account debtor against an assignor may be asserted against an assignee only to reduce the amount the account debtor owes [Com. Code § 9404(b)].

In a consumer transaction, if a record evidences the account debtor's obligation, and law other than Division 9 requires that the record include a statement to the effect that the account debtor's recovery against an assignee with respect to claims and defenses against the assignor may not exceed amounts paid by the account debtor under the record, but the record does not include such a statement, then the extent to which a claim of an account debtor against the assignor may be asserted against an assignee is determined as if the record included such a statement [Com. Code § 9404(d)].

[c] Effect of Modified or Substituted Account Debt

In general, a modification of or substitution for an assigned contract is effective against an assignee if made in good faith. The assignee acquires corresponding rights under the modified or substituted contract. The assignment may provide, nevertheless, that the modification or substitution is a breach of contract by the assignor [Com. Code § 9405(a); but see Com. Code § 9405(d) (section does not apply to assignment of health care insurance receivable)]. These rules apply to the extent that either the right to payment under an assigned contract has not been fully earned by performance or the right to payment has been fully earned by performance and the account debtor has not received effective notification of the assignment [Com. Code § 9405(b); see [4], below].

The above rules are subject to any law other than Division 9 of the Commercial Code insofar as that other law establishes a different rule for an account debtor who is an individual and who incurred the obligation primarily for personal, family, or household purposes [Com. Code § 9405(c)].

[4] Notification to Account Debtors

The rules discussed in this subsection are subject to any law other than Division 9 of the Commercial Code insofar as that other law establishes a different rule for an account debtor who is an individual and who incurred the obligation primarily for personal, family, or household purposes [Com. Code § 9406(h)].

In general, after an assignment of an account, the account debtor may discharge the obligation by paying the assignor until, but not after, the account debtor receives a notification, authenticated by the assignor or the assignee, that the amount due or to become due has been assigned and that payment is to be made to the assignee. After receipt of the notification, the account debtor may discharge the obligation by paying the assignee and may not discharge the obligation by paying the assignor [Com. Code § 9406(a)]. If requested by the account debtor, an assignee must seasonably furnish reasonable proof that the assignment has been made. Unless the assignee complies, the account debtor may discharge the obligation by paying the assignor, even if the account debtor has received a proper notification [Com. Code § 9406(c)].

A term in an agreement between the account debtor and an assignor is ineffective to the extent that it does either of the following [Com. Code § 9406(d)]:

- Prohibits, restricts, or requires the consent of the account debtor to the assignment or transfer of, or the creation, attachment, perfection, or enforcement of a security interest in, the account; or
- Provides that the assignment or transfer or the creation, attachment, perfection, or enforcement of the security interest may give rise to a default, breach, right of recoupment, claim, defense, termination, right of termination, or remedy under the account.

Thus, an assignment of accounts will not be precluded even if the business owner's terms to customers purportedly would prevent it.

[5] Limitation on Industrial Loan Company

Industrial loan companies are governed by Division 7 of the Financial Code [see Fin. Code § 18000 et seq.]. No industrial loan company that has investment certificates outstanding may engage in factoring or accounts receivable financing with any borrower or client unless all of the following requirements are met [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 40.603]:

- The company must have within its organization as an officer or employee at least one person possessing no less than five years of responsible experience in factoring or accounts-receivable financing [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 40.603(a)].
- The company must establish a program for field audits or examinations of client borrowers to establish the validity, quality, and quantity of the collateral assigned to the company as security and must conduct such an audit or examination of each client borrower at least once every three months [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 40.603(b)].
- The company generally must require that all payments on any particular account must be made to a lock box or a post office box that is under its control and management if the account debtor (business owner's customer) is not notified of the assignment of the account to the company (called a case of nonnotification). This is not required if the amount advanced to the business owner is less than $20,000 and is also 100-percent secured by real property or personal property of a kind listed in 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 40.612 (including tangible property such as vehicles, boats, and livestock as well as intangibles such as insurance policies and tradable securities), and the company requires that any payments made to the business owner must be forwarded in kind to the company [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 40.603(c)].

[6] Federal Regulation

Since factoring is the purchase of accounts receivable, it is not subject to the Equal Credit Opportunity Act [15 U.S.C. §

1601 et seq.] or Regulation B [12 C.F.R. pt. 202]. However, if there is a credit extension incident to the factoring arrangement, then certain notification rules and records-retention rules apply [see 12 C.F.R. §§ 202.9(a)(3), 202.12(b)(5)], as do other relevant sections of the act and regulation [see 12 C.F.R. pt. 202, supp. I, comment P 9(a)(3)].

§ 44.100 Facts

1. Facts about business that will obtain loan or sell accounts:
 - a. Type of organization (such as corporation or partnership).
 - b. Names and positions of responsible individuals (such as corporate officers or managing partner).
 - c. Accountant contact information.
 - d. Other states or countries, if any, where business operations are conducted.
2. Facts about auxiliary transaction, if any.
3. Facts about existing business debts, including existing loans from intended lender as well as relationships with other lenders.

NOTE:

A lender usually will be reluctant to enter an accounts receivable financing transaction if the business owner has an existing relationship, especially for inventory financing, with another lender. Two or more lenders for a given business almost always will find coexistence to be difficult, because of priority issues and each one's power to disturb the other's relationship with the business owner when moving to protect its own interests. Therefore, a lender with an existing relationship will seldom be receptive if the business owner wants to get financing from another lender, even though that other lender could have only a junior lien. Conversely, a second or new lender normally would not want to be in the position of a junior lienholder and so would be equally unreceptive to a business owner's two-lender financing plan. As a practical matter, the business owner should select the one lender that appears to be best for all anticipated borrowing needs.

4. Facts about existing or potential liens (in addition to other lenders' liens) and liabilities, such as claims regarding:

- a. Warranties on goods and services sold.
- b. Federal, state, and local taxes.
- c. Employees' wages, fringe benefits, and pensions.

5. Whether business owner's insurance covers loss from inability to collect on accounts receivable.

NOTE:

Business insurance can be obtained to protect against loss resulting from the business owner's inability to collect on accounts receivable after underlying records are damaged or destroyed. If the business owner has this kind of insurance coverage, that fact would be of interest to a lender or factor.

6. Facts, if any, tending to show desirability of factoring rather than borrowing to meet business needs such as:

- a. Taking advantage of cash discounts from suppliers.
- b. Meeting payrolls.
- c. Increasing cash flow when business credit does not qualify for ordinary bank financing.
- d. Concentrating on products or services instead of receivables management.
- e. Responding to seasonal demands and opportunities.
- f. Keeping pace with internal growth and expansions.

NOTE:

Manufacturers, distributors, importers, wholesalers, and service companies are typical candidates for factoring. These kinds of businesses tend to have the needs listed above and to generate invoice streams that finance companies are prepared to accept. If the customers are primarily consumers, on the other hand, the business usually will not be considered a good candidate for factoring.

1. Copies of internally generated documents that might have to be submitted to lender or financier [see § 44.110].
2. Copies of official documents that might have to be submitted to lender or financier:
 - a. Certificates from Secretary of State, Franchise Tax Board, Board of Equalization, and other state agencies.
 - b. Certificates from local entities (such as business license certificate).
 - c. Certified copies of filed documents (such as fictitious business name statement) and recorded documents.
3. Accountant's analysis of existing accounts receivable, showing facts that lender or financier will use for determining eligibility of each account:
 - a. Name of account debtor (business customer that bought goods or services on credit).
 - b. Whether sale is subject to rescission at buyer's discretion.
 - c. Whether business owner has continuing exposure on warranty.
 - d. Credit terms of sale, including:
 - (1) Payment schedule.

(2) Security interest, if any.

e. Age of account (that is, how many payments in arrears, and how many months).

f. Customer's creditworthiness.

g. Any past or existing or potential claims against business owner made by customer in connection with this account or any other.

NOTE:

This analysis must be accurate and detailed because the information will provide the principal business basis for the financing decisions to be made by the lender or the factor, as the case may be.

PART III. TRANSACTION GUIDE
B. Procedural Guide to Accounts Financing

19-44 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 44.110

§ 44.110 Drafting and Reviewing Documents

NOTE:

Documents directly related to the loan, including the financing agreement and financing statement, as well as certain related documents such a lien subordination agreement, will be drafted by the lender. Supporting documents will be produced by the business owner.

1. Determine that business owner has supporting documents--documents other than financing agreement, subordination or termination agreements respecting existing liens, and financing statement--that are in order and not only allow or facilitate transaction but also raise no impediment:

- a. Copies of organizational documents such as articles of incorporation or partnership agreement [see Ch. 2, Formation of Corporations ; Ch. 12C, Limited Liability Companies ; Ch. 15, General Partnerships ; Ch. 15A, Formation of Limited Partnerships].
- b. Copies of filed fictitious business name statements [see Ch. 1A, Role of Counsel in Starting a New Business].
- c. Authorization documents such as board resolutions and certificates of incumbency for officers [see Ch. 5, Directors Meetings, Actions, and Resolutions].
- d. Pertinent financial records and statements, particularly aged-accounts list [see Ch. 7, Corporate Records and Reports].
- e. Opinion letters from business owner's attorney (for example, regarding any existing or potential legal liabilities) and accountant (for example, regarding any existing or potential tax liabilities).

f. Guaranty agreements, if any, and related documents (such as opinion letter from guarantor's attorney or accountant) [see Ch. 79, Suretyship, Guaranty, and Indemnity].

g. Auxiliary transaction documents, if any.

NOTE:

If the lender requires a guarantor, then the guarantor might have to provide some of the same kinds of documents to be provided by the business owner. If the financing transaction is part of, or legally related to, some other separate transaction (for example, part of a leveraged buy-out of the business), the lender probably will want to review the documents for that other transaction.

2. Determine that appropriate documents have been drafted to terminate or subordinate any existing lien that otherwise would have priority or could interfere with lender's security interest in collateral.

NOTE:

The lender will check available public records to discover, and will require the business owner to disclose, the existence of any liens that would have priority or could interfere. The lender normally will require termination or subordination of any such liens that can be terminated or subordinated, in order to clear the encumbered property for attachment of the lender's lien. This will extend beyond the accounts receivable (which usually will not be subject to any existing lien, except perhaps one in favor of the present lender) to other property that will be covered by the financing agreement as collateral. Failure to displace existing liens could cause a lender to cancel a pending transaction. For discussion and forms relating to priorities between real estate liens, see Ch. 25B, Subordination, Assumption, and Assignment , and relating to priorities between personal property liens, see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions .

3. Determine that financing agreement contains provisions in appropriate language for essential elements of financing transaction:

a. Creation of security interest in accounts, which is to be done as in other contexts for secured transactions; for discussion and forms, see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions .

b. Description of collateral, which lender usually will want to describe in very broad terms so as to include other property in addition to accounts (such as tax refunds and license revenues).

NOTE:

The lender will draw a distinction between eligible accounts and collateral. The loan amount and repayment requirements will be based on the accounts receivable that are acceptable to the lender for that purpose. The collateral securing the loan will comprise not only those accounts but also whatever additional property the lender can identify and pull into the agreement for this purpose. The description of collateral may extend to the business owner's rights as a credit seller under Division 2 of the Commercial Code, which are discussed in Ch. 52, Sales of Goods Under the Uniform Commercial Code .

c. Business owner's promise not to discount, factor, or create competing security interest in, any collateral without lender's consent.

d. Description of eligible accounts receivable on which borrowing formula will be based, including:

- (1) Existing accounts.
- (2) Accounts anticipated to arise from future business.
- (3) Ineligible accounts, which may be ineligible for any number of reasons, such as:
 - (a) Account was created by sale to affiliated buyer.
 - (b) Account is already in arrears.
 - (c) Underlying transaction is not completed.
 - (d) Account debtor may have right of setoff.
 - (e) Collection may prove difficult (for instance, account debtor is in foreign country).

NOTE:

Both parties expect that new accounts will arise from future business; that is generally each party's fundamental reason for consummating the transaction. Therefore, the financing agreement will include appropriate after-acquired property provisions to cover future accounts as both additional collateral and also the basis for the revolving credit (allowing future advances) that the transaction creates.

The lender might require an assignment of accounts, but that is not necessary for creation of a security interest under the Commercial Code. However, assignment would empower the lender to take certain loss-prevention steps if necessary (for example, notifying account debtors to send payments directly to the lender).

e. Business owner's usual representations and warranties regarding each account:

- (1) It is good and valid obligation.
- (2) It represents undisputed debt incurred by account debtor for fixed sum, set forth in invoice for goods delivered or services rendered.
- (3) It is not subject to any defense, offset, or counterclaim.
- (4) It will be paid in full when due.
- (5) Business owner will not compromise or adjust it without lender's prior consent.

f. Borrowing formula, which covers:

- (1) Aggregate dollar amount that can be outstanding at any time.
- (2) Percentage of eligible-accounts value that will be reserved (for example, if reserve is 15 percent, then outstanding dollar amount cannot exceed 85 percent of eligible-accounts value).

NOTE:

Notwithstanding the presence of an overarching collateral description in the agreement, the lender will limit the business owner's available line of credit to some percentage of the aggregate value of eligible accounts; and the unavailable portion is called a reserve.

g. Lender's commitment to advance funds, which could be wholly discretionary (lender will advance funds when and as lender determines) or could be fixed to some extent according to schedule or formula.

NOTE:

In general, if the lender is willing to be committed to a schedule or formula for advancing funds, then the lender will offer that commitment only in exchange for broad covenants, restrictive conditions, and a detailed, lengthy list of events of default.

h. Operations requirements to be imposed on business owner, including:

- (1) Recordkeeping with respect to accounts.
- (2) Custody, preservation, and submittal of any related documents, such as:
 - (a) Invoices.
 - (b) Shipping documents.
 - (c) Credit documents.
 - (d) Reports of collections.
 - (e) Checks, drafts, and warrants.
- (3) Periodic submittal of aged accounts list showing which accounts are in arrears and by how much.
- (4) Procedure for creating new accounts.
- (5) For ordinary accounts receivable financing:
 - (a) Daily processing of payments received on accounts.
 - (b) Daily depositing of account debtors' payments in special deposit account or lockbox at lender's place of business.

NOTE:

The distinguishing feature, and most vital element, of an ordinary accounts receivable financing transaction is the lender's daily monitoring of the payments received by the business owner on customers' accounts. The lender will want to see the actual checks received from the customers; thus the lender will be able to confirm that legitimate accounts exist and are being paid down at an acceptable rate. Funds will be advanced (or not) by the lender on a daily basis (or possibly weekly), according to the agreed-on formula.

Sometimes the lender will undertake a verification plan. It may involve using a fictitious auditing firm as a cover for contacting selected account debtors to get verification of the account details supplied by the business owner. The fictitious name is used to avoid any semblance of a notification of assignment.

(6) For floating lien financing:

- (a) Periodic, usually monthly, reconciliation of accounts receivable and outstanding loan balance.
- (b) Resulting payment to lender, as required by borrowing formula.

NOTE:

Floating lien financing is essentially like ordinary accounts-receivable financing but involves less-intensive monitoring by the lender. The lender generally will not offer this kind of financing except to financially strong businesses with historically sound management. The business owner is trusted to make a monthly reconciliation and send a payment to the lender, according to the borrowing formula; and then the business owner can draw further on the available credit. This is obviously easier than ordinary accounts receivable financing for the business owner. In addition, because of the lender's diminished oversight burden, the cost of borrowing is somewhat lower in this case than in the ordinary case.

- i. Events of default; in addition to those that are common in most contracts, these may include any that are peculiarly necessary in present transaction.

NOTE:

The lender might require that the net worth of the business must be maintained at or above a prescribed amount, for example.

- 4. Determine that financing statement contains appropriate description of collateral, conforming to agreement.

CHAPTER 44 ACCOUNTS RECEIVABLE FINANCING AND FACTORING
PART III. TRANSACTION GUIDE
C. Procedural Guide to Factoring

19-44 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 44.120

§ 44.120 Preliminary Determinations

1. Determine how finance company's payments to business owner are to be structured:

- a. As invoices mature, regardless of whether customers have actually made payments on accounts (called maturity factoring).
- b. Through advances against invoices as they are issued.

NOTE:

The usual factoring practice is that when the business owner generates an invoice for goods sold or services rendered, the finance company "buys" that invoice by advancing the major portion (which could be up to 85 percent) of the amount due. The remainder is called a reserve. The customer eventually pays the invoice amount directly to the finance company, and the finance company then recovers the advance, takes a commission, and forwards or credits the balance to the business owner.

2. Ascertain finance company's procedure for approving credit sales in advance, if factoring transaction covers future sales.

NOTE:

When, as in most cases, the factoring transaction covers future sales, the finance company will want to approve each future sale, insofar as the buyer's creditworthiness is concerned. The business owner's goal should be to have a continuing relationship with the finance company, in which the finance company sets up credit approval guidelines to be applied on the basis of an account debtor's credit rating, so that the business owner need not obtain approval for each and every sale.

3. Determine whether business owner will require advances that finance company will not provide; and in that case, determine also:

- a. Whether finance company would agree to bank or other lender making loan in lieu of advances.
- b. Whether bank or other lender would be willing to make such loan.

NOTE:

It might be necessary to arrange some interim financing in the case of maturity factoring, which would be a specialized accounts receivable loan. The finance company might be able and willing to provide the loan. If not, then a loan might be arranged with a bank or some other lender, which would find security in the factoring transaction (that is, the finance company's obligation to the business owner). This would necessitate a three-way negotiation.

- 4. Determine whether sales of goods are free of liens of manufacturers, previous sellers, and lenders.

NOTE:

Finance companies generally will not factor invoices arising from sales of goods unless the business owner's title to the goods is free of liens.

PART III. TRANSACTION GUIDE
C. Procedural Guide to Factoring

19-44 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 44.121

§ 44.121 Drafting and Reviewing Documents

1. Review factoring agreement for conformity to essential terms of typical agreement.
 - a. Agreement has initial term of one year and will be renewed on annual basis thereafter.
 - b. Business owner assigns substantially all accounts receivable to finance company, typically on nonrecourse basis.
 - c. In advance-factoring agreement, business owner may request advances up to stipulated maximum percentage (which typically is 70-to-85 percent) of eligible net sales.
 - d. Finance company charges fee on net sales factored and interest on amounts advanced at stipulated index rate plus premium.
 - e. Business owner is subject to financial covenants under agreement, including requirement to maintain minimum tangible net worth and minimum working capital.
 - f. Obligations to finance company are collateralized by continuing security interest in all assets of business owner, except fixed assets.
 - g. Obligations may be guaranteed by parent or affiliate and further guaranteed by individuals such as shareholders.

NOTE:

The business owner may have a further agreement with the finance company to open letters of credit to facilitate purchases of inventory, as needed. Letters of credit typically are subject to the finance company's approval and secured by acquired inventories. Open letters of credit customarily may not exceed a stipulated dollar ceiling at any time. For related discussion and forms, see Ch. 56, Letters of Credit and Electronic Fund Transfers .

2. Review formula for determining average maturity date of accounts and subsequent adjustments, if finance company will provide maturity factoring.

NOTE:

The finance company may apply a formula for determining what is called the "average maturity date" of the assigned accounts, which determines the date for payment to the business owner. The finance company will allow for adjustments based on its developing collection experience.

3. Determine whether factoring agreement should include any of following provisions:

NOTE:

The finance company is the secured party, and the business owner is the debtor, in the context of Commercial Code provisions.

- a. Secured party is entitled to charge back uncollected collateral, or secured party is otherwise entitled to full or limited recourse against debtor or secondary obligor based on nonpayment or other default of account debtor or other obligor on collateral.

NOTE:

Unless the buyer of the accounts, as the secured party, is entitled to charge back uncollected collateral or otherwise to have recourse as described, the buyer will have no statutory duty to use reasonable care in the custody and preservation of the collateral in the buyer's possession [see Com. Code § 9207(a), (d)(1)]. It would be very unusual for a factoring agreement to provide for recourse based solely on nonpayment by an account debtor.

- b. Provisions reiterating statutory rules that would not otherwise apply [see Com. Code § 9207(d)(2)]:

(1) Reasonable expenses, including cost of insurance and payment of taxes or other charges, incurred in custody, preservation, use, or operation of collateral are chargeable to debtor and are secured by collateral [Com. Code § 9207(b)(1)].

(2) Risk of accidental loss is on debtor to extent of deficiency in any effective insurance coverage [Com. Code § 9207(b)(2)].

(3) Secured party must keep collateral identifiable [Com. Code § 9207(b)(3)].

(4) Secured party may use collateral for any of following purposes [Com. Code § 9207(b)(4)]:

(a) For purpose of preserving collateral or its value.

(b) As permitted by order of court having competent jurisdiction.

(c) In manner and to extent agreed by debtor.

c. Provisions imposing duties or conferring rights that would not otherwise exist (which are imposed and conferred on secured parties by statute in contexts apart from factoring transactions) [see Com. Code § 9207(d)(2)]:

(1) Secured party may hold as additional security any proceeds, except money or funds, received from collateral [Com. Code § 9207(c)(1)].

(2) Secured party must apply money or funds received from collateral to reduce secured obligation, unless remitted to debtor [Com. Code § 9207(c)(2)].

(3) Secured party may create security interest in collateral [Com. Code § 9207(c)(3)].

PART IV. FORMS

19-44 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 44.200

§ 44.200 Accounts Financing Agreement

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is representative of agreements that lenders use for accounts receivable financing. A business owner's attorney may refer to this form when reviewing the form of agreement proffered by the business owner's lender.

[2] FORM

Accounts Financing Agreement

ACCOUNTS FINANCING AGREEMENT

Article 1. Definitions

1.01. Lender. "Lender" means _____[name], whose place of business in California, for purposes of this agreement, is located at _____[street address] in _____ County.

1.02. Borrower. "Borrower" means _____[name], whose place of business in California, for purposes of this agreement, is located at _____[street address] in _____ County.

1.03. Account. "Account" means any account receivable, instrument, chattel paper, general intangible, or contract right, now or hereafter owned or acquired by Borrower, however arising or acquired.

1.04. Account Debtor. "Account Debtor" means any obligor on any Account.

1.05. Collateral. "Collateral" means all of the Accounts in the aggregate or any of them; and all proceeds of and collections on the Accounts or any of them; and all guaranties and other security for the Accounts or any of them; and all right, title, and interest of Borrower in any goods the sale or lease of which shall have given rise to any Account, including the right of stoppage in transit; and all returned, rejected, rerouted, or repossessed goods the sale or lease of which shall have given rise to any Account.

1.06. Obligations. "Obligations" means all liabilities and obligations of Borrower to Lender of every kind and description, direct, absolute or contingent, due or to become due, whether now existing or hereafter arising, under this or any other agreement, document, or instrument now or hereafter executed and delivered by Borrower to Lender or under any oral agreement between Borrower and Lender or by operation of law, whether or not evidenced by any written agreement, document, or instrument, including duties to perform acts and refrain from taking action as well as obligations to pay money, including, without limitation, those arising under [specify].

1.07. Receivables Loan Balance. "Receivables Loan Balance" means the aggregate amount of Borrower's indebtedness to Lender incurred pursuant to this agreement, from time to time.

1.08. Schedule. "Schedule" means a written or printed document, which shall be in a form and a format acceptable to Lender and shall be executed in whatever quantities Lender may require, for the purpose of assigning any Account or Accounts to Lender.

Article 2. Lien and Security Interest

2.01. Creation of Lien and Security Interest. Borrower, for valuable consideration, receipt of which is acknowledged, grants to Lender a continuing general lien and security interest in the Collateral, in the proceeds of the Collateral, and in all of Borrower's books and records relating to the Collateral. The lien and security interest of Lender is to secure the payment and performance of the Obligations.

Article 3. Representations, Warranties, and Covenants

Borrower represents, warrants, and covenants to Lender as follows.

3.01. Accounts. All books, records, and documents relating to the Accounts are and will be genuine and in all respects what they purport to be. The amount of any Account shown on the books and records of Borrower represented as owing or to be owing at maturity by the Account Debtor is and will be the correct amount actually owing or to be owing by the Account Debtor at maturity. Each Account Debtor has and will have capacity to contract. Borrower has no knowledge of any fact that would impair the validity or collectability of any Account.

3.02. No Violation of Law or Agreement. The execution, delivery, and performance of this agreement are not in contravention of law or of any indenture, agreement, or undertaking to which Borrower is a party or by which Borrower is bound [if borrower is corporation, add: and the same are within Borrower's corporate powers, have been duly authorized, and are not in contravention of Borrower's charter, bylaws, or other corporation documents].

3.03. Authenticity of Accounts. At the time of assignment, each Account represents and will represent an undisputed, bona fide sale and delivery of goods or services rendered, or both (or in the case of a contract right, represents and will represent an undisputed, bona fide agreement), and is not and will not be subject to any setoff, counterclaim, discount, or condition of any nature, except as specified in writing on or before the delivery to Lender of Schedules for the assignment of Accounts. Borrower is, or at the time of the assignment will be, the lawful owner of each Account, with the unqualified right to assign each Account and grant liens and security interests to Lender. Borrower, with respect to each Account, shall deliver to Lender such papers as Lender may require, including, without limitation, the original delivery or other receipts and duplicate invoices.

3.04. Books and Records. Borrower keeps and shall continue to keep all books and records concerning the Collateral at the place of business identified in Paragraph 1.02, unless written notice to the contrary is given by Borrower to Lender.

3.05. Places of Business. Apart from the place of business identified in Paragraph 1.02, Borrower has _____ [no other place of business or places of business at, and only at, the following location(s): _____].

3.06. Truth of Information. All information furnished by Borrower to Lender concerning the Collateral and proceeds of the Collateral, Borrower's financial condition, and all relevant facts, is and shall be complete, accurate, and correct in all material respects at the time furnished. All covenants, representations, and warranties contained in this agreement shall be true and correct at the time of the execution of this agreement and shall be deemed continuing.

3.07. Regulatory and Accounting Compliance. Borrower has fully complied and shall fully comply with the requirements of all applicable laws, federal, state, and local. All reserves shown on Borrower's books and records are now and shall be maintained in sufficient amounts to fully reflect all liabilities that have accrued or may accrue.

3.08. No Claims or Encumbrances. The Collateral is and, for as long as the Obligations remain unpaid to any extent, shall remain free of any liens, charges, security interests, encumbrances, and adverse claims, except for the benefit of Lender.

3.09. Qualified Corporation. Borrower is duly organized and existing under the laws of _____ (state of incorporation) and is duly qualified and in good standing in every other state in which Borrower is required to be qualified to do business.]

Article 4. Loans

4.01. Revolving Credit. Lender agrees, during the continuance of this agreement, to make loans and advances to Borrower, payable on demand, against those of the Accounts that Lender in its sole discretion considers eligible for borrowing. Up to _____ percent of the face value of each Account shall be paid on acceptance of the Account by Lender; the remainder, being not less than _____ percent of face value, shall be held by Lender as a reserve to secure the collection and payment of the Account and to secure the payment and performance of the Obligations. If the Receivable Loan Balance shall at any time exceed _____ percent of the aggregate face value of the accepted Accounts, Lender may, but need not, require Borrower, on demand, to pay the excess to Lender or may require Borrower to deliver additional security to Lender.

4.02. Promissory Notes. To evidence the loans, Borrower, at Lender's request, shall execute and deliver to Lender promissory notes payable to Lender on demand. The notes shall be in the amount of any portion or portions, or all, of the Receivables Loan Balance, as Lender may request. The notes shall provide for the payment to Lender of interest at the rate provided in Paragraph 4.04 and shall be on forms acceptable to Lender. The execution and delivery of the notes shall not constitute payment, satisfaction, or release of the Obligations.

4.03. Checks Received. Checks received by Lender shall not constitute payment. Solely for the purpose of computing interest earned by Lender, credit for the checks be given as of the third calendar day after receipt, to allow for clearance.

4.04. Interest Computed Daily. Until the Obligations are fully discharged, Borrower shall pay, monthly, as interest, _____ percent per [year or other period] computed daily on the Receivables Loan Balance, from the date accrued until the date paid.

4.05. Minimum Interest. Borrower agrees to pay interest in an amount not less than $ _____ per [month or year], regardless of the amount of the Receivables Loan Balance.

4.06. Statement to Borrower. Lender shall furnish to Borrower, each month, an extract or a statement of Borrower's account, prepared from Lender's records, which shall conclusively be deemed correct and accepted by Borrower unless Borrower delivers to Lender a written statement of exceptions within [specify, e.g., 30 days] after the extract or statement has been furnished.

Article 5. Returned Goods; Instruments

5.01. Returned Goods. Borrower shall physically segregate all rejected, rerouted, repossessed, or returned goods sold or delivered in respect of any Account, shall immediately notify Lender, shall receive the goods in trust for Lender, and shall hold the goods for disposition as Lender may direct or, at Lender's option, shall promptly refund all advances, loans, and extensions made on the Accounts.

5.02. Instruments. Borrower shall deliver to Lender, endorsed to Lender, all instruments, chattel paper, guarantees, or other documents immediately when received by Borrower as evidence or in payment of, or as security for, any of the Accounts, and shall immediately transfer to Lender all security received for any of the Accounts.

Article 6. Inspection of Records; Further Assurances

6.01. Records. At all times Borrower shall allow Lender by or through any of Lender's officers, agents, employees, attorneys, and accountants, to possess, to remove to the premises of Lender or any agent of Lender for as long as Lender may desire, to make full use of in aid of Lender's rights under this agreement, and to examine, audit, and make extracts and copies from, Borrower's books and all other records, and, for the purposes or to aid Lender in the enforcement of any rights under this agreement, to enter, to remain on, and, without cost to Lender, to use the premises of Borrower or wherever the books and records may be found, as often and for as long as Lender may desire.

6.02. Trial Balance. Borrower shall deliver to Lender an aged accounts-receivable trial balance in whatever form and as often as Lender requires.

6.03. Accounts Statements. Borrower shall furnish to Lender, promptly on request, Borrower's monthly statements of Accounts to customers. Lender may from time to time verify the validity, amount, and any other matters relating to the Accounts by means of mail, telephone, or otherwise, in the name of Borrower, Lender, or any other name, as Lender may choose.

6.04. Assurances and Schedules. Borrower shall do all things required by Lender in order more completely to vest Lender's rights under this agreement. The Accounts shall be assigned to Lender by Schedules, but the lien and security interest of Lender under this agreement shall not be limited in any way to or by the inclusion of Accounts within the Schedules. To the extent the terms and provisions of this agreement conflict with the Schedules, this agreement shall be controlling. Borrower need not furnish Schedules unless Lender shall so request, but Borrower's failure to execute and deliver Schedules shall not limit the security interest granted to Lender.

6.05. Financial Statements. Borrower shall deliver to Lender, within [specify, e.g., 60 days] after Borrower's accounting year-end, financial statements (including balance sheet, profit and loss figures, and accountant's comments) for that year and, at Lender's request, shall deliver to Lender financial statements for each month by [specify, e.g., the 15th day of the following month]. All annual financial statements shall be prepared by certified public accountants acceptable to Lender.

6.06. Notice of Changes. Borrower shall promptly notify Lender in writing of any change of officers, directors, and key employees, change of location of offices, change of location of any moveable assets (except the shipment, temporary storage, or use in manufacturing processes, of inventory in the ordinary and normal course of Borrower's business), change of Borrower's name or legal status, any sale or purchase out of the regular course of Borrower's business, and any other material change in the business or financial affairs of Borrower.

Article 7. Notice of Assignment; Collection; Expenses

7.01. Notification to Account Debtors. Borrower, on the request of Lender and only then, shall give notice of the assignment of or the granting of a security interest in all or any of the Accounts, to the Account Debtors. Notice shall be given in the form and at the times Lender shall request. Lender may give the notice at any time and from time to time in Lender's or Borrower's name, without notice to Borrower, and so require the Account Debtors to pay the Accounts directly to Lender.

7.02. Attorney in Fact. Borrower irrevocably appoints Lender as Borrower's true and lawful attorney, with full power of substitution, in the name of Borrower or in the name of Lender or otherwise, for the use and benefit of Lender, but at the cost and expense of Borrower, without notice to Borrower or any of Borrower's representatives or successors, to repair, alter, or supply goods, if any, necessary to fulfill in whole or in part the purchase order of any Account Debtor from which any of the Collateral has arisen; to demand, collect, receipt for, and give renewals, extensions, discharges, and releases of any Collateral; to institute and to prosecute legal and equitable proceedings to realize on the Collateral; to settle, compromise, compound, or adjust claims in respect of the Collateral or any legal proceedings brought in respect of the Collateral; and generally to sell in whole or in part for cash, credit, or property to others, or to buy, at any public or private sale, or to assign, make any agreement with respect to, or otherwise deal with, any of the Collateral as fully and completely as if Lender were the absolute owner, for all purposes. Borrower shall have no power to make any allowance or credit to any Account Debtor without Lender's written consent.

7.03. Collection. Borrower irrevocably appoints Lender as Borrower's true and lawful attorney, with full power of substitution, to take control in any manner of any cash or noncash items of payment or proceeds of those items; to endorse the name of Borrower on any notes, acceptances, checks, drafts, money orders, bills of lading, freight bills, chattel paper, or other evidences of payment or Collateral that may come into Lender's possession; to sign Borrower's name on any invoices relating to any Accounts, on drafts against Account Debtors, and on notices to Account Debtors; to sign Borrower's name on any proof of claim in bankruptcy against Account Debtors; to sign Borrower's name on any notice of lien, claim of mechanic's lien, or assignment or satisfaction of mechanic's lien; and to do all other acts and things necessary, in Lender's sole judgment, to carry out this agreement. All checks and other forms of remittance received by Borrower and submitted by or on behalf of Account Debtors shall be endorsed payable to the order of Lender or in any other manner that Lender may designate from time to time. Borrower's signature or name, in every instance described in this paragraph, may be inserted by Lender in longhand, in typewriting, by rubber stamp, or otherwise. Every endorsement, however signed or made, shall be deemed to be the valid endorsement of Borrower.

7.04. Borrower Collecting for Lender. Borrower shall have the privilege of collecting the Accounts for the account of and in trust for Lender. The privilege may be revoked by Lender at Lender's option, at any time by either (a) giving notification of assignment of, or lien and security interest in, the Accounts to the Account Debtors, and no notice to Borrower shall be required, or (b) giving notice of the revocation to Borrower. All currency and coins, checks, notes, drafts, other things of value, and items of payment together with any and all relating vouchers, identifications, communications, or other data received or collected from Account Debtors by Borrower (or by any receiver, trustee, or successor in the interest of Borrower, or by any person acting on behalf of Borrower) in reference to the Accounts shall belong to Lender and shall be immediately transmitted by Borrower to Lender at the place of business identified in Paragraph 1.01 (or, if directed by Lender, deposited in Lender's account in a bank designated by Lender) in the original form in which the same are received and endorsed by Borrower. Borrower shall have no right to commingle with Borrower's own funds, use, divert, or withhold any of the proceeds of any collections. Borrower hereby relinquishes all dominion over the Accounts and the proceeds of Accounts and collections received on Accounts. Borrower shall make book entries in a form satisfactory to Lender disclosing the absolute and unconditional assignment of Accounts to Lender and shall keep a separate account of all collections received. Borrower shall advise Lender immediately of any claims or disputes arising with respect to any Account and of any occurrence that may in any way impair or affect any of the Accounts or tend to reduce the value of the Accounts. Should any suit or proceeding be instituted by or against Lender or Borrower on any of the Collateral or for the collection or enforcement of any Account, Borrower, without expense to Lender, shall make available Borrower's officers, employees, agents, books, records, and files, as Lender may deem necessary to make proper proof in court.

7.05. Damages to Lender. Lender shall be entitled to recover from Borrower all damages sustained by Lender by reason of any misrepresentation, breach of warranty, or breach of covenant of Borrower, expressed or implied, whether caused by the acts or defaults of Borrower, Account Debtors, or others; and also all reasonable attorneys' fees, court costs, court reporter expenses, long distance telephone charges, telegram costs, collection expenses, accountants' fees, supervisory fees, expenses of attorneys, agents, officers, auditors, collectors, clerks, and investigators for travel, lodging, and food costs, traveling expenses, disbursements, and all other expenses that may be incurred by Lender in enforcing payment of any Account or the Obligations, in attempting to enforce payment, in realizing on any Collateral, whether against any Account Debtor, Borrower, Borrower's guarantors, or others, in supervising the records and proper management and disposition of the collection of Accounts, in prosecuting or defending any proceeding arising from the efforts of Lender to recover any money or other thing of value, or otherwise to enforce or protect any of Lender's rights.

7.06. Insurance. As to any insurance that Borrower now or hereafter may maintain covering risks of damage to or loss or destruction of books and records, each policy of insurance shall contain a loss-payable clause in a form satisfactory to Lender naming Lender as payee and providing that all proceeds payable under the policy shall be payable in any event to Lender, unless written consent to the contrary is obtained from Lender. The proceeds shall be applied to the Receivables Loan Balance. Each insurer shall agree to give Lender [specify, e.g., 30 days] written notice before any policy shall be altered or canceled. No act or default of Borrower or any other person shall affect the right of Lender to recover under a policy in case of damage, loss, or destruction. Certified copies of the policies shall be delivered to Lender on demand.

Article 8. Financing Statements and Notices of Assignment

8.01. Financing Statements. At the request of Lender, Borrower shall join with Lender in executing one or more financing statements or notices of assignment of accounts receivable pursuant to any applicable law, in any form satisfactory to Lender.

8.02. Filing. Without the written consent of Lender, Borrower shall not allow any financing statement or notice of assignment of accounts receivable covering any Collateral or proceeds to be on file in any public office.

Article 9. Events of Default; Acceleration

9.01. Default. All Obligations, notwithstanding any time or credit allowed by any instrument evidencing a liability, shall become immediately due and payable, without notice or demand, on the occurrence of any of the following events of default:

- (a) Borrower fails to make any payment or to perform any Obligation promptly when due.
- (b) Any warranty, representation, or statement made or furnished to Lender by or on behalf of Borrower is false in any material respect when made or furnished.
- (c) Any event arises that results in the acceleration of the maturity of the indebtedness of Borrower to others under any indenture, agreement, or undertaking.
- (d) There occurs any loss, theft, damage, destruction, sale, or encumbrance to or of any of the Collateral, or any levy, seizure, or attachment shall be made on any of the Collateral.
- (e) Lender determines, at any time or times hereafter, that it is insecure with respect to the performance by Borrower of all or any part of the Obligations.

(f) Any of the following occurs; it being expressly agreed that on the happening of any event described below, Borrower and each of Borrower's guarantors and sureties having or acquiring knowledge of it shall immediately give written notice of the event or fact to Lender:

(1) Dissolution, termination of existence, insolvency, business failure, appointment of a receiver for any part of the property of, assignment for the benefit of creditors by, or commencement of any proceeding under any bankruptcy or insolvency law by or against, Borrower or any guarantor or surety for Borrower;

(2) Entry of a court order that enjoins, restrains, or in any way prevents Borrower from conducting all or any part of its business affairs in the ordinary course;

(3) Failure to pay any federal, state, or local tax or other debt of Borrower unless the same is being contested in good faith;

(4) Termination of guaranty by any guarantor of Borrower's indebtedness to Lender, whether under this agreement or otherwise.

9.02. Injunctive Relief. In the event that Borrower violates any of the warranties, covenants, terms, and conditions of this agreement, no remedy at law will provide adequate relief to Lender. Lender shall be entitled to temporary and permanent injunctive relief in that case without the necessity of proving actual damages.

9.03. Self-Help. At any time or times when Borrower is in default under this agreement, Lender shall have the right to enter on Borrower's premises and to receive and open all mail directed to Borrower, provided that Lender shall turn over to Borrower all mail not relating to Collateral. In the event of default, Lender shall have the right, in the name of Borrower, to notify the U.S. Postal Service to change the address for the delivery of mail addressed to Borrower to any address Lender may designate.

Article 10. Rights and Remedies

10.01. Lender's Rights and Remedies. On the occurrence of any event of default, and at any time thereafter, Lender shall have the rights and remedies of a secured party under the Uniform Commercial Code and under any and all other laws in addition to the rights and remedies provided in this agreement or in any other instrument or paper executed by Borrower. All of Lender's rights, powers, and remedies are cumulative and none is exclusive.

Article 11. One General Obligation; Cross Collateral

11.01. One Obligation. All loans and advances by Lender to Borrower under this agreement and under all other agreements constitute one loan, and all indebtedness and obligations of Borrower to Lender under this and all other agreements, present and future (including, without limitation, any document listed in Paragraph 1.06), constitute one general obligation secured by collateral and security held and to be held by Lender under this agreement and all other agreements between Borrower and Lender now and hereafter existing. All of the rights of Lender contained in this agreement shall likewise apply insofar as applicable to any modification of or supplement to this agreement and to any other agreements, present and future, between Lender and Borrower.

Article 12. Application of Payments

12.01. Application. All payments made by or in behalf of and all credits due to Borrower may be applied and reapplied in whole or in part to any of the Obligations to the extent and in the manner that Lender may elect.

Article 13. Termination

13.01 Termination of Agreement. This agreement, on acceptance by Lender, shall continue until _____[date] and from year to year thereafter unless terminated as to future transactions by the giving of notice by registered mail by either party to the other, not less than [specify, e.g., 30 days] before any anniversary of this agreement. Borrower, at the termination date, shall make payment in full of the Obligations, whether evidenced by installment notes or otherwise, and whether or not all or any part of the Obligations may otherwise then be due and payable by Borrower to Lender. Lender may terminate on immediate notice at any time after occurrence of any event of default described in Article 9. Termination of this agreement shall not in any way affect or impair any right of Lender arising before or by reason of the termination, nor shall termination relieve Borrower or any of the guarantors of any obligation to Lender under this agreement or otherwise until all of the Obligations are fully paid and performed, nor shall termination affect any right or remedy of Lender arising from the Obligations, and all agreements, warranties, and representations of Borrower shall survive termination.

Article 14. Waivers

14.01. Borrower's Claims. Borrower hereby waives any and all causes of action and claims against Lender as a result of any possession, collection, or sale by Lender of any Collateral in the event of a default, notwithstanding the effect of the possession, collection, or sale on the business of Borrower, and Borrower waives all rights of redemption, if any.

14.02. No Waiver by Lender. The failure at any time or times hereafter to require strict performance by Borrower of any of the provisions, warranties, terms, and conditions contained in this agreement or any other agreement, document, or instrument now or hereafter executed by Borrower and delivered to Lender, shall not waive, affect, or diminish any right of Lender hereafter to demand strict compliance and performance under this agreement and with respect to any other provisions, warranties, terms, and conditions contained in other agreements, documents, and instruments. Any waiver of any default shall not waive or affect any other default, whether of the same or of a different type. None of the warranties, conditions, provisions, and terms contained in this agreement or any other agreement, document, or instrument now or hereafter executed by Borrower and delivered to Lender shall be deemed to have been waived by any act or knowledge of Lender or Lender's agents, officers, or employees, but can be waived only by an instrument in writing, signed by an officer of Lender and directed to Borrower, specifying the waiver.

14.03. Notices. Borrower waives any and all notice or demand which Borrower might be entitled to receive with respect to this agreement by virtue of any applicable statute or law, and waives demand, protest, notice of protest, notice of default or dishonor, notice of payments and nonpayments, or of any default, release, compromise, settlement, extension, or renewal of all commercial paper, accounts, contract rights, instruments, chattel paper, guaranties, and otherwise, at any time held by Lender on which Borrower may in any way be liable, notice of nonpayment at maturity of any and all accounts, instruments, or chattel paper, or notice of any action taken by Lender unless expressly required by this agreement, and hereby ratifies and confirms whatever Lender may do pursuant to this agreement and agrees that Lender shall not be liable for any acts of commission or omission or for any errors of judgment or mistakes of fact or law.

Article 15. Miscellaneous Provisions

15.01. Binding Effect of Agreement. This agreement shall be binding on and inure to the benefit of the parties and their respective heirs, successors, representatives, and assigns.

15.02. Governing Law; Submission to Jurisdiction. The validity, interpretation, enforcement, and effect of this agreement shall be governed by the laws of the State of California. Borrower hereby consents to the jurisdiction of all courts in California and hereby appoints _____ [name], whose address is _____ [address], as Borrower's agent for service of process in California.

15.03. Severability. In the event that any provision of this agreement is deemed to be invalid by reason of the operation of any law or by reason of the interpretation placed on any law by any court, this agreement shall be construed as not containing the invalid provision. The invalidity of the provision shall not affect the validity of any other provision of this agreement. Any and all other provisions of this agreement that are otherwise lawful and valid shall remain in full force and effect.

15.04. Notices and Payments. Any notice, payment, or refund required under this agreement or by reason of the application of any law shall be deemed to have been given by either party when the same shall have been deposited in the U.S. mail, postage prepaid, at least [specify, e.g., five calendar days] before the same shall be effective (except that notice of termination shall be given in the manner set forth in Article 13), and addressed as follows:

(a) If to Borrower: at the address of Borrower specified in Paragraph 1.02, or to the latest address of Borrower of which Lender shall have received notice from Borrower.

(b) If to Lender: at the address of Lender specified in Paragraph 1.01, or to the latest address of Lender of which Lender shall have sent notice to Borrower.

15.05. Attorneys' Fees. If, at any time or times hereafter, Lender employs counsel for advice or other representation with respect to any Collateral or this agreement or any other agreement, document, or instrument heretofore, now, or hereafter executed by Borrower and delivered to Lender, or to commence, defend, or intervene, file a petition, complaint, answer, motion, or other pleadings, or to take any other action in or with respect to any suit or proceeding relating to this agreement or any other agreement, instrument, or document heretofore, now, or hereafter executed by Borrower and delivered to Lender, or to protect, collect, lease, sell, take possession of, or liquidate any of the Collateral, or to attempt to enforce any security interest or lien in any Collateral, or to represent Lender in any litigation with respect to the affairs of Borrower or in any way relating to any of the Collateral, or to enforce any rights of Lender, or the Obligations, or liabilities of Account Debtors or any other person, firm, or corporation that may be obligated to Lender by virtue of this agreement or any other agreement, document, or instrument heretofore, now, or hereafter delivered to Lender by or for the benefit of Borrower; then, in any of those events, all of the reasonable attorneys' fees arising from those services, and any expenses, costs and charges relating to those services, shall constitute additional Obligations, secured by the Collateral, payable on demand.

15.06. Effect of Headings. Headings of articles and paragraphs in this agreement shall not have any legal effect but are provided only to facilitate the reading of the text.

15.07. Effective Date. This agreement shall not become effective until accepted by Lender on the signature of a duly authorized officer at the address set forth in Paragraph 1.01.

§ 44.201 Demand for Release of Account Debtor[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form may be used by a business owner to demand that a lender send a "record" releasing an account debtor that previously received notification of an assignment of the account to the lender. The business owner may put such a demand to the lender once the obligations between the business owner and the lender have been discharged; and the lender must comply within 10 days after receiving such a demand [see Com. Code § 9209(a), (b); § 44.21[2][a]]. A certified or registered letter would be appropriate for making the demand.

A record, in this context, is information that is inscribed on a tangible medium or is stored in an electronic or other medium and is retrievable in perceivable form [Com. Code § 9102(a)(69)]. The record must be "authenticated" [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(7)] by the lender. Presumably the lender could and would use the same means as for the previous notification of assignment.

PART IV. FORMS

19-44 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 44.202

§ 44.202 Factoring Agreement--Maturity Factoring

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is representative of the agreements used by finance companies in maturity factoring transactions, in which the business owner receives payment from the finance company based on the maturity dates of invoices, regardless of whether the customers have made payments. A business owner's attorney may refer to this form when reviewing the form of agreement proffered by the business owner's intended factor.

[2] FORM

Factoring Agreement--Maturity Factoring

FACTORING AGREEMENT

This agreement is made by _____[name] as Seller and _____[name], a California banking corporation, as Factor, on _____[date] at [place], California.

1. Security Interest. To secure the payment and performance of all liabilities of Seller to Factor, Seller hereby grants Factor a security interest, pursuant to the California Uniform Commercial Code, in all of Seller's accounts receivable now existing or hereafter arising ("Accounts"), together with all interests of Seller now existing or hereafter arising in goods as to which any Account for goods sold or delivered has arisen, and the proceeds of all of the foregoing.

2. Sole Factor. Seller hereby, irrevocably, for the term of this agreement, constitutes and appoints Factor as Seller's sole factor for all of Seller's sales and authorizes Factor to pass on the credit risk of Seller's customers ("Customers"). During the term of this agreement, Seller shall not sell, transfer, pledge, create a security interest in, or hypothecate any of the Accounts to any person, firm, association, or corporation.

3. Approval of Accounts. Seller shall not make any sale of goods unless and until the proposed sale shall be first submitted to Factor for approval in writing as to the amount and terms of sale and the credit to be extended to the Customer. Terms of sale shall not exceed [specify, e.g., 30 days], and no change from original terms shall be made except with the prior written consent of Factor. Sales shall be invoiced on forms satisfactory to Factor, and proof of delivery, satisfactory to Factor, shall be submitted on each sale. Original invoices, together with one copy of each, shall be furnished to Factor. At Factor's option, invoices may be mailed by Factor at Seller's postage expense. Factor shall not be obligated to purchase any account from Seller, nor shall the terms of this agreement in any way restrict or prohibit any purchase by Factor from Seller on a guaranteed basis.

4. Sale and Purchase of Accounts. Seller shall sell and Factor shall buy, at the gross invoice amount, all Accounts created by Seller's sales and services that have previously been approved by Factor in writing, and Factor shall pay for the Accounts when the goods have been finally accepted by Customer. All such Accounts shall be owned by and payable directly to Factor, and Seller hereby assigns and transfers to Factor all right, title, and interest in and to all such Accounts, and shall execute and deliver to Factor, in confirmation of Seller's title, a detailed assignment of the Accounts, in a manner and a form satisfactory to Factor. Factor shall have the right to give notice of this assignment to Customers; to bring all proceedings for collection in Factor's name; and to exercise Seller's rights of stoppage in transit, replevin, and reclamation. Should any remittance be made directly to Seller, Seller shall receive it in trust for Factor, as the property of Factor, and immediately turn over to Factor the identical check or other form of payment received. Seller hereby irrevocably appoints Factor, or any person designated by Factor, as Seller's true and lawful attorney in fact to receive, open, and dispose of all mail addressed to Seller, and to endorse the name of Seller on any notes, acceptances, checks, drafts, money orders, or other remittances; to endorse the name of Seller on any invoice, freight, or express bill or bill of lading, storage receipt, warehouse receipt, or other instrument or document in respect to any Account; to sign the name of Seller to drafts against Seller, assignments, or verifications of Accounts and notices to Customers; to change the post office address of Seller in the event Seller ceases business from bankruptcy or otherwise, or breaches this agreement, or if for any reason Factor feels insecure; and to do all other acts and things necessary to carry out the intent of this agreement. The authority granted to Factor shall remain in full force and effect until all Accounts assigned to Factor have been paid in full.

5. Payments to Seller. Factor shall remit to Seller the net proceeds due from the sales of Accounts. Net proceeds shall be computed by deducting from the gross invoice amount any trade and cash discount, Factor's commission, and Factor's reserve. In order to protect and indemnify Factor against possible returns, claims, allowances, or any sum that may be due or become due under any and all liabilities of Seller to Factor, Factor may reserve and withhold an amount, which shall be held by Factor in a designated Reserve Account, equal to _____ percent of the gross face amount of all invoices bought by Factor. If the amount in the Reserve Account exceeds that percentage of all of Seller's invoices purchased by Factor, the excess may be remitted by Factor to Seller, at such times and in such amounts as Factor, in its sole discretion, deems proper. Any reserve amount held by Factor or other property in Factor's possession shall be held as security for payment of any and all obligations owed by Seller to Factor, regardless of how the obligations arose.

6. Indemnity. Seller shall indemnify and protect Factor against liability, loss, or expense caused by or arising out of the rejection of goods or alleged claims or offsets of every kind and nature by Customers, other than those resulting from Customers' financial inability to pay. Knowledge or discovery by Factor of disputes between Customers and Seller with respect to Accounts sold to Factor, regardless of the manner in which knowledge or discovery of disputes is received by Factor, shall be conclusive and binding on Seller, and the Accounts shall thereafter be subject to the provisions of this paragraph. Seller shall immediately advise Factor of any and all disputes with Customers and, subject to Factor's approval, shall promptly settle the disputes. Factor shall have the right to charge against the Reserve Account the entire amount of any sale or sales, the amounts of which are in dispute, before or after the maturity date or that are not paid at maturity for any reason other than the financial inability of the Customers to pay. If, for any reason, the balance in the Reserve Account is insufficient to reimburse Factor for the full amount of the invoice charged to it, the deficiency due Factor shall be an indebtedness immediately due and payable. Factor shall be relieved of any credit risk responsibility involved in any disputed Account, sale, or sales. The charging of any disputed sale or Accounts against the Reserve Account shall not be deemed a reassignment but shall merely constitute a bookkeeping entry, and title to the Accounts, and to the goods constituting the same, shall remain with Factor as security for any indebtedness due or to become due.

7. Payments to Factor. Whenever there may be any sum of money due or to become due to Factor under this agreement, or on any indebtedness due to Factor, for open account or otherwise, Seller shall pay that sum on demand. All of Seller's property in Factor's possession or control may be withheld as security for the indebtedness. On termination of this agreement, any sum due or to become due to Factor shall be immediately due and payable, and on Seller's failure to pay the sum on demand, Factor shall have the right to dispose of any and all of Seller's property in Factor's possession or control in satisfaction of the indebtedness. Seller hereby authorizes Factor to sell the property at either public or private sale at Factor's sole discretion, with any expenses incurred in the selling of the property to be charged to Seller. Seller agrees to pay to Factor, on demand, any deficiency remaining thereafter.

8. Stoppage in Transit. The right of stoppage in transit on all shipments of sales under this agreement is reserved to Factor, and Seller on request shall stop any such delivery, or assert a vendor's lien in favor of Factor to take any other proceedings to effect that right. Any goods returned by reclaim, exercise of vendor's lien, or under the right of stoppage in transit shall be considered returned goods.

9. Sales Taxes. Any and all taxes levied by any and all authorities on sales, accounts receivable, or any transactions under this agreement shall be paid by Seller; however, if Seller does not pay, Factor is hereby authorized to pay the taxes and to charge the sums against the Reserve Account.

10. Books and Records. Seller shall keep proper books of account showing all sales, claims, and allowances on goods. All books, accounts, correspondence, and papers shall be open to Factor's inspection at all times. Until all Accounts are fully paid, Seller shall furnish to Factor, within [specify, e.g., 30 days] following the close of each quarterly calendar period, balance sheets and profit and loss statements of Seller as of the close of the preceding quarter and such other information as Factor may from time to time reasonably request. In addition, Seller shall furnish to Factor, within [specify, e.g., 90 days] after the close of Seller's accounting year, a copy of the annual audit of Seller prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles and certified in a manner satisfactory to Factor by an accountant or accountants selected by Seller and satisfactory to Factor. In the event that Seller fails to perform promptly or breaches any of the promises or obligations in this paragraph, Factor shall be entitled to recover from Seller, and Seller shall pay to Factor, all attorney's fees, court costs, and all other expenses that may be incurred by Factor in the collection of any and all sums due to Factor from Seller or any guarantor of Seller.

11. Factor's Commission. Factor shall perform the services provided for in this agreement in consideration of, and Seller shall pay Factor, a commission computed and payable as follows: [specify]. The foregoing rate is based on Seller's representation that Seller's usual terms are [specify]. No additional dating shall be given without the prior written approval of Factor. When the approval is given, Factor's commission shall be increased at the rate of _____ percent for each additional [specify, e.g., 30 days] or dating or fraction thereof.

12. Settlements; No Waivers. Factor shall have the right to settle or adjust all disputes or claims directly with Customers, with respect to any Accounts, and to compromise or extend the time of payment for any Account on such terms and conditions as Factor may determine, without affecting the liability of Seller under this agreement. The waiver by Factor of any breach of this agreement or warranty or representation shall not be construed as a waiver of any subsequent breach. The failure to exercise any right under this agreement by Factor shall not operate as a waiver of the right, and all rights and remedies in this agreement are cumulative.

13. Default; Termination. If Seller should default in the performance of or breach any of the provisions of this agreement, or default in the payment of any indebtedness otherwise owing to Factor, or if a petition in bankruptcy or application for other relief under the Bankruptcy Code is filed by or against Seller, or a receiver is appointed for the assets or affairs of Seller, or if Seller shall make a general assignment for the benefit of creditors, or if Seller shall become insolvent, or if, in the opinion of Factor, there is a materially adverse change in the financial condition of Seller, or if an attachment or execution should be levied against Seller, or if for any other reason Factor shall deem itself insecure, then, in any such event, Factor may at its option terminate this agreement forthwith. If this agreement is terminated for any of the above reasons, or for any other reason, all sums due to Factor from Seller shall become immediately due and payable. In the event that Factor ceases to act as Factor for Seller, Seller shall furnish to Factor indemnity satisfactory to Factor against any items that could be charged to Seller under the terms of this agreement. If Seller ceases to do business, all Accounts purchased by Factor on a nonrecourse basis shall be immediately deemed to have been purchased with recourse and shall become immediately due and payable. Demand of performance, advertisement, and presence of property at sale are hereby waived, and Factor is hereby authorized to sell under this agreement any evidence of debt assigned to Factor. All demands and presentments of every kind or nature are expressly waived by Seller. Seller hereby waives the right to request Factor to proceed against Customers or to proceed against any security that Factor may hold, including but not limited to Accounts assigned under this agreement; and Seller waives the right to require Factor to pursue any other remedy for the benefit of Seller. Factor may proceed against Seller for the amount of any indebtedness owed by Seller to Factor without taking any action against Customers or any other party and without selling or otherwise proceeding against or applying any security that Factor may hold, including but not limited to assigned Accounts.

14. Term of Agreement. This agreement shall be effective for a term of [specify, e.g., one year] from the date of this agreement and shall be deemed renewed for a similar term thereafter, unless Seller shall give Factor, by registered mail, notice of cancellation [specify, e.g., 30 days] before the expiration of any such term. Factor, however, may terminate this agreement at any time on [specify, e.g., 30 days] written notice by registered mail sent to Seller; but if Seller is in default under any provision of this agreement, Factor may terminate this agreement immediately.

15. Ineligible Accounts. Any sales, or the subsequent Accounts created from sales, as to which the credit risk has been rejected by Factor, may at the discretion of Seller be placed with Factor, and may be purchased at the election of Factor, but in that case the credit risk will be retained by Seller. All such sales or Accounts shall be known as Department Risk Sales or Unapproved Accounts and shall be marked by the letters D.R. or U.A. For the services rendered by Factor in regard to the credit work and information connected with such Accounts, including the issuing of statements and bookkeeping services, Factor shall receive a commission or discount as is set forth under Paragraph 11. Any and all collection work undertaken that pertains to such Accounts shall be at the option and sole discretion of Factor, and the costs and expenses of the collection shall be charged to Seller or to the Reserve Account. Should any such Account remain unpaid beyond the maturity date, or on any prior insolvency on the Account, Factor shall have the right to charge the unpaid amount against the Reserve Account, without the charge being deemed a reassignment.

16. Credit Balance. When all sums due to Factor have been paid, any credit balance on Factor's books in favor of Seller shall be paid to Seller on execution and delivery of a termination agreement.

17. Additional Documents. Seller shall execute and deliver to Factor any and all additional instruments or documents, including but without limiting the generality of the foregoing, all documents required by the California Uniform Commercial Code for the perfection or modification of security interests, and to do all things that Factor from time to time may deem necessary or convenient to carry into effect the provisions of this agreement.

18. Entire Agreement. This agreement expresses the entire understanding of the parties and may not be altered or amended except with the written consent of each of the parties and except as provided in any other written document signed and delivered by Seller to Factor. This agreement shall be binding on and inure to the benefit of the respective heirs, executors, administrators, and successors of the parties.

19. Notices. Any notice pursuant to this agreement shall be sent to the parties at the following addresses, unless previously changed in writing, in person or by registered mail as follows:

(a) To Seller at _____[address].

(b) To Factor at _____[address].

20. Governing Law. This agreement and the rights, obligations, and duties of each of the parties shall be construed according to the laws of the State of California.

21. Construction. Wherever in this agreement the context so requires, the singular shall include the plural. Headings of paragraphs in this agreement shall not have any legal effect but are provided only to facilitate the reading of the text.

CHAPTER 44 ACCOUNTS RECEIVABLE FINANCING AND FACTORING
PART IV. FORMS

19-44 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 44.203

§ 44.203 Factoring Agreement--Advance Factoring

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is representative of the agreements used by finance companies in advance factoring transactions, in which the business owner receives an advance payment from the finance company immediately on "selling" an invoice to the company, then receives a further payment after the customer has paid the invoice in full. This form has the format of a letter to the business owner from the finance company. A business owner's attorney may refer to this form when reviewing a proposed agreement proffered by the business owner's intended factor.

[2] FORM

Factoring Agreement--Advance Factoring

_____[date]
_____[name and address of business owner]

We hereby confirm our commitment for a factoring arrangement with you pursuant to the terms of this security agreement.

1. Appointment of Factor. You hereby appoint us as sole Factor, and we consent to act as such on the terms and conditions set forth in this agreement.

2. Address. You certify that your address set forth above is your mailing address, your principal place of business, and the office where all of your books and records concerning your accounts are maintained. You shall not change your mailing address, principal place of business, or place where your records concerning accounts are maintained without our prior written approval.

3. Legally Qualified Business. You certify that you are duly qualified or licensed to do business in the State of California and have complied, and will continue to comply, with all applicable statutes, rules, and regulations.

4. Officers, Partners, or Agents. You certify that the following are the correct names and addresses of your officers, partners, or agents: [specify]. You further certify that those persons have signed the enclosed signature cards and that you understand that we shall rely on them until we receive written notice to the contrary.

5. Sale of Accounts. You hereby agree to sell to us all accounts receivable and contract rights, herein called collectively the Accounts, now existing or hereafter created in your business, including the proceeds of the Accounts, and your title in the goods giving rise to the Accounts. You will not sell, assign, or otherwise encumber the Accounts to anyone except us.

6. Assignment of Accounts and Notice. You shall execute and deliver to us, in a manner and a form prescribed by us, formal schedules and assignments of each Account sold; however, in the absence of any such assignment, this security agreement shall be deemed the assignment of each Account. In addition, you shall have printed on the face of all invoices, bills, notices, and shipping documents a statement to the effect that the Account has been assigned to us and is payable only to us. We shall have the right to determine the exact language and form of such statements. You shall pay all postage for mailing the statements to account debtors.

7. Factor Must Approve Credit of Account Debtors. In accordance with Paragraphs 11 and 12, we shall credit you with the net face value of each Account sold to us, provided that the sale of goods or services creating the Account has been approved in writing by us, and credit approval has not been withdrawn by us before the final acceptance of the goods or services by the account debtors free from claim or dispute. We specifically retain the right to withdraw our approval of credit to any account debtor if, in our sole discretion, any account debtor becomes unsatisfactory, or if there shall arise any claim or dispute with any account debtor; provided, however, that the goods or services involved have not already been finally accepted by the account debtor without claim or dispute. We shall not incur any liability whatsoever to you, or any other person, by reason of any such withdrawal of credit approval. You shall cooperate and execute any forms we may supply in conjunction with the determination of credit approval, and you shall be bound by our judgment.

8. No Recourse as to Credit Risk. We shall have no recourse against you for the nonpayment of any Account that has been approved by us, due solely to the inability or wrongful refusal of the account debtor to pay. If any Account is not paid on maturity for any reason other than the account debtor's inability or wrongful refusal to pay, we shall have the absolute right to charge back to you all Accounts of that account debtor, and you will pay us for those Accounts on demand. You or any of your authorized agents shall promptly advise us of any claims or disputes and promptly adjust the same, at your expense and subject to our written approval. We are authorized to charge you, and you shall pay us on demand, the amount of any liability, loss, or expense caused us by any transaction under this security agreement, including, but not limited to, any allowance or deduction resulting from adjustment of any Account, except loss incurred by us due solely to the inability or wrongful refusal of the account debtor to pay.

9. Records and Statements. You shall at all times maintain correct, adequate, and current books and records, and we shall have the right to examine, copy, and make extracts from your books and records at any time during normal business hours. We shall have the right to execute and file any financing statements, notices, and other instruments and to do all acts necessary to carry out this security agreement and to perfect our security interest. You will assist us in that connection when we deem it advisable.

10. Interest on Debtor's Account. Interest on your account shall be computed at the rate of _____ percent per year on all debit and credit balances. You shall be charged interest monthly on the amount of all sales shipped during that particular month, based on terms of payment plus [number] days in addition to allow for late payments and for clearance of commercial paper.

11. Advances and Reserve. At your request, and in our sole discretion, we shall advance to you, on our acceptance of Accounts, _____ percent of the net face value of the Accounts and will in the ordinary course of business credit your account each month with the net face value of all Accounts purchased during the month. As used in this security agreement, the "net face value" shall be the gross amount of the Account, less returns, allowances, and discounts to the account debtor on the shortest selling terms. We shall give you a statement of your account once each month concerning the transactions of the previous month and pay you, as requested, any amount due you, after making the appropriate deduction in accordance with the terms of this agreement. You shall permit us to hold, as a reserve, a sum equal to _____ percent of the aggregate amount of sales during the [number] days preceding, but in no event less than the reserve held at the end of the preceding month. The reserve is for the purpose of protecting us against possible returns, claims, allowances, and other dilution of the Accounts other than the inability or wrongful refusal of the account debtor to pay. Unless you notify us in writing to the contrary within [number] days after receipt of any monthly statement of account, the statement shall be deemed correct and binding and conclusive as between you and us.

12. Unapproved Accounts. In the event that you sell us any Accounts that have not received our written credit approval, you will nevertheless assign the same to us, and we shall make advances in such amounts as we shall deem satisfactory in our sole discretion. We shall record and collect any such Accounts in the same manner as other approved Accounts sold to us, except that we shall not assume any responsibility for nonpayment of unapproved Accounts, and we shall have the right to charge back to you any such unapproved Accounts.

13. Compensation for Factoring. As compensation for our services, you shall be charged, and you agree to pay monthly, commissions on the aggregate sales price set forth in all of the Accounts, less discounts on the shortest selling terms, in the following manner: [specify].

14. Security Interest in All Accounts Granted. In order to secure your obligations, you hereby grant us a continuing security interest in all present and future Accounts and contract rights, including the proceeds of the Accounts and contract rights, and all goods represented by the Accounts or contract rights, the products or proceeds of any resale, any and all credit balances held by us for your account, and any and all other property of yours now or hereafter in our possession or under our control, as collateral for the payment of any liabilities, absolute or contingent, due from you to us and of all claims by us against you, due or to become due, whether now existing or hereafter arising and whether incurred directly, under this agreement, or otherwise, or whether acquired by us from others. The lien of this security interest shall include the proceeds of any insurance policies concerning the goods giving rise to the Accounts. All advances made by us to you shall be repaid at our office located at _____[address] or any other location we may hereafter designate in writing.

15. Termination of Agreement by Factor. We shall have the absolute right to immediately terminate this agreement in the event any of the following occur:

- (a) You make any misrepresentation concerning any Account or any other matter pertaining to or arising out of this agreement.
- (b) You violate any of the terms or provisions of this agreement.
- (c) Any indebtedness owed by you to us is not paid when due.
- (d) An adverse change occurs in your financial standing, as to which we shall have the sole and exclusive judgment.
- (e) A petition is filed by or against you under any bankruptcy or insolvency statute, or you commit any act of bankruptcy.
- (f) You become insolvent.

16. Effect of Termination. Should this agreement be terminated for any reason, any and all indebtedness owed by you to us shall be deemed immediately due and payable, and we shall have the right to liquidate your account. In the event of termination, we shall not be obligated to make any advances or remit to you any equity balances until your account has been fully liquidated. You shall remain liable for any deficiency, and all Accounts charged back to you shall be retained as further security, for which we shall credit you with the amounts actually collected.

17. Taxes. We reserve the right to pay or withhold any taxes or levies that may be imposed by any governmental authority, whether related to sales or goods, and in our discretion the amount shall be charged to you, or directly paid by you.

18. Returned Goods. We shall retain title to any goods returned or rejected and to any goods that are subject to any dispute or chargeback, and we shall retain title notwithstanding the termination of this agreement. We shall retain title to the goods in the event of liquidation of your account, and we may take possession of the goods, as well as any goods on which we have a lien, at any time, and dispose of the goods on [number] days notice at private or public sale; and if the sale be public, we may purchase the goods. In the event any returned goods shall come into your possession, you shall hold the goods in trust for us and segregate the goods. You shall deliver those goods to us, or any person we may designate, in our discretion and on our demand. We shall have the rights of an unpaid seller, including the rights of replevin, reclamation, and stoppage in transit as well as any other rights granted us by applicable law. Any goods recovered by us shall be considered returned goods for the purposes of this agreement. We shall not be liable to you or any third party by reason of our exercise of any of our rights under this agreement.

19. Commercial Paper to Be Remitted in Form Received. All checks or other commercial paper that may come into your possession regarding any Account, whether drawn to your order or our order, shall forthwith be turned over to us in kind. You shall duly endorse any check or other form or commercial paper to our order. You hereby constitute us, or any duly authorized agent of ours, as attorney in fact for the purpose of endorsing your name on all checks and other forms of commercial paper.

20. Adjustment of Accounts. You hereby authorize us, with respect to all rejected, disputed, or returned goods, to make adjustments or allowances with the account debtors involved, which adjustments or allowances shall be binding on you, or your assignees, receivers, or trustees in bankruptcy, unless you shall pay the full amount of the Account involved within [number] days after we have mailed written notice to you of any proposed adjustment or allowance.

21. No Waiver or Oral Modification of Agreement. This agreement cannot be modified orally or by the course of conduct of the parties or in any other manner except by a written agreement signed by the parties. No failure on our part to exercise any right, privilege, or remedy under this agreement shall be construed as a waiver of that right, privilege, or remedy, nor shall it be construed as a waiver of any future or similar circumstance.

22. Controlling Law. The validity, interpretation, and performance of this agreement shall be controlled by and construed under the laws of the State of California.

23. Termination by Either Party. This agreement shall be in force and effect for one year from the effective date of this agreement, and from year to year thereafter, unless either party shall give the other party written notice of termination at least [number] days before the effective date of termination, by registered or certified mail.

24. Notices. All notices concerning any matter in relation to this agreement shall be in writing and sent by regular mail to the last address that we have designated in writing from time to time.

25. Effective Date. The effective date of this agreement is _____ [date] .

_____ [name of finance company]

By _____ [signature]
[typed name and title]

Signed and delivered at _____ [city], California, on _____ [date].

Accepted and approved,

PART IV. FORMS

19-44 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 44.204

§ 44.204 Notification to Account Debtor

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice to account debtors that the accounts have been assigned to the finance company in a factoring transaction. It may be used by the business owner when the finance company requires the business owner to give notification to account debtors, and the finance company does not prescribe or provide a different form. Finance companies usually prescribe the form of notification.

This form may be enclosed with a regular account billing statement. If this form is to be printed as part of the billing statement, the resulting statement should be reviewed for compliance with applicable requirements, if any, under state and federal credit-selling laws and regulations. For discussion of some of those laws, see Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales.

[b] Ensuring Effectiveness

No form of notification is prescribed in Division 9 of the Commercial Code, but the following rules concern the effectiveness of a notification. The following rules are subject to any law other than Division 9 of the Commercial insofar as that other law establishes a different rule for an account debtor who is an individual and who incurred the obligation primarily for personal, family, or household purposes [Com. Code § 9406(h)]:

- Notification is ineffective if it does not reasonably identify the rights assigned [Com. Code § 9406(b)(1)].
- Notification is ineffective at the option of the account debtor if the notification notifies the account debtor to make less than the full amount of any installment or other periodic payment to the assignee, even if (1) only a portion of the account has been assigned to that assignee, or (2) a portion has been assigned to another assignee, or (3) the account debtor knows that the assignment to that assignee is limited [Com. Code § 9406(b)(3)]. An account debtor may not waive or vary this option [Com. Code §

9406(g)].

CHAPTER 45 CONSUMER INSTALLMENT LOANS AND CREDIT SALES

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide Scope

Scope

Scope

This chapter covers government regulation of consumer closed-end (single-transaction) credit. It begins with a discussion of closed-end credit arrangements, including direct loans and credit sales, which are the two main types of closed-end financing. This discussion includes an introduction to typical financing arrangements between retailers who make credit sales and the lending institutions that ultimately provide the credit; for in-depth discussion of dealer financing, refer to Rabkin & Johnson, Current Legal Forms with Tax Analysis, Ch. 6, Credit and Finance (Matthew Bender), and Forms and Procedures Under the UCC, Article 9, Secured Transactions, Pts. 10-15 (Matthew Bender).

The federal Truth in Lending Act [15 U.S.C. §§ 1601-1667e] and its implementing regulation, Federal Reserve Board Regulation Z [12 C.F.R. pt. 226], as they apply to closed-end credit, are discussed. The California Unruh Act [Civ. Code §§ 1801-1812.20] requirements for retail installment contracts are also covered, and coordinated with the federal regulations. The chapter also deals with equal credit rights at both the state and federal levels, cosigner liability, credit disability insurance, and the regulation of credit reporting agencies. Special rules governing consumer loans secured by real property are also covered in this chapter.

If the credit transaction involves the purchase of an automobile, the attorney should consult Ch. 47, Automotive Financing and Vehicle Leasing, and use only the portions of this chapter that concern the Truth in Lending Act. Government regulation of open-end credit plans, including Truth in Lending Act and Unruh Act requirements, can be found in Ch. 46, Credit Card and Other Open-End Credit Transactions. If an extension of credit is secured by an interest in the consumer's dwelling, somewhat different rights and duties, including a right to rescind the contract, arise under the Truth in Lending Act. These provisions are covered in Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans.

This chapter contains coverage only of consumer credit transactions. For a discussion of credit extensions to businesses, see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions, Ch. 43, Commercial Loans, and Ch. 44, Accounts Receivable Financing and Factoring.

A. Closed-End Credit Arrangements

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 45.10

§ 45.10 Closed-End Credit

"Closed-end credit" generally refers to a single extension of credit that usually takes the form of the loan of a fixed amount or a single purchase credit transaction. Under Regulation Z [12 C.F.R. pt. 226], closed-end credit is defined by exclusion: it includes any consumer credit other than open-end credit [12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)]. "Open end credit plan" and "open end consumer credit plan" mean consumer credit extended under a plan under which the creditor reasonably contemplates repeated transactions, a finance charge may be imposed from time to time on any outstanding unpaid balance, and further credit is generally made available to the consumer to the extent that any outstanding balance is repaid [15 U.S.C. § 1602(i); 12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(20)]. An open-end credit arrangement typically involves a credit card or revolving account.

The most common closed-end credit arrangements are direct loans and credit sales.

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 45.11

§ 45.11 Direct Loans

Direct loans are made by a bank directly to the consumer requesting the loan. The consumer is or becomes the bank's customer and comes in personally to see a loan officer in the appropriate department of the bank.

The loan officer will evaluate the prospective customer's reputation, earning capacity, ability to repay the loan, and purpose for requesting the loan. The loan application and credit evaluation procedures must comply with state and federal equal credit protection law [see § 45.20], and federal Truth in Lending legislation [see §§ 45.30-45.36]. However, when a bank or other supervised financial organization extends direct loans to consumers, it is not generally subject to the requirements for retail installment contracts imposed by the Unruh Act [see Civ. Code § 1801.6(b)].

CHAPTER 45 CONSUMER INSTALLMENT LOANS AND CREDIT SALES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Closed-End Credit Arrangements

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 45.12

§ 45.12 Credit Sales

[1] Definition

Rather than obtaining a loan directly from a bank, a consumer may arrange financing for a purchase through the dealer. A transaction in which a dealer or seller is also a creditor is a credit sale [12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(16)]. Whether the dealer assigns the obligation to a bank [see [2], below] or extends the credit personally, the consumer deals directly only with the dealer in a credit sale transaction.

[2] Financing Agreements Between Dealer and Bank

Due to the growth of the practice of time buying, dealers wishing to remain competitive are increasingly being called upon to extend credit to the consumer. If the dealer extends the credit personally, the dealer will wait to recover the cost of the item sold as well as to realize a profit. Therefore, dealers frequently enter into an agreement with a bank or finance company for continuous financing of consumer contracts.

A bank will subject a dealer to extensive scrutiny before entering an arrangement to purchase contracts under a standing financing agreement. The thoroughness of this examination will depend on whether the dealer is seeking terms providing for the purchase of installment paper with or without recourse [see [3], below]. The examination endeavors to ascertain both whether the dealer can be trusted to accurately take accurate credit applications and report facts on which the bank will rely, and whether consumers whose obligations the bank will be purchasing will be satisfied with the goods and services provided by the dealer.

[3] Terms of Dealer Financing Agreements

The terms available to a dealer seeking financing of installment paper vary among lending institutions and even within the same bank. The first important term is whether the paper will be purchased with or without recourse. If purchased with recourse, the dealer remains liable for installment contracts in default typically through an agreement to repurchase them. If purchased without recourse, the bank can never look to the dealer to recover funds already advanced; however, the dealer may have on deposit with the bank a reserve consisting of a portion of the service charges which may be earned on each contract and some without-recourse agreements provide that this reserve may be applied to cover losses resulting from defaulting consumers.

While at first glance, it might appear that a dealer would always prefer to sell paper without recourse and avoid liability for funds already received, this is not always the best decision because a bank will charge substantially more for purchasing without recourse. Therefore, if the dealer believes there will be few defaulting consumers, it may be preferable to sell paper with recourse to obtain a better rate from the bank.

[4] Operation of Dealer Financing Agreements

The bank will provide forms complying with the Unruh Act and federal Truth in Lending Act to a dealer operating under a financing agreement with the bank. When a consumer wants credit, the dealer will take the consumer's credit application on a bank form. The application will be shown to the bank before the sale is made so that the dealer can be certain that the bank will purchase the resulting paper. If the bank approves the application, the dealer will consummate the sale with the consumer by having the consumer execute the appropriate sales documents and disclosure statements. The dealer will then assign the paper to the bank on the previously agreed terms, receiving the agreed advance from the bank.

After the installment paper has been assigned to the bank, the bank will send the consumer a coupon or payment booklet and notice of the assignment of the contract. The consumer will generally mail payments to the bank directly (direct collection). A few high volume dealers will be allowed by the bank to make their own collections and forward them to the bank (indirect collection). A dealer may prefer indirect collection if the dealer does not want the consumer to know that the contract has been assigned or wants a continuing relationship with the consumer in the hope of getting additional business.

[5] Installment Paper as Collateral

In addition to raising money through sale of installment paper, a high-volume dealer may borrow money secured by the paper by assigning the paper to the bank as collateral for a loan. A volume dealer may prefer this financing arrangement to the outright sale of its paper because the bank's charge to the dealer is less on this type of loan. In addition, if the dealer has the ability to handle its own collections efficiently, the dealer receives the service charges generated by the consumer paper, and the consumer remains in contract with the dealer as opposed to becoming the bank's customer.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Closed-End Credit Arrangements

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 45.13

§ 45.13 Consumer Loans Secured By Real Property

[1] Governing Statutes

Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. imposes requirements on regulated lenders (banks, savings associations, credit unions, finance lenders, residential mortgage lenders) and real estate brokers, with respect to the making of consumer loans that are secured by real property [see American Financial Services Association v. City of Oakland (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 1435, 1463, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 745 (reviewing history of legislation and holding that it did not preempt city's lending ordinance)]. The requirements discussed in this section affect covered loans for which applications are made after June 2002 [Stats. 2001, Ch. 732, § 3].

[2] Definitions

[a] Annual Percentage Rate

"Annual percentage rate" means the annual percentage rate for the loan calculated according to the provisions of the federal Truth in Lending Act [see 15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.] and the regulations adopted under that act by the Federal Reserve Board [Fin. Code § 4970(a)]. For discussion of the act and Regulation Z (concerning formalities and disclosures under the Act), see §§ 45.30 et seq. and 45.50 et seq.

[b] Consumer Loan

"Consumer loan" means a consumer credit transaction that is secured by real property located in California used, or intended to be used or occupied, as the principal dwelling of the consumer that is improved by a one-to-four residential unit. "Consumer loan" does not include a reverse mortgage, an open line of credit as defined in Regulation Z [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.1 et seq.], or a consumer credit transaction that is secured by rental property or second homes. "Consumer loan" does not include a bridge loan with a maturity of less than one year if the purpose of the loan is a bridge loan connected with the acquisition or construction of a dwelling intended to become the consumer's principal dwelling [Fin. Code § 4970(d)].

[c] Covered Loan

A "covered loan" is a consumer loan [see [b], above] in which the original principal balance of the loan does not exceed the most current conforming loan limit for a single-family first mortgage loan established by the Federal National Mortgage Association, in the case of a mortgage or deed of trust, and with respect to which one of the following conditions is met:

- For a mortgage or deed of trust, the annual percentage rate at consummation of the transaction will exceed by more than eight percentage points the yield on U.S. Treasury securities having comparable periods of maturity on the 15th day of the month immediately preceding the month in which the application for the extension of credit is received by the creditor [Fin. Code § 4970(b)(1)].
- The total points and fees payable by the consumer at or before closing for a mortgage or deed of trust will exceed 6 percent of the total loan amount [Fin. Code § 4970(b)(2)]; see Wolski v. Fremont Investment & Loan (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 347, 350, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 500 (yield spread premium (YSP) paid in connection with residential mortgage loan was not included in definition of points and fees payable by borrower at or before closing under Fin. Code § 4970(b)(1)(B); transaction was not "covered loan" when total points and fees exceeded six percent only if YSP was included); see also [h], below].

[d] Licensed Person

"Licensed person" means any of the following [Fin. Code § 4970(g)]:

- A real estate broker licensed under the Real Estate Law [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10000 et seq.];
- A commercial or industrial bank organized under the Banking Law [see Fin. Code § 99 et seq.];
- A savings association organized under the Savings Association Law [see Fin. Code § 5000 et seq.];
- A credit union organized under the California Credit Union Law [see Fin. Code § 14000 et seq.];
- A finance lender or broker licensed under the California Finance Lenders Law [see Fin. Code § 22000 et seq.]; or
- A residential mortgage lender licensed under the California Residential Mortgage Lending Act [see Fin. Code § 50000 et seq.].

A licensed person includes any person engaged in the practice of consumer lending, as defined in Fin. Code § 4970 et seq., for which a license is required under any other provision of law, but whose license is invalid, suspended or revoked, or who has not obtained the required license [Fin. Code § 4970(g)].

Nothing in Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. prevents any enforcement by a governmental entity against any person who originates a loan and who is exempt or excluded from licensure by all of the licensing agencies, based on a violation of any provision of Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. In addition, nothing in Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. prevents the Department of Real Estate from enforcing Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. against a licensed salesperson employed by a licensed real estate broker as if that salesperson were a licensed person under Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. [Fin. Code § 4970(g)].

[e] Licensing Agency

"Licensing agency" means the Department of Real Estate for licensed real estate brokers, the Department of Corporations for licensed residential mortgage lenders and licensed finance lenders and brokers, and the Department of Financial Institutions for commercial and industrial banks and savings associations and credit unions organized in California [Fin. Code § 4970(f)].

[f] Original Principal Balance

"Original principal balance" means the total initial amount the consumer is obligated to repay on the loan [Fin. Code § 4970(e)].

[g] Originate

"Originate" means to arrange, negotiate, or make a consumer loan [Fin. Code § 4970(h)].

[h] Points and Fees

"Points and fees" includes the following:

- All items required to be disclosed as finance charges under 12 C.F.R. § 226.4(a) and (b), including the Official Staff Commentary, as amended from time to time, except interest [Fin. Code § 4970(c)(1)].
- All compensation and fees paid to mortgage brokers in connection with the loan transaction [Fin. Code § 4970(c)(2)].
- All items listed in 12 C.F.R. § 226.4(c)(7), only if the person originating the covered loan receives direct compensation in connection with the charge [Fin. Code § 4970(c)(3)].

A yield spread premium (YSP) paid in connection with a residential mortgage loan is not included in the definition of points and fees payable by a borrower at or before closing under Fin. Code § 4970 [Wolski v. Fremont Investment & Loan (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 347, 350, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 500 (transaction did not violate predatory lending law because it was not "covered loan"; total points and fees exceeded six percent only if YSP was included)].

For discussion of the referenced federal regulations (concerning components of the finance charge under the federal Truth in Lending Act), see §§ 45.51[1] and [2].

[i] Servicer

The term "servicer" has the same meaning provided in 12 U.S.C. § 2605(i)(2) (in the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act of 1974) [Fin. Code § 4970(i)].

[3] Exemptions

Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. do not apply to persons chartered by Congress to engage in secondary mortgage market transactions [Fin. Code § 4979.8]. These provisions also do not impose liability on an assignee that is a holder in due course [Fin. Code § 4979.8].

[4] Prohibited Loan Provisions and Acts

[a] Prepayment Penalty

A covered loan may not include a prepayment fee or penalty after the first 36 months after the date of consummation of the loan [Fin. Code § 4973(a)(1)]. A covered loan may include a prepayment fee or penalty up to the first 36 months after the date of consummation of the loan if all of the following conditions are satisfied:

- The person who originates the covered loan has also offered the consumer a choice of another product without a prepayment fee or penalty [Fin. Code § 4973(a)(2)(A)].
- The person who originates the covered loan has disclosed in writing to the consumer at least three business days prior to loan consummation the terms of the prepayment fee or penalty to the consumer for accepting a covered loan with the prepayment penalty and the rates, points, and fees that would be available to the consumer for accepting a covered loan without a prepayment penalty [Fin. Code § 4973(a)(2)(B)].
- The person who originates the covered loan has limited the amount of the prepayment fee or penalty to an amount not to exceed the payment of six months' advance interest, at the contract rate of interest then in effect, on the amount prepaid in any 12-month period in excess of 20 percent of the original principal amount [Fin. Code § 4973(a)(2)(C)].
- A covered loan will not impose the prepayment fee or penalty if the covered loan is accelerated as a result of default [Fin. Code § 4973(a)(2)(D)].
- The person who originates the covered loan will not finance a prepayment penalty through a new loan that is originated by the same person [Fin. Code § 4973(a)(2)(E)].

[b] Payment Schedule

A covered loan with a term of five years or less must not provide at origination for a payment schedule with regular periodic payments that, when aggregated, do not fully amortize the principal balance as of the maturity date of the loan [Fin. Code § 4973(b)(1)].

For a payment schedule that is adjusted to account for the seasonal or irregular income of the consumer, the total installments in any year must not exceed the amount of one year's worth of payments on the loan. This prohibition does not apply to a "bridge loan," which is a loan with a maturity of less than 18 months that only requires payments of interest until the time when the entire unpaid balance is due and payable [Fin. Code § 4973(b)(2)].

A covered loan must not contain a provision for negative amortization under which the payment schedule for regular monthly payments causes the principal balance to increase, unless the covered loan is a first mortgage and the licensed person discloses to the consumer that the loan contains a negative amortization provision that may add principal to the balance of the loan [Fin. Code § 4973(c)].

[c] Payments From Loan Proceeds

A covered loan must not include terms under which periodic payments required under the loan are consolidated and paid in advance from the loan proceeds [Fin. Code § 4973(d)].

A person who originates a covered loan must not pay a contractor under a home improvement contract from the proceeds of a covered loan other than by an instrument payable to the consumer or jointly to the consumer and the contractor or, at the election of the consumer, to a third-party escrow agent for the benefit of the contractor in accordance with terms and conditions established in a written escrow agreement signed by the consumer, the person who originates a covered loan, and the contractor prior to the disbursement of funds. No payments, other than progress payments for home improvement work that the consumer certifies is completed, may be made to an escrow account or jointly to the consumer and the contractor unless the person who originates the loan is presented with a signed and dated completion certificate by the consumer showing that the home improvement contract was completed to the satisfaction of the consumer [Fin. Code § 4973(g)].

[d] Interest Rate

A covered loan may not contain a provision that increases the interest rate as a result of a default. However, this does not apply to interest rate changes in a variable rate loan otherwise consistent with the provisions of the loan documents, provided the change in the interest rate is not triggered by the event of default or the acceleration for the indebtedness [Fin. Code § 4973(e)].

[e] Acceleration

A covered loan must not contain a call provision that permits the lender, in its sole discretion, to accelerate the indebtedness. This prohibition does not apply, however, if repayment of the loan has been accelerated in accordance with the terms of the loan documents as a result of the consumer's default, or pursuant to a due-on-sale provision, or due to fraud or material misrepresentation by a consumer in connection with the loan or the value of the security for the loan. A licensed person must not refinance or arrange for the refinancing of a consumer loan such that the new loan is a covered loan that is made for the purpose of refinancing, debt consolidation or cash out, that does not result in an identifiable benefit to the consumer, considering the consumer's stated purpose for seeking the loan, fees, interest rates, finance charges, and points [Fin. Code § 4973(i)].

[f] Points and Fees

A person who originates a covered loan must not make a covered loan that finances points and fees in excess of $1,000 or 6 percent of the original principal balance, exclusive of points and fees, whichever is greater [Fin. Code § 4979.6].

[g] Credit Insurance

After June 2002, a person who originates a consumer loan must not finance, directly or indirectly, into a consumer loan transaction or finance to the same borrower, within 30 days of a consumer loan transaction, any credit life, credit disability, credit property, or credit unemployment insurance premiums, or any debt cancellation or suspension agreement or contract fees, provided that insurance premiums, debt cancellation, or suspension fees computed and paid on a monthly basis will not be considered financed by the person originating the loan. Credit insurance does not include a contract issued by a government agency or private mortgage insurance company to insure the lender against loss caused by a mortgagor's default [Fin. Code § 4979.7].

[h] Default on Existing Loan

It is unlawful for a person who originates a covered loan to recommend or encourage a consumer to default on an existing consumer loan or other debt in connection with the solicitation or making of a covered loan that refinances all or any portion of the existing consumer loan or debt [Fin. Code § 4973(h)].

[i] Borrower's Risk Grade

A person who originates a covered loan must not steer, counsel, or direct any prospective consumer to accept a loan product with a risk grade less favorable than the risk grade for which the consumer would qualify based on that person's then current underwriting guidelines, prudently applied, considering the information available to that person, including the information provided by the consumer. A person will not be deemed to have violated Fin. Code § 4973 if the risk grade determination applied to a consumer is reasonably based on the person's underwriting guidelines if it is an appropriate risk grade category for which the consumer qualifies with the person [Fin. Code § 4973(m)(1)].

If a broker originates a covered loan, the broker must not steer, counsel, or direct any prospective consumer to accept a loan product at a higher cost than that for which the consumer could qualify based on the loan products offered by the persons with whom the broker regularly does business [Fin. Code § 4973(m)(2)].

[5] Duties of Person Originating Loan

[a] Assessment of Borrower's Ability to Repay

A person who originates covered loans may not make or arrange a covered loan unless at the time the loan is consummated, the person reasonably believes the consumer, or consumers, when considered collectively in the case of multiple consumers, will be able to make the scheduled payments to repay the obligation based upon a consideration of their current and expected income, current obligations, employment status, and other financial resources, other than the consumer's equity in the dwelling that secures repayment of the loan. In the case of a covered loan that is structured to increase to a specific designated rate, stated as a number or formula, at a specific predetermined date not exceeding 37 months from the date of application, this evaluation must be based upon the fully indexed rate of the loan calculated at the time of application. The consumer must be presumed to be able to make the scheduled payments to repay the obligation if, at the time the loan is consummated, the consumer's total monthly debts, including amounts owed under the loan, do not exceed 55 percent of the consumer's monthly gross income, as verified by the credit application, the consumer's financial statement, a credit report, financial information provided to the person originating the loan by or on behalf of the consumer, or any other reasonable means [Fin. Code § 4973(f)(1)].

No presumption of inability to make the scheduled payments to repay the obligation can arise solely from the fact that at the time the loan is consummated, the consumer's total monthly debts, including amounts owed under the loan, exceed 55 percent of the consumer's monthly gross income [Fin. Code § 4973(f)(2)].

In the case of a stated income loan, the reasonable belief requirement in Fin. Code § 4973(f)(1) applies; however, for stated income loans, that belief may be based on the income stated by the consumer, and other information in the possession of the person originating the loan after the solicitation of all information that the person customarily solicits in connection with loans of this type. A person must not knowingly or willfully originate a covered loan as a stated income loan with the intent, or effect, of evading the provisions of Fin. Code § 4973(f) [Fin. Code § 4973(f)(3)].

[b] Disclosure to Consumer

A covered loan may not be made unless the a specified disclosure has been provided to the consumer no later than three business days prior to signing of the loan documents of the transaction [Fin. Code § 4973(j)(1); see § 45.229].

[c] Information to Employees

A person who originates covered loans must inform any employee, who originates covered loans on behalf of the person, of the administrative, civil, and criminal penalties for a violation of Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. [Fin. Code § 4978.6].

[d] Documentation to Consumer or Licensing Agency

On request, a person who originates a covered loan must provide the licensing agency or the consumer, at no cost, documentation regarding his or her loan that clearly demonstrates whether any loan is a covered loan. This documentation must include, but is not limited to, full disclosure of the original principal balance, the annual percentage rate, and the total points and fees, as defined in Fin. Code § 4971 [Fin. Code § 4979].

[e] Evasion or Avoidance

A person who originates a covered loan cannot avoid, and must not attempt to avoid, the application of Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. by doing either of the following:

- Structuring a loan transaction as an open-end credit plan for the purpose of evading the provisions of Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. when the loan would have been a covered loan if the loan had been structured as a closed-end loan [Fin. Code § 4973(n)(1)].
- Dividing any loan transaction into separate parts for the purpose of evading the provisions of Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. [Fin. Code § 4973(n)(2)].

A person who originates a covered loan must not act in any manner, whether specifically prohibited by Fin. Code § 4973 or of a different character, that constitutes fraud [Fin. Code § 4973(o)].

[6] Noncompliance

[a] Unintentional Errors

Any compliance failure that was not willful or intentional and resulted from a bona fide error, that occurred notwithstanding the maintenance of procedures reasonably adopted to avoid those errors, including, but not limited to, those involving clerical errors, computation errors, computer malfunction and programming errors, and printing errors must be corrected no later than 45 days after receipt of the complaint or discovery of the error. A person who originates a covered loan is not administratively, civilly, or criminally liable for a bona fide error that is duly corrected. An error in legal judgment is not a bona fide error [Fin. Code § 4974(a)].

[b] Automatic Licensing-Law Violation

Any licensed person who violates any provision of Fin. Code §§ 4973, 4979.6, or 4979.7 is deemed to have violated that person's licensing law [Fin. Code § 4975(a)(1)]. After any action under Fin. Code § 4978.5 resulting in a conviction, the licensing agency may bring a proceeding to suspend the license of the licensed person for not less than six months and not more than three years [Fin. Code § 4975(a)(2)]. After any action under Fin. Code § 4978.5 resulting in a second or subsequent conviction, the licensing agency may bring a proceeding to permanently revoke the license of the licensed person or impose any lesser licensed sanction for at least three years [Fin. Code § 4975(b)].

A licensing agency may exercise any authority available to it under any other provisions of law, to administer and enforce Fin. Code § 4970 et seq., including, but not limited to, investigating and examining the licensed person's books and records, and charging and collecting the reasonable costs for these activities. The licensing agency may not charge a licensed person twice for the same service. Any civil, criminal, and administrative authority and remedies available to the licensing agency pursuant to its licensing law may be sought and employed in any combination deemed advisable by the licensing agency to enforce the provisions of Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. [Fin. Code § 4977(c)].

[c] Administrative Penalty, Forced Restitution, or Disgorgement

A licensing agency may, by order after appropriate notice and opportunity for hearing, levy administrative penalties against a person who violates any provision of Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. A person may be liable for administrative penalties of not more than $2,500 for each violation [Fin. Code § 4977(a)].

If the licensing agency determines that it is in the public interest, the licensing agency may include, in any action for penalties authorized by Fin. Code § 4977(b), a claim for relief in addition to the penalties, including a claim for restitution or disgorgement, and the court has jurisdiction to award the additional relief [Fin. Code § 4977(d)].

[d] Civil Penalty

Any person who willfully and knowingly violates any provision of Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. is liable for a civil penalty of not more than $25,000 for each violation which must be assessed and recovered in a civil action brought in the name of the people of the State of California by the licensing agency in any court of competent jurisdiction [Fin. Code § 4977(b)].

Nothing in Fin. Code § 4977 impairs or impedes the attorney general from representing a licensing agency in bringing an action to enforce Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. at the request and on behalf of the licensing agency [Fin. Code § 4977(e)].

[e] Liability to Consumer for Damages

A person who fails to comply with Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. is liable to the consumer in an amount equal to any actual damages suffered by the consumer, plus attorneys' fees and costs. For a willful and knowing violation of Fin. Code § 4970 et seq., the person is liable to the consumer in the amount of $15,000 or the consumers actual damages, whichever is greater, plus attorneys' fees and costs [Fin. Code § 4978(a)]. The court may also award punitive damages to the consumer on a finding that such damages are warranted pursuant to Civ. Code § 3294 [Fin. Code § 4978(b)].

Nothing in Fin. Code § 4978 abrogates existing common law provisions prohibiting double recovery of damages [Fin. Code § 4978(c)].

[f] Knowledge of Broker's Violation

If a person who originates covered loans makes a loan when the person knew of and showed reckless disregard for a violation of Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. by a broker, the person and broker are jointly and severally liable for all damages awarded under Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. with respect to the broker's unlawful conduct. However, this provision does not impose or transfer liability for a breach of the broker's fiduciary duty [Fin. Code § 4974(b)].

[g] Voidability of Nonconforming Loan

A provision in a covered loan that violates Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. is unenforceable. A court in which any action is brought by, or on behalf of, an aggrieved consumer for relief may issue an order or injunction to reform the terms of the covered loan to conform to the provisions of Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. [Fin. Code § 4978(b)].

[7] Broker's Fiduciary Duty

A person who provides brokerage services to a borrower in a covered loan transaction by soliciting lenders or otherwise negotiating a consumer loan secured by real property, is the fiduciary of the consumer, and any violation of the person's fiduciary duties is a violation of Fin. Code § 4979.5. A broker who arranges a covered loan owes this fiduciary duty to the consumer regardless of who else the broker may be acting as an agent for in the course of the loan transaction [Fin. Code § 4979.5(a)].

Except for a broker or a person who provides brokerage services, no licensed person or subsequent assignee has administrative, civil, or criminal liability for a violation of Fin. Code § 4979.5 [Fin. Code § 4979.5(b)].

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 45.20

§ 45.20 Equal Credit Opportunity Act

The Equal Credit Opportunity Act [15 U.S.C. §§ 1691-1691f] prohibits discrimination by a creditor against a credit applicant in any aspect of a credit transaction on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex, marital status, or age (provided applicant has capacity to contract) [15 U.S.C. § 1691(a)]. In addition, a creditor may not discriminate against an applicant merely because all or part of the applicant's income derives from public assistance or because the applicant has exercised any right under consumer protection laws [15 U.S.C. § 1691(a)]. A detailed set of regulations implements the Act [see 12 C.F.R. pt. 202 (Regulation B)]. These regulations control the information that may be requested in credit applications, the factors that may be considered in evaluating credit worthiness, and, to some extent, the types and forms of credit extensions and accounts [12 C.F.R. §§ 202.5-202.7; see § 45.120[1]].

Under the Equal Credit Opportunity Act, a "creditor" is a person who, in the ordinary course of business, regularly participates in the decision of whether or not to extend credit. The term also includes a creditor's assignee, transferee, or subrogee [12 C.F.R. § 202.2(l)]. In general, "creditor" also includes a person who, in the ordinary course of business, regularly refers applicants or prospective applicants to creditors, or selects or offers to select creditors to whom requests for credit may be made [12 C.F.R. § 202.2(l); see 12 C.F.R. §§ 202.4, 202.5(a)].

California has similar but less extensive legislation concerning the rights of credit applicants [Civ. Code §§ 1812.30-1812.35]. California law requires that credit applicants who control similar amounts of property and earnings be treated equally in credit transactions, regardless of sex or marital status. Additionally, no person may be denied credit in his or her own name on the basis of sex or marital status [Civ. Code § 1812.30(a)-(d)]. Violation of either the federal or state law may result in civil liability for actual and punitive damages [15 U.S.C. § 1691e(b); Civ. Code § 1812.31].

§ 45.21 Credit Denial Disclosures

Under the Equal Credit Opportunity Act, a creditor must notify an applicant of action taken on a credit request within 30 days after receipt of the application [15 U.S.C. § 1691(d)(1)]. In particular, the applicant is entitled to a statement of the specific reasons for the denial of credit, or a notification of credit denial informing the applicant of his or her right to a statement of the specific reasons [12 C.F.R. § 202.9(a)(2); see § 45.210]. The notification and statement of reasons must be in writing unless the creditor did not receive more than 150 credit applications during the preceding calendar year in which case all disclosures may be made orally [12 C.F.R. § 202.9(d)].

In California, the Holden Credit Denial Disclosure Act of 1976 [Civ. Code §§ 1787.1-1787.3] contains almost identical disclosure requirements on the denial of credit; however, there is no exception for creditors having a small number of applicants. All creditors must provide a written notification of credit denial [Civ. Code § 1787.2(b)(2)]. The statement of reasons may be given orally if the written notification advises the applicant of the right to have the reasons confirmed in writing on written request [Civ. Code § 1787.2(b)(3)].

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 45.22

§ 45.22 Credit Information Reporting

[1] Duty to Report Information in Names of Both Husband and Wife

To ensure that credit histories will be available to women who become divorced or widowed, the Equal Credit Opportunity Act requires that credit information be reported in the names of both the husband and wife [see 12 C.F.R. § 202.10]. Any new account must be designated to reflect the participation of both spouses if both will be contractually liable on the account or if both will be allowed to use it; any existing account must be designated to reflect this participation within 90 days of a written request for this designation from one of the spouses [12 C.F.R. § 202.10(a)]. These requirements apply only to those creditors who choose to furnish credit information; there is no mandate that a creditor furnish credit information on its accounts [12 C.F.R. pt. 202, supp. I, § 202.10(1) (Official Staff Interpretations)]. If a creditor furnishes credit information in response to an inquiry about an account designated to reflect the participation of both spouses, the creditor must furnish the information in the name of the spouse about whom the information is requested [12 C.F.R. § 202.10(c)].

In California, credit agencies have further reporting duties in this regard. Information concerning joint accounts must be filed under the name of each person or spouse and each party must have access to the credit history of the joint account without having to refer to the name of the other person [Civ. Code § 1812.30(e)]. For further discussion of credit reporting agencies, see Ch. 92, Service Contracts.

[2] Duty to Deliver Copy of Consumer Contract, Credit Application

Under California's Consumer Contract Awareness Act of 1990 [Civ. Code §§ 1799.200-1799.207], a copy of a consumer contract [see Civ. Code § 1799.201(b) (definition)] must be delivered to the consumer at the time it is signed if it is executed at a place of business of the seller. If the contract is not signed by the consumer at a place of business of the seller and the seller does not provide a copy of the contract for the consumer to keep, the seller must mail or deliver a copy of the contract to the consumer within 10 calendar days after the seller receives the signed contract [Civ. Code § 1799.202(a)]. The copy provided to the consumer cannot contain any blank spaces to be completed after the consumer signs and it must contain the seller's signature, if it provides for that signature, and it may contain the consumer's signature [Civ. Code § 1799.202(a)]. Similar requirements apply to consumer contract guaranties [see Civ. Code §

1799.206(a)].

Within a reasonable time after receiving a written request from a consumer, a seller or financial institution must mail a copy of the consumer's completed consumer credit application to the consumer at the address in the request [see Civ. Code § 1799.202(d)].

Any waiver of the provisions of the Consumer Contract Awareness Act of 1990 is contrary to public policy and is unenforceable [Civ. Code § 1799.207].

§ 45.23 Credit Reporting Agency Requirements

[1] Consumer Credit Reporting Agencies Act

The California Consumer Credit Reporting Agencies Act [Civ. Code §§ 1785.1-1785.36] requires consumer credit reporting agencies to adopt reasonable procedures in the furnishing of consumer information that meets the needs of commerce and that are fair and equitable to the consumer [Civ. Code § 1785.1(d)]. The Act is modeled largely on the federal Fair Credit Reporting Act [see [2], below], and imposes similar requirements [see, e.g., Schoendorf v. U.D. Registry, Inc. (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 227, 238, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 313 (tenant's action against reporting agency for refusal to add clarifying information to her report in violation of both state CCRAA and federal FCRA)]. Accordingly, separate requirements of the California act are covered in [2], below, only when they differ from federal requirements. For detailed discussion of both the California and federal acts, see Ch. 92, Service Contracts, § 92.80.

Civ. Code § 1785.13(a)(3) has been held to be unconstitutional by the Court of Appeal for the Second District, as a violation of the free speech rights of the First Amendment [U.D. Registry, Inc. v. State of California (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 107, 114-116, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 228]. Civ. Code § 1785.13(a)(3) forbids a consumer credit reporting agency from including information about unlawful detainer actions in a consumer credit report, unless the lessor was the prevailing party.

[2] Fair Credit Reporting Act

[a] Purpose

The purpose of the Fair Credit Reporting Act is to require consumer credit reporting agencies to adopt reasonable procedures for meeting the needs of commerce for consumer credit, personnel, insurance, and other information in a manner that is fair and equitable to the consumer, with regard to the confidentiality, accuracy, relevancy, and proper utilization of that information [15 U.S.C. § 1681(b)].

[b] Definitions

[i] Consumer Report

A "consumer report" is any written, oral, or other communication of information by a consumer reporting agency bearing on a consumer's creditworthiness, credit standing, credit capacity, character, general reputation, personal characteristics, or mode of living [15 U.S.C. § 1681a(d)(1)]. The consumer report serves the purpose of establishing the eligibility of the consumer for credit or insurance used for personal, family, or household purposes, for employment purposes, or for other purposes limited by statute [15 U.S.C. § 1681a(d)(1); see 15 U.S.C. § 1681b (permissible purposes)].

The California act uses the term "consumer credit report," and excludes many types of reports and communications from that term [see Civ. Code § 1785.3(c)].

[ii] Investigative Consumer Report

An "investigative consumer report" is a consumer report or portions of such a report in which information on a consumer's character, general reputation, personal characteristics, or mode of living is obtained through personal interviews with neighbors, friends, or associates of the consumer. The report may not contain factual information on a consumer's credit record obtained directly from a creditor of the consumer or from a consumer reporting agency if that information was obtained directly from a creditor of the consumer or from the consumer [15 U.S.C. § 1681a(e)].

Anyone who arranges for an investigative report must, on written request made by the consumer within a reasonable period after the consumer's receipt of the disclosure, make a complete and accurate disclosure of the nature and scope of the investigation requested. This subsequent disclosure must be made in writing and mailed or otherwise delivered to the consumer not later than five days after the date the request was received or the date the report was first requested, whichever is later [15 U.S.C. § 1681d(b)].

The person arranging for the report must also certify to the consumer reporting agency that it has made the disclosure required under 15 U.S.C. § 1681d(a) and that it will make the additional disclosure to the consumer required under 15 U.S.C. § 1681d(b) [15 U.S.C. § 1681d(b); see 15 U.S.C. § 1681d(c) (limitations on liability)].

For further discussion of investigative consumer reports under the Fair Credit Reporting Act, see Ch. 92, Service Contracts, § 92.80.

Under California law, investigative consumer reports must be prepared in accordance with the Investigative Consumer Reporting Agencies Act [Civ. Code § 1786 et seq.]. For discussion of this act, see Ch. 92, Service Contracts, § 92.80.

[c] Disclosure Procedure

With specified exceptions, a consumer reporting agency must make the disclosures required by 15 U.S.C. § 1681g in writing, on the request and proper identification of the consumer [see 15 U.S.C. §§ 1681g(a), 1681h(a); § 45.230]. However, if authorized by a consumer, a credit agency may make the required disclosures otherwise than in writing and in a form specified by the consumer in accordance with statutory requirements, if available from the agency [15 U.S.C. § 1681h(b)(1); see 15 U.S.C. § 1681h(b)(2) (requests may be in person, by telephone after written request, or by electronic or other reasonable means, if available from agency)].

The agency must provide trained personnel to explain to the consumer any information that is being furnished to him or her [15 U.S.C. § 1681h(c)]. The consumer may be accompanied by another person of his or her choosing, who must furnish reasonable identification. However, the agency may require the consumer to give it a written statement granting permission to discuss the consumer's file in that other person's presence [15 U.S.C. § 1681h(d); see 15 U.S.C. § 1681h(e) (limitations on liability)].

[d] Dispute and Deletion Procedures

The consumer may notify the consumer reporting agency directly, or indirectly through a reseller, of any dispute about either the completeness or accuracy of any item of information contained in the consumer's file. The agency must then investigate free of charge and record the current status of that information in accordance with specified procedures [see 15 U.S.C. § 1681i(a)] before the end of the 30-day period beginning on the date the agency receives notice of the dispute by the consumer [15 U.S.C. § 1681i(a)(1)(A); see 15 U.S.C. § 1681i(a)(1)(B), (C) (extension of period to investigate; limitations on extension); see also, e.g., Dennis v. BEH-1, LLC (9th Cir. 2007) - F.3d -, 2007 U.S. App. LEXIS 22690, at *9 (credit reporting agency must exercise reasonable diligence in re-examining court file to determine whether adverse judgment has, in fact, been entered against consumer; overlooking documents in court file expressly stating that no adverse judgment was entered falls far short of this standard; Experian Information Solutions, Inc., negligently failed to conduct reasonable reinvestigation)].

Within five business days, the consumer reporting agency must provide prompt notice of the dispute to the furnisher of the information [see 15 U.S.C. § 1681i(a)(2)] and must review and consider all relevant information submitted by the consumer [see 15 U.S.C. § 1681i(a)(4)]. After reinvestigation, the agency must promptly delete inaccurate or unverifiable information [see 15 U.S.C. § 1681i(a)(5)]. The agency must provide written notice of the results of the reinvestigation, including a description of the reinvestigation procedure, to the consumer within five business days of completion of the reinvestigation [see 15 U.S.C. § 1681i(a)(6)].

If the reinvestigation does not resolve the dispute, the customer is entitled to file a brief statement setting forth the nature of the dispute. The agency may limit such a statement to not more than 100 words if it assists the consumer in writing a clear summary of the dispute [15 U.S.C. § 1681i(b)].

After a statement of the dispute is filed (unless there are reasonable grounds to believe that the dispute is frivolous or irrelevant), the consumer reporting agency must, in any subsequent consumer report containing the information in question, clearly note that it is disputed by the consumer, and the agency must provide either the consumer's statement or a clear and accurate codification or summary of the dispute [15 U.S.C. § 1681i(c)].

Following any deletion of information that is found to be inaccurate, or the accuracy of which can no longer be verified, or following any notation as to disputed information, at the request of the consumer, the agency must furnish either (1) a notification that the item has been deleted or (2) a statement, codification, or summary of the dispute. This must be furnished to any person specifically designated by the consumer who, within the previous two years, has received a consumer report for employment purposes or who, within six months, has received a consumer report for any other purpose, if the report contained the deleted or disputed information [15 U.S.C. § 1681i(d)].

A consumer may dispute the accuracy of furnished information directly with a furnisher of information that is a financial institution, if the circumstances of the dispute meet conditions required to be specified in regulations by the federal banking agencies, the National Credit Union Administration, and the Federal Trade Commission [see 15 U.S.C. § 1681s-2(a)(8)(A)-(D)]. In that event, the financial institution has a duty to investigate (unless the dispute is frivolous or irrelevant) and to notify consumer reporting agencies of any discovered inaccuracies in the information furnished by the financial institution to those agencies [15 U.S.C. § 1681s-2(a)(8)(E),(F)].

When a furnisher of inaccurate information is not a financial institution, a consumer is obliged to deal with the consumer reporting agency whose report disclosed the inaccurate information [see 15 U.S.C. § 1681s-2(b) (duties of furnishers of information on receiving notice of dispute)]. If the consumer directly notifies the furnisher of the information, stating that the accuracy of the information is disputed, that notification will not trigger any duty by the furnisher to investigate the dispute [Sanai v. Saltz (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 746, 764-765, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 673 (furnisher of credit information has no responsibility to investigate credit dispute under 15 U.S.C. § 1681s-2(b) until after it receives notice from consumer reporting agency; notification from consumer is not enough)]. When the furnisher of the information receives notice of the dispute from the consumer reporting agency, the furnisher must [15 U.S.C. § 1681s-2(b)(1)]:

- Investigate the consumer's claim.
- Review all relevant information provided by the consumer reporting agency [see 15 U.S.C. § 1681i(a)(2)].
- Report the results of the investigation to the consumer reporting agency.
- Correct the information with each nationwide agency to which the furnisher has given the information, if the furnisher finds the information is inaccurate.
- Modify, delete, or permanently block that item of information, if the furnisher find the information is inaccurate.

The agency must complete all investigations and reports before the end of the 30-day period beginning on the date the furnisher receives notice of the dispute by the consumer [15 U.S.C. § 1681s-2(b)(2); see 15 U.S.C. § 1681s-2(c), (d) (limitations on liability; enforcement)].

[e] Fees for Disclosure or Notification of Deletion

A consumer is entitled to one free credit report during any 12-month period from the nationwide credit reporting agencies and all "nationwide specialty consumer reporting agencies" [see 15 U.S.C. § 1681j(a)(1); 15 U.S.C. § 1681j(g) (prevention of deceptive marketing of credit reports); see also 15 U.S.C. § 1681a(w) (definition)]. Reports from specialty agencies may contain data regarding the consumer's employment history, residential rental history, check writing history, insurance claims, or medical records or payments [see 15 U.S.C. § 1681a(w)].

A consumer is further entitled to a free credit report within 60 days after the consumer notifies the agency in accordance with statutory procedures, if a person takes any adverse action based, in whole or in part, on any information contained in a credit report [see 15 U.S.C. § 1681j(b); see 15 U.S.C. § 1681m (procedures)].

Free disclosures are also available when the decision of denial or increase of charges relating to credit for personal, family, or household purposes is based wholly or in part on certain information obtained from a third person other than a consumer reporting agency. The information must bear on the consumer's creditworthiness, credit standing, or credit capacity, character, general reputation, personal characteristics, or mode of living. The user, within a reasonable period, on the consumer's written request for the reasons for the adverse action received within 60 days after learning of the adverse action, must disclose the nature of the information to the consumer. The user of the information must clearly and accurately disclose to the consumer the consumer's right to make such a written request at the time the adverse action is communicated to the consumer [15 U.S.C. § 1681m(b)].

Free disclosure is also available under certain other circumstances [see 15 U.S.C. § 1681j(c), (d)].

Otherwise, the agency may impose a reasonable charge, which must be indicated to the consumer before disclosure or notification [see 15 U.S.C. § 1681j; see also Civ. Code § 1785.17 (California fees)].

C. Regulation of Consumer Credit Terms and Disclosures

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 45.30

§ 45.30 Coordination of Truth In Lending Act and Unruh Act

Two principal statutes govern consumer credit terms in California. The federal Truth in Lending Act (TILA), Subchapter I of the Consumer Credit Protection Act [15 U.S.C. §§ 1601-1667e], is designed to foster the informed use of consumer credit through uniform disclosure of credit terms and cost. The Act is administered under Regulation Z [12 C.F.R. pt. 226], issued by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System. The Unruh Act [Civ. Code §§ 1801-1812.20] provides consumer protection from abusive credit practices in the area of retail installment sales. The implementing feature of both acts is a detailed disclosure document.

While there are differences in coverage and application, the two laws are similar in purpose and contain many of the same disclosure requirements. Both acts can, and frequently do, apply to the same credit transaction. TILA preempts any inconsistent provisions of the Unruh Act [15 U.S.C. § 1610(a)]. The Unruh Act therefore permits the required disclosures to be made in any manner or terminology required or permitted by Regulation Z, provided that any additional requirements imposed by the Unruh Act must also be complied with and further provided that a creditor must always furnish a separate written itemization of the amount financed in the disclosure document [Civ. Code § 1801.5; see Civ. Code § 1803.3(b); 12 C.F.R. § 226.18(c)]. There are no inconsistencies between the two statutes that make compliance with both difficult; in fact, all contracts subject to the Unruh Act must contain the disclosures required by Regulation Z, whether or not Regulation Z is applicable to the transaction [Civ. Code § 1803.3(b)]. Thus, the different disclosure requirements can be coordinated in those credit transactions to which both acts apply [see Civ. Code § 1801.5 (Regulation Z disclosures); 15 U.S.C. § 1638(b)(1) (disclosures by closed-end creditors); 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.17 (disclosure requirements), 226.28 (effect on state laws); see also 12 C.F.R. § 226.36 (rules governing electronic delivery of disclosures, including definition of "electronic communication")].

§ 45.31 Making Use of Truth in Lending Disclosures

Different lending institutions legitimately use different methods for computing and stating interest rates. Even when two lenders use the same method and offer the same rate, one might impose a flat service charge, a premium for mandatory credit life insurance, or some other fee not required by the other. The Truth in Lending Act (TILA) disclosures standardize cost-of-credit calculations to permit accurate comparisons between different lenders. Thus, while the interest rate stated in one contract may not be comparable to that stated in another, the annual percentage rate (which, along with the other TILA information, must be conspicuously segregated from other contract terms [see 15 U.S.C. § 1638(b)(1)]), will be directly comparable. Similarly, the finance charge will be a comprehensive dollar total of all items that make up the cost of credit, permitting the consumer to see at a glance what it will cost him or her to borrow money or to purchase an item on an installment basis, regardless of how the lender denominates the items that constitute that cost.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

C. Regulation of Consumer Credit Terms and Disclosures

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 45.32

§ 45.32 Transactions Covered by Truth in Lending and Unruh Acts

[1] In General

The Truth in Lending Act (TILA) and Unruh Act apply only to consumer credit transactions, and only to those involving specified creditors [see [3], below]. A "consumer credit transaction" is one in which the credit extended, or the goods purchased, are primarily for personal, family, or household purposes [15 U.S.C. § 1602(h); 12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(12); Civ. Code § 1799.90]. Federal law specifically excludes credit for agricultural purposes from coverage, but the state act is silent on the subject [15 U.S.C. § 1603(1)]. Application of the Unruh Act to sales of goods for agricultural purposes is unlikely [see Com. Code § 9109 (farm equipment as business equipment, not consumer goods, under UCC); Crestwood Lumber Co. v. Citizens Sav. & Loan Assn. (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 819, 823, 148 Cal. Rptr. 129 (Unruh Act applies to consumer goods only); Witkin, Summary of California Law, vol. 4, Sales, § 268 (10th ed. 2005)].

[2] Limitations on Application of Truth in Lending Act

The Truth in Lending Act is not applicable to all consumer credit transactions. Credit extensions in excess of $25,000 are not covered unless they are secured by real property or a dwelling [12 C.F.R. § 226.3(b)]. Additionally, the Act applies only if the credit is subject to a finance charge, or is payable by written agreement in more than four installments [12 C.F.R. § 226.1(c)].

[3] Limitations on Application of Unruh Act

[a] Applicable Only to Retail Installment Sales

The Unruh Act applies only to retail installment sales of consumer goods or services. A retail installment sale is a sale by a person engaged in the business of selling consumer goods or services to a consumer, not principally for the purpose of resale, with payment in installments [see Civ. Code §§ 1802.1-1802.6]. Leases of goods are included if the lessee contracts to pay a sum substantially equivalent to or in excess of their value and it is agreed that the lessee will become for no consideration, or for a nominal consideration has the option of becoming, the owner of goods [Civ. Code §

1802.6].

[b] Contract Must Be Entered or Performed in California

The Unruh Act applies to retail installment contracts entered into or performed in California [see Civ. Code §§ 1802.6, 1802.7]. A contract will be deemed to have been made in California if either the seller offers or agrees in California to sell to a buyer who is a resident of California, or if a buyer who is a resident of California accepts or makes the offer in California to buy, regardless of the situs of the contract as specified in it [Civ. Code § 1802.19(a)]. Any solicitation or communication to sell, whether oral or written, that originates outside of California but that is forwarded to, and received in California by, a buyer who is a resident of California, will be deemed to be an offer or agreement to sell in California [Civ. Code § 1802.19(b)]. Any oral or written solicitation or communication to buy originating within California from a buyer who is a California resident, that is forwarded to, and received by, a retail seller outside of California, is deemed to be an acceptance or offer to buy in California [Civ. Code § 1802.19(c)].

[c] Unruh Act Inapplicable to Contracts for Certain Sales and Services

The Unruh Act does not apply to contracts for the construction, sale, or construction and sale of an entire residence, mobilehome, or commercial or industrial structure [Civ. Code § 1801.4]. In addition, contracts for the sale of real property are not covered by the Act [Civ. Code § 1801.4; but see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 10240-10248.3; see also Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans]. The Unruh Act also does not apply to contracts for the sale of certain aircraft, or certain vessels having a value over $25,000 [Civ. Code § 1801.4].

Motor vehicles are not treated as goods under the Unruh Act, nor are any goods sold with a motor vehicle under a contract governed by the Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act [Civ. Code § 1802.1; see Civ. Code §§ 2981-2984.4] or leased with a motor vehicle under a contract governed by the Vehicle Leasing Act [see Civ. Code §§ 2985.7-2990; see also Ch. 47, Automotive Financing and Vehicle Leasing]. However, the term "goods" does include a trailer that is sold in conjunction with a vessel unless the cash price of the vessel, including all accessories and equipment sold with it, exceeds $25,000 [Civ. Code §§ 1801.4, 1802.1; see Veh. Code § 9840(a) ("vessel" defined)].

While certain services furnished in connection with the sale or repair of goods [see Civ. Code § 1802.1 (definition)] are covered by the Unruh Act, the services of physicians and dentists and services subject to federal tariffs are outside coverage of the Act [Civ. Code § 1802.2].

C. Regulation of Consumer Credit Terms and Disclosures

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 45.33

§ 45.33 Creditors Covered by Truth in Lending Act

Under the Truth in Lending Act (TILA), a covered "creditor" is any person who regularly extends consumer credit payable by agreement in more than four installments, or consumer credit for which a finance charge may be imposed. The term also includes credit card issuers, whether or not the amount due is payable in more than four installments or a finance charge is required [15 U.S.C. § 1602(f); 12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(17)]. Under the implementing guidelines of Regulation Z [12 C.F.R. pt. 226], TILA applies to individuals and businesses that offer or extend credit when (1) the credit is offered or extended to consumers, (2) the offering or extension is done regularly, (3) the credit is subject to a finance charge or is payable by a written agreement in more than four installment, and (4) the credit is primarily for personal, family, or household purposes [12 C.F.R. § 226.1(c)(1)].

A person "regularly extends consumer credit" only if it is extended more than 25 times, or more than five times for transactions secured by a dwelling, in the preceding or current calendar year [12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(17) n.3]. Only a creditor to whom an obligation is initially payable is required to make disclosures as a creditor [15 U.S.C. § 1602(f); 12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(17)], although certain disclosure requirements apply to persons who are not creditors but who provide applications for home equity plans to consumers [12 C.F.R. § 226.1(c)(3); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.5b(d) (required disclosures); see Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans]. However, assignees of the initial creditor are liable for disclosure violations that are apparent on the face of the disclosure statement [15 U.S.C. § 1641(a)].

The Unruh Act applies only to persons engaged in the business of selling goods or furnishing services to retail buyers [Civ. Code § 1802.3; see Civ. Code § 1802.4 ("retail buyer" defined)]. Financial institutions that provide purchase-money loans can be subject to the Unruh Act, but only if they are joint venturers with, or are related by common ownership and control to, the actual seller of the goods or services financed [Civ. Code § 1801.6(b)]. The Unruh Act is applicable only to credit sales, and then only to those credit sales that also meet the definition of a retail installment contract [see Civ. Code § 1802.6 (definition)]. The Truth in Lending Act (TILA) is generally applicable to those same retail transactions, as well as to other credit sales and direct loans. Unlike TILA, the Unruh Act contains no exemption for creditors handling fewer than 25 annual transactions [see Civ. Code § 1802.3 (Unruh Act); cf. 12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(17) n.3 (TILA)].

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 45.35

§ 45.35 Disclosure Documents

[1] Truth in Lending Act Transactions

The disclosure document for closed-end credit transactions under the Truth in Lending Act (TILA) need not take any particular form. It must be in writing, in a form the consumer may keep [12 C.F.R. § 226.17(a)]. The model documents issued by the Federal Reserve Board take the form of separate disclosure statements [see 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, app. H], but use of separate documents is not mandatory. If the TILA disclosures are placed in any document that also contains other information, the required disclosures (other than the creditor's identity) must be grouped together and conspicuously segregated from everything else [15 U.S.C. § 1638(b)(1); 12 C.F.R. § 226.17(a)(1)].

The required disclosures may be made in a language other than English, provided that the disclosures are made available in English on the consumer's request [12 C.F.R. § 226.27]. This requirement for providing English disclosures on request does not apply to catalogs and other multiple page advertisements or electronic advertisements subject to 12 C.F.R. § 226.16 (governing advertisements for open-end credit plans) and 12 C.F.R. § 226.24 (governing advertisements for closed-end credit) [12 C.F.R. § 226.27].

Disclosure documents also may be delivered electronically [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.17(a)(1) (general disclosures for closed-end credit), 12 C.F.R. § 226.31(b) (disclosures for certain closed-end home mortgages)]. For discussion of the rules governing electronic delivery of disclosure documents, see § 45.220[1][c].

[2] Unruh Act Transactions

The required disclosure document for transactions under the Unruh Act must be in the form of a written contract [Civ. Code § 1803.1]. The entire agreement between the parties, including any promissory notes or other evidence of indebtedness, must be contained in a single document [Civ. Code § 1803.2(a)]. The contract must be executed by the consumer, and a legible copy must be delivered to the consumer at the time of execution [Civ. Code §§ 1799.202, 1803.7; see Civ. Code §§ 1803.8 (requirements for catalog sales), 1808.2, 1808.3 (requirements for add-on sales)].

The required contents [see § 45.125 [1]] need not be stated in any particular sequence, with the exception of the mandatory itemization of the amount financed [Civ. Code § 1803.3(b)]. Information other than the required disclosures may be included in the contract, unless the provisions are specifically prohibited by the Act [Civ. Code § 1804.1; see § 45.125[3]].

[3] Transactions Subject to Both Acts

A creditor subject to both acts can comply through the use of single disclosure document. The document will take the form of a retail installment contract, with a section reserved exclusively for Truth in Lending Act (TILA) disclosures [see § 45.225 (form)]. Note that all contracts subject to the Unruh Act must contain the disclosures required by Regulation Z (implementing regulations for TILA), whether or not Regulation Z is applicable to the transaction [Civ. Code § 1803.3(b)]. Therefore, meeting the disclosure requirements of the two acts is not difficult.

§ 45.36 Failure to Comply With Truth in Lending Act

Failure to comply with the Truth in Lending Act (TILA) may subject the violator to civil liability in individual or class actions. Any civil action for a violation that may be brought against the original creditor may be brought against a voluntary assignee if the violation from which the claimed liability arises is apparent on the face of the instrument [15 U.S.C. § 1641(a)]. The civil liability for noncompliance can be the actual damage sustained, plus twice the amount of any finance charge (not less than $100 and not more than $1,000), plus attorneys' fees and costs [15 U.S.C. § 1640(a)(1), (2)(A)]. In the case of a class action, civil liability will be in the amount allowed by the court, up to the lesser of $500,000 or 1 percent of the creditor's net worth, plus attorneys' fees and costs [15 U.S.C. § 1640(a)(2)(B)]. Attorneys have a legal right to a fee award in a successful action for rescission under TILA [see 15 U.S.C. § 1640(a)(3)]; attorneys may seek those fees in actions initiated after settlement of their client's claims [James v. Home Const. Co. of Mobile (11th Cir. [Ala.] 1982) 689 F.2d 1357, 1359]. The Federal Reserve Board and certain other federal agencies have the authority to issue administrative orders requiring restitution of amounts collected in excess of charges set forth in the disclosure statements [15 U.S.C. § 1607(e)].

No provision of TILA imposing liability for noncompliance will apply to any act or omission in good faith in conformance with applicable regulations or interpretations, even if the regulation or interpretation involved is subsequently amended, rescinded, or found invalid [15 U.S.C. § 1640(f)]. Evidence of compliance with TILA (other than advertising requirements) must be preserved by the creditor for a period of two years after the date each disclosure is required to be made [12 C.F.R. § 226.25(a)].

§ 45.50 Overview of Truth in Lending Act Disclosures

The Truth in Lending Act (TILA) is a disclosure act. The intent of the law is to promote the informed use of consumer credit by requiring disclosures about its terms and cost [15 U.S.C. § 1601; 12 C.F.R. § 226.1(b)]. To enable the creditor to compare credit costs, TILA provides uniform definitions for credit-related terms, and establishes standard methods of computing credit costs.

Sections 45.51-45.54 discuss some of the more complex provisions of TILA and explain certain requirements basic to the scheme contemplated by the Act and too complex to be simply listed in the Transaction Guide. For a detailed list of all TILA disclosure requirements, see § 45.123.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

D. Specific Disclosures Under Truth in Lending Act

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 45.51

§ 45.51 Finance Charge Disclosure Under Truth in Lending Act

[1] In General

One of the key standardized credit terms under TILA is the finance charge. It represents the cost of consumer credit, and it is stated as a dollar amount [12 C.F.R. § 226.4(a)]. The finance charge is the sum of all charges, payable directly or indirectly by the consumer and imposed directly or indirectly by the creditor, as an incident to or as a condition of the extension of credit; it does not include charges of a type payable in a comparable cash transaction [15 U.S.C. § 1605(a)]. However, when credit sales are the major portion of a seller's business and subject the seller to bookkeeping, collection, or financing cost, a decision to charge cash and credit customers the same total price does not necessarily mean that there is no finance charge. Courts will examine the economics of the seller's business to see whether an undisclosed finance charge is being imposed in a supposedly "free" extension of credit [see Yazzie v. Reynolds (10th Cir. [N.M.] 1980) 623 F.2d 638, 642-643] .

If the disclosed "cash price" in a credit sale is higher than the total price that the seller would fix for a cash buyer, then for purposes of TILA, the difference is a finance charge and must be disclosed as such. This normally would be the case whenever the disclosed "cash price" in a credit sale is inflated because the buyer needs financing. (That practice usually is driven by various requirements imposed by financial companies as conditions for providing financing.) Moreover, when a higher "cash price" in a credit sale necessarily entails additional costs for the buyer, those also must be disclosed as finance charges. The extra amount of sales or use tax payable by the credit buyer is one such additional cost. If the buyer will have to pay any license fee or similar amount that is computed on the basis of the cash price--as in the case of buying a motor vehicle, for example--then the extra amount paid because of the higher "cash price" is a finance charge that must be disclosed [Thompson v. 10,000 RV Sales, Inc. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 950, 970, 974, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 18] .

[2] Regulation Z

Regulation Z contains a detailed list of charges that should be included in computing the finance charge [12 C.F.R. § 226.4(b)]. Examples of finance charges include interest, service charges, points, loan fees, and certain types of insurance premiums related to the credit transaction. Regulation Z also contains a detailed list of charges to be excluded from the finance charge [12 C.F.R. § 226.4(c); see Household Credit Services, Inc. v. Pfennig (2004) 541 U.S. 232, 235, 124 S. Ct. 1741, 158 L. Ed. 2d 450 (Regulation Z, which specifically excludes over-limit fees from definition of "finance charge," is not unreasonable interpretation of 15 U.S.C. § 1605(a))]. In general, these include application fees charged to all credit applicants regardless of whether credit is actually extended, charges for actual unanticipated late payments or delinquency, and fees for participation in a credit plan.

Certain charges may also be excluded from the finance charge if they are itemized and disclosed to the consumer [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.4(d), (e)]. These include fees and taxes for perfecting security interests and certain insurance premiums. The effect of exclusion is to lower the annual percentage rate that a consumer is likely to use in comparing costs of credit [see § 45.53].

Three additional rules apply to the finance charge. First, interest, dividends, or other income received or to be received by the consumer on deposits or investments may not be deducted in computing the finance charge [12 C.F.R. § 226.4(f)]. Second, demand obligations are considered to have a maturity of one year for the purpose of computing the amount of finance charge and the annual percentage rate; provided that, if the obligation is alternatively payable on a stated maturity, the stated maturity governs [12 C.F.R. § 226.17(c)(5)]. Third, the annual percentage rate need not be disclosed if the finance charge does not exceed $5 on an amount financed of $75 or less, or if the finance charge does not exceed $7.50 on an amount financed of more than $75 [15 U.S.C. 1638(a)(4); 12 C.F.R. § 226.18(e) n. 42].

§ 45.52 Prepaid Finance Charge Disclosure Under Truth in Lending Act

A prepaid finance charge is any finance charge paid separately, in cash or by check, before or at the consummation of the transaction, or withheld at any time from the proceeds of the credit [12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(23)]. It commonly includes such items as service fees, points, finder's fees, and loan guarantee insurance, but only if those items are paid separately from the regular finance charge. If a prepaid finance charge is involved in the credit transaction, it is not only disclosed as part of the finance charge, but also subtracted from the "amount financed," which discloses the amount of credit advanced [15 U.S.C. § 1638(a)(2); 12 C.F.R. § 226.18(b)].

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 45.53

§ 45.53 Annual Percentage Rate Disclosure Under Truth in Lending Act

The annual percentage rate relates the finance charge to the amount financed over the specified period of a year. The method of computing the annual percentage rate depends on whether the transaction is "open-end" [12 C.F.R. § 226.14; see Ch. 46, Credit Card and Other Open-End Credit Transactions] or "closed-end" [12 C.F.R. § 226.22]. In closed-end credit transactions, the creditor may use either the actuarial method of computing the annual percentage rate or the United States Rule [12 C.F.R. § 226.22(a)(1)]. In either case, the rate disclosed must be accurate to the nearest one eighth of one percent [12 C.F.R. § 226.22(a)(2)].

Appendix J to Regulation Z contains the mathematical equation and technical instructions necessary for determining the annual percentage rate in closed-end credit transactions. However, it is easier to determine the rate by using the two volumes of tables and instructions compiled by the Federal Reserve Board. The Regulation Z Annual Percentage Rate Tables may be obtained from Publications Services, Division of Support Services, Federal Reserve Board, Washington, D.C. 20551, or from any Federal Reserve Bank. Any other chart or table that complies with the applicable regulations may be used in determining and annual percentage rate [12 C.F.R. § 226.22(b)(2)].

 PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
 D. Specific Disclosures Under Truth in Lending Act

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 45.54

§ 45.54 Disclosures Under Truth in Lending Act for Advertising of Credit

If an advertisement for any closed-end sale or loan states specific credit terms, it may state only those terms that actually are available from the creditor [12 C.F.R. § 226.24(a)]. Required disclosures must be made clearly and conspicuously [12 C.F.R. § 226.24(b)]. A creditor who advertises the rate of finance charge must state the rate as an "annual percentage rate," using that term [15 U.S.C. § 1664(c); 12 C.F.R. § 226.24(c)]. If the annual percentage rate may be increased after consummation, the advertisement must state that fact [12 C.F.R. § 226.24(c)]. If an advertisement is for credit not secured by a dwelling, the advertisement may not state any other rate, except that a simple annual rate or periodic rate that is applied to an unpaid balance may be stated in conjunction with, but not more conspicuously than, the annual percentage rate [15 U.S.C. § 1664(c); 12 C.F.R. § 226.24(c)].

If the advertisement states the downpayment, number of payments, amount of any payment, period of repayment, or the finance charge, certain additional disclosures must be made within the advertisement [see 15 U.S.C. § 1664(d); 12 C.F.R. § 226.24(d)]. In connection with these additional disclosure requirements, catalogs or other multiple page advertisements or advertisements using electronic communication are treated as single advertisements if certain requirements are met. [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.24(e)(1)]. A catalog or other multiple-page advertisement or an electronic advertisement (for example, an advertisement appearing on an Internet Web site) complies with the required disclosures [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.24(d)(2)] if the table or schedule of terms includes all appropriate disclosures for a representative scale of amounts up to the level of the more commonly sold higher-priced property or services offered [12 C.F.R. § 226.24(e)(2); see 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.17(a)(1), 226.31(b) (required disclosures may be provided in electronic form); see also § 45.220[1][c]]. If a catalog or other multiple-page advertisement, or an electronic advertisement gives information in a table or schedule in sufficient detail to permit determination of the required disclosures [12 C.F.R. § 226.24(e)(2)].

Advertisements for credit secured by a dwelling, other than television or radio advertisements, including promotional materials accompanying applications, must disclose rates and payments, as specified [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.24(f)(1)-(3); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.24(g) (alternate disclosures for television and radio advertisements); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.24(i) (prohibited acts or practices)]. Disclosures must be "clear and conspicuous," as specified [12 C.F.R. § 226.24(b); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.24(f)(2)(i), (ii), (3)(i), (ii)].

For each advertisement that relates to a consumer credit transaction secured by the principal dwelling of a consumer, in which the extension of credit may exceed the fair market value of the dwelling, if the advertisement is disseminated in paper form to the public or through the internet, rather than by radio or television, the advertisement must clearly and conspicuously state that [15 U.S.C. § 1664(e); 12 C.F.R. § 226.24(h); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.24(i) (prohibited acts or practices in advertisements for credit secured by a dwelling)]:

- The interest on the portion of the credit extension that is greater than the fair market value of the dwelling is not tax deductible for federal income tax purposes; and
- The consumer should consult a tax adviser for further information regarding the deductibility of interest and charges.

Procedures for complying with these advertising requirements can be found in § 45.123[2].

If the annual percentage rate cannot be determined in advance, the annual percentage rate for a sample transaction must be given, and other cost information for that consumer's specific transaction may be given [15 U.S.C. § 1665a; 12 C.F.R. § 226.26(b)].

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 45.61

§ 45.61 Unruh Act Regulation of Finance or Service Charges

[1] Interest Rate Limitations

Private individuals and corporations in California are prohibited from taking more than 10 percent simple interest per annum on loans that are primarily for personal, family, or household purposes [Cal. Const. art. XV, § 1]. However, banks and certain other regulated financial institutions are exempt from this usury provision. Moreover, sellers of consumer goods or services who impose a service or finance charge that is added to the cost of the goods or services are not within the usury prohibition. Setting a time-price on the sale of goods or services is not considered to involve the "loan" or "forbearance" of money or other things of value [Southwest Concrete Products v. Gosh Construction Corp. (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 701, 705, 274 Cal. Rptr. 404, 798 P.2d 1247 ; Boerner v. Colwell Co. (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 37, 45, 145 Cal. Rptr. 380, 577 P.2d 200] .

[2] Regulation of Finance or Service Charge

The Unruh Act regulates the amount of finance or service charges in retail installment contracts [Civ. Code § 1805.1]. All retail installment contracts must provide for the calculation of finance charges on the simple-interest basis if the date on which the final installment is due, according to the original terms of the contract, is more than 62 months after the date of the contract [Civ. Code § 1805.7]. There is no maximum dollar limitation on finance charges levied on sales of goods and services under a retail installment contract. Instead, finance charges are limited, with minor exceptions, to the amount disclosed in the contract, and annual fees are prohibited [Civ. Code §§ 1803.3(b), 1805.1].

A seller's advertisement soliciting buyers to enter into a retail installment contract must clearly state the periodic rate or range of periodic rates that will be used to determine the finance charge imposed on the contract. The disclosure must be expressed as an annual percentage rate or a range of annual percentage rates. This disclosure requirement does not apply to advertisements by sellers who intend to sell the solicited contracts to a financing agency or some other assignee [Civ. Code § 1803.11].

§ 45.62 Unruh Act Right to Prepay

A consumer has a statutory right to prepay the entire indebtedness on a retail installment contract at any time, without penalty [Civ. Code § 1806.3(a)]. On prepayment of the outstanding balance in full, the buyer is entitled to a refund credit for the full amount of any unearned portion of the finance charge [see Civ. Code § 1806.3(a)(1)].

If the indebtedness created by a retail installment contract is satisfied before maturity by repossession, surrender, or redemption of the collateral, or by any judgment, the consumer's outstanding indebtedness must be computed as of the date the collateral or its value is recovered. The creditor is not entitled to a finance charge based on the full term of maturity [Civ. Code § 1806.3(b); see Civ. Code § 1806.3(a) (computation of outstanding indebtedness)].

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 45.63

§ 45.63 Required Notices to Cosigner

[1] Notice of Liability

A creditor who obtains the signature of more than one person on a consumer credit contract must deliver to each cosigner a notice concerning his or her liability as a cosigner or guarantor, unless the signing parties are married to each other. The notice must be delivered before the cosigner becomes obligated on the contract [Civ. Code § 1799.91(a)]. In this context a "cosigner" is one who does not in fact receive any of the money, property, or services that are the subject matter of the contract [Civ. Code § 1799.91(a)]. No action can be brought against the cosigner who did not in fact receive the subject matter of the contract by a creditor or assignee from the creditor unless that notice is included in the contract [Civ. Code § 1799.95]. A "consumer credit contract" for the purpose of this requirement is a contract covered by the Unruh Act or the Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act, and any loan or credit extension that is either unsecured or secured by property other than real estate and made primarily for personal, family, or household purposes [Civ. Code § 1799.90(a)(1)-(4); see Civ. Code §§ 1801 et seq. (Unruh Act), 2981 et seq. (Rees-Levering Act)]. The term "consumer credit contract" and thus the notice requirement also apply to loans or credit extensions intended primarily for personal, family, or household purposes that are subject to the statutes governing real estate loans [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10240 et seq.], personal property brokers [see Fin. Code § 22000 et seq.], industrial or thrift loans [see Fin. Code § 18000 et seq.], and consumer finance lenders [see Fin. Code § 24000 et seq.], whether the loans are secured by real property or otherwise [Civ. Code § 1799.90(a)(5)], and to lease contracts for motor vehicles [Civ. Code § 1799.90(a)(6); see Civ. Code § 2985.7(d) ("lease contract" defined)].

The notice to cosigner must conform to statutory wording, must be in a specified type size, and ordinarily must be in both English and Spanish [Civ. Code § 1799.91(a)]. However, if a consumer credit contract is written in a language other than English or Spanish and a notice to cosigner is required, the notice must be in English and the language in which the contract is written [Civ. Code § 1799.91(b)]. For a notice to cosigner, see § 45.240.

[2] Notice of Delinquency

A creditor may not provide any adverse information [see Civ. Code § 1799.101(a)(1) ("adverse information" defined)] with respect to a cosigner to a consumer credit reporting agency regarding a delinquency on a consumer credit contract entered into unless the cosigner is given written notice of the delinquency at or before the time the information is provided to the agency [Civ. Code § 1799.101(b)]; this notice requirement does not apply to a cosigner whose address, as shown in the creditor's records respecting the consumer credit contract, is the same as that of the primary obligor [Civ. Code § 1799.101(d)]. In addition, a creditor may not provide any information regarding the cosigner's obligation on a consumer credit contract to a debt collector until this notice is given to the cosigner [Civ. Code § 1799.101(c); see Civ. Code § 1788.2(c) ("debt collector" defined)].

Notice requirements are satisfied by mailing a copy of the required notice to the cosigner at his or her address as shown in the creditor's records respecting the consumer credit contract [Civ. Code § 1799.101(e)]. If more than one cosigner resides at the same address, as shown in the creditor's records respecting the consumer credit contract, a notice addressed to any cosigner at that address is deemed notice to all cosigners residing at that address [Civ. Code § 1799.101(e)].

A cosigner who suffers a loss as a result of a violation of these requirements may bring an action to recover damages and attorneys' fees after proper notice to the creditor of the intended action [Civ. Code § 1799.102]. If, within 25 days after the date of receiving the notice, the creditor tenders to the cosigner an amount equal to the loss or otherwise resolves the matter to the cosigner's satisfaction, the cosigner is barred from further recovery of that loss, including reasonable attorneys' fees [Civ. Code § 1799.102(b)]. For a form for notice of delinquency to cosigner, see § 45.241. For a notice of a cosigner's action to recover damages, see § 45.242.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Unruh Act and Other California Requirements

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 45.64

§ 45.64 Translations of Contracts

[1] When Required

[a] Languages Subject to Requirement

If a language other than English is the primary language used for negotiations with a consumer, the consumer may have to be provided with a translation of the contract in that other language. For contracts entered into prior to July 1, 2004, this requirement applies only to contracts negotiated primarily in Spanish. On and after July 1, 2004, it is applicable to contracts negotiated primarily in Spanish, Chinese, Tagalog, Vietnamese, or Korean [see Civ. Code § 1632].

[b] Types of Contracts Subject to Requirement

Generally, any person engaged in a trade or business who negotiates primarily in the other language, orally or in writing, in the course of entering into any consumer contract or agreement, must deliver to the consumer, before the consumer executes the contract or agreement, a translation of the contract or agreement in the other language. This translation must include a translation of every term and condition in that contract or agreement. This requirement specifically applies to the following kinds of contracts Civ. Code § 1632(b):

- A contract or agreement that is subject to any of the following:
 - The Unruh Retail Installment Sales Act [see Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.];
 - The Rees-Levering Motor Vehicles Sales and Finance Act [see Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.; Ch. 47, Automotive Financing and Vehicle Leasing]; or
 - The Vehicle Leasing Act [see Civ. Code § 2985.7 et seq.; Ch. 47, Automotive Financing and Vehicle Leasing].
- A loan or extension of credit for use primarily for personal, family, or household purposes, when the loan or extension of credit is subject to either:

- The Industrial Loan Law [see Fin. Code § 18000 et seq.]; or
- The California Finance Lenders Law [see Fin. Code § 22000 et seq.].
- Any other loan or extension of credit secured otherwise than by real property, or unsecured, for use primarily for personal, family, or household purposes.
- A lease, sublease, rental contract or agreement, or other tenancy contract or agreement, for a period longer than one month, covering a dwelling, an apartment, a mobilehome, or any other dwelling unit normally occupied as a residence.
- A reverse mortgage [see Civ. Code § 1923 et seq.].
- A contract or agreement containing a statement of fees or charges, entered into for the purpose of obtaining legal services, when the person with whom the consumer negotiates the contract or agreement is a California-licensed attorney.
- Effective July 1, 2009, a foreclosure consulting contract [see Civ. Code § 2945 et seq.; see also 2008 Stats., Ch. 278 § 7 (operative date)].

If a loan or extension of credit for use primarily for personal, family, or household purposes, is negotiated by a real estate broker and is subject to the mortgage loan disclosure statement requirements of Bus. & Prof. Code § 10240 et seq. [for discussion, see Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans], the translation requirement technically applies to the resulting contract or agreement when negotiations are conducted primarily in the other language [see Civ. Code § 1632(b)(4)], but the broker can comply by delivering the required mortgage loan disclosure statement [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 10240(a), 10241; see Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans, §§ 25.250, 25.251] in the other language Civ. Code § 1632(c)].

At the time and place where a lease, sublease, or rental contract or agreement described above is executed, notice in the other language in which the contract or agreement was negotiated must be provided to the lessee or tenant [Civ. Code § 1632(d)].

[c] Ancillary Documents

Generally, "contract or agreement" in Civ. Code § 1632 means the document creating the rights and obligations of the parties and includes any subsequent document making substantial changes in the rights and obligations of the parties [Civ. Code § 1632(g)]; but see [d], below (periodic statements, sales slips, invoices, and other similar documents excluded)]. For example, a notice of repossession and deficiency of a motor vehicle under Civ. Code § 2983.2 is a document that substantially affects the borrower's rights under the contract; therefore, the borrower is entitled to a translation of the notice [Reyes v. Superior Court (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 159, 162, 173 Cal. Rptr. 267] .

[d] Matters Excluded from Requirement

The term "contract or agreement" does not include any of the following [Civ. Code § 1632(g)]:

- Matters ordinarily incorporated by reference in a residential lease, sublease, rental contract or agreement, or other tenancy contract or agreement, including but not limited to rules and regulations governing a tenancy and inventories of furnishings to be provided by the lessor or other person in the position of a lessor.

- Any subsequent documents authorized or contemplated by the original document such as periodic statements, sales slips or invoices representing purchases made pursuant to a credit card agreement, a retail installment contract or account or other revolving sales or loan account, memoranda of purchases in an add-on sale, or refinancing of a purchase as provided by, or pursuant to, the original document.

- A home improvement contract, as defined in Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 7151.2 and 7159, or plans, specifications, description of work to be done and materials to be used, or collateral security taken or to be taken for the retail buyer's obligation contained in a contract for the installation of goods by a contractor licensed under the Contractors State License Law, if the home improvement or installation contract is otherwise a part of a contract subject to Civ. Code § 1632.

[e] Elements of Contract Not Required to Be Translated

The other-language version of a contract or agreement may retain the following elements of the executed English contract or agreement without translation: names and titles of individuals and other persons, addresses, brand names, trade names, trademarks, registered service marks, full or abbreviated designations of the make and model of goods or services, alphanumeric codes, numerals, dollar amounts expressed in numerals, dates, and individual words or expressions having no generally acceptable translation into English. It is permissible, but not required, that the other-language version be signed [Civ. Code § 1632(i)].

[2] Compliance by Supervised Financial Organization

A translation of disclosures required by federal Regulation M on consumer leasing or Regulation Z on truth in lending [see 12 C.F.R. §§ 213.1 et seq., 226.1 et seq.] or by the Industrial Loan Law or the California Finance Lenders Law [see Fin. Code §§ 18000 et seq., 22000 et seq.], can be provided to the consumer by a supervised lender, before the execution of the contract, and that will be deemed compliance with Civ. Code § 1632. Supervised lenders include banks, savings and loan associations, credit unions, and the holding companies, affiliates, and subsidiaries of any of them; real estate brokers when subject to Bus. & Prof. Code § 10240 et seq.; and lenders subject to the Industrial Loan Law or the California Finance Lenders Law [Civ. Code § 1632(e)].

[3] Requirements Inapplicable When Interpreter Negotiates Contract

Civ. Code § 1632 does not apply to any person engaged in a trade or business who negotiates primarily in the other language [see [1], above], if the party with whom he or she is negotiating is a buyer of goods or services, or receives a loan or extension of credit, or enters an agreement obligating himself or herself as a tenant, lessee, or sublessee, or similarly obligates himself or herself by contract or lease, and that party negotiates the terms of the contract, lease, or other obligation through his or her own interpreter who is not a minor, is able to speak fluently and read with full understanding both English and the other language, and is neither employed by nor made available through the person that negotiates with the consumer [Civ. Code § 1632(h)].

[4] Notice of Right to Translation

At the time and place for entering into a contract or agreement that is subject to the Unruh Retail Installment Sales Act, the Rees-Levering Motor Vehicles Sales and Finance Act, or the Vehicle Leasing Act [see Civ. Code §§ 1801 et seq., 2981 et seq., 2985.7 et seq.], or that is for a loan or extension of credit secured otherwise than by real property, or unsecured, for use primarily for personal, family, or household purposes [see [1], above], a notice in the other language must be conspicuously displayed, to the effect that the person with whom the consumer is negotiating is required to provide a contract or agreement, or a translation of the disclosures required by law, in the other language in which the contract or agreement was negotiated [Civ. Code § 1632(f)].

It is reversible error for a court to render a deficiency judgment in favor of a finance company if the borrower is unable to understand English and there is no evidence that the finance company did or did not post a notice in the other language pursuant to Civ. Code § 1632 at the location of the loan negotiations [Reyes v. Superior Court (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 159, 162, 173 Cal. Rptr. 267] .

[5] Evidentiary Use of Translation

The terms of the contract or agreement that is executed in English determines the rights and obligations of the parties. The other-language translation of the contract or the disclosures can be admitted into evidence only to show that no contract was entered into because of the substantial difference in the material terms and conditions of the contract and the translation [Civ. Code § 1632(j)].

[6] Rescission for Noncompliance

In the event of noncompliance with the requirements of Civ. Code § 1632, the consumer may rescind the contract or agreement. When a contract for a consumer credit sale or consumer lease that has been sold and assigned to a financial institution is rescinded, the consumer must make restitution to, and have restitution made by, the person with whom he or she made the contract, and must give notice of rescission to the assignee. Notwithstanding that the contract was assigned without recourse, the assignment must be deemed rescinded, and the assignor must promptly repurchase the contract from the assignee [Civ. Code § 1632(k)].

A consumer loan made to a natural person primarily for personal, family, or household purposes may not provide for the payment of precomputed interest if the date on which the final installment is due is more than 62 months after the date of the loan [Civ. Code § 1799.5(b), (e)]. "Precomputed interest" is interest [see 15 U.S.C. § 1605(a) (definition)] on a loan that is (1) computed by multiplying the original loan balance by a rate and multiplying the product by the number of payment periods scheduled for repayment of the loan, and (2) then either added to the original principal balance of the loan in advance, or subtracted from the loan proceeds [Civ. Code § 1799.5(a)]. The restriction does not apply to the forbearance of a debt arising from a sale or lease of property, or to any loan arising under an open-end credit plan [*Civ. A consumer contract entered into on or after January 1, 1983, may not provide for the payment of a precomputed finance charge if the date on which the final installment is due is more than 62 months after the date of the contract [Civ. Code § 1799.8(c), (e)]. A "precomputed finance charge" is a finance charge that is (1) computed by multiplying the original contract balance by a rate and multiplying the product by the number of payment periods scheduled for repayment of the contract, and (2) then either added to the original contract balance in advance, or subtracted from the contract balance [Civ. Code § 1799.8(a)]. This restriction applies to contracts in which the purchaser is a natural person who enters the agreement primarily for personal, family, or household purposes, and the contract provides for the construction, sale, or construction and sale of an entire residence, or for the sale of real property [Civ. Code § 1799.8(b)].

§ 45.67 Limitations on Use of Household Goods, Personal Property, and Religious Items as Collateral

No person may take a security interest in any household goods in connection with a consumer credit contract or other credit obligation incurred primarily for personal, family, or household purposes unless the creditor takes possession of the goods, or the purchase price of the goods was financed through the consumer credit contract or credit obligation [Civ. Code § 1799.100(a); see Civ. Code § 1799.100(g)(1) ("household goods" defined)]. A consumer credit contract may not provide for a security interest in any religious books, religious artifacts, or religious materials, valued at less than $500, unless those objects are specifically pledged as collateral [Civ. Code § 1799.97(a)]. Any contract provision in violation of this prohibition is void and unenforceable [Civ. Code § 1799.97(b)].

An agreement or other document creating a nonpossessory security interest in personal property in connection with a consumer credit contract or other credit obligation incurred primarily for personal, family, or household purposes must contain a statement, reviewed and signed by the borrower, describing each specific item of personal property in which the security interest is taken [Civ. Code § 1799.100(b); see Civ. Code § 1799.100(d) (covered personal property)]. Consumer credit contracts or other credit obligations subject to the Unruh Act are deemed to meet this requirement if they comply with specified Unruh Act disclosure requirements [Civ. Code § 1799.100(b); see Civ. Code §§ 1803.3(a), 1810.1(f) (required disclosures); see also §§ 45.124, 45.125]. Generally, any security interest taken in violation of these requirements is void and unenforceable [see Civ. Code § 1799.100(e)].

A security interest in personal property (except for certain vessels and motor vehicles) taken in connection with a consumer credit contract or other credit obligation incurred primarily for personal, family, or household purposes may only be enforced by judicial action unless the borrower has abandoned, or freely and voluntarily surrendered, the property [Civ. Code § 1799.100(c); see Veh. Code §§ 415 (motor vehicles), 9840(a) (vessels)]. Any person injured by a violation of Civ. Code § 1799.100 may bring a civil action for the recovery of damages, equitable relief, and attorneys' fees and costs [Civ. Code § 1799.100(f)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
F. Credit Disability Insurance

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 45.80

§ 45.80 Purpose and Effect of Credit Disability Insurance Statute

The limitations on creditor's remedies and the disclosure requirements concerning credit disability insurance implement the legislature's finding that it is unfair for a creditor who has directly participated in, arranged, or received compensation for the sale of credit disability insurance to a debtor, or that creditor's successor in interest, to invoke a creditor's remedy because the debtor fails to pay any sum that becomes due during a period of disability until a reasonable time has passed for the disability insurance claim to be filed, verified, and processed [Civ. Code § 1812.400]. Because the statute establishes a three-month claim moratorium period [see § 45.83], it effectively discourages creditors who are unwilling to defer collection efforts for that period of time from selling credit disability insurance or procuring it for debtors. This is because the moratorium period and the other statutory requirements do not apply if a creditor does not arrange or participate in the sale or receive a commission or other compensation for the sale of credit disability insurance to the debtor [Civ. Code § 1812.404].

The statute does not affect or defeat an interest in a debtor's property that has been acquired by a bona fide purchaser or encumbrancer for value after the creditor invokes a creditor's remedy in violation of the statute if that purchaser or encumbrancer did not have notice of the facts that constituted the violation [Civ. Code § 1812.409].

§ 45.81 Limitations on Creditor's Remedies

A creditor who has directly participated in or received any compensation for the sale of credit disability insurance to a debtor may not invoke any creditor's remedy against a debtor because of the debtor's nonpayment of any sum that becomes due during any disability claim period, and for which credit disability insurance coverage is provided [Civ. Code § 1812.402(a); see Civ. Code § 1812.401 (definitions)]. However, a creditor may invoke collection procedures or any other creditor's remedy during or after the claim period for the debtor's nonpayment of any sum due prior to the claim period, including any interest, finance charge, or late charge accruing on that sum, whether or not the nonpayment is related to the debtor's claimed disability [Civ. Code § 1812.402(c)]. Further, a creditor may foreclose a lien on any property to protect that creditor's security interest if a senior lienholder on the property is foreclosing [Civ. Code § 1812.402(d)].

§ 45.82 Credit Disability Insurance Disclosure Requirements

[1] In General

The limitations on a creditor's remedies [see § 45.81] must be disclosed to the debtor by the creditor when the insurance is sold to the debtor [see Civ. Code § 1812.402(f)]. The insurer must disclose the claim procedure to the debtor when it sends claims forms to the debtor [see Civ. Code § 1812.402(f); see McManis v. San Diego Postal Credit Union (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 547, 557-558, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617 (credit union failed to meet its burden on summary judgment to negate consumer's breach of contract claim because it did not establish compliance with Civ. Code § 1812.400 et seq., including Civ. Code § 1812.402(f), before repossession)]. For a form containing the statutory disclosure of the claim procedure, see § 45.250.

[2] Applicability of Credit Disability Insurance Disclosure Requirement

The disclosure requirements under the credit disability insurance statute apply to "creditors" and "debtors" [see Civ. Code §§ 1812.402(f), 1812.404]. A "creditor" is a lender of money or a seller or lessor of goods, services, or rights, for which payment is arranged through a credit transaction, who has directly participated in, arranged, or received compensation for the sale of credit disability insurance to the debtor. The term also includes any successor to the right, title, or interest of the original creditor [Civ. Code § 1812.401(b); see Civ. Code § 1812.404]. A "debtor" is a borrower of money or a purchaser or lessee of goods, services, property, or rights for which payment is arranged through a credit transaction [Civ. Code § 1812.401(c)].

The disclosure requirement and the other limitations on creditors' remedies do not apply to credit disability insurance covering a key person if the creditor requires that insurance as a condition to making a loan of at least $25,000 to be used in the operation of a business in which the key person is employed or has an ownership interest. For these purposes, a "key person" is one who the creditor and the debtor mutually agree must be involved in the operation of the business to assure its success [Civ. Code § 1812.406(a)].

These requirements are also inapplicable to most credit transactions of more than 10 years duration that are secured by a mortgage or deed of trust. However, they do apply to those transactions if the principal purpose of the transaction is to finance improvements to residential real property consisting of four or fewer residential units and the accompanying documentation or the course of dealing between the creditor and a contractor or supplier would indicate that purpose [Civ. Code § 1812.406(b)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
F. Credit Disability Insurance

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 45.83

§ 45.83 Creditor's Rights Regarding Credit Disability Insurance

[1] Moratorium on Collection

A creditor may not invoke any creditor's remedies because of the debtor's nonpayment of any sum that becomes due during any disability claim period when there is credit disability insurance coverage [Civ. Code § 1812.402(a)]. The disability claim period begins on the due date of the first payment the debtor fails to pay when the debtor claims that the credit disability coverage applies, and continues until three calendar months thereafter or until the insurer pays or rejects the claim, whichever occurs sooner [Civ. Code § 1812.401(e)]. Thus, a creditor may be precluded from taking any collection action for up to three months if credit disability insurance is in effect. Further, even if the insurer rejects the claim within the disability claim period, the debtor still has an additional 35-day grace period to pay the amount that became due during the claims period before the creditor may invoke any creditor's remedy [Civ. Code § 1812.402(e)].

For discussion of a creditor's rights when it invokes its remedies without knowledge of the debtor's disability, see [2], below.

[2] Remedies Invoked Before Notice of Disability

When the creditor invokes creditor's remedies for nonpayment after having sent the debtor a delinquency notice, the following rules apply. On receipt of notice of the debtor's disability claim, the creditor must refrain from invoking any further creditor's remedies during the remainder of the claim period or the 35-day period after the insurer either rejects the debtor's claim or allows only partial payment [see § 45.84], and must rescind every remedy that it has already invoked (except that it need not restore property legally sold to any unrelated party) [Civ. Code § 1812.402(g)(1), (2)]. The debtor, however, will be liable for the costs and expenses actually incurred in either invoking or rescinding any creditor's remedy [Civ. Code § 1812.402(g)(3)]. The notice that must be given by the debtor to the creditor is defined as written notice deposited in the mail, postage prepaid, addressed to the creditor at the location where payments are normally to be sent, or any other specified location. However, the creditor may waive its requirement for written notice and accept oral notice [Civ. Code § 1812.401(f)].

§ 45.84 Duties of Parties on Receipt of Disability Notice

When the creditor receives notice [see Civ. Code § 1812.401(f)] that the debtor claims disability as a ground for nonpayment, the creditor must send the debtor notice of the name, address, and telephone number of the insurer or the insurance representative from whom claim forms can be obtained [Civ. Code § 1812.402(b)]. However, the creditor's successor in interest need not comply with these requirements if it is not related to the creditor by common ownership or control and does not know the name, address, and telephone number of the insurer or its representative [Civ. Code § 1812.402(b)].

When the insurer receives the claim, it must send the necessary claim forms to the debtor [Civ. Code § 1812.402(b)]. It must also send the debtor a disclosure in substantially the form specified by the statute [see Civ. Code § 1812.402(f)(2)] (not reproduced in this chapter). The debtor must then submit the claim to the insurer and notify the creditor that the claim has been submitted [Civ. Code § 1812.402(b)].

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 45.85

§ 45.85 Effect on Creditor of Payment or Rejection of Disability Claim by Insurer

If the insurer pays the claim within the disability claim period, the creditor must treat any payment made by the insurer as timely payment by the debtor [Civ. Code § 1812.402(e)]. If the insurer rejects the claim within that period or makes only partial disability payments, the debtor will have the opportunity to pay the balance without being subject to any creditor's remedy other than late charges for 35 days after the insurer sends notice of rejection or partial payment [Civ. Code § 1812.402(e)]. If the debtor has not paid the balance due within the 35-day period, the creditor may then invoke any creditor's remedy [Civ. Code § 1812.402(e); see McManis v. San Diego Postal Credit Union (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 547, 557-558, 71 Cal. Code § 1812.400 et seq.*, including Civ. Code § 1812.402(e), before repossession)]. If the insurer ceases making payments on a debtor's disability claim because the debtor failed to make timely submission of forms required by the insurer for recertification of a temporary disability, the creditor may invoke its remedies 15 days after receiving notice that the insurer has ceased making payments [Civ. Code § 1812.403].

A debtor may bring an action for damages, equitable relief, or other relief for any violation of the credit disability insurance law by a creditor [Civ. Code § 1812.402(i)]. However, a creditor will not be in violation or liable if, having invoked its remedies before notice of the disability claim, it receives notice of the claim and then both refrains from invoking further remedies during the remainder of the claim period or the 35-day period after the insurer either rejects the debtor's claim or allows only partial payment, and rescinds previously invoked remedies [Civ. Code § 1812.402(g)(1), (2), (4)]. The debtors' rights and remedies afforded by Civ. Code §§ 1812.400-1812.410 are cumulative to each other and to all other debtors' rights under other laws [*Civ. B. Preliminary Determinations

§ 45.110 Direct Loan--Application of Client to Bank

1. Determine if Equal Credit Opportunity Act [15 U.S.C. § 1691 et seq.] applies to transaction because creditor is person who [12 C.F.R. § 202.2(l)]:

- a. In ordinary course of business, regularly participates in decision of whether or not to extend credit;
- b. In ordinary course of business, regularly refers applicants or prospective applicants to creditors; or
- c. Selects or offers to select creditors to whom requests for credit may be made.

NOTE:

The Equal Credit Opportunity Act prohibits creditor discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex, marital status, or age (provided applicant has capacity to contract) [12 C.F.R. § 202.1(b)]. While these types of discrimination are prohibited in all credit transactions, some regulatory provisions of the Act are not applied to incidental extensions of credit or to nonconsumer transactions [see 12 C.F.R. § 202.3(c)]. An "incidental extension of credit" is one not made pursuant to credit card account, on which no finance charge is imposed, and which is not payable in more than four installments [12 C.F.R. § 202.3(c)(1)].

2. Determine if Truth in Lending Act [15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.] applies to transaction; in other words, whether transaction meets following criteria [12 C.F.R. §§ 226.1(c)(1), 226.2(a)(17)]:

- a. Credit is offered or extended to consumers;

b. Credit is offered or extended regularly;

NOTE:

A lender "regularly" extends credit under the Truth in Lending Act (TILA) only if it extended credit more than 25 times (or more than five times for transactions secured by dwelling) in the preceding or current calendar year [12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(17) n.3].

c. Credit is either:

(1) Subject to finance charge; or

(2) Payable by written agreement in more than four installments; and

d. Credit is primarily for personal, family, or household purposes.

NOTE:

Extensions of credit for agricultural purposes are exempt, as are those involving amounts over $25,000 if not secured by real property or the consumer's dwelling, those regulated by agencies supervising actions of public utilities or commodities or securities brokers, and home fuel budget plans in which no finance charge is imposed [15 U.S.C. § 1603; 12 C.F.R. § 226.3]. Certain student loans are also exempt from TILA requirements [15 U.S.C. § 1603(6); 12 C.F.R. § 226.3(f)].

3. Determine if Unruh Act [Civ. Code §§ 1801-1812.20] applies to transaction:

a. Contract is retail installment contract for [Civ. Code §§ 1802.5, 1802.6]:

(1) Retail sale of goods [Civ. Code § 1802.1]; or

(2) Retail furnishing of services [Civ. Code § 1802.2];

b. Contract is entered or performed in California [Civ. Code § 1802.6];

c. Seller is retail seller [Civ. Code § 1802.3]; and

d. Buyer is retail buyer [Civ. Code § 1802.4].

NOTE:

The Unruh Act is a disclosure act similar to the federal Truth in Lending Act (TILA). The Unruh Act is modeled on TILA and requires many of the same disclosures that must be given under Regulation Z, which implements the federal act [see Civ. Code §§ 1801.5, 1803.3(b)].

4. Determine whether Fin. Code § 4970 et seq., governing consumer loans secured by real property, applies to contemplated transaction.

NOTE:

Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. imposes requirements on regulated lenders (banks, savings associations, credit unions, finance lenders, residential mortgage lenders) and real estate brokers, with respect to the making of consumer loans that are secured by real property. These requirements affect covered loans for which applications are made after June 2002 [Stats. 2001, Ch. 732, § 3]. For further discussion of the various requirements and prohibited acts, see § 45.13.

5. Determine whether lender will require credit disability insurance and, if so, will lender:

- a. Sell it to debtor?
- b. Arrange for its sale to debtor?
- c. Receive commission or other compensation for its sale to debtor?

NOTE:

If lender takes any of these actions, it cannot impose late charges, accelerate the due date, collect a credit balance, or enforce a security interest in any manner until three calendar months after the first missed payment is due or the insurer pays or rejects debtor's claim, whichever is first [Civ. Code § 1812.402(a); see Civ. Code §§ 1812.401(d), (e), 1812.403-1812.407]. The creditor must disclose this to the debtor when the creditor sells insurance to the debtor [see Civ. Code § 1812.402(f)(1); see also § 45.250].

§ 45.111 Client Dealer

NOTE:

Credit sales include any transaction in which a dealer also provides credit. Typically, banks that finance clients' credit sales will provide forms and will follow procedures in compliance with various credit regulations and laws. However, if a dealer is the sole creditor, the dealer cannot rely on bank for compliance with applicable laws.

[1] Client Has Existing Arrangement for Bank Financing of Credit Sales

1. Determine applicability of Equal Credit Opportunity Act [15 U.S.C. §§ 1691-1691f; see §§ 45.20, 45.110 P 1].
2. Determine applicability of Truth in Lending Act [15 U.S.C. §§ 1601-1667e; see § 45.110 P 2].
3. Determine applicability of Unruh Act [Civ. Code §§ 1801-1812.20; see §§ 45.34, 45.110 P 3].
4. Determine applicability of Fin. Code § 4970 et seq., which governs consumer loans secured by real property [see § 45.13].

NOTE:

Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. imposes requirements on regulated lenders (banks, savings associations, credit unions, finance lenders, residential mortgage lenders) and real estate brokers, with respect to the making of consumer loans that are secured by real property. These requirements affect covered loans for which applications are made after June 2002 [Stats. 2001, Ch. 732, § 3]. For further discussion of the various requirements and prohibited acts, see § 45.13.

5. If more than one creditor is involved, determine which creditor will ensure compliance with applicable credit regulations.

6. Consider applicability of credit disability insurance [see §§ 45.80-45.86, 45.110 P 4].

[2] Client Seeks Bank Financing of Credit Sales

NOTE:

See Ch. 43, Commercial Loans, for further coverage of bank financing of credit sales.

1. Advise client that goods or services must be of type bank considers appropriate for financing.
2. Advise client that selling techniques, merchandise, and service must be acceptable to bank.
3. Advise client that character and business must meet bank requirements and that bank will examine:
 - a. Dun & Bradstreet credit report on client.
 - b. Client's financial and operating statements.
 - c. Local retail credit reports on business.
 - d. Retail credit reports on principals of client's business.
 - e. Any other information that bears on these factors.
4. Determine whether client's installment paper is to be purchased or whether client will be lent money secured by installment paper:
 - a. If installment paper is to be collateral for loan, advise client that bank's determination whether to lend on this basis will involve credit investigation of client and evaluation of whether client's volume and collection practices merit loan.
 - b. If paper is to be purchased, resolve following terms:
 - (1) Purchase with or without recourse, or in conjunction with repurchase agreement.
 - (2) Bank's purchase rate, that is, its discount or what it charges to purchase paper.
 - (3) Requirements for reserve accounts, their maintenance, and disbursement.
 - (4) Agreement as to direct or indirect collections from consumer.
 - (5) Client warranties regarding paper and collateral circumstances.
 - (6) What constitutes default on part of client.

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 45.120

§ 45.120 Loan Application of Client Retail Customer to Bank

[1] Application of Equal Credit Opportunity Act

NOTE:

See § 45.110 to determine whether a transaction is covered by the Equal Credit Opportunity Act.

1. Advise client (applicant) that lender may not treat client less favorably than others, in any aspect of credit transaction, on basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex, marital status, age, receipt of public assistance income, or because of client's good faith exercise of rights under specified consumer protection laws [15 U.S.C. § 1691(a); see 12 C.F.R. § 202.7(a); Civ. Code § 1812.30].

2. Advise client that, when advertising or extending credit, lender may not make any statement that would discourage client on prohibited basis, when advertising or discussing credit [12 C.F.R. § 202.5(a)].

3. Advise client that following information may not be requested by lender [12 C.F.R. § 202.5(c), (d); see § 45.200]:

a. Information about former spouse, unless applicant is relying on payments from former spouse as basis for repayment of credit.

b. Marital status in terms other than "married," "unmarried," and "separated."

NOTE:

A creditor may explain to an applicant that the term "unmarried" includes single, divorced, and widowed [12 C.F.R. § 202.5(d)(1)].

c. Whether any income stated in application is derived from alimony, child support, or separate maintenance payments, unless creditor discloses that such income need not be revealed if applicant does not desire creditor to consider such income in determining creditworthiness.

d. Sex, race, color, religion, or national origin of applicant.

NOTE:

An application form may ask an applicant to designate title (such as Mr. or Mrs.) only if the form discloses that designation of title is optional [12 C.F.R. § 202.5(d)(3)].

e. Birth control practices of applicant or applicant's intentions concerning bearing or rearing of children.

4. Advise client that lender has duty to include on application clear statement that married applicant may apply for separate account [Civ. Code § 1812.30(j)].

5. Advise client that following factors may not be taken into account in determining creditworthiness:

a. Factors that may not be reason for discrimination [see (1), above], except as noted in (6), below [15 U.S.C. § 1691(a); 12 C.F.R. § 202.6(b)(1)].

b. Assumptions or statistics relating to likelihood that any group of persons will bear or rear children [12 C.F.R. § 202.6(b)(3)].

c. Telephone listing in name of applicant [12 C.F.R. § 202.6(b)(4)].

d. Fact that income comes from part-time employment, retirement funds, or alimony, absent evidence of unreliability of income source [12 C.F.R. § 202.6(b)(5)].

6. Advise client that following factors may be taken into account in determining creditworthiness:

a. Applicant's age, but only [12 C.F.R. § 202.6(b)(2)]:

(1) To determine applicant's capacity to contract.

(2) In demonstrable and statistically sound, empirically derived credit system, in which advanced age is not assigned negative value.

(3) To determine pertinent element of creditworthiness.

NOTE:

The term "pertinent element of creditworthiness" refers, in relation to a judgmental system of evaluating applicants, to any information about applicants that a creditor obtains and considers and that has a demonstrable relationship to a determination of creditworthiness [12 C.F.R. § 202.2(y)].

(4) If age is used to favor elderly applicants [12 C.F.R. § 202.6(b)(2)].

b. Public assistance as income source, but only to determine pertinent element of creditworthiness [12 C.F.R. § 202.6(b)(2)].

c. Credit history, if creditor also considers [12 C.F.R. § 202.6(b)(6)]:

(1) History of accounts that both applicant and spouse are permitted to use, or for which both are contractually liable.

(2) Any information applicant presents tending to indicate inaccuracy of credit history.

(3) On applicant's request, any account reported in name of applicant's spouse, or former spouse, that applicant can demonstrate accurately reflects applicant's creditworthiness.

d. Whether applicant is permanent resident of United States [12 C.F.R. § 202.6(b)(7)].

e. State property laws [12 C.F.R. § 202.6(c)].

7. Advise client that lender cannot prohibit client from maintaining account in birth-given first name and birth-given surname, spouse's surname, or combined surname [12 C.F.R. § 202.7(b)].

8. Advise client that lender may not require signature of applicant's spouse or other person, other than joint applicant, on any credit instrument if applicant qualifies under lender's standards of creditworthiness [12 C.F.R. § 202.7(d)(1)].

NOTE:

A requirement that an otherwise qualifying married woman have her spouse sign loan documents constitutes discrimination in violation of the Equal Credit Opportunity Act [Anderson v. United Finance Co. (9th Cir. [Or.] 1982) 666 F.2d 1274, 1276] .

9. Advise client that lender must notify credit applicant of action taken on application within 30 days of receipt of application [12 C.F.R. § 202.9(a)(1)(i); see Civ. Code § 1787.2; see also § 45.210].

NOTE:

Notification to an applicant against whom adverse action is taken must be in writing and must contain a statement of the action taken, a statutory notice (or one substantially similar), and one of the following: (1) a statement of the specific reasons for the action taken, or (2) a disclosure of the applicant's right to a statement of reasons within 30 days after receipt by the lender of a request therefor made within 60 days after receipt of the notice. The latter disclosure must include the name, address, and telephone number of a person or office from which a statement may be obtained [12 C.F.R. § 202.9; see Civ. Code § 1787.2]. Notification must also include the name and address of the creditor and the name and address of the federal agency that administers compliance with respect to the creditor [12 C.F.R. § 202.9(a)(2)].

If the lender states reasons orally, notification must also include disclosure of the applicant's right to have any oral statement of reasons confirmed in writing within 30 days after a written request for confirmation is received by the lender [12 C.F.R. § 202.9(a)(2)(ii)]. See § 45.210 for an adverse action notice meeting all federal and state requirements.

[2] Application of Truth in Lending Act

NOTE:

See § 45.110, Paragraph 2, to determine whether a transaction is covered by the Truth in Lending Act (TILA). A transaction subject to TILA is also likely to be subject to the Unruh Act. The Unruh Act imposes disclosure requirements similar to those required by TILA [see Civ. Code §§ 1801.5, 1803.3(b)]. To determine whether a transaction is subject to the Unruh Act, see § 45.110, Paragraph 3. For discussion of both TILA and the Unruh Act, see §§ 45.30-45.36.

1. Advise client that lender is prohibited from advertising specific credit terms other than those that are actually available [12 C.F.R. § 226.24(a)] that the following terms require additional disclosures [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.24(d)(1),(2)]:

- a. Amount or percentage of any downpayment.
- b. Terms of repayment.
- c. Annual percentage rate.
- d. Whether annual percentage rate may be increased after consummation.

NOTE:

If a catalog or other multiple-page advertisement, or an electronic advertisement (for example, an advertisement appearing on an Internet Web site), gives information in a table or schedule in sufficient detail to permit determination of the disclosures required by 12 C.F.R. § 226.24(d)(2) [see § 45.54], it will be considered a single advertisement if (1) the table or schedule is clearly and conspicuously set forth; and (2) any statement of the credit terms [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.24(d)(1); § 45.54] appearing anywhere else in the catalog or advertisement clearly refers to the page or location where the table or schedule begins [12 C.F.R. § 226.24(e)(1)].

A catalog or other multiple-page advertisement or an electronic advertisement complies with 12 C.F.R. § 226.24(d)(2) [see § 45.54] if the table or schedule of terms includes all appropriate disclosures for a representative scale of amounts up to the level of the more commonly sold higher-priced property or services offered [12 C.F.R. § 226.24(e)(2)]. Required disclosures may be provided in electronic form [12 §§ 226.17(a)(1), 226.31(b)].

2. Advise client that lender must use annual percentage rate for any advertised rate of finance charge [12 C.F.R. § 226.24(c)]; if that rate may be increased after consummation, lender must disclose possibility of increase [12 C.F.R. § 226.24(c)].

NOTE:

If an advertisement is for credit not secured by a dwelling, the advertisement may not state any other rate, with the exception of a simple annual rate or periodic rate that is applied to an unpaid balance, stated in conjunction with, but not more conspicuously than, the annual percentage rate [12 C.F.R. § 226.24(c)]. This rule, and its exception, also apply to an advertisement for credit secured by a dwelling [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.24(c)].

3. Advise client that, generally, lender's oral responses to inquiries about cost of credit may state only annual percentage rate [12 C.F.R. § 226.26(b)].

4. Review documents for compliance with Truth in Lending Act disclosure requirements [see § 45.123].

5. Advise client that required disclosures may be made in language other than English, provided that disclosures are made available in English on consumer's request [12 C.F.R. § 226.27].

NOTE:

This requirement for providing English disclosures on request does not apply to catalogs and other multiple page advertisements or electronic advertisements subject to 12 C.F.R. § 226.16 (governing advertisements for open end credit plans) and 12 C.F.R. § 226.24 (governing advertisements for closed-end credit) [12 C.F.R. § 226.27].

6. Advise client that, for unsecured loan, client will receive Truth in Lending Act disclosure statement, sign promissory note, and then may receive loan funds directly.

7. Advise client that, for secured loan, client will receive Truth in Lending Act disclosure statement and then sign security agreement and promissory note; funds may be distributed directly to seller of secured goods.

§ 45.121 Consumer's Credit Application--Dealer With Bank Financing

1. Dealer has consumer fill out application for installment loan on form provided by bank financing credit sales [see § 45.200].
2. Dealer submits application to bank.
3. Bank evaluates application, verifies information provided, and checks applicant's credit [see Ch. 43, Commercial Loans].
4. Bank notifies dealer, and dealer notifies consumer, of action on application.

NOTE:

The Dealer must notify the applicant of its action within 30 days of receipt of the application [12 C.F.R. § 202.9(a)(1); see § 45.210 (notice of adverse action)].

5. Consumer receives disclosure documents under Truth in Lending Act and Unruh Act, if applicable.

NOTE:

If a transaction is subject to the Unruh Act, the entire agreement between the parties, including any notes, security agreements, or other evidence of indebtedness, must be contained in a single document [Civ. Code § 1803.2(a)].

6. Dealer and consumer execute sale document, either security agreement or retail installment sales contract [see § 45.225].

§ 45.123 Compliance With Truth in Lending Act

[1] Form of Closed-End Credit Disclosure Statements

1. Ascertain that required disclosures [see [2], below] are made clearly and conspicuously in writing and in form consumer may keep [12 C.F.R. § 226.17(a)(1)].
2. Ascertain that disclosures are grouped together and conspicuously segregated from all other information provided in connection with credit transactions [15 U.S.C. § 1638(b)(1); 12 C.F.R. § 226.17(a)(1)].

NOTE:

Disclosures may be made either in a conspicuously segregated location in the contract document or in a separate disclosure statement; a single document should be used if the Unruh Act applies to the transaction [see § 45.124 Note]. The disclosure section may include, in addition to the mandatory items, acknowledgment of the consumer's receipt of disclosures, the date of the transaction, and the consumer's name, address, and credit account number. The creditor's identity, a variable rate example, insurance disclosures, and disclosure of certain security interest charges may be disclosed elsewhere than in a segregated disclosure section [12 C.F.R. § 226.17(a)(1) nn.37, 38; but see 15 U.S.C. § 1638(b)(1)]. Segregation may be accomplished by outlining in a box, bold-print dividing lines, a different color background, or a different type style [12 C.F.R. pt. 226, supp. I, § 226.17(a)(2)]. Required disclosures may be provided in electronic form [12 C.F.R. §§ 226.17(a)(1), 226.31(b); see § 45.220[1][c].

3. Ascertain that any itemization of amount financed is separate from other required disclosures [12 C.F.R. § 226.17(a)(1)].

4. Ascertain that "finance charge" and "annual percentage rate," when used with figures, are printed more conspicuously than other disclosures (except creditor's identity) [12 C.F.R. § 226.17(a)(2); see Dixey v. Idaho First Nat. Bank (9th Cir. 1982) 677 F.2d 749, 752, 753 (example of violation)].
5. Ascertain that if lack of information forces creditor to supply estimate for required disclosure, disclosure is based on best information reasonably available and is identified as estimate [12 C.F.R. § 226.17(c)(2)(i)].
6. Ascertain that disclosures are given before date of consummation of transaction and that if they become inaccurate creditor will disclose changed terms before consummation if [12 C.F.R. § 226.17(f)].

[2] Checklist of Required Disclosures

NOTE:

The following disclosures are potentially applicable to any transaction covered by this chapter and are to be made together in a segregated disclosure statement [see 15 U.S.C. § 1638(b)(1); 12 C.F.R. § 226.17(a)(1); see also Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans (additional requirements for security interest in dwelling)].

1. Identity of creditor [15 U.S.C. § 1638(a)(1); 12 C.F.R. § 226.18(a)].

NOTE:

Only the identity of the creditor making the disclosure must be disclosed [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.18(a)]. If the transaction involves more than one creditor, only one set of disclosures need be given; creditors may agree among themselves which creditor must comply with the disclosure requirement [12 C.F.R. § 226.17(d)].

2. Amount financed, using that term, and brief description such as "the amount of credit provided to you or on your behalf" [15 U.S.C. § 1638(a)(2)(A); 12 C.F.R. § 226.18(b)].
3. Separate written itemization of amount financed, including [12 C.F.R. § 226.18(c)(1)]:

NOTE:

Itemization of the amount financed need not be provided if the disclosure statement contains a statement of the consumer's right to itemization, together with space for the consumer to indicate whether or not it is desired [15 U.S.C. § 1638(a)(2)(B); 12 C.F.R. § 226.18(c)(2)]. Itemization, whether provided routinely or on request, must be provided separately from the disclosures that are grouped together in a segregated statement [15 U.S.C. § 1638(b)(1); 12 C.F.R. § 226.17(a)(1)].

- a. Amount of any proceeds distributed directly to consumer.
- b. Amount credited to consumer's account with creditor.
- c. Any amount paid to other persons on consumer's behalf, with identification of those persons.

NOTE:

Public officials and agencies, credit reporting agencies, appraisers, and insurance companies may be described in generic terms [12 C.F.R. § 226.18(c)(1) n. 41].

d. Prepaid finance charge.

NOTE:

A prepaid finance charge is subtracted from the total of (a) through (c), above, to obtain the amount financed [15 U.S.C. § 1638(a)(2)(A); 12 C.F.R. § 226.18(b)]. A "prepaid finance charge" is any finance charge paid separately in cash or by check before or at consummation of the transaction, or withheld from the proceeds of the credit at any time [12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(23); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.4].

4. Finance charge, using that term, and brief description such as "the dollar amount the credit will cost you" [15 U.S.C. § 1638(a)(3); 12 C.F.R. § 226.18(d)].

NOTE:

See § 45.51 for further discussion of finance charges.

5. Annual percentage rate, using that term, and brief explanation such as "the cost of your credit as a yearly rate" [15 U.S.C. § 1638(a)(4); 12 C.F.R. § 226.18(e)].

NOTE:

The annual percentage rate need not be disclosed if the finance charge does not exceed $5 on an amount financed of $75 or less, or if the finance charge does not exceed $7.50 on an amount financed of more than $75 [15 U.S.C. § 1638(a)(4); 12 C.F.R. § 226.18(e) n.42].

6. If annual percentage rate may increase after consummation of transaction, all of following [12 C.F.R. § 226.18(f)]:

- a. Circumstances under which rate may increase.
- b. Any limitations on increase.
- c. Effect of increase.
- d. Example of payment terms that would result from increase.

7. Payment schedule, including number, amounts, and timing of payments, or one of following, if applicable [15 U.S.C. § 1638(a)(6); 12 C.F.R. § 226.18(g)]:

- a. For demand obligation with no alternate maturity date, due dates of any scheduled interest payments for first year.
- b. If payments vary because finance charge is applied to unpaid balance, dollar amounts of largest and smallest payments in series and reference to variations in other payments in series.

8. Total of payments, using that term and descriptive explanation such as "the amount you will have paid when you have made all scheduled payments" [15 U.S.C. § 1638(a)(5); 12 C.F.R. § 226.18(h)].

9. If obligation has demand feature, statement of that fact including, if applicable, assumed one-year maturity as basis of disclosures [12 C.F.R. § 226.18(i); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.17(c)(5) (assumed maturity of one year)].

10. For credit sales, total sale price, using that term, and descriptive explanation such as "the total price of your purchase on credit, including your downpayment of $_____"; explanation must set forth amount of any downpayment including value of property traded in [15 U.S.C. § 1638(a)(7), (8); 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.2(a)(18), 226.18(j)].

11. Statement indicating whether or not penalty may be imposed, or whether or not consumer will be entitled to rebate, if obligation is prepaid in full [15 U.S.C. § 1638(a)(11); 12 C.F.R. § 226.18(k)].

NOTE:

A statement regarding prepayment penalty is required only if a finance charge is computed from time to time by application of a rate to the unpaid principal balance. A statement regarding rebate is required only if the obligation involves a precomputed finance charge [15 U.S.C. § 1638(a)(11), (b)(1); 12 C.F.R. § 226.18(k)].

12. Any dollar or percentage amount imposed for late payments [15 U.S.C. § 1638(a)(10); 12 C.F.R. § 226.18(l)].

13. If credit is secured, statement that security has been taken in either [15 U.S.C. § 1638(a)(9); 12 C.F.R. § 226.18(m)]:

- a. Property purchased as part of transaction.
- b. Other property, identified by type or item.

14. For credit life, health, or disability insurance [15 U.S.C. §§ 1605(b), 1638(b)(1); 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.4(d)(1), 226.18(n)]:

NOTE:

These items may be omitted from the disclosures; if omitted, insurance premiums must be included in the calculation of the finance charge [12 C.F.R. § 226.4(d)(1)].

- a. Statement that coverage is not required.
- b. Premium for initial term of insurance if consumer chooses to insure.
- c. Term of insurance, if term is less than that of transaction.
- d. Statement indicating that consumer desires coverage, with place for consumer's signature or initials.

15. For property damage or liability insurance [15 U.S.C. §§ 1605(c), 1638(b)(1); 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.4(d)(2), 226.18(n)]:

NOTE:

These items may be omitted from the disclosures; but if omitted, insurance premiums must be included in the calculation of the finance charge [12 C.F.R. § 226.4(d)(2)].

- a. Statement that coverage may be obtained from anyone consumer chooses.
- b. If coverage is obtained through creditor:

(1) Premium for initial term of insurance.

(2) Term of insurance, if term is less than that of transaction.

16. For voluntary debt cancellation fees [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.4(d)(3)(ii) (types of fees covered)]:

NOTE:

Charges or premiums paid for debt cancellation coverage may be omitted from disclosures but if omitted must be included in the computation of the finance charge [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.4(d)(3)(i)].

a. Statement that debt cancellation agreement or coverage is not required.

b. Premium for initial term of insurance if consumer chooses to insure.

c. Term of insurance, if term is less than that of the transaction.

d. Statement that consumer desires coverage, with place for consumer's signature or initials.

17. If security interest is being taken, taxes or fees to public officials for protecting or determining existence of interest, or premium for insurance in lieu of perfecting interest [15 U.S.C. §§ 1605(d), 1638(b)(1); 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.4(e), 226.18(o)].

NOTE:

These items may be omitted from the disclosures; but if omitted, the sums involved must be included in the calculation of the finance charge [see 15 U.S.C. § 1605(d); 12 C.F.R. § 226.4(e)]. Premiums are excludable from the finance charge only up to amounts that would otherwise be payable as taxes or fees [15 U.S.C. § 1605(d); 12 C.F.R. § 226.4(e)].

18. Statement that consumer should consult appropriate contract document for information about nonpayment, default, acceleration of maturity, and prepayment rebates and penalties; creditor has option to include referral to contract for further information about security interests [15 U.S.C. § 1638(a)(12); 12 C.F.R. § 226.18(p)].

19. If creditor requires that consumer maintain deposit as condition of credit, statement that annual percentage rate does not reflect effect of required deposit [12 C.F.R. § 226.18(r)].

20. In case of consumer credit transaction that is secured by principal dwelling of consumer, in which extension of credit may exceed fair market value of dwelling [15 U.S.C. § 1638(a)(15)]; see 15 U.S.C. § 1638(b)(3) (timing of disclosure)]:

a. Clear and conspicuous statement that interest on portion of credit extension that is greater than fair market value of dwelling is not tax deductible for federal income tax purposes.

b. Clear and conspicuous statement that consumer should consult tax adviser for further information regarding deductibility of interest and charges.

NOTE:

This disclosure must be made to the consumer at the time of application for the extension of credit [15 U.S.C. § 1638(b)(3)]. This requirement takes effect 12 months after publication of final regulations to implement it [see Pub. L. No. 109-8, § 1302(c)(2) (Apr. 20, 2005)].

§ 45.124 Compliance With Unruh Act: Required Form of Disclosure and Notices

NOTE:

Provided that the contract must always disclose "itemization of the amount financed," all Unruh Act disclosures may be made in language required or permitted in implementation of the Truth in Lending Act (TILA) [Civ. Code §§ 1801.5, 1802.18]. While TILA disclosures can be made either in a separate document or in a clearly segregated portion of the contract, Unruh Act disclosures must be terms of the contract document itself [see Civ. Code §§ 1803.2, 1803.3, 1803.5]. Therefore, so that identical disclosures need not be made twice, the attorney should segregate the disclosures and group TILA disclosures and set them apart from additional Unruh Act information and from any additional terms and conditions of the contract [15 U.S.C. § 1638(b)(1); 12 C.F.R. § 226.17(a)(1); see § 45.123]. To coordinate disclosure requirements of both acts into a single document, see Section 45.125. For an example of a single form coordinating all requirements of the two statutes, see Section 45.225.

1. Agreement must be dated and in writing, with printed portions in at least 8-point type [Civ. Code § 1803.1].

NOTE:

At the time of signing, the seller must deliver to the buyer a legible copy of the contract or of any other document that the buyer has signed at seller's request [Civ. Code § 1803.7]. Any acknowledgment by the buyer of delivery of such documents must be printed or written in at least 10-point bold type. If contained in the contract itself, the acknowledgment must appear directly above the space reserved for the buyer's signature [Civ. Code § 1803.7].

2. Entire agreement between parties must be in one document [Civ. Code § 1803.2(a)], specifying:

- a. Cost.
- b. Terms of payment.
- c. Any promissory notes or other evidences of indebtedness between parties relating to transaction.

3. If contract gives seller security interest in any goods or realty, include words "Security Agreement" in at least 12-point bold type at top of contract [Civ. Code § 1803.2(b)(1)].

NOTE:

The term "security interest" refers only to an interest created by contract, not to a mechanics' lien or other interest arising by operation of law [Civ. Code § 1803.2(b)].

4. If no security interest is retained by seller, include words "Retail Installment Contract" in at least 12-point bold type at top of contract [Civ. Code § 1803.2(b)(2)].

5. If finance charge is determined on precomputed basis:

a. If unearned portion of finance charge to be refunded on full prepayment of contract is to be determined by other than actuarial method, include following notice in at least 10-point bold type: "Notice to buyer: (1) Do not sign this agreement before you read it or if it contains any blank spaces to be filled in. (2) You are entitled to a completely filled-in copy of this agreement. (3) You can prepay the full amount due under this agreement at any time and obtain a partial refund of the finance charge if it is $1 or more. Because of the way the amount of this refund will be figured, the time when you prepay could increase the ultimate cost of credit under this agreement. (4) If you desire to pay off in advance the full amount due, the amount of the refund you are entitled to, if any, will be furnished upon request" [Civ. Code § 1803.2(c)].

b. If unearned portion of finance charge to be refunded on prepayment is to be determined by actuarial method, include following notice in at least 10-point bold type: "Notice to buyer: (1) Do not sign this agreement before you read it or if it contains any blank spaces to be filled in. (2) You are entitled to a completely filled-in copy of this agreement. (3) You can prepay the full amount due under this agreement at any time and obtain a partial refund of the finance charge if it is $1 or more. (4) If you desire to pay off in advance the full amount due, the amount of the refund you are entitled to, if any, will be furnished upon request" [Civ. Code § 1803.2(d)].

6. If contract provides for finance charge determined on simple-interest basis [see Civ. Code § 1802.20], include following notice in at least 10-point bold type: "Notice to buyer: (1) Do not sign this agreement before you read it or if it contains any blank spaces to be filled in. (2) You are entitled to a completely filled-in copy of this agreement. (3) You can prepay the full amount due under this agreement at any time. (4) If you desire to pay off in advance the full amount due, the amount which is outstanding will be furnished upon request" [Civ. Code § 1803.2(e)].

7. If contract for goods or services provides for security interest in real property, include following notices in at least 14-point bold type, written in same language as is used in contract: "WARNING TO BUYER: IF YOU SIGN THIS CONTRACT, YOU WILL BE PUTTING UP YOUR HOME AS SECURITY. THIS MEANS THAT YOUR HOME COULD BE SOLD WITHOUT YOUR PERMISSION AND WITHOUT ANY COURT ACTION IF YOU MISS ANY PAYMENT AS REQUIRED BY THIS CONTRACT" [Civ. Code § 1803.2(b)(3)].

NOTE:

This notice must be set apart from rest of contract by a border and must appear directly above the space reserved for the signature of the buyer. A security interest created in this type of contract that does not provide this notice is void and unenforceable [Civ. Code § 1803.2(b)(3)].

8. If any payment other than deferred downpayment is more than twice amount of otherwise regularly scheduled equal payment ("balloon payment"), contract must contain following provision: "The payment schedule contained in this contract requires that you make a balloon payment of $_____ (Amount of balloon payment) which is a payment more than double the amount of the regular payments. You have an absolute right to obtain a new payment schedule if you default in the payment of any balloon payment" [Civ. Code § 1807.3(a)].

§ 45.125 Unruh Act Checklist

[1] Required Contents

NOTE:

A contract meeting the requirements listed below will also comply with the federal Truth in Lending Act (TILA). This is because every contract subject to the Unruh Act must contain the disclosures required by Regulation Z (the implementing regulation for TILA), whether or not Regulation Z applies to the transaction [Civ. Code § 1803.3(b)]; see Civ. Code § 1801.5. Except where specifically noted, required disclosures and other information need not be stated in any particular sequence [Civ. Code § 1803.3(b)]. The requirements listed here cover only contracts for initial purchases. For disclosure requirements for add-on sales, see [2], Paragraph 5, below.

1. Names of seller and buyer [Civ. Code § 1803.3(a)].
2. Seller's place of business [Civ. Code § 1803.3(a)].
3. Buyer's residence or place of business [Civ. Code § 1803.3(a)].
4. Description of goods or services sold, sufficient to identify them [Civ. Code § 1803.3(a)].

NOTE:

Services or multiple items of goods may be described in general terms and may be described in detail sufficient to identify them in a separate writing [Civ. Code § 1803.3(a)].

5. All disclosures required by Regulation Z [Civ. Code § 1803.3(b)].

NOTE:

All contracts subject to the Unruh Act must contain the disclosures required by federal Regulation Z (implementing regulations for Truth in Lending Act (TILA)) [12 C.F.R. pt. 226], whether or not Regulation Z applies to transaction [Civ. Code § 1803.3(b)]. To incorporate Unruh Act and TILA requirements into a single document, the TILA disclosures must be segregated into a special section of the document, separate from additional Unruh Act information [12 C.F.R. § 226.17(a)(1)]. For discussion of TILA requirements and format, see Section 45.123.

If payment of all or a portion of the downpayment is to be deferred, the Unruh Act requires that the deferred payment be reflected in the payment schedule disclosed pursuant to Regulation Z [Civ. Code § 1803.3(d); see § 45.123[2], P 7].

6. Following items, as applicable, labeled "itemization of the amount financed" [Civ. Code § 1803.3(c)]:

NOTE:

The Unruh Act requires that itemization of the amount financed be made in one place and in the sequence set forth below [Civ. Code § 1803.3(b)]. TILA also requires disclosure and itemization of the amount financed [12 C.F.R. § 226.18(c)(1); see § 45.123 [2], P 3] or, in lieu of itemization, disclosure of the right to itemization [12 C.F.R. § 226.18(c)(2)]. However, the Unruh Act specifically eliminates the option of disclosing the right to itemization of the amount financed rather than simply providing itemization [Civ. Code § 1801.5], and the Unruh Act itemization must be more detailed [see Civ. Code § 1803.3(c)]. There will be no conflict between requirements of two statutes if more detailed Unruh Act itemization is included in the body of contract and not in the segregated portion of agreement containing TILA disclosures. TILA preemption provisions permit the use of more detailed state requirements [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.28]. Moreover, state-required itemization will also be sufficient for Regulation Z compliance, as long as it is made clearly and conspicuously [see 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.18(c) (federal itemization requirement), 226.17(a)(1) (federal amount financed itemization must appear separate from basic federal disclosure statement); 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, supp. I, § 226.18(c)(2) (federal itemization may include, in addition to required terms, other information explaining composition of amount financed)].

a. Cash price, exclusive of taxes imposed on sale [Civ. Code § 1803.3(c)(1)(A)].

b. Taxes imposed on sale [Civ. Code § 1803.3(c)(1)(B)].

c. Total of above two items [Civ. Code § 1803.3(c)(1)(C)].

d. Itemization of amount to be paid to any public officer for official fees [Civ. Code § 1803.3(c)(2)].

e. Aggregate amount of any insurance premiums included in contract, exclusive of any such premiums included in finance charge [Civ. Code § 1803.3(c)(3)].

f. Subtotal of Paragraphs c, d, and e, above [Civ. Code § 1803.3(c)(4)].

g. Amount of buyer's downpayment, not including any administrative finance charge set forth as "prepaid finance charge" [see P h, below], itemized to show following [Civ. Code § 1803.3(c)(5)]:

(1) Net agreed value of any property being traded in.

(2) Amount of any portion of downpayment to be deferred until not later than due date of second regularly scheduled installment under contract, and which is not subject to finance charge.

(3) Amount of any manufacturer's rebate applied or to be applied to downpayment.

(4) Remaining amount paid or to be paid by buyer as downpayment.

h. Amount of any administrative finance charge, labeled "prepaid finance charge" [Civ. Code § 1803.3(c)(6)].

i. Amount financed, labeled as such, consisting of difference between Paragraph f, above, and sum of Paragraphs g and h, above [Civ. Code § 1803.3(c)(7)].

7. Brief description of any property being traded in as downpayment [Civ. Code § 1803.3(e)].

8. If contract includes finance charge determined on precomputed basis, contract must both [Civ. Code § 1803.3(f)(1)]:

a. Identify method of computing unearned portion of finance charge in event buyer's obligation is prepaid in full.

b. Contain statement of amount or method of computation of any charge that may be deducted from amount of any such unearned finance charge in computing amount that will be credited to obligation or refunded to buyer.

NOTE:

Reference to the Rule of 78's, the sum of the digits, the sum of the periodic time balances, or the actuarial method constitutes sufficient identification of the method of computation [Civ. Code § 1803.3(f)(1)].

9. If contract includes finance charge determined on simple-interest basis, but provides for minimum finance charge in event of prepayment in full, contract must specify that fact and must state amount of minimum finance charge or method of its calculation [Civ. Code § 1803.3(f)(2)].

10. Itemization of any insurance included as part of amount financed [see Civ. Code § 1803.3(c)(3); see also P 6e, above], and any insurance included as part of finance charge, including following information [Civ. Code § 1803.3(g)]:

NOTE:

The Truth in Lending Act requires these and other disclosures if the creditor wants to exclude premiums from the finance charge [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.4(d); see § 45.123 [2], PP 14, 15], and federal disclosures, if made, may therefore be used to satisfy both requirements [see, e.g., § 45.225; see also Civ. Code § 1803.3(b) (Unruh Act disclosures may be combined or interspersed with other provisions of contract)].

a. Type of insurance coverage.

b. Amount of premium.

c. If insurance will expire before date of last scheduled installment included in repayment schedule, term of insurance.

[2] Permissible Provisions

1. Delinquency charges.

NOTE:

Delinquency charges may be imposed if an installment is in default for a period of not less than 10 days and in an amount not over $10 [Civ. Code § 1803.6]. Only one charge is collectible per installment, no matter how long overdue, and a charge may not be imposed on payments timely received by the seller under a written extension or deferral agreement [Civ. Code § 1803.6].

2. Payment of actual and reasonable collection costs caused by [Civ. Code § 1803.6]:

a. Removal of goods from state without written permission of holder.

b. Failure of buyer to notify holder of change of residence.

c. Failure of buyer to communicate with holder for period of 45 days after any default in making payments.

3. Finance charge [see Civ. Code § 1805.1].

NOTE:

There is no maximum dollar limitation on finance charges levied on sales of goods and services under a retail installment contract. However, finance charges are limited, with minor exceptions, to the amount disclosed in the contract, and annual fees are prohibited [see Civ. Code §§ 1803.3(b), 1805.1].

4. Installments payable on monthly, semi-monthly, or weekly basis [Civ. Code § 1805.2].

5. Seller's option to add subsequent purchases made by buyer to contract in one of following ways [see Civ. Code §§ 1808.2, 1808.3]:

a. Financed portion of purchase price in new transaction is consolidated with original outstanding balance, less unearned finance charges, with new finance charge to be computed on consolidated balance, based on original percentage rate [Civ. Code §§ 1808.1, 1808.2, 1808.5].

b. If certain conditions are met, amount financed plus finance charge for new sale may be added to existing outstanding balance [see Civ. Code § 1808.3].

NOTE:

In either case, specified disclosures appropriate to the transaction are required and the seller may retain a security interest in earlier-acquired property only until that property is paid for [Civ. Code §§ 1808.1-1808.3]. The method of allocating payments to various purchases varies according to the alternative chosen [see Civ. Code §§ 1808.2, 1808.3].

Delivery of disclosures can take place any time before the first payment on a new transaction is due [Civ. Code §§ 1808.2, 1808.3]. However, because of different methods of allocating payments, only add-on transactions structured to comply with Civil Code Section 1808.3 also meet the conditions of federal regulations permitting Truth in Lending disclosures to be delayed until the due date of the first payment reflecting the add-on sale [see Civ. Code §§ 1808.2, 1808.3; 12 C.F.R. § 226.17(h)]. The choice facing the seller is whether to credit all payments to the first-purchased item until it is fully paid for [see Civ. Code § 1808.3], or to maintain a security interest in more items of property for a longer period [see Civ. Code § 1808.2] on condition of making at least the federal disclosures before the consumer becomes contractually obligated on the new transaction [see 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.2(a)(13), 226.17(b), (h)].

[3] Prohibited Provisions

1. Buyer's waiver of any provision of Unruh Act [Civ. Code § 1801.1].
2. Buyer's agreement not to assert against seller or seller's assignee claim or defense arising out of sale, other than as provided in Civ. Code § 1804.2 [Civ. Code § 1804.1(a)].
3. Holder's right to accelerate maturity of part or all of amount owing, in absence of buyer's default in performance of any obligation [Civ. Code § 1804.1(b)].
4. Power of attorney to confess judgment in California, or assignment of wages [Civ. Code § 1804.1(c)].

NOTE:

This restriction does not prohibit the giving of an assignment of wages contained in a separate instrument executed pursuant to Lab. Code § 300 [Civ. Code § 1804.1(c)].

5. Authority for anyone to enter on buyer's premises unlawfully or to commit any breach of peace in repossession of goods [Civ. Code § 1804.1(d)].
6. Buyer's waiver of any right of action against seller, holder of contract, or other person acting on seller's or holder's behalf, for any illegal act committed in collection of payments under contract or in repossession of goods [Civ. Code § 1804.1(e)].
7. Power of attorney appointing seller, holder of contract, or other person acting on seller's or holder's behalf as buyer's agent in collecting payments under contract or in repossessing goods [Civ. Code § 1804.1(f)].
8. Waiver of seller's liability for any legal remedies that buyer may have against seller under contract or any separate instrument executed in connection with contract [Civ. Code § 1804.1(g)].
9. Buyer's agreement to payment of any charge for exercising right to rescind or avoid contract [Civ. Code § 1804.1(h)].

10. Provision giving seller or holder of contract right to commence an action on contract in county other than [Civ. Code § 1804.1(i)]:

- a. County in which contract was signed by buyer.
- b. County in which buyer resides when action is commenced.
- c. County where buyer resided when contract was entered into.
- d. County in which goods have been affixed to real property.

11. Provision giving seller security interest, other than mechanics lien, in buyer's real property that is buyer's primary residence, if [Civ. Code § 1804.1(j)]:

- a. Buyer is 65 years or older; and
- b. Contract is for home improvement [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 7151.2 ("home improvement" defined)].

12. If contract is for sale of goods:

- a. Provision for security interest in any goods fully paid for or that have not been sold by seller [Civ. Code § 1804.3(a)].
- b. Provision for security interest in real property if primary goods are not to be attached to real property [Civ. Code § 1804.3(b)].

[4] Prohibited Practices

1. Obtaining buyer's signature to contract when it contains blank spaces to be filled in [Civ. Code § 1803.4].

2. Charging more for insurance than rates fixed by insurer [Civ. Code § 1803.5(b)].

3. Inducing person to enter into retail installment sales contract by offering rebate, discount, commission, or other consideration, on condition that buyer facilitates future sales by seller of same or related goods [Civ. Code § 1803.10].

4. Accepting charge or fee not properly included in finance charge [Civ. Code § 1805.4].

NOTE:

A finance charge may include charges for investigating and making the contract and for extending credit. The seller or contract holder may charge a separate fee for each dishonored payment instrument submitted by the buyer. No fee, expense, or other charge may be taken by the seller or contract holder except as provided in the Unruh Act [Civ. Code § 1805.4].

5. If seller does not intend to sell retail installment contract to financing agency or other assignee, advertising to solicit buyers to enter into retail installment contracts without clearly stating annual percentage rate or range of annual percentage rates that will be used to determine finance charge [Civ. Code § 1803.11].

6. Contracting for calculation of finance charge on basis other than simple-interest basis, if term of contract exceeds 62 months [Civ. Code § 1805.7; see Civ. Code § 1802.20 ("simple-interest basis" defined)].

7. Imposing finance charge at rate greater than annual percentage rate disclosed as part of original contract, on amounts advanced by holder subsequent to execution of contract for insurance, repairs to or preservation of goods, or preservation of holder's security interest [Civ. Code § 1805.8].

8. Providing for finance charge that is determined in part by precomputed basis and in part by simple-interest basis, except for any finance charge on amounts subsequently advanced by holder as in Paragraph 7, above [Civ. Code § 1805.9].

NOTE:

This provision is fairly straightforward under the Unruh Act definition of "finance charge" [Civ. Code § 1802.10]. However, because the "finance charge" that must be disclosed to the consumer is that defined by the federal Truth in Lending Act, it can be argued that the federal definition, not the California definition, should apply for the purposes of Civil Code Section 1805.9. Certain insurance premiums are part of the finance charge under federal law only [see 15 U.S.C. § 1605(b); 12 C.F.R. § 226.4(b), (d); § 45.123 [2] PP 14, 15; but see Civ. Code § 1802.10]. Some insurance premiums are calculated as a proportion of the original purchase price. If the premium is a finance charge, it is one calculated on a precomputed basis [see Civ. Code § 1802.21]. Therefore, combining those premiums with interest computed on a simple-interest basis [see Civ. Code § 1802.20] would violate the Unruh Act provision summarized in Paragraph 8, above. This problem arises only if the federal definition of "finance charge" is applied to the state prohibition on combining methods of computing that charge.

9. Requiring penalty for prepayment, or if finance charge was determined on precomputed basis, failing to credit buyer who prepays or otherwise satisfies obligation (for example, through surrender or repossession of collateral) with unearned finance charges [Civ. Code § 1806.3].

NOTE:

The Unruh Act provides a formula for computing the minimum acceptable unearned finance charge rebate [Civ. Code § 1806.3(a)(1)].

§ 45.126 Procedure for Handling Closed-End Credit Transaction Disclosures

1. Ensure that timing requirements are met.

NOTE:

Generally, disclosures must be made before the transaction is consummated, that is, before the consumer becomes contractually obligated [12 C.F.R. §§ 226.17(b), 226.2(a)(13); see 15 U.S.C. § 1638(b)(1) (disclosure required before credit is extended)]. However, different rules apply to certain mail or telephone orders and to sales made pursuant to an agreement providing that subsequent sales may be added to an existing outstanding balance [see 15 U.S.C. § 1638(c), (d); 12 C.F.R. § 226.17(g), (h)].

2. Ensure that refinancings are treated as new transactions [12 C.F.R. § 226.20].
3. Ensure that transactions involving multiple creditors or multiple consumers are handled correctly.

NOTE:

If the transaction involves more than one creditor, only one set of disclosures need be given; the creditors must agree among themselves which creditor is responsible for disclosure compliance [12 C.F.R. § 226.17(d)]. If the transaction involves more than one consumer, disclosures may be made to any consumer primarily liable on the obligation [12 C.F.R. § 226.17(d); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.23(a), (f) (additional requirements for security interest in dwelling)].

4. Ensure creditor knows that following factors may be disregarded in making calculations [12 C.F.R. § 226.17(c)(3)]:
 - a. That payments must be collectable in whole cents.

b. That dates of scheduled payments and advances may be changed if scheduled day is not business day.

c. That months have different numbers of days.

d. That a particular year is a leap year.

5. Ensure creditor knows that in making calculations, creditor may disregard any irregularity in first period falling within prescribed limits, and any payment irregularity resulting from irregular first period [12 C.F.R. § 226.17(c)(4)].

6. Ensure creditor knows of and complies with following method of calculating amount financed [15 U.S.C. § 1638(a)(2)(A); 12 C.F.R. § 226.18(b)(1)-(3)]:

a. Determine principal loan amount or cash price (less any downpayment);

b. Add any amounts financed by creditor and not part of finance charge; and

c. Subtract any prepaid finance charge.

7. Ensure creditor complies with requirement of assumed maturity of one year for calculating disclosures if obligation is payable on demand [12 C.F.R. § 226.17(c)(5)].

8. Ensure creditor knows of and complies with following method of calculating finance charge:

NOTE:

The finance charge is the cost of consumer credit. It includes any charge payable by the consumer and imposed by the creditor as an incident to or condition of the extension of credit. It does not include any charge of a type payable in a comparable cash transaction [12 C.F.R. § 226.4(a)].

a. Include following and comparable types of charges [12 C.F.R. § 226.4(b)]:

(1) Interest, time price differential, and any amount payable under an add-on or discount system of additional charges.

(2) Service, transaction, activity, and carrying charges.

(3) Points, loan fees, assumption fees, finder's fees, and similar charges.

(4) Appraisal, investigation, and credit report fees.

(5) Premiums or other charges for any guarantee or insurance protecting creditor against consumer's default.

(6) Charges imposed on creditor by another person for purchasing or accepting consumer's obligation, if consumer must pay charges.

(7) Premiums or other charges for credit life, accident, health, or loss-of-income insurance, written in connection with credit transaction unless properly disclosed [see § 45.123[2], P 14].

(8) Premiums or other charges for insurance against loss or damage to property, or against liability arising out of property ownership, written in connection with credit transaction unless properly discussed [see § 45.123[2], P 15].

(9) Discounts to induce payment by means other than use of credit.

NOTE:

The fact that a price discount is available for a cash transaction is an indicator that more is being charged for a credit transaction--thus, the discount, functionally, is a finance charge. A rebate available to a cash buyer after completion of the sale transaction is not a discount (since the price to be paid is not reduced), nor is it a "charge" of any kind--a charge is a request for payment; a rebate is a reduction of the amount paid--and a rebate need not be accounted for, either in computing the finance charge or in making related disclosures [Virachack v. University Ford (9th Cir. 2005) 410 F.3d 579, 581-582] .

b. Exclude following types of charges [12 C.F.R. § 226.4(c)]:

(1) Application fees charged to all applicants whether or not credit is extended.

(2) Charges for late payments, for exceeding credit limits, or for delinquency or default.

(3) Charges imposed by institution for paying items that overdraw account, unless payment of such items and imposition of charge previously agreed on.

(4) Credit plan participation fees.

(5) Seller's points.

(6) Interest forfeited as result of interest reduction required by law on time deposit used as security for extension of credit.

(7) Specified real estate fees.

(8) Discounts offered to induce payment for purchase by check, cash, or other specified means.

9. Ensure creditor knows of and complies with prohibition on deducting interest, dividends or other income received by consumer on deposits or investments from disclosed finance charge [12 C.F.R. § 226.4(f)].

10. Ensure proper calculation of annual percentage rate [see § 45.53].

PART III. TRANSACTION GUIDE
C. Procedural Guide

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 45.127

§ 45.127 Consumer Loan Secured by Real Property

NOTE:

The special procedures discussed in this section apply when Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. are applicable to the transaction. Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. impose requirements on regulated lenders (banks, savings associations, credit unions, finance lenders, residential mortgage lenders) and real estate brokers, with respect to the making of consumer loans--that is, consumer credit transactions secured by real property located in California used, or intended to be used or occupied, as the principal dwelling of the consumer, and improved by a one-to-four residential unit [Fin. Code § 4970(d) (definition); see § 45.13[2][b] for detailed definition]. These requirements affect "covered loans" (consumer loans in which original balance does not exceed $250,000 and that meet other specified requirements) [Fin. Code § 4970(b) (definition); see § 45.13[2][c]] for which applications are made after June 2002 [Stats. 2001, ch. 732, § 3; see American Financial Services Association v. City of Oakland (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 1435, 1463, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 745 (reviewing history of legislation and holding that it did not preempt city's lending ordinance)]]].

For further discussion of the threshold requirements for application of these provisions, see § 45.13. For discussion of the penalties for noncompliance with these provisions, see § 45.13[6].

[1] Terms and Conditions

1. Observe following rules with respect to prepayment fees:

- a. Do not provide for prepayment fee or penalty after first 36 months after date of consummation of loan [Fin. Code § 4973(a)(1)].
- b. Provide for prepayment fee or penalty up to first 36 months after date of consummation of the loan, if desired, only if following conditions are satisfied [Fin. Code

§ 4973(a)(2):

(1) Person who originates loan has also offered consumer a choice of another product without a prepayment fee or penalty.

(2) Person who originates loan has disclosed in writing to consumer at least three business days prior to loan consummation:

(a) Terms of prepayment fee or penalty to consumer for accepting a covered loan with the prepayment penalty; and

(b) Rates, points, and fees that would be available to consumer for accepting covered loan without a prepayment penalty.

(3) Person who originates loan has limited amount of prepayment fee or penalty to an amount not to exceed payment of six months advance interest, at contract rate of interest then in effect, on amount prepaid in any 12-month period in excess of 20 percent of original principal amount.

(4) Prepayment fee or penalty will not be imposed if covered loan is accelerated as a result of default.

(5) Person who originates loan will not finance a prepayment penalty through a new loan that is originated by same person.

2. Comply with following requirements relating to payment schedule:

a. If term of loan is five years or less, do not provide at origination for a payment schedule with regular periodic payments that, when aggregated, do not fully amortize principal balance as of maturity date of loan [Fin. Code § 4973(b)(1)].

b. If payment schedule is adjusted to account for seasonal or irregular income of consumer, total installments in any year must not exceed amount of one year's worth of payments on loan [Fin. Code § 4973(b)(2)].

NOTE:

The limitation noted in 2(b), above, does not apply to a "bridge loan"; that is, a loan with a maturity of less than 18 months that only requires payments of interest until the time when the entire unpaid balance is due and payable [Fin. Code § 4973(b)(2)].

3. Do not include provision for negative amortization such that payment schedule for regular monthly payments causes principal balance to increase, unless covered loan is a first mortgage and licensed person discloses to consumer that loan contains a negative amortization provision that may add principal to loan balance [Fin. Code § 4973(c)].

4. Do not include terms under which periodic payments required under loan are consolidated and paid in advance from loan proceeds [Fin. Code § 4973(d)].

5. Do not include provision that increases interest rate as a result of a default [Fin. Code § 4973(e)].

NOTE:

The limitation noted in 2(e), above, does not apply to interest rate changes in a variable rate loan otherwise consistent with the provisions of the loan documents, provided the change in the interest rate is not triggered by the event of default or the acceleration for the indebtedness [Fin. Code § 4973(e)].

6. Do not include "call" provision that permits lender, in its sole discretion, to accelerate the indebtedness, except in accordance with loan documents in the following situations [Fin. Code § 4973(i)]:

- a. As a result of the consumer's default;
- b. Pursuant to a due-on-sale provision; or
- c. Due to fraud or material misrepresentation by consumer in connection with loan or value of security for loan.

[2] Procedural Requirements and Limitations

1. Instruct person who originates (arranges, negotiates, or makes) [see Fin. Code § 4970(h) (definition)] covered loan to inform any employee who originates covered loans on person's behalf regarding administrative, civil, and criminal penalties for violation of Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. [Fin. Code § 4978.6].

NOTE:

The penalties for violation of the statutory provisions governing consumer loans secured by real property are significant [see Fin. Code §§ 4974-4978]. For discussion of the penalties for noncompliance with these provisions, see § 45.13[6].

2. Instruct person who will originate covered loans not to make or arrange a loan unless, at time loan is consummated, person reasonably believes that consumer (or consumers, when considered collectively in the case of multiple consumers), will be able to make the scheduled payments to repay obligation based on consideration of their current and expected income, current obligations, employment status, and other financial resources other than consumer's equity in dwelling that secures repayment of loan [Fin. Code § 4973(f)(1)].

a. If loan is structured to increase to a specific designated rate, stated as a number or formula, at a specific predetermined date not exceeding 37 months from date of application, above evaluation must be based on fully indexed rate of loan calculated at time of application.

b. Consumer will be presumed to be able to make scheduled payments to repay obligation if, at time loan is consummated, consumer's total monthly debts, including amounts owed under loan, do not exceed 55 percent of consumer's monthly gross income, as verified by credit application, consumer's financial statement, a credit report, financial information provided to person originating loan by or on behalf of consumer, or any other reasonable means.

NOTE:

No presumption of inability to make scheduled payments to repay the obligation will arise solely from the fact that at the time the loan is consummated, the consumer's total monthly debts, including amounts owed under the loan, exceed 55 percent of the consumer's monthly gross income [Fin. Code § 4973(f)(2)].

c. In the case of a stated income loan, reasonable belief requirement may be based on income stated by the consumer, and other information in possession of person originating loan after solicitation of all information that person customarily solicits in connection with loans of this type [Fin. Code § 4973(f)(3)].

NOTE:

A loan may not be knowingly or willfully originated as a stated income loan with the intent of effect of evading the above requirement [Fin. Code § 4973(f)(3)].

3. Instruct person who originates loan not to make covered loan that finances points and fees [see Fin. Code § 4970(c) (definition); § 45.13[2][h]] in excess of $1,000 or 6 percent of original principal balance, exclusive of points and fees, whichever is greater [Fin. Code § 4979.6].
4. Instruct person who originates loan not to pay any contractor under a home improvement contract [see Ch. 89, Home Improvement Contracts] from proceeds of covered loan, except as follows [Fin. Code § 4973(g)]:
 - a. Instrument is made payable to consumer or jointly to consumer and contractor.
 - b. At consumer's election, instrument is made payable to a third-party escrow agent for benefit of contractor in accordance with terms and conditions established in a written escrow agreement signed by consumer, person who originates loan, and contractor prior to disbursement of funds.
 - c. If payment is being made to an escrow account or jointly to consumer and contractor, person who originates loan has been presented with signed and dated completion certificate by consumer showing that home improvement contract was completed to consumer's satisfaction (except in the case of progress payments for home improvement work that consumer certifies is completed).
5. Instruct person who originates loan not to recommend or encourage consumer to default on an existing consumer loan or other debt in connection with solicitation or making of covered loan that refinances all or any portion of existing consumer loan or debt [Fin. Code § 4973(h)].
6. Instruct licensed person (broker, bank, savings association, credit union, finance lender, or residential mortgage broker) [see Fin. Code § 4970(g) (definition); § 45.13[d]] not to refinance or arrange for refinancing of a consumer loan such that new loan is a covered loan that is made for purpose of refinancing, debt consolidation, or cash out, that does not result in identifiable benefit to consumer, considering consumer's stated purpose for seeking loan, fees, interest rates, finance charges, and points [Fin. Code § 4973(i)].
7. Instruct person who originates loan not to steer, counsel, or direct any prospective consumer to accept a loan product with a risk grade less favorable than risk grade that consumer would qualify for based on person's then current underwriting guidelines, prudently applied, considering information available to that person, including information provided by consumer [Fin. Code § 4973(m)(1)].

NOTE:

A person will not be deemed to have violated the above requirement if the risk grade determination applied to a consumer is reasonably based on the person's underwriting guidelines if it is an appropriate risk grade category for which the consumer qualifies with the person [Fin. Code § 4973(m)(1)].

8. If a broker will originate loan, instruct broker not to steer, counsel, or direct any prospective consumer to accept a loan product at a higher cost than that for which consumer could qualify based on loan products offered by persons with whom broker regularly does business [Fin. Code § 4973(m)(1)].

9. Instruct person who originates a covered loan not to attempt to avoid application of Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. by doing any of the following [Fin. Code § 4973(n)]:

- a. Structuring loan transaction as an open-end credit plan for purpose of evading Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. when loan would have been a covered loan if loan had been structured as a closed end loan.
- b. Dividing any loan transaction into separate parts for purpose of evading Fin. Code § 4970 et seq.

10. Instruct person originating loan to do the following:

- a. Provide statutory disclosure notice [see § 45.229 (form)] to consumer no later than three business days prior to signing of loan documents [Fin. Code § 4973(j)(1)].
- b. Obtain signed acknowledgment of receipt of a copy of disclosure notice from consumer [see Fin. Code § 4973(j)(2)].

NOTE:

An acknowledgment of receipt of a copy of the notice, signed by the consumer, creates a rebuttable presumption that a licensed person has met its obligation to provide this disclosure [Fin. Code § 4973(j)(2)].

11. Instruct person who originates loan not to finance, on and after July 1, 2002, directly or indirectly, into a consumer loan transaction, or finance to same borrower within 30 days of a consumer loan transaction, any of following [Fin. Code § 4979.7]:

NOTE:

Insurance premiums, debt cancellation, or suspension fees calculated and paid on a monthly basis will not be considered financed by the person originating the loan. For purposes of these requirements, "credit insurance" does not include a contract issued by a government agency or private mortgage insurance company to insure the lender against loss caused by a mortgagor's default [Fin. Code § 4979.7].

- a. Credit life insurance premiums.
- b. Credit disability insurance premiums.
- c. Credit property insurance premiums.
- d. Credit unemployment insurance premiums.
- e. Debt cancellation or suspension agreement or contract fees.

12. Instruct person who originates covered loan to provide to consumer or licencing agency [see Fin. Code § 4970(f) (definition); § 45.13[e]], upon request and at no cost, documentation regarding loan that clearly demonstrates whether loan is a covered loan, including but not limited to, full disclosure of the following [Fin. Code § 4979; see Fin. Code § 4971 (definitions)]:

- a. Original principal balance.
- b. Annual percentage rate.

c. Total points and fees.

§ 45.140 Truth in Lending Act Compliance

1. Ensure that seller does one of following [Civ. Code § 1799.202(a); see Civ. Code § 1799.200 et seq. (Consumer Contract Awareness Act of 1990)]:

- a. Delivers copy of contract to consumer at time contract is executed, if contract was executed at seller's place of business; or
- b. Mails or delivers copy of contract to consumer within 10 days after seller receives contract, if contract was executed other than at seller's place of business and seller has not provided copy of contract for consumer to keep.

NOTE:

If the seller is a financial institution, it is not required to deliver a writing incorporated by reference in the consumer contract if the writing was already delivered to the consumer or the writing was not prepared by the seller [Civ. Code § 1799.202(b)]. If the consumer contract is contained on a customer identification card (or other writing used for identification for financial services) and the contract contains information that could be used by a third party to cause loss to the consumer or financial institution, the copy of contract given to the consumer may omit the consumer's signature or identifying information relating to financial services [Civ. Code § 1799.202(c)].

2. Advise client that if consumer makes written request, copy of consumer's completed consumer credit application must be mailed within reasonable time to address indicated in request [Civ. Code § 1799.202(d)].
3. Inform client of creditor's duty to give new disclosure statement if obligation is refinanced [12 C.F.R. § 226.20(a)].

NOTE:

Refinancing occurs when an existing obligation is satisfied and replaced by a new obligation, undertaken by the same consumer. Refinancing does not include a renewal of a single payment obligation with no change in the original terms, a reduction in the annual percentage rate, an agreement involving court proceeding, a change in the payment schedule as a result of the consumer's default or delinquency (unless the rate is increased or a new amount financed exceeds the unpaid balance plus the earned finance charge and premiums for continuation of certain kinds of insurance), or the renewal of optional insurance [12 C.F.R. § 226.20(a)].

4. Inform client that if credit balance in excess of $1 is created in connection with credit transaction, creditor must [12 C.F.R. § 226.21]:

- a. Credit amount of credit balance to consumer's account.
- b. Refund any part of remaining credit balance, on consumer's written request.
- c. Make good faith effort to refund any credit balance remaining in account for more than six months.

5. Inform client that creditor must retain evidence of Truth in Lending Act compliance (other than advertising requirements) for at least two years after disclosures are required to be made [12 C.F.R. § 226.25(a)].

§ 45.141 Execution of Retail Installment Contract

1. Have buyer read contract [see Civ. Code § 1803.2(c)].

NOTE:

If a language other than English is the primary language used for negotiations with a consumer, the consumer (and any other party to the contract) may have to be provided with a translation of the contract in that other language. For contracts entered into prior to July 1, 2004, this requirement is applicable only to contracts negotiated primarily in Spanish. On and after July 1, 2004, it is applicable to contracts negotiated primarily in Spanish, Chinese, Tagalog, Vietnamese, or Korean [see Civ. Code § 1632]. For detailed discussion of these requirements, see § 45.64.

2. Have buyer verify that contract contains no blank space to be filled in [see Civ. Code § 1803.4].
3. Have buyer sign contract.
4. Have seller furnish details of agreement to buyer as follows:
 - a. For most contracts, have seller deliver, at time of buyer's signature, legible copy of retail installment contract or other document seller has required or requested buyer to sign and that buyer has signed [Civ. Code §§ 1803.7, 1799.202(a)]; but see Civ. Code §§ 1799.202(b), 1799.203(b) (exceptions)]:
 - (1) If consumer signs at seller's place of business, have seller deliver copy of contract to consumer at time of signing.
 - (2) If consumer does not sign at seller's place of business and seller has not provided copy of contract for consumer to keep, have seller mail or deliver copy of contract to consumer within 10 days after seller receives contract.

b. If sale is by mail or telephone without personal solicitation by seller and seller's terms are set forth in catalog, have seller furnish, within 15 days after shipping goods, written statement of items inserted in any blank spaces left in contract by buyer [Civ. Code § 1803.8].

c. If sale is add-on sale, have seller deliver memorandum of transaction before due date of first installment [Civ. Code §§ 1808.2, 1808.3].

d. If consumer makes written request, mail copy of consumer's completed consumer credit application within reasonable time to address indicated in request [Civ. Code § 1799.202(d)].

5. Have seller deliver notification of insurance arranged by seller, if applicable [Civ. Code § 1803.5(c)].

NOTE:

If, under the contract, a charge is made for insurance that the seller or holder is to procure, the seller or holder has 45 days to mail insurance notices, certificates, or policies to the buyer [Civ. Code § 1803.5(c)].

6. Have seller ensure that any extension, deferral, or refinancing agreement complies with applicable restrictions [see Civ. Code §§ 1807.1-1807.3].

7. On buyer's demand, have holder of contract deliver instruments necessary to acknowledge payment in full and to release all security interests, after buyer pays entire obligation [Civ. Code § 1806.4].

 PART IV. FORMS
 A. Application for Credit

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 45.200

§ 45.200 Consumer Installment Loan Application

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an application for a consumer installment loan adapted from the model community property credit application promulgated by the Federal Reserve Board [see 12 C.F.R. pt. 202, app. B]. Whether information is gathered by oral interview or written application, a creditor subject to the Equal Credit Opportunity Act (ECOA) must comply with the applicable regulations [see § 45.120 [1] (application of ECOA)]. Use of this form ensures compliance with the ECOA [15 U.S.C. §§ 1691-1691f] and its implementing regulation, Regulation B [12 C.F.R. pt. 202], for creditors in a community property state, such as California. If the credit applicant does not reside in a community property state, some of the information on this form cannot be requested [see 12 C.F.R. pt. 202, app. B].

Use of this form is not mandatory. A creditor need not even use written applications, unless the application is for credit to buy or refinance what is or will be the applicant's principal residence and the loan is to be secured by the residence [12 C.F.R. § 202.5(e); see 12 C.F.R. § 202.13(a)]. The written application may request additional information not prohibited by the ECOA, delete questions, or rearrange the format of the application without changing the substance of the inquiries; however, if any of these changes is made, the appropriate notices regarding the optional nature of courtesy titles, the option to disclose alimony, child support, or separate maintenance, and the limitation concerning marital status inquiries must be included in the appropriate places if the items to which they relate appear on the creditor's form [12 C.F.R. pt. 202, app. B].

[b] Credit Application Requirements Under California Law

No person may be denied credit in his or her own name, regardless of marital status, if that person is otherwise creditworthy [Civ. Code § 1812.30(a)]. To inform married persons of their right to a separate account, every credit application for the acquisition of money, goods, services, or labor must specify that the applicant may apply for a separate account [Civ. Code § 1812.30(j)]. This form complies with this requirement; this addition does not violate or conflict with the ECOA [see 12 C.F.R. pt. 202, app. B].

B. Denial of Credit

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 45.210

§ 45.210 Notification of Credit Denial, Termination, or Change

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice that credit has been denied, terminated, or otherwise changed and is based on sample Form C-1 promulgated by the Federal Reserve Board [see 12 C.F.R. pt. 202, app. C, Form C-1]. This form fulfills the notification requirements of the Fair Credit Reporting Act [15 U.S.C. § 1681m(a), (b); 12 C.F.R. § 202.9(a)(1); see 15 U.S.C. §§ 1691-1691f (Equal Credit Opportunity Act); see also § 45.23 [2]] as well as certain California disclosure requirements [see Civ. Code §§ 1787.2(c), 1785.20].

A creditor who did not receive more than 150 applications during the calendar year immediately preceding the calendar year when business is being conducted may give all notifications orally [12 C.F.R. § 202.9(d)]. This exception does not apply under California law [see Civ. Code § 1787.2].

[b] Notice Requirement

Within 30 days after receiving a completed credit application, a creditor must notify the applicant of its action on the application [15 U.S.C. § 1691(d)(1); Civ. Code § 1787.2]. Notification must also be given within 30 days after terminating or unfavorably changing the terms of an existing account or refusing an increase in credit available [12 C.F.R. §§ 202.2(c)(1)(ii), 202.9(a)(1)(iii)]. Notification of adverse action must be in writing [12 C.F.R. § 202.9(a)(2); Civ. Code § 1787.2(b)]. Every applicant denied credit is entitled to a statement of the specific reasons for the denial. The creditor's notification must either state the specific reasons for the action taken or disclose the applicant's right to the statement [12 C.F.R. § 202.9(a)(2); Civ. Code § 1787.2(b), (c); see § 45.214 (notice of right to specific reasons for credit denial)].

If a credit application is incomplete, the creditor may either notify the applicant of action taken, as explained above, or notify the applicant that the application is incomplete [12 C.F.R. § 202.9(c)(1); see § 45.215 (notice alternatives for incomplete applications)].

Dear Applicant:

Thank you for your recent application for _____. We regret that we are unable to approve your request.

Your application was processed by a credit scoring system that assigns a numerical value to the various items of information we consider in evaluating an application. These numerical values are based upon the results of analyses of repayment histories of large numbers of customers.

The information you provided in your application did not score a sufficient number of points for approval of the application. The reasons why you did not score well compared to other applicants were:

- * Insufficient bank references
- * Type of occupation
- * Insufficient credit experience

In evaluating your application the consumer reporting agency listed below provided us with information that in whole or in part influenced our decision. The reporting agency played no part in our decision other than providing us with credit information about you. Under the Fair Credit Reporting Act, you have the right to know the information provided to us. It can be obtained by contacting _____ [name, address, and telephone number of consumer reporting agency].

§ 45.214 Disclosure of Right to Request Specific Reasons for Credit Denial

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice to a credit applicant disclosing the right to request specific reasons for the denial of credit. It is based on sample Form C-5 promulgated by the Federal Reserve Board [see 12 C.F.R. pt. 202, app. C], and satisfies the disclosure requirement of the Equal Credit Opportunity Act [see 12 C.F.R. § 202.9(a); see 15 U.S.C. §§ 1691-1691f]. This form should be used when the creditor wishes to send notice of the right to request specific reasons for credit denial, rather than sending a statement of the actual reasons [see 12 C.F.R. § 202.9(a)(2)(ii); see also [b], below]. For forms of notice specifying the reasons for denial of credit, see Sections 45.210 through 45.213.

A creditor who did not receive more than 150 applications during the calendar year immediately preceding the calendar year when business is being conducted may give all notifications orally, including the statement of specific reasons [12 C.F.R. § 202.9(d)].

[b] Alternative Manner of Notification

Rather than delivering the statement of specific reasons for a credit denial, the creditor may notify the applicant of his or her right to that statement [see 12 C.F.R. § 202.9(a)(2)(ii)]. The notification must inform the applicant that he or she will receive a statement of reasons within 30 days after a request, if the request is made within 60 days. The notification must also contain the name, address, and telephone number of the person or office from which the statement can be obtained [12 C.F.R. § 202.9(a)(2)(ii)]. The creditor may provide the statement of reasons orally, but only if the written notification of adverse action discloses the applicant's right to have any oral statement of reasons confirmed in writing within 30 days of the creditor's receipt of a written request for confirmation [12 C.F.R. § 202.9(a)(2)(ii)].

Under California law, the Holden Credit Denial Disclosure Act of 1976 [Civ. Code §§ 1787.1-1787.3] imposes similar requirements on creditors [see Civ. Code § 1787.2]. For discussion of the Act, see Section 45.21.

This form is a notice is to be sent to a credit applicant when the application submitted is incomplete. It is based on sample Form C-6 promulgated by the Federal Reserve Board [see 12 C.F.R. pt. 202, app. C], and satisfies the disclosure requirement of the Equal Credit Opportunity Act [12 C.F.R. § 202.9(a); see 15 U.S.C. §§ 1691-1691f]. If a credit application is incomplete, the creditor may either notify the applicant of the action taken [see 12 C.F.R. § 202.9(b); see also § 45.210 (notice of action taken)] or notify the applicant that the application is incomplete [12 C.F.R. § 202.9(c)(1)].

The notice must be written; it must specify the information needed, designate a reasonable period for the applicant to provide the information, and inform the applicant that failure to provide the information requested will cause the application to be dismissed without further consideration [12 C.F.R. § 202.9(c)(2)]. If the applicant does not respond within the designated time, the creditor has no further obligation [12 C.F.R. § 202.9(c)(2)].  C. Truth in Lending Act Disclosures

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 45.220

§ 45.220 Model Disclosure Statement for Direct Loans, Modifiable for Credit Sales

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a model loan disclosure statement. It is an illustration of model Form H-2, promulgated by the Federal Reserve Board for use in a closed-end, direct loan transaction [12 C.F.R. pt. 226, app. H]. While use of this form is not mandatory, if it is used properly, the creditor is deemed to be in compliance with the disclosure provisions of the Truth in Lending Act (TILA) [15 U.S.C. §§ 1601-1667e] and its implementing regulation, Regulation Z [15 U.S.C. § 1604(b); see 12 C.F.R. pt. 226]. Moreover, considerable revision is permissible without losing the presumption of compliance, as long as the revised form is substantially similar to the model form [see 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, supp. I (examples of acceptable revisions); see also 15 U.S.C. § 1640(f)].

This form contains only the disclosures required by TILA [see § 45.123 (TILA required disclosures)]. Other items must be added to the form for particular kinds of transactions [see [c], [d], below].

The TILA disclosure statement may be either a document separate from the contract between the parties, or a conspicuously segregated portion of that contract [see 15 U.S.C. § 1638(b); 12 C.F.R. § 226.17(a)]. However, the California Unruh Act requires that Regulation Z disclosures must be included in the contract [Civ. Code §§ 1803.2, 1803.3(b)]. Therefore, this form does not comply with the Unruh Act. For a retail installment contract complying with both TILA and Unruh Act disclosures requirements, see § 45.225.

For rules governing the electronic delivery of disclosures, see 12 C.F.R. § 226.17, discussed in [c], below.

[b] Disclosure Requirement

Before consummating a closed-end credit transaction, a creditor subject to TILA must provide the consumer with a written document containing the disclosures enumerated in TILA and in Regulation Z [12 C.F.R. § 226.17(a), (b)]. For a checklist of required disclosures, see § 45.123[2]. The disclosure document may contain other information, but the required disclosures must be grouped together and segregated from everything else [12 C.F.R. § 226.17(a)]. Although it is a required disclosure, the creditor's identity does not appear in the model form, apparently because it may be made separately from the other required disclosures [12 C.F.R. § 226.17(a) n. 38]. The creditor's name and address may be printed above the disclosures shown at the top of the form [see 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, app. H, Forms H-10-H-15]. The consumer's name, address, and account number, and the date of the transaction, though not required disclosures, may similarly be added to the form [12 C.F.R. § 226.17(a) n. 37]. Finally, an acknowledgment of receipt to be signed by the consumer may be added to provide the protection against subsequent claims of nondisclosure [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.17(a) n. 37; see also 15 U.S.C. § 1641(b)].

[c] Electronic Delivery of Disclosures

The required disclosures for closed-end credit under Regulation Z may be provided to the consumer in electronic form, subject to compliance with the consumer consent and other applicable provisions of the Electronic Signatures in Global and National Commerce Act (E-Sign Act) (15 U.S.C. 7001 et seq.) [12 C.F.R. § 226.17(a)(1)]. Consistent with the requirements of the E-Sign Act, creditors generally must obtain the consumer's affirmative consent to provide disclosures electronically [see 15 U.S.C. § 7001(c)(1)]. However, the disclosures required by 12 C.F.R. § 226.17(g) (mail or telephone orders), 12 C.F.R. § 226.19(b) (variable rate transactions secured by principal dwelling), and 226.24 (advertisements for closed-end credit) may be provided to the consumer in electronic form without regard to the consumer consent or other provisions of the E-Sign Act, as specified [see 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.17(g), 226.19(b), 226.24(d)].

[d] Modification of Form for Credit Sales

In any credit sale transaction covered by TILA, the creditor must disclose the "total sale price," which is the sum of the cash price, the finance charge, and any other amounts financed [12 C.F.R. § 226.18(j)]. The Credit Sale Model Form [12 C.F.R. pt. 226, app. H, Form H-1] is intended to be used in credit sale transactions. Form H-1 is identical to the loan form illustrated here (Form H-2), with an additional box at the top of the form entitled "Total Sale Price," accompanied by the description "The total cost of your purchase on credit, including your downpayment of $_____." The typeface and other indicia of prominence are the same as for the "Total of Payments" in this form.

[e] Additional Disclosures for Some Transactions

Additional disclosures are required if the consumer checks the box requesting an itemization of the amount financed [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.18(c); see also § 45.221 (form)]. Alternatively, the itemization may be provided routinely (but separately from the other disclosures), and the portions of the statement regarding the right to request an authorization disclosure may be omitted [12 C.F.R. § 226.18(c); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.17(a)(1)]. If the annual percentage rate may increase after consummation, variable rate disclosures are required [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.18(f); see also § 45.222 (form)]. If the obligation has a demand feature, that fact must be disclosed [12 C.F.R. § 226.18(i); see § 45.223 (form)]. An additional disclosure may be required if the creditor requires the consumer to maintain a deposit [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.18(r); see also § 45.224 (form)]. If insurance is provided but will not cover the full term of the credit transaction, the term of the insurance must be disclosed [12 C.F.R. § 226.4(d)(1)(ii); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.4(d) (additional insurance disclosures)].

In the case of consumer credit transaction that is secured by principal dwelling of consumer, in which extension of credit may exceed fair market value of dwelling, there must be (1) a clear and conspicuous statement that interest on portion of credit extension that is greater than fair market value of dwelling is not tax deductible for federal income tax purposes; and (2) a clear and conspicuous statement that consumer should consult tax adviser for further information regarding deductibility of interest and charges [15 U.S.C. § 1638(a)(15)]. This disclosure must be made to the consumer at the time of application for the extension of credit [15 U.S.C. § 1638(b)(3)]. This requirement takes effect 12 months after publication of final regulations to implement it [see Pub. L. No. 109-8, § 1302(c)(2) (Apr. 20, 2005)].

[f] Completing the Form

The "When Payments Are Due" portion of the payment schedule may be filled out by using either due dates or an expression such as "monthly beginning May 1, 1994" [see 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, app. H, Form H-11].

The requirement to pay premiums for credit life and credit disability insurance need not be made voluntary, as in the form. If they are required by the creditor, however, the premiums must be included in the finance charge rather than separately disclosed [12 C.F.R. § 226.4(d)(1)]. If credit life and credit disability insurance are not mandatory, that fact must be disclosed [12 C.F.R. § 226.4(d)(1)(i)].

The reference to filing fees and nonfiling insurance in the form is to cover taxes or fees to be paid to public officials for determining the existence of, or for perfecting, releasing, or satisfying a security interest, or the premium for insurance in lieu of perfecting a security interest [12 C.F.R. § 226.4(e)(1)]. If the insurance premium would exceed the official fees that would otherwise be payable, the premium must be included in the finance charge rather than separately disclosed [12 C.F.R. § 226.4(e)(2)]. In addition, if the payment of any taxes levied on security instruments or on documents evidencing indebtedness is a requirement for recording the instrument securing the evidence of indebtedness, the payment must be included in the finance charge rather than separately disclosed [15 U.S.C. § 1605(d)(3); 12 C.F.R. § 226.4(e)(3)]. At the creditor's option, both the security interest charges and the disclosures regarding insurance may be made separately from the other required disclosures [12 C.F.R. § 226.17(a)(1) n. 38]. No disclosures regarding security interest charges need to be made if there are no charges.

The statement in the form regarding a prepayment penalty is to be made only if a finance charge is computed from time to time by application of a rate to the unpaid principal balance. The statement regarding a rebate is to be made only if there is some other kind of finance charge [15 U.S.C. § 1638(a)(11), (b)(1); 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.18(k), 226.17(a)(1)]. In transactions in which there are both kinds of finance charges (for example, simple-interest loans with loan guarantee insurance, when insurance premiums are not computed strictly by application of a rate to a declining balance), both disclosures must be made [see 46 Fed. Reg. 28560, 28596 (1981)] .

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is an itemization of the amount financed under an installment loan. It is based on model Form H-3, promulgated by the Federal Reserve Board under Regulation Z [12 C.F.R. pt. 226, app. H]. This form is used to provide an itemization of the amount financed in a loan transaction to a customer who requests the itemization [12 C.F.R. § 226.18(c)(2)]. Use of this form will be deemed to be compliance with the Truth in Lending Act (TILA) if the figures disclosed are accurate [15 U.S.C. § 1604(b)].

TILA requires an itemization of the amount financed only if the consumer requests the itemization [15 U.S.C. § 1638(a)(2)(B); 12 C.F.R. § 226.18(c)(2)], although the creditor may provide an itemization routinely in each transaction if it so chooses. In either case, the itemization must be separate from the other TILA disclosures [15 U.S.C. § 1638(b)(1); 12 C.F.R. § 226.18(c); see § 45.123[2] P 3 (contents of itemization)].

 C. Truth in Lending Act Disclosures

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 45.222

§ 45.222 Variable-Rate Model Clauses for Truth in Lending Disclosures

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a disclosure concerning variable interest rates. It is based on model Form H-4, promulgated by the Federal Reserve Board under Regulation Z [12 C.F.R. pt. 226, app. H]. This form is used to inform a consumer if the annual percentage rate may change after consummation of an installment loan. Use of this form will be deemed compliance with the Truth in Lending Act (TILA) if the information actually disclosed is accurate [see 15 U.S.C. § 1604(b)].

The Truth in Lending Act requires these additional disclosures if the annual percentage rate on a loan may increase after consummation. In a transaction not secured by the consumer's principal dwelling or a transaction secured by the consumer's principal dwelling with a term of one year or less, the required variable-rate disclosures are (1) the circumstances under which the rate may increase, (2) any limitations on the increase, (3) the effect of an increase, and (4) an example of the payment terms that would result from an increase [12 C.F.R. § 226.18(f)(1)]. Different disclosures are required if the transaction is secured by the consumer's principal dwelling with a term of greater than one year [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.18(f)(2)].

Information provided in accordance with variable-rate regulations of other federal agencies may be substituted for these disclosures [see 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.18(f)(1) n.43, 226.19(b) n.45a]. Except for the example of increased terms, the variable-rate disclosures are to be made with the main body of TILA disclosures, in a statement segregated from all other terms or information [15 U.S.C. § 1638(b)(1); 12 C.F.R. § 226.17(a)(1) n.38]. The example may be given with the other disclosures or elsewhere [12 C.F.R. § 226.17(a)(1)].

When a creditor permits the consumer to consummate a closed-end transaction on-line, the consumer must be required to access the disclosures required under 12 C.F.R. § 226.18 before becoming obligated [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.18; see also 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, supp. I, comment 36(b)-3 (electronic delivery does not affect timing of disclosures)]. A link to the disclosures satisfies the timing rule if the consumer cannot bypass the disclosures before becoming obligated. In the alternative, the disclosures in this example must automatically appear on the screen, even if multiple screens are required to view the entire disclosure [see 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, supp. I, comment 36(b)-3]. For further discussion of the electronic delivery of disclosures, see § 45.220[1][c].

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a disclosure of a demand feature in an installment loan. It is based on model Form H-5, promulgated by the Federal Reserve Board under Regulation Z [12 C.F.R. pt. 226, app. H]. This form is used to inform a consumer of a demand feature in an installment loan [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.18(i)]. Proper use of this form will be deemed to be compliance with applicable requirements of the Truth in Lending Act [see 15 U.S.C. § 1604(b)].

If a credit obligation subject to the Truth in Lending Act has a demand feature, that feature must be disclosed to the consumer [12 C.F.R. § 226.18(i)]. The disclosure requirement is triggered only by a demand feature contemplated by the parties as part of the agreement. Transactions that convert to demand status after a stated period are subject to the disclosure; those that convert to demand status as a result of the consumer's default are not subject to the disclosure [12 C.F.R. pt. 226, supp. I, § 226.18(i)]. An assumption of maturity in one year is used to calculate the annual percentage rate and other disclosures, unless the obligation has an alternate maturity date, in which case the disclosures must be based on that date [12 C.F.R. § 226.17(c)(5)]. If the disclosures are based on an assumed maturity of one year, that fact must also be disclosed [12 C.F.R. § 226.18(i)].

For discussion of the electronic delivery of disclosures, see § 45.220[1][c].

§ 45.224 Required Deposit Model Clause for Truth in Lending Disclosures

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a disclosure of a required deposit in an installment loan. It is based on model Form H-7, promulgated by the Federal Reserve Board under Regulation Z [12 C.F.R. pt. 226, app. H]. This form is used to inform a consumer that the annual percentage rate does not reflect the effect of a required deposit in an installment loan [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.18(r)]. Proper use of this form will be deemed to be compliance with applicable requirements of the Truth in Lending Act [see 15 U.S.C. § 1604(b)].

If, in a credit transaction subject to the Truth in Lending Act (TILA), the creditor requires the consumer to maintain a deposit as a condition of the specific transaction, the TILA disclosure statement [see § 45.220] must contain an additional disclosure that the annual percentage rate does not reflect the effect of the required deposit [12 C.F.R. § 226.18(r)].

For discussion of the electronic delivery of disclosures, refer to § 45.220[1][c].

[b] Required Deposits

Certain deposits are not required deposits triggering the disclosure requirement. The term "required deposit" does not include (1) an escrow account for items such as taxes, insurance, or repairs, (2) a deposit that earns 5 percent or more interest annually, (3) or payments under a Morris Plan (under which a deposit balance will be wholly applied toward satisfaction of the consumer's obligation) [12 C.F.R. § 226.18(r) n. 45; see 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, supp. I, § 226.18(r)].

C. Truth in Lending Act Disclosures

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 45.225

§ 45.225 Retail Installment Contract With Truth in Lending Act and Unruh Act Disclosures

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

[i] In General

This form is a retail installment contract that includes the disclosures required under the federal Truth in Lending Act (TILA) [15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.] and the California Unruh Act [Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.]. It is applicable to retail installment contracts and accounts [see Civ. Code §§ 1802.6, 1802.7].

This form does not provide for a security interest to be retained by the seller. For coverage of the headings, disclosures, and warnings that are required if a security interest is to be retained by the seller [see Civ. Code § 1803.2(b)], see § 45.124.

To determine whether TILA and the Unruh Act apply to a transaction, see §§ 45.32 through 45.34. To determine whether TILA and the Unruh Act have been complied with, see the checklists in §§ 45.123 through 45.125. Portions of the federal disclosure statement noted as optional (the references to security, filing fees, and prepayment penalties) should be used only if the other provisions of the contract are modified in a manner that will make the optional disclosures applicable.

For discussion of the electronic delivery of disclosures, see § 45.220[1][c].

[ii] Modifications for Certain Types of Payments

If some payments on the contract will be larger than others or will be paid at different intervals, the format of the "Payment Schedule" contained in the form will require modification. A tabular format is suitable [see § 45.220 [2]]. The Unruh Act additionally requires that any deferred downpayment must be reflected in the Regulation Z payment schedule [Civ. Code § 1803.3(d)]. If the agreement requires any payment (other than a deferred downpayment) that is more than twice the amount of the usual regularly scheduled payment, the payment is a "balloon payment" for purposes of the Unruh Act and special language set out in the form must be included [Civ. Code § 1807.3(a)].

[iii] Modification of Insurance Disclosures

The federal disclosures in this form pertaining to insurance meet TILA requirements permitting insurance premiums to be excluded from the itemization of finance charge [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.4(d)(1)]. If insurance premiums are included in the finance charge for TILA purposes, these disclosures are not required under federal law. In any event, transactions subject to the Unruh Act must contain a disclosure of the type of insurance and the premium charged [Civ. Code § 1803.3(g)]. If any insurance will expire before the date of the last regularly scheduled installment, the disclosures in this form must be modified to specify that fact [12 C.F.R. § 226.4(d)(1)(ii); Civ. Code § 1803.3(g)].

[b] Grouping of Disclosures

The federal disclosures in this form are grouped together and set apart from the rest of the contract provisions. This format is required by TILA [15 U.S.C. § 1638(b)(1); 12 C.F.R. § 226.17(a)]. While TILA also permits the federal disclosures to be made in a separate document [15 U.S.C. § 1638(b)(1); 12 C.F.R. § 226.17(a)], the Unruh Act requires that every contract contain the Regulation Z disclosures [Civ. Code § 1803.3(b)] and further specifies that all terms and conditions be contained in the contract itself [Civ. Code § 1803.2(a)]. For this reason, use of a separate document for the federal disclosures in transactions in which the Unruh Act is applicable would result in unnecessary duplication.

TILA provides that the contract must contain either an itemization of the amount financed or a statement of the purchaser's right to receive such an itemization [12 C.F.R. § 226.18(c)(2)]. The Unruh Act, however, specifically provides that the latter option is unavailable [Civ. Code § 1801.5], and further provides that the amount financed must be itemized in the prescribed sequence in the contract itself [Civ. Code § 1803.3(b), (c)]. This form contains both a statement of the purchaser's right to receive an itemization of the amount financed, which appears in the portion of the form containing the federal disclosures, and a detailed itemization of the amount financed, which appears following the federal disclosures in the body of the agreement. If the Unruh Act does not apply to the transaction, the statement of the purchaser's right to an itemization should be included and the detailed itemization may be omitted [see § 45.221]. If the Unruh Act is applicable, the statement of the purchaser's right to an itemization should be deleted and the detailed itemization should be included. Substitution of the more detailed Unruh Act itemization for the itemization specified in TILA [see § 45.221] is permissible and will not jeopardize compliance with the federal requirements, provided the itemization of the amount financed is kept segregated from the other federal disclosures [see 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, supp. I, § 226.18(c)]. Refer to Section 45.220 [1] for discussion of additional disclosures required in some transactions.

[c] Type Size

To comply with the Unruh Act, printed portions of the contract must be in at least 8-point type [Civ. Code § 1803.1]. The heading ("Retail Installment Contract") must be in at least 12-point bold type [Civ. Code § 1803.2(b)(2)]. TILA imposes no type-size requirements [but see 16 C.F.R. § 433.2 (type-size requirements for notice of preservation of debtor's rights)].

[d] Related Forms

If the seller's business "affects interstate commerce" (with that phrase broadly defined), a notice of the consumer's rights against subsequent holders of the contract [see § 45.226] must also be included in the agreement [16 C.F.R. § 433.2]. A notice of cosigner's liability [see § 45.240] is required when more than one person will be obligating themselves to the credit contract, except when the debtors are a married couple [see Civ. Code § 1799.90 et seq.].

TERMS AND CONDITIONS1. Buyer agrees:

(a) To pay to Seller on demand all actual costs of collection occasioned by Buyer's failure to notify Seller of any change of residence or to communicate with Seller for a period of 45 days after any default in making payments due under this contract.

(b) In the event of any assignment of Seller's interest under this contract, the Assignee will be entitled to all the rights and privileges of Seller.

2. If Buyer defaults in the payment of any installment when due or if Buyer fails to perform or observe any of Buyer's agreements under this contract, Seller may at its option, without demand or notice to Buyer, declare the entire amount unpaid immediately due and payable.

3. Time and exactitude of each of the terms and conditions of this contract are of the essence of this contract. Seller may accept past due payments without modifying the terms of this contract, and without waiving any further rights of Seller under the contract. The obligations of Buyer are joint and several.

4. BUYER WARRANTS THAT THERE HAS BEEN AND WILL BE NO EXTENSION OF CREDIT IN CONNECTION WITH THIS TRANSACTION OTHER THAN THAT REPRESENTED BY THIS CONTRACT AND THAT THERE EXISTS NO PROMISE TO COMPENSATE BUYER FOR REFERRING CUSTOMERS TO SELLER OR REFERRING SELLER TO PROSPECTIVE CUSTOMERS.

[If seller is assigning contract to bank, add:]

Assignment and Guaranty of Contract

The undersigned sells, assigns, and transfers to _____ [name of bank], its successors, or assigns, the within contract. The undersigned guarantees payment of within contract in accordance with its terms and agrees to pay all costs and reasonable attorney's fees incurred in enforcing the obligations of the undersigned under this agreement.

The Assignee and the Buyer may make extensions of time of said contract, and the Assignee may otherwise deal with the Buyer as it may elect, without affecting the liability of the undersigned. On any default of the Buyer, the Assignee may, at its option, proceed directly, without notice, against the undersigned to collect and recover the amount hereby guaranteed, without proceeding against the Buyer or any other person, or foreclosing on, selling, or otherwise disposing of any property securing said contract. The undersigned hereby waives the pleading of any statute of limitations as a defense to the obligations in this agreement.

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 45.226

§ 45.226 Required Notice Preserving Consumers' Claims and Defenses in Consumer Credit Contracts

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice required to be contained in any consumer credit contract entered into in connection with a sale or lease of goods or services to consumers in or affecting interstate commerce as that term is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act [see 16 C.F.R. § 433.2; 15 U.S.C. §§ 41-58]. The term "interstate commerce" is broadly defined to include commerce involving more than a single state [see 15 U.S.C. § 44] and includes the activities of businesses located solely in California that use media advertising that extends to other states [F.T.C. v. Simeon Management Corporation (N.D. Cal. 1975) 391 F. Supp. 697, 703] .

Under the Federal Trade Commission Act, unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in commerce are unlawful [15 U.S.C. § 45(a)(1)]. It is an unfair or deceptive act or practice within the meaning of the Act for a seller, directly or indirectly in connection with any sale or lease of goods or services to consumers, in or affecting commerce (as that term is defined in the Act) to (1) take or receive a consumer credit contract that fails to contain the prescribed notice in at least 10-point boldface type, or (2) accept, as full or partial payment for a sale or lease, the proceeds of any purchase money loan (as defined by the regulations), unless the consumer credit contract made in connection with the purchase money loan contains the prescribed notice in at least 10-point boldface type [16 C.F.R. § 433.2].

The California Legislature has specifically adopted the protections afforded consumers under Title 16, Part 433, of the Code of Federal Regulations. These protections take precedence over the holder-in-due-course provisions of the Uniform Commercial Code [see Stats. 1989, ch. 1462, § 4; see also vol. 10A, Ch. 55, Negotiable Instruments].

[b] Definitions

For purposes of the required notices, a "consumer credit contract" is any instrument that evidences or embodies a debt arising from a purchase money loan or a financed sale [16 C.F.R. § 433.1(i)]. A "purchase money loan" is a cash advance received by a consumer in return for a finance charge (within the meaning of the Truth in Lending Act (TILA) and Regulation Z) that is applied, in whole or substantial part, to a purchase of goods or services from a seller who refers consumers to the creditor or is affiliated with the creditor by common control, contract, or business arrangement [16 C.F.R. § 433.1(d)]. A "financed sale" is an extension of credit to a consumer in connection with a credit sale within the meaning of TILA and Regulation Z [16 C.F.R. § 433.1(e)].

D. Consumer Loans Secured by Real Property

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 45.229

§ 45.229 Disclosure for Consumer Loans Secured by Real Property

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is the required disclosure for transactions involving consumer loans secured by specified real property (defined as a "covered loan" [see [c], below]). This disclosure, and the statutory requirements discussed in this comment, affect covered loans for which applications are made after June 2002 [Stats. 2001, ch. 732, § 3].

For additional discussion of Fin. Code § 4970 et seq., see § 45.13. For a guide to the rules that should be observed in preparing loan agreements for a consumer loan secured by real property, and in conducting the transaction, see § 45.127.

[b] Governing Statutes

Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. imposes requirements on regulated lenders (banks, savings associations, credit unions, finance lenders, residential mortgage lenders) and real estate brokers, with respect to the making of consumer loans that are secured by real property. The law prohibits various acts in making covered loans, including:

- Failing to consider the financial ability of a borrower to repay the loan [Fin. Code § 4973(f)(1)]; see § 45.13[5][a]].
- Financing specified types of credit insurance into a consumer loan transaction [Fin. Code § 4979.7; see § 45.13[4][g]].
- Recommending or encouraging a consumer to default on an existing consumer loan in order to solicit or make a covered loan that refinances the consumer loan [Fin. Code § 4973(h)]; see § 45.13[4][h]].
- Making a covered loan without providing the consumer a specified disclosure [Fin. Code §

4973(j)(1); see [2], below].

Violators are subject to a civil penalty [see Fin. Code § 4977(b); see also § 45.13[6][d]]. For further discussion of these issues, see § 45.13.

[c] Definitions

"Consumer loan" means a consumer credit transaction that is secured by real property located in California used, or intended to be used or occupied, as the principal dwelling of the consumer that is improved by a one-to-four residential unit. "Consumer loan" does not include a reverse mortgage, an open line of credit as defined in Regulation Z [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.1 et seq.], or a consumer credit transaction that is secured by rental property or second homes. "Consumer loan" does not include a bridge loan with a maturity of less than one year if the purpose of the loan is a bridge loan connected with the acquisition or construction of a dwelling intended to become the consumer's principal dwelling [Fin. Code § 4970(d)].

A "covered loan" is a consumer loan in which the original principal balance of the loan does not exceed the most current conforming loan limit for a single-family first mortgage loan established by the Federal National Mortgage Association, in the case of a mortgage or deed of trust, and with respect to which one of the following conditions is met:

- For a mortgage or deed of trust, the annual percentage rate at consummation of the transaction will exceed by more than eight percentage points the yield on U.S. Treasury securities having comparable periods of maturity on the 15th day of the month immediately preceding the month in which the application for the extension of credit is received by the creditor [Fin. Code § 4970(b)(1)].
- The total points and fees payable by the consumer at or before closing for a mortgage or deed of trust will exceed 6 percent of the total loan amount [Fin. Code § 4970(b)(2); see Wolski v. Fremont Investment & Loan (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 347, 350, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 500 (yield spread premium (YSP) paid in connection with residential mortgage loan was not included in definition of points and fees payable by borrower at or before closing under Fin. Code § 4970(b)(1)(B); transaction was not "covered loan" when total points and fees exceeded six percent only if YSP was included)].

For discussion of other relevant definitions, see § 45.13[2].

[d] Timing of Disclosure

A covered loan may not be made unless the specified disclosure has been provided to the consumer no later than three business days prior to signing of the loan documents of the transaction [Fin. Code § 4973(j)(1)].

[e] Format and Language of Disclosure

A covered loan may not be made unless the disclosure is written in 12-point font or larger [Fin. Code § 4973(j)(1)]. The disclosure must be in the form provided by statute [see Fin. Code § 4973(j)(1)], as set forth below.

[f] Rebuttable Presumption

There is a rebuttable presumption that a licensed person [see Fin. Code § 4970(g) (definition); § 45.13[2][d]] has met the obligation to provide this disclosure if the consumer provides the licensed person with a signed acknowledgment of receipt of a copy of the disclosure notice [Fin. Code § 4973(j)(2)].

[2] FORM

Disclosure for Consumer Loans Secured by Real PropertyCONSUMER CAUTION AND HOME OWNERSHIP COUNSELING NOTICE

If you obtain this loan, the lender will have a mortgage on your home. You could lose your home, and any money you have put into it, if you do not meet your obligations under the loan.

Mortgage loan rates and closing costs and fees vary based on many other factors, including your particular credit and financial circumstances, your earnings history, the loan-to-value requested, and the type of property that will secure your loan. Higher rates and fees may be justified depending on the individual circumstances of a particular consumer's application. You should shop around and compare loan rates and fees.

This particular loan may have a higher rate and total points and fees than other mortgage loans and is, or may be, subject to the additional disclosure and substantive protections under Division 1.6 (commencing with Section 4970) of the Financial Code. You should consider consulting a qualified independent credit counselor or other experienced financial adviser regarding the rate, fees, and provisions of this mortgage loan before you proceed. For information on contacting a qualified credit counselor, ask your lender or call the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development's counseling hotline at 1-888-466-3487 or go to www.hud.gov/fha/sfh/hcc for a list of counselors.

You are not required to complete any loan agreement merely because you have received these disclosures or have signed a loan application.

If you proceed with this mortgage loan, you should also remember that you may face serious financial risks if you use this loan to pay off credit card debts and other debts in connection with this transaction and then subsequently incur significant new credit card charges or other debts. If you continue to accumulate debt after this loan is closed and then experience financial difficulties, you could lose your home and any equity you have in it if you do not meet your mortgage loan obligations.

Property taxes and homeowner's insurance are your responsibility. Not all lenders provide escrow services for these payments. You should ask your lender about these services.

Your payments on existing debts contribute to your credit ratings. You should not accept any advice to ignore your regular payments to your existing creditors.

I ACKNOWLEDGE THAT I HAVE RECEIVED A COPY OF THIS DISCLOSURE NOTICE.

E. Consumer Reporting Agency Reports

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 45.230

§ 45.230 Request for Disclosure of Consumer Reporting Agency Record

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a request for disclosure of consumer reporting agency information. It is used by a consumer to request disclosure of information a consumer reporting agency may have about the consumer.

On request and proper identification of any consumer, every consumer reporting agency is required by the Fair Credit Reporting Act [15 U.S.C. § 1681 et seq.] to clearly and accurately disclose to the consumer the following information [15 U.S.C. § 1681g(a)]:

- All information in the consumer's file at the time of the request, with the exception of credit scores, any other risk scores, or predictors relating to the consumer.
- The sources of the information, excluding sources of information acquired solely for use in preparing an investigative consumer report [see § 45.23[2][b][ii]] and actually used for no other purpose, with limited exceptions relating to discovery in the event that an action is brought under the Fair Credit Reporting Act.
- The identification of each person (including each end user identified under 15 U.S.C. § 1681e(e)(1), relating to consumer reports for resale) that procured a consumer report for employment purposes, during the two-year period preceding the date the request is made, or for any other purpose, during the one-year period preceding the date the request is made [see 15 U.S.C. § 1681g(a)(3)(C) (exception for government agencies and departments for security clearances)].
- The dates, original payees, and amounts of any checks showing any adverse characterization of the consumer.
- A record of all inquiries received by the agency during the one-year period preceding the request that identified the consumer in connection with a credit or insurance transaction that was not initiated by the consumer.

- If the consumer requests the credit file and not the credit score, a statement that the consumer may request and obtain a credit score.

A consumer reporting agency must also provide the consumer, along with each written disclosure under 15 U.S.C. § 1681g [15 U.S.C. § 1681g(c)(2)]:

- A written summary of the consumer's rights prepared by the FTC [see 15 U.S.C. § 1681g(c)(1) (specific items required to be disclosed)].
- A toll-free telephone number for any nationwide credit reporting agency.
- A list, with telephone numbers, of federal agencies responsible for enforcing the FCRA [see 15 U.S.C. § 1681g(c)(2)(C)].
- A statement that the consumer may have additional rights under state law and may wish to contact a state or local consumer protection agency or a state attorney general to learn those rights.
- A statement that a consumer reporting agency is not required to remove accurate derogatory information from a consumer's file, unless the information is outdated [see 15 U.S.C. § 1681c] or cannot be verified.

Additional required disclosures cover:

- A summary of rights of identity theft victims [see 15 U.S.C. § 1681g(d); [4][c], below].
- For identity theft victims, and for any federal, state, or local government law enforcement agency, copies of an identity thief's application and business transaction records [15 U.S.C. § 1681g(e)(1); see 15 U.S.C. § 1681g(e)(2), (3), (5) (procedures to request information; exceptions)].
- An explanation of the factors that went into deriving the credit score [see 15 U.S.C. § 1681g(f); see also 15 U.S.C. § 1681g(g) (disclosure of credit scores by certain mortgage lenders)].

The form may also be used to convey to the agency notice of a dispute by the consumer concerning the completeness and accuracy of any item of information contained in the file. If the consumer notifies the consumer reporting agency directly, or indirectly through a reseller, of any dispute about either the completeness or the accuracy of any item of information contained in the consumer's file, the agency must then investigate free of charge and record the current status of that information in accordance with specified procedures [see 15 U.S.C. § 1681i(a)] before the end of the 30-day period beginning on the date the agency receives notice of the dispute by the consumer [15 U.S.C. § 1681i(a)(1)(A); see 15 U.S.C. § 1681i(a)(1)(B), (C) (extension of period to investigate; limitations on extension)]. See § 45.23 for further discussion of the Fair Credit Reporting Act.

For detailed coverage of the Fair Credit Reporting Act, see Ch. 92, Service Contracts, § 92.80.

The California Consumer Credit Reporting Agencies Act [Civ. Code §§ 1785.1-1785.35] sets forth similar disclosure and dispute resolution requirements [see Civ. Code § 1785.10; see also Civ. Code § 1785.15(a)]. In addition to the information contained in the first four items in the list above [see Civ. Code § 1785.10(c), (d)], the California act requires that a consumer credit reporting agency disclose all of the following:

- The consumer's credit score and an explanation of the credit score, and the key factors, as defined and required in Civ. Code § 1785.15.1 [Civ. Code § 1785.10(b); see Stats. 2000, ch. 978, §§ 1, 7 (effective July 1, 2001)]. For discussion of this requirement, see Ch. 92, Service Contracts, § 92.802.
- A record of all inquiries received by the agency in the 12-month period preceding the request that identified the consumer in connection with a credit transaction not initiated by the consumer [Civ. Code § 1785.10(e)]. After 2003, the record of inquiries must include the address, and, if provided by the recipient, the telephone number for customer service [Civ. Code § 1785.10(e); Stats. 2002, ch. 9, § 2; see also Civ. Code § 1785.10(f) (exemption for agency that is subject to Civ. Code § 1785.22)].
- The names and addresses of the sources of information [Civ. Code § 1785.10(c)]. After 2003, the agency must also disclose telephone numbers identified for consumer service, if provided by the sources of information [Civ. Code § 1785.10(c); Stats. 2001, ch. 236, §§ 2, 3; but see Stats. 2002, ch. 9, § 2; see also Civ. Code § 1785.10(f) (exemption for agency that is subject to Civ. Code § 1785.22)].
- The name of the recipient of any consumer credit report on the consumer, or, if applicable, the recipient's fictitious business name. After 2003, the agency must also disclose the address of the recipient, whether or not requested by the consumer, as well as telephone numbers identified for consumer service, if provided by the recipient [Civ. Code § 1785.10(d)(2); Stats. 2002, ch. 9, § 2; see also Civ. Code § 1785.10(f), (g) (exemptions for agency subject to Civ. Code § 1785.22)].

Certain items of information may not be included in a consumer credit report see Civ. Code § 1785.13; see Ch. 92, Service Contracts, § 92.80[2, 3]. This form complies with the disclosure requirements of the Consumer Credit Reporting Agencies Act.

For further discussion of the Consumer Credit Reporting Agencies Act, in general, see Ch. 92, Service Contracts, § 92.80[2].

PART IV. FORMS
E. Consumer Reporting Agency Reports

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 45.231

§ 45.231 Summary of Consumer's Rights Under Consumer Credit Reporting Agencies Act

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a summary of a consumer's rights under the Consumer Credit Reporting Agencies Act [Civ. Code § 1785.1 et seq.]. It must be included in any written disclosure a consumer credit reporting agency makes to a consumer pursuant to Civ. Code § 1785.15 [Civ. Code § 1785.15(f)]. The disclosure requirement is satisfied if the summary of rights is in substantially the form provided in the statute [see Civ. Code § 1785.15]. The language of this form fulfills the requirements of the statute.

If a consumer credit reporting agency compiles and maintains consumer credit reports on a nationwide basis, it must also provide a toll-free telephone number that consumers can use to communicate with the agency [Civ. Code § 1785.15(f)].

In addition to any other rights the consumer may have under the Consumer Credit Reporting Agencies Act, every consumer credit reporting agency, after being contacted by telephone, mail, or in person by any consumer who has reason to believe he or she may be a victim of identity theft, must promptly provide the consumer with a statement, written in a clear and conspicuous manner, describing the statutory rights of victims of identity theft under the Act [Civ. Code § 1785.15.3(a); see Civ. Code § 1785.15.3(c) (exception for certain consumer credit reporting agencies that act only as resellers of credit information collected from other credit reporting agencies)]. Further, every consumer credit reporting agency, on the receipt from a victim of identity theft of a police report prepared in accordance with Penal Code § 530.6, or a valid investigative report made by a Department of Motor Vehicles investigator with peace officer status regarding the public offenses described in Penal Code § 530.5, must provide the victim, free of charge and on request, with up to 12 copies of his or her file during a consecutive 12-month period, not to exceed one copy per month, following the date of the police report [Civ. Code § 1785.15.3(b)].

[2] FORM

Summary of Consumer's Rights Under Consumer Credit Reporting Agencies Act

You have a right to obtain a copy of your credit file from a consumer credit reporting agency. You may be charged a reasonable fee not exceeding eight dollars ($8). There is no fee, however, if you have been turned down for credit, employment, insurance, or a rental dwelling because of information in your credit report within the preceding 60 days. The consumer credit reporting agency must provide someone to help you interpret the information in your credit file.

You have a right to dispute inaccurate information by contacting the consumer credit reporting agency directly. However, neither you nor any credit repair company or credit service organization has the right to have accurate, current, and verifiable information removed from your credit report. Under the Federal Fair Credit Reporting Act, the consumer credit reporting agency must remove accurate, negative information from your report only if it is over seven years old. Bankruptcy information can be reported for 10 years.

If you have notified a consumer credit reporting agency in writing that you dispute the accuracy of information in your file, the consumer credit reporting agency must then, within 30 business days, reinvestigate and modify or remove inaccurate information. The consumer credit reporting agency may not charge a fee for this service. Any pertinent information and copies of all documents you have concerning an error should be given to the consumer credit reporting agency.

If reinvestigation does not resolve the dispute to your satisfaction, you may send a brief statement to the consumer credit reporting agency to keep in your file, explaining why you think the record is inaccurate. The consumer credit reporting agency must include your statement about disputed information in a report it issues about you.

You have a right to receive a record of all inquiries relating to a credit transaction initiated in the 12 months preceding your request. This record shall include the recipients of any consumer credit report.

You may request in writing that the information contained in your file not be provided to a third party for marketing purposes.

You have a right to place a "security alert" in your credit report, which will warn anyone who receives information in your credit report that your identity may have been used without your consent. Recipients of your credit report are required to take reasonable steps, including contacting you at the telephone number you may provide with your security alert, to verify your identity prior to lending money, extending credit, or completing the purchase, lease, or rental of goods or services. The security alert may prevent credit, loans, and services from being approved in your name without your consent. However, you should be aware that taking advantage of this right may delay or interfere with the timely approval of any subsequent request or application you make regarding a new loan, credit, mortgage, or cellular phone or other new account, including an extension of credit at point of sale. If you place a security alert on your credit report, you have a right to obtain a free copy of your credit report at the time the 90-day security alert period expires. A security alert may be requested by calling the following toll-free telephone number: [insert applicable toll-free telephone number]. California consumers also have the right to obtain a "security freeze."

You have a right to place a "security freeze" on your credit report, which will prohibit a consumer credit reporting agency from releasing any information in your credit report without your express authorization. A security freeze must be requested in writing by certified mail. The security freeze is designed to prevent credit, loans, and services from being approved in your name without your consent. However, you should be aware that using a security freeze to take control over who gets access to the personal and financial information in your credit report may delay, interfere with, or prohibit the timely approval of any subsequent request or application you make regarding a new loan, credit, mortgage, or cellular phone or other new account, including an extension of credit at point of sale. When you place a security freeze on your credit report, you will be provided a personal identification number or password to use if you choose to remove the freeze on your credit report or authorize the release of your credit report for a specific party or period of time after the freeze is in place. To provide that authorization you must contact the consumer credit reporting agency and provide all of the following:

- (1) The personal identification number or password.
- (2) Proper identification to verify your identity.
- (3) The proper information regarding the third party who is to receive the credit report or the period of time for which the report shall be available to users of the credit report.

A consumer credit reporting agency must authorize the release of your credit report no later than three business days after receiving the above information.

A security freeze does not apply when you have an existing account and a copy of your report is requested by your existing creditor or its agents or affiliates for certain types of account review, collection, fraud control, or similar activities.

If you are actively seeking credit, you should understand that the procedures involved in lifting a security freeze may slow your application for credit. You should plan ahead and lift a freeze, either completely if you are shopping around, or specifically for a certain creditor, before applying for new credit.

A consumer credit reporting agency may not charge a fee to a consumer for placing or removing a security freeze if the consumer is a victim of identity theft and submits a copy of a valid police report or valid Department of Motor Vehicles investigative report. A person 65 years of age or older with proper identification may be charged a fee of no more than $5 for placing, lifting, or removing a security freeze. All other consumers may be charged a fee of no more than $10 for each of these steps.

You have a right to bring a civil action against anyone, including a consumer credit reporting agency, who improperly obtains access to a file, knowingly or willfully misuses file data, or fails to correct inaccurate file data.

If you are a victim of identity theft and provide to a consumer credit reporting agency a copy of a valid police report or a valid investigative report made by a Department of Motor Vehicles investigator with peace officer status describing your circumstances, the following shall apply:

- (1) You have a right to have any information you list on the report as allegedly fraudulent promptly blocked so that the information cannot be reported. The information will be unblocked only if (A) the information you provide is a material misrepresentation of the facts, (B) you agree that the information is blocked in error, or (C) you knowingly obtained possession of goods, services, or moneys as result of the blocked transactions. If blocked information is unblocked you will be promptly notified.
- (2) Beginning July 1, 2003, you have a right to receive, free of charge and upon request, one copy of your credit report each month for up to 12 consecutive months.

F. Cosigner Liability

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 45.240

§ 45.240 Notice of Liability of Cosigner or Guarantor of Consumer Credit Contract

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice, in the form required by statute, of the liability of a cosigner or guarantor of a consumer credit contract [see [b], below (definition)]. Except when the cosigners are married to each other, the creditor must deliver this notice to the cosigner (that is, the person who does not in fact receive any of the money, property, or services that are the subject of the contract) before the cosigner becomes obligated on the contract [Civ. Code § 1799.91(a); see § 45.63].

This form is not required when there are joint applicants or when a creditor offers or extends an open-end credit plan as defined under federal law [see Ch. 46, Credit Card and Other Open-End Credit Transactions] if both of the following criteria apply. First, the application or agreement signed by each applicant must clearly and conspicuously disclose that, after credit approval, each applicant has the right to use the plan and may be liable for all amounts extended to any joint applicant [Civ. Code § 1799.91(c)(1)]. Second, after credit approval, the creditor must issue a credit card or other device to each applicant and send it to the address specified in the application or deliver it in accordance with the application or agreement. This second requirement does not apply if the creditor in question does not issue credit cards or other credit devices to be used to obtain credit under the creditor's open-end credit plan [Civ. Code § 1799.91(c)(2)].

[b] Definitions

A "consumer credit contract" is an obligation to pay money on a deferred payment basis if the money, property, services, or other consideration that is the subject matter of the contract is primarily for personal, family, or household purposes. Included in this category are retail installment contracts [see Civ. Code § 1802.6], retail installment accounts [see Civ. Code § 1802.7], conditional sales contracts [see Civ. Code § 2981(a)], loans or extensions of credit secured by other than real property, or unsecured loans for use primarily for personal, family, or household purposes, and lease contracts for motor vehicles [Civ. Code § 1799.90(a)].

A "creditor" is any entity or individual who enters into or arranges for consumer credit contracts in the ordinary course of business [Civ. Code § 1799.90(b)].

[c] Language Requirements

If the contract is written in either English or Spanish, this notice must be in both English and Spanish [Civ. Code § 1799.91(a)]. If the contract is written in another language, the notice must be in English and, in addition to or in lieu of Spanish, in the language in which the contract is written [Civ. Code § 1799.91(b)].

[d] Placement, Signature, and Type Size Requirements

If this notice is included in a consumer credit contract or any other document establishing the cosigner's liability, it must appear immediately above the space reserved for his or her signature or above or adjacent to any other notices required by law to be placed above the signature block and it must appear within a box formed by a heavy line [Civ. Code § 1799.92(a)]. If this notice is not included in the consumer credit contract, it must be on a separate sheet of paper that contains no other text except that necessary to identify the creditor and the contract to which it refers. That sheet must include the date and the cosigner's acknowledgment of receipt of the notice [Civ. Code § 1799.92(b)]. In any case, the notice must be printed in at least 10-point type [Civ. Code § 1799.91(a)].

The word "your" in the last sentence of the third paragraph of the notice in English must be italicized [Civ. Code § 1799.91(f); see Civ. Code § 1799.91(a), (d)].

[e] Creditor's Obligation to Cosigner

A creditor may not obtain the signature of a cosigner who is entitled to this notice if the consumer credit contract contains blank spaces to be filled in later [Civ. Code § 1799.93(a)]. The creditor must give each cosigner a copy of the underlying debt instrument and security agreement or deed of trust, if any, that constitutes the consumer credit contract and, if this notice is separate from the consumer credit contract, a copy of this notice must also be given to the cosigner along with a copy of the document evidencing his or her obligation [Civ. Code § 1799.93(b)].

[f] Rights and Obligations of the Parties

This notice does not alter or affect the rights and obligations of the parties to a consumer credit contract [see Civ. Code § 1799.94]. If the underlying consumer credit contract does not comply with the statutory requirements governing it (including the requirement for this notice) [Civ. Code § 1799.90 et seq.], the creditor may not sue a cosigner or enforce a security interest against that party [Civ. Code § 1799.95]. However, the rights of a bona fide purchaser for value of property sold after enforcement of a security interest are unaffected if the purchase was made without notice of the facts constituting a violation of those requirements [Civ. Code § 1799.95].

The law governing consumer credit contracts does not operate to make applicable, affect, or waive the law governing sureties [see Civ. Code § 2787 et seq.] or the law governing marital relations [Civ. Code § 1799.98(a); see Fam. Code §§ 700 et seq., 4301, 4302]. The delivery of this form is not evidence that the cosigner acted or did not act as a surety [Civ. Code § 1799.98(b)].

[2] FORM

Notice of Liability of Cosigner or Guarantor of Consumer Credit Contract

NOTICE TO COSIGNER (Traducci'on en Ingl'es Se Requiere Por La Ley)

You are being asked to guarantee this debt. Think carefully before you do. If the borrower doesn't pay the debt, you will have to. Be sure you can afford to pay if you have to, and that you want to accept this responsibility.

You may have to pay up to the full amount of the debt if the borrower does not pay. You may also have to pay late fees or collection costs, which increase this amount.

The creditor can collect this debt from you without first trying to collect from the borrower. The creditor can use the same collection methods against you that can be used against the borrower, such as suing you, garnishing your wages, etc. If this debt is ever in default, that fact may become a part of your credit record.

This notice is not the contract that makes you liable for the debt.

AVISO PARA EL FIADOR (Spanish Translation Required By Law)

Se le est'a pidiendo que garantice esta deuda. Pi'enselo con cuidado antes de ponerse de acuerdo. Si la persona que ha pedido este pr'estamo no paga la deuda, usted tendr'a que pagarla. Est'e seguro de que usted podr'a pagar si sea obligado a pagarla y de que usted desea aceptar la responsabilidad.

Si la persona que ha pedido el pr'estamo no paga la deuda, es posible que usted tenga que pagar la suma total de la deuda, mas los cargos por tardarse en el pago o el costo de cobranza, lo cual aumenta el total de esta suma.

El acreedor (financiero) puede cobrarle a usted sin, primeramente, tratar de cobrarle al deudor. Los mismos metodos de cobranza que pueden usarse contra el deudor, podran usarse contra usted, tales como presentar una demanda en corte, quitar parte de su sueldo, etc. Si alguna vez no se cumpla con la obligaci'on de pagar esta deuda, se puede incluir esa informaci'on en la historia de credito de usted.

Este aviso no es el contrato mismo en que se le echa a usted la responsabilidad de la deuda.

§ 45.241 Notice of Delinquency to Cosigner of Credit Contract

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice of a delinquency on a consumer credit contract. A creditor must give this notice to a cosigner of such a contract if the creditor provides any adverse information with respect to that cosigner to a consumer credit reporting agency regarding the delinquency [Civ. Code § 1799.101(b)]. The creditor must provide this notice either at or before the time the adverse information is provided [Civ. Code § 1799.101(b)]. A creditor is also required to give a notice of delinquency to a cosigner before providing a debt collector with any information regarding the cosigner's obligation on a consumer credit contract [Civ. Code § 1799.101(c); see Civ. Code § 1788.2(c) (definition of "debt collector")]. Refer to Section 45.63 [2] for further discussion of the notice of delinquency.

This form may be adapted as necessary to reflect the circumstances of a given situation. No particular form or language is required by statute for a notice of delinquency [Civ. Code § 1799.101(f)].

[b] Definitions

A "cosigner" is a natural person, other than the primary obligor of the spouse of the primary obligor, who renders himself or herself liable for the obligation on a consumer credit contract without compensation. The term includes a person whose signature is requested by a creditor as a condition to granting credit to another person. A person is a cosigner whether or not he or she is designated as such on the consumer credit contract or other document. A joint applicant for open-end credit is not a cosigner [Civ. Code § 1799.101(a)(3); see Civ. Code § 1799.91].

A "delinquency" is a failure to make timely payment to the creditor of all or a portion of any installment under a consumer credit contract [Civ. Code § 1799.101(a)(4)].

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 45.242

§ 45.242 Notice of Cosigner's Action to Recover Damages[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a notice of a cosigner's intention to bring an action against a creditor for damages suffered as a result of the creditor's failure to meet statutory notice requirements regarding reporting of a delinquency on a consumer credit contract [Civ. Code § 1799.102(a); see Civ. Code § 1799.101; see also § 45.241 [1]]. A cosigner who suffers damage from a violation of those requirements may bring an action against the creditor to recover actual damages or $250, whichever is greater, plus reasonable attorneys' fees [Civ. Code § 1799.102(a)].

The cosigner must notify the creditor of his or her intention to bring the action not less than 30 days before bringing the action; the notice must include a statement of the specific evidence that proves the loss suffered by the cosigner [Civ. Code § 1799.102(b)]. If, within 25 days after the date of receiving the notice, the creditor tenders to the cosigner an amount equal to the loss or otherwise resolves the matter to the cosigner's satisfaction, the cosigner is barred from further recovery of that loss, including reasonable attorneys' fees [Civ. Code § 1799.102(b)].

G. Credit Disability Insurance Disclosures

19-45 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 45.250

§ 45.250 Credit Disability Insurance Claims Disclosures

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form contains disclosures that must be made by a creditor to a debtor if the creditor sells credit disability insurance to the debtor in any type of credit transaction; this disclosure must be made at the time of the sale. The disclosure may be included in the credit agreement, any separate document under which the insurance is sold, or on a separate page; the statute requires only that the disclosure be printed in at least 10-point type and that it be substantially the same as the statutory language reproduced in this form [Civ. Code § 1812.402(f)(1)].

[b] Applicability of Disclosure Requirement

The disclosure requirement and the other statutory provisions discussed in this comment [Civ. Code §§ 1812.400-1812.410] do not apply to credit disability insurance covering a key person if the creditor requires that insurance as a condition to making a loan of at least $25,000 to be used in the operation of a business in which the key person is employed or has an ownership interest. For these purposes, a "key person" is one who the creditor and the debtor mutually agree must be involved in the operation of the business to assure its success [Civ. Code § 1812.406(a)]. These requirements are inapplicable to most credit transactions of more than 10 years' duration that are secured by a mortgage or deed of trust. However, they do apply to those transactions if the principal purpose of the transaction is to finance improvements to residential real property consisting of four or fewer residential units and the accompanying documentation or the course of dealing between the creditor and a contractor or supplier would indicate that purpose [Civ. Code § 1812.406(b)].

[c] Purpose and Effect of Statute

This form and the underlying substantive provisions of the law implement the California Legislature's finding that it is unfair for a creditor who has directly participated in, arranged, or received compensation for the sale of credit disability insurance to a debtor, or that creditor's successor in interest, to invoke a creditor's remedy because the debtor fails to pay any sum that becomes due during a period of disability until a reasonable time has passed for the disability insurance claim to be filed, verified, and processed [Civ. Code § 1812.400]. Because the statute establishes a three-month claim moratorium period [see [e][i], below], it effectively discourages creditors who are unwilling to defer collection efforts for that period of time from selling credit disability insurance or procuring it for debtors. This is because the moratorium period and the other statutory requirements do not apply if a creditor does not arrange or participate in the sale or receive a commission or other compensation for the sale of credit disability insurance to the debtor [Civ. Code § 1812.404].

The statute does not affect or defeat an interest in a debtor's property that has been acquired by a bona fide purchaser or encumbrancer for value after the creditor invokes a creditor's remedy in violation of the statute if that purchaser or encumbrancer did not have notice of the facts that constituted the violation [see Civ. Code § 1812.409].

[d] "Creditor" and "Debtor" Defined

A "creditor" can be either a lender of money or the seller or lessor of goods, services, or rights, for which payment is arranged through a credit transaction, who has directly participated in, arranged, or received compensation for the sale of credit disability insurance to a debtor. The term also includes any successor to the right, title, or interest of the original creditor [Civ. Code § 1812.401(b); see Civ. Code § 1812.404]. A "debtor" is a borrower of money or a purchaser or lessee of goods, services, property, or rights for which payment is made through a credit transaction [Civ. Code § 1812.401(c)].

[e] Creditor's Rights

[i] Moratorium on Collection

A creditor may not invoke any creditor's remedies because of the debtor's nonpayment of any sum that becomes due during any disability claim period when there is credit disability insurance coverage [Civ. Code § 1812.402(a)]. The disability claim period begins on the due date for any payment the debtor fails to pay when the debtor claims that the credit disability coverage applies, and continues until three calendar months thereafter or until the insurer pays or rejects the claim, whichever occurs sooner [Civ. Code § 1812.401(e)]. Thus, a creditor may be precluded from taking any collection action for up to three months if credit disability insurance is in effect. Further, even if the insurer rejects the claim within the disability claim period, the debtor still has an additional 35-day grace period to pay the amount that became due during the claims period before the creditor may invoke any creditor's remedy [Civ. Code § 1812.402(e); see [g], below].

For discussion of the creditor's rights when it invokes its remedies without knowledge of the debtor's disability, see [iii], below.

[ii] Other Remedies Continue

A creditor may invoke any remedy during the disability claim period for delinquencies due prior to that claim period, even if nonpayment is related to the claimed disability, and for nonpayment of any interest, finance charge, or late charge accruing during the claim period on any sum that became due prior to that period [Civ. Code § 1812.402(c)]. A creditor may also foreclose a lien on any property to protect its security interest if a senior lienholder on that property has initiated foreclosure of its lien, is not prohibited from continuing foreclosure by law or court order, or will not otherwise suspend or delay foreclosure until after the disability claim period [Civ. Code § 1812.402(d)].

[iii] Remedies Invoked Before Notice of Disability

When the creditor invokes creditor's remedies for nonpayment after having sent the debtor a delinquency notice, the following rules apply. On receipt of notice of the debtor's disability claim, the creditor must refrain from invoking any further creditor's remedies during the remainder of the claim period or the 35-day period after the insurer either rejects the debtor's claim or allows only partial payment [see [g], below] and rescind every remedy that it has already invoked (except that it need not restore property legally sold to any unrelated party) [Civ. Code § 1812.402(g)(1), (2)]. The debtor, however, will be liable for the costs and expenses actually incurred in either invoking or rescinding any creditor's remedy [Civ. Code § 1812.402(g)(3)]. The notice that must be given by the debtor to the creditor is defined as written notice deposited in the mail, postage prepaid, addressed to the creditor at the location where payments are normally to be sent or any other specified location. However, the creditor may waive its requirement for written notice and accept oral notice [Civ. Code § 1812.401(f)].

[iv] Open-End Credit Plans

If the plan is an open-end credit plan, a creditor may invoke its remedies when a debtor fails to make payments when due unless the nonpayment is related to an insured disability. However, termination of the open-end credit plan on the ground that the debtor does not meet the creditor's customary credit standards at the time the debtor notifies the creditor of the disability claim is not a "creditor's remedy." An "open-end credit plan" is credit extended when repeated transactions are contemplated, a finance charge is imposed on an outstanding unpaid balance, and the amount set by the creditor as the credit limit is available to the extent that any outstanding balance is repaid [Civ. Code § 1812.405; see vol. 9A, Ch. 46, Credit Card and Other Open-End Credit Transactions].

[f] Duties of Parties Upon Receipt of Disability Notice

When the creditor receives notice that the debtor claims disability as a ground for nonpayment, the creditor must send the debtor notice of the name, address, and telephone number of the insurer or the insurance representative from whom claim forms can be obtained. The creditor's successor in interest need not comply with these requirements if it is not related to the creditor by common ownership or control and does not know the name, address, and telephone number of the insurer or its representative [Civ. Code § 1812.402(b)].

When the insurer receives the claim, it must send the necessary claim forms to the debtor [Civ. Code § 1812.402(b)]. It must also send the debtor a disclosure in substantially the form specified by the statute [see Civ. Code § 1812.402(f)(2) (not reproduced here)]. The debtor must then submit the claim to the insurer and notify the creditor that the claim has been submitted [Civ. Code § 1812.402(b)].

[g] Payment or Rejection of Claim by Insurer

If the insurer pays the claim within the disability claim period, the creditor must treat any payment made by the insurer as timely payment by the debtor. If the insurer rejects the claim within that period or makes partial disability payments only, the debtor will have the opportunity to pay the balance without being subject to any creditor's remedy other than late charges for 35 days after the insurer sends notice of rejection or partial payment. If the debtor has not paid the balance due within the 35-day period, the creditor may then invoke any creditor's remedy [Civ. Code § 1812.402(e)]. If the insurer ceases making payments on a debtor's disability claim because the debtor failed to make timely submission of forms required by the insurer for recertification of a temporary disability, the creditor may invoke its remedies 15 days after receiving notice that the insurer has ceased making payments [Civ. Code § 1812.403].

[h] Other Rights of Debtors

The debtor may seek damages, equitable relief, or other relief for any violation of the statute by the creditor [Civ. Code § 1812.402(i)], although the creditor will not be in violation or liable if, having invoked its remedies before notice of the disability claim, it receives notice of the claim and then refrains from invoking further remedies during the remainder of the claim period or the 35-day period after the insurer either rejects the debtor's claim or allows only partial payment and rescinds previously invoked remedies [Civ. Code § 1812.402(g)(1), (2), (4)]. The rights and remedies given by the statutory provisions discussed in this Comment are cumulative to each other and all other debtors' rights under other laws [Civ. Code § 1812.402(h)]. Any waiver by the debtor of the provisions of Civil Code Sections 1812.400 through 1812.410 is void and unenforceable [Civ. Code § 1812.408].

[i] Insurance Provisions

A credit disability insurance policy or group certificate may exclude only certain diseases or conditions from coverage. Any preexisting disease or physical condition may be excluded, if the disease or condition is named or specifically described in the policy or certificate. If a disease or condition is not named or specifically described, the only diseases or conditions that may be excluded are those preexisting illnesses, diseases, and physical conditions for which the debtor actually received medical advice, consultation, or treatment within six months before or six months after the effective date of the coverage and which result in disability commencing within two years of that date [Ins. Code § 779.30(a)].

For revolving accounts, any preexisting condition provision may be applied separately to each charge or advance. If a preexisting condition provision is applied separately, the time period is measured from the date of each separate charge or advance. If a preexisting condition provision is applied to a subsequent charge or advance on a revolving account, the insurer must give the consumer a statutory notice at least annually regarding exclusions from coverage [see Ins. Code § 779.30(d)]. Applications, policies, and certificates must disclose, in bold capital letters, the preexisting health conditions that will render the coverage void [Ins. Code § 10127.5]. The debtor has the right to terminate credit life or disability insurance at any time for any reason on notice to the creditor. Refunds must be paid and if paid to the creditor, the creditor must credit the debtor's account with the refund and any interest or finance charge adjustment provided for in the credit agreement [Ins. Code § 779.31; see Ins. Code § 779.14 (provision for payment of refunds)].

Credit Disability Insurance Claims Disclosures

CLAIM PROCEDURE

If you become disabled, tell us (your creditor) right away. (We advise you to send this information to the same address to which you are normally required to send your payments, unless a different address or telephone number is given to you in writing by us as the location where we would like to be notified.) We will tell you where to get claim forms. Send in the completed form to the insurance company as soon as possible and tell us as soon as you do.

If your disability insurance covers all of your missed payment, WE CANNOT TRY TO COLLECT WHAT YOU OWE OR FORECLOSE UPON OR REPOSSESS ANY COLLATERAL UNTIL THREE CALENDAR MONTHS AFTER your first missed payment is due or until the insurance company pays or rejects your claim, whichever comes first. We can, however, try to collect, foreclose, or repossess if you have money due and owing us or are otherwise in default when your disability claim is made or if a senior mortgage or lien holder is foreclosing.

If the insurance company pays the claim within the three calendar months, we must accept the money as though you paid on time. If the insurance company rejects the claim within the three calendar months or accepts the claim within the three calendar months as a partial disability and pays less than for a total disability, you will have 35 days from the date that the rejection or the acceptance of the partial disability claim is sent to pay past due payments, or the difference between past due payments and what the insurance company pays for the partial disability, plus late charges. You can contact us, and we will tell you how much you owe. After that time, we can take action to collect or foreclose or repossess any collateral you may have given.

If the insurance company accepts your claim but requires that you send in additional forms to remain eligible for continued payments, you should send in these completed additional forms no later than required. If you do not send in these forms on time, the insurance company may stop paying, and we will then be able to take action to collect or foreclose or repossess any collateral you may have given.

DIVISION III: COMMERCIAL TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 46 CREDIT CARD AND OTHER OPEN-END CREDIT TRANSACTIONS

20-46 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide Scope

Scope

Scope

This chapter covers government regulation of consumer open-end credit. It begins with a discussion of open-end credit arrangements, including credit cards and retail installment agreements, which are the two main types of open-end financing. This discussion includes an introduction to the operation of credit card transactions and other open-end or revolving credit accounts.

The Truth in Lending Act and its implementing regulation, Federal Reserve Board Regulation Z, as they apply to open-end credit, are also discussed. Under California law, the Unruh Act, the Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971, and Areias-Robbins Credit Card Full Disclosure Act of 1986 requirements for credit cards and retail installment agreements are also explored, and coordinated with the federal regulations. This chapter also deals with equal credit rights and fair credit billing on both the state and federal levels, claims and defenses of cardholders, cardholder and cosigner liability, credit disability insurance, and California laws relating to identity theft in the consumer credit context.

Government regulation of closed-end credit plans, including the Truth in Lending Act and Unruh Act requirements, can be found in Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales. That chapter also provides definitions of credit-related terms used in the Truth in Lending Act, a more detailed discussion of equal credit rights, and coverage of the regulation of consumer reporting agencies.

If the credit involves the purchase or lease of an automobile, see Ch. 47, Automotive Financing and Vehicle Leasing. If credit involves the purchase of real estate, see Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans. If an extension of credit is secured by an interest in the consumer's dwelling, see Ch. 25A, Security Instruments for Real Estate Financing, and use only those portions of this chapter that expressly discuss the right to rescind the open-end credit contract for transactions creating a lien on the consumer's dwelling.

With the exception of coverage of federal and state law governing the issuance and liability for unauthorized use of business credit cards, this chapter covers only consumer credit transactions. For a discussion of credit extensions to businesses, see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions, Ch. 43, Commercial Loans, and Ch. 44, Accounts Receivable Financing and Factoring. Electronic and other types of fund transfers, including those effected by the use of credit cards, are covered in Ch. 56, Letters of Credit and Electronic Fund Transfers.

§ 46.10 Open-End or Revolving Credit

Open-end or revolving credit is consumer credit extended pursuant to a plan under which the creditor reasonably contemplates repeated transactions, a finance charge may be imposed from time to time on any outstanding unpaid balance, and further credit is generally made available to the consumer to the extent that any outstanding balance is repaid [15 U.S.C. § 1602(i); 12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(20)]. An open-end credit arrangement typically involves a credit card or revolving account.

Closed-end credit, on the other hand, generally refers to a single extension of credit that usually takes the form of the loan of a fixed amount or a single purchase credit transaction. Under Regulation Z [12 C.F.R. pt. 226], closed-end credit is defined by exclusion: it includes any consumer credit other than open-end credit [12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(10)]. The most common closed-end credit arrangements are direct loans and credit sales. See Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loan and Credit Sales, for detailed discussion of closed-end credit.

§ 46.11 Revolving Accounts

Revolving accounts are typically checking account overdraft protection plans: the customer may overdraw his or her checking account and the bank will cover the overdraft by automatically depositing funds in the account, generally in multiples of $100. A revolving credit agreement may also provide for a transfer of funds to the customer's account at the customer's request. The bank sends a monthly statement to the customer, who is required to make a minimum monthly payment. Such an agreement generally provides for a transfer fee, as well as interest on the outstanding balance. The federal Truth in Lending Act imposes certain disclosure requirements on these agreements [see 15 U.S.C. § 1637(a); 12 C.F.R. § 226.6] and the monthly billing statements, [see 15 U.S.C. § 1637(b); 12 C.F.R. § 226.7].

A creditor extending any type of open-end credit must make certain disclosures to the consumer before the first use of the credit plan [15 U.S.C. §§ 1637(a), 1643(a)(1); 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.5(b)(1), 226.12(b)(2); see Civ. Code § 1810.1]. See §§ 46.212 and 46.215 for discussion of these disclosures.

§ 46.12 Credit Cards

The Truth in Lending Act (TILA) [15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.] defines a "credit card" as any device used to obtain money, property, labor, or services on credit [15 U.S.C. § 1602(k); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(15)]. The term includes a check guarantee card if it has overdraft protection or otherwise provides direct access to a line of credit. However, the term does not extend to a check guarantee card that has no credit feature, even if the creditor occasionally honors an inadvertent overdraft [12 C.F.R. pt. 226, supp. I, § 226.2(a)(15)].

The Song-Beverly Credit Card Act [Civ. Code § 1747 et seq.] defines a "credit card" as a device used to obtain money, property, labor, or services on credit, but specifically excludes telephone credit cards (to which TILA is also inapplicable [15 U.S.C. § 1603(4); 12 C.F.R. § 226.3(c)]), electronic fund transfer arrangements between consumers and financial institutions containing an overdraft protection feature, and keys or card keys used to purchase petroleum products at an automated dispensing outlet primarily for business purposes [see Civ. Code § 1747.02(a)(1)-(3); see also 12 C.F.R. § 226.3 (exempt transactions); 15 U.S.C. § 1603 (exempt transactions)].

The Student Financial Responsibility Act [Educ. Code § 99030] governs the on-campus marketing of credit cards to college students [see Civ. Code § 1747.02(m) ("student credit card" defined for purposes of Student Financial Responsibility Act)].

Credit cards are issued by commercial banks, retailers, travel and entertainment companies, and others.

Under the Truth in Lending Act (TILA), a "charge card" is a credit card on an account for which no periodic rate is used to compute a finance charge. Certain provisions of TILA apply to charge cards [12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(15); see §§ 46.40, 46.214].

Under the Areias-Robbins Charge Card Full Disclosure Act of 1986, a "charge card" is a card, plate, or other credit device pursuant to which a charge card issuer extends credit to the charge card holder when (1) the credit extended does not subject the charge card holder to a finance charge and (2) the charge card holder cannot automatically access credit that is repayable in installments. The credit must be extended primarily for personal, family, or household purposes [Civ. Code § 1748.21(a)].

§ 46.14 Operation of Credit Card Systems

[1] Bank Credit Cards

A bank credit card system typically involves four parties and is administered by an inter-bank credit card clearinghouse owned jointly by member banks. The parties include the cardholder bank, the cardholding customer, the retailer accepting the credit card as payment for merchandise or services, and the merchant bank that has agreed to purchase credit card transaction slips from the retailer. A customer makes a credit card purchase from a retailer who deposits the purchase transaction slip in its account at the merchant bank. The merchant bank credits the retailer's account with the cash value of the transaction, as shown by the transaction slip, less a stated discount, and sends the transaction slip and a processing fee to the inter-bank credit card clearinghouse. The credit card clearinghouse retains the processing fee, credits the merchant bank's account with the amount shown on the transaction slip, debits the cardholder bank's account for that amount, and forwards the slip to the cardholder bank which, in turn, bills the customer [Western States Bankcard Assn. v. City and County of San Francisco (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 208, 211, 137 Cal. Rptr. 183, 561 P.2d 273] .

Bank credit card plans are not subject to the Franchise Investment Law [Corp. Code § 31103; see Corp. Code § 31000 et seq.]. For purposes of this law, "bank credit card plans" are those in which the issuers of credit cards are banks (or persons controlling these banks) regulated by or under the supervision of the following institutions: the Federal Reserve Board, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the Comptroller of the Currency of the United States, or the Superintendent of Banks of the State of California, provided that the assets of these banks or controlling persons represent a majority of the assets on a consolidated basis of any holding company system of which the card issuers may be a party [Corp. Code § 31103]. See Ch. 51A, Franchise Registration , for detailed discussion of the franchise regulatory scheme.

[2] Retail Credit Cards

Rather than obtaining a credit card from a bank, a customer may arrange for credit through a retailer. A "retail installment account," also known as an installment or revolving account, is an arrangement whereby a buyer, using a retail credit card, promises to pay to a retail seller the outstanding balance incurred in a retail installment sale [Civ. Code § 1802.7]. A "retail installment sale" is a sale of goods or services by a retail seller to a retail buyer for a deferred price payable in installments [Civ. Code §§ 1802.5, 1802.7]. Such an agreement provides for interest on the outstanding balance [Civ. Code § 1802.7]. A retail installment account is distinguished from a retail installment contract [see Civ. Code § 1802.6] by the fact that its finance charge is expressed as a percent of the periodic balance rather than as a stated dollar amount or as a capitalized item [see Civ. Code § 1802.7].

The retailer either carries customer purchases on its own accounts and bills the buyers directly for payment, or sells its accounts to private factors.

[3] Travel and Entertainment Credit Cards

A travel and entertainment ("T and E") card combines the characteristics of the bank and retail card systems. Certain travel and entertainment credit card issuers act solely in an administrative and financing capacity, while others include their own merchandising operation. An issuer may also sign up merchants to honor their cards. Under this arrangement, the merchant is compensated directly by the issuer, which deducts a percentage from the merchant's price as its service charge.

§ 46.20 Equal Credit Opportunity

[1] Federal Law

The Equal Credit Opportunity Act [15 U.S.C. § 1691 et seq.] prohibits discrimination against any credit applicant in any aspect of a credit transaction on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex, marital status, or age [15 U.S.C. § 1691(a)]. Further, a creditor may not discriminate against an applicant because all or part of the applicant's income derives from public assistance or because the applicant has exercised any right under the consumer protection laws [15 U.S.C. § 1691(a)].

A detailed set of regulations (Regulation B) implements the Act [see 12 C.F.R. pt. 202]. These regulations control the information that may be requested in credit applications [12 C.F.R. § 202.5], the factors that may be considered in evaluating credit worthiness [12 C.F.R. § 202.6], and, to some extent, the types and forms of credit extensions and accounts [12 C.F.R. § 202.7].

[2] California Law

California has similar but less extensive legislation concerning the rights of credit applicants [see Civ. Code § 1812.30 et seq.]. California law requires that credit applicants who control similar amounts of property and earnings be treated equally in credit transactions, regardless of sex or marital status. Additionally, no person may be denied credit in his or her own name on the basis of sex or marital status [Civ. Code § 1812.30(a)-(d)]. Violation of either law may result in civil liability for actual and punitive damages [15 U.S.C. § 1691e; Civ. Code § 1812.31].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

C. Government Regulation of Open-End Credit Transactions

20-46 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 46.30

§ 46.30 Coordination of Federal and California Requirements

Two principal statutes govern consumer credit in California. At the federal level, the Truth in Lending Act (TILA) [15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.] is designed to foster the informed use of consumer credit through uniform disclosure of credit terms and cost. The Act is administered under regulations (Regulation Z) issued by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System [12 C.F.R. pt. 226]. Under California law, the Unruh Act [Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.] provides consumer protection from abusive credit practices in the area of retail installment sales. The implementing feature of both acts is a detailed disclosure document.

While there are differences in coverage and application, the two laws are similar in purpose and contain many of the same disclosure requirements. Both acts can, and frequently do, apply to the same credit transaction. TILA preempts any inconsistent provisions of the Unruh Act [15 U.S.C. § 1610(a)]. The Unruh Act permits the required disclosures to be made in any manner or terminology required or permitted by Regulation Z, provided that any additional requirements imposed by the Unruh act are complied with and further provided that a creditor always furnish, in the disclosure document, a separate written itemization of the amount financed [Civ. Code § 1801.5 (Regulation Z disclosures); see Civ. Code § 1803.3(b); 12 C.F.R. § 226.18(c)]. There are no inconsistencies between the two statutes that could make compliance with both difficult; in fact, all contracts subject to the Unruh Act must contain the disclosures required by Regulation Z, whether or not Regulation Z is applicable to the transaction [Civ. Code § 1803.3(b)]. Thus, the different disclosure requirements can be coordinated in those credit transactions to which both acts apply [see Civ. Code § 1801.5; 15 U.S.C. § 1637 (disclosures by open-end creditors); 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.5 (disclosures by open-end creditors), 226.28 (effect on state laws)].

In addition, in California, three acts govern the specific disclosure requirements relating to credit cards and charge cards: the Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971 [Civ. Code § 1747 et seq.], the Areias Credit Card Full Disclosure Act of 1986 [Civ. Code § 1748.10 et seq.], and the Areias-Robbins Charge Card Full Disclosure Act of 1986 [Civ. Code § 1748.20 et seq.]. These acts are intended to conform to TILA and any rule, regulation, or interpretation by the Federal Reserve System [Civ. Code § 1747.01; see Civ. Code §§ 1748.11(a)(2), (c), (e), 1748.22(d)]. TILA preempts any inconsistent provisions of any of these California acts [15 U.S.C. § 1610(a)].

§ 46.31 Making Use of Disclosures

Different banks and other credit card issuers legitimately use different methods for computing and stating interest rates. Even when two issuers use the same method and offer the same rate, one might impose a fee not required by the other. The federal and California disclosures standardize cost-of-credit calculations to permit accurate comparisons between different credit or charge cards. Thus, while the interest rate stated in one contract may not be comparable to that stated in another, the annual percentage rate (which along with the other Truth in Lending Act information must be conspicuously segregated from other contract terms [see 15 U.S.C. § 1638(b)(1)]), will be directly comparable. Similarly, the finance charge will be a comprehensive dollar total of all items that make up the cost of credit, permitting the consumer to see at a glance what it will cost him or her to borrow money or to purchase an item on an installment basis, regardless of how the lender denominates the items that constitute that cost.

See Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales, for definitions of these credit-related terms and detailed discussion of all disclosure requirements.

CHAPTER 46 CREDIT CARD AND OTHER OPEN-END CREDIT TRANSACTIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

C. Government Regulation of Open-End Credit Transactions

20-46 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 46.32

§ 46.32 Transactions Covered by Truth in Lending and Unruh Acts

[1] In General

The Truth in Lending Act (TILA) and Unruh Act apply only to consumer credit transactions, and only to those involving specified creditors [see [3], below]. A "consumer credit transaction" is one in which the credit extended, or the goods purchased, are primarily for personal, family, or household purposes [15 U.S.C. § 1602(h); 12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(12); Civ. Code § 1802.1].

The Truth in Lending Act and Unruh Act regulate both open-end and closed-end credit. See Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales, for detailed discussion of closed-end credit and related Truth in Lending Act and Unruh Act provisions.

[2] Limitations on Application of Truth in Lending Act

The Truth in Lending Act (TILA) is not applicable to all consumer credit transactions. Credit extensions in excess of $25,000 are not covered unless they are secured by real property or a dwelling [12 C.F.R. § 226.3(b)]. Additionally, TILA applies only if the credit is subject to a finance charge, or is payable by written agreement in more than four installments [12 C.F.R. § 226.1(c)]. However, certain regulations apply to all credit card transactions, whether for business or consumer purposes, even if the credit is not subject to a finance charge and is not payable in more than four installments [12 C.F.R. § 226.1(c)(2); see §§ 46.41[1] (no issuance except as renewal or in response to request), 46.213 (liability for unauthorized use)].

[3] Limitations on Application of Unruh Act

[a] Applicable Only to Retail Installment Sales

The Unruh Act applies only to retail installment sales of consumer goods or services. A "retail installment sale" is a sale by a person engaged in the business of selling consumer goods or services to a consumer, not principally for the purpose of resale, with payment in installments [Civ. Code § 1802.5; see Civ. Code §§ 1802.1-1802.6].

[b] Contract Must be Entered or Performed in California

The Unruh Act applies to retail installment contracts entered into or performed in California [see Civ. Code §§ 1802.6, 1802.7]. A contract will be deemed to have been made in California if either the seller offers or agrees in California to sell to a buyer who is a resident of California, or if a buyer who is a resident of California accepts or makes the offer in California to buy, regardless of the situs of the contract as specified in it [Civ. Code § 1802.19(a)]. Any solicitation or communication to sell, whether oral or written, that originates outside of California but that is forwarded to, and received in California by, a buyer who is a resident of California, will be deemed to be an offer or agreement to sell in California [Civ. Code § 1802.19(b)]. Any solicitation or communication to buy, whether oral or written, that originates within California, from a buyer who is a California resident, that is forwarded to, and received by, a retail seller outside of California, is deemed to be an acceptance or offer to buy in California [Civ. Code § 1802.19(c)].

[c] Unruh Act Inapplicable to Contracts for Certain Sales and Services

The Unruh Act does not apply to contracts for the construction, sale, or construction and sale of an entire residence, mobilehome, or commercial or industrial structure [Civ. Code § 1801.4(a)]. In addition, contracts for the sale of real property are not covered by the Act [Civ. Code § 1801.4(b)]; but see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10240 et seq. (real property loans); see also Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans]. The Unruh Act also does not apply to contracts for the sale of certain aircraft, or certain vessels having a value over $25,000 [Civ. Code § 1801.4(c), (d)].

Motor vehicles are not treated as goods under the Unruh Act, nor are any goods sold with a motor vehicle under a contract governed by the Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act [Civ. Code § 1802.1; see Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.] or leased with a motor vehicle under a contract governed by the Vehicle Leasing Act [see Civ. Code §§ 2985.7-2990; see also Ch. 47, Automotive Financing and Vehicle Leasing]. However, the term "goods" does include a trailer that is sold in conjunction with a vessel unless the cash price of the vessel, including all accessories and equipment sold with it, exceeds $25,000 [Civ. Code §§ 1801.4, 1802.1; see Veh. Code § 9840(a)].

While certain services furnished in connection with the sale or repair of goods [see Civ. Code § 1802.1 (definition)] are covered by the Unruh Act, the services of physicians and dentists and services subject to federal tariffs are outside coverage of the Act [Civ. Code § 1802.2].

C. Government Regulation of Open-End Credit Transactions

20-46 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 46.33

§ 46.33 Creditors Covered by Truth in Lending and Unruh Acts

[1] Truth in Lending Act

Under the Truth in Lending Act, a covered "creditor" is any person who regularly extends consumer credit payable by agreement in more than four installments, or for which a finance charge may be imposed. The term also includes credit card issuers, whether or not the amount due is payable in more than four installments or a finance charge is required [15 U.S.C. § 1602(f); 12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(17)]. Under the implementing guidelines of Regulation Z [12 C.F.R. pt. 226], TILA applies to individuals and businesses that offer or extend credit when (1) the credit is offered or extended to consumers, (2) the offering or extension is done regularly, (3) the credit is subject to a finance charge or is payable by a written agreement in more than four installment, and (4) the credit is primarily for personal, family, or household purposes [12 C.F.R. § 226.1(c)(1)].

A person "regularly extends consumer credit" only if it is extended more than 25 times, or more than five times for transactions secured by a dwelling, in the preceding or current calendar year [12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(17) n.3]. Only a creditor to whom an obligation is initially payable is required to make disclosures as a creditor [15 U.S.C. § 1602(f); 12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(17)], although certain disclosure requirements apply to persons who are not creditors but who provide applications for home equity plans to consumers [12 C.F.R. § 226.1(c)(3); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.5b(d) (required disclosures); see Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans]. However, assignees of the initial creditor are liable for disclosure violations which are apparent on the face of the disclosure statement [15 U.S.C. § 1641(a)].

[2] Unruh Act

The Unruh Act applies only to persons or entities engaged in the retail sale of consumer goods or services [Civ. Code § 1802.3]. Financial institutions that provide purchase-money loans can be subject to the Unruh Act, but only if they are joint venturers with, or are related by common ownership and control to, the actual seller of the goods or services financed [Civ. Code § 1801.6(b)]. The Unruh Act is applicable only to credit sales, and then only to those credit sales that also meet the definition of a "retail installment contract" [see Civ. Code §§ 1802.6, 1802.7]. The Truth in Lending Act is generally applicable to those same retail transactions, as well as to other credit sales and direct loans [see 15 U.S.C. § 1602(g); 12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(16)]. Unlike the Truth in Lending Act, the Unruh Act contains no exemption for creditors handling fewer than 25 annual transactions [see Civ. Code § 1802.3].

[1] Truth in Lending Act Transactions

The disclosure document for open-end credit transactions under the Truth in Lending Act need not take any particular form. It must, however, be in writing, in a form the consumer may keep, and the disclosures must be clear and conspicuous [12 C.F.R. § 226.5(a); see 12 C.F.R. 226.5(a)(1) nn.7-8, (2) n.9 (exceptions)]. The required disclosures may be provided to the consumer in electronic form, subject to compliance with the consumer consent and other applicable provisions of the Electronic Signatures in Global and National Commerce Act (E-Sign Act) (15 U.S.C. § 7001 et seq.). The disclosures required by 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a (credit and charge card applications and solicitations), 12 C.F.R. § 226.5b (home equity plans), and 12 C.F.R. § 226.16 (open-end credit advertising) may be provided to the consumer in electronic form without regard to the consumer consent or other provisions of the E-Sign Act in the circumstances, as specified [12 C.F.R. § 226.5(a)(1)].

See Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales, for discussion of the consequences of failing to comply with the Truth in Lending Act.

[2] Unruh Act Transactions

The required disclosure document for transactions under the Unruh Act must be in the form of a written contract [Civ. Code § 1803.1]. The entire agreement between the parties must be contained in a single document [Civ. Code § 1803.2(a)]. The contract must be dated [Civ. Code § 1803.1] and executed by the consumer, and a legible copy must be delivered to the consumer at the time of execution [Civ. Code §§ 1803.7, 1799.202].

The required contents need not be stated in any particular sequence, with the exception of the mandatory itemization of the amount financed [Civ. Code § 1803.3(b); see Civ. Code § 1803.3(c) ("itemization of the amount financed" explained)]. Information other than the required disclosures may be included in the contract, unless the provisions are specifically prohibited by the Unruh Act [see Civ. Code § 1804.1 (prohibited contractual provisions)].

Neither the Areias Credit Card Full Disclosure Act of 1986, the Areias-Robbins Charge Card Full Disclosure Act of 1986, nor the Areias Retail Installment Account Full Disclosure Act of 1986 require that their disclosures use any particular form, nor do they prohibit a creditor from disclosing additional terms or information [Civ. Code §§ 1748.11(b), (d), 1748.22(c), 1810.21(c), (e)].

CHAPTER 46 CREDIT CARD AND OTHER OPEN-END CREDIT TRANSACTIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

C. Government Regulation of Open-End Credit Transactions

20-46 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 46.35

§ 46.35 Credit Card Accountability Responsibility and Disclosure Act of 2009

[1] Effective Dates of Credit Card Act

The Credit Card Accountability Responsibility and Disclosure Act of 2009 (Credit Card Act) was signed into law on May 22, 2009 see P.L. 111-24, 123 Stat. 1734 (2009)]. It primarily amends the Truth in Lending Act, Section 127 [15 U.S.C. § 1637] and establishes new substantive and disclosure requirements to establish "fair and transparent practices pertaining to open-end consumer credit plans" [74 Fed. Reg. 36077 (July 22, 2009)] .

The requirements of the Credit Card Act that pertain to credit cards or other open-end credit become effective in three stages. First, provisions generally requiring that consumers receive 45 days' advance notice of interest rate increases and significant changes in terms [new TILA § 127(i), 15 U.S.C. § 1637(i)] and provisions regarding the amount of time consumers have to make payments [revised TILA § 163, 15 U.S.C. § 1666b] became effective August 20, 2009 (90 days after enactment of the Credit Card Act) [P.L. 111-24, Title I, § 106(b)(2), 123 Stat. 1742]. A majority of the requirements under the Credit Card Act, including provisions limiting interest rate increases on outstanding balances [revised TILA § 171, 15 U.S.C. § 1666 et seq.], over-the-limit transactions [new TILA § 127(k), 15 U.S.C. § 1637(k)], and student cards [new TILA §§ 127(c)(8), 127(p), and 140(f); 15 U.S.C. §§ 1637(c)(8), (p), 1650(f)] become effective on February 22, 2010 (nine months after enactment) [see 15 USCS § 1602 note].

Finally, two provisions of the Credit Card Act addressing the reasonableness and proportionality of penalty fees and charges [new TILA § 149, 15 U.S.C. § 1665d] and re-evaluation by creditors of rate increases [new TILA § 148, 15 U.S.C. § 1665c] are effective on August 22, 2010 (15 months after enactment) [15 U.S.C. §§ 1665d(b), 1665c(b)]. For these provisions to become effective on August 22, 2010, the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve Board must issue final rules no later than February 22, 2010 [15 U.S.C. 1665c(d); 74 Fed. Reg. 36078 (July 22, 2009)] . However, while 15 U.S.C. § 1665c is not effective until August 22, 2010, it applies to rate increases that have occurred since January 1, 2009 [see 15 U.S.C. § 1665c(b)(2)].

[2] Implementing Regulations

In finalizing amendments, and drafting future amendments, to Regulation Z, the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve Board "intends to use its January 2009 rules and the underlying rationale as the basis for its rulemakings under the [Act]." Accordingly, the Board has not withdrawn any provisions of the January 2009 rulemaking under Regulation Z or Regulation AA [Federal Trade Commission Act, 15 U.S.C. § 41 et seq. implementing regulation] (except as overruled by the Act) [see 74 Fed. Reg. 36078 (July 22, 2009)] .

Further, the Board's proposed clarifications to the January 2009 rules, issued in May, will be finalized during the Board's rulemaking in 2010. The Board intends to consider comments on proposed clarifications and technical amendments published on May 5, 2009 and to incorporate those changes, as appropriate [74 Fed. Reg. 36077 (July 22, 2009)] . These amendments and additions will be incorporated into this chapter when they have been finalized.

CHAPTER 46 CREDIT CARD AND OTHER OPEN-END CREDIT TRANSACTIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

C. Government Regulation of Open-End Credit Transactions

20-46 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 46.36

§ 46.36 Consumer Protection Under Credit Card Act

[1] Advance Notice of Rate Increases Required

Credit card issuers must notify credit card holders of a rate increase, or any other significant change in credit card account terms, at least 45 days in advance of the effective date [15 U.S.C. § 1637(i)(1), (2)]. The notice must be clear and conspicuous and give the credit card holder the right to close the account [15 U.S.C. § 1637(i)(3)].

[2] Freeze on Interest Rate Terms and Fees on Canceled Cards

Closure or cancellation of an account by the credit card issuer will not constitute a default under an existing cardholder agreement, and will not trigger an obligation to immediately repay the obligation in full or through a method that is less beneficial to the obligor than one of the methods described in 15 U.S.C. § 1666i-1(c)(2), or the imposition of any other penalty or fee [15 U.S.C. § 1637(i)(4)].

[3] Limits on Fees and Interest Charges

Except as specified, a credit card issuer may not impose interest charges on any portion of a balance that is paid by the due date [see 15 U.S.C. § 1637(j)(1) (prohibits double-cycle billing); 15 U.S.C. § 1637(j)(2) (exceptions)].

Credit card holders must be given the option of having a fixed credit limit that cannot be exceeded, and card companies cannot charge over-limit fees on cardholders with fixed limits [15 U.S.C. § 1637(k)(1)]. Credit card holders may elect to prohibit the creditor from completing over-limit transactions that will result in a fee or constitute a default under the credit agreement [15 U.S.C. § 1637(k)(1)]. Over-limit charges can only be charged when an extension of credit, rather than a fee or interest charge, causes the credit limit to be exceeded. Over-limit charges can only be applied once during a billing cycle [15 U.S.C. § 1637(k)(7)].

[4] Limits on Charging Certain Fees

Credit card issuers are prohibited from charging a fee to allow a credit card holder to pay a credit card debt, whether payment is by mail, telephone, electronic transfer, or other means, unless the payment involves expedited service by a service representative of the credit card holder [15 U.S.C. § 1637(l)]. Required fees must be reasonably related to cost [see 15 U.S.C. § 1665d(b)].

[5] Application of Credit Card Payments

Payments in excess of the minimum payment are to be applied as follows [15 U.S.C. § 1666c(b)(1); see 15 U.S.C. § 1666c(b)(2) (exception in case of balance on which interest is deferred)]:

- First to the card balance with the highest interest;
- Then to each successive balance bearing the next highest rate of interest, until the payment is exhausted.

§ 46.37 Enhanced Consumer Disclosures Under Credit Card Act

[1] Payoff Timing Disclosures

Credit card issuers must provide individual consumer account information and disclose the period of time it will take the credit card holder to pay off the card balance if only minimum monthly payments are made [15 U.S.C. § 1637(b)(11)(A), (B)]. Card issuers must also disclose the total amount of interest the cardholder will pay to pay off the card balance if only minimum monthly payments are made [15 U.S.C. § 1637(b)(11)(B)(ii)].

[2] Requirements Related to Late Payment Deadlines and Penalties

Credit card issuers must provide full disclosure in billing statements of required payment due dates and applicable late payment penalties [15 U.S.C. § 1637(b)(12)(A)]. If one of more late payments may result in an increase in the annual percentage rate applicable to the account, the card issuer must provide a conspicuous notice of that fact, together with the applicable penalty annual percentage rate [see 15 U.S.C. § 1637(b)(12)(B)]. Payment made by a card holder at local branches must be credited that same day, for purposes of determining whether a late fee or charge may be imposed [see 15 U.S.C. § 1637(b)(12)(C)].

[3] Renewal Disclosures

Credit card issuers must provide account disclosures to consumer on card renewal when the terms of the card have changed [15 U.S.C. § 1637(d)(3)].

[4] Internet Posting of Credit Card Agreements

A credit card issuer must establish and maintain an Internet site on which the creditor will post the written agreement between the issuer and the consumer for each credit account under an open-end consumer credit plan [15 U.S.C. § 1532(d)(1); see 15 U.S.C. § 1532(d)(4) (exceptions)].

[5] Prevention of Deceptive Marketing of Credit Reports

Any advertisement for a free credit report must prominently disclose that free credit reports are available under federal law at annualcreditreport.com [15 U.S.C. § 1681j(g)(1)].

[1] Extensions of Credit to Underage Consumers

Credit card issuers must, when soliciting to persons under the age of 21, obtain an application that contains either: (1) the signature of a parent, guardian, other qualified individual willing to take financial responsibility for the debt; or (2) information indicating an independent means of repaying any credit extended [see 15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(8)].

[2] Restrictions on Affinity Cards for College Students

A "college affinity card" is a credit card issued under an open end consumer credit plan in conjunction with an agreement between the issuer and an institution of higher education, or an alumni association, or affiliated foundation that meets certain requirements [see 15 U.S.C. § 1637(r)(1)(A)].

A credit card issuer may not offer a student at an institution of higher learning any tangible item to induce the student to apply for, or participate in, any open end consumer credit plan offered by the issuer if the offer is made on the campus, or near the campus of the institution of higher learning, or at an event sponsored by the institution [15 U.S.C. § 1650(f)(2)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Disclosure Requirements

20-46 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 46.40

§ 46.40 Direct Mail Solicitations

[1] Truth in Lending Act

The Truth in Lending Act requires that issuers of credit cards and charge cards must make specified disclosures when soliciting the opening of a credit card or charge card account [see 15 U.S.C. § 1637(a); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(a)]. For example, preapproved applications, "Take One" applications, and telephone solicitations trigger the mandatory disclosures [see 54 Fed. Reg. 13855-13857 (1989)]. The required disclosures include information relating to annual percentage rates, related fees, and any applicable grace period [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(b); see also § 46.214].

These disclosure requirements do not apply to home equity plans that are subject to the disclosure requirements of 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a and are accessible by a credit or charge card [12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(a)(3); see Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans].

[2] Areias Credit Card Full Disclosure Act of 1986: Unsecured Credit Cards

Under the Areias Credit Card Full Disclosure Act of 1986 [see Civ. Code § 1748.10 et seq.], any application form or preapproved written solicitation for an open-end credit card account to be used for personal, family, or household purposes, that is mailed to a California consumer, by or on behalf of a creditor, must contain or be accompanied by specified disclosures [Civ. Code § 1748.11(a)]. However, this rule does not apply to application forms or solicitations included in magazines, newspapers, or other publications distributed by someone other than the creditor [Civ. Code § 1748.11(a)], or to application forms or written advertisements of open-end credit card accounts when the credit to be extended is secured by liens on real and/or personal property [Civ. Code § 1748.11(h); see [3], below]. Further, this rule does not apply to retail sellers subject to the Areias Retail Installment Account Full Disclosure Act of 1986 [Civ. Code § 1748.11(i); see Civ. Code §§ 1810.20, 1810.21; see also [5], below].

The application form, solicitation, or accompanying statement must include a disclosure statement that satisfies the requirements of Regulation Z [Civ. Code § 1748.11(a)(2), (c), (e); see Civ. Code § 1802.18; 12 C.F.R. § 226.1; see also § 46.214], or a disclosure of each of the following, if applicable [Civ. Code § 1748.11(a)(1)]:

- Any periodic rate or rates that may be applied to the account, expressed as an annual percentage rate or rates [see Civ. Code § 1748.11(a)(1)(A) (disclosures for variable rates)].

- Any membership or participation fee that may be imposed for availability of a credit card, expressed as an annualized amount.
- Any per-transaction fee that may be imposed on purchases, expressed as an amount or as a percentage of the transaction.
- Any "free period" during which the consumer may repay the full balance without the imposition of additional finance charges.

In addition, all applications for an open-end credit card account distributed in California other than by mail must either make the preceding disclosures or include a statutory statement about how to obtain the disclosures [Civ. Code § 1748.11(g)]. Further, any waiver of the provisions of this act is contrary to public policy and is unenforceable [Civ. Code § 1748.14].

[3] Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971: Secured Credit Cards

The disclosures discussed in [2], above [see Civ. Code § 1748.11], do not apply to application forms or written advertisements for a secured credit card, if the credit to be extended is secured by a lien on real property, personal property, or both [Civ. Code § 1748.11(h); see Civ. Code § 1747.02(l) ("secured credit card" defined)]. However, an issuer of a secured credit card, in every advertisement or solicitation to prospective cardholders, must expressly identify the credit instrument offered as a "secured credit card" [Civ. Code § 1747.94(a)]. Further, the issuer must prominently disclose that the credit extended under the card is secured and describe the security by item or type [Civ. Code § 1747.94(a); see Civ. Code § 1747.94(b) (disclosure rules for deeds of trust executed in connection with secured credit card)]. Issuers of secured credit cards need not make these disclosures if (1) the credit card is issued under an agreement or other instrument creating a purchase money security interest in property purchased with the credit card, but which does not pledge, hypothecate, or place a lien on other property of the cardholder or a co-obligor, or (2) the loan or extension of credit is subject to the Federal Home Equity Loan Consumer Protection Act of 1988 [Civ. Code § 1747.94(c)]. Any waiver of the provisions of the Song-Beverly Credit Card Act is contrary to public policy and is unenforceable [Civ. Code § 1748.04].

[4] Areias-Robbins Charge Card Full Disclosure Act of 1986

Under the Areias-Robbins Charge Card Full Disclosure Act of 1986 [see Civ. Code § 1748.20 et seq.], any application form or preapproved written solicitation for a charge card account that is mailed to a California consumer, by a charge card issuer, whether or not the issuer is located in California, must contain or be accompanied by specified disclosures [Civ. Code § 1748.22(a)]. However, this rule does not apply to application forms or solicitations included in magazines, newspapers, or other publications distributed by someone other than the charge card issuer [Civ. Code § 1748.22(a)].

The application form or preapproved written solicitation must contain the following information [Civ. Code § 1748.22(a)(1)]:

- Any fee or charge assessed for or that may be assessed for issuing or renewing the charge card, expressed as an annualized amount, and denominated as an "annual fee."
- The charge card does not permit the charge card holder to defer payment of charges incurred by the use of the charge card on receipt of a periodic statement of charges.
- Any fee that may be assessed for an extension of credit to a charge card holder if the extension of credit is made by the charge card issuer, denominated as a "cash advance fee."

A charge card issuer will be conclusively presumed to have complied with these disclosure requirements if it provides a suitably revised statutory table as part of the application or written solicitation [see Civ. Code § 1748.11(b)] to a person invited to apply for a charge card [Civ. Code § 1748.22(b)].

All charge card applications distributed in California other than by mail must either make the preceding disclosures or include a statutory statement about how to obtain the disclosures [Civ. Code § 1748.22(e)].

If the charge card issuer offers to a charge card holder a program or service under which the charge card holder may elect to access open-end credit, the issuer must also provide the charge card holder with the initial disclosure statement required by Regulation Z before the charge card holder has the right to access that credit [Civ. Code § 1748.22(d); see Civ. Code § 1748.11(c); 12 C.F.R. § 226.6; see also § 46.212 (form for initial disclosure)].

Any waiver of the provisions of this act is contrary to public policy and is unenforceable [Civ. Code § 1748.23].

A charge card issuer is free to disclose additional terms, conditions, or information with the required disclosures [Civ. Code § 1748.22(c)].

For a form containing these disclosures, see § 46.214[2].

[5] Areias Retail Installment Account Full Disclosure Act of 1986

Under the Areias Retail Installment Account Full Disclosure Act of 1986 [see Civ. Code § 1810.20 et seq.], any application form or preapproved written solicitation for a credit card account issued in connection with a retail installment account that is mailed to a California consumer, by or on behalf of a retail seller, whether or not the seller is located in California, must contain or be accompanied by specified disclosures [Civ. Code § 1810.21(a)]. However, this rule does not apply to application forms or solicitations included in magazines, newspapers, or other publications distributed by someone other than the retailer [Civ. Code § 1810.21(a)], or to application forms or preapproved written solicitations for a retail installment account credit card when the credit to be extended is secured by liens on real and/or personal property [Civ. Code § 1810.21(h); see [3], above]. Further, this rule does not apply to application forms or solicitations included as part of a catalog in order to facilitate the credit sale of goods offered in the catalog or to application forms or solicitations included in a magazine, newspaper or other publication distributed in more than one state by someone other than the creditor [Civ. Code § 1810.21(h)].

The application form, solicitation, or accompanying statement must include a disclosure statement that satisfies the requirements of Regulation Z [Civ. Code § 1810.21(a)(2); see Civ. Code § 1802.18; 12 C.F.R. § 226.1; see also § 46.214], or a disclosure of each of the following, if applicable [Civ. Code § 1810.21(a)(1)]:

- Any periodic rate or rates that will be used to determine the finance charge applied to the account, expressed as an annual percentage rate or rates.
- Any membership or participation fee that may be imposed for availability of a retail installment account in connection with which a credit card is issued, expressed as an annualized amount.
- Any "free period" during which the consumer may repay the full balance without the imposition of additional finance charges. If the retailer provides no such period for purchases, the disclosure must so indicate.

All retail installment applications or agreements distributed in California other than by mail must either make the preceding disclosures or include a statutory statement about how to obtain the disclosures [see Civ. Code § 1810.21(g)].

[6] Credit Extended Through Use of Preprinted Check or Draft

A credit card issuer that extends credit to a cardholder through the use of a preprinted check or draft must disclose all of the following information in clear and conspicuous language [Civ. Code § 1748.9]:

- That "use of the check or draft constitutes a charge against your credit account."
- The annual percentage rate and calculation of finance charges associated with the use of the attached check or draft [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.16 (required disclosures)].
- Whether the finance charges are triggered immediately on the use of the check or draft.

This disclosure must be on the front of an attachment affixed by perforation or other means to the preprinted check or draft [Civ. Code § 1748.9].

The Ninth Circuit holds that the National Bank Act [12 U.S.C. § 21 et seq.] preempts the disclosure requirements of Civ. Code § 1748.9, insofar as those requirements apply to national banks [Rose v. Chase Bank USA (9th Cir. 2008) 513 F.3d 1032, 1038] .

§ 46.41 Issuance of Credit Cards

[1] Truth in Lending Act

The Truth in Lending Act provides that no credit card may be issued except in response to an oral or written request, or as a renewal of or substitute for an accepted credit card [15 U.S.C. § 1642; 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(a)]. An "accepted credit card" is any card that the cardholder has requested and received or has signed, used, or authorized another to use [15 U.S.C. § 1602(l); 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(a)(2) n.21]. Thus, a card issuer may not send unsolicited credit cards to potential users. This rule applies to all credit cards, not just those issued for consumer credit purposes [12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(8)].

[2] Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971

Like the Truth in Lending Act, the Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971 [Civ. Code § 1747 et seq.] provides that no credit card may be issued except in response to an oral or written request, or as a renewal of or substitute for an accepted credit card [Civ. Code § 1747.05(a)]. A credit card issued in substitution for an accepted credit card may be issued only if the card issuer provides an activation process whereby the cardholder is required to contact the card issuer to activate the card before its first use in a credit transaction [Civ. Code § 1747.05(b); see Civ. Code § 1747.05(c) (statute does not prohibit overdraft protection advance or recurring-charge transaction previously authorized by cardholder on accepted credit card)].

An "accepted credit card" is any card that the cardholder has requested and received or has signed, used, or authorized another to use [Civ. Code § 1747.02(b)]. Thus, a card issuer may not send unsolicited credit cards to potential users. This rule applies to all credit cards, not just those issued for consumer credit purposes [Civ. Code § 1747.02(d)].

[1] Truth in Lending Act

A creditor extending any type of open-end credit must make certain disclosures to the consumer before the first use of the credit plan [15 U.S.C. § 1637(a); 12 C.F.R. § 226.6], with each billing cycle [15 U.S.C. § 1637(b); 12 C.F.R. § 226.7], annually [12 C.F.R. § 226.9(a)], and whenever certain credit terms are changed [12 C.F.R. § 226.9(b), (c); see, e.g., DeMando v. Morris, 206 F.3d 1300, 1303 (issuer's notice of rate increase to credit card customer violated 12 C.F.R. § 226.5(c), which requires that all disclosures issued in conjunction with open-ended credit arrangements reflect terms of legal obligation of the parties)].

The creditor must furnish the initial disclosure statement before the first transaction [15 U.S.C. § 1637(a); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5(b)(1)]. The statement must include the amount of the finance charge, detailed information on its calculation, any other charges under the plan, disclosure of any security interests, and a statement of the consumer's billing rights [see 15 U.S.C. § 1637(a); 12 C.F.R. § 226.6]. For a form containing the required initial disclosures, see § 46.212.

For each billing cycle during which a finance charge has been imposed or for which the account has a debit or credit balance of more than $1, the creditor must provide the consumer with a periodic statement [12 C.F.R. § 226.5(b)(2)(i)]. If the periodic statement is not mailed or delivered at least 14 days before the date on which additional finance charges accrue, the creditor may not collect those additional charges [12 C.F.R. § 226.5(b)(2)(ii)]. The periodic statement discloses in detail the previous and new balances, new credits and debits to the account, periodic and annual percentage rates, finance and other charges, billing dates, and billing error information [see 15 U.S.C. § 1637(b); 12 C.F.R. § 226.7]. See § 46.215 for further discussion of these required disclosures and a form for a periodic statement. See § 46.140 for discussion of other notice requirements.

[2] Unruh Act

Like the Truth in Lending Act, the Unruh Act provides that a retail seller extending credit under a retail installment or revolving account must provide the consumer with a disclosure statement before the first transaction on the account [Civ. Code § 1810.1; see Civ. Code § 1799.203(a); see also Civ. Code § 1799.200 et seq. (Consumer Contract Awareness Act of 1990)]. The statement must include the conditions under which the finance charge may be imposed, the method of determining the balance on which the finance charge is imposed, the amount of the finance charge, detailed information on its calculation, the minimum periodic payment required, any other charges under the plan, and disclosure of the conditions under which a creditor may retain or acquire any security interest [Civ. Code § 1810.1(a)-(g)]. See § 46.212 for further discussion of these required disclosures and a form for an initial disclosure. Until the retailer delivers the initial disclosure statement, the consumer is obligated to pay only the cash price of the goods [Civ. Code § 1810.1(g)].

The Unruh Act also has periodic statement requirements comparable to those imposed by federal law [see Civ. Code § 1810.3(a); see also [1], above (federal requirements)]. For each billing cycle during which a finance charge has been imposed or for which the account has a debit balance of more than $1, the creditor must provide the consumer with a periodic statement [Civ. Code § 1810.3(a)]. If the periodic statement is not mailed or delivered at least 14 days before the date on which additional finance charges accrue, the creditor may not collect those additional charges [Civ. Code § 1810.3(b); but see Civ. Code § 1810.12(c) (notwithstanding Civ. Code § 1810.3(b) retail installment account holder must provide minimum of 20 days between monthly billing date and date minimum payment is due)]. The periodic statement discloses in detail the previous and new balances, new credits and debits to the account, periodic and annual percentage rates, finance and other charges, billing dates, and billing error information [see Civ. Code § 1810.3(a)]. See § 46.215 for further discussion of these required disclosures and a form for a periodic statement. See § 46.140 for discussion of other notice requirements.

Additional disclosures are required if any change is made to the terms of a retail installment account [Civ. Code § 1810.3(d); see § 46.140] or if an account has an outstanding credit balance in excess of $1 [Civ. Code § 1810.3(e); see § 46.215].

[3] Areias Credit Card Full Disclosure Act of 1986

Under the Areias Credit Card Full Disclosure Act of 1986 [Civ. Code § 1748.10 et seq.], credit card issuers must provide to the cardholder, in each billing statement, various statements regarding the length of time it will take, at various payment rates, to pay off the balance due on an open-end credit card account [see Civ. Code § 1748.13(a); see also Civ. Code § 1748.13(b) (definitions); Stats. 2001, ch. 711, § 3 (effective dates)]. In addition, if the cardholder has not paid more than the minimum payment for six consecutive months, the credit card issuer must provide the cardholder with referrals or, in the alternative, the toll-free telephone number of the National Foundation for Credit Counseling through which the cardholder can be referred, to credit counseling services in, or closest to, the cardholder's county of residence [see Civ. Code § 1748.13(a)(2)(B)]. Waiver of any of these provisions is against public policy and is unenforceable [see Civ. Code § 1748.14]. These requirements do not apply in any billing cycle in which the account agreement requires a minimum payment of at least 10 percent of the outstanding balance, or in which finance charges are not imposed [Civ. Code § 1748.13(c)]. For further discussion of this "minimum payment warning" and related disclosure requirements, see § 46.215.

[1] Truth in Lending Act

Advertisements for open-end accounts may specify credit terms only when those terms are actually arranged or offered by the creditor [15 U.S.C. § 1662; 12 C.F.R. § 226.16(a)]. If credit terms are specified, the advertisement must disclose (1) any minimum or fixed amount that could be imposed, (2) the periodic rates expressed as annual percentages in any case in which the periodic rates may be used to compute the finance charge, and (3) any membership or participation fee that could be imposed [15 U.S.C. § 1663; 12 C.F.R. § 226.16]. See § 46.122 for further discussion of these required disclosures.

[2] California Law

A seller may not advertise any method of payment for goods, property, or services purchased through the use of consumer credit under an open-end credit plan accepted for purchases by more than one seller unless certain clear and conspicuous disclosures are made [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.7(a)]. These disclosures include the price and downpayment, payment details, finance charge data, any other charges, the name of the creditor if not the seller, and whether the advertised terms are available to the purchaser only after the creditor's approval [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.7(a)(1)-(6)]. Further, the cash price must be clearly and conspicuously stated next to the payment terms [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.7(c)], and "bait" terms may not be advertised [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.7(d)]. Catalogs or multi-page advertisements may make these disclosures in a clear and conspicuous table [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.7(b)]. For further discussion of these required disclosures, see § 46.122.

If the annual rate cannot be determined in advance because there are finance charges other than a periodic rate, the annual percentage rate corresponding to the periodic rate must be stated, and other cost information may be given [15 U.S.C. § 1665a; 12 C.F.R. § 226.26(a)].

20-46 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 46.45

§ 46.45 Truth in Lending Act: Right of Rescission for Transactions Creating Lien on Dwelling

In any open-end credit transaction that gives the creditor a lien on property in which the consumer resides, a consumer with an interest in the dwelling has a right to rescind the transaction unless the transaction finances acquisition of the dwelling [15 U.S.C. § 1635(a), (e)(1); 12 C.F.R. § 226.23(a), (f)(1)]. Each affected consumer also has the right to rescind each addition to the security under the plan and any increase in the credit limit [12 C.F.R. § 226.15(a)(1)(i); see 15 U.S.C. § 1635(a)]. The consumer may rescind the transaction until midnight of the third business day following consummation, delivery of a required notice of rescission rights, or delivery of all material Truth in Lending disclosures, whichever occurs last [12 C.F.R. § 226.23(a)(3)].

The failure of a creditor to properly complete the rescission disclosure form [15 U.S.C. § 1635(a); 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.15(b), 226.23(b)], including the failure to fill in the expiration date of the right to rescind, automatically violates the Truth in Lending Act and extends the rescission period until three days after the disclosures are correctly made. A disclosure statement that does not adequately disclose the extent of the security interest also violates the Act [Williamson v. Lafferty (5th Cir. 1983) 698 F.2d 767, 768-769] .

The right to rescind, a form for giving the required notice, and procedures for exercising this right are discussed in Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans .

An obligor who exercises the right to rescind is not liable for any finance or other charge, and any security interest given becomes void [15 U.S.C. § 1635(b)]. The creditor must take any action necessary to reflect termination of the security interest, and must return to the obligor any money or property received within 20 days after receipt of the notice of rescission [15 U.S.C. § 1635(b)]. After the creditor has performed these statutory responsibilities, the obligor must tender the property back to the creditor, but if the creditor does not take possession of the property within 20 days after tender, the obligor may keep it [15 U.S.C. § 1635(b)]. However, because rescission is an equitable remedy, a court may condition the granting of rescission on repayment of the principal amount of the underlying loan to the creditor [Brown v. Nat. Permanent Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n (D.C. Cir. 1982) 683 F.2d 444, 447] .

A borrower's right of rescission expires three years after the date of consummation of the transaction or on the sale of the property, whichever occurs first, even if the required disclosures have never been made [15 U.S.C. § 1635(f)]. The United States Supreme Court has held that a borrower may not assert the right to rescind as an affirmative defense in a collection action brought by the lender more than three years after the consummation of the transaction. Because 15 U.S.C. § 1635(f) completely extinguishes the right of rescission at the end of the three-year period, it is not a statute of limitations and the mortgagors cannot assert the right to rescind as a recoupment defense beyond the expiration period [Beach v. Ocwen Federal Bank (1998) 523 U.S. 410, 417-418, 118 S. Ct. 1408, 140 L. Ed. 2d 566] . For further discussion of these rescission rights, refer to Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans.

§ 46.46 Unruh Act: Regulation of Finance or Service Charges

[1] Interest Rate Limitations

Private individuals and corporations in California are prohibited from taking more than 10 percent simple interest per annum on loans that are primarily for personal, family, or household purposes [Cal. Const. art. XV, § 1]. However, banks and certain other regulated financial institutions are entirely exempt from this usury provision. Moreover, sellers of consumer goods or services who impose a service or finance charge that is added to the cost of the goods or services are not within the usury prohibition. Setting a time-price on the sale of goods or services (that is, creating a contract of sale with deferred payments) is not considered to involve a "loan" [Boerner v. Colwell Co. (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 37, 45, 145 Cal. Rptr. 380, 577 P.2d 200 ; see Southwest Concrete Products v. Gosh Construction Corp. (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 701, 705, 274 Cal. Rptr. 404, 798 P.2d 1247] .

Finance charges on revolving charge accounts are subject to this "time-price" doctrine and, therefore, are not subject to the usury laws, regardless of whether the account is a direct arrangement with the seller of the goods or a tripartite arrangement, such as that operated by oil companies, in which the purchases are made from participating independent retail dealers [Fox v. Federated Department Stores, Inc. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 867, 881-882, 156 Cal. Rptr. 893] .

[2] Regulation of Finance or Service Charge

Sellers or holders of retail installment accounts may charge and collect a finance charge as disclosed to the buyer in the statement of the account [Civ. Code § 1810.2; see Civ. Code § 1810.3]. The finance charge must include all charges incident to investigating and making the retail installment account [Civ. Code § 1810.4]. When a credit card is issued in connection with a retail installment account, the seller or holder of the account may assess fees for annual membership, if so provided in the sales agreement or by proper notice to the buyer [Civ. Code § 1810.4]. The seller or holder may also assess fees for delinquent payments [Civ. Code § 1810.12] and charge and collect a fee for returned checks [Civ. Code § 1810.4]. Further, if the buyer agrees in writing and is given a copy of the agreement, the sales agreement may include provisions for payment of attorneys' fees and costs [Civ. Code § 1810.4, see Civ. Code § 1811.1 (award of reasonable attorneys' fees to prevailing party)]. For further discussion of finance charges and fees, see § 46.211[1].

Supervised financial organizations and charge card issuers [see Fin. Code § 4000(a) (definitions)] may charge up to maximum specified fees as late payment charges and other charges. Disclosure requirements may also apply [Fin. Code § 4001].

§ 46.48 Notice Regarding Change of Address Request

Any credit card issuer that receives a change of address request, other than for a correction of a typographical error, from a cardholder who orders a replacement credit card within 60 days before or after that request is received, must send to that cardholder a change of address notification that is addressed to the cardholder at the cardholder's previous address of record [Civ. Code § 1799.1b(a); see Civ. Code § 1799.1b(e)(1) ("credit account" means "credit card," as defined in Civ. Code § 1747.02(a)); § 46.12]. If the replacement credit card is requested before the effective date of the change of address, the notification must be sent within 30 days of the change of address request [Civ. Code § 1799.1b(a)]. If the replacement credit card is requested after the effective date of the change of address, the notification must be sent within 30 days of the request for the replacement credit card [Civ. Code § 1799.1b(a)].

In addition, any business entity that provides telephone accounts [see Civ. Code § 1799.1b(e)(2) ("telephone account" defined)] that receives a change of address request, other than for a correction of a typographical error, from an account holder who orders new service, must send to that account holder a change of address notification that is addressed to the account holder at the account holder's previous address of record. This notification must be sent within 30 days of the request for new service [Civ. Code § 1799.1b(b)].

The required notice may be given by telephone or e-mail communication, if the credit card issuer or business entity that provides telephone accounts reasonably believes that it has the current telephone number or e-mail address for the account holder or cardholder who has requested a change of address [Civ. Code § 1799.1b(c)]. If the notification is in writing, it may not contain the consumer's account number, social security number, or other personal identifying information. However, the notification may contain the consumer's name, previous address, and new address of record [Civ. Code § 1799.1b(c)]. For business entities that provide telephone accounts [see Civ. Code § 1799.1b(b)], the notification may also contain the account holder's telephone number [Civ. Code § 1799.1b(c)].

A credit card issuer or a business entity that provides telephone accounts is not required to send a change of address notification when a change of address request is made in person by a consumer who has presented valid identification, or is made by telephone and the requester has provided a unique alphanumeric password [Civ. Code § 1799.1b(d)].

The notification and correction of billing errors are governed by the fair credit billing provisions of the federal Truth in Lending Act [15 U.S.C. § 1666] and by California's Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971 [Civ. Code § 1747 et seq.]. There are no inconsistencies between the two statutes that could make compliance with both difficult. In fact, the California legislature intended that provisions of the Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971 be construed to conform to the Truth in Lending Act, Regulation Z, and any other rules, regulations, and interpretations promulgated by the Federal Reserve Board [Civ. Code § 1747.01].

§ 46.61 Fair Credit Billing Inapplicable to Business Credit Cards

Because a business credit card is not an extension of consumer credit, the fair credit billing provisions of the Truth in Lending Act do not apply to business credit cards transactions [American Express Co. v. Koerner (1981) 452 U.S. 233, 241-244, 101 S. Ct. 2281, 68 L. Ed. 2d 803 ; see 15 U.S.C. § 1603(1)]. Further, Regulation Z and the Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971 define "cardholder" to exclude business credit cards, except for purposes of specific provisions governing issuance and liability for unauthorized use [12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(8); Civ. Code § 1747.02(d); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(a) (issuance), (b) (liability for unauthorized use); Civ. PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Fair Credit Billing

20-46 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 46.62

§ 46.62 Billing Errors

Before the first use of credit, and at least once a year thereafter, a card issuer must disclose to the cardholder his or her right (1) to complain of billing errors free from the threat of an adverse credit report to third parties by the card issuer, and (2) to withhold payment to the issuer if the goods or services charged prove faulty [15 U.S.C. § 1637(a)(7); 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.6(d), 226.9(a); see 15 U.S.C. §§ 1666 (correction of billing errors), 1666i (assertions and limitations of cardholder's claims and defenses against issuer); see also 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, app. G-3 (form); § 46.212].

To come within the fair credit billing provisions of the Truth in Lending Act and the Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971, a cardholder must notify the card issuer of a billing error no later than 60 days after receiving the first periodic statement reflecting the error [15 U.S.C. § 1666(a); Civ. Code §§ 1747.50(a), 1747.02(g); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.13(a) ("billing error" defined); Civ. Code § 1747.02(j) ("billing error" defined); see also § 46.233 (form for notice of billing error)]. The cardholder's notice must contain sufficient information to identify the account [15 U.S.C. § 1666(a)(1); 12 C.F.R. § 226.13(b)(2); Civ. Code § 1747.02(g)(1)]. It must also state the amount of the error and explain why the cardholder believes the statement to be erroneous [15 U.S.C. § 1666(a)(2), (3); 12 C.F.R. § 226.13(b)(3); Civ. Code § 1747.02(g)(2), (3)].

The Truth in Lending Act requires the issuer to provide the card holder with a written acknowledgment of receipt of the notice within 30 days after receipt, unless the issuer determines within that time that a billing error did not occur [15 U.S.C. § 1666(a)(3)(A), (B)(ii); 12 C.F.R. § 226.13(c)(1)]. The creditor must resolve the matter within two complete billing cycles, but in no event later than 90 days, after receipt of the notice [15 U.S.C. § 1666(a)(3)(B); 12 C.F.R. § 226.13(c)(2); see Civ. Code §§ 1747.02(i), 1747.50(a)].

The Truth in Lending Act prohibits the card issuer from restricting or closing the cardholder's account solely because of the cardholder's failure to pay the disputed amount until the issuer provides a written explanation or clarification of the claimed billing error and copies of documentary evidence of the cardholder's indebtedness [15 U.S.C. § 1666(d); see 15 U.S.C. § 1666(a)(3)(B)(ii) (written explanation required)]. The issuer may not, directly or indirectly, threaten to report to any person adversely on the cardholder's credit rating because the cardholder failed to pay the disputed amount and may not report that amount as delinquent until it has given the cardholder its explanation and allowed the cardholder time to make payment [15 U.S.C. § 1666a(a); 12 C.F.R. § 226.13(d)(2)].

The Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971 provides remedies against issuers who fail to give a timely response to an inquiry [Civ. Code § 1747.40 (no right to interest or charges on failure to respond)] and against both issuers and retailers who fail to correct billing errors during the prescribed period, including treble damage for willful failure to correct billing errors and reasonable attorneys' fees and costs [Civ. Code §§ 1747.50(b), (c), 1747.60(b), (c); see also § 46.233].

See § 46.233 for further discussion of the federal and state provisions governing billing errors and a notice of billing error. See § 46.212 for provisions relating to initial disclosures of billing rights, and § 46.215 for forms relating to subsequent disclosure requirements.

E. Fair Credit Billing

20-46 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 46.63

§ 46.63 Claims and Defenses of Cardholders

Under the fair credit billing provisions of the Truth in Lending Act and the Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971, the cardholder may assert against the card issuer all claims and defenses arising out of a credit transaction, except tort claims, provided that (1) the cardholder has made a good-faith attempt to arrive at a satisfactory settlement of the disagreement with the person who honored the card, and (2) the amount of the initial transaction exceeded $50, and the transaction occurred in the same state as the cardholder's mailing address, or, if it occurred in another state, within 100 miles of that address [15 U.S.C. § 1666i(a); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(c)(1), (3); Civ. Code § 1747.90(a)(1) (transaction must have occurred within California or within 100 miles of cardholder's current designated address in California)]. However, the $50 minimum and the geographical restrictions are inapplicable if the person honoring the card is also the card issuer, is controlled by the issuer, is under direct or indirect common control with the issuer, is a franchised dealer of the issuer's products or services, or has obtained the order for the transaction through a mail solicitation made, or participated in, by the issuer [15 U.S.C. § 1666i(a); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(c)(3) n.26; Civ. Code § 1747.90(a)(2)]. These provisions are applicable to all credit cards, even those issued for extensions of credit that are exempt from coverage of the Truth in Lending Act [12 C.F.R. § 226.3 n.4].

The amount of claims and defenses asserted by the cardholder cannot exceed the amount of credit outstanding with respect to the transaction at the time the cardholder first notifies the card issuer or the person that honored the card of the claim or defense [15 U.S.C. § 1666i(b); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(c)(1); Civ. Code § 1747.90(b)].

The provisions of both the Truth in Lending Act and the Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971 relating to assertion of claims and defenses are applicable only to consumer credit transactions [15 U.S.C. § 1666i(a); Civ. Code § 1747.90(a)]. Thus, such provisions are inapplicable to transactions on credit cards issued for business use [see 15 U.S.C. § 1603(1); 12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(8); Civ. Code § 1747.02(d)].

The Federal Trade Commission rule preserving consumers' claims and defenses on assignment of indebtedness does not apply to credit card transactions [16 C.F.R. §§ 433.1, 433.2; see 40 Fed. Reg. 53506 (11/18/75)] .

§ 46.64 Cardholder Liability for Lost or Stolen Cards

The federal Truth in Lending Act [15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.] and the California Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971 [Civ. Code § 1747 et seq.] govern cardholder liability for lost or stolen cards. A cardholder is liable for unauthorized use only if all of the following conditions exist [15 U.S.C. § 1643(a)(1); 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(b)(2); Civ. Code § 1747.10]:

- The card is an accepted credit card [see 15 U.S.C. § 1602(l) ("accepted credit card" defined); Civ. Code § 1747.02(b) ("accepted credit card" defined); see also § 46.41];
- The card issuer gives the cardholder adequate notice of potential liability;
- The card issuer has provided the cardholder with a description of the procedure for notifying the card issuer of loss or theft of the card;
- The unauthorized use occurs before the card issuer has been notified; and
- The card issuer has provided a method for identifying the user of the card as the person authorized to use it.

The liability of a cardholder for unauthorized use of a credit card may not exceed $50 [15 U.S.C. § 1643(a)(1)(B); 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(b)(1); Civ. Code § 1747.10(b)].

For purposes of the rules set out above, "unauthorized use" does not include the use of a credit card by a person who has been given authority by the cardholder to use it [15 U.S.C. § 1643(d); Civ. Code § 1747.02(f); see 15 U.S.C. § 1602(o) ("unauthorized use" defined)].

The provisions of the Truth in Lending Act and the Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971 governing unauthorized use of credit cards apply to all credit cards, not just those issued for consumer credit purposes [12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(8); Civ. Code § 1747.02(d)]. However, businesses that have been issued 10 or more credit cards for use by employees may agree to liability for unauthorized use without regard to the statutory rules, provided that any such agreement does not affect the statutory liability of individual employees [12 C.F.R. § 226.12(b)(5); Civ. Code § 1747.20].

For further discussion of the state and federal provisions relating to unauthorized use, see § 46.213.

 F. Notice Requirements

20-46 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 46.70

§ 46.70 Cancellation Notice Requirements

Under California law, a card issuer may cancel a credit card without notice to the cardholder if the following apply [Civ. Code § 1747.85];

- The issuer has evidence or a reasonable belief that the cardholder is unable or unwilling to repay obligations incurred with the card or that an unauthorized use of the card may be made;
- The cardholder is or has been in default of payment within the last 90 days; or
- The cardholder requests cancellation.

Otherwise, no card issuer may cancel a credit card without having first given the cardholder 30 days' written notice of its intention to do so. A card issuer may place a cardholder's account on inactive status if the card has not been used for more than 18 months [Civ. Code § 1747.85].

Although federal law does not require prior notice of cancellation, the Equal Credit Opportunity Act [15 U.S.C. § 1691 et seq.; 12 C.F.R. pt. 202] provides for written notice within 30 days after terminating or taking any adverse action against an existing consumer credit account [12 C.F.R. § 202.9(a)(1)(iii)]. The notice must contain either a statement of the specific reasons for the termination or change or notification of the right to such a statement, a statement of the action taken, the name and address of the creditor, as well as other notices required by law [12 C.F.R. § 202.9(a)(2)]. For further discussion of notification of credit termination, see Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales.

CHAPTER 46 CREDIT CARD AND OTHER OPEN-END CREDIT TRANSACTIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
F. Notice Requirements

20-46 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 46.71

§ 46.71 Required Notices to Cosigner

[1] Notice of Liability

A creditor who obtains the signature of more than one person on a consumer credit contract, including open-end credit agreements, must deliver to each cosigner a notice concerning his or her liability as a cosigner or guarantor, unless the signing parties are married to each other [Civ. Code § 1799.91(a); see Civ. Code § 1799.90(a) ("consumer credit contract" defined)]. The notice must be delivered before the cosigner becomes obligated on the contract [Civ. Code § 1799.91(a)]. In this context a "cosigner" is one who does not in fact receive any of the money, property, or services that are the subject matter of the contract [Civ. Code § 1799.91(a)]. No action can be brought against the cosigner who did not in fact receive the subject matter of the contract by a creditor or assignee from the creditor unless that notice is included in the contract [Civ. Code § 1799.95].

The notice must be in both English and Spanish [Civ. Code § 1799.91(a)], unless the contract is written in a language other than English or Spanish. In that case, the notice must be in English and, in addition to or in lieu of Spanish, in the other language [Civ. Code § 1799.91(b)]. For further discussion and an illustration of the notice, see Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales.

[2] Notice of Delinquency

A creditor may not provide any adverse information [see Civ. Code § 1799.101(a)(1) ("adverse information" defined)] with respect to a cosigner to a consumer credit reporting agency regarding a delinquency on a consumer credit contract entered into on or after July 1, 1992, unless the cosigner is given written notice of the delinquency at or before the time the information is provided to the agency [Civ. Code § 1799.101(b)]. This notice requirement does not apply to any cosigner whose address, as shown in the creditor's records respecting the consumer credit contract, is the same as that of the primary obligor [Civ. Code § 1799.101(d)].

Additionally, a creditor may not provide any information regarding the cosigner's obligation on a consumer credit contract to a debt collector until this notice is given to the cosigner [Civ. Code § 1799.101(c); see Civ. Code § 1788.2(c) ("debt collector" defined)].

Notice requirements are satisfied by mailing a copy of the required notice to the cosigner at his or her address as shown in the creditor's records respecting the consumer credit contract [Civ. Code § 1799.101(e)]. If more than one cosigner resides at the same address, as shown in the creditor's records respecting the consumer credit contract, a notice addressed to any cosigner at that address is deemed notice to all cosigners residing at that address [Civ. Code § 1799.101(e)].

A cosigner who suffers a loss as a result of a violation of these requirements may bring an action to recover damages and attorneys' fees after proper notice to the creditor of the intended action [Civ. Code § 1799.102]. If, within 25 days after the date of receiving the notice, the creditor tenders to the cosigner an amount equal to the loss or otherwise resolves the matter to the cosigner's satisfaction, the cosigner is barred from further recovery of that loss, including reasonable attorneys' fees [Civ. Code § 1799.102(b)]. For a notice of delinquency to cosigner and a notice of cosigner's action to recover damages, see Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales .

20-46 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 46.80

§ 46.80 Use of Credit Disability Insurance

A retailer or credit card issuer may wish to protect its position through the use of credit disability insurance covering the debtor. However, a creditor who directly participates in or receives any compensation for the sale of credit disability insurance to a debtor is precluded from collecting any credit balance until three calendar months after the first missed payment is due, or the insurer pays or rejects the debtor's claim, whichever is first [Civ. Code § 1812.402(a); see Civ. Code §§ 1812.400, 1812.401(d), (e)]. This limitation on a creditor's rights must be disclosed to the debtor by the creditor when the insurance is sold to the debtor [see Civ. Code § 1812.402(f)(1); see also McManis v. San Diego Postal Credit Union (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 547, 557-558, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617 (credit union failed to meet its burden on summary judgment to negate consumer's breach of contract claim because it did not establish compliance with Civ. Code § 1812.400 et seq., including Civ. Code § 1812.402(f), before repossession)]. The insurer must also disclose the claim procedure to the debtor when it sends claims forms to the debtor [Civ. Code § 1812.402(f)(2)]. For a further discussion of credit disability insurance, see Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales.

H. Limitations on Retailers

20-46 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 46.90

§ 46.90 Surcharge for Use of Card Prohibited

A retailer in any sales, service, or lease transaction with a consumer may not impose a surcharge when a credit card holder elects to use the card instead of paying by cash, check, or similar means. The retailer may, however, offer a discount to induce payment by cash or check (or other means not involving use of the card), provided that the discount is offered to all prospective buyers [Civ. Code § 1748.1(a); see Thrifty Oil Co. v. Superior Court (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 1070, 1076-1079, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 253 (retailer's evidence of two-tier pricing based on its costs, offered to all customers, supported motion for summary adjudication; facts established permissible offer of discount under Civ. Code § 1748.1(a) and pricing system consistent with legislative intent to encourage discounts under Civ. Code § 1748.1(e)); see also Civ. Code § 1748.1(f) (exception for charges for payment by credit or debit card to certain electrical, gas, or water corporations)].

If a retailer accepts only credit card payments for orders made by consumers over the telephone, and the same retailer accepts only cash at its public store or other facility, a consumer's use of a credit card for a telephone order is deemed not to be an election in lieu of payment in cash, and thus may be subject to a surcharge [Civ. Code § 1748.1(c)]. For these purposes, the definition of "surcharge" includes charges for third-party credit card guarantee services when added to the cash price charged by the retailer [Civ. Code § 1748.1(d)].

If a retailer wilfully imposes a surcharge, the cardholder may demand refund of that amount in a letter sent by certified mail. If the retailer refuses to make the refund within 30 days, it may be liable to the cardholder for triple the amount involved [Civ. Code § 1748.1(b)].

 PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
 H. Limitations on Retailers

20-46 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 46.91

§ 46.91 Limitations on Requesting Personal Information in Credit Card Transactions

Persons accepting credit cards in business transactions are subject to restrictions relating to requesting or requiring personal information as a condition of accepting a credit card. In general, no person or business entity that accepts credit cards for the transaction of business may request, or require as a condition to accepting the card, that the cardholder write any personal identification information on the credit card transaction form or elsewhere [Civ. Code § 1747.08(a)(1)]. Similarly, a cardholder cannot be requested or required to furnish personal identification information so that the person or business entity accepting the card can write, cause to be written, or otherwise record the information on the credit card transaction form or otherwise [Civ. Code § 1747.08(a)(2)]. The word "request" in Civ. Code § 1747.08(a) has been judicially construed to prohibit a retailer from making a request for personal identification from the consumer if that request immediately precedes a credit card transaction, even if the consumer's response is voluntary and the request is made only for marketing purposes [Florez v. Linens'N Things, Inc. (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 447, 450-453, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 465 (allegation that store improperly requested customer's telephone number held sufficient to state cause of action for violation of Civ. Code § 1747.08(a))].

Further, no person or business entity may use a credit card form that contains pre-printed spaces specifically designated for filling in any personal identification information of the cardholder [Civ. Code § 1747.08(a)(3)]. "Personal identification information" means information concerning the cardholder, other than the information set forth on the credit card, including but not limited to the cardholder's telephone number and address [Civ. Code § 1747.08(b)]. A cardholder's five-digit zip code is not personal identification information, and the statute does not prohibit asking for it [Party City Corp. v. Superior Court (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 497, 519-520, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 721] .

The prohibition against personal identification information does not apply in any of the following circumstances:

- When the credit card is being used as a deposit to secure payment in the event of default, loss, damage, or other similar occurrence [Civ. Code § 1747.08(c)(1)];
- In cash-advance transactions [Civ. Code § 1747.08(c)(2)];

- When the entity accepting the credit card is contractually obligated to provide personal identification information to complete the credit card transaction [Civ. Code § 1747.08(c)(3)];
- When personal identification information is required for a special purpose incidental but related to the individual credit card transaction, such as information about shipping, delivery, servicing, or installation of the purchased merchandise, or for special orders [Civ. Code § 1747.08(c)(4)]; or
- When a customer who bought merchandise using a credit card returns that merchandise and requests reversal of the credit card charge [Absher v. AutoZone, Inc. (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 332, 346, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 817] .

This prohibition does not prevent those accepting credit cards from requiring reasonable forms of positive identification as a condition to accepting the credit card for payment, provided that none of the identifying information is written or recorded on the credit card transaction form or otherwise [Civ. Code § 1747.08(d)].

Anyone intentionally violating these prohibitions is subject to civil penalties and injunctions [Civ. Code § 1747.08(e)-(g)]. Waiver of any of these provisions is against public policy and is unenforceable [see Civ. Code § 1747.04]. For a discussion of limitations on requesting credit card information in negotiable instrument transactions, see Ch. 55, Negotiable Instruments .

A business must take all reasonable steps to dispose, or arrange for the disposal, of a customer's records within its custody or control containing personal information when the records are no longer to be retained by the business [Civ. Code § 1798.81]. "Personal information" in this context means any information that identifies, relates to, describes, or is capable of being associated with, a particular individual, including, but not limited to, his or her name, signature, social security number, physical characteristics or description, address, telephone number, passport number, driver's license or state identification card number, insurance policy number, education, employment, employment history, bank account number, credit card number, debit card number, or any other financial information, medical information, or health insurance information [*Civ. "Personal information" does not include publicly available information that is lawfully made available to the general public from federal, state, or local government records [*Civ. The business may dispose, or arrange for the disposal, of these records by shredding, erasing, or otherwise modifying the personal information in those records to make it unreadable or undecipherable through any means [*Civ. CHAPTER 46 CREDIT CARD AND OTHER OPEN-END CREDIT TRANSACTIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
I. Customer Records

20-46 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 46.95

§ 46.95 Theft of Personal Information

[1] Protection of Personal Information Generally

A business (excepting specified entities) that owns or licenses personal information about a California resident must implement and maintain reasonable security procedures and practices to protect personal information from unauthorized access, destruction, use, modification, or disclosure [Civ. Code § 1798.81.5(b); see Civ. Code § 1798.81.5(e) (excepted entities)]. The phrase "owns or licenses" in this context includes, but is not limited to, personal information that a business retains as part of internal customer accounts or for the purpose of using that information in transactions with the person to whom the information relates [Civ. Code § 1798.81.5(a)].

Further, a business that discloses personal information about a California resident in accordance with a contract with a nonaffiliated third person must require by contract that the third person implement and maintain reasonable security procedures and practices appropriate to the nature of the information, in order to protect the personal information from unauthorized access, destruction, use, modification, or disclosure [Civ. Code § 1798.81.5(c)].

"Personal information" in this context means an individual's first name or initial and last name in combination with any one or more of the following, when either the name or one of the following is not encrypted or redacted [Civ. Code § 1798.81.5(d)(1)]:

- Social security number.
- Driver's license number or California identification card number.
- Account number, credit card number, or debit card number, in combination with any required security code, access code, or password that would permit access to an individual's financial account.
- Medical information, that is, any individually identifiable information, in electronic or physical form, regarding an individual's medical history, medical treatment, or diagnosis by a health care professional [ see Civ. Code § 1798.81.5(d)(2)].

"Personal information" does not include publicly available information that is lawfully made available to the general public from federal, state, or local government records [Civ. Code § 1798.81.5(d)(3)].

A business that is in compliance with other laws providing greater protection to personal information than is provided by this statute is deemed to be in compliance with these requirements [see Civ. Code § 1798.81.5(e)(5)].

[2] Protection of Confidential Computerized Personal Information

Credit cards, credit reports, and internet web sites are all sources of personal information that are particularly vulnerable to theft. In response to the increasing problem of identity theft [see Stats. 2002, ch. 915, § 1 (legislative findings and declaration regarding privacy and financial security)], state agencies and persons or businesses whose records have been compromised must notify all recordholders potentially affected [see Civ. Code §§ 1798.29, 1798.82, 1798.84; [2], [3], below]. This law supersedes and preempt all rules, regulations, codes, statutes, or ordinances of all cities, counties, cities and counties, municipalities, and other local agencies regarding the matters that are expressly covered [see Stats. 2002, ch. 915, § 6]. Any waiver of a provision of the law governing consumer records [Civ. Code § 1798.80 et seq.] is contrary to public policy and is void and unenforceable [Civ. Code § 1798.84(a)].

[3] Disclosure Requirements

A state agency, or a person or business that conducts business in California, that owns or licenses computerized data that includes personal information must disclose, in specified ways, any breach of the security of the data to any resident of California whose unencrypted personal information was, or is reasonably believed to have been, acquired by an unauthorized person [Civ. Code §§ 1798.29(a), 1798.82(a); see Civ. Code §§ 1798.29(g), (h) 1798.82(g), (h) (methods of giving notice); § 46.250]. In addition, a state agency that maintains computerized data that includes personal information that the agency does not own must notify the owner or licensee of the information of any breach of the security of the data immediately following discovery, if the personal information was, or is reasonably believed to have been, acquired by an unauthorized person [Civ. Code § 1798.29(b)].

"Personal information" in this context means an individual's first name or first initial and last name in combination with any one or more of the following data elements, when either the name or the data elements are not encrypted [Civ. Code §§ 1798.29(e), 1798.82(e)]:

- Social security number.
- Driver's license number or California Identification Card number.
- Account number, credit or debit card number, in combination with any required security code, access code, or password that would permit access to an individual's financial account.
- Medical information [see Civ. Code §§ 1798.29(f)(2), 1798.82(f)(2) (definition)].
- Health insurance information [see Civ. Code §§ 1798.29(f)(3), 1798.82(f)(3) (definition)].

"Personal information" does not include publicly available information that is lawfully made available to the general public from federal, state, or local government records [Civ. Code §§ 1798.29(f)(1), 1798.82(f)(1)].

"Breach of the security system" is unauthorized acquisition of computerized data that compromises the security, confidentiality, or integrity of personal information maintained by the agency, person, or business [Civ. Code §§

1798.29(d), 1798.82(d)]. Good faith acquisition of personal information by an employee or agent of the agency for the purposes of the agency is not a breach of the security of the system, provided that the personal information is not used or subject to further unauthorized disclosure [Civ. Code §§ 1798.29(d), 1798.82(d)].

Disclosure must be made in the most expedient time possible and without unreasonable delay, consistent with any measures necessary to determine the scope of the breach and restore the reasonable integrity of the data system [Civ. Code §§ 1798.29(a), 1798.82(a)]. Notifications may be delayed if a law enforcement agency determines that it would impede a criminal investigation [see Civ. Code §§ 1798.29(a), (c), 1798.82(a), (c)].

§ 46.96 Disclosure of Personal Information to Direct Marketers

Civ. Code § 1798.83 provides that with specified exceptions, a business that discloses a customer's personal information, including information relating to income or purchases, to a third party for direct marketing purposes must provide the customer, within 30 days after the customer's request, in writing or by e-mail, the names and addresses of the recipients of that information and specified details regarding the information disclosed [Civ. Code § 1798.83(a), (b)(1)(C); see Civ. Code § 1798.83(e)(6) (categories of personal information required to be disclosed), (7) ("personal information" defined); see also Civ. Code § 1798.83(d) (disclosures not subject to statute)]. However, a business is not required to respond to more than one request from a customer during any calendar year [Civ. Code § 1798.83(c)(1)]. A business must also provide information to customers about its privacy policy and the designated means of making an inquiry about that policy [see Civ. Code § 1798.83(b)].

Specified businesses are exempt from these requirements. A business with fewer than 20 employees is not required to comply [Civ. Code § 1798.83(c)(1)]. In addition, if a business adopts and discloses to the public a privacy policy stating that it will not disclose personal information to third parties for direct marketing purposes unless the customer affirmatively agrees to disclosure or if the customer has exercised an option to prevent disclosure, the business may comply with this statute by notifying the customer of his or her right to prevent disclosure of personal information and providing the customer a cost-free means to exercise this right [Civ. Code § 1798.83(c)(2)]. Disclosures of personal information for direct marketing purposes between affiliated third parties that share the same brand name are also exempt from the disclosure requirements of Civ. Code § 1798.83(a), with specified exceptions [see Civ. Code § 1798.83(f)]. Specified financial institutions subject to the Financial Information Privacy Act [Fin. Code § 4050 et seq.; see Fin. Code § 4060 (effective date); see also § 46.98[2] for discussion], are also exempt [see Civ. Code § 1798.83(h)].

Remedies under this statute are discussed in § 46.97.

§ 46.97 Rights and Remedies Under Consumer Records Law

Any customer injured by a violation of the law protecting consumer records [Civ. Code § 1798.80 et seq.] may institute a civil action to recover damages [Civ. Code § 1798.84(b)]. In addition, a customer may recover a civil penalty of up to $500 per violation of Civ. Code § 1798.83 [discussed in § 46.96], or up to $3,000 per violation if the violation is willful, intentional, or reckless [Civ. Code § 1798.84(c)]; but see Civ. Code § 1798.84(d) (business that fails to timely provide any information required by Civ. Code § 1798.83(a)) may assert complete defense to action by providing the information within 90 days after learning of the failure)].

Any business that violates, proposes to violate, or has violated Civ. Code § 1798.80 et seq. may be enjoined [Civ. Code § 1798.84(e)].

However, there is no cause of action against a business for disposing of abandoned records containing personal information by shredding, erasing, or otherwise modifying the personal information to make it unreadable or undecipherable through any means [Civ. Code § 1798.84(f)(1)].

A prevailing plaintiff in any action commenced under Civ. Code § 1798.83 [discussed in § 46.96] is entitled to recover reasonable attorneys' fees and costs [Civ. Code § 1798.84(g)]. Note that the statutory language refers only to recovery by a prevailing plaintiff and does not include reference to recovery by a prevailing defendant.

The remedies mentioned above are cumulative to each other and to any other rights and remedies that may be otherwise exist [Civ. Code § 1798.84(h)].

§ 46.98 Consumer Financial Information Privacy

[1] Federal Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act

[a] General Prohibitions

Credit cards, credit reports, and Internet web sites are all sources of personal information that is particularly vulnerable to misuse. In 1999, Congress enacted the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act (GLB Act) [see 15 U.S.C. § 6801 et seq.], mandating that each financial institution has an affirmative and continuing obligation to respect the privacy of its customers and to protect the security and confidentiality of those customers' nonpublic personal information [15 U.S.C. § 6801(a)]. In general, a financial institution may not, directly or through any affiliate, disclose any nonpublic personal information to a nonaffiliated third party, unless the financial institution provides or has provided to the consumer a notice that complies with statutory requirements [15 U.S.C. § 6802(a); see 15 U.S.C. § 6803]. More specifically, a financial institution may not disclose nonpublic personal information to a nonaffiliated third party unless [15 U.S.C. § 6802(b)(1); see 15 U.S.C. § 6802(b)(2) (exception)]:

- The institution clearly and conspicuously [see [f], below] discloses to the consumer, in writing, in electronic form, or other permissible form that the information may be disclosed to the third party.
- The consumer is given the opportunity, before the time that the information is initially disclosed, to direct that the information not be disclosed to the third party.
- The consumer is given an explanation of how the consumer can exercise that nondisclosure option.

Regulations issued in connection with this federal legislation, require each financial institution to notify its individual clients annually of its privacy policy and its practices regarding disclosure of nonpublic personal information [see 16 C.F.R. §§ 313.4, 313.5 et seq.].

[b] Definitions

"Nonpublic personal information" in this context means [16 C.F.R. § 313.1(n)(1); see 16 C.F.R. § 313.1(o) ("personally identifiable financial information" defined); see also 16 C.F.R. § 313.1(p) ("publicly available information" defined)]:

- Personally identifiable financial information; and
- Any list, description, or other grouping of consumers (and publicly available information pertaining to them) that is derived using any personally identifiable financial information that is not publicly available.

The term does not include publicly available information, except as included on any list, description, or other grouping of consumers (and publicly available information pertaining to them) that is derived without using any personally identifiable financial information that is not publicly available [16 C.F.R. § 313.1(n)(2); see 16 C.F.R. § 313.1(n)(3) (examples)].

"Financial institutions" include, but are not limited to, mortgage lenders, "payday lenders," finance companies, mortgage brokers, account servicers, check cashers, wire transferors, travel agencies operated in connection with financial services, collection agencies, credit counselors and other financial advisors, tax preparation firms, non-federally insured credit unions, and investment advisors that are not required to register with the Securities and Exchange Commission [16 C.F.R. § 313.1(b)]. The term "financial institution" also includes any institution whose business is engaging in financial activities described in 12 U.S.C. § 1843(k). An institution that is significantly engaged in financial activities is a financial institution [16 C.F.R. § 313.3(k)(1)]. The term is subject to numerous specific exclusions [see, e.g., 16 C.F.R. § 313.3(k)(3); see also 16 C.F.R. § 313.3(k)(4)].

[c] Scope of Privacy Protection

The privacy protections governing the treatment of nonpublic personal information about consumers by financial institutions [16 C.F.R. § 313.1(a); see 16 C.F.R. § 313.7 (opt out procedures); see also 16 C.F.R. §§ 313.13-313.15 (exceptions to opt out procedures)]:

- Require financial institutions to provide notice to customers about its privacy policies and practices in specified circumstances.
- Describe the conditions under which a financial institution may disclose nonpublic personal information about consumers to nonaffiliated third parties.
- Provide a method for consumers to prevent a financial institution from disclosing that information to most nonaffiliated third parties by "opting out" of that disclosure.

These protections apply only to nonpublic personal information about individuals who obtain financial products or services primarily for personal, family or household purposes from financial institutions; they do not apply to information about companies or about individuals who obtain financial products or services for business, commercial, or agricultural purposes [16 C.F.R. § 313.1(b)]. These privacy protections also apply to "other persons," that is, third parties that are not financial institutions, but that receive nonpublic personal information from financial institutions with whom they are not affiliated [16 C.F.R. § 313.1(b)].

[d] Initial Privacy Notice Requirements

Financial institutions must provide an initial, clear and conspicuous [see [f], below] privacy notice that accurately reflects their privacy policies and practices to the following [16 C.F.R. § 313.4]:

- New customers, no later than when the entity establishes a customer relationship [16 C.F.R. § 313.4(a)(1); but see 16 C.F.R. § 313.4(e)].
- Consumers, before disclosing any nonpublic personal information about the consumer to any nonaffiliated third party [16 C.F.R. § 313.4(a)(2); but see 16 C.F.R. §§ 313.14, 313.15 ("opt out" provisions)].
- Existing customers.

However, an initial notice to consumers is not required if the entity will not disclose any nonpublic personal information about the consumer to any nonaffiliated third party, other than under the "opt out" provisions [see 16 C.F.R. §§ 313.14, 313.15] and the entity does not have a customer relationship with the consumer [16 C.F.R. § 313.4(b)]. A "customer relationship" is established when the entity and the consumer enter into a continuing relationship. With regard to loans, a "customer relationship" is established with a consumer when the entity originates a loan to the consumer for personal, family, or household purposes. If the servicing rights are subsequently transferred to another financial institution, the customer relationship transfers with the servicing rights [16 C.F.R. § 313.4(c)(1), (2); see 16 C.F.R. § 313.4(c)(3) (examples)].

[e] Annual Privacy Notice Requirements

Financial institutions must provide a clear and conspicuous notice [see [f], below] to customers that accurately reflects the institution's privacy policies and practices not less than annually during the continuation of the customer relationship. Annually means at least once in any period of 12 consecutive months during which that relationship exists. The institution may define the 12-consecutive-month period, but the definition must be applied to the customer on a consistent basis [16 C.F.R. § 313.5(a)(1); see 16 C.F.R. § 313.5(a)(2) (examples)]. Notice to former customers is not required [16 C.F.R. § 313.5(b)].

[f] "Clear and Conspicuous" Notice Requirements

A privacy notice is "clear and conspicuous" if the notice is reasonably understandable and designed to call attention to the nature and significance of the information in the notice [16 C.F.R. § 313.3(b)(1)]. A notice is "reasonably understandable" if it does all of the following [16 C.F.R. § 313.3(b)(2)(i)]:

- Presents the information in the notice in clear, concise sentences, paragraphs, and sections.
- Uses short explanatory sentences or bullet lists whenever possible.
- Uses definite, concrete, everyday words and active voice whenever possible.
- Avoids multiple negatives.
- Avoids legal and highly technical business terminology whenever possible.
- Avoids explanations that are imprecise and readily subject to different interpretations.

A notice is "designed to call attention to the nature and significance of the information in the notice" if it does the following [16 C.F.R. § 313.3(b)(2)(ii)]:

- Uses a plain-language heading to call attention to the notice.

- Uses a typeface and type size that are easy to read.
- Provides wide margins and ample line spacing.
- Uses boldface or italics for key words.
- Uses distinctive type size, style, and graphic devices, such as shading or sidebars if the notice is combined with other information.

If a privacy notice is provided on a web page, the notice should be designed to call attention to the nature and significance of the information in it. It should use text or visual cues to encourage scrolling down the page if necessary to view the entire notice, and ensure that other elements on the web site (such as text, graphics, hyperlinks, or sound) do not distract attention from the notice. In addition, either (1) the notice should be placed on a screen that consumers frequently access, such as a page on which transactions are conducted; or (2) a link should be placed on a screen that consumers frequently access, such as a page on which transactions are conducted, that connects directly to the notice and is labeled appropriately to convey the importance, nature, and relevance of the notice [16 C.F.R. § 313.3(b)(2)(iii)].

[g] Preemption

The federal statutes and regulations expressly are not to be construed as superseding, altering, or affecting any statute, regulation, order, or interpretation in effect in any state, except to the extent that the state statute, regulation, order, or interpretation is inconsistent with federal law provisions, and then only to the extent of the inconsistency [15 U.S.C. § 6807(a); 16 C.F.R. § 313.17(a)]. A state statute, regulation, order, or interpretation is not inconsistent if the protection that it affords any person is greater than the protection provided under federal law [15 U.S.C. § 6807(b); 16 C.F.R. § 313.17(b)].

[2] California Financial Information Privacy Act

[a] Legislative Intent

The California Financial Information Privacy Act [Fin. Code § 4050 et seq.] is intended to afford persons greater privacy protections than those provided by the federal Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act (GLB Act) [Fin. Code § 4051(b)]. The California Act specifically finds that the "policies intended to protect financial privacy imposed by the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act are inadequate to meet the privacy concerns of California residents" [Fin. Code § 4051.5(a)(3)].

The California Financial Information Privacy Act preempts all local agency ordinances and regulations relating to this subject [Fin. Code § 4058.5].

[b] General Prohibitions and Limitations

The California Act generally prohibits a financial institution from sharing, transferring, or otherwise disclosing a consumer's nonpublic personal information to any unaffiliated third parties without the consumer's express prior written consent [see Fin Code §§ 4052.5, 4053; see also Fin Code § 4052(a) ("nonpublic personal information" defined); Fin Code § 4052(c) ("financial institution" defined); Fin Code § 4052(f) ("consumer" defined); § 46.251[1]]. The Act also allows a consumer to direct the financial institution not to share the nonpublic personal information with affiliated companies or with nonaffiliated financial companies with which the financial institution has contracted to provide financial products and services [see Fin. Code §§ 4053(a)(1)]. However, the Act does not restrict or prohibit the sharing of nonpublic personal information between a financial institution and its wholly owned financial institution subsidiaries or in certain other circumstances if, among other requirements, both entities are regulated by the same functional regulator and are engaged in the same line of business [see Fin. Code § 4053(c)].

However, state laws are preempted by provisions of the federal Fair Credit Reporting Act concerning the exchange of information among persons affiliated by common ownership or common corporate control [15 U.S.C. § 1681t(b)(2)], and the federal act preempts the Financial Information Privacy Act insofar as the California law attempts to regulate communication between affiliates of consumer-report information as that term is defined in 15 U.S.C. § 1681a(d)(1) [American Bankers Ass'n v. Lockyer (9th Cir. 2008) 541 F.3d 1214, 2008 U.S. App. LEXIS 18861, at *5-*6, *10 (Fin. Code § 4053(b)(1) is preempted insofar as it applies to consumer-report information as defined in 15 U.S.C. § 1681a(d)(1) but is not preempted insofar as it applies to nonconsumer-report information); American Bankers Ass'n v. Gould (9th Cir. 2005) 412 F.3d 1081, 1087 (federal act preempts California Financial Information Privacy Act, Fin. Code § 4050 et seq., insofar as California law attempts to regulate inter-affiliate communication of "information," as that term is defined in 15 U.S.C. § 1681a(d)(1))].

A financial institution may not discriminate against or deny an otherwise qualified consumer a financial product or service because the consumer has not provided the necessary consent authorizing the financial institution to disclose or share nonpublic personal information [Fin. Code § 4053(a)(1), (b)(4)].

The Act provides for disclosure of nonpublic personal information under various circumstances [see Fin. Code §§ 4053(b)(2), (c), 4054.6, 4056, 4056.5]. For example, a financial institution may disclose nonpublic personal information to an affiliate or a nonaffiliated third party in order for it to perform certain services on behalf of the financial institution, if specified requirements are met [see Fin. Code § 4056(b)(1), (2)]. Nonpublic personal information also may be released in order to identify or locate missing children, witnesses, criminals and fugitives, parties to lawsuits, and missing heirs [see Fin. Code § 4056(b)(4)-(14)]. Further, nothing in the Act is intended to change existing law regarding access by law enforcement agencies to information held by financial institutions [Fin. Code § 4056(c)].

The Act provides various civil penalties for negligent, or knowing and willful, violations of these provisions [Fin. Code § 4057].

[c] Privacy Notice Requirements

To obtain consent to disclose nonpublic personal information to nonaffiliated third parties, the financial institution must use a form, statement, or writing that [Fin. Code § 4053(a)(2); see Fin. Code § 4053(d)(1)(A)-(L) (additional requirements)]:

- Is a separate document, not attached to any other document.
- Is dated and signed by the consumer.
- Clearly and conspicuously discloses that by signing, the consumer is consenting to the disclosure to nonaffiliated third parties of nonpublic personal information pertaining to the consumer.
- Clearly and conspicuously discloses (1) that the consent will remain in effect until revoked or modified by the consumer; (2) that the consumer may revoke the consent at any time; and (3) the procedure for the consumer to revoke consent.
- Clearly and conspicuously informs the consumer that (1) the financial institution will maintain the document or a true and correct copy; (2) the consumer is entitled to a copy of the document upon request; and (3) the consumer may want to make a copy of the document for the consumer's records.

The statute sets out a form that is presumed to satisfy the requirements of the law [see Fin. Code § 4053(d)(2)(A); see § 46.251 for form]. Use of the statutory form is not mandatory, but other forms must satisfy specific statutory requirements, which are discussed in § 464.251[1][e].

A financial institution is not required to provide this written form to its consumers if the financial institution does not disclose any nonpublic personal information to any nonaffiliated third party or to any affiliate [Fin. Code §§ 4053(b)(5), 4054(a)].

The financial institution must comply with the consumer's request regarding nonpublic personal information within 45 days of receipt of the request [Fin. Code § 4053(d)(3)].

 B. Preliminary Determinations

20-46 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 46.110

§ 46.110 Credit Card: Application of Client to Bank or Other Financing Institution

1. Determine whether credit card will be consumer card or business card.

NOTE:

Because a business credit card is not an extension of consumer credit, the fair credit billing provisions of the Truth in Lending Act do not apply to business credit card transactions [American Express Co. v. Koerner (1981) 452 U.S. 233, 241-244, 101 S. Ct. 2281, 68 L. Ed. 2d 803 ; see 15 U.S.C. § 1603(1)]. Further, Regulation Z and the Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971 define "cardholder" to exclude business credit cards, except for purposes of specific provisions governing issuance and liability for unauthorized use [12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(8); Civ. Code § 1747.02(d); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(a) (issuance); Civ. Code § 1747.05 (issuance); § 46.41[1] (issuance); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(b) (liability for unauthorized use); Civ. Code § 1747.10 (liability for unauthorized use); § 46.213 (liability)].

2. Determine if Equal Credit Opportunity Act [15 U.S.C. § 1691 et seq.] applies to transaction because creditor is person who [12 C.F.R. § 202.2(l)]:

- a. In ordinary course of business, regularly participates in decision of whether or not to extend credit;
- b. In ordinary course of business, regularly refers applicants or prospective applicants to creditors; or
- c. Selects or offers to select creditors to whom requests for credit may be made.

NOTE:

The Equal Credit Opportunity Act prohibits creditor discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex, marital status, or age [12 C.F.R. § 202.1(b)]. While these types of discrimination are prohibited in all credit transactions, some regulatory provisions of the Act are not applied to incidental extensions of credit or to nonconsumer transactions [see 12 C.F.R. § 202.3(c)]. An "incidental extension of credit" is one not made pursuant to credit card account, on which no finance charge is imposed, and which is not payable in more than four installments [12 C.F.R. § 202.3(c)(1)].

3. Determine if Truth in Lending Act [15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.] applies to transaction [12 C.F.R. §§ 226.1(c)(1), 226.2(a)(17)]:

- a. Credit is offered or extended to consumers;
- b. Credit is offered or extended regularly;
- c. Credit is either:
 - (1) Subject to finance charge; or
 - (2) Payable by written agreement in more than four installments; and
- d. Credit is primarily for personal, family, or household purposes.

NOTE:

A lender "regularly" extends credit under the Truth in Lending Act (TILA) only if it extended credit more than 25 times (or more than five times for transactions secured by dwelling) in the preceding or current calendar year [12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(17) n.3]. Extensions of credit for agricultural purposes are exempt, as are those involving amounts over $25,000 if not secured by real property or the consumer's dwelling, those regulated by agencies supervising actions of public utilities or commodities or securities brokers, and home fuel budget plans in which no finance charge is imposed [15 U.S.C. § 1603; 12 C.F.R. § 226.3]. Certain student loans are also exempt from TILA requirements [15 U.S.C. § 1603(6); 12 C.F.R. § 226.3(f)].

4. Determine if Unruh Act applies [Civ. Code §§ 1801-1812.20] to transaction:

- a. Contract is retail installment contract for [Civ. Code §§ 1802.5, 1802.6]:
 - (1) Retail sale of goods [see Civ. Code § 1802.1 ("goods" defined)]; or
 - (2) Retail furnishing of services [see Civ. Code § 1802.2 ("services" defined)];
- b. Contract is entered into or performed in California [see Civ. Code § 1802.6];
- c. Seller is retail seller [see Civ. Code § 1802.3 (definition)]; and
- d. Buyer is retail buyer [see Civ. Code § 1802.4 (definition)].

NOTE:

The Unruh Act is a disclosure act similar to the federal Truth in Lending Act (TILA). The Unruh Act is modeled on TILA and requires many of the same disclosures that must be given under Regulation Z, which implements the federal act [see Civ. Code §§ 1801.5, 1803.3(b)].

In General, the Unruh Act applies only to retail sellers [Civ. Code § 1802.3]. However, financial institutions that provide purchase-money loans can be subject to the Unruh Act if they are joint venturers with, or are related by common ownership and control to, the actual seller of the goods or services financed [Civ. Code § 1801.6(b)]. The Unruh Act is applicable only to credit sales, and then only to those credit sales that also meet the definition of a "retail installment contract" [see Civ. Code §§ 1802.6, 1802.7]. The Truth in Lending Act is generally applicable to those same retail transactions, as well as to other credit sales and direct loans [see 15 U.S.C. § 1602(g); 12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)]. Unlike the Truth in Lending Act, the Unruh Act contains no exemption for creditors handling fewer than 25 annual transactions [see Civ. Code § 1802.3].

5. Determine if Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971 [Civ. Code § 1747 et seq.], Areias Credit Card Full Disclosure Act of 1986 [Civ. Code § 1748.10 et seq.], or Areias-Robbins Charge Card Full Disclosure Act of 1986 [Civ. Code § 1748.20 et seq.] applies to transaction because [see Civ. Code §§ 1747.02(c), (d), 1748.21(b), (c)]:

NOTE:

These acts regulate credit cards, including their disclosure requirements. For further discussion, see §§ 46.30-46.46.

a. Client is credit card or charge card issuer, who is:

(1) Person who issues credit card or charge card; or

(2) Agent of person who issues card.

b. Client is cardholder, who is person to whom credit card or charge card is issued.

6. Determine whether credit card will be secured or unsecured.

NOTE:

See § 46.40 for discussion of required disclosures for secured and unsecured cards. See § 46.45 for discussion of the right to rescind transactions creating a lien on the consumer's dwelling.

7. Determine whether lender will require credit disability insurance and, if so, will lender:

a. Sell it to debtor?

b. Arrange for its sale to debtor?

c. Receive commission or other compensation for its sale to debtor?

NOTE:

If the lender does any of these, it cannot impose late charges, accelerate the due date, collect any credit balance, or enforce any security interest in any manner until three calendar months after the first missed payment is due or the insurer pays or rejects the debtor's claim, whichever is first [Civ. Code § 1812.402(a); see Civ. Code §§ 1812.401(d), (e); see also Civ. Code §§ 1812.403-1812.407]. The creditor must disclose this to the debtor when the creditor sells insurance to the debtor [see Civ. Code §

1812.402(f)(1)].

 C. Procedural Guide

20-46 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 46.120

§ 46.120 Issuance of Credit Cards

1. Advise client that credit cards may not be issued except [15 U.S.C. § 1642; 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(a); Civ. Code § 1747.05]:

- a. In response to an oral or written request or application; or
- b. As a renewal or substitute for an accepted credit card.

NOTE:

An "accepted credit card" is any card that the cardholder has requested and received or has signed, used, or authorized another to use [15 U.S.C. § 1602(l); 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(a)(2) n.21; Civ. Code § 1747.02(b)]. Thus, a card issuer may not send unsolicited credit cards to potential users. This rule applies to all credit cards, not just those issued for consumer credit purposes [12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(8); Civ. Code § 1747.02(d)].

c. In substitution for accepted credit card, if card issuer provides activation process whereby cardholder is required to contact card issuer to activate card before its first use in credit transaction [see Civ. Code § 1747.05(c) (statute does not prohibit overdraft protection advance or recurring-charge transaction previously authorized by cardholder on accepted credit card)].

2. Advise client that creditor may not discriminate against any applicant:

NOTE:

The federal Equal Credit Opportunity Act and its implementing regulations [15 U.S.C. § 1691 et seq.; 12 C.F.R. pt. 202] and California law [Civ. Code § 1747.80] make the discriminatory practices listed below unlawful.

(a) California law: on basis of applicant's [Civ. Code § 1747.80(a); see Civ. Code § 51(b), (e)]:

- (1) Sex.
- (2) Race.
- (3) Color.
- (4) Religion.
- (5) Ancestry.
- (6) National origin.
- (7) Disability.
- (8) Medical condition.
- (9) Marital status.
- (10) Sexual orientation.

NOTE:

A person may not be denied credit or offered credit on terms less desirable than those offered to a person of the opposite sex if his or her property or earnings are such that a person of the opposite sex having the same amount of property or earnings would receive credit [Civ. Code § 1812.30].

b. Federal law: on the basis of applicant's [15 U.S.C. § 1691(a)(1)]:

- (1) Age, provided applicant is over age of capacity to contract.

NOTE:

Inquiry may be made regarding the applicant's age to determine the amount and probable continuance of income levels, credit history, or other pertinent element of creditworthiness [15 U.S.C. § 1691(b)(2)]. There is no discrimination in the use of an empirically derived credit system that considers age if it is demonstrably and statistically sound, but old age may not be assigned a negative factor [15 U.S.C. § 1691(b)(3)]. Nor is it discriminatory to inquire about age when the information is to be used in the applicant's favor [15 U.S.C. § 1691(b)(4)].

- (2) Marital status.

NOTE:

Inquiry may be made regarding marital status to ascertain the creditor's rights and remedies, but not to discriminate in a determination of creditworthiness [15 U.S.C. § 1691(b)(1)].

c. Because all or part of applicant's income derives from any public assistance program [15 U.S.C. § 1691(a)(2)].

NOTE:

It is not discriminatory for a card issuer to inquire about income from public assistance if the inquiry is made to determine the amount and probable continuance of income levels, credit history, or other pertinent elements of creditworthiness [15 U.S.C. § 1691(b)(2)].

d. Because applicant has in good faith exercised any right under Truth in Lending Act [15 U.S.C. § 1691(a)(3)].

3. Review any consumer credit application for compliance with Equal Credit Opportunity Act [see 12 C.F.R. § 202.5 (permissible inquiries)].

NOTE:

See Paragraph 2, above, and § 46.20 for discussion of the Equal Credit Opportunity Act. For further reference, see Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales.

4. Advise client that creditor must determine creditworthiness according to guidelines established by Equal Credit Opportunity Act [see 12 C.F.R. § 202.6 (evaluation of applications)].

NOTE:

See Paragraph 2, above, and § 46.20 for discussion of the Equal Credit Opportunity Act. For further reference, see Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales.

5. Advise client that if creditor furnishes credit to married woman, creditor must open account and issue card in woman's name, as she directs [12 C.F.R. § 202.7(b); Civ. Code § 1747.81(a)]:

- a. In her maiden name;
- b. In her married name; or,
- c. In combination of her maiden and married names.

6. Advise client that if credit is denied, terminated, or changed, creditor must notify applicant in writing within 30 days [see 12 C.F.R. § 202.9; Civ. Code § 1787.2; see also Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales].

7. Advise client that creditor may not take adverse action against account holder or applicant because that person asserted rights under Equal Credit Opportunity Act or Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971 [12 C.F.R. §§ 202.4, 202.2(z); Civ. Code § 1747.70(b), (c)].

NOTE:

See §§ 46.40, 46.41, 46.60 for detailed discussion of the Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971 [Civ. Code § 1747 et seq.].

8. Advise client that creditor may not take following actions as result of account holder's change of name or marital status, or retirement [12 C.F.R. § 202.7(c)(1)]:

NOTE:

The creditor may take these otherwise-prohibited actions if there is evidence of unwillingness or inability to pay [12 C.F.R. § 202.7(c)(1)]. If credit was extended on the basis of the former spouse's income, the creditor may require a new application on a change in marital status [12 C.F.R. § 202.7(c)(2)].

- a. Require reapplication.
- b. Change terms of account.

c. Terminate account.

9. Advise client that creditor must make required disclosures of plan terms and consumer's rights before consumer's first credit transaction [15 U.S.C. §§ 1637(a), 1643(a)(1); 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.5(b)(1), 226.12(b)(2); see Civ. Code § 1810.1].

NOTE:

See § 46.212 for an initial disclosure statement and detailed discussion of disclosure requirements. See § 46.213 for a notice that must be given if the creditor wishes to impose any liability on the consumer for unauthorized use of the card.

10. If creditor requires credit disability insurance and has directly participated in or received any compensation from sale of credit disability insurance to consumer, advise client that creditor must give consumer notice of credit disability insurance claims procedures [see Civ. Code § 1812.402(f)(1); see also McManis v. San Diego Postal Credit Union (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 547, 557-558, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617 (credit union failed to meet its burden on summary judgment to negate consumer's breach of contract claim because it did not establish compliance with Civ. Code § 1812.400 et seq., including Civ. Code § 1812.402(f), before repossession)].

NOTE:

If the creditor has directly participated in or received any compensation from the sale of credit disability insurance to the consumer, it will be precluded from imposing late charges, accelerating a due date, collecting any credit balance, or enforcing any security interest until three calendar months after the first missed payment is due or the insurer pays or rejects the debtor's claim, whichever is first [see Civ. Code § 1812.402(a); see also Civ. Code §§ 1812.401(d), (e), 1812.403-1812.407]. The creditor must disclose these limitations on its rights to the debtor when the creditor sells the insurance to the debtor [see Civ. Code § 1812.402(f)(1)]. The insurer must disclose the claim procedure to the debtor when it sends claim forms to the debtor [see Civ. Code § 1812.402(f)(2)]. See Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales, for further discussion of the use of credit disability insurance.

11. Advise client that consumer has absolute right to rescind any open-end credit transactions giving creditor lien on property in which consumer resides, unless transaction finances acquisition of dwelling [15 U.S.C. § 1635(a), (e)(1)(A); 12 C.F.R. § 226.23(a), (f)(1)].

NOTE:

The consumer may rescind the transaction until midnight of the third business day following consummation, delivery of a required notice of rescission rights, or delivery of all material Truth in Lending disclosures, whichever occurs last [12 C.F.R. § 226.23(a)(3)]. Each affected consumer also has the right to rescind each addition to the security under the plan and any increase in the credit limit [15 U.S.C. § 1635(a); 12 C.F.R. § 226.15].

The right to rescind expires three years after the date of consummation of the transaction or on the sale of the property, whichever occurs first, even if the required disclosures have never been made [15 U.S.C. § 1635(f)]. A borrower may not assert the right to rescind as an affirmative defense in a collection action brought by the lender more than three years after the consummation of the transaction. Because 15 U.S.C. § 1635(f) completely extinguishes the right of rescission at the end of the three-year period, it is not a statute of limitations and the mortgagors cannot assert the right to rescind as a recoupment defense beyond the expiration period [Beach v. Ocwen Federal Bank (1998) 523 U.S. 410, 417-419, 118 S. Ct. 1408, 140 L. Ed. 2d 566] .

§ 46.121 Billing and Crediting Payments for Open-End Credit Accounts; Cardholder's Liability

1. Advise client that creditor must comply with regulations governing:

NOTE:

See § 46.215 for further discussion of billing provisions.

a. "Free-ride periods" within which payment may be made without imposition of finance charge [see 15 U.S.C. § 1666b; Civ. Code § 1810.3(a)(7), (b)].

b. Prompt crediting of payments [see 15 U.S.C. § 1666c; 12 C.F.R. § 226.10].

c. Handling of refunds and credit balances [see 15 U.S.C. § 1666d; 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.11, 226.12(e); Civ. Code § 1810.3(e)-(h)].

d. Issuance and contents of [see 15 U.S.C. § 1637(a)(7), (b); 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.7, 226.9(a); Civ. Code §§ 1748.5, 1748.13, 1810.3, 1810.11]:

(1) Periodic statements.

(2) Notices of billing rights.

(3) Annual statements of finance charges paid.

2. Advise client that credit card issuer may impose liability on cardholder only if following conditions are met [15 U.S.C. § 1643(a)(1); 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(b)(2); Civ. Code § 1747.10]:

NOTE:

The rules governing the liability of credit card holders for unauthorized use of their cards [12 C.F.R. § 226.12(b)] apply to all credit cards, even those issued for extensions of credit that are exempt from coverage of the Truth in Lending Act requirements [12 C.F.R. § 226.3 n.4].

- a. Card is "accepted credit card" [see 15 U.S.C. § 1602(l) (definition); Civ. Code § 1747.02(b) (definition); see also § 46.41];
- b. Card issuer gives cardholder adequate notice of potential liability;
- c. Card issuer has provided cardholder with description of method for notifying card issuer of loss or theft of card;

NOTE:

This description may be provided as part of the statement required with each billing cycle [see 15 U.S.C. § 1637(b)] or may be on a separate note accompanying that statement [15 U.S.C. § 1643(a)(1)(D)]. See § 46.213 for detailed discussion of the notification requirements and a sample notice.

- d. Unauthorized use occurs before card issuer has been notified that such a use has occurred or may occur as a result of loss, theft, or otherwise; and
- e. Card issuer has provided a method whereby user of card can be identified as person authorized to use it.

3. Advise client that liability for unauthorized use of credit card may not exceed $50 [15 U.S.C. § 1643(a)(1)(B); 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(b)(1); Civ. Code § 1747.10(b)].

4. Advise client that creditor must comply with specified procedures when responding to consumer inquiries or notifying consumer of billing errors [see 15 U.S.C. §§ 1666, 1666a; 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.13, 226.28(a)(2)(i); Civ. Code §§ 1747.40-1747.70].

NOTE:

Federal and California laws impose stringent requirements regarding billing errors. See § 46.233 for discussion of these requirements.

5. Advise client of consumers' rights to assert claims and defenses, resulting from conduct of seller of goods and services, against credit card issuer who is not seller [see 15 U.S.C. § 1666i; 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(c); Civ. Code § 1747.90].

NOTE:

See §§ 46.231 and 46.232 for discussion of the right to assert claims and defenses against a third-party issuer. See §§ 46.212 and 46.215 for discussion of the card issuer's initial and subsequent obligations to provide notice of this right.

20-46 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 46.122

§ 46.122 Advertisements and Oral Disclosures of Open-End Credit Cost

1. Advise client of following federal restrictions on advertising open-end credit [see 15 U.S.C. §§ 1662, 1663; 12 C.F.R. § 226.16].

NOTE:

See Paragraph 3, below, for a discussion of California requirements.

a. If advertisement states specific credit terms, only terms actually arranged or offered by creditor may be stated [15 U.S.C. § 1662; 12 C.F.R. § 226.16(a)].

b. If credit terms are specified, advertisement must disclose all of following [15 U.S.C. § 1663; 12 C.F.R. § 226.16(b); see § 46.212]:

(1) Any minimum or fixed charge that could be imposed;

(2) Any periodic rates expressed as annual percentage rates if periodic rates are used to compute finance charge; and

(3) Any membership or participation fee that could be imposed.

c. Catalogs or other multiple-page advertisements and electronic advertisements may make required disclosures using single table or schedule, provided that [15 U.S.C. § 1661; 12 C.F.R. § 226.16(c)]:

(1) Any required statement of terms in initial disclosure statement clearly refers to page in catalog on which table begins;

(2) Table or schedule is clear and conspicuous;

(3) Table or schedule permits determination of all required disclosures; and

(4) Table or schedule includes disclosures for representative amounts up to level of more commonly sold higher priced property or services.

NOTE:

If an advertisement using electronic communication contains the table or schedule permitted under 12 C.F.R. § 226.16(c)(1), any statement of terms set forth in 12 C.F.R. § 226.6 (initial disclosure statement) [see 46.212] appearing anywhere else in the advertisement must clearly direct the consumer to the location where the table or schedule begins. For example, a term triggering additional disclosures may be accompanied by a link that directly takes the consumer to the additional information [see 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, supp. I, comment 16(c)-1].

2. Advise client of restrictions on oral disclosures of cost of open-end credit.

NOTE:

In an oral response to an inquiry about the cost of open-end credit, only the annual percentage rate or rates and the periodic rate or rates may be stated [15 U.S.C. § 1665a; 12 C.F.R. § 226.26(a)]. If the annual rate cannot be determined in advance because there are finance charges other than a periodic rate (for example, transaction charges), the annual percentage rate corresponding to the periodic rate must be stated, and other cost information may be given [15 U.S.C. § 1665a; 12 C.F.R. § 226.26(a)]. The corresponding annual percentage rate is the product of a periodic rate and the number of periods in a year [see 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.6(a)(2), 226.14(b); see also Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales].

3. Advise client that creditor must comply with following California requirements if any method of payment for goods, property, or services to be purchased using open-end consumer credit plan accepted by more than one seller is advertised:

NOTE:

The terms used below have the same meaning as those used in federal Regulation Z [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.7(e)].

a. Bait terms may not be used [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.7(d)].

b. Following disclosures must be clear and conspicuous:

(1) Cash price [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.7(a)(1)].

NOTE:

The cash price must be clearly and conspicuously stated next to the payment terms [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.7(c)].

(2) Amount or percentage of downpayment, if any [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.7(a)(1)].

(3) Payment terms [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.7(a)(2)]:

(a) Monthly or other periodic payment;

(b) Number of payments or period of repayment; and

(c) Whether payment is calculated on assumption that purchaser has no outstanding balance due under credit plan, if that is so.

(4) Finance charge data [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.7(a)(3)]:

(a) Amount of finance charge;

(b) Any applicable periodic rate, expressed as annual percentage rate; and

(c) Any applicable variable periodic rate.

c. If catalogs or multi-page advertisements are used, advise client of following disclosure requirements [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.7(b)]:

(1) Any applicable periodic rate, expressed as annual percentage rate, set forth clearly and conspicuously in a table or schedule; and

(2) Reference to that table wherever payment terms are stated elsewhere.

4. Advise client that any application form or preapproved written solicitation for open-end credit card account to be used for personal, family, or household purposes mailed to California consumers must contain either of following disclosures [Civ. Code § 1748.11(a)]:

NOTE:

These disclosure requirements do not apply to application forms or solicitations included in magazines, newspapers, or other publications [Civ. Code § 1748.11(a)]. Application forms for an open-end credit card accounts distributed in California, other than by mail, must either make these disclosures or contain a statement in substantially the following form: "If you wish to receive disclosure of the terms of this credit card, pursuant to the Areias Credit Card Full Disclosure Act of 1986, check here and return to the address on this application" [Civ. Code § 1748.11(g)]. However, application forms or written advertisements or an open-end credit card accounts where the credit to be extended is secured by a lien on real property, personal property, or both, do not require these disclosures [Civ. Code § 1748.11(h); see Civ. Code § 1747.94 (secured credit card disclosures)]. An advertisement or solicitation for a secured credit card must expressly identify the credit instrument as a secured card, and describe the security by item or type [Civ. Code § 1747.94(a); see Civ. Code § 1747.94(c) (exceptions); see also Civ. Code § 1747.02(l) ("secured credit card" defined)].

a. Statement that satisfies initial disclosure statement requirements of federal Regulation Z [Civ. Code § 1748.11(a)(2), (c), (e); see Civ. Code § 1802.18; 12 C.F.R. § 226.1; see also P 1, above]; or

b. All of following information [Civ. Code § 1748.11(a)(1)]:

(1) Any periodic rate or rates, expressed as annual percentage rate or rates;

NOTE:

If the account is subject to a variable rate, the creditor may instead either (1) disclose the rate as of a specific date and indicate that the rate may vary, or (2) identify the index and any amount or percentage added to, or subtracted from, that index and used to determine the rate [Civ. Code § 1748.11(a)(1)(A)].

(2) Any membership or participation fee that may be imposed for availability of card, expressed as annualized amount;

(3) Any per transaction fee that may be imposed on purchases, expressed as either an amount or percentage of transaction; and

(4) Any "free period" in which consumer may pay full balance without imposition of additional finance charges.

§ 46.123 Cancellation Notice Requirements for Credit Card

1. Advise client that under California law, card issuer may cancel credit card without notice to cardholder if [Civ. Code § 1747.85]:

- a. Card issuer has evidence or reasonable belief that cardholder is unable or unwilling to repay obligations or that unauthorized use of card may be made;
- b. Cardholder is or has been in default of payment within last 90 days; or
- c. Cardholder requests cancellation.

NOTE:

Otherwise, a card issuer may not cancel a credit card without having first given the cardholder 30 days written notice of its intention to do so [Civ. Code § 1747.85].

2. Advise client that Equal Credit Opportunity Act [15 U.S.C. § 1691 et seq.; 12 C.F.R. pt. 202] provides for written notice within 30 days after terminating or taking any adverse action against existing consumer credit account [12 C.F.R. § 202.9(a)(1)(iii)].

NOTE:

Such a notice must contain either a statement of the specific reasons for the termination or change or notification of the right to such a statement, a statement of the action taken, the name and address of the creditor, as well as other notices required by law [12 C.F.R. § 202.9(a)(2); see Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales].

§ 46.124 Limitations on Requesting Personal Information in Credit Card Transactions

1. Advise client that party accepting credit card may not do any of the following:

NOTE:

These prohibitions do not apply (1) when the credit card is being used as a deposit to secure payment in the event of default, loss, damage, or other similar occurrence; (2) to cash advance transactions; (3) when the entity accepting the credit card is contractually obligated to provide personal identification information to complete the credit card transaction; or (4) when personal identification information is required for a special purpose incidental but related to the individual credit card transaction, such as information about shipping, delivery, servicing, or installation of the purchased merchandise, or for special orders [Civ. Code § 1747.08(c)]. These prohibitions also do not apply when a customer who bought merchandise using a credit card returns that merchandise and requests reversal of the credit card charge [Absher v. AutoZone, Inc. (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 332, 346, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 817] .

a. Request, or require as condition to accepting card, that cardholder write any personal identification information on credit card transaction form or elsewhere [Civ. Code § 1747.08(a)(1)].

b. Request, or require as condition to accepting card, that cardholder furnish personal identification information so that party accepting card can record that information on credit card transaction form or otherwise [Civ. Code § 1747.08(a)(2)]; see Florez v. Linens'N Things, Inc. (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 447, 450-453, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 465 (word "request" in § 1747.08 bars retailer from making request for personal identification from consumer if it immediately precedes credit card transaction, even if consumer's response is voluntary and made only for marketing purposes)].

NOTE:

"Personal identification information" means information concerning the cardholder, other than the information set forth on the credit card, including but not limited to, the cardholder's telephone number and address [Civ. Code § 1747.08(b)]. A cardholder's five-digit zip code is not personal identification information, and the statute does not prohibit asking for it [Party City Corp. v. Superior Court (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 497, 519-520, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 721] .

c. Utilize credit card form that contains pre-printed spaces specifically designated for filling in any personal identification information [Civ. Code § 1747.08(a)(3)].

2. Advise client that party accepting credit card may require reasonable forms of positive identification as condition to accepting credit card, provided that identifying information is not recorded on credit card transaction form or otherwise [Civ. Code § 1747.08(d)].

C. Procedural Guide

20-46 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 46.125

§ 46.125 Key Features of Credit Card Systems

1. If issuer offers insurance in connection with its credit card, advise client that such charges:
 - a. For credit life, accident, or health insurance must be included in finance charge disclosed under Truth in Lending Act unless [15 U.S.C. § 1605(b)]:
 - (1) Coverage is not factor in approval of credit extension and that fact is clearly disclosed in writing to applicant; and
 - (2) To obtain insurance, debtor gives specific affirmative written assent after written disclosure of cost.
 - b. For insurance protecting creditor against cardholder's default or other credit loss must be included in finance charge [15 U.S.C. § 1605(a)(5)].
 - c. For insurance against property loss or damage or against liability arising out of ownership or use of property must be included in finance charge unless cardholder is furnished with clear and specific written statement [15 U.S.C. § 1605(c)]:
 - (1) Setting forth cost of insurance if obtained from or through card issuer; and
 - (2) Giving cardholder right to chose person through whom insurance is to be obtained.

NOTE:

Home insurance policies commonly offer or automatically extend riders to their insureds covering all credit card losses up to a specified amount.

2. If cost of any open-end credit account insurance is separately charged to buyer, advise client that California law requires written agreement [Civ. Code § 1810.5]:

- a. Stating whether insurance is to be procured by buyer, seller, or holder;
- b. Signed by both buyer and seller; and
- c. Furnished to buyer.

3. If insurance is to be procured by seller or holder, advise client that California law requires that:

- a. Notice of insurance, or copies of any policies, or certificates of insurance be furnished by seller or holder within 45 days after delivery of goods or performance of services [Civ. Code § 1803.5(c)].
- b. Charges for insurance not exceed insurer's fixed rate for that insurance [Civ. Code § 1803.5(b)].

4. Advise client that credit card issuer should establish method to identify card user as person authorized to use card.

NOTE:

In order for the issuer to collect the cardholder's maximum liability ($50), the issuer must have established a method to identify the user of the card as the person authorized to use it [15 U.S.C. § 1643(a)(1)(F); Civ. Code § 1747.10(f)]. Such methods ordinarily include the cardholder's signature, photograph, fingerprint or voiceprint. See § 46.213 for further discussion of cardholder liability.

5. Advise client to determine whether cardholder will be charged membership fee, either on one-time or annual basis.

NOTE:

A membership fee, when not incident to or a condition of any specific extension of credit, is not part of the finance charge [12 C.F.R. § 226.4(c)(4)]. California law authorizes an annual membership fee for retail installment accounts that utilize credit cards [Civ. Code § 1810.4].

6. Advise client that cardholders may be charged penalties for late payments as follows:

- a. Lender credit card may charge late fee for genuine, unanticipated default [12 C.F.R. § 226.4(c)(2)].

NOTE:

This fee is not required to be included in the finance charge [12 C.F.R. § 226.4(c)(2)]. Such a fee ordinarily is applied only to the minimum balance that was supposed to have been paid for the prior billing period.

- b. Retail installment account agreement may provide for late fee in amount not in excess of $10 for period in default of not less than 10 days, or $15 for period in default of not less than 15 days [Civ. Code § 1810.12(a)].

NOTE:

If the delinquency charge has not been previously disclosed to the buyer in the terms of the retail installment account agreement, the seller must provide notice of the change to the buyer not less than 30 days before the effective date of the change or 30 days before the beginning of the billing cycle within which the change will become effective, whichever is earlier [Civ. Code § 1810.3(d)]. A delinquency charge may not be imposed for defaults of payment on payment due before the buyer has been given proper notice concerning the delinquency charge [Civ. Code § 1810.12(b)].

c. Seller, holder, or retail installment account (including retail creditor) may charge fee for returned or dishonored checks [Civ. Code § 1810.4].

d. Charge card issuer may charge up to specified amount as late payment charge [see Fin. Code § 4001(a)].

7. Advise client to determine whether credit card plan will provide following related credit card services:

a. Cash advances.

b. Overdraft protection.

NOTE:

Overdraft protection permits a bank that issued the card to automatically credit the cardholder's account with specified amounts (usually in multiples of $100) sufficient to cover the amount of any checking account overdraft. For discussion of the circumstances under which the bank can automatically take an offset against a deposit account in payment of an outstanding balance, see § 46.210.

c. Minimum balance account.

d. Check guarantee privileges at participating merchants.

e. Special installment account providing extended term financing for special goods (normally more expensive items such as appliances), not charged against regular credit limit.

8. Advise client that retail installment account agreement may provide for actual and reasonable costs of collection caused by buyer's [Civ. Code § 1810.12]:

a. Removal of goods purchased under agreement from California without written permission of account holder.

b. Failure to notify holder of change of residence.

c. Failure to communicate with holder for period of 45 days after default in making payments due under agreement.

20-46 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 46.126

§ 46.126 Responsibilities of Seller Participating in Credit Card Plan

NOTE:

There may be antitrust considerations in any attempt to exclude particular sellers from a credit card plan [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 16600, 16720].

1. Advise seller-client that it should sign up to participate in credit card plan by specific agreement.
2. Advise seller-client to obtain all forms and equipment necessary for administration of credit card system.
3. Advise seller-client to determine applicable credit limits ("floor limits") on total amount of sale beyond which merchant must obtain clearance from card issuer for extension of credit to customer.
4. Advise seller-client to determine procedure for telephone or computer tie-in to credit authorization facilities to authorize credit in excess of floor limits.
5. Advise seller-client that credit authorization system should be used for each purchase in excess of floor limits.
6. Advise seller-client that card issuers may not prohibit sellers of goods or services from offering discounts for payment by means other than credit card [15 U.S.C. § 1666f(a); 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(f)(1); Civ. Code § 1748].

NOTE:

Such a discount may be a finance charge, subjecting the person honoring the card to a disclosure requirement [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.4(b)(9)]. See § 46.212 for discussion of this disclosure requirement. However, a rebate available to a cash buyer after completion of the sale transaction is not a discount (since the price to be paid is not reduced), nor is it a "charge" of any kind--a charge is a request for payment; a rebate is a reduction of the amount paid--and it need not be accounted for, either in computing the finance charge or in making related disclosures [Virachack v. University Ford (9th Cir. 2005) 410 F.3d 579, 581-582] .

7. Advise seller-client that card issuer may not require it to purchase additional services in order to participate in credit card plan [15 U.S.C. § 1666g].

NOTE:

Notwithstanding any agreement to the contrary, a card issuer may not require a seller of goods or services, as a condition to participation in the credit card plan, to open an account with or to procure any other service from the card issuer, its subsidiaries, or its agents [15 U.S.C. § 1666g].

8. Advise seller-client that if it allows return of goods or forgiveness of debit for services in credit card sales transaction, it must [15 U.S.C. § 1666e]:

NOTE:

For discussion of a cardholder's rights in case of a dispute between cardholder and the seller, see §§ 46.232 and 46.233.

- a. Credit cardholder's account with correct amount, if seller is card issuer; or
- b. Promptly transmit credit statement to the credit card issuer.

NOTE:

On receipt of the credit statement, the card issuer must credit the cardholder's account for the amount involved [15 U.S.C. § 1666e].

9. If customer exchanges merchandise for goods of same value, advise seller-client that it need make no adjustments to credit card records.

10. If customer exchanges merchandise for goods of greater value, advise seller-client that it should:

- a. Write up new sales slip, including:
 - (1) Credit for amount of previous purchase.
 - (2) Sales tax on remainder of purchase price for new goods.
- b. Obtain credit authorization for amount of purchase differential that exceeds floor limit for present type of sale.

11. If customer exchanges merchandise for goods of lesser value, advise seller-client that it should write up credit memorandum for difference between former and present prices, including:

- a. Corrected sales tax.

b. Corrected portion of any add-on service.

 PART III. TRANSACTION GUIDE
 D. Related and Subsequent Procedures

20-46 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 46.140

§ 46.140 Subsequent Required Notices

1. Advise client of disclosures required for supplemental credit devices and additional features [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.9(b)].

a. If, after 30 days after mailing or delivering initial disclosures for open-end account, creditor adds credit feature or furnishes credit device on same finance charge terms, provide disclosure:

(1) That it is for use in obtaining credit under the terms previously disclosed [12 C.F.R. § 226.9(b)(1)].

(2) Clearly and conspicuously in writing, in form that consumer may keep, before consumer uses feature or device for first time [see 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.9(b)(1), 226.6(a)(1)].

NOTE:

If a creditor, within 30 days after mailing the initial disclosures for an open-end account, adds a credit feature to the consumer's account or delivers a credit device for which the finance charge terms are the same as those previously disclosed, no additional disclosures are necessary [12 C.F.R. § 226.9(b)(1)].

b. If finance charge terms for new feature or device differ from those previously disclosed, following disclosures, as applicable, must be made before the consumer first uses the new feature or device [12 C.F.R. § 226.9(b)(2); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.6(a) (initial disclosure statement)]:

(1) Statement of when finance charges begin to accrue and whether there is period within which credit extended may be repaid without incurring a finance charge;

(2) Disclosure of each periodic rate that may be used to compute finance charge, the range of balances to which it is applicable, corresponding annual percentage rate, and (if different periodic rates apply to different types of transactions) the types of transactions to which the rates apply;

NOTE:

The reference to a periodic rate that "may be" used to compute the finance charge means a rate that the creditor is permitted to use under the credit agreement. In other words, "may" in 12 C.F.R. § 226.9(b)(2) connotes contractual entitlement, not mere possibility. Therefore, a creditor does not violate that disclosure requirement unless the creditor omits to disclose, in the credit agreement, any periodic rate that the agreement permits the creditor to use. The required disclosure can be adequately made by the usual change-in-terms provision (which reserves to the creditor a right to change periodic rates, among other terms, without any limitation on why the creditor could make such a change), provided the change-in-terms provision meets the "clear and conspicuous" test of 12 C.F.R. § 226.5(a)(1) [*Barrer v. Chase Bank U.S. (9th Cir. 2009) 566 F.3d 883, 2009 U.S. App. LEXIS 10913, at *16-*18, *21-22 (construing 12 C.F.R. § 226.6(a)(2), which is incorporated by reference into 12 C.F.R. § 226.9(b)(2); in this case, change in terms provision was not clear and conspicuous when it appeared "five dense pages after the disclosure of the APR ... buried too deeply in the fine print for a reasonable cardholder to realize that, in addition to the specific grounds for increasing the APR listed in the 'Finance Charges' section, [the creditor] could raise the APR for other reasons")].

(3) Explanation of method used to determine balance on which finance charge may be computed; and

(4) Explanation of how amount of any finance charge will be determined, including description of how any finance charge other than periodic rate will be determined.

2. Advise client of disclosures required when there is change in credit plan terms [12 C.F.R. § 226.9(c)]:

a. Whenever any term required to be disclosed in initial disclosure statement is changed or required minimum periodic payment is increased, provide written notice of change:

(1) To each consumer who may be affected [12 C.F.R. § 226.9(c)(1); see § 46.212 (initial disclosure requirements)].

(2) At least 15 days before effective date of change [12 C.F.R. § 226.9(c)(1)].

NOTE:

No notice is required if the change (1) involves late-payment charges, charges for documentary evidence, or over-the-credit-limit charges; (2) involves a reduction of any component of a finance or other charge; (3) involves suspension of future credit privileges or termination of an account or plan; (4) results from an agreement involving a court proceeding; or (5) results from the consumer's delinquency or default [12 C.F.R. § 226.9(c)(2)].

b. For state-regulated accounts (those maintained by retailers of goods or services for their customers [see Civ. Code § 1802.7]), make written disclosure:

(1) Of changes made to any terms that were previously disclosed [Civ. Code § 1810.3(d)].

(2) At least 30 days before earlier of:

(a) Effective date of the change; or

(b) Beginning of billing cycle within which the change will become effective [Civ. Code § 1810.3(d)].

NOTE:

If the change involves the reduction of any part of a finance charge or other charge previously disclosed to the buyer, the notice is sufficient if it appears on or accompanies the periodic statements sent to the buyers who normally receive them [Civ. Code § 1810.3(d)]. If the change involves an increase in any component of a finance charge, the change is effective only on purchases made on or after the effective date of the change [Civ. Code § 1810.3(d)].

3. Advise client of disclosures required before renewal of credit or charge card account requiring payment of annual fee [see 15 U.S.C. § 1637(d); 12 C.F.R. § 226.9(e)]:

a. Card issuer that imposes annual or other periodic fee to renew credit card or charge card subject to statutory application or solicitation disclosure requirements [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a], must mail or deliver notice of renewal to cardholder [12 C.F.R. § 226.9(e)(1)].

b. Notice must contain [12 C.F.R. § 226.9(e)(1)]:

(1) Applicable disclosures required of issuer-initiated applications and solicitations to open credit card account or charge card account [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(b); see also § 46.214 (form)]; and

(2) Statement of how and when cardholder may terminate account to avoid paying renewal fee.

c. Notice must be given:

(1) At least 30 days or one billing cycle, whichever is less, before mailing of periodic statement on which renewal fee is initially charged [12 C.F.R. § 226.9(e)(1)]; or

(2) On or with periodic statement on which renewal fee is initially charged [12 C.F.R. § 226.9(e)(3)].

NOTE:

The issuer must disclose that the cardholder has 30 days from mailing or delivery of the periodic statement to avoid paying the fee or to have the fee credited if he or she chooses to terminate the account, and that the cardholder may use the card during the interim without having to pay the fee [12 C.F.R. § 226.9(e)(2)].

4. Advise client to make following required disclosures if change in provider of credit card insurance occurs [15 U.S.C. § 1637(g); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.9(f)]:

a. Include in notice mailed to cardholder at least 30 days before change occurs [12 C.F.R. § 226.9(f)(1)]:

(1) Any increase in rate that will result from change.

(2) Any substantial decrease in coverage that will result from change [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.9(f)(3) ("substantial decrease in coverage" defined)].

(3) Statement that cardholder may discontinue insurance.

b. Include in notice mailed to cardholder no more than 30 days after change occurs [12 C.F.R. § 226.9(f)(2)]:

(1) Name and address of new insurance provider.

(2) Copy of new policy or group certificate containing basic terms of insurance, including rate charged.

(3) Statement that cardholder may discontinue insurance.

NOTE:

The preceding two types of disclosures are required if the issuer plans a change in the provider of insurance for repayment of all or part of the outstanding balance of an open-end credit card account subject to 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a [12 C.F.R. § 226.9(f)]. The two notices may be combined if they are provided to the cardholder no later than 30 days before the change occurs. Notice may be provided on or with a periodic statement [12 C.F.R. § 226.9(f)(4); see 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, app. G-13A].

5. Advise client to provide required notice if client is card issuer who intends to disclose marketing information about cardholders [see Civ. Code § 1748.12; see also § 46.216 (form for disclosure)].

1. Advise seller-client that discount for nonuse of card is considered finance charge, unless [15 U.S.C. § 1666f(b); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.4(a), (b)(9), (c)(8)]:

- a. Discount is offered to all prospective buyers; and
- b. Availability of discount is disclosed clearly and conspicuously.

NOTE:

Under California law, a seller may offer a discount to induce payment by cash or check (or other means not involving use of the card), provided that the discount is offered to all prospective buyers [Civ. Code § 1748.1(a); see Thrifty Oil Co. v. Superior Court (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 1070, 1076-1079, 111 Cal. 2. If discount for non-use of credit card is considered finance charge, advise seller-client that at time of honoring credit card, seller must disclose amount of finance charge before its imposition [12 C.F.R. § 226.9(d)].

NOTE:

The finance charge must be disclosed as a dollar amount, and the disclosure may be oral [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.9(d); 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, supp. I, § 226.9(d)].

3. Advise seller-client not to impose surcharge when cardholder elects to use the card for any sales, service, or lease transaction instead of paying by cash, check, or similar means [Civ. Code § 1748.1(a)].

NOTE:

If a seller willfully imposes a surcharge, the cardholder may demand refund of that amount in a letter sent by certified mail. If the seller refuses to make the refund within 30 days, it will be liable to the cardholder for triple the amount of actual damages assessed, plus reasonable attorneys' fees and costs [Civ. Code § 1748.1(b)].

§ 46.143 Notice of Unauthorized Access to Unencrypted Confidential Personal Information Contained in Data Files

NOTE:

A state agency, or a person or business that conducts business in California, that owns or licenses computerized data that includes personal information must disclose, in specified ways, any breach of the security of the data to any resident of California whose unencrypted personal information was, or is reasonably believed to have been, acquired by an unauthorized person [Civ. Code §§ 1798.29(a), 1798.82(a); see Civ. Code §§ 1798.29(g), (h) 1798.82(g), (h) (methods of giving notice); § 46.250]. In addition, a state agency that maintains computerized data that includes personal information that the agency does not own must notify the owner or licensee of the information of any breach of the security of the data immediately following discovery, if the personal information was, or is reasonably believed to have been, acquired by an unauthorized person [Civ. Code § 1798.29(b)]. For further discussion, see §§ 46.96, 46.250.

1. If unauthorized access to computerized files containing customers' personal information occurs, advise client to provide notice to customers by one of the following methods [see Civ. Code §§ 1798.29(g)(1)-(3), 1798.82(g)(1)-(3)]:

- a. Written notice [see § 46.250 (form for written notice)].
- b. Electronic notice, if notice provided is consistent with provisions regarding electronic records and signatures set forth in Electronic Signatures in Global and National Commerce Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7001 [see § 46.212[1][h]].
- c. Substitute notice, if agency, person, or business demonstrates that cost of providing notice would exceed $250,000, or that affected class of subject persons to be notified exceeds 500,000, or agency, person, or business does not have sufficient contact information.

2. Advise client using substitute notice [see P 1c, above] that such notice must consist of all of following [see Civ. Code §§ 1798.29(g)(3)(A)-(C), 1798.82(g)(3)(A)-(C)]:

- a. E-mail notice when agency, person, or business has e-mail addresses for subject persons.
- b. Conspicuous posting of notice on Web site page of agency, person, or business, if a Web site page is maintained.
- c. Notification to major statewide media.

3. Advise client that, instead of using procedures discussed in PP 1 and 2, above, it may notify affected persons in accordance with its own policies, if [see Civ. Code §§ 1798.29(h), 1798.82(h)]:

- a. It maintains its own notification procedures as part of information security policy for treatment of personal information; and
- b. Notification is otherwise consistent with timing requirements of Civ. Code §§ 1798.29(a) and 1798.82(a).

4. Advise client that notification must be "in the most expedient time possible and without unreasonable delay," consistent with any measures necessary to determine scope of security breach and restore reasonable integrity of data system [see Civ. Code §§ 1798.29(a), 1798.82(a)].

NOTE:

Notifications may be delayed if a law enforcement agency determines that it would impede a criminal investigation [see Civ. Code §§ 1798.29(a), (c), 1798.82(a), (c)].

§ 46.200 Corporate Resolution for Cardholder Status

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a corporate resolution approving the corporation's participation in a credit card plan. It is advisable for the board of directors to adopt this type of resolution, since disregard of corporate formalities (such as required directors' meetings and properly documented board resolutions) has been a major factor in piercing the corporate veil [see Associated Vendors, Inc. v. Oakland Meat Co. (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 825, 838-842, 26 Cal. Rptr. 806]. Thus, the purpose of this resolution is to document corporate participation in a credit card plan, thereby observing the corporate formalities that would tend to protect the individual cardholders from liability for corporate debts related to the use of the card.

Following the resolution is a form for certification of the secretary of the corporation, declaring that the resolution is a complete and correct copy of the resolution adopted by the board of directors. Although it is not necessary to include such a certification in the minute book with the resolution, the bank or other card issuer may require a copy of the resolution, certified by the corporate secretary, for its records before issuing a corporate card.

[b] Provisions Governing Issuance and Liability for Unauthorized Use of Business Credit Cards

Because a business credit card is not an extension of consumer credit, the fair credit billing provisions of the Truth in Lending Act are inapplicable to business credit cards transactions [American Express Co. v. Koerner (1981) 452 U.S. 233, 241-244, 101 S. Ct. 2281, 68 L. Ed. 2d 803; see 15 U.S.C. § 1603(1)]. Further, Regulation Z and the Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971 define "cardholder" to exclude business credit cards, except for purposes of specific provisions governing issuance and liability for unauthorized use [12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(8); Civ. Code § 1747.02(d)].

No credit card, including a business credit card, may be issued except as a renewal or in response to an application [15 U.S.C. § 1642; 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(a); Civ. Code § 1747.05(a)]. Under the Song-Beverly Credit Card Act, a credit card issued in substitution for an accepted credit card may be issued only if the card issuer provides an activation process whereby the cardholder is required to contact the card issuer to activate the card before its first use in a credit transaction [Civ. Code § 1747.05(b)]. However, this statutory provision does not prohibit overdraft protection advance or a recurring-charge transaction previously authorized by the cardholder on the accepted credit card [Civ. Code § 1747.05(c)].

Further, a cardholder is liable for unauthorized use of any card, including a business credit card, only if (1) the cardholder accepted the card [see 15 U.S.C. § 1602(l) ("accepted credit card" defined); Civ. Code § 1747.02(b) ("accepted credit card" defined); see also § 46.41]; (2) the card issuer gives the cardholder adequate notice of potential liability and provides the cardholder with a description of the procedure for notifying the card issuer of loss or theft of the card; (3) the unauthorized use occurs before the card issuer has been notified; and (4) the card issuer has provided a method for identifying the user of the card as the person authorized to use it [15 U.S.C. § 1643(a)(1); 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(b)(2); Civ. Code § 1747.10]. The liability of a cardholder for unauthorized use of a credit card may not exceed $50 [15 U.S.C. § 1643(a)(1)(B); 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(b)(1); Civ. Code § 1747.10(b)].

For purposes of the above rules, "unauthorized use" does not include the use of a credit card by a person who has been given authority by the cardholder to use it [Civ. Code § 1747.02(f); see 15 U.S.C. § 1602(o) ("unauthorized use" defined)].

In connection with this limited liability for unauthorized use, certain disclosures must be made to the cardholder, whether the cardholder is an individual, business, or other entity. See § 46.213 for further discussion of these disclosures.

PART IV. FORMS
A. Business Credit Card Account

20-46 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 46.201

§ 46.201 Credit Card Agreement--Business Cardholder

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a credit card agreement used when the cardholder is a business entity.

Because a business credit card is not an extension of consumer credit, the fair credit billing provisions of the Truth in Lending Act are inapplicable to business credit cards transactions [American Express Co. v. Koerner (1981) 452 U.S. 233, 241-244, 101 S. Ct. 2281, 68 L. Ed. 2d 803 ; see 15 U.S.C. § 1603(1)]. Further, Regulation Z and the Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971 define "cardholder" to exclude business credit cards, except for purposes of specific provisions governing issuance and liability for unauthorized use [12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(8); Civ. Code § 1747.02(d); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(a) (issuance), (b) (liability for unauthorized use); Civ. Code §§ 1747.05 (issuance), 1747.10 (liability for unauthorized use); see also § 46.213 (liability)]. Thus, except as noted above, business and other commercial credit cards are not subject to the disclosure and notification requirements of consumer credit card accounts.

In addition, the following provisions of this form, ordinarily included in business credit card agreements, will not be found in consumer credit card agreements: (1) the cardholder's acceptance of the accuracy of all sales drafts, as in commercial accounts, if not contested within the billing cycle; (2) issuer's liability for a retailer's refusal to honor the card is expressly ruled out; and (3) the total unpaid balance at any time is automatically made due and payable with the occurrence of traditional types of commercial default.

[b] Issuance of Business Credit Card

A business credit card, like a consumer credit card, may not be issued except in response to an oral or written request or application or in renewal of, or substitution for, a previously accepted card [15 U.S.C. §§ 1642, 1645; Civ. Code §§ 1747.02(d), 1747.05]. For further discussion of issuance, see Section 46.41.

[c] Liability of Credit Card Holder and Employees

The provisions of the federal Truth in Lending Act (TILA) and the California Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971 governing liability for unauthorized use apply to all credit cards, including business credit cards [see 15 U.S.C. §§ 1643, 1645; 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.3 n.4, 226.12(b); Civ. Code §§ 1747.10, 1747.02(d)]. However, businesses that have been issued 10 or more credit cards for use by employees may agree to liability for unauthorized use without regard to the statutory rules, provided that any such agreement does not affect the statutory liability of individual employees [12 C.F.R. § 226.12(b)(5); Civ. Code § 1747.20].

Under TILA and the Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971, a cardholder is not liable for any unauthorized use of a credit card unless he or she received adequate notice of the maximum potential liability and of the means by which the card issuer may be notified if the card is lost or stolen [12 C.F.R. § 226.12(b)(2)(ii); Civ. Code § 1747.10(c), (d)]. "Adequate notice" means a printed notice to a cardholder that sets forth clearly the pertinent facts so that the cardholder may reasonably be expected to notice it and to understand its meaning [12 C.F.R. § 226.12(b)(2)(ii) n.23]. The notice may be given by any means that reasonably assures receipt by the cardholder [12 C.F.R. § 226.12(b)(2)(ii) n.23]. For cards issued to consumers, this notice is generally placed in the initial disclosure statement or on the periodic statements. Because business cardholders need not be provided with such disclosure statements, however, the notice must be furnished to the business in some other manner. The notice is commonly included in the Cardholder Agreement, but it may be given separately or with other information. For further discussion of liability for unauthorized use of a credit card, refer to Section 46.213.

Paragraph 9 of this form sets forth the cardholder's potential liability for unauthorized use of the card. This provision is adapted from a model form issued by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System for compliance with TILA provisions [see 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, app. G-2].

[2] FORM

Credit Card Agreement--Business Cardholder

CARDHOLDER AGREEMENT--BUSINESS

By accepting receipt of the [issuer] Card issued by [issuer] ("Issuer") for use by the person(s) or business entity named on the card, the [person or persons] to whom it was issued (collectively referred to as "Holder") jointly and severally [agrees or agree] as follows:

1. Holder will be bound by all of the terms and conditions contained (a) in this Agreement; (b) on the [issuer] Card; and (c) on all sales and cash advance drafts signed or authorized by Holder or signed by anyone else using the Card before its surrender or notification by Holder that it has been lost or stolen. Issuer may modify these terms and conditions at any time on mailing notice of the modification to Holder at address shown on Issuer's card records.

2. Holder will pay to Issuer within 25 days of the date of Issuer's statement to Holder, and at the place designated by Issuer, either (a) the entire amount then due to Issuer under the terms of this Agreement as shown in Issuer's statement; or (b) at Holder's election, an amount equal to [e.g., 4 1/2] percent of the unpaid balance, with a minimum payment of $[e.g., 10], payable before the next monthly statement date.

Issuer may charge (1) its regularly established cash advance fee for all cash advances made to Holder; and (2) a monthly service charge of [e.g., 1 1/2] percent on all amounts due to Issuer under any statement and not paid within 25 days, as described above.

3. Holder will effect no card purchase or cash advance transaction if, as a result, the aggregate outstanding balance of Holder's obligations to Issuer under all such transactions will exceed the credit limit that Issuer has established for Holder.

4. Holder will immediately, on receipt, examine each of Issuer's statements and each of the enclosed sales and cash advance drafts and credit memoranda. Within 25 days from the date of the statement, Holder will deliver to Issuer any draft or credit memorandum reflecting a transaction that Holder disputes, together with a written statement of the reasons for the dispute. Holder will be conclusively bound by all drafts and memoranda not so delivered to Issuer within that 25-day period; and Holder agrees to waive and release Issuer from all defenses, rights, and claims Holder may have against the merchant or other person honoring the Card.

5. Holder will notify Issuer promptly in writing of any loss or theft of the Card.

6. Neither Issuer or [card interchange association] will have any responsibility to Holder for the refusal of any person to recognize and honor the Card.

7. Issuer may at any time, without notice, cause, or liability to Holder, or in any way affecting Holder's obligations to Issuer, cancel all credit available to Holder, revoke the Card and refuse to make any further advances. Holder will surrender the Card on Issuer's demand.

8. In the event of (a) Holder's default in any payment when due; (b) Holder's death, bankruptcy, or insolvency; or (c) attachment or levy against Holder or Holder's property, then, on Issuer's election and without notice, the entire amount of Holder's obligations to Issuer under this Agreement will become immediately due and payable.

9. Except as otherwise stated in this paragraph, Holder will be liable for the unauthorized use of the Card issued pursuant to this Agreement. Holder will not be liable for unauthorized use that occurs after Holder notifies Issuer at _____ [address of bank] or at [telephone number], orally or in writing, of the loss or theft, or possible unauthorized use. In any case, Holder's liability will not exceed $50.

B. Consumer Credit Card and Retail Installment Accounts

20-46 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 46.210

§ 46.210 Consumer Credit Card Agreement

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a credit card agreement containing the basic rights and duties of the cardholder and card issuer. This type of agreement may be a separate document or may be combined with the initial disclosure statement required by the Truth in Lending Act [see 15 U.S.C. § 1637(a); 12 C.F.R. § 226.6; see also § 46.212]. Because this form does not contain the required initial disclosures, it can be used only in conjunction with an initial disclosure statement [see § 46.212].

This form incorporates a notice of cardholder liability for charges made on a lost or stolen card [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(b)]. For discussion of liability for unauthorized use, refer to Section 46.213. This form also incorporates the federal and state restrictions on termination of credit card accounts [see 12 C.F.R. § 202.7(c); Civ. Code § 1747.85; see also [b], below].

[b] Termination of Credit Card Accounts

Under federal law, a creditor does not have an unrestricted right to terminate a credit card or other open-end credit account. Unless there is some evidence of inability to repay, a creditor may not terminate an open-end account on the basis of the cardholder's age, retirement, change of marital status, or change of name [15 U.S.C. § 1691(a); 12 C.F.R. § 202.7(c)(1)]. A creditor also may not terminate an account prior to its expiration date solely because the consumer has not incurred finance charges on the account; however, a creditor may terminate an account for inactivity in three or more consecutive months [15 U.S.C. § 1637(h); see Pub. L. No. 109-8, § 1306(b)(2) (Apr. 20, 2005) (provision takes effect 12 months after publication of final regulations to implement it)]. Changing terms or requiring reapplication for these reasons is also generally prohibited [12 C.F.R. § 202.7(c)(1)(i), (ii)].

Under California law, a card issuer may not cancel a credit card account without first giving the cardholder 30 days' written notice, unless (1) the cardholder has been in default or otherwise in violation of the credit card agreement within the last 90 days, (2) the issuer has evidence or reasonably believes that the cardholder is unable or unwilling to repay the credit, or (3) the issuer has evidence or reasonably believes that an unauthorized use of the credit card may be made [Civ. Code § 1747.85].

Although federal law does not require prior notice of cancellation, the Equal Credit Opportunity Act [15 U.S.C. §§ 1691-1691f; 12 C.F.R. pt. 202] provides for written notice within 30 days after terminating or taking any adverse action against an existing consumer credit account [12 C.F.R. § 202.9(a)(1)(iii)]. The notice must contain either a statement of the specific reasons for the termination or change or notification of the right to such a statement, a statement of the action taken, the name and address of the creditor, as well as other notices required by law [12 C.F.R. § 202.9(a)(2); see also Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales].

[c] Cardholder's Rights to Assert Claims and Defenses Against Issuer

A credit card issuer's right to recover any credit extended through use of the card at a retail outlet may be subject to claims and defenses, other than tort claims, that the cardholder has against the retailer [15 U.S.C. § 1666i; 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(c)(1); Civ. Code § 1747.90(a)(1)]. The Truth in Lending Act requires that the cardholder be informed, before the first use of the credit card, of the right to assert such claims and defenses [15 U.S.C. § 1637(a)(7); 12 C.F.R. § 226.6(d)]. See § 46.232[1] for further discussion of this right. A sample disclosure statement informing the cardholder of its right to subject the card issuer to claims and defenses the cardholder has against a retailer is included in the initial disclosure form found in § 46.212 and is not repeated in this form.

In some cases in California, class action waivers in consumer contracts of adhesion [see Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Services, Inc. (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 83, 113, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 745, 6 P.3d 669 (definition)] are unenforceable, whether the consumer is being asked to waive the right to class-action litigation or the right to class-wide arbitration. When the waiver is found in a consumer contract of adhesion in a setting in which disputes between the contracting parties predictably involve small amounts of damages, and when it is alleged that the party with the superior bargaining power has carried out a scheme to deliberately cheat large numbers of consumers out of individually small sums of money, then, at least to the extent that the obligation at issue is governed by California law, the waiver becomes in practice what is prohibited by statute: the exemption of the stronger party from responsibility for its own fraud, or willful injury to the person or property of another [see Civ. Code § 1668]. Under these circumstances, such waivers are unconscionable under California law and will not be enforced [Discover Bank v. Superior Court (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 148, 162-163, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 76, 113 P.3d 1100 ; Szetela v. Discover Bank (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 1094, 1099-1102, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 862] .

Moreover, the Federal Arbitration Act [9 U.S.C. § 1 et seq.; see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration, § 32.24] does not preempt California law in this respect [Discover Bank v. Superior Court (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 148, 153, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 76, 113 P.3d 1100] .

[d] Offsets Against Consumer's Bank Account

In general, a card issuer may not take any action, either before or after the termination of credit card privileges, including the imposition of a "hold," to offset a cardholder's indebtedness on its credit card account against funds of the cardholder held on deposit with the issuer [15 U.S.C. § 1666h(a); 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(d)(1); 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, supp. I, § 226.12(d)(1) (Official Staff Interpretations)].

This limitation does not alter or affect the right of a card issuer to do any of the following with regard to funds of a cardholder held on deposit with the card issuer if the same procedure is constitutionally available to creditors generally [15 U.S.C. § 1666h(b); 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(d)(2)]:

- Obtain or enforce a consensual security interest;

- Attach or otherwise levy upon the funds; or
- Obtain or enforce a court order relating to the funds.

In addition, the credit plan may include a cardholder's written authorization for the issuer to periodically deduct all or part of the cardholder's debt from a deposit account held with the issuer, subject to suspension in the case of billing error inquiries [15 U.S.C. § 1666h(a); 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.12(d)(3), 226.13(d)(1)].

Even if deposit deductions are authorized, a consumer may have a right to prevent such deductions if the sums deposited would be exempt from attachment or execution [see Kruger v. Wells Fargo Bank (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 352, 367, 113 Cal. Rptr. 449, 521 P.2d 441] .

[e] Sale of Credit Disability Insurance

A retailer or credit card issuer may wish to protect its position through the use of credit disability insurance covering the debtor [see Civ. Code §§ 1812.400-1812.410]. A creditor who has sold, arranged for the sale, or received a commission for the sale of credit disability insurance to a debtor is precluded from collecting any credit balance until three calendar months after the first missed payment is due or the insurer pays or rejects the debtor's claim, whichever is first [Civ. Code § 1812.402(a); see Civ. Code §§ 1812.400, 1812.401(d), (e)]. Further, the creditor must disclose that fact to the debtor when the creditor sells the insurance to the debtor [Civ. Code § 1812.402(f)(1)]. The insurer must disclose the claim procedure to the debtor when it sends claims forms to the debtor [see Civ. Code § 1812.402(f)(2); see also McManis v. San Diego Postal Credit Union (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 547, 557-558, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617 (credit union failed to meet its burden on summary judgment to negate consumer's breach of contract claim because it did not establish compliance with Civ. Code § 1812.400 et seq., including Civ. Code § 1812.402(f), before repossession)]. For further discussion of the use of credit disability insurance, see § 46.80 and Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales .

Consumer Credit Card Agreement

CONSUMER CREDIT CARD AGREEMENT

By signing, using, or requesting the _____ [name of issuer] Card (the "Card") of [issuer] (the "Issuer"), the party to whom it was issued (the "Cardholder") agrees to the following terms:

Use

1. Cardholder is responsible for all credit extended by Issuer in connection with the Card (the "Credit") regardless of credit limits and the party using it; except that Cardholder is responsible for any unauthorized use of the Card only as described in Paragraph 2. Cardholder will not transfer the Card. In addition, Cardholder will not use it to obtain credit in excess of Cardholder's credit limit, or if Cardholder is or becomes in default under this Agreement, insolvent, bankrupt, or subject to any bankruptcy, debt adjustment, or moratorium proceeding.

Loss, Theft, or Unauthorized Use

2. Cardholder will promptly notify Issuer if the Card is lost or stolen. Cardholder will not be liable for unauthorized use that occurs after Cardholder notifies Issuer at _____ [address], or at [telephone number], orally or in writing, of the loss, theft, or unauthorized use of the Card. Moreover, Cardholder will not be responsible for any unauthorized use, before or after notification, if Cardholder notifies Issuer by a reasonable means and within a reasonable time after loss, theft, or unauthorized use of the card. In any case, Cardholder's liability will not exceed $50 or the amount of any unauthorized extension of credit, whichever is less.

Payment

3. Cardholder will pay Issuer, at the place or places designated by the Issuer, all drafts and obligations evidencing the Credit, and when applicable, all service charges, either:

(a) Within 25 days after Cardholder's current statement date as billed; or

(b) At Cardholder's election, in monthly installments with a service charge, as follows:

[E.g., 4 1/2 %] percent of the unpaid balance, with a minimum payment of $[e.g., 10], payable before the next monthly statement date and including a monthly service charge of $[e.g., 1 1/2 %] percent of the previous month's unpaid balance.

Termination of the Account

4. The Card is Issuer's property, and Cardholder will surrender it to Issuer on demand; Issuer may repossess it and terminate any commitment of Issuer under this Agreement, at any time, and without liability, for any reason not prohibited under state or federal law. If Cardholder is in default of payment, or in violation of any provision of this Agreement, Issuer may terminate the account without prior notice. If Issuer has reason to believe that Cardholder is unable or unwilling to repay the credit, the account may be terminated without prior notice. If there is an unauthorized use of the Card, the account will be immediately terminated. In all other cases, Issuer will give Cardholder 30 days' written notice of its intention to terminate the account. If the account is terminated or changed, with or without prior notice, Issuer will deliver to Cardholder a statement of reasons for the termination or change within 30 days after taking the action.

Default

5. On any default or failure to pay as agreed, Cardholder will pay Issuer its collection costs and a reasonable late charge, and attorney's fees, and, at Issuer's option and without notice, any indebtedness owing Issuer or claim against Cardholder will become immediately due and payable.

PART IV. FORMS

B. Consumer Credit Card and Retail Installment Accounts

20-46 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 46.211

§ 46.211 Retail Installment Account Agreement

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a retail installment account agreement. It sets forth the basic rights and duties of the buyer and the retailer. This agreement may be a separate document or may be part of the initial disclosure statement required by the Truth in Lending and the Unruh Acts [see 15 U.S.C. § 1637(a); 12 C.F.R. § 226.6; Civ. Code § 1810.1; see also § 46.212]. This form, which does not contain the required initial disclosures, can be used only in conjunction with a disclosure statement, such as the one illustrated in § 46.212.

[b] "Retail Installment Account" Defined

A "retail installment account" (also known as an "installment account" or a "revolving account") is an account established by an agreement entered into in California under which the buyer promises to pay, in installments, to a retail seller, the outstanding balance incurred in retail installment sales [Civ. Code § 1802.7]. A retail installment account agreement may provide for a security interest retained by the seller, and may provide for a finance charge that is expressed as a percent of the periodic balances that will accrue after the account is opened [Civ. Code § 1802.7].

[c] Charges Permitted by Unruh Act

[i] Finance Charges

The finance charge provided for in a retail installment account agreement may not be capitalized or stated as a dollar amount [Civ. Code § 1802.7]. Sellers and holders of retail installment accounts may charge and collect a finance charge as disclosed to the buyer in a statement of account [Civ. Code § 1810.2]. The finance charge must include all charges incident to investigating the applicant and opening the account [Civ. Code § 1810.4]. See § 46.46[1] for discussion of interest rate limitations.

[ii] Finance Charges on Undelivered Goods

A finance charge may be assessed against the outstanding balance for undelivered goods (1) from the date on which the goods are available for pickup by the buyer, and the buyer is notified of their availability, or (2) from the date of purchase, when the goods are delivered or available for pickup by the buyer within 10 days from the date of purchase [Civ. Code § 1810.10(a), (b)]. A finance charge on a home improvement contract may be assessed against the amount financed from the approximate date of commencement of the work [Civ. Code § 1810.10(a), (c)]. In any other case, notwithstanding any provision of the agreement to the contrary, a retailer may not assess a finance charge against the outstanding balance for goods until they are in the buyer's possession [Civ. Code § 1810.10(a)].

[iii] Attorneys' Fees

If a buyer agrees in writing and is given a copy of the agreement, a retail installment account agreement may provide for the payment of attorneys' fees and costs arising from any action to enforce the agreement [Civ. Code § 1810.4; see Civ. Code § 1811.1 (award of reasonable attorneys' fees to prevailing party)].

[iv] Credit Card Plan Membership Fee

When a credit card is issued in connection with a retail installment account, the seller or holder of the account may assess an annual membership fee, if so provided in the sales agreement or by proper notice to the buyer. That fee is not part of the finance charge [Civ. Code § 1810.4].

[v] Returned Check Fee

The retailer or the holder of a retail installment account may charge and collect a fee for returned checks, orders, or drafts. That fee is not part of the finance charge [Civ. Code § 1810.4].

[vi] Delinquency Charges

Notwithstanding the statutory prohibition against delinquency fees [see Civ. Code § 1810.4], a seller or holder of a retail installment account may require payment of a delinquency charge for each installment in default for a period of 10 days or more [Civ. Code § 1810.12]. If the delinquency charge has not been previously disclosed to the buyer in the terms of the retail installment account agreement, the seller or holder must provide written notice of the change to the buyer not less than 30 days before the effective date of the change or 30 days before the beginning of the billing cycle within which the change will become effective, whichever is earlier [Civ. Code § 1810.3(d)]. A delinquency charge may not be imposed for defaults of any payment due before the buyer has been given proper notice concerning the delinquency charge [Civ. Code § 1810.12; see Civ. Code § 1810.3(d)].

The delinquency charge may not exceed $10 for a period in default of not less than 10 days, or $15 for a period in default of not less than 15 days [Civ. Code § 1810.12(a)]. Only one delinquency charge may be collected on any installment regardless of the length of the default [Civ. Code § 1810.12(b)].

[vii] Collection Costs

The agreement may also provide for the payment of actual and reasonable costs of collection arising from the removal of the financed goods from the state without the written permission of the holder, the failure of the buyer to notify the holder of any change of residence, or the failure of the buyer to communicate with the holder for a period of 45 days after any default [Civ. Code § 1810.12(b)].

[d] Cost of Insurance

If the cost of any insurance is to be charged to the buyer, there must be an agreement to that effect, signed by both the buyer and the retailer. A copy of that agreement must be given to the buyer. The insurance agreement must state whether the insurance is to be obtained by the buyer or by the retailer or holder [Civ. Code § 1810.5].

If the insurance is to be obtained by the retailer or holder, the amount charged by the retailer or holder included in the agreement may not exceed the premiums charged by the insurer [Civ. Code § 1803.5(b)]. The retailer or holder must send the buyer a notice or copy of the insurance policy or certificate [Civ. Code § 1803.5(c)].

[e] Allocation of Payments for Goods Covered by Security Interest

If the retail installment account agreement provides for the retention of a security interest in the goods purchased by the buyer, specific rules apply to allocating payments in order to release the security interest in goods purchased on different dates [see Civ. Code § 1810.6]. The goods or services purchased first are deemed paid for first. If goods or services were purchased on the same date, the lowest priced will be deemed paid for first. However, any downpayment must be allocated in its entirety to the item for which it was made [Civ. Code § 1810.6].

[f] Buyer's Right of Action or Defense Against Seller

A retail installment account may not require or involve the execution of any note by the buyer that, when separately negotiated, will cut off as to third parties any right of action or defense the buyer may have against the seller [Civ. Code § 1810.7].

A provision to the effect that the buyer waives the right to class action litigation or the right to class-wide arbitration is unenforceable in California under some circumstances [see Discover Bank v. Superior Court (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 148, 162-163, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 76, 113 P.3d 1100]. For discussion, see § 46.210[1][c].

[g] Sale of Credit Disability Insurance

A retailer or credit card issuer may wish to protect its position through the use of credit disability insurance covering the debtor [see Civ. Code §§ 1812.400-1812.410]. A creditor may not invoke any creditor's remedy against a debtor because of the debtor's nonpayment of any sum that becomes due during a disability claim period, and for which credit disability insurance coverage is provided [Civ. Code § 1812.402(a); see Civ. Code § 1812.402(b) (procedure)]. However, a creditor may invoke remedies during or after the claim period for the debtor's nonpayment for any sum due before that claim period, including any interest, finance charge, or late charge accruing on that sum, whether or not the nonpayment is related to the debtor's claimed disability [Civ. Code § 1812.402(c)]. Further, a creditor may foreclose a lien on any property to protect that creditor's security interest if a senior lienholder on the property is foreclosing [Civ. Code § 1812.402(d)]. These limitations on a creditor's rights must be disclosed to the debtor by the creditor when the insurance is sold to the debtor [Civ. Code § 1812.402(f)(1)]. The insurer must also disclose the claim procedure to the debtor when it sends claims forms to the debtor [Civ. Code § 1812.402(f)(2); see also McManis v. San Diego Postal Credit Union (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 547, 557-558, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617 (credit union failed to meet its burden on summary judgment to negate consumer's breach of contract claim because it did not establish compliance with Civ. Code § 1812.400 et seq., including Civ. Code § 1812.402(f), before repossession)]. For a further discussion of credit disability insurance, see Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales.

[2] FORM

Retail Installment Account Agreement

RETAIL INSTALLMENT ACCOUNT AGREEMENT

All charges made on the account opened under this agreement in Buyer's name by _____ [name of retailer] ("Retailer") will be governed by the following terms. Buyer agrees to these terms by the use of that account:

1. To pay for all purchases charged to Buyer's account in accordance with the minimum monthly payment schedule and finance schedule in effect from time to time.

The current minimum monthly payment schedule for Retailer's regular retail account is as follows: [set forth payment schedule, e.g., $20 per month, plus 5 percent of the highest balance on Buyer's account in excess of $200 (rounded to the next dollar) until the balance is paid in full]. Buyer may pay the full balance at any time.

2. To pay finance charges at the end of any monthly billing cycle in which there is a balance carried forward from the previous month, unless payments and credits during the cycle equal or exceed that previous balance.

The FINANCE CHARGE, if any, is computed by applying to the Balance shown on Buyer's monthly statement periodic rates of [periodic rate, e.g., 1 percent], which are ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATES of [annual percentage rate, e.g., 12 percent], subject to a minimum charge of $[minimum charge, e.g., 1] per month. Refer to the Paragraph 3 for an explanation of how we determine the Balance shown on your monthly statement.

Buyer may avoid a finance charge on the account by paying the New Balance shown on Buyer's monthly statement before the next billing cycle closing date.

[Choose one of the following:]

[Use if adjusted balance method is used to compute finance charge:]

3. We figure [add if applicable: a portion of] the finance charge on your account by applying the periodic rate to the amount you owe at the beginning of each billing cycle. We do not subtract any payments or credits received during the billing cycle. The amount of payments and credits to your account this billing cycle was $_____.

[OR]

[Use if previous balance method is used to compute finance charge:]

3. We figure [add if applicable: a portion of] the finance charge on your account by applying the periodic rate to the amount you owe at the beginning of each billing cycle [add if applicable: minus any unpaid finance charges]. We do not subtract any payments or credits received during the billing cycle. [Add if applicable: The amount of payments and credits to your account this billing cycle was $_____.]

[OR]

[Use if average daily balance method (excluding current transactions) is used to compute finance charge:]

3. We figure [add if applicable: a portion of] the finance charge on your account by applying the periodic rate to the "average daily balance" of your account (excluding current transactions). To get the "average daily balance," we take the beginning balance of your account each day and subtract any payments or credits [add if applicable: and any unpaid finance charges]. We do not add in any new [purchases or advances or loans]. This gives us the daily balance. Then, we add all the daily balances of the billing cycle together and divide the total by number of days in the billing cycle. This gives us the "average daily balance."

[OR]

[Use if average daily balance method (including current transactions) is used to compute finance charge:]

3. We figure [add if applicable: a portion of] the finance charge on your account by applying the periodic rate to the "average daily balance" of your account (including current transactions). To get the "average daily balance," we take the beginning balance of your account each day, add any new [purchases or advances or loans] and subtract any payments or credits [add if applicable: and any unpaid finance charges]. This gives us the daily balance. Then, we add all the daily balances of the billing cycle together and divide the total by number of days in the billing cycle. This gives us the "average daily balance."

[OR]

[Use if ending balance method is used to compute finance charge:]

3. We figure [add if applicable: a portion of] the finance charge on your account by applying the periodic rate to the amount you owe at the end of each cycle (including new purchases and deducting payments and credits made during the billing cycle).

[Continue with the following:]

4. To pay the entire balance of Buyer's account in full on request if monthly payments become past due, and to pay reasonable attorney's fees if legal action is brought to recover any past due balance. Retailer retains a security interest in all goods purchased until those goods are paid for in full.

5. To pay Retailer a [add if desired: single] delinquency charge of $10 for each installment in default for a period in default of not less than 10 days, or a [add if desired: single] delinquency charge of $15 for each installment in default for a period in default of not less than 15 days, with a minimum charge of $1.

6. To pay Retailer the actual and reasonable costs of collection arising from the removal from California of the goods financed without the written permission of Retailer, the failure of Buyer to notify Retailer of any change of residence, or the failure of Buyer to communicate with Retailer for a period of 45 days after any default.

7. Retailer is authorized:

(a) To issue a credit card to Buyer that will remain the property of Retailer and be returned to Retailer on demand.

(b) To make such investigation of Buyer's credit record as it may consider necessary.

(c) To establish in its sole discretion a maximum amount of credit that may be extended on Buyer's account.

(d) To furnish information concerning Buyer's account to consumer credit reporting agencies and others having a legitimate need for that information.

8. Retailer may at any time limit or terminate Buyer's charge privileges or amend this Agreement, subject to the provisions of applicable laws.

NOTICE:

Any holder of this consumer credit agreement is subject to all claims and defenses which the debtor could assert against the seller of goods or services obtained under this Agreement. Recovery by the debtor under this Agreement shall not exceed amounts paid by the debtor under this Agreement.

PART IV. FORMS

B. Consumer Credit Card and Retail Installment Accounts

20-46 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 46.212

§ 46.212 Initial Disclosure Statement; Notices of Rights to Dispute Billing Errors and to Assert Claims or Defenses

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a statement of the initial disclosures that must be furnished to a consumer on an open-end credit plan and an open-end consumer credit plan subject to the federal Truth in Lending Act [15 U.S.C. §§ 1601-1667e] or the California Unruh Act [Civ. Code §§ 1801-1812.20; see 15 U.S.C. § 1637(a); 12 C.F.R. § 226.6; Civ. Code § 1810.1]. An open-end credit plan and an open-end consumer credit plan (also known as "revolving credit") are plans under which (1) the creditor reasonably contemplates repeated transactions, (2) a finance charge may be imposed from time to time on any outstanding unpaid balance, and (3) further credit is generally made available to the consumer to the extent that any outstanding balance is repaid [15 U.S.C. § 1602(i); 12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(20); see Civ. Code § 1802.7].

Federal disclosure requirements apply to open-end credit extended (1) by either a credit card issuer or a person who regularly extends credit that is subject to a finance charge or is payable by written agreement in more than four installments; (2) to a natural person; and (3) primarily for personal, family, or household purposes [15 U.S.C. §§ 1637(a), 1602(f), (h), (i); 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.6, 226.2(a)(11), (12), (17); see American Express Co. v. Koerner (1981) 452 U.S. 233, 241-244, 101 S. Ct. 2281, 68 L. Ed. 2d 803 (fair credit billing provisions of Truth in Lending Act inapplicable to transactions on business credit cards)].

If the account is one provided by a retailer of goods or services to finance purchases from the retailer and involves a finance charge computed on the basis of a periodic rate, the California Unruh Act provisions apply as well [Civ. Code §§ 1810.1, 1802.7; see 15 U.S.C. § 1610(a)(1); 12 C.F.R. § 226.28(a)(1)]. This form is adapted from model clauses issued by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System [see 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, app. G].

The creditor must furnish the initial disclosure statement before the first transaction [15 U.S.C. § 1637(a); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5(b)(1); Civ. Code § 1810.1]. If the account is a retail installment account subject to the Unruh Act, the buyer is obligated to pay only the cash price of the goods or services purchased until the seller delivers this initial disclosure statement [Civ. Code § 1810.1].

Certain disclosures must be made in issuer- initiated applications or solicitations to open credit or charge card accounts [see 15 U.S.C. § 1637(c); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a]. For discussion of these disclosures and a form containing the required disclosures, see § 46.214.

[b] Form of Disclosures

The required disclosures must be made clearly and conspicuously in writing, in a form the consumer may keep [12 C.F.R. § 226.5(a)(1); Civ. Code § 1810.1]. The terminology must be consistent with the terms used in the periodic statements, and the terms "finance charge" and "annual percentage rate," when disclosed with a corresponding figure, must be printed more conspicuously than the other required disclosures [12 C.F.R. §§ 226.5(a)(2), 226.6; Civ. Code § 1810.1]. California law requires that all disclosures be contained in a single statement [Civ. Code § 1810.1].

The federal requirements that the disclosures be made clearly and conspicuously in writing have been very strictly construed. The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals has held that the Truth in Lending Act was violated when the terms "finance charge" and "annual percentage rate" were printed in boldface type in upper and lower case letters of approximately the same size as other items printed in an agreement, while other headings on the same page were also in boldface type. A violation was found because the key terms were not more conspicuous than the other disclosures in the agreement [Dixey v. Idaho First Nat. Bank (9th Cir. [Idaho] 1982) 677 F.2d 749, 751-752]. The court further held that this violation was not de minimis and warranted imposition of statutory penalties [Dixey v. Idaho First Nat. Bank (9th Cir. [Idaho] 1982) 677 F.2d 749, 751-752].

Disclosure documents may be delivered electronically [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.5(a)(1); [h], below]. In addition, required disclosures may be made in a language other than English, provided that the disclosures are made available in English on the consumer's request [12 C.F.R. § 226.27]. This requirement for providing English disclosures on request does not apply to catalogs and other multiple page advertisements or electronic advertisements subject to 12 C.F.R. § 226.16 (governing advertisements for open end credit plans) and 12 C.F.R. § 226.24 (governing advertisements for closed-end credit) [12 C.F.R. § 226.27].

There is no requirement under either the Truth in Lending Act or the Unruh Act that the required disclosures be segregated from other material. The disclosures may appear in the credit contract itself, in promotional material, or in any other document the consumer may keep, as long as they are "clear and conspicuous" [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.5(a)].

[c] Required Disclosures

The disclosures enumerated below are required by the Truth in Lending Act [see 12 C.F.R. pt. 226] and also by the Unruh Act, if the account is provided by a retailer of goods or services for its customer [see Civ. Code § 1802.7]. In addition, the Unruh Act imposes additional disclosure requirements; since these disclosure requirements do not conflict with Truth in Lending provisions, they are not preempted by the federal act [see 15 U.S.C. § 1610(a)(1); 12 C.F.R. § 226.28(a)(1)].

To the extent each is applicable to the particular plan, the disclosure statement must include the following:

1. Finance Charge. The finance charge is the cost of credit as a dollar amount. It includes any charge imposed directly or indirectly incident to the extension of credit [15 U.S.C. § 1605(a); 12 C.F.R. § 226.4(a)]. For a detailed discussion of the meaning of "finance charge," see Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales. The creditor must explain the circumstances under which a finance charge will be imposed and how it will be determined, including [15 U.S.C. § 1637(a)(1)-(4); 12 C.F.R. § 226.6(a)(1)-(4); Civ. Code § 1810.1(a)-(d)]:

- When finance charges begin to accrue and whether or not there is a period within which credit extended may be repaid without incurring a finance charge;
- Each periodic rate that may be used to compute the finance charge, the range of balances to which it is applicable, the corresponding annual percentage rate, and, if different periodic rates apply to different types of transactions, the types of transactions to which the rates apply;
- The method used to determine the balance on which the finance charge may be computed; and
- A description of how the amount of any finance charge will be determined, including how any finance charge other than the periodic rate will be determined. See § 46.46 for discussion of finance charge restrictions in a retail installment account.

The reference to a periodic rate that "may be" used to compute the finance charge means a rate that the creditor is permitted to use under the credit agreement. In other words, "may" in 12 C.F.R. § 226.6(a)(2) connotes contractual entitlement, not mere possibility. Therefore, a creditor does not violate that disclosure requirement unless the creditor omits to disclose, in the credit agreement, any periodic rate that the agreement permits the creditor to use. The required disclosure can be adequately made by the usual change-in-terms provision (which reserves to the creditor a right to change periodic rates, among other terms, without any limitation on why the creditor could make such a change), provided the change-in-terms provision meets the "clear and conspicuous" test of 12 C.F.R. § 226.5(a)(1) [Barrer v. Chase Bank U.S. (9th Cir. 2009) 566 F.3d 883, 2009 U.S. App. LEXIS 10913, at *16-*18, *21-*22 (change-in-terms provision was not clear and conspicuous when it appeared "five dense pages after the disclosure of the APR ... buried too deeply in the fine print for a reasonable cardholder to realize that, in addition to the specific grounds for increasing the APR listed in the 'Finance Charges' section, [the creditor] could raise the APR for other reasons")].

2. Other Charges. The creditor must disclose the amount of any charge other than a finance charge that may be imposed as part of the plan, or provide an explanation of how the charge will be determined [15 U.S.C. § 1637(a)(5); 12 C.F.R. § 226.6(b); see Civ. Code § 1810.1(e)]. Such charges include late payment and over-the-credit-limit charges, among others [see JRS Products, Inc. v. Matsushita Electric Corporation of America (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 168, 178, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 840 (repurchase of inventory is not exclusive remedy for wrongful termination of franchise pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 20035); see also discussion below]. The Unruh Act provides that the finance charge for retail installment accounts may include charges for investigating and making the contract and extending credit [Civ. Code § 1810.4]. However, the Unruh Act prohibits the imposition of any fee, expense, or other charge other than those specifically permitted [Civ. Code § 1810.4]. The seller may charge an annual membership fee if the retail installment account utilizes credit cards, and may impose a fee for returned checks [Civ. Code § 1810.4]. Any such additional charges must be disclosed to the buyer in the initial disclosure statement [Civ. Code § 1810.1(e)].

3. Security Interests. The creditor must disclose the fact that the creditor has or will acquire a security interest in the property purchased under the plan or in other property identified by item or type [15 U.S.C. § 1637(a)(6); 12 C.F.R. § 226.6(c)]. For an account maintained for a customer by a seller of goods or services, the creditor must also state the conditions under which the creditor may retain or acquire such a security interest and provide a description or identification of the type of the interest [Civ. Code § 1810.1(f)].

4. Statement of Billing Rights. The creditor must provide a statement that outlines the consumer's rights and the creditor's responsibilities in billing error resolution [15 U.S.C. § 1637(a)(7); 12 C.F.R. § 226.6(d); see 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.12(c) (cardholder's claims and defenses against issuer), 226.13 (billing error resolution)]. This statement must be substantially similar to a model statement provided by the Federal Reserve Board [12 C.F.R. § 226.6(d); see 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, app. G-3]. See § 46.233 for further discussion of billing error resolution.

5. Minimum Periodic Payment. This state-imposed requirement applies only to accounts issued by a retail supplier of goods or services for its own customers and requires the creditor to disclose the minimum periodic payment required [Civ. Code § 1810.1(g); see Civ. Code § 1802.7].

[d] Method of Computation

Both the Truth in Lending Act and the Unruh Act require disclosure of the methods used to compute the finance charge and the balance to which the finance charge is applicable [12 C.F.R. § 226.6(a)(3), (4); Civ. Code §§ 1810.1(b), (c)]. This form contains provisions explaining the four balance computation methods: (1) the adjusted balance method, (2) the previous balance method, (3) the average daily balance method (excluding current transactions), and (4) the average daily balance method (including current transactions) [see 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, app. G-1]. The form's clauses are based on the four model computation clauses issued by the Federal Reserve Board in Form G-1 of Appendix G of Regulation Z [see 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, app. G-1].

[e] Right to Rescind Transaction Creating Lien on Dwelling

If any open-end credit transaction involves the creditor's acquisition of a security interest in a consumer's principal dwelling, each consumer with an interest in the dwelling has a right to rescind the transaction, unless the transaction finances acquisition of the dwelling [15 U.S.C. § 1635(a), (e)(1); 12 C.F.R. § 226.23(a), (f)(1)]. Each affected consumer also has the right to rescind each addition to the security under the plan and any increase in the credit limit [12 C.F.R. § 226.15(a)(1)(i); see 15 U.S.C. § 1635(a)].

The consumer may rescind the transaction until midnight of the third business day following consummation, delivery of a required notice of rescission rights, or delivery of all material Truth in Lending disclosures, whichever occurs last [12 C.F.R. § 226.23(a)(3)].

The failure of a creditor to properly complete the rescission disclosure form [15 U.S.C. § 1635(a); 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.15(b), 226.23(b)], including the failure to fill in the expiration date of the right to rescind, automatically violates the Truth in Lending Act and extends the rescission period until three days after the disclosures are correctly made. A disclosure statement that does not adequately disclose the extent of the security interest also violates the Act [Williamson v. Lafferty (5th Cir. [Miss.] 1983) 698 F.2d 767, 768-769].

A borrower's right of rescission expires three years after the date of consummation of the transaction or on the sale of the property, whichever occurs first, even if the required disclosures have never been made [15 U.S.C. § 1635(f)]. The United States Supreme Court has held that a borrower may not assert the right to rescind as an affirmative defense in a collection action brought by the lender more than three years after the consummation of the transaction. Because 15 U.S.C. § 1635(f) completely extinguishes the right of rescission at the end of the three-year period, it is not a statute of limitations and the mortgagors cannot assert the right to rescind as a recoupment defense beyond the expiration period [Beach v. Ocwen Federal Bank (1998) 523 U.S. 410, 414, 118 S. Ct. 1408, 140 L. Ed. 2d 566]. See Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans, for a sample disclosure statement and further discussion of the right to rescind.

[f] Notice of Liability for Unauthorized Use

If a credit card issuer intends to hold cardholders responsible for unauthorized charges made before notification of loss or theft of the card, the card issuer must give adequate notice to the cardholder before its attempt to impose liability of the maximum potential liability and of the means to notify the issuer of the loss or theft of the card [15 U.S.C. § 1643(a)(1)(C)-(E); 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(b)(2)(ii); Civ. Code § 1747.10(c)-(e)]. Notice must be given before the attempt to impose liability on the cardholder and may be included as part of the initial disclosure statement [see 15 U.S.C. § 1643(a)(1)(C); 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(b)(2)(ii); Civ. Code § 1747.10(c), (d)]. See § 46.213 for further discussion and a model form, if such a notice is to be included in the initial disclosure statement.

[g] Subsequent Disclosures

If an issuer modifies an open-end credit plan by providing additional features, supplying a new credit device (other than a replacement card), or changing the plan's terms, it must provide additional disclosures [12 C.F.R. § 226.9(b), (c); Civ. Code § 1810.3(d); see, e.g., DeMando v. Morris, 206 F.3d 1300, 1303 (issuer's notice of rate increase to credit card customer violated 12 C.F.R. § 226.5(c), which requires that all disclosures issued in conjunction with open-ended credit arrangements reflect terms of legal obligation of the parties)]. See § 46.140 for discussion of these required disclosures.

[h] Electronic Disclosures

The open-end credit disclosures required under Regulation Z may be provided to the consumer in electronic form, subject to compliance with the consumer consent and other applicable provisions of the Electronic Signatures in Global and National Commerce Act (E-Sign Act) (15 U.S.C. § 7001 et seq.). The disclosures required by 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a (credit and charge card applications and solicitations), 12 C.F.R. § 226.5b (home equity plans), and 12 C.F.R. § 226.16 (open-end credit advertising) may be provided to the consumer in electronic form without regard to the consumer consent or other provisions of the E-Sign Act in the circumstances, as specified [12 C.F.R. § 226.5(a)(1)].

INITIAL DISCLOSURE STATEMENT

1. During any monthly billing period, no finance charge will be imposed if you pay the full "New Balance" within 25 days after the "Closing Date" as shown on the statement for that period. Otherwise, finance charges accrue from the date we post each new transaction to your account.
2. If you choose to pay less than the full New Balance, a FINANCE CHARGE will be included on your next monthly statement.

[Choose one of the following:]

[Use if adjusted balance method is used to compute finance charge:]

We figure [add if applicable: a portion of] the finance charge on your account by applying the periodic rate to the amount you owe at the beginning of each billing cycle. We do not subtract any payments or credits received during the billing cycle. The amount of payments and credits to your account this billing cycle was $_____.

[OR]

[Use if previous balance method is used to compute finance charge:]

We figure [add if applicable: a portion of] the finance charge on your account by applying the periodic rate to the amount you owe at the beginning of each billing cycle [add if applicable: minus any unpaid finance charges]. We do not subtract any payments or credits received during the billing cycle. [Add if applicable: The amount of payments and credits to your account this billing cycle was $_____.]

[OR]

[Use if average daily balance method (excluding current transactions) is used to compute finance charge:]

We figure [add if applicable: a portion of] the finance charge on your account by applying the periodic rate to the "average daily balance" of your account (excluding current transactions). To get the "average daily balance," we take the beginning balance of your account each day and subtract any payments or credits [add if applicable: and any unpaid finance charges]. We do not add in any new [purchases advances loans]. This gives us the daily balance. Then, we add all the daily balances of the billing cycle together and divide the total by number of days in the billing cycle. This gives us the "average daily balance."

[OR]

[Use if average daily balance method (including current transactions) is used to compute finance charge:]

YOUR BILLING RIGHTS

KEEP THIS NOTICE FOR FUTURE USE

This notice contains important information about your rights and our responsibilities under the Fair Credit Billing Act.

Notify Us in Case of Errors or Questions About Your Bill

If you think your bill is wrong, or if you need more information about a transaction on your bill, write us [add if applicable: on a separate sheet] at _____ [insert address or the address shown on your bill] as soon as possible. We must hear from you no later than 60 days after we sent you the first bill on which the error or problem appeared. You can telephone us, but doing so will not preserve your rights.

In your letter, give us the following information:

--Your name and account number.

--The dollar amount of the suspected error.

--Describe the error and explain, if you can, why you believe there is an error. If you need more information, describe the item you are not sure about.

If you have authorized us to pay your credit card bill automatically from your savings or checking account, you can stop the payment on any amount you think is wrong. To stop the payment, your letter must reach us three business days before automatic payment is scheduled to occur.

Your Rights and Our Responsibilities After We Receive Your Written Notice

We must acknowledge your letter within 30 days, unless we have corrected the error by then. Within 90 days, we must either correct the error or explain why we believe the bill was correct.

After we receive your letter, we cannot try to collect any amount you question, or report you as delinquent. We can continue to bill you for the amount you question, including finance charges, and we can apply any unpaid amount against your credit limit. You do not have to pay any questioned amount while we are investigating, but you are still obligated to pay the parts of your bill that are not in question.

If we find that we made a mistake on your bill, you will not have to pay any finance charges related to any questioned amount. If we did not make a mistake, you may have to pay finance charges, and you will have to make up any missed payments on the questioned amount. In either case, we will send you a statement of the amount you owe and the date that it is due.

If you fail to pay the amount that we think you owe, we may report you as delinquent. However, if our explanation does not satisfy you and you write to us within ten days telling us that you still refuse to pay, we must tell anyone we report you to that you have a question about your bill. And we must tell you the name of anyone we reported you to. We must tell anyone we report you to that the matter has been settled between us when it finally is.

If we don't follow these rules, we cannot collect the first $50 of the questioned amount, even if your bill was correct.

[Add if a credit card or similar device is provided with the account:]

Special Rule for Credit Card Purchases

If you have a problem with the quality of property or services that you purchased with a credit card, and you have tried in good faith to correct the problem with the merchant, you may have a federally protected right not to pay the remaining amount due on the property or services.

There are two limitations on this right:

- (a) You must have made the purchase in your home state or, if not within your home state, within 100 miles of your current mailing address; and
- (b) The purchase price must have been more than $50.

These limitations do not apply if we own or operate the merchant or if we mailed you the advertisement for the property or services.

20-46 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 46.213

§ 46.213 Notice to Cardholder of Potential Liability for Unauthorized Use of Credit Card

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a model disclosure statement issued by the Federal Reserve Board explaining the cardholder's liability for unauthorized use of a credit card [see 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, app. G-2]. The credit card issuer must provide the cardholder with this notice in order to impose any liability for unauthorized use [15 U.S.C. § 1643(a)(1)(C), (D); 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(b)(2)(ii); Civ. Code § 1747.10(c), (d)].

[b] Method of Disclosure

This disclosure may be made in any manner as long as the cardholder might be reasonably expected to notice it and understand its meaning [12 C.F.R. § 226.12(b)(2) n.23]. For example, it may be made on periodic statements, or with the initial disclosure statement. This disclosure may be made at any time before the unauthorized use of the card [see 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, supp. I, § 226.12(b)(2)(ii) (Official Staff Interpretations)]. Use of this model form, even if minor changes are made, automatically complies with the Truth in Lending Act and Regulation Z [15 U.S.C. § 1604(b); see 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, supp. I, apps. G, H (Official Staff Interpretations)].

[c] Liability for Unauthorized Use

[i] In General

The Truth in Lending Act [15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.] and the Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971 [Civ. Code § 1747 et seq.] contain identical provisions governing the cardholder's liability for unauthorized use. These provisions apply to all credit cards, not just to those issued for consumer credit purposes [12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(8); Civ. Code § 1747.02(d)], although businesses that have been issued 10 or more credit cards for use by employees may agree to liability for unauthorized use without regard to the statutory rules, provided that any such agreement does not affect the statutory liability of individual employees [12 C.F.R. § 226.12(b)(5); Civ. Code § 1747.20].

[ii] Definition of "Unauthorized Use"

"Unauthorized use" is the use of a credit card by a person other than the cardholder who does not have actual, implied, or apparent authority for the use, and from which the cardholder receives no benefit [15 U.S.C. § 1602(o); 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(b)(1) n.22; Civ. Code § 1747.02(f)]. The Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971 specifies that "unauthorized use" does not include use of a credit card by a person who has been given authority by the cardholder to use the card, before the time the cardholder complies with the card issuer's procedures for terminating such authority [Civ. Code § 1747.02(f)].

[iii] Conditions and Extent of Liability

A cardholder's maximum liability for unauthorized use (including a series of unauthorized uses) is limited to the lesser of $50 or the amount of property, money, labor, or services obtained by the unauthorized use before the card issuer is notified of the loss, theft, or possible unauthorized use of the card [15 U.S.C. § 1643(a)(1)(B), (E); 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(b)(1); Civ. Code § 1747.10(b), (e); see 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, supp. I, § 226.12(b)(1) (Official Staff Interpretations)]. For a notice of loss or theft that a cardholder can send to a card issuer, see § 46.234.

Liability may be imposed on the cardholder only if certain conditions are met. The card must be an "accepted credit card," one the cardholder has requested and received or has signed, used, or authorized another to use [15 U.S.C. §§ 1602(l), 1643(a)(1)(A); 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(a)(2) n.21, (b)(2)(i); Civ. Code §§ 1747.02(b), 1747.10(a)]. The card issuer must provide adequate notice to the cardholder of the maximum potential liability and of the means by which the issuer may be notified of the loss or theft of the card [15 U.S.C. § 1643(a)(1)(C), (D); 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(b)(2)(ii); Civ. Code § 1747.10(c), (d)]. Finally, the card issuer must provide a method to identify the cardholder or authorized user of the card [15 U.S.C. § 1643(a)(1)(F); 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(b)(2)(iii); Civ. Code § 1747.10(f)]. Methods used to identify the cardholder or authorized user may consist of a signature, photograph, or fingerprint on the card, or some electronic or mechanical means of identification [see 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, supp. I, § 226.12(b)(2)(iii) (Official Staff Interpretations)].

[2] FORMNotice to Cardholder of Potential Liability for Unauthorized Use of Credit Card

You may be liable for the unauthorized use of your credit card [or other term that describes the credit card]. You will not be liable for unauthorized use that occurs after you notify [name of card issuer or its designee] at _____ [address and telephone number], orally or in writing, of the loss, theft, or possible unauthorized use. In any case liability, your liability will not exceed [insert $50 or any lesser amount under agreement with the cardholder].

20-46 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 46.214

§ 46.214 Solicitation and Application Disclosure Statement

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a statement of the disclosures required on or with issuer-initiated applications and solicitations to open credit card or charge card accounts [see 15 U.S.C. § 1637(c); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a; see also [e], below (charge cards)]. These disclosures, which may be made orally or in writing, must be made when the issuer solicits the consumer's application [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a]. The form of disclosure is determined by the manner in which the solicitation or application is delivered to the consumer [see 15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(1)-(4); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(a)(2), (c), (d)]. Refer to [d], below, for discussion of methods of disclosure. The disclosures may be incorporated into the application or solicitation, or may supplement them [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(a)(2)(i)].

This form is based on the model clauses promulgated by the Federal Reserve Board [12 C.F.R. pt. 226, apps. G-10A-G-12]. Proper use of the model forms is deemed to be in compliance with applicable requirements of the Truth in Lending Act [see 15 U.S.C. § 1604(b)].

For a form for a consumer credit card agreement, see § 46.210. For a form illustrating the initial disclosures required to be made to a cardholder before the first use of an issued card, see § 46.212.

[b] Types of Solicitations and Applications Subject to Disclosure Requirements

Solicitations may take the form of direct mailings, telephone applications and solicitations, and "take one" forms and other applications and solicitations made available to the general public [see 54 Fed. Reg. 13855, 13856 (1989)].

A "solicitation" is an offer by the card issuer to open a credit or charge card account that does not require the consumer to complete an application [12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(a)(1)]. Solicitations qualifying under this definition are otherwise known as "preapproved" solicitations [54 Fed. Reg. 13855, 13857 (1989)].

The disclosure requirements for credit card applications and solicitations do not apply to (1) home equity plans accessible by a charge or credit card that are subject to the disclosure requirements of 12 C.F.R. § 226.5b [see Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans], (2) overdraft lines of credit tied to asset accounts accessed by check guarantee cards or by debit cards, or (3) lines of credit accessed by check guarantee cards or by debit cards that can be used only at automated teller machines [12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(a)(3)].

[c] Required Disclosures

A card issuer must disclose specified information on or with the application or solicitation, as appropriate [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(b)]. Except as otherwise indicated, the following information must be provided [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(1), (4); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(b)(1)-(10)]:

- (1) The annual percentage rate, including, if applicable, the fact that the card has a variable rate and how the variable rate is determined [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(1)(A)(i); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(b)(1); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.14(b) (annual percentage rate determined)]. Charge card, as opposed to credit card, account solicitations or applications need not make this disclosure [12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(b); see also 15 U.S.C. § 1602(k) "credit card" defined]; 12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(15) ("charge card" defined)].
- (2) Any fees for issuance or availability of a credit or charge card [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(1)(A)(ii)(I), (4)(A)(i); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(b)(2)].
- (3) Any minimum finance charges [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(1)(A)(ii)(II); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(b)(3)]. Charge card account solicitations or applications are excluded from this disclosure requirement [12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(b)].
- (4) Any transaction charges imposed for the use of the card for purchases [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(1)(A)(ii)(III), (4)(A)(ii); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(b)(4)].
- (5) The date by which or the period within which any extended credit may be paid without incurring a finance charge ("grace period"). If no grace period is provided, that fact must be disclosed [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(1)(A)(ii)(I); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(b)(5)]. Charge card account solicitations or applications are exempt from this requirement [12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(b)].
- (6) The name of the balance computation method, as provided by statute [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(1)(A)(iv)(II); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(b)(6); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(g) (balance computation methods described)]. Charge card account solicitations or applications are exempt from this requirement [12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(b)].
- (7) A statement that charge card balances are due when the periodic statement is received [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(4)(A)(iii); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(b)(7)].
- (8) Any fee imposed for cash advances [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(1)(B)(i), (4)(B)(i); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(b)(8)].
- (9) Any fee imposed for late payments [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(1)(B)(ii), (4)(B)(ii); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(b)(9)].
- (10) Any fee imposed for exceeding a credit limit [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(1)(B)(iii), (4)(B)(iii); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(b)(10)].

The information to be disclosed under Items 1-7, above, must be provided in a prominent location on or with the application or solicitation, or other applicable document, and in the form of a table with headings, content and format substantially similar to the model clauses issued by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System [15 U.S.C. § 1632(c)(1); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(a)(2)(i); see 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, apps. G-10A-G-11].

The disclosures in Items 8-10, above, must be provided either in the table containing the disclosures in Items 1-7, or clearly and conspicuously elsewhere on the application or solicitation [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(1)(B), (4)(B); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(a)(2)(ii)]. See [2], below, for text of the Federal Reserve Board's model clauses.

An application or solicitation to open a credit card account and all promotional materials accompanying the application or solicitation for which a disclosure is required under 15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(1) (discussed above), and that offers a temporary annual percentage rate of interest, must use the term "introductory" in immediate proximity to each listing of the temporary annual percentage rate applicable to that account, and the term must appear clearly and conspicuously [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(6)(A)(i); see Pub. L. No. 109-8, § 1303(b)(2) (Apr. 20, 2005) (requirement takes effect either on April 20, 2006 or 12 months after publication of final regulations to implement it, whichever is later); see also 15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(6)(D) (definitions of temporary annual percentage rate of interest, temporary annual percentage rate, and introductory period)].

- If the annual percentage rate of interest that will apply after the end of the temporary rate period will be a fixed rate, the application or solicitation and accompanying materials must state in a clear and conspicuous manner, in a prominent location closely proximate to the first listing of the temporary annual percentage rate (other than a listing of the temporary annual percentage rate in tabular format), the time period in which the introductory period will end and the annual percentage rate that will apply after the end of the introductory period [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(6)(A)(ii)].

- If the annual percentage rate that will apply after the end of the temporary rate period will vary in accordance with an index, then the required information is the time period in which the introductory period will end and the rate that will apply after that, based on an annual percentage rate that was in effect within 60 days before the date of mailing the application or solicitation [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(6)(A)(iii)].

An application or solicitation to open a credit card account for which a disclosure is required under 15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(1) and that offers a temporary annual percentage rate of interest, if that rate of interest is revocable under any circumstance or on any event, must clearly and conspicuously disclose, in a prominent manner on or with the application or solicitation, a general description of the circumstances that may result in the revocation of the temporary annual percentage rate. If the annual percentage rate that will apply on the revocation of the temporary annual percentage rate will be a fixed rate, the disclosure must include the annual percentage rate that will apply on the revocation of the temporary annual percentage rate. If the annual percentage rate that will apply on the revocation of the temporary annual percentage rate will vary in accordance with an index, the disclosure must include the rate that will apply after the temporary rate, based on an annual percentage rate that was in effect within 60 days before the date of mailing the application or solicitation [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(6)(C); see Pub. L. No. 109-8, § 1303(b)(2) (Apr. 20, 2005) (requirement takes effect 12 months after publication of final regulations to implement it)].

In any solicitation to open a credit card account for any person under an open end consumer credit plan using the internet or other interactive computer service, the person making the solicitation must clearly and conspicuously disclose the information described in 15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(1)(A) and (B), above, and the information described in 15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(6), above [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(7)(A); see Pub. L. No. 109-8, § 1304(b)(2) (Apr. 20, 2005) (requirement takes effect 12 months after publication of final regulations to implement it); see also 15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(7)(C) (definitions of internet and interactive computer service)]. The disclosures must be readily accessible to consumers, in close proximity to the solicitation to open a credit card account, and must be updated regularly to reflect the current policies, terms, and fee amounts applicable to the credit card account [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(7)(B)].

[d] Method of Disclosure

[i] Direct Mail Applications and Solicitations

The card issuer must disclose the applicable items of information on or with an application or solicitation that is mailed to consumers or provided by electronic communication [15 U.S.C. § 1632(c)(1); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(c); see [c], above].

Under the Aerias-Robbins Credit Card Full Disclosure Act of 1986 [Civ. Code §§ 1748.10-1748.14], any application form or preapproved written solicitation for an open-end credit card account to be used for personal, family, or household purposes that is mailed to a California consumer (other than through newspapers, magazines, or similar publications distributed by someone other than the creditor), by or on behalf of a creditor, must contain or be accompanied by specified disclosures [Civ. Code § 1748.11(a); see Civ. Code § 1748.11(g)-(i) (exceptions)]. Alternatively, an application may contain a specified statement regarding the availability of disclosures in lieu of the actual disclosures [Civ. Code § 1748.11(g)]. The issuer may either comply with the initial disclosure requirements of Regulation Z [Civ. Code § 1748.11(a)(2); see Civ. Code § 1748.11(e); see also 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(b)(1)-(10) (required disclosures)], or with similar disclosures specified by the California statute [Civ. Code § 1748.11(a)(1)(A)-(D); see § 46.40[2]].

In addition, a credit card issuer that extends credit to a cardholder through the use of a preprinted check or draft must disclose all of the following information in clear and conspicuous language [Civ. Code § 1748.9]:

- That "use of the check or draft constitutes a charge against your account."
- The annual percentage rate and calculation of finance charges associated with the use of the attached check or draft [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.16 (required disclosures)].
- Whether the finance charges are triggered immediately on the use of the check or draft.

This disclosure must be on the front of an attachment affixed by perforation or other means to the preprinted check or draft [Civ. Code § 1748.9].

Waiver of any of these provisions is against public policy and is unenforceable [see Civ. Code § 1748.14].

The Ninth Circuit holds that the National Bank Act [12 U.S.C. § 21 et seq.] preempts the disclosure requirements of Civ. Code § 1748.9, insofar as those requirements apply to national banks [Rose v. Chase Bank USA (9th Cir. 2008) 513 F.3d 1032, 1038] .

[ii] Telephone Applications and Solicitations

In any telephone application or solicitation, the card issuer must orally disclose all of the applicable disclosures, except those relating to cash advance, late payment, or over-the-credit-limit fees [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(2)(A); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(d)(2); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(b)(1)-(7) (required disclosures)].

If there is no fee for the issuance of the card, the issuer may, instead, within the earlier of either 30 days after the consumer requests the card or the delivery of the card, make the required disclosures in writing [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(2)(B)(i)(I), (ii); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(d)(2)(i); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(b)(1)-(10) (required disclosures)]. In this case, in addition to the standard applicable disclosures, the issuer must also state that the consumer need not accept the card or pay any fee disclosed unless the consumer uses the card [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(2)(B)(iii); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(d)(2)(ii)].

[iii] Applications and Solicitations Made Available to the General Public

A card issuer making a solicitation or application available to the general public must comply with the statutory disclosure requirement by one of three alternative methods, listed below [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(3); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(e)]. An application or solicitation made available to the general public includes one contained in a catalog, magazine, or other generally available publication [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(3); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(e)].

In accordance with the first alternative, the card issuer must (1) disclose in a prominent location on the application or solicitation the required information [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(b)(1)-(10) (required disclosures); see also [c], above]; (2) state the date the required information was printed, including a statement that the required information was accurate as of that date and is subject to change after that date; and (3) include a statement that the consumer should contact the card issuer for any change in the required information since it was printed, and a toll-free telephone number or mailing address for that purpose [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(3)(B); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(e)(1)].

The second alternative allows the card issuer to disclose the required credit information by stating on or with the application or solicitation (1) the disclosures required in the initial disclosure statement [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.6(a)-(c); see also § 46.212]; and (2) that the consumer should contact the card issuer for any change in the required information, and a toll-free telephone number or mailing address for that purpose [12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(e)(2)].

If the card issuer does not disclose any of the information required on credit card and charge card applications and solicitations on or with the application or solicitation, the card issuer may comply under the third alternative by stating in a prominent location on the application or solicitation that (1) there are costs associated with the use of the card, and (2) the consumer may contact the card issuer to request specific information about the costs [12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(e)(3)]. The card issuer must provide a toll-free telephone number and mailing address for that purpose [12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(e)(3)].

On receiving a request from a consumer for any information required to be disclosed, a card issuer must promptly and fully disclose that information, using any of the three alternative methods of disclosure [12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(e)(4)]. Information is promptly disclosed if it is given within 30 days of a consumer's request for information, but in no event later than delivery of the card [see 54 Fed. Reg. 13855, 13861 (1989)] .

[iv] Internet-Based Solicitations

In any solicitation to open a credit card account under an open end consumer credit plan using the Internet or other interactive computer service, the person making the solicitation must clearly and conspicuously disclose the information described in 15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(1)(A) and (B) and the information described in 15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(6) [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(7)(A); see [c], above; see also 15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(7)(C) (definitions of internet and interactive computer service); Pub. L. 109-8, § 1304(b)(2) (requirement takes effect either on April 20, 2006, or 12 months after the publication of final implementing regulations, whichever is later)]. The required disclosures must be readily accessible to consumers, in close proximity to the solicitation to open a credit card account, and must be updated regularly to reflect the current policies, terms, and fee amounts applicable to the credit card account [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(7)(B)].

[e] Disclosures in Charge Card Applications

The Areias-Robbins Charge Card Full Disclosure Act of 1986 [Civ. Code § 1748.20-1748.23] imposes disclosure requirements similar to those of the federal Truth in Lending Act [see [d][i]-[iv], above]. An application form or preapproved written solicitation for a charge card must contain the following information [Civ. Code § 1748.22(a)]:

- Any fee or charge assessed for or that may be assessed for issuing or renewing the charge card, expressed as an annualized amount, and denominated as an "annual fee";
- The charge card does not permit the charge card holder to defer payment of charges incurred by the use of the charge card on receipt of a periodic statement of charges; and
- Any fee that may be assessed for an extension of credit to a charge card holder if the extension of credit is made by the charge card issuer, denominated as a "cash advance fee."

Like the Areias-Robbins Credit Card Full Disclosure Act of 1986, waiver of any of the provisions of the Areias-Robbins Charge Card Full Disclosure Act of 1986 is against public policy and is unenforceable [see Civ. Code § 1748.23].

These state-specific disclosures are in addition to the federal disclosures required by Regulation Z.

20-46 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 46.215

§ 46.215 Periodic Statement

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a periodic statement for an open-end credit account. The form meets the requirements of both the Truth in Lending Act [15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.] and the Unruh Act [Civ. Code §§ 1801-1812.20]. Both acts require the creditor to send a periodic statement for each billing cycle in which a finance charge has been imposed, or at the end of which the account has a debit (or, under federal law, a credit) balance of more than $1 [15 U.S.C. § 1637(b); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5(b)(2)(i); Civ. Code § 1810.3(a)].

The form also meets the "minimum payment warning" and related disclosure requirements regarding the length of time it will take, at various payment rates, to pay off the balance due on an open-end credit card account, which are required under both the Truth in Lending Act and the Areias-Robbins Credit Card Full Disclosure Act of 1986 [Civ. Code §§ 1748.10-1748.14; see Civ. Code § 1748.13(a)].

The Unruh Act applies only to retail installment sales of consumer goods or services [see Civ. Code §§ 1802.1-1802.7]. A "retail installment sale" is a sale by a person engaged in the business of selling consumer goods or services to a consumer, not principally for the purpose of resale, with payment in installments [Civ. Code § 1802.5]. A "retail installment account" is one established by an agreement entered into in California, under which the buyer makes installment payments to a retail seller of goods or services on an outstanding balance incurred in retail installment sales, and under which there is a finance charge expressed as a percent of the periodic balances [Civ. Code § 1802.7].

Under federal law, billing cycles must be equal and may be no longer than a quarter of a year [12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(4)]. If the periodic statement is not mailed or delivered at least 14 days before the date on which additional finance charges accrue, the creditor may not collect those additional charges [12 C.F.R. § 226.5(b)(2)(ii)].

The billing cycles for a retail account subject to the Unruh Act must be monthly [Civ. Code § 1802.17]. If the periodic statement is not mailed or delivered at least 14 days before the date on which additional finance charges accrue, the creditor may not collect those additional charges [Civ. Code § 1810.3(b); but see Civ. Code § 1810.12(c)] (notwithstanding Civ. Code § 1810.3(b) retail installment account holder must provide minimum of 20 days between monthly billing date and date minimum payment is due)].

[b] Form of Periodic Statement

The Truth in Lending Act requires that periodic disclosures be made clearly and conspicuously in writing, in a form the consumer may keep. The terms "finance charge" and "annual percentage rate," when accompanied by the corresponding amount or rate, must be printed more conspicuously than other required disclosures [12 C.F.R. § 226.5(a)(2)]. There are no other federal requirements or restrictions on the form of a periodic statement [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.5(a)]. Other information may be integrated with the required disclosures, as long as the required disclosures remain clear and conspicuous [see 12 C.F.R. 226.5(a)].

Under the Unruh Act, the outstanding balance in a retail installment at the beginning of the billing cycle must be disclosed on the face side of the periodic statement, and the term "previous balance" must be used to describe the amount [Civ. Code § 1810.3(c)(1)]. All other required disclosures must appear on the face or reverse side of the periodic statement, or on supplemental statements enclosed together and delivered to the consumer at the same time. Regardless of where placed, certain disclosures regarding the finance charge, periodic rate(s), and the balance on which the finance charge was computed must appear together [Civ. Code § 1810.3(c)(2)]. If all required disclosures do not appear on the face of the periodic statement, the face of the statement must contain one of the following notices, as appropriate: "NOTICE: See reverse side for important information"; "NOTICE: See accompanying statement(s) for important information"; or "NOTICE: See reverse side and accompanying statement(s) for important information" [Civ. Code § 1810.3(c)(3)].

[c] Required Disclosures Under Truth in Lending and Unruh Acts

[i] In General

The following disclosures [see [ii]-[xii], below] are those required by the Truth in Lending Act and the Unruh Act. For transactions covered by both acts, there are a few additional disclosure requirements imposed by the Unruh Act. However, the Unruh Act applies only if the account is one provided by a retailer of goods or services for its customers [Civ. Code § 1802.5].

[ii] Previous Balance

The creditor must disclose the previous balance, which is the account balance outstanding at the beginning of the billing cycle [15 U.S.C. § 1637(b) 12 C.F.R. § 226.7(a); Civ. Code § 1810.3(a)(1)].

[iii] Identification of Transactions

The creditor must identify credit transactions on or with the first periodic statement that reflects the transaction. For a credit transaction involving a sale of property or services (a "sale credit"), the transaction is sufficiently identified by providing a copy of the credit document, if the document gives the amount of the transaction and either the sale date or the posting date [12 C.F.R. § 226.8(a)(1)]. If no credit document is provided, and if the creditor and the seller are the same or related entities, the creditor must disclose the amount and date of the transaction and a brief identification of the property or services purchased [12 C.F.R. § 226.8(a)(2)].

As an alternative to the brief identification of the property or services, the creditor may disclose a number or symbol that also appears on the receipt or other credit document given to the consumer, if the number or symbol reasonably identifies that transaction with that creditor [12 C.F.R. § 226.8(a)(2) n.17]. Another alternative for creditor-sellers with fewer than 15,000 open-end accounts is to omit the identification of property or services but supply the seller's name and the location of the transaction, if the creditor provides the consumer with point-of-sale documentation for the transaction [12 C.F.R. § 226.8(a)(2) n.18]. However, if either of the alternatives is followed, a consumer's request for further information must be treated as a billing error, and any finance charge must be waived until the "error" of insufficient identification is corrected [12 C.F.R. § 226.8(a)(2) nn. 17, 18; see § 46.233]. Finally, for sale credit where the creditor and seller are not the same or related entities and no credit document copy is provided, the creditor must disclose the amount and date of the transaction, the seller's name, and the city and state or foreign country where the transaction took place [12 C.F.R. § 226.8(a)(3)].

The identification rule differs for nonsale credit. Sufficient identification of nonsale credit includes a brief identification of the transaction (or number or symbol as specified in the preceding paragraph); the amount of the transaction; and the date of the transaction, or the date of posting of the amount, or the date of a credit document bearing the consumer's signature [12 C.F.R. § 226.8(b)]. If an actual copy of the receipt or other credit document is provided and that copy shows the amount and at least one of the above-specified dates, the brief identification may be omitted [12 C.F.R. § 226.8(b)].

In the case of either nonsale credit or any sale credit not covered by the Unruh Act, creditors may omit all identification of credit transactions from the periodic statement, provided the following two conditions are met. First, the creditor must maintain procedures reasonably adapted to obtaining and providing the required identification. Second, the creditor must treat an inquiry for clarification or documentation as a notice of a billing error and the lack of information as a billing error [12 C.F.R. § 226.8 n.16; see 12 C.F.R. § 226.13(e) (billing error resolution)]. See § 46.233[1] for discussion of billing error resolution.

Identification of transactions governed by the Unruh Act must include (1) the amount of each extension of credit, (2) the date of each extension or of its posting, and (3) unless previously furnished, a brief identification of any goods or services purchased or other extension of credit [Civ. Code § 1810.3(a)(2)]. Because the Unruh Act provides for disclosures made "in any manner, method, or terminology required or permitted under Regulation Z" [Civ. Code § 1801.5], it would arguably permit reliance on one of the federal options that provides for less information. However, Civ. Code § 1801.5 has not been the subject of much litigation, and case law does not establish the extent of such statutory protection. Therefore, it is advisable to provide the disclosures required by the Unruh Act, or at the very least, to carefully compare the possible adverse consequences of ignoring its disclosure requirements to the advantages of disclosing less information than the Unruh Act requires.

[iv] Credits

This item must list any credit to the account during the billing cycle, including the amount and the date of crediting. The date need not be provided if a delay in crediting does not result in any finance or other charge [15 U.S.C. § 1637(b)(3); 12 C.F.R. § 226.7(c)]. For retailers' accounts, the Unruh Act requires labeling payments as such and other credits as "credits." Unless previously furnished, there must be a brief identification of each item included in "credits" [Civ. Code § 1810.3(a)(3); see also Civ. Code § 1801.5].

[v] Periodic Rates

The creditor must disclose each periodic rate that may be used to compute the finance charge, the range of balances to which the periodic rate is applicable, and the corresponding annual percentage rate [12 C.F.R. § 226.7(d); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.14 (determination of annual percentage rate)]. If different periodic rates apply to different types of transactions, these types of transactions must also be disclosed. [15 U.S.C. § 1637(b)(5); 12 C.F.R. § 226.7(d)]. For retail installment accounts, this disclosure must use the term "periodic rate" (or "periodic rates") [Civ. Code § 1810.3(a)(5)]. The corresponding annual percentage rate should be labeled in a manner such as "corresponding annual percentage rate," "nominal annual percentage rate," or "corresponding nominal annual percentage rate" [see 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, supp. I, § 226.7(d) (Official Staff Interpretations)].

The reference to a periodic rate that "may be" used to compute the finance charge means a rate that the creditor is permitted to use under the credit agreement. In other words, "may" in 12 C.F.R. § 226.7(d) connotes contractual entitlement, not mere possibility. Therefore, a creditor does not violate that disclosure requirement unless the creditor omits to disclose, in the credit agreement, any periodic rate that the agreement permits the creditor to use. The required disclosure can be adequately made by the usual change-in-terms provision (which reserves to the creditor a right to change periodic rates, among other terms, without any limitation on why the creditor could make such a change), provided the change-in-terms provision meets the "clear and conspicuous" test of 12 C.F.R. § 226.5(a)(1) [cf. Barrar v. Chase Bank U.S. (9th Cir. 2009) 566 F.3d 883, 2009 U.S. App. LEXIS 10913, at *16-*18, *21-*22 (construing 12 C.F.R. § 226.6(a)(2), which is identical to 12 C.F.R. § 226.7(d) in relevant part; in this case, change-in-terms provision was not clear and conspicuous when it appeared "five dense pages after the disclosure of the APR ... buried too deeply in the fine print for a reasonable cardholder to realize that, in addition to the specific grounds for increasing the APR listed in the 'Finance Charges' section, [the creditor] could raise the APR for other reasons")].

[vi] Balance on Which Finance Charge Computed

The creditor must disclose the amount of the balance to which a periodic rate was applied and an explanation of how that balance was determined [12 C.F.R. § 226.7(e)]. When a balance is determined without first deducting all credits and payments made during the billing cycle, that fact and the amount of the credits and payments must also be disclosed [15 U.S.C. § 1637(b)(7); 12 C.F.R. § 226.7(e); Civ. Code § 1810.3(a)(6)]. This form contains provisions explaining the four balance computation methods: (1) the previous balance method, (2) the adjusted balance method, (3) the average daily balance method (excluding current transactions), and (4) the average daily balance method (including current transactions) [see 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, app. G-1]. The form's clauses are based on the four model computation clauses issued by the Federal Reserve Board in Form G-1 of Appendix G of Regulation Z [see 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, app. G-1].

[vii] Amount of Finance Charge

The creditor must disclose the dollar amount of any finance charge imposed during the billing cycle, using the term "finance charge" [12 C.F.R. § 226.7(f)]. The components of the finance charge due to periodic rates and to other types of finance charges must be itemized as such, but the amount attributable to each of several periodic rates need not be separately stated [15 U.S.C. § 1637(b)(4); 12 C.F.R. § 226.7(f); Civ. Code § 1810.3(a)(4)]. For a definition of the term "finance charge" and further discussion, Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales.

[viii] Annual Percentage Rate

When a finance charge is imposed during the billing cycle, the annual percentage rate based on that charge must be computed as provided by statute and disclosed in the periodic statement [15 U.S.C. § 1637(b)(6); 12 C.F.R. § 226.7(g); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.14 (annual percentage rate determined)]. The annual percentage rate will differ from the "corresponding annual percentage rate" if there are finance charges other than the periodic rate.

[ix] Other Charges

If any charges other than finance charges (such as late payment charges and over-the-credit-limit charges) are debited to the account, these charges must be itemized and identified by type [12 C.F.R. § 226.7(h)].

[x] Closing Date of Billing Cycle; New Balance

The creditor must disclose the closing date of the billing cycle and the account balance outstanding on that date. Unruh Act creditors are required to use the term "new balance" in making the latter disclosure [15 U.S.C. § 1637(b)(8); 12 C.F.R. § 226.7(i); Civ. Code § 1810.3(a)(7)].

[xi] Free-Ride Period

If finance charges on all or a portion of the new balance may be avoided by payment within a certain time, the creditor must state the pertinent time period or the required date of payment [15 U.S.C. § 1637(b)(9); 12 C.F.R. § 226.7(j); Civ. Code § 1810.3(a)(7)]. The creditor may impose the avoidable finance charges only if the periodic statement was mailed 14 days before the end of the free-ride period [15 U.S.C. § 1666b(a); 12 C.F.R. § 226.5(b)(2)(ii)].

[xii] Address for Notice of Billing Errors

This address may either be on the periodic statement or, if the creditor elects to provide a billing rights statement with each periodic statement [12 C.F.R. § 226.9(a)(2)], on the billing rights statement [15 U.S.C. § 1637(b)(10); 12 C.F.R. § 226.7(k)].

Certain required disclosures relating to credit or charge card renewals, and changes in credit insurance providers may be made on or with periodic statements [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.9(e), (f)]. For further discussion of these disclosures, see § 46.140.

[xiii] Late Payment Deadlines and Penalties

If a late payment fee will be due to the obligor's failure to make payment on or before a required payment due date, the billing statement must clearly and conspicuously state (1) date on which that payment is due or, if different, the earliest date on which a late payment fee may be charged, and (2) the amount of the late payment fee to be imposed if payment is made after that date [15 U.S.C. § 1637(b)(12); see Pub. L. 109-8, § 1305(b)(2) (requirement takes effect either on April 20, 2006, or 12 months after the publication of final implementing regulations, whichever is later)].

Civ. Code §§ 9 and 11, stating that whenever a legal or contractual act is required to be performed on a holiday, it may be performed on the next business day without any adverse consequence, do not apply to a national bank's credit card payment due dates because those state laws are preempted by a federal law [see 12 C.F.R. § 7.4008(d)(2)(iv)] stating that a national bank may make non-real-estate loans without regard to state law limitations concerning the terms of credit, including the schedule for repayment of principal and interest and the payments due [Miller v. Bank of Am. (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 980, 982, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 723] .

[d] Minimum Payment Warnings[I] TILA Requirement

In the case of an open end credit plan that requires a minimum monthly payment, the front side of the billing statement must include a prescribed minimum payment warning, disclosed clearly and conspicuously [15 U.S.C. § 1637(b)(11)]. This federal requirement takes effect on Oct. 21, 2006, or 12 months after publication of final regulations to implement the statutory requirements, whichever date is later [see Pub. L. No. 109-8, § 1301(b)(2) (Apr. 20, 2005)]. The requirement does not apply to any charge card account the primary purpose of which is to require payment of charges in full each month [15 U.S.C. § 1637(b)(11)(I)].

If the required minimum payment does not exceed 4 percent of the balance on which finance charges are accruing, the prescribed statement is [15 U.S.C. § 1637(b)(11)(A)]:

"Minimum Payment Warning: Making only the minimum payment will increase the interest you pay and the time it takes to repay your balance. For example, making only the typical 2% minimum monthly payment on a balance of $1,000 at an interest rate of 17% would take 88 months to repay the balance in full. For an estimate of the time it would take to repay your balance, making only minimum payments, call this toll-free number: _____."

If the required minimum payment exceeds 4 percent of the balance on which finance charges are accruing, the creditor may elect to use the warning for a smaller minimum payment, above [15 U.S.C. § 1637(b)(11)(D)]; otherwise, the prescribed statement is [15 U.S.C. § 1637(b)(11)(B)]:

"Minimum Payment Warning: Making only the required minimum payment will increase the interest you pay and the time it takes to repay your balance. Making a typical 5% minimum monthly payment on a balance of $300 at an interest rate of 17% would take 24 months to repay the balance in full. For an estimate of the time it would take to repay your balance, making only minimum monthly payments, call this toll-free number: _____."

Alternatively, in either of the cases described above, if the creditor maintains a toll-free number to disclose the actual repayment period using minimum payments, the prescribed statement is:

"Making only the minimum payment will increase the interest you pay and the time it takes to repay your balance. For more information, call this toll-free number: _____." [15 U.S.C. § 1637(b)(11)(J), (K)].

If the FTC enforces the creditor's compliance with TILA, the prescribed statement is [15 U.S.C. § 1637(b)(11)(C)]:

"Minimum Payment Warning: Making only the required minimum payment will increase the interest you pay and the time it takes to repay your balance. For example, making only the typical 5% minimum monthly payment on a balance of $300 at an interest rate of 17% would take 24 months to repay the balance in full. For an estimate of the time it would take to repay your balance, making only minimum monthly payments, call the Federal Trade Commission at this toll-free number: _____."

In any case, the creditor may substitute an example based on an interest rate that is greater than 17 percent [15 U.S.C. § 1637(b)(11)(D)].

The TILA requirements are not identical to California law [see [ii], below]. Regulations implementing the TILA requirements, when available, should be consulted in order to reconcile the differences.

[ii] California Law

Under the Areias-Robbins Credit Card Full Disclosure Act of 1986, a credit card issuer must provide, with each billing statement provided to a cardholder in California, a "Minimum Payment Warning" in the following form [Civ. Code § 1748.13(a)(1)]:

Minimum Payment Warning: Making only the minimum payment will increase the interest you pay and the time it takes to repay your balance.

This warning must be followed by various statements regarding the length of time it will take, at various payment rates, to pay off the balance due on an open-end credit card account [see Civ. Code § 1748.13(a)(2), (3); see also [2], below]. In addition, if the cardholder has not paid more than the minimum payment for six consecutive months, the credit card issuer must provide the cardholder with referrals or, in the alternative, the toll-free telephone number of the National Foundation for Credit Counseling through which the cardholder can be referred, to credit counseling services in, or closest to, the cardholder's county of residence [see Civ. Code § 1748.13(a)(2)(B)].

The warning and related disclosures must appear on the front of the first page of the billing statement, in type no smaller than that required for any other required disclosure, but in no case in less than 8-point capitalized type [Civ. Code §

1748.13(a)(1)].

These requirements do not apply in any billing cycle in which the account agreement requires a minimum payment of at least 10 percent of the outstanding balance, or in which finance charges are not imposed [Civ. Code § 1748.13(c)].

The Department of Financial Institutions is required to establish a detailed table illustrating the approximate number of months that it would take and the approximate total cost to repay an outstanding balance if the consumer pays only the required minimum monthly payments and if no other additional charges or fees are incurred on the account, such as additional extension of credit, voluntary credit insurance, late fees, or dishonored check fees [see Civ. Code § 1748.13(a)(3)(C)]. A creditor that receives a request, through the required toll-free number, for an estimate of the time it would take for the cardholder to repay his or her creditor's balance, making only minimum payments and the total amount of those payments [see Civ. Code § 1748.13(a)(3)(A)], or who is required to provide a written statement providing individualized information indicating an estimate of the number of years and months and the approximate total cost to pay off the entire balance due on an open-end credit card account, if the cardholder were to pay only the minimum amount due on the open-ended account based upon the terms of the credit agreement [see Civ. Code § 1748.13(a)(2)(B)], may satisfy its obligation to disclose an estimate of the time it would take and the approximate total cost to repay the cardholder's balance by disclosing only the information set forth in the table established by the Department of Financial Institutions [Civ. Code § 1748.13(a)(3)(D)]. Including the full chart along with a billing statement does not satisfy the creditor's obligation [Civ. Code § 1748.13(a)(3)(D)].

Any waiver of the provisions of this Act is contrary to public policy and is unenforceable [Civ. Code § 1748.14].

[e] Billing Error Information

At least once per calendar year, and at intervals of not less than six not more than 18 months, a creditor must deliver a statement of billing rights to each consumer entitled to receive periodic statements [12 C.F.R. § 226.9(a)(1); see 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, app. G-3]. For further information, see § 46.212.

As an alternative to this annual statement, the creditor may deliver a summary statement of billing rights with each periodic statement [12 C.F.R. § 226.9(a)(2)]. The reverse side of this form contains a billing rights statement, based on the model summary billing rights statement issued by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System [12 C.F.R. pt. 226, app. G-4]. While use of the model form is not mandatory, the summary statement must be substantially similar to the model form [12 C.F.R. § 226.9(a)(2)].

If the periodic statement does not contain a summary of billing rights, it must disclose the address of the creditor to which notice of billing errors may be sent [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.7(k)].

[f] Annual Statement of Finance Charges

Sellers of goods and services who (1) are subject to the Unruh Act because they establish their own retail installment accounts and (2) in the past two years made sales pursuant to accounts exceeding $150,000,000 annually, must furnish to each buyer, on the buyer's request, a statement of all finance charges that the seller has charged the buyer or which the buyer has paid to the seller during the preceding year [Civ. Code § 1810.11]. The buyer may make such a request of the seller not more than once a year. The seller must provide information to the buyer within 30 days without charge. If the buyer's request is in writing, then the seller's response must also be in writing. The statement may be enclosed with the periodic billing [Civ. Code § 1810.11(a)].

A credit cardholder may request, not more frequently than once a year, that the open-end creditor issuing the card inform the cardholder of the total amount of finance charges assessed on the account during the preceding calendar year. The card issuer must provide the information, without charge, within 30 days of receiving the request [Civ. Code §

1748.5(a); see Civ. Code § 1748.5(b) (exception for card issuers or cardholders who issue or use credit cards in connection with retail installment accounts); see also Civ. Code § 1802.7 ("retail installment account" defined)). If the cardholder's request for the information is made in writing, the card issuer must provide the information in writing. However, the cardholder may furnish the information along with a periodic billing or periodic statement of account [Civ. Code § 1748.5(a)].

[g] Payments, Refunds, and Credit Balances

A creditor must promptly post payments received to the consumer's account, as of the date of receipt, unless a delay in crediting does not result in a finance or other charge or except as provided in 12 C.F.R. § 226.10(b), which permits a creditor to specify reasonable requirements for payments that enable most consumers to make conforming payments [15 U.S.C. § 1666c; 12 C.F.R. § 226.10(a); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.10(b)(2) (examples of reasonable requirements)]. If a creditor fails to credit a payment, as required, in time to avoid the imposition of finance or other charges, the creditor must adjust the consumer's account so that the charges imposed are credited to the consumer's account during the next billing cycle [12 C.F.R. § 226.10(c)]. If the due date for payments is a day on which the creditor does not receive or accept payments by mail, the creditor may not treat a payment received by mail the next business day as late for any purpose [12 C.F.R. § 226.10(d)].

If a creditor other than the card issuer accepts the return of property or forgives a debt for services that is to be reflected as a credit to the consumer's credit card account, that creditor must, within 7 business days from accepting the return or forgiving the debt, transmit a credit statement to the card issuer through the card issuer's normal channels for credit statements [15 U.S.C. § 1666e; 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(e)(1)]. The card issuer must, within 3 business days from receipt of a credit statement, credit the consumer's account with the amount of the refund [15 U.S.C. § 1666e; 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(e)(2)]. If a creditor other than a card issuer routinely gives cash refunds to consumers paying in cash, the creditor must also give credit or cash refunds to consumers using credit cards, unless it discloses at the time the transaction is consummated that credit or cash refunds for returns are not given [15 U.S.C. § 1666e; 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(e)(3)].

When a credit balance in excess of $1 is created on a credit account, the creditor must follow additional procedures mandated by state and federal law. See § 46.230 for discussion of these procedures.

[OR]

[Use if previous balance method is used to compute finance charge:]

We figure [add if applicable: a portion of] the finance charge on your account by applying the periodic rate to the amount you owe at the beginning of each billing cycle [add if applicable: minus any unpaid finance charges]. We do not subtract any payments or credits received during the billing cycle. [Add if applicable: The amount of payments and credits to your account this billing cycle was $_____.]

[Use if average daily balance method (excluding current transactions) is used to compute finance charge:]

We figure [add if applicable: a portion of] the finance charge on your account by applying the periodic rate to the "average daily balance" of your account (excluding current transactions). To get the "average daily balance," we take the beginning balance of your account each day and subtract any payments or credits [add if applicable: and any unpaid finance charges]. We do not add in any new [purchases or advances or loans]. This gives us the daily balance. Then, we add all the daily balances of the billing cycle together and divide the total by number of days in the billing cycle. This gives us the "average daily balance."

[OR]

[Use if average daily balance method (including current transactions) is used to compute finance charge:]

We figure [add if applicable: a portion of] the finance charge on your account by applying the periodic rate to the "average daily balance" of your account (including current transactions). To get the "average daily balance," we take the beginning balance of your account each day, add any new [purchases or advances or loans] and subtract any payments or credits [add if applicable: and any unpaid finance charges]. This gives us the daily balance. Then, we add all the daily balances of the billing cycle together and divide the total by number of days in the billing cycle. This gives us the "average daily balance."

[OR]

[If the ending balance method is used to compute the finance charge:]

BILLING RIGHTS SUMMARY

In Case of Errors or Questions About Your Bill

If you think your bill is wrong, or if you need more information about a transaction on your bill, write us [add if desired: on a separate sheet] at _____ [address] as soon as possible. We must hear from you no later than 60 days after we sent you the first bill on which the error or problem appeared. You can telephone us, but doing so will not preserve your rights.

In your letter, give us the following information:

- Your name and account number.
- The dollar amount of the suspected error.

You do not have to pay any amount in question while we are investigating, but you are still obligated to pay the parts of your bill that are not in question. While we investigate your question, we cannot report you as delinquent or take any action to collect the amount you question.

Special Rule for Credit Card Purchases

If you have a problem with the quality of the goods or services that you purchased with a credit card, and you have tried in good faith to correct the problem with the merchant, you may not have to pay the remaining amount due on the goods or services. You have this protection only when the purchase price was more than $50 and the purchase was made in your home state or within 100 miles of your mailing address. (If we own or operate the merchant, or if we mailed you the advertisement for the property or services, all purchases are covered, regardless of amount or location of purchase.)

B. Consumer Credit Card and Retail Installment Accounts

20-46 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 46.216

§ 46.216 Notice of Right to Prohibit Disclosure of Marketing Information

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice of a consumer-cardholder's right to prohibit disclosure of marketing information concerning the cardholder. It is to be sent by a card issuer to cardholders before disclosing marketing information [see Civ. Code § 1748.12]. This notice can be sent separately or can be included with the initial disclosure statement for new cardholders [see § 46.212 (form for initial disclosure)].

[b] When Notice Must be Given

Under the Areias-Robbins Credit Card Full Disclosure Act of 1986 [Civ. Code §§ 1748.10-1748.14], before disclosing marketing information concerning a consumer-cardholder, a credit card issuer must provide written notice to the cardholder that clearly and conspicuously describes the cardholder's right to prohibit disclosure of marketing information concerning the cardholder that discloses the cardholder's identity [Civ. Code § 1748.12(b); see Civ. Code § 1748.12(a) (definitions)].

These notice requirements are satisfied by furnishing notice to cardholders as follows [Civ. Code § 1748.12(c)]:

- At least 60 days prior to the initial disclosure of marketing information concerning the cardholder by the credit card issuer.
- For all new credit cards issued on or after April 1, 2002, on the form containing the new credit card when the credit card is delivered to the cardholder.
- At least once per calendar year, to every cardholder entitled to receive an annual statement of billings rights in accordance with 12 C.F.R. 226.9 (Regulation Z).

This notice may be included on or with any periodic statement or with the delivery of the renewal card [Civ. Code § 1748.12(c)].

[c] Contents of Notice

The notice must be in 10-point type. It must advise the cardholder of his or her ability to exercise the right to prohibit disclosure of marketing information pertaining to the cardholder either by completing a pre-printed form or calling a toll-free number [Civ. Code § 1748.12(b)].

[d] When Election Is Effective

The election to prohibit disclosure of marketing information is effective only with respect to marketing information that is disclosed to any party beginning 30 days after the credit card issuer has received, at the designated address on the form containing the new credit card or on the preprinted form, or by telephone, the cardholder's election to prohibit disclosure [Civ. Code § 1748.12(d)(1)]. This restriction does not apply to the disclosure of marketing information prior to the cardholder's notification to the credit card issuer of the cardholder's election [Civ. Code § 1748.12(d)(1)].

[e] When Election Terminates

The election to prohibit disclosure of marketing information terminates on receipt by the card issuer of notice from the cardholder that the cardholder's election to prohibit disclosure is no longer effective [Civ. Code § 1748.12(d)(2)].

[f] Exempt Communications of Marketing Information

The requirement to provide notice of the right to prohibit disclosure of marketing information does not apply to any of the following communications of marketing information by a credit card issuer [Civ. Code § 1748.12(e)]:

- Communications to a party to, or merchant specified in, the credit agreement, or to any person whose name appears on the credit card or on whose behalf the credit card is issued.
- Communications to consumer credit reporting agencies [see Civ. Code § 1785.3(d) (definition)].
- To the extent that the Fair Credit Reporting Act [15 U.S.C. § 1681 et seq.] exempts the requirements contained in Civ. Code § 1748.12 concerning communications by a credit card issuer to a corporate subsidiary or affiliate, the credit card issuer may communicate information about a cardholder to a corporate subsidiary or affiliate to the extent and in the manner permitted by that Act.
- Communications to a third party when the third party is responsible for conveying information from the card issuer to any of its cardholders.

[g] Notification of Disclosure of Personal Information

Civ. Code § 1798.83, as revised operative January 1, 2005 [Civ. Code § 1798.83(i) (operative date)] provides that with specified exceptions, a business that discloses a customer's personal information, including information relating to income or purchases, to a third party for direct marketing purposes, must provide the customer, within 30 days after the customer's request, in writing or by e-mail, the names and addresses of the recipients of that information and specified details regarding the information disclosed [see Civ. Code § 1798.83(a); Civ. Code § 1798.83(b)(1)(C)]. For further discussion of this statute, see § 46.96.

§ 46.217 Notice Regarding Change of Address Request

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a change of address notification. It must be sent when credit card issuer receives a change of address request, other than for a correction of a typographical error, from a cardholder who orders a replacement credit card within 60 days before or after that request is received.

In addition, any business entity that provides telephone accounts [see Civ. Code § 1799.1b(e)(2) ("telephone account" defined)] that receives a change of address request, other than for a correction of a typographical error, from an account holder who orders new service, must send to that account holder a change of address notification that is addressed to the account holder at the account holder's previous address of record [Civ. Code § 1799.1b(b)]. However, a credit card issuer or a business entity that provides telephone accounts is not required to send a change of address notification when a change of address request is made in person by a consumer who has presented valid identification, or is made by telephone and the requester has provided a unique alpha-numeric password [Civ. Code § 1799.1b(d)].

[b] Manner of Notice

The required notice may be given by telephone or e-mail communication, if the credit card issuer or business entity that provides telephone accounts reasonably believes that it has the current telephone number or e-mail address for the account holder or cardholder who has requested a change of address [Civ. Code § 1799.1b(c)].

If the notification is in writing, it may not contain the consumer's account number, social security number, or other personal identifying information. However, the notification may contain the consumer's name, previous address, and new address of record [Civ. Code § 1799.1b(c)]. For business entities that provide telephone accounts [see Civ. Code § 1799.1b(b)], the notification may also contain the account holder's telephone number [Civ. Code § 1799.1b(c)].

The notice must be addressed to the cardholder at the cardholder's previous address of record [Civ. Code § 1799.1b(a)].

[c] Timing of Notice

If the replacement credit card is requested after the effective date of the change of address, the credit card issuer must send this notification within 30 days of the request for the replacement credit card [Civ. Code § 1799.1b(a)]. For business entities that provide telephone accounts, notification must be sent within 30 days of the request for new service [Civ. Code § 1799.1b(b)].

§ 46.230 Notice of Right to Refund of Credit Balance in Retail Installment Account

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice of a consumer's right to a refund of a credit balance in a retail installment account. It is used by a creditor to notify a consumer of the right to request the refund [see 15 U.S.C. § 1666d; 12 C.F.R. § 226.11; Civ. Code § 1810.3(e); see also [b], below].

This form is based on the statutory form of disclosure set forth in Civil Code Section 1810.3(e)(2)(A). To comply with the statute, the disclosure must contain the statutory information that is contained in this form, but need not be in exactly the form presented [see Civ. Code § 1810.3(e)(2)(A)].

[b] When Notice of Right to Refund Is Required

When a credit balance in excess of $1 is created on a credit account, the creditor must (1) credit the amount of the credit balance to the account, (2) refund any part of the remaining credit balance within seven business days from receipt of a written request from the consumer, and (3) make a good faith effort to refund any part of the credit balance remaining in the account for more than six months [15 U.S.C. § 1666d; 12 C.F.R. § 226.11; see Civ. Code § 1810.3(e)]. Periodic statements must be delivered for each billing cycle at the end of which there is a debit or credit balance of more than $1 or on which a finance charge has been imposed [12 C.F.R. § 226.5(b)(2)(i); see Civ. Code § 1810.3(e)]. Avoiding these requirements by simply mailing a refund without waiting for a request from the consumer is also permissible [12 C.F.R. pt. 226, supp. I, § 226.11 (Official Staff Interpretations); Civ. Code § 1810.3(e)(2)(B)]. The good faith effort at refunding a credit balance required after six months must include making attempts to reach or trace the consumer through the consumer's last known address or telephone number, or both if necessary [12 C.F.R. pt. 226, supp. I, § 226.11(c) (Official Staff Interpretations)].

If the account is a retail installment account subject to the Unruh Act [Civ. Code §§ 1801-1812.20; see § 46.32[3]], a creditor must comply with additional requirements. If the credit balance exists for a period of 90 days, and the seller chooses not to simply refund the balance [see Civ. Code § 1810.3(e)(2)(B)], the seller must notify the buyer of his or her right to a refund. The notice must be sent in each of two billing cycles immediately following the 90-day period. It must contain prescribed information (set forth in this form), and it must be accompanied by a return envelope addressed to the seller [Civ. Code § 1810.3(e)(2)(A)].

If no refund request is received after 180 days, and the required attempt to mail a refund results in a return because the addressee is not at the address, the seller must again mail the refund with an address correction request and, if the seller obtains a corrected address, mail the refund to the corrected address [Civ. Code § 1810.3(f)(1), (2)]. If the seller is unable to refund a credit balance exceeding $25, the seller must reinstate the credit balance on the account and leave it available as a credit against future purchases for a year [Civ. Code § 1810.3(f)(3)]. If, after three years from the creation of a credit balance, the sum remains unrefundable, it escheats to the state and must be paid to the Controller [Civ. Code § 1810.3(g)].

Since the requirements enumerated above can be complied with without violating the Truth in Lending Act, they are not preempted by that act [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.28(a)(2)].

Notice of Right to Refund of Credit Balance in Retail Installment Account

REFUND OF CREDIT BALANCE

We owe you [amount]. Your credit balance will be refunded on request. If you don't request a refund, six months from the first appearance of a "credit balance" on your bill, your credit balance will be refunded automatically.

If your credit balance is $1 or less, it will not be refunded unless requested, and after six months, it will not be credited against future purchases.

You may obtain a refund of your credit balance by mail by presenting your statement at our store or by returning the top half of your statement in the enclosed envelope.

§ 46.231 Cardholder's Demand on Retailer for Satisfactory Resolution of Dispute

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a letter by a credit card holder to a retailer demanding satisfactory resolution of a dispute or problem arising out of a retail purchase. This letter informs the retailer of the problem and preserves the cardholder's right to assert against the card issuer any claims or defenses arising out of the transaction. Use of this form is not mandatory; neither the federal Truth in Lending Act nor the California Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971 requires that the cardholder make a written demand on the retailer [see 15 U.S.C. § 1666i; 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(c)(1); Civ. Code § 1747.90(a)(1)]. However, a demand in writing documents that a good faith effort has been made.

[b] Cardholder's Right to Assert Claims and Defenses Against Issuer

When a retailer that honors a credit card fails to satisfactorily resolve a dispute relating to property or services purchased with a credit card, the cardholder may assert against the card issuer all claims (other than tort claims) and defenses arising out of the transaction and relating to the failure to resolve the dispute [15 U.S.C. § 1666i(a); 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(c)(1); Civ. Code § 1747.90(a)(1)]. However, the right to assert such claims and defenses against the card issuer applies only if the cardholder has made a good faith attempt to resolve the dispute with the retailer honoring the card [15 U.S.C. § 1666i(a)(1)(i); 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(c)(3)(i); Civ. Code § 1747.90(a)(1)(A); see 15 U.S.C. § 1666i(b) (additional limitations); 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(c)(3)(ii); Civ. Code § 1747.90(a)(1)(B), (C); see also 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(c)(3)(ii) n.26 (exceptions to limitations); Civ. Code § 1747.90(a)(2)]. Refer to Section 46.232 for discussion of the additional limitations on this right.

The provisions of the Truth in Lending Act and the Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971 relating to the assertion of claims and defenses against the card issuer are applicable only to consumer credit transactions [15 U.S.C. § 1666i(a); Civ. Code §§ 1747.02(d), 1747.90], not to transactions on credit cards issued for business use [see 15 U.S.C. § 1603(1); 12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(8); Civ. Code § 1747.02(d)]. Therefore, this form cannot be used to preserve any claims or defenses against a card issuer in a transaction involving a business credit card.

§ 46.232 Cardholder's Notice to Card Issuer of Claims and Defenses Against Retailer

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice by a credit card holder to a credit card issuer stating that the cardholder has a claim or defense against a retailer arising out of a credit card transaction. It apprises the card issuer of the fact that payment is being withheld and explains why.

This notice assumes that the cardholder has made a good faith effort and has failed to obtain satisfaction from the retailer honoring the card [see 15 U.S.C. § 1666i(a)(1); 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(c)(3)(i); Civ. Code § 1747.90(a)(1)(A); see also § 46.231 [2] (form of demand for satisfaction)]. To avoid any adverse effect on the cardholder's credit, this notice should be mailed to the card issuer as soon as it appears that the retailer will not honor the cardholder's claim, or within two billing cycles of the transaction if the retailer fails to respond to the cardholder's written demand for satisfaction. Refer to [c], below, for discussion of adverse credit reporting.

It is important to note that the cardholder should not pay any portion of the disputed amount prior to sending this notice, since doing so may limit the cardholder's rights [see 15 U.S.C. § 1666i(b); 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(c)(1) n.25; Civ. Code § 1747.90(b)].

[b] Cardholder's Right to Assert Claims and Defenses Against Issuer

The federal Truth in Lending Act and the California Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971 give the cardholder the right to assert against the card issuer all claims and defenses arising out of a credit card transaction, other than tort claims [15 U.S.C. § 1666i(a); 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(c)(1); Civ. Code § 1747.90(a)(1)]. Thus, the cardholder may withhold payment up to the amount of credit outstanding for the property or services that gave rise to the dispute, and any finance or other charges imposed on that amount [12 C.F.R. § 226.12(c)(1)]. However, this right applies only to consumer credit transactions [15 U.S.C. § 1666i; Civ. Code § 1747.90(a)(1)], not to transactions on credit cards issued for business use [see 15 U.S.C. § 1603(1); 12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(8); Civ. Code § 1747.02(d)].

The cardholder's right to assert claims and defenses against the card issuer is subject to the following limitations [15 U.S.C. § 1666i(a); 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(c)(3)]:

- (1) The cardholder must make a good faith attempt to arrive at a satisfactory settlement of the disagreement with the person who honored the card;
- (2) The amount of the initial transaction must exceed $50; and
- (3) The transaction must have occurred in the same state as the cardholder's mailing address, or, if it occurred in another state, within 100 miles of that address [see Civ. Code § 1747.90(a)(1)(C) (Song-Beverly Act requirement that transaction have occurred within California or within 100 miles of cardholder's current designated address in California)].

If the person honoring the card is also the card issuer, is controlled by the issuer, is under direct or indirect common control with the issuer, is a franchised dealer in the issuer's products or services, or obtained the order for the transaction through a mail solicitation made by or participated in by the issuer, then the $50 minimum and the geographical restrictions are inapplicable [15 U.S.C. § 1666i(a); 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(c)(3) n.26; Civ. Code § 1747.90(a)(2)].

The amount of claims and defenses asserted by the cardholder may not exceed the amount of credit outstanding relating to the transaction at issue at the time the cardholder first notifies the card issuer or the person honoring the card of the claim or defense [15 U.S.C. § 1666i(b); 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(c)(1) n.25; Civ. Code § 1747.90(b)]. Thus, a cardholder who pays a disputed balance waives any right to assert any claims and defenses against the cardholder [12 C.F.R. pt. 226, supp. I, § 226.12(c) (Official Staff Interpretations)]. However, certain claims or defenses, such as nondelivery of goods, may be treated as billing errors irrespective of whether or not the cardholder has waived the right to assert claims and defenses [12 C.F.R. pt. 226, supp. I, § 226.12(c) (Official Staff Interpretations)]. For discussion of what constitutes a "billing error," refer to Section 46.233.

To determine the amount of outstanding credit, payments and credits to the cardholder's account will be applied first to payment of any late charges in the order of their entry, then to payment of any finance charges in the order of their entry, and finally to the payment of any other debits in the order of entry to the account [15 U.S.C. § 1666i(b); 12 C.F.R. § 226.12(c)(1) n.25; Civ. Code § 1747.90(b)].

[c] Prohibition Against Adverse Credit Reports

If a cardholder entitled to withhold payments to the issuer because of a claim or defense against a business honoring the card exercises that right, the card issuer may not report the withheld amount as delinquent until the dispute is settled or judgment is rendered [12 C.F.R. § 226.12(c)(2)].
