This form is a letter to be sent to the owner or landlord of the property to be used for a family child care home to secure the owner's or landlord's consent to expanded capacity [see H&S Code §§ 1597.44(d), 1597.465(d)]. A completed copy of this form must be submitted with the application for licensure if the applicant is applying for expanded capacity. If the applicant does not submit a consent, the license will be limited to the standard capacities for small or large family child care homes [see Application packet instructions]. However, if the applicant seeks a capacity of no more than 6 children for a small child care home, or no more than 12 children for a large home, the applicant must only notify the property owner or landlord [see § 100C.233] and is not required to use this form.

A small family child care home operated on rented or leased property may provide care for more than six and up to and including eight children if, among other requirements, the operator obtains the written consent of the property owner [H&S Code § 1597.44(d)]. Similarly, a large family child care home may provide care for more than 12 children and up to and including 14 children if, among other requirements, the operator obtains the written consent of the property owner or landlord of rented or leased property to be used as a family child care home [H&S Code § 1597.465(d)].

This form may also be adapted for use when an existing licensee seeks to expand the capacity of an existing family child care home.

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form, Department of Social Services Form LIC 198A, is a child abuse index check. The purpose of the child abuse index check is to ensure that no one in the facility has a history of abusing children. The form is available from the Department.

The licensee is responsible for submitting this form, a fingerprint card, and the appropriate fee directly to the Department of Justice [see Form LIC 198A instructions]. Separate forms for each person subject to the criminal record clearance requirement must be submitted with the application [see H&S Code § 1596.871(a),(b)]. A separate fee of $15, by check or money order payable to the Department of Justice, is required for each child abuse index check [see Form LIC 198A instructions].

A separate child abuse index check form is required for the following persons [see H&S Code § 1596.871(a),(b)(1)(A)-(D); see also Form LIC 198A instructions; Family home application packet instructions]:

- All applicants for licensure.
- All adults responsible for administration or direct supervision of staff.
- Adults residing in the home.
- Any person providing care and supervision to the children.
- Any other person required to submit a fingerprint card.
- Any staff person, volunteer, and employee who has contact with children.

With respect to the last category listed above, volunteers providing time-limited specialized services and students enrolled or participating at an accredited educational institution are exempt if they are directly supervised by the licensee or a facility employee with a criminal record clearance or exemption, spend no more than 16 hours per week at the facility, and are not left alone with children in care [H&S Code § 1596.871(b)(1)(D)(i),(ii)]. A volunteer who is a relative, legal guardian, or foster parent of a child in care is exempt [H&S Code § 1596.871(b)(1)(D)(iii)]. A contract repair person retained by the facility is also exempt if the person is not left alone with children in care [H&S Code § 1596.871(b)(1)(D)(iv)]. The Department may also exempt similar persons by regulation [H&S Code § 1596.871(b)(1)(D)(v)].

For further discussion of the criminal record clearance requirement, see § 100C.21[2] (child care centers) and § 100C.71[2] (family child care homes).

The Child Abuse Registry must be checked before granting a license for a child care center or family child care home [H&S Code § 1596.877(b)]. However, a license cannot be denied based on registry information unless the child abuse is substantiated [H&S Code § 1596.877(c)].

32-100C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 100C.241

§ 100C.241 Facility Sketch (LIC 999)

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form, Department of Social Services Form LIC 999, is a blank facility sketch covering the floor plan and the outdoor space of a child care facility. The form, available from the Department of Social Services, must be submitted with the initial application for licensure for both child care centers and family child care homes [see Form LIC 198A instructions; Family home application packet instructions].

The applicant must label the rooms and circle the rooms to be used for child care. The sketch must indicate door and window exits to be used in an emergency. Further, the sketch must include dimensions and keep close to scale [see Form LIC 999 instructions].

The yard sketch should show the overall yard size and all buildings in the yard, including the center or home (without detail), garage, and storage buildings. The sketch must indicate walks, driveways, play area, storage areas, gardens, recreation areas, major equipment, fences, and gates. Potentially hazardous areas, such as pools, garbage storage, and animal pens, must be shown on the sketch [see Form LIC 999 instructions; see also Supplemental Application Information, A17].

[b] Use by Child Care Centers

The applicant must submit a facility sketch including a floor plan of all rooms in the center building(s) intended for the use of the children in care with the initial application. The sketch must include the location and number of toilets, sinks, rooms to be used by nonambulatory children, exits, playground, fences, and other outdoor space intended for use by children, and distinguish between play areas, classrooms, office space, isolation area, and storage areas [see Supplemental Application Information, A17].

Child care centers must submit separate sketches of indoor and outdoor space for each component of the child care program, plus one sketch showing the entire center and the relationship between the indoor and outdoor spaces of all components, as well as any other use of the buildings [see Supplemental Application Information, A17].

This form may also be used to indicate emergency exits. If a sketch is used solely to indicate exits, the form should be attached to the center's emergency disaster plan [see § 100C.210].

[c] Use by Family Child Care Homes

The applicant must submit a facility sketch showing the home and yard with the initial application [see [a], above]. The sketch must note the areas that are off limits to the children in care and identify all exits [see Family home application packet instructions]. A copy of the form showing emergency exits should be attached to the home's emergency disaster plan [see § 100C.232].

§ 100C.242 Local Fire Inspection Authority Information (LIC 9054)

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form, Department of Social Services Form LIC 9054, is used by applicants to identify the local fire inspection authority that is responsible for inspecting the facility and issuing a fire clearance. The form is available from the Department.

During the initial application procedures, and before obtaining licensure, applicants for child care center licensure, and applicant for large family child care homes licensure, must secure and maintain a fire clearance approval from the city or county fire department, the district providing fire protection services, or the State Fire Marshal, whichever has primary jurisdiction over the area where the facility is to be located [see H&S Code § 1596.809; see also 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 101171(a), 102371]. The actual request for fire clearance is made and maintained by the Department [22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 101171(a), 102371]. The applicant use this form to expedite the fire clearance process.

The applicant must notify the Department if the facility plans to admit nonambulatory children so that the appropriate fire clearance can be obtained before those children are accepted [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101171(b); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101152(n)(1) ("nonambulatory person" defined)].

Small family child care homes are not subject to the fire clearance requirement, but must contain a fire extinguisher and smoke detector device that meet standards established by the State Fire Marshal [H&S Code § 1597.45(d); 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 102371(b)]. Although the summary for the current application booklet states that a fire clearance is required when the application is for seven or more children or nonambulatory children, this numerical limitation is intended to distinguish between large and small homes rather than between small homes and small homes with expanded capacity.

§ 100C.250 Notice of Employee Rights (LIC 9052)

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form, Department of Social Services Form LIC 9052, is a notification to all child care facility employees of their rights under the California Child Day Care Facility Act. The form is available from the Department. The licensee must give a copy of this notice to all child care center and family child care home personnel at the time of employment. The employee must sign the receipt acknowledging the copy, and the licensee must keep the acknowledgment in the employee's file [22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 101216(l), 102416(a); see H&S Code § 1596.881]. If an employee refuses to sign the notice form, a dated notation to that effect must be maintained in the employee's personnel record [22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 101216(l)(1)(C), 102416(a)(3)].

[b] Rights Afforded Employees

The rights and complaint procedures afforded employees of child care facilities are designed to ensure that employees are not discriminated against and that the health and safety of children are maintained by ensuring that the facility is following all rules and regulations [see H&S Code §§ 1596.880-1596.883]. Specifically, employers [see H&S Code § 1596.880(b) ("employer" defined)] cannot discharge, demote, or suspend, or threaten to do so, or in any manner discriminate against, any employee who takes any of the following actions [H&S Code § 1596.881]:

- Makes any good faith oral or written complaint to the Department of Social Services, an appropriate law enforcement agency, or the employer or employer's representative regarding the employer's violation of any licensing or other laws.
- Institutes, or causes to be instituted, any proceeding against the employer.
- Is, or will be, a witness or testify in a proceeding regarding the violation of any licensing or other laws.

- Refuses to perform work in violation of a licensing law or regulation after notifying the employer of the violation.

In addition to the above rights, a specific complaint procedure has been established for employees. An employee's claim alleging the employer's violation of the above rights must be submitted to both the employer within 45 days of the alleged violation and to the Division of Labor Standards and Enforcement no later than 90 days after the alleged violation [H&S Code § 1596.882(a)]. On receipt of the complaint, the Division of Labor Standards and Enforcement must make whatever investigation it deems appropriate, and within 30 days of receiving the complaint, review the facts of the complaint and set a hearing date or notify the parties of its decision [H&S Code § 1596.882(b),(e)].

If the Division of Labor Standards and Enforcement determines that the employer has violated one of the employee's rights, it must bring legal action against the employer [H&S Code § 1596.882(c)]. In any action against the employer, the court, for cause shown, may issue restraining orders and other appropriate relief including rehiring, reinstatement, and back pay [H&S Code § 1596.882(d)]. Except for other remedies available to the employee under a collective bargaining agreement, the above complaint procedure is the employee's exclusive means for presenting claims against the employer regarding violation of his or her rights [H&S Code § 1596.882(f)]. Employers who willfully refuse to rehire, promote, or restore an employee or former employee who has been determined to be eligible for rehiring or promotion by an appropriate complaint procedure, are guilty of a misdemeanor [H&S Code § 1596.883].

PART IV. FORMS

B. Operational Forms

§ 100C.251 Personal Rights of Children (LIC 613A)

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form, Department of Social Services Form LIC 613A, is a list of the personal rights afforded children attending child care centers. It is provided by the Department. Child care centers must inform each child's authorized representative of these personal rights [see [b][i], below] and give each a copy of the children's personal rights form at the time of admission [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101223(b); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101223(c) (licensee must ensure provision of children's rights)].

The center must ask the authorized representative to sign and date the acknowledgment of receipt statement and place the receipt in the child's file [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101223(b)(1)(A)]. Further, the notice must be posted in a prominent area within the center that is publicly accessible [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101223(b)(2)].

Family child care home licensees are not required to distribute this form, although children attending family child care homes are also entitled to similar specified rights [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 102423(a); see also [b][ii], below].

[b] Personal Rights Afforded Children

[i] Child Care Centers

Each child receiving services from a child care center has the following personal rights [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101223(a)]:

- To be accorded dignity in his or her personal relationships with staff and other persons.
- To be accorded safe, healthful, and comfortable accommodations, furnishings, and equipment to meet his or her needs.

- To be free from corporal or unusual punishment, infliction of pain, humiliation, intimidation, ridicule, coercion, threat, mental abuse, or other actions of a punitive nature, including the interference with daily living functions, such as eating, sleeping, or toileting, or withholding shelter, clothing, medication, or aids to physical functioning.
- To be informed, and have his or her authorized representative informed, by the licensee of the law regarding complaints, including the address and telephone number of the complaint receiving unit of the Department, and of information regarding confidentiality [see H&S Code § 1596.853; see also [c], below].
- To be free to attend religious services or activities of his or her choice and to have visits from the spiritual advisor of his or her choice (but attendance at religious services must be on a voluntary basis as decided by the authorized representative).
- Not to be locked in any room, building, or center premises during the day or night, but this right does not preclude licensees from locking exterior doors and windows or from establishing rules for the protection of children provided the children can exit the center.
- Not to be placed in any restraining device, except certain specified postural and supportive restraints to prevent children from falling are allowed if approved in advance by the Department and other requirements are satisfied [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101223(a)(7)].
- To receive or reject medical care, or health-related services, except for minors for whom a guardian, conservator, or other legal authority has been appointed [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101223(a)(8)].

The foregoing list sets forth the minimum rights of children in child care centers, and the licensee may provide for additional rights of children [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101223(a)].

[ii] Family Child Care Homes

Although a different regulation guarantees personal rights to children attending family child care homes, the rights are essentially the same as those provided child care center children. Each child receiving services from a family child care home has the following rights, which cannot be waived or abridged by the licensee regardless of parental consent or authorization [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 102423(a)]:

- To be treated with dignity in his or her personal relationship with staff and other persons.
- To receive safe, healthful, and comfortable accommodations, furnishings, and equipment.
- To have parents or guardians informed by the licensee of the law regarding complaints and the procedures for registering complaints confidentially, including the address and telephone number of the Department's complaint unit [see H&S Code § 1596.853; see also [c], below].
- To be free from corporal or unusual punishment, pain, humiliation, intimidation, ridicule, coercion, threat, mental abuse, or other punitive acts, including interference with daily functions of living, such as eating, sleeping, toileting, or withholding shelter, clothing, medication, or aids to physical functioning.

[c] Complaint Procedures

A part of each child's personal rights is the right to have his or her authorized representative informed by the licensee of the law regarding complaints [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 101223(a)(4), 102423(a)(3); see also H&S Code § 1596.853]. The licensee may fulfill this obligation by personally advising each authorized representative of the law or by making it a standard provision in the facility's admission agreement.

Any person may request an inspection of any child care center by sending a notice to the Department alleging a violation of any requirement imposed on child care facilities by California law. The complaint may be made orally or in writing [H&S Code § 1596.853(a)]. The identity of the complainant will remain confidential, and, unless the complainant requests otherwise, neither the substance of the complaint nor any copy of the complaint or of any record published, released, or otherwise made available to the licensee may disclose the name of any person named in the complaint except for the duly authorized officer, employee, or agent of the Department conducting the investigation or inspection [H&S Code § 1596.853(b)]. Child care providers must post permanent notices informing parents and guardians of their right to file complaints with the Department [H&S Code § 1596.857(d)].

For further discussion of the complaint procedures, see §§ 100C.51[2],[3] (day care centers), and 100C.91[2] (family child care homes).

PART IV. FORMS

B. Operational Forms

§ 100C.252 Notification of Parents' Rights for Child Care Centers (LIC 995)

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form, Department of Social Services Form LIC 995, is a notification of parents' rights containing a list of those rights and an acknowledgment of receipt. The form is available from the Department. The notice advises children's authorized representatives of their rights to enter and inspect the child care center in which their child is receiving care. Among other items, the notice also advises parents that they are entitled to be informed, on request of the name and type of association to the child care center of any adult that has been granted a criminal record exemption and that the name may be obtained by contacting the local licensing office, and to receive the Caregiver Background Check Process form [see § 100C.252[2]].

Child care centers must give the authorized representative a copy of the notice form and request that the receipt at the bottom of the form be signed and dated [see H&S Code § 1596.857; see also 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101218.1(b),(e)]. The signed and dated receipt must then be maintained in the child's file to document proper notification [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101218.1(c); see also LIC 995 instructions].

This notice must be posted in a prominent area within the center that is publicly accessible [H&S Code § 1596.857(d)]. It must include information stating that the specified registered sex offender database is available to the public at a web site, www.meganslaw.ca.gov, that is maintained by the Department of Justice [H&S Code § 1596.857(d)].

When providing this form to the authorized representative, child care centers must also provide a copy of the Caregiver Background Check Process form [LIC 995E] [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 102419(c)]. This form also serves as a receipt for the Caregiver Background Check Process form [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 102419(d)(1); see also § 100C.252[2]].

A variant of this form [LIC 995A] is used for family child care homes [see § 100C.252A].

[b] Authorized Representatives' Right to Inspect Facility

On presentation of identification, the responsible parent or guardian of a child receiving services in a child care center has the right to enter and inspect the facility, without advance notice, during the normal operating hours of the facility, or at any time that the child is receiving services in the facility [H&S Code § 1596.857(a)]. When inspecting facilities, parents must be respectful of the children's routines and programmed activities [H&S Code § 1596.857(a)]. The person present who is in charge of a child care facility may deny access to an adult whose behavior presents a risk to children present in the facility, and may deny access to noncustodial parents or guardians if requested by the responsible parent or legal guardian [H&S Code § 1597.857(g)]. In the absence of a legal right to deny access, however, child care facilities may be subject to warnings or penalties for failure to allow inspections. The Department will issue a warning citation for the first violation of the right [H&S Code § 1596.857(c)]. For any subsequent violation, the Department may impose a civil penalty of $50 per violation and take action to revoke the facility's license [H&S Code § 1596.857(c)].

[c] Prohibition Against Retaliation

No child care center may discriminate or retaliate against any child or parent or guardian because the parent or guardian has exercised his or her right to inspect the facility, or has lodged a complaint with the Department against the facility [H&S Code § 1596.857(b)].

§ 100C.252A Notification of Parents' Rights for Family Child Care Homes [LIC 995A]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form, Department of Social Services Form LIC 995A, is a notification of parents' rights, containing a list of those rights and an acknowledgment of receipt, for use by family child care homes [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 102419]. The form is available from the Department.

At the time of acceptance of each child into care after January 1, 2007, family care homes must provide the child's parent or guardian with a copy of this notice, the Caregiver Background Check Process form (LIC 995E), and the Family Child Care Consumer Awareness Information (LIC 9212) [see H&S Code § 1596.857(e); 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 102419(d)]. The home must request the child's parent or authorized representative to sign and date the bottom portion of this notice form, which acknowledges that the parent or authorized representative has received and read this notice [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 102419(d)(1); see H&S Code § 1596.857]. The signed and dated receipt must then be maintained in the child's file to document proper notification [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 102419(d)(1), 102421(a)]. If a parent or guardian refuses to sign the receipt, a dated notation to that effect, containing the parent or authorized representative's name and telephone number, must be retained in the child's records [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 102419(g)].

This notice must be posted in a prominent area within the home that is publicly accessible [H&S Code § 1596.857(d)]. It must include information stating that the specified registered sex offender database is available to the public at a web site, www.meganslaw.ca.gov, that is maintained by the Department of Justice [H&S Code § 1596.857(d),(e)]. A provider, however, is not required to provide any additional information regarding the location and proximity of registered sex offenders who reside in the community where the child care facility is located [H&S Code § 1596.857(f)].

[b] Contents of Form

This notice advises children's authorized representatives of their rights to enter and inspect the family child care home in which their child is receiving care [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 102419(a)(1); H&S Code § 1596.857]. For further discussion of these rights, see § 100C.252[1][b].

Among other items, the notice also advises authorized representatives of their rights (1) to be notified and receive a written notice listing names of any persons not allowed in the home when children are present if the Department has excluded someone from the home in writing after January 1, 2001; (2) to be informed (on request) of the name and relationship to the home of any adult that has been granted a criminal record exemption and that the name may be obtained by contacting the local licensing office; (3) to receive the Caregiver Background Check Process form; and (4) to be informed whether the facility has or does not have liability insurance that covers injury to client due to the negligence of the licensee or employees [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 102419(a); see also [2], below]. The form also includes an addendum and acknowledgment regarding any exclusion from the home and any subsequent reinstatement [see [2], below].

[c] Prohibition Against Retaliation

No family child care home may discriminate or retaliate against any child or any child's parent or authorized representative because the parent or authorized representative has exercised his or her right to inspect the family child care home or has lodged a complaint with the Department against the family child care home [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 102419(f)].

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form, Department of Social Services Form LIC 995B, is an addendum to the form in § 100C.252A. The form is available from the Department. A family child care home must provide a copy of this form sent by the Department, that is still in effect, to one parent or authorized representative of every child when the parent or authorized representative arranges for child care services or on the first day the child receives care, whichever is first [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 102419(h)].

If the home was notified by the Department to remove an individual, or bar entry by an individual, while the Department considered granting or denying a criminal record exemption for the individual [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 102370.1(a)], then the home must provide a copy of this form to one parent or authorized representative of every child currently in care within one day of receipt of this form from the Department [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 102370.1(b)(2)].

On receiving notice from the Department to remove an individual from the home [see H&S Code § 1596.871(c)(2)] or to exclude an individual from the home [see H&S Code § 1596.8897], the home must provide a copy of this form to one parent or authorized representative of every child currently in care within one day of receipt of the notice and this form from the Department [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 102417(r)(2)].

Whenever the home provides a copy of this form, the home must obtain a signed and dated receipt from the parent or authorized representative that acknowledges that he or she was given a copy of this form [22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 102370.1(b)(3), 102417(r)(3), 102419(i)]; see the bottom of this form. The signed and dated receipt must be maintained in the child's file and be made available to the Department on request [22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 102370.1(b)(4), 102417(r)(4), 102419(j)].

This form, Department of Social Services Form LIC 995C, is an addendum to the form in § 100C.252A. The form is available from the Department.

If a family child care home was notified by the Department to remove an individual, or bar entry by an individual, while the Department considered granting or denying a criminal record exemption for the individual [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 102370.1(a)], then on receiving further notice from the Department that the individual may return to the home, the home must provide a copy of this form to one parent or authorized representative of every child in care within one day of receipt of the notice and this form from the Department [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 102370.1(b)(2)(A)].

If the home received notice from the Department to remove an individual from the home [see H&S Code § 1596.871(c)(2)] or to exclude an individual from the home [see H&S Code § 1596.8897], then on receiving further notice from the Department that the individual may return to the home, the home must provide a copy of this form to one parent or authorized representative of every child in care within one day of receipt of the notice and this form from the Department [22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 102417(r)(2)(A), 102419(h)(1)].

Whenever the home provides a copy of this form, the home must obtain a signed and dated receipt from the parent or authorized representative that acknowledges that he or she was given a copy of this form [*22 Cal. [1] Comment--Use of Form

This form, Department of Social Services Form LIC 9040, is a child care facility roster. Child day care centers and family child care homes must maintain a current roster of children who are provided care in the facility [H&S Code § 1596.841; 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 102417(g)(8)]. This form is available from the Department of Social Services, but it is an optional form that may be used by the facility to comply with roster requirements.

The roster must include the name, address, and daytime telephone number of the child's parent or guardian, and the name and telephone number of the child's physician, and the date of enrollment and departure [H&S Code § 1596.841]. The roster must be kept in a central location at the facility, updated as needed, and made available to the Department on request. Child care rosters must be retained in the facility's files for three years [see Form LIC 9040 instructions].

B. Operational Forms

§ 100C.254 Unusual Incident/Injury/Death Report (LIC 624)

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form, Department of Social Services Form LIC 624, is a report of an unusual incident, injury, death, occurring at a child care center. Although child care centers are required to use it whenever a child is injured or dies at the facility, or some other unusual event occurs that endangers the health and safety of the children [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101212; see also [b], below], operators of family child care homes should also make it their custom and practice to complete the report on the occurrence of any injury, death, or unusual event.

[b] Reporting Requirements

Child care centers are under a continuing obligation to furnish reports to the Department regarding certain specified events that occur during the operation of the center [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101212]. The Department must be informed of the following events by the next working day during regular business hours [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101212(d)]:

- The death of any child from any cause.
- Any injury to any child that requires medical treatment.
- Any unusual incident or child absence that threatens the physical or emotional health or safety of any child.
- Any suspected physical or psychological abuse of any child.
- Epidemic outbreaks.

- Poisonings.
- Catastrophes.
- Fires or explosions that occur in or on the facility premises.

Within seven days of the event, the center must complete and return an original of this form to the Department [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101212(d); see also Form LIC 624 instructions]. The report must state the name, age, sex, and date of admission of the child involved, the date and nature of the event, the attending physician's name, findings, and treatment, if any, and the disposition of the case [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101212(d)(2)].

The occurrence of any of the above events must also be reported to the child's authorized representative [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101212(f)], and events involving epidemic outbreaks, poisonings, and catastrophes must be reported to the local health officer when appropriate [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101212(g); see 17 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 2500, 2502]. Additionally, fires or explosions in or on the facility premises must be immediately reported to the local fire authority, and in areas without an organized fire service, a report must be made to the State Fire Marshal within 24 hours [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101212(h)].

Other events that must be reported within 10 working days of the event are organizational changes at the facility; changes in the licensee's or applicant's mailing address [see § 100C.272]; changes in the chief executive officer of a corporation, the general partners of a partnership, or the controlling members of a limited liability company; and changes in the plan of operation that affect services to the children [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101212(e) (regulation refers to "controlling partners of limited liability corporation"); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101185(a)(2)-(5) (organizational changes required to be reported)].

This form, Department of Social Services Form LIC 700, is an identification and emergency information form available from the Department of Social Services. It is designed for use by child care centers. The form must be completed by the parent or guardian, and a signed copy of the form must be kept in the child's file [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101221].

Although family child care homes must maintain an emergency information card for each child receiving care, the use of this particular form is not required. However, the completed form includes all the information required by regulation [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 102417(g)(7)] and therefore may be used by family child care homes.

§ 100C.257 Affidavit Regarding Liability Insurance for Family Child Care Home (LIC 282)

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form, Department of Social Services Form LIC 282, is an affidavit in which the parents or guardians of a child being cared for in a family child care home state that they have been informed that the family child care home does not carry liability insurance or a bond as otherwise required by law [see H&S Code § 1597.531; see also [b], below]. Use of this form, available from the Department of Social Services, is mandatory [H&S Code § 1597.531(a)].

Neither the execution of this form nor the lack of insurance or bond affects the right of parents to bring a legal action against the home [see [2], below].

[b] Liability Insurance or Bond Requirements

All family child care homes for children must either maintain liability insurance for injuries to clients and guests or post a bond [H&S Code § 1597.531(a)]. If liability insurance is maintained, it must be in the amount of at least $100,000 per occurrence and $300,000 in the total annual aggregate and cover claims based on the negligence of the child care licensee or its employees. If a bond is posted, it must be in the amount of $300,000 [H&S Code § 1597.531(a); see H&S Code § 1597.531(b)] (conditions for naming property owner, if other than home operator, and homeowners' associations, on policy or bond); see also § 100C.13[2]].

[c] Affidavits in Lieu of Insurance or Bond

In lieu of the requisite liability insurance or bond [see [b], above], a family child care home may maintain a file of affidavits signed by each parent with a child enrolled in the home [H&S Code § 1597.531]. The affidavits must state that the parent has been informed that the family child care home does not carry liability insurance or a bond according to standards established by the state of California [H&S Code § 1597.531(a)].

If the provider does not own the premises used as the family child care home, or the premises are shared with a homeowners' or condominium association, the affidavit must also state that the parent has been informed that the liability insurance, if any, of the property's owner, or association, may not provide coverage for losses arising out of, or in connection with, the operation of the home, except for losses caused by, or resulting from, an action or omission by the property owner or homeowners' association, for which the owner or association would otherwise be liable under the law [see H&S Code § 1597.531(a)].

The affidavits must be on a form provided by the Department and be reviewed at each licensing inspection [H&S Code § 1597.531(a)].

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form, Department of Social Services Form LIC 9108, is a statement acknowledging the requirement to report suspected child abuse. This form is available from the Department.

Whenever a mandated reporter in his or her professional capacity or within the scope his or her employment has knowledge of or observes a child whom the mandated reporter knows or reasonably suspects has been the victim of child abuse or neglect, the mandated reporter must make an official report [Pen Code § 11166(a); see Pen Code § 11165.9 (appropriate agencies)]. The mandated reporter must report telephonically to the agency immediately or as soon as is practicably possible, and prepare and send, fax, or electronically transmit a written follow-up within 36 hours of receiving information about the incident [Pen Code § 11166(a)]. The term "mandated reporter" is broadly defined [see Pen Code § 11165.7(a)] and includes licensees, administrators, and employees of child care facilities [Pen Code § 11165.7(a)(10)].

The licensee must give each employee a copy of specified Penal Code statutes before employment [Pen Code § 11166.5(a)]. By signing the acknowledgment of responsibility, the employee acknowledges its receipt [see [2], below]. The licensee must give a copy to the employee and retain the original in the employee's file [see [2], below].

§ 100C.259 Physician's Report (LIC 701)

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form, Department of Social Services Form LIC 701, is a physician's report that must be used by child care centers to secure a health evaluation from a physician, physician's assistant, or licensed nurse practitioner before admitting the child to the center [see [b], below]. This assessment enables the licensee to assess whether the center can provide the necessary health-related services to the child [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101220(a)]. The form is available from the Department of Social Services.

A copy of this form must be retained in the child's file [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101221(b)(8); see §§ 100C.30[3][c], 100C.140].

[b] Medical Assessment Requirements

Before, or within 30 days following the acceptance of each child to a child care center, the licensee must obtain a written medical assessment performed by, or under the supervision of, a licensed physician. The assessment cannot be more than one year old when obtained by the center [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101220(a)]. The assessment must include the following information [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101220(b)]:

- A record of any infectious or contagious diseases that would preclude care of the child by the licensee.
- The results of a test for tuberculosis.
- The identification of special problems and needs of the child.
- The identification of any prescribed medications being taken by the child.

- The child's ambulatory status.

The Department can require the licensee to obtain a current written medical assessment, if necessary to verify the appropriateness of a child's placement [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101220(c)].

If the requisite medical assessment is not available for a child and cannot be obtained within 30 days of admission, a medical appointment date must be obtained from the parent on the child's admission, and a tuberculosis test must be performed within 30 days after admission [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101220(d); but see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101220(e),(f) (documentation of medical assessment not required for children enrolled in elementary school, and children whose parents practice religious faith healing excepted from requirements)].

[c] Exemption on Religious Grounds

A physician's report is not required for children whose authorized representatives adhere to religious faith healing or other spiritual practices. To be exempt, the authorized representative must provide information relative to the child's health history, and sign a statement including all of the following [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101220(f)]:

- A statement indicating that they will accept full responsibility for the child's health.
- Their refusal to obtain a medical examination of their child.
- A request that no medical care be given to the child.

§ 100C.260 Consent for Emergency Medical Treatment (LIC 627)

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form, Department of Social Services Form LIC 627, is a consent for emergency medical and dental care. The licensee must secure a consent form from the authorized representative of all children in care unless the child is exempt [see [b], below]. The form is available from the Department of Social Services.

When child care center teachers supervise activities away from the center premises, they must carry a copy of this form for each child, or the telephone numbers of the authorized representatives, relatives, or others who can assume responsibility in an emergency for each child excepted from the requirement for an emergency medical treatment consent form because of religious faith healing practices [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101226(c)(1)(B); see [b], below].

A signed consent form for emergency medical treatment must be retained in the child's file unless the child is exempt [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101221(b)(8)(C); see [b], below].

[b] Exemption on Religious Grounds

This consent form is not required for children whose authorized representatives adhere to religious faith healing or other spiritual practices. To be exempt, the authorized representative must provide information relative to the child's health history, and sign a statement including all of the following [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101221(b)(8)(C); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101220(f)]:

- A statement indicating that they will accept full responsibility for the child's health.
- Their refusal to obtain a medical examination of their child.
- A request that no medical care be given to the child.

The licensee must retain a copy of this statement in the child's files [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101221(b)(8)(C)].

PART IV. FORMS

B. Operational Forms

§ 100C.261 Agreement Allowing Child to Leave Center on Own

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an agreement under which the authorized representative of a child attending a school-age child care center consents to allow the child to leave the center on his or her own. This type of agreement is of course applicable only for those children who are old enough to leave by themselves, and should be entered into only by parents who believe their children are responsible enough to leave the facility by themselves.

Any agreement between centers and parents under which school-age children are permitted to leave the center on their own must be in writing, signed and dated by the director and authorized representative, and filed in the child's records [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101529.1(c)]. Typically such an agreement will be very simple and informal document. This form therefore is drafted in a "permission slip" format that allows for the names of the parties, and any significant conditions or limitations on the permission granted, to be written in by hand.

[b] Sign-Out Procedures

All child care centers must develop, maintain, and implement a written procedure to transfer responsibility for the child from the center to the authorized representative. The procedure must include, at a minimum, a sign-out sheet signed by the person removing the child from the center [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101229.1]. School-age children whose authorized representative has agreed that they can leave the center on their own, must still be signed out by center staff [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101529.1(c)].

[a] Use of Form

This form is an infant care center's needs and services and activities plan. This type of plan must be used by child care centers that provide services to children under the age of two. This form includes a sample feeding plan, diaper changing schedule, and activities plan, but does not include a toilet training plan.

Unlike this form, plans may also be submitted in chart form. Charts that, for example, place the required services in the left column (such as feeding schedules and indoor and outdoor activities) and the days of the week along the top are acceptable so long as all the required information is included in the chart.

[b] Infant Care Centers

[i] In General

An "infant care center" is any child care center or part of a center where less than 24-hour per day, nonmedical care and supervision are provided to infants (that is, children under two years of age) in a group setting [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101152(i)(1),(2); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101152(c)(3) ("care and supervision" defined)]. However, children whose developmental needs require continuation in an infant care center may remain there up to three years of age [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101361].

Child care centers providing group infant care are highly regulated. They are subject to all the regulations applicable to all child care centers [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 101151-101239.2] and the special regulations applicable only to infant care centers [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101351; see 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 101351-101439.1]. These include all operating requirements and requirements for the physical environment that child care centers must meet, plus special operating and physical environment requirements applicable only to infant care centers [see § 100C.35[2]]. These special operating requirements include the development of a needs and services plan [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 101419.2, 101419.3; see also [ii], below], a feeding plan [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101427; see also [iii], below], a toilet training plan [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101428; see also [iv], below], and an activities plan [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101430; see also [v], below].

[ii] Needs and Services Plan

Before an infant's first day at the center, the infant care center director or assistant director must complete a needs and services plan with assistance from the infant's authorized representative. The authorized representative's participation in preparing the plan must be verified by his or her signature on the plan [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101419.2(a)]. The needs and services plan must be in writing and include an individual feeding plan, toilet training plan, if applicable, any services that may be needed by the child that differ from those provided by the center's normal program, such as special exercises for physically handicapped infants, and a plan for subsequent personal interviews with the authorized representative [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101419.2(b)]. The center must provide authorized representative with a copy of the plan and any subsequent updates [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101419.2(c)].

The plan must be updated at least quarterly, or as often as needed to ensure its accuracy, by the director, assistant director, or teacher with help from the child's authorized representative. The authorized representative's participation in updating the plan must be verified by his or her signature on the plan [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101419.3].

[iii] Feeding Plan

In addition to the general food service requirements [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101227; see § 100C.32], centers must prepare individual feeding plans for each infant [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101427(a),(b)]. The director or assistant director and the infant's authorized representative and/or physician must develop the plan before the infant's first day at the center [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101427(b)(1),(2)]. The authorized representative's participation in developing and updating the plan must be verified by his or her signature on the plan [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101427(b)(2)(A)]. All feeding must occur in accordance with the plan [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101427(c)].

The plan must include instructions for special diet, a feeding schedule, whether the infant is receiving breast milk or type of formula, a schedule to introduce solid foods, food consistency, food likes and dislikes, food allergies, and a schedule to introduce cups and utensils [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101427(b)(3)(A)-(H)]. The plan must be updated as frequently as requested by the authorized representative, or as necessary to reflect changes in the plan, and the director or assistant director must discuss current feeding theory with the parents, including the dangers of honey [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101427(b)(4),(5)]. Bottle-fed infants must be fed at least once every four hours, and the center must have appropriate food available for the infants [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101427(c)(1),(2)].

Numerous other requirements must be satisfied by the center regarding the feeding of infants, including the regulation of the type, storage, and preparation of formula allowed, the labeling of bottles and food brought by the parents, the sterilization of bottles and nipples, and the holding of infants while being fed [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101427(d)-(j),(n)]. Additionally, honey or corn syrup cannot be served to infants, commercially prepared baby food in jars must be transferred to a dish before being given to infants, arrangements for privacy, if requested, must be given to mothers who want to nurse their babies, and bathing or rinsing diapers or clothes is not allowed in the food preparation area [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101427(k)-(m),(o)].

[iv] Toilet Training Plan

The center must have a written toilet training plan for infants being toilet trained [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101428(a)]. The director or assistant director and the infant's authorized representative must develop a plan [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101428(a)(1)], which must include methods of toilet training and the introduction and use of appropriate training equipment and clothing [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101428(a)(2)]. An infant cannot be required to wear diapers during toilet training unless the plan specifically so indicates [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101428(a)(3)]. The plan must be followed, and center staff must have ready access to the plan for infants in their care [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101428(a)(4),(5)].

Other detailed requirements must be met for facilities caring for the special needs of infants, including keeping infants clean and dry at all times by having sufficient changes of clothing, placing soiled clothing in air tight containers, and requirements for the changing of diapers [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101428(b)-(d)]. When potty chairs are used, additional requirements must be met, as well as providing instructions and assistance in hand washing after use of a toilet [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101428(e),(f)].

[v] Activities Plan

Infant care centers must also develop, maintain, and implement a written plan to ensure indoor and outdoor activities designed to meet the needs of infants. The plan must include providing for quiet and active play, rest and relaxation, eating, toileting, individual attention, and being held by care providers [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101430(a)(1)]. The center must ensure that the infants participate in these activities and be given an opportunity to sleep without distraction or disturbance from other activities, but no infant may be forced to sleep, stay awake, or stay in the napping area [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101430(a)(2),(3) (center may schedule nap for infants over 12 months)].

§ 100C.270 Request for Waiver of Licensing Requirements

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a request for a waiver of one or more licensing requirements applicable to child care centers. Before requesting a waiver, the applicant should first determine whether it is exempt from the licensing requirements under the California Child Day Care Facilities Act [see § 100C.10[4]]. If the facility is exempt, a request for a waiver is not necessary.

A written request for a waiver or exception must be submitted to the Department of Social Services and be accompanied by substantiating evidence supporting the request [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101175(b)(2)]. The request is usually made by a letter to the Department specifying the specific requirement for which the waiver or exception is sought.

[b] Appropriateness of Waivers or Exceptions; Contents of Request

Licensing agencies may approve the use of alternative concepts, programs, services, procedures, techniques, equipment, space, personnel qualifications or staffing ratios, or the conduct of experimental or demonstration projects if that alternative provides safe and adequate services, and is not detrimental to the health and safety of any child in care [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101175(b)(1)]. Waivers often relate to situations when the facility physically cannot meet a licensing requirement, such as not having the required square footage for outdoor activity space. Alternatively, exceptions are usually sought when a facility cannot presently meet a certain licensing requirement, but the requirement will be satisfied at some time in the near future. An example of an exception is when a teacher does not presently meet the qualification requirements but will fulfill the requirements by taking the necessary courses when the next school year begins.

The Department will notify the applicant in writing of the approval or denial of the request within 30 days of the receipt of the request for waiver or exception. Alternatively, the Department will inform the applicant of the need for additional information to substantiate the request within the same time frame [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101175(b)(3)]. The applicant/licensee must maintain a copy of the approval or denial in the center records and available for review [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101175(b)(3)(A)].

32-100C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 100C.271

§ 100C.271 Withdrawal of License Application

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a request to withdraw an application for an initial child care facility license. It should be used after the initial application for a child care center or family child care home license has been filed [see §§ 100C.200, 100C.230] when the applicant no longer desires to open a child care facility.

[b] Withdrawal of Application and Effect on Proceedings Against Applicant

Applicants have the right to withdraw an application for an initial or renewal license. The application for withdrawal must be in writing [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101180]. Although these regulatory requirements do not specifically apply to family child care homes [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 102351.1], no applicable law precludes the withdrawal of a family child care home license application, and prudence suggests that the request be presented in writing. Additionally, applications for child care center licenses are deemed withdrawn if, after 30 days from receiving notice from the Department that the application is incomplete, the applicant still does not complete the application [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101178(a)(1); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101152(c)(11); see also § 100C.22[1]].

The withdrawal of an application for a child care center or family child care home license after filing does not, unless the Department consents to the withdrawal in writing, deprive the Department of the authority to institute or continue a proceeding brought against the applicant for denial of the license on legal grounds [H&S Code § 1596.854].

This form is a notification by a licensed care center that the center intends to make structural changes at the facility. Licensees must notify the Department before any actual construction or alterations are made to existing or new buildings [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101237(a)]. Because notification is required before changes are made, the form should be used by centers that intend to make proposed changes but have not yet made the changes. The Department has authority to require a building inspection if the agency suspects that a hazard to the children's health and safety exists [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 101237(b)].

PART IV. FORMS

C. Miscellaneous Forms

§ 100C.274 Departmental Notice of Intended Sale of Center

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice to the Department of Social Services of the intended sale of a licensed child care center. It must be given to the Department by the licensee (seller) for any sale of the center that will result in a new license being issued to the buyer [H&S Code § 1597.14(a)]. The notice must be given to the Department at least 30 days before the transfer of the property or business, or at the time that a bona fide offer is made, whichever period is longer [H&S Code § 1597.14(a)(1)]. A notice of intended sale must also be given to the parents or legal guardians of all children cared for in the center [H&S Code § 1597.14(a)(1),(2); see § 100C.275[2]]. The sale cannot be finalized until at least 30 days after the seller gives this notice to the Department [H&S Code § 1597.14(c)].

The applicable statute requires only that notice of the seller's intent to sell the center be given to the Department. It does not specifically require that any other details regarding the proposed sale be included in the notice. Absent future legislation or the promulgation of regulations covering this matter, specific information regarding the proposed sale, if any, that is included in the notice is at the seller's discretion.

[b] Additional Notice Required to Buyer

In addition to the notice of proposed sale that must be given to the Department (this form), the seller of a licensed child care center must also give written notice to the prospective buyer that the buyer must obtain a license to operate the center. The seller must then send a copy of this written notice to the Department. The prospective buyer must then submit an application for a license [see § 100C.200[2]] within five days after the seller accepts the buyer's offer to purchase [H&S Code § 1597.14(b)(2)]. However, none of these requirements apply if the proposed buyer does not intend to continue operating the purchased property as a day care center [see H&S Code § 1597.14(b)(1)].

[c] Effect of Compliance or Noncompliance With Notice Requirements

Ordinarily, if a licensee sells a child care center to a buyer who will continue after the sale to operate the facility as a child care center, the property and business may not be transferred until the buyer qualifies for a license or a provisional license [H&S Code § 1597.14(b)]. However, if the parties to the sale comply with all notice requirements discussed in [a] and [b], above, the transfer may be completed and the buyer will not be considered to be operating an unlicensed facility while the Department makes a final determination on the application for licensure [H&S Code § 1597.14(e)]. The Department gives priority to applications submitted relative to a sale in order to ensure timely transfer of the property and business [H&S Code § 1597.14(d)].

C. Miscellaneous Forms

32-100C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 100C.275

§ 100C.275 Parental Notice of Intended Sale of Child Care Center

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice to parents of the proposed sale of a licensed child care center. If a sale will result in a new license being issued, the licensee must notify the parents (or legal guardian) of children in the center of the licensee's intent to sell the center. The notice must be given at least 30 days before the transfer of the property or business, or at the time that a bona fide offer is made, whichever period is longer [H&S Code § 1597.14(a)(1)]. Notice must also be given to the Department of Social Services [see § 100C.274[2]]. For children who are admitted to the center after the licensee has given notice of the intended sale to the Department, the licensee must give this notice to their parents (or legal guardian) before entering into an admission agreement [H&S Code § 1597.14(a)(2)].

Although the selling licensee is solely responsible for giving this notice, the buyer may wish to have some input into the precise language used. Because the buyer is interested in maintaining maximum enrollment during the transition stage, he or she may want the notice to contain certain "comfort" assurances regarding the new ownership of the center. For example, these might include assurances that the sale should not interrupt day-to-day activities of the center and/or that there will be continuity in staff members at the center. If the seller is not willing to include these or similar matters in the notice, the buyer may consider including them in a separate notice to parents.

[b] Additional Notice and Other Requirements

In addition to this notice, the seller is also required to notify the buyer that the buyer must obtain a license in order to operate the child care center. A copy of that notice must be sent to the Department [H&S Code § 1597.14(b)(1)]. Additional requirements for the proposed sale of a child care center are discussed in § 100C.274[1].

Scope

Scope

This chapter covers various vital records, specifically birth certificates, fetal death certificates, marriage certificates, and death certificates. It discusses how to file, amend, or obtain copies of these records. This chapter also discusses delayed birth registrations and foundling registrations. Finally, it outlines the procedures required for an adult adoptee to obtain information regarding his or her birth parents [see Fam. Code §§ 9200-9206].

For discussion of adoption, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 12, Adoptions. For further discussion of birth and death records, including administrative proceedings [see Health & Safety Code §§ 102525-102610] and court proceedings [see Health & Safety Code §§ 103450-103490] to establish a record of birth or death, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 99, Birth and Death, Establishing the Fact of. For detailed discussion of marriage and marriage records, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 359 Marriage (Matthew Bender)].

CHAPTER 101 VITAL RECORDS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

32-101 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 101.10

§ 101.10 Live Birth Registration

[1] Duty to Register

Every live birth [see 17 Cal. Code Reg. § 915; [2], below] must be registered within 10 days of the date of birth with the local registrar of births and deaths for the district in which the birth occurred [Health & Safety Code § 102400]. If the birth is in a hospital or a state-licensed alternative birth center, the hospital or center administrator or his or her representative is responsible for registering the certificate of live birth [Health & Safety Code § 102405; see Health & Safety Code § 1204(b)(4) ("alternative birth center" defined)]. If the birth is not in a hospital or a state-licensed alternative birth center, the attending physician or, in the absence of a physician, the professionally licensed midwife or, in the absence of a physician or midwife, either parent, is responsible for entering the information on the certificate [see Health & Safety Code § 102425 and discussion in § 101.200[1][b]], getting the required signatures, and registering the certificate [Health & Safety Code § 102415].

The local registrar of births and deaths must carefully examine each birth certificate presented to him or her before accepting the certificate for registration. If a certificate is not properly completed, the registrar must not accept it until further information is furnished as required by law [Health & Safety Code § 102305]. The local registrar must then transmit certificates accepted for registration to the State Registrar of Vital Statistics [Health & Safety Code § 102345].

[2] "Live Birth" Defined

A "live birth" occurs when a product of conception breathes or shows any other evidence of life after being completely extracted or expelled from its mother. Other evidences of life include beating of the heart, pulsation of the umbilical cord, or definite movement of voluntary muscles. In determining whether a birth is a live birth, it does not matter whether the umbilical cord has been cut or the placenta is attached [17 Cal. Code Reg. § 915].

[3] Medical and Health Report

For each live birth that is registered, a confidential [see Health & Safety Code § 102460 (confidentiality)] medical and health report must be completed [see Health & Safety Code § 102445 (contents of medical and health report); see also § 101.201] and submitted to the State Registrar of Vital Statistics for filing [Health & Safety Code § 102450(b)]. If the birth occurs in a hospital, the hospital administrator or the administrator's representative must complete the report and submit it to the local registrar. If the birth is not in a hospital, the local registrar must complete the medical and health report when he or she receives the certificate of live birth for registration [Health & Safety Code § 102450(a)]. In either case, the local registrar must then submit the completed report to the State Registrar for filing [Health & Safety Code § 102450(b)].

[4] Foundling Registration

When an unidentified live child less than one year old is found, the person or institution with whom the child is placed must register a certificate of finding with the local registrar of births and deaths within four days of the finding [Health & Safety Code § 102500; see § 101.202]. The certificate of finding serves the purposes of a certificate of live birth [Health & Safety Code § 102515] and must contain [Health & Safety Code § 102505]:

- The name [see Health & Safety Code § 102510 (person or institution where child is placed to name child) and discussion in § 101.03[1][b]], sex, and color or race of the child;
- The date and place of finding; and
- The name of the person or institution with whom the child is placed.

If the child is identified later, and a certificate of birth is found or obtained, this identification must be reported to the State Registrar, who will enter it on the certificate of finding [Health & Safety Code § 102520].

[5] Delayed Registration

A person 18 years of age or older who was born in California and whose birth has not been registered may file an application with the State Registrar for the delayed registration of his or her birth [Health & Safety Code § 102535; see § 101.203]. If the person is under age 18, application for delayed registration may be made only by that person's mother, father, or legal guardian or by the attending physician or principal attendant at the birth [Health & Safety Code § 102535]. A delayed certificate of birth is not evidence in an action or proceeding involving estates of decedents or a proceeding to establish heirship, unless the affidavit of at least one person who knew the facts was filed at the time the certificate was obtained [Health & Safety Code § 102530].

An application for delayed registration of birth must be accompanied by affidavits and documentary evidence to enable the State Registrar to determine whether the birth did in fact occur at the place and date alleged [Health & Safety Code § 102550]. If such evidence is not available, the person seeking delayed registration must petition the superior court to judicially establish the fact of birth [see Health & Safety Code § 103450; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 99, Birth and Death, Establishing the Fact of (Matthew Bender)].

CHAPTER 101 VITAL RECORDS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 101.11 Fetal Death Registration

Every fetal death in which the fetus has advanced to or beyond the twentieth week of uterogestation must be registered with the local registrar of births and deaths of the district in which death was officially pronounced. The fetal death must be registered within eight days of the death and before any disposition of the fetus [Health & Safety Code § 102950; see § 101.210]. The funeral director or a person acting in lieu of a funeral director must prepare the certificate and register it with the local registrar [Health & Safety Code § 102955].

The local registrar of births and deaths must carefully examine each death certificate presented to him or her before accepting the certificate for registration. If a certificate is not properly completed, the registrar must not accept it until further information is furnished as required by law [Health & Safety Code § 102305].

A "fetal death" is a death before the complete expulsion or extraction from its mother of a product of conception, irrespective of the duration of pregnancy. The death is indicated by the fact that after the separation the fetus does not breathe or show any other evidence of life, such as beating of the heart, pulsation of the umbilical cord, or definite movement of voluntary muscles [17 Cal. Code Reg. § 916].

Every death must be registered with the local registrar of births and deaths in the district in which the death is officially pronounced or the body found. Registration must take place within eight days of death and before any disposition of the human remains [Health & Safety Code § 102775]. The local registrar of births and deaths cannot accept any certificate for registration unless and until it contains all information required by law [see Health & Safety Code § 102305].

Any beneficially interested person may petition the superior court for an order judicially establishing the fact, time, and place of a death [Health & Safety Code § 103450(a)]. This procedure can be used, for example, when a death was not previously registered, or a certified copy of the death certificate cannot be obtained. The petition must be filed with the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the death took place or in which the decedent was domiciled at the time of death [Health & Safety Code § 103450(a); see also Health & Safety Code § 103466 (procedure for determination of death in event of mass fatalities incident)]. If the allegations of the petition are established to the court's satisfaction at the hearing, the court may issue an order determining that the death did in fact occur at the time and place shown by the proof at the hearing [Health & Safety Code § 103475]. The order is made on State Registrar Form VS-109 (not reproduced in this chapter) and is effective when a certified copy is filed with the State Registrar [Health & Safety Code § 103485]. § 101.12A Marriage Records

At the time the parties to a marriage apply for a marriage license [see Fam. Code § 350 et seq. (marriage licenses)], they must obtain a certificate of registry of marriage from the county clerk [Fam. Code § 359(a)]. The applicants must fill out the certificate in the presence of the county clerk issuing the marriage license, and present it to the person solemnizing the marriage (clergy member, civil official, or other authorized person) [Fam. Code § 359(c); see Fam. Code § 400 (authorized persons)]. The person solemnizing the marriage must complete the certificate of registry and return it and the endorsed marriage license [see Fam. Code § 422 (endorsement requirements)] to the county recorder of the county in which the license was issued within 10 days after the ceremony [Fam. Code §§ 359(c),(d), 423; Health & Safety Code §§ 103150, 103175; see also Fam. Code § 307; Health & Safety Code § 103180 (registration for members of religious denominations not having clergy to solemnize or enter marriage)]. At the request of either party to a marriage, the person solemnizing the marriage must issue a marriage certificate [Fam. Code § 424].

Any beneficially interested person may petition the superior court for an order judicially establishing the fact, time, and place of a marriage [Health & Safety Code § 103450(a)]. This procedure can be used, for example, if the marriage was not previously registered as required by law, or copies of the marriage documents cannot be obtained. The petition must be filed with the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the death took place or in which the decedent was domiciled at the time of death [Health & Safety Code § 103450(a)]. If the allegations of the petition are established to the court's satisfaction at the hearing, the court may issue an order determining that the marriage did in fact occur at the time and place shown by the proof at the hearing [Health & Safety Code § 103475]. The order is made on State Registrar Form VS-122 (not reproduced in this chapter) and is effective when a certified copy is filed with the State Registrar [Health & Safety Code § 103485]. § 101.13 Amending Records

Any erroneous record of a birth, death, or marriage may be amended [Health & Safety Code §§ 103225-103255]. The process begins with an affidavit under oath by the person asserting that the error exists [Health & Safety Code § 103225]. For further discussion of how to amend an erroneous birth or death record, see § 101.220[1].

There are reasons for amendment other than error. A death record may be amended when a previously unidentified body is identified [Health & Safety Code §§ 103275, 103280]. Medical and health section data on birth and death records may be amended when the information given is modified by supplemental information [Health & Safety Code § 103300]. Birth records may be amended by supplemental name reports [Health & Safety Code §§ 103325-103340] or to reflect a court-ordered name change [Health & Safety Code §§ 103400-103410; see § 101.223 see also Wynn v. Superior Court (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 346, 350 ; 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 86 (trial court has authority to adjudicate facts concerning biological relationship, and is obligated to order the issuance of a new birth certificate where plaintiff seeks to correct original birth certificate so it would state the actual names of her birth parents as opposed to the fictitious names her mother used when the original certificate was prepared)]. Birth records may also be amended by establishing a new birth certificate in the following circumstances:

- After adoption [Health & Safety Code §§ 102625-102710].
- After adjudication of the facts of parentage [Health & Safety Code §§ 102725-102735; see § 101.221].
- After acknowledgment of paternity [Health & Safety Code §§ 102750-102765; see § 101.222].
- To reflect a change of sex [Health & Safety Code §§ 103425-103445].

For forms and for further discussion of amendments, see §§ 101.220-110.220B].

Birth records also may be amended by establishing a new birth certificate for the purpose of deleting entries in the original certificate regarding race or color that, in the registrant's opinion, "constitute racial slurs or are otherwise offensive" or contain a "derogatory, demeaning, or colloquial racial descriptor" [Health & Safety Code §§ 103260, 103355]. The State Registrar of Vital Statistics must defer to the registrant's determination that an entry is offensive [Health & Safety Code §§ 103260(a), 103355]. Once a new birth certificate is established, the old certificate will be supplanted and will not be made available for public inspection [Health & Safety Code §§ 103260, 103365, 103375]. The State Registrar will provide a certified copy of the new birth certificate to the registrant without additional charge [Health & Safety Code §§ 103260(b)(2), 103370; see Health & Safety Code § 103700 (application fee for new certificate)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

32-101 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 101.14

§ 101.14 Adoption Information

[1] In General

Licensed adoption agencies, in cooperation with the Department of Social Services, maintain records concerning the medical and social history of the birth parents of children who are released by their parents or otherwise made available for adoption [see Fam. Code §§ 9200, 9201]. In addition, a licensed adoption agency or the Department may release information to help adoptees and adoptive parents to contact the adoptee's birth parents, in cases in which the following occur [Fam. Code § 9203(a), (c)]:

- The relinquishment or consent to adoption was signed or the birth parent's rights were involuntarily terminated by court action on or after January 1, 1984; and
- Neither the birth parent nor the adoptee has indicated that he or she does not wish to have his or her name or address disclosed.

For adoptions in which the relinquishment or consent was signed or the birth parent's rights were involuntarily terminated by court action before January 1, 1984, disclosure of this information may be available under Fam. Code § 9204. Adoptees and their biological siblings who are at least 18 years old may also use the service described above to locate each other [Fam. Code § 9205]. Letters, photographs, and other items of personal property may be deposited with the Department or a licensed adoption agency for delivery to adoptees, adoptive parents, and birth parents [Fam. Code § 9206].

[2] Requests for Medical Background Report

Before a child is placed for adoption, the Department of Social Services or the delegated county adoption agency [see Fam. Code § 8515 (definition)] must submit a written medical report to the prospective adopting parents, who must acknowledge in writing the receipt of the report. The report must cover the child's medical background and any available medical background on the biological parents [see Fam. Code §§ 8608, 8706, 8817, 8909].

The report on the child must contain all known diagnostic information, including current medical reports, psychological evaluations, scholastic information, and all known information on the child's developmental history and family life [see Fam. Code §§ 8608, 8706, 8817, 8909]. The biological parents may provide a blood sample so that DNA testing can be done at a later date. However, they are not required to do so, and their failure to provide a sample will not affect the adoption [Fam. Code §§ 8706(c), 8817(d), 8909(c)]. The report form must include inquiries to elicit information about any genetic or hereditary illness, disease, or defect [see Fam. Code §§ 8608, 8706, 8817, 8909].

Adoptees who are 18 or older, married adoptees, and the adoptive parents of adoptees under 18 are entitled to a copy of the medical background report. If the Department of Social Services or the licensed adoption agency that made the report does not provide a copy of it on the request of a qualified adoptee or parent, the adoptee or parent may petition the superior court for review of the reasonableness of that action. Any names and addresses in the report will be removed unless the person requesting the report has already received that information [Fam. Code § 9202(c); see [3], below].

[3] Requests for Information About Birth Parents

The Department of Social Services or the adoption agency must disclose the names and addresses of record of the birth parents on the request of an adoptee who is 21 or older, if the birth parents have consented in writing to this disclosure [Fam. Code § 9203(a)(1); see § 101.231 (consent to disclosure)]. The Department or the adoption agency must disclose the names and addresses of the birth parents on the request of the adoptive parent of an adoptee who is under age 21 if the Department finds that the disclosure is justified by medical necessity or other extraordinary circumstances [Fam. Code § 9203(a)(3)]. These disclosure provisions apply only to adoptions in which the relinquishment for or consent to adoption was signed or the birth parent's rights were involuntarily terminated by court action on or after January 1, 1984 [Fam. Code § 9203(g)]. However, notwithstanding the above, contact between an adult adoptee and his or her birth parents may also be arranged if each has filed a written consent with the Department or the licensed adoption agency that handled the adoption [Fam. Code § 9204; see § 101.135].

[4] Requests for Information About Adoptees

On request of the birth parent of an adoptee who is 21 or older, the Department of Social Services or the adoption agency must disclose the name and address of the adoptee, if the adoptee has indicated in writing that he or she wishes his or her name and address to be disclosed [Fam. Code § 9203(a)(2)]. This requirement applies only to adoptions in which the relinquishment for or consent to adoption was signed or the birth parent's rights were involuntarily terminated by court action on or after January 1, 1984 [Fam. Code § 9203(g)]. However, notwithstanding the above, contact between an adult adoptee and his or her birth parents may also be arranged if each has filed a written consent with the Department or the licensed adoption agency that handled the adoption [Fam. Code § 9204; see § 101.135].

[5] Time for Action on Request

The Department of Social Services must respond to a request for information under Fam. Code § 9203(a) within 20 working days of the receipt of the request [Fam. Code § 9203(d)]. If a licensed adoption agency was a party to the adoption, the Department may respond by forwarding the request to that agency within the same 20 working days [Fam. Code § 9203(d)].

32-101 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 101.110

§ 101.110 Live Birth Registration

1. Has "live birth" occurred?

NOTE:

A "live birth" occurs when a product of conception breathes or shows any other evidence of life after being completely extracted or expelled from its mother. It does not matter whether the umbilical cord has been cut or the placenta is attached [17 Cal. Code Reg. § 915; see § 101.10[2]].

2. Who should register birth?

NOTE:

A live birth in a hospital or a state-licensed alternative birth center should be registered by the hospital or center administrator or his or her representative [Health & Safety Code § 102405; see Health & Safety Code § 1204(b)(4) ("alternative birth center" defined)]. A live birth outside a hospital or a state-licensed alternative birth center should be registered by the physician or professionally licensed midwife in attendance or, in the absence of a physician or midwife, by one of the parents [Health & Safety Code § 102415].

a. Was birth in hospital?

b. Was physician present?

- a. Alive?
- b. Unidentified?
- c. Less than one year old?

2. What name is to be given to child [see Health & Safety Code §§ 102505, 102510]?

NOTE:

The person or institution with whom the child is placed must name the child [Health & Safety Code § 102510] as well as register the certificate of finding [Health & Safety Code § 102500].

3. Where was child found [see Health & Safety Code § 102510]?

1. Can necessary affidavits and documentary evidence be obtained?

NOTE:

An application for delayed registration of birth must be accompanied by affidavits and documentary evidence that enable the State Registrar of Vital Statistics to determine whether the birth did occur at the place and date alleged [Health & Safety Code § 102550; see § 101.203]. Examples of acceptable documentary evidence include hospital records, church records, school records, census records, social security records, newspaper notices, and voting registration records [see Health & Safety Code § 102580; § 101.203[1][b]].

2. Who will make application?

NOTE:

The application must be made by the person whose birth is being registered if he or she is 18 years of age or over [Health & Safety Code § 102535; see § 101.203].

a. Is person whose birth is to be registered over 18 years of age [see Health & Safety Code § 102535]?

b. If person is not over 18, is application to be made by one of following [Health & Safety Code § 102535]:

(1) Mother?

(2) Father?

(3) Legal guardian?

(4) Attending physician?

(5) Principal attendant at birth?

§ 101.114 Fetal Death Registration

1. Has "fetal death" occurred?

NOTE:

A "fetal death" is the death of a product of conception before it is completely expelled or extracted from its mother. Death is indicated by the failure of the fetus to breathe or show any other evidence of life after the separation from its mother [17 Cal. Code Reg. § 916; see § 101.210[1][b]].

2. Did fetus reach twentieth week of uterogestation?

NOTE:

Only those deaths in which the fetus has advanced to or beyond the twentieth week of uterogestation need be registered [Health & Safety Code § 102950].

3. Was physician in attendance?

NOTE:

If a physician was in attendance, that physician must complete the medical and health section of the certificate [Health & Safety Code § 102975]. If no physician was in attendance, the coroner must be notified [Health & Safety Code §§ 102850, 103000; see §§ 101.210[1][c], 101.112[1][e]], and must complete the medical and health section [Health & Safety Code § 103005].

B. Preliminary Determinations

32-101 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 101.115

§ 101.115 Amending Certificate

1. Is certificate in error?

NOTE:

If the facts are incorrectly stated in a certificate of birth, marriage, death, or fetal death, an affidavit stating the necessary changes may be filed with the state or local registrar [Health & Safety Code § 103225; see §§ 101.220-110.220B].

2. Is there one other credible person with knowledge of facts available to file required supporting affidavit [see Health & Safety Code § 103225]?

3. If certificate to be amended is birth certificate:

a. Is there conflicting information about parentage in original certificate?

NOTE:

The procedure for amending certificates applies to birth certificates only in the absence of conflicting information about parentage in the original certificate [Health & Safety Code § 103230]. Entries such as "unknown," "not given," "refused to state," and "obviously fictitious names" do not constitute conflicting information about parentage [Health & Safety Code § 102155].

b. Is name of child missing from certificate?

NOTE:

If a birth certificate is registered without the name of the child, the local registrar will give the parents a special blank for a supplemental name report [Health & Safety Code §

103325]. The parents should complete and return this report as soon as the child is named [Health & Safety Code § 103330].

c. Has medical and health data on original birth certificate been modified by supplemental information?

NOTE:

A physician or coroner with knowledge of supplemental information that modifies the medical and health section data of any record of a death, fetal death, or live birth may file with the state or local registrar a declaration of the changes necessary to correct the record [Health & Safety Code § 103300].

d. Has child been adopted?

NOTE:

The State Registrar of Vital Statistics will establish a new birth certificate on receipt of a report of the adoption of any child born in California whose certificate is on file in the Registrar's office [Health & Safety Code § 102635].

(1) Has adopting parent (or parents) requested that new certificate not be established?

NOTE:

The State Registrar of Vital Statistics will not establish a new birth certificate on receipt of an adoption report if the adopting parents request that no new certificate be established [Health & Safety Code § 102640].

(2) Was adoption a single-parent adoption with request by adopting parent that this be reflected in new birth certificate?

NOTE:

If an adoption is a single-parent adoption, this may be reflected in the new birth certificate if the adopting parent so requests [Health & Safety Code § 102650].

(3) Have adopting parents requested omission of any of following information [Health & Safety Code § 102675]:

(a) Specific name and address of hospital or other facility where birth occurred?

(b) City and county of birth?

(c) Color and race of parents?

e. Have facts of parentage been adjudicated [see § 101.221]?

NOTE:

On receipt of a certified copy of a court order determining the existence or nonexistence of the parent-child relationship, together with the application and fee, the State Registrar will establish a new certificate for the child, if the original birth record is on file in the State Registrar's office [Health & Safety Code § 102725].

f. Have father and mother acknowledged paternity of child by affidavit [see § 101.222]?

NOTE:

In the absence of conflicting information on the original birth certificate, an application to amend the birth certificate, including the parents' affidavits, may be filed with the State Registrar's office [Health & Safety Code § 102750]. On receipt of the application and payment of the fee, the State Registrar will, in the absence of conflicting information on the original birth certificate [see Health & Safety Code § 102155 (definition of "absence of conflicting information relative to parentage")], review the application for acceptance. If it is accepted, he or she will establish a new birth certificate for the child [Health & Safety Code § 102755].

- g. Has name of person born in California been changed by court order [see § 101.223]?

NOTE:

When the name of a person born in California is changed by court order, an application including an affidavit of this change may be filed with the State Registrar's office [Health & Safety Code § 103400]. On receipt of the application, the affidavit, and a certified copy of the court order, and on payment of the required fee, the State Registrar will review the application for acceptance for filing. If the application is accepted, the State Registrar will file the amendment and note the fact of the amendment on the original birth certificate [Health & Safety Code § 103405].

- h. Has sex of person born in California been changed by surgical treatment?

NOTE:

If a person born in California has had surgical treatment to change his or her sexual characteristics to those of the opposite sex, a new birth certificate may be prepared for this person reflecting the change in sex and any court ordered name change. A petition for the issuance of a new birth certificate must be filed with the superior court of the county where the petitioner lives [Health & Safety Code § 103425; see Health & Safety Code §§ 103430, 103435 (procedure for petition); see also § 101.220[1][g]]. However, Health & Safety Code § 103425 requirement that petition for change of gender on a California birth certificate by an out-of-state residence, be filed in the county of residence, violates Equal Protection and Privileges and Immunities clauses, therefore a California trial court has jurisdiction to order issuance of new California birth certificate [Somers v. Superior Court (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 1407, 1414 ; 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116] .

4. Have medical and health data on original certificate been modified by supplemental information?

NOTE:

A physician or coroner with knowledge of supplemental information that modifies the medical and health section data of any record of a death, fetal death, or live birth may file with the state or local registrar a declaration of the changes necessary to correct the record [Health & Safety Code § 103300].

1. Have attending physician, or his or her designated agent, do following [Health & Safety Code § 102825]:

NOTE:

A physician may designate one or more other physicians who have access to his or her records to act as his or her agent for the purpose of completing death certificates, provided that the agent acts in consultation with the designating physician [Health & Safety Code § 102825].

a. Complete medical and health section, including cause of death, within 15 hours after death [see Health & Safety Code § 102800].

b. Specify:

(1) Time in attendance.

(2) Time physician last saw deceased alive.

(3) Hour and day on which death occurred, except in deaths required to be investigated by coroner [see P 2, below].

c. Indicate existence of any cancer of which he or she has actual knowledge.

d. Within 15 hours of death [see Health & Safety Code § 102800]:

(1) Deposit certificate at place of death; or

(2) Deliver certificate to funeral director at his or her place of business or at physician's office.

2. Notify coroner immediately on obtaining knowledge of death that occurred under any of following circumstances, or on receiving charge of body in which death occurred under any of following circumstances [Health & Safety Code § 102850]:

NOTE:

Failure to notify the coroner when required is a misdemeanor [Health & Safety Code § 102850].

- a. Without medical attendance.
- b. During continued absence of attending physician.
- c. If attending physician is unable to state cause of death.
- d. When suicide is suspected.

§ 101.135 Obtaining Adoption Information

1. To obtain copy of medical report [see Fam. Code §§ 8706, 8817, 8909 (medical report required for adoption); see also § 101.14[2]]:

a. Make request for copy of medical report to Department of Social Services or to licensed adoption agency that made report [Fam. Code § 9202].

b. Include information identifying requester as [Fam. Code § 9202(a)]:

(1) Adult or married adoptee; or

NOTE:

To establish the marital status of a requesting minor adoptee, include a certified copy of his or her marriage certificate [Fam. Code § 9202(a)(1)].

(2) Adoptive parent of adoptee under age of 18.

c. If Department of Social Services or adoption agency denies copy of medical report, consider whether to file petition with superior court for review of reasonableness of denial of request [see Fam. Code § 9202(b)].

2. To request name and address of birth parent or adoptee:

NOTE:

The procedure summarized below is appropriate for adoptions in which the relinquishment for or consent to adoption was signed or the birth parent's rights were involuntarily terminated by court action on or after January 1, 1984 [Fam. Code § 9203(g)].

a. Confirm that requester is one of the following [Fam. Code § 9203(a)]:

- (1) Adoptee age 21 or over.
- (2) Birth parent of adoptee age 21 or over.
- (3) Adoptive parent of adoptee under age 21.

b. Have client complete and execute form of request prescribed by Department of Social Services (Department) including affidavit establishing identity of requester [see Fam. Code § 9203(b)].

c. If client is adoptive parent of adoptee under age 21, draft document that describes the medical necessity or other extraordinary circumstances justifying disclosure.

NOTE:

The name and address of a birth parent may be disclosed on the request of an adoptive parent of an adoptee who is under the age of 21 only on a finding by the Department or by the adoption agency that a medical necessity or other extraordinary circumstances justify the disclosure [Fam. Code § 9203(a)(3)].

d. File request form and supporting documentation, if any, with [see Fam. Code § 9203(a)]:

- (1) Department; or
- (2) Adoption agency that performed adoption.

e. Advise client that requested information will be disclosed under following circumstances [Fam. Code § 9203(a)]:

- (1) In case of request by adult adoptee, if birth parent has signed written consent authorizing disclosure [see § 101.231].
- (2) In case of request by birth parent of adult adoptee, if adoptee has indicated in writing, pursuant to Department's registration program, that he or she wishes his or her name and address to be disclosed [see § 101.232].
- (3) In case of request by adoptive parent of adoptee under age 21, only if Department or adoption agency determines that medical necessity or other extraordinary circumstances justify disclosure.

3. To request that contact between adult adoptee and his or her birth parent be arranged, take following steps:

NOTE:

The procedure summarized here is exclusively for contact between an adult adoptee and his or her birth parent, and it applies notwithstanding any other provision of law [see Fam. Code § 9204]. Unlike the procedure outlined in P 2, above, this procedure may be used regardless of whether the relinquishment or consent to adoption was signed before, on, or after January 1, 1984.

a. Have client (adult adoptee or birth parent) execute written consent to contact on form prescribed by Department [Fam. Code § 9204; see §§ 101.231 (consent by birth parents), 101.232 (consent by adult adoptee)].

b. Submit executed consent form to Department or licensed agency that handled adoption, and request that it arrange for contact between adoptee and birth parent [Fam. Code § 9204].

c. Notify client that Department or adoption agency is authorized to arrange contact only if adult adoptee and his or her birth parent have each filed a written consent [Fam. Code § 9204].

NOTE:

Neither the Department nor a licensed adoption agency may solicit, directly or indirectly, the execution of a written consent [Fam. Code § 9204].

C. Procedural Guide

§ 101.136 Obtaining Certified Copy of Birth, Marriage, Fetal Death, or Death Certificate

1. Make request for desired record to State Registrar of Vital Statistics, local registrar, or county recorder [Health & Safety Code § 103525].

NOTE:

On request and payment of the fee, the State Registrar of Vital Statistics, the local registrar, or the county recorder will supply a certified copy of the record of any birth, marriage, death, or fetal death registered with him or her [Health & Safety Code § 103525(a)]. The birth, marriage, death should be registered with the state and with the county where the birth marriage, occurred [see Health & Safety Code § 102400] or where death was pronounced or the body was found [see Health & Safety Code §§ 102775, 102950]. For the official request forms, see § 101.224[2][a]-[c].

The State Registrar, local registrar, or county recorder may issue a certified copy of a birth, death, or fetal death certificate only to an authorized person [Health & Safety Code §§ 130525(b), 103526]. Other applicants are only entitled to an informational certified copy [Health & Safety Code § 103526(b)]. For further discussion, see § 101.224[1].

Note that the State Registrar will not process requests for marriage records for the years 1905-1948, 1987-1997, and 2000 to the present. These records can be obtained only through the local county recorder's office. The State Registrar will process requests for marriage records from 1949-1986 and 1998-1999, if accompanied by a note stating that the requesting party is unable to identify the specific county where the license was issued, but advises that the waiting period may be 2 to 3 years. The office strongly recommends that such records be obtained from the county recorder's office of the county in which the marriage occurred [see Instructions to Dept. of Health Services Form VS-113a, reproduced in § 101.224[2][c]].

2. Pay required fee [Health & Safety Code § 103525; see Health & Safety Code §§ 103525.5, 103625, 103645 (amount of fees)].

3. If requested record is amended birth certificate, furnish information adequate to identify and locate amended record [Health & Safety Code § 103530].

1. If name has already been changed, do following:

a. Obtain affidavit of physician documenting sex change [Health & Safety Code § 103430(a)].

b. Obtain certified copy of court order changing name (if applicable) [Health & Safety Code § 103430(c)].

c. File following with superior court of county where petitioner resides [Health & Safety Code §§ 103425, 103430]:

(1) Petition for issuance of new birth certificate.

(2) Physician's affidavit.

(3) Certified copy of court order changing name.

d. If court grants petition, file following within 30 days with State Registrar of Vital Statistics at State Department of Health Services, Office of Vital Records, 304 S Street, Sacramento, California 95814 [Health & Safety Code § 103430(c)]:

(1) Certified copy of court's decree ordering new birth certificate.

(2) Fee [see Health & Safety Code § 103725].

2. If name has not yet been changed, do following [Health & Safety Code § 103435]:

NOTE:

32-101 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 101.158

§ 101.158 Amendment of Birth Record to Delete Racial Slurs

NOTE:

Birth records may be amended by establishing a new birth certificate for the purpose of deleting entries in the original certificate regarding race or color that, in the registrant's opinion, "constitute racial slurs or are otherwise offensive" or contain a "derogatory, demeaning, or colloquial racial descriptor" [Health & Safety Code §§ 103260(a), 103355]. The State Register of Vital Statistics must defer to the registrant's determination that an entry is offensive [Health & Safety Code §§ 103260, 103355]. Once the new birth certificate is established, it will supplant previous certificates; the replaced certificate will not be made available for public inspection [Health & Safety Code §§ 103260(c), 103365, 103370]. The State Register will provide a certified copy of the new birth certificate to the registrant without additional charge [Health & Safety Code §§ 103260(b)(2), 103370].

1. Obtain application for establishment and issuance of new birth certificate to replace original from State Registrar of Vital Statistics or local Vital Records office.
2. Complete application, including following information [Health & Safety Code §§ 103260(b), 103355]:
 - a. Certification that entry or entries in original birth certificate regarding race or color contain term or terms that in opinion of registrant constitute racial slurs or are otherwise offensive.
 - b. Identification of offensive term or terms to be deleted and proper entries for race or color to be substituted.

3. File application and required fee with State Registrar of Vital Statistics at State Department of Health Services, Office of Vital Records, MS 5103, P.O. Box 997410, Sacramento, CA 95899-7410 [Health & Safety Code §§ 103260, 103360; see Health & Safety Code § 103700 (fee)].

NOTE:

No fee is required for amendments filed within one year of the date of the occurrence occasioning the amendment [Health & Safety Code § 103700].

One of the two statutory schemes governing the procedure for amending birth certificates to correct racial slurs permits "any person who was born in this state and whose birth is registered in this state" to request an amendment to his or her birth certificate [Health & Safety Code § 103355]. The other contains similar language but also provides that a conservator, or if the registrant is a minor, his or her parent or guardian, may make the request [Health & Safety Code § 103260(a)]. Until case law or the amendment of these statutes clarifies whether a minor may file the request himself or herself, it may be advisable for a minor to file the request through a parent or a guardian.

PART IV. FORMS

A. Birth Certificates

§ 101.200 Certificate of Live Birth

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a certificate of live birth [see 17 Cal. Code Reg. § 915; § 101.10[2]] to be used to register the birth with the local registrar of births and deaths for the district in which the birth occurs. The certificate must be filed within 10 days of the date of birth [Health & Safety Code § 102400]. If the birth occurs in a hospital or a state-licensed alternative birth center, the hospital or center administrator or the administrator's representative must register the certificate with the local registrar [Health & Safety Code § 102405]. If the birth is not in a hospital or a state-licensed alternative birth center, the attending physician or, in the absence of a physician, the professionally licensed midwife in attendance, must register the certificate. If no physician or midwife is present, one of the parents must fill out the certificate [see Health & Safety Code § 102425], obtain the required signatures, and register the certificate with the local registrar [Health & Safety Code § 102415]. The local registrar transmits accepted certificates to the State Registrar of Vital Statistics [Health & Safety Code § 102345].

A medical and health report must also be submitted to the State Registrar of Vital Statistics for each registration of a live birth submitted to the local registrar [Health & Safety Code §§ 102450, 102460; see § 101.201].

[b] Contents of Certificate

The certificate of live birth must contain all of the following information [Health & Safety Code § 102425(a)]:

- The full name and sex of the child.
- The date of birth, including the month, day, hour, and year.
- The place of birth.

- The full name of the father, his birthplace, and his date of birth, including month, day, and year. If the parents are not married to each other, the father's name may not be listed on the birth certificate unless the father and the mother sign a voluntary declaration of paternity at the hospital before the birth certificate is prepared. The birth certificate may be amended at a later date to add the father's name only if the child's paternity is established by a judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction or by the filing of a voluntary declaration of paternity [Health & Safety Code § 102425(a)(5)].
- The full birth name of the mother, her birthplace, and her date of birth, including month, day, and year.
- Multiple births and the birth order of multiple births.
- The signature, and relationship to the child, of a parent or other informant, and the date signed.
- The name, title, and mailing address of the attending physician and surgeon or principal attendant, the signature and certification of live birth by the attending physician and surgeon or principal attendant or certifier, the date signed, and the name and title of the certifier if that person is someone other than the attending physician and surgeon or principal attendant.
- The date the certificate is accepted for registration and the signature of the local registrar.
- A state birth certificate number and the local registration district and number.
- A blank space for entry of the date of death with a caption "Date of Death."

In addition to the items required by Health & Safety Code § 102425(a), the second section of the certificate of live birth must contain confidential medical and social information [see [c], below].

[c] Contents of Confidential Portions of Birth Certificate

In addition to the items required by Health & Safety Code § 102425(a) [see [b], above], the second section of the certificate of live birth must contain medical and social information that is to be kept confidential [Health & Safety Code §§ 102425(b), 102430(a)]. This information is to be clearly labeled "Confidential Information for Public Health Use Only" and must include all of the following [Health & Safety Code § 102425(b)]:

- The birth weight.
- The pregnancy history.
- The race and ethnicity of the mother and father.
- The residence address of the mother.
- A blank space for entry of the census tract for the mother's address.
- The date of the first prenatal care visit, the number of prenatal care visits, and commencing January 1, 2007, the date of the last prenatal care visit.
- The date of the last normal menses and, commencing January 1, 2007, an obstetric estimate of the completed weeks of gestation at delivery.

- A description of any complications and procedures of the pregnancy and any concurrent illnesses, congenital malformation, and any complication and procedures of labor and delivery, including surgery, provided that the information is essential medical information and appears in total on the face of the certificate.
- Commencing January 1, 2007, hearing screen results.
- The mother's and father's occupations and kind of business or industry.
- The education level of the mother and father.
- The principal source of payment for prenatal care, which must include Medi-Cal, private insurance, self-pay, other sources, and any other categories determined by the State Department of Health Services.
- The expected principal source of payment for delivery, which must include Medi-Cal, private insurance, self-pay, other sources, and any other categories determined by the State Department of Health Services.
- An indication of whether the child's parent desires the automatic issuance of a social security number to the child.
- The social security numbers of the mother and father unless the parent, with good cause, objects to the disclosure [see Health & Safety Code § 102150(b)].

The form illustrated does not provide spaces for some of the information listed above. An updated form, with appropriate spaces for all the information required, is available from the local Registrar of Vital Statistics.

[d] Access and Disclosure

Access to the confidential second part of the certificate is limited to the following [Health & Safety Code § 102430(a)]:

- The State Department of Health Services staff.
- The local registrar's staff, when approved by the local registrar.
- The local health department's staff, when approved by the local health officer.
- The county coroner.
- Persons with a valid scientific interest, as determined by the State Registrar, who are engaged in demographic, epidemiological, or other similar studies related to health, and who agree to maintain confidentiality.
- The parent who signed the certificate or, if no parent signed the certificate, the mother.
- The person named on the certificate.
- A person who has petitioned to adopt the person named on the certificate [see Fam. Code §§ 9200, 9203; Health & Safety Code § 102705].

The State Department of Health Services may transmit to the Social Security Administration the information necessary to issue a social security number to a child if the child's parent has requested the issuance of a social security number to the child [Health & Safety Code § 102440; see Health & Safety Code § 102425(b)(14)]. In addition, a parent's social security number contained in the certificate is accessible to the Department of Child Support Services and local child support agencies for purposes of operating the Child Support Enforcement Program [Health & Safety Code § 102447; see 42 U.S.C. § 651 et seq.].

The State Department of Health Services maintains a record of all persons who are given access to the confidential portion of a birth certificate. The record of access is open to public inspection during normal operating hours of the Department [Health & Safety Code § 102430(b)].

A person who releases a copy of the confidential portion of a certificate of live birth to anyone other than a person allowed access under Health & Safety Code § 102430(a) is guilty of a misdemeanor. Further, a person who is either the subject of or the source of information for a birth certificate and who has reason to believe that confidential information has been linked with his or her identity and disclosed to an unauthorized person has a civil right of action against the person releasing the information and may seek punitive damages [Health & Safety Code § 102475].

[e] Objection to Furnishing Confidential Information

If either parent objects to furnishing information about the parents required for the confidential section of the birth certificate [see [c], above] by Health & Safety Code § 102425(b)(3) (race and ethnicity) or Health & Safety Code § 102425(b)(10) (occupation and kind of business or industry), that information need not be entered on the birth certificate [Health & Safety Code § 102150(a)]. In addition, a parent is not required to disclose his or her social security number pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 102425(b)(15) if the parent has good cause for not disclosing it [Health & Safety Code § 102150(b)].

PART IV. FORMS

A. Birth Certificates

32-101 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 101.201

§ 101.201 Medical and Health Report

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is the medical and health report that must be submitted to the State Registrar of Vital Statistics for each registration of a live birth submitted to the local registrar [Health & Safety Code §§ 102450, 102455, 102460; see § 101.200]. If the birth occurs in a hospital, the hospital administrator or his or her representative must submit the report to the local registrar, who in turn submits it to the State Registrar [Health & Safety Code § 102450]. If the birth occurs outside a hospital, the local registrar must complete and submit the report [Health & Safety Code § 102450(a)]. The report is not kept on file in the offices of the local registrars [Health & Safety Code § 102450(b)].

As prescribed by the State Registrar, the medical and health report consists of two parts. They are the Certificate of Live Birth--Medical Data Supplemental Work Sheet and the Race Identification Work Sheet. Both parts of the prescribed form are reproduced in [2], below.

Neither the mother, the father, nor the child may be identified in the report [Health & Safety Code § 102455(c)]. The parent or informant must be told of the purposes for which the information is collected, the confidential nature of the report, and that completion of the specific items of the report is voluntary [Health & Safety Code § 102455(a)]. If either parent objects to furnishing the information requested in a specific item or items of the report, that information will not be entered in the report [Health & Safety Code § 102455(b)].

[b] Confidentiality

The contents of the report are limited to medical, health, and social data necessary to evaluate or improve the health of mother or child [Health & Safety Code § 102455]. Except for purposes of statistical tabulation, the report is confidential. Access to the report is limited to the following [Health & Safety Code § 102460]:

- State and local registrar's staff;

- State and local health department staff;
- People with a valid educational or scientific interest, as determined by the State Registrar, who are engaged in demographic and epidemiological studies for health purposes.

The State Department of Health Services maintains a record of all persons who are given access to the report. The record of access is open to public inspection during normal operating hours of the Department [Health & Safety Code § 102460].

PART IV. FORMS

A. Birth Certificates

32-101 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 101.202

§ 101.202 Certificate of Finding of Unknown Child

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a certificate of finding of an unidentified live child of less than one year of age. The certificate must be registered with the local registrar of births and deaths by the person or institution with whom the child is placed within four days after the finding [Health & Safety Code § 102500]. The certificate serves all the purposes of a certificate of live birth [Health & Safety Code § 102515]. If the child is later identified and a certificate of birth is either discovered or obtained, this information must be reported to the State Registrar of Vital Statistics, who will enter it on the certificate of finding [Health & Safety Code § 102520].

[b] Contents of Form

The certificate includes the child's name, sex, and color or race, the date and place of finding, and the name of the person or institution with whom the child is placed [Health & Safety Code § 102505]. The person or institution with whom the child is placed gives the child a name. The place in which the child was found is considered the child's legal place of birth. The date of birth is determined as closely as possible and the date so determined is considered the child's legal date of birth [Health & Safety Code § 102510].

CHAPTER 101 VITAL RECORDS

PART IV. FORMS

A. Birth Certificates

32-101 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 101.203

§ 101.203 Application for Delayed Registration of Birth

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a reproduction of the official Department of Health Services/Office of Vital Records application form (Form VS 85) for delayed registration of a birth. It may be filed with the State Registrar of Vital Statistics for delayed registration of the birth of any person born in California whose birth has not been registered. If the person whose birth is being registered is 18 years of age or older, then only that person can make the application. If the person whose birth is being registered is under the age of 18, application for delayed registration may be made only by that person's mother, father, or legal guardian, or by the attending physician or the principal attendant at the birth [Health & Safety Code § 102535].

NOTE:

The application must be filed ONLY on an original copy of the form obtained directly from the Office of Vital Records. Photocopies and other reproductions are not acceptable. Because of this, the form cannot be downloaded from the internet, and must be ordered from the Office of Vital Records either by their online forms request site located at www.dhs.ca.gov/hisp/chs/ovr/ovrformsreq.asp or by their phone at the office's customer service line (916) 445-2684. The office advises that online ordering usually is faster. The office will include with the form its instructional pamphlet containing detailed information on the application process and completing the form, and a sample illustration of a filled-in form.

After it is accepted by the State Registrar, the application constitutes a delayed certificate of birth [Health & Safety Code § 102600]. The State Registrar will send a certified copy of the delayed certificate of birth to the applicant with no additional cost [Health & Safety Code § 102605] beyond the application fee required by Health and Safety Code Section 103695. Certified copies will also be sent to the local registrar and the county recorder of the area where the birth occurred [Health & Safety Code § 102610].

[b] Affidavits and Documentary Evidence

An application for delayed registration of birth must be accompanied by affidavits and documentary evidence that will enable the State Registrar of Vital Statistics to determine whether the birth in fact occurred at the place and date alleged [Health & Safety Code § 102550]. The application itself includes blanks for making the necessary affidavits and for an abstract of any supporting documents.

An affidavit accompanying an application for the delayed registration of a birth must be a written statement executed under oath by a person who was at least five years old at the time of the birth and knew the facts about the birth. The affidavit must include the full name of the person whose birth is being registered, the names of his or her parents, the date and place of birth, and the basis of the affiant's knowledge of these facts [Health & Safety Code § 102575].

Documentary evidence that may be submitted with an application for delayed registration of birth may be either the original or a certified copy of a record executed at least five years before the date of application. The documentary evidence must substantiate the date and place of birth. If the person whose birth is being registered is under 12 years of age, the record need only have been executed at least two years before the date of the application. Examples of documentary evidence generally considered acceptable include hospital records, baptismal certificates or other church records, school records, census records, social security records, military service records, voting registration records, birth certificates of children of the person whose birth is being registered, certificates of registry of marriage, and newspaper notices of birth [Health & Safety Code § 102580].

[c] Supporting Documents Required

The application for delayed registration of birth must be accompanied by the following documentary evidence and affidavits [Health & Safety Code § 102585]:

- Two pieces of documentary evidence, at least one of which supports the parentage;
- One piece of documentary evidence and one affidavit executed by the physician or other principal attendant; or
- One piece of documentary evidence and two affidavits executed by the mother, the father, or other persons having knowledge of the facts of the birth.

The supporting affidavit must be executed under oath [Health & Safety Code § 102757]. Any matter that under California law is required or permitted to be supported or proved by a written oath or affidavit may be supported or proved by an unsworn declaration if the following four requirements are met [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]:

- The declaration is in writing;
- The declaration is signed by the declarant;
- The declaration recites that it is certified or declared to be true under penalty of perjury; and
- If executed in California, the declaration states the place and date of execution; or, if executed anywhere, whether inside or outside of California, it states the date of execution and that it is certified or declared under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California.

[e] Penalties for False Certificate or Affidavit

It is a felony to make, file, or cause the making or filing of a false delayed certificate of birth or a false affidavit accompanying an application for the delayed registration of a birth. This offense also carries a civil penalty of $5,000, which may be recovered in an action by the Attorney General in any court of competent jurisdiction [Health & Safety Code § 103800].

PART IV. FORMS

B. Death Certificates

§ 101.210 Certificate of Fetal Death

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a certificate of fetal death. Each fetal death in which the fetus has advanced to or beyond the twentieth week of uterogestation must be registered with the local registrar of births and deaths within eight days after the event and before disposition of the fetus [Health & Safety Code § 102950]. The local registrar of births and deaths must carefully examine each death certificate presented for registration. If a certificate is not properly completed, the registrar must not accept it until further information is furnished as required by law [Health & Safety Code § 102305].

A certificate of fetal death has two sections. The first section contains items necessary to establish the fact of the fetal death. The second contains medical and health data, and is labeled "Confidential Information for Public Health use Only" [Health & Safety Code § 103025]. The information included in the second section must be kept confidential under Health & Safety Code § 102430 [Health & Safety Code § 103025; see Health & Safety Code § 102430 and discussion in § 101.200[1][c] (confidentiality)]. The funeral director or a person acting in lieu of a funeral director is responsible for getting the required information (other than medical and health data) from the person or source best qualified to supply it [Health & Safety Code § 102960]. He or she must then prepare the certificate and register it with the local registrar [Health & Safety Code § 102955].

[b] "Fetal Death" Defined

A "fetal death" is the death of a product of conception before it is completely expelled or extracted from its mother. Death is indicated by the failure of the fetus to breathe or show any other evidence of life after the separation from its mother. Other evidences of life include beating of the heart, pulsation of the umbilical cord, or definite movement of voluntary muscles [17 Cal. Code Reg. § 916].

[c] Medical and Health Data

If a physician is in attendance on the delivery of the fetus, he or she must state on the certificate the time of the fetal death or delivery, the direct causes of the fetal death, the conditions, if any, that gave rise to these causes, and any other medical and health data required on the certificate. The physician must complete the required information, sign the certificate, and either deposit the certificate at the place of death or deliver it to the attending funeral director within 15 hours of the time of death [Health & Safety Code § 102975].

If no physician and surgeon was in attendance at delivery, or under other specified circumstances described by statute [see Health & Safety Code § 102850; § 101.211[e]], a physician and surgeon, physician assistant, funeral director, or other person who has knowledge of the death or has charge of the body must notify the coroner [Health & Safety Code §§ 102850, 103000]. The coroner must state on the certificate the time of fetal death, the direct causes of the fetal death, the conditions, if any, that gave rise to these causes, and any other medical and health data required on the certificate. The coroner must complete the required information, sign the certificate, and deliver the death certificate to the attending funeral director within three days after examining the fetus [Health & Safety Code § 103005].

PART IV. FORMS

B. Death Certificates

32-101 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 101.211

§ 101.211 Certificate of Death

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a certificate of death. Every death must be registered with the local registrar of births and deaths in the district in which death is officially pronounced or the body is found [Health & Safety Code § 102775]. The funeral director or a person acting in lieu of a funeral director must register the death certificate [Health & Safety Code § 102780] within eight days after death and before any disposition of the human remains [Health & Safety Code § 102775]. The local registrar of births and deaths must carefully examine each death certificate presented to him or her before accepting the certificate for registration. If a certificate is not properly completed, the registrar must not accept it until further information is furnished as required by law [Health & Safety Code § 102305].

[b] Contents of Certificate

A death certificate has two sections. The first section contains the items necessary to establish the fact of death, including the following [Health & Safety Code § 102875(a)]:

- Personal data about the decedent, including his or her full name, sex, color or race, marital status, spouse's name, date of birth, age at death, birthplace, usual residence, and occupation and industry or business;
- The date of death, including the month, day, and year;
- The place of death;
- The full name of the decedent's father and the father's birthplace;
- The full maiden name of the decedent's mother and the mother's birthplace;

- The name and address of the informant;
- The signature and license number of the embalmer if the body was embalmed, or the name of the embalmer if affixed by the attorney-in-fact [see Health & Safety Code § 102805];
- The name of the funeral director or the person acting as the funeral director;
- The date and place of interment or removal;
- The certification and signature of the attending physician and surgeon, or the certification and signature of the coroner when required to act by law [see [e], below]; and
- The date the certificate is accepted for registration and the signature of the local registrar.

The person completing the portion of the certificate setting forth the cause of death may attest to its accuracy by use of an electronic signature substitute, or some other indicator of authenticity approved by the State Registrar of Vital Statistics in lieu of a signature [Health & Safety Code § 102875(a)(7)]. The embalmer and the local registrar may do the same [Health & Safety Code § 102875(a)(6), (8)].

The second section of a death certificate contains medical and health data, including the following [Health & Safety Code § 102875(b)]:

- Any disease or conditions leading directly to death, and their antecedent causes;
- Operations and major findings from those operations;
- Accident and injury information; and
- Information indicating whether the decedent was pregnant at the time of death, or within the year before death, if known, as determined by observation, autopsy, or review of the medical record.

[c] Preparation of Certificate

The death certificate is prepared by the funeral director or a person acting in lieu of a funeral director [Health & Safety Code § 102780]. The funeral director must obtain the required information (other than medical and health section data) from the person or source best qualified to supply this information [Health & Safety Code § 102790].

The medical and health section data and the time of death will be completed and attested to by the physician last in attendance if the physician is legally authorized to do so, or by the coroner when the circumstances of the death require the coroner to act [Health & Safety Code § 102795; see [e], below]. If the decedent was a patient in a skilled nursing or intermediate care facility at the time of death, the "medical and health" (and the "time of death") sections of the death certificate may be completed by a licensed physician assistant under the supervision of the physician last in attendance, except in deaths required to be investigated by the coroner [Health & Safety Code § 102825].

The medical and health section data and the physician's or coroner's certification must be completed by the attending physician within 15 hours after death or by the coroner within three days after examining the body. The physician will deposit the certificate at the place of death or deliver it to the attending funeral director within 15 hours after the death [Health & Safety Code § 102800]. If the death certificate is prepared by the coroner, the coroner will deliver the certificate to the attending funeral director within three days after examining the body [Health & Safety Code § 102860];

see [3], below].

[d] Responsibility of Attending Physician

The physician last in attendance on the deceased is responsible for stating on the death certificate the disease or condition directly leading to death, any antecedent causes, other significant conditions contributing to death, and any other medical and health data required by the certificate. He or she must also specify the time in attendance, the time he or she last saw the deceased alive, and the hour and day on which death occurred, unless the death must be investigated by the coroner [see [e], below]. The physician must specifically indicate the existence of any cancer [see Health & Safety Code § 103885(h) (definition of "cancer")] of which he or she has actual knowledge [Health & Safety Code § 102825]. A physician may designate one or more other physicians who have access to his or her records to act as his or her agent for the purpose of completing death certificates, provided that the agent acts in consultation with the designating physician [Health & Safety Code § 102825].

[e] Responsibility of Coroner

A physician, physician assistant, surgeon, funeral director, or any other person must immediately notify the coroner when he or she has knowledge of a death or charge of a body if the death occurred in any of the following ways [Health & Safety Code § 102850]:

- Without medical attendance;
- During the continued absence of the attending physician;
- When the attending physician is unable to state the cause of death;
- When suicide is suspected;
- Following an injury or an accident; or
- Under circumstances that afford a reasonable ground to suspect that death was caused by the criminal act of another.

The coroner who has the duty of investigating a death that has occurred under one of the circumstances listed above must ascertain as many as possible of the facts required by Health & Safety Code Sections 102775-102880 on death registration [Health & Safety Code § 102855]. The coroner must state on the death certificate the disease or condition directly leading to death, any antecedent causes, other significant conditions contributing to death, and any other medical and health data required by the certificate. He or she must also specify the hour and day on which death occurred. The coroner must specifically indicate the existence of any cancer [see Health & Safety Code § 103885(h) (definition of "cancer")] of which he or she has actual knowledge [Health & Safety Code § 102860].

In any case involving an infant under the age of one year when the gross autopsy results in a presumed diagnosis of sudden infant death syndrome, the coroner must notify the local health officer within 24 hours of the gross autopsy [Health & Safety Code § 102865].

If the coroner or medical examiner investigating a death cannot otherwise establish the identity of the body or remains, he or she must have a qualified dentist examine the body or remains. If the coroner or medical examiner is still unable to identify the body after the dental examination, then he or she must prepare and forward the dental examination records to the Department of Justice [Health & Safety Code § 102870].

32-101 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 101.220

§ 101.220 Application to Amend Record by Affidavit (Birth Records or Records of Death That Occurred Prior to January 1, 1994)

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a reproduction of the official Department of Health Services/Office of Vital Records application form (Form VS 24(S)) to amend a record by affidavit. This form is used in the following situations [Affidavit to Amend a Birth Record (Office of Vital Records, 12/1/2006), p. 1; Affidavit to Amend a Death Record (Office of Vital Records, 1/1/2006), p. 1]:

- To amend a birth record.
- To amend a death record for a death that occurred prior to January 1, 1994. For deaths that occurred after that date, Form VS 24(L) [see § 101.220A] should be used in place of this form.
- To amend a death record for a court-ordered delayed death registration, regardless of the date

This form should not be used to amend a marriage record. Form VS 24(C) [see § 101.220B] should be used for that purpose.

When completed, this form may be filed with either the Office of Vital Records in Sacramento or the local county registrar. The required fee must accompany the form [see Health & Safety Code § 103700].

NOTE:

The application must be filed ONLY on an original copy of the form obtained directly from the Office of Vital Records. Photocopies and other reproductions are not acceptable. Because of this, the form cannot be downloaded from the internet, and must be ordered from the Office of Vital Records either by their online forms request site located at www.dhs.ca.gov/hisp/chs/ovr/ovrformsreq.asp or by their phone at the office's customer service line (916) 445-2684. The office advises that online ordering usually is faster. The office will include with the form its instructional pamphlet containing detailed information on the application process and completing the form, and a sample illustration of a filled-in form.

To amend a record, the person asserting the error must make an affidavit under oath stating the changes necessary to make the record correct. This affidavit must be supported by the affidavit of one other credible person having knowledge of the facts [Health & Safety Code § 103225]. This procedure applies to birth certificates only if the originally registered birth certificate contains no conflicting information about parentage [Health & Safety Code § 103230; see Health & Safety Code § 102155 (entries such as "unknown," "not given," "refused to state," and "obviously fictitious names" do not constitute conflicting information about parentage)].

[b] Permissible Types of Amendments

Amendments may be made to do any of the following [Affidavit to Amend a Birth Record (Office of Vital Records, 12/1/2006), p. 1; see Health & Saf. Code § 103225 (record may be amended "whenever the facts are not correctly stated")]:

- Correct spelling errors.
- Add information to blank items, except as specified below.
- Correct the spelling of the parent's names or add statistical information.

Amendments cannot be used to make any of the following changes, for which a court order is required [Affidavit to Amend a Birth Record (Office of Vital Records, 12/1/2006), p. 1]:

- Completely change the first, middle, or last name of the registrant.
- Transpose the registrant's middle name.
- Add or delete the registrant's first, middle, or last name.
- Translate the registrant's name into another language.

This form cannot be used to change or add the father's name to a birth certificate [Affidavit to Amend a Birth Record (Office of Vital Records, 12/1/2006), p. 2], nor can it be used to change or remove the signatures, or the names or the informant or certifiers on a registered birth certificate, because these items cannot be changed or removed [Affidavit to Amend a Birth Record (Office of Vital Records, 12/1/2006), p. 1].

For the amendment of a birth record after adjudication of the facts of parentage, see § 101.221. For amendment of a birth record after acknowledgment of paternity, see § 101.222. For the amendment of a birth record to reflect a court-ordered change of name, see § 101.223. For forms and discussion relating to the statutory procedure for changing an individual's name, see California Forms of Pleading & Practice, Ch. 377, Name, Change of (Matthew Bender).

[c] Additional Documentation

The Office of Vital Records has provided the following list of materials that must accompany an application to amend a birth certificate [Affidavit to Amend a Birth Record (Office of Vital Records, 12/1/2006), p. 2]:

- A photocopy of the current birth certificate, if the applicant has one (this is not required, but will assist the office in identifying the exact record to be amended).

- To correct names listed on the birth certificate that are the result of a hospital error, supporting documentation from the hospital is required.
- If parents are changing their own information on their child's birth certificate, copies of their birth certificates or other supporting documentation such as passports or drivers' licenses must be included.
- If a certified copy of the amended record is being requested, a notarized sworn statement must be included.

[d] Review and Acceptance of Amendment

Processing time for birth record amendments is approximately 7 months, subject to change based on the Office of Vital Records workload [Affidavit to Amend a Birth Record (Office of Vital Records, 12/1/2006), p. 6].

If the amendment relates to a certificate that has not been transmitted to the State Registrar of Vital Statistics, the local registrar reviews the amendment for acceptance. If it is accepted, the local registrar files the amendment and notes the fact and date of the amendment on the otherwise unaltered original certificate [Health & Safety Code § 103235]. If the amendment relates to a certificate that has been transmitted to the State Registrar, the amendment will be transmitted to the State Registrar who will review it [Health & Safety Code § 103240]. If the amendment is accepted, the State Registrar will transmit copies of it to the local registrar and county recorder in whose offices copies of the original record are on file [Health & Safety Code § 103245]. The State Registrar will send the applicant a certified copy of the newly amended record without additional charge, unless the amendment is filed within one year of the date of occurrence of the event [Health & Safety Code § 103250]. The amendment will be filed with and becomes a part of the record to which it pertains [Health & Safety Code § 103255].

[e] Supplemental Name Reports for Birth Certificates

If a certificate of live birth has been registered but the child's name has not been entered, the local registrar will make out and deliver to the child's parents a special blank for a supplemental report of the child's name [Health & Safety Code § 103325]. The parents must complete the report and return it to the local registrar as soon as they name the child [Health & Safety Code § 103300]. The State Registrar of Vital Statistics will send the applicant a certified copy of the newly amended birth record without additional cost, unless the amendment is filed within one year of the date of birth [Health & Safety Code § 103335].

[f] Amendment of Birth Record After Adoption

The State Registrar of Vital Statistics will establish a new birth certificate on receipt of a report of adoption [see Health & Safety Code § 102625 (court clerk to forward report of adoptions)] from any court of record, wherever located, that has jurisdiction of a child born in California who has a birth certificate on file in the State Registrar's office [Health & Safety Code § 102635]. The new birth certificate supplants any birth certificate previously registered for the child and is the only birth certificate open to public inspection [Health & Safety Code § 102880]. If the adopting parent or parents so request, however, a new birth certificate will not be established [Health & Safety Code § 102640].

If the State Registrar receives a court report of adoption concerning a child born in California for whom no original record of birth is on file, the court report constitutes a delayed birth registration. The court report must state the date and place of birth [Health & Safety Code § 102690].

The new birth certificate bears the child's name as shown in the report of adoption, the names and ages of the adopting parents, and the date and place of birth. No reference is made in the new birth certificate to the adoption of the child [Health & Safety Code § 102645], unless an unmarried person adopts the child and requests that the new certificate reflect the fact that it is a single-parent adoption [Health & Safety Code § 102650]. The new certificate is identical with a birth certificate registered for the birth of a child of natural parents, except, if the adopting parents so request, the new birth certificate will not include the specific name and address of the hospital or other facility where the birth occurred, the color and race of the parents, or both [Health & Safety Code § 102645]. Moreover, at any time after a new birth certificate has been issued, the adopting parents may request another amended certificate that omits the specific name and address of the hospital or other facility where the birth occurred, the city and county of birth, or the color and race of the parents [Health & Safety Code § 102675].

When a new birth certificate is established by reason of adoption, the State Registrar will inform the local registrar and the county recorder whose records contain copies of the original certificate. If it is practical to do so, the copies must be forwarded to the State Registrar for filing with the original certificate. If this is not practical, a cover must be sealed over the copy in a way that does not destroy or deface the copy, and a verified statement of this action must be forwarded to the State Registrar [Health & Safety Code § 102685].

The court report of adoption must be filed with the original record of birth, which remains as a part of the records of the State Registrar of Vital Statistics [Health & Safety Code § 102700]. Records and information other than the newly issued birth certificate are available only on the order of the superior court of the county of the adopted child's residence or the superior court of the county granting the order of adoption [Health & Safety Code § 102705].

[g] Revision of Birth Records to Reflect Sex Change

A person born in California who has undergone surgical treatment to change his or her sexual characteristics to those of the opposite sex may have a new birth certificate prepared. The new birth certificate will reflect the change of gender and any change of name accomplished by a court order. The petition for the issuance of a new birth certificate must be filed with the superior court of the county where the petitioner resides [Health & Safety Code § 103425]. However, Health & Safety Code § 103425 requirement that petition for change of gender on a California birth certificate by an out-of-state residence, be filed in the county of residence, violates Equal Protection and Privileges and Immunities clauses, therefore a California trial court has jurisdiction to order issuance of new California birth certificate [Somers v. Superior Court (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 1407, 1414 ; 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116] .

The petition for issuance of a new birth certificate must be accompanied by a physician's affidavit documenting the sex change and, if applicable, a certified copy of the court order changing the applicant's name [Health & Safety Code § 103430(a)]. Any person who can show to the court good reason against the change of the certificate may file objections to the petition. At the hearing, the court may examine on oath the petitioner and any other person who has knowledge of facts relevant to the application. At the conclusion of the hearing, the court will either make an order to issue a new certificate or dismiss the petition [Health & Safety Code § 103430(b)]. A certified copy of the court's decree ordering the new birth certificate will be filed with the State Registrar of Vital Statistics within 30 days from the date of the decree. The State Registrar will establish a new birth certificate for the applicant on receiving the copy of the decree and the required fee [Health & Safety Code § 103430(c); see Health & Safety Code § 103725 (fee for establishing new birth record to reflect sex change is $11)].

In lieu of separate proceedings, a petitioner may file with the superior court a single petition for a change of name and issuance of a new birth certificate reflecting a change of gender [Health & Safety Code § 103435; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1275-1279.6 (procedure for change of name)]. Within 30 days a certified copy of the court's decree will be filed with both the Secretary of State and the State Registrar of Vital Statistics. Upon receiving the copy of the court's decree, the State Registrar will issue a new birth certificate [Health & Safety Code § 103435].

The new birth certificate supplants any birth certificate previously registered for the applicant [Health & Safety Code § 103440]. It indicates the sex of the registrant as it has been surgically altered and, if accompanied by a court order, reflects any change of name specified in the application. Nothing in the form or content of the new birth certificate indicates that it is not the registrant's original birth certificate [Health & Safety Code § 103430(d)].

The new birth certificate is the only one open to public inspection. The application and supporting affidavit are filed with the original record of birth, which remains as a part of the records of the State Registrar. Records and information other than the newly issued birth certificate are available only on written request of the registrant or a court order [Health & Safety Code § 103440].

When the new birth certificate is established, the State Registrar transmits copies for filing to the local registrar and the county recorder whose records contain copies of the original certificate. If it is practical to do so, the copies of the local registrar and the county recorder are in turn forwarded to the State Registrar. If this is not practical, a cover must be effectually sealed over the copy of the original certificate without defacing or destroying it. A verified statement of this action must be forwarded to the State Registrar. Thereafter, the information contained in the original record is available only on the written request of the registrant or a court order [Health & Safety Code § 103440].

The State Registrar will transmit a certified copy of a newly established birth certificate to the registrant without additional charge [Health & Safety Code § 103445].

[h] Amendment of Birth Records to Delete Racial Slurs

Birth records may be amended and a new birth certificate established for the purpose of deleting entries in the original certificate regarding race or color that, in the registrant's opinion, "constitute racial slurs or are otherwise offensive" or contain a "derogatory, demeaning or colloquial racial descriptor" [Health & Safety Code §§ 103260(a), 103355]. For a discussion of the procedure for and effect of this type of amendment, see § 101.158.

§ 101.220A Application to Amend a Death Record (Records of Death That Occurred On or After January 1, 1994)

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a reproduction of the official Department of Health Services/Office of Vital Records application form (Form VS 24(L)) to amend a death record. This form is used to amend death certificates for deaths that occurred on or after January 1, 1994 [Affidavit to Amend a Death Record (Office of Vital Records, 1/1/2006), p. 1]. To amend a death certificate for a death occurring prior to that date, or a court-ordered delayed death registration regardless of the date, Form VS 24(S) [see § 101.220] should be used in place of this form.

When completed, this form may be filed with either the Office of Vital Records in Sacramento or the local county registrar. The required fee must accompany the form [see Health & Safety Code § 103700].

NOTE:

The application must be filed ONLY on an original copy of the form obtained directly from the Office of Vital Records. Photocopies and other reproductions are not acceptable. Because of this, the form cannot be downloaded from the internet, and must be ordered from the Office of Vital Records either by their online forms request site located at www.dhs.ca.gov/hisp/chs/ovr/ovrformsreq.asp or by their phone at the office's customer service line (916) 445-2684. The office advises that online ordering usually is faster. The office will include with the form its instructional pamphlet containing detailed information on the application process and completing the form, and a sample illustration of a filled-in form.

For additional information on the amendment of vital records generally, see § 101.220.

[b] Permissible Types of Amendments

This form can be used to do any of the following [Affidavit to Amend a Death Record (Office of Vital Records, 2/1/2006), p. 1]:

- Correct spelling errors.
- Add information not known at the time of death.
- Add an "AKA" ("also known as") to the decedent's name.
- Correct most items on the certificate, except those noted below.

This form cannot be used to [Affidavit to Amend a Death Record (Office of Vital Records, 1/1/2006), p. 1]:

- Change the informant's name that is listed on the original death certificate.
- Correct the date, time, place, or cause of death. This information can be changed only by a physician or coroner.

[c] Amendment of Death Record of Previously Unidentified Body

When a person unidentified at the time of the original registration of the death is subsequently identified, the coroner having jurisdiction will register a death certificate with the local registrar. This death certificate will give the name of the deceased and all statistical particulars concerning him or her that have been discovered [Health & Safety Code § 103275].

[d] Amendment of Medical and Health Section Data

A certifying physician or coroner who has knowledge of information supplemental to that originally furnished in the medical and health section of a death, fetal death, or live birth record may make a declaration under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5; see also § 101.203[d]] stating the changes necessary to make the information correct. The declaration may be filed with the state or local registrar [Health & Safety Code § 103300].

§ 101.220B Application to Amend a Marriage Record

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a reproduction of the official Department of Health Services/Office of Vital Records application form (Form VS 24(C)) to amend a marriage record. This form can be used to correct any information on the marriage certificate that is not correct--such as incorrect dates of birth, a party's prior marital information, and so on [see Health & Safety Code § 103225].

When completed, this form may be filed with either the Office of Vital Records in Sacramento or the local county registrar, unless the marriage is a confidential marriage [see Fam. Code § 500 et seq.], in which case the application must be filed with the county registrar inasmuch as the Office of Vital Records does not maintain records of confidential marriage [Affidavit to Amend a Death Record (Office of Vital Records, 9/1/2005), p. 1; see Fam. Code § 511].

The required fee must accompany the form [see Health & Safety Code § 103700], as well as a photocopy of the current marriage certificate [Affidavit to Amend a Death Record (Office of Vital Records, 9/1/2005), p. 1].

NOTE:

The application must be filed ONLY on an original copy of the form obtained directly from the Office of Vital Records. Photocopies and other reproductions are not acceptable. Because of this, the form cannot be downloaded from the internet, and must be ordered from the Office of Vital Records either by their online forms request site located at www.dhs.ca.gov/hisp/chs/ovr/ovrformsreq.asp or by their phone at the office's customer service line (916) 445-2684. [1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is an application for the preparation of an amended birth record after the adjudication of the facts of parentage. The State Registrar of Vital Statistics will establish a new birth certificate for a child whose original birth record is on file with the State Registrar and with respect to whom the existence or nonexistence of a parent-child relationship has been determined by a California court or a court of another state. The State Registrar will do so on receipt of a certified copy of the court order, application, and payment of the required fee [Health & Safety Code § 102725; see Health & Safety Code § 103710].

All records and information other than the newly issued birth certificate will be available only on court order [Health & Safety Code § 102730]. The State Registrar will furnish a certified copy of the newly amended record of birth to the registrant without additional cost [Health & Safety Code § 103300].

C. Amendments and Requests for Copies

32-101 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 101.224

§ 101.224 Application for Certified Copy of Birth, Marriage, or Death Record

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

These official Department of Health Services forms may be used to request a certified copy of a birth certificate, marriage or divorce record, death certificate:

■ Dept. of Health Services Form VS 111, Application for Certified Copy of Birth Records [see § 101.224[2][a] (form)].

■ Dept. of Health Services Form VS 112, Application for Certified Copy of Death Records [see § 101.224[2][b] (form)].

■ Dept. of Health Services Form VS 113a, Application for Certified Copy of Marriage or Divorce Record [see § 101.224[2][c] (form)].

The above forms may be obtained from the Office of Vital records or downloaded from the Department of Health Services website at http://www.dhs.ca.gov/publications/forms/bmd_certs.htm

Subject to the limitations discussed in this section, copies of birth, death, and marriage records are available on request and payment of the required fee [see Health & Safety Code § 103525] from the county of occurrence or from the Office of Vital Records online or at the following address:

Office of Vital Records--MS 5103
P.O. Box 997410
Sacramento, CA 95899-7410

The office has records dating from July 1, 1905. Records before that date may be available from the county recorder in the county in which the event occurred. Births before July 1, 1905, as well as births that were not registered when they occurred, may have been filed as delayed birth registrations [see § 101.10[5]].

The State Registrar, local registrar, or county recorder, on request and payment of the required fee, must supply to any applicant a certified copy of the record of any birth, death, or fetal death registered with the official [Health & Safety Code § 103525(a)]. When a birth certificate contains a printed section at the bottom containing medical and social data, or labeled "Confidential Information for Public Health Use Only," that section may not be reproduced in a certified copy of the record except as specifically authorized by Health & Safety Code § 102430 [Health & Safety Code § 103525(a); see § 101.200[1][d] (access to confidential portion of record)].

[b] Certified Birth and Death Records Available Only to Authorized Persons

The Registrar, local registrar, or county recorder may provide certified copies of birth and death records only as authorized by Health & Safety Code § 103526 or § 103526.5 [Health & Safety Code § 103525(b)]. Under Health & Safety Code § 103526, the State Registrar, local registrar, or county recorder may furnish a certified copy of a birth or death record only to an "authorized person" [Health & Safety Code § 103526(a)]. An "authorized person" is any of the following [Health & Safety Code § 103526(c); see Health & Safety Code § 103526(d) (person who asks funeral establishment to request death certificate warrants truthfulness of his or her relationship to decedent and is personally liable for all damages resulting from any breach of that warranty)]:

- For requests for certified copies of confidential marriage records, only a party to the confidential marriage.
- For requests for certified copies of birth, death, or non-confidential marriage records, a person who is any of the following:
 - The registrant, or a parent or legal guardian of the registrant.
 - A party entitled to receive the record as a result of a court order, or an attorney or licensed adoption agency seeking the birth record to comply with Fam. Code §§ 3140 or 7603.
 - A member of a law enforcement agency or a representative of another governmental agency, as provided by law, who is conducting official business.
 - A child, grandparent, grandchild, sibling, spouse, or domestic partner of the registrant.
 - An attorney representing the registrant or the registrant's estate, or any person or agency empowered by statute or appointed by a court to act on behalf of the registrant or the registrant's estate.
 - Any agent or employee of a funeral establishment, acting in the course and scope of his or her employment, who orders certified copies of a death certificate on behalf of any individual specified in Health & Safety Code § 7100(a)(1)-(5).

An authorized person's written request for a certified copy of a birth or death record must be accompanied by a notarized statement, sworn under penalty of perjury, that the requester is an authorized person [Health & Safety Code § 103526(a); see Gov. Code § 27201.5(b)]. If the request is made in person, the official must take a statement, sworn under penalty of perjury, that the requester is signing his or her own legal name and is an authorized person [Health &

Safety Code § 103526(a)].

Any member of a law enforcement agency or a representative of another governmental agency who orders a certified copy of a birth or death record in conducting official business is not required to provide a notarized statement [Health & Safety Code § 103536(e)(1)]. Likewise, an agent or employee of a funeral establishment who orders a certified copy of a death certificate on behalf of specified individuals is not required to provide a notarized statement [Health & Safety Code § 103536(e)(2)].

[c] Informational Certified Copy Available to Anyone

A requestor who is not an authorized person, or is an authorized person who is unable to satisfy the requirements of Gov. Code § 103526(a), is only entitled to an informational certified copy displaying a legend that states "INFORMATIONAL, NOT A VALID DOCUMENT TO ESTABLISH IDENTITY" [Gov. Code § 103526(b)(1)]. If the requestor is not an authorized person, or is an authorized person who is unable to satisfy the requirements of Gov. Code § 103526(a), the official must not release a certified copy of a confidential marriage record unless otherwise authorized by law [Gov. Code § 103526(b)(2)]. Beginning on July 1, 2007 (but only after the statewide database becomes operational and the full calendar year of the birth and death indices and images is entered into the statewide database and is available for the respective year of the birth or death certificate for which an informational copy is requested), an informational certified copy may only be printed from the single statewide database prepared by the State Registrar, and must be electronically redacted to remove any signatures [Health & Safety Code § 103526(f)]. Local registrars and county recorders may not issue such certificates from any other source [Health & Safety Code § 103526(f)].

[d] Contents of Certified Copy

Each certified copy of a birth or death record must include the date issued and the name, signature, and seal of the issuing officer, and must be printed on chemically sensitized security paper [Health & Safety Code § 103526.5].

[e] Marriage Records

The restrictions on copies of birth and death records do not apply to marriage records [see Health & Safety Code §§ 103526, 103536.5; discussed in [b][c], above], so anyone may obtain a certified copy of a marriage or divorce record [see Health & Safety Code § 103525].

Requests for marriage certificates should be made to the county recorder's office in the county where the license was issued, rather than to the State Registrar. The State Registrar will not process requests for public marriages that occurred from July 1905 through 1948, 1987 through 1997, or 2000 to the present. If the marriage occurred from 1949 through 1986, or 1998 through 1999, the State Registrar will process the request if it is accompanied by a note stating that the requesting party is unable to identify the specific county where the license was issued, but advises that it can take 2 to 3 years [see Instructions to Dept. of Health Services Form VS 113a, reproduced in § 101.224[2][c]]. County recorders' offices ordinarily have a much faster turnaround time.

This is the official Department of Social Services Form AD-904, the consent form that an adult adoptee or a birth parent must sign to authorize the Department or a licensed adoption agency to arrange for contact between the adoptee and the birth parent. Use of the official form is mandatory [Fam. Code § 9204]. Once completed, the form should be sent directly to the adoption agency that handled the adoption, if known. Otherwise, the form should be sent the Department of Social Services, Adoptions Branch, in Sacramento [see form instructions]. The form may be obtained from any county Department of Social Services (Post-Adoption Unit).

The Department of Social Services or the adoption agency will not attempt to arrange contact between an adult adoptee and a birth parent unless the adoptee and his or her birth parent have each filed a written consent with the Department or the licensed agency. Neither the Department nor a licensed adoption agency may solicit, directly or indirectly, the execution of the written consent [Fam. Code § 9204].

Also illustrated are the related Department of Social Services official form AD-904A for disclosure of information regarding adult siblings of an adult adoptee, and Department of Social Services official form AD-904B, a waiver of rights to confidentiality for siblings under age 18.

32-101 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 101.231

§ 101.231 Consent or Nonconsent by Birth Parents to Disclosure of Their Names to Adoptee

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is the official Department of Social services form (Form AD-908) by which the birth parent or parents of an adoptee may indicate their consent or nonconsent to the disclosure of his, her, or their name(s) and address(es) to an adoptee. This consent must be obtained before a disclosure concerning the birth parent or parents requested under Fam. Code § 9203(a) [see § 101.14[3], [4], [5]] may be granted. This form is set out in Fam. Code §§ 8702(b) (agency adoptions) and 8818(b) (independent adoptions) and is to be signed by the birth parents at the time the relinquishment or consent to adoption is signed [Fam. Code § 8818(a)(5)].

The Department will file the consent in the office of the clerk of the court in which the adoption took place. The file is not open to inspection by any persons other than the parties to the adoption proceedings, their attorneys, and the Department, except on order of the judge of the superior court [Fam. Code § 8818(a)(5)].

[b] Subsequent Change

The birth parent, at any time, may change his or her decision as to whether the parent wishes his or her name and address disclosed. In that case, the birth parent must send a notarized letter to that effect (by certified mail, return receipt requested) to the Department of Social Services [Fam. Code § 8818(a)(4)].

§ 101.232 Consent or Nonconsent by Adult Adoptee to Disclosure of Name to Birth Parents, with Optional Request for Disclosure of Identities of Birth Parents

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is the official Department of Social services form (Form AD-908A) by which the an adult adoptee my indicate his or her consent or nonconsent to the disclosure of his or her name and address to his or her birth parents. The form also contains a box by which the adoptee requests information on the birth parents if the parents have consented to such disclosure [for discussion of consent by birth parents to disclosure of this information, see § 101.231[1]].

[b] Disclosure of Birth Parent's Identities

The Department of Social Services is authorized to disclose the identity of the birth parents to an adoptee who has attained age 21, on the adoptee's request, if the birth parents have given written consent to that disclosure [Fam. Code § 9203(a)(1)]. This form must be used for making this request [see Fam. Code § 9203(b) (DSS required to prescribe form)]. The DSS is required to respond to the request, or forward it to the licensed adoption agency that was a party to the adoption, within 20 working days after receipt [Fam. Code § 9203(d)]. The information will not be disclosed if the birth parent has indicated that he or she does not wish his or her name to be disclosed [Fam. Code § 9203(c)]. Alternatively, the adoptee may complete a consent for contact form [see § 101.230] and, if a consent is received from both parties, names and addresses can be mutually disclosed so that they may contact one another [see Fam. Code § 9204(a)]. Neither the department nor a licensed adoption agency may solicit, directly or indirectly, the execution of a written consent [Fam. Code § 9204(a)].

32-102 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide Scope

Scope

Scope

This chapter provides general coverage of the law of bailments (or "deposits") of personal property. The transaction guide includes a procedural guide to notices required during the term of the deposit, notices given in connection with termination of the deposit, and notices and documents for private bulk storage of grain. Forms include general bailment contracts, various statutory notices, and a bill of sale and notice of sale of grain in private bulk storage.

Specialized types of bailments are covered elsewhere in this publication. For discussion of the disposition of property left in the possession of landlords by paying guests or tenants, see Ch. 35B, Modification and Termination of Leases . For coverage of bailments that take the form of leases or rentals of personal property, see Ch. 53, Personal Property Leasing . For discussion of the storage of commercial, noncommercial, and household goods, see Ch. 54A, Storage of Goods . Liens that may arise out of a bailment are discussed in Ch. 102A, Personal Property Liens . The rights and obligations of dealers in personal property are covered in Ch. 102B, Pawnbrokers, Finance Lenders, and Secondhand Goods Dealers . Procedures available to a bailee for dealing with property that has been abandoned in the bailee's care are covered in Ch. 102C, Lost and Unclaimed Property . Laws, procedures, and forms relating to the sale, consignment, and lending of works of art are covered in Ch. 102E, Sales and Loans of Artwork .

DIVISION VII: PERSONAL TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 102 BAILMENTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

32-102 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102.10

§ 102.10 Bailment Defined

Under the common law, "bailment" is "the delivery of a thing to another for some special object or purpose, on a contract, express or implied, to conform with the objects or purposes of the delivery" [Windeler v. Scheers Jewelers (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 844, 850, 88 Cal. Rptr. 39] . The purpose of a bailment may be to store property, protect it, repair it, permit its use, or accomplish virtually any other legal purpose [see H. S. Crocker Co., Inc. v. McFaddin (1957) 148 Cal. Spp. 2d 639, 648, 307 P.2d 429] .

A bailment is a contract. Therefore, the assent of both parties is necessary before a bailment, either express or implied in fact, can come into existence. As in every contractual obligation, a bailee's duties must be assumed voluntarily; these duties ordinarily cannot be imposed on a person without his or her consent [Gordon H. Ball, Inc. v. Parreira (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 697, 703, 29 Cal. Rptr. 679 ; H. S. Crocker Co., Inc. v. McFaddin (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 639, 644, 307 P.2d 429 ; see, e.g., Sackett v. Public Storage Management (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1088, 1089, 1092-1093, 272 Cal. Rptr. 284 (storage unit operator placing its own lock on renter's unit, after renter's lock was vandalized, did not create involuntary bailment)]. A bailment cannot be implied if it appears that the parties intended that the party in possession hold the property in some capacity other than as bailee. Intent may be shown from the parties' relationship and from the circumstances of the transaction [H. S. Crocker Co., Inc. v. McFaddin (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 639, 644, 307 P.2d 429] . A bailment may be implied if a person knowingly takes property into possession or control for the purpose of creating a bailment--that is, with notice or knowledge that goods are in fact in his or her possession and are the property of the bailor [Gordon H. Ball, Inc. v. Parreira (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 697, 703-704, 29 Cal. Rptr. 679] . Unless the receiving party is obligated to return or account for the property, however, there is a sale rather than a bailment [Associated Beverage Co. v. Board of Equalization 224 Cal. App. 3d 192, 209, 273 Cal. Rptr. 639] .

Bailments are traditionally classified as for (1) the sole benefit of the bailor, (2) the sole benefit of the bailee, or (3) the benefit of both parties. Under this classification system, the party serving without the benefit has a lesser standard of care [Pemberton v. Barber (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 534, 542, 18 Cal. Rptr. 784] .

Under California law, bailments are "deposits," bailors are "depositors," and bailees are "depositories" [see Civ. Code § 1814]. The common-law classifications and rules governing bailments have been codified using those terms [see Civ. Code §§ 1813-1881.2].

CHAPTER 102 BAILMENTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

32-102 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102.11

§ 102.11 Deposits

[1] Voluntary and Involuntary Deposits

A deposit may be voluntary or involuntary [Civ. Code § 1813]. A voluntary deposit is made when the depositor gives to the depositary, with his or her consent, the possession of personal property to keep for the benefit of the depositor or of a third party [Civ. Code § 1814]. An involuntary deposit is made in one of the following ways [Civ. Code § 1815]:

- When the owner of personal property, without negligence, accidentally leaves or places it in the possession of any person.
- When the owner of personal property commits it, out of necessity, to the care of any person in cases of fire, shipwreck, inundation, insurrection, riot, or similar extraordinary emergencies.
- When a live, stray animal is delivered to, picked up by, or held by any person or public or private entity.
- When a live animal is abandoned or left [see Penal Code § 597.1] in or about any premises or real property that have been vacated on, or immediately preceding, the termination of a lease or other rental agreement or foreclosure of the property.

The depositary of an involuntary deposit is bound to take charge of the thing deposited, if able to do so [Civ. Code § 1816(a)]. Any person or entity with whom a live animal is involuntarily deposited must immediately notify animal control officials for purposes of retrieving the animal [Civ. Code § 1816(b)].

Civ. Code §§ 1815 and 1816 presuppose the express or implicit acceptance of the personal property involved, in order to make the depositary liable for its care. Thus, the adjective "involuntary" qualifying the word "deposit" in those statutes indicates that the deposit is involuntarily made rather than involuntarily received [Gordon H. Ball, Inc. v. Parreira (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 697, 702, 29 Cal. Rptr. 679] . For example, the owner of a self-storage facility did not become an involuntary bailee of the property stored in a leased unit by placing a lock on the leased unit after it had been vandalized, then immediately notifying the occupant in writing to inspect the unit for stolen items and to replace the lock with one of the occupant's locks, as was required by the lease agreement. The owner's actions were not consistent with consent to the duties of an involuntary bailee. Instead, they were consistent with the terms of the lease agreement. Thus, the owner had no liability for subsequent theft of items from the unit [Sackett v. Public Storage Management (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1088, 1089, 1092-1093, 272 Cal. Rptr. 284] .

[2] Gratuitous Deposits and Deposits for Hire

A deposit may be gratuitous or for hire. A gratuitous deposit is a deposit for which the depositary receives no consideration beyond the mere possession of the thing deposited [Civ. Code § 1844]. An involuntary deposit is gratuitous, the depositary being entitled to no reward [Civ. Code § 1845; see [1], above]. However, an involuntary depositary of any live animal may accept advertised rewards or rewards freely given by the animal's owner [Civ. Code § 1845]. A gratuitous depositary must use at least slight care for the preservation of the thing deposited [Civ. Code § 1846(a); see Civ. Code § 1846(b) (gratuitous depositary of living animal); see also § 102.15]. The duties of a gratuitous depositary cease when the thing deposited is restored to its owner, or when the depositary gives reasonable notice to the owner to remove the property and the owner fails to do so within a reasonable time [Civ. Code § 1847; see § 102.217 (form for notice)]. An involuntary depositary, however, cannot give this notice until the emergency that gave rise to the deposit is past [Civ. Code § 1847(b)]. Moreover, if the depositary is a public pound, a shelter operated by a society for the prevention of cruelty to animals, or a humane shelter, the duty to provide care, as required by Civ. Code § 1846, continues until a public pound or private shelter is lawfully relieved of its responsibility of care for a living animal [see Civ. Code § 1847(b)].

A deposit that is not gratuitous is called storage, or a deposit for hire. The depositary in such a case is called a depositary for hire [Civ. Code § 1851]. A depositary for hire must use at least ordinary care for the preservation of the thing deposited [Civ. Code § 1852].

A finder of lost property is not bound to take charge of it, unless the person is otherwise required to do so by contract or law. However, one who does so is deemed a depositary for the owner, with the rights and obligations of a depositary for hire. If a person or public or private entity finds money, goods, things in action, or other personal property, or saves any domestic animal from harm, neglect, drowning, or starvation, that person must inform the owner, if the owner is known, within a reasonable time and make restitution to the owner without compensation other than a reasonable charge for saving and taking care of the property [Civ. Code § 2080]. Any person who takes possession of a live domestic animal must provide for humane treatment for the animal [Civ. Code § 2080; see generally Ch. 102C, Lost and Unclaimed Property].

[3] Deposits for Safekeeping or for Exchange

A deposit may be for safekeeping or for exchange [Civ. Code § 1813]. A deposit for safekeeping (also called a deposit for keeping) is one in which the depositary is bound to return the identical thing deposited [Civ. Code § 1817; see § 102.12[1]]. A deposit for exchange is one in which the depositary is bound only to return a thing corresponding in kind to that which is deposited [Civ. Code § 1818]. A deposit for exchange transfers to the depositary the title to the deposited property and creates between the depositary and the depositor the relationship of debtor and creditor only [Civ. Code § 1878].

[4] Termination of Deposits

In the absence of an agreement about the length of time during which a deposit is to continue, it may be terminated by the depositor at any time and by the depositary on reasonable notice [Civ. Code § 1854; see § 102.218 (form for notice)]. Notwithstanding an agreement respecting the length of time during which a deposit is to continue, the depositor may terminate the deposit by paying all that would become due to the depositary in case of the deposit continuing for the balance of the term [Civ. Code § 1855].

Regardless of its express terms, a contract of bailment may be terminated at any time by the mutual consent of the parties [Rackliff v. Coronet Construction Co. (1958) 157 Cal. App. 2d 419, 424, 321 P.2d 50] .

CHAPTER 102 BAILMENTS

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

32-102 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102.12

§ 102.12 Obligations and Liability of Depositary

[1] In General

A depositary's duties and liabilities are prescribed by statutes regulating employment and service generally [Civ. Code § 1839; see Civ. Code §§ 2019-2082].

A depositary may not use the thing deposited for keeping, or permit it to be used, for any purpose without the consent of the depositor. If the deposited property is purposely fastened by the depositor, the depositary may not open it without the depositor's consent, except in case of necessity [Civ. Code § 1835].

A depositary is liable for any damage that happens to the deposited property while the depositary is wrongfully using that property, unless the damage would inevitably have happened even without the wrongful use [Civ. Code § 1836]. A depositary's liability for negligence will not exceed the amount that the depositor states, or the amount that the depositary has reason to believe, is the value of the property deposited [Civ. Code § 1840; see § 102.210 (depositor's declaration of value of deposited property)].

[2] Delivery on Demand

A depositary must deliver the deposited property on demand to the person for whose benefit it was deposited, regardless of whether the deposit was made for a specified time. This requirement does not apply, however, if the depositary (1) has a lien on the property [see Ch. 102A, Personal Property Liens] or (2) has been forbidden or prevented from delivering the property by the owner of the property, or by act of the law, and has given the owner a notice of adverse claims [Civ. Code § 1822; see Civ. Code § 1825 (notice of adverse claims); see also [4], below]. Without a demand, the depositary is not bound to deliver the property. This is true even if the deposit is made for a specified time [Civ. Code § 1823; but see Downey v. Martin Aircraft Service (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 94, 100, 214 P.2d 581 (demand unnecessary to support action if property destroyed)].

The depositary must deliver the property at his or her residence or place of business, whichever is most convenient for the depositary [Civ. Code § 1824]. If the deposited property is owned jointly or in common by persons who cannot agree on the manner of its delivery, the depositary may deliver to each his or her proper share, if that can be done without injury to the property [Civ. Code § 1827]. If a deposit is made in the name of two or more persons, deliverable or payable to either or to their survivor or survivors, the deposit or any part of it, or any increase in its value, may be delivered or paid to either of the persons or to the survivor or survivors in due course of business [Civ. Code § 1828].

[3] Notice of Loss or Injury of Deposit

If a thing is lost or injured during its deposit and the depositary refuses to inform the depositor of the circumstances under which the loss or injury occurred, the depositary is presumed to have willfully or by gross negligence permitted the loss or injury to occur, to the extent that he or she has information concerning those circumstances or willfully misrepresents them to the depositor [Civ. Code § 1838]. For a form giving notice of loss or injury, see § 102.213[2].

[4] Notice of Adverse Claims

A depositary must give prompt notice to the person for whose benefit the deposit was made of any proceedings taken adversely to that person's interest in the deposited property that may tend to excuse the depositary from the obligation to deliver it [Civ. Code § 1825]. For a form illustrating this notice, see § 102.214[2].

[5] Notice to True Owner of Goods Wrongfully Deposited

A depositary who believes that property deposited with him or her is wrongfully detained from its true owner may give the true owner notice of the deposit. Within a reasonable time after notice is given, the owner must (1) claim the property, (2) sufficiently establish his or her right to it, and (3) indemnify the depositary against any claim of the depositor. If the recipient of the notice fails to take these steps, the depositary is exonerated from liability to that person on returning the property to the depositor or on assuming, in good faith, a new obligation changing the depositary's position in respect to the thing to his or her prejudice [Civ. Code § 1826]. For a form illustrating this notice, see § 102.215[2].

§ 102.13 Deposits for Keeping

[1] Duties of Depositor

A depositor must indemnify the depositary (1) for all damage caused to the depositary by the defects of the thing deposited, and (2) for all expenses necessarily incurred by the depositary concerning that thing, other than those involved in the nature of the undertaking [Civ. Code § 1833].

[2] Depositary's Lien for Storage Charges

A depositary for hire has a lien for storage charges and for advances and insurance incurred at the request of the depositor, as well as for money necessarily expended in and about the care, preservation, and keeping of the property stored [Civ. Code § 1856]. In addition, the depositary has a lien for money advanced at the request of the depositor to discharge a prior lien, and for the expenses of a sale if default has been made in satisfying a valid lien [Civ. Code § 1856]. The rights of the depositary for hire to the lien are regulated by the statutory scheme governing liens in general [Civ. Code § 1856; see Civ. Code § 2872 et seq.; see also Ch. 102A, Personal Property Liens].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 102.14 Deposits of Perishable Property

If a thing deposited for safekeeping is in actual danger of perishing before instructions can be obtained from the depositor, the depositary may sell it for the best price obtainable and retain the proceeds as a deposit, giving immediate notice of the proceedings to the depositor [Civ. Code § 1837]. For a form illustrating this notice, see § 102.216[2].

In the case of a deposit for hire, if the depositary is unable, from any cause other than lack of ordinary care and diligence on the depositary's part, to deliver perishable property, baggage, or luggage received for storage or to collect charges for storage due, the depositary may cause the property to be sold on the open market to satisfy the lien for storage [Civ. Code § 1857; see § 102.13[2], above]. However, under this provision, the depositary may not sell any property other than perishable property unless charges for the storage of that property have been due and unpaid for one year at the time of the sale [Civ. Code § 1857].

CHAPTER 102 BAILMENTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

32-102 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102.15

§ 102.15 Deposits of Animals

[1] Rights and Duties of Depositary

A depositary of living animals must provide them with suitable food and shelter, and treat them kindly [Civ. Code § 1834]. Any depositary that fails to perform these duties may be liable for civil damages as provided by law [Civ. Code § 1834]. It is the policy of the state of California that no adoptable animal should be euthanized if it can be adopted into a suitable home [Civ. Code § 1834.4(a)]. Adoptable animals include only those animals that are at least eight weeks of age and that, subsequent to the time the animal is impounded, have manifested no sign of a behavioral or temperamental defect or of a disease, injury, or condition that adversely affects, or is likely to adversely affect, the animal's health [Civ. Code § 1834.4(a)]. It is also California's policy that no treatable animal be euthanized [Civ. Code § 1834.4(b)]. A treatable animal includes any animal that is not adoptable but that could become adoptable with reasonable efforts [Civ. Code § 1834.4(b)].

A gratuitous depositary of a living animal must provide the animal with necessary and prompt veterinary care, adequate nutrition and water, shelter, and must treat it humanely [Civ. Code § 1846(b)]. If the animal has any identification, the gratuitous depositary must make reasonable attempts to notify the owner of the animal's location [Civ. Code § 1846(b)]. Any gratuitous depositary that does not have sufficient resources or desire to provide that care must promptly turn the animal over to the appropriate care facility [Civ. Code § 1846(b)]. Unlike other involuntary (that is, gratuitous) depositories, an involuntary depositary of any live animal may accept advertised rewards or rewards freely given by the animal's owner [Civ. Code § 1845].

In the absence of a different agreement or usage, a depositary for hire is entitled to one week's hire for the sustenance and shelter of living animals during any fraction of a week, and to half a month's hire for the storage of any other property during any fraction of a half-month [Civ. Code § 1853].

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, if an animal is delivered to a veterinarian, dog kennel, cat kennel, pet-grooming parlor, animal hospital, or any other animal care facility pursuant to a written or oral agreement, and the owner of the animal does not pick it up within 14 calendar days after the day on which the animal was due to be picked up, the animal is deemed to be abandoned. The person into whose custody the animal was placed for care must first try for a period of not less than 10 days to find a new owner for the animal. If unable to place the animal with a new owner within that time, the person must destroy the abandoned animal humanely. If the animal was left with a veterinarian, or with a facility that has a veterinarian, and a new owner cannot be found, the veterinarian must humanely destroy the animal. A notice must be posted in a conspicuous place, or included in conspicuous type on a written receipt, to warn each person depositing an animal at an animal care facility of these requirements [Civ. Code § 1834.5].

An animal abandoned under these conditions must not be used for scientific or any other type of experimentation [Civ. Code § 1834.6; see Civ. Code § 1834.9 (animal testing, excluding testing for medical research, is prohibited in California when validated alternatives exist)]. In addition, the abandoned animal is not permitted to be turned over to a pound or animal regulation department of a public agency [Civ. Code § 1834.6].

[2] Required Notices

[a] Shelters that Give Surrendered Animals to Biological Supply or Research Facility

In any pound or animal regulation department of a public or private agency where animals are turned over dead or alive to a biological supply facility or a research facility, a sign (meeting statutory measurement requirements) stating: "Animals Turned In To This Shelter May Be Used For Research Purposes or to Supply Blood, Tissue, or Other Biological Products" must be posted in a place where it will be clearly visible to a majority of persons when turning animals over to the shelter [Civ. Code § 1834.7(a)]. (For purposes of this requirement, "animal research facility" includes any laboratory, firm, association, corporation, copartnership, and educational institution [Civ. Code § 1834.7(b)]. A "biological supply facility" includes any blood bank, laboratory, firm, association, corporation, copartnership, or educational institution that sells biological materials such as blood or animals, either alive or dead, to research facilities, educational institutions, or veterinarians [Civ. Code § 1834.7(c)]). This statement must also be included on owner surrender forms [Civ. Code § 1834.7(a)]. The owner surrender forms must also include the definition of "biological supply facility" [Civ. Code § 1834.7(a); see Civ. Code § 1834.7(c) (definition)].

[b] Sale of Equines for Slaughter

At any public auction or sale where equines are sold, the management of the auction or sale must either post a sign (meeting statutory measurement requirements) or insert into its consignment agreement with the seller a notice, in boldface type, stating: "WARNING: Horses sold on these premises may be purchased for slaughter. As a possible safeguard, seller can set minimum bid above current slaughter prices" [Civ. Code § 1834.8(a), (b); see Civ. Code § 1834.8(c) (management of auction or sale must post current slaughter prices or make them available to sellers on request)]. If a sign is used, it must be posted in a conspicuous place, so that it will be clearly visible to a majority of persons attending the sale. If the notice is inserted into the consignment agreement, space must be provided adjacent to the notice for the seller to initial his or her acknowledgment of the notice [Civ. Code § 1834.8(a)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

32-102 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102.16

§ 102.16 Deposits for Repair or Alteration

Every depositary, on accepting property from a customer, must present the customer with a written receipt. The receipt must include a statement, if applicable, that the deposited property is not insured or protected to the amount of its actual cash value by the depositary against loss occasioned by theft, fire, and vandalism while the property remains with the depositary [Civ. Code §§ 1858.1]. For these purposes, "depositary" means a person who in the ordinary course of business regularly receives property from customers for the purpose of repair or alteration [Civ. Code § 1858(b)], and "property" means personal property used for or intended for personal, family, or household purposes, but does not include any motor vehicle within the meaning of Veh. Code § 415 ("motor vehicle" defined as vehicle that is self-propelled, with specified exceptions) [Civ. Code § 1858(c)]. For a form illustrating the required statement, see § 102.211[2].

A depositary who fails to furnish either the receipt or the statement if required to do so, or who makes any misrepresentation in a receipt, is strictly liable to the customer for any loss from theft, fire, or vandalism while the property remains with the depositary. In addition, the depositary forfeits any lien or other right to hold the property arising from services rendered in holding, repairing, altering, or selling the property [Civ. Code § 1858.2; see Civ. Code §§ 1856 (lien for charges), 1857 (foreclosure by sale of deposit of perishables); see also Ch. 102A, Personal Property Liens]. Furthermore, the failure of a depositary to furnish a receipt or statement as required under these rules is deemed to be a willful act for purposes of Ins. Code § 533, which provides that an insurer is not liable for a loss caused by the willful act of the insured [Civ. Code § 1858.2].

A depositary who, by insurance or by self-insurance, protects property deposited by customers from loss or damage from theft, fire, or vandalism while the property remains with the depositary, need not make or deliver to customer any notice of that insurance [Civ. Code § 1858.3].

The liability of an innkeeper, hotelkeeper, furnished apartment house keeper, furnished bungalow court keeper, boardinghouse keeper, lodging house keeper, or operator of a licensed hospital, rest home, or sanitarium for losses of or injuries to personal property is that of a depositary for hire [Civ. Code § 1859; see Civ. Code § 1861.1 (definitions)]. However, this liability may not exceed the sum of $1,000 in the aggregate or, for each item of described property, the respective sums of $500 for each trunk and its contents, $250 for each valise or traveling bag and its contents, $250 for each box, bundle, or package and its contents, or $250 for all other personal property of any kind. These limits do not apply if the depositary has consented in writing with the property owner to assume a greater liability [Civ. Code § 1859].

If an innkeeper (or a hotelkeeper, boardinghouse keeper, lodging house keeper, or operator of a licensed hospital, rest home, or sanitarium) keeps a fireproof safe and gives guests the required notice, he or she is not liable for any loss of or injury to money, jewelry, documents, furs, fur coats, fur garments, or other articles of unusual value and small size that are not deposited with him or her to be placed in the safe [Civ. Code § 1860]. This limitation of liability does not apply to the extent that the innkeeper's own acts contribute to the loss or injury. The notice must inform guests of the existence of the safe, and of the fact that the innkeeper will not be liable for loss of or injury to the specified articles unless they are placed in the safe [Civ. Code § 1860]. The innkeeper may give this notice in person, or may post a printed notice in a prominent place in the office or the room occupied by the guest [Civ. Code § 1860]. For a form illustrating this notice, see § 102.212[2].

The liability of an innkeeper is limited in any case to the sum of $500 for any or all property of the kind described above, belonging to any individual guest, unless the innkeeper has given the guest a written receipt for property exceeding that value [Civ. Code § 1860].

[2] Lien on Goods of Guests

Hotel, motel, inn, boardinghouse, and lodging-house keepers have a lien on the baggage and other property belonging to or legally under the control of their guests, boarders, tenants, or lodgers that are in the hotel, motel, inn, or boarding or lodging house for the proper charges due from the guests, boarders, tenants, or lodgers for their accommodation, board, and lodging and room rent [Civ. Code § 1861]. The lien is also available to secure payment for any extras that are furnished at the request of the guests, boarders, tenants, or lodgers for all money paid for or advanced to them, and for the costs of enforcing the lien. However, the lien is not available against any property that is exempt from enforcement of a money judgment [Civ. Code § 1861].

The lien may be enforced only after final judgment in an action brought to recover the charges or money. During the pendency of the proceeding, the plaintiff may take possession of the baggage and property pursuant to a writ of possession [Civ. Code § 1861; see Civ. Code §§ 1861.1-1861.27; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 297, Hotels and Motels, §§ 297.70-297.74. (Matthew Bender)]. However, if any baggage or property becoming subject to this lien does not belong to the guest, lodger, tenant, or boarder who incurred the charge or indebtedness secured by the lien at the time the charge or indebtedness was incurred, and if the hotel, motel, inn, boardinghouse or lodging-house keeper entitled to the lien receives notice of that fact at any time before the sale of the baggage or property, then that baggage and property will not be subject to the lien [Civ. Code § 1861].

§ 102.18 Bailment for Parking

[1] In General

If a parking lot operator charges a fee and the vehicle and keys are left with an attendant, a bailment for hire arises [U Drive & Tour, Ltd. v. System Auto Parks, Ltd., 28 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 782, 784, 71 P.2d 354, disapproved on other grounds, 180 Cal. App. 3d 713 (1986) ; see [2], below (licenses distinguished)]. Under this bailment for hire, the parking lot operator must use reasonable care to preserve the vehicle against loss or damage [Beetson v. Hollywood Athletic Club (1930) 109 Cal. App. 715, 718, 293 P. 821] .

A parking lot operator may limit his or her liability only by conforming a printed contract to statutory requirements [Civ. Code § 1630; see Cal. State Auto etc. Bureau v. Barrett Garages, Inc. (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 71, 79-81, 64 Cal. Rptr. 699 ; see also § 102.201]. The operator must post a copy of the contract, printed in large type in an area at least 17 by 22 inches, in a conspicuous place at each entrance of the parking lot [Civ. Code § 1630]. However, mere compliance with these conditions does not create a contract between the parties sufficient to relieve a parking lot operator of liability for its negligence. It is a question of fact in each case whether the bailor assented to the terms of the contract. The critical question is whether under the circumstances a prudent person, acting reasonably, would or would not have read the exculpatory provisions [Cal. State Auto. etc. Bureau v. Barrett Garages, Inc. (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 71, 79, 64 Cal. Rptr. 699] .

If the parking lot operator requires the vehicle bailor to leave his or her keys, the operator may not be exempted from liability for the theft of the vehicle [Civ. Code § 1630.5]. For further discussion of bailment involving parking lot operators, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 93, Bailment (Matthew Bender).

[2] No Bailment When Owner Retains Possession of Vehicle

If a driver parks his or her vehicle in a parking lot, locks the doors, carries away the keys, receives no receipt for parking, and may remove the vehicle at will, no bailment is created. The fact that an automobile was locked and the keys retained by the owner would not necessarily preclude a finding that a bailment existed. In order to constitute a bailment, however, possession of the article must be given the bailee. Thus, if the vehicle owner reserves possession of the car at all times, and the parking lot operator acquires no dominion over the vehicle nor any right to control removal of it, no bailment is created. The vehicle owner merely acquires a license to park his or her car on the premises; the owner assumes no responsibility for safekeeping the car and is not liable for theft or damage [Porter v. Los Angeles T. Club (1940) 40 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 840, 841-842, 105 P.2d 956] .

CHAPTER 102 BAILMENTS

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

32-102 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102.19

§ 102.19 Private Bulk Storage of Grain

The Private Bulk Grain Storage Law [see Civ. Code §§ 1880-1881.2] governs the storage, after sale, of grains in storage facilities owned or operated by the seller. "Grain," in this context, means barley, corn, flax, hay, grain sorghums, oats, rice, rye, and wheat [Civ. Code § 1880.1]. Grain that has been stored in private bulk storage facilities may be sold by bill of sale without delivery of the grain, provided that the requirements of this law are met [Civ. Code § 1880.3]. These sales also are not subject to the delivery requirements of Civ. Code § 3440 or any other section requiring delivery or actual and continued change of possession of goods sold [Civ. Code § 1880.3].

The storage of grain pursuant to this law does not make the depositary a warehouse keeper or storer of goods for hire, and no storage facility under the law is deemed a warehouse or public place of storage [Civ. Code § 1881.2]. For additional coverage of requirements under the Private Bulk Grain Storage Law, see §§ 102.230 and 102.231.

§ 102.110 Notices Given When Deposit is Made

1. Advise depositor to notify depositary of value of property to preserve right to claim damages in amount of actual loss in case of damage or destruction due to negligence of depositary [see §§ 102.200, 102.210].

NOTE:

A depositary's liability for negligence will not exceed the amount that the depositor states, or the amount that the depositary has reason to believe, is the value of the property deposited [Civ. Code § 1840].

2. Advise depositary who holds property for alteration or repair to give each customer [see Civ. Code § 1858.1]:

NOTE:

A depositary who fails to furnish a receipt, or a statement if required, or who makes any misrepresentation in the receipt, is strictly liable to the customer for any loss occasioned by theft, fire, or vandalism while the property is in the possession of the depositary, and forfeits any lien or other right to hold the property arising from services rendered [Civ. Code § 1858.2].

a. Receipt for property [see § 102.211].

b. If applicable, statement that property is not covered by insurance against loss due to theft, fire, or vandalism.

3. Advise depositary who is innkeeper to:

a. Notify guests of the following, if applicable [see Civ. Code § 1860; see § 102.212]:

NOTE:

The innkeeper may give this notice in person, or may post a printed notice in a prominent place in the office or the room occupied by the guest [Civ. Code § 1860].

(1) Fireproof safe is located on premises; and

(2) Keeper is not responsible for valuables not placed in safe.

b. Give guest receipt for deposited property, noting value of property [see § 102.211].

B. Procedural Guide

32-102 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102.111

§ 102.111 Notices Given During Term of Deposit

1. If property is lost or damaged while in possession of depositary, advise depositary to notify depositor of circumstances surrounding loss or damage, including [see § 102.213]:

NOTE:

If the depositary refuses to notify the depositor of the circumstances under which the loss or damage occurred (to the extent that the depositary has information concerning those circumstances), or willfully misrepresents those circumstances, the depositary is presumed to have willfully, or by gross negligence, permitted the loss or damage to occur [Civ. Code § 1838].

- a. Date of loss or damage.
- b. Nature and extent of loss or damage.
- c. Cause of loss or damage.
- d. All other pertinent circumstances.

2. If adverse proceedings are instituted against deposited property (e.g., attachment, garnishment, execution, or similar proceedings), advise depositary to notify person for whose benefit deposit was made of the following information [see Civ. Code § 1825; see § 102.214]:

- a. Nature of adverse proceeding.
- b. Name of person instituting proceeding.

- c. Date proceeding commenced.
- d. Action number, court, or other appropriate identification of proceeding.

3. If depositary believes that property is being detained from its true owner, advise depositary to give owner the following information [see Civ. Code § 1826; see § 102.215]:

- a. Description of property.
- b. Date deposited.
- c. Person who deposited property.
- d. Statement that depositary believes person to whom notice is addressed is true owner.
- e. Statement that person notified may claim property by:
 - (1) Proving ownership; and
 - (2) Indemnifying depositary from liability for delivery.

f. Statement that failure to claim property within specified or reasonable time will exonerate depositary from liability to person to whom notice given.

4. If perishable property is involved:

a. If property is in actual danger of perishing before instructions can be obtained from depositor, advise depositary to [see Civ. Code § 1837]:

- (1) Sell property for best price obtainable;
- (2) Retain proceeds as deposit; and
- (3) Notify depositor, providing him or her with [see § 102.216]:
 - (a) Statement of cause of emergency or circumstances under which property was subject to perishing.
 - (b) Statement that instructions for disposition of property could not be obtained before property would perish.
 - (c) Statement that property was sold for best price obtainable.
 - (d) Date of sale.
 - (e) Price obtained.
 - (f) Statement that amount is held for benefit of depositor.

b. If depositary for hire is unable to deliver perishable property or to collect charges for storing it (from any cause other than want of ordinary care and diligence of depositary), advise depositary to sell property in open market to satisfy lien for storage [Civ. Code § 1857].

NOTE:

The rights of a depositary for hire to a lien for storage and other charges are regulated by the statutory scheme governing liens generally [Civ. Code § 1856; see § 102.13[2]; see also Ch. 102A, Personal Property Liens].

5. If depositary for hire is unable (from any cause other than want of ordinary care and diligence of depositary) to deliver baggage or luggage received for storage, or to collect storage charges, advise depositary to sell property in open market to satisfy lien for storage [Civ. Code § 1857].

NOTE:

This provision is applicable to baggage and luggage only if storage charges have been due and unpaid for one year at the time of the sale [Civ. Code § 1857]. The rights of a depositary for hire to a lien for storage and other charges are regulated by the statutory scheme governing liens generally [Civ. Code § 1856; see § 102.13[2]; see also Ch. 102A, Personal Property Liens].

1. To terminate gratuitous deposit, advise depositary to [Civ. Code § 1847]:

- a. Return property to owner; or
- b. Notify owner to remove property within reasonable time [see § 102.217].

NOTE:

If the deposit is involuntary, arising out of necessity from an extraordinary emergency, the depositary must wait until an emergency has passed before giving this notice [Civ. Code § 1847(b)]. Moreover, if the depositary is a public pound, a shelter operated by a society for the prevention of cruelty to animals, or a humane shelter, the duty to provide care, as required by Civ. Code § 1846, continues until the public pound or private shelter is lawfully relieved of its responsibility of care for a living animal [see Civ. Code § 1847(b)].

2. To terminate deposit for hire:

- a. Advise depositor to demand delivery of property:

NOTE:

A depositary is not bound to deliver deposited property without a demand, even if the deposit is made for a specified time [Civ. Code § 1823; see Civ. Code § 1822 (exceptions to requirement of delivery on demand); see also § 102.12[2]].

(1) At any time, if parties have not agreed to specific term of deposit [Civ. Code § 1854];

(2) At time specified in deposit agreement [see Civ. Code § 1854]; or

(3) At any time, notwithstanding time specified in deposit agreement, on payment of all charges that would become due to depositary if agreement continued for full term [Civ. Code § 1855].

b. Advise depositary to terminate deposit [Civ. Code § 1854]:

(1) At time specified in deposit agreement; or

(2) In absence of agreement regarding term of deposit, on reasonable notice to owner of property [see § 102.218].

1. Advise seller of grain in private bulk storage to post the following on each storage facility [Civ. Code § 1880.2]:

- a. Notice stating: "Private bulk storage only."
- b. Designating number.

2. Prepare bill of sale containing [see § 102.230[2]]:

a. All of following required provisions [Civ. Code § 1880.4]:

- (1) Date and place where sale is to be made;
- (2) Names of seller and buyer;
- (3) Statement of estimated quantity and kind of grain;
- (4) Statement of location and designating numbers of storage facilities in which grain is stored;
- (5) Statement of price per unit; and
- (6) Statement of amount received by seller.

b. Any of following optional provisions [Civ. Code § 1880.5]:

(1) Provision that total price is based upon estimated weight and that total price may be adjusted in accordance with outturn weight.

(2) Statement that buyer may have free use of designated storage facilities until specified date and that any extension beyond specified date granted by seller must be endorsed under signature of seller on bill of sale.

(3) Statement that seller has legal right to extend to buyer use of designated storage facilities.

(4) Statement that actual possession of grain by buyer is to be taken on board trucks at storage facility, on railroad cars, in storage facility, or otherwise as may be agreed on.

(5) Statement that if actual possession is not taken within time specified, due to any cause not chargeable to seller, seller may consign grain at buyer's risk and expense to specified destination.

3. Have seller execute bill of sale and deliver it to buyer [Civ. Code § 1880.4].

NOTE:

Execution and delivery of a bill of sale by a seller passes the seller's title to the grain without actual delivery of the grain [Civ. Code §§ 1880.3, 1880.6].

4. Advise seller to [Civ. Code § 1880.7]:

CHAPTER 102 BAILMENTS

PART IV. FORMS

A. Bailment Contracts

§ 102.200 Simple Contract for Deposit (Bailment) for Hire

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form illustrates a simple contract for a deposit for hire. The contract should include a complete description of the property to be transferred to the depositary, the purpose and term of the deposit, the consideration paid, the depositor's instructions for delivery of the property at the termination of the agreement, and all other terms and conditions agreed to by the parties.

[b] Limitation of Liability

A depositary's liability for negligence will not exceed the amount that the depositor states, or the amount that the depositary has reason to believe, is the value of the property deposited [Civ. Code § 1840]. It is to the depositor's advantage to specify the value of the property at the time of the deposit to assure that the depositary is aware of the extent of his or her liability. If the depositary intends to limit that liability further (for example, by including an exculpatory provision against his or her own negligence), the limitation must be stated unequivocally in the contract [Vinnell Co. v. Pacific Elec. Ry. Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 411, 414-415, 340 P.2d 604 ; see Fahey v. Gledhill (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 884, 894, 663 P.2d 197 (bailor could not avoid liability under Civ. Code § 1858 et seq. when agreement did not clearly and unequivocally exclude liability for negligence)].

[c] Statement of Noninsurance

On receiving property from a customer for repair or alteration, a depositary must present the customer with a written receipt for the property [see Civ. Code § 1858 (definitions)]. Unless the depositary protects the property to the amount of its actual cash value for loss or damage occasioned by theft, fire, or vandalism while the property remains with the depositary, the receipt must include a statement notifying the customer that the property is not protected in that manner [Civ. Code § 1858.1]. No statement is necessary if the depositary does protect the property by insurance, or by self-insurance, for loss or damage from theft, fire, or vandalism while in the depositary's possession [Civ. Code § 1858.3].

]. For further discussion, see § 102.211.

[d] Termination of Deposits

It is generally good practice to include a provision specifying the length of time during which a deposit is to continue. Notwithstanding such a provision, however, the contract may be terminated by the depositor on paying all that would become due to the depositary in case of the deposit continuing for the balance of the term [Civ. Code § 1855]. In addition, a contract of bailment may be terminated at any time by the mutual consent of the parties [Rackliff v. Coronet Construction Co. (1958) 157 Cal. App. 2d 419, 424, 321 P.2d 50] .

[e] Delivery of Property

A depositary must deliver the deposited property on demand to the person for whose benefit it was deposited, whether the deposit was made for a specified time or not [Civ. Code § 1822]. Although by statute the place of delivery must be the depositary's residence or place of business, whichever is most convenient for the depositary [Civ. Code § 1824], the parties presumably are free to agree on an alternative place of delivery. The requirement of delivery does not apply if the depositary (1) has a lien on the property [see Ch. 102A, Personal Property Liens] or (2) has been forbidden or prevented from delivering the property by the real owner of the property, or by act of the law, and has given the owner a notice of adverse claims [Civ. Code § 1822; see Civ. Code § 1825 (notice of adverse claims); see also § 102.214]. Without a demand, the depositary is not bound to deliver the property. This is true even if the deposit is made for a specified time [Civ. Code § 1823].

CHAPTER 102 BAILMENTS

PART IV. FORMS

A. Bailment Contracts

32-102 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102.201

§ 102.201 Bailment Contract for Automobile Parking or Storage

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a sample contract for parking or storing a motor vehicle. The contract ordinarily is printed on the face of the ticket or receipt issued to the bailor at the time of delivery of the vehicle. Valet parking services at restaurants and other businesses also often use similar printed ticket contracts.

A printed contract for the parking or storage of a motor vehicle is not binding, either in whole or in part, on the vehicle owner or on the person who leaves the vehicle with another, unless the contract conforms to specified statutory requirements.

The caption "This contract limits our liability-read it" must be printed at the top of the contract in capital letters of 10 point type or larger, and the remaining provisions of the contract must be legibly printed in eight-point type or larger [Civ. Code § 1630(a), (b)]. A copy of the contract, printed in large type in an area of at least 17 by 22 inches, must be posted in a conspicuous place at each entrance of the parking lot [Civ. Code § 1630]. The benefits of the contract may not be conditioned on a waiver of these statutory requirements, and acceptance of those benefits will not be construed as a waiver of the requirements [Civ. Code § 1630(c)]. City governments are authorized to enact ordinances that are more restrictive, but these minimum requirements must be met [Civ. Code § 1630].

The provisions of any contract of bailment for the parking or storage of a motor vehicle cannot exempt the bailee from liability, either in whole or in part, for the theft of a motor vehicle if the vehicle is parked or stored with the bailee and the bailee requires the keys to be left in the vehicle [Civ. Code § 1630.5]. The statute does not appear to specifically address such issues as theft of parts of a motor vehicle (such as stereo equipment, hubcaps, or batteries) or liability for theft of personal property contained in a vehicle, whether separately or in connection with a theft of the vehicle itself, but in practice contracts of this type universally attempt to exclude liability, at least for loss or damage to personal property, as a matter of course.

This type of printed contract is commonly drafted to be as restrictive as possible to discourage claims by customers and limit the operator's liability to the minimum permitted by law. In addition to the provisions in this form, such contracts often include other restrictive provisions such as (1) a dollar limitation on damages, and (2) limitation on the time within which lawsuits may be filed. These do not appear in the attached form due to questions regarding their enforceability in this context under California law.

[2] FORM

Bailment Contract for Automobile Parking or Storage

THIS CONTRACT LIMITS OUR LIABILITY-READ IT

By accepting this ticket, Customer acknowledges having read and agreed to the following terms and conditions of bailment:

1. Customer has delivered and Company, whose name is printed below, accepts delivery of one motor vehicle, for the purpose of parking and/or storage, at the rates posted on the premises, until Customer demands the return of the vehicle.
2. Customer assumes no liability for damage of any kind, whether due to collision, fire, theft, or otherwise, except any damage directly attributable to the negligence of Company. Company's liability under this agreement will be limited to the fair retail used-car value of the vehicle as of the date of its delivery under this agreement. Customer agrees to inspect Customer's vehicle before leaving the lot. Any claim of damage to or loss of Customer's vehicle must be reported and itemized writing on Company's form before car is taken from lot. Should Company agree to make repairs to Customer's car at Company's expense, Company may elect, on Customer's demand for repairs, to have those repairs made at a facility of Company's choice.
3. Company assumes no liability for damage due to faulty mechanical condition of the vehicle or any negligence attributable to Customer, for loss of articles left in the vehicle, for damage to the vehicle due to articles left inside the vehicle, or for the loss of use of the vehicle.
4. Parking attendant has no authority to modify any of the above terms and conditions.

B. Statutory Notices

32-102 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102.210§ 102.210 Depositor's Declaration of Value of Deposited Property[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a declaration by a depositor of the value of deposited property. A depositary's liability for negligence will not exceed the amount that the depositor states, or the amount that the depositary has reason to believe, is the value of the property deposited [Civ. Code § 1840]. It is to the depositor's advantage to specify the value of the property at the time of the deposit, to assure that the depositary is aware of the extent of his or her liability.

PART IV. FORMS

B. Statutory Notices

32-102 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102.211

§ 102.211 Receipt for Deposited Property With Statement of Noninsurance

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a receipt for personal property deposited by a customer for the purpose of repair or alteration [see Civ. Code § 1858 (definitions)]. The notice may be used as a receipt for deposited property in other situations with minor alterations.

On receiving property from a customer for one of those purposes, a depositary must present the customer with a written receipt for the property. Moreover, unless the depositary protects the property to the amount of its actual cash value for loss or damage occasioned by theft, fire, or vandalism while the property remains with the depositary, the receipt must include a statement notifying the customer that the property is not protected in that manner [Civ. Code § 1858.1]. No statement is necessary if the depositary does protect the property by insurance, or by self-insurance, for loss or damage from theft, fire, or vandalism while in the depositary's possession [Civ. Code § 1858.3].

[b] Failure to Provide Receipt, Statement, or Both

A depositary who fails to furnish a receipt, or a statement if required, or who makes any misrepresentation in the receipt, is strictly liable to the customer for any loss occasioned by theft, fire, or vandalism while the property is in the possession of the depositary. In addition, the depositary forfeits any lien or other right to hold the property arising from services rendered in holding, repairing, altering, or selling the property [Civ. Code § 1858.2; see Civ. Code §§ 1856 (lien for charges), 1857 (foreclosure by sale of deposited perishables); see also § 102.16 (deposits for repair or alteration), Ch. 102A, Personal Property Liens].

An insurer is not liable for a loss caused by the willful act of the insured [Ins. Code § 533]. For this purpose, the failure of a depositary to furnish a receipt or statement as required under these rules is deemed to be a willful act [Civ. Code § 1858.2].

PART IV. FORMS

B. Statutory Notices

32-102 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102.212

§ 102.212 Notice of Nonliability for Valuables Not Deposited in Hotel Safe

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice that an innkeeper may post to avoid liability to guests for losses of valuable articles that the guests may keep on the premises. The notice informs guests that the innkeeper has a safe in which they may deposit their valuables and that the innkeeper is not responsible for valuables not placed in the safe. For purposes of this discussion, the term "innkeeper" includes innkeepers, hotel keepers, boardinghouse keepers, lodging house keepers, and operators of licensed hospitals, rest homes, and sanitariums; the term "guest" includes guests, patients, boarders, and lodgers [see Civ. Code § 1860].

[b] Limitation on Innkeeper's Liability for Loss of Guest's Property

The liability of an innkeeper (and of the keeper of a furnished apartment house or a furnished bungalow court) for losses of or injuries to the personal property of guests is that of a depositary for hire [Civ. Code § 1859; see Civ. Code § 1852 (duty of ordinary care)]. However, in each case this liability is limited to an aggregate of $1,000, and to a maximum of the following amounts for the specified items: $500 for each trunk and its contents; $250 for each valise or traveling bag and its contents; $250 for each box, bundle, or package and its contents; and $250 for all other personal property of any kind. These limitations on liability may be waived if the innkeeper has consented in writing, with the owner of the property, to assume greater liability [Civ. Code § 1859].

[c] Notice Requirement

If an innkeeper keeps a fireproof safe and gives guests the required notice, the innkeeper is not liable for any loss of or injury to money, jewelry, documents, furs, fur coats, fur garments, or other articles of unusual value and small size that are not deposited with the innkeeper to be placed in the safe, except to the extent that the innkeeper's own acts contribute to the loss or injury. The notice must inform guests of the existence of the safe, and of the fact that the innkeeper will not be liable for loss of or injury to the specified articles unless they are placed in the safe. The innkeeper may give this notice in person, or may post a printed notice in a prominent place in the office or the room occupied by the guest [Civ. Code § 1860].

The liability of an innkeeper is limited in any case to the sum of $500 for any or all property of this kind belonging to any individual guest, unless the innkeeper has given a receipt in writing to that guest for receipt of property in excess of that value [Civ. Code § 1860]. A check that does not disclose the value of the property received is not a receipt for this purpose [Robert Altman, Inc., v. Biltmore Hotel (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 274, 279, 11 Cal. Rptr. 838] . For a form that may be used as a receipt in this situation, refer to § 102.211[2].

[2] FORM

Notice of Nonliability for Valuables Not Deposited in Hotel Safe

NOTICE OF NONLIABILITY FOR VALUABLES

THIS IS TO NOTIFY YOU that a fireproof safe is kept on the premises for the storage of valuables. The management will not be liable for any damage to or loss of any money, jewelry, documents, furs, fur coats, fur garments, or other article of unusual value and small size belonging to any [specify, e.g., guest or patient or border or lodger], unless the article is deposited with the management for placement in the safe. In no event will the liability of the management exceed the sum of $500 for any or all valuables of any individual [specify, e.g., guest or patient or border or lodger] without a written receipt for the property signed by an authorized representative of the management.

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice by a depositary to a depositor of loss of or injury to the depositor's property in the possession of the depositary.

[b] Depositary's Liability

A depositary is liable for any damage to deposited property that occurs during the depositary's wrongful use of that property, unless that damage was inevitable even without the wrongful use [Civ. Code § 1836]. If property is lost or injured during its deposit, the depositary must give the depositor notice of the circumstances under which the loss or injury occurred, to the extent that the depositary has information concerning those circumstances [see Civ. Code § 1838].

If the depositary refuses to inform the depositor of the circumstances of the loss or injury to the property, or willfully misrepresents those circumstances to the depositor, the depositary is presumed to have willfully, or by gross negligence, permitted the loss or injury to occur [Civ. Code § 1838]. If the depositary's acts are deemed to be willful, his or her insurance will not cover any liability resulting from those acts [Ins. Code § 533].

This form is a notice of proceedings taken adversely to the interests of a person for whose benefit property has been stored or deposited. The notice must be given promptly by the depositary to inform affected persons of any adverse proceedings that might tend to excuse the depositary from delivering the thing to him or her [Civ. Code § 1825]. The adverse proceedings may be attachment, garnishment, execution, or any other type of adverse claim that might defeat the depositor's claim to the property.

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice by a depositary who believes that property placed in his or her care is being wrongfully detained from its true owner.

[b] Required Notification

If a depositary suspects that deposited property has been wrongfully detained, the depositary may notify the true owner and permit him or her to claim it within a reasonable time [Civ. Code § 1826]. The true owner must sufficiently establish his or her right to the property, and must indemnify the depositary against the claim of the depositor [Civ. Code § 1826]. If the person notified fails within a reasonable time to claim the property and indemnify the depositary, and the depositary either returns the property to the depositor or enters in good faith into a new agreement that changes his or her position with respect to the property to his or her prejudice, the depositary is exonerated from liability to the person to whom he or she gave the notice [*Civ. PART IV. FORMS

B. Statutory Notices

32-102 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102.217

§ 102.217 Notice by Gratuitous Depositary to Remove Property

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice to the owner of gratuitously deposited property to remove that property within a reasonable time from the possession of the depositary. The notice provides a means by which a gratuitous depositary may terminate his or her duties toward deposited property without having to deliver the property to its owner. Unless the deposit is involuntary as the result of an extraordinary emergency [see Civ. Code § 1815(b)] or the depositary is a public pound, a shelter operated by a society for the prevention of cruelty to animals, or a humane shelter [see Civ. Code §§ 1815(c), 1847(b)], the depositary may give this notice to the owner at any time [see Civ. Code § 1847(b); [c], below].

[b] Gratuitous Deposit Defined

A gratuitous deposit is a deposit for which the depositary receives no consideration beyond the mere possession of the thing deposited [Civ. Code § 1844]. The term includes involuntary deposits [Civ. Code § 1845]. However, an involuntary depositary of any live animal may accept advertised rewards or rewards freely given by the animal's owner [Civ. Code § 1845]. An involuntary deposit is made in the following ways [Civ. Code § 1815]:

- By the accidental leaving or placing of personal property in the possession of a person, without negligence on the part of the property's owner.
- In cases of fire, shipwreck, inundation, insurrection, riot, or like extraordinary emergencies, by the owner of personal property committing it, out of necessity, to the care of any person.
- By the delivery to, or pick up by, and the holding of, a stray live animal by any person or public or private entity.
- By leaving or abandoning [see Penal Code § 597.1] a live animal in or about any premises or real property that have been vacated on, or immediately preceding, the termination of a lease or other rental agreement or foreclosure of the property.

[c] Duty of Care

A gratuitous depositary must use at least "slight" care for the preservation of the thing deposited [Civ. Code § 1846(a); see Civ. Code § 1846(b) (gratuitous depositary of living animal); see also § 102.15]. The duties of a gratuitous depositary cease (1) on the restoration of the thing deposited to its owner [Civ. Code § 1847(a)] or (2) on the depositary giving reasonable notice to the owner to remove it and the owner's failing to do so within a reasonable time [Civ. Code § 1847(b)]. In the case of an involuntary deposit that is the result of an emergency, however, the depositary may not give this notice until the emergency that made the deposit necessary is past [Civ. Code § 1847(b); see Civ. Code § 1815(b)]. Moreover, if the depositary is a public pound, a shelter operated by a society for the prevention of cruelty to animals, or a humane shelter, the duty to provide care, as required by Civ. Code § 1846, continues until a public pound or private shelter is lawfully relieved of its responsibility of care for a living animal [see Civ. Code § 1847(b); see also Civ. Code § 1846(c) (compliance with all other requirements of Food and Agricultural Code regarding impounding of live animals is required)].

PART IV. FORMS

C. Private Bulk Storage of Grain

32-102 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102.230

§ 102.230 Bill of Sale for Grain to Remain in Private Bulk Storage

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a bill of sale for a sale of grain that is to remain in private bulk storage. For a notice of sale to be posted on the issuance of this bill of sale, see § 102.231. For forms relating to the assignment of a bill of sale to a bank as security for a loan, see Ch. 43, Commercial Loans.

[b] Private Bulk Grain Storage Law

The Private Bulk Grain Storage Law [see Civ. Code §§ 1880-1881.2] governs the storage, after sale, of grains, including for example, barley, corn, flax, hay, grain, sorghums, oats, rice, rye, and wheat in storage facilities owned or operated by the seller [see Civ. Code § 1880.1 (definitions)]. Grain that has been stored in private bulk storage facilities may be sold by bill of sale without delivery of the grain, provided that the requirements of this law are met. These sales are also not subject to the delivery requirements of Civ. Code § 3440 or any other section requiring delivery or actual and continued change of possession of goods sold [Civ. Code § 1880.3]. The storage of grain in accordance with this law does not make the depositary a warehouse keeper or storer of goods for hire, and no storage facility under the law is deemed a warehouse or public place of storage [Civ. Code § 1881.2].

[c] Marking Storage Facilities

To qualify the sale and private bulk storage of grain under this law, the seller of the grain must conspicuously mark each storage facility with the words "private bulk storage only" and with a designating number. These markings must be maintained at all times during which grain remains in private bulk storage in the storage facility [Civ. Code § 1880.2]. Failure to comply with these marking requirements, or with the posting requirements of Civ. Code § 1880.7 [see § 102.231], is punishable as a misdemeanor [Civ. Code § 1881.1].

[d] Contents of Bill of Sale

On the sale of grain that is to remain in private bulk storage, the seller must execute and deliver to the buyer a bill of sale that contains all of the following [Civ. Code § 1880.4]:

- The date and place where made.
- The names of the seller and the buyer.
- A statement of the estimated quantity and kind of grain.
- A statement of the location and designating numbers of the storage facilities in which the grain is stored.
- A statement of the price per unit and a statement of the amount received by the seller.

In addition to these required statements, the bill of sale may also contain other provisions, including any one or more of the following [Civ. Code § 1880.5]:

- Provisions that the total price is based upon the estimated weight and that the total price may be adjusted in accordance with the outturn weight.
- A statement that the buyer may have free use of the designated storage facilities until a specified date, and that any extension beyond the specified date granted by the seller must be endorsed under the signature of seller on the bill of sale.
- A statement that the seller has the legal right to extend to the buyer the use of the designated storage facilities.
- A statement that actual possession of the grain by the buyer is to be taken on board trucks at the storage facility, or on railroad cars, or in the storage facility, or as may be agreed on.
- A statement that if actual possession is not taken within the time specified, due to any cause not chargeable to the seller, the seller may consign the grain at the buyer's risk and expense to a specified designation.

[e] Passage of Title

The execution and delivery by a seller of a bill of sale for grain in private bulk storage passes the seller's title to the covered grain to the buyer. The buyer may convey title acquired in this manner to subsequent assignees by endorsing and delivering the bill of sale to them [Civ. Code § 1880.6].

Because the execution and delivery of the bill of sale alone is sufficient to pass title to the privately stored grain, no delivery of any portion of the grain may be made without presenting the bill of sale to the seller or other person in charge of the storage facility, with the amount of grain to be delivered plainly endorsed on the bill of sale [Civ. Code § 1880.8]. This requirement does not apply to any consignment of the grain by the seller to the buyer on the expiration of the time for delivery specified in the bill of sale [Civ. Code § 1880.8]. Furthermore, presentation of the bill of sale by the holder to the seller is presumptive evidence that the person presenting it is entitled to delivery of the described grain, unless the seller has knowledge of facts or circumstances sufficient to place the seller on notice that the possession of the instrument by that person is unlawful [Civ. Code § 1880.9].

[2] FORMBill of Sale for Grain to Remain in Private Bulk Storage*BILL OF SALE FOR GRAIN IN PRIVATE BULK STORAGE

1. By this Bill of Sale, made on _____ [date], at _____ [city], County of _____, State of California, _____ [name of seller] ("Seller") sells to _____ [name of buyer] ("Buyer") all _____ [his or her or its] right, title, and interest in approximately _____ [estimated quantity, e.g., 500 bushels] of [type of grain] stored on the premises of the Seller at _____ [address of storage facilities] in bulk storage facilities number(s) [insert designating numbers of the storage facilities in which the grain is stored]. In consideration for this sale, Buyer agrees to pay to Seller the sum of $ _____ per _____ [specify unit, e.g., bushel or pound], receipt of [$ _____ of] which is acknowledged by Seller.

2. The total consideration for the grain sold under this Bill of Sale is based on the estimated weight stated above and will be adjusted in accordance with the outturn weight when delivered to Buyer. Any difference will be paid by or refunded to Buyer at that time.

3. Buyer will have full and free use of the storage facilities designated above until _____ [date]. Any extension of the right to use those storage facilities beyond that date granted by the Seller must be endorsed under the signature of Seller on this Bill of Sale to be binding.

4. Seller warrants to Buyer that Seller has the legal right to extend to Buyer the use of the storage facilities designated above for the prescribed period, and that Seller has complied with the provisions of the Private Bulk Grain Storage Law with regard to the marking of those storage facilities.

5. Actual possession of the grain sold under this Bill of Sale is to be taken [specify manner, e.g., on board trucks at the storage facility or on railroad cars or as may be agreed on between the parties].

6. If Buyer does not take actual possession of the grain sold under this Bill of Sale within the time specified above, due to any cause not chargeable to Seller, the Seller may consign that grain at the Buyer's risk and expense to [specify destination].

PART IV. FORMS

C. Private Bulk Storage of Grain

32-102 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102.231

§ 102.231 Notice of Sale of Grain in Private Bulk Storage

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice of sale that must be posted on grain storage facilities containing grain in private bulk storage for which a bill of sale has been issued by the seller [see Civ. Code § 1880.7].

For a bill of sale of grain in private bulk storage and further discussion of the requirements of the Private Bulk Grain Storage Law [see Civ. Code §§ 1880-1881.2], see § 102.230.

[b] Required Posting of Notice

The notice of sale must be posted immediately on the issuance of the bill of sale, and must be maintained in a conspicuous place on the storage facility at all times during which the grain continues to be stored there [Civ. Code § 1880.7].

[c] Required Form of Notice

The notice must be in substantially the form illustrated below [Civ. Code § 1880.7].

If any grain in private bulk storage is not removed or delivered on or before the original date of delivery specified in the bill of sale and in this notice of sale, the seller may continue to store the grain to the order of the buyer on whatever terms the parties may agree upon [Civ. Code § 1881]. If the parties extend the date by which the buyer is to remove the grain from the storage facility, that fact and the extended date must appear on the notice [Civ. Code § 1880.7].

32-102A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide Scope

Scope

Scope

This chapter covers the substance, creation, and use of personal property liens, and includes specific discussion of the statutory provisions governing a variety of types of personal property liens. The Legal Background generally discusses the definition, classification, creation, and constitutionality of liens. The forms section includes forms covering liens for motor vehicles, vessels, and transactions involving livestock, agriculture, personal property, and service providers. Miscellaneous lien forms, including liens for carriers, jewelers, self-service storage facilities, hospitals, banks, and savings and loan associations are also provided.

The extensive statutory scheme governing mechanics' liens [see Civ. Code § 3082 et seq.] is discussed separately in Ch. 31, Mechanics' Liens. Ch. 31, Mechanics' Liens, also discusses liens of design professionals. For discussion of liens created in favor of a landlord on a tenant's abandonment of personal property for costs associated with storage, removal, or sale of such property, see Ch. 35B, Modification and Termination of Leases. Transactions in which a secured interest is created pursuant to Division 9 of the Commercial Code [Com. Code § 9101 et seq.] are covered in detail in Ch. 42, Secured Transactions. For discussion of agricultural liens--other than certain liens available for livestock breeders and servicers, suppliers of feed and materials for dairy cattle, and fish, and poultry, and suppliers of agricultural chemicals and seeds, which are discussed in this chapter--see Ch. 48, Agricultural Financing, and Ch. 49, Agricultural Contracts. For discussion and forms relating to transactions in which a lien in property is created in favor of a pawnbroker, personal property broker, or pledgor, see Ch. 102B, Pawnbrokers, Personal Property Brokers, and Secondhand Goods Dealers.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

32-102A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102A.10

§ 102A.10 "Lien" Defined

A lien is a charge imposed, by means other than a transfer in trust, on specific property that is thereby made into security for the performance of an act [Civ. Code § 2872; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1180 (parallel definition excluding exemption for "transfers in trust")]. In its broadest sense, a lien is a legal claim or charge on real or personal property as security for the payment of a debt or obligation. The term applies in every case in which real or personal property is charged with the payment of a debt [Taylor v. S & M Lamp Co. (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 700, 711, 12 Cal. Rptr. 323] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 102A.11 Classification of Liens

[1] In General

At common law, liens dependent on possession existed in favor of persons to whom a debt or obligation was owed [see City of San Diego v. Higgins (1896) 115 Cal. 170, 178, 46 P. 923]. California statutes have codified and expanded the common law liens and provide extensive protection for those persons [see, e.g., Civ. Code § 3046 et seq. (lines of sellers, bankers, seamen, carriers, artisans, miners, breeders, threshers, and lodgers)].

Liens are classified in a number of ways. They may be classified according to the type of obligation giving rise to the lien -- either general or special [see Civ. Code § 2873; [2], [3], below]. Liens may be further classified based on the source of the authority granting the lien -- contractual, statutory, or equitable [see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions]. Liens also are described as possessory or nonpossessory. Distinguishing among types of liens is significant if enforcement actions become necessary [See California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 342, Liens and Wage Preferences (Matthew Bender)].

[2] General Liens

Liens are either general or special [Civ. Code § 2873; see [2], below (special liens)]. A general lien is one that the lienholder is entitled to enforce as a security for the performance of all the obligations, or all of a particular class of obligations, that exist in his or her favor against the owner of the property [Civ. Code § 2874]. A general lien covers the indebtedness to the lienholder that has arisen from a series of transactions. General liens include the following:

- A vendor's lien on real property [see Civ. Code §§ 3046-3048; see also Ch. 25A, Security Instruments for Real Estate Financing].
- A laundry proprietor's lien [see Civ. Code § 3051; see also §§ 102A.320, 102A.321].
- A factor's lien [see Civ. Code § 3053].
- A banker's lien [see Civ. Code § 3054; see also § 102A.345].

- A livestock servicer's lien [see Civ. Code § 3080.01; see also §§ 102A.261-102A.265].

[3] Special Liens

A special lien is one that the lienholder can enforce only as security for the performance of a particular act or obligation, and for the performance of any obligations that are incidental to that act or obligation [Civ. Code § 2875]. A special lien arises from a single transaction between the lienholder and the property owner. Examples of special liens include a lien for services performed on personal property [see Civ. Code § 3051; see also §§ 102A.320, 102A.321], a jeweler's lien [see Civ. Code § 3052a; see also § 102A.327], and a purchaser's lien on real property [see Civ. Code § 3050].

§ 102A.12 Creation and Effect of Liens

A lien may be created by contract of the parties or by operation of law [Civ. Code § 2881]. Notwithstanding an agreement of the parties to the contrary, a lien or contract for a lien does not transfer title to the underlying property subject to the lien [Civ. Code § 2888]. The creation of a lien does not of itself imply that any person is bound to perform the act for which the lien is security [Civ. Code § 2890]. Furthermore, the existence of a lien on property does not of itself entitle the person in whose favor the lien exists to a lien on the same property for the performance of any other obligation than that which the lien originally secured [Civ. Code § 2891].

§ 102A.13 Redemption of Property Subject to Lien

Any person having an interest in property subject to a lien has the right to redeem the property from the lien at any time after the claim is due and before the right of redemption is foreclosed [Civ. Code § 2903]. Redemption is made by performing, or offering to perform, the act for which the lien is security and paying, or offering to pay, any damages to which the lienholder is entitled for delay [Civ. Code § 2905]. On redemption, the person redeeming becomes subrogated to all the benefits of the lien, as against all owners of other interests in the property, except insofar as the redeemer was required to make the redemption for their benefit [Civ. Code § 2903].

A person holding a lien inferior to another on the same property has the following rights: (1) to redeem the property from the superior lien in the same manner that the owner might, and (2) to be subrogated to all the benefits of the superior lien, when necessary for the protection of his or her interests, on satisfying the claim secured by the lien [Civ. Code § 2904].

Certain statutory liens provide specific procedures for redemption of property subject to those liens [see, e.g., Civ. Code § 3071(k) (motor vehicles); Harb. & Nav. Code § 506.5 (vessels)]. For discussion of redemption of motor vehicles subject to liens, see § 102A.220. For discussion of redemption of vessels subject to liens, see § 102A.290.

§ 102A.14 Extinction of Liens

Because a lien is considered accessory to the act for the performance of which it is a security, whether any person is bound for that performance or not, it is extinguishable in a manner similar to any other accessory obligation [Civ. Code § 2909]. If the property subject to the lien is sold in satisfaction of the underlying claim, or if the lienholder wrongfully converts the property, the lien terminates [Civ. Code § 2910]. A lien also is extinguished by the lapse of time within which an action can be brought on the principal obligation [Civ. Code § 2911(1); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 312-366.3 (statutes of limitations)].

Unless otherwise agreed to by the parties, if the lienholder voluntarily returns property subject to a possessory lien to its owner, the lien is extinguished as to that property. Further, notwithstanding any agreement of the parties, the voluntary restoration of the property to the owner extinguishes the lien as to creditors of the owner and persons subsequently acquiring title to the property, or subsequent lienholders, in good faith and for value [Civ. Code § 2913].

The partial performance of an act secured by a lien does not extinguish the lien on any part of the property subject to the lien, even if it is divisible [Civ. Code § 2912].

§ 102A.15 Lien Sales

Subject to the requirements of constitutional due process [see § 102A.17], many possessory lienholders are entitled by statute to enforce liens, after satisfying notice requirements, by selling the property subject to the lien. If, for example, a lienholder under Civ. Code § 3072 (which pertains to liens on motor vehicles valued at $4,000 or less) is not paid the amounts owed for his or her services, the lienholder may sell the vehicle after giving proper notice to the vehicle owner of the lien and his or her right to a hearing on the matter [see Civ. Code § 3072; see also § 102A.230]. This right of sale also applies to other liens, including livestock and vessels [see, e.g., §§ 102A.262, 102A.290].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 102A.16 Judicial Enforcement of Liens

Some liens can be enforced only by obtaining a final judgment in court after filing a civil suit. The statutes creating these liens make no provision for enforcement by merely retaining property, giving notice to the owner, and holding a lien sale. Examples of liens that can be enforced only by filing suit include the innkeeper's lien [see Civ. Code § 1861], the landlord's lien [see Civ. Code § 1861a], the factor's lien [see Civ. Code § 3053], the thresher's lien [see Civ. Code § 3061], and the logger and lumber-millman's lien [see Civ. Code §§ 3065-3065c]. In addition, due to the uncertainty surrounding aircraft liens because of the unconstitutionality of the involuntary sale provisions of the aircraft lien law [Martin v. Heady (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 580, 582, 163 Cal. Rptr. 117 ; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1208.65-1208.68], those liens should be enforced only by obtaining a final judgment. The enforcement of these liens is beyond the scope of this chapter. For discussion of the procedure for enforcing liens by civil action, See California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 318, Judgments, and Ch. 342, Liens and Wage Preferences (Matthew Bender).

CHAPTER 102A PERSONAL PROPERTY LIENS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 102A.17 Constitutionality of Lien Enforcement

The constitutionality of summary prejudgment remedies, including lien sales, was cast into serious doubt as the result of several United States Supreme Court and California court decisions. For instance, the United States Supreme Court struck down a Wisconsin statute that allowed a creditor to institute garnishment proceedings having the effect of freezing the salary of the alleged debtor [see Sniadach v. Family Finance Corp. (1969) 395 U.S. 337, 89 S. Ct. 1820, 23 L. Ed. 2d 349]. The Court found that the statute provided the creditor with a means of depriving the debtor of the enjoyment of his earnings without any opportunity to be heard and to tender any defense that he might have, and therefore held that the statute constituted a taking of property without due process in violation of the Fourteenth Amendment [Sniadach v. Family Finance Corp. (1969) 395 U.S. 337, 342, 89 S. Ct. 1820, 23 L. Ed. 2d 349]. A subsequent United States Supreme Court case invalidated, on similar grounds, writs of replevin providing for prejudgment repossession of goods [see Fuentes v. Shevin (1972) 407 U.S. 67, 83, 92 S. Ct. 1983, 32 L. Ed. 2d 556].

California cases have also invalidated, on procedural due process grounds, statutes providing for wage garnishment [see McCallop v. Carberry (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 903, 83 Cal. Rptr. 666, 464 P.2d 122], claim and delivery [see Blair v. Pitchess (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 258, 96 Cal. Rptr. 42, 486 P.2d 1242], prejudgment attachment of checking accounts [see Randone v. Appellate Dep't of Superior Court (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 536, 96 Cal. Rptr. 709, 488 P.2d 13], involuntary lien sales of aircraft [see Martin v. Heady (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 580, 163 Cal. Rptr. 117], and motor vehicle lien sales [see Adams v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 146, 113 Cal. Rptr. 145, 520 P.2d 961].

As a result of these and other decisions, California enacted more restrictive statutes concerning vessel liens [see Harb. & Nav. Code §§ 500-509; see also § 102A.280-102A.311], livestock service liens [see Civ. Code §§ 3080-3080.22; see also § 102A.260-102A.265], and motor vehicle liens [see Civ. Code §§ 3067-3074; see also §§ 102A.200, 102A.241]. By guaranteeing notice and hearing rights for the property owners, these statutory liens comply with the due process requirements imposed under federal and state decisions.

Statutory liens not complying with the due process requirements still exist [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1208.61-1208.70 (aircraft repair liens)]. To enforce these liens, the lienholder may not rely on the invalid statutory scheme, but rather must resort to common law remedies, such as first obtaining a court judgment [Adams v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 146, 153 n.13, 157, 113 Cal. Rptr. 145, 520 P.2d 961; see California

§ 102A.110 Validity of Lien Claim

1. Determine whether party has either of following types of valid lien claims:

a. Statutory possessory lien, such as:

NOTE:

Valid possessory liens require that the lien claimant have possession of the property to which the lien will attach [see, e.g., Harb. & Nav. Code § 502(a); see also § 102A.11[1]].

(1) Vehicle lien for repairs, labor, materials, storage, rental of parking space [see Civ. Code § 3068; see also § 102A.111].

(2) Livestock service lien for grazing, feeding, boarding, general care, transportation, or other services [see Civ. Code § 3080(c) ("livestock service" defined); see also § 102A.131].

(3) Vessel lien for repairs, labor, supplies, materials, storage [see Harb. & Nav. Code §§ 501(c), (d), 502(a); see also §§ 102A.140, 102A.141].

(4) Other possessory lien:

(a) Innkeeper's lien on baggage or property of tenants or guests [see Civ. Code § 1861].

(b) Keeper of rental unit's lien on baggage or property of tenants or guests [see Civ. Code § 1861a].

(c) General personal property lien [see Civ. Code § 3051; see also §§ 102A.320]

-102A.323 (forms)].

(d) Carrier's lien [see Civ. Code § 3051.5; see also §§ 102A.340, 102A.341 (forms)].

(e) Jeweler's lien [see Civ. Code § 3052a; see also § 102A.327 (form)].

(f) Service dealer's lien on serviced product of nominal value [see Civ. Code § 3052.5; see also § 102A.324].

(g) Factor's lien [see Civ. Code § 3053].

(h) Banker or savings and loan association's lien [see Civ. Code § 3054; see also § 102A.345].

(i) Garment cleaner's lien [see Civ. Code § 3066; see also § 102A.325, 102A.326 (forms)].

(j) Lien for rental of self-service storage facility space [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 21700-21711; see also §§ 102A.342, 102A.343 (forms)].

b. Statutory nonpossessory lien:

(1) Hospital lien [see Civ. Code §§ 3045.1-3045.6; see also § 102A.344].

(2) Mining lien [see Civ. Code § 3060; see also Ch. 31, Mechanics' Liens].

(3) Thresher's lien [see Civ. Code § 3061].

(4) Harvester's lien [see Civ. Code §§ 3061.5, 3061.6; see also § 102A.269[2] (form)].

(5) Breeder's lien [see Civ. Code §§ 3062-3064.1].

(6) Logger and lumber-millman's lien [see Civ. Code §§ 3065-3065c].

(7) Lien for provision of livestock to a meatpacker [see Food & Agric. Code § 55702(a); see also § 102A.261].

(8) Dairy cattle supply lien [see Food & Agric. Code §§ 57401-57414; see also § 102A.266[2] (form)].

(9) Poultry or fish supply lien [see Food & Agric. Code §§ 57501-57545; § 102A.266].

(10) Agricultural chemical or agricultural seed lien [see Food & Agric. Code §§ 57551-57595; see also §§ 102A.267[2], 102A.268[2] (forms)].

2. If party requesting services is not legal owner, determine whether proper notice was given to legal owner of property for value of services exceeding the following statutory maximums:

NOTE:

If the value of the services performed on the property exceeds the statutory maximum and those services were requested by someone other than the legal owner of the property, the owner must be notified, or in the case of vessels and vehicles, the owner's consent must be obtained, before the services begin. Failure to notify the owner and/or obtain the owner's consent invalidates a lien claim to the extent that it exceeds the statutory limit [Civ. Code §§ 3051a, 3068(c); Harb. & Nav. Code § 502(b)].

a. For general personal property liens [see Civ. Code § 3051a]:

(1) $300, for work, services, or care; and

(2) $200, for safekeeping.

b. For vehicles [see Civ. Code § 3068(c)(1); see also §§ 102A.111, 102A.200]:

(1) $1500, for work or services, subject to limitations of Veh. Code § 10652.5 (when name and address of legal owner is known or ascertainable); and

(2) $1025, for storage, safekeeping, or parking rentals.

(3) $1250 for any storage or safekeeping, performed at the request of any person other than the legal owner or lessor, if the lienholder files an application for authorization to conduct a lien sale within 30 days of commencement of vehicle's storage or safekeeping [see Veh. Code § 3071 (application to conduct lien sale)].

NOTE:

These statutory maximums apply unless before beginning any work, services, storage, safekeeping, or rental of parking space, the lienholder gives written notice (by personal service or by registered letter) to the legal owner named in the registration certificate, and obtains the legal owner's consent before any work, services, storage, safekeeping, or rental of parking space are performed [Civ. Code § 3068(c)(1)].

c. $1,500, for services to vessels [see Harb. & Nav. Code § 502(b); see also § 102A.281[2] (form)].

B. Preliminary Determinations

32-102A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102A.111

§ 102A.111 Motor Vehicle Liens

1. Vehicle repair lien [Civ. Code § 3068(a)].

a. Determine whether following facts exist to support enforceable lien:

(1) Lien claimant is entitled to compensation for any of following:

(a) Making repairs or performing labor on vehicle and furnishing supplies or materials for vehicle.

(b) Storage, repair, or safekeeping of vehicle.

(c) Rental of parking space for vehicle.

(2) Vehicle is subject to registration requirements of Vehicle Code [see Veh. Code § 4000 et seq.].

(3) Lien claimant has maintained possession of vehicle.

NOTE:

On completion of the work or services, the lienholder may not dismantle, disengage, remove, or strip from the vehicle the parts used to complete the work or services [Civ. Code § 3068(a)].

The lien is dependent on possession [Civ. Code § 3068(a)]. If possession is lost through trick, fraud, or device, the repossession of the vehicle by the lienholder revives the lien. However, any lien revived by repossession is subordinate to any right, title, or interest of any person under any sale, transfer, encumbrance, lien, or other interest acquired or secured in good faith and for value between the time of the loss of possession and the time of repossession [Civ. Code § 3070(a)].

(4) Lien claimant has either:

NOTE:

The lien is deemed to arise on the presentation of the written statement of charges, or 15 days after work or services are completed, whichever occurs first [Civ. Code § 3068(a)].

(a) Presented written statement of charges for completed work or services to registered owner, or

(b) Completed work or services at least 15 days before lien is claimed.

b. Determine whether legal owner has consented to performance of work, services, storage, safekeeping, or rental of parking space, by either of following means:

(1) By requesting those services; or

(2) After receiving written notice from lienholder that services have been requested by someone other than legal owner or lessor, by giving written consent before services are performed.

NOTE:

If the services are requested by anyone other than the legal owner or lessor of the vehicle, the lienholder must give actual written notice of the services to be performed, by personal service or registered letter, to the legal owner named in the registration certificate, and must obtain the written consent of that legal owner before any services are performed. Otherwise, the lien is invalid to the extent that it exceeds $1500, for work or services, subject to limitations of Veh. Code § 10652.5 (when name and address of legal owner is known or ascertainable), $1025 for storage, safekeeping, or rental of parking space, or $1250 for storage, safekeeping, or rental of parking space if an application to conduct a lien sale in accordance with Civ. Code § 3071 is made within 30 days after commencement of storage [Civ. Code § 3068(c)(1); see § 102A.120].

c. If lien arose because work or services were performed with consent of registered owner, determine whether:

(1) Lienholder received written demand from legal owner or lessor to inspect vehicle by personal service or certified mail (with return receipt requested) in accordance with Civ. Code § 3068(b)(3), and

(2) Lienholder has permitted inspection of vehicle, during lienholder's normal business hours, at least 24 hours and no later than 72 hours after receiving written demand.

NOTE:

The lien that arises because work or services have been performed on a vehicle with the consent of the registered owner is extinguished, and no lien sale may be conducted, if the lienholder, after written demand by the legal owner or the lessor to receive a written copy of the work order or invoice reflecting the services or repairs performed and the authorization to perform the services or repairs, fails to provide that copy to the legal owner or lessor, or his or her agent, within ten days [see Civ. Code § 3068(b)(4)]. See § 102A.120 for a discussion of other ways the lien may be extinguished, and for steps the lienholder may take to avoid its extinguishment.

d. If any portion of lien includes charges for care, storage, or safekeeping of, or for rental of parking space for, vehicle for period in excess of 60 days, determine whether lienholder has filed written storage report with DMV [see Civ. Code § 3068(c)(2)].

NOTE:

Subject to the limitation in Veh. Code § 10652.5 (procedure when name of legal owner is known or can be ascertained), if any portion of the lien includes charges for the care, storage, or safekeeping of, or for the rental of parking space for, a vehicle for a period in excess of 60 days, the portion of the lien occurring after the expiration of this period is invalid unless a written storage report has been filed with the DMV [Civ. Code § 3068(c)(2); see Veh. Code §§ 10650, 10652].

- e. If any portion of lien includes charges for care, storage, or safekeeping of vehicle, determine whether request has been made for release of vehicle [see Civ. Code § 3068(c)(3)].

NOTE:

If a request is made for the release of a vehicle within 24 hours after it is placed in storage, the charge for the care, storage, or safekeeping of the vehicle may not exceed that for one day of storage. If the request is made more than 24 hours after the vehicle is placed in storage, charges may be imposed on a full, calendar day basis for each full or partial day that the vehicle is in storage [Civ. Code § 3068(c)(3)].

2. Vehicle towing and storage lien [Civ. Code § 3068.1(a); Veh. Code § 22851].

a. Determine whether following facts exist to support enforceable lien:

(1) Lien claimant has towed or stored vehicle authorized to be removed by any of the following:

(a) Public agency;

(b) Private property owner in accordance with Veh. Code § 22658; or

(c) Lessee, operator, or registered owner of vehicle.

(2) Vehicle is subject to registration requirements of Vehicle Code [see Veh. Code § 4000 et seq.].

(3) Lien claimant has maintained possession of vehicle.

NOTE:

The lien is dependent on possession, and is deemed to arise on the date of possession of the vehicle. Possession is deemed to arise when the vehicle is removed and is in transit [Civ. Code § 3068.1(a); Veh. Code § 22851]. If possession is lost through trick, fraud, or device, the repossession of the vehicle by the lienholder revives the lien. However, any lien revived by repossession is subordinate to any right, title, or interest of any person under any sale, transfer, encumbrance, lien, or other interest acquired or secured in good faith and for value between the time of the loss of possession and the time of repossession [Civ. Code § 3070(a)].

b. Determine whether request has been made for release of vehicle.

NOTE:

If a request is made for the release of a vehicle within 24 hours after it is placed in storage, the charge for the care, storage, or safekeeping of the vehicle may not exceed that for one day of storage. If the request is made more than 24 hours after the vehicle is placed in storage, charges may be imposed on a full, calendar day basis for each full or partial day that the vehicle is in storage [Civ. Code § 3068.1(a)].

c. Determine whether:

(1) Lienholder received written demand from legal owner or lessor to inspect vehicle by personal service or certified mail (with return receipt requested) pursuant to Civ. Code § 3068.1(d)(1), and

(2) Lienholder has permitted inspection of vehicle by legal owner or lessor, or his or her agent, during lienholder's normal business hours, at least 24 hours and no later than 72 hours after receiving written demand.

NOTE:

The lien is extinguished, and no lien sale may be conducted, if the lienholder does not permit the inspection in a timely manner [Civ. Code § 3068.1(d)(1)]. See § 102A.120 for other ways the lien may be extinguished, and for steps the lienholder may take to avoid its extinguishment.

d. Determine whether legal owner or lessor has complied with inspection and vehicle release policies of impounding public agency [see Civ. Code § 3068.1(d)(1)].

e. Determine whether amount claimed for storage exceeds posted rates.

NOTE:

The lien is extinguished, and no lien sale may be conducted, if posted rates are exceeded [Civ. Code § 3068.1(d)(2)]. See § 102A.120 for other ways the lien may be extinguished, and for steps the lienholder may take to avoid its extinguishment.

3. Determine fair market value of vehicle.

NOTE:

Separate lien sale procedures apply to vehicles having an estimated value of $4,000 or less [see Civ. Code § 3071; see also § 102A.120], and those having an estimated value exceeding $4,000 [see Civ. Code § 3072; see also § 102A.121]. A special procedure is required for the disposal of vehicles valued at $500 or less by a public agency authorizing the towing or storage or both of such vehicles [see Veh. Code §§ 22851.8, 22851.10; see also Veh. Code § 22670 (determination of vehicle value); § 102A.122].

4. If lienholder is tow truck operator, determine whether lienholder is likely to have deficiency claim against [Civ. Code § 3068.2]:

NOTE:

A tow truck operator is entitled to a deficiency judgment in an amount equal to the towing and storage charges for up to 120 days of storage, plus the lien sale processing fee in accordance with Civ. Code § 3074, less the amount received from the sale of the vehicle [Civ. Code § 3068.2(a), (b); see Civ. Code § 3068.2(d), (e) (liability when registered owner has transferred vehicle before its removal)]. Storage charges incurred after the sale are not included in calculating the amount received from the sale [Civ. Code § 3068.2(c)].

a. Registered owner (if vehicle is not leased, or is leased with a driver); or

b. Lessee (if vehicle is leased without a driver).

1. Determine whether following facts required for valid lien exist:

a. Livestock is one of following subject to Livestock Service Lien Law [Civ. Code § 3080(a); see Civ. Code §§ 3080-3080.22 (Livestock Service Lien Law)]:

- (1) Cattle.
- (2) Sheep.
- (3) Swine.
- (4) Goats.
- (5) Horses.
- (6) Mules.
- (7) Other equine.

b. Prospective lienholder has provided any of following to livestock:

- (1) Grazing.
- (2) Feeding.
- (3) Boarding.

(4) General care.

(5) Transportation.

(6) Other services.

c. Prospective lienholder has maintained possession of livestock [see Civ. Code § 3080.01].

d. Prospective lienholder has not been paid for service rendered in connection with livestock.

2. Determine amount of lien.

3. Determine value of livestock.

§ 102A.113 Vessel Liens

1. Determine whether following facts required for valid lien sale exist [Harb. & Nav. Code §§ 501, 502]:

a. Vessel is subject to registration requirements of Vehicle Code [see Veh. Code §§ 9850-9880].

b. Prospective lienholder has done any of following to vessel:

- (1) Made repairs.
- (2) Performed labor.
- (3) Furnished supplies or materials.
- (4) Provided storage.
- (5) Provided slip space in a marina.

NOTE:

Boats that are left in a leased boat slip in a marina after the lessor has obtained an unlawful detainer judgment against the lessee of the slip must be disposed of under the Boaters Lien Law [Harb. & Nav. Code §§ 500-509] since that law provides the exclusive means of enforcing possessory vessel liens [Mariners Bay Co. v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 808, 815, 280 Cal. Rptr. 292] .

c. Prospective lienholder has maintained possession of vessel.

d. Prospective lienholder has not been paid for service rendered in connection with vessel.

2. Determine amount of lien [see Harb. & Nav. Code § 502(b)].

NOTE:

If the work was requested by anyone other than the legal owner of the vessel, the portion of the lien in excess of $1,500 for services or storage is not enforceable without the legal owner's prior written consent to the work [Harb. & Nav. Code § 502(b)]. However, if the owner does not respond to a valid request for consent, his or her consent will be presumed after a 15-day period for charges related to storage of the vessel, or a 30-day period otherwise [Harb. & Nav. Code § 502(d)]. For further discussion of the owner's consent and the value of the lien, see § 102A.281.

3. Determine fair market value of vessel.

NOTE:

Before any lien sale of the vessel, the lien claimant must obtain and submit a declaration containing a licensed yacht and ship broker's opinion of the fair market value of the vessel [see Harb. & Nav. Code § 507].

1. Procedural Guide to Motor Vehicle Liens

§ 102A.120 Lien Sale of Vehicle Valued at Over $4,000

1. If lien involves fees or charges for parking and storage, advise lienholder to notify legal owner by certified mail, return receipt requested, of intent to enforce lien [see Civ. Code § 3071 (l)].

NOTE:

Any lien for fees or storage charges for parking and storage of a motor vehicle is subject to the requirements of Veh. Code § 10652.5 [Civ. Code § 3071 (l)]. Under that section, no fee or service charge may be imposed for parking and storage of the vehicle for the period beginning with the 16th day of possession and continuing until three days after written notice by certified mail, return receipt requested, is sent to the legal owner by the lienholder, provided that the name and address of the legal owner is known or may be ascertained from Department of Motor Vehicles records [Veh. Code § 10652.5(a)].

2. Have lienholder obtain and complete application for lien sale authorization [Civ. Code § 3071(a)].

NOTE:

If a vehicle repair and storage lien arises under Civ. Code § 3068 because work or services have been performed on vehicle with consent of registered owner, the lien will be extinguished, and no lien sale may be conducted, unless one of the following occurs within 30 days after lien arises: (1) the lienholder applies to the DMV for authorization to conduct a lien sale, or (2) an action is filed in court [Civ. Code § 3068(b)(1)]. This kind of lien is deemed to arise at the time a written statement of charges for completed work or services is presented to the registered owner, or 15 days after the work or services are completed, whichever occurs first [Civ. Code § 3068(a)]. On completion of the work or services, the lienholder may not dismantle, disengage, remove, or strip from the vehicle the parts used to complete the work or services [Civ. Code § 3068(a)].

A towing and storage lien arising under Civ. Code § 3068.1 may be for a period not exceeding 120 days if an application for an authorization to conduct a lien sale has been filed pursuant to Civ. Code § 3071 [Civ. Code § 3068.1(c)]. The application must be made on a prescribed form obtainable from the DMV [see § 201A.220]. If the lien includes repairs, the Bureau of Automotive Repair number is required [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 9884.16 (registration as prerequisite for lien or suit)].

3. Mail application with required nonrefundable fee to: Department of Motor Vehicles, Lien Sale Section, P.O. Box 932317, Sacramento, California 94232-3170.

NOTE:

On receipt of the application, the DMV will notify the vehicle registry agency in any other state in which the vehicle is registered of the pending lien sale [see Civ. Code § 3071(b)(1)]. The DMV will also send a Warning Notice of Lien Sale, a copy of the application for lien sale authorization, and a return envelope preaddressed to the DMV, to the registered and the legal owners at their addresses of record, and to any other persons whose names and addresses are listed on the application [see Civ. Code § 3071(b)(2)]. This notice must inform the interested persons that an application has been filed to conduct a lien sale and that they have a right to a hearing in court [see Civ. Code § 3071(c)(1), (2)]. The notice also must state that if a hearing is desired, the interested person must file a Declaration of Opposition form with the DMV, signed under penalty of perjury, within 10 days of the date DMV mailed its notice [Civ. Code § 3071(c)(3)]. The notice sent by DMV must also inform its recipients that if the Declaration of Opposition form is signed and returned to DMV, the lienholder will be allowed to sell the vehicle only if he or she obtains a court judgment (or is unable to effect service under required procedures [see Civ. Code § 3071(e)]), or if he or she obtains a subsequent release from the declarant [Civ. Code § 3071(c)(4)]. Other matters relating to the interested party's right to contest any lawsuit that is filed and potential liability for court costs must also be included in the DMV notice [see Civ. Code § 3071(c)(5), (6)].

If the DMV receives a Declaration of Opposition form in the time provided, the DMV must notify the lienholder within 16 days of receiving that form, that a lien sale will not be conducted unless the lienholder files an action in court within 30 days of the DMV notice to the lienholder. A lien sale of the vehicle may not be conducted unless a judgment is subsequently entered in favor of the lienholder or the declarant subsequently releases his or her interest in the vehicle. If a money judgment is entered in favor of the lienholder and the judgment is not paid within five days after becoming final, then the judgment may be enforced by a lien sale [Civ. Code § 3071(d)].

If the lienholder is unable to serve the declarant under the Declaration of Opposition form (or his or her authorized agent) after following required procedures for service [see Civ. Code § 3071(e)], the lienholder may proceed with the judicial proceeding or proceed with the lien sale without a judicial proceeding. However, the lienholder must first notify the DMV of the inability to effect service and provide documents that support the attempted service. On receipt of these items, the DMV will send authorization of the sale to the lienholder and send notification of the authorization to the declarant [Civ. Code § 3071(e)].

4. On receipt of authorization to conduct lien sale, have lienholder give notice of sale as follows [Civ.

Code § 3071(f):

a. Advertise once in newspaper of general circulation published in county at least five days, but not more than 20 days, prior to sale, not counting day of sale itself.

NOTE:

If there is no newspaper of general circulation in the county, notice must be posted in three of the most public places in the town in which the vehicle is located and at the location of the sale. The notice must be posted for 10 consecutive days prior to and including the day of sale [Civ. Code § 3071(f)(1)].

b. Send Notice of Pending Lien Sale [see § 102A.221] to each of following [Civ. Code § 3071(f)(2)]:

NOTE:

The notice must be sent by certified mail with return receipt requested 20 days prior to the sale, not including the day of sale [Civ. Code § 3071(f)(2)].

(1) Registered and legal owners of vehicle, if registered in California.

(2) All persons known to have an interest in vehicle.

(3) DMV.

5. Advise lienholder to make vehicle available for inspection at location easily accessible to public at least one hour before sale and have vehicle at place of sale at time and date specified on notice of sale [Civ. Code § 3071(j)].

NOTE:

The lienholder is entitled to recover actual costs, not exceeding $100 for a vehicle valued at over $4,000, incurred in preparation for the sale if the vehicle is redeemed prior to the sale. The lienholder may not recover these charges if the vehicle is redeemed before the third day of possession [Civ. Code § 3074].

6. Advise lienholder to conduct sale in commercially reasonable manner [Civ. Code § 3071(j)].

NOTE:

Sealed bids must not be accepted [Civ. Code § 3071(j)].

7. After sale, advise person who conducted sale to do both of following [Civ. Code § 3071(h)]:

a. Remove and destroy vehicle's license plates.

b. Submit completed "Notice of Release of Liability" form to Department of Motor Vehicles within five days of sale.

NOTE:

The Department of Motor Vehicle will retain all submitted "Notice of Release of Liability" forms for two years [Civ. Code § 3071(i)].

8. Following redemption period, have lienholder deliver all completed lien sale documents to buyer [Civ. Code § 3071(k); see § 102A.150].

NOTE:

Within 10 days after the lien sale of a vehicle, the legal or registered owner may redeem the vehicle on payment of the amount of the sale, and all costs and expenses of the sale, together with 12 percent annual interest. If the vehicle is not redeemed, all lien sale documents required by the DMV must be completed and delivered to the buyer [Civ. Code § 3071(k)].

32-102A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102A.121

§ 102A.121 Lien Sale of Vehicle Valued at $4,000 or Less

NOTE:

The procedures outlined below apply to vehicles that have a value of $4,000 or less [see Civ. Code §§ 3068.1(b), 3072(a); see also Veh. Code § 22670 (determination of value)]. In the case of liens for towing and storage arising pursuant to Civ. Code § 3068.1, this procedure must be commenced within 15 days of the date the lien arises; otherwise, no storage accrues beyond that time [Civ. Code § 3068.1(b); see Civ. Code § 3068.1(a) (lien arises on possession)]. If a completed notice of pending lien sale form [see P 2a, below] has been filed within the 15-day period, the storage lien may be for a period no longer than 60 days. The storage lien may be for a period not exceeding 120 days if (1) a Declaration of Opposition is filed pursuant to Civ. Code § 3072; (2) the vehicle has an out-of-state registration; (3) the vehicle identification number was altered or removed; or (4) a person who has an interest in the vehicle becomes known to the lienholder after the lienholder has complied with Civ. Code § 3072(b) [Civ. Code § 3068.1(b)].

1. Have lienholder apply to DMV for names and addresses of all registered and legal owners of record of vehicle to be sold [Civ. Code § 3072(a)].

NOTE:

The request must include a description of the vehicle, including make, year, model, identification number, license number, and state of registration. If the vehicle identification number is not available, the DMV must request an inspection of the vehicle by a peace officer, licensed vehicle verifier, or departmental employee before releasing the names and addresses of the registered and legal owners and interested parties [Civ. Code § 3072(a)]. For a possessory lien for towing or storage of a vehicle, the removal of which was authorized by a public agency, a private property owner pursuant to Veh. Code § 22658, or a lessee, operator, or registered owner of the vehicle, lien sale proceedings must commence within 15 days after the date the lien arises or else storage charges may not accrue beyond the 15-day period [see Civ. Code § 3068.1(a), (b)].

2. Immediately on receipt of names and addresses of registered and legal owners, have lienholder send following to those owners, and to any other person known to have an interest in vehicle [Civ. Code § 3072(b)]:

NOTE:

The following forms and enclosures must be sent by certified mail, return receipt requested, or by United States Postal Service Certificate of Mailing [Civ. Code § 3072(b)]. They must be sent not less than 31 days nor more than 41 days from the date of sale stated in the Lienholder's Certification and Notice of Pending Lien Sale [see Civ. Code § 3072(c)(2); see also § 102A.230]. All notices must be signed under penalty of perjury and must include information and statements required by statute [see Civ. Code § 3072(c)].

Any lien for fees or storage charges for parking and storage of a motor vehicle is subject to the requirements of Veh. Code § 10652.5 [Civ. Code § 3072(j)]. Under that section, no fee or service charge may be imposed for parking and storage of the vehicle for the period commencing with the 16th day of possession and continuing until three days after written notice by certified mail, return receipt requested, is sent to the legal owner by the lienholder, provided that the name and address of the legal owner is known or may be ascertained from Department of Motor Vehicles records [Veh. Code § 10652.5(a)].

a. Lienholder's Certification and Notice of Pending Lien Sale [see § 102A.230 (form)].

NOTE:

This form must be fully completed, including (on the reverse side) the names and addresses of the recipients. If the lien includes an amount for repairs, the Bureau of Automotive Repair business license number is also required [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 9884.16 (registration as prerequisite for lien or suit)].

b. Certification of Lien [see § 102A.231 (form)].

NOTE:

Although this form is not required by Civ. Code § 3072, the DMV requires its submission with the forms required under that section.

c. Declaration of Opposition (blank form) [see § 102A.230].

d. Return envelope preaddressed to: Department of Motor Vehicles, Lien Sale Section, P.O. Box 932317, Sacramento, California 94232-3170.

NOTE:

If the DMV receives a Declaration of Opposition form that is postmarked within 10 days after the date the Certification and Notice of Pending Lien Sale is mailed by the lienholder [see Civ. Code § 3072(c)(4)(C)], it must, within 16 days of the receipt of the Declaration, mail the lienholder a notification that the sale may not be conducted unless the lienholder obtains a court judgment in his or her favor on the claim giving rise to the lien, or the declarant whose name appears on the Declaration has signed a release of interest in the vehicle [Civ. Code § 3072(d); see Civ. Code § 3071.5 (release)]. The action in which a judgment is to be obtained must be filed within 30 days of notification by the DMV to the lienholder that a Declaration of Opposition has been filed [Civ. Code § 3072(d); see Civ. Code § 3072(e) (service)]. If a money judgment is entered in favor of the lienholder and the judgment is not paid within five days after becoming final, then the judgment may be enforced by lien sale proceedings [Civ. Code § 3072(d)].

Process in the judicial proceeding may be served on the declarant under the Declaration of Opposition form in person or by certified mail, return receipt requested. If the lienholder attempts service by mail at the address for the declarant shown on the Declaration of Opposition form and the mail is returned unclaimed, or if the lienholder has been unsuccessful in obtaining personal service after following required procedures [see Civ. Code § 3072(e)], the lienholder may proceed with the judicial proceeding or proceed with the lien sale without a judicial proceeding [Civ. Code § 3072(e)]. However, the lienholder must first notify the DMV of the inability to effect service and provide documents that support the attempted service. On receipt of these items, the DMV will send authorization of the sale to the lienholder and send notification of the authorization to the declarant [Civ. Code § 3072(e)].

3. Have lienholder send completed copy of Lienholder's Certification and Notice of Pending Lien Sale [see § 102A.230 (form)] to DMV by certified mail on same day that documents described in P (2), above, are mailed to owners and other interested persons [Civ. Code § 3072(b)].

4. If sale is authorized [see P 2d NOTE, above], have lienholder post Notice of Pending Lien Sale [see § 102A.230], at least 10 consecutive days prior to and including day of sale, at following locations [Civ. Code § 3072(f)]:

- a. Premises of business office of lienholder, in conspicuous place; and
- b. At site of forthcoming sale, if sale is scheduled to occur at place other than premises of business office of lienholder.

NOTE:

The notice must remain posted until the sale is completed [Civ. Code § 3072(f)]. The sale itself must take place at least 31 but not more than 41 days after the certified letters containing the Lienholder's Certification and Notice of Pending Lien Sale are sent [Civ. Code § 3072(c)(2)].

5. On day of sale, advise lienholder to ensure vehicle has been available for inspection at location easily accessible to public at least one hour before sale [Civ. Code § 3072(i)].

6. Advise lienholder to conduct sale on date and time and at location specified in notices, in commercially reasonable manner.

NOTE:

No sealed bids will be accepted [Civ. Code § 3072(g)].

7. After sale, advise person who conducted sale to do both of following [Civ. Code § 3072(g)]:

- a. Remove and destroy vehicle's license plates.

b. Submit completed "Notice of Release of Liability" form to Department of Motor Vehicles within five days of sale.

NOTE:

The Department of Motor Vehicle will retain all submitted "Notice of Release of Liability" forms for two years [Civ. Code § 3072(h)].

8. After sale, advise lienholder to deliver immediately all completed lien sale documents to buyer [Civ. Code § 3072(i); see § 102A.151].

1. Procedural Guide to Motor Vehicle Liens

32-102A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102A.122

§ 102A.122 Disposition of Vehicle Valued at $500 or Less and Impounded Under Public Authority

NOTE:

This procedure is to be followed by a garage keeper in possession of a vehicle valued at $500 or less that has been removed to the garage on authorization by a public agency [see Veh. Code § 22851]. The garage keeper has a lien on the vehicle that may be foreclosed to obtain compensation for towing and storage of the vehicle for a period not exceeding 60 days, or 120 days if an application for authorization to conduct a lien sale [see Civ. Code § 3068.1] has been filed within 30 days after the removal of the vehicle to the garage [Veh. Code § 22851(a)]. However, if a request is made for the release of the vehicle within 24 hours of the time it is placed in storage, the lienholder may not impose a charge that exceeds that for one day of storage. If the request is made more than 24 hours after the vehicle is placed in storage, charges may be imposed on a full, calendar day basis for each full or partial day that the vehicle is in storage [Civ. Code § 3068.1(a)]. No lien attaches to personal property in or on the vehicle [Veh. Code § 22851(b)]. For further discussion, see § 102A.240[1].

This procedure also applies to the lien of a local impounding authority for satisfaction of bail for all outstanding notices of parking violation issued by the local authority for the vehicle [Veh. Code § 22851.1; see Veh. Code § 41103 (requirements governing notices of parking violations)].

Towing, storage, and parking liens arising under the Vehicle Code on vehicles with a value exceeding $500 are satisfied in accordance with the procedures set forth in Civ. Code §§ 3067-3074 [Veh. Code § 22851.4; see §§ 102A.120, 102A.121].

1. Within 15 working days from date lienholder acquired possession of vehicle, make request to DMV for names and addresses of all persons having an interest in vehicle [Veh. Code § 22851.8].

NOTE:

No storage charge may accrue beyond the 15-day period if the request for names and addresses from the DMV is not made within that period [Veh. Code § 22851.8(a)].

2. On receipt of information from DMV, send following to registered and legal owners and any other person known to have interest in vehicle [Veh. Code § 22851.8(b)]:

NOTE:

The forms used for effectuating the disposal of the vehicle are prescribed by the DMV [Veh. Code § 22851.6(b)]. The forms and enclosures must be sent either by certified mail, return receipt requested, or by United States Postal Certificate of Mailing [Veh. Code § 22851.8(b)].

a. Notice of Intent to Dispose of Vehicle Valued at $500 or Less [see Veh. Code § 22851.8(c) (contents of notice); see also § 102A.240[2] (form)].

b. Declaration of Opposition to Disposal of Vehicle Valued at $500 or Less (blank form) [see § 102A.240].

c. Return envelope preaddressed to the lienholder.

NOTE:

If the lienholder receives a valid Declaration of Opposition within 10 days of the date the notice was mailed, the vehicle cannot be disposed of unless a release of interest is obtained from the declarant or an action is filed in court within 20 days of the date the notice was mailed and a judgment is subsequently obtained in the lienholder's favor [Veh. Code § 22851.8(d)]. If a money judgment is entered in favor of the lienholder and the judgment is not paid within five days after becoming final, then the lienholder may dispose of the vehicle through a dismantler or scrap iron processor [Veh. Code § 22851.8(d)]. If the lienholder is unable to serve a declarant who executes a Declaration of Opposition form as required by statute [see Veh. Code § 22851.8(e)(1)], the lienholder may proceed with the judicial proceeding or proceed with the lien sale without a judicial proceeding [Veh. Code § 22851.8(e)(2)]. However, the lienholder must first notify the DMV of the inability to effect service and provide documents that support the attempted service. On receipt of these items, the DMV will send authorization of the sale to the lienholder and send notification of the authorization to the declarant [Veh. Code § 22851.8(e)(2)].

If proof of service is effected on the declarant, the proof of service must be submitted to the DMV with other required documents [Veh. Code § 22851.8(e)(2); see Veh. Code § 22851.10 (other required documents)]. If a valid Declaration of Opposition is not received, the lienholder may dispose of the vehicle to a licensed dismantler or scrap iron processor not earlier than 15 days after the Notice of Intent to Dispose of Vehicle was mailed [Veh. Code § 22851.10(a)].

3. Procedural Guide to Vessel Liens

32-102A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102A.140

§ 102A.140 Lien Sale of Vessel Valued at Over $1,500

1. To protect his or her lien, lienholder must either obtain or do one of following within 60 days after lien has arisen [Harb. & Nav. Code § 502(f)]:

NOTE:

A lien is deemed to arise at the time a written statement of charges for completed work or services is presented to the registered owner [Harb. & Nav. Code § 502(a)].

- a. Obtain DMV authorization to conduct lien sale [see Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(a)]; or
- b. File action based on claim that gives rise to lien.

NOTE:

Any lien arising because work or services have been performed on a vessel with the consent of the registered owner will be extinguished unless the lienholder applies for an authorization to conduct a lien sale within 60 days after the lien has arisen or, if no application is made, an action in court is filed within 60 days after the lien has arisen [Harb. & Nav. Code § 502(f)].

2. Obtain and complete application for lien sale authorization [Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(a)].

NOTE:

Application must be made on a prescribed form obtainable from the DMV [Harb. & Nav. Code § 508.5; see § 102A.290].

3. Mail application with required nonrefundable fee to Department of Motor Vehicles, Lien Sale Section, P.O. Box 932317, Sacramento, CA 94232-3170.

NOTE:

Within 15 days after receipt of the application, the DMV must (1) notify the vessel registry agency in any other state in which the vessel is registered of the pending lien sale [Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(b)(1)]; (2) apply a vessel registration stop order or title transfer stop order [Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(b)(3)]; and (3) notify the applicant of any outstanding property tax lien on the vessel of which the DMV has been notified pursuant to Rev. & Tax. Code § 3205(b) [Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(b)(4)].

Within the same 15-day period the DMV must also mail a notice [see § 102A.291], a copy of the application [see § 102A.290], and a return envelope preaddressed to the DMV to both the registered and legal owners at their addresses of record with the DMV, and to any other person whose name and address is listed in the application [Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(b)(2)]. The notice will inform the interested persons that an application has been made to conduct a lien sale, that the DMV has placed a vessel registration stop order or title transfer stop order on the vessel, and that the person has a right to a hearing in court [Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(c)(1), (2)]. If a hearing is desired, the interested person must file a Declaration of Opposition form with the DMV, signed under penalty of perjury, within 15 days of the date the notice was mailed [Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(c)(3); see § 102A.291]. If the DMV receives a Declaration of Opposition form in the time provided, the DMV must notify the lienholder within 16 days of receipt that a lien sale may not be conducted unless the lienholder files an action in court within 60 days of that notice. The sale may not be subsequently conducted unless either a judgment is subsequently entered in favor of the lienholder or the declarant subsequently releases his or her interest in the vessel [Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(d); see Harb. & Nav. Code § 505; see also § 102A.282]. If the lienholder files suit and serves process on the declarant by certified mail at the address shown on the Declaration of Opposition and the mail is returned unclaimed, the DMV must promptly authorize the sale [Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(e)].

4. On receipt of authorization to conduct lien sale, give notice of sale as follows [Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(f)]:

a. Advertise once in newspaper of general circulation published in county in which vessel is located at least 10 days, but not more than 30 days, prior to sale, not counting day of sale itself.

NOTE:

If there is no newspaper of general circulation in the county, notice must be posted in three of the most public places in the area in which the vessel is located and at the location of the sale. The notice must be posted for 10 consecutive days prior to and including the day of sale [Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(f)(1)].

b. Send notice of lien sale to each of following [Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(f)(2)]:

NOTE:

The notice must be sent by mail with return receipt requested 20 days prior to the sale, not including the day of sale [Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(f)(2)].

(1) Registered and legal owners of vessel, if registered in California.

(2) All persons known to have an interest in vessel.

(3) DMV.

5. Make vessel available for inspection at location easily accessible to public at least one hour before sale and have vessel at place of sale at time and date specified on notice of sale [Harb. & Nav. Code § 506].

NOTE:

The lienholder is entitled to recover actual costs, not exceeding $100 for a vessel without a trailer or $125 for a vessel with a trailer, incurred in preparation for the sale [Harb. & Nav. Code § 507.5].

6. Conduct sale in commercially reasonable manner [Harb. & Nav. Code § 506].

NOTE:

Sealed bids must not be accepted [Harb. & Nav. Code § 506].

1. Apply to the DMV for names and addresses of all registered and legal owners of record of vessel to be sold [Harb. & Nav. Code § 504(a)].

NOTE:

In most instances, the lienholder can secure registered owner and legal owner information through a local DMV office. The lienholder also may secure the information by submitting the Request for Information (DMV Form REG 443), together with the required fee, directly to the DMV Lien Sale Section: Department of Motor Vehicles, Lien Sale Section, P.O. Box 932317, Sacramento, CA 94232-3170.

2. Immediately on receipt of names and addresses of registered and legal owners, send following to those owners and to any other person known to claim interest in vessel [Harb. & Nav. Code § 504(b)]:

NOTE:

The following forms and enclosures must be sent by mail, return receipt requested [Harb. & Nav. Code § 504(b)]. They must be sent not less than 35 days nor more than 60 days from the date of sale stated in the Lienholder's Certification and Notice of Pending Lien Sale [see Harb. & Nav. Code § 504(d)(2); see also § 102A.300].

- a. Lienholder's Certification and Notice of Pending Lien Sale [see § 102A.300].
- b. Blank Declaration of Opposition [see § 102A.301].
- c. Return envelope preaddressed to Department of Motor Vehicles, Lien Sale Section,

P.O. Box 932317, Sacramento, CA 94232-3170.

NOTE:

If a Declaration of Opposition form is received by the DMV that was postmarked within 15 days after the date the Certification and Notice of Pending Lien Sale was mailed by the lienholder, the DMV, within 16 days of the receipt of the Declaration, must mail the lienholder a notification that the sale may not be conducted unless the lienholder either obtains a favorable court judgment on the claim giving rise to the lien, or the declarant whose name appears on the Declaration has signed a release of interest in the vessel [Harb. & Nav. Code § 504(e)]; see Harb. & Nav. Code § 505 (release)]. The action for which a judgment is obtained must be filed within 20 days of notification by the DMV to the lienholder that a Declaration of Opposition has been filed [Harb. & Nav. Code § 504(e)]. For purposes of a court action on the claim giving rise to the lien, service on the declarant by certified mail with return receipt requested, signed by the declarant or his or her authorized agent at the address shown on the Declaration of Opposition, is effective. If the mail is returned unclaimed the lienholder may proceed with the sale [Harb. & Nav. Code § 504(f)].

3. Send completed copy of Lienholder's Certification and Notice of Pending Lien Sale [see § 102A.300] to DMV by mail on same day that documents described in P 2, above, are mailed to owners and other interested persons [Harb. & Nav. Code § 504(b)].

4. Conduct sale on date and time specified in notices and in commercially reasonable manner [Harb. & Nav. Code § 506].

NOTE:

No sealed bids may be accepted [Harb. & Nav. Code § 506].

1. Hold vehicle available for redemption by registered or legal owner for 10 days after sale [Civ. Code § 3071(k)].

NOTE:

For discussion of redemption of a vehicle before or after a lien sale takes place, see § 102A.220[1].

2. Disburse proceeds of lien sale as follows [Civ. Code § 3073]:

a. Pay lienholder amount necessary to discharge lien and the cost of processing vehicle [Civ. Code § 3073(a)].

NOTE:

The cost of processing the vehicle may not exceed $100 for a vehicle valued at over $4,000 [Civ. Code § 3073(a)].

b. Unless different disposition is required by federal law, forward to DMV any balance within 15 days of sale for deposit in Motor Vehicle Account in State Transportation Fund [Civ. Code § 3073(b)].

NOTE:

Any person claiming an interest in the vehicle may file a claim with the DMV for any portion of the remaining funds. On determining that the claimant is entitled to an amount from the balance forwarded to the DMV, the DMV will forward it to the claimant. The amount due cannot exceed the amount forwarded to the Department. The DMV cannot honor any claim filed after three years from the date the funds were deposited with the DMV [Civ. Code § 3073(c)].

3. Comply with all clearance requirements of DMV by completing and delivering following documents to the buyer [see Civ. Code § 3071(k)], assembled in order listed:

a. Application for Original Registration [see § 102A.204].

NOTE:

If the vehicle was acquired by a licensed dismantler, a Report of Vehicle to Be Dismantled (DMV Form REG 42) must be included in lieu of the Application for Original Registration.

b. Application for Lien Sale Authorization and Lienholder's Certification [see § 102A.220].

c. One of following documents, as appropriate:

(1) Authorization for Lien Sale of a Vehicle Valued Over $4,000 (DMV Form REG 338);

(2) Certified copy of judgment entered in lienholder's favor; or

(3) Release of Interest, signed by declarant [see § 102A.202].

d. Evidence of mailing and posting [see § 102A.222] with postal receipts attached.

NOTE:

The certificate must contain evidence that at least 20 days before the sale, not including the day of sale, the lienholder notified the DMV, both the registered and the legal owners of the vehicle, if registered in California, and all other persons known to have an interest in the vehicle of the date, time, and place of the sale. These notices must be sent by certified mail with return receipt requested [Civ. Code § 3071(f)(2); see Civ. Code § 3071(g) (additional required information)].

e. Warning Notice of Lien Sale.

f. Evidence that the sale was advertised as required by Civ. Code § 3071(f)(1).

g. Certification of Sale [see § 102A.222] from lienholder to buyer.

NOTE:

If there is no buyer at the sale, the lienholder must enter his or her own name as both buyer and seller. If the lienholder sells the vehicle at a later date, he or she must complete and give to the buyer a bill of sale [DMV Lien Sale Instructions, REG 669].

h. Bills of sale, as necessary to complete chain of ownership from buyer at lien sale to current owner.

i. Dealer's report of sale, if applicable [see Veh. Code § 4456 (use of report of sale forms)].

j. Appropriate registration fees and any other fees required by DMV [see Veh. Code §§ 9250-9271].

k. Evidence of record information obtained from DMV regarding ownership of, and other persons interested in, vehicle [see § 102A.203].

32-102A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102A.151

§ 102A.151 Lien Sale of Vehicle Valued at $4,000 or Less

NOTE:

There is no right to redeem a vehicle valued at $4,000 or less from a lien sale [see Civ. Code § 3072(f);
cf. Civ. Code § 3071(k) (redemption of vessel valued at more than $4,000)].

1. Disburse proceeds as follows [Civ. Code § 3073]:

a. Pay to lienholder amount necessary to discharge lien and cost of processing vehicle [Civ. Code § 3073(a)].

NOTE:

The cost of processing the vehicle may not exceed $70 for vehicle valued at $4,000 or less [Civ. Code § 3073(a)].

b. Unless different disposition is required by federal law, forward to DMV any balance within five days of sale for deposit in Motor Vehicle Account in State Transportation Fund [Civ. Code § 3073(b)].

NOTE:

Any person claiming an interest in the vehicle may file a claim with the DMV for any portion of the remaining funds. On determining that the claimant is entitled to an amount from the balance forwarded to the DMV, the DMV will forward it to the claimant. The amount due cannot exceed the amount forwarded to the Department. The DMV cannot honor any claim filed after three years from the date the funds were deposited with it [Civ. Code § 3073(c)].

2. Immediately after sale, deliver to buyer the following items, as required by DMV [see Civ. Code § 3072(i)]:

- a. Application for Original Registration [see § 102A.204].
- b. One copy of Warning Notice of Lien Sale [see § 102A.230] that was posted and signed by lienholder as original.
- c. Evidence of mailing and posting [see § 102A.231] with postal receipts attached.
- d. Certification of Sale [see § 102A.231] signed and completed by lienholder.

NOTE:

If there is no buyer, the lienholder must show his or her name as both buyer and seller. If the vehicle is later sold, the buyer must be given a bill of sale [DMV Lien Sale Instructions, REG 669].

- e. Statement of Facts (DMV Form REG 256) certifying that at least 31 but not more than 41 days have elapsed since Warning Notice of Lien Sale [see § 102A.230] was mailed to registered and legal owners of record and all interested persons and that DMV has not issued notice prohibiting sale [see Civ. Code § 3072(c)(2)].
- f. Evidence of record information obtained from DMV regarding owners and other persons having interest in vehicle sold [see § 102A.203].
- g. Certificate of Non-Operation (DMV Form REG 102) for any period vehicle has not been operated, parked, or driven on any California highway during time vehicle was in lienholder's possession.

§ 102A.152 Disposal of Vehicle Valued at $500 or Less and Impounded Under Public Authority

1. If vehicle is redeemed before disposal, recover from redeeming party actual cost incurred in processing for disposal not to exceed maximum permitted by statute [see Veh. Code § 22851.12].

NOTE:

These costs may begin to accrue and become part of the possessory lien when the lienholder requests the names and addresses of all persons having an interest in the vehicle from the DMV. Not more than 50 percent of the allowable fee may be charged until the lien sale notifications are mailed to all interested parties and the lienholder or the registration service agent has possession of the required lien processing documents. The lienholder may not recover these costs if the vehicle is redeemed before the third day of possession [Veh. Code § 22851.12].

2. Send following information to DMV within five days of disposing of vehicle [Veh. Code § 22851.10(b)]:

- a. Statement, signed under penalty of perjury, that properly executed Declaration of Opposition form was not received.
- b. Copy of notice sent to all interested persons.
- c. Certification from public agency, garage-keeper, or garage-keeper's agent that made determination of value of vehicle [see Veh. Code § 22670 (valuation of vehicle)].
- d. Copy of court judgment in favor of lienholder, if received, or proof of service [see Veh. Code § 22851.8(d) (judgment), (e)(proof of service)].

e. Name, address, and telephone number of licensed dismantler or scrap iron processor who received vehicle.

NOTE:

A scrap metal processor [see Veh. Code § 221(a)(3) (definition)] who acquires a vehicle is not required to submit a certificate of non-operation or pay fees otherwise required for current registration of the vehicle if he or she submits to the DMV a properly endorsed certificate of title and any available license plates or registration documents, or documentation that the vehicle was acquired and will be disposed of pursuant to the statutes governing abandoned vehicles [Veh. Code § 9564; see Veh. Code § 22669 (removal of abandoned vehicles from public or private property); Veh. Code §§ 22850-22856 (liens of stored vehicles)].

f. Statement of amount received for vehicle.

NOTE:

No lien attaches to any personal property in or on the vehicle. That property must be given to the registered owner or his or her agent on demand and without charge during normal business hours, which are defined by statute to be Monday through Friday, from 8 AM to 5 PM, inclusive, except state holidays. A gate fee may be charged for returning property after normal business hours, weekends, and state holidays. The maximum hourly charge for nonbusiness hours releases must be one-half the hourly tow rate charged for initially towing the vehicle, or less [Veh. Code § 22851(b)]. Additionally, the lienholder is not responsible for property after any vehicle has been disposed of pursuant to this chapter. [Veh. Code § 22851(b)].

1. General Forms

32-102A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102A.200

§ 102A.200 Notice to and Consent of Legal Owner for Services to or Storage of Motor Vehicle

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is for use by a garage or auto repair person when someone other than the legal owner or lessor of a motor vehicle requests work on or storage of the vehicle, and the estimated cost exceeds [Civ. Code § 3068(c)(1)]:

- $1500, for work or services, subject to limitations of Veh. Code § 10652.5 (when name and address of legal owner is known or ascertainable); or
- $1025, for storage, safekeeping, or parking rentals; or
- $1250 for any storage or safekeeping, performed at the request of any person other than the legal owner or lessor, if the lienholder files an application for authorization to conduct a lien sale within 30 days commencing storage of the vehicle [see Veh. Code § 3071 (lien sales)].

The garage or auto repair person's lien for services is not enforceable in excess of those amounts unless, before beginning the work or service, the lienholder gives written notice (by personal service or registered letter) to the legal owner named in the registration certificate and obtains the legal owner's written consent to perform the work or services [Civ. Code § 3068(c)(1)].

For discussion of liens against abandoned vehicles removed by a public agency, including forms and specific coverage of the disposal of vehicles valued at less than $500, see §§ 102A.240, 102A.241. For discussion of vessel liens and forms relating to vessel liens and vessel lien sales, see §§ 102A.280-102A.311.

[b] Vehicle Repair Lien

[i] Nature of Lien

Every person who makes repairs or performs labor on and furnishes supplies or materials for a vehicle, or who stores or repairs a vehicle or holds it for safekeeping, or who rents parking space for a vehicle, has a possessory lien for the compensation to which he or she is entitled if the vehicle is of a type required to be registered under the Vehicle Code [Civ. Code § 3068(a)]. "Manufactured homes," "mobilehomes," and "commercial modulars" (also referred to as "commercial coaches") subject to registration under the Health & Safety Code are not subject to this Civil Code lien provision [Civ. Code § 3067.2; see Health & Safety Code §§ 18007, 18008, 18001.8 (definitions)].

[ii] Creation and Extinguishment of Vehicle Repair Liens

A possessory vehicle lien arises at the time a written statement of the charges for completed work or services is presented to the registered owner, or 15 days after the work or services are completed, whichever occurs first [Civ. Code § 3068(a)]. On completion of the work or services, the lienholder may not dismantle, disengage, remove, or strip from the vehicle the parts used to complete the work or services [Civ. Code § 3068(a)]. The lien is extinguished and no lien sale may take place unless (1) the lienholder applies for an authorization to conduct a lien sale within 30 days after the lien has arisen, or (2) an action in court is filed within that same time period [Civ. Code § 3068(b)(1); see § 102A.220 (lien sales)].

Any lien that arises because work or services have been performed on a vehicle with the consent of the registered owner is also extinguished, and no lien sale may be conducted, if the lienholder fails to permit the legal owner or lessor, or his or her agent, to inspect the vehicle after the legal owner or lessor has made a written demand to inspect the vehicle. The written demand must be made by either personal service or certified mail with return receipt requested. The lienholder must permit the inspection to occur during the lienholder's normal business hours, within a period of time not sooner than 24 hours nor later than 72 hours after receipt of the legal owner or lessor's written demand for inspection [Civ. Code § 3068(b)(3)].

Any lien that arises because work or services have been performed on a vehicle with the consent of the registered owner is extinguished, and no lien sale may be conducted, if the lienholder, after written demand by the legal owner or the lessor to receive a written copy of the work order or invoice reflecting the services or repairs performed and the authorization to perform the services or repairs, fails to provide that copy to the legal owner or lessor, or his or her agent, within ten days [Civ. Code § 3068(b)(4)].

On extinguishment of the lien, the lienholder must turn over the possession of the vehicle to the legal owner or lessor on demand at the place where the work or services were performed. The transfer of possession is conditioned on payment by the legal owner or lessor, by cashier's check or in cash, of only the amount to which the lienholder is entitled for storage, safekeeping, or parking space rental [Civ. Code § 3068(b)(2); see Civ. Code § 3068(c) (authorized charges); see also [iv], below].

[iii] Attorneys' Fees

In any action brought by or on behalf of a vehicle owner or lessor to recover a vehicle alleged to be wrongfully withheld by a person claiming a lien under Civ. Code § 3068, the prevailing party may collect attorneys' fees and costs up to the maximum amount permitted by statute [see Civ. Code § 3068(d)].

[iv] Limitations on Storage Charges

If 24 hours or less after a vehicle is placed in storage, a request is made for the release of the vehicle, the charge for the care, storage, or safekeeping of the vehicle may not exceed that for one day of storage. If the request is made more than 24 hours after the vehicle is placed in storage, charges may be imposed on a full, calendar day basis for each full or partial day that the vehicle is in storage [Civ. Code § 3068(c)(3)].

If any portion of a vehicle lien includes charges for care, storage, safekeeping, or rental of parking space for a vehicle in excess of 60 days, the portion of the lien accruing after that period is invalid unless the lienholder complies with certain statutory conditions [see Civ. Code § 3068(c)(2)]. These conditions include keeping records pertaining to the vehicle and reporting possession of the vehicle to the California Department of Justice [see Veh. Code §§ 10650, 10652]. For further discussion and a form that may be used to comply with the notice requirement for periods exceeding 60 days, see § 102A.201.

Any lien for fees or storage charges for parking and storage of a motor vehicle is subject to the requirements of Veh. Code § 10652.5 [Civ. Code §§ 3071 (l), 3072(j)]. Under that section, no fee or service charge may be imposed for parking and storage of the vehicle for the period beginning with the 16th day of possession and continuing until three days after written notice by certified mail, return receipt requested, is sent to the legal owner by the lienholder, provided that the name and address of the legal owner is known or may be ascertained from Department of Motor Vehicles records [Veh. Code § 10652.5(a)].

[c] Vehicle Towing and Storage Lien

[i] Creation and Extinguishment of Lien

Every person has a possessory lien for the compensation to which he or she is legally entitled for towing and storage of any vehicle subject to registration requirements that has been authorized to be removed by a public agency, a private property owner pursuant to Veh. Code § 22658, or a lessee, operator, or registered owner of the vehicle. The lien arises on the date of possession of the vehicle. Possession is deemed to arise when the vehicle is removed and is in transit [Civ. Code § 3068.1(a)].

The lien is extinguished, and no lien sale may be conducted, if the lienholder fails to permit the legal owner or lessor, or his or her agent, to inspect the vehicle after the legal owner or lessor has made a written demand to inspect the vehicle. The written demand must be made by either personal service or certified mail with return receipt requested. The lienholder must permit the inspection to occur during the lienholder's normal business hours, within a period of time not sooner than 24 hours nor later than 72 hours after receipt of the legal owner or lessor's written demand for inspection. The legal owner or lessor must comply with inspection and vehicle release policies of the impounding public agency [Civ. Code § 3068.1(d)(1)].

The lien is also extinguished if the amount claimed by the lienholder for storage exceeds posted rates [Civ. Code § 3068.1(d)(2)].

[ii] Limitation on Storage Charges

A person seeking to enforce a lien for the storage and safekeeping of the vehicle may not impose a charge exceeding that for one day of storage if, 24 hours or less after the vehicle is placed in storage, a request is made for the vehicle's release. If the request is made more than 24 hours after the vehicle is placed in storage, charges may be imposed for each full or partial day that the vehicle is in storage [Civ. Code § 3068.1(a)].

Any lien for fees or storage charges for parking and storage of a motor vehicle is subject to the requirements of Veh. Code § 10652.5 [Civ. Code §§ 3071 (l), 3072(j)]. Under that section, no fee or service charge may be imposed for parking and storage of the vehicle for the period commencing with the 16th day of possession and continuing until three days after written notice by certified mail, return receipt requested, is sent to the legal owner by the lienholder, provided that the name and address of the legal owner is known or may be ascertained from Department of Motor Vehicles records [Veh. Code § 10652.5(a)].

[iii] Lien Sale Procedure for Vehicles Valued at $4,000 or Less

If the vehicle has been determined to have a value that does not exceed $4,000, the lien sale is governed by the requirements of Civ. Code § 3072 [Civ. Code § 3068.1(b); see Veh. Code § 22670 (determination of vehicle value); see also §§ 102A.230, 102A.231]. These lien sale proceedings must begin within 15 days after the lien arises; storage charges may not accrue beyond the 15-day period unless lien sale proceedings have been instituted [Civ. Code § 3068.1(b)]. The storage lien may be for a period not exceeding 60 days if a completed notice of a pending lien sale form has been filed pursuant to Civ. Code § 3072 within 15 days after the lien arises. Notwithstanding this 60-day limitation, the storage lien may be for a period not exceeding 120 days if any one of the following occurs [Civ. Code § 3068.1(b)]:

- A Declaration of Opposition is filed with the Department of Motor Vehicles pursuant to Civ. Code § 3072.
- The vehicle has an out-of-state registration.
- The vehicle identification number was altered or removed.
- A person who has an interest in the vehicle becomes known to the lienholder after the lienholder has complied with Civ. Code § 3072(b).

[iv] Lien Sale Procedure for Vehicles Valued at More Than $4,000

If the vehicle has been determined to have a value of over $4,000, the lien sale is governed by Civ. Code § 3071 [Civ. Code § 3068.1(c); see Veh. Code § 22670 (determination of vehicle value); see also §§ 102A.220-102A.222]. The storage lien applies to a storage period not exceeding 60 days. However, if an application to conduct a lien sale has been filed within 30 days after the lien arises, the lien applies to a storage period not exceeding 120 days [Civ. Code § 3068.1(c); see Civ. Code § 3071; see also § 102A.220 (application to conduct lien sale)].

32-102A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102A.201

§ 102A.201 Report to Department of Justice by Garage Keeper That Vehicle Has Been Stored for 30 Days

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a letter that may be used to notify the California Department of Justice that a garage, parking lot, or trailer park has had the possession of a stored automobile for 30 days [see Veh. Code § 10652]. Compliance with the record-keeping and notice requirements contained in Veh. Code §§ 10650 and 10652 will preserve a vehicle lienholder's right to collect accruing charges for the care, storage, safekeeping, or rental of parking space for a vehicle in excess of 60 days [see Civ. Code § 3068(c)(2); see also § 102A.200[1][c][ii]]. If a vehicle is towed in connection with a parking or traffic violation, and the name and address of the vehicle's legal owner is known or can be ascertained from registration records in the vehicle or from DMV records, no fee or service charge may be imposed on the legal owner for parking or storage of the vehicle for the period beginning on the 16th day of possession and continuing until three days after the date the person in possession of the vehicle sends the owner written notice [Veh. Code § 10652.5(a); see Veh. Code § 10652.5(d)] (limitation not applicable to motor vehicle stored by levying officer acting under authority of judicial process); see also Civ. Code §§ 3071 (l), 3072(j) (notice required to enforce lien for parking and storage)].

[b] Notice Requirement

Whenever any vehicle of a type subject to registration under the Vehicle Code has been stored in a garage, repair shop, parking lot, or trailer park for 30 days, the keeper must report this possession to the Department of Justice by receipted mail. On receipt of the notification, the Department must immediately contact the legal owner of record [Veh. Code § 10652]. The notice requirement does not apply to any vehicle stored by a peace officer or person authorized to enforce parking laws and regulations pursuant to Veh. Code § 22850 et seq. [Veh. Code § 10652; see Veh. Code § 22651 (circumstances in which removal by these persons is permitted)].

32-102A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102A.202

§ 102A.202 Release of Interest [DMV Form REG 658]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a DMV form for the release of a registered owner's or legal owner's interest in a motor vehicle subject to a lien (see backside of form). It is generated by the DMV when a request for lien sale has been denied because the registered or legal owner of a vehicle (or other party with an interest) executes and timely files a DMV Declaration of Opposition form [see §§ 102A.230, 102.240] after a lienholder has initiated proceedings with the DMV to conduct a lien sale. By signing the Release of Interest after a lien has arisen on a vehicle of any value, both the registered and the legal owners release all of their interest in the vehicle and give the lienholder permission to proceed with the lien sale.

When a properly executed and timely filed DMV Declaration of Opposition form is filed, the lien sale may not be conducted unless the lienholder subsequently obtains a judgment or unless the declarant releases his or her interest in the vehicle [Civ. Code §§ 3071(d) (vehicles valued over $4,000), 3072(d)(vehicles valued at $4,000 or less); Veh. Code § 22851.8(d) (vehicles valued at $500 or less and impounded under public authority)]. However, the lienholder may proceed with a judicial proceeding or proceed with a lien sale of the vehicle without a judicial proceeding if service on the declarant by mail or in person is unsuccessful, provided attempted service complies with required procedures and is substantiated [Civ. Code §§ 3071(e) (vehicles valued over $4,000), 3072(e)(vehicles valued at $4,000 or less); Veh. Code § 22851.8(e) (vehicles valued at $500 or less and impounded under public authority)].

In order to transfer the registration of the vehicle after the lien sale, the buyer of the vehicle must submit the Release of Interest, or a copy, along with an Application for Original Registration to the Department of Motor Vehicles [see § 102A.204]. For discussion of vehicle lien sales in general, see § 102A.200[1]. For further discussion of the transfer and registration of vehicles in transactions not involving lien sales, see Ch. 102D, Registration and Transfer of Vehicles, Vessels, and Aircraft.

[b] Release of Interest

A registered or legal owner of a vehicle in the possession of a lienholder may release any interest in the vehicle after the lien has arisen. For example, when a rightful claim on which a lien is based exceeds the value of the vehicle, the registered or legal owners may release their interest and avoid the expense of contesting the claim. The release must be dated when signed and a copy must be given to the person releasing the interest at the time of signing [Civ. Code § 3071.5(a)]. The release must be in at least 12-point type [Civ. Code § 3071.5(b)].

The release must contain the following information [Civ. Code § 3071.5(b)]:

- The vehicle's description, including the year and make, the engine or vehicle identification number, and the license number, if available;
- The names and addresses of both the registered and the legal owners, if available;
- A statement of the amount of the lien and the facts concerning the claim that gives rise to the lien;
- A statement that the person releasing the interest understands that (1) he or she has a legal right to a court hearing before any lien sale of the vehicle, and (2) he or she is giving up the right to appear to contest the claim of the lienholder; and
- A statement that (1) the person releasing the interest gives up any interest he or she may have in the vehicle, and (2) he or she is giving the lienholder permission to sell the vehicle.

This form is the official DMV form used by a lienholder to request information from the DMV about a vehicle in the lienholder's possession. It is available from any DMV office or may be downloaded from the DMV website located at www.dmv.ca.gov. The form is used to initiate the lien sale process, because the lienholder must, at the outset, obtain the names and addresses of registered and legal owners and other interested parties to provide them with notice of the impending lien sale [see §§ 102A.220, 102A.230, 102A.240].

The form may be submitted to any local DMV office. On request, the DMV will provide information about legal owners, registered owners, and other interested parties of a particular vehicle. However, local DMV offices can provide only current information (that is, information for the current year and the preceding three years). Requests for older information and other special requests should be made to the DMV's Sacramento office.

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is the official DMV application for registration of a vehicle, DMV Form REG 343. It is available from any DMV office or may be downloaded from the DMV website located at www.dmv.ca.gov.

This two-part application form is used for vehicles being registered for the first time and for nonresident vehicles brought into California. This form may also be used to reregister a vehicle after it has been junked, salvaged, or removed from the DMV's database. The completed and signed application must be submitted with the appropriate fees within 20 days of the date the vehicle is first operated in California.

The buyer of a vehicle sold at a lien sale, or the person in whose name the vehicle is to be registered after the lien sale, must complete and submit this application for registration, along with other documents relating to the lien sale, to the DMV in order to transfer registration of the vehicle. Form REG 343 should be submitted with other supporting documents; it should not be mailed by itself. The other documents required for registration depend on the value of the vehicle sold at the lien sale.

For discussion and forms covering the lien sales of vehicles valued between $500 and $4,000, see §§ 102A.121, 102A.230, 102A.231. For discussion and forms covering the lien sales of vehicles valued at greater than $4,000, see §§ 102A.120, 102A.220-102A.222.

[1] Comment

This form is the official DMV form used by a lienholder to initiate a lien sale of a vehicle valued at over $4,000. Many commonly used forms are available at any DMV office or may be downloaded from the DMV website located at www.dmv.ca.gov. However, most of the lien sale forms are not available online, and many are not available at local DMV offices. This form is available by mail from the DMV Lien Sale Unit, P.O. Box 932317, Sacramento, CA 94323 by calling the Unit at (916) 657-7617. Forms are also available from the DMV Material Management, Forms Order Desk, 4201 Sierra Point Drive, Suite 112, Sacramento, CA 95834 by faxing the request to (916) 928-7900. The fax should include the title of the form, the form number, the quantity desired (a six month supply is recommended), a contact name and telephone number, and a shipping address, which must be a physical address. If forms are being requested for an organization, the request should be on the organization's letterhead. Questions should be directed to (916) 657-6560.

If the subject vehicle is valued at $4,000 or less, the lienholder does not need DMV authorization [see Civ. Code § 3072(a); see also §§ 102A.230, 102A.231]. Regardless of the vehicle's value, if the lienholder has obtained a release of interest from the registered owner or legal owner, DMV authorization for the lien sale is not required [see Civ. Code § 3071.5; see also § 102A.202].

In addition to the requirements listed below, any lien for fees or storage charges for parking and storage of a motor vehicle is also subject to the requirements of Veh. Code § 10652.5 [Civ. Code § 3071 (l)]. Under that section, no fee or service charge may be imposed for parking and storage of the vehicle for the period commencing with the 16th day of possession and continuing until three days after written notice by certified mail, return receipt requested, is sent to the legal owner by the lienholder, provided that the name and address of the legal owner is known or may be ascertained from Department of Motor Vehicles records [Veh. Code § 10652.5(a)].

[b] Lien Sale of Vehicle Valued at Over $4,000[i] In General

If the value of the vehicle subject to the lien is determined to exceed $4,000, the lienholder must apply to the DMV for the issuance of an authorization to conduct a lien sale. The application must be executed under penalty of perjury and must contain specified information [Civ. Code § 3071(a); see [ii], below]. The lienholder must submit the completed application to the DMV with the appropriate filing fee. The lienholder may recover the filing fee if a lien sale is conducted or if the vehicle is redeemed [Civ. Code § 3071(a)].

[ii] Contents of Application

The application to conduct a lien sale must contain the following information [Civ. Code § 3071(a)]:

- Description of the vehicle, including the year and make, the vehicle identification number, the license number, the state of registration, and, if the vehicle is a motorcycle, the engine number.
- The names and addresses of both the registered and the legal owners of the vehicle, if ascertainable from the registration certificates within the vehicle, and the name and address of any person who the lienholder knows (or reasonably should know) claims an interest in the vehicle.
- A statement of the amount of the lien and the facts concerning the claim that gives rise to the lien.

With respect to the first item above, if the vehicle identification number is not available, the DMV must request an inspection of the vehicle by a peace officer, licensed vehicle verifier, or departmental employee before accepting the application [Civ. Code § 3071(a)(1)].

[iii] DMV Processing

On receipt of the application to conduct a lien sale of the vehicle, the DMV must contact the vehicle registry agency of the applicable state if the vehicle appears to be registered outside of California [Civ. Code § 3071(b)(1)]. In addition, the DMV must notify, by certified mail, both the registered and the legal owners of the vehicle and any other person named in the application [Civ. Code § 3071(b)(2)]. The notice must state the following [Civ. Code § 3071(c)]:

- That an application has been made with the DMV to conduct a lien sale.
- That the person notified has a right to a court hearing;
- That if a court hearing is desired, a signed Declaration of Opposition form must be signed and returned to the DMV within ten days after the date that the notice was mailed by DMV;
- That if the Declaration of Opposition form is signed and returned to the DMV, the lienholder will be allowed to sell the vehicle only if he or she obtains a favorable court judgment or the declarant's release or if the declarant cannot be served as required by statute [see [iv], below];
- That if a court action is filed, the declarant must be notified of the lawsuit at the address shown on the Declaration of Opposition form and may appear to contest the claim; and
- That the person may be liable for court costs if a judgment is entered in favor of the lienholder.

[iv] Declaration of Opposition

If any of the registered or legal owners (or other interested persons) wish to contest a vehicle lien sale, they may request a court hearing by completing a Declaration of Opposition and returning it to the DMV within 10 days after the DMV mailed notice of the sale to them [Civ. Code § 3071(c)(3)]. On timely receipt of an executed Declaration of Opposition form, the DMV must notify the lienholder (within 16 days after receiving the form) that a lien sale may not be conducted unless the lienholder files an action in court within 30 days. A lien sale of the vehicle may not be conducted unless a judgment is subsequently entered in favor of the lienholder or the declarant subsequently releases his or her interest in the vehicle. If a money judgment is entered in favor of the lienholder and the judgment is not paid within five days after becoming final, then the judgment may be enforced by the statutory lien sale procedure described in this comment [Civ. Code § 3071(d)].

There is one exception to the general rule that the lienholder must have a favorable judgment or a release from the declarant prior to proceeding with a lien sale in cases in which a Declaration of Opposition has been filed. Under this exception, the lienholder may proceed with a judicial proceeding or a lien sale without a judicial proceeding, if attempted service on the declarant by required methods is unsuccessful and those attempts are substantiated to the DMV [see Civ. Code § 3071(e)].

[v] Notice From Lienholder

On receipt of the DMV's authorization to conduct a lien sale, the lienholder must comply with certain notice requirements [see Civ. Code § 3071(f)]. At least five days but not more than 20 days before the lien sale (not counting the day of the sale) the lienholder must give notice of the sale by advertising once in a newspaper of general circulation published in the county in which the vehicle is located. If there is no newspaper published in the county, notice must be given by posting a Notice of Pending Lien Sale form in three of the most public places in the town in which the vehicle is located and at the place where the vehicle is to be sold for 10 consecutive days before and including the day of the sale [Civ. Code § 3071(f)(1); see § 102A.221].

The lienholder must also send a Notice of Pending Lien Sale form 20 days before the day of the sale (not counting the day of the sale) to specified parties [see Civ. Code § 3071(f)(2); see also § 102A.221].

[vi] Conduct of Lien Sale

Prior to the commencement of the lien sale, the vehicle must be made available for inspection at a location easily accessible to the public for at least one hour before the sale. Further, the vehicle must be made available at the time and date specified on the notice of sale [Civ. Code § 3071(j)].

The lien sale must be conducted in a commercially reasonable manner [Civ. Code § 3071(j)]. The statute, however, does not specify what constitutes "commercially reasonable." Sealed bids may not be accepted at the lien sale [Civ. Code § 3071(j)].

[c] Disposition of Lien Sale Proceeds

[i] In General

The proceeds of a vehicle lien sale must be disposed of in a specified manner [see Civ. Code § 3073]. The lienholder must receive the amount necessary to discharge the lien and the cost of processing the vehicle. The "cost of processing the vehicle" may not exceed the maximum amount set by statute, which varies depending on the value of the vehicle [Civ. Code § 3073(a); see also [d], below]. The balance, if any, must be forwarded to the DMV within 15 days after the vehicle is sold, unless a contrary disposition is required under federal law [Civ. Code § 3073(b)].

[ii] Claims Against Proceeds by Parties Other Than Lienholder

Any person claiming an interest in a vehicle sold at a lien sale may file a claim with the DMV for any portion of the funds from the lien sale that the DMV received and deposited in the Motor Vehicle Account. If the DMV determines that the claimant is entitled to a portion of the funds, it will pay that amount. However, the amount paid may not exceed the balance amount received by the DMV. The DMV will not honor any claim unless it is filed within three years of the date the funds were deposited in the Motor Vehicle Account [Civ. Code § 3073(c)].

[d] Redemption of Vehicle

[i] Before Sale

A legal or registered owner of a vehicle subject to lien sale may redeem the vehicle before the sale by paying the claimed amount on which the lien arose [see Civ. Code § 3074]. On redemption, a lienholder may recover the actual costs incurred in lien sale preparations from any person who redeems the vehicle before a lien sale is conducted. These costs may commence and become part of the possessory lien when the lienholder requests from the DMV the names and addresses of all persons having an interest in the vehicle. The costs may not be recovered in the case of any vehicle redeemed before the third day of possession by the lienholder. Further, the costs may not exceed the maximum amount set by statute, which varies depending on the value of the vehicle [see Civ. Code § 3074].

[ii] After Sale

Within 10 days after the lien sale of any vehicle, the legal or registered owner may redeem the vehicle on payment of the amount of the sale, and all costs and expenses of the sale, together with 12 percent annual interest. If the vehicle is not redeemed, all lien sale documents required by the DMV must be completed and delivered to the buyer [Civ. Code § 3071(k); see § 102A.222].

Following the sale, the person who conducts the sale must remove and destroy the vehicle's license plates and, within five days of the sale, submit a completed "Notice of Release of Liability" form to the Department of Motor Vehicles [Civ. Code § 3071(h)]. The Department of Motor Vehicles will retain all submitted "Notice of Release of Liability" forms for two years [Civ. Code § 3071(i)].

This form is a DMV Notice of Pending Lien Sale. Many commonly used forms are available at any DMV office or may be downloaded from the DMV website located at www.dmv.ca.gov. However, most of the lien sale forms are not available online, and many are not available at local DMV offices. This form is available by mail from the DMV Lien Sale Unit, P.O. Box 932317, Sacramento, CA 94323 by calling the Unit at (916) 657-7617. Forms are also available from the DMV Material Management, Forms Order Desk, 4201 Sierra Point Drive, Suite 112, Sacramento, CA 95834 by faxing the request to (916) 928-7900. The fax should include the title of the form, the form number, the quantity desired (a six month supply is recommended), a contact name and telephone number, and a shipping address, which must be a physical address. If forms are being requested for an organization, the request should be on the organization's letterhead. Questions should be directed to (916) 657-6560.

If the value of the vehicle subject to a lien exceeds $4,000, the lienholder must use this form to give written notice to the vehicle's owners in advance of the sale [see [b], below]. For discussion of lien sales of vehicles valued at over $4,000, see §§ 102A.120 and 102A.220[1].

[b] Sending Notice of Pending Lien Sale

After the lienholder obtains authorization from the DMV to conduct a lien sale on a vehicle valued at more than $4,000, he or she must send this notice, at least 20 days before the date of the sale (not counting the date of sale), to the legal owners and registered owners of the vehicle, if the vehicle is registered in California; the DMV in Sacramento; and all other persons known to have an interest in the vehicle. The notice must be sent by certified mail with return receipt requested [Civ. Code § 3071(f)(2)]. For a form used to obtain information concerning the registered owner, legal owner, and other interested persons, see § 102A.203[2].

This form is the official DMV form for certification of a lien sale for a vehicle valued over $4,000 or a vehicle that was stored in a self-storage facility. Many commonly used forms are available at any DMV office or may be downloaded from the DMV website located at www.dmv.ca.gov. However, most of the lien sale forms are not available online, and many are not available at local DMV offices. Forms are available by mail from the DMV Lien Sale Unit, P.O. If forms are being requested for an organization, the request should be on the organization's letterhead. Questions should be directed to (916) 657-6560.

This form is to be completed by the lienholder and given to the buyer following the 10-day redemption period after the lien sale [see Civ. Code § 3071(k); see also [b], below]. The lienholder must attach to this form the vehicle record obtained from the DMV and/or a certified copy of a court judgment or release of interest in the vehicle [see Civ. Code §§ 3071(c)(4), 3071.5]. In addition, the lienholder must attach the receipts for certified notices sent to the registered and legal owners of the vehicle, all other interested persons, and the DMV [see Civ. Code § 3071(f)(2)]. For detailed discussion of the steps involved in conducting a lien sale for vehicles valued over $4,000, see § 102A.220[1].

[b] Redemption Period

Within 10 days after the lien sale of a vehicle, the legal or registered owner may redeem the vehicle on payment of the amount of the sale, and all costs and expenses of the sale, together with 12 percent annual interest. If the vehicle is not redeemed, all lien sale documents required by the DMV, including this certification, must be completed and delivered to the buyer [Civ. Code § 3071(k)].

[a] Use of Form

This form is the official DMV form for a lienholder's certification and notice of a pending lien sale of a vehicle valued at $4,000 or less. Many commonly used forms are available at any DMV office or may be downloaded from the DMV website located at www.dmv.ca.gov. Although this form does not appear on the list of available forms on Forms page of the DMV website, it is available (as of mid-2002) at www.dmv.ca.gov/forms/reg/reg668.htm. The form is also available by mail from the DMV Lien Sale Unit, P.O. Box 932317, Sacramento, CA 94323 by calling the Unit at (916) 657-7617. The form may also be ordered from the DMV Material Management, Forms Order Desk, 4201 Sierra Point Drive, Suite 112, Sacramento, CA 95834 by faxing a request to (916) 928-7900. The fax should include the title of the form, the form number, the quantity desired (a six month supply is recommended), a contact name and telephone number, and a shipping address, which must be a physical address. If forms are being requested for an organization, the request should be on the organization's letterhead. Questions should be directed to (916) 657-6560.

For discussion and forms covering lien sales of vehicles valued at greater than $4,000, see §§ 102A.220-102A.222.

This form contains the certification of lien and blank declaration of opposition that must accompany the notice of lien sale when delivered to the registered and legal owners and other interested persons [see Civ. Code § 3072(b)].

In addition to the requirements listed below, any lien for fees or storage charges for parking and storage of a motor vehicle is subject to the requirements of Veh. Code § 10652.5 [Civ. Code § 3072(j)]. Under that section, no fee or service charge may be imposed for parking and storage of the vehicle for the period commencing with the 16th day of possession and continuing until three days after written notice by certified mail, return receipt requested, is sent to the legal owner by the lienholder, provided that the name and address of the legal owner is known or may be ascertained from Department of Motor Vehicles records [Veh. Code § 10652.5(a)].

[b] Lien Sales of Vehicles Valued at $4,000 or Less[i] In General

A lienholder begins the lien sale of a vehicle valued at $4,000 or less by applying to the DMV for the names and addresses of both the registered and the legal owners of record [see Civ. Code § 3072(a); see also § 102A.203]. This request to the DMV must include certain identification information for the vehicle, including the vehicle identification number [see Civ. Code § 3072(a)]. If that number is not available, the DMV must request an inspection of the vehicle by a peace officer, licensed vehicle verifier, or departmental employee before releasing the names and addresses of the registered and legal owners and interested parties [Civ. Code § 3072(a)].

After receiving the names and addresses from the DMV, the lienholder must immediately send a completed Notice of Pending Lien Sale form, a blank Declaration of Opposition, and a return envelope preaddressed to the DMV, to both the registered and the legal owners of the vehicle, and to any other person known to have an interest in the vehicle [Civ. Code § 3072(b)]. The DMV also requires the inclusion of a DMV Certificate of Lien form. This form contains all these required forms and notices. The forms must be sent by certified mail, return receipt requested, or by United States Postal Service Certificate of Mailing [Civ. Code § 3072(b)].

The lienholder must also send to the DMV by certified mail, on the same day as the forms are sent to the interested parties, a completed Notice of Pending Lien Sale form [Civ. Code § 3072(b)].

[ii] Required Contents of Notice of Pending Lien Sale

All Notice of Pending Lien Sale forms sent to persons having an interest in the vehicle must contain the following information [Civ. Code § 3072(c)]:

- The description of the vehicle, including the year and make, the vehicle identification number, the license number, state of registration, and, if the vehicle is a motorcycle, the engine number.
- The specific date of sale, which must not be less than 31 days nor more than 41 days from the date of mailing; the exact time of sale; and the place of sale.
- The names and addresses of both the registered and the legal owners of the vehicle, and the name and address of any person known to have an interest in the vehicle.
- A statement of the amount of the lien and the facts concerning the claim that gives rise to the lien.
- A statement that the person notified has a right to a court hearing.
- A statement that if a court hearing is desired, a signed Declaration of Opposition form must be returned to the DMV within ten days of the mailing of the Notice of Pending Lien Sale form.
- A statement that if the Declaration of Opposition form is signed and returned to the DMV, the lienholder will be allowed to sell the vehicle only if he or she obtains a court judgment or the declarant's release or if the declarant cannot be served as required by statute [see [iii], below].
- A statement that if a court action is filed, the declarant must be notified of the lawsuit at the address shown on the Declaration of Opposition form and may appear to contest the claim.
- A statement that the person may be liable for court costs if a judgment is entered in favor of the lienholder.

[iii] Declaration of Opposition

If any registered or legal owners (or other interested persons) wish to contest a vehicle lien sale, they may request a court hearing by completing the Declaration of Opposition and returning it to the DMV within 10 days after the Notice of Pending Lien Sale was mailed to them [see Civ. Code § 3072(c)(4)(C)]. On timely receipt of an executed Declaration of Opposition form, the DMV must notify the lienholder (within 16 days of receiving the form) that a lien sale may not be conducted unless the lienholder files an action in court within 30 days of the notice and judgment is subsequently entered in favor of the lienholder or the declarant subsequently releases his or her interest in the vehicle. If a money judgment is entered in favor of the lienholder and the judgment is not paid within five days after becoming final, the judgment may be enforced by the statutory lien sale procedure described in this Comment [Civ. Code § 3072(d)]. Even if a favorable judgment or release is not obtained by the lienholder after a Declaration of Opposition has been filed, the lienholder may proceed with a judicial proceeding or proceed with a lien sale without a judicial proceeding if attempted service on the declarant by required methods is unsuccessful and those attempts are substantiated to the DMV [see Civ. Code § 3072(e)].

[iv] Notice From Lienholder

At least 10 days before the lien sale (including the day of the sale), the lienholder must post a Notice of Pending Lien Sale in a conspicuous place on the premises of the lienholder's business office. If the pending lien sale is scheduled to occur at a place other than the business premises of the lienholder, the Notice of Pending Lien Sale must also be posted at the site of the forthcoming sale [Civ. Code § 3072(f)]. The posted Notice of Pending Lien Sale form must include the specific date and exact time of the sale, and a description of the vehicle, including the make, year, model, identification number, license number, and state of registration. If the vehicle to be sold is a motorcycle, the posted notice must include the engine number. The notice must remain posted until the sale is completed [Civ. Code § 3072(f)].

[v] Conduct of Lien Sale

The vehicle must be made available for inspection at a location easily accessible to the public for at least one hour before the sale. Further, the vehicle must be made available at the time and date specified on the notice of sale [Civ. Code § 3072(i)].

The lien sale must be conducted in a commercially reasonable manner [Civ. Code § 3072(i)]. The statute, however, does not specify what constitutes "commercially reasonable." Sealed bids may not be accepted at the lien sale [Civ. Code § 3072(i)].

All lien sale documents required by the DMV must be delivered to the buyer immediately following the sale [Civ. Code § 3072(i); see § 102A.231].

Following the sale, the person who conducted the sale must remove and destroy the vehicle's license plates and, within five days of the sale, submit a completed "Notice of Release of Liability" form to the Department of Motor Vehicles [Civ. Code § 3072(g)]. The Department of Motor Vehicles will retain all submitted "Notice of Release of Liability" forms for two years [Civ. Code § 3072(h)].

[c] Disposition of Lien Sale Proceeds

[i] In General

The proceeds of a vehicle lien sale must be disposed of in a specified manner [see Civ. Code § 3073]. The lienholder must receive the amount necessary to discharge the lien and the cost of processing the vehicle. The "cost of processing the vehicle" may not exceed the maximum amount set by statute, which varies depending on the value of the vehicle [Civ. Code § 3073(a); see also [c], below].

The balance of the proceeds, if any, must be forwarded to the DMV within five days after the vehicle is sold, unless a contrary disposition is required under federal law [Civ. Code § 3073(b)].

If the sale proceeds are insufficient to discharge the towing and storage lien of a tow truck operator pursuant to Civ. Code § 3068.1, the operator has a deficiency claim against the registered owner of the vehicle (if the vehicle was not leased or was leased with a driver) [Civ. Code § 3068.2(a); see Civ. Code § 3068.2(d), (e) (liability when registered owner has transferred the vehicle before its removal)] or against the lessee of the vehicle (if the vehicle was leased without a driver) [Civ. Code § 3068.2(b)]. The amount of the claim is the amount of the towing and storage charges, not to exceed 120 days of storage, plus the lien sale processing fee in accordance with Civ. Code § 3074, less the amount received from the lien sale [Civ. Code § 3068.2(a), (b)]. Storage costs incurred after the sale are not included in calculating the amount received from the sale [Civ. Code § 3068.2(c)].

[ii] Claims Against Proceeds by Parties Other Than Lienholder

Any person claiming an interest in a vehicle sold at a lien sale may file a claim with the DMV for any portion of the funds from the lien sale that the DMV received and deposited in the Motor Vehicle Account. If the DMV determines that the claimant is entitled to a portion of the funds, it will pay that amount. However, the amount paid may not exceed the balance amount received by the DMV. The DMV may not honor any claim unless the claim has been filed within three years of the date the funds were deposited in the Motor Vehicle Account [Civ. Code § 3073(c)].

[d] Recovery of Sale Costs on Redemption of Vehicle

A legal or registered owner of a vehicle subject to lien sale may redeem the vehicle before the sale by paying the claimed amount on which the lien arose [see Civ. Code § 3074]. On redemption, the lienholder may recover the actual costs incurred in lien sale preparations from any person who redeems the vehicle before a lien sale is conducted. These costs may begin and become part of the possessory lien when the lienholder requests from the DMV the names and addresses of all persons having an interest in the vehicle. However, the costs may not be recovered in the case of any vehicle redeemed before the third day of possession by the lienholder [Civ. Code § 3074]. Furthermore, the costs may not exceed the maximum amount by statute, which varies depending on the value of the vehicle [see Civ. Code § 3074].

This form is the official DMV form for certification of a lien sale for a vehicle valued at $4,000 or less. Many commonly used forms are available at any DMV office or may be downloaded from the DMV website located at www.dmv.ca.gov. However, most of the lien sale forms are not available online, and many are not available at local DMV offices. This form is available by mail from the DMV Lien Sale Unit, P.O. Box 932317, Sacramento, CA 94323 by calling the Unit at (916) 657-7617. Forms are also available from the DMV Material Management, Forms Order Desk, 4201 Sierra Point Drive, Suite 112, Sacramento, CA 95834 by faxing a request to (916) 928-7900. The fax should include the title of the form, the form number, the quantity desired (a six month supply is recommended), a contact name and telephone number, and a shipping address, which must be a physical address. If forms are being requested for an organization, the request should be on the organization's letterhead. Questions should be directed to (916) 657-6560.

This form is to be completed by the lienholder and given to the buyer along with the other lien sale documents immediately following the lien sale [see Civ. Code § 3072(i)]. The lienholder must attach to this form the vehicle record obtained from the DMV and/or a certified copy of a court judgment or release of interest in the vehicle [see Civ. Code §§ 3072(c)(4)(D), 3071.5]. In addition, the lienholder must attach the receipts for certified notices sent to the registered and legal owners of the vehicle, all other interested persons, and the DMV [see Civ. Code § 3072(b)]. For a detailed discussion of the steps involved in conducting a lien sale for vehicles valued at $4,000 or less, see § 102A.230[1].

§ 102A.240 Notice of Intent to Dispose of Vehicle Valued at $500 or Less [DMV Form REG 684]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is the DMV Notice of Intent to Dispose of a Vehicle Valued at $500 or Less [see Veh. Code § 22851.8 (procedure for sale of low value vehicles); [c], below].

Many commonly used forms are available at any DMV office or may be downloaded from the DMV website located at www.dmv.ca.gov. However, most of the lien sale forms are not available online and many are not available at local DMV offices. This form is available by mail from the DMV Lien Sale Unit, P.O. Box 932317, Sacramento, CA 94323 by calling the Unit at (916) 657-7617. Forms are also available from the DMV Material Management, Forms Order Desk, 4201 Sierra Point Drive, Suite 112, Sacramento, CA 95834 by faxing the request to (916) 928-7900. The fax should include the title of the form, the form number, the quantity desired (a six month supply is recommended), a contact name and telephone number, and a shipping address, which must be a physical address. If forms are being requested for an organization, the request should be on the organization's letterhead. Questions should be directed to (916) 657-6560.

This form may be used by a lienholder seeking to satisfy a lien on a vehicle valued at $500 or less, which was ordered towed or stored by a public agency [see Veh. Code §§ 22851(a), 22851.8]. Although the form in [2], below, states that it is for vehicles valued at $300 or less, it may be used until a revised form is available reflecting the change in value to $500. For discussion and forms covering other lien sales of vehicles valued at $4,000 or less, see §§ 102A.230, 102A.231. For discussion and forms covering lien sales of vehicles valued at more than $4,000, see §§ 102A.220-102A.222.

[b] Liens on Vehicles Impounded by Public Agency

[i] Nature of Lien

Whenever a vehicle has been removed to a garage pursuant to Division 11, Chapter 10 of the Vehicle Code [see Veh. Code § 22651 et seq. (removal of abandoned and certain other vehicles)], and the keeper of the garage has received the notice or notices required by law, the keeper has a lien dependent on possession for compensation for towing and for the impounded vehicle's care and safekeeping for a period not exceeding 60 days. If an application for an authorization to conduct a lien sale has been filed pursuant to Civ. Code § 3068.1 within 30 days after the removal of the vehicle to the garage, the lien may cover a period of 120 days. If the vehicle is not recovered by the owner within that period, or the owner is unknown, the keeper of the garage may satisfy the lien in the manner provided below [Veh. Code § 22851(a)]. Possession is deemed to arise when the vehicle is removed and is in transit [Veh. Code § 22851(a)]. The same possessory lien arises for towing and storage charges resulting from removal of a vehicle from private property at the authorization of the property owner [see Veh. Code § 22658].

Vehicles impounded for parking violations [see Veh. Code § 22651(i)] are also subject to the lien of the impounding local authority, dependent on the possession of the garage keeper, for satisfaction of bail for all outstanding notices of parking violation when no one has answered the charge in the notice of parking violation given, or filed an affidavit of nonownership, pursuant to and within the time specified in Veh. Code § 41103(b) [Veh. Code § 22851.1]. These liens are enforced by the procedures applicable to towing and storage liens described below [see Veh. Code § 22851.1(a)].

[ii] Personal Property Within Vehicle

The lien does not apply to any personal property found within the vehicle. Further, any personal property found within the vehicle must be returned to the vehicle's registered owner or his or her agent on demand and without charge during normal business hours, which are defined by statute to be Monday through Friday, from 8AM to 5PM, inclusive, except state holidays. The lienholder is not responsible for any property after disposal of the vehicle [Veh. Code § 22851(b)].

[iii] Assignment of Lien

Liens granted to keepers of vehicles authorized for removal pursuant to Veh. Code §§ 22651-22711, governing removal of parked and abandoned vehicles, may not be assigned [Veh. Code § 22851(a)]. For discussion and forms covering the assignability of vehicle liens, see §§ 102A.250, 102A.251.

[iv] Appropriate Lien Sale Procedure

If a vehicle is determined to have a value exceeding $500, a lien sale of the vehicle must comply with either Civ. Code § 3071 (vehicles valued at over $4,000) or Civ. Code § 3072 (vehicles valued at $4,000 or less) [Veh. Code § 22851.4; see Veh. Code § 22670 (value estimation); see also §§ 102A.220-102A.231]. If a vehicle (other than an abandoned vehicle) is determined to have a value of $500 or less, the vehicle must be disposed of in accordance with the statutory procedures discussed below [see Veh. Code § 22851.6(a); see also Veh. Code §§ 22851.8, 22851.10 (procedures)]. Different disposal procedures apply if a low-valued vehicle were towed and stored because it was determined by a police officer or other authorized person to be abandoned [see Veh. Code § 22851.3 (procedures); see also Veh. Code § 22669 (removal of abandoned vehicles from state or private property)]. Note that the reverse side of the form discussed in this comment contains another form, Notice of Intent to Dispose of a Vehicle Valued at $500 or Less Removed by a Public Agency CVC § 22669 [see Veh. Code §§ 22669 (removal of abandoned vehicles from state or private property by peace officer or any other employee of a public agency authorized under Veh. Code §§ 22669, 22851.3 (procedure for disposition of low value vehicles removed pursuant to Veh. Code § 22669)]. The latter form is not reproduced here.

[c] Disposal of Vehicle Valued at $500 or Less

[i] Notice Requirements

A person acquiring a lien on a vehicle valued at $500 or less that has been authorized for removal by a public agency must comply with Veh. Code §§ 22851.8 and 22851.10 in disposing of the vehicle [Veh. Code § 22851.6(a); see Veh. Code § 22670 (value determination); but see Veh. Code § 22851.3 (different disposition procedure for low-value, "abandoned" vehicles)]. Within 15 days of taking possession of the vehicle, the lienholder must request from the DMV the names and addresses of all persons having an interest in the vehicle [Veh. Code § 22851.8(a); see § 102A.203]. A storage charge may not accrue beyond the 15-day period unless the lienholder makes the request for the names and addresses of interested persons within this time period [Veh. Code § 22851.8(a)].

Immediately on receipt of the names and addresses of both the registered and the legal owners of the vehicle, the lienholder must complete and send this form to the owners and any other persons with an interest in the vehicle [Veh. Code § 22851.8(b)(1); see Veh. Code § 22851.6(b) (forms must be prescribed by DMV)]. Although the statute specifies that this form must be accompanied by "a blank form of Declaration of Opposition [see Veh. Code § 22851.8(b)(2)], the latter form no longer exists independently, but instead the DMV has revised this notice form [DMV form REG 684] to include the required Declaration of Opposition [see [2], below].

The notice must be accompanied by a return envelope preaddressed to the lienholder [Veh. Code § 22851.8(b)(3)]. The form must be sent by certified mail, return receipt requested, or by United States Postal Service Certificate of Mailing [Veh. Code § 22851.8(b)]. The form itself specifies that the notice also may be sent by "a method of mailing that provides evidence of mailing and a control number, such as registered mail, Federal Express, Express Mail, etc." [see [2], below].

This form includes a Declaration of Opposition [see [i], above]. If the owners or other interested persons want to stop the disposal of the vehicle, they must complete and sign the bottom portion of the form and return it to the lienholder within 10 days of the date the notice was sent [see Veh. Code § 22851.8(c)(3)(D)]. If the lienholder receives a completed Declaration of Opposition postmarked within the 10-day period, he or she cannot dispose of the vehicle unless the lienholder obtains a release of interest from the declarant or a court action is filed within 20 days of the date the notice was mailed and a judgment is obtained in the lienholder's favor [Veh. Code § 22851.8(d); see Civ. Code § 3071.5 (release of interest in vehicle subject to lien under Civil Code required information); § 102A.202 (form for release of interest)].

If a money judgment is entered in favor of the lienholder and the judgment is not paid within five days after becoming final, then the lienholder may dispose of the vehicle through a dismantler or scrap iron processor [Veh. Code § 22851.8(d)]. Even if the lienholder does not obtain a favorable judgment or a release from the declarant after a Declaration of Opposition has been filed, the lienholder may proceed with a judicial proceeding, or proceed with a lien sale without a judicial proceeding, if attempted service on the declarant by required methods is unsuccessful and those attempts are substantiated to the DMV [see Veh. Code § 22851.8(e)(2)].

If service is effected on the declarant, the proof of service must be submitted to the DMV with other required documents [Veh. Code § 22851.8(e)(2); see Veh. Code § 22851.10 (other required documents); § 102A.241[1]]. If a completed Declaration of Opposition is not received, the lienholder may dispose of the vehicle to a licensed dismantler or scrap iron processor not earlier than 15 days after the Notice of Intent to Dispose of a Vehicle Valued at $500 or Less was mailed [Veh. Code § 22851.10(a)].

[iii] Sale of Vehicle to Licensed Dismantler or Scrap Iron Processor

If the vehicle remains unclaimed, or reasonable towing and storage charges remain unpaid, the lienholder may dispose of the vehicle only to a licensed dismantler or scrap iron processor [Veh. Code § 22851.10(a)]. Generally, the lienholder may dispose of the vehicle no earlier than 15 days after the date of mailing the Notice of Intent to Dispose of a Vehicle Valued at $500 or Less [see Veh. Code § 22851.10(a)]. For further discussion of the documents required in conjunction with the disposal of the vehicle to a licensed dismantler or scrap iron processor, see § 102A.241.

[d] Recovery of Costs

A lienholder may recover the actual costs incurred in the processing for disposal of any vehicle from any person who redeems the vehicle before disposal. These costs may begin and become part of the possessory lien when the lienholder requests from the DMV the names and addresses of all persons having an interest in the vehicle. The costs may not be recovered in the case of any vehicle redeemed before the third day of possession by the lienholder. Further, the costs may not exceed the maximum amount set by statute, which varies depending on whether the vehicle is valued at less or more than $4,000 [see Veh. Code § 22851.12; see also §§ 102A.220, 102A.230].

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a DMV Statement of Facts for Vehicles Valued at $500 or Less.

Many commonly used forms are available at any DMV office or may be downloaded from the DMV website located at www.dmv.ca.gov. However, most of the lien sale forms are not available online, and many are not available at local DMV offices. This form is available by mail from the DMV Lien Sale Unit, P.O. Box 932317, Sacramento, CA 94323 by calling the Unit at (916) 657-7617. Forms are also available from the DMV Material Management, Forms Order Desk, 4201 Sierra Point Drive, Suite 112, Sacramento, CA 95834 by faxing the request to (916) 928-7900. The fax should include the title of the form, the form number, the quantity desired (a six month supply is recommended), a contact name and telephone number, and a shipping address, which must be a physical address. If forms are being requested for an organization, the request should be on the organization's letterhead. Questions should be directed to (916) 657-6560.

Although the form in [2], below, states that it is for vehicles valued at $300 or less, it may be used until a revised form is available reflecting the change in value to $500. This form must be completed by a towing service or garage keeper who has disposed of a vehicle that is valued at less than $500 and that was towed or stored under authority of a public agency. The form must be submitted to the licensed dismantler or scrap iron processor within five days after the disposition of the vehicle [Veh. Code § 22851.10(b)]. In addition to the information that must be provided on the form, the form must be accompanied by a copy of the Notice of Intent to Dispose of a Vehicle Valued at $500 or Less Removed By a Public Agency for Reasons Other Than Abandonment CVC § 22851.8 [see § 102A.240], the certification from the public agency that made the determination of value [see Veh. Code § 22670], and either proof of service [see Veh. Code § 22851.8(e)] or a copy of any judgment entered in favor of the lienholder [Veh. Code § 22851.10(b); see Veh. Code § 22851.8(d) (judgment in favor of lienholder)].

[a] Use of Form

This form is an assignment of a lien for services on or storage of a motor vehicle. It may be used by a lienholder to assign his or her lien for labor or storage charges on a particular vehicle. Such liens are expressly assignable [see Civ. Code § 3069; [b], below]. For discussion of assignments in general, see Ch. 76, Assignments of Rights and Obligations. For discussion of motor vehicle liens in general, see § 102A.200[1][b]. For discussion and a form for notice of the assignment of a lien for services or storage, see § 102A.251.

[b] Assignments of Motor Vehicle Liens

Liens for labor or materials, or for the storage or safekeeping of a vehicle when abandoned on private property, may be assigned by written instrument. However, the assignment must be accompanied by the transfer of possession of the vehicle. Moreover, the lienholder must give written notice of the assignment, including the name and address of the person to whom the lien is assigned, to both the registered and the legal owners of the vehicle either by personal delivery or by registered or certified mail [Civ. Code § 3069].

32-102A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102A.260

§ 102A.260 Verified Claim of Breeder's Lien

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a verified claim of a breeder's lien. It is designed to give notice of a stallion, jack, or bull owner's claim of lien on a mare, cow, and offspring for the agreed price of breeding services. For discussion and forms involving liens available to livestock servicers, see §§ 102A.262-102A.264. For discussion and a form covering liens available to persons selling or furnishing livestock to meatpackers, see § 102A.261.

[b] Nature of Breeder's Lien

Every person who owns or has charge of a stallion, jack, or bull used for breeding purposes has a lien for the agreed price of its services on any mare, cow, and the offspring occurring as a result of those services. A person entitled to a breeder's lien forfeits that entitlement if he or she willfully makes, or instigates another to make, false representations regarding the stallion, jack, or bull's pedigree or breeding [Civ. Code § 3062].

[c] Recording Breeder's Lien

A person claiming a breeder's lien, within 90 days after the service for which the lien is claimed, must record a verified claim in the recorder's office for the county in which the mare or cow is kept [Civ. Code § 3063]. The claim must contain the following information [Civ. Code § 3063]:

- A description of the mare or cow.
- The date and place of service.
- The name of the mare or cow's owner or reputed owner.

- A description of the stallion, jack, or bull.
- The name of the person who owns or is in charge of the stallion, jack, or bull.
- The amount of the lien claimed.

Before the breeder's lien may be recorded, it must be acknowledged before a notary public [Civ. Code § 3063 (requiring verification); see Gov. Code § 27287 (acknowledgment as prerequisite to recording)]. This form includes an acknowledgment. The form for acknowledgment of an instrument before a notary public is prescribed by statute [Civ. Code §§ 1188, 1189(a)]. If the breeder's lien is properly recorded, it will constitute notice to subsequent purchasers and encumbrancers of the mare, cow, and offspring for one year after it is recorded [see Civ. Code § 3063].

§ 102A.261 Notice to Secretary of State and Director of Food and Agriculture of Livestock Lien

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice informing the Secretary of State and the Director of Food and Agriculture that the person filing the notice is claiming a nonpossessory lien on livestock sold or furnished to a meatpacker, and on the proceeds and products of that livestock, under Food & Agric. Code § 55702. This notice is in the form of a standard form UCC-1 financing statement that has been partially filled in to add the special language that needs to be added when form UCC-1 is used to provide notice of this type of lien. Although Food & Agric. Code § 55702 does not expressly require that form UCC-1 be used for this type of lien [cf. Food & Agric. Code §§ 57405(d) (dairy cattle supply lien--see § 102A.66), 57516 (poultry and fish supply lien--see § 102A.266), 57567 (agricultural chemical or seed lien--see § 102A.267), all of which require that form UCC-1 be used for those categories of liens], the Secretary of State's office specifies that Form UCC-1 is required to be used for various filings after July 1, 2001, and includes livestock liens on the list of filings for which UCC-1 is to be used. For detailed discussion of the use of Form UCC-1, and an illustration of the Secretary of State's official instructions accompanying the form, see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions, § 42.211.

ELECTRONIC FORMS NOTE

Blank electronic copies of Form UCC-1 that may be filled in and printed out for filing can be obtained at the official website of the California Secretary of State, Business Programs Division. The current link to the Secretary of State's UCC forms may be accessed via links from the UCC information page which is located at <http://www.ss.ca.gov/business/ucc/ucc.htm>. You may also obtain a copy of this form via email by contacting Matthew Bender & Co. at (800) 424-0651, ext. 405, or emailing us at cal.custquest@lexis.com and requesting an electronic copy of CLF Form 42.211. Please be sure to include your email address along with your request and we will provide the form via return email. To view and print these forms, your computer system will require Adobe Acrobat Reader version 3.0 or higher.

This form must be filed within 21 days after the date of delivery of the livestock to a meatpacker in order to prevent expiration of the lien at the end of the 21-day period [Food & Agric. Code § 55702(c)]. If this notice is filed, the lien will continue in force for a period of five years from the date of filing [Food & Agric. Code §§ 55702(c), (f), 55703].

For discussion and forms involving liens for livestock servicers, see §§ 102A.262-102A.265.

[b] Liens on Livestock Sold or Delivered to Meatpackers

[i] In General

A person who sells or furnishes livestock to a meatpacker has a nonpossessory statutory lien on the livestock and on the identifiable proceeds and products of that livestock, for the unpaid part of the purchase price, or if no purchase price has been agreed on, for the unpaid value of the livestock at the time of transfer of possession [Food & Agric. Code § 55702(a); see Food & Agric. Code § 55701(a) ("livestock" defined), (b) ("meatpacker" defined)]. This lien is not available if the buyer is a "buyer in the ordinary course of business" [Food & Agric. Code § 55702(b); see Com. Code § 1201b(9) (definition)], or if the sale was made on credit terms [Food & Agric. Code § 55702(d)].

The lien begins on the date of the transfer of the livestock, and has priority over all other liens without regard to the time of their attachment or perfection [Food & Agric. Code § 55702(a)]. However, if a written, verified notice of the lien is filed with the California Secretary of State and Director of Department of Food and Agriculture within 21 days from the date of livestock delivery, the lien is valid for five years or until a lien foreclosure action is determined [Food & Agric. Code § 55703]. Without notice, the lien expires after 21 days from the date of livestock delivery [Food & Agric. Code § 55702(e); see [ii], below].

[ii] Required Contents of Notice of Lien

A notice of livestock lien served under Food & Agric. Code § 55702 must contain the following [Food & Agric. Code § 55702(e)]:

- The name and address of the person filing the notice.
- A statement of the amount demanded by the person filing after deducting all credits and offsets.
- The name and address of the meatpacker who received the livestock.
- A description of the livestock delivered and the date of delivery.
- A statement that the amount claimed is a true and bona fide existing debt as of the date of the statement.
- A statement that the amount claimed is a true and bona fide existing debt as of the date on which payment was due for the livestock.

This information has been inserted in Item 4 of the attached form.

[iii] Filing Fee and Mailing of Notice

Food & Agric. Code § 55702(f) specifies that every notice of livestock lien filed with the Secretary of State must be accompanied by the fees required under Com. Code § 9501 et seq. "in the case of a financing statement not on the standard form." The quoted statement at the end of the preceding sentence appears to be a legislative oversight, since after July 1, 2001, the Secretary of State's office generally will no longer accept nonstandard UCC-1 filings [see Com. Code §§ 9516(b)(1), 9521(a); see also Ch. 42, Secured Transactions, § 42.211[1]]. In any case filing fees are now predicated on the number of pages being filed rather than on whether the document being filed is "standard" or "nonstandard" [see Com. Code § 9525; Gov. Code § 12194].

For discussion of filing procedures applicable to form UCC-1 generally, see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions, § 42.211. The notice should be mailed to Secretary of State, Uniform Commercial Code, P.O. Box 942835, Sacramento, CA 94235-0001.

§ 102A.262 Livestock Service Lienholder's Proposal to Accept Livestock in Satisfaction of Claim

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a lienholder's proposal to accept specified livestock in satisfaction of a claim for compensation stemming from the provision of livestock services. It may be used by a lienholder who prefers to accept the livestock for payment rather than sell under the statutory lien sale procedures. This proposal should be sent to the owners of the livestock and any other interested parties and should be accompanied by a release of interest form [see § 102A.264].

For discussion and forms covering the court-supervised proceedings necessary to conduct a lien sale for satisfaction of a livestock service lien, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 24, Animals: Liens (Matthew Bender).

For discussion and a form covering breeders' liens, see § 102A.260. For discussion and a form involving the lien available to a person selling or furnishing livestock to a meatpacker, see § 102A.261.

[b] Livestock Service Lien

The Livestock Service Lien Law governs liens on "livestock" [see Civ. Code §§ 3080-3080.22]. "Livestock" is defined as any cattle, sheep, swine, goat, horse, mule, or other equine [Civ. Code § 3080(a)]. These possessory liens are available to persons providing "livestock services" to secure payment for those services [see Civ. Code § 3080.01 (existence, conditions, and priority of livestock liens); [c], below]. "Livestock services" are any and all grazing, feeding, boarding, or general care (including animal health services) that is obtained or provided by a livestock servicer or his or her employee. The term also includes transportation or other services rendered by a person to livestock for the owner of that livestock, or for any person acting by or under the owner's authority [Civ. Code § 3080(c)]. A livestock servicer may be an individual, corporation, partnership, joint venture, cooperative, association, or other organization or entity that provides livestock services [Civ. Code § 3080(b)].

Liens by veterinarians for veterinary services rendered are governed by Civ. Code § 3051, the specific veterinary lien statute, not by Civ. Code § 3080, the general livestock lien statute [see Jakubaitis v. Fischer (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1601, 1605-1606, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 39 (Civ. Code § 3051, not Civ. Code § 3080, governed billing dispute between veterinary hospital and owners of horse that had received veterinary services; court reasoned that legislature's omission of veterinary care from Civ. Code § 3080 indicated its intention to retain Civ. Code § 3051 as governing scheme for veterinary surgeons and veterinary proprietors in possession while creating new statutory scheme for other livestock servicers)].

A livestock servicer has a general lien on the livestock in his or her possession to secure the performance of all obligations of the livestock owner to the livestock servicer for both (1) the provision of livestock services to the livestock in the livestock servicer's possession and (2) the provision of livestock services to other livestock for which livestock services were provided in connection with or as part of the same livestock service transaction, if those livestock services were provided in the 12 months immediately preceding the date on which the lien arose [Civ. Code § 3080.01].

The lien arises as the charges for the livestock services come due. The lien has priority over all other liens and security interests in the livestock [Civ. Code § 3080.01(b); see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions]. The lien secures the owner's contractual obligations to the lienholder for the provision of livestock services, the lienholder's reasonable charges for the provision of livestock services after the lien has arisen as set forth in Civ. Code § 3080.02 (rights and remedies of lienholder), and the lienholder's costs of lien enforcement, including attorneys' fees [Civ. Code § 3080.01(b); see [c], below].

[d] Retention of Livestock

A lienholder may retain possession of the livestock and charge the owner for the reasonable value of providing livestock services to the livestock until the owner's obligations secured by the lien have been satisfied [Civ. Code § 3080.02(a)].

[e] Sale of Livestock

A lienholder may proceed to sell all or any portion of the livestock if [Civ. Code § 3080.02(b); see Civ. Code § 3080.16 (manner of sale)]:

- He or she obtains a judicial order authorizing the sale [see Civ. Code § 3080.06]; or
- A judgment authorizing the sale has been entered in favor of the lienholder on the claim that gave rise to the lien [see Civ. Code § 3080.02(c)]; or
- The livestock owner has released, after the lien has arisen, his or her interest in the livestock [see Civ. Code § 3080.20 (release); see also § 102A.264].

[f] Acceptance of Livestock in Lieu of Payment

At any time after a livestock service lien has arisen, the lienholder may propose to retain any portion or all of the livestock in satisfaction of any portion or all of the claim against the owner or other person indebted to the lienholder for livestock services [Civ. Code § 3080.21]. The proposal must be made in writing to the owner and written notice of the proposal must be given to all interested persons [Civ. Code § 3080.21; see Civ. Code § 3080.17(a) (interested persons)].

If, within 21 days after the notice was sent, the lienholder receives objection in writing from a person entitled to receive notification, the lienholder must sell the livestock in compliance with the statutory procedure [Civ. Code § 3080.21; see

Civ. Code §§ 3080.03-3080.19 (sale Procedure); California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 24, Animals: Liens (Matthew Bender)]. If no written objection is received, the lienholder may retain the livestock as proposed in satisfaction of all or a portion of the claim against the owner and other persons indebted to the lienholder for livestock services. However, the lienholder must obtain the owners' and other interested persons' release of interest in the livestock [Civ. Code § 3080.21; see Civ. Code § 3080.20 (release); see also § 102A.264]. If the owner fails to respond and fails to provide his or her release in the livestock, the lienholder will have to begin statutory lien sale proceedings to satisfy the claim [see Civ. Code § 3080.02].

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a notice to interested parties of a lienholder's proposal to retain livestock in satisfaction of a claim for money owed for the provision of livestock services. Under the Livestock Service Lien Law [see Civ. Code §§ 3080-3080.22], a lienholder may propose to retain livestock in satisfaction of a claim for the provision of livestock services [see Civ. Code § 3080.21]. If such a proposal is made, the lienholder must also give notice of the proposal to all "interested parties" [Civ. Code § 3080.21]. "Interested parties" are those persons who have a lien on or security interest in the livestock and who have a financing statement on file with the California Secretary of State covering the livestock [see Civ. Code § 3080.17(a)].

This form should be accompanied by a copy of the proposal, a release of interest, and a preaddressed return envelope [see §§ 102A.262 (proposal), 102A.264 (release)]. The interested party should be directed to promptly notify the lienholder of his or her objection to the proposal, or, by use of the enclosed release of interest, indicate his or her approval [see Civ. Code §§ 3080.20 (release), 3080.21 (proposal)].

For further discussion of the proposal to retain livestock, see § 102A.262. For further discussion of the release of interest in livestock, see § 102A.264.

32-102A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102A.264

§ 102A.264 Release of Interest in Livestock Subject to Lien

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a release of interest that may be used by an owner of livestock subject to a lien under the Livestock Service Lien Law [see Civ. Code §§ 3080-3080.22]. The form may also be used by persons having an interest in the livestock [see Civ. Code § 3080.17(a) (interested persons); see also § 102A.263[1]]. For discussion of the Livestock Service Lien Law in general, see § 102A.262.

[b] Release of Interest

The owner of livestock or any other person claiming an interest in livestock may release an interest in the livestock at any time after the lien has arisen. The release must be in writing and must be dated when signed. A copy of the release must be given to the person releasing the interest at the time it is signed [Civ. Code § 3080.20(a)].

A release of interest must contain all of the following information in simple, nontechnical language [Civ. Code § 3080.20(b)]:

- A description of the livestock covered by the release and the releasing party's interest in the livestock.
- A statement of the amount of the lien to which the livestock is subject.
- A statement that the releasing party has a legal right to a hearing in court before any lien sale of the livestock.
- A statement by the releasing party that it is giving the lienholder permission to sell the livestock.

- A statement of the extent to which the releasing party gives up any interest it may have in the livestock or in the sale proceeds of the livestock.
- To the extent that the release is not given in full satisfaction of the lienholder's claim or claims against the releasing party, a statement by the releasing party that it is aware that the lienholder may still have a claim against it after the release has been executed.

After the livestock owner's release of interest in the livestock, the lienholder may proceed to sell all or any portion of the livestock under the statutory procedure [Civ. Code § 3080.02(b)(3); see Civ. Code § 3080.16 (manner of sale of livestock; proceeds)]. For discussion and forms covering the statutory sale procedure, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 24, Animals: Liens (Matthew Bender).

For discussion and a form covering breeders' liens, see § 102A.260. For discussion and a form involving the lien available to a person selling or furnishing livestock to a meatpacker, see § 102A.261.

[b] Assignment of Livestock Service Lien

The Livestock Service Lien Law governs liens on livestock [see Civ. Code §§ 3080-3080.22]. These possessory liens are available to persons providing livestock services to secure payment for those services [see Civ. Code § 3080.01]. A livestock servicer has a general lien on the livestock in his or her possession to secure the performance of all obligations of the livestock owner to the livestock servicer for both (1) the provision of livestock services to the livestock in the livestock servicer's possession and (2) the provision of livestock services to other livestock for which livestock services were provided in connection with or as part of the same livestock service transaction, if those livestock services were provided in the 12 months immediately preceding the date on which the lien arose [Civ. Code § 3080.01].

A livestock service lien may be assigned by written instrument accompanied by the transfer of possession of the livestock. On assignment of the lien, the lienholder must give written notice of the assignment to the legal owner and "other interested persons" [Civ. Code § 3080.22]. "Other interested persons" means any person claiming a lien on or security interest in the livestock who had on file with the California Secretary of State on the date the lien arose a financing statement covering the livestock for which livestock services were provided [see Civ. Code § 3080.17(a)]. The notice must be delivered either by personal delivery or by registered or certified mail and must include the name and address of the assignee [Civ. Code § 3080.22].

§ 102A.266 Notice of Claim of Dairy Cattle, Poultry, or Fish Supply Lien

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a standard form UCC-1 financing statement that has been partially filled in to add the special language needed when Form UCC-1 is used to file a notice of claim of a dairy cattle supply lien [see Food & Agric. Code § 57401 et seq.] or a poultry or fish supply lien [see Food & Agric. Code § 57501 et seq.]. A person who provides feed or materials to aid the raising or maintaining of dairy cattle has a lien on the proceeds of the milk or milk products produced from the cattle [Food & Agric. Code § 57402; see Food & Agric. Code § 57401 (definitions)]. One who provides feed or materials to aid the raising or maintaining of poultry or fish, or for the production of eggs, has a lien on the proceeds of the sale of the eggs, poultry, fish, or other products derived from the eggs, poultry, or fish [Food & Agric. Code § 57510; see Food & Agric. Code §§ 57501-57507 (definitions)].

The lien secures payment of the reasonable or agreed charges for the feed or materials provided, and of the costs of enforcing the lien. However, the amount of the charges secured by the lien cannot exceed an amount equal to the reasonable or agreed charges for feed or materials provided within a 45-day period [Food & Agric. Code §§ 57402, 57510].

To perfect the lien and make it effective, the lien claimant must file a notice of claim of lien on Form UCC-1 with the Secretary of State [Food & Agric. Code §§ 57405(d), 57512, 57516; see Com. Code § 9521 (standard form)]. For detailed discussion of the content and use of Form UCC-1, see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions, § 42.211.

ELECTRONIC FORMS NOTE

ELECTRONIC FORMS NOTE: Blank electronic copies of Form UCC-1 that may be printed out and filled in for filing can be obtained at the official website of the California Secretary of State, Business Programs Division. The current link to the Secretary of State's UCC forms may be accessed via links from the UCC information page which is located at <http://www.ss.ca.gov/business/ucc/ucc.htm>. You may also obtain a copy of this form via email by contacting Matthew Bender & Co. at (800) 424-0651, ext. 405, or emailing us at cal.custquest@lexis.com and requesting an electronic copy of CLF Form 42.211. Please be sure to include your email address along with your request and we will provide the form via return email. To view and print these forms, your computer system will require Adobe Acrobat Reader version 3.0 or higher.

Only two providers of feed or materials can have an enforceable lien at any time [Food & Agric. Code §§ 57402, 57510]. Moreover, no more than two poultry and fish supply liens and agricultural chemical and seed liens [see § 102A.267] are enforceable against any one lien debtor, even if filed by different claimants [Food & Agric. Code § 57700].

[b] Contents of Notice of Claim of Lien

The notice of claim of lien must contain all of the following information [Food & Agric. Code §§ 57405(b), 57514]:

- The name and address of the lien claimant.
- The name and address of the lien debtor.
- The location of the dairy or property to which the food and materials were provided.
- A statement that the lien claimant has a dairy cattle supply lien pursuant to Food & Agric. Code § 57402 or a poultry or fish supply lien pursuant to Food & Agric. Code § 57510.

The standard form UCC-1 may be modified to identify the lien claimant either as a lien claimant or as a secured party. In addition, the third and fourth items in the preceding list should be inserted, substantially as set forth by statute, into the space in the standard form that is provided for the description of the collateral [Food & Agric. Code §§ 57405(d)(1), (3), 57516(a), (c)]. This information has been inserted into Item 4 of this form. For information on copies of UCC-1 and an illustration of the Official instructions accompanying the form, see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions, § 42.211.

The form must be signed by the lien claimant, or by someone authorized to sign documents of a similar kind on behalf of the claimant, but need not be signed by the lien debtor [Food & Agric. Code §§ 57405(c), (d)(2), 57516(b), 57515].

[c] Filing Procedures

The notice of claim must be filed and indexed in the same manner as a UCC-1 financing statement [Food & Agric. Code § 57405(e); see Com. Code § 9519 (duties of filing office)]. For discussion of filing procedures and fees, see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions, § 42.211[1].

When the Secretary of State's office receives a notice of claim of lien, it files, indexes, and marks the notice in the same manner as financing statements are filed, indexed, and marked [Food & Agric. Code §§ 57405(e), 57517; see Com. Code § 9403]. Notices of claim of lien are identified as financing statements for these purposes [Food & Agric. Code §§ 57405(g), 57519; see Com. Code § 9519 (numbering, maintaining, indexing records)].

Within 10 days of the date this notice is filed with the office of the Secretary of State, the lien claimant must provide written notice of the claim of lien to the lien debtor [Food & Agric. Code §§ 57405(f), 57518]. Sending the "debtor copy" of the quadruplicate form is sufficient to meet this requirement.

[d] Priority of Lien

A dairy cattle supply lien or a poultry or fish supply lien has priority in accordance with the time the notice of claim of lien is filed. The lien has the same priority as a security interest perfected by the filing of a financing statement as of the date the notice of claim of lien was filed [Food & Agric. Code §§ 57406, 57525]. For coverage of the priority of financing statements in general, see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions .

[e] Duration of Filing

The notice of claim of lien remains in effect, and no new notice of claim of lien is needed to maintain the lien, as long as the person who provides feed or materials either (1) remains unpaid for amounts secured by the lien, or (2) continues to provide feed or materials on a regular basis to the lien debtor [Food & Agric. Code §§ 57403(b), 57511(b)]. "On a regular basis" means that no more than 30 days may elapse between deliveries [Food & Agric. Code §§ 57403(b), 57511(b)].

[f] Assignment of Lien

Dairy cattle supply liens are assignable or transferable by the holder of the lien, with full rights of enforcement. The lienholder must file a statement of assignment or transfer with the office of the Secretary of State in the same manner as is required for the assignment of any other security interest under the Commercial Code [Food & Agric. Code §§ 57411, 57540; see Com. Code § 9514 (effective period for filed financing statement)]. For further discussion and a form for assigning and transferring security interests, see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions .

[g] Enforcement of Lien

The lien claimant must provide written notice to secured creditors at least 30 days before enforcing a claim of lien [Food & Agric. Code §§ 57412, 57535]. "Secured creditors" of dairy cattle supply liens are creditors having a security interest in dairy cattle, milk, milk products, or the proceeds of any of these items, as of the date the notice of claim of lien is filed with the Secretary of State [Food & Agric. Code § 57412]. Similarly, "secured creditors" of poultry and fish supply liens are creditors with a perfected security interest in poultry, eggs, poultry products, fish, fish products, or the proceeds of any of these items, as of the date the notice of claim of lien is filed with the Secretary of State [Food & Agric. Code § 57535].

The lien claimant can foreclose a lien only in an action to recover the reasonable or agreed charges due for feed and materials provided [Food & Agric. Code §§ 57413, 57536; see Code Civ. Proc. § 680.010 et seq. (enforcement of judgments)].

[h] Termination of Lien

When a lien claimant receives payment for amounts secured by the lien and the lien claimant has not been providing feed or materials for a period of 30 consecutive days, the lien claimant must, on written demand by the lien debtor, send the debtor a statement indicating that he or she no longer claims a security interest under the financing statement [Food & Agric. Code §§ 57414(a), 57537(a); see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions (termination statement)]. The financing statement must be identified by date, names of parties, and file number. If the lienholder fails to send the requested termination statement within 10 days after a proper demand, the lienholder is liable to the lien debtor for all actual damages suffered by reason of the failure, and for a penalty if the failure is in bad faith [Food & Agric. Code §§ 57414(a), 57537(a)].

The lien debtor must also file a copy of the termination statement with the office of the Secretary of State [Food & Agric. Code §§ 57407, 57541; see Com. Code § 9513 (termination statement)]. The filing officer must mark the termination statement with the date and time of filing, and must index the statement under the name of the lien debtor and the file number of the original lien [Food & Agric. Code §§ 57414(b), 57537(b)].

[i] Public Access to Lien Information

For a fee, a member of the public may obtain a certificate of the existence on file of a lien and any notice of claim of lien naming a particular debtor. The certificate gives the date and time of filing of each notice, and the names and addresses of each lienholder [Food & Agric. Code §§ 57408, 57530; see Com. Code § 9525 (fee)]. In addition, a member of the public may obtain a copy of any notice of claim of a dairy cattle supply lien or of a poultry and fish supply lien that has been filed, including notices affecting those notices [Food & Agric. Code §§ 57409, 57531; see Com. Code § 9525 (fee)].

[j] Application of Uniform Commercial Code

Except to the extent specifically set forth by statute, dairy cattle, poultry, or fish supply liens are subject to Division 9 of the Commercial Code on secured transactions [Food & Agric. Code §§ 57407, 57541; see Com. Code § 9101 et seq.]. For further coverage of that topic, see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions .

PART IV. FORMS
B. Agricultural Liens

32-102A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102A.267

§ 102A.267 Notice of Agricultural Chemical or Seed Lien

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice to a lien debtor of an agricultural chemical or agricultural seed lien [see Food & Agric. Code §§ 57551-57595]. A person who provides an "agricultural chemical" or "agricultural seed" and who complies with statutory requirements has a lien on the proceeds of the crop for reasonable or agreed charges and for the costs of enforcing the lien [Food & Agric. Code § 57561(b); see Food & Agric. Code §§ 57551-57555 (definitions)]. The supplier is not entitled to establish the lien unless he or she first sends this written notice, by certified mail, to the lien debtor [Food & Agric. Code § 57561(a)].

To perfect the lien and make it effective, the lien claimant must file a separate notice of claim of lien with the Secretary of State [Food & Agric. Code § 57563]. For a form for a notice of claim of lien, and a discussion of additional procedures related to the filing of that notice and termination of the lien, see § 102A.268.

[b] Attachment of Lien

An agricultural chemical lien attaches to the proceeds of the crops that existed, at the time the chemical was applied, on the land where the agricultural chemical was applied [Food & Agric. Code § 57561(c)(1)]. If crops are not planted, the lien attaches to the proceeds of the next production crop on that land following the last date on which the agricultural chemical was applied [Food & Agric. Code § 57561(c)(2)]. If agricultural seed was supplied, the lien attaches to the proceeds from the crops produced from the agricultural seed [Food & Agric. Code § 57561(c)(3)].

The amount of charges secured by the lien cannot exceed an amount equal to the reasonable or agreed charges for agricultural chemicals furnished within a 60-day period or for agricultural seed furnished within a 45-day period [Food & Agric. Code § 57561(d)].

[c] Contents of Notice to Lien Debtor

The written notice sent by the lienholder to the lien debtor must include all of the following [Food & Agric. Code § 57561(a)]:

- A statement that the payment of the reasonable or agreed charges is more than 30 days overdue (this requirement does not apply to deliveries and related labor made subsequent to overdue deliveries).
- A statement of the amount of reasonable or agreed charges that are overdue.
- A statement that the lien debtor may either allow the lien to be filed, enter into a consensual security interest in the proceeds pursuant to the Commercial Code [see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions], or pay the reasonable or agreed charges that are overdue.
- A statement notifying the lien debtor, in 10-point type or larger, that he or she has 10 days from receipt of the notice to select an alternative, notify the lien claimant of the alternative selected, and satisfy all the requirements of the selected alternative. The statement must also notify the lien debtor that if he or she fails to comply with these requirements, the lien claimant may file a notice of claim of lien with the Secretary of State at any time after the 10 days have passed.

[a] Use of Form

This form is a standard form UCC-1 financing statement that has been partially filled in to add the special language needed when form UCC-1 is used to file a notice of claim of an agricultural chemical or agricultural seed lien. A person who provides an "agricultural chemical" or "agricultural seed" and who complies with statutory requirements has a lien on the proceeds of the crop for reasonable or agreed charges and for the costs of enforcing the lien [*Food & Agric. To perfect the lien and make it effective, the lien claimant must file a notice of claim of lien on Form UCC-1 with the Secretary of State [Food & Agric. Code § 57563; see Food & Agric. Code § 57567 (form of notice)]; see also Com. Code § 9521 (form)]. For detailed discussion of the content and use of form UCC-1, see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions, § 42.211.

ELECTRONIC FORMS NOTE

ELECTRONIC FORMS NOTE: Blank electronic copies of Form UCC-1 that may be filled in and printed out for filing can be obtained at the official website of the California Secretary of State, Business Programs Division. The current link to the Secretary of State's UCC forms may be accessed via links from the UCC information page which is located at <http://www.ss.ca.gov/business/ucc/ucc.htm>. You may also obtain a copy of this form via email by contacting Matthew Bender & Co. at (800) 424-0651, ext. 405, or emailing us at cal.custquest@lexis.com and requesting an electronic copy of CLF Form 42.211. Please be sure to include your email address along with your request and we will provide the form via return email. To view and print these forms, your computer system will require Adobe Acrobat Reader version 3.0 or higher.

The lien claimant is not entitled to file a notice of claim of lien unless he or she first sends a written notice, by certified mail, to the lien debtor as required by statute [Food & Agric. Code § 57561(a)]. For a form for that notice, see § 102A.267.

A lien claimant may not file a notice of claim of lien on the proceeds of crops for agricultural seeds or agricultural chemicals, and for labor furnished by the lien claimant, if an investigation of a dispute between the lien claimant and the lien debtor is pending before the state Director of Agriculture [Food & Agric. Code § 57564; see Food & Agric. Code §§ 52332, 57564.5 (methods and procedures for settlement of disputes)].

No more than two agricultural chemical and seed liens and poultry and fish supply liens [see § 102A.266] are enforceable against any one lien debtor, even if filed by different claimants [Food & Agric. Code § 57700].

[b] Contents of Notice of Claim of Lien

The notice of claim of lien must contain all of the following information [Food & Agric. Code § 57565; see Food & Agric. Code § 57567 (form of notice)]:

- (1) The name and address of the lien claimant.
- (2) The name and address of the lien debtor.
- (3) The location of the property to which the agricultural chemicals and labor or agricultural seeds and labor were provided.
- (4) A statement that the payment of the reasonable or agreed charges is more than 30 days overdue.
- (5) The amount of the reasonable or agreed charges that are overdue.
- (6) A statement, signed under penalty of perjury, that the lien claimant sent the required notice to the lien debtor [see § 102A.267], that more than ten days have elapsed since the notice was received by the lien debtor, and that the lien debtor has not complied with statutory requirements [see Food & Agric. Code § 57561(a); see also § 102A.267[1][c] (contents of notice to lien debtor)].
- (7) A statement that the lien claimant has an agricultural chemical and agricultural seed lien pursuant to Food & Agric. Code § 57561.

The standard Form UCC-1 may be modified to identify the lien claimant either as a lien claimant or as a secured party. In addition, items (3) through (7), above, should be inserted into the standard form, in the space provided for the description of the collateral [Food & Agric. Code § 57567(a), (c)]. Those items have been inserted into Item 4 of this form. For information on copies of UCC-1 and an illustration of the official instructions accompanying the form, see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions, § 42.211.

The form must be signed by the lien claimant, or by someone authorized to sign documents of a similar kind on behalf of the claimant, but need not be signed by the lien debtor [Food & Agric. Code §§ 57566, 57567(b)].

When filing the form with the Secretary of State, the lien claimant must attach a separate statement, signed under penalty of perjury, that the lien claimant sent the required notice to the lien debtor, that more than ten days have elapsed since the notice was received by the lien debtor, and that the lien debtor has not complied with statutory requirements set forth in the notice [Food & Agric. Code §§ 57565(f), 57567(d); see Food & Agric. Code § 57561(a); see also § 102A.267 (notice to lien debtor)]. A declaration satisfying these requirements has been added to Item 4 of this form.

[c] Filing Procedures

The notice of claim must be filed, indexed, and marked in the office of the Secretary of State in the same manner a UCC-1 financing statement [Food & Agric. Code § 57568; see Com. Code § 9519 (numbering, maintaining, indexing records)]. For discussion of filing procedures and fees, see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions, § 42.211[1].

When the Secretary of State's office receives a notice of claim of lien, it files, indexes, and marks the notice in the same manner as financing statements are filed, indexed, and marked [Food & Agric. Code § 57568; see Com. Code § 9519 (numbering, maintaining, indexing records)]. Notices of claim of lien are identified as financing statements for these purposes [Food & Agric. Code § 57570].

Within 10 days of the date this notice is filed with the office of the Secretary of State, the lien claimant must provide written notice of the claim of lien to the lien debtor [Food & Agric. Code § 57569]. Sending the "debtor copy" of the quadruplicate form is sufficient to meet this requirement.

[d] Priority of Lien

An agricultural chemical or agricultural seed lien has priority in accordance with the time the notice of claim of lien is filed with the Secretary of State. The lien has the same priority as a security interest perfected by the filing of a financing statement as of that date. However, the lien does not have priority over labor claims for wages and salaries for personal services that are provided by any employee to any lien debtor in connection with the production of agricultural products, the proceeds of which are subject to the lien [Food & Agric. Code § 57575]. For coverage of the priority of financing statements in general, see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions .

[e] Duration of Filing

The notice of claim of lien remains in effect, and no new notice is required to maintain the lien, as long as the person providing the agricultural chemicals, seeds, or labor either remains unpaid for the amounts secured by the lien or continues to provide the materials or labor on a regular basis to the lien debtor [Food & Agric. Code § 57562]. "On a regular basis" means that no more than 45 days may elapse between applications, deliveries, or preparations [Food & Agric. Code § 57562].

[f] Assignment of Lien

An agricultural chemical or agricultural seed lien is assignable or transferable by the holder of the lien, with full rights of enforcement. The lienholder must file a statement of assignment or transfer with the office of the Secretary of State in the same manner as is required for the assignment of any other security interest under the Commercial Code [Food & Agric. Code § 57590; see Com. Code § 9514 (assignment of secured party's power to authorize amendment)]. For further discussion and a form for assigning and transferring security interests, see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions .

[g] Enforcement of Lien

A lien claimant must provide written notice to secured creditors at least 30 days before enforcing a claim of lien. "Secured creditors" for this purpose means any entity named as a secured party in a financing statement that is filed with regard to the debtor, if the statement covers (1) crops subject to the lien, (2) crops growing or grown on the land where the agricultural chemical or seed was provided or applied, (3) the next production crops to be grown on the land where the agricultural chemical or seed was provided or applied, (4) farm products, or (5) accounts [Food & Agric. Code § 57585].

The lien claimant can foreclose a lien only in an action to recover the reasonable or agreed charges due [Food & Agric. Code § 57586; see Code Civ. Proc. § 680.010 et seq. (enforcement of judgments)].

[h] Termination of Lien

When the lien claimant receives payment for the total amounts secured by the lien, and the lien claimant has not furnished agricultural chemicals or seeds for a period of 45 consecutive days, the lien claimant must send the lien debtor a statement that the claimant no longer claims a security interest under the notice of claim of lien [Food & Agric. Code § 57587(a); see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions (form for termination statement)]. The termination statement must identify the lien by date, names of parties, and file number. Failure by the lien claimant to send the lien debtor the termination statement within 10 days allows the debtor a claim for damages suffered by reason of the failure, plus a penalty if bad faith is shown [Food & Agric. Code § 57587(a)].

The lien debtor must also file a copy of the termination statement with the office of the Secretary of State [Food & Agric. Code § 57591; see Com. Code § 9513 (termination statement)]. The filing officer must mark the termination statement with the date and time of filing, and must index the statement under the name of the lien debtor and the file number of the original lien [Food & Agric. Code § 57587(b)].

[i] Public Access to Lien Information

For a fee, a member of the public may obtain a certificate of the existence on file of a lien and any notice of claim of lien naming a particular debtor. The certificate gives the date and time of filing of each notice, and the names and addresses of each lienholder [Food & Agric. Code § 57581; see Com. Code § 9525 (fee)]. In addition, a member of the public may obtain a copy of any notice of an agricultural chemical or seed lien that has been filed, including notices affecting those notices [Food & Agric. Code § 57582; see Com. Code § 9525 (fee)].

[j] Application of Uniform Commercial Code

Except to the extent specifically set forth by statute, agricultural chemical and seed liens are subject to Division 9 of the Commercial Code on secured transactions [Food & Agric. Code § 57591; see Com. Code § 9101 et seq.]. For further coverage of that topic, see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions .

§ 102A.269 Notice of Harvester's Lien [Form DLSE-1]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form [Form DLSE-1], available from the Division of Labor Standards Enforcement, is the wage claim form that must be filed by a harvester to secure a harvester's lien beyond the statutory 45-day lien period [see [d], below].

ELECTRONIC FORMS NOTE:

Blank electronic copies of this form that may be filled in and printed out for filing can be obtained at the official website of the Division of Labor Standards Enforcement, under the topic "How To File A Wage Claim." The current link (mid-2002) to the Division's website is <http://www.dir.ca.gov/dlse/dlse.html>. You may also obtain a copy of this form via email by contacting Matthew Bender & Co. at (800) 424-0651, ext. 405, or emailing us at cal.custquest@lexis.com and requesting an electronic copy of CLF Form 102A.269. Please be sure to include your email address along with your request and we will provide the form via return email. To view and print these forms, your computer system will require Adobe Acrobat Reader version 3.0 or higher.

Any employee who performs the work of harvesting or transporting harvested crops or farm products that are owned and grown or produced by a limited partnership has a lien on any and all of the severed crops or severed farm products or proceeds from their sale for the value of the labor done, up to a maximum of earnings for two weeks [Civ. Code § 3061.5(a); see Food & Agric. Code § 55403 ("farm products" defined); Corp. Code § 15501 ("limited partnership" defined)(repealed January 1, 2010; now see Corp. Code § 15901.02(q))]. The lien attaches whether the work was performed at the instance of the owner who is the grower or producer of the crops or farm products, or that of a subordinate or contractor working under the owner's authority, directly or indirectly, as contractor or otherwise. Every contractor, subcontractor, or other person having charge of the harvesting or transporting of the severed crops or farm products will be held to be the agent of the owner for these purposes [Civ. Code § 3061.5(a)].

A harvester's lien attaches from the date that work begins and is a preferred lien, prior in dignity to all other liens, claims, or encumbrances [Civ. Code § 3061.5(b)]. However, a buyer in the ordinary course of business takes free of any security interest created by the lien, notwithstanding the fact that the lien is perfected and the buyer knows of its existence [Civ. Code § 3061.5(e); see Com. Code § 1201(b)(9) ("buyer in ordinary course of business" defined)].

[b] Limitations on Harvesters' Liens

The liability of severed crops, severed farm products, or the proceeds from their sale subject to a harvester's lien is limited to the lesser of actual proved claims or 25 percent of the fair market value of the severed crops or farm products, or 25 percent of the proceeds after their sale [Civ. Code § 3061.5(c)]. In addition, the lien is limited to the value of labor done up to a maximum of two weeks' earnings [Civ. Code § 3061.5(a)]. With those two exceptions, a harvester's lien may not be limited as to amount by any contract price agreed on between an owner who is the grower or producer of the severed crops or farm products and any contractor [Civ. Code § 3061.5(b)].

In any case, the several liens cannot exceed in amount the reasonable value of the labor done, nor the price agreed on for the labor between the claimant and his or her employer. If the claimant was employed by a subcontractor or contractor, the lien does not extend to any labor not contemplated by or reasonably necessary to the execution of the original contract between the contractor and the owner, provided that the claimant had actual notice, before performing the labor, of the contract or any modifications to it [Civ. Code § 3061.5(b)].

[c] Effect of Owner's Bond for Payment of Wages

A harvester has no lien if the owner who is the grower or producer of the severed crops or farm products otherwise subject to the lien gives a bond, executed by an admitted surety insurer, to the Labor Commissioner before the harvest and for 45 days after its completion. The owner may give the bond directly to the Labor Commissioner, or may require a person or entity hired or used to furnish labor in connection with harvesting or transporting the severed crops to provide the bond. The bond must be in an amount and form acceptable to the Labor Commissioner, and must be conditioned on the payment of all wages found to be due and unpaid in connection with the work performed by the employee [Civ. Code § 3061.5(d)].

A harvester's lien continues in force for 45 days from the time the claimant ceases to perform the work for which the lien is claimed. After the 45-day period, the lien expires unless the claimant, or his or her assigns or successors in interest, files a claim (this form) with the Labor Commissioner or brings suit to foreclose the lien. The filing of a claim or suit continues the lien in force until the claim or suit is finally determined and closed [Civ. Code § 3061.6(a)].

On the filing of a claim with the Labor Commissioner, the Labor Commissioner, if the owner who is the grower or producer has failed to satisfy the bond provisions [see [c], above], will determine whether or not the owner of the severed crops, severed farm products, or their proceeds is capable of satisfying the claim. The Labor Commissioner may take into account the potential liability faced by the owner of the crops, farm products, or proceeds. If the Labor Commissioner determines that a lien is necessary to protect the claimants' interest, the Labor Commissioner will file the lien on the severed crop, the severed farm products, or their proceeds, and will notify in writing the owner and all persons who have filed financing statements on the crop, farm product, or proceeds pursuant to the Commercial Code [Civ. Code § 3061.6(b)].

The plaintiff in a lien foreclosure suit may have the severed crops or severed farm products or their proceeds attached [see Civ. Code § 3061.6(c); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 488.010 et seq. (attachment procedure)].

Any number of persons claiming harvester's liens may join in the same action. If separate actions are commenced, a court may consolidate them. If there is a deficiency of proceeds on judgment to pay all claims, the proceeds are divided pro rata, regardless of the order of claim or suit [Civ. Code § 3061.6(d)]. The filing of a harvester's lien does not prevent a person to whom a debt is owed for work done from maintaining a personal action against the person liable, either in connection with the lien suit or in a separate action. However, any money collected on a separate judgment is credited on the amount of the lien in an action to enforce the lien [Civ. Code § 3061.6(e)].

Special procedures apply to liens attached to perishable goods [see Civ. Code § 3061.6(f); see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 485.010, 485.530 (procedure and affidavit when great or irreparable harm will result from delay)].

§ 102A.280 Statement of Facts for Vessel Lien Under Boater's Lien Law [DMV Form REG 256]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a DMV Statement of Facts [DMV Form REG 256]. It is available from any DMV office or may be downloaded from the DMV website located at www.dmv.ca.gov. Sections J (Statement of Facts) and K (Applicant's Signature) should be completed.

For a valid vessel lien, a written statement of the lien that specifies the charges for services or storage rendered and states that the vessel is subject to sale pursuant to the Boater's Lien Law must be sent to the registered owner of the vessel [Harb. & Nav. Code § 502(a); see [b], below]. This form may be used to notify the vessel owner of the lien and may be submitted as a supporting document, along with other lien sale documents, to the DMV.

[b] Boater's Lien Law In General

Liens on vessels are governed by the Boater's Lien Law [see Harb. & Nav. Code §§ 500-509]. For the purposes of the law, "vessel" means every type of watercraft, other than a seaplane or floating home, used or capable of being used as a means of transportation on the water and that is required to be registered. The term also includes any trailer used in connection with the vessel that the lienholder possesses at the time the lien arises. It does not include any vessel that has a valid marine document issued by the United States or its agencies [Harb. & Nav. Code § 501(e); see Harb. & Nav. Code § 501.5 (effect of other laws)]. Liens on vessels required to be registered by the federal government are governed by federal law and are beyond the scope of this chapter [see 46 U.S.C. §§ 31341-31343; see also Ch. 102D, Registration and Transfer of Vehicles, Vessels, and Aircraft]. Boats that are left in a leased boat slip in a marina after the lessor has obtained an unlawful detainer judgment against the lessee of the slip must be disposed of under the Boater's Lien Law [Harb. & Nav. Code §§ 500-509] since that law provides the exclusive means of enforcing possessory vessel liens [Mariners Bay Co. v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 808, 815, 280 Cal. Rptr. 292] .

[c] Creation of Lien

Every person has a possessory lien for compensation to which he or she is legally entitled for services rendered to or storage provided for any vessel subject to registration by the DMV [Harb. & Nav. Code § 502(a); see Veh. Code §§ 9850-9880 (registration of undocumented vessels)]. However, before a lien arises for compensation for repair services, a repairer must comply with statutory provisions governing work authorization, price estimates, and work invoice contents [Harb. & Nav. Code § 502(a); see Harb. & Nav. Code §§ 410-418 (requirements)]. The lien arises at the time a written statement of lien is sent to the registered owner of the vessel specifying the charges for services or storage rendered and also stating that the vessel is subject to sale pursuant to the Boater's Lien Law [Harb. & Nav. Code § 502(a)].

[d] Consent Requirement

If the service or storage giving rise to a claim is ordered by a person other than the legal owner as shown on the vessel's registration certificate, the portion of a lien based on that claim that exceeds $1,500 is invalid unless the legal owner consents to the excess [see Harb. & Nav. Code § 502(b)]. For further discussion of the consent requirement and a form for obtaining consent, see § 102A.281.

32-102A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102A.281

§ 102A.281 Request for Consent to Vessel Services or Storage in Excess of $1,500

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a request for consent to vessel services or storage exceeding $1,500 in value. It should be used by a lien claimant to notify the legal and registered owners of a vessel of the order for services or storage of the vessel in an amount exceeding $1,500, if the services or storage is ordered by someone other than the legal owner [see Harb. & Nav. Code § 502(b)]. For further discussion of the Boater's Lien Law [Harb. & Nav. Code §§ 500-509], see § 102A.280[1][b].

[b] Consent Requirement

If the service or storage giving rise to a claim is ordered by a person other than the legal owner (as shown on the vessel's registration certificate), the portion of the lien based on a claim that exceeds $1,500 is invalid unless the legal owner consents to the excess. The legal owner may limit his or consent to a specified dollar amount or period of time [Harb. & Nav. Code § 502(b)].

A lien claimant must give both the registered and the legal owners of the vessel a written notice before exceeding the specified maximum amount (or $1,500 if none is specified). The notice must contain all of the following [Harb. & Nav. Code § 502(b)]:

- A description of the storage or services provided.
- The vessel's description and registration number.
- The names of the registered owners.

● The dollar amount or rate of the charges for the storage or services [see Harb. & Nav. Code § 502(c)] (actual amount may exceed estimate by 10 percent and lien claim will remain valid).

● A statement in boldface type that, with respect to storage charges, the legal owner's consent will be presumed unless he or she notifies the lien claimant within 15 days of the receipt of the consent request that he or she declines to consent to the storage [see also Harb. & Nav. Code § 502(d)].

In addition, the lien claimant must notify the legal owner, by certified mail, that the vessel is subject to sale pursuant to the Boater's Lien Law and that the lien claimed exceeds $1,500 [Harb. & Nav. Code § 502(b)].

In all cases, consent is presumed for the 30-day period immediately following the giving of the request for consent notice [Harb. & Nav. Code § 502(d)].

If the legal owner declines consent, he or she may remove the vessel from the lien claimant only on satisfying the lien [Harb. & Nav. Code § 502(e)].

32-102A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102A.282

§ 102A.282 Release of Interest in Vessel by Registered and Legal Owners [DMV Form BOAT 153]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a DMV form [DMV Form BOAT 153] for the release of a registered or legal owner's interest in a vessel subject to a lien. It is generated by the DMV when a request for lien sale has been denied because the registered or legal owner of a vessel (or other party with an interest) executes and timely files a DMV Declaration of Opposition form [see §§ 102A.291, 102.301]. By signing the Release of Interest after a lien has arisen on a vessel of any value, both the registered and the legal owners release all of their interest in the vessel and give the lienholder permission to proceed with the lien sale.

The lienholder does not need to obtain authorization from the DMV to conduct a lien sale if a Release of Interest has been executed by both the registered and the legal owners of the vessel subject to the lien. In order to transfer the registration of a vessel subject to a lien sale, the buyer of the vessel must submit the Release of Interest, or a copy, along with the Application for Registration of Vessel Sold at Lien Sale to the DMV [see Harb. & Nav. Code § 505(c)].

For discussion of vessel lien sales in general, see § 102A.280[1]. For further discussion of the transfer and registration of vessels in transactions not involving lien sales, see Ch. 102D, Registration and Transfer of Vehicles, Vessels, and Aircraft.

[b] Release of Interest

A registered or legal owner of a vessel in the possession of a lienholder may release any interest in the vessel after the lien has arisen. The release must be dated when signed and a copy must be given to the person releasing the interest at the time of signing [Harb. & Nav. Code § 505(a)]. The release must be in at least 12-point type and must contain all of the following information [Harb. & Nav. Code § 505(b)]:

- The vessel's description, including make, identification number, and the state of registration, to the extent available.
- The names and addresses of both the registered and the legal owners, to the extent available.
- A statement of the amount of the lien and the facts giving rise to the lien.
- A statement that the person releasing the interest understands that (1) he or she has a legal right to a court hearing before any lien sale of the vessel, and (2) he or she is giving up the right to appear to contest the claim of the lienholder.
- A statement that (1) the person releasing the interest gives up any interest he or she may have in the vessel, and (2) he or she is giving the lienholder permission to sell the vessel.

32-102A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102A.290

§ 102A.290 Application for Lien Sale Authorization and Lienholder's Certification [DMV Form BOAT 152]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is the official DMV form used by a lienholder to initiate a lien sale of a vessel valued at over $1,500. It is available from any DMV office or may be downloaded from the DMV website located at www.dmv.ca.gov. If the vessel is valued at $1,500 or less, the lienholder does not need DMV authorization [see Harb. & Nav. Code § 504; see also §§ 102A.300, 102A.301]. In addition, DMV authorization for the sale is not required if the lienholder has obtained a release of interest from both the registered and the legal owners [see Harb. & Nav. Code § 505; see also § 102A.282].

[b] Lien Sales of Vessels Valued Over $1,500

[i] In General

If the value of a vessel subject to a lien is determined to exceed $1,500, the lienholder must apply to the DMV for the issuance of an authorization to conduct a lien sale. The application must be executed under penalty of perjury and must contain specified information [Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(a); see [ii], below]. The lienholder must submit the completed application to the DMV with the appropriate filing fee. The lienholder may recover the filing fee if a lien sale is conducted or if the vessel is redeemed [Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(a)].

[ii] Contents of Application

The application to conduct a lien sale must contain all of the following information [Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(a)]:

- The vessel's description, including the make, hull identification number, and state of registration, to the extent available.

- The names and addresses of both the registered and the legal owners of the vessel, if ascertainable from the registration certificate within the vessel, and the name and address of any person who the lienholder knows (or reasonably should know) claims a proprietary interest in the vessel.

- A statement of the amount of the lien and the facts concerning the claim that give rise to the lien. This statement must include, as a separate item, an estimate of any additional storage costs accruing pending the lien sale.

[iii] DMV Processing

Within 15 days after receipt of the application to conduct a lien sale of the vessel, the DMV must contact the vessel registry agency of another state if the vessel bears indicia of registration in that state [Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(b)(1)]. Additionally, the DMV must send by mail to both the registered and the legal owners of the vessel, and to any other person named in the application, a Warning Notice of Lien Sale, a copy of the application, and a return envelope preaddressed to the DMV [Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(b)(2); see § 102A.291].

Within the same 15-day period, the DMV must apply a vessel registration stop order or title transfer stop order to the vessel subject to the lien [Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(b)(3)], and must notify the applicant of any outstanding property tax lien on the vessel of which the DMV has been notified pursuant to Rev. & Tax. Code § 3205(b), identifying the county in which any outstanding lien is held [Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(b)(4)]. For discussion of the registration and transfer of vessels, see Ch. 102D, Registration and Transfer of Vehicles, Vessels, and Aircraft .

[iv] Declaration of Opposition

The person receiving the DMV notice of a pending lien sale may file a Declaration of Opposition if he or she desires a court hearing [see Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(c)(3); see also [iii], above]. The proper return of the Declaration of Opposition will require the lienholder to obtain a judgment or the declarant's release before conducting a lien sale [see Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(c)(4)]. For further discussion and a form for the declaration, see § 102A.291.

[v] Notice From Lienholder

On receipt of the DMV's authorization to conduct a lien sale, the lienholder must comply with certain notice requirements [see Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(f)]. At least 10 days but not more than 30 days before the lien sale (not counting the day of the sale), the lienholder must give notice of the sale by advertising once in a newspaper of general circulation published in the county in which the vessel is located. If there is no newspaper published in the county, notice must be given by posting a Notice of Pending Lien Sale [see § 102A.292] in three of the most public places in the area in which the vessel is located and at the place where the vessel is to be sold for 10 consecutive days before and including the day of the sale [Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(f)(1)].

The lienholder must also send a Notice of Pending Lien Sale form 20 days before the day of the sale (not counting the day of the sale) to specified parties [see Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(f)(2); see also § 102A.292].

[vi] Conduct of Lien Sale

Prior to the commencement of the lien sale, the vessel must be made available for inspection at a location easily accessible to the public for at least one hour before the sale. Furthermore, the vessel must be made available at the time and date specified on the notice of sale [Harb. & Nav. Code § 506].

The lien sale must be conducted in a commercially reasonable manner [Harb. & Nav. Code § 506]. The statute, however, does not specify what constitutes "commercially reasonable." Sealed bids will not be accepted at the lien sale [Harb. & Nav. Code § 506].

[c] Disposition of Lien Sale Proceeds[i] In General

The proceeds of a vessel lien sale must be disposed of in a specified manner [see Harb. & Nav. Code § 507.5]. The lienholder must receive the amount necessary to discharge the lien and the actual cost of selling the vessel. The actual cost of sale includes any fees charged by the DMV, publication fees, postage, and service of notices, whether incurred as a result of sale or the owner's redemption [Harb. & Nav. Code § 507.5(a); see [iii], below]. The cost of selling is the actual cost, not to exceed $100 for a vessel without a trailer and $125 for vessels with a trailer, excluding DMV charges [Harb. & Nav. Code § 507.5(a); see also [iii], below]. The balance, if any, must be forwarded to the DMV within 15 days of the sale [Harb. & Nav. Code § 507.5(b)]. Within 30 days of the date of sale, the DMV must send notice of the receipt of the funds, if the amount exceeds $10, to the legal and registered owners of the vessel [Harb. & Nav. Code § 507.5(b)].

[ii] Claims Against Proceeds by Parties Other Than Lienholder

Any person claiming an interest in a vessel sold at a lien sale may file a claim with the DMV for any portion of the funds from the lien sale that the DMV received. If the DMV determines that the claimant is entitled to a portion of the funds, it will pay that amount. However, the amount paid may not exceed the balance amount received by the DMV. The DMV may not honor any claim unless the claim has been filed within three years of the date the funds were received [Harb. & Nav. Code § 507.5(c)].

At the end of each fiscal year, the DMV must deposit in the Harbors and Watercraft Revolving Fund all funds held by it for which no claim was filed within the three-year period [Harb. & Nav. Code § 507.5(c)].

[iii] Redemption of Vessel

Within 10 days after the lien sale of any vessel, the legal or registered owner may redeem the vessel on payment of the amount of the lien, all costs and expenses of the lien, and interest, based on the legal rate of interest from the due date of the amount owed until repayment. If the vessel is not redeemed, all lien sale documents required by the DMV must be completed and delivered to the buyer [Harb. & Nav. Code § 506.5; see § 102A.293].

§ 102A.291 DMV Notice of Application to Hold Lien Sale, With Declaration of Opposition Attached

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a sample of the form letter sent by the DMV to notify the registered and legal owners (and other interested persons) that an application to hold a lien sale on a vessel has been filed. The form includes a Declaration of Opposition, which must be completed by the recipient of the notice and filed to contest the lien sale [see [c], below; see also Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(b)(2)]. This form letter is a sample supplied by the DMV and is reproduced for illustrative purposes only.

After a lienholder has applied to the DMV for authorization to conduct a lien sale of a vessel valued in excess of $1,500 [see § 102A.290], the DMV will send this form letter to both the registered and the legal owners of the vessel subject to the lien and other persons listed in the application [see [b], below].

For further discussion of the lien sale process for vessels valued in excess of $1,500, see § 102A.290. For discussion and forms governing the lien sales of vessels valued at $1,500 or less, see §§ 102A.300 and 102A.301.

[b] Notice of Lien Sale by DMV

On receipt of an application to conduct a vessel lien sale, the DMV must notify both the registered and the legal owners of the vessel and any other person whose name and address is listed in the application [Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(b)(2)]. The notice must state that [Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(c)]:

- An application has been made with the DMV to conduct a lien sale and the DMV has placed a vessel registration stop order or title transfer stop order on the vessel;
- The person notified has a right to a court hearing;

- If a court hearing is desired, a signed Declaration of Opposition form must be returned to the DMV within 15 days of the date on which the notice was mailed;
- If the Declaration of Opposition form is signed and returned to the DMV, the lienholder will be allowed to sell the vessel only if he or she obtains a favorable court judgment or the declarant's release [see also Harb. & Nav. Code § 505; § 102A.282];
- If a court action is filed, the declarant must be notified of the lawsuit at the address shown on the Declaration of Opposition form and may appear to contest the claim; and
- The person may be liable for court costs if a judgment is entered in favor of the lienholder.

For an overview of the procedure governing lien sales of vessels valued at over $1,500, see § 102A.140.

[c] Submitting Declaration of Opposition

If both the registered and the legal owners (and other interested persons) wish to contest a vessel lien sale, they must complete the Declaration of Opposition and return it to the DMV within 15 days after the DMV mailed it to them [Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(c)(3)]. If the DMV receives the Declaration of Opposition within this 15-day period, it will notify the lienholder within 16 days that he or she may not proceed with the lien sale [Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(d)]. The lienholder must then file an action in court within 60 days after the receipt of this notice. A lien sale cannot be conducted unless judgment is subsequently entered in favor of the lienholder or the declarant subsequently releases his or her interest in the vessel [Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(d); see § 102A.282]. If the lienholder files suit and serves process on the declarant by certified mail at the address shown on the Declaration of Opposition and the mail is returned unclaimed, the DMV must promptly authorize the sale [Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(e)].

[a] Use of Form

This form is a DMV Notice of Pending Lien Sale. Many commonly used forms are available at any DMV office or may be downloaded from the DMV website located at www.dmv.ca.gov. However, most of the lien sale forms are not available online, and many are not available at local DMV offices. This form is available by mail from the DMV Lien Sale Unit, P.O. Box 932317, Sacramento, CA 94323 by calling the Unit at (916) 657-7617. Forms are also available from the DMV Material Management, Forms Order Desk, 4201 Sierra Point Drive, Suite 112, Sacramento, CA 95834 by faxing the request to (916) 928-7900. The fax should include: the title of the form, the form number, the quantity desired (a six month supply is recommended), a contact name and telephone number, and a shipping address, which must be a physical address. If forms are being requested for an organization, the request should be on the organization's letterhead. Questions should be directed to (916) 657-6560.

If the value of a vessel subject to a lien exceeds $1,500, the lienholder must use this form to give the written notice required by Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(f)(2). For discussion of lien sales of vessels valued at over $1,500, see §§ 102A.140 and 102A.290[1].

[b] Sending Notice of Pending Lien Sale

After the lienholder obtains authorization from the DMV to conduct a lien sale of a vessel valued at more than $1,500, he or she must send this notice, at least 20 days before the date of the sale (not counting the day of sale), to the legal and registered owners of the vessel if the vessel is registered in California, to the DMV in Sacramento, and all other persons known to have an interest in the vessel. The notice must be sent by mail, with return receipt requested [Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(f)(2)].

After the DMV receives the notice of pending lien sale, it must mark its records and notify any person having a proprietary interest in the vessel that there is a pending lien sale and that title will not be transferred until the lien is satisfied or released [Harb. & Nav. Code § 503(g)].

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is the DMV Certificate of Lien Sale for Vessel or Vessel with Trailers Valued Over $1500. It is available from any DMV office or may be downloaded from the DMV website located at www.dmv.ca.gov. The form is used to report the completion of a lien sale of a vessel of a vessel and trailer combination valued over $1500. A vessel record (printout) from the DMV and/or authorization for a lien sale must be submitted with this certification [see www.dmv.ca.gov/forms/boat/boat178.htm].

After the sale, the lienholder must keep the vessel in his or her possession for a 10-day redemption period. During that 10-day period, the legal or registered owner may redeem the vessel on payment of the amount of the lien, all costs and expenses of the lien, and interest, based on the legal rate of interest from the due date of the amount owed until repayment [Harb. & Nav. Code § 506.5].

For discussion of authority to conduct a lien sale, see § 102A.140. For discussion of the notice of a pending lien sale, see § 102A.292. For coverage of publication of the sale, see 102A.290[1][b][v]. For discussion of disposition of lien sale proceeds, see § 102A.290[1][c].

[a] Use of Form

This form is the official DMV form for a lienholder's certification and notice of a pending lien sale of a vessel valued at $1,500 or less. Many commonly used forms are available at any DMV office or may be downloaded from the DMV website located at www.dmv.ca.gov. However, most of the lien sale forms are not available online, and many are not available at local DMV offices. This form is available by mail from the DMV Lien Sale Unit, P.O. Box 932317, Sacramento, CA 94323 by calling the Unit at (916) 657-7617. Forms are also available from the DMV Material Management, Forms Order Desk, 4201 Sierra Point Drive, Suite 112, Sacramento, CA 95834 by faxing the request to (916) 928-7900. The fax should include the title of the form, the form number, the quantity desired (a six month supply is recommended), a contact name and telephone number, and a shipping address, which must be a physical address. If forms are being requested for an organization, the request should be on the organization's letterhead. Questions should be directed to (916) 657-6560.

For discussion and forms covering lien sales of vessels valued at greater than $1,500, see §§ 102A.290-102A.293.

A lienholder begins the lien sale of a vessel valued at $1,500 or less by applying to the DMV for the names and addresses of both the registered and the legal owners of record [see Harb. & Nav. Code § 504(a)]. On receipt of the names and addresses, the lienholder must immediately send a completed Notice of Pending Lien Sale form, a blank Declaration of Opposition [see § 102A.301], and a return envelope preaddressed to the DMV to both the registered and the legal owners of the vessel, to any other person known to have a proprietary interest in the vessel, and to the DMV. The forms must be sent by mail, return receipt requested [Harb. & Nav. Code § 504(b)].

On the DMV's receipt of the notice of pending lien sale, it must mark its records and notify any person having a proprietary interest in the vessel that there is a pending lien sale and that title will not be transferred until the lien is satisfied or released [Harb. & Nav. Code § 504(c)].

[c] Required Contents of Notice of Pending Lien Sale

All Notice of Pending Lien Sale forms sent to persons having an interest in the vessel must be signed under penalty of perjury and must contain all of the following information [Harb. & Nav. Code § 504(d)]:

- The vessel's description, including make, identification number, and state of registration, to the extent available.
- The specific date, exact time, and place of sale, which must not be less than 35 days nor more than 60 days from the date of mailing.
- The names and addresses of both the registered and the legal owners of the vessel, and the name and address of any other person known to have an interest in the vessel.
- A statement of the amount of the lien and the facts concerning the claim that gives rise to the lien. This statement must include, as a separate item, an estimate of any additional storage costs accruing pending the lien sale.
- A statement that the person notified has a right to a court hearing.
- A statement that if a court hearing is desired, a signed Declaration of Opposition form must be returned to the DMV within 15 days of the mailing of the Notice of Pending Lien Sale form [see [d], below].
- A statement that if the Declaration of Opposition form is signed and returned to the DMV, the lienholder will be allowed to sell the vessel only if he or she obtains a court judgment or the declarant's release [see Harb. & Nav. Code § 505; see also § 102A.282].
- A statement that if a court action is filed, the declarant must be notified of the lawsuit at the address shown on the Declaration of Opposition form and may appear to contest the claim.
- A statement that the person may be liable for court costs if a judgment is entered in favor of the lienholder.

[d] Declaration of Opposition

The person receiving the Notice of Pending Lien Sale may file a Declaration of Opposition if he or she desires a court hearing [see Harb. & Nav. Code § 504(d)(4)(C)]. The proper return of the Declaration of Opposition will require the lienholder to obtain a court judgment or the declarant's release before conducting a lien sale [see Harb. & Nav. Code § 504(d)(4)(D)]. For further discussion and a form for the Declaration of Opposition, see § 102A.301.

[e] Conduct of Lien Sale

Before the lien sale begins, the vessel must be made available for inspection at a location easily accessible to the public for at least one hour before the sale. Further, the vessel must be made available at the time and date specified on the notice of sale [Harb. & Nav. Code § 506].

The lien sale must be conducted in a commercially reasonable manner [Harb. & Nav. Code § 506]. The statute, however, does not specify what constitutes "commercially reasonable." Sealed bids will not be accepted at the lien sale [Harb. & Nav. Code § 506].

For discussion of the disposition of vessel lien sale proceeds, see § 102A.290[1][c]. For discussion of the redemption of the vessel, see § 102A.290[1][c][iii].

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is the official DMV Declaration of Opposition. Many commonly used forms are available at any DMV office or may be downloaded from the DMV website located at www.dmv.ca.gov. However, most of the lien sale forms are not available online, and many are not available at local DMV offices. This form is available by mail from the DMV Lien Sale Unit, P.O. Box 932317, Sacramento, CA 94323 by calling the Unit at (916) 657-7617. Forms are also available from the DMV Material Management, Forms Order Desk, 4201 Sierra Point Drive, Suite 112, Sacramento, CA 95834 by faxing the request to (916) 928-7900. The fax should include the title of the form, the form number, the quantity desired (a six month supply is recommended), a contact name and telephone number, and a shipping address, which must be a physical address. If forms are being requested for an organization, the request should be on the organization's letterhead. Questions should be directed to (916) 657-6560.

A blank Declaration of Opposition must be served on both the registered and the legal owners, and any known persons having an interest in the vessel, at the same time as the Notice of Pending Lien Sale [see Harb. & Nav. Code § 504(b); see also § 102A.300]. It must be filed by owners or other interested persons who want to contest the lien sale of a vessel valued at $1,500 or less [see Harb. & Nav. Code § 504(d); see [b], below]. For discussion of lien sales of vessels valued at $1,500 or less, see § 102A.300. For discussion and forms involving the lien sales of vessels valued at greater than $1,500, see §§ 102A.290-102A.293.

[b] Submitting Declaration of Opposition

If either the registered or the legal owners (or other persons) wish to contest a vessel lien sale, they must complete the Declaration of Opposition and return it to the DMV within 15 days after the Notice of Pending Lien Sale was mailed to them [Harb. & Nav. Code § 504(d)(4)(C); see § 102A.300]. If the DMV receives the Declaration of Opposition within this 15-day period, it will notify the lienholder within 16 days that he or she may not proceed with the lien sale unless the lienholder obtains a court judgment or the declarant's release [Harb. & Nav. Code § 504(e); see Harb. & Nav. Code § 505; see also § 102A.282]. The lienholder must file a court action within 20 days after the receipt of this notice [Harb. & Nav. Code § 504(e)]. If the Declaration of Opposition is not executed and returned within the prescribed 20-day period, the lienholder may proceed with the lien sale [Harb. & Nav. Code § 504(f)].

D. Liens for Services Performed on Personal Property

32-102A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102A.320

§ 102A.320 Notice of Intention to Commence Work and to Claim Lien

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice of intent to begin any of several specified kinds of work, service, care, or safekeeping in connection with personal property, and to claim a statutory lien for any amounts that may become due as a result [see Civ. Code § 3051; see also [b], below]. If a person entitled to the lien performs one of the specified functions at the request of someone other than the holder of legal title to the personal property, the portion of the lien in excess of $300 for work, services, or care, or in excess of $200 for safekeeping, is invalid unless the lienholder gives written notice to the legal title holder before commencing the work, service, care, or safekeeping. The notice must be personally served on the holder of legal title or delivered by registered letter addressed to the title holder, if known [Civ. Code § 3051a].

For an alternative notice and procedure that may be used when the lien does not exceed $150 [see Civ. Code § 3052b], see § 102A.322.

[b] Persons Entitled to Lien

A person lawfully in possession of personal property who renders any service to the owner of the property for the protection, improvement, safekeeping, or carriage of the property has a special lien on that property, dependent on possession, for the compensation, if any, that is due from the owner for that service. In addition, one who makes, alters, or repairs personal property at the request of the owner or legal possessor of the property has a lien for the reasonable charges for the balance due for work done and material furnished, and may retain possession of the property until the charges are paid [Civ. Code § 3051].

Foundry proprietors and persons conducting a foundry business have a lien, dependent on possession, on all patterns in their hands belonging to a customer, for the balance due them from the customer for foundry work. Plastic fabricators and persons conducting a plastic fabricating business have a lien dependent on possession on all patterns and molds in their hands belonging to a customer for the balance due them from the customer for plastic fabrication work [Civ. Code

Laundry proprietors, drycleaning establishment proprietors, and persons conducting a laundry or drycleaning business have a general lien, dependent on possession, on all personal property in their hands belonging to a customer for the balance due them from the customer for laundry or drycleaning work. This lien is not conferred in favor of wholesale drycleaners on materials received from drycleaning proprietors or persons conducting drycleaning establishments [Civ. Code § 3051].

Veterinary proprietors and veterinary surgeons have a lien dependent on possession for their compensation in caring for, boarding, feeding, and medical treatment of animals [Civ. Code § 3051; see Jakubaitis v. Fischer (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1601, 1605-1606, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 39 (Civ. Code § 3051, not Civ. Code § 3080 (general livestock lien statute), governed billing dispute between veterinary hospital and owners of horse that had received veterinary services; court reasoned that legislature's omission of veterinary care from Civ. Code § 3080 indicated its intention to retain Civ. Code § 3051 as governing scheme for veterinary surgeons and veterinary proprietors in possession while creating new statutory scheme for other livestock servicers)].

[c] Property Not Subject to Lien

These lien provisions do not apply to the following types of personal property [Civ. Code § 3051]:

- Vessels [see Harb. & Nav. Code § 21 (definition); see also §§ 102A.280-102A.311 (vessel lien forms)].
- Vehicles subject to registration under the Vehicle Code [see Veh. Code § 670 (definition); see also § 102A.200-102A.251 (vehicle liens)].
- Manufactured homes, whether or not subject to registration under the Health and Safety Code [see Health & Safety Code § 18007 (definition)].
- Mobilehomes, whether or not subject to registration under the Health and Safety Code [see Health & Safety Code § 18008 (definition)].
- Commercial modulars (also referred to as "commercial coaches"), whether or not subject to registration under the Health and Safety Code [see Health & Safety Code § 18001.8 (definition)].

[d] Enforcement by Sale

If the lienholder is not paid the amount due within 10 days after the amount has become due, the lienholder may sell at public auction the property that is the subject of the lien, or as much of it as is necessary to satisfy the lien and the costs of sale [Civ. Code § 3052]. For a notice of sale to satisfy a lien for services performed on personal property, see § 102A.321. For a notice of sale of property at public auction, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 342, Liens and Wage Preferences (Matthew Bender).

D. Liens for Services Performed on Personal Property

32-102A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102A.321

§ 102A.321 Notice of Sale to Satisfy Lien

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice of sale of personal property to satisfy a lien for services performed on personal property [see Civ. Code § 3051; see also § 102A.320]. If a person entitled to a lien under Civ. Code § 3051 is not paid the amount due, and for which the lien is given, within 10 days after that amount becomes due, the lienholder may sell the property to which the lien applies at public auction [Civ. Code § 3052].

[b] Time and Manner of Notice

The lienholder must give notice of the sale by publication or by posting. Published notice must be given at least 10 but not more than 20 days before the sale by advertising in a newspaper published in the county in which the property is situated. If no newspaper is published in that county, notice must be given by posting the notice in three of the most public places in the town and at the place where the property is to be sold for 10 days before the date of sale [Civ. Code § 3052].

[c] Proceeds of Sale

The lienholder may sell the property or as much of it as is necessary to satisfy the lien and costs of sale. The proceeds of the sale must first be applied to the discharge of the lien and the cost of keeping and selling the property. The remainder, if any, must be paid over to the legal owner of the property [Civ. Code § 3052].

[d] Right of Redemption

Within 20 days after the sale, the legal owner may redeem property sold to satisfy the lien by paying (1) the amount of the lien, (2) all costs and expenses of sale, and (3) interest on the foregoing amounts at a rate of 12 percent from the due date, or the date when the costs and expenses were advanced, until the repayment [Civ. Code § 3052].

[e] Serviced Products of Nominal Value

This lien sale procedure is inapplicable to service dealers registered with the Bureau of Electronic and Appliance Repair [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 9800-9874; see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 9801(f) ("service dealer" defined)] if the dealer reasonably believes that the serviced product is of nominal value [Civ. Code § 3052.5(a)]. For discussion of service dealer's liens, see § 102A.324[1].

§ 102A.322 Summary of Statutory Lien Sale Procedure for Charges Not Exceeding $150, and Owner's Declaration

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form consists of (1) a summary of the lien sale provisions of Civ. Code § 3052b, and (2) a declaration by the property owner that he or she has read and understands the summary. The lien sale procedure in Civ. Code § 3052b is an alternative to the procedure set forth in Civ. Code § 3052 for the enforcement of liens on personal property [see § 102A.321[1]], and may be used when the lien is for charges that do not exceed $150 [Civ. Code § 3052b(a); see [b], below]. The lienholder must provide the property owner with this type of notice of sale at the time of entering into the transaction from which the lien may arise [Civ. Code § 3052b(a)(1), (2); see [b], below].

In addition to providing this notice, the lienholder must make related disclosures by taking all of the following steps:

- Posting, at the time of the transaction from which the lien may arise, a notice that informs the public of the substance of Civ. Code § 3052b [see § 102A.323].
- Notifying the owner when the work is completed [see Civ. Code § 3052b(b); see also [c], below].
- Notifying the owner that the property will be sold to satisfy the lien unless all charges are paid [see Civ. Code § 3052b(d); see also [c], below].

Further, if the property is sold to satisfy the lien, the sale must comply with numerous requirements imposed by Civ. Code § 3052b [see [b]-[h], below].

[b] When Procedure May Be Used

This notice and procedure may be used when:

- A lienholder has a lien for services performed on personal property [see Civ. Code § 3051 (description of these liens); see also § 102A.320]; and
- The lien is for charges that do not exceed $150, exclusive of additional charges and interest authorized by Civ. Code § 3052b [Civ. Code § 3052b(a)].

To employ this procedure, the lienholder must have done all of the following [see Civ. Code § 3052b(a)]:

- Provided the property owner with an accurate written summary of the lien provisions of Civ. Code § 3052b (this form).
- Obtained the property owner's address and telephone number, together with a written declaration signed by the property owner stating that the property owner has read and understands the summary provided in accordance Civ. Code § 3052b(a)(1) [see P above], at the time of entering into the transaction from which the lien arose. (This form includes the required declaration and blanks for the owner's address and telephone number. Two copies of this form should be given to the owner, so that he or she can sign one copy and return it to the lienholder, and retain the second copy.)
- Posted, at the time of the transaction from which the lien arose, a notice that fully and fairly informs the public of the substance of Civ. Code § 3052b [see § 102A.323]. The notice must be posted in a location clearly visible to the public in the lienholder's business premises.

[c] Subsequent Notices to Property Owner

A lienholder using this procedure must notify the owner of the property subject to the lien, by first class mail, of the completion of the work for which the lien is claimed [Civ. Code § 3052b(b)]. Further, not less than 30 days following the notice of completion of work, the lienholder must notify the property owner by first class mail that the property will be sold to satisfy the lien unless the charges are paid within 30 days following the mailing of the notice [Civ. Code § 3052b(d)].

[d] Storage Fees

If a property owner who has actually received a notice of completion of work [see Civ. Code § 3052b(b)] fails to pay the charges for which the lien is claimed for 30 days following receipt of the notice, the lienholder may charge $2 per day for storing the property subject to the lien. These charges also will be secured by the lien [Civ. Code § 3052b(c)].

[e] Sale of Property

The lienholder may sell the property subject to the lien at a public or bona fide private sale if all of the following have occurred [Civ. Code § 3052b(e)]:

- The lienholder has provided a notice of completion of work and a notice of sale [see [c], above].
- Not less than 30 days have elapsed since the mailing of the notice of sale.
- The property owner has not fully paid the original charges for which the lien is claimed plus any additional storage charges [see [d], above].

The lienholder may sell the property to satisfy the sum of the following: original charges; storage fees; all costs and expenses of the sale; and interest at the rate of 12 percent per annum from 30 days following receipt of the notice of completion of work or the date the obligations, costs, expenses, and interest were advanced, until repayment [Civ. Code § 3052b(e)].

[f] Right of Redemption

The property owner may redeem the property within 20 days following the sale, on payment of all charges, costs, expenses, and interest [Civ. Code § 3052b(f)].

[g] Proceeds of Sale

The proceeds of the sale must first be applied to the discharge of the lien, the costs of sale, and interest. Any remainder is paid to the former owner of the property [Civ. Code § 3052b(g)].

[h] Serviced Products of Nominal Value

This lien sale procedure is inapplicable to service dealers registered with the Bureau of Electronic and Appliance Repair [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 9800-9874; see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 9801(f) ("service dealer" defined)] if the dealer reasonably believes that the serviced product is of nominal value [Civ. Code § 3052.5(a)]. For discussion of service dealer's liens, see § 102A.324.

Summary of Statutory Lien Sale Procedure for Charges Not Exceeding $150, and Owner's Declaration

SUMMARY OF STATUTORY LIEN PROVISIONS

This notice is being provided to you at the time that you and the undersigned are entering into the following transaction: [describe underlying transaction from which lien may arise]. The undersigned is providing you with this notice because _____ [he or she or it] wishes to preserve the right to use the lien sale procedure set forth in Civil Code Section 3052b. That procedure may be used to enforce a lien for services on personal property, when the lien covers charges that do not exceed $150, exclusive of additional charges and interest authorized by Section 3052b. Under Section 3052b, the undersigned must do the following:

- (1) Provide you with this written summary of the lien provisions of Civil Code Section 3052b.
- (2) Obtain your address and telephone number, together with a written declaration signed by you stating that you have read and understand this summary, at the time of entering into the transaction from which the lien may arise.
- (3) Post, at the time of the transaction from which the lien may arise, a notice that fully and fairly informs the public of the substance of Civil Code Section 3052b. The undersigned must post this notice in a location clearly visible to the public in the business premises of the undersigned.
- (4) Notify you by first class mail of the completion of the work for which the lien is claimed.
- (5) Not less than 30 days following the notice of completion of the work, notify you by first class mail that the property will be sold to satisfy the lien unless the charges are paid within 30 days following the mailing of the notice.

If you actually receive the notice of completion of work from us and fail to pay the charges for which the lien is claimed for 30 days following receipt of the notice, the undersigned may charge $2 per day for storing the property subject to the lien. Those charges will also be secured by the lien.

The undersigned may sell the property subject to the lien at a public or bona fide private sale if all of the following have occurred:

- (1) The undersigned has complied with all the above notice provisions.
- (2) Not less than 30 days have elapsed since the mailing of the notice of sale.
- (3) You have not fully paid the original charges for which the lien is claimed plus any additional storage charges.

The undersigned may sell the property to satisfy the sum of the following: the original charges; storage fees; all costs and expenses of the sale; and interest at the rate of 12 percent per annum from 30 days following your receipt of the notice of completion of work or the date the obligations, costs, expenses, and interest were advanced, until repayment.

You may redeem the property within 20 days following the sale, on payment of all charges, costs, expenses, and interest.

The proceeds of the sale will first be applied to the discharge of the lien, the costs of sale, and interest. The remainder, if any, will be paid to you.

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a summary of the lien sale provisions of Civ. Code § 3052b. This type of notice must be posted in the lienholder's business premises if the lienholder wishes to preserve the right to use the alternative lien sale procedure of Civ. Code § 3052b [see § 102A.322[1]].

[b] Notice Requirements

The notice must [Civ. Code § 3052b(a)(3)]:

- Fully and fairly inform the public of the substance of Civ. Code § 3052b;
- Be posted in a location clearly visible to the public in the lienholder's business premises; and
- Be in place at the time the lienholder enters into the transaction from which the lien may arise.

Posted Summary of Statutory Lien sale Procedure for Charges Not Exceeding $150

NOTICE OF RIGHT TO SATISFY LIEN BY SALE OF PROPERTY

Any property left for service with this establishment may be sold at a lien sale, after proper notice, if the charges for the service are not paid and do not exceed $150. Before such a sale may be conducted, the undersigned must satisfy the following requirements:

- (1) Provide the property owner with an accurate written summary of the lien provisions of Civil Code Section 3052b.
- (2) Obtain the address and telephone number of the property owner, together with a written declaration signed by the property owner stating that he or she has read and understands the summary, at the time of entering into the underlying transaction from which the lien may arise.
- (3) Post, at the time of the transaction from which the lien may arise, this notice that fully and fairly informs the public of the substance of Civil Code Section 3052b. The undersigned must post this notice in a location clearly visible to the public in the business premises of the undersigned.
- (4) Notify the property owner by first class mail of the completion of the work for which the lien is claimed.
- (5) Not less than 30 days following the notice of completion of the work, notify the property owner by first class mail that the property will be sold to satisfy the lien unless the charges are paid within 30 days following the mailing of the notice.

If the property owner actually receives the notice of completion from the undersigned and fails to pay the charges for which the lien is claimed for 30 days following receipt of the notice, the undersigned may charge $2 per day for storing the property subject to the lien. Those charges will also be secured by the lien.

The undersigned may sell the property subject to the lien at a public or bona fide private sale if all of the following have occurred:

- (1) The undersigned has complied with all the above notice provisions.
- (2) Not less than 30 days have elapsed since the mailing of the notice of sale.
- (3) The property owner has not fully paid the original charges for which the lien is claimed plus any additional storage charges.

The undersigned may sell the property to satisfy the sum of the following: the original charges; storage fees; all costs and expenses of the sale; and interest at the rate of 12 percent per annum from 30 days following the property owner's receipt of the notice of completion of work or the date the obligations, costs, expenses, and interest were advanced, until repayment. The proceeds of the sale will first be applied to the discharge of the lien, the costs of sale, and interest. The remainder, if any, will be paid to the property owner. The property owner may redeem the property within 20 days following the sale, on payment of all charges, costs, expenses, and interest.

32-102A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102A.324

§ 102A.324 Notice of Service Dealer's Intent to Dispose of Serviced Product of Nominal Value

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form consists of three alternative versions of the notice a service dealer must use to inform the owner of a product serviced by the dealer that the dealer intends to dispose of the product if the owner does not claim it within a certain period [for discussion of the uses of these alternative notices, see [d], below]. A service dealer registered with the Bureau of Electronic and Appliance Repair [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 9800-9874; see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 9801(f) ("service dealer" defined)] may sell or dispose of serviced products against which the dealer has acquired a lien [see Civ. Code § 3051; see also § 102A.320[1]] if the dealer reasonably believes the product to be of nominal value [Civ. Code § 3052.5(a); see [c], below].

[b] "Owner" Defined

For these purposes, "owner" means the person or agent who authorizes the original service or repair, or who delivers the product to the service dealer [Civ. Code § 3052.5(c)].

[c] "Nominal Value" Defined

A serviced product is of nominal value if (1) it is not readily salable for more than the legitimate charges against it, and (2) either the original retail value was under $200 and the product is over three years old, or the original retail value was over $200 and the product is over six years old. A service dealer may use any available materials or information, including industry publications, code dates, sales records, or receipts, to assist in determining value and age of the serviced product [Civ. Code § 3052.5(a)].

[d] Manner of Notice

The service dealer must give the product owner notice by one of three statutory methods before disposing of the product [see Civ. Code § 3052.5(b)]. Under the first method of notice [see first alternative in [2], below], the dealer must mail a statutory notice to the owner of the property, by certified mail, return receipt requested, following completion of the work on the serviced product. The dealer may dispose of the product 90 days after the date of deliverance evidenced by the signature in the returned receipt [Civ. Code § 3052.5(b)(1)].

Under the second method of notice [see second alternative in [2], below], the dealer may publish public notice of the intended sale in a newspaper of general circulation. The notice must contain (1) a description of the serviced product, (2) the name of the owner of the serviced product, (3) the time by which the product may be redeemed, and (4) the place where the property may be redeemed [Civ. Code § 3052.5(b)(2)]. The notice must be published a minimum of five times. The dealer may dispose of the product 90 days after the last date of publication [Civ. Code § 3052.5(b)(2)].

Under the third method of notice [see third alternative in [2], below], the dealer may provide the owner of the product with a copy of a statutory notice on receipt of the product to be serviced. The notice must be written in at least 10-point bold type, and must be signed, addressed, and dated by the owner of the product. A copy must be retained by both the owner and the service dealer. At the completion of service, the service dealer must send by first-class mail a completed copy of the notice to the owner at the address given on the notice form. The serviced product may be disposed of 90 days after the date of mailing [Civ. Code § 3052.5(b)(3)].

D. Liens for Services Performed on Personal Property

32-102A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102A.325

§ 102A.325 Notice of Lien on Articles of Clothing or Household Goods

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice of lien sale of certain articles of clothing or household goods that have been deposited with a cleaning or renovating establishment. It may be given if (1) the articles or goods have been left with the establishment longer than 90 days, or (2) the articles or goods have been placed in storage and applicable charges have not been paid for at least 12 months [see Civ. Code § 3066(a), (b); see also [b], below]. This form should be used to give the owner notice that the articles or goods have remained beyond the statutory period, and that the establishment intends to sell them [see Civ. Code § 3066(a), (b); see also [d], below].

To take advantage of these sale provisions, the establishment must also post a statutory notice in its office relating to the power of sale [Civ. Code § 3066(e)]. For the statutory notice, see § 102A.326.

[b] Grounds for Sale

Any garments, clothing, wearing apparel, or household goods remaining in the possession of a person, firm, partnership, or corporation, on which cleaning, pressing, glazing, washing, altering, or repairing has been performed, or on which materials or supplies have been used or furnished, for a period of 90 days or more after the completion of the work, may be sold to pay the reasonable or agreed charges and costs of notifying the owner or owners [Civ. Code § 3066(a)].

All garments, clothing, wearing apparel, or household goods that have been placed in storage, or that have been placed in storage by agreement after the performance of cleaning or repair services [see Civ. Code § 3066(a)], and that remain in the possession of a person, firm, partnership, or corporation without the reasonable or agreed charges having been paid for 12 months, may be sold to pay the charges [Civ. Code § 3066(b)].

[c] Storage and Warehouses Excepted

These sale provisions do not apply to property that is to be placed in storage after cleaning, pressing, glazing, washing, altering, or repairing is performed [Civ. Code § 3066(a); see [b], above]. In addition, these provisions do not apply to persons, firms, partnerships, or corporations operating as warehouses or warehousemen [Civ. Code § 3066(b); see Com. Code § 7102(a)(13) ("warehouse" defined)].

[d] Manner of Notice

Before the articles or goods can be sold, the establishment must notify the owner of the articles or goods of the time and place of sale [see Civ. Code § 3066(ac)]. The notice must be given at least 30 days before the date of sale by posting or mailing a registered letter that is addressed to the owner at the address given to the establishment at the time of the delivery of the articles or goods. A return address must be marked on the envelope. The cost of posting or mailing the letter may be added to the charges. If the owner's address is unknown, notice may be given by posting the notice of sale for 30 days at a prominent place in the receiving office of the establishment required to give notice [Civ. Code § 3066(c)].

[e] Proceeds of Sale

From the proceeds of sale, the establishment to whom the charges are payable must deduct the charges due plus the cost of notifying the owner, and must hold the overplus, if any, subject to the order of the owner. The establishment must immediately mail to the owner at his or her address, if known, a notice of the sale and of the amount of the overplus, if any, due the owner. At any time within 12 months, on demand by the owner, the establishment must pay the sums or overplus to the owner [Civ. Code § 3066(d)].

D. Liens for Services Performed on Personal Property

32-102A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102A.327

§ 102A.327 Notice of Jeweler's Lien

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice for the sale of a watch, clock, or jewelry to satisfy a jeweler's lien for work performed on the article. Every person, firm, or corporation performing work on a watch, clock, or jewelry for a price has a lien on the article for the amount due for work plus the value or agreed price, if any, of all materials furnished in connection with the work. If any account for work done or materials furnished remains unpaid for one year after completing the work, the lienholder may, after 30 days' notice [see [b], below], sell the article at public or bona fide private sale to satisfy the account [Civ. Code § 3052a].

The lienholder may waive this lien and sue on the amount due [Civ. Code § 3052a].

[b] Notice Requirements

To take advantage of the jeweler's lien, the lienholder must first provide written notice to the owner of the property. The notice must precede the sale by 30 days, and must specify the amount due and inform the owner that payment within 30 days will entitle him or her to redeem the property. The notice may be served by registered mail with return receipt requested or sent to the owner's last known address. If the owner or the address is unknown, the notice may be posted in two public places in the town or city where the property is located [Civ. Code § 3052a].

[c] Proceeds of Sale

The proceeds of the sale must first be applied to the expenses of the sale. Next, the indebtedness secured by the lien must be liquidated. Finally, any remaining proceeds must be paid to the owner [Civ. Code § 3052a].

§ 102A.340 Notice to Shipper of Carrier's Lien

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a notice to a shipper of a carrier's lien. A carrier has a lien on freight in its possession for the following: the total amount owed the carrier by the shipper for freightage; charges for services; and advances due on freight previously delivered on the shipper's promise to pay the freightage, charges, and advances [Civ. Code § 3051.5(a); see Civ. Code § 3051.5(b)(2) (lien does not apply to perishable goods)].

The lien will not arise, however, unless the carrier has provided the shipper with written notification (this form) that failure to pay billed charges may result in a lien on future shipments, including the cost of storage and appropriate security for the subsequent shipment held due to the carrier's lien [Civ. Code § 3051.5(b)(1)]. Consequently, this form should be presented to the shipper at the time the carrier and the shipper enter into the underlying agreement.

For further discussion of the carrier's lien and a notice of a sale to satisfy a carrier's lien [see Civ. Code § 3051.5(d)], see § 102A.341.

32-102A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102A.341

§ 102A.341 Notice of Sale to Satisfy Carrier's Lien

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice of a sale to satisfy a carrier's lien [for a description of a carrier's lien, see § 102A.340[1]]. At least 10 days before any sale of the property subject to the lien, the lienholder must notify the shipper, the consignee of the property, and each secured party having a perfected security interest in the property of the date, time, and place of the intended sale (this form). The notice must include the name of the shipper, the name of the consignee, and a description of the property to be sold [Civ. Code § 3051.5(d)].

In addition to providing this notice, the lienholder must have provided the shipper with a notice regarding carrier's liens [see Civ. Code § 3051.5(b)(1); see also § 102A.340]. The lienholder must also take the following steps:

- Except as otherwise provided in Civ. Code § 3051.5, comply with the notice and sale provisions of Civ. Code § 3052, which normally govern the enforcement of a lien for services performed on personal property [Civ. Code § 3051.5(c); see [b], below].
- Satisfy minimum bid requirements, to the extent applicable [see Civ. Code § 3051.5(e); see also [d], below].
- Apply the proceeds in the order specified by statute [see Civ. Code § 3051.5(e); see also [e], below].

[b] Lien Sale Notice Requirements

A person entitled to a carrier's lien who is not paid the amount secured by the lien within 10 days after the amount becomes due may sell the property to which the lien applies at public auction [Civ. Code § 3051.5(c); see Civ. Code § 3052 (enforcement by sale); see also § 102A.321 (lien sale procedure)]. The lienholder must give notice of the sale by publication or by posting. Published notice must be given at least 10 but not more than 20 days before the sale by advertising in a newspaper published in the county in which the property is situated. If no newspaper is published in that county, notice must be given by posting the notice in three of the most public places in the town and at the place where the property is to be sold for 10 days before the date of sale [Civ. Code § 3052].

[c] Timing of Sale

A sale of property subject to a carrier's lien may not take place for at least 35 days from the date that possession of the property is delivered to the carrier. This 35-day period and the notice period provided by Civ. Code § 3052 [see [b], above] may run concurrently [Civ. Code § 3051.5(d)].

[d] Perfected Security Interests and Minimum Bid

Any perfected security interest in the property is prior to a carrier's lien. Property cannot be sold if the amount bid is not at least equal to the total amount of all outstanding obligations secured by a perfected security interest in the property. If the minimum bid required for the sale is not received, the lienholder must promptly release the property to the legal owner on payment of the current amount for freightage, charges for services, and advances due for shipment of that property, not including amounts due on freight previously delivered [Civ. Code § 3051.5(e)].

[e] Application of Proceeds

The proceeds of the sale of property must be applied in the following order [Civ. Code § 3051.5(e)]:

- First, to secured parties having a perfected security interest, in the amounts to which they are respectively entitled.
- Second, to the discharge of the carrier's lien, the costs of storage, appropriate security, and the sale.
- The remainder, if any, to the legal owner of the property.

If the lienholder violates any of the procedures regarding distribution of the property or proceeds, he or she is liable to any secured party for all damages sustained by the secured party as a result of the violation, plus all expenses reasonably and necessarily incurred in the enforcement of the secured party's rights, including reasonable attorneys' fees and costs of suit [Civ. Code § 3051.5(e)].

[f] Right of Redemption

Within 20 days after the sale of property in which there are no perfected security interests [see Civ. Code § 3051.5(e)], the legal owner may redeem property sold to satisfy the lien by paying (1) the amount of the lien, (2) all costs and expenses of sale, and (3) interest on the foregoing amounts at a rate of 12 percent from the due date, or the date when the costs and expenses were advanced, until the repayment [Civ. Code §§ 3051.5(c), 3052].

[g] Shipper's Liability

A shipper is liable to the consignee for any damage that results from the failure of the property to reach the consignee as scheduled due to the carrier's proper exercise of its lien rights [Civ. Code § 3051.5(f); see Com. Code § 2713 (measure of damages)].

32-102A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102A.342

§ 102A.342 Preliminary Notice of Self-Service Storage Facility Lien

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a preliminary notice of a lien held by a self-service storage facility on personal property located in the facility. The owner of the facility may send this statutory form to the "occupant" of a space in the facility if any part of the rent or charges due from the occupant remains unpaid for 14 consecutive days [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21703; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21701(c) ("occupant" defined)]. If the occupant does not comply with the requirements described in the notice, the owner may eventually terminate the occupant's right to use the space, impose a lien on the property stored in the space, and sell the property to satisfy the lien [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21705; see also [c]-[d], below; see also § 102A.343 (notice of lien sale)].

The notice must be sent by certified mail, postage prepaid, or by regular first-class mail if the owner obtains a certificate of mailing indicating the date the notice was mailed [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21703]. Although certified mail is more expensive, it may be more advantageous to the owner to use this method because the owner's right to remove property from the space accrues more quickly when certified mail is used [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21705(a), (b), discussed in [d], below].

For discussion of the alternative procedures that must be followed for the enforcement of a self-service storage facility lien on a vehicle or vessel subject to registration or identification under the Vehicle Code, see [e], below.

[b] Grounds for Lien

Under the California Self-Service Storage Facility Act [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 21700-21716], the owner of a self-service storage facility and his or her heirs, executors, administrators, successors, and assigns have a lien on all personal property located at the self-service storage facility for rent, labor, late-payment fee, or other charges, present or future, incurred pursuant to the rental agreement. The lien is also for expenses necessary for the preservation, sale, or disposition of the stored personal property [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21702; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21701 (definitions)].

[c] Contents of Preliminary Notice

When any part of the rent or other charges due from an occupant remains unpaid for 14 consecutive days, the owner may terminate the right of the occupant to use the storage space at a self-service storage facility by sending a notice (this form) to the occupant's last known address and to the alternative address in the rental agreement [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21703; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21712(b) (alternate address)].

The notice must contain all of the following:

- An itemized statement of the owner's claim showing the sums due at the time of the notice and the date the sums became due [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21703(a)].
- A statement that the occupant's right to use the storage space will terminate on a specified date (not less than 14 days after the mailing of the notice) unless all sums due are paid by the occupant before the specified date [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21703(b)].
- A notice that the occupant may be denied access to the storage space after the termination date if the sums are not paid, and that an owner's lien may be imposed [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21703(c)].
- The name, street address, and telephone number of the owner, or his or her designated agent, whom the occupant may contact to respond to the notice [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21703(d)].

This form, which is in substantially the form prescribed by Bus. & Prof. Code § 21704, satisfies all of these requirements [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 21703, 21704].

[d] Notice of Lien Sale

If a preliminary lien notice [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21703] has been sent, and the total sum due has not been paid as of the date specified in the preliminary lien notice as the termination date, a lien attaches as of that date [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21705(a), (b)]. The owner may then enter the space and deny the occupant access to it [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21705(a)(1), (2), (b)]. If the preliminary lien notice was sent by certified mail and the total sum due was not paid as of the termination date, the owner may also remove any property found in the space to a place of safe keeping [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21705(a)(3)]. If the preliminary lien notice was sent by regular first class mail with a certificate of mailing, the owner still may enter the space and deny the occupant access to it if the total sum due has not been paid as of the termination date, but may not remove the occupant's property until at least 14 days after the termination date, during which time the occupant may regain full use of the space by paying the full lien amount [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21705(b)]. In either case, the owner must then send to the occupant's last known address and to the alternate address in the rental agreement [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21712(b)] a notice of lien sale and a blank declaration in opposition to the lien sale [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21705(c)]. For discussion of the lien sale process, a notice of lien sale form, and a declaration form, see § 102A.343.

[e] Vehicle and Vessel Liens

A lien on a vehicle or vessel subject to registration or identification under the Vehicle Code that has attached and is set forth in the documents of title to the vehicle or vessel has priority over these self-service storage facility liens [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21702.5(a)]. Any self-service storage facility lien on a vehicle or vessel subject to registration or identification under the Vehicle Code will be enforced under Civ. Code § 3071 for vehicles [see § 102A.220; see also Civ. Code §§ 3067-3074 (liens on vehicles)] or under Harb. & Nav. Code § 503 for vessels [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21702.5(b); see § 102A.290; see also Harb. & Nav. Code §§ 500-509 (liens on vessels)].

A self-service storage facility lien on a vehicle or vessel subject to registration or identification under the Vehicle Code does not include charges of rent, labor, or other services incurred pursuant to the rental agreement, accruing more than 60 days after the date the self-service storage facility lien attaches [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21705], and before application is made for authorization to conduct the lien sale pursuant to Civ. Code § 3071 or Harb. & Nav. Code § 503 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21702.5(c)]. Proceeds from a lien sale must be disposed of in accordance with Civ. Code § 3073 for vehicles or Harb. & Nav. Code § 507.5 for vessels [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21702.5(d)].

32-102A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102A.343

§ 102A.343 Notice of Self-Service Storage Facility Lien Sale and Declaration in Opposition to Lien Sale

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice of lien sale that must be sent by the owner of a self-service storage facility to the occupant of a storage space before a lien sale can be held for nonpayment of sums due. This form also contains the statutory declaration in opposition to lien sale, which the owner must provide to the occupant with the notice of lien sale. Before sending this form, the owner must have sent a preliminary notice of the lien [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 21703, 21705; see also § 102A.342].

[b] Attachment of Lien

If a preliminary lien notice [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21703; see also § 102A.342] has been sent, and the total sum due has not been paid as of the date specified in the preliminary lien notice as the termination date, a lien attaches as of that date [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21705(a), (b)]. The owner may then enter the space and deny the occupant access to it [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21705(a)(1), (2), (b)]. If the preliminary lien notice was sent by certified mail and the total sum due was not paid as of the termination date, the owner may also remove any property found in the space to a place of safe keeping [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21705(a)(3)]. If the preliminary lien notice was sent by regular first class mail with a certificate of mailing, the owner still may enter the space and deny the occupant access to it if the total sum due has not been paid as of the termination date, but may not remove the occupant's property until at least 14 days after the termination date, during which time the occupant may regain full use of the space by paying the full lien amount [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21705(b)].

[c] Contents of Notice of Lien Sale

After attachment of the lien, the owner must send to the occupant's last known address and to the alternate address in the rental agreement form [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21712(b)], by certified mail, postage prepaid, a notice of lien sale and a blank declaration in opposition to the lien sale [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21705(c)].

The notice of lien sale must state all of the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21705(c)(1)]:

- That the occupant's right to use the storage space has terminated and that the occupant no longer has access to the stored property.
- That the stored property is subject to a lien, and the amount of the lien.
- That the property will be sold to satisfy the lien after a specified date that is not less than 14 days from the date of mailing the notice, unless the amount of the lien is paid or the occupant executes, under penalty of perjury, a declaration in opposition to the lien sale, and returns the declaration by certified mail. If the preliminary lien notice was sent by regular mail with a certificate of mailing, the notice of lien sale must include a statement that the occupant may regain full use of the space by paying the full lien amount prior to the date specified as the termination date.
- That any excess proceeds of the sale over the lien amount and costs of sale will be retained by the owner and may be reclaimed by the occupant, or claimed by another person, at any time for a period of one year from the sale, and that after that time the proceeds will escheat to the county.

[d] Declaration in Opposition to Lien Sale

The owner of the self-service storage facility must include with the notice of lien sale a blank declaration in opposition to the lien sale [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21705(c)(2)]. If a declaration in opposition to the lien sale, executed under penalty of perjury, is not received before the date of sale set forth in the notice of lien sale, the owner may sell the property [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21706].

If a declaration in opposition to the lien sale is received before the date set forth in the notice of lien sale, the owner may enforce the lien by filing a verified complaint and selling the property after judgment in the owner's favor [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21710]. For a complaint to enforce a self-service storage facility lien, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 517, Self-Service Storage Facilities (Matthew Bender).

[e] Advertisement of Lien Sale

After the expiration of the time given in the notice of lien sale, an advertisement of the sale must be published once a week for two weeks consecutively in a newspaper of general circulation published in the judicial district where the sale is to be held. If there is no newspaper of general circulation published in the judicial district where the sale is to be held, the advertisement must be posted at least ten days before the sale in not fewer than six conspicuous places in the neighborhood of the proposed sale. The advertisement must include (1) a general description of the goods, (2) the name of the person on whose account they are being stored, (3) the space number of the occupant, and (4) the name and location of the storage facility [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21707(a)].

[f] Security Interests

Any person who has a perfected security interest [see Com. Code §§ 9308-9314] may claim any personal property subject to the security interest and subject to a self-service storage facility lien by paying the total amount due for storage of the property, as specified on the preliminary lien notice. Payment may be accepted only if no declaration of opposition to the lien sale is executed and returned by the occupant. On payment of the total amount due, the owner must deliver possession of the particular property subject to the security interest to the person who paid the total amount due. The owner is not liable to any person for any action taken concerning security interests if he or she has fully complied with the requirements relating to preliminary notice, notice of lien sale, and declaration in opposition to lien sale [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21708; see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 21704 (preliminary lien notice), 21705 (notice of lien sale and declaration in opposition to lien sale)].

[g] Pre-Sale Redemption

Prior to the lien sale, any person claiming a right to the goods may pay the amount necessary to satisfy the lien and the reasonable expenses incurred for particular actions taken pursuant to the self-service storage facility lien. If this occurs, the goods must not be sold, but must be retained by the owner in a safe place pending a court order directing a particular disposition of the property [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21709].

[h] Manner of Lien Sale

The sale must be conducted in a commercially reasonable manner. After deducting the amount of the lien and costs of sale, the owner must retain any excess proceeds of the sale on the occupant's behalf. The occupant, or any other person having a court order or other judicial process against the property, may claim the excess proceeds, or a portion sufficient to satisfy the particular claim, at any time within one year of the date of sale. Thereafter, the owner must pay any remaining excess proceeds to the treasury of the county in which the sale was held [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21707(b)].

[i] Rights of Good Faith Purchaser

A purchaser in good faith of goods sold to enforce a lien or a judgment entered on the lien in favor of the owner of goods stored at a self-service storage facility takes the goods free of any rights of persons against whom the lien was claimed, despite noncompliance by the owner of the storage facility with the lien procedure requirements [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21711].

32-102A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102A.344

§ 102A.344 Notice to Potentially Liable Party of Hospital Lien on Damages Recovered by Injured Person

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice informing potentially liable parties and their insurers that a hospital lien exists on damages recovered from them by an injured person, and that they should pay the damages to the hospital rather than to the injured person. Hospitals should send this form to all known potentially liable parties and their liability insurance carriers to give them notice that the hospital is claiming compensation for the reasonable and necessary charges of the hospital or any hospital-affiliated health facility [see Health & Safety Code § 1250] for treatment, care, and maintenance of the injured person [Civ. Code §§ 3045.1, 3045.3].

[b] Nature of Hospital Lien

Every person, partnership, association, corporation, public entity, or other institution or body maintaining a hospital licensed under the laws of California that furnishes emergency and ongoing medical or other services to any person injured because of an accident or wrongful act outside the scope of workers' compensation laws [see Lab. Code §§ 3201 et seq., 6100 et seq.] has a lien on damages if the injured person asserts or maintains a claim against another for damages because of his or her injuries. The lien is on damages recovered, or to be recovered, by the injured person or by his or her heirs or personal representative in case of death, for the amount of the reasonable and necessary charges of the hospital or any hospital-affiliated health facility [see Health & Safety Code § 1250] for the treatment, care, and maintenance of the person [Civ. Code § 3045.1]. The lien applies whether damages are recovered, or are to be recovered, by judgment, settlement, or compromise [Civ. Code § 3045.2].

In Parnell v. Adventist Health System/West [Parnell v. Adventist Health System/West (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 595, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 569, 109 P.3d 69] , a hospital received payment from a patient and his health insurer and agreed to accept that payment as "payment in full" for its services. Nonetheless, after the patient brought a tort claim against the driver causing his accident, the hospital filed a notice of lien under the Hospital Lien Act (HLA) [Civ. Code § 3045.1 et seq.] against any settlement or judgement in the tort action, seeking to recover the difference between the "actual" cost of the medical services provided and the negotiated amount received by the hospital under its provider agreement. The California Supreme Court held that a lien under the HLA requires the existence of an underlying debt owed by the patient to the hospital and that, absent such a debt, no lien may attach [Parnell v. Adventist Health System/West (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 595, 598, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 569, 109 P.3d 69 (disapproving Swanson v. St. John's Regional Medical Center (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 245, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 325)].

The HLA does not state that a hospital lien takes priority over competing liens. On the contrary, the HLA expressly recognizes that other liens may take priority; it provides that any entity which makes payment to the injured person must first pay the hospital as much of its reasonable costs as can be satisfied out of 50 percent of the proceeds of a judgment or settlement "after paying any prior liens" [Civ. Code § 3045.4]. By failing to afford hospital liens first priority and by expressly acknowledging that other liens may take priority over hospital liens, the Legislature expressed its intent to apply the time-based priority (that is, the lien first-in-time has priority) set forth in Civ. Code § 2897 to liens arising under the HLA [County of San Bernardino v. Calderon (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 1103, 1113, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 333] .

A hospital lien does not apply to any claim or cause of action against a common carrier subject to the jurisdiction of the Public Utilities Commission or the Interstate Commerce Commission (now the Surface Transportation Board)[Civ. Code § 3045.6].

[c] Who Must Receive Notice

For the lien to be effective, a written notice of the lien (this form) must be delivered or sent by registered mail, return receipt requested and postage prepaid, to each person, firm, or corporation known to the hospital and alleged to be liable to the injured person for the injuries sustained. The notice must be delivered or mailed before the payment of any moneys to the injured person or his or her attorney or legal representative as compensation for the injuries [Civ. Code § 3045.3]. The Legislature intended that a lien under the Hospital Lien Act [Civ. Code § 3045.1 et seq.] comes into existence on the giving of the notice provided for in Civ. Code § 3045.3 [County of San Bernardino v. Calderon (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 1103, 1109, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 333] .

In addition, a copy of the notice must be delivered or sent by registered mail, return receipt requested and postage prepaid, to any insurance carrier known to the hospital that has insured the person, firm, or corporation alleged to be liable to the injured person against the liability. The person, firm, or corporation alleged to be liable to the injured person must, on request of the hospital, disclose to the hospital the name of its liability insurance carrier [Civ. Code § 3045.3].

The class of persons who are "alleged to be liable to the injured person for the injuries received" [Civ. Code § 3045.3] would not include the injured person's insurer that provided uninsured-motorist coverage (including underinsured-motorist coverage), even though the insurer could resist a claim under such coverage by asserting any defense that the tortfeasor could assert. The possibility that the uninsured-motorist insurer could stand in the tortfeasor's place for the limited purpose of resisting a claim by its own insured cannot make the Hospital Lien Act applicable to that insurer, as though the claim for uninsured-motorist benefits were equivalent to a claim for damages against the tortfeasor. For the same reason, that insurer is not in the class of "insurance carrier[s that have] ... insured the person, firm, or corporation alleged to be liable to the injured person against the liability" [Civ. Code § 3045.3]. A notice delivered or mailed to that insurer would be ineffectual under the Act, since the hospital can have no lien on the injured person's uninsured-motorist benefits [Weston Reid, LLC v. American Ins. Group, Inc. (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 940, 949-950, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 748] .

[d] Contents of Notice

The notice to the allegedly liable parties and liability insurance carriers must contain all of the following [Civ. Code §

3045.3]:

- The name and address of the injured person.
- The date of the accident.
- The name and location of the hospital.
- The amount claimed as reasonable and necessary charges.
- The name of each person, firm, or corporation known to the hospital and alleged to be liable to the injured person for the injuries received.

[e] Liability for Payment of Lien Claim

After receipt of a notice of a hospital lien, any person, firm, corporation, or insurance carrier making any payment to the injured person or to his or her attorney, heirs, or legal representative for the injuries sustained, without paying to the hospital the amount of its lien, or as much of the lien amount as can be satisfied out of 50 percent of the money due under a final judgment, compromise, or settlement agreement after paying any prior lien, is liable to the hospital for the amount of its lien [Civ. Code § 3045.4]. If a hospital is paid at the time the judgment, compromise, or settlement is disbursed, it is entitled to receive as much of its lien as can be satisfied out of 50 percent of the recovery [Civ. Code §§ 3045.2, 3045.4]. Even if the hospital is not paid at the time the patient's recovery against the third person's insurer is disbursed, however, the insurer or other payer remains liable to the hospital for only that amount, not the full amount of the lien [Mercy Hosp. v. Farmers (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 213, 223, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 638, 932 P.2d 210] . Further, because Civ. Code § 3045.4 provides that the third party "shall be liable to the [health care provider] for the amount of its lien claimed in the notice which the hospital was entitled to receive as payment for the medical care and services rendered to the injured person," the amount that a hospital is entitled to receive as payment necessarily turns on any agreement it has with the injured person or the injured person's insurer [Nishihama v. City & County of San Francisco (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 298, 307-308, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 861 (hospital's lien rights did not extend beyond amount it agreed to receive from insurance company as payment in full for services provided to plaintiff; therefore, hospital had no lien rights in the damages awarded to plaintiff); accord McMeans v. Scripps Health, Inc. (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 507, 515-516, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 143 (citing Nishihama)].

Within one year after the date of payment to the injured person or to his or her heirs, attorney, or legal representative, the hospital may enforce its lien by filing an action against anyone making the payment, and to whom the required notice was given [Civ. Code § 3045.5].

32-102A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102A.345

§ 102A.345 Notice to Customer by Bank or Savings and Loan Association of Exercise of Setoff Against Customer's Account

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice of setoff that a bank or savings and loan association must send to a customer if a setoff against the customer's deposit account is exercised to satisfy the financial institution's lien. The form contains a response form that the bank or savings and loan association must include to allow the customer to challenge the setoff [see Civ. Code § 3054(a); Fin. Code §§ 864 (banks), 6660 (savings and loan associations)].

[b] Grounds for Lien

A bank or savings and loan association has a general lien, dependent on possession, on all property in its hands belonging to a customer, for the balance due the bank or savings and loan association from the customer in the course of business [Civ. Code § 3054(a)]. The exercise of a lien on deposit accounts must comply with setoff requirements [Civ. Code § 3054(b); see Fin. Code §§ 864 (banks), 6660 (savings and loan associations)].

[c] Distinction Between Banker's Lien and Right of Setoff

The so-called "banker's lien" on the depositor's account or funds [see Civ. Code § 3054] is not a lien in the strict technical sense, because the bank is the owner of the funds and the debtor of the depositor, and cannot have a lien on its own property. The right of the bank to charge the depositor's fund with matured indebtedness is, rather, a right of setoff, based on general principles of equity [Kruger v. Wells Fargo Bank (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 352, 357, 113 Cal. Rptr. 449, 521 P.2d 441] .

[d] Limitations on Use of Setoff

The bank's right of setoff is limited by statute in the case of certain consumer obligations. Specifically, a bank or savings and loan association is limited in exercising any setoff for a debt claimed to be owed to the institution by a customer in that the setoff cannot result in an aggregate balance of less than $1,000 for all demand deposit accounts maintained by a customer with the institution [Fin. Code §§ 864(b), 6660(b)]. Fin. Code § 864 defines a "debt" for this purpose as an interest-bearing obligation or an obligation which by its terms is payable in installments, which has not been reduced to judgment, arising from an extension of credit to a natural person primarily for personal, family, or household purposes [see Fin. Code § 864(a)(2)].

With respect to a credit card, an "extension of credit" occurs when the bank issues the card and it is at that point that the determination is made whether the credit is primarily for personal, family, or household purposes. For example, in a case in which a bank exercised a right of setoff for amounts due on a business credit card which had been used for personal expenditures, a California appellate court held that since the primary purpose of a business card was commercial, the bank could setoff the debts incurred in its use without compliance with Fin. Code § 864(b) [Martin v. Wells Fargo Bank (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 489, 499-500, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 653 (stating that cardholder may not apply for and receive business credit card, but then use it for personal purposes and expect to receive consumer protection)]. In addition, certain types of accounts are exempt from the right of setoff [Fin. Code §§ 864(c)(3), 6660(c)(3); see Code Civ. Proc. § 703.010 et seq.].

These limitations do not apply to a deposit account, other than a demand deposit account, in which the bank or savings and loan association has a security interest expressed by a written contract as collateral for the debt owing to the institution by the customer [Fin. Code §§ 864(e), 6660(e)]. In addition, these limitations do not apply when a customer has previously authorized the bank or savings and loan association in writing to periodically debit an account as the agreed method of payment of the debt [Fin. Code §§ 864(f), 6660(f)].

[e] Notice Requirements

A bank or savings and loan association must give a customer notice of the exercise of a right to setoff against the customer's deposit account not later than the day following the exercise. The notice must be delivered to the customer personally or sent by first-class mail, postage prepaid, to the address of the customer as shown on the records of the institution. The notice must be in at least 10-point type, and must contain all of the following [Fin. Code §§ 864(c), 6660(c)]:

- A statement indicating that the bank or savings and loan association has set off all or a portion of the debt against the customer's deposit account, identifying the account, and giving the respective balances before and after the setoff.
- A statement identifying the debt set off against the account and giving the respective balances due before and after the setoff.
- A statement that if the customer claims that the debt has been paid or is not now owing, or that the funds in the deposit account are expressly exempt [see Code Civ. Proc. § 703.010 et seq.] and are listed in the notice, the customer may execute and return the notice to the bank or savings and loan association by mail at the address shown or in person to the branch where the account is maintained not later than 20 days after the date of mailing or personal delivery.
- A statement indicating (1) that if the notice is executed and returned, the bank or savings and loan association may file an action in court to collect the debt, (2) that if a lawsuit is filed, the customer will be notified and have an opportunity to appear and defend, and (3) that if the bank is successful, the customer will be liable for court costs and attorneys' fees, if the debt provides for them.
- A response form in at least 10-point type, substantially in the form specified by statute and included in the following form. If the response form executed by the customer is received by the bank or savings and loan association not later than 20 days after the date of mailing or personal delivery of the written notice, the amount of setoff for any debt claimed to be owed to the institution and any service charges resulting from the setoff must be reversed and the amount must be credited to the customer's deposit account. For banks, this credit must occur not later than the end of the business day following receipt of the executed response form [Fin. Code § 864(d)]. For savings and loan associations, the credit must occur not later than the end of the third business day following receipt of the executed response form [Fin. Code § 6660(d)].

Fin. Code §§ 864 and 6660 do not specify what happens if the bank or savings and loan association fails to send the above notice, or if notice is not given within the one-day period specified by statute.

Scope

This chapter covers personal property transactions involving pawnbrokers, finance lenders, and secondhand goods dealers. The Legal Background covers the general uses of these transactions and the laws and regulations governing them. Required determinations and procedures are detailed in the Transaction Guide. The forms include forms and comments illustrating agreements, reports, and disclosure documents that comply with applicable laws and regulations.

Pledges of personal property as security for loans of money or goods are regulated by Division 9 of the Commercial Code when pawnbrokers or finance lenders are not involved in the transaction. Division 9 of the Commercial Code is covered in this chapter only to the extent that provisions of pawnbroker and finance lender agreements are regulated by the Code. For coverage of Division 9 of the Commercial Code, including pledges and related forms, see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions .

For discussion of commercial loans, see Ch. 43, Commercial Loans . For discussion of consumer installment loans, see Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Pawnbrokers

32-102B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102B.10

§ 102B.10 Definitions

A "pawnbroker" is any person engaged in the business of receiving goods, including motor vehicles, in pledge as security for a loan [Fin. Code § 21000]. The phrase "receiving goods as security for a loan" does not include a good faith purchase of goods [Fin. Code § 21000.7]. The term "pledged property" means property held as security for a loan, the title to which remains with the party pledging the property and has not passed to the pawnbroker as provided for under the Pawnbroker Law [Fin. Code § 21002(a); see Fin. Code § 21201]. "Vested property" is property the title to which has been transferred from the party pledging the property to the pawnbroker under the Pawnbroker Law [Fin. Code § 21002(b); see Fin. Code § 21201].

Because a person making a pledge of goods is usually the person seeking a loan secured by that pledge, the terms "pledgor" and "borrower" are used interchangeably in these materials covering pawnbrokers.

§ 102B.11 Governing Law

Transactions in which property is offered as security for a loan are generally regulated by the provisions of Division 9 of the Commercial Code [Com. Code § 9109(a)(1); see Com. Code § 9101 et seq.]. However, pawnbroker transactions are governed specifically by the provisions of the Pawnbroker Law [see Fin. Code § 21000 et seq.]. In the event of any conflict between the Code and the provisions of the Pawnbroker Law, the latter will prevail [Com. Code § 9201(b); see Fin. Code § 21000 et seq.].

The California Constitution regulates pawnbrokers to the extent that they are constitutionally permitted to charge usurious rates of interest [Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1; see Agapitov v. Lerner (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 830, 832, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 837 (Cal. Const., art. XV exempts only pawn transactions made within scope of pawnbroker license from provisions against usury)].

- Corporations organized for the purpose of securing credit from federal farm credit banks [see 12 U.S.C. §§ 2011, 2071, 2091; see also Ch. 48, Agricultural Financing].
- Any nonprofit cooperative corporation or association with or without capital stock, organized or existing under California laws governing agricultural cooperatives [see Food & Agric. Code § 54001 et seq.; see also Ch. 14A, Agricultural Nonprofit Cooperative Associations].
- Any person, corporation, association, syndicate, joint stock company, or partnership engaged exclusively in the business of marketing agricultural, horticultural, viticultural, dairy, livestock, poultry, or bee products on a cooperative, nonprofit basis [see also Ch. 14A, Agricultural Nonprofit Cooperative Associations ; Ch. 49, Agricultural Contracts].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Pawnbrokers

32-102B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102B.13

§ 102B.13 Licensing of Pawnbrokers

[1] Requirement of License

Pawnbrokers must be licensed as pawnbrokers in order to engage in that business [see Fin. Code § 21300(a)]. The holder of a pawnbroker license is not required to also hold a secondhand dealer's license [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21641, 21642] in order to engage in any transaction that would otherwise require the secondhand dealer's license. However, other than this license exception, a pawnbroker is subject to all other statutory requirements governing a secondhand dealer [Fin. Code § 21306; see § 102B.50 et seq.].

[2] Application for License

Subject to ultimate jurisdiction of the Department of Justice, the local chief of police, sheriff, or police commission must accept and process original and renewal license applications [see Fin. Code §§ 21300(a), 21301(a)]. A conviction for an attempt to receive stolen property or any other offense involving stolen property precludes original issuance of a license and may also result in forfeiture of a license [see Fin. Code §§ 21300(a), (b), 21301(b)(4)].

All applications for a license and license renewal must be on forms prescribed and provided by the Department of Justice [Fin. Code § 21300(a)]. As a condition of the original license issuance and license renewal, the applicant must file a pawnbroker's two-year nonrevokable surety bond [see Fin. Code § 21303(a)]. In order to be issued an original license, an applicant must also file a financial statement confirming the applicant has the minimum dollar amount of liquid assets required by statute [see Fin. Code § 21304(a)]. Persons holding a secondhand dealer's license and actively engaged as a pawnbroker on January 1, 1994 (effective date of licensure requirements) are exempt from the financial statement and liquid assets requirement [see Fin. Code § 21304(b)].

§ 102B.14 Regulation of Charges

[1] Exemption for Loans of $2,500 or More

Loans made for principal amounts of $2,500 or more are exempt from the statutory limits for rates and charges if made in good faith and not for the purpose of evading the provisions of the Pawnbroker Law [Fin. Code § 21051(a)].

In determining whether a loan is a loan of a good faith principal amount of $2,500 or more, the same principles apply as those applicable to consumer loans by finance lenders [Fin. Code § 21051(b); see former Fin. Code § 22054, now Fin. Code § 22251; see also § 102B.110]. These principles focus on determining whether the terms of the loan's repayment indicate an artificial inflation of the loan amount [see Fin. Code § 22251].

[2] Permissible Charges for Short-Term Loans

[a] Maximum Charges

Maximum charges for loans made for periods of 90 days or less are regulated by statute [Fin. Code § 21200.5]. The maximum permissible charge for loans for periods of not more than 30 days and for amounts less than $15 is $1 [Fin. Code § 21000.5(a)]. The maximum permissible charges for loans for periods of 90 days or less are as follows [Fin. Code § 21000.5(b)-(v)]:

Amount of Loan	Maximum Charge
$15-$19.99	$3.00
$20-$24.99	$4.00
$25-$39.99	$5.00
$40-$49.99	$6.00
$50-$64.99	$7.50
$65-$74.99	$8.50
$75-$99.99	$10.00

$100-$124.99	$12.50
$125-$149.99	$13.50
$150-$224.99	$15.00
$225-$324.99	$20.00
$325-$449.99	$25.00
$450-$599.99	$35.00
$600-$799.99	$45.00
$800-$999.99	$55.00
$1,000-$1,199.99	$75.00
$1,200-$1,499.99	$85.00
$1,500-$1,799.99	$100.00
$1,800-$2,099.99	$120.00

In addition to the above charges, a pawnbroker may charge a loan setup fee for each loan [see Fin. Code § 21200.1; [5], below].

If a loan for a period of 90 days or less is extended or renewed, the maximum charges permitted under Fin. Code § 21200 apply [Fin. Code § 21200.5(v); see [3], below].

[b] Posting Requirement

A schedule of maximum permissible charges must be posted in a place clearly visible to the general public [Fin. Code § 21200.5]. Additionally, the posted schedule of charges must contain a notice informing the borrower that if he or she desires, the pawnbroker will send a notice of termination of the redemption period by registered or certified mail with return receipt requested, upon prepayment of the mailing costs [Fin. Code § 21201; see § 102B.200[1][c][ii]].

[3] Permissible Charges for Loans With Terms Exceeding 90 Days

[a] Maximum Charges

Maximum charges for pawnbroker loans for terms in excess of 90 days are also regulated by statute [see Fin. Code § 21200]. Charges for the first 90 days of any loan made pursuant to the written contract required by Fin. Code § 21201 must be determined by applying the schedule of charges contained in Fin. Code § 21200.5 [Fin. Code § 21201.4; see [a], above; see also § 102B.200 (standard written contract)]. Charges for any period of time following the first 90 days of the loan must be determined by applying the schedule of maximum compensation contained in Fin. Code § 21200 [Fin. Code § 21201.4].

Those maximum charges are as follows [Fin. Code § 21200(a)]:

- 2.5 percent per month on that portion of the unpaid principal balance of any loan not in excess of $225;
- 2 percent per month on the unpaid principal balance in excess of $225 but not in excess of $900;

- 1.5 percent per month on that part of the unpaid principal balance in excess of $900 but not in excess of $1,650; and
- 1 percent per month on any unpaid principal balance in excess of $1,650.

A pawnbroker may charge $3 a month on any loan when the permitted monthly charge would otherwise be less than that minimum charge [Fin. Code § 21200(a)(5)], and one month's interest for any part of the month in which pawned property is redeemed [Fin. Code § 21200(b)].

[b] Posting Requirement

A schedule of the maximum permissible charges for long-term loans must be posted in a place clearly visible to the general public [Fin. Code § 21200.7].

[4] Handling and Storage Charges

In addition to other allowed charges, at the time property is redeemed, a pawnbroker may collect a handling and storage charge for certain articles pawned. Regardless of the duration of the loan, the maximum amount that the pawnbroker may charge for handling and storage is as follows [Fin. Code § 21200.6(a)]:

- $5 for any article that cannot be contained within one cubic foot;
- $10 for any article that cannot be contained within three cubic feet; and
- $20 for any article that cannot be contained within six cubic feet.
- $1 for each additional cubic foot, in excess of six cubic feet.

No storage charge is permitted for any article that can be contained within one cubic foot [Fin. Code § 21200.6(b)].

For these purposes, cubic feet must be determined by multiplying an article's width (at its greatest width) by its depth (at its greatest depth) by its height (at its greatest height) [Fin. Code § 21200.6(c)].

[5] Other Permitted Charges

In addition to other allowed charges, a pawnbroker may charge a loan setup fee not to exceed five dollars or two percent, whichever is greater. However, the maximum loan set up fee may not exceed ten dollars [Fin. Code § 21200.1]. A pawnbroker may also charge a processing fee of $4 for each firearm pawned [Fin. Code § 21200.8].

Whenever a pledgor (or his or her assignee) loses a pawn ticket, the pawnbroker may also charge a fee for the following services: verifying the identification of the claimant, fingerprinting the claimant, and having the claimant execute a declaration under penalty of perjury. The amount of the fee may not exceed $10 [Fin. Code § 21201.1].

If a pledgor fails to redeem any pawned item during the statutory four-month loan period, obliging the pawnbroker to mail a notice of termination as required by statute [see Fin. Code § 21201; see also § 102B.201], the pawnbroker may charge a fee of up to $3 for services and costs pertaining to the preparation of the notice. This fee may be imposed in addition to other allowed charges [Fin. Code § 21201.2].

§ 102B.16 Reports and Records

[1] Recordkeeping Requirements

[a] Report of Acquisition of Property

Pawnbrokers must file a report, daily or on the first working day after receipt or purchase, of the description of all property received in pledge or purchased as tangible personal property [Fin. Code § 21208; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21627 ("tangible personal property" defined)]. The report must be filed on an official form [Fin. Code § 21208]. For further discussion and a form for the report, see § 102B.202.

[b] Pawn Book

The pawnbroker must keep a "pawn book" showing the date of each transaction, its duration, the amount of the loan, the rate of interest or charges, a reasonably accurate description of the goods pledged, and the name and address of the pledgor [Fin. Code § 21202]. The pawnbroker must give the pledgor a written copy of the pawn book entry [Fin. Code § 21202]; this information is usually provided on the reverse side of the loan agreement.

[2] Inspection of Records, Accounts, and Property

Pawnbrokers must produce their records of loans, accounts of all sales of vested property, and all pledged property for inspection by (1) any officer holding a warrant authorizing him or her to search for personal property, (2) any peace officer or employee designated by the chief of police or sheriff, or (3) any officer holding a court order directing him or her to examine the records, accounts of sales, or pledged property [*Fin. A peace officer may take from the pawnbroker property that is alleged to be stolen. Whenever such property is taken, the peace officer must give the pawnbroker a receipt for the property containing a description of the property, the reason for its seizure, and the names of the pawnbroker and officer [Fin. Code § 21206.7].

Once taken from the pawnbroker, any property alleged to be stolen or embezzled may be given to a person claiming rightful ownership on compliance with the following statutory requirements [see Fin. Code § 21206.8(a)]. If a person makes a claim of ownership, the person having custody of the property must notify the pawnbroker [Fin. Code § 21206.8(b)(1); see, e.g., Zeltser v. City of Oakland (9th Cir. 2003) 325 F.3d 1141, 1144-1145 (custodian city failed to provide pawnbroker with opportunity to be heard before releasing seized property to competing claimant, thus depriving pawnbroker of due process)]. Unless the pawnbroker makes a claim of ownership within 10 days of receipt of this notice, the property may be disposed of as provided by law [Fin. Code § 21206.8(b)(2)]. Before the property is disposed of, the peace officer must notify the pawnbroker of the disposal as required under Penal Code § 1411 [Fin. Code § 21206.8(c); see Penal Code § 1411 (notice to property owner and holder of security interest of manner of recovering unclaimed property)]. The property may not be disposed of until three months after the notice has been given [Fin. Code § 21206.8(c)].

The pawnbroker will not be liable to any person for any property seized from the pawnbroker due to his or her inability to return the property because of the seizure [Fin. Code § 21206.8(d)].

"Finance lenders" (known under former law as "personal property brokers" [see former Fin. Code § 22000 et seq.], "consumer finance lenders" [see former Fin. Code § 24000 et seq.], and "commercial finance lenders" [see former Fin. Code § 26000 et seq.]), are persons or entities engaged in the business of making consumer or commercial loans, including lending money secured by personal property collateral, the use and possession of which is retained by the borrower rather than being given to the finance lender. The term also includes persons or entities who take liens on, assignments of, or powers of attorney relative to wages or other income as security for loans as described above [Fin. Code § 22009]. A "broker" for purposes of this law is one who engages in the business of negotiating or performing acts in connection with loans made by finance lenders [Fin. Code § 22004]. Unless indicated otherwise, a reference in this chapter to a "finance lender" includes a "broker."

§ 102B.31 Governing Law

Secured transactions are generally regulated by the provisions of Division 9 of the Commercial Code [Com. Code §§ 9101, 9109; see Com. Code § 9101 et seq.]. However, finance lender transactions are governed specifically by the provisions of the Finance Lenders Law [see Fin. Code § 22000 et seq.]. In the event of any conflict between the Code and the provisions of the Finance Lenders Law, the latter will prevail [Com. Code § 9201].

Finance lenders must be licensed by the Corporations Commissioner [Fin. Code § 22100(a); see § 102B.33]. Their duties in connection with the making of loans are specified by statute and administrative regulations [see Fin. Code §§ 22337, 22338; 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1404 et seq. (regulations promulgated under similar former law); see also Fin. Code § 22150 (granting Commissioner of Corporations authority to promulgate implementing regulations)].

The Finance Lenders Law applies to consumer loans [see Fin. Code § 22200 et seq.; see also § 102B.34] as well as to commercial loans [see Fin. Code § 22500 et seq.; see also § 102B.35].

The requirements of the Finance Lenders Law are matters of fundamental public policy which cannot be waived by way of agreement between the parties. Specifically, the Finance Lenders Law may not be circumvented by a choice-of-law provision, by which another state's law is chosen, in a loan agreement of the kind that law regulates. In determining whether such a provision should be enforced in California, a court will consider which state, in the circumstances presented, would suffer greater impairment of its policies if the other state's law were applied [Brack v. Omni Loan Co., Ltd. (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 1312, 1326, 1329, 80 Cal. Rptr. 3d 275 (choice of Nevada law, in consumer-loan contract of adhesion, was not enforceable)].

Finance lenders are excepted from the usury provisions of the California Constitution, subject to the power of the Legislature to regulate interest rates and charges [Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1].

§ 102B.32 Exemptions From Finance Lenders Law

[1] Exempt Entities

The Finance Lenders Law does not apply to banks, trust companies, savings and loan associations, insurance premium finance agencies, industrial loan companies, credit unions, small business investment companies, California business and industrial development corporations, or licensed pawnbrokers [Fin. Code § 22050(a)]. The Law also does not apply to broker-dealers licensed under the Corporate Securities Law of 1968 [Fin. Code § 22050(d); see Corp. Code § 25211], to colleges or universities making student loans [Fin. Code § 22050(c)], to a check casher who holds a valid permit issued pursuant to Civ. Code § 1789.37, or to a person holding a valid deferred deposit transaction license pursuant to Fin. Code § 23005, when acting under the authority of that permit [Fin. Code § 22050(b)], to any person who makes no more than one loan in a 12-month period as long as that loan is a commercial loan as defined in Fin. Code § 22502 [Fin. Code § 22050(e)], or to any public corporation [see Gov. Code § 67510 (definition)], any public entity other than the state [see Gov. Code § 811.2 (definition)], or any agency of one of these entities, when making any loan as long as the entity or its agent complies with all applicable federal and state laws and regulations [Fin. Code § 22050(f)].

The following entities also are exempt from the Law's provisions [Fin. Code § 22051]:

- Any nonprofit cooperative association organized under California laws governing agricultural cooperatives that loans or advances money in connection with its activities under those laws [see Food & Agric. Code § 54001 et seq.; see also Ch. 14A, Agricultural Nonprofit Cooperative Associations].
- Any corporation, association, syndicate, joint stock company, or partnership engaged exclusively in the business of marketing agricultural, horticultural, viticultural, dairy, livestock, poultry, or bee products on a cooperative nonprofit basis that loans or advances money to its members or in connection with its activities [see Ch. 14A, Agricultural Nonprofit Cooperative Associations ; Ch.48, Agricultural Financing].
- Any corporation that secures money or credit from any federal intermediate credit bank organized under the Agricultural Credits Act of 1923 [see 12 U.S.C. §§ 2011, 2071, 2091] and that loans or advances that money or credit [see Ch. 48, Agricultural Financing].

- Any California small business development corporation [see Corp. Code § 14000 et seq.].

In addition, the Law does not apply to the California Infrastructure and Economic Development Bank, to any program authorized under the California Small Business Financial Development Corporation Law [Corp. Code § 14000 et seq.], or to the California Integrated Waste Management Board [Fin. Code § 22056], or to any licensed cemetery broker [Fin. Code § 22058; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 9600 et seq.].

In claiming any exemption under the Law, the burden of proving the exemption is on the person claiming it [Fin. Code § 22053].

[2] Exempt Transactions

The Finance Lenders Law does not apply to any loan of credit made by a person not licensed under that Law pursuant to a plan having all of the following characteristics [Fin. Code § 22052]:

- Credit cards are issued pursuant to a written application and to the plan, and (1) the issuing organization can acquire obligations that its members in good standing incur with persons with whom the organization has entered into written agreements setting forth the plan, and the obligations are incurred pursuant to those agreements; or (2) the issuing organization can extend credit to its members.
- The fee for the credit cards is designed to cover the administrative costs of the plan and is imposed on the issuance of the card and on annual renewal dates thereafter.
- Any charges, discounts, or fees resulting from the acquisition of the charges is paid to the issuing organization by the persons, corporations, or associations with whom the organization has entered into written agreements.

The Law is inapplicable to bona fide conditional contracts of sale involving the disposition of personal property when those agreements are not used for the purpose of evading the Finance Lenders Law [Fin. Code § 22054], and to premium financing as defined in Corp. Code § 18563 [Fin. Code § 22055].

In addition, the Law does not apply to any loan made or arranged by a licensed real estate broker and secured by a lien on real property, or to any licensed real estate broker when making such a loan. A licensed real estate broker may make a loan secured by a lien on real property for sale to a finance lender, or may arrange for such a loan to be made by a finance lender, without obtaining a license as a finance lender [Fin. Code § 22057].

32-102B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102B.33

§ 102B.33 Licensing Requirements

[1] Issuance

All persons engaged in the business of a finance lender must obtain a license from the Commissioner of Corporations [Fin. Code § 22100(a)]. On submission of an application for a license, financial statements, and the appropriate fee [see Fin. Code §§ 22101-22104 (application requirements)], the Commissioner will investigate the applicant and related persons to determine fitness for licensure. If the Commissioner determines that the applicant has satisfied requirements for licensure and finds no facts constituting reasons for denial, the Commissioner will issue and deliver a license to the applicant [Fin. Code § 22105; see Fin. Code § 22106 (license contents)].

[2] Display

The license, and any currently effective order approving the use of a name other than the one on the license, must be conspicuously posted in the place of business authorized by the license [Fin. Code § 22151(a); see Fin. Code §§ 22155, 22250(a), 22550 (restrictions on use of different name for consumer loans under $10,000, and commercial loans under $5,000)].

A finance lender may not place a loan advertisement that is disseminated primarily in California unless the license under which the loan would be made or arranged is disclosed in (1) the printed text of the advertisement, or (2) the oral text of a radio or television advertisement [Fin. Code § 22162].

[3] Prohibition of Transfer and Assignment

The license is not transferable or assignable. Further, if the license is issued to a general partnership or a limited partnership, the death, withdrawal, or admission of a partner, general partner, or limited partner does not effect a transfer or assignment of the license unless the death, withdrawal, or admission dissolves the partnership to which the license was issued [Fin. Code § 22151(b)].

32-102B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102B.34

§ 102B.34 Regulation of Consumer Loans

[1] Definition of Consumer Loans

The Finance Lenders Law applies to consumer loans [see Fin. Code §§ 22200-22467] as well as to commercial loans [see Fin. Code §§ 22500-22650; see also § 102B.35]. Under that Law, a "consumer loan" is a loan that either is unsecured or is secured by real or personal property or both, the proceeds of which are intended by the borrower for use primarily for personal, family, or household purposes. However, nothing in this definition authorizes the taking of real property as security, unless the loan is for a bona fide principal amount of $5,000 or more [Fin. Code §§ 22203, 22330; see Fin. Code § 22251(c)] ("bona fide principal amount" defined for purposes of determining whether loan amount exceeds regulatory ceiling)]. In addition, the term consumer loan includes a loan of a principal amount of less than $5,000, the proceeds of which are intended by the borrower for use primarily for other than personal, family, or household purposes [Fin. Code § 22204(a)].

For the purposes of determining whether a loan is a consumer loan, the lender may rely on any written statement of intended purposes signed by the borrower. The statement may be a separate signed statement, or may be contained in a loan application or other document signed by the borrower. The lender is not required to ascertain that the proceeds of the loan are used in accordance with the statement [Fin. Code §§ 22203, 22204(a)].

[2] Exemption for Consumer Loans of $2,500 or More

Loans of $2,500 or more are exempt from the statutory restrictions on the maximum charges that may be collected from a borrower [see Fin. Code §§ 22303, 22304], if this regulatory ceiling provision is not used for the purpose of evading the requirements of the Finance Lenders Law [Fin. Code §§ 22251, 22303, 22304]. For discussion of those restrictions, see § 102B.36[1].

[3] Provisions Inapplicable to Consumer Loans of $5,000 or More

Loans made for bona fide principal amounts of $5,000 or more, and duly licensed finance lenders in connection with those loans, are exempt from the following provisions of the Finance Lenders Law if the exemption is not used for the purpose of evading that Law [Fin. Code § 22250(b)]:

- Certain restrictions on charges made on loans [see Fin. Code §§ 22201, 22202, 22300, 22305, 22306, 22307(a), 22309, 22320.5, 22322, 22323, 22325, 22326, 22327, 22334, 22400, 22751; see also § 102B.36[1]].
- Restrictions governing loans made outside of California [see Fin. Code §§ 22322, 22323].

[4] Provisions Inapplicable to Consumer Loans of $10,000 or More

In addition to the provisions listed above, the following provisions of the Finance Lenders Law do not apply to loans of bona fide principal amounts of $10,000 or more, or to duly licensed finance lenders in connection with those loans, if the exemption is not used for the purpose of evading that law [Fin. Code § 22250(a)]:

- Restrictions on the place at which a licensee conducts business or the name under which the business is conducted [see Fin. Code §§ 22154, 22155].
- Additional restrictions on computation of charges made on loans [see Fin. Code § 22307].
- Conditions under which insurance on property offered as security will not be deemed to be a collateral sale, purchase, or agreement [see Fin. Code §§ 22313, 22314, 22315; see also Fin. Code §§ 22201, 22311, 22312], and requirements relating to credit disability insurance [see Fin. Code § 22315].
- Requirement that all interest and loan charges be forfeited for violation of the Law [see Fin. Code § 22752].

[5] Determining Bona Fide Principal Amount of Consumer Loans

Statutory principles apply to determine the amount of a consumer loan and whether regulatory ceilings are being used for the purpose of evading the requirements of the Finance Lenders Law. A loan is not deemed to be a loan of the required bona fide principal amount, and evasion will be the deemed purpose, if the following occur [Fin. Code § 22251(a); see Fin. Code § 22251(c) ("bona fide principal amount" defined for purposes of determining whether loan amount exceeds regulatory ceiling)]:

- A borrower applies for a loan in a bona fide principal amount less than the amount specified;
- A loan greater than that amount is made without adequate economic reason for the increase; and
- By prearrangement or understanding between the parties a substantial payment is to be made to reduce the bona fide principal to a level below the amount specified within a short time after the loan is made (other than by reason of a requirement that the loan be paid in substantially equal periodic installments).

If a loan made by a licensed finance lender is in a bona fide principal amount equal to or exceeding the specified amount, the fact that the transaction is in the form of a sale of accounts, chattel paper, goods, or instruments, or a lease of goods, or in the form of an advance on the purchase price of any of those, does not affect the loan or the bona fides of the amount of the loan, and does not indicate evasion [Fin. Code § 22251(b)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Finance Lenders and Brokers

32-102B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102B.35

§ 102B.35 Regulation of Commercial Loans

[1] Definition of Commercial Loans

The Finance Lenders Law applies to commercial loans [see Fin. Code §§ 22500-22650] as well as to consumer loans [see Fin. Code §§ 22200-22467; see also § 102B.34]. Under that law, a "commercial loan" is a loan of a principal amount of $5,000 or more, or any loan under an open-end credit program, whether secured by either real or personal property or both, or unsecured, the proceeds of which are intended by the borrower for use primarily for other than personal, family, or household purposes [Fin. Code § 22502].

For the purposes of determining whether a loan is a commercial loan, the lender may rely on any written statement of intended purposes signed by the borrower. The statement may be a separate signed statement, or may be contained in a loan application or other document signed by the borrower. The lender is not required to ascertain that the proceeds of the loan are used in accordance with the statement [Fin. Code § 22502].

[2] Provisions Inapplicable to Commercial Loans of $5,000 or More Commercial loans made for bona fide principal amounts of $5,000 or more, and duly licensed finance lenders in connection with those loans, are exempt from the following provisions of the Finance Lenders Law if the exemption is not used for the purpose of evading that law [Fin. Code § 22550]:

- Restrictions on the place at which a licensee conducts business or the name under which the business is conducted [see Fin. Code §§ 22152, 22154, 22155].
- Disclosure requirements imposed by the commissioner regarding rates of charge [see Fin. Code §§ 22163, 22164].

[3] Determining Bona Fide Principal Amount of Commercial Loans

Statutory principles apply when determining the bona fide principal amount of a commercial loan. A loan is not deemed to be a loan of $5,000 or more if (1) a borrower applies for a loan in a bona fide principal amount less than $5,000, (2) the finance lender makes a loan greater than that amount to the borrower without adequate economic reason for the increase, and (3) by prearrangement or understanding between the parties a substantial payment is to be made to reduce the bona fide principal to a level below $5,000 within a short time after the loan is made (other than by reason of a requirement that the loan be paid in substantially equal periodic installments) [Fin. Code § 22551(a), (d); see Fin. Code § 22551(e) ("bona fide principal amount" defined for purposes of determining whether loan amount exceeds regulatory ceiling)].

A subsequent advance of money of less than a bona fide principal amount of $5,000 pursuant to a revolving, open-end, or similar agreement between a borrower and a licensed finance lender that gives the borrower the right to draw on all or any part of the line of credit is deemed to be a loan of a bona fide principal amount of $5,000 or more if the line of credit is a bona fide principal amount of $5,000 or more and the initial advance was a bona fide principal amount of $5,000 or more. Similarly, a subsequent advance of money of less than a bona fide principal amount of $5,000 pursuant to a loan agreement providing for the making of advances to the borrower from time to time up to an aggregate maximum amount that gives the borrower the right to draw all or any part of the total amount is deemed to be a loan of a bona fide principal amount of $5,000 or more if the aggregate maximum amount is a bona fide principal amount of $5,000 or more and the initial advance was a bona fide principal amount of $5,000 or more. These rules apply even if the actual unpaid balance after the subsequent advance or at any other time is less than a bona fide principal amount of $5,000 [Fin. Code § 22551(b), (d)].

If a loan made by a licensed finance lender is in a bona fide principal amount equal to or exceeding $5,000, the fact that the transaction is in the form of a sale of accounts, chattel paper, goods, or instruments, or a lease of goods, or in the form of an advance on the purchase price of any of those, does not affect the bona fides of the amount of the loan [Fin. Code § 22551(c), (d)].

32-102B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102B.36

§ 102B.36 Regulation of Charges

[1] Permissible Loan Charges and Terms

[a] Definition of Charges

Finance lenders are subject to statutory restrictions on the amounts they charge for making loans. "Charges" include the aggregate interest, fees, bonuses, commissions, brokerage, discounts, expenses, and other forms of costs charged, contracted for, or received by a finance lender or any other person in connection with the investigating, arranging, negotiating, procuring, guaranteeing, making, servicing, collecting, and enforcing of a loan or forbearance of money, credit, goods, or things in action, or any other service rendered [Fin. Code §§ 22200 (consumer loans), 22500 (commercial loans)]. As applied to consumer loans of less than $5,000 [Fin. Code § 22250(b)], "charges" also includes any profit or advantage contracted for, received, collected, or obtained by a finance lender, by collateral sale, purchase, or agreement, in connection with the loan (including profits or advantages relating to the negotiating, arranging, or making of the loan) [Fin. Code § 22201].

For additional provisions regulating charges, fees, and interest on loans, see Fin. Code §§ 22300-22341 (loan regulations), 22400-22402 (charges on scheduled balances), and 22450-22467 (open-end loan programs).

[b] Exclusions for Loans Under $5,000

For consumer loans under $5,000 [Fin. Code § 22250(b)], "charges" do not include the following [Fin. Code § 22202]:

- Commissions received by licensed insurance brokers or agents in connection with credit insurance written as provided in Fin. Code § 22313;
- Amounts paid to holders of possessory liens to release motor vehicles held to secure loans subject to the Finance Lenders Law [see Civ. Code § 3068(c) (maximum amounts)];
- Court costs, excluding attorneys' fees, incurred in a lawsuit and recovered against a borrower who defaults on a loan;

- Fees paid to a finance lender for the privilege of participating in an open-end credit program, if the fees are to cover administrative costs and are imposed on the execution of the open-end loan agreement and on subsequent annual renewal dates or anniversary dates [see Fin. Code §§ 22450-22467, 22650 (open-end credit programs)];
- Amounts (not exceeding 6 percent of the loan proceeds) received by a finance lender from a seller from whom a borrower obtains money, goods, labor, or services on credit in connection with a transaction under an open-end credit program, when these amounts (a) are paid or deducted from the loan proceeds paid to the seller at the borrower's direction and (b) are an obligation of the seller to the finance lender for the privilege of allowing the seller to participate in the finance lender's open-end credit program;
- Actual and necessary fees of $500 or less paid in connection with the repossession of a motor vehicle to licensed repossession agencies, if the finance lender complies with certain notice and other requirements [see Fin. Code §§ 22328, 22329], and actual fees (not exceeding the statutory maximum) paid to the finance lender in connection with receipt and filing of a report of repossession [see Gov. Code §§ 26751, 41612]; and
- Money paid to, and commissions and benefits received by, a finance lender for the sale of goods, services, or insurance, whether or not the sale is in connection with a loan, if (1) the buyer acknowledges in a separately signed authorization that this compensation is optional, and (2) the sale takes place in the finance lender's place of business pursuant to written authorization of the Corporations Commissioner [see Fin. Code §§ 22154, 22250(a), 22550].

[c] Maximum Charges for Loans Under $2,500

Charges for loans of less than $2,500 made by finance lenders must not exceed the sum of the following amounts [Fin. Code § 22303]:

- 2.5 percent per month of the unpaid principal balance up to and including $225;
- 2 percent per month of the unpaid principal balance above $225 and not greater than $900;
- 1.5 percent per month of the unpaid principal balance above $900 and not greater than $1,650; and
- 1 percent of the remainder of the unpaid balance greater than $1,650.

As an alternative for loans of less than $2,500, a finance lender may contract for and receive charges of the greater of (1) 1.6 percent per month on the unpaid principal [Fin. Code § 22304(a)], or (2) five-sixths of 1 percent per month plus one-twelfth of the prevailing annual rate on advances to member banks established by the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco [Fin. Code § 22304(b); see 12 U.S.C. § 347].

In addition to these charges, a finance lender may contract for and receive an administrative fee with respect to a loan of a bona fide principal amount of no more than $2,500 at a rate of 5 percent of the principal amount of the loan (exclusive of the administrative fee), or $50, whichever is less. The fee is fully earned immediately on making the loan [Fin. Code § 22305; see Fin. Code § 22251(c) ("bona fide principal amount" defined)].

No administrative fee may be contracted for or received in connection with the refinancing of a loan unless at least one year has elapsed since the receipt of a previous administrative fee paid by the borrower. Only one administrative fee may be contracted for and received until the loan has been repaid in full [Fin. Code § 22305].

[d] Maximum Terms for Consumer Loans Under $5,000

In addition to the restrictions on amounts charged for loans, finance lenders must, with certain exceptions, comply with limits on maximum loan terms for consumer loans under $5,000 [see Fin. Code §§ 22334, 22250(b)].

[2] Restrictions on Loans to Refinance Retail Installment Contracts

A licensed finance lender may not make a loan to refinance a retail installment contract held by it (or its affiliates or subsidiaries) that is subject to the Unruh Act [see Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.] without complying with all conditions required by statute [see Fin. Code § 22341(a)]. If those conditions are met, the loan is governed by the Finance Lenders Law, not by the Unruh Act [Fin. Code § 22341(b)].

[3] Display of Schedule of Charges

For consumer loans of less than $5,000 [Fin. Code § 22250(b)], the finance lender must display prominently in the lender's place of business a full, accurate schedule of the charges to be made, including the method of computing those charges. The schedule is subject to the approval of the Commissioner of Corporations [Fin. Code § 22325].

[1] Books, Accounts, and Records

Finance lenders must keep and use books, accounts, and records that will enable the Commissioner to determine if they are complying with the Finance Lenders Law and its implementing regulations [Fin. Code § 22156; see also 10 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1425-1427 (regulations promulgated under similar provisions of former law)]. These records, including any cards used in a card system, must be preserved for at least three years after making the final entry on any loan recorded in them [Fin. Code § 22157]. Although the retained records need not be the originals, any information requested by the Commissioner must be capable of being produced within 48 hours, excluding weekends and holidays [Fin. Code § 22158; see Gov. Code §§ 6700, 6701 (Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays)].

[2] Annual and Special Reports

Each finance lender must file an annual report with the Commissioner on or before March 15. The report must include relevant information reasonably required by the Commissioner regarding the business and operations during the preceding calendar year for each licensed place of business. These reports are made available for public inspection [Fin. Code § 22159(a); see also 10 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1430, 1430.5 (regulations promulgated under similar provisions of former law)]. Further, the Commissioner may require other special reports [Fin. Code § 22159(b); see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1431 (regulation promulgated under similar provisions of former law)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Secondhand Dealers

32-102B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102B.50

§ 102B.50 Definitions

[1] Secondhand Dealer

A "secondhand dealer" is any person, copartnership, firm, or corporation whose business includes buying, selling, trading, taking in pawn, accepting for sale on consignment, accepting for auctioning, or auctioning secondhand tangible personal property [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21626(a)]. As used in this chapter, the term includes persons dealing in watches, builders' tools, and junk, unless otherwise stated. The term does not include:

- Coin dealers [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21626(a); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21626(b) ("coin dealers" defined)].
- Participants at gun shows or events [see 27 C.F.R. § 478.100 (definition)] who are not gun show traders [see Penal Code § 12070(b)(5) (definition)] and are not required to be licensed by Penal Code § 12071, if they are acting in compliance with Penal Code § 12072(d) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21626(a)].
- Persons performing auctioneer services for a fee or salary [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21626.5(a)].
- A person whose business is limited to the reconditioning and selling of major household appliances, provided the following three conditions are satisfied [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21626.5(b)]:
 - The person does not trade, take in pawn, accept for drop-off, accept as a trade-in, accept for sale on consignment, accept for auction, sell at auction, or buy, except in bulk, the appliances.
 - The person does not perform repair services for appliance owners unless the appliance was purchased from that person.
 - The person has never been convicted of the crime of attempting to receive or receiving stolen property or any other theft-related crime.

[2] Tangible Personal Property

"Tangible personal property" includes but is not limited to the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21627(a), (b)]:

- All secondhand tangible personal property that bears a serial number or personalized initials or inscription or that, at the time it is acquired by the secondhand dealer, bears evidence of having had a serial number or personalized initials or inscription.
- All new or used tangible personal property, including motor vehicles, received in pledge as security for a loan by a pawnbroker [see § 102B.10 et seq. (pawnbrokers)].
- All tangible personal property that bears a serial number or personalized initials or inscription or that, at the time it is purchased by the secondhand dealer or pawnbroker, bears evidence of having had a serial number or personalized initials or inscription.
- All personal property commonly sold by secondhand dealers that is found statistically to constitute a significant class of stolen goods. The Attorney General must supply a list of these items of personal property to local law enforcement agencies.

For purposes of the statutory reporting requirements, "business machines" are included in the definition of tangible personal property [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21628.5 ("business machines" defined); see also § 102B.53].

The term "tangible personal property" does not include any new goods or merchandise purchased by a secondhand dealer from a bona fide manufacturer, distributor, or wholesaler of new goods or merchandise [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21627(c)]. Further, it does not include coins, monetized bullion, or commercial grade ingots of gold, silver, or other precious metals [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21627(d)].

§ 102B.51 Governing Law

The resale of tangible personal property by secondhand dealers, including watch sellers and junk dealers, is regulated by statute [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 21500-21653]. Statutes of general application govern the activities of all persons dealing in secondhand goods and impose, among other things, licensing and reporting requirements [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 21625-21647; see also § 102B.53]. Additional statutes regulate the resale of secondhand watches, builders' tools, and junk [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 21500-21609].

The Legislature enacted these laws regulating secondhand dealers for the following purposes: (1) to curtail the dissemination of stolen property; (2) to facilitate the recovery of stolen property by means of a uniform, statewide program of regulation of secondhand dealers; (3) to require the uniform statewide reporting of the acquisition of tangible personal property by secondhand dealers, so that those reports could be correlated with other reports by law enforcement agencies and could aid in the tracing and recovery of stolen property; and (4) to aid the State Board of Equalization in detecting possible sales tax evasions [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21625].

§ 102B.52 Exemptions

The reporting and other statutory requirements applicable to secondhand dealers do not apply to the following tangible personal property [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21629]:

- Property acquired from another secondhand dealer, provided the other dealer (1) completes and signs, under penalty of perjury, an interdealer transfer form or an itemized bill of sale describing the property and stating that he or she has previously submitted a report or reports as required by Bus. & Prof. Code § 21628 [see § 102B.53], and (2) delivers a copy of the transfer form or bill of sale to the acquiring dealer at the time of transfer. Interdealer transfer forms may be obtained from the Department of Justice or local police or sheriff's departments.
- Property acquired in connection with a nonjudicial sale, transfer, assignment for the benefit of creditors, consignment of the assets or stock of a business for specified purposes (including voluntary dissolutions or liquidations), or a nonjudicial sale or transfer from an owner of all or a substantial part of the owner's household or personal property [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21629(b)].
- Property acquired at a public sale.
- Property acquired from a governmental entity.
- Property reported by a secondhand dealer to a governmental entity as an acquisition or purchase, or as destroyed or otherwise disposed of, as required by law.
- Property acquired by certain specified persons and entities who buy, sell, or trade precious metals [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21629(f)].

These exceptions do not apply to secondhand watches, builders' tools, or junk, which are subject to additional statutes that do not fall within the exceptions [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21629; see also Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 21500-21509].

(watches), 21550-21556 (builders' tools), 21600-21609 (junk)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Secondhand Dealers

32-102B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102B.53

§ 102B.53 Licensing and Reporting Requirements

[1] Licensing Requirements

All secondhand dealers must apply for and receive a license to engage in that business [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 21640-21642] from the chief of police, sheriff, or police commissioner of the appropriate local jurisdiction [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21641]. Thereafter, the license must be renewed every other year [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21642(a)].

Any person who is required to be licensed as a secondhand dealer may not publicly advertise any matter relating to the business for which the license is required without including the license number [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21636.6].

[2] Reporting Requirements

Every secondhand dealer (or coin dealer) must report the purchase, taking in trade, taking in pawn, acceptance for sale on consignment, or acceptance for auctioning of all tangible personal property purchased by the dealer. This report must be made daily, or on the first working day after receipt or purchase, to the chief of police or sheriff in the dealer's jurisdiction [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 21628, 21628.5, 21630; § 102B.220]. Transaction reports are not required to be submitted to the local law enforcement agency if the report of an acquisition of the same property from the same customer has been submitted within the preceding 12 months, unless submission of the reports is specifically requested in writing by the local licensing authority [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21628.1].

Firearms are excepted from the reporting requirement of Bus. & Prof. Code § 21628 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21628(l); 2009 Stats. Ch. 335, § 2; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21828(k) (licensed firearms dealer is not exempt from Penal Code § 12071 reporting requirements)]. However, effective July 1, 2010, every secondhand dealer must, on the day of the transaction, electronically report to the Department of Justice, each firearm purchased, taken in trade, taken in pawn, accepted for sale on consignment, or accepted for auctioning [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21628.1(b), (e)]. The Department of Justice prescribes the reporting format [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21628.2(b)].

Similar reporting requirements apply to any personal property that is found in the shop of a secondhand dealer, pawnbroker, or coin dealer doing business under a secondhand dealer's license [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21631].

Additional statutes govern reports for acquisitions and sales of builders' tools [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 21551-21555 (register for recording information)].

[3] Recordkeeping Requirements

Secondhand dealers must keep records of the receipt of certain types of secondhand goods and must make the records available for inspection [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 21502-21504 (watches), 21551, 21552 (builders' tools), 21605-21607 (junk), 21628.2 (firearms)]. For coverage of these reporting requirements, see § 102B.122.

§ 102B.54 Holding Period

Every secondhand dealer and coin dealer must retain possession of all tangible personal property reported under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 21628, 21629, and 21630 (tangible personal property), and beginning July 1, 2010, Bus. & Prof. Code § 21628.2 (firearms), for a period of 30 days. The holding period commences on the date of the report of the acquisition of the property [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21636(a); see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 21628-21631; see also §§ 102B.53[2], 102B.220 (report)]. The chief of police or the sheriff or the Department of Justice may authorize the earlier disposition of the property, provided the dealer reports the sale to that official [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21636(a); see Malish v. City of San Diego (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 725, 737, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 18 (provisions of local ordinance setting forth holding requirements "other than" those set forth in Bus. & Prof. Code § 21636 were expressly prohibited by Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 21637, 21638)].

During the holding period, the dealer must produce the property for inspection by any peace officer or employee designated by the chief of police or sheriff or the Department of Justice [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21636(b)]. Property subject to inspection, and any property held in pawn, that is stored off the business premises of the licensee, on request for inspection, must be produced at the licensee's business premises within one business day of the request [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21636(c)]. Any person who conducts business as a secondhand dealer at gun shows or events [see 27 C.F.R. § 478.100 (definition)] outside the jurisdiction that issued the secondhand dealer license [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21641(d) (secondhand dealer license)] may be required to submit for inspection [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21636(b) (inspection requirements)], at a location specified by the local law enforcement agency, any firearm acquired at the gun show or event within 48 hours of the request for inspection by the local law enforcement agency in the jurisdiction where the show or event was conducted [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21636(d)].

B. Preliminary Determinations

§ 102B.110 Transactions Involving Pawnbrokers

1. Determine whether borrower has sufficient age and mental capacity to enter into contract with pawnbroker [see Civ. Code §§ 1556, 1557; see also Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions ; Ch. 100B, Contracts and Employment of Minors].

NOTE:

Pawnbrokers must not receive anything in pledge from a minor [Fin. Code § 21207; see Fam. Code § 6500 (minor is any person under 18 years of age)].

2. If borrower is married, determine whether his or her spouse's consent is required to encumber property [see Fam. Code § 1100(c)].

NOTE:

Unless both spouses consent, a spouse may not encumber community personal property used as a family dwelling, or the furniture, furnishings, or fittings of the home, or the clothing or wearing apparel of the other spouse or minor children [Fam. Code § 1100(c)].

3. Determine whether party acting as pawnbroker is exempt from regulation under Pawnbroker Law as one of following [see Fin. Code § 21050]:

a. Corporation organized for purpose of securing credit from federal farm credit banks [see 12 U.S.C. §§ 2011, 2071, 2091; see also Ch. 48, Agricultural Financing];

b. Any nonprofit cooperative corporation or association with or without capital stock, organized or existing under California laws governing agricultural cooperatives [see Food & Agric. Code § 54001 et seq.; Ch. 14A, Agricultural Nonprofit Cooperative Associations]; or

c. Any person, corporation, association, syndicate, joint stock company, or partnership engaged exclusively in business of marketing agricultural, horticultural, viticultural, dairy, livestock, poultry, and bee products on cooperative, nonprofit basis [see also Ch. 14A, Agricultural Nonprofit Cooperative Associations ; Ch. 49, Agricultural Contracts].

4. Determine bona fide principal amount of loan, using following principles:

NOTE:

If the bona fide principal amount of a loan is $2,500 or more, the transaction is exempt from limits on maximum charges [Fin. Code § 21051(a); see Fin. Code §§ 21200, 21200.5, 21201.4; see also § 102B.14[1]]. The amount of the loan must be determined using the following statutory principles to determine good faith, that is, whether exemption is sought for the purpose of evading the provisions of the Pawnbroker Law. These principles are the same as those applicable to consumer loans by finance lenders [Fin. Code § 21051(b) (citing former Fin. Code § 22054, now Fin. Code § 22251)].

a. Bona fide condition is not met if [Fin. Code § 22251(a); see Fin. Code § 22251(c) ("bona fide principal amount" defined for purposes of determining whether loan amount exceeds regulatory ceiling)]:

(1) Borrower applies for loan of bona fide principal amount less than amount specified by statute;

(2) Finance lender makes loan of bona fide principal amount equal to statutory amount or more to borrower without adequate economic reason for increase in size of loan; and

(3) By prearrangement or understanding between borrower and finance lender, borrower is to make substantial payment on loan to reduce bona fide principal amount to less than statutory amount within short time after making of loan, unless payment is made pursuant to requirement that loan be paid in substantially equal periodic installments.

b. Bona fide condition is met if loan is made in principal bona fide amount of amount specified by statute or more, and transaction is in form of [Fin. Code § 22251(b)]:

(1) Sale of accounts, chattel paper, goods, or instruments; or

(2) Lease of goods; or

(3) Advance on purchase price of sale or lease described in (a) or (b), above.

§ 102B.111 Transactions Involving Finance Lenders

1. Determine whether borrower has sufficient age and mental capacity to enter into contract with finance lender [see Civ. Code §§ 1556, 1557; see also Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions ; Ch. 100, Control, Custody, and Support of Minors].
2. If borrower is married, determine whether his or her spouse's consent is required to encumber property [see Fam. Code § 1100(c)].

NOTE:

Unless both spouses consent, a spouse may not encumber community personal property used as a family dwelling, the furniture, furnishings, or fittings of the home, or the clothing or wearing apparel of the other spouse or minor children [Fam. Code § 1100(c)].

3. Determine whether lender is exempt from regulation under Finance Lenders Law as one of following:

NOTE:

In claiming any exemption under the Law, the burden of proving the exemption is on the person claiming it [Fin. Code § 22053].

a. Persons doing business under laws relating to any of following [Fin. Code § 22050(a)]:

- (1) Banks.
- (2) Trust companies.
- (3) Savings and loan associations.

- (4) Insurance premium finance agencies.
 - (5) Credit unions.
 - (6) Small business investment companies.
 - (7) California business and industrial development corporations.
 - (8) Licensed pawnbrokers.
- b. Licensed securities broker-dealer [Fin. Code § 22050(d); Corp. Code § 25211];
- c. College or university making student loans [Fin. Code § 22050(c)];
- d. Check casher holding valid permit issued pursuant to Civ. Code § 1789.37, or to person holding valid deferred deposit transaction license pursuant to Fin. Code § 23005, when acting under authority of that permit [Fin. Code § 22050(b)];
- e. Any person who makes no more than one loan in any 12-month period as long as that loan is a commercial loan as defined in Fin. Code § 22502 [Fin. Code § 22050(e)].
- f. Any public corporation [see Gov. Code § 67510 (definition)], any public entity other than the state [see Gov. Code § 811.2 (definition)], or any agency of one of these entities, when making any loan so long as the entity or its agent complies with all applicable federal and state laws and regulations [Fin. Code § 22050(f)].
- g. Any nonprofit cooperative association organized under California laws governing agricultural cooperatives, that loans or advances money in connection with its activities under those laws [Fin. Code § 22051(a); see Food & Agric. Code § 54001 et seq.; see also Ch. 14A, Agricultural Nonprofit Cooperative Associations];
- h. Any corporation, association, syndicate, joint stock company, or partnership engaged exclusively in the business of marketing agricultural, horticultural, viticultural, dairy, livestock, poultry, or bee products on cooperative, nonprofit basis, that loans or advances money to its members or in connection with those activities [Fin. Code § 22051(b); see Ch. 14A, Agricultural Nonprofit Cooperative Associations; Ch. 49, Agricultural Contracts];
- i. Any corporation securing money or credit from federal farm credit banks that loans or advances that money or credit [Fin. Code § 22051(c); see 12 U.S.C. §§ 2011, 2071, 2091; see also Ch. 48, Agricultural Financing]; or
- j. Any California small business development corporation [Fin. Code § 22051(d); see Corp. Code § 14000 et seq.].
- k. The California Infrastructure and Economic Development Bank [Fin. Code § 22056].
- l. The California Integrated Waste Management Board [Fin. Code § 22056].
- m. Licensed cemetery brokers [Fin. Code § 22058; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 9600 et seq.].

4. Determine whether transaction is exempt from regulation under Finance Lenders Law as one of following:

- a. Certain loans of credit by unlicensed persons involving credit cards [see Fin. Code § 22052; see § 102B.32[2]].
- b. Bona fide conditional sale contracts involving disposition of personal property [Fin. Code § 22054].
- c. Premium financing [Fin. Code § 22052; see Fin. Code § 18563 (definition)].
- d. Any loan made or arranged by licensed real estate broker and secured by lien on real property, or any licensed real estate broker when making such a loan [Fin. Code § 22057].

NOTE:

A licensed real estate broker may make a loan secured by a lien on real property for sale to a finance lender, or may arrange for such a loan to be made by a finance lender, without obtaining a license as a finance lender [Fin. Code § 22057].

5. Ascertain nature of loan:

- a. Determine whether loan proceeds are intended by borrower for use primarily for personal, family, or household purposes.

NOTE:

If the borrower intends to use the loan proceeds primarily for personal, family, or household purposes, the loan is classified as a consumer loan [Fin. Code § 22203]. That term also includes loans of less than $5,000 that are intended for other than personal, family, or household purposes [Fin. Code § 22204(a)]. Commercial loans are loans of $5,000 or more, and loans under an open-end credit program, that are intended for other than personal, family, or household purposes [Fin. Code § 22502(a)]. The lender may rely on any written statement of intended purposes signed by the borrower in determining the purpose of the loan [Fin. Code §§ 22203, 22204(a), 22502].

- b. Determine bona fide principal amount of loan, using following principles:

NOTE:

The bona fide principal amount of a loan determines the provisions of the Finance Lenders Law that govern the transaction and the lender [see Fin. Code §§ 22250, 22303, 22304, 22550; see Fin. Code §§ 22251(c), 22551(e) ("bona fide principal amount" defined for purposes of determining whether loan amount exceeds regulatory ceiling)].

(1) Bona fide condition is not met if [Fin. Code §§ 22251(a) (consumer loans), 22551(a) (commercial loans)]:

(a) Borrower applies for loan of bona fide principal amount less than amount specified by statute;

(b) Finance lender makes loan of bona fide principal amount equal to statutory amount or more to borrower without adequate economic reason for increase in size of loan; and

(c) By prearrangement or understanding between borrower and finance lender, borrower is to make substantial payment on loan to reduce bona fide principal amount to less than statutory amount within short time after making of loan, unless payment is made pursuant to requirement that loan be paid in substantially equal periodic installments.

(2) Bona fide condition is met if loan is made in bona fide principal amount of amount specified by statute or more, and transaction is in form of [Fin. Code §§ 22251(b) (consumer loans), 22551(c) (commercial loans)]:

(a) Sale of accounts, chattel paper, goods, or instruments; or

(b) Lease of goods; or

(c) Advance on purchase price of sale or lease described in P (a) or (b), above.

NOTE:

A subsequent advance under a revolving or open-end loan agreement permitting the borrower to draw against the line of credit, or under a loan agreement permitting advances up to an aggregate maximum, is deemed to be a loan of a bona fide principal amount of the statutory amount or more if the line of credit or aggregate maximum is the a bona fide principal amount of statutory amount or more and the initial advance was a bona fide principal amount of the statutory amount or more, even though the actual unpaid balance after the advance or at any other time is less than a bona fide principal amount of the statutory amount [Fin. Code § 22551(b)].

6. If loan is to refinance retail installment contract subject to Unruh Act [see Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.] that is held by finance lender or its subsidiaries or affiliates, determine whether following conditions are met [Fin. Code § 22341(a)]:

NOTE:

A finance lender may not make such a loan unless all these conditions are met [Fin. Code § 22341(a)]. If all conditions are met, the loan is subject to the provisions of the Finance Lenders Law and not to those of the Unruh Act [Fin. Code § 22341(b)].

a. Buyer must have been making required installment payments for at least 90 days.

b. Contract must have term of at least 180 days and must not provide for any scheduled installment that is more than twice amount of any other scheduled installment.

c. Loan must provide for additional proceeds other than for insurance in an amount not less than the outstanding principal balance, and must provide for payment of contract in full.

d. If security interest is in real property that is principal residence of borrower:

(1) Loan must have principal amount of $5,000 or more, and

(2) Additional disclosure statement must be included with loan statement [see Fin. Code § 22338(a); see also §§ 102B.210 (loan statement), 102B.215 (additional disclosure statement)].

e. Finance lender must not sell or attempt to sell any goods or services to borrower, other than credit insurance [see Fin. Code § 22314 (definition)] required to protect security interest, until loan has been in effect for at least 30 days.

NOTE:

The amount of insurance required by the lender must not exceed the lesser of the principal amount of the loan or the replacement value of the security as determined by the insurer [Fin. Code § 22341].

f. If finance lender is assignee of retail installment contract, it must continue to be subject under loan to all equities and defenses of borrower against seller arising out of sale, notwithstanding agreement to contrary.

g. Loan must not provide for any scheduled installment more than twice amount of any other scheduled installment.

NOTE:

This requirement does not apply to open-end loans [Fin. Code § 22341(d)] or to loans of $10,000 or more [Fin. Code § 22341(a)(6)].

h. If loan of $10,000 or more provides for any scheduled installment more than twice amount of any other scheduled installment, loan must contain required balloon payment disclosure statement [see § 102B.216].

NOTE:

This requirement does not apply to open-end loans [Fin. Code § 22341(d)].

PART III. TRANSACTION GUIDE
B. Preliminary Determinations

32-102B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102B.112

§ 102B.112 Transactions Involving Secondhand Goods Dealers

1. Determine whether dealer in secondhand goods is regulated by statute.

a. Person is engaged in business of selling secondhand watches [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 21500(a), 21501].

b. Person is engaged in selling of secondhand builders' tools [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 21550, 21551].

c. Person is engaged in buying, selling, and dealing in junk [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 21600, 21601].

d. Person is engaged in buying, selling, trading, taking in pawn, accepting for sale on consignment, accepting for auctioning, or auctioning secondhand tangible personal property [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21626].

NOTE:

Persons and companies performing auctioneer services for a fee or salary are not regulated under the statutes governing secondhand dealers, but rather under a separate statutory scheme [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21626.5; see Civ. Code § 1812.600 et seq.]. Participants at gun shows or events [see 27 C.F.R. § 478.100 (definition)] who are not gun show traders [see Penal Code § 12070(b)(5) (definition)] and are not required to be licensed by Penal Code § 12071 also are specifically excluded from the statutory definition of secondhand dealers, if they are acting in compliance with Penal Code § 12072(d) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21626(a)]. Coin dealers [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21626(b) (definition)] are also specifically excluded from this definition [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21626(a)], but are generally governed by the same statutes that govern secondhand dealers [see, e.g., Bus. &

Prof. Code § 21628 (coin dealers subject to reporting requirements)]. A person whose business is limited to the reconditioning and selling of major household appliances are excluded from the statutory definition of secondhand dealers, provided specified conditions are satisfied [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21626.5(b); see § 102B.50[1]].

2. Determine whether secondhand tangible personal property (other than watches, builders' tools, or junk) is exempt from regulation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21629].

NOTE:

Although watches, builders' tools, and junk come within the definition of secondhand tangible personal property, the exemption discussed here only applies to goods solely governed under Bus. & Prof. Code § 21625 et seq. [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21629]. Additional statutes require the reporting and recordkeeping duties for these goods [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 21503].

a. Property was acquired from another secondhand dealer [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21629(a); see also § 102B.52];

b. Property was acquired at nonjudicial sale, transfer, assignment, assignment for benefit of creditors, consignment of assets or stock of business for specified purposes, or nonjudicial sale or transfer from owner of all or substantial part of owner's household or personal property [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21629(b); see also § 102B.52];

c. Property was acquired at public sale;

d. Property was acquired from governmental entity;

e. Property was reported by secondhand dealer as an acquisition or a purchase or has been reported as destroyed or otherwise disposed of to governmental entity by law; or

f. Property was acquired by certain specified persons and entities who buy, sell, or trade precious metals [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21629(f)].

3. Determine whether party seeking to transact business with secondhand goods dealer is of sufficient age.

NOTE:

Secondhand goods dealers may not transact business with minors if the transaction must be reported under Bus. & Prof. Code § 21628, or beginning July 1, 2010, Bus. & Prof. Code § 21628.2 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21643; see Fam. Code § 6500; see also § 102B.220[1][b] (reporting requirements)].

§ 102B.120 Transactions Involving Pawnbrokers

1. Confirm that pawnbroker is in compliance with pawnbroker licensing requirements [see Fin. Code § 21300 et seq.; see also § 102B.13[1]].
2. Ensure that pawnbroker posts schedule of charges in place clearly visible to general public [see Fin. Code §§ 21200, 21200.5; see § 102B.14[2][b], [3][b]].

NOTE:

Pawnbrokers must place notices on their posted schedules of charges informing their borrowers that they may, upon prepayment of mailing costs, require that the notice of termination of the loan period [see P 6, below] be sent by registered or certified mail with return receipt requested [Fin. Code § 21201].

3. Draft loan contract, including [Fin. Code §§ 21201, 21201.3(a), 21201.4]:

NOTE:

Every loan made by a pawnbroker for which goods are received as collateral must be evidenced by a written agreement [Fin. Code § 21201; see § 102B.200].

- a. Four-month loan period.
- b. Date on which loan is due and payable.
- c. Notice informing borrower of his or her right to redeem pledge during redemption period.

d. Notice informing borrower whether item or items pledged are to be stored at business premises of pawnbroker.

e. Adjacent to required provision of P d, above, disclaimer that states: "We must return your property within two business days if your property is stored off premises."

f. Rates and charges that do not exceed those set by statute [see Fin. Code §§ 21200, 21200.5, 21201.4; § 102B.14[2]].

4. Ensure that pawnbroker makes proper record in pawn book, indicating [Fin. Code § 21202]:

NOTE:

A written copy of this record must be furnished to the borrower [Fin. Code § 21202]. This generally constitutes the "pawn ticket" and appears on the reverse side of the pawn agreement [see § 102B.16[1][b]].

a. Date of transaction.

b. Duration.

c. Amount.

d. Rate of interest or charges.

e. Reasonably accurate description of goods pledged.

f. Name and address of borrower.

5. Advise pawnbroker to file report of personal property received on official form [Fin. Code § 21208; see § 102B.202]:

NOTE:

Failure to comply with this requirement is a misdemeanor [Fin. Code § 21209].

a. By mail.

b. Directed to:

(1) Police chief executive of city (or his or her designee), if property is received within territorial limits of an incorporated city; or

(2) County sheriff (or his or her designee), if property is received outside territorial limits of incorporated city.

c. Either:

(1) On daily basis; or

(2) On first working day after receipt or purchase of property.

6. Advise pawnbroker to notify borrower of termination of loan period within 30 days after its expiration, if property has not been redeemed and parties have not agreed to extend period [Fin. Code § 21201; see § 102B.201]:

NOTE:

If a pawnbroker fails to provide notice to a borrower of the expiration of the loan period within 30 days of the expiration date, he or she may not charge any interest on the loan from the day after the expiration of the 30-day period [Fin. Code § 21201].

a. State that:

(1) Original loan/redemption period has terminated.

(2) Redemption period is extended for 10 days from date notice was mailed.

b. Send notice:

(1) By means for which verification of mailing or delivery of notification can be provided; or

(2) If buyer has prepaid mailing costs and requested that any notice of termination be sent by registered or certified mail with return receipt requested, by requested method [Fin. Code § 21201].

(3) To last known address of borrower [Fin. Code § 21201].

2. Assure compliance with requirement for posting of schedule of maximum charges in place of business [see Fin. Code § 22325; see also § 102B.14[2][b], [3][b]].

NOTE:

This requirement applies only to consumer loans under $5,000, unless the regulatory ceiling is used to evade the requirements of the Finance Lenders Law [Fin. Code § 22250(b)].

3. Draft or review loan contract.

NOTE:

For discussion and forms for loan agreements for transactions involving consumers, see Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales . For discussion and forms of commercial loan agreements, see Ch. 43, Commercial Loans .

4. Draft or review security agreements covering collateral pledged for loan.

NOTE:

5. Draft or review statement of loan [see Fin. Code §§ 22337(a) (finance lender), 22338(a) (broker)].

NOTE:

For discussion of the contents of the statement and a form of the statement required for a licensed finance lender, see § 102B.210. For discussion of the statement contents and a form for the statement required for a licensed broker, see § 102B.212.

6. Draft or review statement of participation of third party as broker in making of loan [see Fin. Code § 22337(b)].

NOTE:

For discussion of the required statement by the borrower regarding the participation of a broker in the making of the loan, see § 102B.211.

7. Assure proper execution and delivery of loan instruments.

8. At time finance lender or broker first requires or accepts any fee or signed instrument, assure delivery to potential borrower of statement showing in clear and distinct terms name, address, and license number of finance lender and broker, if any [Fin. Code §§ 22337(f) (finance lender), 22338(e) (broker)].

9. Assure proper recordkeeping and reporting of loans [see Fin. Code §§ 22156-22159; 10 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1425-1427 (regulations promulgated under former law); see also § 102B.53[2], [3]].

32-102B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102B.122

§ 102B.122 Reports Regarding Acquisitions by Secondhand Dealers

NOTE:

Coin dealers [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21626(b) (definition)] as well as secondhand dealers are subject to the reporting requirements discussed in this section [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21628; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21628.1 (exceptions)].

1. Ensure proper record of transaction involving acquisition of property.

a. For secondhand watches, include [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21503]:

NOTE:

This record must be maintained and made available for inspection by the district attorney or his or her representative for three years from the date of the transaction [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21504].

(1) Name and address of buyer;

(2) Date of sale to buyer;

(3) Name of watch or maker; and

(4) Serial number of watch, or any other distinguishing numbers or identification marks.

b. For secondhand builders' tools, include [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21551]:

NOTE:

This information must be kept on a register [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21551].

- (1) Place, date, and hour of acquisition of tools;
- (2) Name, address, and description of person delivering, selling, or pledging tools to dealer;
- (3) Description of tools, including numbers, letters, names, and identification marks; and
- (4) Name and address of person buying tools.

c. For junk, include [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21606]:

NOTE:

A junk dealer or recycler must report the information listed below to the chief of police or sheriff on request and on a monthly basis [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21606(c)(1)]. The chief of police or sheriff may also request weekly reports for no more than a 2-month period (unless the request is renewed), if there is an ongoing investigation of the junk dealer or recycler concerning possible criminal activity [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21606(c)(2)]. This information must be maintained at least two years from the date of the final entry of any purchase or sale of the junk [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21607; see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 21606.5 (inspection of records)].

- (1) Place and date of each sale or purchase made by dealer.
- (2) Name, driver's license number, state of issuance of driver's license.
- (3) For any motor vehicle used to transport junk to dealer's place of business:
 - (a) License number.
 - (b) State of issuance of license.
- (4) Name and address of person buying or otherwise receiving junk.
- (5) License number of vehicle in which junk is removed from dealer's premises.
- (6) Description of junk sold or disposed of.
- (7) Statement indicating:
 - (a) That seller of junk is its owner; or
 - (b) Name of person from whom junk was obtained.

d. For secondhand tangible personal property, including business machines, include required information [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 21628, 21628.5].

NOTE:

For the required contents of this record, see § 102B.220[1][c].

e. For firearms, effective July 1, 2010, include information prescribed by Department of Justice [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21628.2(b), (e)].

2. Ensure filing of report of acquisition of secondhand goods with proper authority:

a. For builders' tools, file copy of register daily, except on legal holidays, with chief of police or other similar officer in local jurisdiction [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21553].

NOTE:

The register required by Bus. & Prof. Code § 21551 is a record of the place, date, hour, names and addresses of the parties involved, and descriptions of the builders' tools acquired or sold in the transaction [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21551]. Many local law enforcement agencies will accept the filing of the official form set out in § 102B.220 in lieu of a filing of a copy of the register.

b. For secondhand tangible personal property [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21630; see also § 102B.220]:

NOTE:

The dealer must use the official report form [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21628; see § 102B.220]. The acquisition reports must be submitted daily, or on the first working day after the receipt or purchase of the property [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21628]. Each submission must be made as noted below, using existing forms and procedures, until the Department of Justice and local law enforcement agencies develop a standard format for electronic reporting [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21630; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21628(j)(1)].

(1) If property is received within territorial limits of an incorporated city, submit report to police chief executive of city or his or her designee.

(2) If property is received outside territorial limits of incorporated city, submit report to county sheriff or his or her designee.

c. For firearms, effective July 1, 2010, electronically report to Department of Justice, in a format prescribed by Department [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21628.2(b), (e)].

NOTE:

The report must be made on the day of the transaction [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21628.2(b), (e) (operative July 1, 2010)]. The secondhand dealer also must retain a copy of the report submitted to the Department of Justice and make it available for inspection by the Department, any peace officer, or any local law enforcement employee who is authorized by Penal Code 12071 to inspect a firearms transaction record [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21628.2(b), (e)].

PART IV. FORMS
A. Pawnbroker Transactions

32-102B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102B.200

§ 102B.200 Pawnbroker Loan Agreement

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a standard agreement between a borrower and a pawnbroker. It constitutes the written contract between the parties that the pawnbroker is required to furnish to the borrower [see Fin. Code § 21201] and includes information relating to the period of the loan, the date when it is due and payable, and the pledgor's right to redeem the pledge.

Because this agreement takes the form of a secured transaction, it is governed by Division 9 of the Commercial Code [see Com. Code § 9101 et seq.]. The provisions of Division 9 apply to pawnbroker transactions to the extent they do not conflict with the provisions of the Pawnbroker Law [Com. Code § 9201(b); see Fin. Code § 21000 et seq. (Pawnbroker Law)]. For further discussion of the Commercial Code and secured transactions, see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions.

[b] Content Requirements

The loan contract must provide a four-month loan period and must state the loan period and the date on which the loan is due and payable. Further, it must clearly inform the borrower of his or her right to redeem the pledge during the loan period [Fin. Code § 21201; see [c], below].

The loan contract must contain a separate notice prescribed by statute that advises the borrower of his or her right of redemption. The notice must appear, as in the form below, immediately above the space for the borrower's signature. It must be in at least 8-point bold face type and circumscribed by a box [see Fin. Code § 21201]. In addition, the contract must contain a provision in 8-point type stating whether the item or items pledged are to be stored at the business premises of the pawnbroker and adjacent to this provision, a disclaimer that states: "We must return your property within two business days if your property is stored off premises" [Fin. Code § 21201.3(a); see Fin. Code § 21201.3(c) (signage requirement if property is stored at location other than pawnshop)].

Charges for the first 90 days of any loan made pursuant to the written contract required by Fin. Code § 21201 must be determined by applying the schedule of charges contained in Fin. Code § 21200.5 [Fin. Code § 21201.4; see § 102B.14[2][a] (maximum permissible charges for short term loans)]. Charges for any period of time following the first 90 days of the loan must be determined by applying the schedule of maximum compensation contained in Fin. Code § 21200 [Fin. Code § 21201.4; see § 102B.14[2][b] (maximum permissible charges for loans with terms exceeding 90 days)].

[c] Borrower's Right of Redemption

[i] Four-Month Redemption Period

The pawnbroker must retain the pledged property for a period of four months from the date on which the loan begins. During that period the borrower may redeem the property on repayment of the loan and charges [Fin. Code § 21201].

[ii] Storage of Pawns Property Off Premises

If the borrower and the pawnbroker agree in writing that the pawned property may be stored off premises, following the request to redeem the loan, the pawnbroker must return the pledged property to the consumer the next calendar day when both the pawnbroker's store and the storage facility are open, not to exceed two business days [Fin. Code § 21201].

[iii] Notice Requirement

If the borrower does not redeem the property within the four-month loan period and the parties do not otherwise agree in writing to extend the loan period, the pawnbroker, within 30 days of the expiration of the loan period, must notify the borrower at his or her last known address of the termination of the loan period. The notice must be sent by a means for which verification of mailing or delivery of the notification can be provided by the pawnbroker. It must state that the redemption period is being extended for 10 days from the mailing of the notice [Fin. Code § 21201; see § 102B.201]. If the pawnbroker fails to notify the borrower within 30 days of the expiration of the loan period, the pawnbroker must not charge interest from the day after the expiration of that period [Fin. Code § 21201].

However, the pawnbroker must include, on his or her posted schedule of charges, a notice informing borrowers that on prepayment of mailing costs, they may require the pawnbroker to send the notice of termination of the loan period by registered or certified mail with return receipt requested [Fin. Code § 21201; see § 102B.14[2][b], [3][b] (posted schedule of charges)].

[iv] Effect of Failure to Redeem

If the property is not redeemed within the additional 10-day period, the pawnbroker becomes vested with all right, title, and interest in the property. All other laws relating to foreclosures of pledges are not applicable to pledges in which the title transfers in accordance with the procedure under Pawnbroker Law. The pawnbroker must not sell any pledged article until he or she has become vested with the title to that property. Violation of this rule is a misdemeanor [Fin. Code § 21201; see Fin. Code § 21209; see also § 102B.18].

Pawnbroker Loan Agreement

PAWNBROKER PLEDGE AGREEMENT

In consideration for the loan made on _____ [date], for the sum of $ _____,
 _____ [name of borrower] ("Pledgor") pledges the property described in this Pledge Agreement to _____ [name of pawnbroker] ("Pledgee") as security for that loan, together with compensation for Pledgee and charges in connection with that loan. Pledgor promises to repay the loan, compensation, and charges as provided under this Agreement on or before _____ [specify date four months from date loan begins], the Due Date. The period of time beginning on _____ [same commencement date of loan first used above] and ending on _____ [date four months after loan commencement date] (the "Due Date"), is referred to in this Agreement as the Loan Period.

Property Pledged

1. The personal property described below is pledged to Pledgee as security for the loan: [give accurate description of property including manufacturer, model, serial number, color, and other distinguishing characteristics].

Storage of Pledged Property

2. [Add the following in 8-point type] The property pledged under this Agreement [will or will not] be stored at the business premises of Pledgee.

[The following disclosure must appear in at least 8-point type, adjacent to the provision specifying whether items will be stored at the pawnbroker's business premises (Fin. Code § 21201.3(a):]

We must return your property within two business days if your property is stored off premises.

[Continue with the following:]

Compensation

3. The rate of Pledgee's compensation shall be [for loan with a bona fide principal amount of less than $2,500: the maximum permitted under Financial Code Sections 21200.5 and 21200 or, for loan with a bona fide principal amount of $2,500 or more, specify rate and manner in which calculated]. If the loan is paid in full in less than one month, one month's interest shall be charged. Charges, including any handling and storage charges, shall be the maximum permitted under the Pawnbroker Law, which is set forth in Financial Code Sections 21000 through 21209.

Redemption

4. By paying the full amount of the loan and all applicable accrued charges on or before the Due Date of the loan, Pledgor may redeem the property pledged under this Agreement. If any pledged property is not redeemed during the Loan Period, and Pledgor and Pledgee have not mutually agreed in writing to extend the Loan Period, Pledgee shall notify Pledgor of the termination of the Loan Period by a means for which verification of mailing or delivery of the notification can be provided by the Pledgee, addressed to the last known address of Pledgor. If Pledgor has prepaid mailing costs and requested that any notice of termination be sent by registered or certified mail with return receipt requested, notification will be the requested method, sent to the last known address of Pledgor. Further, Pledgee shall extend Pledgor's right of redemption for a period of 10 days from the date of mailing the notice. If the pledged article is not redeemed within that 10-day period, Pledgee shall become vested with all right, title, and interest of Pledgor, or _____ [his or her] assigns, to the pledged property, to hold and dispose of as _____ [his or her] own property subject to the provisions of the California Pawnbroker Law.

Representations, Warranties, and Waivers

5. Pledgor represents and warrants that _____ [he or she] is the owner or agent of the owner of the pledged property, that it is free and clear of all liens and encumbrances, and that _____ [he or she] is legally authorized to pledge this property. Pledgee shall not be liable for loss or damage to the pledged property resulting from burglary, theft, robbery, fire, water, acts of God, or civil disturbance. Pledgee represents that no insurance is carried for the above perils, in favor of or for the benefit of Pledgor. If Pledgor's representation and warranty regarding clear title is false, Pledgee may, at _____ [his or her] option, pay liens or charges due or to become due on or against pledged property, and the amount paid shall be added to the loan secured by this Agreement. This contract and the pledged property may be assigned by Pledgee without notice to Pledgor.

Repayment

6. On payment of the loan, compensation, and charges and presentation of Pledgor's copy of this Pledge Agreement to Pledgee, or _____ [his or her] assigns, Pledgee shall deliver the pledged property to Pledgor or _____ [his or her] agent, or, if Pledgor's copy of the Pledge Agreement bears the guaranteed endorsement of Pledgor, to its bearer.

Executed on _____ [date].

[The following notice must be in at least 8-point boldface type and be circumscribed by a box and must appear immediately above the space for the borrower's signature (Fin. Code § 21201):]

You may redeem the property you have pledged at any time until the close of business on _____ [due date specified above in agreement or insert date four months from date loan begins]. To redeem, you must pay the amount of the loan and the applicable charges that have accrued through the date on which you redeem.

32-102B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102B.201

§ 102B.201 Notice of Termination of Loan Period and 10-Day Extension of Redemption Right

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This notice may be used by a pawnbroker to notify a pledgor/borrower that the four-month loan period has expired and that the pawnbroker is extending for 10 days (from the date the notice is mailed) the pledgor's right to redeem pledged personal property [see Fin. Code § 21201]. If the property is not redeemed during the extended redemption period, all right, title, and interest in the pledged property vests in the pawnbroker [Fin. Code § 21201].

[b] Notice Requirements

If any pledged property is not redeemed during the original four-month loan period, and the borrower and pawnbroker do not agree in writing to extend the loan period, the pawnbroker must give the borrower written notice that the loan period has terminated and that the borrower's right of redemption is being extended for a 10-day period. If the pawnbroker fails to notify the borrower within 30 days after expiration of the loan period, the pawnbroker may not charge interest from the day after expiration of the 30-day period [Fin. Code § 21201].

The notice must be sent a means for which verification of mailing or delivery of the notification can be provided by the pawnbroker. Alternatively, if the borrower has prepaid mailing costs and requested that any notice of termination of the loan period be sent by registered or certified mail with return receipt requested [see Fin. Code § 21200.5], the pawnbroker must send the notice by the requested method [Fin. Code § 21201]. In any event, the notice must be sent to the last known address of the pledgor [Fin. Code § 21201].

[c] Preparation Fee

The pawnbroker may charge a fee of up to $2 for services and costs pertaining to the preparation of the notice, in addition to any other allowed charges [Fin. Code § 21201.2].

32-102B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102B.202

§ 102B.202 Pawnbroker's Report of Acquisition of Tangible Personal Property

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a report of the acquisition of tangible personal property by a pawnbroker. A pawnbroker [see Fin. Code § 21000(definition)] is required to report the receipt or purchase of tangible personal property [Fin. Code § 21208; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21627 ("tangible personal property" defined)]. This is the official form provided by the Department of Justice for this purpose [see Fin. Code § 21208].

Copies of this form may be obtained from local police and sheriff's departments or from the Department of Justice [see Fin. Code § 21208].

[b] Reporting Requirements

Every pawnbroker must report daily, or on the first working day after receipt or purchase, all descriptions of all property received in pledge or purchased as tangible personal property, in whatever quantity received [Fin. Code § 21208; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21627 (tangible personal property)]. This includes property purchased as tangible personal property at wholesale, tangible personal property taken in trade, or tangible personal property taken in for sale or possessed on consignment for sale [Fin. Code § 21208]. The failure to comply with the reporting requirements is a misdemeanor [Fin. Code § 21209].

If the property is received within the territorial limits of an incorporated city, the report must be submitted to the police chief executive of the city or his or her designee. If the property is received outside the territorial limits of an incorporated city, the report must be submitted to the county sheriff or his or her designee [Fin. Code § 21208]. Reports should be filed by mail, unless the pawnbroker and the officer authorized to receive the report agree to the contrary [Fin. Code § 21208].

B. Finance Lender Transactions

32-102B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102B.210

§ 102B.210 Loan Statement Given by Finance Lender

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an example of the type of loan statement that a finance lender must deliver to a borrower when the transaction is subject to the Finance Lenders Law [see Fin. Code § 22337(a)]. It is normally accompanied by a loan agreement, a security agreement, and any other documents supporting the loan transaction. The finance lender must also provide the borrower with a statement regarding the involvement (if any) of a broker in the transaction [see Fin. Code § 22337(b); see also § 102B.211]. If a licensed broker [see Fin. Code § 22004 (definition)] has negotiated or performed any other act as a broker in connection with the loan transaction, the broker must provide a separate loan statement [Fin. Code § 22338(a); see § 102B.212].

Personal property loan agreements do not significantly differ from other forms of consumer and commercial loan agreements, and therefore are not repeated in this chapter. For discussion and forms of loan agreements for consumer installment sales, see Volume 9, Chapter 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales. For discussion and forms of commercial loans, see Volume 9, Chapter 43, Commercial Loans.

Generally, a loan made by a finance lender is accompanied by a security agreement covering the collateral or goods purchased with the loan proceeds. For discussion and forms of secured transactions, see Volume 9, Chapter 42, Secured Transactions.

[b] Content Requirements

A finance lender must deliver to the borrower, at the time the loan is made, a statement showing in clear and distinct terms the name, address, and license number of the finance lender, and of any broker involved in the transaction. The statement must also show the date, amount, and maturity of the loan contract, how and when it is repayable, the nature of any security for the loan, and the agreed rate of charge or the annual percentage rate pursuant to Regulation Z of the federal Truth in Lending Law [Fin. Code § 22337(a); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.1 et seq. (Regulation Z); see also Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales].

If the loan refinances a retail installment contract subject to the Unruh Act [Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.] that is held by the finance lender (or its affiliates or subsidiaries), and if that refinance loan takes a security interest in the borrower's principal residence, the loan must have a principal amount of $5,000 or more, and the loan statement must contain a special statutory notice that warns the borrower of the consequences of his or her default under the refinance loan [Fin. Code § 22341(a)(3)]. That notice is set out separately as § 102B.215, but must be incorporated into the following form under the circumstances described above.

Additionally, the statement must contain the following [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1454(a) (referring to former Fin. Code §§ 22473, 24473)]:

- (1) The name and address of the borrower;
- (2) A statement of the actual amount of cash received and retained by the borrower and a statement of any funds (other than any "excess charges") paid to third persons pursuant to the borrower's written instructions [see Fin. Code §§ 22306, 22250(b) (prohibition of "excess charges" for consumer loans under $5,000)];
- (3) A statement of any fees, charges, costs, insurance premiums, or other sums paid or to be paid on behalf of the borrower at the time the loan is made. If the loan is secured by real property and the loan proceeds were distributed to an escrow holder, a copy of the escrow holder's closing statement satisfies this requirement;
- (4) A statement that the borrower will have the right to make payments in advance, in any amount, on any loan contract, at any time [see Fin. Code § 22337(c); see also [c][ii], below];
- (5) A statement, in 12-point boldface capital letters, advising the borrower to contact the Department of Corporations for information [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1454(a)(5)];
- (6) A statement indicating that the loan is made pursuant to the Finance Lenders Law.

Only items (1), (5), and (6), above, apply to open-end loan agreements [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1454(b)].

[c] Finance Lender's Responsibilities[i] Statement Concerning Participation of Broker

A finance lender must obtain a signed statement from the borrower indicating whether any person has performed any act as a broker in connection with the making of the loan. If the borrower indicates that a broker or other person did participate, then the finance lender must obtain a full statement of all sums paid or payable to the broker or the other person [Fin. Code § 22337(b)]. For further discussion and a form of that statement, see § 102B.211.

[ii] Advance Payments and Receipts for Payments

A finance lender must allow a borrower to make advance payments in any amount on any loan contract at any time. The finance lender may apply the payment first to any agreed prepayment penalty, then to all charges due, including charges at the agreed rate or rates up to the date of payment. For consumer loans of under $2,500, the charge must not exceed the statutory maximum [Fin. Code § 22337(c); see Fin. Code §§ 22303, 22304(maximum charges)].

The finance lender must also give a receipt for any cash payment on any loan account to the person making the payment or the person requesting the receipt at the time the payment is made. The receipt must be plain and complete, showing the total amount received and identifying the loan contract to which the payment is applied [Fin. Code § 22337(d)].

At the time a finance lender first requires or accepts any fee or any signed instrument from a potential borrower, the finance lender must deliver or cause to be delivered a statement to the potential borrower (or to any one of them) showing in clear and distinct terms the name, address, and license number of the finance lender and of the broker, if any [Fin. Code § 22337(f); see § 102B.213].

[iii] Lender's Duties on Repayment by Borrower

On repayment of any loan in full, the finance lender must do all of the following [Fin. Code § 22337(e)]:

- Release all security held for that loan.
- Endorse and return any certificate of ownership.
- Cancel or plainly mark "paid" the instrument evidencing the debt, and return it to the borrower or person making the final payment.

The finance lender need not return a document if [Fin. Code § 22337(e)]:

- It is a part of the court record in any action;
- It was delivered to a third person for the purpose of carrying out its terms; or
- It is a security agreement that secures any other indebtedness of a borrower to the finance lender.

If the finance lender has taken a trust deed on real property as security for a loan that has subsequently been paid in full, the lender must deliver a duly executed request for reconveyance to the trustor or trustee for the purpose of recording a reconveyance [Fin. Code § 22337(e)].

A termination statement, given by the finance lender to the borrower pursuant to Com. Code §§ 9512 and 9513, constitutes a release of security when a financing statement has been filed pursuant to the Commercial Code [Fin. Code § 22337(e); see Com. Code § 9501; see also Ch. 42, Secured Transactions, §§ 42.211 (financing statement), 42.214 (termination statement)].

32-102B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102B.211

§ 102B.211 Borrower's Statement of Broker Involvement

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a statement that a finance lender may provide to a borrower to permit the borrower to indicate whether or not a broker was involved in the loan transaction. This type of borrower's statement must be used when the loan transaction is subject to the Finance Lenders Law [see Fin. Code § 22000 et seq.]. Under the Law, a "broker" is a person engaged in the business of negotiating or performing acts in connection with loans made by finance lenders [Fin. Code § 22004].

[b] Requirement of Statement

A finance lender must obtain a signed statement from the borrower indicating whether any person has performed any act as a broker in connection with the making of the loan [Fin. Code § 22337(b)]. The statute does not specify when this statement must be obtained, but it is advisable to obtain the statement at the same time as any other loan documents are executed by the borrower. If the borrower indicates that a broker or some other person did participate, the finance lender must obtain a full statement of all sums paid or payable to the broker or other person [Fin. Code § 22337(b)].

The finance lender must keep these statements for three years from and after the date the loan has been paid in full, matured according to its terms, or charged off [Fin. Code § 22337(b)].

32-102B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102B.212

§ 102B.212 Loan Statement Given by Broker

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an example of the loan statement that must be given by a broker licensed under the Finance Lenders Law to a borrower when the broker has negotiated or performed any act in connection with a loan made by a licensed finance lender [see Fin. Code §§ 22004 ("broker" defined), 22338(a) (statement requirement)]. For a similar loan statement that a finance lender must prepare and deliver to the borrower, see § 102B.210 [see Fin Code § 22337(a)].

At the time of the final negotiation or loan arrangement by a licensed broker, the broker must deliver a loan statement to the borrower, or if more than one borrower, to any one of them [Fin. Code § 22338(a)]. The broker must also deliver a copy of the statement to the finance lender [Fin. Code § 22338(b)].

[b] Content Requirements

The statement must show, in clear and distinct terms, the name, address, and license number of the broker and of the finance lender. The statement must also show the date, the amount, and the terms of the agreement with the broker, and all amounts paid or to be paid to the broker and to any other person other than the finance lender [Fin. Code § 22338(a)].

If the loan refinances a retail installment contract subject to the Unruh Act [Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.] that is held by the broker (or its affiliates or subsidiaries), and if that refinance loan takes a security interest in the borrower's principal residence, the loan must have a principal amount of $5,000 or more, and the loan statement must contain a special statutory notice that warns the borrower of the consequences of his or her default under the refinance loan [Fin. Code § 22341(a)(3)]. That notice is set out separately as § 102B.215, but should be included in the following form under the circumstances described above.

Additionally, the statement must contain the following [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1454(a)] (referring to former Fin. Code §§ 22473, 24473)]:

- (1) The name and address of the borrower;
- (2) A statement of the actual amount of cash received and retained by the borrower and a statement of any funds (other than any "excess charges") paid to third persons pursuant to the borrower's written instructions [see Fin. Code §§ 22306, 22250(b)] (prohibition of "excess charges" for consumer loans under $5,000);
- (3) A statement of any fees, charges, costs, insurance premiums, or other sums paid or to be paid on behalf of the borrower at the time the loan is made. If the loan is secured by real property and the loan proceeds were distributed to an escrow holder, a copy of the escrow holder's closing statement satisfies this requirement;
- (4) A statement that the borrower will have the right to make payments in advance, in any amount, on any loan contract, at any time [see Fin. Code § 22337(c)];
- (5) A statement, in 12-point boldface capital letters, advising the borrower to contact the Department of Corporations for information [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1454(a)(5)];
- (6) A statement indicating that the loan is made pursuant to the Finance Lenders Law.

Only items (1), (5), and (6), above, apply to open-end loan agreements [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 1454(b)].

[c] Additional Responsibilities of Broker

[i] Broker Identification Statement

At time the broker first requires or accepts any signed instrument, or the payment of any fee, from a potential borrower or borrowers, the broker must deliver a statement to the potential borrower or borrowers showing in clear and distinct terms the broker's name, address, and license number [Fin. Code § 22338(e); see § 102B.214].

[ii] Receipt for Payment

The broker must also deliver to the person making any payment that is given to and retained by the broker a plain and complete receipt for each payment made. Each receipt must be delivered at the time the payment is made, and must show the total amount received and identify the brokerage agreement and loan contract on which the payment is applied. If the payment is made by a person other than the finance lender, a copy of the receipt must be delivered to the finance lender [Fin. Code § 22338(c)].

[iii] Finance Lender Compliance

The broker must ensure that the finance lender complies with the provisions of Financial Code Section 22337(e) (governing repayments of loans) when the borrower pays the loan in full [Fin. Code § 22338(d); see § 102B.210[c][iii]].

§ 102B.213 Finance Lender's Statement of Name, Address, and License Number of Lender and Broker[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a disclosure statement, to be delivered to a potential borrower, showing the name, address, and license number of the finance lender with whom the potential borrower is negotiating. The finance lender is required to deliver the statement, or cause it to be delivered, to the potential borrower when the lender first requires or accepts any signed instrument or fee. If there are two or more potential borrowers, the finance lender must deliver the statement to any one of them. If a broker is involved in the transaction, the statement must also include the broker's name, address, and license number [Fin. Code § 22337(f); see § 102B.214 (similar form for broker disclosure statement)].

In addition to providing the information required by statute, this form serves as a receipt for the instrument or fees received by the finance lender. The finance lender should retain a copy of the statement, signed by the potential borrower, for at least three years after making the final entry on the finance loan [Fin. Code § 22157].

This form is a disclosure statement, to be delivered to a potential borrower, showing the name, address, and license number of the broker and finance lender with whom the potential borrower is negotiating. The broker is required to deliver the statement to the potential borrower or borrowers when the broker first requires or accepts any signed instrument or fee [Fin. Code § 22338(e); see § 102B.213 (similar form applicable to finance lenders)].

Note that statutory requirements for brokers differs slightly from those applicable to finance lenders. The broker disclosure requirement omits the language permitting the licensee to "cause" the statement to be delivered to the borrower, and requires delivery to the "borrower or borrowers," rather than to "any one" of the borrowers if there are more than one [compare Fin. Code §§ 22337(f) (finance lenders), 22338(e) (brokers)].

In addition to providing the information required by statute, this form serves as a receipt for the instrument or fees received by the broker. The broker should retain a copy of the statement, signed by the potential borrower, for at least three years after making the final entry on the finance loan [Fin. Code § 22157].

32-102B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102B.215

§ 102B.215 Notice That Borrower's Home Is Security for Loan to Refinance Retail Installment Contract

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice that must be given to a borrower when a licensee under the Finance Lenders Law makes a loan to refinance a retail installment contract subject to the Unruh Act [see Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.] that is held by the licensee (or its affiliates or subsidiaries), if the licensee acquires a security interest in the borrower's principal residence under the refinance loan [Fin. Code § 22341(a)(3)].

For a provision that must be included in the loan documents for a refinance loan to disclose a balloon payment, see § 102B.216.

[b] Notice Requirements

[i] When Notice Is Required

For a refinance loan of this type, the licensee may not take a security interest in real property that is the principal residence of the borrower unless the loan has a principal amount of at least $5,000, and the statutory notice set forth below is given to the borrower [Fin. Code § 22341(a)(3)]. Additionally, any loan made by a finance lender to refinance a retail installment contract subject to the Unruh Act and held by the finance lender (or its affiliates or subsidiaries), whether or not the loan is secured by the borrower's personal residence, may be made by the lender only if certain conditions are satisfied [see Fin. Code § 22341(a); see also [c], below].

[ii] Placement and Appearance of Notice

The statutory notice reproduced below must be incorporated into the loan statement that a broker is required to give to a borrower at the time the final negotiation or arrangement is made [Fin. Code § 22341(a)(3); see Fin. Code § 22338(a) (broker's loan statement); see also § 102B.212]. Although the statute does not specifically require inclusion of this notice in the finance lender's loan statement [see Fin. Code § 22337(a) (finance lender's loan statement); see also § 102B.210], the language of the balance of the statute (making it applicable to all licensees) would seem to make its requirements applicable to finance lenders when making refinance loans of the kind described [see Fin. Code § 22341(a)(3)].

The notice must be printed in not less than 14-point bold type, must be set apart from the rest of the statement by a border, and must appear directly above a signature block that must be signed by the borrower. It must also must be written in the same language, for example, Spanish, as used in the borrower's loan documents. A security interest in the borrower's principal residence as described above that is taken without this required prior notice and without the borrower's signature, is void and unenforceable [Fin. Code § 22341(a)(3)].

[c] Requirements for Loans Refinancing Retail Installment Contracts

[i] Conditions for Making Loan

A licensed finance lender may not make a loan to refinance a retail installment contract subject to the Unruh Act [Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.] that is held by the lender (or its subsidiaries or affiliates) unless all of the following conditions are met [Fin. Code § 22341(a)]:

- (1) The buyer must have been making installment payments required by the retail installment contract for a period of at least 90 days, and the contract must have a term of least 180 days and must not provide for any scheduled installment that is more than twice the amount of any other scheduled installment;
- (2) The loan must provide for additional proceeds (other than for insurance) in an amount that is at least equal to the outstanding principal balance of the retail installment contract, and must provide for payment in full of the retail installment contract;
- (3) If the security interest is in real property that is the principal residence of the borrower, the loan must have a principal amount of at least $5,000, and the required statutory notice must be given to the borrower [see [b], above];
- (4) The finance lender must not sell, attempt to sell, or agree to sell, any goods or services to the borrower (other than credit insurance [see Fin. Code § 22314] and insurance required by the finance lender to protect its security interest) until the loan has been in effect for at least 30 days. The amount of insurance required by the finance lender to protect its security interest must not exceed the lesser of the principal amount of the loan and the replacement value of the security as determined by the insurer;
- (5) A finance lender that is an assignee of the retail installment contract must continue to be subject under the loan to all equities and defenses of the borrower against the seller arising out of the sale, notwithstanding an agreement to the contrary;
- (6) If the loan has a principal amount of less than $10,000, it must not provide for any scheduled installment that is more than twice the amount of any other scheduled installment [but see Fin. Code § 22341(d)] (requirement does not apply to open-end loans);
- (7) If the loan has a principal amount of $10,000 or more and provides for any scheduled installment that is more than twice the amount of any other scheduled installment, it must contain a provision prescribed by statute disclosing the balloon payment. If the borrower defaults in the payment of any balloon payment, the borrower must be given an absolute right to obtain a new payment schedule; installment amounts under the new schedule must not be substantially greater than the average of preceding installments unless agreed to by the buyer [see § 102B.216; but see Fin. Code § 22341(d) (requirement does not apply to open-end loans)].

[ii] Effect of Unruh Act

A refinance loan made pursuant to the requirements outlined above is subject to the Finance Lenders Law and not to the Unruh Act [Fin. Code § 22341(b); see Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.]. However, the validity of the underlying retail installment contract under the Unruh Act may affect enforceability of the refinance loan. Under the Unruh Act, a contract for goods may not provide for a security interest in real property if the primary goods sold are not to be attached to the real property [Civ. Code § 1804.3(b)]. This type of invalid security interest may not serve as consideration in whole or in part for a loan that refinances the underlying retail installment contract, notwithstanding any agreement to the contrary [Fin. Code § 22341(e)].

[2] FORMNotice That Borrower's Home Is Security for Loan to Refinance Retail Installment Contract

[If loan documents are in any language other than English, this notice must be written in that same other language. Also, the notice must be printed in at least 14-point bold type, must be set apart from the rest of the loan statement by a border, and must appear directly above a signature block to be signed by the borrower.]

WARNING TO BORROWER: IF YOU ACCEPT THIS LOAN, YOU WILL BE PUTTING UP YOUR HOME AS SECURITY. THIS MEANS THAT YOUR HOME COULD BE SOLD WITHOUT YOUR PERMISSION AND WITHOUT ANY COURT ACTION IF YOU MISS ANY PAYMENT AS REQUIRED BY THIS LOAN.

§ 102B.216 Notice of Balloon Payment in Loan to Refinance Retail Installment Contract Secured by Borrower's Principal Residence

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice of a balloon payment in a loan with a principal amount of $10,000 or more made by a finance lender to refinance a retail installment contract subject to the Unruh Act [Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.] if the loan is held by the lender (or its subsidiaries or affiliates). For purposes of this requirement, a refinance loan has a "balloon payment" if it requires any scheduled installment payment that is more than twice the amount of any other scheduled installment [Fin. Code § 22341(a)(7)]. If the principal balance of the loan is less than $10,000, the loan cannot require a balloon payment [Fin. Code § 22341(a)(6)]. These requirements do not apply to open-end loans [Fin. Code § 22341(d)].

Refinance loans by a finance lender of retail installment contracts held by the broker (or its subsidiaries or affiliates) cannot be made at all unless several conditions are satisfied [see Fin. Code § 22341(a); see § 102B.215[1][c]].

[b] Rights of Borrower on Default

If the borrower defaults in the payment of any balloon payment, he or she must be given an absolute right to obtain a new payment schedule. The provision below advises the borrower of this right. Unless agreed to by the borrower, the installment amounts under the new schedule may not be substantially greater than the average of the preceding installments [Fin. Code § 22341(a)(7)].

[2] FORM

Notice of Balloon Payment in Loan to Refinance Retail Installment Contract Secured by Borrower's Principal Residence

The payment schedule contained in this loan requires that you make a balloon payment of $[amount of balloon payment ], which is a payment of more than double the amount of the regular payments. You have an absolute right to obtain a new payment schedule if you default in the payment of any balloon payment.

32-102B California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102B.220

§ 102B.220 Report of Acquisition of Secondhand Goods [Form JUS 123]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is the official form (California Department of Justice Form JUS 123) used to report the receipt or purchase of secondhand tangible personal property [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21627(a), (b)] by a secondhand dealer [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21626 ("secondhand dealer" defined)], or by a coin dealer [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21626(b) (definition)]. The form is available from local police and sheriff's departments and from the Department of Justice [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21633]. Particular jurisdictions may use slightly different forms [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21638; see Miller v. Murphy (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 337, 340-342, 191 Cal. Rptr. 740 (local governments free to require additional information in reports); but see Malish v. City of San Diego (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 725, 734-736, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 18 (requirements of local ordinance, which were "other than" identification and reporting requirements set forth in Bus. & Prof. Code § 21628 and related reporting statutes, were expressly prohibited by Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 21637, 21638)]. Pawnbrokers must also use this form to report their receipt of pledged property [see Fin. Code § 21208; see also § 102B.200].

Secondhand dealers trading in builders' tools are required to submit a true and complete copy of their register of transactions each day [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 21551, 21553]. Notwithstanding that requirement, many local jurisdictions will accept this report in lieu of a copy of the register.

[b] Reporting Requirement

Every secondhand dealer and every coin dealer must report daily, or on the first working day after receipt or purchase, all tangible personal property that the dealer has purchased, taken in trade or pawn, accepted for sale on consignment, or accepted for auctioning [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21628; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21627 ("tangible personal property" defined); see also § 102B.50[2]], unless the property is exempt from this requirement [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21629; see also § 102B.52]. Coin dealers engaging in fewer than 10 transactions per week in which dealer has purchased, taken in trade or in pawn, accepted for sale or consignment, or accepted for auctioning tangible personal property also must report the required information [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21628(j)(3)]. The failure to do so is a misdemeanor [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21645]. However, notwithstanding the reporting requirements of Bus. and Prof. Code § 21628, transaction reports are not required to be submitted to the local law enforcement agency if the report of an acquisition of the same property from the same customer has been submitted within the preceding 12 months, except when submission of a report is specifically requested in writing by the local licensing authority [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21628.1].

Firearms are excepted from the reporting requirement of Bus. & Prof. Code § 21628 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21628(l); 2009 Stats. Ch. 335, § 2; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21828(k) (licensed firearms dealer is not exempt from reporting requirements of Penal Code § 12071)]. However, effective July 1, 2010, every secondhand dealer must, on the day of the transaction, electronically report to the Department of Justice, each firearm purchased, taken in trade, taken in pawn, accepted for sale on consignment, or accepted for auctioning [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21628.1(b), (e)]. The Department of Justice prescribes the reporting format [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21628.2(b)].

If the property is received within the territorial limits of an incorporated city, the dealer must submit the original and one copy of the form (which is prepared in triplicate) to the police chief executive of the city or his or her designee. If the property is received outside the territorial limits of an incorporated city, the submission must be made to the county sheriff or his or her designee [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21630]. Dealers must use existing forms and procedures until the Department of Justice and local law enforcement agencies develop a standard format for electronic reporting [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21628(j)(2); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21628(j)(1) (electronic reporting to be developed by Department of Justice and local law enforcement agencies)]. The secondhand dealer must retain the third copy of the report in his or her place of business for three years [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21633].

[c] Content Requirements

The report must be legible, prepared in English, and completed to the extent applicable. It must also include all of the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 21628]:

- The name and current address of the intended seller or pledgor of the property.
- The identification of the intended seller or pledgor [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 21628(b) (acceptable identification)].
- A complete and reasonably accurate description of serialized property, including the serial number and other identifying marks or symbols, owner-applied numbers, manufacturer's named brand, and model name or number.
- A complete and reasonably accurate description of nonserialized property, including size, color, material, manufacturer's pattern name (when known), owner-applied numbers and personalized inscriptions, and other identifying marks or symbols.
- A certification by the intended seller or pledgor that he or she is the owner of the property or has the authority of the owner to sell or pledge the property.
- A certification by the intended seller or pledgor that to his or her knowledge and belief the information is true and complete.
- A legible fingerprint taken from the intended seller or pledgor, as prescribed by the Department of Justice.

[d] Civil Liability for Removal or Alteration of Manufacturer Identification

A person who, with intent to defraud, sells or disposes of a mechanical or electrical device, appliance, contrivance, material, piece or apparatus, or equipment, from which the manufacturer's nameplate, serial number, or any other distinguishing number or identification mark has been removed, defaced, covered, altered, or destroyed, is liable to the manufacturer for the sum of $500 per transaction, and to the purchaser for treble the actual damages sustained by the purchaser. This prohibition does not apply if the changes or alterations have been customarily made or done as an established practice in the ordinary and regular conduct of business by the original manufacturer, or his or her duly appointed direct representative, or under specific authorization from the original manufacturer [Civ. Code § 1710.1].

Scope

This chapter discusses the rights and obligations of finders and holders of lost or unclaimed personal property, including stray animals. It includes forms and instructions for reporting found property to its owner and to the appropriate public officials, giving notice of sale by public auction of unclaimed property, and claiming the proceeds of unclaimed property sold at public auction.

Transactions to enforce liens on unclaimed property are covered in Ch. 102A, Personal Property Liens . Forms and procedures used by museums that are in possession of unclaimed property originally loaned to the museum [see Civ. Code § 1899 et seq.] are covered in Ch. 102E, Sales and Loans of Artwork . For discussion of the disposition of property left in the possession of landlords by paying guests or tenants [see Civ. Code § 1980 et seq.], see Ch. 35B, Modification and Termination of Leases .

CHAPTER 102C LOST AND UNCLAIMED PROPERTY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

32-102C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102C.10

§ 102C.10 Applicable Laws

Several sets of statutes govern lost and unclaimed property. The statutes governing the following are covered in this chapter:

- The rights and obligations of finders of lost and unclaimed personal property in general and the related duties of local officials are governed by Civ. Code § 2080 et seq., discussed in § 102C.11, with related forms in §§ 102C.200 and 102C.201.
- The taking up and disposal of stray farm animals is covered in Food & Agric. Code § 17001 et seq., discussed in § 102C.12, with a form for reporting a found animal to the Director of the Department of Food and Agriculture in § 102C.202.
- The disposal of unclaimed goods received by common carriers, commission merchants, innkeepers, and warehouse operators is covered in Civ. Code § 2081 et seq. and discussed in § 102C.15, with forms for notice of sale of those goods by the holder [see § 102C.210], and an owner's demand for proceeds [see § 102C.211].
- The handling of unclaimed property in the possession of hospitals, is governed by Civ. Code § 1862.5, discussed in § 102C.16, with a form notice from the hospital to the owner to claim the property in § 102C.212, and an owner's letter claiming the proceeds in § 102C.213.
- The handling of unclaimed property in the possession of a receiver, which must be transferred before the receiver can be discharged [see Code Civ. Proc. § 570], is discussed in § 102C.17, with a form for notice to be published before the receiver can report to the court in § 102C.214. For detailed discussion of receivers' duties, and related forms, See California Forms Of Pleading And Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender).
- The reporting and delivery of money and certain other items of personal property held by banks, insurance companies, and other businesses to the state controller is covered by the Unclaimed Property

Law, found in Code Civ. Proc. § 1500 et seq., is discussed in § 102C.18, with related forms in § 102C.220 et seq.

Other statutes governing lost and unclaimed property are listed in the Research Guide, § 102C.01[1].

Return or sale of property intentionally abandoned by tenants and guests is governed by Civ. Code § 1980 et seq., and addressed in Ch 35B, Modification and Termination of Leases.

DIVISION VII: PERSONAL TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 102C LOST AND UNCLAIMED PROPERTY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

32-102C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102C.11

§ 102C.11 Found Personal Property

[1] Applicability of Civ. Code § 2080 et seq.

[a] In General; What Constitutes "Lost" or "Unclaimed" Property

Civ. Code § 2080 et seq. govern the handling of lost and unclaimed items of personal property by finders [see [2], below], and the disposition of that property by local officials [see [3], below]. Those provisions do not include definitions or guidelines for determining whether an item of property is "lost" or "unclaimed" for purposes of coverage under the statutes.

In one of the only reported cases interpreting these statutes, the court stated that the term "lost" is used in its "ordinary legal sense" in the statutes and has no special meaning [People v. Stay (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 166, 172, 96 Cal. Rptr. 651] . This case involved a person who was convicted of grand theft for gathering shopping carts from areas adjacent to supermarkets and offering to sell them back to the supermarkets for a "finder's fee" that was much higher than the rate normally charged by cart retrieval companies. In support of its finding that the carts gathered by the defendant had not been "lost" by the supermarkets within the meaning of Civ. Code § 2080, the court noted that the supermarkets were aware of the removal of the carts from their premises, the reason for the removal, the general identities of the persons removing the carts, and the approximate location of the carts [People v. Stay (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 166, 174, 96 Cal. Rptr. 651] .

A related statute defines "reasonable belief" (that property is lost) as actual knowledge or belief a prudent person would have without making an investigation (including any investigation of public records), except that if the finder has specific information indicating that an investigation would more probably than not reveal pertinent information and the cost of an investigation would be reasonable in relation to the probable value of the personal property involved, "reasonable belief" includes the actual knowledge or belief a prudent person would have if an investigation were made [see Civ. Code § 1980(d) (in context of property left after tenancy); see also §§ 102C.110 P 1(c), 102C.111, P 1(c) (transaction guide)].

[b] Inapplicability to Abandoned Property

The Civil Code provisions governing lost and unclaimed property do not apply to property that has been intentionally abandoned by its owner [Civ. Code § 2080.7]. The primary elements of abandonment are [Stephens v. Mansfield (1858) 11 Cal. 363, 366 ; Peal v. Gulf Red Cedar Co. (1936) 15 Cal. App. 2d 196, 199, 59 P.2d 183] :

- An intention to voluntarily relinquish possession; and
- An external act by which that intention is carried into effect.

Abandoned property, if not subject to escheat to the state of California [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1300 et seq.], becomes the property of the first person to exert dominion and control over it [Richardson v. McNulty (1864) 24 Cal. 339, 345] . Because a person who appropriates found property to his or her own use without making reasonable and just efforts to find the owner and restore the property to him or her may be charged with theft [Penal Code § 485], finders should follow the statutory procedures for disposition of lost property unless the nature of the property or the circumstances of finding it make it clear that the property has been abandoned.

[2] Obligations of Finder

A person who finds money, goods, things in action, or other personal property, or saves any domestic animal from harm, neglect, drowning, or starvation, is not bound to take charge of it, unless that person is otherwise required to do so by contract or law. However, a finder who does take charge of a lost item takes on the rights and responsibilities of a depositary for hire, and must exercise at least ordinary care to preserve the item [Civ. Code §§ 1852, 2080; see Civ. Code § 1851 et seq.; see also Ch. 102, Bailments]. A finder who takes possession of any money, goods, things in action, or other personal property, or saves any domestic animal from harm, neglect, drowning, or starvation, also must notify the owner, if known, within a reasonable time, and make restitution without any compensation other than a reasonable charge for saving and taking care of the property. In the case of a live domestic animal, the finder must provide for humane treatment of the animal. [Civ. Code § 2080].

If the property is worth $100 or more and its owner is unknown to the finder or does not claim the property on being notified by the finder of its location, the finder must turn the property over to the police within a reasonable time. If the property was found in a city, it must be turned over to the city's police department. If it was found outside of city limits, it must be turned over to the appropriate county sheriff's department. On turning the property over to the police, the finder must make an affidavit (or declaration) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5] setting forth certain information concerning the finding of the property [Civ. Code § 2080.1(a); for a form for this declaration, see § 102C.201].

A person who finds lost property under circumstances that give him or her knowledge of or means of inquiry as to the true owner, and who appropriates the property to his or her own use or the use of another without first making reasonable and just efforts to find the owner and restore the property to him or her, is guilty of theft [Penal Code § 485].

[3] Disposition of Property by Police or Sheriff's Department

On receiving found property, the police or sheriff's department must notify the owner of the property, if the owner's identity is reasonably ascertainable, that the property has been found and where it may be claimed [Civ. Code § 2080.1(b)]. If the owner appears within 90 days after receipt of the property by the police or sheriff's department and proves his or her ownership of the property, the police or sheriff's department must restore the property to the owner [Civ. Code § 2080.2]. The police or sheriff's department may condition the return of the property on the owner's payment of a reasonable charge to defray costs of storage and care of the property [Civ. Code § 2080.1(b), 2080.2].

If the owner does not appear and prove his or her ownership of the property within 90 days following receipt of the property by the police or sheriff's department, and the reported value of the property is $250 or more [see § 102C.120, P 2(b)(4) NOTE], the police or sheriff's department must publish a notice concerning the property in a newspaper of general circulation at least once. If no owner appears and proves his or her ownership of the property within seven days following the first publication of the notice, the finder may obtain title to the property by reimbursing the city or county whose police or sheriff's department published the notice for the cost of publication. Property found by an employee of any public agency in the course of his or her employment may not be claimed by the finder in this manner, but must be sold at public auction. The successful bidder must reimburse the city or county whose police or sheriff's department published the notice for the cost of publication [Civ. Code § 2080.3(a)].

If the reported value of the property is less than $250 and the finder is not an employee of a public agency who found the property in the course of his or her employment, title to the property will vest in the finder after 90 days have elapsed since the receipt of the property by the police or sheriff's department if an owner does not appear and prove his or her ownership of the property. If the property was found by an employee of any public agency in the course of his or her employment, it must be sold at public auction after the 90 days have elapsed [Civ. Code § 2080.3(b)].

Under limited circumstances, a police or sheriff's department may dispose of items of public property by a public auction, conducted in the manner and on the notice of sale of personal property under execution, without waiting 90 days after the receipt of the property. This "quick sale" procedure may be used only if all of the following conditions have been satisfied [Civ. Code § 2080.5]:

- The property is of a type that is commonly the subject of sale;
- The owner cannot be found with reasonable diligence or, being found, refuses to pay the lawful charges for care and storage of the property [see Civ. Code §§ 2080, 2080.1]; and
- The property is in danger of perishing or losing the greater part of its value, or the lawful charges for care and storage of the property amount to two thirds of its value.

[4] Tax Consequences for Finder

Found property, or "treasure trove," is considered gross income to the extent of its value in United States currency. It is taxable during the taxable year in which it is reduced to the finder's undisputed possession [Treas. Reg. § 1.61-14(a)]. For example, money found by a taxpayer inside a used piano purchased seven years earlier was taxable in the year the money was found, rather than the year the piano came into the finder's possession [Cesarini v. United States (6th Cir. [N.D. Ohio] 1970) 428 F.2d 812, 813-814] .

[5] Local Ordinances and Agency Regulations

The legislative body of any city, city and county, or county may alter the statutory procedures for handling unclaimed property [see [2] and [3], above] by enacting an ordinance providing for the care, restitution, sale, or destruction of unclaimed property in the possession of its police or sheriff's department. The ordinance must provide (1) that unclaimed property be held by the police or sheriff's department for a period of at least three months, and (2) that property unclaimed after that period of time be sold at public auction to the highest bidder, with notice of the sale being given by the chief of police or the sheriff at least five days before the sale by one-time publication in a newspaper of general circulation in the county. Alternatively, the ordinance may provide for the transfer of property unclaimed after 90 days to the local government purchasing and stores agency or other similar agency for sale to the public at public auction [Civ. Code § 2080.4].

If the ordinance provides for transfer of unclaimed property to a county purchasing agent, the property may be sold as provided by provisions of the Government Code dealing with the sale of surplus personal property [see Gov. Code § 25500 et seq.]. Property that is transferred to the local government purchasing and stores agency or other similar agency pursuant to a local ordinance may not be redeemed by the owner or other persons entitled to possession. If the local government purchasing and stores agency or other similar agency determines that any unclaimed property delivered to it is needed for a public use, it may retain the property instead of selling it at public auction [Civ. Code § 2080.4].

Any public agency [see Civ. Code § 2080.6(b) (definition)] may elect to be governed by the statutory provisions governing disposal of lost property [Civ. Code § 2080 et seq.] with respect to property found or saved in its area of jurisdiction, or may adopt reasonable regulations for the care, restitution, sale, or destruction of unclaimed property in its possession [Civ. Code § 2080.6(a)]. The Regents of the University of California and the Trustees of the California State University are likewise permitted to adopt resolutions or regulations for the care, restitution, sale, or destruction of unclaimed, lost, or abandoned property in the possession of the Regents, the University of California Police Department, or any state university [Civ. Code §§ 2080.8, 2080.9]. The requirements for regulations adopted by public agencies, the Regents, or the Trustees are similar to those governing the adoption of local ordinances concerning the disposition of unclaimed property [Civ. Code §§ 2080.6(a), 2080.8, 2080.9].

[6] Property in Temporary Possession of Public Agency

When a public agency obtains possession of personal property from a person for temporary safekeeping, the agency must do all of the following [Civ. Code § 2080.10(a); see Civ. Code § 2080.10(d) (defining "public agency"); see also Stats. 1998, ch. 540, Legislative Counsel's Digest (to address situation involving possession of property taken from arrested defendant)]:

- Take responsibility for the storage, documentation, and disposition of the property.
- Provide the person from whom the property was taken with a receipt and instructions for the retrieval of the property, either by giving them to the person from whom the property was taken at the time the public agency obtains the property or by immediately mailing them to that person by first-class mail.
- If the public agency has knowledge that the person from whom the property was taken is not the owner, the agency must make reasonable efforts to identify the owner. If the owner is identified, the public agency must send the owner, by first-class mail, a receipt and instructions for the retrieval of the property.

The receipt and instructions must notify the person from whom the property was taken that the property must be claimed within 60 days after the public agency obtains possession or the property will be disposed of in accordance with the disposal provisions of Civ. Code § 2080 et seq. Within 60 days, that person may do one of the following [Civ. Code § 2080.10(b)]:

- Retrieve the property.
- Authorize, in writing, another person to retrieve the property.
- Notify the public agency in writing that he or she is unable to retrieve the property, because he or she is in custody, and request the public agency to hold the property. If a person notifies the public agency that he or she is unable to retrieve the property within 60 days, or have an authorized person retrieve the property, the public agency must hold the property for not longer than 10 additional months.

The public agency is not be liable for damages caused by any official action performed with due care regarding the disposition of personal property pursuant to this section and the disposal provisions of Civ. Code § 2080 et seq. [Civ. Code § 2080.10(c)].

CHAPTER 102C LOST AND UNCLAIMED PROPERTY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

32-102C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102C.12

§ 102C.12 Estrays

[1] In General

An "estrays" is any impounded or seized bovine animal, horse, mule, sheep, swine, or burro whose owner is unknown or cannot be located [Food & Agric. Code § 17001.5]. The term does not include domestic pets such as cats and dogs, which are covered by the Civil Code provisions concerning lost and unclaimed personal property [see Civ. Code § 2080, discussed in § 102C.11, above; Food & Agric. Code § 17003]. Estrays may be "taken up" [see Food & Agric. Code § 17001] by persons who find them on their property, inspectors employed by the Department of Food and Agriculture, or the secretary of Food and Agriculture, and must be disposed of according to the procedure set forth in the Food and Agricultural Code [Food & Agric. Code §§ 17002, 17004, 17041; see Food & Agric. Code § 50 ("director" and "secretary" both mean secretary of Food and Agriculture); see also Food & Agric. Code § 17001 et seq.].

[2] Rights and Responsibilities of Taker-Up

Any person who finds an estray domestic animal on premises that he or she owns, or on premises to which he or she has the right of possession of, or on any highway adjacent to those premises, may take up the animal and have a lien for all expenses incurred in taking up, keeping, and caring for it [Food & Agric. Code § 17041]. A person who does these things is called a "taker-up" [Food & Agric. Code § 17001]. The landowner or person in rightful possession of the land may also sue the animal's owner for damage to the land or crops caused by the animal. As an alternative to taking up the animal, the landowner or person in rightful possession of the land may use reasonable force to drive the animal off the property. The use of more force than is reasonably necessary to drive the animal off the property will be considered excessive and unjustified, and may expose the landowner or rightful possessor to liability for injury to the animal [People v. Dunn (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 418, 421, 114 Cal. Rptr. 164]. The right to take up estrays does not apply in counties or parts of counties identified by state statute or county ordinance as devoted chiefly to grazing [see Food & Agric. Code §§ 17121 et seq.], unless the premises on which the animal is found and taken up are entirely enclosed with a good and substantial fence [Food & Agric. Code § 17122; see Food & Agric. Code § 17121 ("lawful fence")].

A taker-up of an estray must confine the estray in a secure place [Food & Agric. Code § 17042] and use reasonable care to preserve it from injury [Food & Agric. Code § 17043]. A taker-up who complies with these and the other applicable statutory requirements will not be liable if the estray dies or escapes at any time while being held by the taker-up [Food & Agric. Code § 17043]. It is unlawful for any person to remove any animal from the possession of a taker-up, except as provided by statute [Food & Agric. Code § 17045].

Immediately after taking up an estray, the taker-up must file a notice of the taking up with the secretary of Food and Agriculture. The notice must contain the following [Food & Agric. Code §§ 35, 17042; for a form for this notice, see § 102C.202]:

- A description of the animal.
- Any marks and brands on the animal.
- The animal's probable value.
- A statement of the date and place where it was taken up and confined.

On demand of an authorized inspector employed by the Department of Food and Agriculture, the taker-up must deliver the animal to the inspector [Food & Agric. Code § 17061].

On sale of the animal or return of the animal to its owner, the taker-up is entitled to collect a per day payment for keeping and caring for the animal [Food & Agric. Code §§ 17041, 17044, 17069, 17095]. The amount due is determined according to the prevailing rates charged by commercial enterprises that feed livestock on a custom basis [Food & Agric. Code § 17095].

[3] Department's Attempts to Locate Owner

Once an estray is seized or otherwise in the possession of an inspector, if the animal is branded the director of the Department of Food and Agriculture must cause a search to be made of the brand records to ascertain its owner [Food & Agric. Code § 17063]. If the animal's brands or marks are recorded, the director must immediately notify the person in whose name the brands or marks are recorded that the animal has been found. The notification must be made by letter [Food & Agric. Code § 17064; see Food & Agric. Code § 50 ("director" and "secretary" both mean secretary of Food and Agriculture)].

If the owner is not found, and the estimated value of the animal exceeds $225, the director must cause a notice of the taking up of the animal, and its intended sale, to be posted for a period of 14 days on a bulletin board in each office of the Bureau of Livestock Identification. In addition, the director has discretion to distribute the notice to the county department of agriculture and to all sales yards in California that deal in the same type of animal as the animal that is taken up. [Food & Agric. Code § 17065(a), (b)]. If the estimated value of the animal is less than $225, the notice need only be posted for five days in each office of the Bureau of Livestock Identification [Food & Agric. Code § 17066]. The notice must describe the weight, sex, breed, color, marks, and brands, if any, of the animal. It must also state the time and place of its proposed sale [Food & Agric. Code § 17067]. In addition to posting the notice, the director must publish periodically a list of the animals for which notice was given pursuant to Food & Agric. Code § 17065, including the brands and descriptions of branded animals and descriptions of unbranded animals turned over to the department. This notice is required to be published in the classified section of a livestock industry publication that is in general circulation throughout California [Food & Agric. Code § 17065].

A person claiming ownership in the animal, at any time before the expiration of 14 days after the first posting of notice, may file his or her proofs of ownership with the director. The director will then hear and determine the claim of ownership [Food & Agric. Code § 17068]. If ownership is proved to the satisfaction of the director, the animal will be turned over to the owner on payment by the owner of all expenses incurred in the handling of the animal [Food & Agric. Code § 17069; see Food & Agric. Code §§ 17044, 17095 (expenses due taker-up and secretary)].

[4] Sale of Animal

If the animal's owner does not come forward and offer satisfactory proof of ownership within the applicable notice period (14 days for animals valued at $225 or more, or 5 days for animals valued at less than $225), or fails or refuses to pay the expenses incurred in keeping the animal, the director will sell the animal at a public sale [Food & Agric. Code §§ 17066, 17092; see Food & Agric. Code § 17094 (sale of carcass)]. In lieu of a public sale, the director may sell the animal at a private sale at a price not less than the appraised value of the animal. The appraisal must be made by a board of three qualified stockmen; one chosen by the director, one by the taker-up, and one by the first two [Food & Agric. Code § 17093]. The sale, whether public or private, will convey a good and valid title to the purchaser, and the former owner of the animal will be barred from all right to recover it [Food & Agric. Code § 17092].

The proceeds from the sale must be paid into the Department of Food and Agriculture Fund. The expenses of holding, advertising, and selling the animal, any payment due the taker-up, and any other incidental expenses incurred in connection with the animal, are paid from this fund [Food & Agric. Code § 17095]. Any person who proves to the director's satisfaction his or her ownership of the animal sold, within one year following the sale, is entitled to the net proceeds of the sale [Food & Agric. Code § 17096].

If an animal in the possession of an inspector is in a condition that requires immediate disposal, the director may dispose of it immediately and without satisfying the notice and sale requirements discussed above [Food & Agric. Code § 17091].

§ 102C.13 Containers, Supplies, and Equipment Bearing Brand Name

Special provisions of the Business and Professions Code govern the return of lost containers, supplies, and equipment bearing a brand name registered with the Secretary of State to their rightful owners [Bus. & Prof. Code § 14425 et seq.]. Containers, supplies, and equipment subject to these provisions bear the words "Registered in California" or the abbreviation "Reg.Cal." as a part of their brand [Bus. & Prof. Code § 14429].

Every person who finds or receives any containers, supplies, or equipment bearing a registered brand, in the regular course of business or in any other manner, has a duty to make a diligent effort to find the owner and return them to the owner [Bus. & Prof. Code § 14434; see Food & Agric. Code § 34561 (similar provision applicable to branded dairy equipment)]. It is unlawful for an unauthorized person [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 14430(a) (authorized persons)] to (among other things) possess a container bearing a brand or to sell, buy, give, take, or otherwise traffic in any container, equipment, or supplies bearing a brand [Bus. & Prof. Code § 14430(b)(1), (3)]. A person who violates these provisions may be subject to criminal penalties [Bus. & Prof. Code § 14436], as well as an action by the registrant for civil penalties [Bus. & Prof. Code § 14438].

§ 102C.15 Unclaimed Goods Received by Common Carriers, Commission Merchants, Innkeepers, and Warehouse operators

A railroad or express company or other common carrier, commission merchant, innkeeper, or warehouse operator may hold or store with a responsible person goods, merchandise, or other property received for transportation or safekeeping and not delivered to the owner, consignee, or other authorized person, until the freight and all just and reasonable charges are paid [Civ. Code § 2081]. The responsibility of the carrier, merchant, innkeeper, or warehouse operator toward the property ceases when the property is placed in storage. The person with whom the property is stored is not liable for loss or damage to the property unless the loss or damage results from his or her negligence or want of proper care [Civ. Code § 2081.4].

If no person calls for the property and pays the freight and charges due on it within 60 days after its receipt by the carrier, merchant, innkeeper, or warehouse operator, the carrier, merchant, innkeeper, or warehouse operator may sell the property, or as much of it as will pay the freight and charges due, to the highest bidder at public auction [Civ. Code § 2081.1]. Commission merchants or warehouse operators who receive produce, merchandise, or other property on consignment and make advances on it, either to the owner or for freight and charges, may likewise sell the property at public auction if the advances are not paid within 60 days after the date made [Civ. Code § 2081.5]. In either case, prior notice of the sale must be given in the customary manner for sales of goods by auction at the place the goods are held or sold [Civ. Code § 2081.1; for a notice of sale, see § 102C.210]. If any surplus remains after paying the freight, storage, sale expenses, and other reasonable charges, the surplus must be paid over to the owner of the property on his or her demand if the demand is made within 60 days after the sale [Civ. Code § 2081.2; see Civ. Code § 2081.3; for a form for a demand for proceeds of sale, see § 102C.211]. If the owner or owner's agent does not demand the surplus from the sale within 60 days after the sale, the surplus must be paid into the county treasury, subject to the order of the owner [Civ. Code § 2081.3].

The obligations of carriers set forth under Civ. Code § 2114 et seq. are not applicable to the transactions discussed above concerning unclaimed property [Civ. Code § 2081.6]. For discussion of Civ. Code § 2114 et seq. and other obligations of carriers, see Ch. 54, Shipment of Property. For discussion of other rights and obligations of warehouse operators, see Ch 54A, Storage of Goods. Innkeepers' and other liens are addressed in Ch. 102A, Personal Property Liens. Bailment of personal property other than household goods, and the availability of liens against this property, are

Any item of personal property found in or deposited with any licensed hospital that remains unclaimed for a period of 180 days following the departure of its owner from the hospital may be sold by the hospital at public auction. At least four weeks prior to the sale, the hospital must give written notice of the sale to the last known owner of the property. The notice may be sent to the last known owner by regular mail, postage prepaid, at his or her last known address. It must contain all of the following [Civ. Code § 1862.5; for a form for this notice, see § 102C.212]:

- A description of each item of property to be sold.
- The name of the last known owner.
- The name of the hospital.
- The time and place of the sale

The proceeds of the sale may be applied to the charges for storage of the property, if any, the reasonable expenses of the sale, and all sums due the hospital from the last known owner of the property. The remaining balance, if any, may be claimed by the rightful owner of the property or his or her legal representative within one week following the sale. If not claimed within that period, the balance must be paid into the treasury of the county in which the hospital is located. If the owner or his or her legal representative does not claim the property from the treasury within one year, it must be paid into the general fund of the county [Civ. Code § 1862.5].

If the hospital complies with the procedures set out above, it will be exonerated from any liability for the property sold [Civ. Code § 1862.5].

§ 102C.17 Unclaimed Property in Possession of Receiver

A receiver who is in possession of any funds belonging to a person whose whereabouts are unknown to the receiver must follow a specific statutory procedure to dispose of the funds prior to being discharged as a receiver. First, he or she must publish a notice, in one or more newspapers published in the county, at least once a week for four consecutive weeks. The notice must set forth the name of the owner of the funds, the owner's last known place of residence or post office address, and the amount of the unclaimed funds. All costs and expenses connected with the advertising of the notice are payable out of the unclaimed funds [Code Civ. Proc. § 570].

If all or any part of the funds remain unclaimed 30 days after the date of the last publication of the notice, the receiver must report this fact to the court. On order of the court, all the funds must be paid into the State Treasury, accompanied by a copy of the order. The order must set forth the same information required to appear in the notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 570; see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender)]. Funds that have been paid into the State Treasury pursuant to this procedure may be claimed as provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 1500 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 570; see §§ 102C.18[10], 102C.22; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 252, Escheat (Unclaimed Property) (Matthew Bender)].

CHAPTER 102C LOST AND UNCLAIMED PROPERTY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

32-102C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102C.18

§ 102C.18 Unclaimed Property Law

[1] In General

Under the Unclaimed Property Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1500 et seq.], specified property held or owing by business associations escheats to the state [Code Civ. Proc. § 1510 et seq.; see [3], below]. Business associations must report and deliver to the controller property subject to escheat under the Unclaimed Property Law [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1530, 1532; see [8], below; see also §§ 102C.220, 102C.221]. Unlike other property that escheats to the state, property received by the state under the Unclaimed Property Law does not permanently escheat [Code Civ. Proc. § 1501.5(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1430, 1431]. The Unclaimed Property Law is not a permanent or "true" escheat statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 1501.5]. Instead, the state assumes custody of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1560(a)], sells and otherwise disposes of it as appropriate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1563, 1565], and deposits all funds received, including the proceeds of sale, into the "Abandoned Property" account of the unclaimed property fund [Code Civ. Proc. § 1564(a)]. All money in this account is continuously appropriated to the Controller for expenditure in carrying out and enforcing the Unclaimed Property Law, including the payment of claims, appraisals, and the like [Code Civ. Proc. § 1564(b)].

The dual objectives of the Unclaimed Property Law are to protect unknown owners by locating them and restoring their property to them and to give the state, rather than the holders of the unclaimed property, the benefit of its use [Harris v. Westly (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 214, 219, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 343 ; Douglas Aircraft Co. v. Cranston (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 462, 463, 24 Cal. Rptr. 851, 374 P.2d 819 ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 252, Escheat (Unclaimed Property)] (Matthew Bender)].

[2] Definitions

[a] "Business Association"

For purposes of the Unclaimed Property Law, "business association" means any private corporation, joint stock company, business trust, partnership, or any association for business purposes of two or more individuals, whether or not for profit, including, but not limited to, banking organizations, financial organizations, life insurance corporations, and utilities [Code Civ. Proc. § 1501(c)].

[b] "Banking Organization"

For purposes of the Unclaimed Property Law, "banking organization" means any national or state bank, trust company, banking company, land bank, savings bank, safe deposit company, private banker, or any similar organization [Code Civ. Proc. § 1501(b)].

[c] "Escheat" and "Permanent Escheat"

"Escheat" is the vesting in the state of title to property when either the owner or the owner's whereabouts are unknown or the known owner has refused to accept the property. Property may escheat to the state either by judicial determination or by operation of law, subject to the right of claimants to appear and claim all or a portion of the escheated property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1300(c)].

"Permanent escheat" is the absolute vesting in the state of title to property when either the owner or the owner's whereabouts are unknown or the known owner has refused to accept the property, pursuant to a judicial determination in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1410 or by operation of law. Permanent escheat bars all claims to the property by the former owner or his or her successors [Code Civ. Proc. § 1300(d)].

[d] "Financial Organization"

For purposes of the Unclaimed Property Law, "financial organization" means any federal or state savings and loan association, building and loan association, credit union, investment company, or any similar organization [Code Civ. Proc. § 1501(d)].

[e] "Life Insurance Corporation"

For purposes of the Unclaimed Property Law, "life insurance corporation" means any association or corporation transacting the business of insurance on or pertaining to human lives, including (but not limited to) endowments and annuities [Code Civ. Proc. § 1501(f)].

[f] "Unclaimed Property"

For purposes of the general statutory scheme governing the escheat of property (Code Civ. Proc. § 1300 et seq.), "unclaimed property" is any of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1300(b)]:

- Property that is unclaimed, abandoned, escheated, permanently escheated, or distributed to the state.
- Property that will become unclaimed, abandoned, escheated, permanently escheated, or distributed to the state under any provision of law.
- Property, the possession of which the state is or will become entitled, if the property is not claimed by the person entitled to possession within the time allowed by law, whether or not there has been a judicial determination that the property is unclaimed, abandoned, escheated, permanently escheated, or distributed to the state.

[3] Property Subject to Unclaimed Property Law[a] Deposits and Accounts With Banking Organizations

Property that escheats to the state under the Unclaimed Property Law includes demand, savings, and matured time deposits, and accounts subject to a negotiable order of withdrawal (NOW), made with a banking organization, together with any interest or dividends on those deposits or accounts, but excluding from demand deposits and accounts subject to a negotiable order of withdrawal only, any reasonable service charges for inactivity that may lawfully be withheld and that do not (if made in California) exceed those set forth in schedules filed by the banking organization from time to time with the Controller, when the owner, for more than three years has not done any of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(1)(A), (b); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1522 (charges not permitted unless holder would also have imposed charge if owner claimed property prior to escheat)]:

- Increased or decreased the amount of the deposit, cashed an interest check, or presented the passbook or other similar evidence of the deposit for the crediting of interest.
- Corresponded electronically or in writing with the banking organization concerning the deposit.
- Otherwise indicated an interest in the deposit as evidenced by a memorandum or other record on file with the banking organization.

Escheat of funds held in individual retirement accounts or under retirement plans for self-employed individuals or similar accounts or plans established pursuant to the internal revenue laws of the United States or California, are not governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(1), but by Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(6), discussed in [f], below.

A deposit or account will not escheat to the state if, within the previous three years, the owner owned another deposit or account with the banking organization, or the owner has owned an individual retirement account or funds held by the banking organization under a retirement plan for self-employed individuals or a similar account or plan established as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(6), and with respect to that deposit, account, or plan, the owner conducted one of the above listed activities with respect to the other deposit or account and the banking organization communicated electronically or in writing with the owner, at the address to which communications regarding that deposit or account are regularly sent, regarding the deposit or account otherwise subject to escheat. For these purposes, "communications" refers to account statements or statements of interest paid for federal and state income tax purposes [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(1)(B)].

The banking organization may not discontinue any interest or dividends on any savings deposit because of the inactivity contemplated by Code Civ. Proc. § 1513 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(1)(C)].

[b] Deposits, Accounts, and Other Interests in Financial Organizations

Property that escheats to the state under the Unclaimed Property Law includes demand, savings, and matured time deposits, matured investment certificates, accounts subject to a negotiable order of withdrawal, and other interests in a financial organization or deposits made with a financial organization, and any interest or dividends on those deposits or other interests, excluding, from demand deposits and accounts subject to a negotiable order of withdrawal only, any reasonable service charges imposed for inactivity that may lawfully be withheld and that do not (when made in California) exceed those set forth in schedules filed by the financial organization from time to time with the Controller, when the owner has not done any of the following for more than three years [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(2)(A), (b); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1522 (charges not permitted unless holder would also have imposed charge if owner claimed property prior to escheat)]:

- Increased or decreased the amount of the funds or deposit, cashed an interest check, or presented an appropriate record for the crediting of interest or dividends.
- Corresponded electronically or in writing with the financial organization concerning the funds or deposit.

- Otherwise indicated an interest in the funds or deposit as evidenced by a memorandum or other record on file with the financial organization.

Escheat of funds held in individual retirement accounts or under retirement plans for self-employed individuals or similar accounts or plans established pursuant to the internal revenue laws of the United States or California, are not governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(2)(A), but by Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(6), discussed in [f], below].

A deposit or account will not escheat to the state if, within the previous three years, the owner owned another deposit or account with the financial organization, or the owner has owned an individual retirement account or funds held by the financial organization under a retirement plan for self-employed individuals or a similar account or plan established as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(6), and with respect to that deposit, account, or plan, the owner conducted one of the above listed activities with respect to the other deposit or account, and the financial organization communicated electronically or in writing with the owner, at the address to which communications regarding that deposit or account are regularly sent, regarding the deposit or account otherwise subject to escheat [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(2)(B)]. For these purposes, "communications" refers to account statements or statements of interest paid for federal and state income tax purposes [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(2)(B)].

A financial organization may not discontinue any interest or dividends on any funds paid toward purchase of shares or other interest, or on any deposit, because of the inactivity contemplated by Code Civ. Proc. § 1513 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(2)(C)].

[c] Traveler's Checks

Property that escheats to the state under the Unclaimed Property Law includes any sum payable on traveler's checks issued by a business association that has been outstanding for more than 15 years from the date of its issuance, when the owner for more than 15 years has neither corresponded with the business organization concerning it nor otherwise indicated an interest in it as evidenced by a memorandum or other record on file with the association [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(3)].

[d] Written Instruments Owed by Banking or Financial Organization

Property that escheats to the state under the Unclaimed Property Law includes any sum payable on any other written instrument on which a banking or financial organization is directly liable, including, but not limited to, drafts or certified checks, that has been outstanding for more than three years from the date it was payable or from the date of its issuance if payable on demand, when the owner for more than three years has neither corresponded electronically or in writing with the banking or financial organization concerning it nor otherwise indicated an interest as evidenced by a memorandum or other record on file with the banking or financial organization [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(4)]. The three-year period became effective January 1, 2004 [see Stats 2003, ch. 304, § 1]; prior to that date, these written instruments had a five-year escheat period.

[e] Money Orders

Property that escheats to the state under the Unclaimed Property Law includes any sum payable on a money order issued by a business association (including a banking or financial organization) that has been outstanding for more than seven years from the date it was payable, or from the date of its issuance if payable on demand, excluding any reasonable service charges that may lawfully be withheld and that do not, when made in California, exceed those set forth in schedules filed by the business association from time to time with the Controller, when the owner for more than seven years has neither corresponded electronically or in writing with the business association concerning it nor otherwise indicated an interest as evidenced by a memorandum or other record on file with the business association [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(5)]. A "reasonable service charge" under Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(5) means one that does all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(5)]:

- Is uniformly applied to all of the issuer's money orders.
- Is clearly disclosed to the purchaser at the time of purchase, and the recipient of the money order.
- Does not begin to accrue until three years after issuance, and stops when the value of the money order escheats.
- Is permitted by the contract between the purchaser and the issuer.
- Does not exceed $0.25 per month, or an aggregate total of $21.

[f] Individual Retirement Accounts

Property that escheats to the state under the Unclaimed Property Law includes any funds held by a business association in an individual retirement account or under a retirement plan for self-employed individuals, or a similar account or plan established pursuant to the internal revenue laws of the United States or California, when the owner for more than three years after the funds become payable or distributable has not done any of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(6)(A)]:

- Increased or decreased the principal.
- Accepted payment of principal or income.
- Corresponded in writing concerning the property or otherwise indicated an interest.

Funds held by a business association in an individual retirement account or under a similar retirement plan for self-employed individuals or a similar account established under U.S. or California law, will not escheat to the state if, within the previous three years, the owner has owned another such account or plan with the business association, and the owner has conducted one of the activities listed above and the business association has communicated electronically or in writing with the owner [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513 (a)(6)(B)].

For these purposes, funds become payable or distributable when distribution of all or a part of the funds becomes mandatory under the terms of the account or plan [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(6)(C)].

[g] Wages or Salaries

Property that escheats to the state under the Unclaimed Property Law includes any wages or salaries that have remained unclaimed by the owner for more than one year after the wages or salaries become payable [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(7)].

[h] Contents of Safe Deposit Boxes

Property that escheats to the state under the Unclaimed Property Law includes the contents of safe deposit boxes or other safekeeping repositories held in California by a business association if unclaimed by the owner for more than three years from the later of (1) the date on which the lease or rental period expired, or (2) the expiration date of any agreement under which the box was furnished free of cost [Code Civ. Proc. § 1514; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1514 (notice and escheatment procedures for safe deposit boxes)].

[i] Funds Owning Under Life Insurance Policies or Annuities

Property that escheats to the state under the Unclaimed Property Law includes funds held or owing by a life insurance corporation under a life or endowment insurance policy or annuity contract that has matured or terminated, if unclaimed and unpaid for more than three years after becoming due and payable [Code Civ. Proc. § 1515(a)], regardless of whether the policy or contract has been surrendered as required [Code Civ. Proc. § 1515(d); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1515(c) ("matured" defined)].

[j] Property Distributable on Demutualization of Insurance Company

Property that escheats to the state under the Unclaimed Property Law includes property distributable in the course of a demutualization or related reorganization of an insurance company. Property distributable in the course of a demutualization or related reorganization of an insurance company is deemed abandoned at the following times in the following ways [Code Civ. Proc. § 1515.5]:

- On the date of the demutualization or reorganization, if the instruments or statements reflecting the distribution are not mailed to the owner because the address on the books and records for the holder is known to be incorrect.
- Two years after the date of the demutualization or reorganization, if instruments or statements reflecting the distribution are mailed to the owner, returned by the post office as undeliverable, and the owner has neither communicated in writing with the holder or its agent regarding the property or otherwise communicated with the holder or its agent regarding the property as evidenced by a memorandum or other record on file with the holder or its agent.
- Three years after the date of the demutualization or reorganization, if instruments or statements reflecting the distribution are mailed to the owner, not returned by the post office as undeliverable, and the owner has neither communicated in writing with the holder or its agent regarding the property or otherwise communicated with the holder or its agent regarding the property as evidenced by a memorandum or other record on file with the holder or its agent.

[k] Dividends and Distributions on Shares, Bonds, or Other Securities

Property that escheats to the state under the Unclaimed Property Law includes dividends, profits, distributions, interest, payments on principal, or other sums held or owing by a business association for or to a shareholder, certificate holder, member, bondholder, or other security holder, or a participating patron of a cooperative, who has not claimed them or corresponded in writing with the business association concerning them within three years after the date prescribed for payment or delivery [Code Civ. Proc. § 1516(a)]. Additional conditions for the escheat of these types of intangibles are set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1510, discussed in [5], below [Code Civ. Proc. § 1516(a)].

[l] Intangible Interests in Business Associations

Property that escheats to the state under the Unclaimed Property Law includes intangible interests in business associations as evidenced by stock or membership records when (1) the interest is owned by a person who for more than three years has neither claimed a dividend, profit, distribution, interest, payment on principal, or other sum nor corresponded in writing with the association concerning the interest or otherwise indicated an interest as evidenced by a memorandum or other record on file with the association, and (2) the association does not know the location of the owner at the end of the three-year period [Code Civ. Proc. § 1516(b)]. Additional conditions for the escheat of these types of intangibles are set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1510, discussed in [5], below [Code Civ. Proc. § 1516(b)]. Dividends or other distributions held for or owing to a person escheat as of the time the stock or other security to which they attach escheats [Code Civ. Proc. § 1516(c)].

[m] Property Distributable on Dissolution or Liquidation of Business

Property that escheats to the state under the Unclaimed Property Law includes tangible personal property located in California and, subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 1510, discussed in [5], below, intangible personal property that is distributable in the course of a voluntary or involuntary dissolution or liquidation of a business association, including a dissolution or liquidation of an insurer or other person under Ins. Code § 1010 et seq., that is unclaimed by the owner within six months after the date of final distribution or liquidation [Code Civ. Proc. § 1517].

[n] Property Held by Fiduciary

Property that escheats to the state under the Unclaimed Property Law includes tangible personal property located in California, and, subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 1510 [see [5] below], intangible personal property held in a fiduciary capacity [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1518(c)] for the benefit of another person, and any income or increment on the property, when for three years after the property becomes payable or distributable, the owner has not done any of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1518(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1518(b) (when individual retirement account or similar account is considered payable or distributable)]:

- Increased or decreased the principal.
- Accepted payment of principal or income.
- Corresponded in writing concerning the property, or otherwise expressed an interest as evidenced by a memorandum or other record on file with the fiduciary.

[o] Property Held by Governmental Unit

Property that escheats to the state under the Unclaimed Property Law includes tangible personal property located in California, and, subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 1510 [see [5] below], intangible personal property held for the owner by a government or governmental subdivision or agency that has remained unclaimed by its owner for more than three years [Code Civ. Proc. § 1519].

[p] Refunds Ordered by Court

Property that escheats to the state under the Unclaimed Property Law includes sums held by a business association that have been ordered to be refunded by a court or an administrative agency (including, but not limited to, the Public Utilities Commission) that have remained unclaimed by the owner for more than one year after becoming payable in accordance with the final determination or order providing for the refund, whether or not the final determination or order requires any person entitled to a refund to make a claim for it [Code Civ. Proc. § 1519.5]. Additional conditions for the escheat of property ordered refunded are set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1510, discussed in [5], below [Code Civ. Proc. § 1519.5].

[q] Other Property Held in Ordinary Course of Business

Property that escheats to the state under the Unclaimed Property Law includes tangible personal property located in California and, subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 1510 [see [5] below], intangible personal property (other than that described in [a]-[o], above, and [r] and [6], below), including any income or increment on the property and deducting any lawful charges [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1520(d) (definition of "lawful charge"); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1522 (charges not permitted unless also assessed in event that owner claims property prior to escheat)], that is held or owing in the ordinary course of the holder's business and has remained unclaimed by the owner for more than three years after it became payable or distributable [Code Civ. Proc. § 1520(a)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 1520 does not apply to gift certificates (which includes gift cards) subject to Civ. Code § 1749.45 et seq., which generally prohibits issuance of gift certificates with expiration dates, except those for use with multiple sellers of goods or services. However, Code Civ. Proc. § 1520 does apply to any gift certificate that has an expiration date and that is given in exchange for money or any other thing of value [Code Civ. Proc. § 1520.5].

[r] Employee Benefit Plan Distributions

Property that escheats to the state under the Unclaimed Property Law includes employee benefit plan distributions and any income or increments on those distributions when the owner has not, within three years after the funds have become payable or distributable, accepted the distribution, corresponded in writing concerning the distribution, or otherwise indicated an interest as evidenced by a memorandum or other record on file with the fiduciary [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1521(a) ("fiduciary" defined)] of the trust or custodial fund or administrator [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1521(a) ("administrator" defined)] of the plan under which the trust or fund is established [Code Civ. Proc. § 1521; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1521(b) (exception for plans containing forfeiture provisions)]. Additional conditions for the escheat of employee benefit plan distributions are set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1510, discussed in [5], below [Code Civ. Proc. § 1521(a)].

[s] Proposition 103 Insurance Rebates

Property that escheats to the state under the Unclaimed Property Law includes insurance rebates ordered or negotiated pursuant to Proposition 103 [see Ins. Code § 1861.01], if an insurer, after a good faith effort, determined that the policyholder entitled to the rebate could not be located, as specified [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1523(a)].

[4] Property Exempt From Unclaimed Property Law

The Unclaimed Property Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1500 et seq.] does not apply to any of the following property:

- Property in the official custody of a municipal utility district [Code Civ. Proc. § 1502(a)(1)].
- Property in the official custody of a local agency if the property may be transferred to the general fund of the agency pursuant to Gov. Code § 50050 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 1502(a)(2)].
- Any property in the official custody of a court if the property may be transferred to the Trial Court Operations Fund under Gov. Code § 68084.1 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1502(a)(3)].
- Any types of property received by the state pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1300-1476 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1502(b)].
- Unclaimed funds held by a life insurance corporation that is organized or admitted as a domestic fraternal benefit society under shins. Code § 10970 et seq., as long as the funds are used for scholarship funds, exclusive of administration costs [Code Civ. Proc. § 1528].

[5] Additional Conditions for Escheat of Intangible Property

Unless otherwise provided by California statute, the items of intangible personal property described under [3], above, escheat only if one of the following is true [Code Civ. Proc. § 1510]:

- The apparent owner's last known address, as shown on the records of the holder, is in California.
- No address of the apparent owner appears on the records of the holder and either (1) the last known address of the apparent owner is in California, (2) the holder is domiciled in California and has not previously paid the property to the state of the apparent owner's last known address, or (3) the holder is a government or governmental subdivision or agency of California and has not previously paid the property to the state of the apparent owner's last known address.

- The apparent owner's last known address, as shown on the holder's records, is in a state that does not provide by law for the escheat of the property and the holder is either domiciled in California or a government or governmental subdivision or agency of California.

- The apparent owner's last known address, as shown on the holder's records, is in a foreign nation and the holder is either domiciled in California or a government or governmental subdivision or agency of California.

[6] Additional Conditions for Escheat of Sums Payable on Money Orders, Traveler's Checks, and Similar Instruments

Sums payable on money orders, traveler's checks, or other similar written instruments (other than third-party bank checks) on which a business association is directly liable escheat only if the conditions described under [3][c]-[e], above, and at least one of the following conditions below, are satisfied [Code Civ. Proc. § 1511(a)]:

- The books and records of the business association show that the money order, traveler's check, or other instrument was purchased in California.

- The business association has its principal place of business in California, and its books and records do not show the state in which the money order, traveler's check, or other instrument was purchased.

- The business association has its principal place of business in California, its books and records show the state in which the money order, traveler's check, or other instrument was purchased, and the laws of the state of purchase do not provide for the escheat of the sum payable on the instrument.

[7] Attempts to Locate Owner Prior to Escheat of Property

[a] Notice to Owner Required

Every person or entity that holds unclaimed property in its business and has an address for the apparent owner must make reasonable efforts to notify the apparent owner of the fact that the property is about to escheat. Three statutes govern the notification requirements:

- Notices required to be provided by banking and financial organizations [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1501(b), (d) (definitions)] with respect to deposits, account shares, or other interests in a banking or financial organization [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(1), (a)(2), discussed in [3][a], [b], above] are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1513.5 and only apply to accounts, deposits and other interests valued $50 or more [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513.5(c)] and only when the holder's own records do not indicate that the last known address of the apparent owner is inaccurate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513.5(a)]. A banking or financial organization may impose a service charge on the deposit (or other interest) for this notice in an amount not exceeding the greater of the administrative cost of the mailing or $2 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513.5(b)].

- Notices required to be provided by business associations [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1501(c) (definition)] with respect to stock and membership interests in that business association [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1516(b), discussed in [3][1], above] are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1516(d). Code Civ. Proc. § 1516(d) does not include an exemption for interests valued at $50, nor does it authorize a charge for the notification.

- Notices by all other holders with respect to all other interests held by their businesses and valued at $50 or more are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1520(b), which also limits the requirement to situations in which the holder's records do not disclose the apparent owner's last known address to be inaccurate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1520(b)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 1520(b) does not authorize the holder to charge the interest for the notification.

[b] Times for Mailing Notices

The holder must mail, or, if the owner has consented to electronic notice, send electronically, the notice to the apparent owner not less than six nor more than 12 months before the time the property becomes reportable to the controller [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1513.5(a), 1516(d), 1520(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1532(a) (property to be delivered to controller no sooner than seven months and no later than seven months and 15 days after the final date of filing report)]. In the case of deposits and related interests that escheat under Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(1), (a)(2), the notice may also be mailed not less than two years nor more than two and one half years after the date of last activity by, or communication with, the owner concerning the property as shown on the record of the financial organization [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513.5(a)(1)].

[c] Contents of Notice

The notice must contain a heading at the top that reads "THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA REQUIRES US TO NOTIFY YOU THAT YOUR UNCLAIMED PROPERTY MAY BE TRANSFERRED TO THE STATE IF YOU DO NOT CONTACT US", and must specify the following [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1513.5(a), 1516(d), 1520(b)]:

- The time when the property will escheat and the effects of escheat, including the necessity for filing a claim for the return of the property.
- That since the date of last activity, or for the last two years, there has been no customer activity on the deposit, account, shares, or other interest.
- The identify the deposit, account, shares, or other interest by number or identifier.
- That the deposit, account, shares, or other interest is in danger of escheating to the state.
- That the California Unclaimed Property Law requires banks, banking organizations, and financial organization to transfer funds of a deposit, account, shares, or other interest if it has been inactive for three years.

All but the first item listed above must be printed in bold or in a font that is at least two points larger than the rest of the notice.

The notice must also include a form by which the owner may confirm the owner's current address. If that form is filled out, signed by the owner, and returned to the holder, it must be deemed that the account, or other device in which the owner's property is being held, remains currently active and recommences the escheat period [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1513.5(b), 1516(b), 1520(b)]. In lieu of returning the form, the business association may provide a telephone number or other electronic means to enable the owner to contact the association [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1513.5(b), 1516(d), 1520(b)]. With such contact, the business association must be deemed to know the location of the owner. The business association may also impose a service charge, not to exceed two dollars ($2) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1513.5(b), 1516(d), 1520(b)].

Additionally, the holder may give additional notice at any time between the date of last activity by, or communication with, the owner and the date the holder transfers the deposit, shares, or other interest to the controller [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1513.5(b), 1516(d), 1520(b)]. The statute requires this form be "as prescribed by the controller," but the controller has not issued a standard form for this purpose, nor prescribed any additional requirements for this form. The controller's office has indicated that guidelines may be issued at some future time. For a form that may be used for giving the notice, see § 102C.220[2].

[8] Report and Delivery of Property to Controller

Any person holding funds or other property escheated to the state under the Unclaimed Property Law [see [3], above] must report the escheat of that property to the state controller [Code Civ. Proc. § 1530(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1501(h) ("person" means any individual, business association, government or governmental subdivision or agency, group of two or more persons having a joint or common interest, or any other legal or commercial entity acting in its own right or in a representative or fiduciary capacity), 1576 (criminal penalties for failure to file reports)]. These reports must include specified information and must be made on forms provided by the controller [Code Civ. Proc. § 1530(b); see § 102C.221]. The reports must be filed yearly. A life insurance corporation, including those reporting insurance corporation demutualization proceeds subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 1515.5, must file its report for a particular year before May 1 of the next year. All other organizations must file their reports before November 1 for the 12-month period ending on the previous June 30th or for the most recently-ended fiscal year [Code Civ. Proc. § 1530(d)]. The controller may postpone the reporting date on his or her motion or on written request by any person required to file a report [Code Civ. Proc. § 1530(d)]. Failure to timely file the reports also results in a 12 percent per annum penalty on the property or value thereof from the date the property should have been reported or paid or delivered [Code Civ. Proc. § 1577], although there is an amnesty for any escheated property paid or delivered to Controller on or before December 31, 2002 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1577.5]. If a holder pays or delivers unclaimed property in a timely manner, but files a report that is not in substantial compliance with the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1530, the interest payable must not exceed ten thousand dollars ($10,000) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1577]. The holder shall not be subject to any interest payment if the holder's failure to report substantial compliance with the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1530 is due to reasonable cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 1577].

Except for contents of safe deposit boxes or other safekeeping repositories held by business associations [Code Civ. Proc. § 1532.1; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1514], property reported pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1530 must be paid or delivered to the state controller at the same time the report is filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1532(a); Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1533 (controller's right to refuse tangible personal property), 1576(b) (criminal penalties for failure to pay or deliver escheated property); see also § 102C.221]. A payment of unclaimed cash of at least $20,000 must be made by electronic funds transfer [Code Civ. Proc. § 1532(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1532(f) (when payment deemed complete); Code Civ. Proc. § 1532(h) (procedure)]. The controller may postpone the date for payment or delivery of the property, and the date for any report required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1532(b) upon his or her own motion or upon written request by any person required to pay or deliver the property or file a report [Code Civ. Proc. § 1532(a)]. Contents of safe deposit boxes or other safekeeping repositories held by business associations must be paid or delivered to the controller at the earlier of (1) the time when the holder is requested to pay or deliver the property by the controller, or (2) within one year after the final date for filing the report required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1530(d) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1532.1]. Any person who pays or delivers escheated property to the controller as required by the Unclaimed Property Law and who, prior to escheat, if the person's records contain an address for the apparent owner, which the holder's records do not disclose to be inaccurate, has made reasonable efforts to notice the owner by mail or, if the owner has consented to electronic notice, electronically, in substantial compliance with Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1513.5, 1514, 1516, and 1520, that the owner's property, deposit, account, shares, or other interest will escheat to the state, is relieved of all liability, to the extent of the value of the property, for any claim that exists at the time of the payment or delivery of that property, or that later arises or is made, in respect to the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1560(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1561(a) (controller's obligation to defend holder against claims for escheated property)].

[9] Holder's Right to Pay Owner and Seek Reimbursement

A holder who has paid money to the controller pursuant to the Unclaimed Property Law may make payment to any person appearing to the holder to be entitled to the money. When the holder files proof with the controller that the payment was made and that the payee was entitled to the payment, the controller must reimburse the holder without deducting any fee or other charges. If reimbursement is sought for payment made on a negotiable instrument (including a traveler's check or money order), the holder is entitled to reimbursement if payment was made to a person who appeared to the holder to be entitled to payment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1560(b)]. The holder may obtain reimbursement even if he or she makes a payment to a person whose claim to the property is barred because of the expiration of any applicable time period for filing a claim [Code Civ. Proc. § 1560(c); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1570, discussed in [11], below].

A holder may reclaim property turned over to the controller (including a certificate of any interest in a business association) without paying any fee or other charges, if the property is still in the controller's possession and the holder files with the controller proof that the owner has claimed the property from the holder. The controller, in his or her discretion, may accept an affidavit from the holder stating the facts that entitle the holder to reimbursement as sufficient proof that the owner has claimed the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1560(d)]. A holder who has mistakenly paid or delivered to the controller property that has not escheated to the state may also retrieve the property, without charge, if the controller has not disposed of it [Code Civ. Proc. § 1561(b); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1563, 1565 (disposal of property by controller); see also Harris v. Westly (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 214, 219-222, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 343 (notice and sale provisions of Unclaimed Property Law did not require controller to notify apparent owners of escheated stock before selling that stock; sale of unclaimed securities without notice did not violate owners' due process rights)].

[10] Owner's Claim Against Controller

Any person, excluding another state [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1542 (claims by other states)], who claims an interest in property paid or delivered to the state controller pursuant to the Unclaimed Property Law may file a claim to the property or the net proceeds from its sale. The claim must be on a form prescribed by the controller and must be verified by the claimant [Code Civ. Proc. § 1540(a); see § 102C.222]. The controller must consider each claim within 180 days after it is filed and may hold a hearing and receive evidence concerning a claim. The controller must give written notice to the claimant if he or she denies the claim in whole or in part [Code Civ. Proc. § 1540(b)].

Any person aggrieved by a decision of the controller or whose claim is not decided within 180 days after its filing may commence an action to establish his or her claim in the superior court in any county or city and county in which the attorney general maintains an office. The action must be brought within 90 days after the controller's decision, or within 270 days after the filing of the claim if the controller fails to make a decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1541; for a complaint, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 252, Escheat (Unclaimed Property), § 252.93 (Matthew Bender)].

Once payment or delivery of money or other property has been made to any claimant under the provisions of the Unclaimed Property Law, no suit may be maintained by any other claimant against the state or any officer or employee of the state for or on account of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1566(a)]. Furthermore, no suit may be maintained by any person against the state or any of its officers or employees for or on account of any transaction entered into by the State Controller pursuant to the Unclaimed Property Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1566(b); see, e.g., Fong v. Westly (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 841, 851-853, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 76 (Controller held immune from any damages caused by alleged violations of UPL's notice requirements to holders of shares of stock that escheated to state, which ultimately obtained their sole remedy of shares' proceeds plus interest)].

[11] Escheat Period Not Alterable

No statute of limitations or court order specifying the time within which an action or proceeding may be commenced or enforced to obtain payment of money or recovery of property from a holder will prevent the escheat of property otherwise escheatable [Code Civ. Proc. § 1570].

A. Client Interview--Facts and Documents

32-102C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102C.100

§ 102C.100 Facts: Finder of Lost Property or Animal

1. Name, address, and telephone number of finder.
2. Name, address, and telephone number of owner, if known.
3. Any facts suggesting possible identity of owner, if owner unknown.
4. Description of property, including its condition.

NOTE:

The condition of the property is relevant because property that is in bad repair or otherwise appears to have been lost long ago, or abandoned, is unlikely to be claimed by an owner. If no owner claims the property, the finder may not be reimbursed for his or her expenses incurred in connection with the property.

5. Date and time property was found.
6. Place property was found and, if applicable, circumstances under which property was "saved."

NOTE:

The statute governing the rights and responsibilities of finders of lost property specifically covers a person who saves a domestic animal from harm, neglect, starvation, or drowning [Civ. Code § 2080].

7. Estimated value of property, and basis for estimate.
8. Whether finder is aware of any advertised reward for return of property.

9. Address of place property is being held, stored, or cared for.
10. Expenses incurred by finder to save, store, board, feed, and/or otherwise care for property.
11. Steps already taken by finder to locate owner.
12. Any facts indicating that property was abandoned rather than lost [see § 102C.11[1]].
13. Additional facts concerning found or saved domestic animal:
 - a. Type of animal.
 - b. Description of animal, including any marks, brands, tags, or other distinguishing features.
 - c. Whether animal is apparently healthy or requires immediate medical treatment or other special care.
14. Additional facts concerning estray:

NOTE:

An "estray" is any impounded or seized bovine, horse, mule, sheep, swine, or burro whose owner is unknown or cannot be located [Food & Agric. Code § 17001.5]. The term does not include domestic pets such as cats and dogs, which are covered by the Civil Code provisions concerning lost and unclaimed personal property [see Civ. Code § 2080; see also P 13, above]. The right to take up [see Food & Agric. Code § 17001] an estray and have a lien for the expenses of taking up, keeping, and caring for it applies only if the estray is found on premises that the finder owns or to which the finder has the right of possession, or on any highway adjacent to those premises [Food & Agric. Code § 17041].

- a. Type of animal (e.g., bovine, horse, mule, sheep, swine, or burro).
- b. Description of animal, including any marks, brands, tags, or other distinguishing features.
- c. Whether animal is apparently healthy or requires immediate medical treatment or other special care [see Food & Agric. Code § 17091 (procedure for immediate disposal by director of Food and Agriculture); see also § 102C.12[4]].
- d. Identity of owner or person entitled to possession of property on or adjacent to which animal was found, if other than finder.

NOTE:

The Bureau of Livestock Identification in the Department of Food and Agriculture regularly publishes livestock bulletins listing both missing and found livestock on its website at www.cdfa.ca.gov/ahfss/li/index.htm. The main phone number for the Bureau of Livestock Identification is (916) 654-0889. Inquiries can also be made to the local brand inspector [see Food & Agric. Code §§ 483, 20010].

- e. Nature and cost of repair of any damages caused by animal to finder's land, crops, or property.
- f. Whether premises on which animal was found and taken up are entirely enclosed with good and substantial fence [see Food & Agric. Code § 17121 et seq.; Food & Agric. Code § 17121 ("lawful fence"); see also § 102C.110, P 3(a)(2) (special requirements governing estrays found in counties devoted chiefly to grazing)].
- g. Whether finder is interested in purchasing animal in event owner cannot be found.

§ 102C.103 Facts: Holder of Property Subject to Escheat Under Unclaimed Property Law

1. Facts concerning holder:

- a. Full business name.
- b. Federal employer identification number.
- c. Complete address and telephone number.
- d. Whether address is that of holder's main office or branch office.
- e. Office number.
- f. Name, title, and telephone number and title of the person who will actually prepare, or will be directly responsible for preparing, the report [see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 1174(e)] and delivering the escheated property.
- g. If report will be prepared by agent, agent's name, title, and address [see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 1174(d)].
- h. Type of organization [see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 1174(a)]:
 - (1) State or federal bank.
 - (2) State or federal credit union.
 - (3) State or federal savings and loan.

- (4) State or federal loan company.
- (5) Corporation.
- (6) Insurance corporation (determine kind of insurance).
- (7) Department store.
- (8) Credit bureau.
- (9) Utility.
- (10) Partnership.
- (11) Limited liability company.
- (11) Other.

i. For corporate holder [see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 1174(b)]:

- (1) State of incorporation.
- (2) Date of incorporation.
- (3) State in which corporation has its principal place of business.
- (4) Name and state of incorporation of parent corporation, if any.
- (5) Whether report filed by parent, subsidiary, or other.

j. If holder has changed name or is successor to previous holder, previous name of holder or name and address of previous holder.

k. Date that organization filing report commenced operations [see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 1174(c)].

NOTE:

2 Cal. Code Reg. § 1174(c) states that the report must specify the date that the organization filing the report commenced operations. However, the report forms prepared by the controller do not include a space for this information.

2. Facts concerning property:

NOTE:

The facts listed in items (a) through (g), below, should be obtained for each item of property to be reported that is valued at $50 or more. Items of property valued under $50 may be reported in aggregate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1530(b)(1), (4)].

a. Full name, social security number (if known) [see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 1174(f)], and last known address of each owner of property valued at $50 or more [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1530(b)(4) (items of value under $50 each may be reported in aggregate)].

NOTE:

If a person other than the insured or annuitant is entitled to funds held by a life insurance corporation, and that person's address is not known to the corporation or is not definite and certain from the corporation's records what person is entitled to the funds, it is presumed that last known address of the person entitled to the funds is the same as the last known address of the insured or annuitant according to corporation's records. This is a presumption affecting the burden of proof [Code Civ. Proc. § 1515(b)].

b. Account number and other identifying number, if any [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1530(b)(4) (intangible personal property)].

c. Classification of property.

- (1) Demand deposit.
- (2) Savings.
- (3) Wages.
- (4) Royalties.
- (5) Money orders.
- (6) Traveler's checks.
- (7) Dividends.
- (8) Policy proceeds.
- (9) Premium refunds.
- (10) Cash in lieu of fractional shares.
- (11) Bonds.
- (12) Cash held for redemption of shares.
- (13) Other [see § 102C.18[3]].

e. Total amount due, including interest or other earned increment [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1530(a), (b), 1522; see 2 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1170, 1171 (discontinuance must be based on statute or contract); see also § 102C.221[1][e]].

f. Total lawful charges [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1513(a)(1), (a)(2), 1522; 2 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1160, 1161, 1165; see also § 102C.221[1][d]].

g. If property is shares of stock or interest or dividends due on shares [Code Civ. Proc. § 1530(b)(4); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1532(d) (duplicate certificate will have to be issued to effect transfer to controller or securities may be registered in uncertificated form in name of controller); § 102C.132, PP 3, 4(d) (procedural guide]:

- (1) Name of issuing company.
- (2) Number and type of original shares issued and shares reported.
- (3) Number of stock certificate or other interest, if any.

h. In the case of the contents of a safe deposit box or other safekeeping repository and in the case of other tangible property, a description of the property and the place where it is held and may be inspected by the controller, along with any amounts owing to the holder for unpaid rent or storage charges and for the cost of opening the safe deposit box or other safekeeping repository, if any, in which the property was contained [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1530(b)(3) (contents of report)].

B. Preliminary Determinations

32-102C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102C.110

§ 102C.110 Determinations for Finder of Lost Property or Animal

1. Determine which statutory scheme governs disposition of property:

a. For lost domestic animals, Civ. Code § 2080 et seq. [Civ. Code § 2080; see § 102C.11[1]].

b. For estrays, Food & Agric. Code § 17001 et seq. [see § 102C.12[1]].

NOTE:

An estray is any impounded or seized bovine animal, horse, mule, sheep, swine, or burro whose owner is unknown or cannot be located [Food & Agric. Code § 17001.5].

c. For property remaining on rental premises after tenancy has terminated and tenant has vacated premises, when circumstances suggest that property has been lost, Civ. Code § 2080 et seq. [see Civ. Code §§ 1981, 1982].

NOTE:

Personal property which a landlord reasonably believes to have been lost is to be disposed of pursuant to Civ. Code § 2080 et seq. [Civ. Code § 1982(a)]. "Reasonable belief" means the actual knowledge or belief a prudent person would have without making an investigation (including any investigation of public records), except that if the landlord has specific information indicating that an investigation would more probably than not reveal pertinent information and the cost of an investigation would be reasonable in relation to the probable value of the personal property involved, "reasonable belief" includes the actual knowledge or belief a prudent person would have if an investigation were made [Civ. Code § 1980(d)]. However, if the appropriate police or sheriff's department refuses to accept property, the landlord may dispose of the property pursuant to Civ. Code § 1980 et seq. [Civ. Code § 1982(b)], discussed in Ch. 35B, Modification and Termination of Leases.

d. For other lost property, Civ. Code § 2080 et seq. [Civ. Code § 2080].

2. Determine approximate value of property, if actual value is unknown.

3. If lost property is estray:

a. Determine if finder has right to take up estray and have lien for expenses connected with taking up [Food & Agric. Code § 17041]:

NOTE:

In general, any person who finds any estray domestic animal upon the finder's premises, or on premises to which the finder has the right of possession, or on any highway which is adjacent to those premises, may take up the animal and have a lien for all expenses which are incurred in taking up, keeping, and caring for it [Food & Agric. Code § 17041].

(1) Does finder own or have right of possession of premises where estray is found; or

(2) If estray is found on highway, does finder own or have right of possession of adjacent premises?

(3) If estray was found on premises located in county or part of county identified by state statute or county ordinance as devoted to grazing [see Food & Agric. Code § 17121 et seq. (grazing areas and fence laws)], are those premises entirely enclosed with a good and substantial fence [Food & Agric. Code § 17122]?

NOTE:

In any county or part of a county devoted chiefly to grazing and so declared under Food & Agric. Code § 17121 et seq., the finder does not have the right to take up any estray animal found upon the finder's premises, and does not have a lien for expenses, unless the premises are entirely enclosed with a good and substantial fence [Food & Agric. Code § 17122]. A lawful fence for these purposes is any fence which is good, strong, substantial, and sufficient to prevent the ingress and egress of livestock. No wire fence is a good and substantial fence within the meaning of this article unless it has three tightly stretched barbed wires securely fastened to posts of reasonable strength, firmly set in the ground not more than one rod apart, and one of those wires is at least four feet above the surface of the ground. Any kind of wire or other fence of height, strength and capacity equal to or greater than such a the wire fence is a good and substantial fence for these purposes, as are cattle guards of such width, depth, rail spacing, and construction as will effectively turn livestock [Food & Agric. Code § 17122]

b. Determine prevailing rates charged by commercial enterprises that feed livestock on custom basis in area where estray was found [see Food & Agric. Code § 17095].

c. Determine which local agency or official should be notified of taking up of estray [Food & Agric. Code § 17042; see also § 102C.202].

NOTE:

The statute requires that notice be filed with the secretary of Food and Agriculture [Food & Agric. Code § 17042]. In practice, estrays are handled on the county level by the brand inspector or other local authorities. To determine who should be notified of the taking up of an estray in a particular county, contact the Bureau of Livestock Identification at (916) 654-0889, the local brand inspector, or a local slaughterhouse or feedyard.

B. Preliminary Determinations

32-102C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102C.111

§ 102C.111 Determinations for Holder of Unclaimed Property.

1. Determine which statutory scheme governs disposition of property:

a. For goods, merchandise, or other property received by railroad or express company, other common carrier, commission merchant, innkeeper, or Warehouse operator for transportation or safekeeping, Civ. Code § 2081 et seq. [Civ. Code § 2081; see § 102C.15 (discussion)].

b. For property left in hospital, Civ. Code § 1862.5 [see § 102C.16 (discussion)].

c. For property left on premises of landlord or innkeeper by former tenant or paying guest under circumstances that do not indicate property was lost, Civ. Code § 1980 et seq. [Civ. Code § 1982(a); see § 102C.110 P 1(c)], covered in Ch. 35B, Modification and Termination of Leases .

NOTE:

Civ. Code § 1980 et seq. is an optional procedure [Civ. Code § 1981(a)]. That procedure may not be used in the case of lost property, which should be handled in accordance with Civ. Code § 2080 et seq., unless the appropriate police or sheriff's department refuses to accept the lost property [Civ. Code § 1982]. The procedure also is inapplicable when Civ. Code §§ 1862.5, 2080.8, 2080.9, or 2081 to 2081.6 applies [Civ. Code § 1981(b)].

d. For property in possession of museum to which it was loaned under expired loan agreement, Civ. Code § 1899 et seq. [see Ch. 102E, Sales and Loans of Artwork].

e. For property in possession of receiver, Code Civ. Proc. § 570.

2. Determine approximate value of property, if actual value is unknown.

3. Determine how holder is required to announce intention to dispose of property by public auction:

a. For goods, merchandise, or other property received by railroad or express company, other common carrier, commission merchant, innkeeper, or warehouse operator for transportation or safekeeping, by customary manner of giving notice of sale of goods by public auction at place in which goods are held or stored [Civ. Code § 2081.1; see § 102C.210[2] (form)].

b. For property left in hospital, by written notice of sale sent by regular mail, postage prepaid, to last known owner at his or her last known address [Civ. Code § 1862.5; see § 102C.212[2] (form)].

c. For property in possession of receiver, by notice published at least once weekly for four consecutive weeks in one or more newspapers published in county [Code Civ. Proc. § 570; see § 102C.214[2] (form)].

4. For goods, merchandise, or other property received by railroad or express company, other common carrier, commission merchant, innkeeper, or warehouse operator for transportation or safekeeping, determine customary manner of giving notice of sale of goods by public auction at place in which goods are held or stored [Civ. Code § 2081.1].

B. Preliminary Determinations

32-102C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102C.112

§ 102C.112 Determinations for Holder of Property Subject to Escheat Under Unclaimed Property Law

1. Determine whether property is subject to escheat.

a. Is property of type subject to escheat [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1510 et seq.; see also § 102C.18[3] and [4]]?

b. Have conditions for escheat concerning passage of time and inactivity of owner been met?

NOTE:

The escheat periods noted below expire six months before the last date on which the holder is required to give the notices discussed in P 2, below, and in §§ 102C.18[7] and 102C.130 [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1513.5, 1516(d), 1520(b)]. Thus, holders should be advised to track inactivity well before the actual expiration of the escheat period.

(1) For demand, savings, and matured time deposits, matured investment certificates, and accounts subject to negotiable order of withdrawal (NOW), made with banking or financial organization, and other interests in or deposits made with financial organization, have more than three years elapsed since owner has done any of following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(1), (a)(2); see § 102C.18[3][a], [b]]?

(a) Increased or decreased amount of deposit.

(b) Cashed an interest check.

(c) Presented passbook or other appropriate record for crediting of interest.

(d) Corresponded electronically or in writing with holder concerning funds or deposit.

(e) Otherwise indicated interest in deposit as evidenced by memorandum or other record on file with holder.

(f) Conducted one of above listed activities with respect to another deposit or account at same banking or financial organization, or an individual retirement account or funds held by the financial organization under a retirement plan for self-employed individuals or a similar account or plan, and received electronic or written communications from banking or financial organization regarding the other deposit or account.

(2) For sums payable on traveler's checks issued by business association and outstanding for more than 15 years from date of issuance, have more than 15 years elapsed since owner has done either of following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(3); see § 102C.18[3][c]]?

(a) Corresponded with holder concerning traveler's checks.

(b) Otherwise indicated interest in traveler's checks as evidenced by memorandum or other record on file with holder.

(3) For sums payable on any other written instrument on which banking or financial organization is directly liable and that have been outstanding for more than three years from date payable (or date of issuance if payable on demand), have more than three years elapsed since owner has done either of following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(4); see § 102C.18[3][d]]:

NOTE:

These "other written instruments" include, but are not limited to, drafts and certified checks [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(4)]. Prior to January 1, 2004, these written instruments were subject to a five-year escheat period [see Stats 2003, ch. 304, § 1].

(a) Corresponded electronically or in writing with holder concerning sums.

(b) Otherwise indicated interest in sums as evidenced by memorandum or other record on file with banking or financial organization.

(4) For sums payable on money orders issued by business association (including a banking or financial organization) and outstanding for more than seven years from date payable (or date of issuance if payable on demand), have more than seven years elapsed since owner has done either of following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(5); see § 102C.18[3][e]].

(a) Corresponded electronically or in writing with holder concerning sums; or

(b) Otherwise indicated interest in sums as evidenced by memorandum or other record on file with banking or financial organization?

(5) For funds held by business association in individual retirement accounts or under retirement plans for self-employed individuals, or similar accounts or plans established pursuant to state or federal internal revenue laws, have more than three years elapsed since funds become payable or distributable without owner doing any of following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(6); see § 102C.18[3][f]]?

NOTE:

Funds held in these plans become payable or distributable only when distribution of all or a part of the funds becomes mandatory under the terms of the account or plan [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(6)].

(a) Increasing or decreasing principal.

(b) Accepting payment of principal or income.

(c) Corresponding with holder in writing concerning property.

(d) Otherwise indicating interest in property.

(e) owner has owned another such account or plan with the business association, and the owner has conducted one of the activities listed above.

(6) For wages and salaries, has owner failed to claim them for more than one year after the wages or salaries become payable [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(7); see § 102C.18[3][g]; Stats 2003, ch. 304, § 1]?

(7) For contents of safe deposit boxes or other safekeeping repositories, has owner failed to claim contents within three years after later of following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1514; see § 102C.18[3][h]]?

(a) Expiration date of lease or rental period.

(b) Expiration date of agreement under which box was furnished free of cost.

(8) For funds held or owing by life insurance corporation under life or endowment insurance policy or annuity contract that has matured or terminated, has owner failed to claim and receive payment within three years after it became due and payable [Code Civ. Proc. § 1515(a), (d); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1515(c) ("matured" defined); § 102C.18[3][i]]?

NOTE:

This time limit applies regardless of whether or not the policy or contract has been surrendered as required [Code Civ. Proc. § 1515(a), (d)].

(9) For sums owing on demutualization of insurance companies, see § 102C.18[3][j] [Code Civ. Proc. § 1515.5].

(10) For dividends, profits, distributions, interest, payments on principal, and other sums held or owing by business association for or to shareholder, certificate holder, member, bondholder, other security holder, or participating patron of cooperative, have three years elapsed since date prescribed for payment or delivery without owner either of following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1516(a); see § 102C.18[3][k]]?

(a) Claiming property; or

(b) Corresponding in writing with holder concerning property?

(11) For intangible interests in business associations as evidenced by stock or membership records, have three years elapsed since owner has done any of following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1516(b); see § 102C.18[3][l]]:

NOTE:

The property described above will only escheat under the conditions described if the holder does not know the location of the owner at the end of the three-year period [Code Civ. Proc. § 1516(b)].

(a) Claimed dividend, profit, distribution, interest, payment on principal, or other sum.

(b) Corresponded in writing with holder concerning interest.

(c) Otherwise indicated interest in property as evidenced by memorandum or other record on file with holder.

(12) For intangible personal property subject to escheat [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1510] and tangible personal property located in California that is distributable in course of business association's voluntary or involuntary dissolution or liquidation, has owner failed to claim property within six months after final distribution or liquidation date [Code Civ. Proc. § 1517; see § 102C.18[3][m]]?

NOTE:

Property distributable in course of dissolution or liquidation of an insurer in accordance with Ins. Code § 1010 et seq., that is unclaimed by the owner after six months of the date of final distribution, is transferred to the Department of Insurance, with any proceeds of sale of property and other funds to be deposited in the Insurance Fund [Code Civ. Proc. § 1517(b)].

(13) For intangible personal property subject to escheat [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1510] and tangible personal property located in California that is held in a fiduciary capacity [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1518(c)] for benefit of another person, have three years elapsed since property became payable or distributable [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1518(b)] without owner having done [Code Civ. Proc. § 1518(a); see § 102C.18[3][n]]?

(a) Increased or decreased principal amount.

(b) Accepted payment of principal or income.

(c) Corresponded in writing concerning property or otherwise expressed interest in property, as evidenced by memorandum or other record on file with fiduciary.

(14) For intangible personal property subject to escheat [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1510] and tangible personal property located in California that is held for owner by government or governmental subdivision or agency, has owner failed to claim property for more than three years [Code Civ. Proc. § 1519; see § 102C.18[3][o]]?

(15) For employee benefit plan distributions, have three years elapsed after funds became payable or distributable without owner having done any of following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1521(a); see § 102C.18[3][r]]?

(a) Accepted distribution.

(b) Corresponded in writing concerning distribution or otherwise indicated interest as evidenced by memorandum or other record on file with fiduciary [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1521(a) (definition)] of trust or custodial fund or administrator?

(16) For sums held by business association that have been ordered to be refunded by court or administrative agency, has owner failed to claim refund within one year after it has become payable in accordance with final determination or order [Code Civ. Proc. § 1519.5; see § 102C.18[3][p]]?

NOTE:

This time limit applies whether or not the final determination or order requires any person entitled to a refund to make a claim for it [Code Civ. Proc. § 1519.5].

(17) For other tangible and intangible property held or owing in ordinary course of holder's business, has owner failed to claim property within three years after it became payable or distributable [Code Civ. Proc. § 1520; see § 102C.18[3][q]]?

2. Determine whether and when holder must give notice of impending escheat to last known owner.

NOTE:

For a procedural checklist regarding the notice, see § 102C.130. For a form for giving notice, see § 102C.220[2].

a. For deposits, account, shares, and other interests in banking or financial organizations valued at $50 or more [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a), (b)] notice must be given not less than six nor more than 12 months before the time the account, deposit, shares, or other interest becomes reportable, if address that holder has for apparent owner, is not (according to holder's records) inaccurate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513.5]; see P 1(b)(1), above, and P 4(b), below.

b. For property intangible interests in business associations as evidenced by stock or membership records [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1516(b)], business association must make reasonable efforts to notify owner by mail, or, if the owner has consented to electronic notice, send electronically, not less than 6 nor more than 12 months before time when interest in business association becomes reportable [Code Civ. Proc. § 1516(d)]; see P 1(b)(11), above, and P 4, below].

c. For all other property that is held or owing in the ordinary course of the holder's business and is valued at $50 or more, if holder has an address for apparent owner, which holder's records do not disclose to be inaccurate, holder must notify owner not less than six nor more than 12 months before time when property becomes transferable to controller [Code Civ. Proc. § 1520(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1532(a)] (property to be delivered to controller no sooner than seven months and no later than seven months and 15 days after the final date of filing report); see also P 1(b), above, and P 5, below].

3. Determine which reporting form must be filed.

NOTE:

If the form titles do not clearly indicate which form to use for a specific type of property, contact the Reporting Unit of the State Controller's office at (916) 323-2845.

a. Holder Face Sheet (UFS-1) [see § 102C.221[2]], for reporting particulars of holder.

b. Holder Detail Sheet for Cash Only or Safe Deposit Property (UDS-1A).

NOTE:

If a headquarters office is filing separate reports for one or more branches, each branch must file a separate detail sheet.

c. Holder Detail Sheet for Stock Property, with or without cash (UDS-1). If a headquarters office is filing separate reports for one or more branches, each branch must file a separate detail sheet.

d. Securities Summary (SS-1) must be filed whenever securities are reported.

e. Authorization agreement for electronic funds transfer (SCO EFT-1), if total cash remittance will exceed $20,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1532(a)].

4. Determine filing deadline:

NOTE:

The controller may postpone the reporting date on his or her motion or on written request by any person required to file a report [Code Civ. Proc. § 1530(d)].

a. For reports made by life insurance corporations, and all reports of insurance corporation demutualization proceeds [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1515.5], April 30 of year following year for which report is filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1530(d)].

NOTE:

The initial report for demutualization proceeds [see Stats 2003, ch. 304, § 2] must be filed on or before May 1, 2004, with respect to conditions in effect on December 31, 2003 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1530(d)].

b. For all other reports, October 31 for either [Code Civ. Proc. § 1530(d)]:

(1) Twelve-month period ending on June 30 of same year; or

(2) Most recently-ended fiscal year.

5. Determine payment or delivery deadline:

a. For contents of safe deposit boxes or other safekeeping repositories held in California by business associations, payment must be made at earlier of following times [Code Civ. Proc. § 1532.1; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1514]:

(1) When payment or delivery is requested by controller; or

(2) Within one year after final date for filing report [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1530(d); see also P 4(b), above].

b. For all other property, payment or delivery must be made no sooner than seven months and no later than seven months and 15 days after the final date of filing report [Code Civ. Proc. § 1532(a)].

c. If a person establishes his or her right to receive property specified in the report to the satisfaction of the holder before that property has been delivered to the Controller, or it appears that, for any other reasons, the property may not be subject to escheat, the holder shall not pay or deliver the property to the Controller but must file a report with the Controller containing information pertaining to the property not subject to escheat [Prob. Code § 1532 (b)].

C. Procedural Guide for Disposal of Lost or Unclaimed Property

32-102C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102C.120

§ 102C.120 Disposal of Domestic Animal or Other Found Property

NOTE:

See § 102C.110, P 1 to determine whether the provisions of Civ. Code § 2080 et seq. govern the disposition of a particular item of property.

1. If owner is known [Civ. Code § 2080]:

a. Within reasonable time:

(1) Inform owner of finding of property [see § 102C.200[2] (form)].

NOTE:

The statute does not specify that the owner must be informed in writing that the property has been found. However, a finder who takes charge of lost property acquires the responsibilities of a depositary for hire [Civ. Code § 2080; see Civ. Code § 1851 et seq., discussed in Ch. 102, Bailments], and a finder who appropriates found property to his or her own use without making reasonable and just efforts to find the owner and restore the property to the owner may be charged with theft [Penal Code § 485]. Thus, the use of a written notice is advisable in order to protect the finder.

(2) Collect reasonable finder's charge for saving and caring for property, if any, from owner.

(3) Return property to owner.

b. Retain copy of letter or notice given to owner for finder's records.

c. If owner does not claim property within reasonable time and property is worth $100 or more, proceed as discussed under P 2, below.

2. If owner is unknown or has not claimed property, and property is worth $100 or more:

a. Within reasonable time, turn property over to [Civ. Code § 2080.1(a)]:

(1) City police department, if property was found within city or city and county; or

(2) County sheriff's department, if property was found outside city limits.

b. If police or sheriff's department does not provide finder with form covering information required by statute [see Civ. Code § 2080.1(a)], prepare, have applicant sign, and deliver to police or sheriff's department, along with property, an affidavit (or declaration) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5] that includes following information [see § 102C.201[2] (form)]:

(1) When and where finder found or saved property [Civ. Code § 2080.1(a)].

(2) Description of property [Civ. Code § 2080.1(a)].

(3) If property was saved [Civ. Code § 2080.1(a)].

(a) How and from what it was saved.

(b) Whether owner is known to finder.

(c) Statement that finder has not secreted, withheld, or disposed of any part of property.

(4) Value of property.

NOTE:

Although the statute does not require the affidavit or declaration to include a statement of the property's value, a subsequent statute governing the finder's right to the property [Civ. Code § 2080.3; see P d, below] refers to the "reported value" of the property. It is unclear from the statute whether the finder, the police, or some other source is to provide the "reported value." However, because the procedures for handling the property and the finder's right to reclaim it are determined according to its "reported value" [Civ. Code § 2080.3], the finder may wish to establish this figure at the time the property is turned over to the police or sheriff's department.

c. Retain copy of affidavit or declaration for finder's records.

d. If finder wishes to claim property in event owner does not come forward:

NOTE:

The finder may not claim the property if he or she is an employee of a public agency who found the property in the course of his or her employment [Civ. Code § 2080.3].

(1) Request that police or sheriff's department to which property was delivered notify finder if "quick sale" of property is planned [Civ. Code § 2080.5; see § 102C.11[3]] and give finder opportunity to claim or bid on property.

NOTE:

Civ. Code § 2080.5 does not set forth the finder's right to claim the property in a quick sale situation. The policy followed in this situation may vary among individual police and sheriff's departments.

(2) If reported value of property is less than $250 [see P b(4) NOTE, above], instruct finder to claim property from police or sheriff's department when 90 days have elapsed since finder's delivery of property to department [see Civ. Code § 2080.3(b)] (title to property not claimed by its owner within 90 days after finder delivers it to police or sheriff's department vests in finder [Civ. Code § 2080.3(b)]).

(3) If reported value of property is $250 or more [see NOTE at P b(4), above] and 90 days have elapsed since finder delivered property to police or sheriff's department [Civ. Code § 2080.3(a)]:

(a) Ascertain that police or sheriff's department has published notice of property at least once in newspaper of general circulation; and

(b) If owner does not claim property within seven days following first publication of notice, instruct finder to pay police or sheriff's department cost of publication and claim property.

NOTE:

If the owner does not claim the property within seven days after the first publication of notice by the police or sheriff's department, title to the property will vest in the finder on his or her payment of the cost of publication, unless the property was found or saved by an employee of any public agency in the course of his or her employment, in which case it will be sold by public auction [Civ. Code § 2080.3(a)].

3. If owner is unknown, circumstances of finding of property give no knowledge or means of inquiry as to owner's identity, and property is valued at less than $100, instruct finder to take the following steps:

NOTE:

Although the Civil Code provisions governing lost property do not require a finder who is unaware of the owner's identity to turn property valued at less than $100 over to the police [see Civ. Code §§ 2080, 2080.1], the finder should protect himself or herself from a possible theft charge [see Penal Code § 485] by contacting the police or sheriff's department concerning any found property not obviously abandoned by its owner [see § 102C.11[1]] prior to appropriating it for his or her own use or otherwise disposing of it.

a. Contact police or sheriff's department, as applicable [see P 2(a), above] to determine whether property should be turned in; and

b. If police or sheriff's department refuses to accept property, keep or dispose of property as he or she desires.

1. Ascertain that animal is confined in secure place [Food & Agric. Code § 17042] and that reasonable care has been taken to preserve it from injury [Food & Agric. Code § 17043].
2. Immediately after taking up of animal, provide appropriate local authority with notice including [Food & Agric. Code § 17042; see § 102C.110, P 3(c); see also § 102C.202[2] (form)]:

NOTE:

Although the wording of the statute suggests that written notice is required [see Food & Agric. Code § 17042], some offices take reports over the phone.

- a. Description of animal.
 - b. Animal's marks or brands, if any.
 - c. Probable value of animal.
 - d. Statement of date and place animal was taken up and confined.
3. Deliver animal to inspector for Department of Food and Agriculture on demand [Food & Agric. Code § 17061].
 4. If taker-up wishes to purchase animal from Department of Food and Agriculture in event owner is not located, contact Department for information concerning date and other particulars of sale.

NOTE:

An animal valued at $225 or more may be sold by the Department after 14 days have elapsed since the first posting of notice concerning the animal [Food & Agric. Code § 17092]. An animal valued at less than $225 may be sold five days after posting notice [Food & Agric. Code § 17066]. An animal in a condition that requires immediate disposal may be sold or otherwise disposed of without notice or a waiting period [Food & Agric. Code § 17091].

5. Following sale or other disposition of animal by Department, request payment for keeping and care of animal [Food & Agric. Code § 17095].

NOTE:

A taker-up is entitled to a per-day payment, based on the prevailing rates charged by commercial enterprises that feed livestock on a custom basis, for the keeping and care of an estray [Food & Agric. Code § 17095]. To determine the procedure for collecting payment, contact the authority to whom notice concerning the estray was delivered [see § 102C.110, P 3(c)].

§ 102C.122 Disposal of Goods, Merchandise, or Other Property Received by Common Carrier, Commission Merchant, Innkeeper, or Warehouse Operator for Transportation or Safekeeping

NOTE:

The procedure described in PP 1-3, below, may also be used by a commission merchant or warehouse operator who receives property on consignment and makes advances on it, either to the owner or for freight and charges, if the advances are not paid within 60 days from the date made [Civ. Code § 2081.5].

1. Instruct holder to do one of following [Civ. Code § 2081]:

- a. Hold property; or
- b. Store property with some reasonable person.

NOTE:

After storage of the property, the responsibility of the holder ceases. The person with whom the property is stored is not liable for loss or damage except that resulting from his or her negligence or want of proper care [Civ. Code § 2081.4].

2. Instruct holder to release property to owner, consignee, or other authorized person on payment of freight and just and reasonable charges within 60 days after holder's receipt of property [Civ. Code §§ 2081, 2081.1].

3. If no person calls for property and pays freight and charges within 60 days after its receipt by holder:

- a. Give notice of sale of property by public auction, in manner customary at place property is held or stored [Civ. Code § 2081.1; see § 102C.210[2] (form)].

- b. Retain copy of notice for holder's records.
- c. Hold public auction and sell property, or as much of it as will pay freight and charges, to highest bidder [Civ. Code § 2081.1].
- d. After sale, instruct holder to take the following steps:
 - (1) Retain any surplus from sale remaining after payment of freight, storage, expenses of sale, and other reasonable charges for 60 days following sale [Civ. Code § 2081.2].
 - (2) Pay surplus over to owner of property or owner's agent on demand at any time within 60 days after sale [Civ. Code § 2081.2; see Civ. Code § 2081.3; see also § 102C.211[2] (form for demand)].
 - (3) If owner or agent fails to demand surplus within 60 days after sale, pay surplus into county treasury [Civ. Code § 2081.3].

1. Instruct holder to keep or store property for 180 days following departure of owner or possessor from hospital [Civ. Code § 1862.5].
2. If property is not claimed within 180 days, send notice containing following information to last known owner at last known address, by regular mail, postage prepaid [Civ. Code § 1862.5; see § 102C.212[2] (form)]:
 - a. Description of each item of property to be sold.
 - b. Name of last known owner.
 - c. Name of hospital.
 - d. Time and place of sale of property by public auction.
3. Retain copy of notice for hospital's records.
4. If owner does not claim property within four weeks after written notice is given, sell property at public auction [Civ. Code § 1862.5].
5. Dispose of proceeds of sale as follows [Civ. Code § 1862.5]:
 - a. Retain following amounts:
 - (1) Charges for storage, if any.

NOTE:

Civ. Code § 1862.5 does not specify whether the hospital may charge storage fees in connection with an item claimed within 180 days after the owner's departure from the hospital or between the time of notice and the time of sale.

(2) Reasonable expenses of sale.

(3) All sums due hospital from last known owner of property.

b. Deliver remaining balance, if any, to rightful owner or his or her legal representative on demand made within one week after sale [see § 102C.213[2] (form for demand)].

c. If remaining balance is not claimed within one week after sale, pay balance into general fund of county in which hospital is located.

d. Instruct hospital that has substantially complied with statutory requirements for disposal of unclaimed property that it is thereby exonerated from any liability for property sold [Civ. Code § 1862.5].

NOTE:

For forms and instructions governing the appointment of receivers and the duties of receivers generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender).

1. Draft notice concerning unclaimed funds, including following information [Code Civ. Proc. § 570; see § 102C.214[2] (form)]:

- a. Name of owner of unclaimed funds.
- b. Owner's last known place of residence or post office address.
- c. Amount of unclaimed funds.

2. Arrange for publication of notice in at least one newspaper published in county at least once weekly for four consecutive weeks [Code Civ. Proc. § 570].

NOTE:

The newspaper will need an additional copy of the notice for its proof of publication [see P 4, below]. Counsel may wish to time the publication so that the report [see P 5, below] may be made as part of the motion for request for discharge [*see Cal. 32-102C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102C.130

§ 102C.130 Notice Requirements for Holders of Property About to Escheat

NOTE:

There are three provisions of the Unclaimed Property Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1500 et seq.] governing notices holders are required to give to apparent owners before their property is reported and turned over to the controller: Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1513.5, 1516(d), and 1520(b). Although they are substantially similar, they are discussed separately in PP 1, 2, and 3, below [see also § 102C.18[7]].

1. For banking or financial institution:

a. Instruct banking or financial institution to prepare and mail to, or, if the owner has consented to electronic notice, send electronically, apparent owner notice, containing information listed in (b)-(d) below, not less than two years nor more than two and one-half years after date of last activity by or communication with apparent owner concerning account, deposit, shares, or other interest, or alternatively, not less than six nor more than 12 months before the time the account, deposit, shares, or other interest becomes reportable to the controller, if all of following apply:

(1) Property is subject to escheat pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(1) or (a)(2) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513.5(a); see § 102C.18[3][a] and [b]];

(2) Holder has address for apparent owner of property and holder's records do not disclose address to be inaccurate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513.5(a)]; and

(3) Deposit, account, shares, or other interests is in amount of $50 or more [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513.5(c)].

b. Include following information in notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513.5(b)]; for form, see § 102C.220[2]:

(1) A heading that reads "THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA REQUIRES US TO NOTIFY YOU THAT YOUR UNCLAIMED PROPERTY MAY BE TRANSFERRED TO THE STATE IF YOU DO NOT CONTACT US";

(2) Time that deposit, account, shares, or other interest will escheat; and

(3) Effects of escheat, including necessity for filing claim for return of deposit, account, shares, or other interest.

c. In bold or in a font that is at least two points larger than rest of notice, do all of following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513.5(b)]:

(1) Specify that since date of last activity, or for the last two years, there has been no customer activity on deposit, account, shares, or other interest.

(2) Identify deposit, account, shares, or other interest by number or identifier.

(3) Indicate that deposit, account, shares, or other interest is in danger of escheating to the state.

(4) Specify that California Unclaimed Property Law requires banks, banking organizations, and financial organization to transfer funds of a deposit, account, shares, or other interest if it has been inactive for three years.

d. Include with notice a form by which owner may declare intention to maintain deposit, account, shares, or other interest [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513.5(b)].

NOTE:

Code Civ. Proc. § 1513.5(b) states that this form must be "as prescribed by the Controller." However, the Controller has not created an official form for this notice, or prescribed any requirements for this form. The Controller's office has indicated that guidelines may be issued at some future time. If the owner fills out, signs, and returns this form to the holder, the property will not escheat [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513.5(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(1)(B), (a)(2)(B)].

NOTE:

In lieu of returning the form, the business association may provide a telephone number or other electronic means to enable the owner to contact the association [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1513.5(b), 1516(d), 1520(b)]. With such contact, the business association must be deemed to know the location of the owner. The business association may also impose a service charge, not to exceed two dollars ($2) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1513.5(b), 1516(d), 1520(b)]. Additionally, the holder may give additional notice at any time between the date of last activity by, or communication with, the owner and the date the holder transfers the deposit, shares, or other interest to the controller [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1513.5(b), 1516(d), 1520(b)].

e. Deduct service charge from deposit, account, shares, or other interest, in amount not exceeding lesser of [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513.5(b)]:

(1) Two dollars; or

(2) Administrative cost of mailing notice.

2. For business associations:

a. Instruct business association that holds property subject to escheat pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1516(b), i.e., intangible interests evidenced by its stock records or membership records [see § 102C.18[3][I]], to prepare and mail, or, if the owner has consent to electronic notice, send electronically, to apparent owner notice, containing information listed in (b)-(d) below, not less than six nor more than 12 months before the time the interest becomes reportable to the controller [Code Civ. Proc. § 1516(d)].

b. Draft notice that owner's interest will escheat to state and specify Code Civ. Proc. § 1516(d); for form, see § 102C.220[2]:

(1) A heading that reads "THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA REQUIRES US TO NOTIFY YOU THAT YOUR UNCLAIMED PROPERTY MAY BE TRANSFERRED TO THE STATE IF YOU DO NOT CONTACT US"; that interest will escheat.

(2) Time that interest will escheat.

(3) Effects of escheat and necessity of filing a claim for return of interest.

c. In bold or in a font that is at least two points larger than the rest of the notice, do all of following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1516(d)]:

(1) Specify that since date of last activity, or for the last two years, there has been no customer activity on deposit, account, shares, or other interest.

(2) Identify deposit, account, shares, or other interest by number or identifier.

(3) Indicate that deposit, account, shares, or other interest is in danger of escheating to state.

(4) Specify that California Unclaimed Property Law requires banks, banking organizations, and financial organization to transfer funds of a deposit, account, shares, or other interest if it has been inactive for three years.

d. Include in or with notice a form by which owner may confirm owner's current address [Code Civ. Proc. § 1516(d)].

NOTE:

Code Civ. Proc. § 1516(d) states that this form must be "as prescribed by the Controller." However, the Controller has not created an official form for this notice, or prescribed any requirements for this form. The Controller's office has indicated that guidelines may be issued at some future time. If the form is filled out, signed by the owner, and returned to the holder, it is deemed that the business association knows the location of the owner [Code Civ. Proc. § 1516(d)].

d. Include in or with notice a form by which owner may confirm owner's current address [Code Civ. Proc. § 1516(d)].

NOTE:

In lieu of returning the form, the business association may provide a telephone number or other electronic means to enable the owner to contact the association [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1513.5(b), 1516(d)].

1520(b)]. With such contact, the business association must be deemed to know the location of the owner. The business association may also impose a service charge, not to exceed two dollars ($2) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1513.5(b), 1516(d), 1520(b)]. Additionally, the holder may give additional notice at any time between the date of last activity by, or communication with, the owner and the date the holder transfers the deposit, shares, or other interest to the controller [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1513.5(b), 1516(d), 1520(b)].

3. For other businesses:

a. Instruct business that holds property subject to escheat other than in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a) or (b) or 1516(d) to prepare and mail, or, if the owner has consented to electronic notice, send electronically, to apparent owner notice, containing information listed in (b)-(d), below, not less than six nor more than 12 months before the time the interest becomes transferrable to the controller [Code Civ. Proc. § 1520(b)], if both of the following apply:

(1) Holder has address for apparent owner of property and holder's records do not disclose address to be inaccurate; and

(2) Interest is valued at $50 or more.

b. Draft notice that owner's interest will escheat to state and specify [Code Civ. Proc. § 1520(b)]; for form, see § 102C.220[2]:

(1) A heading that reads "THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA REQUIRES US TO NOTIFY YOU THAT YOUR UNCLAIMED PROPERTY MAY BE TRANSFERRED TO THE STATE IF YOU DO NOT CONTACT US";

(2) Time that interest will escheat.

(3) Effects of escheat and necessity of filing a claim for return of interest.

c. In bold or in a font that is at least two points larger than the rest of the notice, do all of following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1520(b)]:

(1) Specify that since date of last activity, or for the last two years, there has been no customer activity on deposit, account, shares, or other interest.

(2) Identify deposit, account, shares, or other interest by number or identifier.

(3) Indicate that deposit, account, shares, or other interest is in danger of escheating to state.

(4) Specify that California Unclaimed Property Law requires banks, banking organizations, and financial organization to transfer funds of a deposit, account, shares, or other interest if it has been inactive for three years.

d. Include in or with notice a form by which owner may confirm owner's current address [Code Civ. Proc. § 1520(b)].

NOTE:

Code Civ. Proc. § 1520(b) states that this form must be "as prescribed by the Controller." However, the Controller has not created an official form for this notice, or prescribed any requirements for this form. The Controller's office has indicated that guidelines may be issued at some future time. For a sample form meeting the statutory requirements, see § 102C.220[2]. If the form is filled out, signed by the owner, and returned to the holder, it is deemed that the account, or other device in which the owner's property is being held, remains currently active and recommences the escheat period [Code Civ. Proc. § 1520(b)].

NOTE:

In lieu of returning the form, the business association may provide a telephone number or other electronic means to enable the owner to contact the association [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1513.5(b), 1516(d), 1520(b)]. With such contact, the business association must be deemed to know the location of the owner. The business association may also impose a service charge, not to exceed two dollars ($2) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1513.5(b), 1516(d), 1520(b)]. Additionally, the holder may give additional notice at any time between the date of last activity by, or communication with, the owner and the date the holder transfers the deposit, shares, or other interest to the controller [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1513.5(b), 1516(d), 1520(b)].

32-102C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102C.131

§ 102C.131 Reporting Requirements

NOTE:

Every person holding funds or other property escheated to the state under the Unclaimed Property Law must file an annual report concerning that property with the state controller [Code Civ. Proc. § 1530(a)]. For purposes of this requirement, "person" means any individual, business association, government or governmental subdivision or agency, two or more persons having a joint or common interest, or any other legal or commercial entity acting in its own right or in a representative or fiduciary capacity [Code Civ. Proc. § 1501(h)].

1. Complete appropriate report form [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1530(b)]; 2 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1161, 1165, 1170, 1174 (required contents of form); see also § 102C.112 (transaction guide) and § 102C.221 (forms and discussion)].

NOTE:

2 Cal. Code Reg. § 1174(c) states that the report must specify the date that the organization filing the report commenced operations. However, the report forms prepared by the controller do not include a space for this information.

2. Have form signed, dated, and verified by appropriate person [Code Civ. Proc. § 1530(e)]:

- a. Individual, if holder is individual.
- b. Partner, if holder is partnership.
- c. Officer, if holder is unincorporated association or private corporation.

- d. Chief fiscal officer (or other authorized employee), if holder is public corporation.
- 3. Make copy of form for holder's records [see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 1175; see also § 102C.133 (records retention transaction guide)].
- 4. Mail report to state controller, at address shown on report form, before the following dates [Code Civ. Proc. § 1530(d)]:
 - a. May 1 for life insurance corporations and reports of insurance corporation demutualization proceeds.
 - b. November 1 for all other holders.

32-102C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102C.132

§ 102C.132 Payment and Delivery Requirements

NOTE:

Property is payable or required to be delivered no sooner than seven months and no later than seven months and 15 days after the final date of filing report [Code Civ. Proc. § 1532(a); see §§ 102C.112, P 5 (transaction guide), 102C.221[1][f] (discussion)].

1. If holder has $20,000 or more in unclaimed cash to pay, or otherwise prefers to make payment by electronic fund transfer [see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 1155.150(b)], complete and submit controller's form for authorization agreement for electronic funds transfer (SCO EFT-1) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1532(a)].

NOTE:

The form referred to above is available from the controller's office or website, which is located at www.sco.ca.gov/col/ucp/forms/index.shtml [see § 102C.221[1][f]-[g]].

2. If holder has less than $20,000 in unclaimed cash to pay, and will not be paying by electronic fund transfer, instruct holder to prepare check payable to the controller.

3. If property delivered is stock record or membership record evidencing intangible interest in business association, prepare duplicate certificate or register securities in uncertificated form in name of controller [Code Civ. Proc. § 1532(d); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1516(b)].

NOTE:

On delivering the duplicate certificate or providing evidence of the registration of the securities in uncertificated form to the controller, the holder and any transfer agent, registrar, or other person acting for or on behalf of the holder in executing or delivering the duplicate certificate is relieved of all liability of every kind to any person, including, but not limited to, any person acquiring the original certificate or the duplicate certificate, for any losses or damages resulting from the issuance and delivery to the controller of the duplicate certificate or the registration of the uncertificated securities to the controller [Code Civ. Proc. § 1532(d)]. A person cannot be a holder referenced in this statute, and thus entitled to immunity, unless the person has complied with other applicable provisions of the Unclaimed Property Law, particularly Code Civ. Proc. § 1516(b) [Azure Ltd. v. I-Flow Corp. (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 1323, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 501, 2009 Cal. LEXIS 6027, at *11-*16] .

4. Deliver property no sooner than seven months and no later than seven months and 15 days after the final date of filing report [Code Civ. Proc. § 1532(a)]:

NOTE:

Amounts remitted must include interest or dividends ordinarily earned on escheated demand, savings, or matured time deposits, matured investment certificates, and accounts subject to negotiable order of withdrawal (NOW) made with banking or financial organizations, and other interests in or deposits made with financial organizations unless a statute or a valid, enforceable contract authorizes discontinuance of interest and dividends during periods of owner inactivity [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 1170; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(1), (a)(2), 1562].

a. If payment amounts to less than $20,000 and holder will not be paying by electronic fund transfer, make payment by check [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1530].

NOTE:

The holder should keep a copy of the check for the holder's records and attach another copy of the check to the controller's official Form UFS-1 (face sheet for reporting unclaimed property) [see § 102C.221[2]].

b. If payment amounts to $20,000 or more, make payment by electronic funds transfer, in accordance with state Controller's regulations [Code Civ. Proc. § 1532(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1532(f) (when payment deemed complete); Code Civ. Proc. § 1532(h) (procedure)].

NOTE:

The holder should keep a copy of the electronic transfer receipt for the holder's records and attach another copy of the check to the controller's official Form UFS-1 [see § 102C.221[2]].

c. If escheated property consists of contents of safe deposit box or other safekeeping repository held in California by business association, provide an inventory of the contents [see discussion in § 102C.221[1][f]] and deliver property to controller at earlier of following times:

NOTE:

As a practical matter, the controller generally will not call for delivery of safe deposit box contents until the inventories have been reviewed. By statute, the property must be delivered to the controller, at the address shown on the report form, at the earlier of the times listed below [Code Civ. Proc. § 1532.1; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1514; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1530(b)(3) (contents of report)]:

- (1) When payment or delivery is requested by controller; or
 - (2) Within one year from final date for filing report [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1530(d)].
- d. Duplicate stock certificate, if applicable [Code Civ. Proc. § 1532; see P 3, above].
- e. Any intangible property must be paid or delivered to controller's office in Sacramento or to another location designated by the controller [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1532(e)].
- f. Unless otherwise agreed by the controller and the holder, tangible personal property should be delivered to controller at place where it is held [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1532(e)].

§ 102C.140 Filing Claim

1. Prior to filing claim form, contact holder to ascertain that property has in fact escheated and been paid or delivered to controller.

NOTE:

This step is not necessary if the owner has learned of the escheat of his or her property, and that the controller has received the property, through a notice published by the controller in a newspaper [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1531]. Although required by law, the controller's failure to publish the notice does not prevent the controller from selling the property [Harris v. Westly (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 214, 220-221, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 343], nor does it deprive the controller of immunity [Harris v. Westly (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 214, 224, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 343]. The controller's failure to publish the notice does not amount to an unconstitutional taking [Harris v. Westly (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 214, 223, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 343].

2. To obtain claim form and affirmation form [see § 102C.222 (discussion and form)], write or telephone the state controller's office, or search for property on the controller's website, which is located at scoweb.sco.ca.gov.

NOTE:

Any person, excluding another state [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1542 (claims by other states)], who claims an interest in property paid or delivered to the state controller pursuant to the Unclaimed Property Law may file a claim to the property or the net proceeds from its sale [Code Civ. Proc. § 1540(a)]. The controller may hold a hearing and receive evidence on any claim, must consider each claim within 180 days after it is filed, and must give written notice to the claimant if he or she denies the claim in whole or in part [Code Civ. Proc. § 1540(b)]. "Owner" means the person who had legal right to the property prior to its escheat, his or her heirs, his or her legal representative, or a public administrator acting under Prob. Code §§ 7660 and 7661 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1540(d)].

3. File claim form by one of the following methods [Code Civ. Proc. § 1540(a); see § 102C.222 (form and discussion)]:

- a. Complete, sign, and verify claim form and affirmation form, and file with controller's office; or
- b. Complete the form online.

1. If holder has paid owner [see § 102C.152, above], instruct holder to file reimbursement claim with controller proving both of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1560(b); see § 102C.223 (discussion and form)]:

- a. That the payment was made
- b. That the payee was entitled to the payment

NOTE:

When a holder seeks reimbursement for payment of a negotiable instrument (including a travelers' check or money order), the holder must prove that the instrument was duly presented to the holder and that the holder paid a person who appeared to the holder to be entitled to payment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1560(c)].

2. In case of mistaken payment or delivery of property to controller, instruct holder to file reimbursement claim with controller [Code Civ. Proc. § 1561(b); see § 102C.223 (discussion and form)].

NOTE:

Property mistakenly paid or delivered to the controller may be retrieved without charge unless the controller has already disposed of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1561(b)].

A. Lost Property

32-102C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102C.200

§ 102C.200 Notice to Owner by Finder of Lost Property [Civ. Code § 2080]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a letter addressed to the owner of a domestic animal or other personal property by the finder of the property. It describes the property, the circumstances under which it was found or saved, the time when and place where it may be reclaimed, and any charges incurred by the finder. A person who finds a lost domestic animal or other lost personal property and believes that he or she knows the identity of its owner should promptly mail this letter to the owner of the property and retain a copy of the letter for his or her records [see Civ. Code § 2080].

If the finder of a domestic animal or other personal property with a value of $100 or more does not know who the owner is, the property should be turned over to the local police or sheriff's department [Civ. Code § 2080.1(a); see §§ 102C.120, PP 2, 3 (procedural guide), 102C.201 (form)]. If a found animal is not a domestic animal but a bovine animal, horse, mule, sheep, swine, or burro whose owner is unknown or cannot be located, the finder should contact the main office of the Bureau of Livestock Identification at (916) 654-0889, to determine the appropriate brand inspector or local agency or official to which a report should be made [see Food & Agric. Code § 17042; see also §§ 102C.12, 102C.110, 102C.202].

[b] Obligation of Finder of Property

The finder of a lost domestic animal or other item of personal property is not bound to take charge of it. However, a finder who takes charge of a lost item takes on the rights and responsibilities of a depositary for hire and must exercise at least ordinary care to preserve the property [Civ. Code §§ 1852, 2080; see Civ. Code § 1851 et seq.; see also Ch. 102, Bailments]. In addition, a person who finds lost property under circumstances that give him or her knowledge of or means of inquiry as to the true owner, and who appropriates the property to his or her own use or the use of another without first making reasonable and just efforts to find the owner and restore the property to him or her, is guilty of theft [Penal Code § 485]. A finder who takes possession of any money, goods, things in action, or other personal property, or saves any domestic animal from harm, neglect, drowning, or starvation, must within a reasonable time notify the owner, if known, and make restitution without any compensation other than a reasonable charge for saving and taking care of the property. One who takes possession of a live domestic animal must provide for humane treatment of the animal [Civ. Code § 2080].

There is no requirement that the notification to the owner be made in writing [see Civ. Code § 2080]. However, a finder who takes charge of lost property acquires affirmative duties towards the owner and may be subject to criminal penalties for failure to perform those duties [Civ. Code § 2080; Penal Code § 485]; thus, written notice should be provided in order to protect the finder.

If the property is worth $100 or more and its owner is unknown to the finder or does not claim the property, the finder must turn the property over to the local police or sheriff's department within a reasonable time. When the finder turns the property over to the police or sheriff's department, the finder or saver must make an affidavit (or declaration) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5] particularly describing the property and stating where and when he or she found or saved it [Civ. Code § 2080.1(a); see § 102C.201[2] (form)]. Although the Civil Code provisions governing lost property do not require a finder who is unaware of the owner's identity to turn property valued at less than $100 over to the police [see Civ. Code §§ 2080, 2080.1], the finder should protect himself or herself from a possible theft charge [see Penal Code § 485] by contacting the police or sheriff's department concerning any found property not obviously abandoned by its owner [see § 102C.11[1]] prior to appropriating it for his or her own use or otherwise disposing of it.

CHAPTER 102C LOST AND UNCLAIMED PROPERTY
PART IV. FORMS
A. Lost Property

32-102C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102C.201

§ 102C.201 Declaration by Finder of Lost Property Valued at $100 or More [Civ. Code § 2080.1(a)]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a declaration by a finder or saver of an item of lost personal property concerning the property and the circumstances under which it was found or saved. If a person finds or saves an item of personal property valued at $100 or more and does not know the owner's identity, he or she must, within a reasonable period of time, turn the property over to the police department of the city or city and county in which the property was found or saved. If the property was not found or saved in a city, it must be turned over to the sheriff's department in the county in which it was found or saved. Found or saved property also must be turned over to the police or sheriff's department within a reasonable time if the finder or saver has contacted the owner and the owner has not claimed the property [Civ. Code § 2080.1(a); see Civ. Code § 2080 (applies to money, goods, things in action, other personal property, and domestic animals saved from harm, neglect, drowning, or starvation)].

When the finder or saver turns the property over to the police or sheriff's department, he or she must make an affidavit (or declaration) [see [b], below] particularly describing the property and stating where and when he or she found or saved it. If the property was saved, the affidavit or declaration must also state all of the following [Civ. Code § 2080.1(a)]:

- From what and how it was saved.
- Whether the owner is known to the saver.
- That the saver has not secreted, withheld, or disposed of any part of the property.

The statute does not require the instrument to include a statement of the property's value. However, the procedure for handling the property and the finder's right to claim it are determined by the "reported value" of the property [Civ. Code § 2080.3]. For this reason, the finder may wish to establish this figure at the time the property is turned over to the police or sheriff's department. This form includes a statement of the finder's estimate of the value of the property. A copy of the appraisal, advertisement, or other document on which the finder's estimate is based may be attached to the form.

Most police departments take found property reports on a standard form prepared by the department rather than a form prepared by the finder. However, if the standard form does not include the information required or suggested by statute, as discussed above, the finder may wish to attach this form or request that the additional information be added to the standard form.

[b] Effect of Declaration

Although Civ. Code § 2080.1 requires the owner to make an affidavit [Civ. Code § 2080.1(a)], Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 permits the use of a declaration in lieu of any affidavit required by law. This form uses the declaration option because a declaration, unlike an affidavit, need not be made before an authorized officer [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2003 ("affidavit" is a written declaration under oath), 2012 (affidavit may be taken before any officer authorized to administer oaths)].

A declaration must be in writing and must be signed by the declarant. Further, the declaration must recite that the information contained in the declaration is true under penalty of perjury. The declaration must also (1) state the date and place of execution, if it is executed within California, or (2) state the date of execution and that it is a declaration under the laws of the state of California, if it is executed within or outside California [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5; see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5(a), (b) (model declarations)].

[c] Finder's Claim to Property Not Claimed by Owner

When the police or sheriff's department receives the found property, it must notify the owner of the property, if his or her identity is reasonably ascertainable, that the property has been found and where it can be claimed. The department must allow at least 90 days from the date it received the property for the owner to claim it and pay a reasonable charge, if any, to defray costs of storage and care [Civ. Code §§ 2080.1(b), 2080.2; see Civ. Code §§ 2080.4 (ordinance for sale after three months), 2080.5 ("quick sale" provisions)]. If the owner does not appear within 90 days following receipt of the property by the police or sheriff's department, the department may dispose of the property. If the reported value of the property is $250 or more, the department must publish a notice concerning the property in a newspaper of general circulation at least once and must turn the property over to the finder if (1) the owner does not appear and prove his or her ownership of the property within seven days following the first publication of the notice, and (2) the finder reimburses the city or county whose police or sheriff's department published the notice for the cost of publication. Title to the property will vest in the finder on his or her payment of the publication costs [Civ. Code § 2080.3(a)]. If the reported value of the property is less than $250, title to the property will vest in the finder after 90 days have elapsed since the receipt of the property by the police or sheriff's department and the owner has not appeared and proven his or her ownership of the property [Civ. Code § 2080.3(b)]. Property found by an employee of any public agency in the course of his or her employment may not be claimed by the finder and must be sold by the police or sheriff's department at public auction [Civ. Code § 2080.3].

For further discussion of the procedures for disposal of found property by police and sheriff's departments, see § 102C.11[3] and [5].

32-102C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102C.202

§ 102C.202 Notice to Director of Food and Agriculture of Taking Up of Estray [Food & Agric. Code § 17042]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice to be given to the secretary of Food and Agriculture by a person who finds and takes up any bovine animal, horse, mule, sheep, swine, or burro whose owner is unknown or cannot be located [see Food & Agric. Code § 50 ("director" and "secretary" both mean secretary of Food and Agriculture)]. Such an animal is known as an "estrays" [Food & Agric. Code § 17001.5]. A "taker-up" [see Food & Agric. Code § 17001.5] who finds an estray on his or her property and confines it must immediately file a notice of the taking up.

The statute requires that the notice be filed with the director of Food and Agriculture [Food & Agric. Code § 17042]. However, in actual practice, county brand inspectors or other local authorities receive reports and handle estrays. To determine who should be notified of the taking up of an estray in a particular county, and how the notification should be made [see [b], below], contact the Bureau of Livestock Identification in the Department of Food and Agriculture at 916-654-0889 or a local brand inspector, slaughterhouse, or feedyard. The Bureau of Livestock Identification regularly publishes livestock bulletins listing both missing and found livestock on its website at www.cdffa.ca.gov/ahfss/li/index.html, which list the person to contact with respect to each lost animal.

The Food and Agriculture Code provisions concerning estrays do not govern finders of domestic pets such as cats and dogs [see Civ. Code § 2080; Food & Agric. Code § 17001.5]. The procedural requirements for finders of lost domestic pets are set forth by Civ. Code § 2080 et seq., which are discussed in § 102C.11. For forms relating to Civ. Code § 2080 et seq., see §§ 102C.200 and 102C.201.

[b] Form and Contents of Notice

The statute does not specify whether the notice of taking up must be made in writing [see Food & Agric. Code § 17042]. Some counties take reports concerning estrays over the telephone. The notice of taking up must contain all of the following [Food & Agric. Code § 17042]:

- A description of the animal.
- The animal's marks or brands, if any.
- The probable value of the animal.
- A statement of date and place animal was taken up and confined.

[c] Rights and Responsibilities of Taker-Up; Persons Entitled to Take Up Estrays

Any person who finds an estray domestic animal on premises that he or she owns or to which he or she has the right of possession, or on any highway adjacent to those premises, may take up the animal and have a lien for all expenses incurred in taking up, keeping, and caring for it [Food & Agric. Code § 17041]. A person who does these things is called a "taker-up" [Food & Agric. Code § 17001]. The landowner or person in rightful possession of the land may also sue the animal's owner for damage to the land or crops caused by the animal.

As an alternative to taking up the animal, the landowner or person in rightful possession of the land may use reasonable force to drive the animal off the property. The use of more force than is reasonably necessary to drive the animal off the property will be considered excessive and unjustified, and may expose the landowner or rightful possessor to liability for injury to the animal [People v. Dunn (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 418, 421, 114 Cal. Rptr. 164].

The right to take up estrays does not apply in counties or parts of counties identified by state statute or county ordinance as devoted chiefly to grazing [see Food & Agric. Code § 17121 et seq.], unless the premises on which the animal is found and taken up are entirely enclosed with a good and substantial fence [Food & Agric. Code § 17122; see Food & Agric. Code § 17121 ("lawful fence")].

[d] Duty to Care for and Report Estray After Taking Up

A taker-up of an estray must (1) confine the estray in a secure place, (2) use reasonable care to preserve it from injury, and (3) file a notice of the taking up with the appropriate local representative of the director of Food and Agriculture [see [a], above] immediately after the animal is taken up [Food & Agric. Code §§ 17042, 17043]. On demand of an authorized inspector employed by the Department of Food and Agriculture, the taker-up must deliver the animal to the inspector [Food & Agric. Code § 17061]. A taker-up who complies with these and the other requirements set forth by statute will not be liable if the estray dies or escapes at any time while being held by the taker-up [Food & Agric. Code § 17043].

[e] Entitlement to Payment for Caring for Estray

When the Department of Food and Agriculture sales the animal or returns of the animal to its owner [see § 102C.12[3], [4]], the taker-up is entitled to collect a per-day payment for the keeping and care of the animal [Food & Agric. Code §§ 17041, 17044, 17069, 17095]. The amount due is determined according to the prevailing rates charged by commercial enterprises that feed livestock on a custom basis [Food & Agric. Code § 17095].

[f] Purchase of Animal

If the Department of Food and Agriculture cannot locate the owner of an estray, or the owner refuses to pay the expenses incurred in caring for the animal, it will sell the animal at a public or private sale [Food & Agric. Code §§ 17066, 17092, 17093; see § 102C.121, P 4 NOTE]. If the taker-up wishes to purchase the animal, he or she should discuss this possibility with the inspector or other Department representative to whom he or she delivers the animal, and ask to be notified if the animal is to be sold.

§ 102C.210 Notice of Sale of Goods, Merchandise, or Other Property Received by Common Carrier, Commission Merchant, Innkeeper, or Warehouse Operator [Civ. Code § 2081.1]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice of the public sale of unclaimed goods, merchandise, or other items of personal property in the possession of a common carrier, commission merchant, innkeeper, or warehouse operator. Goods, merchandise, or other property received for transportation or safekeeping by a railroad or express company or other common carrier, a commission merchant, an innkeeper, or a warehouse operator may be sold to the highest bidder at public auction if no person calls for the property and pays the freight and charges due on it within 60 days after its receipt by the carrier, commission merchant, innkeeper, or warehouse operator [Civ. Code § 2081.1; see Civ. Code §§ 2081, 2081.4 (responsibility for storing property until claimed or sold); see also § 102C.15]. In addition, produce, merchandise, or other property received on consignment by commission merchants or warehouse operators who make advances on the property, either to the owner or for freight and charges, may be sold to the highest bidder at public auction if the advances are not paid within 60 days after the date made [Civ. Code § 2081.5]. In either case, prior notice of the sale must be given in the customary manner for sales of goods by auction at the place in which the goods are held or sold [Civ. Code § 2081.1]. Thus, the notice provided by this form may be published in a trade paper or other newspaper, posted in a public place, and/or mailed to potentially interested persons, according to what is customary in the place the goods are held or to be sold.

This form includes all the information generally required for notices of public sales. Additional information may be included as dictated by local custom.

[b] Proceeds of Sale

Following the sale of the goods by public auction, any surplus remaining after payment of all freight, storage, sale expenses, and other reasonable charges must be paid over to the owner of the property on the owner's demand made within 60 days after the sale [Civ. Code § 2081.2; see § 102C.211[2] (form for demand)]. If the owner or the owner's agent does not demand the surplus from the sale within 60 days after the sale, the surplus must be paid into the county treasury, subject to the order of the owner [Civ. Code § 2081.3].

§ 102C.211 Demand for Proceeds of Sale of Goods, Merchandise, or Other Property Received by Common Carrier, Commission Merchant, Innkeeper, or Warehouse Operator [Civ. Code § 2081.2]

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a letter from the owner (or the owner's agent) of property sold at public auction by a common carrier, commission merchant, innkeeper, or warehouse operator demanding the proceeds of the sale.

When a common carrier, commission merchant, innkeeper, or warehouse operator sells goods, merchandise, or other personal property that it has received for safekeeping or transportation and held for 60 days without the owner, consignee, or other authorized person claiming it and paying any charges due on it, it must turn over any surplus remaining after payment of freight, storage, and sale expenses and other reasonable charges to the owner of the property or the owner's agent on demand [Civ. Code § 2081.2; see Civ. Code § 2081.3]. The demand must be made within 60 days after the sale [Civ. Code § 2081.2].

There is no requirement that the demand be made in writing. However, a writing will provide proof of the demand and of the fact that it was made within 60 days after the sale.

If the owner of the property or the owner's agent does not demand payment within 60 days after the sale, the carrier, commission merchant, innkeeper, or warehouse operator must pay the surplus remaining after deduction of all reasonable charges into the county treasury [Civ. Code § 2081.3].

This form provides for the attachment to the letter of a document proving ownership of the subject property. The owner is not required by the statute to include proof of ownership with his or her demand, and this portion of the letter may be deleted if there is no question of ownership.

§ 102C.212 Notice to Owner of Sale of Unclaimed Personal Property Left With Hospital [Civ. Code § 1862.5]

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a notice to the owner of personal property left with a hospital that the hospital is going to sell the property at public auction if it is not claimed by the owner prior to the sale date. Any item of personal property found or deposited with any licensed hospital that remains unclaimed for a period of 180 days following the departure of its owner from the hospital may be sold by the hospital at public auction. At least four weeks prior to the sale, the hospital must give written notice of the sale to the last known owner of the property. The notice must contain all of the following [Civ. Code § 1862.5]:

- A description of each item of property to be sold.
- The name of the last known owner.
- The name of the hospital.
- The time and place of the auction sale.

The notice may be sent by regular mail, postage prepaid, to the last known owner of the property at his or her last known address [Civ. Code § 1862.5].

If the property is not claimed by its owner prior to the sale date, the hospital may sell it at public auction and retain out of the proceeds any charges for storage, reasonable expenses of the sale, and all sums due the hospital from the last known owner of the property [Civ. Code § 1862.5]. The remaining balance, if any, may be claimed by the owner of the property or his or her legal representative within one week following the sale [see § 102C.213[2] (form)]. If not claimed within that time, the balance must be paid into the treasury of the county in which the hospital is located. If the owner or his or her legal representative does not claim the property from the treasury within one year, it will be paid into the general fund of the county [Civ. Code § 1862.5].

The statute does not specify whether the hospital may charge storage fees in connection with an item claimed within 180 days after the owner's departure from the hospital or between the time of notice and the time of sale, or whether the hospital may condition return of an item on the owner's payment of any sums owed the hospital. This form specifies that the owner may claim the property prior to the sale date by paying the storage fees.

A hospital that substantially complies with the procedure described above for disposing of unclaimed property will be exonerated from any liability for property sold pursuant to this procedure [Civ. Code § 1862.5].

§ 102C.213 Request for Proceeds of Sale of Personal Property Left With Hospital [Civ. Code § 1862.5]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a letter from the owner of personal property left with a hospital and sold at public auction by the hospital, or the owner's legal representative, claiming the proceeds of the sale. When a hospital sells unclaimed personal property left with it at public auction [see § 102C.212], it must pay the proceeds of the sale to the owner of the property or his or her legal representative if the owner or representative claims the proceeds within one week following the sale [Civ. Code § 1862.5]. The hospital may deduct storage charges, the reasonable expenses of the sale, and all sums due the hospital from the last known owner of the property from the amount paid to the owner or his or her representative [Civ. Code § 1862.5].

There is no requirement that the claim be made in writing. However, a writing will provide proof of the claim and of the fact that it was made within one week after the sale.

This form contains an optional provision providing for the attachment of evidence of the agent's authority.

[b] Failure to Claim Proceeds

If the owner of the property (or the owner's legal representative) does not claim the proceeds of the sale within one week after the sale, the hospital must pay the proceeds into the treasury of the county in which the hospital is located. If the owner or his or her legal representative does not claim the property from the county treasury within one year after its deposit, it will be paid into the general fund of the county [Civ. Code § 1862.5].

§ 102C.214 Notice of Unclaimed Funds Held by Receiver [Code Civ. Proc. § 570]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice concerning unclaimed funds held by a receiver, to be published by a receiver. Prior to being discharged by the court, a receiver who is in possession of any funds belonging to a person whose whereabouts are unknown to him or her must publish a notice concerning the funds in one or more newspapers published in the county where the receivership is pending. The notice must be published at least once a week for four consecutive weeks. It must set forth all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 570]:

- The name of the owner of the funds.
- The owner's last known place of residence or post office address.
- The amount of the unclaimed funds.

All costs and expenses connected with the advertising of the notice are payable out of the unclaimed funds [Code Civ. Proc. § 570].

Counsel will need to supply the newspaper with an additional copy of the notice for its proof of publication [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2010, 2011, 2015.5], which must be filed with the clerk of the court in which the receivership is pending if the funds are not claimed prior to the time the receiver seeks to be discharged.

[b] Disposal of Funds Unclaimed at End of Notice Period

If the funds, or any part of them, remain unclaimed 30 days after the date of the last publication of the notice, the receiver must report this fact to the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 570]. On order of the court, all the funds must be paid into the State Treasury, accompanied by a copy of the order. The order must set forth the same information required to appear in the notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 570].

Counsel may wish to time the publication so that the report can be made as part of the receiver's motion for discharge [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1184] and the order directing payment of the unclaimed funds can be part of the order for discharge. For both a separate order directing payment of unclaimed funds to the State Treasury and an order for discharge, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Receivers, §§ 486.154, 486.159 (Matthew Bender).

Funds that have been paid into the State Treasury pursuant to this procedure may be claimed as provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 1500 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 570].

§ 102C.220 Notice to Owner by Holder of Property Soon to Escheat [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1513.5, 1516(b), 1520(b)]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This is a notice for use by a person or entity that holds property in its business, which property is subject to escheat [see §§ 102C.18[7], 102C.130], to provide the apparent owner with the following:

- Notice of impending escheat as required by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1513.5(a), 1516(d), and 1520(b), and
- An opportunity to communicate with the holder in a way that is deemed "activity" sufficient to prevent escheat.

Three statutes govern this notice, depending on the type of property involved:

- Notices regarding deposits, account shares, or other interests in a banking or financial organization are described in Code Civ. Proc. § 1513.5.
- Notices with respect to stock and memberships in business associations are described in Code Civ. Proc. § 1516(d).
- Notice with regard to other property held in by a business are described in Code Civ. Proc. § 1520(b).

Although those statutes refer to a notice "as prescribed by the controller," the controller has not in fact issued a form for this notice or prescribed precise language that the notice must contain. The controller's office has indicated that guidelines may be issued at some future time.

The holder must make reasonable efforts to notify the owner by mail, or, if the owner has consented to electronic notice, send electronically, that the property will escheat to the state [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1513.5(a), 1516(d), 1520(b)]. In the case of property subject to escheat under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1513.5(a), (b), and 1520(a), the notice must be given when the banking or financial organization or other business entity has in its records an address for the apparent owner and nothing indicates that the address is inaccurate Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1513.5(a), 1520(b)].

[b] Timing of Notice

The notice must be mailed not less than six months nor more than 12 months before the time when the property will escheat to the state [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1513.5(a), 1516(d), 1520(b)]. Alternatively, in the case of banking or financial organizations, for property subject to escheat under Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(1), (a)(2), the notice may be mailed not less than two years nor more than two and one half years after the date of last activity by, or communication with, the owner concerning the property as shown on the record of the financial organization [Code Civ. Proc. § 1513.5(a)(1); see § 102C.18[7][b]].

[c] Form and Contents of Notice

The notice must specify when the property will escheat to the state and inform the owner of the need for filing a claim to recover the property once the property has escheated to the state [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1513.5(a), 1516(d), 1520(b); see first paragraph of Form]. The form must also include a heading that reads "THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA REQUIRES US TO NOTIFY YOU THAT YOUR UNCLAIMED PROPERTY MAY BE TRANSFERRED TO THE STATE IF YOU DO NOT CONTACT US" [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1513.5(b), 1516(d), 1520(b)]. The notice must also do the following, either in bold or a font that is at least two points larger than the rest of the notice [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1513.5(a), 1516(d), 1520(b)]:

- Specify that since the date of last activity, or for the last two years, there has been no customer activity on the deposit, account, shares, or other interest.
- Identify the deposit, account, shares, or other interest by number or identifier.
- Indicate that the deposit, account, shares, or other interest is in danger of escheating to the state.
- Specify that the California Unclaimed Property Law requires banks, banking organizations, and financial organization to transfer funds of a deposit, account, shares, or other interest if it has been inactive for three years.

The notice must also include a form by which the owner may confirm the owner's current address. If that form is filled out, signed by the owner, and returned to the holder, it will be deemed that the account, or other device in which the owner's property is being held, remains currently active and recommences the escheat period [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1513.5(b), 1516(b), 1520(b)]. In lieu of returning the form, the business association may provide a telephone number or other electronic means to enable the owner to contact the association [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1513.5(b), 1516(d), 1520(b)]. With such contact, the business association must be deemed to know the location of the owner. The business association may also impose a service charge, not to exceed two dollars ($2) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1513.5(b), 1516(d), 1520(b)]. Additionally, the holder may give additional notice at any time between the date of last activity by, or communication with, the owner and the date the holder transfers the deposit, shares, or other interest to the controller [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1513.5(b), 1516(d), 1520(b)]. The statute requires this form be "as prescribed by the controller," but the controller has not issued a standard form for this purpose, nor prescribed any additional requirements for this form. The controller's office has indicated that guidelines may be issued at some future time.

PART IV. FORMS

C. Property Subject to Unclaimed Property Law

32-102C California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102C.221

§ 102C.221 Annual Report of Unclaimed Personal Property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1530]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

The four forms reproduced in [2], below, are the components of the official paper report of unclaimed personal property that must be filed annually with the state controller [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1530]. These components are:

- Holder Face Sheet (UFS-1), for reporting particulars of holder. A copy of the electronic transfer receipt or check should be attached to the UFS-1 form [see [f], below].
- Holder Detail Sheet for Cash Only or Safe Deposit Property (UDS-1A). If a headquarters office is filing separate reports for one or more branches, each branch must file a separate detail sheet. A copy of each safe-deposit box inventory must be attached to the detail sheet [see [f], below].
- Holder Detail Sheet for Stock Property, with or without cash (UDS-1). If a headquarters office is filing separate reports for one or more branches, each branch must file a separate detail sheet.
- Securities Summary (SS-1), which must be filed whenever securities are reported.

Only holders reporting less than 50 accounts may use the paper reports [see [b], below]. Every person [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1501(h)] (definition), below] in possession of personal property subject to escheat under the Unclaimed Property Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1500 et seq.; see § 102C.18[3], [4]] must file an annual report concerning that property with the controller, on a form provided by the controller [Code Civ. Proc. § 1530(a), (d)]. The required contents of the report are set forth by statute and regulation [Code Civ. Proc. § 1530(b); 2 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1161, 1165, 1170, 1174; see § 102C.103 (transaction guide)]. Holders who do not have any property that is reportable under the Unclaimed Property Law must report this fact on written request of the controller [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 1173].

Copies of the forms and the official instructions for their completion may be obtained by contacting the Reporting Unit of the controller's office at (916) 323-2845. They can also be obtained from the controller's website at www.sco.ca.gov/col/ucp/forms/index.shtml [see also [b], below]. The controller's office also provides a 50-page booklet of reporting instructions, which is available from the controller's office and also be obtained from the website at www.cos.ca.gov/col/ucp/holder/index.shtml. A copy of the electronic transfer receipt or check should be attached to the UFS-1 form [see [f], below].

For purposes of the reporting requirement, a "person" is any individual, business association, government or governmental subdivision or agency, two or more persons having a joint or common interest, or any other legal or commercial entity, whether that person is acting in his or her own right or in a representative or fiduciary capacity [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1501(h)].

[b] Filing Formats

Only holders reporting less than 50 accounts may use the paper reports, and those must be typed, not handwritten. All holders reporting unclaimed property involving 50 owners or more must submit their annual reports using the state controller's magnetic media format, or the diskette reporting program, both of which can be downloaded from the controller's website at www.sco.ca.gov/col/ucp/holder/index.shtml. Reports submitted on papers that contain 50 accounts or more will be returned to the holder, and the holder may be subject to penalties [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1576(a) (penalties)].

[c] Time of Filing

Life insurance corporations' reports, and all reports of insurance corporation demutualization proceeds [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1515.5], for the preceding year must be filed before May 1 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1530(d); see Stats 2003, ch. 304, § 2 (initial report for demutualization proceeds must be filed on or before May 1, 2004)]. All other organizations must file their reports before November 1 for the 12-month period ending on the previous June 30 or the most recently ended fiscal year [Code Civ. Proc. § 1530(d)]. The controller may postpone the reporting date on the controller's own motion or on written request by any person required to file a report [Code Civ. Proc. § 1530(d)].

[d] Fees and Charges

If charges are deducted from reported property [see § 102C.18(3)], the holder must include or attach all of the following information as part of the report [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 1161(a)-(c)]:

- The citation of the statute or a copy of the contract authorizing the charges;
- The value or amount of each item of property, before deduction of any charges; and
- The amount of charges deducted from each item and the date or dates of the deductions.

The controller may require additional information or documentation after reviewing the report, to substantiate the deductions [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 1161(d)].

Additional requirements apply to property in the form of savings or matured time deposits, matured investment certificates, accounts subject to negotiable order of withdrawal (NOW) made with banking or financial organizations, and other interests in, or deposits other than demand deposits made with, financial organizations [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(1), (a)(2)] from which deductions are made. Reports concerning these types of property must also include the following [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 1165(a), (b)]:

- An estimate of the gross amount of income earned from use or investment of the property during the period of inactivity.

- A description and itemization of all costs that were directly incurred for purposes of maintaining and safeguarding the property during the period of inactivity and that would not have been incurred except for the inactivity.

The controller may require additional information or documentation after reviewing the report, to substantiate the deductions [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 1165(c)].

Charges may not be deducted from property unless expressly permitted by the Unclaimed Property Law and authorized by a statute other than the Unclaimed Property Law, or by a valid, enforceable contract [Code Civ. Proc. § 1522; 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 1160]. Even when specifically permitted by the Unclaimed Property Law, charges may not be excluded, withheld, or deducted unless, under the holder's policy or procedure, they would have been excluded, withheld, or deducted if the property had been claimed by the owner prior to being reported or remitted to the controller [Code Civ. Proc. § 1522].

Property removed from a safe deposit box or other safekeeping repository will be received by the controller subject to any valid lien of the holder for rent and other charges. These charges will be paid to the holder out of the proceeds remaining from the controller's disposition of the property, after the controller has deducted his or her selling cost [Code Civ. Proc. § 1560(a)].

[e] Interest and Dividends

If payment of interest or dividends on property subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(1), (a)(2) is discontinued at any time during the period of owner inactivity preceding escheat, the holder must include or attach one of the following as part of its report [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 1170]:

- A copy of the valid, enforceable contract that authorizes the discontinuance of payment of interest or dividends.
- A citation to the statute that authorizes the discontinuance of payment of interest or dividends.

This requirement applies to payment of interest or dividends on demand, savings, or matured time deposits, matured investment certificates, accounts subject to negotiable order of withdrawal (NOW) held by banking or financial organizations, and other interests in or deposits other than demand deposits made with financial organizations [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(1), (a)(2)]. A contract or statute will not be considered as authorizing discontinuance of payment of interest or dividends if payment would not have been discontinued, or would otherwise have accrued to the benefit of the owner, in the event the property had been claimed by the owner prior to being reported or remitted to the state controller [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 1171].

[f] Payment or Delivery of Reported Property

Except for contents of safe deposit boxes and other safekeeping repositories held in California by business associations, all escheated property reported to the controller pursuant to the Unclaimed Property Law must be paid or delivered to the controller no sooner than seven months and no later than seven months and 15 days after the final date of filing report [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1532(a), 1532.1; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1514; see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1532(d) (procedure for transfer and delivery of certificated securities)]. The controller may postpone the date for payment or delivery of the property, and the date for any report required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1532(b) upon his or her own motion or upon written request by any person required to pay or deliver the property or file a report [Code Civ. Proc. § 1532(a)]. A holder making a payment of unclaimed cash in an amount of $20,000 or more must do so by electronic funds transfer [Code Civ. Proc. § 1532(a), (f)-(h); 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 1155.100 et seq.]. Payment by electronic funds transfer of amounts less than $20,000 is acceptable but not required [see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 1155.150(b)]. A copy of the electronic transfer receipt or check should be attached to the UFS-1 form [see [a], above, and [2], below].

Payment of any intangible property is to be made to the controller's office in Sacramento or at another location designated by the controller by regulation. Unless otherwise agreed by the controller and the holder, tangible personal property is to be delivered to the controller at the place where it is held [Code Civ. Proc. § 1532(e)]. Contents of safe deposit boxes and other safekeeping repositories held in California by business associations must be paid or delivered to the controller at the earlier of the following dates [Code Civ. Proc. § 1532.1; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1514, 1530(d)]:

- The time when the holder is requested to pay or deliver the property by the controller.
- Within one year after the final date for filing the report.

As a practical matter, the controller will not call for delivery of safe-deposit box contents until the inventories have been reviewed. Each holder is to list the contents of each safe-deposit box on an inventory sheet (for example, money, jewelry, tableware, stock certificates, bonds, deeds, and wills). The holder must mark each inventory sheet to correspond with the owner's name and identifying number and/or safe-deposit box number. One copy of the inventory sheet is to be attached to the detail sheet for each account reported. Legible reproductions of inventories already prepared are acceptable [Reporting Instructions for Holders of Unclaimed Property (California State Controller's Office, 9/03), at p. 19].

The controller, in his or her discretion, may determine that it is not in the interest of the state to take custody of the any tangible personal property and refuse payment or delivery of it. If he or she does so, the controller must notify the holder in writing, within 120 days from receipt of the annual report concerning the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1533; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1530; § 102C.221 (report)].

[g] Penalties and Interest

Any person [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1501(h) (definition)] who willfully fails to render any report or perform other duties (including use of the prescribed report format [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1530]), required by the Unclaimed Property Law will be punished by a daily fine for each day the report is withheld or the duty is not performed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1576(a)]. An additional daily penalty applies against any person who willfully refuses to pay or deliver escheated property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1576(b)]. However, no person is considered to have willfully failed to report, pay, or deliver escheated property unless he or she has failed to respond within a reasonable time after notification, by certified mail by the controller's office, of his or her failure to act [Code Civ. Proc. § 1576(c)].

In addition to penalties, a person who fails to timely report, pay, or deliver unclaimed property to the controller, unless that failure is due to reasonable cause, must pay the controller interest at the rate of 12 percent per annum on that property, or its value, from the date the property should have been reported, paid, or delivered [Code Civ. Proc. § 1577]. If specified conditions are met, that interest will not be imposed on any escheated property required to be reported on or before November 1, 1999, and paid or delivered to the controller on or before December 31, 2002 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1577.5]. Code Civ. Proc. § 1577.5 is retroactive, but cannot be applied to property delivered to the controller before its enactment [Westly v. U.S. Bancorp (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 577, 582, 585, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 838 ; see Stats. 2000, Ch. 267 (enrolled August 30, 2000)].

In addition to other penalties, a 2 percent civil penalty is charged on amounts that should have been paid electronically but were not. The holder may be relieved of this penalty if he or she can show that the failure to make payment by an appropriate electronic funds transfer was due to reasonable cause and circumstances beyond the holder's control, and occurred notwithstanding the exercise of ordinary care and in the absence of willful neglect Code Civ. Proc. § 1532(g);

2 Cal Code Reg. § 1155.200].

[h] Enforcement Actions

The controller may at reasonable times and on reasonable notice examine the records of any person [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1501(h) (definition)] if the controller has reason to believe the person has failed to report property required to be reported under the Unclaimed Property Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1571(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1571(b) (persons authorized to conduct examinations), 1572(a)(1) (actions to compel holder to permit examination)]. The controller may also bring an action in a court of appropriate jurisdiction, including a federal court or another state's court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1572(c)], for a judicial determination that particular property is subject to escheat under the Unclaimed Property Law, or to enforce the delivery of escheated property to the controller [Code Civ. Proc. § 1572(a)(2), (3); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1572(b) (jurisdictional requirements), 1574 (actions to enforce unclaimed property laws of other states), 1575 (actions by other states to enforce California law)].

[i] Inapplicability of Statute of Limitations

Statutes of limitations for commencing or enforcing actions or proceedings to obtain payment of claims for money or recovery of property from a holder do not affect the escheat of money or property, the duty to file a report required by the Unclaimed Property Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1500 et seq.], or the duty to file reports relating to unclaimed property, or the duty to pay or deliver escheated property to the controller [Code Civ. Proc. § 1570].

§ 102C.222 Claim Form for Property Held by State Controller [Code Civ. Proc. § 1540]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a sample copy of the official affirmation form to be used to claim property that has been delivered to the state controller under the Unclaimed Property Law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1500 et seq.]. The conditions for escheat of various types of property differ [see § 102C.18[3] (discussion); § 102C.112 (transaction guide)], but generally require customer/owner inactivity and lack of contact for three to five years before they are transferrable to the state [but see Code Civ. Proc. § 1513(a)(7) (wages and salaries escheat if unclaimed after one year from date they become payable)]. One is only entitled to recover the property, if it is still in the controller's possession, or the value of the property at the time it escheats. No interest on claims approved after July 1, 2003 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1540(c); see Stats. 2003, ch. 228, § 57; [d], below], and no appreciation or tax benefits, are recoverable. Even if the controller did not publish the notice required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1531, the controller has authority to sell securities; allowing the state to sell securities or other property and returning to the owner only the proceeds does not amount to an unconstitutional taking [Harris v. Westly (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 214, 223, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 343] .

To obtain a claim form, a person who believes that property belonging to him or her has been deposited with the controller pursuant to the Unclaimed Property Law must contact the Division of Unclaimed Property within the controller's office. The Division of Unclaimed Property may be contacted by calling (800) 992-4647 (California residents) or (916) 323-2827 (out-of-state and foreign residents) or by writing to:

State Controller,
Division of Unclaimed Property
300 Capitol Mall
Sacramento, CA 95814.

A search for property can be made on the controller's website at scoweb.sco.ca.gov. When property is found in the name of the person inquiring, the person inquiring will be given an ID number, which must be used to complete the claim process. The controller will prepare and mail to the claimant, or the computer will generate for the claimant to print out, a letter describing the property, giving the claim ID number, the type and amount of the property, and requiring an affirmation by the claimant that he or she is the sole owner of the claim and the sole person entitled to receive the property described in the claim. In addition, an affirmation form like the one reproduced below will be sent by the controller's office or can be filled out online, or printed, completed, and returned to the controller by mail.

The claimant must complete and verify the claim form [Code Civ. Proc. § 1540(a)] and return it to the controller at the following address:

Division of Collections
Bureau of Unclaimed Property
PO Box 942850
Sacramento, CA 94250-5873.

The controller requires that the claim form be notarized if the claim amount is over $1,000 or the property is related to stock or mutual funds. The controller also requires that the claimant submit with the claim form proof of identity and proof of ownership of the claimed property (such as an original check, stock certificate, savings passbook, safe deposit box keys, insurance policy, verification of address as shown, and so on), as listed in [c], below, and on pages two through four of the affirmation form. Any documents submitted should be originals, if available.

[b] Persons Entitled to Make Claims

Any person, excluding another state, who claims an interest in property paid or delivered to the controller pursuant to the Unclaimed Property Law may file a claim to the property or to the net proceeds from its sale with the controller [Code Civ. Proc. § 1540(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1542 (claims by states)]. For this purpose, "person" means any individual, business association, government or governmental subdivision or agency, two or more persons having a joint or common interest, or any other legal or commercial entity, including those acting in a representative or fiduciary capacity [Code Civ. Proc. § 1501(h)]. A person will be considered the "owner" of property held by the controller pursuant to the Unclaimed Property Law, and thus entitled to claim the property, if any of the following are true [Code Civ. Proc. § 1540(d)]:

- The person had a legal right to the property prior to its escheat.
- The person is the heir or legal representative of the person who had a legal right to the property prior to its escheat.
- The person is a public administrator acting under Prob. Code §§ 7660 and 7661.

The claim portion of this form includes an affirmation by the claimant that he or she is the owner of the claim and the person entitled to receive the property described in the claim.

[c] Accompanying Documents

The following documents must be submitted with the claim:

- A copy of a photo identification (driver's license, state identification card, or passport) for each claimant.

- A copy of each claimant's social security card or any other document showing the claimant's social security number (e.g., federal or state income tax return or pay stub).
- The original passbook, check, stock certificate, or instrument.

If the original passbook, check, stock certificate, or instrument is lost, stolen, or has been destroyed, the claimant will have to show proof that her or she once resided at the address shown on the controller's records as the address of the apparent owner at the time the holder transferred the property to the controller. Utility bills, tax bills, or bank statements will suffice. If the claimant cannot provide one of the foregoing types of address verification, the claimant must provide some document (correspondence, statement, or similar document) associating the claimant (or if the claimant is an heir, the deceased owner) with the business or financial institution that transferred the property to the controller.

A claimant who is the heir of a deceased owner also must submit the death certificate of the deceased owner and one of the following:

- A copy of currently certified letters, dated within six months prior to the date of the submission of the claim, appointing the executor or administrator of the decedent's estate and the estate tax identification number.
- A complete copy of the court ordered distribution of the decedent's estate.
- If the distribution of the decedent's estate was not ordered by a court, a complete copy of the decedent's will and/or trust agreement and a completed controller's form 13101.
- If no will or trust agreement is available, a completed declaration under Prob. Code § 13101 and the controller's table of heirship form, both of which are available from the controller's office and on the controller's website at www.sco.ca.gov.

[d] Processing of Claims

The controller must consider each claim filed by a person claiming ownership of property held by the controller under the Unclaimed Property Law within 180 days after the claim is filed, and may hold a hearing and receive evidence concerning any claim [Code Civ. Proc. § 1540(b)]. The controller is not required to pay interest on a claim paid after July 1, 2003 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1540(c); see Stats. 2003, ch. 228, § 57].

The controller must give written notice to the claimant if the claim is denied in whole or in part [Code Civ. Proc. § 1540(b)]. Any person aggrieved by a decision of the controller or whose claim is not decided within 180 days after it is filed may bring an action to establish his or her claim in the superior court in any county or city and county in which the attorney general maintains an office. The action must be brought within 90 days after the controller's decision, or within 270 days after the filing of the claim if the controller fails to make a decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1541; for a complaint form, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 252, Escheat (Unclaimed Property), § 252.93].

Once payment or delivery of money or other property has been made to any claimant under the provisions of the Unclaimed Property Law, no suit may be maintained by any other claimant against the state or any officer or employee of the state for or on account of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1566(a)]. Furthermore, no suit may be maintained by any person against the state or any of its officers or employees for or on account of any transaction entered into by the State Controller pursuant to the Unclaimed Property Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1566(b); see, e.g., Fong v. Westly (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 841, 851-853, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 76 (Controller held immune from any damages caused by alleged violations of UPL's notice requirements to holders of shares of stock that escheated to state, which ultimately obtained their sole remedy of shares' proceeds plus interest)].

§ 102C.223 Holder's Claim for Reimbursement for Payment to Owner [Code Civ. Proc. § 1560]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a reproduction of the controller's official Holder's Claim for Reimbursement (HCR-1) form. It may be obtained by calling the controller's office at 916-323-2845 or from the controller's website at www.sco.ca.gov.

The form must be typed; handwritten and faxed forms will not be accepted. The form must contain an original signature. Reimbursement requests for accounts over $1,000 and all requests for reimbursement of stocks must be notarized. Either the form or an accompanying letter of authorization on the holder's letterhead must give the names of each individual authorized to request property from the state controller's office. The controller's form does this in the form of an affirmation just above the place for notarization. The holder must also attach the following to the request for reimbursement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1560(b)]; see [b], below]:

- A copy of the original Unclaimed Property Face Sheet (UFS-1) (reproduced at § 102C.221[2]).
- Proof of payment (except in the case of overpayment).
- Proof that payee was entitled to payment.
- For negotiable instruments, proof that instrument was duly presented to holder by a person who appeared to the holder to be entitled to payment.

If the holder has delivered personal property to the controller, he or she may reclaim the property from the controller if it is still in the controller's possession, without payment of a fee or any other charges, on filing proof that the owner has claimed the property from the holder [Code Civ. Proc. § 1560(d)].

The holder is not entitled to interest on sums reimbursed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1560(c)].

[b] Holder's Right to Reimbursement

A holder who makes payment to the owner or another claimant of escheated moneys after paying or delivering the property to the controller may obtain reimbursement from the controller by filing proof that the payment was made and that the payee was entitled to the payment. If the holder seeks reimbursement for payment of a negotiable instrument (including a check, money order, cashier's check, or travelers check), the holder must include proof that the instrument was duly presented to the holder and payment was made to the person who appeared to be entitled to the payment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1560(b)].

A system generated document showing re-activation of an account is acceptable proof of payment. The holder may obtain reimbursement even if he or she did either of the following:

- Made a payment to a person whose claim to the property is barred because of the expiration of any applicable time period for filing a claim [Code Civ. Proc. § 1560(c); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1570; discussed in § 102C.221[1][i]].
- Made a mistake in paying or delivering to the controller property that had not escheated to the state [Code Civ. Proc. § 1561(b); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1563, 1565 (disposal of property by controller)].

Scope

Scope

This chapter covers the registration and transfer of vehicles, vessels, and aircraft. It examines in detail the registration of vehicles and undocumented vessels with the Department of Motor Vehicles, the documentation of vessels weighing at least five tons by the Coast Guard, and the registration of aircraft with the Federal Aviation Administration. The chapter also discusses the renewal and termination of registration, and the transfer of a registered or documented vehicle, vessel, or aircraft. Finally, it covers the recording of instruments affecting the title to a documented vessel or registered aircraft. Forms include many of the official registration and transfer forms for vehicles, vessels, and aircraft, as well as a contract for the sale of a vessel.

For coverage of the registration or sales of mobilehomes or floating homes, see Ch. 39, Mobilehome Parks, and Ch. 40, Mobilehomes. For discussion of bills of sale in general, see Ch. 52, Sales of Goods Under the Uniform Commercial Code. For discussion of security interests under the Uniform Commercial Code, see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions.

This chapter does not specifically cover retitling of vehicles, vessels, or aircraft on death or in connection with the creation of a living trust. For coverage of the retitling of assets on the owner's death, see California Probate Practice (Matthew Bender). For discussion of the transfer of assets to a living trust, see Ch. 73, Funding a Revocable Trust.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

32-102D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102D.10

§ 102D.10 Registration of Vehicles With DMV

[1] In General

No person may drive or move a motor vehicle, or leave it standing on a highway or in an off-street public parking facility, unless the vehicle is registered and the appropriate fees paid under the Vehicle Code [see Veh. Code §§ 9250-9271], or registered under the permanent trailer identification program [Veh. Code § 4000(a)(1); see Veh. Code § 5014.1(a) (types of trailers to be assigned permanent trailer identification certificate and plate)]. For these purposes, "vehicle" means a device by which any person or property may be propelled, moved, or drawn upon a highway. This definition does not include a device moved exclusively by human power or used exclusively on stationary rails or tracks [Veh. Code § 670]. Virtually all types of automobiles, trucks, trailers, motorcycles, and mobilehomes fall within this definition. Although a "motor vehicle" is a vehicle that is self-propelled, a self-propelled wheelchair, motorize tricycle, or motorized quadricycle is not a "motor vehicle," if operated by a person who, by reason of physical disability, is otherwise unable to move about as a pedestrian [Veh. Code § 415(a), (b)]. For purposes of the New Motor Vehicle Board and related statutes [see Veh. Code § 3000 et seq.], "motor vehicle" also includes a recreational vehicle [see Health & Safety Code § 18010(a) (definition)], but does not include a camper truck or park trailer [Veh. Code § 415(c)].

An application for the original or renewal registration of a vehicle must consist of an official application form [Veh. Code §§ 4150 (vehicle other than motorcycle), 4150.2 (motorcycle); see § 102D.200[2], a certificate of compliance with smog laws [Veh. Code § 4000.1(a), (d)], and the appropriate fees [see Veh. Code § 9250; see also Veh. Code §§ 9250-9271]. The owner of a registered vehicle must apply to renew the registration before midnight of the date of its expiration [Veh. Code § 4602].

[2] Transfer of Ownership

A transfer of the title to, or any interest in, a vehicle registered under the Vehicle Code will not be effective until the parties to the transaction provide the DMV with the required documentation. In most cases, this documentation consists of the certificate of ownership. The transferor must sign the certificate and deliver it to the transferee, who must deliver or mail it to the DMV [Veh. Code § 5600(a)]. If the certificate is not available, the transferor must file an application for duplicate certificate with the DMV [Veh. Code §§ 5752, 5911].

Within five calendar days of the transfer and delivery of the vehicle to the transferee, the transferor must file an official notice of release of liability (or specified alternative materials) with the DMV [see Veh. Code §§ 5900, 5901; see also § 102D.202]. Thereafter, the transferor will be relieved of civil or criminal liability for the parking, abandoning, or operation of the vehicle by another person [Veh. Code § 5602].

For a procedural guide to the transfer process, see § 102D.111.

32-102D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102D.11

§ 102D.11 Registration of Undocumented Vessels With DMV

[1] In General

Every undocumented vessel operated on the waters of California must currently be numbered in accordance with the provisions of the Vehicle Code, federal law, or the laws of another state [Veh. Code § 9850]. For these purposes, an "undocumented vessel" is any vessel that is not required to have, and does not have, a valid marine document issued by the Coast Guard [see Veh. Code § 9840(g)]. To determine whether or not a particular vessel falls within this definition of undocumented vessel, see § 102D.101. For discussion of the documentation of vessels by the Coast Guard, see § 102D.12.

Under the Vehicle Code, an application for a registration number for an undocumented vessel must be filed with the DMV [see Veh. Code § 9853; see also § 102D.210[2] (form)]. If the DMV approves the application, it will issue a certificate of number to the owner [see Veh. Code § 9840(b) ("owner" defined)] and a certificate of ownership to the legal owner [Veh. Code § 9853.1; see Veh. Code § 9840(c) ("legal owner" defined)]. If there is no legal owner, the DMV will issue both certificates to the owner [Veh. Code § 9853.1]. The owner must paint or permanently attach the number on each side of the forward half of the vessel in the required manner [Veh. Code § 9853.2; 13 Cal. Code Reg. § 190.00] and renew the certificate of number before midnight of its expiration date [Veh. Code § 9860]. All certificates of number expire on December 31 of every odd-numbered year [Veh. Code § 9861]. The owner must also affix a registration sticker to the vessel if one is issued by the DMV [see Veh. Code § 9853.4(b); 13 Cal. Code Reg. § 190.01].

[2] Transfer of Vessel

A transfer of the title to, or any interest in, an undocumented vessel numbered under the Vehicle Code will not be effective unless the parties to the transaction pay any delinquent property taxes on the vessel, and follow the statutory transfer procedure [see Veh. Code § 9900]. Under the standard procedure, the transferor must endorse the certificate of ownership and deliver it to the transferee [Veh. Code § 9900(a)]. The transferee must set forth his or her address on the certificate, sign it, and submit it, along with other required documents and fees, to the DMV within 10 days [Veh. Code §§ 9855, 9900, 9901, 9907, 9908]. For more detailed coverage of this procedure and of related requirements, see § 102D.121.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

32-102D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102D.12

§ 102D.12 Documentation of Vessels by Coast Guard

[1] Overview and Definitions

Federal documentation is required for the operation of vessels in certain trades, serves as evidence of vessel nationality, and permits vessels to be subject to preferred mortgages [46 C.F.R. § 67.1]. For these purposes, "vessel" includes every description of watercraft or other contrivance used or capable of being used as a means of transportation on water, but the definition does not include aircraft [46 C.F.R. § 67.3]. A "documented vessel" is a vessel which is the subject of a valid Certificate of Documentation [46 U.S.C. § 106; 46 C.F.R. § 67.3]. Coast Guard officials called documentation officers process and approve applications for documentation [46 C.F.R. § 67.3].

[2] Vessels Subject to Documentation

Certificates of documentation are issued only to vessels that are wholly owned by United States citizens [46 U.S.C. § 12103(a)(1), (b); 46 C.F.R. § 67.5; see 46 U.S.C. § 104 ("citizen of the United States" defined); see also 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.30-67.47 (citizenship requirements for vessel documentation)] and that meet several criteria. As a general rule, vessels of five or more net tons that engage in the fisheries [see 46 U.S.C. § 108; 46 C.F.R. § 67.3 ("fisheries" defined)], on the navigable waters of the United States or in the Exclusive Economic Zone or coastwise trade must be documented [46 U.S.C. § 12102; 46 C.F.R. § 67.7; see 46 C.F.R. § 67.9(c) (exemption for non-self propelled vessels under certain circumstances); see also 46 C.F.R. § 67.3 ("Exclusive Economic Zone" defined)]. Other vessels that satisfy these weight and ownership requirements are eligible for documentation [see 46 U.S.C. § 12103(a)]. This group includes vessels used exclusively for recreational purposes [46 C.F.R. § 67.5]. Owners of pleasure vessels have the option of having their vessels documented by the Coast Guard or registered with the DMV [see 46 U.S.C. § 12106(a); see also § 102D.11[1]]. Finally, although the Coast Guard regulations group vessels used in foreign trade with vessels used exclusively for pleasure, thus suggesting that federal documentation is optional [see 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.5, 67.17(b)], the Coast Guard has indicated that vessels used in foreign trade must be documented before they may be operated in waters that fall within the jurisdiction of the Coast Guard. For further discussion of vessels that are subject to or exempt from the federal documentation requirements, see § 102D.102.

[3] Issuance of Certificate of Documentation

If the Coast Guard approves an application for documentation, it will issue a Certificate of Documentation [see Coast Guard Form CG-1270]. The certificate, or temporary certificate, will be issued with one or more of the following endorsements: registry (for foreign trade or trade with U.S. possessions), coastwise, fishery, or recreational [46 C.F.R. § 67.15; 46 U.S.C. § 12105(a); see 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.17, 67.19, 67.21, 67.23 (entitlements under various endorsements)]. When a vessel possesses a Certificate of Documentation bearing more than one endorsement, the actual use of the vessel will determine the endorsement under which it is operating [46 C.F.R. § 67.15 (Note)].

Each endorsement on a certificate is valid for one year. The owner must apply for renewal of each endorsement on the certificate before the expiration of that year [46 C.F.R. § 67.163; see 46 C.F.R. § 67.165(a) (option for deposit in lieu of renewal of endorsement for vessels exempt from requirement for documentation under 46 C.F.R. § 67.9(c)); see also [2], above].

[4] Requirement for Replacement, Exchange, Deletion, or Cancellation of Certificate

[a] Replacement

A Certificate of Documentation must be replaced when lost, mutilated, or wrongfully withheld from the vessel owner [46 C.F.R. § 67.169(a)]. When application for replacement is required because the certificate has been mutilated, the existing certificate must be physically given up to the National Vessel Documentation Center [46 C.F.R. § 67.169(b)]. On compliance with the applicable requirements, the Coast Guard will issue a new certificate [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.141 (application procedure); see also § 102D.130].

[b] Exchange

A Certificate of Documentation, together with any endorsements, becomes invalid and must be exchanged when any of the following events occurs [46 C.F.R. § 67.167(b); see 46 C.F.R. § 67.161 (exceptions)]:

- A change in the ownership of the vessel.
- A change by addition, deletion, or substitution of the general partners of a partnership that has obtained a registry or recreational endorsement.
- A change in the state of incorporation of the corporate owner of the vessel.
- A change in the name of the vessel.
- A change in the hailing port of the vessel.
- When the vessel is placed under the command of a person who is not a United States citizen.

A Certificate of Documentation, together with any of its endorsements, also becomes invalid immediately if the vessel is not at sea, or on the vessel's next arrival in port anywhere in the world, on the occurrence of any of the following events [46 C.F.R. § 67.167(c); see 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.161, 67.167(f) (exceptions)]:

- A change in the vessel's gross or net tonnage or its dimensions.
- A change by addition or substitution of restrictions imposed on the vessel.
- A change in the legal name of any owner.

- A change by addition, deletion, or substitution of the vessel's endorsements.
- The discovery of a substantive or clerical error by the issuing documentation officer.
- When a self-propelled vessel becomes a non-self-propelled vessel, and vice versa.
- When any beneficiary with an enforceable interest in a trust arrangement changes by addition or substitution, or the trustee of a trust arrangement owning a vessel changes by addition, substitution, or deletion.
- When a tenant by the entirety owning any part of the vessel dies.

Although a Certificate of Documentation and any endorsements remain valid, the owner must apply for exchange of the certificate on an election to designate a new managing owner of the vessel [46 C.F.R. § 67.167(d); see 46 C.F.R. § 67.113 (managing owner designation)] and may apply for exchange of the certificate if the restrictions imposed on the vessel change by deletion, or if the vessel attains a special entitlement [46 C.F.R. § 67.167(e); see 46 C.F.R. § 67.130 et seq. (forfeited, wrecked, or captured vessels)].

To apply for exchange of the certificate, the vessel owner must send or deliver the certificate to the National Vessel Documentation Center and follow the appropriate procedures [46 C.F.R. § 67.167(a); see 46 C.F.R. § 67.141 (application procedure); see also § 102D.130].

[c] Deletion

A Certificate of Documentation, together with any endorsements on that certificate, is invalid and the vessel is subject to deletion from the roll of documented vessels in the following situations [46 C.F.R. § 67.171(a); but see 46 C.F.R. § 67.161 (limited exceptions)]:

- The vessel is placed under foreign flag.
- The vessel is transferred in whole or in part to a non-citizen.
- Any owner of the vessel ceases to be a citizen within the meaning of the regulations governing documentation [see 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.30-67.47].
- The owner no longer elects to document the vessel.
- The vessel is no longer at least five net tons.
- The vessel ceases to be capable of transportation by water.
- The owner fails to exchange the certificate as required by the regulations [see [b], above].
- The owner fails to maintain the markings required by the regulations [see 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.120-67.125 (marking requirements for vessel documentation)].
- The endorsements on the certificate have been revoked because the vessel owner is the subject of an outstanding civil penalty assessed by the Coast Guard.
- The owner fails either to renew the endorsements [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.163] or to comply with provisions governing deposit of the certificate [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.165].

If a cause for deletion arises, the vessel owner must send or deliver the original certificate to the National Vessel Documentation Center, together with a statement setting forth the reason or reasons deletion is required [46 C.F.R. § 67.171(b); see 46 C.F.R. § 67.171(c) (additional requirements when certificate has been deleted because vessel has been placed under foreign flag or has been sold in whole or in part to non-citizen)]. A vessel may be redocumented following a deletion of its certificate if the reason for the deletion no longer exists [see §§ 102D.153, 102D.220[2]].

On compliance with the applicable requirements, a certificate evidencing deletion from documentation will be issued on request of the vessel owner to the National Vessel Documentation Center [46 C.F.R. § 67.171(d)].

[d] Cancellation

A Certificate of Documentation, together with any endorsements, is invalid and subject to cancellation on a determination by the Director of the National Vessel Documentation Center that the certificate was improperly issued for any reason [46 C.F.R. § 67.173]. On notification, the owner must send or deliver the certificate to a documentation officer at the National Vessel Documentation Center [46 C.F.R. § 67.173]. The vessel owner may submit an application for exchange to correct the error giving rise to cancellation [46 C.F.R. § 67.173; see 46 C.F.R. § 67.141 (application procedure); see also § 102D.130]. If the vessel for which the certificate was canceled was previously documented, it remains documented under the previous Certificate of Documentation, unless deleted from the roll of actively documented vessels [46 C.F.R. § 67.173; see 46 C.F.R. § 67.171 (deletion); see also [c], above].

Several types of instruments may be filed and recorded with the National Vessel Documentation Center if they affect a vessel that has a valid Certificate of Documentation or is the subject of an application for documentation which has been submitted to the National Documentation Center and is in substantial compliance with the applicable regulations [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.203 (restrictions on filing and recording)]. These documents include a bill of sale [see § 102D.221], a gift deed, mortgages and assignments, preferred mortgages and assignments, interlender agreements affecting mortgages and preferred mortgages, and notices of claim of lien [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.200]. The eligible documents must be filed and recorded to be valid against any person other than (1) the grantor, mortgagor, or assignor; (2) the heir or devisee of the grantor, mortgagor, or assignor; or (3) a person having actual notice of the instrument [46 U.S.C. § 31321(a)(1)].

CHAPTER 102D REGISTRATION AND TRANSFER OF VEHICLES, VESSELS, AND AIRCRAFT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

32-102D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102D.14

§ 102D.14 Registration of Aircraft

[1] Necessity and Eligibility

An aircraft (other than an aircraft of the United States Armed Forces) must be registered with the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) before it is operated within the United States, if it is eligible for registration [49 U.S.C. § 44101(a); see 49 U.S.C. § 44101(b); 14 C.F.R. § 47.3(a) (eligibility for registration); see also 49 U.S.C. § 44104(1) (aircraft engines, propellers, and appliances may also be registered); but see 14 C.F.R. § 47.31(c) (temporary authority to operate unregistered aircraft); [3], below]. An aircraft is eligible for registration if it satisfies any of the following conditions [49 U.S.C. § 44102(a)]:

- It is not registered under the laws of any foreign country and is owned by a United States citizen, or a lawfully admitted permanent resident; or
- It is not registered under the laws of any foreign country, is owned by a corporation (other than a corporation that is a United States citizen) lawfully organized and doing business under the laws of the United States or any state, and is based and primarily used in the United States; or
- It is owned by the federal government; a state, territory, or possession of the United States, or a political subdivision of any of these; or the District of Columbia.

[2] Submission of Application Materials by Owner

An aircraft may be registered only by and in the legal name of its owner [14 C.F.R. § 47.5(b); see 49 U.S.C. § 44103(a)(1) (registration of aircraft in general); see also 14 C.F.R. § 47.5(d) ("owner" defined)]. An owner-applicant must submit an official Aircraft Registration Application [see § 102D.230], evidence of ownership [see 14 C.F.R. §§ 47.11, 47.33, 47.35, 47.37], and the application fee [see 14 C.F.R. § 47.17] to the FAA Aircraft Registry [14 C.F.R. § 47.31(a); see 14 C.F.R. § 47.19 (addresses of Registry)]. For a step-by-step guide to this application process, see § 102D.140.

[3] Temporary Authority to Operate Aircraft

The Aircraft Registration Application is printed in triplicate. The owner must send two of the copies to the Registry, and must carry the pink copy in the aircraft as temporary authority to operate the aircraft without registration [14 C.F.R. §§ 47.3(b)(2), 47.31(b)]. This temporary authority is valid until the date the applicant receives a Certificate of Aircraft Registration or until the date the FAA denies the application but in no case for more than 90 days after the date the applicant signs the application. If the FAA does not take final action within that 90-day period, it will issue a letter of extension that permits the owner to continue to operate the aircraft without registration while the pink copy is carried in the aircraft [14 C.F.R. § 47.31(b)].

[4] Effective Date and Effect of Registration

An aircraft is registered on the date and at the time the FAA Aircraft Registry receives the required application materials [14 C.F.R. § 47.39(a); see 14 C.F.R. §§ 47.33 (aircraft not previously registered anywhere), 47.35 (aircraft last previously registered in United States); but see 14 C.F.R. §§ 47.37, 47.39(b) (special requirements applicable to aircraft last registered in foreign country)]. The Administrator of the FAA will issue a Certificate of Aircraft Registration to the owner [49 U.S.C. § 44103(a)(1)(B); see 14 C.F.R. § 47.31(a) (application); see 14 C.F.R. § 47.31(b) (reasons to reject application)]. The certificate is conclusive evidence of nationality for international purposes but not in any proceeding under the laws of the United States. Registration is not evidence of ownership of the aircraft in any proceeding in which ownership by a particular person is, or may be, at issue [49 U.S.C. § 44103(c)]. The FAA does not issue a certificate of ownership or endorse any information with respect to ownership on a Certificate of Aircraft Registration. Instead, the FAA issues a Certificate of Aircraft Registration to the person who appears to be the owner of the aircraft on the basis of the evidence of ownership submitted with the Application for Aircraft Registration or recorded at the FAA Aircraft Registry [14 C.F.R. § 47.5(c); see § 102D.15[1]].

[5] Termination of Registration

A Certificate of Aircraft Registration is effective, unless suspended or revoked [see [6], below], until one of the following events occurs [14 C.F.R. § 47.41(a); see 14 C.F.R. § 47.41(a)(8), (9) (special requirements governing termination when owner is a corporation or registration is in name of a trustee)]:

- The aircraft is registered under the laws of a foreign country;
- The registration is cancelled at the written request of the holder of the certificate;
- The aircraft is totally destroyed or scrapped;
- The ownership of the aircraft is transferred;
- The holder of the certificate loses his or her United States citizenship, or loses his or her resident alien status without becoming a United States resident; or
- Thirty days have elapsed since the death of the holder of the certificate.

The Certificate of Aircraft Registration must be returned to the FAA Aircraft Registry, with the reverse side completed, on termination of registration [14 C.F.R. § 47.41(b)]. In most cases, the holder of the certificate must return it [see 47 C.F.R. § 47.41(b)(1)-(3)].

[6] Suspension or Revocation

The Administrator of the FAA may suspend or revoke a Certificate of Aircraft Registration when the aircraft no longer meets the requirements for registration [49 U.S.C. § 44105]. The Administrator will revoke a certificate if the Administrator determines that the owner of the registered aircraft knowingly permitted the use of the aircraft to carry out or facilitate an activity that is punishable by death or by imprisonment for a term exceeding one year under a state or federal law relating to a controlled substance (except a law relating to simple possession of a controlled substance) [49 U.S.C. § 44106(b)(1); see 49 U.S.C. § 44106(b)(2) (when owner who is not an individual is deemed to have knowingly permitted proscribed activity); see also 49 U.S.C. § 44106(c), (d) (applicable notice, hearing, and appeal requirements)]. However, the Administrator may not revoke a Certificate of Registration on this basis if the holder of the certificate is acquitted of all charges related to a controlled substance in an indictment or information arising from the activity [49 U.S.C. § 44106(e)(1); see 49 U.S.C. § 44106(e)(2) (reissuance of certificate to person following revocation)].

[7] Dealers' Aircraft Registration Certificate

The FAA issues Dealers' Aircraft Registration Certificates [see AC Form 8050-6] to aircraft manufacturers and dealers as an alternative to the Certificate of Aircraft Registration [14 C.F.R. § 47.61(b)]. The Dealers' Certificate is valid only in connection with required flight testing of aircraft or flights that are necessary for, or incident to, the sale of the aircraft [14 C.F.R. § 47.69(c); see 14 C.F.R. § 47.69(a), (b) (additional limitations on use); see also 14 C.F.R. § 47.61(a) (purposes of Dealers' Certificate)]. It authorizes the use of aircraft within the United States by the owner of the aircraft to whom the certificate was issued, the holder's agent or employee, and prospective buyers [14 C.F.R. § 47.69(a); see 14 C.F.R. § 47.69(b) (limited exception to requirement that certificate be used within United States)]. However, a prospective buyer may operate an aircraft for demonstration purposes only and must be under the direct supervision of the holder of the Dealers' Certificate or the holder's agent [14 C.F.R. § 47.69].

To be eligible for a Dealers' Certificate, a person must have an established place of business in the United States, must be substantially engaged in manufacturing or selling aircraft, and must be a citizen of the United States [14 C.F.R. § 47.65; see 49 U.S.C. § 40102(a)(15) ("citizen of the United States" defined)]. The application process involves the submission of an official application [see AC Form 8050-5] and the application fee [14 C.F.R. § 47.63; see 14 C.F.R. § 47.17 (fee)]. Further, before using a certificate as authorization for the operation of a particular aircraft, a holder who is a dealer (as opposed to a manufacturer) must provide the FAA Aircraft Registry with satisfactory evidence of the ownership of the aircraft. An Aircraft Bill of Sale or its equivalent may be used as this evidence [14 C.F.R. § 47.67].

A Dealer's Certificate is an alternative to the Certificate of Registration [14 C.F.R. § 47.61(b); see 14 C.F.R. §§ 47.31-47.51 (certificates of registration)]. A dealer may obtain one or more Dealers' Certificates in addition to its original certificate and may use any certificate for any aircraft the dealer owns [14 C.F.R. § 47.61(b)]. The certificate expires one year after its issuance, and additional certificates expire on the date the original certificate expires [14 C.F.R. § 47.71(a)].

CHAPTER 102D REGISTRATION AND TRANSFER OF VEHICLES, VESSELS, AND AIRCRAFT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

32-102D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102D.15

§ 102D.15 Recording of Aircraft Titles and Security Documents of Registered Aircraft

[1] Recordable Conveyance Instruments

Any conveyance affecting title to or any interest in registered civil aircraft in the United States (or certain major aircraft components) may be recorded [49 U.S.C. § 44107(a); 14 C.F.R. § 49.1(a); see 14 C.F.R. § 49.31(a) (nonexclusive list of recordable conveyances)]. The following may also be recorded: conveyances used as evidence of ownership during the registration process under 14 C.F.R. § 47.11 [see 14 C.F.R. § 49.17(b)]; and releases, cancellations, discharges, and satisfactions of recordable conveyances [49 U.S.C. § 44107(a)(3); 14 C.F.R. § 49.31(b)]. For a list of documents eligible for recording, see § 102D.103.

[2] Effect of Recording

Until a conveyance, lease, or instrument executed for security purposes is filed for recording with the FAA Aircraft Registry, the instrument is valid only against the person making the conveyance, lease, or instruments, that person's heirs, and a person having actual notice of the conveyance, lease, or instrument [49 U.S.C. § 44108(a)]. The recording of a conveyance is not a decision by the FAA that the instrument does in fact affect title to, or an interest in, the aircraft or other property covered by the instrument [14 C.F.R. § 49.17(c)].

[3] Procedure

To be eligible for recording, a conveyance must contain specified information regarding the aircraft [see 14 C.F.R. § 49.33(b)] and comply with regulatory execution requirements [14 C.F.R. § 49.13(a), (b), (d); see 14 C.F.R. § 47.13(b)-(f) (applying to conveyance made by persons doing business under trade name, or by agent, corporation, partnership, coowner, or unincorporated association)]. Although the conveyance need not be acknowledged under the FAA regulations, the laws of the place of delivery of the conveyance determine when it must be acknowledged in order to be valid for purposes of that place [14 C.F.R. § 49.13(c); see International Atlas Services, Inc. v. Twentieth Century Aircraft Co. (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 434, 440, 59 Cal. Rptr. 495 (federal government has fully occupied field of recordation of interests in aircraft and of rights derived from recordation); Pope v. National Aero Finance Co. (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 722, 732, 46 Cal. Rptr. 233, cert. denied, 389 U.S. 1038 (1968) (recording and registration of documents affecting title of aircraft are governed by federal statute rather than by state laws)]. The conveyance must be mailed or delivered to the FAA Aircraft Registry [see 14 C.F.R. § 49.11 (addresses)] along with the recording fee [see 14 C.F.R. § 49.15(a)]. The conveyance is filed for recording on the date and at the time it is received by the Registry [14 C.F.R. § 49.19]. The FAA will return the original if the person submitting it also provides a true copy [14 C.F.R. § 49.21].

For a procedural guide to the recording of aircraft conveyances, see § 102D.141.

§ 102D.100 Vehicles

1. Does vehicle fall within statutory definition of "vehicle" [Veh. Code § 670]?

a. Is it device by which any person or property may be propelled, moved, or drawn on highway?

NOTE:

Virtually all types of automobiles, trucks, trailers, motorcycles, and mobilehomes fall within the statutory definition of "vehicle." A "motor vehicle" is a vehicle that is self-propelled. However, a self-propelled wheelchair, motorized tricycle, or motorized quadricycle, when operated by a person who, by reason of physical disability, is otherwise unable to move about as a pedestrian is not a "motor vehicle" [Veh. Code § 415(a), (b)]. For purposes of New Motor Vehicle Board and related statutes [see Veh. Code § 3000 et seq.], "motor vehicle" also includes a recreational vehicle [see Health & Safety Code § 18010(a) (definition)], but does not include a camper truck or park trailer [Veh. Code § 415(c)].

b. Is it device moved exclusively by human power or used exclusively on stationary rails or tracks?

NOTE:

This type of device is excluded from the statutory definition [Veh. Code § 670].

2. Who is "owner" of vehicle [Veh. Code § 460]:

a. Person having all incidents of ownership, including legal title of vehicle, whether or not he or she lends, rents, or creates security interest in vehicle;

- b. Person entitled to possession of vehicle as purchaser under security agreement; or
- c. State of California (or any political subdivision) or United States, when entitled to possession and use of vehicle under lease, lease-sale, or rental-purchase agreement for 30 consecutive days or more?

3. Does vehicle have separate "legal owner," that is, is there [Veh. Code § 370]:

- a. Person holding security interest in vehicle that is subject to provisions of Uniform Commercial Code; or

NOTE:

For discussion of security interests under the UCC, see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions .

- b. Lessor under lease, lease-sale, or rental-purchase agreement that grants possession of vehicle to any of following lessees for 30 consecutive days or more:

- (1) State of California;
- (2) Any county, city, district, or political subdivision of California; or
- (3) United States?

4. If vehicle is currently registered, who is registered owner [see Veh. Code § 505]?

32-102D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102D.101

§ 102D.101 Undocumented Vessels

NOTE:

An undocumented vessel is any vessel that is not required to have and does not have a valid marine document issued by the United States Bureau of Customs or the United States Coast Guard [Veh. Code § 9840(g)]. Every undocumented vessel operated on the waters of California must be currently numbered, either in accordance with the provisions of the Vehicle Code, federal law, or the laws of another state [Veh. Code § 9850]. This section guides the attorney in determining whether the client's vessel falls within the Vehicle Code definitions of "vessel" and "undocumented vessel" and whether the client's undocumented vessel is exempt from the numbering requirements of the Vehicle Code.

To determine whether or not a particular vessel is subject to federal documentation requirements, see § 102D.102.

1. Does vessel fall within Vehicle Code definition of "vessel?"

a. Is it watercraft used or capable of being used as means of transportation on water [Veh. Code § 9840(a)]?

NOTE:

This type of watercraft is considered a vessel, for purposes of the vessel numbering requirements of the Vehicle Code, unless it is one of the exempt vessels described in P b, below [Veh. Code § 9840(a)].

b. Is vessel one of following, which are exempt from numbering requirements of Vehicle Code?

(1) Seaplane on the water [Veh. Code § 9840(a)(1)];

(2) Watercraft specifically designed to operate on permanently fixed course [Veh. Code § 9840(a)(2)]; or

NOTE:

The movement of this type of watercraft must be restricted to or guided on the permanently fixed course by means of a mechanical device on a fixed track or arm to which the watercraft is attached or by which the watercraft is controlled, or by means of a mechanical device attached to the watercraft itself [Veh. Code § 9840(a)(2)].

(3) Floating structure designed and built to be used as stationary waterborne residential dwelling, provided it [Veh. Code § 9840(a)(3)]:

(a) Does not have and is not designed to have mode of power of its own;

(b) Is dependent for utilities on continuous utility linkage to source originating on shore;
and

(c) Has permanent, continuous hookup to shoreside sewage system?

2. Is vessel undocumented vessel, that is, does it lack, and is it not required to have, valid marine document issued by United States Coast Guard [Veh. Code § 9840(g)]?

3. If vessel is undocumented, is it exempt from numbering requirements of Vehicle Code because it is one of the following:

a. Already covered by number in full force and effect that has been issued to it pursuant to [Veh. Code § 9873(a)]:

(1) Federal law [see (2), above]; or

(2) Federally approved numbering system of another state.

NOTE:

Such an undocumented vessel will be subject to the numbering requirements of the Vehicle Code if it has changed its state of principal use and has been within California for more than 90 consecutive days [Veh. Code § 9873(a)].

b. From foreign county temporarily using waters of California [Veh. Code § 9873(b)].

c. Public vessel of [Veh. Code § 9873(c)]:

(1) United States;

(2) Another state or subdivision of United States; or

(3) Municipality of another state.

d. Ship's lifeboat [Veh. Code § 9873(d)].

- e. Vessel belonging to class of boats specifically exempted by DMV [Veh. Code § 9873(e)].

NOTE:

The DMV has created such an exemption for non-motorized, surfboard-like vessels over eight feet in length that (1) are propelled solely by sail and (2) have a mast that the operator must hold upright in order to sail the vessel [13 Cal. Code Reg. § 191.00].

- f. Propelled solely by oars or paddles [Veh. Code § 9873(e)].
- g. Sailboat under eight feet in length [Veh. Code § 9873(e)].

§ 102D.102 Documented Vessels

NOTE:

For purposes of the laws governing the federal documentation of vessels, "vessel" includes every description of watercraft or other contrivance used or capable of being used as a means of transportation on water, but does not include aircraft [46 C.F.R. § 67.3].

1. Must vessel be documented by Coast Guard; that is, does it meet all of the following criteria [see 46 U.S.C. § 12103(a); 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.5, 67.7]:

NOTE:

Federal documentation is required for the operation of vessels in certain trades, serves as evidence of vessel nationality, and permits vessels to be subject to preferred mortgages [46 C.F.R. § 67.1].

a. Wholly owned by United States citizen or citizens [46 C.F.R. § 67.5; 46 U.S.C. § 12103(a)(1), (b); see also 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.30-67.47 (citizenship requirements for vessel documentation)].

b. At least five net tons [46 U.S.C. § 12103(a)(2); 46 C.F.R. § 67.5].

c. Not documented under laws of foreign country [46 U.S.C. § 12103(a)(3)].

d. Used to engage in one of following [46 C.F.R. § 67.7]:

(1) "Fisheries";

NOTE:

For these purposes, "fisheries" includes processing, storing, transporting (except in foreign commerce), planting, cultivating, catching, taking, or harvesting fish, shell fish, marine animals, pearls, shells, or marine vegetation in the navigable waters of the United States or in the Exclusive Economic Zone [46 U.S.C. § 108; 46 C.F.R. § 67.3].

Subject to federal and state laws regulating the fisheries, a fishery endorsement entitles a vessel to engage in the fisheries and to land its catch, wherever caught, in the United States [46 C.F.R. § 67.21(a); see 46 U.S.C. § 12113].

(2) [Reserved];

(3) Coastwise trade; or

NOTE:

For these purposes, "coastwise trade" includes the transportation of passengers or merchandise between points in the United States embraced within the coastwise laws [46 C.F.R. § 67.3].

A coastwise endorsement entitles a vessel to employment in the coastwise trade and any other employment for which a registry, or fishery endorsement is not required [46 C.F.R. § 67.19(a); see 46 U.S.C. § 12112].

(4) Foreign trade or trade with United States possession [see 46 U.S.C. § 12111; 46 C.F.R. § 67.17].

NOTE:

A registry endorsement is available if the vessel is eligible for documentation and if it is to be employed in foreign trade or trade with Guam, American Samoa, Wake, Midway, or Kingman Reef [46 C.F.R. § 67.17(a)]. Although the applicable regulations provides that a vessel used in foreign trade is "eligible" for documentation [see 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.5, 67.17(b)], the Coast Guard has indicated that documentation is required for any vessel that is to engage in foreign trade in waters that fall within the jurisdiction of the Coast Guard [see P 3, below (optional documentation of vessels)].

On application of the owner of a vessel that qualifies for a coastwise endorsement or a fishery endorsement, the National Vessel Documentation Center may issue an endorsement authorizing the vessel to be employed in the coastwise trade or fisheries activities [see 46 U.S.C. §§ 12111-12114; 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.19-67.21]. Thus, a vessel that engages in foreign trade pursuant to a registry [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.17] may also receive an endorsement to engage in one of the other types of trade described above. In fact, a vessel may not be employed in a trade except a trade covered by the endorsement issued for that vessel [see 46 U.S.C. § 12102(a)].

e. One or more of following [see 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.19(b) (coastwise endorsement), 67.21(b) (fishery endorsement)]:

(1) Built in United States [46 C.F.R. § 67.19(b)(1) (coastwise trade), 67.21(b)(1) (fisheries); see 46 C.F.R. § 67.97].

(2) Wrecked vessel [46 C.F.R. §§ 67.19(b)(4) (coastwise trade), 67.21(b)(4) (fisheries); see 46 C.F.R. § 67.133 (special qualifications for documentation of wrecked vessels)].

(3) Forfeited vessel [46 C.F.R. §§ 67.19(b)(2) (coastwise trade), 67.21(b)(2) (fisheries); see 46 C.F.R. § 67.131 (special qualifications for documentation of forfeited vessels)].

(4) Captured vessel [46 C.F.R. §§ 67.19(b)(5) (coastwise trade), 67.21(b)(5) (fisheries); see 46 C.F.R. § 67.134 (special qualifications for documentation of captured vessels)].

(5) Vessel granted fishery, or coastwise trading privileges by special legislation [46 C.F.R. §§ 67.19(b)(3) (coastwise trade), 67.21(b)(3) (fisheries); see 46 C.F.R. § 67.132 (special qualifications for documentation)].

(6) Vessel purchased, chartered, or leased from Secretary of Commerce by persons who are United States citizens [46 C.F.R. § 67.19(c)(6) (coastwise trade); see 46 U.S.C. App. § 808].

NOTE:

A vessel otherwise eligible for a fishery endorsement loses that eligibility during any period in which it is owned by a partnership or by a corporation that does not meet the requisite citizenship requirements [46 C.F.R. § 67.21(d)(1), (2); see 46 C.F.R. § 67.45 (savings provision); see also 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.35(a), 67.39(d) (citizenship requirements)]. Furthermore, with specified exceptions, an otherwise eligible vessel loses that eligibility if it is chartered or leased to an individual who is not a U.S. citizen or to an entity that is not eligible to own a vessel with a fishery endorsement, or, if an instrument or evidence of indebtedness, secured by a mortgage of the vessel, to a trustee eligible to own a vessel with a fishery endorsement is issued, assigned, transferred, or held in trust for a person not eligible to own a vessel with a fishery endorsement [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.21(d)(3), (e), (f)].

2. Is vessel exempt from federal documentation requirements because it is any of following:

a. Less than five net tons [46 C.F.R. § 67.9(a)].

b. Not operating on navigable waters of United States or in the fisheries in the Exclusive Economic Zone [46 C.F.R. § 67.9(b)].

NOTE:

This type of vessel may, at the owner's option, be documented, provided it is at least five tons and wholly owned by a citizen or citizens of the United States [46 C.F.R. § 67.9(d); see 46 C.F.R. § 67.5 (requirements for documentation)].

c. Non-self-propelled vessel qualified to engage in coastwise trade and used in that trade in one or more of the following [46 C.F.R. § 67.9(c)]:

(1) Within a harbor;

(2) On United States rivers or lakes (excluding Great Lakes); or

(3) On internal waters or canals of any state.

3. Does vessel satisfy all following criteria, making it eligible for documentation [46 U.S.C. § 12103(a); see 46 C.F.R. § 67.5]?

- a. Is vessel at least five net tons?
- b. Is vessel wholly owned by one or more United States citizens?
- c. Is vessel not documented under laws of foreign country?
- d. Is vessel not titled in any state [see 46 U.S.C. § 12106]?
- e. Is vessel used:

NOTE:

This category of eligible vessels specifically includes, but is not limited to, vessels used for the purposes described below [46 C.F.R. § 67.5].

- (1) In foreign trade [see 46 U.S.C. § 12111; 46 C.F.R. § 67.17]; or

NOTE:

Although the implementing regulations provide that a vessel used in foreign trade is "eligible" for documentation [46 C.F.R. § 67.5], the Coast Guard has indicated that documentation is required for any vessel that is to engage in foreign trade in waters that fall within the jurisdiction of the Coast Guard [see § 102D.102, P 1d(4)].

- (2) Exclusively for pleasure [see 46 U.S.C. § 12114(b); 46 C.F.R. § 67.5].

NOTE:

A "pleasure license" (referred to in the statutes as a "recreational vessel license") entitles the vessel to pleasure use only [46 U.S.C. § 12114(b); 46 C.F.R. § 67.23(a)]. The owner of a vessel used exclusively for pleasure in the waters of California may elect to register the vessel with the Department of Motor Vehicles [see 46 U.S.C. § 12106(a); see also § 102D.120] in lieu of applying for documentation with the Coast Guard.

- 4. If vessel is or will be documented, does transaction involve instrument that may be recorded [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.200; see also 46 U.S.C. § 31321(a)]?

NOTE:

Only the types of instruments listed below are eligible for filing and recording with the National Documentation Center [46 C.F.R. § 67.200]. Further, no instrument will be accepted for filing unless the vessel to which it pertains has a valid Certificate of Documentation or is the subject of an application for initial documentation, exchange of certificate, return to documentation, or deletion from documentation [46 C.F.R. § 67.203(a)].

The documents listed below must be filed with the Coast Guard to be valid against any person other than (1) the grantor, mortgagor, or assignor; (2) the heir or devisee of the grantor, mortgagor, or assignor; or (3) a person having actual notice of the document [see 46 U.S.C. § 31321(a)(1)].

- a. Bill of sale or similar instrument [see § 102D.221[2] (form)].

b. Deeds of gift.

c. Mortgages and assignments, assumptions, supplements, amendments, subordinations, satisfactions, and releases of any of these.

d. Preferred mortgages and assignments, assumptions, supplements, amendments, satisfactions, and releases of any of these.

e. Interlender agreements affecting mortgages, preferred mortgages, and related instruments.

f. Notices of claim of lien and assignments, amendments, subordinations, satisfactions, and releases of those notices.

5. Is any document that is typically eligible for recording [see P 4, above] ineligible for recording because:

a. It has been materially altered [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.203(b)].

b. In case of bill of sale (or similar instrument) or gift deed, any vendee or transferee under instrument is not a United States citizen, unless:

(1) Maritime Administration has consented to grant to non-citizen under instrument [46 C.F.R. § 67.203(c)];

(2) Instrument conveys interest in vessel that, at time of execution of document, was neither documented nor was last documented under federal regulations [46 C.F.R. § 67.203(d)];

(3) Instrument conveys interest in vessel that has been operated only [46 C.F.R. § 67.203(d)]:

(a) As fishing vessel, fish processing vessel, or fish tender vessel [see 46 U.S.C. § 2101(11a), (11b), (11c) (definitions)];

(b) For recreation; or

(c) Both.

c. In case of mortgage (or assignment, assumption, supplement, amendment, satisfaction, or release of mortgage), mortgagee or assignee is not a United States citizen or trustee, unless [46 C.F.R. § 67.203(e)]:

(1) Maritime Administration has consented to grant to noncitizen; or

(2) Instrument conveys interest in vessel that has been operated only:

(a) As fishing vessel, fish processing vessel, or fish tender vessel [see 46 U.S.C. § 2101(11a), (11b), (11c)];

(b) For recreation; or

(c) Both.

d. In case of preferred mortgage (or assignment, assumption, supplement, amendment, satisfaction, or release of preferred mortgage), mortgagee or assignee is not person specified by statute [see 46 U.S.C. § 31322(a)(1)(D)], unless instrument conveys interest in vessel that has been operated only [46 C.F.R. § 67.203(f)]:

(1) As fishing vessel, fish processing vessel, or fish tender vessel [see 46 U.S.C. § 2101(11a), (11b), (11c)];

(2) For recreation; or

(3) Both.

1. Is aircraft eligible for registration with Federal Aviation Administration (FAA)?

NOTE:

An aircraft that is eligible for registration (other than aircraft of the U.S. Armed Forces) must be registered with the FAA before it may be operated within the United States [49 U.S.C. § 44101(a); see 49 U.S.C. § 44101(b) (exceptions); 14 C.F.R. § 47.3(a) (eligibility for registration); see also 49 U.S.C. § 44104(1) (aircraft engines, propellers, and appliances may also be registered); but see 14 C.F.R. § 47.31(c) (temporary authority to operate unregistered aircraft); § 102D.140]. An aircraft is not eligible for registration unless it falls within one of the two categories of aircraft described in PP a and b, below [see 49 U.S.C. § 44102(a)].

a. Is aircraft owned by [49 U.S.C. § 44102(a)(2)]:

- (1) Federal government;
- (2) State, territory, or possession of United States;
- (3) District of Columbia; or
- (4) Political subdivision of any of the above.

b. If aircraft does not come within any category specified in P a, above, does aircraft satisfy both of following criteria [49 U.S.C. § 44102(a)(1)]?

- (1) Aircraft is owned by one of following:

(a) U.S. citizen [see 14 C.F.R. §§ 47.2 ("U.S. citizen" defined), 47.7(a)];

(b) Lawfully admitted permanent resident [see 14 C.F.R. §§ 47.2 ("resident alien" defined), 47.7(b)]; or

(c) Corporation (other than corporation that is United States citizen) lawfully organized under laws of U.S. or any state [see 14 C.F.R. § 47.9].

NOTE:

An aircraft owned by this type of corporation is eligible for registration only if it is based and primarily used in the United States [49 U.S.C. § 44102(a)(1)(C)].

(2) Aircraft is not registered under laws of any foreign country.

2. Is party seeking registration the owner of aircraft?

NOTE:

An aircraft may be registered only by and in the legal name of its owner [14 C.F.R. § 47.5(b); see 49 U.S.C. § 44103(a)(1) (certificate of registration issued to owner)]. For these purposes, "owner" includes a buyer in possession, a bailee, a lessee of an aircraft under a contract of conditional sale, and an assignee under that contract [14 C.F.R. § 47.5(d)]. For further discussion, see § 102D.140.

3. Is client eligible for Dealers' Aircraft Registration Certificate?

NOTE:

To be eligible for this certificate, the applicant must satisfy all of the following criteria [see 14 C.F.R. §§ 47.61-47.71; see also § 102D.14[7]].

a. Is client a dealer or manufacturer [14 C.F.R. § 47.61(a)]?

b. Does client have established place of business in United States [14 C.F.R. § 47.65]?

c. Is client substantially engaged in manufacturing or selling aircraft [14 C.F.R. § 47.65]?

d. Is client citizen of United States [14 C.F.R. § 47.65; see 49 U.S.C. § 40102(a)(15) ("U.S. citizen" defined)]?

4. What recordable instruments will be used in transaction?

NOTE:

From the time any of the instruments described below is filed for recording, the conveyance will be valid for all persons without further notice, with limited exceptions [see 49 U.S.C. § 44108(b)].

a. Conveyances affecting title to, or any interest in, any of following [14 C.F.R. § 49.1(a); see 49 U.S.C. § 44107(a)]:

NOTE:

These recordable conveyances include bills of sale; contracts of conditional sale; assignments of an interest under a contract of conditional sale; mortgages; assignments of a mortgage; leases; equipment trusts; notices of tax lien or other lien; and other instruments affecting title to, or any interest in aircraft [14 C.F.R. § 49.31(a); see 14 C.F.R. § 49.17(a) ("conveyance" defined)]. However, a notice of federal tax lien is not recordable under the provisions governing recording of aircraft titles and security documents [14 C.F.R. § 49.1 et seq.], because the Internal Revenue Code requires that a federal tax lien be filed elsewhere [14 C.F.R. § 49.17(a)(2); see I.R.C. §§ 6321, 6323; Treas. Reg. §§ 301.6321-1, 301.6323-1].

(1) Any aircraft registered under 49 U.S.C. §§ 44101-44104;

(2) Any specifically identified:

(a) Aircraft engine rated at 750 or more horsepower; or

(b) Aircraft propeller capable of absorbing 750 or more rated takeoff shaft horsepower;

or

(3) Any aircraft engine, propeller, or appliance maintained by or on behalf of a certificated air carrier for installation or use in aircraft, aircraft engine, or propeller, or any spare part, maintained at designated location for that air carrier [see 49 U.S.C. § 44705 (certification)].

b. Conveyances used as evidence of ownership during registration process [14 C.F.R. § 49.17(b); see 14 C.F.R. § 47.11 (evidence of ownership; see also § 102D.140, PP 2-5)].

c. Releases, cancellations, discharges, and satisfactions of recordable conveyances [49 U.S.C. § 44107(a)(3); 14 C.F.R. § 49.31(b)].

1. Registration and Transfer of Vehicles

32-102D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102D.110

§ 102D.110 Registration

1. Complete official application for original registration [see § 102D.200; Veh. Code § 4150; see also Veh. Code §§ 4150.1 (application for commercial motor vehicle), 4150.2 (application for motorcycle)].

NOTE:

Under Veh. Code § 4000.6, a commercial vehicle, singly or in combination, that operates with a declared gross or combined gross vehicle weight that exceeds 10,000 pounds must be registered under Veh. Code § 9400.1 [Veh. Code § 4000.6]; see Veh. Code § 9400.1 (additional fees for commercial vehicles of 10,001 pounds or more). Veh. Code § 4000.6 does not apply to pickups or to any commercial vehicle or combination that does not exceed 10,000 pounds gross vehicle weight [Veh. Code § 4000.6(b)]; see Veh. Code § 9400 (applicable fees)].

2. Do one of following in order to comply with vehicle smog laws:

- a. Obtain certificate of compliance (or noncompliance, as appropriate) with smog laws, unless one of following applies [Veh. Code § 4000.1(a), (d)]; see also Veh. Code § 4000.1(b) (different certification requirements apply to new motor vehicles)]:

NOTE:

On initial registration, and on transfer of ownership and registration, of any motor vehicle subject to the registration requirements of the Vehicle Code, the applicant must furnish a valid certificate of compliance, or a certificate of noncompliance, issued by a licensed smog check station and signed by a licensed inspector [Veh. Code § 4000.1(a)].

(1) Initial application for transfer is submitted within 90-day validity period of a smog certificate, as specified in Health & Safety Code § 44015.

(2) Transferor is parent, grandparent, sibling, child, grandchild, or spouse of transferee.

(3) Motor vehicle registered to sole proprietorship is being transferred to proprietor as owner.

(4) Transfer is between companies whose principal business is leasing motor vehicles, if there has been no change in lessee or operator of motor vehicle or between lessor and person who has been, for at least one year, lessee's operator of motor vehicle.

(5) Transfer is between lessor and lessee of motor vehicle, if there is no change in lessee or operator of motor vehicle.

(6) Motor vehicle was manufactured before the 1976 model-year.

(7) Except for diesel-powered vehicles, transfer of motor vehicle that is four or less model years old.

NOTE:

To support the Vehicle Inspection and Repair Fund, the DMV charges a separate fee to the transferee of a motor vehicle that is not more than four model-years old [Veh. Code § 4000.1(d)(7)].

(8) Only change is that additional individual is being added as registered owner of motor vehicle [see Veh. Code § 4000.1(f)].

b. If vehicle is exempt from smog certificate requirement for reason outlined in P a(1), above (valid certificate was issued in connection with most recent renewal of registration of vehicle in district in which biennial certification is required, and transfer occurring within 60 days after date when renewal of registration was required), have transferor complete and execute DMV-prescribed form stating that no modifications have been made to emissions system [see Veh. Code § 5751.5].

NOTE:

Once completed and executed, this form is not submitted to DMV but rather to the transferee at the time the transfer transaction is completed [Veh. Code § 5751.5(a)].

3. Submit application, certificate of compliance, and appropriate registration fees [see Veh. Code § 9250] to DMV [Veh. Code §§ 4000.1, 4150].

4. After DMV issues certificate of ownership ("pink slip") and registration card [see Veh. Code § 4450], instruct owner to keep registration card or facsimile copy of it in vehicle, as required [Veh. Code § 4454(a)].

NOTE:

The DMV will issue a certificate of ownership to the legal owner and a registration card to the owner. If there is no legal owner, the DMV will issue both documents to the owner [Veh. Code § 4450; see Veh. Code §§ 370 ("legal owner" defined), 460 ("owner" defined)].

Every owner, on receipt of a registration card, must keep that card or a facsimile copy of it in the vehicle for which the card was issued [Veh. Code § 4454(a)]. However, the registration card or a facsimile copy is not required to be kept with the vehicle when the card is necessarily removed to apply for renewal or transfer of the registration or when the vehicle is left unattended [Veh. Code § 4454(b)].

5. Instruct owner to renew registration before midnight of its expiration date by [Veh. Code § 4602; see Veh. Code § 4601(a) (vehicle registration expires at midnight on its expiration date), (b) (renewal of registration may be obtained up to 75 days before expiration of current registration)]:

a. Presenting registration card last issued for vehicle or potential registration card issued by DMV for use at time of renewal; and

b. Paying registration fee [see Veh. Code § 9250].

NOTE:

If neither a registration card nor a potential registration card is available, the applicant need not pay the fee normally charged for the preparation of duplicate cards [Veh. Code § 4602; see Veh. Code § 9265].

On renewing a registration, the DMV will issue a new registration card to the owner [Veh. Code § 4607].

PART III. TRANSACTION GUIDE
B. Procedural Guide
1. Registration and Transfer of Vehicles

32-102D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102D.111

§ 102D.111 Transfer

NOTE:

The procedural steps set forth in PP 1-4, below, apply to voluntary transfers. For coverage of involuntary transfers, see P 5, below.

1. If certificate of ownership ("pink slip") is available [Veh. Code §§ 5600(a), 5902]:
 - a. Have transferor endorse certificate as follows:
 - (1) If transferor is legal owner, have him or her sign in appropriate space provided on certificate [Veh. Code § 5750].
 - (2) If title or interest of registered owner [see Veh. Code § 505 ("registered owner" defined)] only is being transferred [Veh. Code § 5751]:
 - (a) Have registered owner set forth his or her address and signature in appropriate spaces on certificate; and
 - (b) Have legal owner write his or her signature in space provided for new legal owner, thereby indicating that legal owner is to retain his or her legal title and interest.
 - b. Have transferor deliver certificate to transferee.
 - c. Advise transferee to set forth his or her signature and address in appropriate spaces on certificate [Veh. Code §§ 5750, 5751].
 - d. Advise transferee to deliver or mail certificate to DMV within 10 days after receipt, together with [see Veh. Code §

5902]:

- (1) Official Vehicle Transfer Form (DMV Reg. 262) [see § 102D.201[2]].

NOTE:

This form includes a bill of sale, and must accompany the ownership certificate or the application for a duplicate title [see § 102D.201[2] (instructions)].

- (2) Required transfer fee and use tax, if any.

NOTE:

Use taxes are due on most transfers between individuals [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 6271 et seq.].

The materials submitted to the DMV by the transferee will serve as the transferee's application for a transfer of registration [Veh. Code § 5600; Veh. Code §§ 5905, 5907, 5908 (special requirements governing security interests and dealers)]. On receipt of a properly endorsed certificate of ownership and the required fee, the DMV will reregister the vehicle under its registration number in the name of the new owner and the new legal owner, if any, and will issue a new registration card and certificate of ownership [Veh. Code § 6050(a)]. The DMV will not issue a new registration card and certificate of ownership on a vehicle that has been issued a nonrepairable vehicle certificate [Veh. Code § 6050(b); see Veh. Code § 11515.2 (nonrepairable vehicle certificate)].

2. If certificate of ownership is not available [Veh. Code §§ 5752, 5911; see Veh. Code § 5600(a)(1), (2) (delivery of documents)]:

- a. Have transferor complete official application for duplicate certificate [see DMV Form 227]; and
- b. File application along with [see Veh. Code § 5902]:

- (1) Official Vehicle Transfer Form (DMV Reg. 262) [see § 102D.201[2]].

NOTE:

This form includes a bill of sale, and must accompany the ownership certificate or the application for a duplicate title [see § 102D.201[2] (instructions)].

- (2) Required fees for duplicate certificate of ownership, transfer fee, and use tax, if any.

NOTE:

If the certificate of ownership is lost or otherwise unavailable, the DMV may examine the application and require the filing of certifications or other information to satisfy the DMV that the applicant is entitled to have the vehicle transferred to him or her. It is important that counsel contact the appropriate local office of the DMV to determine what information the office requires in connection with these transfers. After the submission of all required information, the DMV may transfer the registration of the vehicle or register the vehicle under a new registration number, and issue a new certificate of ownership and registration card to the person entitled to them. The DMV will not issue a new certificate of ownership and registration card, however, if it receives notice by registered or certified mail, from the registered owner, recorded lienholder, or a person exempt from recording [see Veh. Code § 5906 (dealer)], indicating that the existing ownership certificate is being held for nonpayment of the vehicle [

Veh. Code § 5911].

3. Instruct owner/transferor (or other person in physical possession of vehicle) to provide DMV with official form containing information described below within five calendar days of transfer and delivery of vehicle to transferee [Veh. Code § 5900(a); see § 102D.201[2] (form); see also Veh. Code §§ 4456(b), 5901 (notice requirement applicable to dealer or lessor-retailer)].

NOTE:

An owner who has made a bona fide sale or transfer of a vehicle and has delivered possession of it to a purchaser is relieved of civil or criminal liability for the parking, abandoning, or operation of the vehicle thereafter by another person if [Veh. Code § 5602] the owner (1) properly endorses and delivers the certificate of ownership [see P 1, above] or (2) delivers or mails to the DMV either (a) the notice as provided in Veh. Code § 5900 (or, if a dealer or lessor-retailer, the notice required by Veh. Code § 4456(b) or 5901) [see §§ 102D.201, 102D.202] or appropriate documents and fees for registration of the vehicle to the new owner pursuant to the sale or transfer [see P 2, above].

If the registered owner is not in possession of the vehicle that is sold or transferred, the person in physical possession of the vehicle must give the notice required by Veh. Code § 5900(a), (b) (see PP a-d, below) [Veh. Code § 5900(c)].

a. Date of sale or transfer;

b. Name and address of owner and transferee;

c. Description of vehicle; and

d. Mileage of vehicle, which must be either [Veh. Code § 5900(b); see 49 U.S.C. § 32705(a)] (requiring written disclosure of cumulative mileage on vehicle's odometer or disclosure that actual mileage is unknown if transferor knows odometer reading is not accurate):

(1) Actual mileage of vehicle at time of sale or transfer, as indicated on odometer; or

(2) True mileage of vehicle at time of sale or transfer, if owner knows odometer to be incorrect and knows true mileage.

NOTE:

Providing false or inaccurate mileage is not a violation of this requirement unless it is done with the intent to defraud [Veh. Code § 5900(b)].

Whenever a person transfers ownership of a vehicle and is required to disclose its mileage, the Department of Motor Vehicles may prescribe a secured form to be used for purposes of the odometer mileage disclosure requirements pursuant to 49 U.S.C. § 32705(a) [Veh. Code § 5600(b)].

4. Furnish DMV with valid certificate of compliance with smog laws, unless transfer is exempt from this requirement [Veh. Code § 4000.1(a), (b), (d), (f); see § 102D.110, P 2].

NOTE:

Even if a transferor is exempt from furnishing a smog certificate, he or she may be required to present the transferee with a statement (on a DMV prescribed form) attesting that the vehicle's emissions system has not been modified [see Veh. Code § 5751.5; see also § 102D.110, P 2b].

5. If involuntary transfer is involved, instruct new owner or legal owner to apply for transfer of registration by submitting following to DMV [Veh. Code § 5909(a)]:

- a. Official application [see DMV Form 119 (Certificate of Repossession, Security Interest/Conditional Sale Contract)];
- b. Last certificate of ownership and registration card issued by vehicle, if available; and
- c. Any instruments or documents of authority (or certified copies of the instruments or documents) required by DMV or by law to evidence or effect transfer of title.

32-102D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102D.120

§ 102D.120 Registration

NOTE:

To determine whether or not an undocumented vessel is subject to the numbering requirements of the Vehicle Code, see § 102D.101. For coverage of the documentation of vessels, see §§ 102D.130-102D.131.

1. Instruct owner [see Veh. Code § 9840(b) ("owner" defined)] to complete and sign official application for boat certificate of number [see Veh. Code § 9853.1; § 102D.210].

NOTE:

Application to register a vessel may be made at any office of the Department of Motor Vehicles. On receipt of the required information and fees [see P 2, below], the DMV will issue a certificate of number and a set of registration stickers. The boat registration number is the number beginning with CF shown on the certificate [see Cal. Dept. of Motor Vehicles, ABCs of the California Boating Law; see also P 4, below].

2. File application with DMV, together with:

- a. Application fee [see Veh. Code § 9855]; and
- b. Proof of ownership of vessel [Veh. Code § 9852; see 13 Cal. Code Reg. § 190.02].

NOTE:

The official application requires the applicant to satisfy this requirement by completing either the certificate of sale or the applicant's statement set forth on the back of the application [see § 102D.210].

3. After DMV issues certificate of number to owner, advise owner to:

NOTE:

On receipt of an acceptable application, the DMV will issue a certificate of ownership to the legal owner [see Veh. Code § 9840(c) ("legal owner" defined)] and a certificate of number to the owner [see Veh. Code § 9840(b) ("owner" defined)], or the DMV will issue both of these forms to the owner if there is no legal owner [Veh. Code § 9853.1]. The DMV may issue a temporary certificate of number that will be valid for 60 days from the date of issuance [see Veh. Code § 9858; 13 Cal. Code Reg. § 190.14].

a. Paint number on (or permanently attach it to) each side of forward half of vessel so that [Veh. Code § 9853.2; 13 Cal. Code Reg. § 190.00]:

NOTE:

Special requirements govern the display of numbers on vessels used by a manufacturer or by a dealer for tests or demonstrations [see 13 Cal. Code Reg. § 190.00(b)]; inflatable vessels [see 13 Cal. Code Reg. § 190.00(c)]; and vessels on which the number cannot be clearly displayed or properly attached by following the standard display requirements [see 13 Cal. Code Reg. § 190.00(c)].

No numerals, letters, or devices other than those used in connection with the state registration number may be placed in the proximity of the state number, and no numerals, letters, or devices that might interfere with the ready identification of the vessel by its state number may be carried on any part of the vessel [13 Cal. Code Reg. § 190.00(d)].

(1) It is clearly visible and legible.

(2) It is in plain vertical block characters of not less than three inches in height.

(3) It contrasts with color of the background.

(4) It has spaces or hyphens that are equal to width of a letter other than "I" or a number other than "1" between:

(a) Prefix and number; and

(b) Number and suffix.

NOTE:

The following is an example of this required format: "CF 1234 AB" [13 Cal. Code Reg. § 190.00(a)(4)].

(5) Letters and numbers read from left to right.

b. Keep certificate of number available for inspection on vessel whenever vessel is in use [Veh. Code § 9853.2; but see Veh. Code § 9853.3 (different requirements for leased or rented vessels)].

4. If DMV issues registration sticker [see Veh. Code § 9853.4], advise owner to take following steps [13 Cal. Code Reg.

§ 190.01]:

a. Securely affix sticker on each side of vessel three inches aft (toward stern) of and directly in line with registration numbers; and

b. Maintain sticker so that it is clearly visible at all times.

5. Instruct owner to renew certificate of number before midnight of expiration date by presenting last certificate of number or potential registration card issued by DMV and renewal fee to DMV [Veh. Code § 9860(a)].

NOTE:

All certificates of number expire on December 31 of every odd-numbered year [Veh. Code § 9861(a)]. If neither a certificate of number nor a potential registration card is available, the applicant need not pay the fee normally charged for the preparation of duplicate certificates or cards [Veh. Code § 9860(a); see Veh. Code § 9867 (fee)].

6. Instruct person whose name appears as owner on certificate of number to notify DMV within 15 days of occurrence of any of following events [Veh. Code §§ 9864, 9865; see 13 Cal. Code Reg. § 190.12 (validity of certificate)]:

a. Change in owner's address; or

b. Wrecking, dismantling, destruction, or abandonment of vessel.

NOTE:

The wrecking, dismantling, destruction, or abandonment of a vessel will terminate the certificate of ownership and certificate of number. Thereafter, the certificates (if available) must be surrendered to the DMV [Veh. Code § 9864].

The DMV, on receiving notice of the abandonment of an undocumented vessel or on an official determination that an undocumented vessel has been abandoned, may order the destruction of the vessel at the expiration of 30 days if an investigation by the DMV has disclosed that no owner, legal owner, or lienholder claims an interest in the vessel or if those persons have waived their interests. This statutory authorization must not be construed to deny the legal rights, otherwise provided for by law, of any person claiming an interest in an abandoned vessel if that person notifies the DMV within the applicable time period governing that notice [Veh. Code § 9864].

2. Registration and Transfer of Undocumented Vessels

32-102D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102D.121

§ 102D.121 Transfer

NOTE:

Most of the following requirements apply to the voluntary transfer of an undocumented vessel that has been numbered under the Vehicle Code [see Veh. Code § 9900]. For the definitions of the terms "owner," "legal owner," and "registered owner," see § 102D.210[1][b]. For discussion of involuntary transfers, see P 8, below.

1. Ensure that any delinquent property taxes on vessel have been paid [Veh. Code § 9900].
2. Take following steps if certificate of ownership ("pink slip") is available:
 - a. Have transferor endorse certificate as follows:
 - (1) If transferor is legal owner, have transferor sign in appropriate space provided on certificate [Veh. Code § 9907].
 - (2) If title or interest of registered owner only is being transferred [Veh. Code § 9908]:
 - (a) Have registered owner write his or her address and signature in appropriate spaces on certificate; and
 - (b) Have legal owner write his or her signature in space provided for new legal owner, thereby indicating that legal owner is to retain his or her legal title and interest.
 - b. Have transferor deliver certificate to transferee [Veh. Code § 9900(a)].
 - c. Advise transferee to sign certificate and set forth his or her signature and address in appropriate spaces on certificate

[Veh. Code §§ 9907, 9908].

d. Have transferee deliver or mail the following to DMV within 10 days after receiving certificate from transferor [Veh. Code §§ 9855, 9900, 9901]:

- (1) Existing certificate of ownership;
- (2) Official Vessel Transfer Form (DMV Reg. 262) [see § 102D.201[2]].

NOTE:

This form includes a bill of sale, and must accompany the ownership certificate or the application for a duplicate title [see § 102D.201[2] (Instructions)].

- (3) New application for boat certificate of number [see § 102D.210[2]];

NOTE:

The DMV normally will (1) reassign the vessel's number to the new owner and (2) issue a new certificate of ownership and a new certificate of number [Veh. Code §§ 9855, 9902]. However, in the case of a transfer of a part interest that does not affect the owner's right to operate the vessel, the DMV will not terminate the certificate of number [Veh. Code § 9902].

- (4) Applicable fee [see Veh. Code §§ 9855, 9901]; and
- (5) Use taxes, if any [see Veh. Code § 9928; Rev. & Tax. Code § 6271 et seq.].

NOTE:

The DMV provides an alternative transfer scheme that requires delivering or mailing appropriate documents directly to the DMV [Veh. Code § 9900(b)].

3. If certificate of ownership is unavailable, have transferor [Veh. Code §§ 9909, 9917]:

- a. Complete official application for duplicate certificate of ownership [see DMV Form 227]; and
- b. Complete official Vessel Transfer Form (DMV Reg. 262) [see § 102D.201[2]].

NOTE:

This form includes a bill of sale, and must accompany the ownership certificate or the application for a duplicate title [see § 102D.201[2] (Instructions)].

c. File application and transfer form along with fees for duplicate certificate of ownership and transfer [see Veh. Code §§ 9867, 9867.5 (fees)].

NOTE:

When the certificate is not available, the DMV may receive the application, examine the circumstances of the case, and require the filing of affidavits or other information. If the DMV approves the application, it will transfer the ownership of the vessel and issue a new certificate of ownership and certificate of number [Veh. Code § 9917; see Veh. Code § 9909].

4. Advise owner/transferor to provide DMV with following information regarding sale or transfer within five calendar days after delivering possession of vessel [Veh. Code § 9911; see § 102D.202[2]; see also Veh. Code § 9912 (alternative notice requirements applicable to transfers by dealer)]:

NOTE:

An owner of an undocumented vessel who has made a bona fide sale or transfer of an undocumented vessel and has delivered possession of it to the purchaser will be relieved of civil liability for the operation of the vessel thereafter by another person if the owner does either of the following: (1) properly endorses and delivers the certificate [see P 2, above] or (2) delivers or mails to the DMV either this notice (or if a dealer, the notice required by Veh. Code § 9912), or appropriate documents for the transfer of the vessel pursuant to the sale or transfer [Veh. Code § 9905].

- a. Date of sale or transfer.
- b. Name and address of owner and of transferee.
- c. Description of the vessel required by appropriate notification form.

5. Have transferor or transferee complete and sign written disclosure statement setting forth [Veh. Code § 9903]:

NOTE:

This disclosure ordinarily is made by completing the application for boat certificate of number (DMV Boat 101) [see §§ 102D.120; 102D.210[2] (form)].

- a. Date of sale or transfer of ownership of vessel.
- b. Name and address of transferor and of transferee.
- c. Total consideration (valued in money) given for transfer, including any motor or other component part of vessel included in transfer.

6. If legal owner wishes to assign or transfer his or her title or interest in or to undocumented vessel numbered under Vehicle Code, notify him or her of right to do so without obtaining consent of (or affecting interest of) owner [Veh. Code § 9906].

7. Instruct person whose name appears as owner on certificate of number to notify DMV within 15 days of occurrence of any of following events [Veh. Code §§ 9864, 9865; 13 Cal. Code Reg. § 190.12]:

- a. Change in owner's address.
- b. Wrecking, dismantling, destruction, or abandonment of vessel.

NOTE:

The wrecking, dismantling, destruction, or abandonment of a vessel will terminate the certificate of ownership and certificate of number. Thereafter, the certificates (if available) must be surrendered to the DMV [Veh. Code § 9864].

The DMV, on receiving notice of the abandonment of an undocumented vessel, or on an official determination that an undocumented vessel has been abandoned, may order the destruction of the vessel at the expiration of 30 days if an investigation by the DMV has disclosed that no owner, legal owner, or lienholder claims an interest in the vessel, or if those persons have waived their interests. This statutory authorization must not be construed to deny the legal rights, otherwise provided for by law, of any person claiming an interest in an abandoned vessel if that person notifies the DMV within the applicable time period governing that notice [Veh. Code § 9864].

8. On involuntary transfer of title to or interest in vessel, advise new owner or legal owner to apply for transfer of ownership by submitting following to DMV [Veh. Code § 9915(a)]:

- a. Official application [see DMV Form 119 (Certificate of Repossession, Security Interest/Conditional Sale Contract)].
- b. Last certificate of ownership and certificate of number issued for vessel, if available [see Veh. Code § 9917 (procedures when certificate is not available); see also P 3, above].
- c. Originals or certified copies of any instruments or documents of authority required by DMV or law to evidence or effect transfer.

NOTE:

If the DMV approves the transfer, it will notify the owner and the legal owner of this decision by mail. The notice will not be required, however, in the case of a repossession involving a secured party. Five days after giving the notice, the DMV will transfer the ownership of the vessel and issue a new certificate of ownership and certificate of number [Veh. Code § 9915(b)].

§ 102D.122 Purchase or Sale

1. Before purchase of vessel (and transfer of ownership [see § 102D.121]), advise buyer to have vessel surveyed by licensed marine surveyor.

NOTE:

A survey by a licensed marine surveyor will apprise the buyer of the boat's condition, which may not be apparent from a mere inspection. A haulout and out-of-the-water survey are recommended, so that the precise condition of the vessel may be determined. Traditionally, it is the buyer's responsibility to pay for the haulout and survey. Agents who sell marine insurance generally can provide the names of several licensed marine surveyors.

2. Advise buyer or seller that it is unlawful to buy, sell, offer for sale, receive, or possess any vessel or vessel's component from which the hull identification number has been removed, defaced, altered, or destroyed [Veh. Code § 9872.1(a)].

NOTE:

This prohibition does not apply if a hull identification number that has been approved by the DMV is attached to the vessel or component part in lieu of the manufacturer's number [Veh. Code § 9872.1(a)].

3. Ensure that any delinquent property taxes on vessel have been paid [Veh. Code § 9900; see § 102D.121].

4. Ensure that vessel is being transferred free of all other debts, claims, liens, taxes, and any other kinds of encumbrances [see § 102D.211[2], P 8; see also § 102D.131 (recording and removing encumbrances on documented vessels)].

3. Documentation of Vessels and Recording Instruments Affecting Vessels

32-102D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102D.130

§ 102D.130 Documentation of Vessels

NOTE:

To determine whether or not a vessel is subject to federal documentation requirements, see § 102D.102. For coverage of the renewal, replacement, surrender, and deletion of Certificates of Documentation, see §§ 102D.150-102D.153.

With limited exceptions, this chapter does not discuss applications for documentation of the following types of vessels: captured vessels [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.134]; forfeited vessels [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.131]; vessels subject to special legislation [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.132]; and wrecked vessels [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.133].

1. Obtain official application for documentation [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.141(a)(1); see also § 102D.220[2] (Form CG-1258)].

2. While completing application form, take following steps:

a. Set forth present name of vessel [46 C.F.R. § 67.117(a); see § 102D.220[2], P I(A) (Form CG-1258)].

NOTE:

The name of the vessel must be composed of letters of the Latin alphabet or Arabic or Roman numerals [46 C.F.R. § 67.117(b)(1)]. It may not be identical, actually or phonetically, to any word or words used to solicit assistance at sea [46 C.F.R. § 67.117(b)(2)], and may not contain (or be phonetically identical to) obscene, indecent, or profane language, or to racial and ethnic epithets [46 C.F.R. § 67.117(b)(3)]. These restrictions, however, do not apply to vessels validly documented before January 1, 1994, until the owner elects to change the name of the vessel [46 C.F.R. § 67.117(d)].

b. Insert official number assigned by Coast Guard, for all but initial issue cases [see § 102D.220[2], P I(B) and Instructions (Form CG-1258); see also 46 C.F.R. § 67.111(b)].

c. Set forth managing owner's name and social security or tax identification number [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.113(a), (b); see also § 102D.220[2], P I(C) and Instructions (Form CG-1258)]:

NOTE:

The managing owner of a vessel owned by one person is the owner of the vessel [46 C.F.R. § 67.113(a)]. The managing owner of a vessel owned by more than one person must be one of the owners [46 C.F.R. § 67.113(b)]. The managing owner of a vessel owned in a trust arrangement must be one of the trustees [46 C.F.R. § 67.113(c)]. For vessels owned by a limited liability company (LLC), the name of the LLC should be shown [see § 102D.220[2], Instructions (Form CG-1258)].

The managing owner is the person to whom the Coast Guard will send correspondence and notices [see § 102D.220[2], Instructions (Form CG-1258)]. A social security or tax identification number is required [see § 102D.220[2], Instructions (Form CG-1258)]. A telephone number, although not required, is helpful [see § 102D.220[2], Instructions (Form CG-1258)].

d. Set forth address of managing owner [see § 102D.220[2], P I(D) (Form CG-1258)], as follows [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.113; see also § 102D.220[2], Instructions (Form CG-1258)]:

NOTE:

The person designated as the managing owner must have an address in the United States, unless no owner of the vessel has an address in the United States [46 C.F.R. § 67.113(b)].

(1) For individual, enter any residential address.

NOTE:

If the managing owner's physical (street) address is different from his or her mailing address, show both addresses [see § 102D.220[2], Instructions (Form CG-1258)].

(2) If partnership owns vessel, enter

(a) Address in state under which it is organized; or

(b) Address of its principal place of business.

(3) If corporation owns vessel, enter:

(a) Address for service of process in its state of incorporation; or

(b) Address of its principal place of business.

e. Designate hailing port [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.119(a), (b); see also § 102D.220[2], P I(F) and Instructions (Form CG-1258)].

NOTE:

A vessel's hailing port must be a place in the United States included in the United States Department of Commerce Federal Information Processing Standards Publication 55DC, which sets forth specific rules to determine a vessel's hailing port [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.119(b)].

A Certificate of Documentation, together with any of its endorsements, becomes invalid immediately once a designated hailing port changes [see § 102D.220[2], Instructions (Form CG-1258)].

f. Check appropriate boxes to show type of entity that owns vessel and certify that owners meet citizenship requirements for that type of entity [see § 102D.220[2], P I(G) and Instructions (Form CG-1258); see also 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.30-67.45 (citizenship requirements)].

g. Indicate intended use or uses of vessel [46 U.S.C. § 12105(a); 46 C.F.R. § 67.15(b); see § 102D.220[2], P I(H) (Form CG-1258)]:

NOTE:

On qualification of an application for documentation, the Secretary of Transportation will issue a Certificate of Documentation, or a temporary Certificate of Documentation, (Coast Guard Form CG-1270). The certificate will be endorsed with one or more of the endorsements listed below [46 U.S.C. § 12105(a); 46 C.F.R. § 67.15(b), (c); see § 102D.102 PP 1, 2].

(1) Registry (i.e., foreign trade).

(2) Coastwise trade.

(3) Fishery.

(4) Recreational.

h. Check appropriate box to show vessel's primary type of service [see § 102D.220[2], P I(I) and Instructions (Form CG-1258; only one box may be checked)].

i. Check appropriate boxes to show purpose of application [see § 102D.220[2], P I(J) and Instructions (Form CG-1258)].

NOTE:

The same application form may be used for initial issue, exchange, or replacement of a Certificate of Documentation, or for redocumentation [see § 102D.220[2] (Form CG-1258)].

j. Complete certification, as appropriate [see § 102D.220[2], P I(K) and Instructions (Form CG-1258)].

3. File application with National Vessel Documentation Center [46 C.F.R. § 67.141(a)].

NOTE:

The National Vessel Documentation Center is located at 2039 Stonewall Jackson Drive, Falling Waters, WV 25419-2405, telephone (304) 271-2400, fax (304) 271-2415.

4. Submit following with application:

a. Title evidence, if applicable [46 C.F.R. § 67.141(a)(2); see 46 C.F.R. § 67.50 (when title evidence is required); see also § 102D.220[1][e]].

b. Mortgagee consent, if applicable [46 C.F.R. § 67.141(a)(3) (Form CG-4593)].

c. Outstanding Certificate of Documentation, if application is for replacement of mutilated document or exchange of documentation.

5. On receipt of certificate, and before operation of vessel, ensure that vessel is marked with official number, name, and hailing port, as required by regulations [46 C.F.R. § 67.141(c); see 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.120-67.125 (marking requirements); see also § 102D.220[2], Instructions (Form CG-1258)].

3. Documentation of Vessels and Recording Instruments Affecting Vessels

32-102D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102D.131

§ 102D.131 Filing and Recording of Instruments Affecting Documented Vessels

NOTE:

For discussion of the types of instruments that are eligible for filing and recordation [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.200], see § 102D.102, P 4.

The original instrument itself may be presented, but is not required [46 C.F.R. § 67.209]. A copy may be delivered to the National Vessel Documentation Center or may be submitted by fax [46 C.F.R. § 67.219(a); see 46 C.F.R. § 67.219(b), (c) (requirements for faxed information)]. A copy also may be transmitted in portable document format (.pdf) [46 C.F.R. § 67.209; see 46 C.F.R. § 67.218 (optional filing in.pdf as attachments to e-mail)]. Signatures may be affixed manually or digitally [46 C.F.R. § 67.209]. On receipt of the instrument (either a copy or the original), the instrument may be recorded provided it complies with the requirements of 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.200-67.219 [see PP 1-4, below].

The address of the National Documentation is 2039 TJ Jackson Drive, Falling Waters, WV 25419-2405; telephone (800) 799-8362, or (304) 271-2400. The fax number is (304) 271-2405, or (304) 271-2415, if paying by credit card. The e-mail address is NVDCWebmaster@NVDC.USCG.MIL.

The filing of an instrument against a vessel in accordance with the filing and recording requirements [see 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.231-67.259; see also PP 5, 6, below] may be terminated, and if recorded, removed from the record of the vessel by [46 C.F.R. § 67.261] the filing of either a court order, affidavit, or Declaration of Forfeiture [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.263], or a properly filed satisfaction or release instrument [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.265].

The filing requirements discussed in PP 1-4, below, apply, as a general rule, to all instruments eligible for recording. For alternative and additional requirements applicable to particular types of instruments, see PP 5-8, below.

1. Confirm that instrument contains the following:

a. Sufficient information to identify vessel clearly [46 C.F.R. § 67.205(a)].

b. If vessel has been documented [46 C.F.R. § 67.205(b)]:

(1) Vessel's name and official number; or

(2) Other unique identifier.

c. If vessel has never been documented [46 C.F.R. § 67.205(c)]:

(1) Vessel's hull identification number [see 33 C.F.R. § 181.25]; or

(2) Other descriptive information that clearly identifies vessel, such as [46 C.F.R. § 67.205(c)(2)]:

(a) Length.

(b) Breadth.

(c) Depth.

(d) Year built.

(e) Name of manufacturer.

(f) Any numbers that may have been assigned under federal regulations governing boating safety [see 33 C.F.R. pt. 173].

d. Date of execution [46 C.F.R. § 67.207(a)(1)].

e. Acknowledgment [46 C.F.R. § 67.207(a)(2)].

NOTE:

No Coast Guard officer or employee is authorized to take acknowledgments unless the instrument is executed on behalf of the Federal Government of the United States [46 C.F.R. § 67.207(b)].

2. Ensure that copy of original instrument is signed and acknowledged [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.209].

3. Submit copy of signed, acknowledged instrument [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.209] to the National Documentation Center [46 C.F.R. § 67.213(a)].

NOTE:

The original instrument itself may be presented, but is not required [46 C.F.R. § 67.209]. A copy may be delivered to the National Vessel Documentation Center or transmitted by fax or in portable document format (.pdf) [46 C.F.R. § 67.209; see 46 C.F.R. § 67.218 (optional filing in.pdf as attachments to e-mail), 46 C.F.R. § 67.219 (optional filing by fax); discussion in NOTE, § 102D.131, P 1].

Signatures may be affixed manually or digitally [46 C.F.R. § 67.209].

The date and time of filing of an instrument is the actual date and time at which the instrument is received by the National Vessel Documentation Center [46 C.F.R. § 67.215(a); see 46 C.F.R. § 67.215(b) (filing of substitute instrument)].

All instruments are recorded at the National Vessel Documentation Center [46 C.F.R. § 67.213(b)].

4. If instrument is a bill of sale, gift deed, mortgage, or assignment of mortgage, file citizenship declaration (on official form) along with instrument [46 C.F.R. § 67.211(a); see 46 C.F.R. pt. 221 (requirements governing declaration)].

NOTE:

A citizenship declaration is required unless the transaction is exempt from citizenship declaration requirement [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.211(c), (d)]. The official declaration forms are available from the National Vessel Documentation Center and from the Vessel Transfer and Disposal Officer (MAR-745.1), Maritime Administration, United States Department of Transportation, Washington, DC 20590 [46 C.F.R. § 67.211(b)].

5. If instrument is a bill of sale or gift deed: [46 C.F.R. § 67.220]:

a. File it in conjunction with [46 C.F.R. § 67.223]:

(1) Application for initial documentation or redocumentation of vessel; or

(2) Change to or deletion of vessel's outstanding Certificate of Documentation.

b. Confirm that it meets requirements of 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.200-67.219 [46 C.F.R. § 67.220(a); see PP 1-4, above].

c. Confirm that it is signed by or on behalf of all sellers or donors [46 C.F.R. § 67.220(b)].

d. Confirm that it recites the following [46 C.F.R. § 67.220(c)]:

(1) Name and address of each seller or donor and buyer or donee; and

(2) Interest in vessel held by each seller or donor and buyer or donee.

6. If instrument is mortgage or related instrument:

NOTE:

An Optional Application for Filing (Coast Guard Form CG-5542) may be attached to a mortgage or related instrument. If Form CG-5542 is properly completed with all information required for indexing the instrument and the signatures specified on the form, the instrument to which it is attached will be filed and recorded with no further review [46 C.F.R. § 67.231(c)].

a. Confirm that it meets requirements of 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.200-67.219 [46 C.F.R. § 67.231(a); see PP 1-4, above].

b. Confirm that it is signed by or on behalf of each mortgagor [46 C.F.R. § 67.235(a)(1)].

NOTE:

A mortgage or assumption of mortgage is not eligible for filing and recording if the mortgagor did not actually hold legal title to the interest in the vessel being mortgaged at the time of filing of the mortgage or assumption, or if the vessel that the mortgage covers is not documented or is not the subject of an application for documentation [46 C.F.R. § 67.233(a)].

c. Confirm that mortgage recites [46 C.F.R. § 67.235(a)(2)]:

(1) Name and address of each mortgagor and mortgagee.

(2) Interest in vessel held by each mortgagor and mortgagee.

(3) Amount of direct or contingent obligations that is or may become secured by mortgage, excluding interest, expenses, and fees.

NOTE:

This amount may be recited in one or more units of account as agreed to by the parties [46 C.F.R. § 67.235(a)(2)(iii)].

d. Confirm that all of following related instruments satisfy additional regulatory requirements:

NOTE:

In addition to the following regulatory requirements, all instruments supplemental to mortgages must recite information which clearly identifies the mortgage to which the supplemental information is applicable [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.231(b)].

(1) Assignments of mortgages [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.237].

(2) Assumptions of mortgages [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.239].

(3) Amendments of or supplements to mortgages [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.241].

(4) Instrument subordinating mortgages [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.243].

7. If instrument is preferred mortgage:

a. Confirm that it meets requirements of 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.200-67.219 [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.231(a); see also PP 1-4, above].

b. Confirm that mortgage covers whole vessel [46 C.F.R. § 67.235(b)].

NOTE:

A mortgage that secures more than one vessel may, at the option of the parties, provide for separate discharge of the vessels [46 C.F.R. § 67.235(c)].

c. Confirm that mortgagee is one of the following [46 C.F.R. § 67.233(b)]:

- (1) A state.
- (2) United States Government.
- (3) Federally-insured depository institution (unless disapproved by Secretary of Transportation).
- (4) Individual who is United States citizen.
- (5) Person qualifying as United States citizen as defined in 46 U.S.C. App. § 802.
- (6) Person approved by Secretary of Transportation.

NOTE:

A mortgage of a vessel 100 feet or greater in length applying for a fishery endorsement is eligible for filing and recording as a preferred mortgage only if it meets the requirements of 46 C.F.R. pt. 67 [46 C.F.R. § 67.200 et seq.] and the requirements of 46 C.F.R. § 356.19 (requirements to hold preferred mortgage on fishing vessel) [46 C.F.R. § 67.233(b)]. However, an instrument conveying an interest in a vessel that has been operated only as a fishing vessel, fish processing vessel, or fish tender vessel [see 46 U.S.C. § 2101(11a), (11b), (11c) (definitions)], or a vessel that has been operated only for recreation, or both, is not subject to this restriction [46 C.F.R. § 67.233(c)].

8. If instrument is a notice of claim of lien:

NOTE:

A notice of claim of lien is not entitled to filing and recording unless the vessel against which the lien is claimed is covered by a preferred mortgage filed or recorded with the Secretary of Transportation [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.255]. For requirements for assignments of, or amendments to, notices of claim of lien, see 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.257, 67.259.

a. Confirm that it meets requirements of 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.200-67.219 [46 C.F.R. § 67.250(a); see PP 1-4, above].

b. Confirm that notice is signed by or on behalf of claimant [46 C.F.R. § 67.253(a)].

c. Confirm that it recites [46 C.F.R. § 67.253(b)]:

- (1) Name and address of claimant.
- (2) Nature of lien claimed.
- (3) Date on which lien was established.
- (4) Amount of lien claimed.

4. Registration of Aircraft and Recording Conveyances Affecting Aircraft

32-102D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102D.140

§ 102D.140 Registration of Aircraft

NOTE:

To determine whether or not an aircraft is eligible for registration with the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) [see 49 U.S.C. § 44102(a); 14 C.F.R. § 47.3(a)], see § 102D.103, P 1. Aircraft engines, propellers, and appliances also may be registered [49 U.S.C. § 44104(1)].

The following discussion covers the general registration process, which culminates in the issuance of a Certificate of Aircraft Registration. For discussion of the procedure governing applications for Dealers' Aircraft Registration Certificates, see § 102D.14[7].

1. Assist owner in completing Application for Aircraft Registration [see 14 C.F.R. §§ 47.5(a), 47.31(a); see also § 102D.230].

NOTE:

An aircraft may be registered only by and in the legal name of its owner [14 C.F.R. § 47.5(b); see 49 U.S.C. § 44103(a)(1); see also 14 C.F.R. § 47.5(d) ("owner" defined); § 102D.103, P 2]. However, registration will not be evidence of ownership of the aircraft in any proceeding in which ownership by a particular person is in issue [49 U.S.C. § 44103(c)(2); 14 C.F.R. § 47.5(c)]. The FAA issues a Certificate of Aircraft Registration to the person who appears to be the owner on the basis of the evidence of ownership submitted with the registration application [see 14 C.F.R. § 47.11], or recorded at the FAA Aircraft Registry [see § 102D.141]. It does not issue a certificate of ownership or endorse any information with respect to ownership on a Certificate of Aircraft Registration [14 C.F.R. § 47.5(c)].

2. Obtain following evidence of ownership, as appropriate:

NOTE:

If the aircraft has never been registered under the laws of the United States or any foreign country, was last previously registered under United States law, or was last previously registered in a foreign country, somewhat different requirements may govern the evidence of ownership [see 14 C.F.R. §§ 47.33-47.37; see also PP 3-5, below].

a. If applicant is buyer in possession, bailee, or lessee of aircraft under contract of conditional sale, obtain contract of conditional sale [14 C.F.R. § 47.11(a)].

b. If applicant is assignee under contract of conditional sale, obtain [14 C.F.R. § 47.11(a)]:

(1) Contract of conditional sale (unless already recorded at FAA Aircraft Registry).

(2) Assignment from original buyer, bailee, lessee, or prior assignee.

c. If applicant is a reposessor of aircraft, obtain [14 C.F.R. § 47.11(b)]:

(1) Certificate of repossession on FAA Form 8050-4, or its equivalent [see § 102D.232].

NOTE:

This certificate must be signed by the applicant and must state that the aircraft was repossessed or otherwise seized under the applicable security agreement and under local law [14 C.F.R. § 47.11(b)(1)].

(2) Security agreement (unless it has been recorded at FAA Aircraft Registry), or certified copy of agreement.

NOTE:

The copy must be imprinted on paper permanent in nature and include dates and signatures. Further, a certificate of the applicant must be attached to the copy. The certificate must state that the copy has been compared with the original and that it is a true copy [14 C.F.R. §§ 47.11(b)(2), 49.21].

(3) Bill of sale that satisfies following requirements, if repossession was through foreclosure proceedings resulting in sale, and that [14 C.F.R. § 47.11(b)(3)]:

(a) Is signed by sheriff, auctioneer, or other authorized person who conducted sale.

(b) States that sale was made under applicable local law.

d. If applicant bought aircraft at judicial sale, or at sale to satisfy lien or charge, obtain bill of sale that contains signature and statement described in P c(3), above [14 C.F.R. § 47.11(c)].

e. If title to aircraft has been in controversy and has been determined by a court, obtain certified copy of decision of court [14 C.F.R. § 47.11(d)].

f. If applicant is executor or administrator of estate of deceased former owner of aircraft, obtain certified copy of letters testamentary or letters of administration appointing applicant executor or administrator [14 C.F.R. § 47.11(e)].

NOTE:

If the application is approved, the Certificate of Aircraft Registration will be issued to the applicant as executor or administrator [14 C.F.R. § 47.11(e)].

g. If applicant bought aircraft from estate of deceased former owner, and executor or administrator has been or is to be appointed, obtain [14 C.F.R. § 47.11(f)]:

- (1) Bill of sale signed for estate by executor or administrator.
- (2) Certified copy of letters testamentary or letters of administration.

h. If applicant bought aircraft from estate of deceased former owner, and no executor or administrator has been or is to be appointed, obtain [14 C.F.R. § 47.11(f)]:

- (1) Bill of sale signed by heir-at-law of deceased former owner.
- (2) Affidavit of that heir-at-law, stating that:
 - (a) No application for appointment of executor or administrator has been made.
 - (b) So far as he or she can determine, no such application will be made.
 - (c) He or she is person entitled to, or having right to dispose of, aircraft under applicable local law.

i. If applicant is guardian of another person's property (including aircraft), obtain certified copy of court order appointing him or her guardian [14 C.F.R. § 47.11(g)].

NOTE:

The Certificate of Aircraft Registration will be issued to the applicant as guardian [14 C.F.R. § 47.11(g)].

j. If applicant is trustee of property that includes the aircraft:

- (1) Obtain either [14 C.F.R. § 47.11(h)]:
 - (a) Certified copy of court order appointing trustee; or
 - (b) Complete and true copy of instrument creating trust.
- (2) If there is more than one trustee, advise cotrustees that each trustee must sign application [14 C.F.R. § 47.11(h)].

NOTE:

The Certificate of Aircraft Registration will be issued to a single applicant as trustee, or to several trustees jointly as cotrustees [14 C.F.R. § 47.11(h)].

3. If aircraft has not been registered previously under 49 U.S.C. §§ 44101-44104, under other law of United States, or under foreign law, obtain one of following as evidence of ownership:

- a. Bill of sale (official FAA form AC Form 8050-2) [14 C.F.R. § 47.33(a)(2); see § 102D.231].
- b. Equivalent bill of sale [14 C.F.R. § 47.33(a)(2)].
- c. Other evidence of ownership authorized by 14 C.F.R. § 47.11 [14 C.F.R. § 47.33(a)(2); see P 2, above].
- d. If applicant, for good reason, cannot produce any of above forms of evidence of ownership, other evidence satisfactory to Federal Aviation Administrator [14 C.F.R. § 47.33(b)].

NOTE:

This "other evidence" may be an affidavit stating why the applicant cannot produce the required evidence, accompanied by any further evidence that is available to prove the transaction [14 C.F.R. § 47.33(b); see 14 C.F.R. § 47.33(c), (d) (special requirements for amateur-built planes)].

4. If aircraft was last previously registered in United States, obtain following evidence of ownership:

- a. Bill of sale (official FAA form AC Form 8050-2) [14 C.F.R. § 47.35(a); see § 102D.231].
- b. Equivalent conveyance [14 C.F.R. § 47.35(a)].

NOTE:

If the applicant bought the aircraft from the last registered owner, the conveyance must be from that owner to the applicant. If the applicant did not buy the aircraft from the last registered owner, he or she must submit conveyances or other instruments showing consecutive transactions from the last registered owner through each intervening owner to the applicant [14 C.F.R. § 47.35(a)].

- c. Other evidence of ownership [14 C.F.R. § 47.35(a); see 14 C.F.R. § 47.11 (evidence of ownership); see P 2, above].
- d. If, for good reason, applicant cannot produce any of above forms of evidence of ownership, other evidence satisfactory to Federal Aviation Administrator [14 C.F.R. § 47.35(b)].

NOTE:

This "other evidence" may be an affidavit stating why the applicant cannot produce the required evidence, accompanied by whatever further evidence is available to prove the transaction [14 C.F.R. § 47.35(b)].

5. If aircraft was last previously registered under laws of foreign country, obtain following evidence of ownership:

- a. Either of the following [14 C.F.R. § 47.37(a)(2)]:
 - (1) Bill of sale from foreign seller; or
 - (2) Other evidence satisfactory to Federal Aviation Administrator that applicant owns aircraft.

- b. Evidence satisfactory to Federal Aviation Administrator that if country in which aircraft was registered has not ratified certain international conventions and treaties, registration has ended or is invalid and other specified conditions are met [see 14 C.F.R. § 47.37(a)(3)].
 - c. Certain other evidence regarding termination of foreign registration [see 14 C.F.R. § 47.37(a)(3), (b)].
6. Confirm that every owner signs application and any supporting documentation (as appropriate), that each signature is in ink [14 C.F.R. § 47.13(a)], and that following additional execution requirements are satisfied (if applicable):
- a. If one or more persons doing business under a trade name are submitting application, confirm that application is signed by, or on behalf of, each person who shares title to aircraft [14 C.F.R. § 47.13(b)].
 - b. If agent submits application on owner's behalf, confirm that agent [14 C.F.R. § 47.13(c)]:

- (1) States name of owner on application.

- (2) Signs as agent or attorney-in-fact.

- (3) Submits signed power of attorney or true and certified copy of that power [see 14 C.F.R. § 49.21 (certification requirements)].

NOTE:

A power of attorney or other evidence of a person's authority to sign for another is valid for these purposes until the earlier of the revocation of this authority or the following: (1) the expiration date stated in the evidence of authority; or (2) if no expiration date is stated, not more than three years after the date it is signed or the grantor (or a corporate officer or other person in a managerial position, in the case of a grantor corporation) certifies in writing that the authority to sign shown on the evidence is still in effect [14 C.F.R. § 47.13(g)].

- c. If applicant is a corporation, confirm that [14 C.F.R. § 47.13(d)]:

- (1) Authorized person signs application.

- (2) Title of signer's office appears on application.

- (3) Copy of signer's authorization from board of directors, certified as true [see 14 C.F.R. § 49.21 (certification requirements)] by corporate officer or other person in managerial position in corporation, unless [14 C.F.R. § 47.13(d)(3); see 14 C.F.R. § 47.13(d)(4) (exceptions)]:

- (a) Signer of application is corporate officer or other person in managerial position, and title of his or her office is stated along with signature; or

- (b) Valid authorization to sign is on file at FAA Aircraft Registry.

- d. If applicant is a partnership, confirm that [14 C.F.R. § 47.13(e)]:

- (1) Application states full name of partnership.

(2) Application states name of each general partner.

(3) A general partner signs application.

e. If applicants are co-owners who are not engaged in business as partners, have each person who shares title to aircraft sign application [14 C.F.R. § 47.13(f)].

7. Have applicant place United States identification number ("registration mark") on application, and on any evidence submitted with application [14 C.F.R. § 47.15(a)].

NOTE:

In the case of an aircraft not previously registered anywhere, the applicant must obtain the U.S. identification number from the FAA Aircraft Registry by submitting a written request that (1) describes the aircraft by make, type, model, and serial number [but see 14 C.F.R. § 47.33(c) (alternative requirements for amateur-built aircraft)], and (2) states that the aircraft has not previously been registered anywhere. If the aircraft was brought into the United States from a foreign country, the applicant must submit evidence that it has never been registered in a foreign country [14 C.F.R. § 47.15(a)(1)]. Different requirements apply to aircraft that have previously been registered in the U.S. [see 14 C.F.R. § 47.15(a)(2)] or in a foreign country [see 14 C.F.R. § 47.15(a)(3)].

The identification number requirements discussed above do not apply to an aircraft manufacturer who applies for a group of U.S. identification numbers [see 14 C.F.R. § 47.15(c)], a person who applies for a special identification number [see 14 C.F.R. § 47.15(d)-(h)], or a holder of a Dealers' Aircraft Registration Certificate who applies for a temporary registration number [14 C.F.R. § 47.15(a); see 14 C.F.R. § 47.16 (temporary number)].

8. Submit following application materials to FAA Aircraft Registry [14 C.F.R. § 47.31(a)]:

NOTE:

The application materials must be mailed to the FAA Aircraft Registry, Department of Transportation, P.O. Box 25504, Oklahoma City, OK 73125, or delivered to the Registry at 6425 S. Denning Ave., Oklahoma City, OK 73169 [14 C.F.R. § 47.19].

a. White and green copy of Aircraft Registration Application [see P 1, above; see also § 102D.230[2]].

b. Either of the following:

(1) Original Aircraft Bill of Sale (using form prepared by FAA) [see AC Form 8050-2; § 102D.231[2]]; or

(2) Other evidence of ownership authorized by 14 C.F.R. § 47.33, 47.35, or 47.37 [see PP 3, 4, and 5, above, respectively].

c. Application fee [see 14 C.F.R. § 47.17].

9. After applicant submits specified application materials, instruct applicant to carry second (pink) copy of Aircraft Registration Application in aircraft as temporary authority to operate it without registration [14 C.F.R. § 47.31(c)].

NOTE:

This temporary authority is valid until the date the applicant receives the Certificate of Aircraft Registration [~~see~~ AC Form 8050-3], or until the date the FAA denies the application, but in no case for more than 90 days after the date the applicant signs the application [14 C.F.R. § 47.31(c)].

4. Registration of Aircraft and Recording Conveyances Affecting Aircraft

32-102D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102D.141

§ 102D.141 Recording Conveyances Affecting Title

NOTE:

The following recording requirements apply to the majority of recordable conveyances [see § 102D.103, P 4 (list of recordable conveyances)]. Additional or alternative requirements apply to encumbrances against certain aircraft engines and propellers [see 14 C.F.R. §§ 49.41-49.45] and to specified air carrier aircraft engines, propellers, appliances, and spare parts [see 14 C.F.R. §§ 49.51-49.55].

1. If client wishes to record conveyance affecting title to or interest in aircraft [see 49 U.S.C. §§ 44107, 44108; 14 C.F.R. § 49.1(a); see also § 102D.103, P 4], verify that instrument complies with following signature and execution requirements [14 C.F.R. § 49.13]:

NOTE:

The Federal Aviation Act provides that a conveyance or instrument must be acknowledged in order to be recorded but grants the Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration the authority to provide otherwise [49 U.S.C. § 44107(c)]. The Administrator has promulgated a regulation that provides that acknowledgment is not required for purposes of the Act and its implementing regulations, and that the law of the place of conveyance determines when an instrument must be acknowledged in order to be valid for purposes of that place [14 C.F.R. § 49.13(c); see International Atlas Services, Inc. v. Twentieth Century Aircraft Co. (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 434, 440, 59 Cal. Rptr. 495 (federal government has fully occupied field of recordation of interests in aircraft and of rights derived from recordation); Pope v. National Aero Finance Co. (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 722, 732, 46 Cal. Rptr. 233, cert. denied, 389 U.S. 1038 (1968) (recording and registration of documents affecting title of aircraft are governed by federal statute rather than by state laws)].

a. Each signature must be in ink [14 C.F.R. § 49.13(a)].

b. Conveyance must satisfy special execution requirements (set forth in regulations governing aircraft registration) [see 14 C.F.R. § 47.13(b)-(f); see also § 102D.140, P 6] if it is made by, or on behalf of, any of following [14 C.F.R. § 49.13(b)]:

(1) One or more persons doing business under trade name.

(2) Agent.

NOTE:

A power of attorney or other evidence of a person's authority to sign for another, submitted in connection with the recording of an aircraft conveyance [see 14 C.F.R. §§ 47.13(c), (g), 49.13(b); see also § 102D.140, P 6b], is valid for purposes of the recordation regulations until the earlier of its revocation or the following: (1) the expiration date stated in the evidence of authority; or (2) if no expiration date is stated, not more than three years after the date (a) it is signed or (b) the grantor (or a corporate officer or other person in a managerial position, in the case of a grantor corporation) certifies in writing that the authority to sign shown on the evidence is still in effect [14 C.F.R. § 49.13(d)].

(3) Corporation.

(4) Partnership.

(5) Co-owner.

(6) Unincorporated association.

c. If document is contract of conditional sale, it must be signed by all parties to contract [14 C.F.R. § 49.17(d)(6)].

NOTE:

A "conditional sales contract" means a contract for the sale of an aircraft, aircraft engine, propeller, appliance, or spare part, under which the buyer takes possession of the property but title to the property vests in the buyer at a later time on (1) paying any part of the purchase price; (2) performing another condition; or (3) the happening of a contingency. A contract to bail or lease an aircraft, aircraft engine, propeller, appliance, or spare part, under which the bailee or lessee (1) agrees to pay an amount substantially equal to the value of the property; and (2) is to become, or has the option of becoming, the owner of the property on complying with the contract is also a "conditional sales contract" [see 49 U.S.C. § 40102(a)(18)].

2. If conveyance to be recorded is executed for security purposes or is assignment of that instrument, ensure that it complies with following requirements [14 C.F.R. § 49.17(d)]:

NOTE:

Immediately after a debt secured by a conveyance given for security purposes has been satisfied, or any of the encumbered aircraft has been released from the conveyance, the holder must execute a release and must send it to the FAA Aircraft Registry for recording [14 C.F.R. § 49.17(d)(5); see P 6, below].

- a. Debtor must sign security agreement.

NOTE:

If the debtor is not the registered owner of the aircraft, the security agreement must be accompanied by the debtor's Application for Aircraft Registration and evidence of ownership [see 14 C.F.R. § 47.11; see also § 102D.140], unless the debtor (1) holds a Dealer's Aircraft Registration Certificate and submits evidence of ownership (if applicable) [see 14 C.F.R. § 47.67]; (2) was the owner of the aircraft on the date the security agreement was signed, as shown by documents recorded at the FAA Aircraft Registry; or (3) is the vendor, bailor, or lessor under a contract of conditional sale [14 C.F.R. § 49.17(d)(1)].

- b. Name of cosigner must not appear in security agreement as debtor or owner.

NOTE:

If a person other than the registered owner signs the security agreement, that person must show the capacity in which that person signs, such as "cosigner" or "guarantor" [14 C.F.R. § 49.17(d)(2)].

- c. If instrument is assignment of interest in security agreement:

(1) Assignor must sign instrument.

(2) Unless it is attached to and is part of original agreement, instrument must describe security agreement in sufficient detail to identify it, including:

(a) Agreement's date.

(b) Names of parties.

(c) Date of FAA recording.

(d) Recorded conveyance number.

- d. If instrument is amendment of or supplement to conveyance executed for security purposes that has been recorded by FAA, instrument must:

(1) Meet requirements for recording original conveyance.

(2) Describe original conveyance in sufficient detail to identify it, including:

(a) Its date;

(b) Names of parties;

(c) Date of FAA recording; and

(d) Recorded conveyance number.

- e. If instrument is contract of conditional sale, all parties must sign it.

3. If dealing with conveyance relating to aircraft ownership or encumbrance against aircraft, confirm that following requirements are satisfied:

NOTE:

The requirements discussed below apply to the recording of the following kinds of conveyances: (1) a bill of sale, contract of conditional sale, assignment of an interest under a contract of conditional sale, mortgage, assignment of mortgage, lease, equipment trust, notice of tax lien or of other lien, or other instrument affecting title to, or any interest in, aircraft; and (2) a release, cancellation, discharge, or satisfaction of any of the above conveyances [14 C.F.R. § 49.31].

a. Document is in form prescribed by, or acceptable to, Federal Aviation Administrator for that kind of conveyance [14 C.F.R. § 49.33(a)].

b. Document describes aircraft by [14 C.F.R. § 49.33(b)]:

(1) All of following:

(a) Make and model.

(b) Manufacturer's serial number.

(c) United States registration number.

(2) Other details that make identification possible.

c. Document is original document or duplicate original, or true copy if neither original nor duplicate original is available [14 C.F.R. § 49.33(c)].

NOTE:

If a copy is submitted, it must be accompanied by a certificate of the person submitting the conveyance, stating that the copy has been compared with the original and that it is a true copy [14 C.F.R. §§ 49.21, 49.33(c)].

d. Document affects aircraft registered under Federal Aviation Act, 49 U.S.C. §§ 44101-44104 [see 14 C.F.R. § 49.33(d); see also § 102D.140].

4. Submit following to FAA Aircraft Registry:

NOTE:

The following materials must be mailed to the FAA Aircraft Registry, Department of Transportation, P.O. Box 25504, Oklahoma City, OK 73125, or delivered to the Registry at 6425 S. Denning Ave., Oklahoma City, OK 73169 [14 C.F.R. § 49.11].

a. Conveyance [14 C.F.R. § 49.11].

b. Recording fee [14 C.F.R. § 49.15(a), (c)].

NOTE:

The fee may be paid by check or money order payable to the FAA [14 C.F.R. § 49.15(c)].

There is no fee for recording a bill of sale that accompanies an application for aircraft registration and the registration fee [14 C.F.R. § 49.15(b)].

c. If seller is not shown on FAA records as owner of aircraft, bills of sale or similar documents showing consecutive transfers from last registered owner through each intervening owner [14 C.F.R. § 49.35].

5. If person submitting conveyance for recording wants FAA to return original [14 C.F.R. § 49.21]:

a. Submit true copy along with original.

NOTE:

The copy must be imprinted on paper that is permanent in nature and must include the relevant dates and signatures. After recording, the FAA will keep the copy and return the original to the applicant. The original will be stamped with the date and time of recording [14 C.F.R. § 49.21].

b. Attach certificate of person submitting conveyance, stating that copy has been compared with original and that it is true copy.

6. Immediately after satisfaction of any debt secured by a conveyance given for security purposes, or release of any of the encumbered aircraft from the conveyance, have holder [14 C.F.R. § 49.17(d)(5)]:

a. Execute release on AC Form 8050-41, Part II--Release [see § 102D.233[2]], provided to holder by FAA when conveyance was recorded by FAA, or on equivalent form.

NOTE:

If the debt is secured by more than one aircraft and all of the collateral is released, the collateral need not be described in detail in the release. However, the original conveyance must be clearly described in enough detail to identify it, including its date, the names of the parties, the date of FAA recording, and the recorded conveyance number [14 C.F.R. § 49.17(d)(5)].

b. Send release to FAA Aircraft Registry for recording.

32-102D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102D.150

§ 102D.150 Renewal of Certificate of Documentation

1. Submit official application for renewal of certificate [Coast Guard Form CG-1280] to Director, National Vessel Documentation Center, before the expiration of the year in which certificate expires [46 C.F.R. § 67.163(a), (b); see § 102D.220[1][h][ii]].

NOTE:

Unless the Certificate of Documentation has become invalid [see § 102D.220[1][i]], each endorsement on the certificate is valid for one year [46 C.F.R. § 67.163(a)]. The owner must apply for renewal of each endorsement on the certificate before the expiration of that year [46 C.F.R. § 67.163(a)].

The application must be filed with the National Vessel Documentation Center [46 C.F.R. § 67.141(a)], which is located at 2039 Stonewall Jackson Drive, Falling Waters, WV 25419-2405, telephone (304) 271-2400, fax (304) 271-2415.

2. After owner receives renewal decal, instruct owner to affix decal to certificate [46 C.F.R. § 67.163(c)].

NOTE:

On receipt of the renewal application, the National Vessel Documentation Center will forward a renewal decal to the owner [see Coast Guard Form CG-1280-A]. The presence of a current renewal decal on the certificate is evidence that the certificate has been renewed [46 C.F.R. § 67.163(c)].

§ 102D.151 Replacement of Certificate of Documentation

NOTE:

A Certificate of Documentation must be replaced when lost, mutilated, or wrongfully withheld from the vessel owner [46 C.F.R. § 67.169(a)]. On compliance with the applicable requirements, the Coast Guard will issue a new certificate [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.141 (application procedure)].

1. If certificate is lost or mutilated, advise owner to submit following to National Vessel Documentation Center [46 C.F.R. § 67.169(a); see 46 C.F.R. § 67.141 (application procedure); see also § 102D.130]:

a. Official application for replacement [see § 102D.220[2] (Form CG-1258)].

b. Original Certificate of Documentation (if mutilated) [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.169(b); 46 C.F.R. § 67.141(a)(4)].

2. If owner is alleging that certificate has been wrongfully withheld, instruct owner to [46 C.F.R. § 67.151]:

a. Submit to Director, National Vessel Documentation Center, statement setting forth reasons for that allegation.

b. On finding by Director that certificate is being wrongfully withheld, submit official application for replacement certificate [see § 102D.220[2]].

§ 102D.152 Exchange of Certificate of Documentation

1. Advise owner that certificate, together with any endorsements, becomes invalid and must be exchanged on the occurrence of any of following events [46 C.F.R. § 67.167(b); see 46 C.F.R. § 67.161 (exceptions)]:

- a. Change in ownership of vessel.
- b. Change by addition, deletion, or substitution of general partners of partnership that has obtained registry or recreational endorsement.
- c. Change in state of incorporation of vessel's corporate owner.
- d. Change in vessel's name [see P 4, below].
- e. Change in vessel's hailing port.
- f. When vessel is placed under command of person who is not United States citizen.

2. Advise owner that Certificate of Documentation, together with any of its endorsements, also becomes invalid immediately if vessel is not at sea, or on vessel's next arrival in port anywhere, on occurrence of any of following events [46 C.F.R. § 67.167(c); see 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.161, 67.167(f) (exceptions)]:

- a. Change in vessel's gross or net tonnage or its dimensions.
- b. Change by addition or substitution of restrictions imposed on vessel.

- c. Change in legal name of any owner.
- d. Change by addition, deletion, or substitution of vessel's endorsements.
- e. Discovery of substantive or clerical error by issuing documentation officer.
- f. When self-propelled vessel becomes non-self-propelled vessel, and vice versa.
- g. When any beneficiary with enforceable interest in trust arrangement changes by addition or substitution.
- h. When trustee of trust arrangement owning vessel changes by addition, substitution, or deletion.
- i. When tenant by the entirety owning any part of vessel dies.
- j. For vessel with coastwise endorsement [see 46 U.S.C. § 12112], except for vessels with coastwise endorsements in effect before February 4, 2004 [see P k, below], when:
 - (1) Demise charter expires or is transferred to another charterer.
 - (2) Citizenship of charterer or sub-charterer changes, so that charterer or sub-charterer is no longer qualified for coastwise endorsement.
 - (3) Neither person that owns vessel, nor that owner's parent, nor any subsidiary of that owner's parent, is primarily engaged in leasing or other financing transactions.
 - (4) More than half of aggregate revenues of at least one of following are derived from operation or management of vessels:
 - (A) Person that owns vessel.
 - (B) Parent of person that owns vessel.
 - (C) Group of which person that owns vessel is member.
 - (5) At least one of following is primarily engaged in operation or management of commercial foreign-flag vessels used for carriage of cargo for parties unrelated to vessel's owner or charterer:
 - (A) Person that owns vessel.
 - (B) Parent of person that owns vessel.
 - (C) Group of which person that owns vessel is member.
- k. For vessel with coastwise endorsement under 46 U.S.C. § 12112 that was in effect before February 4, 2004, when:
 - (1) Demise charter expires or is transferred to another charterer.
 - (2) Citizenship of charterer or sub-charterer changes to extent that charterer or sub-charterer is no longer qualified for coastwise endorsement.

(3) Neither person that owns vessel, nor that owner's parent, nor subsidiary of that owner's parent, is primarily engaged in leasing or other financing transactions.

NOTE:

A certificate issued to a vessel that is the subject of an outstanding mortgage recorded in accordance with the applicable regulations [see 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.231-67.245], or predecessor regulations, may not be exchanged for any of the causes enumerated in PP 1 and 2, above, with the exception of the discovery of a substantive or clerical error by the issuing documentation officer, without the mortgagee's consent [46 C.F.R. § 67.145(a)]. However, these provisions do not apply to a vessel subject only to mortgage recorded or filed before January 1, 1989, which had not attained preferred status as of that date [46 C.F.R. § 67.145(b)]. Consent of the mortgagee is evidenced by filing a properly completed original Application, Consent, and Approval for Withdrawal of Application for Documentation or Exchange of Certificate of Documentation (Coast Guard Form CG-4593) [46 C.F.R. § 67.145(c)].

3. Advise owner that, although Certificate of Documentation and any endorsements remain valid:

a. Owner must apply for exchange of certificate on election to designate new managing owner of vessel [46 C.F.R. § 67.167(d); see 46 C.F.R. § 67.113 (managing owner designation)]; and

b. Owner may apply for exchange of certificate if:

(1) Restrictions imposed on vessel change by deletion.

(2) Vessel attains special entitlement [46 C.F.R. § 67.167(d)(2); see 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.130-67.134 (forfeited, wrecked, or captured vessels)].

4. If owner elects to change name of vessel, have owner [46 C.F.R. § 67.117]:

NOTE:

The name of the vessel must be composed of letters of the Latin alphabet or Arabic or Roman numerals [46 C.F.R. § 67.117(b)(1)]. It may not be identical, actually or phonetically, to any word or words used to solicit assistance at sea [46 C.F.R. § 67.117(b)(2)], and may not contain (nor be phonetically identical to) obscene, indecent, or profane language, or to racial and ethnic epithets [46 C.F.R. § 67.117(b)(3)].

a. File official application [see § 102D.220[2] (Coast Guard Form CG-1258)].

b. If vessel is subject of outstanding mortgage of record, file original Coast Guard Form CG-4593 evidencing mortgagee consent [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.145(a)].

c. On being notified that name change has been approved, mark new name on vessel [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.123 (marking requirements)].

5. If owner elects or is required to change hailing port designation, instruct owner to [46 C.F.R. § 67.119; see 46 C.F.R. § 67.167(b)(5)]:

a. File official application [see § 102D.220[2] (Coast Guard Form CG-1258)].

b. If vessel is subject of outstanding mortgage of record, file original Coast Guard Form CG-4593 evidencing mortgagee consent [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.145(a)].

c. On being notified that change has been approved, mark new hailing port on vessel [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.123 (marking requirements)].

§ 102D.153 Deletion of Certificate of Documentation

1. Notify owner that certificate, together with any endorsements on that certificate, is invalid and vessel is subject to deletion from roll of documented vessels when [46 C.F.R. § 67.171(a); but see 46 C.F.R. § 67.161 (limited exceptions)]:

- a. Vessel is placed under foreign flag.
- b. Vessel is transferred in whole or in part to non-citizen.
- c. Any owner of vessel ceases to be citizen within meaning of regulations governing documentation [see 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.30-67.47].
- d. Owner no longer elects to document vessel.
- e. Vessel is no longer at least five net tons.
- f. Vessel ceases to be capable of transportation by water.

NOTE:

When a cause of deletion arises for any reason under PP a through f, above, the owner must send or deliver the original Certificate of Documentation to the National Vessel Documentation Center, together with a statement setting forth the reasons deletion is required [46 C.F.R. § 67.171(b)].

The National Vessel Documentation Center [46 C.F.R. § 67.141(a)] is located at 2039 Stonewall Jackson Drive, Falling Waters, WV 25419-2405, telephone (304) 271-2400, fax (304) 271-2415.

- g. Owner fails to exchange certificate as required by regulations [see § 102D.152].
- h. Owner fails to maintain markings required by regulations [see 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.120-67.125 (marking requirements for vessel documentation)].
- i. Endorsements on certificate have been revoked because vessel owner is the subject of outstanding civil penalty assessed by Coast Guard.
- j. Owner fails either to renew endorsements [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.163] or to comply with provisions governing deposit of certificate [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.165].

NOTE:

For discussion of renewal procedures, see § 102D.150.

2. If vessel has been placed under foreign flag or has been sold in whole or in part to non-citizen, instruct owner to send or deliver to National Vessel Documentation Center [46 C.F.R. § 67.171(b), (c)]:

- a. Evidence of sale or transfer, if any;
- b. Evidence that Maritime Administration has consented to transfer or sale; and
- c. Original certificate.
- d. Statement setting forth reasons deletion is required.

3. On occurrence of any other cause for deletion enumerated in PP 1a through 1f, above, instruct owner to send or deliver to National Vessel Documentation Center [46 C.F.R. § 67.171(b)]:

- a. Original certificate.
- b. Statement setting forth reasons deletion is required.

NOTE:

A certificate evidencing deletion from United States documentation will be issued on the request of the vessel owner to the National Vessel Documentation Center on compliance with the applicable requirements [46 C.F.R. § 67.171(d)].

4. Advise owner that vessel may be redocumented following deletion of its certificate if reason for deletion no longer exists [see § 102D.220[2], P I(J) (CG Form-1258)].

PART IV. FORMS
A. Vehicles

32-102D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102D.200

§ 102D.200 Application for Title or Registration [DMV Form Reg. 343]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is the official Application for Title or Registration of a motor vehicle. It is for use to obtain a title or California registration for a vehicle that is "off the record," that is, for example, a vehicle that is registered in another state or country, or one which has no title or registration because it was built from a kit, or a vehicle which has been "totaled" by an insurance company and must be retitled and reregistered as a different entity (a "salvaged 1994 Ford Taurus," rather than the original "1994 Ford Taurus"). The form is available from the California Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV). Forms are also available on the DMV website, which is located at www.dmv.ca.gov.

A vehicle [see [b], below] must be registered and the registration fees paid [see Veh. Code §§ 9250-9271], or registered under the permanent trailer identification program, before it can be lawfully driven, moved, or left standing on a highway or in an off-street public parking facility [Veh. Code § 4000(a)(1); see Veh. Code § 5014.1(a) (types of trailers to be assigned permanent trailer identification certificate and plate)].

Although this form may also be used as an application for title or registration of an undocumented vessel [see [2], below], it is designed for use by vehicles. For the application for a certificate of ownership and registration of an undocumented vessel with the DMV, it is preferable to use the Application for Registration Number, Certificate of Ownership, and Certificate of Number of Undocumented Vessels (DMV Form Boat 101). For discussion and a copy of that form, see § 102D.210.

[b] Definitions

For purposes of the registration of vehicles with the DMV, the term "vehicle" means a device by which any person or property may be propelled, moved, or drawn on a highway (other than a device moved exclusively by human power or used on stationary rails or tracks) [Veh. Code § 670]. A "motor vehicle" is a vehicle that is self-propelled. However, a self-propelled wheelchair, motorized tricycle, or motorized quadricycle, when operated by a person who, by reason of physical disability, is otherwise unable to move about as a pedestrian, is not a "motor vehicle" [Veh. Code § 415(a), (b)]. For purposes of the New Motor Vehicle Board and related statutes [see Veh. Code § 3000 et seq.], "motor vehicle" also includes a recreational vehicle [see Health & Safety Code § 18010(a) (definition)], but does not include a camper truck or park trailer [Veh. Code § 415(c)].

The Vehicle Code defines the following types of vehicle owners: "owners," "legal owners," and "registered owners." An "owner" of a vehicle is any of the following [Veh. Code § 460]:

- A person having all the incidents of ownership, including the legal title of a vehicle, whether or not he or she lends, rents, or creates a security interest in the vehicle;
- The person entitled to the possession of a vehicle as the purchaser under a security agreement; or
- The State of California, a county, city, district, or political subdivision of the state, or the United States, when entitled to possession and use of a vehicle under a lease, lease-sale, or rental-purchase agreement for 30 consecutive days or more.

A "legal owner" of a vehicle is a person holding a security interest in a vehicle that is subject to the Uniform Commercial Code (UCC) [see Ch. 42, Secured Transactions (security interests under the UCC)]. That term also includes a lessor under a lease, lease-sale, or rental-purchase agreement that grants possession of a vehicle to any of following lessees for 30 consecutive days or more: (1) the State of California; (2) any county, city, district, or political subdivision of California; or (3) the United States [Veh. Code § 370].

A "registered owner" is the person registered by the DMV as the owner of the vehicle [Veh. Code § 505].

[c] Application for Original Registration

[i] Vehicles Other Than Motorcycles

An application for the original registration of a vehicle other than a motorcycle [see [ii], below] must be submitted to the DMV by the owner of the vehicle on the application form furnished by the DMV (this form). The application must contain all of the following [Veh. Code § 4150]:

- The true, full name, business or residence and mailing address, and driver's license or identification card number, if any, of the owner.
- The true, full name, business or residence and mailing address of the legal owner, if any.
- The name of the county in which the owner resides. (Note that a place for the owner's county of residence is not provided on the revised form in [2], below, but may be inserted after the name of the city of residence).
- A description of the vehicle, including the following data insofar as they may exist: the make, model, and type of body; the vehicle identification number or any other identifying number required by the DMV; and the date first sold by a manufacturer, remanufacturer, or dealer to a consumer.
- Any other information reasonably required by the DMV to enable it to determine whether or not the vehicle is lawfully entitled to registration.

[ii] Motorcycles

This form also serves as the official application for the original registration of a motorcycle. The owner of the motorcycle must set forth all of the following information on this form [Veh. Code § 4150.2]:

- The true, full name, business or residence and mailing address, and driver's license or identification card number of the owner.
- The true, full name, business or residence and mailing address of the legal owner, if any.
- The name of the county in which the owner resides. (Note that a place for the owner's county of residence is not provided on the revised form in [2], below, but may be inserted after the name of the city of residence).
- A description of the motorcycle, including the following data insofar as they exist: the make and type of body; the manufacturer's motor and vehicle identification numbers recorded exactly as they appear on the engine and frame, respectively, and any other identifying number of the motorcycle required by the DMV; and the date first sold by a manufacturer, remanufacturer, or dealer to a consumer.
- Any other information reasonably required by the DMV to enable it to determine whether the vehicle is lawfully entitled to registration.

[d] Preparation of Form

This form is to be complete by the party applying for title or registration. The form is generally submitted with other supporting documents. For example, in the case of an out-of-state vehicle being registered in California for the first time, the DMV requires the out-of-state registration certificate, out-of-state title (if available), evidence of the California Smog Certification, and an odometer mileage certification, as well as the appropriate fee. Information on these requirements is available on the DMV website [see [a], above] or by contacting the DMV directly.

[e] Certificate of Compliance

At the time of the initial registration or the transfer of ownership and registration of any motor vehicle subject to the registration requirements of the Vehicle Code, the applicant must furnish a valid certificate of compliance issued by a licensed smog check station and signed by a licensed inspector [Veh. Code § 4000.1(a)]. For further discussion, see §§ 102D.110, 102D.111.

§ 102D.201 Vehicle/Vessel Transfer Form (Bill of Sale, Odometer Disclosure, Power of Attorney) [DMV Form Reg. 262]

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a notice to the California Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) of the sale or transfer of a vehicle or an undocumented vessel. The form includes a bill of sale [Section 2], buyer and seller information [Section 5], an odometer disclosure statement [Section 3], and a power of attorney [Section 4]. This form is not the ownership certificate ("pink slip"), and does not operate as a transfer of ownership. It must accompany the ownership certificate or application for a duplicate certificate [see [2], below (Instructions)], and is submitted to the DMV by the transferee.

The form is available from the DMV. Forms are also available on the DMV's website at www.dmv.ca.gov.

The bill of sale may be used as the proof of ownership that must be filed along with an application for a vessel registration number [see 13 Cal. Code Reg. § 190.02(a); see also § 102D.210[1][d][ii]].

For the steps that must be taken to complete a transfer of ownership of a vehicle or undocumented vessel, see §§ 102D.111 and 102D.121, respectively.

For a Notice of Release of Liability that the transferor must file, see § 102D.202.

32-102D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102D.202

§ 102D.202 Notice of Release of Liability [DMV Form Reg. 138]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice of release of liability to the California Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) on the sale or transfer of a vehicle or an undocumented vessel.

The form is available from the DMV. Forms are also available on the DMV's website at www.dmv.ca.gov.

[b] Notice Requirements for Vehicles

An owner of a vehicle [see Veh. Code § 460 ("owner" defined)] registered under the Vehicle Code who sells or transfers his or her title or interest in the vehicle and delivers possession to the purchaser must, within five calendar days of the transfer and delivery, notify the DMV of that sale or transfer. The notice must include the date of the sale or transfer, the name and address of the owner and of the transferee, and a description of the vehicle [Veh. Code § 5900(a); see Veh. Code § 5901 (similar requirements governing notices by dealers and lessor-retailers)]. The owner must also state the vehicle's odometer reading at the time of sale or transfer. [Veh. Code § 5900(b); see 49 U.S.C. § 32705(a) (requiring written disclosure of cumulative mileage on vehicle's odometer or disclosure that actual mileage is unknown if transferor knows odometer reading is not accurate)]. However, if the owner has knowledge that the reading is incorrect, he or she must indicate the true mileage, if known [Veh. Code § 5900(b)].

If the registered owner (that is, the person registered by the DMV as the owner of the vehicle) [Veh. Code § 505] is not in possession of the vehicle that is being sold or transferred, the person in physical possession of the vehicle must give this notice [Veh. Code § 5900(c)].

[c] Notice Requirements for Vessels

An owner of an undocumented vessel numbered under the Vehicle Code [see Veh. Code § 9850] who sells or transfers all or part of his or her title or interest in the vessel and delivers possession of the vessel to another must submit this form to the DMV within five calendar days to notify the DMV of the sale or transfer [Veh. Code § 9911]. The notice must give the date of the sale or transfer, the name and address of the owner and of the transferee, and a description of the vessel [Veh. Code § 9911; see Veh. Code § 9912 (requirements governing notice by dealers)].

The transferor or transferee must also complete and sign a written statement that contains specified information regarding the transfer, including a statement of the total consideration (valued in money) given for the transfer [see Veh. Code § 9903(a)]. The application for boat registration number [see § 102D.210] elicits that information.

[d] Liability for Subsequent Acts--Vehicles

A vehicle owner who has made a bona fide sale or transfer of a vehicle and has delivered possession of the vehicle to the new owner is no longer the owner of the vehicle and may not be subject thereafter to civil or criminal liability for the parking, abandoning, or operation of the vehicle if the selling or transferring owner either (1) properly endorses and delivers the certificate of ownership as provided in the Vehicle Code or (2) delivers to the DMV or places in the United States mail, addressed to the DMV, either the notice contained in this form [see Veh. Code § 5900 (or if a dealer or lessor-retailer, the notice required by Veh. Code § 4456(b) or 5901); see also [2], below] or appropriate documents and fees for registration of the vehicle to the new owner pursuant to the sale or transfer [Veh. Code § 5602].

[e] Liability for Subsequent Acts--Vessels

An owner of an undocumented vessel who has made a bona fide sale or transfer of the vessel and has delivered possession of the vessel to the purchaser will be relieved of civil liability for the operation of the vessel thereafter by another person if the owner has fulfilled either of the following requirements: (1) properly endorsed and delivered the certificate of ownership or (2) delivered or mailed to the DMV either the notice of sale required by Veh. Code § 9911 or 9912 using this form or appropriate documents for the transfer of the vessel pursuant to the sale or transfer [Veh. Code § 9905].

32-102D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102D.210

§ 102D.210 Application for Registration Number, Certificate of Ownership, and Certificate of Number of Undocumented Vessel [DMV Form Boat 101]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is an official application for a boat registration number, a certificate of ownership, and certificate of number for an undocumented vessel. This form may be used to obtain the original certificate of ownership [see [c], below], the original registration of the vessel [see [d], below], or submitted in connection with the transfer of a registered vessel [see [e], below].

Although the official Application for Title or Registration [DMV Form Reg. 343] ostensibly may be used for the original title or registration of vessels as well as for vehicles [see § 102D.200[1][a]], the DMV prefers that this form be used for those purposes.

Every undocumented vessel operated on the waters of the State of California must be numbered, either in accordance with the provisions of the Vehicle Code, with federal law, or with the laws of another state [Veh. Code § 9850]. The DMV is responsible for numbering vessels under the Vehicle Code [see Veh. Code § 9853.1]. For discussion of the federal documentation requirements, see § 102D.220[1].

For more detailed descriptions of the types of vessels that are subject to or exempt from registration with the DMV, see § 102D.101. For a procedural guide to the registration and transfer processes, see §§ 102D.120 and 102D.121, respectively. For a transfer form, including a bill of sale, and a notice of release of liability that may be used for any vehicle or vessel that has been registered with the DMV, see §§ 102D.201 and 102D.202, respectively.

[b] Definitions

An undocumented vessel is any vessel that is not required to and does not have a valid marine document issued by the Bureau of Customs of the United States or its successor, the United States Coast Guard [Veh. Code § 9840(g); see Veh.

Code § 9840(a) ("vessel" defined)].

Three types of owners are subject to the laws governing the registration of undocumented vessels:

- Owners.
- Legal owners.
- Registered owners.

An "owner" is the person having all the incidents of ownership (including the legal title) of a vessel, whether or not that person lends, rents, or pledges the vessel; the person entitled to the possession of a vessel as the purchaser under a conditional sale contract; or the mortgagor of a vessel. "Owner" does not include a person holding legal title to a vessel under a conditional sales contract, the mortgagee of a vessel, or the renter or lessor of a vessel to the state or to any county, city, district, or political subdivision of the state under a lease, lease-sale, or rental-purchase agreement that grants possession of the vessel to the lessee for a period of at least 30 consecutive days [Veh. Code § 9840(b)].

A "legal owner" is the person holding the legal title to a vessel under a conditional sale contract, the mortgagee of a vessel, or the renter or lessor of a vessel to the state, or to any county, city, district, or political subdivision of the state, under a lease, lease-sale, or rental-purchase agreement that grants possession of the vessel to the lessee for a period of at least 30 consecutive days [Veh. Code § 9840(c)].

A "registered owner" is the person registered by the DMV as the owner of the vessel [Veh. Code § 9840(d)].

[c] Certificate of Ownership

On receipt of the application in approved form [see [2], below], the DMV will issue a certificate of ownership to the legal owner [Veh. Code § 9853.1]. The certificate of ownership ("pink slip") is evidence of title to the vessel.

[d] Initial Application for Certificate of Number

[i] In General

The owner of a vessel that must be numbered by the State of California must file an initial application in approved form for a number with the DMV [Veh. Code § 9853.1; see [2], below]. The official application must set forth the hull identification number and contain the true name and address of the owner and of the legal owner, if any [see 13 Cal. Code Reg. § 190.10]. The boat registration number is the number (beginning with CF) shown on the certificates [see Cal. Dept. of Motor Vehicles, ABCs of the California Boating Law].

[ii] Proof of Ownership

The applicant must submit proof of ownership of the vessel at the time this application is filed [see Veh. Code § 9852]. Proof of ownership may be established by one of the following [13 Cal. Code Reg. § 190.02]:

- A bill of sale executed by the seller and showing the name and address of the seller, purchaser, and legal owner (if any); the location and date of sale; and a description of the vessel.
- A certificate of sale executed by the seller under oath and showing the information required to be shown on a bill of sale [see [2], P 5(A), below].
- A properly endorsed document indicating title, if the vessel has been numbered and issued a title by another state.

- If none of the first three options noted above is appropriate, an affidavit executed by the applicant and fully setting forth the facts to support the applicant's claim of ownership [see [2], P 5(B), below]. Affidavits for materials used in the construction of homemade boats must be supported with bills of sale for major components.

- If a dealer is applying for original registration and lists himself or herself as the owner of the vessel and the vessel is obtained through the dealer's inventory, the dealer must submit a certificate of origin, bill of lading, or invoice describing the vessel.

This form provides for the use of either a certificate of sale or a statement. DMV Form Reg. 262, Vehicle/Vessel Transfer Form (Bill of Sale) [see § 102D.201[2]] may also be used as the proof of ownership that must be filed along with an application for a vessel certificate of number [see 13 Cal. Code Reg. § 190.02; see also § 102D.201[1]].

[iii] Submission of Form and Issuance of Certificates

On receipt of an acceptable application and the required fees, the DMV will issue a certificate of ownership to the legal owner and a certificate of number to the owner. If there is no legal owner, the DMV will issue both of those documents to the owner [Veh. Code § 9853.1]. For discussion of marking and inspection requirements relating to the registration number and the certificate of number [see Veh. Code § 9853.2], see 102D.120.

[e] Change of Ownership

If the title to, or any interest in, an undocumented vessel numbered under the Vehicle Code is being transferred, and the certificate of ownership is available, the transferee must submit the certificate, the applicable fee [see Veh. Code §§ 9855, 9901], and this application form to the DMV [Veh. Code §§ 9855, 9900, 9901]. The parties must pay delinquent property taxes on the vessel [Veh. Code § 9900]. The DMV, on receipt of a properly endorsed certificate of ownership and a new application form and the required fee, will issue a new certificate of ownership and a new certificate of number in the same manner as provided for in the initial issuance of number [Veh. Code § 9902; see [c], [d], above]. The same number may be reassigned to the new owner [see Veh. Code § 9902].

If the certificate of ownership is unavailable, the transferee should follow the steps outlined in § 102D.121, P 3.

The owner-transferor must also provide the DMV with a written notice of the sale or transfer [see Veh. Code § 9911; see also § 102D.202]. Finally, either the transferor or transferee must complete and sign a written statement that sets forth the following information:

- The date of the sale or other transfer.
- The name and address of the owner and of the transferee.
- The total consideration (valued in money) given for the sale or other transfer, including the consideration for any motor or other component part of the vessel included in the transfer [Veh. Code § 9903(a)].

This form elicits that information [see [2], P 5, below].

PART IV. FORMS
B. Undocumented Vessels

32-102D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102D.211

§ 102D.211 Vessel Purchase Agreement

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a contract for the purchase of a vessel. It is for use by the buyer or seller, if the transaction is being handled without a broker. If a brokerage firm has been engaged to sell the boat, the firm will use its own contract.

For a procedural guide to the transfer of undocumented vessels, see § 102D.121. For discussion of the steps involved in registering a undocumented vessel, see § 102D.120. For a procedural guide to the documentation and recording of instruments affecting documented vessels, see §§ 102D.130-102D.131.

[b] Additional Considerations

For both legal and practical reasons, it is essential to ensure that any delinquent property taxes on vessel have been paid [Veh. Code § 9900] and that the vessel is being transferred free of all other debts, claims, liens, taxes, and any other kinds of encumbrances [see [2], P 8, below; see also § 102D.131 (recording and removing encumbrances on documented vessels)].

From a practical point of view, the buyer will want to ensure that, before purchase, he or she has the boat surveyed by a licensed marine surveyor. Such a survey usually entails a haulout, since an out-of-water survey ordinarily is required to fully inspect and determine the condition of the vessel. Traditionally, it is the buyer's responsibility to pay for the haulout and survey. Agents who sell marine insurance generally can provide the names of licensed marine surveyors.

[c] Removal of Hull Identification Number

It is unlawful to buy, sell, offer for sale, receive, or possess any vessel or component of a vessel from which the hull identification number has been removed, defaced, altered, or destroyed. This prohibition does not apply if a hull identification number that has been approved by the DMV is attached to the vessel or component part in lieu of the manufacturer's number [Veh. Code § 9872.1(a)].

[2] FORM

Vessel Purchase Agreement

Purchase Agreement

This Agreement is made on _____ [date], between _____ [name of seller] (Seller), who is the owner of the [year of manufacture], [name of manufacturer or designer], Yacht or Vessel called _____ [name], [hull identification number], of an overall length of approximately [feet] (Vessel), and _____ [name of buyer] (Buyer).

1. The Seller agrees to sell, and the Buyer agrees to buy the Vessel, subject to the terms and conditions contained in this Agreement.

2. The gross purchase price of the Vessel is $ _____. On the signing of this Agreement by the Buyer, the Buyer will pay a deposit of $ _____ to the Seller. This deposit will be held in trust or escrow by the Seller, subject to the terms of the Agreement. [Add if desired: The deposit will be increased to $ _____ on _____ (date).]

3. The offer is withdrawn if not accepted by [time] p.m., on _____ [date].

4. The Seller offers details of the Vessel in good faith but cannot guarantee the accuracy of this information nor warrant the condition of the Vessel. It is agreed that the Buyer will instruct his or her agents or surveyors to investigate all details as to which the Buyer desires validation, including inventory of the Vessel, at the Buyer's own cost.

5. The purchase of the vessel is subject to (a) demonstration of Vessel and equipment by Seller or his or her appointed operators; (b) haulout and surveys; (c) [add other contingency, as necessary] to be completed as soon as practical after the execution of this Agreement, at the option and expense of the Buyer.

It is agreed that the Buyer may instruct his or her agents or surveyors to examine the Vessel to ensure that the Vessel and all its equipment meets the Buyer's requirements. The Buyer acknowledges that the surveyor(s) to be selected by him or her will be employed solely by the Buyer. The Seller is not responsible for any errors or omissions of the surveyors, although the Seller may have suggested the name of the surveyor and may have engaged him or her on behalf of the Buyer at the Buyer's request.

Should the Buyer operate the Vessel at any time, the Seller will hold the Buyer harmless, and the Seller's insurance will be primary.

6. The Buyer must give written acceptance or rejection of the Vessel and remove all contingencies by _____ [date]. On acceptance of the Vessel by the Buyer and consummation of this transaction, the Buyer agrees that the purchase is on an "AS IS" basis, and no warranty, either express or implied, and no representation as to the condition of the Vessel has been made, or is binding on the Seller. If the Buyer rejects the Vessel, the Seller must return the Buyer's deposit, minus any survey or repair costs, fees, or debts against the Vessel incurred by the Seller. Buyer's acceptance of the Vessel binds the deposit.

7. If, after written acceptance of the Vessel, the Buyer fails to pay the balance of the purchase price and execute all papers that must be executed by him or her for the completion of the purchase, in accordance with the terms of this Agreement, on or before _____ [date], the Seller may retain the sum paid as of this date, and the parties will be relieved of all obligations under the Agreement.

8. The Vessel is being sold and purchased free and clear of debts, claims, liens, taxes and encumbrances of any kind. The Seller warrants that he or she has good and marketable title to the Vessel and the lawful right to sell the Vessel and will deliver all necessary documents for the transfer of title to the Buyer. The actual date of the consummation of the sale will be the date on which the Buyer's total funds have been cleared and collected in negotiable legal tender, and the Buyer has received the documents of title from the Seller, properly executed for transfer and delivery to the Buyer.

9. This Agreement will take effect when signed by the Buyer and the Seller. Although the Vessel may continue to be shown, the Seller agrees not to enter into any other contract for the sale of the Vessel while this Agreement is in effect.

10. On or before the date set forth above for final payment, delivery of the Vessel will be made at [location], together with all gear, machinery, equipment, furnishings, and all other articles belonging to the Vessel. The actual legal closing of the transaction will occur at [location].

11. The risk of loss, damage, storage, supervision, operation, or destruction of the Vessel will be borne by the Seller until this transaction is consummated. In the event that this sale is not consummated due to loss, damage, or destruction of the Vessel, all expenses incurred against the Vessel by the Buyer will be paid from the deposit, and the balance returned to the Buyer, and this Agreement will be null and void.

12. This Agreement is binding on the Seller and on the Buyer and on their spouses, heirs, executors, and assigns as soon as this Agreement is executed by both Seller and Buyer.

13. Should a dispute occur between any parties to this Agreement for any reason, independent binding arbitration to be held in [county] will decide the issues, with [Buyer and Seller dividing the cost of that arbitration equally or the losing party being responsible for the cost of that arbitration].

14. All sales and use taxes imposed on this purchase are the responsibility of the Buyer, and the Buyer agrees to indemnify the Seller for the payment of those taxes. Any duties, taxes, or fees on the Vessel of any country, state, city, regulatory or taxing authority, incurred before or at the closing date of this transaction will be the responsibility of the Seller, and it will be the responsibility of the Seller to obtain validation of any such payment. If permission of any authority is necessary to purchase this Vessel, it will be the responsibility of the Buyer to obtain that permission in advance of closing.

[EITHER]

15. Personal property tax or its equivalent due before closing will be paid and will be the responsibility of the Seller.

[OR]

15. At the option of either party, the personal property tax may be prorated for the taxing year January 1, [year] to December 31, [year]. The Seller is charged for the period from closing back to January 1, [year]. The Buyer is charged for the closing date to December 31, [year]. The estimated tax for computation purposes is $_____.

[CONTINUE]

16. This Agreement and any succeeding Agreements or Exhibits and Addenda may be executed or approved by facsimile (fax) transaction. Signatures and material received in this manner are acceptable and binding on both parties, with the exception of the final closing papers, title or recordable documents.

17. if the Buyer fails to complete the purchase, all surveys, analysis, and data rendered will become the property of the [Seller or Buyer].

18. The Seller agrees not to remove any items from the Vessel after acceptance of this Agreement except purely personal effects. The only other items removed are those noted as "excluded" and itemized as part of this Agreement.

19. This document and its executed Addenda attached, if any, constitute the entire agreement between the Seller and Buyer. It is agreed that there are no other duties or warranties implied or express.

20. Buyer's payment will be made by cashier's check or wire with 24 to 48 hours to clear.

21. Specifications or Inventory of the Vessel are attached.

22. [I or WE] HAVE READ AND UNDERSTOOD ALL THE TERMS AND CONDITIONS CONCERNING THE PURCHASE AND SALE OF THE ABOVE-DESCRIBED VESSEL, AND ACCEPT ALL OF THOSE TERMS.

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is the official application for the documentation of a vessel by the United States Coast Guard, together with the official instructions for the completion of the form. Documentation is required for the operation of vessels in certain trades, serves as evidence of vessel nationality, and permits vessels to be subject to preferred mortgages [46 C.F.R. § 67.1]. The form also serves as an application for a change in the documented status of a vessel [see [d][ix], below].

For registration of vessels that are not subject to the federal documentation laws, see § 102D.210. For a contract for the purchase of a vessel, see § 102D.211.

[b] Eligibility for Documentation

Certificates of documentation are issued only to vessels that are wholly owned by United States citizens [46 U.S.C. § 12103(a)(1), (b); 46 C.F.R. § 67.5; see 46 U.S.C. § 104 ("citizen of the United States" defined); see also 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.30-67.47 (citizenship requirements for vessel documentation)] and that meet specific criteria. As a general rule, vessels of five or more net tons that engage in the fisheries [see 46 U.S.C. § 108; 46 C.F.R. § 67.3 ("fisheries" defined)], on the navigable waters of the United States or in the Exclusive Economic Zone or coastwise trade must be documented [46 U.S.C. § 12102; 46 C.F.R. § 67.7; see 46 C.F.R. § 67.9(c) (exception for non-self propelled vessels under certain circumstances); see also 46 C.F.R. § 67.3 ("Exclusive Economic Zone" defined); § 102D.102, PP 1, 2 (definitions)].

Other vessels that satisfy these weight and ownership requirements are eligible for documentation [see 46 U.S.C. § 12103(a)]. This group includes vessels used exclusively for recreational purposes [46 C.F.R. § 67.5]. Owners of pleasure vessels have the option of having their vessels documented by the Coast Guard or registered with the DMV [see § 102D.11[1]].

Finally, although the Coast Guard regulations group vessels used in foreign trade with vessels used exclusively for pleasure, thus suggesting that federal documentation is optional [see 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.5, 67.17(b)], the Coast Guard has indicated that vessels used in foreign trade must be documented before they may be operated in waters that fall within the jurisdiction of the Coast Guard. For further discussion of vessels that are subject to or exempt from the federal documentation requirements, see § 102D.102.

[c] Official Instructions

Official instructions for the completing this form [see Instructions for Completing Form CG-1258] are reproduced immediately following the application. Those instructions are discussed throughout this comment.

[d] Contents of Application for Documentation

[i] Vessel Name

The owner must set forth the present name of vessel on the application [46 C.F.R. § 67.117(a); see [2], P I(A), below]. The name of the vessel must be composed of letters of the Latin alphabet or Arabic or Roman numerals [46 C.F.R. § 67.117(b)(1)]. It may not be identical, actually or phonetically, to any word or words used to solicit assistance at sea [46 C.F.R. § 67.117(b)(2)], and may not contain (nor be phonetically identical to) obscene, indecent, or profane language, or to racial and ethnic epithets [46 C.F.R. § 67.117(b)(3)]. These restrictions, however, do not apply to vessels validly documented before January 1, 1994, until the owner elects to change the name of the vessel [46 C.F.R. § 67.117(d)]. If applying to change the vessel's name, insert the old vessel name in parenthesis [see [2], below (Instructions--Form CG-1258)].

[ii] Official Number

The application requires the official number assigned by Coast Guard, for all but initial issue cases [see [2], P I(B) and Instructions, below; see also 46 C.F.R. § 67.111(b)]. If the vessel has been assigned a hull identification number, it should be shown [see [2], Instructions, below].

[iii] Managing Owner's Name and Tax Identification Number

The application requires the managing owner's name and social security or tax identification number [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.113(a), (b); see also [2], P I(C)]. A telephone number, although not required, is helpful [see [2], Instructions, below]. The managing owner is the person to whom the Coast Guard will send correspondence and notices [see [2], Instructions, below].

The managing owner of a vessel owned by one person is the owner of the vessel [46 C.F.R. § 67.113(a)]. The managing owner of a vessel owned by more than one person must be one of the owners [46 C.F.R. § 67.113(b)]. The managing owner of a vessel owned in a trust arrangement must be one of the trustees [46 C.F.R. § 67.113(c)]. For vessels owned by a limited liability company (LLC), the name of the LLC should be shown [see [2], Instructions, below].

[iv] Managing Owner's Address

The application requires the address of the managing owner [see [2], P I(D), below], as follows [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.113(d); see also [2], Instructions, below]:

- For an individual, enter any residential address. If the managing owner's physical (street) address is different from his or her mailing address, show both addresses.
- If partnership owns vessel, enter either the address in the state under which it is organized or the address of its principal place of business.

- If corporation owns vessel, enter either the address for service of process in its state of incorporation or the address of its principal place of business.

The person designated as the managing owner must have an address in the United States, unless no owner of the vessel has an address in the United States [46 C.F.R. § 67.113(b)].

[v] Hailing Port

The application requires the designation of a hailing port, including the state [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.119(a), (b); see also [2], P I(F) and Instructions, below].

A vessel's hailing port must be a place in the United States included in the United States Department of Commerce Federal Information Processing Standards Publication 55DC, which sets forth specific rules to determine a vessel's hailing port [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.119(b)].

A Certificate of Documentation, together with any of its endorsements, becomes invalid immediate once a designated hailing port changes [see [2], Instructions, below].

[vi] Citizenship Requirements

The form requires that the appropriate boxes be checked to show the type of entity that owns vessel and certify that the owners meet the citizenship requirements for that type of entity [see [2], P I(G) and Instructions, below; see also 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.30-67.45 (citizenship requirements)].

[vii] Endorsements

The application requires indication of the intended use or uses of vessel [46 U.S.C. § 12105(a); 46 C.F.R. § 67.15(b); see [2], P I(H), below]:

- Registry (i.e., foreign trade).
- Coastwise trade.
- Fishery.
- Recreational.

On qualification of an application for documentation, the Secretary of Transportation will issue a Certificate of Documentation, or a temporary Certificate of Documentation (Coast Guard Form CG-1270). The certificate will be endorsed with one or more of the endorsements listed above [46 U.S.C. § 12105(a); 46 C.F.R. § 67.15(b), (c); see § 102D.102, PP 1, 2].

[viii] Primary Service

The application requires indication of the vessel's primary service [see [2], P I(I), below]. Only one primary service may be indicated [see [2], Instructions, below].

[ix] Purpose of Application

The application may be used for the following purposes:

- Exchange of Certificate of Documentation.
- Replacement of lost, wrongfully held, or mutilated certificate.
- Return of documentation following deletion.
- Application for official number and first certificate of documentation.

In the case of an application for an initial Certificate of Documentation, specified information about the vessel, including its date and place of construction, hull material, approximate length, and any previous name, numbers, or foreign registrations, must be provided [see [2], P I(J), below].

[x] Certification

The person(s) signing the application (for example, the owner, agent, trustee, general partner, or corporate officer) must certify that they meet the citizenship requirements [see [vi], above] and that the vessel has been, or will be, marked in accordance with the Instruction Sheet [see [2], Instructions, below; 46 C.F.R. § 67.141(c); see also 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.120-67.125 (marking requirements for vessel documentation)].

[e] Required Attachments to Application

The owner of a vessel applying for documentation must submit the following with the application:

- Title evidence, if applicable [46 C.F.R. § 67.141(a)(2)].
- Mortgagee consent, if applicable [46 C.F.R. § 67.141(a)(3) (Form CG-4593)].
- Outstanding Certificate of Documentation, if application is for replacement of a mutilated document or exchange of documentation [47 C.F.R. § 67.141(a)(4)].

Title evidence is required in the following circumstances [46 C.F.R. § 67.50; see 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.53 (methods of establishing title), 67.57-67.63 (extent of title evidence required in various circumstances)]:

- When application is made for a coastwise endorsement for a vessel that has not been previously qualified for such an endorsement [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.19 ("coastwise" endorsement defined)].
- For initial documentation of a vessel.
- When the ownership of a documented vessel changes in whole or in part.
- When the general partners of a partnership owning a vessel change by addition, deletion, or substitution, without dissolution of the partnership.
- When a vessel that has been deleted from documentation is returned to documentation and there has been an intervening change in ownership.

[f] Where to File Application

The application must be filed with the National Vessel Documentation Center [46 C.F.R. § 67.141(a)], which is located at 2039 Stonewall Jackson Drive, Falling Waters, WV 25419-2405, telephone (304) 271-2400, fax (304) 271-2415.

[g] Restriction on Withdrawal of Application

A vessel owner making application for a Certificate of Documentation may not withdraw that application without mortgagee consent if a mortgage has been filed against the vessel [46 C.F.R. § 67.143]. Consent of the mortgagee is evidenced by filing a properly completed original Application, Consent, and Approval for Withdrawal of Application for Documentation or Exchange of Certificate of Documentation (Coast Guard Form CG-4593) [46 C.F.R. § 67.143].

[h] Certificate of Documentation

[i] Issuance and Types of Endorsements

On approval of an application for documentation (this form), the Secretary of Transportation will issue a Certificate of Documentation or a temporary Certificate of Documentation. The certificate will be endorsed for operation under one or more of the following types of endorsements: registry (for foreign trade); coastwise, fishery, or recreational license [46 C.F.R. § 67.15(b); see 46 U.S.C. § 12105(a); see also [2], P I(H), below (applicant must specify intended use(s) of vessel)].

[ii] Period of Validity and Renewal

Unless the Certificate of Documentation has become invalid [see [i], below], endorsements on the certificate are valid for one year [46 C.F.R. § 67.163(a)]. The owner of a vessel that is not exempt from the requirement of documentation [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.9 (exemption for non-self propelled vessels under certain circumstances)] must apply for renewal of each endorsement by executing an original Notice of Expiration [see Coast Guard Form CG-1280] or Final Notice After Expiration [see Coast Guard Form CG-1280-B], certifying that the information contained in the Certificate of Documentation and any endorsements remains accurate, and that the certificate has not been lost, mutilated, or wrongfully withheld. The completed form must be forwarded to the National Vessel Documentation Center [46 C.F.R. § 67.163(b)].

The owner must affix the renewal decal to the Certificate of Documentation. The presence of a current renewal decal on the certificate is evidence that the certificate has been renewed [46 C.F.R. § 67.163(c)]. The owner of a vessel that is exempt from the requirements of documentation has the option of applying for renewal of any endorsement as described above, or of placing the Certificate of Documentation on deposit in accordance with 46 C.F.R. § 67.165 [46 C.F.R. § 67.163(a)(1), (2)].

[i] Exchange of Certificate

[i] When Certificate Must Be Exchanged

A Certificate of Documentation, together with any endorsements, becomes invalid and must be exchanged on the occurrence of any of the following events [46 C.F.R. § 67.167(b); see 46 C.F.R. § 67.161 (exceptions)]:

- A change in the ownership of the vessel.
- A change by addition, deletion, or substitution of the general partners of a partnership that has obtained a registry or recreational endorsement.
- A change in the state of incorporation of the corporate owner of the vessel.

- A change in the name of the vessel.
- A change in the hailing port of the vessel.
- When the vessel is placed under the command of a person who is not a United States citizen.

A Certificate of Documentation, together with any of its endorsements, also becomes invalid immediately if the vessel is not at sea, or on the vessel's next arrival in port anywhere in the world on the occurrence of any of the following events [46 C.F.R. § 67.167(c); see 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.161, 67.167(f) (exceptions)]:

- A change in the vessel's gross or net tonnage or its dimensions.
- A change by addition or substitution of restrictions imposed on the vessel.
- A change in the legal name of any owner.
- A change by addition, deletion, or substitution of the vessel's endorsements.
- The discovery of a substantive or clerical error by the issuing documentation officer.
- When a self-propelled vessel becomes non-self-propelled vessel, and vice versa.
- When any beneficiary with an enforceable interest in a trust arrangement changes by addition or substitution, or the trustee of a trust arrangement owning a vessel changes by addition, substitution, or deletion.
- When a tenant by the entirety owning any part of the vessel dies.
- For a vessel with a coastwise endorsement [see 46 U.S.C. § 12112], except for vessels with coastwise endorsements in effect before February 4, 2004, when:
 - The demise charter expires or is transferred to another charterer.
 - The citizenship of the charterer or sub-charterer changes, so that the charterer or sub-charterer is no longer qualified for a coastwise endorsement.
 - Neither the person that owns vessel, nor that owner's parent, nor any subsidiary of that owner's parent, is primarily engaged in leasing or other financing transactions.
 - More than half of the aggregate revenues of at least one of the following are derived from the operation or management of vessels:
 - The person that owns vessel.
 - The parent of the person that owns vessel.
 - The group of which the person that owns vessel is a member.
 - At least one of the following is primarily engaged in the operation or management of commercial foreign-flag vessels used for the carriage of cargo for parties unrelated to the vessel's owner or charterer:

- The person that owns vessel.
 - The parent of the person that owns vessel.
 - The group of which the person that owns vessel is a member.
- For a vessel with a coastwise endorsement under 46 U.S.C. § 12112 that was in effect before February 4, 2004, when:
- The demise charter expires or is transferred to another charterer.
 - The citizenship of the charterer or sub-charterer changes to the extent that the charterer or sub-charterer is no longer qualified for a coastwise endorsement.
 - Neither the person that owns the vessel, nor that owner's parent, nor the subsidiary of that owner's parent, is primarily engaged in leasing or other financing transactions.

Although a Certificate of Documentation and any endorsements remain valid, the owner must apply for exchange of the certificate on an election to designate a new managing owner of the vessel [46 C.F.R. § 67.167(d); see 46 C.F.R. § 67.113 (managing owner designation)] and may apply for exchange of the certificate if the restrictions imposed on the vessel change by deletion, or if the vessel attains a special entitlement [46 C.F.R. § 67.167(e); see 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.130-67.134 (forfeited, wrecked, or captured vessels)].

[ii] Exchange Procedure

To apply for exchange of the certificate, the vessel owner must send or deliver the certificate to the National Vessel Documentation Center and follow the procedures discussed above [46 C.F.R. § 67.167(a); see 46 C.F.R. § 67.141 (application procedure); see also [c]-[f], above].

If exchange of a certificate is required [see [i], above], and the vessel is at sea, the owner of the vessel may effect the exchange while the owner is at sea by [46 C.F.R. § 67.149(a)]: complying with the required application procedure [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.141 (application procedure); see also [c]-[f], above] and with any requirements related to an outstanding mortgage [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.145; see also [iii], below].

The new Certificate of Documentation is forwarded for delivery to the vessel's next port of call, that is, to the nearest Coast Guard Marine Safety Office, if the port of call is in the United States, or to the nearest United States Consulate, if the port of call is in a foreign country [46 C.F.R. § 67.149(b)]. The new certificate is delivered only on surrender of the old certificate, which is then forwarded to the National Vessel Documentation Center.

The requirement to mark the vessel with its new name of hailing port [see 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.120-67.123], if applicable, is waived until the vessel reaches its first port of call, wherever that may be [46 C.F.R. § 67.149(a) (Note)].

[iii] Effect of Outstanding Mortgage

A certificate issued to a vessel that is the subject of an outstanding mortgage recorded in accordance with the applicable regulations [see 46 C.F.R. §§ 67.231-67.235], or predecessor regulations, may not be exchanged for any of the causes enumerated in [i], above, with the exception of the discovery of a substantive or clerical error by the issuing documentation officer, without the mortgagee's consent [46 C.F.R. § 67.145(a)]. These provisions do not apply to a vessel subject only to mortgage recorded or filed before January 1, 1989, which had not attained preferred status as of that date [46 C.F.R. § 67.145(b)]. Consent of the mortgagee is evidenced by filing a properly completed original Application, Consent, and Approval for Withdrawal of Application for Documentation or Exchange of Certificate of Documentation (Coast Guard Form CG-4593) [46 C.F.R. § 67.145(c)].

[j] Replacement of Certificate

A Certificate of Documentation must be replaced when lost, mutilated, or wrongfully withheld from the vessel owner [46 C.F.R. § 67.169(a)]. When application for replacement is required because the certificate has been mutilated, the existing certificate must be physically given up to the National Vessel Documentation Center [46 C.F.R. § 67.169(b); see 46 C.F.R. § 67.141(a)(4)]. On compliance with the applicable requirements, the Coast Guard will issue a new certificate [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.141 (application procedure); see also [c]-[f], above].

[k] Deletion

[i] Causes

A certificate is invalid and is subject to deletion from the roll of documented vessels for a variety of reasons, including the failure of the owner to renew the endorsements on the certificate [see 46 C.F.R. § 171; see also § 102D.12[4][c]]. When a cause for deletion arises, the vessel owner must send or deliver the original certificate to the National Vessel Documentation Center, together with a statement setting for the reason or reasons deletion is required [46 C.F.R. § 67.171(b); see 46 C.F.R. § 67.171(c) (additional requirements when certificate has been deleted because vessel has been placed under foreign flag or has been sold in whole or in part to non-citizen)].

[ii] Redocumentation

A vessel may be redocumented following a deletion of its certificate if the reason for the deletion no longer exists [see [2], P I(J), below]. This form is the official application for redocumentation.

[l] Cancellation

A Certificate of Documentation, together with any endorsements, is invalid and subject to cancellation on a determination by the Director of the National Vessel Documentation Center that the certificate was improperly issued for any reason [46 C.F.R. § 67.173]. On notification, the owner must send or deliver the certificate to a documentation officer at the National Vessel Documentation Center [46 C.F.R. § 67.173]. The vessel owner may submit an application for exchange to correct the error giving rise to cancellation [46 C.F.R. § 67.173; see 46 C.F.R. § 67.141 (application procedure); see also [c]-[f], above]. If the vessel for which the certificate was cancelled was previously documented, it remains documented under the previous Certificate of Documentation, unless deleted from the roll of actively documented vessels [46 C.F.R. § 67.173; see 46 C.F.R. § 67.171 (deletion); see also [k], above].

32-102D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102D.221

§ 102D.221 Bill of Sale of Vessel [CG-1340]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a bill of sale prepared by the Coast Guard for use in transferring an interest in a vessel that has been issued a Certificate of Documentation or is the subject of an application for documentation [see § 102D.220[1] (documentation)]. The form satisfies the requirements for recording discussed below.

For discussion of bills of sale in general, see Ch. 52, Sales of Goods Under the Uniform Commercial Code .

[b] Eligibility for Filing and Recording

A bill of sale (or an instrument in the nature of a bill of sale) is one of the types of instruments that may be filed and recorded with the Coast Guard if it affects a vessel that has a valid Certificate of Documentation, or an application for initial documentation, exchange of certificate, return to documentation, or deletion from documentation which is in substantial compliance with the applicable regulations, submitted to the National Vessel Documentation Center [46 C.F.R. §§ 67.200(a), 67.203(a)]. However, a bill of sale may not be filed and recorded if it bears a material alteration [46 C.F.R. § 67.203(b)]. Further, a bill of sale is not eligible for filing and recording if any vendee or transferee under the instrument is not a United States citizen [46 C.F.R. § 67.203(c); see 46 U.S.C. App. § 802 ("citizen" defined); see also [d], below]. However, this citizenship restriction does not apply in the following situations [46 C.F.R. § 67.203(c), (d)]:

- The Maritime Administration has consented to the grant of a non-citizen under the bill of sale.
- The bill of sale conveys an interest in a vessel which was neither documented nor last documented pursuant to the regulations governing filing and recording or any predecessor regulations at the time the instrument was executed.

- The bill of sale conveys an interest in a vessel that has been operated only as a "fishing vessel," a "fish processing vessel," or a "fish tender vessel" [see 46 U.S.C. § 2101(11a), (11b), (11c) (definitions)], or only for recreation, or both.

[c] Required Contents

[i] Vessel Identification

A bill of sale presented for filing and recording must contain sufficient information to identify the vessel clearly [46 C.F.R. § 67.205(a)]. If the vessel has already been documented, the bill of sale must contain the vessel's name and official number, or other unique identifier [46 C.F.R. § 67.205(b)]. If the vessel has never been documented, it must be identified either by the vessel's hull identification number [see 33 C.F.R. § 181.25 (assignment of identification number)] or other descriptive information that clearly identifies the vessel [46 C.F.R. § 67.205(c)(1), (2)]. This "other descriptive information" may include length, breadth, depth, year of build, name of manufacturer, and any numbers that may have been assigned in accordance with the federal regulations governing boating safety [46 C.F.R. § 67.205(c)(2); see 33 C.F.R. pt. 173 (boating safety)].

[ii] Identification and Signatures of Parties

The bill of sale must set forth (1) the name and address of each seller or donor and each buyer or donee and (2) the interest in the vessel held by each seller or donor and each buyer or donee [46 C.F.R. § 67.220(c)]. Further, it must be signed by or on behalf of every seller or donor [46 C.F.R. § 67.220(b)].

[iii] Date and Acknowledgment

The bill of sale must bear the date of its execution and contain an acknowledgment [46 C.F.R. § 67.207(a)]. No officer or employee of the Coast Guard is authorized to take such an acknowledgment unless the instrument is executed on behalf of the United States government [46 C.F.R. § 67.207(b)].

[d] Procedural Requirements

A bill of sale presented for filing and recording must be filed in conjunction with either an application for initial documentation or redocumentation of the vessel, or a change to or deletion of the vessel's outstanding Certificate of Documentation [46 C.F.R. § 67.223]. Additional regulatory requirements applicable to all or many instruments eligible for filing and recordation govern the following [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.220(a) (applicability of general requirements to bills of sale)]:

- Presentation of copy of signed, acknowledged instrument [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.209].
- Filing of a citizenship declaration [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.211].
- Place of filing and recording [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.213].
- Date and time of filing and recording [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.215].
- Termination of a filing [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.217].
- Optional filing by fax [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.219]. [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.219].
- Optional filing in portable document format (.pdf) as attachments to e-mail [see 46 C.F.R. § 67.218].

For a procedural guide to the satisfaction of these general requirements, see § 102D.131.

32-102D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102D.230

§ 102D.230 Aircraft Registration Application [AC Form 8050-1]

[1] Form

[a] Use of Form

This form is a reproduction of the official Aircraft Registration Application which must be used to register an aircraft with the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA). An aircraft must be registered with the FAA before it may be operated within the United States [49 U.S.C. § 44101(a); see 49 U.S.C. § 44101(b); 14 C.F.R. § 47.3(a) (eligibility for registration); see also [b], below].

The actual FAA form is in triplicate, with colored copies separated by carbon paper. Thus, the form reproduced here is illustrative only; when an aircraft is registered with the FAA, the actual triplicate form should be obtained from the agency [see [c][ii], below].

[b] Eligibility for Registration

An aircraft is eligible for registration if it meets any of the following criteria [49 U.S.C. § 44102(a)]:

- It is not registered under the laws of any foreign country and is owned by a United States citizen, or a lawfully admitted permanent resident; or
- It is not registered under the laws of any foreign country, is owned by a corporation (other than a corporation that is a United States citizen) lawfully organized and doing business under the laws of the United States or any state, and is based and primarily used in the United States; or
- It is owned by the federal government; a state, territory, or possession of the United States, or a political subdivision of any of these; or the District of Columbia.

Aircraft engines, propellers, and appliances may also be registered [see 49 U.S.C. § 44104(1)]. For further discussion of eligibility requirements, see § 102D.103.

[c] Application Procedure

[i] Registration by Owner

An aircraft may be registered only by and in the legal name of its owner [14 C.F.R. § 47.5(b); see 49 U.S.C. § 44103(a)(1) (registration of aircraft in general)]. For these purposes, "owner" includes a buyer in possession, a bailee, a lessee of an aircraft under a contract of conditional sale, and the assignee of that person [14 C.F.R. § 47.5(d)]. For further discussion, see § 102D.103, P 2.

[ii] Preparation

The official Aircraft Registration Application is printed in triplicate with white, green, and pink copies. The required information should be typewritten or printed, and the signatures must be in ink [see [f], [2], below (aircraft registration information)]. The FAA will reject the application when any form is not completed, or when the name and the signature of the applicant are not the same throughout [14 C.F.R. § 47.31(a)]. Further, the name of the applicant should be identical to the name of the purchaser shown on the applicant's evidence of ownership [see 14 C.F.R. § 47.5(b); see also [2], below (aircraft registration information)].

The FAA will also reject applications that do not contain the physical address of the applicant. If a post office box or mail drop address is used for mailing purposes, a physical location or physical address must also be shown on the application [see FAA Notice, 59 Fed. Reg. 53013 (Oct. 20, 1994)]. The FAA sends a notice to that effect (not reproduced here, but quoted essentially verbatim in the preceding sentence) along with the application.

[iii] Submission of Application Materials to FAA

An owner-applicant must submit the official application [see [2], below], evidence of ownership [see 14 C.F.R. §§ 47.11, 47.33, 47.35, 47.37; see also § 102D.140, PP 2-5], and the application fee [see 14 C.F.R. § 47.17] to the FAA Aircraft Registry [14 C.F.R. § 47.31(a)]. The name of the applicant should be identical to the name of the purchaser shown on the applicant's evidence of ownership [see 14 C.F.R. § 47.5(b); see also [2], below (aircraft registration information)].

The application materials must be mailed to the FAA Aircraft Registry, Department of Transportation, Post Office Box 25504, Oklahoma City, OK 73125, or delivered to 6400 South MacArthur Boulevard, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma [14 C.F.R. § 47.19; see [2], below (aircraft registration information)]. For a step-by-step guide to the application process, see § 102D.140.

[iv] Temporary Authority to Operate Aircraft

The applicant must carry the pink copy in the aircraft as temporary authority to operate the aircraft without registration [14 C.F.R. §§ 47.3(b)(2), 47.31(c)]. This authority is valid until the date the applicant receives a Certificate of Aircraft Registration [see AC Form 8050-3] or until the date the FAA denies the application but in no case for more than 90 days after the date the applicant signs the application. If the FAA does not issue a certificate or deny the application within that 90-day period, the FAA Aircraft Registry will issue a letter of extension that serves as authority to continue to operate the aircraft without registration. This letter of extension must also be carried in the aircraft [14 C.F.R. § 47.31(b)].

The FAA has issued a legal opinion stating that the possession of the pink copy of the Aircraft Registration Application does not permit the operation of an aircraft outside the territory of the United States prior to receipt of the Certificate of Aircraft Registration. To ease the burden imposed by this prohibition on persons seeking registration of aircraft used in international operations, located outside the United States, or both, the FAA will telex a copy of the Certificate of Aircraft Registration to the registered owner, on the owner's request, once it has confirmed the information contained in the Application [53 Fed. Reg. 50208, 50209 (Dec. 14, 1988)] .

[d] Change of Address

This form may also be used to notify the FAA Aircraft Registry of a registrant's change of address. Any change in the permanent address of an aircraft owner must be reported to the FAA within 30 days of the change. The FAA will then issue a revised Certificate of Aircraft Registration at no charge [14 C.F.R. § 47.45]. If a post office box or mail drop address is used for mailing purposes, the registrant's physical location or physical address must be shown on the application [see [c][ii], above].

[e] Identification Number

The applicant must place a United States identification number ("registration mark") on this application and on any evidence submitted with the application [14 C.F.R. § 47.15(a)]. In the case of an aircraft not previously registered anywhere, the applicant must obtain the U.S. identification number from the FAA Aircraft Registry by submitting a written request that (1) describes the aircraft by make, type, model, and serial number [but see 14 C.F.R. § 47.33(b) (alternative requirements for amateur-built aircraft)] and (2) states that the aircraft has not previously been registered anywhere. If the aircraft was brought into the United States from a foreign country, the applicant must submit evidence that it has never been registered in a foreign country [14 C.F.R. § 47.15(a)(1)]. Different requirements apply to aircraft that were last previously registered in the U.S. [see 14 C.F.R. § 47.15(a)(2)] or in a foreign country [see 14 C.F.R. § 47.15(a)(3)].

These identification number requirements do not apply to an aircraft manufacturer that applies for a group of U.S. identification numbers [see 14 C.F.R. § 47.15(c)], a person who applies for a special identification number [see 14 C.F.R. § 47.15(d)-(g)], or a holder of a Dealer's Aircraft Registration Certificate who applies for a temporary registration number [14 C.F.R. § 47.15(a); see 14 C.F.R. § 47.16 (temporary number)].

[f] Signature

The owner must sign the application (and supporting documentation, as appropriate) in ink [14 C.F.R. § 47.13(a)]. Additional signature requirements apply in the following situations [see 14 C.F.R. § 47.13(b)-(f); see also § 102D.140, P 6]:

- One or more persons doing business under a trade name submit the application.
- An agent submits the application on behalf of the owner of the aircraft.
- The applicant is a corporation.
- The applicant is a partnership.
- Co-owners who are not engaged in business as partners submit the application.

[g] Certificate of Aircraft Registration

An aircraft is registered on the date and at the time the FAA Aircraft Registry receives the required application materials [14 C.F.R. § 47.39(a); see 14 C.F.R. §§ 47.33, 47.35 (required materials); but see 14 C.F.R. §§ 47.37, 47.39(b) (special requirements applicable to aircraft last previously registered in foreign country)]. The Administrator of the FAA will issue a Certificate of Aircraft Registration to the owner [see 49 U.S.C. § 44103(a)(1)(B); see also 14 C.F.R. § 47.31(a)].

For further discussion, see § 102D.14[4].

[h] Termination of Registration

[i] In General

A Certificate of Aircraft Registration issued by the FAA is effective, unless suspended or revoked [see [ii], below], until one of the following events occurs [14 C.F.R. § 47.41(a)]:

- The aircraft is registered under the laws of a foreign country;
- The registration is cancelled at the written request of the holder of the certificate;
- The aircraft is totally destroyed or scrapped;
- The ownership of the aircraft is transferred;
- The holder of the certificate loses his or her United States citizenship, or loses his or her resident alien status without becoming a United States resident; or
- Thirty days have elapsed since the death of the holder of the certificate.

If the owner of the aircraft is a corporation that is not a citizen of the United States, the registration terminates when the corporation ceases to be lawfully organized and doing business under the laws of the United States or any state, or at the end of a six-month period [see 14 C.F.R. § 47.9(b) (date from which six-month period is calculated)] during which the aircraft was not based and used primarily in the United States [14 C.F.R. § 47.41(a)(8)]. If the aircraft is registered in the name of a trustee, the registration terminates when the trustee loses United States citizenship, loses resident alien status without becoming a United States citizen, or in any manner ceases to act as the trustee and is not immediately replaced by another who meets the requirements for trustee registrants [14 C.F.R. § 47.41(a)(9); see 14 C.F.R. § 47.7(c) (trustee requirements)].

The Certificate of Aircraft Registration must be returned to the FAA Aircraft Registry, with the reverse side completed, on termination of registration [14 C.F.R. § 47.41(b)]. In most cases, the holder of the certificate must return it [see 47 C.F.R. § 47.41(b)(1)-(3)].

[ii] Suspension and Revocation

The Administrator of the FAA may suspend or revoke a Certificate of Aircraft Registration when the aircraft no longer meets the requirements for registration [49 U.S.C. § 44105]. The Administrator will revoke a certificate if the Administrator determines that the owner of the registered aircraft used or knowingly permitted the use of the aircraft to carry out or facilitate an activity that is punishable by death or by imprisonment for a term exceeding one year under a state or federal law relating to a controlled substance (except a law relating to simple possession of a controlled substance) [49 U.S.C. § 44106(b)(1); see 49 U.S.C. § 44106(b)(2) (when owner who is not an individual is deemed to have knowingly permitted proscribed activity); see also 49 U.S.C. § 44106(c), (d) (applicable notice, hearing, and appeal requirements); 21 U.S.C. § 802(6) ("controlled substance" defined)]. However, the Administrator may not revoke a Certificate of Registration on this basis if the holder of the certificate is acquitted of all charges related to a controlled substance in an indictment or information arising from the activity [49 U.S.C. § 44106(e)(1); see 49 U.S.C. § 44106(e)(2) (reissuance of certificate to person following revocation)].

[i] Inspection of Registration

The operator of an aircraft must make the Certificate of Aircraft Registration available for inspection on the request of any federal, state, or local law enforcement officer [49 U.S.C. § 44103(d)].

32-102D California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102D.231

§ 102D.231 Bill of Sale of Aircraft [AC Form 8050-2]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a bill of sale for an aircraft. It was prepared by the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) and is a suggested bill of sale form that meets the recording requirements of aircraft titles and security documents [see 14 C.F.R. §§ 47.31(a)(2), 47.33(a)(2), 47.35(a), 47.37(a)(2) (AC Form 8050-2 or equivalent bill of sale acceptable as evidence of ownership); [2], below (aircraft bill of sale information); see also 14 C.F.R. § 49.1 et seq. (recording requirements)].

For general requirements governing the contents of any document that is to be recorded by the FAA, see § 102D.141.

The sale or transfer of an aircraft typically involves the use of one of two types of documents. A bill of sale is ordinarily used if the transaction involves an outright transfer of title to the buyer. If the seller retains title to the aircraft as security for the performance of the purchase agreement, a contract of conditional sale is normally used. For coverage of conditional sale contracts, see §§ 102D.140, P 2a, b, 102D.141, P 3.

A bill of sale or contract of conditional sale may be submitted along with an Application for Aircraft Registration as evidence of ownership of the aircraft to be registered [see 14 C.F.R. §§ 47.11, 47.33, 47.35, 47.37; see also 102D.230[1][c][iii]]. For a complete list of the other acceptable types of evidence of ownership, see § 102D.140, PP 2-5.

[b] Preparation of Form

This form must be prepared in duplicate. The actual form supplied by the FAA is a duplicate form with carbon paper. The official instructions to the form provide that all entries must be typewritten or printed and that the name of the purchaser must be identical to the name of the applicant shown on the application for aircraft registration [see [2], below (aircraft bill of sale information)]. If a trade name is shown as the purchaser or seller, the name of the individual owner or co-owners must be included [see [2], below (aircraft bill of sale information)]. The original copy of the form should be submitted [see [2], below]. The signatures must be in ink [14 C.F.R. § 49.13(a); see 14 C.F.R. § 49.13(b)-(f)].

(additional execution requirements); see also § 102D.230[1][f]]. If the carbon copy of the form is submitted, it must be signed in ink [see [2], below].

[c] Required Submissions With Form

If the aircraft was not purchased from its last registered owner, conveyances completing the chain of ownership from the last registered owner through all intervening owners must be submitted with the bill of sale [14 C.F.R. § 49.35].

[d] Recording of Form

[i] In General

Any conveyance that affects the title to or any interest in registered civil aircraft in the United States (or certain major aircraft components), including a bill of sale [see 14 C.F.R. § 49.31(a)], may be recorded [49 U.S.C. § 44107(a); 14 C.F.R. § 49.1(a); see 14 C.F.R. § 49.31 (nonexclusive list of recordable conveyances)]. For a complete list of documents eligible for recording, see § 102D.103, P 4.

[ii] Effect of Recording

Until a conveyance, lease, or instrument executed for security purposes is filed for recording with the FAA Aircraft Registry, the instrument is valid only against the person making the conveyance, lease, or instruments, that person's heirs, and a person having actual notice of the conveyance, lease, or instrument [49 U.S.C. § 44108(a)]. The recording of a conveyance is not a decision by the FAA that the instrument does in fact affect title to, or an interest in, the aircraft or other property covered by the instrument [14 C.F.R. § 49.17(c)].

Federal law preempts any state law under which a transfer without a recordable conveyance would be held to be valid against innocent transferees or lienholders who have recorded a transfer [Philko Aviation, Inc. v. Shackel (1983) 462 U.S. 406, 409-412, 103 S. Ct. 2476, 76 L. Ed. 2d 678 (construing former 49 U.S.C. § 1403(c))]. To avoid the potentially harsh consequences of these rules, before completing the transaction, a purchaser of an aircraft should either search the FAA's records, or hire a title search company or an attorney to do so, in order to determine whether any conveyances or encumbrances affecting the title to the aircraft have been recorded. The FAA maintains a list of firms engaged in the business of conducting aircraft title searches (AC Form 8050-55) and will provide the list on request.

[iii] Required Contents and Format

A bill of sale cannot be recorded unless it satisfies certain requirements relating to its format and contents. First, it must be in a form prescribed by, or acceptable to, the Federal Aviation Administrator [14 C.F.R. § 49.33(a)]. Second, the bill of sale must be an original document or a duplicate original, or a true copy if neither the original nor a duplicate original is available [14 C.F.R. § 49.33(c)]. Third, the instrument must describe the aircraft by the following information [14 C.F.R. § 49.33(b)]:

- Make and model.
- Manufacturer's serial number.
- United States registration number [see 14 C.F.R. § 49.33(d) (aircraft must be registered)].
- Other details that make identification possible.

A recording fee also must accompany the bill of sale [14 C.F.R. § 49.33(e); see 14 C.F.R. § 49.15 (fees charged)].

[iv] Execution

Every signature on a bill of sale or other document that is to be recorded with the FAA must be in ink [14 C.F.R. § 49.13(a)]. Additional execution requirements apply when the instrument is made by, or on behalf of one or more persons doing business under a trade name; an agent; a corporation; a partnership; a co-owner; or an unincorporated association [see 14 C.F.R. § 47.13(b)-(f); see also § 102D.141, P 1].

[v] Recording Procedure

To be recorded, a bill of sale or other conveyance must be either mailed to the FAA Aircraft Registry, Department of Transportation, P.O. Box 25504, Oklahoma City, OK 73125, or delivered to the Registry at 6425 S. Denning Ave., Oklahoma City, OK 73169 [14 C.F.R. § 49.11].

The bill of sale is filed for recordation on the date and at the time it is received by the Registry [14 C.F.R. § 49.19]. If the person submitting the form for recordation wants the original returned to him or her, he or she must submit to the Registry a copy of the original (in addition to the original) and a certification that the copy has been compared with the original and is a true copy. The Registry then records the document, keeps the copy, and returns the original to the applicant. The original is stamped with the date and time of recording [14 C.F.R. § 49.21].

For further discussion of the steps necessary to record various conveyances with the FAA, see § 102D.141.

§ 102D.232 Certificate of Repossession of Encumbered Aircraft [AC Form 8050-4]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a certificate of repossession of an encumbered aircraft. This certificate (or an equivalent) must accompany an Application for Aircraft Registration [see § 102D.230[2]] when the aircraft has been repossessed or otherwise seized [see [b] below; see also § 102D.140, P 2c]. The form is available from the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) and meets the FAA's recording requirements [see 14 C.F.R. §§ 49.31, 49.33(a)].

[b] Registration Following Repossession

If an aircraft has been repossessed or seized pursuant to the provisions of a mortgage or a contract of conditional sale, the reposessor must complete this form or an equivalent form that states that the aircraft was repossessed or otherwise seized under the applicable security agreement and under applicable local law [14 C.F.R. § 47.11(b)(1)]. If this form is used, the required information should be either typewritten or printed. All signatures must be in ink [14 C.F.R. § 47.13(a)].

The completed form should be sent to the FAA Aircraft Registry, along with the official Aircraft Registration Application [see § 102D.230[2]] and the appropriate recording and registration fees [14 C.F.R. §§ 47.5(a), 47.11(b)(1), 49.15]. The reposessor-applicant must also submit the original or a certified copy of the security agreement under which the aircraft was repossessed, unless that agreement is already recorded with the FAA Aircraft Registry [14 C.F.R. § 47.11(b)(2); see 14 C.F.R. § 49.21 (certified copies)]. If the repossession was accomplished through foreclosure proceedings resulting in sale, the applicant must also submit a bill of sale that states that the sale was made under applicable local law and is signed by the sheriff, auctioneer, or other authorized person who conducted the sale [14 C.F.R. § 47.11(b)(3); see § 102D.231[1][a], [2]]. The mailing address of the Registry is P.O. Box 25504, Oklahoma City, OK 73125 [14 C.F.R. § 47.19].

§ 102D.233 Notice of Recording and Release of Conveyance Securing Obligation on Aircraft [AC Form 8050-41]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is (1) an acknowledgment that a security conveyance covering an aircraft has been recorded with the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) Aircraft Registry [see [2], Part I, below] and (2) a suggested form of release of the collateral from the terms of the conveyance [see [2], Part II, below]. Both of these uses are discussed below.

[b] Notice of Recordation of Conveyance

Until a conveyance, lease, or instrument executed for security purposes is filed for recording with the FAA Aircraft Registry, the instrument is valid only against the person making the conveyance, lease, or instruments, that person's heirs, and a person having actual notice of the conveyance, lease, or instrument [49 U.S.C. § 44108(a); see § 102D.231[1][d]]. Part I of this form acknowledges the recordation of a security conveyance affecting an aircraft. When the conveyance is filed for recording, the Registry completes that part and mails the form to the secured party if that party has provided a mailing address.

[c] Release

Part II of this form is a suggested form of release which should be completed by the secured party and returned to the Registry when the terms of the conveyance have been satisfied. When an obligation secured by an aircraft has been satisfied or any of the encumbered aircraft has been released from the conveyance, the secured party must immediately execute a release [14 C.F.R. § 49.17(d)(5); see 14 C.F.R. § 49.55 (recording of releases)]. If the debt is secured by more than one aircraft and all of the collateral is released, the collateral need not be described in detail in the release. However, the original conveyance must be clearly described in enough detail to identify it [14 C.F.R. § 49.17(d)(5)]. This description must include the date of the conveyance, the names of the parties, the date of FAA recording, and the recorded conveyance number [14 C.F.R. § 49.17(d)(5)]. After completing the release, the secured party must sign it in ink [14 C.F.R. § 49.13(a)] and send it to the Registry for recording [14 C.F.R. § 49.17(d)(5)]. The Registry's mailing address is P.O. Box 25504, Oklahoma City, OK 73125 [14 C.F.R. § 49.11].

The use of this official FAA form is optional; the secured party may chose to use an equivalent form [see 14 C.F.R. § 49.17(d)(5)].

The form need not be acknowledged, unless required by local law [14 C.F.R. § 49.13(c)]. California law does not require acknowledgment [see International Atlas Services, Inc. v. Twentieth Century Aircraft Co. (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 434, 440, 59 Cal. Rptr. 495 (federal government has fully occupied field of recordation of interests in aircraft and of rights derived from recordation); Pope v. National Aero Finance Co. (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 722, 732, 46 Cal. Rptr. 233, cert. denied, 389 U.S. 1038 (1968) (recording and registration of documents affecting title of aircraft are governed by federal statute rather than by state laws)].

There is no fee for recording a release [14 C.F.R. §§ 49.15(b), 49.33(e)].

CHAPTER 102E SALES AND LOANS OF ARTWORK

32-102E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide Scope

Scope

Scope

This chapter discusses and provides forms for use in sales and loans of works of art, meaning products of the fine arts rather than industrial or mechanical arts or literary arts (including musical composition). This chapter does not relate to machinery, tools, vehicles, musical instruments, or other items of the kind that can be patented, nor does it relate to architecture. However, the works of art dealt with in this chapter include examples of creative endeavor that a museum or gallery of art is likely to display, even if they are products of industrial or mechanical arts (for example, armor, antiques, oriental rugs, ancient vases, and other relics). The chapter contains discussions of the following topics, along with the following forms:

- Consignment of fine art: forms are a consignment agreement for the exhibition and sale of works of fine art and a provision for sale based on appraisal;
- Sales of fine art multiples: forms are an invoice and certificate of authenticity, an art dealer's notice concerning disclosure requirements, and a charitable organization's disclaimer of knowledge of specified information;
- The artist's royalty rights in fine art; and
- Loan of a work of art to a museum, including the rights of the museum and the lender in the work, how a lender can preserve its interest in the work, and the circumstances under which title to an unclaimed work vests in the museum: forms are loan agreements and various notices for use by both the museum and the lender.

For coverage of contracts generally, see Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions . CHAPTER 102E SALES AND LOANS OF ARTWORK
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Sale or Consignment of Fine Art

32-102E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102E.11

§ 102E.11 Definitions of "Fine Art" and Related Terms

Civil Code definitions of "fine art" vary according to the purpose of the particular statute involved. For example, for purposes of the assignment or transfer of an artist's right (including right of reproduction) in a work, fine art is any work of visual art, including, but not limited to, the following [Civ. Code § 982(d)(1)]:

- A drawing, painting, sculpture, mosaic, or photograph.
- A work of calligraphy.
- A work of graphic art (including an etching, lithograph, offset print, silk screen, or a work of graphic art of like nature).
- Crafts (including crafts in clay, textile, fiber, wood, metal, plastic, and like materials).
- Mixed media (including a collage, assemblage, or any combination of the art media listed above).

Other definitions are provided in the following contexts:

- Definitions concerning the royalty rights of an artist from the sale of fine art are contained in Civ. Code § 986(c).
- The definition of fine art for purposes of preservation is contained in Civ. Code § 987(b)(2).
- For purposes of reservation of ownership rights when fine art is reproduced or displayed, the definition of fine art in Civ. Code § 988(a)(2) applies.
- Definitions concerning the consignment of fine art are contained in Civ. Code § 1738(b).

- Definitions relating to the sale of fine prints and other fine art multiples are contained in Civ. Code § 1740.

In addition, in California, for any purpose, porcelain painting and stained glass artistry are considered fine art [Civ. Code § 997].

"Artist" is also variously defined as:

- A person who creates a work of fine art and who, at the time of resale, is a U.S. citizen or a resident of California who has resided in California for a minimum of two years [Civ. Code § 986(c)(1)].
- An individual who creates a work of fine art [Civ. Code § 987(b)(1)].
- A person who creates a work of fine art or, if that person is deceased, the creator's heir, legatee, or personal representative [Civ. Code § 1738(a)].
- The person who created, conceived of, or approved the image contained in or constituting the master used for reproductions [Civ. Code § 1740(d); see Civ. Code § 1740(c) ("master" means printing plate, stone, block, screen, photographic negative, or mold or other process relating to a sculpture, which contains an image used to produce fine art multiples)].

DIVISION VII: PERSONAL TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 102E SALES AND LOANS OF ARTWORK
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Sale or Consignment of Fine Art

32-102E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102E.12

§ 102E.12 Consignment of Fine Art

[1] Governing Law

The statutes governing consignment of fine art [Civ. Code § 1738 et seq.] govern all consignments of fine art in California, except those made under a written contract executed before January 1, 1976 [see Civ. Code §§ 1738.5, 1738.9]. These statutes do not apply to contracts executed before that date unless the parties agree by mutual written consent that the statutory provisions apply or the contract is extended or renewed after that date [Civ. Code § 1738.9]. The statutes supersede any conflicting or inconsistent provisions of the Commercial Code regarding consignments of fine art [Civ. Code § 1738.9].

In addition, no trade custom, practice, or usage will preclude the creation of a consignment as provided by statute [Civ. Code § 1738.5; see also [3], [4], below].

[2] Definitions

The statutes governing consignment agreements between artists and art dealers cover agreements concerning fine art only [see Civ. Code § 1738 et seq.]. In this context, fine art is a painting, sculpture, drawing, work of graphic art (including an etching, lithograph, offset print, silk screen, or a work of graphic art of like nature), work of calligraphy, or work in mixed media (including a collage, an assemblage, or any combination of the media listed above) [Civ. Code § 1738(b)].

The artist is the person who created the work of fine art or, if that person is deceased, his or her heir, legatee, or personal representative [Civ. Code § 1738(a)].

An art dealer is a person engaged in the business of selling works of fine art, other than a person exclusively engaged in the business of selling goods at public auction [Civ. Code § 1738(c)].

A consignment of fine art is an agreement under which no title to, estate in, or right to possession of the work of fine art, superior to that of the artist, vests in the art dealer, notwithstanding the dealer's power or authority to transfer and convey to a third person all of the artist's right, title, and interest in the work [Civ. Code § 1738(e)].

[3] Delivery Constitutes Consignment

Despite any custom, practice, or usage of the trade to the contrary, when an artist delivers, or causes to be delivered, a work of fine art of the artist's own creation to an art dealer in California for the purpose of exhibition or sale on a commission, fee, or other basis of compensation, the delivery and the dealer's acceptance of the work of fine art constitute a consignment, unless the delivery to the art dealer is pursuant to an outright sale for which the artist receives or has received full compensation for the work of fine art on delivery [Civ. Code § 1738.5].

[4] Effect of Consignment

A consignment of a work of fine art results in the following [Civ. Code § 1738.6]:

- The art dealer, after accepting delivery of the work of fine art, is an agent of the artist for the purpose of sale or exhibition of the consigned work of fine art within California.
- The work of fine art constitutes property held in trust by the dealer for the benefit of the consignor, and it is not subject to claims by a creditor of the dealer.
- The dealer is liable for loss of, or damage to, the work of fine art.
- The proceeds from the sale of the work of fine art constitute funds held in trust by the dealer for the benefit of the consignor. The proceeds must first be applied to pay any balance due the consignor, unless the consignor expressly agrees otherwise in writing.

[5] Sale of Work

If the art dealer sells the work, the dealer holds the funds in trust for the benefit of the artist. The proceeds of the sale are applied first to any balance owed by the dealer to the artist, unless the artist expressly agrees otherwise in writing [Civ. Code § 1738.6(d)].

Further, if an art dealer directly or indirectly buys the work for the dealer's own account, the work remains property held in trust, until the price is paid in full to the artist. If the work is resold to a bona fide buyer before the artist has been paid in full, the proceeds of the resale constitute funds held in trust by the dealer for the benefit of the artist, to the extent necessary to pay the balance due the artist. The trust continues until the fiduciary obligation of the art dealer with respect to the transaction is discharged in full [Civ. Code § 1738.7].

[6] Waivers Void

Any provision of a contract or agreement under which the consignor waives any right specified by Civ. Code § 1738 et seq. is void [Civ. Code § 1738.8].

[7] Dealer's Accounting Responsibilities

On the consignor's written demand, the dealer must provide a true written accounting that includes the description and quantity of any work sold under the consignment agreement, the sale price, and the name and address of the buyer; however, statements need not be provided for cash transactions of less than $50. Failure to comply with this requirement is a misdemeanor. A dealer who willfully and corruptly makes, or causes to be made, to a consignor a false statement about the quality or quantity of, the price obtained for, or any expenditures made in connection with, any work of art covered by a consignment agreement between the parties is guilty of a misdemeanor [Penal Code § 536].

DIVISION VII: PERSONAL TRANSACTIONS
CHAPTER 102E SALES AND LOANS OF ARTWORK
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Sale or Consignment of Fine Art

32-102E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102E.13

§ 102E.13 Sale and Consignment of Fine Art Multiples

[1] Governing Law

Civ. Code § 1740 et seq. govern the sale of fine art multiples. The law covers not only prints but also photographs, sculpture casts, collages, and similar works of art produced in more than one copy. These are referred to as fine art multiples (or multiples) [see Civ. Code § 1740(a)].

[2] Definitions

A fine art multiple is any fine print, positive or negative photograph, sculpture cast, collage, or similar work of art produced in more than one copy. Pages or sheets taken from books and magazines and offered for sale or sold as works of art are included in this definition, but books and magazines are not [Civ. Code § 1740(a)]. A fine print (or a print) is a fine art multiple produced by (without limitation) engraving, etching, woodcutting, lithography, and serigraphy, or produced or developed from photographic negatives, or by any combination of these methods [Civ. Code § 1740(b)].

An artist is the person who created, conceived of, or approved the image contained in or constituting the printing plate, stone, block, screen, photographic negative, mold, or other process as to a sculpture containing an image, that is used to produce fine art multiples (that is, the master) [Civ. Code § 1740(c), (d)].

An art dealer is any individual, partnership, corporation, limited liability company, association, or other entity, however organized, that is in the business of dealing exclusively or nonexclusively in fine art multiples. It also includes anyone who by his or her occupation holds himself or herself out as having knowledge or skill peculiar to these works, or to whom that knowledge or skill may be attributed because of employment of an agent or other intermediary who by his or her occupation holds himself or herself out as having that knowledge or skill. Auctioneers who sell fine art multiples at public auction are considered art dealers, but consignors or principals of auctioneers are not, unless they are otherwise defined or treated as art dealers [Civ. Code § 1740(g), (k)].

[3] Sales Subject to Regulation

The provisions governing sales of fine art multiples [see Civ. Code § 1740 et seq.] apply to the sale of any fine art multiple when offered for sale or sold at wholesale or retail for $100 or more, exclusive of any frame [Civ. Code § 1741].

[4] Required Disclosure of Information

[a] Disclosure by Art Dealer and Artist

Before sale or consignment of a fine art multiple into or from California, an art dealer must furnish to a buyer or consignee a written certificate of authenticity containing all specific and relevant details and descriptive information required by Civ. Code § 1744 [see [d], below; see also § 102E.210 (form)]. The information must be clearly, specifically, and distinctly addressed to each of the items required by statute, unless the required data is not applicable. The information must be in writing and be given to the buyer or consignee at his or her request, or in any event before a sale or consignment. If a prospective buyer so requests, the information must be transmitted to him or her before the payment or placing of an order for a multiple. If payment is made by a buyer before delivery of a multiple, this information must be supplied at the time of or before delivery [Civ. Code § 1742(a)].

With respect to auctions, the required information may be furnished in catalogs or other written materials that are made readily available to consult and buy before the sale. However, a bill of sale, receipt, or invoice describing the transaction must then be provided that refers to the catalog and lot number in which the information was supplied [Civ. Code § 1742(a)].

If an artist sells or consigns a fine art multiple of his or her own creation or conception, the artist is also bound to disclose the information required by Civ. Code § 1744 [Civ. Code § 1742(e); see [d], below; § 102E.200 (form)].

[b] Disclosure in Written Materials

An art dealer who solicits a buyer directly by inviting transmittal of payment for a specific multiple, in a catalog, prospectus, or flyer, or other written material or advertisement to be distributed in, into, or from California, must clearly set forth, in close proximity to the place in the material in which the fine art multiple is being described, the descriptive information required by Civ. Code § 1744 [Civ. Code § 1742(b); see [d], below].

The art dealer may, in lieu of setting forth the information required by Civ. Code § 1744, supply the information to the buyer before or with the delivery of the fine art multiple [Civ. Code § 1742(b); see § 102E.200 (form)].

[c] Public Posting of Information

In each place of business in California in which an art dealer is regularly engaged in selling fine art multiples, the art dealer must post, in a conspicuous place, a sign that in legible format informs the general public that California law provides for the disclosure in writing of certain information concerning prints, photographs, and sculpture casts, and that the information is available to the public and may be requested by a prospective buyer before buying a fine art multiple [Civ. Code § 1742(c); see § 102E.201 (form)].

[d] Mandated Information

Except as provided below, the information required to be supplied in a written certificate of authenticity in all transactions for the sale or consignment of fine art multiples includes [see Civ. Code § 1744(a)]:

- The artist's name.
- If the artist's name appears on the multiple: a statement whether or not the multiple was signed by the artist.

- A description of the medium or process.
- A statement concerning certain types of reproduction of an image produced in a different medium for a purpose other than the creation of the multiple.
- If the previous paragraph applies and the multiple is not signed: a statement whether or not the artist authorized or approved in writing the multiple or edition.
- Whether the purported artist was deceased at the time the master was made that produced the multiple.
- Whether the multiple is a "posthumous" multiple, that is, the master was created during the artist's life, but the multiple was produced after the artist's death.
- Whether the multiple was made from a master that produced a prior limited edition, and a statement of the total number of multiples, including proofs, of all other editions produced from that master.
- The year or approximate year the multiple was produced, for multiples produced after 1949.
- Whether the edition is being offered as a limited edition, and, if so, the authorized maximum number of signed or numbered, and unsigned and unnumbered, impressions in the edition, and the authorized maximum number of artist's proofs, publisher's proofs, other proofs, if any, outside of the regular edition, and the total size of the edition.
- Whether the master was destroyed, effaced, altered, defaced, or canceled after the current edition.

These disclosure requirements are discussed in greater detail in § 102E.200[1][b].

In addition to the above information, every certificate of authenticity must contain the following statement: "This is to certify that all information and the statements contained herein are true and correct" [Civ. Code § 1740(j)].

More limited information is required for multiples produced during the years 1950 through 1982 [see Civ. Code § 1744(c)], in during the years 1900 through 1949 [see Civ. Code § 1744(d)], and before 1900 [see Civ. Code § 1744(e)].

[e] Exemption for Sale by Charitable Organization

A charitable organization that conducts a sale or auction of fine art multiples is exempt from the disclosure requirements of Civ. Code § 1744 if it posts in a conspicuous place, at the site of the sale or auction, a disclaimer of any knowledge of the information specified in the statute, and includes this disclaimer in any catalog distributed by the organization with respect to the sale or auction of fine art multiples. However, an art dealer used or employed by a charitable organization to conduct the sale or auction of fine art multiples is subject to all disclosure requirements regulating the sale of fine art multiples [Civ. Code § 1742.6].

[f] Art Dealer's Disclaimer of Knowledge

An art dealer offering fine art multiples by means of a catalog, prospectus, flyer, or other written material or advertisement distributed in, into, or from California, may disclaim knowledge about any relevant detail referred to in Civ. Code § 1744. However, the dealer must so state specifically and categorically with regard to each detail disclaimed, so that the buyer will be able to judge the degree of uniqueness or scarcity of each fine art multiple contained in the edition offered [Civ. Code § 1742(d); see Civ. Code § 1744.7 (information disclosed is express warranty); [g], below].

Describing the edition as an edition of "reproductions" eliminates the need to furnish further informational details, unless the edition was allegedly published in a signed, numbered, or limited edition, or any combination thereof, in which case all of the mandated information must be furnished [Civ. Code § 1742(d)].

[g] Disclosure Creates Express Warranty

Whenever an art dealer furnishes the name of an artist pursuant to Civ. Code § 1744 for any time period after 1949, and otherwise furnishes information required under the statute for any time period relating to offers, sales, or consignments made to buyers other than art dealers, the information conveyed forms a part of the basis of the bargain and creates an express warranty for the information provided [Civ. Code § 1744.7; see Civ. Code § 1744(b) (statement of size of limited edition pursuant to Civ. Code § 1744(a)(10), discussed in [d], above, constitutes express warranty)]. The warranty is not negated or limited by the art dealer's failure to use the words "warrant" or "guarantee," or because the dealer did not have the specific intention or authority to make a warranty, or because any of the required statements represented only the dealer's opinion [Civ. Code § 1744.7].

The existence of a basis in fact for information warranted by virtue of Civ. Code § 1744.7 will not give rise to a defense in an action to enforce a given warranty. However, with respect to photographs and sculptures produced before 1950, and other fine art multiples produced before 1900, the required information given that relates to (1) the description of the medium or process of production of the multiple, (2) reproduction of an image produced in a different medium, (3) whether the reproduction of the image from a different medium was authorized or approved by the artist, or (4) whether the purported artist was deceased at the time the master was made that produced the multiple, will be sufficient if a reasonable basis in fact existed for the information provided [Civ. Code § 1744(a)(3)-(6)]. When information is not supplied relating to any subdivision or paragraph of Civ. Code § 1744 because the subdivision or paragraph is not applicable, this constitutes an express warranty that the paragraph is not applicable [Civ. Code § 1744.7].

[h] Liability of Consignor, Agent, or Other Seller

An artist or art dealer who consigns a multiple to an art dealer for the purpose of effecting a sale of the multiple does not incur any liability to a buyer if the consignor, as to the consignee, has complied with Civ. Code § 1740 et seq. [Civ. Code § 1744.9(a)].

When an art dealer has agreed to sell a multiple on behalf of a consignor who is not an art dealer, or an artist has not consigned a multiple to an art dealer, but the art dealer has agreed to act as the agent for an artist for the purpose of supplying the information required, the art dealer incurs the liabilities of other art dealers as prescribed by Civ. Code § 1740 et seq., as to a buyer [Civ. Code § 1744.9(b)].

An art dealer, including a dealer consignee, who offers or sells a fine art multiple in, into, or from California without providing the certificate of authenticity required in Civ. Code §§ 1742 and 1744 [see [a]-[g], above], is liable to the buyer of the multiple. Liability also occurs if the information provided is mistaken, erroneous, or untrue, except for harmless errors. The buyer may sue to recover the consideration paid for the multiple, together with interest at the legal rate, once the fine art multiple is returned in the condition in which it was received [Civ. Code § 1745(a); see Civ. Code § 1745(e) (remedy does not preclude suit for damages or exercise of other remedies)].

Willful violations of the disclosure statutes may expose an art dealer to liability for three times the price plus interest [Civ. Code § 1745(b)]. Actions to enforce an art dealer's liability must be brought within one year after discovery of the violation, and in no event more than three years after the sale [Civ. Code § 1745(c); see Civ. Code § 1745(d) (costs and fees to prevailing party); see also Civ. Code § 1745(f) (disclaimer of knowledge as defense)]. Injunctive relief and civil penalties are also available [see Civ. Code § 1745.5].

The remedies provided by Civ. Code §§ 1745 and 1745.5 are not a bar to, nor inconsistent with, a claim for damages or the exercise of additional remedies otherwise available to the buyer [Civ. Code § 1745(e)].

If the consignor, agent, or other seller is a merchant [see Com. Code § 2104(1) (definition)] with respect to fine art multiples, or if both parties are merchants, then additional remedies under the Commercial Code may be available [see Com. Code § 2102].

When a work of fine art is transferred, whether by sale or on commission, or otherwise, by or on behalf of the artist who created it, or by that artist's heir, legatee, or personal representative, the right of reproduction of that work is reserved to the artist or his or her heir, legatee, or personal representative until it passes into the public domain by act or operation of law, unless that right is expressly transferred by a document in writing. Any such document must refer to the specific right of reproduction and be signed by the owner of the rights conveyed or that person's authorized agent. If the transfer is pursuant to an employment relationship, the right of reproduction is transferred to the employer, unless it is expressly reserved in writing. If the transfer is pursuant to a legacy or inheritance, the right of reproduction is transferred to the legatee or heir, unless it is expressly reserved by will or codicil [Civ. Code § 982(c)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Sale or Consignment of Fine Art

32-102E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102E.16

§ 102E.16 Royalty Rights of Artist

[1] Limitations

The statute creating the artist's right to collect a royalty when his or her work is sold [see [2], below] applies only to works constituting fine art [see Civ. Code § 986(a), (d)]. For this purpose, fine art means an original painting, sculpture, or drawing, or an original work of art in glass [Civ. Code § 986(c)(2)].

[2] Royalty Due on Sale; Payment Procedures

With the exceptions discussed below [see [3], below], artists who are either U.S. citizens or California residents who have resided in California for a minimum of two years are entitled to collect a 5-percent royalty on the price of works of fine art that are sold in California or that are sold by a seller residing in California [Civ. Code § 986(a), (c)(1)]. This right may be waived only by a written contract providing for royalties in an amount in excess of 5 percent of the price [Civ. Code § 986(a)].

For artists who die after January 1, 1983, the right to collect royalty payments passes to the artist's heirs, legatees, or personal representative, until the 20th anniversary of the artist's death [Civ. Code § 986(a)(7)]. An artist may assign the right to collect royalty payments to another individual or entity; however, the assignment will not effect a waiver of the right [Civ. Code § 986(a)].

If a work of art is sold at an auction or by a gallery, dealer, broker, museum, or any other person acting as the agent of the seller, that agent must withhold 5 percent of the price, then locate the artist and pay the withheld amount to the artist [Civ. Code § 986(a)(1)]. Royalties held for payment to artists by sellers or agents are exempt from the enforcement of money judgments by creditors of the sellers and agents [Civ. Code § 986(a)(6)]. If the seller or his or her agent cannot pay the artist within 90 days after the sale, the royalties must be transferred to the California Arts Council [Civ. Code § 986(a)(2)]. The council deposits money received in the Special Deposit Fund in the State Treasury, and attempts to locate the artist. If the council does not locate the artist, and the artist does not file a written claim for the money within seven years after the sale, the artist's right to the money terminates, and the money is transferred to the council for use in acquiring fine art pursuant to the Art in Public Buildings program [Civ. Code § 986(a)(4), (5); see Gov. Code § 15813 et seq.].

[3] Exempt Transactions

The right to collect royalties on the sale of fine art does not apply to any of the following transactions [Civ. Code § 986(b)]:

- The initial sale of a work when legal title to the work is vested in the artist at the time of the sale.
- The resale of a work for a gross price of less than $1,000, or the exchange of a work for one or more works of fine art or for a combination of cash, other property, and one or more works of fine art, when the fair market value of the property exchanged is less than $1,000.
- Resale of a work after the death of the artist if the artist died on or before January 1, 1983.
- Resale of a work for a gross price less than the price paid by the seller.
- Resale of a work by an art dealer to a buyer within 10 years of the initial sale of the work to an art dealer, provided all intervening resales are between art dealers.
- Sale of a work of stained glass artistry when the work has been permanently attached to real property and is sold as part of the real property.

[4] Action for Damages by Artist

If a seller or a seller's agent fails to pay royalties to an artist or transfer funds to the California Arts Council as required by law [see [2], above], the artist may bring an action for damages against the seller or agent. The period of limitation is three years after the sale or one year after the artist discovers that the sale was made, whichever is longer. The action must be commenced within three years after the date of sale or one year after the artist discovers the sale, whichever is longer. The prevailing party in the action will be entitled to reasonable attorney's fees, in an amount determined by the court [Civ. Code § 986(a)(3)]. Code § 1884*]. Title is not transferred to the borrower [Civ. Code § 1885].

The borrower may use a borrowed work of art only for purposes that the lender might reasonably anticipate at the time of lending [see Civ. Code § 1890] and must not part with it to a third person without the lender's consent [see Civ. Code § 1891].

§ 102E.31 Definitions

For purposes of the law governing loans to museums for indefinite terms or long terms [Civ. Code § 1899 et seq.], a museum is any institution located in California and operated by a nonprofit corporation or a public agency that is primarily educational, scientific, or aesthetic in purpose and that owns, borrows, or cares for, and studies, archives, or exhibits property [Civ. Code § 1899.1(a)]. A loan is a deposit of property with a museum that is not accompanied by a transfer of title [Civ. Code § 1899.1(c)]. Property includes all animate and inanimate tangible objects under a museum's care that have intrinsic value to science, history, art, or culture, not including botanical or zoological specimens lent to a museum for scientific-research purposes [Civ. Code § 1899.1(d)].

§ 102E.32 General Notice Requirements

When a museum is required to give a lender any notice pursuant to Civ. Code § 1899 et seq., notice is deemed to have been given if the museum mails the notice to the lender at the lender's address and receives proof of receipt within 30 days from the date the notice was mailed. If the museum does not have an address for the lender or does not receive proof of receipt, notice is deemed given if the museum publishes notice at least once a week for three successive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in both the county in which the museum is located and the county of the lender's address, if any [Civ. Code § 1899.2(a)]. For purposes of notice, a museum is located in the county of the branch of the museum to which the loan is made or, in all other instances, is located in the county in which it has its principal place of business [Civ. Code § 1899.2(c)].

In addition to any other information required to be included pursuant to Civ. Code § 1899 et seq., all notices given must contain the lender's name, the lender's most recent address as shown on the museum's records [see Civ. Code § 1899.1(b)], and the date of the loan. A notice given by the museum must also contain the name, address, and telephone number of the appropriate office or official to be contacted at the museum for information regarding the loan [Civ. Code § 1899.2(b)].

§ 102E.33 Notice Required by Museum

[1] Notice of Lender's Rights

If a museum [see Civ. Code § 1899.1(a) (definition)] accepts a loan of a work of art for an indefinite term, or for a term in excess of seven years, the museum must inform the lender in writing at the time of the loan of the provisions of Civ. Code § 1899 et seq. The form of notice contained in Civ. Code § 1899.5 or a citation to the governing code sections is sufficient [Civ. Code § 1899.3(a) (governing loans of property accepted on or after January 1, 1984); see § 102E.221 (form)]. Unless the work of art is returned to the claimant, the museum must retain for a period of not less than 25 years the original or an accurate copy of each notice filed by a claimant pursuant to Civ. Code § 1899.4 [Civ. Code § 1899.3(b); see § 102E.34].

[2] Receipt for Notice of Intent to Preserve Interest

On receiving a notice of intent to preserve an interest in the work of art, the museum must provide proof of receipt of the notice by mailing an original receipt or a copy of the receipt portion of the statutory notice form [see Civ. Code § 1899.5; § 102E.35] to the lender or other claimant at the address given on the notice within 30 days of receiving the notice [Civ. Code § 1899.3(c); see § 102E.223 (form)]. Unless the museum returns the work of art to the lender, it must retain for at least 25 years either the original or an accurate copy of each notice of intent to preserve an interest that a lender files [Civ. Code § 1899.3(b)].

[3] Notice of Injury to Work of Art

The museum must give a lender prompt notice of any known injury to or loss of the work of art [Civ. Code § 1899.3(d); see § 102E.227].

Because museums rarely relocate but, over time, lenders move or die [*see Civ. PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

B. Loan of Artwork to Museum for Indefinite or Long Term

32-102E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102E.35

§ 102E.35 Notice of Intent to Preserve Interest

The owner of artwork on loan to a museum may also file with the museum a notice of intent to preserve an interest in the artwork [Civ. Code § 1899.4(b); see Civ. Code §§ 1899.2(b), 1899.5 (general notice requirements; form for notice); § 102E.222 (form)]. However, filing a notice of intent does not validate or make enforceable any claim that would be extinguished under the terms of a written loan agreement or that would otherwise be invalid or unenforceable [Civ. Code § 1899.4(b)].

A notice of intent to preserve an interest in artwork on loan to a museum must [Civ. Code § 1899.5(a)]:

- Be in writing.
- Contain a description of the artwork adequate to enable the museum to identify it.
- Be accompanied by documentation sufficient to establish the claimant as owner.
- Be signed under penalty of perjury by the claimant or a person authorized to act on behalf of the claimant.

The museum need not retain a notice that does not meet these requirements. However, if the museum does not intend to keep a notice for this reason, it must promptly notify the claimant at the address given on the notice that the notice is ineffective and must specify why it is ineffective. The fact that a museum retains a notice cannot be construed to mean that the museum accepts the sufficiency or accuracy of the notice or that the notice is effective to preserve an interest in artwork on loan to the museum [Civ. Code § 1899.5(b)].

A notice of intent to preserve an interest in the artwork that is in substantially the form illustrated in Civ. Code § 1899.5(c) and that contains the information and attachments described in the statute satisfies the requirements [Civ. Code § 1899.5(c)].

A notice of intent filed in accordance with the law governing loans to museums for an indefinite or long term [Civ. Code § 1899 et seq.] is exempt from the disclosure requirements of the California Public Records Act [Civ. Code § 1899.5(d); see Gov. Code § 6250 et seq.].

§ 102E.36 Museum's Conservation or Disposal of Borrowed Artwork

[1] Lender's Permission Not Essential

Absent a written loan agreement to the contrary, a museum may apply conservation measures to or dispose of artwork on loan to the museum without the lender's permission, in the following situations:

- The museum may take action if immediate action is required to protect the artwork, or to protect other property in the custody of the museum, or if the artwork has become a hazard to the health and safety of the public or the museum's staff and either (1) the museum is unable to reach the lender at the lender's last address of record in order to agree on a resolution; or (2) the lender will not agree to the protective measures recommended by the museum, but is unwilling or unable to terminate the loan and retrieve the artwork [Civ. Code § 1899.6(a)(1)].
- The museum may take action if the lender cannot be contacted in person, provided the museum publishes a notice containing specified information [see Civ. Code § 1899.7(a); § 102E.228 (form)] and there is no response for 120 days [Civ. Code § 1899.6(a)(2)].

[2] Museum's Lien on Artwork

If a museum applies conservation measures to or disposes of property, as provided by statute [see Civ. Code § 1899.6(a); [1], above], it has a lien on the artwork and the proceeds from any disposition for the costs incurred [Civ. Code § 1899.6(b)(1)].

[3] Museum's Immunity From Liability for Injury or Loss

A museum is not liable for injury to or loss of borrowed artwork resulting from conservation measures or disposal if the museum had a reasonable belief at the time the action was taken that the action was necessary to protect the artwork or other property in its custody, or that the artwork constituted a hazard to the health and safety of the public or the museum's staff [Civ. Code § 1899.6(b)(2)].

In the case of conservation measures, the museum is not liable if it exercised reasonable care in the choice and application of the measures [Civ. Code § 1899.6(b)(2)].

Code § 1899.2(a)* (proof of receipt within 30 days is required for effective notice)], the museum must publish a notice as prescribed by statute at least once a week for three successive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in both the county in which the museum is located and the county of the lender's most recent address as shown in the museum's records [Civ. Code §§ 1899.2(a), 1899.7(a); see Civ. Code §§ 1899.1(b), 1899.2(b) (lender's address; additional notice requirements); see also § 102E.228 (form for notice)].

If, within three years of giving a proper notice by publication, the museum receives a notice concerning the lender's change of address, a change in ownership of the artwork, or the lender's intent to preserve an interest in the artwork [see Civ. Code § 1899.4], the museum must promptly inform the lender in writing of the nature of the injury or the fact of the loss and the approximate date of the injury or loss [Civ. Code § 1899.7(b)].

For the purposes of the applicable limitation period [Civ. Code § 1899.8; see [2], below], if the museum mails the information to the lender within 30 days of receipt of the lender's notice, the museum is deemed to have given the lender notice of the injury or loss on the date notice by publication [see Civ. Code § 1899.7(a)] was completed [Civ. Code § 1899.7(b)].

[2] Limitation Period for Lender's Action

The lender may not bring an action against the museum for damages resulting from injury or loss of artwork more than three years from the date the museum gave the lender notice of the injury or loss, or 10 years from the date of the injury or loss, whichever occurs earlier [Civ. Code § 1899.8].

B. Loan of Artwork to Museum for Indefinite or Long Term

32-102E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102E.38

§ 102E.38 Termination of Loan by Museum

The museum may give the lender notice of the museum's intent to terminate a loan of artwork for an indefinite term or a loan made after 1983 for a term longer than seven years. The notice must include a statement containing substantially the information set forth in Civ. Code § 1899.9(a) [Civ. Code § 1899.9(a); see Civ. Code § 1899.2(a), (b) (when notice to lender is given); see also § 102E.229 (form)].

A loan for a specified term becomes a loan for an indefinite term if the artwork remains in the custody of the museum when the specified term expires [Civ. Code § 1899.9(b)].

32-102E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102E.39

§ 102E.39 Lender's Recovery of Artwork From Museum

[1] Limitation of Action

The lender may not bring an action to recover artwork from the museum more than three years from the date the museum gave the lender notice of its intention to terminate the loan [Civ. Code § 1899.10(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 338].

With specified exceptions [see Civ. Code § 1899.10(e); [2], below], the lender may not bring an action to recover artwork from the museum more than 25 years after the date of the last written contact between the lender and the museum, as evidenced in the museum's records [Civ. Code § 1899.10(b) (effective January 1, 1985)].

The lender will be deemed to have donated the artwork to the museum if the lender fails to file an action to recover the artwork within the applicable limitation period [Civ. Code § 1899.10(c)]. A person who buys the artwork from the museum acquires good title to the property if the museum represents that it acquired title pursuant to this statute [Civ. Code § 1899.10(d)].

[2] Recovery After Museum Failed to Give Notice

The lender may be entitled to recover the artwork or, if the museum has disposed of it, its reasonable value at the time of disposition plus the legal rate of interest, if the lender proves both (1) that the museum did not notify the lender of the museum's intent to terminate the loan and (2) that the museum received a notice of the lender's intent to preserve an interest in the artwork within the 25 years immediately preceding the date on which the lender's right to recover the artwork otherwise would have expired [Civ. Code § 1899.10(e)].

B. Preliminary Determinations

32-102E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102E.110

§ 102E.110 Sale or Consignment of Fine Art Multiples

1. Determine whether subject work is fine art multiple covered by disclosure requirements [see Civ. Code § 1740(a); see also Civ. Code § 1742 et seq. (disclosure requirements)], namely any of following:

- a. Fine print [see Civ. Code § 1740(b) (definition); see also § 102E.13[2]].
- b. Positive or negative photograph.
- c. Sculpture cast.
- d. Collage.
- e. Similar artwork produced in more than one copy.
- f. Pages or sheets taken from book or magazine and sold or offered for sale as art objects.

NOTE:

Intact books and magazines are excluded from the definition of fine art multiple [Civ. Code § 1740(a)].

2. Determine whether transaction is subject to disclosure requirements because following conditions exist:

a. Sale, consignment, or offer [see Civ. Code § 1742(b)] will be made into or from California by any of following [see Civ. Code § 1742(a), (b), (e)]:

- (1) Artist [see Civ. Code § 1740(d) (definition); see also § 102E.13[2]].

(2) Art dealer [see Civ. Code § 1740(g) (definition); see also § 102E.13[2]].

(3) Auctioneer selling fine art multiple(s) at public auction [Civ. Code § 1740(g)].

NOTE:

The disclosure requirements do not apply to any charitable organization that conducts a sale or auction of fine art multiples, as long as the organization posts a disclaimer of any knowledge of the information required to be included in the certificate of authenticity, in a conspicuous place at the site of the sale or auction [Civ. Code § 1742.6; see § 102E.202]. The organization must also include this disclaimer in any catalog distributed with respect to the sale or auction. Any art dealer engaged to conduct the sale or auction will be subject to all applicable disclosure requirements [Civ. Code § 1742.6].

b. Fine art multiple will be offered or sold for $100 or more, wholesale or retail, exclusive of any frame [see Civ. Code § 1741].

3. If client is art dealer, determine whether dealer has made reasonable inquiries, according to trade custom and usage, concerning information required to be disclosed in certificate of authenticity [see Civ. Code §§ 1744.7, 1745(f)].

- a. Painting.
- b. Sculpture.
- c. Drawing.
- d. Work of graphic art, including etching, lithograph, offset print, silk screen, or work of graphic art of like nature.
- e. Work of calligraphy.
- f. Work in mixed media, including collage, assemblage, or any combination of media listed above.

2. Determine whether transaction is covered by statutes governing consignment of fine art because following conditions exist [see Civ. Code § 1738 et seq.].

- a. Transaction involves artist's delivery of work of fine art to art dealer for purpose of exhibition, sale, or both, on commission, fee, or other basis of compensation [see Civ. Code § 1738.5].
- b. Transaction is entered into in California [see Civ. Code § 1738.5].

c. If transaction is pursuant to written contract executed before 1976, parties either [see Civ. Code § 1738.9]:

1. Agreed mutually and in writing that statute applies to contract.

- a. Original painting.
- b. Original sculpture.
- c. Original drawing.
- d. Original work of art in glass, other than work permanently attached to real property and sold as part of sale of real property [see Civ. Code § 986(b)(7)].

2. Determine whether artist is entitled to royalties because following conditions exist:

- a. At time of sale, artist is either [see Civ. Code § 986(c)(1)]:
 - (1) U.S. citizen.
 - (2) Resident of California for minimum of two years.
- b. Seller resides in California or sale will take place in California [see Civ. Code § 986(a)].
- c. Gross sale price or fair market value of property exchanged for work will be $1,000 or more [see Civ. Code § 986(b)(2), (5)].
- d. If sale is not initial sale, gross sale price will be at least as much as seller paid for work [see Civ. Code § 986(b)(4)].

e. If artist is deceased, date of death was after January 1, 1983 [see Civ. Code § 986(a)(7), (b)(3)].

f. If sale is resale of work by art dealer [see Civ. Code § 986(b)(6)]:

1. Sale will take place more than 10 years after initial sale of work to art dealer.
2. At least one intervening resale occurred during that period to non-art-dealer buyer.

(2) If edition is being offered as limited edition [see Civ. Code § 1744(a)(10), (c)-(e)]:

(a) Authorized maximum number of signed and/or numbered impressions in edition.

(b) Authorized maximum number of unsigned and/or unnumbered impressions in edition.

(c) Authorized maximum number of artist's, publisher's, or other proofs, if any, outside regular edition.

(d) Total size of edition.

NOTE:

If the fine art multiple is part of a limited edition printed after January 1, 1983, the statement regarding the edition's size constitutes an express warranty that no additional fine art multiples of the same image have been produced [Civ. Code § 1744(b)].

(3) Whether master was destroyed, effaced, altered, defaced, or canceled after current edition [see Civ. Code § 1744(a)(11), (c)-(e)].

h. If fine art multiple was produced after January 1, 1983, statement of number of fine art multiples, including proofs, in all other editions produced from master that either [see Civ. Code § 1744(a)(8), (c)-(e)]:

(1) Produced prior limited edition.

(2) Constituted or was made from reproduction or surmoulage of earlier fine art multiple or master that produced prior limited edition.

2. Prepare sale contract.

NOTE:

As a general rule, a contract for the sale of goods for $500 or more is unenforceable unless memorialized by a writing that (1) indicates that a contract was made and (2) bears the signature of the party against whom enforcement is sought, or that party's agent or broker [Com. Code § 2201(1); but see Com. Code § 2201(3), (4) (exceptions)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 52, Sales of Goods Under the Uniform Commercial Code, and Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions.

a. Indicate price term by providing for either:

- (1) Specific price if agreed-on at time contract is executed.
- (2) Appraisal to determine price.
- (3) Determination by third party.

b. Set forth payment terms.

(1) Specify method of payment as, for example:

- (a) Cash.
- (b) Personal check.
- (c) Cashier's check or bank draft.
- (d) Other property.

(2) Specify time of payment, such as:

- (a) Prepayment.
- (b) Deposit with remainder due on delivery.
- (c) Payment in full on delivery.
- (d) Installment payments.

NOTE:

Unless otherwise agreed, payment is due on delivery [Com. Code § 2310(a)]. If at least one installment payment is called for after the close of the taxable year in which the transaction occurs, income from the sale generally must be reported on the installment method [I.R.C. § 453(a), (b)(1), (d)(1)].

c. Specify rate of interest, if any.

NOTE:

In the case of a sale for more than $3,000, interest income will be imputed on the amounts of any payments made later than six months from the date of sale when (1) some or all of the payments are due more than one year from the date of sale, and (2) the sales contract calls for either no interest or very low interest [see I.R.C. § 483(c)(1), (d)(2)]. The amount of interest imputed will depend on regulations in effect at the time of the sale [see I.R.C. § 483(a), (b)(2)].

d. Specify point in time at which duty to insure subject artwork and risk of loss or injury will pass from seller to buyer [see Com. Code § 2509 (statutory allocation of risk in absence of parties' agreement)].

3. Execute and deliver certificate of authenticity and invoice or contract to buyer before sale or consignment [see Civ. Code § 1742(a)].

NOTE:

The form provided in this chapter combines the certificate and an invoice [see § 102E.200].

4. Instruct seller (artist or art dealer) to retain copy of certificate and invoice or contract.

5. For art dealer regularly engaged in sales of fine art multiples [see Civ. Code § 1742(c)]:

a. Draft notice [see § 102E.201] containing abbreviated version of statutory disclosure requirements [see Civ. Code § 1744(a)].

b. Post notice in conspicuous place in each place of business in California where dealer is regularly engaged in such sales.

6. For charitable organization engaged in sale or auction of fine art multiples, when applicable [see Civ. Code § 1742.6; § 102E.110]:

a. Draft disclaimer of knowledge regarding information required to be disclosed [see Civ. Code § 1744(a); see also § 102E.202].

b. Post disclaimer in conspicuous place at site of sale or auction.

§ 102E.121 Consignment of Fine Art to Art Dealer

1. Prepare consignment agreement to include [see § 102E.210]:

NOTE:

The existence of a written, signed consignment agreement is not necessary to invoke the protections afforded to artists by the statutes governing consignment of fine art [see Civ. Code § 1738.5]. Moreover, any provision of a contract or agreement under which an artist waives any provision contained in the statutes is void [Civ. Code § 1738.8].

a. Description of artwork to be consigned [see Civ. Code § 1738(b) (works covered by consignment statutes); see also § 102E.12[2]].

b. Delivery terms:

(1) Party responsible for delivery.

(2) Delivery date.

(3) Place of delivery.

NOTE:

The statutes governing consignments apply only to works delivered to art dealers in California [Civ. Code § 1738.5].

c. Purpose of consignment:

(1) Exhibition.

(2) Sale.

(3) Exhibition and sale.

d. Sale terms, if applicable:

(1) Price or minimum price.

(2) Any limitations as to manner of payment.

e. Exhibition terms, if applicable:

(1) Place where work will be exhibited.

(2) Dates of exhibition.

(3) Whether works of other artists will be included in exhibition.

f. Fee or commission provisions:

(1) Amount or percentage of price due to art dealer on sale.

(2) If parties do not want proceeds of sale to be applied first to any balance owed by dealer to artist, express statement to this effect [see Civ. Code § 1738.6(d)].

g. Art dealer's obligations:

(1) Statement that dealer is responsible for loss or injury of artwork during commission period [Civ. Code § 1738.6(c)].

(2) Statement that artwork is held in trust by dealer for artist during commission period [Civ. Code § 1738.6(b)].

NOTE:

After the work is delivered to the art dealer, the dealer becomes an agent of the artist for the purpose of sale or exhibition of the consigned work within California [Civ. Code § 1738.6(a)].

h. If agreement is exclusive as to either party or both parties, statement of this fact.

2. Obtain signatures of both parties on agreement and deliver copy of agreement to each party.

3. Arrange for delivery of artwork to art dealer.

4. On sale of artwork, arrange for dealer's payment of:

a. Proceeds of sale to be paid to artist [see Civ. Code § 1738.6(d)].

b. Royalties, if applicable [see Civ. Code § 986; see also § 102E.122].

5. On consignor's written demand, have consignee provide written accounting for transaction of $50 or more, setting forth [Penal Code § 536a]:

- a. Description and quantity of goods sold.
- b. Sale price.
- c. Name and address of buyer.

1. If representing art dealer in transaction in which royalties are due to artist [see Civ. Code § 986; see also § 102E.112], instruct art dealer to pay royalty of 5 percent of price or amount agreed on by parties in writing, whichever is larger, to either:

a. Artist [Civ. Code § 986(a)(1)].

b. Artist's heirs, legatees, or personal representative, if artist has been deceased for less than 20 years [Civ. Code § 986(a)(7)].

c. California Arts Council, if dealer cannot locate and pay artist or artist's heirs, legatees, or personal representative within 90 days after sale [Civ. Code § 986(a)(2); see § 102E.16[2]].

2. If representing artist or artist's heirs, legatees, or personal representative concerning royalties due under *Civ. C. Procedural Guide to Sale and Loan of Artwork

32-102E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102E.123

§ 102E.123 Loan of Artwork to Museum

1. Draft loan agreement [see §§ 102E.220, 102E.221].
 - a. Include basic provisions, as applicable, for example:
 - (1) Museum's name, address, and telephone number.
 - (2) Lender's name, address, and telephone number.
 - (3) Owner's name, address, and telephone number, if different from lender.
 - (4) Artist's name, address, and telephone number.
 - (5) Identification and description of artwork.
 - (6) Whether museum may reproduce artwork for publicity or other purposes.
 - (7) Party responsible for insurance coverage.
 - (8) Party responsible for shipping costs.
 - (9) Term of loan.
 - (10) Degree of care required for safekeeping.
 - (11) Conditions of return of artwork.

b. If loan is for indefinite term or term longer than seven years [see Civ. Code § 1899.3(a)], cover following matters addressed in Civ. Code § 1899 et seq. [see, e.g., § 102E.221]:

NOTE:

Although many of these matters are not required to be included in the agreement, it is good practice to include them, so that both parties are on notice of their respective statutory rights and responsibilities with respect to the artwork [see § 102E.221].

(1) Injury or loss of artwork [see Civ. Code § 1899.3(d); see § 102E.130].

(2) Conservation measures necessary to protect artwork [see Civ. Code § 1899.6; see also § 102E.131].

(3) Museum's decision to terminate loan [see Civ. Code § 1899.9(a); see also § 102E.133].

(4) Lender's notice of intent to preserve interest [see Civ. Code § 1899.5; see also P (4), below].

(5) Disposal of unclaimed artwork [see Civ. Code §§ 1899.10, 1899.11; see also § 102E.134].

c. Obtain signatures of lender and appropriate museum officer.

2. Provide copies of signed loan agreement to each party.

3. If representing museum concerning loan for indefinite term or term longer than seven years, do all of following:

a. Draft notice informing lender of provisions of Civ. Code § 1899 et seq. governing loan to museums for indefinite or long term [see Civ. Code § 1899.3(a); see also Civ. Code §§ 1899.2(b), 1899.5(c) (additional information required; optional form for notice); § 102E.222].

NOTE:

The museum may fulfill its duty to inform the lender of the provisions of Civ. Code § 1899 et seq. by providing the lender with either a statutory form of notice [see Civ. Code § 1899.5(c)] or a citation to Civ. Code § 1899 et seq. [Civ. Code § 1899.3(a)].

b. Provide notice to lender in person or mail notice to lender at lender's address, return receipt requested [Civ. Code § 1899.2(a)].

c. If lender or another claimant returns completed notice of intent to preserve interest in subject artwork:

(1) Mail proof of receipt to lender within 30 days [see Civ. Code § 1899.3(c); see also Civ. Code § 1899.5(c) (receipt form); §§ 102E.222, 102E.223].

(2) Instruct museum to retain original or copy of notice for at least 25 years [see Civ. Code § 1899.3(b)].

d. If notice of intent to preserve interest is defective, promptly notify lender or claimant as follows [see Civ. Code § 1899.5(b); see also § 102E.224]:

(1) Mail notice stating that notice of intent to preserve interest is believed to be ineffective, and reasons for belief, to claimant at address given in notice of intent to preserve interest [see Civ. Code § 1899.5(b); see also Civ. Code § 1899.2(a), (b)].

(2) If proof of claimant's receipt of notice is not received within 30 days after mailing, publish notice as follows [see Civ. Code § 1899.2(a)]:

(a) At least weekly for three successive weeks.

(b) In newspaper of general circulation in both [see Civ. Code § 1899.2(c)]:

(i) County of lender's address.

(ii) County in which branch of museum to which loan was made is located.

NOTE:

The museum need not retain a notice that does not meet the statutory requirements. However, if the museum does not intend to retain a notice because the notice is defective, the museum must promptly notify the claimant at the address given on the notice that it believes the notice is ineffective to preserve an interest, and the reason it is ineffective [see Civ. Code § 1899.5(b); see also Civ. Code §§ 1899.2(b), 1899.5(a) (required contents of notice); § 102E.224].

4. If representing lender, do all of following:

a. On receiving notice from museum, prepare notice of intent to preserve interest in subject artwork [see Civ. Code § 1899.5(a); see also § 102E.222].

b. Have lender sign form under penalty of perjury [see Civ. Code § 1899.5(a)].

c. Send to museum both [see Civ. Code § 1899.5(a)]:

(1) Notice.

(2) Proof of ownership of subject artwork.

d. Instruct lender to retain proof of receipt when received from museum [see Civ. Code § 1899.3(c); see also §§ 102E.222, 102E.223].

32-102E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102E.131

§ 102E.131 Museum's Conservation or Disposition of Artwork

1. Determine whether loan agreement provides for museum's conservation or disposition of borrowed artwork.

NOTE:

If the loan agreement provides for conservation or disposition, the terms of the loan agreement will govern [Civ. Code § 1899.6(a)].

2. Notify lender that subject artwork requires conservation or disposition, by:

- a. Mailing notice to lender's last known address, return receipt requested [see Civ. Code § 1899.2(a); see also § 102E.225].

- b. If museum does not have current address for lender, or lender does not respond to notice within 30 days of mailing, publishing notice as follows [see Civ. Code §§ 1899.2(a), 1899.6(a)(2), 1899.7(a); see also § 102E.226]:

- (1) At least weekly for three successive weeks.

- (2) In newspaper of general circulation in both [see Civ. Code § 1899.2(c)]:

- (a) County of lender's address.

- (b) County in which branch of museum to which loan was made is located.

3. If lender cannot be contacted in person and does not respond to notice by publication within 120 days, or will not agree to either comply with museum's recommendations or terminate loan and retrieve artwork, proceed with conservation or disposition without lender's permission, but only if immediate action is required to protect one or more of following [see Civ. Code § 1899.6(a)]:

NOTE:

Civ. Code § 1899.6(a)(2) does not state whether the 120-day period begins to run when the notice is first published or after it has been published once a week for three successive weeks. In view of this uncertainty, the better practice would be to wait until 120 days after the end of the publication period before undertaking any conservation measures or disposing of the property. If the conservation or disposition measures are undertaken lawfully, the museum will have a lien on the artwork and on the proceeds from any disposition of the artwork for its conservation or disposition costs [Civ. Code § 1899.6(b)(1)]. Moreover, the museum will not be liable for injury or loss of the artwork if it had a reasonable belief at the time it took the action that the action was necessary, and if it exercised reasonable care in the choice and application of conservation measures [Civ. Code § 1899.6(b)(2)].

- a. Subject artwork.
- b. Other property in museum's custody.
- c. Health and safety of public.
- d. Health and safety of museum's staff.

 - a. Promptly notify lender of loss or damage, in writing mailed to lender's address, return receipt requested [see Civ. Code §§ 1899.2(a), 1899.3(d); see also Civ. Code § 1899.2(b) (required contents of notices); § 102E.227].
 - b. Wait 30 days to receive proof of lender's receipt of notice.
 - c. If lender responds, museum need take no further steps.
2. If museum does not have lender's address or does not receive proof that lender received mailed notice, take following steps:
 - a. Publish notice [see Civ. Code § 1899.7(a) (form for notice); see also § 102E.228] as follows [see Civ. Code § 1899.2(a)]:
 - (1) At least weekly for three successive weeks.
 - (2) In newspapers of general circulation in [see Civ. Code § 1899.2(c)]:
 - (a) County of museum's location.
 - (b) County of lender's address, if any.
 - b. If museum receives notice of intent to preserve interest in artwork from lender or other claimant within three years of publishing notice of injury or loss, take following steps [see Civ. Code § 1899.7(b)]:

(1) Draft notice [see Civ. Code § 1899.2(b) (required contents of notices)] advising claimant in writing of:

(a) Nature of injury or fact of loss.

(b) Approximate date of injury or loss.

(2) Mail notice to claimant within 30 days of receiving claimant's notice.

NOTE:

If the museum mails the information to the claimant within 30 days of receiving the claimant's notice, the three-year limitation period for filing an action against the museum [see Civ. Code § 1899.8] runs from the date the notice by publication was completed [Civ. Code § 1899.7(b)].

§ 102E.133 Museum's Notice of Intent to Terminate Loan of Artwork

NOTE:

A lender may not bring an action to recover artwork from a museum more than three years from the date the museum gives the lender notice of its intention to terminate the loan [Civ. Code § 1899.10(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 338]. The lender is deemed to have donated the artwork to the museum if the lender fails to file an action to recover it within that period [Civ. Code § 1899.10(c)].

1. Determine whether museum may give notice of intent to terminate loan if either [see Civ. Code § 1899.9(a)]:

- a. Loan is for indefinite term.
- b. Loan was made on or after January 1, 1984, for term longer than seven years.

NOTE:

A loan for a specified term becomes a loan for an indefinite term if the artwork remains in the custody of the museum when the specified term expires [Civ. Code § 1899.9(b)].

2. If museum has lender's address, take following steps:

- a. Draft notice of intent to terminate loan [see Civ. Code § 1899.9(a)] (form for notice); see also Civ. Code § 1899.2(b) (required contents of notices); § 102E.229].

32-102E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102E.200

§ 102E.200 Invoice and Certificate of Authenticity for Sale of Fine Art Multiple

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form combines an invoice and a certificate of authenticity; it can be used by either an artist or an art dealer [see Civ. Code § 1740(d), (g) (definitions); see also § 102E.13[2]] in documenting the sale of a fine art multiple for $100 or more, exclusive of any frame [see Civ. Code § 1741].

This form includes all of the information that must be disclosed for sales of fine art multiples created after January 1, 1983. More-limited information is required for multiples produced from 1950 to January 1, 1983 [see Civ. Code § 1744(c)], from 1900 to 1949 [see Civ. Code § 1744(d)], and before 1900 [see Civ. Code § 1744(e)]. This form may be modified accordingly.

A fine art multiple is any fine print, positive or negative photograph, sculpture cast, collage, or similar art object produced in more than one copy. Pages or sheets taken from books and magazines and offered for sale or sold as art objects are included in this definition, but intact books and magazines are not [Civ. Code § 1740(a)]. A fine print (or a print) is a fine art multiple produced by, but not limited to, engraving, etching, woodcutting, lithography, and serigraphy, or produced or developed from photographic negatives, or by any combination of these methods [Civ. Code § 1740(b)].

An artist who sells or consigns a fine art multiple of his or her own creation or conception into or from California must disclose the information required by Civ. Code § 1744 [Civ. Code § 1742(e); see [b], below]. Art dealers that sell or consign fine art multiples into or from California must also disclose this information [Civ. Code § 1742(a)].

A charitable organization that conducts a sale or auction of fine art multiples is exempt from the disclosure requirements of Civ. Code § 1744 if it posts in a conspicuous place, at the site of the sale or auction, a disclaimer of any knowledge of the information required to be disclosed by Civ. Code § 1744, and includes this disclaimer in any catalog distributed by the organization with respect to the sale or auction of fine art multiples. However, an art dealer used or employed by a charitable organization to conduct the sale or auction of fine art multiples is subject to all disclosure requirements regulating the sale of fine art multiples [Civ. Code § 1742.6].

For a consignment agreement between an artist and an art dealer, see § 102E.210[2].

[b] Required Disclosures

The certificate of authenticity provided by an artist or an art dealer to a buyer or consignee must contain the following information [Civ. Code §§ 1742(a), (e), 1744]:

- The artist's name.
- If the artist's name appears on the fine art multiple and the fine art multiple was produced after 1899: a statement of the source (such as a signature or stamp) [see Civ. Code § 1744(a)(2), (c)-(e)].
- A clear description of the medium or process and, if pertinent to photographic processes, the material used to produce the fine art multiple.
- If the fine art multiple or the image on or in the master [see Civ. Code § 1740(c) (definition)] is adapted from an image produced in a different medium, for a purpose other than creation of the subject fine art multiple, and the fine art multiple was produced after 1949: a description of the respective media and means of reproduction used (such as photomechanical means, photography, or surmoulage).
- If the fine art multiple was produced after December 31, 1982, and is not signed, a statement whether the artist authorized or approved, in writing, the fine art multiple or the edition containing the fine art multiple.
- If the fine art multiple was produced after 1949 and was made after the artist's death, or both the master and the fine art multiple were made after the artist's death, a statement of this fact.
- If the fine art multiple was produced after December 31, 1982, a statement of the number of fine art multiples, including proofs [see Civ. Code § 1740(i) (definition)], of all other editions produced from a master that produced a prior limited edition [see Civ. Code § 1740(h) (definition)] or constituted or was made from a reproduction or surmoulage of an earlier fine art multiple or master that produced a prior limited edition.
- If the fine art multiple was produced after 1949, the year or approximate year of production.
- If the fine art multiple was produced before 1950, the year or approximate year when the master was made and when the fine art multiple was produced.
- If the fine art multiple was produced after 1949, a statement of whether the edition is being offered as a limited edition and, if so, the authorized maximum number of signed and/or numbered, and unsigned and/or unnumbered, impressions [see Civ. Code § 1740(f) (definition)] in the edition, and the authorized maximum number of artist's, publisher's, or other proofs, if any, outside the regular edition, and the total size of the edition.
- If the fine art multiple was produced after 1949, a statement of whether the master was destroyed, effaced, altered, defaced, or canceled after the current edition.

If the fine art multiple is part of a limited edition printed after January 1, 1983, the statement regarding the edition's size will constitute an express warranty that no additional fine art multiples of the same image have been produced [Civ. Code § 1744(b)].

In addition to the above information, every certificate of authenticity must contain the following statement: "This is to certify that all information and the statements contained herein are true and correct" [Civ. Code § 1740(j)].

[c] Timing of Disclosure

The information must be given to the buyer or consignee on request, or in any event before a sale or consignment. If a prospective buyer so requests, the information must be transmitted before the payment or placing of an order for a multiple. If payment is made by a buyer before delivery of a multiple, this information must be supplied at the time of, or before, delivery [Civ. Code § 1742(a)].

If the fine art multiple is to be sold by auction, the required information may be furnished in catalogs or other written materials made readily available to consult and buy before the sale. However, a bill of sale, receipt, or invoice describing the transaction must then be provided that refers to the catalog and lot number in which the information was supplied [Civ. Code § 1742(a)].

[d] Liability for False or Inadequate Disclosures

Failure to comply with the disclosure requirements, or other violations of the disclosure statutes, may expose an artist or an art dealer to actions for injunctive relief, civil penalties, and civil penalty surcharges [Civ. Code § 1745.5(a), (c), (d); see Com. Code §§ 2102, 2104, 2105, 2701 et seq. (additional remedies under UCC); see also Ch. 52, Sales of Goods Under the Uniform Commercial Code].

An art dealer will be liable to a buyer of a fine art multiple for the price plus interest if the dealer fails to provide a certificate of authenticity, or provides one containing mistaken, erroneous, or untrue information, other than harmless errors such as typographical mistakes [Civ. Code § 1745(a)]. Willful violations of the disclosure statutes may expose an art dealer to liability for three times the price plus interest [Civ. Code § 1745(b)].

An artist who consigns a fine art multiple to an art dealer for the purpose of selling that fine art multiple will not be liable to a buyer if the artist has made the required disclosures to the art dealer [Civ. Code § 1744.9(a)].

For further discussion, see § 102E.13[4][h] and California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 57, Art (Matthew Bender).

[e] Sale Contract Requirements

As a general rule, a contract for the sale of goods for $500 or more is unenforceable unless memorialized by a writing that (1) indicates that a contract was made and (2) bears the signature of the party against whom enforcement is sought, or that party's agent or broker [Com. Code § 2201(1); but see Com. Code § 2201(3), (4) (exceptions)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 52, Sales of Goods Under the Uniform Commercial Code , and Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions .

§ 102E.201 Art Dealer's Notice Concerning Disclosure Requirements

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a notice that must be posted by an art dealer who is regularly engaged in sales of fine art multiples [see Civ. Code § 1740(a) (definition)]. The information contained in this notice must be posted, in a conspicuous place and in a legible format, in each place of business in California in which the art dealer is regularly engaged in sales of fine art multiples [Civ. Code § 1742(c)].

For discussion of the disclosure requirements referred to in this form, and a sample disclosure form, called a certificate of authenticity [see Civ. Code §§ 1742(a), 1744(a)], see § 102E.200.

For purposes of this requirement, an art dealer is any individual, partnership, corporation, limited liability company, association, or other entity, however organized, that either (1) is in the business of dealing exclusively or nonexclusively in fine art multiples or (2) by occupation holds itself out as having knowledge or skill peculiar to these works, or to whom that knowledge or skill may be attributed because of employing an agent or other intermediary who, by virtue of his or her occupation, holds himself or herself out as having that knowledge or skill [Civ. Code § 1740(g), (k)].

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a disclaimer to be used by a charitable organization in connection with the sale or auction of fine art multiples [see Civ. Code § 1740(a) (definition)] by the organization.

Art dealers [see Civ. Code § 1740(g) (definition)] and artists must provide specified information, in the form of a document called a certificate of authenticity, to consignees and buyers of fine art multiples sold in California for $100 or more, exclusive of any frame [Civ. Code §§ 1741, 1742(a), 1744(a); see § 102E.200[2] (form)]. However, a charitable organization that conducts a sale or auction of fine art multiples may be exempted from this requirement. To qualify for the exemption, the organization must post, in a conspicuous place at the site of the sale or auction, a disclaimer of any knowledge of the information required to be included in a certificate of authenticity. The disclaimer must also be included in any catalog distributed by the organization with respect to the sale or auction [Civ. Code § 1742.6]. (The exemption statute does not define "charitable organization.")

If the charitable organization uses or employs an art dealer to conduct a sale or auction of fine art multiples, the art dealer must comply with the disclosure requirements [Civ. Code § 1742.6].

B. Consignment of Fine Art

32-102E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102E.210

§ 102E.210 Consignment Agreement

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a consignment agreement between the creator of a work of fine art (the artist) and a person engaged in the business of selling works of fine art (an art dealer). It may be used also by an heir, legatee, or personal representative of a deceased artist who enters into a consignment agreement with an art dealer [see Civ. Code § 1738(a)].

The agreement allows the art dealer to exhibit and sell or to sell the work under specified conditions. It includes payment terms for the dealer's and artist's commissions. (The artist's residual rights in the sale of his or her work, provided by Civ. Code § 986 are discussed in [e], below.) If the art dealer and the artist have agreed that the dealer will exhibit the artist's works without offering them for sale, this agreement can be modified accordingly.

An artist who sells or consigns a fine art multiple of his or her own creation or conception, into or from California, must disclose the information required by Civ. Code § 1744 in a certificate of authenticity [see Civ. Code §§ 1740(a), 1742(a), (e), 1744(a)]. The certificate may be attached to this agreement. For a detailed discussion of the certificate's disclosure requirements and a sample form, see § 102E.200.

For discussion of contracts generally, see Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions .

[b] Definitions

The statutes governing consignment agreements between artists and art dealers cover agreements concerning fine art only [see Civ. Code § 1738 et seq.]. In this context, "fine art" means a painting, sculpture, drawing, work of graphic art (including an etching, lithograph, offset print, silk screen, or a work of graphic art of like nature), work of calligraphy, or work in mixed media (including a collage, an assemblage, or any combination of the media listed above) [Civ. Code § 1738(b)].

The artist is the person who created the work of fine art or, if that person is deceased, his or her heir, legatee, or personal representative [Civ. Code § 1738(a)]. An art dealer is a person engaged in the business of selling works of fine art, other than a person exclusively engaged in the business of selling goods at public auction [Civ. Code § 1738(c)].

A consignment of fine art is an agreement under which no title to, estate in, or right to possession of a work of fine art, superior to that of the artist, vests in the art dealer, notwithstanding the dealer's power or authority to transfer and convey to a third person all of the artist's right, title, and interest in the work [Civ. Code § 1738(e)].

[c] Waivers Void

The general purpose of the statutes governing consignment is to protect artists by defining the art dealer's duties toward the artist [see Civ. Code §§ 1738.6-1738.8]. Accordingly, any provision of a contract or agreement under which an artist or his or her heir, legatee, or personal representative waives any provision contained in the statutes is void [Civ. Code § 1738.8]. Moreover, no trade custom, practice, or usage will preclude the creation of a consignment, as provided by statute [Civ. Code § 1738.5; see Civ. Code § 1738.6 (results of consignment); see also § 102E.12[3], [4] (creation and effect of consignment)].

The Civil Code statutes supersede any conflicting or inconsistent provisions of the Commercial Code regarding consignments of fine art [Civ. Code § 1738.9].

For a detailed discussion of the consignment of fine art, see § 102E.12.

[d] Exempt Transactions

The statutes governing consignments do not apply to:

- Delivery of a work of fine art to an art dealer pursuant to an outright sale of the work for which the artist receives or has received full compensation on delivery [Civ. Code § 1738.5].
- Consignment of a work of fine art to a person exclusively engaged in the business of selling goods at public auction [Civ. Code § 1738(c)].
- Consignment of a work of fine art pursuant to a written contract executed before January 1, 1976, unless (1) the parties agree that the statutes apply, mutually and in writing, or (2) the contract is extended or renewed after January 1, 1976 [Civ. Code § 1738.9].

[e] Artist's Royalties

With specified exceptions [see Civ. Code § 986(b); § 102E.16[3]], artists who are either U.S. citizens or California residents who have resided in California for a minimum of two years are entitled to collect a 5 percent royalty on the price of works of fine art that are sold in California or that are sold by a seller who resides in California [Civ. Code § 986(a), (c)(1); see Civ. Code § 986(c)(2) (statute applies only to works constituting fine art)].

This right may be waived only by a written contract providing for royalties in an amount in excess of 5 percent of the price [Civ. Code § 986(a)].

For detailed discussion of the artist's royalty rights, including exceptions to the rule, see § 102E.16.

[f] Disclosure Requirements for Fine Art Multiples

An artist who consigns, into or from California, a fine art multiple of his or her creation or conception to an art dealer must disclose specified information concerning the fine art multiple [Civ. Code §§ 1742(a), (e), 1744(a)]. The information is disclosed in a certificate of authenticity [see Civ. Code § 1744(a); § 102E.200].

For purposes of the disclosure requirements, a fine art multiple is any fine print, positive or negative photograph, sculpture cast, collage, or similar art object produced in more than one copy. Pages or sheets taken from books and magazines and offered for sale or sold as art objects are included in this definition, but intact books and magazines are not [Civ. Code § 1740(a)]. A fine print is a fine art multiple produced by engraving, etching, woodcutting, lithography, or serigraphy, or produced or developed from photographic negatives, or by any combination of these methods [Civ. Code § 1740(b)].

For further discussion of disclosure requirement for fine art multiples, see §§ 102E.13, 102E.200.

Consignment Agreement Between Artist and Art Dealer

ART CONSIGNMENT AGREEMENT

Artist's Name: _____
 Artist's Address: _____
 Artist's Telephone Number: _____
 Artist's E-mail Address: _____

Art Dealer's Name: _____
 Art Dealer's Address: _____
 Art Dealer's Telephone Number: _____
 Art Dealer's E-mail Address: _____

This is an agreement between _____ [name of artist] (Artist) and _____ [name of art dealer] (Art Dealer).

1. Appointment of Art Dealer as Artist's Agent. The Artist appoints the Art Dealer as agent for the works of art (Artwork) consigned under this agreement for the purpose of [exhibition and sale or sale]. The artworks may not be used for any other purpose without the Artist's written consent.

2. Consignment of Art Work to Art Dealer. The Artist consigns to the Art Dealer, and the Art Dealer accepts on consignment, the Artwork listed on the attached Consignment Sheets and on additional Consignment Sheets that may be incorporated into this Agreement if both parties agree to the consignment of other works of art. All Consignment Sheets must be signed by the Artist and a representative of the Art Dealer.

3. Term of Agreement. This contract is valid for one year from the date of signature, and is renewable yearly on the terms and conditions specified in this contract.

4. Commissions, Payment, and Related Matters. The Artwork is accepted by the Art Dealer on a [percentage, commonly 50 percent] commission basis, with the Artist's [percentage, e.g., 50 percent] to be paid to the Artist. The parties acknowledge that California law provides that (1) proceeds from the sale of the Artwork constitute funds held in trust by the Art Dealer for the benefit of the Artist, and the proceeds must first be applied to pay any balance due the Artist; (2) if the Art Dealer directly or indirectly buys a work received on consignment for the Art Dealer's own account, the work remains trust property until the Art Dealer has paid the price in full to the Artist; and (3) if the work is resold to a bona fide buyer before the artist has been paid in full, the proceeds of the resale constitute funds held in trust by the Art Dealer for the benefit of the Artist, to the extent necessary to pay the balance due the artist. The parties therefore agree:

(a) The Art Dealer will make every effort to send payment to the Artist for Artwork sold within 30 days following the date of completed sale. If the Art Dealer requires more time for payment, it will contact the Artist and make arrangements. In any event, payment may not be delayed more than _____ [e.g., 60 or 90] days.

(b) The retail price of the Artwork may not be changed without the consent of the Artist, with the exception of standard dealer discounts, which will be deducted from the Art Dealer's commission.

(c) Title to the Artwork will remain with the Artist until the Artist is paid in full, at which time title will pass directly to the buyer.

(d) The Art Dealer assumes the risk of a buyer's bad credit. All losses because of bad credit will be borne by the Art Dealer.

5. Location of Exhibit or Sale. The Art Dealer will [exhibit and sell or sell] the Artwork at _____ [gallery address].

6. Delivery. The Artist will deliver the Artwork to the address specified in this agreement on or before _____ [date]. The Artist may withdraw the Artwork on demand with a 30-day notice, or other notice deemed reasonable by the Art Dealer. The Artist will pay any postage and shipping.

7. Removal. No Artwork may be removed from the Art Dealer's premises for the purpose of rental or installment sales without the Artist's consent, except as follows:

(a) The Artist agrees that the Artwork may be removed from the Art Dealer's gallery for the purpose of being shown to prospective buyers and may be left on approval at the discretion of the Art Dealer's representative. The responsibility for the Artwork remains with the Art Dealer.

(b) The Artist agrees that the work consigned for solo and group shows may remain at the Art Dealer's gallery [for _____ weeks] after the show for interested collectors, if requested by the Art Dealer.

8. Safekeeping. The Art Dealer is responsible for the safekeeping of the Artwork while in its custody or in transit arranged by the Art Dealer. The Art Dealer assumes full responsibility for the Artwork if it is lost, stolen or damaged while in its custody or in transit arranged by the Art Dealer. The Art Dealer will not intentionally commit or authorize any physical defacement, mutilation, alteration or destruction of any of the Artwork.

9. Publicity Costs. The Art Dealer will bear the costs of publicity and materials for solo and group shows of selected artists, as determined by the Art Dealer. These costs do not include framing or materials above the standard cost for shows.

10. Copyright. The Artist reserves copyright, including all reproduction rights, to the Artwork.

11. Artwork Not Subject to Claim by Art Dealer's Creditors. The Artwork will be held in trust for the benefit of the Artist and will not be subject to any claim by a creditor of the Art Dealer. In the event of any default by the Art Dealer, the artist will have all the rights of a secured party under the Uniform Commercial Code.

12. Art Dealer's Accounting Responsibilities. The Art Dealer will provide a written accounting [frequency, e.g., once a month], which will include the description and quantity of Artwork sold under this Agreement, the price, and the buyer's name and address.

13. Shows and Sales in Other Galleries. The Artist will not show work in any other gallery in [California or other named location, e.g., Los Angeles County], unless the Art Dealer agrees in writing. The Artist agrees to sell works of art outside the Art Dealer's gallery only for the same price as asked within the Art Dealer's gallery.

14. Restoration. Restoration of any Artwork may be undertaken only with the Artist's written permission. In the event of loss or damage that cannot be restored, the Artist will receive 50 percent of the value established on the Consignment Sheet. The Art Dealer will provide the Artist with all relevant information about its insurance coverage if the Artist requests this information.

15. Attorneys' Fees. If any legal action is commenced between the parties concerning the provisions of this contract or the performance of this contract, the party prevailing in that action will be entitled to a reasonable sum for attorneys' fees in addition to any other relief that may be granted. The amount of that sum will be determined by the court in that litigation or in a separate action brought for that purpose.

16. Modification. This contract may be modified only by an agreement in writing signed by the party against whom the modification is sought to be enforced.

17. Entire Agreement. This contract supersedes any and all other agreements, whether oral or in writing, between the parties with respect to the subject of this contract. This contract contains all of the covenants and agreements between the parties with respect to the subject of this contract, and each party acknowledges that no representations, inducements, promises, or agreements have been made by or on behalf of any party except the covenants and agreements embodied in this contract. No agreement, statement, or promise not contained in this contract shall be valid or binding on the parties with respect to the subject of this contract.

18. Governing Law. The validity of this contract and each of its terms and provisions, as well as the rights and duties of the parties under this contract, shall be construed pursuant to and in accordance with the law of the State of California.

32-102E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102E.211

§ 102E.211 Provision for Sale of Artwork Based on Appraisal

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a provision for the sale of artwork based on appraised value. A fair-market appraisal is sometimes used by parties who want to conduct a sale, but who are either unwilling or unable to agree on a price without the help of a neutral professional authority. This provision should be included, as appropriate, in a contract for sale.

[b] Appraisals In General

Appraisal is a highly specialized business. The best known appraisal societies are the American Society of Appraisers (ASA), and the Appraisers Association of America (AAA). Both associations train, test, and certify appraisers. In addition, both require compliance with ethical rules. Reputable auction houses not only employ qualified appraisers but also can recommend appraisers in areas in which they have no specialist.

Fine art appraisals usually are highly detailed. Appraisal descriptions generally contain the same sort of information that is used to identify a work of art in a loan agreement between a museum and a lender [see § 102E.220[2]]. The appraisal description should contain, at a minimum, an item number, a description that is sufficiently detailed to distinguish the work for all other works, notation of any signatures or marks, measurements, weight if pertinent, date, and country of origin. The description should be followed by an individual value for each item, rather than groupings of value.

Factors that determine value in the art market are myriad. They include, but are not limited to, authenticity, condition, rarity, historical importance, fashion (that is, what is currently popular and to what extent fashion is responsible for current market value), medium (durability may be a factor), size (which affects the value of works of art principally in its extremes), subject matter, provenance, and relative quality (for instance, two watercolors by the same artist may be of different quality, or one might reflect what one looks for in the artist, while the subject of the other might have sentimental attraction). The priority of these, and other factors, changes with each work considered. Finally, since all artwork is an emotional commodity, it may be impossible to assign an exact value.

There are many noncommercial art galleries and art museums in California, in addition to countless dealers' galleries, where a work of art may be authenticated or appraised. A comprehensive listing of museums and galleries under the title The Official Museum Directory (United States and Canada) is available in many libraries.

[2] FORM

Provision for Sale of Artwork Based on Appraisal

_____. Price Based on Appraisal. The Artwork will be offered for sale for its appraised fair market value. If the parties cannot agree on the appraiser, each will select one person, and those two so selected will together name a disinterested person. These three persons will then provide a fair market value appraisal of the Artwork. The estimated value shall reflect the amount that might be realized by at sale, assuming the sale is handled by a gallery or auction house, and shall not reflect commission or mark-up.

32-102E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102E.220

§ 102E.220 Agreement for Loan of Artwork to Museum

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a contract for the loan of artwork to a museum for a definite period of seven years or less. The form covers publicity, insurance, and shipping of the artwork, and various other matters. It requires the museum to exercise the same degree of care toward the artwork as it does in the safekeeping of its own property and to return the artwork in the condition in which it was received. Absent the lender's written consent, the museum may not apply conservation measures or alter the artwork in any way. Injury or loss is to be reported immediately to the lender. The museum may return the artwork only to the owner, lender, lender's representative, or the personal representative of the owner's or lender's estate. Unless the lender expressly chooses to maintain his or her own insurance, the museum must insure the artwork.

For a form for an agreement for a loan for an indefinite term or a term longer than seven years, see § 102E.221.

CONDITIONS OF LOAN

1. Term of Loan. This is an agreement between _____ [lender's name] (Lender) and _____ [museum's name] (Museum) for the loan of the artwork described above (Artwork) to Museum for a period of [e.g., six months], beginning on _____ [date]. The Artwork may be displayed or removed from display by Museum at any time during this period, at Museum's sole discretion. The Artwork may not be removed from Museum by Lender during this period, except with Museum's written consent. The Artwork may not be removed from Museum for transfer to another branch of Museum or for storage at a location other than Museum's address as listed above, except with Lender's written consent.

2. Care of Artwork. Museum will exercise the same degree of care with respect to the Artwork as it does in the safekeeping of its own comparable property. It is understood that the Artwork will remain in the same condition as when it was received. Museum will not clean, repair, retouch, or alter the Artwork in any way without Lender's written permission. Injury or loss of the Artwork, whether in transit or on Museum's premises, and regardless of who may be responsible, will be reported to Lender immediately.

3. Return of Artwork. The Artwork will be returned only to Lender or to the owner's authorized agent or representative or, in the event of the owner's or Lender's death, to the authorized legal representative of the owner's or Lender's estate. Lender must notify Museum of any changes of address of Lender, the owner, or the authorized legal representative to whom correspondence should be sent.

4. Insurance Coverage. (a) Unless Lender expressly elects to maintain its own insurance coverage, Museum will insure the Artwork "wall-to-wall" under its fine arts policy, for the value of $_____, against all risks of physical loss or damage from any external cause while in transit and while at Museum throughout the period of this loan.

(b) Museum's fine arts policy contains limitations for acts of God and the usual exclusions for loss or damage due to wear and tear, gradual deterioration, moths, vermin, inherent defects, or damage sustained because of and resulting from any repairing, restoring, or retouching process, or such causes as hostile or warlike action in time of peace or war, atomic, nuclear, or radioactive force, reaction, or contamination, insurrection, rebellion, revolution, civil war, usurped power, action taken by governmental authority in hindering, combating, or defending against such an occurrence, seizure or destruction under quarantine or customs regulation, confiscation by order of any governmental or public authority, or risks of contraband or illegal transportation of trade.

(c) If Lender chooses to maintain its own insurance, Museum accepts no responsibility for any error or deficiency in information furnished to or by Lender's insurers, or for any lapses in coverage. In this case, Museum must receive either a certificate of insurance naming Museum as additional insured or a waiver of subrogation executed by Lender.

5. Reproductions by Museum. Museum may obtain or have made, at Museum's expense, photographs of the Artwork, whether black-and-white or color, for catalog reproduction and publicity. Museum may reproduce for sale, make and sell slides and videotapes of, make and sell prints of, and permit the general public to photograph, the Artwork.

6. History and Provenance. Lender shall promptly respond to and comply with, to Museum's satisfaction, any reasonable request by Museum for information concerning provenance (history of ownership), previous exhibitions, published illustrations, references, bibliography entries, and notes on physical condition, pertaining to the Artwork.

7. Delivery to Museum. The Artwork will reach Museum by _____ [date] and be delivered by [means or carrier]. Packing and transportation costs will be borne by [Lender or Museum].

C. Loan Agreements Between Museums and Lenders

32-102E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102E.221

§ 102E.221 Agreement for Loan of Artwork to Museum for Indefinite Term or Longer Than Seven Years

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a contract for the loan of artwork to a museum for a term in longer than seven years or an indefinite term. Its provisions reflect the requirements of Civ. Code § 1899 et seq. The statutes do not specify the form or contents of a long-term loan agreement. Generally, the statutory provisions cover the duty of the lender and the museum to give each other notice of specified events, and the effect of supplying or failing to supply specified notices on the parties' respective rights in the artwork. Incorporating these requirements into the loan agreement puts both parties on notice of their respective statutory rights and obligations with respect to the artwork.

The statutory requirements reflected in this form are discussed in [b]-[e], below. For a more comprehensive discussion of the requirements contained in Civ. Code § 1899 et seq., see § 102E.30 et seq.

For a form for the loan of artwork to a museum for a definite period up to seven years, see § 102E.220.

[b] Conservation or Disposition

Unless a written loan agreement provides otherwise, a museum may apply conservation measures to, or dispose of, borrowed artwork, without the lender's permission, but only if [Civ. Code § 1899.6(a)(1)]:

- Immediate action is required to protect the artwork, other property in the museum's custody, or the health and safety of the public or the museum's staff.

- The museum is unable to reach the lender at the lender's last address of record [see Civ. Code §§ 1899.2(a), 1899.6(a)(2)] (notice requirements); see also § 102E.36, or the lender will not agree to the protective measures recommended by the museum, yet is unwilling or unable to terminate the loan and retrieve the artwork.

If a museum takes conservation or disposition action under these conditions, it will have a lien on the artwork and on the proceeds of its disposition, for the costs of conservation or disposition [Civ. Code § 1899.6(b)(1)]. Further, the museum will not be liable for injury or loss of the artwork if it acted with a reasonable belief that the conservation or disposition was necessary to protect the artwork, other property in the custody of the museum, or the health and safety of the public or the museum's staff, and if it exercised reasonable care in the choice and application of any conservation measures used [Civ. Code § 1899.6(b)(2)].

This form provides that the museum will not apply conservation measures to, or dispose of, the artwork without the lender's written consent, unless immediate action is required, and the museum is unable to obtain the lender's consent. The form also gives the museum a lien and limits its liability as provided by Civ. Code § 1899.6(b).

[c] Injury or Loss

The museum must give the lender prompt notice of any known injury or loss of the artwork [Civ. Code § 1899.3(d)]. The lender may not bring an action against the museum for damages resulting from injury or loss of the artwork more than three years from the date the museum gave the lender notice of the injury or loss, or 10 years from the date of the injury or loss, whichever occurs earlier [Civ. Code § 1899.8].

[d] Manner of Notice

When the museum is required to give the lender any notice pursuant to Civ. Code § 1899 et seq., notice is deemed to have been given if the museum mails the notice to the lender at the lender's address, and proof of receipt is received by the museum within 30 days from the date the notice was mailed [Civ. Code § 1899.2(a)]. The owner of the artwork is responsible for notifying the museum promptly in writing of any change of address or change in ownership of the artwork [Civ. Code § 1899.4(a)].

If the museum does not have an address for the lender, or if proof of receipt is not received by the museum, notice is deemed given if the museum publishes notice at least once a week for three successive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in both the county in which the museum is located and the county of the lender's address, if any [Civ. Code § 1899.2(a)].

[e] Return of Artwork

In this form, the museum agrees to return the artwork to the lender or owner, or the agent of either, provided the lender, owner, or agent has filed a notice of intent to preserve an interest that complies with the statutory requirements [see [f], below; § 102E.35], either on the expiration of the stated term or on notice by the museum that it intends to terminate the loan. The museum may give the lender notice of the museum's intent to terminate the loan, by mailing or publishing a notice, as discussed in [d], above. The form and contents of the notice are prescribed by statute [see Civ. Code § 1899.9(a); § 102E.229].

[f] Notice of Intent to Preserve Interest

A notice of intent to preserve an interest in the artwork is used by the lender to keep the museum apprised of the current ownership of the artwork, the current location of the owner, and the fact that the owner claims a continuing interest in the artwork [see Civ. Code § 1899.5(a); see also § 102E.222 (form for notice)]. A notice of intent to preserve an interest in the artwork must be accompanied by documentation sufficient to establish that the claimant is the owner of the artwork [Civ. Code § 1899.5(a)].

When a notice of intent satisfying all of the statutory requirements [see Civ. Code § 1899.5(a)] is filed with the museum, the museum must maintain the original or an accurate copy of the notice for at least 25 years [Civ. Code §

1899.3(b)]. The museum also must furnish to anyone who files a notice of intent to preserve an interest, a proof of receipt within 30 days of receiving the notice [Civ. Code § 1899.3(c); see §§ 102E.222, 102E.223].

[g] Treating Artwork as Unclaimed Property

The lender will be deemed to have donated the artwork to the museum if the lender fails to file an action to recover the artwork within either three years from the date the museum gives notice of its intention to terminate the loan [see [e], above] or 25 years after the date of the last written contact between the lender and the museum [see Civ. Code § 1899.10(c)]. Alternatively, the museum may dispose of unclaimed artwork according to the provisions of the Unclaimed Property Law [Civ. Code § 1899.11(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1500 et seq.; § 102E.40; see also Ch. 102C, Lost and Unclaimed Property].

CONDITIONS OF LOAN

1. Term of Loan. This is an agreement between _____ [lender's name] (Lender) and _____ [museum's name] (Museum) for the loan the artwork described above (Artwork) to Museum for a period of [specify period longer than seven years or indefinite duration], beginning on _____ [date]. The Artwork may be displayed or removed from display by Museum at any time during this period, at Museum's sole discretion. _____ [Specify circumstances under which owner has right to reclaim artwork, e.g., Lender may not remove the Artwork from Museum during this period, except with Museum's written consent or, for a loan of indefinite duration, e.g.: Lender may terminate this loan and remove the Artwork at any time on _____ (specify notice period, e.g., 90 days) written notice to Museum, provided that Lender agrees that the minimum duration of this loan shall be at least _____ years (or other term) from the beginning date specified in this paragraph.] The Artwork may not be removed from Museum for transfer to another branch of Museum or for storage at a location other than Museum's address as listed above, except with the Lender's written consent.

2. Care of Artwork. Museum will exercise the same degree of care with respect to the Artwork as it does in the safekeeping of its own comparable property. It is understood that the Artwork will remain in the same condition as when it was received. Museum will not clean, repair, retouch, or alter the Artwork in any way without Lender's written permission. Injury or loss of the Artwork, whether in transit or on Museum's premises, and regardless of who may be responsible, will be reported to Lender immediately.

3. Return of Artwork. The Artwork will be returned only to Lender or to the owner's authorized agent or representative or, in the event of the owner's or Lender's death, to the authorized legal representative of the owner's or Lender's estate. Lender must notify Museum of any changes of address of Lender, the owner, or the authorized legal representative to whom correspondence should be sent.

4. Conservation Measures or Disposition of Artwork. Museum agrees that it will not apply conservation measures to, or dispose of, the Artwork without notifying Lender and obtaining Lender's written consent, unless immediate action is required and Museum is unable to obtain Lender's consent. Under these circumstances, Museum will have a lien on the Artwork and on the proceeds of the disposition of the Artwork for the costs incurred. If injury or loss of the Artwork occurs under these circumstances, Museum will not be liable if it reasonably believed that the action taken was necessary, and if it exercised reasonable care in the choice and application of the measures taken.

5. Notice of Loss or Damage. Museum will promptly notify Lender of any injury or loss of the Artwork, whether the injury or loss occurs in transit or on Museum's premises, and regardless of who may be responsible.

6. Manner of Notice. Museum will be deemed to have given notice to Lender as required under this Agreement if it mails the notice to Lender at Lender's address and it receives proof of receipt within 30 days from the date the notice was mailed. If Museum does not have Lender's address, or if it does not receive proof of receipt, it will be deemed to have given notice if it publishes notice at least once a week for three successive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in both the county in which Museum is located and the county of Lender's address as shown in Museum's records.

7. Lender's Notice of Intent to Preserve Interest in Artwork. If Lender files a notice of intent to preserve an interest in the Artwork, he/she will also supply Museum with documentation sufficient to establish that he/she is the owner of the Artwork. Museum will maintain the original or an accurate copy of the notice for at least 25 years. Museum will mail a proof of receipt of any properly filed notice to Lender at the address given in the notice within 30 days of receiving the notice.

8. Failure to File Action for Recovery. Lender will be deemed to have donated the Artwork to Museum if Lender fails to file an action to recover the property within either three years from the date Museum gives Lender notice of its intention to terminate the loan or 25 years after the date of the last written contact between Lender and Museum. Alternatively, Museum may dispose of the Artwork as unclaimed property according the California Unclaimed Property Law (Code of Civil Procedure Section 1500 et seq.).

9. Insurance. (a) Unless Lender expressly elects to maintain its own insurance coverage, Museum will insure the Artwork "wall-to-wall" under its fine arts policy, for the value of $_____, against all risks of physical loss or damage from any external cause while in transit and while at Museum throughout the period of this loan.

(b) Museum's fine arts policy contains limitations for acts of God and the usual exclusions for loss or damage due to wear and tear, gradual deterioration, moths, vermin, inherent defects, or damage sustained because of and resulting from any repairing, restoring, or retouching process, or such causes as hostile or warlike action in time of peace or war, atomic, nuclear, or radioactive force, reaction, or contamination, insurrection, rebellion, revolution, civil war, usurped power, action taken by governmental authority in hindering, combating, or defending against such an occurrence, seizure or destruction under quarantine or customs regulation, confiscation by order of any governmental or public authority, or risks of contraband or illegal transportation of trade.

(c) If Lender chooses to maintain its own insurance, Museum accepts no responsibility for any error or deficiency in information furnished to or by Lender's insurers, or for any lapses in coverage. In this case, Museum must receive either a certificate of insurance naming Museum as additional insured or a waiver of subrogation executed by Lender.

10. Reproductions by Museum. Museum may obtain or have made, at Museum's expense, photographs of the Artwork, whether black-and-white or color, for catalog reproduction and publicity. Museum may reproduce for sale, make and sell slides and videotapes of, make and sell prints of, and permit the general public to photograph, the Artwork.

11. History and Provenance. Lender shall promptly respond to and comply with, to Museum's satisfaction, any reasonable request by Museum for information concerning provenance (history of ownership), previous exhibitions, published illustrations, references, bibliography entries, and notes on physical condition, pertaining to the Artwork.

12. Delivery to Museum. The Artwork will reach Museum by _____[date] and be delivered by [means or carrier]. Packing and transportation costs will be borne by [Lender or Museum].

C. Loan Agreements Between Museums and Lenders

32-102E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102E.222

§ 102E.222 Notice of Intent to Preserve Interest in Artwork on Loan to Museum

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice of intent to preserve an interest in artwork on long-term loan to a museum [see Civ. Code § 1899.5(a)]. It contains a notice to the museum of the lender's intent to preserve an interest in the artwork, and a receipt for the notice. The notice in this form satisfies the statutory requirements. (There is an optional statutory form for notice, which the lender may elect to use in lieu of this form [see Civ. Code § 1899.5(c)].)

If the museum accepts the loan of artwork for an indefinite term, or for a term longer than seven years, the museum must inform the lender in writing, at the time of the loan, of the provisions of Civ. Code § 1899 et seq. [see Civ. Code § 1899.3(a)] (governing loans of artwork accepted after 1983); see also [c], below].

The lender (or any other person who claims ownership of the artwork) may submit the notice of intent to the museum at any time during the loan term [see [d], below]. On receiving a completed notice of intent to preserve an interest in the artwork, the museum must complete the receipt portion of the notice, or a separate receipt, and send it to the lender (or claimant) [Civ. Code § 1899.3(c); see [c], below].

[b] Contents of Notice

A notice of intent to preserve an interest in artwork on loan to a museum must [Civ. Code § 1899.5(a)]:

- Be in writing.
- Contain a description of the artwork adequate to enable the museum to identify it.
- Be accompanied by documentation sufficient to establish the claimant as owner of the artwork.

- Be signed under penalty of perjury by the claimant or a person authorized to act on behalf of the claimant.

[c] Museum's Responsibilities

The museum, on accepting a loan of artwork for an indefinite term [see Civ. Code § 1899.9(b)] or for a term longer than seven years, must inform the lender in writing, at the time of the loan, of the provisions of Civ. Code § 1899 et seq. A citation to Civ. Code § 1899 et seq. would be sufficient for this purpose [Civ. Code § 1899.3(a)].

Within 30 days after receiving a notice of intent to preserve an interest in artwork on loan, the museum must mail either an original receipt or a copy of the receipt portion of the notice contained in this form to the lender or other claimant who filed the notice [Civ. Code § 1899.3(c)]. Unless the museum returns the artwork to the claimant, it must retain the original or an accurate copy of each notice filed by a claimant for at least 25 years [Civ. Code § 1899.3(b)].

The museum need not retain a notice that does not meet the statutory requirements [Civ. Code § 1899.5(b); see Civ. Code § 1899.5(a); see also [b], above]. If a museum does not intend to retain a notice for this reason, it must notify the claimant promptly, at the address given on the notice, that it believes the notice is ineffective to preserve an interest and state the reasons for this belief [Civ. Code § 1899.5(b); see § 102E.224]. The fact that a museum retains a notice to preserve an interest does not mean that the museum accepts the sufficiency or accuracy of the notice or that the notice is effective to preserve an interest in the artwork [Civ. Code § 1899.5(b)].

For further discussion of these requirements, see § 102E.33.

[d] Owner's Responsibilities

The owner of artwork on loan to a museum may file with the museum a notice of intent to preserve an interest in the artwork. The filing of the notice does not validate or make enforceable any claim that would be extinguished under the terms of the written loan agreement or that would otherwise be invalid or unenforceable [Civ. Code § 1899.4(b)].

The owner of artwork on loan to a museum also must notify the museum promptly in writing of any change of address or change in ownership of the artwork [see § 102E.231]. Failure to notify the museum of these changes may result in the owner's loss of rights in the artwork [Civ. Code § 1899.4(a)].

For further discussion of these requirements, see §§ 102E.34, 102E.35.

[e] Procedure for Giving Notice

When a museum is required to give a lender any notice under Civ. Code § 1899 et seq., notice is deemed to have been given if the museum mails the notice to the lender at the lender's address, and proof of receipt is received by the museum within 30 days from the date the notice was mailed. If the museum does not have an address for the lender, or if proof of receipt is not received by the museum, notice is deemed given if the museum publishes notice at least once a week for three successive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in both the county in which the museum is located and the county of the lender's address, if any [Civ. Code § 1899.2(a)]. For purposes of notice, a museum is located in the county of the branch of the museum to which the loan is made. In all other instances, a museum is located in the county in which it has its principal place of business [Civ. Code § 1899.2(c)].

In addition to any other information required by Civ. Code § 1899 et seq., all notices must contain the lender's name, the lender's most recent address as shown on the museum's records [see Civ. Code § 1899.1(b)], and the date of the loan. A notice given by the museum must also contain the name, address, and telephone number of the appropriate office or official to be contacted at the museum for information regarding the loan [Civ. Code § 1899.2(b)]. Apparently, this information is not required in a museum's receipt for a notice of intent to preserve an interest in the artwork [see Civ. Code § 1899.5(a); see also Civ. Code § 1899.5(c) (statutory form for receipt)], and the receipt is not referred to as a notice in the relevant statutes [see Civ. Code §§ 1899.3(c), 1899.5]. For an example of a receipt form that contains the information specified in Civ. Code § 1899.2(b), see § 102E.223.

This form is a receipt to be used by a museum after receiving a notice of intent to preserve an interest in artwork on loan to the museum [see § 102E.222]. The museum must furnish a receipt within 30 days to anyone who submits a notice of intent to preserve an interest in the artwork to the museum. The receipt must be mailed to the address given on the notice. (If the notice is submitted on the optional statutory form [see Civ. Code § 1899.5(c)], the museum may complete the receipt portion of the form and mail a copy of the receipt to the claimant.) If the notice does not include a receipt portion, the museum must provide an original receipt, such as this form [see Civ. Code § 1899.3(c)].

For discussion of the museum's options and duties on receiving a defective notice of intent to preserve an interest in the artwork [see Civ. Code § 1899.5(b)], see § 102E.222[1][c].

[a] Use of Form

This form is a museum's notice to a lender or other claimant who has filed a notice of intent to preserve an interest in artwork on loan to the museum [see § 102E.222] that the museum believes that notice is ineffective.

[b] Museum's Responsibilities

The museum need not retain the notice of intent to preserve an interest in the artwork if the notice does not meet the statutory content requirements [Civ. Code § 1899.5(b); see Civ. Code § 1899.5(a); see also § 102E.222[1][c]]. However, if the museum does not intend to retain a notice for this reason, it must notify the claimant promptly, at the address given on the notice, that the museum believes the notice is ineffective to preserve an interest in the artwork. The museum must also indicate the reasons for its belief. The fact that the museum retains the notice does not mean that the museum accepts the sufficiency or accuracy of the notice or that the notice is effective to preserve an interest in the artwork on loan to the museum [Civ. Code § 1899.5(b)].

For a discussion of the required contents of notices given by museums to lenders [see Civ. Code § 1899.2(b)], and the requirements for delivery by mail or publication [see Civ. Code § 1899.2(a)], see § 102E.32, § 102E.33, and § 102E.222[1][c] and [e].

§ 102E.225 Museum's Notice That Borrowed Artwork Requires Conservation or Disposition[1] Comment*[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice to be given by a museum, informing a lender of artwork that the artwork requires conservation or disposition. For a discussion of the required contents of notices given by museums to lenders, and the required manner of giving notice [see Civ. Code § 1899.2(a), (b)], see §§ 102E.32, 102E.33, and 102E.222[1][c], [e]. For a notice by publication, to be used in the event the museum cannot locate the lender and immediate conservation or disposition of the artwork is required [see Civ. Code § 1899.6(a)(2)], see § 102E.226.

[b] Conservation or Disposition of Borrowed Artwork Without Lender's Consent

The museum may dispose of or apply conservation measures to the artwork without the lender's consent if the proposed conservation or disposition is necessary to protect the artwork, other property in the museum's custody, or the health and safety of the public or the museum's staff. Before disposing of the artwork or applying conservation measures, the museum must attempt to notify the lender of the problem and either obtain the lender's consent to the proposed measures or return the artwork [see Civ. Code § 1899.6(a)]. For further discussion, see § 102E.36.

32-102E California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 102E.226

§ 102E.226 Museum's Notice by Publication That Borrowed Artwork Requires Conservation or Disposition

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a museum's notice by publication, informing a lender of artwork that the artwork requires conservation or disposition. It is for use by the museum when the museum is unable to reach the lender at the lender's last address of record, and immediate conservation or disposition is required to protect the artwork, other property in the museum's custody, or the health and safety of the public or the museum's staff [see Civ. Code §§ 1899.6(a), 1899.7(a)].

Before taking conservation measures or disposing of the artwork in this situation, the museum must publish this notice at least once a week for three successive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in both the county in which the museum is located and the county of the lender's most recent address as shown in the museum's records [Civ. Code §§ 1899.2(a), 1899.6(a)(2); see Civ. Code § 1899.1(b)].

For a discussion of the general requirements for notices given by museums to lenders, see §§ 102E.32, 102E.33, and 102E.222[1][c], [e].

[b] Conservation or Disposition Without Lender's Permission

If the museum receives no response for 120 days after publication of the notice, the museum may apply conservation measures or dispose of the artwork [Civ. Code § 1899.6(a)(2)]. The statute does not state whether the 120-day period begins to run when the notice is first published or after it has been published once a week for three successive weeks. Thus, if it is possible to delay conservation or disposal without endangering persons or other property, conservation measures or disposition of the artwork should not be undertaken until 120 days after the end of the three-week publication period.

The museum may apply conservation measures to or dispose of the artwork without the lender's permission when the lender has been contacted and will neither agree to the protective measures the museum recommends nor terminate the loan and retrieve the artwork [see Civ. Code § 1899.6(a)(1)].

[c] Contract Prohibiting Conservation or Disposition

The museum may not apply conservation measures or dispose of property on loan if a written loan agreement provides to the contrary [Civ. Code § 1899.6(a)].

[d] Museum's Lien and Liability for Injury or Loss

The museum has a lien on the artwork and on the proceeds from any disposition of the artwork, for the conservation or disposition costs permissibly incurred by the museum [Civ. Code § 1899.6(b)(1)]. The museum is not liable for injury or loss of the artwork if the museum (1) had a reasonable belief at the time the conservation or disposition was undertaken that the action was necessary to safeguard the artwork, other property in the museum's custody, or the health and safety of the public or the museum's staff; and (2) exercised reasonable care in its choice and application of conservation measures [Civ. Code § 1899.6(b)(2)].

This form is a notice to be used by a museum to notify a lender of artwork that the artwork has been damaged or lost. The museum must give the lender prompt notice of any known damage or loss [Civ. Code § 1899.3(d)]. The museum is deemed to have given notice to the lender if the museum mails the notice to the lender's most recent address as shown on the museum's records [Civ. Code § 1899.1(b)] and receives proof of receipt within 30 days from the date the notice was mailed [Civ. Code § 1899.2(a)].

If the museum does not have an address for the lender, or if the museum does not receive proof of receipt within 30 days after mailing the notice to the lender, the museum will be deemed to have given notice if it publishes a notice at least once a week for three successive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in both the county in which the museum is located and the county of the lender's most recent address as shown in the museum's records [Civ. Code § 1899.2(a); see Civ. Code §§ 1899.1(b), 1899.7]. For a form for notice by publication, see § 102E.228.

§ 102E.228 Museum's Notice by Publication That Borrowed Artwork Was Damaged or Lost

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice by publication for use by a museum when it is unable to give a lender notice by mail that artwork on loan to the museum has been damaged or lost. The museum is required to notify the lender promptly of any known damage or loss [Civ. Code § 1899.3(d)].

If the museum does not have an address for the lender, or does not receive proof of receipt of a mailed notice within 30 days after mailing it, the museum will be deemed to have notified the lender if the museum publishes this notice at least once a week for three successive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in both the county in which the museum is located and the county of the lender's most recent address as shown in the museum's records [Civ. Code §§ 1899.2(a), 1899.7(a); see Civ. Code § 1899.1(b)].

For a discussion of the general requirements for notices given by museums to lenders, see §§ 102E.32, 102E.33, and 102E.222[1][c], [e].

[b] Limitation of Lender's Action Against Museum

The lender may not bring an action against the museum, based on the damage or loss of the artwork, more than three years from the date the museum gave the lender notice of the damages or loss, or 10 years from the date of the damage or loss, whichever occurs earlier [Civ. Code § 1899.8].

[c] Museum's Duty on Receiving Communication From Lender

If, within three years of publishing the notice that the artwork was damaged or lost, the museum receives either (1) a notice of the lender's (or another claimant's) intent to preserve an interest in the artwork [see Civ. Code §§ 1899.4(b), 1899.5(a); see also § 102E.222]; (2) a notice of the lender's (claimant's) change of address; or (3) a notice of a change in the ownership of the artwork [see Civ. Code § 1899.4(a); see also § 102E.231], then the museum must promptly respond with a notice in writing of the nature and approximate date of the damage or loss [Civ. Code § 1899.7(b)].

[d] Limitation of Lender's Action

If the museum mails the information about damage or loss to the lender (or other claimant) within 30 days of receiving the lender's (claimant's) notice, the three-year limitation period for filing an action against the museum [see Civ. Code § 1899.8; [b], above] runs from the date the museum's notice by publication was completed [Civ. Code § 1899.7(b)].

§ 102E.229 Museum's Notice to Terminate Loan of Artwork

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a notice to be used by a museum when it intends to terminate a loan of artwork that was made for an indefinite term or was made on or after January 1, 1984, for a term longer than seven years [Civ. Code § 1899.9(a)]. A loan for a specified term becomes a loan for an indefinite term if the property remains in the museum's custody after the specified term expires [Civ. Code § 1899.9(b)].

The content of this notice is prescribed by statute [Civ. Code §§ 1899.2(b), 1899.9(a)]. For a discussion of the required contents of notices given by museums to lenders generally, see § 102E.32, § 102E.33, and § 102E.222[1][c], [e].

[b] Limitation of Lender's Action to Recover Artwork

The lender may not bring an action to recover the artwork more than three years after the museum gives the lender this notice of intent to terminate the loan [Civ. Code § 1899.10(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 338; see also Civ. Code § 1899.2(a) (when notice is deemed given)]. In addition, no action may be brought against the museum to recover the artwork when more than 25 years have passed from the date of the last written contact between the lender and the museum, as evidenced in the museum's records [Civ. Code § 1899.10(b)]. The lender will be deemed to have donated the artwork to the museum if the lender fails to file an action to recover the artwork within these periods [Civ. Code § 1899.10(c)].

However, if the museum did not give notice of intent to terminate the loan, and the lender proves that the museum received a notice of intent to preserve an interest in the artwork [see § 102E.222] within the 25 years immediately preceding the date the lender's right to recover the artwork would have otherwise expired [see Civ. Code § 1899.10(b)], the lender may recover the artwork or, if it has been disposed of, its reasonable value at the time of disposal plus interest [Civ. Code § 1899.10(e)].

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a notice for use by a museum to notify the lender of artwork that the museum intends to report the artwork as unclaimed property to the State Controller for disposition in accordance with the provisions of the Unclaimed Property Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1500 et seq.; see Ch. 102C, Lost and Unclaimed Property].

The provisions in Civ. Code § 1899 et seq., when applicable, supersede the Unclaimed Property Law. However, the museum may, at its option, dispose of borrowed artwork under the Unclaimed Property Law, provided the artwork has been unclaimed for more than seven years [Civ. Code § 1899.11(a)]. If the museum elects to proceed under the Unclaimed Property Law, it must mail notice to the lender of its intent not less than six months or more than 12 months before reporting the artwork to the State Controller for disposition [Civ. Code § 1899.11(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1530].

The content of this notice is prescribed by statute [Civ. Code §§ 1899.2(b), 1899.11(b)]. For a discussion of the required contents of notices given by museums to lenders generally, see §§ 102E.32, 102E.33, and 102E.222[1][c], [e].

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is a notice to the museum by the lender of artwork for an indefinite period or for a term longer than seven years, reporting either a change in the owner's address or a change in ownership of the artwork.

The owner of the artwork is responsible for notifying the museum promptly in writing of any change of the owner's address or change in ownership of the artwork. Failure to notify the museum of these changes may result in the owner's loss of rights in the artwork [Civ. Code § 1899.4(a)]. If the ownership of the artwork changes, the new owner should file with the museum a notice of intent to preserve an interest in the artwork [see Civ. Code § 1899.5(a); see also § 102E.222].

Scope

Scope

This chapter covers the California Invention Development Services Contracts Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22370 et seq.]. The chapter discusses the law governing invention development services, and provides a guide to transactions subject to the Act. Forms include a disclosure statement, cover sheet, and sample contract for invention development services, as well as required notices and statements. California Secretary of State forms for use by persons or business entities subject to the Act are also reproduced.

This chapter does not discuss the acquisition, transfer, or protection of patent rights to inventions under federal law. For detailed discussion of the substantive law of patents in the United States, as well as patent application and enforcement procedures, see Chisum, PATENTS (Matthew Bender), and Adelman et al., PATENT LAW PERSPECTIVES (Matthew Bender). Detailed coverage of procedures before the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office may be found in Horwitz, PATENT OFFICE RULES AND PRACTICE (Matthew Bender). For discussion and forms concerning licensing of patents, see Einhorn, PATENT LICENSING TRANSACTIONS (Matthew Bender).

For coverage of international patent law and procedure, see Sinnott, WORLD PATENT LAW AND PRACTICE (Matthew Bender). For coverage of copyrights, see Ch. 103A, Copyrights. For coverage of trademarks, see Ch. 103B, Trademarks.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

33-103 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103.10

§ 103.10 Purpose and Legislative Intent Behind Invention Development Services Contract Act

[1] Protection of Public

The California Invention Development Services Contracts Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22370 et seq.] regulates the activities of invention developers offering services to the public. The express purpose of the Act is to safeguard the public against fraud, deceit, imposition, and financial hardship, and to foster and encourage competition, fair dealing, and prosperity in the field of invention development services. The Legislature's intent was to accomplish this purpose by prohibiting or restricting false and misleading advertising, onerous contract terms, harmful financial practices, and other unfair, dishonest, deceptive, destructive, unscrupulous, fraudulent, and discriminatory practices by which the public has been injured in connection with invention development services. However, the Act expresses an intent not to interfere with, or further regulate, persons who provide researching, marketing, surveying, or other kinds of consulting services to professional manufacturers, marketers, publishers, or others purchasing these services [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22370(a), (b)].

[2] Protection of Inventors

The invention development services legislation is intended to protect "inventors," as defined in the Act. Inventors are members of the general public who have ideas or inventions believed to have substantial commercial value, but who normally do not have the resources or expertise necessary to develop, manufacture, or market these ideas or inventions. These persons generally do not earn their livelihood from developing, manufacturing, promoting, or marketing ideas or inventions, or from manufacturing or marketing products, publishing literary works, or owning, operating, or controlling commercial enterprises [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22370(a)].

Inventors are also protected by a rule of case law, independent of the Act. When an inventor entrusts a secret idea or device to another person under an arrangement whereby the other person agrees to develop, patent, and commercially exploit the idea in return for royalties to be paid to the inventor, a confidential or fiduciary relationship arises between the parties [Stevens v. Marco (1956) 147 Cal. App. 2d 357, 373, 305 P.2d 669]. This rule remains viable, and has been applied to protect an inventor when the developer construed their agreement so as to justify withholding significant royalties received from patent licensees. "In a growing global economy, where a valuable patent can be licensed all over the world and be worth billions of dollars, there is every reason to afford the utmost protection to inventors who entrust their secrets to others for developing, patenting, manufacturing and licensing the secrets in exchange for royalties" [City of Hope Nat'l Med. Ctr. v. Genentech, Inc. (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 306, 343-350, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 234].

[3] Invention Developers

The Act is designed to protect inventors in their dealings with "invention developers." The Legislature found that a significant number of persons have realized that inventors are willing to expend substantial sums for services represented to result in the development, manufacture, promotion, sale, or general exploitation of the commercial value of the inventors' ideas or inventions. The developers' services are generally offered for a fixed fee, plus either a percentage of the income that may be derived from the sale or marketing of the invention or idea, or a partial ownership interest in it. The inventors generally assume a very passive role in the development, promotion, manufacture, or sale of their ideas or inventions after the contract with the invention developer is executed, and usually do little more than receive periodic reports from the developers [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22370(a)]. For additional information on who constitutes an "invention developer" for purposes of the act, see § 103.110.

CHAPTER 103 INVENTION DEVELOPMENT SERVICES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

33-103 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103.11

§ 103.11 Persons and Entities Covered

The invention development services law primarily regulates the contractual relationship between the invention developer and the inventor (referred to as the "customer" in the Act) [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22371(a), (b)]. Governments and charitable, scientific, educational, and religious organizations are exempt from application of the law [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22371(b), (d)]. Persons and business entities with either a net worth of $100,000 or gross receipts for the year of $50,000 are not included within the meaning of "customer" and therefore are not subject to the law's protections [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22371(b)]. Persons and business entities whose gross receipts from contracts for invention development services do not exceed 10 percent of their gross receipts from all sources during the fiscal year preceding the year in which any contract for invention development services is signed are not considered "invention developers" for purposes of the Act [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22371(d)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

33-103 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103.12

§ 103.12 Required Contents and Formalities

[1] Written Contract

Contracts for invention development services must be in writing [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22372(a)] and are subject to cancellation within seven days after the signing of the contract [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22373]. A copy of the written contract must be provided to the customer at the time he or she signs it [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22372(a)].

[2] Bond and Security Requirements for Invention Developers

To enter lawfully into invention development services contracts, invention developers must be properly bonded or make adequate substitute financial security arrangements [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22389 et seq.]. The contract must contain several required provisions implementing the protections of the law [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22379]. For a discussion of the required contractual provisions, see § 103.202[1][b].

[3] Disclosure Requirements

Various types of disclosures must be made under the Invention Development Services Contracts Act [see § 103.200[2]]. These primarily pertain to the following matters:

- Fees [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22372(b), 22379(a), (h), 22380, 22381(a)].
- Cancellation rights [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22373, 22374].
- Legal patent protection problems [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22374, 22379(p), 22381(d)].
- Extent of invention developer's services [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22372(b), 22378, 22379(b)-(d)].
- Extent of developer's expenditures on customer's behalf [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22379(i), 22381(b)].

- Numbers of the developer's past customers and their actually realized earnings beyond investment [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22379(j), (k), 22381(c)].

[4] Disclosure of Certain Contractual Conditions

The following protective provisions are the subject of special disclosure statements to be issued separately from the contract itself:

- Fact of fee charges (advertising of services) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22380].
- Fees, expenditures, numbers of customers and their earnings, and warning regarding potential loss of patent, trademark, or copyright protection (communication on first contact with customer) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22381; see § 103.200].
- Cancellability of contract, and warnings regarding potential loss of patent, trademark, or copyright protection (cover letter to contract) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22374; see § 103.204].
- Contemplation of subsequent contracts (statement at time of first contract) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22372(b); see § 103.203].
- Quarterly progress report on services to date [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22378; see § 103.206].

An invention developer may not acquire a direct interest in title to the invention, unless the developer contracts to manufacture the invention and acquires the interest at or about the time that the contract for manufacture is executed. However, a developer may contract to receive a portion of any proceeds accruing to the customer as a result of the performance of invention development services by the developer [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22375]. Assignments of the developer's right are subject to the inventor's defenses [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22376, 22377]. The developer must retain records relating to each contract for three years [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22392].

NOTE:

This Transaction Guide provides checklists primarily for use by counsel to assist an invention developer client in complying with the provisions of the Invention Development Services Contract Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22370 et seq.].

1. Type of business organization:

- a. Individual.
- b. Corporation.
- c. Partnership or association.
- d. Limited liability company.
- e. Other.

2. If invention developer is a corporation:

- a. Name of controlling shareholder or shareholders.
- b. Names of officers.
- c. Names and addresses of parent, subsidiary, or other affiliate companies that perform invention development services.

3. If invention developer is a partnership or association, names and business experience of appropriate personnel.
4. Principal place of business and branch offices, if any.
5. Personnel of invention development firm.
 - a. Key employees.
 - (1) Names.
 - (2) Functions and responsibilities.
 - (3) Compensation.
 - (a) Salary.
 - (b) Commission.
 - b. General profile of subordinate employees.
 - c. Business and patent experience and background.
 - d. Relevant financial resources.
6. Total number of customers.
7. Total number of customers who have, due to developer's performance, received money in excess of amount paid to developer for invention development services.

NOTE:

Every contract for invention development services must contain information concerning (1) the total number of customers who have contracted with the developer (although this figure may omit those customers who have contracted within the last 30 days) and (2) the number of past customers who have received, due to the developer's services, money in excess of the amount of money paid for those services [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22379(k)].

1. Means employed by invention developer to obtain customers.

a. Types of advertisements and advertising media.

b. Types of promotional programs.

2. Available services.

a. Preliminary services.

(1) Capacity to analyze invention in terms of its commercial value.

(2) Capacity to evaluate functions and utility of invention.

(3) Capacity to perform patent search services.

NOTE:

In the event that the invention development firm retains an independent patent search firm, a potential customer will be well-advised to investigate the reputation and business expertise of the retained firm.

b. Manufacturing.

(1) Extent of manufacturing services offered by invention development firm itself with respect to:

(a) Models.

(b) Diagrams and drawings.

(c) Mockups.

(d) Production of invention itself.

(2) Names and qualifications of firms retained by invention development firm to perform manufacturing services.

c. Technical personnel.

(1) Names and qualifications of patent agents or attorneys employed or retained by invention development firm.

(2) Extent to which personnel of firm qualify to advise customer in respect to reformation of ideas or inventions.

d. Sales and promotion.

(1) Capacity of firm to market and sell invention, e.g., contacts and reputation within relevant industry.

(2) Nature of investigative facilities of or retained by firm.

(3) Nature of advertising, public relations, and other promotional media outlets used by invention developer to promote inventions.

e. Records and correspondence retention policy.

NOTE:

Every invention developer is required to maintain all records and correspondence relating to performance of each invention development services contract for a period of not less than three years after expiration of the term of the contract [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22392].

PART III. TRANSACTION GUIDE
B. Preliminary Determinations

33-103 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103.110

§ 103.110 Application of California Invention Development Services Contracts Act

NOTE:

To determine whether the California Invention Development Services Contracts Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22370 et seq.] applies to a particular transaction, make the determinations listed below.

[1] Parties to Transaction

1. Determine whether "invention developer" is involved in transaction [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22371(d)]:

- a. Is party a person, firm, corporation, or association?
- b. Does that person or entity develop, promote, or offer to develop or promote an "invention," as specified in [2], below?

2. Determine whether person or entity is exempt from definition of "invention developer"; party is exempt if any of following apply [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22371(d)]:

- a. Party is federal, state, or local governmental department or agency.
- b. Party is charitable organization, as defined by Internal Revenue Code.

NOTE:

Exempt charitable organizations under Bus. & Prof. Code § 22371(d) are any charitable, scientific, educational, religious, or other organization either qualified under I.R.C. § 501(c)(3) or described in I.R.C. § 170(b)(1)(A).

- c. Party's gross receipts from contracts for invention development services during fiscal year preceding year in which any contract for invention development services is signed does not exceed 10 percent of gross receipts from all sources during that year.

d. Party does not charge fee for invention development services.

NOTE:

For this purpose, a "fee" includes any payment made by a customer to the entity for expenditures made or costs incurred by it, but does not include any payments made from a portion of income received by customer by virtue of invention development services performed for the customer by the entity [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22371(d)(4)].

Lawyers are not specifically exempted as such from classification as invention developers. Thus, to the extent an attorney offers or undertakes to develop or promote an invention or idea for a client, the attorney arguably would be acting as an invention developer and would be subject to the invention development law. If this is the case, however, the attorney would be required in several instances [see subsequent sections of this Transaction Guide] to state that the he or she (whether or not a patent attorney) is not qualified or permitted to give any advice regarding patent, copyright, or trademark protection matters [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22374, 22379(p), 22381(d)], even though the attorney may in fact be legally qualified to render that advice. This contradiction suggests that a qualified attorney at law was not intended to be covered under the invention development law. However, in the absence of an express exemption from the law, attorneys should exercise caution before undertaking any activity that might be construed to constitute invention development services.

3. Determine whether inventor is "customer" [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22371(b)].

a. Is inventor a person, firm, corporation, or other entity?

b. Does one or more of following apply to inventor?

(1) Was inventor solicited by developer?

(2) Did inventor inquire about or seek services of developer?

(3) Did inventor enter into contract for invention development services with developer?

4. Determine whether inventor is exempt from definition of "customer" [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22371(b)]:

a. Is inventor a federal, state, or local governmental department or agency?

b. Is inventor is charitable organization, as defined by Internal Revenue Code?

NOTE:

Exempt charitable organizations under Bus. & Prof. Code § 22371(b) are any charitable, scientific, educational, religious, or other organization either qualified under I.R.C. § 501(c)(3) or described in I.R.C. § 170(b)(1)(A).

c. Is inventor regularly engaged in a trade, business, or profession, which during calendar year in which any invention development services contract is signed has either:

(1) Net worth of $100,000 or more; or

(2) Gross receipts from any source of $50,000 or more?

[2] Nature of Transaction

1. Determine whether subject matter of transaction is "invention" within meaning of Act, which includes [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22371(c)]:

- a. Invention.
- b. Idea.
- c. Concept.
- d. Any combination of above.

2. Determine whether actual or proposed transaction is "contract for invention development services"; that is, contract by which invention developer undertakes to do one or both of following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22371(a); see also § 103.202[2] (contract)]:

- a. Develop customer's invention.
- b. Promote customer's invention.

[1] Bond Requirements

1. Advise developer to maintain bond meeting following requirements:

NOTE:

Except as described in [2], below, an invention developer rendering, or offering to render, invention development services in California must maintain a bond that meets the following requirements [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22389, 22390; see § 103.207].

a. Bond must be issued by surety company admitted to do business in California.

b. Principal sum of bond must be:

(1) Five percent of invention developer's gross income from invention development business in California during last fiscal year; and

(2) Not less than $25,000, whether in first or any subsequent year of operations.

c. Bond must be executed:

(1) In favor of State of California; and

(2) For benefit of any person who, after execution of invention development services contract, is damaged by invention developer's fraud, dishonesty, or failure to perform under contract.

NOTE:

Any person claiming against the bond may maintain an action against the invention developer and the surety [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.410(a)].

2. Advise invention developer to file bond:

a. With Secretary of State; and

b. Prior to time developer first commences business in California.

3. Advise invention developer to file declaration of income form available from California Secretary of State simultaneously with surety bond [see § 103.208].

4. Advise invention developer to change bond as necessary to conform to requirements of law within 90 days after end of each fiscal year.

[2] Alternatives to Bond

1. Advise invention developer that undertaking may be substituted for bond provided that undertaking satisfies all requirements for bond under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22389, 22390, as described in [1], above [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.210(a); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 995.190 ("undertaking" defined)].

2. Advise invention developer that deposit in lieu of bond as authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 995.710 is not available [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.710(e) (prohibiting deposit in lieu of bond after January 1, 1999, for deposits with Secretary of State); see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 22391].

33-103 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103.121

§ 103.121 Solicitation and Negotiation Procedure

[1] Advertising and Solicitation

1. Advise invention developer not to make, or authorize, in any advertisement, any reference to developer's compliance with Invention Development Services Contracts Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22393].
2. Advise invention developer that all advertising must clearly and conspicuously disclose [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22380]:
 - a. Fees charged, if any.
 - b. Other consideration required, if any.

NOTE:

Failure to make above disclosures in all advertisements renders any contract subsequently entered into between customer and developer voidable at the option of the customer [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22388].

[2] Initial Contact and Negotiations

NOTE:

The invention developer must make the following disclosures to a customer during the first oral communication with the customer or in the developer's first written response to the customer's inquiry, unless the primary purpose of that communication is to arrange an appointment for presentation of the invention developer's services [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22381; see § 103.200].

Failure to make any of the following disclosures renders any contract subsequently entered into between customer and developer voidable at the option of the customer [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22388].

1. Advise developer to disclose information concerning fees, including:

- a. Amount of fee charged, or approximate range of fees;
- b. If applicable, statement that portion of fees charged will be paid as commission to person inducing customer, directly or indirectly, to contract for services of invention developer; and
- c. Approximate portion of fee charged, if any, to be expended for services relating to patent matters.

2. Advise developer to make one of following statements regarding proposed expenditures:

- a. That invention developer does not intend to expend more for invention development services than fee charged customer; or
- b. Statement of estimated expenditures of invention developer in excess of fee received from customer.

3. Advise developer to provide customer with single statement disclosing both:

- a. Total number of customers who have contracted with invention developer; and

NOTE:

This number need not include customers who have contracted within the last 30 days. [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22379(k)].

- b. Number of those customers who have received money by virtue of developer's services in excess of amount of money paid by those customers to invention developer.

4. Advise developer to provide customer with information in form required by law concerning potential patent, copyright, or trademark protection.

NOTE:

This disclosure is a statement advising the customer that the contract is legally regulated, and cautions the customer about potential patent, copyright, and trademark protection for ideas or inventions, and various circumstances that could result in loss of that protection [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22381(d)]. The statement is similar to that required to appear on the cover letter disclosure [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22374] and in the contract itself [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22379(p)].

33-103 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103.130

§ 103.130 Contract Contents and Formalities

NOTE:

An invention development services contract must be in writing [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22372(a)].

1. Draft invention development services contract, which must include following required provisions in at least 10-point, boldface type (or equivalent size, if handwritten) [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22373(b), 22379; see § 103.202[2]]:

a. Identifying information concerning invention developer, including all of following:

(1) Name of person or firm contracting to perform invention development services.

(2) Name under which that person or firm is doing, or has done, business as invention developer.

(3) Name of any parent, subsidiary, or affiliated company that may engage in performing invention development services.

(4) Invention developer's principal business address.

(5) Name and address of invention developer's agent in California authorized to receive service of process.

(6) Invention developer's form of business, such as corporation, partnership, or other entity.

b. Full and detailed description of acts or services which invention developer undertakes to perform for customer.

NOTE:

To the extent that the description affords the invention developer the discretion to decide what acts or services are to be performed, the developer is required to exercise that discretion to promote the best interest of the customer [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22379(b)]. To aid the developer in exercising this discretion, the descriptions should be as full and detailed as possible.

c. Statement whether invention developer undertakes to construct one or more prototypes, models, or devices embodying customer's invention.

d. Statement whether developer undertakes to sell or distribute one or more prototypes, models, or devices embodying invention.

e. Information concerning fee charged, including:

(1) Amount of fee;

(2) If applicable, statement that portion of fee will be paid to person inducing, directly or indirectly, customer to contract for services of invention developer, and name(s) of any person(s) receiving any such payment; and

(3) Approximate portion of fee charged, if any, to be expended for services relating to patent matters.

f. One of following statements:

(1) That invention developer does not intend to expend more for invention development services than fee charged; or

(2) Estimated amount of expenditures in excess of fees received.

g. Terms and conditions of payment.

NOTE:

Bus. & Prof. Code § 22379(a) refers to "[t]he terms and conditions of payment required by [Bus. & Prof. Code] Section 22373." Bus. & Prof. Code § 22373, however, pertains primarily to the right to cancel the contract and obtain a refund of any payments previously made. No other section of the Act actually covers the subject of payment terms and conditions. It is recommended that the contract specifically provide that payments will be returned if cancellation is effected, even though the required cover sheet will also carry this information [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22374]. The contract also should state any other desired terms and conditions of payment.

h. If any oral or written representation of estimated or projected customer earnings has been made, state:

(1) Amount of estimated or projected earnings; and

(2) Data on which it is based.

i. Single statement disclosing both:

(1) Total number of customers who have contracted with invention developer; and

NOTE:

This number need not include customers who have contracted within the last 30 days. [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22379(k)].

(2) Number of those customers who have received money by virtue of developer's services in excess of amount of money paid by those customers to invention developer.

j. Information concerning maintenance of records and correspondence relating to performance of invention development services for customer, including:

(1) Statement that invention developer is required to maintain those records and correspondence for period of not less than three years after expiration of term of invention development services contract;

(2) Name and address of custodian of records and correspondence; and

(3) Statement that records and correspondence will be made available for review and copying to customer or representative, at customer's expense, on invention developer's premises during normal business hours, on seven days' written notice, beginning from date notice is placed in United States mail, properly addressed with first-class postage prepaid.

k. Expected date of completion of invention development services.

l. Statement prescribed by statute concerning potential patent, copyright, and trademark protection.

NOTE:

Among other things, this statement advises the customer that the contract is legally regulated, that the developer is neither qualified nor allowed to give advice as to protection under the patent, copyright, or trademark laws, or any other law, and that the contract does not afford that protection. The statement also cautions the customer that the failure to properly inquire into matters of protection or infringement of others' protection may affect the customer's rights. The same statement is carried on the cover letter disclosure that is required to accompany the contract [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22374; see also § 103.201].

m. Notification of time within which right to cancel contract may be exercised, in form prescribed by statute, located immediately above place for customer's signature on contract.

NOTE:

This statement advises the customer of the last day on which to mail or deliver the notice of cancellation, explains the method of cancellation, and advises of reciprocal rights in the invention developer [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22373(b)].

2. Do not include any prohibited provisions in invention development services contract, such as:

a. Any provision by which developer acquires any interest, partial or whole, in title to developer's invention, except [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22375]:

(1) Provision to acquire interest in developer's invention in connection with undertaking to manufacture invention; or

(2) Provision by which developer is to receive portion of proceeds accruing to customer as result of developer's performance of invention development services.

b. Any provision requiring customer to execute note, or series of notes, that would cut off, as to third parties, any right of action or defense that customer would have against developer [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22376].

c. Any provision waiving any of customer's rights under development services law.

NOTE:

Such a waiver is deemed contrary to public policy and is void and unenforceable [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22385].

3. Check invention development services contract for compliance with all other applicable provisions of law.

NOTE:

The provisions of the invention development services contracts law are not exclusive and do not relieve the parties or the contract from compliance with all other applicable provisions of law [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22382].

4. Attach required cover sheet containing notices prescribed by statute (but not other notices) to invention development services contract [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22374; see § 103.201[2]].

NOTE:

The required notice discloses the method for cancellation, informs the customer that the contract is legally regulated, and cautions the customer about potential patent, copyright, and trademark protection, and potential loss of that protection [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22374].

5. Give customer copy of written invention development services contract when customer signs contract [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22372(a)].

6. If developer contemplates one or more subsequent contracts in connection with customer's invention, or performance of services in more than one phase covered by one or more subsequent contracts, provide customer with following at time that customer signs first contract [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22372(b); see § 103.203[2]]:

a. Written statement that one or more subsequent contracts is contemplated in connection with customer's invention; and

b. Copy of one of following:

(1) Any subsequent contract; or

(2) Written summary of each and every subsequent contract, including amount of any fees or other consideration required from customer.

CHAPTER 103 INVENTION DEVELOPMENT SERVICES
PART IV. FORMS

33-103 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103.200

§ 103.200 Disclosure Statement of Invention Developer

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a statement of disclosures required by the California Invention Development Services Contracts Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22370 et seq.]. An invention developer must make these disclosures to a customer at either the first oral communication with the customer or the first written response to any inquiry by the customer. However, if the primary purpose of the oral communication or written response is only to arrange an appointment with the invention developer for presentation of the firm's development services, the disclosures are not required. The disclosures concern generally the following [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22381]:

- The fee for services, its range, whether a portion of the fee will be paid for commissions, and what portion of the fee goes to patent matters.
- Expenditures and the extent to which, if any, the expenditures will exceed the amount of the fee.
- The total number of the developer's customers in the past, and the number who have realized a profit in excess of the fee.
- A notice in language prescribed by statute, including a warning that the invention developer is neither qualified nor permitted to advise the customer on patent, copyright, or trademark protection.

[b] Writing Required

The disclosures contained in this form must be set forth in a writing, and that writing must be given to each customer at the time of disclosure [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22381]. If the invention developer talks to the customer over the telephone, prudent practice suggests that the disclosure be read from the preprinted written disclosure statement in the course of the conversation. During the conversation the developer should obtain the customer's name and address and then fax or mail a copy of the disclosure statement to the customer. If the first communication is made in a personal interview, the customer should be handed a copy of the disclosure statement by the end of the conversation. If the statement is faxed or mailed, a copy should be retained with appropriate notation regarding the time and manner in which it was communicated to the customer.

[c] Effect of Failure to Make Required Disclosures

Failure to make the disclosures required by the Invention Development Services Contracts Act renders any contract subsequently entered into between the customer and the invention developer voidable at the option of the customer [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22388]. Furthermore, any invention developer who willfully violates the Act by entering into an invention development contract without making the required disclosures is guilty of a misdemeanor [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22387].

[2] FORM

Disclosure Statement of Invention Developer

INVENTION DEVELOPER'S DISCLOSURE STATEMENT

California law requires our firm to provide you with certain information concerning our fees charged, expenditures in rendering our services, customer successes, and other matters. We are therefore providing you with the following information as required by law.

Fee Schedule

Our fee schedule for invention development services is as follows:

[Set forth fee schedule; the following sample language may be modified as appropriate:]

For an examination of your idea or invention, a limited patent search to aid in determining the novelty of the submitted matter, and a report submitted to you concerning our findings, the fee is $_____.

For undertaking the manufacture of your invention, the fee ranges from $_____ to $_____, and may include an interest in the title to your invention as well as a percentage in the proceeds from the sale or assignment of the invention ranging from _____ percent to _____ percent.

For attempting to promote your invention through advertisement in trade journals or written or personal appeals to the appropriate industry, the fee ranges from $_____ to $_____.

A portion of any fee so charged will constitute part of the compensation of the agent who will be your initial and primary personal representative within our firm, and through whom you agree to enter into a contractual relationship with our company. Approximately _____ percent of any fee so paid will be expended for services relating to patent matters.

[Continue with the following:]

Proposed Expenditures

Our firm does not intend to expend more for the invention development services than the fee charged in each instance.

[Add, if appropriate:]

However, in the case of promotion of an invention that our firm has agreed to manufacture in exchange for a share of the proceeds from the sale of that invention, our firm may expend up to $_____ in excess of the fee charged].

[Continue with the following:]

Customer Successes

Our firm is pleased to report that, as of _____[date], a total of [number] customers have entered into contracts with us for invention development services. Of that number, [number] customers have received, by virtue of our performance of invention development services, an amount of money in excess of that amount paid to us by those customers.

Regulation of Contract and Protection of Idea or Invention

Your potential patent rights may be adversely affected by any attempt to commercialize your idea or invention before a patent application covering it is filed. Nonconfidential disclosures of your idea or invention may also trigger certain statutory deadlines for filing a patent application in the United States and would prevent you from obtaining valid patent rights in countries whose law provides that patent applications must be filed before there is a public disclosure.

Any contract for invention development services between you and our firm will be regulated by law. Our firm is not qualified or permitted to advise you whether protection of your idea or invention is available under the patent, copyright, or trademark laws of the United States or any other law. The contract does not provide any patent, copyright, or trademark protection for your idea or invention. If your idea or invention is patentable, copyrightable, or subject to trademark protection, or infringes an existing valid patent, copyright, or trademark, or a patent, copyright, or trademark for which application has been made, your failure to inquire into these matters may affect your rights to your idea or invention.

[EITHER]

Please promptly arrange an appointment with our firm so that we may detail for you the invention development services we are able to offer.

[OR]

This will confirm that you have arranged for an appointment with our firm for a fuller presentation of our invention development services on _____[date], at [time].

Sincerely, [typed name of invention developer]

By: _____ [signature]

[1] Comment--Use of Form

This form is the cover sheet required to accompany any contract for invention development services under the Invention Development Services Contracts Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22370 et seq.]. The Act requires that the cover sheet be distinctive and conspicuous and that it contain the notice set forth in the Act. The required notice (1) discloses and describes the right of the customer to cancel the contract; (2) advises the customer about the potential loss of patent rights from premature commercial exploitation and disclosure of the invention or idea; and (3) informs the customer that patent, copyright, and trademark protection and advice are not being provided to the customer [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22374]. The notice must be imprinted on the cover sheet in boldface type of not less than 10 point in size [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22374].

[2] FORM

Cover Sheet for Invention Development Services Contract

COVER SHEET FOR INVENTION DEVELOPMENT SERVICES CONTRACT

The following disclosures are required by law:

You have the right to cancel this contract for any reason at any time within seven days from the date you and the invention developer sign the contract and you receive a fully executed copy of it. To exercise this option you need only mail or deliver to this invention developer written notice of your cancellation. The method and time for notification is set forth in this contract immediately above the place for your signature. Upon cancellation, the invention developer must return by mail, within five business days, all money paid and all materials provided by you.

Your potential patent rights may be adversely affected by any attempt to commercialize your idea or invention before a patent application covering it is filed. Nonconfidential disclosures of your idea or invention may also trigger certain statutory deadlines for filing a patent application in the United States and would prevent you from obtaining valid patent rights in countries whose law provides that patent applications must be filed before there is a public disclosure.

This contract between you and the invention developer is regulated by law. The invention developer is not qualified or permitted to advise you whether protection of your idea or invention is available under the patent, copyright, or trademark laws of the United States or any other law. This contract does not provide any patent, copyright, or trademark protection for your idea or invention. If your idea or invention is patentable, copyrightable, or subject to trademark protection, or infringes an existing valid patent, copyright, or trademark or a patent, copyright, or trademark for which application has been made, your failure to inquire into these matters may affect your rights to your idea or invention.

CHAPTER 103 INVENTION DEVELOPMENT SERVICES
PART IV. FORMS

33-103 California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103.202

§ 103.202 Invention Development Services Contract

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a sample invention development services contract. The Invention Development Services Contracts Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22370 et seq.] requires that every contract for invention development services contain certain mandatory provisions. Those mandatory contractual provisions must be set forth in at least 10-point boldface type, or equivalent size, if handwritten [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22379].

[b] Services and Charges

The contract must include a full and detailed description of services to be performed, including any construction or distribution of models or prototypes of the customer's invention [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22379(b)-(d)]. The expected date of completion of the services should be indicated [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22379(o)]. The fee charged must also be specified, with information about its intended allocation to commission agents, as well as information as to whether the promoter will spend more than the fee on services rendered [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22379(h), (i)]. If any representation of estimated or projected customer earnings is or has been made, the contract must include the estimation or projection, along with the supporting data [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22379(j)].

Every invention development services contract also must include the terms and conditions of payment required by Bus. & Prof. Code § 22373 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22379(a)]. Bus. & Prof. Code § 22373 pertains to the customer's right to cancel the contract. The invention developer and the customer each have the right to cancel a contract for invention development services for any reason at any time within seven days of the date the invention developer and the customer sign the contract. Cancellation must be effected by written notice mailed or delivered to the invention developer or the customer. If that notice is mailed, it must be postmarked by midnight of the last day of the cancellation period. If the notice is delivered, it must be delivered by the end of the invention developer's normal business day. Within five business days after receipt of notice of cancellation by the customer, the invention developer must return to the customer, by mail, all moneys paid and all materials provided by the customer [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22373(a)].

Every contract must contain a prescribed statement in 10-point boldface type, immediately above the place at which the customer signs the contract, relating to the cancellation rights described above [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22373(b)]. Although neither Bus. & Prof. Code § 22379 nor Bus. & Prof. Code § 22373 expressly requires it, basic contract drafting principles would suggest that the better practice is to set forth any applicable terms and conditions of payment, such as the form and timing of payments.

An invention developer may not acquire any interest in the title to a customer's invention, unless the invention developer contracts to manufacture the invention and acquires the interest for that purpose at or about the time the contract for manufacture is executed. Nevertheless, an invention developer may draft and enter into a contract permitting the developer to share in the proceeds resulting from the development services [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22375]. The contract, on the other hand, may not require or entail execution of any notes that may be separately negotiated to third parties free of the customer's actions or defenses against the developer; any assignee of the developer is subject to all equities and defenses in the customer's favor at time of assignment [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22376, 22377].

[c] Identification of Developer, Maintenance of Records, and Achievements

The contract must give the invention developer's name, any fictitious names used in the business, the form of business entity, and the names of any affiliate companies who may participate in performance [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22379(e)]. The principal business address, as well as the name and address of the developer's California agent for service of process must also be included [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22379(f)].

The invention developer must state that the firm is required to maintain all records and correspondence regarding performance of services for at least three years after the contract expires [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22379(l)]. The name and address of the records custodian should be listed [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22379(m)], along with a statement that the records are available for review or copying by the customer or the customer's agent on the terms and procedure prescribed by law [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22379(n)].

The contract also must set forth, in a single statement, both the total number of customers who have contracted with the invention developer (except that contracts entered into within the last 30 days need not be reflected) and the total number of customers who have received more money from the developer's services than they have paid to the developer [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22379(k)]. The developer may wish to include other information concerning the promoter's efforts and services, such as how many cases have not been fully processed, and how many ended with desirable and tangible accomplishment apart from earnings.

[d] Advisory Legends

Two kinds of statements must be set out verbatim in the language of statute. One notice (1) warns of potential adverse consequences to patent rights from premature commercialization or disclosure, (2) states that the contract is regulated by law, (3) cautions the customer that the invention developer is not qualified or permitted to advise on the matter of patent, copyright, or trademark protection, and (4) cautions the customer that the contract provides no patent, copyright, or trademark protection and that the customer is responsible for inquiring into the extent of that protection, if any [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22379(p)]. The other statement notifies the customer of the last day on which it is possible to cancel the contract and recites the cancellation procedure. This latter statement must appear immediately above the customer's signature line [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22373(b); see [b], above].

[e] Other Contract Requirements

Every contract for invention development services must be in writing, and a copy of the written contract must be given to the customer at the time of execution [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22372(a)]. The contract must be accompanied by a cover sheet carrying prescribed disclosures [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22374; see § 103.201[2]]. The contract is subject to the customer's right to cancel for any reason by a prescribed procedure within seven days of execution [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22373(a); see [b], above; see also § 103.204[1][b]]. If subsequent contracts are contemplated, the customer must be given a written statement of that fact, accompanied by copies or summaries of those contracts, at the time of signing the first contract [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22372(b); see § 103.203[2]]. Any waivers by the customer of provisions of the invention development services law are unenforceable [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22385].

[f] Remedies and Liabilities

The customer may void a contract if the invention developer has failed to make the initial disclosures required by law prior to negotiations [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22388; see § 103.200[1][c]]. Moreover, any contract not in compliance with the Invention Development Services Contracts Act is void and unenforceable, unless the developer can show that the noncompliance was unintentional and resulted from a bona fide error, notwithstanding the use of reasonable procedures adopted to avoid any such errors, and makes an appropriate correction [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22383]. Any contract entered into in reliance on any willful and false, fraudulent, or misleading representation by the invention developer is likewise void and unenforceable [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22384].

A developer who violates the Invention Development Services Contracts Act may incur civil liability to the injured customer for $3,000 or three times the amount of actual damages sustained, whichever amount is greater [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22386]. The court also may award reasonable attorneys' fees to the plaintiff [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22386]. Criminal prosecution and injunctive relief may also result from violations of the contract requirements of the governing law [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22387].

Invention Development Services Contract

INVENTION DEVELOPMENT SERVICES CONTRACT

This agreement is entered into on _____[date], between _____[name of invention developer] ("Invention Developer") and _____[name of inventor] ("Inventor");

Recitals

Inventor has an [idea or invention] believed to be of substantial commercial value and desires to procure invention development services from Invention Developer for the development [, promotion, manufacture, and marketing] of _____[his or her or its] [idea or invention]. Invention Developer has the resources and expertise necessary for the development[, promotion, manufacture, and marketing] of ideas and inventions and desires to perform for compensation the invention development services specified in this agreement.

IT IS THEREFORE AGREED AS FOLLOWS:

ARTICLE I

PARTIES AND SUBJECT MATTER

Inventor's Identity and Address

Section 1.01. Inventor is and represents [himself or herself or itself] to be the inventor of the [idea or invention] described in Section 1.02, below, which is the subject matter of this agreement. All notices and correspondence pertaining to this agreement shall be mailed or delivered to Inventor at the following address: _____.

Inventor may change the address to which notices or correspondence will be mailed or delivered by notifying Invention Developer in writing of the new address.

Idea or Invention

Section 1.02. The [idea or invention] of Inventor that is the subject matter of this Agreement is described as follows: [describe to the extent necessary to clarify developer's contractual rights and duties]. This [idea or invention] is referred to in this agreement as the "Invention."

Disclosure of Invention and Confidentiality

Section 1.03. Inventor shall disclose the Invention to the Invention Developer under this agreement for the purpose of enabling Invention Developer to undertake and perform the invention development services described below. Invention Developer shall preserve in confidence the Invention and reveal only those details of the Invention as are necessary to perfect its practical application, to promote and market it in legitimate trade circles and appropriate industrial sources, to obtain any necessary approval from private and governmental agencies and organizations, and to otherwise perform its duties under this agreement.

Invention Developer's Identity and Address

Section 1.04. Invention Developer, [who is an individual or specify type of business entity, e.g., which is a corporation duly organized and operating under the laws of California], [doing or having previously done] business under the name of _____ [trade name], is the [firm or person] contracting to perform the described invention development services. Invention Developer's principal place of business is _____ [address]. The name of Invention Developer's agent in California who is authorized to receive service of process is _____ [name], whose address for receipt of service of process is _____ [address]. [_____ (Name of company) is _____ (a subsidiary or a parent or an affiliate) company of Invention Developer and may engage in performing certain of the invention development services provided for in this agreement.]

ARTICLE II SERVICES

[Describe invention development services to be performed in detail, such as the following examples in Sections 2.01, 2.01, and 2.03, below.]

Patent Research

Section 2.01. Invention Developer shall immediately initiate a preliminary patent research program and shall

- (a) Thoroughly examine the Invention for all of its distinguishing features and possible uses.
- (b) Gather all other materials found to be necessary to support or explain the Invention for research purposes.

- (c) Prepare complete instructions for research personnel.
- (d) Classify the subject matter and the field of investigation.
- (e) Instruct Invention Developer's [specially retained] patent research personnel to engage in a selective and specially limited search of prior United States patents relevant to the Invention.
- (f) Procure from the United States Patent and Trademark Office copies of relevant inventions located by special research personnel of Invention Developer.
- (g) Consult with Inventor and present the results of the preliminary patent research study on the Invention and discuss with Inventor the significance of these results for possible development and promotion of the Invention.

Idea Promotion

Section 2.02. Invention Developer shall promote the idea of Inventor and shall

- (a) Thoroughly examine the Invention for all of its marketable features.
- (b) Prepare a complete prospectus regarding the Invention, with a digest of the Invention and its function, along with appropriate photographs, designs, or other illustrations which, in the opinion of Invention Developer, serve and enhance the purpose of the prospectus, and which does not disclose the specific and patentable features in any detail that might jeopardize the patentable status of the Invention.
- (c) Print the prospectus in an appropriate manner within the standards of the idea-promotion industry.
- (d) Prepare a brief introductory cover sales letter to introduce the prospectus.
- (e) Mail the prospectus or accompanying letter, or both, to selected industry personnel who may be potentially interested in such an invention, including business leaders, key management personnel, and key corporate officials, as appropriate.
- (f) Contact industry personnel by telephone or in person to discuss possible commercial uses for the Invention.
- (g) Advertise in selected trade journals, inviting inquiry as to the Invention and asking for inquiries and requests to receive the prospectus or to arrange an interview with a member of the staff of Invention Developer.
- (h) Provide Inventor with information concerning the progress and results of all the above-described services taken to promote the Invention.
- (i) Represent Inventor in negotiations with any of the above industry personnel who indicate an appropriate interest in the Invention, making offers to or accepting offers from those persons only on terms approved in writing by Inventor.

Manufacture of Invention

Section 2.03. Invention Developer shall undertake the exclusive manufacture of the Invention and shall

- (a) Accomplish all or any part of the manufacture, at any time during the course of production, either through its own facilities or those of any related or nonrelated enterprise.

(b) Manufacture the Invention to the appropriate specifications and quality set forth in [specify source of specifications, e.g., (1) the formal plan of the Invention to be prepared by Invention Developer and approved by Inventor, and (2) any patent application or letters patent granted, as of the time of manufacture].

(c) Manufacture the Invention in the quantity as Invention Developer determines to be appropriate in light of the demand for the Invention to be, including a quantity sufficient to meet the demands of any binding commitments made by Invention Developer.

(d) Have the exclusive license to arrange for manufacture of the Invention, or its component parts, at any facilities throughout the United States or the world. [This exclusive right of Invention Developer to manufacture or grant manufacturing rights as to the Invention shall expire on _____ (date).]

[Continue with the following:]

Completion of Services

Section 2.04. Invention Developer shall complete the above-described services by _____ [date].

Prototype or Model

Section 2.05. Invention Developer shall construct a [prototype of or model of or device embodying] the Invention for purposes of illustration and demonstration in its program of development and promotion of the Invention. [Additionally, Invention Developer shall construct a limited number of exhibits of the Invention and shall sell or otherwise distribute them among industrial personnel for the purpose of promoting the Invention.]

Estimated Earnings

Section 2.06. The parties acknowledge that Invention Developer has neither made nor shall make any oral or written representations to Inventor regarding the estimated or projected earnings of Inventor resulting from the development and promotion of the Invention. Invention Developer may make those representations at the time of the negotiation or execution of final contracts with specific customers, but only in relation to those potential and actual contracts.

ARTICLE III CONSIDERATION

[EITHER]

Flat Fee

Section 3.01. In consideration for the invention development services to be provided under this agreement, Inventor shall pay to Invention Developer a fee of $_____ on or before _____ [date].

[OR]

Installment Fee

Section 3.01. In consideration for the invention development services to be provided under this agreement, Inventor shall pay to Invention Developer a fee of $_____, to be paid in installments as follows: [specify installment schedule, e.g., 30 percent on execution of this agreement, 30 percent on completion of the prototype described in Section 2.05, the balance on completion of the remainder of services specified in this agreement].

[EITHER]

Share of Proceeds

Section 3.02. Inventor shall immediately assign to Invention Developer, in further consideration for the invention development services provided for in this agreement, a _____ percent interest in any proceeds from the Invention received as a result of the invention development services performed by Invention Developer.

[AND/OR]

Share of Title

Section 3.03. Inventor shall immediately assign to Invention Developer a _____ percent proprietary interest in the Invention and in any patent procured for the Invention, as consideration for the undertaking of Invention Developer in [arranging] the manufacture of the Invention in the appropriate quantity and quality as provided for in this agreement.

[CONTINUE]

Application of Fees

Section 3.04. Invention Developer shall apply _____ [_____ percent or $_____] of the above-described fee[s] to the compensation of _____ [name], authorized agent of Invention Developer, who is acting as the personal representative of Invention Developer in dealing with Inventor, and who has contracted with Inventor on behalf of Invention Developer. [Approximately _____ percent of the fee[s] shall be expended for services relating to patent matters.] [It is not the intention of Invention Developer to expend more than the fee(s) charged under this agreement for the invention development services or It is estimated that Invention Developer will expend $_____ in excess of the fee(s) charged under this agreement in performing its services].

Refunds

Section 3.05. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this agreement, if Inventor or Invention Developer should cancel this agreement within seven days after execution of this agreement, as provided by Section 5.02 of this Agreement, Invention Developer shall return to Inventor, by mail, within five business days after receipt of Inventor's notice of cancellation, all moneys paid and all materials provided by Inventor.

ARTICLE IV RECORDS

Other Customers

Section 4.01. Invention Developer is pleased to disclose that a total of [number] customers have previously contracted with Invention Developer, as of _____[date within previous 30 days], and of this number [number] have received, by virtue of Invention Developer's performance of invention development services, an amount of money in excess of the amount of money paid by those customers to Invention Developer. [If desired, provide additional statistics concerning success of developer's services.]

Retention of Records of Services Performed

Section 4.02. Invention Developer is required by law to maintain all records and correspondence relating to performance of the invention development services for each of its inventors for at least three years after expiration of the term of any such contract for invention development services. All records and correspondence are maintained in the custody of _____[name], at _____[address]. Those materials will be made available to Inventor, or Inventor's representative, for review and copying at Inventor's expense on Invention Developer's premises during normal business hours and on seven day' written notice. The time period for response to any request for inspection and copying of records will begin from the date that the Inventor's written notice is placed in the United States mail properly addressed, first-class postage prepaid.

ARTICLE V NOTICES AND RIGHTS

Patent, Copyright, and Trademark Protection

Section 5.01. California Business and Professions Code Section 22379(p) requires that the following notice be included in this agreement:

Your potential patent rights may be adversely affected by any attempt to commercialize your idea or invention before a patent application covering it is filed. Nonconfidential disclosures of your idea or invention may also trigger certain statutory deadlines for filing a patent application in the United States and would prevent you from obtaining valid patent rights in countries whose laws provides that patent applications must be filed before there is a public disclosure.

This contract between you and the invention developer is regulated by law. The invention developer is not qualified or permitted to advise you whether protection of your idea or invention is available under the patent, copyright, or trademark laws of the United States or any other law. This contract does not provide any patent, copyright, or trademark protection for your idea or invention. If your idea or invention is patentable, copyrightable, or subject to trademark protection, or infringes an existing valid patent, copyright, or trademark or a patent, copyright, or trademark for which application has been made, your failure to inquire into these matters may affect your rights to your idea or invention.

Right to Cancel

Section 5.02. Notwithstanding any contractual provision to the contrary, Invention Developer and Inventor shall each have the right to cancel this agreement for any reason at any time within seven days of the date Invention Developer and Inventor sign this agreement. Cancellation shall be effected by written notice mailed or delivered to Invention Developer or Inventor. If the notice is mailed, it must be postmarked by midnight of the last day of the cancellation period. If the notice is delivered, it must be delivered by the end of Invention Developer's normal business day.

Execution

The parties have executed this agreement at _____[city], California, on the date set forth at the beginning of this agreement.

INVENTION DEVELOPER

_____ [name of firm]

By _____ [signature]

[typed name and title]

[The following notice must be included in 10-point boldface type immediately above the place at which the customer signs the agreement (Bus. & Prof. Code § 22373).]

NOTICE TO INVENTOR

The seven-day period during which you may cancel this contract for any reason by mailing or delivering written notice to the invention developer will expire on:

_____ [last date to mail or deliver notice]

If you choose to mail your notice, it must be placed in the United States mail properly addressed first-class postage prepaid and postmarked before midnight of this date. If you choose to deliver your notice to the invention developer directly, it must be delivered to the invention developer by the end of the developer's normal business day on this date. The invention developer also has the right to cancel this contract by notice similarly mailed or delivered.

§ 103.204 Notice of Cancellation of Contract by Customer

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a customer's notice of cancellation of an invention development services contract. Under the Invention Development Services Contracts Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22370 et seq.], the customer has the right to cancel a contract for invention development services for any reason, as does the invention developer [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22373(a)]. This cancellation right exists notwithstanding any contractual provision to the contrary [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22373(a)].

[b] Exercising Right to Cancel

The right must be exercised within seven days after execution of the contract by both parties. Cancellation is effected by written notice to the other party, either mailed or delivered. Mailing must be postmarked by midnight of the last day of the cancellation period. If delivered, the notice must arrive by the end of the invention developer's normal business day. If the customer cancels the contract, the invention developer must return, by mail, all moneys paid and all materials provided by the customer [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22373(a)].

If the notice is mailed by the customer, it is advisable to send it by certified mail, return receipt requested. If delivery is made in person, a previously prepared acknowledgment of receipt should be submitted to the person accepting delivery for signature and immediately returned to the delivery person. An optional receipt is included at the end of this form.

§ 103.206 Quarterly Statement of Invention Development Services

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a quarterly statement of invention development services. The invention developer must prepare a written statement of the invention development services performed to date with respect to each and every contract for those services. The statement must be delivered to the customer at the address specified in the contract. The statement must be sent at quarterly intervals throughout the term of the contract; however, the first statement need not be sent until 180 days after the contract is executed [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22378].

If there is more than one contract with a given customer, whether or not each contract is an independent one for different development services for that customer, it would seem the required report may be combined into the same written statement of services, as long as it is clear to which contract the reported services are attributable.

The following form suggests listing the full complement of various areas in which the particular invention developer is prepared to render services, whether or not all are covered under the customer's individual contract. If no activity has occurred in any one of the listed areas, the developer can either leave that area blank or report "none."

[b] Maintaining Records

The invention developer is required to maintain all records and correspondence relating to performance of invention development services contracts for at least three full years after completion of each contract [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22392]. This requirement must be set forth in any contract for invention development services [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22379(l)], and the contract must also disclose the names and addresses of the custodians of those records [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22379(m)].

§ 103.207 Surety Bond for Invention Developer [Form SFSB-409]

[1] Comment

[a] Use of Form

This form is a surety bond for an invention developer. The form was drafted by the Attorney General [see 11 Cal. Code Reg. § 25(b); 11 Cal. Code Reg. § 63.4 (amendment filed 8/26/99 and submitted to Office of Administrative Law for printing only)] under legislation requiring that office to approve the form of all bonds of private persons required by statute to furnish bonds to state agencies, to assure their conformity to applicable law [see Gov. Code § 11110]. Parties may request that the Attorney General revoke or modify particular bond approvals [Gov. Code §§ 11111, 11113]. The form is published by the Secretary of State's Office as Form SFSB-409.

This form may be obtained in a variety of ways from the California Secretary of State. It can be picked up from the Office of the Secretary of State, located at 1500 11th Street, Suite 345, Sacramento, CA 95814. The form can be obtained by requesting it by regular mail from the Office of the Secretary of State, P.O. Box 944225, Sacramento, CA 94244-2250, or by requesting it by telephone, 916-653-3984. Finally, the form can be downloaded from the Business Service Center page of the Secretary of State's website, which is located at <http://www.sos.ca.gov/business/>.

[b] Bond Requirement

Any invention developer who renders invention development services in California, or offers to do so, is required to maintain a bond issued by a surety company admitted to do business in California. The principal sum of the bond must be 5 percent of the promoter's gross income from that business in California during the last fiscal year. However, the sum may not be less than $25,000 in the first or any subsequent year of operations [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22389]. For a Declaration of Income form provided by the Secretary of State, see § 103.208[2].

An undertaking (that is, a surety, indemnity, fiduciary, or like undertaking executed by sureties alone) will satisfy the bond required of an invention developer [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 995.190 ("undertaking" defined), 995.210(a)(statutory bonds and statutory undertakings interchangeable)]. An invention developer's undertaking must satisfy all statutory requirements for a bond set forth in Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22389 and 22390 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.210(a)]. After January 1, 1999, a deposit in lieu of bond may not be used for deposits with the Secretary of State [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.710(e)].

[c] Filing and Fees

A copy of the bond must be filed with the California Secretary of State before the time the invention developer initially begins business in California. There is a period of 90 days following the end of each fiscal year during which the bond may be changed, if needed, to conform to the requirements of the controlling statutory provision [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22389].

The executed document and a filing fee must be sent to the California Secretary of State [see § 103.207[2], below]. There is no filing fee for an amendment to a previously filed bond.

[d] Claimants Against Bond

The bond runs in favor of the State of California and to the benefit of anyone who has entered into a contract for invention development services with the invention developer and who has been damaged by fraud, dishonesty, or failure to provide services under the contract [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22390]. A claimant against the bond may maintain an action against both the invention developer and the surety [see Code Civ. Proc. § 996.410(a); see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 22391 (asserting claim against deposit used in lieu of bond); Code Civ. Proc. § 995.710(e) (prohibiting deposit in lieu of bond after January 1, 1999, for deposits with Secretary of State)]. Liability of the surety, however, is confined to the amount of the bond [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.470(a)].

[a] Use of Form

This form is a declaration of income for an invention developer. The form is published by the Secretary of State's Office as Form LP/SF-409D.

This form can be obtained from the California Secretary of State's office or can be downloaded from the Secretary of State's web site at <http://www.sos.ca.gov/business/>.

Any invention developer who renders invention development services in California, or offers to do so, is required to maintain a bond issued by a surety company admitted to do business in California. The principal sum of the bond must be five percent of the promoter's gross income from that business in California during the last fiscal year Bus. & Prof. Code § 22389. (However, the sum may not be less than $25,000 in the first or any subsequent year of operations [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22389]).

For the Secretary of State's surety bond form for invention developers, see § 103.207[2].

[b] Filing and Fees

This form should be filed with the California Secretary of State simultaneously with the surety bond in § 103.207[2]]. There is no filing fee. The document is not subject to public inspection [see § 103.208[2], below].

This chapter discusses the protections afforded to intellectual property under the federal copyright law. The chapter covers what copyright can and cannot protect, how to secure copyright protection, copyright registration, compulsory and negotiated licenses, and limitations on copyrights, such as fair use. The chapter discusses initial copyright ownership and transfer of ownership or rights. It also covers the federal Semiconductor Chip Protection Act of 1984. Step-by-step procedural guides are provided for copyright registration and deposit. Forms include official applications for copyright registration, an application for registration of a mask work embodied in a semiconductor chip product, a form for assignment of copyright, an authorization to use a copyrighted work, and several notices.

Copyright considerations specific to the entertainment industry are discussed in Ch. 87, Entertainment Contracts . Protection of computer software, including copyright, is covered in Ch. 57, Computer-Related Transactions . Trademarks are discussed in Ch. 103B, Trademarks .

CHAPTER 103A COPYRIGHTS

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

A. Governing Law

33-103A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103A.10

§ 103A.10 Federal Preemption

[1] Constitutional Basis for Copyright Protection

The source of the federal government's power over copyright is the Copyright Clause of the United States Constitution. That clause grants Congress the power to protect, for a limited time, the exclusive rights of authors and inventors to their respective writings and discoveries [U.S. Const., art. I, § 8, cl. 8]. Its primary purpose is to advance public welfare through the talents of authors, by granting enforceable rights, free from burdensome requirements [Mazer v. Stein (1953) 347 U.S. 201, 219, 74 S. Ct. 460, 98 L. Ed. 630 ; see Goldstein v. California (1973) 412 U.S. 546, 555, 93 S. Ct. 2303, 37 L. Ed. 2d 163 (Copyright Clause facilitates protection of literary and artistic works on national basis)]. Secondly, the clause is meant to encourage the individual effort of authors by personal gain [Mazer v. Stein (1953) 347 U.S. 201, 219, 74 S. Ct. 460, 98 L. Ed. 630] .

[2] Governing Statutes

Federal copyright protection is governed by Title 17 of the United States Code [17 U.S.C. § 101 et seq.] and by its implementing regulations [see 37 C.F.R. pt. 201 et seq.].

Under the Federal Copyright Act of 1976 (Act) [17 U.S.C. § 101 et seq.], a single federal system has been established for the protection of literary property. The Act abolishes the former dual system of "common law copyright" for unpublished works and federal statutory copyright for published works. Formerly, federal copyright protection began once a work had been published [see Nimmer On Copyright, Ch. 1, Constitutional Aspects of Copyright, § 1.01[B]; Ch. 2, The Subject Matter of Copyright, § 2.02 (Matthew Bender)]. Under the 1976 Act, however, copyright protection in an original work of authorship begins as soon as it is created by being fixed in any tangible medium of express from which it can be perceived, reproduced, or otherwise communicated, either directly or with the aid of a machine or device [17 U.S.C. § 102(a); see 17 U.S.C. § 101 (when work is fixed in tangible medium); see also H.R. Rep. No. 94-1476 at 129 (1976); § 103A.22[1]]. Thus, state common law copyright protection is expressly preempted by the Federal Copyright Act of 1976 [17 U.S.C. § 301(a)].

The superseded Copyright Act of 1909 is not necessarily immaterial in current cases. For instance, that act could be relevant on the issue of whether the work in question either received copyright protection under the 1909 act or fell into the public domain while that act was in force [see Societe Civile Succession Richard Guino v. Renoir (9th Cir. 2008) 549 F.3d 1182, 2008 U.S. App. LEXIS 24755, at *6-*20 (defendant infringed plaintiff's copyright in sculptures that were created in 1913-1917 and first published in 1917 in France; from 1917 to 1978, those sculptures were neither protected by copyright in United States nor in public domain; on January 1, 1978, they became subject to Copyright Act of 1976, under which in 1984 copyright protection was secured by registration)].

On or after May 1, 1991, the effective date of the Visual Artists Rights Act of 1990 [see Pub. L. No. 101-650, § 610(a), 104 Stat. 5128-5133], all legal or equitable rights equivalent to any of the rights of attribution and integrity for works of visual art [see 17 U.S.C. § 101 (definition)] conferred by 17 U.S.C. § 106A are governed exclusively by that section and related provisions of the copyright law. As of that date, these provisions preempt the common law or statutes of any state [17 U.S.C. § 301(f)(1)].

Exemptions to this federal preemption are discussed in [3], below.

[3] Exemptions From Preemption

Exceptions to this rule of preemption [see [1], above] apply to all of the following:

- Works not copyrightable under federal law, including works not fixed in any tangible medium of expression [17 U.S.C. § 301(b)(1); see, e.g., Civ. Code § 980 et seq.; see also § 103A.110, PP 2, 4 (examples)].
- Causes of action arising from undertakings begun before January 1, 1978 [17 U.S.C. § 301(b)(2)]. For copyright claims under California common law, this exception applies when the defendant's infringement, not just the plaintiff's creation of the work, occurred before January 1, 1978 [Klekas v. EMI Films, Inc. (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 1102, 1110].
- Causes of action arising from works protected by the Copyright Act of 1909, which was applicable before January 1, 1978, the effective date of the Copyright Act of 1976. The 1909 Act applies in such cases even if the alleged infringement occurred in 1978 or later [Magnuson v. Video Yesteryear (9th Cir. 1996) 85 F.3d 1424, 1427-1428].
- Activities violating legal or equitable rights that are not equivalent to any of the exclusive rights granted under a copyright [17 U.S.C. § 301(b)(3); see 17 U.S.C. § 106 (exclusive rights in copyrighted works); see also § 103A.20].
- State and local landmarks, historic preservation, zoning, or building codes relating to architectural works protected under 17 U.S.C. § 102(a)(8) [17 U.S.C. § 301(b)(4)].
- Rights or remedies with respect to sound recordings fixed before February 15, 1972 [see 17 U.S.C. § 301(c)].
- For works of visual art, any cause of action from undertakings begun before May 1, 1991, the effective date of the Visual Artists Rights Act of 1990 [17 U.S.C. § 301(f)(2)(A); see [2], above]; activities violating legal or equitable rights that are either not equivalent to any of the rights conferred by the copyright law with respect to works of visual art [see 17 U.S.C. § 106A] or that extend beyond the life of the author [17 U.S.C. § 301(f)(2)(B), (C)].

The rule of federal preemption applies only to the state courts and will not preclude the application of the forum non conveniens doctrine to foreign copyright holders. The Ninth Circuit has upheld the dismissal of a copyright infringement action under the forum non conveniens analysis, even though infringement occurred within the United States, when both parties were Singapore corporations that had registered copyrights in Singapore and the United States [Creative Technology Ltd. v. Aztech System PTE, Ltd. (9th Cir. 1995) 61 F.3d 696, 704] .

For additional discussion of the scope of preemption of state laws by the federal copyright law, see Nimmer On Copyright, Ch. 1, Constitutional Aspects of Copyright (Matthew Bender).

For discussion of state protection of intangible property interests that supplements federal protection, see § 103A.11.

CHAPTER 103A COPYRIGHTS

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

A. Governing Law

33-103A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103A.11

§ 103A.11 California Intellectual Property Law

[1] Theories of Recovery Under State Law

The Copyright Act 1976 does not affect or limit any right or remedies under the common law or statutes of any state relating to activities violating legal or equitable rights that are not equivalent to any of the exclusive rights within the general scope of the copyright as specified in 17 U.S.C. § 106. The common law rights of privacy, publicity, and trade secrets, as well as the general laws of defamation and fraud, appear to remain unaffected by federal preemption [see 17 U.S.C. § 301, Notes of Committee on the Judiciary, H.R. Rep. No. 94-1476, at 132 (1976); see also Nimmer On Copyright, Ch. 1, Constitutional Aspects of Copyright (Matthew Bender)].

State protection for works of authorship not protectable under federal law, including works of authorship that are not fixed in any tangible medium of expression, and sound recordings fixed before February 15, 1972, is governed by Civ. Code § 980 et seq. Educ. Code § 66450 et seq. offer some measure of protection against the unauthorized distribution of copies of classroom lectures.

For further discussion of protection of literary property and ideas under California law, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 349, Literary Property and Copyright (Matthew Bender).

[2] Test for Preemption

The courts generally use an "extra element test" to determine whether a state cause of action is equivalent to a copyright claim. If, under state law, the act of reproduction, performance, distribution, or display will in itself infringe the state-created right, then the right is preempted. However, if other elements are required in addition to or instead of the acts of reproduction, performance, distribution, or display in order to constitute a state-created cause of action, then the right does not lie within the general scope of copyright and there is no preemption [Summit Mach. Tool Mfg. v. Victor CNC Systems (9th Cir. 1993) 7 F.3d 1434, 1439-1440 ; Gladstone v. Hillel (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 977, 987, 250 Cal. Rptr. 372 ; see, e.g., Oddo v. Ries (9th Cir. 1984) 743 F.2d 630, 635 (conversion of tangible property involves actions different from those proscribed by federal copyright laws and thus is not preempted)]. The "extra element" must be one that changes the nature of the action so that it is qualitatively different from a copyright infringement claim [Summit

Mach. Tool Mfg. v. Victor CNC Systems (9th Cir. 1993) 7 F.3d 1434, 1439-1440 ; Gladstone v. Hillel (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 977, 987, 250 Cal. Rptr. 372 ; see, e.g., Donald Frederick Evans v. Continental Homes, Inc. (11th Cir. 1986) 785 F.2d 897, 914 (common law unfair competition claim required proof of elements other than those mandated in action under Copyright Act)].

§ 103A.12 International Law and Agreements

There is no such thing as an "international copyright" that will protect an author's work throughout the world. Protection against unauthorized use generally depends on the copyright laws of the each country. However, most countries offer protection to foreign works under certain conditions, and these conditions have been simplified by international copyright treaties and conventions. For a list of countries that maintain copyright relations with the United States, see U.S. Copyright Office Circular No. 38a, International Copyright Relations of the United States. CHAPTER 103A COPYRIGHTS

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

B. Nature of Copyright

33-103A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103A.20

§ 103A.20 What Is Copyright?

[1] Exclusive, Independent Rights

Copyright is a form of protection provided to authors of published or unpublished "original works of authorship," including literary, musical, dramatic, musical, artistic, and certain other intellectual works [see 17 U.S.C. §§ 102, 104]. The legal protection available for a copyrighted work is expressed in terms of six exclusive rights that are provided by the Act. These rights are exclusive in that they can be exercised only by their owner [see 17 U.S.C. § 106]. However, these rights are not absolute, as they are subject to a number of limitations in the Act [see §§ 103A.30-103A.40]. Accordingly, subject to those limitations, a copyright owner has the exclusive right to do or to authorize others to do any of the following activities [17 U.S.C. § 106]:

- To reproduce copyrighted work in copies or phonorecords.
- To distribute the reproductions to the public (by sale or other transfer of ownership, or by lending, renting, or leasing them).
- To prepare derivative works based on the copyrighted work.
- To perform the copyrighted work publicly, in the case of literary, musical, dramatic, and choreographic works, and pantomimes, and motion pictures and other audiovisual works.
- To display the copyrighted work publicly, in the case of literary, musical, dramatic, and choreographic works, pantomimes, pictorial, graphic, or sculptural works, including the individual images of motion pictures and other audiovisual works.
- In the case of sound recordings, to perform the copyrighted work publicly by means of a digital audio transmission [see § 103A.36[1]].

Terms such as "copies," "publication," "display," and "perform" are given broad meanings in the Act [see 17 U.S.C. § 101]. This approach was taken to encompass future technological developments for the creation and fixation of copyrightable works [see H.R. Rep. No. 94-1476, at 51, 52 (1976)].

[2] Additional Rights for Authors of Visual Art

[a] Rights of Attribution and Integrity

As a result of the Visual Artists Rights Act of 1990 [Pub. L. No. 101-650, §§ 601-610, 104 Stat. 5128-5133], which became effective on May 1, 1991, visual artists and photographers have additional rights that are independent of the exclusive rights described in [1], above. These rights are referred to as rights of attribution and integrity, and apply only to a "work of visual art" [17 U.S.C. § 106A; see 17 U.S.C. § 101 ("work of visual art" defined)].

These rights entitle authors (that is, visual artists and photographers) to claim authorship of their work ("attribution" rights) [17 U.S.C. § 106A(a)(1)(A); see 17 U.S.C. § 107 (fair use limitation)]. These rights also entitle authors to prevent the use of their name as authors of any work of visual art that they did not create [17 U.S.C. § 106A(a)(1)(B); see 17 U.S.C. § 107 (fair use limitation)]. The rights further entitle authors to prevent the use of their names in the event of a distortion, mutilation, or other modification of their work that would be prejudicial to their honor or reputation [17 U.S.C. § 106A(a)(2); see 17 U.S.C. § 107 (fair use limitation)].

In addition, the author has the right to prevent any intentional distortion, mutilation, or other modification of the work that would be prejudicial to his or her honor or reputation and to prevent destruction of the work, if it is of recognized stature ("integrity" rights) [17 U.S.C. § 106A(a)(3); see 17 U.S.C. § 113(d) (limitations for works incorporated in or made part of building)].

These rights are subject to certain limitations [see 17 U.S.C. § 107 (fair use limitation for attribution rights); 17 U.S.C. § 113(d) (limitations on integrity rights for works incorporated in or made part of building)] and to specified exceptions [see 17 U.S.C. § 106A(c)].

[b] Exercise of Rights

The rights of attribution and integrity apply to the author of a work of visual art, whether or not the author is also the copyright owner [17 U.S.C. § 106A(b)]. Ownership of these rights with respect to a work of visual art is distinct from ownership of any copy of the work, or of a copyright or any exclusive right under copyright law in that work [17 U.S.C. § 106A(e)(2)].

Rights of attribution and integrity may be waived, but may not be transferred [17 U.S.C. § 106A(e)(1)]. Any waiver is effective only if the author expressly agrees to waiver in a signed writing and only for the work and particular uses identified in the waiver [17 U.S.C. § 106A(e)(1)]. Waiver by one author of a joint work waives specified rights for all authors [17 U.S.C. § 106A(e)(1)].

[c] Duration of Rights

For works of visual art created after May 1, 1991, rights of attribution and integrity last for the life of the author [17 U.S.C. § 106A(d)(1)]. For qualifying works created before that date, for which title had not been transferred from the author by May 1, 1991, the rights are coextensive with and expire at the same time as the exclusive rights conferred by 17 U.S.C. § 106 [17 U.S.C. § 106A(d)(2); see § 103A.85 (duration of copyright)]. In the case of a joint work of visual art prepared by two or more authors, the rights endure for the life of the last surviving author [17 U.S.C. § 106A(d)].

CHAPTER 103A COPYRIGHTS

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

B. Nature of Copyright

33-103A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103A.21

§ 103A.21 Copyright Distinguished From Patent and Trademark

The terms "copyright," "trademark," and "patent" are frequently confused. Copyright law protects artistic, literary, musical, dramatic, and audiovisual works fixed in any tangible medium of expression, such as books, phonorecords, CD-ROM, computer software, motion pictures, videocassettes, photographs, and paintings [see 17 U.S.C. §§ 101, 102]. Copyright law regulates the use of these materials by someone other than the copyright owner.

Patent law, on the other hand, is a grant of rights for an invention. Patent protection is available only for the following:

- A new and useful industrial or technical process, machine, article of manufacture, or composition of matter (such as chemical compositions), or new and useful improvements of these items [see 35 U.S.C. § 101].
- A new, original, and ornamental design for an article of manufacture [see 35 U.S.C. § 116].
- A distinct and new asexually produced variety of plant [see 35 U.S.C. § 116].

Patent law regulates the making, use, or selling of a patented invention by someone other than its owner.

A trademark is "any work, name, symbol, or device, or any combination of them used by a manufacturer or merchant to identify his products and distinguish them from those manufactured or sold by others" [35 U.S.C. § 1127]. Trademark ownership provides the exclusive right to use the trademark to refer to a particular product.

For coverage of patent law, see generally Chisum On Patents(Matthew Bender). For discussion of trademarks, see Ch. 103B, Trademarks . California's Invention Development Services law is covered in Ch. 103, Invention Development Services .

CHAPTER 103A COPYRIGHTS

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

B. Nature of Copyright

33-103A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103A.22

§ 103A.22 What Can Be Protected

[1] Works Protected Under 1976 Act

Copyright protects "original works of authorship" that are "fixed in any tangible medium of expression" [17 U.S.C. § 102(a); see 17 U.S.C. § 101 (definitions); § 103A.110]. The medium may be now known or one later developed. A work is considered sufficiently fixed if it can be perceived, reproduced, or otherwise communicated, either directly or with the aid of a machine or device [17 U.S.C. § 102(a)].

A work is "fixed" in a tangible medium of expression when its embodiment in a copy or phonorecord, by or under the authority of the author, is sufficiently permanent or stable to permit it to be perceived, reproduced, or otherwise communicated for a period of more than transitory duration. A work consisting of sounds, images, or both, that is being transmitted, is "fixed" for purposes of the Act if a fixation of the work is being made simultaneously with its transmission [17 U.S.C. § 101]. For example, a live television broadcast of a news event, sporting event, or live performance of music or drama is disseminated to the public in an unfixed form. However, the coverage is almost always simultaneously recorded. The copyright owner in this case would be protected by federal copyright law and could proceed in federal court against an infringer of the live broadcast [see Notes of Committee on the Judiciary to § 102, H.R. Rep. No. 94-1476, at 52 (1976)]. In one case, the Ninth Circuit held that the act of loading copyrighted system maintenance software into a computer's random access memory (RAM) created a copy of protectable expression that was sufficiently "fixed" to constitute an infringement of the copyright. The court reasoned that even though the copy is lost from the RAM when the computer is switched off, the operator could view the system error log and diagnose any problems with the computer while the software was in the RAM [MAI Systems Corp. v. Peak Computer, Inc. (9th Cir. 1993) 991 F.2d 511, 518-519, cert. dismissed, 510 U.S. 1033 (1994)] .

The term "original works of authorship" has been purposely left undefined because it is intended to incorporate without change the standard of originality established by the courts under the present copyright statute. In this way, new forms of creative expression may come within the definition, although protection is not unlimited [see H.R. Rep. No. 94-1476, at 51 (1976)]. For example, reconstructions of nonexistent original works are not eligible for copyright registration [Kodadek v. MTV Networks, Inc. (9th Cir. 1998) 152 F.3d 1209, 1212 (drawings)].

[2] Subject Matter of Protection

Works of authorship protected by the Copyright Act include the following [17 U.S.C. § 102(a); see 17 U.S.C. § 101 (definitions)]:

- Literary works.
- Musical works, including any accompanying words.
- Dramatic works, including any accompanying music.
- Pantomimes and choreographic works.
- Pictorial, graphic, and sculptural works.
- Motion pictures and other audiovisual works.
- Sound recordings.
- Architectural works.

[3] Compilations and Derivative Works[a] Extent of Protection

Federal copyright protection extends to works that are either compilations and derivative works [17 U.S.C. § 103(a)]. A "compilation" is a work formed by collecting and assembling preexisting materials or that consists of data that are selected, coordinated, or arranged so that the resulting work as a whole constitutes an original work of authorship; the term includes collective works [17 U.S.C. § 101]. A "derivative work" is one based on one or more preexisting works, such as a translation, musical arrangement, or dramatization [17 U.S.C. § 101]. A derivative work must be substantially different from the work on which it is based to be copyrightable [Gracen v. Bradford Exchange (7th Cir. 1983) 698 F.2d 300, 305] .

The copyright in a compilation or derivative work extends only to the material contributed by the author, as distinguished from the preexisting material used in the work, and does not imply any exclusive right in the preexisting material. This type of copyright is independent of, and does not affect the scope, duration, ownership, or subsistence of, any copyright protection in the preexisting material [17 U.S.C. § 103(b)]. In addition, copyright protection under the 1976 Act does not extend to any part of the work in which preexisting material was unlawfully used [17 U.S.C. § 103(a); see H.R. Rep. No. 94-1476, at 57, 58 (1976) (examples)].

[b] Test for Derivative Copyright

In deciding whether to grant copyright protection to a derivative work, courts must be concerned about the impact that a derivative copyright will have on the copyright privileges and rights of the owner of the underlying work. The body of law regarding derivative copyrights is designed to strike a balance between the holder of a copyright in the underlying work and the creator of a work that is made by copying that underlying work [Entertainment Research Group, Inc. v. Genesis Creative Group, Inc. (9th Cir. 1998) 122 F.3d 1211, 1219 , cert. denied, 523 U.S. 1021 (1998)] .

The test of a derivative copyright is two-fold. First, to support a copyright, the original aspects of a derivative work must be more than trivial. Second, the original aspects of a derivative work must reflect the degree to which it relies on preexisting material and must not in any way affect the scope of any copyright protection in that preexisting material [Entertainment Research Group, Inc. v. Genesis Creative Group, Inc. (9th Cir. 1998) 122 F.3d 1211, 1220, cert. denied, 523 U.S. 1021 (1998) (adopting so-called Durham test and discussing at length district court's proper application of that test in this case); see Durham Industries, Inc. v. Tomy Corp. (2d Cir. 1980) 630 F.2d 905, 909] .

[c] Test for Compilation Copyright

In the case of compilations, originality rather than the time and effort expended by the compiler (the so-called "sweat of the brow") in making the compilation is the touchstone of copyright protection, at least in compilations such as directories and other fact-based works [Feist Pub. v. Rural Tel. Serv. (1991) 499 U.S. 340, 359-360, 111 S. Ct. 1282, 113 L. Ed. 2d 358 (repudiating "sweat of the brow" doctrine)]. To merit copyright protection, the facts, materials, or data must be selected, coordinated, or arranged in such a way as to render the work as a whole original. Therefore, there will be some fact-based (or data-based or other materials-based) work in which the selection, coordination, and arrangement will not be sufficiently original to trigger copyright protection [Feist Pub. v. Rural Tel. Serv. (1991) 499 U.S. 340, 358, 111 S. Ct. 1282, 113 L. Ed. 2d 358] . The requisite originality is not a stringent standard, and does not require that facts, data, or other materials be presented in an innovative or surprising way. The selection and arrangement of those facts, data, or materials, however, cannot be so mechanical or routine as to require no creativity whatsoever [Feist Pub. v. Rural Tel. Serv. (1991) 499 U.S. 340, 358, 362, 111 S. Ct. 1282, 113 L. Ed. 2d 358] . Thus, a telephone book's white pages listings, limited to basic subscriber information (name, town, and telephone number) and arranged alphabetically does not contain the requisite originality to be copyrightable as a compilation [Feist Pub. v. Rural Tel. Serv. (1991) 499 U.S. 340, 362-363, 111 S. Ct. 1282, 113 L. Ed. 2d 358] . On the other hand, "organizers" (calendar-type books produced to help users plan daily activities, typically containing uncopyrightable blank forms for recording calendar and address information, as well as uncopyrightable utilitarian features such as pockets for business cards) can be copyrightable as compilations if the selection, coordination, and arrangement of materials and data in the organizer attain sufficient originality [Harper House, Inc. v. Thomas Nelson, Inc. (9th Cir. 1989) 889 F.2d 197, 204-205, cert. denied, 510 U.S. 1113 (1994)] .

CHAPTER 103A COPYRIGHTS

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

B. Nature of Copyright

33-103A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103A.23

§ 103A.23 What Cannot Be Protected

There are many reasons why a work cannot be copyright protected. For example, the work may have been created by an employee of the U.S. government [see 17 U.S.C. § 105]; it may containing no original authorship (for example, standard calendars, tape measures, schedules of sporting events, insurance forms) [37 C.F.R. § 202.1; see, e.g., Bibbero Systems, Inc. v. Colwell Systems, Inc. (9th Cir. 1990) 893 F.2d 1104, 1107-1108 (blank insurance billing forms not subject to copyright protection because forms do not provide any information until they are filled out by patient and provider)]; or it may consist only of basic plots or ideas [37 C.F.R. § 202.1].

Examples of types of material are not protected under federal copyright law include the following:

- Works that have not been fixed in a tangible medium [17 U.S.C. § 301(b)(1)]*--*for example, an improvisation or an unrecorded choreographic work, performance, or broadcast [see H.R. Rep. No. 94-1476, at 131 (1976)].
- Ideas, plans, and systems, as distinguished from the particular manner in which they are expressed or described in a writing [37 C.F.R. § 202.1].
- Works consisting entirely of information that is common property containing no original authorship (for example, standard calendars, tape measures, and schedules of sporting events) [37 C.F.R. § 202.1].
- Ideas (including basic plots), procedures, processes, systems, methods of operation, concepts, principles, or discoveries, as distinguished from a description, explanation, or illustration [see 17 U.S.C. § 102(b); 37 C.F.R. § 202.1]; for example, purely literary characters (such as protagonists in novels), being merely concepts, cannot be protected by copyright, although a character depicted in a work such as a film or comic book can be protected, provided the character is especially distinctive and displays consistent, widely identifiable traits [*Halicki Films v. Sanderson Sales & Mktg. (9th Cir. 2008) 547 F.3d 1213, 2008 U.S. App. LEXIS 23396, at *24-25 (citing case holding that Sam Spade character in Dashiell Hammett novels is not protectable by copyright, and citing cases extending copyright protection to film characters Godzilla, James Bond, and Rocky Balboa)].

- Words and short phrases, such as names, titles, and slogans; familiar symbols or designs; mere variations in typographic ornamentation, lettering or coloring; mere listing of ingredients or contents [37 C.F.R. § 202.1; see Fishler v. Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation (S.D. Cal. 1958) 159 F. Supp. 215, 217 (title protected under trademark theory); Kirkland v. National Broadcasting Co., Inc. (E.D. Pa. 1976) 425 F. Supp. 1111, 1115 (title safeguarded under theory of unfair competition)].

For a more exhaustive list of categories of material generally not eligible for copyright protection, see § 103A.110. For discussion of the extent of copyright protection for computer programs, see § 103A.95.

17 U.S.C. § 106 [see § 103A.20[1]] does not accord a copyright owner complete control over all possible uses of his or her work. There are a number of statutory limitations on the exclusive rights afforded a copyright owner under the Act [see Dowling v. United States (1985) 473 U.S. 207, 217, 105 S. Ct. 3127, 87 L. CHAPTER 103A COPYRIGHTS

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

C. Limitations on Copyrights

33-103A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103A.31

§ 103A.31 Reproduction by Libraries and Archives

[1] Rights of Reproduction and Distribution

It is not an infringement of copyright for libraries or archives, or any of their employees acting within the scope of their employment, to reproduce and distribute no more than one copy or phonorecord of a work, provided that the following conditions are satisfied [17 U.S.C. § 108(a)]:

- The reproduction or distribution is made without any purpose of direct or indirect commercial advantage.
- The library or archives collections are open to the public, or available not only to researchers affiliated with the library or archives or with the institution of which it is a part, but also to unaffiliated persons doing research in specialized fields.
- The reproduction or distribution of the work includes a notice of copyright that appears on the copy or phonorecord, or includes a legend stating that the work may be protected by copyright if no such notice can be found on the copy or phonorecord reproduced under 17 U.S.C. § 108.

Rights of reproduction and distribution under 17 U.S.C. § 108 also apply to three copies or phonorecords of an unpublished work duplicated solely for purposes of preservation and security or for deposit for research use in another library or archives, as well as to three copies or phonorecords of a published work duplicated solely for replacement purposes, subject to specified conditions [see 17 U.S.C. § 108(b), (c)].

In addition, a library or archives may replace (through reproduction) unavailable copies or phonorecords that cannot be obtained for a fair price [see 17 U.S.C. § 108(e); see also 37 C.F.R. § 201.14 (warnings of copyright for use by certain libraries or archives)]. For a detailed discussion of this right of reproduction, see § 103A.134.

A library or archives, or its employees, are not liable for copyright infringement due to the unsupervised use of reproducing equipment located on its premises, if the equipment displays a notice that the making of a copy may be subject to the copyright law [17 U.S.C. § 108(f)(1)]. However, a person who uses a library's or archives' reproducing equipment will be liable for copyright infringement if the act exceeds fair use [17 U.S.C. § 108(f)(2); see 17 U.S.C. § 107 (fair use)].

[2] Limitations on Rights

The rights of reproduction and distribution under 17 U.S.C. § 108 do not apply to specified types of works [17 U.S.C. § 108(i) (musical, pictorial, graphic, sculptural, and audiovisual works generally exempted); see § 103A.134].

These rights are also inapplicable if the library or archives, or its employee, is aware or has substantial reason to believe that it is engaging in the related or concerted reproduction or distribution of multiple copies or phonorecords of the same material. This is true whether the reproduction or distribution is made on one occasion or over a period of time, and whether it is intended for aggregate use by one or more individuals or for separate use by the individual members of a group [17 U.S.C. § 108(g)(1)].

The library's or archives' reproduction rights do not extend to cases in which the library or archives, or its employee, engages in systematic reproduction or distribution of single or multiple copies or phonorecords of certain material [see 17 U.S.C. § 108(d)]; however, this prohibition does not extend to interlibrary arrangements as long as their purpose or effect is not to substitute the arrangements for subscriptions or purchases [17 U.S.C. § 108(g)(2)].

§ 103A.32 Performances and Displays

A copyright owner has the exclusive right to publicly perform most types of copyrighted works [see 17 U.S.C. § 106(4), (5); see also Nimmer On Copyright, Ch. 8, The Nature of the Rights Protected by Copyright, § 8.14 (Matthew Bender)].

However, there are limited exemptions from this performance right. These include performances or displays of a work for classroom instruction, instructional broadcasts, religious services, nonprofit performances, vending establishment performances, transmissions to handicapped persons, and nonprofit fraternal organizations in which there is generally no direct or indirect admission charge, or if there is an admission charge, the net proceeds are used exclusively for education, religious, or charitable purposes [see 17 U.S.C. § 110; see also §§ 103A.134, 103A.135]. In addition, the Family Movie Act of 2005 [Pub. L. No. 109-9, § 201 et seq. (Apr. 27, 2005)] created an exemption from liability for infringement in making, providing, or using technology to skip portions of movies viewed at home [see 17 U.S.C. § 110(11); see also § 103A.136].

§ 103A.33 Secondary Transmissions

The existence of transmission facilities used by radio, television, cable television, and similar systems, has resulted in statutory protections for the owners of transmitted copyrighted work. These protections are based on the following definitions: A "primary transmission" is a transmission made to the public by a transmitting facility whose signals are being received and further transmitted by a secondary transmission service, regardless of where or when the performance or display was first transmitted [17 U.S.C. § 111(f)]. A "secondary transmission" is the further transmitting of a primary transmission simultaneously with the primary transmission, or non-simultaneously with the primary transmission if by certain cable systems [see 17 U.S.C. § 111(f)].

A secondary transmission to the public of a primary transmission that embodies a performance or display of a work is actionable as an infringement of copyright if the primary transmission is not made for the reception of the public at large, but is limited to reception to certain members of the public [17 U.S.C. § 111(b)]. However, this type of secondary transmission is specifically exempted if all of the following conditions are satisfied [17 U.S.C. § 111(b)]:

- The primary transmission is made by a broadcast station licensed by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC).
- The carriage of signals comprising the secondary transmission is required by the FCC.
- The signal of the primary transmitter is not changed in any way by the secondary transmitter.

Other forms of exempt secondary transmissions include those from non-cable apartment house and hotel systems, instructional systems, and certain carriers, and non-cable transmissions by a government body or other nonprofit organization [see 17 U.S.C. § 111(a)]. For the most part, the statutory provisions with regard to secondary transmissions are directed to the operation and licensing of cable television systems, and to the terms and conditions for statements of account, royalties, and non-simultaneous secondary transmissions [see 17 U.S.C. § 111(c)-(f); see also 37 C.F.R. § 201.17 (statement of account covering compulsory licenses for secondary transmissions by cable systems); H.R. Rep. No. 94-1476, at 88-101 (1976)].

§ 103A.34 Ephemeral Recordings

"Ephemeral recordings" are copies or phonorecords of a work made for purposes of later transmission by a broadcasting organization legally entitled to transmit the work [H.R. Rep. No. 94-1476, at 101 (1976)].

Except in the case of a motion picture or other audiovisual work, an authorized organization may make a single copy or phonorecord of a particular transmission program [see 17 U.S.C. § 101 "transmission program" defined)] embodying the work (under a license or transfer of the copyright or under limitations on exclusive rights in sound recordings) [see 17 U.S.C. § 114(a)], which is not an infringement of copyright provided the following points are satisfied.

First, the copy or phonorecord may be retained and used solely by the transmitting organization that made it, and no further copies or phonorecords are reproduced from it [17 U.S.C. § 112(a)(1)(A)]. Second, the copy or phonorecord may be used only for the transmitting organization's own transmissions within its local service area, or for purposes of archival preservation or security [17 U.S.C. § 112(a)(1)(B)]. Finally, unless preserved exclusively for archival purposes, the copy or phonorecord must be destroyed within six months from the date the program was first transmitted to the public [17 U.S.C. § 112(a)(1)(C)].

More permissive rules govern the making and use of ephemeral recordings by governmental bodies and other nonprofit organizations [see 17 U.S.C. § 112(b)-(d)].

A transmitting organization is also entitled to transmit to the public a performance of a sound recording [see 17 U.S.C. §§ 114(d)(1)(C), (f)] and is entitled to a statutory license to make not more than one phonorecord of the sound recording (unless the terms of the statutory license allow for more), if specified conditions are satisfied [see 17 U.S.C. § 112(e)].

It is not an infringement of copyright for a governmental body or other nonprofit educational institution entitled under 17 U.S.C. § 110(2) to transmit a performance or display [see § 103A.134, P 4] to make copies or phonorecords of a work that is in digital form and, solely to the extent permitted in 17 U.S.C. § 110(2), of a work that is in analog form, embodying the performance or display to be used for making transmissions authorized under 17 U.S.C. § 110(2), if the copies or phonorecords are both [17 U.S.C. § 112(f)(1)]:

- Retained and used solely by the body or institution that made them, and no further copies or phonorecords are reproduced from them, except as authorized under 17 U.S.C. § 110(2); and
- Used solely for transmissions authorized under that section.

This does not authorize the conversion of print or other analog versions of works into digital formats, except that conversion is permitted with respect to the amount of the works authorized to be performed or displayed under 17 U.S.C. § 110(2), if no digital version of the work is available to the institution, or the digital version of the work that is available to the institution is subject to technological protection measures that prevent its use under 17 U.S.C. § 110(2) [17 U.S.C. § 112(f)(2)].

The transmission program embodied in a copy or phonorecord is not subject to protection as a derivative work under the copyright law except with the express consent of the owners of copyright in the preexisting works employed in the program [17 U.S.C. § 112(g)].

33-103A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103A.35

§ 103A.35 Reproduction of Pictorial, Graphic, and Sculptural Works

The exclusive right of the owner of a copyrighted pictorial, graphic, or sculptural work to reproduce a work in copies [see 17 U.S.C. § 106(4), (5)] includes the right to reproduce the work in or on any kind of article, whether useful or otherwise [17 U.S.C. §§ 101, 113(a); see 37 C.F.R. § 202.10].

Pictorial, graphic, and sculptural works include works of fine, graphic, and applied art, photographs, prints and art reproductions, maps, globes, charts, diagrams, models, and technical drawings, including architectural plans [17 U.S.C. § 101]. These works also include the form of works of artistic craftsmanship, but not their mechanical aspects [17 U.S.C. § 101]. Moreover, the design of a "useful article" [see 17 U.S.C. § 101 (definition)] is considered a pictorial, graphic, or sculptural work only if, and to the extent that, the design incorporates pictorial, graphic, or sculptural features that can be identified separately from, and are capable of existing independently of, the utilitarian aspects of the article [17 U.S.C. § 101; see Fabrica Inc. v. El Dorado Corp. (9th Cir. 1983) 697 F.2d 890, 893 (interpreting 17 U.S.C. § 101 to mean that if article has any utilitarian function, it can be denied copyright protection except to extent that its artistic features can be identified separately and are capable of existing independently as a work of art)]. For example, the copyright of a drawing or model of a car does not extend to the manufacture of the car itself [see 17 U.S.C. § 113(b); see also H.R. Rep. No. 94-1476, at 105 (1976)]. Similarly, if a work has been lawfully reproduced in useful articles that have been offered for sale or other distribution to the public, it is not an infringement of copyright to make, distribute, or display pictures or photographs of the articles in advertising, commentaries, or in news reports [17 U.S.C. § 113(c); see H.R. Rep. No. 94-1476, at 105 (1976)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

C. Limitations on Copyrights

33-103A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103A.36

§ 103A.36 Sound Recordings

[1] Limitations of Exclusive Rights

The exclusive rights of an owner of the copyright in a sound recording are limited to the rights to reproduce the sound recording in copies or phonorecords, to prepare derivative works based on the copyrighted sound recording, to distribute copies or phonorecords of the sound recording to the public by transfer of ownership, or by rental, lease, or loan, and to perform the copyrighted work publicly by means of a digital audio transmission [17 U.S.C. §§ 106(1)-(3), (6), 114(a); see 17 U.S.C. § 101 ("digital transmission" defined); see also 17 U.S.C. § 114(d) (exempt transmissions and retransmissions)].

The exclusive right to reproduce the sound recording in copies or phonorecords under 17 U.S.C. § 106(1) is limited to the right to duplicate the sound recording in the form of phonorecords, or of copies of audiovisual works, that directly or indirectly recapture the actual recorded sounds [17 U.S.C. § 114(b)]. Preparation of derivative works under 17 U.S.C. § 106(2) is limited to the extent that the actual sounds fixed in the sound recording are rearranged, remixed, or otherwise altered in sequence or quality [17 U.S.C. § 114(b)]. These exclusive rights under 17 U.S.C. § 106(1) and (2) do not extend to the making or duplication of another sound recording that consists entirely of an independent fixation of other sounds, even if the sounds imitate or simulate those in the copyrighted sound recording [17 U.S.C. § 114(b)]. The exclusive rights in a sound recording under 17 U.S.C. § 106(1)-(3) do not apply to sound recordings included in educational television and radio programs distributed or transmitted by or through public broadcasting entities, provided that copies or phonorecords of those programs are not commercially distributed by or through public broadcast entities to the general public [17 U.S.C. § 114(b); see 47 U.S.C. § 397 ("educational television and radio programs" defined); see also 17 U.S.C. § 118(f) ("public broadcasting entities" defined)].

With respect to sound recordings [see 17 U.S.C. § 114], there is no limitation on the exclusive right under 17 U.S.C. § 106(4) to perform publicly, by means of a phonorecord, a literary, musical, dramatic, choreographic or audiovisual work, or a pantomime [17 U.S.C. § 114(c)].

[2] Nonexclusive Right to Record

A recorded performance of a musical composition embodies two distinct groups of legal rights: (1) rights in the musical composition itself, i.e., the tune and lyrics; and (2) rights in the phonograph recording "fixing" the performance of that musical composition. The rights in the musical composition are subject to the compulsory licensing provisions of the copyright law [see § 103A.80]. Once the owner of the copyrighted musical composition permits one recording to be made of a performance of that composition, the right to record it becomes nonexclusive and all persons may make a "similar use" of the musical composition, provided they comply with the compulsory licensing provisions of the copyright law.

Record piracy, however, is not a similar use of the composition. Compliance by a record pirate with the compulsory licensing provisions only provides a defense to a copyright infringement action brought by the owners of the musical composition. That compliance is no defense to an infringement action brought against the pirate by the owners of the copyright in the "pirated" phonograph record that fixes a performance of that composition on record [A & M Records, Inc. v. Heilman (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 554, 562-564, 142 Cal. Rptr. 390, cert. denied, 436 U.S. 952 (1978)] .

C. Limitations on Copyrights

33-103A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103A.37

§ 103A.37 Architectural Works

Architectural works enjoy copyright protection under terms of the Architectural Works Copyright Protection Act [see 17 U.S.C. § 102(a)(8); see also Pub. L. No. 101-650, §§ 701-706, 104 Stat. 5133-5134]. For purposes of the copyright law, an "architectural work" is the design of a building as embodied in any tangible medium of expression, including a building, architectural plans, or drawings. The work includes the overall form as well as the arrangement and composition of spaces and elements in the design, but does not include individual standard features [17 U.S.C. § 101].

The copyright in an architectural work that has been constructed does not include the right to prevent the making, distributing, or public display of pictures, paintings, photographs, or other pictorial representations of the work, if the building in which the work is embodied is located in or ordinarily visible from a public place [17 U.S.C. § 120(a)]. Moreover, the owner of a building embodying an architectural work may, without the consent of the author or copyright owner of the architectural work, make or authorize alterations to the building, and destroy or authorize the destruction of the building [17 U.S.C. § 120(b)].

The amendments to the copyright law effected by the Architectural Works Copyright Protection Act apply to any architectural work created on or after December 1, 1990 (the enactment date of that Act). The amendments also apply to any architectural work that on December 1, 1990, was unconstructed and embodied in unpublished plans or drawings; however, protection for these works afforded by the Architectural Works Copyright Protection Act terminates on December 31, 2002, unless the work has been constructed by that date [Pub. L. No. 101-650, § 706, 104 Stat. 5134; see 17 U.S.C. § 101, Note].

However, these privileges do not apply to the commercial rental, leasing, or lending of a phonorecord or computer program, by other than nonprofit libraries or educational institutions for nonprofit purposes, unless authorized by the copyright owner [see 17 U.S.C. § 109(b), (d); *see also Quality King Distributors, Inc. v. CHAPTER 103A COPYRIGHTS

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

C. Limitations on Copyrights

33-103A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103A.40

§ 103A.40 Fair Use

[1] Guidelines for Determining Fair Use

One of the more important limitations on the exclusive rights afforded a copyright owner under the Act is the doctrine of "fair use" of a copyrighted work by reproduction for purposes of criticism, comment, news reporting, reaching, scholarship, or research [see 17 U.S.C. § 107]. The "fair use" of a copyrighted work is the privilege of persons other than the copyright owner to use the work for certain purposes, despite the exclusive use granted to the owner by the copyright. Accordingly, fair use is not an infringement of copyright [17 U.S.C. § 107]. Its purpose is to balance the exclusive rights of the copyright holder against the public's interest in dissemination of information affecting areas of universal concern, such as art, science, history, or industry [Meeropol v. Nizer (2d Cir. 1977) 560 F.2d 1061, 1068 , cert. denied, 434 U.S. 1013 (1978)] .

The 1976 Act accorded for the first time an express statutory right of fair use of a copyrighted work [see 17 U.S.C. § 107]. The defense of fair use, however, had been a well established judicially created doctrine long before the 1976 Act [see, e.g., Mathews Conveyer Co. v. Palmer-Bee Co. (6th Cir. 1943) 135 F.2d 73, 85 (discussing factors to consider in determining fair use)]. The statutory defense of fair use embraced the scope and general purpose of the judicial doctrine, but did not change, narrow, or enlarge it in any way [see Elsmere Music, Inc. v. National Broadcasting Co. (S.D.N.Y. 1980) 482 F. Supp. 741, 744-745 , aff'd, 623 F.2d 252 (2d Cir. 1980)] . In determining the scope and limits of the fair use doctrine, counsel should therefore consider pre-1978 as well as post-1978 cases that discuss the issue at hand.

In determining whether the use made of a work in any particular case is a fair use of a work, 17 U.S.C. § 107 continues to require that certain factors be considered by a court. These statutory factors must be weighed together; none can be treated in isolation [Campbell v. Acuff-Rose Music, Inc. (1994) 510 U.S. 569, 577, 114 S. Ct. 1164, 127 L. Ed. 2d 500] . These factors include the following [17 U.S.C. § 107; see, e. g., Los Angeles News Service v. KCAL-TV Channel 9 (9th Cir. 1997) 108 F.3d 1119, 1121 , cert. denied, 522 U.S. 823 (1997)] :

- The purpose and character of the use, including whether the use is of a commercial nature or is for nonprofit educational purposes [see [2][a], below].

- The amount and substantiality of the portion used in relation to the copyrighted work as a whole [see [2][b], below].
- The nature of the copyrighted work [see [2][c], below].
- The effect of the use on the potential market for or value of the copyrighted work [see [2][d], below].

The fact that a work is unpublished does not itself bar a finding of fair use if such a finding is made after consideration of all factors listed above [17 U.S.C. § 107], although courts have shown less lenience toward quotation of unpublished materials [see Nimmer On Copyright, Ch. 13, Infringement Actions--Subsequent Aspects, § 13.05 (Matthew Bender) (collecting cases)].

Fair use under the statute specifically includes reproduction for purposes of criticism, comment, news reporting, teaching (including multiple copies for classroom use), scholarship, or research [17 U.S.C. § 107].

For detailed analysis of the doctrine of fair use, see Nimmer On Copyright, Ch. 13, Infringement Actions--Subsequent Aspects, § 13.05 (Matthew Bender).

[2] Factors to Be Considered

[a] Purpose and Character of Use

In determining whether a use should be judged fair or unfair in an infringement action, courts consider the purpose and character of the use, including whether the use is of a commercial nature or is for nonprofit educational purposes [see 17 U.S.C. § 107(1)]. However, commercial use is not presumptively unfair, at least when the use is "transformative" as opposed to simple verbatim duplication for commercial purposes [see, e.g., Campbell v. Acuff-Rose Music, Inc. (1994) 510 U.S. 569, 591, 114 S. Ct. 1164, 127 L. Ed. 2d 500 (commercial nature of song parody does not render it presumptively unfair); Triangle Publications, Inc. v. Knight-Ridder Newspapers (5th Cir. 1980) 626 F.2d 1171, 1174-1175]. "Transformative use" is use that builds on the prior material, transforming it into something new, and is generally accepted as the preferred form of fair use [see generally Nimmer On Copyright, Ch. 13 (Matthew Bender)].

In one case, use of copyrighted materials for educational purposes when materials were purchased from copyright owner enhanced the value of the copyright and was protected by fair use doctrine [Allen v. Academic Games League of American, Inc. (9th Cir. 1996) 89 F.3d 614, 617]. However, an educational nonprofit use does necessarily result in a finding of fair use [see, e.g., Marcus v. Rowley (9th Cir. 1983) 695 F.2d 1171, 1175, disapproved on other grounds, Hustler Magazine, Inc. v. Moral Majority, Inc. (9th Cir. 1986) 796 F.2d 1148 (finding of nonprofit educational purpose does not compel finding of fair use if other factors are contrary)].

A set of guidelines have been prepared with respect to the application of fair use to classroom copying and educational uses of music [see H.R. Rep. No. 94-1476, at 146 (1976)].

The fair use doctrine has frequently also been applied to the following:

- Criticism and comment [see, e.g., Suid v. Newsweek Magazine (D.D.C. 1980) 503 F. Supp. 146, 148 (quoting passages from book about John Wayne in article following actor's death)].
- Parody [see, e.g., Campbell v. Acuff-Rose Music, Inc. (1994) 510 U.S. 569, 579-591, 114 S. Ct. 1164, 127 L. Ed. 2d 500 ("rap song" parody of copyrighted popular song "Oh, Pretty Woman" may be fair use, depending on balancing of factors set forth under 17 U.S.C. § 107); Elsmere Music Inc. v.

National Broadcasting Co. (2d Cir. 1980) 623 F.2d 252, 253, aff'd, 623 F.2d 252 (2d Cir. 1980) (Saturday Night Live sketch parodying I Love New York campaign); Walt Disney Productions v. Air Pirates (9th Cir. 1978) 581 F.2d 751, 756-757, cert. denied, 439 U.S. 1132 (1979) (parody is potential fair use subject to multifactor analysis codified in 17 U.S.C. § 107); cf. Walt Disney Productions v. Mature Pictures Corp. (S.D.N.Y. 1975) 389 F. Supp. 1397, 1398 (permissible parody is not complete copy of original)].

■ Matters of public interest [see, e.g., Meeropol v. Nizer (2d Cir. 1977) 560 F.2d 1061, 1068, cert. denied, 434 U.S. 1013 (publication of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg letters); Time Incorporated v. Bernard Geis Associates (S.D.N.Y. 1968) 293 F. Supp. 130, 146 (sketches based on film of President Kennedy's assassination)].

[b] Nature of Copyrighted Work

Courts give weight to the nature of the copyrighted work in their fair use analysis [see 17 U.S.C. § 107(2)]. For example, fair use has often been successfully asserted with respect to limited copying of textbooks or other informational material prepared primarily for limited distribution and dealing with scientific or historical topics [see, e.g., Eisenschiml v. Fawcett Publications, Inc. (7th Cir. 1957) 246 F.2d 598, 604, cert. denied, 355 U.S. 907 (historical facts about Lincoln)]. However, creative material prepared for general public distribution has also been found to be the subject of fair use [see, e.g., Triangle Publications, Inc. v. Knight-Ridder Newspapers (5th Cir. 1980) 626 F.2d 1171, 1175 (magazine cover used in television ad); but see Dr. Pepper Co. v. Sambo's Restaurants, Inc. (N.D. Tex. 1981) 517 F. Supp. 1202, 1208 (use of television commercial too similar to "Be a Pepper" commercial)]. The Supreme Court has passed over this factor without giving it much attention, stating that it is often not much help [Campbell v. Acuff-Rose Music, Inc. (1994) 510 U.S. 569, 586, 114 S. Ct. 1164, 127 L. Ed. 2d 500]. This factor is of most relevance in the fair use analysis when the original material and the copy are different in nature [Sony Computer Entertainment America v. Bleem, LLC (9th Cir. 2000) 214 F.3d 1022, 1028].

[c] Size of Portion Used in Relation to Entire Copyrighted Work

Courts consider the amount and substantiality of the portion used in relation to the copyrighted work as a whole [see 17 U.S.C. § 107(3)], and apply a standard of reasonableness in making this determination [see, e.g., Rosemont Enterprises, Inc. v. Random House, Inc. (2d Cir. 1966) 366 F.2d 303, 310, cert. denied, 385 U.S. 1009 (standard of reasonableness)].

In the case of parody, for example, the Supreme Court has recognized that the parodist must be able to use enough of the original work to make the object of the parody's critical wit recognizable. Parody is justified so long as it does not take more of the original that is appropriate for its purposes of criticism. Such a use may be a fair use, even though the portion taken was the "heart" of the original [Campbell v. Acuff-Rose Music, Inc. (1994) 510 U.S. 569, 594-595, 114 S. Ct. 1164, 127 L. Ed. 2d 500].

[d] Harm to Market or Value of Copyrighted Work

Finally, courts consider the effect of the use on the potential market for or value of the copyrighted work [see 17 U.S.C. § 107(4)]. Although some courts have treated this factor as the most important of the factors to be considered [see, e.g., Triangle Publications, Inc. v. Knight-Ridder Newspapers (5th Cir. 1980) 626 F.2d 1171, 1177], the Supreme Court in Campbell v. Acuff-Rose Music, Inc., clarified that this factor--harm to the value or market of the work--is not a consideration overriding all others. Rather, its importance will vary depending on the other factors [Campbell v. Acuff-Rose Music, Inc. (1994) 510 U.S. 569, 594-595, 114 S. Ct. 1164, 127 L. Ed. 2d 500].

In determining the effect of the defendant's use on the potential market for or value of the copyrighted work, the courts have looked to the function of each work regardless of the media in which each appeared. When two works fulfill the same function, the scope of fair use is restricted. Thus, if the use adversely affects the value of any future adaptation rights, even though unexercised, in the copyrighted works, the courts will find the use unfair even though defendant's work was in a different media [see, e.g., Iowa State University v. American Broadcasting (2d Cir. 1980) 621 F.2d 57, 61-62 (educational film of Olympic Athlete contemplated commercial exposure and commercial network's Olympic broadcast of film was infringement)].

On the other hand, if defendant's use of material similar to plaintiff's work performs a substantially different function than the copyrighted work, the courts may permit the fair use defense even though both works employ the same or similar media [see, e.g., Karll v. Curtis Pub. Co. (E.D. Wisc. 1941) 39 F. Supp. 836, 837-838 (value of official football team song was not diminished by quoting eight lines in article about team)]. For example, a rap parody of a popular song may be found not to be a fair use to the extent that the parody harms the potential derivative market for other rap versions of the original song. However, the fact that a parody (like a scathing critical review) may harm the market for the original work by reducing demand for it does not give rise to damages that are remediable under the copyright law, and such harm may not be considered in determining whether the parody is a fair use [Campbell v. Acuff-Rose Music, Inc. (1994) 510 U.S. 569, 592-594, 114 S. Ct. 1164, 127 L. Ed. 2d 500] .

Moreover, home video recording of copyrighted works that, according to findings, (1) amounted mostly to "time-shifting," (2) would not be objected to by substantial numbers of copyright holders who licensed their works for free television, and (3) did not impair the value of the copyrighted works, have been held to be fair use [Sony Corp. v. Universal City Studios, Inc. (1984) 464 U.S. 417, 419-428, 104 S. Ct. 774, 78 L. Ed. 2d 574 , reh'g denied, 465 U.S. 1112] .

[3] Examples of Fair Uses

The doctrine of fair use is further illustrated by some of the activities that a court might determine as fair use under the circumstances [H.R. Rep. No. 94-1476, at 65 (1976)]:

- A quotation of excerpts in a review or criticism for purposes of illustration or comment.
- A quotation of short passages in a scholarly or technical work for illustration or clarification of the author's observations.
- The use in a parody of some of the content of the work parodied [see generally Campbell v. Acuff-Rose Music, Inc. (1994) 510 U.S. 569, 114 S. Ct. 1164, 127 L. Ed. 2d 500 (parody of copyrighted song); see also [2][a], above].
- A summary of an address or article with brief quotations in a news report.
- Reproduction by a library of a portion of a work to replace part of a damaged copy.
- Reproduction by a teacher or student of a small part of a work to illustrate a lesson.
- Use of copyrighted academic games in an interscholastic tournament [see Allen v. Academic Games League of American, Inc. (9th Cir. 1996) 89 F.3d 614, 617] .
- Reproduction of a work in legislative or judicial proceedings or reports.
- Incidental and fortuitous reproduction, in a newsreel or broadcast, of a work located in the scene of an event being reported.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

D. Copyright Ownership

1. Initial Ownership

33-103A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103A.46

§ 103A.46 Who Owns the Copyright

[1] Identity of Author

The identity of an author affects the copyrightable status of a work in two instances. First, if the author is not a national or domiciliary of the United States, the work must qualify for federal protection under one of a number of specified criteria relating to, among other things, the place of first publication of the work and the type of publisher [see 17 U.S.C. § 104(b); § 103A.110; see also 17 U.S.C. § 104A; § 103A.86]. Second, copyright protection is not available for works of the United States Government. However, the federal government is not precluded from receiving and holding copyrights transferred to it by assignment, bequest, or otherwise [17 U.S.C. § 105].

[2] Initial Owner

The copyright in a work protected by the 1976 Act initially vests in the author or authors of the work [17 U.S.C. § 201(a)]. In the case of a work for hire [see [3], below], the employer (or other person for whom the work is specially prepared) is considered the author of the work and is regarded as the initial owner of the work unless there is a specific written agreement otherwise by the parties [17 U.S.C. § 201(b)]. However, when the work consists of separate contributions in a collective work, the author of the separate contribution is regarded as the initial owner of the separate contribution, even though copyright ownership of the collective work as a whole may vest in another person [17 U.S.C. § 201(b); see H.R. Rep. No. 94-1476, at 121 (1976); see also [5], below].

[3] Work for Hire

A work is "for hire" when it is prepared by an employee within the scope of his or her employment or when it is specially ordered or commissioned for use in a collective work or for other purposes specified by statute [see 17 U.S.C. § 101]. In determining whether a work was prepared by an employee, principles of the common law of agency apply. Many factors, including the hiring party's right to control the manner and means by which the product is made, the skill required, and the duration of the relationship between the parties, must be considered; and no one factor is determinative [Community for Creative Non-Violence v. Reid (1989) 490 U.S. 730, 752-753, 109 S. Ct. 2166, 104 L. Ed. 2d 811].

(when free-lance sculptor was hired to produce single work, that work was neither "work for hire" prepared within scope of employment nor specially commissioned for purpose specified by statute); see Ch. 84, Independent Contractors ; Ch. 85, Employment Agreements].

[4] Joint Works

A work is a "joint work" when it is prepared by two or more authors with the intention that their contributions be merged into inseparable or interdependent parts of a unitary whole [17 U.S.C. § 101]. The authors of a joint work are co-owners of the copyright [17 U.S.C. § 201(a)]. Co-owners are tenants in common; and as such, each has an independent right to license the use of the work, subject to a duty of accounting to the other co-owners for any profits [H.R. Rep. No. 94-1476, at 121 (1976); see Pye v. Mitchell (9th Cir. 1978) 574 F.2d 476, 480] . In the Ninth Circuit, joint authorship requires each author to make an independently copyrightable contribution to the work [Ashton-Tate Corp. v. Ross (9th Cir. 1990) 916 F.2d 516, 521] .

In the case of a work, such as a motion picture, that is the result of the creative contributions of many individuals, authorship entails more than merely making a valuable and copyrightable contribution. In the absence of a determinative contract, several factors may be among the criteria for authorship. First, an author superintends the work by exercising control. Second, putative coauthors make objective manifestations of their shared intent to be coauthors. Third, the audience appeal of a joint work turns on the combined contributions of the coauthors, and the share of each in the work's success cannot be appraised. Control in many cases will be the most important factor; the absence of control is strong evidence of the absence of coauthorship. The factors cannot be reduced to a rigid formula, however, because the creative relationships to which they apply vary too much. Different people do creative work together in different ways, and even among the same people working together the relationship may change over time as the work proceeds [Aalmuhammed v. Lee (9th Cir. 2000) 202 F.3d 1227, 1234-1235 (plaintiff could not support claim to be coauthor of motion picture Malcolm X, although plaintiff did have quantum meruit claim for making valuable, copyrightable contribution)].

[5] Collective Works

Two sets of copyrights exist for a collective work [17 U.S.C. § 101 ("collective work" defined)]. Copyright in an individual contribution is distinct from copyright in the collective work and vests initially in the author of the contribution [17 U.S.C. § 201(c)]. In the absence of an express transfer of the copyright or of any rights under it, the owner of copyright in the collective work is presumed to have acquired only the privilege of reproducing and distributing the contribution as part of that particular collective work, any revision of that collective work, and any later collective work in the same series [17 U.S.C. § 201(c)].

Under 17 U.S.C. § 201(c), a publisher could reprint a contribution from one issue in a later issue of a magazine, for example, or could reprint an article from one edition of an encyclopedia in a later revision of it, but the publisher could not revise the contribution itself or include it in a new anthology or an entirely different collective work. Essentially, that code section adjusts a publisher's copyright in its collective work to accommodate a freelance contributor's copyright in the contribution. If there is demand for a freelance article standing alone or in a new collection, 17 U.S.C. § 201(c) allows the freelance contributor to benefit from that demand; after authorizing initial publication, the contributor may also sell the article to others [New York Times Co. v. Tasini (2001) 533 U.S. 483, 533 U.S. 483, 121 S. Ct. 2381, 2389, 150 L. Ed. 2d 500 (freelance-contributed articles first published in New York Times could not, without contributors' consent, later be published in online computer database; that database must be viewed as entirely new collective work rather than "revision" of original collective work)].

§ 103A.51 Transfer of Ownership or Rights

[1] Transfer Generally

The ownership of a copyright may be transferred in whole or in part by means of conveyance or by operation of law, and is to be treated as a personal property right on the death of the owner [17 U.S.C. § 201(d)(1)]. Thus, the owner of a copyright is empowered to transfer all or any fraction of the ownership interest to another person, thereby making that person a whole or joint owner [Gardner v. Nike, Inc. (9th Cir. 2002) 279 F.3d 774, 779] . Moreover, any of the exclusive rights specified by the 1976 Act may be transferred and owned separately [17 U.S.C. § 201(d)(2); see Notes of Committee to Judiciary to § 201, H.R. Rep. No. 94-1476, at 123 (1976)]. However, the owner's right of transfer under 17 U.S.C. § 201(d)(1) is not conferred on a licensee by virtue of an exclusive license (or on any transferee by virtue of any transfer) under 17 U.S.C. § 201(d)(2), because the rights of an exclusive licensee (or other transferee) are limited, by the language of the statute, "to all of the protection and remedies accorded to the copyright owner by" the Copyright Act. Therefore, the Copyright Act does not allow a copyright licensee to transfer any rights under an exclusive license without the consent of the licensor (that is, the owner) [Gardner v. Nike, Inc. (9th Cir. 2002) 279 F.3d 774, 780 ; cf. Harris v. Emus Records Corp. (9th Cir. 1984) 734 F.2d 1329, 1333 (same conclusion under 1909 Copyright Act)].

Whenever a person who owns a copyright transfers that copyright to another person so that the transferee can make and sell a product embodying that copyright, the value of the copyright interest is exempt from sales and use tax under Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 6011(c)(10) and 6012(c)(10) [Preston v. State Bd. of Equalization (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 197, 214, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 407, 19 P.3d 1148] .

An involuntary transfer of ownership or of any exclusive right is not effective under the copyright law except as provided under Title 11 of the United States Code (Bankruptcy) [see 17 U.S.C. § 201(e)].

[2] Writing Required for Transfer

To be valid, any transfer of copyright ownership, other than by operation of law, must be in writing, signed by the owner or his or her agent [17 U.S.C. § 204(a)]. Any purported transfer without a writing is not valid [Radio Television Espanola S.A. v. New World Entertainment, Ltd. (9th Cir. 1999) 183 F.3d 922, 929 (facsimile transmission did not set forth terms of license agreement); PMC, Inc. v. Saban Entertainment, Inc. (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 579, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 877 (exchange of correspondence indicating favorable consideration of plaintiff's proposal did not constitute valid contract for exclusive manufacturing rights when there was no writing communicated to plaintiff that copyright holder intended as a memorandum of contract)].

The writing must be the product of the parties' negotiations and the execution of the writing must be substantially contemporaneous with the parties' oral agreement to transfer the copyright [Konigsberg Intern. Inc. v. Rice (9th Cir. 1994) 16 F.3d 355, 357 (letter written three and one-half years after alleged oral agreement, which did not directly acknowledge that transfer had occurred or indicate any specific terms, was not sufficient); cf. Magnuson v. Video Yesteryear (9th Cir. 1996) 85 F.3d 1424, 1429 n.1 (non-contemporaneous writing was sufficient to establish valid assignment of copyright under Copyright Act of 1909, applicable to undertakings commenced before January 1, 1978, when there was no dispute that transfer had occurred or terms on which it occurred)].

A certificate of acknowledgment is not required but is, in certain cases, prima facie evidence of the execution of the transfer [see 17 U.S.C. § 204(b)].

[1] First Sale by Owner of Copy or Phonorecord

The owner of a copy or phonorecord lawfully made under the copyright law (or the owner's agent) generally has the right to sell or otherwise dispose of his or her possession of the copy or phonorecord [17 U.S.C. § 109(a)]. The first sale or gift of each copy or phonorecord by its owner, or under the owner's authority, is referred to as the "first sale" [see Parfums Givenchy v. Drug Emporium (9th Cir. 1994) 38 F.3d 477, 480, cert. denied, 514 U.S. 1004 (1995), disapproved on other grounds, Quality King Distributors, Inc. v. L'Anza Research Intern., Inc. (1998) 523 U.S. 135, 118 S. Ct. 1125, 140 L. Ed. 2d 254] .

The "first sale" doctrine protects a reseller of a copyrighted item lawfully purchased abroad and imported into the United States for resale [Quality King Distributors, Inc. v. L'Anza Research Intern., Inc. (1998) 523 U.S. 135, 118 S. Ct. 1125, 1128-1134, 140 L. Ed. 2d 254] . Permission to import copyrighted goods may be implied under 17 U.S.C. § 602(a), which requires only that importation be "authorized," but does not specify "written" or "express" consent of the copyright owner [Disenos Artisticos e Industriales v. Costco Wholesale Corp. (9th Cir. 1996) 97 F.3d 377, 380] .

In the case of certain foreign works in which the copyright has been restored under 17 U.S.C. § 104A [see § 103A.86], the right to sell or dispose of a copy of the work without authorization of the copyright owner for purposes of direct or indirect commercial advantage is limited to a specified 12-month period following the date that notice of intent to enforce the restored copyright has been given [see 17 U.S.C. § 109(a)].

[2] Renting, Leasing, or Loaning Phonorecords or Computer Programs

Neither the owner of a particular copy of a phonorecord nor a person in possession of a particular copy of a computer program may lawfully rent, lease, or lend possession of the record or program for the purposes of direct or indirect commercial advantage [17 U.S.C. § 109(b)(1)(A)]. However, a nonprofit library or educational institution may rent, lease, or lend a phonorecord for nonprofit purposes [17 U.S.C. § 109(b)(1)(A)]. Similarly, a nonprofit educational institution may transfer possession of a lawfully made copy of a computer program to another nonprofit educational institution, or to faculty, staff, and students, if the package for each copy of the program has affixed to it a copyright warning prescribed by statute [17 U.S.C. § 109(b)(2)(A); see 37 C.F.R. § 201.24 (notice)].

[3] Display of Copy

The owner of a particular copy lawfully made under the copyright law (or person authorized by the owner) is entitled, without the authority of the copyright owner, to display that copy publicly, either directly or by the projection of no more than one image at a time, to viewers present at the place where the copy is located [17 U.S.C. § 109(c)]. However, this right does not extend to a person who has acquired possession of the copy or phonorecord by rental, lease, loan, or otherwise, without acquiring ownership of it, unless authorized by the copyright owner [17 U.S.C. § 109(d)].

§ 103A.54 Priority Between Conflicting Transfers

The copyright law establishes a priority between conflicting transfers [see 17 U.S.C. § 205(d)]. For transfers executed within the United States, the one executed first prevails if it is recorded within one month after its execution, or within two months after its execution outside the United States [17 U.S.C. § 205(d); see 17 U.S.C. § 205(c) (recording)]. Otherwise, the transfer last executed prevails, provided it was recorded first, taken in good faith for a valuable consideration or on the basis of a binding promise to pay royalties, and without notice of the earlier transfer [17 U.S.C. § 205(d)].

A nonexclusive license, whether recorded or not, prevails over a conflicting transfer of copyright ownership if the license is evidenced by a writing signed by the owner of the rights licensed or the owner's agent [17 U.S.C. § 205(e)]. However, the license must have been taken before execution of the transfer, or in good faith before recording of the transfer and without notice of it [17 U.S.C. § 205(e)].

§ 103A.55 Recovering Ownership of Transferred Rights--Termination of Transfers and Licenses

The nontestamentary transfer or license of a copyright of a work not made for hire, or of any right under a copyright, executed by an author on or after January 1, 1978, is subject to termination, under specified conditions, within a period of five years beginning at the end of 35 years from the date the grant was executed [see 17 U.S.C. § 203(a)]. If the grant covers the right of publication of the work, the period begins at the end of the shorter of the following periods: 35 years from the publication date of the work under the grant; or 40 years from the date of execution of the grant [17 U.S.C. § 203(a)(3)].

On the date of termination, all rights covered by the terminated grant revert to the author or other persons entitled to exercise termination rights, subject to specified limitations [see 17 U.S.C. § 203(b); see also 17 U.S.C. § 203(a)(1), (2) (ownership and exercise of termination interest if author is deceased)]. Future rights that will revert on termination of the grant become vested on the date the notice of termination is served [see 17 U.S.C. § 203(b)(2); see also 17 U.S.C. § 203(a)(4) (service)].

If the rights under an existing copyright were transferred before January 1, 1978, the author or other specified persons may terminate those rights for the extended term, except in the case of a copyright in a work made for hire [see 17 U.S.C. § 304(c)]. For additional discussion of these rights, and a notice terminating transfers and licenses for the extended renewal term of a copyright in existence on January 1, 1978, see § 103A.221.

CHAPTER 103A COPYRIGHTS

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

D. Copyright Ownership

2. Transfers of Copyrights

33-103A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103A.56

§ 103A.56 Security Interests in Copyrights

The Copyright Act permits the owner of a copyright to create a security interest in it. The Copyright Act's use of the word "mortgage" as one definition of a "transfer" [see 17 U.S.C. § 101] is properly read to include security interests under Article 9 of the Uniform Commercial Code [Aerocon Engineering, Inc. v. Silicon Valley Bank (In re World Auxiliary Power Co.) (9th Cir. 2002) 303 F.3d 1120, 1126] .

Division 9 of the Commercial Code, which generally governs security interests in property other than real property [see generally Ch. 42, Secured Transactions], does not apply to security interests in copyrights "to the extent that any ... statute ... of the United States preempts" Division 9 [Com. Code § 9109(c)(1)]. Insofar as the Copyright Act concerns security interests in copyrights, it preempts state law [see 17 U.S.C. § 301(a); see also § 103A.10]. Therefore, security interests in copyrights are governed primarily by the Copyright Act [see Moldo v. Matsco, Inc. (In re Cybernetic Servs.) (9th Cir. 2001) 252 F.3d 1039, 1056 ("The Copyright Act, by its terms, governs security interests."); but, to the extent that the Copyright Act could not be applied with respect to the matter, security interests in copyrights would be governed by Division 9 of the Commercial Code.

The Copyright Act permits a security agreement covering a registered copyright--that is, any document evidencing the transfer of a security interest in a registered copyright--to be recorded in the Copyright Office [see 17 U.S.C. § 205(c); see also § 103A.53]. A duly recorded security agreement preserves the priority of the creditor's security interest [see 17 U.S.C. § 205(d); see also § 103A.54]. Since the Copyright Act covers the matter of preserving priority, no filing is necessary under Division 9 of the Commercial Code; indeed, no filing under Division 9 is even possible, with respect to a security interest in a registered copyright [see Com. Code §§ 9310(a),(b)(3), 9311(a)(1); cf. Aerocon Engineering, Inc. v. Silicon Valley Bank (In re World Auxiliary Power Co.) (9th Cir. 2002) 303 F.3d 1120, 1128 (construing former Com. Code §§ 9104 and 9302, now superseded but essentially continued in Com. Code §§ 9109, 9310, and 9311: "For registered copyrights, the only proper place to file is the Copyright Office.")].

A security agreement covering an unregistered copyright cannot be recorded in the Copyright Office, however; and there is no other way, under the Copyright Act, for a creditor to preserve the priority of the creditor's security interest in an unregistered copyright [Aerocon Engineering, Inc. v. Silicon Valley Bank (In re World Auxiliary Power Co.) (9th Cir. 2002) 303 F.3d 1120, 1128 ("the Copyright Act doesn't provide for the rights of secured parties to unregistered copyrights; it only covers the rights of secured parties in registered copyrights"; original emphasis)]. Therefore, Division 9 of the Commercial Code, by its terms, "governs perfection and priority of security interests in unregistered copyrights"; and on this matter, the Copyright Act does not preempt the state law [Aerocon Engineering, Inc. v. Silicon Valley Bank (In re World Auxiliary Power Co.) (9th Cir. 2002) 303 F.3d 1120, 1128] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

E. How to Secure Copyright Protection

33-103A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103A.61

§ 103A.61 Publication

Under the Copyright Act of 1909, in effect before 1978, federal copyright was generally secured by the act of publication with notice of copyright, provided other statutory requirements were met [see former 17 U.S.C. § 10].

Statutory copyright protection now exists whether or not the work is published [see 17 U.S.C. §§ 101, 301]. However, once the work is published, the author must register the copyright within five years in order for the registration certificate to constitute prima facie evidence of the validity of the copyright [see 17 U.S.C. § 410(c)].

"Publication," as defined by the 1976 Act occurs when copies or phonorecords are distributed to the public by the following means [17 U.S.C. § 101]:

- Sale or other transfer of ownership.
- Rental, lease, or lending.
- The act of offering to distribute copies or phonorecords to a group of persons for purpose of further distribution, public performance, or public display.

A public performance or display does not, of itself, constitute publication [17 U.S.C. § 101].

Publication remains important under the 1976 Act for several reasons:

- Works published in the United States are subject to mandatory deposit requirements [see 17 U.S.C. § 407; see also § 103A.74].
- Publication of a work affects the limitations on exclusive rights set forth in 17 U.S.C. § 107-121 [see §§ 103A.30-103A.40 (limitations)].

- The year of publication determines the duration of copyright protection for anonymous and pseudonymous works when the author's identity is not revealed in the records of the Copyright Office [see 17 U.S.C. § 302(c); see also § 103A.85].
- Deposit requirements differ for published and unpublished works [see 17 U.S.C. § 408(b); 37 C.F.R. §§ 202.19(b), 202.20(b); see also § 103A.200[1][d]].
- Copies of works published before March 1, 1989, must bear notice of copyright or risk loss of copyright protection [see 37 C.F.R. § 202.2(a)(2); see also 103A.62[2]]

33-103A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103A.62

§ 103A.62 Requirements of Notice

[1] Works Published Before January 1, 1978

Works published before January 1, 1978, are governed by prior copyright law [see 37 C.F.R. § 202.2(a)(1)]. Under that law, if a work was published under the copyright owner's authority without a statutory notice, or with an inadequate notice, all copyright protection for that work was permanently lost in the United States [see former 17 U.S.C. §§ 10, 19; 37 C.F.R. § 202.2(a)(2); see also 37 C.F.R. § 202.2(b) (examples of defects in notice)].

[2] Works Publicly Distributed Before March 1, 1989, but After 1977

Under former 17 U.S.C. §§ 401 and 402, a notice of copyright was required to be placed on publicly distributed copies of a protected work or on publicly distributed phonorecords. This requirement was deleted by the Berne Convention Implementation Act of 1988 [see Pub. L. No. 100-568, 102 Stat. 2861 (1988)], which took effect on March 1, 1989, the date on which the Berne Convention entered into force with respect to the United States [Pub. L. 100-568, § 13(a), 102 Stat. 2861 (1988)]. Any cause of action arising under the Federal Copyright Act before March 1, 1989, is governed by the provisions of the Act in effect when the cause of action arose [Pub. L. 100-568, § 13(b), 102 Stat. 2861 (1988)].

For copies and phonorecords publicly distributed by authority of the copyright owner before March 1, 1989, but after 1977, the omission of a copyright notice [see 17 U.S.C. §§ 401-403] will not invalidate the copyright in the following situations [17 U.S.C. § 405(a), (e); see 17 U.S.C. § 406 (governing effect of error in name of copyright owner or date contained in pre-Berne-Convention notices)]:

- Omission occurs only on a small number of copies or phonorecords distributed publicly [see, e.g., Lifshitz v. Walter Drake & Sons, Inc. (9th Cir. 1986) 806 F.2d 1426, 1432-1433 (15,00 items too many to qualify for exception); see also Lloyd v. Schlag (9th Cir. 1989) 884 F.2d 409, 415 (number of charms distributed to public was too large to qualify for exception)]; or
- The work was registered before or the copyright owner registers the work within five years after the publication without notice and a reasonable effort is made to add notice to all copies or phonorecords distributed publicly; or

- Omission is in violation of an express written requirement that was a condition of the copyright owner's authorization for public distribution; or
- Omission is the result of an unauthorized removal, destruction, or obliteration of a notice.

In addition, copyright notice has been restored by statute for motion pictures that were first fixed or published without the required copyright notice in the territory of a North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) country after January 1, 1978, and before March 1, 1989, under certain circumstances [see 17 U.S.C. § 104A; see also 37 C.F.R. § 301.31 (procedure for restoring copyright protection)]; § 103A.86].

[3] Works Publicly Distributed on or After March 1, 1989

For works publicly distributed by authority of the copyright owner on or after March 1, 1989 [see Pub. L. No. 100-568, § 13, 102 Stat. 2861 (1988)], a notice of copyright may be placed on publicly distributed copies of protected work or on all publicly distributed phonorecords [17 U.S.C. §§ 401(a), 402(a); see 17 U.S.C. § 401(b) (form for notice)]. The notice must be affixed to the copies in a manner and location that provide reasonable notice of the claim of copyright [17 U.S.C. § 401(c)].

The Copyright Office does not take a position on whether reprints of works first published with notice before March 1, 1989, which are distributed on or after March 1, 1989, must bear the copyright notice [see U.S. Copyright Office Circular No. 3, Copyright Notice, Use of Copyright Notice].

[4] Notice Remains Important

Although copyright notice is no longer required, its use remains important. In the event that a work is infringed, if notice in the specified form and position [see 17 U.S.C. §§ 401(b), (c) (copy), 402(b), (c) (phonorecord); see also § 103A.63] appears on the published copy or phonorecord to which a defendant in a copyright infringement suit had access, the court will not give any weight to a defendant's interposition of an innocent infringement defense (that is, that defendant did not realize that the work was protected) in mitigation of actual or statutory damages, except as provided in the last sentence of 17 U.S.C. § 504(c)(2) (statutory damages against nonprofit educational institution, library, archives, or public broadcaster remitted if infringer believed fair use doctrine applied) [17 U.S.C. §§ 401(d), 402(d)]. Copyright holders should bear in mind, however, that simply affixing a copyright notice without registering the copyright will not adequately protect the copyright in most cases, since registration, or preregistration [see § 103A.75] in an appropriate case, usually is a prerequisite to bringing an infringement suit [17 U.S.C. §§ 411(a), 412; see § 103A.72]. For further discussion of infringement, see §§ 103A.90-103A.91.

33-103A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103A.70

§ 103A.70 Copyright Office and Registrar of Copyrights

As director of the Copyright Office of the Library of Congress, the Register of Copyrights is responsible for all administrative functions and duties pertaining to the copyright law [see 17 U.S.C. § 701]. These duties include establishing implementing regulations [see 17 U.S.C. § 702; see also 37 C.F.R. pts. 201, 202], preparing, maintaining and searching copyright records [see 17 U.S.C. § 705, and distributing free copyright registration forms and general informational material [see 17 U.S.C. § 707; see also § 103A.200[1][c]].

Records of all deposits, registrations, recordations, and other copyright law actions are indexed and kept in the Copyright Office [17 U.S.C. § 705(a)]. These records are open for inspection and searching by the public [17 U.S.C. § 705(b)]. Further, on request and payment of a specified fee [see 17 U.S.C. § 708(a)(9)], the Copyright Office will prepare a report of the information contained in its records with respect to any deposit, registration, or recorded document [see 17 U.S.C. § 705]. On request and payment of a fee, the Office will also provide copies of any of its public records or indices [see 17 U.S.C. § 706]. For information on searching the Copyright Office records concerning the copyright status or ownership of a work, request U.S. Copyright Office Circular No. 22, How to Investigate the Copyright Status of a Work, and Circular No. 23, The Copyright Card Catalog and the Online Files of the Copyright Office. Also see U.S. Copyright Office Circular No. 1b, Limitations on the Information Furnished by the U.S. Copyright Office.

Copyright Office records in machine-readable form catalogued from January 1, 1978, to the present, including registration and renewal information and recorded documents, are available for searching on the Internet. These files may be examined through LOCIS (Library of Congress Information System). Access to LOCIS requires Telnet support. If an online service provider supports Telnet, the provider's Internet users can connect to LOCIS through the world wide web or directly by using Telnet, as follows:

World Wide Web: www.copyright.gov/rb.html.

F. Registration and Deposit

33-103A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103A.71

§ 103A.71 Nature of Copyright Registration

The owner of a copyright or of any exclusive right in a published work may register a claim to that work in the Copyright Office by depositing copies of the work, together with an application and deposit fee [see 17 U.S.C. §§ 408-410 and discussion in §§ 103A.73-103A.75]. In general, registration is a legal formality intended to make a public record of basic facts of a particular copyright [U.S. Copyright Office Circular No. 1, Copyright Basics, Copyright Registration; see 17 U.S.C. § 101 ("registration" defined)]. Copyright registration is not a condition of copyright protection [17 U.S.C. § 408(a)], except in some instances to preserve a pre-Berne Convention copyright that would otherwise be invalidated because of omission of the required copyright notice [see 17 U.S.C. § 405(a)(2)]. However, the owner of a copyright or of any exclusive right in the copyrighted work may voluntarily register a claim to that work in the Copyright Office by depositing copies of the work along with an application and deposit fee [see 17 U.S.C. §§ 408-410; see also § 103A.73 (procedures)].

A certificate of registration made before or within five years of publication of the work constitutes prima facie evidence of the validity of the copyright [17 U.S.C. § 410(c); see § 103A.61 (publication)].

F. Registration and Deposit

33-103A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103A.72

§ 103A.72 Registration and Infringement Actions

Although registration is not usually a requirement for the existence of a copyright [see § 103A.71], failure to register a copyright may significantly impede the copyright holder's ability to protect and enforce the holder's rights in many cases.

Registration, or preregistration in an appropriate case [see § 103A.75], usually is a prerequisite to bringing an infringement suit [17 U.S.C. § 411(a)]. Furthermore, a plaintiff who brings an infringement action under the Copyright Act ordinarily may not recover statutory damages or attorney's fees for either of the following [17 U.S.C. § 412]:

- Any infringement of copyright in an unpublished work commenced before the effective date of its registration, unless preregistration requirements were met [see § 103A.75]; or
- Any infringement of copyright commenced after first publication of the work and before the effective date of its registration, unless registration is made within three months after the first publication of the work.

Limited exceptions exist to the requirement of registration as a prerequisite to a copyright infringement action. An action brought for violation of the author's rights under 17 U.S.C. § 106A (relating to the attribution and related rights of the author of a work of visual art may be instituted without regard to registration [17 U.S.C. § 411(a)]. In addition, in the case of a work consisting of sounds, images, or both, the first fixation of which is made simultaneously with its transmission, the copyright owner, either before or after that fixation takes place, may institute an action for infringement [see 17 U.S.C. § 501] if the copyright owner does both of the following [17 U.S.C. § 411(c)]:

- Serves notice on the infringer, not less than 48 hours before the fixation, identifying the work and the specific time and source of its first transmission and declaring an intention to secure copyright in the work; and
- Registers the work, if required by 17 U.S.C. § 411(a), within three months after its first transmission.

For detailed discussion of copyright registration and its effects on infringement actions, see Nimmer On Copyright, Ch. 7, Statutory Formalities , and Ch. 21, Copyright Office Forms and Related Materials (Matthew Bender). For additional discussion of infringement, see §§ 103A.90, 103A.91.

§ 103A.73 Registration Procedures

Registration may be made at any time within the life of the copyright [see 17 U.S.C. § 408(a)]. Unlike the law in effect before 1978 [see 17 U.S.C. §§ 12, 13], when a work has been registered in unpublished form, it is not necessary to make another registration, although the copyright owner may register the published edition, if desired [see 17 U.S.C. § 408(e)].

The owner of a copyright or of any exclusive right in the copyrighted work may register a copyright claim with the Copyright Office by submitting an application and registration fee and depositing copies of the work [17 U.S.C. §§ 408, 409; see 37 C.F.R. § 202.3 (registration of copyright); see also § 103A.122 (registration procedures); §§ 103A.200-103A.211 (registration forms)]. The Register of Copyrights will register the claim and issue a certificate of registration if he or she determines that the deposited materials are copyrightable and that other requirements have been met [17 U.S.C. § 410(a)]. If the Register determines that the material is not copyrightable or the claim is invalid for any other reason, he or she will refuse registration and notify the applicant in writing of the reasons for refusal [17 U.S.C. § 410(b)].

Registration becomes effective on the day on which an application, deposit, and fee, which are later determined by the Register of Copyrights or by a court of competent jurisdiction to be acceptable for registration, have all been received in the Copyright Office [17 U.S.C. § 410(d)].

For a guide to registration procedures, see § 103A.122. Supplementary registration is covered in § 103A.153. Renewal registration is discussed in § 103A.155. Official registration forms and instructions are explained and reproduced in §§ 103A.200-103A.211. For a more detailed discussion of registration procedures, see Nimmer On Copyright, Ch. 7, Statutory Formalities, and Ch. 21, Copyright Office Forms and Related Materials (Matthew Bender).

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

F. Registration and Deposit

33-103A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103A.74

§ 103A.74 Deposit of Copies or Phonorecords With Library of Congress

[1] Mandatory Deposit of Published Works

Although copyright registration is not required, the 1976 Act establishes a mandatory deposit requirement for works published in the United States [17 U.S.C. § 407(a); see 17 U.S.C. § 101 ("publication" defined)]. In general, the owner of copyright or of the exclusive right of publication in the work must deposit the following in the Copyright Office, within three months after publication in the United States:

- Two complete copies of the best edition of the work [see 17 U.S.C. § 101 ("best edition" defined)],
or
- If the work is a sound recording, two complete phonorecords of the best edition, together with any printed or other visually perceptible material published with the work [see 17 U.S.C. § 407(a)-(c)].

Although this deposit is not a condition of copyright protection [17 U.S.C. § 407(a)], the Register of Copyright may issue a written demand for the required deposit any time after the work has been published, and impose a fee if the deposit is not made within three months of the demand [see 17 U.S.C. § 407(d)].

In the case of published computer programs and published computerized information works, such as statistical compendia, serials, and reference works, that are not copy-protected, only one complete copy of the best edition [see 17 U.S.C. § 101; 37 C.F.R. § 202.19(b)(1); 37 C.F.R. pt. 202, app. B ("best edition" defined)] is required to be deposited with the Copyright Office. If the works are copy-protected, two copies of the best edition must be deposited [37 C.F.R. § 202.19(d)(2)(vii)].

Certain works are exempted from this deposit requirement [see 37 C.F.R. § 202.19(c) (exemptions from deposit requirement)], and an owner may request "special relief" from some aspects of the deposit requirement under specified circumstances [see 37 C.F.R. § 202.19(e)].

For a detailed list of deposit requirements for various types of works, see § 103A.121.

[2] Use of Mandatory Deposit to Satisfy Registration Requirement

As part of the application for copyright registration [see § 103A.73], the applicant must deposit copies or phonorecords of the copyrighted work [17 U.S.C. § 408(b); 37 C.F.R. § 202.20(c) (nature of required deposit)].

Copies and phonorecords deposited for the Library of Congress under 17 U.S.C. § 407 and 37 C.F.R. § 202.19 [see [1], above] may be used to satisfy the deposit requirements for copyright registration. In order to have this dual effect, the copies or phonorecords must be accompanied by an application for registration of claim to copyright in the work represented by the deposit, and either a registration fee or a deposit account number on the application [37 C.F.R. § 202.20(e)].

An applicant who fails to exercise this joint deposit option must comply with a separate set of requirements applicable solely to registration deposits [37 C.F.R. § 202.20(c) (nature of required deposit)]. See § 103A.123 for a list of these requirements.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

F. Registration and Deposit

33-103A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103A.75

§ 103A.75 Preregistration of Unpublished Work Being Prepared for Commercial Distribution

It is possible to preregister an unpublished work that is being prepared for commercial distribution if the work is in a class that has had a history of infringement prior to authorized commercial distribution [see 17 U.S.C. § 408(f)(1),(2)]. See § 103A.125 for a procedural guide to preregistration.

Preregistration enables the registrant to maintain an action based on infringement occurring before normal registration [see 17 U.S.C. § 411(a)]. However, as an incentive for the copyright owner to effect a normal registration, an action based on preregistration will be subject to mandatory dismissal insofar as the action concerns infringement occurring before publication or within two months after publication, unless the copyright owner has completed a normal registration within either three months after publication of the work or one month after the copyright owner learned of the infringement [see 17 U.S.C. § 408(f)(4); see also 17 U.S.C. § 412 (copyright owner may not recover statutory damages or attorney's fees, in action based on preregistration, unless normal registration has been completed within stated period)].

Not later than three months after the first publication of a preregistered work, the copyright owner must submit to the Copyright Office an application for registration of the work, a deposit, and the appropriate fee [17 U.S.C. § 408(f)(3)].

While preregistration of a work offers advantages to a copyright owner [see 17 U.S.C. §§ 408(f), 411, 412], preregistration of a work does not constitute prima facie evidence of the validity of the copyright or of the facts stated in the application for preregistration or in the preregistration record. The fact that a work has been preregistered does not create any presumption that the Copyright Office will register the work on submission of an application for registration [37 C.F.R. § 202.16(c)(13)].

The Register of Copyrights has determined that the following classes of works are eligible for preregistration [37 C.F.R. § 202.16(b)(1)]:

- Motion pictures.

- Sound recordings.
- Musical compositions.
- Literary works being prepared for publication in book form.
- Computer programs (including video games).
- Advertising or marketing photographs.

Any person who willfully infringes a copyright by the distribution of a work being prepared for commercial distribution, by making it available on a computer network accessible to members of the public, is guilty of an offense, if the person knew or should have known that the work was intended for commercial distribution [17 U.S.C. § 506(a)(1)(C)].

 PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
 G. Licenses

33-103A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103A.80

§ 103A.80 Compulsory Licensing

The 1976 Act provides for compulsory licensing for various uses of a copyrighted work [see 17 U.S.C. §§ 111(c), (d) (secondary transmissions by cable systems), 115 (making and distributing phonorecords), 119 (secondary transmission by satellite carriers for private home viewing)]. Compulsory licensing is essentially a statutory exception to the Act's provisions that the copyright owner has certain specified exclusive rights in the work [see 17 U.S.C. § 106; see also § 103A.20[1]] and that anyone who violates any of those rights is an infringer of the copyright [see 17 U.S.C. §§ 501(a), 511(a); see also § 103A.90].

The Copyright Act provides for compulsory licensing in the following circumstances [see 37 C.F.R. §§ 201.17-201.19 (notices and statements of account for compulsory licenses)]:

- A cable system may obtain a compulsory license to make secondary transmissions to the public of primary transmission made by a broadcast station licensed by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) or an appropriate governmental authority of Canada or Mexico [see 17 U.S.C. §§ 111(c)(1), (d); see also 17 U.S.C. §§ 111(c)(2) (actions constituting infringement)].
- Once phonorecords of a nondramatic musical work have been distributed to the public under the authority of the copyright owner, others may obtain a compulsory license to make and distribute their own phonorecords of the work, under specified conditions [see 17 U.S.C. § 115; see also Peer Intern. Corp. v. Pausa Records (9th Cir. 1990) 909 F.2d 1332, 1337, cert. denied, 498 U.S. 1109 (1991) (failure to pay royalties under private license agreement is not act of infringement under 17 U.S.C. § 115(c)(5))].
- "Satellite carriers" may obtain a "statutory" (that is, compulsory) license to make secondary transmissions to the public for private home viewing of a primary transmission made by a "super station" or by a network station, under specified circumstances [see 17 U.S.C. § 119].

The Copyright Act also provides for negotiated licensing of the performances of nondramatic musical works on coin-operated phonorecords ("jukeboxes") and for negotiated licensing for the use of pictorial, graphic, sculptural, and nondramatic musical works by public broadcasting entities [see 17 U.S.C. §§ 116, 118; see also § 103A.81].

For detailed discussion on compulsory and negotiated license provisions under the Copyright Act, see Nimmer On Copyright, Ch. 8, The Nature of the Rights Protected by Copyright (Matthew Bender).

Copyright owners and jukebox operators or their respective agents may negotiate licensing agreements for the public performance of copyrighted works on a jukebox, covering the terms and royalty rates for the performance of those works and the proportionate division of fees among the copyright owners [17 U.S.C. § 116(a), (b)(1); see 17 U.S.C. § 116(d) ("coin-operated phonorecord player" [jukebox] and "operator" defined)].

Parties not subject to such a negotiation may have the terms and rates and the division of fees determined by a panel of experts (called "copyright royalty judges") appointed by the Librarian of Congress or, before June 1, 2005, by ad hoc copyright arbitration royalty panels [17 U.S.C. § 116(b)(2); see 17 U.S.C. § 801 et seq. (appointment of and proceedings by copyright royalty judges); see also former 17 U.S.C. § 116(b)(2); Pub. L. No. 108-419, § 6 (operative date of amendments enacted by Copyright Royalty and Distribution Reform Act of 2004; transitional application of former provision of Copyright Act mandating proceedings by ad hoc copyright arbitration royalty panels pursuant to former 17 U.S.C. § 801 et seq.)]. Licensing agreements negotiated between one or more copyright owners and one or more jukebox owners will be given effect in lieu of any otherwise applicable determination made by the copyright royalty judges (or, before June 1, 2005, a copyright arbitration royalty panel) [17 U.S.C. § 116(c)].

[2] Noncommercial Broadcasting

Public broadcasting entities [see 17 U.S.C. § 118(f) (definition)] may negotiate with copyright owners to obtain a license to perform published nondramatic musical works and other specified copyrighted works [see 17 U.S.C. § 118(b)]. These licenses cover terms and rates of royalty payments and division of fees among copyright owners [see 17 U.S.C. § 118(b)]. Copyright owners and public broadcasting entities may also submit to the copyright royalty judges (or, before June 1, 2005, the Librarian of Congress) proposed licenses covering activities relating to these works [see 17 U.S.C. § 118(b)(1)].

In the absence of a negotiated agreement, a panel of experts (called "copyright royalty judges") appointed by the Librarian of Congress (or, before June 1, 2005, a copyright arbitration royalty panel) must determine and publish in the Federal Register a schedule of rates and terms, which is binding on all owners of copyright in the subject works and on the public broadcasting entities [17 U.S.C. § 118(b)(4); see 17 U.S.C. § 801 et seq. (appointment of and proceedings by copyright royalty judges); see also former 17 U.S.C. § 118(b)(3); Pub. L. No. 108-419, § 6 (operative date of amendments enacted by Copyright Royalty and Distribution Reform Act of 2004; transitional application of former provisions of Copyright Act mandating proceedings by ad hoc copyright arbitration royalty panels pursuant to former 17 U.S.C. § 801 et seq.)]. However, a license agreement voluntarily negotiated at any time between any of the copyright owners and any public broadcasting entity will be given effect in lieu of any determination by the Librarian of Congress or the copyright royalty judges if a copy of the agreement is filed with the copyright royalty judges (or, before June 1, 2005, filed in the Copyright Office) within 30 days of execution in accordance with applicable regulations [17 U.S.C. § 118(b)(2)].

On compliance with the terms of any voluntary license agreement negotiated by the parties or of any determination by the copyright royalty judges (or, before June 1, 2005, a determination by a copyright arbitration royalty panel), a public broadcasting entity may engage in specified activities regarding the copyrighted works [see 17 U.S.C. § 118(c)].

[3] Implied Grant of License

A license is deemed to have been granted implicitly if the following three facts are established [Asset Mktg. Sys. v. Gagnon (9th Cir. 2008) 542 F.3d 748, 2008 U.S. App. LEXIS 19179, at *14-*15] .

First, a person--the licensee--requested the creation of a work (which is a work of the kind that can be subject to copyright). The request need not be explicit or formalized; what matters is that the licensee took the initial steps toward creation of the work, having that result in mind. Creation of the work was responsive to the licensee's initiative [see Asset Mktg. Sys. v. Gagnon (9th Cir. 2008) 542 F.3d 748, 2008 U.S. App. LEXIS 19179, at *16] .

Second, the creator--the copyright owner and licensor--made that particular work and delivered it to the licensee who requested it. That is, the work was created specifically for the licensee. Whether the work was actually delivered could be disputed; for instance, a customized computer program could have been installed on the licensee's computer as object code (which is readable by the computer but not easily readable by a person), while the creator retained the source code (which a person can read and which can be modified by a programmer), and then the creator could plausibly deny that the program was delivered. In any event, as long as the other two facts are established, and the licensee in fact has some meaningful use of the work, a court may conclude that an implied license has been granted [see Asset Mktg. Sys. v. Gagnon (9th Cir. 2008) 542 F.3d 748, 2008 U.S. App. LEXIS 19179, at *17] .

Third, the licensor intended that the licensee-requestor would use the work in some way appropriate to the nature of the work: for example, copying and distributing it (for example, the work is a special effect created for use in a film) or using and modifying it for use in business operations (for example, the work is a customized computer program) [Asset Mktg. Sys. v. Gagnon (9th Cir. 2008) 542 F.3d 748, 2008 U.S. App. LEXIS 19179, at *15] . The relevant intent is the licensor's objective intent at the time of the creation and delivery of the work, as manifested by the parties' conduct. A court should consider the following factors to determine whether the creator had such an intent [Asset Mktg. Sys. v. Gagnon (9th Cir. 2008) 542 F.3d 748, 2008 U.S. App. LEXIS 19179, at *18-*19] :

- Whether the parties were engaged in a short-term discrete transaction as opposed to an on-going relationship;
- Whether the creator submitted (regardless of whether the parties signed) a written contract providing that copyrighted material could be used only with the creator's future involvement or express permission; and
- Whether the creator's conduct during the creation or delivery of the copyrighted material indicated that use of the material without the creator's involvement or consent was permissible.

If an implied license was granted, then two dependent issues can arise. First, as to the durability of the license: if the licensee gave consideration--in the usual case, the licensee pays money to the creator--then the license possibly is irrevocable [see Asset Mktg. Sys. v. Gagnon (9th Cir. 2008) 542 F.3d 748, 2008 U.S. App. LEXIS 19179, at *23] , but possibly it has been converted into a contract [see Effects Assocs., Inc. v. Cohen (9th Cir. 1990) 908 F.2d 555, 559 n.7]. Second, as to the scope of the license--whether it is limited in any way (such as by geographic area), whether it is exclusive or not, and what the licensee is entitled to do with, and with respect to, the work (for instance, whether a computer program may be modified): the evidence of the parties' intent must be considered in each case [see, e.g., Asset Mktg. Sys. v. Gagnon (9th Cir. 2008) 542 F.3d 748, 2008 U.S. App. LEXIS 19179, at *21-*22 (court's finding that creator of work intended to grant nonexclusive, unlimited license was supported by fact that creator submitted draft of agreement to licensee, which contained statement to that effect; and fact that parties never signed it was irrelevant)]. A licensee infringes the owner's copyright if the licensee's use exceeds the scope of the license [S.O.S., Inc. v. Payday, Inc. (9th Cir. 1989) 886 F.2d 1081, 1087] .

H. Duration and Renewal of Copyrights

33-103A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103A.85

§ 103A.85 Duration and Renewal of Copyright

[1] Works Created on or After January 1, 1978

For works originally copyrighted on or after January 1, 1978, the copyright law has eliminated all renewal requirements and established a single copyright term and different methods of computing the duration of a copyright [see 17 U.S.C. § 302(a)].

A copyright in a work created (fixed in a tangible medium for the first time) on or after January 1, 1978 subsists from its creation and endures for the author's life plus 70 years [17 U.S.C. § 302(a); see 17 U.S.C. § 101 ("created" defined)]. This term applies to works that are unpublished, published during the author's lifetime, and published posthumously [H.R. Rep. No. 94-1476, at 136 (1976)].

Copyright on a joint work prepared by two or more authors who did not work for hire endures for a term consisting of the life of the last surviving author plus 70 years [17 U.S.C. § 302(b)].

Anonymous and pseudonymous works, and works made for hire [see 17 U.S.C. § 101 (definitions)] are protected for 95 years from publication, or for 120 years from creation, whichever is shorter [see 17 U.S.C. § 302(c)]. However, if the identity of one or more of the authors of an anonymous or pseudonymous work is revealed either in its registration records [see 17 U.S.C. § 408(a), (d)] or in a statement filed with the Copyright Office in accordance with 17 U.S.C. § 302(c), the copyright will endure for a period of 70 years after the death of the identified author or authors [17 U.S.C. § 302(c); see 17 U.S.C. § 302(a), (b)].

All copyright terms run to the end of the calendar year in which they would otherwise expire [17 U.S.C. § 305].

[2] Works Created Before January 1, 1978, but Not Published or Registered by That Date

The duration of copyright for works created before January 1, 1978, but not published or registered by that date will generally be computed in the same way as for works created on or after January 1, 1978: The life-plus-70-year or 95/120-year terms will apply [17 U.S.C. § 303(a); see 17 U.S.C. § 302; see also [1], above]. However, in no case will the terms of copyright for works in this category expire before December 31, 2002, and for works published on or before December 31, 2002, the term of copyright will not expire before December 31, 2047 [17 U.S.C. § 303(a)].

The distribution of a phonorecord before January 1, 1978 does not constitute publication of the embodied musical work for any purpose [17 U.S.C. § 303(b); see ABKCO Music, Inc. v. LaVere (9th Cir. 2000) 217 F.3d 684, 691 (Congress intended that 17 U.S.C. § 303(b) would clarify law on issue in question and nullify Ninth Circuit's "aberrational" La Cienega decision); La Cienega Music Co. v. ZZ Top (9th Cir. 1995) 53 F.3d 950, 953 (distribution of phonorecord was "publication" of embodied work and "the clock started ticking under the Copyright Act of 1909")].

[3] Works Created and Published or Registered Before January 1, 1978

Any copyright that was existing in its first term on January 1, 1978, endures for 28 years from the time that the copyright was first secured under prior law [17 U.S.C. § 304(a)(1)(A)]. Specified persons are entitled to a renewal and extension of the copyright for an additional term of 67 years [see 17 U.S.C. § 304(a)(1)(B), (C)]. Renewal is automatic, and no application for renewal is required [17 U.S.C. § 304(a)(3)(B)]. The renewal owner may, however, apply to register the renewed copyright [see 17 U.S.C. § 304(a)(3)(A)], in which case the extended term vests on the date of application for registration; otherwise, the extended term vests on the last day of the original term of the copyright [17 U.S.C. § 304(a)(2)(A), (B)]. Any copyright still in its renewal term when the Sonny Bono Copyright Term Extension Act became effective has a copyright term of 95 years from the date the copyright was originally secured [17 U.S.C. § 304(b); see Pub. L. No. 105-298, § 207 (Oct. 27, 1998; effective date 90 days after enactment); see also 17 U.S.C. § 304(c) (termination of transfer and licenses covering extended renewal term)].

For procedures for renewal of copyright claims in works created before January 1, 1978, see § 103A.155. The official application for renewal registration of an existing copyright obtained before January 1, 1978, as well as an addendum for use in renewing a copyright for a work that was published between January 1, 1964, and December 31, 1977, and was not registered during its first 28-year copyright term, are reproduced in § 103A.211[2].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

H. Duration and Renewal of Copyrights

33-103A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103A.86

§ 103A.86 Restoration of U.S. Copyright in Certain Foreign Works

Congress has restored copyright protection for certain works created by foreign authors that have entered the public domain in the United States because of (1) noncompliance with formalities imposed at any time by United States copyright law, including failure of renewal, lack of proper notice, or failure to comply with any manufacturing requirements; (2) lack of subject matter protection, in the case of sound recordings fixed before February 15, 1972; or (3) lack of national eligibility [see 17 U.S.C. § 104A(a), (b), (h)(6)(A), (C)].

Restored copyright protection vests automatically on the "date of restoration" [see 17 U.S.C. § 104A(a)(1)(A)]. The "date of restoration" of a restored copyright is January 1, 1996, if the source country of the restored work is a nation adhering to the Berne Convention or a World Trade Organization member country on that date; or it is the date of adherence or proclamation, in the case of any other source country of the restored work [17 U.S.C. § 104A(h)(2)].

Restored copyright protection applies only to works created by nationals or domiciliaries of "eligible countries," that is, any nation, other than the United States, that either (1) becomes a World Trade Organization member country after the date of the enactment of the Uruguay Round Agreements Act, or (2) on that date of enactment was, or after that date of enactment became, a member of the Berne Convention, or (3) after that date of enactment became subject to a proclamation that the nation provides restored copyright protection to authors who are United States nationals or domiciliaries on substantially the same basis as provided under 17 U.S.C. § 104A [see 17 U.S.C. § 104A(g), (h)(3), (6)(D)]. Furthermore, to be eligible for restored copyright protection, the work (1) must not be in the public domain in its source country through expiration of term of protection, and (2) if published, the work must have first been published in an eligible country and not published in the United States during the 30-day period following publication in the eligible country [see 17 U.S.C. § 104A(h)(6)(B), (D)].

Procedures for enforcement and remedies for infringement of restored copyright protection are set forth in 17 U.S.C. § 104A(c)-(e). On or after the date of restoration, an owner of the copyright in a restored work who intends to enforce the copyright against a "reliance party" [see 17 U.S.C. § 104A(h)(4) (definition)] must either file a notice of intent containing specified information with the Copyright Office or serve a notice of intent directly on the reliance party [see 17 U.S.C. § 104A(c), (d)(2), (e)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

I. Copyright Infringement and Remedies

33-103A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103A.90

§ 103A.90 Copyright Infringement

Anyone who violates any of the exclusive rights of a copyright owner under 17 U.S.C. §§ 106-122 or of the author of a work of visual art under 17 U.S.C. § 106A or who imports copies or phonorecords into the United States in violation of the copyright law [see 17 U.S.C. § 602] is an infringer of the copyright [17 U.S.C. § 501(a)].

"Anyone" includes any state, any instrumentality of a state, and any officer or employee of a state or instrumentality of a state acting in his or her official capacity, all of whom are subject to the copyright law to the same extent as any nongovernmental entity [17 U.S.C. § 501(a); see 17 U.S.C. § 511]. The legal or beneficial owner of an exclusive right under a copyright, and certain primary transmitters and broadcast stations, may bring an infringement action [see 17 U.S.C. § 501(b)-(e)].

A legal or beneficial owner of a copyright may assign the right to an accrued cause of action for copyright infringement, without any other copyright rights accompanying the assignment, to the creator of a work for hire, or to any other person, and such an assignee may sue on that cause of action for infringement [Silvers v. Sony Pictures Entertainment, Inc. (9th Cir. 2003) 330 F.3d 1204, 1206-1207, 1209] . For discussion and a general form for assignment of a cause of action, see Ch. 76, Assignment of Rights and Obligations .

Innocent infringement is a defense to an infringement action [see § 103A.62[4]].

For detailed discussion of what constitutes copyright infringement, see Nimmer On Copyright, Ch. 13, Infringement Actions--Substantive Aspects (Matthew Bender), and California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 349, Literary Property and Copyright (Matthew Bender).

CHAPTER 103A COPYRIGHTS

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

I. Copyright Infringement and Remedies

33-103A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103A.91

§ 103A.91 Remedies

[1] Injunctions and Restraining Orders

A court may grant injunctions and restraining orders (operative throughout the United States) to prevent or stop copyright infringements [17 U.S.C. § 502; see, e.g., Dr. Seuss Enterprises, L.P. v. Penguin Books (9th Cir. 1997) 109 F.3d 1394, 1403-1406] .

[2] Statutory Damages and Attorneys' Fees

An infringer is liable for either the copyright owner's actual damages and any additional profits of the infringer [see 17 U.S.C. § 504(a), (b)], or statutory damages for all infringements involved in the action [see 17 U.S.C. § 504(c), (d) (special damages if there was no reasonable ground for believing use of copyright was exempt under 17 U.S.C. § 110(5))]. In any civil action under the copyright law, the court may also award full costs by or against any party other than the United States, and attorneys' fees to the prevailing party [see 17 U.S.C. § 505].

Attorneys' fee awards are not limited to exceptional circumstances, and fee motions are to be considered in a manner that seeks to promote the objectives of the Copyright Act [Magnuson v. Video Yesteryear (9th Cir. 1996) 85 F.3d 1424, 1432] . When ruling on motions for attorneys' fees, the court will consider the following factors: degree of success obtained, frivolousness, the motivations of the parties, objective unreasonableness, and the need in the particular circumstances to advance considerations of compensation and deterrence [Fogerty v. Fantasy, Inc. (1994) 510 U.S. 517, 534 n.19, 114 S. Ct. 1023, 127 L. Ed. 2d 455] .

Except for specified types of actions [see 17 U.S.C. §§ 106A(a), 411(c)], registration of the copyright, or preregistration of an unpublished work [see § 103A.75], is a prerequisite to recovering statutory damages or attorney's fees [17 U.S.C. § 412; see 17 U.S.C. §§ 504, 505 (statutory damages; attorneys' fees)]. Statutory damages or attorneys' fees may not be awarded for any infringement of copyright in an unpublished work begun before the effective date of its registration, if the requirements for preregistration were not met [17 U.S.C. § 412(1)]. For any infringement of copyright begun after the first publication of the work and before the effective date of its registration, statutory damages or attorneys' fees may not be awarded unless registration is made within three months after the first publication of the work [17 U.S.C. § 412(2)].

For further discussion of the scope of remedies available for infringement of a copyright, see Nimmer On Copyright, Ch. 14, Infringement Actions--Remedies (Matthew Bender), and California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 349, Literary Property and Copyright (Matthew Bender).

[3] Criminal Penalties

In addition to any other similar remedies provided by law, forfeiture, destruction, and restitution relating to a violation of 17 U.S.C. § 506 will be subject to 18 U.S.C. § 2323, to the extent provided in that section [17 U.S.C. § 506(b)]. Therefore, any article, the making or trafficking of which is prohibited under 17 U.S.C. § 506, is subject to civil forfeiture to the U.S. government, as is also any property used, or intended to be used, in any manner or part to commit or facilitate the violation of 17 U.S.C. § 506, or any property constituting or derived from any proceeds obtained directly or indirectly as a result of the violation [18 U.S.C. § 2323(a)(1)]; and in imposing sentence on a person convicted of an offense under 17 U.S.C. § 506, the court must order, in addition to any other sentence imposed, that the person forfeit to the U.S. government any such property that is subject to civil forfeiture [18 U.S.C. § 2323(b)(1)].

Any person who, with fraudulent intent, places on any article, or publicly distributes or imports for public distribution any article bearing, a notice of copyright or similar words, knowing them to be false, is subject to a fine [17 U.S.C. § 506(c)].

Any person who knowingly makes a false representation of a material fact in an application for registration is also subject to a fine [17 U.S.C. § 506(e)], as is a person who, with fraudulent intent, removes or alters any notice of copyright appearing on a copy of a copyrighted work [17 U.S.C. § 506(d)]. A willful infringement for commercial advantage or private financial gain may subject the infringer to both a fine and imprisonment [17 U.S.C. § 506(a)].

Under state law, a person who fails to disclose the origin of a recording or audiovisual work is subject to being fined or imprisoned, or both, if, for commercial advantage or private financial gain, the person knowingly advertises or offers for sale or resale, or sells or resells, or causes the rental, sale or resale, or rents, or manufactures, or possesses for these purposes, any recording or audiovisual work, the cover, box, jacket, or label of which does not clearly and conspicuously disclose the actual true name and address of the manufacturer and the name of the actual author, artist, performer, producer, programmer, or group [Penal Code § 653w(a)].

[4] Forfeiture of Infringing Materials or Loss of Broadcast License

At any time while an infringement action is pending, the court may order the impounding, on such terms as it may deem reasonable, of (1) all copies or phonorecords claimed to have been made or used in violation of the exclusive right of the copyright owner, (2) all plates, molds, matrices, masters, tapes, film negatives, or other articles by means of which such copies or phonorecords may be reproduced, and (3) records documenting the manufacture, sale, or receipt of things involved in any such violation, provided that any records seized must be taken into the custody of the court [17 U.S.C. § 503(a)(1)]. As part of a final judgment or decree, the court may order the destruction or other reasonable disposition of all copies or phonorecords found to have been made or used in violation of the copyright owner's exclusive rights, and of all plates, molds, matrices, masters, tapes, film negatives, or other articles by means of which such copies or phonorecords may be reproduced [17 U.S.C. § 503(b)].

In an action for a cable system's alteration of programming [see 17 U.S.C. § 111(c)(3)], the court may order that the cable system be deprived of the benefit of a compulsory license for one or more distant signals carried by the cable system for 30 days [see 17 U.S.C. § 510(b)].

In the event of a conviction for a violation of Penal Code § 653w [see § 103A.91[3]], the court may order the forfeiture and destruction or other disposition of all articles, including, but not limited to, phonograph records, discs, wires, tapes, films, or any other article on which sounds or images can be recorded or stored, and any and all electronic, mechanical, or other devices for manufacturing, reproducing or assembling these articles, that were used in connection with, or which were part of, the violation [Penal Code § 653v].

[5] Nuisance Abatement

Until January 1, 2015 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17802], if there is a conviction for a violation of Penal Code § 653w [see § 103A.91[3]], then a nonresidential building or place used by the convicted person in committing that violation is deemed a nuisance that may be enjoined, abated, and prevented, and for which damages may be recovered, whether it is a public or private nuisance [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17800(a),(c)]. The district attorney of the county where the nuisance exists, or any city attorney in the county, or any citizen of California who resides in the county, may maintain an action to abate and prevent the nuisance and to perpetually enjoin the person conducting or maintaining it, and the owner, lessee, or agent of the building or place, in or on which the nuisance exists, from directly or indirectly maintaining or permitting it [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17800(a)]. For discussion and forms for use in an action to abate a nuisance, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 391, Nuisance (Matthew Bender).

[1] Extent of Protection

Computer programs (that is, software) are literary works [see 17 U.S.C. § 101 ("computer program" and "literary works" defined)], subject to protection from unauthorized copying under the copyright law [Apple Computer, Inc. v. Franklin Computer Corp. (3d Cir. 1983) 714 F.2d 1240, 1249 (computer program in object code embedded in ROM chip is appropriate subject for copyright); see Williams Electronics, Inc. v. Artic Intern., Inc. (3d Cir. 1982) 685 F.2d 870, 877 (rejecting argument that infringement of computer program was limited to copying computer text, but not to duplication of computer program fixed on silicon chip); see, e.g., Micro Star v. Formgen, Inc. (1998) 154 F.3d 1107, 1112 (CD containing 300 downloaded "levels" of play created by players of popular computer game was unauthorized derivative work); cf. Sony Computer Enter., Inc. v. Connectix Corp. (9th Cir. 2000) 203 F.3d 596, 607 (drafting entirely new object code for game station was transformative, despite similarities to defendant's playstation in function and screen output, and thus did not infringe on defendant's copyright)]. However, copyright protection does not extend to the methodology or processes adopted by the programmer, but only to the "writing" expressing the programmer's ideas [H.R. Rep. No. 94-1476, at 57 (1976); see Apple Computer, Inc. v. Franklin Computer Corp. (3d Cir. 1983) 714 F.2d 1240, 1250] .

Copyright protection includes the structure, sequence, and organization of the program, as well as its literal code [Whelan Associates v. Jaslow Dental Laboratory (3d Cir. 1986) 797 F.2d 1222, 1248] , although the Ninth Circuit has held that certain aspects of graphical user interface software (e.g., the use of windows to display multiple images on a computer screen and to facilitate user interaction with the information contained in the windows; iconic representation of familiar objects from the office environment; manipulation of icons to convey instructions and control operation of the computer; use of menus to store information or computer functions in a place that is convenient to reach, but saves screen space for other images; and opening and closing of objects as a means of retrieving, transferring, and storing information) are "ideas" in which no copyright protection inheres [see Apple Computer, Inc. v. Microsoft Corp. (9th Cir. 1994) 35 F.3d 1435, 1443-1444] .

The owner of a copyright in software has a cause of action for infringement if the holder of a license to use the software makes copies of it in violation of the license [Wall Data Inc. v. Los Angeles County Sheriff's Dep't (9th Cir. 2006) 447 F.3d 769, 774 (no fair use defense was available to avoid infringement liability when sheriff's department bought 3,663 single-computer licenses for software, installed that software on more than 6,000 computers in its network, and configured network-managing servers so that no more than 3,663 of those computers could use that software at any given time)].

[2] Limitations on Protection

It is not an infringement for the owner of a copy of a computer program to make or authorize the making of another copy or adaptation of that program provided that the new copy or adaptation is either [17 U.S.C. § 117(a)]

- Created as an essential step in the utilization of the computer program in conjunction with a machine and is used in no other manner; or
- For archival purposes only and all archival copies are destroyed in the event that continued possession of the computer program ceases to be rightful.

This protection against infringement liability is afforded to an owner, and does not reach a mere licensee, of a copy of the software. Generally, if the copyright owner makes it clear (for instance, in a "shrink-wrap" license or a "click-through" license) that the owner is granting only a license to a copy of software and imposes significant restrictions on the purchaser's ability to redistribute or transfer that copy, then the purchaser is considered to be a licensee, not an owner, of the software [Wall Data Inc. v. Los Angeles County Sheriff's Dep't (9th Cir. 2006) 447 F.3d 769, 784-785 (also stating in dictum that even if software purchaser were owner rather than licensee of multiple copies of software, "essential step" defense could not embrace copying of software onto many more computers than number of single-computer licenses that were purchased)]. In actual fact, scarcely any end user of software actually owns a copy of the program--a user merely has a license in almost every case, in accordance with common practice in the software industry.

Exact copies prepared as described above may be leased, sold, or otherwise transferred, along with the copy from which the copies were prepared, only as part of the lease, sale, or other transfer of all rights in the program. Adaptations prepared in this manner may be transferred only with authorization of the copyright owner [17 U.S.C. § 117(b)]. In addition, subject to certain conditions, it is not an infringement for an owner or lessee of a machine to make or authorize the making of a copy of a computer program solely for purposes of maintenance or repair of that machine [see 17 U.S.C. § 117(c)].

CHAPTER 103A COPYRIGHTS

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

K. Semiconductor Chip Protection Act

33-103A California Legal Forms--Transaction Guide § 103A.99

§ 103A.99 Semiconductor Chip Protection

[1] Semiconductor Chips Not Protected Under Traditional Copyright Law

Copyright law does not protect "useful articles" as such, and semiconductor chip products are defined as useful articles for purposes of the copyright law [17 U.S.C. § 101; see H.R. Rep. No. 98-781, at 5-11, reprinted at 5 U.S.C.C.A.N. 5754-5760 (1984)]. "Masks" (as distinguished from "mask works"), which are the schematic drawings of chip layouts and accompanying technical information, may be registered under the copyright law as technical drawings. However, the protection of a technical drawing does not protect the copyright owner with respect to unauthorized duplication of the finished useful article (the chip embodying the mask work) represented by the drawing [see 17 U.S.C. § 113; H.R. Rep. No. 98-781, at 8, reprinted at 5 U.S.C.C.A.N. 5757 (1984); see also 17 U.S.C. § 901(a)(2) ("mask work" defined as series of related images that represent patterns embodied in semiconductor chip product); see generally 17 U.S.C. § 901(a) (definitions)].

[2] "Industrial Copyrights" for Mask Works Embodied in Semiconductor Chips

The Semiconductor Chip Protection Act of 1984 (the Act) [17 U.S.C. § 901 et seq.] created a new approach to protecting intellectual property embodied in semiconductor chips by means of an "industrial copyright," as distinguished from the traditional author's copyright. This industrial copyright is designed to protect the mask work, which is an integral part of the manufacturing process of and embodied in a chip, and therefore the chip, from unauthorized duplication [see H.R. Rep. No. 98-781, at 5-11, reprinted at 5 U.S.C.C.A.N. 5754-5760 (1984)].

The Act defines a semiconductor chip product ("chip") as a product that has two or more layers of metallic, insulating, or semiconductor material deposited on or etched from a piece of semiconductor material, and functions as an electronic circuit [17 U.S.C. § 901(a)(1)]. A "mask work" is a series of related images that represent the patterns embodied in a semiconductor chip product [see 17 U.S.C. § 901(a)(2)].

The Act [17 U.S.C. § 901 et seq.] provides protection for and exclusive rights to persons owning semiconductor chip products. The Act is specific to semiconductor chips, but other applicable copyright provisions are still available [17 U.S.C. § 912(a); see, e.g., [1], above]. The owner of a mask work protected under the Act [17 U.S.C. § 901 et seq.] has the exclusive rights to do and to authorize the reproduction of the mask work by any means or the importation or distribution of a semiconductor chip product in which the mask work is embodied [17 U.S.C. § 905; see 17 U.S.C. § 902(a), (b) (eligibility for protection); see also 17 U.S.C. §§ 902(c), 906(a) (limitations on protected rights)]. Owner's rights are further discussed in [3], below.

[3] Owner's Exclusive Rights

The "owner" of a mask work is the person who created it, that person's legal representative if deceased or legally incapacitated, or a transferee. However, if the mask work is created within the scope of a person's employment, the owner is the employer for whom the mask work was created or the transferee from the employer [17 U.S.C. § 901(a)(6)].

In general, the owner of a mask work protected under the Semiconductor Chip Protection Act (the Act) has exclusive rights to reproduce the mask work or to import or distribute the chip in which it is fixed or embodied and may induce or permit others to do either of these [17 U.S.C. §§ 903(a), 905]. The owner of exclusive rights in a mask work may transfer all of them or license all or less than all of them [17 U.S.C. § 903(b)]. However, if a license has been granted, the owner of a chip made by the licensee may import, distribute, dispose of, or use the chip without further authorization from the owner of the mask work [17 U.S.C. § 906(b)].

Any license or transfer of rights in a mask work may be accomplished by a written instrument signed by the owner or his or her agent [17 U.S.C. § 903(b)]. For a semiconductor chip license agreement, see Ch. 57, Computer-Related Transactions, Form 57.52. An owner's rights in a mask work may also be transferred or licensed by operation of law, be bequeathed, or pass under the law of intestate succession [17 U.S.C. § 903(b)].

[4] When Protection Applies

A mask work fixed in a semiconductor chip is eligible for protection under the Act in the following circumstances:

- If the mask work is first commercially exploited in the United States [see 17 U.S.C. § 902(a)(1)(B)].
- If, on the date on which the mask work is registered with the Copyright Office [see 17 U.S.C. § 908; see also [5][a], below] or is first commercially exploited anywhere in the world, whichever occurs first, the owner is a national or domiciliary of the United States or a nation that protects mask works, or is a stateless person domiciled anywhere [see 17 U.S.C. § 902(a)(1)(A), (C), (2)].

Commercial exploitation of a mask work is the distribution of the chip that embodies the mask work to the public for commercial purposes. However, "commercial exploitation" includes an offer to sell or transfer a chip only if the offer is in writing and the offer occurs after the mask work is fixed in the chip [17 U.S.C. § 901(a)(5)].

[5] Duration of Protection

[a] With Registration

The protection provided for a mask work begins on the date the mask work is registered or the date it is first commercially exploited anywhere in the world, whichever occurs first [17 U.S.C. § 904(a); see 17 U.S.C. § 908 (registration procedures); see also [9], below], whichever occurs first. When the mask work is registered, the rights of the owner are protected for 10 years [17 U.S.C. § 904(b)].

[b] Without Registration

An unregistered mask work is protected for two years from the date on which it is first commercially exploited anywhere in the world. Protection will terminate at the end of that time unless an application for registration has been made within the two-year period [17 U.S.C. § 908(a)]. However, registration is a prerequisite to an infringement action [see 17 U.S.C. § 910(b)(1); but see 17 U.S.C. § 910(b)(2) (permitting infringement action following refusal of registration)], and so, as a practical matter, registration is necessary in order to enforce any of the exclusive rights possessed by the owner of the mask work. Thus, the Act essentially provides the owner with a two-year grace period within which to register the work.

[6] Scope of Protection

There is no protection under the Act for a mask work that is not original or that is commonplace or familiar in the semiconductor industry [17 U.S.C. § 902(b)]. Protection does not extend to any idea, concept, principle, system, discovery, procedure or process, or method of operation, regardless of the form in which it is embodied or described in the mask work [17 U.S.C. § 902(c)].

If a chip contains patented circuitry, the patent is not affected by the fact that the mask work is protected under the Act. Similarly, mask work protection does not affect the scope, duration, ownership, or subsistence of copyright protection of programs, data bases, or any other copyrightable work embodied in the chip [see 17 U.S.C. § 912(a)].

State laws providing equivalent protection to mask works are preempted [see 17 U.S.C. § 912(c), (d)]. However, state laws protecting trade secrets are a different form of protection and are not preempted [see H.R. Rep. No. 98-781, at 28, 29, reprinted at 5 U.S.C.C.A.N. 5777 (1984)].

Reproduction of the mask work is not an infringement of the owner's rights if done solely for "reverse engineering" purposes, that is, for teaching, analyzing, or evaluating the concepts or techniques embodied in the mask work or the inherent circuitry, logic flow, or organization used in the mask work [17 U.S.C. § 906(a)(1)]. It is not an infringement for the person who performs this type of analysis or evaluation to incorporate the results in an original mask work made for distribution [17 U.S.C. § 906(a)(2)]. This limitation on the owner's rights is intended to permit and encourage improvements on or alternatives to the chip, but only if the second mask work is the product of substantial study and analysis and not the mere result of plagiarism [see H.R. Rep. No. 98-781, at 21-23, reprinted at 5 U.S.C.C.A.N. 5770-5772 (1984)].

The reverse-engineering provision allows copying the entire mask work. It does not distinguish between the protectable and non-protectable elements of the chip as long as the copying is for the purpose of teaching, evaluating, or analyzing the chip. Although a product created from that analysis must be original, the process of studying the chip is not limited to copying ideas or concepts. It is permissible to reproduce a registered mask work as a step in the process of creating an original chip, as long as the purpose of reproducing the chip is appropriate. Only minimal ingenuity is necessary for a second chip to qualify as original. Since the similarities in a chip may outweigh the differences, in an infringement action there would have to be sufficient evidence about both the similarities and the differences in the mask works to allow a jury to determine whether the allegedly infringing mask works were original as defined under the Act [Altera Corp. v. Clear Logic, Inc. (9th Cir. 2005) 424 F.3d 1079, 1088] .

[7] Notice of Protection

The owner of a mask work for which protection is provided may affix notice to the mask work and to masks and semiconductor chip products embodying the mask work, in a manner and location as to give reasonable notice of that protection. The affixation of notice is not a condition of protection, but constitutes prima facie evidence of notice of protection [17 U.S.C. § 909].

The notice must consist of the words "mask work," the symbol "M*", or the symbol "M" (the letter M in a circle), and the name of the owner or an abbreviation by which it is recognized or generally known [17 U.S.C. § 909(b); 37

C.F.R. § 211.6(b)(1), (2). The notice may be a label securely affixed or imprinted on the package or container used as a permanent receptacle of the chip or a notice imprinted on or otherwise affixed in the top or other visible layer of the chip [37 C.F.R. § 211.6(c)].
